PREFACE.

THIS is essentially a book of reference, and hence there is much repetition which would otherwise be unnecessary. The text of the Orders is printed in Part I., the Orders being arranged so as to bring all those relating to one County as near to each other as possible. The effect of the Orders is explained in Part II. Here each County is treated by itself, so that by aid of the cross references it will be possible to ascertain with regard to any particular County the precise changes effected on its boundaries or on the boundaries of the Parishes which it contains. The work of the Boundary Commissioners in this department is not yet wholly accomplished, but in the First Appendix will be found a list of the only questions now awaiting settlement, with an explanation of the stages which they have reached. Should it become desirable, I shall issue a supplement dealing with these when they have been finally disposed of. In the interests of the legal profession, however, I could not longer delay publication.

Discrepancies may be observed in the spelling of certain place-names. In such cases it will usually be found that the name is spelt in the Order as it is given on the Ordnance Survey Maps, and in the enumeration of subjects as it is given in the Valuation Roll. The Valuation Rolls sometimes give varying spellings.

I have endeavoured to make the details accurate, utilising for this purpose the information at my disposal when I was Secretary to the Boundary Commissioners, and receiving ready assistance throughout from the staff of the Commission, and during the few weeks which have elapsed since my demission of that office from Mr. J. J. COOK, the present Secretary. But it is right to warn those who use the book that they ought to supplement by local inquiry the information here given, as there may be cases in which my endeavours after accuracy have failed. I shall esteem it a kindness if those who detect errors will communicate them to me.

It would be greatly for the public advantage if two complete sets of one-inch Ordnance maps (and six-inch Maps, where the changes are minute) were placed in some public office, one set coloured to show the boundaries of Counties and Parishes as they were prior to the work of the Boundary Commissioners, and the other set coloured to show the new boundaries.

The number of those to whom I am indebted for assistance makes it impossible to thank them all by name. In the course of a somewhat voluminous correspondence, I have uniformly met with the utmost readiness to assist, without any regard on the part of my correspondents to the trouble entailed on them. Inspectors of Poor especially have laid me under obligations, of which I am the more sensible when I recall the many valuable public services which they habitually render without remuneration. But I cannot too warmly thank Mr. ALEXANDER BAIN, formerly County Assessor, Perth, and now City Assessor, Aberdeen, for his unwearied and efficient aid, without which it would have been impossible for me to ascertain the various subjects affected by the complicated readjustments of area in Perthshire. For details as to the portions of Railway Lines transferred I am indebted to the kindness of Mr. W. MUNRO, Assessor of Railways and Canals.

My thanks are also due to SHERIFF CHEYNE, Chairman of the Boundary Commissioners, and to Mr. JOHN CHISHOLM, Advocate, for allowing me to consult them from time to time, but of course they are in no way committed to the views expressed. In the preparation of the Indices I have had the invaluable aid of Mr. C. D. LAURENSON, Commercial Bank, Lerwick, which has enabled me materially to forward publication.

been almost wholly got rid of through the powers conferred on the Commissioners. But, secondly, there are the more serious difficulties arising from the fact that different administrative statutes employ the same name to denote areas which differ substantially in boundaries and in contents. I have shown elsewhere[1] that in Scotland the word "parish" may mean six different things; —in other words, in speaking of the parish of A, you may mean six different areas according to the particular branch of local administration with which you are dealing. Similarly "county" may have eleven different meanings. As the effect of the 1889 Act has been allowed for in this statement, it will be observed that, without simplification in the statutory definitions of the various administrative areas, a mere rectification of geographical boundaries, although a step in the right direction, is not in itself sufficient to produce the desired result.

Powers of the Boundary Commissioners and of the Secretary for Scotland.

The Boundary Commissioners had no general mandate to rectify or declare irregular or undefined boundaries. How strictly their powers were defined may be best gathered by a comparison of section 49 of the Act with section 51. Section 49 lays down the powers of the Boundary Commissioners in questions of simplification of area, and section 51 defines the analogous powers which the Secretary for Scotland may exercise after the powers of the Commissioners expire. Subject to the conditions specified in section 51 (the antecedent recommendation of a County Council or a Town Council, and the subsequent approval of Parliament), there is hardly a conceivable alteration on the area of a county, a burgh, or a parish[2] which the Secretary for Scotland has not power to effect. He has general powers of altering the boundaries of these areas, and he may even create new parishes. But the defects with which the Boundary Commissioners were directed to deal were carefully specified. The Act (section 49) requires them to frame orders for dealing with "counties, burghs, parishes, and detached parts" of counties and parishes, "so that each burgh and parish, if the Commissioners shall, in the whole circumstances of the case, deem it necessary or expedient, may be within a single county, and that no part of a county or parish be detached therefrom." These duties may thus be formulated:—(1.) To provide that each burgh and parish shall, if expedient, be within a single county. (2.) To provide that no part of a county shall be detached therefrom. (3.) To provide that no part of a parish shall be detached therefrom. It is to be observed that the Commissioners had a discretion in the first case, but none in the second and third. While a burgh or a parish might be allowed to remain situated in more counties than one, it was imperatively required that every detached part of a county or of a parish should be dealt with. Doubts were thrown on this interpretation of the clause (which was that adopted by the Commissioners), but these doubts were disposed of by an opinion of the Lord Advocate (Robertson), and by the decision of a Committee of the House of Lords which had under consideration an opposed Order of the Commissioners dealing with the parishes of Kinnell, Lunan, and Maryton.[1] In that case it was argued that a certain detached part of the parish of Maryton might be allowed to remain as a detached part of that parish. The opinion of the Lord Advocate on the general question involved, which had been obtained by the Secretary for Scotland in connection with a previous case, was laid before the Committee, and the Committee adopted it, holding that the parish of Maryton must be dealt with so that no part of it should be detached therefrom.

The Commissioners had thus jurisdiction to deal only with parishes situated in more counties than one, with detached parts of counties, and with detached parts of parishes. They interpreted the term "detached part" as implying actual physical separation, either by the sea or by an intervening part of another county or parish.

Number of the areas to be dealt with.

The number of areas thus falling to be dealt with turned out on inquiry to be considerably greater than had been anticipated. Of the thirty-three counties into which Scotland is divided, thirteen counties had detached parts, twenty-five in number.[2]

[1] 18th June 1891.

[2] These figures are exclusive of the various detached parts of the county of Cromarty, which are specially dealt with in section 39 of the Act.

The counties by which these detached parts were surrounded, or with which they had the longest common boundary, numbered fourteen. Eight counties, however, which had detached parts of their own, also contained detached parts of other counties, while five counties had detached parts but did not contain detached parts of other counties, and six contained detached parts of other counties but had no detached parts of their own. Thus in the method of dealing with detached parts of counties nineteen counties were concerned. One of these detached parts—the detached part of Dumbartonshire, consisting of the parishes of Cumbernauld and Kirkintilloch, and having its longest common boundary with Stirlingshire—was excluded by the Act from the consideration of the Commissioners.[1]

There were sixty-four parishes situated in more counties than one, of which two were situated partly in three counties and the remainder partly in two counties. These sixty-four parishes were spread over twenty-nine counties. In the case of the four remaining counties (Shetland and Orkney, the two northmost, and Kirkcudbright and Wigtown, the two southmost counties of Scotland), it was found that they had no detached parts of their own, that they contained no detached parts of other counties, and that their boundaries coincided with burgh and parish boundaries. In these, therefore, the Commissioners were not called upon to deal in any way with the county boundaries.

There were two burghs[2] situated in more counties than one, viz., the royal burghs of Glasgow and Renfrew, each of which was situated partly in Lanarkshire and partly in Renfrewshire. The parliamentary burgh of Galashiels is in a peculiar position. It was at one time situated partly in Selkirkshire and partly in Roxburghshire, but as the county boundary which ran through the burgh was badly defined, and as difficulties were found to arise from the fact of the burgh being situated in two counties, Acts of Parliament were obtained which provide that the burgh of Gala-

[1] Section 40.

[2] Burgh in the Act means royal or parliamentary burgh (section 105). For the distinction between these see Chisholm and Shennan's Manual of the Act, note to section 43, p. 95. The boundaries of burghs for the purposes of the Act are the police boundaries, and failing such, the municipal boundaries (section 44).

shiels, whatever its police boundaries may be now or at any future time, shall always be wholly included in the county of Selkirk.[1] Police burghs are not among the areas referred to in section 49, but it may be stated that the only police burgh situated in more counties than one was the police burgh of Coupar-Angus. It was, however, situated wholly within the parish of Coupar-Angus, and by the method of dealing with that parish the police burgh has been placed wholly in the county of Perth.[2]

One hundred and thirty-four parishes had detached parts, two hundred and nineteen in number. These parishes were situated in twenty-five counties.

Examples of inconvenient areas.

These facts sufficiently show how numerous were the instances in which the Commissioners were called on to provide for the alteration of county and of parish boundaries. The extent and the importance of the changes effected must be gathered from the text of the Orders and the explanations given in the body of this work, but it may not be uninteresting to refer to one or two of the more glaring anomalies of area which have been dealt with. The parish of Logie was divided among three counties in such a way as to cut up the parish into six separate parts. One of these belonged to Perthshire, two to Stirlingshire (one being a detached part of Stirlingshire), and three to Clackmannanshire (one forming part of a detached part of Clackmannanshire).[3] Not only had the parish of Croy & Dalcross one detached part situated in Inverness-shire, but the main portion of the parish was so divided between the counties of Inverness and Nairn that it was broken up into six parts. Four of these six parts were situated in Inverness-shire (one being a detached part of Inverness-shire), and two were situated in Nairnshire.[4] The Perthshire parish of Caputh had eight detached parts. The main portion of the parish was situated near Dunkeld, but three of the detached parts were locally situated in Forfarshire, one consisting of Broughty Castle at the mouth of the Firth of Tay.[5] The parish of Weem in Perthshire had eleven detached parts. The main portion of the parish extended to 1444 acres, with a rental of £1312 : 14s. The eleven detached parts had an extent of 40,441 acres, and a rental of £4555 : 9 : 3.[1] These were the most striking instances of unsuitable administrative areas, but there were many others equally inconvenient in practice.

Prior statutory provisions.

In various prior statutes dealing with local administration, there were provisions under which some of these anomalies were dealt with for the purposes of the particular branches of administration with which these statutes were concerned.

Detached parts of counties.

The more important of these provisions related to detached parts of counties.

County Police.

In the County Police Act, 1857[2] (section 35), it is provided that, for the purposes of the Act, "all detached parts of counties shall be considered as forming part of that county by which they are surrounded, or if partly surrounded by two or more counties, then as forming part of that county with which they have the longest common boundary." The same Act makes even fuller provision for the jurisdiction of Sheriffs and Justices in such detached parts. By section 36 it permits "any Sheriff or Justice of the Peace of any county to act as Sheriff or Justice of the Peace in all things whatsoever concerning or in anywise relating to any detached part of any other county which is surrounded in whole or in part by the county for which such Sheriff or Justice of the Peace acts." The simplicity of these enactments is, however, marred by the somewhat complicated provisions relating to the levying of police assessments,[3] and by the option given to certain detached parts (Cumbernauld and Kirkintilloch, Culross and Tulliallan, and Alva) of retaining their connection with the counties of which they were respectively detached parts.[4]

County General Assessment.

The County General Assessment Act of 1868[5] contained provisions for dealing with detached parts of counties exactly similar to those quoted above from section 35 of the County Police Act, and gave a similar option to the detached parts above mentioned.

Roads and Bridges.

same policy for the purposes of road administration, but carried it further. Except for the purpose of paying off old road debts (for which purpose detached parts were to remain connected with their original counties), this Act provided that every detached part should form part of the county by which it was surrounded, or with which it had the longest common boundary. Prior to the passing of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, there were eleven counties in Scotland in which the Roads and Bridges Act had not been adopted. But in the other twenty-two counties there was no exception to the rule that detached parts should be merged in the counties which they adjoined, and, curiously enough, the three detached parts favoured in the County Police Act all fell under this rule in regard to road administration. For road administration the Dumbartonshire parishes of Cumbernauld and Kirkintilloch were included in Stirlingshire, the Perthshire parishes of Culross and Tulliallan were included in Fifeshire, and the Stirlingshire parish of Alva was included in Clackmannanshire.

Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts.

Unfortunately this policy was not adopted in the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts. The Act of 1878 [1] adopted simply the county as the landward area of administration. In the absence of any special interpretation, "county" of course included all the detached parts of a county, however inconveniently situated for administration from the county centre. The Act of 1884 [2] did indeed permit of the inconvenience being remedied to a certain extent, by providing that, for purposes of administration, one local authority might by agreement transfer part of its area to the jurisdiction of another Local Authority; but it declared that any such transfer should not affect the power of making or levying a rate, thus limiting the value of the remedy.

Thus it appears that before 1889 provision, more or less adequate, had been made for dealing with detached parts of counties in all the more important branches of county administration. Undoubtedly, although the remedial measures were not in every instance adequate, the more obvious inconveniences had disappeared. But it still was the case that, in all matters not expressly provided for, detached parts of counties fell to be administered from centres with which they were not in immediate connection. It was reserved for the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, to provide for the final and almost complete disappearance of such anomalies. Section 44 of that Act provided that, subject to the action of the Boundary Commissioners, counties should have the contents and boundaries which they had or would have for the purposes of the Roads and Bridges (Scotland) Act, 1878, and section 49 required the Boundary Commissioners to deal with detached parts of counties once and for all. By section 40 the Act provides that the parishes of Cumbernauld and Kirkintilloch, although a detached part, shall, for the purposes of the Act, be considered as forming part of the county of Dumbarton. This is now the only instance in Scotland of a county with a detached part. By section 39 of the Act the scattered fragments of the county of Cromarty were merged in the county of Ross & Cromarty, and under the Orders of the Boundary Commissioners all the remaining detached parts of counties disappear.

Results of dealing with detached parts of counties.

Any inconveniences due to parishes being situated in more counties than one do not seem to have received the same attention from the Legislature. Indeed parochial and county administration have hitherto been kept so distinct that no appreciable difficulties have been experienced from the fact of a parish being situated in two counties. But the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, seems to shadow forth a scheme of administration under which each county shall consist of a group of entire parishes. It is, for instance, hardly in harmony with the spirit of the Act that one Parochial Board should appoint representatives to district committees in two different counties, especially when it is considered that such a representative need not be a ratepayer in the part of the parish which is administered by the district committee on which he sits. There are certain special provisions in the County Police Act, 1857,[1] repeated in the County General Assessment Act, 1868,[2] affecting the parishes of Fossoway and Logie, but the only statutes, so far as I am aware, which contain general provisions dealing with parishes or burghs situated in more counties than one are the Public Health Act, 1867,[1] and the Registration Act, 1854.[2] Under the Public Health Act each burgh, and for landward districts each parish, was a separate area of administration with a separate Local Authority. For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this Act a Local Authority was empowered in certain cases to apply to the Sheriff. In the case of a parish situated in two counties it was obviously inconvenient that such applications should have to be made by one Local Authority to different Sheriffs, according to the locality in which the nuisance arose, and therefore power was given to the Board of Supervision to determine in which of such counties a parish in this position should be deemed to be for the purposes of the Public Health Act.[3] The necessity for such a provision disappeared when, under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, the district of the county superseded the parish as the area for public health administration, and accordingly the Board of Supervision by circular cancelled all determinations previously made in virtue of this power. Public Health.

The Act relating to the Registration of Births, &c. provides that "the Sheriff of each county shall have the control and superintendence of the registrars of the several parishes and districts within such county: Provided that, where a parish shall be situated in more counties than one, such parish shall, for the purposes of this Act, be held to be within the county in which the parish church is situated."[4] Since these appear to have been the only administrative inconveniences experienced from the overlapping of parish and county boundaries, the conjecture may be hazarded that the directions to the Boundary Commissioners to make the boundaries of burghs and parishes, so far as expedient, coincide with those of counties, indicate a new departure in the policy of the Legislature in the direction of entrusting County Councils at some future time with a supervision over matters, such as poor relief and education, which are at present administered by parochial bodies. A not impossible development of such a policy is the merging of the parish in the district,—in other words the enlargement of the administrative unit in matters of poor relief and education. Results of dealing with parishes in more counties than one.

The Boundary Commissioners have so dealt with parishes situated in more counties than one, that of those which they found in this condition only five remain in it, viz., Stow, Ardnamurchan, Kilmallie, Croy & Dalcross, and Kirkliston.

The first three could be satisfactorily dealt with only by the formation of new civil parishes, which the Commissioners had not power to do. The parish of Stow is situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk. The Selkirkshire part of the parish would naturally form part of a suggested civil parish of Caddonfoot, which would be situated wholly in the county of Selkirk, and which it is within the power of the Secretary for Scotland to form after the powers of the Boundary Commissioners expire.[1] Each of the parishes of Ardnamurchan and Kilmallie is intersected by the boundary between the county of Argyll and the county of Inverness. These parishes are of great extent, and the Commissioners expressed the opinion that convenience of administration would be facilitated if each was divided into two civil parishes, the county boundary in each case to be the boundary between the new parishes.[2] It is thought that this also might be effected by the Secretary of Scotland.[3] The parish of Croy & Dalcross was so dealt with by the Commissioners as to be placed (considerably altered in area) wholly in the county of Nairn, but their Order was amended by Parliament in such a way as to leave the parish partly in two counties. It would hardly be possible now to carry through a scheme under which the parish should be placed wholly in one county.[4] The parish of Kirkliston offered the most difficult problem. No method was discovered of dealing with it satisfactorily, and accordingly it remains situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Linlithgow.

But it is thought that this objection does not hold good, and in any event the technical difficulty could be got over, if it were absolutely necessary, by proceeding first under clause (d) and then under clause (e). The words "in the county" in clause (e) certainly appear superfluous.

In addition to these five parishes which remain situated in more counties than one, it is possible that in the case of three parishes the Commissioners may find it necessary to create this very defect, which in other cases it was their duty to cure. Should the Draft Order dealing with the city of Glasgow [1] pass into law in its present form, the parishes of Cathcart and Eastwood, which are now situated wholly in the county of Renfrew, will after 15th May 1892 be situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew. A similar result might follow if effect should be given to the proposal to place the extended city of Aberdeen wholly within the county of Aberdeen. The parish of Nigg, which at present lies entirely within the county of Kincardine, would then be placed (if no change were made on the parish boundaries) partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. In all these cases it is evident that the paramount importance of having a large city wholly within one county far outweighs the inconvenience (such as it is) of having a parish situated partly in two counties.

Burghs partly in two counties.

By the Draft Order dealing with the city of Glasgow, &c.,[1] it is proposed that the burgh of Glasgow should be placed wholly in the county of Lanark, and that the burgh of Renfrew should be placed wholly in the county of Renfrew. The position of the parliamentary burgh of Galashiels and of the police burgh of Coupar-Angus has already been explained.[2]

Detached parts of parishes.

The inconveniences arising from the existence of detached parts of parishes have only indirectly received attention from the Legislature,—a fact somewhat surprising when the number of these detached parts is considered. Inconveniences thus arising in ecclesiastical matters have in many cases been remedied by the formation of quoad sacra parishes, and the Legislature, taking advantage of this, has in several cases made provision for obviating similar inconveniences in matters of civil administration. For the purposes of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872,[3] "parish" Education.

(the area of administration in landward districts) includes parishes or parts of parishes which are united quoad omnia or quoad sacra. It was recognised that an area formed with a view to convenience for church attendance was likely to be convenient for school attendance, and thus many detached parts of parishes were indirectly dealt with for the purposes of educational administration. Section 17 of the Education Act of 1872 also permits the formation of school districts out of parts of parishes, but this power is not known to have been taken advantage of.

Registration of Births, &c.

The only other provision for dealing with detached parts of parishes is that contained in the Act which instituted the existing system of Registration of Births, &c.[1] While there may be some dubiety as to the interpretation of the definition of "parish" given in the Act,[2] it is understood that a few quoad sacra parishes existing at the date of the Act were adopted as registration districts,[3] and thus some detached parts were indirectly dealt with. But a further power is contained in section 10 of that Act, under which the Sheriff may divide any parish or unite two or more parishes in one registration district. It is understood that this power has been exercised, with the result of remedying in numerous cases one inconvenience to which the existence of a detached part of a parish frequently gave rise.

Results of dealing with detached parts of parishes.

These provisions for dealing with detached parts of parishes were not far-reaching. Now, in virtue of the Orders issued by the Boundary Commissioners in compliance with section 49 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, no parish[4] in Scotland is left with a detached part, unless indeed we except the case of the parish of Gorbals (combined with the parish of Govan for poor law purposes, and situated wholly within the city of Glasgow), of which the old kirkyard situated within Govan parish remains detached from the rest of the parish.

Purposes for which Orders of the Commissioners have effect.

The nature of the alterations in administrative areas made by Orders of the Boundary Commissioners having been thus sketched, it is necessary to direct attention briefly to the purposes of administration for which these alterations are to receive effect.

The Act itself provides that "such alterations shall have effect for all purposes, whether County Council, Justices, Sheriff, Militia, Parochial Board, School Board, Local Authority, or other, save as hereinafter provided."[1] In a case like this, of a general enactment with specified exceptions, the obviously convenient course is at once to formulate these exceptions. When that has been done, the statement will hold good that for every purpose save those so formulated the changes in area provided for by the Boundary Commissioners are to have effect. It may be added that, in the opinion of the law officers for Scotland (1890), the words "or other," occurring in the clause above quoted immediately before the words of saving, do not fall to be construed in a limited manner as meaning "other purposes ejusdem generis with those enumerated," but must be construed absolutely.

Exceptions.

The saving words at the end of the enactment above quoted refer to sections 95 and 96 of the Act. The savings contained in these sections may be considered under three heads.

(1.) Parliamentary purposes.

(1.) Nothing done in pursuance of the Act is to alter the limits of any parliamentary constituency, or the right to be registered as a voter or to vote at any parliamentary election.[2] This is a very simple provision, and no difficulty can arise in construing it. It may, however, be explained that, with very few exceptions, the changes in county boundaries provided for by the Orders of the Commissioners might receive effect for parliamentary purposes without producing any sensible alteration on the constituencies. There are only one or two cases in which the change would be of any magnitude.

(2.) Valuation, &c.

(2.) Neither the Act, nor anything done in pursuance of it, is to alter "the limits within which the valuation roll for a county or burgh is made up as at the passing of this Act," or the right of assessing for the expenses of valuation and of registration of voters.[3] The utility of this provision is much questioned. The Valuation Act of 1854,[4] and amending statutes, proceed on the principle that it is desirable to make the areas of burghs and counties for valuation purposes correspond as nearly as possible with their areas for parliamentary purposes. The intention was to facilitate the formation of the roll of parliamentary voters, and undoubtedly, as between counties and burghs, this was a matter of some importance before the county and burgh franchises were assimilated. But at all events, as between counties, it seems unnecessary and undesirable that the areas of counties as they were before being affected by Orders of the Commissioners should be perpetuated as rating areas. In the present state of the law, valuation rolls must be made up for the counties as they were prior to any alterations effected by the Commissioners. The rolls so formed may possibly be sufficient as they stand for the formation of the parliamentary registers of voters; but where changes have been made by the Commissioners on county boundaries, county clerks must exchange portions of their valuation rolls, in order that they may be in a position to levy the county rates. But in those cases one County Council must continue to assess, for the purposes of valuation and parliamentary registration, areas which for every other administrative purpose have been transferred to the charge of another County Council. Let it be supposed that the saving of which we are now treating had not been made. In that case all that would be necessary, in order to give effect to the provision saving existing parliamentary constituencies, would be that county clerks should exchange those portions of the valuation rolls which deal with the areas transferred by the Commissioners from one county to another, so that the parliamentary register might be made up. So far, indeed, no advantage perhaps is gained. But in the case supposed the boundaries of a county as altered by the Commissioners would be its boundaries for valuation and registration rates in the same way as for general county rates, and no County Council would levy rates beyond its ordinary administrative area. Nothing appears to be gained by continuing matters as they stand. On the contrary, there is a totally unnecessary complication in rating, which would disappear if the last half of section 95 of the Act were repealed, and in place thereof a provision enacted for the necessary exchange of portions of valuation rolls, on the lines of sub-section 4 of section 28 of the Act.

(3.) "Nothing in this Act, nor anything done in pursuance of this Act, shall alter any right to or affecting teinds or any ecclesiastical arrangements or jurisdictions." [1] This section, in so far as it deals with teinds, seems to have been slightly modified by the Registration of Certain Writs (Scotland) Act, 1891, section 1, sub-section 3,[2] which declares that the alteration of county boundaries provided for by the Commissioners, shall have effect for the registration of writs relating to teinds. The saving seems clear enough as regards the rights of ministers to teinds, and as regards the boundaries of the parishes within which ministers and church courts have jurisdiction. Any alteration made by the Commissioners on the area of a parish receives effect for civil purposes only. Teinds will continue to be paid to the minister of the same parish as hitherto, although the area in respect of which they are paid has been transferred to a different civil parish, and ecclesiastical jurisdictions will be exercised over the same areas as before. So the Order will not have effect for the proclamation of banns, this being inter sacra.[3] The question, however, has been raised whether heritors' assessments are to be levied over the same area as formerly, notwithstanding that the Commissioners have altered the area of the parish. To this the answer seems undoubtedly to be in the affirmative. The duties of the heritors—to provide and keep up church, manse, glebe, and kirkyard—have always been regarded as ecclesiastical arrangements, and are therefore saved by the section above quoted. The obligations relating to church, manse, and glebe unequivocally fall under this category, but doubts have been expressed on the matter of kirkyards. The difficulty has been suggested, not with regard to the liabilities of heritors in the matter, but with regard to the rights of parishioners in kirkyards. These, however, are only two sides of the same question, for if the liabilities of heritors to provide kirkyards fall under the head of ecclesiastical arrangements, the rights of parishioners in kirkyards must come under the same head.

(3.) Teinds and Ecclesiastical matters.

Heritors' Assessments.

Burying-grounds in Scotland are of three kinds. (a.) The kirkyard has been described as "a space of ground appertaining and generally contiguous to a parish church, dedicated to the purpose of interment after death of the inhabitants of the parish to which the church belongs."[1] The duty of providing and managing kirkyards and of enlarging them lay with the heritors, and the Presbytery could compel the heritors to perform this duty. The method of discharging this obligation "accords substantially with that in which they are bound and may be required to provide church accommodation."[2] As, therefore, all arrangements regarding a kirkyard proper are ecclesiastical, it may safely be inferred that rights of interment in kirkyards, and liabilities with regard to them, are saved by section 96 of the Act from the operation of the Commissioners' Orders. (b.) The second class consists of burial-grounds provided by the Parochial Board or other Local Authority under the Burial-Grounds (Scotland) Act, 1855,[3] and amending Acts. Any expenses incurred under these Acts are raised by assessments levied in the same manner as poor-rates. It seems clear that proceedings in pursuance of these Acts are acts of civil administration, and can in no sense be regarded as dealing with ecclesiastical arrangements or jurisdictions. Accordingly the area of a parish for purposes of rating under the Burial-Grounds Acts is its area as altered by any Order of the Commissioners, and it is thought that the privileges of burial will be similarly affected, so as to attach only to those within the rating area.[4] (c.) It is understood that in some cases a kirkyard, originally provided by the heritors, has been enlarged by the Parochial Board under the Burial-Grounds Acts. It is possible that different rights and liabilities may attach to the old kirkyard from those which attach to the added portion. There may, however, be ground for holding that the heritors, by transferring the duty of enlarging the kirkyard to the Parochial Board, have divested themselves of their rights, and that the whole area, old and new, is to be treated as a burial-ground under purely civil administration.[5]

[1] Duncan's Parochial Law, 2d Ed., p. 234. [2] Ibid., p. 236.

[3] 18 and 19 Vict., cap. 68.

[4] This, however, depends on the interpretation of sections 15 and 16 of the Act cited in the previous note, as to which there may be some difficulty, especially in cases in which a burial-ground comes wholly in place of a kirkyard.

[5] But see previous note.

These, then, are the only matters in regard to which the Orders of the Commissioners altering boundaries are declared not to have effect. The Orders operate for all other purposes. It would hardly be possible to enumerate these purposes, nor would it be of any special utility, but a few illustrations may be given. One of the most obvious changes is the alteration in judicial arrangements. Transference from one county to another implies that appeal must be made to a different Sheriff Court or J.P. Court by those living in the area transferred. The change of perhaps greatest magnitude is the alteration in the County Council's area of operations, so extensive in their nature, relating as they do to police, roads, public health, cattle disease, and many other matters. Changes may be involved in the composition of local administrative bodies. Where a property qualification exists, as with the Commissioners of Supply and Parochial Boards, property in an area transferred necessarily carries the qualification to the county or parish to which such area is transferred, and a proprietor claiming on property in this position must transfer himself to the administrative bodies of the new county or parish. Similarly County Council electors in the areas transferred from one county to another will exercise their franchise in the new county, and a like change will take place with regard to Parochial and School Board electors, where there have been alterations in parochial boundaries. Subject to the exceptions above detailed, every reference in any Act of Parliament, or in any Order or other public document, past or future, to a county or parish simply by name—as, for instance, the county of Fife, or the parish of Logie—will henceforth be held to relate solely to the area of the county or parish as now altered by the Orders of the Commissioners. For instance, if the Board of Lunacy has, by Order issued long prior to 1891, declared that the county of Fife shall form one lunacy district, this Order must, after 15th May 1891, be interpreted to apply to the county of Fife as altered in area by the Boundary Commissioners. It applies to the county of Fife, whatever the area of that county may be at any particular time. The opposite would hold good, if prior to 1891 this lunacy district had been declared to consist of "the whole area lying within the existing boundaries of the county of Orders operate for all other purposes.

Fife." In that case the word "existing" defines the boundaries once and for all. But unless such a term as "existing" is contained expressly or by implication in the Act of Parliament, Order, or other document dealt with, then the alterations made by the Commissioners will have effect in the areas so referred to. Good examples of both cases are found in the districts for the registration of births, &c. Where the registration district is simply the parish, as defined in section 8 of the Act of 1854,[1] any change in the area of the parish will at the same time be a change in the registration district. But where the Sheriff has designated a special registration district, under section 10 of that Act, no Order of the Boundary Commissioners can affect such a district. It is an area with specially defined boundaries, which could be altered by the Commissioners only by a special clause, and as incidental to an alteration on parochial boundaries.[2]

It is not unlikely that questions of this description may arise with reference to the interpretation of charitable bequests which favour special counties or parishes. According to a recent decision [3] the county or parish in such a case is to be taken as it existed at the date of the testator's death, the principle being that, as you must ascertain what community the testator intended to benefit, the proper way of doing so is to take it as it was when the bequest came into existence. It does not appear from the report that the general question, though stated, was argued in that case. It humbly appears to me that a distinction may be drawn between a bequest which clearly discloses a deliberate intention to limit the benefits to an area as existing at the testator's death, and one which is designed to benefit a community loosely described as those living within certain specified counties or parishes. Each case will probably be decided according to its special circumstances, but it appears to me that there are some in which the wide general words at the close of section 49, sub-section 1, of the Act may receive effect, and the benefits of a bequest of this character be enjoyed only by the favoured area as altered by the Commissioners.[1]

[1] 17 and 18 Vict., cap. 80.

No transfer of property, &c.

While, however, the general statement holds good that all transferences effected by the Orders of the Commissioners operate for all purposes not expressly excepted, a word of explanation may not be out of place to guard against an unwarranted interpretation of this statement. The transfers so effected are transfers of area only; they do not affect the property, debts, or liabilities of the administrative bodies interested in the transference.[2] Section 49 of the Act deals solely with administrative areas; it is left to section 50 to deal with financial questions.[3] No matter how great the changes in the area of a county or of a parish may be, that county or parish is left, so far as the Orders of the Commissioners are concerned, with all its property, debts, and liabilities as these existed prior to the date at which the Orders came into operation. It has been plausibly argued that the transference of the third of the rating area of a parish should surely carry with it a third of the parochial or school debt. It may be answered that in that case it must also carry a third of the assets of the parish, such as school buildings, parochial board office, &c. But the real answer is that section 49 of the Act only empowers the Orders of the Commissioners to make changes in area, while section 50 provides a method according to which the necessary financial adjustments may be made by agreement, and failing agreement, by the arbitration of the Commissioners. It is clear that no hard and fast rule, that debts and liabilities shall pass according to the rateable value of the area transferred, could ever produce just results, for it ignores the responsibilities which such an area carries. You may have an area transferred having a large rental but entailing responsibilities which swallow up double the rates received from it, and you may have the converse case of a rate-producing area with no liabilities. There may be difficulty in some cases in ascertaining what should come under the term liabilities. In the article referred to in note 2 on the previous page, I have given reasons for holding that, in regard to a Parochial Board, the term "liabilities"[1] includes not only paupers actually chargeable at the date of any transfer of area made by the Commissioners, but also the contingent liabilities of that board in respect of persons born within the area of the parish, or having a residential settlement within it, as it existed prior to any such change of area, and that the Orders of the Commissioners make no change on these liabilities.[2] It is clear that, if there were no remedy, such an interpretation of the effect of the Orders might in many cases be most unjust. But section 50 provides a complete and satisfactory remedy to those authorities which care to take advantage of it.

[1] It is understood, however, that high legal authorities hold that the rule laid down in the case quoted must be strictly followed.

[2] I have fully discussed this question in its application to parochial matters, and specially in its bearing on pauper settlement, in an article in the Journal of Jurisprudence for September 1891.

Effect on rating.

While, however, the Orders of the Commissioners do not directly affect the liabilities and assets vested in the County and Parochial authorities at the date of transfer, they alter the areas managed by these bodies for current income and expenditure. All rates[3] must be levied within the area of the new county or parish, and current expenditure may be made only in respect of that area. The result in some cases is curious. Take the case of an area transferred from the county of A, which has no county debt, to the county of B, which has a county debt. Since a County Council must levy its rates on the county, whatever its area, the County Council of B must levy the rate for the repayment of its debt on the whole county, including that unfortunate transferred area as being now part of the county, though that area had no part or lot in the incurring of the debt. Take the converse case,—that of an area transferred from the county of B, which has a debt, to the county of A, which has none. Here the county of B may under section 50 of the Act fairly ask the county of A to relieve it of a portion of its debt proportionate to the rental of the area transferred. But, for the payment of any portion so taken over, the County Council of A must assess its whole area, and cannot levy a special rate on the small area transferred to it from the county of B. Every part of the altered area of a county must bear the burdens of that county, just as it shares in its privileges. What has been said of a county holds good equally of a parish. Temporary hardship may in both cases be entailed on individuals through such transfers of area. Certain ratepayers may have their rates doubled without redress. But this is simply a case in which, the Legislature having declared for simplification in areas, the individual must submit to loss for what the Legislature regards as the benefit of the community. It is quite clear that for rating purposes the county or the parish is the county or the parish as altered in area by the Commissioners, and that, without express authority, administrative bodies can neither go beyond the areas as they now exist, nor treat parts of these areas differently so as to create a system of differential rating.

Register of Sasines.

The alterations effected by the Commissioners on county boundaries have effect for one very important purpose, viz., the registration of writs in the Register of Sasines. This can hardly be called a purpose of administration, but the law officers for Scotland have given it as their opinion that it must be numbered among the purposes to which section 49 of the Act refers, and this has been put beyond doubt by the Act printed in the Second Appendix to this volume.[1] The main object of that Act was to secure that for the purposes of such registration all the Orders of the Commissioners should come into operation at the same date. Accordingly it provides that, notwithstanding the dates specified in the Orders, they shall for this purpose only come into operation on, but not before, 15th May 1892. This postponement has the further advantage of giving conveyancers time to familiarise themselves with the changes produced by the Orders. It may be suggested to conveyancers how desirable it would be not to content themselves with incorporating county changes alone in future deeds. No doubt all that is required to render the registration valid is to have the deed registered in the appropriate division of the Register of Sasines, which entails nothing more than accuracy in ascertaining the county to which the lands dealt with belong. But for purposes of identification changes in parochial boundaries also should be given effect to; otherwise considerable confusion may arise in the future, when the new boundaries of parishes have become familiar and the old boundaries are forgotten. In every case in which the lands dealt with by the conveyancer have sustained a change, whether in their county or in their parish relations, this change should be expressed. Where no county change is made it is not necessary to specify a parochial change, but accuracy and convenience point alike to the importance of describing the lesser change as well as the greater. The stereotyped form, "sometime in the county of A, but now in the county of B," can without difficulty be adapted to parochial changes, and I hope that the details given in this volume may enable any conveyancer to ascertain with a minimum of trouble whether the lands he is dealing with have been affected in any way by an Order of the Commissioners.

PART I.

ORDERS MADE BY THE BOUNDARY COMMISSIONERS FOR SCOTLAND UNDER SECTION 49 OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1889.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

1. The Orders here printed include all which have been confirmed prior to 1st November 1891. There are one or two cases not finally disposed of, regarding which details are given in First Appendix.

2. By the Registration of Certain Writs (Scotland) Act, 1891 (printed in Second Appendix), it is provided that, notwithstanding the dates specified in the Orders of the Boundary Commissioners, these Orders shall, "for the purposes of regulating the registration of writs in the appropriate divisions of the General Register of Sasines for Scotland, and for that purpose only, come into operation on, but not before," 15th May 1892.

3. At the close of each Order the dates of its various stages are given. The Draft Order was published on the date on which it appeared in the Edinburgh Gazette. In each case a reference is given to the page of the Gazette.

4. The Orders are printed according to Counties. The Counties are arranged according to the method adopted in the Census Returns, "so that a zig-zag line, beginning at the north of Scotland and carried to the south, passes successively through every County." Where an Order relates to more Counties than one, it is placed under the County which by this arrangement comes first.

Comrie, Callander, Kilmadock, Dunblane, and Muthill (being the part marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzievaird & Strowan detached No. 4), is also detached from the main portion of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan:

And whereas a part of the parish of Redgorton, containing 1261 acres or thereby, situated at or near Burmeston and adjoining the parish of Auchtergaven and a detached part of the parish of Monzie, is, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, detached from the main portion of the parish of Redgorton:

And whereas it appears to us, after communicating with the authorities and others interested and considering all objections to the terms of our Draft Order thereanent, to be expedient to alter and adjust in the manner hereinafter provided the boundaries of the said parishes of Auchtergaven, Comrie, Crieff, Fowlis Wester, Little Dunkeld, Methven, Moneydie, Monzie, Monzievaird & Strowan, Muthill and Redgorton:

Now therefore we, the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland, do hereby, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon us by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, determine and order as follows:

I. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the detached part of the parish of Monzie marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzie detached No. 3 as lies to the south of the River Almond, shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Methven.

II. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Methven shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Auchtergaven.

III. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Auchtergaven shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Moneydie.

IV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Auchtergaven as lies to the west and south-west of Tullybelton estate and to the west of the eastern boundaries of the farms of Gourdiehill and Woodend on the Athole estate, shall cease to be part of the parish of Auchtergaven, and shall form part of the parish of Monzie.

V. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Redgorton shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Monzie.

VI. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Fowlis Wester as lies north of the River Almond and south of the watershed between Strathbraan and Glenalmond shall cease to be part of the parish of Fowlis Wester, and shall form part of the parish of Monzie.

VII. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Fowlis Wester as lies to the north of the watershed between Strathbraan and Glenalmond shall cease to be part of the parish of Fowlis Wester, and shall form part of the parish of Little Dunkeld.

VIII. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Crieff situated at Auchilanzie, and so much of the parish of Crieff as lies to the north of a line starting at the boundary between the parishes of Crieff and Monzievaird & Strowan at the point at or near Blue Craigs where the farm of Mains of Callander (sometime called Stonefield) on the estate of Ochtertyre marches with the farm of Conyachan on the estate of Glenalmond, and running thence in an easterly direction along the march between the estate of Glenalmond on the one side and the estate of Ochtertyre and afterwards the estate of Monzie on the other side, until it meets the main portion of the parish of Fowlis Wester, and thence along the northern boundary of the parish of Fowlis Wester to the most eastern point of the parish of Crieff, shall cease to be part of the parish of Crieff, and shall form part of the parish of Fowlis Wester.

IX. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, that portion of the parish of Monzie which lies between the parishes of Crieff and Fowlis Wester, and also the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Monzie marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzie detached No. 1, shall cease to be part of the parish of Monzie, and shall form part of the parish of Crieff.

X. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Crieff situated in Glenshervie at or near Auchnafree, being part of the area marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzie detached No. 2, shall cease to be part of the parish of Crieff, and shall form part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan, and the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Monzie, being the remainder of the area marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzie detached No. 2, shall cease to be part of the parish of Monzie, and shall form part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan.

XI. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Fowlis Wester shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan.

XII. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the lands situated at or near Auchnafree marked on the Ordnance Survey maps "Lands claimed by no parish" shall form part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan.

XIII. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached parts of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzievaird & Strowan detached No. 1, Monzievaird & Strowan detached No. 2, and Monzievaird & Strowan detached No 3, shall cease to be part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan, and shall form part of the parish of Comrie.

XIV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan marked on the Ordnance Survey maps Monzievaird & Strowan detached No. 4, shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Muthill.

XV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Muthill as lies to the north and west of a line starting at the point on the boundary of the parish of Muthill where the public road from Comrie to Ardoch by Glenlichorn crosses the Newton burn, and running in a north-easterly direction along the said burn until it enters the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan at a point near Mill of Fortune, shall cease to be part of the parish of Muthill, and shall form part of the parish of Comrie.

XVI. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Crieff as lies to the south of the River Earn shall cease to be part of that parish, and shall form part of the parish of Muthill.

XVII. With respect to the effect of this Order upon the operation of the Education (Scotland) Act, 1872, and Acts amending the same, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1.) This Order shall come into operation on the 28th day of February 1891 for the purpose of School Board elections.

(2.) The School Board of each of the School Districts within the areas affected by this Order shall continue to exercise the same rights and privileges, and be subject to the same liabilities, and its jurisdiction shall extend over the same area, as heretofore, until the date in the year 1891 at which it falls to retire from office.

(3.) From and after the date mentioned in the preceding sub-section, and subject to the qualification that nothing herein contained shall affect the School District of Amulree, or the powers, duties, or liabilities of the School Board of Amulree, or the mode of electing the said School Board, the areas of the School Districts of Auchtergaven, Comrie, Crieff, Fowlis Wester, Little Dunkeld, Methven, Moneydie, Monzie, Monzievaird & Strowan, Muthill, and Redgorton shall be coterminous with the parishes of Auchtergaven, Comrie, Crieff, Fowlis Wester, Little Dunkeld, Methven, Moneydie, Monzie, Monzievaird & Strowan, Muthill, and Redgorton respectively, as altered in area by this Order, and from and after the said date, and subject to the said qualification in regard to the School District of Amulree, each of the said parishes shall be entirely under the jurisdiction of the School Board thereof: Provided that any transference of an area under this Order from one School District to another shall not have effect until the election in the year 1891 of a School Board for the School District to which such area is transferred. The existing School Board of Logiealmond shall continue in office until the election in the year 1891 of a School Board for the parish of Monzie, and thereafter the School Board and School District of Logiealmond shall cease to exist.

(4.) Subject to adjustment as hereinafter mentioned the whole property, debts, and liabilities of the School Board of Logiealmond shall, upon the election of a School Board for the parish of Monzie in the year 1891, become the property, debts, and liabilities of the said School Board of Monzie, and on the same date the whole property, debts, and liabilities of the present School Board of Monzie shall become the property, debts, and liabilities of the School Board of Crieff.

(5.) Nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of the authorities affected by this Order to provide, in the manner prescribed in the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, for the adjustment and disposal of any property, debts, and liabilities at present vested in or attaching to or by this Order transferred to such authorities. In particular the transfer made by the immediately preceding subsection shall not prejudice the rights and liabilities of the School Boards of Crieff and Fowlis Wester arising in respect of the transference to the said parishes of portions of the area at present under the jurisdiction of the School Board of Monzie.

XVIII. Save as otherwise provided herein, this Order shall come into operation on the 15th day of May 1891.

east of the parliamentary boundary of the burgh of Stirling (including the lands of Springkerse, Whitehouse, Boroughmeadow and others), shall cease to be part of the parish of Stirling, and shall form part of the parish of St. Ninians.

IV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Stirling situated within the burgh of Stirling, as lies to the east of a line starting at a point in the centre of the Stirling and St. Ninians road on the present boundary between the parishes of Stirling and St. Ninians at or near Viewforth, and running in a northerly direction along the centre of the said road and of Port Street to the junction of Port Street with Craigs Street, and to the south and west of a line running from the said junction in a south-easterly direction along the centre of Craigs Street until it joins the present boundary between the said parishes at Aitken's Manufactory, shall cease to be part of the parish of Stirling, and shall form part of the parish of St. Ninians.

V. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Stirling as is situated in the county of Clackmannan shall cease to be part of that county, and shall form part of the county of Stirling.

VI. On the 15th day of May 1891 the Stirling Parish School Board shall cease to exist, and the property, debts, and liabilities of the said School Board shall become the property, debts, and liabilities of the Stirling Burgh School Board; and on and after the said date the school district under the jurisdiction of the Stirling Burgh School Board shall embrace the whole area within the parliamentary boundaries of the burgh of Stirling and the whole of the landward part of the parish of Stirling as altered by this Order. This Order shall come into operation for the purposes of School Board elections on the 28th day of February 1891, and the School Board for the said school district shall thereafter be elected by the ratepayers duly qualified therein.

VII. Nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of the Stirling Burgh School Board, and of the St. Ninians School Board, to provide in the manner prescribed by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, for the adjustment of the property, income, debts, liabilities, and expenses of the said Boards, so far as affected by this Order.

VIII. Except as herein otherwise provided, this Order shall come into operation on the 15th day of May 1891.

PART II.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHANGES EFFECTED BY THE ORDERS OF THE BOUNDARY COMMISSIONERS.

Digitized by Google

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

1. The Counties are arranged in the same order as in the Census returns, "so that a zig-zag line beginning at the north of Scotland and carried to the south passes successively through every County." The Counties have the same numbers as in the Census returns.

2. The subjects transferred are enumerated under the head of the County or Parish to which they are transferred. Thus when an area has been transferred from County A to County B, the subjects affected are enumerated under County B, and a cross reference is given under County A.

3. The names of subjects are those contained in the Valuation Rolls. In the description of subjects the term "farm" includes the farm-house and servants' houses, and the term "croft" includes the house. But where any of the servants' houses on a farm have distinctive names, such houses are detailed separately. "House" includes cottage, and "land" includes gardens, yards, &c.

4. The names of proprietors are in almost every case those given in the Valuation Rolls of 1890-91. It is therefore to be borne in mind that in some cases those who are described as proprietors may be limited owners only, such as liferenters or leaseholders.

5. Where villages or towns are affected, the names of the subjects and the proprietors are not usually given. The description of the area transferred is in such cases quite sufficient to show whether and to what extent any subject in the village or town has been affected by the Order.

6. The Ordnance maps referred to are those published by the Ordnance Survey Department on the scale of one inch to the mile. Those published down to this date (November 1891), show the Counties and Parishes as they were before the Orders of the Commissioners came into operation. It is expected that, when the work of the Commissioners is completed, revised maps will be published to show the altered boundaries, but the sheets of the revised maps will bear the same numbers as the present maps. The Orders and the explanations can be readily followed on the maps as published at present.

7. An ampersand (&) is used where a County or a Parish has a double name, e.g., "Ross & Cromarty", "Fetlar & North Yell."

8. In most cases it is necessary to read the text of the Order along with the explanation, because the full descriptions contained in the Orders are, as a rule, not repeated in the explanation.

EXPLANATION OF ORDERS.

1.—COUNTY OF ZETLAND.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

No change.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Fetlar & North Yell and Mid & South Yell.

The parish of Fetlar & North Yell was a combined parish, formed by the union of the two ancient parishes of Fetlar and North Yell, which were separated from each other by the sea. The former consisted of the island of Fetlar, with surrounding islets, and the latter consisted of the most northerly of the three parts into which the island of Yell was anciently divided for ecclesiastical purposes. By the Order printed at p. 3 the ancient parish of North Yell was disjoined from the parish of Fetlar & North Yell, and annexed to the parish of Mid & South Yell. Under this arrangement and with an accompanying simplification in nomenclature, the island of Fetlar, with dependent islands, becomes the parish of Fetlar, and the island of Yell, with dependent islands, becomes the parish of Yell.

As these reconstructed parishes possess clearly defined natural boundaries, it is unnecessary to specify the lands individually affected. It is sufficient to enumerate the islands which are now included within the parish of Fetlar and the parish of Yell respectively.

The parish of Fetlar consists of the following islands:—(1.) Fetlar, 10,133·6 acres; (2.) Urie Lingey, 55·9 acres; and (3.) Daaey, 23·3 acres.

The parish of Yell consists of the following islands:—(1.) Yell, 52,923·2 acres; (2.) Gloup Holm, 30·4 acres; (3.) Linga, 122·2 acres; (4.) Hascosay, 750·5 acres; (5.) Uynarey, 71 acres; (6.) Orfasay, 37·9 acres; and also three small islands, 15·6 acres. The island of Bigga, 235·8 acres, belongs in common to the parishes of Yell and Delting.

2.—Bressay Burra & Quarff, and Lerwick & Gulberwick.

The parish of Bressay Burra & Quarff was a combined parish consisting of the three ancient parishes of Bressay, Burra, and Quarff. The ancient parish of Bressay consisted of the island of Bressay, with surrounding islets situated on the east side of the mainland. The ancient parish of Quarff was situated on the mainland, being bounded on the north by the parish of Tingwall, on the north-east by the parish of Gulberwick, and on the south by the parish of Cunningsburgh. The ancient parish of Burra consisted of islands contiguous to Quarff and Cunningsburgh on the west side of the mainland. Thus Quarff and Burra were separated from Bressay not only by the sea, but also by the parish of Lerwick & Gulberwick. By the Order, printed at p. 3, the ancient parishes of Quarff and Burra were disjoined from the parish of Bressay Burra & Quarff, and annexed to the parish of Lerwick & Gulberwick. In this case also it seemed desirable to simplify the names of the reconstructed parishes, and accordingly they are to be known respectively as the parish of Bressay and the parish of Lerwick.

Here, again, it is unnecessary to specify individually the lands affected, since the boundaries of the parishes, as altered in area, follow lines which are either natural, or well known and defined. The Ordnance Survey maps of Shetland show the boundaries of the ancient parishes. A brief description will therefore suffice.

The parish of Bressay consists of the following islands:—(1.) Bressay, 6918·8 acres; (2.) Isle of Noss, 762·3 acres; (3.) Inner and Outer Score, 36·9 acres; and four small islands, 22·8 acres.

The parish of Lerwick consists of the following districts:—(1.) The ancient parish of Lerwick (entirely mainland), 3158·8 acres; (2.) the ancient parish of Gulberwick (entirely mainland), 2793·8 acres; (3.) the ancient parish of Quarff (entirely mainland), 2098·5 acres; and (4.) the ancient parish of Burra (insular), consisting of the following islands:—(a) Papa, 148·4 acres; (b) West Burra, 1781·5 acres; (c) East Burra, 1242·4 acres; (d) Houss Ness, 32 acres; (e) South Havra, 147·9 acres; (f) Little Havra, 29·4 acres; and six small islands, 16·1 acres.

2.—COUNTY OF ORKNEY.

No change either in county or in parish boundaries.

Digitized by Google

3.—COUNTY OF CAITHNESS.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

No change.

The parish of Reay was situated partly in the county of Caithness and partly in the county of Sutherland, but the mode in which it has been dealt with has entailed no change on the county boundaries. See county of Sutherland, Farr and Reay, infra, p. 131.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Halkirk and Thurso.

The parish of Thurso had one detached part which extended to 7074 acres, and was bounded on the north-west by the parish of Reay, and on the east and south by the parish of Halkirk. It consisted of the Crown lands of Dorrery. By the Order printed at p. 4 this detached part was disjoined from the parish of Thurso and annexed to the parish of Halkirk.

The following are the subjects thus transferred from the parish of Thurso to the parish of Halkirk :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Dorrery, .	Farm, house, land, and shooting lodge,	The Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods and Forests.
Part of the Highland Railway line (66 chains) passing through Dorrery about two miles south of Scotscalder Station, ...		Highland Railway Co.

2.—Reay.

The parish of Reay was situated partly in the county of Caithness and partly in the county of Sutherland. By the Order printed at p. 5 no change was made in the county boundary or in the boundaries of the Caithness-shire portion of the parish. A change, however, was made in the area of the parish, for the Sutherlandshire portion was disjoined from the parish of Reay and annexed to the parish of Farr, in the county of Sutherland The parish of Reay, as thus altered in area, consists solely of the Caithness-shire portion of the old parish of Reay.

For particulars see county of Sutherland, Farr and Reay, infra, p. 131.

4.—COUNTY OF SUTHERLAND.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

No change.

The parish of Reay was situated partly in the county of Sutherland and partly in the county of Caithness, but the Order dealing with that parish (printed at p. 5) makes no change on the county boundary. See Farr and Reay, infra, p. 131.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Dornoch and Rogart.

The parish of Dornoch had one detached part lying to the north of the parish. This detached part contained 725 acres, and was bounded on the east by the parish of Golspie and elsewhere by the parish of Rogart. It was situated at Kinnauld, immediately to the east of Rogart Railway Station.

By the Order printed at p. 5 an exchange of territory was effected between the parish of Dornoch and the parish of Rogart. By Clause I. the detached part of Dornoch was transferred to Rogart. By Clause II. Dornoch received from Rogart an area which embraces nearly the whole of that part of Rogart which lies to the south of the watershed between Strath Fleet on the north and Strath Carnach (including Strath Tollie) on the south. The new boundary thus laid down between the parishes of Dornoch and Rogart leaves the existing boundary at a point about three-quarters of a mile west of the point at which the boundaries of Dornoch, Rogart, and Golspie meet. It is a point on the watershed about a quarter of a mile north of Carn Liath. Thence the new boundary follows the watershed in a westerly direction till it reaches the summit which lies about three-quarters of a mile west of Creagan Glas, and about a quarter of a mile east of Loch na Saobhaidhe. At that point it leaves the watershed and strikes direct in a south-westerly direction to the forkings near the source of Allt an Cealgaiche (not named in the Ordnance Survey one-inch maps). It then follows that burn to its confluence with Allt Garbh Airidh, where it reaches the boundary of the parish of Creich. All to the south of that line is disjoined from Rogart and annexed to Dornoch.

The following are the subjects thus transferred :—

2.—FARR AND REAY.

The parish of Reay was situated partly in the county of Caithness and partly in the county of Sutherland. By the Order printed at p. 5 no change was made in the boundary between the counties; but the portion of the parish in the county of Sutherland was disjoined from the parish of Reay and annexed to the parish of Farr, i.e., so much of the old parish of Reay as was situated in the county of Sutherland now forms part of the parish of Farr. Thus the parish of Reay now consists solely of the Caithness-shire part of the old parish.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Reay to the parish of Farr :—

5.—COUNTY OF ROSS AND CROMARTY.

By section 39 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889 (52 and 53 Vict., cap. 50) the counties of Ross and Cromarty are "united for all purposes whatsoever under the name of the county of Ross & Cromarty." The result of this is to dispose of the various scattered portions of the old county of Cromarty by placing them entirely in the new county of Ross & Cromarty.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There are only two parishes which were situated partly in the county of Ross & Cromarty and partly in other counties, viz., Urquhart & Logie-Wester and Urray. Urquhart & Logie-Wester was situated partly in Nairnshire, the part in Nairnshire being a detached part of that county. Urray was situated partly in the county of Inverness.

The following changes in county boundaries have been made:—

A. With the County of Inverness.

1.—URRAY.

The parish of Urray was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Ross & Cromarty. No change is made in the county boundary. By Clause II. of the Order printed at p. 7 the part of the parish of Urray previously in Inverness-shire remains in that county, but ceases to be part of the parish of Urray, being transferred to the Inverness-shire parish of Kilmorack.

For details see county of Inverness, Kilmorack, infra, p. 150, and for changes on the area of the parish of Urray see Contin, &c., infra, p. 136.

2.—KILMORACK.

The Inverness-shire parish of Kilmorack had a detached part situated in that county near Muir of Ord, presenting the appearance of a narrow wedge of the county of Inverness driven into the county of Ross & Cromarty. By the Order printed at p. 7 (Clause I.) this detached part was disjoined from the parish of Kilmorack and from the county of Inverness and annexed to the parish of Urray and to the county of Ross & Cromarty. Accordingly the boundary between the two counties, which formerly ran from the Beauly River up the north-east and down the west boundaries of the wedge-shaped detached part of Kilmorack, now runs along its south boundary. The county boundary as altered now runs up the Beauly River to the mouth of the Black Burn (about 200 yards further up the Beauly River than the old boundary); and thence it runs up the Black Burn past Tomich till it rejoins the old county boundary, along which it continues westwards.

B. With the County of Nairn.

1.—PARISH OF URQUHART & LOGIE-WESTER.

A large part of the parish of Urquhart & Logie-Wester (6385 acres out of a total acreage of 14,998) formed a detached part of the county of Nairn, marked on the Ordnance Survey maps "Nairnshire detached No. 5." It consisted simply of the barony of Ferintosh. Under various Acts, public and local, it has for some years been treated as part of Ross & Cromarty for most county purposes, and by the Order printed at p. 6 this transference is completed, the detached part being disjoined from Nairnshire and annexed to Ross & Cromarty.

The following are the subjects so transferred from the county of Nairn to the county of Ross & Cromarty :—

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Contin, Dingwall, Fodderty, and Urray.

The parish of Fodderty had two detached parts. Fodderty detached No. 1 extended to 18,474 acres, and was almost surrounded by the parish of Contin. Fodderty detached No. 2, extending to 2720 acres, lay to the south of the main portion of the parish, and was separated from it by a narrow strip of the parish of Dingwall. Not only had the parish of Urray two detached parts in the county of Ross & Cromarty, but in addition part of the main portion of the parish was situated in the county of Inverness. Urray detached No. 1, containing 2463 acres, was almost surrounded by the parish of Contin. Urray detached No. 2, with 38,561 acres, lay in Glen Orrin west of the main portion of the parish, being separated from it by a strip of Contin and a strip of Fodderty detached No. 1. In dealing with these two parishes it was found necessary to effect alterations on the boundaries of the parishes of Contin and Dingwall. By the Order printed at p. 7 the following changes were effected on the four parishes concerned :—

(1.)—Contin.

The only territory taken from Contin is the small portion of the parish lying to the south of the watershed between Strath Conan and Glen Orrin which was transferred to the parish of Urray. On the other hand Contin received a large accession of territory, for there were transferred to it detached part No. 1 of the parish of Urray, and all of Fodderty detached No. 1 except the portion lying to the south of the above-mentioned watershed. The change on the boundaries of the parish can be very simply followed on the map. In order to ascertain the new boundaries follow the old southern boundary from the east end of the parish in a westerly direction till it meets the boundary of Fodderty detached No. 1 at or near Meall a' Bhuic Gaibhre. From that point draw a line in a westerly or south-westerly direction along the watershed till it reaches the boundary of Urray detached No. 2 at or near Meall Giubhais. At this point the line meets the western part of the old southern boundary of Contin, along which it continues to its westmost point. This is the new southern boundary of Contin. The extreme west boundary, the north boundary, and the extreme east boundary remain as before, and the area within these forms the new parish of Contin.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(2.)—Dingwall.

With the view of uniting Fodderty detached No. 2 to the main portion of that parish, part of the parish of Dingwall has been transferred to the parish of Fodderty. The part so disjoined consisted of a narrow strip of territory situated beside Loch Ussie and bounded on the north and north-west by the main portion of the parish of Fodderty, on the south-west by the parish of Urray, on the south by Fodderty detached No. 2, and on the east by the centre of the road leading north from Keithtown past Upper Bogchroe and Baddamhroy to Coill an Righe (not shown on the Ordnance Survey one-inch maps). The last-mentioned boundary has thus become part of the western boundary of the parish of Dingwall.

For details as to the subjects transferred, see Fodderty, infra.

(3.)—Fodderty.

The parish of Fodderty loses the whole of Fodderty detached No. 1, of which a small portion goes to the parish of Urray and the remainder to the parish of Contin. But Fodderty detached No. 2 is united to the main portion of the parish of Fodderty by the annexation to that parish of the intervening portion of the parish of Dingwall just described. Thus the parish of Fodderty now comprises the main portion of the old parish and Fodderty detached No. 2, along with the portion of Dingwall parish above described.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Fodderty to the parish of Contin.—See Contin, supra, p. 135.

(b.) From the parish of Fodderty to the parish of Urray.—See Urray, infra, p. 137.

(4.)—Urray.

The parish of Urray has lost two portions of its old area. Urray detached No. 1 has been transferred to the parish of Contin, and the part of Urray which was situated in the county of Inverness has been transferred to the parish of Kilmorack in that county. On the other hand the detached part of Kilmorack in the county of Inverness has been transferred to the parish of Urray and to the county of Ross & Cromarty ; and Urray detached No. 2 has been united to the main portion of the parish by the annexation to Urray of those intervening portions of Contin and of Fodderty detached No. 1 which lay south of the watershed between Strath Conan and Glen Orrin. The change in boundary effected by the addition of the detached part of Kilmorack is described above (Kilmorack, p. 132). The change made in the north boundary of Urray by the additions from Contin and Fodderty is the same as the change on the south boundary of Contin already described (p. 135).

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Urray to the parish of Contin.—See Contin, supra, p. 135.

(b.) From the parish of Urray to the parish of Kilmorack.—See Kilmorack, infra, p. 150.

2.—KILLEARNAN AND KNOCKBAIN (KILMUIR-WESTER & SUDDIE).

The parish of Killearnan had a detached part situated at Tore. It contained 2007 acres, and was separated from the main portion of the parish by an intervening strip of the parish of Knockbain (Kilmuir-Wester & Suddie). It may be explained that the parish marked on the maps Kilmuir-Wester & Suddie is commonly known as the parish of Knockbain.

By the Order printed at p. 8 the following alterations were made on the boundaries of these two parishes :—

(1.) The main portion and the detached part of Killearnan were united by annexing to that parish the intervening portion of Knockbain. The old road from Munlochy to Redcastle runs in a south-westerly direction for nearly half a mile along the south-east boundary of the detached part of Killearnan. It leaves that boundary at the southmost point thereof and runs past Glackmore to the nearest point of the main portion of Killearnan parish. The north fence of this road, from the point at which it leaves the detached part to the point at which it meets the main portion of Killearnan, is made the new boundary at this part between Killearnan and Knockbain, all that part of Knockbain which lies to the north of it being transferred to the parish of Killearnan.

(2.) Gallowhill Wood (with croft), which formerly lay partly in Knockbain, was placed entirely in the parish of Killearnan. The new parish boundary at that part is the centre of the track on the east side of Gallowhill Wood from a point on the north about 700 yards northwest of St. Johns to a point on the south about 500 yards north of Balagunneerie.

(3.) That part of Killearnan which lay east of the centre of the road leading from Allanglach past Artafallie to North Kessock was transferred to Knockbain.

(4.) The whole farm of Bellfield was placed in Knockbain.

The last change, however, does not involve any alteration on the boundaries as laid down on the Ordnance Survey maps.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Knockbain to the parish of Killearnan.

3.—Applecross and Lochcarron.

The parish of Lochcarron had four detached parts, all surrounded by the parish of Applecross. Lochcarron detached No. 1, containing 141 acres, was situated above a mile to the south of the southern end of Loch Damh. The other three detached parts, containing 89, 46, and 491 acres respectively, were situated at the head of Loch Kishorn and on the left bank of the River Kishorn.

By the Order printed at p. 9 the following changes were effected :—

(1.) That part of Applecross which lies east of the River Kishorn and south of the north march of Kishorn estate was transferred to Lochcarron. In this way detached parts Nos. 2, 3, and 4 of Lochcarron are united to the main portion of the parish. The new boundary between the parishes at this part consists of the centre of Loch Kishorn, and the medium filum of the River Kishorn from its mouth to a point about a quarter of a mile north of Tornapress; from this point it runs in an easterly direction along the march between the estates of Kishorn and Lochcarron until it meets the old boundary of the parish of Lochcarron at a projecting point about 300 yards north of Loch na Caillich.

(2.) Lochcarron detached No. 1 and a portion of the main portion of Lochcarron lying to the east of this detached part were transferred to Applecross. The alteration on the boundary between the parishes due to the latter transference is fully described in the Order (supra, p. 9), and need not be repeated.

The following subjects have thus been transferred:—

4.—BARVAS, LOCHS, AND UIG.

The parish of Lochs had a detached part situated at Carloway, and lying between the parishes of Barvas and Uig.

By the Order printed at p. 11 this detached part has been divided between the parishes of Barvas and Uig by a line fully described in the Order, which, however, there may be some difficulty in tracing on the map for the first part of its course. The starting-point, Geodha Shealaiga (which is not marked on the one-inch Ordnance Survey maps) lies on the coast nearly due north of Carloway between two points which are marked on the map Aird Ghoudhann and Rudha an Trilleachain. The starting-point once obtained, the line may readily be traced (running always in a generally south-easterly direction) by the succession of Lochs through which it passes, viz., Loch Langabhat, Loch Ghleadhairean, Loch Shanndabhat, Loch Mor Connaidh, and Loch Airidh Seibh, till it reaches the boundary of Uig in Gleann Eiracleit. All to the west of this line goes to Uig, and all to the east to Barvas.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

6.—COUNTY OF INVERNESS.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Inverness had one detached part—a portion of the parish of Croy & Dalcross. There were also ten parishes situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in other counties, viz., Ardnamurchan, Cawdor, Cromdale, Croy & Dalcross, Daviot & Dunlichity, Kilmallie, Moy & Dalarossie, Petty, Small Isles, and Urray.

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows :—

A. With the County of Argyll.

1.—ARDNAMURCHAN.

The Commissioners have not dealt with the parish of Ardnamurchan. It is nearly equally divided between the counties of Argyll and Inverness, the area in Argyll being 115,063 acres, and in Inverness 117,762 acres. Every consideration of convenience points to the desirability of dividing a parish of so great extent into two separate parishes. The county boundary, which runs along the centre of Loch Sheil, is well defined and convenient for administrative purposes. A hope is entertained that the Inverness-shire portion of the parish may be disjoined from the Argyllshire portion and created a separate civil parish by the Secretary for Scotland under section 51 of the Local Government Act. The Boundary Commissioners had not power to carry this scheme into effect, but expressed their approval of it.

2.—KILMALLIE.

This parish was divided between the counties of Argyll and Inverness by a boundary which, traversing the district situated north of Loch Eil and south of Loch Arkaig, was exceedingly irregular and inconvenient. By the Order printed at p. 14 Loch Eil was made the new county boundary, and the portion of Kilmallie north of Loch Eil so far as previously in Argyllshire was transferred to Inverness-shire. The Commissioners have expressed the opinion that the portion of Kilmallie remaining in Argyllshire might suitably be formed at some future time into an independent civil parish. The new county boundary (which was so drawn as to place the main road leading to the west from Corpach wholly in the county of Inverness) is fully described in the Order (p. 15), and can be readily followed on the map. It seems necessary only to explain that Allt Dubhaidh is the burn which flows from Loch an Dubh Torr an Tairbeart into the Callop river.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Argyll to the county of Inverness (while remaining in the parish of Kilmallie) :—

3.—SMALL ISLES.

The parish of Small Isles was formerly divided between the counties of Argyll and Inverness. According to the Ordnance Survey returns, the parish consists of nine islands, viz., in the county of Argyll, Canna 2908 acres ; Sanday 577 acres ; Rum 26,785 acres ; Muck 1585 acres ; Oigh-sgeir 76 acres ; Eilean nan Each 97 acres ; and a small island 8 acres ; and in the county of Inverness, Eigg 7803 acres, and Eilean Chasgaidh 102 acres. By the Order printed at p. 16 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Inverness.

The following subjects, while remaining in the parish of Small

B. With the County of Elgin.

1.—Cromdale.

The parish of Cromdale was situated partly in the county of Elgin and partly in the county of Inverness. By the Order printed at p. 16 the county boundary has been left undisturbed, but the Inverness-shire portion of the parish has been transferred from the parish of Cromdale to the Inverness-shire parish of Duthil & Rothiemurchus. The parish of Cromdale as altered in area consists solely of that part of the parish which was previously in the county of Elgin. For details, see Cromdale and Duthil, infra, p. 147.

It may be explained that the county boundary in question is one which was mutually agreed upon by the counties interested, the agreement being given effect to by the Act 33 and 34 Vict., cap. 16.

C. With the County of Nairn.

1.—Cawdor.

The parish of Cawdor was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. The Inverness-shire portion has been transferred to the county of Nairn, the whole parish being thus placed in that county. For details see county of Nairn, Cawdor, infra, p. 152.

2.—Croy & Dalcross.

The parish of Croy & Dalcross was divided between the counties of Inverness and Nairn by a most irregular boundary line. The parish also had a detached part situated in Inverness-shire and forming part of that county. By the Order printed at p. 13 the detached part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Inverness (see Croy & Dalcross, &c., infra, p. 148). The parish as thus altered in area by the disjunction of its detached part was redivided between the two counties concerned in such a way as to avoid the inconveniences caused by the former boundary, with the result of leaving the parish pretty equally divided between the county of Inverness and the county of Nairn. There was thus an exchange of areas within the parish between these two counties.

The new county boundary runs in a south-westerly direction along the north-west boundary of the parish of Croy & Dalcross from its north end to the point near the west end of Loch Flemington, at which the old county boundary strikes in a south-easterly direction into the parish. It then runs along this county boundary, first south-east, and then south-west until it meets the northern boundary of the estate of Holme, a little south of Croy village. It then runs along the northern and western marches of the estate of Holme until it strikes the River Nairn east of Cantray House. Thence it runs south-west up the River Nairn to a point north-west of Croygorston. Here it turns again to the south-east, keeping Croygorston on the east, and Dalroy and Finglack on the west, and reaches the boundary of the parish of Cawdor at a point about three-quarters of a mile north-east of Beinn Bhuidhe Mhor.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from one county to the other (while remaining in the parish of Croy & Dalcross) :—

3.—Daviot & Dunlichity.

The parish of Daviot & Dunlichity was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. The part in the latter county consisted of two portions, one being a detached part of Nairnshire (Nairnshire detached No. 4), and the other being part of the main portion of the county of Nairn. Both portions have now been transferred to Inverness-shire by the Order printed at p. 13, and the whole parish has thus been placed within the county of Inverness.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Nairn to the county of Inverness (while remaining in the parish of Daviot & Dunlichity) :—

4.—Moy & Dalarossie.

The parish of Moy & Dalarossie was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. No change is made in the county boundary, but the Nairnshire part of the parish has been transferred to the Nairnshire parish of Cawdor. The parish of Moy & Dalarossie now consists solely of that part of the old parish which was in the county of Inverness. For details, see County of Nairn, Cawdor, infra, p. 154.

5.—Petty.

The parish of Petty was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. By the Order printed at p. 12 the Nairnshire portion has been transferred to Inverness-shire, the whole parish being thus placed in the latter county.

The following subjects, while remaining in the parish of Petty, have thus been transferred from the county of Nairn to the county of Inverness :—

D. With the County of Ross & Cromarty.

1.—Kilmorack.

Part of the parish of Kilmorack has been transferred from the county of Inverness to the county of Ross & Cromarty. See Ross & Cromarty, Kilmorack, supra, p. 132.

2.—Urray.

The parish of Urray was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Ross & Cromarty. By the Order printed at p. 7 the Inverness-shire part of the parish is retained in Inverness-shire and transferred to the parish of Kilmorack. For details, see Kilmorack, infra, p. 150.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Boleskine & Abertarff and Dores.

The parish of Boleskine & Abertarff had a detached part extending to 1367 acres, and lying to the east of Loch Farraline and of the parish of Dores. The parish of Dores, on the other hand, had two detached parts, the one nearly and the other wholly surrounded by the parish of Boleskine & Abertarff. Dores detached No. 1 was situated south of Foyers and abutted on Loch Ness. Dores detached No. 2 lay south of Loch Killin and east of the River Killin. By the Order printed at p. 17 these parishes were made to exchange their detached parts. The detached part of Boleskine & Abertarff was transferred to Dores and the two detached parts of Dores were transferred to Boleskine & Abertarff.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Dores to the parish of Boleskine & Abertarff.

2.—CROMDALE AND DUTHIL.

As already explained (p. 143), the parish of Cromdale, which was situated partly in the county of Elgin and partly in the county of Inverness, has been placed entirely in one county by having its area restricted to that of the Elginshire portion of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 16 the county boundary was left untouched, but the Inverness-shire portion of the parish was transferred to the Inverness-shire parish of Duthil & Rothiemurchus.

The following subjects, while remaining in the county of Inverness, have thus been transferred from the parish of Cromdale to the parish of Duthil & Rothiemurchus :—

3.—CROY & DALCROSS AND INVERNESS.

The parish of Croy & Dalcross was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn, and had a detached part situated in the county of Inverness. The only change made on the area of the parish by the Order which deals with it (supra, p. 13) consists in the transference of this detached part of the parish to the parish of Inverness.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Croy & Dalcross to the parish of Inverness:—

4.—KILMALLIE AND KILMONIVAIG.

Part of the parish of Kilmallie was separated from the remainder by a small intervening portion of Kilmonivaig. By the Order printed at p. 14 this intervening portion of Kilmonivaig has been transferred to Kilmallie. The part so transferred is situated on Loch Linnhe between the River Lochy and the River Nevis, and is bounded on the east by the march (shown on the map) of Mrs. Cameron Campbell's property. There has thus been transferred from the parish of Kilmonivaig to the parish of Kilmallie :—

5.—KILMORACK, KILTARLITY & CONVINTH, AND URRAY.

The parishes of Kilmorack and Kiltarlity & Convinth were both situated wholly in Inverness-shire, and each had one detached part. The parish of Urray was almost entirely situated in the county of Ross & Cromarty, but a small portion (about 382 acres) was situated in Inverness-shire. By the Order dealing with these parishes (printed at p. 7), as has been already explained (p. 132), the detached part of Kilmorack has been transferred to the parish of Urray and to the county of Ross & Cromarty, and the Inverness-shire portion of Urray has, while remaining in Inverness-shire, been transferred to the parish of Kilmorack. The detached part of Kiltarlity & Convinth (25,477 acres) was separated from the main portion of the parish by an intervening portion of the parish of Kilmorack. By the Order dealing with these two parishes (printed at p. 17) this intervening portion of Kilmorack was transferred to Kiltarlity & Convinth, thus uniting the detached part of the latter parish with its main portion.

The following statement shows the effect of the Orders on these parishes so far as in Inverness-shire :—

(1.)—Kilmorack.

The following are the subjects transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Kilmorack to the parish of Urray.—See Ross & Cromarty, Kilmorack, supra, p. 132.

(b.) From the parish of Kilmorack to the parish of Kiltarlity & Convinth.—See Kiltarlity & Convinth, infra.

6.—Kingussie & Inch and Laggan.

The parish of Kingussie & Inch had a detached part containing 2133 acres, and surrounded by the parish of Laggan. By the Order printed at p. 18 this detached part has been transferred to the parish of Laggan.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Kingussie & Inch to the parish of Laggan :—

7.—Moy & Dalarossie.

The parish of Moy & Dalarossie has been reduced in size by the transference of the part of the parish formerly in Nairnshire to the Nairnshire parish of Cawdor. See County of Nairn, Cawdor, &c., infra, p. 154.

8.—Sleat and Strath (Island of Skye).

The parish of Sleat had a detached part containing 7186 acres, and situated at Kylerhea. This detached part was separated from the main portion of the parish by part of the parish of Strath. By the Order printed at p. 19 an exchange of territory was effected between the two parishes. The northern portion of the detached part of Sleat was given to Strath, while at the same time a portion of Strath was given to Sleat, so as to connect the remainder of the detached part of Sleat with the main portion of the parish. The description of the new boundary is given fully in the Order.

The following subjects have thus been transferred:—

7.—COUNTY OF NAIRN.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Nairn had five detached parts, all shown and numbered on the Ordnance Survey maps, viz., Nairn detached No. 1, part of the parish of Dyke & Moy; Nairn detached No. 2 and Nairn detached No. 3, which were at the same time detached parts of the parish of Ardclach; Nairn detached No. 4, part of the parish of Daviot & Dunlichity; and Nairn detached No. 5, part of the parish of Urquhart & Logie-Wester. The first three were wholly surrounded by the county of Elgin, the fourth by the county of Inverness, and the fifth by the county of Ross & Cromarty. There were also five parishes situated partly in the county of Nairn and partly in other counties, viz., Cawdor, Croy & Dalcross, Daviot & Dunlichity, Moy & Dalarossie, and Petty.

The county boundaries of Nairn have been dealt with in the following manner:—

A. With the County of Elgin.

1.—Ardclach.

Detached parts Nos. 2 and 3 of the county of Nairn consisted of two detached parts of the Nairnshire parish of Ardclach, the one wholly and the other nearly surrounded by the Elginshire parish of Edinkillie. By the Order printed at p. 21 these two detached parts were transferred to the county of Elgin and to the parish of Edinkillie.

For details see County of Elgin, Ardclach, infra, p. 157.

2.—Dyke & Moy.

Nairnshire detached No. 1 consisted of a small part of the parish of Dyke & Moy, situated at Moy Carse, on the River Findhorn. While remaining part of the parish of Dyke & Moy, it has been transferred to the county of Elgin. See County of Elgin, Dyke & Moy, infra, p. 158.

B. With the County of Inverness.

1.—Cawdor.

The parish of Cawdor was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. By the Order printed at p. 13 the Inverness-shire portion, while remaining part of the parish of Cawdor, has been transferred to the county of Nairn. For a change on the area of the parish of Cawdor see Cawdor, &c., infra, p. 154.

2.—Croy & Dalcross.

The changes on the county relations of this parish are fully explained under County of Inverness, Croy & Dalcross, supra, p. 143.

3.—Daviot & Dunlichity.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Nairn and partly in the county of Inverness. By the Order printed at p. 13 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Inverness.

See County of Inverness, Daviot and Dunlichity, supra, p. 145.

4.—Moy & Dalarossie.

The parish of Moy & Dalarossie was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. By the Order printed at p. 19 the county boundary was left unchanged, but the Nairnshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Cawdor. See Cawdor, &c., infra, p. 154.

5.—Petty.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Nairn and partly in the county of Inverness. By the Order printed at p. 12 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Inverness.

See County of Inverness, Petty, supra, p. 146.

C. With the County of Ross & Cromarty.

1.—Urquhart & Logie-Wester.

Part of the parish of Urquhart & Logie-Wester formed a detached part of the county of Nairn, the rest of the parish being situated in the county of Ross & Cromarty. By the Order printed at p. 6 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Ross & Cromarty.

See County of Ross & Cromarty, supra, p. 133.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Ardclach.

The parish of Ardclach had two detached parts which have been transferred to the parish of Edinkillie. See County of Elgin, Ardclach, infra, p. 157.

2.—Cawdor, Moy & Dalarossie and Nairn.

The parish of Cawdor had one detached part, which was bounded on the east by the parish of Auldearn and elsewhere by the parish of Nairn. By the Order printed at p. 13 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Nairn. The parish of Moy & Dalarossie was situated partly in the county of Inverness and partly in the county of Nairn. By the Order affecting this parish (supra, p. 19) the Nairnshire portion of Moy & Dalarossie was transferred to the parish of Cawdor.

The following is the effect of these changes :—

(1.)—Cawdor.

The following subjects have been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Cawdor to the parish of Nairn.—See Nairn, infra.

8.—COUNTY OF ELGIN.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Elgin contained three detached parts of the county of Nairn. Two of them were at the same time detached parts of the parish of Ardclach, while the third was part of the parish of Dyke & Moy. One parish (Cromdale) was situated partly in the county of Elgin and partly in the county of Inverness, and five parishes (Bellie, Boharm, Inveravon, Keith, and Rothes) were situated partly in the county of Elgin and partly in the county of Banff. Prior to the passing of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, parts of the parishes of Bellie, Boharm, Keith, and Inveravon, situated in the county of Elgin, were by a Local Act of Parliament included in the county of Banff for the administration of the law relating to highways. The arrangements made by the Boundary Commissioners have the result of placing each of these parishes in one county for all county purposes. (See Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, sect. 41.) The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows :—

A. With the County of Banff.

1.—BELLIE.

The parish of Bellie was situated partly in the county of Banff and partly in the county of Elgin. By the Order printed at p. 21 the parish was placed wholly and for all purposes in the county of Elgin.

The following subjects (while remaining in the parish of Bellie) have thus been transferred from the county of Banff to the county of Elgin :—

B. With the County of Inverness.

1.—CROMDALE.

The parish of Cromdale was situated partly in the county of Elgin and partly in the county of Inverness. No change has been made on the county boundary, but the Inverness-shire part of the parish has been transferred to the Inverness-shire parish of Duthil & Rothiemurchus. See Inverness, Cromdale, &c., supra, p. 147.

C. With the County of Nairn.

1.—ARDCLACH.

The parish of Ardclach had two detached parts which were at the same time detached parts of the county of Nairn (Nairnshire detached Nos. 2 and 3). They were surrounded by the Elginshire parish of Edinkillie. By the Order printed at p. 21 these two detached parts were transferred to the county of Elgin and the parish of Edinkillie.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Nairn to the county of Elgin (and at the same time from the parish of Ardclach to the parish of Edinkillie) :—

2.—Dyke & Moy.

Part of the parish of Dyke & Moy, situated on the east of the River Findhorn at Moy Carse, formed part of the county of Nairn, being a detached part of that county. By the Order printed at p. 20 this detached part (while remaining in the parish of Dyke & Moy) was transferred to the county of Elgin.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Nairn to the county of Elgin :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Moy Carse, . .	Farm, ...	Ian Robert James Murray Grant of Moy.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Cromdale.

The parish of Cromdale has been diminished in area by the disjunction of the part of the parish formerly in Inverness-shire. See County of Inverness, Cromdale, &c., p. 147.

2.—Edinkillie.

By the Order printed at p. 21 the parish of Edinkillie has been increased in area by the addition of the two detached parts of the parish of Ardclach. For the subjects thus transferred, see Ardclach, supra, p. 157.

9.—COUNTY OF BANFF.

The county of Banff had four detached parts, all surrounded by the county of Aberdeen, viz., the parish of St. Fergus, and parts of the parishes of Gartly, New Machar, and Old Deer. On the other hand, it contained a detached part of the county of Aberdeen, which was at the same time a detached part of the parish of King Edward. Three other parishes (Cabrach, Cairnie, and Keith) were situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff, and five (Bellie, Boharm, Inveravon, Keith, and Rothes) partly in the county of Banff and partly in the county of Elgin. Further, the parishes of Gamrie and Inverkeithny and parts of the parishes of Alvah and Rothiemay (all Banffshire parishes) were for certain purposes of administration held to form part of the county of Aberdeen.

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Aberdeen.

1.—Gamrie, Inverkeithny, Alvah, and Rothiemay.

By section 41 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, the parishes of Gamrie and Inverkeithny and parts of the parishes of Alvah and Rothiemay (all of which are Banffshire parishes) are to be deemed to be in the county of Aberdeen for public health and road administration. Clause (g.) of the section, however, saves the powers of the Boundary Commissioners. By the Order printed at p. 26, it is directed that these parishes shall form part of the county of Banff for all purposes not saved by the Act. As the areas affected by the Order were held to be in the county of Aberdeen only for certain limited purposes of administration, it does not seem necessary to specify the subjects affected. It is sufficient to state that the four parishes named are now for all purposes situated wholly in the county of Banff.

2.—Cabrach.

The parish of Cabrach was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. By the Order printed at p. 23 it has been placed wholly in the county of Banff.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Aberdeen to the county of Banff (while remaining in the parish of Cabrach):—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Aldivalloch, . .	Farm, crofts, houses, and land,	Duke of Richmond and Gordon.
Aldunie, . . .	Farms and houses, . . .	Do.
Auchmair, . .	Farm, houses, and land, . .	Do.

3.—Cairnie.

The parish of Cairnie was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. By the Order printed at p. 28 no change was made on the county boundary, but the Banffshire part of the parish was transferred to the Banffshire parish of Keith. The parish of Cairnie, as altered in area, consists solely of the Aberdeenshire part of the old parish of Cairnie.

For details, see Cairnie, &c., infra, p. 164.

4.—Gartly.

The eastern portion of the parish of Gartly formed a detached part of Banffshire. This detached part was wholly surrounded by the county of Aberdeen, and has been transferred to that county by the Order printed at p. 24.

See County of Aberdeen, Gartly, infra, p. 166.

5.—Glass.

The parish of Glass was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. It has now been placed wholly in the county of Aberdeen by the Order printed at p. 23.

See County of Aberdeen, Glass, infra, p. 168.

6.—King Edward.

There was a detached part of the county of Aberdeen which was also a detached part of the Aberdeenshire parish of King Edward, and which was surrounded by the county of Banff. It was situated near the town of Banff, and was surrounded by the Banffshire parishes of Alvah, Banff, and Gamrie. By the Order printed at p. 27 this detached part was transferred to the county of Banff, and was at the same time annexed to the parish of Alvah.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Aberdeen to the county of Banff (and from the parish of King Edward to the parish of Alvah):—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

7, 8, and 9.—New Machar, Old Deer, and St. Fergus.

Part of the parish of New Machar, part of the parish of Old Deer, and the whole of the parish of St. Fergus formed detached parts of the county of Banff surrounded by the county of Aberdeen. These detached parts have all been transferred to the county of Aberdeen by the Orders printed at pp. 25 and 26. For details as to the subjects thus transferred, see County of Aberdeen, infra, p. 169 et seq.

B. With the County of Elgin.

1.—Bellie.

The parish of Bellie, which was situated partly in the county of Banff and partly in the county of Elgin, was placed wholly in the county of Elgin by the Order printed at p. 21. See County of Elgin, Bellie, supra, p. 155.

5.—Rothes.

The parish of Rothes, which was situated partly in the county of Banff and partly in the county of Elgin, has been placed wholly in the county of Elgin by the Order printed at p. 21. See County of Elgin, Rothes, supra, p. 156.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Alvah.

The parish of Alvah has been increased in area through the transference to it of the detached part of the parish of King Edward by the Order printed at p. 27. See King Edward, supra, p. 161.

2.—Cairnie and Keith.

The parish of Cairnie was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. In dealing with it no change has been made in the county boundary, but by the Order printed at p. 28 the Banffshire part of the parish has been transferred to the Banffshire parish of Keith.

10.—COUNTY OF ABERDEEN.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Aberdeen had one detached part (a detached part of the parish of King Edward) wholly surrounded by the county of Banff. The county of Aberdeen contained four detached parts of the county of Banff, viz., the parish of St. Fergus, and parts of the parishes of Gartly, New Machar, and Old Deer. Six other parishes were situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in other counties, viz., Banchory-Devenick, Banchory-Ternan, Cabrach, Cairnie, Drumoak, and Glass. Four Banffshire parishes also (Gamrie, Inverkeithny, Alvah, and Rothiemay) were wholly or partly treated for certain purposes as parts of Aberdeenshire. (See also First Appendix, City of Aberdeen and Peterculter.)

The county boundaries of Aberdeenshire have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Banff.

1.—Gamrie, Inverkeithny, Alvah, and Rothiemay.

See the Order printed at p. 26, and County of Banff, Gamrie, &c., supra, p. 159.

2.—Cabrach.

The parish of Cabrach was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. It has been placed wholly in the county of Banff by the Order printed at p. 23.

For details see County of Banff, Cabrach, supra, p. 159.

3.—Cairnie.

The parish of Cairnie was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Banff. The county boundary has been left unaltered, but the Banffshire part of the parish has been transferred to the Banffshire parish of Keith by the Order printed at p. 28.

For details see County of Banff, Cairnie, &c., supra, p. 164.

4.—Gartly.

The eastern part of the parish of Gartly (east of the River Bogie) formed a detached part of the county of Banff, wholly surrounded by the county of Aberdeen, the rest of the parish of Gartly being in Aberdeenshire. By the Order printed at p. 24 this detached part has been transferred to the county of Aberdeen, and accordingly the whole parish of Gartly is now situated in the county of Aberdeen.

6.—King Edward.

The parish of King Edward had a detached part which formed also a detached part of the county of Aberdeen, wholly surrounded by the county of Banff. By the Order printed at p. 27 it has been transferred from the county of Aberdeen to the county of Banff, and at the same time from the parish of King Edward to the parish of Alvah.

For details see County of Banff, King Edward, supra, p. 161.

7.—New Machar.

The parish of New Machar had a detached part which formed also a detached part of the county of Banff. The main portion of the parish was in the county of Aberdeen, and the detached part, while forming part of the county of Banff, was surrounded by the county of Aberdeen. By the Order printed at p. 25 this detached part was transferred to the county of Aberdeen, and at the same time it was joined to the main portion of the parish of New Machar by annexing to that parish the small intervening portion of the parish of Udny. For the subjects thus transferred from Udny, see New Machar, &c., infra, p. 181.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of New Machar) been transferred from the county of Banff to the county of Aberdeen :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

8.—Old Deer.

The parish of Old Deer had no detached part, but a portion of it formed a detached part of the county of Banff. The rest of the parish was in the county of Aberdeen, and this detached part of Banffshire was wholly surrounded by the county of Aberdeen. By the Order printed at p. 25 the detached part of Banffshire has been transferred to the county of Aberdeen, and thus the whole parish of Old Deer is now in Aberdeenshire.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Old Deer) been transferred from the county of Banff to the county of Aberdeen :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Estate of Pitfour—

Fetterangus village is also in the part transferred from Banffshire to Aberdeenshire. It consists chiefly of small urban subjects too numerous to detail. It is sufficient to state that the whole village is now situated in the county of Aberdeen.

(Sheet 87 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

9.—St. Fergus.

The whole parish of St. Fergus formed a detached part of the county of Banff, the adjoining parishes being all situated in Aberdeenshire. By the Order printed at p. 26 the parish has been transferred to the county of Aberdeen, no change being made on the parish boundaries.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Banff to the county of Aberdeen :—

B. With the County of Kincardine.

1.—Banchory-Devenick.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. By the Order printed at p. 29 no change was made in the county boundary, but the Aberdeenshire part of the parish was transferred to the Aberdeenshire parish of Peterculter. Thus the parish of Banchory-Devenick now consists simply of the Kincardineshire part of the old parish.

For details see Banchory-Devenick, &c., infra, p. 174.

2.—Banchory-Ternan.

The parish of Banchory-Ternan, which was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine, has now been placed wholly in the county of Kincardine by the Order printed at p. 29.

For details see County of Kincardine, Banchory-Ternan, infra, p. 186.

3.—Drumoak.

The parish of Drumoak was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. By the Order printed at p. 30 it has been placed wholly in the county of Aberdeen.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Drumoak) been transferred from the county of Kincardine to the county of Aberdeen :—

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—ABERDOUR, FRASERBURGH, AND STRICHEN.

The parish of Aberdour had a detached part which was situated on the north border of the parish of Strichen. On the east of this detached part lay a detached part of the parish of Fraserburgh, which also adjoined the parish of Strichen. By the Orders printed at p. 31 and p. 33 these two detached parts were transferred to the parish of Strichen.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

2.—ABOYNE & GLENTANNER AND BIRSE.

The parish of Aboyne & Glentanner had one detached part, which was wholly surrounded by the parish of Birse. By the Order printed at p. 31 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Birse.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Aboyne & Glentanner to the parish of Birse :—

3.—BANCHORY-DEVENICK AND PETERCULTER.

The parish of Banchory-Devenick was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. It had a detached part situated in and forming part of the county of Aberdeen and surrounded by the parish of Peterculter. There were also two districts in Aberdeenshire common to the parishes of Banchory-Devenick and Peterculter. These are all dealt with in the Order printed at p. 29, by which the whole of the Aberdeenshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Peterculter, the county boundary being left unaltered.

It is hardly possible to enumerate all the properties transferred, though the names in the majority of cases can be given. It may be a sufficient guide to remember that every subject which prior to 15th May 1891 was at the same time in the county of Aberdeen and in the parish of Banchory-Devenick is now in the parish of Peterculter, while remaining in the county of Aberdeen. Or, it may be otherwise put thus, so much of the old parish of Banchory-Devenick as lay north of the River Dee has become part of the parish of Peterculter.

The following are the more important subjects transferred :—

4.—Cairnie.

The parish of Cairnie has been altered in area through the transference of the part formerly in Banffshire to the Banffshire parish of Keith by the Order printed at p. 28. The parish of Cairnie now consists solely of that part of the old parish of Cairnie which was situated in the county of Aberdeen.

For details see County of Banff, Cairnie, &c., supra, p. 164.

5.—Cluny and Midmar.

The parish of Cluny had a detached part separated from the remainder of the parish by an intervening portion of the parish of Midmar. By the Order printed at p. 32 an exchange of territory was effected between these parishes, with the result of connecting the detached part of Cluny with the main portion of the parish, and of transferring to Midmar an intrusive peninsula of the parish of Cluny. In order to equalise the exchange, Cluny received an additional portion of Midmar, taken from the north-east corner of the latter parish.

The new boundaries are fully described in the Order, but the following explanations may be of assistance:—(a.) the Douglas Burn referred to in Clause I. is the burn which leaves the detached part of Cluny at a point east of Ordhill and reaches the main portion of Cluny at Burnside; (b.) the road from Aberdeen to Alford leaves the parish of Echt at a point immediately north-east of Kinnernie and enters the parish of Cluny north of Linton House.

The following subjects have thus been transferred:—

6.—ELLON AND METHLICK.

The parish of Methlick had a detached part which was bounded on the west by the parish of Tarves, and elsewhere by the parish of Ellon. By the Order printed at p. 34 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Ellon.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Methlick to the parish of Ellon :—

7.—King Edward.

The parish of King Edward had a detached part which was at the same time a detached part of the county of Aberdeen, surrounded by the county of Banff. It has been transferred by the Order printed at p. 27 to the Banffshire parish of Alvah.

For details see County of Banff, King Edward, p. 161.

8.—New Machar and Udny.

The parish of New Machar had a detached part separated from the main portion of the parish by a small intervening part of the parish of Udny. This detached part of New Machar was also a detached part of the county of Banff. By the Order printed at p. 25 it has been transferred to the county of Aberdeen, and it has also been connected with the main portion of the parish of New Machar by annexing to that parish the intervening portion of the parish of Udny, consisting of that part of the estate of Torryleith which was in Udny.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Udny to the parish of New Machar:—

9.—Logie-Coldstone, Strathdon, Tarland & Migvie, and Towie.

These four parishes form a group, and can best be dealt with together. The parish of Strathdon had a detached part in Glenkindie, bounded on the east by the parish of Towie and on the west by the parish of Glenbucket. This detached part was so situated as to separate a part of the parish of Towie at Glencuie from the rest of that parish. In the case of these two detached parts these defects have been cured by the Order printed at p. 34, which has transferred the detached part of Strathdon to Towie, thus uniting the detached part of Towie with the main portion of that parish. The parish of Tarland & Migvie had three detached parts. Tarland & Migvie detached No. 1 was situated at Deskry, and had the parish of Strathdon on the west and the parish of Towie on the east. Tarland & Migvie detached No. 2, situated at Migvie, was bounded on the north by the parish of

Digitized by Google

Towie and elsewhere by the parish of Logie-Coldstone. Tarland & Migvie detached No. 3 was almost entirely surrounded by the parish of Strathdon. By the Order printed at p. 35, Tarland & Migvie detached No. 3 was transferred to Strathdon; Tarland & Migvie detached No. 1 was divided between Strathdon and Towie, Strathdon receiving the part situated on the left bank of the Deskry, and Towie receiving the remainder; and Tarland & Migvie detached No. 2 was transferred to the parish of Logie-Coldstone. The north-east corner of Logie-Coldstone was transferred to Tarland & Migvie, the new boundary being the road described in Clause IV. of the Order.

By Supplementary Order signed on 6th July 1891 (Edinburgh Gazette, 7th July 1891, p. 694) the Commissioners directed that the parish of Tarland & Migvie as altered in area should henceforth be known as the parish of Tarland.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

11.—COUNTY OF KINCARDINE.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were four parishes situated partly in the county of Kincardine and partly in other counties, viz., Banchory-Devenick, Banchory-Ternan, Drumoak, and Edzell. (See also First Appendix, City of Aberdeen and Peterculter.)

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Aberdeen.

1.—Banchory-Devenick.

The parish of Banchory-Devenick was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine.

No change has in this case been made on the county boundary (the River Dee), but the Aberdeenshire part of the parish has been transferred to the Aberdeenshire parish of Peterculter by the Order printed at p. 29.

For details see County of Aberdeen, Banchory-Devenick, &c., supra, p. 174.

2.—Banchory-Ternan.

The parish of Banchory-Ternan was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. By the Order printed at p. 29 the parish has been placed wholly in the latter county.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Banchory-Ternan) been transferred from the county of Aberdeen to the county of Kincardine:—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Estate of Leys—
Woodend, . .	Croft, house, and land, .	Sir Robert Burnett, Bart., of Leys and Crathes.
Hill of Fare, .	Houses and moor (part), .	Do.

3.—Drumoak.

The parish of Drumoak was situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine. It has been placed wholly in the county of Aberdeen by the Order printed at p. 30.

For details see County of Aberdeen, Drumoak, supra, p. 172.

B. With the County of Forfar.

1.—Edzell.

The parish of Edzell was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Kincardine. No change has been made in the county boundary, but the Kincardineshire part of the parish has been transferred to the parish of Fettercairn by the Order printed at p. 36.

For details see Edzell, &c., infra.

1.—Banchory-Devenick.

The parish of Banchory-Devenick, which is situated partly in the county of Aberdeen and partly in the county of Kincardine, has been altered in area through the transference of the Aberdeenshire part of the parish to the parish of Peterculter by the Order printed at p. 29. The parish of Banchory-Devenick now consists only of the Kincardineshire part of the old parish.

For details see County of Aberdeen, Banchory-Devenick, &c., supra, p. 174.

2.—Edzell and Fettercairn.

The parish of Edzell was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Kincardine. By the Order printed at p. 36 the county boundary is left unaltered, but the Kincardineshire part of Edzell has been transferred to the Kincardineshire parish of Fettercairn.

The following subjects (while remaining in the county of Kincardine) have thus been transferred from the parish of Edzell to the parish of Fettercairn :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

12.—COUNTY OF FORFAR.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Forfar had one detached part (a detached part of the parish of Kettins) which was surrounded by the county of Perth. It also contained two detached parts of the county of Perth (both of them detached parts of the parish of Caputh). There were five parishes situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in other counties, viz., Alyth, Caputh, Coupar-Angus, Edzell, and Liff Benvie & Invergowrie. It was also found necessary, in adjusting the boundaries, to deal with the Perthshire parish of Fowlis-Easter.

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Kincardine.

1.—Edzell.

The parish of Edzell was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Kincardine. No change has been made in the county boundary, but by the Order printed at p. 36 the Kincardineshire part of the parish has been transferred to the Kincardineshire parish of Fettercairn, the parish of Edzell, as thus altered in area, being now wholly in Forfarshire.

See County of Kincardine, Edzell, &c., supra, p. 187.

B. With the County of Perth.

1.—Alyth.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Perth. It has now been placed wholly in the county of Perth by the Order printed at p. 37.

For details see County of Perth, Alyth, infra, p. 200.

2.—Caputh.

The parish of Caputh occupied a peculiar position. It had no fewer than eight detached parts. The main portion of the parish and five of the detached parts were situated in the main portion of the county of Perth. Two more of the detached parts were at the same time detached parts of the county of Perth, surrounded by the county of Forfar, and the remaining detached part formed part of the main portion of the county of Forfar. The three last-mentioned detached parts fell to be dealt with in adjusting the Forfarshire boundaries in order to secure (1) that the county of Perth should have no detached parts; and (2) that the parish of Caputh should be situated wholly in one county.

Digitized by Google

(1.) The two detached parts of Caputh, which were also detached parts of Perthshire, were dealt with in one Order (printed at p. 39).

(a.) The detached part of Caputh situated at Foffarty, and adjoining the Forfarshire parishes of Glamis, Inverarity, and Kinnettles, was transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Forfar, and at the same time from the parish of Caputh to the parish of Kinnettles. It embraced the following subjects:—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Foffarty, . .	Farm and pendicles, . .	Earl of Strathmore.
Kirkhill, . .	Farm, ...	Do.

(b.) The detached part of Caputh, situated at Broughty Castle, and adjoining the Forfarshire parish of Monifieth, was transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Forfar, and at the same time from the parish of Caputh to the parish of Monifieth. It is not shown on the Ordnance Survey maps as a detached part of Caputh. It consisted of—

Place.	Proprietor.
Broughty Castle, ...	The Crown.

(Sheet 49 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

(2.) The detached part of Caputh which formed part of the county of Forfar was situated at Balbeuchly, and adjoined the parishes of Auchterhouse and Tealing. By the Order printed at the foot of p. 39 it remains in the county of Forfar, but has been transferred from the parish of Caputh to the parish of Auchterhouse. The parish of Caputh, as thus altered in area, became wholly situated in the county of Perth.

For details, see Auchterhouse, &c., infra, p. 192.

3.—Coupar-Angus.

The parish of Coupar-Angus was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Perth. It has now been wholly placed in the county of Perth by the Order printed at p. 35.

For details see County of Perth, Coupar-Angus, infra, p. 202.

4.—Fowlis-Easter.

The Perthshire parish of Fowlis-Easter was joined for ecclesiastical and for educational purposes with the Forfarshire parish of Lundie. In course of the adjustment of the boundary between the counties of Forfar and Perth, it appeared desirable to all parties that this parish should be transferred to the county of Forfar, and this has been done by the Order printed at p. 37.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Fowlis-Easter) been transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Forfar :—

5.—Kettins.

The parish of Kettins had a detached part, which formed at the same time a detached part of the county of Forfar, surrounded by the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 38 it has been transferred to the county of Perth, and at the same time to the parish of Collace.

For details, see County of Perth, Kettins, infra, p. 202.

6.—Liff Benvie & Invergowrie.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 37 it has been placed wholly in the county of Forfar.

The area thus transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Forfar is of very small extent. It consists of—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Easter Mylnefield, .	Farm (part), with servants' houses, ...	William Wighton.
Foreshore, . .	. . . . .	Claimed by the Minister of the Parish.

1.—Arbroath, Panbride, and St. Vigeans.

The parish of St. Vigeans had two detached parts. St. Vigeans detached No. 1 was situated at Hospitalfield, and lay between the parishes of Arbroath and Arbirlot. St. Vigeans detached No. 2 was situated at Inverpeffer, and adjoined the parishes of Arbirlot and Panbride. By the Order printed at p. 44 St. Vigeans detached No. 2 was transferred to Panbride, and St. Vigeans detached No. 1 to Arbroath, while part of the parish of Arbroath was transferred to St. Vigeans. The description of the last-mentioned portion is not difficult to follow. The Arbroath and Forfar highway is readily distinguished. The road leading therefrom past Woodville Feus to Cairnconan strikes off just at the point at which the highway intersects the old boundary of the parish of Arbroath. It proceeds in a westerly direction past Woodend and Drumyellow to Cairnconan.

2.—AUCHTERHOUSE, CAPUTH, AND TEALING.

The parish of Tealing had a detached part, situated at Pitpointie, and bounded on the east by the detached part of Caputh situated at Balbeuchly, and elsewhere by the parish of Auchterhouse. This detached part of Caputh was the only part of Caputh which belonged to the county of Forfar (see Caputh, supra, p. 188). By the Order printed at the foot of p. 39 both of these detached parts have been transferred to the parish of Auchterhouse.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

5.—Dunnichen, Guthrie, Inverarity, and Kirkden.

The parish of Dunnichen had a detached part situated at Dumbarrow, and almost surrounded by the parish of Kirkden. The parish of Guthrie had a detached part situated at Kirkbuddo, and bounded by the parishes of Carmyllie, Dunnichen, Inverarity, and Monikie. The parish of Kirkden had a detached part situated at Middleton-moor, and bounded on the west and south by the parish of Guthrie, and elsewhere by the parish of Kinnell and a small detached part of the parish of Farnell.

By the Order printed at p. 41 the detached part of Dunnichen was transferred to Kirkden, the detached part of Kirkden to Guthrie, and the detached part of Guthrie to Inverarity. The following subjects are affected :—

7.—Farnell, Kinnell, Lunan, and Maryton.

It is convenient to deal with these parishes in one group, though they are affected by two Orders. The parish of Farnell had a small detached part situated at Montreathmont Moor, and bounded on the south by the detached part of the parish of Kirkden, and elsewhere by the parish of Kinnell. By the Order printed at p. 42 the detached part of Farnell was transferred to Kinnell. The parish of Maryton had two detached parts. One was situated at Graham's Firth, and was bounded on the north by the parish of Farnell, and elsewhere by the parish of Kinnell. The other was situated at Dysart, and lay between the parishes of Craig and Lunan. By the Order printed at p. 43 the first-mentioned of these detached parts of Maryton was transferred to the parish of Kinnell, and the second to the parish of Lunan.

8.—KETTINS.

The parish of Kettins had a detached part which was also a detached part of the county of Forfar, surrounded by the county of Perth. It has been transferred to the Perthshire parish of Collace by the Order printed at p. 38. The parish of Kettins also claimed that a part of Perthshire shown on the Ordnance Survey maps as a detached part of the parish of Scone was properly part of the parish of Kettins. By the Order printed at p. 70 this disputed area was transferred to the parish of Cargill. (See county of Perth, Cargill, &c., infra, p. 239.)

For details see County of Perth, Kettins, infra, p. 202.

9.—KINNETTLES.

The parish of Kinnettles has been altered in area through the transference to it of the detached part of the parish of Caputh, situated at Foffarty by the Order printed at p. 39.

For details see Caputh, supra, p. 188.

10.—MONIFIETH.

The parish of Monifieth has received an addition through the transference to it of the detached part of the parish of Caputh situated at Broughty Castle by the Order printed at p. 39.

See Caputh, supra, p. 188.

13.—COUNTY OF PERTH.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Perth had four detached parts, viz.:—(a.) The parishes of Culross and Tulliallan, adjoining the counties of Fife and Kinross; (b.) Part of the parish of Kippen, surrounded by the county of Stirling; and (c.) and (d.) Two detached parts of the parish of Caputh, each surrounded by the county of Forfar. It contained two detached parts of other counties, viz., part of the county of Forfar, consisting of a detached part of the parish of Kettins, and part of the county of Stirling, consisting of part of the parish of Logie. There were twelve parishes situated partly in the county of Perth and partly in other counties, viz., Abernethy, Alloa, Alyth, Arngask, Caputh, Coupar-Angus, Forgandenny, Fossoway & Tulliebole, Kippen, Lecropt, Liff Benvie & Invergowrie, and Logie. It was also found necessary to deal with the parish of Fowlis-Easter, which is for certain purposes united to the Forfarshire parish of Lundie.

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Clackmannan.

1.—Alloa.

A very small portion of the parish of Alloa was situated in Perthshire, the rest of the parish being in the county of Clackmannan. It extended to about 3 acres, was situated at Gogar Haugh, and is the property of Mrs. Morries Stirling. By the Order printed at p. 50 no change was made in the county boundary, but this small portion of Alloa was transferred to the parish of Logie and to the county of Stirling.

See County of Stirling, Logie, infra, p. 276.

(Sheet 39 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

B. With the County of Fife.

1.—Abernethy.

The parish of Abernethy was situated partly in the county of Fife and partly in the county of Perth. The division of the parish between these two counties was correctly shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, with this exception, that the lands of Easter Colzie, in the south-east corner of the parish, should have been shown as part of the county of Fife. By the Order printed at p. 46 the whole of the parish, except the lands of Easter Colzie, Nochnarrie, and Pitlour, were transferred to the county of Perth. These excepted lands remain in the county of Fife, being transferred to Fife parishes, Easter Colzie to Newburgh, and Nochnarrie and Pitlour to Strathmiglo. (See County of Fife, Abernethy, &c., infra, p. 256.)

Digitized by Google

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Abernethy) been transferred from the county of Fife to the county of Perth :—

2.—ARNGASK.

The parish of Arngask was situated partly in the county of Fife, partly in the county of Kinross, and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 46 it has been placed wholly in the county of Perth.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Arngask) been transferred from the county of Fife to the county of Perth :—

3.—Culross and Tulliallan.

These parishes formed a detached part of Perthshire, lying on the Forth between the counties of Clackmannan and Fife. They have now been transferred to the county of Fife by the Order printed at p. 45.

For details see County of Fife, Culross and Tulliallan, infra, p. 251.

C. With the County of Forfar.

1.—Alyth.

The parish of Alyth was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 45 it has been placed wholly in the county of Perth.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Alyth) been transferred from the county of Forfar to the county of Perth.

2.—CAPUTH.

In adjusting the boundaries between Forfarshire and Perthshire it was necessary to deal with three of the eight detached parts of the parish of Caputh. The whole of the parish except these three detached parts was situated in the main portion of the county of Perth. One of these three detached parts formed part of the county of Forfar. It was situated at Balbeuchly, and has been annexed to the parish of Auchterhouse (see County of Forfar, Auchterhouse, &c., supra, p. 192). The remaining two of these three detached parts were also detached parts of the county of Perth. The one was situated at Foffarty, and has been transferred to the county of Forfar and to the parish of Kinnettles. The other was situated at Broughty Castle, and has been transferred to the county of Forfar, and to the parish of Monifieth (see County of Forfar, Caputh, supra, p. 188).

For other changes on the parish of Caputh, see Caputh, infra, p. 236.

3.—Coupar-Angus.

The parish of Coupar-Angus was situated partly in the county of Forfar and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 37 it has been placed wholly in the county of Perth.

The subjects thus transferred are for the most part situated in the police burgh of Coupar-Angus. The county boundary previously ran through the town. It now follows the eastern boundary of the parish of Coupar-Angus, and accordingly all subjects in the town of Coupar-Angus are now placed within the county of Perth. It would serve no good purpose to enumerate the various small properties and their proprietors. The following subjects have been transferred from the county of Forfar to the county of Perth :—

The Town of Coupar-Angus, in so far as previously in Forfarshire, including subjects in Abbeyhill, Abbeyhill Road, Dundee Road, Millar Street, Precinct Street, Queen Street, and Thornally Road. Also the following subjects :—

4.—Fowlis-Easter.

This parish, which was united for educational and other purposes with the Forfarshire parish of Fowlis-Easter, has been transferred to the county of Forfar by the Order printed at p. 37.

For details see County of Forfar, Fowlis-Easter, supra, p. 189.

5.—Kettins.

The parish of Kettins had a detached part which was also a detached part of the county of Forfar. It was situated at Bandirran, and adjoined the Perthshire parishes of Collace, Kinnaird, and St. Martins, and a detached part of Caputh. By the Order printed at p. 38 this detached part has been transferred to the parish of Collace and to the county of Perth.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Forfar to the county of Perth (and at the same time from the parish of Kettins to the parish of Collace) :—

2.—Forgandenny and Forteviot.

The parish of Forgandenny was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 47 the Kinross-shire part was transferred to Perthshire, and it was at the same time transferred to the parish of Forteviot. For details as to alterations in these parishes, see Forgandenny, &c., infra, p. 244.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Kinross to the county of Perth:—

3.—Fossoway & Tulliebole.

The parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 48 a small portion of the Perthshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Glendevon, and the parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole, as thus altered in area, was placed wholly in county of Kinross.

For details see Blackford, &c., infra, p. 220, and County of Kinross, Fossoway, &c., infra, p. 267.

E. With the County of Stirling.

1.—Alloa.

A small part of the parish of Alloa was situated in the county of Perth, adjoining the Perthshire part of the parish of Logie. By the Order printed at p. 50 it has been transferred to the county of Stirling and to the parish of Logie. See County of Stirling, Logie, infra, p. 278, or County of Clackmannan, Alloa, infra, p. 271.

2.—Kippen.

The parish of Kippen was situated partly in the county of Perth and partly in the county of Stirling. A portion of the Perthshire part of the parish was also a detached part of Perthshire. The whole parish has now been placed in the county of Stirling by the Order printed at p. 52.

For details see County of Stirling, Kippen, infra, p. 278.

3.—Lecropt.

The parish of Lecropt was situated partly in the county of Perth and partly in the county of Stirling. By the Order printed at p. 51 that part of the parish which lay to the east of the west boundary of the Scottish Central Railway line was transferred to the parish of Logie. At the same time a small part of the parish of Logie which lay to the west of the west boundary of that railway, and on the right bank of the Allan Water, was transferred to the parish of Lecropt. Then the parish of Lecropt, as thus altered in area, was placed wholly in the county of Perth.

The following subjects were thus transferred from the county of Stirling to the county of Perth :—

4.—Logie.

The parish of Logie was situated partly in the county of Clackmannan, partly in the county of Perth, and partly in the county of Stirling. Part of the Clackmannanshire portion formed a detached portion of that county. The effect of the Order which deals with this parish (printed at p. 50) may be described in general terms as follows:—The area of the parish has been altered (1) by the disjunction of the portions attached to the main portion of the county of Clackmannan, and of the small portion already noticed (Lecropt, supra) as having been transferred to the parish of Lecropt; and (2) by the addition of the Perthshire part of Alloa parish and of the portion of Lecropt parish east of the west boundary of the Scottish Central Railway line. The parish, as thus altered in area, has been placed wholly in the county of Stirling.

For details see County of Stirling, Logie, infra, p. 282.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

The boundaries of the Perthshire parishes were unusually complicated, and presented problems of great difficulty and complexity. Owing to the manner in which parishes were entangled with each other, it is necessary to deal with them for the most part in groups, with the view of securing that the changes on each parish shall be detailed in one group. This is possible in the case of all parishes except two, viz., the parish of Caputh, of which detached parts were scattered without the slightest regard to geographical convenience, and the parish of Dunkeld & Dowally, one detached part of which will be dealt with in a different group from that in which the main portion of the parish is placed. In all cases the usual cross references are given.

1.—Abernethy.

The parish of Abernethy has been altered in area through the transference of certain parts of the parish which were formerly in Fife to the Fife parishes of Newburgh and Strathmiglo by the Order printed at p. 46.

For details see County of Fife, Abernethy, &c., infra, p. 256.

2.—Auchterarder and Dunning.

Each of these parishes had a small detached part, there being, however, this peculiarity that the detached part of Dunning was separated from the main portion of Dunning only by the detached part of Auchterarder. By the Order printed at p. 53 the detached part of Auchterarder was transferred to Dunning, and thus the detached part of Dunning has been united to the main portion of the parish. The detached part of Auchterarder lay in the north-west corner of Dunning parish. The area thus transferred from the parish of Auchterarder to the parish of Dunning was—

3.—Auchtergaven, Comrie, Crieff, Fowlis-Wester, Little Dunkeld, Methven, Moneydie, Monzie, Monzievaird & Strowan, Muthill, and Redgorton.

Out of these eleven parishes eight had to be dealt with as having detached parts. The other three (Comrie, Little Dunkeld, and Muthill) were affected by the manner in which these detached parts were treated. For the sake of clearness it may be well to tabulate the condition of the eight parishes referred to, with reference to their detached parts.

Parish.	Number of Detached Parts.	Where situated.
Auchtergaven, . .	One, . . .	Moneydieroger, in the south of the parish of Moneydie.
Crieff, ...	Two, . . .	(a.) Auchilanzie, surrounded by the parish of Fowlis-Wester. (b.) Glenshervie (included in Ordnance Survey maps in Monzie detached No. 2).
Fowlis-Wester, . .	One, . . .	Auchnafree, in Glenalmond.
Methven, . . .	One, . . .	Tullybeagles, almost surrounded by the parish of Auchtergaven.
Moneydie, . . .	One, . . .	Moneydieroger, beside the detached part of the parish of Auchtergaven.
Monzie, ...	Three, . .	No. 1. Innerpeffray, south-east of Crieff. No. 2. Auchnafree, north of the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan. No. 3. Logiealmond, in Glenalmond, north of the parish of Methven.
Monzievaird & Strowan,	Four, . .	Nos. 1 & 2. Cultibreagan, surrounded by the parish of Comrie. No. 3. Easter Meiggar, in Glenartney. No. 4. Auchnashelloch, in Glenartney.
Redgorton, . . .	One, . . .	Mullion, north of Monzie detached No. 3.

These parishes are all dealt with in one Order (printed at p. 53).

The following are the changes made, the subjects affected being detailed as usual under the parishes to which they are transferred :—

(1.)—Auchtergaven.

(a.) The detached part of Auchtergaven has been transferred to the parish of Moneydie by Clause III. of the Order (supra, p. 55).—See Moneydie, infra.

(b.) Part of Auchtergaven adjoining the detached part of Redgorton has been transferred to the parish of Monzie. The boundary of the part transferred is given in Clause IV. of the Order (supra, p. 55.).—See Monzie, infra, p. 213.

(c.) The detached part of Methven has been transferred to Auchtergaven by Clause II. of the Order (supra, p. 55). The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Methven to the parish of Auchtergaven :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

(2.)—Comrie.

(a.) Detached parts Nos. 1, 2, and 3 of Monzievaird & Strowan have been transferred to Comrie by Clause XIII. of the Order (supra, p. 57).

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan to the parish of Comrie :—

(3.)—Crieff.

(a.) The detached part of Crieff, situated at Glenshervie, was transferred to the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan by Clause X. of the Order (supra, p. 56). For the subjects thus transferred from Crieff, see Monzievaird & Strowan, infra, p. 214.

(b.) The part of the parish of Crieff which lay on the right bank of the Earn was by Clause XVI. (supra, p. 57) transferred to the parish of Muthill. For details as to the subjects thus disjoined from Crieff, see Muthill, infra, p. 215.

(c.) By Clause VIII. of the Order (supra, p. 56) the detached part of Crieff situated at Auchilanzie was transferred to the parish of Fowlis-Wester, and so also was the whole of that portion of Crieff which lay in the basin of the River Almond. This comprises the large area which lies to the north of the parish of Fowlis-Wester. For details as to the area and subjects thus disjoined from Crieff, see Fowlis-Wester, infra, p. 210.

(d.) By Clause IX. of the Order (supra, p. 56) the portion of the parish of Monzie which contained the village of Monzie, and also Monzie detached No. 1, were annexed to the parish of Crieff. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Monzie to the parish of Crieff :—

(b.) The part of the parish of Fowlis-Wester which lay in the basin of the River Bran was transferred to the parish of Little Dunkeld by Clause VII. of the Order (supra, p. 56).—See Little Dunkeld, infra, p. 212.

(c.) The part of the parish of Fowlis-Wester which lay to the north of the Almond and in the basin of the Almond was transferred to the parish of Monzie by Clause VI. of the Order (supra, p. 55).—See Monzie, infra, p. 213.

(d.) The detached part of the parish of Crieff at Auchilanzie, and all that part of the parish of Crieff which lies in the basin of the Almond, were by Clause VIII. of the Order (supra, p. 56) transferred to the parish of Fowlis-Wester. The effect of this clause on the main portion of the parish of Crieff was to cut off all that part of the old parish which lay north of the old parish of Fowlis-Wester and north of the watershed between Glenalmond and Glenturret, near Stonefield Hill. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Crieff to the parish of Fowlis-Wester:—

(5.)—Little Dunkeld.

By Clause VII. of the Order (supra, p. 56) the part of Fowlis-Wester which lay in the basin of the River Bran was transferred to Little Dunkeld. This district is situated near Amulree. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Fowlis-Wester to the parish of Little Dunkeld:—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

(8.)—Monzie.

The effect of the alterations on the area of Monzie is to transfer the parish centre to the part of the parish which was the centre of population and of wealth. The new parish of Monzie is now situated in Logiealmond, and does not differ greatly in extent from the quoad sacra parish of Logiealmond.

(a.) Monzie detached No. 1 at Innerpeffray, and also the part of the parish in which the parish church is situated, were transferred to the parish of Crieff by Clause IX. of the Order (supra, p. 56).—See Crieff, supra, p. 209.

(b.) The part of Monzie detached No. 3, which lay south of the Almond, was by Clause I. of the Order (supra, p. 55) transferred to Methven.—See Methven, supra, p. 212.

(c.) Monzie detached No. 2 at Auchnafree was transferred to Monzievaird & Strowan by Clause X. of the Order (supra, p. 56).—See Monzievaird & Strowan, infra, p. 214.

(d.) By Clause IV. of the Order (supra, p. 55) the part of Auchtergaven which lay to the west and south-west of the boundary there described was transferred to Monzie. The area thus dealt with is the southern part of the tongue of Auchtergaven which lay between the detached part of Methven and the detached part of Redgorton. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Auchtergaven to the parish of Monzie :—

(c.) Monzievaird & Strowan detached No. 4, at Auchnashelloch, was by Clause XIV. of the Order (supra, p. 57) annexed to Muthill. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Monzievaird & Strowan to the parish of Muthill :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Drummond Castle Estate—
Auchnashelloch, . .	Moor and houses, .	Lord Willoughby de Eresby.
Dalchruin, . . .	Farm, . . .	Do.
Findoglen, . . .	House, . . .	Do.

(11.)—Redgorton.

The detached part of Redgorton at Mullion was by Clause V. of the Order (supra, p. 55) transferred to the parish of Monzie. For details see Monzie, supra, p. 213.

4.—Bendochy, Blairgowrie, Caputh, Kinloch, Kirkmichael, and Rattray.

The following table shows the condition of these parishes with reference to detached parts. Of the eight detached parts of Caputh only two are here dealt with, the parish being considered as a whole at p. 236, infra. The parishes of Kinloch and Kirkmichael had no detached parts, but it was found necessary to deal incidentally with their boundaries in dealing with the detached parts of the other parishes mentioned.

Parish.	Number of detached parts.	Where situated.
Bendochy, . .	Two, ...	No. 1. Persie, towards the north of the parish of Blairgowrie.
		No. 2. Drimmie, north of the parish of Rattray.
Blairgowrie, .	Two, ...	No. 1. Creuchies, north of the parish of Bendochy.
		No. 2. Blackcraig, north-east of the parish of Clunie.
Caputh, .	Two here dealt with, .	No. 4. Craigton, on the south-east of Kirkmichael.
		No. 7. West Gormack, on the east side of Kinloch.
Rattray, . .	One, ...	Bleaton Hallet, on the south-east of Kirkmichael.

These have been dealt with by the Order printed at p. 68.
The following are the changes effected :—

(1.)—Bendochy.

(a.) Bendochy detached No. 1 was by Clause V. of the Order (supra, p. 70) transferred to the parish of Kirkmichael.—See Kirkmichael, infra, p. 218.

(b.) Bendochy detached No. 2 was by Clause II. of the Order (supra, p. 69) transferred to the parish of Blairgowrie.—See Blairgowrie, infra.

(c.) Blairgowrie detached No. 1 and also the part of Blairgowrie which lay to the east of the boundary between the estate of Rosemount on the west and the estate of Parkhead on the east, were transferred to the parish of Bendochy by Clause I. of the Order (supra, p. 69). The boundary of the second portion thus transferred is a road running from the parish of Rattray on the north through part of the old parish of Blairgowrie to the parish of Bendochy, passing to the east of Rosemount. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Blairgowrie to the parish of Bendochy :—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Bamff Estate—
Brewlands of Tullymurdoch.	Farm, ...	Sir James Henry Ramsay of Bamff, Bart.

5.—Blackford, Fossoway & Tulliebole, and Glendevon.

The parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth.

By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 48, part of the parish in the county of Perth, therein fully described, was annexed to the adjoining parish of Glendevon, the remainder of Fossoway & Tulliebole being then placed entirely in the county of Kinross. By the Order printed at p. 66 a detached or nearly detached part of the parish of Blackford was also annexed to Glendevon.

The following subjects have thus been transferred to the parish of Glendevon :—

(a.) From the parish of Blackford.

There was also an area common to the parishes of Blair-Athole, Fortingall, and Logierait.

These parishes were dealt with in one Order (supra, p. 59).

The following are the changes effected :—

(1.)—Blair-Athole.

(a.) The lands of Reinakyllich were by Clause IV. of the Order (supra, p. 62) transferred from Blair-Athole to Moulin. They are already represented on the Ordnance Survey maps as forming part of Moulin.—See Moulin, infra, p. 232.

(b.) Moulin detached No. 2 was by Clause V. of the Order (supra, p. 63) annexed to Blair-Athole. The following lands have thus been transferred from the parish of Moulin to the parish of Blair-Athole :—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.

(3.)—Collace.

(a.) By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 38 the detached part of the parish of Kettins was annexed to the parish of Collace. For the subjects thus transferred, see Kettins, supra, p. 202.

(b.) By Clause II. of the Order printed at p. 38 Caputh detached No. 3 was annexed to Collace. The following subject has thus been transferred from the parish of Caputh to the parish of Collace :—

(4.)—Dunkeld & Dowally.

(a.) By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 59 Dunkeld & Dowally detached No. 1 was transferred to the parish of Logierait.—See Logierait, supra, p. 229.

(b.) By Clause V. of the Order printed at p. 66 part of the parish of Caputh, fully described in that clause, was annexed to Dunkeld & Dowally, and in this way the main portion and detached part No. 1 of the parish of Dunkeld & Dowally were united.

The district thus transferred includes the whole of the town of Dunkeld so far as previously in the parish of Caputh. It would serve no good purpose to enumerate the subjects affected in the town of Dunkeld, but the following are the subjects in the landward part of the parish of Caputh which have now been transferred to the parish of Dunkeld & Dowally :—

(5.)—Longforgan.

By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 66 Caputh detached No. 1 was annexed to Longforgan. The area thus transferred is very small, extending only to 0·016 of an acre, and being too small to be shown on the one-inch Ordnance Survey maps. It consists of—

8.—CARGILL, KETTINS, KINFAUNS, KINNOULL, ST. MADOES, ST. MARTINS, AND SCONE.

Of these parishes only Kettins, Kinnoull, and Scone had detached parts. The method of dealing with the detached part of Kettins has already been considered (supra, p. 202), but the parochial authorities of Kettins also claimed that the area marked on the Ordnance Survey maps as a detached part of Scone was really part of the parish of Kettins, in the county of Perth. The other parishes were affected incidentally by the treatment of these detached parts.

The following table shows their number and situation :—

Parish.	Number of Detached Parts.	Where situated.
Kinnoull, . .	Three, . .	No. 1. Balthayock, adjoining the parishes of Kilspindie, Kinfauns, and Scone.
		No. 2. Inchyra, between the parishes of Kinfauns and St. Madoes.
		No. 3. Balbeggie, nearly surrounded by the parish of St. Martins.
Scone, . . .	One, . .	West Kinnochtry, nearly surrounded by the parish of Cargill, but adjoining the Forfarshire parish of Kettins, and claimed to be part of Kettins in Perthshire.

This district at West Kinnochtry fell to be dealt with by the Commissioners whether it belonged to Scone or to Kettins. In the first case it was a detached part; in the second case, the parish of Kettins was situated in more counties than one.

The following are the changes effected by the Order printed at p. 70 :—

(1.)—Cargill.

The district at West Kinnochtry, whether considered as a detached part of Scone or as a part of the parish of Kettins situated in the county of Perth (the rest of the parish being in the county of Forfar), was by Clause VI. of the Order (supra, p. 72) annexed to Cargill. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Scone (or the parish of Kettins) to the parish of Cargill :—

(a.) By Clause III. of the Order (supra, p. 71) the part of Kinfauns therein described was transferred to the parish of Kinnoull.—See Kinnoull, infra, p. 241.

(b.) By Clause IV. of the Order (supra, p. 71) the part of Kinnoull detached No. 2 which lies to the west of the west march of Inchyra was annexed to Kinfauns. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Kinnoull to the parish of Kinfauns :—

(a.) By Clause I. of the Order (supra, p. 71) part of Kinnoull detached No. 1, therein described, was transferred to the parish of Scone.—See Scone, infra, p. 243.

(b.) By Clause IV. of the Order (supra, p. 71) Kinnoull detached No. 2 was divided, as therein described, between the parishes of Kinfauns and St. Madoes.—See Kinfauns, supra, p. 240, and St. Madoes, infra, p. 242.

(c.) By Clause V. of the Order (supra, p. 72) Kinnoull detached No. 3 was transferred to the parish of St. Martins.—See St. Martins, infra, p. 242.

(d.) By Clause I. of the Order (supra, p. 71) the part of Scone therein described was annexed to Kinnoull. The part of Kinnoull detached No. 1 not affected by Clause I. of the Order was thus united with the main portion of the parish of Kinnoull. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Scone to the parish of Kinnoull :—

This detached part includes the whole of the village of BALBEGGIE, as to which it would serve no good purpose to detail the subjects and proprietors. It is sufficient to state that the village of BALBEGGIE is now situated wholly within the parish of St. Martins. The following subjects have been transferred

(a.) By Clause VI. of the Order printed at p. 70 the detached part of Scone was transferred to the parish of Cargill.—See Cargill, supra, p. 240.

(b.) By Clause II. of the Order (supra, p. 71) the part of Scone therein described was transferred to the parish of Kinnoull.—See Kinnoull, supra, p. 241.

(c.) By Clause I. of the Order (supra, p. 71) the part of Kinnoull detached No. 1 therein fully described was annexed to the parish of Scone. This area was situated at the north of the detached part north of the Springfield Road. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Kinnoull to the parish of Scone :—

9.—Dron and Dunbarney.

The parish of Dron had a detached part lying to the west of the main portion of the parish, and separated from it by a narrow intervening strip of the parish of Dunbarney. By the Order printed at p. 72 the greater portion of this intervening strip was annexed to Dron, and the detached part of Dron has in this way been united with the main portion of the parish.

10.—FORGANDENNY AND FORTEVIOT.

The parish of Forteviot had two detached parts. Forteviot detached No. 1 was situated at Whitehill, and lay on the south-east side of the parish of Forgandenny. Forteviot detached No. 2 was situated at Hilton Junction, and lay on the north side of Forgandenny. As already explained (supra, p. 204) the parish of Forgandenny was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 47 the following changes were effected:—(a.) Forteviot detached No. 2 was annexed to Forgandenny; and (b.) so much of Forgandenny as lay south-west of the River May was annexed to the parish of Forteviot, the main portion of Forteviot being thus united with Forteviot detached No. 1. The portion of Forgandenny thus transferred includes the portion formerly in Kinross-shire, but the Order provides that this district shall be transferred to Perthshire.

The following are the subjects affected :—

11.—KILMADOCK AND KINCARDINE.

Part of the parish of Kincardine situated at Thornhill was separated from the main portion of the parish by the southern part of the parish of Kilmadock. By the Order printed at p. 73 an exchange of territory was effected between these two parishes. Part of the detached part and part of the main portion of Kincardine were given to Kilmadock, and the remainder of the detached part was united to the main portion of Kincardine by the annexation to Kincardine of a small intervening part of Kilmadock. Clause I. of the Order describes the portion of Kilmadock given to Kincardine. The line can be readily followed when it is explained that the starting-point lies north-east of Ramoth. The line described in Clause II. runs along the road which leads from Bridge of Teith south-west to Ramoth. The line described in Clause III. can be laid down approximately on the one-inch maps from the description.

12.—Lecropt.

The parish of Lecropt was situated partly in the county of Perth and partly in the county of Stirling. The parish has now been placed wholly in the county of Perth, but its area is altered somewhat. Under the Order printed at p. 51, (1) it received the addition of a small portion of the parish of Logie lying west of the Scottish Central Railway line, and (2) there was transferred to the parish of Logie all that part of the Stirlingshire portion of Lecropt which lay to the east of the west boundary of the railway.

For particulars as to the changes thus effected, see Lecropt, supra, p. 205, and County of Stirling, Logie, infra, p. 280.

13.—Perth and Tibbermore.

The parish of Tibbermore had two detached parts, both of which were wholly surrounded by the parish of Perth. Tibbermore detached No. 2, situated at York Place, Perth, was situated wholly within the parliamentary and municipal boundary of the burgh of Perth, and the greater portion of Tibbermore detached No. 1 was also situated within the same boundary. The effect of the Order printed at p. 74 is to transfer to the parish of Perth the whole of Tibbermore detached No. 1 and so much of Tibbermore detached No. 2 as lies within the municipal boundaries of the burgh of Perth, and to transfer to the parish of Tibbermore that part of Perth parish which lay north of the Scouring Burn and west and north of the west and north burgh boundaries.

(1.) Transferred from the parish of Tibbermore to the parish of Perth.

The subjects are too numerous to particularise, but they consist of all those subjects in the parish of Tibbermore which are entered in the valuation roll of the city of Perth for the year 1890-91. These include, inter alia, the greater part of the lands of Tullylumb, belonging to the Glovers Incorporation of Perth, but it must be noted that part of these lands (part of Over Tullylumb and Wellshill) remains in Tibbermore, being outside the burgh parliamentary boundary.

14.—COUNTY OF FIFE.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Fife contained a detached part of the county of Kinross, consisting of a detached part of the parish of Portmoak. A detached part of the county of Perth, consisting of the parishes of Culross and Tulliallan, lay between the county of Fife and the county of Clackmannan; it formed part of the county of Fife for road administration. There were three parishes situated partly in the county of Fife and partly in other counties, viz., Abernethy, Arngask, and Dunfermline.

The county boundaries have been dealt with as follows:—

A. With the County of Kinross.

1.—Dunfermline.

There was a dispute as to the county to which a part in the extreme north of the parish of Dunfermline belonged. It was claimed by the county of Fife and by the county of Kinross, but of recent years it was assessed as in the county of Kinross. By the Order printed at p. 77 this part of the parish of Dunfermline has been transferred to the parish of Cleish, and has been declared to form part of the county of Kinross.—See County of Kinross, Cleish, &c infra, p. 269.

2.—Ballingry, Kinglassie, and Portmoak.

The detached part of the parish of Portmoak which was also a detached part of the county of Kinross was by the Order printed at p. 76 transferred to the parish of Kinglassie and to the county of Fife. A further alteration on the county boundary has been made by the same Order in conjunction with the Order printed at p. 75. The boundary between the two counties was the old channel of the River Leven. Between the years 1826 and 1836, however, a new channel was made for the river, which is now locally known as the New Cut. By these two Orders the centre of the New Cut was substituted as the county boundary for the centre of the old river channel throughout the whole distance along which that channel was formerly the county boundary. It is understood that by purchase or excambion the New Cut has been substituted for the old channel as an estate march for a considerable part of its course. The districts affected by this change were situated in the parishes of Kinglassie and Portmoak, and in a detached part of the parish of Ballingry (Ballingry detached No. 1). So much of Kinglassie and of Ballingry detached No. 1 as lay north of The Cut have been transferred to the parish of Portmoak and the county of Kinross. The remainder of Ballingry detached No.

1 and those portions of Portmoak which lay to the east of this detached part and to the south of The Cut have been transferred to the parish of Kinglassie and placed wholly in the county of Fife.

The following subjects are affected by this alteration of county boundaries:—

(1.) Transferred from the county of Kinross to the county of Fife (and at the same time from the parish of Portmoak to the parish of Kinglassie.

(b.) Lands situated on The Cut.

The River Leven originally divided the farms of Kinneston and Bowhouse on the north from the farms of Craigend and Auchmuir on the south. By arrangement among the proprietors the new channel of the river (The Cut) was afterwards substituted as the boundary in place of the original channel, and the new county boundary follows the boundary thus arranged. Thus the lands so transferred from Kinross to Fife at one time formed part of the farm of Kinneston (belonging to John Beveridge of Kinneston), or of the farm of Bowhouse (belonging to Sir G. Graham Montgomery, Bart.), but now form part of the farm of Craigend (belonging to Sir James Malcolm, Bart.), or of the farm of Auchmuir (belonging to Roger Sinclair Aytoun).

B. With the County of Perth.

1.—Abernethy.

The parish of Abernethy was situated partly in the county of Fife and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 46 the whole of the parish, except the lands of Easter Colzie, Nochnarrie, and Pitlour, was placed in the county of Perth, these excepted lands being transferred to Fifeshire parishes and retained in Fifeshire. For details see Perth, Abernethy, supra, p. 198, and Abernethy, &c., infra, p. 256.

(Sheets 40 and 48 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

2.—Arngask.

The parish of Arngask was situated partly in the county of Fife, partly in the county of Kinross, and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 46 it was placed wholly within the county of Perth. See Perth, Arngask, supra, pp. 199 and 203.

(Sheet 40 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

3.—Culross and Tulliallan.

These two parishes formed one detached part of the county of Perth, bounded on the west by the county of Clackmannan, and on the east by the county of Fife. By the Order printed at p. 45 these parishes were wholly transferred from the county of ~~Fife~~ to the county of ~~Kinross~~, no change being made on the boundaries of the parishes themselves.

It is impossible to enumerate the subjects transferred in so far as these lie within burgh, or in town or village, but the chief landward subjects will be detailed. The broad statement holds good that every subject in the parish of Culross and every subject in the parish of Tulliallan now forms part of the county of Fife.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Fife :—

(1.) Parish of Culross.

The Royal Burgh of Culross, with all the subjects therein.
Blairburn.—A few small urban subjects of low value.
Comrie Village (by Oakley), containing a large number of urban subjects of low value.
The Village of Low Valleyfield includes Low Valleyfield house and offices, belonging to Major Thomas Muir, and a large number of urban subjects chiefly of low value.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—ABBOTSHALL AND KIRKCALDY.

The parish of Abbotshall had two detached parts (respectively 27 acres and 4 acres in extent), both of which were wholly surrounded by the parish of Kirkcaldy. By the Order printed at p. 78, these two detached parts were annexed to Kirkcaldy parish.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Abbotshall to the parish of Kirkcaldy :—

2.—ABDIE, DUNBOG, AND NEWBURGH.

The parish of Abdie had two detached parts. The first, containing 1889 acres, lay to the east of the main portion of the parish, being bounded on the south by the parish of Dunbog. The second, containing 448 acres, lay to the west on the borders of the county, and adjoined the parish of Newburgh. By the Order printed at p. 79 the first detached part (Abdie detached No. 1) was annexed to Dunbog, and the second (Abdie detached No. 2) to Newburgh.

The following are the subjects thus affected :—

(1.) Transferred from the parish of Abdie to the parish of Dunbog.

3.—ABERDOUR AND KINGHORN.

The parish of Aberdour had one detached part adjoining the north-east corner of the parish of Burntisland, and almost entirely surrounded by the parish of Kinghorn. By the Order printed at p. 79 this detached part was annexed to Kinghorn parish.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Aberdour to the parish of Kinghorn :—

4.—ABERNETHY, NEWBURGH, AND STRATHMIGLO.

The parish of Abernethy was situated partly in the county of Fife and partly in the county of Perth. With the exception of the subjects now to be named, the whole parish was by the Order printed at p. 46 placed in the county of Perth. The subjects thus excepted were (1) those lying east of the lands of Pitmedden, which were annexed to the parish of Newburgh ; and (2) the lands of Nochnarrie and Pitlour, which were annexed to the parish of Strathmiglo.

The following alterations have thus been made on these three parishes :—

(1.)—Abernethy.

The area of the parish of Abernethy has been diminished by the disjunction of the lands detailed below as being annexed to Newburgh and Strathmiglo.

(2.)—Newburgh.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Abernethy to the parish of Newburgh :—

5.—Anstruther-Wester and Pittenweem.

The parish of Anstruther-Wester had one detached part extending to about an acre, and surrounded by the parish of Pittenweem. The parish of Pittenweem had two detached parts, each containing about an acre, and both surrounded by the parish of Anstruther-Wester. By the Order printed at p. 80 these two parishes were made to exchange their detached parts, and the boundary between the parishes, which was previously badly defined, has been rectified. All the districts affected by this Order lie within the burghs of Anstruther-Wester and Pittenweem, and the subjects are individually of small value. Owing to this fact, and to the uncertainty of the previous boundary between the parishes, it has been found impossible to detail the subjects affected. It is sufficient, however, to draw attention to the new boundary between the parishes. It follows the parliamentary boundary between the burghs of Anstruther-Wester and Pittenweem from the north boundary of Pittenweem parish down to the Pittenweem and Anstruther road. It then strikes east from the parliamentary boundary, running along the centre of this road to its junction with the Chain Road, down which it runs to the sea. All to the west of this new boundary is now in the parish of Pittenweem, and all to the east is in the parish of Anstruther-Wester.

The area transferred from Pittenweem to Anstruther-Wester includes 4 chains of the North British Railway line and a portion of Anstruther Goods Station.

(Sheet 41 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale. See also the six-inch maps.)

6.—Auchterderran, Ballingry, Kinglassie, and Portmoak.

As already explained (Ballingry, &c., supra, p. 249) certain transferences between the counties of Fife and Kinross have affected the areas of the parishes of Ballingry and Kinglassie, in the county of Fife, and of the parish of Portmoak, in the county of Kinross. In addition to these changes, the Fife parishes of Auchterderran, Ballingry, and Kinglassie were affected by the disposal of certain detached parts of the parish of Ballingry. These detached parts were two in number. Ballingry detached No. 1 lay on the county boundary adjoining the Fife parish of Kinglassie. Ballingry detached No. 2 was surrounded by the parish of Auchterderran. By the Order printed at p. 76 the part of Ballingry detached No. 1, which lay north of the new channel of the River Leven (The Cut), was transferred to Portmoak parish and to Kinross-shire, the remainder being annexed to Kinglassie parish and retained in the county of Fife. Ballingry detached No. 2 was annexed to Auchterderran parish.

The following changes have been made on the areas of these parishes:—

7.—COLLESSIE AND CULTS.

The parish of Cults had a detached part which was situated at Sweethome, and was entirely surrounded by the parish of Collessie. By the Order printed at p. 81 this detached part was annexed to Collessie.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Cults to the parish of Collessie:—

8.—Crail and Dunino.

The parish of Dunino was represented on the Ordnance Survey maps as having a detached part lying to the south of the main portion of the parish, and surrounded by the parish of Crail. The authorities of the two parishes, however, concurred in stating that the parish boundary as recognised in practice lay to the south of that shown on the map, and really included within the parish of Dunino not only the part marked on the maps as detached, but also a considerable portion of what was shown as belonging to the parish of Crail. The Order printed at p. 82 gives effect to the boundary as known in practice.

The following subjects were included in the area marked on the maps as belonging to the parish of Crail, and now declared to form part of the parish of Dunino :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

9 —Crail and Kingsbarns.

The parish of Kingsbarns had a detached part consisting of the farms of Grassmiston and Randerston, which was separated from the main portion of the parish by an intervening strip of the parish of Crail. Kingsbarns had also a part very nearly detached, consisting of the farm of Lochton. The result of the Order printed at p. 83 is that the farm of Randerston in the detached part is united with the main portion of Kingsbarns parish by annexing to that parish the intervening portion of Crail parish. In return the farms of Lochton and Grassmiston are transferred from Kingsbarns parish to Crail parish.

The following are the subjects affected :—

(a.) Transferred from the parish of Crail to the parish of Kingsbarns.

10.—Dunfermline and Inverkeithing.

The parish of Dunfermline, as has been explained (p. 249) had a part in the extreme north which was latterly treated as being in the county of Kinross, and it had also a detached part situated at North Queensferry and adjoining the parish of Inverkeithing. The parish of Inverkeithing also had a detached part which was situated west of the burgh of Dunfermline and was surrounded by the parish of Dunfermline. By the Order printed at p. 77 the part of Dunfermline parish in Kinross-shire was transferred to the Kinross-shire parish of Cleish, and the detached part of Dunfermline was annexed to Inverkeithing parish. Inverkeithing on the other hand gave over to Dunfermline parish its detached part and also an area lying to the extreme west of the parish, consisting of the lands west of the march between the estates of the Earl of Elgin and the Earl of Hopetoun.

The following is the effect on the parishes :—

11.—Elie and Kilconquhar.

The parish of Elie had a detached part situated to the north-west of the main portion of the parish, and lying naturally in to the parish of Kilconquhar. By the Order printed at p. 82 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Kilconquhar, and in return all the coast district of Kilconquhar south of the railway line and of the Cocklemill Burn was transferred to the parish of Elie.

The following are the subjects affected :—

(a.) Transferred from the parish of Elie to the parish of Kilconquhar.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Markinch to the parish of Wemyss :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Innerleven, . . .	Land, ...	R. G. Erskine Wemyss.
Do. . . .	Houses, byres, stable, &c., and links, . .	Do.
Innerleven Acres and Haugh	Lands, ...	Do.
Innerleven, . . .	Sawmill, ...	James Donaldson & Son.
Do. . . .	A large number of small subjects, chiefly urban, now included in the police burgh of Buckhaven, Methil, and Innerleven.
Part of the North British Railway (Buckhaven Branch) line (39 chains).		North British Railway Company.
Part of Leven Dock and sidings, ...		Do.

13.—Newburgh.

The parish of Newburgh was affected by two of the Orders :—

(a.) By the Order printed at p. 79 Abdie detached No. 2 was transferred to the parish of Newburgh.—See Abdie, &c., supra, p. 255.

(b.) By the Order printed at p. 46 part of the parish of Abernethy was transferred to the parish of Newburgh.—See Abernethy, &c., supra, p. 256.

14.—St. Andrews and St. Leonards.

The parish of St. Leonards consisted of four separate parts. The largest in area was situated at the south end of St. Andrews parish at Kenly, and was treated in the Ordnance Survey maps as the main part of the parish. The parts marked St. Leonards detached No. 1 and St Leonards detached No. 2 were situated within the burgh of St. Andrews, the latter being at the site of the old College of St. Leonards. St. Leonards detached No. 3 was situated at Rathelpie, at the west of the burgh. By the Order printed at p. 85 a new parish of St. Leonards was formed, the boundary of which can be traced with sufficient accuracy on the six-inch Ordnance maps, as it is laid down in Clause II. of the Order. The result is that the Kenly district, the Rathelpie district, and a small portion of St. Leonards detached No. 2 have been transferred to St. Andrews in exchange for the part of St. Andrews embraced within the new boundary of St. Leonards parish. St. Leonards parish is now situated wholly within the burgh of St. Andrews, and the subjects composing the two parishes, in so far as within burgh, can be readily ascertained, the boundary between them being now clearly defined. It seems, therefore, sufficient to enumerate the landward subjects transferred from the parish of St. Leonards to the parish of St. Andrews.

15.—COUNTY OF KINROSS.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Kinross had one detached part which was at the same time a detached part of the parish of Portmoak. It was surrounded by the county of Fife. There were four parishes situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in other counties, viz.—Arngask, Dunfermline, Forgandenny, and Fossoway.

The following changes have been made on the county boundaries.

A. With the County of Fife.

1.—Dunfermline.

There was some doubt whether a narrow projecting part at the northern extremity of the parish of Dunfermline was in Fife or in Kinross. By the Order printed at p. 77 this area is declared to form part of the county of Kinross, being transferred to the parish of Cleish, in that county. The county boundary so declared is the south march of the estate of Moreland on the south, and the march between the old parish of Dunfermline and the formerly detached part of the parish of Torryburn on the west.

For subjects transferred, see Cleish, &c., infra, p. 269.

2.—Portmoak, Ballingry, and Kinglassie.

The detached part of the parish of Portmoak, which was at the same time a detached part of the county of Kinross, was by the Order printed at p. 75 transferred to the county of Fife and to the parish of Kinglassie. There has also been effected a rectification of boundaries between the two counties affecting the parishes of Portmoak, Ballingry, and Kinglassie. The result of the Orders dealing with these parishes (printed at p. 76) is to make the new channel of the River Leven (The Cut) the new county boundary from a point about 600 yards east of New Gullet Bridge down to the parish of Leslie.

The subjects affected are detailed above, County of Fife, Ballingry, &c., p. 249.

B. With the County of Perth.

1.—Arngask.

The parish of Arngask was situated in three counties — Fife, Kinross, and Perth. No change has been made on the area of the parish, but the whole parish has been placed within the county of Perth by the Order printed at p. 46.

See County of Perth, Arngask, supra, pp. 199 and 203.

Digitized by Google

2.—Forgandenny.

The parish of Forgandenny was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 47 the Kinross-shire part of the parish was transferred to the county of Perth (and at the same time transferred along with another portion of the parish to the parish of Forteviot).

See County of Perth, Forgandenny, &c., supra, pp. 204 and 244.

3.—Fossoway & Tulliebole.

The parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole was situated partly in the county of Kinross and partly in the county of Perth. By the Order printed at p. 48 the whole of the parish, except the portion lying to the west of the line described in Clause I. of the Order, was placed in the county of Kinross. The excepted portion is retained in Perthshire and annexed to the parish of Glendevon.

The subjects thus retained in Perthshire are detailed above, County of Perth, Blackford, &c., p. 220.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Kinross, while at the same time remaining in the parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole :—

The Village of Blairingone.—Numerous urban subjects, individually of small value.

Devonshaw Feus.—Urban subjects of small value.

Gartwhinzian Feus.—	Do.	do.
Powmill.—	Do.	do.

The above districts are wholly transferred to Kinross-shire, but the number of small subjects with separate proprietors makes it undesirable and unnecessary to detail them.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—CLEISH AND DUNFERMLINE.

The part of the parish of Dunfermline which lay north of the south march of Moreland was said to be in the county of Kinross, and has for some time been so treated. By the Order printed at p. 77 it was declared to form part of the county of Kinross, and was annexed to the parish of Cleish, in that county.

The following subjects have thus (while declared to be in the county of Kinross) been transferred from the parish of Dunfermline to the parish of Cleish :—

2.—Fossoway & Tulliebole.

The parish of Fossoway & Tulliebole has been altered in area through the transference of a part to the parish of Glendevon by the Order printed at p. 48.

See County of Perth, Blackford, &c., supra, p. 220.

3.—Portmoak.

The parish of Portmoak has been altered in area (a) by the loss of its detached part and of certain portions south of the new channel of the River Leven (The Cut), and (b) by the transference to it of those parts of Ballingry and Kinglassie which lay north of The Cut.

For details see County of Fife, Ballingry, &c., supra, p. 249.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Clackmannan had one detached part, which consisted of portions of the parishes of Logie and Stirling, situated at Causewayhead, and had its longest common boundary with the county of Stirling. The county of Clackmannan surrounded on three sides the parish of Alva, which formed a detached part of Stirlingshire. There were three parishes situated partly in the county of Clackmannan and partly in other counties, viz., Alloa, Logie, and Stirling.

The following are the changes effected on the county boundaries.

A. With the County of Perth.

1.—ALLOA.

The parish of Alloa was situated partly in the county of Clackmannan and partly in the county of Perth. By Clause III. of the Order printed at p. 50 the Perthshire portion of the parish of Alloa was transferred to the county of Stirling and to the parish of Logie. It consists of about 4 acres of land situated at Gogar Haugh, and belongs to Mrs. Morries Stirling of Blackgrange.

B. With the County of Stirling.

1.—ALVA.

The parish of Alva formed a detached part of the county of Stirling. By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 50 the parish was transferred to the county of Clackmannan.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Stirling to the county of Clackmannan (while remaining in the parish of Alva) :—

The police burgh of ALVA, with all the subjects therein contained. These subjects constitute by far the greater number of the subjects transferred. The following landward subjects are also transferred :—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Alva, . . .	Manse, garden, and glebe, .	Heritors of the Parish.
Barnaich, . .	House, ...	James Wilson.

Estate of Alva, comprehending subjects within and without the police burgh of ALVA. The following are the more important :—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.

(Sheet 39 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

For alterations on the area of the parish of Alva, see Alva, infra p. 274.

2.—Logie.

The parish of Logie was situated partly in the county of Clackmannan, partly in the county of Perth, and partly in the county of Stirling. The Clackmannanshire part of the parish was in three portions. One was in the detached part of the county of Clackmannan situated at Causewayhead; it has been transferred to the county of Stirling, while remaining in the parish of Logie. The second consisted of the Menstrie district, adjoining the parish of Alva; it is retained in Clackmannanshire, but has been transferred from the parish of Logie to the parish of Alva. The third consisted of the Blackgrange property; it is retained in Clackmannanshire, but has been transferred from the parish of Logie to the parish of Alloa. In the case of the last-named portion there is a slight rectification in the county boundary, whereby, instead of running along the centre of the Alloa and Stirling road as previously, it is made to run first along the one side to Gogar Loan and then along the other, thus dividing the road transversely instead of longitudinally between the two counties.

See County of Stirling, Logie, infra, p. 276.

3.—Stirling.

The parish of Stirling was situated partly in the county of Clackmannan and partly in the county of Stirling. The Clackmannanshire part was situated at Cambuskenneth, in the detached part of the county. By the Order printed at p. 87 the parish of Stirling has been placed wholly in the county of Stirling.

See County of Stirling, Stirling, infra, p. 277.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Alloa.

The parish of Alloa has been altered in area (a) by the disjunction of the small portion of the parish formerly situated in the county of Perth; (b) by the addition of the detached part of the parish of Clackmannan situated at Sauchie; and (c) by the addition of the Blackgrange district of Logie. The Order relating to Alloa and Logie is printed at p. 50, and that relating to Alloa and Clackmannan at p. 89.

The following subjects are thus affected:—

(a.) Transferred from the parish of Alloa to the parish of Logie.

2.—ALVA.

By the Order printed at p. 50 the parish of Alva was altered in area by the addition of the Menstrie district of the parish of Logie, i.e., that part of the Clackmannanshire part of the old parish of Logie which lay north of the River Devon.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Logie to the parish of Alva (while remaining in the county of Clackmannan):—

The Village of MENSTRIE, comprising a large number of small subjects, chiefly urban. These include loom shop, spinning mill, tweed factory, school, church, and houses, and land at Damsburn, Laurelbank, Loaningbank, Old Bridge, Sloebank, West End, and in Back Row, Brook Street, Glenochil Terrace, Long Row, Main Street, Old Road, and Toll Road.

17.—COUNTY OF STIRLING.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Stirling had two detached parts, one being the parish of Alva, surrounded on three sides by the county of Clackmannan, and the other being a portion of the parish of Logie, surrounded on three sides by the Perthshire portion of the parish of Logie. The county of Stirling contained a detached part of the county of Clackmannan, consisting of portions of the parishes of Logie and Stirling, and a detached part of the county of Perth, consisting of part of the parish of Kippen. There were five parishes situated partly in the county of Stirling and partly in other counties, viz., Kippen, Lecropt, Logie, New Kilpatrick, and Stirling.

The following are the changes effected on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Clackmannan.

1.—ALVA.

The parish of Alva, which formed a detached part of the county of Stirling, has been wholly transferred to the county of Clackmannan by the Order printed at p. 50. See County of Clackmannan, Alva, supra, p. 271.

2.—LOGIE.

The counties of Clackmannan, Perth, and Stirling each claimed an interest in this parish. All the alterations on the boundaries of the parish are enumerated below (Logie, p. 282), but as between the counties of Clackmannan and Stirling the only change effected is that the portion of the parish of Logie which was included in the detached part of the county of Clackmannan has, by the Order printed at p. 50, been transferred to the county of Stirling. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Clackmannan to the county of Stirling :—

The Village of CAUSEWAYHEAD, consisting chiefly of small urban subjects, including school, public hall, mission hall, oil work, and subjects at Craiglea, Craigton, Sheriffmuirlands, &c.

The Village of CRAIGMILL, consisting of small urban subjects.

3.—STIRLING.

Part of the detached part of the county of Clackmannan which was situated within the county of Stirling consisted of a portion of the parish of Stirling which was then situated partly in the county of Clackmannan and partly in the county of Stirling. By the Order printed at p. 87 the whole of the parish of Stirling was placed within the county of Stirling.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Clackmannan to the county of Stirling:—

1.—NEW OR EAST KILPATRICK.

The parish of New or East Kilpatrick was situated partly in the county of Stirling and partly in the county of Dumbarton. By the Order printed at p. 89 the parish was placed wholly within the county of Dumbarton.

For details see County of Dumbarton, infra, p. 286.

C. With the County of Perth.

1.—ALLOA.

A small part of the parish of Alloa at Gogar Haugh was situated in the county of Perth. By Clause III. of the Order printed at p. 50 this part has been transferred to the parish of Logie and to the county of Stirling.

The subject thus transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Stirling (and at the same time from the parish of Alloa to the parish of Logie) is the following:—

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Perth to the county of Stirling (while remaining in the parish of Kippen):—

3.—Lecropt.

The parish of Lecropt was situated partly in the county of Stirling and partly in the county of Perth. By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 51 a portion of the Stirlingshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Logie, and so retained in the county of Stirling (see Logie, infra, p. 282). The remainder of the Stirlingshire part of Lecropt was transferred to the county of Perth, while remaining in the parish of Lecropt. For the subjects thus transferred see County of Perth, Lecropt, supra, p. 205.

4.—Logie.

The parish of Logie was shared between the parishes of Stirling, Clackmannan, and Perth. For the method in which the Clackmannanshire portion of the parish is dealt with see county of Clackmannan, Logie, supra, p. 272, and Logie, supra, p. 276. As between the counties of Stirling and Perth two changes were effected :—(1.) the whole of the Perthshire portion of the parish of Logie is transferred to Stirlingshire ; and (2.) a small part of the Stirlingshire portion of the parish of Logie is transferred to the parish of Lecropt and to the county of Perth.

The following subjects are thus affected :—

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Lecropt.

See County of Perth, Lecropt, supra, p. 247.

2.—Logie.

The parish of Logie was self-contained, but the adjustments necessary in consequence of the peculiar nature of the county boundaries which ran through the parish made an alteration in the parish boundaries necessary. It may be well here to summarise the changes, county and parochial, in which the parish of Logie is concerned. See the Orders printed at pp. 50 and 51.

(1.)—Parish Changes.

(I.) The Blackgrange district of Logie parish has been transferred to the parish of Alloa.—See County of Clackmannan, Alloa, supra, p. 273.

(II.) The Menstrie district of Logie parish has been transferred to the parish of Alva.—See County of Clackmannan, Alva, supra, p. 274.

(III.) A small part of Logie parish situated at Keirfield, west of the railway line, has been transferred to the parish of Lecropt.—See County of Perth, Lecropt, supra, p. 205.

(IV.) So much of the Stirlingshire portion of Lecropt parish as lay to the east of the west boundary of the Scottish Central Railway line has been transferred to the parish of Logie. The result is to place the police burgh of Bridge of Allan wholly in the parish of Logie. The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Lecropt to the parish of Logie :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Bridge of Allan, . .	Gasworks and pipes (part), and houses.	Bridge of Allan Gas Company, p. Robert Jenkins.

(V.) The small part of the parish of Alloa formerly situated in Perthshire has been transferred to the parish of Logie. It consists of the following subject :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Gogar Haugh, . .	Land, ...	Mrs. Morries Stirling.

(2.)—County Changes.

The whole parish of Logie, altered in area as above, has been placed in the county of Stirling.

(I.) The boundary between the main portions of the counties of Clackmannan and Perth is the same as formerly, except that where the county boundary formerly ran along the centre of the road between Alloa and Stirling it is now made to run first for some distance on the one side of that road and thereafter on the other.—See County of Clackmannan, Logie, supra, p. 272.

(II.) The part of Logie situated in the detached part of Clackmannanshire has been transferred to Stirlingshire.—See Logie, supra, p. 276.

(III.) The Perthshire part of Logie has been transferred to Stirlingshire.—See Logie, supra, p. 280.

(IV.) The small part of Logie west of the Scottish Central Railway line has been transferred from Stirlingshire to Perthshire.—See Logie, supra, p. 280.

3.—Stirling and St. Ninians.

The parish of St. Ninians had three detached parts, all situated within the parliamentary limits of the burgh of Stirling, and all, either wholly or partly, surrounded by the parish of Stirling. In order to adjust the boundaries of the two parishes, certain exchanges of territory have been made, which are fully narrated in the Order printed at p. 87.

(1.) There have been transferred from the parish of St. Ninians to the parish of Stirling—

Digitized by Google

(a.) The detached parts of St. Ninians; (b.) the part of St. Ninians parish situated at Raploch, which lies east of the western parliamentary boundary of the burgh of Stirling; and (c.) the part of St. Ninians situated at Forthbank, which lies west of the eastern parliamentary boundary of the burgh of Stirling.

(2.) There have been transferred from the parish of Stirling to the parish of St. Ninians—

(a) Those portions of Stirling parish which lie on the right bank of the River Forth, and to the east of the eastern parliamentary boundary of the burgh of Stirling; and (b.) that portion of Stirling parish which lies to the east of the Stirling and St. Ninians Road and of Port Street, and to the south of Craigs Street.

As a large part of the area affected is within burgh, and includes numerous urban subjects, it is impossible to give a complete enumeration of the subjects. It may be desirable, however, to give a complete description of the new boundaries of the parish of Stirling. Commencing at a point on the existing parish boundary in the centre of the old bridge near Bridgehaugh, follow the existing boundary (which is also the burgh parliamentary boundary) up the River Forth to the point at which the old parish boundary and the parliamentary boundary diverge. Continue to follow the parliamentary boundary, first up the River Forth, and then (leaving the river) west and south past Kildean, until the parliamentary boundary intersects the old parish boundary south of the village of Raploch. Thence follow the old parish boundary, first south-west, then south-east, till it reaches the centre of the Stirling and St. Ninians Road. Then let the line run in a northerly direction along the centre of the Stirling and St. Ninians Road to its junction with Craigs Street, thence south-east along the centre of Craigs Street till it again reaches the old parish boundary near Aitken's Mill, then in a southerly and south-easterly direction along the old parish boundary till it again meets the burgh parliamentary boundary. Thence follow the burgh parliamentary boundary north till it again meets the old parish boundary near the Forth. Thence continue along the old parish boundary down the River Forth to the point at Abbey Ford at which the old county boundary continued north while the old parish boundary struck east. Continue down the River Forth along the old county boundary to the point south of West Grange, at which it again met the old parish boundary. Thence strike north-west along the old parish boundary, and follow that boundary till it meets the boundary of St. Ninians detached No. 3. Follow the north boundary of St. Ninians detached No. 3 till it again meets the old boundary of the parish of Stirling. Thence follow the old parish boundary of Stirling, first north-west and then south-west, till the starting-point is reached.

The following subjects are affected :—

(1.) Transferred from the parish of St. Ninians to the parish of Stirling (all situated within the parliamentary and police boundaries of the burgh of Stirling).

(a) The lands of Goosecroft, on the north side of Craigs Street.
(b.) Parts of the west side of Port Street and of Dumbarton Road, and the whole of Allan Park.
(c.) The whole of Abbey Road, the farms of Queenhaugh and Shiphaugh, and other subjects, especially portions of the North British, Caledonian, and Forth and Clyde Railways lines, and of the Bridge of Allan Tramways.
(d.) Land and houses at Raploch and Kildean.
(e.) Land at Forthbank enclosure No. 346, and parts of enclosures Nos. 347 and 348, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps.

(2.) Transferred from the parish of Stirling to the parish of St. Ninians.

(a.) Subjects within the burgh of Stirling, bounded on the north-west by the Stirling and St. Ninians road and Port Street, on the north-east by Craigs Street, and elsewhere by the old boundary of the parish of Stirling.
(b.) The following subjects, outside the parliamentary and police limits of the burgh of Stirling :—

18.—COUNTY OF DUMBARTON.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There was only one parish, viz., New Kilpatrick, which was situated partly in the county of Dumbarton and partly in another county. The county has a large detached part consisting of the entire parishes of Cumbernauld and Kirkintilloch, but it is provided by section 40 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, that, notwithstanding the provisions of the Act for dealing with detached parts, this detached part shall continue to form part of the county of Dumbarton.

The following is the only change in the county boundary :—

1.—New Kilpatrick.

This parish was situated partly in the county of Dumbarton and partly in the county of Stirling. By the Order printed at p. 89 the parish was placed wholly within the county of Dumbarton, no change being made on the parish boundaries. The area thus transferred includes the town of Milngavie, which contains a very large number of subjects of small value, which it would be useless to enumerate. The landward subjects are, however, given below. Every subject in the parish of New Kilpatrick (including every subject in the town of Milngavie) is now in the county of Dumbarton.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Stirling to the county of Dumbarton (while remaining in the parish of New Kilpatrick) :—

The Police Burgh of Milngavie, with all the subjects therein, and the following landward subjects.

19.—COUNTY OF ARGYLL.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were three parishes situated partly in the county of Argyll and partly in another county (the county of Inverness), viz., Ardnamurchan, Kilmallie, and Small Isles.

The following are the changes effected on the county boundary :—

A. With the County of Inverness.

1.—Ardnamurchan.

No change has been made on the county boundary which runs through the parish of Ardnamurchan. The parish remains partly in the county of Argyll and partly in the county of Inverness.—See further County of Inverness, Ardnamurchan, supra, p. 141.

2.—Kilmallie.

The parish of Kilmallie also was situated partly in Argyllshire and partly in Inverness-shire. The Order printed at p. 14, while not placing the parish of Kilmallie wholly in one county, altered the county boundary which runs through that parish. Instead of following as formerly an irregular line through the parish considerably north of Loch Eil, it now runs along the centre of Loch Eil, and from the head of that loch it follows the line, described in the Order, to Loch Sheil. The effect of the Order, therefore, is to transfer a certain area in the parish of Kilmallie from the county of Argyll to the county of Inverness.

For details see County of Inverness, Kilmallie, supra, p. 141.

3.—Small Isles.

The parish of Small Isles, which was situated partly in the county of Argyll and partly in the county of Inverness, was by the Order printed at p. 16 placed wholly in the county of Inverness.

For details see County of Inverness, Small Isles, supra, p. 142.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Craignish and Kilninver & Kilmelfort.

The parish of Craignish had a detached part situated at Lagalochan, a short distance north of the north-east corner of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 90 this detached part has been transferred to Kilninver & Kilmelfort.

The following subject has thus been transferred from the parish of Craignish to the parish of Kilninver & Kilmelfort :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Laggan Lochan, . .	Land and house, . .	Trustees of Mrs. C. G. Bolitho and Miss A. L. M'Neill of Glenmore.

2.—Glenorchy & Inishail and Kilchrenan & Dalavich.

The island of Inishail in Loch Awe was a detached part of the parish of Kilchrenan & Dalavich. By the Order printed at p. 90 it was transferred to the parish of Glenorchy & Inishail.

The following subject has thus been transferred from the parish of Kilchrenan & Dalavich to the parish of Glenorchy & Inishail :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Inishail, ...	Island, ...	Duke of Argyll.

3.—Kilcalmonell & Kilberry and South Knapdale.

The Kilberry district of the parish of Kilcalmonell & Kilberry formed a detached part of the parish, being separated from the main portion of the parish by the parish of South Knapdale and by West Loch Tarbert. By the Order printed at p. 92 the Kilberry district was transferred to the parish of South Knapdale, and it was directed that the remainder of the parish of Kilcalmonell & Kilberry should be called the parish of Kilcalmonell.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Kilcalmonell & Kilberry to the parish of South Knapdale :—

4.—KILFINICHEN & KILVICKEON AND PENNYGOWN & TOROSAY.

The parish of Pennygown & Torosay had a detached part which was situated at Burg, on the north side of the entrance to Loch Scridain, and adjoined the parish of Kilfinichen & Kilvickeon. By the order printed at p. 92 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Kilfinichen & Kilvickeon, and a part of the parish of Kilfinichen & Kilvickeon, situated on the west shore of Loch Buie, was in turn transferred to the parish of Pennygown & Torosay.

The parish of Lismore & Appin had a detached part situated at Kingairloch on the north side of Loch Linnhe. By the Order printed at p. 91 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Kilmallie.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Lismore & Appin to the parish of Kilmallie :—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Kilmalieu, . .	Mansion-house, offices, servants' house, land, and fishings.	Wm. K. Gair of Kilmalieu.

20.—COUNTY OF BUTE.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There was one parish situated partly in the county of Bute and partly in another county (the county of Ayr), viz., the parish of Ardrossan. By the Order printed at p. 93 no change was made on the boundary between the counties of Bute and Ayr, but the Buteshire part of the parish of Ardrossan (consisting of the Island of Little Cumbrae) was transferred to the parish of Cumbrae, while remaining in the county of Bute.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Cumbrae and Ardrossan.

As above explained, the Buteshire part of the parish of Ardrossan was transferred to the parish of Cumbrae.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Ardrossan to the parish of Cumbrae:—

21.—COUNTY OF RENFREW.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were two burghs and five parishes situated partly in the county of Renfrew and partly in other counties. The burghs of Glasgow and Renfrew, and the parishes of Cathcart, East Kilbride, and Govan, were situated partly in Renfrewshire and partly in Lanarkshire, and the parishes of Beith and Dunlop were situated partly in Renfrewshire and partly in Ayrshire.

The following are the changes on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Lanark.

At the time of writing the burghs of Glasgow and Renfrew and the parish of Govan have not been finally dealt with. In the First Appendix, however, will be found the Draft Order containing the proposals of the Commissioners. The effect of the Order relating to the parishes of Cathcart and East Kilbride is as follows :—

1.—Cathcart and Carmunnock.

The parish of Cathcart was situated partly in the county of Renfrew and partly in the county of Lanark. The Lanarkshire portion was divided into two, one being a detached part of the parish and the other forming part of the main portion of the parish. By Clause I. of the Order printed at p. 95 the detached part of the parish was transferred to the parish of East Kilbride, thus remaining in Lanarkshire. By Clause II. of that Order the remainder of the parish of Cathcart was placed wholly in the county of Renfrew. But as this would have caused the boundary between the counties of Lanark and Renfrew to run along the centre of a road (a most inconvenient boundary), the part of that road (the road between Symshill and Croftfoot) which had been thus divided between the parishes of Cathcart and Carmunnock was placed wholly in the parish of Cathcart and in the county of Renfrew.

The following subjects, in addition to the portion of road above mentioned, have thus been transferred from the county of Lanark to the county of Renfrew :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Aikenhead, . .	Mansion-house, garden, policies, and servants' houses.	John Gordon of Aikenhead.
Do. . .	Home farm, ...	Do.
Do., Mount Florida, . .	Land and minerals, . . .	Do.
Meikle Aikenhead,	Farm, ...	Do.
Do. .	House and land, . . .	Do.
Woodside, . .	Farm, ...	Do.

2.—East Kilbride and Eaglesham.

The parish of East Kilbride was situated party in the county of Renfrew and partly in the county of Lanark, the part in the county of Renfrew being a small detached part of the parish, not shown on the one-inch Ordnance maps. By the Order printed at p. 96 no change was made on the county boundary, but this detached part (being the Renfrewshire part of the parish) was transferred to the parish of Eaglesham.—(See Eaglesham, infra, p. 295.)

B. With the County of Ayr.

1 and 2.—Beith and Dunlop.

These parishes were each situated partly in the county of Renfrew and partly in the county of Ayr. They have now been placed wholly in the county of Ayr by the Orders printed at p. 94.—(See County of Ayr, infra, p. 296.)

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

For possible changes on the parishes of Eastwood, Govan, and Renfrew, see First Appendix.

1.—Abbey and Paisley.

The parish of Paisley had a detached part separated from the main portion of the parish by a narrow strip of Abbey parish. Again, within this detached part of the parish of Paisley was a detached part of Abbey parish. By the Order printed at p. 96 the detached part of Paisley parish was united to the main portion of Paisley parish by the annexation to it of the small portion of Abbey parish at the River Cart, described in Clause I., and the detached part of Abbey parish was then transferred to Paisley parish.

The subjects are all within burgh and cannot be very accurately described. The changes are, however, of slight importance, and can readily be followed on the six-inch or twenty-five inch Ordnance maps. The following are the proprietors:—

	Place.	Proprietor.
(a)	Detached part of Abbey Parish, .	Stewart Clark, thread manufacturer.
(b.)	Part of Abbey Parish at the River Cart, North portion, .	Do. do.
	Do. do. South portion, .	Robert Ramsay, miller.

2.—Cathcart.

The parish of Cathcart has been altered in area by the addition to it from Carmunnock of the portion of road above described (Cathcart and Carmunnock, supra, p. 293), and by the loss of its detached part, which has been transferred to the parish of East Kilbride, in the county of Lanark.—(County of Lanark, East Kilbride, infra, p. 303.)

3.—Eaglesham.

The parish of Eaglesham has been altered in area through the addition to it of the small detached portion of East Kilbride situated in Renfrewshire, by the Order printed at p. 96. This detached part is about one acre in extent and is thus described :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Kirklands, . .	Land on farm, . .	Trustees of late Robert Steel.

22.—COUNTY OF AYR.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were three parishes situated partly in the county of Ayr and partly in other counties, viz., Ardrossan, Beith, and Dunlop. The following are the changes on the county boundaries:—

A. With the County of Bute.

1.—Ardrossan.

The parish of Ardrossan was situated partly in the county of Ayr and partly in the county of Bute, the Buteshire portion being the island of Little Cumbrae. No change has been made on the county boundary, but the Buteshire part of the parish of Ardrossan has been transferred to the Buteshire parish of Cumbrae by the Order printed at p. 93.

See County of Bute, supra, p. 292.

B. With the County of Renfrew.

1.—Beith.

The parish of Beith was situated partly in the county of Ayr and partly in the county of Renfrew. By the Order printed at p. 94 the parish was placed wholly within the county of Ayr.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Renfrew to the county of Ayr:—

Blae Lochside and Shutterflat.	Farm, . . .	Representatives of Col. Wm. Mure of Caldwell.

2.—Dunlop.

The parish of Dunlop was situated partly in the county of Ayr and party in the county of Renfrew. By the Order printed at p. 94 the parish was placed wholly within the county of Ayr.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Ardrossan.

The parish of Ardrossan has been altered in area by the transference of Little Cumbrae to the parish of Cumbrae.

See County of Bute, supra, p. 292.

2.—Ayr and Maybole.

A small part of the parish of Maybole was divided from the rest of the parish by the estuary of the River Doon. By the Order printed at p. 100 this part was transferred to the parish of Ayr.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Maybole to the parish of Ayr :—

between the two parishes, whereby Galston received the east portion of the detached part of Riccarton, while the remainder of the detached part was joined to the main portion of Riccarton parish by the annexation of the intervening portion of Galston parish. The new boundaries are fully described in the Order.

The following subjects are affected :—

(a.) Transferred from the parish of Riccarton to the parish of Galston.

5.—Ochiltree and Stair.

The parish of Stair had two detached parts, one (Stair detached No. 1) wholly surrounded by the parish of Ochiltree, and the other (Stair detached No. 2) adjoining that parish and the parish of Coylton. By the Order printed at p. 99 an exchange of territory was effected between the parishes of Stair and Ochiltree, whereby the divided condition of Stair is done away with, both parishes being now self-contained :—(a) Stair detached No. 2 was transferred to the parish of Ochiltree, and (b) the portion of Ochiltree parish described in Clause I. of the Order was transferred to Stair, and thereby Stair detached No. 1 was united with the main portion of Stair parish. The new boundary thus laid down between the parishes may be followed for the greater part of its distance on the Ordnance one-inch maps. From the boundary of Coylton parish it runs in an easterly direction along the north boundary of Stair detached No. 2 to its eastmost point, and thence it follows the south march of the plantation shown on the map to the point at which a belt of planting strikes off to the north-east. Thence it runs north-east along the west march of this belt of planting till it meets the east boundary of Stair detached No. 1. After following the last-mentioned boundary north and north-west, it strikes off to the main part of Stair parish by a line which keeps Gargown on the east and Little Speirston on the west.

The following subjects are affected :—

23.—COUNTY OF LANARK.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were two burghs and six parishes situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in other counties, viz., the burghs of Glasgow and Renfrew, and the parishes of Kirkpatrick-Juxta, Moffat, Culter, Cathcart, East Kilbride, and Govan. As above explained (County of Renfrew, p. 293), only a Draft Order has at the date of writing been issued regarding the burghs of Glasgow and Renfrew and the parish of Govan (see First Appendix). The following changes have been made on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Dumfries.

1 and 2—KIRKPATRICK-JUXTA AND MOFFAT.

These two parishes were situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Dumfries. They have now been placed wholly in the county of Dumfries by the Orders printed at pp. 100 and 101.

See County of Dumfries, infra, p. 337.

B. With the County of Peebles.

1.—CULTER.

The parish of Culter was situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Peebles. By the Order printed at p. 119 no change was made in the county boundary, but the Peeblesshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm.

See County of Peebles, Culter, &c., infra, p. 324.

C. With the County of Renfrew.

1.—CATHCART AND CARMUNNOCK.

The parish of Cathcart was situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew. The Lanarkshire part of the parish was in two portions, one being a detached part of the parish, and the other being part of the main portion of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 95 the detached part of the parish remains in

Digitized by Google

Lanarkshire, being transferred to the parish of East Kilbride (see Parish Boundaries, East Kilbride, infra, p. 303). The parish of Cathcart, thus diminished in area, received a slight accession in area through the placing wholly in the parish of Cathcart of that part of the road between Symshill and Croftfoot, which was formerly divided between the parishes of Cathcart and Carmunnock. The parish as thus altered in area has been placed wholly in the county of Renfrew.

For details see County of Renfrew, Cathcart, supra, p. 293.

2.—East Kilbride.

The parish of East Kilbride was situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew. No change has been made on the county boundary, but the Renfrewshire part of the parish, which consisted of a small detached part of about one acre in area, has been transferred to the parish of Eaglesham by the Order printed at p. 96.

See County of Renfrew, Eaglesham, supra, p. 295.

3.—Govan.

See First Appendix.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Carmunnock.

The parish of Carmunnock has been slightly altered in area through the transference to the parish of Cathcart of the Carmunnock side of that part of the road between Symshill and Croftfoot which was formerly divided between the parishes of Cathcart and Carmunnock.

See Cathcart, supra, p. 293, and the Order at p. 95.

2.—Cathcart.

See County of Renfrew, supra, p. 293.

3.—Culter.

The parish of Culter has been altered in area through the transference of the Peeblesshire part of the parish to the parish of Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm by the Order printed at p. 119.

See County of Peebles, Culter, &c., infra, p. 324.

4.—Dalziel and Hamilton.

The parish of Hamilton had a small detached part situated at the extreme north of the parish of Dalziel. By the Order printed at p. 101 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Dalziel.

24.—COUNTY OF LINLITHGOW.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

There were two parishes situated partly in the county of Linlithgow and partly in another county (the county of Edinburgh), viz., Cramond and Kirkliston.

The following changes have been effected on county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Edinburgh.

1.—Cramond.

The parish of Cramond was situated partly in the county of Linlithgow and partly in the county of Edinburgh, the River Almond, which flowed through the parish, being the county boundary. By the Order printed at p. 102 the River Almond was preserved as the county boundary, and the Linlithgowshire part of Cramond parish was transferred to Dalmeny parish. As, however, a small part of the parish of Dalmeny and county of Linlithgow was still left on the Edinburgh side of the Almond, Clause II. of the Order transferred this area to the parish of Cramond and to the county of Edinburgh. The River Almond is thus made the county and parish boundary from the point at which it leaves the parish of Kirkliston till it enters the sea.

For details as to the subjects which, while remaining in Linlithgowshire, have been transferred from the parish of Cramond to the parish of Dalmeny, see Dalmeny, infra, p. 305.

The following subject has been transferred from the county of Linlithgow to the county of Edinburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Cramond) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Turnhouse, . . .	Farm (part), . .	J. C. Hope Vere of Craigiehall.

(Sheet 32 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

2.—Kirkliston.

The parish of Kirkliston was situated partly in the county of Linlithgow and partly in the county of Edinburgh. The Edinburgh portion consisted (a) of a detached part of the parish situated in the centre of the county of Edinburgh, and (b) of part of the main portion of the parish.

The detached part has been transferred to the parish of Currie (see County of Edinburgh, Currie, infra, p. 312.

Digitized by Google

A Draft Order was issued on 7th July 1891 transferring the Edinburgh portion of Kirkliston to the parish of Ratho, no change being made on the county boundary, but by circular letter issued on 12th November 1891, the Commissioners intimated that they would not issue any final Order in this case. Accordingly the parish of Kirkliston remains partly situated in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Linlithgow.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Cramond.

See County of Edinburgh, Cramond, p. 311.

2.—Dalmeny.

The parish of Dalmeny had one detached part, situated south of the parish of Abercorn. By the Order printed at p. 103 this detached part has been transferred partly to the parish of Ecclesmachan and partly to the parish of Kirkliston. Dalmeny parish has been further altered in area by the Order printed at p. 102, which effects—(a) the transference to Cramond parish (and to the county of Edinburgh) of a small area situated on the right bank of the River Almond; and (b) the transference to Dalmeny parish of the Linlithgowshire part of Cramond parish.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Ecclesmachan.—See Ecclesmachan, infra.

(b.) From the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Kirkliston.—See Kirkliston, infra, p. 307.

3.—Ecclesmachan.

The parish of Ecclesmachan had one detached part separated from the main portion of the parish by part of the parish of Linlithgow.

Digitized by Google

By the Order printed at the foot of p. 103 the two parts of Ecclesmachan were united by transferring to that parish the intervening portion of Linlithgow described in Clause I. of the Order. The description can readily be followed on the one-inch Ordnance map. The parish of Ecclesmachan receives a further accession of territory by the Order printed at the top of p. 103, under which the western portion of the detached part of Dalmeny is transferred to Ecclesmachan. The description in the latter case cannot be readily followed on the one-inch Ordnance maps, but it may be explained that the line dividing the detached part runs from a point in the centre of the Craigton Road on the north to a point east of Lampinsdub on the south.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Ecclesmachan.

4.—Kirkliston.

The parish of Kirkliston had one detached part, which by the Order printed at p. 107 has been transferred to the parish of Currie. The parish of Kirkliston has been further altered in area through the transference to it of the eastern portion of the detached part of Dalmeny by the Order printed at p. 103.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Kirkliston to the parish of Currie.—See County of Edinburgh, Currie, infra, p. 312.

(b.) From the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Kirkliston :—

25.—COUNTY OF EDINBURGH.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Edinburgh contained a detached part of the county of Haddington which was at the same time a detached part of the parish of Humbie. There were four parishes situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in other counties, viz., Cramond, Fala & Soutra, Kirkliston, and Stow.

The following changes have been effected on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Haddington.

1.—Fala & Soutra.

The parish of Fala & Soutra was situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Haddington. By the Order printed at p. 104 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Edinburgh.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Haddington to the county of Edinburgh :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Chesterhill, . . .	Farm (part), . . .	Archibald Broun of Johnstonburn.
Gilston, ...	Farm and woodlands, .	Trustees of late John Dun.

2.—Humbie.

The parish of Humbie had a detached part which was at the same time a detached part of the county of Haddington. By the Order printed at p. 104 this detached part has been transferred to the county of Edinburgh and to the parish of Fala & Soutra.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Haddington to the county of Edinburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Humbie to the parish of Fala & Soutra) :—

B. With the County of Linlithgow.

1.—Cramond and Dalmeny.

The parish of Cramond was situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Linlithgow, the county boundary being the River Almond. By the Order printed at p. 102 the Linlithgowshire part of Cramond parish was transferred to the parish of Dalmeny, and the only alteration made on the county boundary was one by which a small part of Dalmeny parish on the Edinburgh side of the River Almond was transferred to the parish of Cramond and to the county of Edinburgh.

For details as to the subjects transferred from the parish of Cramond to the parish of Dalmeny, see County of Linlithgow, Dalmeny, supra, p. 305.

The following subject was transferred from the county of Linlithgow to the county of Edinburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Dalmeny to the parish of Cramond):—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Turnhouse, . . .	Farm (part), . . .	J. C. Hope Vere of Craigiehall.

(Sheet 32 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

2.—Kirkliston.

The parish of Kirkliston had a detached part in the county of Edinburgh which has been transferred to the parish of Currie (see Currie, infra, p. 312). Further, the main portion of Kirkliston parish was situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Linlithgow. On 7th July 1891 the Boundary Commissioners issued a Draft Order by which they proposed to transfer the Edinburgh portion of Kirkliston parish to the parish of Ratho, the county boundary being unaltered. On 12th November 1891, however, they intimated their intention of issuing no final Order, and accordingly the main portion of the parish remains as hitherto divided between the two counties mentioned.

C. With the County of Selkirk.

1.—Stow.

The parish of Stow was situated partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk. On 15th August 1890 the Boundary Commissioners issued a Draft Order by which it was proposed to place the parish wholly in the county of Edinburgh. On reconsideration of the question in the light of the objections and representations made with reference to the Draft Order, the Commissioners issued a circular on 23d March 1891 intimating that they had resolved to issue no Order, but to leave the parish of Stow, as hitherto, partly in the county of Edinburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk. They further expressed the opinion that the wider powers conferred on the Secretary for Scotland by section 51 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, should be utilised in the formation of a new civil parish of Caddonfoot, which should embrace the whole of the Selkirkshire part of the parish of Stow.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Borthwick.

The parish of Borthwick had one detached part situated at the north-east corner of the parish of Heriot. By Order printed at p. 105 this detached part has been transferred to the parish of Heriot. The parish of Borthwick has been further altered in area through the transference to it of the detached part of the parish of Temple, situated at Gorebridge, by the Order printed at p. 108.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Borthwick to the parish of Heriot.—See Heriot, infra, p. 312.

(b.) From the parish of Temple to the parish of Borthwick :—

The Village of Gorebridge, in so far as previously in the parish of Temple, consisting chiefly of small urban subjects, including part of gas-work.
The Village of Stobsmills, consisting of small urban subjects.
The Villages of Stobhill and Mossend, consisting of small urban subjects, chiefly miners' houses.

2.—Canongate, City of Edinburgh, St. Cuthberts, and South Leith.

Each of these parishes had detached parts. The Commissioners have signed and sealed a final Order readjusting the boundaries of these parishes, but at the date of writing it is not known whether the Order will be brought before Parliament or not. The Order is printed in the First Appendix.

3.—Corstorphine.

The parish of Corstorphine had one small detached part, situated south-west of the village of Corstorphine and west of South Gyle. By the Order printed at p. 106 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Currie.

For details see Currie, infra, p. 312.

4.—Cramond.

The parish of Cramond has been altered in area by the Order printed at p. 102, (a) through the transference of the Linlithgowshire part of the parish to the parish of Dalmeny (see County of Linlithgow, Dalmeny, supra, p. 305), and (b) through the transference to Cramond of the small portion of Dalmeny on the right bank of the River Almond (see Cramond, &c., supra, p. 309).

5.—Cranston and Crichton.

The parish of Cranston had a detached part situated on the south-west border of the parish of Crichton. By the Order printed at p. 106 this detached part has been transferred to the parish of Crichton.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Cranston to the parish of Crichton :—

7.—Fala & Soutra.

The parish of Fala & Soutra has been altered in area through the addition of the detached part of the parish of Humbie by the Order printed at p. 104.

For details as to the subjects thus transferred from the parish of Humbie to the parish of Fala & Soutra, see Humbie, supra, p. 308.

8.—Heriot.

The parish of Heriot has been altered in area (a) through the addition of the detached part of the parish of Borthwick by the Order printed at p. 105, and (b) through the addition of the detached part of the parish of Stow by the Order printed at p. 107. Both these detached parts were situated on the north-east border of Heriot parish.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Borthwick to the parish of Heriot.

26.—COUNTY OF HADDINGTON.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Haddington had one detached part (which was also a detached part of the parish of Humbie), surrounded by the county of Edinburgh. There were two parishes which were situated partly in the county of Haddington and partly in other counties, viz., Fala & Soutra and Oldhamstocks.

The following changes have been made on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Berwick.

1.—Oldhamstocks.

The parish of Oldhamstocks was situated partly in the county of Haddington and partly in the county of Berwick. The Berwickshire portion of the parish consisted of (a) a detached part of the parish situated well within the county of Berwick, and (b) part of the main portion of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 109 the detached part was transferred to the parish of Coldingham, thus remaining in the county of Berwick. The parish as thus altered in area, i.e., the main portion of the parish, was then placed wholly in the county of Haddington. For the subjects transferred to Coldingham and retained in Berwickshire, see County of Berwick, Coldingham, infra, p. 319.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Berwick to the county of Haddington (while remaining in the parish of Oldhamstocks) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

2.—Humbie.

The parish of Humbie had a detached part, which was also a detached part of the county of Haddington, situated within the county of Edinburgh. By the Order printed at p. 104 this detached part was transferred to the county of Edinburgh and to the parish of Fala & Soutra.

For details see County of Edinburgh, Humbie, supra, p. 308.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Athelstaneford and Prestonkirk.

The parish of Athelstaneford had one detached part, which by the Order printed at p. 109, has been tranferred to the parish of Prestonkirk.

The following subject has thus been transferred from the parish of Athelstaneford to the parish of Prestonkirk :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Sandysmill, . . .	House, mill, and land, .	Sir Alex. Kinloch, Bart., of Gilmerton.

2.—Humbie.

The parish of Humbie has been altered in area through the transference of its detached part to the parish of Fala & Soutra, by the Order printed at p. 104.

For details see County of Edinburgh, Humbie, supra, p. 308.

3.—Oldhamstocks.

The parish of Oldhamstocks has been altered in area through the transference of its detached part to the parish of Coldingham by the Order printed at p. 109.

For details see County of Berwick, Coldingham, infra, p. 319.

4.—Spott, Stenton, and Whittinghame.

The parish of Stenton had two detached parts, and the parish of Whittinghame one detached part. One of the detached parts of Stenton was situated at Friarsdykes, between the parishes of Spott and Innerwick. The other detached part of Stenton was separated from the rest of the parish by part of the parish of Spott and by the detached part of Whittinghame. By the Order printed at p. 110, (a) the detached part of Stenton at Friarsdyke was transferred to Spott, and (b) the other detached part of Stenton was united 27.—COUNTY OF BERWICK.

1.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Berwick had one detached part (a detached part of the parish of Earlston), which extended to 0·024 of an acre, and lay within the parish of Melrose and the county of Roxburgh. It had also a part detached, or nearly detached, consisting of part of the parish of Mertoun, which abutted on the parish of St. Boswells. There was one parish situated partly in the county of Berwick and partly in an adjoining county (the county of Haddington), viz., Oldhamstocks. The following changes have been effected in county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Haddington.

1.—Oldhamstocks.

The parish of Oldhamstocks was situated partly in the county of Berwick and partly in the county of Haddington. The Berwickshire portion was in two parts, one being a detached part of Oldhamstocks parish, and the other being part of the main portion of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 109 the detached part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Coldingham, being retained in the county of Berwick. (For details see Coldingham, infra, p. 319.) The parish of Oldhamstocks, as thus altered in area, was then placed wholly in the county of Haddington.

For the subjects thus transferred from the county of Berwick to the county of Haddington, see County of Haddington, Oldhamstocks, supra, p. 314.

B. With the County of Roxburgh.

1.—Earlston and Lauder.

As already stated, the parish of Earlston had a small detached part which was also a detached part of the county of Berwick, and was surrounded by the county of Roxburgh. Within the county of Berwick the parish of Lauder had a detached part situated on the west of the Leader Water and projecting into the parish of Melrose and the county of Roxburgh. By the Order printed at p. 111 two changes were made on the county boundary—(a.) the detached part of the parish of Lauder was transferred to the parish of Melrose, and at the same time to the county of Roxburgh ; and (b.) so much of Earlston parish as lay to the west of the Leader Water (including the detached part) was transferred to the parish of Melrose and to the county of Roxburgh.

For details see County of Roxburgh, Earlston, &c., infra, p. 331.

2.—Mertoun.

The parish of Mertoun had a part detached or nearly detached situated east of Dryburgh Abbey. By the Order printed at p. 112 this part was transferred to the parish of St. Boswells and to the county of Berwick.

For details, see County of Roxburgh, Mertoun, infra, p. 332.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Abbey St. Bathans.

The parish of Abbey St. Bathans had two detached parts, one of which lay to the north of the main portion of the parish within the parish of Cockburnspath, while the other was separated from the main portion of the parish by a detached part of the parish of Longformacus. By the Order printed at the top of p. 113 the first of these detached parts was transferred to the parish of Cockburnspath. By the Order printed at the foot of p. 113 the second of these detached parts was united with the main portion of the parish of Abbey St. Bathans by the transference to that parish of the detached part of Longformacus.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Abbey St. Bathans to the parish of Cockburnspath.—See Cockburnspath, infra.

(b.) From the parish of Longformacus to the parish of Abbey St. Bathans :—

3.—Coldingham.

The parish of Coldingham had one detached part situated at Highlaws, and surrounded by the parish of Eyemouth. By the Order printed at p. 115 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Eyemouth. The parish of Coldingham was further altered in area through the addition of the detached part of Oldhamstocks parish situated at the east end of Coldingham parish by the Order printed at p. 109.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

4.—Cranshaws.

The parish of Cranshaws had one detached part which was bounded on north and east by the parish of Longformacus. By the Order printed at p. 114 an exchange of territory was effected between these parishes. The detached part of Cranshaws was transferred to Longformacus, while the portion of Longformacus described in Clause II. of the Order was transferred to Cranshaws. The latter portion may in general terms be described as the portion of Longformacus north of the course of the River Whitadder, from the main portion of Cranshaws parish on the west to Ellem Inn on the east.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(b.) From the parish of Longformacus to the parish of Cranshaws :—

5.—Earlston.

The parish of Earlston has been altered in area through the transference to the parish of Melrose of so much of Earlston as lay west of the Leader Water by the Order printed at p. 111.

For details as to subjects transferred, see County of Roxburgh, Earlston, infra, p. 331.

6.—Eyemouth.

The parish of Eyemouth has been altered in area by the Order printed at p. 115, which has transferred to that parish the detached part of Coldingham.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Coldingham to the parish of Eyemouth :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Highlaws, . .	House, offices, gardener's house, policies, land, and woodlands.	Magnus Sandison of Highlaws.

7.—Hume and Nenthorn.

The parish of Hume had a detached part situated on the north-west border of the parish of Nenthorn. By the Order printed at p. 115 an exchange of territory was effected between these two parishes, whereby (a) the detached part of Hume was transferred to Nenthorn, and (b) so much of the farm of Hardiesmill Place as was situated in Nenthorn was transferred to Hume.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

8.—Lauder.

The parish of Lauder had one detached part situated to the south of the main portion of the parish and on the west of the Leader Water. By the Order printed at p. 111 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Melrose and to the county of Roxburgh.

For details, see County of Roxburgh, Lauder, infra, p. 331.

9.—Longformacus.

The parish of Longformacus had one detached part which lay to the east of the main portion of the parish of Abbey St. Bathans. By the Order printed at p. 113 this detached part was transferred to Abbey St. Bathans. The area of the parish of Longformacus was further altered by the Order printed at p. 114, which transferred to Longformacus the detached part of Cranshaws, and gave Cranshaws the part of Longformacus north of a line drawn down the River Whitadder from the main portion of Cranshaws parish to the parish boundary at Ellem Inn.

The following subjects have thus been transferred:—

(a.) From the parish of Longformacus to the parish of Abbey St. Bathans.—See Abbey St. Bathans, supra, p. 318.

(b.) From the parish of Longformacus to the parish of Cranshaws. —See Cranshaws, supra, p. 319.

28.—COUNTY OF PEEBLES.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Peebles contained a detached part of the county of Selkirk, being part of the parish of Innerleithen. There were three parishes situated partly in the county of Peebles and partly in other counties, viz.—Culter, Innerleithen, and Peebles.

The following changes have been made on the county boundaries:—

A. With the County of Lanark.

1.—CULTER.

The parish of Culter was situated partly in the county of Peebles and partly in the county of Lanark. By the Order printed at p. 119 no change was made on the county boundary, but the Peeblesshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm.

See Culter, &c., infra, p. 324.

B. With the County of Selkirk.

1.—INNERLEITHEN.

The parish of Innerleithen was situated partly in the county of Peebles and partly in the county of Selkirk. The Selkirkshire part of the parish consisted of (a) a detached part of Selkirkshire, and (b) part of the main portion of the county of Selkirk, these two parts being separated from each other by the Peeblesshire part of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 116 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Peebles.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Innerleithen) been transferred from the county of Selkirk to the county of Peebles:—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.

2.—Peebles.

The parish of Peebles was situated partly in the county of Peebles and partly in the county of Selkirk. By the Order printed at p. 117 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Selkirk.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Peebles) been transferred from the county of Selkirk to the county of Peebles :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Glensax, ...	Farm (part), . .	Sir John Adam Hay of Smithfield and Hay stoune.
Do.	Woodlands, . . .	Do.

3.—Lyne & Megget.

The parish of Lyne & Megget, in the county of Peebles, had a detached part situated at the south of the county of Peebles. It consisted of the district of Megget, which drained into the valley of Yarrow Water. By the Order printed at p. 117 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Yarrow and to the county of Selkirk

For details see County of Selkirk, Lyne, &c., infra, p. 326.

4.—Yarrow.

The parish of Yarrow, in the county of Selkirk, had a detached part situated in the Tweed valley south of Cardrona, and nearly surrounded by the Peeblesshire parish of Traquair. Another part of the parish of Yarrow, situated in the Tweed valley north of Minchmuir, was almost detached from the main portion of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 118 both these areas (more fully described in the Order) have been transferred to the parish of Traquair and to the county of Peebles.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Selkirk to the county of Peebles (and at the same time from the parish of Yarrow to the parish of Traquair) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Cardrona Mains, . .	Farm (part), . .	Miss Catherine Isabella Williamson of Cardrona.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Culter and Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm.

The parish of Culter was situated partly in the county of Peebles and partly in the county of Lanark. By the Order printed at p. 119 the Peeblesshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Culter to the parish of Kilbucho Broughton & Glenholm :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

2.—Lyne & Megget.

The parish of Lyne & Megget had a detached part which consisted of the old parish of Megget. By the Order printed at p. 117 this detached part has been transferred to the parish of Yarrow, and it is directed that the remainder of the parish shall be known as the parish of Lyne.

For details see County of Selkirk, Lyne, &c., infra, p. 326.

3.—Traquair.

The parish of Traquair had a detached part which was separated from the main portion of the parish by a detached part of the parish of Yarrow. By the Order printed at p. 118 this detached part of the parish of Yarrow, and also another nearly detached part of Yarrow situated north of Minchmuir, have been transferred to the parish of Traquair.

For details as to the subjects transferred see Yarrow, supra, p. 323.

29.—COUNTY OF SELKIRK.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Selkirk had two detached parts. One was part of the parish of Innerleithen and was situated within the county of Peebles. The other was part of the parish of Ashkirk, and was situated within the county of Roxburgh. There were eight parishes situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in adjoining counties, viz., Ashkirk, Galashiels, Innerleithen, Melrose, Peebles, Roberton, Stow, and Selkirk.

The following changes have been effected on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Edinburgh.

1.—Stow.

The parish of Stow was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Edinburgh. A Draft Order was published by which it was proposed to place the whole parish in the county of Edinburgh. The Commissioners, however, by circular dated 23d March 1891, intimated that they had determined not to carry out this proposal, but simply to leave the parish, as at present, partly in two counties. They intimated their opinion, however, that an effort should be made, under section 51 of the Local Government (Scotland), Act, to form a civil parish of Caddonfoot, which should embrace the Selkirkshire part of the parish of Stow.

For an alteration on the area of the parish of Stow, see County of Edinburgh, Heriot, supra, p. 312.

(Sheets 24 and 25 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

B. With the County of Peebles.

1.—Innerleithen.

The parish of Innerleithen was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Peebles. The Selkirkshire part of the parish included (a) a detached part of Selkirkshire, and (b), part of the main portion of the county of Selkirk, these two parts being separated from each other by the Peeblesshire part of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 116 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Peebles.

For details see County of Peebles, Innerleithen, supra, p. 322.

2.—Peebles.

The parish of Peebles was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Peebles. By the Order printed at p. 117 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Peebles.

For details see County of Peebles, Peebles, supra, p. 323.

3.—Lyne & Megget.

The Peeblesshire parish of Lyne & Megget had a detached part situated at the south of the county, and consisting of the old parish of Megget. It was separated by a watershed from the rest of the county of Peebles, and the district drained into St. Mary's Loch and Yarrow Valley. By the Order printed at p. 117 this detached part (Megget) was transferred to the parish of Yarrow and to the county of Selkirk.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Peebles to the county of Selkirk (and at the same time from the parish of Lyne & Megget to the parish of Yarrow):—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Cramilt, ...	House and woodlands, .	Earl of Wemyss and March.

4.—Yarrow.

The Selkirkshire parish of Yarrow had one detached part nearly surrounded by the Peeblesshire parish of Traquair, and another part nearly detached, situated north of Minchmuir. By the Order printed at p. 118 these two parts (fully described in the Order) were transferred to the parish of Traquair and to the county of Peebles.

For details see County of Peebles, Yarrow, supra, p. 323.

C. With the County of Roxburgh.

1.—Ashkirk.

The parish of Ashkirk was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Roxburgh. The Selkirkshire part of the parish consisted of (a) a detached part of the county of Selkirk, and (b) part of the main portion of the county of Selkirk, these two parts being separated from each other by the Roxburghshire part of the parish. By the Order printed at p. 120 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Selkirk.

2.—Galashiels.

The parish of Galashiels was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Roxburgh, the Roxburghshire part of the parish consisting of the old parish of Lindean. By the Order printed at p. 120 the parish of Galashiels was placed wholly within the county of Selkirk. For a change on the parish boundaries see Galashiels, infra, p. 330.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Roxburgh to the county of Selkirk (while remaining in the parish of Galashiels) :—

3.—Melrose.

The parish of Melrose was originally situated entirely in the county of Roxburgh. By Statute, however (30 & 31 Vict., cap. 85, and 39 & 40 Vict., cap. 60), it is secured that whatever part of the parish of Melrose may be at any time included within the police limits of the burgh of Galashiels, shall ipso facto become part of the county of Selkirk. A considerable portion of the parish of Melrose was thus placed within the county of Selkirk. By the Order printed at p. 120, so much of Melrose parish as was at the date of the Order situated within the county of Selkirk (i.e., so much of Melrose parish as lay within the burgh of Galashiels) was transferred to the parish of Galashiels. No change was made on the county boundary, which accordingly is the Galashiels burgh boundary along that part of its course which ran formerly through the parish of Melrose.—(See Galashiels, infra, p. 330.)

4.—Roberton.

The parish of Roberton was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Roxburgh. By the Order printed at p. 121 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Roxburgh.

For details see County of Roxburgh, Roberton, infra, p. 333.

5.—Selkirk.

The parish of Selkirk was situated partly in the county of Selkirk and partly in the county of Roxburgh. By the Order printed at p. 120 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Selkirk, and at the same time a detached part of the parish in Selkirkshire was transferred to the parish of Ashkirk (see Ashkirk).

The following subjects have been transferred by the Order from the county of Roxburgh to the county of Selkirk :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Ettrickbank, . . .	House, offices, servants' houses, policies, and woodlands.	C. H. Scott Plummer of Middlestead.
Do. . . .	Farm, ...	Do.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Ashkirk.

The parish of Ashkirk has been altered in area through the transference to it of the detached part of the parish of Selkirk by the Order printed at p. 120.

The following subject was thus transferred from the parish of Selkirk to the parish of Ashkirk (while remaining in the county of Selkirk) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Todrig, ...	Farm, ...	A. D. R. Pott of Todrig.

2.—Galashiels.

The parish of Galashiels has been altered in area through the addition to it of the Selkirkshire part of the parish of Melrose by the Order printed at p. 120. As already explained (Melrose, supra, p. 328), the part thus transferred to Galashiels is simply that part of the parish of Melrose which at the date of the Order was situated within the police limits of the burgh of Galashiels. The subjects thus transferred are too numerous to detail, being of an urban character, but it will be a sufficient guide to remember that by the Order the burgh of Galashiels, as defined for police purposes at the date of the Order, is placed wholly within the parish of Galashiels. The area thus transferred includes 1 mile 36 chains of the North British Railway line and also Galashiels station.

3.—Selkirk.

The parish of Selkirk had one detached part situated on the south-west border of the parish of Ashkirk. By the Order printed at p. 120 this detached part was transferred to the parish of Ashkirk.

For details see Ashkirk, supra, p. 329.

4.—Yarrow.

The parish of Yarrow had one detached part which was almost surrounded by the Peeblesshire parish of Traquair. It had also a part nearly detached which was in a similar position. By the Order printed at p. 118 both these areas have been transferred to the parish of Traquair and to the County of Selkirk. The parish of Yarrow has been further altered in area by the Order printed at p. 119, which has transferred the detached part of the Peeblesshire parish of Lyne & Megget to the parish of Yarrow and to the county of Selkirk.

(a.) For the subjects thus transferred from the parish of Yarrow to the parish of Traquair, see County of Peebles, Yarrow, supra, p. 323.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Roxburgh contained a detached part of the county of Selkirk, being part of the parish of Ashkirk, and also a detached part of the county of Berwick, which was at the same time a detached part of the parish of Earlston. There were five parishes situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in another county (the county of Selkirk), viz., Ashkirk, Galashiels, Melrose, Roberton, and Selkirk.

The following changes have been effected on the county boundaries :—

A. With the County of Berwick.

1.—Earlston.

The parish of Earlston had a detached part of very small area, which also formed a detached part of the county of Berwick. It was situated within the county of Roxburgh and the parish of Melrose. In connection with the transference of the detached part of the parish of Lauder to the parish of Melrose and to the county of Roxburgh, the opportunity was taken in the Order printed at p. 111 of transferring so much of the parish of Earlston as lay to the west of the Leader Water (including the detached part) to the parish of Melrose and to the county of Roxburgh.

The following subjects were thus transferred from the county of Berwick to the county of Roxburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Earlston to the parish of Melrose) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Craigsford, . .	Cottage and land (0·024 acre).	Unknown. Supposed to be M. C. Trustees of Captain C. Hope and Spouse.
Kedslie, . . .	Farm (part), . . .	Lady Reay.
Carolside, Leadervale,	House and kennels, .	Do.

2.—Lauder.

The parish of Lauder, situated wholly in the county of Berwick, had a detached part west of Leader Water, which formed a projection into the parish of Melrose and the county of Roxburgh. By the Order printed at p. 111 this detached part was transferred to Melrose parish and to Roxburghshire.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Berwick to the county of Roxburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Lauder to the parish of Melrose) :—

3.—Mertoun.

There was a small part of the Berwickshire parish of Mertoun situated on the right bank of the Tweed, east of Dryburgh Abbey, and adjoining the parish of St. Boswells. By the Order printed at p. 112 this small area has been transferred to the parish of St. Boswells and to the county of Roxburgh. It is understood that the area in question has for long been practically treated as part of the parish and county to which it has now been transferred. The following subject was thus transferred from the county of Berwick to the county of Roxburgh (and at the same time from the parish of Mertoun to the parish of St. Boswells) :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Bankhead, . .	Farm (part), ...	Robert Scott.

(Sheet 25 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

B. With the County of Selkirk.

1.—Ashkirk.

The parish of Ashkirk was situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk, the Roxburghshire part of the parish being so situated as to split the Selkirkshire part into two portions, one of which formed a detached part of the county of Selkirk. By the Order printed at p. 120 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Selkirk.

For details, see County of Selkirk, Ashkirk, supra, p. 326, and for a change on the area of the parish, see Ashkirk, supra, p. 329.

2.—Galashiels.

The parish of Galashiels was situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk, the Roxburghshire part being the old parish of Lindean. By the Order printed at p. 120 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Selkirk.

For details, see County of Selkirk, Galashiels, supra, p. 328, and for a change on the area of the parish see Galashiels, supra, p. 330.

3.—Melrose.

As explained above (County of Selkirk, Melrose, supra, p. 328), the parish of Melrose came to be situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk through the extension of the burgh of Galashiels and through the Galashiels Burgh Acts, 1867 and 1886. The Order printed at p. 120 makes no change on the county boundaries, but transfers the Selkirkshire part of the parish to the parish of Galashiels.

See County of Selkirk, Galashiels, supra, p. 330, and Melrose, supra, p. 328.

4.—Roberton.

The parish of Roberton was situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk. By the Order printed at p. 121 the parish has been placed wholly in the county of Roxburgh.

The following subjects have thus (while remaining in the parish of Roberton) been transferred from the county of Selkirk to the county of Roxburgh :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Easter Alemoor, . .	Farm, ...	Mrs Ann Elizabeth Pringle Pattison of Haining.

5.—Selkirk.

The parish of Selkirk was situated partly in the county of Roxburgh and partly in the county of Selkirk. By the Order printed at p. 120 it has been placed wholly in the county of Selkirk.

For the subjects thus transferred see County of Selkirk, Selkirk, supra, p. 329, and for a change on the area of the parish see Ashkirk, supra, p. 329.

II.—PARISH BOUNDARIES.

1.—Hawick and Wilton.

The parish of Wilton had a small detached part situated within the burgh of Hawick and on the Hawick side of the River Teviot. By the Order printed at p. 123 an exchange of territory was effected between these two parishes, whereby the detached part of Wilton was transferred to Hawick, and the portion of Hawick parish described in Clause II. of the Order was transferred to Wilton.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Wilton to the parish of Hawick.

2.—Jedburgh, Oxnam, and Southdean.

The parish of Jedburgh had two detached parts, both of which were situated to the south of the main portion of the parish, and adjoined the parishes of Oxnam and Southdean. By the Order printed at p. 122 the following adjustments of boundaries were effected :—(a.) So much of the detached part of Jedburgh, situated at Old Jedward, as lay within the farm of Mervinslaw has been transferred to Southdean; (b.) Part of the parish of Oxnam, as fully described in Clause I. of the Order, has been transferred to Jedburgh parish, with the result of uniting the detached parts of Jedburgh parish with the main portion thereof; (c.) That part of Jedburgh parish which lay east of the part of the Oxnam Burn described in the Order has been transferred to Oxnam.

The following subjects have thus been transferred :—

(a.) From the parish of Jedburgh to the parish of Southdean.

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.

3.—Melrose.

The parish of Melrose has been considerably altered in area by Orders of the Commissioners. The following is a statement of the alterations, with references to the headings under which may be found details regarding them :—

(a.) By the Order printed at p. 120 the Selkirkshire part of the parish was transferred to the parish of Galashiels.
See County of Selkirk, supra, Melrose, p. 328, and Galashiels, p. 330.

(b.) By the Order printed at p. 111 that part of the parish of Earlston which lay west of the Leader Water has been transferred to the parish of Melrose.
See County of Roxburgh, Earlston, supra, p. 331.

(c.) By the last-mentioned Order the detached part of the parish of Lauder has been transferred to the parish of Melrose.
See County of Roxburgh, Lauder, supra, p. 331.

4.—St. Boswells.

The parish of St. Boswells has, by the Order printed at p. 112, received the addition of a small part of the parish of Mertoun.
See Mertoun, supra, p. 332.

31.—COUNTY OF DUMFRIES.

I.—COUNTY BOUNDARIES.

The county of Dumfries had two parishes situated partly in that county and partly in another county (the county of Lanark), viz., Kirkpatrick-Juxta and Moffat.

The following changes have been made on the county boundaries:—

1.—KIRKPATRICK-JUXTA.

The parish of Kirkpatrick-Juxta, which is shown on the Ordnance Survey maps as wholly in the county of Dumfries, was really situated partly in that county and partly in the county of Lanark. By the Order printed at p. 100 the parish was placed wholly in the county of Dumfries, matters now being in the position in which they are represented on the Ordnance Survey maps.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Lanark to the county of Dumfries (while remaining in the parish of Kirkpatrick-Juxta):—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Whiteholm, . . .	House and land, . .	J. J. Hope Johnstone.
Do. . . .	Shepherd's house, . .	Do.

(Sheets 15 and 16 of the Ordnance Survey maps of Scotland, one-inch scale.)

2.—MOFFAT.

The parish of Moffat, which was situated partly in the county of Dumfries and partly in the county of Lanark, has by the Order printed at p. 101 been placed wholly in the county of Dumfries.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the county of Lanark to the county of Dumfries (while remaining in the parish of Moffat):—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Harthope, . . .	Farm, ...	William Johnstone.
Do. . . .	Shepherd's house, . .	Do.

1.—Dornock and Kirkpatrick-Fleming.

The parish of Dornock had a detached part situated to the north of the main portion of the parish, and separated from it by an intervening portion of the parish of Kirkpatrick-Fleming. By the Order printed at p. 124 this intervening portion (as fully described in the Order) has been transferred to the parish of Dornock, and the main portion of Dornock has thus been united with its detached part.

The following subjects have thus been transferred from the parish of Kirkpatrick-Fleming to the parish of Dornock :—

Place.	Description.	Proprietor.
Floshpark, . . .	House, . . .	John Ramsay.
Scotsfield, . . .	Farm, ...	Do.

FIRST APPENDIX.

CHANGES OF BOUNDARIES IN CONTEMPLATION, BUT NOT YET EFFECTED.

1.—Order made by the Boundary Commissioners, but not yet confirmed, dealing with the Parishes of Canongate, City of Edinburgh, &c.

PARISHES OF CANONGATE, CITY OF EDINBURGH, ST. CUTHBERTS, AND SOUTH LEITH.

WHEREAS certain parts of Canongate parish are, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, detached from the main portion of Canongate parish, videlicet—(1) a part extending to 28 acres or thereby, containing Edinburgh Castle and adjoining the parishes of City of Edinburgh and St. Cuthberts; (2) a part containing 0·44 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near Bristo Place, and adjoining the parishes of City of Edinburgh and St. Cuthberts; and (3) a part containing 0·56 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near Lothian Street and adjoining the parishes of City of Edinburgh and St. Cuthberts:

And whereas certain parts of City of Edinburgh parish are, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, detached from the main portion of City of Edinburgh parish, videlicet:—(1) A part containing 7 acres or thereby, situated at or near Heriothill and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; (2) a part containing 19 acres or thereby, situated at or near Broughton Hall and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; (3) a part containing 14 acres or thereby, situated at or near Henderson Row and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; (4) a part containing 0·35 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near St. Stephen's Church and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; (5) a part containing 5 acres or thereby, situated at or near Elm Row and surrounded by the parish of South Leith; (6) a part containing 1 acre or thereby, situated at or near Royal Terrace and surrounded by the parish of South Leith; (7) a part containing 17 acres or thereby, situated at or near Maryfield and surrounded by the parish of South Leith; (8) a part containing 37 acres or thereby, situated at or near Walker Street and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; (9) a part containing 8 acres or thereby, situated at or near Haymarket Station and surrounded by the parish of St. Cuthberts; and (10) a part containing 3 acres or thereby, situated at or near St. Leonards Hill and adjoining the parishes of Canongate and St. Cuthberts:

And whereas certain parts of St. Cuthberts parish are, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, detached from the main portion of St. Cuthberts parish, videlicet :—(1) A part containing 3 acres or thereby, situated at or near Barony Street and surrounded by City of Edinburgh parish; (2) a part containing 0·77 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near Broughton Street and surrounded by City of Edinburgh parish; (3) a part containing 10 acres or thereby, situated at or near St. James Square and surrounded by City of Edinburgh parish; (4) a part containing 0·25 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near Leith Street and surrounded by City of Edinburgh parish; (5) a part containing 0·66 of an acre or thereby, situated at or near Low Calton and adjoining City of Edinburgh parish and a detached part of South Leith parish; (6) a part containing 6 acres or thereby, situated at or near Calton New Burial Ground and adjoining the parishes of Canongate and South Leith; and (7) a part containing 53 acres or thereby, situated at or near Abbeyhill and adjoining the parishes of Canongate and South Leith:

And whereas certain parts of the parish of South Leith are, as shown on the Ordnance Survey maps, detached from the main portion of the parish of South Leith, videlicet :—(1) A part containing 2 acres or thereby, situated at or near High Calton and surrounded by City of Edinburgh parish; and (2) a part containing 4 acres or thereby, situated at or near North Back of Canongate and adjoining the parishes of Canongate and City of Edinburgh:

And whereas it appears to us, after communicating with the authorities and others interested, and considering all objections to the terms of our Draft Order thereanent, to be expedient to alter and adjust in manner hereinafter provided the boundaries of the said parishes:

Now therefore we, the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland, do hereby, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon us by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, determine and order as follows:

I. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, those portions of Canongate parish, of St. Cuthberts parish, and of the parish of South Leith, which are situated within the boundary line herein-after described, shall cease to be part of their respective parishes, and shall form part of City of Edinburgh parish, viz. :—

A line starting from the point in the centre of the street known as North Back of Canongate, to the south of the Burns Monument, at which the boundary between City of Edinburgh parish and the main portion of the parish of South Leith leaves the boundary of Canongate parish, and running first in a northerly direction along the said boundary between City of Edinburgh parish and the parish of South Leith until it intersects the street known as Regent Road, thence in a north-easterly direction along the centre of the last-mentioned street to a point opposite the centre of Regent northerly direction along the centre of the last-mentioned street and the centre of St. Mary Street until it meets the street known as the Canongate, thence across the last-mentioned street to the south end of Cranston Street, thence along the centre of the last-mentioned street and the centre of the road running underneath the North British Railway lines to the centre of the street known as North Back of Canongate, and thence in an easterly direction along the centre of the last-mentioned street to the point from which the said line started.

II. Subject to the provisions of the said Act the aforesaid detached part of City of Edinburgh parish situated at or near Elm Row, the aforesaid detached part of City of Edinburgh parish situated at or near Maryfield, and so much of the aforesaid detached part of City of Edinburgh parish situated at or near Royal Terrace as is not included within the boundary line described in the first section hereof, shall cease to be part of City of Edinburgh parish and shall form part of South Leith parish; and so much of the remainder of City of Edinburgh parish as is not included within the said boundary line shall cease to be part of City of Edinburgh parish, and shall form part of St. Cuthberts parish.

III. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the aforesaid detached part of Canongate parish containing Edinburgh Castle as is not included within the boundary line described in the first section hereof shall cease to be part of Canongate parish, and shall form part of St. Cuthberts parish.

IV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the aforesaid detached part of the parish of St. Cuthberts situated at or near Calton New Burying-Ground, and the aforesaid detached part of the parish of St. Cuthberts situated at or near Abbeyhill, shall cease to be part of the parish of St. Cuthberts, and shall form part of the parish of Canongate.

V. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the aforesaid detached part of St. Cuthberts parish situated at Abbeyhill as is within the St. Cuthberts & Dean School District shall cease to be part of that district, and shall form part of the school district of the burgh of Edinburgh, but save as in this section mentioned nothing contained in this Order shall affect the school district of the burgh of Edinburgh, or the powers, duties, and liabilities of the School Board of the burgh of Edinburgh, or the mode of electing the said School Board.

VI. This Order shall come into operation on the 15th day of May 1892.

Draft Order, Edinburgh Gazette 24th April 1891, p. 449.
Order 28th September 1891, Edinburgh Gazette 29th September 1891, p. 1021.
It is understood that this Order is unopposed, and merely awaits confirmation by Her Majesty in Council.

Explanation.

The change of boundaries proposed in this Order does not seem to require explanation. Clause I. gives the new boundary of City of Edinburgh parish, which can be easily followed on the six-inch Ordnance maps. That line once discovered, Clause II. is readily understood. Clauses III. and IV. also only require a reference to the six-inch maps.

2.—Draft Order by the Boundary Commissioners dealing with the Burgh of Glasgow, &c.

COUNTIES OF LANARK AND RENFREW.

BURGH AND CITY OF GLASGOW AND BURGH OF RENFREW.

PARISHES OF EASTWOOD, GOVAN, AND RENFREW.

WHEREAS the parish of Govan is situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew:

And whereas the burgh and city of Glasgow is situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew:

And whereas the burgh of Renfrew is situated partly in the county of Lanark and partly in the county of Renfrew, the part in the county of Lanark being situated in the parish of Govan:

And whereas it appears to us, after communicating with the authorities and others interested, to be expedient to alter and adjust the boundaries of the said counties of Lanark and Renfrew, and of the parishes of Eastwood, Govan, and Renfrew in manner hereinafter provided:

Now therefore we, the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland, do hereby, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon us by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, determine and order as follows:

I. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Govan and county of Lanark as is situated within the police limits of the burgh of Renfrew shall cease to be part of that parish and of that county, and shall form part of the parish of Renfrew and of the county of Renfrew.

II. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, that part of the parish of Govan in the county of Renfrew which is bounded on the east by the boundary of the burgh and city of Glasgow as defined by section 4 of the City of Glasgow Act, 1891, on the south by the parish of Eastwood, on the west by the parish of Abbey, and on the north partly by the parish of Abbey and partly by the existing boundary between the county of Lanark and the county of Renfrew shall cease to be part of the parish of Govan, and shall form part of the parish of Eastwood.

III. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the burgh and city of Glasgow (as defined by section 4 of the City of Glasgow Act, 1891) as is situated in the county of Renfrew shall cease to be part of that county, and shall, except as hereinafter provided, form part of the county of Lanark.

IV. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, the parish of Govan as altered in area by this Order shall, except as hereinafter provided, be wholly included in and form part of the county of Lanark.

V. The present County Councillors for the police burgh of Kinning Park shall cease to act as members of the County Council of Renfrew, and shall, until the next election of a County Council, be additional members of the County Council of Lanark, with all the powers, rights, and duties of County Councillors for a police burgh.

VI. For the purposes of Registration of Writs in the Divisions of the General Register of Sasines for Scotland, the following provisions shall take effect:—(a) The portions of the parishes of Cathcart and Eastwood situated within the boundaries of the burgh and city of Glasgow as defined by the City of Glasgow Act, 1891, and transferred by Article III. hereof from the county of Renfrew shall be included in and form part of the county of the barony and regality of Glasgow. (b) The parish of Govan as altered in area by this Order shall, notwithstanding Article IV. hereof, continue to be included in the county of the barony and regality of Glasgow, and the portions of the said parish disjoined therefrom by Articles I. and II. hereof shall cease to be part of the said county of the barony and regality of Glasgow, and shall form part of the county of Renfrew.

VII. Nothing herein contained shall affect any action or proceeding instituted, raised, or depending, before any Court, civil or criminal, previous to the date on which this Order comes into operation, and the same may be proceeded with, determined, and followed forth by diligence or otherwise as if this Order had not been made.

VIII. All proceedings under the Acts regulating the licensing of public houses in Scotland relative to the granting of licenses to endure for the year beginning at Whitsunday 1892 in any district affected by this Order shall take place before the Magistrates to whose jurisdiction such district is by this Order transferred, and shall be competent to them only.

IX. This Order shall come into opperation for the purposes of Article VIII. hereof as soon as confirmed, and for all other purposes on the 15th day of May 1892.

Draft Order, Edinburgh Gazette 3d November 1891, p. 1153.

Explanation.

The following are the changes proposed to be made by this Draft Order :—

1. There is a small part of the burgh of Renfrew (the police and the parliamentary boundaries of the burgh being the same) which is situated in the county of Lanark and in the parish of Govan. This small area is proposed to be transferred to the county of Renfrew and to the parish of Renfrew, so that the burgh of Renfrew shall be situated wholly in the county of Renfrew and in the parish of Renfrew. The subjects thus proposed to be transferred are all within burgh. (Clause I. of the Draft Order.)

2. There is a small tongue of the parish of Govan, lying on the north border of the parish of Eastwood, which has been left outside the new boundary of the city of Glasgow. This small tongue is situated in Renfrewshire, and it is proposed to continue it in that county and to transfer it from the parish of Govan to the Renfrewshire parish of Eastwood. (Clause II. of the Order.)

The small area thus transferred consists of—

PLACE.	PROPRIETOR.
Land on the Estate of Pollok, . .	Sir John Stirling Maxwell.
Part of the Glasgow and South-Western Canal Railway line (35½ chains), .	Glasgow & South-Western Railway Co.

3. The city of Glasgow as defined by the City of Glasgow Act, 1891, is partly in Lanarkshire and partly in Renfrewshire. Clause III. proposes to put the whole of the extended city in the county of Lanark. The subjects so to be transferred are far too numerous to detail. They are situated partly in the parish of Govan (Polmadie, Strathbungo, Pollokshields, Pollokshields East), partly in the parish of Cathcart (Crosshill, Crossmyloof, Langside, Mount Florida), and partly in the parish of Eastwood (Shawlands). If the proposal contained in the Clause becomes law, it will only be necessary to ascertain whether a subject is within the city of Glasgow in order to discover in what county it is placed. For Registration of Writs in the Register of Sasines all the areas thus transferred will be within the County of the Barony and Regality of Glasgow. (Clause VI.)

4. The effect of the change just described would be to place the parish of Govan wholly in Lanarkshire, with the exception of the police burgh of Kinning Park, which would remain in Renfrewshire. Clause IV. would, however, place the parish wholly in Lanarkshire, and would thus transfer the whole of the police burgh of Kinning Park from Renfrewshire to Lanarkshire.

3.—Draft Order by the Boundary Commissioners dealing with the Counties of Aberdeen and Kincardine, &c.

COUNTIES OF ABERDEEN AND KINCARDINE.

PARISHES OF MARYCULTER AND PETERCULTER.

WHEREAS part of the parish of Peterculter and of the county of Aberdeen, containing 44 acres or thereby, situated on the right bank of the River Dee at or near Insch of Culter, and adjoining the parish of Maryculter in the county of Kincardine, is detached or nearly detached from the main portion of the said parish of Peterculter and of the county of Aberdeen:

And whereas it appears to us, after communicating with the authorities and others interested, to be expedient to deal with the said detached or nearly detached part in manner hereinafter provided:

Now therefore we, the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland, do hereby, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon us by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, determine and order as follows:

I. Subject to the provisions of the said Act, so much of the parish of Peterculter and of the county of Aberdeen as lies to the south of a line drawn down the medium filum of the River Dee from the point southwest of Pittengullies at which the boundary between the counties of Aberdeen and Kincardine leaves the medium filum of the said river, till the said line again reaches the last-mentioned boundary, (being the aforesaid detached or nearly detached part of the parish of Peterculter and of the county of Aberdeen) shall cease to be part of the said parish and county and shall form part of the parish of Maryculter and the county of Kincardine.

II. This Order shall come into operation on the 15th day of May 1892.

Draft Order, Edinburgh Gazette 11th December 1891, p. 1385.

Explanation.

The area proposed to be affected by this Draft Order is a small part of the county of Aberdeen (parish of Peterculter) which lies south of the River Dee at Inch of Culter. If the proposal is carried out the following subjects will be transferred from the county of Aberdeen to the county of Kincardine (and at the same time from the parish of Peterculter to the parish of Maryculter):—

PLACE.	DESCRIPTION.	PROPRIETOR.
Estate of Culter—
Inch of Culter, . .	Houses, land, and ferry, .	R. W. Duff of Fetteresso.
Do. . .	Land, ...	Mrs. Maria M. Duff.

4.—City of Aberdeen, Counties of Aberdeen and Kincardine, Parishes of Aberdeen and Nigg.

By the City of Aberdeen Act, 1891, the city of Aberdeen is made to embrace a portion of the county of Kincardine and of the parish of Nigg situated at Torry. It has been suggested as desirable that the city of Aberdeen should be placed wholly in the county of Aberdeen, by transferring this portion of the parish of Nigg from the county of Kincardine to the county of Aberdeen. No decision is known to have been come to by the Commissioners. The proposal may take either of two forms—(1.) It may simply declare that so much of the county of Kincardine as is included within the limits of the city of Aberdeen shall cease to be part of that county and shall form part of the county of Aberdeen; or (2) it might in addition declare that the area so transferred (being part of the parish of Nigg) shall cease to be part of the parish of Nigg, and shall form part of the parish of Aberdeen. In both cases the area dealt with is the same. The first has the effect of placing the parish of Nigg partly in two counties, while the second remedies this and makes the county and parish boundaries coincide. The area simply consists of that part of the city of Aberdeen which lies south of the River Dee.

SECOND APPENDIX.

Registration of Certain Writs (Scotland) Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. cap. 9).

An Act to make provisions in regard to the Registration of certain Writs in the Divisions of the General Register of Sasines for Scotland.—[11*th May* 1891.]

WHEREAS the alterations of the boundaries of certain counties made by orders of the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland in pursuance of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, will affect the registration of writs in the appropriate divisions of the General Register of Sasines for Scotland, and such orders will, unless Parliament shall otherwise determine, come into operation on or before the fifteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one:

52 & 53 Vict., cap. 50.

And whereas certain of said orders have received and others await confirmation as provided in the recited Act:

And whereas it is expedient that for the purposes of registration as aforesaid the coming into operation of all such orders should be postponed to a date which may be applicable to all orders made or to be made by the said Commissioners:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Provisions in regard to the registration of certain writs in the General Register of Sasines for Scotland.

I. With respect to the registration of writs in the General Register of Sasines for Scotland, the following provisions shall have effect, that is to say:—

(1.) The orders of the Boundary Commissioners for Scotland made or to be made in pursuance of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, notwithstanding the dates specified in such orders respectively, and notwithstanding the confirmation of any of such orders as provided in the recited Act,[1] shall, for the purpose of regulating the registration of writs in the appropriate divisions of the General Register of Sasines for Scotland, and for that purpose only, come into operation on but not before the fifteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two:

[1] 52 & 53 Vict., cap. 50, section 49, sub-section 3.

(2.) It shall not be necessary that separate divisions of the General Register of Sasines be kept for the counties of Orkney and Zetland : [2]

(3.) All enactments in this or any other Act and anything done thereunder affecting the registration of writs relating to any lands in Scotland shall be deemed and taken to apply to the registration of writs relating to the teinds of such lands : [3]

(4.) Nothing contained in this Act shall invalidate any writ recorded in the General Register of Sasines for Scotland before the passing of this Act, or affect injuriously any rights depending on such writs, or, except in so far as herein expressly provided, interfere with the operation of any order of the said Commissioners.

II. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Registration of Certain Writs (Scotland) Act, 1891. Short title.

THIRD APPENDIX.

MEMORANDUM as to the effect on the Settlement of Paupers of Orders of the Boundary Commissioners.

In view of the decision of the Court of Session on 17th July 1891, in Special Case, "The Parochial Board of Borthwick v. The Parochial Board of Temple," and in view of the different opinions held regarding the effect of Orders of the Boundary Commissioners on parochial settlement, the Commissioners think it right to state for the guidance of Parochial Boards the principles which, in their opinion, would govern the decision of such questions if no financial adjustment were made under section 50 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889.

These principles are as follows :—

> For the purposes of the law relating to the settlement of paupers, where an area has been transferred by an Order of the Commissioners from the parish of A to the parish of B, birth in that area prior to the date of transference will be deemed birth in parish A, and birth in that area on or after the date of transference will be deemed birth in parish B. Similarly, residence in that area prior to the date of transference will be deemed residence in parish A, and residence in that area on or after the date of transference will be deemed residence in parish B.

Thus, supposing the district of O to have been transferred from the parish of A to the parish of B at 15th May 1891, we have the following results :—

1. All persons born in O prior to 15th May 1891 have a birth settlement in the parish of A.
2. All persons born in O on or after 15th May 1891 have a birth settlement in the parish of B.
3. All persons residing in O who at 15th May 1891 had a settlement by residence in the parish of A retain that settlement until they have lost it by non-residence for the statutory period within the parish of A as altered in area. Take the case of a person who has resided in O since 1881, and continues to reside there till 1899. At 15th May 1891 such a person had a residential settlement in the parish of A. He will retain that settlement until 16th May 1895.

Digitized by Google

He will then lose it and his birth settlement will revive. But on 15th May 1896 he will have acquired a residential settlement in the parish of B.

It is hardly necessary to state that an Order of the Commissioners does nothing to transfer liability for paupers chargeable at the date of the transference effected by the Order. These are existing liabilities which may be dealt with under section 50 of the Act.

The Commissioners intend that, as a general rule, the principles above explained should form the basis of their awards, and they think it well that Parochial Boards desiring the intervention of the Commissioners under section 50 of the Act should have this in view in preparing their claims.

Law Books published by

Kirkpatrick on Evidence.

A Digest of the Scottish Law of Evidence. By JOHN KIRKPATRICK, M.A., LL.B., Advocate. Second Edition, revised and enlarged. Crown 8vo. 8s.

"May now be regarded as a standard work on the subject."—Scottish Law Review.

"Its undoubted accuracy makes it peculiarly suited for the use of students."—Scottish Leader.

M'Kechnie and Lyell's Court of Session Styles:

Being Forms of Summonses, Notes of Suspension, Petitions, &c. Compiled by D. M'KECHNIE, M.A., and W. D. LYELL, M.A., Advocates. 8vo. 16s.

Dewar's Liquor Laws.

The Liquor Laws of Scotland, including the Licensing and Excise Enactments presently in force; with Report by Royal Commission on Grocers' Licenses, ruling decisions of the Supreme Court from 1862 to 1884, and Explanatory Notes and Index. By DAVID DEWAR, Chief-Constable, Dundee. Crown 8vo. 5s.

"Has been put together with much ability, and will be found a most satisfactory compendium of the law."—Dundee Advertiser.

"Invaluable to licensing and prosecuting authorities."—Scotsman.

Spink's Handbook of Procedure and Redress at Law:

Comprising the Procedure of the Civil Courts of Scotland and in the House of Lords; Treatise on Actions and Diligence, and Procedure and Redress under Special Statutes; Dictionary of Terms, &c.; with Forms and Accounts of Costs. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

Mackenzie on Cessio.

Manual of the Law of Cessio. With an Appendix containing the Statutory Provisions and Forms for all matters occurring in the Process of Cessio. By A. MACKENZIE, Solicitor. 8vo. 5s.

"With such a manual the trustee ought to be well furnished with all the information he needs."—Journal of Jurisprudence.

"The work is brought well up to date by the incorporation of recent decisions, and is in every way a practically useful handbook."—Scotsman.

Seton's Registration Acts.

A Practical Analysis of the Acts relating to the Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages in Scotland (17 and 18 Vict. cap. 80, 18 Vict. cap. 29, and 23 and 24 Vict. cap. 85), with an Appendix containing the Statutes, Sheriff Forms, Tables of Burghs, Sheriffdoms, Fees, Penalties, &c., and a copious Index. By GEORGE SETON, Advocate. Fifth edition. 8vo. 7s. 6d. nett.

Burns on Conveyancing.

Lorimer's Joint-Stock Companies.

An Outline of the Law of Joint-Stock Companies. By J. CAMPBELL LORIMER, LL.B., Advocate. Crown 8vo. 5s.

"It is called an 'Outline,' but it is more than an outline, for it contains within itself many of the materials for filling it up, and indicates very fully where the rest of such material is to be found, and it wants that sketchiness which is the failing of so many 'outlines.'"—Journal of Jurisprudence.

Report of the Trial of the Dynamitards before the High Court of Justiciary, at Edinburgh, December 1883, for Treason-Felony. By C. T. COUPER, Advocate. 8vo. 1884. 9s.

Moncreiff on Review.

A Treatise on the Law of Review in Criminal Cases by the High Court and Circuit Court of Justiciary, and on Procedure in Criminal Cases in Inferior Courts in Scotland, including the Text of the Summary Procedure Act 1864, and the Summary Prosecutions Appeal (Scotland) Act 1875, with full Notes and Cases, and an Appendix containing Forms, Tables of Fees, &c. By Hon. H. J. MONCREIFF (Lord Wellwood). 8vo. 15s.

"This is as honest and painstaking a piece of workmanship as has been contributed to the legal literature of Scotland for many a day."—Journal of Jurisprudence.

A Practical Manual for Justices of the Peace and other Magistrates in Scotland, with Introduction, References to Decided Cases, Acts of Parliament, and Forms of Proceedings and Procedure. By ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Writer, Glasgow. 8vo. 2s. 6d. nett.

Styles of Writs in the Sheriff Courts of Scotland. By JAMES FORREST, Advocate, and R. B. SHEARER, Writer, Greenock. 8vo. 12s.

"The largest and most comprehensive Style Book yet produced for the Sheriff Courts."—Scotsman.

THE NEW LAW MAGAZINE.

The Juridical Review: Published Quarterly. Subscription, 12s. Vols. 1 and 2, in half morocco, price 12s. each.

Each number of the Juridical Review contains a Photogravure Portrait of some distinguished member of the legal profession, and has, in addition to its special Articles, short Articles on current Legal Topics, Reviews of contemporary Legal Literature, and careful notes on the leading Cases of the quarter. All articles are signed by the authors.

"Will rank among the foremost legal periodicals of the world."—Scotsman.
