To the worſchipfull and my muche honored freind, M. Andreton, Theſe.

Although many deſignes have bein defeated, yit that of Ireland holds weil; and now, oure laſt plot workis as hopefullie as that of Ireland. We muſt bear with ſum thing in the man, his will is ſtrong enough, as long as he is fed with hopes; the woman is trew to ws and real, hir counſall about hir is veray good. I doubt not bot to ſend yow by the nixt veray joyfull newis. For the preſent, oure riche enemeis, Pym, Hampden, Stroud, Hollis and Haſelrig are blemiſhed, challegit for no leſs then treſſoun; before I wreit nixt we doubt not bot to have them in the tower, or ther heidis from ther ſhulders. If we can bring them wnder, the Proteſtant will either fall in with ws generallie, or els, if they do not, they ar ſo indifferent, that, either by fair or foul meinis, we ſhall be able to command them. The miſchevous Londoneris and apprenticeſes may do ws ſum hurt for preſent; but we neid not muche feir them, thay do nothing orderlie, bot tumultuouſſie; therefore we doubt not bot to have them wnder command after one brunt, for oure party is ſtronge

MOST HOLIE FATHER,

I have received your Hollynes' letter with that acceptatioun and respect whiche the love and pietie wherewith yow wreit it meriteth. And in particular, it wes to my gryte contentment, to heir related the never enuche praifes of my antecessoris, whiche your Holines thair exponed for my imita- tioun. Whereas, trew it is, thay oftentymes exponed thair fortunes and lives to perrellis, only that the Chriftean faith may be propagatit, ther courage also being no les whairwith thay assured the enemeis of the cros of Christ, making continued war against them. And myself wold have ane speciall care, that peace and unities, whiche hath for many yeires abandoned the Chriftean world, may be reduced to true concord. For whereas the common enemy of peace, and the father of discord, hath labored to saw bait and dissentioun amonges the Chriftean princes, in the same sort do I be- lieve that it appertanes to the glory of Christ to labor ane unities; and I hold it no les credet nor honor to be descendit from renowned princes, then to be ther emulator and imitator in those holie and religious customes quhairin thay florished. And it aideth me muche to have knowne the will of the King my father, and the gryte desyre he hath to forder his intentioun with all his pouer; for it greiveth him muche to consider the great difasteris and cruell bloodheddis whiche follouis by dif- cordis amongis Chriftean princes. The apprehensioun whiche your Holines hath conceived, and the judgement yow have maid of the desyre whiche I have to mak ane allyance with the Catholik prince, by maner of matrimony with his sifter, is moft conformable to the charetie and gryte prudence of your Holynes; for it is certane I wold not labor fo ernesly to lock myfelf in this indifolubill band of matrimony with ane perfone whose religioun I fould hate or miflyke. Wherefore your Holynes may perfuade yourfelf that my mynd is now, and fall be, far from intending ony thing that can be contrary to the Catholik Romane religioun, bot rather I will feik all occasionis that fuche jealousie as may be conceived of me may be univerfalie extinguifhed out of the myndis of all, and to procure (as we all confefs) one true God and Chrift crucified, fo in like maner we may all profefs one and the fame faythe; for attaneing quhairof I will refufe no travell, thogh to the hafard of my kingdome and lyfe. It remanes only for me to acknowledge (as is moft fit) the fingular favor your Holynes laillie vouchsafed me by your letter, befeeching God to give your Holynes in this lyf ane prosperous fucces, and in the other that felicitie myfelf waitis for and defires.

From Madrid, July 8, 1623.

Whither this letter wes writtin by his Majestie, whill as he was yit bot young Prince, to the Pope as ane anfuer to his letter, or not, I know not; or being writtin, how the fame could now be found, and whither out of Rome or els quhair, is ftrange; bot howfoever it wes, it is fpreed abroad amonges the kinges fubjectis, quhairof I had this coppie, and bred no litle fufpitioun of the kinges owne religioun, for all that he could fpeik, fuere or wreit, as herefter do appeir.

Ye have [before] the maner of the kingis departour, quhair it is to be obfervit he gave out mony giftis and penfions befoir his going, amongis whiche 100 lib. fterling wes grantit to the lait deposit bifchop of Aberdene (now leiving in England) yeirlie; bot ane uther manis name wes borrouit thairto. The kingis provifion cam till Holyroodhous from England, and yit, or he went, his houfholding and uther expenffis drew wp to 700,000 merkis, wairit and beftowit be the eftaites, quhilk wes to be repayit out of the kinges rentis in Scotland. Divers thocht this wés ane account of extraordinarie charges, (fuppofe he had gottin no provifion out of England) during his abode heir. This 100 lib. fterlinge wes ordainit to be givin yeirlie out of the bifchoprik of Aberdene to the fornamed bifchop. Sie more of him herefter; and fie more of the kinge.

The Committe of Eftaites of Parliament, daylie fitting at Edinburgh, thocht it not fit that ony penfoun fould be payit whill firft the kingis owne debt of fevin hundreth thoufand markis war payit, and whatfoever gift or penfoun grantit might be controllit be thame and Lordis of Exchequer. Sie the uther fyde anent Marfchall.

Sir James Douglas, brother to the lord marques of Douglas, be patent had pouer to levie out of Scotland 2000 foldieris, who voluntarlie wold go with him to France Capitane Robert Keith, brother to the erll Marfchall, and capitane Gordoun of Tulloche wes imployit, and raifit sum foldiouris in this countrie to that service.

Ye hard befor anent the customes of Aberdene and Banff. The erll Marfchall standis to his gift ratefeit in parliament. Sie the unimprinted Actis. Aberdene, haveing ane subtak flowing fra him, fendis over ther commissiouneris to Edinburgh to bak the famen. Marfchall him self rydis over; Patrik Leflie gois also. The mater is agitat befor the Committe of Estaites of Parliament; Sir William Dik craveing the customes of Aberdene and Banf to be dew to him, als weill as the rest of all the customes of Scotland, (be informatioun and instigatioun of the said Patrik Leflie, as wes largelie spokin) utheruayes he wold advance no more moneyis to the publict. The erll Marfchall anfuers in prefens of the Committe, that he had gottin ane gift for payment of 5000 lib. sterling restand to his goodfire, a trew debt, ratefeit in parliament, quhilk is the maist the lawis of Scotland may do for his securitie; and if thay will bring bak the kingis gift ordourlie past and ratefeit be parliament, he hes no more affureans for all his landis and estait, bot may be takin fra him als weill as thir customes, quhairof he had alreddy set ane subtak to the toune of Aberdene, quhilk with his honor he can not quyte, bot hyde be the famen. The Committe of Estaites hard the Erll, but he receavit no satisfactorie anfuers; quhairupone he went to dur malcontent. Now it is heir to be rememberit, that this Committe of Estaites apointit to sit daylie in Edinburgh in place of parliament, for reulling of sic buffines as could not be exped in face of full parliament, consistit of nobles, barronis, burgeffis, quhilkis now ar the thrie Estaites, and that of the prymest and cheifest covenanters. This Patrik Leflie being ane of the first, he wes thairby ane of this Committe, who sat with thame as ane burges; he had thairby the favoris of that estait, and for Sir Williame Dik, who wes wirking in his name this wark; then he had the moyan of the marques of Argile, the erll of Rothas' freindis, the erll of Lyndfay, the general Leflie erll of Levin, and what they could do for the said Patrik Leflie; so that in end he over-balanced the erll, do what he could, and wan his poynt, contrair to law, equitie and reffone, to the gryte greif of Aberdene, (except his owne factioun thairintill) who, as is said, had sent him over as thair commissiouner to have gottin ane gift of ane tak of ther owne customes, and had allowit to him four thousand merkis for his onuaiting, charges and expensis; bot whill as the toune of Aberdene lookit he wes dealing for thame, it wes thocht he delt for him self, quhairby the erll Marfchall wes then preferrit befor him to the saidis customes, quhairupone the said Patrik Leflie took this cours to cros this noble erll in his juft acquirit richt. Thus thay contendit for the fame moft wilfullie; fie more heirefter; the toune of Abirdene doing all what thay could be Mr. Mathow Lumfden ther commiffioner, to bak the erll aganes the faid Patrik Leslie, who had nichtellie wrongit thame, and confumet thair menis, as faid is, viz. the faid Patrik Leslie.

Now gryte tunnultis and uproares in London anent Epifcopacie, the Hous of Commonis intending to have thame fimpliciter abolifhit, utheris agane of the Upper Hous aganes the famen. The apprenticeiffis of London ryfis in armes, crying, Doun with Epifcopacie! The kinges owne gaird and his trayned foldiouris about medles with thame, and killis fum of thir apprenticeiffis. In end, this trecherous tumult is pacifeit; quhairupone follout ane new covenant amonges fum of the nobles, bifchopis and utheris, concluding to defend the liberties of the bifchopis, according to the lawis, aganes the Hous of Commonis, inventaris and devyferis of this buffines. It is fuorne and fubfcrivit, as wes reportit, bot the marques of Hammiltoun and erll of Lanerk his brother being urgit refufit to fubfcrive the fame, becaus thay had alreddie fubfcrivit the Scottis covenant. It wes anfuert, he wes erll of Cambrige in England, and fo ane of ther nobles, who fould concur and affift with thame. He ftill refufit, whairby he is daylie more and more weill knowne to be the countrie bot not the kingis man, as his Majestie trusted and as him felf outwardlie profeffit, and thairby daylie and juftlie drawin in fufpicioun, and at laft leaves the king and keipis the parliament, as ye may heirefter heir.

Now printed paperis daylie cuming from London, called Diurnall Occurrences, declairing what is done and actit in Parliament, Upper and Lower Houfis, quhilk is tedious heir to be infert. Alluaies it wes reportit that the king commandit Sir Williame Balfour, capitane of the Tour of London, to be removit, quhilk wes obeyit, (bot befoir he cam out, the hail cannons wes difmounted and unferviceable) and the king puttis in his place ane Frenche-man callit collonell Biron, at leift to be livetennant in the Tour. The apprenticeiffis, doubtles be instigatioun ftill of the Lower Hous, agane gettis wp in Londoun, crying out, and craveing collonell Lumford, with fum uther commanderis in the Tour to be removed, being the kinges loyall men, quhilk the king grantit for fatling of this tumult. Sie more heirefter. There was tuo or thrie like fturris of the apprenticeiffis, to the kinges heiche anger, who now begins to go and cum with ftroing garde for his owne faiftie.

About the tent of Januar 1642, the ballies of Old Aberdene, Jon Forbes and Thomas Merfer, be tollerans of doctor Goold principall, caufit meffounes throw down to the ground the bishchopis dwcat (quhilk indeid wes rvinous and improfitable) to be stanes to the bigging of ane Song scooll, quhilk be fum was not thocht sacrilegious; bot yit wes evill done as utheris thocht.

About the 20 of January, thair cam to parliament tuelf English bishchopis with ane petitione, declairing, according to the English lawis, the bishchopis fould convene at parliamentis and posses ther owne places, bot to this parliament they durst not resort nor cum, for feir of ther lyves; and therefore in presens of the king, the lordis and peeris, protestit solemnatlie, what wes actit in parliament sen the 27 of December fould be null and of nane availl, or what fould be done heirefter in ther absens fould lykuaies be null, becaus thay durst not cum to the Hous of Commons for feir of ther lives, being by multitudes of unknowne peopill daylie bosted, manassid and threatned in thair cuming to that honorable Hous of Parliament to performe thair service. Efter this petition and protestatioun wes red, the bishchopis wes removit, who went to ther lodgings; the Upper Hous send down the sament to the Hous of Commons, who took this lafull petition and pregnant protestatioun (wirking to turn all ther travellis to nocht) so heighlie, that incontinent, but more advys of the king or Upper Hous, thay send out the Blak Rod, who tuke and apprehendit everie one of thir 12 bishchopes out of ther lodgings, and brocht thame to the Hous of Commons, who, as ther forme is, wes all set down upone ther kneis at the bar. Efter sum speiches, the lerned and weil beloved bishchop of Durham, with ane uther bishchop of good note, war committed to the Blak Rod, and the uther ten war committed to the Tour. Thay are daylie accused in face of his Majestie and parliament of bothe houffes upon this petition and protestatioun. They maid ther owne appoliageis in defens thereof, quhilk wes litle thocht of; thay desire to be put to libertie; denyit and refusit by the Hous of Commons. In end, thay ar foirfault in ther haill possessionis, goodis and geir, and degraduat from ther offices and digneteis, aucht quhairof had sum competent meinis to sustene thair lives, and uther four, more evill exponit, had less.

Gryte crueltie in Ireland, and inkill blood spilt of the English and Scottis puritane protestantis; fyre and suord went almost throw the haill land but mercie of sex or kynd, young or auld, man, woman, or chyld, all put to death, and ther goodis spolzeit. Thay rage at our covenant, compellit thairto be ther owne Irish parliament, holdin be the kinges commissioneris of England, for ther parliament is subdelegat to the English parliament, and whatever is enactit or done in this Irish parliament is by the English commissioneris, and be directioun and at command of the counfall or parliament of England, who now had givin warrand aganes the natives and utheris to fueir and subscribe the covenant, mynding to bring the kingis haill dominiouns wnder ane covenant, quhilk bred mekill forrow and truble schortlie amonges the Irishes, vexatioun and truble both to Scottis and Englis, as is heirefter notit, and as ye may sie befor anent ther owne covenant.

Capiten Forbes alias Kaird, of whome ye hard before, be moyan of sum freindis, is, efter long impriffonment, about the 22 of Januar, fet to libertie out of the tolbuith of Edinburgh.

Saturday 22 of Januar, the lord Sinkler returnit bak fra Edinburgh to Aber-dene to his foulderis. Sie more heirefter, where he and his foldiouris removes.

Now the Committe of Estaites of Parliament gois on upone tryall aganes James erll of Montros, Archibald lord Naper, Sir George Stirling of Keir and Sir Archibald Steuart of Blakhall, as alledgit incyndiareis ; Johne erll of Tra-quhair, Sir Robert Spotiswod of Donypace knight, Sir Johne Hay of Lands lait clerk register, (Doctor Walter Baccanquell and Jon bishop of Rofs, sum-tyme being fugitives and absent) as haveing bene plotteris, devyferis and machinatoris of courfes aganes the publict well, as is fet down in the 33 and 34 actis of K. Charles' second parliament. What wes done and tryit aganes thame or ather of thame not reveillit, bot keipit secret ; yit reportit that Traquhair was convict in fyve capitall poyntis, bot his sentence referrit to the king.

Sir Philem Onell, now generall of the Irish, as ye hard befor, growis daylie more and more gryter in forces, and without resistans makis havok of all his enemeis ; and, as report past, the haill countrie neir conquest. Sie more heirefter.

It is said, the king sent to the Hous of Commons tuo of his owne domestick servitouris, callit Sir Williame Fleming and Mungo Morray, desiring sum fyve of ther number to be impriffoned for tressoun committed be thame againt his Majestie ; quhilk wes not obeyit. The king quiklie directit to caus feall the trunkis of these fyve persones, that none sould be opnit whill they were sichtit. The Lower Hous agane, at ther owne hand, in misregaird of the king, violentlie brak wp these trunkis, to his heighe displefoure and disho-nour. The names of thir fyve is Pym, Hampden, Stroud, Hollis and Haslrig.
His Majestie, seing his auctoritie so abusit, resolvit to quyte the parliament and rydis fra Wastminster to one of his owne houffis, Southampton, haveing with him his Quene, Prince Pallatyne his sifter sone, the Duke of Lennox, with sum others, and his owne trainit band consisting of 500 men. Thus, with greif and miscontentment he leaves the parliament. It is said, the marques of Hammiltoun made choise to attend the parliament, and left the king, as he that wes no gryte courteour as he wont. Sie more heirefter.

Sunday 23 Januar, thair rais ane heighe and mighty wynd, quhilk blew over the corps de guard, biggit at the cros of New Aberdene, and hurt and bruist sum fyve or six of Sinckleris foldiouris lying therein on the night, quhair, by ther fyre the tymber wes kendled, and had almost put the toun in fyre; bot the tounes men quiklie gadderit, drounit out the fyre and releivit the foldiouris. It is said, the same corps de guard thairefter wes blawin fra the place quhairon it stood to the erll Marisballis yet, quhilk apeiris to be William Scottis malyfoun, for it wes biggit all of his tymber, him self being out of the countrie.

In this moneth of January there wes hard veray unufuall heiche wyndis, quhilk doubtles did gryte skaith be sea, amanges whiche the merchandis of Abirdene loist above 100 tun of Frenshe wyne in ane Leith ship. The lyk wyndis in Februar.

Friday 28 Januar, the lord Aboyne now cam from England home to Edinburgh, who had biddin out of the countrie all this tyme since the day of Sie more of him heirefter.

The second of February at midnicht, thair rais heir in Abirdene ane extraordinary heiche wynd, with fireflaucht, rayne and weit. This vehement wynd continewit heir upone the morne and uther morne in most wonderfull maner. The riveris of Die and Ithen, through heiche floodis, overflowit ther wonted limitis in this moneth and January both. Die surpassed in speat the keyheid, and Ithen grew so great, that it drounit out the fyres in sum mens bouffis dwelling in Ellon and Newbrughe, far beyond the wonted cours; many thinking thir to be prodigious tokens.

Befides in Mar, about that pairt called Bankafair, the countrie people, about this tyme, hard nichtlie touking of drumis, beginning about the fky going to, and continewing quhill 8 houris at evin. The noys wes feirfull, for thay wold heir marches perfytlie toukit, as if thair had bene ane army in order. This wes not weill thocht of nather be honest peciable men, as it over weill provit, to the overthrow of the hous of Drum. Sie heirefter.

Ye hard of the lord Sinckleris cuming bak to Abirdene. Mr. Robert Farquhar payit the tounes people in auld myttie meill for his foldiouris entertenement, who had contynewit there since the day of anno Now they raist four feild peices, quihilk thay had standing at the Cros, and Sinker drew wp his soldiouris, consisting bot about 200 and 60 men, and vpon Wednesday 9 February he began with bag and baggage to march south, leaving Abirdene not well payit; for this Farquhar outit his myttie meill upone the honest people of the toun at ane heighe price, for the good intertenement thay had furneshit with moneys out of their purses.

This regiment grew les and les daylie, and wes no more bot about tua hundreth and threfcoir soldiouris at ther departour. Thay did no good, bot mekill evill, daylie debothing, in drinking, hureing, nicht walking, combatting, sweiring, and brocht fundrie honest wemen fervendis to gryte miserie, whose bodeis thay had abusit. There follout sum of them the camp out of the toun, utheris went out to the Crabstane, and returnit bak to Abirdene: bot thay and suche others as wes guiltie, were cruellie handlit for ther huredome; for sum wes wairdit in the Pittie volt, sum set cautionn to remove fra the toune, efter thay comptit and reknit for thair tavernrie with ther mistressis; uther sum wes takin and wairdit in the tolbuith, quhairof there wes 12 takin, and with towis bound two and two togidder, and convoyit be the hangman throw the streites out of the toune, ordanit to be baneshit perpetuallie, and none thairefter to recept thame wnder the paine of 40 lib. toties quoties. It is said, there wes dilatit, and tryit, about 65 of thir poor wemen; quhairof sum fled, sum baneshit, sum set cautionn in maner foirsaid, and all and everie one brocht wnder schame and gryte miserie; quhairof no doubt wes both honest mens wyves and maids, at lest callit in gryte suspitioun. O, wofull Abirdene! by thy finis this havie scourge is laid upone thee by all the burghis in Scotland, muche to be bemoned and lamented. Thus, this ribald regiment heaped wp sin to our owne numberles finis, and did no more good, bot lying idle, consumeing honest menis viveris.

About this tyme, we hard how the duke of Lennox wes called in sum questiou by the English parliament, wrocht by the malice of the marques of Hammiltoun, as wes said; bot it turned to nocht, for the duke baid constantlie with the king, and the other over weill thocht of both in Scotland and England, kepis still the parliament.

Monday 14 February, the lord Aboyne cam fra Edinburgh hame to Strathogie, and hard of his fatheris effaires, as ye may reid befoir.

About the 24 of February, Mr. Williame Blakhall, ane of the regentis of Colledge Marschall, a prompt scoller, bred, borne and brocht up in Aberdene, and never yit out of the countrie, refusit to subscribe the countrie covenant, as the rest did, quhairupone he wes deposit of his regency; thairefter he leivit simply in fober maner within the toun. He is callit in suspitioun of poperie, he is convenit befor the Sessioun of Abirdene, and at last brocht befor the presbiterie vpon the forsaid 24 of Februar, the samen then sitting within the Colledge of Old Aberdene, Mr. David Lindfay, persone of Balhelvy, moderatour. He is accusit of what religioun he wes of, and of what kirk he wes. Efter sum answaris, at last he planelie and avoutlie declairit he wes ane Romaine Catholik, and wold byd be the samen, to the astoneishment of the hail heiraris, being of ane uther professioun, as appeirit, and so pertlie (now in tyme of the hottest persecutioun of papistis heir in this land) to manifest him self so. Aluaies, efter sum dealling with him by the ministrie and bretheren, at last he is excommunicat, and chargit to conforme or leave the countrie. This may be nottit with the fyre of the said Marfchall Colledge, as ye have befor, as ane fecond vifet; the thrid follouis. This Blakhall wes excommunicat upone the 20 of Marche, syne leavis the countrie.

About this tyme, thair cam ane speiche to Abirden wrettin be Sir Eduard Deering, knight and baronet, who wes chofin knight of the schire for the county of Kent to be one of the number of the Hous of Commons. This daytie eloquent speiche is worthie of not and confideratioun. It appeiris to be wrettin in January or February, quhilk makis it beir 1641, becaus the English yeir changes not quhill the 25 of Merche, and our yeir changes the first of Januar yeirlie. And so I have set it down in anno 1642, quhair of the temmour follouis:

A most worthy Speech of the truly honourable and worthy member of the House of Commons, Sir Edward Deering, Knight and Barronet, who was chosen Knight of the Shire for the County of Kent, spoken in presence of the Honourable House of Commons, now present in Parliament, concerning the Liturgy of the Church of England, and for a National Synod.

Maister Speaker,*

The question is, whether these clauses concerning some pretended erroneous passages in our liturgy shall be laid by or not. I am of opinion to decline them here, but not to bury them in a perpetual silence.

In this very period, you give us, in general terms, a promise of a national synod. I do still with the presence thereof. It being, to my understanding, the only proper cure and remedy for all our church distractions, and may be proved, if proof be needful, to have been practised in the book of God.

* This Maister Speiker is the mouth of the Hous of Commons, to whom in their names this Speech is direct by this worthy Knicht.

This promised synod is too far off. Let me have a better assurance than a promise; which that I may obtain, I will be bold to give you some reasons to introduce that assembly, and speed it also.

Master Speaker, much hath been said, and something attempted to be done, to regulate the exterior part of our religion; but, Sir, we bleed inwardly. Much endeavour hath been to amend the deformed forms we were in, and to new govern the government: yet, Sir, this is but the leaves of good religion, fit, I confess, notwithstanding, to be taken care of, for beauty and for ornament; nay, some leaves are fit and necessary to be preserved for shadow and for shelter to the blossoms and the fruit.

The fruit of all is good life, which you must never expect to see, unless the blossoms be pure and good, that is, unless your doctrines be sound and true.

Sir, I speak it with full grief of heart, whilst we are thus long pruning and composing of the leaves, or rather, whilst some would pluck all leaves away, our blossoms are blasted; and whilst we fit here in cure of government and ceremonials, we are poisoned in our doctrinals, and at whose door will the guilt and sin of all this lye?

Qui non vetat peccare cum potest, jubet. SENECA.

It is true, that this mischief grows not by our consent; and yet, I know not by what unhappy fate there is at present such an all-daring liberty, such a lewd licentiousness, for all men's venting their several senses (senseless senses) in matters of religion, as never was in any age, in any nation, until this parliament was met together.

Sir, it belongs to us to take heed that our countenance (the countenance of this honourable house) be not prostituted to sinister ends by bold offenders. If it be in our power to give a remedy, a timely and a seasonable remedy to these great and growing evils, and that we (being also put in mind) shall neglect to do it, we then do pluck their sins upon our own heads.

Alienum qui fert scelus, facit suum. SENECA.

Shall I be bold to give you a very few instances? One for a hundred, wherewith our pulpits and our presses do groan.

Master Speaker, there is a certain new born, unseen, ignorant, dangerous, desperate way of Independency.* Are we, Sir, for this independent way? Nay, Sir, are we for the elder brother of it, the Presbiterial form? I have not yet heard any one gentleman, within these walls stand up and assert his thoughts here, for either of these ways; and yet, Sir, we are made the patrons and protectors of these so different, so repugnant innovations. Witness the several dedications to us. Nay, both these ways, together with the Episcopal, come all rushing in upon us, every one pretending to a fore-head of divinity. 1, Episcopacy says, Its by divine right; and certainly, Sir, it comes much nearer to its claim than any other. 2, Presbiterie, that says Its by divine right. 3, Nay, this illegitimate thing, this new born Independency, that dares to say Its by divine right also. Thus the church of England (not long since the glory of the reformed religion) is miserably torn and distracted. You can hardly now say which is the Church of England. Whither shall we turn for cure?

An other instance: If I would deal with a papist to reduce him, he answers (I have been answered so already) To what religion would you persuade me? What is the religion you profess? Your 39 Articles, they are contested against; your public solemn liturgy, that is detested; and which is more than these, the three essential proper and only marks of a true church, they are protested against. What religion would you persuade me to? Where may I find, and know, and see, and read, the religion you profess? I beseech you, Sir, help me an answer to this papist. Nay, Sir, the papist herein hath assistance even among ourselves, and doth get the tongue of some men, whose hearts are far from them; for at one of your committees, I heard it publicly asserted by one of the committee, that some of our articles do contain some things contrary to Holy Scripture.

Master Speaker, Sunday is a Sabbath, Sunday is no Sabbath, both true, both untrue, in their several acceptations, and the knot (I think) too hard for our teeth. Shall I give you an easier instance?

Some say, it is lawful to kneel at receiving the elements of our holy communion, others plead it as expedient, some do press it as necessary, and there want not others who abhor it as idolatrous; and, Sir, I am confident, you can not so state this easy question to pass among us, but that there will be many contradictentes.

The second epistle of St. Peter is now newly denied to be the apostle's. Our creed, the holy apostles' creed, is now disputed, denied, inverted and exploded by some who would be thought the best christians among us. I started with wonder and with anger to hear a bold mechanic tell me, that my creed is not my creed. He wondered at my wonder, and said, I hope your worship is too wise to believe that which you call your creed.

O Deus bone, in qua tempora reservasti nos! POLICARF.

Thus 'Εὐδὲς ἄποπς δοθίντος και τ' ἄλλα συμβαίνει. Arist. One absurdity leads in a thousand, and when you are down the hill of error, there is no bottom but in Hell, and that is bottomless too.

Sir, shall I be bold to give one, and but one instance more? Much clamour now there is against our publick Liturgy, though hallowed with the blood of some of the first composers thereof; and surely, Sir, some parts of it may be well corrected. But the clamours now go very high. Impudence or ignorance is now grown so frontless, that it is loudly expected by many that you should utterly abrogate all forms of publick worship, and at least, if you have a short Form, yet not to impose the use of it. Extirpation of Episcopacy, that hope is already swallowed; and now some men are as greedy for abolition of the Liturgy, that so the Church of England, in her public prayers, nay her offerure, may be as a babler at all adventures; a braneless, stupid and an ignorant conceit of some!

Master Speaker, the wisdom of this house will (I am confident) never sink so low, never fall into such a delinquency of judgement and piety. When you do, I shall humbly submit myself unto the stake and faggot; I mean, for certainty, Sir, I shall then be a Parliament heretick.

Thus much for a taste of that, whereof there is too much abroad; for the divisions of Reuben, there are great things of that abroad.

Sir, thus we are engaged, inclosed in points of divinity, and with the favour of that Gentleman, who did last tyme discuss it, I must again propose my doubtful Quere, to be resolved by the wisdom of this house, Whether we be idonei et competentes iudices in doctrinal Resolutions? In my opinion we are not. Let us maintain the Doctrine established in the Church of England. It will be neither safety nor wisdom for us to determine new.

Sir, I do again repeat and avow my former words, and do confidently affirm, that it was never seen nor known in any age, in any nation throughout the whole world, that a set of Laymen, Gentlemen, Soldiers, Lawyers of both gowns, Physicians, Merchants, Citizens, all Professions, admitted, or at least admittable, but the Professors of Religion alone excluded, that we should determine upon doctrines in Divinity.

Shall the clergy hold different doctrines from us? or shall our determinations bind them also? They are a considerable body in this Kingdom. They are herein surely concerned as much as we, and ought not to be bound up unheard and unpartied.

Farther, Sir, if clergymen among us be thought fit for no other than for spiritual employment, how shall we answer it to God and to a good conscience, if we shut them out from that which we ourselves pretend to be their only and their proper work?

Master Speaker, we cannot brag of an unerring spirit. Infallibility is no more tied to your chair, than it is unto the Pope's; and if I may speak truth, as I love truth, with clearness and with plainness, I do here ingenuously profess unto you, that I shall not acquiesce and sit down upon the doctrinal Resolutions of this house, unless it be where my own genius doth lead and prompt me to the same conclusions.

Master Speaker, we are here conveyed by his Majesty's writ, to treat super arduis negotiis regni et ecclesie. I beseech you, let us not turn negotia ecclesie into dogmata fidei. There is a great difference in objecto between the agendis and the credendis of a Christian. Let us so take care to settle the Government, that we do not unsettle the Doctrines.

The short close of all with a motion is but this: We are poisoned in many points of Doctrine, and I know no antidote, no recipe for cure, but one, a well-chosen and well-tempered national Synod, and God's blessing thereon. This may cure us, without this, (in my poor opinion) England is like to turn itself into a great Amsterdam; and unless this counsel be very speedy, the disease will be above the cure.

Therefore, that we may have a full fruition of what is here but promised, I do humbly move, That you will command forth the Bill for a national Synod to be read the next morning. I saw the Bill above five months since in the hand of a worthy member of this house. If that Bill be not to be had, then my humble motion is (as formerly), That you would name a committee to draw up another.

This being once resolved, I would then desire that all motions of Religion (this about the Liturgy especially) may be transferred thither, and you will find it to be the way of peace and unity amongst us here.

I might have added in due place above, a mention of 1. Frequent schismatical conventicles. 2. That taylors, shoemakers, braziers, felt-makers, do climb our public pulpits. 3. That several odd irregular fests have been held for partial venting of private flatteries of some, slanders of other, members of this House. 4. That the distinction of the clergy and laity is Popish and Antichristian, and ought no longer to remain. 5. That the Lord's Prayer was not taught us to be used. 6. That no national church can be a true church of God. 7. That the visible church of Antichrist did make the King head of the Church. 8. That supreme power in church affairs is in every several congregation. 9. That a presbytery without a bishop was in the world before it was at Geneva. 10. That it is a heinous sin to be present when prayers are read out of a book. 11. That to communicate in presence of a prophane person is to partake of his prophaneness. 12. That Christ's Kingdom hath been a candle under a bushel, whilst Antichrist hath outraged him for 1600 years together.

Many more instances at little leisure I can gather, which together have begotten a general increase of open Libertinisme, secret Atheism, bold Arminianism, desperate Socinianism, stupid Anabaptisme, and with these the new Chiliastes, and the wilfulness of Papists strangely and strongly confirmed by these distractions.

Good God! look down and direct our consultations. The best issue whereof (I think) would be, to debate the whole debate of Religion out of our doors, by putting it into a free Synod, whereupon I doubt not but we should grow unanimous in all our other works.*

His Majefties Declaration to both Houfes of Parliament (which He likewife recommends to the confideration of all His loving Subjects,) in Anfwer to that presented to Him at Newmarket, the ninth of March, 1641.

Though the Declaration lately presented to Us at Newmarket, from both Our Houfes of Parliament, be of fo ftrange a nature, in refpect of what We expected (after fo many Acts of Grace and Favour to Our People) and fome expreffions in it fo different from the ufual Language to Princes, that We might well take a very long time to confider it ; Yet the cleerneffe and uprightneffe of Our Confcience to God, and love to our Subjects, hath fupplied Us with a fpeedy Anfwer, and

Our unalterable Affection to Our People prevailed with Us, to fupprefs that paffion which might well enough become Us, upon fuch an Invitation.

We have confidered Our Anfwer of the firft of this moneth at Theobalds, which is urged to have given juft caufe of forrow to Our Subjects. Whofoever looks over that Meffage (which was in effect to tell Us, that if We would not joyn with them in an Act which We conceived might prove prejudiciall and dangerous to Us and the whole Kingdom, they would make a Law without Us, and impofe it upon Our People) will not thinke that fudden Anfwer can be excepted to.

We have little encouragement to Replies of this nature, when We are told of how little value Our words are like to be with you, though they come accompanied with all the Actions of Love and Juftice, (where there is room for Actions to accompany them,) yet We cannot but difavow the having any fuch evill Counfell or Counfellours about Us, to Our knowledge, as are mentioned; and if any fuch be difcovered, We will leave them to the Cenfure and Judgement of Our Parliament: In the mean time, We could wifh, that Our owne immediate Actions which We avow, and Our owne Honour might not be fo roughly cenfured and wounded under that common ftyle of Evill Counfellours.

For our faithfull and zealous affection to the true Proteftant Profeflion, and Our refolution to concur with Our Parliament in any poffible courfe for the propagation of it and the fuppreffion of Popery, We can fay no more than We have already expreffed in our Declaration to all Our loving Subjects, published in January laft, by the advice of Our Privy Councell, in which We endeavoured to make as lively a Confeflion of Our felf in this point, as We were able, being moft affured that the conftant Practice of Our Life hath been answerable thereunto: And therefore We did rather expect a Teftimony and Acknowledgement of fuch Our Zeal and Piety, then thofe Expreffions We meet with in this Declaration, of any defigne of altering Religion in this Kingdom. And We doe (out of the innocencie of Our Soul) wifh, That the Judgments of Heaven may be manifested upon thofe, who have or had any fuch Defigne.

As for the Scots troubles, We had well thought that thofe unhappy differences had been wrapt up in perpetuall f Silence, by the Act of Oblivion, which being folemnly paff in the Parliaments of both Kingdoms ftops Our mouth from any other Reply then to fhew Our great diflike for reviving the memory thereof.

If the Rebellion in Ireland (fo odious to all Chriftians) feems to have been framed and maintained in England, or to have any countenance from hence, We conjure both Our Houfes of Parliament, and all Our loving Subjects whatfoever, to ufe all poffible meanes to difcover and find fuch out, that We may joyn in the moft exemplary vengeance upon them that can be imagined: But We muft thinke Our felf highly and cauffelily injured in Our Reputation, if any Declaration, Action or Expreffion of the Irifh Rebels, any Letter from Count Rolettie to the Papifts for Fafting and Praying, or from Treftram Whitcombe, of ftrange fpeeches uttered in Ireland, fhall heget any jealonfie, or mifapprehenfion in our fubjects, of Our Juftice, Piety and Affection, it being evident to all underftandings, That thofe mifchievous and wicked Rebels are not fo capable of great advantage, as by having their falfe difcourfes fo far believed, as to raife Fears and Jealonfies to the diftraction of this Kingdom, the onely way to their fecurity. And We cannot exprefse a deeper fenfe of the fuffering of Our poore Proteftant Subjects in that kingdom, then We have done in our often Meffages to both Houfes, by which We have offered, and are fill ready to venture Our Royall Perfon for their Redemption, well knowing, that as We are (in our own intereft) more concerned in them, fo We are to make a ftrict account to Almighty God for any neglect of Our duty or their prefervation.

For the manifold attempts to provoke Our late Army, and the Army of the Scots, and to raife a faction in the City of London and other parts of the Kingdom; if it be faid, as relating to Us, We cannot without great indignation suffer Our self to be reproached to have intended the least force or threatening to Our Parliament, as the being privy to the bringing up of the Army would imply : Whereas We call God to witness, We never had any such thought, or knew of any such resolution concerning our late Army.

For the petition shewed to us by Captain Legge, We well remember the fame and the occasion of that conference. Captain Legge, being lately come out of the North, and repairing to Us at Whitehall, we asked him of the state of our Army ; and (after some relation made of it) he told Us, that the Commanders and Officers of the Army had a mind to petition the Parliament, as others of Our people had done, and shewed Us the Copy of a Petition, which we read, and finding it to be very humble, desiring the Parliament might receive no interruption in the Reformation of the Church and State to the Modell of Queene Elizabeth's days ; We told him, We saw no harme in it : Whereupon he replied, That he believed all the Officers of the Army would like it, only he thought Sir Jacob Ashley would be unwilling to signe it, out of fear that it might displease Us. We then read the Petition over again, and then observing nothing in matter or forme We conceived could possibly give just cause of offence, We delivered it to him again, bidding him give it to Sir Jacob Ashley, for whose satisfaction We had written C. R. upon it, to testify our approbation ; and We wish that the petition might be seen and published, and then we believe it will appear no dangerous one, nor a just ground for the least jealousy or misapprehension.

For Master Jermin, it is well known that he was gone from Whitehall before We received the desires of both Houses for the restraint of Our Servants, neither returned he thither, or passed over by any Warrant granted by Us after that time.

For the breach of priviledge in the accusation of the Lord Kimbolton and the five members of the House of Commons, We thought We had given so ample satisfaction in Our severall messages to that purpose, that it should be no more pressed against Us, being confident, if the breach of Priviledge had been greater then hath been ever before offered, our acknowledgement and retraction hath been greater then ever King hath given, besides the not examining how many of Our Priviledges have been invaded in defence and vindication of the other ; and therefore we hoped Our true and earnest Protestation in Our Answer to your Order concerning the Militia, would so far have satisfied you of our intentions then, that you would no more have entertained any imagination of any other designe then We there expressed.

But, why the lifting of so many Officers, and entertaining them at Whitehall should be misconfused, We much marvell, when it is notoriously known, the tumults at Westminster were so great, and their demeanours so scandalous and seditious, that We had good cause to suppose Our owne Person and those of Our Wife and Children to be in apparent danger, and therefore We had great reason to appoint a Guard about Us, and to accept the dutifull tender of the services of any of Our loving Subjects, which was all We did to the Gentlemen of the Innes of Court.

For the Lord Digby, We assure you on the word of a King, that he had Our Warrant to passe the Seas, and had left Our Court before We ever heard of the Vote of the House of Commons, or had any cause to imagine that his absence would have been excepted against.

What your Advertisements are from Rome, Venice, Paris and other parts, or what the Pope's Nuntio sollicit the Kings of France or Spain to do, or from what persons such Informations come to you, or how the credit and reputation of such persons have been sifted and examined, We know not, but are confident no sober honest man in Our Kingdoms can believe, that We are so desperate or so senselesse, to entertaine such Designs as would not onely bury this Our Kingdom in sudden distraction and ruine, but Our owne Name and Posterity in perpetuall scorn and infamy :

And therefore We could have wished, that in matters of so high and tender a nature (wherewith the minds of Our good Subjects must needs be startled) all the expressions were so plain and easie, that nothing might stick with them with reflection upon Us, since you thought fit to publish it all.

And having now dealt thus plainly and freely with you by way of Answer to the particular grounds of your feares, we hope (upon a due consideration and weighing both together) you will not find the grounds to be of that moment to beget, or longer to continue a misunderstanding betwixt Us, or force you to apply yourselves to the use of any other power then what the law hath given you, the which We always intend shall be the measure of Our owne power, and expect it shall be the rule of Our Subjects obedience.

Concerning our Feares and Jealousies, as We had no intention of accusing you, so are We sure no words spoken by us (on the fudden) at Theobalds will beare that interpretation. We said, for Our residence nere you, We with it might be so safe and honourable, that We had no cause to absent Our selfe from Whitehall; and how this can be a breach of priviledge of Parliament We cannot understand. We explained Our meaning in Our Answer at Newmarket, at the presentation of this Declaration concerning the printed seditious Pamphlets and Sermons, and the great tumults at Westminster, and We must appeale to you and all the World, whether We might not justly suppose Our self in danger of either; and if We were now at Whitehall, what securitie have We, that the like shall not be againe, especially if any delinquents of that nature have been apprehended by the Ministers of Justice, and been rescued by the People, and so as yet escape unpunished? If you have not been informed of the seditious words used in, and the circumstances of those Tumults, and will appoint some way for the examination of them, We will require some of our learned Counsell to attend with such evidence as may satisfie you, and till that be done, or some other courte taken for Our security, you cannot (with reason) wonder that we intend not to be where we most desire to be.

And can there yet want evidence of Our hearty and importunate desire to joyne with Our Parliament, and all our faithfull Subjects, in defence of the Religion and publicke good of the Kingdome? Have we given you no other earnest but words, to secure you of those desires? The very remonstrance of the House of Commons (published in November last) of the state of the kingdome allows us a more reall testimony of our good affections then words. That remonstrance valued Our acts of grace and justice at so high a rate, that it declared the Kingdome to be then a gainer, though it had charged it selfe by Bills of Subsidies and Pol Money with the levy of 600,000 pounds, besides the contracting of a debt to our Scots subjects of 220,000 pounds.

Are the bills for the Triennial Parliament, for relinquishing Our title of imposing upon Merchandize, and power of pressing of Souldiers, for the taking away of the Star-Chamber and High Commission Courts, for the regulating the Councell Table, but words? Are the Bills for the Forests, the Stannery Courts, the Clerke of the Market, and the taking away the Votes of Bilhops out of the Lords House, but words? Lastly, what greater earnest of Our trust and reliance on Our Parliament could or can We give, then the passing of the Bill for the continuance of this present Parliament? The length of which We hope will never alter the nature of Parliaments and the Constitution of this Kingdome, or invite Our Subjects so much to abuse Our Confidence, as to esteeme any thing fit for this Parliament to doe, which were not, if it were in Our power to dissolve it to morrow. And after all these, and many other acts of Grace on Our part, (that We might be sure of a perfect Reconciliation betwixt Us and all Our Subjects) We have offered, and are still ready, to grant a free and generall Pardon as ample as your selves shall thinke fit. Now if these be not reall expressions of the affections of Our Soule for the publicke good of Our Kingdome, we must confesse that We want Skill to manifest them.

To conclude, (although We thinke Our Anfwer already full to that Point) concerning Our Returne to London, We are willing to Declare, that We looke upon it as a matter of fo great weight, as with reference to the affaires of this Kingdome and to Our owne inclinations and defires, that if all We can fay, or doe, can raife a mutuall Confidence, (the onely way with God's blessing to make Us all happy) and by your encouragement the Lawes of the Land, and the government of the City of London, may recover some life for Our security, We will overtake your defires, and be as soone with you as you can wilh. And in the mean time, We will be fufe, that neither the bufinesse of Ireland, or any other advantage for this Kingdome, fhall fuffer through Our default, or by Our abfence; We being fo farre from repenting the Acts of Our Justice and Grace, which we have already performed to Our People, that We fhall with the fame alacrity be ftill ready to adde fuch new ones, as may beft advance the Peace, Honour and Profperity of this Nation.

Printed at Edinburgh 1642.

This his Majesties Anfuer, fo full of reffone, love and grace, wold appeir to be moft gracious in the ficht of his fubjectis; bot fchortlie follout upon the bak of this paper an other imprinted Petitioun, with his Majesties Anfuer maid thairto, quhilck coppeit tendeth thus:

The humble Petitioune of the Lordis and Commouns affembled in Parliament, prefented to his Majestie at York on Saturday the 26th of Marche 1642;— Together with his Majesties anfuer thereunto.

To the Kings moft Excellent Majestie, the humble Petition of the Lords and Commons affembled in Parliament.

May it please your Majestie,

Your Majesties moft loyall Subjects, the Lords and Commons in Parliament, cannot conceive that the Declaration which your Majestie received from us at Newmarket was fuch as did deserue that Censure Your Majestie was pleased to lay upon us in that Speech which your Majestie made to our Committees there, and sent in writing to both Houses; our addressse therein, being accompanied with plainnesse, humility and faithfulness, we thought more proper for the removing the distraction of the Kingdome, than if we had then proceeded according to your Majestie's Message of the 20 of January, by which your Majestie was pleased to desire, That we would declare what we intended to do for your Majestie, and what we expected to be done for our selves. In both which we have been very much hindered by your Majestie's deniall to secure us and the whole Kingdom by disposing the Militia, as we had divers times moft humbly petitioned; and yet we have not been altogether negligent of either, having lately made good proceedings in preparing a Booke of Rates to be passed in a Bill of Tonnage and Poundage, and likewise the moft materiall Heads of those humble defires which we intended to make to Your Majestie for the good and contentment of your Majestie and your People; but none of these could be perfected before the Kingdome be put into safetie, by settling the Militia: And untill your Majestie shall be pleased to concurre with Your Parliament in these necessary things, we hold it impossible for you to give the world, or Your People, fuch satisfiacion concerning the Feares and Jealousies which we have expreffed, as we hope your Majestie hath already received, touching that exception which You were pleased to take to Master Pym's Speech.

As for your Majesties Fears and Doubts, the ground whereof is from Seditions Pamphlets and Sermons, We shall be as carefull to endeavour the removall, as soon as we shall understand what Pamphlets and Sermons are by Your Majestie intended, as we have been to prevent all dangerous Tumults. And if any extraordinary concurrence of People out of the Citie of Westminster had the face and shew of tumult and danger in Your Majesties apprehension, it will appeare to be caused by Your Majesties denial of such a guard to your Parliament as they might have cause to confide in; and by taking into Whitehall such a guard for Your selfe, as gave just cause of Jealousie to the Parliament and of terrour and offence to Your People. We seeke nothing but your Majestie's Honour, and the Peace and Prosperity of Your Kingdomes. And we are heartily sorry we have such plentifull matter of an Answer to that question, Whether You had violated Our Laws? We beseech Your Majestie to remember, that the Government of this Kingdome, as it was in a great part managed by Your Ministers before the beginning of this Parliament, consisted of many continued and multiplied Acts of violation of Laws, the wounds whereof were scarcely healed, when the extremitie of all those violations was farre exceeded by the late strange and unheard of breach of our Lawes in the accusation of the Lord Kymbolton, and the five Members of the Commons-House, and in the proceedings thereupon, for which we have yet received no full satisfaction.

To Your Majesties next question, Whether You had denied any Bill for the ease and security of Your subjects? We wish we could stop in the midst of our answer, That with much thankfulness we acknowledge that Your Majestie hath past many good Bills full of contentment and advantage to Your People; But truth and necessitie inforceth us to adde this, That even in or about the time of passing those Bills, some designe or other hath bene on foot, which, if it had taken effect, would not only have deprived us of the fruit of those Bills, but have reduced us to a worse condition of confusion then that wherein the Parliament found us.

And if your Majestie had asked us the third question intimated in that Speech, What we have done for Your Selfe? our Answer would have been much more easie, That we have paid two Armies, wherewith the Kingdome was burdened last yeere, and have undergone the charge of the War in Ireland at this time; when, through many other excessive Charges and Pressures, whereby Your Subjects have been exhausted, and the Stock of the Kingdome very much diminished. Which great mischiefs, and the charges thereupon ensuing, have been occasioned by the evill counsellors so powerfull with Your Majestie, which have, and will cost this Kingdome more then two Millions; all which in Justice ought to have been borne by your Majestie.

As for that free and generall Pardon Your Majestie hath been pleased to offer, it can be no security to our Feares and Jealousies, for which Your Majestie seems to propose it, because they arise not from any guilt of our owne Actions, but from the evill Designes and Attempts of others.

To this our humble Answer to that Speech, we desire to adde an Information which we lately received from the Deputie Governour of the Merchant Adventurers at Rotterdam in Holland, That an unknown person appertaining to the Lord Digby did lately sollicite one James Henley a Mariner to goe to Elfenor, and to take charge of a Ship in the Fleet of the King of Denmark there prepared, which he should conduct to Hull; in which Fleet likewise, he said a great army was to be transported. And although we are not apt to give credit to Informations of this nature, yet we cannot altogether think it fit to be neglected, but that it may justly adde somewhat to the weight of our feares and jealousies, considering with what circumstances it is accompanied, with the Lord Digbies preceding expressions in his letter to her Majestie and Sir Lewis Dives, and Your Majesties succeeding course of withdrawing Your Selfe northward from Your Parliament, in a manner very sutable and correspondent to that evill Counsell, which we doubt will make much deeper imprefſion in the generalitie of Your People; And therefore we moſt humbly adviſe and beſeech Your Majeſty, for the procuring and ſetting the confidence of Your Parliament, and all Your Subjects, and for the other important reaſons, concerning the recovery of Ireland, and ſecuring this Kingdome, which have been formerly preſented to your Majeſtie, You will be graciouſly pleaſed (with all convenient ſpeed) to returne to theſe parts, and to cloſe with the Counſell and deſire of Your Parliament, where You ſhall find their dutifull affections and endeavours ready to attend Your Majeſtie with ſuch entertainment, as ſhall not onely give Your Majeſtie juſt cauſe of ſecurity in their faithfulneſſe, but other manifold evidences of their earneſt intentions and endeavours to advance Your Majeſties Service, Honour and Contentment, and to eſta bliſh it upon the ſure foundation of the Peace and Proſperity of all Your Kingdomes.

His Majeſties Anſwer to the Petition of both Houſes of Parliament, preſented to Him at York on Saturday the 26th of March, 1642, by the Lord Willoughby, Lord Dungarvan and Sir Anthony Irby.

If you would have had the patience to have expected Our Anſwer to your laſt Declaration, (which conſidering the nature of it, hath not been long in coming) We beleeve you would have ſaved your ſelves the labour of ſaying much of this Meſſage; and We could wiſh, that Our Priviledges on all parts were ſo ſtated, that this way of Correſpondencie might be preſerved with that Freedome which hath been uſed of old: For We muſt tell you, that if you may aſke any thing of Us by Meſſage or Petition, and in what language (how unuſual ſoever) you thinke fit, and We muſt neither deny the thing you aſke nor give Our reaſon why We cannot grant it, without being taxed of breaking your Priviledges, or being counſelled by thoſe who are enemies to the Peace of the Kingdome and favourers of the Irifh Rebellion, (for We have ſeene your Printed Votes upon Our Meſſage from Huntingdon) you will reduce all our Anſwers hereafter into a very little room. In plain Engliſh, it is to take away the Freedome of Our Vote, which, were We but a Subject, were high Injuſtice; but being your King, We leave all the world to judge what it is.

Is this the way to compoſe all miſunderſtandings? We thought We ſhewed you one by Our Meſſage of the 20 of January; if you have a better or readier, We ſhall willingly hearken to it, for hitherto you have thewed Us none. But why the reſuſall to conſent to your Order (which you call a denial of the Militia) ſhould be any interruption to it, We cannot underſtand. For the Militia, (which We alwayes thought neceſſary to be ſettled) We never denied the thing, as we told you in Our Anſwer of the 28. January to the Petition of the Houſe of Commons, for We accepted the perſons, (except for Corporations) We only denied the way. You aſke it by way of Ordinance, and with ſuch a preface, as We can neither with Juſtice to Our Honour or Innocency conſent to. You exclude Us for any Power in the diſpoſition or execution of it together with you, and for a time utterly unlimited. We tell you, We would have the thing done; Allow the perſons (with that exception); Deſire a Bill, the onely good old way of impoſing on Our Subjects. We are extremely unſatiſſied what an Ordinance is, but well ſatiſſied, that without Our Conſent it is nothing, not binding; and it is evident by the long time ſpent in this Argument, the neceſſitie and danger was not ſo imminent, but a Bill might have well been prepared, which if it ſhall yet be done with that due regard to Us and care of Our People, in the limitation of the power and other circumſtances, We ſhall recede from nothing We formerly expreſſed in that Anſwer to your Order; otherwiſe we muſt declare to all the world, That we are not ſatiſſied with, or ſhall ever allow Our Subjects to be bound by your printed Votes of the fifteenth or ſixteenth of this moneth, or that, under pretence of declaring what the Law of the Land is, you shall without Us make a new Law, which is plainly the case of the Militia: And what is this but to introduce an Arbitrary way of Government?

Concerning Pym's Speech, you will have found by what the Lord Compton and Master Baynton brought from Us in answer to that Message they brought to Us, that as yet We rest nothing satisfied in that particular.

As for the seditious Pamphlets and Sermons, We are both sorry and ashamed, (in so great a variety, and in which Our Rights, Honour and Authority are so insolently slighted and vilified, and in which the Dignity and Freedom of Parliament is so much invaded and violated) it should be asked of Us to name any; the mentioning of the Protestation protested, the Apprentices Protestation, To your Tents O Israel, or any other, would be too great an excuse for the rest. If you thinke them not worth your inquirie, We have done. But We thinke it most strange to be told, That Our deniall of a Guard (which We yet never denied, but granted in another manner, and under a Command at that time most accustomed in the Kingdome) or the deniall of any thing else, (which is in Our power legally to deny) which in Our understanding (of which God hath surely given Us some use) is not fit to be granted, should be any excuse for so dangerous concourse of people, which not onely in our apprehension, but (We beleeve) in the interpretation of Law it selfe, hath been always held most tumultuous and seditious. And we must wonder, what, and whence come the instructions and informations that those people have, who can so easily thinke themselves obliged by the Protestation to assemble in such a manner, for the defence of Priviledges, which cannot be so cleerely knowne to any of them; and so negligently passe over the consideration and defence of Our Rights so beneficiall and necessary for themselves, and scarce unknowne to any of them, which by their Oathes of Allegiance and Supremacy (and even by the same Protestation) they are at least equally obliged to defend. And what interruptions such kind of Assemblies may be to the freedom of future Parliaments, (if not seasonably discourtenaunced and suppressed) We must advise you to consider; as likewise whether both Our powers may not by such meanes be usurped by hands not trusted by the Constitution of this Kingdome. For Our Guard, We referre you to Our Answer to your Declaration.

By that Question of violating your Lawes, by which We endeavoured to expresse Our care and resolution to observe them, We did not expect you would have been invited to have looked back so many yeers, for which you have had so ample Reparation; neither looked We to be reproached with the Actions of Our Ministers, (then against the Lawes) whilst We expressed so great a zeale for the present defence of them, it being Our Resolution, upon observation of the mischief which then grew by Arbitrary power, (though made plausible to Us by the suggestions of necessitie and imminent danger, and take you heed ye fall not into the same error upon the same suggestions) hereafter to keepe the Rule Our selfe, and to Our power require the same from all others: But above all, We must be most sensible of what you cast upon Us for requittall of those good Bills you cannot denie. We have denied any such Designe, and as God Almighty must judge in that point between Us, who knows Our upright intentions at the passing of those Lawes, so, in the meane time, We desie the Divell to prove that there was any designe (with Our knowledge or privitie) in or about the time of passing those Bills, that, had it taken effect, could have deprived Our Subjects of the fruit of them: And therefore, We demand full Reparation in this point, that we may be cleared, in the sight of all the World, and chiefly in the eyes of Our loving Subjects, from so notorious and false an imputation as this is.

We are farr from denying what you have done, for We acknowledge the charge which Our People have sustained in keeping the two Armies and in relieving Ireland, of the which We are so sensible, that, in regard of those great Burthens Our People have undergone, We have and doe patiently suffer those extreame personall wants, as Our Predecessours have been seldome put to, rather than We would presse upon them, which We hope (in time) will be considered on your parts.

In Our offer of a General Pardon, Our intent was to compose and secure the generall condition of Our Subjects, conceiving that in these times of great Diffractions the good Lawes of the Land have not been enough observed; But it is a strange world when Princes proffered Favours are counted Reproaches; yet, if you like not this our offer, We have done.

Concerning any discourfes of Forraigne Forces, though We have given you a full Answer in Ours to your last Declaration, yet We must tell you, We have neither fo ill an opinion of Our own merit, or the affections of Our good Subjects, as to thinke our Selfe in need of any Forraigne Force to preserve Us from Oppression, (and We shall not need for any other purpose) but are confident (through God's providence) not to want the good wishes and assistance of the whole Kingdome, being resolved to build upon that sure Foundation the Law of the Land; and We take it very ill, that any general Discourfes between an unknown Person and a Mariner, or inferences upon Letters, should be able to prevail in matters so improbable in themselves and scandalous to Us, for which We cannot but likewise aske Reparation, not onely for the vindicating of Our own Honour, but also thereby to settle the minds of Our Subjects, whose Feares and Jealousies would soon vanish, were they not fed and maintained by such false and malicious Rumours as these.

For our returne to Our Parliament, We have given you a full Answer in Ours to your Declaration, and you ought to looke on Us as not gone but driven (we say not by you, yet) from you. And if it be not so easie for you to make our residence in London so safe as we could desire, We are and will be contented that our Parliament be adjourned to such a place, where We may be fitly and safely with you. For though We are not pleased to be at this distance, yet ye are not to expect Our presence, untill ye shall both secure Us concerning Our just apprehensions of Tumultuary infolencies, and likewise give Us satisfaction for those insupportable and insolent Scandals that are raised upon Us.

To conclude, as We have or shall not refuse any way agreeable to Justice or Honour which shall be offered to Us, for the begetting a right understanding between Us, so We are resolved, that no straits or necessities, to which We may be driven, shall ever compell Us to doe that, which the Reason and Understanding that God hath given Us, and Our Honour and Interest with which God hath trusted Us for the good of Our Posterity and Kingdomes, shall render unpleasent and grievous unto Us.

And We assure you, that, (how meanelly soever you are pleased to value the discharge of Our publicke dutie) We are so conscious to Our Selfe of having done Our part since this Parliament, that, in whatsoever condition We now stand, We are confident of the continued Protection from Almighty God, and the constant gratitude, obedience and affection from Our People; And We shall trust God with all. FINIS.

Yorke, Printed by Robert Barker, printer to the King's most excellent Majestie, and by the assignes of John Bill. 1642.

Now followis ane uther proper and pithie Speeche called " His Majesties Answer to a Message sent to him by the Hous of Commons at York, Marche 19, 1641."

And heir is to be marked that his Majestie is cum fra Newmarket to York.

His Majesty's Answer to a message sent to him by the House of Commons at York, Marche 19, 1641.—Also, Two remarkable letters from Ireland, sent over by Robert Pickering, secretary unto Sir Symon Harcourt, Marche 17, 1641: The first being the coppie of a Letter written by the Erll of Osmond, one of the commanderis of the rebellis, unto the Erll of Delvin, wherein he declares the great distress they ar in for want of ammunition and other proviſion, and also frustrat of the relief thay hoped for out of Flanders; whiche letter and berar was intercepted by the night Scoutis of Sir Symon Harcourt: The second, the coppie of the Popes Bull sent unto the Irish rebellis, found in the trunke of Mack Orobie, his legat, who wes taken prisoner in the Lord Mountgarret's quarter.

His Majesty's Answer to a Message sent to him by the House of Commons, concerning Licences granted by him to persons to go into Ireland.

His Majesty hath seene and considered the Message presented to Him by the Lord Compton and Mr. Baynton, the 19th of March, 1641, at York, touching such persons as have been licensed by His Majesty to passe into Ireland.

Though He will not insit upon what little Reason they had to suspect that some ill-affected persons had passed into Ireland under colour of his Majesty's Licence, (Inferences being slender proofs to ground belief upon,) yet He must needs avow, that for any thing that is yet declared, He cannot see any ground why Mr. Pym should so boldly affirme before both Houses of Parliament, That since the stop upon the Ports by both Houses against all Irish Papists, many of the chief Commanders, now in the head of the Rebels, have been suffered to passe by his Majesty's immediate Warrant; for as yet there is not one particular person named that is now so much as in Rebellion (much lesse in the head of the Rebels) to whom his Majesty hath given Licence.

And therefore, according to His Majesty's Reply upon that Subject, His Majesty expects, that His House of Commons publish such a Declaration, whereby this mistaking may be cleared, that so all the World may see his Majesty's Caution in giving of Passes; and likewise, that his Ministers have not abused His Majesty's Trust, by any surreptitious Warrants.

And lastly, His Majesty expects, that henceforth there be more warinesse used, before such publike Aspersions be laid, unlesse the Grounds be beforehand better warranted by sufficient proofs.

The Coppie of a Letter written by the Erll of Osmond, a commander of the Rebellis, unto the Erll of Delvin that lay at the head of Heare.

Couzen, I wish I could salute yow with better Newis, or yow served me with better Counfall when it wold have stood me in better stead. I give ws all for undone, only this choice as yit is left ws, that we may choos the suord before the halter. Tom Butler writtis from Brussillis, that the Spanyard loves ws well, but him self a great deall better. Governour of Flanders hath maid stay of the schippis in Dunkirk, notwithstanding the meanes he made to his Confessor, who laboured by all importantie to get the ammunition frie, if not the bottomes; but could obtane nothing. We then deall effectuoullie with the governour and capitane of Dunkirk, by the sollicitioun of the Irish cloister, to let them steall away as if it were unknowne to them; but neither wold heir him. The Count from Brussellis had bene afoir him, and had laid suche a strict charge upone him, that he wold listen to nothing. The King of Spayne in this case his resone is fetcht from Portugall, that none of the English may help against him. He withholdes his wonted ayd to ws, but the English will as certanie deceive him, when ther owne turn is ferved and thay have maid ane end with ws. The Spanyard will fynde more English in Portugall, then he will be willing to bid welcome. Thay hate him as cordially as ws, and ws the more for the respect bore ws from Spaine.

More forces ar arrived from England, 400 vnder the command of one Greenvill, with 700 more. The Scottis ar of a certane arryved in the northe also, but what number yet I can not lerne.

It is rumored in Dublin, that now the parliament in England will pres a great Army for Leicester, and that he will be heir befor Easter.

We ar liklie to be befet on all sides, and for ought I see to be devoured. Roache is arryved out of France, but with as little comfort. The Cardinall giveth good wordis, but we may justlie suspect his performans.

The Freusche king is so imbarked in the Spanissh broyll, that he, I feir, will litle heid ws. My men begin to grow weary areddie of it; the fame, Philomy wreittis of his, and so it will follow in otheris; for we are naiked of armes, and especiallie destitute of pulder. The taking of that provioun at Suiskening hath lost ws bothe oure lives and honour. Let me desire you, at your first conveniencie, to send my wyff and thrie daughteris for Nantes or Dunkirk; and for my parte, if freindis abroad regard neither the commoun tye of the Catholik faith, nor their former promissēs, but onely their owne particularis, as we have but too just caus to doubt thay doe not, I will schortlie over too, leaving all upon the arbitrimēt of fortoun, rather then to fie the miserabile slavery of my nation, and utter tredding down of my cuntry by the barbarous mercyles Scottis, and proud insulting English. If you have ony better tydings to writ, you may commit them to the bearer faithfully, Mackeme Cherrie, who, by reasone of his perfect English tonge, passeth for one of that nation, and thereby sometyme dothe advantage to ws. My love commend unto my careful Countas and young daughter. Thus, committing your and oure affaires to the Almighty, and protection of Saint Patrik, I am,

CHARLES OSMUND.

The Coppie of the Popes bull unto the Irish rebellis.

URBAN THE EIGHT, by the divyne providence, bishop of Rome, bishop of bishopis, and fervant of the fervant of God, To all the clergie, peers and people of Ireland, his well beloved fones in Christ, now confederat in holy league for the mantenans of the Catholique religioun, to the veray perrell of ther blood, Greeting and aposticall benedictioun.

Seeing your unspeakable sufferinges have been now of late related unto ws, by the provoft of the Irische nation, of laves whiche ye have wndergone for these many ages, not only patientlie, but willingly groaning vnder the Egyptian yok of herasie, more heavy then that of Pharoahis; yea and most reddy to beir it still, so that, the one thing necessary, the most invaluable pearle, the better parte might not be taken from yow, nor the gate of eternall happines, after life ended, schut against yow. Whiche when we wnderstood, we, as oure dutie required, with bended knie bothe of heart and body, have recommended this your most pious intentioun to the throan of grace, at the blessed sacrifice of the Altar. Fear ye not that ever aid celestiallye wanting to yow, who have so religiously preferred the salvatioun of your souls, Christis spows, the welfair of the churche catholique, before your lyveliehoodis and honouris, freindis, fatheris, motheris, wives, children, fones, daughteris, yea, and then whiche nothing is more deir to man, life it self. How fall the Saviour of the worlde pas by yow disregarded, whome, in his Gospell, he solempnly professeth to be more deir unto him then his owne bretheren? Sall not Christ fight for his owne Campeouns? Will not blessed St. Peter man-tayn them that weigh not ther owne poffeffionis, fo they may defend his? God forbid that yow fould ever be defitute of affiftans, who have the bleffed Mother of God for their fcheild and bukler, as whome thay honour, reverence and adore more zealoullie then all the worlde. Go on with prosperous fucces. Behave your felis manfully. That whiche ye have with tranfcendant pietie begun, we ernestly requyre, that with refolved conftancie ye endevore to accomplifh, ftrictlie charging yow that by no meanis ye withdraw your hand from this ploughe, left ye be ever after unfit for glorious focietie of hevillie triumphant Romane catholiquis. Yow fall not onely have the univerfall pairty of the Romane Catholick faith fpectatoris, bot oratoris and futeris to the divyne Deitie in heaven, bot coadjutoris, contributoris to ther moft pouer in wilhes, confultatiounis, allowances, bothe for armes, victuallis and other thingis neceffarie there in your countrie. And this, be affured, as for ws, to whome the government of our Lordis bleffed vefell is committed. Doubt ye not, but that yow fall continualie have ws aue interceffour to the court of heavin for yow, and an advancer of your fucces and enterpritie there in your kingdome, all the wayes we for oure paftorall deutie fall think meiteft. What remaneth, we, by this oure legat Orobic, with the foume of four hundreth ducatis, with hartly recommendioun and paftorall affection, beftow upon yow a plenarie indulgens of all your fynns and benedictioun apoftolicall.

About a day or tuo befoir Pafhe, thair cam to Abirdene ane Italian Man Monfter of about 24 yeires of aige, haveing from his birth growing fra the breift upward, face to face, as it war ane creature haveing heid and fyd hair lyk the cullor of the man's hair; the heid ftill drouping bakwardis and downward. He had eies, bot cloiffit, not opnit. He had eires, tuo armes, tuo handis, thrie fingeris on ilk hand, ane body, ane leg, ane foot with fix taes; the uther leg within the flefche inclyning to the left fyd. It had the prik of ane man, bot no balcod. It had a kind of lyf, and feilling, bot void of all uther fences, fed by the man's owne noorifhment and evacuat that way as his wes. This gryte wark of God wes admired of be many in Abirdene and throw the countries as he travellit; yit fuche was the goodnes of oure God that he wold go and walk quhair he liftit, carying this birth without ony pane, yea or on-efpyit when his clothes wes on. When he cam to the toune he had tuo fervandis awaiting upone him, who with him felf were weill clad. He had his portraiture with the monfter drawin, and hung out at his lodging, to the view of the people. The one fervand had ane trumpettour who foundit at fuche tyme as the people fould cum and fie this monfter, who flocked abundantlie into his lodging. The uther fervand received the moneis fra ilk perfone for his fight, fun lefs, fun mair. And efter there wes fo muche collectit as culd be gottin, he with his fervandis fhortlie left the toune and went fouthward agane.

The king, ftill remaneing at York, micht not be moeivit to cum to the parliament at Waftminifter for plaine feir of his lyf, as his awin meffages formerlie fet down beires; quhairupone thay go on. Thay petition the king for the governing of the militia, quhilk is the armyes of the countrie, and belonging to the care of the parliament as his gryte counsall. He simpliciter denyes to grant this unto thame, becaus it belongit only to him self to be king and capiten both of the militia; quhilk they wold on na wayes condiscend unto, feiring, if he war capiten of the militia in thir dangerous dayes, he nicht prove enemy to thir parliament. Thir pitifull newis of thir diviſiones and discontentes cam daylie to Abirdene. Sie more heirefter.

The Kingis Majestie, heiring of the gryte oppreſſiones his ſubjectis ſufferit in Ireland, reſolvit to go thither in proper perſone for ordering of theſe rebellionis. And ſurelie it wes planelie ſpokin, that this rebelliou bred never in the mynd of Sir Phelim Oneill nor yit the Irishis onlie; bot alſo wes plottit be the whole papiftis of note in Scotland, England, Ireland, Germany, Spaine, France and elſquhair. Like as ſindrie tymes thair cam out of Waſt Flanderis ammunition, pulder, ball and uther armes neceſſer; but ſtill wes interrupted and takin by the way by the Hollanderis who wes combynit with the parliament of England (as may appeir) in all theſe buſſineſſis. The Engliſh parliament, heiring of the kingis intention towardis Ireland, wes altogidder ſet againſt the ſamen, as may appeir be the copie of the printed Petitoun following, and Anfuer maid thairto.

The Petitoun of the Lordis and Commons preſented to his Majestie by the Erl of Stamford, Maiſter Chancelour of the Exchequer, and Maiſter Hungerforde, April 18, 1642; Togidder with his Majestie's Anfuer thereto.

To the King's moſt excellent Majesty, The humble Petition of the Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament.

May it pleaſe Your Majesty,

Your Majesty's moſt loyall and faithfull Subjects, the Lords and Commons in Parliament, have duely conſidered the Meſſage received from your Majesty concerning your purpoſe of going into Ireland in your own Perſon, to proſecute the War there with the bodies of your Engliſh ſubjects, leaved, tranſported and maintained at their charge; which you are pleaſed to propound to us, not as a matter wherein your Majesty deſires the advice of your Parliament, but as already firmly reſolved on, and forthwith to be put in execution, by granting out Commiſſions for the leavying of 2000 Foot and 200 Horſe for a Guard for your Perſon when you ſhall come into that Kingdom.

Wherein we cannot choofe but, with all reverence and humility to your Majesty, obferve, That you have declined your great Councell the Parliament, and varied from the ufual courfe of your Royall Predecessors, that a buffineffe of fo great importance, concerning the peace and fafety of all your Subjects, and wherein they have a fpecial intereft, by your Majeftie's promife, and by thofe great fums which they have difburfed and for which they ftand engaged, fhould be concluded and undertaken without their advice. Whereupon we hold it our duty to declare, That if at this time your Majesty fhall go into Ireland, you will very much endanger the fafety of your Royall Perfon and Kingdomes, and of all other States profefling the Proteftant Religion in Chriftendom, and make way to the execution of that cruell and bloody defigne of the Papifts every where, to root out and deftroy the Reformed Religion, as the Irifh Papifts have in a great part already effected in that Kingdom, and in all likelyhood would quickly be attempted in other places, if the confideration of the ftrength and union of the two Nations of England and Scotland did not much hinder and difcourage the execution of any fuch defigne. And that we may manifeft to your Majesty the danger and mifery which fuch a journey and enterprife would produce, we prefent to your Majesty the Reafons of this our humble Opinion and Advice.

1. Your Royall Perfon will be fubject, not onely to the casualty of War, but to feeret practices and confpiracies, efppecially your Majesty continuing your profefion to maintain the Proteftant Religion in that Kingdome, which the Papifts are generally bound by their vow to extirpate.

2. It will exceedingly encourage the Rebels, who do generally profefle and declare, That your Majesty doth favour and allow their proceedings, and that this Infurrection was undertaken by the Warrant of your Commiffion; and it will make good their expectation of great advantage by your Majeftie's Prefence at this time of fo much diftraction in this Kingdome, whereby they may hope we fhall be disabled to fupply the War there, efppecially there appearing leffe neceffity of your Majeftie's Journey at this time, by reafon of the manifold fuccelfes which God hath given againft them.

3. It will much hinder and impair the means whereby this War is to be fupported, and encrease the charge of it, and in both thefe refpects make it more infupportable to your Subjects. And this we can confidently affirm, becaufe many of the Adventurers, who have already fubfcribed, do, upon the knowledge of your Majeftie's intention, declare their refolutions not to pay in their money; and others, very willing to have fubfcribed, do now profefle the contrary.

4. Your Majeftie's abfence muft neceffarily very much interrupt the proceedings of Parliament, and deprive your Subjects of the benefit of thofe further Acts of Grace and Juftice which we fhall humbly expect from your Majesty, for the eftablifhing of a perfect union and mutuall confidence betwixt your Majesty and your People, and procuring and confirming the profperity and happineffe of both.

5. It will exceedingly encrease the jealousies and fears of your People, and render their doubts more probable of fome force intended by fome evill Councils near your Majesty, in oppofition of the Parliament, and favour of the malignant party of this Kingdom.

6. It will bereave your Parliament of that advantage, whereby they were induced to undertake this War upon your Majeftie's promife, that it fhould be managed by their advice; which cannot be done, if your Majesty, contrary to their Councils, fhall undertake to Order and Govern it in your own Perfon.

Upon which, and divers others Reafons, we have refolved, by the full and concurring agreement of both Houfes, That we cannot, with difcharge of our duty, confent to any levies, or raifing of Souldiers to be made by your Majesty, for this your intended expedition into Ireland, or to the payment of any Army, or Souldiers there, but such as shall be employed and governed according to our advice and direction; and that if such Levies shall be made by any Commission of your Majesty, (not agreed to by both Houses of Parliament,) we shall be forced to interpret the same to be raised to the terror of your People, and disturbance of the publike Peace, and hold our selves bound by the Laws of the Kingdom, to apply the authority of Parliament to suppress the same.

And we do further, most humbly declare, That, if your Majesty shall by ill Council be persuaded to go, contrary to this advice of your Parliament, (which we hope your Majesty will not) we do not in that case hold our selves bound to submit to any Commissioners which your Majesty shall chuse; but do resolve to preserve and govern the Kingdom by the councill and advice of Parliament, for your Majesty, and your Posterity, according to our Allegiance and the Law of the Land.

Wherefore we do most humbly pray, and advise your Majesty to desist from this your intended passage into Ireland, and from all preparation of Men and Arms tending thereunto, and to leave the managing of that Warre to your Parliament, according to your Majesty's promise made unto us, and your Royall Commission, granted under your great Seal of England, by advice of both Houses. In prosecution whereof, by God's blessing, we have already made a prosperous entrance by many defeats of the Rebels; whereby they are much weakened and disheartened, and have no probable means of subsistence, if our proceedings shall not be interrupted by this interposition of your Majesty's journey, but that we may hope upon good grounds, that within a short time, without hazard of your Majesty's Person, and so much dangerous confusion to your Kingdoms, which must needs ensue, if you should proceed in this Resolution, we shall be enabled fully to vindicate your Majesty's Right and Authority in that Kingdom, and punish those horrible outrageous cruelties which have been committed in the murdering and spoiling so many of your Majesty's Subjects, and bring that Realm to such a condition, as may be much for the advantage of your Majesty and this Crown, the honour of your Government and contentment of your people; for the better and more speedy effecting whereof, we do again renew our humble desires of your return to your Parliament; and that you will please to reject all Councils and Apprehensions which may any way derogate from that faithfulness, and allegiance, which, in truth and sincerity, we have always borne and professed to your Majesty, and shall ever make good to the uttermost with our lives and fortunes.

It is heir to be considered, that his Majesty had first sent ane message to both houses of parliament concerning this his journey towards Ireland, daitit 8 Aprile; quhairunto this petition above wrettin, in forme of answer, is returned.

And the King, in like maner, sends his answer bak agane to the sament petition, copied fra the print as followis:

His Majesty's Answer to a Petition presented to him at York, April 18, 1642, by the Earl of Stamford, &c. in the name of both Houses, concerning his Message lastlie sent to them declaring his resolution to go into Ireland.

WE are so troubled and astonished to find the unexpected reception and misunderstanding of our Message of the 8th of April, concerning our Irish Journey, that, being so much disappointed of the approbation and thanks we looked for to that Declaration, we have great cause to doubt, whether it be in our power to fay or do any thing which shall not fall within the lyke interpretation ; but, as we have in that Meſſage called God to witneſs the ſincerity of the Profeſſion of our only ends for the undertaking that Journey, ſo we muſt appeal to all our good Subjects and the whole World, whether the Reaſons alleadged againſt that Journey be of weight to ſatiffie our underſtanding, or the Counſel preſented to diſſwade us from it be full of that duty as is like to prevail over our affections.

For our reſolving of ſo great a buſineſs without the Advice of our Parliament ;—We muſt remember you, how often by our Meſſages we made the ſame offer, if you ſhould adviſe us thereunto ; to which you never gave us the leaſt Anſwer, but in your late Declaration told us, that you were not to be ſatiffied with words, ſo that we had reaſone to conceive, you rather avoided (out of regard to our Perſone) to give us Counſel to run that hazard, then that you diſapproved the Inclination. And what greater comfort or ſecurity can the Proteſtants of Chriſtendom receive, then by ſeeing a Proteſtant King venture and engage his Perſon for the defence of that Profeſſion, and the ſuppreſſion of Popery, to which we ſolemnly proteſted in that Meſſage never to grant a Tolleration upon what pretence ſoever, or an Abolition of any of the Laws, there in force againſt the Profeſſors of it ? And when we conſider the great calamities and unheard of cruelties, our poor Proteſtant Subjects in that Kingdom have undergone for the ſpace of near or full ſix Months ; the growth and increaſe of the ſtrength of thoſe barbarous Rebels, and the evident probability of Foreign Supplies (if they are not ſpeedily ſuppreſſed), the very ſlow Succours hitherto ſent them from hence ; that the Officers of ſeveral Regiments, who have long time been allowed entertainment from you for that ſervice, have not raiſed any ſupply or ſuccour for that Kingdom ; that many Troops of Horſe have long lain near Cheſter untranſported ; that the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, on whom we relied principally for the conduct and managing of Affairs there, is ſtill in this Kingdom, notwithstanding our earneſtneſs expreſſed that he ſhould repair to his command ; and when we conſider the many and great ſcandals raiſed upon our ſelf by report of the Rebels, and not ſufficiently diſcountenanced here, notwithstanding ſo many profeſſions of ours ; and had ſeen a Book lately printed by the Order of the Houſe of Commons, entituled, “ A Remonſtrance of divers remarkable Paſſages concerning the Church and Kingdom of Ireland,” wherein ſome Examinations are ſet down, which (how improbable or impoſſible ſoever) may make an impreſſion in the minds of many of our weak Subjects ; and laſtly, when we duely weigh the diſhonour which will perpetually lye upon this Kingdom, if full and ſpeedy relief be not diſpatched thither ; we could, nor can not think of a better way to diſcharge our duty to Almighty God for the Defence of the true Proteſtant Profeſſion, or to manifeſt our affection to our Three Kingdoms for their preſervation, then by engaging our Perſon in this Expedition, as many of our Royal Progenitors have done, even in foreign Parts, upon Cauſes of leſs Importance and Piety, with great honour to themſelves, and advantage to this Kingdom ; and therefore we expected, at leaſt, thanks for ſuch our Inclination.

For the danger to our Perſon ;—We conceive it neceſſary and worthy of a King to adventure his life to preſerve his Kingdom, neither can it be imagined, that we will fit ſtill and ſuffer our Kingdoms to be loſt, and our good Proteſtant Subjects to be maſſacred, without expoſing our own Perſon to the utmoſt hazard for their relief and preſervation, our life, when it was moſt pleaſant ; being nothing ſo precious to us, as it is, and ſhall be, to govern and preſerve our People with Honour and Juſtice.

For any encouragement to the Rebels, becauſe of the Reports they raiſed ;—We cannot conceive that the Rebels are capable of greater terror then by the preſence of their lawful King in the head of an Army to chaſtiſe them : Beſides, it will be an unſpeakable advantage to them, if any Reports of theirs could hinder us from doing any thing which were fit for us to do if ſuch Reports were not raised; this would quickly teach them in this jealous Age, to prevent, by such Reports, any other Persons coming against them, whom they had no mind should be employed.

We marvel that the Adventurers, whose advantage was a principal Motive (next the reason before mentioned) to us, should so much misty our purpose, whose interest we conceive must be much improved by the Expedition, we hope (by God's blessing) to use in this Service; this being the most probable way for the speedy conquest of the Rebels. Their Lands are sufficiently secured by Act of Parliament.

We think not our self kindly used, that the Addition of so few Men to your Leavies (for a guard to our Person in Ireland) should be thought fit for your refusal: and much more, that having used so many cautions in that Message; both in the smallness of the Number; in our having raised none until your Answer; in their being to be raised only near their place of Shipping; in their being there to be armed, and that, not till they were ready to be shipped; in the Provision, by the Oaths, that none of them should be Papists (all which appears sufficient to destroy all grounds of Jealousie of any force intended by them in opposition to the Parliament, or favour to any malignant Party); any suspicion should notwithstanding be grounded upon it.

Neither can it be understood, that when we recommended the managing of that War to you, that we intended to exclude our self, or not to be concerned in your Councils, that if we found any expedient, which in our Conscience or Understanding we thought necessary for that great Work, we might not put it in practice. We look upon you as our great Council, whose Advice we always have and will (with great regard and deliberation) weigh and consider: but look upon our self, as neither deprived of our understanding, or destitute of any right we had, if there were no Parliament sitting. We called you together by our own Writ and Authority (without which you could not have met) to give us faithful Counsel about our great Affairs: but we resigned not up our own Interest and Freedom. We never subjected our self to your absolute determination. We have always weighed your Counsels, as proceeding from a Body entrusted by us; and when we have dissented from you, we have returned you the Reasons, which have prevailed with our Conscience and Understanding, with that Candor, as a Prince should use towards his Subjects, and that affection, which a Father can express to his Children. What application hath been used to rectify our Understanding by Reasons, or what Motives have been given to persuade our Affections, we leave all the World to judge. And then we must tell you, howsoever a major part may bind you in matter of opinion, we hold our self (and we are sure the Law, and the Constitution of the Kingdom hath always held the same) as free to dissent (till our reason be convinced for the general good) as if you delivered no opinion.

For our journey it self;—The circumstances of your Petition are such, as we know not well what Answer to return, or whether we were best to give any. That part, which pretends to carry reason with it, doth no way satiate us; The other, which is rather reprehension and menace than advice, cannot stagger us. Our Answer therefore is, That we shall be very glad to find the work of Ireland so easie as you seem to think it; which did not so appear by any thing known to us, when we sent our Message. And though we will never refuse, or be unwilling to venture our Person for the good and safety of our People, we are not so weary of our life, as to hazard it impertinently. And therefore, since you seem to have received Advertisements of some late and great Successes in that Kingdom, we will stay some time to see the event of these, and not pursue this Resolution, till we have given you a second notice: but if we find the miserable condition of our poor Subjects of that Kingdom be not speedily relieved, we will (with God's assistance) visit them with Succors, as our particular Credit and Interest can supply us with, if you re-safe to joyn with us. And we doubt not, but the Leavies we shall make (in which we will observe punctually the former, and all other cautions, as may best prevent all fears and jealousies, and to use no power but what is legal,) will be so much to the satisfaction of our Subjects, as no person will dare presume to resist our commands; and if they should, at their peril be it. In the mean time, we hope our forwardness so remarkable to that Service shall be notorious to all the World, and that all scandals laid on us in that business shall be clearly wiped away.

We were so careful that our Journey into Ireland should not interrupt the Proceedings of Parliament, nor deprive our Subjects of any Acts of Justice or further Acts of Grace, for the real benefit of our People, that we made a free offer of leaving such power behind, as should not only be necessary for the Peace and Safety of the Kingdom, but fully provide for the happy Progress of the Parliament; and therefore we cannot but wonder, since such power hath been always left here by Commission for the Government of this Kingdom, when our Progenitors have been out of the same, during the sitting of Parliaments: And since your selves desired that such a Power might be left here by us at our last going into Scotland, what Law of the Land have you now found to dispense with you, from submitting to such Authority, legally derived from Us, in our absence, and to enable you to govern this Kingdom by your own meer Authority?

For our return towards London;—We have given you so full an Answer in our late Declaration, and in Answer to your Petition presented to Us at York the 20th of March last, that we know not what to add, if you will not provide for our security with you, nor agree to remove to another place, where there may not be the same Danger to us. We expected that (since we have been so particular in the Causes and Grounds of our Fears) you should have sent us word, that you had published such Declarations against future Tumults and unlawful Assemblies, and taken such Courses for the suppressing of seditious Sermons and Pamphlets, that our Fears of that kind might be laid aside, before you should press our Return.

To Conclude, We could wish that you would, with the same strictness and severity, weigh and examine your Messages and Expressions to Us, as you do those you receive from Us; for we are very confident, that if you examine Our Rights and Privileges by what our Predecessors have enjoyed, and your own Addresses by the usual Courses of your Ancestors, you will find many expressions in this Petition warranted only by your own Authority, which indeed we forbear to take notice of, or to give Answer to, lest we should be tempted (in a just Indignation) to express a greater passion than we are yet willing to put on. God in his good time (we hope) will so inform the hearts of all our Subjects, that we shall recover from the mischief and danger of this distemper, on whose good pleasure we will wait with all patience and humility.

This printed Petition, formerly set down, is relative to ane Message sent be the King abefoir to the Parliament, concerning his journey towardis Ireland, as planelie do appeir; and in this petition is divers reasons unfit for diverting his Majesty thairfra; bot the King makis his awin answer thairto, foundit upone his owne reasons befor expressit.

Now daylie moir and moir forces preparing for Ireland. It wes said, the Marques of Argile had purchest ane patent fra the King and English Parliament to levy soldiours for Ireland, and to go in with fyre and sword, and what he conquest could be his awin, holdin of his Majesty. It wes reportit, that thair wes 10,000 chalderis of victuall to be transportit out of Scotland to Ireland for mantenans of foldiouris; and Argyle had agreit with Mr. Robert Farquhar for 10,000 bollis victuall to be careit out of this north countrie to Knockfergus, for the quhilk he fould have ten pundis for ilk boll wes landit faillie on sehore. He coft mekill victuall in this countrie to fulfill his bargane with Argyle, and raifit the victuall to heiche prices upone the countrie people for his particuler gane. Bot howfoever this bargane wes maid, the Marques of Argyle had no fuche patent, naither went on in service.

Word cam heir to Aberdein, that about the 20 of Aprile Schir Thomas Dorell and Schir Johne Hales, tua of the Kingis domestick fervitouris, had intercepted ane letter written be the Parliament of England to Schir Johne Hotham, governour of Hull, beiring ane expres command and charge, inace his Majestie cam to Hull and craveit entres to the toune, to hold him at the portis, and not to suffer his Majestie to cum in. This letter wes brocht to the King, as is said; whairat he much mervallit, and also wes heichlie offendit. Alwayis, for forder tryall and his better assureans, he directit the famen letter to the fairfaid governour of Hull; and upone the bak thairof, his Maiestie lap on about four hundreth hors, haveing also in his company Charles the young Prince and James Duke of York, his tuo fones, Count Pallatyne, the Duke of Lennox and sum uther nobilmen, and cam ryding directlie to the brugh of Hull: bot when he cam there the haill portis wes cloisfit fast. The King desired the governour to give him entrie to his owne toune, whiche he planelie refusit, quhairat his Majestie wes heichlie offendit. The King went forder on, and cravit bot entrie to him self, his owne tua fones, his sifter sone and the Duke of Lennox, not passing in number 20 perfonis: bot this wes refusit also, albeit thair wes 2000 foldiouris lying in garison within the toune. The King feing this, caufis proclame this goveynour traittour, and returnes bak melancholik to the toune of York; fra whiche place he writis and sendis ane Message to the Parliament aganes this Schir John Hotham, governour of Hull; and thairefter sendis ane second Message to thame, tending thus:

His Majesties second Message sent to the Parliament concerning Sir John Hotham's refusal to gif his Majestie entrans into his toune of Hull, 28 Aprile 1642.

WE are so much concerned in the undutiful Affront (an indignity all Our good Subjects must disdaine in Our behalf) We received from Sir John Hotham at Hull, that We are impatient till We receive Justice from you; and are compelled to call again for an Answer, being confident, however you would be so careful (though without Our consent) to put a Garison into that Our Town, to secure it and Our Magazine against any attempt of the Papists, that you never intended to dispose and maintain it against Us your Sovereign: Therefore We require you forthwith, (for the business will admit no delay) that you take some speedy course, that Our said Town and Magazine be immediately delivered up unto Us, and that such severe exemplary Proceedings be against those Persons who have offered Us this insupportable Affront and Injury, as by the Law is provided. And till this be done, We shall intend no business whatsoever, other then the business of Ireland; for if we are brought into a condition so much worse than any of Our Subjects, that whilst you all enjoy your Privileges, and may not have your possessions disturbed, or your Titles questioned, We only may be spoiled, thrown out of Our Towns, and Our Goods taken from us, 'tis time to examine how We have lost those Privileges, and to try all possible ways, by the help of God, the Law of the Land, and the affection of Our good Subjects, to recover them, and vindicate Our Self from those Injuries. And if We shall miscarry herein, We shall be the first Prince of this Kingdom that hath done so; having no other end, but to defend the true Protestant Profession, the Law of the Land, and the Liberty of the Subject; and God so deal with Us as we continue in those Resolutions.

This piece was printed at York by Robert Barker, prynter to the Kingis Majestie.

Upon the end of this Message thair was printed as followis:

Voitis concerning Sir Johne Hotham.

1. Sir Johne Hotham hath done nothing but in obediens to the command of both houffis.
2. That his Majesties proclameing Sir Johne Hotham traittour (being a member of the hous of parliament), without dew orduor of law, is against the libertie of the subject and against the law of the land.
3. Sir Thomas Dorrill and Sir Johne Hales ar to be sent wp for interrupting of the parliamentis letter from Sir Johne Hotham.
4. The militia of the County to assist the governouris of Hull, as occasion fall serve for thair defens.
5. The gentlemen the petitioneris to be summondit wp to the parliament furthwith.

Thir voitis of Parliament gave no satisfiacion to the Kingis most just desire; but rather not only approves Schir Johne Hotham's doings to be good, but also findis fault that he wes proclamt traittour; that the Kingis servandis for interrupting of the Parliamentis letter sould be sent wp, and the rest, as is befor voittit. The King, thus disapointed of his expectatioun, takis it havie, and as is said, he declairit by ane other paper, he likit no civill warris; but if warris cum, let God be Judge. This town of Hull is ane of the principall strenthis of all England, quhairin the Kingis magazeen still lay. The Parliamentaris at ther owne hand, but the Kingis advys, takis in the toune, mellis with the Kingis magazeen and militia, fettis in ane garisoun of soldiouris to defend the same, and places the said Schir John Hotham governour, who rebelliouslie stood out against the King, as ye have haird. Nather could his Majestie get reparatioun, do his best; yit the Lord in his awin tyme re-vengit his caus, and maid the Parliamentaris thame felfis to hang him wp and young Schir John Hotham his sone both, for faultis committit aganes the Parliament thame felfis, as thay alledgit.

Upone the thrid Tuyfday of Aprile and nynteint day of the famen moneth, the Provinciall Assenblie sat down in the sessioun hous of New Aberdein; Mr. David Lyndfay persone of Balhelvie is moderatour whill the nixt Provinciall Assenblie. Ilk minister had his reulling elder. Doctor Forbes of Cors, professor, wes sent for, who compeirit obedientlie befor this Assenblie. The Moderatour, with the rest, publictly regraitit his lying out from his calling to the prejudice both of kirk and commoun weill. He maid his awin ansuer. Then the bretheren sent out of thair number ane committe to confer privatlie with him anent his not subseriving of the covenant, and to ask why he went not to Edinbrughe for his forder resoluitioun, as wes commount at the Generall Assenblie holdin laft at Abirdene. Efter some ressoning with this committee, he said, if the Provinciall Assenblie thocht fit, he sould go to Edinbrughe, quhilk thay advist him to do, to sie if he could recover his owne place, whiche wes not yit fillit wp. Sie moir heirefter.

At this Assenblie, Mr. Williame Wedderburn, minister at Bathelny, is accusit of fornicatioun; he confessis, and is deprievit and ordanit to mak repentance.

Mr. Thomas Mitchell, persone of Turref, is accusit for persewing of Thomas Bellis wyf to have lyin with hir in Coupar of Fyf as he is cuming home from Edinbrughe; and siclyk, in that famen manis hous in Coupar, offering to fors ane uther woman at the famen tyme. He is dilated be the said Thomas Bell him self, then duelling in Drum suppose his wyf wes duelling in Coupar. The Assenblie, eschamit of this purpos, directis out ane committee of the bretheren to confer privatlie with the said Mr. Thomas Mitchell heiranent, who constantlie stood to his denyall. The Assenblie heirfoir apointis this mater to be furder tryit in presens of thretteine ministeris and aucht reulling elderis speciallie nominat, and for that effect to meit in New Abirdene the first of June nixt.

Thair wes divers utheris suspitionis amonges thame, bot quietlie suppressit. Mr. Androw Logie, persone of Rayne, wes publictly accusit upone sun pointes of misbehaveour, and ordanit to byde tryell befor ane committee of ministeris and reulling elderis. Sindrie utheris thingis being exped, this Assenblie, upone Frydday the 22 of Aprile, dissolvit.

About this tyme, cam word that our Bischop of Abirdene and Bischop of Brechin had gottin fra the King benefices in England, and Doctor Sibbald wes ane preicher in Ireland.

It is said, the King of Denmark had raifit his customes quadrapull to whiche wes payit befor, in contempt of the English and Scottis Covenanters standing out aganist thair lauffull King and his owne sifter sone, and none fuld pas by Alfhoneir without payment, to the gryte wrak of our countreis who can not weill leive without iron, lynt, pis, whyte, ry, and sic commodeteis.

Now agane is the toune of Abirdein difapointit, by expectatioun, of thair customes. Patrik Leslie agreis with the Erll Marfchall. He getis his hail money in ane fok, quhilk wes better to the Erll nor to tak it in yeirlie, and Patrik Leslie gettis ane letter of tak over Marfchallis heid, who had promeffit to set the same customes to Abirdein it self.

The burgh of Abirdein is perfeut befor the proveft and balleis of Abirdeine for 18 lib. 2 s. as price of ilk muscat with the rest, and four pundis for ilk pik according to ilk maus severall introniffioun, albeit thir armes, with thair awin beyde, wes plunderit fra thame be the Erll Marfchall and Major Monro, as ye have befor. The toun is also stentit in ane taxatioun of fevin thousand merkis to pay thrie minifteris thair stipendis yeirlie, and the superplus to help to pay the annuell of 40,000 lib. quhair of the toun throw the good caus wes drawin in debt. Thir bussines bred gryte murmuring in the toun, and ilk man wes stentit and compellit to mak payment proportionallie.

Upone Sondag the 24 of Aprile, the communion the second tyme wes givin heir, quhair Doctor Forbes of Cors took it agane, who had never subfcrivit the covenant and still stood out; of whome ye may heirefter fie moir, and also befor.

Ye heard of the incendiareis, viz. Johne Bisshop of Ros, Mr. Walter Banchell, the Erll of Traquhair, Schir Robert Spotifwod president and Schir John Hay lait Clerk Register; the first tua wes absent out of the kingdome, the last thrie wes present and past ther tryellis, and Traquhair, as wes thoct, found guiltie in fyve pointes. Sie the 34 Act of the 33 Parliament.

In lyk maner the Erll of Montrois, Archibald Lord Neper, Schir George Stirling of Keir knicht, Schir Archibald Stenart of Blackhall knicht, war all contynewit to the nixt Parliament. Sie the 33 Act of K. Charles' second Seffion.

Upone the 28 of Aprile, Mr. Alexander Colvill justice deput, Mr. Alexander Hammiltoun clerk deput to the Justice Clerk, cam to Abirdeine, and from that rode to Elgyn to hold ane Committee, as ye have befor and heirefter.

About this tyme, thair cam furth ane imprinted Querie with ane Anfuer maid thairto, as do appeir be the same Authour, and as sum sayes by the English Parliament, vi3.

Quæritur, What falbe done with a King that defertis his Parliament, that bringis in foraigne nationis and neglectis his Militia, that is, turnes the mouth of his cannon aganis his awine subjetiis.

Anfueris, This King tynes his government of the Militia simpliciter de jure.

This printed Querie, thus proponit and solvit, wes thocht strange to many who saw and read the sament. Howfoever it wes, or whofoever it wes who set out this Querie, yit it is most certane the Parliament wold nowayes grant to give the government of the Militia to the King, quhilk treulie and justlie belongit unto his royall Majestie, feiring, if he had that pouer in his owne hand, he nicht command these Parliamentaris perforce to yeild, submit and obey his Majestie; whiche utherwayes he culd get hardlie done, as it proveit over true, and may be seie in this discourfe.

The King fand him self heichlie wrongit, on the uther pairt, be his owne subjectis, to withhold perforce fra him the Militia, quhair of him self is capitane, being righteous King, and ane speciall poynt of his prerogative royall, and resolvit to have and hold the sament as his royall prediceffouris wes in use to do befor him, or die be the get. Thus, he is brocht under feir of his lyf, or by his subjectis to be takin and imprissonit if he stand out aganis them. And on the uther pairt, the Parliament standis still in feir of his Majestie and alteratioun of religioun, as wes thocht; albeit thay knew the contrarie, having his overthrow rather privatlie aimed at nor ony siche preposterous feir of religioun, as heirefter cleirly do appeir. Albeit this royall King wes indewit be God Almichtie with sic rair giftis of bodie and mynd, as Gryte Britan had never his parrelllell to raigne, for he wes holie, godlie, religious, zealous in prayer, upright and just, and a brave justitiar, mercifull and bountifull, chaift, charitable and liberall, nowayis covetous, nor bloodthristie, moderat and temperat in his mouth, clein and pure in all his actionis; nevertheles this godlie, religious King, is, by his unnaturall subjectis, (for thair endis,) brocht to this poynt and extremetie, that he wes under feir of his lyf or captivitie, as is formerlie said, and had no certantie to rest in England, Scotland or Ireland with saistie, done and actit be that clandestyne covenant drawin up betuixt the malcontentis or rather malignantis in Scotland and England, and careit so secreitlie, as his Majestie hard never of the sament, albeit the Marques of Hammiltoun and uther his counfallouris knew the sament veray weill. And if, in the beginning, it had beine reveillit to the King, his Majestie micht have efelie punifht the traittouris, and fuppreft the perfidious plot: bot befor the fame cam to his eires the mater wes paf help or cure, quhilk I befeich the Almichtie God, fercher of all hairtis, to pacifie, and to bring the King and his fubjectis vnder a foleid weill fated peace.

In the mein tyme, the King begins to luke about him felf, and to try who were his freindis and who war his foes, and the Parliament freiching thame felfis be all maner of wayis to get thair will over the King.

Sunday the first of May, ane fast folempnie keipit throw all the kirkis of Scotland, for thir caufis, 1. For the fynis of the land in generall, 2. The defractionis of England and Scotland, and 3. The defractionis within England it felf. Doctour Goold preichit in Old Abirdene, both befor and efternoone; the people keipit churche all day, and whill efternoone's fermon wes done. And it wes ufit to ryng thrie bellis ilk fafting day to the efternoone's preiching; heir wes ane new fashioun begun, and bot ane bell rung to reconvein sic people to the efternoone's preiching as cam not to the foirnoone's preiching; quhilk forme wes efteruardis keipit on fafting dayis.

Monday the 2 of May, drums daylie beating throw New Abirdein for foldiouris to marche for Ireland in the Erll of Lindfayis regiment vnder Major Borthuik upone the Kingis pay, ilk commoun foldiour to have aucht f. of wages ilk day, and the officiaris to get gude payment of ther owne dewis. There wes 10,000 foldiouris raifit and to be raifit out of Scotland for this expedition, and 15,000 raifit out of England upone thair charges. The Englifh had order to marche in upone the fourth part of Ireland, and the Scottis to enter in upone the north fyde of the countrie. The Irifhis convent in gryte multitude; bot wes feant of armes and ammunitioun, as wes thocht, and finche as thay expectit for cuming out of Waf Flanderis, for ther fupplie, wes daylie takin be the Hollanderis, who ftill attendit upone thame.

Ye hard of befor of Generall Major Monro. He arryvit faiflie at Knokfergus and receavit his pay compleitlie, and wreittis to the Scottis counfall for orderis. There wes few foldiouris in thir north partis to this Irifh expedition, bot raifit out of the fourth, and finall content amongis the officiaris of fortoun who had left ther fortouns in other countreis, and cam home hoiping for preferment and benefit both in thir troubles; bot thay war difapointed, for ilk noble man wold be crouner of his owne company, fuppose of fmall fkill, who chuiſit ther owne captanes, lewtennantis, and under officiaris of ther owne freindis for ther preferment, who had never fervit in the warris; quhairby the good foldiouris wes debarrit, and the regimentis liklie to be misfydit. Bot Generall Leslie, heiring of this misorder, resolvit and gave command that ilk regiment suld be fervit with qualeseit commanderis, and not be unskilfull foldiouris; albeit mony of the officiaris of fortoun had gryte murmuring, who upone Generall Leslie's letteris had left thair services in Swaden, Denmark, Germany, France, Polland and uther foraign countreis, and had cum home and fervit at Newcastle in this service, and disapointed of thair pay be Generall Leslie him self; so that fra the croumer to the sngle foldiour thair wes want of payment, whiche maid ilk man to do for him self. Sum went bak to foraign countreis; utheris went in to York, who wes weill receavit be the King, and placed in the countrie about; uther sum baid still in Scotland, albeit thay had not yit gottin gryte content; the foirsaid Generall Leslie, the Erll of Cassellis, the Erll of Lindfay and divers utheris making gryte preparation for this service.

Upone Sunday the 8 of May, the communioun givin the thrid tyme heir in Old Abirdene. Doctor Forbes took it agane, and Doctor Leslie at this tyme, albeit bothe out standers and not subscriberis of the Covenant, albeit, it wes thocht, for that caus to have bein raisit fra the table.

Upone Wednesday 4 May, Doctor Goold principall began a noveltie, and to preiche upone this weik day within the College Kirk to Old Abirdene; the bellis of Maucher Kirk and bellis of the College Kirk both rang to this weikly fermon. His auditouris war feu, who had littell feist of the doctrein, and at last him self wyreit, and shortlie gave over this weiklie fermon moir foolishlie nor it began.

About this tyme, the Chancelair of Scotland rode to York to speik with his Majestie. Sum said he wes writtin for; bot about the 10 of May he returnit bak agane, and ane counfall day follout.

The Erll of Montrois, the Erll of Airly and Laird of Keir, as wes said, rode to the King, bot his Majestie expresse prohibit thame to cum neirer to him nor within ane post, becaus be the 33 Act of his owne Parliament he is obligit not to give presens to plotteres or incendiareis but advise of Parliament; yet it wes thocht thay had conferens with sum of the Kingis serviouris, quhairwith thay war content, and so returnit hame agane.

Upone the day of May, the Bischop of Morayis wyf haveing canfit transport out of Spynnie her hail goodis, geir, insicht and plenishing, and send about be sea to the place of Guthrie, heritable pertening to hir husband, scho, I say, removis, the said day, fra the said place of Spynny, and deliveris the Aluaies the Bifchopis wyf leaves Moray, and, convoyit be hir tuo fones, Mr. John Guthrie perfone of Duffis and Mr. Patrik Guthrie, cam to Old Abirdene upone the 13 of May, and from that paff towardis Angous, hir husband remaining in Abirbrothock, who had never feen uther fince hir husband wes takin fouth, as ye have befoir:

Thairefter, the Bifchop takis wp hous in his awin place of Guthrie, and thair quyetlie remanes.

Efter removing of his wyf fra Spynnie, the Erll of Morray poffeffit his fifter fone the young laird of Innes thairwith ; bot it wes faid the fame nicht he enterit Spynnie, the flaitlie hous of Milntoun of Ros, pertening to his father, wes rekleslie brynt, (except the tour,) with mekill good inficht and plenifhing ; a thing to be nottit.

Upone the 12 of May, Mr. Alexander Colven, juftice deput, and Mr. Alexander Hammiltoun, juftice clerk deput, held ane Juftice Court at Elgin be way of Committe, haveing conventit the Marques of Huntlie, the Lord Gordoun, the Erllis of Morray, Findlater, and many Barronis. Thair erand wes, to agrie with Williame M^rIntofhe alias M^rLachlen to rais 60 men to keip, fra Dumnotter north to the North Sie Bank, the haill countreis from thift, roberie and oppreffiou of the Clangrigour, who wes wp in companeis ufeing all violence. Thair wes promefit to him for this fervice 9000 lib. Scottis to faif the countrie fkaithles during the fpace of ane yeir, he aluaies haveing pouer to rais the countrie for his defence, if neid requirit. Lyke as, he fet divers Barronis cautioneris to refund sic fkaith as wes done in the tyme foir-faid to the countrie people. This agreans wes maid at Elgyne, as wes maid abefoir at Sanct Johnftoun with James Steuart of for faiffing the countreis from the fame Clangrigouris. Schortlie Williame M^rLachlan and his men gois to the feildis. This Committe court contynewit 8 dayis in Elgyne, whair Williame Couper in Glenranes wes affisit and convict to be hangit for inceft and uther crymes. Ane new Committe wes appointit to be haldin agane at Elgyne the day of Auguft nixtoeum, and fo diffolvit.

Upone Sondag 15 May, Mr. John Ray, ane of the regentis within College Marfchall, fitting at the morning prayeris in the Newtown Kirk, fuddantlie fell frenatiek, and, ryfing wp, cryitt loudlie out, to the gryte aftoneifment of the haill people. Aluaies he wes convoyit home, blood drawin and becam folid schortlie efteruard. Sum nottit this suddantie to be the thrid accident or visitatioun of this College Marschall; for first, the hous took fyre, as ye have befor; 2. Mr. Thomas Blackhall, ane of the regentis thairof, turnit Papist, excommunicat and leaves the kingdome for his religioun; and 3. this accident of madnes falling in the persone of ane uther regent. Bot the Lord schortlie refforit him to his richt wittis agane, bliffit be his holie name.

May 24, the Marques of Huntlie and the Lord Gordoun his sone cam frome Strathbogie to Tullifour, held courtis, maid chalmers, and took possession of the Lady Wardes hir haill lifrent landis in hir name and name of the laird of Cluny hir husband, both being absent in Durhame in England, and syne returnit bak to Strathbogie agane. Sie heirefter.

Wedensday 25 May, ane gryte counfall day holdin in Edinbrughe, quhilk with Leith wes wnder watche. Thair wes presentit befor this counfall his Majesties letter, schowing how his English subjectis wes incroching upone his royall prerogative, and thairfor desyrit thame and his Scottis subjectis to stand to his defens, conforme to ther oath of allegiance, and to assist him as necessitie requirit. Sie this letter. To this counfall there cam from the Parliament of England commissioneris also desireing thame to remember ther first clandestine Covenant maid betuixt the pryne malignantis of Scotland, forgeris and begynneris of our Covenant, and the puritanes and malignantis of England, and to stand to the samen. The counfall is put to their wittis. It is heir to be nottit, how this royal King first and last is abusit by his subjectis of bothe kingdomes, by the draucht of this ungodlie, treffonable, clandestine Covenant, quhairof his Majestie had never gottin knowledge. For first, as appeires, it wes devyfit, oure Scottis began the perturbatioun in the kirk of Edinbrughe, raisis ane army, gois into England, and gat good payment of brotherlie assistans, as ye have befor. The King craves assistance from England against the Scottis cuming into thair countrie. They wold do nothing without thay had ane parliament, quhilk his Majestie wes forfit to indiet, quhairby the English wan thair desires. Then craftellie commissioneris war chosin betwixt the King and the Scottis, Articles drawin wp, tending to oure weill, and discontent of the Kingis Majestie, and done by sic commissioneris who wes our freindis, albeit chosin by the King. Well, thir Articles of peace drawin wp, bothe armes of England and Scotland disbandit. A parliament holden at Scotland. The King cumis and grantis oure haill desyres; bot gat no content him self, as the actis of parliament proportis. He returnis to the parliament of England, and findes thay ar daylie incroching upone his royall prerogative, whairfor

he wreittis in to this Scottis counfall, and craves thair aid, counfall and advys as becumis loyall subjectis to ther leige lord. This is a strange plot devised be two combynded factionis to beir down a gryte and godlie monarche, governour over both nationis of England and Scotland and Ireland. Howsoever this clandestine Covenant wes privatlie drawin wp by the Kingis knowledge, be the begineris of the Covenant heir in Scotland on the ane pairt, and the English puritans on the uther pairt; yet there wes many noble men of both kingdomes that wes not on this cours nor privie to the same, quhill about this counfall day this clandestyne Covenant began to brak out and be divulgat, quhilk took sunn stamp in ther stomachis, thinking thay war not tyit to this privie Covenant, and wold rather follow the King nor the cheif leidaris of this Covenant; quhilk indeid bred hart burninges and gryte and many malcontentes, and grite appeirans of distractionis and divisonis both in Scotland and England, besydis the gryte rebellious in Ireland. Who followit the King, favored, and baidd fastest be him in thir dayis of distemper within Scotland, he is forced to quyte thame, and these loyall subjectis ar holdin incendiareis and plotteris; sunn takin and wairdit, utheris sunn chaift out of the kingdome, utheris accufit most shamefullie in presence of Committees, quhilk the King could not ganestand, suppose fore against his will. His Majesteis most special freindes in England also holden be parliament evill counfallouris, the Archibisshop of Canterburie wairdit, and 12 uther bischopis takin and disgracefullie wairdit. The gryte deputie of Ireland, the Kingis most loyall and trew fervitour, and a thunder bolt against our Scottis covenant, most cruellie behaidit, to his Majesteis unspeikable greif, and quhilk he could not get helpit. So Scotlandis covenantis first gat ther hail willis, reullit or misreullit all; England, following thair footsteps, gois on in the same cours. So, both in kirk and policie, they will change and mak lawis and alterationis, gyde and governe all, and mak the King yield, subscribe and consent thairto, albeit fore against his will, or utheruayes no peace in Israell. His Majesteis rentis in Scotland taken wp perforce, to mantane soldiouris against him self, quhairwith he sueitlie and noble dispenses; and lykuaies gives full pouer to mell with his rentis, quhill uther charges and deburfmentis (givin wp be the covenantis) wes first payit; his freindis and folloneris in Scotland spoyllit of ther landis, rentis, digniteis and offices in sunn kynd, and covenantis, gryttest enemeis to the King, preferrit to thair places, both in Counfall and Sessiou, tho fore against the will of this royall King; and is so bound wp be act of parliament, not to prefer thame to ony publick office but consent of parliament, nor to speik or confer with thame but ther advys, as ye have in the 33

act of K. Charles' second parliament. What other acts and ordinances is there set down in favours of thame selfis, thair counsallors and followeris, may be cleirly seene extendit, with consent of his Majestie, to the satisfactioun of thair hairtis and myndis, against the expectatioun of many, and wonder of all the Christian world, (see more hereafter,) and to the gryte disgrace, schame and skaith of all his Majesties freinds and followeris.

Thursdai 26 May, the presbitrie of Abirdene changes thair presbiter day of weiklie meiting fra Thursdai to Tuysdai. It wes first changeit fra Fryd-day to Thursdai, and now fra Thursdai to Tuysdai; sic changes now goes. Doctor Scrogie compeiris befor this presbitrie, and produces, vnder his owne hand, his owne recantatioun following:

1. Whairfor, cleiriog decerning my former mistakingis in opposing the Nationall Covenant of this Kirk and Kingdome, I do now pass from all the reasons and argumentis spoken or givin out be my self alone, or otheris, either before or at the lait Assamble of Abirdene, against oure subscribing thair of, in als far as thay militat against the Covenant, or utteris any thing to the prejudice thair of.

2. And particularly, I declare now the pointis quhairupone I wes questiond at my deposition, and did not then cleirly gif satisfactioun, as followis:

1. I profes the humanite of Christ ought not to be painted for religious uses, or to be had in public places of worship.

2. That the kirk of Rome is ane hereticall, apostaticall and idolatrous kirk, and not the true kirk.

3. I now declare cleirly, that it is unlauchfull in a Chrifteane kirk to have, or use altaris, cappingis and bowingis before them, the preistis habit whill he offeris (as surpleffis, rochetis, keapis) the table standing altar wayes, prayeris toward the east.

4. I do also, according to oure Covenant, refuse the Service book, book of Canonis, Ordinatioun, and heighe Comission, evin as they ar condemned by oure Generall Asssemblies, and upone the same groundis.

5. I farther do declare, that albeit in the Lordis Supper there is a commemoratioun of the sacrifice of Christ for us, yit the samen ought not to be called properlie a Sacrifice, either propitiatorie or commemorative.

6. I also renunce the absolut necessitie of private baptisme.

7. I deny the Sacrament of the Lordis supper could be givin to dying persons as a viaticon, and think the giving or taking thereof to be superstitious.

8. I confes, that the citing of the place, Mathew 26. 32., All those that tak the sword fall perish by the sword, and Rom. 13. 2., They who resist fall receive to them selfis condemnation, to condemn the just and necessarie defens of this nation, ar misapplied; and do blis God that oure Sovereigne the King, and oure neighbour kingdome of England, have taken notice of, and caused to publish the dewtifulness and loyaltie of oure nation thereanent.

9. And if any other thing be found, set out be me or otheris about Abirdene, contrair to the just and lauchfull caus of the Covenant, I disclam them all.

10. Fynallie, I allow and avow the lauchfulness of reulling elderis in the government of the Kirk, and in all the Asssemblies thereof.

At the Presbitrie of Abirdene, 26 May 1642. Sic subscribitur, MR. ALEXR. SCROGIE.

This Recantatioun wes wondred at be many; he byding out fo long, with gryte lois of menis and credet both, cumis now in, as is befor nottit, first in Edinbrughe, now in Abirdene, resolving to leive quyethie in the toune with his wyf and barnes, and to abyde his tyme with patiens.

Ye hard befor of the Kingis letter brocht befor oure counfall the 25 of May, quhilk by them wes ordanit to be imprintit, and quhairof the teunour follows :

CHARLES,

Richt trustie and weilbelovit coufinges and counfallouris, We greit yow well. Althogh we have wrettin oure mynd to yow oure Counfall, yit upone oure second thoghtis, arying especiallie upone sum bad rumouris cuming to oure knowledge, we fynd it necessaerie, both for oure self and for the good of that oure kingdome, to declair and mak knowne both oure dispoition and desires moir fully.

We know and feill the charge to be great, and the place to be heich, whairin God (the King of Kingis) hath placed ws, and that we must render ane accompt of all oure actionis to him who in his owne tyme fall judge all men without exceptioun of perfonis. We have no uther intentionis, but by oure government to honour him by whome kingis raigne, and to procure the good of oure people; and for this end to preserve the richt and auctoritie wherewith God hath vested ws, and whiche by his providence hath bein derived to ws by many princelie progenitouris, in the whiche glorie, that oure auncient kingdome and native realme of Scotland dothe participat.

We did not requyre of yow, that ye suld sit as judges upone the effaires of another kingdome. We only intendit to have both our sufferinges and oure actionis (as thay ar exprest in mony paperis past betuixt ws and oure parliament) maid' throughlie knowne unto yow, that, since we have none befydis yow whome we acquent with oure proceedinges, yow may cleirlye sie that we have bein fo far from wronging oure parliament of England, that we have given them all satisfioun, even above that whiche thay them felvis in the beginning did expref or almost desyre, and as muche as could weil consist with the faistie of oure honour and perfone. We will not put yow in mynd of your naturall affection towardis ws, whiche we know wilbe rather kindled then extinguishit by oure distres; nor of your covenant, wherein yow ar zealous of oure grytnes and auctoritie, and whiche standeth in that sens wherein yow did sweir and subscryve it; nor of the many good lawis maid in oure lait parliament (of whiche we hope the present and succeding generatiounis shall reap the fructis, when we ar deid and gone); nor of the mony promeis maid to ws, upone which we were willing to yeild to suche thinges for fetling the government of that oure kingdome in oure personall absens, whiche neither culd we have grantit, nor wold yow have cravit (as your selfis did profes) had oure gryter effaires permittit oure residence amongis yow. And quhair as we ar most unjustlie blamed and calumniate, 1. That we ar Popishlie affected, 2. That we ar the caus of the blood shed in Ireland, 3. That we intend to bring in foraigne forces, We heir do protest and declair, in presens of him who knowis the most secreit of oure actionis and intentionis, that we ar no wayes conscious to owre self of the guiltines of any of the saidis aspersiounis, and do tak him to witnes oure innocency thairin, who onlie hath the priviledge to be the fercher of hartis; and if any efter fo full and plane professioun fall distrust this oure frie declaratioun, we attest God that the fault is in the malignitie of their rebellious humouris, and nowayis deservit on oure part.

Given at oure court at York, the 20 of May, 1642.

This piece cuming befor the lordis of counfall, as said is, did seim to put his subiectis in rememberans of their Othe contenit in the Covenant, for his royall prerogative; 2. touching his usage in the English parliament; 3. his purgatioun of thrie foull asperionis laid to his charge. What moir is insinuat I leave to the reidar. Bot it is trew, thair convenit in the Camoget about 24 erllis, lordis and barronis, callit Banderis, and thair folloueris, who wes contrair to this Covenant, still schewing them to be the kingis men. Thay attendit to heir the contentis of the kingis letter send to the counfall; and withall thay thame selfis fend, as wes said, ane petitioun to the said lordis of counfall, wnder the subscrption of the Erll of Montgomrie, (first a strong covenanter, and now left the samen,) desiring thame to remember thair Nationall Othe, and Othe of Allegiance to his Majestie contenit in the Covenant, and as good and loyall subjectis to defend the kingis royall prerogative, now impairit and inerochit upone be the English parliament. The counfall gives no ansuer to this petitioun. Mony barronis and burgeffis and gentlemen cam over out of Fyf to Edinbrughe. The toune is straitlie watchit and Leith both, none of the banderis in cumpaneis sufferit to cum within the portis of Edinbrughe. In the mein tyme, thair is ane uther Supplicatioun givin in to the counfall, of the quhilk the tennour followis:

APUD EDINBURGH, ultimo die mensis Maii, 1642.

THE quhilk day, in presence of the Lords of Privie Counsell, compeired personallie Thomas earle of Hadinton, David Lord Elcho, Arthure Arefkyne of Scotilcraig, Sir Johne Wauchop of Nidrie, John Bynnie and Thomas Paterfone, merchants burgeffis of Edinburgh, James Lentrone, burges of Sanctandrews, Mr. Andro Ramfay, minister at Edinburgh, and Mr. John Moncreiff, minister at Kingorne, for thamefelses, and in name of the noblemen, gentlemen, burgeffis and ministers occasionallie meiting at Edinburgh, and gave in to the saids Lords the Supplication underwritten; Of the quhilk the tenor followis:

To the right honorabill the Lords of his Majestie's Privie Counsel, The humble Petition of manie noblemen, gentlemen, burgeffis and ministers occasionallie meiting at Edinburgh, most humble sheweth,

Whereas they, upon the report and sight of great convocations suddenlie endeavored and unexpectedlie brought into this Councel day, for the most part by these who have beene esteemed be the countrey and challenged be the Parliament as incendiaries, plotters or enemies to the peace of thir kingdomes, have occasionallie convened at Edinburgh, and haveing hard of letteres from his Majestie, and declarations from the Parliament of England, anent the present distractions of that kingdome, they have reafon, frome bygone experience and present presumptions, to feare the intentions and endeavors of those evil affected persons and their adherents, least by their convocations and solicitations they take occasion of these differences to raise jealousy and division betwix thir kingdomes. And considering the common interest of all the subjects of this kingdome to preserve the late peace, so happillie concludit betwix thir nations be the providence of God, his Majestie's goodnes and wisdom, and the mediation of the Parliament of England, and so solemnlie established be the late Treatie, Oath of Parliament, publick faith, and great feales of thir kingdomes, as in all other poynts, so specialie in these Articles (quhairunto the rest are called bot prefaces) for settling and enterteining a solid peace betwix thir nations in tyme cumeing, least upon anie pretence thay fould be dashed one against another; quhairin it is declared the duetie of the Estates, yea of everie subject, for to convene and suppress anie ill affected persons who would raise armes aganis the subjects of the other kingdome without consent of Parliament, as traitoris to the Estate, much more to petition against it; and quhairin there is appoynted a Commission of the Estates for the Conservation of this peace, in the interrim betwix Parliaments: All whiche, the petitioners, among the rest of the good subjects of this kingdome, did hazard thair lyves and estates for to obtaine, and did demand in the Treatie, upon thair dangerous experience of the Councill of England thair meddling in the affaires betwix his Majestie and this kingdome, to the engadgeing of the nations in warre, whiche is so oft condemned be the Estates of this kingdome in thair Remonstrances, pressing that common rule of equitie, To doe as wee would be done unto, quhilk now is and may be retorted on this kingdome. Lykeas defyring earnestlie, that your lordschips, in these publick resolutions of so great consequence to thir dominions, may carie along with yow the hairts and consciences of the bodie of this kingdome, and prevent that the breach grow not wyder, by false confidence, groundit upon sudden undertakings of anie persons; as also thair natural affection and dutie to thair grations soverane, according to thair manifold obligations and brotherlie affection to the kingdome of England, forcing thame to pray to God and to desyre all men, according to thair stations, to use all lausfull meanes to breed and enterteanie a good understanding betwix his Majestie and his Parliament, the surest fundation of greatnes to his Majestie, and happines to thir kingdomes. Lykewayes takeing to haire the dangerous consequences to his Majestie and to his dominions, if your lordschips answer, by tendering the offer of your service to his Majestie against the demands or upon the differences betwix his Majestie and the Parliament of England, or anie other maner of way, import (whiche God forbid) anie ingeaging of your selves or of thir nations in warre, or anie thing that may tend thairunto. Thairfore, in oure names, and in name of the rest of the nobilitie, gentry, burgesis and ministers, whose hairts doe, and hands would, goe along with this petition, for preservation of peace betwix thir kingdomes, they doe in all humilitie and earnestnes petition your lordschips, in the depth of your wisdom, serioullie to ponder the consequences of your answer to his Majestie and the Parliament of England at this tyme, so that thairby nather the confidence betwix his Majestie and his good subjects, here nor among thameselves, nor betwix the kingdomes (these unions tending ever to his Majestie's greatnes, and these divisions to his prejudice) may be anie wayes weakened or thair peace endangered. And to that end, as your lordschips wold leave no lausfull meane, according to your vocation and entereit, unassayed, for begetting a good understanding betwix his Majestie and his Parliament, being his greatest and most impartiall counsell, representing the bodie, quhairof his Majestie is the head, and for removeing the distractions (the continowance quhairof will ever trouble the peace of this kingdome), according to your lordschips last answer; so also, seeing his Majestie requyres not that your lordschips fould, nather can your lordschips judge of the lawis and proceedings of another independent kingdome, and the Parliament of England offers to give all satisfaction concerning anie messages or papers sent to your lordschips anent thair proceedings;

That your lordships would be pleased carefullie to shun all offers of real or verbal engagements, either directlie or be way of inference, without consent of the Parliament, conforme to the Treattie, whiche either may give anie just occasion of offence to thair gracious soverane, or of jealousie to thair brethren in England, or of discourse to anie, as if your lordships did not observe that former rule of equitie pressed be thame selves during thair troubles, To doe unto others as thay would be done unto thame selves; bot did fall in the same faults quhilks your lordships and the rest of the Estates of this kingdome have condemned in the Council of England. And for this effect, they cannot bot remember to your lordships, that, according to ane Article of the Treattie, there wes appointed a Commissioun, als independent as anie other, of so manie of everie estate, representing the hail kingdome, to prevent all occasions of division betuix thir kingdomes, in the interim betuix Parliaments. All whiche thay humble represent to your lordships wyfe considerations, and expects frome your lordships so gracious ane answer as may satisfie thair present feares, and secure thame frome those dangers in this interim betuix Parliaments, and thairby prevent all necessitie of petitions of this kynd.

Which supplicatioun being red, hard and considered by the saidis Lordis, and thay finding the same to containe materis of publick concernement, and of that importans that requires mature deliberatioun; therefore thay continewit the answering of this petition till the morrow, and ordanit the hail Counfallouris in towne to be warned to attend the Counfall the morrow, at tuo a clok in the efternone.

APUD EDINEBURGH, primo die Junii, 1642.

THE Lords of Privie Councel, havinge againe red the petition above written, declare, that they will have consideration thair of; and, as they are most tender and sensible of whatsom ever may concerne his Majestie's person, honor and auctoritie, so will they have a speciall care not to doe anie thing contrarie to the late Treattie, or whiche may infringe the union and peace, or weaken the confidence betuix thir tua kingdomes, so happilie established in his Majestie's presence, and with his royal consent in both Parliaments; and ar confident, that, as frome the saidis Lords, the petitioners nather hes, nor shall have necessitie, so they will not trouble thame selves, nor the Council heirafter, with supplications of this kynd.

Now ye have the Kingis letter and this supplicatioun both copped; read and consider both the ane and the uther, with the Counfallis answer sent to the said supplicatioun, quhilks is so stranglie and confusidlie set down that I can not understand the sament perfectlie weil. Nor know I what answer the King gat fra the Counfall to his letter, bot as sun supponit it wes continewit to the next parliament; or what answer our English parliament receavit I can not tell. It wes found by the Counfall fit, that the kingis letter should be published at the hail paroch churches of Scotland, that his good subjectis might see his uprichtnes and sinceritie : bot Mr. Robert Douglas, ane of the ministeris of Edinbrughe, cam boldlie to the counfall hous, and publictlie opposit the publishing of the sament out of ther pulpitis throw all Scotland ; quhairupone the Counfall went to advyfinent and condiscendit to Mr. Robert Douglas desire ; bot withall ordanit the same presentlie to be printed, disperst and spred throw the hail kingdome, that his Majesties mynd nicht be notifeit to all and everie one ; quhilk wes so done.

It wes planelie spoken, that the English parliament desyred assistans of oure countrie upone this occasioun. It is trew, sum of oure noble men, principall covenanteris, at this tyme, wes displeisit in thair hairtis with oure most gracious Sovereigne his godlie government in sum particularis ; 1. for his general revocatioun in his Majesties first parliament, which bred sum feiris in the hairtis of the Lordis of Ereccionis of Kirk Landis, suppose nothing follout upone this revocatioun to thair prejudice ; 2. for making, in the same parliament, ane law anent the teyndis, callit Ane Commiffioun of Surrenderis of Superiorities and Tythis, groundit upone the helping of the clergie, who wanted sufficient mantenans and relief of the laitie, leaving yeirlye vnder the bondage of the Lordis of Ereccionis or Laick Patronis, whiche thay thocht tendit to thair gryte hurt and prejudice ; 3. when his Majestie wes at parliament, upone sum ressones moveing him, refusit to confer honouris, as to mak barronis lordis, and lordis erllis, &c. upone sum, and preferrit utheris to thir digneteis ; quhairat thair wes gryte grudging. And siclike, anent the lord of Balmyrrinoch his accusatioun, touching ane infamous libell set out against his Majestie most unjustlie, and for the quhilk he wes justlie convictit, thogh most gratiouflic remitted by his sacred Majestie. Upone thir occasiounis, I say, thir malcontentit lordis beginnis to murmur, and inuwardlie gruge with oure King his most spotles proceedinges, and stryves to lay groundis for his overthrow in royall government. And first, thay privatlie essay the nobillis, knightis, barronis, burgeffis and clergie of England, how thay war set, and fyndis thair a number of malcontentis glaid to cast of the yok of obedience, with whome thair wes secreteilie maid ane clandestyne covenant, so that ilk ane fould tak uther pairtis against the kingis prerogative. Now our lordis, being sure of England, laid the nixt cours to be sure of Scotland ; bot thay culd get no ground to begin the play, whill the incuming of the Service-book at Edinbrughe began. Then thay took hold of the alteratioun of religioun, and maid it the querrell, suppose most unjustlie, in many menis judgementis. Then follout heir in Scotland oure covenant, proclamationis, protestatiounis and gryt per-turbationis. At last, thir malcontentis (secondit be thair favorites of England) had all thair will, and the king is borne down both in churche and pollicie, as may be cleirlic sein in his second parliament. Now all thingis being fatled heir in Scotland, as said is, England beginis to follow oure order in polittique and church government, and many of oure factioun fryves aganes fundrie pointis of royall prerogative and establihit lawis, whairunto his Majestie credible nor laudable could not condescend. Quhairupone the malcontentit English beginis now to crave our Scottis assistans, conforme to the foirnamed claudestine covenant, whairby our disorder wes first bred, and quhilk his Majestie could not get suppressit, without forces from England, who wold grant nothing, whill first ane parliament wes indictit, whiche the king (agaiust his will) yielded unto. Thay, sure of ane parliament, resolvit to get all thair willis, and first to get oure turne done, thairefter thair owne, which bred muche sorrow throw all the kingis dominionis, as ye may here sie.

Wednesday the first of June, the Committe of the kirk convenit in New Abirdene, be ordour fra the last provinciall Assenblie, anent Mr. Thomas Mitchellis tryellis with Thomas Bellis wyf, who compeirit and confessit all to his face. Aluaies this Committe causit note wp hir depositions, and referrit the decision to the nixt provinciall Assenblie, quhair he wes found honest.

The foirsaid first of June, the Sessioun sat down in Edinbrughe for administration of justice, and pecciable sat thair tym.

About this tyme, a Meiting drawn on be the king at York, declairing thair the reasons why he left the parliament, chiefly for feir of his lyf. He wes well received by the haill County of York, avowit by all to his service. Well, the parliament boldlie fittis still, albeit the king had commandit thame to rys, quhilk he of his royall pouer lauchfullie nicht have done; and his Majestie being absent, thay cair not to hold thair parliament going on, quhairin, the Lower Hous, be pluralitie of voites, both in the Upper Hous and Lower Hous, still prevailed aganis the kingis favorers fitting thair. In the mein tyme, thair is provydit at York ane strong garde for the kingis persone, both of hors and foot; many malitious pasquillis written and printed aganis the king, and others writtin aganis his enemeis; a Remonstrance also set out in print by the English parliament, as wes said, declairing, what thay had done wes conforme to the lawis of England observit in King Eduard the secondis tyme, and in King Ritcherd the 2. tyme; whiche tuo Kingis wes cruellie abusit by thair subjectis and cruellie done to death, as ther Chronicles beires. And in effect, sum thocht thay had no les pouer to do the like to our gracious Soveraigne, and aither to tak and waird him, or be plane force to kill him ; whiche the king sufferit with great patiens. In the mein tyme, thay boldlie mell with the kingis hail rentis, thairby to difable him from raising of ony forces, if he war so disposed ; and withall had mellit with the kingis hail royall schippis, so that he could do no thing be fea. Thus, wes this royall king pitifully abusit be his owne subiectis, to the admiratioun of all Chriстеane kingis. It is said, that the kingis great feall wes privilee brocht to York to him. Sie heirefter what troubles follouit upone thir buffineffis at the kingis awin answere to ane petition, quhair thir particularis ar complanit upone.

About the beginning of this moneth of June, Doctor Guild, principall, violentlie brakis down the inficht and plenishing within the bischopis houffis (quhilk wes left ondistroyit befor), sic as bedis, burdis, &c., and causit transport them down to plenish the college chalmeris and uther wark ; geytis and gryte tymber he cuttit down. He tirrit the too-fallis of the hail office houffis, sic as baikhous, brewhous, byris, stables, yea and of fun too-fall chalmeris also, and careit rooff and fklait away, quhairwith he roofsit ane sang-scooll and fklaitit the famen within Bereold Innes clos, quhair never sang-scooll wes befor. Thus, as he dang down the wallis of the Snaw kirk to big wp the College dykes, as ye have befor, so now he is demolishing the bischopis houffis, in forme and to the effect foirsaid. Pitifull and lamentable, to behold kirkis and statelie buildinges first to be cassin down be ruffians and rascallis ; and nixt, be churchemen, wnder callour of religioun, to be broken down.

It is heir to be markit, that since Januar, the beginning of this yeir 1642, gryte fkarfitie of white fishes on our hail coftis, to the hurt and hunger of the poor, and raising of the prices of meill and malt, and beggering of the fishermen. And it wes reportit, that when the fisheris had laid thair lynes and takin fishes aboundantie, thair cam ane beist, callit the Sea-dog, to the lynes, and eit and distroyit the hail bodies, and left nothling on the lynes bot the heidis : A judgement furelie from God Almighty, for the lyke scarfitie of fishes to continew so long hes scarflie beine sein heir in Scotland ; quhilk bred gryte derth of meill and malt, at aucht, nyne or ten poundis the boll, and all uther meites wes also maid veray deir. Besides this, a cold drowth throw all June, quhairby girs and cornes wes brynt wp and reid in the blaid, quhilk maid also gryte scarfitie of all milknes, butter and cheis : bot the Lord amendit this cold drowth, and, about or upone the sevent, aucht and nynt of June, he sent thir thrie dayis abundans of rayne, to the gryte comfort of man and beist. Bot, whill this tyme, June, wes brynt wp with drowth, as said is, yet (albeit the harvest wes lait) God sent cornes aboundantlie throw the ground for intertynning of man and beist; bot being transported to Ireland, becam feare and deir. Sie heirefter.

Word cam that the 12 English bishopsis whiche wes wairdit, as ye have befor, war, about this moneth of June, put to libertie; bot the Archbishop of Canterbury stood still wairdit.

The Irishis daylie growing stronger and stronger, using fyre, fuord and all maner of cruelte aganes man, wife and barne of English, Scottissh and Irish Covenantaris within thair kyngdome, without pitie or compassioun. Mony fled this cruelte that could win away over to Scotland, both man, wyf and child; bred by the incuming of oure Covenant.

Upone Wednesday 22 June, the laird of Cors rode to Edinbrughe to the Committe of the Generall Assamble, holden thair be persuasioun or desire of oure last Provinciall Assamble, not of his awin good will. He wes maid welcum there be the bretheren, and had privie conferens with thame. The persone of Ballhelvie wes sent commissioner fra oure Provinciall Assamble to Edinbrughe to the same Committe; for thay wisst erneshtlie Cors (as ane excellent lernit man) to keip his awin place, if thay could in any cace procure the sames at thair handis be ther said commissioner, who wes direct for that effect, as said is: bot let the bretheren in Edinbrughe do thair best, thay could not, be threatning nor persuasioun, allure this lernit, godlie man to subscribe and sweir ther Covenant, quhilk (as he declairit) wes contrair to his conscience, quhilk he wold not ballans with no worldlie plesour nor preferment. Thus, efter divers meitingis and conferences with Mr. Alexander Henrifoun, Mr. Androw Ramsay, Mr. Henrie Rollok, ministeris at Edinbrughe and utheris apointit to sit upone the Committe for the Generall Assamble, in end he with Mr. David Lindsay returnit hame agane, upone the 12 of July, but any forder; quhair, Doctor Forbes, professour forsaid, a lernit divyne theolog, denying to sweir and subscribe oure Covenant, wes thocht a stumbling blok to this our good caus and new reformation. Sie more of him heirefter.

Upone the 24 of June, the laird of Haddoche conpeirit befor the Justice in Edinbrughe to wnderly the law for the alledged slauchter of Mr. James Stalker, as ye have befor. Efter sum reffoning, he wes ordanit to set caution to compeir agane upone the nixt citatioun, or referrit to the nixt parliament, and so he returnit hame agane. Sie heirefter.

About this tyme, and troubles in Ireland, Mr. John Leslie, bishop of Raphoe, cam fra that countrie to Edinbrughe, and from that to England. He faid, he cam, not cled lyk a bifchop, bot with fuord and quhinger like ane fol-diour. Aluaies he went poft to the king.

Mr. Androw Cant, being minifter at Abirdene, as ye have befoir, began to bring in novationis. He wold not baptis ony barne, yea albeit at the poynt of death, bot efter preiching on Sunday or ony uther preiching day in the week. He cryit out aganes conveying at lyk-walkis, reiding of fcriptures or finging of pſalmes; bot the deid corpeis to ly wnder ane burde all nicht without sic company; bot nather of this could he get done. He brocht in ane lecture leſon to be ufit Mononday at nicht, Wedniſday, Fryday and Setterday, in place of efternoone prayers. No communion given be Cant for tuo yeires ſpace to the toun of Abirdene, quhill firſt thay wer weil catechiſt, becaus he alledgit thay war ignorant. Sic more heirefter of his proceedingis.

Mr. Henrie Rollok, ane of the miniſteris of Edinbrughe, depairtit this lyf, confeſſing fra his hairt that his Majeſtie wes cruellie ſubdewit, and borne down by his owne ſubjectis, as wes reportit; for the quhilk he gat finall convoy to his grave by the puritans of Edinbrughe. Mr. Alexander Henrifoun, miniſter at Leucharis in Fyff, wes translated thairfra to be ane miniſter at Edinbrughe in his room. About midſommer, England ſent in to the Committe at Edinbrughe ane hundreth and ten thouſand pund ſterling for thair brotherly aſſiſtans, conform to the act of parliament, 7 Auguſt 1641.

About the 24 of June, directit the Lord Maior of London to caus mak Proclamatioun at all the croſſis within the toun, chargeing all trew and loyall ſubjectis to cum to the king, and byganes ſould be forgivin; except ſum perſonnes, ſic as Sir John Hotham, governour of Hull, and utheris his capitall enemies, quhilk his Majeſtie wes not to pardon. The parliamentaris wes heichlie offendit at the Maior of Londoun for fuſſering this Proclamation to be maid, and for the quhilk he wes preſentlie deſpoſit and ane uther Maior electit and put in his place; bot firſt he wes haiftellie takin, aceuſit and wardit, and thair-efter deſpoſit for obeying of the kingis command: yet this Proclamatioun drew the hairts of many people to the king, as ye may heirefter ſie.

Now, his Majeſtie beginnis to walkin, and is faſt drawing to ane heid. His faithfull followeris and good ſubjectis ar by the parliamentaris declairit incendiareis and malignant pairty. He cauſit put in ane garifoun in Newcaſtell; and divers lordis of parliament reſortit alſo to the king. Quhairupone the parliamentaris reſolvit to eſta bliſh ane Committe of thair beſt number to ſit conſtantlie at Weſtminſter for the parliament, with like authoritie and pouer, as if the hail eſtates of parliament war fitting; for thay durſt not rys to-tallie w^p nor desert thair parliament, left the king could not be movit to indict another when thay wold, as he had more nor reffone to refuse. In the meintyme, thay mak preparatioun for armes to defend ther own pretendit actis and ordinances for ther militia.

Tuyfday 27th June, ane visitatioun of our Oldtoun kirk be the bretheren. The feffioun wes changed fra efter the foirnonnes sermon to efter the efternonnes sermon on ilk Sondag. The landuair elderis thocht this burden havie, to byd ilk efternone, by thair dynner in the Old toun, quhilk wes hyding thame at home in ther owne houffis. It wes ordainit by this presbiteriall visitatioun, that ilk maister and mistres of famelie in town and cuntrie within this parochin fuld cum with ther barnes and servandis to the ministeris catechising. Noyfium to the countrie people to cum all, clois w^p ther durris, and leave none at home to keip thair houffis, thair cornes, cattell and uther goodis. Thay ordainit the bak of the hie altar, in bifehop Gawin Dumbarris Iyll, curioslie wrocht in wanescot, matchles within all the kirkis of Scotland, to be dung down as smelling of idolatrie. Pitifull to behold! In the mene tyme, our minister Mr. Williame Strathachin teachis powerfullie and planelie the Word, to the gryte comfort of his auditors. He takes strait count of those who cumis not to the communion, nor keipis not the kirk, and callis out the absentis out of pulpit; quhilk drew in sic a fair auditorie, that the featis of the kirk wes not abill to hald thame; for remeid quhairof, he causit big w^p ane loft athwart the body of the kirk, and enterit the wrichtis thairto in November. Lyk as with gryte panes and diligens he causit skelat the hail body of the kirk in the fyummer seafon with new lath, new skelat, and new materiallis, quhilk wes not fo weill done sen the tyme it wes first sklaittit efter the leid wes tirrit thairfra. The too-fallis wes not theikit, becaus thay nicht not be overtane this yeir. This Mr. Williame Strathachin, one of the best pastores that hes bene sene at this church thir many yeiris bygone; bot the treuth is, the bak of the altar wes violentlie pullit down be direction of Mr. William Strathachin, onlie advyfit thairto be doctor Goold, principall and moderatour for the tyme, and had not consent of the bretheren thairto, as is said befor; and by this glorious tymber wark of the said altar this new loft wes beautifeid and adornit with gilt pieces and ornamentis.

Now the marques of Hammiltoun, foirfeing thir feires and apparant troubles, quhairof he hes not bene saikles fra the beginning, as wold appeir, for he had still the kingis ear, was continewallie upone his counfall, quhilk he reveillit haiftellie till our covenanteris be his letteris, quhairby thay war provydit and fill upone thair guard to anfuwer to whatsumever commiffioun wes fent be his Majestie heir, to proteft aganes all maner of proclamationis usit heir, and led or misled his gracious Prince (who had maid wp his forlorne estait) as he pleisit. First, Ane generall assemblie wes indictit. 2. Ane parliament wes indictit, quhairintill the king, in all his designes, both of kirk and policie, wes trampet down; his freindes and faithfull fervitoris declairit rebellis, incendiaris and malignantis, yea baneshit fra thair honouris, countreis and estaites, and thair enemeis plantit and placed into thair roumes; ministeris baneshit, thair places fillit wp according to the will of the covenantaris, utheris deposit with indignitie and disgrace; and, in a word, none bot the king, the bischoppis, nobles, ministeris and utheris who follout his Majestie wes borne down pitifullie with shame and disgrace; as may appeir in his actis of parliament, quhair his enemeis are exaltit and his trew servitouris castin down.

To thir hail doinges this marques of Hammiltoun wes still privie, the raising of armes, the cuming to Berwick, the treattie of peace, coroboratioun of parliament, the kingis returning to London, he is still with him, he attendis his Majestie whill he saw no appeirans of peace, then he leives him in his troubles with the parliament, fenzyeing him self to be seik and he behovit to cum to Scotland for his helth, quhilk the king beheld, and wynkit at his proceedinges, quhair of he had gottin sum knowledge suppose too lait: bot the erll of Lanerk, secretar in Scotland, and secretar to the Scottis counfall in England, he left behind with the king, doubtles for a intelligencer, who doubtles wes still cairful to acquent his owne brother german (and onlie upraiser), the marques of Hammiltoun, with all occurrentis betuixt the king and the parliament. Many wondred at the marques of Hammiltoun's behaviour fra the begining of this covenant, as ye may sie befoir, or what could move him to deal so politiquelie with so good a maister; for it wes weill knowne he honored this marques, he iritched his cofferis, and denyit him nothing worldlie quhairin he could lessumly availl him, in counfall, in privie chalmer, in bed chalmer, still cheifest in his Majesteis societie; and yet he wold stur against him, and so behave him self wuder trust, as bred gryt greif to the king and mutchie trouble both in Scotland and England, as efter do appeir, quhilk happellie nicht have bene preventit, if he had reveillit thir plotis tymoufflie to his Majestie, and focht his honour, peice and prosperitie, as becan ane trew and loyall subject, both for his hienes and weill of his hail dominionis of England, Scotland and Ireland, who felt and sufferit ilk ane ther owne trubles and severall vexationis, as fall appeir more planelie heirefter.

Alwayes this marques of Hammiltoun leavis the king in the begining of thir troubles; bot his brother, as I have said, baid still at court with the king, quhairby he had daylie intelligens what wes doing in court or abroad. Weill, he cumis to Hammiltoun, whair he had his meitings with the marques of Argyll, the heiche chancelar and uther pryme lordis of the covenant at his ple-four: Syne, at the doun fitting of the fessioun, he cam and duelt in the kingis owne pallace of Holirudehous, and attendit the counfall dayes ordinarlie. He had a stout guard about him of his owne freindis and domestickis, and held a gryte hous, as wes reportit. He had his meitings daylie and nichtlie with the foirfaidis perfones. Sie more heirefter. This marques of Hammiltoun left the king, and cam in till Scotland about the beginning of July, quhair he stait whill 1643, as ye may sie heirefter.

The erll of Mortoun left his Majestie also, and cam to Scotland to the kingis awin pallace of Dalkeith, quhair he remanit and duelt all this while.

Generall Leslie (now erll of Levin) bringis over his ladie to the castell of Edinbrughe, theirin to dwell togidder about this tyme, furnisht the same for his awin provision; bot had no more men bot sic as wes within, by his owne domestikis.

It wes reportit also, that thare wes about 24 noble men, callit Banderis, that convenit in the Cannoget of Edinbrughe, at the foirfaid counfall day, all malcontentis, and wes to petition the counfall, desiring thame to keip ther Covenant, and Othe of Allegiance to his Majestie, and to defend his royall prerogative now inerocht upone be his English subjectis. Of thir or the lyk termes this petitione wes framed be nobles and utheris of the wast countrie, and givin in wnder the subscripioun of the erll of Montgomrie. The counfall gave no anfuier, bot flichtit the same, commanding thame to remove, whiche thay did and went to Glasgou. In the mein tyme, the ministrie of Fyff, with nobles, barronis, and burgesis, gave also in to the counfall ane uther petitionn. Thay cam in with gryte numberis, as the Banderis also did. The toun of Edinbrughe gardit the counfall and Edinbrughe and Leith both with about 1000 men in armes.

It wes reportit, that the Irishis is veray strong, who cannellie espyit thair tyme, to cast af ther yok of obediens, throw the incuning of oure covenant.

Sonday 12 June, Alexander Hervie younger, and Alexander Paip, tailyeour, war, be Mr. William Strathauchin, minister, both excommunicat in Maucher kirk for poperie.

Wednsfday 15 June, Proclamatioun printed in the kingis name wes pro-claimit at the cros of New Abirdene, for leavying of four thousand and fyve hundreth foldiouris to go, wnder the conduct of the erll of Irving, brother to the marques of Argyle, for France. Robert Keith, brother to the erll Marchall, wes one of his capitanes, who gat sum foldiouris in this countrie, and schippit heir at Abirdene, in cumpany of this capitan Robert Keith, who schippit onlie heir with them.

Ye hard of the laird of Haddoche, how he wes perfeuit criminallie before the Justice. At that same time, he wes forffit to configne befoir the Lordis ten thousand merkis at the lord Frazeris instans, and thrie thousand fyve hundreth merkis at Jon Forbes of Lesleis instans, conforme to thair decret; quhairupone he relaxt him self fra the horne, and in the mein tyme be moyan thay liffit wp his moneyis by his expectatioun, to his gryte greife; bot wyfelie he conceallit his wrath till he saw his tyme, and to the king gois he, and stayis whill as ye may sie heirefter: bot he first fettis caution to compeir the nixt parliament to wnderly the law for the slauchter of Mr. James Stalker forfaid.

Word cam, that the parliament of England wes be tham selfis to be adjornit, to ordour the militia but the kingis advys, and to tak wp armes in thair awin defens aganes the king, and to seik him at York, quhilk his Majestie couragiouflic resolves to heir out, as ane nobill king, conform to his royall predecessouris, or then die lyk a gentilman, as him self said; and in the mein tyme gois wp and down at his plesour, miskening the procedure of the parliament. And being at Beverley castle, thair wes presentit thair to his Majestie ane petitioun from the parliament, daitit 16 July 1642, wherunto his hienes haiftellie maid ane ansuer. Quhilk petitioun and ansuer, by the kingis command, wes printed to be publictie published, quhairof the tennour follouis:

The Petition of the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament presented to his Majestie at Beverley the 16 of July, 1642. With his Majestie's Ansuer thereunto.

The humble Petition of the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament presented to his Majestie at Beverley the 16 of July, 1642.

May it please your Majestie,

Although we, your Majestie's most humble and faithfull subjects, the Lords and Commons in Parliament assembled, have been very unhappy in many former Petitions and Supplications to your Majestie, wherein we have represented our most dutifull affections, in advising and desiring those things which we held most necessary for the preservation of God's true religion, your Majestie's safaty and honour, and the peace of the kingdome; and with much sorrow do perceive, that your Majestie, incensed by many false calumnies and slanders, doth continue to raise forces against us and your other peaceable and loyall subjects, and to make great preparations for war, both in the kingdome, and from beyond the seas; and by arms and violence to overrule the judgment and advice of your great Councell; and by force to determine the questions there depending, concerning the government and liberty of the kingdome. Yet such is our earnest desire of discharging our dutie to your Majestie and the kingdome, to preserve the peace thereof, and to prevent the miseries of civil war amongst your subjects, that notwithstanding we hold our selves bound to use all the means and power, which, by the lawes and constitutions of this kingdome, we are trusted with for defence and protection thereof, and of the subjects, from force and violence, we do, in this our humble and loyall Petition, prostrate our selves at your Majestie's feet, beseeching your Royall Majestie, That you will be pleased to forbear, and remove all preparations and actions of war, particularly the forces from about Hull, from Newcastle, Timmouth, Lincoln, and Lincolnshire, and all other places; and that your Majestie will recal the Commissions of Array, which are illegall, dismisle troops and extraordinary guards by you raised: That your Majestie will come neerer to your Parliament, and hearken to their faithfull advice and humble Petitions, which shall onely tend to the defence and advancement of religion, your own royall honour and safety, the preservation of our lawes and liberties; and we have been, and ever shall be, carefull to prevent and punish all tumults, and seditious actions, speeches and writings, which may give your Majestie just cause of distaste or apprehension of danger; from which publike aims and resolutions, no sinister or private respect shall ever make us to decline: That your Majestie will leave delinquents to the due course of justice; and that nothing done or spoken in Parliament, or by any person in pursuance of the command and direction of both houses of Parliament, be questioned any where but in Parliament.

And we, for our parts, shall be ready to lay down all those preparations which we have bene forced to make for our defence. And for the town of Hull, and the ordinance concerning the Militia; as we have, in both these particulars, onely sought the preservation and peace of the kingdome, and the defence of the Parliament from force and violence, so we shall most willingly leave the town of Hull in the state it was before Sir John Hotham drew any forces into it, delivering your Majestie's magazine into the Tower of London, and supplying whatsoever hath been disposed by us for the service of the kingdome. We shall be ready to settle the Militia by a Bill, in such a way as shall be honorable and safe for your Majestie, most agreeable to the dutie of Parliament, and effectual for the good of the kingdom; that the strength thereof be not employed against it self, and that which ought to be for our security applyed to our destruction; and that the Parliament, and those who profess and desire still to preserve the Protestant religion, both in this realm and in Ireland, may not be left naked and indefensible to the mischievous designs and cruell attempts of those who are the profest and confederated enemies thereof, in your Majestie's dominions, and other neighbour nations. To which, if your Majestie's courtes and counsels shall from henceforth concur, we doubt not but we shall quickly make it appear to the world, by the most eminent effects of love and dutie, that your Majestie's personall safety, your royall honour and greatnesse, are much dearer to us then our own lives and fortunes; which we do most heartily dedicate, and shall most willingly employ, for the support and maintenance thereof.

His Majestie's Answer to the aforesaid Petition.

Though his Majestie had no great reason to beleve, that the directions sent to the Earle of Warwick, to go to the river of Humber with as many ships as he should think fit, for all possible assistance to Sir John Hotham, whilest his Majestie expected the giving up of the town unto him, and to carry away such arms from thence, as his discretion thought fit to spare out of his Majestie's own magazin; the chusing a generall by both Houses of Parliament, for the defence of those who have obeyed their orders and commands (be they never so extravagant and illegal); their declaration, that in that case they would live and die with the Earle of Effex, their Generall; (all which were voted the same day with this Petition); and the committing the Lord Mayor of London to prison, for executing his Majestie's writs and lawful commands, were but ill prologues to a petition which might compose the miserable distractions of the kingdome; yet his Majestie's passionate desire of the peace of the kingdome, together with the preface of the presenters, that they had brought a Petition full of duty and subnuiffion to his Majestie, and which desired nothing of him but his consent to peace (which his Majestie conceived to be the language of both Houses too), begot a greedy hope and expectation in him, that this Petition would have been such an introduction to peace, that it would at least have satisfi'd his Message of the eleventh of this month, by delivering up Hull unto his Majestie. But, to his unspeakable grief, his Majestie hath too much cause to beleeve, that the end of some persons, by this Petition, is not, in truth, to give any reall satisfaction to his Majestie; but, by the specious pretences of making offers to him, to mislead and seduce his people, and lay some imputation upon him of denying what is fit to be granted; or otherwise, if would not have thrown those unjust reproaches and scandalls upon his Majestie, for making necessary and just defence for his own safetie, and so peremptorily justified such actions against him, as by no rule of law or justice can admit the least colour of defence; and after so many free and unlimited acts of grace passed by his Majestie, without any condition, have propos'd such things, which, in justice, cannot be deny'd to him, upon such conditions as, in honour, he cannot grant. However, that all the world may see how willing his Majestie would be to embrace any overture that might beget a right understanding between him and his two houses of Parliament (with whom he is sure he shall have no contention, when the private practices and subtil insinuations of some few malignant persons shall be discovered, which his Majestie will take care shall be speedily done), he hath with great care weigh'd the particulars of this Petition, and returns this Answer:

That the Petitioners were never unhappy in their Petitions or Supplications to his Majestie, whilst they desired any thing which was necessary or convenient for the preservation of God's true religion, his Majestie's safety and honour, and the peace of the kingdome; and therefore, when those generall envious foundations are laid, his Majestie could with some particular instances had been applied. Let envie and malice object one particular proposition for the preservation of God's true religion, which his Majestie hath refused to consent to. What himself hath often made for the ease of tender consciences, and for the advancement of the Protestant religion, is notorious by many of his messages and declarations. What regard hath been to his honour and safety, when he hath been driven from some of his houses, and kept from other of his towns by force; and what care there hath been of the peace of the kingdome, when endeavour hath been used to put all his subjects in arms against him, is so evident, that his Majestie is confident he cannot suffer by those generall imputations. 'Tis enough that the world knowes what he hath granted, and what he hath deny'd.

For his Majestie's raising forces, and making preparations for war,—whatsoever the petitioners, by the ill acts of the enemies to his Majestie's person and government, and by the calumnies and slanders raised against his Majestie by them, are induc'd to beleeve, all men may know what is done that way is but in order to his own defence. Let the petitioners remember, that (which all the world knowes) his Majestie was driven from his palace of Whitehall for safety of his life; that both houses of Parliament, upon their own authority, raised a guard to themselves (having gotten the command of all the Train-bands of London to that purpose), without the least colour or shadow of danger; that they usurped a power, by their pretended ordinance (against all principles and elements of law), over the whole Militia of the kingdom, without and against his Majesty's consent; that they took possession of his town, fort and magazine of Hull, and committed the same to Sir John Hotham, who shut the gates against his Majesty, and by force of arms denied entrance thither to his own person; that they justified this act, which they had not directed, and took Sir John Hotham into their protection, for whatsoever he had done or should do against his Majesty; and all this whilst his Majesty had no other attendance than his own meniall servants. Upon this, the duty and affection of this county prompted his subjects here to provide a small guard for his own person. Which was no sooner done, but a vote suddenly past, of his Majesty's intention to levy war against his Parliament (which God knows his heart abhorreth), and notwithstanding all his Majesty's professions, declarations, and protestations to the contrary, seconded by the clear testimony of so great a number of Peers upon the place; propositions and orders for levies of men, horse and arms, were sent throughout the kingdom; plate and money brought in and received; horse and men raised towards an army, mustered, and under command; and all this contrary to the Law and to his Majesty's proclamation; and a declaration published, that if he should use force for the recovery of Hull, or suppressing the pretended ordinance for the Militia, it should be held levying war against the Parliament; and all this done before his Majesty granted any commission for the levying or raising a man. His Majesty's ships were taken from him, and committed to the custody of the Earle of Warwick, who presumes, under that power, to usurp to himself the sovereignty of the sea; to chase, fright and imprison such of his Majesty's good subjects as desire to obey his lawful commands, although he had notice of the legal revocation of the Earle of Northumberland's commission of Admirall, whereby all power derived from that commission ceased. Let all the world now judge who began this war, and upon whose account the miseries which may follow must be cast; what his Majesty could have done lesse than he hath done; and whether he were not compelled to make provision both for the defence of himself, and recovery of what is so violently and injuriously taken from him; and whether these injuries and indignities are not just grounds for his Majesty's feares and apprehensions of further mischief and danger to him. Whence the feares and jealousies of the petitioners have proceeded hath never been discovered; the dangers they have brought upon his good subjects are too evident; what those are they have prevented, no man knows. And therefore his Majesty cannot but look upon that charge as the boldest and the most scandalous hath been yet laid upon him, that this necessary provision, made for his own safety and defence, is to overrule the judgement and advice of his great Councill, and by force to determine the questions there depending, concerning the government and liberty of the kingdom. If no other force had been raised to determine those questions then by his Majesty, this unhappy misunderstanding had not been. And his Majesty no longer desires the blessing and protection of Almighty God upon himself and his posterity, then he and they shall solemnly observe the due execution of the laws, in the defence of Parliaments, and the just freedom thereof.

For the forces about Hull,—his Majesty will remove them when he hath attained the end for which they were brought thither; when Hull shall be reduced again to his subjection, he will no longer have an army before it; and when he shall be assured that the same necessity and pretence of public good which took Hull from him may not put a garrison into Newcastle, to keep the same against him, he will remove his from thence and from Tinnmouth; till when the example of Hull will not out of his memory.

For the commissions of array,—which are legal, and are so proved by a declaration now in the presse, his Majesty wonders why they should at this time be thought grievous and fit to be recalled. If the feares of invasion and rebellion be so great, that by an illegall pretended ordinance it is necessary to put his subjects into a posture of defence, to array, traine and muster them, he knows not why the same should not be done in a regular, known, lawfull way: but if, in the execution of that commission, any thing shall be unlawfully imposed upon his subjects, his Majestie will take all just and necessary care for their redresse.

For his Majestie's coming nearer to his Parliament,—his Majestie hath expressed himself so fully to his severall Messages, Answers and Declarations, and so particularly avowed a reall fear of his safety upon such instances as cannot be answered, that he hath reason to take himself somewhat neglected, that, since upon so manifest reasons it is not safe for his Majestie to come to them, both his Houses of Parliament will not come nearer to his Majesty, or to such a place where the freedom and dignity of Parliament might be preserved. However, his Majestie shall be very glad to hear of some such example in their punishing the tumults (which he knows not how to expect, when they have declared that they knew not of any tumults, though the House of Peeres desired, both for the dignity and freedome of Parliament, that the House of Commons would joine with them in a declaration against tumults), which they refused (that is, neglected to do), and other seditious actions, speeches and writings, as may take that apprehension of danger from him; though, when he remembers the particular complaints himself hath made of business of that nature, and that, instead of inquiring out the authors, neglect of examination hath been, when offer hath been made to both Houses to produce the authors (as in that treasonable paper concerning the militia); and when he sees every day pamphlets published against his Crown, and against monarchy itself, as the observations upon his late messages, declarations and expressions, and some declarations of their own, which give too great encouragement in that argument to ill-affected persons, his Majestie cannot with confidence entertain those hopes which would be most welcome to him.

For the leaving delinquents to the due course of justice,—his Majestie is most assured he hath been no shelter to any such. If the tediousness and delay in prosecution, the vast charge in officers' fees, the keeping men under a generall accusation without tryall a whole year and more, and so allowing them no way for their defence and vindication, have frighted men away from so chargeable and uncertain an attendance, the remedy is best provided where the disease grew. If the law be the measure of delinquency, none such are within his Majestie's protection; but if, by delinquents, such are understood who are made so by vote, without any trespass upon any known or established law; if, by delinquents, those nine lords are understood who are made delinquents for obeying his Majestie's summons to come to him, after their stay there was neither safe nor honourable, by reason of the tumults and other violences, and whose impeachment, he is confident, is the greatest breach of privilege, that, before this Parliament, was ever offered to the House of Peeres; if, by delinquents, such are understood who refuse to submit to the pretended ordinance of the militia, to that of the navy, or to any other which his Majestie hath not consented to, such who, for the peace of the kingdome, in an humble manner, prepare petitions to him, or to both houses, as his good subjects of London and Kent did, whilest seditious ones, as that of Essex and other places, are allowed and cherished; if, by delinquents, such are understood who are called so for publishing his proclamations (as the Lord Mayor of London), or for reading his messages and declarations (as divers ministers about London and elsewhere), when those against him are dispersed with all care and industry, to poison and corrupt the loyalty and affection of his people; if, by delinquents, such are understood who have or shall lend his Majestie money in the Univerities, or in any other places; his Majestie declares to all the world that he will protect such with his utmost power and strength, and directs, that in these cases they submit not to any messengers or warrants, it being no lesse his duty to protect those who are innocent, then to bring the guilty to condigne punishment, of both which the law is to be judge; and if both Houses do think fit to make a Generall, and to raise an army for defence of those who obey their orders and commands, his Majesty must not sit still, and suffer such who submit to his just power, and are solicitous for the laws of the land, to perish and be undone, because they are called delinquents. And when they shall take upon them to dispencc with the attendance of those who are called by his Majesty's writ, whilst they fend them to sea to rob his Majesty of his ships, or into the severall counties to put his subjects in arms against him; his Majesty (who onely hathe it) will not lose the power to dispencc with them to attend his own person, or to execute such offices as are necessary for the preservation of himself and the kingdome, but must protect them, though they are called delinquents.

For the manner of the proceeding against delinquents,—his Majesty will proceed against those who have no privilege of Parliament, or in such cases where no privilege is to be allowed, as he shall be advised by his learned Councill, and according to the known and unquestionable rules of the law; it being unreasonable that he should be compelled to proceed against those who have violated the known and undoubted law only before them who have directed such violation.

Having said thus much to the particulars of the petition, though his Majesty hath reason to complain, that since the sending this petition they have beaten their drums for souldiers against him, armed their new Generall with a power destructive to the law and liberty of the subjects, and chosen a Generall of their horse, his Majesty, out of his princely love, tendernesse and compassion of his people, and desire to preserve the peace of the kingdome, that the whole force and strength of it may be united for the defence of it self and the relief of Ireland (in whose behalf he conjures both his Houses of Parliament, as they will answer the contrary to Almighty God, his Majesty, to those that trust them, and to that bleeding miserable kingdome, that they suffer not any moneys granted and collected by act of Parliament to be diverted or employed against his Majesty, whilst his souldiers in that kingdome are ready to mutiny or perish for want of pay, and the barbarous rebels prevail by that encouragement), is graciously pleased once more to propose and require,

That his town of Hull be immediately delivered up to him; which being done (though his Majesty hath been provoked by unheard of insolencies of Sir John Hotham since his burning and drowning the countrey, in seizing his wine and other provisions for his house, and scornfully using his servant whom he sent to require them, saying, It came to him by Providence and he will keep it, and so refusing to deliver it, with threats, if he or any other of his fellow servants should again repair to Hull about it; and in taking and detaining prisoners divers gentlemen, and others, in their passage over the Humber into Lincolnshire about their necessary occasions, and such other indignities, as all gentlemen must resent in his Majesty's behalf), his Majesty, to thew his earnest desire of peace (for which he will dispencc with his own honour), and how far he is from desire of revenge, will grant a free and generall pardon to all persons within that town:

That his Majesty's magazine taken from Hull be forthwith put into such hands as he shall appoint:

That his navie be forthwith delivered into such hands as he hath directed for the government thereof; the detaining thereof, after his Majesty's directions published and received to the contrary, and employing his ships against him in such manner as they are now used, being notorious high treason in the commanders of those ships:

That all arms, levies and provisions for a war, made by the consent of both Houses (by whose example his Majesty hath been forced to make some preparations), be immediately laid down, and the pretended ordinance for the militia, and all power of imposing lawes upon the subject, without his Majestie's consent, be disavowed, without which the same pretence will remain to produce the same mischiefs; all which his Majestie may as lawfully demand as to live, and can with no more justice be denied him then his life may be taken from him.

These being done, and the Parliament adjourned to a safe and secure place, his Majestie promises, in the presence of God, and binds himself, by all his confidence and assurance in the affection of his people, that he will instantly, and most cheerfully, lay down all the force he shall have raised, and discharge all his future and intended levies, that there may be a generall face of peace over the whole kingdome, and will repair to them; and desires that all differences may be freely debated in a Parliamentary way, whereby the law may recover its due reverence, the subject his just liberty, and Parliaments themselves their full vigour and estimation, and so the whole kingdome a blessed peace, quiet and prosperity.

If these propositions shall be rejected, his Majestie doubts not of the protection and assistance of Almighty God, and the ready concurrence of his good subjects, who can have no hope left them of enjoying their own long, if their King may be oppressed and spoiled, and must be remediless. And though his towns, his ships, his arms and his money be gotten and taken from him, he hath a good cause left and the hearts of his people, which, with God's blessing, he doubts not will recover all the rest.

Lastly, if the preservation of the Protestant religion, the defence of the liberty and law of the kingdome, the dignity and freedom of Parliament, and the recovery and the relief of bleeding and miserable Ireland be equally precious to the petitioners as they are to his Majestie (who will have no quarrell but in defence of these), there will be a cheerfull and speedy consent to what his Majestie hath now proposed and desired.

And of this his Majestie expects a full and positive Answer by Wednesday the 27. of this instant July; till when he will not make any attempt of force upon Hull, hoping in the affection, duty and loyalty of the petitioners; and in the mean time expects that no supply of men be put into Hull, or any of his Majestie's goods taken from thence.—FINIS.

BY THE KING.

Our expresse pleasure is, that this our Answer be read and published throughout all Churches and Chappels of the Kingdome of England and Dominion of Wales, by the severall Parsons, Vicars or Curates of the same.

Edinburgh: Printed by Evan Tyler, Printer to the King's most excellent Majestie, anno 1642.

I do verallic conceive, that the judicious reidar may cleirlic sie, by reiding of this petitioun and the ansuer maid thairto, who began thir troubles, and our first raised armes, and what injurie and oppreffioun hes been done aganes our gracious soveraigne, as is particularlic fet down thairintill, quhairintill I do rest my self; yit this I mark, this ansuer is maid by one, as seimis, in the kingis name, bot not by him self, as in other paperis do appear. And howsoever his Majestie's ansuer seimit to be groundit upone infallibill reffones, and that all his demaundis war trew and just, yet he could get no satisfactorie ansuer thairto; bot the parliament still wirking out thair owne wayes, to mak them selves pouerfull aganes him, and to bring him to ther opinoun, whidder he wold or not, as heirefter more planelic do appeir, whair, for a tyme, I will leave the king and his parliament, ilk ane doing for them felfis, to the admiration of the hail chрифtean world. Sie heirefter.

About this time, there fell out heir about Abirdene gryte floures of hail-ftones, mervallous to fie, being upone the 9 of July; bot lay not long, in refpect of the tyme of the yeir.

Mr. Andrew Cant, minifter at Abirdene, and Mr. Johne Gregorie, minifter at Dulmaok, is chofin commiffioneris for the prefbitrie of Abirdene, and Jon Lellie, ballie, laick elder, to go to the generall affembly to be halden at Sanct-androis the 27 of July, as ye may heirefter fie.

Ye hard before, how the Queenis Majestie went over to Holland, in company of hir dochter, with whome went Johne Strathauchin, fkipper, Strathauchin's fone of oure brugbe of Abirdene, who wes borne, bred and broght wp within the faid toun. This Johne Strathauchin is ane brave mariner and ane ftout cavleir. He gat charge from his Majestie of ane of the kingis quhelpis haveing 24 braffen pieces upone hir, to folloue the quene to Holland, and to attend hir fervice. Now, the parliament feing the king daylie to ftand out, and not to yeild to thair willis, and feiring this Strathauchin's imployment wes not for nocht, thay therefore fendis to him quhair he wes lying, and fummondis him to returne with his fhip and goodis bak to the parliament, wnder the pane of death. He anfuerit, his charge wes fra his Majestie, and when he commandit him to cum, he fould obey. The king gettis word of this charge, quhairupone he fendis command, wnder the pane of hanging, that he, the faid John Strathauchin, fould give no obedience to any charge cuming fra the parliament for that purpofe; quhilk he glaidlie obayit. Then thay fummond him the fecond tyme, and the king gave ane fecond contramand. Quhairupone the parliament fendis out four of the kingis owne royall fchippis, tua to ly at the mouth of the river Humber, and uthertwa at the mouth of _____, by one of whiche wayes, thay by the Hollanderis war furelie advertesit this Strathauchin behovit to go, and wes haiftellie to cum to England. Bot the parliamentaris refolvit, before he cam that lenth, to have him quick or deid. Of all this Strathauchin hes good intelligens, and refolves to tak the fea. He had with him in fchipboord the lord Digby and Williame Morray, who had gone over with the Queene, and refolves now to returne bak with Strathauchin to England. Weill, to the fea goes Strathauchin. Tuo of the kingis fchippis follouis, betuixt whome there wes fum fight. The uthertwo lykuaies follouis, quhilk Strathauchin efpying, and, finding him felf unhabill to defend aganes thame all four, maid chois, takes flicht, and, being fpedier wnder fail, for that scho wes of les burdene nor ony of the uther four, gois foundlie and faiffie fra thame, be plane fpeid, for he wes weill acquentit with all the fandis, creikis and hoillis upone the Englifh coft, quhairby he wyllie took his advantage, and haiftellie ran hir afchoir, whome the gryte fchippis durft not follow. Weill, he takis out his cannon and mountis them upone land, he plantis his mufkatis fo that none pyunage nor boit durft cum neir his fchip, albeit thay war fent efter him, but wes dung bak agane both be cannon and mufkat. In the meintyme, Strathachin fendis word to the king of his landing, who wes within 18 myllis diftant. He fent haiftellie ane garde, convoyis the lord Digby, Williame Morray, him felf and fum otheris, about ane hundreth perfones, to his Majeftie. Thay tuke ordour with the cannon, mufkatis and ammunitioun, and let the fchip ly fill thair. Thair cam in this fhip to his Majeftie gryte fumes of money, be the Quenis moyan, as wes faid, togidder with armes for ten thousand men, ammunitioun and cannon, quhair of his Majeftie wes veray joyfull, receavit Strathachin (whome the parliament had declairit traittour for his difobediens), and for his brave fervice knyghtit him with his owne hand, to the gryte honour of the brughe of Abirdene, being ane of oure tounifmen borne, as faid is.

The erll of Northumberland, gryte admirall of England of fie and heritage, about this tyme, upon his awin privie respectis, laid down his admirallie, gave over his charge, and the erll of Warwik at his owne hand mellis with his place, quhairat the king takis offens, as ye have in his awin anfuer maid to the parliamentis petitionne heirtofoir.

Now the king is growing to ane heid, and the parliamentaris veray ftrong, keiping parliament daylie and continewallie. The erll of Effex is chofin ther generall, and all fuche as favouris the king are declairit incendiareis and malignant parteis aganes the countrie. Therefore the parliament refolves to move or mak the king condifcend to ther opinions, whidder he wold or not. Firft, That he fould ratefie ther hail actis of parliament, both for churche government and pollicie, albeit contrair to his royall prerogative, and to the utter fuppreffing of epifcopacie. 3. That his Majeftie fuld indict ane generall Affemblic, for getting ane confent of the kirk that wes of ther opinioun to the eftabliſhing of this new order of churche government in England as it is now with us in Scotland, and doubtles plottit and devyfit betuixt England and Scotland, for ther owne endis, and overthrow of the lawis both of England and Scotland maid in favouris of bifchopis, and to his Majeftie's prejudice, wanting the bifchopis to fit as the firft of the thrie eftaites in parliament. 4:

That his Majestie fould fend in the incendiareis and haill malignant parteis to be censuret and puneflit be parliament. Thir incendiareis is not wuderstood to be the kingis loyall subjectis and faithfull folloneris, as ye have in his Majestie's anfuwer to ther petitioin heirtofore. Bot thir pointes feimit nowayes reffonable in the kingis fight, and utterlie denyit the fanen. Quhairupone both pairteis went to armes, fore against the kingis will, as efter do appeir.

Effex is maid generall to the foot army, and Bedford general to the hors army; or utherays Effex to the hors army, and Bedford to the foot army.

The king, feing no redres, went to Hull. He layes ane strait feige thairto; bot Sir Johne Hotham, governour thairof, lettis out certane clouffis of water, quhilk overflowit the boundis neir about the toun, so that be land no convenient assault could be maid. Quhairupone the king left the feige, and rode heir and thair throw the countrie making his freindfchip, to whome also many of his loyall subjectis daylie reformatit. Sie heirefter.

Wedinfday, 27 July, 1642, the generall Assemblie fat down in Sanctandrois. Mr. Robert Douglas, minister at Kirkealdie, translatit thairfra to Edinbrughe, wes moderatour of this Assemblie. The erll of Dunfermling wes commissioner fra the king, with four asseffours, viz. the Chancelare, the marques of Argyll, the erllis of Mortoun and Southek. To this Assembly came mony noble men, sic as the Chanceler, the marques of Argile, the erllis of Cassalis, Glenearne, Lyndfay, Weimis and otheris divers barronis, gentilmen and reulling elderis. The marques of Hammiltoun and the erll of Mortoun wes writtin for; bot they cam not, and the marques said he culd now do no service for the king. It is heir to be markit, that Argile fat not only there as acceffour to the kingis commissioner, bot also fat at this Assemblie as ane of the commissioneris for the estaitis of Scotland, who still opposit the kingis commiffioner pleading for the kingis honor. As in speciall the Assemblie receavit fra him ane letter fra the king, desiring thame not to midle nor mediat with the effaires of England, lest ther quietnes nicht be turnit in trubbill, quhilk they regardit not as becam in the particularis subfequent. Ane letter cam also to this Assemblie from the Parliament of England, desiring them to remember ther covenant and unitie of religioun with England, be ther owne commiffioner whom they sent with this letter weill bakkit. There also cam ane other commiffioner with ane letter subfcrivit be about 25 puritane London ministeris, defyring presbiteriall government. Mr. Alexander Spang, minister at Campheer, cam also to this Assemblie, who wes weill received, and admitted to voce with the bretheren. There also cam ane letter fra our owne Scottis commiffioners lying at England, defyring the Affembly to have conformetie with England in church government, and that oure ecclesiastick forme fould be wrettin wp to England for this effect. Materis are agitat and how anfuers fould be sent to the feverall letteris. The kingis commiffioner alledgit thay culd mak no anfuwer to any of thir letteris bot be his Majestie's awin advys, and protestit aganes thame. Argyle flood wp and opposit him, faying, it wes lauffull to ane frie Affembly to mak ther owne anfuers. And first, thay pend ane plesant anfuwer to the parliamentis letter; ane uther to the London minifteris letter; thridlie, to ther owne commiffioneris, to whome thay send oure church government, pend be Mr. Alexander Henderfon, minifter, and concludit to solifit his Majestie (as thay writ indeed to him) for conforming of the kirk of England to oure church government. At this Affembly, Maister Johne Guthrie was simpliciter deposit fra the kirk of Duffus, and Mr. Alexander Symmer admitted in his place. Mr. Archibald Johnston wes clerk to this Assembly, who wes named My Lord (being indeed ane of the lordis of Seffion); bot the moderatour wes named Brother. Strange to fie! Mr. Andrew Cant, looking to have bene admitted minifter at Edinbrughe, wes disappointed by Mr. George Gillespiek, who wes preferrit, and he cam to Abirdene.

Many ordinances and actis wes maid heir at this Affembly, quhilk is referrit heir to ther owne affembly bookis. Thay appointit ane generall fast and praier to be keipit throw all the kirkis of Scotland upone Sunday the 11 of September nixt, for thrie feverall caufis; 1. for the grite blood, miserie and calametie of Ireland; 2. for the divisiouns and distractiouns within England betuixt the king and his people, and that the Lord wold bring his Majestie's thrie kingdomes wnder uniformitie of religioun and church government; 3. for to pray to God for fair and fessonabill wether to wyn and ingather the fruitis of the ground.

This generall Affembly nominat and appointit fo mony to be constant commiffioneris for them to sit at Edinbrughe for the kirk whill the nixt generall Affembly, as ane committe for the kirk of Scotland, to sit and cognoce in sic maner as if the generall Affembly war personallie sitting; quhairupone sum fruitis follouit, as ye may heirefter fie. And efter apointing the nixt generall Affembly to hald at Edinbrughe the second day of August 1643, thay dissolvit and rais upone the sext of August.

This fame Wedinsday and 27 of July, generall Leslie listit 3000 foot and 600 horfit soldiouris, weill furneshit with cannon, feild pieces and ammunitioun, and all uther thingis necessarie, and marchit toward Ireland; him self schippit, but he wes estimat to be bot fourscore hors, and landit all saillie in Ireland. Sie more heirefter.

Collonell Hammiltoun, generall of the artailyerie, at Leslie's command, folouit to Ireland with gryte artailyerie.

The said day, the marques of Huntlie, accompaneit with his goodfone the lord Drummound and his ladie, the lord Oboyne, Charles and ladie Marie, the marques' barnes, being about fourscore horffis, cam from Strathbogie, rode throw the Old-toun to New Abirdene, with found of trumpet. The laird Drum with his tua fones, the laird of Petfoddellis, and findrie utheris, wes in his company. The marques, with the lord Drummound and his barnes, lodgit in skipper Anderfone's hous. Upone the morn, the toun of Abirdene gave thame the wyne and scoryettis, and maid the lord Drummound burges. Upone Frydday, thay cam over to the Old-toun, saw the marques' hous and yeardis, drank with the laird Cors and with doctour Gordoun's relict in ther owne houffis. The marques stayit in Abirdene quhill Setterday the penult of July, convoyit the lord Drummound, with his dochter, to the brig of Die, quhair thay took leive fra utheris, fyne partit, the one going south, the uther returning home to Strathbogie. The marques wes not in Abirdene sen the first of Januar 1642; bot convoyit frae Strathbogie his good fone efter brave cheir into the toun. About this tyme, sum tug quhytinges takin, and the fishes becam larger be Godis providence for intertynement of his awin people.

Word cam to Abirdene, that Quene mother departit this lyf in Waft Flaunderis. Ane evill instrument in thir troubles, as wes thoct befor.

In this moneth of July, the young laird of Geicht mareit to the laird of Ludquharne's dochter, and, as wes thoct by his instigatioun, fell in sum variance with his awin mother, the lady Geicht, dochter to the lord of Ogilvy. He craved his evidentis fra his mother, as he that was put in fie of the landis of Geicht be his goodfir, and his father wes never infest thairintill, who wes now out of the kingdome. The lady anfuerit, Scho could not deliver these wreittis, hir husband being absent, without his consent. Quhairupone, be Ludquharne's assistans, thay resolve to tak in the place of Geicht, whiche scho schortlie manis and stoutlie defendis. Thay tak in barnes and laiche bigging to sie if thay could get the yetis opnit, and schot in at the hall wyndois, quhair ane Williame Gordone wes schot throw the schulder bleed. The erll of Airly, heiring of his sifteris distres, spak the marques, who satlit this busines, at Leggetifden, betuixt Geicht (who cam thither) with the ladie his mother. Now, Geicht returning back fra Leggitiden weill content of the agriement, Jon Lefk, ane of his owne folkis, sehooting ane volay with ane hagbut of found for joy (lying at the feige of Geicht), his hand wes schot fra him, and sehortlie thairefter deit. This hagbut of found in the trubles wes plunderit be Ludquharne, the said Jon Lefk being in his company, out of the place of Foverane; so he gat his rewarid, and this feige dissolvit.

About this tyme, doctour Johne Gordoun, the deposit minister at Elgyne, haveing gottin sum fattling in England, returnit to Elgyne, quhair he fauld his plenishing and bookis, maid money of all, and took his wyff and children with him to England. Thus, is this honest man crost, compellit to slit fra his native countrie and fatted calling, as ye may sie befoir.

Now the king is at York, and wnderstanding of the generall Assembles letteris writtin to divers peronis, as ye have befoir, and that the samen bred gryte encouragment to the parliamentarie factioun, thinking surelie that all Scotland wes with them and upone ther cours; this, I say, maid thame so much the more bold (standing in siche terms with the king, as thay did), and bred sum discouragement to the kingis folloueris and faithfull subjectis. Aluayes he drawis to ane heid, and wes estimat to be about 7000 draconeiris and 14000 foot, by and attour his trayned bandis, with brave capitens and commanderis, haveing cannon, ammunition and all uther provisioun necessar in gryte aboundans. Sie heirefter.

The parliament, on uther pairt, sittis constantlie at Waistminster be ane establisht Committe. Divers of the lordis and memberis thair of rydis fra the parliament to ther owne countreis, making wp forces of men of warr, to bring the haill kingdome wnder subjection, and to follow ther opinioun be strong hand, as oure covenanteris did in oure kingdome of Scotland. And to this effect, thay usit all meinis possibill, and establisht a Committe of warr, without auctoritie or warrant of the Kingis Majestie. Yit it wes said, the parliament wes of great pouer and of better government, reddie to meit him with displayit baner.

Word cam that the marques of Hartfurde, keipar of the young prince, wes overthrowne by the lord Brook, one of the parliamentaris, and fled to one of his owne castles fra the kingis service.

About this tyme, ane Committe holdin at Elgyne, upon the tent, ellevint and twelf dayis of August; the justice deput, the kingis advocat and justice clerk wes there. The marques of Huntlie, the erl of Morray, the erl of Findlater, the schirref of Morray, the laird of Innes, the laird of Grant and divers utheris wes at this Committe, and findrie utheris absent that sould have been there. Thair buflines wes to tak ordour with the Clangregour and John Dugar and utheris hieland lymmaris, and with thair receptaris. Thay fat down and feufit thair courtis daylie, albeit thair wes not aue full quorum convenit.

The poor countrie people are citat and accusit for receipt of thir lawlefs lymmaris and giveing of them meit, drink and harberie. Thay ansuerit, it wes trew, becaus thay durst not deny thame intertynement for feir of thair lives and spolyeing of ther goodis. Bot no respect had to the good reffone of thir poor bodeis, bot wes severlie fyuit and punihit for thair receipt, and thir rafcall robberis them selfis left onpunihit or onsocht for.

Thus, this Committe dissolvit, ilk one to thair awin housis; and, upone the 14 of August, the justice deput, kingis advocat, and justice clerk, with thair fervandis, rode fra Elgyn to Invernis, with litle good to the countrie for thair cuning.

The erll Marfchall rydes fouth agane to Edinbrughe for fatling of his customes, quhilk agreit, as ye may sie heirefter, nothing to his mynd, and grevous to the brughe of Abirdene.

About this tyme, the laird of Banf, and laird of Foverane and sum utheris leaves the kingdome and gois to the king, quhair thay remanit whill as ye may sie heirefter.

Ye hard befor of the Kingis forces. He resolves now to rais his army, and to tak wp his marche upone Monday the 8 of August, and go forduardis with displayit banner, and fet wp his standard at Nottingham; quhilk indeid couragiouflic he did.

Bot it is trew, befor he took wp his marche, he, upone the fourt of August, maid a brave speiche to the gentilmen of Yorkshire, quhair of the tennour follows verbatim:

His Majestie's speech to the Gentlemen of Yorkshire, on Thursday the fourth of August.

Gentlemen,

When I directed that summons should be sent out for your meeting here this day, my principall end was, that I might give you thanks for the great forwardnesse and expressions you have made of your affections to me since I came into this country; and to assure you, that as the whole kingdome hath great reason to value you exceedingly for it, so I shall be very unsatisfied with my self till I have found some way to fix a mark of favour and estimation upon this country and this people, which may tell posterity how good subjects you have been, and how much gentlemen; and I am confident the memory of it will grow up with my sons too in a just acknowledgement. This was the most I intended to say to you; but there is an unquiet spirit abroad, which every day throws in new accidents to difturbe and confound the publike peace. How I was driven from London, when I chofe this place for my fafety, is fo notorious, that all men know it who know any thing. With what ftrange violence and indignities I have been purfued fince I came hither needs no other evidence then Sir John Hotham's behaviour at Hull, who is now arrived at that infolence, that he will not fuffer his treafon to be longer confined within thofe walls; but makes fallies out of the town upon his fellow fubjects, drowns their land, burnes and plunders their houfes, murthers, and, with unheard of cruelty, torments their perfons; and this with fo much delight, that he would not have the patience to wait what answer fhould be fent to my juft demands, though in that refpect I engaged my felf to forbear to ufe any force, and kept my word, but chofe the night before that came (as if he well knew what answer I was to receive) to act thofe outrages.

You fee the bad effects of feares and jealousies, the miferies they have produced. No man can tell you the leaft good they have brought forth or the leaft evil they have prevented. What inconvenience and burthen my prefence hath been here, what difturbance it hath brought upon the publick, or grievance upon any private perfon, your felves are the beft judges; and whatever feandall fome men have pleafed to caft upon the Cavaliers (which they intend fhould reach all my retinue, and by degrees fhall involve all gentlemen), I am confident there hath not been any eminent diforder or damage befallen any man by any perfon of my train, or under my protection.

I am fure my directions have been very ftrict in that point, and if they had not been obferved, I thinke I fhould have heard of it by neerer complaints than from London. I pray God the fame care may be taken there. I am fure it hath not been. And to give you the full eftimoy of my affection to you and to the peace of this county, and to thew you that no provocation fhall provoke me to make this place to be the feat of the war, I have, for your fakes, paffed over the confiderations of honour, and notwithstanding the reproches every day laid on me, laid no fiege to that place, that they may not have the leaft pretence of doing you mifchiefe, but refolve, by God's helpe, to recover Hull fome other way; for, that I will ever fit down under fo bold and unexcufable a treafon, no honeft man can imagine. But it feems other men are not of my mind, but refolve to make a war at your own doors, whatfoever you doe or I fuffer. To what purpofe elfe is their new Generall armed with an authority to kill and deftroy all my good fubjects; their levies of horfe and foot, fome whereof are upon their march towards you, with cannon mounted, and the fending fo many new fouldiers into Hull, when there is no approach made towards it; but to fallly out and to commit rapine, and by degrees to poure out an army upon you. In this I muft afke your advice, what you would doe for your felves, what you would have me doe for you? You fee how I am ftrip't of my navy at fea, which is employed againft me; of my forts and townes at land, which are filled with armed men to deftroy me; my money and provifions of my houfe taken from me, and all my fubjects forbid and threatned if they come neer me, that I may by famine or folitarineffe be compelled to yeeld to the moft difhonourable propofitions, and to put my felfe and children into the hands of a few malignant perfons who have entered into a combination to deftroy us; and all this done under pretence of a truft repofed by the people. How farre you are from committing any fuch truft, moft of the perfons trufted by you, and your owne expreffions of duty to me, hath manifested to all the world; and how far the whole kingdome is from avowing fuch a truft, hath already, in a great meafure, and I doubt not will more every day appear by the profefions of every county, for I am wholly caft upon the affections of my people, and have no hope but in the bleffing and affiftance of God, the juftneffe of my caufe, and the love of my fubjects, to recover what is taken from me and them, for I may juftly fay they are equall lofers with me.

Gentlemen, I defire you to confider what courfe is to be taken for your owne fecurity from the excursions from Hull, and the violence which threatens you from thence. I will afflict you any way you propose. Next, I desire you out of the public provision, or your private store, to furnish me with such a number of arms (muskets and corlets) as you may conveniently spare, which I do promise to see fully repaid to you. These arms I desire may be speedily delivered to the custody of my Lord Maior of Yorke, for my use, principally from those parts, which, by reason of their distance from Hull, are least subject to the fear of violence from thence. And whosoever shall so furnish me shall be excused from their attendance and service at musters till their arms shall be restored, which may well be sooner then I can promise or you expect. I desire nothing of you but what is necessary to be done for the preservation of God's true religion, the laws of the land, the liberty of the subject, and the very being of this kingdome of England; for 'tis too evident all these are at stake. For the compleating of my Sou's regiment for the guard of my person, under the command of my Lord Cumberland, I refer it wholly to your selves, who have expressed such forwardnes in it.

This speiche endit, he now begins to marche, and at Nottinghame raises his standard.

Prince Robert, his nepuoy, being taken by the Emperour, and kept in the space of thrie yeires in fure custodie and keeping, at this tyme, by the Emperour, is ransom frie put to libertie; who quiklie takes journey towards his Uncle, the King of Britaine, where, at sic a tyme, he wes joyfullie received and hartfullie maid welcum, and, as wes said, sent frielic be the Emperour to our King to help him in his troubles. Well he is preferrit and maid commander over the Kingis horffis. The erll of Craunford lykuaies cumis to him. He is maid welcum, and creat commander of the Volunteiris. The king takes order with the Commissionis of Array (throw all schires and counteis), quhilk we call wapinshawinges. He charges all maner of men to convein at his standard, conform to the English lawis, wnder the pain of tresson; and finding the parliamentaris disobeying and not cuming to his standard, he furthwith causit discharge thair parliament, commanding thame to rys up and dissolve, and declairit the erll of Essex, the erll of Bedford, the lord Brook, and sum utheris, traittouris.

On the uther part, the erll of Essex, generall of the hors forces, haistly drawis to ane heid with ane brave army, and gave it out thay had no purpose aganes the king himself, bot onlie against his wicked counfallouris, malignant and incendiarie persons (who indeid wes his Majesties loyall and trew subjectis, byding be him most faithfullie in thir his miserable distressis), and resolved to tak thame fra the kingis bak perforce, as thay who war enemies to thair ungodlie, tressonable procedure aganes his sacred Majestie, feiking to defend his royall prerogative with thair lives, thair landis, thair goodis aganes thir rebellious parliamentaris. Sie heirefter.

Upone the 23 of Auguft, Crichtoun, brother german to the laird of Frendracht, wes unhappellie flayne at be Adame Gordoun, ane young boy, with ane peffoll ; he is fone to James Gordoun in Fechill, of the folkis of Curridoun, and fervitour to Urquhart of Crommy. Dunbar, of Burgie, good brother to the laird of Frendracht, had drawn on ane meiting betuixt Crommy and Crichtoun, who then flood not in good termes, whair Meldrum of Iden wes ; bot this meiting turned tragicall, and Crommy, his boy, and Iden haiftellie fled the countrie, and sailtie wan away.

Efter thir great uproaris and buffines in England, it pleiffit his Majestie yit agane to fend ane meffage to both houffis of parliament, quhairof the tenour fra the prynt, word be word, follouis :

His Majestie's gracious Messuge to both Houfes of Parliament, sent from Nottingham, 25. Auguft, 1642, by the Earls of Southampton and Dorset, Sir John Culpepper, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir William Wedall, Knight.

We have, with unspeakable grief of heart, long beheld the distractions of this Our kingdom. Our very soul is full of anguish, until We may find some remedy to prevent the miseries which are redly to overwhelme this whole nation by a civil war. And though all Our endeavours tending to the composing of those unhappy differences betwixt Us and Our two Houfes of Parliament (though pursued by Us with all zeal and sincerity) have been hitherto without that successe We hoped for ; yet such is Our constant and earnest care to preserve the publike peace, that We shall not be discouraged from using any expedient, which, by the blessing of the God of Mercy, may lay a firm foundation of peace and happinesse to all Our good subjects. To this end, observing that many mistakes have arisen by the messages, petitions and answers betwixt Us and our two Houfes of Parliament, which happily may be prevented by some other way of treaty, wherein the matters in difference may be more cleerly understood, and more freely transacted, We have thought fit to propound to you, That some fit persons may be by you inabled to treat with the like number to be authorized by Us, in such a manner, and with such freedom of debate, as may best tend to that happy conclusion, which all good men desire, of the peace of the kingdom. Wherein, as We promise, in the word of a King, all safety and encouragement to such as shall be sent to Us, if you shall choose the place where we are for the treaty, which We wholly leave to you, presuming of your like care of the safety of those We shall employ, if you shall name another place ; so We assure you and all Our good subjects, that (to the best of Our understanding) nothing shall be therein wanting on Our parts, which may advance the true Protestant religion, oppose Popery and superstition, secure the law of the land (upon which is built as well Our just prerogative, as the propriety and liberty of the subject), confirme all just power and privileges of Parliament, and render Us and Our people truly happy by a good understanding betwixt Us and Our two Houfes of Parliament. Bring with you as firm resolutions to doe your duty, and let all Our good people joyne with Us in Our prayers to Almighty God for his blessing upon this Work.

If this proposition shall be rejected by you, We have done Our duty so amply, that God will absolve Us from the guilt of any of that blood which must be spilt; and what opinion soever other men may have of Our power, We assure you nothing but our Christian and pious care to prevent the effusion of blood hath begot this motion, Our provision of men, arms and money being such as may secure Us from farther violence, till it shall please God to open the eyes of Our people.

What reasonable man is so blind, but the goodness and graciousness of this royal king may be evidently seen to his good subjects, or who could think or can justly alledge against this godly proposition? But behold the answer whiche it gettis, hereafter set down, word be word, fra the print :

The Answer of the Lords and Commons to his Majestie's Message the 25. of August, 1642.

May it please your Majesty,

The Lords and Commons, in Parliament assembled, having received your Majestie's Message of the 25. of August, doe with much griefe resent the dangerous and distracted state of this kingdom, which we have by all means endeavoured to prevent, both by our severall advices and petitions to your Majesty, which have been not onely without success, but there hath followed that, which no ill counsell in former times hath produced, or any age hath seen, namely, those severall Proclamations and Declarations against both the Houses of Parliament, whereby their actions are declared treasonable, and their persons traitors; and thereupon your Majesty hath set up your standard against them, whereby you have put the two Houses of Parliament, and in them this whole kingdom, out of your protection: so that, until your Majesty shall recall those Proclamations and Declarations, whereby the Earl of Essex and both Houses of Parliament, and their adherents and assistants, and such as have obeyed and executed their commands and directions, according to their duties, are declared traitors, or otherwise delinquents, and until the standard set up in pursuance of the said Proclamations be taken down, your Majesty hath put us into such a condition, that whilst we so remain, we cannot, by the fundamental priviledges of Parliament, the publique trust reposed in us, or with the generall good and safety of this kingdom, give your Majesty any other answer to this Message.

JOH. BROWN, Cler. Parliament.

H. ELSING, Cler. Parl. D. Com.

It may be heir thocht, that this gracious king did not, without just reason, give out these declarationis and rais up his standard, as forsit and compellit thairto by the actionis and deidis daylie done by thir two houffis of parliament, to the derogatioun of the kingis royall auctoritie, so soundlie establishit be the irrevocabill lawis of the kingdom. And albeit this answer wold infer a rebellious disobedience and denying of all meinis of peace, so graciouslie offerit by his Majesty, and that it wold appeir it was aneuche to mak the king go about efter a violent maner to bring them in under subjection; yet he wyslie suppressis his justlie procured wrath, and studeis to give thir houffis of parliament full content, whereof thay formerlie complained, be the under-writtin Reply, coppeit fra the prynt, word be word, as follows :

His Majesty's Reply to an Answer sent by the two Houses of Parliament to his Majesty's Message of the 25. of August, concerning a Treaty of Accommodation.

We will not repeat what means We have used to prevent the dangerous and distracted estate of the kingdom, nor how those means have been interpreted, because, being desirous to avoid effusion of blood, We are willing to decline all memory of former bitterness that might make Our offer of a Treatie lesse readily accepted.

We never did declare, nor ever intended to declare, both our Houses of Parliament traitors, or set up our standard against them, and much lesse to put them and this kingdom out of Our protection: We utterly professe against it before God and the world. And further, to remove all possible scruples which may hinder the Treatie so much desired by Us, We hereby promise, so that a day be appointed by you for the revoking of your Declarations against all persons as traitours or otherways for assisting of Us, We shall, with all cheerfulness, upon the same day recall Our Proclamations and Declarations, and take down Our standard. In which Treatie We shall be ready to grant any thing that shall be really for the good of Our subjects. Conjuring you to consider the bleeding condition of Ireland, and the dangerous condition of England, in as high a degree as by these Our offers We have declared Our self to do; and assuring you that Our chief desire in this world is to beget a good understanding and mutuall confidence betwixt Us and Our two Houses of Parliament.

Who wold think bot thir houffis of parliament had receavit from his Majesty full content to their owne desire be the replie formerly set down; bot behold how his Majesty's goodnes is be them still misregardit, speik, writ or do what he can to satiffie them. And haveing wyn ane poynt, thay still desire his Majesty to more, as be thair subseqent declaratioun may appeir, coppet fra the print verbatim:

A Declaration of the Lords and Commons in Parliament, in answer to his Majesty's Message.

Whereas his Majesty, in a Message received the fifth of September, requires that the Parliament would revoke their Declarations against such persons as have assisted his Majesty in this unnatural war against his kingdom, It is this day ordered, and declared, by the Lords and Commons, that the arms which they have been forced to take up, and shall be forced to take up, for the preservation of the Parliament, religion, the laws and liberties of the kingdom, shall not be laid down until his Majesty shall withdraw his protection from such persons as have been voted by both Houses to be delinquents, or that shall by both Houses be voted to be delinquents, and shall leave them to the justice of the Parliament, to be proceeded with according to their demerits, to the end that both this and succeeding generations may take warning with what danger they incur the like heinous crimes; and also to the end that those great charges and damages wherewith all the Commonwealth hath been burthened in the premises, since his Majesty's departure from the Parliament, may be borne by the delinquents, and other malignant and disaffected persons; and that all his Majesty's good and well-affected subjects, who, by loan of moneys or otherways, at their charge, have assisted the Commonwealth, or shall in like manner hereafter assist the Commonwealth in time of extream danger, may be repayed all sums of money by them lent for those purposes, and be satisfied their charges so sustained, out of the estates of the said delinquents, and of the malignant and disaffected party in this kingdom.

Ordered by the Lords and Commons in Parliament, that this Declaration be forthwith printed and published.

HEN. ELSYNG, Cler. Parl. D. Com.

Now, judge how this gracious king his goodnes is abufit, and daylie more and more provokit to wrath by his difloyall parliamentaris. For when firft his Majeftie conditionallie wes too content to recall his declaratioun of treffoun, and tak down his Standard, now they will have him to quyte his trew and loyall fubjectis, without whome he can have no being, and they, with the erll of Strafford, put out of the get; then the king fuld stand his allone, quhairby thay nicht do with him as they pleiffit. Bot his Majeftie more generoullie wold protect and defend thame the better, whome the parliament focht thus to deftroy for his caus, and held and maintained thame as his good fubjectis, who approved thame felfis faithfull in the trubles whiche followit. Now the parliamentaris moft rebelliouslie beginis at thair owne handis to mell with the king, the quein, the young prince, and all thair rentis; takis in the fchippis royall; thay leave him nothing in propertie quhairupone to leive. His caftellis, his touris, his ftrenthis thay tak fra him. The prelatis and ther dependaris, with the papiftis rentis thay mell with. So that, in effect this gracious king is robit of all meines, freindis and moyan belonging to him, his quein, the young prince, and of his worthie prelatis; bot done to him be his owne native and unnaturall fubjectis, of purpofe to draw him perforce to ther lawles opinioun. Bot the Lord difappointed ther expectatioun, albeit his rentis and revenues in Scotland pertening to him and his quein wes in lyk maner takin fra him be his difloyall fubjectis, wnder pretens to pay ther debt contractit in thir trubles, quhilk thay call the good caus. Notwithstanding of all thir grievous afflictions, he raifes his Standard, as ye have befor, at Nottingham, not paffing tuo thousand men, and als litle money to pay thame; aluaies the Lord daylie more and more prosperis him, as ye may fie heirefter. Anent the melling with his rentis, fie more heirefter, and of his freindis rentis alfo, by act.

Upone Sunday the 28 of Auguft, Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. Johne Oſwall, tua of the ordinar miniſteris of Abirdene, gave the communion, the firft in the old kirk, and the fecond in the new kirk. Thay gave the breid to one or tuo fitting narrest them, then the baffein be ane elder wes fett befor the people doun the burde, and ilk man took his communion breid with his owne hand out of the baffein. The miniſter thairefter gave the coup to one on ilk fyd fitting narrest him, and fo ilk communicant gave the coup to utheris, fitting at the table, bot not kneeling, as wes ufit befor; wherat fundrie people murmurit and grudgit, bot culd not mend it.

Upone the 29 of Auguft, doctor Goold at his owne hand caufit brak doun the fair gryte aikin geftis within the bifchopis hous, and transportit thame thairfra for reparatioun of the college. Pitifull to fie fo glorious a booding thus revin doun be difpightfull foldiouris, and then demolifhit be doctoris of divinitie! This doctor Goold, being principall, began to preiche there, as ye have before; bot about Lambes he began to wiry, and left af ony more preiching, quhairat his auditouris wes nowaies displeiffit, for thay had no plefour of his unfavorie fermonis; the studentis wiffing rather to be at thair leffonis, and the tounes people at thair wark, nor to be heiring him. Sie heirefter.

About the laft day of Auguft, the laird of Haddochie cam home from England knightit Sir John Gordone. He brocht with him fum dayntie Englifh horffis. Sie more of him heirefter.

Upone the fecond day of September, lady Henrietta Stewart, marchiones of Huntlie, departit this life in France, and wes bureit in hir motheris grave at Lionis;—a virtuous, reverend, nobill lady, borne in France, mareit in Scotland, where fcho boor hir honorable bairne tyme; and in hir widowheid and old age, by crueltie of the kirk for hir religioun, is forfit to flie the land and go to France, where fcho deis, as faid is. Sie befoir, when fcho went away. Her eldeft fone, the marques, fuceeidit to hir lifrent landis of the Bog and Pleuchlandis, a mater about fexfoir chalderis vittel, a good help to his diftreffit eftait; bot had no more bot the chalmerlanry thairof.

The erll Marfchall is forfit, be plane moyan, to fet Sir Williame Dik fyve yeires tak of the cuftomes of Abirdene and Banff, and that for yeirlie payment of tuelf thoufand merkes and ane tun of Frenfhe wyne, for the cuftomes both of Abirdene and Banf. Quhilk tak the faid Sir William Dik presentlie fettis in fubtak to Patrik Leflie, proveft, and he oblegit to releive him of the tak deuty at the erllis handis. Thus, (fic wes the iniquitie of tym) this Patrik Leflie getes thir cuftomes aganis this noble erll and all his enemeis in Abirdene, quhairat many mervallit. It wes faid, he gave the erll quyetlie 1000 doleris for his overficht to this fyve yeires tak; aluaies the erll had ten yeires tak to ryn (onfét), efter expiratioun of faid fyve yeires tak, for he had gottin 15 yeires tak of all.

Upone Tuyfday 6 September, Mr. John Gregorie, minifter at Dulmaok, at the vifitatioun of the kirk at New Abirdene, teichit moft lernidlie upone the 4. verfe of the 2. cheptour to the Collofians, and reprehendit the order of our kirk and new brocht in poyntes. Mr. Androw Cant, fitting beyde the reidar, as his ufe wes, offendit at this doctrin, quiklie cloifit the reidaris buke, and laid doun the glas befoir it was run, thinking the minifter fould the fooner mak an end; bot he beheld and preichit half ane hour longer nor the tyme. Sermon endit, the bretheren convenes to ther visitatioun, quhair Mr. Androw Cant impugnit this doctrein, defyring the said Mr. John to put the sainen in wreit, who anfuert, he wold not only wreit bot print his preiching, if neid so requirit, and baid be all what he had teicht as orthodox doctrein. The bretheren heard all and had ther owne opiniouns, and but ony more censure thay diffolvit, sumwhat perturbit with Cantis curiositie. Upon Thuirsdlay, he raillit out in his sermon aganes the said Mr. John Gregoreis doctrein, and on Sunday likaies. At last, be mediatioun of the toune's balleis, at a coup of wyn, thay tua war fated with finall credet to Cantis buffines.

Thair cam word to Abirdene, that the English and Scottis covenantaris resident in Ireland wes pitifullie distreffit, spoyled of ther goodis, and reft of thair lives. Efter generall Lesleis ingoing to the countrie, the native Irishis declairit they wold lay down armes at the kingis feit, bot not to the Scottis and English rebellis. Sie more heirefter.

Upone the fairsaid sext of September, the maister of Lovat, new cum fra his mareage with generall Lesleis second dochter, cam with hir to Abirdene, haveing her eldest brother the lord of Balgowny, the lord Elcho, Sir John Ruthven and sum otheris in thair company. They gat the banket fra the toune and little thankis given thairfore. Thay rode to the laird of Frendrachtis hous, whose eldest sone had bein mareit to an elder dochter of the said generall Lesleis, now erll of Leven (bot scho departit schortlie this yf, leaving ane onlie dochter behind hir), quhair thay war weill entertaind. From that, they rode to Morray, to the lord Lovatis hous; and from that, the hieland get, returnit to Edinbrughe.

About this tyme, thier cam in quyettie to Abirdene one called Othro Ferrendaill, ane Irish man, and ane skynner of his calling, favourit be Mr. Androw Cant, and be his moyan admittit frieman. He wes trappit for preiching on the night in sum housis of the toune befor ther fameleis, with clois durris, Nocturnal doctrein, or Brounaisine, as wes said, of whome ye may reid more heirefter.

About the 10 of September, the erll of Irving, lauffull brother to the marques of Argyll, taking wp ane regiment of men for France, cam to the marques of Huntly, his awin good-brother, who wes weill intertaynd in Strathibogie, and gat 40 foldiouris fra him to help his regiment. From that, he cam to Abirdene, and wes blythlie banketed. His soldierris heir wes schippit at Abirdene vnder the conduct of livetennand Blair; and thairefter uther men wes schippit for his regiment at Abirdene, with livetennand Colonell Gordone, brother to the laird Abirzeldie.

Setterday 10 of September, George Thomfoune, maister meafoun, new cum from Strathbogie to Abirdene, suddantlie fell over Thomas Thomfone, burges of the town, his stair, and with the fall becam fenles and speichles, and depairted this life upone the Thuirfday thairefter; ane excellent mefoun, of fingular devyfe. He booldit findry brave boodings, amonges the rest he reedifeid the ftepill of the Colledge kirk of Old Abirdene.

About the fame tyme, Thomas Urquhart, chirurgian in Abirdene (being drunk), fell over William Watfone's stair in the Nether Kirk Get of Abirdene, about 7 houris at even, and immediatlie departit this lyf, being careit home to his owne hous. Pitifull accidentis in this good caus.

Upone Sunday the ellevint of September, and Wedinfday thairefter, ane fast folempnandlie keipit in both Abirdenes, and throw all the churches of Scotland, be directioun of the Generall Affemblie, as ye have befoir. For fatling all malcontentis in Scotland, that we may leive in peace; 4. For fair wethler to ingather the cornes of the harveft. He wes preferrit to be minifter at Forgelyn, albeit deposit fra his regencie of the Colledge of Old Abirdene, as ye may fie befoir. Mr. Williame Serogie, his brother, thairefter exercifed lykuaies lernedlie. It is said, at this tyme the presbitrie fand it expedient, that baptifme fould be given upone ony day, alfwell as on ane preiching day, quhar the barnes war waik, contrair to the opinioun of Mr. Androw Cant and his associates, as ye may fie heirefter.

Ye hard befoir, how doctour Guild tooke down the fair aikin gestis out of the Bifchopis hous. Now, about this tyme, he likuaies caufis tir and tak af the fklaites af of thir houffis, and careit thame down to theik ane fang fceol newlie maid wp be him of ane hous within umquhill Bereold Innes' clois. He caufit brak down beddis, burdes and uther fyne wanefcot tymber wark, and brocht them down to the Colledge, to be employed there at his plefour. He alfo turred the laterans in the Colledge, whereby the studentis had not fic naturall

About this tyme, the erllis of Dumfermling, Kynnoull, and Airlie, the lairdes of Banff, Foveraue, and divers utheris, cam home from England. The laird of Banff wes maid lord of Banf. And at the same tyme, the young laird of Frendracht wes maid viscount of [Frendraught], lord Crichtoun; bot his father wold not change his styll, bot be called Laird.

It wes said that the English parliament had maid an Act abolishing bifchopis and thair hail dependentes out of the kirk of England, cropt and root, whidder the king wold or not. And in the meintyme, sum bifchopis are banefluit, sum wardit, sum abusit, and all thair houffis and rentis mellit with and wptakin. Sie more heirefter.

About this tyme, Sir Johne Leslie, eldest sone to the defunct laird of Wardes, cam home out of Germany; bot his fatheris fair estait was delapidat, and litil or nothing left him quhairupone to leive; so that he behovit to schift for him self, and went southe to Edinbrughe.

Sonday 2 October, Allaster Sandytone, messinger, suer and subscrivit the covenant efter sermon in Old Abirdene, and in presens of the congregatioun, compellit thairto against his will.

About this tyme, there cam out a paper, quhairof the tennour follouis:

A Declaration of the Lordis and Commonis assembled in Parliament, concerning his Majesties advancing with his army towards London; with direction, that all the trayned bandis and volunteiris be put into a reddines, that so the Kingis army may find oppositioun in everie place as they marche;—As also how Sir Johne Henderfoun urged one David Alexander, a Scottis man, to kill Sir Johne Hotham and blow vp the Parliamentis magazine, to whom his Majestic gave money, and he received it; and that no man shall presume to wear any culloris or markis of divisioun in the city of London;—Whereunto is added, Generall Votes of the Lordis and Commonis for the serching of divers menis houffis in the citie, and for the staying of the Kingis Revenue, and all the Bishops, Deanes and Chepdours thair Rentis and Profittis quhatsoever.

THE Lords and Commons in Parliament, considering with much tenderesse and compassion the miserable condition of this kingdome, distracted and distempered with many present evils and imminent dangers, and brought now to such a height of extremity of misery, that two English armies are neer together, even ready to joyn in a dreadful and bloody encounter, through the violent and wicked counsell of those who have captivated both the person and the power of the King to their own impious and trayterous designs, Do thereupon thinke good to publish and declare the same to the kingdome, together with some directions and provisions which may prevent the utter desolation and ruine both of religion and liberty, already overwhelmed and suppressed in the intention and hope of those rebels and traytors about the King. To which purpose, it is desired by both Houses, that all well affected subjects may take notice of these particulars.

That the King, by the help and assistance of the papists, the prelatical and corrupt part of the clergy, the delinquent nobility and gentry, and by the confluence of some notable traytors from beyond the seas, the Lord Digby, Oncale and others, and of many desperate, mercenary and ill affected persons from all parts of the kingdome, hath raised an army, armed, clothed and fed for the most part with the spoyles of his subjects, giving them liberty to plunder and rob all sorts of people, to exact money and plate from corporations, by threatening fire and sword, if they should refuse it.

That this wicked council doth not only hinder his Majesty from exercising the justice and protection of a King towards his people, but even that honour which is observed betwixt enemies; for, by a confident instrument of his Majesty, Sir John Henderon, a papist (as we are credibly informed), one David Alexander was urged to kill Sir John Hotham, telling him it would be a good service both to God and the King; which he refused to do, saying, it was the work of a butcher, and not of a souldier. This Alexander being a Scotchman of a very poore fortune, and of a mind fit for desperate attempts, the King sent for him twice, while he was at Beverley, and when he came to his presence, he spak to him publicly in the field, and appointed a summe of money to be given him, which he received. After which, another proposition was made to him by the said Sir John Henderon, that he would put fire to the magazine of the army raised by the Parliament; and to gaine the better opportunity to effect it, that he should labour to get some employment in the train of artillery; which he accordingly undertooke, and endeavoured to obtain. But before he could effect his mischievous intention, he was discovered, apprehended and examined, and thereupon confessed the practise and undertaking, the particulars wherof are referred to the examinations thereupon taken.

That the King doth send out Letters to borrow great sums, professing that those who will not lend him money do give him just cause to suspect their duty to his person and the peace of the kingdome; and this will be a sufficient reason to make them lyable to be plundered and spoiled of all they have. But such is the violence of the King's army, that their friends are in little better case than they who oppose them, and those who escape best must yet feed and billet the souldiers for nothing.

In those places where the trained bands are willing to go forth to serve in his Majesty's army, yet for the most part their armes are taken from them, and put upon those who are more mercenary, and lesse interested in the Commonwealth, and so likely to be fitter instruments of rapine and spoile.

By these great violences and oppressions, they have so exhausted those parts, that his Majesty cannot stay long about Shrewsbury; and it is the earnest desire of the Cavaliers, that he would march forward towards London, those rich and fruitful countries in the way being like to yield them a supply of their necessities, and the wealth of London a full satisfaction of their hope, where they likewise think to find a party, which, upon his Majesty's approach, may make some disturbance, and facilitate their designs upon the city.

That if the King's army prevails, the good subjects can expect nothing, but that their lives and fortunes will be exposed to the malice and rapine of those ravenous souldiers, who often talk of cutting the throats of honest and religious men, and have long expected their goods and estates, as the rewards of their service; the kingdom will again fall under the government of those mischievous counsellors, who, before this Parliament, had even brought both religion and liberty to ruine; and we shall have no hope left of any more Parliaments, except such as shall be concurrent and subservient to these ends.

The means of curing and preventing these evils and dangers we conceive to be these:

That good provision be made, by lone and contribution, for the army raised by the Parliament under the Lord Generall the Earle of Essex, which is no whit inferiour in horse and foot to the King's army; better armed, full paid, restrained from disorder and rapine as much as may be, well provided of all outward necessaries, but above all, well encouraged and instructed in the goodness of the cause, by the labour of many godly and painfull divines.

That this army be always ready to attend the removes of the King's army, either in one body or divided, as there shall be occasion, according to the wise conduct and direction of the Generall, that so no opportunity of fighting upon advantage be lost, nor the greedy fouldiers of the King's army suffered to range and spoyle the country at their pleasure.

That the countries through which the King's army is to passe doe associate themselves, and draw all their forces together, for the mutual defence of their persons and goods from oppression and spoile.

That those countries be required to send in all their horses fit for carriage, and for dragoons, as well for the assistance of the Lord Generall, for which, in convenient time, they shall receive satisfaction, as likewise that, by such meanes, those horses may be kept from being employed by the King's army.

That command and direction be given to all Lieutenants of Counties, and Deputy Lieutenants, that all the trained bands and all volunteers be put into a readinesse to be brought to such rendezvous, and to be obedient to such commanders in chiefe, as shall be appointed by the Committee for the safety of the kingdom, or by the Lord Generall; that so the King's army may find opposition in every place as they passe, and the inhabitants may have at hand a sufficient protection and defence, and the Lord Generall may strengthen his owne army with these forces, as he shall see cause.

That powder, munition and ordnance, with all other necessaries, be prepared for these forces, that so, without any trouble or confusion, they may be brought together, and fitted for service, upon all sudden occurrences.

That all those, who, in the city of London or any other place, shall weare any colours or other marks of division, whereby they may be distinguished from others, and knowne to be of the malignant party, shall be examined, searched and disarmed; as likewise all others, who, being able, shall not lend or contribute towards the publique safety of the kingdom in this time of so great and imminent danger.

That it be commended to the serious consideration of those in the King's army, and of all other that intend to assist and succour his Majesty in this impious and unnatural war (amongst whom it may be hoped there are some honest men and Protestants), what it is that moves them in this quarrell.

Is it for feare of some innovations and alterations of Religion, or Church Government? Let such as are possessed with this vaine and causelesse apprehension know, that nothing is intended or desired, but to take away the government by Bishops, which hath been so constantly evidently mischievous and dangerous to Church and State, and such other things as shall be found to be justly offensive; and nothing to be settled and introduced but by authority of Parliament, after consultation first had with an assembly of learned and reverent Divines.

Is it to uphold the authority, prerogative and honour of the King, and to preserve the faith of his royall person? Surely the Parliament is, and ever hath bene ready to doe any thing that belongs to them to secure all these, which they have often testified by many humble petitions to his Majesty.

If there be no cause for any of these respects to seeke the destruction of the Parliament, and the blood and ruine of their kindred, friends and acquaintance, what remains then to be the matter of the quarrell, and the motives of such great combustions, and the effects and consequences of their victory if they should prevaile? That Priests, Jesuits and the Pope's Nuncios may domineere and governe in the King's Connell, as heretofore: That the Arch-Bishops of Canterbury and Yorke, and their suffragans may suppress diligent and powerful preaching, and banish and oppress all the most pious and best affected subjects of the kingdome, and introduce the Popish religion, under a Protestant profession, till they have strength and bouldnesse to cast off the disguise, and openly appeare that which indeed they are, and would not seem to be: That the Earle of Briſſoll, and his sonne the Lord Digby, Mr. Jermin, and other such traytors may possess the great places and government of this kingdome, and be the arbiters of the affaires of State, and distributors of preferments, and disgraces to such as shall further or oppose their designs: That the delinquents, oppressors and destroyers of the kingdom may not only escape the justice of the Parliament, but triumph in the spoiles of all honest men, good patriots; and that through our troubles and divisions, the rebels in Ireland may prevaile; that we may cease to be a free nation, and become the object of cruelty and oppression at home, and of scorn and infamy abroad.

And if there can be no other fruit of their hazard and endeavours on that side, let them then consider whether, by adhering to the Parliament, they may not expect effects more suitable to the desires of honest men, the glory of God, in the preservation of his truth; the peace of the Church, by securing it against the pride, avarice and ambition of the clergy; the honour, greatness and security of the King, by freeing him from false and trayterous counsellors, and establishing him in the hearts and affections of his people; the prosperity of the whole kingdome, by the blessing of good lawes and a righteous government.

J. BROWN, Cler. Parliamentorum.

LONDON,—Printed, October 17, 1642.

Follows now a paper of certane ſpeciall and remarkabill paſſages ſet out and copped thus :

A continuation of certane ſpeciall and remarkable paſſages from bothe houſſis of parliament, and divers otheris partis of this kingdome, from Wedneſday the twelfth of October, till Setterday the 15 of October 1642.

THE erll of Eſſex ſent letteris to the parliament, whiche were this day red in the Houſſis, by whiche it was enformed, that he had received certane information, that the King is brocht to ſuche diſtreſs, and want of meines to pay his army withall, that he wilbe ſuddantie enforced to marche from Selrewilbury; and, as it is reported, intendes with his forces to advance towards London; that the King is confidentlie perſuaded to find a ſtrong party in London, and then the cavilleris intendes to plunder the Round-heidis. But wnder that name, the Lord Generall informes, that the cavilleris comprehendis all perſones that have any eſtate, for they begin now to ſchow themſelfis in ther proper coulouris, and ſpair none that ar worth any thing, whidder they be Round-heidis or Rattil-heidis; and no doubt they wilbe now les favorable in London, if ons they get thither; and thoſe that fo muche plead in their behalfis will have then als litill caus to ſpeek weill of them as any other.

But the Lord Generall deſyret h the parliament, that trayned bandis in and about London may be put into a reddynes for ther owne defens, that proviſioun may be maid to fortifie the city, and that the parliament wold tak ourdour to ſecure the perſones of ſuche of the choiſeſt of the city as ar moſt ſuſpected to rais ane party againſt the parliament, whereby, if occaſioun of tryell fall happin, there may not be a civill nutiny in the city amongs them ſelfis. Whereupone the Houſſis, upone debait of this buſſines, have ordayned that the trayned bandis of London, Middleſex and Surrey, ſhalbe put in a reddines (as is deſired), and that the cloſe Committe ſhall mak diligent inquire of all the cheif malignantis in the city, and ſend out warrantis for them to have them examinat befor the Houſſis. The Lord Generall, by his letteris, alſo informed the Houſſis, that he wes of a certane informed, that the Kingis army conſiſted of 9000 fut, 2500 hors, and 1500 dragouneris; and however it hath bene reportit, that he is 40 or 50,000 ſtrong, there culd not, at any muſter as yet, be more found then the ſaid number. Alſo the Lord Generall informed, that he intendis to marche clois efter the Kingis army, and if it be poſſibill intercept them in ther paſſage; and that the lord Co-venry cam to him to Worcester, and frielic yeildit him self wp to the parliament, desiring to be convoyed wp to them with a strong guard, whiche the Lord Generall intendeth accordinglie, and to fend him wp with all conveniency.

Then cam letteris to the parliament from the kingdome of Scotland, giving them thanks for admitting the clergy of ther kingdome, recommendit by them to the assemblie of Ministeris appointed to consider of religioun; as also to inform the parliament, upone consultatioun of the affaires of this kingdome at ane assemblie held at Edinbrughe the 29 of September last, according to the lait pacificatioun, thay have appointit 51 Commisioneris of the erllis, lordis, gentrie and commons, to offer certane propositions to the said parliament, to be treated of for the reconcilment of the present distractions, whereby the divisoun of bothe kingdomes, according to the said pacificatioun, may be preferred; desiring the parliament that thay may, be the like number out of both Houffes appointed to treat with the saidis Commisioneris from Scotland upone the said propositions, and that the parliament wold tak order that the saidis Commisioneris may have saif conduct to this kingdome and bak agane, without molestatioun by the Kingis party. Whiche propositions the parliament have takin into consideratioun, and have resolved to joyne with the kingdome of Scotland in the said Treaty, and to satisfie them in ther other desires.

And the parliament have also ordered, that there salbe furthwith suche a quantitie of armes bocht and sent into Scotland, in exchange for those armes whiche thay have sent over into Ireland aganes the rebellis, accordinglie as wes then agreed by the propositions concerning that buffines.

Maister Fountane, the lawier in London, wes brocht before the Commons as a delinquent, for questioning the power of the parliament by what auctoritie thay did appoint Commisioneris to tender the propositions for the raising of hors, money or plate, and giving out other speeches aganes the parliament; for whiche it wes ordred he should be committed to prisone to ansuer to the same.

There wes one Maister Dorella, citizen, brocht before the hous of Commons, for saying that Mr Pyme had taken a bribe of 30 lib.; and being demandit how he culd prove the samen, he said he had heard it so reported by otheris, bot culd not name any that had so said besides him self; quhairupone it wes ordred, that he should be committed to priffoun, and brocht to condigne punishment, for raising the said scandall.

The parliament haveing laitlie sent a message to his Majestie, to desire his consent for the sending of Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Reynolds into Ireland, to view the estait of things there, Secretary Nicholas, by command from his Majestie, sent a letter to the Houffes, informing them that his Majestie doeth expresselie command, that the parliament do not fend any of ther memberis into Ireland for the end afoirsaid. Whereupone, efter sum debait of the buffines, the Houffes ordred that the said gentlemen should be furthwith sent over into Ireland by the auctoritie of parliament, and to have infructioun from the Houffes to inquire of the estait of things there.

There wes a letter then also red in the Commons, coming from Ireland, by which it wes informed by what cuning and deceitfull meanis the Papistes and Jesuits have incensed the armyes against the parliament; telling them, that the rebellis have the Kingis hand and seall for what they do, and that if thay set theme selfis aganes the Kingis auctoritie, thay will incens his Majestie above what the parliament ar able to defend thame, his Majestie haveing disclaimed the courses of the parliament, and resolved to grant pardon to none that hold armes by auctoritie of the parliament (as thay pretend), or forces, or doe without the Kingis consent. By whiche meanis thay have deluded many that wold ntherwaies have takin part with the Protestant forces, and the parliament have of lait bene debarred from sending into Ireland, whereby to clear them selfis from these unjust accusations.

There was also certane informationis givin to the Commons on Thursday last, by letteris from the adventuraris' forces, from Ireland, That they have litle taken at sea, upone the Irish costis, fyve schippis cuming from Spayne with ammunition, and uther provisions, intended to be sent to the rebellis in Ireland, whiche prize is valued to be worth at least 50,000 pund in bullioun, found in the saidis schippis, and ammunition and peices of ordinans worth above als muche more; all whiche is now to be employed for the service of the Proteftant forces there against the rebellis.

There was four or five of the Lord Generallis troopes (that ran from ther colloris) taken in London, and committed to prifoun, and a company of dragoneiris were appointed to carry them down to the army, there to receive condigne punishment for ther base cowardeis, according to marschall law.

The Hous of Commons have drawin wp ane order, that there false postis and chanes set up in all the eminent passages in Coven Garden, Sanct Martyns, Southwark, and other places about the suburbs, for the better securitie in case of any opposition.

It was also informed the Houffis by letteris from the army, that the King refuseth to exchange Windgotis for young Strangnage, but will either have capitane Hampfield, or 5000 poundis in money for his ransom.

It was also informed the Houffis, by letteris from Holland, that since the Quein wnderstood that capitane Stradling and capitane Kettleheys schippis were taken, scho hath altdred hir purpose of cuming to England, and sent into France for her almoner, who is expected everie day at the Hague, and that he bringis with him certane propositions for the Queinis going over into France.

That the States Generall and the States of Holland have had sum bickering about the parliamentis declaratioun. The States of Holland declairing them selfis for the parliament, and desiring to hold ane correpondency with them, the States Generall declare them selfis not as neutrall betuixt the King and the parliament.

Also informing that the Prince of Orange is cum to the Hague, upone occasioun to chrisen his young dochter; but the States of Holland intend to call him to ane account concerning the aide whiche he hath feat to the King, befor he depairt from thence.

There was also ane letter presented from the Quein of Bohemia, expressing hir hartly sorrow for the proceeding of hir sones in England against the parliament, discovering ther account, and that they cam not over hither with any suche purposis, to hir knowledge, or with her consent; and therefore desires the parliament, that in whatsoever they have offended, they may be stricly called to ane account for the samen.

Upone Thursday night last, the Erll of Bathe, Sir Henry Barclay, Sir Hew Polland, Sir Ralphe Sidocham, and foure otheris, were brocht wp to London by the Erll of Pembrook, and on Frydday, by order of parliament, thay were committed to severall prifonis. Sir Eduard Edomy, Sir Eduard Barclay, and the Marques of Hertfurd's cheplane were brought to toun on Tuyfday last, and committed to prifoun.

And it was then informed the Houffis from Dorsetshire, that 7 troopes of hors, and 1000 foot of the Erll of Bedfordis forces, ar gone into Couvaill aganes Sir Ralph Hoptoun, and intend veray suddantlie to joyne them selfis to the lord generallis forces.

The adventuraris for Ireland cam to the parliament, and offered them that thay wold tak in Galloway at thair owne charges, and mantane the forces there, if thay might have a further allowans out of the rebellis land, belonging to the said place; whiche propositions were veray weil approved of by the Houffis, and orderit accordingly.

And it wes then informed the Houffis by letteris from the north of Ireland, that Colonell Leslie hath givin the rebellis a veray great defeat before Charlemont; that he had killed and taken prisoneris above 4000 of them, and recovered the place from them, whiche is a veray great victory, it being als considerable a place as any is in that parte of the kingdome.

Upone Frydday laft also, the Commouns, efter long debait, agreed in a vote, that all suche as have refused to give or len either hors, moneyis, or plate, upone the propositionis for the service of the King and parliament, falbe disjoyned as delinquentis, quhairby they may be difabled from offering prejudice to the parliament or kingdome.

By these paperis may be found many considerable pointis, done and projectit daylie by the parliament aganes his Majestie and royall auchtoritie, scheltred and schaddowit by a pretendit auchtoritie of parliament. They have set down be act, to mell and uptak his Majesteis rentis and revenewis, and likuaies episcopall houffis and churche rentis, and rentis and leivings of all suche as folloutt the king in thir troublesom tymes, intending to impoverish his Majestie, in suche sort as he sould not be able to keip the feildes, bot cum in and yeild to the full desires of the parliament, whidder legal or illegall; bot the Lord disapointed them of ther designis efter a wonderful maner, as heirefter ye may sie.

Ye hard befor, how his Majestie had raisit his Standard at Nottinghame with about 2000 men, and very scant of moneyis, as wes reportit. Pitifull to behold! Ilk day newis cuning to Abirdene, sum tymes of the kingis victoreis, quhairat his trew subjectis rejoisit; uther tymes, that the parliamentaris war victorions, quhairat the puritanes and ther factioun avowedlie rejoisit, bot when thay hard of the kingis victoreis, they droupit lyk deid upone the calsey. Sie heirefter.

Word cam to Abirdene, about the 27 of September, how Prince Robert had taken in Worchefer, efter a brave fight. Generall Essex advancing towardis them, sent sum troopes to keep the gates, and sum horfmen of his lyffgard; bot thay maid a foull retreat. There war 700 parliamentareis killit, four culouris, and divers prisoneris takin. Bot one Collonell Sandis did oppofe Prince Robert manfullie, whereby sum also of the kingis men war killit and fore hurt. Efter this glorious victory thair flokkit daylie out of all schires many of his good subjectis, quhairby he wes now growing to ane heid, and had his army both of hors and foot in good posture. About this fame tyme Felt Marschall Ruthven, with sum Dutche commanderis, cam from Germany and landit in England, offerit his service to his Maiestie, who wes well receavit, and who did some singular service, as ye may heirefter sie.

About this tyme, thair wer sent to the English parliament, the erll of Caf-fellis, the lord Maitland, Sir Archibald Johnston, laick elderis ; Mr. Alexander Henderfone, Mr. Robert Douglas, Mr. George Gillefpik, ministeris at Edin-brughe ; Mr. Samuell Rutherford minister at Sanctandros, Mr. Eleazar Borth-nick minister at _____ to treat upone uniformetrie of religioun and church government, as wes spokin befor in the parliament passages.

Now the king marches for London, Generall Essex resolves to give him bat-tell or he can thair. Both armeis went on in uther sichts to Kenton near Bam-burry, quhair there wes ane large plane feild fit for the purpos. The king goes to counfall of warr, resolves to fight on Sunday aganes his will, saying, " Then, since it is so resolved, let God fight his owne battellis upone his owne day." Syne in prefens of divers nobles, captanes and commanderis of his ar-my he maid the Speiche following :

My lordis and the rest heir present, if this day schyne prosperous unto ws, we falbe all happie in a glorious victorie. Your king is both your caus, your querell and your capiten ; the foe is in sicht, now show your felfis no malignant parties, but with your fuordis declare what curage and fidelitie is within yow. I have writtin and declared, that I intend alwaies to mantane and defend the Protestant religioun, the rightis and privileges of the parliament, and liberties of the subject, and now I must prove my wordis with the convinceing argument of the fuord. Let hevin schew his pouer by this dayes victory, to declair me just, and as a lauchfull, so a loving king to my subjectis. The best encouragement I can give yow is this, that, cum lyf or death, your king will beir yow company, and ever keip this feild, this place, and this dayis service, in a gratefull remembraus.

Eftir this speiche, he turnes to his soldiouris, and utteris the brave and comfortable oratioun following :

Gentilmen, yow ar called Cavilleiris and Royalistis in a disgraceful maner. If I suffer in my fame, needis must yow do also. Now expres your felfis my freindis, and not malignantis. Fight for your king, the peace of the kingdome and the Protestant religioun. It is not so gryt ane hon-our to keip the quhyte cander of opinioun, sumtymes confermed by the rable multitude without distinctioun, as, when oure honour have suffered sum diminutioun and bene in the eclipse of royall splendor, to mak it schyne out agane with cleir resplendant beames of majestie. I have drawin and collected yow from severall countreis, and yow have, lyk trew freindis, followit me in all my occa-sionis and fortounis. We ar all now engaged, as neir as lyf or fame concernis ws ; and if I thocht that any of your affectionis wanted provocation to stirr your magnanimous resolutions in the ac-tionis of this dayes service, I wold use wordis to enflame your anger, and tell yow sum reffone of heighe encouragement, that fould produce in yow all a nottable mounted anger, since the inequali-tie of this feild (pretendit for defens of the Protestant religioun, and by me intendit to the same purpos) doeth expres a secret distrust of realitie in my royall intentionis. Yow ar called Cavi-leiris, in a reprocheful signification, and yow are desigmit for the slaughter, if yow do not manfullie behave your selfis in this battell. Thay call all the kinges trooperis Cavilleiris; bot let thame now know, that the valour of the Cavilleiris hath honored that name both in France and other countreis, and now let it be knowne in England, alsweill as horsman or trooper, it signefeing no more bot a gentilman serving his king on horsbak. Schow your selfis now couragious Cavilleiris, and beat bak all opprobrious speiches and asperionis cast upone yow by the enemy. Let thame know and decree, that for your king ye do adventure your selfis, and for the eternal reward of a just acquired honour.

Thaireftir, whill as his Majestie wes ryding wth the foirfront on heid of his army, and immediatlie befor he joynit battell, he maid ane thrid speiche, and commandit the sevint Psalme (muche to his purpois) to be publictlye sung, to the gryte joy of his people, who threw ther capes in the air, saying and crying out, " God save the King, Forduard, Forduard."

Whereupone, his Majestie gives order to charge. Prince Robert commandit the richt wyng, Felt Marfchall Ruthven the left wyng, and the Erl of Lyndefay the battell. Prince Robert, at the first charge, routed the enemeis left wyng, and Ruthven shorthlie eftir (though with sum more difficulty) did als much to ther right, and left the battell naiked; so as the standart, being in the vamm of the kingis foot, haveing long sustaned the enemeis haill fors, and borne down with number, ther wes killed to the king the erll of Lindfay, the lord Obignie, Sir Eduard Varvein, standart-berar, and the standart takin, bot quicklie regaind by ane privat man, called Smith, who wes maid thereafter the kingis standart-berar in all feildis, and creat the first bannerret in all England for this piece of service. Divers utheris brave gentilmen besydis killit and cruellie woundit, and findrie taken priffoneris, sic as the lord Willabie, sone to the said erll of Lyndefay, generall of the foot army, collonell Williame Walvafer. It is said, efter the taking of the standart, the king with his reserve can couragiouflic forduard and recoverit the same by meines of the foir-faid Smyth. Be this tyme, Prince Robert and Ruthven returnit fra the cheas, whiche, if thay had not follout so far, the kinges standart had not bene taken, and the enemy had bene utterlie overthrowne; bot shorthlie efter thair returning the enemy wes rowtit and all defeat. The king him self approved for his valiance and courage, to the gryte joy of his army, whome still he wes exhorting; and if the nicht had not fallen down, his Majesteis army had cut them all af. Essex fled to the castle of Warnick. There wes killit to him above 5000 men; 57 culloris, 26 coronetis or horsmanis cullouris taken, 11 peice of gryte ordinans, and 30 waggonis full of ammunitioun. There wes killit to the king about 2000, by the personis and priffoneris above specifit. It is said, the king led on his troop veray fair, and escapit the schot of ane cannon within ane yaird, still crying, "Fight, Fight for God and the King and the Protestant religioun, but God will fight for yow." The commanderis behaved them self bravelie. Sir Thomas Austen wan muche honour, the erll of Craufurd, and Sir Eduard Fyrtoun, whose regiment was laft in the feild, quhair of his Majestie took speciall notice. This feild wes foughten upone Sunday 23 October, in the morning, upone a fair lieth or mure betuixt Bambury and London. It is said, befor this battell, his Majestie went from Shrewifbury and past by the erll of Effex, who being advertesit, follout with all diligens, so that the tuo armyes cam in sicht one of another the samen Sunday in the morning. Effex and his whole army thus defeatit, the king and all his army stood in battallion the hail nicht, efter thay had given thankis to God. Upone the morrow, his Majestie went first to Bambury toune, where my lord Peterburrow (who fled) had ane regiment for the parliament aganis the king, and who also refusit his Majestie entres within the toune; he therefore causit schoot ane peice of ordinance over the toune, whairupone the maior and utheris cam furth. His Majestie gave thame all, young and old, quarteris for ther lives; bot gave the pillage of the hail toune to his soldiours. Then his Majestie past to the lord Seyis hous, him self being absent; bot his lady being brocht out, scho went faillie, bot her hous wes pillaged. The lord Sanet Johne, a gryte man for the parliament, wes heir in this battell lykuaies killed.

The king then went to Oxfurde, where he wes most joyfullie receaved with univerfall acclamatious of VIVAT REX. There wes brocht in before him all the culloris and coronetis in triumphe of virtue. His Majestie directed the most parte of his horffes to ane place of Theames, called Feavly, 25 myllis from London, and sent Sir Johne Barrow with a proclamatioun to the citizenis of London and Wastminster, with pardon to all (28 perfones who cheiflie did oppose the king onlie excepted), upone provisioun thay wold yeild and cum in to his Majestie, and that thay wold nather aid nor assist Effex with men, money, nor plate. Efter this Felt Marschall Ruthven is preferrit to be general of the kingis foot army, in place of the lait Erll of Lyndsay now deceffit. Gryte numberis of people, fra all corneris of the countrie, daylie, efter this battell, cumis in to the king.

It is said, that Effex sent about 16 currieris or postis, ilk ane efter utheris to London, to felow the parliament his bad suces; whereat thay wer so efrayit, that thay left Wastminster, quhair ther parliament stood, and went in to the citie of London for more securitie, being a myll distant therefra. Thay forthlie went and mellit with the kingis thrid sone, Duke of Glocester, and his sifter, in company with the Ladie Roxburch the foster-mother, and placed thame in the Marques of Worchesteris hous in Broadstreet of London, now perteing to the Lord Collingtoun. They causit beat down Windfore brig and Kingstoun bridge, with some othereis, to stop the kingis passage. They drew ane ditche about Hydpark, to hold af his forces. And thus all England is in an uproare, quhilk I pray the Lord to fattill in peace, to the schame and confusoun of the plotteris, projecteris and deviseris of this ungodlie, unnaturall and unkyndlie warr, his awin glory and honour of his fervand our king, who daylie more and more is provokit to wrath and anger by his disobediend and disloyall subjectis. Sie heirefter.

Upone the thrid Tuysday, and 18 of October, the Provinciall Assembly sat down in the sessioun hous of the kirk in New Abirdene, Doctor Gould, our principall, chosen moderatour, to continew, as use is, to the nixt Provinciall Assembly. Mr. David Lyndfay, persone of Balhelvy, last moderatour, preichit. The deposit Doctor Scrogie, be apointment of the presbitrie, upone the morne preichit; and being thairefter censurit by the bretheren, is found faultie in sum pointis; 1. For not praying for the distressed kirk and state of Ireland, in particular; 2. Alledging, that no novatioun could be brocht in by subjectis, either in church or pollicie, aganes the will and auctoritie of ane monarche. Bot this dillit doune quyetlie without more din.

Mr. Thomas Mitchell, persone of Turreff, being accusit for adulterie in the last Provinciall Assembly (sic befoir) produces befoir the Committe apointit for his tryellis heir famous testimonials under the subscriptionis of the provest, balleis, minister and reider of the brughe of Coupar in Fyff, declairing, these wemen in ther owne presens had suorne quyte contrarie to ther first depositioun, and that thay war persuadit and intyfit to mak up this sclander. The testimonials wes found sufficient, and beydis, thay took him deiplye sworne upone his innocencie, quhairupone he wes absolvit fra this scandall and found a good barne.

Gryte buffines about Brounaifine in this Assembly laitly cropin in to Abirdene, and uther partis in the countrie, practeisid be Williame Maxuell, Thomas Pait and Othro Ferrendaill in sum houffis, preiching upone the nicht as wes alledgit. Mr. John Ros minister at Birs complanit upone Gilbert Gairdin, apeirand of Tullifrosky, that he, his wyf, his children, fervantis and haill famellie dishantit his paroch kirk of Birs, and had his devotioun morning and evening within his duelling hous. He being convenit, compeirit, and answertit for him self, and said, it wes trew quibilk the minister had spokin, and forder declairit, the religioun whiche he professit wes the onlie trew religioun. Quhairupone thay demaund him of certane pointis of religioun, quhairunto he maid his owne answaris, noways to the contentment of the bretheren, and thairfore thay ordanit his minister to proces and excommunicat him in caice of disobediencie. Sindrie toune's men of this sect ar suspected; Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. John Owall thocht no gryte dislikaris thairof, for be the said Mr. Androwis moyan this Ferrendaill is maid frieman, as ye have befoir. In end, the bretheren apointit a Committe of ane minister and ane reulling eldar out of ilk paroche of this presbitrie, to conveyn at Abirdene the 8 of November nixt, for trying thir materis. Sie heirefter.

Mr. Williame Wedderburne, laitlie deposit fra the kirk of Bathelny, having maid his repentans to the full, gettis now oversicht to teiche and preiche heir and thair, bot wold not admit him to ferve at the cure of any kirk; yit the Generall Assembly (sie heirefter) reponis him to ferve at ony kirk he can procure.

This Assembly directit Mr. Robert Reid persone of Banchorie, and Mr. Williame Strathauchin minister at Old Abirdene, to go and confer with Doctor Forbes professor; bot the bretheren had no fruit of this conferrens: Whereupone thay fend over agane to his owne hous in Old Abirdene Mr. Androw Cant, Mr. Johne Owall, tuo of the Ministeris of Abirdene, and the said Mr. Williame Strathauchin. Thay desire him to sueir and subserive the covenant, quhairby he nicht keip his owne place. Quhairunto he answert (as wes reportit), he could not subserive the covenant, quhairin Episcopacie wes abjurit; bot thocht them lauffull and necessar in the churche being able honest men, bot being found faultie and unworthie, to remove them and put in better men in ther places, and thocht it not expedient to tak away thair places: Forder, that privat baptisine to deing babes wes necessar and lauchfull: That the giveing of the communioun to feik persones, lying on deid bed, wes lauchfull and necessar; and to give it to haill persones in the kirk, kneilling in modest maner, wes not unlauchfull. Thir and the lyke heidis wes amongst thame in ther conferences, as wes said. Wherunto the foirfaidis Ministeris answert, thay luikit for ane better answuer, and said, thay fand nothing bot that he wes avers and contrarie to thair new reformatioun, and therefore wold deall no more with him; bot report his answaris to the Committe of the Generall Assembly holdin at Edinbrughe, because he disapprovit thair new reformatioun. He answert, he wnderstood not sic reformatiounis, as breid destruction of the countrie, and daylie brocht in grevous finis and offences against the Almighty God, sic as shedding of innocent blood daylie, murther, thift, rapyne, plundering, fpolzeing and robbing of honest mens goodis, blafphemy, tyranny, adulterie, perjurie, lying, fueiring, and many uther grevous finis, with upliftit hand but punitioun. Conferrens endit, thay dynit togidder at his defyre in Mr. Thomas Lilleis hous, quhair he then lodgit. Thay returne to the bretheren the doctoris anfueries. Quhairupone thay fend the said Mr. Johne Ofwall to the Committe of the Generall Affembly holdin at Edinbrughe with his anfuier; bot thay said, "Let the Provinciall Affembly tak order with him and his place both, as maift incumbent to thame." Thus, Ofwall cumis bak with this anfuier, and Doctor Forbes place ftill vaikis. Sic heirefter.

This Affembly ordanes heir famelic exerceis, prayeris morning and evening in ilk manis hous, under the pane of cenfur. Ilk minifter declairit this ordinance out of the pulpit throw this province or dioecie. And haveing cloiffit thair buffines upone Frydday the 21 of October efter afternone's meiting, thay diffolvit.

Thay had good cheir, and, upone the 25 of October, he brocht over his wyf to his awin hous in Old Abirdene, quhair there wes ane goodlie infair.

Oure Chanceler, as wes said, caufit about 30 ofoure Scottis capitanes and commanderis go difaguyfit into the parliament. Thay fchippit at Leith, for none durft go be land without the kinges pafs and parliamentis both.

Divers foull and filthie pamphletis daylie printing and difperſing throw the land, tending pairtly to the difgrace of the king, and tending pairtly to the anfuering of theſe pamphletis in difgracefull and shamefull maner, as thay weil defervit.

Upone Mononday the laft of October, Sir Gilbert Mengzeis of Petfoddellis, at the Crabftane, hurt Johne Forbes of Leslie in the leg be ane ſchot. Thair wes upone both fydis ſchot about elleven piſtollis, and none gat ſkaith bot Leslie. Thair wes ſum old rouft betuixt thame, for Leſlyis father killit Petfoddellis goodſchiris brother unworthellie; lykwaies ſum contraverſie betuixt thame felſis about ane Mois, where Johne Forbes of Leslie brak tryft appointit to have ſatled the ſamen. Efter the whiche, thay chanceit to meit, Leslie cuming to the toune, and Petfoddellis going out. Thay meit, goes by, but fatutatioun. Petfodellis took it unkyndlie, and perfewis; betuixt whome findrie felhottis wes schot, as is said. Aluacis thay pairtit, both cumis in to the toune. Petfoddellis gois to his ounne hous, and Lellie to Mr. Robert Farquharis hous. He lay wnder cure quhill Januar 1643, and then began to walk upone ane staf feblie, and not foundlie heallit. This good caus brocht in the heiring and weiring of gunis, quhilk bred mekill forrow and mischeif in this land.

Upone Frydday, Wedinsday, and Setterday, thir thrie dayis weiklie Mr. Androw Cant, Mr. Johne Ofwell, and Mr. Johne Rew, miniferis at Abirdene, began, ther nicht about (infsted of evening praiseris), to lecture lessonis, cheiffie brocht in be this Cant. No honest persone durst be absent fra this new begun lectures, bot wes rebukit and cryit out agaiust; whereby thay thocht this service wes thraldome on wark dayes.

Upone the first of November, oure Sovereigne Lordis Sessioun sat down in Edinbrughe, for adminiftratioun of justice, and sat peciablle, prais be to God.

About the 5 of November, in ane seamanis hous of Peterheid, there wes hard, upone the nicht, beating of drums, uther tymes founding of trumpetis, playing on pifferis, and ringing of bellis, to the atoneifment of the heirers. Tribles follout.

About this tyme, word cam that the king of Denmark had sent to oure king his awin sifter sone certane ammunitioun, pulder and ball, with sijn capitanes and commanderis, to his gryte joy, and moneyis also.

Setterday 19 November, about 10 houris at evin, thair fell out ane heiche unhard-of wynd, with monstros rayne, whiche continewit whill Sunday at tuelf houris. The storme cam out of the south southeist. Ane schip cuming fra Norroway with tymber faillit her mast and wes drevin on schoir. The men wes all faiffit, praiffit be God. The wynd fell, bot the raynes continewit whill Monunday at 9 houris in the morning. Gryte stormes and tempestis follout, quhairby there wes gryte skaith be sea, and findrie schippis periffit on oure costes, betuixt Montros and Dundie, and upone the coast syd in Fyff.

Now about this tyme, the king makis the erll of Newcastle his Livetenant Generall betuixt the river of Trent and the river of Tweid in Scotland, with full pouer to rais and pres all maner of man within these boundes; who haistellie levied out of Westmureland, Cumberland, Northumberland and the bisshoprik of Durhame about 14,000 men, whereof thair wes 4000 papiftis, as wes alledgit. Thir were the first papiftis that rais in the kingis servise, not in ther default, bot that his Majestie imployit them not, for feir of suspitioun and outcrying of the parliament againt him, as they did indeid; bot his Majestie anfuert, he craveit not ther help, nor culd thay look for any more benefite at his handis nor thay had be the establisht lawis of the kingdome in the dayis of Quein Elizabeth or of King James his father, quhilk with all rigour he wes content fould be profecute aganes thame, and that he had to that effect (for saifing him self from suspitioun) sent out his proclamationis. Bot this anfuert could on na wayis satiffie the humour of thir parlamentares; bot, taking advantage of the kingis proclamationis, thay immediatlie send out uther proclamationis, granting libertie to all papiftis who wold cum in, help and assist thame, to repeall fra whatsumever actis maid aganes thame in any king or quenis tyme. Quhairupone the papiftis flokkit daylie in to the parliament in gryte number. The king, heiring of this order, said, " Weill seing the parliamentaris hes givin way to receive the papiftis aganes the law to fight againt me, why then fould I refuse ther servise who frielie offeris the samen unto me, [and] that notwithstanding of the proclamationis set out be me againt them?" Quhairupone he resolves to mak all papiftis welcum that cam to him. And trewlie findrie and many of thame cam in to him, whereby he haid gryte help and comfort, and who wes most loyall and trew to him in his gryte and grevous troubles.

Now the erll of Newcastle raifes his army, gois on towardis Yorkschire, for repressing of certane rebellis who had promesit to the king to be his trew servandis, and had fallin fra thair obediens, and takin pairt with the parliamentaris. Sie more heirefter.

At last he is put to libertie, and Cochrum detained; bot how he wes releivit, or what effect this embassage took, I cannot tell.

The king is now lying at Southamptoun, and his men quartered heir and there throw the countrie, quhair thay might be best accomodat. Prince Robert is lying at Brentoun. Now the lord Hellisly, capitane of the red regiment of the parliamentaris, rancounterit with him. Bot Prince Robert cut.

them all to peices, and richt so drest ane uther regiment called the grein or blew regiment, cuming to support the reid regiment, to the gryte greif of the parliamentaris, being tuo of the choicest regimentis both on hors and foot whiche thay had. Efter this fight, quhilk wes in the said moneth of November, Prince Robert returnes victorioullie to his awin quarteris.

Effex, in the mein tyme, cumis out of London with the bodie of his haill army; and being on march he is advertesit how thir tuo foirsaid regimentis wes elene defeat and destroyit. Quhairat, fore moved, he haltis and staves, thinking Prince Robert nicht happellie follow his victorie, and meit him; bot getting word he wes returned to his quarteris, he marchit no forder on, bot returnit bak agane to London.

Efter this, Prince Robert receaves orderis to go for Kentfchire, to represum rebellious there. The erll of Warwick wes direct be the parliamentaris to joyne with Sir Johne Hotham younger, to resit the king and defend the countrie quhairver thay cam; bot good Prince Robert encounteris thir tuo champiouns, defeatit and routit thame selfis and thair foldiouris. He gat six or fevin trunkis full of money, thair cannon and haill baggage.

Heir it is to be nottit, no humiliation, prais nor thankigiving, fasting, nor prayer, nor worschip givin to God within any Scottissh church, notwithstanding of thir gryte unlookit for victoreis; bot we wes deavit for fasting, praying, praising, when generall Leslie wes in the feildis, as ye have befor: bot now no word for the kingis victoreis, nor for his faittie and preservatioun. Mervallous to behold!

Upone the last day of November, general Leslie returned bag and baggage from Ireland to Edinbrughe, leaving major Mouro behind him, with his army, in garrifoun.

Now remember, the marques of Hammiltoun, the kinges deir coufigne and gryttest minioun, hes left him, for all the favouris, ritches and honouris his Majestie conferrit upone him; and, in thir his grevous troubles, he cumis cannellie into Scotland, sportis and passis his tyme, and letis the king (but his good counfall, help and furderans, quhilk belongit [to] him treulie) doe for him self with gryte labor, nicht watching, and truble, and travell. Bot if this marques have proven faithfull to his Majestie, it may happellie heirefter be sein. Aluaies about the doun sitting of the sessioun, he cumis in to Edinbrughe, takis wp hous in the kingis owne pallace of Holyroodhous, keipis cairfullie ilk counfall day, quhair the Chancelair, him self, the marques of Argyll, the lord Balmyrinoche and sum utheris gydit or misgydit this miserable kingdome. Ilkane had ther owne secreet moyan and intelligens. The marques of Hammiltou had his brother the erll of Lanerk secretar still to the king of his Scottis counfall at court and daylie with his Majestie, by whome he had good intelligens. Aluaies nichtlie and secreetlie thir lordis had ther meitingis and conferences, as occasioun offered.

Dame Elizabeth Gordoun ladie Wardes, thairefter ladie Cluny, departed this lyf at the toune of Durhame in England, quhair scho and the laird of Cluny her husband had thair residence for the tyme actuallie duelling. Scho deit of ane Cancer quhilk wes in one of hir papes tuo yeir befoir. It eit wp and confumet hir throw the bowellis, as wes said. He heires now how Sir Johne Hotham, younger (a fore enemy to the king), wes plundering and killing his loyall subjectis quhair-ever he cam. Heirfoir Newcastle feikis to fynd him out. Hotham, heiring this, resolves to cros his way by intaking of ane pass or brig whiche Newcastle behoved to march by. Bot this Hotham is manfullie doung fra this pass, and shamefullie routed thairfra in to Hull; out of the quhilk, if thair had not iffued fum 60 or 80 horfmen for his refkew he had then bene killed. Newcaftell, being wyreit in the cheas and feing him efcaip, wyllie and couragioufflie foundit the retreat, and returnit victorious.

Young Hotham agane takis the feildis, about 6000 men. Newcaftell hes about 10,000 men, and gois to feik him out; bot Hotham, feing his enemy more in number, intrinchit him felf craftellie, and biggit wth ane fcons ftrongellie for his defens. Newcaftell effayis to get him out, bot culd not without gryt lois of men; quhairupone he began to batter the fcons. In the mein tyme, Hotham, quyetlie be ane unfeen way, convoyis him felf and his men faiffie away, Newcaftell fill battering with cannon, whill thay war all faiffie goue bag and baggage without fkaith or lois of ane man.

Now the parliamentis of England had ther owne wayis to move ws to rais armes in Scotland aganes oure foveraigne lord the king for thair help and affiftans foundit upone ane pretendit act of pacificatioun, and to this effect wth our Scottis erll of Lindfay to oure counfall, who declairit be the way to his Majestie that he had fuche commiffioun from the parliamentis to Scotland, whiche (thay having occafion of his being befylde thame then in England) commiffioun thay ernestlie defyrit him to carie; declairing alfo that the cheif pointis of contraverfie betuixt his Majestie and them war about four, 1. That his Majestie wold ratifie and approve ther actes of parliament; 2. Prefbiteriall government without bifchopis or thair dependantis; 3. Ane indictioun to ane Generall Affembly; 4. That fic as thay callit incendiareis and malignant parteis about his Majestie (who indeid wes his faithfull and loyall fubjectis) fould be fent in be him to the parliamentis, to fuffer difgrace, indignitie, punifhing of ther perfons and plundering of ther eftaites at ther will and plefour, as wes done be thame heirtfoir to the noble erll of Strafford, never aneuche to be deplored. Aluaies let the indifferent reidar judge whidder or not thefe articles war reffonable craveit, ather fra the nature, or from the handis of ane king. Quhairunto his Majestie wold on nowaies condifcend, except he grantit to the indictioun of ane General Affembly, to be haldin at London the fyft day of November, quhair Epifcopacie and the Book of Common Prayeris wes there approvⁱⁿ, as ye may heirefter fie. Our Scottes erll of Lyndfay could not wyn home from the parliamentis to Scotland be land without the kingis pafs, fo he cam and gat the famen efter he had fchawin his commiffioun to his Majestie. Quhairupone his Hienes takis fchortlie occafion and wreitis to his counfall as follouis:

The Kingis Majesties Letter directed to the Lordis of his Privie Counsell of Scotland, upon occasion of the juid Declaration.

CHARLES R.

Right trusty, and right well-beloved counfins and counsellors, and right trusty and well-beloved counsellors, We greet you well. We have lately seen a paper, presented to us by the Earl of Lindsey, as a Declaration of the Lords and Commonns assembled in the Parliament of England, of the seventh of November, to our subjects of our kingdom of Scotland, which, after many high taxes of us and our government, very earnestly invites, and in a manner challenges assistance from that our native kingdom of men and arms for making a war against us, making a claim to that assistance by virtue of the late Act of Pacification, to the which (out of our desire to make a perpetual union between our two kingdoms, for the happiness of both, and by it the more firmly to establish our own greatness and just power) we cheerfully consented.

As we are at our soul afflicted, that it hath been in the power of any factious, ambitious and malicious persons, so far to possess the hearts of many of our subjects of England as to raise this miserable distemper and distraction in this kingdom against all our real actions and endeavours to the contrary, so we are glad that this rage and fury hath so far transported them, that they apply themselves in so gross a manner to our good subjects of Scotland, whose experience of our religion, justice, and love of our people will not suffer them to believe those horrid scandals laid upon us, and their affection, loyalty and jealousy of our honour will disdain to be made instruments to oppress their native sovereign, by assisting an odious rebellion.

We have from time to time acquainted our subjects of that kingdom with the accidents and circumstances which have disquieted this; How (after all the acts of justice, grace and favour performed on our part, which were or could be desired to make a people completely happy) we were driven by the force and violence of rude and tumultuous assemblies from our city of London and our two houses of Parliament: How attempts have been made to impose laws upon our subjects without our consent, contrary to the foundation and constitution of this kingdom: How our forts, goods and navy were seized, taken from us by force and employed against us; our revenue and ordinary subsistence wrested from us: How we have been pursued with scandalous and reproachful language; bold, false, and seditious passages and libels publicly allowed against us; and been told that we might, without want of modesty and duty, be deposed. How, after all this (before any force raised by us), an army was raised, and a general appointed to lead that army against us, with a commission to kill, slay and destroy all such who should be faithful to us; that when we had been by these means compelled, by the assistance of our good subjects to raise an army for our necessary defence, we sent divers gracious messages, earnestly desiring, that the calamities and miseries of a civil war might be prevented by a treaty, and so we might know the grounds of this misunderstanding: How we were absolutely refused to be treated with: And how at last the army (raised, as was pretended, for the defence of our person) was brought into the field against us, gave us battle, and (though it pleased God to give us the victory) destroyed many of our good subjects, with as imminent danger to our own person, and our children, as the skill and malice of desperate rebels could contrive. Of all which, and the other indignities which have been offered unto us, we doubt not the duty and affection of our Scottish subjects will have so just a repentment, that they will express to the world the sense they have of our sufferings. And our good subjects of Scotland are not, we hope, so great strangers to the affairs of this kingdom, to believe that this misfortune and distraction is begot and brought upon us by our two houses of Parliament, though, in truth, no unwarrantable action against the law can be justified, even by that authority. They well know how the members of both houses have been driven thence, inasmuch that, of above five hundred members of the House of Commons, there are not now there above four score, and of above one hundred of the House of Peers, not above fifteen or sixteen; all which are so awed by the multitude of Anabaptists, Brownists, and other persons desperate and decayed in their fortunes, in and about the city of London, that, in truth, their consultations have not the freedom and privilege which belong to Parliaments.

Concerning any commissions granted by us to Papists, to raise forces: We must refer our good subjects to a Declaration lately set forth by us, upon the occasion of that scandal, which we send together with this. And for our own true and zealous affection to the Protestant religion (the advancement whereof our soul desires), We can give no other instance, than our constant practice, on which malice it self can lay no blemish, and those many protestations we have made in the sight of Almighty God, to whom we shall be dearly accountable, if we fail in the observation. For that scandalous imputation of our intention of bringing in foreign forces: As the same is raised without the least colour or shadow of reason, and solemnly disavowed by us, in many of our Declarations, so there cannot be a clearer argument to our subjects of Scotland, that we have no such thought, than that we have hitherto forbore to require the assistance of that our native kingdom, from whose obedience, duty and affection we should confidently expect it, if we thought our own strength here too weak to preserve us, and of whose courage and loyalty we shall look to make use of, before we shall think of any foreign aid to succour us. And we know no reasonable or understanding man can suppose our good subjects of Scotland are obliged or enabled by the late Act of Parliament in both kingdoms to obey the invitation which is made to them by this pretended Declaration; when it is so evidently provided for by that Act, that as the kingdom of England shall not make war against the kingdom of Scotland, without consent of the Parliament of England, so the kingdom of Scotland shall not make war against the kingdom of England, without the consent of the Parliament of Scotland; and when they have always declared themselves so careful of our honour, safety and just rights, which now undergo so great violation.

This we have thought fit to say, upon occasion of this late Declaration, and do recommend it to you, the Lords of our Privy Council of our kingdom of Scotland, to be communicated and published to all our loving subjects there. And if the grave counsel and advice, which you derived hither by your act of the two and twentieth of April last, had been followed here, in a tender care of our royal person, and of our princely greatness and authority, then would not this face of confusion have appeared, which now threatens this kingdom. And therefore we require you to use your utmost endeavours to inform our subjects of that our kingdom, of the truth of our condition; and that you suffer not the scandals and imputations laid on us by the malice and treason of some men to make any impression in the minds of our people, to the lessening or corrupting their affection and loyalty to us: but that you assure them, the hardness we now undergo, and the arms we have been compelled to take up, are for the defence of our person, and safety of our life; for the maintenance of the true Protestant religion; for the preservation of the laws, liberties and constitution of this kingdom, and for the just privileges of Parliament; and look no longer for the blessing of Heaven than we endeavour the defence and advancement of all these. And we doubt not a dutiful concurrence in our subjects of Scotland, in the care of our honours and just rights, will draw down a blessing upon that nation too. Given at our Court at Oxford, the fifth day of December, 1642.

Printed by warrant and at command of the Lords of his Majesties Privie Council of Scotland by Evan Tyler, printer to the King's most excellent Majesty, 1642.

Now, let ouy reffonable man judge betuixt the king and his subjectis, whiche of them wes the beginneris of thir feirfull diftemperis and troubles, firft in Scotland and now in England, to the murdering and fchedding of mekell innocent blood, plundering of goodis, banefhing of good subjectis fra ther offices, digneteis and countreyis, and promoting of lawles rebellis to honoris, welth and ritches pluckit and pullit fra honeft men and loyall subjectis to the king.

Aluaies the erll of Lanerk wes fent down with this Declaratioun to oure Scottifh counfall, and ane new counfall day apointit the 4 or 5 of Januar nixt. The parliamentis had fent down thair petitionn, craueing aid of ws of men and armes, conforme to the treattie of pacificatioun and covenant past betuixt thame and ws ; and the king fendis down to countercheck this petitionn his pitefull declaratioun, in forme forfaid, to our counfall ; and both wes product the 22 of December, and ane new day of counfall appointit, as is formarlie faid.

Well, the counfall convenis, the kings declaratioun and the parliamentis petitionn ar both publictly red out. It gois to voiceing, whidder we fuld affift the parliamentaris or not. The king by tuo voices getis it, and fo no affiftans ; whereat the parliamentis freindis takis exceptioun, alledgeing thir voices wes not fufficient, nor culd any thing be concludit without the conventioun of the Eftaitis, to wit, nobles, barronis, burgeffis. Now remember, this voiceing wes within the counfall upone the 22 of December. Thairefter the Eftaites wes chargit to fend ther commiffioneris and convein at Edinbrughe upone the 4 or 5 of Januar, fie more heirefter ; that is, at this firft counfall day, the erll of Lanerk defyrit his Majefteis declaratioun to be printit and publictly difperft and publifhit throw all Scotland, whereby his good subjectis micht have full informatioun of the treuth. It wes agitat pro et contra. In end, the king, be voiceing, getis his reffonable defyre, and the fame ordanit to be printit at Edinbrughe, to be difperft and fprede to the effect foirfaid ; and the raifing of men ferrit to the Committe of Eftaites to convein the day of Januar foirfaid 1643. Sie now more heirefter.

In this moneth of December, there cam out ane paper fet out be Mr. David Lyndfay perfone of Balhelvie, callit Scotlandis Halleluiah, printed by Raban at Abirdene, thocht to be better faid nor it had fluff or good mater, and whiche I thocht not worthie to tak panes upone for inferting it in this place, albeit it is lying befyd my felf in print.

The king caufes quarter his army for thair mantenans moft commodioully both for man and hors throw the countrie, to abyde the winter feffoun.

The marques of Huntlie, in this moneth of December, fendis in to our Old toun Colledge Charles Gordone his fourt sone, to leirne gramar. He gat doctor Leslie (the lait deposit principall) his chalmor (who had still keipit the samen for his recreatioun, whill this tyme) for his sone and his pedagog to remane into, and the marques had the said doctor Leslie with him self to Strathbogie, there to remane and be intertynneit at his owne table, becaus he saw him a distressed gentilman, violentlie throwne out of his awin place for not subscribing of the covenant, as ye hard befoir. Thus, the marques requested this doctor Leslie to go with him; and so, upone the 15 day of December, he left his chalmor in the college, who had still keipit possessioun thairof (albeit deposit as said is) to the foirsaid day, and willingly he went with the marques to byde his fortun.

Upone the 16 of December, doctor Goold and Mr. Williame Strathachin yokit Williame Charles, wricht in Abirdene, to the doun-taking of the bak of the hie altar standing upone the eist wall of bischop Gawin Dumbaris Iyll, als heiche nar by as the sylvring thairof, curiouselie wrocht of fyne wanescot, so that within Scotland there wes not a better wrocht peice. It is said, the craftisman wald not put his hand to the doun-taking thairof, whill Mr. William Strathachin, our minister, laid first hand thairto, whiche he did, and syne the wark wes begun. And in doun-taking of one of the thrie tymber crouns, quhilk thay thocht to have gottin doun haill and unbrokin, by ther expectatioun, [it] fell suddantlie upone the kirkis gryt ledder, brak it in thrie pieces and it self all in blaidis, and brak sum pavement with the wecht thairof; bot the people wes all saif. Now oure minister devyfit ane loft, for eis of the people at sermon, going athwart the churche south and north, quhilk took away the flaitly sicht and glorious schow of the body of the haill kirk; and with this bak of the altar, and uther ornamentis thairupone, he decoirit the foirsyde and baksyde of this beistlie loft, whairas fourtie pundis wold have cost als mekill uther tymber as wold have done the samin, if thay had sufferit the foirsaid ornament to stand. This wes done but advis of the Old toun Sessioun, and, as sum said, but consent of the bretheren at the last visitatioun of oure churche. It wes a well wrocht peice, haveing thrie crounes uppermost, and thrie uther kynd of crounes beneth, weill carvit with golden knappis, now on this loft. Thair wes 2000 merkis left be doctor Scrogie in the kirk box, with the quhilk oure minister theikit the kirk, too-fallis, steple and Gawin Dumbaris Iyll with new sklait; and keft with lyme that pairt quhair the bak of the alter stood, that it suld not be kend.

In this moneth of December, and second day thairof, dame Elizabeth Gordoun, first lady Wardes, fyne lady Cluny, departit this lyf at Durhame in England, quhair scho wes bureit. It is said, scho deit of ane cancer in one of hir papes, quhilk eit into the bowellis; bot tuo yeir befor scho went to England, this cancer wes in her pape, as ye have befor.

Ye hard befor of Maxuell and Ferrendaill accusit of Bruinaisme. Mr. Androw Cant favors them, as wes thocht. The bretheren is offendit thairat, ordaning thame befor the pulpit to cum in, subscribe the covenant and deny thair tenetis. Bot, upone Saterdag efter the fermon, and last of December, this Ferrendaill cam in befor the pulpit in the Old church, quhair he approvit oure kirk, denyit the Brounistis tenetis, subscrivit oure covenant, and be Mr. Androw Cant wes received as ane good barne; bot the bretheren wes not content with this satisfioun, not done upone ane Saboth day, bot upone ane weik day befor the communion. Sie heirefter.

About this time, it wes said there wes sum miscontentment betuixt the Prince of Orange and the Estaites, becaus he inclynit to favor oure king, being his owne good father, and thairfor most kyndlie, and that, in the meiu tyme that the Estaites of Scotland had sent to the parliament of England craveing ane union with thame. Sie befor.

About this tyme, doctor Goold left af from preiching in the Colledge kirk. quhairat the people wes not displeisit, and began ilk night efter supper ane Lectur Lesson in prefens of the regentis and studentis, who wes als litle pleisit with his discours. Sie befor.

It is heir to be nottit, that the victualleis heir in Abirdene wes monstruous deir, for, about and efter Martines, throw the haill wynter, the malt haldin at 15 and 16 merkis the boll, the white meill at 8 li. the boll, quhilk wes the first deir wynter heirtofore sein in this land, albeit thair hes bein deir fymeris. There wes also gryte raines whereby none wes able to travell, gryte stormes in the seas, and few fishes gottin, to the gryte greif of the people, albeit our synis deserved wors; bot God sent, in June, July, August, excellent wether, whiche maid amendis for Marche, Apryle, May, horibill unseasonable wether.

Doctor Goold, principall and moderatour, at this tyme refusit to give play to the studentis at Yooll day; bot thay took it at thair owne hand, and the gramariars bothe, who at last be compositioun gat aucht dayis play. This yeir, Yooll day fell upone Sunday, oure minister and ministeris of Abirdene preiching aganes all myrrines, play and pastyme; and the night befor, be touk of drum throw Abirdene, the touwesmen commandit to keip them selsis fober and flie all superstitious keiping of dayis. Upone Monunday, the bell throw the Old toun commandit all maner of man to oppin ther buith durris, and go to wark that wes craftifmen and utheris : bot the studentis fell upone the belman, took fra him the bell for giveing sic ane unuwall charge ; bot the people maid gryte cheir and banketting, according to ther estaites, and past thair tymes Monunday and Tuyfday both, for all thir threatningis.

It is said, Mr. Androw Cant, sitting upone this same Yool day efternone at Mr. John Rewis preiching in the Old kirk, heiring sum noyis in the kirkyaird of barnes and people, he gat wp foddantlie fra his feat, sitting as he ordinarlie usit beyde the reidar, throw the kirk and people gois he, and out at the dur, to the gryte astonishment of the people in the Old church; and when he cam to the kirkyaird, the barnes fled ; bot he cheaffit them in to the New kirk, whairat the people thair wes als feirit. At last he returnit bak to his owne place, and the people satlit, and becam pacefeit ; bot wonderit at his licht behaveour.

1643. Word cam heir to Abirdene that generall King cam fra Denmark with about five hundreth thousand pundis striviling to his Majestie, and thrie or four scoir brave commanderis. He wes direct fra the king of Denmark, and landit at Newcastle, who wes maid welcun, and presentlie preferrit to be livetenant generall to the erll of Newcastle's army, consisting of about 10,000 men. The erll thairefter went to his Majestie and returnit bak, quhair he directit generall King to go wp to his Majestie with his army, and he wold keip Newcastle and the countrie about with forces anew, whiche he keipit beyd for that purpos. Thus, King goes wp in good order ; his Majestie receaves him gratiously, and puttis him in service according to his rank and worth, and honorable rewardis him for his panes.

Report past, that London wes distrestit wanting both fyre and victuall, whiche bred sum miscontentment and divisoun amongis them selfis, sum wiffing peace, sum wiffing warr.

Upone Sunday 8 Januar, prayer and fasting in both Abirdenes and throw the kingdome, for a blissing to this conventioun of Estaites that wes to be holdin at Edinbrughe.

The Committe of the Conservatouris of Peace fittis doune at Edinbrughe upone the first day of Januar, or rather, the Lordis and utheris Commissiouneris of Parliament for Conservatioun of Peace between the two kingdomes ; thus, this is this Committe's trew styll. Ye hard befor the contraverfie amongis the Counfall anent the printing of the kingis letter, and how it wes in end grantit. It wes at that same tyme thocht, that the parliamentis of England thair Declarationes sent in to our counfall fuld be lykwaies printed, quhair-upone the counfall could not well agrie; bot thair wes ane petitionou givin in to the saidis commiffioneris of parliament be nobles, barrones, gentilmen and burgefiss occasionallie met at Edinbrughe, quhairof the tennour followis:

To the right honourabill the Lordis and utheris Commiffioneris of Parliament for Conferuation of Peace betuixt the tuo kingdomis, The Petitionou of the Noblemen, Barrons, Gentlemen, Burgefiss and Minifteris occasionallie met at Edinbrughe, Humelie fcheweth,

That notwithstanding thay ar confident, not onlie of your lordschippis' habilite, care and diligens to acqyt your felis of that wechtie charge of confervation of peace betuixt the kingdomes during the interim, according to the trust committit to your lordschippis by his Majestie and Parliament; bot also, that your lordschippis (confiddering that the mutuall peace of bothe can not long consist without the severall peace of ather within thame felis) will labour by all meinis possibill to quenche the combustionis in our nightoure kingdome: yit to the great greif and havie regrait of your petitioneris, and of all who tender the glory of God, the kingis honour, the promoteing of the intended unitie of religioun and uniformitie of kirk government, and contyneing the solemplie established uniuon betuixt the tuo kingdomes, thay have understood that the lordis of his Majesties Privie Counfall have by ther warrand and command laitlie put to the pres his Majesties Letter, conteneing aspersions of odious and desperat rebellious aganis the Parliament of England, without printing the Declaratioun of both houfis of Parliament, of whiche his Majesties Letter is the Answer; whiche publication thay feir fal be takin be the Parliament of England, as ane approbatioun of the contentis thairof, condemning all ther proceedingis, as many heir do interpret the same, and therefore humelie conceive, will tend to the diminishing of confidens betuixt the tuo kingdomes, to the breiding and increffing of jealousieis, to the interrupting of thair happy uniuon and peace, and the impeding the progres of so muche desyrit unitie of religioun and uniformety of kirk government, by former experience found, and by publict judgement laitlie declaired, so necessar to the preservation of the happie Reformation restored to ws by the blissing of God. Like as thay have hard that there ar findrie Paperis and Declarationis now presendie at the pres to be spred throw this kingdome, declairing the Parliament of England to be rebellis and traitouris, and ther actionis to be treslanous and rebellious. And we remember how grievous it wes to this kingdome in ther owne troubles to heir Declarationis of the like itrane war printed and spred throw the kingdome of England aganes thair loyaltie and dewtifulnes, whiche therefore war recalled, suppress and forbidden according to ane article of the lait Treaty; the lyke quhairof can not bot be requyred and expected of ws by the Parliament of England. And thay, your Petitionneris, conceive that the printing and spreding of these doe animat the people aganis them as traitouris and rebellis, and can be esteimed by them no less nor ane gryt walkning of confidens, and braking of so gryt ane band of uniuon maid betuixt the tua kingdomes. All whiche thay intended to have represented in ane humill Petitioun to the Lordis of his Majesties Privie Counfall, bot wanting the opportunitie of your lordschippis' sitting at that tyme; Therefore thay have embraced the occasioun of your lordschippis' sitting at this tyme, and it is the humill desire of your lordschippis' petitioneris that your lordschippis (who ar entrusted by his Majestie and Parliament with the confervation of the uniuon and peace, and to whome properlie belangis the applying of all meinis whiche may serve to that end), would be pleassit, (out of the consciens and cair of ane trust of fo gryte wecht and deip concernment), upone the former considerationis and uthir obvious to your wifdomes, to provyde sum speydy remedy for removing these occasionis of jealousyis and impedimentis of your lordschippis' treaty with ane good succes, by cleiring the meining of that Publicatioun, by causing publish the Declaratioun of both houffis of Parliament to ther brethren of the kingdom of Scotland, by stopping these other Declaratiounis at the pres, and by any other whiche the deip of your wifdomes can fynd expedient for the preservyng peace at home, conservyng the uniuon of peace betuixt the tuo kingdomes, and promovyng the reformatioun of the kirk of England, ane mein of all utheris most conduceable to the weill of bothe, and perpetuatyng of the fame; wherby the name of the Lord sal be great in this Island, the Kingis Majestie his fame to be renowned upone the erth, and his subjectis leive a quyet and peceabill lyf wuder his government, with all godlineis and honestie, whiche is the fervent and unfangyeit prayer to God of your lordschippis' petitioneris. All whiche thay represent to your lordschippis' wife consideratiounis and your lordschippis' anfuert.

AT EDINBURGHE, sexto Januarij 1643.

The Commiffioneris for Conservyng the Articles of Treaty, haveing red and cõsiderit the Petitioun above writtin, do declar that thay wil be reddie to use ther best indeavouris for removing of all jealonseis and misunderstandingis, and conservyng the Uniuon betuixt the tuo kingdomes. And for anfuert to that part of the desire of this Petitioun, anent the cleiring the counfallis meining of the publicatioun of his Majesteis Letter, and printyng the Declaratioun sent from the parliament of England, The commiffioneris will serioullie recommend the fame to his Majesteis counfall, that thay, in ther wifdomes, may think on the fitteft way for removing of any mistakes or jealousyis. And for that part of the desire for stopping the Declaratiounis at the pres, The Commiffioneris wil be cairfull be them selfis, and will lykwaies recommend to the counfall that nothing be printed in prejudice of his Majesteis service, or whiche may breid ane miswunderstanding between the tuo kingdomes.

Decimo Januarij 1643.

The Commiffioneris gives commiffioun and warrant to the Lord Chancellor to represent the Referrens abovewrittin to the Lordis of Privie Counfall this efternone.

Heir ye may fie the natur of this Petitioun, the Anfuert of the Commiffioneris and Warrant to the Chancellor to present the referrens to the Counfall. What followit, I cannot tell, befor the Counfall.

Now, there being at this same tyme divers noble men, barronis and burgesis convenit within the Abbay of Holyroodhous, and heiring of this petitioun, thay give in ane uther petitioun presentit be the erll of Hume for himself and in ther name, quhair of the coppie is not heir insert; bot the effect was, desyryng the Lordis of his Majesteis Counfall in all humilitie to look to thair wayes, to be wys and fie to the kingis prerogative royall, peace of bothe kingdomes, and satlement of religioun, against all Schismaticks, Brounistis, Annabaptistis, Separatistis, and the lyk. This petitioun wes gevin in to the Counfall upone the tent of January.

AT EDINBRUGH the 18 of Januar 1643.

THE Commiffioneris apointit be the Kingis Majeftie and his parliament of Scotland for conferving the Articles of the Treaty doe fynd, That the petition givin in to his Majefties Privie Counfall by fome noble men and gentilmen upone the tenth of this moneth dothe tend to the hynderans of their proceedingis and indeavouris in this publick work committed to thame by the Kingis Majeftie and parliament, and it is prejudiciall to the auctoritie of this Commiffioun, the fame being in oppofitioun of what wes that day recommendit by the faidis Commiffioneris to the Counfall; and ordane this Act to be published, for ftopping all forder progres of that, or uther petitionis of that kynd; and that it be printed with the Declaratioun of the Commiffioneris of the Generall Affembly maid heiranent.

Sic fubfcribitur, ARCH. PRYMOSE, Cler. Commis.

Confidder the Lordis anfuer to the Petitioun givin be the foirfaid erll of Hume and remanent callit Banderis.

Followis ane uther Petitioun from the Commiffioneris of the Generall Affembly :

The Commiffioneris of the Generall Affembly,

Humelie fhewing,

THAT whereas, fince ther former petitioun rendred to your lordfchippis, thay not onlie perceive the lettis and impedimentis of this fo muche defired wark of reformatioun in oure nightbour kingdome of England to be growin grytter, in refpect of ane army of Papitis now on foot in that kingdome; bot we conceive, that be the malice and fors of that pairty, oure owne religion and peace may be trublit at home: And therefore hes refolvit, not onlie to renew ther humbill fupplicatiounis to his Majeftie, for promoveng of that wark of reformatioun within that kirk; bot alfo to reprezent to his Majeftie, that the religioun and peace of this kirk and kingdom (fo bappellie eftablished be his Majeftie) can not be fecure and faif, if the Papitis in that kingdome contynew in armes; and to render to his Majeftie fuch other defires, as thay conceive neceffarie for promoveng of that work of reformatioun in that kirk, and for preventing of all dangeris to the reformatioun and peace of this. Therefoir the faidis Commiffioneris of Affembly do moft ernestlie petitioun your lordfchippis, that, taking to your lordfchippis' wys and ferious confideratioun the premissis, you will concur with them in the like defires to his Majeftie, and contribute all your best indeavouris, for removeing the lettis and impedimentis of that wark of reformatioun in England, and for fecureing oure owne reformatioun and peace at home.

Edinbrughe, 9 January 1643.

Givin to the Commiffioneris be the Lord Maitland, Balcharrous, Mr. Ro. Douglas, An. Ramfay and Ro. Blair, in name of the Commiffioneris of the lait Generall Affembly, 16 January 1643.

ANSWER,—The Commiffioneris declair, thay will concur with the Generall Affembly, in fupplicating of his Majeftie, for removeall of Epifcopacy, for eftabliſhing the unities of religioun and uniformetie of Churchle government, and for the meiting of divynes; and in generall, thay wil be affifting to his Majeftie with the defire of the petitioun of the Generall Affembly, Sic fubfcribitur, LOUDOUN, Cancellarius. I. P. D.

The nobles, barronis and gentrie callit the Banderis takis occasioun, upone the heiring of this Petitioun givin in be the Commiffioneris of the Generall Affemblic foirfaid, to present unto the Counfall ane uther Petitioun or Declaratioun of the contentis following :

To the Lordis of Secret Counfall, The Petitioun or Declaratioun of the noble men, barronis, and utheris occasionallie met at Edinbrughe, 17 Januar 1643.

WE can not but with regrait and greif of hait present to your lordschipis oure sens and sorrow of the gryt and bawie imputationis laid wponc ws and oure actiouns for the lait petitioun presented to your lordschipis by ws of the dait the 10 of January 1643, and that oure ingenuitie and sincere meining fould be so far mistaken, whereof we hope oure petitioun it self will sufficientlie instruct ws and oure intentionis. Bot leif we fould appeir wanting to onre selfis in oure just defensis, or in our dewtie to your honorabill lordschipis, or to the reverend commiffioneris of the Affemblic (to whome we have and ever wil be most willing to pay all dew reverens and respect), or leif we fould appeir in ony fort desyrous to intrynthe upone the brotherlie unioun of the tuo kingdomes, or to affume to our selfis any pouer or libertie, whiche (as we conceave) is not dew to all good Christians and frie subjectis ; we presume in all humilitie to represent to your lordschipis, that oure foirfaid petitioun wes upone occasioun of a petition presented to the Conservatouris of Peace be sum privat noblemen, gentilmen, barronis and utheris occasionallie met at Edinbrughe, without any mention of consent, knowledge or assistans of the commiffioneris of the Affemblic, whome we both privatlie and publictie acquainted with oure said petitioun, and whois concurrens thairto, judgement and advise thairin, we did with all humilitie and reverens intreat. For, as will appeir be onre Supplicatioun givin to them, heirwith annexit, and whiche we humelie besikc your lordschipis to luke upone ; and as we intendit, and intendis nothing les then be oure petitioun to question or carp at any of the proceedinges of the Commiffioneris of the Affemblic, far less to accuse them or any of them or any of ther actionis ; so we hartlie wis that no offens may be taken, where there is none intendit to be givin, bot that your lordschipis in the deipnes of your wifdomes may be pleisit to consider, that (as we conceave) be oure petitioun we desire nothing, bot that whiche is professit to be the desire of all the trew memberis of this kirk and kingdome, that the puritie of religion and prebiteriall government (as it is now established within this kirk and kingdome) may be firmie and unanimooslie mantayned be ws all, and the same puritie of religion and presbyteriall government may, be all fair and lauchfull wayes, be propagatit throw all his Majesteis dominions, and that the brotherlie unioun betuixt the tuo kingdomes being thus strentmed and chayned, we may all stryve and indeavour to contynev the samen, with that tender care of oure sacrad soveraigne his nachtoritie, whiche justlie he may challenge, and the world expect from Scottish subjectis to ther dreid soveraigne, to whom thay ar tyed by so many unparaleld favouris and obligationis both personal and hereditarie, and that in the prosecution heirof (since all oure professionis, and, we hope, desires, ar on the samen), brotherlie unioun amongst oure selfis may be intertaynd, and nothing done which may ather occasioun or necessitat a rupture and divisioun amongst oure selfis, or disturb the happie present peace of this kirk and kingdome.

What aufser this petitioun gat fra the Lordis of Counfall I cannot tell. Bot thair follout ane long paper set out by the Commiffioneris of the Generall Af-femblic, intitulat, A Declaratioun againt a crofs Petitioun wherein sum secret lettis of the intencit reformatioun ar discoverit, the danger of divisioun preventit and the unities of this Iland in religion urged. Printed at Edinbrughe by Evan Tyler, 1643. Whairunto there wes bound another imprintid piece callit Ane peccabill warning. Thir peices ar not heirin infert nor coppet being tedious and longsum, yit sum few heidis thair of ar nottit heirefter.

Surelie it wes reportit thair wes multitudes of people in Edinbrughe at this conventioun. The counfall and conservatoris of peace had ther owne ordinarie places of residens; the nobles, barronis and gentrie called the Banderis, had ther meitings in the Abbay; and the nobles, barronis, gentrie and ministrie of Fyf had thair meitings in the Taylyeour Hall in the Kowget. Quhilkis severall places of meiting finellit of discontentment and divisioun amonges them felfis. It is said, the haill ministeris of Fyf left thair churches upone Sunday the 8 of January but preicheris, and cam to Edinbrughe, crying out befor the Counfall for not imprinting the parliament of Englandis Declaratioun, alsweill as thay had causit imprint the Kinges Letter; quhilk thay war loth to do but the Kingis advys or knowledge. And to that effect, and upone uther reffones, thay send Mr. Alexander Hendersoun, minister at Edinbrughe, Mr. Robert Barclay proveest of Irving, and the Chanceler of Scotland. The report past, that the tennour of ther commissioun wes to shaw him anent the printing of the said Declaratioun, with uther four heides, 1. The king to bring home his queen, and convert hir from popery; 2. To returne to his English parliament, and adheir to thame; 3. To remove all papistis furth of his army; 4. To indiet ane General Assemblie, with ane parliament to follow thairupone, and that schortlie and haistellie within the limit and prescrivit tyme of parliament. The king grantit to the printing and publicatioun of the foirsaid Declaration, as ye may sie heirefter; bot what anfuer he gave to the rest I can not tell. Aluaies the Fyff ministeris wes directit home to attend thair charge. It is said, thair wes nominat Mr. Archibald Johnston Clerk to the Assemblie to have gone with the uther thrie commissiouneris; bot the erll of Lanerk, being at the counfall, declairit he had no saif conduct for him, quhairupone he baid at hame. It wes ordered that ane gryte taxation fould be takin af of the countrie, the annities of teindis and such like, as ye have heirefter.

Thay appoint ane new conventioun to be holdin at Edinbrughe the 15 day of Februar, and, upone the 24 of Januar, thay altozidder dissolve in peace.

Tuyfday 17 Januar, Mr. Alexander Middeltoun, fubprincipall, is mareit with Gordoun dochter to Mr. Thomas Gordone at Kethokifmilne, contrair to the foundatioun of that college, forbidding mareage to ony of the inuard memberis ferving thairin.

Thair wes findrie giftis, taffis and cunzeit gold givin be findrie fitteris at this brydell, and fun gave ringis; bot cunzeit gold was not in ufe to be givin heir in Abirdene at frie brydellis.

Upone the 17 of Januar, Johne Leflie ballie depairtit this lyf in Abirdene efter fun few dayis feiknes, (his brother the proveft wes in Edinbrughe), to the gryte greife of the tounes people, being better lovit nor his brother. He wes bureit with a brave voly of mufkiteiris.

About this tyme, generall Leflie erll of Levin cumis to the caftell of Edinbrughe, takis wp hous, and with his lady and famellie duellis peciablle thair-intill.

Ye hard befoir of Othro Ferrendaill his repentance. The prefbitrie of Abirdene wes not content. Quhairupone doctor Goold Moderatour wreit for tua minifteris and reulling elderis out of ilk prefbitrie within the diocie and haill minifterie of the prefbitrie of Abirdene as being narrest hand, to meit at New Abirdene the 24 of Januar, for taking ordour with the flichting of this Ferrendaill in his obedience and fatiffactioun contrair to ther laft act, quhilk bure him to cum in upone ane Saboth day efter fermon, to deny his haill tenetis of Brunafine, fueir and fubfcrive oure covenant, ratefie and approve oure kirk as the true church of God. The bretheren and ther reulling elderis met. Mr Androw Cant maid his awin apologic, quhilk wes thocht frivolus. In end, thay referrit this Ferrendaill to the nixt Provinciall Affemblic. Sie heirefter.

This Mr. Androw Cant ufit not oft the faying of the Lordis prayer befoir or efter fermonis, as wes wont in that kirk, bot had prayeris extempore long aneuche; fo the rest of the minifteris of Abirdene keipit his custom. Thay brocht in upone ilk Tuyfday, Thuirfday and Setterday efternone Lectureis, taucht be ilk minifter his tyme about, in place of the faying of prayeris ilk nicht abefoir. The people is compellit to attend thir Lectureis, or then cryt out againft. None on the Saboth day durft cum out of the New toun to the Old toun efpeciallie in time of fermon. And to that effect, the hie wayis watchit on ilk Sunday, and who wes found wes convenit befoir thair feffoun and feveirlie punifhit with fchame and deriffoun. In tyme of preiching on weik dayis, no merchand nor craftifman's booth durris durft be opnit, that the kirk micht be the better keipit be the maisteris and fervandis. The barnes of the gramer scooll forbiddin to keip efternone's sermons, bot to keip the scoolis, quhair the maister fall catechise thame upone poyntis of religioun. Reiding of holie scriptures and finging of psalmes at lykwalkis dischargit be act of the toune's counfall of Abirdene. Be persuasion of this Cant and his fellowis, the hand bell fould go and proclame throw the toune who wes deid, bot tolling of kirk bellis at ther buriall dischargit. All brocht in be this Cant, and followit be the majestratis of Abirdene, as he commandit, or as he daylie devyfit, to the grivous burdein of the people, who had never sein the like orderis. Yit thay culd not get finging of psalmes and reiding at lykwalkis altogidder suppreft.

Ye heir of ane petitioin givin in be sum nobill men, barronis and utheris to the commissiouneris of parliament, whairin amonges the rest thay crave the parliament of Englandis Declaratioun to be printed and published, alsweill as the Kingis Letter. Alwayes the King is advertisit, and he most gratioulsie grantis way to the imprinting of this Declaratioun alsweill as his owne Letter wes inprinted, quhairupone it is shortly put to pres and divulgite throw all Scotland.

About this tyme, there came out ane uther new peice inprinted, called Auce pecebill warning, contening divers heidis; and in speciall declairing the enemies of religion to be of thrie fortis, Papistis, Separatistis, and malignant, malcontent and profane Tyme Serveris. It touchit the Malignantis, who wes so from the begining, and now fallin bakward, disaffected to the reformed religioun; warning all man thairfor to bewar of their company, who is discrivit be six or seven circumstanes to be knowne, and to eschew ther counfallis and seducementis; declairing withall, all siche as oppose the unities of religioun to be enemies to God, to the king, to the people, and prosperitie of the kingdoms; with a number of uther argumentis; and is intitulat, A necessary warning to the Ministrie of the Kirk of Scotland, from the Meiting of the Commissioneris of the Generall Assembly. Printed at Edinbrughe, 4 Januar 1643. This Warning commandit a fast and humiliation to be keipit throw all the kirkis of Scotland upone the last Sabbath of Februar, and the next Thuirfdai thairefter. And thair wes bound to their Warning ane uther printed peice spokin a litle of befoir, callit A Declaratioun aganis ane Crofs Petitioun, &c. This with the Warning is ordaned to be red out publictlie throw all the kirkis of Scotland, quhair it wes red at sum churchis; and in other churchis refuist be the ministeris thair of, sic as Stirlingfchyre and Perthfchyre, about the number of 14 presbitreis, alledging thay had no orderis from ane Generall Affemblic to divulge fuche paperis, and therefoir difobeyit the publicatioun; and wreit also aganes the Commiffioneris of this Generall Affemblic at Edinbrughe for publifhing out of pulpites fuche peices, finding fault with calling the nobles and utheris (who presentit the said petitionn to the counfall) Malignantis, and that thair Cros Petitioun publifhit at the parochie churches fould have bene done with consent of ane Generall Affemblic, being of it felf ane mein rather to breid difcord and diffentioun nor to mantane peace in kirk and kingdome. Thay wreit out to this purpos ane paper of aucht articles. Thus is this kirk now gydit with the fpirit of contradiction. Sie heirefter.

Upon the laft of Januar, Patrik Leslie proveft cam bak fra the Commiffioneris of parliament for conferving the Articles of the Treattie &c., with ane foir hairt for the death of his brother.

Upone Wedinfday the firft of Februar, thair cam to the place of Cromartie, quhair the ladie wes, Hutcheon Ros of Auchincloche with tua uther gentilmen, whair thay war maid welcum, foupit merrellie; bot rekleffie gat ane collatioun which wes prepared for ane uther, and wes all thrie found deid in ther bedis on the morne. Pitifull to behold! It is said, the young laird of Calder wes mareit to Cromarteis dochter, who there efter becam mad, and of whome his young ladie had no plefour. Thus, he being with her in the place of Cromartie, this potioun wes in a quart ftoup provydit for him, bot fell urtherwayes as ye heir; whereupone young Calder, be his freindis, wes haiftellie removit out of that place and never moir tryit.

Upone the fecond of Februar, being Candlemas day, the barnis of the Old toun Gramar fcooll at fex houris cam wp the get with candles lichtit in ther handis, crying, rejoyfing and blythe aneuche; and being about fex houris at nicht cam thus wp the get to the cros, and round about gois divers tymes, clyns to the heid thairof and fet on ane burning torche thairupoue. I mervallit at this, being at sic tyme, and quhairof my felf had never fene the lyk. Attour thay went down fra the cros convoying Johne Keith brother to the erll Marfchall, who wes ther king, to his lodging in the Channonrie, with licht candles.

Ye hard of ane Maxuell, who wes also accufit of Brunifme, a fillie quheill wricht of his calling. This man wes focht for, and all man forbiddin out of the pulpites of oure prefbetrie to recept him; quhilk wes done be oure minifter Mr. Williame Strathachin also out of pulpit upone the 5 of Februar being Souday.

About this tyme, the Counfall ordanit the countrie to pay ane gryte taxatioune and thair annueteis of the teyndis, and ane charge givin out and publihit at the mercat croffis of the burrowis and utheraies for making payment heirof. Qulhairat the subjectis grudgit, and wes heichlic offendit to be this way usit but auctoretie of thair king, done and devyfit, as wes thoct, be the marques of Hammiltoun, the Chancelair, the marques of Argyll, the erll of Lyndefay, the lord Balmirrinoche and sum few utheris of thair factioun, but advys and consent of the rest of the nobilitie or countrie statesmen, who had als gryte entres there as thay. Besides the tienteithis wes takin abefoir, the tenthis and mony uther fynes both of brughe and land, the King and Quenis rentis and patrimony of the Crowne takin wp since 1639, quiliik wes the begining of thir troubles, thay had gottin from England the brotherlie assistans whiche wes about thrie hundreth thousand pundis sterling money, (sic the 6 act of K. Charles' 2. parliament, fol. 75.), and no compt nor reckning maid how or what way thir moneyis war wairit and imployit; quhairat many of the nobles and hail commouns, barronis, burgesis and gentrie grudgit and murmurit, especiallie these called the Banderis. Whereupone the erll of Montros and lord Ogilvy ar direct wp commissioneris from thir Banderis to his Majestie to complane upone thir grevous oppressionis and to try his will heirament, who quiklie went, for releif of this poor distreflit kingdome; quhairat the king wes nowayes content, and in the mein tyme the countrie wes not distreflit.

In this moneth of Februar thair is hard at Bankafair and in the place of Drum, upone the night, touking of drumis and apparitionis of armyes, as wes hard befor.

Mr. Androw Leitch, minister at Ellon, told me, that he, his wyf and famelie sitting at supper in his owne hous hard touking of drumis rivelie, funtyme appeiring neir hand, funtyme appeiring far of.

And upone the 7 of Februar it wes writtin heir to Abirdene, that Kentoun battell at Bamburrie, wherein his Majestie wes victorious, hes in visiou bene sein fochten sein findrie tymes senlyne. Armyes of men, upone the 12 of Februar, about 8 houris in the morning, being a mistie day, sein upon the hill of Brymman beyde Crabstoun. Sie heirefter.

Thair cam newis to Abirdene the samen 7 of Februar, That Sir Ralphe Hoptoun, the kingis man, neir Plymmouthe, hes killit 1000 men, hath taken 1500 soldioris prisoneris, 1000 armes and 10 peices of ordinance, and is now absolut maister of the feildis in Cornwall and Devonshire.—Sir Nicholas Schipping neir the fort of Reydenis on Famouthe, whiche commandis the toune, hath takin 26 of the kingis ſchippis, whiche wes firſt ſeaſit upone whiche the ſoldioris receavit a monethis pay advanceit befoir hand. Theſe ſchippis, thus taken, war driven be ſtorme of wether within the harborrow.—Bendy caſtle in Gloceſterſchire is taken in be prince Robert, with the loſs of 500 men to the parliament. Bever caſtle taken be Sir John Henderſone, and oure Newwork ſoldioris hes gottin 80,000 lib. ſtirling of coyned money and plundering that wes put there be the enemy, with thrie monethis proviſioun by and attour.—The lord Sey and collonell Goduyne ar totally defeat in Oxfordſchire be the kingis men, and hes loſt 800 men, and forced to ryn to Allifberrie in Bukingamſchire.—Prince Robert cam to Leiceſterſchire with 7000 men. Sir Hew Shambley gat a great defeat be generall King, 3000 flayne, and 4310 taken priſoneris, with tuo cannonis and a great number of armes. This wes eſter the erll of Newcaſtell beat them from Stamford bridge and generall Kingis firſt peice of ſervice.—That the erll of Newcaſtle and generall King marchit from York with 9000 men ſtrong, to hunt the Hothamites and other rebellis.—Prince Maurice ſhot in garnetis in the toune of Chi-cheſter, and fyred ane hous thairin, and, the people being quenching the fyre, he cam in and took 1100 priſoneris, and hes carreit them to Oxfurde.—The ſchire of Eſſex hath petitionat the parliament to tak ane peace at any rate.—

 The parliament did petition the king for peace upon certane conditionis; bot his Majeſtie ſent to thame certane propoſitionis, without the whiche no Treattie, viz.

1. That the kingis revenues, fortis and ſchippis be reſtored.

2. That whatſumever hes bene publiſhed contrair his royall pouer be recalled.

3. That whatſumever illegallie hath bein exerciſed aganis his ſubjectis, by imprifoning them without law, or impoſing fynes upone ther eſtates, be diſclaimed; and that perſones ſo committed furthwith be diſcharged.

4. That his Majeſtie will conſent to the executioun of all lawis maid or to be maid for the ſuppreſſing of Popery; ſo his Majeſtie deſires that a bill be framed, for preſerving of the Book of Commoun Prayer from ſcorne of Brounniſis, Annabaptiſtis, &c.; with ſuche clauſis for the eas of tender conſciences as his Majeſtie hath formerlie offered.

5. That all ſuche perſones, as upone Treaty ſal be excepted out of the generall pardon, be tryit per pares.

6. That ane ceſſatioun of armes be preſentlie agreit upone.

Bot the parliament thocht thir propofitionis (though moft equitable) hard and havie to be embraceit, and fo did for them felffis in a rebellyous way.

Upone Fridday 10 Februar, the tounfchip of Abirdene be touk of drum convent in the tolbuith of Abirdene, to whome proveft Lefly maid ane fpeiche, putting them in rememberans of ther covenant quhilk thay had fuorne and fubferivit, defyring thame conftantlie to ftik to the famen if ony new band hapnit to be offerit to thame to fubferive, faying, he wes not to perfuade nor diffluade them to fubferive, bot do upone ther owne perrell. It wes then thocht and fpokin that the Banderis wes making wp ane band, who wold follow the king or the countrie, quhilk bred this fpeiche; bot this band cam to no effect. Aluaies the people of Abirdene poffeffit with ther owne opinioinis, more with the king nor againft him, departit home to thair houffis.

Ye fie of apparitionis and vifionis fene heir at the hill of Brynman within four myllis to Abirdene. William Anderfone, tennent in Crabftoun, told me he faw ane gryte army as appeirit to him both of hors and foot, about 8 houris in the morning, being mifty, and vifible continewit till fone ryfing, fyne vaneifhit away in his ficht with noys into ane mois hard befyde. Lykuaies in the mure of Forfar, armies of men fein in the air. Quhilkis vifionis the people thocht to be prodigious tokenis, as it fell out over trew, as may be fein heirefter.

Sonday 12 Februar, oure minifter, Mr. Williame Strathachin, red out of the pulpit the Warning befoir fpokin of; and the nixt Sunday, red out the Declaratioune againft the Cros Petitioun, and maid fum littill fpeiche thair-upone, declairing the warris of England, Ireland and Germany, and how oure countrie leivit in peace, whiche wes liklie to cum to trubbill haiftelley alfo, if we amendit not oure lives; thairefter appointit the faft to be keipit the nixt Sunday and Thurfday thairefter, conforme to the ordour of the faid Declaratioun, quhilk wes at oure kirk folemnly keipit. Sie heirefter.

About the 13 of Februar, word cam to Abirdene that the Quenis Majestie had fent out of Holland to Newcaftell ftore of munitioun, pulder and ball, with tuelf tun of gold amounting to 120,000 lib. fterling, with officiares and brave commanderis of Frenfhe and Valloons about 2000. Thairefter hir felf takis voage, accompaneit with fyve gryte warr fchippis, at the Prince of Orange directioun, haveing Martyne Harper Trump hir admirall, with charge to defend hir againft the parliamentis, if thay hapnit to imped hir paffage, or perfew hir be the way; bot being landit, had no forder pouer to defend hir. The crafty Hollanderis gives way to the Prince of Orange orderis, who had gryte malice aganes the Quein, and, by hir expectatioun, laid down a cours for hir distructioun, whiche wes, thay wnderstood scho wes to land at Newcastle, heirfore thay privilee advertitit the parliament of hir dyet; quhairupone thay direct six royall schippis to ly at the Rode off Newcastle, and there, efter Martyne Harper Trump had taken his leive, to have the Quein deid or quik. Bot God difapointit the trecherous designes of all hir enemeis, for, by all expectatioun, scho happellie landis at Berlingtoun-bey, tuelf myllis befouth Newcastle. Bot thir rebell schippis is haiftelly advertitit by ane pynnage of hir arrivall; quhairupone thay hois wp fail, cumis within schot of cannon to the toun, fendis privatlie ane pynnage a schoir to designe the hous quhair the quein wes lodgit. Quhilk being done, hir Majestie, haveing mynd of no evill bot glad of rest, now wiryit by the sea, is cruellie affaulted; for thir six rebellis schippis, ilk ane be cours, fettis thair bred fyde to hir lodging, batteris the hous, dings down the roof or scho wift of hir self. Aluaies scho gettis wp out of hir naiked bed in hir night walycot, bairfut and bairleg, with hir maidis of honour (quhair of one throw plane feir went straicht mad being ane noble man of Englandis dochter) scho gettis faillie out of the hous. Albeit the stanes war flisting about hir heid, yit couragiouflic scho gois out, thay schooting still; and be providence of the Almighty scho escaipes, and all hir company (except the foirlaid maid of honour), and gois to ane den, whiche the cannon culd not hurt, and on the bair fieldis scho restit, insted of statelie lodgings cled with curious tapeftrie. It is said, scho offerit to the captanes of these warr schippis whiche convoyit hir (befoir thair parting) ritche rewardis for their service; bot thay altogidder refusit the famen, saying, the Prince of Orange had forbidden them, wnder the pane of deith, to tak hir money. "Well then," sayis scho, "tak heir ilk one of yow capitanes ane chayne of gold to weir for my saik, whiche I conceive is not wnder the compas of his command;" whiche thay in all humilitie acceptit and receavit. It wes said, thir rebellis schot fourfcoir peice of cannonis befor thay left of, fyne went thair way to the sea. Now, let the good reidar judge of the cruell tyranny and oppreffioun that thir rebellis usit aganis the persone of so noble a quein, unmatcheabill in this age for hir manyfold schyning virtues and unspeikable love to hir loyal king, who for his honour had undergone these misereis both be sea and land, and who, be hir industrie, had furneshit men, commanderis, ammunition, pulder, ball, moneyis and armes for fourtie thousand men. Consider also what newis this vollie of cannon wes to the king, when he hard of hir so dangerous welcum. Aluaies thair cumis to hir

Majestie upone the morne, the erll of Newcastle, with ane brave company, and convoyit the Quein faillie to Newcastle. It is said, when scho went over to Holland, scho craftellie convoyit out of the Tour of London the haill jewellis and ornamentis of the Croun, and engagit thame at Amsterdame and other places for moneyis to provyde the kingis army in this his most grevous truble and distres; commendit and praisit throw all christendome, except be hir kingis enemyis, who fallie disapproved hir doingis and traiteroullie traducit hir by many infamous lies, pasquillis and libellis, as wes reportit. Thus, throw gryte hafert, the Lord brocht hir from Holland to Newcastle, about the day of Januar, who went out of England, as ye have befoir, the day of to Holland. Aluaies scho is convoyit to York, quhair scho wes maid welcum with joy and mirth, and thair remanit whill the 18 of June. Sie heirefter. It wes forder reportit, that thair cam fra the Quein to Newcastle fou schippis, with sunn of hir maidis of honour, haveing within thame thriefcoir Dutch hors, and als many commanderis, and nyne hundreth old beaten foldiouris, and that hir self at that tyme, with the rest of hir navy that wes with hir, war by florme of wedder drivin bak agane to Holland; and thairefter scho cam forduard, as is befoir nottit, haveing with hir in hir company above teu million of dolleris.

About this 13 of Februar, thair cam ane letter from England to the marques of Huntlie, schowing, that Prince Robert had totallie defeat the parliament forces at Teuchfoord, and that Mr. Hastings had done the lyk in Dorbyshire; also, that the erll of Newcastle had committed to priffoun the lait governour of York and the schirref, togidder with the erll of Newport, the last tuo at Pomfret, and the first at Newark upone Trent; and that Sir Thomas Glemound is now governour of York.

The laird of Crag Gordoun, Donald Farquharstone and Gordoun younger of Arradoull brocht into Clatis hous in Old Abirdene, about the 16 of Februar, fourcoir foldiouris schippit with the lady Crag at Abirdene for France.

Upone the 18 of Februar, the laird of Cluny, with mistres Leslie, his good dochter, and ane uther English gentill-woman, returnit from Durhame home to his owne hous in Old Abirdene, leaving his ladie deid and bureit behind him. It was said, he had purchessit fra the lordis ane Supercedere, with consent of his creditouris, for four monethis space to pay his debtis. Sie more heirefter.

Collonell Hurrie, upone sunn miscontentis, left the parliament, and cam in to the king, who did him good service, as heirefter do appeir. Sir James Ramsay, brother to the laird of Balmane, of whome ye may sie befoir, lykuaies leavis the parliament, and cumis into Scotland about this moneth of Februar. Yit Hurrie quytis the king, and fervis againft him in Scotland.

Sonday 26 Februar, faft and humiliatioun folempnly keipit at our Old toun church and remanent kirkis of oure diocie, at command and for the cauffis contenit in the Declaratioun givin out be the Commiffioneris for the Generall Affemblic, as ye have befor. And lykuaies, on Thurfday thairefter, faft and prayer in both Abirdenis and throw the diocie; and in New Abirdene preiching befor and efter none fo preceiffie keipit, that no merchand tradifmen or craftifmenis buith dur wes fein opnit, yea not a lead of peites nor uther commoditeis durft be brocht in to fell, wnder pane of confiscatioun, this haill day wes fo hollellie keipit. The Lord Newcastle's Proclamation.

Where as it appeireth to me, by information, and by warrandis issued by the Lord Fairfax and otheris, that the said Lord Fairfax and sum of his adherentis have endeavoured to posses the people, that I with the army vnder my command have ane intencion to overthrow the Protestant Religioun, with many other fals and scandallous acusationis, purposelic disperfit, to mak his Majestie most just and gracious proceedingis (if it war possibill) odious to his people, and by that mein to draw unto them selfis a pairty, vnder a pretens of self saifty, bot indeid to countenans ther rebellious designes, and to bring in Annabaptisme, and other Schismes, whiche will destroy the government both of church and state; I heirby publish and declare that I never intendit (either by the power of this army, or by any other way or mein) to occasion any alteration in the Protestant Religioun, in which I have bein bred, hitherto leived, and resolve to die; or to do any illegall act, whereby the libertie or propertie of the good subject could be overthrowne: but only to oppose and suppress all rebellious and illegall forces, and to satill this countie and otheris in peace, for whiche his Majestie hath enabled me, by his legall commissioun, and directed me by his speciall commandis.

I therefore (by consent of the Quein sacrad Majestie, now residing at York, who hath a great desire to prevent the effusion of blood and doethe muche pitie the poor misseled people) do heirby command all persones whatsoever now vnder Ferdinando Lord Fairfax, Sir Johne Hotham or any uther who hath not commissioun fra his Majestie, that, befoir the sext of Aprile nixt, thay lay down ther armes, and everie man repair to his owne habitatioun. Whiche done, I heirby promeis and declair to protect and secure them in the peaciabill fruitioun of religioun, propertie of goodis and libertie of persone, according to the knowne lawis of this kingdome; onlie expecting, that everie man (in an equall proportioun without oppressioun) will pay suche resonabill assisementis as salbe necessary for the mantenas of this army till the country be satled in peace. Whiche offer of mercy and favour, if it salbe refusit, I hope to be cleirit bothe before God and man if I proceed aganes the refusar as according to my commissioun and the just and legall command of his Majestie.

Given at York the 29 day of Marche in the 19 yeir of the raigne of oure Sovereigne Lord Charles, by the grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland king, defender of the faith.

The lord Oboyne, in this moneth of Marche, went from Strathbogie, accompanied with fimm tuelf gentlemen, quhair of Agent Gordone wes one, towards York, to sie the Quein; bot he returnit home befoir Oboyne. Sie more heirefter.

To remember, this moneth of Marche veray unfeasonable, frostis, fleitis, snaw, hailstones, and the wynd still northerlie.

About the first of Aprile, word cam to Abirdene, that Prince Robert had takin in Wyndfore with gryte blood. The Quein is lying still at York weill gairdit with about 10,000 soldiouris, who still is drawing in freindis to his Majestie; and by hir persuasioun divers persones cumis to her, who promesit to get thame remissioun for byganes, upone thair loyaltie in tyme to cum.

Ye hard befoir, how our Commisshoneris wes direct to the King be the Conservatouris for conserving of peace. No word cumis fra thame all this tyme, because the wayes wes fraitlie keipit, letteris brokin w^p which wes found, and use maid thair of. Aluaies, it is said, his Majestie, about the 7 of Aprile, and not whill then, demandit wherefore they war cum; who anfuert thay war direct fra the Conservatouris for conserving of peace between both kingdomes, and to contribute thair best endevouris for unitie of religioun and uniforme of church government and removeall of all differences between his Majestie and his tuo Houffis of Parliament, groundit upone the Act of Pacificatioun in oure printed actis of parliament: Quhairunto his Majestie maid the anfuert subsequent:

We have confidderit your Propositionis and Commissioun, by which you ar authorized to cum hither from the Commissiouneris for conserving of peace between bothe kingdomes. We have likuaies deulie and cairfullie weighed and examinat the Actis of Pacificatioun between oure tuo kingdomes, upone whiche yow sein to ground your Commissioun, and to hold your selfis warranted and obliged to contribute your indeavouris for unitie of religioun and uniformitie of church government within all our dominionis, and removeall of all differences between ws and oure tuo Houffis of Parliament.

There is nothing in that Treaty, by oure Act, whiche we fall not with all solempnitie and constancie aluaies observe, and we hope it salbe the cair of all oure loving subjectis of both kingdomes to do so too, that the peace may be perpetuallie keipit between thame; neither is there ony mein we wold not use, to remove these unhappie differences between ws and oure tuo Houffis of Parliament, as we have done to prevent thame.

But we do not wnderstand that yow, or the Commissiouneris for conserving the peace for bothe kingdomes, ar warranted and obliged to interpose in the effaires and differences of oure kingdome of England; and therefore we can not (in a buffines that concerneth so mucche the honour and interest of the natioun) admit yow wnder that capacitie, or consent that yow go qualeseit to oure tuo Houffis of Parliament for suche a mediatioun, untill yow sal mak it appeir unto ws, upone what breache of that Act, this Warrant and Obligatioun of yours, and of them that sent yow, is groundit.

With this anfuert, oure Commissiouneris tuke thair leive, and had saif conduct to cum home, as you may sie herefter.

Tuyfday the 18 of Aprile and thrid Tuyfday thair of, oure Provinciall Assamblee sat down in New Abirdein, Mr. Williame Douglas minister at Forge, with gryte gyuing chosin moderatour, and ilkane stryving for this place. Strange ordouris against the papistis. Othro Ferrendaill found, that he gave sufficient satisfactioun; and he fuert the covenant now quhilk he had subscribed befor. Tuo ministeris wes sent for the laird of Cors to cum over to the Assamblee, quhair the bretheren conferrit publictly with him. He keipit still his tenetis, and wuld not be dissuadit thairfra, nather for feir nor force; and stoutly alledgit he wes wrangouly and unjustly deposit without ony laulful ground, done more be James Morray clerk deput to the Generall Assamblee nor utheruaies be good ordour. He anfuerit all ther Quereis worthellie and pertinentlie. At laft, the bretheren concludis and declairis his place as profeffour to continew in dependans whill the nixt fuceiding Provinciall Affembly, and in the interim to advys with the nixt Generall Affembly. Horrible uncouth and unkyudlie!

Fifhes, fefchis, fowllis and all uthier commodities fcarce gettabill in Abirdene; malt at 16 merkis, qubyt meill nyne pundis, houffhold meill 11 or 12 merkis; mervalous to fie. Notwithftanding, this Affembly did not proclame a faft whereby we might crave God mercy for our fynis, and that he wold remove this tempeftuous wether, now in the veray fpring; bot mony dayis of faftis and humiliacionis wes ordanit abefoir, and dayis of thankifgiveing, for lichter cauffis. Ye fie befoir, how Hammiltoun, Montrois, Traquhair and Ogilvy went wpon to Newcaftell, to vifeit the Quein. Thay in feveral companeis cam fchortlie home, leiving hir Majeftie ftill at Newcaftell.

Upone the 29 of May, ane fchip ladnit with victuall lying in Ithan, ane plank flrak out of her fyde, and fillit with falt water, the meill wes put in float, a gryte pairt perifhit, whiche wes the countrie peoples malefoun, and God hard the famen; for Mr. Robert Farquhar and uthier merchandis had coft all the victuall thay could get in Buchane, Mar, Gareoche, Boyne, Engzie, Morray, Ros, Sutherland, fouth and north, gave gryte prices thairfoir upone condition to receive gryter prices agane for ther owne particular commodetie, and to have bene tranfportit in Ireland to the wrack ofoure countrie, giveing nyne pundis for the boll, quhairas it nicht have bene fold for the half. About this tyme, a number of piratis, Dunkirkeris and Irishis, frequentit thir coastis, about the number of 16. Thay did gryte skaith to our schippis and barkis. Sum thay took and fet the men on schoir. Thay fet ane bark ladnit with coallis in fyre in sicht of the awneris, whome thay had fet on schoir at Peterhead.

Generall Major Monro, about this tyme, had takin the erll of Antrim, upone whome he fand findrie letteris veray suspitious. He wreittis to the Counfall of Scotland of this purpose, and to the Generall, and fendis thairwith the letteris in to thame; quhillkis, with the manner of the erllis taking, is cleirlye discovered by an imprinted Paper set out by the Houfe of Commouns, and called, A Declaration of the Hous of Commonis assenblyt in Parliament concerning the rise and progres of the grand rebelloun in Ireland, daitit at London, July 1643. In this Paper mentioun is maid of ane letter, writtin by generall major Monro to the Irish Committe of the Parliament of England, of findrie materis. Amongst the rest, how he had tryffit ane bark cuming fra the Ile of Man with that trecherous papist the erll of Antrim, whose brother Alexander wes sent befoir by the Quenis Majestie from York, to mak way for the erll in negotiating betuixt hir Majesteis army in the north of England and the papistis on the borderis and in the Iles of Scotland; "ther plot being laid down by the Quenis Majesteis consent for the ruin of religioun and overthrow of his Majesteis loyall subjectis in all the thrie dominionis, as evidentlie doth appeir by the Letteris, Characteris, Passes and Paperis found with the erll directit by me to the Counfall of Scotland and to the Generall. The erll of Antrim fall, God willing, be keipit clois in Carrickfergus till I be acquented from your honouris concerning him what cours salbe taken with him; and the traittour that convoyit him laft away is to be execute, since we can extort no discoverie from him then is contenit in the paperis sent to Scotland." This letter is writtin from Carrickfergus to the Irish Committe of the Parliament of England, daitit 23 May 1643, and subferivit thus, "Youris most humill and treulie affectionat and reall fervand Robert Monro generall major."

Thair is set down also in the said imprinted Paper thir wordis, viz.,

The Earl of Antrim, a notorious rebell, was taken by the Scots army in Ulster, and imprisoned there, upon suspicion of high treason. To avoid his tryall, he brake prison, and fled into the north parts of England, and hath been with the Queen at Yorke a long time; from whence he was sent to the rebels of Ulster, with secret instructions, and had ammunition assigned to him by the Queen's directions. And what care was taken of his ammunition, will appear by a Letter dated at Yorke the 8 of May 1643, written by Serjeant Major Rolfe to that apostata Sir Hugh Cholmley, Gover-nour of Scarborough, intercepted by the Lord Fairfax, and sent up to the House of Commons ; wherein Cholmley is intreated to have such care of the ammunition appertaining to the Lord of Aboyn, as he shall have of the Lord of Antrim's ammunition ; for Mr. Jermin hath desired him to write these lines, as by the Letter herewith also printed may appear ; and what relation Mr. Jermin hath to the Queen is well knowne to the world. Since this care taken of the ammunition of the Earl of Antrim and the Lord of Aboyn, the Earl of Antrim is taken the second time by General Major Monro, in the county of Downe in Ireland, as he was returning from the Queen to the rebels of Ulster, with divers letters, instructions and papers, [from which] and [from] the confession and deposition of the Earl of Antrim's own servant (who was taken with his master, and since condemned and executed), it is evident, that there was, and doubtlesse yet is, an impious designe on foot to reconcile the English and Irish in Ireland, and that, by their joynt power having expelled the Scots, the Irish forces there might be sent against the Parliament of England. The Earl of Antrim, and the Lord of Aboyn, (whose arms assigned them by the Queen for this purpose were taken care of by Mr. Jermyn, as appears by the said letter from Serjeant Major Rosse) and the Earl of Niddisdale, were the principall agents employed in this horrid plot. And that it may cleerly appear to the whole world from whence all our miseries and calamities do proceed, the same Lord of Aboyn, by his letter directed to the Earl of Antrim then with the Queen, bearing date at Carlisle the 8 of May, 1643, and taken in the Earl of Antrim his pockets among the rest of the letters and papers, testifies the same. And that it might appear to the rebels of Ireland, that the Earl of Antrim was accounted his Majesty's good subject, and had his Majesty's approbation for what he was to act there, he was furnished with a passe from the Earl of Newcastle, in these words :

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Antrim, These.

William Earl of Newcastle, Governour of the town and county of Newcastle, and Generall of all his Majesty's forces raised in the northern parts of this kingdom, for defence of the same, To all Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels, Serjeant Majors, Captains, and all other his Majesty's loving subjects of England and Ireland. Forasmuch as the Right Honourable the Earl of Antrim is to travell to Dublin in Ireland, and other parts of that kingdom, these are therefore to desire and require you, and every of you, to whom this shall come to be seen, to permit him and his servants quietly and peaceably to passe and repasse into these parts, and back again, without any molestation or interruption. And further, I do hereby require all post-masters, constables, and other officers, to furnish the said Earl and his servants with so many post-horses as they shall have need of from place to place, and stage to stage, for all the said journey, he and they paying the usual rates for the same. And hereof you, or any of you, may not fail at your peril. Given under mine hand and seal, the 4 day of May, 1643.

Signed, WILLIAM NEWCASTLE.

Which passe, together with the said letters, were found in the Earl of Antrim's pockets, and were sent by Major Generall Monroe into Scotland, from whence authentique copies are sent hither, which are likewise herewith printed ; together with a Declaration of the Lords of his Majesty's Privie Counsell in Scotland, and Commissioners for conserving the Articles of the Treaty, dated at Edinburgh the 9 of June, 1643, concerning the apprehending and employment of the Earl of Antrim, with their sense upon the same ; as also a letter sent from Major Generall Monroe (who took the said Earl of Antrim) to the Committee appointed by the House of Commons for the affairs of Ireland, bearing date at Carrickfergus the 23 of May 1643. To which may be added the Earl of Antrim's own confession, who was examined before Major General Monroe and a Council of War, the 12 of June 1643, and in his examination confesses that he came into Ireland with the Lord of Newcastle's pass, and with private instructions for making of peace. And Master Steuart, another servant of the said Earl of Antrim, and taken with him, being likewise examined the said 12 of June 1643, before the said General Monroe and Council of War, and threatened with torture except he would declare by whose warrant and direction the said Earl of Antrim had undertaken that employment, faith, that as the ammunition and arms was to be furnished by the Queen's order and command, so that he doubts not but the Earl of Antrim's employment and others was directed by her Majesty.

In this imprinted Paper wes divers utheris particular pointis set out against the king and queen both, for favoring of papiftis in Ireland, quhilk heir I have omittit, and beginis now to coppie these letteris found in the erll of Antrim's pocket, as is set down in the said printed Paper.

For his Noble Friend Sir Hew Cholmley, Knight, Governour of Scarborough, These.
Noble Sir,

These are shewing your honour, that my Lord of Aboyne was gone from Yorke before my here coming, therefore I will intreat your honour to have such a care of the ammunition appertaining to my Lord of Aboyne, as your honour shall have of my Lord of Antrim his ammunition, till such tyme as I either come my selfe, or write to your honour, for Mr. Jermyn hath desired me write these lines to your honour, for I am commanded to goe for Scotland for that effect; to which time I shall continue Your honour's humble servant,

Yorke, May 8, 1643.

SERGEANT MAJOR ROSSE.

For my Noble Lord the Earle of Antrim, at York.

My Noble Lord,

Matters are fallen out quite contrary to my expectation, so as I should not advise you to make such hast of your journey as we resolved. I have sent this bearer of purpose, who is the man I did send to Montrossé, who will particularly shew you how matters goe, and how great folly it were to looke for any assistance from Scotland. Good Sir Richard Grabame, and a number of roundheads in these parts, upon your servant's remaining here, and your Lordship's other servants coming post, have spread a report that you and I were upon a plot to bring forces from Ireland to take in this countrey, in so much, as I have been forced to affirme the contrary with oathes, as I might justly doe. Thus much is given out by him, one Dalton, and others, as in acquittal to your Lady, for raising him out of the dunghill, which my Lord her husband did. He will be at Yorke within two or three daies, he will shift it off upon the Puritans of this countrey, whereof he is the head; but upon my word your Lordship is little beholding to him. To my knowledge your Lordship's servant will more particularly shew you what passed: Nor shall any be more ready to doe you service, than Your Lordship's humble servant,

NITHSDAILL.

I did say that your Lordship's Lady, having some hangings and other furniture in Knockfergus, was desirous to have them brought away, but I have now advised you rather to let them alone for the present.

For my Noble Lord the Earle of Antrim, at York.

My Noble Lord,

I have daily expected these dayes past to have writ, which you desired, from the party you know, I doe look for it each hour. Hamilton, I doe fear, hath done bad offices to the King since his return. My Lord, I am very confident Montros will not flinch from what he professed at York. I think much I have heard nothing from my Lord Aboyne, but before I shall see you, I looke with confidence to give you a better account how matters are resolved in Scotland, and shall never leave off to give full testimony that I am
Your Lordship's faithfull servant,

NITHISDAILL.

My Lord, blame not your servant who hath been so long here. I would not suffer him to part till I had some greater assurance from the Earle of Montros, and the rest who are for the K., then as yet, and till my servant returns, I can give.

For the Right Honourable my Noble Lord the Earle of Antrim, at Yorke.

My Noble Lord,

It should have been a blemish upon me, if I had not truly given you notice how matters go. I am not altogether desperat of Montros; but say he were changed, I am in good hope you shall not lack well-affected subjects in Scotland to prosecute that point we resolved on. One thing I think strange, that the ammunition granted to your Lordship and Aboyne should be stopped. My Lord, without that, neither can the Marquess of Huntley doe service, nor can your friends in the Isles and Hilands be usefull for you. So doe your best to have it quickly sent away, and be confident you shall have assistance, though it must take a longer time, of the which I shall give your Lordship notice. So let no alteration be thought upon, though a little it must be deferred. And be confident of the respects of
Your Lordship's faithfull servant,

Carlile, the 8 of May, 1643.

NITHISDAILL.

I entreat these may present my bounden service to my Lady Dutcheffe, your Lady. Till I get advertisement from your Lordship, I shall have a boat ready at your service.

For my Noble Lord the Earle of Antrim, at York

My Lord,

This gentleman can so well informe you of the particulars you expected from Scotland, as I must onely assure your Lordship, I dare not conclude with him; therefore if it please you to expect a second advertisement, it shall certainly be sent to you by the first occasion. For I should be sorry, that what may so concerne your service should be subject to any scruple. And I assure your Lordship their future shall ratifie this opinion of

In haste,

Your Lordship's most humble servant,

Boroughbridge, the 3 of May, 1643.

ABOYNE.

For the Right Honourable the Earle of Antrim, These.

My Lord,

Being certainly informed by Nithisdail's servant, that there is a new order since we parted for stopping of the ammunition, I have taken occasion to intreat your Lordship by this bearer, that I may know the particulars of it. I must confesse it surpriseth me, that any distance should alter so reasonable a conclusion. And certainly I shall never deserve to be made the instrument of frustrating the hopes of these parts, which should have been enabled by this supply. I am confident, there is scarce another mean to make our fidelitie uselesse for her Majestie's service. And if it please your Lordship to acquaint the Queen with these effects of my ingenuitie, you will thereby multiply your favours you have already conferred upon,

My Lord, your Lordship's most affectionate and obliged servant,

Carlisle, the 8 of May 1643.

Above.

Generall Major Monrois letter with thir letters cuming to the Counfall of Scotland and Generall Leslie and Conservatoris of the Treattie, thay fell to consultatioun, and suddantie resolved to mak the samen manifest to the worlde, and to that effect set out ane printed Paper of the wordis following :

AT EDINBURGH, the ninth day of June 1643.

THE Lords of his Majestie's Privy Councell and Commiffioners for conferving the Articles of the Treaty ordain this following Declaration to be printed and published at the Market Crosse of Edinburgh, and other burghs of this kingdom, for the information of all his Majestie's good subjects within the same.

ARCH. PRIMROSE, Cler. S. Cons. and Commis.

A Declaration of the Lords of His Majestie's Privie Counfall and Commiffioners for conferving the Articles of the Treaty, for information of his Majestie's good subjects of this kingdom.

The Lords of his Majestie's most honourable Privy Council, and the Commiffioners for conferving the peace, according to the great trust reposed in them by his Majestie and the Estates of Parliament, whereof they are to make account to God, his Majestie and the next ensuing Parliament, taking to their deepest and most serious consideration the best wayes of preserving the peace of this kingdom, that all his Majestie's good and dutifull subjects may enjoy their religion, liberties and laws, which God, in a singular and wonderfull providence, in the time of his Majestie's raign, hath vouchsafed them, and of the peace betwixt the two kingdoms so unanimously and happily established in the late Treaty of peace, and in the Parliaments of both kingdoms, Have faithfully endeavoured, by all good means, to reduce Ireland to his Majestie's obedience, which, through the unnaturall, barbarous and antichristian cruelty of Papiſts, is, from a peaceable kingdom, turned into a stage of unexampled and unexpressible miseries, to be looked upon as an horrid and dangerous example by this kingdom, and by their earnest Supplications to his Majestie, and by their Declarations to the Parliament of England, but especially by their earnest desires for establishing unity of religion, and uniformity of Kirk government, and for disbanding all Papiſts in arms within their dominions, and by the humble offer of their mediation, to remove the unhappy differences, and quench the fire of a wasting warre, begun betwixt his Majestie and his subjects of the kingdom of England, wherein his Majestie's sacred person is exposed to so great danger, and so many thousands of his subjects have already perished: But finding, to their great griefe, the successe no ways answerable to their endeavours and expectation, and the troubles of the neighbouring kingdoms, and the dangers of this kingdom, daily arising to a greater height, then they, by their care, counsellors or diligence, were able to remedie or obviate, they did resolve for this and other causes, which exercise and heavily presse the kingdom at this time, to call a Convention of the Estates, as the onely meane, (his Majestie not thinking fitting to hearken to their motion of calling a Parliament,) which might, by common counsell, consent and resolution, take the best course for representing yet more sensibly these manifold evils and dangers, and for overcoming, by greater wisdom, the difficulties which were above their power.

In the meane while, (which they cannot but attribute to the mercifull and marvellous providence of God, and which is a confirmation to them of their resolution in calling the Convention, and layeth the greater necessity upon the Estates, to meet the more willingly and frequently,) a treacherous and damnable plot of the Irish, English, and Scottish Papiſts, is begun to be discovered by the unexpected apprehending of the Earle of Antrim coming from Yorke, where he had kept his meetings and correspondence by letters with certaine popish lords his confederates, and amongst others, with the Earle of Nitshidail and Viscount of Aboyne; their devillish designs and devices are come to light, and brought to our knowledge, partly by letters from Ireland shewing the deposition and confession of a servant of the Earle of Antrims, and partly by letters which were found in the Earle his own pockets, all sent from Ireland. His servant, which was hanged at Carrickfergus, the day of May, deponed (as the letters bear) before and at the time of his death, that the designe was, to reconcile the English and Irish in Ireland, that they by their joynt power haveing expelled the Scots, the Irish forces there might be sent against the Parliament of England, to deal with some fit instrument there, by all their strength to surprize the Isles and the Highlands, and to depopulate and waste so much of this kingdom as their power could extend unto, being assured of the like dealing in the north by the Papiſts and their assistance there; and to have a magazine at Carlisle for twenty thousand men, to fall in with all hostility upon the south parts of this kingdom. The letters sent from Nitshidail and Aboyne, all written and subscribed by their hands to the Earle of Antrim, and found with him, although in some things covertly written, do carry this much expressly, that for furtherance of the designe and point resolved on, there was assistance assured from the Isles, and from the north and south of Scotland; that ammunition and armes, without which they think their service uselesse, were appointed to be sent to the north and other parts of this kingdom; and that popish officers were commanded, and had undertaken to goe into Scotland, of which we are informed, some are already gone to the north.

For stopping and disappointing so far as may be for the present (till the same divine providence make a more full discovery) the attempts and devices of this unnatural and bloody confederacy and conjuration, as the lords of his Majestie's Privy Councell have given order that Nitshidail and Aboyne be cited, and criminally pursued of high treason, and have made the same, as a matter of publike and most high importance, known to his Majestie and to the Parliament of England; so they, and the commissioners of peace also, for acquitting themselves in their trust, and for the safety of the kingdom, doe make the same publicly known to all his Majestie's good subjects, that, being forewarned of their danger, they may be upon their guards, and prepared against forraign invasion and intestine plots and insurrection; and especially, that the noble men, commissioners of shires, and boroughs, perceiving greater and more apparent necessity of the approaching Convention then they could have wished or expected, may, at the day formerly appointed, meet in such celerity, and with such publike affection and disposition of heart, as the present condition of affairs doth require and call for at their hands, and as becometh the lovers of their religion, King and countrey, which are in so great danger from Papiſts, Atheists, and other degenerated countrey-men, who are no lesse enraged against this kingdom, even since the late reformation of this kingdom, then were their predecessors at the first reformation of religion, when their negotiating was so restless, and their attempts so many and malicious against the work of God in this land. Nor is it to be past without observation, that while his Majesty is making a publike declaration of his intentions to defend and maintaine the religion, rights and liberties of this kingdom, according to the lawes civill and ecclesiastik, the Papists are conspiring, plotting and practising against the religion, rights and liberties established, and against the lives of his Majesty's good subjects; whereby they doe really manifest to the world what the King's Majesty against all his Declarations, and his subjects against their confidence grounded thereupon, may look for from their malice and power, if they shall continue in armes, and (which God forbid) if they shall prevaile in the end. And whereas the Lords of Councill are informed, that the late Act of Councill for publishing his Majesty's Declaration is mistaken by sundry, as a Declaration of their owne judgment concerning the proceedings of another kingdom: for preventing of this mistake, they think fit to remember and declare, according to the Act of Councill in January last, shewing, that their lordships giving warrant to print any paper coming from his Majesty or Parliament of England did not import their approbation of the contents thereof, That they did, on the first of June, remember the famine, and expresse their intention in this publication to be far from taking on them to judge of the proceedings of the Parliament of another kingdom; but onely to thank his Majesty for his gracious expressions towards the preservation of the rights and liberties of this kingdom. And ordain this to be printed and published at the Market Croce of Edinburgh, and all other burghs within this kingdom, wherethrow none pretend ignorance of the same.

Edinburgh, Printed by Evan Tyler, printer to the King's most excellent Majesty, 1643.

This Paper is published at the marcat croce of Edinbrughe, and uther croces neidfull. The erll of Nithisdail and viscount of Oboyne are lykuaies sum-moundit at ther duelling places and mercat croces, to compeir befor the Lordis of Counfall, wnder the pane of tressoun, at this meiting, to be keipit be the Estaites at Edinbrughe the 22 of June nixt. Bot thir lordis gave no obedience to thir Summondis, standing to their innocence, and alledging that this wes bot ane forgit draucht, to cause thame compeir and syne to abuse thame be warding, fyning, or uther punitioun as thay pleiffit best; and being in ther handis, thay culd not flie thair intentionis, good or bad. Sie heirefter.

Ye sie of ane meiting at Edinbrughe, and how all wes continewit to the 22 of June. The caus of this conventioun wes groundit upone fals rumoris, and improbable tales sent down from the Parliament of England to oure Scottis Counfall, saying, thay wold prove that his Majesty had writtin to the Pope, that he sould bring his thrie kingdomes wnder the Romane religioun, or lois his thrie crownes, with many other odious speiches against his Majesty, quhilk thay offerit them to prove be the kingis owne letter writtin to the Pope, thereby to withdraw the haitis of his loyall subjectis from thair loyall obedience tonardis his Majesty; and with all did crave our aid and assistance of 10,000 men. Aluaies the Counfall thoct it good to conveyn the Conservatoris of Peace and hail Estaites of this kingdome at Edinbrughe the 22 of June, to capitulat upone thir and uther urgent buffines, as ye may sie heirefter.

The King heiring of thir fals calunneis disperst and spred againt his royall Majestie, he quiklie takis occasioun to purge him self from these vyll asperfiones, by sending downe ane missive letter to divers of oure nobilitie, and one amongst the rest to the lord marques of Huntlie, quhair of the temour follouis :

CHARLES R.

Right trustie and right weilbelovit cuning, and right trustie and weilbelovit, We greit yow well.
Since nothing on erthe can be more deir unto ws then the preservatioun of the affectionis of oure people, and amongst them, no more then of these of oure native kingdome, whiche, as the long and uninterrupted government of ws and oure predecessouris over thame doeth give ws just resson, in a more neir and speciall maner, to challenge from them, so may thay justlie expect a particular ten-dernes from ws in every thing whiche may contribute to ther happines. But knowing what in-dustrie is usit (by scattering feditious pamphletis, and employing privat agentis and ministeris) to give bad impressiounis of ws and oure proceedinges, and wnder a pretens of a danger to religioun and government to corrupt ther fideliteis and affectionis, and to ingage them in ane unjust querrell againt ws ther king, we can not therefore bot remove these jealoufeis, and secure ther feires from all possibilitie of any haerd to either of these from ws. We have therefore thoct fit to requyre yow to call togidder your freindis, vassallis, tennentis, and siche otheris as have ony dependencie upone yow, and in oure name to schew thame oure willingnes to give all assurences they can desire, or we possiblie grant (if more can be givin nor already is) of preservng inviolablie all these graces and favouris whiche we have of lait grantit to that oure kingdome; and we do wis Ged fo to blis oure proceedngis and posteritie, as we do reallie mak good and performe this promeis.
We hope this will give so full satisfiactioun to all who fall heir of this oure solempne protestatioun, that no siche perones as studeis divisioun, or gois about to walkin the confidens betuixt ws and oure people, and justlie deserves the name and punishment of incendiareis, salbe scheltred from the hand of justice; and all siche otheris as fall indeavour peace and unitie and obedience to ws and our lawis may expect that protectioun and increas of favouris from ws whiche ther fidelitie deserves. So expecting your care heirof, we bid yow hartlie fairweill. From oure Court at Oxforde, 21 Aprile 1643.

Upone the morne thay pairtit company. The Marques rode to Strathbogie, Marfchall rode to Innerugie, the lord Banf to Raittie. Montros and Ogilvy cam bak to George Middiltoune’s hous, and from that rode fouth, and from that to the king.

The marques, according to the directionn of his Majefteis letter, convenit his freindis at Innerurie upone the 15 of June, and there publictlic red the famen in ther audience, and fo departit. Bot thir meitinges bred fun feire in the haitis of the covenantaris.

The erl Marfchall rydis fouth to this meiting, the laird Drum, and the laird of Phillorth, as commiffioneris for the fchire of Abirdene, Patrik Lellie as commiffioner for the toune, Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. James Mairtyne, miniſter at Peterheid, wes wrettin for, doctor Goold for the Colledge effaires, went over altogidder.

They went fordward about the 15 day of June.

About the 18 of June, the Quenis Majeſtie cumis to Oxfurde, where the King wes, fra York, quhair ſcho had remanit ſince hir cuming from Newcaſtell thither, as ye may ſie befoir. Sho is convoyit with Crouner Alexander Lellie of Auchintoull, Crouner Henderſone, and certane uther crouneris and commanderis with ane army of 5000 men weill armit and furneſhit with all thinges requiſit. In hir way to Nottinghamhe ſcho is unbefet be the lord Gray, with ane army, of purpoſe to have takin hir priſoner. It is hardlie foughten, in hir Majeſteis owne prefens ſtanding looking on, be Crouner Henderſone, quhair the lord Gray wes ſchamefullie defeat and took the rout. And hir Majeſtie (haveing the duke of Lennox all the tyme of hir abſens) gois ſaillie on towards the King, quhair he maid hir hartlie welcum, as ſcho well deſerved.

Upone the day of June, Alexander Gordoun of Braſmoir, throw evill counſall, pitifullie hurt and fore woundit Johne Gordoun, his awin and onlie brother german, in his hand and divers pairtis of his body, upone ane ſlicht occaſioun, at the biſchopis bak yet; and his brother thairefter wold not intertynne him, ſo that he levit heir in gryte miſerie, and in end wes forſit to leave the kingdom and go in ſervice with Capitan Hepburne to France.

Upone the 22 day of June, the Lordis of his Majeſteis Privie Counfall and Commiffioneris for conſerving of the Articles of the Treaty, and hail Eſtates, convenit in Edinbrughe upone ſum grave respectis and conſiderationis. The Roll of the commiffioneris names wes the firſt day red, and the nixt day thair commiffiouns wes red, quhair of ſum throw informalitye wes repellit. Amongis utheris materis that wes handlit, the erll of Carnueth, funtyme called Sir Robert Dazell, wes publictlie accufit upone sum speiches, as wes said. Quhairunto he maid his awin anfuer in prefens of the Lordis of Counfall. Thay rys wp, and ilk man gois to his owne lodging, as thair custom is, to dynner. The lord of Carnueth gois also to his dynner, bot returnit not bak agane efter none to the Counfall, as thay expected. Aluaies thay fend ane maister to charge him at his lodging to compeir befor the Counfall, bot he difobeyis. Thair-efter he is chargit at the marcat cros of Edinbrughe be ane herauld, to compeir; who wold not give obediens. Quhairupone the Lordis fendis directlie to Sir Williame Dik, whome thay knew wes debtfull to the said erll in 40,000 pundis Scottis money, and presentlie defyrit him to bring 10,000 pundis to pay for the erllis contempt and contumacie, without forder proces, bot that he wes chargit in forme fairsaid, and at the marcat cros, to compeir, wnder the pane of 10,000 pundis, quhilk thay exactit and treulie took wp, as said is. Aluaies the erll, feiring wairding, held him out of handis, and to the king gois he. And to remember the Conventioun of the Estaites, the Counfall and Conservatouris of the Treattie wes altogidder convenit in Edinbrughe, and dissolvit.

To this Conventioun ther cam fra the English parliament sex commissiouneris, viz. The erll of Rutland, Mr. Hatchet Esquire, Sir Hary Veyne, both of the lower hous, Mr Ny preicher and Bot the erll of Rutland fell feik be the way and came not with the rest. Aluaies thay durft not cum be land, bot cam be sea in ane of the schippis royall callit the Antelope. Thay war honorablie receavit and maid hartlie welcum. It wes said, thair commissioun wes, uniformetie of religioun in England and Scotland agriable with oure professioun, bot moir cheiflie aid and support of men to assist the parliament against the king, (now daylie moir and moir growing, at the plesour of God, stronger and stronger,) under pretext of poperie and papistes, whiche wes thair aime to suppres be violence of armes as thay alledgit; bot, the contrarie wes sein, howsoever materis went. It wes found speidfull that ane new Covenant shuld be maid wp by a Committee of the honorable Conventioun of Estaitis and of the Church, and Commissiouneris of the Houffis of Parliament in England, as ye may sie heirefter the order and progres of this Covenant and the Covenant it self; intending to have the subjects alweill in England as Scotland, and being wnder ane religioun, to joyne togidder in armes aganes our gracious king wnder cullour to suppres prelatis and papistis, as heirefter most evidentlie appeir. Bot I leave the Counfall and Conservatouris both fitting, for a while, consulting daylie with thir English Commiffioneris how to mak vp an army and lift moneysis to that effect, as ye fall schortlie heir; and gave it out to mediat peace betuixt the king and his parliament, as wes teichit daylie out of pulpit, suppose aganis the kingis will. Upone Setterday the first of July, Sir George Gordon of Haddoche unhappellie hurt Alexander Joffray lair ballie and John Joffray his brother, in the presens of Mr. Alexander Joffray thair father, at the Brume end, cuming fra the goodman of Brakayis burial, becaus the said Alexander Joffray being ane ballie caufit ward the said Sir George' man in the tolbuith for hurting of ane uther fellow. This wes no just querrell, to have perfeit ane Judge for doing of justice. Aluaies thay gat fun blood, bot did no skaith. Thay pairtit, and Haddoche immediatlie thairefter cam to the town, rode about the cros in contempt; bot the Joffrayis wes not yit cum to Abirdene. Aluaies the town thocht evill of Haddochis behaveour, to ryde so prydfullie about thair cros efter hurting of thair ballie and his brother. Bot this mater wes utheraies handlit and laid upone ane heigher skelf, as ye may heireftar fie, and a motioun of his death.

Word cam heir about the 10 of July, That Sir Johne Hotham governour of Hull and Sir Johne Hotham his sone wes both had vnder suspiotioun, and that the parliament had sent for thame to come to London, who also went and wes thair accusit.—That the erll of Newcastle had defeated the lord Fairfax, killit 1500 men, takin 2000 armes and fyve peice of cannon, drave him to Bredforde, took his lady priffoner, and beseigit him self.—Prince Maurice and Sir Ralp Haptoun gave the rebellis in the Waft a gryte overthrow, and killed Hamdoun thair cheif commander, for whome gryte lamentatioun wes maid. He gave thairefter ane uther defeat, killit and routit about 7 troupes of hors. And first killit 2000 men and took 8 peice of cannon.—Sir Williame Ualleir alias the Conquerour and Generall to the Erll of Essex' foot armie wes braveilie defeatit and routit by the Erll of Craufurd, Commiffare Ulmeit and Sir John Byron. Thair wes killit to this bastard Conquerour 600 men, and 800 takin priffoneris, with 7 peice of cannon and all the cullouris and coronetis. Prince Robert, by convoy of oure town's man Hurry, did gryte defeatis aganes Essex; for the quhilk the king knichtit Hurry with his owne hand.—The English parliament sent Sir Harie Vayne and other commiffioneris to Kentfchire, bot thay war laid fast in priffoun. The parliament, heiring that their commiffioneris wes so abuft and inpriffonet, sent schortlie forces to be revengit of this heighe injurie; bot the Kentfchire men schortlie went to armes, and maid thame to reiteir bak agane. The king, heiring of this, sent quiklie to Kent 2000 ryderis and horffis to assist thame aganes the parliament; and that thay were in reddines, besides the kinges forces 10,000 strong to attend the kinges service.—The lord Newcastle strong, the lord Kingstoun generall of Lincolne is taking up for the king 8000 foot and hors; and that the Queen hes in garrison about her 5000 foot and hors.—That thair wes ane feiknes in Effex' army veray feirfull, and not ordinar sein befor, quhair dieth daylie about 80 persons; so the synger of God may be sein heir also.—Bambury in Lincolnshire wes laillie betrayit to the lord Willowby. He tuke the lord Kingstoun, ane brave nobleman for the king, prisoner, and wes sending him in ane pynnage to Hull; bot Collonell Candishe cam presentlie with 24 troupes of hors, and Generall King cam also with some hundreth musketeires. They took this pynnage as scho wes going furth, quhair unfortunatlie the said lord Kingstoun wes slayne (much to be lamentit) be a schot cuming fra the kinges men; and that Bamburie is straitlie besiegit be the kingis forces.—The erll of Newcastle most honorablie set at libertie the lady Fairfax (whome he took as prisoner) frielie but payment of any ransom or exchange of ane uther prisoner for hir.—Forces in Cumberland and Westmureland both on hors and foot daylie ryng for the king.—The erll of Essex keipeth him self in fast places so that he can not be fought with, and is wnder suspitioun.—The lord Gray of Wart is committed to the Tour for refusing to be a commissioner from the parliament to Scotland.—They are nichtellie distresfit in London for want of coallis, and no tred nor handiwork usit, bot all to defolatioun.—That generall King had bet all the Northiamptoun forces, and killed the most speciall men thair that wes for the parliament.—That the Generall Assemblies at London hes approvyn Episcopacie and the Book of Commoun Prayer; yet not treu. All thir actis done in this fairsaid moneth of July.

Upone the day of July, Adam Abercromby killit his wyfe's sone callit George Leith brother german to the goodman of Harthill, and who also wes marrit to the said Adames owne dochter. Thus, in ane combat the father in law slayis his sone in law by tuo degrees, and he wynis away unpunisht. Mervallous in thir dayes but respect of birth or blood to sie slaughter and blood daylie committit!

Mr. Andrew Cant cam hom from this meiting to Abirdene upone the 20 of July; and, upone the 25 of July, thair wes ane Committee holdin at Kintoir be the said Mr. Andrew Cant, Mr. David Lyndsay persone of Belhelvy, Mr. Thomas Mitchell persone of Turref, Mr. John Paterfone minister at Foverane, Weill, the bretheren convenis, according to thair ordour, day and place forſaid. Mr. Androw Logie compeiris, fallis in ſum diſput. He alledgit, he wold byde be what he had teichit that day to be orthodox doctrein frie of error and hereſie. Bot thir bretheren (eſpeciallie Cant beiring extreme hatred and malice aganis him, as he who wes not ane ſincier Covenanter in his hairt) could not be ſatiffieit with the ſaid Mr. Androwis lauchfull argumentis; and he, feing thair partialitie, producit ane Appellatioun in wreit, appealing fra thair judgement to the preſbitrie of Gareoche, according to the old forme. Bot thir bretheren diſdaynit to admit this Appellatioun or to heir the reſſons thair of red, bot ſchortlie diſſolvit, charging him to compeir befor the Generall Affemblic the nynt of Auguſt, quhilk he did not keip, bot unwyſlie ſent over the reſſonis of his Appellatioun, being 29 in number, to Mr. Alexander Henderſoun in whome he had ſum confidens, huing he wold be alſo moderatour, as it fell furth ſo; bot he gat ſmall freindſchip, being abſent him ſelf, for thir foirſaid bretheren wreit over to the Generall Affemblic declaring the ſaid Mr. Logie his careage to be war nor it wes. Upone thir and uther reſpectis his Appellatioun wes not red, quhilk wes divynlie groundit and lernedlie ſet down as wes thocht. Sie moir of him heirefter at the Generall Affemblic.

Upone the ſecond day of Auguſt, the Generall Affemblic ſat down in Edinbrughe. Sir Thomas Hope, Advocat, is commiſſioner for the king be his letteris patent. He took the place proudlie upone him, for the honouris wes daylie careit, when he went out and in to this Affemblic, befor him; and at preiching, he ſat in the kingis loft in Sanet Geillis kirk. To this Affemblic went commiſſioneris and thair laick elderis from ilk preſbitrie within the kingdome. Amongis whome, went for the preſbitrie of Abirdene, Mr. David Lyndſay perſone of Balhelvy, and Mr. Johne Ofwall ane of the miniſteris at Abir-dene, and Thomas Mowat burges of the said brugh as ane laick or reulling elder. Mr. Alexander Henderfone minifter at Edinbrughe wes chofin moderatour. This Affemblie fat down ilk day be aucht houris in the morning and continewit till 12 houris, fyne went to dynner; at tua houris thay advyfit and confultit with the Conservatouris of Peace, or Conventioun of Estaites, and Secret Counfall, of what thay had bein doing, whill fax houris at evin, fyne diffolvit and went home. Thus, the Affemblie had with thame the Conventioun of Estaites, Conservatouris of the Treattie, and Secret Counfall, all fitting with thame in their awin meiting rounes for giving and taking advys and counfall of utheris in all materis that paff. Thair wes divers materis agitat in this Affemblie. Amonges the whiche, Mr Androw Logie wes callit, bot not compeirand, he wes simpliciter deprivit, and his kirk declairit vacaud, but our forder proces, quhilk wes thocht most fummar dealling, without any provin offens; and thairefter his kirk wes plantit with ane uther minifter, as ye have heirefter. Doctor Forbes' place of profeffour declairit void and vacaud; likeas his rounge wes fillit with Mr. Williame Douglas minifter at Forge, as ye have heirefter, and he and Doctor Leslie sum tyme principall of the Kingis Colledge of Abirdene to be warnit to fueir and subscribe the covenant, utheruaies to be excommunicat; bot litle proces follouit heirupone aganes any of thame. Mr. Williame Wedderburne, minifter at Bathelny, deposit for fornicatioun, as ye have befoir, getis now libertie to preiche, (upone his repentans,) howfone he may be provydit to ane uther kirk. The rest of their Affemblie actis is to be found in thair awin bookis, to the whiche I refer my self. Bot heir, I may not forget ane Supplicatioun givin in to this reverend Affemblie product be the commissiouneris sent from the parliament of England, as ye have thair names set down. This Supplicatioun wes set down in wreit wnder the hand of 72 English ministeris, as wes reportit, and signetit with thair signettis; of the quhilk the tennour follouis:

A Letter from some Brethren of the Ministerie in the Kirk of England to the Assembly.

Reverend and beloved,

The experience which we have had of your forwardness in receiving and faithfulness in weighing our former addresses hath given us abundant encouragement to take hold upon this present opportunity of breathing out something of our sorrows, which your love and our necessity command us to represent to your consideration and compassion. Much we know we may commit to the wisdom and fidelity of our brethren, these messengers, to impart unto you concerning our miserable condition, and unto them shall leave the most. Your own Nationall, but specially Christian interest, will not permit you to hide your eyes from the bleeding condition of your poor distressed brethren in England, should neither letters nor messengers be sent unto you; but, messengers coming, we should at once neglect our selves, should we not thus a little ease our burdened hearts by pouring them out into your bowels, and seem ungratefull to you, of whose readinesse to suffer with us, and do for us, we have had so great and ample testimonies.

Surely if ever a poor nation were upon the edge of a most desperate precipice, if ever a poor church were ready to be swallowed up by Satan and his instruments, we are that nation, we are that church; and in both respects by so much the more miserable, by how much we expected not a preservation onely, but an augmentation also, of happinesse in the one, and glory in the other. We looked for peace, but no good came, and for a time of healing, and behold trouble! Our God, who in his former judgements was a moth and rottenesse, (and yet had of late begun to send us health and cure,) is now turned into a lion to us, and threatens to rend the very cawle of our hearts. From above he hath sent a fire into our bones, and it prevails against us. From our own bowels he hath called forth and strengthened an adverfarie against us, a generation of brutish hellish men, the rod of his anger, and the staff of his indignation, under whose cruelties we bleed, and, if present mercy step not in, we die. Righteous art thou, O Lord, and just are all thy judgements! But O, the more then barbarous carriages of our enemies, where ever God gives any of his hidden ones up into their hands, we need not expresse it unto you, who knows the inveterate and deadly malice of the Antichristian faction against the members of our Lord Jesus; and it is well we need not expresse it unto you, for in truth we cannot. Your own thoughts may tell you, better then any words of ours, what the mercie of Papiſts is toward the ministers and servants of our Lord Jesus Christ. But the Lord knows, we are not troubled so much with their rage against us, or our own miseries and dangers; but that which breaks our hearts is, the danger we behold the Protestant Religion and all the Reformed Churches in at this time, through that too great and formidable strength the Popish faction is now arrived at. If our God will lay our bodies as the ground, and as the street, under their foot, and poure out our blood as dust before their fury, the will of the Lord be done. Might our blood be a sacrifice to ransom the rest of the faints or church of Christ from antichristian fury, we would offer it up upon this service gladly: but we know, their rage is insatiable, and will not be quenched with our bloods, immortall, and will not die with us; armed against us, not as men, but as Christians, but as Protestants, but as men desiring to reform our selves, and to draw our selves and others yet nearer unto God; and if God give us up to be devoured by this rage, it will take the more strength (and courage at least) to attempt the like against all the Protestant and Reformed Churches. In a deeper sense of this extrem danger, threatening us and you and all the churches, then we can expresse, we have made this addresse unto you, in the bowels of our Lord Jesus Christ, humbly imploring your most fervent prayers to the God that hears prayers, who, should we judge by providences, seems to be angry with our prayers, though we trust he doth but seem so; and though he kill us, yet will we trust in him. Oh, give us the brotherly aide of your reinforced tears and prayers, that the blessings of truth and peace which our prayers alone have not obtained, yours conjoyned may. And give us, reverend and much honoured in our Lord, your advices what remains for us further to doe, for the making of our owne and the kingdomes peace with God. We have lien in the dust before him; we have poured our hearts in humiliation to him; we have in sincerity endeavoured to reform our selves, and no lesse sincerely desired, studied, laboured the publick reformation; neverthelesse the Lord hath not yet turned himself from the fiercenesse of his anger. And be pleased to advise us further, what may be the happiest course for the uniting of the Protestant partie more firmly, that we may all serve God with one consent, and stand up against Antichrist as one man, that our God, who now hides himself from his people, may return unto us, delight in us, scatter and subdue his and our enemies, and cause his face to shine upon us. The Lord prosper you, and preserve us, so that the great work of these latter ages may be finished to his honour, and our own and the church's happiness, through Christ Jesus.

It is said, that this long taillit Supplicatioun wes weil hard of by the brethren of the Generall Assemblée; and, haveing the Counfall and Estaites and Conservatouris of the Treatie all within the toun, sitting at thair consultationis daylie, thay advyfit altogidder upone this Supplicatioun and what wes spokin be word or brocht be the saidis messingeris to the Counfall, Estaites, or Conservatouris foirsaid; and efter long consideratioun, thay all, in ane voce (finding the querrell, as thay thocht, standing presentlie betuixt the king and the parliament wes for reformatioun of religioun, and miskenit ony uther deidis done agaiust authority and the kingis royall prerogative, as if thay saw not the fame), resolvis and concludis to mak vp ane new Covenant, and send it in till England to be suorne and subscrivit; quhilk if thay did, that then itould be suorne and subscrivit be ws all in Scotland; and then to tak thame be the hand for defens and mantenans of the religioun, who stood still in rebellion aganes the king in thair unlauchfull parliament, and all deidis of hostilitie. This being concludit upone (without the advys, consent or knowlege of the king) be the Counfall, Estaites and Assemblée foirsaid, or at leif be ane Committee from the said Generall Assemblée apointit to that effect, this Covenant wes maid vp, and first approvyn by the Generall Assemblée be ane imprintit Act daitit the 14 August; nixt, the samin wes approvyn be ane uther imprinted Act be the Conventioun of Estaites, daitit the 17 of August. Of the quhilk imprinted Covenant the just copie heirefter follouis :

A Solenne League and Covenant for reformation and defence of Religion, the honour and happiness of the King, and the peace and sisetie of the three kingdomes of Scotland, England, and Ireland.

WE noblemen, barons, knights, gentlemen, citizens, burgesies, ministers of the gospel, and commons of all forts in the kingdomes of Scotland, England, and Ireland, by the providence of God living under one king, and being of one reformed religion, having before our eyes the glory of God, and the advancement of the kingdome of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the honour and happiness of the King's Majestie and his posterity, and the true publicke liberty, safety and peace of the kingdomes, wherein every one's private condition is included; and calling to minde the treacherous and bloody plots, conspiracies, attempts and practises of the enemies of God againt the true religion and professours thereof, in all places, especially in these three kingdomes, ever since the reformation of religion; and how much their rage, power and presumption are of late and at this time increafed and exercised, whereof the deplorable state of the church and kingdome of Ireland, the distressed estate of the church and kingdome of England, and the dangerous estate of the church and kingdome of Scotland, are present and publick testimonies: We have now at last, (after other means of supplication, remonstrance, protestations and sufferings), for the preservation of our selves and our religion from utter ruine and destruction, according to the commendable practice of these kingdomes in former times, and the example of God's people in other nations, after mature deliberation, resolved and determined to enter into a mutuall and Solemne League and Covenant, wherein we all subscribe, and each one of us for himself, with our hands lifted up to the most high God, doe sweare,

1. That we shall sincerely, really and constantly, through the grace of God, endeavour, in our severall places and callings, the preservation of the reformed religion in the Church of Scotland, in doctrine, worship, discipline and government, against our common enemies, the reformation of religion in the kingdomes of England and Ireland, in doctrine, worship, discipline and government, according to the Word of God, and the example of the best reformed churches; and shall endeavour to bring the churches of God in the three kingdomes, to the nearest conjunction and uniformity in religion, confession of faith, form of church government, directory for worship and catechizing, that we, and our posterity after us, may, as brethren, live in faith and love, and the Lord may delight to dwell in the midst of us.

2. That we shall in like manner, without respect of persons, endeavour the extirpation of popery, prelacy (that is, church government, by archbishops, bishops, their chancellours, and commissaries, deans, deans and chapters, archdeacons, and all other ecclesiasticall officers depending on that hierarchy), superstition, heresie, schisme, prophanesesse, and whatsoever shall be found to be contrary to sound doctrine, and the power of godlinesse, lest we pertake in other men's sins, and thereby be in danger to receive of their plagues; and that the Lord may be one, and his name one in the three kingdomes.

3. We shall with the same sincerity, reality and constancie, in our severall vocations, endeavour, with our estates and lives, mutually to preserve the rights and privileges of the parliaments, and the liberties of the kingdomes, and to preserve and defend the King's Majestie's person, and authority in the preservation and defence of the true religion and liberties of the kingdomes, that the world may bear witness with our consciences of our loyalty, and that we have no thoughts or intentions to diminish his Majestie's just power and greatnesse.

4. We shall also, with all faithfulnessse, endeavour the discovery of all such as have been, or shall be, incendiaries, malignants, or evil instruments, by hindering the reformation of religion, dividing the King from his people, or one of the kingdomes from another, or making any faction or parties amongst the people contrary to this League and Covenant, that they may be brought to publick trial, and receive condigne punishment, as the degree of their offences shall require or deserve, or the supreme judicatories of both kingdomes respectively, or others having power from them for that effect, shall judge convenient.

5. And whereas the happinesse of a blessed peace between these kingdomes, denied in former times to our progenitors, is, by the good providence of God, granted unto us, and hath been lately concluded and settled by both parliaments, we shall, each one of us, according to our place and interest, endeavour that they may remain conjoynd in a firme peace and union to all posterity, and that justice may be done upon the wilfull opposers thereof, in manner expressed in the precedent article.

6. We shall also, according to our places and callings in this common cause of religion, liberty, and peace of the kingdomes, assist and defend all those that enter into this League and Covenant, in the maintaing and pursuing thereof; and shall not suffer our selves, directly or indirectly, by whatsoever combination, perswasion, or terrour, to be divided and withdrawn from this blessed union and conjunction, whither to make defection to the contrary part, or to give ourselves to a detestable indifferency or neutrality in this cause, which so much concerneth the glory of God, the good of the kingdomes, and honour of the king: but shall, all the dayes of our lives, zealously and constantly continue therein, against all opposition, and promote the same, according to our power, against all lets and impediments whatsoever; and, what we are not able our selves to suppress or overcome, we shall reveale and make known, that it may be timely prevented or removed. All which we shall do as in the sight of God.

And, because these kingdomes are guilty of many sins and provocations against God and his Son Jesus Christ, as is too manifest by our present distresses and dangers, the fruits thereof, we profess and declare, before God and the world, our unfained desire to be humbled for our own sins, and for the sins of these kingdomes, especially that we have not as we ought valued the inestimable benefite of the Gospel, that we have not laboured for the purity and power thereof, and that we have not endeavoured to receive Christ in our hearts, nor to walk worthy of him in our lives, which are the causes of other sins and transgressions so much abounding amongst us; and our true and unfained purpose, desire, and endeavour, for ourselves and all others under our power and charge, both in publick and in private, in all duties we owe to God and man, to amend our lives, and each one to go before another in the example of a reall reformation; that the Lord may turn away his wrath and heavy indignation, and establish these churches and kingdomes in truth and peace.

And this Covenant we make in the presence of Almighty God, the searcher of all hearts, with a true intention to perform the same, as we shall answer at that great day when the secrets of all hearts shall be disclosed; most humbly beseeching the Lord to strengthen us by his Holy Spirit for this end, and to bless our desires and proceedings with such success, as may be deliverance and safety to his people, and encouragement to other Christian churches groaning under, or in danger of, the yoke of Antichristian tyrannie, to joyne in the same or like Association and Covenant, to the glory of God, the enlargement of the kingdom of Jesus Christ, and the peace and tranquillity of Christian kingdomes and common wealths.

This Covenant was maid w^p and ratifed be the Generall Assemblie and Conventioun of the Estaites, as ye have hard abefoir. Followit ane Ordinans fra the commissioneris of the Generall Assemblie for the solempne receiveing, sueiring and subscribeing of the said League and Covenant; and ane uther Ordinans from the Conventioun of Estaitis, as ye may see coppeit fra the print heirefter.

Now, it is considerabill, whidder this League and Covenant was drawin w^p for defens of the religioun onlie and for the kingis honour, in respect of the 3 article meddling with the mantenans and richtis of parliamentis and liberteis of the kingdomes, done without consent of his Majestie; and to maik thair obleigement in defens of the king in preservatioun and defens of the trew religioun and liberteis of the kingdomes, whairin it wold appeir, whidder our Covenant and League be richt or wrong, or liberteis of the kingdomes unjustlie socht, if his Majestie fail in defens of thame, thay ar no more obligit to defend his persone and aughtoretie. This poynt I have markit, and re-commendis the better confideratioun of the progres and inbring of this Covenant and League to the mair judicious.

Now, as this League and Covenant is given out, ratefeit and approvyn, as is formerlie said, followit ane uther act of the Conventioun of Estaites maid at Edinbrughe the 15 of August 1643 yeires, quhilk coppeit is thus :

Ane Act for Loan and Taxt of thirteen hundred thousand merkis and six score thousand pundis.

Forfamekill as be ane Act of the Conventioun of Estaitis holdin at Edinbrughe the 15 of August 1643 yeires, for the Loan and Taxt, it is statute and ordanit, that, for the wantis and necessiteis of the Scottis army in Ireland and uther causis contenit in the said Act, the soume of tuelf hundred thousand merkis Scottis money, with ane hundredth thousand merkis as allowans to the Collectoris for ingathering of the same, togidder also with sexscore thousand pundis Scottis money for leviating of the men, hors and foot contenit in the said Act, shuld be uplyft by way of Loan and Taxt out of the severall schirrefdomes and burrowis of this kingdome, conforme to ane Roll to be set donn be the Conveinaris of ilk schirrefdome both of spirituall and temporall landis : Conforme to the quhilk Act, the lairdis of Drum and Phillorthe ar appointit to be Conveinaris for the first meiting of the schirrefdome of Aberdein, (and thereafter these of the schire to choos their owne Conveinaris), Robert Farquharstone of Innergald, Johne Irving of Beltie, Alexander Strathachin of Glenkindie, Sir Williame Forbes of Cragiwar, Maister Williame Davidstone of Carny, Sir Gilbert Meinzeis of Petfoddellis, Thomas Erkin of Pittodry, Mr. Robert Farquhar of Mwny, Mr. Robert Gordon of Petburg, George Gordoun of Cocklarachie, Johne Wdny of that ilk, James Hay of Muryfawld, Robert Irving of Fedderet, Johne [William?] Keith of Glakreache, who fall conveyin with the laill heritouris, lifrentaris, takifmen of teyndis, titularis, proper wodfetteris, pensionaris, conjunct fearis, ladyis terceris and utheris within the said schirrefdome upone the first Tuysday of October nixt 1643, as the first day of ther meiting, within the tolbuith of Abirdene, and that the same be intimat at the marcat cros of the heid brughe of the schire, and every parochie kirk thair of immediatlie efter divyne service. And the saidis Conveinaris, with suche other Commiffioneris as fall conveyin for the tyme, fall caus call be name and surname the heritouris, lifrentaris, titularis, takifmen of teyndis, and utheris foifaidis who bruik any benefit to landward quhairby profeit or commoditie aryfeth, and, by consent of thame or the maist part, fall mak, select and choos eight persones to be adjoynit to the saidis Commiffioneris, who fall mak chois of ane clerk, and give up ane just rental and trew worth of everie persone or persones thair present yeire's rent of this cropt and yeir of God 1643 to landward alswell of land and teyndis as of any uther thing, whairby yeirle profeit and commoditie aryfeth. With certificatioun, and thay conpeir not, the saidis Conveinaris fall value and give wp suche rental of the saidis persones thair landis, teyndis and utheris foifaidis as thay fall think expedient, and the saidis heritouris and utheris foifaidis compellit to pay conforme thairto befor the terme of Candlemes nixt, as in the said Act at lenth is contenit.

Conforme to the said Act and instruction direct for that effect, intimatis to all and findrie the heritouris, lifrentaris, titularis, takifmen of teyndis, ladeis terceris and utheris within the said schirrefdome of Aberdene, that they, and ilk ane of thame, conveyin within the Tolbuith of Aberdene, upone the first Tuysday of October nixt 1643 yeiris, with the saidis Conveinaris and Commiffioneris foifaidis, and thair give wp and set donn ane perfect Rental and Roll of ilk persone's rent within the said schirrefdome of Abirdene and parochineris thair of. With Certificatioun, as is contenit in the said Act, &c.

Now, when this act wes intimat to the kinges leiges of sic grevous burd-inges and taxatiouns, quhairof the lyk wes never hard in ony kinges tyme, and now imposit but warrand of the king be subjectis upone subjectis, haveing confideratioun to the League and Covenant formerlie and thairwith fet doum, let ony difereit man judge how the loyall subjectis of this poor kingdome wes borne doum and daylie opprest. Sie moir of the intimatioun of this. Befydis, sic the Exeise, ane uther grevous and intollerabill burden.

Now, as thir warkis ar in wirking in sicht of the English commiffioneris, and to thair gryte joy, and glaidnes of the brethren of the Assembly, who all this tyme ar fitting, the kingis advocat and his commiffioner careit him self as a good patriot for the countrie; bot how the king wes pleiffit I can not tell. Aluaies the Assembly indictit ane uther Generall Assembly to be holdin at Edinbrughe the last Wednesdai of May 1644, and, about the 29 of August, rais wp and dissolvit, leaving the Counfall and Conservatouris of the Treattie at thair meitings and consultationis.

In the mein tyme the lord Maitland, and the said Mr. Alexander Henderson and Mr. George Gillespie tuo of the ministeris of Edinbrughe, was sent, immediatlie efter ryfing of the said Assembly, to the Parliament, with the foirsaid League and Covenant thair to be subscrivit and suorne. Sum of the English commiffioneris went also with them, as wes said, and utheris baid behind attending ther returne. Aluaies our commiffioneris befor named went be sea to London, for by land they had no good peciable passage. Sie heirefter.

As this is doing, Bernick is takin in be the Estaites be devyis of the English parliament, as ye fall heirefter heir, contrair to the Treattie, as the king alledgit.

Ye hard befor, how the laird of Haddoche hurt Alexander and Johne Joffreyis. Thay go over with thair father, recommendit be the brughe of Abirdene, to the burrowis of Scotland, and makes them all thair freindis, and raisis letteris chargeing Haddoche to compeir befor the Counfall, Justice, or Commiffioneris of Estaites at Edinbrughe the second day of August, to ansuer at the instans of the said complenaris and of the kingis advocat for his entres. Haddoche seikis peace freindlie; bot, no agrieans at home nor abroad, he resolves to sit at home, seing the iniquitie of tyme, quhairfoir he is fyuit in 20,000 merkis, thairof 5,000 merkis to the complenaris and 15,000 merkis to the publick, and to mak payment under the pane of horning; like as he wes chargit, denuncit and regiftrat for not payment thairof. Aluaies the Joffreyis repentit sumwhat thair going on so buffilie, since thair pairt of the fyne wes fo litle, and thocht the publick fould have takin no pairt thairof, resolving by that meinis to fattle the more fairlie with Haddoche if the hail fyne had bein at thair awin command; bot the Estaitis thocht this geir weill wyn. A monstrous unhard of fyne for sic ane small fault, not being slauchter, nor mutilation, nor uther criminall cryme. Aluaies Haddoche beheld all, and quhairupone forrow fell, as ye may heirefter heir.

As thir thinges are in doing, the Conventioun of Estaitis fendis ane messenger to the marques of Huntlie, charging him as ane pair of the land to compeir befor thame; bot he disobeyed that charge. Thairefter thay fend ane herauld of armes to charge him under the pane of tressoun to compeir, bot he bydis at home. Quhairupone he is denuncit and regiftrat at the horne, thinking, efter ane legall maner, to tak him be captioun, and to use him or abuse him at thair plesour. Quhairupone the marques wrettes to the Counfall and Estaites, sehowing, it wes weill knowne his estait wes under burdein and he wes labouring to pay his debtis as he nicht agane Martines nixt, so that convenientlie he could not cum over to this Conventioun. 2. He declairit his rent wes not abill to sustein him fix weikis in Edinbrughe, quhilk nicht sustein him at home ane whole yeir. 3. He said he wes offensive to none, bot peciabile fet, nowayis myndfull to perturb the countrie; bot suld wnderly what wes lauchfullie laid upone him or his ground, and for thair better assureans sent over ane blank band subscrivit with his hand to keip thir conditionis wnder what penaltie thay pleassit thamefelffis to put in. With thir Letteris the laird of Cluny wes sent to Edinbrughe; bot the Estaites disdanefullie rejectit his Letteris and Band, and wold not heir thairof, bot resolvit to tak ordour with him sehortlie.

The marques heiring of this, haveing ane trublit estait, glaid to leive in peace and could not get it, sent over agane desireing the Estaitis to grant him Letteris patent that he nicht go out of the countrie to France, there to serve with 50 gentlemen in his awin place of jandearns; bot this is refusit also. Quhairat the marques is heichlie offendit and brocht almost wnder dispair, not knowing what cours to tak for keiping his loyaltie to his maister the king; of whome ye may heir sun moir, and maid him to rys wp in armes at last.

As the Conventioun of Estaites ar handling the marques of Huntlie efter this maner, so, to greive the countrie more intollerabile, thay fet out ane charge, quhilk coppeit is thus:

A Proclamation proclaimed throughout the kingdom of Scotland, August 18, 1643, for all persons from sixteen to sixty years old, to appear in arms.

CHARLES, by the grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, To our Lovits, Messengers or Sheriffs in that part conjunctly and severally, specially constitute, greeting. Forasmuch as the Estates of the kingdom of Scotland presently convened, taking into their most serious consideration the great and imminent danger of the true Protestant reformed religion, and of the peace of thir our kingdoms, from the treacherous and bloodie plotts, conspiracies, attempts, and practices of papists, prelates, malignants, and their adherents, have, after mature deliberation, thought expedient to enter into a soleimn and mutual Covenant with our kingdom of England, for the defence of the true Protestant reformed religion in the Kirk of Scotland, and the reformation of religion in the Kirk of England, according to the Word of God, and the example of the best reformed Kirks, and as may bring the Kirk of God in both kingdoms to the nearest conjunction and uniformity in religion and church government; and siclike to preserve and defend the rights and privileges of our parliaments, and liberties of our kingdoms respective; and to preserve and defend our person, and authority in the preservation of the said true religion and liberties of our said kingdoms; and to observe the articles of the late treaty and peace betwixt the two nations; and to assist and defend all that shall enter into this Covenant, in the maintaining and pursuing thereof, as the same more fully porports. Which, as it will be a comfort and encouragement to all Christians, who fear God and love true religion; to all good and loyal subjects, who truly honour us; and to all true patriots, who tender the liberty of their country: so doubtless it will exasperate and enrage the said papists, prelates, malignants, and their adherents, to practise and execute all the mischief and cruelty they can against kirk and kingdom, as they have done in our kingdoms of England and Ireland. For preventing thereof, the Estates of this our kingdom (according to the practice of our Council, Conventioun of our Estates, and of our Parliaments in former times of the like exigence) have resolved to put this our said kingdom, with all possible speed, in a present posture of defence. And for the better safety and security thereof, have statute and ordained, and hereby statutes and ordains, That immediately after publication hereof, all the fencible persons within this our kingdom of Scotland, betwixt sixty and sixteen years of age, of whatsoever quality, rank or degree, shall provide themselves with forty days' provision, and with ammunition, arms, and other warlike provision of all sorts, in the most substantial manner, for horse and foot, with tents, and all other furnishing requisite: and that the horsemen be armed with pistols, broad swords, and steel caps; and where these arms cannot be had, that they provide jacks or secrets, lances, and steel bonnets: and that the foot men be armed with musket and sword, or pike and sword; and where these cannot be had, that they be furnished with halberts, Loquhaber axes, or Jeddart staves, and swords. Our will is therefore, and we charge you straitly, and command, that, incontinent thir our letters seen, you pass to the mercat crosses at Edinburgh, and several burroughs of this our kingdom, and parish kirks thereof, and there by open proclamation make publication hereof, wherethrough none pretend ignorance of the same; and that you command and charge all and sundry our subjects foresaid, being fencible persons, betwixt sixty and sixteen years, to provide themselves in manner foresaid, and to be in readines to make their rendezvous thus armed, at the places to be appointed by our said Estates, or Committees having power from them, within eight and forty hours after they shall be lawfully warned by order from them to that effect, as they will testify their affections to the true Protestant religion, the liberties of our kingdoms, our own honour, and the peace and safety of that their native country; and under the pain to be esteemed and punished as enemies to religion, us, and our kingdom, and their whole goods to be confiscat to the use of the publick. Given under our signet at Edinburgh, the eighteenth of August, and of our reign the nineteenth year, 1643. Per Actum Dominorum Conventionis.

Sic subscribitur, ARCH. PRIMROSE, Cler. Conven.

This peice cam out with the League and Covenant and Act for Loan and Taxatioun, as ye have befoir, to the gryte annoyans of the kingis subjectis when it wes publihsit. Bot it is so strange to sie the convoyans of this od peice, hatcht and maid wp narrative, in the kingis owne name; and in the assumption, wold carie no les bot the Estaites and the rest nicht set out siche proclamationis; so whidder it be the Kingis proclamatioun or Estaites' proclamatioun it is hard to spy, saif the conclusioun is in the kingis name. Howsoever it be, this proclamatioun is set out without the kingis knowledge or consent, as wes the use befoir; yea expres against his will, as ye have be his letter copeit [hereafter].

Thus is the kingis haill loyall subjectis brocht daylie moir and moir wnder subjectioun and slaverie, but auchtoritie or warrand fra the king.

About this tyme, many witches ar takin in Anstruther, Dyfert, Culros, Sanctandros and sindrie uther pairtis in the coast syde of Fyf. Thay maid strange confessionis, and war brynt to the death.

G[ilbert] Gairdin of Tullisfrokke younger wes takin upone the calsie of Edinbrughe and wardit in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe for manteing sum poyntes of Brunaisme, of whom ye hard sumwhat befoir, and he wes wardit about September. Ye hard abefoir, how the erll of Nithisdail and viscount of Aboyne wes summoundit to compeir befoir the Counsell and Conservatoris of Peace anent negotiating with the erll of Antrim. Word cam, about the 12 of August, thay war both foirfaltit at the cros of Edinbrughe for thair not compeirans, and declairit traittouris, but warrand, consent or auchtoretie of ane king; and thay ar both forsit to leave the land and flie to the kingis help, for at hame thay durst not abide. Sie moir heirefter.

About the 12 of August, haill fameleis, man, wyff and children, fleis out of London for saiftie of thair lives, sum to ane kingdome, sum to ane uther, and sum cam to Scotland, occasioned by thir trubles. Pitifull to behold!

Bristow, the thrid ritcheft brughe in all England, is now, about this tyme, taken in by the king, with gryte slauchter on both syds. The king himself was lying at Oxfurde, and not at the intaking thairof. Thair wes gotten 80 peice of ordinans, store of ammunitioun, armes, pulder and ball, with abundance of victualles, gold and siluer plait, with uther ritches. Thrie of the kingis ſchippes royall, with divers uther ſchippes lying in the river, wes alſo takin, whiche wes able to carie cannon. The king, getting word, cumis haiftellie from Oxfurde to Briſtow, creatis the lord Hoptoun, ane brave commander, governour of this gryte citie, to the contentment of the young Prince and Marques of Hairtſurde, who for thair places of warr wes contending for in-putting ane governour in the ſaid rounne. Thairefter the king returnes bak to Oxfurde.

In this moneth of Auguſt, the marques' ſiſter, Jeane Cordone, lady and relict of unquhill [Claud Hamilton] lord Strathbrane, cam heir to the north and took wp her hous in Leſnoir.

In this moneth, many newis cumes to Abirdene: Exeter was ſtraitlie beſeigit, and the erll of Warwick ſeiking to releive it, was routit and defeat: That 500 Kent men left the parliament and cam in to the King, and at Chat-tam defarned ſuche as wes aganes his Majeſtie, and took ſum ordinans and ſum of the Kingis ſchippes: That Sir Johne Hotham accuſit Mr. Pyne befoir the Engliſh parliament for gathering togidder 100,000 li. ſterling to his awin uſe aganes the publict weill, quhair of the tryell wes faſhious to the parliament; ſie heirefter, quhair that archtraitour Pyne deit befoir he wes hangit: That Ganisburie is taken be the King: Lincoline yeildit to his Majeſtie, quhair his Excellence the Erll of Newcastle had gottin ſtoir of victuallis, 800 muſcatis and 8 peice of ordinans, and that he hes advancit his cannoun over Trent: Sir Johne Henderſone maid lord generall of the horſſis, and Col-loner Biron maid governour of Newark: Nottinghame is alſo yeildit: That the Erllis of Northumberland, Bedforde, Lincoline, and divers uther nobill men had left the parliament and cum in to the King, and left few of the nobles in the Over Hous, and the Lower Hous daylie alſo diminifhing: That the lord Willowbie fled and was routit to Boyſtoun, his hail baggage loſt, and not 300 men in his company, and that the toun wes wnder treattie: That Gloceſter is beſeigit, and mony men loiſt on bothe ſydes. This wes the newis that cam at this tym to Abirdene.

Setterday the 2 of September, the Proclamatioun anent all maner of man betuixt 60 and 16 to be in reddines wes maid at the cros of Abirdene, eſter took of drum. Sie this Proclamatioun befoir. Like as the ſamen Proclama-tioun wes tuys red and proclaimed thairefter at the ſaid cros; bot litle obe-dience wes gevin in thir partis thairto.

Sonday the 3 of September, the communioun givin heir in Old Aberdene as it wes laſt. Sermon endit, this Proclamatioun red alſo at the outgoing of the people at the kirk dur be Alexander Wilguis reidar. This communioun wes thocht to be untymoullie givin heir, as it wes at all uther parochie churches, being in the hight of harvest. Communioun the second tyme givin heir upone the tenth of September being Sunday.

Now it wes concludit be our Counfall and Estaites to raise ane army to go into England in defens of the good caus, the trew reformed Protestant religioun, richtis of parliament, and liberteis of the kingdomes of England and Scotland, and to defend the king aganes all papistis prelatiis and malignant persones. This is strange to sie, how oure army fall rys in defens of the king without his owne consent, and wnder cullour of religioun to aid and assist the kinges parliament of England now standing in armes against the king rebelioulle. And it may be marvellit what ressonne justlie we could have to do so, getting all oure willis according to the utmost desire of our hairtis at his Majestis handis, or what interes we haid to interpone ourefelssis betuixt the king and his subjectis of England, since ressonne wold say we had gottin oure willis, and thairfoir we nicht leve in rest and peace. No, no, it must go utherwayes. England has gottin oure turne done, and we must help to sie thame get thair turne done also in all thingis both in kirk and pollecie lyke unto our government, quhairin if England hapnit not to prevaill, then oure groundis so surely establisht wes to be seirit, and the king nicht cum bak upone ws and revoek all what he had done. Upone this ground we will rais ane army (as wes thocht) and makis generall Leslie to tak the charge of this service upone him, who cheirfullie acceptit of the sament, and began now to wirk upone the ordering of this warr, as ye fall heirefter heir, and nothing hard bot touking of drumis and proclamatioun fra cros to cros. Sie heirefter.

It wes said, that sum of the nobles had ane meiting at Aberdour, with whome the marques of Hammiltoun hapnit to be (as one who pretendit to favour the king), and laid compt to stay any raising of armes against his Majestie; bot all for nocht, it turnd to small effect. Thair meiting wes in September, about 14 noblemen.

Upone the 4 of September, James Anderfone, ane honest burges of Abirdene, caused bring to the kirk ane barne, quhilk his wif had new borne, to be baptisit, becaus it wes waik, about tua efternone, and convenit his goffopes and cummeris, as the custum is. Then the father goes to the ministeris to cum and baptise his barne being waik, bot ilkane ansuerit efter uther thay wold not baptise whill efter the Lecture wes done. The barne growis waiker, and the father gois agane; bot ilk ane refusit. At last, the father caused ring the bell, the sooner to mak thame cum to thair Lecture, bot thay fat still whill the houre cam ; bot befor the Lecture wes done the fillie infant deceiffis in the cumeris armes at the pulpeit foot without benefit of baptifine. The people fell all in murmuring and amazement at the doing of thir ministeris, and the father and freindis convenit waxt wonderfull forrowfull : bot Mr. Johne Ofwall, who said the Lecture, perceaving the barne to be deid, said, since the barne is deid in the kirk, caufe burie it in the kirk, quhilk wes instantlie done ; whairat findrie godlie perfones wes not weill content with this churche government. In like maner, Mr. Thomas Blackhall, ane burges of the toun, caufit bring his lauffull barne to the kirk to be baptifit upon the tent of Aprile abefoir, and held wpe the barne in his owne hand, as the custome is ; bot Mr. Androw Cant wold not give the barne baptifine in the father's hand, whill ane goffop gat the barne in his hand, alledging he wes ane papift, fyne baptifit the barne. Sie heirefter moir.

About this famen 4 of September, tryell wes gottin of sum 5 or 600 merkis stollen out of Mr. Johne Kay ane of the New toun Regentis kift. It wes found, that Mr. Androw Cant the holie ministeris sone drew the naillis of the kift and fastned the famen with new naillis, having ane uther holie brotheris sone in his company called Strathachin and student with him self, sone to Mr. Williame Strathachin perfone of Daveot. Thair prodigall spending, drinking, and debosching maid it to be tryit, efter this Regent had tane ane boy of his called Mathowfone who keipit his chalmer, and tormentit him most pitifullie for the famen, being innocent. Bot the tuo ritche fatheris payit for thair tuo fones' thift, ane gryte scandall to scolleris thay being both studentis, and so the mater was filencit. Bot if any uther student had done the lyk, Cant wold have cryit out against the famen maliciouflic in the pulpit, and fein thame put to the Colledge Yettis, quhairin thay, but punitioun, war credible keipit.

Upone Monoday the 11 of September, Proclamatioun maid at the cros of Abirdene for ingathering of the taxatioun and levie-money be way of loan extending to 1,200,000 merkis Scottis money, and 100,000 merkis to the collectouris for ingathering of the famen, and sexfoir thousand pundis for leviating of men and hors, to be upliftit be way of loan, conforme to ane Act of the Conventioun of Estaites. Sie befor.

Ye hard befor of the intaking of Beruick. It wes, as is reportit, efter this maner. Whilft the heidles parliamentaris war negotiating with oure Scottis, as ye hard before, about the beginning of September thair cam five of the kingis awin schippis (now at this parliamentis service) to Beruick and landit 300 foldiouris, whome the maior receavit like ane traittour ; and we, being desirit to fend forces to defend this toune aganes the king if occasioun offerit, fend schortlie supplie of men to keep and defend the same upone all adventuris ; quhairat the king wes offendit, as ye may sie heirefter.

Ye hard befor, the erll of Nithisdail, [and] the lord Aboyne went to the king ; the erll of Montrois and lord Ogilvy lykwayes fled the land and past to the king.

Upone the 11 of September, thair cam to Abirdene ane bailly and ane deacon of Edinbrughe, commissiouneris fra the toun to Abirdene, desiring that Mr. Johne Ostall ane of thair ministeris sould be transportit to thair brughe of Edinbrughe for serving the cure thair ; quhilk wes grantit, and he removit out of Abirdene to Edinbrughe upone the 23 of October thairefter, leaving our toune to be servit with Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. John Rew, whill his rowme wes fillit.

Ye hard befor, of oure Generall Assemblie, and of the Supplicatioun given in befor thame be the parliamentaris, devynes, and commissiouneris, and of the League and Covenant that then wes maid. How sone the king hard of this, he wes hichlie commoved, and schortlie wreittis to the Counfall of Scotland, quhilk coppeit is thus :

CHARLES R.

RIGHT trustie and weilbelovit, Where as we have bein informed, that the lait Generall Assembly of oure kirk of Scotland have thoct fit oure subjectis thair suld enter into a mutuell League and Covenant with those oure tuo Houffis of Parliament in England, who ar, and in long tyme have bein, in actual rebelloun against ws, a motioun we could never have expected wold proceid from so grave and pious perones as that meiting did consist of ; Thairfoir we do requyre yow publictly by Proclamatioun to intimat oure plefour, that no siche Othe or Covenant be pressed upone oure Scottis subjectis, or by them entred into with any perfonis in name of oure Houffis of Parliament, or any uther of oure subjectis of England, untill we be first acquainted thairwith and approve thair-of. And this oure Letter we desire yow put in record, whiche salbe a sufficient warrand to all oure good subjectis not to give obedience to any command, wnder any pretens, from what pretendit power fover, to the contrary heirof. We bid yow hartlie farweill. Givin at our court of Eveshame, the 14 day of September and 19 yeir of oure raigne, 1643.

Bot the King getis no obedience, nor did the Counfall set out ony sic Proclamatioun as is heir requirit. Always his Majestie wreitis ane uther Letter to the Chancelair, quhilk coppeit is thus :

CHARLES R.

RIGHT trustie and weilbelovet, Where as we have laitlie received ane letter from yow, whairin yow signefie unto ws the arrivall of certane perfones wnder the title of Commissiouneris from oure tuo Houffis of Parliament of England, we have thoct fit heirby to let yow know, that we do by no meinis allow of any pouer of oure tuo Houffis of Parliament in England (evin when thay war in the more full and frie condition that is imaginabill) to fend any Commiffioeris, vnder that or any uther titill, to negotiat any thing in ane uther kingdome, without oure consent and approbatioun first had and obtenit; and we do heirby declair, that, as we have givin no content to the sending of these perfonis, nor ony approbatioun of them, so we expect that oure good subjectis of oure kingdome of Scotland, and particularlie oure Privie Counfall of that oure kingdome, fould not admit, receive, or treat with them, upone any effaires whatsoever, vnder that notiou and capacitie. And so, requyring yow to mak this declaratioun knowne, we bid yow fairweill.

This Letter hes no dait, bot it appieres to have bene writtin first and befor the uther; bot what is the mater, no obedience.

CHARLES R.

RIGHT trusty and right wellbeloved cousins and counsellours, and trusty and wellbeloved counsellours, we greet you well. Whereas we were graciously pleased to condescend, that this present meeting in our kingdom of Scotland of our nobility there, and the commissioners for shires and burroughs, should resolve and conclude of such particular affairs as we specified and allowed to them, for the security and good of that our kingdom, in our late letters to them, dated the 10th of June last; and for as much as we have, to our great amazement, newly seen a Paper, in form of a proclamation, precept or warrant, in our royal name, dated at Edinburgh the 18th of August, subscribed, Per Actum Dominorum Conventiois, Arch. Primrose, Cler. Conven. being a Paper most impudently set forth without our privity, or any authority from us, and tending to cast our beloved people of that our native kingdom into the like and more bloody combustions and rebellions, violation of their religion, and allegiance to us, and laws of that our (hitherto) peaceful native kingdom, as hath been here practised by the malicious enemies of peace and government: We have therefore, upon good deliberation, and out of our princely and gracious care of our people, and of the tranquillity of that our native kingdom, (as it was so lately and well settled by our self,) thought fit to declare, and we do hereby declare unto you, that we utterly dislike and disallow it, forbidding all our subjects to obey the same, and all other papers published in our name, which shall not immediately be warranted by us. And we do hereby will and command you forthwith, openly to publish these our Letters, to let all our people understand our pleasure herein. And lastly, our pleasure and command is, that you cause these our Letters to be forthwith recorded in the books of our Privy Council of that our native kingdom. For all which, these our said Letters shall be your sufficient warrants.

This Letter hes no dait,* nather is obedience given thairunto, nor proclamation nor publicatioun maid according to the kingis command.

Follous ane fourt letter sent by his Majestie to the Conservatouris of the Treattie, whiche coppeit is thus:

* This Letter is printed in Burnet's Lives of the Dukes of Hamilton, p. 246, and dated thus: "Given at our Court at Oxford, the 26th day of September, in the 19th year of our reign, 1643."

CHARLES R.

RIGHT trusty and right wellbeloved cousins and counsellors, right trusty and wellbeloved counsellors, and trusty and wellbeloved, we greet you well. No industry hitherto could have so far prevailed with us, as to gain any belief that our Scottish subjects would countenance, much less assist, this bloody rebellion in England; yet we know not how to understand the levying of forces, both foot and horse, within our native kingdom, and their entering our town of Berwick in an hostile manner. You are particularly trusted by us and our parliament, and solemnly sworn to be faithful in the discharge of that trust of seeing the Articles of the late Treaty observed, which here is most grossly violated; therefore we require you, as you will be answerable to God, to us, and our parliament, to take speedy and present order for recalling and suppressing those forces.

Our most malicious enemies must bear us witness, how religiously we have observed these Articles on our part, whereof if we had not been more tender, than the advisers of the breach have been of the publick faith, it is obvious to any, how easily we could have secured that town from all rebels.

We have likewise thought fit to take notice of the present preparations in that our kingdom of raising an army by a new authority, to come into our kingdom of England, under the pretence of securing themselves from a Popish and Prelatical army, falsely alledged to be upon the Borders; such forces as we have there being only for protecting of our distressed subjects from the incurion of rebels, from their ships at Berwick, and Holy Island, and for no other end. Such then as shelter themselves under that pretext will find from thence but a slender warrant before God, who knows the integrity of our heart, and how inviolably we intend to preserve all that we have granted to that kingdom so long as they suffer themselves to be capable of our protection and those favours. Therefore we do require you not only to oppose and suppress all such unwarrantable levies, but by your publick declaration to disabuse those rebels in England, who endeavour to engage you in their rebellion, and expect assistance from you.

In all which we look for ready obedience, and expect a present account the reof. We bid you heartily farewell.

Given at our Court at Oxford, the 26th day of September, in the 19th year of our reign, 1643.

Bot no obedience, nor publicationn of the kingis plesour to the kingis leiges, bot forduard gois the Generall Assambleie, the Conventioun of Estaites, and Conservatouris of the Treattie, all hand in hand, for levying of an army, lifting of taxationis and loan-money, whidder the king wold or not, in maner befoir fet down, and as ye may sie heirefter.

The Conventioun of Estaites having cloisit and concluded all; amonges the rest they maid ane act, as wes reportit, that no coallis sould be transportit till ony brughe in Scotland or to ony foraigne countrie; bot all to be wyn and sent to London to furneish them with fyre, who now wes in gryte distress throw want of coallis. Be this Act, the covenantis' keiping of faith to the king may be cleirly sein, and thair kyndnes to thair owne countrie, for the coallis fold in Edinbrughe and in Fyf and Lauthean wes raisit to double moir price nor thay payit abefoir, to the gryte greif of the kingis leiges. And so thir Estaitis rais wp and dissolvit upone the [26th August], who had fittin sen the 22 of June. Sie befor. Bot oure finithis of Abirdein wes forfit to wirk thair wark with peitis, for no coillis cam to Abirdein be reffone of this Act.

Upone Souday 17 of September, the communion wes givin in New Abirdene for the first, and upone Souday the 24 of September for the last, not efter the old fashon, kneilling, bot sitting: nor the people sufferit to pray when Mr. Androw Cant prayit, as thair custon wes befor, bot all to be silent and dum: nor thair communioun breid baikin nor distribute, as wes wont, bot efter ane new fashon of breid, for it wes baikin in ane round loaf lyk ane trynfscheour, fyne cuttit out in long scheinves hanging be ane tak; and first, the minister takis ane scheinve, efter the blessing, and brakis ane peice and gives to him who is narrest, and he gives the scheinve to his nightbour, who takis ane peice and fyne gives it to his nightbour, whill it be spent; and fyne ane elder gives in ane uther scheinve whair the first scheinve left, and so furth. The lyk breid and service wes never sein in Abirdene befor the cuning of Mr. Andrew Cant to be thair minister.

Now grite preparatioun for raising of men and armes. General Leslie fendis to Holland, France, and Sweden for commanders and officiaris, who cam to him daylie, and resolves to go into England with ane army of 10,000 men, foot and hors. The ordour for lifting of thir men, collonellis and commanders fet down throw all the schires of Scotland be ane Committee of Estaites, and amonges the rest for the schirrefdomes of Abirdene, Banf, and throw all Scotland, as ye fall sie heirefter, and daitit the 26 of November. Leslie marches forduard. Sie his reffones [hereafter.]

Upone Souday the 17 of September, after sermon, thair wes red out the intimatioun of the Act of the Conventioun of Estaitis, at the kirk dur of Old Abirdene, anent the uplifting of the taxatioun and loan-money, daitit the 15 of August, to the gryte greif of the auditouris.

Thursiday 21 September, ane Committee holdin in Abirdene by the erll Marfchall, the tutour of Pitligo, the lairdis of Drum, Phillorth, Straloch, Kermuk, and divers utheris barronis, anent the levying of soldiouris. Ordour wes givin, that the drum fould go throw Aberdene commanding all prenteiffis, fervandis fellis, not to change thair maisteris whill Martymes nixt; with certificatioun, thay fould be takin fra sic maisteris as thay feit with, and the maister not to be frier in furneshing of ane man. Thair wes divers uther Actis maid, Mr. Thomas Merfer thair clerk; and so this committee dissolvit, and wes continewit to the 3 of October.

Wedinsday 27 September, befor Michaelmes, Patrik Leslie chofin proveft of Abirdene; Mr. Thomas Gray, Mr. Mathow Lumfden, Mr. Williame Moir, and Robert Cruikshank chofin balleis. Sir Alexander Irving of Drum continewit fchirref principall of Abirdene, Mr. Williame Davidfone fchirref deput; and Thomas Frafer of Streclin fchirref of Innernis.

Upone Tuyfday the 3 of October, the Committee fat down in the tolbuith of Abirdene, quhair the laird Drum and Phillorth, conveyinaris, war. The tutour of Petfligo, the laird of Tolquhone, and divers utheris barronis war convenit. Thay fell upon the divifion of the fchirrefdome betuixt the erll Marfchall and the lord Gordoun, both being abfent; and no place wes left to the lord Forbes, to be crouner with the uther tuo, for cauffis moveing the Committee of Eftaites at Edinbrughe: bot thay fand the lord Gordoun had gottin more boundis nor the erll Marfchall, as in the imprented Paper of the 26 of November, heirefter fet down, tefifeis. Quhairat it wes thocht Marfchall wes not weil content; nor yit the lord Forbes, wha wes, be ordour of the Committee at Edinbrughe, put upone lift with the lord viscount of Crichtoun or Conway, whiche fould be chofin thrid crouner with the erll Marfchall and the lord Gordoun. It fell be voice, the lord Forbes to be the thrid crouner; yit both war difapointit, as ye have in the printed paper forfaid. The lord Forbes himfelf was not preftent, bot ftill in Edinbrughe.

Newis cumis to Abirdene, about the 5 of October, of ane grite battell fought betuixt the king and the erll of Effex upone Salifburie plane; quhair thair wes muche blood fched; bot the king ftill victorious, praisit be God. And likuaies he had ane gryte victorie over the rebellis at Reddin, the Londoneris routit that cam to the refkew thairof. Thair was killit to the king ane marques of France, and the thrie uther lordis.

Now, the hail minifteris of our landward Seffionis beginis to tak wp the number of the hail fenfibil men within thair feveral parochins betuixt 60 and 16, fo that both hird and hyreman wes preceiffie nottit, to the effect the 4 man nicht be lifted. And, upone Sunday the 8 of October, efter afternone's fermon,oure minifter Mr. Williame Strathachin with the feffionares took the roll of the communicantis within Maucher paroche and Old Abirdene, and maid wp ane number out thairof of the fenfibil perfones, as faid is, whiche was not wyllie done, if this ordour haid not bein mitigat. Notice wes alfo takin of the rentis of the faid parochin, conform to the Act of the Conventioun of Eftaites, daitit 15 of Auguft, for uptaking of taxatioun and loan; and ilk minifter ordanit to give wp to the Committee at Abirdene the number of the fenfibill men and rent within their parochin in wreit, and ilk minister him self to furneish out ane man upone his owne charges. Besides this, the hail heretouris, &c. wes warmit to give wp thair rentalis.

Upone the samen Sunday and 8 of October, Mr. Thomas Blackhall and his wyf both excommunicat as papistis. And likuaies Meinzeis spous to Thomas Colleifoune excommunicat as ane papist. Strange to sie, the wyf to be excommunicat, and the husband not to keip societie with hir! Mr. Andrew Cant minister to thir excommunicationis. About this tyme, word cam, that the king causit tak the erll of Lauthean and waird him in clos waird within the castle of _____, for going to France be directioun of the Committee of Estaites, and doing sum materis with the Quene Regent of France, and Monsieur Capitane of the Militia, that the king wes offendit, as is nottit heirefter.

Thair cam, at that same tyme when Lauthean wes takin, ane Frenshe embassadour to his Majestie, wha sent lykuaies ane Frenshe man commissioner to our Estaites. This embassadour wes honorable receavit first be the parliament. His commissioun wes to travell betwixt the king and the parliament for peace; bot thay delt pollitiquelie with this embassadour, held him still beyde tham felsis abyding ane anfuier, and, as wes said, wold not suffer him to go sie the king, as he wes directit. Howsoever it wes, he gat no contentit anfuier, as wes thocht, and returnit home agane.

Now this embassadour haveing directit ane commissioner to Scotland, the Committee of Estaites desirrit him to produce his commissioun, whiche he refusit, saying, he had warrand to produce it befor the Counfall, whairupone folloit ane gryte counfall day. His commissioun wes, to renew the league, upone conditionn that we sould not rais armes in help of the English parliament; to let oure Scottis Papists lift thair rentis peciablie, and sum uther articles: bot he had no good anfuier grantit unto him, except he gat father Robertsons, of whome ye hard befor, put to libertie and had him with him self to France.

Upone Sunday the 15 of October, wairing givin out of pulpit, be Mr. Willean Strathachin minister, to all heritouris, lifrentaris, friehalderis, &c. within this parochin, to convey before the Committee in New Abirdene, upone the 19 of October nixt, for upgiving of thair rentes to proportioun the taxatioun and loan imposed upone the countrie, als ye have hard befor; and als appointit ane fast to be keipit this day 8 dayes, for conducting of oure army to be raihit aganes the English papistis (alias the king him self), as we that wes obligit by treattie or covenant to help and assist thame.

Doctor Forbes of Cors prepares him self to leave the land, provides ane schip lying in the harborie with his necessaries; and, upone the 16 of October, takis his leive, with Mr. Johne Lillie his servitour, fra auld Abirdene, and to Torry goes he, abyding the tyde to schip. Bot certane of his freindis and of the ministris dissuadit him fra his voage, quhilk he wes loth to do; aluaies, upone condition that the presbitrie of Abirdene wold use no proces of excommunication againt him, at thair desire, he wold turne home; quhilk wes grantit, and so he came bak to his owne hous upone the 19 of October. Bot he wes forsit to go when all wes done, as ye have heirefter.

Men gathering fast throw Fyf, Lauthan, Merfs, and all be fouth, to mak up ane army to go to England. Edinbrughe and Leith straitlier watchit nor befoir.

Upone the thrid Tuyfday and 17 of October, the Provinciall Assemblie sat down in the Gray Freir kirk of Abirdene, quhair it sat never befoir. Ilk minister with his laick elder cam in, and brocht in a roll of the fenfibill men of his parochie and note of the heretouris' rentis, &c. Mr. David Lyndfay persone of Balhelvy is chofin moderatour to the nixt Provinciall Assemblie. Mr. Androw Logie minister at Rayn, who wes deprivit, as ye hard befoir, cam in, and requestit the bretheren to writ to the Committee of the Generall Assemblie at Edinbrughe, to contynew his place onprovidit to another, quhill he war first hard and discussit befoir thame him self; bot thair wes no heiring. And in the mein tyme, gryte contestation about his kirk betuixt Mr. Johne Middeltoun minister at Lesly and Mr. Williame Robertfone minister at Futty, becaus it had ane fyne stipend; aluaies Middeltoun careit it. Mr. Andrew Logie beheld all patientlie, and baid constantlie be his doctrein, offering to prove the same orthodox, frie of error and heresie; bot it avallit not, nor no heiring at all. When this kirk is thus providit over the honest manis heid, the Assemblie fillis up the Professouris place, and electit Mr. Williame Douglas minister at Forge, as a man most worthie to be professor in Doctor Forbes' place. Quhilk being done, as he had gottin his place, so he fould get his hous, according to his awin mortification, whairin Doctor Forbes unwyflie had not servit his awin lifrent, thinking him self sure professour durance his tyme, as ye may heirefter sie. And efter uther consultationis, this Provinciall Assemblie dissolvit upone Frydday efternone. Bot remember, this Mr. Williame Douglas is ane grite Covenanter.

Ye hard befoir, of the League and Covenant, and how it was sent to England; the lord Maitland, Mr. George Gillefpick, Mr. Alexander Henderfone, Commisioneris, careit the sament. This League and Covenant was grateoullie receavit in England, fuorne and subfcritt, and fent bak to the Commiffioneris of the Generall Affembly fra thair bretheren befoir named. Quhairupone follouit ane imprinted Act daitit at Edinbrughe the 11 October 1643, quhilk coppeit is thus:

Ordinance of the Commiffioners of the Generall Affembly for the folemne receiving, fwearing, and fubfcriting of the League and Covenant.

THE Commiffioners of the Generall Affembly, having received from their brethren, fent unto the kingdome of England, the Solemne League and Covenant, as it was approven by the Honourable Houfes of the Parliament of England and the Affembly of Divines in that kingdome, and folemly fworn and fubfcritt there, after due examination thereof, did, all in one voice, moft heartily receive and embrace the fame as agreeing with the draught, unanimoſly and chearfully approven and embraced by the late Generall Affembly and Convention of Eftates, as the moft powerfull meane, by the bleſſing of God, for fettling and preferving the true Proteftant religion with perfect peace in his Majeſtie's dominions, and propagating the fame to other nations, and for eftabliſhing his Majeſtie's throne to all ages and generations: And, therefore, according to the power given to them by the ſaid Affembly, ordaine this Solemne League and Covenant to be, with publick humiliation, and all religious folemnyties, received, fworn, and fubfcritt by all miniſters and profeſſours within this Kirk. And, that this may be univerſally performed, it is alſo ordained, that this League and Covenant be forthwith printed, and that the printed copies, bound with ſome clean ſheets of paper, be fent unto the miniſtery; and that every miniſter, upon the firſt Lord's day, after the fame ſhall come to his hands, read and explaine it, and by exhortation prepare the people to the fwearing and fubfcritt thereof folemly, the Lord's day next immediatly following. And it is further ordained, that Preſbyteries take account of the performance hereof in their ſeveral bounds, and that they proceed with the cenſures of the Kirk againſt all ſuch as ſhall reſuſe, or ſhift, to ſwear and fubſcribe this League and Covenant, as enemies to the preſervation and propagation of religion; and that they notiſe their names, and make particular report of their own diligence hereintill to this Commiſſion, or their moderator, or clerk, to be delivered to them. And the Commiſſioners think it very convenient, for good example, and the better encouragement of others, that this Covenant be folemly fworn, and fubſcribed by themſelves now preſent, before the congregation, in the Eaſt Kirk, upon Friday next the 13. of this inſtant, after ſermon and exhortation to be made by Maſter Robert Douglas, moderator; and that the Commiſſioners of the Convention of Eſtates, now in town, and the Commiſſioners from the Parliament of England, and the divines of that kingdome here preſent, be earneſtly deſired to joyne with them in this folemne and religious action.

No doubt, bot bothe thir Actis with the League and Covenant wer haiftellie inprintit, disperst, and spred with all diligens to the hail ministeris and parochie churches within the kingdome, in maner and to the effect foirsaid.

Like as thair wes ane uther Paper inprintit callit The good News of Englandis approving the Covenant sent from Scotland, and sum Ressonis for assisting the parliament of England against the Papijstis and prelatieall army. This paper beires the maner of the subscribing of this covenant. Blissed be the name of God tharefoir.

This Paper beiris nather dait nor authour, nor is the Ressones alledgit of any force, since what is alledgit may be eslie answuerit in a word, Subjectis may not rais armes without aughtoretie of ane king aganes foraigneris, mekill less against him self. And becaus of the waiknes of thir frivolous pretendit Ressones, I have omitted thame of set purpos, as unworthie to be wretten; yit thay ar imprinted besyde me, wanting dait or author.

Sie more heirefter.

About this tyme, word cam that there wes ane ceſſatioun of warr concludit, by the kingis command, betuixt the Irifhis and Engliſh in Ireland, to indure for ane yeir; and that his Majeſtie had maid the Marques of Ormont deputie of Ireland.

Upone the 26 of October, the Tolbuithe of Abirdene broken on the night by ane miller callit Coipland, quhairby him ſelf eſcaipit, Williame Gordoun in Malynghyde, and Alexander Leſlie, ſone to Mr. George Leſlie at Birſakis Milne, who wes, wnder truſt, trecherouſlie takin out of the hous of Bogheidis be virtue of letteris raiſit aganis him and his father for trubling of Mr. James Clark, as ye have befoir. The gentilman wyning to libertie, addreſt him ſelf unwyſſie to his fatheris hous at Birſakis Milne, who wes maid welcum. Tolquhone, (who now had tane the protectionn of this Mr. James Clerk), heiring how he had brokin waird, wes heichlie offendit thairat, and haſtiellie convenis the lairdis of Echt, Skeyne, and divers freindis and gentlemen, with whome the ſaid Mr. James Clerk him ſelf wes alſo, and about the number of threttie perſonis, and, upone the 28 of October, about the braking of the ſky in the morning, cam to the ſaid Mr. George Leſlie's duelling hous at Birſakis milne, whair him ſelf and ſone wes without ony freind or good fellow beſyde thame, and cruellie unbefet the hous round about, haveing warrand to rais fyre and fuord aganes thame, whill thay war tane or flayne. The poor ſingell gentlemen, haveing ſum ſchottis, defendit thame ſelfis courageouſlie, and wold on na wys be tane; quhairupone Tolquhone ſettis fyre to the hous and forſit thame to cum out with his wyf and barnes. Thay ſchot tua hors till him, worth 400 merkis, and brynt to pulder his hail inſicht plenifhing, goodis and geir of good worth. And in end, efter ſum debait, thay hurt the ſaid Mr.

George Leslie with ane schot athort the ribbis, and hurt in the heid; his wyf also gat ane fore fraik in the heid. Thay defendit thame selffis, being bot onlie tua perfones, fra about the sky braking till thrie efternone aganis about the number of 30 perfones. At last, when thair pulder and lead wes spent, thay could do no more, bot wes takin both togidder perforce, for upone no condition thay wald yeild, nor cum in will; and thus thay war both had to Tolquhone, whair thay remanit whill upone Thuirsdlay the 23 of November, that Mr. George wes curit of his woundis. Quhilk day, Tolquhone caufit about 14 of his freindis and servitouris transport them both fouth to Edinbrughe, quhair thay war scharplie accuifit befor the Justice upone findrie articles concerning the abusing of Mr. James Clerk foirsaid, and taking of his goodis, and wes in no less danger nor thair lyf. Aluayes be the old Ladie Merchallis advys, who wes the said Mr. George landilady, the laird of Panmure had purchesit ane remiffioun, and past throw the Scottis seallis, for all Tolquhone's freindschip and moyan in Edinbrughe, haveing his brother, Mr. Williame Forbes advocat, in Edinbrughe, ane violent agent in the said caus. Yit he wan this poynt, that thay suld bothe remane in waired in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe, whill thay set sufficient caution and law-borrowis to Tolquhone and his complices, and to the said Mr. James Clerk, that thay suld be harmles and skaitbles, wnder gryte panes. Quhilk caution thay war unhabill to set, and so remanit still in waired to thair utter overthrow, for his wyf keift wp all labouring, he haveing fyve pleuches wnder labouring. And schortlie thairefter his wyf deceiflis; bot he and his sone both wes set to libertie, and sailie cam home.

At last thay on another day cam in, fueir, and subscrivit.

Utheris craftis and commonns fueir and subscrivit that day. And in a word, sic wes oure miniſteris cair and diligens, that he maid the hail parochin to fueir and ſubſcribe, and the women to uphold thair handis, veray few exceptit, (this wes oure ordour for the parochin of Sanct Macher); and sic as could not ſubſcribe of the men Alexander Wilguis reidar ſubſcrivit for thame. Bot all wes done efter fermon.

And in like maner, Mr. Andro Cant and Mr. Johne Rew, efter fermon, in New Abirdene, firſt red, fueir, and ſubſcrivit the Covenant, and nixt thair reidar; cauſit the women hold up thair handis, and ordanit the men to cum in quarterlie, as the toune is divydit in four quarteris, upone Monunday, Tuysday, Wedneſday, Thuirſday, to fueir and ſubſcribe the ſaid Covenant within the Seſſioun houſ; quhilk wes obeyit. And, as is ſaid, upone the foirſaid Sonday and thairefter, the Covenant wes ſubſcrivit and ſuorne in forme foirſaid.

It is ſaid, the laird of Haddoche, at his parochie kirk of Meithlik, proteſtit aganis the miniſter and ſubſcrivantes, and declairit it wes aganis the kingis will, and red his Majeſteis letter, as ye have befoir; quhilk bred ſic feir in the parochineris that they knew not whome to obey. Sic befoir, quhair this Covenant wes firſt red. Lykuyis ſic heirefter, in Marche 1644, of ane Remonſtrance ſet out againſt this Covenant and Eſtatis.

Upone the laſt of October, the erll Marſhall cam from Innergie to Abirdene, about 50 hors, and lodgit in ſkiper Anderſonis houſ. The lord Gordoun, upone the morne, cam from Edinbrughe. He wreit for ſum freindis to meit him at the brig of Die. He cam in to the toune, about 100 hors, and lodgit in Mr. Alexander Reidis houſ. Thay meit in the Lauche Counfall-houſ, gois to ane Committee, whair the lord Forbes is borne by his Colonellis place. Then it fallis in queſtioun, anent the diviſioun of the ſchires of Mernis, Abirdene, and Banff betuixt the erll Marſhall and the lord Gordoun, (becaus by Marſhallis moyan, as wes thoct, the lord Forbes wes put fra his regiment,) who could not agrie thairupone. Thay meit agane upone the morne, having divers barronis with them at thair Committee, whair they culd not agrie upone ther diviſioun. It wes thoct fit to aquent the Committee of Eſtatis heirwith, and fo all wes contynewit to ane uther Committee to be holdin at Abirdene the 22 of November. In the mein tyme, ſum miniſteris cam in with a roll of thair fenſibill men in thair parochis, and sic as cam not in, to cum in the foirſaid 22 day of November with a perfect roll of thair men. It is trew, the marques wes informit, that the Committee of Estates wes using all meinis possibill to tak him and bring him in perforce to the toun of Edinbrughe, sic as the erll Marshell and schireffis of Abirdene and Banf. He sent to Marshell, demanding him if he wes upone sic cours; who absolutlie refusit. Nevertheles he began to luik about him, and to mak als mony freindis as he could get. Aluayes the lord Gordoun cam over to the Old toun upone Sunday, hard devotion, stayit in George Middiltoun's hous all nicht. He rode to Stralochie upone the morn, returnit bak upone Wednesday to the same hous. He desirit the laird Drum, the laird of Stralochie, the laird of Wdny, and the laird of Kemnay, to go speik the marques, and see if he wold receive his sone and mak him welcum; whiche he refusit simpliciter, except he wold send a note wuder his hand quyting and disclameing the Covenant and suche service he had wundertakin, whiche the young lord could not credible do, becaus he had alreddie suorne and subscribed the Covenant in Edinbrughe befor he cam heir. Aluayes the maist the marques culd be movit to do wes, to give him his hous in Old Abirdene to duell in, and burne the peites led standing in the clois; and let him self provide for plenishing, and his owne mantenans for his sustentatioun, as pleisit him best to do. And albeit the said young lord thought hard of this ordour, yit he is forsit and compellit to accept of his fatheris offer, and duelt in his fatheris hous, as ye fall heir. It wes this last Covenant the marques wes offendit at, quhilk his sone had subscribed.

Upone the first of November oure soveraigne lordis Sessioun sat down for administratioun of justice, as all uther inferior Judicatoreis did; bot the Sessioun, be found of trumpet, wes ordanit to rys upone the 23 of December, to the effect men might be moir eselie raisit and lifted, and to sit down agane the 16 of Januar 1644, (bot no proces against suche as hapnit to be with the army,) quhilk day it sat down agane, and wes prorogat to the 2 of Februar.

Upone Saterdag 11 November, James Con in Knokkiemill wes brocht in to Abirdene be the schirref of Banf, callit the laird of Birkinbog. He had been takin and wardit in the tolbuith of Banf nyne weikis abefoir for his religioun onlie, being ane excommunicat papist, and that day wes convoyit in to Abirdene, quhair he wes wairdit in the tolbuith and deliverit to Mr. Williame Davidfone schirref deput. He remanit thair whill the 17 of November, and then wes transportit be the schirref deput to the schirref of the Mernis, and so furth from schire to schire, whill he wes brocht to Edinbrughe, quhair he wer receavit and wairdit.

Upone the 16 of November, thair came to Abirdene ane baillie of Edinbrughe, with ane deacon, who caufit publish ane Edict at the kirk dur of Old Abirdene upone Sunday the 19 of November, fummounding oure elderis and parochineris to compeir befoir the Committee of the Assemlie at Edinbrughe the sext day of December nixt, to heir and fie Mr. Williame Strathauchin oure minister transplantit fra this kirk to Edinbrughe to serve in the ministrie thair; and him self wes also fummoundit to that day, to whome thay gave also ane letter direct to him from the Generall Assemlie Committee. Thir Commiffioneris hard him preiche the fairfaid Sunday, and but moir ado with fessioun or presbitrie rode fouth agane. Quhairupone Mr. Thomas Gordoun at Kethokismilne ane elder, and Mr. James Sandylandis commoun procurator for the Kingis Colledge, (becaus our minister wes ane stipendarie minister, put in be the said Colledge to serve at oure kirk, out of the deanrie of Abirdene annexit to the same Univerfite) wes sent fouth to the Committee of the said Assemlie at Edinbrughe, with ane ampill commiffioun subscrivit be the parochin and memberis of the Colledge, and labourit so as oure minister gat libertie to hyde at home, to the contentment of him self and of his flock; for he had wrettin ane plane refusall to go to Edinbrughe, and sent ane ampill commiffioun to appeall fra the Committee of the Kirk to the Generall Assemlie enfewing, if thay did not prevaill, as happelie thay did.

Ye hard befoir, how the erl of Antrim wes trecherouflic takin be Monro in Ireland. He wes straitlie wairdit and keipit, be tour, or nicht and day about, be his capitane. Now it fell capitane Wallas ane gryte puritane to keip him, who wes als gryte ane papist. He had one Gordoun to be his livetennand, who wes sone to Sir Alexander Gordoun, and uncle to the now erl of Sutherland. This capitane Wallas with his livetennand had also ane strong guard about the erl of Antrim, in ane strong castell. Bot this livetennand Gordoun craftelie convoyit wp unespyit in his breikis certane towis, be the quhilk the erl escaipit and wan frielie away, to Wallas' gryte greif; and the livetennand follout and fled also. His escaip wes wrocht in October, quhair-at Major Monro leuch not a word.

About the 18 of November, divers newis cam to Abirdene, sic as, upone the 15 of September, the kingis admirall Sir Johne Peningtoun had takin 6 ritche prises of the parliamentis schippis cuming from the Indianes: That Follouit amonges thame ane meiting at Peblis, about 40 nobles, knightis, barronis ; amonges whome wes the marques of Hammiltoun. It wes thair ressonit, that since the countrie wes upone raising of ane army, whidder or not thay fould go to armes to impud thair ryfing or going to England aganis the king. Hammiltoun ressonit agaisnt thair ryfing at all. It gois to voiceing, and, be pluralitie of voices, found, No man fould be raisit aganes the countrie. The erll of Traquhair, being thair with the rest, askit Hammiltoun whidder or not he had given assureans to the king that Scotland fould not raise armes. He anfuert, he had given assureans to his Majestie, bot for the last ssummer. Aluayes this meiting dissolvit without moir ado, and the erll of Traquhair with ane uther lord rode thairfra post to the king.

About this tyme, this marques be the kingis patent wes creat Duke of Hammiltoun, and set him self to follow the erll of Traquhair to court, as ye may heirefter see, who had biddin fra the king in Scotland whilft he wes in gryte distres in England sen _____, as ye may see befoir.

In this moneth of November, thair cam to Abirdene ane Doctor Pont, who had sum stage playis, quhilk drew the people to behold the sport ; syne upone the stage sold certane balmes, oyllis, and uther phisicall oyntments, quhairof he maid gryte gane. Thairefter he went north to uther burrowis and did the like.

Upone the 22 of November, the lord Gordoun cam out of Drum (quhair he had been lodget the nicht befoir) to the Croves, whair certane freindis met him whome he had wrettin for, and he wes about 100 hors. He cam ryding throw the Old toun to New Abirdene to hold the Committee according to the last act. He went in at the Justice Port, and rode up throw the streit quhill he lichtit at Mr. Alexander Reid's hous in the Gallowget. The erll Marfchall cam not to this Committee, as wes expectit. Aluayes the lord Gordoun, efter his lichting, went down to the Lower Counsal-hous, and had sum confrens with the lairdis of Drum, Fedderet, Kernuk, Kemnay, and sum utheris of the Committee. The provest was thair also. In the meintyme Mr. Androw Cant, minister, cam up to the Counsal-hous, and presentit to the lord Gordoun the Covenant to be subscribed, and to all the rest, quhilk willinglie thay did, except the lairds of Drum and Fedderit, who said, it wes sufficient to subscribe at thair owne parochie churchis and not in Abirdene at thair Committee. Mr. Androw went to the dur with his ansuer. Aluaies the lord Gordoun and sum barronis of the Committee stayit holding thair meitings, Thuirsdlay, Friday, Setterday. This uncouth Act, fears wnderstandabill, bred gryte fear and perturbatioun amonges the kingis loyall subjectis; bot howsoever thir trouperis wes levyed in uther schires, thay gat small obedience heir, as eftir do appeir, pairtlie by the Erll Marischallis miscontentment anent the divisioun, alledgeing the lord Gordoun to have gottin moir nor he gat, and pairtlie becaufe he kepit not the Committees with the lord Gordoun and the rest, and pairtlie by the marques of Huntlyis ryfing, as ye fall heirefter sie. Sie also at the first of Februar 1644 anent ane Act for raising of men and armes.

Now ye hard befor, of the marques or rather duke Hammiltoun, how he wes to follow the erll of Traquhair to Court. Thair wes ane prettie slicht devyfit to mak him to be the moir welcum to the king; whiche wes, the Estaites resolved to have this Covenant fuorne and subserivit throw all Scotland; amonges the rest, thay desire this duke and his brother the erll of Lanerk, secretar in Scotland and of the Scottis counfall at England, to fueir and subserive this Covenant, quhilk thay both simulatie refusit. Quhairupone the Committee of Estaites als deceitfullie gave ordour to thair awin good-brother the erll of Lyndesay presentlie to mell with the Duke's estaite, landes, and leivings, for his disobedience, and to mell with the dewis and commoditeis of the signet pertening to his brother, as secretar fairfaid, and that but proces, horning, forfaltrie, or uther fummondis as wes usit aganes uther non subscribantes; to the effect thay might schaw the king how thay war handlit for refusing to subscribe the Covenant, as his Majestie had expresse forbiddin his good subjectis to do, thairby to insinuat them moir and moir in his Hienes favour. Bot this wes a schoirt cloik in the eies of the beholderis, for thair mother wes drawing wp and dreilling foldiouris in the Duke's absence upone his estait and rentis als buffie as if scho had bein ane man, notwithstanding the famen wes appointit to be ingatherit be the foirfaid erll of Lyndfay. Aluayes the Duke and his brotheris doinges ar moir and moir discoverit ; in the meintyme thay getting this cloak of excufe, to schow the king how the Committee of Estaites had bereft them of their rentis, as is formerlie said. And thus the Duke with his brother weill convoyit, havinge stoir of moneyis, takis journey about the last of November and to England go thay, of whom ye fall heir moir heirefter.

About the 27 of November, Letteris of Intercommoning publisht at the marcat cros of Abirdene, at the instans of Mr. Alexander Joffray, Alexander and John Joffrayis his fonis, aganes the laird of Haddoche ; and publisht thair-efter at the kirkis of Meithlik, Fyvie, Tarves, and Belly, the marques of Huntlie's awin paroche kirk of the Bog. Likeas he the said marques wes chargit be ane messer, be virtue of the saidis Letteris, not to intercommoun with Haddoche, help nor supplie him ; quhairat the marques wes discontent, and thir charges did no good, as efter ye fall heir. The laird of Haddoche culd get no peace except he payit the foirfaid fyne of 20,000 merkis ; 15,000 merkis to the publict, and 5,000 merkis to the Joffrayis. He, feing this rigorous dealing, and that he hard the Estaites war to send forces to uplift the same perforce, went about legallie to defend himself, and maid ane Assignatioun of his haill goodis, geir, debtis, founnes of money and utheris pertaining till him to his cusing Gilbert Gordoun of Knaven. Sie moir heirefter.

Ye hard befoir, how the lord Gordoun rode to Lessinoir to vifeit his father-fister. He past thairfra to Strathbogie ; bot the marques wes flittit to the Bog, making preparatioun for the mareage of his dochter ladie Marie with Alexander Irving the young laird Drum, and in the meintyme wes furneshing the place of Achindoun with all necessaeres. The lord Gordoun lodgit in Tullifoull, and stayit no longer thair, onlie exhorting the Strathbogie men to be in reddines upone thair owne perrell, and so rode his way, being in mal-grace with his father ; aluaies he returnit to Abirdene.

Upone Thuirfday 7 December, the young laird Drum foirfaid wes mareit to the foirfaid lady Marie Gordoun with gryte solempntie, and mirth and myrrines aneuche in the Bog at thair brydell ; but the lord Gordoun wes not at his sifteris brydell, throw miscontentment betuixt his father and him.

Upone Wednesfday the 6 of December, Gilbert Brek, ane of the toune officaris, caufit bring ane barne borne to him of his wyfe called Silver to the lectur lesson, quhair Mr. Johne Rew minister had taucht, to be baptesteit :

bot becaufe the barne wes not brocht to him when he wes bapteifing fun uther barnes he wold not gif baptime to this young infant; quhairupone the fimple man wes forfit to bring bak his barne unbapteisit fra the kirk to his awin hous. The wyf lying in childbed, heiring hir barne wes not bapteisit, wes fo angrie, that scho turned her face to the wall, and throw plane disple-four deceifit immediatlie, and the barne both or the morne. Like as the mother and the barne in her oxfter wes both bureit togidder. Lamentable to fie how the people is thus abusit! Ye may fie befoir, of the like abuse, quhair ane barne deit but baptime.

Thir lectur lessonis wes brocht in be Mr. Androw Cant, upone Wednsday and Frydday weiklie, in place of the evening prayeris, whiche many people thocht no war nor thir lessonis. Thir lecturs had no prayer; bot ane psalme fung at the begining, and ane prayer at the ending. This forme wes brocht in for to mak thair stipeud better. Like as ilk minister had 500 merkis yeir- lie of augmentatioun.

Thus is this noveltie brocht in, upone the toune's expens, quhair the evening prayer wes usit befoir, and better service done be the ministeris then nor now.

The Estaites ar buffie to caus everie nobillman fueir and subscribe this Covenant; and siche as refusit wer summoundit to compeir befoir the nixt parliament or befoir the Committee of the Estaites of parliament, wuder the pane of forfaltrie. Strange to fie forfaltrie without auchtoritie of ane king!

About the first of December, word cam to Aberdene that the erll of Lauthan wes takin in England at the kingis command, for going to France, and negotiating with the Protestantis thair for help and support of oure covenant-eris and uther unlauchfull causis, as wes reportit; for the quhilk he wes committit to strait priffoun, as ye have befoir, and thairefter put to libertie.

Upone Sunday 10 December, the women of our parochin of Sanct Maucher, efter fermon, causit hald wp thair handis and fueir to the maintenance of the religioun presentlie profesit in Scotland, and to abyd be the Covenant.

Like as at the same kirk dur Letteris of Intercomouning wes publishit aganes the laird of Haddoche, at the Joffreyis instans, to mak him odious; quhilk did litle good, as heirefter do appeir.

Now the lord generall Leslie is fast growing to ane heid, and hes convenit about 20,000 men, quhairof thair is 3,000 hors, bag and baggage, weil armit with feild peices, fivaden fedderis, and all ingyntis of warr necessar; and, about the day of December, began his marche touardis Newcastle; and in the meintyme foldiouris ar daylie raifit and fent efter the army, for the better frethning thairof, as ye may fie heirefter. He had the marques of Argyle prefident of the army, the erll of Lyndfay, the lord Balmyrrinoche, with divers utheris nobles, capitanes and commandris in his army. Yet the treutlis, he had bot 15 regimentis of hors and foot into England, and 5 regimentis fhortlie follout him, amounting to about 10,000 men, by fic as wes raifit thairefter.

Ye hard befor of the lord Gordoun; he comes to Abirdene, and, upone Tufday 19 of December, thair wes a Committee of Warr haldin in the lauche Counfal-hous of the tolbuith be the erll Marfchall, the faid lord Gordoun, the laird Drum fchirref, the lairdis of Kernuk, Glenkindie and divers uther baronis, with the proveft and balleis of Abirdene. David Gordon of Knaven compeirit befor this Committee, and product ane Affignatioun maid to him be the laird of Haddoche of his hail moveable goodis, geir, debtis, foumes of monei, and maid intinnatioun thairof to them and tuke infrumentis thairupone in tua notaris handis. In the meintyme the foirfaid laird Drum, fchirref, (as he had gottin ordour fra the Eftaites) caufit ane meffinger charge the foirfaid erll Marfchall, lord Gordoun, and hail perfones of the Committee perfonallie convenit, to rys, concur and affift him as fchirref of Abirdene to ferche, feik, tak and apprehend the faid laird of Haddoche; and falyeing thairof, to mell and intromett with his landis, rentis, goodis and geir, conforme to the letteris raifit thairanent. At this charge, the Committee gois to ane confultatioun, and refolves to fend over to the Committee of Eftaites the coppie of the foirfaid Affignatioun, with the Intinnatioun following thairupone, and to tak thair advys what wes beft to be done thairanent. Thus this Committee fat Tufday and Wedinfday. Thay confiderit the rollis of the parochins of fenfibil men givin wp be fic minifteris as cam, and war found not givin wp orderlie; quhairfoir thay war commandit to give wp ane perfyt roll of all maner of man within thair parochins, betuixt 60 and 16, and continewit thair Committee of Warr to the 2 of Januar nixt 1644, and ordanit the hail minifteris to be chargit wnder the pane of 100 lib. to keip this Committee, and to bring perfect rollis within this diocie or province, in forme foirfaid. It wes alfo orderit be the Committee of Eftaites, that ilk minifter fould furneifh out ane man to this fervice, quhilk wald draw to ane thoufand men, becaufe there is 1000 minifteris; quhilk fum heir did furneifhe, utheris wes overfein; and fo diffolvit.

The Eftaites, feing the laird of Haddoche's Affignatioun, took it to be plane scorne and delufioun, and thairfoir raifit new charges aganes the laird Drum fehirref and utheris to go upone Haddoche, as ye fall fie heirefter.

Now as this Committee of Warr diffolvit, thair fittis down ane uther Committee of Valuation, for uptaking the rentis of the landis for levyng of the földiouris within this fehirrefdome. Thus, day and nicht is the poor countrie oppreff and vext but auctoritie of ane king.

Upone the 18 of December, ane Proclamatioun maid at the cros of Abirdene, chargeing the Commiffioneris of the lait parliament within the schire of Abirdene to be at Edinbrughe the thrid day of Januar nixt 1644, allweill nobles, barronis, as burrowis, to fit and cognos upone sic materis as belongit to ane parliament in the interim betuixt parliamentis, conforme to the Act of parliament.

Ye hard of befoir, how duke Hammiltoun, with his brother, took journey towardis court with ftour of moneyis, about 12 hors lead, as wes reportit. Now be the way, it is faid, his brother the erll of Lanerk went to Newcastle, quhair he had fum dealling with Sir Johne Morall governour of Newcastle, to betray the toum to oure generall Leslie. This treffoun is difcoverit, he is removit and wardit, and ane new governour put in his place. Upone this dealling, and uther reffones, it is faid the duke and his brother wes convoyit to Oxfurde pollitiquelie. At his lichtung, he intendit to fie the king; bot he wes stayit be Sir Jacob Afhly, appointit to tak him and his brother bothe. And upone the morne, he (without ficht of the king) wes had to ane ftrong hold, and committit to clois priffoun in the caftell of Wodftok, and thairfra tranfportit to Cornewall. It is faid, his brother wes alfo wardit, bot wan away be ane flicht, and to the parliament of England (wanting ane king) gois he for his refuge; a figne fuirlie of a guiltie confciens. Thus wes oure royall king fervit be Hammilton, and his brother who wes his fecretar. From England he cumis thairefter to Scotland, is maid welcum, and he gois on in fervice with the reft of the Covenanteris (hard for the king, he being his fecretar, as faid is,) with all his micht, bot duke Hammiltoun is tranfportit to Bristow.

Upone the 19 and 20 dayis of December, doctor Goold, principall of our College, gois on moft maliciouflic, and caufis caft down the ftaitlie wall standing within the bifchopis clois, curiouflic booldit with hewin ftane, and took the ftanes down to the Colledge for sic vane ufes as he thoct expedient, sic wes the iniquitie of this tyme; and brak down the aftler wark about the turretis; raifed the pavement of the hall, and caufit lead them down to lay in the flure of the commoun fcooll.

About this time, Sir Gilbert Meinzeis of Petfodellis leaves the countrie and gois to France, feiring the trubles to cum. He purchest Letteris patent fra the Committee of Estaites at Edinbrughe to go, upone condition his men, tennentis and fervandis sould rys with the publick, and his ground and rentis be lyabill to loane and taxationis, and uther levie moneys. His ladie followis him.

Upone Thuirfday 21 December, Mr. Williame Douglas minister at Forge, who wes chofin profeffour at the last Provinciall Affemblic, gave in Thesis in the collage kirk of Old Abirdene. He defendit the famen aganes all oppofitioun of the bretheren thair convenit, sic as Mr. David Lyndsfay perfone of Balhelvie moderatour to the nixt Provinciall Affemblic, doctor Goold, Mr. Johne Rew, Mr. John Logie, Mr. Robert Cheyne and fum utheris; for the aucht presbitreis of Abirdene wes warnit to fend in tuo or thrie commissiouneris out of ilk presbitry to have keipit this day, quhairof fiun cam, utheris cam not. In respect quhairof, the said Mr. Williame Douglas is ordanit to cum agane upone the 24 of Januar 1644, to abyde his last tryellis, and the commissiouneris of ilk presbitrie ordanit to be present; quhilke wes done, and he admittit profeffour in ane more worthie manis place unjustlie put thairfra be the tirrany of this kirk, quhairat he never offendit, bot glaidlie began to repair his duelling hous, quhilke he had mortifeit to the profeffour, and removit thairfra, as ye fall heir, to the gryte grudge and greif of the toun of Old Abirdene, amongis the poor quhairof he wes most charitabill.

Monday the 25 of December, and good Yool day, no wark wrocht in Old Abirdene, nor yet upone Sanct Johne's day, nor Sanct Stephanis day, for all the thundering the minister could do against it; and upone 27 December, the Old toun colliginaris gat aucht dayis play, whidder the maisteris wold or not.

Upone Sunday 24 of December, the communioun given heir in Old Abirdene to the colliginaris who war absent fra the communioun abefoir, and to sic perfones as war feik and unhabill to cum. Thay war about ane burde full of sic people.

Ye hard of the down fitting of oure soveraigne lordis Seffioun. Upone Setterday 23 December, it wes raifit be found of trumpet at the cros of Edinbrughe, and ordanit to fit down the 16 of Januar nixt, to the effect men might be haiftellie liftit and had to the Boull Rod; bot inferiour Judicatoris wes not raifit, bot fat still adminiftring justice. Like as upone the fixtein day of Januar it fat down agane, and prorogat to the 2 of Februar, to fit down that day.

Upone Sunday 31 December, it wes declairit out of pulpit, that the Committee of the Kirk at Edinbrughe had ordanit ane fast to be keipit upone Sunday the 7 of Januar 1644, and upone Wedinſday thairefter, throw out all the parochie churches of Scotland, For a happie ſucces to oure army, 2. The danger of religion, 3. The fynis of the land, 4. For a bliſſing upone oure Commiſſioneris travelles lying at England. Quhilk fast wes ſolempnie keipit the foirfaidis dayis and the Covenant red out upon the Sunday.

Upone Tuyſday the 26 of December, Mr. James Guthrie miniſter at Urquhart, Mr. Alexander Spens perſone of Birny, and Mr. Alexander Symmer perſone of Duffus, cam to the Bog (be directioun of the preſbitrie of Elgin); and, in name of the Committee of the Generall Aſſembly at Edinbrughe, deſyrit the marques of Huntly to fueir and ſubſcrive the lait Covenant. He anſuerit, he wold not ſubſcrive any ſic Covenant without the kingis command; for he had ones ſubſcrivit ane Covenant at his Majeſteis command abefoir, and he wold ſubſcrive no more but his auctoretie. Qubairupone the thrie miniſteris took thair leive, and wreit bak his anſuer to the foirſaid Committee. Thus, this noble man is daylie poyntit at and can not get reſt, quhilk bred muche trubbill, as eſter ye fall heir.

About this tyme word cam to Abirdein, that Mr. Pyme, that arch traittoure in the Lower Houſe, wes departit this life in London, whiche wes to be lamentit that he had deit befoir he had bein hangit to the death.

Many newis wes daylie cuming to Abirdene of the kingis victoreis over his English enemeis, him ſelf lying at Oxfurde, wyntering the cold ſeffoun, quhair all wynter he baid ſtill: that he had indictit ane parliament to be holden at Oxfurde in Januar 1644; and to that effect ſent out Proclamationis to the nobles and peeris of parliament to cum to ther owne places, to whome he grantit full and frie remiſſioun for all byganes, except ſum arch traittouris ſpeciallie denominat, whome his Majeſtie wold on nawayes remit. Upone this gracious Proclamatioun many nobles and peeris cam in to the king, and wes weill received.

Gryte diligens and expeditioun maid throw all the ſchires of Scotland, for raiſing of men to ſend eſter oure army, who is now lying at Morpet, haveing ſindrie nobill men, ſic as the marques of Argyle preſident of the army, the erll of Lyndſay the lord of Balmyrrinoche, the erll of Eglintoun, the viſcount of Dudop, and divers utheris collonellis and captanis. Sie heirefter.

Thair wes liftit out of the toun of Edinbrughe 1,200 men, out of Dundie nyne ſcoir men, out of Brechin and Montrois ane hundreth and ten men, and out of Abirdene thair wes appointit to be raifit sex scoir men with thair captane and officiares.

Thair cam out ane printed Piece, daitit the 12 of June 1643, beiring ane Ordinans of the Lordis and Commouns in parliament for the calling of ane assembly of lerned and godlie divynes to be consulted with by the parliament, for the satting of the government and liturgie of the church of England, &c.; declairing also that the present church government by archbischopis, bischopis, thair chancelouris, commissareis, deanis, deanis and chepdouris, archdeaconis, and other ecclesiastik officiares depending upone hierarchy, is evill, and justlie offensive and burthenfome to the kingdome, &c.; and that therefore thay ar resolved, that the samen salbe takin away, and that suche a government salbe satid in the church, as salbe most agrieabill with Godis holy word, and most apt to procure and preserve the peace of the church at home, and neirer agreement with the Church of Scotland, &c.

1644. Ye hard of the Committee of Warr holdin at Abirdene. The erll Marfchall rode to Dunnotter, and from that returnit to Innerugie. The lord Gordoun rode out of Abirdene liknaies, and returnit back, upone the first of Januar, to his lodging at Mr. Alexander Reidis hous, quhair he stayit whill the 11 of Januar. Upone the thrid of Januar he held ane Committee of Warr with sun baronis; bot the erll Marfchall cam not to this Committee. It sat still whill the 11 of Januar. The ministrie cam in, and produceit, vnder thair handis, and be vertue of thair othis, the Rollis of the fenfibill men betuixt 60 and 16 in thair parochins. Thair wes befor this Committee findrie uther materis agitat, and so dissolvit upone the foirsaid ellevint of Januar. It wes said the erll Marfchall miskenit thir Committees, becaufe he had no contentment in the divisoun.

Upone the ellevint of Januar, being Thuirfday, the lord Gordoun took wp hous in the Old town in his fatheris place. He gat sun peites befor him, bot he behovit to plenish and mak provisioun upone his awin purs for all uther necessaies.

Upone the fourt of Januar, ane Committee holdin upone the valuationis of the schire of Abirdene for listing of men, as ye may heirefter sie at the first of Februar. The schirrefdome of Abirdene wes valued to ane hundreth thousand merkis, quhair of Abirdene fould pay aughtene thousand and four hundreth merkis.

Upone Sunday 7 Januar, ane fast preceisslie keipit, and upone Wedinfday thairefter. The minister went not out of pulpit whill the people reconvenit to the efternone's sermon upone the found of the henneft bell allanerlie; and no bliffing wes said efter the foirnone's sermon upone Sunday, whill first the efternone's preiching wes done, and so one bliffing servit for both sermonis. The Covenant wes red out upone Sunday, declaring and exponeg the samen nowayes to be agaiust the king, bot agaiust the papistis about him. Thus, the minister seimit to persuade the people to beleive this oppositioun; bot thay wold never in thair hairtes be persuadit thairof.

In New Abirdene, sic merchandis as wes at sea and now cum hame subfcrivit the said Covenant, upon the said Sunday, upone thair kneis with upliftit handis.

The laird Drum, schirref principall of Abirdene, is chargit with Letteris direct out in the Kingis name, (bot God kenis if thay war with his Majestie's will,) to charge the barronis of the schire to conveyn, and the toune of Abirdene, to rais fourfcoir four hors men for the most pairt, and tua commanderis, to go ferche, seik, tak and apprehend the laird of Haddoche, or to tak his hous and mell with his rentis. Conforme to the quhilk charges, the laird Drum causis charge the toune of Abirdene to rais thair men, and wreit to findrie barronis, to meit him. And so, upone the 17 day of Januar, the laird Drum merches out of Abirdene, haveing in his company the saidis company of men and commanderis, with Mr. Alexander Joffray, Johne and Alexander Joffray his sones, weill armit altogidder with fuordis, pistollis, carrabins, and muskatis, being for the most pairt all hors men. And at the grein of Wdny, thair meites the schirref, the lairdis of Pittodrie, Monymusk, Echt, Fedderet, Wdny, Skeyne, and divers utheris barronis, with whome wes Mr. Williame Davidfone schirref deput. Thay go to consultatioun, and sendis befor thame the said schirref deput, with Johne Spens Rothesay herauld, David Kempt messinger, and tua notaris, with commissioun to charge sic as wes within to rander the hous in the kingis name; and the schirref followit with his company. Conforme to the quhilk commissioun thay went forduard, and chargit them within being about 40 men to rander the hous, being bot lauche bigging, quhairin Haddoche duelt. It wes answerit, this hous pertenit not to Haddoche, bot to his sone, to whome he had disponit the samen, and sua could not with resfone rander the sone's hous for his father's fault; and for his rentis, goodis and geir, thay war assignit to David Goudoun, and laifullie intimat. Then thay chargit thame to mak oppin yetis, quhairby thay nicht ferche, feek, tak and apprehend that rebell the laird of Haddoche. Thay anferit, he wes not within ; and, for thair better asfureans, thay keist w^p the yettis and durris, and fufferit none to enter bot the foirfaid fchirref deput, Rothfay herauld, David Kempt meffinger, with tua notaris. Thay maid a buffines in ferching the houffis ; bot miffing him thay took instrumentis in the notaris handis upone thair diligens. Thairefter thay drank kyndlie and pairtit in peace, and cam to the fchirref and his complices ftanding hard befyde, and told what thay had done. In the mein tyme thair wes fchot fra the place of Kelly, hard at thair heilles, ten or tuelf hagbutis of found, quhilke fleyit all thir people, and fceatterit thame fo, that ilk man took the get returning home but more ado.

It was faid, Haddoche him felf, with about 40 hors, wes lying nar hand at the bak of ane know beholding the fport ; bot kythit not that day.

The Joffrayis payit for meit and drink cuming and going to Abirdene for the toune's men onlie, and gat littil fervice.

The fchirref, feing thir men brak rankis at the fclot of thir hagbutis of found, refolvit to go no forder on, bot to wreit to the Eftaites and fchaw his diligens, as indeid he did ; and fo this mater ceafit. It wes faid, the marques of Huntlie fent Williame Gordoun of Arradoull, Johne Gordoun of Colpnay-fcheillis, and Patrik Leslie ane notar to thir Joffrayis and people of Abirdene, defyryng thame not to cum out aganis Haddoche efter fic ane violent maner ; bot he gat no contentit anfuer. Strange, in this countrie, to fie the marques of Huntlyis defire fo vilipendit with fuch people ! Bot forrow haiftellie follouit upone this pryde, bred throw the ambition of thir burges people.

Upone Wedinfday the foirfaid 17 day of Januar, David Kempt, meffinger, chargit the faid laird of Drum fchirref principall of Abirdene, to convocat the kingis leiges, and go ferche, feik, tak and apprehend the marques of Huntly for his difobedience to the Eftaites. Like as the fchirref of Banf wes chargit to tak him alfo, if he were duelling within that fchirrefdome ; of whome ye may fie heirefter. Bot the fchirref of Abirdene had ane good excufe, becaufe the marques duelt in the Bog out with the fchirrefdome of Abirdene ; and fo maid no ferche nor feiking for this noble and moft loyall fubject in Scotland, as ye may perceave by his owne Declarationis heirefter. Bot he is fo abusit by the tirrany of thir new cum Eftaites, as he could nather get peace nor ref, bot charges daylie thretning him to cum in thair willis and follow thair counfallis contrair to the king and his owne confciens, or utheruayis to lois his libertie, his landis, his rentis, and all that he had ; for thir charges bure no les nor to mell with his estait, if thay mist him self, becaufe the Estaites thoct he wes not able to stand out aganes thair pouer, and that he wold be forfit to flie and leave the fame. Quhilk confidderit be the marques, contrair to thair expectatioun he usit an mein for his awin preservatioun, as efter ye fall heir, and wold not suffer the lord Gordoun to lift ane man within his dominioun.

Upone Fridday 19 Januar, ane Committee holdin in Abirdene be the lord Gordoun and sum barronis, bot Marfchall wes not thair, for lifting of moneyis to rais fouldiouris.

Thair wes ane ordinance maid, that none of the Committee fould remove out of Abirdene whill materis war fatled, and so thay fat still whill the first of Marche.

Ye hard how his Majestie lay all winter at Oxfurde. It is said, upone the 20 day of Januar he indicted ane parliament, as is thairin contenit. Strange to sie the King to have ane parliament, and the countrie to have another parliament, both fitting in England !

Oure army now being in England, ane Missive wes writtin from generall Lesly, the marques of Argyll, the erll of Lyndfay, and remanent of the Committee of our Scottissh army encampit at Morpet, 12 myllis distant from Newcastle, dait about the 25 of Januar 1644, and direct to Sir Thomas Glenhame, now governour of Newcastle in the place of the deposit traittour Sir Johne Morall, with ane uther letter writtin from thame to the gentrie. The which letteris, nor coppeis thair of, I did not sie ; bot the coppie of the ansuer maid thairto, comprehending the substans of the saidis letteris wrettin fra our camp, may fullie informe the groundis of their uncouthfull desires and unreasonabill demandis. The coppie of the governour of Newcastle's letter, and gentrie wnder subscribeand, and now coppeit, is thus :

The Governor of Newcastle's Letter to the Committee of the Scottish Army.

My Lord,

I have this day received yours, together with one to the gentlemen of the county, and having communicated with them, we return you this answer ; That without the sight of that letter we could not have been induced, by any flying reports, to believe, that the Scottish nation, or the prevailing party for the present in that nation, would have attempted an invasion of England, so contrary to the laws of God, of nations, of both kingdoms, and especially to the late Act of Pacification ; so opposite to their allegiance and gratitude to his Majesty, to that neighbourly love which they pretend, to that discreet care which they should have of their own safety. We could not otherwise have imagined, that they, who, by his Majesty's goodness, enjoy a settlement of their Church and State according to their own desires, should needlessly and ingratelously embroil themselves in a business that concerns them not, forfeit their rights, disoblige his Majesty, and hazard the loss of their present happiness.

No order of any Committee or Committees whatsoever of men or angels can give them power to march into the bowels of another kingdom to make offensive war against their natural sovereign, upon the empty pretence of evil counsellors, who could never yet be named. And as for the English agents, we cannot believe them to be any commissioners lawfully authorized, either by the Parliament, or by the two Houses, or yet by the House of Commons, whence so many of the members are expelled by partial votes, so many banished by seditious tumults, so many voluntarily absent themselves out of conscience; where desperation, or want of opportunity to depart, or fear of certain plunder, are the chiefest bonds which hold the little remnant together from dissipation; where the venerable name of Parliament is made a stale to countenance the pernicious counsels and acts of a close committee.

For subjects to make foreign confederacies without their sovereign's assent, to invade the territories of their undoubted king, to go about by force to change the laws and religion established, is gross treason without all contradiction; and in this case, it argues strongly who have been the contrivers and fomenters of all our troubles. No covenant whatsoever, or with whomsoever, can justify such proceedings, or oblige a subject to run such disloyal courses. If any man, out of ignorance, fear, or credulity, have entered into such a covenant, it binds him not, except it be to repentance. Neither is there any such necessity as is pretended of your present posture; your selves cannot alledge, that you are any way provoked by us; neither are we conscious to ourselves of the least intention to molest you.

Those ends, which you propose, are plausible indeed to them who do not understand them; the blackest designs did never want the same pretences. If by the Protestant Religion you intend our Articles, which are the publick Confession of our Church, and our Book of Common Prayer established by Act of Parliament, you need not trouble your selves, we are ready to defend them with our blood; if it be otherwise, it is plain to all the world, that it is not the preservation, but the innovation of religion which you seek, however by you styled Reformation. And what calling have you to reform us by the sword? We do not remember that ever the like indignity was offered by one nation to another, by a lesser to a greater. That those men who have heretofore pleaded so vehemently for liberty of conscience against all oaths and subscriptions should now assume a power to themselves, by arms, to impose a law upon the consciences of their fellow subjects. A vanquished nation would scarce endure such terms from their conquerors. But this we are sure of, that this is the way to make the Protestant Religion odious to all monarchs, Christian and Pagan.

Your other two ends, that is, the honour and happiness of the King, and the publick peace and liberty of his dominions, are so manifestly contrary to your practise, that we need no other motives to withdraw you from such a course, as tends so directly to make his Majesty contemptible at home and abroad, and to fill all his dominions with rapine and blood.

In an army all have not the same intentions. We have seen the articles agreed upon, and those vast sums and conditions contained in them, as if our countrymen thought that England was indeed a well that could never be drawn dry. And whatsoever the intentions be, we know right well what will be the consequence; though, if it were otherwise, no intention or consequent whatsoever can justify an unlawful action; and therefore you do wisely to decline all disputation about it. It is an easie thing to pretend the cause of God, as the Jews did the temple of the Lord; but this is far from those evident demonstrations which you often mention, but never make.

Consider that there must be an account given to God of all the blood which shall be shed in this quarrel. The way to prevent it is not by such insinuations; but to retire before the sword be untheathed, or the breach be made too wide. You cannot think that we are grown such tame creatures to desert our religion, our laws, our liberties, our estates, upon command of foreigners; and to suffer our selves and our posterity to be made beggars and slaves without opposition. If any of ours shall join with you in this action, we cannot look upon them otherwise than as traitors to their king, vipers to their native country, and such as have been plotters or fomenters of this design from the beginning. But if misinformation or fear have drawn any of yours ignorantly or unwillingly into this cause, we desire them to withdraw themselves at last, and not to make themselves accessaries to that deluge of mischief, which this second voyage is like to bring upon both kingdoms.

Upone Tuisday 30 Januar, the majestrates of Abirdene preffit and violentlie took upon the night 28 perones of the craftis, prenteiffis, and servandis, to help to mak wj thair number of sexfoir fouldiouris with ane capitane and ten officiares. Sie heirefter.

About the samen tyme, thair cam to Abirdene ane coppie of ane letter from certane English Peeris wrettin to oure Scottissh army, quhilk coppeit is thus:

Letter from certain English Peers to the Committee of the Scottish Army.

Our very good Lords,

If for no other reason, yet that posterity may know we have done our duties, and not fate still whilst our brethren of Scotland were transported with a dangerous and fatal misunderstanding, that the resolution now taken among them for an expedition into England is agreeable to their obligation by the late Treaty, and to the wishes and desires of this kingdom expressed by the two Houses of Parliament, we have thought it necessary to let your Lordships know, that if we had dissentied from that Act, it could never have been made a law. And when you have examined and considered the names of us who subscribe this letter (who we hope are too well known to your lordships and both kingdoms, to be suspected to want affection to religion or to the laws and liberty of our country, for the defence and maintenance whereof we shall always hold our lives a cheap sacrifice); and when you are informed that the Earl of Arundel and Thanet, and the Lords Stafford, Stanhope, Coventry, Goring, and Craven are in parts beyond the seas, and the Earls of Chesterfield, Westmoreland, and the Lord Montague of Boughton under restraint at London, for their loyalty and duty to his Majesty and the kingdom; your Lordships will easily conclude how very few now make up the peers at Westminster, there being in truth not above 25 lords present or privy to these counsels, or being absent, consenting, or concurring with them, whereas the House of Peers consists of above an hundred, besides minors and recusant lords, neither of which keep us company in this address to your Lordships.

How we and the major part of the House of Commons came to be absent from thence is so notorious to all the world, that we believe your Lordships cannot be strangers to it: how several times, during our sitting there, multitudes of the meanest sort of people, with weapons not agreeing to their condition or custom, in a manner very contrary and destructive to the privileges of Parliament, filled up the way between both Houses, offering injuries both by words and actions unto, and laying violent hands upon several members, and crying out many hours together against the established laws in a most tumultuous and menacing way: how no remedy would be submitted to for preventing these tumults. After which and other unlawful and unparliamentary actions, many things, received and settled upon solemn debate in the House of Peers, were again, after many threats and menaces, refused, altered, and determined, contrary to the law and custom of Parliaments. And so, many of us withdrew our selves from thence, where we could not sit, speak, and vote with honour, freedom, and safety, and are now kept from thence for our duty and loyalty to our sovereign; and must therefore protest against any invitation which hath been made to our brethren of Scotland to enter the kingdom with an army, the same being as much against the desires as against the duty of the Lords and Commons of England.

And we do conjure your Lordships, by our common allegiance and subjection under our gracious sovereign, by the amity and affection between the two nations, by the Treaty of Pacification (which by any such act is absolutely dissolved), and by all obligations, both divine and humane, which can preserve peace upon earth, to use your utmost endeavours to prevent the effusion of so much Christian blood, and the confusion and desolation which must follow the unjust invasion of this kingdom, which we (and we are confident all true English men) must interpret as a design of conquest, and to impose new laws upon us; and therefore your Lordships may be assured we shall not so far forget our own interest, and the honour of our nation, as not to expose our lives and fortunes in the just and necessary defence of this kingdom. But if your Lordships, in truth, have any doubts or apprehensions, that there is now, or hereafter may be, a purpose to infringe your laws or liberties from any attempt of this kingdom, we do engage our honours to your Lordships to be our selves moft religious obfervers of the Act of Pacification ; and if the breach and violation do not firft begin within that kingdom, we are confident you fhall never have caufe to complain of this. And having thus far expreffed our felves to your Lordfhips, we hope to receive fuch an anfwer from you as may be a means to preferve a right underftanding between the two nations, and lay an obligation upon us to continue

Your Lordfhips moft affectionate humble fervants,

Thair wes sum oppofitioun maid be sum toune's people of Edinbrughe aganes this ungodlie, unlauchfull, and unufuall act of Excife; bot all for nocht, the Estaites careit it. It wes also inactit, that this Excife "fould begin upone the tent day of Februar nixtocum, and to indure onlie fo long as the neceffitie of the army fall require, and at the farrest bot for ane yeir; and if the parliament at thair nixt meiting fall, in place heiroy, fynd out and appoynt a better and more expedit way to provyde money for fupplying of the armyes and paying the provifion maid to them in the interim, then this way of Excife is to ceas.

And it is heirby declarit, that the remainder of the brotherlie affiftans, the arrearis dew to the army in Ireland, and what falbe dew for mantenans of this army, and all uther founes addebtit to this kingdome by the kingdome of England being payit, and thairwith all publict debtis and burdinges of this kingdome with what falbe dew to the armyis being defrayed, the remainder thairof over and above this defrayment falbe employit for repayment of the Excife, in maner following, viz. Whatever falbe the proportioun of the Excife gottin within the toune of Edinbrughe and liberties thairof, the equall half of the famen falbe payit to the majeftratis and toune counfall for behoof of the toune; and everie uther brughe fall have repetitioun of the tua pairt of the proportioun of Excife furnellit by them; and the remainder not allowit to the brughes in maner foirfaid falbe givin proportionable for the publict ufe of the feverall fchires according to the quantitie of the Excife payit by them."

Proclamatioun at the cros of Aberdene, that this Excife fould begin the firft of August 1644 to be upliftit, and no fooner, notwithstanding of this Ordinance.

Thir Actis with the Excife I coppeit treulie from the prynt that wes sent heir to Abirdene. The godlie devys thairof laid out for ane eis to the people both of brughe and land I refer to the judicious reidar, feiming rather to delude and fcorne the countrie, nor to do them any good. Thus, is this miferabill countrie overburdenit with uncouth taxatiouns, following the foot ftepis of Holland in thair Excifes, quhilk this land wes unhabill to beir. Nor durst the countrie people complane, nather knew thay to whome thay fuld complane for redres, becaus ther king wes in no better cace nor rebellit oppinlie againft, whofe auchtoretie fould have wyflie reullit all. And furelie the people michtellie murmurit aganes thir ordouris. Sie of the proclamatioun of this Excife.

Upone the bak of this Excife followit ane uther Act of the Conventioun of Estaitis maid at Edinbrughe the firft day of Februar 1644, for putting the kingdome into a postur of defens, for strentning the Army, and provyding of Armes and Ammunition to the kingdome, coppeit fra the prynt :

And whereas the Army is now marchit into England, It is ordanit, that these in the northerne pairtis who have not gone furth in this present expeditioun salbe presentlie put furth on hors and foot, provided with armes, ammunition and baggage horfis, and all sort of furnitour, as follouis viz. It is ordanit, that the half of the number formerly appointed to cum out of the brughis, schires and divisionis thair of, in this present expedition, fall now be brocht out of the famen sufficientlie providit, hors and foot, with baggage horfis, ammunition horfis, and all uther furnitour; and to be in redlines to march upone four dayis warning; and to be levied and transported upone the taxt and loan within eche schire, if the famen be not exhausted upone the former levies; and quhair there is none of the said loan, that thay be levied and transported as the Committee of Estaitis fall direct; to be ane auxiliary supplie to the army.

Follouis ane thrid Act of the Conventioun of Estaitis of Scotland, for raising of moneysis for a present supplie to the Armyis sent into England and Ireland, maid at Edinbrughe the second of Februar 1644, coppeit fra the print, vnder the subscriptioun of the said Archibald Prymrois thair clerk.

It is ordanit, that all perones haveand money within this kingdome, or by thair credet and fuirtie can best and soonest rais money, to len the same to the Estaitis or thair Committees, for the releif of the army sent into England, and of the Scottis army in Ireland, who fall have assureans of repayment from the publict out of the moneysis dew to them by the kingdome of England to the armyis, according to the proportioun to be advanced to either of them respective or that salbe raist upone this excise, whiche the collectour and his deputis salbe bound to pay to them, out of the first of his intromission thair of, or by any uther maner of fuirtie privat or publict thay fall desire. And in case any fall desire privat fuirtie, It is heirby ordanit that the perones whom the lenneris fall desire to be bound to thame fall either oblige thame selfis to the lenneris or furnell the moneysis them selfis, and in either case fall have publict fuertie forsaid for thair releif; and the parteis thus obligit to the lenneris in a privat fuirtie fall have suche otheris of any estait that ar in the toune or schire, quhair the money is to be borrowit, joynt with them, as thay fall desire. This wes the substans of thir thrie severall Actis, one for Excise, another for men and armes, and the thrid for levyng of moneyis.

Follout efter this ane band devyfit be the Estaitis commounlie callit the Blynd band, whiche everie honest welthie man within Edinbrughe or cuming to Edinbrughe wes urgit to subscribe, and ordanit be the Estaitis to be subscrivit throw all Scotland, whairby ilk man was compellit to subscribe the samen, obligeing him to contribute to the publict good caus sic ane certane fomme of money equivalent to his estait and to the contentment of these perfones presentaris of this Blynd band and no utheruays, at sic dayes and places as wes thairin contenit.

Thus is this poor countrie daylie moir and [moir] opprest with tirranicall orderis fet down be the Estaitis without warrand of the king. Sie the nature of this band [hereafter.]

Ye hard befoir, how Mr. Williame Douglas minister at Forge wes chofen professour in that lernit, reverend manis roume, doctor Forbes of Cors. And becaufe he had mortifeit his hous in the Chaplanes to his successour without reservatioun of his awin lifrent, he caufes remove his plenifhing and bookis, quhairof he fauld pairt; deliverit the keyis, and cam wp upone the first of Februar to Johne Forbes his cusinges house, quhair he remanit, syne went over to Torrie, quhair he stayit whill ane schip suld be clair; and about the 4 of Aprile to the sea gois he for Holland, thair to remane in thir dolorous dayes. Surelie this wes ane excellent religious man, who feirit God, charitable to the poor, and ane singular scoller; yet wes put fra his calling, his country, his freindis, and all, for not subscribingoure Covenant, to the grudge and greif of the best.

The erll Marfchall for his awin reffonis rydis fouth to the Estaitis or Committee of Estaitis, and miskenit alloure Committees of Warr and Valuation holden heir in Abirdene be the lord Gordoun and utheris barronis, whair he stayit whill the secoud of Marche that he cam to Abirdene; and rode fouth upone the 4 of Februar abefoir, leaving oure Committees fitting daylie in Abirdene to the first of March.

Upone Frydday the 3 of Februar, Thomas Nicolfone burges of Abirdene, haveing Letteris of Captioun aganes sum of the laird of Clunyis tenmentis for his awin debt, sent out David Kempt messinger with ane rate of musketeiris, 18 of number, with Williame Scot thair capiten, then lying in Abirdene to be sent to the army of the toune's men. The messinger went forduard, accompaneit as said is, and took ane tenment callit John Broun. He is reskewit be sum of the lairdis fervandis; bot unhappellie is schot be thir musketeiris throw the thie, in his reskew, of the quhilk schot he instantlie deit. The laird being then in Cluny, heiring of this slauchter, cumis in upone the morne being Setterday to Abirdene, and takes thrie of thir soldiouris who wes at the deid doing, and brings thame over to his owne hous in the Old toune, and keepit thame whill Wedinsday; fyne rode, deliverit thir thrie men to Mr. Robert Reid schirref deput of Abirdene. The lord Gordoun went first to the toune; Cluny rode in the back of the toune with about 24 horse, came in at the Justice port, met the lord Gordoun at the Tolbuith stair, went up to the Tolbuith, deliverit the men, and took instrumentis thairupone. And at his incuming and outgoing the New toune soldiouris wes standing befouth the cros with thair capiten Johne Strathachin with cokkit luntis in good ordour; and if the lord Gordoun had not been thair, it might have fortit war for Cluny, becaus the toune took his doinges in evill pairt, and causit deprive Johne Forbes, and his sone James Innes, Mr. Thomas Gordoun of thair burgeschip, becaus thay convoyit the laird of Cluny for that errand, being provest of Old Abirdene, whiche the gentilmen countit litle for thair burgeschip friedome, being all present in presens of the Counfall when thay war deprivit without gryte resson.

Thomas Nicolfone, seing thir men wairdit, rydis haistellie to Edinbrughe and returnis bak to Abirdene upone 23 of Februar with warrand to put the men to libertie, and so wes done, for thay follout the rest to the army, as ye fall sie, without satisfacioun or punishing of the deid and slauchter committit. Alwaies Thomas Nicolfone had causit sunnound the laird of Clunie to compeir befor the Conventioun of Estaites for taking of thir thrie men in the kingis service; and upone Fryday 16 of Februar he rode fouth, bot howsone he cam to Edinbrughe he wes arraigned be ane ballie, and chargit to waird at the instans of Sir Thomas Nicolfone advocat for payment of 2000 merkis. Cluny produces ane protectioun with ane suspenfioun. The baillie lettis him go. Sir Thomas meinis him self to the Chancelair, and declairit he wes ane incendiarie, and mane informer of the marques of Huntlie to stand out. Quhairupone he is wairdit at Sir Thomas Nicolfone's instans, done be instigatioun of Thomas Nicolfone foirfaid, (quhairat findrie of Clunyis freindis took offens,) and remanit in waird for all he could do, whill he wes releivit by his excellence the lord marques of Montrois. Sie heirefter.

Ye hard befoir, of the ingoing of oure army to England. Thay marchit fairlie on touardis Morpet wnder Generall Leslie his excellence, with ane weil orderit army, hors and foot, of the best foot he could get throw all the kingdome. The marques of Argile wes prefident of this army. The erl of Lyndfay, the lord Balnyrrinoche, with divers utheris brave capitaines and commanderis, went also with him. He had many feild peices, pulder, ball, and armes in aboundance, with baggage and uther provisioun neecessar, haveing ane army of hors and foot of 20,000 men dragoneiris bag and baggage, sum faying les some faying moir; and went in to Morpet, within 12 myllis to Newcastle, quhair thair wes ane lettir wretten and anfuierit of the 25 of Januar, as ye have befoir.

The toun of Newcastle brynt wp the suburbis thairof, left the enemy fould tak advantage thairof; and, as wes reportit, our army had gottin the worst anes or tuys, and so mony hurt, that chirurgianis wes sent out of Edinbrughe to cure them, by and attour the chirurgianis of the camp. Sie heirefter.

Ye hard befoir, how the schirreffis of Abirdein and Banf had gottin chargeis from the Estaitis to go ferche, feik, tak and apprehend the marques of Huntlie be vertue of Letteris of Captioun direct out in the kingis name (fore against his will and without his hynes knowledge, sic wes the pollicie of this tyme of iniquitie,) upone Letteris of Horning usit and execute against him, as ane traitour to his countrie for not subscriving this last Covenant and adhering to the Estaites, whiche the marques thocht wes bothe against his consciens and his maister the king. Be vertue of this forgit Captioun, the foirfaidis scherrefis was chargit to tak him, as I have faid. Whairupone the schirref of Banff, callit

Abircrummy of Birkinbog, upone the sext day of Februar, lap on sum few hors, cam to the Bog, sent in his deput Robert Wilfoun to the marques to schow his Commissioun; bot the marques vilipendit the famen, and commandit him and the schirref bothe be gone, for he wes nocht to be tane. The schirref rode bak but moir ado, and wreit his diligens over to the Eftaites. Thus you may fee how this nobill marques is vext daylie with his fellow fubjectis but auchtoretie of ane king, and quhilk compellit him to draw to ane heid for defens of him felf and his kin, as ye may fee heirefter; and in the mein tyme fraitlie commandit none of his ground freindis nor folloueris men, tennentis, and fervandis, that they fould anfuer or obey men or armes, taxationis, or loane filver, excifes, and utheris impofitionis quhatfumever.

Upone Frydday 16 of Februar, Capitane Strathachin marchit out of Abirdene with fexfeoir ten foldiouris, capitanis, and commanderis, furnefhit out be the faid brughe upone thair owne charges and expenffis. Ilk foldiour wes furnefhit with tua farkis, cot, breikis, hois, and bonet, bandis, and fchone; ane fuord, ane mufeat, pulder and ball, for fo mony; and utheris fum ane fuord, and ane pik, according to the ordour; and ilk foldiour to have fex fchillingis ilk day, during the fpace of 40 dayes, of loan filver. Ilk tuelf of thame had ane baggage hors worth fyftie pundis, ane ftoup, ane pan, ane pot, for thair meit and drink, togidder alfo with thair hyre or levie or loan money ilk foldiour eftimat to ten dolleris, and in furnefhing and all to 100 merkis; quhilk ftood to Abirdene for thair expenffis, by and attour thair capitanes and commanderis charges and furnitour above ten thoufand pundis Scottis; quhilk with 18,000 and four hundreth merkis of taxation wes no finall burdein to the brughe of Abirdene, as ye may fee heirefter. The thrie wairdit foldiouris followit this capitane. The poor toun of Old Abirdene wes forfit to furneifh out tuelf foldiouris efter the fame maner vnder the lord Gordoun's divifion, and fend vnder capitane Knab with ane company of about 60 men to the army, as capitane Strathachin alfo went for the toun of Abirdene. Sore wes the pure people of the Old toun pluckit and poyndit to mak wp thir 12 foldiouris charges, quhairas fum of thame had not to by a loaf.

And as New Abirdene and Old Aberdene wes preft and wrackit in fynding firft the men and nixt thair maintenance, fo the landward wes not frie of the lyk perfection, for ilk heritour wes compellit to furneifh out ane man, tua, or thrie according to his rent. He came upone the tementes of the ground, who wes forfit for his relief to go him felf or contribute with his maifter for furneifhing out ane man; becaus the heritour or maifter alledgit, the tennent out of his meines fould contribute with him, in refpect the maifter wes lyabill for the fyft part of his eftait to the taxation by and attour furneifhing of men. Thus, is this land, riche and pure, pitifullie plagued without auchtoretie of ane king. Sie befoir, how Abirdenis men is preffit.

The foldiouris of both Aberdenis had tuo pairt muscatis, and thrid pairt pikis. Old Aberdene wes stentit in 800 merkis for rigging out of 12 foldiouris, so that nather hird nor hyreman wes left outaxt. And upone the 23 of Februar capitane Knab merchit forduard to the army with his company and our Old toum men wnder the lord Gordoun's divisioun, as said is. Then folowit the rigging out of hors men; ilk horfinanis hors, furnitour, and expensfis estimat to nyncefoir poundis; and thair wes tua hundreth and fourtie hors laid upone the schires of Abirdene and Banf.

Upone Wedinſday 21 Februar, drum went throw Abirdene chargeing all heritouris and lifrentaris, &c. in the name of Williame erll Marſhall, and George lord Gordoun, and of the Committee at Abirdene, to present thair foldiouris, wnder ilkaue of their divisiouns, in the Lynkis, thair to be received be their capitanes. Sindrie cam in, quhair of capitane Knabis company, with the 12 Old toum foldiouris, being 60 footmen, wes maid wp wnder the lord Gordoun's divisioun, as said is.

Upone the 23 of Februar, livetennand James Forbes (second sone to Forbes of Campbell), wnder the erll Marſhallis divisioun, had orderis fra the Committee of Abirdene (Marſhall being absent him self), to go with about 40 muskiteires upone the laird Tibberteis landis, Mr Williame Seytoun of Raneiftoun's landis, as tuo outftanderis, and not subscribers of the covenant; and upone the goodwyf of Artrocheis landis, as scho that is ane excommunicat papist; and to plunder the samen. Bot the young laird of Geicht, the laird of Haddoche, the laird of Schethin, the laird Tibbertie him self, Ardlogie and Nathaniel Gordoun, with about 80 hors, cam to the boundis of Taartie pertening to doctor Dwn in Abirdene, whiche thay war also plundering: bot thay war schamefullie dung bak, thair armes tane fra thame, and routit pitifullie, except the capitane, who wes also thair, callit Forbes also, and his brother the livetennand, whose armes thay tuk not. And so thir foldiouris returnit in twais, in threis, in fouris, and not in ane body, schanfully bak agane to Abirdene, with their capitane, and livetennand, and officiares, who wes also spairit and not difarmed. Quhairt our Committee of Abirdene and the erll Marſhall quhen they hard of it wes heichlie offendit, and bred sum feir to the brughe of Abirdene, as ye have heirefter.

Ye ſie befor anent the Excise. The samen wes proclaimit at the cros of Abirdene upone the 24 of Februar, to the gryt greif of both brughe and land.

The toum of Abirdene begins to think that this perturbatioun maid at Taartie wes upone sum ground, and that the Gordonis wold grow to ane heid;

THE CITY OF ...

and thairfoir, upone Thuirsdlay the laft of Februar began to watche thair toun, clois thair portis, and to mak wp thair catbandis upon all adventuris for thair owne securitie ; bot this did littil good, as ye may fie. Aluaies thay dreill daylie in the lynkis, about fexfoir men ; and the covenantis begins to hyd thair goodis.

Upone the first of Marche, the erll Marfchall returnis from Edinbrughe bak to Abirdene, and upone the morne being Setterday he cumis over to the Old toun, conferris with the lord Gordoun, who convoyit the erll to the brig of Done being going to Imerugie. Bot befoir he cam out of Abirdene, thair cam about tua hundreth and fyftie foldiouris, that famen nicht he cam to Abirdene, on foot and hors, without ony armes, becaus thay war informit that the Gordouns wes fet to plunder thame be the way. Aluayes the erll directis thame to marche to Dunnottar the famen Setterday, and thair armes wes brocht about fra Buchan to thame be fea. Thir foldiouris cam out of Buchan out of the-erllis awin ground to Abirdene.

Upone the fairfaid first of Marche, proveft Leslie returnit bak fra the Conventioun of Estaites to Abirdene, the Conventioun being diffolvit. It is faid, he had gottin ane commiffioun for lifting of this excife for his owin profeit, and for payment of ane certaine foume of money thairfoir.

The lord Frafer alfo, being winder feir, causit caft in his aites upone onlabourit ground, thairefter to teill the famen, rather then to have thame in barnes or ftakis, for feir of plundering. He causis tranflait his victuall of the barony of Stanywod out of the girnellis of Wattertoun be nicht to Muchallis. He fendis and bringis his children fra the fcoolis in Abirdene, and down to Carnbulg gois he out of the get, leaving fun men to keip the place of Muchallis, with all furneifhing neceffar.

Howfome the erll Marfchall cumis to Imerugie, he takis his hail inficht plenifhing, goodis, and geir furth thairof, and fendis thame about be fea to Dunnottar ; and he fendis his children with fun fervandis befoir him to Abirdene, upone the 15 of Marche, to go to the famen place ; and him felf with his ladie follouit with about 24 hors, and cam to Abirdene upon Wedinfday the 20 of Merche from Imerugie. He ftayit all nicht with his lady in skipper Anderfonis hous, hard devotion upone the morne, and fo to Dunnottar, leaving ony moir taking wp of foldiouris in this countrie, or holding of Committees in Abirdene at this tyme. The lord Gordoun fpak with him in the toun befoir he went, and he returnit home to the Old toun bak again.

Upone the 7 of Marche, the erll of Morray rode throw the Old toun home to Morray who had cum from the fouth. He stayit fhort while; bot returnit bak agane, and left directioun and orderis with the laird of Grant his own good-brother to rais the haill men vnder his divifioun, as ye have heirtofoir, who convenit, as wes said, at Elgin, about 1000 hors and foot. Sum alledgit that this countrie and toun of Elgyn wes feiring alfo the ryfing of the Gordonis.

Ye heir of the Excife, and an Act fet out for men and armes, and another Act for levieing of moneyis. Thir thrie Actis, upone Sondag the 10 of Marche efter fermon, wer red be Alexander Wilguis, reider, at Maucher kirk dur. Like as Mr. William Strathauchin minifter declairit, that thair wes ane fast to be keptit thair and at all other paroches churches on Wedinsday thairefter 13 Marche, quhilk was solempnlie keiped in both Abirdenes foir and efternone, and no blessing given whill efter the afternone's fermon for both preichinges. The caufe of this fast wes for craeving pardon for our fynes, and a happie fucces to oure army gone into England. And albeit no menis wes left oneflayd, both Sondag and wark day, for lifting and raising of men and moneyis; yit betuixt the erll Marfchall, lord Gordoun, and brughe of Abirdene thair went bot fyve companeis for the fchire thairof, and fchire of Banff at this tyme, quhair of capitane Johnne Forbes with 60 men wes one. Sie befor auent the proclamatioun of this Affise at the marcat cros of Aberdene.

Thair wes ane Committee holdin at Aberdene, the 14 of Marche, quhair order wes givin out to rais the aucht man to fend to the army; bot thair wes no more Committees holdin heir thairefter upone the incuming of the Gordonis, as ye have heirefter.

The toun of Abirdene is vnder gryte feir, strait watch day and night, and the portis clofit at ten houris at evin, and openit at fex houris in the morning. The proveft Leslie caufis maifterfullie tak from Johnne Anderfone skipper his fchip four iron peice of ordinans, and fet thame upon the calfey for defens of thair toun; bot thay war not long keptit thair, for he gat bak his ordinans agane about the 25 of Marche, and thairefter plunderit be the Gordonis.

Upone Tuyfday the 19 of Marche, the young laird Drum, Robert Irving his brother, the laird of Haddoche, the laird of Geicht, the laird Tibbertie, the laird Schethin, the goodman of Ardlogie, Major Nathaniel Gordoun his brother, the goodman of Iden, with fum utheris, about thrie fcoir hors, about fevin houris in the morning, cam gallopping throw the Old toun to New Aberdene, and fuddantlie took Proveft Leslie, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Alexander

REBELLION OF ABERDEEN - HALL'S BARRIERS

Joffray, lait baillies, and John Joffray deane of gild his brother out of thair houffis, had thame to skipper Anderfonis hous. It is said thair wes plunderit out of Alexander Joffrayis hous sum gold ringes and chanes, bot gat litle moneey. Thay mist Mr. Alexander Joffray; for he wes not in the toun. Thay plunderit the laird of Pittodries sadill hors, ane uther fra Ritnaifter Morray fervitour to the lord Gordoun, and four uther horffis wes plunderit fra Ritnaifteris. Thairefter thay go to hors schortlie, and cumis bak throw the Old toun, about 10 houris in the morning, with thair four captives; and, but bo to thair blanket, thay rode down throw the Gallowget, and cam bak wp throw the Gallowget, none daring to fay it wes evill done. Suirlye it is to be markit the like feldome hes bein sein, that so few men so pertlie and publictlye fould have disgracit sic a brave brughe, by taking away thair provest and the rest men of note, without ony kynd of contradictioun or obstacill. Aluaies thay ar brocht throw the Old toun, quhair the laird of Haddoche takis his young barnis at the scooll hame behind sum of his fervandis, and sent thame bak upone the morne, except his eldest sone. Thay ryd throw the Loch wynd, drink in Kintoir, and lodgis all night at Leggitfiden; and upone the morne being Wedinsday wes had to Strathbogie.

In the mein tyme Mr. Williame Moir, one of the present bailleis, wes sent away to the Committee of Estaites at Edinbrughe, to complane upone this abuse, and to crave redres; who went, and returnit bak to Dunnotter, for he durst not cum to Abirdene. Mr. Thomas Merfer, Walter Cochrum, Alexander Burnet, Mr Alexander Joffray, Thomas Mortiner, Thomas Mowat, Williame Blakburne and his eldest sone, Leonard Leslie, Alexander Leslie sone to provest Leslie, James Collifoun, and divers utheris covenantaris, about 48 persones covenantaris, first and last, fled fra the toun and hid thair goodis the best way thay culd. Sum went to Dunnotter, sum to Stanhyve, sum to Montros, sum to Dundie, heir and thair throw Mernis and Angus. It is said, this provest Patrik Leslie, being ane commissioner for ane of the principall burrowis of Scotland, wes ane evill statesman for the commoun weil; for he consentit (amongis uther evillis) to the Excise forsaid, for the quhilk he gat the collectioun thair of for payment of ane certane soume to the Estaites, grytlye tending to his awin particular profeit. Bot that he fould not be sein heirin, he causit draw wp a list of burgeffis within the toune, out of the quhilk one man fuld tak wp this Excise, quhair Alexander Ramsay, Walter Cochrum, and Adam Gordoun, wes found meitest, thrie of his owne wylling and chois, and out of this thrie ane to be nominate for collecting this Excise, whiche the Provest most politiquelie wold not tak upone him felf (as feiming to have no entres thairintill); bot fent over to the Estaites the thrie menis names that thay nicht chufe out ane and give him orderis thairanent. But he was weil aneuche fein, and wes also interruptit by ane unlookit for strattagem, as ye have befoir. Now at the taking of oure tonne's men, the lord Gordoun wes in Old Abirdene, caufit draw his hors out of the stables into the trans, and beheld all. Sie [hereafter] of Williame Moir.

Thair cam word to Abirdene of ane bloodie fight betuixt the kingis men at Newcastle and oure army lying thair, upone the 14 of Marche, quhair our men had the worst.

It is said, the erll of Craufurd, the erll of Montros, the erll of Niddifdaill, the erll of Traquhair, the erll of Kynnoull, the viscount of Oboyne, the lord Ogilvy, and sum utheris, gave in ane remonfrance to both houffis of the kingis parliament, whair him felf wes, sitting at Oxfurd; quhair of the coppie follous:

As it cannot be, bot that all good men and loyall subjectis ar muche afflicted with the present jamentabill and distracted estait of all his Majesteis dominionis, so we that ar his Majesteis subjectis of the kingdome of Scotland have gryt reffone above all utheris to be greivit thairat. For beydis the comoun resentment that everie one borne vnder his Majestie ought to have of his undeserved sufferinges, and the evillis quhairwith his kingdomes ar so long afflicted, we must be more particularie touchit for the honor and reputatioun of that our native country, that is so deiple woundit by the perfidious trecherie of hir unnaturall brood, whose base and disloyall proceedinges reflect upone the whole, as if all war the lyk guilty of the same. And no mervall that sum be mistaken in this point, when thay consider that all ther most tressonable actionis ar countenanced with publict auctoretie, and so may befeim to cary along with them approbatioun of all. To tak of this prejudice, whiche, in the opinioun of sum (whiche ar strangeris to oure effaires) may lay upone the generall body of oure kingdome, so many of vs his Majesteis faithfull servandis as ar heir present think our selsis bound, for falsseing the worlde, bot especiallie the bonorabill memberis of both houffis convenit heir at this tyme (of whose justice and wiflome, we may expect that thay will distinguish factioun and natioun, and in all resultis so mak it appeir), to emit a declaratioun of our judgements concerning the proceedinges in that pretended Conventioun of Estaites in Scotland. And since, that it may be fein how much we loth and abhor the same, and ar resolved never to averr any thing that hath issued from them as ane act of ony lauchfull or warrantabill judicatorie; we doe thairfoir for oure selsis, and in name of all his Majesteis faithfull subjectis in Scotland, that have ane hatred and detestatioun of the saidis traitterous conventioun, with all that have followit thairupon, utterlie renunce and disclame the said pretendit meiting, as presumptuous and illegall, and called for no other end bot seditioun and rebellious in that kingdome, with all committees generall and particular flowing from the same, and all actis, ordinances, and decrees maid and givin thairin; and especiallie that act concerning that traitterous and damnable Covenant drawin wp and takin betuixt thame and the rebellis heir, whiche we most hartielie detest, and fall never enter thairin by force, persuasioun, or ony uther respect whatsumever; as also all actis and orderis authorising the leaving of armes, wnder collour quhairof the present rebellious army that is gatherit togidder, whiche we esteim ane act of heighe tressoun, and hold oure selfis obligit, be virtue of oure allegiance and act of pacificatioun, to oppose and withstand. Like as we faithfullie promeis upone oure honor everie one of ws to leave no meinis unattempted to fuppres the saidis rebellis now in armes againt his Majestie and his croun of England; from all the faithfull subiectis quhairof, bot especially the honorabill memberis of the tuo houffis heir convenit, we will expect such countenans, in-couragement and assistans, as we may be the better inabled thereby to prevaill againt thair and oure commoun enemeis; and thairby it may be sein, that thay will not suffer these rebellis on both sydes to go befor them in this present; and leave nothing undone in so bad a caus to strenthen one another. And becaus we will take all fuche of oure owne countrie men as will not joyne hartlie with ws in this oure declaratioun, and in the cours to be takin for the profecutioun thairof, for enemeis both to his Majestie and ws; for fuche of them as ar heir, it war expedient how to esteim of them. The honorable memberis of both the houffis may be pleisfit to tak it in thair consideratioun.

 Oure desire is, that the honorable memberis of both houffis heir convenit sould joyne with ws in a request to his Majestie, that what Scottis man so ever fall refuse to set his hand to this declaratioun subscrivit by ws may not be permitted to leive wnder his Majesties protectioun; bot be cheafed from amongis his Majesties lauchfull subiectis as partaker, in affectioun at the leif, with the odious rebellious of both the kingdomes.

This paper wes gratioullie received by both houffis, and by the king him self; quhairupone followit raising of armes to cum with this distreslit nobill men, who durst not keip thair owne countrie, bot fled unto his Majestie in England for aid and support againt the Covenanteris in Scotland, who had ther owne freindis and followeris thair reddy also to assist them. And upone hope of this the kingis assistans fuirlie signefeit unto the marques of Huntlie maid him and his freindis to rys heir in the northe, as ye hard befor, and fall heirefter heir.

Upon Wednesday 20 Marche, albeit proveit Leslie and the rest wes takin and had to Strathbogie, as ye have hard; yit the toun of Abirdene keipit ane straitt wache day and night and dreillit thair men in the Lynkis. Thair portis wes cloisfit and keipit, and thair cannonis removit af of the calsie to the Tolbuith. Thus, this toune is straitlie watchit, to litle effect, as schortlie ye fall heir.

It is said, the marques of Huntlie had sent to the erll of Findlater for 500 stand of armes, which he refavit of the kingis armes upon ane convenit price; bot the erll sent not the armes, bot moneyis to the marques for thame, as wes said.

Setterday 23 Marche, capitane Johne Forbes of the famelie of Blaktoun went out of Abirdene south to the army with about 60 soldiouris wnder the lord Gordoun's divisioun.

It is said, the lord Gordoun heiring the marques his father wes gathering to ane heid and cuming to Abirdene, he sent to him the laird of Straloch, the laird of Fedderet, and the laird of Culter, with fiun commiffioun; bot appeires gat no good anfuier: and thairfoir upon Mononday 25 Marche efter dynner in the Old toun he lap on, about fyve or fex hors, rode to Knockhall, and from that to Murray, leaving his mafter houfhold George Abircrummy with fiun fervandis heir behind him in Old Abirdene. And be the way he compellit Williame Gordoun of Murraick, one of the four collectouris of the taxatioun and loane filver for the schire of Banf, to give him 2000 merkis; he took also from George Geddes, ane uther of the saidis collectouris, ane thousand merkis or thairby of taxatioun and loane money; quhairunto he alledgit he had good richt, for lifting of men wnder his divisioun within the schire of Banf. Indeed he wes put to leive upone his purches, becaus he wold not follow his fatheris cours. Thus he travellit to Banf, to Murray, heir and thair, whill as his father lay heir in Abirdene.

About this tyme word cam to Abirdene, that oure army wes lying at Sunderland, pairtlie over Tyne and pairtlie in this fyde of the river; that thay war beliggerit; gryte famein and hunger amongis thame; and that thay war deing daylie.

About this fame tyme and 23 of Marche, the marques of Argyll cam from the army into Scotland and sitting daylie in Edinbrughe with the Committee of Estaitis, who cam to Dunnotter as ye fall heir, to the gryte sorrow and oppreffioun of thir north pairtis.

Upone Tuysday the 26 of Marche, the marques cam fra Strathbogie to Kintoir quhair his freindis and folloueris met him; from that he cam in that same nicht to Abirdene with found of trumpet, about tua hundreth and fourtie hors pairtlie cam in with him, and pairtlie rode the over get about 40 hors. Aluais him self cumis in, about aucht scoir hors, throw the Old toun. Thair wes also about tua hundreth and fyftie foot men in his company, Alexander Irving younger of Drum laitlie mareit to the marques' dochter, and Robert Irving his brother wes with him, (bot the old laird Drum baid fill at home and miskenit all), Gordoun of Geicht elder and younger, Sir John Gordoun of Haddoche, Turing of Foverane elder and younger, Gordoun of Abirzeldie, Gordoun of Newtoun elder, and the young laird, with his second sone, Sir Walter Innes of Balveny, William Scytoun of Schethin, Gordoun of Innermarkie, Willian Innes of Tibbertie, the laird of Feterneir younger, and divers utheris landit gentilmen, sic as the goodman [Gordoun] of Carnburrow, James Gordoun of Letterfurie, William Gordoun of Arradoull, Gordoun of Ardlogie and Nathaniel Gordoun his brother, Meldrum of Iden, Leith of Harthill, Mr. Thomas Gordoun of Pettindreiche, and sum of the erll of Marfchallis men cam out of Kintoir, cam in with him alfo to Abirdene, quhair he had entres peciable, the portis maid oppin and the catbandis caffin lous. He enterit in at the Justice port, rode wp throw the freittes to the Gallowget, and lichtit at Mr. Alexander Reidis hous. It is trew the toun of Abirdene was not abill to hald him out; albeit he had fun freindis, yit he had mony foes. And it wes markit that first and laft thair fled out of the toun about 48 Covenanteris, sic as Mr. Alexander Joffray lait proveft, Mr. Williame Moir present baillie, Alexander Burnet elder, Walter Cochrum, Alexander Leslie sone to proveft Leslie, Leonard Leslie sone to Gilbert Leslie.

The marques left the four captives at Strathbogie, and wes transportit thairfra to Auchindoun upone the fecond day of Aprile, viz. Proveft Leslie, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Alexander and Johne Joffrayis. The old goodman of Birk-inburne wes capitane, who, with sextein foldiouris, keipit the hous and captives bothe, upone thair expenffis; fo that thay not onlie fustenit thame felfis, bot alfo this capitane, sextein foldiouris, porteris, cookis, and uther inferiour officiares upon thair owne charges and expenffis, richt efter the same ordour as the marques himfelf was ufit in the castell of Edinbrughe, as ye have; and fo he could not be blamed justlie, to do as him felf wes done to. The marques gave frait ordour that no wrong fuld be done within the New toun nor Old toun, bot leive upon thair awin expenffis and wages.

Wedinfday 27 Marche, he gois to ane counfall of warr in the Lower Counfall-hous of the toune; quhair it wes concludit, that he fould go throw the north with ane fleing army of hors and foot, and mak the countrie people to rys and follow him, or utheraies to plunder thair goodis and leive upone thair estaites. He alfo took notice of the barronis and gentrie, how mony men thay wold furneish, and upone thair owne expenffis fustein, fo long as he remainit within Abirdene.

He sent the laird of Foverane commiffioner to Dunnotter to the erll Marfchall to fie what wold be his pairt, as wes thocht; who anferit he myndit not to flur, except he war compellit thairto.

Upon Thuirfday 28 Marche, he gois to counfall agane, fendis for the tounesmen and defyris thame to bring thair armes, quhilk (fuppofe fun wes weil willit) thay refufit to do for plane feir of the Covenanteris. Qulhairupone the marques directit to ferche and feik thair houffis, and plunder all sic armes as thay could get ; quhilk thay did, and gat findrie good arnes, muscattis, lagbuttis, carrabinis, fuordis, pistollis, pikis, speiris, jakis, corflettis, pulder, ball, and the lyke. Then he permittit the toune's people to go home to thair houffis. He directit also the laird of Haddoche and James Gordon of Letterfurie to go to Torry with a rate of musketeires, and bring back Johne Anderfonis four peice of ordinans of of his schip lying in the water, with sic uther armes that thay could get.

Thairefter the marques goes to hors, about 12 hors, with some few horfmen, leaving behind him the young lairdis Drum, Geicht, Haddoche, and divers utheris, to keip the toune ; quhair for a tyme I will continew his progres, whill I mak manifest the marques of Huntley his reffonis of his thus ryfing and procedur, as is contenit in his owne Declarationis set out to that effect, quhilk coppeit is thus :

16 Marche 1644.

I George marques of Huntlie ; Where as the Committee of Estaites have (without his Majesties approbatioun) directit a Commissioun to the schirrefts of Abirdene and Banf, for seasing upone my persone, houffis, rentis, and goodis, contrary not onlie to the establisht ordour of law, whiche requyret all men to be legallie accusit ere thay be condempnit, and to be criminallie condempnit ere any siche Commissioun be direct against them ; bot also reflecting upone all his Majesties good subjectis thair lauchfull privileges of this kingdome, no les then the lait publihit act for collecting of ane unuusual Excise, and for enforcing a generall loan of moneyis throw out the countrie ; and finding sum stop in the hoped for executionn of the said commissioun by these to whome it was entrusted, have now prepared sum forces from the south whairby to pres thair designes against me, for no other true caus, bot that I refuse to concur with them in the levie of men and moneyis for assisting the present invasionn of England, contrair to my consciens, incompatibill with my humill loyaltie to oure grations soveraigne, and so destructive to the lait pacificatioun solempnie ratefeit be his Majestie and the parliamentis of bothe kingdomes, as no honest chrisiteane (being of this my opinioun) can willinglie condiscend to be contenit in it. Thairefore I the said George marques of Huntlie doe heirby declar and protest, that if (in the just defens of my self and freindis from these unlauchfull violences, or in the repairing of them according to oure waik abilitieis,) any actis of hostilitie salbe committed by ws against oure invaderis, and thair confederatis and abetteris, thay may not be imputed unto ws, othereuayes then as paymentis of the debtis we owe to nature, loyaltie, and honour, and to whiche no lower interest could enforce ws. Whiche being, as I hope, a sufficient evidence to all the worlde, of my fair intentionis for rendering the sincer and humill dewteis I owe to religioun, to his Majesties honor and faitie, and to the lawis and liberteis of the kingdome, I humelie intreat and expect approbatioun from all good men in this so equitable and so necessitate a cace ; with all imploring (upone my bended kneis) siche bevinlie assistans from God Almichtie, and siche ertylie protectionn from the King his Majestie, aganis all enemyis to peace and loyaltie, as in thair mercy and justice may seem fit.

20 Marche 1644.

I George marques of Huntlie; whereas since my lait Declaratioun of the 16 of this moneth, the seising upone the persones of Patrik Leslie provest of Abirdene, Mr. Robert Farquhar collector for the north pairtis of this kingdome of the present taxatioun imposit upone his Majesties subjectis by the Committee of Estaites, Alexander Joffray baillie, and Johne Joffray deane of gild of Abirdene, hath fallin out; and that the intentionis of me the said marques of Huntlie and of my freindis who have bein actoris thairin may perhaps be misconceived be sum who know them not, or misinterpreted be otheris who ar disaffected to them; find my self obligit in my owne name and theiris who have bein actoris, as said is, heirby to declair, that it bath bene done, so far from any privat end, as that neither particular splene against the pairteis nor any vanetie in oure selfis hath moved ws to it; but onlie in regard that the soirsaidis persones are too weil known to have bein scandalous fomentaris of a dangerous distractioun amongst ws, by countenanceing and assisting sum men, unhappellie diverted in their neglect of the duties thay owe both to consciens, loyaltie, and nature; and by menassing utheris wnder their jurisdiction from rendering those lauchfull civilliteis which ought to be expected from them; and all for making ws obnoxious to the rigouris of other men to whose endis thay concur; whiche, if thay sould be effectuated, could not bot ruin ws, and leave perhaps no great saistie to them selfis. For preventing of whiche, we have bein necessitat to endeavour the removeall of such obstacls as ly in oure proposed way, for manteining oure consciensis towards God, or loyalties towards oure gracious soveraigne, and our owne particular lyfis and fortunis from distructioun. And for vereifeing our intentionis ar onlie for peace, I the said George marques of Huntlie and my freindis above specifit do further declair, that, upone assureans givin of no violens to be usit against ws or oure adherentis, in oure persones nor fortunis, for not rendering obediens unto any new act untill siche tyme as it falbe ratefeit in parliament, not onlie fall the soirsaidis persones seait upone be restorit to their liberteis; bot we fall lykuaies be willing and reddie to give siche securitie for our legall and peceable carriages as the lawis of the kingdome do requyre.

Heir may be sein the ressones of his rysing and taking of oure tounesmen. Befydis, he wes confident of the assistans of sındrie noblemen, sic as the erll of Airlie, the erll of Southesk, the erll of Atholl, the erll of Seafort, and divers utheris south and northe, fra he cam to ane heid; and lykuaies had assureans of the incuming out of England of the erllis of Montrois, Craufurd, Niddisdail, Kynnoull, the viscount of Oboyne, the lord Ogilvy, and sum utheris with forces; and thay to have raisit thair awin freindschip to have gone on upone the South and Wast pairtis of Scotland; and he, being wp, wes able to subdew the North by his owne pouer and freindis, and to stand out, huiking furelie that from the South no pouer suld cum against him, becaus thay sould have thair handis full at hame, as I have said.

Now, upone thir groundis, and assureans befor all of the kingis favour, and letteris patentis for raising of fyre and suord, and daylie luiking for them, this noble marques drawes to ane heid, as I have said, makis ane Band disclaimeing the last Covenant, obleiging ilk man be his fuorne aith to serve the king in this expedioun to the haferd of lyf, landis, and goodis, against all opposeris of the famen, and to follow his Majesteis deputis and livetennantis whome he fould appoint to have charge. This Band himself and his freindis fueir and subscrivit first, and sic as cam in to him daylie did the lyk, the succes quhair of may heirefter appeir; quhair I will ceas for a tyme, and begin quhair I left, at the taking of the ordinaus af of Johne Anderfonis schip, and arnes out of Torrie, and how the marques rode out of Abirdene. Upone Thuirfday 28 of Marche, he lichtit be the get at Kintoir and took ane drink, syne went to hors; bot unhappellie ane brave gentilman callit Patrik Dulgardnoche, bydding behind him in Kintoir, rydding the watter hapnit to perish, to the greif of the marques and to all his company. Aluaies the marques rydis foruward towardis Strathlibogie, of whome ye fall heir sum what moir.

The erll Marfchall, contrair to the marques expectation, upone Frydday 29 Marche had ane meiting with the Committees of Angous and Mernis, quhair Mr. Williame Moir wes also, efter he had returnit fra the Committee of Estaites at Edinbrughe, fra whome he receavit orderis, efter he had given in complaint how the Gordouns had taken their provest and utheris tounesmen, and that him self with mony utheris wes forsit to flie the toun, as ye have hard. And surelie the Committee of Estaitis began quiklie to draw wp ane army for repressing thir uproares, who cam to Abirdene as ye fall heir. Aluaies Mr. Williame Moir cumes bak from Edinbrughe to Dunnottar, and wes at this meiting in the Mernis; bot durst not cum bak to Abirdene.

About this time, the countrie of Morray began to be feirit at the ryfing of the Gordouns, and thairfoir held thay Committees daylie at Elgin, and began to draw wp forces.

Likuaies about this tyme, Lues Gordoun the marques thrid sone hapnit to cum to Edinbrughe, quhair he met with his sifter the ladie Hadingtoun; bot he wes aprehendit and forsit to set cautioun not to go out of the toun whill the marques of Argyll cam to the toun of Edinbrughe. Bot when the marques of Huntlie hard this, he took littill thocht of him, for he had not sein him sens he went away with his jewellis. Aluaies he remainit in frie waird within Edinbrughe a quhyll, and when Argyll came he wes put to libertie, of whome ye have findrie passages heirefter nottit.

Now whill as the marques rode from Abirdene, the drum went throw both Abirdenis desireing all gentilmen and soldiouris that wes willing to serve in defens of our religioun, and of our oath of allegiance to the king and liberties of our countrie, that thay fuld cum to the laird Drum younger, and receive good pay. Quhairupone divers daylie took on.

The laird of Haddoche, the laird of Selethin, the laird of Tibbertie, rode from Abirdene with about 20 hors, and 80 musketeires. Thay plunderit sum armes out of Straloch, out of Turef, Tollie Barclay, and took the laird of Meldrum and his hors, and manyis hors also.

Young Drum rode out and plunderit his owne cusing John Irving of Kincofeis armes out of Auchquhorteis, and James Burnet of Cragmyllis armes out of Blackhillis. Thair wes lykuaies plunderit from sum honest men about the toune's wark naiges to be baggage hors; and sindrie uther gentilmens hors and armes takin in the countrie. Mr. Thomas Mitchell perfone of Turef his hors was plunderit. Thay took the laird of Meldrum upone Sunday at the kirk of Bathelny, and brocht him in to the marques; quhair upone conditionis he gat libertie home, for he wes a preceis puritane and wold not follow the marques.

Upon Monunday the first of Aprile, thair wes a singular combat betuixt the laird of Haddoche and laird of Elfik, both cusinges german, upon the hill of Tulligrig. Thay faught for the first blood, quhilck Haddoche gat; and Elfik wes victor, and so pairtit.

Ye hard how the Marques rode out of Abirdene. He returnit upon Wednesday the 3 of Aprile to the toune, and lichtit at Mr. Alexander Reid's hous, his owne lodging; and at his lichting thair cam four commissiouneris to him, tua from the Committee of Angous, viz. Williame Durhame of Grange of Monyfoothe, and Frances Ogilvy of New Grange; and tua fra the Committee of Mernis, to wit the lord Halkertoun, and James Burnet of Cragmyll. The occasioun of the cuming of thir commissiouneris proceidit thus: The marques of Huntlie heiring thair wes gathering both in Mernis and Angous, he thoct it meit to fend to thair Committees Johne Gordoun of Innermarkie to signefie unto thame the caus of his ryfing wes for defens of his perfone, and of his freindis, thair gudis and geir, from invasioun of the Committee of Estaites, who wes to rais armes against him, as thay had given befoir commissioun to the schirrefis of Abirdene and Banf to take him unjustlie and illegallie, and abuse his freindis; that he had no intentioun to injure or offend any mar, bot onlie seiking peace and securitie; so that Mernis nor Angous needit nocht to be offendit nor effrayit, since if he war necessitat to ryde throw thair countreis he fould do none wrong, except he war urgit thairto.

Now the Committees of Angous and Mernis (quhair the erll Marfchall fat daylie) heiring this commiffioun, thay fend bak with the faid Johne Gordone of Innermarkie the four commiffioneris above written to deliver their anfuer to the faid marques, quhilk wes, defyreing him to difband his forces, and to mak no moir gatheringes, and thay fould do the lyke, that the countreis might reft in peace. To whome the marques anfuerit, He wes compellit for his owne defens to draw to ane heid, and had no reffone at thair defyre to leave of to his owne feing prejudice and perrell: bot it wes moir fitting for thame who wes in no danger to difsolve thair gatheringes, and let the countrie be at quyet, becaus he had no mynd to moleft any within thair countreis; and faid, he fould fend Sir Walter Innes of Balveny knight, and Williame Gordoun of Arradoull with thame to the faidis Committees, to declair his mynd foirfaid. Thus the four commiffioners took thair leive, lodgit in Old Abirdene, and, upone Frydday the 5 of Aprile, rode with the uther tuo altogidder to Cowie, quhair the Committees of Angous and Mernis both held at this time, with about the number of 800 men of bothe fchires, quhair the erll Marfchall, the erll of Kingorne, the lord Arbuthnet, the lord Lour, with many uther barronis wes thair convenit alfo. The Commiffioneris declairit the marques mynd, whiche contentit not thair myndis, nor did good to the marques; for the erll Marfchall did nothing bot be advys of the Committee of Eftaites, who directit him and Committees both of Angous and Mernis, to hold the marques vnder tryfting whill thay fould rais wp forces to go upone him; quhilk cam furelie to pas, and fo his unhappie tryfting with them ftayit him ongone upone Angous and Mernis, and to have driven thame from drawing to any heid, quhill he had luikit better about him, and fuirelie wes fore againft the will and lyking of his hail freindis, who lovit not fic fruitles delayes, and feirit the thing that cam to pas. Bot the marques wold heir no good counfall of his trew freindis; bot follout his awin opinioun, quhilk did him no good.

It wes reffonit be divers, that the marques unhappellie and unwyfflie brak lous without forder freindfchip within the countrie, for Forbeffis and Fraferis, with many barronis in Buchane, Mar, and Gareoche wes againft him, at the leift wold not rys with him; and that he wantit moneyis, armes, ammunitioun, pulder and ball, without the whiche in abundance he could not long fubfift aganes the pouer of his contrair party. Utheris faid, as for moneyis, the marques had ane hundreth thoufand pundis to fuftein fic foldiouris as wantit; and as for the barronis, ilk barrone fould fuftein his owne men, and ilk gentilman fould fuftein him felf; and as for armes, pulder and ball, thair wes aneuche to be gottin in brughe and laud ; and if any want wer, thair wes victuell girnellet in store to help to find the foldiouris be way of plundering : and forder, the marques nicht weill defend him self, feing thair wes ane army cuming out of England with the erllis of Montrois, Craufurd, Niddifdlaill, &c., quhilk wold give the Southland men aneuche ado, and stop thair cuming heir : befydis all this, the marques had affureans of divers erllis, lordis, and barronis, to rys and assist him. Bot all thir argumentis misgave this noble marques, for the erllis cam in and wes dung bak agane, and sic as he trustit in deceavit him and fled the caus and left him in the myre, as ye fall heir. Utheris sayes thay war not dung, bot recallit.

Ye hard, how the marques lichtit at Mr. Alexander Reidis hous. He cam from Oboyne, quhair he had mony Hieland men and footmen thair, and in the countries about, attending his servise, and cam in to Abirdene, about 200 hors, and about 800 foot men, whiche was raknit in the lynkis when thay war dreilit ; bot thay cam not all in with him self at this time. He had few commanderis, except him self, crouner King, major Nathaniell Gordone ; James Grant wes also ane, and Major Hay. He caufit quarter his foldiouris upone thair own charges, and began to exerceis thame in dreilling in the Lynkes daylie. He went out and caufit ding down fun houffis be fouth the brig of Die, and maid faifgardis bothe upone the one end and the other.

Upone Setterday 6 Aprile, Robert Irving caufit tak the place of Durris pertenening to the lord Frazer, set in ten foldiouris to keep the girnellis untransportit. Thay leivit upone his nolt and schein and uther commoditeis ; bot the girnellis wes not brokin upone, quhairof thair wes auchtein feoir bollis in girnellis ; and at last thay schamefullie left the famen at the incuming of the army.

Now, nothing bot plundering of hors and armes of sic as stood out, to the gryte greif of the country, following the footstepis and oppreffioun of major Monro, as ye have befoir. The lord Forbes fleis with Glenkindy and uther freindis to Kildrymny. The lord Frazer gois to Carnbulge. Sir Williame Forbes of Cragiwar takis Cragiwar, and transportis his hail victuallis of Fintray and Cragiwar thair, to be keipit from plundering. Forbes of Echt and Skeyne of that ilk takis in Skeyne. Sir Williame Forbes of Tolquhone takis in Tolquhone. Forbes of Wattertoun takis in Wattertoun. John Kennedy of Kermukis keipis his hous of Kermukis. Forbes tutor of Petfligo keipis Petfligo. Frazer of Phillorth keipis Phillorth. Forbes of Monymusk keipis Monymusk. Bot how soone the army cam in thay took the feildis and left thair houffis. Thus, the name of Forbes cloiffis w^p them fellfis in ftrenthis, to faif thair perfonis and thair houffis from plundering be the Gordouns ; for they wold on nawayis rys with them. Sie heirefter.

Upone Fridday 5 Aprile, the marques fent over to the laird of Clunyis hous, and took 50 pikis out thairof to this fervice. Lykuaies the laird Drum younger fent over for doctor Gooldis fadill hors, quhilk he durft not refuse.

This famen Frydday, Nathaniell Gordoun went to the Road of Abirdene with about 20 muskiteires, and took ane bark ladnit with hering pertening to the kingdome of Denmark. This bark wes takin be ane English Pirat, with ane uther bark als^o of that fame natioun, be virtue of ane Letter of Mark givin out to fum of thair fchhipis to tak sic fchhipis as pertenit to Denmark and to Ireland als^o. Now this bark ladnit with hering being thus taken, the Englishman (hes the one following hir) caufis tak of _____ men of hir, and puttis in thair fchhip als mony of thair men (as siefairing fashiou is), that scho fuld not go from hir. This bark I fay cumis throw change of wynd to the Road of Aberdene, whome the said Nathaniell or major Nathaniell Gordoun took and brings into the harberie of Abirdene ; and, efter tryell, takis the Englishmen and wairdis them in the tolbuith of Abirdene. The Pirat who had takin this pryze, miffing hir, cam to the Road of Abirdene, and fet a schoir the pilot and skipper to try if scho cam to the harberie ; bot upone the sext of Aprile thay war takin and wairdit with the rest. Bot rather moir treulie it wes not the men of the Pirat, bot tua men of ane uther warriour English Parliamentary fchhip whiche cam on land, as said is, haveing nothing ado with the hering pryze. This fchhip feing thair pilot and skipper not to cum aboard, thay apprehend that thay war takin. Whairupone thay hoys failt and gois about the Nuke ; bot, upone Monunday the 8 of Aprile, scho returns to the road, took thrie of oure fifher boatis with 24 men, cheaffit uther tua in at Done mouth with hir Cokboit, and ane uther north. Scho landit als^o at Balhelvie and took tua bollis of malt from the countrie men careing in to the toun, and had the famen aboard to thair fchhip. The marques wes veray angrie, becaus he had commandit the fifheris that thay fould not go to the fea, left thay fould be takin, and he fould fustein thame lying on land ; bot foolifhlie thay went on, quhairby the marques expectatioun wes difapointit, thinking for fetting thir tua men to libertie to have gottin fum cart peices out of thair fchhip ; aluaies scho luyis ftill at anchor and fchot all day divers gryte fchottis on land, bot did no fkaith. The fifher wyvis, wanting thair men, ran crying upon the marques, who in end fent James Broun, skipper in Abirdene, aboard with ane letter fra thair skipper and pilot, desyreing thame to fet a schoir the fishermen and the malt, and to keip this skipper Broun whill thay cam to thair schip; whiche wes done, and ilk one got thair awin. So scho wp faillis, and to the sea gois scho but moir trubbill.

In the mein tyme, the English Pirat, who had takin the hering bark, heiring that scho wes takin and had in to Abirdene, scho umbappellie lichtis upone skipper Walker his bark, one of oure toun's failleris, anent Peterheid, upone the 11 of Aprile, cuming from Caithnes to Abirdene, ladnit with salt beif, talloun, skin, hyde, and such commoditeis perteneing to Caithnes merchandis. Thay tirrit skipper Walker out of his clothis and eld him in raggis, and fet him on schoir, who in pitifull maner cam to Abirdene and told the marques, schewing he wold not get his schip nor goodis agane whill the pryze of hering war restorit as his laifull pryze takin from the Danes be virtue of ane Letter of Mark, as said is; quhairat the marques wes heichlie offendit for the honest manis lois, bot culd not help him.

Upone the bak of this, cumis to the Road, upone the 16 of Aprile, this famen Pirat, and cheaffis our haill fisher boitis, and fettis on schoir tua of thair owne men, declairing, since thair pryze of hering wes takin, thay wold content with skipper Walkeris schip (whiche wes valourit worth 20,000 merkis, and far above the worth of the hering pryze), and keip hir, and let Abirdene keip the hering bark, and go thair way without moir offens, provideing thay wold fend thair men quhilk thay had wardit in Abirdene aboard, and receive thair hering men whiche thay had takin fra thair schip; whiche wes agreit upone; ilk schip receavit hir owne men, and to the sea gois scho, haveing still skipper Walkeris schip fast, to the gryte greif and overthrow of the honest man. The Danes gettis bak thair owne bark with sic hering as major Nathaniell Gordoun had left onfauld; and the marques reprovit the said Nathaniell veray bitterly for taking of the said hering without his command, breiding also sic gryte feir and skaith to our coast fyde; quhairat this Nathaniell Gordoun wes so angrie that he haistellie took his leave, and left the marques' service.

Sunday 7 Aprile, the marques hard devotioun befor and efter none in Old Abirdene, Mr. Williame Strathachin preichit; syne dynit in George Middiltoun's hous, and returnit bak to his owne lodging in New Abirdene.

Monoday 8 Aprile, our Old toun people wes commandit to muster in the Lynkis. The marques viewit thame, and saw them a fillie waik people, wanting arnes, albeit he resolvit to tak 35 personis and arme thame him self; bot yet he tuke not one man out of the Old toun. Thairefter he went out to the brig of Die, and caufit big wp faif gairdis at ilk one of the eudis of the faid brig to no purpois.

Upone Tnyfday 9 Aprile, James Grant with his Hieland men, and divers companeis of Lowland men, war fent out to plunder and fpolzie the place of Kennay pertening fun tyme to umquhill Sir Thomas Crombie, a faithfull fervand to the hous of Huntlie, and to his name; whair thay brak wp yettis and durris, got 6000 merkis of money, fpolzeit and deftroiyt the hail plenifching, plundering his girnellis and ground rigorouflie. Thay did the lyk to Pittodrie, plunderit feheip af of Bannochie and his ground, and landis of Mwny pertening to Mr. Robert Farquhar; and throw the country thay went plundering lykuys arnes and hors quhair ever thay culd be gottin, to the wrak and hairfchip of the land, following the Covenanteris footftepis that began this plundering in Scotland.

About this tyme, thair wes found fwyning upone the loche of Abirdene pulder rollit in ballis, quhilk had bene caffin thair, left the marques fould have gottin the fame. Gryte tryell wes maid, bot none found.

Word alfo of ane bloodie battell fought upone the 14 of Marche betuixt the kingis men and oure Scottis army, quhair we had the worst; and that the marques of Argyll had left the army and cum be fea to Edinbrughe.

Thair wes parteis fent down to Banf and to Buchane, quhair Auchnagat, pertening to the laird of Glenkindie, his girnellis, his goodis, and ground, wes pitifullie plunderit; his brother Patrik Strathachin of Kynnadie plunderit, and fpolzeit his bigging, victuall and all, fyne took him felf priffoner and had him to Kellie, quhair he remanit upone his awin expenffis. Thair went down to Banf the lairdis of Geicht, Newtown, Ardlogie, with ane pairtie of fourtie hors and mufkiteiris, brave gentilmen. Thay took in the toune but contradictioun, mellit with the keyis of the tolbuith, took frie quarteris, and plunderit all the arnes thay could get, buffill cotis, pikis, piftollis, fuordis, carrabines, yea and money alfo. Thay took from Alexander Winchefter, ane of the bailleis thairof, 700 merkis, quhilk he [had] as ane of the four Collectouris of the Taxationis and Loane Silver of Banf; and fielyk took fra him 400 merkis of his awin geir; and fra

Schand in Doun thay plunderit fum moneyis. Thay caufit the bailleis (for doctor Douglas thair proveft had fled) and tounefmen fubferive and fueir the band denyng the laft Covenant, and obleigit to follow the king and his deputis in his fervice, as ye have befoir. Thay took alfo from George Geddes, ane uther of the faidis four Collectouris, 500 merkis of Taxatioun and Loan Silver. Geicht keipit all the moneyis, about tua thousand and five hundred merkis. Thairefter thay rode to Murefk, perfeut the place, and being randerit, thay took the laird with thame; fyne returnit to Imerurie, quhair thay met with the marques, as ye have heirefter. Thay plunderit nothing out of the erll of Marfchallis ground of Buchane.

Upone the 10 of Aprile, the marques craves the Roll of the Taxatioun of aughtene thousand and four hundreth merkis, impoifit be the Estaites upone the toune of Abirdene, from Mr. Patrik Chalmer thair toune's clerk, who wes loth to give the famen but command of the Counfall. Aluaies the marques alledgit, he had als good richt to lift the famen as the Estaites, and took or-dour thairwith, as ye fall heir.

Upone the 11 of Aprile, he lap on, with about 80 hors, and rod from Abirdene to Strathbogie. Upone Setterday he returnit to Innerurie, quhair mony of his freindis met him, foot men and hieland men. The laird of Geicht, Newtown, and thair companeis, cam thair, and wes estimat about tua thousand and fyve hundreth men, quhairof thair wes four hundreth hors. He mist sum of Strathbogie men oncum thair, quhairupone he directit M'Ronald to go plunder and bring thame in. At this meiting the Tutour of Struan cam out of Atholl with about 60 foot men to the marques. He stayit at Innerurie Satterday and Sunday, and lodgit in unquhill Williame Fergus his hous, and his men quarterit about him within the toune.

Upone Mononday 15 Aprile, he returnit about sex houris at evin, to Abirdene. He caufit mak sum Enfignes, quhair on ilk fyd was drawin ane red rampand Lion, haveing ane crown of gold above his heid, and C. R. for CAROLUS REX, haveing this motto, FOR GOD, THE KING, AND AGAINST ALL TRAITTOURIS, and beneth, GOD SAVE THE KING. Thair wes divers utheris Pinfellis maid for the barronis. The marques and his folloneris weir ane blak taffetie about thair crag, quhilk wes ane signe to fight to the death; bot it provit utheruayes.

Upone Sunday 14 Aprile, by ordinance of the Committee of the Kirk or Generall Assemblie at Edinbrughe, being Sunday, the marques of Huntlie, the laird Drum younger, Robert Irving his brother, the laird of Haddoche, the laird of Schethin, the laird of Tibbertie, Thomas Hay servitour to Haddoche, Mr. James Kennedy secretar to the marques, whois names are Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Robert Irving his brother, Sir John Gordoun of Haddoche, Williame Seytoun of Schethin, Williame Imes of Tibbertie, war all excommunicat at Sanct Geillis kirk, and ordanit the nixt enfewing Sunday to be excommunicat (altho Pafhe day) throw all the rest of the kirkis of Edinbrughe.

This is to be nottit, that this Committee of the Kirk, without citatioun, probatioun, proces or sentence according to thair owne disciplyn of the Kirk, went on most malicioufflie to excommunicat this noble man and sum of his freindis without lauchfull proces, or ony reffone, bot for his loyaltie to his Majestie the King, doing all thay could to mak him odious in the sicht of the people. Bot the marques wyslie beheld all. Sie [hereafter] the veray act of the commissioneris of the Generall Assemblie maid thairament.

Upone Tuyfday 16 Aprile, [the marques] causit carie to Strathbogie tua of John Anderfonis schip cart peices to ftoke, as wes said, and that samen day convenit the counfall of Abirdene and hail inhabitantis, commanding thame aganes Setterday nixt to provyde thair taxatioun of auchtein thousand and four hundred merkis. The bailleis anfuert, the people wold on nawayes pay the samen, except thay thame selves gave thair band to warrand the toune's people from payment of the samen over agane, which thay said thay could not do, as a mater tending to thair wrack, if the toune war put at agane by the Estaites. The marques anfuert, if the toune wold receive tua hundredth and fyftie soldiouris, and farder as necessitie requyrit, upone frie quarteris, and thay to be payit out of the commoun good for thair intertynnement, he will behald thame; quhairunto the toune condiscendit, thinking it the best way rather then to pay out the taxatioun altogidder. Aluayes thay gat, upone the 18 of Aprile, twelf scoir soldiouris on frie quarteris; and thairefter, upone the 24 of Aprile, thay refavit fourtein scoir moir of soldiouris, making in the hail fyve hundredth and twentie soldiouris, quhilk the thesaurer of Abirdene gat compt of to fustein upone frie quarteris. The thesaurer of Abirdene wes commandit to pay the charges of thir soldiouris to the toune's people who intertynneit thame. Befydis, the marques intertynneit upone his awin expensfis his owne men of Strathbogie, Strathavan, Engzie; and the barronis sustenit thair awin men, whome thay brocht in; and ilk gentilman frieholder did the lyk, so long as thair moneyis leffit, and when thay wantit thay ar forsit to tak frie quarteris with the rest in Abirdene. The marques himself wes above 500 merkis deburfit daylie upone his owne soldiouris, quhilk drew to muche money, quhairof it is said he had about 100,000 pundis when he began lying befyd him in redde money, and schortlie wes consumed.

The toune of Abirdene began to repent thair bargane, thinking it better to have payit thair taxatioun nor to fustein soldiouris daylie, as thay came in, upone frie quarteris, if it continewit long.

Aluayes the marques wes forsit to tak Abirdene as the fitteft pairt for his randevous ; and for thair better eis fent daylie out pairteis to plunder girmellis, who wold not cum in to him ; amonges whome the laird of Lelleis girmellis in Banchorie, and the laird of Wdnyis girmellis ; sic as wes left oncareit to Urie wes plunderit out of Banchorie ; and this wes done upone the 16 of Aprile.

Thair wes found yirdit in Mr. Robert Farquharis clois tua fyne brassin peices pertening to the lord Sinckler, quhilk the marques mellit with about this tyme in Abirdene, and wes glaid in getting thair of.

Tuyfday 16 Aprile wes the day of the Provinciall Assemblée at Abirdene ; bot the ministeris durst not in thir troublefome tymes keip the same for feir of plundering thair hors. Aluaies sic of the bretheren as convenit continewit this Assemblée to Tuyfday the 14 of May, quhilk wes keptit.

Thair cam word to Abirdene, upon Wednesfday the 17 of Aprile, that the lord Elcho wes cum to Dundie with 800 Fyf men ; that the erll of Kingorne, the erll of Southesk and utheris had raifit 800 men ; that the marques of Argyll had raifit out of Perthschire 800 men ; and that thair wes cuming out of Argyll about 1000 men, by and attour 800 men cuming out of Ireland of the erll of Lauthean and laird of Laeris regiment ; and that the erll Marfchall and viscount of Arbutnot had raifit out of the Mernis about 500 men ; and drawing haiftellie to ane heid aganes the marques of Huntlie his freindis and followeris ; and that thair wes committees daylie holding at Forffar for Angus, and at Fordoun for the Mernis ; quhilk over treulie cam to pas. Bot the marques seimit to tak littill heid heirof, albeit his kin wes more forduartlie fet ; quhairupone follouit forrow, schame, and skaith, as ye may heir.

Now the marques, being informit of this preparationis, causit warne be found of trumpet at the cros of Abirdene all siche as had gottin his protection to meit him at Innerurie the 18 of Aprile, with certificatioun his protection sould be null. He appointit Major Hay with sun troupes and foot to keip Abirdene, and, upone the foirsaid 17 of Aprile, rydis from Abirdene to Innerurie ; his goodfone Alexander Irving younger of Drum with about 40 hors follouit him in the efternoue. He rode throw the Old toun, haveing tua collouris, one haveing the Kinges armes, the uther haveing the Irvinges armes. The marques, at his lichtung, causit quarter his men thair convenit at Innerurie, Kintoir, and Muchallis ; him self stayit Wednesfday and Thuirfday in umquhill William Fergusone's hous in Innerurie. He directit out Donald Farquharfone, M'Ronald, the Tutour of Struau with thair folloueris, and some lowland foot men, about tua hundreth and fourtie perfones, to attend sum hors troupes going upone ane expeditioun into Angous ; and so left In-nerurie, [and] cam bak to Abirdene upone Frydday the 19 of Aprile.

Upone Setterday, he caufit dreill wp in the Lynkis sic men as he had with-in the toune, estimat about auchtfoir hors, and betuixt fevin and aucht hundreth foot ; and about four efternone the marques returnit fra the Lynkis to the toune. And immediatlie thairefter Alexander Irving of Drum younger, Robert Irving his brother (who had ingaged thamefelvis in this buffines aganes thair fatheris will, as wes said),

Gordoun of Geicht younger, Johne Gordoun his father brother, Johne Gordoun of Ardlogie, Major Nathaniell Gordoun, Urquhart of Craghoufe, Williame Innes of Tibbertie, Alexander Irving of Kincoffie, and sum utheris, rode that same nicht out of Abirdene wp Die side, about thriefoir tuelf hors, commanderis and all. They gave ordouris to the foot men forsaid, and, upone Mononday the 22 of Aprile, thay passit all over Die, intending onlie to go to Montrois, and to tak the tua brassin Cartowis lying thair, if thay war not impedit ; quhilk wes most dangerous and desperat in respect of an gathering at Fordoun and ane uther at Forfar, and utheris before specifedit. Aluaies foruward thay went, being of all, foot and hors, about 300 men ; and, upone Wedinsday the 24 of Aprile, be tua houris in the morning, with found of trumpet thay cam to the toun, who had set on fyres upon thair stepill to walkin the countrie, and wes in armes thamefelffis, and rang the commoun bell ; bot all for nocht. Thay boldlie enterit Montrois, dang the toune's people fra the calfey to thair houffis, and out of the foirstaires thay schot desperatlie, bot thay war forffit to yield by many feirfull schotes schot aganes thame ; quhair unhappellie Alexander Peirfone ane of thair bailleis wes slayne, sum sayes by Nathaniell Gordoun, utheris holdis by ane hieland man whome the said baillie also flew. Thairefter, it wes said, thay intended to schip thir Cartowis in ane schip lying in Montrois water pertening to Alexander Burnet elder in Abirdene be consent of Alexander Burnet his sone, who hapnit to be thair and had promesit no les, being ane antecove-nanter. Bot, by this Burnetis knowledge, James Scot now proveft of Montrois with certane of his neightbouris had quietlie convoyit thamefelffis with thair best goodis into the said schip. When scho began to sleit, scho drawis nar the schoir, quhair young Drum and his men war thinking to schip thair Cartowis, according to Alexander Burnetis promeis foirsaid, and to have had thame about be sea to Abirdene. Bot, far by thair expectatioun, this schip schot fyve or six peice of ordinans disperatlie amongis thame, with about four-tie muscattis, quhair by the gryte providens of God thair wes bot onlie tuo men killit, and sum hurt. Drum feing this, thay reteirit thame selfis, brak the quheillis of the Cartowis, for mair thay culd not do, nor brak thame thay nicht not, and threw thame over the schoir to mak thame unserviceable; bot thay war brocht to Abirdene, as ye have [hereafter.]

Drum returnis to the toune, and beginis to brak wp merchand boothis, plunder, and cruellie spolzie ritche merchandice, clothis, filkis, velvotis, and uther costlie wair, silver, gold and silver wark, armes and all uther thing, quhairat the hieland men wes not flaw. Thay brak wp a pype of Spanish wyne, and drank hartfullie. Thay took Patrik Lichtoun lait provest, and Andrew Gray, prissoneris. Thay left Montrois in wofull cace, about tuo efternone; syn, that famen nicht, went to Cortoquhy to meit with the erll of Air- lie, who heiring of the marques of Argyllis cunning wold not give thame entrie, contrair to thair expectatioun. Aluays thay returnit thairfra towardis Abirdene; bot be the way thair wes takin 32 hieland men, sum sayis 52, who had unwyylie biddin behind the rest, plundering the Montrois goodis, and is takin, schaklit, and sent to Edinbrughe, to pay for thair faultis. Major Gordoun cam bak to Abirdene upone Frydday the 26 of Aprile; and young Drum went to the place thair of to sie his lady. Patrik Lichtoun and Andrew Gray cam in, with major Gordoun, who declairit the gryte forces that wes gathering, and that the marques of Argyll wes cum to Dunnotter quyetlie; quhilk wes over trew.

It is heir to be nottit, that notwithstanding of the many schotis schot within the toune and out of the schip, yit it pleiffit God that few wes killit to Drumis fyde, except tua or thrie persones, mervallous to sie! and als few to the other fyde, except Alexander Peirfone baillie, who wes schot be Natheniell Gordoun. Thair intentioun wes to have schippit thir Cartowis within the foir- said schip to have brocht about when scho cam with hir ladning to Abirdene; bot thay gat ane cruell affault, as ye have befor, and wes nichtellie disappoyntit.

The tutour of Struan with sum hieland men did brave service with thair schort gunis.

It is said, that Drum causit rais fyre tua severall tymes in Montrois, yit major Gordoun still quensthit and pat out the famen.

Efter this ungodlie and grevous oppressioun, the young laird Drum returnit, as I have said, not with the bodie of ane weill govermit army, as he went out, bot ilk ane efter uther, sfragling; and, upone Setterday the 27 of Aprile, he cam to Abirdene, quhair the marques wes lying still, to his gryte unhap, schame, and disgrace, as heirefter ye may sie.

Ye hard of the marques of Argyllis cuming to Dunnotter. He cam quyetlie, about 32 hors, upone the 26 of Aprile, attending thair the cuming of the Perthschire men, and of the erll of Lauthean and laird of Laeris regiment cuming out of Ireland, of whome ye fall heir moir schortlie. The lord Forbes, and maister of Forbes his sone, Sir Williame Forbes of Cragiwar, Alexander Strathachin of Glenkindie, Forbes of Echt, Skein of that ilk, Forbes of Leslie, Calder of Afloun, and findrie utheris, sic as Androw lord Frazer, Forbes of Tolquhone, Forbes of Wattertoun, Johne Kennedy of Kermuk, Forbes Tutour of Petfligo, Frazer of Phillorth, Sir Williame Forbes of Monymusk, who had tane thame selffis to ftrenthis, cumis now to the feildis. Bot the lord Forbes, the maister of Forbes, Cragiwar, Glenkindie, Echt, Skeyne, and sum utheris, went to the Commitees of Angous and Mernis abefoir the cuming of the marques of Argyll, and the rest keipit thair houffis.

Upone Sunday 21 Aprile, the marques hard fermon in Old Abirdene befoir and efternone, dynit in George Middelton's. Thair cam over ane guard out of the toune about 60 muskiteiris and pikoneiris, with tua collouris, ane drum, and ane bag pipe. Thay attendit the marques lodging, syne returnit bak, and the marques following upone horsbak, to Abirdene.

Johne Kennedy of Kermuk, ane mane covenanter, wes in Aprile first plunderit be Robert Irving, the laird Drumis sone, quhair his best hors and sum armis wes takin fra him; thairefter Sir Johne Gordoun of Haddoche plunderit sum wark hors fra his pure tennentis. He wold eit none of Kermuk's meit; bot baid with Mr Androw Leitcher minister his table, and lay in the place of Kermuk all nicht. His soldiouris lay in Ellon, who gat meit fra the place, and keft in ane littill stak of his beir for thair hors meit. Thay stayit thair 24 houris, syne rode thair way.

Patrik Strathachin of Kynnadie, at this famen tyme, wes plunderit and tane captiv and had to Kelly, becaus he wold not pay the said Sir Johne Gordoun ane fyne. But fra Kelly he wes transportit to Tolly, and fairlie wan away.

Upone Wedinsday the 24 of Aprile, the marques sent Sir Johne Turing of Foverane quyetlie to Dunnotter commissioner to the erll Marischall. He upone the morne returnit tymlic to the marques with ane anfuere not to his contentment, quhilk bred ane suddant alteratioun.

Now nothing bot plundering of poor menis wark hors, and forfit to redeim thair awin beiftis bak agane by payment of moneyis les or mair, and glaid to get thame so. Thair wes ane naig plunderit fra the perfone of Balhelvie, and another fra the chalmerlane.

Alexander Gordoun of Brafinoir leavis the marques service, and gois to the lord Gordoun, who had few abefoir of the name of Gordoun except James Gordoun of Rothemay, and Johne Gordoun of Park, and wes about 32 hors of all in company. This Alexander Gordoun wes mareit to the proveft Patrik Lelleyis dochter, who wrocht upone the lord Gordoun and sum utheris to get the priffoneris out of Auchindoun. By whose persuasioun he rydis, charges Gordoun of Birkinburne, capitane of Auchindoun, to rander him the hous, becaus his father the marques wes fled and away. He anfuerit, he had no warrant fra him to rander his hous, and whill he saw him self he wold keip it; and schortlie schot out sum hagbuttis of found, brak ground befoir him, bot did no moir skaith. Quhairupone the lord Gordoun returnit bak and left the hous, quhilk wes upone the day of Aprile.

The erllis of Montrois, Craufurd, Niddisdail, Traquhair, Kynnoull, Carnueth, the viscount of Oboyne, and lord Ogilvy, cam in with ane company of hors and fut to Drumfreis in this samen mouth of Aprile; bot did no vassalage, and upone thair awin ressones haiftellie returnit bak to Carleill. In the mein tyme James Leslie sone to Johne Leslie of Petcaple, Ruthven, and uther thrie gentlemen, fitting cairlisie drinking behind the company in Drumfreis, war suddantlie takin, had to Edinbrughe, and straitlie wardit in the tolbuith thair of, and thairefter releivit, as ye have heirefter.

Upone Setterday efternone the 27 of Aprile, thair wes 44 soldiouris pertening to William Seyton of Schethin, Mr. James Buchane of Auchmacoy, and James Seytoun of Petmedden, who lay in Old Abirdene whill Tuyfday upone the poor people's charges.

Sonday the 28 of Aprile, the marques hard devotioun in Old Abirdene, dynit in George Middeltoun's hous; wreit, all the efternone's preiching, misfive letteris. He had ane gaird with ane cullour attending upone him, bot nather drum nor pype as befoir. He returnit bak to Abirdene to his lodging.

Upone Monoday the 29 of Aprile, the marques' freindis beginis to gruge and murmur with his delayis, feing his enemeis grow to ane gryte number and his forces daylie decreffing and growing fewer and fewer; and desyrit him haiftellie to go to the Mernis and to Angous and brak thair forces, uthernayis thay war all loist. He hard all, and went to ane counfall of war, quhair the marques alledgit, if he fould leave Abirdene and go to the Mernis, then he wes sure the Forbesses and Fraferis and uther Covenanters fould cum and tak in the toune, and follow him hard at the heilles to the Mernis to his feing perrell and gryte danger ; and declairit he had refſone to delay, in reſpect of his hoipis, quhilk wes now liklie to deceave him. For firſt, he wes informit moſt credible be his owne ſervitour Johne Gordoun (alias Johne of Bernick), that his Majeſtie ſould have ane commiſſioun at him for raiſing of armes, befoir he ſould rys ; 2. That his Majeſtie ſould have in ane army in Scotland about the laſt of Marche for his forder aſſiureans ; quhilkis the ſaid Johne Gordoun be his gryte oath told him, becaus he durſt not carie letteris out of England to him, left they had bein intercepted. 3. He had hopes of the lord Forbes and his owne vaſſallis of that name and divers utheris lordis and erllis fouth and north to have ryſin als ſone as he rais, quhairupone he lay ſtill attending thair ryſing. 4. The good opinioun he did conceive of the countrie people both in brughe and land, grevouſlie groaning wnder the tyrrany and oppreſſioun of the Eſtates, liſting men, hors, loan money, levie money, armes, exciſes, and ſuche like cruelteis, to thair unſpeikabill forrow. Upone thir reſones, he ſaid he had too ratllie ingageit him ſelf and his freindis, quhilkis he perceavit now had cleirlye faillit him, and he knew weil, that he and his freindis wes not abill to give battell to the invinſibill army cuming againſt him ; taking the gryte God to witneſs it wes fore againſt his will, and if he could ſie the leſt ſpark of liklihood or outget, he ſould byd it to the laſt man.

His freindis heiring this diſcourſ (quhilk wes moſt trew) becam forrowfull. Aluaies thay fell upone the nixt beſt cours, quhilk wes, feing thay war unhabill to give battell, that the marques ſould hold his freindis togidder, and goe with ane fleing army, wait upone the wynges of thair enemeis forces, leive upone thair enemyis countrie goodis, and in tyme of neid to draw to Strathbogie, Auchindoun, or the Bog, to the wyreing of the enemy, and byde a better fortoun if ony help ſould cum fra the king for thair releif. This counfall wes approvyn, and, becaus the Southland army wes at hand, thay reſolve to meit at Strathbogie with all the forces thay could mak. Bot major Nathaniell Gordoun who wes rebukit for the herynge prys, as ye hard, miſcontent with this cours, quytis the marques' ſervice, and gois to the lord Gordoun, who wold not heir of him ; and ſo he leivit be him ſelf, of whome ye may ſie moir heirefter.

Upone Tuyſday the 30 of Aprile, he wes informit that his ſone the lord Gordoun wes in the toune of Banf growing to ane heid ; heirfoir he liſtis John Anderſonis tuo cairt peices, and the tuo braſſin peices found in Mr. Robert Farquharis clois, and fent them to Strathbogie, and immediatlie gois to hors for Banf: bot his fone had no sic intentioun as to grow to ane heid againft him.

Upone the first of May, Androw Gray wes fent bak from Abirdene to Montros hail and found; bot Patrik Lichtoun wes fent to Auchindoun, to byd with oure Abirdenis priffoneris. And thairwith Sir George Gordoun of Geicht, Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Robert Irving his brother, with about 60 hors, rode throw the Old toun with new quhyte lances in their handis to Strathbogie. The marques left all his freindis in Abirdene, when he rode to Banf, wnder gryte feir, as thay had caus. From Banf he gois to Strathbogie, quhair his freindis met him, and wes ane brave company about 300 hors and 1500 foot. Upone the day of May, Sir Johnne Gordoun of Haddoche, Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Sir George Gordoun of Geicht, and principallis of his freindis thair, deallis with the marques to give ordour for his fleing army. He changes refolutioun, feing he wes not abill to give battell. It wes said thay anfuert, "We have schawin our felsis foolifhlie, and will leave the feildis schamefullie. We thocht never better of it." Young Drum stayit the marques weil roodlie on going to his hors anes or tuys; quhairat he wes offendit. Aluaies heir thir brave gentlemen pairtis with fore hairtis, and quhairupone mekill forrow fell schortlie thairefter.

The marques rydis in anger upone the morne to Artclach, quhair he wes all night; upone the morne, rydes to Auchindoun, quhilk wes the fevint of May, and immediatlie fetis Patrik Leslie proveft, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Alexander and John Joffrayis, and the said Patrik Lichtoun to libertie, who cam to Abirdene with gryter credet nor thay war takin out of it. He feikis about for his owne faitie, and bydis quyettlie in Auchindoun, quhill ye may fie. Sic also of the incuming of oure Abirdenis priffoneris.

Ye heir how the marques of Huntlie had left the toune of Abirdene, contrair to the expectatioun of many, upone the last of Aprile, leaving his hail freindis within the toune in gryte feir and melancholie of ane Southland army to cum schortlie, as it did; for upone Thuiriday thairefter, the second day of May, thair cam to Abirdene the lord Burly and the lord Eleho with the men of Fyf, with Perthschire men, the erll of Marfchall and vifcount of Arbuthnot with the men of Mernis, the erll of Kingorne and lord of Carnegie with the Angous men. Thair cam out of thir four schires about the number of 2000 fut and 400 hors, by baggage men and hors. Thay war weil furneifhit with ammunitioun, pulder, matche, ball, mufcatis, carribinis, pikis, fuordis, cullouris, piftollis, puterlinges and uther armes, careing this motto, FOR THE COVENANT, RELIGIOUN, THE CROUN, AND THE KING-DOME. Ilk ferverall company had thair capitans, commanderis, and officiares, thair trumpettouris and drumis. Thay cam all in goodly ordour of battell, terribill to thair enemics, and joyfull to thair freindis. Thay took up thair randevous that nicht in the Lynkis and beyond the water at Torry, and fed upone thier awin provifion, whiche wes careit with them.

The marques of Argile who had cum to Dunnotter, as ye hard befoir, rydis thairfra to the place of Drum, about 400 hors, and cam not into Abirdene with the rest of the army. The erll Marfchall cam not in nather with the Mernis men; bot wes with Argile, who also follout him to Drum. Thair cam also to him the erll of Lauthean and laird of Laeris regiment out of Ireland, about 500 brave foldiouris, with wemen.

Sir Alexander Irving of Drum wes not at home when Argile and the rest came; bot his lady, and his gude dochter ladie Marie Gordoun and sifter dochter to Argile, wes present. He and his company war all maid welcum according to the tyme. Thair wes uther 500 foldiouris cuming out of Argile to him also; by and attour the haill north wes at his command. He caufit fchortlie put the ladeis to the yettis, thair haill men fervandis and wemen fervandis also. The ladeis cam out with tua gray plaidis, and gat tua wark naiges whiche bure thame in to Abirdene. The rennegat Irish foldiouris thair-efter fell to, and pitifullie plunderit and abusit this noble hous.

Now at the incuming of this army to Abirdene the covenantaris wes no les blythe nor the noncovenantaris wes wo; for the ane factioun croppit the calsey couragioufflie, prydfullie, and difdanefullie; the uther factioun wes forsit to walk humelie, and to suffer the pryde of thair toun's nightbouris, who rejoifit at thair miserie. Sum fled the toun, utheris convoyit thair goodis out of the way, and ilk noncovenanter did for him self the best maner he could. Howfoever, this army, foot and hors, Hieland and Lawland men, and Irish regiment, wes estimat, bag and baggage, to be about 6000 men, unhappellie raifit by the unfortunat marques of Huntlie's ryfing, to the gryte hurt and wrak of thir north pairtis, as efter ye fall heir, and yit nowayes the marques' fault, as ye hard befoir.

Ye hard of the marques of Argiles cuming to Drum, and of the erll Marfchallis cuming to him, and Irish regiment; whiche regiment leivit upone the laird Drumis victuall and goodis. The marques fchortlie removit the tua ladeis and fet thame out of yettis perforce (albeit the young ladie wes his awin sister dochter) with tua gray plaidis about thair heidis. Thair hail fervandis wes also put to the yett; bot the ladeis cam in upon tua wark naiges in pitifull maner to New Abirdene, and took wp thair lodging befyde the goodwyf of Auchluncart, then duelling in the toun. Then thir runagat Irish foldiouris fell to, and plunderit the place of Drum, quhairin wes stoir of inficht plenifhing and ritche furnitour, and all uther proviounn neecessar. Thay left nothing which could be careit, and brak doun the staitlie bedis, burdis, and tymber wark. Thay killit, and defstroyit the bestiall, nolt, scheip, ky, for thair meit. Thay brak wp girnellis, quhair thay had plenty of meill and malt. Thay fand yirdit in the yaird of Drum ane trunk full of silver plait, goldsmith wark, jewellis, chaynes, ringes, and uther ornamentis of gryte worth, and estimat above 20,000 pundis, quhairof pairt wes sein in Abirdene. Thus, thir ladeis being removit with thair fervandis, and all thingis plunderit by thir Irish rogues, then the marques appointit ane capitane with 50 musketeires of thir people to keip this hous, and left tuo peice of ordinance also with them, quhair thay leivit upone the lairdis girnellis and goodis whill thay war removit, and utheris put in thair place, as ye fall heir. Thair wes following the Irish regiment about 51 wemen with sum young childrein. Thir wemen wes quarterit in Old Abirdene. Thay gat nothing bot hous roune, for thay receavit weiklie ilk woman out of the girnellis of Drum tua peccis of meill, quhairon thay leivit, and wes punctuallie brocht to the Old toun and payit. Thay had ane capitane over thame to fie thame weiklie payit, and that thay did no wrong. So thir wemen remanit in Old Abirdene als long as the men stayit in Drum, and when thay removit thairfra, thay removit out of the Old toun without doing ony wrong. Thus, is this auncient hous of Drum oppreffit, spolzeit, and pitifullie plunderit, without ony fault committit be the old laird thairof; bot onlie for his tua fones following of the hous of Huntlie, and as wes thocht foir against his will also. Aluaies this is to be nottit for the marques of Argile's first peice of service in this play, without love or respect to his sister dochter or innocencie of the old laird Drum, whair for a whyll I will leave him doubtles in greif and distres.

Upone Setterday 4 May, the erll of Kingorne is establisht governour in Abirdene, haveing ane garrifoun to attend him; and about tua efternone the army beginis to marche out of Abirdene, and both the tounes sent out and furnesht baggage horssis to follow them. Thay had the viscount of Arbuthnet, the lord Elcho, the lord Burly, with uther capitanes and commanderis of good worth. Thair wes 25 cullouris, cairtpeices, trumpettaris and drumis, in good ordour. Thay marchit this nicht to Chryftes grein at Wdny, quhair thay lay.

And that famen 4 of May, the marques of Argile, haveing drest the place of Drum as ye have hard, with the erll Marfchall, and Irish regiment, marches from the faid hous towardis Kintor and Innerurie, quhair provifion wes sent out of Abirdene upone both the toune's horffis, and thair they encampit. The innocent old laird Drum cam to thir lordis in humell maner, accompaneit onlie with Mr. Williame Davidfone fehirref depute of Abirdene. He had fum fpeiches with thame, but fand littill comfort. At laft he took his leive, and gat licens to go to Frenndracht, quhair his dochter wes mareit to the viscount of Conva or Frenndracht.

It is faid, quhill as this army is lying at Innerurie, the marques of Argile fent ane trumpettour with ane letter to the marques of Huntlie being in Strathbogie; bot what it wes or what anfuer it receavit I can not tell, for the laird Drum and his brother with fum few utheris wes with him in Strathbogie, with whom he appeirit veray joyfull all that day; and upone the morne thairefter he went quyetlie to Auchindoun, as ye have befoir, quhair I will leave the marques.

Upon Mononday 6 May, the army marchit fra Wdny towardis the place of Kelly, whairon thair wes no rooffe bot the wallis stronglie built standing on volt; for the laird duelt in lauche bigging befyde the hous, and had fortefeit the wallis with faill, quhairby men might stand and defend the hous. The laird had fum freindis, fervandis, and tennentis within the hous, weill furnefhit with meit, drink, and all uther neceffar provifion; and ftore of ammunition, fic as hagbuttis of found, mufcatis, carrabinis, fuordis, pikis, piftollis, pulder, ball, and fuche like. He caufit burne wv his awin ftables, barnes, byres, and uther lauche bigging, left the fame fould be ane fcons or refuge to his enemeis, and at thair approche fehote divers hagbuttis of found and mufcatis to hold thame af; who wes also attending the cuming of the marques of Argile and erll Merfchall who cam from Innerurie to Kelly, accompaniet with the lord Gordoun, the lord Frafer, the maifter of Forbes, and divers uther barronis, leaving his regiment of Irishis lying at Innerurie.

The marques feing this hous could not be win bot with effufion of muche blood fendis ane trumpettour fummonding the laird of Haddoche to rander the hous, utheruys fic as would cum willinglie out and yeild fould have conditionis of thair lives and goodis, and thay who would stand out fould have no mercie. This charge feemit veray ftrange, and with all Walter Ritcheirdfone his cauneir lap the wallis of Kelly and stall away to the camp, to all thair gryter greifis that wes within the hous. At laft the laird and the rest gois to counfall, quhair his men declairit thay wold byd be him providing he wold fehaw thame ane way to stand out, utheruayis thay wold rather yeild now upone conditionis, nor yeild perforce without ony conditionis. The laird of Haddoche wes now put to grite extremetie, and could be no meinis draw thame fra thair opinioun, quhilk doubtles wes thair best, feing ane feirfull army befor thame and no kynd of apeirans of releif to rais them. Nather wes it wifdome to tak the keiping of ane hous aganes ane army, except thay knew of releif by cuning of ane uther army; uthernayis it is not possibill to no strenth long to stand out, bot at laft must yeild. The laird of Haddoche now out of tyme findis his awin folie, and haiftellie hingis out ane signe of parlie and callis for his young cheif the lord Gordoun, to whome he offeris to rander his hous upone condition that him self, his men, and fouldiouris within the famen,ould be faif in thair lives, landis, and goodis; whiche the lord Gordoun could not get grantit. Then he sent for the erll Marfchall craving thir conditionis; quhilkis war plainlie refusit, and the maift that wes grantit wes, that he sould rander his hous, cum out with him self and his men to the marques of Argile and lordis and capitanes of the army, and humelie submit them felffis, lyf, landis, and goodis in the will of the Estaites, and ordour of the army. This wes the maift the erll Marfchall could wirk, albeit indeid the haill men wan away faif and found, except sum few, as ye fall heir. The laird Haddoche yeildis to the erll Marfchall, being his blood freind and laitlie cum of his hous, upone thir conditionis; bot not to his young cheif, who offerit the same conditionis, quhairat he tuke sum exceptioun, as wes thocht. Now the yettis ar all cassin wp. The laird of Haddoche cums out, and all his soldiouris yeildis thame felffis, thair lives, thair landis, thair goodis to the marques of Argile and rest of the nobles and commanderis of the army. Thay keipit Haddoche in the camp, and immediatlie fendis in to the tolbuith of Abirdene Johne Logie sone to Mr. Andrew Logie minister at Rayne, Johne and Alexander Gordouns sones to Gordoun at the milne of Kelly, Chalmer sone to Alexander Chalmer of Drymnes, and Dilgarnoch, his fouldiouris, and quyttit all the rest to go home in peace. Then thay set in about 36 fouldiouris to keip the place of Kelly, whiche thay fand weil furneshit to thair handis with meit and drink, quhairon thay fed lustellie, with about nyne scoir chalderis of victuall in his girnellis; for he had keipit wp mekill of thrie yeiris rent to ane darth, and now gat nothing for it. Statelie wes the plenishing within this hous, and plefant yardis and planting about the famen.

Now the foldiouris brakis lous, and byrnis wp the haille tennentis bigging of Mekill Kelly for the most pairt, the bigging of Overhill, and sum biggingis of Thornehill; and uther bigging thay tirrit, tuke down the tymber and maid luttis thair of; and lykuaies brak down and cuttit the plefant planting to be huttis, and distroyit the grein growing hedges out at the ground. Thay enterit to the haille bestiall, nolt, scheip, ky, pertening to the laird on his maynes and to his tennentis quhairever thay could be found, eit and distroyit wp all. The erll Marshell him self mellit with fyve or sex sadill horffis of good worth, pertening to the laird of Haddoche. His haille armes within the hous, quhair of thair wes plentie, wes pluckit wp and plunderit. Thair wes not ane lok, key, band, dur nor wyndo left onbrokin down daylie to the poor tennentis, cotteris, and girshmen, who for feir of thair lives had fled heir and thair throw the countrie fra thair duellingis, and convoyit sic geir as thay could get out of the way. Thay brak down beddis, burdis, almereis and uther tymber wark, and made fyre of the fame.

Thus is this countrie, both on the one fyde and the other, grevoullie oppressit, and the people crying daylie to God for ane vengeance upone thir cruell covenantis for thair unrichteous warkis, but auchtoritie of the king.

The hous of Kelly wes randerit upone Wedinfday the 8 of May with litle feige, and les skaith, being about tua perones slayne to the assillantis; quhair I will ceas whill [afterwards.]

The famen nicht that Kelly wes randerit, the camp rode to Geicht, both hors and foot; bot the fame wes also randerit upone the morne, the uynt of May, be the laird of Geicht elder. His sone the young laird escaipis with tua or thrie, and being weill horfit lap the park dykis and faillie wan away in presens of the foldiouris lying about the place, who follouit, bot cam no speid to thair gryte greif. The old laird is keipit besyde Haddoche, and his foldiouris set at libertie. Thair is ane capitan with about 24 foldiouris put within the place of Geicht, quhilk wes weill provydit with meit, and drink, and uther necessaries; and quhairin thair wes store of ammunitioun, pulder and ball, with victuall in girnellis aboundantlie. Thair wes tua foldiouris slayne to the camp but more blood. Sie heirefter of the marques of Argyllis removing.

Ye hard befor, how Haddoche had plunderit and takin Patrik Strathachin ane discreit gentilman, wairdit him in Kelly fyftein dayis. He thairefter sent him to the place of Tolly Barclay, whiche wes takin in be the marques of Huntlie, and Hew Gordoun maid capitane over 16 foldiouris appointit to be keiparis thairof. Bot this Patrik Strathachin maid quyet freindſchip amongis the foldiouris, took the capitane, and keipit the hous manfullie whill the army came; and fynne came bravelie out, and gat his hors and arnes agane, quhilk Haddoche had plunderit fra him.

Now as the marques of Argile is at thir houſis, the Irifh regiment lay ſtill at Imerurie, of whome ye hard befor.

Upone thair bak, cam to Cromar, Bras, Oboyne, Strathachin, and countreis about, 800 Argile Hieland men, quhair thay had in allowans ilk day, to be takin of the countrie, 24 bollis meill, ſex ſcoir wedderis, and mairtis, with thrie ſcoir dolleris of money.

Let the wyſer fort now judge how this poor land is fore oppreſt by incuming of thir armyes againſt the kingis auctoritie. Bot I leave thame taking wp thair rentis and moneyis. And thay leivit upone the marques of Huntleis landis in Cromar, Glenmuck, and Glentanner, and upone the laird Drumis landis of Cromar, Strathachin, and in the landis of Birs, fra thair cuming thair, quhilk wes upone the day of May quhill the thrid day of June, as ye fall ſie heirefter.

Ye hard of the marques of Huntleis going to Auchindoun. Howſone he cam, he fet to libertie Patrik Leſlie proveſt, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Alexander and Johne Joffrayis, and Patrik Lichtoun in Montros, upone Twyſday the 7 of May, with gryter credit nor thay war takin. And thay, blyth of this good luck, cam all ryding to Abirdene throw the Old toun couragiouſlie, and lichtit in the toun with gryte joy, upone Thuirſday the 9 of May, about 8 houris at evin.

Upone Setterday 11 May, the lord Gordoun cam in to old Abirdene with his owne domeſtikis, and lodgit at George Middiltoun's hous; and, upone the morne eſter eſternoone's fermon, he rode out of the toun agane.

Upone Sunday the 12 of May, Mr. Williame Strathachin, eſter fermon, red out of the pulpit of Old Abirdene the tuo Actis following.

Follouis the uther Act red out of pulpit.

Edinburch, 12 Aprile 1644.

Forfamekill as George marques of Huntlie, and his adherentis and followeris, viz. Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Robert Irving his brother, Sir Johne Gordoun of Haddoch, Williame Seytoun of Schethin, Williame Innes of Tibbertie, Mr. James Kennedie fervitour to the said marques of Huntlie, and Thomas Hay fervitour to the said Sir Johne Gordoun, have not onlie refused to joyne with this kirk and kingdome in the Solempne League and Covenant, for reformatioun and defens of religioun, the honor and happines of the king, the peace and faitie of the thrie kingdomes of Scotland, England, and Ireland: bot have now also put them selves in a posture of warr, and, with sum forces collectit togidder, displayit ane oppin baner agaiñt the honorable Estates of this kingdome joyned togidder by solempe oathis and subfcriptionis in the said League and Covenant; and, in this rebellious, have already begun to tak his Majesties good subjectis out of their owne houffis, detein them in firmance, rob and spoyll them of thair goodis and meinis of lyveliehood, be threatis, oppreßionis, and uther violent wayes, to force them to joyne in this infurrectioun; invade and posses them selfis in frie brughis; compell and induce schires to dishonorabill and disloyall capitulationis and conditionis; and by fals pretenfes of auctoritie and the eis of the subjectis emitted in publict declarationis, quhilk thay caus reid in kirkis and other publict places, delude and abuse the people; and reproche all the meinis used by this kirk and kingdome, in pursuance of the said happy Covenant, and the endis exprest thairin. Thairfoir the Commiffioneris of the General Assembly taking the premissis to thair ferious consideratioun, and fynding this rebellious conspiracie and infurrectioun agaiñt this kirk and kingdome to be ane haynous offence agaiñt God, and ane heighe contempt of all ecclesiasticall and civill auctoritie, and that the samen, in all the particular aggreycing circumstances thairof, is publict and notour thrownt this kirk, according to the example of former tymes in like caces ordaines the said George marques of Huntlie and his adherentis in this rebellious, particularlie above mentionat, to be excommunicat summarlie upone the next

Sic subscribitur, A. KER.

Thir tua Actis wes red out of the kirkis of New Abirdene the famen day also, whair, by and attour, intimation wes thair maid of the excommunication of James erll of Montros, erll of Niddifdail, erll of Traquhair, erll of Carnueth, erll of Kinnoull, James viscount of Oboyne, and lord Ogilvy.

Thir perones had bein excommunicat, efter the same ordour, and for the same caus that the marques of Huntlie and his followeris war excommunicat. Bot sum sspace befor at Edinbrughe thir lordis wes excommunicat; bot intimation wes not maid heir thairof at oure Old toun churche. Aluayes the lord Gordoun cam not to the preiching befor noon to heir his fatheris excommunication intimat; bot cam efternone, fyne rode out of the Old toun, as is befor said.

Upone Monoday the 13 of May, the marques of Argyle, the erll Marfchall, the lord Gordoun, the viscount of Arbuthnot, the lord Burilly, with divers utheris brave gentlemen, about 100 hors, cam fra the camp lying at Kellie, leaving the lord Elcho behind thame, and cam to Abirdene throw the Lynkis. And following in ane other company thair cam Sir George Gordoun elder of Geicht, John Gordoun his brother german, and Sir Johne Gordoun of Had-doche. Thay stayit in Abirdene, whill upone Wedinsday 15 of May thay war sent fouth to Edinbrughe with ane troupe of hors. Likuaies wes sent with him the goodman of the Milne of Kelleis tua fones callit John and Alexander Gordouns, Chalmer sone to Alexander Chalmer of Drymmeis, John Logie and Dilgardno.

Upone Tuyfday 14 May, the Provinciall Assemblies fitis down in Abirdene, quhilk wes prorogat to this day, as ye have befor. The persone of Belhelvie being last moderatour, as the custum is, preichit this day. The marques of Argyll, the erll of Kingorne with the rest wes thair, quhilk maid wp a fair audiorie. Efter fermon, the bretheren convenit, and with them the said marques of Argyle. Mr. Androw Cant is chofin moderatour to the nixt Provinciall Assembly. The said marques no doubt had his owne instructions to give to this province befor the cuming of the nixt Generall Assembly; and withall he began to regrait the coldnes of sum of the ministrie, who wold not boldlie, ilk man out of his owne pulpit, declair the odioufnes of this rebellium of the Gordouns, and what danger, fchame, and forrow might follow thairupone; quhilk, if ilk minifter within his parochin had pouerfullie declairit it micht have bein a mein to have stayit mony to have ryfin in sic a desperat buffines. Bot withall, he said, it wes to be feirit thair wes sum of thame selfis difaffected to this good caus, and not fo found as apertenit. For remeid quhairof he defyrit the moderatour to voice out tuelf of thair bretheren to fit with him and the rest of the noble men at thair Committee, efternone, and thay to refave sum ordour thairfra. Quhairof ane article wes, that Mr. Andrew Cant, now moderatour, fould this same efternone tak the othes of the hail moderatouris and minifteris present within this diocie in ample forme, that thay war foundlie affected to the good cause according to the tennour of the Covenant: 2. That ilk moderatour fould tak the othes of such minifteris as wer absent within his presbitrie: 3. That ilk minifter upone his fuorne aith in all haift fould condiscend and give wp in Roll wnder his subfcriptioun the malignant minifteris within this diocie or difaffected minifteris, according to his knowlege; and ilk minifter, within his owne parochie, to declair siclike be roll the malignant laick perfones within his parochin: 4. To give wp in Roll ilk minifter the names of sic perfones as rais with the Gordouns: 5. That ilk minifter fould give wp in Roll the names of papiftis, the heritouris, and friehalderis within his parochin, with a testificat that the Act maid thairanent befor wrettin wes publictly red at thair kirkis according to the defyre thair-of; and ilk minifter, befor thay dissolve, deliver to the saidis tuelf minifteris, callit ane Subcommittee, his awin Roll subfcrivit with his hand, to the effect that thay fould bring these Rollis with them to Turref the 16 day of May.

Thir ordouris bred both feir and fasherie to the bretheren of this Assamble; bot no remeid. Ilk man began presentlie to censur his parochineris upone the poyntis foirsaidis, maid wp and subfcrivit thair Rollis and deliverit thame to the Subcommittee of tuelf minifteris foirsaidis, to the effect above specifcit, upone Wednisday the 15 of May efternone, that thay might keip Turref. And fo this Assamble dissolvit this samen day. Bot remember thay gave wp the names of all excommunicat papiftis within thair parochins also in the saidis Rollis. Sie heirefter what follouit upon thir Rollis.

Upone Tuyfday 14 of May, the tua Cartowis wes brocht about fra Montrois to Abirdene be sea; bot thair wheilles wes hakit and hewin by the Gordouns, as ye have hard. Thair can also tua uther iron cart peices to the fchoir, quhair thay all war laid on, careit about be thrie boittis. And that famen day thair cam to Abirdene, out of ane of the parlamentares schippis lying in the road, six fischer boatis ladnit with muscat, pulder, matche and ball; and ilk boit had nynelcoir muscatis within hir with thair materiallis. Thir waires wes sent a schoir in oure owne fischer boites to the marques of Argile out of the said schip, who had ordour from the said parliament of England so to do. Thir muscatis wes receavit and put wp in houffis to be keipit.

This famen Tuyfday and 14 of May, the laird Dwn directit ane rate of muskiteris to Mr. Williame Lumfden's hous in Old Abirdene, him self and his wyf bothe war excommunicat papistis. Thay fed upone hir expenffis, becaus hir husband wes quyetlie at home and escaipit. Upone the morne scho wes compellit to give 400 merkis (to be quyte of thair cummer) for ane protectioun to saif hir hous onplunderit, and hir tennentis ondiftressit, subserivit by the erll of Kingorne. Befydes, thay plunderit out of the hous sun gunis, fiordis, and uther things, and ane ryding naig out of the Loche, or ane wark naig.

Upone Wedinfday 15 May, the marques of Argile, the erll Marfchall, the erll of Kingorne, the viscount of Arbutlnet, the lord Gordoun, the lord Burly, cam ryding throw the Old toum, about 12 houris, with found of tua trum-pettouris, about 200 hors, and set thame felfis for Turreff to keip thair meiting the 16 day of May. Bot the day befoir, thir nobles cam over and viseit oure Old toum Colledge, about 6 houris at evin; syne returnit back to New Abirdene agane. So thay cam from Abirdene, as is befoir said; and, upone Thuirfday the 16 of May, the marques of Argile, the erll Marfchall, the erll of Kingorne, the viscount of Arbutlnet, the lord Gordoun, the lord Burly, cam to Turreff. The lord Elcho cam from the ligger, lying at Geicht and Kelly, to this meiting. And siclike thair cam the erll of Findlater, the viscount of Frenndraucht, the lord Forbes, the lord Frafer, the lord Banf, with many baronis, heritouris and friehalderis within the schires of Abirdene and Banf. Thair cam also out of the schire of Morray, the laird of Innes, the laird of Grant, the schirref of Morray, and divers utheris gentilmien. Thay met altogidder upone the Inche of Turreff, and wes estimat about seven hundreth hors and 1300 foot. Thay had ten cullouris, ten drumis, sex trum-pettouris with brave capitanes and commanderis, and weil armit fouldiouris. The names of all the friehalderis and heritouris of Abirdene and Banf ar callit be the schirref clerk Mr. Patrik Chalmer in Abirdene af of the Rollis. The burrowis send thair Commiffioneris whiche war within thir tuo schires. The names of absentis wes preceisslie nottit. The moderatouris and ministeris of the diocie of Abirdene war callit ; and thair compeirit the tuelf ministeris of the Subcommittee, and in thair names producit the names of all excomunicat papiftis, difaffected ministeris, all malignant laick perfonis, the names of sic perfonis as rais with the Gordouns, the names of all heretouris and friehald-eris. Now ilk minister had givin wp vnder his hand the names of sic perfones as is abovewritten, and ilk presbitrie had givin wp vnder thair hand the names of the difaffected ministrie within thair presbitrie, and deliverit the famen to the Subcommittee foirfaid, to produce in thair names, quhilk held in thair travellis fra cuming to Turref to this meiting. Thir Rollis being produceit, and all men callit and the absentis nottit, then thay went to muster thair men upone the foirfaid Infche estimat about 2000 hors and foot, as faid is, whiche cam out of the schires of Abirdene and Banf allanerlie. Efter muster, thay war all chargeit be found of trumpet not to depairt out of Turref whill upone the morne that thay receive thair orderis ; quhilk being cum, thay muster agane, and then the marques of Argile in name of the publict gave thame all thankis oppinlie for this thair obedient meiting and conventioun out of the thrie schires of Abirdene, Banf, and Morray ; warning with all thofe of the two former schires to be at ane Committee to be haldin in Abirdene upone the 24 of May for taking ordour with the horfmen, footmen, and armes to be leavied, loan money, levy money, and uther taxationis. He declairit likaues, that thair wes ane generall muster of the schires of Abirdene, Banf, and Mernis to be keipit the fourt of June next within the Lynkis of Abirdene, and chargeit thame all to be thair : bot few compeirit, or none at all, that day. So upone Frydday the 17 of May efter none this meiting dissolvit at Turref, and the marques of Argile sent sum trouppis of hors to Elgin, chargeing thame to arreist the boittis on thair coastis, that no boitis fould go to sea whill his forder plesour, feiring the marques fould flie be sea, as he did indeid. In the mein tyme he cam fra Turref to Cullein of Boyne, quhair he soupit with the erll of Findlater his cufing german upone Setterday the 18 of May, quhair I will leave him.

The marques of Huntlie lying quyetlie all this tyme in Auchindoun, and having his owne intelligens how all matteris past at Turref, he takis occasion and schortlie leavis this streth and quyetlie convoyis him self to the Bog of Geicht, haveing in his company James Gordoun of Letterfury, Johne Gordoun sone to Johne Gordoun of Auchinunzie, and Johne Gordoun alias Johne of Bernick ; and takis out of this place sum trunkis of gold and silver, quhairof he had plenty, and sum costlie rich apparell ; thairefter fendis the keys to his sone the lord Gordoun with his statelic fadill horffis ; fyne rydis the water of Spey, he being cleid in cot and trewis with ane blak bonet on his heid. He cumis to Salterhill, quhair ane Alexander Gordoun duelt, takis ane fleip, directit the said James Gordoun and John of Bernik with his trunkis to Coufie, and to provyde ane boit ; quhair thay fand ane Caithnes boit be chance, schippis the trunkis, and takis the sea schortlie, and landis in Caithnes leaving the marques behind thame in Drany to his owne haferd with John Gordoun of Auchinnyzie his sone onlie with him. He leaves ane thousand dollers with this Alexander Gordoun in his keiping, becaus he could not get thame careit, quhilk he thairefter reveillit and deliverit to the lord Gordoun ; and be moyan of James Gordoun in Kinnedour his fuintyme servitour getis ane boit quicklie at Coufie, schippis and landis in Sutherland him self, John Gordoun and the said James Gordoun. The boit returnis with the said James, and he gois to his owne hous. The marques with his man speiris for ane ailhous, callis for ane drink, and fendis for Gordoun of Syddra duelling hard befyde. He cumis and lodgit him in his awin hous all nicht. Upone the morne, he with his man rydis to Caithnes, stais with his cousing german Frances Sinckler that nicht, meitis with James Gordoun of Letterfurie and gave him no thankis for leaving of him behind, takis ordour with his trunkis, dismis him home, and him self with his man upone the morne horffis and to Strathnaver gois he. Thir calameteis he did patiently suffer for his loyaltie to his maister the king. He boitis at Cathnes and gois be sea to Strathnaver, quhair he remanit fore against his will whill the 4 of October 1645.

Ye hard how the marques of Argyle cam to Cullen upone Setterday. He wold not byde efter supper to take ane bed, bot rode all nicht and cam to the laird of Innes hous in Elgin, quhair he lodgit ; hard devotioun upone the morne being Sunday. The Provinciall Assemblies at this veray tyme hapnit to sit down in Elgyn, whiche Argyle cairfullie attendit, and gave the bretheren sic instructionis to attend the enfewing Generall Assembly as he did heir at oure Provinciall Assembly in Abirdene. Bot heiring of the marques of Huntlyis escaip in ane oppin filher boat, he wes heichlie offendit, sent schortlie for the boit men, James Gordoun in Kinnedder, and the said Alexander Gordoun in Salterhill ; and befor the Committee in Elgin thay ar severallie suorne and examinat anent the conveying away of the said marques. Thay all confessit the veritie of his imbarcking and lauding, and who wes with him. Thay wer all callit evill countrie men, and so lettin go ; bot the said Alexander Gordon is ordanit to compeir befor the Committee at Abirdene the 24 of May, and bring the 1000 dolleris with him, quhilk he did, and had ordour to deliver the dolleris to the lord Gordoun, and so wes lettin go.

In the mein tyme Argile bydis in Elgin thrie days ; and schortlie directis the Irish regiment to tak in Auchindoun, thair to remane, quhair thay had flore of provisioun, meit, and drink aneuche in gryt plentie ; fyne leavis Elgin, and returnis bak to Abirdene upone the 24 of May, quhair the said Alexander Gordoun wes orderit, as ye hard.

A litle befor this tyme thair wes sein in the toune of Gellen pertening to the erll Marfchall, within the parochin of Strathachin, ane feirfull unnaturall fyre, quhilk kyndlit of it self, and brynt the bigging of this toune onlie. When the people saw this fyre, thay ran to quensh and framp it out ; bot quhair it wes quenfbt in ane pairt, it brak wp in another pairt. It brynt wp ane byre with nolt and oxin, none knowing quhairfra it cam. It feimit to be ane prognostick of far gryter fyre raifit on this erllis landis.

Ye hard befor how the place of Kelly and place of Geicht war bothe randerit. Thair wes sum bigging brynt to the tenentis about Kelly, becaus the laird, for his awin defens, had brynt wp sum of his awin barnes and byres. He had sex young children within the place, which when it was randerit war all put to the yett saif and found. Freindis took thrie of thame, and uther thrie wes sent in to Old Abirdene for lerning at the scoollis ; bot had not ane penny of thair fatheris estait bestowit upone thame. Bot thir faulles soldiouris leivit welthellie upone thair fatheris meinis ; and thair, and in the place of Geicht also, thay distroyit wp all ; and dureing their residens at thir tuo places sat not idill, bot plunderit them both. And first thay tuke out the staitlie inficht and plenishing, sic as bedding, naiprie, veschell caldrons, chandleris, fyre veschell, quhair of thair wes plentie, kiftis, cofferis, cabinetis, trunkis, and all uther plenishing and armour, quhair of thair wes plentie in both thir houffis, quhilk thay could get careit on hors or foot, bot wes takin away fouth ; togidder with the haill oxin, nolt, ky, hors, meiris, and scheip, quhilkis war upone the saidis maynes of Haddoche and Geicht, and not ane four footed best left that thay could get. When thir commodeteis wes plunderit and spoilzeit, then thay began to wirk upone the tymber wark quhilkis war fixt, and thair thay cruellie brak doun the wanefcot burdis, bedis, capalmeris, tymber wallis, fylring, toome girnellis and the lyk, and maid fyre of all. Thay took out the iron yettis, iron flancheouns of windois, brak doun the glassin windois, and left nather yett, dur nor wyndo onbrokin doun ; and in effect left thame desolat befor thay removit.

Ye hard befor, of the meiting at Turref, and of the Rollis givin wp be the Subcommittee of the miniftrie of all excommunicat papiftis, difaffected minifteris, and malignant laickis. Ordour wes givin at Turref to James Douglas, maiffer in Edinbrughe, attending this fervice, to fummond thir perfones, and the marques of Huntlie, the laird Drum, his brother, and renanent folloueris, at the marcat cros of Abirdene, to compeir befor the faid Committee to be holdin thair the 24 of May, to anfuer to fic pointis as wes contenit in his letteris daitit at Turref; quhilk the faid James Douglas ufit at the faid marcat cros upone the 22 of May, whiche wes thocht over fchort and fummur ane charge.

Now Williame Seytoun of Schethin, and Williame Innes of Tibbertie, as folloueris of the marques of Huntlie, both thair houffis pitifullie plunderit, and thair ground fpolzeit, nothing left thame; and Tibberteis mihe brynt wp be fyre moft cruellie be the foldiouris of the faid army.

Word cam heir of ane gryte overthrow givin to oure Scottis men lying at Morpet be the kingis forces :*—That the erll of Kalander wes lying at Duns with about 4000 men attending the making of ane army of 16,000 foot and 2000 hors, quhilk wes lifting diligentlie throw all Scotland, to be ane recrew to generall Lesleis army now lying in England at York; to whome cam the erll of Fairfax with 3000 hors and foot, quhilk betuixt thame maid wp ane ftrong army, with help of the erll of Manchester, aganis oure royall king; quhilk wes foughten, Prince Robert routit, and York takin in.

Upone the 24 of May, thair wes ane Committee holdin in the tolbuith of Abirdene be the erll of Kingorne, the lord Forbes, the lord Burly, the lord Elcho, the lord Frafer, the laird Druun elder, and findrie uther barronis. Thay caufit call in the foirnone the Rollis of excommunicat papiftis; and fic of the marques' freindis as wes at the plundering of the toune of Banf, as ye hard before, and at Montrofs; 3. All fic perfones as rais and affistit the faid marques of Huntlie; 4. Sic perfonis as wes nonfubferibantis of the Covenant and difaffected to the good caus; 5. Sic as had fubferivit and yit difaffected; 6. Sic as wes malignant or reffonit or fpak any thing privatlie or publictie aganis this good caus. Thir fix fortis of people wes givin wp with the difaffected minifteris throwout the prefbitreis and parochins of Abirdene and Banf be the minifteris thame felffis at Turref, as ye have hard; and at Abirdene thir Rollis wes callit. As this wes in doing the marques of Argile lichtis and cumis to the tolbuith, quhair the abfentis wes nottit, and fic as wes present ordanit to compeir the morne at 8 houris. The portis ar fraitlie watchit nicht and day. All man had entrie, bot none wan out without ane pafs.—Upone Saterdag the 25 of May, ilk perfone compeirand wes compellit to give band wnder the pane of 5000 pundis to compeir befor the nixt parliament, and thair to wnderly the law for thair transgressionis, and for sic as wes to be laid to thair charges, and in the mein tyme to keip the kingis peace; and to this effect they fet caution be band. Sic as nicht get caution, obey it, and wan hame. Sic utheris as could not get caution wes wairdit in the tolbuith of Abirdene.—Sonday thay hard devotioun.—Mononday 27 of May, the erll Marfchall cam in from Dumnotter to this Committee.—Tuyfday thay ar maid burgeffis of Abirdene, sic as the marques of Argile, the lord Burly, the lord Elcho, and gat the wyne liberally.

Wedinfday 29 of May, the toune of Abirdene, in the proveft and balleis name, warnit be touk of drum to conven in the Gray Freir kirk of Abirdene; whair, the fanen day, the proveft, Patrik Leslie, in all thair presentis maid ane speiche, first purging him self by his gryte oathe, that he wes faif and frie of ony dilatioun of his nightbouris thair welth, or affectioun to the marques of Argile or ony uther; bot what wes done and dilated wes be the invy and malice of the nightbouris amongis thame selfis. 2. He declairit the marques of Argile his good opinioun he conceavit of the people of Abirdene, taking thame to be war exposit nor thay war indeid. 3. He told, the marques wes to use no rigorous dealling aganis Abirdene; bot that thay fould beir alyk burding with the rest of the burrowis according to thair strentb, and no uthernys, and conforme to the judgment of the next enfewing parliament, quhilk thay fould fie. And becaus the brughe of Dundie had advancit ane thousand pund stirling in this expedition, it wes gryt reffone the toune of Abirdene fould advance alfinekill, upone band that, if the Estaites careit this caus, thay fould be repayit with the annuellis; if utheruayes, thay wold get no payment, yea and befydis thay wold be forsit to len 100,000 pundis stirling upone the lyk fort of band. This speiche endit, the dean of gild with the burgeffis of gild went to consultatioun privatlie amongis thame selfis, and presentlie condiscendit to advance and len ane thousand pund stirling, for the quhilk ilk man frie and unfrie wes foundlie taxt.

Now divers hors troupes daylie cuming from the army lying at Kelly and Geicht; that the erll Marfchall and erll of Kingornes regimentis disbandit; and that it wes apointit, that the marques of Argile's regiment of Argile hieland men fould ly still in Birs, Cromar, and boundis about; that the lord El-chois regiment of Fyf fould be still in New Abirdene about 700 foot, with ane troup of Argile's horfmen ; and that the Irish regiment fould alfo difband, as ye have heirefter.

About this tyme and moneth of May, the erll of Lauthean cam to Edinbrughe from England quhair he wes wardit, as ye may fie befor. He gat libertie be exchange of ane uther lord of the kingis, who wes takin be the parliament of England priffoner liknaies.

Ye hard before, how the laird of Geicht, and the laird of Haddoche, John and Alexander Gordouns fons to Gordoun at the milne of Kellie, Chalmer fone to Alexander Chalmer of Drymmeis, Johne Logie, and Dilgardno, war brocht in to Abirdene. Now, it is faid, the laird of Haddoche and the Joffrayis drank togidder be mediatioun of fun freindis, and thay pafit fra thair part of his fyne. Thairefter, upone the 15 of May thay war transportit fra Abirdene with ane gaird to Edinbrughe, and thair wairdit moft fchamefullie in thair tolbuith, and fraittlie keipit to thair gryt greif and difplefour ; quhair I will leave thame amongis thair enemeis handis abyding tryellis. Bot thair wes no agrieans maid betuixt Haddoche and the Joffrayis, as is formerly faid.

The hors troupes now daylie are cuming fra the camp to both Abirdenis, leaving the foot army behind thame at Kellie and Geicht, wha alfo cam upone Thuirfday the 30 of May from thefe boundis, and quarterit that nicht upone the laird of Balgounyis boundis, callit Thomas Meinzes, a papift, and out of the country for his religioun. Thair that nicht thay lay, whill the uther regiment of the erll of Kingorne's wes removit out of Abirdene, that thay nicht get thair rounne, plundering the ground, and destroying the grein growing cornes, at thair plefour.

Upone Frydday the laft of May, thay marchit in to Abirdene and was quarterit thair and in Old Abirdene alfo. Thair was flayne that famen day be fun of Kingorne's regiment ane callit Johne Martyne, ane laxfisher on Die and fervitour to Mr. Mathow Lumfden, and ane uther hurt ; for the quhilkis the malfactouris wes aprehendit at the erll of Kingorne's command, and wardit in the tolbuith of Abirdene, but wan frie. And he and his regiment removit out of Abirdene upon Setterday the firft of June, efter the toune gat good payment for thair quarteris. And in thair places cam in the lord Elchois regiment confifting of about 700 foot, and ane hors troup of the marques of Argile's confifting of 60 men, war orderit to ly in Abirdene upon all haferdis incafe of ryfing agane in this countrie ; quhilk did littell good, bot wrakit the toune of Abirdene with thair quartering. Sic men as wes put in Drum pertenit to the erll of Lauthean and laird of Laeris regiment. Thay war removit, and als mony of the lord Elchois regiment war put in thair places at this tyme to keip that hous.

Ye hard how the Committees wes daylie halding in Abirdene. Thay ar curious to try everie manis eftait; and being fullie informit of thair meinis and welth, both in brughe and land, then thay ar fummound to compeir befoir thair Committee in Abirdene, quhair the marques of Argile daylie fat in the tolbuith with the rest, and thair thay defyrit from ilk man of sic ane certan foume, as thay knew thay micht lift or advance to the Estaites, upone band of repayment agane; quhilk if the people did obey, thay war inactit for the sámen; and if thay disobeyit, no more bot sending out pairtyis to plunder thame, at the leist to put thame to the horne. Thus both ministeris and laickes wes not spairit that had ony moneyis. And sic as was not actit befoir the Committee wes urgit in Abirdene to subscribe ane band callit ane Blind band, quhair ilk man wes oblegit to len the Estaites sic ane foume blank, the terme of payment blank; or uthernayes to becum cautioneris for the Estaites to ony uther man who had money, if thay wantit money of thair awin to len, for sic ane foume blank, the terme of payment blank, and the Estaites to be oblegit to releive thame of thair cautionarie. Thus sic as had moneyis wes forsit to len out the sámen without hope ever to get repayment bak agane. And sic as had no moneyis upone bank, yit responfall and powerfull besyde, is compellit to becum cautioneris for the Estaites to sic as had moneyis; and yit thay knew not how mekill thay war cautioneris for, nor whome to thay war oblegit, nor what wes the terme of payment. By whiche meinis the kingis subjectis ar brocht wnder sic conditionn that thay knew not what to do, nor how to leive, feing thair meinis tane daylie fra thame, quhilk they had maid fore travell for, to the impoverishing of thame felffis, thair wyffis, and barnes; and nather covenanter nor noncovenanter, minister, nor country men, wes spairit. Quhilk doubtles wes the just judgement of God for begining sic a covenant with oppin rebellious aganes so good and gracious a king; and surelie thair was mony covenanteris that privatlie wislit it had not bene begun, and grevoullie murmurit aganes thir proceedings; bot thay durst not speik nor yit complane.

Thair wes mony actis maid befoir Argile departit at this Committees; amongis whiche it wes enactit, that he sould have 18,000 merkis for inbringing of the marques of Huntlie to the Estaites quick or deid, and als mekill for inbringing of the young laird Drum ; and sic uther founnes for his brother, young Geicht, Nathaniell Gordoun, and divers utheris perfones who followit the said marques.

Thir thingis done, the marques of Argile, upone Frydday the last of May, took his leive of Aberdene, quhair all this tyme he wes lodgit in the proveft Patrik Lesleis hous most honourable. And when he went to hors, he wes convoyit with nobles, barronis, burgeffes, bair heidit for the most pairt ; so heichlie wes he in thir dayis exalted, litle inferiour to ane king ; who promefit also to retorne bak to Abirdene to the gryte Committee apointit to be halden the twenty fourt day of July. And he went that nicht to Dumnotter, leaving ordouris behind him for holding of Committees, for ingathering of men, and money, and horffis, and victuallis, to be sent to oure army in England. So that sic victuall as wes left onplunderit, eittin, and diftroyit, wes schippit heir and thair, throw all thir north pairts ; so that nather covenant-er nor noncovenanter thair girnellis wes spairit : bot the covenant-eris had condition of payment from the generall commiffare Johne Denhame of aucht merkis for the boll, quhairas thay keipit wp thair victuall, looking for ten pund the boll fra the countrie people. The just judgement of God upone the covenant-eris.

About this tyme the master of Banf, the lord his father being in Edinbrughe, unhappellie hurt ane serjaunt who wes wrongonflie plundering his fatheris boundis, quhairupone follouit that his hous of Raitty wes pitifullie plunderit and abusit, and his girnellis brokin wp, and victuall diftroyit. The maister him self fled and durst not be sein in the countrie. Quhilk wes no doubt greivous to his father now fummoundit over to the parliament and attending the famen, and feing his hous and ground so fore opprest ; quhilk wes done be foldiouris of the Irish regiment.

Our soueraigne lordis seffion sat not down in Edinbrughe the first of June ; bot in respect of thir troubles wes continewit to the first of November, quhair- by the kingis leiges wes frustrat of justice this seffion. Yet inferiour courtis sat daylie after the old maner and began the first of June.

Ye hard befoir of the incuming of the foot army from Geicht and Kelly, leaving aluaies bothe houffis weil manit for keiping of the famen. Thay cam in with sleing cullouris, and trumpettouris, and drumis, in good ordour, with thair cannonis, ammunitioun, and cairt peices, and uther armes. Bot thair wes no cannonis. Aluaies both brughe and land wes plaguit to furneish thame baggage hors from the foirfaidis boundis to Abirdene, and from that south.

refolvit to cum to Abirdene to plunder the famen, except thay gat good payment of their wages promittit to thame befor thay cam out of Ireland, and that whidder the Fyf regiment lying in Abirdene wold or not. This regiment be directioun had bein at Turref, Banf, Auchindoun and uther pairtis in the countrie, and now wes cum to Drum. The toune of Abirdene, heiring of the refolutioun of this rafcall merciles regiment, went fehortlie and condiscendit to lift amonges thame felffis 20,000 pundis, and to len the famen to the provest, bailleis, and thefaurer of Abirdene, who be thair band in name of the Estaites becam oblegit to repay bak agane the said foune to the toune of Abirdene, to be divydit amongis thame, ilkane for his awin pairt. This band being maid, and the moneyis listit, the famen wes deliverit to Mr. Robert Farquhar to be distribute be him according to his ordour. And first he payit to the Irish regiment now lying at Drum, upone the thrid day of June, being about 800 brave footmen by thair commanderis' 4000 merkis. Efter the recept quhairof, thay took the heiche get fra Drum south. By and attour the toune and countrie furneslit hors to carie thair baggage which cam by sea to Abirdene, and sent thair wyfis out of Old Abirdene, which had lyein beir fea the day of May, to overtak thame at Fettercarne. And so Abirdene wes weill quyte of this Irish regiment with the rest, suppose upone thair awin expensis; and no regimentis wes left, bot the lord Elehois regiment of Fyf men, in Abirdene, and ane regiment of the marques of Argile's hieland men, callit the Clengeris, who lay in Birs, Cromar, Glentanner, Glenmuk, Abirzeldie, Oboyne, and uther places about; quhair indeid thay elengt all fra thair cuming thair which wes upone the day of to the first day of July thay depairtit, leaving onlie behind thame ane capitane with four scoir men. This regiment of Argile men wes comptit 800 footmen with thair commanderis. Thay spairit not covenanter, nor noncovenanter, minister nor laick; the hail countrie people fled that could flie, and left thair houffis desolat. Thay plunderit and spolzeit the hous of Oboyne, and hous of Abirzeldie with the ground. Thay spolzeit and plunderit the hail Birs, Cromar, Glentanner, Glenmuk; and left naither hors, nolt, scheip, ky, nor fourfooted beist, in all these brave countreis, nor victuall, cornes, goodis or geir, that thay might lay thair handis upone. And seing thay could not leve longer in these herryit boundis, thay gat ordouris, and removit hame over agane upone the foirsaid first of July, leaving onlie ane of thair capitanes with four scoir men. Bot this vengans whiche fell in thir countreis upone the covenanteris and ministeris wes doubtles the just judgementis of God for begining sic a play against thair royall king; for thay war compellit to furneish out trouperis and footmen upone thair awin expensis, allweill as noncovenanteris. Thay behovit to pay thair levy money, loan money, taxationis, and to lend money to the Estaites or becum cautioner thairfoir, by and attour this grevous plundering of thair goodis and geir be merciles soldiouris; quhilk doubtles thir covenantis from thair bartis lamentit, and fore repentit the beginning of this covenant, never looking to haif sufferit the sinairt thair of as thay did whill thay war all drawin in ane hois net, fra the quhilk thay culd not flie, nor now durst speak aganis the famen, nor give ony disobedienc, wnder the pane of plundering.

Ye heir of the lifting of 20,000 pundis out of Abirdene, quhair of thair wes sent to the Irish regiment lying at Drum ane thousand dolleris at 4000 merkis. And siclyk thair wes payit out thair of to the tonne's people the quartering of the erll of Kingorne's soldiouris during thair residence in Abirdene, and what wes over to ly in Mr. Robert Farquharis handis. Thus Abirdene payit first auctein thousand merkis, and now lent tuintie thousand pundis, (bot the Lord send thame good payment), and this by and attour the vexatioun, and quartering of the marques of Huntleis freindis and followeris, as ye have befoir.

Ye hard of orderis givin out at Turref for ane generall muster to be holdin in the Lynkis of Abirdene upone the fourt of June out of the schires of Abirdene, Banf, and Kincardin, or Mernis; bot this day wes slichtlie keipit and verry few convenit. The caus of this conventioun wes said to be for making wp the erll Marfchall and lord Gordoun's regimentis compleit.

Gryte preparatioun south and northe for raising of the recrew to generall Lesleis army in England; and that the erll of Kalendar wes lying at Kelfo with 4000 men intending thair to collect ane army of 16,000 foot and 2000 hors to marche into England, quhilk with Lesleis army will be 40,000 men, for rigging out of the quhilk this poor countrie wes cruellie opprest. Utheris reportis that his army wes devyfit to tak in Newcastle, and not to be ane recrew. Sie heirefter when he took get.

Upon the of June the Generall Assemblie sat down in Edinbrughe. Mr. James Bonar minister at Monyball in Galloway is chofin moderatour. No commissioner cumis fra the king. Thay nocht the les gois on. The ministrie of the schires of Abirdene, Banf, Morray, Narne, Innernis haid ordouris to present befoir this Assemblie in wreit the names of all sic persones as rais and assistit the marques of Huntlie, ilk minister within his own parochyn; quhilk thay did. Quhairupone ane Act of the Generall Assemblie wes maid ordain- ing ilk minister within his owne parochin to caus thir personis mak publict repentans upon the fool, for this thair ryfing with the said marques ; or utherayes to excommunicat them for thair difobediens, and this to be done both in brughe and land. Thair wes divers utheris Actis, and ane Assemblie indictit to be haldin at Edinbrughe the last Thuirfday of May 1645, and so difsolvit. Bot thair extreme Actis got no obediens.

Upone the first Tuisday of the moneth of June, being the fourt day of the said moneth, oure Parliament fat down in Edinbrughe, wanting the king or his viceroy, as depending from the last parliament in anno 1641. The erll of Lauderdale is chofin prefident of this parliament. Sindry Abirdenis men wes callit, sic as Mr. Alexander Davidson, Mr. Alexander Reid, Mr Patrik Chalmer, Mr Johne Chalmer, Thomas Nicolson, Ritchard Alschoner, George Gordoun, George Morifoun. Aluaies thay war all ordanit be Parliament, with sic uther as had fet caution to compeir befor the Parliament, that thay sould anfuer befor the Committee at Abirdene the 11 of July nixt, thair to abyde tryell and cenfur. Bot the Committee wes adjornit to the 25 of July, for cauffis moveing the Parliament, be proclamatioun at the cros of Abirdene. And that samen day Johne Denham generall commiffare to the collectiouns rode southe to Edinbrughe in haift. Sie the ryfing of this parliament.

Old Abirdene, with certaine heritouris lyand about the fame, is ordered to furnifh out ane horfman and armes, called ane trouper, to the lord Gordoun ; and the bailleis ordanit to pay for the toune's pairt of the said trouper fyftie tua pundis or thairby ; and to collect af of the heritouris of corne feild landis lyand about the foume of makand wp in the haille nyne scoir sex pundis xij s. iij d., and to pay the samen vnder the pane of plundering. And to that effect, upone the 8 of June, quarterit upone the poor toum ane troupe of horfmen, whill the moneyis wes payit. The Old toum bailleis taxt thair owne toune, and advancit the rest out of thair awin purs, whill thay collected in the samen, as is formerlie said ; and so this troupe wes schortlie removit. None spairit ; and who refusit thair orderis, nothing bot sending out pairteis upone thame to leive upon thair rentis, and goodis, without auchtoretie or law fra the king.

About this tyme, thair went out of the lord Elchois regiment lying in Abirdene ane hors troupe, confifing of 60 hors, and 60 foot mukiteiris, down to Haddoche and Geicht, leiving thair, and upon the countrie thairabout idlie, but doing of any good fervice ; and spairit not to tak thair meit alfweill from noncovenanter as covenanter, daylie oppreffing the kingis leiges, and feiding thair horffis in the plesant orchardis and yairdis of the saidis houffis.

Upone Sunday the 9 of June, being Witfonday, ane imprintit Act of Committee, efter fermon, red out at our kirk dur in Old Abirdene, chargeing all heritouris, fewaris, gentilmen, who had fadill horffis within aucht scoir poundis of price, to bring them to the Lyukis of Abirdene the 21 of June nixt, quhair thay fould be compryfit be indifferent men, and payit for, to serve the trouperis within this schyre. It wes also publihit throw the rest of the parochins within the diocie. Sum compeirit, and litle done that day.

Now in this moneth of June thair is divers foot companeis and hors troupes fending fouth, making wp the erll Marfchall and lord Gordoun's regimentis, and that with gryte diligens.

The covenantar alsweill as noncovenantar is compellit to furneish out foot and hors, loan money, levie money, taxationis, lening of money, subscribing of the Blind band, and so furth; quhairin if thay falzeit, then pairteis to be sent out and leve upone thair estaites; quhilk seimit to be the just judgementis of God aganes the covenantaris, begynneris of this bargaine aganes thair royall king, quhairof doubtles thay had grite repentans, if thay could mend it.

Thair wes ane fight about Morpet, quhair divers of our Scottis foot foldiouris wes overcum by the Banderis, strippit out of thair clothis and armes, and sent hame naikit, about this tyme. And that in another skirmish about York, major Bellenden with about 15 foldiouris wes killit to generall Leslie.

The toune of Edinbrughe, for causis moveing thame, causit transport aucht peice of cannon out of the castell, and plantit thame upon the calsie, in the beginning of June, at the gaird hous betuixt the Cros and the Trone.

Ye hard befoir, how the marques of Argile rode fouth. It wes said he wes the wors thocht of for missing the marques of Huntlie ontakin prifoner.

Upone the 15 of June, Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Marie Gordoun his ladie, Robert Irving his brother, Mr Alexander Irving sone to Johne Irving of Auchtamfard, and Robert Irving toune's officiar, with tua gentilwomen attending the young ladie, schippit quyetlie about Fraferbrughe, and to the sea go thay; bot his ladie fore trublit with the sea seiknes, as the rest wes, thay unhappellie landis in Caithnes within tuo myllis to Weik, quhair ane Committee hapnit to be fitting. Thay ar tryit, and takin be Frances Sinclair sone to the erll of Caithnes and secound and thridis of kin with this young lady Drum, and all wairdit togidder in the castle of Keifche. As lykuaies he sent word to the Generall Committee of Estaites or Parliament now sitting at Edinbrughe that he had takin thir personis prifoneris; quhairat the Estaites wes mervalous blyth for getting suche a ritche pray, who gave ordour for thair transportatioun, as ye fall heirefter fie. Bot heir it is to be wonderit at, how unnaturall this Frances Sinclair wes, to go tak and aprehend his blood-freind, and hir husband, with his few followeris, who in a maner had tane schelter and protectioun of him in his countrie in the tyme of thair pitifull diftres ; bot rather he nicht have advertist thame to go agane to the sea and do for thame selffis, whiche unkyndlie he did not, albeit it flood to the perrell of the gentlemenis lyves, becaus he hoipit to get payment of 18,000 merkis for taking of young Drum, 9000 merkis for his brother, 3000 merkis for Mr. Alexander Irving, and 1000 merkis for Robert Irving, as wes promittid be the Committee of Estaites. Thus, this miserabill man looking to this worldlie pelf, forgot his honour and his blood, to the gryte difcomfort and greif of thir honorable personis, as ye may fie. It is trew the lord Forbes receavit good payment from the Estaites of 3000 merkis for taking of Irving of Lentrurk, and warding him in the tolbuith of Abirdene, quhair Alexander Garden fervitour to the laird Drum wes also wardit ; all for ane cause.

Upone the 11 of June, Lues Gordoun thrid sone to the marques cam fra his sifter the ladie Haddingtoun to Abirdene, and fell in companie with the lord Gordoun his brother, whom he maid collonell to his foot company.

Edinbrughe is vnder gryte feir, and sum cannonis taken out of the castell, and plantit anent the gaird hous, as wes said befor.

Now, pairteis setting out daylie upone covenantaris alfweill as noncovenantaris, to furneish out hors and foot, loan money, leavie money, airmes, and all uther thingis, according to the ordour set down be the Committee at Abirdene ; utherwayis thir pairteis to ly feiding upone thair estait and goodis, both nicht and day.—The just judgementis of God upone the covenantaris who began thir vexationis ; and doubtles thay fore repentit now, suppose thay durst not schaw it.

Upone Mononday 17 June, the maisteris in Old Abirdene wer laureat, and the New toun maisteris long befor, whiche usit not to be laureat quhill Lambes, for feir of thir troubles.

The lord Gordoun strictlie chargit be the Estaites of Parliament not to receive in his regimentis any of siche as wes at Banf or Montros, or ony landit gentilman that rais with the marques his father, except sic commoun people as had no good to tyne.

Upone Sondag 23 June, efter foimonis fernoun, Mr. Williame Strathauchin minister at Old Abirdene maid intimation, out of pulpit, of the excommunication of the erll of Montrois, the erll of Cranfurd, the erll of Niddisdail, the viscount of Oboyne, the lord Heres, and lord Ogilvy, for braking out on oure borderis in serving the king; and that thay war all excommunicat be ordour of the Generall Assembly throw all the kirkis of Edinbrughe, and ordauit to be intimat throw all the churches of Scotland.

About the last of June, the erll of Kalander marchit forduard from Kelfo with ane goodlie army, both on hors and foot, touardis England.

Upon the first of July, the Argyle foldiouris removit out of Glentanner, Cromar, Bras, and boundis about, whiche thay had altogidder ipolzeit; and home go thay except onlie ane capitane and 80 men, who also schortlie follout.

Word cam of ane gryte battell foughten betuixt Prince Robert, The erll of Manchester, generall Leslie, and the erll of Fairfax; quhair muche blood wes fched; the viscount of Dudop fore bruifit, quhairof he deit, and his corpis brocht to Scotland; that York wes randerit to the English and not to the Scottis, quhilk presagit ane nationall querrell betuixt the tuo nationis. And the same day this battell wes foughten, being the second of July, thair wes hard throw all thir pairtis the noys of ane cannon schot, terribill to heir; and quhilk wes thocht no schot, bot ane advertement fra God, as may be weill sein.

Thair cam out ane prynted paper declairing the causis of ane publict fast, quhilk coppet is thus:

Causis of a solemne Fast and Humiliatioun to be kept, by ordinaans of the lait Generall Assembly, upone the first Sabbath of July next, in this instant yeir 1644; and the Thuirfday next immediatlie following.

1. A not anfueraill walking to our Covenant with God; for former zeal is wanting in the best, and mony who seimed forduard ar now becom either neutral, or secreit wandemyneris, or avowit aduversaris and apoostatis.

2. A great guiltines lyeth on this land, that temporizing enemeis, especiallie ministeris, ar receaved too suddantlie into the Covenant, who mynd nothing bot thair owne endis.

3. Although it hath pleiffit the Lord of his frie love to multiplie upone this natioun unparrallded favouris in the plenty of treuth and peace, notwithstanding of all the secreit conspiraceis and oppin violences of enemeis botlie within and without, and that upone so esie a rate in comparifoun of our deir bretheren about ws who ar swyming in blood for purchessing and attayning unto the like and the same pretious treuthe and peace; yet siche is oure monstuous ingratitude, that the hail land is overflowed with ane speat of formalitie, and profanitie, as appeireth by oure gros unbelief, manyfold othes, sabbath brakings, oppreffiounis, unclenyne, drunkennes, and uther synis of all fortis againſt the law of God and our Covenant; for the which gryt wrath is thretned and imminent, and we have juſt reſſone to fear a deipar draucht of that coup then our bretheren and neighbouris have taifted of.

4. We have mater to ſupplicat the God of hevin to blis and proſper all meinis uſit and intendit for the eſtabliſhing of this work among our ſelſis, and advancing thair of in our neighbour kingdomes, ſuche as Parliamentis, Aſſembles of divynes and Committees from them, and armyes alreddy in the feildis and going to the feildis.

5. Becaus of the unhappie and lamentable diviſioun between our king and his kingdomes, begun and fomented by malignantis, delinquentis, jefuitis, papiftis, and unnaturall countrymen, wee have gryte reſſone to wraffle with God (who hath the hairtis of kingis in his owne hand), that he wold deliver our king from ther company and counfall, and fill his hait with love of reformation, and thocht of love and peace towardis his loyall ſubjectis.

6. That our gracious Lord wilbe pleiſſit to turne the troubles and commotionis not only of thir thrie kingdomes, bot alſo of all nther kirkis and kingdomes els qubair, to the accompliſhing and fulfilling of all the deſires and wiſſis of God's ſanctis concerning the advancement of the kingdome of the Sone of God, and the utter rwine of that man of ſinn and his kingdome.

Printed at Edinbrughe, by Evan Tyler, printer to the Kingis moſt excellent Majeſtie, Anno Domini 1644.

This faſt wes appointit to be keptit the firſt Sabbath of July, and Thuirſday thairefter, as ye have hard. So heir in Old Abirdene, upone the ſevint of July, we had ane faſt, entering the church be nyne houris, and continewit praying and preaching whill tua houris. Efter fermon, the people ſat ſtill heiring reiding whill efternone's fermon began and endit, which continewit till half hour to ſex. Then the prayer bell rang to the evning prayeris, and continewit whill ſeven. Thus wer the people wyreit with faſting and praying wnder cullour of zeall, quhilk rather appeirit ane plane mokrie of God. So Thuirſday thairefter the like faſt keptit heir. The king and his poſteritie prayit for, the quein prayit for; bot no prayer to confound the armyes raiſit againſt him, bot rather prayit for thair good ſucces. Strange to ſie ſic faſtis and prayeris!

Upone the bak of this humiliatioun, and about the 12 of July, thair cam word to Abirdene, that generall Leſlie, with aſſiſtans of the erll of Fairfax and the erll of Mancheſter, growing to ane army of about 38,000 foot and hors, quhair of Leſlie had preſſit many out of Yorkſchire, lying now at the ſeige thair of, fore againſt thair willis; aluaies Prince Robert heiring of this, cumis with ane brave army of hors and foot nothing inferiour to his enemeis to raiſe this ſeige; and upone Tnyſday the 2 of July, that day, battell wes foughten, as ye have [before.] The victorie, with gryte blood, inelynit to the Parliamentis ſyde, and Prince Robert feirfullie routit, as wes publictlic declairit out of oure pulpit be Mr. Williame Strathachin, faying, the Lord prevenit oure fasting by giving oure army the victorie befor oure humiliatioun, and that the army, the same day of oure fast, wes giving thankis to God for thair victory. Howsoever it wes, it is reportit that generall Leslie wes not occasioun of this victorie, becaus he fled the battell to Lewis, 18 myllis fra the army; and none of oure Scottis army baid except thrie regimentis, ane wnder the erll of Lyndfay, another wnder Sir David Leslie, and the third wnder collouell Lumfden, who fought it out floutlie. York randerit to the erll of Fairfax and the erll of Manchester, upone conditioun that no Scottis man sould enter within the same; and Sir Thomas Fairfax is maid governour. Thair wes store of moneyis sent out of the toun to the Scottish army, quhairby thay sould have sum content and depart. Leslie wes evill thought of be the English for this dayis service; and sum thocht thay war now begiuing to lichtlie oure Scottis, tending to ane nationall querrell. Thair wes blood on both fydis, and prissoneris taken, amongst whome the viscount of Dudop wes ane, who deit, and his corporis brocht about be licens to Scotland, to be bureit amongst his honorabill antecessouris.

It is said Prince Robert rebukit the erll of Newcastle, then governour of York, and generall King both, in whome the king had too muche confidens, for thair slaw service at this fight, and that thay war moir given for gathering of gear unjustlie nor for the kingis honour. Thay feirit them selffis, schippit at Skarribrughe quyetlie with aboundance of moneyis, and to Hamburrie go thay. Prince Robert departis his awn wayis, and generall Leslie returnis to Newcastle, quhair the erll of Kalandar cam also, to beseige the famen be laud; and ten of the parliament schippis cam in to the ryver mouth to beseige it by sea, so that no men nor provisioun sould cum that way. Sie heirefter.

Oure Parliament establishis an constant Committee of Estaites to sit in Edinbrughe for reulling of the country, prorogatis the Parliament to the 8 of Januar 1645, but warrand or commissioner fra the king; and upone the day of July dissolves, quhilk had fittin sen the 4 of June.

The Committee appointit to be haldin at Abirdene the 11 of July is, by oppiu proclamatioun at the mareat cros, prorogat to the 25 of July nixt.

Ye have hard befor, how the erll of Montrois wes hard with the erll Argile anent sum speiches allegit spokin be Mr Johne Stewart, for the quhilk he wes execute. Follouit, Argile interceptis sum letteris, which Montrois had sent to the king; quhairupone him self with the lord Neper, the laird of Keir, and laird of Blakhall ar wardit in Edinbrughe. The lord Sinckler brakis wp Montrois trunkis, and careis letteris to the Estaites. He is brocht befor the Committee at Edinbrughe. He is more strietlie over watchit. He, with Neper, Keir, Blakhall is fummoundit to the Parliament as incendiareis and plotteris. He is countit ane of the 5 incendiareis be Act of Parliament. Montrois wreit is fra the castell to the king, being in Edinbrughe, ane missive of muche importans, how he, Traquhair, Neper, Keir, Blakhall is handlit befor the Parliament. Thay ar fet to libertie. Thay ar trublit as incendiareis befor the Parliament and continewit. Montrois rydis to the king, bot he had no prefens. He rydes agane to the king. Intimationis of the excommunication.

Montrois by thir deidis and divers utheris wes grevouflic vext by Argile and Estaites, quhair of he wes the ring leidar, and wes forsit to flie his native countrie to the Kingis Majestie for redres. And efter he had schawin his mynd amplie to his Hines, he thoecht wyflie upone the famen, and fand thir Estaites had maid the marques of Huntlie to flie the countrie likuaies, and his hail loyall subiectis in Scotland opprest pitifullie wnder the pretext of religioun, quhilk his Majestie mantaned, viz. the trew Protestant religioun, with his just and sacred auctoritie, the fundamentall lawis and privileges of Parliamentis, the peace and friedome of the opprest and thralld subject, as ye may fynd in Montrois Declaratioun; and confidderit, if the marques of Huntlie had cum in to the Estaites and joynit his pouer with thairis, he wes liklie to lois his royall auctoritie over this natioun.

The king, haveing thoecht upone thir and divers utheris groundis, makis the erll of Montrois Marques, and gives him his letteris patent to be Livetennand Generall of Scotland, who gladlie wes acceptit be Montrois and faithfullie profecut, as ye have heirefter. The king furneshis him about 1500 Irishis brocht wp in Waft Flanderis, expert soldiouris, with ane yeires pay. Amongst whome, Allafter M^cDonald wes ane valiant capitane, borne in the Iles, fled Argile's tirrany, who had wardit his father and his tuo bretheren, and takin thair landis and possessionis fra tham; a man resolvit to revenge thir injureis aganes Argile if he micht, and glaidlie took this occasioun to haferd with the marques of Montrois in this service, who wes no les glad of his service and assistans.

This mightie Montrois, haveing gottin the kingis patent to go upone the covenanting rebellis of Scotland with fyre and fuord, and ather to bring thame wnder subjection and obediens, or utherways to distroy thame all, thair lyfis, landis, and goodis; he, I fay, gives ordour to this Allafter M^cDonald or Maister M^cDonald to schip his soldiouris, and land in Ardimurchan, ane Iland belonging to Argile, and distroy his countrie, and promeisit to meit him in Scotland; and likuayes gave ordouris to this capitane of his carceage and travellis whill thay met, being confident that the king had sum good subjectis in Scotland. McDonald takis the sea, and, about the 8 of July, landis in the foirfaid Iland of Ardimurchan, plunderis the haill goodis and geir, killis the inhabitantis, and burnis the haill countrie, takis in ane strong castell, and manis the famen with provioun necessar. Thairefter he takis in another Iland and castell thairof, burnes, killis, and plunderis all.

Argile, now being in Edinbrughe and heiring of this buffines, haistelic provydis sum parliament schipis and sum of oure own Scottis schippis to keip the feyis, that he sould not escaip; and him self cam in be land with ane army, that he sould not win away that get. Bot this wys and valiaunt McDonald, heiring of his preparatioun, gives ordour to keip thir tuo strong castellis to his use; syne suddantlie schippis and landis in the Iyll of Sky, saillie merchis thairfra into Kintail, Abirtarf; wreit to the Committee of Morray, then fitting at Old Erne, ane charge, with ane fyrie cros of tymber, quhairof everie point of the cros wes seamit and brynt with fyre, commanding all maner of man within that countrie to rys and follow the kingis livetemand, the lord marques of Montrois, wnder the pane of fyre and fuord. The brughe of Innernis wes wnder gryte feir. Aluayis he past by, did no wrong, bot took thair meit and merchit into Badzenocht. The Committee of Morray haistelic writtis to the Committee of Abirdene, and sendis the same fyrie cros to thame, quhilk thay keipit; syne wreittis to the Committee of Edinbrughe, who send ordour that Morray, Ros, Sutherland, Caithnes, sould be in armes; and that proclamationis suld be maid at the paroche kirkis and marcat crossis within the schires of Abirdene and Banf, that all maner of man betuixt 60 and 16, hors and foot, sould be in thair best armes at thair randevous in Abirdene upone the 11 day of August; and that the schires of Kincardin, Elgyne and Forres sould have thair randevous likuayes heir the 14 of August. Thir proclamationis wes printed and publisht diligentlie.

Heir ye may sie the inbringing of thir Committees wes to hold out the king, for nather he nor none in his Majesteis name could licht in ony pairt of this countrie bot advertementis past to rais wp all maner of man in armes to mantayne thair Covenant against thame that socht thair overthrow; quhair I will ceas whill [hereafter].

In this moneth of July, Quein Mary schippit and past to France, quhair scho wes royallie intertynneit.

Upon the 24 of July, the lord Elcho and lord Burly returnit to Abirdene, to whome cam the erll Marſhall, the erll of Fyndlater, the viſcount of Arbutnet, the viſcount of Frendracht, the lord Fraſer, the lord Carnegy, with ſindrie barrouis and gentilmen, who held thair Committees in Abirdene thair tyme about; bot the lord Burly conſtantlie ſat as preſident. Argile, as he promeſit and wes expectit, cam not to this Committee. Mr. James Baird directit by the Eſtates attendit, who gave no good counſall for the countrie, as wes thoct.

This ſamen 24 day of July, thair cam in to thir Committees, out of the ſchires of Abirdene, Banf, and Kincardyn, certane gentilmen who had ſet cautionn wnder gryte ſoumes to compeir for ſic cauſis as wes to be laid to thair charge. Bot ſic as wes within the ſchire of Banf wes referrit to the Committee holdin at Elgin; and ſic as wes within the ſchire of Kincardyn to the Committee of the Mernis; and ſic as wes within the ſchire of Abirdene to the Committee thair of; who ſat upone thame onlie; and the reſt returnit home to the Committees foirlaidis.

Ye hard befor, how the lairdis of Geicht and Haddoch, with ſum utheris, war had to Edinbrughe. The parliament beginis firſt at Haddoche and John Logy his man, accuſing Haddoche for helping to tak Patrik Leſlie proveſt, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Alexander and Johne Joffrayis out of Abirdene, as ye hard befor. Anſuerit, He wes thair indeid; bot did no wrong in taking thir men, thay being awowit incendiareis aganis the king, factions and ſeditious both in brughe and land. 2. He wes accuſit for riſing with the marques of Huntlie in armes againſt the country. Anſuerit, Not ſo, bot aganis the kingis enemyis. 3. He wes accuſit for the ſlauchter of Mr. James Stalker at Turreſ, as ye hard. This he denyit ſimpliciter. 4. He wes accuſit for killing of tuo men at his hous of Kelly, when the ſamen wes beſeigit at command of the Eſtates. Anſuerit, What he did wes done in his awin defens aganis his enemyis cuming without the kingis auctororetie to oppreſ him. He wes accuſit upone ſindrie uther pointes. Sic as wes trew, he boldlie confeſſit; and ſic as wes fals, he ſtoutlie denyit.

Then John Logy wes accuſit upone ſum pointis. And efter muche tryell and iniquitioun, the Parliament referrit thame baith to wuderly the law befor the juſtice and his aſſeſſoris, viz. four nobles, four barrouis, four burgeſſis, who wes adjoynt unto them; whair, efter muche plead of law, thay ar referrit to the tryell of ane aſſiſe, and Haddoche is convict, for being at the taking of the proveſt of Abirdene and the reſt, 2. for raiſing of armes with the marques of Huntlie aganis the countrie, 3. for killing of tua soldionris at his hous of Kellie, and for sum uther pointis, as wes said. In lyk maner John Logie is convict, and both condemnit to be heidit at the cros of Edinbrughe; quhilk convictioun the Parliament immediatlie thairefter approvit to be good and lafull, and thairwith ordanit him to be foirfaltit as ane traittour. It is said, the erll Marfchall labourit mekill for his lyf; bot cam no speid, throw the malice of the kirk, the burrowis, and sum nobill men, whiche maid Marfchall the moir cold in the good caus, as ye may heirefter heir. Haddochis freindis within the toun defyrit licens to convoy him to his death and buriall, quhilk the Parliament refusit, except thay grantit licens to give wp a list of sic freindis as thay wold have, and the Parliament to chuse out sex onlie of the number, upon condition that thair sould be no speiche betuixt Haddoche and them cuming fra the tolbuith to the scaffold, nor yit upone the scaffold; quhilk wes condescendit and keipit. Aluayes the Estaites directis the proveft and bailleis of Edinbrughe to convoy him and John Logie with ane strong gaird to the scaffold, and to attend the executioun. Haddoche preparit him self noblie for death, and causit mak ane syd Holland cloth fark, luknit at the heid for his winding schein. He had on his heid ane white perllit mutche. He had no cot, bot ane pair of blak breikis, white sokis, and ane pair of mules on his feit. Thus is he and John Logie brocht to the scaffold with his sex freindis fra the tolbuith, gairdit as said is, upone Frydday the nyntient of July. Sum of the toune's ministeris cam, defyring him to confes his synis befor God and to trust in his mercie. He ansuerit, he did humelie confes he wes ane grevous sinner befor God, and cravit him mercie, and wes assuirit to be faiffit throw Jesus Christ. Then ane of the ministeris cryit out to the people, saying, Haddoche confessit him self guiltie in raising armes aganis the country. Bot he ansuerit, "Not so, I confessit my self a gryt sinner befor God; bot never transgressit aganis the country, bot aganis sic as was disloyall subjectis to the king; and what I did I thoct good service."

Then the hail ministeris railit pitifullie out against him, quhilk he patientlie beheld, and defyrit to be relaxit from excommunication, efter confessioun of his synis, now going to death. The ministeris with sum litle gruge grantit the samen, and loufit him upone the scaffold from this sentence. Then upone his knees he prayit to God, and one of the ministeris prayit for him. And, in the mein tyme, as he is dealling ferventlie in his prayer with God, thay, in his face, causit strik af Johne Logeis heid maist cruellie and dyspytfullie. Bot Haddoche wes no quhit terrifeit at this sicht, bot constantlie continewit in his prayer.

Efter John Logeis death, immediatlie thair cumis wp to the scaffold tua herauldis in thair coat-arnes, ane of thame haveing a paper in his hand containing sum articles ; and likuayes ane uther paper, quhairin his arnes war paintit and drawin. Then this herauld with ane loud voice cryit out befor the people, quhairof thair wes gryt multitudes standing about the scaffold, and red these articles, " The Parliament hes found thee Sir Johne Gordoun of Haddoche worthlie of death, and thy heid to be struckin fra thy schulderis. 2. The Parliament declairis thee Johne Gordoun of Haddoche to be a villane, and a traittour to the king, and to the countrie ; and thairfor I heir ryve thy arnes in thy awin face ;" quhilke he did indeid ryve and rent, as ye fall heir. The baill people standing befyde wes astonishit at this uncouth declaratioun out of ane herauldis mouth, cled in his coat-arnes upone the scaffold. None durft say aganis the Parliamentis declaratioun. Bot maist pairt of the auditoris thocht it wes well done, and Haddoche defervit all. Then the herauld said, 3. " These arnes, whiche thy forbearis throw ther virtue hes conquest and win for thair honour, I declair, for thy tressoun, never to be worne by thy posteritie." And with these wordis this herauld in Haddoche's awin face he rave his arnes, and keist thame over the scaffold ; quhilke he patientlie beheld, fitting on his kneis all the tyme. The herauld haveing endit, then he beginis a litle schort prayer, and endis, saying, " I reconmend my faull to God, and my six children to his Majesteis cair, for whose saik I die this day." Then he turnes to the place of executionn. The executioner cravit him pardon to do his office. He gives him out of his pouche ane double angell, saying, " Do thy office, man." And schortlie with ane maiden he wes heidit. The six gentlemen keppit his heid with wofull hartis, and with the corpis wes schortlie put in ane kist, as Johne Logeis heid wes first keppit and kistit ; and both togidder wes convoyit to the Gray Freir kirk yaird and bureit.

Thus endit this worshipfull gentleman, borne down be the burrowis of Scotland, ministrie of Edinbrughe, and Parliament of this land, especially be the marques of Argile, the lord Balmyrrinoche, and the kirke, becaus he wold never subscribe the Covenant, but stoutlie followit the king in thir troublefom tymis, and leivit and deit ane good protestant. It is trew, the Joffrayis in Abirdene, whome ye hard abefoir he fell in odis with, did him no good ; bot was the ground of his death, as by the progres of that discours heirin set down do appeir.

And albeit the begining of that buffines wes of small value, yit it grew to ane gryte heicht, and incensit the burrowis nichtellie against Haddoche at his death, and bred sum fatherie to the countrie befydis abefoir. Aluayes this valeant worfchippfull knicht is done to death efter this maner, to the gryt greif of his kin, and freindis, and of his fix children, nov both fatherles and motherles, and bot young barnes alfo.

The Joffrayis threw his death fand not them felf the more secure; but leivit wnder continuall feir of his freindis, as thay had juft reffone.

And albeit Haddoche was ane auncient barron of good eftait, and ftill ane loyall fubject to the king; hardie, ftout, bold in all haferdis; freind to his freind, and terribill to his enemy; of a good lyf and converfation, moderat, temperat, and religious; loth and unwilling ftill to give offence, and als loth to tak offence; and withall ane good nichtbour, loving and kynd to his tenmentis, kinf-folkis, and freindis; yit thus he endit.

Nevertheles but auctoritie or warrand of ane king his life is takin; and his eftait foirfaultit, being about fourfcoir chalderis of yeirlie rent; his houfe of Kellie abusit, and his coftlie pleniffing plunderit; his girmillis, quhairin thair wes nyne fcoir chalderis victuall to the foir for thrie yeirs rentis, by foldiouris takin; his cornes, his cattell, his hors, nolt, fcheip, gudes, and geir, quhair of he had gryte abundance, altogidder plukkit and reft fra him be mercyles rafcallis and renegat foldiouris, fet down be the Eftaites of oure Parliament upone his ground, without the kingis auctoritie; and no pairt of his eftait apointit be thame to fuftein his fix fatherles children, bot fuftein (not accord- ing to thair birth) with freindis in the countrie.

It is trew his death wes pitifullie bemonit and lamentit, and sum thoct it wold not go onrevengit, as ye may fie heirefter. Johne and Alexander Gordouns fones to Gordoun of Milne of Kellie, who wes had over with him, wes fet to libertie thairefter.

Schortlie efter this death, the proveft of Dumfreis, callit Sir James Maxwell, wes heidit likuaies at the cros of Edinbrughe for receaving of sum of the Banderis within the toune, a trew kingis man, and haiter of his enemyis, for the quhilk he fufferit likuaies death, as wes faid.

Now the parliament gois on aganes Sir George Gordoun of Geicht, and John Gordoun his brother, who wes had alfo over with him to Edinbrughe. He is accufit upone divers matters; bot he denyis all. He is accufit for the plundering of Banf. He denyit, except sum moneyis he receavit in borrowing upone promeis of reftitutioun. It is referrit to his aith. He deponis conforme. He fubfcribes his depositioun. Thay craftellie fummoundis over witneffes out of Banf to prove him perjurit, and thairby guiltie of death. At laft his proces is continewit to the 8 of Januar 1645, that the Parliament fould fit doun, throw qubilk delay he efcaipit priffoun.

Nathaniell Gordoun, cufing german to this laird of Geicht, feing him fo fraittlie handlit and Haddoche done to death, luikit for no better him felf, if he hapnit to cum in handis, for ryfing with the marques of Huntlie and being at the abufeing of Montrofe, as ye have hard. He thairfoir refolvit to stand out, and defend him felf als long as he could; and waites upone Sanct James' marcat, yeirlie holdin at Elgin of Morray the 24 of July, and haveing his coufing Leith younger of Harthill and fum few uthers of his factioun in his company, and auaitit upone the cuming of the merchandis of Dundie and Abirdene cuming to this fair, and reft and spoilzeit the harmles merchandis of about 14,000 merkis money to thair gryt hurt and fkaith. Aluaies the fpolzeit burgefis of Abirdene cam in to the toume, quhair the Committee wes fitting for the tyme, and maid ane havie complaint upone this oppreffioun. Quhairupone thay fend out the lord Gordoun with uther parteis to tak the faid Nathaniell Gordoun and his complices; bot thay returnit wanting thair pray, and the honeft men gat no amendis.

About this tyme capitan Alexander Keyth brother to the erll Marfchall raifit ane hors troupe, and Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar ane uther hors troupe, to attend this Committee. Bot fore wes Old Abirdene oppreffit with the firft troupe, who cam upone the laft of July, had frie quarteris tua dayis, and cuttit doun the grein growing beir to thair horffis, pitifull to behold.

Ye hard befoir of the doun fitting of the Committee at Abirdene, thay go on grevouffie fyning the marques of Huntleis freindis within this fchirref-dome, fic as cam in. And upon the laft of July thay fet out ane Proclama-tioun at the cros of Abirdene, chargeing all fic as had not yet cum within this fchire, to compeir yet upon the 8 of Auguft nixt (quhilk tym thay had moft gratiouffie grantit unto them), utheruayis thay fould be declairit fugitives. Lyk ordour wes givin to the fchire of Banf, to compeir befoir thair Committee holdin at Elgyn. In the mein tyme, thay are curious in trying of ilk manis eftait in Abirdene and within the fchire. Thay brocht with them blank letteris of horning raifit in the kingis name, againft his knowledge, contrair his loyall fubjectis. Thay fill wp thir letteris with fic refponfall menis names as thay tryit out, directis out meffingeris, and charges thame to compeir fic ane certane day befoir thair Committee vnder the pane of horning. Both brughe and land who wes refponfall wes chargit, and thair names weill gevin wp in roll to the officiareis, befydes the letteris. Sic as compeirit wes demanded befoir the Committee what thay wold willingly len to the publict. If thay offerit sic foumes as wes agrieable to thair estait and found responfall, then at the receipt of thair moneyis thair wes ane band drawin wp in sic debitouris names, lord, barron or burges as the creditour thoct most responfall conjunctlie and severallie, obliging them to pay to the creditour sic ane soume (blank, bot not fillit wp, quhilk thay had borrowit fra the creditour), quhilk thay had receavit in name of the publict, and oblegit thame to pay the same soume blank to the creditour at what tyme the publict received moneyis fra the Parliament of England or from the malignant papistis of Scotland, or from the Excise. Now all thir bandis ar maid befoir hand blank, and when the money is deliverit, then the debitouris names, the creditouris name, and the soume with the annuelrent, is fillit wp; bot no terme of payment nor dait is contenit in this band. This is the securitie that honest men gat for thair moneyis, and thay durst not fay againt nor yit refuse the famen. So is his Majesteis loyall subjectis goodis and geir stollin and takin fra thame upone feinszeit and fraudulent cauffis. 2. If thay compeirit and maid not ane gracious offer to thair contentment, then the Committee, be the mouth of lord Burly thair President, ordanit thame to pay sic foumes as thay thoct good, and caufit charge thame under the pane of horning to mak payment. Syne follout captioun. 3. If thay compeirit wha wer responfall men and had no moneyis beyd them to len out, then the Committee presentlie furneshit them moneyis upone thair band of repayment with the annuellis at Martimes next vnder falszeis, syne gat the silver to thame self and good caus. 4. If thay compeirit not at all, then thay war denuncit to the horne be virtue of letteris writtin in Edinbrughe and brocht blank to Abirdene, fillit wp and subferivit be Archibald marques of Argile, the lord Burly, the lord Eleho; and by these letteris thay ar denuncit to the horne for not lening sic foumes to the publict as ar infert within the letteris vnder the hand of the said lord Burly; and upone this horning, captioun with all rigour follout, by and attour warding of thair perfonis in the tolbuith of Abirdene whill payment wes maid. It wes reportit that this wes not extendit to those who had ane sufficient calling, and wes worth £000 merkis in stok allanerlie.

Thair wes brocht also out of Edinbrughe a number of blank bandis subferivit be Argile, Burly, Elcho, Patrik Leslie provest of Abirdene, and uther thrie perfonis bound all conjunctlie and severallie to pay the creditour lener of moneyis to the good caus sic foumes as sould be fillit wp in the famen be the presidentis devys.

Hell hatchit never sic peices for wrak of the countre, and that none fould eſcaip.

Upone Sunday 4 Auguſt, ane thankiſgiving in Old Abirdene appointit be the Committee of the kirk to be through all Scotland for generall Leſſlyis victorie over Prince Robert, as ye have [before.]

Oure miniſter Mr. Williame Strathachin declairit out of pulpit that this victorie wes miraculous, wrocht by the fygner of God. None of the people durſt pray, bot follow the miniſter in thair haitis; nather did the miniſter ſit down on his knies when he cam to the pulpit, bot directlie ſtood wp to his prayer. New incum cuſtomes! He prayit for the king, wiſſing God to give him hait to tak his good ſubjectis by the hand, who wes the workeris of this gryt wark of reformation; and declairit openlie the goodnes of the Covenant betuixt ws and England, and that we wes obligit to help oure bretheren, left thay being overcum we might be overthrowne alſo.

Our miniſtrie are becum prydfull, and gryt railleris out of pulpit without reſpect of perſonis; and ſo rigorous thair diſcipline, that the people might not beir thair prydfull behaveour, and none durſt find fault with thair diſorderis. Thay prais God for the kingis overthrow.

Upone the 9 of Auguſt, Proclamatioun maid at the cros of Abirdene be found of trumpet, declairing the caſtellis and houffis of Abirzeldie, Aboyne, Drum, Whitehouſ of Cromar, Auchterfoull, Schethin, Tibbertie and divers utheris houffis (exceptand Geicht and Kellie, whiche the Eſtates thocht to be thair awin alreddy), thir houffis by the Parliament wes ordanit to be caſſin down to the ground. Nevertheles it wes the gracious good will of the generall Eſtates of Edinbrughe, that if ony of thair reſponſall freindis, who wiſſit the ſaidis houffis to be ondemoliſhit, wold ſet caution befor the Committee at Abirdene, wnder grite ſoumes, within ſex dayis efter this proclamatioun, that none of the countrie enemeis fould be receit within thame in all tyme cuning, that then thay fould not be caſſin down. Bot no freind cam in to this effect, thinking verylie it was ane ſnair devyſit to draw gentlemen wnder falzeis, and ſo beheld this proclamatioun and the Eſtates doinges bothe, cum what might cum. Yit it pleiſſit God the houffis wes not caſſin down, bot yit ſtandis ſtill. Albeit it wold appeir veray ſtrange how ſubjectis, but auchtoretie of ane king, fould ſet down lawis upone thair fellow ſubjectis for diſtroying the policie of the countrie.

Upone Sunday the 11 of Auguſt, oure elderis wes choſin in the kirk of Sanct Maucher befor the pulpit. Bot Mr. Williame Strathachin miniſter, be him self and by thair knowledge, had drawin wp certane Articles in wreit quhilk he caufit everie elder to stand wp and fueir with his hand haldin wp. And first, he took thair aith that thay fould have morning and evning prayeris in thair houffis, in example of the parochin to do the lyk; 2. To rebuke sin in generall, and in particuler profaneris of the Sabboth day, fueiring, drinking, hureing, and fuche like, as occasioun offerit; 3. To keip thame selfis frie of fuche vices, and go befoir the people in holines of lyf; 4. To attend the seffoun weiklie without a gryte reffone, and sum uther articles;—whiche the elderis and deaconis wondred at; never feing the like befoir. Yit thay war, man be man, suorne to the famen, suppose againt thair willis, and that the minister and thay both knew thay war unhabill to keip the foirsaid aith. Yit fuche wes the pryd of oure minister to thrall menis consciences efter his fantasie.

Upone the 14 of August, Forbes, tutour of Petfligo, brocht Johne and Alexander Gordouns fones to Gordoun of Mihne of Kellie from Edinbrughe to Abirdene, who wes had thair with unquhill Sir Johne Gordoun of Haddoche.

Upone the 15 of August, Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar, ritemaister, went to the place of Harthill, and thair cruellie took the gudwyf, hir barnes and fervandis, and most inhumanelie schot thame to the yettis, at command of oure Committee of Abirdene, as wes thocht, hir husband lying wardit in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe without just reffoun thir divers yeires bygane. Sum thocht this wes done becaus her sone wes with Nathaniell Gordoun at the taking of the merchandis moneyis, as ye have befoir; yit scho wan to hir awin hous agane thairefter.

Upone the 17 of August, the lord Gordoun cuming to Abirdene saw the lord Crichtoun ryding the same way, who went by and gave not ane salutation, whiche wes evill maneris, and rode to Abirdene. The lord Gordoun tuke sum offence, follouis in to the town; bot the Committee takis presentlie ordour thairwith, and canfis ilk ane set cautionn for keiping of the peace, quhilk the Estaites thame selfis wes daylie braking.

About this tyme, Thomas Boyis schip ritcheleie laduit with Abirdene's goodis going for Holland, and worth 200,000 merkis, wes takin be ane Irish frigate, to the gryte hurt of Abirdene.

Upone Setterday 17 August, about 11 houris at evin, Alexander Irving of Kincoffie cuming quyetlie to Abirdene, (becaus he durst not ryd upone day licht for being at the rode of Montrose,) Williame Forbes, sone naturall to John Forbes of Leslie, hapnit to be cuming out of Abirdene going to Banchorie, quhair his father wes duelling, and met with him about the Crabstane, who wold have takin him and had him perfors to Abirdene, luiking to get for him 5000 merkis conforme to ane ordinans of the Estaites, that who fould tak him and bring him in fould get the same foume. Kincoffie being a fyne gentilman stornit to be tane with the lyk of him, and wnder speiking this Williame Forbes schootis the gentilman with ane pistoll deid, and thairwith cruellie strikis him tuo straikis in the heid. Thus is this brave gentilman mischantlie murtherit, wnder scilens of nicht, (never wining to his armes to defend him self), for greid of this gane set out be the Estaites, without ground of godlines. Many wes sorrowfull at his deith, being mervalloullie weill belovit both in brughe and land. He left behind him his dolorous wyf and fyve fatherles children. Upone the morne he is takin wp and bureit within the laird Drumis Iyll in Sanct Nicholas' kirk of New Abirdene with gryt murning and lamentatioun.

This innocent blood is nowayes punisht according to the law of God and man, bot is estemit and publictlye approvyn as good and loyall service, in manifest contempt of oure dreidfull God and the kingis lawis. For upone the 21 of the said moneth of August, four dayis immediatlye efter this bloodie murther, the said Williame Forbes is avowitlye brocht in befor the Committee of Abirdene, and found to be an volunteir in Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwaris company of trouperis and declairit him to have done good service to the publict for murthering of this gentilman, for no uther reffone bot becaus he wes at Montrose with his young chief the laird Drum, drawin thair also against his will, as sum said; for this fault the taking of his lyf is approvyn good service, and absolvit thairfra. Likeas the said Committee sent ane trumpettour to the cros of Abirdene, and be oppin proclamatioun absolvit him fra this murther frielie, and ordanit 5000 merkis to be listit af of his estait, being about 12 chalderis victuall, quhairof 2000 merkis fould be givin to the malefactor, and 3000 merkis to Craigiwar, ritmaister, conforme to ane ordinans set out be the generall Committee of Estaites. Likeas thairefter he wes of new agane declairit to have done good service, and to get his reward, strictlie charging and commanding, that no maner of man fould speik or say aganis the samen bot laudable. Bot the Lord luikit to thir presumptuous suis and bloodshed, for in August 1645, the said Williame Forbes, being keiping his fatheris hous of Likliheid, schuiting ane muscat, schot his richt hand fra him self; a token that the Lord thocht not this innocent blood good service. And that same

Upone the 17 of August the lord Eleho and his livetennand, Arnot, left his regiment in Abirdene, and the lord Burly dailie halding Committees, and haiftellie rode fouth. He returnit not, bot Arnot came agane.

Upone the 19 of August, Alexander Irving younger of Drum, [Marie] Gordoun his lady and hir tuo gentillwomen, Robert Irving his brother, Mr. Alexander Irving sone to Johne Irving of Auchtamfard, and Robert Irving messinger cam to Abirdene. Thay war convoyit out of Caithnes, fra schire to schire, with ane strong guard to Abirdene, with whome cam also Frances Sinkler all the way with 16 gentilmen of tryne. Thay lodgit that nicht in skipper Anderfonis hous with ane strong guard, and nicht not go sie the ladie Drum duelling in the town. Thay desyrit to sie hir, and stay another nicht in Abirdene to get them lyninges; quhilk wes refusit simpliciter.

Upone the morne thay are all convoyit fouth, (except Robert Irving who gat libertie to byd at hame, becaus it wes found that he follouit thame against his will), and wes all wardit in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe. Bot the said Frances Sinkler baid still in Abirdene with his owne servandis, to get payment of 18,000 merkis for taking of young Drum, and 5000 merkis for taking of his brother, dishonorable acquirit, and als evill payit, albeit ordanit be the generall Committee of Estaites at Edinbrughe to have bein payit.

Doctor Guild, fullie fet to distroy the Bischopis hous, upone the 30 of August began to rais the pavement of the hall and chalmer, and to brak down the gryt geistis and staitlie tymbre wark, hewin duris, and wyndoys, with the hail sklaites, and causit carie them down to the college. With the pavement he laid the floor of the common scooll. He took down the rigging stanes, cunzie stanes, with the rest. Sindrie thocht he wes not wys in doing so.

Ye hard of the incuming of the Irishis. Proclamationis maid at kirks and croffis lyke thunder, as upone the 26 of August all maner of man betuixt 60 and 16 wes chargit to be in reddines with thair best armes; and whoso wantit armour to be servit in Abirdene, quhair thair wes lying 1000 muscatis, pulder and ball, brocht in befor be sea, upone thair band for restitutioun, or to pay 18 pund for the peice.

Upone the said 26 of August, the tounschip of Abirdene wes convent within the Gray Freir kirk, whair the lord Burly maid ane speiche, desyring the proveest, balleis, counfall and comunity, to stand constantlie to the Covenant and wark of Reformatioun, and to defendoure lives, oure wyves, children, and goodis against thir Irish rebellis and vagabound people, who wes cum to distroy oure countrie. The people hard his speiche, quhairof sum had finall plesour, thinking in thair myndis that this Covenant and wark of Reformatioun had bred thame gryt forrow, travellis, and expenffis, for furneshing out men, money, hors, armes, quartering, and taxationis, quhilk thay nicht weill bein frie of, if we had wantit this Covenant and wark of Reformatioun, and leivit as oure predicessouris had done; and likuaies had now bein frie of the feir of thir Irishis, hanging over thair heidis. Utheris zealous of the good cause schew thame felfis hardy and stout, albeit thay had thair owne knelling consciences, and did little good. Aluayes Burly haveing endit, thay part all in peace.

Now the Committee of Abirdene maid the lord Gordoun livetennand general of the North, begining at the brughe of Abirdene, haveing vnder his divisioun betuixt Die and Done, and hail schire of Abirdene, the schirrefdome of Banf, and sum part of Morray. Whairupone the lord Gordoun rydis to Strathbogie, raisis his freindis and followeris, and appointis his randevous to be at Kildrymmy the second of September, who conventit thair about the number of 3000 men, hors and foot; and thair wes sent to him out of Abirdene about 300 muscattis to arme his naikit soldiouris, with pulder, matche, and ball. Bot the lord Forbes, the lord Frafer, the lord Crichtoun, thair freindis and folloueris, wold on nawayis condiscend to follow the lord Gordoun as livetennand in this buffines, and cam not to this meiting at Kildrymmy, as he hukit for. Aluayes thay panielie declairit befor the Committee thay wold follow no man bot the lord Forbes.

The lord Gordoun haveing conventit about 3000 men as livetennand at Kildrymmy, and feing thir lordis absent, grudgit thairwith. And his freindis and followeris, not lyking weill the caus, went ilkone a findrie get, and left him lying at Kildrymmy with about 400 men that durst not go from him at this tyme.

The Committee, loth to want the freindschip and following of the Forbefis, Fraferis and Crichtounes, choosis the lord Forbes to be crowner, and thay to follow him. Quhairwith thay war content; bot the lord Gordoun wes offendit, feing it touchit him deplie in his honour, quhilk maid him also grow cold in this service, as efter do appear, and at last left it simpliciter, and joynit with Montrois, as ye have [hereafter.]

The Committee begins now to discus the welthie widowis in Abirdene, and to borrow moneys fra thame upone band as fra the men.

As thir materis ar in hand, excises, down dinging of castellis, borrowing of moneyis, taxationis, and uther daylie vexationis, the Committee gat sum uther labour ado schortlie; albeit thay war still buisie, for upone the second day of September thay causit denunce to the horne 23 honest resposnall burgesis of Abirdene at the cros of Abirdene, for not lening of sic moneyis as thay thame felis fet down, quhilk the honest men thocht havy to obey; and upone this horning captioun wes to be raisit, and thair personis takin and wardit quhill payment wes maid, but law of God or anchtoretie of the king. Bot this Committee giver out of thir lawis gat uther labour ado schortlie, and the honest men sum releif of this opprethoun, as heirefter do appeir.

Upone the fourt of September thair wes direct be the Committee ane Proclamatioun to be maid at the cros of Abirdene be found of trumpettis, declairing Frances Sinckler to have done good and faithfull service to the publick, in taking of Alexander Irving younger of Drum, Robert Irving his brother, Mr. Alexander Irving, and Robert Irving messinger; and thairfoir ordanit him to receive fra the publick 18,000 merkis for the said Alexander Irving younger, and 5000 merkis for the said Robert Irving his brother, as a remembrance of his service, conforme to ane act givin out be the generall Committee at Edinbrughe ordaning sic founes to be payit to the takeris of the saidis persones. And as ye hard befoir, Willian Forbes wes of new agane declairit at this tyme to be good and loyall for murthering of Alexander Irving of Kin-coufie, and to get his rewaird formerlie said; strictlie chargeing and commanding, that no maner of man fould speik or say aganis thir persones, bot laudablie to praise and approve the samen in all places and conferences, as occasioun do offer, wuder gryte panes. Yit the godlie had ther owne thoghtis. Frances Sinkler gat no moir at this tyme bot 5000 merkis for his unnaturall service, quhilk wes little aneuch to mak his expenssis home with 16 gentlemen of tryne. Bot behold the Lord! This Williane Forbes, in August 1645, with schooting of ane muscat, felot his right hand fra him, for all his good service.

About this tyme, Johne lord Loudoun, chancelair of Scotland, past to London be sea.

Mr. Androw Cant gat ane letter fra Nathaniell Gordoun quhilk fleyit him to the hairt, and causit him remove out of the toun, and byd whill the marques of Argyllis cuming heir.

Mr. Williane Rait ane of oure Old toun balleis brocht in ane dreill maister to lerne oure poor bodeis to handle thair armes, who had moir neid to hald the plenche and wyn thair leivngis. The tounne wes evill vext. It wes divydit in thrie quarteris, and ilk quarter went out with thair ballie thair tyme about, and began the thrid of September. This goukit gys wes begun be oure ballie to schow his love to the good caus, being a mane covenanter. The toun wes forfit to pay ther dreill maifter daylie 24 s. of fie, quhairwith thay gryttle grudgit; bot it lasted not long. The balleis brocht out of Abirdene 30 muscattis, upone band to restore or pay thame, cheiffie be this Mr. Williame Rait.

Notwithstanding of thir feiris and buffines, oure Committee fitis constantlie in Abirdene, Burly being president, and following the wickit counfall of pro-vest Leslie, Mr. Alexander Joffray, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Mr. Williame Moir, and utheris pryme covenanteris, and mortall enemyis to the kingis loyall sub-jectis in Abirdene.

Ye have befor, of imprintit Proclamationis fet out. Now oure Committee of Abirdene upone the sext of September gives out ordour to the schirrefdomes of Abirdene, Kincardyn, and Banf, to have thair randevous at Abirdene, hors and foot, in thair best armes, upone the nynt and tent dayis of September; and the schire of Morray to be in like maner heir, the 12 and 13 dayis of September. Bot none cam out of Kincardyn nor out of Morray, and few out of Banf. Aluaies sum principall men out of the schires of Abirdene and Banf cam, as follouis, viz. the erll of Errollis men in Buchane wnder the leiding of James Hay of Muriefauld (him self being bot ane barne), the erll Marfchallis men in Buchan (bot him self keipit Dunnottar) wnder the leiding of Keith of Clakreab, the erll of Kingornes men of Balhelvie wnder the leiding of Johne Wdny, the lord Forbes, the lord Frazer, the lord Crichtoun, the tntour of Petfligo, Alexander Keith brother to the erll Marfchall with ane hors troupe, Lues Gordoun sone to the marques of Huntlie with ane hors troupe (his brother the lord Gordoun being absent), Sir William Forbes of Craigiwar with ane hors troupe, Sir William Forbes of Tolquhone, Thomas Forbes of Wattertoun, Johne Kennedy of Kernuk, Ogilvy of Boyne, Johne Wdny of that ilk, Sir Williame Forbes of Monymusk, Johne Forbes of Leslie, Skeyne of that ilk, Forbes of Echt, Forbes of Corfinday, Forbes of Lairgy, Alexander Strathachin of Glenkindie, Patrik Strathachin of Kynadie, Thomas Erkyne of Balhaggartie, Baird of Auchmedden, with thair freindis and folloueris. And divers utheris also out of the brugh of Banf, and countreis heirabout cam to this randevous, with Birkinbog. Siclike the lord Burly, and livetennand Arnot wes in the toun and about 400 of the Fyf regiment. Bot the erll Marfchall and his Mernis men baid at hame. And the lord Gordoun with his freindis cam not to this randevous, alledging he had gottin wrong be the Committee at Abirdene throw chufeing the lord Forbes to be collonell over sic perones as wes vnder his division, as ye have befoir.

Ye hard befoir, of Maifter M^cdonald his taking of service with Montrois, his landing and progres with the Irishis, and quhat order the Estaites took in setting furth Proclamatiounis. As M^cdonald merchit in throw Badjenoch, M^cronald of Keppache with his forces cam willinglie in to him, with divers utheris. The tutour of Struan with his freindis and folloueris, at his cuning to Atholl, cam in to him. And heir lykuaies James marques of Montrois tryffit with this M^cdonald and the Irishis. He cam secretlie from Ingland accompaneit onlie with crouner Hay and crouner Sibbald, as wes said, and cled in coat and trewis, upon his foot. He cam to Atholl, quhair divers gentilmen of that countrie met him, especiallie the Stewartis of Atholl, and offerit thair service unto him. The lord Kilpont cam thair with sum freindis.

This michtie marques of Montrois, cled now with the kingis commiffioun and auctoritie, calling to mynd the manifold injureis, oppreffionis, and wrongis, done to him be the Estaites, especiallie be Argile, since the begining of this Covenant; and resolving to revenge the kingis querrell and his owne both aganis the kingis rebellis and his mortall enemyis to the uttermost of his pouer, (whiche indeid he did efter a miraculous maner in divers battellis, as ye fall heir, to the gryte feir and terrour of all Scotland,) aluaies he marchis fra Atholl above Sanct Johnstoun. The generall Committee of Estaites at Edinbrughe, heiring of the Irish progres, haistellie raisis out of the schires of Fyf, Perth, and Angous, ane army about 6000 foot and 800 hors with expert officiares and commanders, ammunitioun, pulder, ball, and four feild peices, to go upone thir Irishis. Thay war weill in ordour both hors and foot. Thay marche forduard, and, upone Sunday the first day of September, both pairteis meitis upone ane muir four myllis be waft Sanct Johnstoun callit Tibber muir. Bot with gryte flauchter, Montrois, Livetennand foirlaid, routit and defeatit thair hail forces, killit 1300, sum sayis 1500, of thair men, and took 800 priffoneris, whome thay maid to serve in thair warris. Thay gat plenty of armes, pulder, ball, thair cannon, and sum hors, with bag and baggage; bot with littill lois to him self. Livetennand Montrois atcheivit this victorie with few men, not exceeding 3000 foot, with few or no horfinen at all, and with lois of sum bot not mony men, except the lord of Kilpont wes by one of his awin men sudantlie and unhappellie flayne, to this Livetennandis gryte greif. Aluaies efter this conflict, he, upone the morne, being Mononday and 2 of September, takis

Thay plunder the tome for goodis, moneyis, armes, amunitioun, and fuche like; and raisis so many of thair men as thay thocht meit to serve in the warris, with all the hors thay could get, quhair of this Livetennand wes scarce, as I have said.

Efter this buffines, divers gentilmen who had follout the marques of Huntlie, and haid bein at Montrose, and durst not be feir for feir of thair lives, cam in to this Livetennand, glaid to haferd thair lives and fortouns in his service rather then to leive in sic miserie, quhair of Nathaniell Gordoun wes one, accompaynit with about 30 weil horfit gentilmen, who was weil receavit according to thair worthis. Sie how he ftall away.

Thair cam in to him also James erl of Airly, Alexander lord Spynie, lord Duppillin, Sir Johne Drummond brother to the lord Drummond, the laird of Fintray (Graham), the laird of Inverquharitie, the laird of Ogill (Ramfay), the laird of Drumkilbo, tuo of the erl of Airlies fones, Sir Thomas and Sir David Ogilvyis, and divers utheris. ane letter to the erll Marſhall now being in Dunnotter, and incloifis within the ſamen one letter writtin fra the king to him. He declairit, his intention wes nowayis to truble the peace of his Majeſteis loyall ſubjectis, bot to be aganes the traittouris of the land, enemyis to his royall prerogative; and deſyrit him to ryſ, concur, and aſſiſt with him his Majeſteis Livetemand, as he wold be anſuerabill upone his awin perrell. Marſhall wreit bak no anſuer, bot ſent his mynd be word; and ſyne ſendis in the Livetemandis letter to the Committee at Abirdene, ſhowing his fidelitie to the countrie. Bot he lay ſtill in Dunnotter when moſt wes ado.

Ye have befor of the incuming of the ſchires of Banf and Abirdene. They war reknit about 1500 foot and 300 trouperis, and about 400 Fyf men and uther diſperſt ſoldiouris, and both the tounes of Abirdene eſtimat to 500 foot. They begin to wathe the brig of Die, and mak ſum ſaif guairdis and fortificationis to litle effect. The toun of Abirdene chooſis four capitans for the four quarteris thair of, viz. Patrik Leſlie younger, ſone to the proveſt, Alexander Luuſden, Alexander Burnet, and Thomas Melving, with uther officiaris, and maior Arthour Forbes to be thair cheif leidar. And thus wes oure people betuixt 60 and 16 in both tounes to dreilling in the Lynkis and careing of armes, and ſent thair welth and Committee moneyis to Dunnotter to be kept. The Livetennand in the mein tyme miſkenis the brig of Die, and, upone Wedneſday the 11 of September, he croſt the water at the milnes of Drumm, and campit about Crathas; bot the Livetennand him ſeſe with his gaird ſoupit with the laird of Leyis efter he had ſummonnd him to render his houſe. He did no harme, bot took ſum armes and hors and promeis of ſum men. Leyis offerit him 5000 merkis of money, quhilk he noblie reſuſit.

As he is thus lying at Crathas, oure army lyes at wathe all nicht in armes, and many countrie people and tounes people ſtall away for feir. Quhairupone Proclamationis givin out forbidding any to ſtur fra the camp without ourdour wnder the pane of death, and whoſo hapnit to apprehend or kill thame in thair ſlicht ſould have 500 merkis for his panes, whiche bred gryte feir; yit, many did haſerd and ſtall away fra the camp, albeit the wayis and brigis of Done and Die both war ſtraitle watchit day and night.

Upone Wedneſday the 11 of September, oure army merchit out of the toun to the Tua myll cros; bot upone Thuirſday they returnit bak to the toun at nicht.

The enemy marchis down Die-ſyde, and cumis the ſame nicht to that ſame place of Tua myll cros, quhair thay ſat down thair camp.

Upone Frydday the 13 of September, about ellevin houris, oure army beginis to marche out of the toun. Livetennand Montrois wreittis ane letter to the proveft and balleis of Abirdene, fendis ane drummer to touk ane parole, and ane commiffioner to deliver the letter, quhilk boor ane command and charge to render the toun to him Livetennand to his Majeftie and in the Kingis name, quhairby he nicht receive peciabil entres to ufe his Majefteis Proclamationis and sic orderis as he thocht fitting, promefing affureans that no moir harme nor prejudice fould be done to the toun, bot to tak thair intertynnement for that nicht; utheruayis if thay wold difobey, that then he defyrit them to remove old agit men, wemen and children out of the get, and to ftand to thair awin perrell.

This letter was deliverit to the proveft. He convenis his counfall at the Bowbrig in Alexander Fyndlateris hous, quhair the lord Burly, livetennand Arnot, Mr. James Baird, and fun utheris wes. Thay caufit the commiffioner and drummer drink hardlie, fendis ane anfuer; and be the way the drummer wes unhappellie flayne. Montrois fand thair anfuer wes to ftand out, and defend thame felfis to the uttermoft. And, fynding his drummer aganes the law of nationis moft inhumanelie flayne, he grew mad, and becam furious and impatient, oure army being upone thair merche when he wes flayne, about ellevin houris, touardis the boundis of Justice Millis. At the receipt of the quhilk anfuer the Livetennand cumis quiklie merchand fra the Tua myll cros to meit ws, chargeing his men to kill and pardon none.

Oure cannon begins the play. Oure trouperis perfewis hardlie. The enemy fehootis thair cannon alfo and defendis stoutlie with mukiteires. The fight continewis hotlie dureing the fpace of tuo houris, at laft we tak the flight. Oure trouperis upone horfbak wan faiflie away, except Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar and John Forbes of Lairgy war takin priffoneris. Thair wes littill flachter in the fight, bot horribill wes the flachter in the flight fleing bak to the toun, whiche wes oure tounes menis diftruction; whairas if thay had fled and not cum neir the toun they nicht have bein in better securitie: bot being commandit be Patrik Leslie proveft to tak the toun they war undone, yit him felf and the pryme covenantis being on horfbak wan faiflie them felfis away. The Livetennand followis the chais in to Abirdene, his men hewing and cutting doum all maner of man thay could overtak (within the toun, upone the freites, or in thair houffis, and round about the toun, as oure men wes fleing,) with brode fuordis but mercy or remeid. Thir cruell Irifhis, feing a man weil cled, wold firft tyr him and faif the clothis onfpoyl-lit, syne kill the man. We lost thrie peice of cannon with muche goode armour, besydis the plundering of oure toune houffis, merchand buitthis and all, whiche wes pitifull to sie. The lord Burly, Mr. Alexander Joffray, and his fones, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Walter Cochrum, Mr. James Baird advocat in Edinbrughe, and divers utheris covenantaris wau upone hors faif away. Aluayes Montrois follouis the cheas in to Abirdene, leaving the bodie of his army standing clois unbrokin whill his returne, except such Irishis as faucht the feild. He had promefit to them the plundering of the toune for thair good service. Aluayes the Livetennand stayit not, bot returnit bak fra Abirdene to the camp this famen Frydday at nicht, leaving the Irishis killing, robbing and plundering of this toune at thair plefour. And nothing hard bot pitifull houl-ling, crying, weiping, murning, throw all the freittis.

Thus, thir Irishis continewit Frydday, Setterday, Sunday, Mononday. Sum wemen thay preiffit to desloir, and uther sum thay took perforce to serve thame in the camp. It is lamentabill to heir how thir Irishis who had gottin the spoyl of the toune did abuse the famen. The men that thay killit thay wold not suffer to be bureit, bot tirit thame of thair clothis, syne left thair naikit bodeis lying above the ground. The wyf durft not cry nor weip at her husbandis flauchter befor hir eyes, nor the mother for the sone, nor dochter for the father; whiche if thay war hard, then war thay pre-entlie slayne also.

As thir savage Irishis ar at this wark, the Livetennand gave ordouris to the bodie of the army, upone Setterday the 14 of September, to marche (except sic Irishis as wes plundering the toune and killing oure men, whiche went not with thame) forduardis to Kintoir, Innerurie, and Gareoche. Upone whiche Setterday the marques of Montrois cumis in to the toune accompaneit with James erll of Airly, the lord Spynny, lord Duppillin, Sir Johne Drummond sone to the erll of Perth, Sir Thomas Ogilvy sone to the said erll of Airly, the laird of Fentray (Grahame), the laird of Innerquharitie, the laird of Ogill (Ramfay), Sir Thomas Tyrie of Drunkilbo, and divers utheris. He lodgit in skipper Anderfonsis hous, the army being removit, except sic as baid behind plundering the toune, as said is.

And first he causit put to libertie the haill wardouris out of the tolbuith: sum put wp for follouing the marques of Huntlie, quhair of Johne Gordoun of Innermarkie ane brave gentilman wes ane, Alexander Irving of Lenturk, Alexander Graden, Robert Irving messinger; utheris for debt, sic as Williame Chalmer of Blair, and divers utheris; of about thirty perfones altogidder.

Whairat doubtles thir gentilmen wes moft glaid. And the said Johne Gordoun of Innermarkie and sum utheris went to him to ferve in his warris.

This being done, he causis proclame his Majesteis letteris patent at the marcat croc, being ane ample Livetemandrie maid and grantit to Prince Robert generall of his forces within the kingdome of Scotland, and to James marques of Montrois his livetemand generall, and to Sir Alexander M^cDonald M^cColl M^cKittiche [Allafter M^cColl Keitach V^cGillefpick] vnder him capitane over the Irish forces in that service, for taking ordour with the infurrectioun of that kingdome, and bringing of the kingis subjectis to thair wontit obedience be fair meinis or by fyre and fuord, the penitent to be pardonit, the malignant outstauderis to be punisshit with all rigour, and so furth. Bot thir letteris patent wes not pastoure Scottis feallis. This wes publisshit and ane imprintit coppie affixit upon the croc. Thairefter ane uther Proclamatioun wes immediatlie maid in the said Livetemand his awin name, commanding and charging his Majesteis lieges to cum in, fieur and subscribe the Othe of Allegeance, vnder the pane of fyre and fuord, quhair of ane uther imprintit copie wes affixit upone the said croc. Lyk as he intendit to caus publissh the famen throw all the parochins at the parochie churches; bot he wes interruptit by the cunning of Argile hard at his heillis, as may be sein heirefter. Mony who lovit the king wes glaid of thir newis, utheris of the covenant wes no les forie.

Thir thingis done, the Livetemand staxis Setterday all nicht in skipper Anderfonis hous, the cruell Irishis still killing and robbing all this whill that he is at this bussines. Sondag all day he staxis; bot nather preiching nor prayeris wes in ony of the Aberdenis, becaus the ministeris throw guiltines of thair consciences had fled. This Livetemand wes cled in cot and trewis as the Irishes wes cled. Ilk one had in his cap or bonet ane rip of oatis quhilk wes his sing. Oure toune's people began to weir the lyk in thair bonnetis, and to knyt to till the knokis of oure yettis the like rip of oatis; bot it was littill faifguard to ws, albeit we wfit the famen for a protectioun.

Upone Monoday the 16 of September, thir foldiouris who had biddin behind rifling and spoyling both Aberdenis war now chargit be touk of drum to remove and follow the camp vnder the pane of death. And thairefter him self began to marche that same day towardis the camp lying about Kintoir, Innerurie, Leslie, Likliheid, and uther pairtis about, waisting and distroying the countrie. He had his tua prissoneris, Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar and Johne Forbes of Lairgie, with him, of whome ye fall heir moir.

And albeit Montrois marchit thus away, yit the lord Spynnies baid quyetlie behind in the toun, who wes thairefter takin; and mony renegat Irishis baid behind risling and spoylling both Old toun and New toun pitifullie. And none durst bury the deid; yea, and I saw tua corpis careit to the buriall throw the Old toun with wemen onlie, and not ane man amongst them, (so that the naikit corpis lay onbureit so long as thir lymmaris war ongone to the camp, albeit the Livetenmand him self upone the same Monunday befor he went out of the toun gave ordouris to both Aberdenis to bury thair deid,) quhilk thay did with feir of thair lives.

Heir it is to be markit, that the nicht befor this feild wes fought oure people saw the moone rys all reid as blood tuo houris befor hir tyme. And siclyk at the yoking of this battell thair rais ane heighe and nichtie wynd out of the waft fouth waft in the bak of the enemy and face of oure people, quhilk wes to oure prejudice. Thridlie, oure toun and countrie people wes all gydit and reullit by covenantis at this tyme, whiche stayit the toun from rander to the kingis Livetenmand upone sic fair conditionis; bot the pride of oure majestatis, covenantis as said is, wold not yeild. Quhairupone folowit blood and hairschip bothe, and many honest men brocht to thair grave throw the evill counfall and wickit governance of thir malignant majestatis, sic as Thir people wes tounefmen, flayne in the fight, and in the flight chiefly the day of the battell, and thairefter without the toune, about Justice Millis, Forrefterhill, Newhillis, Schedokifley, and uther pairtis of the friedome, and within the toune in thair houfis, and on the calsey, induelleris within the toune and friedome thairof. Thair wes alfo flayne fun countrie people, and fun of the Fyf regiment. Bot to Montrois thair wes few killit that cam to our knowledge.

It may be cleirlic feiu how oure dreid Sovereigne wes forst to draw his fuord to fuppres his difloyall fubjectis, who, efter he had grantit our haild defyres, wes croft by fending in armyis to England without his licens and auctoritie, yea, and taking pairt with his enemies of that kingdome againft his royall Majestie, and ftryving to mak wp ane Reformatioun within oure church without ony warrant of his Highnes, contrarie to monarchicall government. Qubairupone he is forst to draw his fuord, as faid is, and many of his good and loyall fubjectis loiffis thair lives, drawin on in fervice againft him be the Covenanteris, fore againft thair willis, as may be feiu heir in dulefull Abirdene, and abefoir at Tibbermure, and at Sanct Johnftoun, in England and Ireland alfo.

Ye hard how Livetennand Montrois marchit out of Abirdene upone Monoday the 16 of September. Thair cam in to him Gordoun of Abirzeldie and Donald Farquarfone of Tulligarmont, with divers utheris, freindis and followeris, all diftrefsit gentilmen for favoring and following the hous of Huntlie; and he marchit this Monoday towardis the camp lying at Innerurie and countrie about.

In the meintyme the marques of Argile is cum to Brechin, quhair divers met him, sic as the erll Marfchall, the lord Gordoun (who lay quyet abefoir), the lord Forbes, the lord Frafer, the lord Crichtoun, with divers of oure countrie barronis, Covenanteris. He wes about ten troupis of hors, haveing his foot army following him. And he wes convoyit fra Brechin to the place of Drum upone Tuyfday the 17 of September, quhair he ftayit that nicht.

Now as forrowfull Abirdene is lamenting thair loiffis efter Montrois left the toune upone the Monunday, thinking to get no moir vexatioun, thair cumis in, upone the Wedinfday and 18 of September thairefter, certane of Argile's troupis to Abirdene with found of trumpet; and him felf alfo cam to Drum. Quhairupone Patrik Leslie proveft, Patrik Leslie his eldest sone, Mr. Alexander Joffray and his fones, Mr. Robert Farquhar, Mr. Williame Moir, Walter Cochrum, Mr. Androw Cant minifter, and remanent Covenanteris of Abirdene, the lord Burly, livetennant Arnot, Mr. James Baird, and utheris, who had fled the fight, cam ilk ane efter uther in to Abirdene and cropis the calfee bravelie. Bot Mr. Androw Cant cam from Edinbrughe, as ye have befoir.

Upone this famen Wedinfday and 18 of September, Proclamatiounis be the marques of Argile's directioun maid at the cros of Abirdene, declairing the marques of Montrois, his folloueris, affiftaris, and partakeris to be trait-touris to religioun, king and countrie; and who fould bring in Montrois, quik or deid, fould have for his rewarid 20,000 pundis. And ficlike the toune's people who for feir of Montrois had fled thair houffis war chargit to returne bak agane, and leve in peace; bot thay gat more troubles.

Sum thocht this Proclamatioun givin out be Argile's directioun aganes the Kingis Livetennant Generall cled with his letteris patent wes weill ftrange to a fubject to do aganis the Kingis auchtoretie.

Upone Thuirfday the 19 of September, about 3 houris efternone, thair cam in to Abirdene thrie foot regimentis out of Argile estimat to 3000 men, ane foot regiment wnder the erll of Lauthean, another foot regiment wnder the laird of Laeris, and ane hors regiment wnder the erll of Dalhousie, brocht be Argile out of England and Ireland for this fervice againt Montrois.

This multitude of people leivit upone frie quarteris, a new greif to both tounes; quhairof thair wes quarterit on poor Old Abirdene Argile's owne thrie regimentis. The fouldiouris had thair baggage careit, and cravit nothing bot hous roume and fyre. Bot ilk capitane with 12 gentilmen had frie quarteris, (fo long as the toune had meit or drink,) for tua ordineris; bot the thrid ordiner thay furnefhit them felfis out of thair owne baggage and provifion, have-ing ftoir of meill, nolt, and fcheip, careit with thame. Bot the first nicht thay drank out all the stail aill in Old Abirdene, and leivit upone wort thairefter.

It is said, the marques of Argile had follout thir Irillis, who fled out of his countrie, about ten weikis tyme, bot could never wyn within tua dayis and ane half dayis journey towardis them. Bot now his foot army lying in Abirdene wes within half ane dayis journey towardis them lying about Innerurie, and in the Gareoche; and so Argile him self with his trouperis lying now at Drum wes within lyk distance to them: bot littill following wes thair now, ilk pairtie herrying and distroying the countrie quhair ever thay cam in thair bestiall, nolt, fcheip, ky, victuallis, and utheris goodis; and fynding thair horffis trouperis and baggage horffis with cornes, quhair of the cornes about both Abirdenis felt the finairt.

Upone Setterday 21 September, Old Abirdene compellit to furneifhe tuentie baggage hors to follow Argile's thrie foot regimentis quarterit in oure tonne, who had lyin whill Thuirfday efternone till this Setterday that thay began to marche towardis the place of Drum and countreis about. Thay had thair capitanis and commanderis, with Argile's cullouris, which wes blak and a yallow cros going throw them, beiring this motto, FOR RELIGIUN, COUNTRY, CROUN, AND COVENANT. Mervallous to sie Argile with his hors troupes and foot army so neir his enemy, and to ly still without persewing of thame so long tyme! Aluaies he takis resolutioun to send half of his Argile-men bak to keip the countrie, and to keip the other half besyd him self; quhilk wes so done.

Livetennand Montrois lying at Kintoir, Innerurie, &c. upone Mononday 16 of September, as ye have hard; and heiring of Argile's cuming to Drum, just upone the morne he begins to marche towardis Spey fyde; bot could not win over the water, the boitis being drawin on the uther fyde, and Morray convenit in armes. Montrois feis it wes so, he drawis him self to the wood of Abirnethie, and thair lysis he. Argile, being at Drum, follouis him the lenth of Strathbogie, and returns bak agane but moir vassalage; and the samen Setterday that his foot men went out of Abirdene, being the 21 of September, he cumis quyettlie upone the nicht in to Abirdene with few hors. The erll of Lautheanis regiment and laird of Laeris regiment wes lying in Abirdene before him, attending his service; for he had stayit tuo nights at the place of Drum befoir he went to Strathbogie following efter Montrois, and returnit to Abirdene, as I have said. The erll of Fyndlater and divers countrie barronis met him at Abirdene contrair the Kingis Livetennand. Bot Argile wes by

And heir be the way it is to be nottit, that upone the fame Setterday that Argyle came to Abirdene, the lord Spynnike, byding behind Montrois, wes takin and wairdit in the tolbuith of Abirdene, as ye hard befoir, and this Setterday fent to Edinbrughe, quhair he wes thair wairdit agane. He wes convoyit fouth with Craignaris troupe, with whome Robert lord Burly, Mr. James Baird advocat, Johne Denhame commiffar and the reft went alfo, refolving to hold no moir Committees in Abirdene at this tyme.

Sonday 22 September, preiching in both Abirdenes be our owne minifteris, who had now returnit fra thair flicht back to Abirdene. Efter foirnone's fermone, Mr. Williame Strathauchin red out ane paper charging all maner of man within this parochin to bring in thair horffis of fourtie pund price and above, the 28 of September nixt, and the lord Gordounis regiment wnder his dividoun to cum in the fame day. Bot no obediens given to thir charges.

Sonday efternoone, Argyle held ane counfall of warr.

Monoday 23 September, he likuaies held ane counfall of warr. Quhair it is to be nottit, that the erll Marfchall, the lord Gordoun, the lord Forbes, the lord Frafer, the lord Crichtoune, nor none uther of the covenanting barronis drew up thair freindis and folloneris within the fchirrefdomes of Kincardyn, Abirdene, and Banf to follow and affift Argyle as thay went to rys befoir in the begining of this covenant. Aluaies efter this counfall of warr Argyle gois to hors, and beginis to marche from Abirdene with the erll of Lauthean and laird of Laeris tuo regimentis towardis Strathbogie. And as he gois out, incumis the fame Monoday to Abirdene the laird of Buchananis regiment about 500 foot. He stayit all nicht, and upone the morne marchis efter Argyle. Bot pitifullie wes both Abirdenis and countrie about plaguit in furnefhing baggage hors to thir hail regimentis as thay can daylie in, fo that no hors wes left to bring in the florne cornes to the corne yaird, nor to bring in ane lead of peites to the fyre, nor ane boll of victuall to leive upoue; bot wemen careit upone thair bakis the ground malt from the milnes to be drink. So is this pure land vext and oppreffit, befrydis thair cornis diftroyit and eitten with fervice hors, and baggage hors alfo.

Upone Wedinfday immediatlie befoir Michaelmas and 25 of September, Mr. Robert Farquhar chofen proveft of Abirdene; Johne Hay, Thomas Mortimer, Alexander Joffray, and Patrik Leslie younger chofen balleis for ane yeir; Schirref of Aberdene, Schirref of Innernis.

Argile merchis foruard fra Abirdene to Strathbogie with an army of hors and foot, haveing the lord Gordoun and his brother Lues in his company; quhair he diftroiyt the hail Rawis of Strathbogie. Cornefeild landis, outficht, inficht, hors, nolt, fcheip, and all uther goodis thay plunderit quhilk thay could get. And it wes said the lord Gordoun beheld all, becaus thay wold not rys and follow him as thair young cheif. Strathila and Boyne fore wrackit. And when this army diftroiyt Strathbogie, then thay leivit upone the Enggie, herryng the countrie and diftroiyng the cornis; fo that thair wes no four houfeholderis duelling thair of the name of Gordoun, bot all had fled, yea, and fun alledgit thay went willinglie into Montrois army. And lykuaies thay diftroiyt the cornis and bestiall of Strathavan, Auchindoun, and utheris landis about, quhilk maid them also to brak out. A wonderfull unnaturalitie in the lord Gordoun to suffer his fatheris landis and freindis in his own ficht to be thus wrackit and diftroiyt in his fatheris abfens! Sie moir following.

Upone Sunday 29 September, a fast keipit throw the presbitrie of Abirdene, apointit by the brethren and moderatour thair of to be keipit that Sunday and on Sunday nixt thairefter following; quhilk wes solempnie keipit both dayis for the fynis of the land, quhilk wes juft: bot no repentans for the mayne mother fyn, quhilk wes the change of government, both in church and policie within this land, and bringing in a Reformatioun, quhair of the kirk wes wickit instrumentis, misregarding the Kingis auchtoretie in thair prepofterous zeall, whiche wes bakkit by the pretendit Estaites, by raising of arnes and sending to England aganes our dreid Soveraigne, efter he had grantit ws all oure willis. Thair wes no repentans nather for oure rebellioun in thir pointes, bot thocht all good service for oure pretendit wark of reformatioun, quhairby most juftly the fuord wes drawin and brocht in amongft ws. Yit the people, for the mayne trespassis of the pastoris and Estaites, is thrawin, and drawin fra thair virtue, in hicht of harveft, to thir feingzeit fastinges, with four houris doctrine to ilk sermon, quhairby thay war fore wyreit and vext; and the gryte God lukiing down upone thir hypocriticall humiliations, be all apperans not weill pleifit nor duly worfchippit.

Upone the first Sondagis fast, Mr Williame Strathachin, efter sermon, warnit, in Argile's name, the lord Gordoun's trouperis, within the parochin of Auld Sanct Maucher, to compeir in Abirdene upone the aucht of October nixt, bringing with him ane saddell hors worth ane hundrethe merkes, and ane baggage hors worth fourty merkis, wnder gryte panes. Strange to sie sic charges givin out except in the kingis name ! Bot littill obediens wes givin to thir charges, nather wes this fast univverfall throw Scotland, bot onlie within the prebbitrie of Abirdene, sic wes the sinceritie of oure Archpuritans ; yit it wes ane univverfall fast indeid.

Ye hard befor how Argile's foot army merchit fra Abirdene to the landis of Drun, him felf with his hors troupris haveing removit befor thair cuning towardis Strathbogie. Albeit he had stayit tuo nichtis befor he removit, eiting and distroying the cornis and bestiall with his trouperis, now his foot army began quhair he left, cuttit down the pleasant gardyne planting to be huttis, distroyit the cornis, and left not ane four futed beist in the landis of Drun, Cromar, Auchterfoull, Oboyne, Abirzeldie and countreis about. Syne the ane half went to Atholl hame to Argile, the uther half baid upone thair maisteris service, who as ye have, wes marchit towardis Strathbogie, distroying that countrie, the Engzie, Strathilay and Boyne, and not mynting to follow the enemy lying in the Wod of Abirnethie.

Upone Sunday the 6 of October, fast keipit throwout the boundis of oure prebbitrie of Abirdene be ordination of the moderatour thair of and his puritane bretheren, and not keipit els quhair. The people wes continewallie vext with fasting and prayer. Bot oure pastouris never urgit repentans for the mother syn in bringing in alteration of religioun, whiche thay callit Reformation ; nor repentans for change of Estait government, and raising of armes, and sending into England aganis the kingis auctoritie ; nor for the schedding of so muche innocent blood throw occasioun thair of, done be his Livetennand Montrois. Thair is no repentans maid heirof, bot thocht all good service. Yea, and the people urgit and compellit to give thankifiveingis for sic victoreis as wes had against the king, bot no thankis giving for sic victoreis as he had over his enemeis.

Thus, is this land pitifullie vext and borne down, both by state-government and churche ministeris, wofull fyrebrandis and wicked instrumentis fra the begining, who now takis to hairt thair awin feires.

Ye hard how Montrois merchit fra Kintoir and Innerurie towardis Spey fyde upone the 18 day of September. And feing the Morray men in armes, who had drawin the boites that he culd not cum over, he gois to the Wod of Abirnethie, quhair he sojournis, taking his leiving af of the countrie, as Argile wes distroying the landis of Strathbogie, Engzie, Strathilay and Boyne, as is befor nottit.

Upone the 27 of September, Argile mufteris his men at the Bog of Geicht, who of foot and hors wes estimat about 4000 men ; bot never movit to follow the enemy, lying all this while in the Wod of Abirneithie, not twenty myllis distant fra his army.

Montrois, feing he is not follout be Argile, he leaves the Wod of Abirneithie and to the Wod of Rothimurcous saiffie gois he, and thair remanes a while. Fra that he marchis to the heid of Strathspye, throw Badzenocht, throw Atholl, quhair many of these countreis met him and follout him ; and round about cumis he agane into Angous, quhair it is said he raisit sun fyre, about Couper of Angous, of landis pertening to the lord Couper, ane archeovenauter and brother to the lord Balmyrrinoche. He marchis to the place of Dun, quhair the burgefis of Montrois and countrie people had put in thair best gudes for saiftie, being ane strong hous, and him self a gryte covenanter. Bot Montrois takis in this hous, plunderis the hail gudes and armes. Amongst the rest he takis four feild brassin peices, quhilk pertenit to the marques of Huntlie, and wes loist at the brig of Die in the beginning of thir troubles.

As Montrois is marcheing throw Atholl, Sir Alexander McDonald leaves him, and takis sun Irishis with his favour for sun buffines ; and returnit not bak to Montrois whill [November 19.] Aluayes Montrois had conquest many freindis in Angous quyetlie, befydis the erll of Airlie and his tua sones, Sir Thomas and Sir David Ogilvyis, with sun uther barronis, who still wes in his company, marcheing with a sleing army ; quhair I will leave Montrois in Angous a while, while Argile overtak him if he can.

The marques of Argile heiring, whair he with his army wes lying at the Bog, that Montrois had left the Wod of Rothimurcous and fled to the mountanes, he then takis courage to follow, whair he nicht have had him narrer hand if he had bene weill willit, as is said befor. Aluayes him self, with sun tronperis, crossis Spey, and sendis his foot army wp the north fyde of Strathspye, and met him agane. The Morray people wes glaid to be frie of thir footmen for fear of plundering and oppressioun, and had drawin thair boites and gardit the foordis in fuche fort, as nather Montrois' nor Argile's army wan thair ; for the quhilk thay war muche to be commendit, in respect of uther countreis that wes fore opprest.

Argile passes to Forres, quhair the erll of Sutherland, the lord Lovat, the laird of Balnagoun, the schirref of Morray, the laird of Innes, the laird of Plufcardyne, and divers utheris, above 1000 men, and held ane Committee in Forres. Bot the erll of Seafort wes gone fra this Committee befor Argile cam ; and it wes thocht that he and sun utheris had correspondance privatlie with Montrois whill as he wes lying in the Wod of Abirnethe. Argile marchis fra Forres, and the Committee disfolvis; and thair follouis him seven or eight hors troupis, herrying and distroying the countrie. He cumis to Innernes, and gives ordour to tuo foot regimentis, one wnder the laird of Buchanan, and the uther wnder the laird of Laeris, to ly thair in garifoun. From Innernes he marches to Badzenocht, and heiring that sum countrie people had gone in to Montrois' fervice, he left nothing of that countrie ondstroyit, no, not ane four footed beift, cornis, nor utheris, (his foot army met him heir in Badzenocht, who wes buffie at this wark); fra this passis in throw Atholl, and distroyis the famen countrie in like maner, becaus sum of that countrie follouit Montrois. From Atholl he cumis till Angous and Mernis, still following Montrois; quhair I will leave him and Montrois both for a while.

Ye hard of Montrois cuming to Angous with his fleing army. Word cumis to Abirdene, quhair ane Committee wes haldin be the erll Marfchall and divers barronis in the tolbuith upone the tent of October; quhair ane imprintit Act wes set out, schawing, that thay haveing intelligens of the enemeis marching towardis them from Angous in all hostill maner, thairfoir ordanit all of whatsoever aige, sex, or qualitie who have hors of fourtie pund price or above, that thay put out the famen with ryderis, armeit and furneishit, and to mak thair randevous at the Brig of Die, the 14 of October instant by ten a clok; with certificatioun to thame that fall failzie, ilk landit man salbe punisshit in ane thousand pundis, ilk gentilman in fyve hundreth pundis, and everie husbandman in ane hundreth merkis, by and attour confiscatioun of thair horffis, seing the Generall Major are attending the randevous, and the Marques with the foot are advancing; likuaies, the publicatioun to be exped be the moderatouris of eche presbitrie, and ilk minister to advertise ilk particular man within his parochin, and out of thair pulpitis upone Sunday. This Act wes subscrivit be the erll Marfchall in presens of the Committee.

Now the hail ministeris gois to wark in publishing of this Act, and oure minister Mr. Williame Strathauchin, efter fermon, red it out of pulpit. Bot no obedience wes givin this Act, for both brughe and land wes wnder sic feir that thay wold not rys aganes Montrois and the Irishis. And many men and women, with thair young children careit on womenis bakis, fled the toune of Abirden, (thair haveing fallin the same Sunday ane storme of snaw,) houlling, lamenting, and crying, not knowing quhair to go for saistie of thair lives, which wes pitifull to behold : bot their feir wes moir nor neidit, for thay all returnit bak to thair houffis in peace fchorly, for that Montrois cam not to Abirdene, as ye may heirefter fie.

Upone the 15 of October, Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar, and Johne Forbes of Lairgy, cam to Abirdene. Montrois upone thair parroll gave thame libertie, being both his priffoneris, as ye hard befor, upone conditionis, as is said, that Craigiwar fould purches the young laird Druun and his brother thair libertie at the Estaites' handis out of the tolbuith of Edinbrughe for the friedome of him felf and the said Johne Forbes; or utherwayes that thay fould both returne bak to Montrois as his priffoneris befor the first of November; and if it hapnit Montrois to be overcun in battell befor that day, that thay to be frie of thair paroll and bak cuning to Montrois. Aluaies thay cam to Abirdene, careit them felves calulie, and Craigiwar cam not neir the Committees then fitting in Abirden. And Montrois wes admired for his nobill dealling for letting go fuche a prime man as Craigiwar upone his bair paroll.

Generall Major Ramfay over the hors troupis appointit be the Estaites lying in Abirdene and countries about, and brocht heir be Argile at the day appointit be Act of Committee foirsaid, had his randevous at the Brig of Die with his awin hors troupis; bot no trouper cam out of this countrie to this meiting except thrie troupis wnder the lord Gordoun, and ane troupe wnder capitene Alexander Keith brother to the Erll Marfchall. Ramfay and his troupis deftroiyt the countrie cornis, and his intertynnement wes brocht daylie out of Abirdene to him, for the quhilk he did no kind of fervice, bot wraking of the countrie; yit oure minifteris crying out aganis his enemeis and praying for him ernefflie. Bot Montrois begylit him, as ye may fie heirefter.

Upone Tufyday 15 October, the erll Marfchall cam in fra Dunnotter to Abirdene, and held ane Committee, havinge the lord Frafer, fum barronis, and the proveft with him.

The famen Tufyday oure Provinciall Affembly convenit, and prorogat to the 19 of November in respect of thir troubles. Sie heirefter.

The said Tufyday, thair cam fra the south to Abirdene wnder livetennant collonell Hammiltoun aucht troupis, quhair of ane wes quarterit in Old Abirdene. Thay foupit that nicht, and dynit upone the morn, fyne rode to the Brig of Die; bot the cornis was eitten wp and pitifullie deftroiyt be thair horffis.

In the mein tyme, drums chargeing the toune of Abirdene to be in armes for ane foot guard to thir trouperis at the said Brig of Die; bot never ane tounefman wold flur.

The said Tuyfday thair wes brocht in befor the Committee capiten Aleis and ane uther of Montrois' fcout watches upone Die fyde. Marfchall caufit confyne them in lodgings, bot not in the tolbuith, and at laft gat libertie. Thair wes lykuaies tane aucht Irifhis or lielanderis of Montrois' men. They war all wardit in the tolbuith, wha brak waird be ane ftrange flicht and wan away upone the fourt of November by ane alifoun iron, quhairby they maid ane hoill in the thick wall of the heiche tolbuith, and wan down upone plaidis, except ane who was takin.

Ye hard befor quhair I left Montrois in Angous, quhair he purcheffit mony freindis. He marchis throw the Mernis, and, contrair to oure trouperis' expectation, he croffis the water of Die at the Milnes of Druun, upon Thuirfday the 17 of October, with his haill army faif and found, we haveing lying watcheing the Brig of Die foolifhlie about 14 troupris, leiving idlie, deftroying the countrie and thair cornis pitifullie.

Aluaies Montrois marchis forduard, (quhairat oure fleing people fra Abirdene rejoifit and returnit bak to thair houffis, ye may fee [before] thair fleing and mifery,) and cam be Crathas, quhair it is said the laird of Leyis gave contentment to Montrois. He then began to rais fyre upone covenantaris' landis, quhilk befor he had not done in this countrie. And firft he brynt the Kirktoom of Echt and his haill barrony, (except oulie tua pleuchis,) houffis, bigginges, and the haill corne yairdis perteing to his ground; plunderit his haill nolt, fcheip, hors, ky, and utheris belonging to his landis and barrony.

Marfchall, being in Abirdene and heiring of this, fchortlie rydes to Dunnottter upone the morne being the 18 of October, and thair lysis he.

Upone Frydday the foirfaid 18 of October, Montrois brynt the place of Pittodrie and Durlathen with four pleuchis of cornis quhilk he had in Maynes, and plunderit his haill goodis and geiris. He brynt the ritche corne yairdis of Muchall perteing to lord Androw Frafer, and fpolzait his ground as a pryme covenantar, as the reft was.

Upone Setterday the 19 of October, he dynit in Monymusk with the ladie, the laird being abfent, and upone fair conditionis he fpairit him at this tyme. Soday he marchit towardis Frendracht, and gat fum beftiall, nolt, and fcheip thair, for fuflening of his army; and that fame day marchit to Strathbogie, quhair I will leave him, and returne to Argile.

Ye hard befor, how Argile had ftill follout Montrois and that he wes cum to Angous; bot befor his cuming, Montrois had croft the water of Die, as ye have hard, upone the 17 of October. And Argile cam to Dunnottter upone Wedinſday the 23 of October, quhair him ſelf ſtayes, his army lying in the feildis. Upone the morne, he marchis fra Dumnotter to Abirdene. His army wes eſtimat about 2000 foot, quhair of thair wes 1000 of his own Argile men. He had ſevin hors troupris, by and attour 14 troupris lying heir in this countrie befor him. Both Abirdenis and corne feild landis wrackit with thair quartering, and ſuſtening of thir horffis.

Frydday the 25 of October, his foot army marchis from Abirdene tonardis Kintoir and Innerurie in the morning; and about tua eſternone him ſelf follouis with his troupris, and ſtayit in Kintoir all nicht. Upone the morne, he marchis tonardis Innerurie, ſtayit that nicht, and hard devotioun thair upone Sunday. The erll of Lautheanis regiment cam alſo to Innerurie to Argile.

It is to be markit, that the erll Marſhall nor yit the lord Gordoun wes heir with Argile; nor any within the ſchirrefdoms of Angous, Kincardyn, Abirdene or Banf wold rys with him; ſic wes thair feir of Montrois. Argile, ryding throw the Old toun, left directioun with thair balleis to tak ordour with any ſoldiouris byding behind thame within thair toun. Conforme to the quhilk thay took about fixteen rafeallis oppreſſing the toun. Thay ar all difarmit, and ſum of thame ar hurt and wardit. Argile advertesit, it is thocht good ſervice; and theſe rafeallis tranſportit to the tolbuith of Abirdene at his command be the Old toun men, and ſo wes quyt of thair faſherie, whyll Argile gave ordouris for thair friedom. This wes about the 26 of October.

Aluayes I leave the marques of Argile at Innerurie lying whill heirefter.

Upone Sunday the 27 of October, and Wedinſday thairefter, ane faſt preceiſſie keipit in both Abirdenis and appointit to be throw all the churches of Scotland, keipit be ordour of the Committee of the Generall Aſſembly fitting in Edinbrughe, and imprinted, quhilk wes publictly red out of pulpit heir, beiring divers reſſones for keeping this faſt. 1. The ſlowneſs of ongoing in the wark of oure reformatioun. 2. The greivous ſynis of oure army vnder the marques of Argile. 3. The rupture betuixt the king and his ſubjectis. 4. Sum miſcontentment amongis the miniſtrie them ſelfſis. 5. The innocent blood and grevous oppreſſioun of the land; with ſum utheris reſſonis. Bot thair wes no word of faſting and praying (as moſt juſtly we ſould) for in-bringing of change and alteration both in church and policie againſt eſtabliſhit lawis and the kingis royall auchtoretie, and compelling him be force of armes to yeild to oure Scottis opinioun, at leiſt drawing him in to oure Parliament of Scotland to grant our hail defyres. And not content with this, bot we wold fend in armyes to England to affist the rebellis thair aganis the king whill England fould have like libertie grantit to them both in church and pollicie. Nor wes thair word of the innocent blood daylie fched fen the begining of this reformatioun; nor of the men and moneyis, hors and armes, levy moneyis, loan moneyis, and divers utheris grevous oppreffionis laid upone the schulderis of his Majesteis deir and loyall subjectis for raising of thir armyes to go into England; the grevous offending of the king, the quein, thair offspring, thair trew freindis and folloueris be divers and findrie incomparable wayes. Thir fynis with mony moir is never touchit nor repentit of in our solempne fasting dayes, bot generallie the fynis of the land; quhair-with the Lord of Justice and Mercy feinit not to be weill content, as wold appeir be the progres of this historie.

Upone the 12 of October, Generall Leslie took in the toune of Newcastle, plunderit the sament, took divers priffoneris both English and Scottis. The Maior and fyve Englishmen war sent to London to be judgit be the Parliament conforme to thair English lawis. Like as the erllis of Craufurd, lord Reay, and sum utheris wes takin thair also, and the lord Ogilvy takin elsquhair, who war all sent in to Edinbrughe and wardit, thair to abyde tryell conforme to our Scottis lawis, as ye may heirefter sie. The lord Maxuell wes also takin at Newcastle, and the peft cam to Edinbrugh with this victorie from Newcastle.

Ye hard befor how the marques of Newcastle and generall King had fled the feige of York; bot now it wes reportit thay went away to Germany and uther pairtis for men and money to the kingis service.

Ye have befor how Montrois marchit towardis Strathbogie, quhair he remanit whill Sunday the 27 of October. Bot heiring of Argile's cuming, he removit that day from Strathbogie, and cam to the Wod of Fyvie, a place very advantageous for him against sic a puiffant army following Argile, and he being the waiker in wanting of Alexander McDonald with his Irishis, whome he had with him, as ye hard befor. Aluayes he took in the place of Fyvie, and fand sum girmellit victuall thair, as likuayes in the place of Tollie Barclay, whairupone his army wes weill sustenit dureing his abode thair; quhair I will let him ly, and returne bak to Argile, whome I left at Innerurie, as ye have befor, upone Sunday the 27 of October. And upone the 28 of October, he marchis fra Innerurie hard to the Wod of Fyvie, or neir hand by to the sament, quhair he had lernit Montrois wes lying. Thair was hot skirmishing betuixt the trouperis persewing the Wod, and Montrois manfullie defending his few forces againſt ſuche ane huge multitude of hors and men. He like ane ſkilfull capitane illuis out of the Wod, and returnit bak agane, and did gryte ſkaith that day; quhair capitane Alexander Keith brother to the erll Marſhall wes ſlayne, and findrie utheris to Argile. Tnyſday and Wedneſday, hot ſkirmiſhing, with litle lois to Montrois, and daylie ſlaichter to Argile's trouperis, and many hurt who wes brocht in to Abirdene for cure.

Argile ſeing this ſervice and could not help him ſelf, now lying, as I have ſaid, nar the Wod with his army, above the ſamen, at Rothie. Auchterles and countrie about, unlabill to fuſtein ſo gryte an army, albeit thay left nothing thay could get; quhairupone Argile flittis his camp tua myllis fra Fyvie to Crechie. Montrois ſeing him marche ſo far of, upone the morne being Wedneſday and penult of October, upone fair day licht, he marchis noblie fra Fyvie and Wod thairof to Turref, quhilk wes plunderit, and place of Rothimay alſo; and to Strathbogie goes he, takis advantage of the yairdis, and yaird dykis, and biggingis thairabout, and thair lysis he.

Is nocht this a mater admirabill, how this valiaunt nobill man with ſo few men not paſſing 3000 men of all, as wes thoct, and wanting the helpe and aſſiſtance of his noble capitane Alexander M^cDonald with ſic Irislis as he had with him, could have ſo eſcaipit from this Wod, quhairin he could not long left, fra the handis of his enemeis being about 14 troupris and above 2000 foot! A mater mervalous and wrocht by Godis owne fynger, as wold appeir!

Argyle heiring of Montrois marche, upone the morne being Thuirſday and laſt of October, he liſtis his camp and marchis hard efter him, and incampis at Tullochbeg upone Setterday the 2 of November; and on Sunday hot ſkirmiſhing with litle blood to Montrois.

As Argile and Montrois is buſſie at this ſervice, Sir Williame Forbes of Craigiwar and Johne Forbes of Lairgy, according to thair promeis, returnit both to Montrois now lying at Strathboggy, and declairit thay war unlabill to keip conditioun, and thairfoir wes returnit bak to him to remane as his priſſoneris. Montrois grationſlie receavit thame, not thinking on deceit. Howſoever, this Sir Williame Forbes convoyis him ſelf fra Montrois accompaniet with major Nathaniell Gordoun, with funn tuo or thrie commanderis, and gois to Argile's camp, who wes glaid of thair cunning, promeing all favour he could, and to get major Gordoun's peace as he who wes thoct to be the ſole convoyer of Craigiwar from Montrois. Bot heirin wes deip policie, as efter do appeir.

Montrois miſſing Craigiwar, he wes heichlie offendit, and ſpeirit at John Forbes of Layrgy, whome he left behind him, what he kend of his removing.

Anfuert, he knew nothing. And being demandit if he would steill away also, he said he would rather die befor he did it. Then Montrois anfuertis noblie, "Then, Sir, I give yow frie libertie to go upone your paroll that ye fall returne when I fend for yow, and no utheruys." The gentilman thankit him hartfullie, and so with fair play recoverit his libertie. Divers thocht Craighwar was not wys in purchessing his libertie by sic ane unfeimlie way, thinking he had no dishonour to keip captivitie, nor could the Estaitis bot esteim of him worthellie. Bot now cuming away, he left ane fair querrell to Montrois to persue efter him, his landis, and goodis, quhairas if he had biddin with him priffoner, he would have bein frie of this feir; bot he went away upon Sunday 3 November.

Ye hard of the skirmishing of Strathbogie. It is heir also to be rememberit, that oure Sovereigne Lordis Seffioun fat not down for administratioun of Justice, to the gryte prejudice of the kingis leiges, (yit schirref and commissare courtis fat according to the old forme notwithstanding of thir troubles,) quhilk would have fittin down upone the first of November yeirlie.

About this tyme, Lues Gordoun sone to the lord marques, is mareit to Mary Grant dochter to unquhill Sir Johne Grant of Frenchie, utherwayes callit the laird of Grant, by whome he gat 20,000 merkis, as wes said.

Upone Wedinfday 6 November, Montrois leaves Strathbogie, and to the hillis gois he. Argile, seing him fled, cumis till Strathbogie, and thair remanis eitting wp and distroying the hail countrie pitifullie in thair cornis, cattell, gudis and geir, the marques now being in Strathnaver and the lord Gordoun being in Morray, to the gryte greif of the gentrie and tennentis of the ground both in Strathbogie, Engzie, Auchindoun, and countreis round about belonging to the nobill marques of Huntlie.

Upone this famen 6 of November, Mr. George Leslie and Alexander Leslie his sone, of whome ye hard, are now both to libertie out of the tolbuith of Edinbrughe. And schortlie thairefter the said Alexander Leslie persewis Mr. James Clerk and strikis a lug fra him, as he who wes the authour of all his mischeif.

Ye hard of the intaking of Newcastle. Ordour givin be the Committee of the Generall Assemblic at Edinbrughe that thanksgiving should be givin throw all the churches of Scotland, quhilk wes keipit in both Abirden upone Sunday 10 November; bot no thanksgiving ever rememberit with ws for the kingis victoreis over his enemeis, bot gryte rejoicing at his overthrow. A note to be markit. Bot the peft follout Newcastle to Edinbrughe and divers uther pairtis, to oure gryte lois.

Upone the 11 of November, thair cam fra Montrois' camp to Abirdene the lord Duplyne, Sir John Drummond, Sir Thomas Tyrie of Drunkilbo, Ogilvy of Innerquharitie, crouner Hay, and sum utheris. Thay had gottin Argile's pas, and so but truble thay went south, being followeris of Montrois. Nathaniell Gordoun, haveing his pas also, cam to Abirdene, and walkit hither and thither peaceable.

Upone Sunday the 3 of November, ane charge red out be oure minister, as in other parochis within thir north pairtis of the schires of Abirdene and Banff, in name of the marques of Argile his Majesteis livetennand (or rather pretended livetennand), out of the pulpit efter fermon, (the chair of veritie now maid ane mercat cros, and the preicher ane officiar for making of proclamations,) chargeing this parochin to furneish out to this pretended livetennand als mony men, hors, foot, loan money, and utheris as thay furneishit out abefoir to England; and that, to suppress the commoun enemy the marques of Montrois, and to have thair randevous at Turreff upone the 5 of November, quhair Argile's camp sould be. This wes the first charge for raising of men heir in thir pairtis, and upone over schort advertisement. Argile keipit not this day; bot thair wes ane Committee of sum, sic as the maister of Frazer, the lairdis of Phillorth and Tolquhone, and sum uther barronis and gentrie, who upone this charge convenit at Turreff, about 30 hors; bot held no Committee, as is formerlie said. Aluayes this meiting wes continewit to the 14 of November. Albeit the countrie thocht that Argile sould not have vext the countrie for moir men, since he had gryter pouer nor wes weill governit, yit this wes his first charge indeid.

Ye hard befor, of the prissoneris takin at Newcastle. Thay war brocht to Edinbrughe upone the 7 of November, in at the water yet of the Cannoget. Bot the erll of Craufurd wes compellit to cum wip the get bairheid as ane traittour; not styling him Lord, bot Lodovick Lyndfay, (which he sufferit patientlie,) becaus for serving the king he wes foirfault be oure Estaitis, and his dignitie, honouris, and titill of erll Craufurd wes given be thame to the lord Lyndfay, ane of thair pryne covenanteris. Thair wes also takin Harie Grahame Montrois' brother. It is said, that generall Leslie at the taking of thir prissoneris had givin his paroll that thay sould not be abusit when thay cam to Edinbrughe, whiche proveit utherwayes, quhairat he seimit to be offendit. Aluayes thir noblemen and the rest wes not wairdit in the Castell, quhair nobles wes usit to be incarcerat; bot, out of dispyte and malice, wes wairdit within the tolbuith of Edinbrughe. Ye heir how this auncient and noble erll of Craufurd wes be the Estaitis without auctoritie of ane king foir-faultit and degraduat. Thair wes mony mo nobles foirfaultit beyde him for ferveng the Kings Majestie, or at leift fould expect no pardon for thair offenses, sic as the marques of Huntlie, erll of Montrois, erll of Nithisdail, erll of Traquhair, erll of Carnueth, viscount of Oboyne, lord Ogilvy, lord Rae, lord Hereis, Lodovick Lyndfay sumtyme erll of Craufurd, Patrick Ruthven sumtyme erll of Forthe, James King sumtyme lord Ithan, [Alexander] Irving younger of Drum, Gordoun younger of Geicht, Leslie of Auchintoull, Sir Robert Spotiswod of Dumypace, Collonell Johne Cochrum, Mr. Johne Maxwell sumtyme pretended bischop of Ros, Mr Walter Balcanquhell. Thir noblemen and utheris fould get no pardon whidder foirfault or not foirfault, as is set down in that imprinted Peice callit The humill Desyres and Propositionis for a saiff and weill groundit peace, agreit upone by the mutuall adrys and consent of the Parliamentis of both kingdomes, &c., 10 December 1644. By and attour princes and noble men in England set down in the same catigorie. Bot I leave this poynt and returne bak to the warding of thir nobles in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe. Befydis, [Alexander] Irving of Drum younger, and his brother Robert Irving, and Mr. Alexander Irving, ar wardit in the tolbuith in thrie smdrie houffis, (non sufferit to speik, no, not young Drum's wyf, bot in prefens of ane ballie,) a long tyme, and old Drum confyuit within the tonne. Sie moir of thame befoir, and heirefter.

Ye hard befoir of the adjorning of the Committee to the 14 of November. Argile fendis ane thousand of his countrie men home to Argile, who plunderit pitifullie the landis of Strathavan, Strathispey, Badzenocht, and Lochquhaber, as thay went, and cumis himself to Turref. Sindrie barronis and utheris meit him thair, who wes thocht to be 500 foot and 100 hors. Thair is ane long taillit Act set down upone the 16 of November wnder Argile's subseriptioun, ordanit to be publishit at all paroehe churches, for levyng of the fourt and aucht man within the schires of Abirdene, and Banf, hors and foot, tedious to rechers; bot the coppie is lying beyd my self of the famen Act in wreit. Alwayes Argile appointit ane new Committee to be haldin at Abirdene the 22 of November, so dissolvit at Turref.

Doctor Goold, efter he had demolishit the statelie pallace pertening to the bishop of Abirdene, leaving nather hewin wark, iron wark, pavement, tymber, infielct and plenishing, as ye have oftymes befoir, now beginis to tir the sklaites af of that matches roof, and carie [them] down to the colledge for his awin respectis; which wes odiousslie thocht of. It is trew this hous, yairdis, and preecynk wes givin be the Estaitis to him, quhairof he micht have maid a moir godlie use by uphalding rather then demoleishing of the samen.

Upone Tuyfday the 19 of November, Argile cumis to New Abirdene, quihilk day the Provinciaill Assëmblic held in Abirdene adjournit, as ye have abefoir. Mr. John Rew, ane of the ministeris of Abirdene, is chosin moderatour. The erll Marſchall, the lord Gordoun, and generall major Ramfay met Argile at Abirdene, and with him went to this Assëmblic. Major Nathaniell Gordoun cam in befoir thame, acknowledged his adulterie, and offens done to Mr. Androw Cant by wreiting of ane letter to him, as ye hard befoir; and desyrit, upone his repentance, the proces of excommunication, now lying at ane sentens, fould ceas, quihilk Argile with the rest socht humelic also. Thay anſuerit, that thay fould wreit to the Committee of the Generall Assëmblic, schow his incuming and repentans, and do be thair advys. With this anſuer Nathaniell wes weill pleiffit, and his proces ceasit. Bot God knowis if this humiliatioun to Mr. Androw Cant wes fra his hairt, quhair I will leave him whill [afterwards.]

Upone this samen Tuyfday and 19 of November, the erll of Lauthean's regiment, consistin of about 500 musketeiris and pikoneiris, wes quarterit on poor Old Abirdene; and, upone the morne, wes had to New Abirdene, wha lay thair quihill the day of , as ye may ſie heirefter, without doing any good. Aluayes Argile ordanit ilk soldiour to get tua peccis meill and xii s. of money weiklie, and this to be brocht in be the heretouris of the countrie, and Aberdene to furneish hous roume, coill and candill onlie. The meill cam in, bot no moneysis, quihilk the toune of Abirdene wes compellit to pay, as heirefter ye may ſie. And ane boll meill cam in out of ilk hundreth markis rent, the countrie payit the rest. Then ordour wes takin for susteinin of the trouperis, hors meit, and manis meit, in thir schires of Abirdene and Banf estimat about 1000 hors; whiche wes so grevous as the countrie men culd not sustein thame. Thir trouperis wes quarterit frielic throw divers parochis; sum upone ilk landisford, and sum upone ilk pleuche of ground. Thair wes thrie regimentis of hors, one wnder Sir James Hacket, one wnder Sir Patrik M'Gie, and one wnder livetenant crowner Innes. Thair wes quarterit in Banf and Morray the lord Gordoun's regiment. And major Ramfay wes generall over the trouperis of this scherrifdome, quihilk wes ordanit to be quarterit onlie within thrie presbitries, viz. the presbitrie of Abirdene, the presbitrie of Ellon, and the presbitrie of Deir. Ordour wes gevin that ilk trouper fould have meit and drink at xvi s. ilk day, and his hors ane pecc of aites with fodder; and if the trouper wes not content with his cheir, to compt kaik and pudding with the goodwyf, and compell her to pay money for what he wantit. Thus, is thir north pairtis grevoullie borne doune and wrackit by ordour of the Eftaites and good Argile.

Ye hard of the doun fitting of the Provinciall Affembling. It continewit Tuysday, Wednesday; and Thuirsdaiy efternone diffolvit. And Argile kepit daylie with them. And that famen day, being the 21 of November, Argile went fouth, careing Nathaniell Gordoun's testificat fra the Affembling with him. He wes that nicht intill Dunnotter; bot the lord Gordoun baid behind in Abirdene.

Argile gone, the erll Marfchall, the lord Frafer, the lord Crichtoun, the lairdis of Kermuk, Craigiwar, and fun uther countrie barronis, with the provest of Abirdene held thair Committees daylie in Abirdene whill about Januar 1645.

Ane ordour fra the Eftaitis cam, that the laird of Laeris' regiment, and laird of Buchanans regiment fould go to Innernes, and fortifie the famen be Argile's direction, as ye have befor.

Ye hard befor of the marques of Montrois leaving of Strathbogie, to Argile's finall credit in suffering him fo to efcap. He marchis to Badzenocht, and cumis to Atholl, whair generall major M'Donald his noble capitane meitis him and his company, and who had bene fra him, as ye have befor.

The lord Frafer, the laird of Pittodrie, and laird of Echt's cornis and building being brynt be Montrois, as ye have, thay mein thame felfis to the Eftaitis, who gives ordour to mell with the papiftis' rentes, landis, fishinges about Abirdene and upone the water of Done, pertening to Thomas Meingzeis of Balgouny, Mr. Alexander Irving of Lochhillis, and Robert Irving his brother; and this to be yeirlie wpliftit be Forbes of Echt, ay and whill his loiffis wes fet wp. And siclike thair wes desponit to the lord Frafer Gordoun of Abirzeldis rentis, Donald Farquharfone, and Gordoun barroun of Brachleyis rentis, as malignantis aganes the countrie, to be yeirlie upliftit be him, ay and whill his fkaith wes payit. As also thair wes difponit to Thomas Erskyne of Balhaggartie the rentis of Schethin pertening to [Williame] Seytoun, the rentis and leiving of Tibbertie pertening to [Williame] Innes, ay and whill he war compleitlie payit of his loiffis; bot he baid fchort while to tak wp his part, becaus he departit this life in Ediubrughe upon the day of Januar 1645. Mervalous to fie the kingis liesgus thus to be opprest! And Thomas Meingzeis fled the kingdome with his wyf and children for his reli-gioun; yit his rentis ar disponit: Mr Alexander Irving fleis the countrie, and, failling to France, is takin be the way, and brocht to Edinbrughe, quhair he is wairdit in the tolbuith; yit his rentis ar disponit: His brother Robert Irving durft not be fein, his rentis disponit: The uther gentilmen for favouring thair king and following the marques of Huntlie, as ye have hard, fled the kingdome, and durft not be fein; yit thair rentis disponit:—to fet wp the loiffis of the kingis unfreindis and enemeis, without advys or auchtoretie, bot onlie fet out be the Estaites of the land.

The laird of Echt for his pairt caufit arreift the schippis careing falmound to France, lying in the harberie of Abirdene, upone the last of November, whill the maifter of the schip gave wp ane compt of sic falmound as wes schippit pertening to the foirfaisdis papiftis, and fyu to fet thame on floir; quhilk wes done. Thairefter the marchand agreit with Echt upone conditionis. Quhair-upone the falmound wes agane schippit, and fo gois to the fey.

Upone the first of December, ane Proclamatioun maid at the cros of Abirdene, chargeing the schirrefdome to convein and have thair randevous at Abirdene the 5 of December, for taking ordour for sustentatioun of the foot soldouris and trouperis, and to bring in victuallis for that effect; bot none gave obediens that day.

Upone the aucht of December, generall Leslie returnit victorioufflie from Newcastle to Edinbrughe; whair he stayit whill Januar 1645, taking wp men for defens of the said toune. About 14,000 men and sum of oure trouperis lying heir is sent thair. With this victorie the pest cam in to Burrowftounes. Aluayis Leslie removis with his wyf and famelie bak to Newcastle.

Ye sie of Montrois marche into Atholl. He took the laird of Weyms, (Mengzeis) captive, and utheris outftanding rebellis. He gois to the laird of Glenurchyis landis, burnes, waiftis, and destroyis his countreis, being ane of Argyle's speciall kinsmen.

Argile now being in Edinbrughe, who cam from Abirdene, as ye have, gat small thankis for his service aganes Montrois. Aluayes, heiring of the destruction of Glenurchyis boundis, gois quiklie to his owne countrie for defens of the famen.

About this tyme, ane General Affemblic is indictit to be haldin at Edinbrughe the 22 of Januar 1645 be auctoritie of the kirk, and ane day of humiliatioun to go befor.

The toune of Edinbrughe nichtellie murmurit aganis the uptaking of the excise; bot it gois throw, and appointit to be listit fra the first of August last.

Sunday 22 December, thundering out of pulpites against Yooll day, none sufferit to mak good cheir or be mirry according to the old fashioun. The bell went throw the toune chargeing the craftifmen to keip their buithis and wirk, and the merchandis buithis to stand open; ilk tradifinan wnder the pane of ten pundis. The bailleis bakit this charge, going throw the toune, commanding the deaconis to fie the craftis to wirk and to note the difobedient. The quyhftfisheris of Futtie wes likuaies commandit to go to the fea on Yooll day, wnder gryte panes; bot the fea fell out stormy that stayit them, quihlk the pure men with thair hairt wiflit. Bot do thair best thay could not get the scolleris and studentis stayit fra thair Yooll play, according to use and wont; yea, and sum maid good cheir and wrocht none; utheris wrocht at thair plesour.

Tuyfday 24 of December, the lord Gordoun (the marques being still in Strathmaver, in ane island callit Toung,) had ane meiting with his freindis, for taking ordour with one callit Forbes of Skellatter for taking sum of thair fehiep and molt out of the brayis of Strathbogie and Lefmoir. What wes concludit is secretlie keipit wp, and yit nothing follouit be way of deid. Yit this Skellater, to get the lord Gordoun's favour, cam in.

Upone Frydday the 27 of December, thair cam out of the parochin of Cruden till Old Abirdene tuo hors troumpis. Hors and men had frie quarteris, fyne upone the morne efter brakfast rode south.

Mr. Androw Cant is chofin commiffioner, and Robert Cruikfchank, ballie, laick elder, for Abirdene; and the rest of the presbitreis fend thair commiffioneris to this Generall Assamble.

The toune of Abirdene, in this moneth of December, ar chargit ilk man and woman be virtue of thair aith to declair the availl of thair goodis plunderit be the Irishis at the fight of Abirdene; bot to what end I know not, for inventar wes takin wp of all to be had to oure Parliament. Sum said for having pitie on our estait, and that thay fould be frie from quartering of foldiouris, or utheris taxationis, and vexationis.

The Committee of the kirk and Generall Assamble ordanit a fast to be keipit throw all Scotland befor the down fitting of the Parliament, quihlk wes to fit down upone the aucht of Januar 1645 in Edinbrughe, and befor the down fitting of the Generall Assamble thair the 22 day of the said moneth. Conforme to the quihlk ordour a solempne fast keipit heir upone the 5 of Januar in both Abirdenis, being Sunday; and that fame day aucht dayis we had heir in Old Abirdene, for the moir aboundans, ane uther fast; quhairby the poor people wes vext to the death with thir continuall fastings and thanksgivingis. And this laft Sunday wes keipit wnder pretext that thair wes not ane full conventionn the first Sabbath.

UPONE the 3 of Januar 1645, ane hors troupe cam out of Morray and wes quarterit in Old Abirdene, and another upone the same toune quarterit; and, as thay cam, plundering both toune and countrie horffis quhair ever thay went.

Ye have, befor the incuming of this yeir, of the Generall Affembly to be holden the 22 of Januar, and Parliament the 8 of Januar, and uther things thair fet down.

Upone Wedinfday 8 Januar, oure Parliament fat down in Edinbrughe and wes fenfit. The erll of Lauderdale wes maid president of this Parliament; bot the king had no commissioner thair, quhair of oure Parliament did not cair muche. Weill, it is continewit to the 22 of Januar that the Generall Affembly fould fit down; and in the mein tyme ordanit fyve Committees to fit daylie in Edinbrughe, Ane quhair of for ordering ane new levie to be sent in till England; The 2, For discussing of the malignants; 3, For setting up the loiffis done be Montrois and his rebellis; 4, For the Billis; and 5, For the Overturis. Thir Committees establisht, the Parliament is prorogat to the 22 of Januar; bot, befor that day cam, thair president the erll of Lauderdale deparit this lyf.

Upone Frydday the tent of Januar 1645, the Archbifchop of Canterbury maide ane fpeiche on the scaffold on Towerhill. Thairefter he wes execute. Of the quhilk fpeiche the tennour follouis word be word fra the prynt.

The Archbishop of Canterburie his fpeiche, or his funeral fermon preichit by him self on the Towerhill, on frydday the tent of Januar 1645, upon Hebrues, xii. 1, 2.; Also the prayeris which he usit at the same tyme and place befor his executioun;—All writtin by Johne Hinde whome the Archbishop besched that he wold not let any wrong be done him by any phrais in false coppes.

The Archbishop of Canterburie his funeral fermon preiched on the Scaffold on Towerhill, upon Heb. xii. 1, 2. "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cros, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

Good People, You'll pardon my old memory; and, upon so sad occafion as I am come to this place, to make use of my papers, I dare not trust my self otherwise.

Good People, This is a very uncomfortable place to preach in, and yet I shall begin with a text of Scripture in the twelfth of the Hebrews, "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cros, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

I have been long in my race, and how I have looked unto Jesus the author and finisher of my faith is best known to him. I am now come to the end of my race, and here I find the cross, a death of shame; but the shame must be despised, or there is no coming to the right hand of God. Jesus despised the shame for me, and God forbid but I should despise the shame for him.

I am going apace, as you see, towards the Red Sea, and my feet are upon the very brinks of it, an argument, I hope, that God is bringing me to the Land of Promise, for that was the way by which of old he led his people. But before they came to the sea, he instituted a passover for them; a lamb it was, but it was to be eaten with very fowre herbs, as in the twelfth of Exodus. I shall obey, and labour to digest the fowre herbs, as well as the lamb; and I shall remember that it is the Lord's passover. I shall not think of the herbs, nor be angry with the hands which gathered them; but look up only to him who instituted the one, and governeth the other. For men can have no more power over me than that which is given them from above.

I am not in love with this passage through the Red Sea, for I have the weakness and infirmity of flesh and blood in me, and I have prayed, as my Saviour taught me and exempld me, ut transiret calix ista, that this cup of red wine might pass away from me; but since it is not that my will may, his will be done, and I shall most willingly drink of this cup as deep as he pleases, and enter into this sea, ay, and pass through it in the way that he shall be pleased to lead me. And yet, good people, it would be remembered, that when the servants of God, old Israel, were in this boisterous sea and Aaron with them, the Egyptians which persecuted them, and did in a manner drive them into that sea, were drowned in the same waters, while they were in pursuit of them.

I know my God whom I serve, is as able to deliver me from this sea of blood, as he was to deliver the three children from the furnace, Daniel iii.; and I most humbly thank my Saviour for it, my resolution is now as theirs was then. Their resolution was, they would not worship the image which the king had set up; nor shall I the imaginations which the people are setting up. Nor will I forsake the temple, and the truth of God, to follow the bleating of Jeroboam's calves in Dan and in Bethel.

And I pray God bless all this people, and open their eyes, that they may see the right way; for if it fall out that the blind lead the blind, doubtless they will both fall into the ditch. For my self, I am (and I acknowledge it in all humility,) a most grievous sinner many ways, by thought, word and deed; and therefore I cannot doubt but that God hath mercy in store for me a poor penitent, as well as for other sinners. I have, upon this sad occasion, ransacked every corner of my heart, and yet I thank God I have not found any of my sins that are there, any sins now deserving death by any known law of this kingdom. And yet thereby I charge nothing upon my judges. I humbly beseech you I may rightly be understood, I charge nothing in the least degree upon my judges, for they are to proceed by proof, by valuable witnesses, and in that way I or any innocent in the world may justly be condemned. And I thank God, though the weight of the sentence lie very heavy upon me, yet I am as quiet within, as (I thank Christ for it) I ever was in my life. And though I am not only the first archbishop but the first man that ever died in this way, yet some of my predecessors have gone this way, though not by this means; for Elfegus was hurried away and lost his head by the Danes; and Simon Sudbury in the fury of Wat Tyler and his fellows; and long before these, Saint John Baptist had his head danced off by a lewd woman; and Saint Cyprian, archbishop of Carthage, submitted his head to a persecuting sword. Many examples great and good, and they teach me patience, for I hope my cause in heaven will look of another dye then the colour that is put upon it here upon earth. And some comfort it is to me, not only that I go the way of these great men in their several generations; but also that my charge (if I may not be partial) looks somewhat like that against Saint Paul in the xxv. of the Acts, for he was accused for the law and the temple, that is, the law and religion; and like that of Saint Stephen in the vi. of the Acts, for breaking the ordinances which Moses gave us, which ordinances were law and religion. But you'll say, do I then compare my self with the integrity of Saint Paul and Saint Stephen? No, God forbid, far be it from me; I only raise a comfort to my self, that these great saints and servants of God were thus laid up in their several times. And it is very memorable, that Saint Paul, who was one of them, and a great one that helped on the accusation against Saint Stephen, fell afterwards into the self same accusation himself; yet both of them great saints and servants of God.

Ay, but perhaps a great clamour there is, that I would have brought in popery. I shall answer that more fully by and by. In the mean time, you know what the Pharisees said against Christ himself, in the xi. of John, "If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him, et venient Romani, and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation." Here was a causeless cry against Christ that the Romans would come. And see how just the judgment of God was. They crucified Christ for fear lest the Romans should come, and his death was that that brought in the Romans upon them, God punishing them with that which they most feared. And I pray God, this clamour of venient Romani (of which I have given to my knowledge no just cause) help not to bring him in; for the Pope never had such a harvest in England since the Reformation, as he hath now upon the sects and divisions that are amongst us. In the mean time, by honour and dishonour, by good report and evil report, as a deceiver and yet true, I am now passing out of this world.

Some particulars also I think not amiss to speak of. And first, this I shall be bold to speak of the king our gracious sovereign, He hath been much traduced by some for labouring to bring in Popery: but upon my conscience (of which I am now going to give God a present account) I know him to be as free from this charge, I think, as any man living; and I hold him to be as sound a Protestant, according to the religion by law established, as any man in this kingdom, and that he will venture his life as far and as freely for it; and I think I do or should know both his affection to religion, and his grounds upon which that affection is built, as fully as any man in England.

The second particular is concerning this great and populous city, which God blefs. Here hath been of late a fashion taken up to gather hands, and then go to the honourable and great court of the kingdom, the Parliament, and clamour for justice, as if that great and wise court (before whom the causes come which are unknown to the many,) could not, or would not do justice, but at their call and appointment; a way which may endanger many an innocent man, and pluck innocent blood upon their own heads, and perhaps upon this city also, which God forbid. And this hath been lately practised against my self. God forgive the setters of this, with all my heart I beg it; but many well meaning people are caught by it. In Saint Stephen's case, when nothing else would serve, they stirred up the people against him, Acts vi. And Herod went just the self same way, for when he had killed Saint James, he would not venture upon Saint Peter too, till he saw how the people took it and were pleased with it, in the xii. of the Acts. But take heed of having your hands full of blood, in the i. of Isaiah; for there is a time best known to himself, when God among other sins makes inquisition for blood; and when inquisition is on foot, the Psalmist tells us, Psalm ix. that God remembers, that is not all, that God remembers and forgets not (saith the Prophet) the complaint of the poor; and he tells you what poor they are in the ninth verse, the poor whose blood is shed by such kind of means. Take heed of this, "It is a fearful thing" (at any time) "to fall into the hands of the living God," in the x. of the Hebrews; but it is fearful indeed, and then especially, when he is making his inquisition for blood; and therefore with my prayers to avert the prophecy from the city, let me desire that this city would remember the prophecy that is expressed, Jeremiah xxvi. 15.

The third particular is this poor Church of England that hath flourished and been a shelter to other neighbouring churches when storms have driven upon them; but alas, now it is in a storm it self, and God knows whether or how it shall get out; and which is worse than a storm from without, it is become like an oak cleft to shivers with wedges made out of its own body, and that in every cleft prophaneness and irreligion is creeping in apace, while, as Prosper saith, men that introduce prophaneness are cloaked with a name of imaginary religion; for we have in a manner almost lost the substance, and dwell much, nay, too much a great deal in opinion; and that church, which all the Jesuits' machination in these parts of Christendom could not ruine, is now fallen into a great deal of danger by her own.

The last particular (for I am not willing to be tedious, I shall hasten to go out of this miserable world) is my self, and I beseech you, as many as are within hearing, observe me, I was born and baptized in the bosom of the Church of England as it stands yet established by law; in that profession I have ever since lived, and in that profession of the Protestant religion here established I come now to die. This is no time to dissemble with God, least of all in matter of religion, and therefore I desire it may be remembered, I have always lived in the Protestant religion established in England, and in that I come now to die. What clamors and slanders I have endured, for labouring to keep an uniformity in the external service of God according to the doctrine and discipline of this church, all men knows, and I have abundantly felt. Now at last I am accused of high treason in Parliament, a crime which my soul ever abhorred. This treason was charged upon me to consist of two parts, an endeavour to subvert the law of the realm, and a like endeavour to overthrow the true Protestant religion established by those laws. Besides my answers which I gave to the several charges, I protested my innocency in both houses. It was said, a prisoner's protestations at the bar must not be taken de se ipso. I can bring no witness of my heart, and the intentions thereof; therefore I must come to my protestation, not at the bar, but to my protestation at this hour and instant of my death, in which (as I said before) I hope all men will be such charitable Christians as not to think I would die and dissemble my religion; I do therefore here, (with that caution that I delivered before, without all prejudice in the world to my judges, that are to proceed secundum allegata et probata, and so to be understood,) I die in the presence of the Almighty God and all his holy and blessed angels, and I take it now on my death, that I never endeavoured the subversion of the laws of the realm, nor never any change of the Protestant religion into Popish superstition; and I desire you all to remember this protest of mine, for my innocency in these and from all manner of treasons whatsoever.

I have been accused likewise as an enemy to Parliaments. No, God forbid, I understood them and the benefits that come by them a great deal too well to be so; but I did indeed dislike some misgovernments (as I conceived) of some few one or two Parliaments; and I did conceit humbly that I might have reason for it, for corruptio optimi est pessima, there is no corruption in the world so bad as that which is of the best thing in it self, for the better the thing is in nature, the worse it is corrupted; and this being the highest and greatest court, over which no other can have any jurisdiction in the kingdom, if by any way a misgovernment (which God forbid) should any ways fall upon it, the subjects of this kingdom are left without all manner of remedy; and therefore God preserve them, and bless them, and direct them, that there may be no misconceit, much less misgovernment amongst them.

I will not enlarge my self any further, I have done, I forgive all the world, all and every of those bitter enemies, or others whatsoever they have been, which have any ways prosecuted me in this kind; and I humbly desire to be forgiven first of God, and then of every man, whether I have offended him or no, if he do but conceive that I have; Lord, do thou forgive me, and I beg forgiveness of him. And so I heartily desire you to join with me in prayer.

I have heir fet down the speiches of this auncient reverend Prelat, quhairby he cleirly (going to death) vindicatis him self from accufatioun aganes establisht lawis and religioun, and purgis oure Sovereigne Lord anent inbringing of poperie; yit he is done to death. He had sum prayeris, quhilk I have heir omittit. Thus is he gone the get that the mightie Deputie of Ireland went (as ye have befor) efter three yeiris captivite, for ther faithfull service to the king, as many men thocht. Howsoever it wes, the prynting and spreding of this paper wes takin notice of by many that wes perswadit to the contrarie, and maid them conceive a better opinioun both of the king and this gryte prelat, who wes uthernys traduceit. He wes takin first and wardit in anno 1642, and now execute.

About this tyme, Sir Johne Hotham, (as report past,) who held the king out at the portis of Hull, as ye have befor, is execute be command of the Parliament, and his sone both. He gat this rewaird for his good service to them aganis oure dreid Sovereigne.

Upone the thrid of Februar, Sir Johne Leslie of Wardes, knicht barronet, departit this lyf in New Abirdene, a great enemy to the laird of Cluny, who had mellit with his estait, Cluny wairdit in the tolbuith of Edinbrughe.

About this tyme, Forbes of Echt compellis Thomas Meingzeis of Balgounyis tennentis, (being fled the countrie for his religioun, leaving ordour to pay men, levie money, loan money, hors, and armes, as the countrie did, and as thay war imposit,) notwithstanding the Estaites had giftit his rentis to this

Forbes, as ye have befor, he compellit the tennentis to obleige them selfis ilk ane for thair awin pairtis to pay and delyver to him the same prices quhilk thay war obligit to pay for the victuall to him befor the first of Marche wnder the pane of plundering, quhilk the poor tennentis for feir wes forsit to pay for the most pairt. The famen ordour wes done with uther papistis landis, as wes said, and pairteis send out of Abirdene to ly upone thir landis whill payment war maid; as wes done be Williame Seytoun of Blair, also being a papist.

Upone the day of Januar, Mr. Alexander Joffray, lait provest of Abirdene, departit this lyf in New Abirdene, ane rigorous covenantaer.

Upone Sunday 19 Jannar, ane Act of Committee holdin in Abirdene upone the tent of Januar wes red out of oure pulpit in Old Abirdene for levying the aucht man, the randevous to be at Abirdene primo Februarij. Few cam that day, bot pairteis wes sent out of the regiment lying in Abirdene, and lay upone the land whill thay cam in perforce.

Ye hard befor of the Parliament and Generall Affemblic, and how the Parliament wes fenfit and adjornit to the 22 of Januar, and that day the Generall Affemblic to fit doum alfo. Upone the quhilck day oure Parliament fat doum in Edinbrughe without the kingis commiffioner. The lord Lyndfay of Craufurd (now ftyllit erll of Craufurd) is prefident of this Parliament.

The Generall Affemblic alfo fitis doum the famen day. Mr. Robert Douglas ane of the minifters of Edinbrughe is moderatour. It continewit till the day of Februar, indictit ane uther Generall Affemblic to be haldin at the 22 day of June 1646, fyne diffolvit, leaving the Parliament fill fitting behind thame. Bot thay fent wp thair Actis, not to the king, bot to the Englifh Parliament for thair approbatioun. Strange to fie!

Ye have befor of Montrois' progres to Glenurcheis landis. He gois to Argile, burnis and flays throw his hail countreis, and left no hous nor hold (except impregnabill ftrengthis) oubrynt, thair cornis, gudis and geir; and left not ane four footed beift in his hail landis, and fic as wold not call thay hocht and flew, that thay fould never mak fted. Montrois remanit in Argile's countreis wafting, burning, and diftroying all nar ane quarter of ane yeir, fyne cam in to Lochquhaber throw Badzenoch, quhair fundreis cam in to him, fic as the laird of Abirzeldie and utheris of the name of Gordoun, and Farquharfones of the Bray of Mar. He marchis to Lochnes, havinge ane full intencion to tak in the brughe of Innernes, quhairin the laird of Laeris regiment and Lautheanis regiment both war lying, with mony countrie people about, and the tonne ftronglie fortefeit. Bot Montrois havinge difcuffit Broadalbion, Argile, Lorne, and uther the marques' countreis and his freindis without oppofitioun or contraditioun, he marchis throw Lochquhaber to Lochnes, and heid thairof, quhair he is informit, that the marques of Argile wes enterit in Lochquhaber with ane army of 3000 men, hielandaris and lawlandmen, and that he had brynt the bray countrie of Lochquhaber pertening to M'Ronald and his freindis; and fufpecting that he had a defigne to caufe the garifounes at Innernes, and the men of Ros and Morray, to rys in armes for his better affiftance aganis him, he thairfoir refolved (partlie for affifting of his freindis in Lochquhaber and revenging the wrongis done to them, and partlie for preventing the joyning of gryter forces againft him) to advance to Lochquhaber aganis Argile. And to the effect he nicht cum the moir fuddantlie and unexpectatlie aganis Argile, he refolved not to go bak the fame get that he marched from Lochquhaber; bot returned thair by ane uther way throw the montanes covered with fiow. And in tuo dayis marche he advanced fo neir the enemyis utmoſt quarteris, (being diſtant thrie myllis from Innerlochic, quhair the marques of Argile lay,) that befor thay were awar he wes within half a myll of them; whiche thay perceaving, and fleing all away, gave a fuddant allarum to all the reſt of the army; ſo that all the regimentis war advertetit, and did all combyne at Innerlochic. So, he perceaving that the enemy had takin the allarum reſolved instantlie to advance towardis Innerlochic, whair he approched within diſtans of half ane myll to the enemy, and ſtood all night in armes. So likuaies did the enemy. Bot the marques of Argile (that ſame nicht being Setterday the firſt of Februar) went aboard of his galley with Sir Johne Wauchope of Niddre, Mr. Mungo Law, and Sir James Rollok, efter that all his army wes drawin wp, and ſtayit thair upone the water untill the morne in his galley whill the battell began, and that he did ſie all his men flie away; and then he paſſit away in his galley. The battell began at the ryſing of the ſone on Candlemes day. Montrois' men wes devydit in four diſtious. Generall Major M'Donald wes upone the right hand with a regiment of Irifhis; livetennand collonell Ockain with ſum Irifhis wes upone the left wyng; ſum hielanderis of Atholl, the Stewartis of Appin, men of Glenco, the capitane of Clanronald, M'Lean and Glengarie wes in the middle; and collonell James M'donald alias M'Oneill wes in the reir with a reſerve of Irifhis. The enemy had thair lawland forces divydit, the ane half upone the right wyng, the uther upone the left, and in the middle thay had a gryte bodie of hielanderis, and thair reſerve wes alſo hielanderis, and wes placed upone ane pretty aſcent, quhair thay had a peice of ordinaus; and thay planted within the hous of Innerlochic fourtie or fyftie men, for that place wes within a piſtoll ſchot of the pairt quhair the enemyis battell wes placed. Ockane, being upone the left wyng, did firſt advance, and charget the enemeis right wyng, who firſt fled. Major M'Donald charges the left wyng, and oure hieland men being in the middle chargeit thair middle battell. So the enemy, perceaving thair right wyng to flie, and thair left wyng and middle bodie to be furioſlie aſſaulted, did alſo (efter the ſchooting of a volie) tak them ſelves to flight with thair reſerve alſo. Sum of oure hors men, perceaving the enemy to brak, did aſſault them alſo, and turned 200 of the enemy and diverted them from entering the hous of Innerlochic, to whiche thay war rining for refuge. So the enemy fled. Sum be the Loche fyde who wes all either killit or drounit. The gryteſt pairt fled towardis the hillis, that ſamen way by whiche thay enterit Lochquhaber. Thay war perfeuit ſum eight myllis, and many killit. Thair wes killit of all, as wes thoct 1500; quhair of thair wes of cheif men, the laird of Auchinbrek (Campbell), the laird of Lochinzell (Campbell) with his eldest sone and his brother Collein, the laird of Glencaddell elder, M'Dougall appeirand of Rara with his eldest sone, the proveft of Kilmud, major Meingzeis, brother to the prior of Achattenis, Parbrekis. And thair wes takin of priffoneris, the laird of Parbrek, the laird of Innerla, the laird of Glencaddell younger, the laird of Silvercrag, the laird of Loumane, the laird of Sanct M'Donald in Kintyre, the Goodman of Pynmoir, the capitane of Dunstaffnage' sone, livetennant collonell Roghe, livetennant collonell Cokburne, capitane Steuart in Boot, capitane Hume sone to Argathie, capitane Stewart, capitane Morray, capitane Stirling, Robert Cleland alias Clydiffone, Mr. Dougall a preicher. These ar, befyd is a gryt number of commoun foldiouris, takin priffoneris. It is said thair wes direct fra the Committee of Edinbrughe certane men to sie Argyllis forwardues in following Montrois, quhair of it wold appeir the Estatis wes in doubt; bot thay saw his flight in forme foirfaid. It is considerabill, that few of his army had escaipid if Montrois had not merchit the day befor the fight 18 myllis upone litle food, and crossing findrie wateris, weit and wiry in frost and snaw, and standing in armes weit and cold the night befor the fight, quhairby thay war the moir unhable to follow the flight. Bot Montrois caufit a foirlorne hope of musketeires schoot all night at the enemy, the better to ingage the enemy against the nixt morning, feiring that thay sould have stollin away in the night. What wes killit to Montrois is uncertane. Bot Sir Thomas Ogilvy sone to the erll of Airlie wes schot throw the thighe, quhair of he deit, and [was] bureit in Atholl.

Thair cam to Abirdene tua commanderis, major Liddell and capitane Morray of the garifoun lying in Abirdene, and declairit to the proveft and balleis that thair men wes hungrit, and could not leive upone tua peccis of meill in the weik, except thay gat 12 s. also. The counfall is convenit, and, to eschew plundering, thay condiscendit to give 3000 merkis; for the quhilk the tounne wes taxt. Thus is Abirdene fore vext day and nicht.

About this tyme, twa commissiouneris cam fra the English Parliament to oure Scottis Parliament, as wes said. And likuaies that the young prince wes generall over the kingis army, maid of purpois for pleissing of the Englishmen, who lykit not to serve vnder generall Ruthven, being ane Scottis man, whose counfall and advys wes not the les cravit at all occasionis, as a brave expert cavilleir. Like as the king maid him marques of Thames for quyting his place.

Ye hard befor, of the taking and warding of young Drum and his brother Robert Irving. This brave young gentleman depairtit this lyf within the tolbuith of Edinbrughe upone Tuysday, 4 Februar; and that samen nicht (being excommunicat) wes bureit betuixt 11 and 12 a klok with candle licht in lanternis, the young laird lying fore feik also in the same chalmer, who, upone gryt moyan, was trauportit in ane wandbed upone the morne fra the tolbuith to the castell, qulhair he lay fore greivit at the death of his weilbelovit brother borne down by unhappie destiny and cruell malice of the Estaitis. When thay war first wardit thay war all thrie put in siudrie houffis, that none suld have conference with another, and that none suld com or gang without ane tounis ballie war present. This longfum, lothfum priffoun indureit for the first half yeir. Thairefter thay gat libertie all thrie to byd in ane chalmer; bot none sufferit to cum, or go, or speik bot that whiche wes overhard by ane ballie. Bot this young gallant, byding so long in priffoun and of ane hie spreit, brak his hart and deit, his father being confynit in Edinbrughe and his mother duelling in New Abirdene, (for the place of Drum wes left desolat, as ye have befor,) to thair unspeikable greif and forrow.

About this tyme of Argile's discomfiture the Estaitis gives ordour to generall major Ballie to levy ane new army to go upone Montrois, of whome ye may heir moir.

Ye hard of the noble victory Montrois had of Argile at Innerlochrie. His soldiouris gat aboundans of armes and spoyll. Argile went in duleweid to Edinbrughe, fore lamenting the lois of his kin and freindis; bot cheiflie the lois of his honor. Bot Montrois courageoullie merchit bak throw Lochquhaber with displayit baner touardis Innernes with incredibill diligens; and synding the toune stronglie fortifeit and garifonis lying about or rather within the toune, sic as the laird of Laeris' regiment and Buchanan's regiment, resolving in storming thairof it wold spend tyme and lois him men, and thairfoir merchit peceable by Innernes down throw the countrie of Morray, chargeing all maner of man betuixt 60 and 16 to rys and serve the king and him his Majesteis live-tennand, vnder the pane of fyre and suord, aganis his Hines rebell subjectis; and to that effect to meit him in thair best armes on hors and foot immediatlie efter the charge. This bred gryte feir, and sindry of the Morray men cam in to him. Sic as stood out he plunderit, spolzeit and brynt thair houffis and landis following, viz. the laird of Balnadallachis thrie houffis, Petchafs, Foynefs and Balnadallache; houffis, biggingis, and cornyardis of his haill ground; and his haill landis plunderit of hors, nolt, scheip, and uther goodis. The place of Grangehill pertening to Niniane Dumber, the place of Broddie pertening to the laird of Broddie, the place of Cowbin pertening to Kynaird, the place of Innes pertening to the laird of Innes, and Reidhall, all brunt and plunderit. The landis of Burgie, Lethein, Duffus plunderit; bot not brunt. Garmoche plnnderit, bot not fyrit. Thair salnound cobillis and nettis cuttit and hewin down, quhairby the water of Spey culd not be weill fishit. Thus, as Montrois merchit he sent out parteis throw the countrie with fyre and plundering.

Now, upone the 17 of Februar, thair wes fitting at ane Committee in Elgyne the erll of Seafort, the laird Innes, Sir Robert Gordoun, the laird of Plufcardyne, and divers uthers; and, heiring of thir doinges, discharges be touk of drum the Fasting-Evin's marcat haldin yeirlic at Elgyne, left the countrie merchandis and people fould get skaith; and schortlie dissolves thair Committee, and ilkane a findrie get. The laird Innes and findrie with him gois to Spynnies, whair his eldest sone wes duelling. The toune's people of Elgyne and countrie about, feing the laird of Innes flie to Spynnies, fled also with thair wyves, barnes, and best goodis which they culd get careit, heir and thair, bot cheiffie to Spynnies, and few baid within the toune throw plane feir; whiche incensit the soldiouris war againt the toune nor if thay had biddin and keipit thair houffis. The erll of Seafort and rest of the Committee men fled thair owne wayis.

As Montrois is merching to Elgyne, the laird of Grant with sun uthers met him, offering thair service upon thair paroll and gryte aith suorne to serve the King and him his Livetennand loyallie. Montrois receavit them gratiouf- lie. The laird of Grant sent in 300 men to him. Sie heirefter.

Upone the 19 of Februar, Montrois cumis in to Elgyne. The lord Gordoun, being in the Bog, lap quiklie on hors, haveing Nathaniell Gordoun with sun few uthers in his company; and that sament cam to Elgyne, saltit Montrois, who maid him hartlie welcum, and sounpis joyfullie togidder. Mony mer- vallit at the lord Gordoun's going in after sic maner, being upone the countrie service, and collonell to ane foot regiment and to ane hors regiment. Sum alledgit the Estaitis oversaw him in divers poyntes touching his honour, quhill he could not digest. Utheris said he wes liklie to lois his father for following the countrie caus, if he fould continew, and the countrie happin to be borne down. Utheris agane said it wes a plot devyfit betuixt Montrois and Nathaniell Gordoun when he wes with him and when he cam fra him with Crag- iwar, as ye have befor; and albeit for his cuming away he wes esteimit traiterous and disloyall to Montrois, yit he proveit the politique and his faith- full fervand in this buffines. Thir wes the opinionis of sun. Howfoever it was, in he went ; bot how or upone what reffone, I cannot tell. The miniftrie heiring of this, thay raillit out of pulpites pitifullie aganes him. His brother Lodovick cam alfo to Montrois, who wes gratioullie receavit.

Montrois gives ordour to draw all the ferry boites on Spey to the northe fchoir, except ane anent the Bog, and gard the hail furdif vp and down ; fyne gois to his counfall of warr, not to Committee courtis, trecheroullie croppin within this land. Whill as he is thus in Elgyne, the erll of Seafort, the lairdis of Plufcardyne and Loiflyn his bretheren, Sir Robert Gordoun of Gordounftown, and divers utheris cumis in to him, quhair I will leave him whill [afterwards.]

The brughe of Abirdene and garifouns lying thair heiring of Montrois' vortorie over Argile at Innerlochie and of his merching throw Morray land, thay fend (befoir Montrois wes yit cum to Elgyne) Alexander Forbes alias Plagne, a buffie bodie in the good cauf, with letteris to the Committee at Elgyne, who receavit letteris bak agane from the erll of Seafort, the laird of Innes, and utheris of the Committee, and from the toune of Elgyne, and wes cuning upone poft bak to Abirdene ; and at Percok upone the 20 of Februar he is aprehendit be Gordoun younger of Geicht, Leith younger of Harthill and thair complices. Thay tak the hail letteris fra him, plunderis his money whiche he had upone him, fyne hardlie with his lyf he wan away. Bot thir letteris wes poftit, all cloiflit, to Montrois now camping in Elgyne, quhairby he wnderftood the Committee courtis of Morray and who wes his freindis or foes.

Upone Sonday the 23 of Februar, young Geicht, young Harthill, and thair complices, took ten of Cragiwaris troupe lying cairleslie in thair naikit bedis within thair quarteris of Imerurie. Thay took thair hors, thair moneyis, thair apparell, and armes, and gave the men libertie to go ; whairat Cragiwar wes heichlie offendit.

The Eftaitis, greivit at Montrois doings, refolves to have him leiving or deid ; and to that effect fendis to Abirdene, about the 26 of Februar, the lord Balcarras' hors regiment, with ordour to draw in Sir James Hacketis hors regiment, quarterit within this parochin of Old Abirdene, to thair randevous in New Abirdene, (feing the uther tuo hors regimentis whome Argile left behind him quarterit in this countrie wes fcatterit heir and thair, and mony deid in the morticheyne,) and to abyld the cuning of livetemand generall major Ballie, who wes cuning with fix foot regimentis fra Sanct Johnftoun aganis Montrois. He had many brave capitanis and commanderis ; amongft whome wes generall major Hurry, a foldiour of fortune and veray changeable, for first, he servit the Parliament of England aganis his Sovereigne the King; 2. he left thame and servit his Majestie, which wes moir nobill; 3. he left the King and Parliament both, cam into Scotland, and took service with the rebellis aganis his Majestie; quhairupone he wan litle or all wes done. Ye have befoir of major Bailleis buffines. Bot at this time Baillie cam not to Abirdene, and his trouperis war forfit to flie, as heirefter ye have.

Montrois camping at Elgyne, as ye have befoir, receavit, to saif the toun onbrynt, 4000 merkis, as wes said; bot his foldiouris, especiallye the laird of Grant foldiouris, plunderit the toun pitifullie, and left nothing turfabil on-careit away, and brak down bedis, burdis, inficht and plenishing. Montrois leaves thame at this plundering, and merchis from Elgyne upone the fourt of Marche towardis the Bog of Geicht, with the bodie of his army, haveing in his company the erll of Seafort, the lord Gordoun, the laird of Grant, the laird of Plufcardyne, the laird of Loiflyn, and sum utheris who had cum in to him; and fendis befoir him over Spey the Farquharsonis of Braymar to plunder the toun of Cullen pertening to the erll of Fyndlater, whiche they did pitifullie, for thir Farquharsonis had cum in to him abefoir. Montrois being over Spey, he consideris that the tuo regimentis lying in Innernes and rebellis in the countrie nicht now in his absens brak out and wrong his freindis that ar in his company; thairfoir he takis the erll of Seafort, the laird of Grant, and utheris formerlie said, thair solemne aithis to serve the king against his rebell subjectis, and never to draw armes against his Majestie and his loyall subjectis; and thairefter sent thame over Spey agane to look to thair awin estaites, upone thair paroll to cum with all thair forces upone adverteifment to assist Montrois in the kingis service; and so pairtit fra utheris. Bot the erll of Seafort gat moir credeit nor he wes worthie of, for he perjurit him self and turned a mortall enemy to the king, and a traittor, as ye fall heir.

Now, as Montrois foirfaw the truble of the country, so it fell out, for thair cam pairteis fra the regimentis lying at Innernes to the place of Elchas, whair in the laird of Grant wes then duelling, and pitifullie plunderit the famen, and left not the ladeis apparrell, jewellis, and goldsmith wark ontakin up, quhair of scho had stoir. Thairefter thay plunderit the landis of Cokftoun, becaus the goodman followit the lord Gordoun. Thay cam in to Elgyne, and took the laird Plufcardyne and his brother Loiflyn out of that strong hous pertening to Plufcardyne, had them to Innernes, and keipit thame, as thay who had cum in to Montrois; but this wes thocht to be done with Seafortis consent.

Alwaies he feimis to be forie at the taking of his brethren, cumis to Innernes and labouris so that he gat them bothe fet to libertie. This wes said to be plane policie usit be Seafort, for he repentit him self of his ingoing to Montrois, and wreit to the Esclaitis, to the erll Marichall, and Committee at Abirdene, that he yeildit onlie throw feir, and that he avowit to hyd be the good caus to his deith; quhilk wes acceptit, and pairtlie he performit.

Remember the erll of Morray is all this tyme resident in Ingland with his ladie.

Ye heir how Montrois cumis to the Bog. His eldest sone the lord Grahame wes in his company, a proper youth about 16 yeiris old and of singlar expectatioun. He takis feiknes, deis in the Bog in a few dayis, and is bureit in the kirk of Bellie, to his fatheris gryt greif.

The lord Gordoun haiftellie drawis wp about 500 fut and aucht scoir hors for this service.

The trouperis and Lauthean's regiment, lying in Abirdene, as ye have befoir, finding that Ballie wes not yit cum, commandit the toun to pay the rest of thair 3000 merkis, as is befoir. Thay schip in ane bark lying in the harberie tuo feild peices with thair ammunition, bag and baggage; and upone the 7 of Marche schamefullie fleis upon the onlie report of the enemy, and leavis Abirdene to its awin defens; who had lyn lyk grasshopperis in the toun and countrie, as ye have. Mr. Androw Cant and his wyf, Mr. John Rew, Mr. Williame Robertstone, and haill covenantaris fleis. Mr. Robert Farquhar proveft and Patrik Leslie lait proveft both wes in Edinbrughe; and the toun flood in gryt feir.

Our Scottis parliament rais upone the [20th] day of Februar, as ye have [afterwards.]

Montrois marchis fra the Bog to the place of Cullen of Boyne, the erll of Findlater him self havinge fled fouth befoir to Edinbrughe, leaving in thir dangerous dayis, pitifull to behold, his ladie behind him. This staitlie hous weill decoirit with brave insicht and plenishing, and furneishit with silver plait, and all uther necessaies, wes pitifullie plunderit, and nothing turfabill left. And then [he] wes begining to rys fyre; bot the ladie pitifullie besocht Montrois, now in hir husbandis absence, to forbeir fyre of hir ground bot for the space of 15 dayes, within quhilk tyme if her husband cam not to give all satisfactioun, that then his lordschip shuld do as pleiffit him best. And for this peice of 15 dayis tyme scho promefit 20,000 merkis, quhairof scho payit in hand 5000 merkis. Montrois grantit hir desire upone the conditionis foirfaidis, and raifit no fyre on the erll of Findlateris ground (albeit a grite covenanter) at this tyme. From Findlater he marchis to the Boyne, plunderis this countrie, and burnes the bigging pitifullie, and fpoyllit the minifteris guidis, geir, and bookis. The laird him felf keipit the Crag of Boyne, quhairin he wes faif; bot his hail landis for the moft pairt wes thus brynt vp and diftroyit. Thairefter he marchis to Banf, plunderis the famen pitifullie; no merchandice, goodis, nor geir left. They faw no man on the freit bot wes ftript naikit to the fkin. Sum tuo or thrie worthles houffis wes brynt. No blood fched. And fo thay left Banf. From that toune he marchit to Turref, quhair, according to the Counfall of Abirdenis ordinans, as ye have befor, thair cam to Montrois Mr. Thomas Gray, George Morifoun, George Cullen, and Mr. Johne Alexander advocat, four difereit weil fet burgeffis, thair commiffioneris, who with gryte humilitie pitifullie declairit to his Honour the manifold misereis daylie befalling the tonne of Abirdene, cuming from one fyde and from another, and no brughe within Scotland fo havellie diftrest as that tonne fra tyme to tyme fince the begining of thir troubles, as wes weil knowne unto him felf; and now feiring that he and his army wes cuming to Abirdene, declairit the hail people, man and woman, throw plaine feir of the Irifhis, wes fleing away, if his Honour gave thame not affureans of faiftie and protectioun; who myldlie hard thir commiffioneris, and faid, he wes fory at Abirdenis calameteis; aluayes forbad them to be feirit, for his foot army quhairin the Irifhis war fould not cum nar Abirdene be aucht myllis, and if him felf can, he cravit nothing bot intertynnement upone his owne charges, forder wrong he intendit not to do till the brughe of Abirdene; which treulie and noble he keipit. The commiffioneris wes glaid of this unexpected good anfuer. Thay gave mony thankis, and humelie took thair leive from Montrois, cam bak fra Turref; and upone the 10 of Marche cam to Abirdene, whair thay declairit the good anfuer whiche thay had gottin, to the gryte joy of majeftratis and commouns, man, wyf, and child within the brughe.

Sonday the 9 of Marche, no fermon in either of the Abirdenis throw the abfens of our ministrie fled for feir; yit doctour Gould preichit in the College kirk, bot durft not cum to the Hie kirk.

Upone the famen Sunday, major Nathaniell Gordoun leaves Montrois at Turref, and cam till Abirdene with fum few trouperis; and, on the morne, thair cam in to him 100 Irifh dragouneris. The keyis of kirkis, portis, and tolbuith ar deliverit to him. He fetis sic priffioneris as wes thair to libertie, amonges whome thair wes one callit Thomas Meldrum wardit for following Montrois. He took the spair armes lying at Torry, left thair be the Lauthean regiment wnder the keiping of unquhill capitane Keith, Marſchallis brother, his troupe. Thay took 1800 muscatis, pikis, and uther armes. Thair wes sum hurt, sum slayne, and sum of this troupe takin priffoneris and wardit in the tolbuith of Abirdene. The armes wes laid thair also. And livetennand Scot, one of the said Lauthean regiment, lying lurking behind the rest, wes also taken. Major Gordoun receavit ordouris to watche the toune, and set out scout watches nichtlie als far off as Cowie to sie if ony army wes cuming fra the south. Thair wes sum skirmilbing at the Brig of Die, quhair Keithis troupe wes routit; and finding the feildis fair he returnis bak to Montrois, who had removit fra Turef touardis Frendracht. The young viscount wes in the place, whiche he keipit, but the laird his father wes in Muchallis with the lord Frazer his good-sonne, all pryve covenantaris. He plunderit thrieseoir pleuchis of Frendrachtis landis liand within the parochins of Forge, Drumblait, and Innerkethny, and the ministeris hous of Forge, quhilk [with] the rest of the hail houffis, biggingis, barnis, byris, cornezairdis, inficht and pleinishing, wes brynt vp in the air; and the hail oxin, hors, nolt, scheip, ky, and uther bestiall pitifullie plunderit and careit away, leaving this ground desolat. Montrois wreit fra Pennyburne ane letter to Abirdene of the 10 of Marche, commanding thame to caus thair drum go throw the toune, charging all maner of man within the schire betuixt 60 and 16 to meit him in thair best armes and on thair best hors upone the 15 of Marche at his camp at Innerurie, wnder the pane of fyre and suord. Drumis went, the chargis spred throw the schire, and many met him on hors and foot for obedience thairof. From Frendracht he marchit to Kintoir, Kinkell, and Innerurie, and cam to Kintoir upone the 12 of Marche. His army wes quarterit about the boundis foirfaidis, him self lodgit in Mr. Johne Cheyne's hous, minister at Kintoir. He gave out orderis, that ilk parochin within the presbitrie of Abirdene (except Abirdene) should send to him tua commissioneris with ane perfect Roll of the hail sewaris, heritouris, and lifrentaris of ilk parochie, quhairby thay might furneish to his service hors and men according to thair estaites; quhilk wes done, and men daylie cuming in to him for feir of fyre and suord, who utheruayes wold have stand out.

Ye hard how major Nathaniell Gordoun went from Abirdene to the camp. Upone the foirfaid 12 of Marche he cumis fra the camp bak agane to Abirdene with Donald Farquharsonne, capitane Mortimer, and sum utheris, about fourseoir weil horfit brave gentlemen. Thay, feirles and cairles of the enemy, went to thair mirryment without cloiffing of the portis or fetting of watches, aganis the ordour of war. Thair cairles securitie is fpyit by füm of thair onfreindis within the toun, as wes said, and poftis fpeidellie to generall major Hurry now lying at the North Water Brig with the lord Balcarras' regiment and uther foot regimentis, defyring him to cum with diligens to Abirdene, quhair he fould have a fair haferd of his enemyis lying without order. Hurry informit of all, takis the occafion, and cumis with about aucht fcoir hors and foot out of Balcarras' hors regiment and utheris, befydhis brave trouperis and mukitaires; and, in gryte haift, upone Frydday the 15 of Marche about 8 houris at evin, cam down the get of Abirdene, and fet watchis to the portis, as thay cam in, that none fould efcap. The uther partie difperfit throw the toun drinking cairleffie in thair lodgings, and heiring the hors feit and gryte noys, wes aftoneiffuit, never dreaming of thair enemy. Aluayes this Donald Farquharfoun hapnit to cum to the calfey, quhair he wes cruellie flayne auent the Court de Guard, a brave gentilman, and ane of the nobleft capitanes amongis all the hielanderis of Scotland. Tua or thrie utheris wes killit; and füm prifoneris takin, had to Edinbrughe, and caft in the ironis within the tolbuith. Gryte lamentatioun wes maid for this gallant, being ftill the kingis man for lyf and death. Hurry thairefter gois to the Court de Gaird, and takis out the haill trouperis' horffis ftanding thair, and likuayis out of the ftables, convoyit by the tonne's people quhair thay flood. Amonges the reft, the marques of Huntlyis beft hors, whome the lord Gordoun had lent to major Nathaniell Gordoun, wes takin be capitane Robert Forbes brother to Sir Wiliane Forbes of Cragiwar. Thay gat gallant hors. The gentilmen could not mend it; bot glaid to efcap with thair lives, füm ane get, füm another.

Hurry tareit not longer in the toun nor he could get thair horffis, bot returnis bak agane the get he cam; and be the way takis out of the brughe of Montrois the marques of Montrois fecond fone, (now lord Grahame, be reffone of his elder brotheris deceas, as ye have hard,) a young barne about 14 yeires, lerning at the fcoollis, attendit be his pedagog in quiet maner. Aluayes he is takin, and had to Edinbrughe, whair he with his pedagog is bothe wardit in the caftell of Edinbrughe.

Hurry haveing done this exploit in Abirdene, the gentilmen wes forie and could not mend it. Thay returnit bak to Montrois, pairt on hors, and pairt on fut, efcamanit of this accident. Montrois wes heichlie offendit for the lois of Donald Farquharfoun, moir nor all the reft, throw too gryt cairleffnes.

Upone the morne being Setterday, the faid Douald Farquharfoun's corpis wes found on the calsey stript nakit, for thay had tirrit from of his bodie ane ritche stand of apparrell bot put on the samen day. His corporis ar takin wp, wynd and put in ane clois kist, and had wp to the Cheppell, thair to ly on the Castellhill. The uther deid corporis wes takin wp and put in thair kistis and careit to the samen Cheppell on the Castellhill, whill thay fould all be buryit.

The toune of Abirdene, feiring this accident fould be interpret thair fault, fend out tua commissiонерis to Kintoir to signefie thair innocency to Montrois. He hard thaim patientlie with ane wo hairt, yit knew weill aneucke who wes innocent or guiltie of this mater within the toune, wyslie keipit wp his mynd, and gave the commissiонерis ane indifferent anfuier. And so [they] returnit to Abirdene, not knowing what fould be the event.

Aluayes Montrois gives ordour to generall major M^cDonald to cum to Abirdene with 1000 hors, and foot Irishis, and sie his corporis bureit; who cam indeid upone the foirfaid Setterday and 16 of Marche to the toune about four efter none. The toune's people, both man and woman, wes wnder gryte feir of thir Irishis, and mony of mynd to flie thair bouffis. Bot this noble major comfortit them all, for he quarterit his hail foot being about 700 Irishis about the Brig of Die and Tua Myll Cros, and none baid within the toune bot him self and his trouperis. He caufit clois the portis, and set out stout watches, as ane discreit capitane fould do. Lord Lues Gordoun cam with him. Upone the morne being Sondag, this gentleman with the uther thrie corporis wes listit out of the Cheppell foirfaid, and convoyit to thair buriall. Donald wes bureit in the laird Drumis Lyll with mony wo hairtis, and dulefull schottis. Bot it is to be markit, thair wes no preiching in ony of the Abirdenis, becaus the hail miniferis had fled the toune; yit doctour Goold, oure Old toune principall, teicht within the College kirk, suppose for feir he durst not preiche out of the Colledge Yettis on this Sabboth day 17 of Merche.

Now as Montrois is lying at Kintoir, the erll of Airly fallis thair feik of ane fyver, and is convoyit thairfra to Lethintie, quhair of his dochter is lady, with ane gaird of 300 men, officiaris, capitanis and commanderis to auait upone him. This done, Montrois, upone the samen Sondag and 17 of Merche, marchis fra Kintoir to the landis of Durris perteing to the lord Frafer. Sie moir of Airlie [March 19.]

Generall Major M^cDonald stayis all this Sondag in the toune, quhair he wes muche respectit and weill intertynneit for his love and favour whiche he schew in not doing wrong, nor suffering muche wrong to be done, except ane or tua remarkabill covenantis whiche wes plunderit. Thay indeid took thair dyet;

bot payit for all extraordinaris, quhair of the toune's people wes moft glaid. Yit he took wp mekill geir.

Upone Monunday the 18 of Marche, he leaves Abirdene, mynding to meit Montrois at Durris; bot a number of the Irishis rogues lay lurking behind him, abusing and feiring the toune's people, taking thair cloikis, plaidis, and purfes fra thame on the hie streites. No merchand buith durft be onpit. The stable durris brokin wp on the nicht and the horffis takin out. Bot the major heiring this returnis that fame Monunday bak agane, and callit all thir rafcallis with fore skinis out of the toune befor him; and so both Abirdenis wes frie both of him and them, be Godis providence, who luikit both for fyre and plundering. Yit he took wp about 10,000 pundis worth of cloth, gold and silver lace from the merchandis, and the toune becam obligit to pay for the famen to them. He took wp this cloth and uther commodeteis, amounting to the said sounge of 10,000 pundis and above, to be clothing to him and his foldiouris, and caufit the toune becum obligit to pay the merchandis by raising of ane taxatioun for that effect, quhilk thay war glaid to do to be quyt of their company. Thus, cros upone cros cumis upone Abirdene.

Ye heir how Montrois merchis fra Kintoir towardis Durris. He spairit be the way the lairdis of Monymusk and Leyis landis onplunderit upone sum privie conditionis, and cam to Durris, quhair major M^cDonald meitis him. Thay brynt wp the place, lauche bigging, and hail cornis, and spolzeit the hail ground of hors, nolt, scheip, and uther goodis. This done upone Sunday the 17 of Marche. And ane partie the famen Sunday wes direct out upone sic landis of Fyntray as pertemit to the laird of Cragiwar to plunder, burne, and distroy the famen, houffis, biggingis, cornis and all. Mr. Andrew Abircrummy, minister at Fyntray his hous and cornis brynt wp, and goodis plunderit, being ane mayne covenantar. Sum thocht Cragiwar defervit this injurie, [who,] being credible takin prifoner and weill respectit both of the cuntry and Montrois, wold tak his libertie efter fuche dishonourable maner, quhair as if he had stayit, his licens nicht have bein purcheffit by ane fair way; at leif he wold not have sufferit fuche skaith if he had biddin captive.

Montrois marchis fra Durris to Stanehevin, and cam thair upone Tuysday 19 of Marche. And, heiring of sum troubles to arys in the north against the lord Gordoun's landis, he fendis bak his footmen estimat to 500 men to defend Strathbogie and remanent his ground aganis sic enemeis as fuld cum; who cam indeid: bot still he keipit the lord Gordoun with his hors troupes beyfd him self whill occafion offerit.

The erll of Airlie lying fore feik at Lethintie, and heiring of the lord Gordoun's men cuming bak agane, he causis transport him[self] to Strathbogie, as a place of gryter strenth and fuirtie, haveing his gaird about him, quhair he lay whill God sent him his helth.

Montrois quarteris him self in James Clerk the proveftis hous of Stanehevin; the lord Gordoun and utheris befyd his army quarterit in Cowie and about the countrie.

Upone Wedinfday the 20 of Merche he wreittis ane letter to the erll Marchall being in Dunnotter, quhair thair wes about 16 minifteris who had fled thair owne houffis and thair takin refuge. Amongst whome wes Mr. Androw Cant and his wyf also, Mr. John Rew, minifteris at Abirdene, and Mr. William Douglas professor thair. George Keith the erllis brother wes also cum thair laillie from France and divers utheris. Bot this letter wes receavit and red; albeit the berar stood at the yett, bot gat no answer, (quhairat Montrois wes heichlie offendit,) done cheislie be persuasioun of his owne ladie and of the miniftrie, speciallie be Mr. Androw Cant. It is said, the lord Gordoun writ ane letter to the foirsaid George Keith, (wha cam to Stanehevin and conferrit with him and Montrois also,) whose desyre was that the erll shold serve the king and concur with him against his rebellious subjectis as he that wes bound thairto both from his place and honouris, (this wes the sum, as wes said, of all;) utheruaies to be upone his owne haferd. Bot this noble erll counfallit be Mr. Androw Cant and the rest of the bretheren refusit this service alluterlie, saying, he wold not be aganes the countrie. Quhairupone Montrois, on 21st Merche, began and brynt wp the barnezairdis of Dunnotter, houffis, cornis and all, quhilk the erle, his ladie, and the rest within the place saw; syne fyris the tolbuith of Stanehevin, (quhairin thair wes stoir of beir and cornis,) and hail toun also, being the kingis royall brughe, with the hail cornzairdis, houffis, and biggingis, except the said James Clerkis bigging, quhairin Montrois him self wes quarterit. They plunderit ane schip lying in the harberie, syne fet hir in fyre with the fisher boitis lying thair. They brynt wp the hail toun of Cowie, houffis, biggings, cornis, and cornzairdis, and siclike; plunderit the hail goodis, geir, hors, nolt, schein quhilk thay could get. They plunderit the person of Dunnotteris hous, syne fet the same on fyre. It is said, the people of Stanehevin and Cowie cam out, man and woman, children at thair foot, and children in thair armes, crying, houlling and weiping, praying the erll for Godis caus to saif them from this fyre, howfone it wes kendlit. Bot the poor people gat no anfuere, nor knew thay quhair to go with thair children. Lamentabill to fie ! Fettereffo alfo wes fyrit, and ane quarter thair of brynt : bot the hail lauche bigging and corneꝝairdis utterlie diftroyit and brynt wp. Thay fyrit the plefant park of Fettereffo. Sum treis brynt, utheris being grein could not weill burne. Bot the hart, the hynd, the deir, the rae, fkillit at the ficht of this fyre ; bot thay war all tane and flayne. The hors, meires, oxin, and ky, war all lykuaies killit ; and hail barony of Dunnotter and Fettereffo utterlie fpoilzeit, plunderit and undone. Efter this he merchis to Drumlaithie, and to Urie, perteing to Johne Forbes of Leflie, ane gryte covenanter. He fyres the place, burnis all to the voltis, and hail lauche bigging, cornis, and barneꝝairdis ; and plunderis the hail ground. He fendis to his awin good brother the viscount of Arbutnet ; bot, as is faid, by his ordour thair wes brynt and plunderit to him about 24 pleuchis of land.

He cumis to Fettercarne upone [Frydday] the [22] day of Marche, quarteris his foot army, and fendis out quarter maifteris to quarter fun trouperis in the countrie and about the brughe of Montrois. Bot generall major Hurry, lying in ambush within the planting of Halkertoun by thair knowledge, iffues out suddantlie with ane gryte cry and ane fchout upone thir trouperis, who returnit bak to Montrois camp fchortlie. And he directlie fendis out ane better number of trouperis. Bot how fone Hurry feis thame he takis untill ane uther bus hard befyd ; bot he is roufit out, and routit throw the North water, who fled, (with gryter fkaith nor he gave,) to livetennant generall major Baillie lying nar hand with his army. Montrois trouperis returnis bak to the camp, quhair Mr. James Strathachin's hous in Fettercarne wes brynt.

Upone Sunday the 24 of Merche, Mr. Williame Strathachin oure minifter cam to his hous in Old Abirdene and preichit. Bot Mr. Andrew Cant and Mr. Johne Rew wes not cum to thair charge in New Abirdene out of Dunnotter ; yet doctor Goold and Mr. Robert Downy fuppleit thair abfence Sunday and week day.

This famen Sunday, Charles Gordoun, now callit lord Charles, with his pedagog Mr. Thomas Johnftoun, wes transportit fra the Old Toun fcoollis to the place of Lefnoir to remane with his father-fifter, the ladie Strabrane, in the tyme of thir troubles, left he fuld be takin as the lord Grahame wes takin fra the fcoollis in Montrois, as ye have befoir.

Montrois stayit at Fettercarne, Frydday, Setterday, Sunday, and marchis thairfra upone Monunday the 25 of Merche to Brechin with his foot army ; and directis his trouperis to the toun of Montrois, with charge to tak thair intertynnement, bot no moir. Thay took the fame and wyne aneuche, bot did no moir harm to the toune. The toune's people of Brechin hid their goodis in the castell thair of and kirk steplis, and fled thame felffis; which flicht irrageit the foldiouris. Thay fand their goodis, plunderit the castell and hailt toune, and bryut about 60 houffis. From Brechin he merchis upone the day of Merche with his trouperis in ane body in throw Angous, quhair he raifit sun fyre also, livetennand generall major Baillie being in the feildis nar by, haveing four foot regimentis and tuo regimentis of hors, to whom also cam the lord of Loudon, heighe chanceler, his regiment, with the erll of Lauthean's regiment also, both foot regimentis, besides uther great forces coming, as 1500 reid coitis out of Ireland, and sun uther regimentis; yit wes bot 600 reid coittis.

Ye have that oure Scottis Parliament wes wp, and rais upone the 20 day of Februar. Thay did not adjerne the sament to any certane day; bot establisht ane constant Committee of Parliament to sit upone the countrie effaires.

Montrois is informit of livetennant major Bailleis forces and nichtie preparatioun; yit could not difinay him, bot fra Brechin throw Angous he marches in his sicht and his forces but strack of suord or pous of pik; he haveing then in service four foot regimentis and the lord of Balcarras and Sir James Hacketis tuo hors regimentis, whairas Montrois wes not so mony in his service, not passing 3000 fut, hors, and dragouneris.

Baillie cumis from Perth to meet with Montrois at or about Brechin. Montrois merchis in his sicht, as said is, to the water of Ilay. He keipis the one fyde, and Baillie follouis and keipis the uther fyde of this river, within muscat schot to utheris. Thair wes skirmishing betuixt thair scout watches daylie, bot none offering battell to utheris. Quhairat mony mervallit; the countrie also holdin wnder continwall feir, not knowing whome to follow, and glaidlie wold have had it discusst be battell betuixt thame. Bot however it wes, Baillie durst not go on bot according to ordour, who had sun noble men on his counfall of warr still with him, sic as the erll of Craufurd sumtyme callit lord Lyndfay, the erll of Cassellis, the lord of Balmyrrinoche, the lord Kirkcubreich and sun utheris, without whose advys he could no nothing.

As Montrois is in Angous, the viscount of Frendracht, the lord Frazer, the maister of Forbes, thair freindis and follouneris leaves thair houffis and cumis to the feildis, and beginis to oppres whome thay could overtak. And first, thay mell upone the hie way with Hew Gordoun sone to George Gordoun of Coklarachie. Thay tak Hector Abircrummy of Fetterneir and Williame Frazer of Cragtoun, and wairdis thame both in the place of Frendracht. Thay wardit also the thrid in Muchallis, bot thay fet him schortlie to libertie; and Fetterneir was also put to liberty. Thir people, with Craigiwar, war gryte covenantaris, and deiddie enemyis to the hous of Huntlie, the marques being still in Strathnaver all this tyme. Thay rode also to the place of Lethintie feiking for the erll of Airly, whome thay knew weill aneuche wes in Strathbogie. Thay gat no entres thair, nor did no skaith at this tyme; bot heir-etter it wes plunderit.

It is to be markit, Marche wes veray wyndie, heiche, and outrageous, quhairof the lyk wes feldom fein heir.

Ye have Montrois marche, and livetennand major Baillie his continuall following of him, and how the countrie wes keptit in daylie feir both of the ane army and of the uther. As thay ar dallying thus wayes in uther fichtis about four or fyve dayes time, Montrois marchis to Kirremure and the lillis, and Baillie to Perth. In the mein tyme the lord Gordoun and generall major McDonald gettis ordour to go storne Dundie, who, upone Frydday 4 Aprile, cam thair with about 200 hors and 800 fut, quhairof the maist pairt wes Irishis, and Montrois follouit with the baill army that same day and incampit at Dundeis Law, hard beyde. Thay enter the toune couragiouflic. The toune's men defendit allweill as thay could. Thair cannon plantit on the calsey for defens of the portis wes schot; bot did no skaith, for thay enterit the toune by the portis at four severall wayis. Thay brynt wp the Bonmethill almost altogidder, and fyr it findrie uther houffis within the toun. As thay ar buffie at this wark major Baillie getis word, and with Balcarras troupe and Hakkettis troupe cam with all the speid he can to refkew Dundie, having his foot army cuming efter als fast as thay could from Sanct Jolinftoun. The lord Gordoun, heiring of thair cuming, receaves ordour fra Montrois lying hard by to found the retreit and returne to the camp; quhilk he did evin when the toune wes at the randering. Aluayes Montrois, in ane full bodie, beginis to marche about sex houris at nicht. Baillie and Hurry bydis whill thair foot cam, and with all diligens in ane body follouis and overtakis Montrois marching to the brayis, for it wes sex houris at nicht befoir Baillie's foot army could wyn to Dundie. It is said, major Hurry would fane have yokkit with Montrois; bot Baillie expreflic contramandit him. So thay pairt, the ane army fra the uther, throw mirknes of nicht, Montrois to Kirremure, and Baillie to Forfar, without blood or slauchter; bot thair was fum flayne at Dundie at the storming thairof. Baillie leaves following of Montrois, and fra Forfar gois to Brechin. Upone the morne, the erll Marfchall, the vitcount of Fren draucht, the lord Frafer, the maister of Forbes, the lairdis of Boyne, Echt, Leslie, Craigiwar, and divers utheris oppreffit covenantaris, met him at Brechin, and held thair Committees thair. Generall Major Hurry heir receavit ordouris to cum to Abirdene, with the lord Loudoun and erll of Lautheanis foot regimentis, confisting of about 1000 brave foldiouris, commanderis and all, and Sir James Hakketis regiment of about tua hundreth and fyfte hors, the nobles and barronis to cum with him also, whiche is above writtin, and Baillie to go bak to Sanct Johnstoun. Quhair I will ceas for a while.

Upone the last of Marche, Mr. Androw Cant with his wyf, and Mr. John Rew, with Mr. Williame Douglas, cam to Abirdene fra Dunnotter. Mr. Williame Robertfone, Patrik Leslie, and the rest cam to the toune upone the morne being Thyrsday and first of Aprile, and ordiner presbiter day of Abirdene, quhair it wes told to the bretheren that the Committee of the kirk had apointit ane fast for divers gryte causis to be keipit throw all Scotland, and that it wes done in the south, and omittit heir be resfone of the trubles; thairfoir it wes apointit to be keipit upone Pasche day nixt, 6 Aprile, within this presbitrie, and throw the rest of the kirkis als fone as micht be. Sum mervallit at the apointing of this fast upone Sunday nixt and on good Pasche day, quhilke wes keipit abefoir praifing God with mirth and myrrines for the refurrection of Jesus Christ, and now turnit over in fasting and murning be oure kirk. The commoun people grudgit with thir neweum ordouris. It wes straitlie keipit heir fra 8 houris in the morning whill tua efternone for the fornone's fermon, and als long ane efternone's fermon. No meit durft be maid reddy, sercheris socht the toune's houffis and kitchinges for the famen. Thus is the people vext with thir extraordinar fastis and thanksgivinges upone the Sabbath day (apointit be God for a day of rest), moir nor thair bodeis ar vext with labour on the wark day, throw the prepofterous zeall of oure ministeris.

Mr. Williame Strathauchin, on this day of humiliatioun, cryit out aganes Montrois and his army, calling them bloodie botcheris, traittouris, perfidious, and of the hellish crew, with many uther detestable speiches unmeit to be uttert by ane minister out of the chair of veritie. Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. Johne Rew with Mr. Williame Robertfone wes als malicious, and large war aganes thame in their pulpitis. And Cant wes hard to rail aganes the kingis owne commiffioun grantit to Montrois, and spairit not to call him and his army murtheraris, bloodie botcheris, rebellis, and excommunicat traittouris. Quhairat sum of the weill difposit auditouris did tremble, wondering at the railing of the ministrie almost everie quhair, wicked counfallouris and evill instrumentis fra the begining of thir trubles. Bot no repentans for the mother fyn, whiche is, ryving of the kingis royall prerogative fra him and his rentis and leiving within this kingdome, whiche hes bred this miserie, and Godis wrath, peft, and fuord.

Ye have befoir of Montrois marching to Kyrremure. And wnderstanding sum enemeis war rifin and growing to ane heid in thir pairtis, sic as Frendracht, Frafer, the Forbefis, thair kin and freindis, cheiflie aganes the hous of Huntlie thair freindis and folloueris; thairfoir, moft wyflie he directis from Kyrremure the lord Gordoun, his brother Lues or lord Lues, with the horfmen whiche he brocht with him, being about aucht scoir, (his foot men being sent befoir,) to go home and defend his awin countrie and freindis.

In the mein tyme, the erll Merfchall, the viscount of Frendracht, the lord Frafer, the maifter of Forbes, the lairdis of Boyne, Ludquharne, Craigiwar, Leslie, Echt, Kermuck, and divers utheris barronis growis to ane heid, and cumis to Abirdene upone Monunday 7 Aprile, to hold thair Committees for uptaking of the excise and laying moir grevous burdinges upone the kingis subjectis. Bot thay ar be Godis providence interruptit at this tyme; for ye heir how the lord Gordoun cam from Kyrremure. He croffis Die at the Milae of Dennety upone the 8 of Aprile. Merfchall is informit of ane army cuning that get, the samen 8 of Aprile gois to counfall, diffolves the Committee, he to Dunnotter, and ilk man a findrie get. Quhairat mony mervallit, and sum wes blyth.

The lord Gordoun cumis to Strathbogie. Bot befoir his cuning Johne Gordone of Bukkie, ane old aigit man, took in his cheifes place of the Bog, makis James Gordoun of the famelie of Leicheftoun, a renowned foldiour, capitane thairof, who manit and providit the hous, and keipit the samen stoutlie. He drew the haill boitis and cobillis of Spey, that none fould get passage fra the north. He fett out nichtlie 100 men in watche, being wnder feir of the Morray men and regimentis lying at Imernes.

This samen Tuyfday and 8 of Aprile, apointed for holding of the Committee, oure presbitrie fat down in New Abirdene, quhair thair wes product a number of printit paperis for uptaking of the Excise, and ilk minifter to have one heir, and haill province, to intimat upone ane Sabboth day befoir his parochineris, to the effect that thay thairefter fould get payment. Bot the bretheren, heiring of the lordis going from thair Committee, diffolves thair presbitrie suddantlie without moir ado.

Ye fie befoir, how major Hurry receavit ordouris at Brechin to cum heir, and livetennant major Baillie to returne to Perth. Conforme thairto, upone the 11 of Aprile, he cam to Abirdene with his tua foot regimentis and regiment of hors. He wes convoyit with the nobles and barronis also fra Brechin, except Marfhall, who went in to Duunotter. Hurry causit quarter his trouperis about Torry, and his foot regimentis this nicht in New Abirdene.

Upone the morne thir trouperis wes quarterit in Old Abirdene, capitanes, officiares and all. Thay plunderit about the town meit for their horffis within eight myllis thairto, and payit for their owne meit. Hurry causis fraitle watche the toune of Abirdene, Brig of Die, and Brig of Done, nichtlie, and Old town also.

Friday being the 11 of Aprile, Setterday, Sunday, Mononday thay stay, as is formerlie set down.

Upone Tuisday 15 Aprile, Hurry intendis to marche from both Aberdenis, drawis out the lord Loudoun his regiment first out of the town, he being chanceler of Scotland. The trouperis merchis fra the Old town. As thay ar going into the town, the Lautbean regiment raifit ane mutiny aganes thair commanderis, and went to armes, keipit the toune, cloist the portis, and wold not suffer none of Loudoun's regiment lying outwith the portis, nor mair capitane nor commander to tak ordour with thame, nor suffer trouper, or Loudoun's regiment to enter within the town.

The caus of this mutiny wes for want of clothing and pay promesit to be givin to them at Abirdene, quhilk the uther regiment and trouperis had treulie gottin, as wes trew, and thay onlie wanting, quhilk careit sum reffone with it. Nor forder thay wold not march whill thay war compleitlie payit of all thair dewis. Major Hurry nor none of the commanderis nicht not mend thame felffis, bot tak patiens perforce; and takis this cours for the lord Loudoun's regiment that culd not get entrie within the toune, [that they] fould cum bak with the trouperis to Old Abirdene that nicht, upone thair awin charges, and to get nothing bot hous roume, fyre, candle, and bedis quhair thay culd be had. This poor town wes pitifullie distressit, in provyding thair lodgings; bot mekill mair, to furneish them meit, fears getable for money. The trouperis socht meit throw the countrie for thair horffis thame felffis. Thus lay thay in both Abirdenis whill Hurry sent to the Estaites for moneyis and clothing. Lykeas upone Thuirfday 17 Aprile ane bark cam about with thir commodeteis, quhairin Hurryis wyf cam also. He directit hir bak agane be land, and causit sehortlie cleith his soldiouris and pay thair dewis. And ther-after thay had stayit fra Frydday the 11 of Aprile upone thair expenffis, whiche wes reffonable weil payit, upone Setterday the 19 of Aprile thay marchit altogidder in ane body from Abirdenis towardis Kintoir and Innerurie; from that to Old Rayne caring in thair company tua feild peices, (thay plunderit the landis of Newtown and Harthill, for the lairdis wes in Montrois' service); from that to Strathbogie and the Engzie, as ye fall heir.

Upone the foirfaid 15 of Aprile and thrid Tuyfday thairof, oure Provinciall Assenblie fat doun in New Abirdene, and to thair doun fitting thay heir of the mutiny amonges the foldiouris foirfaidis. The erll Marschall cam from Dunnottar to this Assenblie, stayit not, bot rode bak upon the morne being Wedinfday. Mr. Williame Strathauchin, minister at Old Abirdene, is chofin moderatour, for the effaires concerning the Provinciall Assenblie, to the nixt Assenblie, and Mr. Androw Cant is moderatour for the presbitrie of Abirdene. Maister David Lyndfay, perfone of Balhelvie, is disjoyuit from this presbitrie to the presbitrie of Ellon. Mervallous to fie thir alterationis!

Upone Sunday 13 Aprile, befor fermon, the viscount of Fren draucht, the lord Frazer, the maister of Forbes, the lairdis Boyne, Echt, Ludquharne, and divers utheris who cam in with Hurry to Abirdene, rode from the town; sum thocht to meit him at Strathbogie.

Word cam heir, that upone the 11 of Aprile, be command of the Estaites, the lord Gordouis armes, the laird Delgatie's, and goodman of Cockfoun's armes also, wes revin at the cros of Edinbrughe, thame selfis declairit traitouris to thair countrie, and thair landis foirfaltit, for following the king. Strange to fie!

Ye fie how the place of Lethintie wes perfeuit, yit gat no entres. Thair- efter about this famen tyme, Sir Williame Forbes of Cragiwar with his assist- eris cam, took in the hous, pat the lady to the yett, (hir husband being absent,) plunderit the ground, and sent the cornis to his awin landis of Fintray to saw, becaus thair wes none left unplunderit or brynt, as ye have befoir.

Upone Sunday the 20 of Aprile, oure minister red out ane paper, as wes done at uther churches, warning the schire of Abirdene for Hurreis service to furneish out 600 dragouneris, man and hors, and to have thair randevous at Abirdene the 29 of Aprile. The tyme wes schort, yit chargit wnder gryte panes: bot none keipit or gave obediens, for the country lay growming wnder thir havie burdinges.

Ye fie Montrois is at Kyrremure. It is said he directis M'Donald north into Bras, Cromar, and Glentanner; and him self past south touardes Dunkeld. And in effect, we had no certainty quhair he went, he wes so obscure. And, as is said, Baillie wes at Sanct Johnstoun lying with his forces.

Forbes of Skellater, a strong gentleman, agreit with the lord Gordoun for taking of sum schein and nolt from his freindis, as ye have; and at his command past in to M'Donald with 200 foldiouris, and thay merche to Couper in Angous pertening to the lord of Couper the lord Balmyrrinochis brother, quhilk he fyrir, and flew Mr. Patrik Lyndfay minister at Couper and sum utheris; fyne routit the lord Balcarras' trouperis lying nar by, killit sum, and took thair hors and armes; fyne took the hillis.

Upone Wedinfday the 23 of Aprile, the erll Marfchall with the lairdis of Tolquhon, Wattertoun, Kermuk and divers utheris held ane Committee at Abirdene, fyne returnit that same nicht bak to Dunnotter agane.

Wedinfday 23 Aprile, thair is takin within Forthe fevin Scottis merchand fchippis, weill ladnit with goodis, and ane of the kingis fchippis, now callit ane parliament fchip, be sum frigotis, whidder Ingliſh, Irifh, [or] Dunkirkeris it is unknowne. James Nicolſon in Futtie, quhyt fiſher, wes tane at his lynes be one of thir frigotis, that did him litle ſkaith nor to his boit. Thay had him with them, bot ſufferit the boit to go home. Thay landit him at the Bounes, and he, be land, returnit to his owne hous. He could tell nothing bot that this frigot wes ane man of warr; whome to ſcho belongit he could not fay. Thairefter out of Forthe wes takin four uther merchand fchippis ritche ladnit, quhair of capitane Seytoun's fchip new gane to ſey wes one. Thus is Scotland wrackit both by ſea and land.

Upone Frydday 25 Aprile, Sir Williame Forbes of Cragiwar at his owne hand takis in the place of Kemnay from the widow ladie thair of, plantis sum foldiouris thairin, being flankit about and of good defens. He plunderit cornis and victuallis for thair mantenans from the laird of Kinragie, fyne took his beſt ſadill hors; and plunderit the countrie about, for the ſame cauſ, ſie as Newtown and Harthill. He plunderit fra thame above aucht ſcoir oxin and callit thame to Fyf, and ſauld them. He took alſo George Gordoun of Rynnies.

Ye hard of Montrois being at Dunkeld. He returnis north; and beyond Die thair cumis till him the lord Gordoun out of Auchindoun, M'Donald and his company. Siclike thair cam to him the lord of Oboyne, the maifter of Neper, the laird Delgatie, the laird of Keir younger, who, with the erll of Niddifdail and lord Heres, had brokin out of Carleill with about 28 hors throw David Leſleis army deſperatlie, yit happellie ſaif and ſound. Thus Oboyne, Neper, Delgatie, and Keir cam in to Montrois beyond Die, who wes all joyfull of utheris. Thay began to marche, croſſis the river of Die at the milne of Crathie, and haiftis the lord Aboyne to Abirdene for pulder, and thay to byd his returne at Skeyne. He cumis down Die ſyd upone Thuirfday the firſt of May with about 80 hors, cam to Abirdene, fettis watches, gois to tuo schippis lying in the harberie, plunderis about 20 barrellis or kinkenis of pulder, stayit no longer, bot schortlie past to the camp lying at Skeyne the same night, who wes veray glaid of the pulder, being veray feant thair of. He did no moir skaith. Yit Mr. Andro Cant, Mr. John Rew and sum covenant-eris fled lyke foxis. Thir barkis bot new cum home from Flanderis. Mr. Williame Chalmer minister at Skeyne and Mr. Williame Davidfone's hous war plunderit, and tuo men wes killit by the Irishis; bot no wrong wes done to the ladie Marfballis lifrent landis.

Ye hard of Hurryis marche to Strathbogie and the Engzie. He rayfit no fyre, nor did any wrong to the flaitlie pallaces of Strathbogie and the Bog; bot marchit by them to the Engzie and incampit about Over and Nether Bukies, quhair the erll of Findlater, and lord Crichtoun, the laird of Boyne and sum utheris cam to his assistans. The lord Gordoun, at Hurreyis cuming, went to Auchindoun, quhair he stayit whill he went to Montrois, as ye have hard, becaus he had no ordour to give battell to Hurry, who all this tyme is plundering the plesand countrie of the Engzie. He maid wp 400 dragoun-eris of the countrie hors, and maid meit of the cornis, victuallis, nolt, scheip, and ky; and, as wes said, he sent to Frenndraichtis tenmentis cornis, cattell, and uther goodis, to help thair loifis. He wes estimat to 1000 foot, 200 trouperis, and 400 dragouneris by and attour sic countrie help as cam in to him. He campit heir fra about the 20 of Aprile, that he cam to the Engzie, to Frydday the secund of May; and, heiring of Montrois' cuming, upone Setterday the 3 of May, he marchis over Spey, thair to joyne with the Morryay forces. Montrois, lying at Skeyne, upone Frydday the 2 of May be brak of day he merchis in ane full bodie to Strathbogie, upone the morne to the Bog, and upone Monunday 5 May past haiftellie efter Hurry over Spey. He wes estimat about 4000 men, hors and all; quhair I must ceas.

Upone Sunday 27 Aprile, oure minister Mr. Williame Strathachin, as uther ministeris did, maid ane speiche conform to the imprintit paperis anent the uptaking of the Excise sent from the Committee of Estaitis; the particularis quhair of ye have first be Committee, thairefter ratefeit be Parliament, daitit the 29 of July 1644, and last of Januar 1645. This Excise ordanit to begin the 10 of Februar, and to indure bot for ane yeir. Thairefter this day is alterit and begins the first of August 1644, and till continew until the first of August 1645.

Many devises wes maid for uptaking of this grevoufe Excise, fore against the peoples will, crying out with many maledictioun aganes the famen, as done to the wrack of bothe brughe and land; and all for this, to mak wp moneyis to furneish the armyis going into England out of this kingdome for reformation and defence of religioun: bot rather moir truelie, to furneish men to fight aganis his sacred Majestie, feing he had most grationflie condiscendit to oure haill hairtis desyre bothe in churche and policie, quhilk his Majestie never brak in ane jot; yet we wold not rest, bot rais arnes to the wrack of our countrie upone no trew reffone, as is said befor. Now, whill as the people luikit for ane tyrannicall uptaking of this Excise efter thir pulpit intimationis, it wes croft by the incuming of Oboyne to Abirdene, as ye hard befor.

Ye heir how Cragiwar took in Kennay. He alledgit he had warrand fra the Estaitis to tak, in the tyme of thir troubles, the strongest houffis, and to fortifie the samen, and the soldiouris to leive upone the rentis of the landis, or upone the countrie quhair thair wes no rentis able to fustein thame. Richt so he took in the place of Petcaple, and fortifeit the samen; bot Kennay he quytit at the feild of Aufurde, and Abirerunny younger of Birkinbog manit the samen.

Upone Tnyfday 29 Aprile, thair wes sex severall Proclamationis maid at the cros of Abirdene, I. Anent the payment of this Excise; Another, Anent the felling of the haill forfaldet perfonis landis within the north; bot thair could be found no byeris. Thair wes four uther worthles Proclamationis, whiche of purpois I have left onwritten.

Upone Sunday the 3 of May, Baillie gois into Atholl, burnis and distroyis this plesant countrie. This is not the first fyre which the Covenanteris raifit in Scotland, as I beleive. And as the king had givin justlie commiffioun to Montrois to rais fyre and suord aganis his rebellis, richt so the countrie Estaitis gave ordour to rais fyre and suord upone the kingis loyall subjectis, as wes done be the marques (then erll) of Argyll. For first he raifit fyre, at his owne hand, upone the erll of Airleis landis, as ye have; fyne brynt the landis of Keppach pertening to McDonald; and siclike brynt the lauche bigging about the place of Kellie, as ye have; fyne demolifchit the fair passages of the hous, with findrie utheris, without warrand or auchtoritie of oure soveraigne the king. The raising of this fyre wes thoct gude service by preicheris and covenantis, done for reformation of religioun and defens thair of, as most unjustlie thay alledgit since his Majestie had grantit to all our desyres both in kirk and pollicie, as is weill seen in the act of parliament. Bot the king feing thair intentionis wes rather against roialtie nor for religioun, and withall feing the kingdome borne down with blood, murther, fyre and fuord, plundering, robbie and oppreffion, ftentis, taxationis, men and moneyis, done of fet purpois againft him felf and his good fubjectis, he, for repreffing of thir abufes, grantis ane commiffion to the marques of Montrois to rys with fyre and fuord aganis his rebellious fubjectis, and to defend his trew and loyall fervandis. Bot the preicheris and covenantaris raillit and cryit out againft his Majefteis lafull commiffion. Strange to fie!

Baillie haveing brynt wv and deftroiyt this fair and fertile countrie of Atholl for the loyaltie of the inhabitantis to thair dreid foveraigne, he went to the caftle of Blair ane impregnable ftrenth, quhairin mony of the prifoneris takin at Innerlochie and haill welth of Montrois' army wes kept; bot he could not get in this hous. And, efter the burning of the countrie, he plunderit hors, nolt, fcheip, and haill goodis thairof, for intertenning of his army; fyne merchis fra Atholl in throw the heidis to Kirremure to Fettercarn, and upone Saterdag 10 of May he cumis and campis in the Birs, ftill plundering the countrie quhair ever he gois, citing the grein growing cornis, fcars cum to the blaid, with thair horfis. He wes eftimat above 2000 foot and fexfoir trouperis. Upone Sondag the 11 of May he marchis to Cromar, and campis betuixt the kirkis of Coull and Tarlan. He brynt the hous of Terperfie pertening to Gordoun; and ftill lay plundering and diftroiyng of the countrie, abyding the cuning of the lord of Balcarras with his hors regiment, and that the gentrie of the land fould rys and affift him: quhair I will leave him for a while.

Ye hard befor, how Hurry went upone the 3 of May over Spey. Montrois follout him over upone the fyft of the faid moneth, betuixt whome wes ane ffirmifh, quhair James Gordoun fone to George Gordoun of Rynnies wes fore hurt. He is convoyit to the Strudderis, ane freind of his awin, to ly while he fould be cureit, and had ane gentilman callit Gordoun to attend him. Bot major Sutherland advertieis the young laird Innes that he wes lying at this hous, who rafhlie and unadvyfedly fent out ane pairty, viz. capitane Smyth, Alexander Douglas, Mr. Johne Douglas, and Johne Mill younger, all Elgyn men, with fun utheris, and cruellie thay murder this young gentilman lying fore woundit, and left his keipar alfo for death. This wes thocht ane odious deid, barbarous and inhuman, (this youth not paffing 18 yeires of aige,) whiche wes weil revengit be Montrois at Olderne and bigging of Elgyne, as efter do appeir.

Hurry wan nothing upone this ffirmifh; bot marchit waft, removit the laird of Laeris regiment and Buchannanis regiment out of Innernes, except fo mony as fould keip the toune. Thair cam alfo of country people in to him, the erll of Sudderland in perfone with his pouer, the erll of Seafort in perfone with his pouer, the erll of Findlater him felf wes thair, the lord Lovatis pouer, bot not him felf. The young laird Innes, the Rossis, Monrois, Dumbarris, the lairdis of Boyne and Birkenbog, and many utheris cam in to Hurry, who wes estimat about 4000 foot and 500 hors, all expert foldiouris and resolute gentilmen, with brave commanderis, officiaris, and capitainis. Bot Seafort wes thocht to be ane perfidious traittour, who, after he wes deiply finorne be Montrois to the kingis fervice, and upone his paroll had gotten libertie to go home, quhairas Montrois nicht have kept him still in his company, yit, forgetting his oath maid befor God, his dentie to his prince, and this noble man his Majesteis generall, he lap in to the uther fyde, as ye heir sie, quhair he cam in and gave his aith.

Aluayis Hurry is buffellie be waft Olderne drawing to ane heid. And Montrois merehis forduard to Olderne about 3000 foot and hors, quhair he encampis commodionlie. And upone Frydday the nynt of May Hurry cumis merching forduard touardis Olderne, quhair Montrois wes byding him in good postur. At last Montrois gives Hurry ane hot charge upon all quarteris, both with foot and hors; and in schort space the Chancelaris regiment callit Londonis regiment, the Lauthean regiment, Laeris regiment, and Buchananis regiment (all expert and singular weil traynit foldiouris, as wes in this kingdome) are for the most part cut af, fighting to the death most valiantlie. This overthrow wes attribut to ane crouner or major Drummond, who wheillit about unskilfullie throw his owne foot and brak thair rankis, quhairby thay war all slayne be the enemy; and for the quhilk, be counfall of warr holdin thairefter at Innernes, he wes schot, standing on his feit, bot not at ane post. Thair wes reknit to be slayne heir at this bloodie battell above 2000 men to Hurry, and about sum 24 gentilmen hurt to Montrois, and sum few Irislis killit, which is miraculous, and onlie foughten with Godis awin finger, as wold appeir, so mony to be murderit and eut doune upone the ane fyde and so few on the uther; yit no thankis givin to God for this victorie. It is to be confidderit, that Montrois, his capitainis, and foldiouris wan this victorie with gryt gloir of armis; and the lord Gordoun, the viscount of Oboyne, thair name and folloueris, fought so valiauntlie, that he deservit eternall prais. Mony of Hurryis commanderis with the rest wes killit and takin priffoneris; of whome the laird of Laeris, Sir John Morray, Sir Gedion Morray wes killit; ten or tuelf priffoneris taken, of whome Laeris brother callit Campbell is ane; 16 cullouris takin, with thair hail baggage and ammuition, and much money and ritches found. The horfemen indeid fled firft, and left thair foot fighting couragiouflie to the death. Thay poftit to Innernes who wes weill horffit ; utheris wes killit in thair fleing. Hurry, Seafort, Sudderland, Findlater, the lairds of Boyne, Innes, Birkinbog, and the reft wan faillie away.

Efter this gryte victorie Montrois directis to burn the laird of Caddell (Campbellis) landis and houfis in Narne, and plunderit his haill goodis. The erll of Morray being in England his ground wes plunderit. Kinftery and Lethenis landis plunderit, and divers utheris landis in the countrie. And upon Sunday at evin the 11 of May he cumis to Elgyne to his fupper. He fendis out parteis and burnis the toun of Garmochie pertening to the laird of Innes, and plunders the freiris of Elgin, bot being churche building wold not burne the famen, becaus his fone gave ordour to kill James Gordoun of Rynn timer. Walter Smithis hous, John Millis hous, Mr. Johne Douglas hous of Morrefloun, Alexander Douglas hous, all in Elgyne, war brunt, becaus thair wes fum of thame felkis and fum of thair fones at the killing of the faid James Gordoun. And ficlike the bigging of Spynn timer pertening to the faid Alexander Douglas in heritage wes brynt. And findrie uther tonnes houfis of Elgyne, throw occafion of this fyre, took fyre and wes brynt, fic as Robert Gibbonis hous, George Donaldfonis and George Sutherlandis houfis. The houfis pertening to Mr. Johne Hay proveft, and Mr. Gawin Douglas efcaipit fyre be compositioun. The Bifchopis Milne and Milntoun pertening to major Sutherlandis wyf in lifrent wes brunt, for being airt and part of the faid James Gordoun's death. The laird of Pluffeardynes hous in Elgin plunderit. This done, upon Monunday the 12 of May, Montrois directis the baggage, armes, ammuition, and all the goodis over Spey to the Bog ; and, upone Wedinfday thairefter, him felf marchis to the faid place : bot ftayit not thair, bot gois to Birkinbog, a mane covenantar, quhair he and fum fpéciallis ar quarterit. The reft of his army he directis throw the countrie upon quarteris. He fendis ane pairtie and burnes wp the toun of Cullen, quhilk wes plunderit abefoir. And fic landis of Frenchracht as wes left onbrunt befor are now brunt wp. Thair wes fum foldiouris quarterit alfo in Banf.

Alnaies Leith of Harthill cam fra the camp to the Gareochie with fum foldiouris ; and, heiring that Cragiwar had maifterfullie takin George Gordoun of Rynn timer [at his] owne hand, he takis Johne and Mr. Alexander Farqu[hars, cu]nges to Cragiwar, and keipis them faft in Harthill whill the faid George Gordoun wes fet to libertie. Harthill burnes the toun and landis of Thombeg occupeit be Williame Forbes, bot pertening in heritage to the laird of Monymusk, becaus the said Williame Forbes had plunderit from his ser- vand sum moneyis with his baggage hors; thairefter maus and fortefeis his awin hous of Harthill for his awin defens.

Ye have, that generall livenmand Baillie wes lying in Cromar. The lord of Balcarras with his hors regiment cam thair with tua regimentis of reid cottis. Bot for all the thundering out of pulpites to caus the countrie rys with Baillie, thay lay still and wold not follow him.

In the meintyme Baillie getis fure advertifement of Hurryis gryte overthrow at Olderne; and thairfoir, upone Mouonday the 19 of May, he listis his camp out of Cromar, and with all haift merchis to the wod of Coklaroquhy, within tuo myllis to Strathbogie. As he is lying thair, Sir Johne Hurry cumis fra Innernes, croffis Spey, gois throw the marques of Montrois watches, faying, he wes the lord Gordoun's man, and fairlie wan away by them to Frendracht, and thairfra past to Coklaroquhy, quhair Baillie wes lying.

Montrois, lying at Birkinbog, getis haiftie advertifement that Baillie wes cum upone Wedinfday the 21 of May within tuo myllis of Strathbogie. He thairfoir schortlie drawis wp his army, and that famen nicht cam to Strath- bogie, and in the enemyis sicht began to cast ditches and mak fortificationis about the yairdis of the Place and Rawis; whiche maid the enemy to think Montrois wes not to depart schortlie out of that boundis. Quhairin thay war nichtellie deceavit; for how sone the nicht fell mark, Montrois directit sum horsmen to be still in sicht of the enemy when day licht cam, and how sone thay spyit his army gone, then with all speid to follow efter him. Montrois, haveing givin this ordour, upone the famen Wedinfday at nicht he marchis quyetlie wp the fouth fyd of the river of Spey; and his horsmen, when thay saw day licht, follouit thame scharplic without fkaith, and so thay merchit cloillie altogidder away. Baillie lying in the wod of Coklaroquhy and Hurry with him seing Montrois cast ditches and fortificationis never luikit of so suddant a marche. Generall Livetennant Baillie resolves to follow him, and upone Thuirfday 22 May listis from Coklaroquhy, and the lord Crichtoun being in the reir brynt wp the Rawis of Strathbogie; whair [I will cease for a whyle. Creightoun burnt Tullish also.

Upone Wedenfday 14 May about 10 hours at evin, ther was sein in New Abirdein a fearfull fyre and lightning comeing in cloudes of fyre as it were athwart the peoples faces to their great fear. It would be sein in ane streitt whiche they thought had fett the housis on fyre, which made the people to run to it; then it would appear in ane other freitt, which made the people to run to it, crying and trembling. The night wes clear but weitt or thunder, and it continowed for the space of ane hour; syne at God's pleafure it evanished to the great joy of the people. Ther wes somewhat fein in the Old town, but not efter fuch fearfull maner. The like of this fyre and lightening was never fein here, fuppose it is ufwall in hotter countreis. Some judged the fame to proceed from naturall] caufis; utheris feirit it to [be ane prodigious token] for Abirdene.

About this tyme, thair chanceit ane Dundie boit to land at Buky. Scho is rypit and letteris found direct fra the Estaitis to the erllis of Seafort, Sutherland, the lairdis of Balnagoun and utheris, defyring them to stand to the good caufe, affuring them of help; as indeid Baillie cam.

Upon Sunday the 18 of May, Mr. Androw Cant and Mr. John Rew (new cum fra thair flicht to Abirdene) warnit out of thair pulpites, as it wes done heir and [elsewher, all noble men, barrones, gentlemen, frieholders and heretors, to be on horfe and foot in thair best armes; and upon Tuedfday nixt to goe meitt Livetennant Major Baillie quhairever he was, without designation of any other place, vnder the paine to be punished as diffaffected to the good caufe. The people wondered at this foolish charge, being upon fo short advertifement and not knowing wher to feik Baillie; quhich made them give no obedience. And Patrick Leslie, that famen night about ten hours at evin, rode throw the Old town, about 20 horfe, to his sone's mariage with Phillorthe's daughter, which he preferred to that charge, albeit he wes ane arch covenantar.

About this time, ane servant called Small, whom Montrose had sent to the king with letters, was taken;] his letters with him self had to Edinbrughe. Efter reiding quhairof he is takin and hangit be command of the Estaites upone the calsey of Edinbrughe. Severe justice aganes ane berar. For the quhilk Williame Nicoll post wes hangit moir justlie.

The fessioun be found of trumpet at the cros of Edinbrughe ordanit to fit down there the 3 of June; but yit no fessioun in respect of thir troubles.

The pest brokin wp vehementlie both in Edinbrughe and Leith. Divers houffis cloisfit wp, many fleing the toune; and thair Committee [courtis of kirk and Parliament to be removed out of Edinbrughe to Stirling, Linlithgow, or Glasgou. It fat down in Stirling and came to Saint Johnstoun.

Ye heard befor, how Harthill had brynt Thombeg, and taken the Farquhars, whom he took to receive George Gordon of Reynnie that Craigiewar had takin before; wherupon he and the Farquhars were sett to libertie.

yet some issued out and fell upon his reir, and did some skaith, and returned back to the place againe saiff and sound. Baillie marches forward, and, upon the thrid of June, came to the Newtoun of Garioch, wher he incamped, destroying the countrie and eating the grein growing cornes to the very clod.

Upon Wedensday the 4 June, Baillie comes from the camp lying in the Gareauch, accompanied with the lord Crichtoun and some six horse to New Abirdein. But first he visited the Old toun colledge in the bygoeing about hours; syne rode to the New toun. And that samen night ther came in Lauthean's souldiers which were left unkilld or taken at Old Erne, wher they stayed in Abirdein whyle they were firyed out of it, as after ye shall hear. Baillie lights at skipper Anderfons's house, sends for Mr. Robert Farquhar proveft, and Patrick Leslie late proveft, the baillies, Mr. Andrew Cant and Mr. John Rew ministers. He demands the town to lift and raise 20,000 punds of money and 400 bolls of victuall for mentinance of his army, because there was no cefs imposed upon the shyre of Abirdein, wherof the town of Abirdein should pay the thrid; and therfor desired them with their thrid to lift and advance the tuo part and make up all, upon securitie to gett releiff of the shyre pro tanto. Wherunto the proveft answered, It was weill knowen that the town of Abirdein at all times and occasiones was greivously burdened and borne down with the like charges, and that they were now become altogether unable to obey his desire. And with this ansuer they take their leive, leaving their ministers sitting with them and givinge their wicked councill doubtles against the town. Baillie stayed about two hours in the town, and rode back the same night with Crichtoun to the camp. Sie moir of this taxatioun.]
