INTRODUCTION.

This work is vastly more comprehensive in its scope than was intended at the commencement of its preparation. The stream has been traced to its fountain, the river to its source, and the Allison's to their homes in Scotland of many centuries ago. There, among its moors, its mountains, and its glens, they have lived till the present, while collateral lines of this ancient stock, about whom lingers the love of the freedom of Scotland's mountains, struck out into other lands, have enlarged and become strong, numerous, prosperous, and vigorous. The Allison's have won homes and reputations not only in Scotland, but in England, Ireland, Australia, South America, Canada, and in nearly every state of the great American commonwealth, the United States.

A fascination, deep and abiding, clings to the ancient home of the family at Loupe, Argyleshire, and at Cairnduff, Avondale, Lanarkshire, Scotland. The matter relating to those homes and to those lines of the family are of preëminent value and absorbing interest. By the publication of this volume all of this information and history is permanently preserved.

The Allison family, taken as a whole, is strong and intellectual. In the Fatherland some of its members were martyrs for the "Solemn League and Covenant," and elsewhere contended, even unto death, for religious freedom, while others continued the struggle in Ireland, and later crossed the ocean and maintained the finally successful battle on American soil.

This family has loved church and state and learning. They helped found a government of, and for, and by the people. There have been many college graduates. The name Allison is found frequently in the catalogues of both European and American universities. Lawyers, physicians, ministers of the Gospel, senators, and other men high in the civil or military service of the state are among those of this stock.

This is mentioned, not in a spirit of unwise laudation of a family but as a historical fact, and that in the future, when those of other generations shall read this and see that their predecessors and relatives, who will then belong to "a buried generation," loved the school, the church, the state, it may stimulate them to higher deeds, influence them to nobler lives.

This work was undertaken to gratify my own curiosity to know all the accessible facts relating to the origin, history, and life and death of my ancestor, Charter Samuel Allison, of Scotch blood, of Londonderry, New Hampshire, together with that of his widely scattered descendants. The place selected for his abode in the New World became widely noted as the home of a stalwart people.

There is no locality, in New Hampshire, whose early local history has so deep an interest, or about which clings so much of fascination, as that of the original township of Londonderry, embracing the present towns of Windham, Derry, Londonderry, and a part of Hudson and Salem. Not that its soil was fertile, or that dormant riches lay in ground, forest, rock, or waters, for in none of these was the secret of its strong hold on the minds and in the hearts of antiquarians, scholars, and the general public. It was in a higher source, in an element of greater value, power, and influence, than in any or in all of these combined. It was in the inhabitants themselves. The first settlers were a peculiar people, and they, or their fathers, were twice exiles; first, from Scotland, their Fatherland, to the "green fields of Erin," which at Londonderry and the Boyne water they helped to save to King William and Protestantism in 1688-'89; second, to the wilderness wilds of Londonderry, N. H., in 1719. They were of Scotch blood, some of them were of Scotch birth, some were "accidentally born" in Ireland. Strong and rugged in their mental characteristics, having great courage and tenacity of purpose, they were valiant colonists of a frontier, capable of subduing a wilderness, of founding and building a state, and leaving the impress of their willing hands, strong minds, and valiant deeds, in the settlement they founded, the state they benefited, and in illustrious descendants who have worthily filled the higher positions in the community, the state, and the nation. Sixteen men with their families composed the advance guard of the infant colony. In 1718 they came from the north of Ireland, part if not all from the parish of Aghadowey, county of Londonderry, some eight miles from Coleraine, and forty miles from the city of Londonderry. Samuel Allison, previously mentioned, was one of that stalwart company.

This work, as such labor always does, fascinated me. It expanded greatly. In my investigations other important, equally large, and equally respectable branches of Alisons or Allisons were found, their history and genealogy procured. This includes the lines of Allisons in Orange and Rockland counties, New York, with those numerous ones in

HISTORY OF THE ALISONS.

CHAPTER I.

VARIOUS THEORIES.—TRUE ORIGIN OF THE NAME OF THE SCOTCH ALLISONS.—ITS ORTHOGRAPHY.—MOST FREQUENT SCOTTISH NAMES. OLD DIVISIONS OF SCOTLAND AND ENGLAND.—THOMAS CARLYLE'S STATEMENT.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME OF ALLISON.

Robert Ferguson, M. P., F. S. A., and F. S. A. Scotland, in his "Surnames as a Science," London: 1883, pp. 204-206, is Women's Names, "Alice, Alicia, Eliza, Adeliza, Alison. Alice properly a man's name, and Eliza its proper feminine."

He derives these names from Anglo-Saxon Adelgis (masculine) and Adalgisa (feminine), whence come Aliza, Eliza, but not Eizabeth (the Latin form), the Hebrew form being Elischeba.

He cites for this the Liber Vitæ of Durham, "in which we can trace the changes that have taken place in Adalgisa since the first noble lady of that name laid her gift upon the altar. First we find it contracted into Adeliza, and then, from about the twelfth century, into Aaliza and Aliza, the latter name being henceforward rather a common one. The former of these two contracted forms, Adeliza, though not a name in common use, is one still given to the daughters of certain of our noble families; the latter form, Aliza, I take to be the origin of our Eliza. (The initial vowel is of no account, the ancient name beginning indifferently with A or E, and Alice in some families appearing as Ellice)."

"About the beginning of the fifteenth century another Christian name for women, Alison, begins to make its appearance in the Liber Vitæ. This name, however, I take to be from an entirely different origin. There is an old Frankish woman's name, Alesinda, Elesind, Alesint, of the eighth century, from which, dropping the final d, it would naturally come, and which is derived from Grimm from Gothic Alja, Alius (in the probable sense of stranger or foreigner), and Sind in the sense of companion or attendant."

From the foregoing, if the theories of Mr. Ferguson are correct, it cannot but strike the reader with what exceeding ease (the initial vowel being of "no account") the same name could be written Alison, Elison, Allison, Ellison.

Charles W. Bardsley, M. A., in his choice work, "Our English Surnames, their Sources and Significations," London, cites these instances:

Alan (v. Allen) Alan fil. Warin.
 Alanson (v. Allinson), William Alynson, Thomas Allason.
 Alison, Ric. fil. Alise, A. Goselin fil. Alice, A.
 Alisceon de Tuxforth, W. 2. Alison Gelyot, H.

These with other instances are cited.

In the text he says,—“Out of many forms to be found in every early roll, those of ‘Ellis,’ ‘Elys,’ ‘Elice,’ ‘Ellice,’ ‘Elyas,’ ‘Helyas,’ and the diminutive ‘Eliot,’ or ‘Elliot,’ seem to have been the most familiar. Numberless are the surnames sprung from it. It is thus that we get our ‘Ellises’ and ‘Ellices,’ our ‘Ellsons’ and ‘Ellisons,’ our ‘Elkins’ and ‘Elkinsons,’ our ‘Elcocks’ and ‘Ellecocks,’ and our ‘Ellicots,’ ‘Elliots,’ and ‘Elliotsons.’ In the North ‘Alis’ seems to have gained the supremacy. Thus it is we have our many ‘Allisons’ or ‘Alisons.’” In a note he says,—“We cannot but believe, however, that in many instances these two are but the offspring of ‘Alice,’ at this period one of the most popular of female names. Nor must we forget that Allison was itself used as a personal name, that being the Norman-French pet name of Alise, after the fashion of Marion, Louison, Beaton,” &c.

We are all acquainted with the “Alison” of the “Canterbury Tales,”—

“This Alison answered; Who is there
 That knocketh so? I warrant him a thefe.”

And again he says,—“With regard to ‘Alis’ and ‘Elis,’ and Alison and Elison recorded in the text, I may remind the reader that A and E were all but convertible names with the Normans.”

Judge Nathaniel Holmes, of Cambridge, Mass., who has given the subject attention, says,—“I have little doubt that this use of A and E is a mere variation in the spelling consequent upon a difference of pronunciation. Further, I am inclined to think that the two names 'Allan,' 'Allenson,' Allinson, Allison, 'Ellis,' 'Alice,' 'Ellison,' 'Elison,' and perhaps 'Alison,' arose in two or more different places, among distinct and unrelated families, though originating as surnames in the same manner, viz., by adding son to the former Christian or 'personal' name, as Allen'son, Alan'son, and Alice's or Ellis'son. This is shown in the instances cited by Mr. Bardsley, Ric-fil. Alise, Goselin fil. Alice. So, also, in Allanson (v. Allinson) we have Brien fil. Alan, as also Allen'sson, perhaps, whence probably Alanson, Allinson, Alynson, Allason, Allison."

Henry Brougham Guppy, M. B., Edinburgh, F. R. S. E., F. R., Scottish Geographical Soc., &c., London, 1890, says in his "Homes of Family Names in Great Britain," that "Allen, —from Alan, a common personal name at the time of the Norman Conquest. Widely distributed, but excepting Northumberland, rare in the Northern counties beyond the Humber and the Mersey, and infrequent also in the four south-western counties of England; and the principal centres of the name seem at present to be in Derbyshire, Hants, Leicestershire, Rutlandshire, Lincolnshire, and Suffolk. Allan is a frequent form across the Scottish borders, and is especially characteristic of the south of Scotland; it extends into Northumberland, where Allen also occurs." Page 23.

The derivation of the name might be thus: Allen, Allenson, Allinson, Allison. He says,—“Allinson was a name well known in York (county) in the 17th century. William Allenson, draper, who received the honor of knighthood and represented that city in Parliament, was Lord Mayor of York in 1633 and 1655.”

Rev. Archibald Alison writes, Oct. 23, 1892: “In a ‘History of the Norman People and their Descendants in the British Dominions and the United States of America,’ published in London, 1874, the writer derives the Allisons from Bernard de Alencon, who held several Lordships from Herve de Bourges, Suffolk, in England. He alludes to a castle of this name, viz., Castle Alencon, which belonged to one of the sons of Alan, Duke of Brittany of the 8th century, a castle which is still to be seen, although now in ruins. The origin of these Allisons shows that they are Allansons, or sons of Alan. These Allisons are quite different from those of Avondale, Scotland, for the Allisons there were originally Allisters or Alexanders of Loupe, Scotland.”

THE TRUE ORIGIN OF THE NAME OF THE SCOTCH ALISONS OR ALLISONS.

The studied and plausible theories of different and able writers, as expressed in the preceding pages, in relation to the origin of the name Alison, are interesting and instructive to the student and general reader. But while fascinating, they fail utterly in giving the correct origin of the Scotch Alison name, as will be shown at length in a following chapter on the Allisons of Scotland. It is a fact beyond doubt that Alison comes from Alister, or Alexander, and that the Alisons are off-shoots of the famous clan of MacAlister. (See chapter III.)

The following is from Rev. Archibald Alison, of Prestwick, Scotland :

MEANING AND ORIGIN OF THE NAME ALISON.

“ There are some who maintain that almost all the roots of the Celtic and Saxon Languages are from the Hebrew. These are inclined to believe that this is the case with the name Alison. Deriving it from the Hebrew, then it signifies ‘ Son of my God.’ But there are others who take a different view, and maintain that the name merely signifies ‘ Son of Alex.’ Among the Highlanders of Scotland it has been common from very ancient times to denominate the descendants of any noted chief by the prefix ‘ Mac,’ a prefix which signifies ‘ Son.’ Hence we read of the McDonalds or descendants of Donald, the McArthurs or descendants of Arthur, and McAlisters or descendants of Alister. On the other hand, amid the Lowlanders of Scotland, it has been common to use an affix instead of a prefix to denominate the descendants of any chief. Hence we have the Donaldsons or descendants of Donald, the Williamsons or descendants of William, and the Cuthbertsons or descendants of Cuthbert.

This we think is the origin of the Alisons or descendants of Alister.

In ancient times, among the Scotch Highlanders, it was customary to have only one name. We read, for example, of Somerled, the king of the isles, of Dugald of Lorn, and of Alexander of Loupe. And who was Dugald but the chief of the Macdougalds, and who was Alexander but the chief of the McAlisters? Here it may be mentioned that Alister is the same with Alexander; and in the history of the Highland clans the one name is often given in the room of the other. Indeed, the name of Alexander is frequently mentioned as Ales, Aless, Alles, Alex, Alick, Alister, Alistaer, and even the Scotch Elshender is the same. Hales in Germany is the same also. Alison, therefore, signifies Alleson or Alexson, in the same way as Allanson signifies the son of Allan, a name which is of Norman origin, and sometimes found in England, but not much in Scotland."

ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME ALISON, ALLISON.

The names Alison, Allison, Alinson, Allinson, and of Elison, Ellison, Elissen, Ellissen, Ellysen, are found thus spelled in the early history of some branches of the present Allison family. They are interchangeably mixed. The name was often spelled Ellison, and Allison, when referring to the same individual. Allison seems to have been more acceptable, and the descendants of some of the early Ellisons now write their name Allison.

In ancient records names were often spelled phonetically, or according to their sound, and also, according to the taste, knowledge, or lack of knowledge of the writer. It has been found spelled Allison, Alison, Aleson, Alleson, Alason, Allason, Allisone, besides in the manner previously given. Alison seems to be the earlier form adopted, and the more correct orthography.

In a letter from Rev. Archibald Alison, of Prestwick, Scotland, dated August 11, 1892, he says,—“The spelling of Alison differs in various families that are nearly related. We have it Alison, Allison, Ellison, Allason, and even Allanson, but the last among none of our relatives.”

EARLY PROMINENT ALLISONS.

Robert Allison was member of Parliament from Jedburgh, Scotland, in 1585, and his supposed father, William Allison, was a representative in Parliament in 1542.

THE ARMS.

The armorial bearings, as given by William Allison, of Bowmanville, Can. (for which I will not vouch), are a demi-god with a drawn sword on the crest, with the words encircled, “Ready aye Ready.”

MOST FREQUENT SCOTTISH NAMES.

In the list of homes of English and Welsh names is the following, given by Henry B. Guppy: "Allinson, Allison, Durham, 20; Yorkshire, North and East Riding, 25."

"Ellison, Lancashire, 13; Wiltshire, 22; Yorkshire, West Riding, 10."

In his list of most frequent Scottish names, "Allan 32, most characteristic of Southern Scotland." The foregoing numbers represent the frequency of occurrence in every ten thousand of the population in all Scotland; in England the numbers represent the relative frequency of occurrence in the several counties in each ten thousand of the population.

OLD DIVISIONS OF SCOTLAND AND ENGLAND.

"Up to the 10th century, Scotland, as we know it, was divided into three parts: North of the Forth and the Clyde lay a hostile and foreign land, the abode of the Picts and Scots under an independent prince. South of these boundaries were the kingdoms of Cumbria and Northumbria, the former including a part of the ancient kingdom of Strath-Clyde, extending from the Clyde to the Morecombe Bay, and including the whole south-west of the present Scotland, with Cumberland and Westmoreland, the latter extending from the Forth to the Humber, and including the south-east quarter of the present Scotland, with Northumberland, Durham, Yorkshire (Eng.). We observe, therefore, that in these early times there was a middle or neutral region between the English and the Scots, a region which was for the most part claimed by the Southern king, more particularly Northumbria, which was English in its speech and laws. In the 10th or 11th century Scotland acknowledged the English supremacy, and in return received Cumbria in fief as well as Lothian, that part of Northumbria between the Forth and the Tweed, though it is said by some that this last was held by right of conquest. But Lothian remained English in laws, language, and manners. And the result of the cession was the great extension of the English influence. The strength of the Scottish kings lay in the English part of their dominions. Lothian, once on the border land, now became the centre of Scotland, and Edinburgh, its capital, became the northern focus of the Anglo-Norman civilization.

"In the latter part of the 12th century Cumbria was divided, England receiving the present shires of Cumberland and Westmoreland. Since that time the boundary between the kingdoms has experienced but little change."

THE TRUE SCOTLAND.

Again, Mr. Guppy says,—“But the broad fact we have to deal with is this, that true Scotland, as indicated by the names, begins at the Forth and the Clyde. South of these limits, and extending across the English border as far as Yorkshire and Lancashire, lies a ‘middle land,’ neither purely English nor purely Scottish, and possessing its characteristic names, of which the most frequent are those terminating in son, and the names of the border tribes. In this ‘middle land,’ throug the Wilsons, the Thompsons and Thomsons, the Johnsons and Johnstons, the Gibsons, the Bells, the Grahams, the Elliots and Elliotts, the Turnbells, the Robsons, the Richardsons, the Blairs, the Crawfords, the Dunlaps, the Douglasses, the Armstrongs, the Findlays, and many others. The explanation of the origin of this middle or neutral region between England and Scotland is to be found in the history of the changes which have affected the boundaries between these two nations.”

Upon this matter Judge Nathaniel Holmes, of Cambridge, Mass., says,—“Dr. Guppy does not notice that the earlier history of the races shows that this region of Scotland was occupied by the Anglo-Saxons and Danish invasions as far north as the Forth and the Clyde, at about the same dates as the north, east, and south-east parts of England were. This history, beginning with the 10th century, does indeed explain much, but it is not all, nor quite enough. First, the Roman dominion of the time of Agricola, in Britain, extended to the Forth and the Clyde, or, at least, the conquest of Roman armies; and, second, the Anglo-Saxon and Danish invasions and settlements in their time, about the 5th or 6th century, occupied that region, as they did the north of England. This fact, of course, and the succession of descent, may help to explain the identity of names in some measure, as well as the identity of race, with Anglo-Saxon England. But it is true that surnames did not come much into use anywhere in Great Britain till about the year A. D. 1000. It helps to explain how it was that, prior to the 10th century, English rule or English claim reached to the Forth and the Clyde. The Lowland people are, of course, in the main, Anglo-Saxon and Norman in race as well as in language. They are not Celtic.”

THOMAS CARLYLE'S STATEMENT.

A letter of Thomas Carlyle, on July 19, 1841, in Reid's Life of Milnes (Lord Houghton), London, 1891, Vol. I, page 265, to R. M. Milnes, gives an account of his visit to Tyne-mouth, and says that he "admired the rugged energy of that population, and how completely Annandale Scotch they are. From the Humber to the Forth, still more from the Tyne to the Forth, I find no real distinction at all, except what John Knox introduced; it is all Scotch—Scotch in features and face, in character, in dialect and speech. You, too, if you behave yourselves, shall be accounted Scotch! They are all Danes, these people; stalwart Normans, terrible sea-kings; are now terrible drainers of morasses, terrible spinners of yarn, coal borers, removers of mountains; a people terrible from the beginning. The windy Celts of Galloway, you see, not many miles from this, in the edge of Nithesdale."

The foregoing in relation to the derivation, significance, and orthography of the Allison name, together with the copious extracts from the admirable work of Henry Brougham Guppy, and quotations from other able writers, taken in connection with the following chapter—"The Scotch-Irish: Who Were They?"—shows conclusively the blood to which the Scotch Allisons belonged who lived in Scotland, then in Ireland and England, and later in America. They were Scotch always, and of the Anglo-Saxon-Norman race.

So many of these Allisons originated in Scotland, then emigrated to the province of Ulster in Ireland, and removed later to the United States and Canada, that it is appropriate that a fuller account of their origin, blood, and race should be given in order to correct misapprehension in relation to the term Scotch-Irish. It is applied to a people wholly of Scotch blood. Important facts are included in the following chapter, "The Scotch-Irish: Who Were They?"

CHAPTER II.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH—WHO WERE THEY?<sup>1</sup>

Many centuries had passed in the building of the Scottish as in the building of the English nation; in each, different peoples helped to make the completed nation, and in blood they were substantially the same. The blending of these races in Scotland, and the sharp stamping of religious and political ideas, had developed and made the Scotch race a distinctive and sharply defined people; in their intellectual, mental, and moral characteristics different from all others a century before, and as we find them at the time of their settlement in the Emerald Isle. Thus they have still remained since their settlement in Ireland. They were Scotch in all their characteristics, though dwelling upon Irish soil. This fact has given rise to the supposition by some and the assertion by others—to whom the wish was father to the statement—that in the veins of the Scotch-Irish flowed commingled the blood of the stalwart Scotch and the blood of the Celtic-Irish. Never was mistake greater.

Hon. Charles H. Bell, ex-governor of New Hampshire, in his eloquent address at the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the Londonderry (N. H.) Colony, in 1869, said of the term "Scotch-Irish": "It is not inappropriate, as descriptive of their origin and prior abode, though it has given rise to not a little misapprehension. It has been supposed by some writers that the name denotes a mixed nationality of Scotch and Irish descent; and in order to adapt the facts to their theory, they have fancied that they could detect in the Londonderry settlers the traits derived from each ancestry. But history fails to bear out the ingenious hypothesis; for it is certain that there was no mixture of blood in the little band who cast their fortunes here; they were of Scottish lineage, pure and simple."

The Scotch-Irish were people of Scottish lineage who dwelt upon Irish soil.

The locality about Coleraine, Aghadowey, and Crockendolge, and in fact in many places in the province of Ulster, Ireland, is inhabited by people almost wholly of Scotch origin. They are the "Scotch-Irish," i. e., Scotch people living upon or born upon Irish soil, but not mixed with the native people. Their ancestors, some of them, came to Ireland nearly two hundred and fifty years ago. They came in a body, they kept in a body, and they remain in a body, or class by themselves, largely to-day. The Scotch are called clannish, and were clannish; and the Scotch who settled in Ireland, and their descendants, were clannish. They stuck together, and kept aloof from the native Celtic-Irish. They were sundered by the sharp dividing lines of religious faith and by keen differences of race.

Macaulay says: "They sprang from different stocks. They spoke different languages. They had different national characters, as strongly opposed as any two national characters in Europe. They were in widely different stages of civilization. Between two such populations there could be little sympathy, and centuries of calamities and wrongs had generated a strong antipathy. The relation in which the minority stood to the majority resembled the relation in which the followers of William the Conqueror stood to the Saxon churls, or the relation in which the followers of Cortez stood to the Indians of Mexico. The appellation of Irish was then given exclusively to the Celts, and to those families which, though not of Celtic origin, had in the course of ages degenerated into Celtic manners. These people, probably about a million in number, had, with few exceptions, adhered to the Church of Rome. Among them resided about two hundred thousand colonists, proud of their Saxon blood and of their Protestant faith."<sup>1</sup>

And again, in speaking of the early Scotch and English settlers, he says: "One half of the settlers belonged to the Established Church and the other half were Dissenters. But in Ireland Scot and Southron were strongly bound together by their common Saxon origin; Churchman and Presbyterian were strongly bound together by their common Protestantism. All the colonists had a common language and a common pecuniary interest. They were surrounded by common enemies, and could be safe only by means of common precautions and exertions."<sup>1</sup>

In speaking of the differences between the races, he says: "Much, however, must still have been left to the healing influence of time. The native race would still have had to learn from the colonists industry and forethought, the arts of civilized life, and the language of England. There could not be equality between men who lived in houses and men who lived in sties; between men who were fed on bread and men who were fed on potatoes; between men who spoke the noble tongue of great philosophers and poets and men who, with perverted pride, boasted that they could not writhe their mouths into chattering such a jargon as that in which the 'Advancement of Learning' and the 'Paradise Lost' were written."<sup>1</sup>

And again, speaking of Scotland, from which the Scotch of Ireland came, he says: "The population of Scotland, with the exception of the Celtic tribes, which were thinly scattered over the Hebrides and over the mountainous shires, was of the same blood with the population of England, and spoke a tongue which did not differ from the purest English more than the dialects of Somersetshire and Lancashire differ from each other."<sup>1</sup>

Such being the relative condition of the two classes, as eloquently described by the great English historian, it is the height of absurdity to claim that the blood of the distinct races was commingled except in isolated cases. They did not commingle. The Scotch, planted upon Irish soil, were Scotch still, and the Irish were Irish still. The Scotch took their language with them, and the dialect of the Lowlands fell upon the startled air and disturbed the mists arising from the peat-fields of the Emerald Isle. Their dialect lived in Ireland, was transplanted to American shores, and in all the New Hampshire and American settlements was understood and spoken for more than a hundred years after their settlement upon American soil. Letters were written in it; and many poems by Robert Dinsmoor, "The Rustic Bard," in a printed volume, are written in the Lowland-Scotch dialect.

Though it has now almost entirely disappeared, being supplanted by the purer English tongue, yet I have heard the rich brogue in the Scotch settlement in New Hampshire, and in the older Scotch settlements in Ireland, and know numerous families in New Hampshire, of Scotch blood, who since their coming to these shores one hundred and seventy-five years ago have not intermarried save with people of the same race, and they are of as pure Scotch blood and descent as can be found in the Fatherland. The sterling traits of character of the Scotch in Ireland, their frugality, tenacity of purpose, indomitable will, must ever be an honor to their character. Their glorious achievements upon American soil will ever add lustre to their name, and the mighty men produced of this race in all parts of the American Union will give enduring fame to that Scotch race, pure and unmixed, which, through great tribulation, passed in mighty phalanxes from Scotland to Ireland, there recruited its strength, and then swept across the stormy Atlantic into the American wilderness, subdued forests, founded mighty states, and has been foremost in the onward march of civilization. They are proud to stand alone. Scotch in blood, living or born upon Ireland's soil, the honor is theirs, and theirs alone, and none can deprive them of their glorious fame!

Rev. John S. MacIntosh, D. D., in an eloquent historical address at the Scotch-Irish Congress, at Columbia, Tenn.,<sup>1</sup> in 1889, says of the Scotch and the Scotch-Irish:

"Peculiar and royal race; yes, that indeed is our race! I shrink not from magnifying my house and blood with a deep thanksgiving to that Almighty God who himself made us to differ, and sent His great messenger to fit us for our earth-task,—task as peculiar and royal as is the race itself. I shame me not because of the Lowland thistle and the Ulster gorse, of the Covenanter's banner or the Ulsterman's pike. If we be not the very peculiar people, we Scotch-Irish are a most peculiar people, who have ever left our own broad, distinct mark wherever we have come, and have it in us still to do the same, even our critics being judges. To-day we stand out sharply distinguished in a score of points from English, Dutch, German, and Swede. We have our distinctive marks, and, like ourselves, they are strong and stubborn. Years change them not, seas wash them not out, varying hopes alter them not, clash and contact with new forms of life and fresh forces of society blur them not. Every one knows the almost laughably dogged persistency of the family likeness in us Scotch-Irish all the world over. Go where you may, know it once, then you know it—aye, feel it—forever. The typical face, the typical modes of thought, the typical habits of work, tough faiths, unyielding grit, granitic hardness, close-mouthed self-repression, clear, firm speech when the truth is to be told, God-fearing honesty, loyalty to friendship, defiant of death, conscience and knee-bending only to God—these are our marks. And they meet and greet you on the hills of Tennessee and Georgia; you may trace them down the valleys of Virginia and Pennsylvania; cross the prairies of the West and the savannahs of the South, you may plow the seas to refind them in the western bays of Sligo, and beneath the beetling rocks of Donegal; thence you may follow them to the maiden walls of Derry, and among the winding banks of the silvery Bann; onward you may trace them to the rolling hills of Down, and the busy shores of Antrim; and sailing over the narrow lough, you will face them in our forefathers' collier homes and gray keeps of Galloway and Dumfries, of the Ayrshire hills and the Grampian slopes.

“These racial marks are birth-marks, and birth-marks are indelible. And well for us and the world is it that they are indelible. They are great soul-features, these marks. They are principles. The principles are the same everywhere; and these principles are of four classes,—religious, moral, intellectual, and political.”

The Rev. John S. MacIntosh says again, in his eloquent, and almost classical, address on “The Making of the Ulsterman,” at the second congress of “The Scotch-Irish in America,” held in Pittsburg, Penn., in May and June, 1890:

“In this study I have drawn very largely upon the labors of two friends of former years,—Dr. William D. Killen of the Assembly's college, one of the most learned and accurate of historians, and the Rev. George Hill, once librarian of Queen's college, Belfast, Ireland, than whom never was there more ardent student of old annals and reliable antiquarians; but more largely still have I drawn on my own personal watch and study of this Ulster-folk in their homes, their markets, and their churches. From Derry to Down I have lived with them. Every town, village, and hamlet from the Causeway to Carlingford is familiar to me. Knowing the Lowlander and the Scotch-Irish of this land, I have studied the Ulsterman, and his story of rights and wrongs, and that eagerly, for years. I speak that which I have seen, and testify what I have heard from their own lips, read from old family books, church records, and many a tombstone in Kirkyards."

The Scotch settlers in Ulster were a picked class, as he proves from official and state papers. In a letter of Sir Arthur Chichester, deputy for Ireland, he says: "The Scotchmen came with better port (i. e., manifest character), they are better accompanied and attended than even the English settlers. Just as to these western shores came the stronger souls, the more daring and select, so to Ulster from the best parts of Lower Scotland came the picked men to be Britain's favored colonists."

Speaking of the race conflicts between the Scotch and native Irish, he says: "But these proud and haughty strangers, with their high heads and new ways, were held as aliens and harried from the beginning by 'the wild Irish.' The scorn of the Scot was met by the curse of the Celt."

And again: "It has been said that the Ulster settlers mingled and married with the Irish Celt. The Ulsterman did not mingle with the Celt." Great care was taken by the government that the Ulster colonists should be so settled that they "may not mix nor intermarry" with the native Celts.

Dr. MacIntosh says again; "The Ulster settlers mingled freely with the English Puritans and with the refugee Huguenots; but so far as my search of state papers, old manuscripts, examination of old parish registers, and years of personal talk with, and study of, Ulster-folk, the Scots did not mingle to any appreciable extent with the natives. . . . With all its dark sides, as well as light, the fact remains that Ulsterman and Celt were aliens and foes. . . . It is useless for Prendergast, Gilbert, and others to deny the massacres of 1641. Reid and Hickson and Froude, the evidence sworn to before the Long Parliament, and the memories of the people, prove the dark facts. . . . In both Lowlander and Ulsterman is the same strong racial pride, the same hauteur and self-assertion, the same self-reliance, the same close mouth, and the same firm will,—'The stiff heart for the steek brae.' They are both of the very Scotch, Scotch. To this very hour, in the remoter and more unchanged parts of Antrim and Down, the country-folk will tell you: ‘We’re no Eerish, but Scoatch.’ All their folklore, all their tales, their traditions, their songs, their poetry, their heroes and heroines, and their home-speech, is of the oldest Lowland types and times.”

In continuation of this subject, I will say, that in the Scotch settlements of New Hampshire, after a residence of one hundred and seventy-five years, there are families of as pure Scotch lineage as can be found in the Scotch settlements of Ireland or in the interior of the Scottish Lowlands. In no instance since their coming to America have they intermarried with any save those of Scottish blood.

They retain in a marked degree the mental characteristics of the race; there are the same lofty adherence to principle, the same pride of race, the same tenacity of purpose, the same manifestations of unbending and inflexible will-power and devotion to duty, as were shown by their forefathers at the “Siege of Derry,” or by their Covenanting ancestors, who, among the moors, the glens, and the cold mountains of Scotland, amid sufferings numberless, upheld loftily the banner of the Cross, while some sealed their deathless devotion to the faith of their souls by sacrificing the bright red blood of their hearts.

In my veins flows, equally commingled, the blood of Scot and Puritan; but I speak what I do know, and declare, with all the force and emphasis which language is capable of expressing, that after many years of careful historical and genealogical research, relating to Scotch-American families; after tracing them from America to the Emerald Isle, thence across the narrow belt of sea to the Fatherland, Scotland; that only in exceptional cases has there been an intermixture by marriage of the Scot with the Irish Celt.

I am somewhat familiar with the Scotch settlements in Ulster, have met and talked and am acquainted with many of her people of Scotch descent, and they declare with particular emphasis that the mixture of Scot and Irish Celt has been of the slightest kind.

The love of Scotchmen, and the descendants of Scotchmen, in Ulster and elsewhere for the Fatherland and its history is phenomenal, and in America has existed for generations. It is as sweet, as strong, and enduring as that of Burns for the object of his affections as expressed in the following lines, and which all of our race can apply to Scotland:

“An’ I will love thee still, my dear,
Till a’ the seas gang dry.

“Till a’ the seas gang dry, my dear,
And the rocks melt wi’ the sun;
I will love thee still, my dear,
While the sands of life shall run.”

CHAPTER III.

THE ALISONS OF SCOTLAND AND AUSTRALIA.

The family of Alison is of very old date (583 years) in the parish of Avondale, county of Lanark, Scotland, where they live in 1893.

“Macalister, the name of a clan that inhabited the South of Knapdale and the North of Kintyre in Argyleshire. They are traced to Alister or Alexander, a son of Angus Mor, of the clan Donald. Exposed to the encroachments of the Campbells, their principal possessions became, ere long, absorbed by different branches of that powerful clan; clan badge, the five-leafed heather. The chief of this sept of the Macdonalds is Somerville Macalester of Loupe in Kintyre and Kennox in Ayrshire. In 1805, Charles Somerville Macalester, Esq., of Loupe, assumed the name and arms of Somerville in addition to his own, in right of his wife, Janet Somerville, inheritrix of the entailed estate of Kennox, whom he had married in 1792.”<sup>1</sup>

The Highland name of the Alisons was Alester, or McAlester, and was changed into the Lowland name Alison when this branch of the family was driven from Loupe, near Oban, in Argyleshire by the followers of King Robert the Bruce.

“From their descent from Alexander (Macalester), eldest son of Angus Mor, Lord of the Isles and Kintyre in 1284, the grandson of Somerled, the thane of Argyle, the Macalesters claim to be the representatives, after MacDonell, of Glengarry, of the ancient lords of the Isles, as heirs male of Donald, grandson of Somerled.”<sup>1</sup>

Alexander MacAlister, of Loupe, last mentioned, took the side of Baliol, the competitor for the Scottish throne, and was attacked by King Robert the Bruce in his chief Castle Sweyn in Knapdale. This was not a great distance from Oban. He was overcome, compelled to flee, was taken prisoner on his way to Ayrshire, was confined in the Dundonald Castle, where he died in 1309. This castle is in parish of Dundonald, Ayrshire, four miles from Prestwick, four miles from Kilmarnock, and seven from Ayr. His two sons and a few of their followers escaped to Sir Winter de Hamelton, the ancestor of the dukes of this name, who also at first took the side of Baliol. To preserve them from the wrath of the followers of Bruce, Sir Winter de Hamelton placed them in a moorish district in the parish of Avondale, in Lanarkshire, with Cairnduff as their central home, and changed their name from the Highland Alister to the Lowland Alison. This was in 1310, or the Allisons were in Cairnduff in that year. The estate of Cairnduff was then the property of John Hamilton, a relative of the Hamilton family; so that the MacAlesters, or Alisons, were placed on that portion of the estate that required to be reclaimed from the moors and waste lands around. There they have continued for 583 years, and at the present day a great many of the farms or small estates in that neighborhood are owned by Alisons, and the wilderness has now become to a great extent a fruitful field.

The original estate of Loupe, near Oban, was confiscated and given to the crown, but was later conferred upon Alexander MacAlister's younger brother, Angus Oig, who remained faithful to Bruce. There the clan has retained the ancient name of McAlester to the present day, and the chief of the clan is now Lieutenant-colonel Charles Somerville MacAlister, of Kennox, in Ayrshire. Some of the descendants of Alexander MacAlister, of Loupe, who died in Dundonald Castle in 1309, are still to be found in Ayrshire.

When King Robert the Bruce landed in Ayrshire he drank of a well in Prestwick, which is called "Prince's Well" at the present day, and was greatly recovered of a cutaneous disease like to leprosy, of which, however, he ultimately died.

The very ruins of the Prestwick hospital for lepers are still to be seen. In consequence of his betterness, he conferred freedoms on all the families that were in Prestwick. Freedoms which originally consisted of sixteen acres of land. Hence, in the old charter conferred by King Robert the Bruce, various of the thirty-six freemen were of the name of Alison, doubtless followers of their master, who died in Dundonald Castle, which is nigh at hand.

It is even maintained that a large portion of the lands in the south of Ayr was given to this clan; but in consequence of the commotions of those eventful times, those lands have long since passed into the possession of the well-known family of Kennedy, of whom the Marquis of Ailsa is chief.

It was John MacAlister, the second son of Alexander MacAlister, of Loupe, that was placed with a few of his followers in the estate of Cairnduff in Avondale. For a considerable time there we have no authentic history on which to depend to continue our account of the Alisons of Cairnduff; but, according to the traditions of the family, the estate was owned by a John Alison and an Alexander Alison almost alternately; the Johns being named after the Johns of the Isles, their ancestors, and the Alexanders after their great progenitor, Alexander MacAlister of Loupe. But, although history is silent for a little, yet again during the eventful times of Charles the First, the Alisons of Cairnduff gradually came into historical notice.

THE PARISH OF AVONDALE OR STRATHAVEN—THE ORIGINAL HOME OF THE ALISONS IN 1310.

My informant says,—“The parish of Avondale is situated in the Middle Ward of Lanarkshire. Its greatest length is fourteen miles and its greatest breadth is eight miles. It is nearly sixty-four square miles in extent, and contains about 32,000 acres. It is bounded by the following parishes, viz.: Kilbride, Glassford, Stonehouse, Lesmahagow, Muirkirk, London, Galston, and Sorn.”

In the days of Bruce and Baliol the Bairds were the most powerful family in Avondale, but, taking the side of Baliol, they were rooted out by the followers of Bruce.

After the Bairds, several ancient families succeeded in holding important positions in the parish, such as the Crawfords, the Sinclairs, the Stewarts, the Murrays, and the Douglasses; but gradually these have disappeared, and now the Hamilton family are the largest proprietors in the parish. There is perhaps, however, no district in Scotland where the land is divided more abundantly among its farmers, and these are called Lairds in Scotland.

During these early times of commotion, Avondale could boast of three lords called by this name. The first Lord Avondale was an Andrew Stewart, who married into the Hamelton family and became the Lord Chancellor of Scotland. The second Lord Avondale was his nephew, Sir Andrew Stewart, and the third Lord Avondale was his son Andrew. With him the title ceased, till it was revived in the name of the late heir to the British throne who was called the “Duke of Clarence and Avondale.”

THE ALISONS IN NEWTON OF AYR.

Near to Prestwick, is Newton, although it is now a part of Ayr Town, yet, in the day of Bruce and of Baliol it was a village containing forty-eight families. The well still known as Bruces well was at that time very much in the centre between Prestwick and Newton, so that Newton shared of the same privileges which Bruce conferred upon Prestwick. At the present day there are still forty-eight freedoms that were conferred upon the forty-eight families then resident in Newton. At that time there were several Alisons in this place, as well as in Prestwick, who had freedoms conferred upon them, evidently the followers also of Alexander of Loupe, who died in Dundonald Castle in 1309, a castle which is nigh at hand. But such are the changes that are constantly occurring in human society, that none are now left remaining; the only remembrance of the fact is the same name given to a street, a quarry, and a park in the village. The present inhabitants still remember Alison's Park and Alison's Quarry, although the park and the quarry have been gradually absorbed by that street which is still called by the name of Alison.

A recapitulation in tabular form is as follows:

Somerled (which is the same as the Gallic name Somhairle and the Hebrew name Samuel), Thane of Argyle and Lord of the Isles, married in 1135 a daughter of the King of Man, and had three sons; namely:

Dugald, who obtained possession of the islands of Mull, Coll, and Jura. From him are the McDugalds of Lorn or Argyle. He had a son Ewen, or John, but he died, and his isles went to his brother Ronald, or Reginald, the second son of Somerled.

Ronald, or Reginald, got Isla and Cantyre. He had two sons,—

Donald.

Roderic.

AngusMore got Bute and Arran. For his descendants, see the History of the Lords of the Isles.

Donald, son of Ronald or Reginald, and grandson of Somerled. From him are the McDonalds. He had a son,— AngusMore.

Roderick, son of Ronald or Reginald, and grandson of Somerled. From him are the McCroyses of Scottish history.

AngusMore, son of Donald, son of Ronald or Reginald, son of Somerled, had two sons,—

Alexander or Alistair, (see below.)

Angus. The latter in those troublous times remained faithful to Robert the Bruce, and on him were conferred the lands of his brother which were confiscated. He became the head of the MacAlisters, and his descendants are often mentioned in Scottish history.

<sup>1</sup> Allison and Alison are often employed by families nearly related as synonymous. In the Martyr's roll, Edinburgh, the name is spelled Alisone.

And to elaborate this subject more fully I will say,—

Alister, or Alexander of Loupe, the elder of the two sons of Angus More (Donald, Ronald or Reginald, Somerled), married a daughter of John or Ewen of Lorn, but joined the Lord of Lorn against Robert the Bruce. He surrendered to the king, and died a prisoner in Dundonald Castle, Ayrshire, in 1309. He had several sons. His second son, John Mac-Alister, with a few followers, fled to Sir Winter de Hamilton of Hamilton. He and they were placed in Cairnduff, Avondale, where his name was changed from the Highland Alister to the Lowland name Alison. He was settled in Cairnduff, Avondale, in 1310. Upon this estate one could have walked for five miles. From 1310 to 1630, or thereabouts, there is but little reliable information. But in the Covenanting times we find from published documents that there were Alisons on the farms previously mentioned, and the Alisons of Cairnduff gradually came into historical prominence. About 1630 these Alisons became greatly dispersed, caused by the persecutions of Charles the First, the intolerance of Archbishop Laud, the introduction of the English Liturgy into the Scottish Church, and the formation of the Solemn League and Covenant, with the attending consequences.

After James VI of Scotland fell heir to the English throne and was accepted as king under the title of James I, the Presbyterian Church became unpopular with the Royal Court. During his reign and that of the Charleses that succeeded him, the great design of Parliament was to abolish Presbyterianism in Scotland and establish Prelacy in its stead. By making the religions of England and Scotland the same they imagined that they would unite the two countries more closely together. So oppressively did they push this measure that a revolution took place and Cromwell seized the reins of government, and so conquered the Royalists that he was crowned as Protector of Great Britain. During the reign of the Charleses the whole Scottish nation was greatly moved, and was often on the brink of revolution. This was more especially the case in Avondale and many of the surrounding parishes. It was about 1630 that the Alisons of Cairnduff in Avondale were disturbed in their homes. It was then that the threatenings of Archbishop Laud and his coadjutors began to be realized. It was then that William and Michael Alison escaped to England and found their way to America, the land of the Pilgrim Fathers. It was then that Thomas Alison, when a mere youth, went to the sea as a sailor, and in 1645 sailed to America in the ship called Adventure.<sup>1</sup> It was then that Cairnduff, the original seat of the Alisons, passed from them to the Cochranes, Mungo Cochrane having married an Alison, the owner of the estate.

After the death of Cromwell, his son Richard succeeded, but soon after he was compelled to abdicate, and Charles II, who had fled to the continent, returned again in 1660. Then, if persecution existed before, it was increased ten fold now. The acts he soon after passed testify to the severity of his reign. By the Corporation act every individual who did not conform to the religion of the state was dismissed from his office, whether civil or sacred. By the Uniformity act 2,000 ministers in England and 400 in Scotland were ejected from their churches and condemned as rebels to the state. By the Conventicle act the Puritans of England and the Covenanters of Scotland were forbidden to assemble in the house or in the field under the penalty of death. Then it was that Claverhouse scoured the moors and mountains of Scotland, slaying with his sword or shooting with his gun all who refused to abjure the Covenant and take the oath of allegiance. These acts awakened a painful commotion in Avondale and surrounding parishes, where the adherents of the Solemn League and Covenant were numerous and powerful. It was in 1664 that a considerable number in Avondale, Kilbride, and Carmunock were banished from their parishes. Among these were James Alison and Archibald Alison, previously of Cairnduff. They refused to attend the Prelatic Church and otherwise aroused the indignation of the curates, hence they were expelled from the parish of Avondale. James Alison escaped to Renfrewshire, and became proprietor of a farm called Kerrs, in the parish of Lochwinnoch. This James Alison remained faithful to the Covenant in his new home. In reading Crookshank's "History of the Church of Scotland," we find this James Alison, along with forty others, compelled to walk through wind and snow to Stirling, where they were imprisoned. We find the very same parties sent to the Canongate prison, in Edinburgh, and after a mock

<sup>1</sup>Michael Alison and William Alison went to England to escape to America, that was then described as the "Land of Freedom."

The other brother that followed in 1645 was Thomas Alison. He was born about the time the others left Scotland; but he left America, went to Archangel, and there under the government of Russia commenced a voyage to explore the North Pole. His journal of every day was published in 1699. He describes his visit to the Northern seas, but ultimately he reached the 71st degree of north latitude. He had numerous Scotchmen for companions, and his voyage was finished in 1697. He was then an old man, and for thirty-eight years had followed the seas.

trial condemned and consigned to the prison in Dunottar Castle. After remaining there for a time, this James Alison returned to his home and farm in Kerrs of Lochwinnoch. He is supposed to be the ancestor of a considerable number of Alisons that still reside in Paisley, Langbank, and Mearns, in the county of Renfrew.

“The other Alison alluded to, and brother of James, was Archibald Alison. He, along with a few others, was banished to Elgin, whilst others were sent to Inverness and other northern counties. This Archibald Alison and his exiled companions did not cease to adhere to their adopted principles, for we find in Crookshank’s ‘History of the Church of Scotland’ that Bishop Ross, in whose diocese they lived, wrote Archbishop Sharpe of St. Andrews to the effect “that these Covenanting exiles expelled from the south were doing more harm in the north than they could possibly do in their own homes, and begged of him to recall them that they might spread the contagion no further.” It was a daughter of the same Archibald Alison, one Isabel Alison, that was seized at Perth, when residing at St. Johnston’s there, and was condemned and executed in the Grass Market of Edinburgh merely for conversing with rebels such as Donald Cargil and Hackston of Rathillet, and for adhering to the Solemn League and Covenant. Hence Archibald Alison of Windyedge, who was taken prisoner at Airmoss and suffered martyrdom the same year, was a cousin of Isabel Alison. And it is not a little remarkable to notice that in the Roll of Martyrs still kept in Edinburgh there are only four or five names between them. They were separated from each other in life because of their faithful adherence to Christ’s crown and covenant, but in death they were not separate, for they died at the same place, for the same cause, and in the same year; and now through union to the same Redeemer they are together before the throne, where there are neither curses nor crosses, sins nor sorrows, griefs nor graves, but where they have met to part no more.”

From Elgin, Archibald Alison is supposed to have come southward to Perth and afterward settled in Forfairshire.

But although there was a scattering of the Alisons of Cairnduff during these persecuting times, yet there was a gradual extension of them in the neighborhood around. For in the days of the Covenanters that soon followed, we find in historical reminiscences one in Goslington in the Parish of Lesmahagow, another in Muirhead, a farm in Avondale, County Lanark; a third in Crewburn, in Avondale; a fourth in Bent in Avondale; a fifth in Allarstocks, in Avondale; and some as far west as Cessnock, Cumnock, and Ochiltree, in Ayrshire; all of whom are mentioned as sufferers for their faithfulness to the Covenanting cause.

Even Cairnduff itself passed from Alison to Cochrane, because the female proprietor of the estate from 1620 to 1630 married Mungo Cochrane, a son of Cochrane of the Craig.<sup>1</sup> Cairnduff was then and is now divided into a great many farms, and in 1893 a Cochrane lives on one of them. The Cochrans of Cray and Brownside claim to be the oldest family in Avondale, and the name is still very common. The Cochranes and the Alisons of Avondale are well known to each other still, and have been for three hundred years.<sup>2</sup>

The history of the Alisons now becomes transferred from Cairnduff to Windyedge, which was one of the farms belonging to the original estate of Cairnduff. Windyedge, in Avondale. County Lanark included then the farms of Windyedge, Couplaw, Heuk, and Heuklaw, all of which in 1893 belong to Alisons, together with the farms of Muirhead, Letham, and Blackmoss. It was there that Sir Robert Hamilton, Balfour of Burleigh, Hackstone of Rathellet, Brownlee of Torfoot, and several others met after the victory of Drumeloy, to consult as to their future procedure. It was then that they resolved to continue the fortunes of war which ended in their sad discomfiture at the battle of Both-

<sup>2</sup> In tracing the history of the Alisons of Cairnduff, it is an interesting fact to notice their allied families. The Alisons came from the McAllisters, and are united by marriage with the Cochranes, the Morrisons, the Steeles, the Jamiesons: most of these families are reproduced in the Scotch settlement of Aghadowey, county of Londonderry, Ireland, and all are duplicated in the Scotch settlements of Londonderry, and Windham, New Hampshire, United States. We have seen that Michael Alison fled to Londonderry, Ireland, after the fight at Airmoss, Scotland, where he remained many years, and left several children. The family of McKeen, the Morrisons, and the Alisons, and others of Agadowey and adjacent parishes, settled there about the same time, and for the same cause, and later came to Londonderry, and Windham, N. H. In the latter settlements are the McAlisters with their kinsmen, the Alisons, with the Morrisons, the Cochranes, the Steeles, the Jamesons, and the Wilsons, with many of the Scotch families with the same christian names which are found in the Scotch settlements of Pennsylvania and in the states farther south, found also in the Scotch settlements in Ireland, and tracing them again across the narrow belt of sea to the fatherland, Scotland, we find them there in the old homes. All are of the same blood, with the same characteristics, and all are Scotch still. They are not yet weaned from "the land of brown heath and shaggy wood," although more than two centuries have passed since their ancestors fled from persecution there.

well Bridge. Annie Swan in one of her novels called "Adam Hepburn's Vow," alludes to Windyedge as their place of meeting, and in "Old Mortality," by Sir Walter Scott, we find that it was there that Graham of Claverhouse obtained refreshments as he fled from his defeat at Drumcloy, and received them, too, from a widow who had three sons engaged in the battle. In the account given of the engagement at Drumcloy, Archibald Alison is mentioned by name, the same that was seized as a prisoner at Airmoss, and suffered martyrdom at the Grass Market in Edinburgh, and whose dying testimony is recorded at great length in the volume called "The Cloud of Witnesses."

In a letter, dated Oct. 8, 1892, my informant says,—“I think almost all the Alisons of Scotland and Ireland are descendants of Cairnduff Alisons planted there in 1310.”

In Scott, it is Lord Evandale who is mentioned as the person who received refreshments, yet the traditions of the Alisons say it was Claverhouse, and although two of her sons are only said to have been at Drumcloy, yet three were with the Covenanters at the time, namely, John Alison banished to Virginia, Michael Alison of Londonderry, Ire., and Archibald Alison, the martyr.

On the farm of Kilwakening, owned by Matthew Alison, 1893, occurred some incidents connected with the Covenanting times, which are worthy of notice. On this farm was killed the horse of the notorious Claverhouse, and where he narrowly escaped. At the head of Capernaum Park there is a bush planted on the spot where a small cottage once stood called by this name. It is about a mile from the battlefield of Drumcloy, where Claverhouse retreated with his men. He was passing this little cottage where several of the Covenanters were standing, who, seeing Claverhouse, wounded his horse with a scythe, hoping thereby to capture the defeated persecutor, but the horse continued to run for two hundred yards, and fell at the garden of Kilwakening. Claverhouse instantly dismounted his trumpeter, and mounted his horse and continued his flight.

By Sir Walter Scott, the trumpeter is described as fleeing away on foot through the Gill and Beemoss, marshy places where cavalry could not go, but localities now drained and made fertile, though still known by these names. In endeavoring to join the retreating army of Claverhouse he came upon the Covenanting victors returning from the pursuit, and there near the house of Joseph Alison of Hillhead, in Avondale, Lanarkshire, he was killed and buried, while over his remains a heap of stones is still to be seen, and nigh to the grave there is a rich spring of water which is well known at the present day as "the Trumpeter's well."<sup>1</sup>

ARCHIBALD ALISON. It is believed by many that this Archibald Alison was the grandfather of another Alison who became a successful merchant in Edinburgh, and was elected Lord Provost of the city. From him an illustrious race of Alisons are descended, viz., the Rev. Dr. Alison, of Edinburgh, author of the well known treatise on "Taste;" and from the reverend author of "Taste" have sprung Dr. Alison, of Edinburgh, of medical fame, and Sheriff Alison, of Glasgow, the historian, whose son is the present General Sir Archibald Alison of Crimean renown. Although we cannot vouch for the correctness of this connection, yet here we add the following extract of that branch of the Alisons from the volume called the "Scottish Nation."

Alison is the name of a family possessing a baronetcy of the United Kingdom, conferred in 1852 on Sir Archibald Alison, LL. D., D. C. L., F. R. S. He was born at Kinley, Salop, on the 29th of December, 1792. His father, the Rev. Archibald Alison, author of "Essays on Taste," was a scion of the family of Alison of Newhall, in the parish of Kettens, in Forfarshire.

By the mother's side, he is descended lineally from Edward I and Robert the Bruce. Sir Archibald Alison was educated at the University of Edinburgh, and admitted an advocate in 1814. He was advocate depute from 1828 to 1830. He was appointed Sheriff of Lanarkshire in 1835. The following works issued from his pen:

Principles of the Criminal Law of Scotland, 1832.

Practice of the Criminal Law.

History of Europe, 20 volumes, published in 1833.

Essays Contributed to Blackwood's Magazine.

Principles of Population, 1840.

England in 1815 and 1845, or a Sufficient and Contracted Currency.

Life of the Duke of Marlborough, 1847.

Sir Archibald Alison married, in 1825, Elizabeth Glencairn, youngest daughter of Lieut. Col. Patrick Tytler, second son of William Tytler, Esq., of Woodhouselee.

Issue: Archibald Alison, born January 21, 1826. Lieutenant-colonel in the army; military secretary to Lord Clyde when commander-in-chief in India. Lost an arm at Lucknow, and has a medal and clasps for his services in the Crimea. (He is now General Sir Archibald Alison.)

Frederick Montague Alison, the second son of Sir Archibald Alison, was born May 11, 1835; is a captain in the army and aid-de-camp to the same commander.

His only daughter is Ellen Frances Catherine, married to Cutlar Ferguson of Craigdarroch.

Sir Archibald Alison's brother, William Pulteney Alison, M. D., LL. D., F. R. S., was professor of practice of physic in the University of Edinburgh and first physician to the Queen in Scotland. He retired from his chair in 1855 and died in 1859.

<sup>1</sup>"Man has sometimes been described as a child of circumstances. We see this truth verified very strikingly in the history of the McAllisters of Loupe, from whom the Alisons are descended. The estate of Loupe was confiscated by the crown, but was afterward restored to the younger brother. His descendants long continued to be chiefs of the McAllister clan, and some of them instead of espousing the Covenanting cause, fought on the side of Claverhouse at Killiecrankie and finally fell at the battle of the Boyne."

The following is also an extract from the "Scottish Nation," upon the Rev. Archibald Alison, D. D.:

The reverend author of "Essays on the Nature and Principles of Taste" was the second son of a magistrate of Edinburgh, and sometime lord provost of the city, where he was born in 1757.

In 1772 he went to the University of Glasgow, and afterwards became an exhibitor at Baliol college, Oxford, where he took the degrees of A. M. and LL. B. Entering into Holy Orders, he obtained the curacy of Brancepeth, county of Durham, and was subsequently made prebendary of Sarum. Having acquired the friendship of the late Sir William Pulteney, he was indebted to him for preferment in the church.

In 1784 he married, at Edinburgh, the eldest daughter of the celebrated Dr. John Gregory, by whom he had six children.

In 1800, on the invitation of Sir William Forbes, baronet, and the vestry of the Episcopal chapel, Cowgate, Edinburgh, he became senior minister of that place of worship. The congregation having removed to St. Paul's church, York place, in the same city, he continued to officiate there until a severe illness in 1831 compelled him to relinquish all public duties. He was one of the early Fellows of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and the intimate friend of many of its most distinguished members. He was also a Fellow of the Royal Society of London. His principal work, the "Essays on the Nature and Principles of Taste," published in 1790, has passed through several editions, and was translated into French. He died on the 17th of May, 1839. His works are,—

Essay on the Nature and Principles of Taste, 1790.

A Discourse on the Fast Day, 1809.

A Thanksgiving Sermon, 1814.

Sermons, chiefly on particular occasions, 1814.

Life and Writings of the Hon. Alexander Fraser Tytler, Lord Woodhouselee, 1818.

Rev. Alexander Alison, formerly of Philadelphia, Pa., now (1893) of Seattle, Wash., was from Fife, Scotland, where some of the Alisons of Cairnduff or vicinity went about 1630.

Rev. Dr. Alison, of Edinburgh, Scotland, and his brother, Arthur Alison, the advocate, are from Eagles Law, next parish to Avondale, and probable descendants of an early Alison who went to Paisley.

ALISONS OF AVONDALE, SCOTLAND.

1. James Alison<sup>1</sup> is the first ancestor of this immediate branch of the Alisons at Cairnduff, Avondale, county of Lanark, Scotland, whose Christian name is definitely known, after the family again emerged into historic prominence. The name of his father is not known, but it was probably John or Alexander Alison, as those Christian names seemed to alternately prevail during the long historical obscurity in which the Alisons rested.

James Alison was born at Cairnduff in 1621, and resided on the farm at Windyedge, where he died about 1670. He married Jean, daughter of Samuel Wilson, of Rigfoot, East Kilbride. She survived her husband, and it was from his cottage at Windyedge that the notorious Claverhouse, the persecutor of the Covenanters, received refreshments while on his flight, after his defeat at the battle of Drumcloy, in 1679. The date of his death is unknown.

CHILDREN BORN AT WINDYEDGE, SCOTLAND.

2. Jean Alison<sup>2</sup>, m. James Torrance. Res. at Deadwaters, parish of Lesmahagow, county of Lanark, Scotland.
3. John Alison<sup>2</sup> (7), b. 1652. He was one of the 1,200 prisoners taken at Bothwell Bridge, and was banished to Virginia. His sword is still in possession of relatives.
4. Michael Alison<sup>2</sup> (8), b. 1654, a sturdy Covenanter, was at the siege of Londonderry, Ireland.
5. Archibald Alison<sup>2</sup>, b. 1656, and suffered martyrdom at the Grassmarket, Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1680. He was in the battles of Drumcloy, Bothwell Bridge, and at Airsmoss battle was taken prisoner. His dying testimony is published at great length in "A Cloud of Witnesses," a book formerly, and now greatly, read in Scotland.
6. Margaret Alison<sup>2</sup>, m. James Steele. Res. Lesmahagow, county of Lanark, Scotland.

7. John Alison<sup>2</sup> [3] (James<sup>1</sup>). He was born, in 1652, at Windyedge, which was one of the farms belonging to the original estate of Cairnduff, in Avondale, county of Lanark, Scotland. With his two brothers, Michael and Archibald Alison, he was a stiff and zealous Covenanter, and fought at Bothwell Bridge, where the Covenanters were sorely defeated. He was one of the 1,200 prisoners taken; was tried at Edinburgh, and banished to Virginia in America. His name is recorded in the well known Porteous Roll, a roll which contained the names of the criminals who were imprisoned in those days, most of whom were pious Covenanters. After his term of exile came to an end, he joined the settlement of the Pilgrim Fathers in Massachusetts, and there was considerable communication between him and his friends in Avondale, for they were accustomed to hear that the heat in Virginia was so great that people could boil an egg upon the sand, and how, in New England, they had to climb trees to escape from the wild beasts; how they were caught in gin set for deer; how the Indians formed their houses by bending branches and matting them over like an arbor; how their graves were filled with bows and arrows and other instruments of warfare; and how they caused the forests to reëcho by the discharge of their muskets. These and many such reminiscences have been handed down from father to son among the relatives who remained in Scotland, to the present time. His sword is still in the possession of his relative, William Allison, of Hawbank, East Kilbride, near Strathavon, county of Lanark, Scotland.

If Mr. Alison left any descendants in America, they are unknown to the relatives in Scotland.

8. Michael Alison<sup>2</sup> [4] (James<sup>1</sup>). He was born at Win-

dyedge, Scotland, in 1654. This was a part of the original estate of Cairnduff, in Avondale, Lanarkshire, Scotland. Like his brothers and family, he was a zealous and enthusiastic Covenanter, and battled bravely for his religious faith. With his brothers, Archibald and John Alison, he was in the battles at Drumcloy, Bothwell Bridge, and at the skirmish at Airmoss, and participated in the siege of Londonderry, Ireland, in 1688-'89. At the skirmish at Airmoss, where his brother, Archibald Alison, was taken prisoner, he fled so quickly that he reached Port Patrick and crossed over to Ireland before the news of the disaster to the Covenanters reached the Irish shore. Although he was questioned severely by their enemies, yet he escaped suspicion, and resided many years in the neighborhood of Londonderry, and was present at the famous siege in 1688-'89.

He either leased or bought a farm near Londonderry, for there he married and had a large family. From 1681 to the Restoration in 1690, the lands of Windyedge, his old home, and many others, were forfeited in consequence of their proprietors joining in so-called treasonable rising of Bothwell Bridge. So long as this decree of the Lords of Justiciary remained, Michael Alison could not return to Windyedge, where his widowed mother was still living. At the Restoration, after the battle of the Boyne, he returned to Windyedge with four members of his family, and the other members of his large family of children remained in or near Londonderry. He seems to have gone back and forth considerably between his two homes, living a part of the time at Windyedge and sometimes in Londonderry. He died at Windyedge and was buried in the burying-place of the family in Strathavon church-yard, leaving his eldest son, James Alison, the laird of the farm. Michael Alison's wife was Elizabeth Cooper, and the initials of her name, E. C., were engraved into the lintel of the old house at Windyedge. Mr. Alison married his own cousin for his second wife, and had a large family.

The sword of Michael Alison, with which he fought at Drumcloy, Bothwell Bridge, Airmoss, and the siege of Londonderry, is still in existence, a precious memento, and is in the possession of Rev. George Alison, of Kilbarchan.

CHILDREN BY FIRST WIFE, ELIZABETH (COOPER) ALISON.

9. James Alison<sup>3</sup> (13), b. Londonderry, Ireland, in 1690; returned with his father to Windyedge, Scotland, where he resided. He m. Margaret Semple. He was called "Cooper" Alison and was well known in Avondale.

10. Alexander Alison<sup>3</sup> (18), b. near Londonderry, Ireland. He became laird of Letham, near Windyedge, Scotland.
11. John Alison<sup>3</sup> (23), b. at Windyedge, Scotland, in 1708; went to Foulpopple, London, Ayrshire, Scotland, in 1739.
12. William Alison<sup>3</sup> (27), b. at Windyedge, Scotland, in 1710; res. Dykehead, East Kilbride, county Lanark, Scotland. The latter place is near Cairnduff, Avondale, county Lanark, Scotland.

13. James Alison<sup>3</sup> [9], (Michael,<sup>2</sup> James<sup>1</sup>). He was born near Londonderry, Ireland, in 1689. He returned to Windyedge, Scotland, with his father, and married, in 1720, Margaret, daughter of William Semple, of Nethershields, Glassford Parish, Braehead, and Nettlehole, and became heir to these two last farms. The two latter places are names of farms in Avondale, county Lanark.

CHAPTER IV.

EARLY ALLISONS IN AMERICA.

Lawrence Allison was in Windsor, Conn., in 1643; was living in Deerfield, Mass., in 1704, at the age of 84 years; wife unknown; had child, Richard Allison.

James Allison was in Boston, Mass., in 1644. He had a wife, Christian. They had a son, James Allison, born Oct. 20, 1650, and John Allison, who died April 2, 1653.

James Allison, of Boston, Mass. (perhaps the same as the above, son of James), married, May 26, 1674, Elizabeth Vasey, of Braintree, Mass.

Richard Allison, or Ellison, was of Braintree, Mass. He had a wife, Thomasin. Record of their children as taken from the New England Historical Register, born Brantrey, Mass.:

Mary Ellison, daughter of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 15 : 6, 1646.

Hannah Ellison, daughter of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 24 : 5, 1648.

John Ellison, son of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 26 : 6, 1650.

Sarah Ellison, daughter of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 4 : 10, 1652.

Thomas Ellison, son of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 1 : 1, 1655.

Experience Ellison, daughter of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 2 : 6 mo, 1657.

Richard Ellison, son of Richard and Thomasin Allison, b. 7. 2m. 1660.

It will be noticed that in the ancient record the parents are called Allison, while the names of their children are spelled Ellison.

Thomas Allison in 1645 went to America in the ship Adventure, and located in Virginia,

J. Allison owned a warehouse in Charlestown, Mass. In 1657 his estate was sold by R. Arrington.

One Lawrence Allison (or Ellison) removed to Hampstead, N. Y., and died there in 1665. His sons, Richard, Thomas, and John, administered on his estate.

<sup>1</sup>In the parish records of Kingston-on-Thames, England, is an item of thirteen shillings, four pence, paid in 1603, to James Allison and four others, for carrying the armour at Coronation.—N. E. Historical Register, 1882.

Ralph Allison was of Scarborough, Me., in 1673, and was a great landholder.—Savage's Genealogical Dictionary.

Thomas Alison, on June 14, 1679, had tickets granted to him from Barbadoes, for Jamaica, in the ship Johns Adventure, Edward Winslow, commander.

Thomas Allison came from Windsor, Conn., and settled in Deerfield, Mass.; was constable in 1692; called shoemaker that year, and trader in 1711; sold his home lot there in 1711 to Rev. John Williams. Thomas Allison was an inhabitant of Colchester, Mass., in 1713,—perhaps the Thomas of Deerfield.

Joseph Allison was a resident of Southold, Long Island, N. Y., in 1721, and was in Goshen, N. Y., in 1726.

Thomas Allison, of Deerfield, Mass., lived at Wapping in 1710, and in his old age was cared for by the town.

John Allison, of Deerfield, Mass., 1698; married, Aug. 4, 1698, Alice, daughter of George Jeffries, who died Dec. 31, 1730, aged 61 years. No children in 1704. He was employed in 1712 to sweep the meeting-house.—Sheldon's History of Deerfield, Mass.

William Allison was of Windsor previous to 1700.

Samuel Allison came from the county of Londonderry, Ireland, to America in 1718, and to Londonderry, N. H., in 1719.

John Alliston, of Hartford, Conn., purchased land there of Samuel Graham in 1726.—Hinman's Settlers of Connecticut, 2d ed., pp. 47, 48.

Elizabeth Allison, Comfort Allison, and Ann Allison, spinsters, of Boston, Mass., nieces of Madame Susannah Thatcher, of Milton, Mass., late deceased, received certain sums left by her will, of Rev. Peter Thatcher, May 24, 1725.—Suffolk County, Mass., Records, Boston, Mass. On the same records Andrew Allison, or Ellison (spelled each way), deeded land May 22, 1733.

“Thomas Allison, of Southampton, in Great Britain, Gentleman, and Susannah, wife of the said Thomas Allison, heretofore Susannah Caswall,” and other heirs of Henry Caswall, late of Boston, Mass., sold property there July 24, 1749. Thomas Allison was late of London.—Suffolk County, Mass., Records.

ELLISON.

Under the name of Ellison appears the following, and it may have a material bearing upon the history of the Allison family:

From John C. Hotten's lists of emigrants to America, 1600-1700:

John Ellison, living at Anchor's Hope, James City, Virginia, came in the Prosperous in 1623. Ellen, his wife, came in the Charitie.

George Ellison, a child, died at Anchor's Hope, Virginia, in 1623.

William Ellison, servant, aged 44; at Elizabeth City, 1624; came in the Swan.

The first settlers of Virginia were largely of English descent.

From the Suffolk county, Mass., unpublished records: On Sept. 4, 1654, John Ellisonn gave a receipt to Robert Willis. On March 25, 1698, Mary Ellison and others sold property.

Those who spell this name Ellison appear to have come entirely from England. The larger part of those who spell their name Allison are from Scotland or the Scotch settlements in Ireland.

The names Ellison and Allison in America have been confused sometimes through the carelessness or ignorance of early transcribers, or by the choice of persons who bore them in later days. Some of those who spelled theirs Ellison have changed it to Allison. Never, to my knowledge, has a single Allison or his descendants changed the orthography of his name to Ellison.

CHAPTER V.

SAMUEL ALLISON, OF LONDONDERRY, N. H., AND HIS DESCENDANTS
FROM 1690 TO 1893, INCLUDING THOSE IN THE FAMILIES OF AT-WOOD, HOLMES, MCAFEE, MOORE, MORRISON, SHEPARD, STINSON, AND OTHER NAMES.

ALLISONS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

The ancient residents had heroic souls. They "conquered wood and savage, frost and flame, and made us what we are."

1. Samuel Allison,<sup>1</sup> of sturdy form and Presbyterian faith, was the progenitor of the Allison's of New Hampshire, the honored founder of their house. He was of Scotch blood, a descendant, and probably a son of one of those men and one of those women of heroic mould who fled from religious persecution in Covenanting times in Scotland, from the military and barbarous executions of Claverhouse, from other fierce and persecuting adherents of Catholicism and of the English Established Church, to the Plantation of Ulster in Ireland. These persecutions and the scattering of the Scotch Allison's are given in chapter 3, pp. 21-25. The speech of Mr. Allison, like that of "all his tribe," was the rich brogue of the Lowland Scotch dialect. His people took that with them from Scotland to Ireland, and he brought it to the new settlement in Londonderry, New Hampshire. He brought his Scotch traits of character with him,—frugality, industry, persistence, integrity, and elevation of sentiment and purpose. He was in the splendid strength of his young manhood when he settled in the Granite State. He was a member of a peerless company of emigrants who, with their descendants, helped to develop, mould, and fashion the laws and institutions of this state. All honor to that noble band!

Mr. Allison was born in 1690, probably in the parish of Aghadowey, county of Londonderry, Ireland, and in 1718 he with others accompanied Rev. James McGregor (who was pastor of that parish from 1701 to 1718) to America, and landed in Boston in August of 1718. In the succeeding April he with others went to Nutfield, now Londonderry, N. H., where he was one of the first sixteen settlers, and one of the original grantees of land, or those to whom the charter of the town was given June 22, 1722, so he is called Charter Samuel Allison, and many of the name in Vermont and Massachusetts, as well as nearly all in New Hampshire, are descended from him.

Fourteen of the settlers of Londonderry, of which he was one, received a grant of five hundred and ninety-four acres of land, bounding on Corbett's Pond, in the Range, in that portion of Londonderry which is now Windham, on May 22, 1728. This Amendment land, which fell to Mr. Allison, he sold to Alexander Park, the emigrant ancestor of the Park family of Windham, Oct. 8, 1734, and it is, in 1893, the homestead farm of George Franklin Armstrong.

In 1758 he and his only son signed a memorial asking the number of taverns to be restricted. His home farm was situated about one half mile south-east of the church on the hill in East Derry, N. H., and between the farms of two other emigrants, John Morison and Thomas Steele. It is, in 1893, included in the large and spacious farm of Col. George W. Lane. It was situated upon that elevated ridge and swell of land which can be seen from distant points. He married, in Ireland, Katherine Steele, presumably a sister of his neighbor, Thomas Steele, who had married Martha Morison, a sister of John and James Morison, his neighbors. Upon that high elevation, commanding a magnificent view of the country for miles around, for many years Mr. Allison and these allied families lived in the closest intimacy and neighborly communion. There he and his wife died. His will was made Aug. 15, 1760, he being then very sick, and proven Sept. 10, 1760. Fac-simile of his autograph as shown in his will:

The ancient cemetery on the hill in East Derry, near where the first church stood, is holy ground to descendants of the first settlers of Londonderry. Its memorial stones are very rich in historic and family lore. A few rods from the main entrance, on the north side of the principal walk and near thereto, Samuel Allison, and his wife, Katherine Steele, lie sleeping. Near them rest James and John Morison, Justice James McKean, David Steele, Rev. James McGregor, who were their friends, relatives, neighbors, and pastor, in two settlements in different hemispheres, in Aghadowey, Ireland, and Londonderry, New Hampshire. Over them is a dark slate stone tablet bearing this inscription :

"Here lies the bodys of Mr. Samuel Alison & Mrs. Katherine Alison his wife. He departed this life 6th Sept. AD. 1760, in ye 70th year of his age. She departed this life 13th Jany AD. 1760, in ye 77th year of her age."

CHILDREN.

2. Janet Allison<sup>2</sup> (6), b. probably in Aghadowey, Ireland, in 1712 or 1713; m. Samuel, son of John Morison, who d. in 1736; res. Londonderry, N. H., and d. Jan. 8, 1800, aged 87 years.
3. Rebecca Allison,<sup>2</sup> b. about 1717; m. Robert Gray. They apparently removed to Biddeford, county of York, Me. On Oct. 10, 1757, Robert and Rebecca Gray, of Biddeford, sold land in Londonderry, N. H., to James Paul, of Londonderry.<sup>1</sup>
4. Martha Allison<sup>2</sup> (15), b. Londonderry, N. H., March 31, 1720; m. Lieut. Samuel Morison, of Windham, N. H., and d. there Dec. 3, 1761, aged 41 years, 8 months, 4 days.
5. Samuel Allison<sup>2</sup> (21), b. in Londonderry, N. H., in 1722; m. Jennette, daughter of Andrew and Betty (Christy) McFarland; res. Londonderry, N. H., and d. June 5, 1792.

John Gray, of Londonderry, N. H., was one of the original proprietors. His home lot was in the English Range, near the west end of Beaver pond, and between the lots of Joseph Kidder and Benjamin Kidder. Some of his descendants are supposed to be in Worcester county, Mass.

There is a tradition in the New Hampshire family that there were three brothers of the name of Allison who landed in 1718. According to this authority, Samuel Allison located in Londonderry, N. H., while, later, his brothers went to Jamestown, Va. One of them went to Savannah, Ga., and there died childless. The other remained in Jamestown, Va., and is the ancestor of many of the Allison name in Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Ohio.

1. The memorial stones to Thomas Steele and his wife record that he d. Feb. 22, 1748, and that she d. Oct. 9, 1759, aged 73 years.
2. John Morison,<sup>2</sup> with his family, removed to Peterborough, N. H., in 1750 or 1751, and was one of its first settlers. He d. there June 14, 1776, aged 98 years. His wife, Margaret Wallace, d. April 18, 1769, aged 82 years.

Aghadowey is near Coleraine, and at the present time the Morrisons, the Steeles, and Allisons are living as neighbors.

15. Martha Allison<sup>2</sup> [4] (Samuel<sup>1</sup>). She was born on the home farm in Londonderry, N. H. (now Derry), March 31, 1720, and was the first female child of European extraction born in that town. She married Lieut. Samuel Morison<sup>3</sup> (son of James,<sup>2</sup> and grandson of John Morison<sup>1</sup>). He was born (in Aghadowey, Ireland, probably) in 1704; came to Londonderry, N. H., in 1719, and his early home was under the hill, on the farm owned by W. O. Noyes in 1893, and which was near the house of Martha Allison. They lived in Windham, on the Morison homestead now occupied by their great-grandson, where Mrs. Morison died in her comparative youth, Dec. 3, 1761. She was a person of good mind and many lovable qualities. Mr. Morison was a lieutenant in actual service at Fort Cumberland, Nova Scotia, in 1760; an elder in the church, the first moderator, and on the first board of selectmen of Windham in 1743. He died Feb. 11, 1776, aged 72 years. In the ancient burial-place, at the head of Windham Range, near where the first church stood, and overlooking the clear, bright, sparkling waters of Corbett's pond, he and his dearly-loved wife, Martha Allison, rest together. The old headstones were nearly covered with moss, and time had nearly obliterated the record upon them.

Albert A. Morrison, Esq., his great-grandson, who occupies the Morrison homestead in Windham, originated the plan of having a new monument erected to their memory, and was one of the efficient managers in carrying it into execution. So, on Dec. 19, 1892, the ancient headstones, which for more than a century had withstood the buffeting storms of winter and the blasting heat of summer, were taken out, and four stone posts, so as to be below the frost, were sunk into the ground four feet. Between them, and flat upon the ground, were placed the ancient stones, and covered with earth. On these firmly-planted posts was placed by their descendants a heavy, substantial monument of Concord granite. It was finished in the early part of 1893. On the base, in raised letters, is the name MORISON. Above is this inscription:

LIEUT. SAMUEL MORISON,

Born in 1704;

Died in Windham, Feb. 11, 1776.

An inhabitant of two hemispheres, he became one of the Pioneers and Founders of Windham. A citizen of two governments;—a lieutenant in the French and Indian War, he was faithful to his king; on the abolition of Royal authority, he became an adherent of Popular Government. An elder in the Presbyterian church, he was a loyal subject of the King of kings.

MARTHA ALLISON,

His beloved wife, is here buried by his side. She was born March 31, 1720, being the first female child of European extraction born in Londonderry, N. H. She died Dec. 3, 1761.

They rest together till the day of the great awakening.

(On the reverse side.)

“I am the resurrection and the life.”

Erected 1893.

H., in 1719, with her father's family. She m. Samuel Morison,<sup>2</sup> son by a late marriage, of John Morison<sup>1</sup> and Janet Steele, the patriarchal ancestor of the Morisons of Peterborough, the Morrisons of Windham, and many of the Morrisons of Derry and Londonderry, N. H., and Londonderry, Nova Scotia. This Samuel Morison was a half uncle of Lieut. Samuel Morison of Windham, who m.

Martha Alison, the sister of the subject of this sketch. Samuel Morison<sup>2</sup> was b., probably, in the parish of Aghadowey, Ireland (from which came Rev. James McGregor, and a portion of his flock, who settled in Londonderry, N. H.), in 1719, and came with his father previous to 1723 (but not in 1719) and settled on the farm which had been deeded to their "honored father," John Morison,<sup>1</sup> by Charter James Morison,<sup>2</sup> ancestor of the Morrisons of Windham, and Charter John Morison,<sup>2</sup> ancestor of the Morisons of Peterborough, N. H., and of Londonderry, Nova Scotia. On this farm, Samuel Morison<sup>2</sup> and his wife, Janet Allison, spent their lives. It is an exceedingly pleasant farm and locality, in Derry (Dock), N. H., owned by Charles Day. They lived to a rare old age, she dying Jan. 8, 1800, at 87 yrs. He d. June 21, 1802, at 92 yrs.

21. Capt. Samuel Allison<sup>2</sup> [5], Samuel<sup>1</sup>. He was born in Londonderry, N. H., in 1722; married Janet, daughter of Andrew and Betty (Christy) McFarland.<sup>1</sup> She was born in

<sup>1</sup> Andrew and Betty (Christy) McFarland fled from the troubles in Scotland to Londonderry (county or city), Ireland, and emigrated later to America, landing at Boston, Mass., probably between 1718 and 1722, where they were married. She is said to have been very beautiful, and those of her descendants who possess that charming quality, attribute it

Rowley, Mass., in 1724; d. Oct. 16, 1809, in Weathersfield, Vt. (at the home of her son, James Allison, where she lived the latter part of her life), at 85 years, and is buried there; there is no stone at Weathersfield to mark her grave. Captain Allison died in Londonderry, June 5, 1792. He succeeded his father upon the home farm near Derry, East Village, and was prominent and active in town affairs; was intelligent and intellectual, and one of the best extempore speakers reared in that town. In their town meeting he was sure to be pitted against Jonathan Morison, an equally fluent speaker and ready talker. After one of their wordy encounters, when Morison had been rather worsted in the intellectual combat, he turned to Allison with the pithy remark, spoken in his rich Scotch brogue, "Ye are a braw speaker, but ye dinna tell the truth." When a young man of twenty two years, on July 3, 1744, he was one of the "Londonderry troopers" in Capt. John Mitchell's company raised for defence against the French and Indians; he served again in August, 1745. He served on the board of selectmen 1752, '53, '54, '55, '56, '57, 58, and '75, and was a signer of the Association Test in 1776, and was appointed coroner for Rockingham county in the latter year. His name appears as a legacy from her. They removed to Rowley, Mass., and it is supposed that at a later date they settled in Londonderry, N. H. Their son, Andrew McFarland, b. 1734, d. 1754, and is buried near the tablets of the Allisons, in the old cemetery on the hill, at East Derry. Major Moses McFarland, with his wife, left their home in Londonderry, N. H., before 1769, and lived in Haverhill, Mass., and it is thought kept a tavern there. Their children, Robert McFarland, Nancy McFarland, Katherine McFarland, were left in charge of the home in Londonderry. Eunice McFarland, daughter of Major Moses McFarland, married in 1787 at eighteen years of age, and lived in Cambridge, Vt. She was the grandmother of Mrs. James Little of Tottenville, Richmond county, N. Y., who, in February, 1893, had collected material relating to the McFarlands. The clan McFarland once occupied Loch Sloy, on the north-western shore of Loch Lomond, in Scotland, and were neighbors of the "Rob Roy" McGregors of its south-eastern shores.

The proprietors of Suncook, now Pembroke, N. H., chose, in 1748, Andrew McFarland one of a board of commissioners to settle certain claims of the town of Bow. It is probable that this Andrew is the same as the settler of Rowley and Londonderry.

Rev. Asa McFarland, D. D., of Concord, N. H., was son of James, of Worcester, Mass., who was a son of Andrew. About the time the Londonderry, N. H., settlers emigrated to America, Andrew was a member of the Scotch colony in Ulster, Ireland. (N. H. Hist. Col., vol. 1, p. 195.) It looks as though these three Andrews were one and the same person, but it is not proven.

upon several petitions. He was buried in the cemetery at East Derry, N. H., by the side of friends and kindred.

H.; became one of its first settlers, residing upon a farm a mile from the center of the said town, and said farm was owned in 1892 by John Ireland. Going there when a young man, he became thoroughly identified with the interests of the place and community. On March 14, 1775, he and several others entered their protest on the town book against the proceedings of a town meeting, believed by them to be illegal. When the Revolutionary war was calling for earnest effort on the part of the patriotic people, he was chosen, in 1777, one of a town's committee to hire soldiers for the war. He was interested in the religious matters of the town, and on May 26, 1789, he paid £7:2s for pew number 22, in the gallery of the meeting-house "to be built." He died, in the prime of life, Aug. 27, 1800, and is buried in the cemetery at Dunbarton. He was 51 years 4 months of age.

46. Janet Allison<sup>3</sup> [24], (Captain Samuel,<sup>2</sup> Samuel<sup>1</sup>). She was born in Londonderry, N. H., July 13, 1751. She married, about 1782, James Stinson, of Dunbarton, N. H., born March 21, 1745. He was of Scotch descent, and his language clearly indicated his descent "from the land of Wallace, Bruce, and the bonny Dundee." He was noted for his honesty, uprightness, and integrity. He was a farmer, and the farm which he cleared, and in which he delighted, witnessed his closing days. He died April 5, 1827. Mrs. Stinson located with her husband in Dunbarton about 1775, and survived him some sixteen years, and received a pension for his Revolutionary services, which were rendered under General Stark at the battle of Bunker Hill. She was a strong-minded and sensible woman, had a remarkably retentive memory, and her conversational powers were good. She retained her mind to the last of life, and died in Dunbarton, N. H., Dec. 10, 1843.

54. Andrew Allison<sup>3</sup> [25] (Captain Samuel,<sup>2</sup> Samuel<sup>1</sup>). He was born in what is now East Derry, N. H. (then Londonderry), on Feb. 26, 1754. He married, Feb. 5, 1784, Sarah, daughter of Dea. Eli and Sarah (Chenery) Morse, of Dublin, N. H. She was born in 1769, and died July 2, 1799. In 1783, he located in that town on lots Nos. 16 and 17, in the Sixth range, which had been purchased by his father, Samuel Allison. The home first established was on lot 16. Mr. Allison's second wife was Mrs. Betsey (Carter) Evans, of Peterborough, N. H., whom he married in October, 1802. In early life, in his father's home in Londonderry, Mr. Allison listened with delight to the stories and anecdotes told by Dr. Matthew Thornton, who was a visitor there, and he recounted them to his Dublin friends in the years of his mature life. He was large in size, fleet of foot, hot tempered, quick to take offence. In the town of his adoption he became a prominent actor, and frequently filled public positions; was moderator of the annual meetings in 1802 and 1810; town clerk in 1794, '95, '96, and '97, and selectman in 1795, 1802, 1803, and 1808; representative in 1808 and 1818. His death occurred in Dublin, May 28, 1841.

COL. ROBERT MOORE.

From Notes by Judge Nathaniel Holmes, Cambridge, Mass.

He was appointed lieutenant-colonel of Col. Samuel Hobart's second regiment of "Minute Men," being one of the "four regiments of Minute Men" that were formed out of the previous sixteen regiments of militia, on the 1st of September, 1775, and was taken out of "that of Colonel Bartlett," that "lately of Col. Matthew Thornton," that "lately of Colonel Lutwyche," and that "lately of Colonel Kidder," whereof Samuel Philbrick was first major and Timothy Farrar second major (N. H. Prov. Papers, vol. 7, p. 608). He is called Col. Robert Moore upon his gravestone at Derry, and died in 1778. He was the great-grandfather of the Hon. O. C. Moore, of Nashua, N. H., an ex-member of congress, and a brother of Elizabeth Moore, who married Nathaniel Holmes, 2d, of Londonderry, N. H. In 1777, on the death of his father, he removed to the farm of his parents, John and Janet Moore, who, in 1723 or 1724, came from county of Antrim, Ireland, and in 1727 or 1728 settled on the farm where they lived and died, the place more recently known as the "Jeness place," on the Chester road, a little northwest of Beaver pond, in the English Range, and now owned by Mr. C. W. True. (See History of Bedford, N. H., for partial account of this family.)

Mary Holmes, of Londonderry, married Joseph Morison<sup>2</sup> (son of John<sup>1</sup>), and they were the parents of Abraham Morison. She was, probably, the daughter of Abraham Holmes, of the West Parish, and thus perpetuated the Christian name of her father in that of her son.

Mary Holmes, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth

(Moore) Holmes, of Londonderry (their second child), married Abraham Morison, and was born about 1746.

They quitclaimed, in a deed, all interest in the estate of her "honored father, Nathaniel Holmes, deceased," to his eldest son, Lieut. John Holmes, who bought out all the heirs, and succeeded to the home farm. Date May 13, 1771, acknowledged and recorded in 1776 (Book 107, p. 398 of County Records). They had a son, Nathaniel, named for her father.

71. Kathreen Allison<sup>3</sup> [29] (Capt. Samuel,<sup>2</sup> Samuel<sup>1</sup>). She was born at Londonderry, N. H., April 1, 1762, and married, in 1785, Nathaniel Holmes,<sup>3</sup> of Peterborough, N. H., son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Moore) Holmes,<sup>2</sup> of Londonderry, grandson of Nathaniel and Jane (Hunter) Holmes,<sup>1</sup> of Coleraine, Ireland. This Nathaniel Holmes,<sup>1</sup> after the death of his wife in Ireland, emigrated in 1740 to the Scotch settlement in Londonderry, N. H., where so many of his Scotch neighbors and kindred had gone before, being accompanied by his four sons, Nathaniel,<sup>2</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> William,<sup>2</sup> and Andrew Holmes.<sup>2</sup> Traditions say that he left his eldest son, Nathaniel Holmes,<sup>2</sup> in Londonderry, while he and his other three sons (who were then minors) went to Carlisle, Penn., and settled, and where he probably died. The three sons lived and had families at Carlisle, Penn.

Dea. Nathaniel Holmes was born at Londonderry, N. H., Sept. 5, 1759, and died at Peterborough, N. H., Sept. 10, 1832.

sonage in his native town of Dunbarton, where the best years of his life were spent. He for many years kept a country store near the meeting-house; and, being a justice of the peace and post-master, he did a large part of the public business of the town. He also kept a hotel. He was town-clerk from 1819 to 1823, and from 1825 to 1832; select-man in 1822, 1823, 1825, 1826, 1830, and 1831, and represented Dunbarton in the legislature in 1827 and 1828. His home was a hospitable one. His memory was very retentive; his views were clear, and forcibly expressed; his mind was strong, as were his prejudices. He early espoused the temperance and anti-slavery causes, and upon the formation of the Republican party he forsook the Free Soil party and allied himself with its succeeding, and the successful, party of freedom, to which he ever after adhered. He was an attendant of the Congregational church.

ALLISONS, OR ELLISONS, OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

403. Mrs. Mary Allison (or probably Ellison), of Nottingham, N. H., died Jan. 17, 1859, in the 109th year of her age. She was born in Lee, N. H., May 20, 1750. She, at her death, had eight daughters living. The youngest was sixty years of age, three of them were over eighty years of age, and the eldest was in her eighty-sixth year. (N. E. Hist. Reg., 1859, vol. 13.)

404. Richard Allison (or Ellison), of New Hampshire, was arrested on suspicion of conspiring against the state during the War of the Revolution. On June 9, 1777, a committee of the General Assembly was chosen to investigate, and they reported in favor of sending him to jail for safe keeping. (N. H. Town Papers, vol. 8, p. 580.)

405. Joseph Allison enlisted April 26, 1781, for three years, or for the war, in the army of the Revolution.

405a. Ebenezer Allison, (or Ellison), of Deerfield, N. H., refused to sign the Association List, in 1776.

CHAPTER VI.

ALLISONS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The name Allison occurs quite frequently among the Scotch-Irish who settled in the south-western part of Chester county, Pennsylvania, from 1718 to 1740, at about the same dates as the emigrations from the same localities in the north of Ireland occurred to New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and to Maine. (See Futhey & Cope's Hist. of Chester Co., Penn.) The surnames, with the same Christian names of the early Scotch-blooded settlers in New Hampshire, were often duplicated at the same dates in the Scotch settlements in Pennsylvania, and among them are Allison, Park, Morrison, Cochran, Boyd, Dickey, McAllister, Stewart, Wilson, Mitchell, Steele, Campbell, and others. Nor is this strange when we remember "that as early as 1718 no less than five vessels of immigrants from the north of Ireland arrived on the coast of New England, but, forbidden to land at Boston by the intolerant Puritans, the immigrants moved up the Kennebec and there settled. The winter of 1718-'19 being one of unusual severity, the great majority of these settlers left the Kennebec and came overland into Pennsylvania, settling in Northampton county."—Letter of Wm. H. Egle, M. D., of Harrisburg, Penn., dated April 13, 1878. He is the author of the "Illustrated History of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania," published in 1876.

ALLISONS OF ALLEN TOWNSHIP, PENN.

406. James Allison, Sr., in 1780, lived in the Scotch-Irish settlement of Allen township, Northampton county, Penn., and was there taxed. He lived on the property owned a few years ago by Daniel Saegar. This settlement included Weaversville and the adjacent localities. In relation to this settlement, Rev. J. C. Clyde, D. D., in his "History of the Allen Township Presbyterian Church, Northampton County, Penn.," says, that "as early as 1717 [it was 1718] no less than five vessels of immigrants from the north of Ireland arrived on the coast of New England, but forbidden to land at Boston by the intolerant Puritans, the emigrants moved up the Kennebec and there settled. The winter of 1717-'18, being one of unusual severity, the great majority of these settlers left the Kennebec, and came overland into Pennsylvania, settling in Northampton county." (See p. 44, note to Samuel Allison, No. 1, of Londonderry, N. H.) It was at this very time that one portion of those emigrants went from the Kennebec, and founded the Scotch settlement of Londonderry, N. H.

In the Scotch settlement of Allen township were the following Allisons, all presumably the children of James Allison, Sr. Mr. Allison was a farmer.

REV. FRANCIS ALISON AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

414. Rev. Francis Alison, D. D., was perhaps the most influential person of this family name in Chester county at that early period. He was born in 1705, in the parish of Leck,<sup>1</sup> county of Donegal, Ireland; educated at the University at Glasgow, Scotland; emigrated to America in 1735; licensed as a Presbyterian minister in 1736 or 1737; installed over the church in New London, Chester county, May 25, 1736, and remained fifteen years; went to Philadelphia in 1752, took charge of the academy there, and became vice-provost of the college of Pennsylvania, afterwards University of Pennsylvania, on its establishment in 1755. He was professor of moral philosophy and assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Philadelphia, Penn. In 1756 the degree of A. M. was given him by Yale college, and in 1758 the degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Glasgow, Scotland. It is asserted that he was the

OTHER ALLISONS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Rev. James Allison, of Pittsburgh, Penn., in a personal letter, Dec. 17, 1890, says: "Part of the Allison family, to which I belong, went to Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, nearly one hundred and fifty years ago. Many of the descendants are still there (see sketch of Allisons of North Carolina, No. 579). Another part went to Virginia, and thence passed on into Indiana (see Allisons of Indiana, No. 463). One family of the part that went to North Carolina returned to Cecil county, Maryland, and afterwards removed to Washington county, Pennsylvania. One of its number (Hon. James Allison, No. 485), afterward going to Beaver county, Pennsylvania, served in the Eighteenth congress and was reëlected to the Nineteenth, but declined on account of ill-health. The late Hon. John Allison, register of the United States Treasury, was his son (see sketches of Hon. James Allison, and of his son, Hon. John Allison, No. 486). The father of Hon. William B. Allison, United States senator from Iowa, removed from the Cumberland valley, Pennsylvania, to Bellafonta, Pennsylvania, and then to the Western Reserve, Ohio, where William B. Allison was born (see sketch of Hon. William B. Allison, No. 489). One of my grandfather's brothers went from the Cumberland valley to Erie, Pennsylvania, where his descendants still live (James Allison and his descendants of Lake Pleasant, Erie county, Pennsylvania, may be of this family. See notice of them, No. 490). Another went to Butler; and my grandfather himself removed to the south side of the Monongahela river, near this city, in 1810, and afterward to a place ten miles north of this city, where he resided until his death."

460. James Allison<sup>4</sup> (James,<sup>3</sup> George,<sup>2</sup> — Allison<sup>1</sup>).<sup>1</sup> Rev. James Allison was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., September 27, 1823; married, August 6, 1851, Mary Jane, daughter of Robert Anderson, who was born in Lancaster county, Penn., and who lived in Washington, Washington county, and in Sewickley, Alleghany county, Penn. Mrs. Allison was born and died in the latter place. He married, second, November 6, 1855, Caroline, daughter of Hon. John M. Snowden. She was born in Pittsburgh, Penn. Mr. Allison graduated at Jefferson College, Penn., in the class of 1845, taking the first honor. He studied theology in the Western Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Penn. In 1848 he took charge of the Presbyterian church at Sewickley, Penn., fourteen miles from Pittsburgh, where he continued to be pastor until 1864. During his pastorate the church had grown to be the strongest in the county outside of Pittsburgh. In 1864 he resigned, and became editor and proprietor, in connection with the late Robert Patterson, of The Presbyterian Banner, at Pittsburgh, of which from 1856 to 1861 he had been one of the editors and proprietors. This paper was started in Chillicothe, Ohio, July 5, 1814,—one of the very first religious newspapers of its kind,—and is very widely circulated. Mr. Allison is its editor in 1891. He was one of the original signers of the memorial on the subject of the reunion between the old and new school Presbyterian churches in 1864, and was the author in 1868 of the platform by which the union was effected in 1869. Much of the time during the War of the Rebellion he was in the field with the Pennsylvania troops, though not a soldier. From 1865 to 1890 he served on the General Assembly's Board for Freedmen, acting as treasurer, without salary, from 1870 to 1889.

ALLISONS OF INDIANA—A BRANCH OF THE PENNSYLVANIA FAMILY.

The account of the Allison's as furnished by this family is that there were six brothers:

463. George Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in Iredell Co., N. C.
 464. William Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in Charlotte, N. C.
 465. John Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in North Carolina.
 466. Thomas Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in North Carolina; was a teacher.
 467. Robert Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in North Carolina; see sketch of North Carolina Allison's.
 468. James Allison,<sup>1</sup> (469) m. Miss Young; res. Donegal, Penn.

469. James Allison<sup>1</sup> (468). He settled in Donegal township, Penn., near where Harrisburg now stands. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church. He married Miss Young. He had three sons, and perhaps other children.

470. William Allison<sup>2</sup> (473). Settled near Staunton, Va.
 471. John Allison.<sup>2</sup> He was a colonel in the Revolution, it is said.
 472. James Allison.<sup>2</sup>

William Allison<sup>2</sup> [470] (James<sup>1</sup>). He left his father's home in township of Donegal, Penn., and settled near Staunton, Va. In the Revolutionary army he was a lieutenant, and was with General Washington in his retreat through New Jersey. After his settlement in Virginia he was for many years an elder in the Presbyterian church, for like most of the Allisons he was a pronounced adherent of that church.

gress from Pennsylvania, reëlected to 19th. After practising his profession for fifty years he died in June, 1854.

486. Hon. John Allison, son of the foregoing James Allison, was born in Pennsylvania Aug. 5, 1812. Studied law but never practiced. Was elected to the assembly of Pennsylvania in 1846-'47 and '49, and was a member of the 33d and 34th congresses, house of representatives, from Pennsylvania. He was appointed registrar of the treasury of the United States in 1869; and died while in office, March 23, 1873.

487. John Allison, his son, is living on a ranch in Montana. (See letter of Rev. James Allison, preceding No. 460.)

488. Hon. Robert Allison was born in Pennsylvania, and was a representative to congress from that state from 1831-'33. (From Charles Lanman's "Biographical Annals of the United States Government." The sketch of W. B. Allison is from Harper's Weekly, March 17, 1888).

489. Hon. William B. Allison,<sup>3</sup> United States senator from Iowa. He was born in Perry, Wayne county, Ohio, March 2, 1829, and is the son of John Allison,<sup>2</sup> who was born in Bellefonte (or its neighborhood), Penn., in 1798, and who removed to Ohio about 1824, and resided on a farm in Perry. John Allison<sup>2</sup> was the son of Archibald Allison<sup>1</sup>, who migrated from the county of Monaghan, Ireland, in 1783, and settled in Centre county, Penn.

Senator Allison spent his early years upon a farm and was educated at Allegheny college, Penn., and at Western Reserve college, Ohio. He studied law, and practiced in Ohio till 1857, when he located in Dubuque, Ia., which has been his home since April, 1857. He began his public career when the war broke out as a member of the staff of the governor, and his first task was to aid in the organization of the volunteer regiments that were destined to serve in the War of the Rebellion. He was sent to congress while the war was going on, and has been representative and senator from that time to the present, except between 1871 and 1873, when he declined an election, so that he has participated in all the legislation that has been enacted during and since the great conflict. He has done his full share in it all, and his impress is on the statutes which have framed and modified our fiscal and banking systems, our methods of taxation, as it was on the laws which gave to Mr. Lincoln the power to put down the rebellion, and which readjusted their relations to the Union of the once insurrectionary states. His biography is part of the history of the times in which he has lived. Through them Mr. Allison has accurately represented the sentiments and opinions of his section and of his party. He has performed the duties imposed upon him with calmness and caution. He was one of the congressmen depended upon by the president and secretary of the treasury to devise ways and means needed for the support of the government. After the war he continued to be a radical Republican, always acting with his party, opposed to Johnson, and a believer in the reconstruction measures which were intended to revolutionize the political complexion of the conquered South, and to make the freedman a citizen and a voter.

Senator Allison is one of the safe men of the Republican party. He is without passion, prejudice, or very strong friendships. He has not made the mistake, so common of recent years, of allying himself to a faction. He is not weak, nor a trimmer, nor a man of undecided views. It is not for any one of these qualities that he fails to make enemies; it is because he is never carried away by the passions of the moment, but is so moved and dominated by his judgment that the public men who know him and have been associated with him realize that his action is always the result of his matured opinion.

There are very few men who have been so long in public life as he who are so scrupulously devoted to their work. Men like him are oftener found in the British parliament, where tenure of place is more secure. Practically, Mr. Allison's tenure has been as strong as theirs, and his familiarity with the business of legislation is as accurate and thorough as that of the under-secretaries of the British cabinet. This is especially true of his acquaintance with fiscal matters. On his first entrance into congressional life he came to the front in the consideration of all questions affecting the treasury, the banks, and taxation. He was a member of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives very early, if we take into consideration the very large majority which his party had in congress at the time, and the number of able men in both houses. The reputation that he then made for himself for accurate information and sound judgment has not been lost. He has not been tempted to endeavor to shine in the discussion of other questions. He has been content to be easily the first authority on all bills relating to expenditures. Some of his short speeches have indicated that he might have been a leading debater on questions of constitutional law and on taxation and bank policy. So far as the last two subjects are concerned, he has been prominent, and there are very few public men of his party whose opinions on all fiscal matters are more respected than Mr. Allison's; but of recent years he has been chairman of the appropriations committee, and none but the most reckless undertake to question his statements of fact concerning the expenditures of the government.

As chairman of the appropriations committee he has been of very important service to the cause of sound administration. He is a wise economist. This means judicious liberality as opposed to an extravagant saving. The modern deficiency bill, and the urgency bill, which has only recently become one of the appropriation bills to be reckoned with at every session of congress, would not exist, or would involve inconsiderable amounts of money, if Mr. Allison's views about the regular and stated bills always prevailed. The chairman of the senate appropriations committee knows what each branch of the public service needs for its proper maintenance, and is willing to take the responsibility of advocating its appropriation. The spirit in which he performs this vital public function is directly opposed to that which moves very many members of congress, who do not appreciate their responsibilities to refuse appropriations, and thus lower the aggregate, when the refusal will not attract public attention and arouse popular protest. Not many years ago the member of the house committee who had charge of the diplomatic appropriation bill refused to allow the secretary of state any money for postage or cable charges, and thus threatened to cut off the state department from all correspondence with our representatives in foreign countries. This incident illustrates the tendency and attitude of certain persons who seek to figure before the country as savers of the people's money, and who have wider reputations as economists than Mr. Allison; but Mr. Allison is neither sordid nor extravagant. He does not advocate loose and unguarded expenditure, and he is always desirous that every department and division of the government shall have all that it needs. It is not exaggerating to say that when he is ready to sign a report of his committee on an appropriation bill he knows as much of the requirements of the objects for which the proposed expenditures are to be made as the executive officer who is at the head of the department. And in all the years during which he has acted in his present capacity there has not been a whisper injuriously affecting his reputation.

Mr. Allison's influence on general legislation has been felt because he insists on having a reason for his votes. He is largely influenced by the feeling and opinions of his section of the country. This has made him an advocate of lower rates of tariff duties, and a consistent friend of the land-grant railroads. In 1870, after he had declined a reelection to the house of representatives, and just before he was chosen to be Senator Harlan's successor, he took a very prominent part in the debate on Mr. Schenck's tariff bill. In the course of a speech on that measure, he said,—“The tariff of 1846, although confessedly and professedly a tariff for revenue, was, so far as regards all the great interests of the country, as perfect a tariff as any that we have ever had.”

Perhaps the following extract from the same speech will best illustrate his tariff views of that time: “Our policy should be so to cheapen manufactured products that we can revive our export trade, now swept away because we cannot compete with other nations in the markets of the world. If we could restore what we have lost, and in addition greatly enlarge our exportations of manufactures, we would then have an enlarged home market for our agricultural products in a concentrated form, in exchange for other commodities which we do not and cannot produce.”

He is really the author of the existing silver law, although he did not bring forward and advocate the measure as an original proposition. As the Bland bill passed the house of representatives it was a free coinage measure, and the senate finance committee was equally divided for and against it, Mr. Allison neither approving nor opposing it. Some silver legislation was inevitable, and Mr. Allison suggested the measure which was adopted. He is a bimetallist, but not of the Bland kind, and the law as it stands to-day (1888) ought to bear Mr. Allison's rather than Mr. Bland's name. The measure was probably the most conservative that could have been adopted at the time it became a law.

Mr. Allison's friendship for the land-grant roads, which came into existence during the beginning of his service in the house, was shown by his opposition to the Thurman act. There was no question as to the sincerity of his position, however. He voted and spoke against the bill because he believed that it would be injurious to the interests of the roads which had done very much for the building up of the material interests of his state.

For the rest he has always been a strong friend of the national bank system, and the treasury has leaned upon him as one of its wisest and most influential friends in congress.

It is one of his excellent traits that he never deals with the public business in a partisan spirit. As a legislator he is pre-eminently a man of affairs. He manages the subjects entrusted to him with the view of doing the best that is possible for the government. It is because he is determined to do the best that is in his power that he confines himself so closely to one class of subjects. He is not brilliant. He does not address the galleries nor the country, and while his speeches are not works of art, they are very earnest, and very interesting and informing to those who desire to obtain a thorough knowledge of the question under discussion. Perhaps the most popular speech that he ever made in congress was that on the tariff, from which excerpts have been given. His argument on the silver question was full of learning. The part he has taken in the political debates which have been made in the senate, especially those of the special session in 1879, when both houses of congress were controlled by the Democrats, and when there was a bitter conflict between them and President Hayes, has been that of a questioner and suggester; and in that way he has had more influence upon legislation than many a senator whose appearance upon the floor has furnished entertainment for the idlers of the capitol.

While he has not filled any executive office, his Republican colleagues regard him as a man of exceptional executive capacity. When Mr. Garfield was elected president, Mr. Allison might have been secretary of the treasury. There was then a general consensus of opinion that, next to Mr. Sherman, he was the best equipped of his party for that office. The relations between the president and himself were very close. They had served together in the house, and they had acted together on almost every question of public policy, with the exception, perhaps, of that involved in the silver bill. Mr. Garfield was desirous that the Iowa senator should be his finance minister, but the latter was unwilling to quit the senate, and Mr. Windom was appointed.

In the interesting and exciting times that followed the inauguration of his friend, he never permitted himself to turn from the duties with which he was charged to take part in the factional strife. He was consulted by both sides in the confident belief, which was never disappointed, that he would not betray the councils of either. He is too thoroughly devoted to the public business to permit party politics to interfere with it, and too strongly devoted to his party to do anything to divide it into factions.

He is as quiet in his social life as he is in the senate, and yet he is a man who loves society. For many years, while Mrs. Allison was alive, his comfortable house on Vermont avenue was one of the social centres of the capital. His hospitality was generous, but not profuse. He is a kindly, agreeable man, an excellent listener, and a general favorite. His fortune is ample, his tastes are refined, and those who know him best like him most. He has a repose and restfulness which make him a pleasant comrade, and many a nervous man finds it a great comfort to be with him, even if he does n't say a word.

He has a sturdy frame and a fine face. He comes from strong Scotch-Irish stock. His ancestors settled in Pennsylvania, where his father was born. When he began his professional and public life he had the vigor which has kept him young, for his sixty-four years sit lightly upon him. He has been a leading candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. He married Annie Carter; married second, Mary Heally. Resides Dubuque, Iowa.

ALLISONS FROM THE COUNTY OF LONDONDERRY, IRELAND.

There landed in Philadelphia, Penn., about the first of July, 1750, three emigrants of Scotch blood and Presbyterian faith. They came from the County of Londonderry, Ireland. They were brothers, named Andrew Allison, Robert Allison, James Allison. From them have sprung many descendants, who are widely scattered, residing in Pennsylvania and many of the western states. They are mostly Presbyterians. As a family they have been healthy and long lived; the earlier generations were mostly farmers. Many professional men were in the later generations.

509. James Allison,<sup>1</sup> one of the three brothers, settled in Franklin county, Penn.

510. Andrew Allison<sup>1</sup> settled in Lancaster county, Penn.

511. Robert Allison<sup>1</sup> resided in Cumberland county, Penn., for some years; then removed to Indiana county where he passed the remainder of his days, and died in 1805. He married, in 1752, Rebecca Beard, who came in the same ship with him across "the deep blue sea." She was a granddaughter of one Charles Stewart (or Stuart), a soldier, who was wounded in the hand at the "Battle of the Boyne."

512. John B. Allison,<sup>3</sup> grandson of Robert, died in 1878, aged eighty-two years. He lived on the farm on which he was born till he was seventy years of age, when he moved to Indiana, the county seat of Indiana county, Penn., where he died. His

HON. JOSEPH ALLISON OF PHILADELPHIA, PENN. — HIS BRANCH OF THE ALLISONS.

513. Mr. Allison, of Scotch blood, lived in a double cabin some three miles from Londonderry, Ireland. He had relatives of the name of Knox and McIllvaine, who lived there in 1867. He had several children. Among them were three daughters, names not known to the compiler, who lived and died in Ireland.

514. His son, Joseph Allison,<sup>2</sup> lived at the old home near Londonderry, Ireland, and died there about 1870.

515. William Allison,<sup>2</sup> another son, emigrated to America when eighteen years of age; landed at Wilmington, Del., and immediately joined his relatives by name of Mac Beth, or MacBeg, near Harrisburg, Penn. He had no known Allison connections in this country. He became a successful hardware merchant in Harrisburg, where he spent the active years of his life. He finally joined his son, Judge Joseph Allison,<sup>3</sup> in Philadelphia, and lived the life of a retired business man, and died there. He married, in Harrisburg, Penn., Mary Andrews, who when a child was brought to this country from Armagh, Ireland, by her parents. She died in Harrisburg about 1848. She had a sister who married Mr. Irwin, of Scotch blood, and they lived in Winchester, Va., where she died, and her large family later went to Missouri. Her brother, in early life, settled in the city of New York. William Allison<sup>2</sup> had six sons and one daughter, all deceased except Judge Allison, of Philadelphia. Among them were:

516. Robert Henderson Allison,<sup>3</sup> a physician, who died about 1855, in Charleston, Coles county, Illinois.

517. James Irwin Allison<sup>3</sup> was for many years a magistrate in Philadelphia, Penn.

518. Arthur David Allison<sup>3</sup> was a merchant in Philadelphia, Penn.

519. Joseph Allison,<sup>3</sup> born August 31, 1819; named for his uncle. He studied law in Harrisburg, Penn.; admitted to the bar of Dauphin county in 1843; elected solicitor of Spring Garden in 1846, and held the office many years, till he was elected an associate law judge of the court of common pleas of the first judicial district of Pennsylvania. In 1865 he succeeded to the presidency of the court, and has to the present (1892) held that position—a period of forty years. Has been five times elected, the last two times without opposition, receiving at the last election 145,000 votes with none against him. He married in 1843, and has a family. Residence Philadelphia, Penn.<sup>1</sup>

520. Samuel Allison<sup>1</sup> was born in Northumberland county, Penn., about 1785, and it is said his father was a chaplain in the Revolutionary army. Mr. Allison was in the 1812-'15 war. He married Annie Caldwell, of Northumberland county, Penn., and about 1816 he took up military lands in Greene county, Ohio.

HIS SON.

ALLISONS OF RAMELTON, COUNTY OF DONEGAL, IRELAND,
MIDDLETOWN, PENN., AND TRENTON, N. J.

These Allisons descended from a Scotch family who came over from Scotland at the time of the Plantation of Ulster; they left their native land during the religious persecution. There was one woman of the Allison family, called Isabella Allison, who with another, called Marion Harvey, was put to death. They were chained out in the sea till the tide came in, and when it was surging into their mouths, were and died.<sup>1</sup>

526. Robert Allison<sup>1</sup> came first to Ramelton from Scotland, and took a farm called Louchras (?), but lost the same through some chicanery. Ramelton is fifteen miles west of the city of Londonderry, a town of considerable note, and was peopled by the Scotch and English. The Lough Swilly river flows into the town.

536. William Allison<sup>3</sup> (529) (Samuel,<sup>2</sup> Robert<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Ramelton, county of Donegal, Ireland, where he received a fine education. He was a friend and correspondent of the celebrated and unfortunate Emmet. Mr. Allison came to America about 1800—at about 23 years of age, as he was born Sept. 18, 1777. He settled in Middletown, Penn., and he said that he was of the same stock as the Allisons who, at an early date, settled in Pennsylvania, and traditions are in the family of their descent from Scottish ancestors. As he was acquainted with the then secret art of blistering steel, he went into partnership with Thomas Stubbs, in Middletown, Dauphin county, Penn. It was claimed that they manufactured the first steel in America. He was a man of consequence in his locality, and was a director in the Saratoga bank. He married, Sept. 26, 1801, Ruth, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Stubbs, a granddaughter of Thomas Stubbs, born March 9, 1784; died March 25, 1818. He married, second, Juliana, daughter of Charles and Mary Brandon, March 14, 1819. He died Nov. 2, 1825, and is buried in a private burial lot on the Fisher estate. Mrs. Allison was born March 6, 1785; died March 21, 1870, at Wheeling, W. Va.

He was son of Major William Allison and was born, Dec. 12, 1820, in Middletown, Dauphin county, Penn.; removed to Ohio in 1831. He was raised upon a farm; was placed at hard work there, and later was a mechanic. During this time he attended the district school, and studied at night, preparing himself for his lifework. In 1839 he commenced the study of law, and was admitted to the bar in Columbus, O., in Dec., 1841. He formed a partnership with Hon. Augustus Hall, late member of congress from Iowa and chief justice of Nebraska, and later with Otway Curry. In 1851 he removed to Bellefontaine, O., and formed a partnership with Congressman Benjamin Stanton. Was a Whig, and then a Republican, in politics. In May, 1862, he enlisted for three months in the army, and was made captain of Company E, Eighty-sixth regiment, Ohio volunteers, and a few days afterwards, was commissioned as colonel of the Eighty-fifth regiment Ohio volunteers, and his company was transferred to that regiment. In October, 1862, he was appointed colonel of the rendezvous for drafted men at Camp Dennison, where he remained in command until that service was closed, Jan. 1, 1863. He was a member of the Ohio house of representatives convened January, 1864, and was chairman of the committee on military affairs, and a member of the judiciary committee. He was elected a member of the Ohio state senate, and was chosen its president. In 1866 he with Mr. Stanton opened an office in Wheeling, West Va., and removed there with their families April 1, 1867, where they carried on a most extensive and lucrative practice. Mr. Stanton died June 2, 1872. Mr. Allison continued in practice till his death, Dec. 5, 1876. He was a self-made man. He preferred to follow the convictions of his judgment rather than to act from considerations of policy. He had a discriminating and investigating mind, and ranked high as a lawyer. He married, Nov. 5, 1844, Sophronia, daughter of Dr. Elisha S. and Elizabeth Lee, of Marysville, O., who died Aug. 26, 1848. She was born in Knox county, O., Oct. 24, 1825. ## CHAPTER VII.

ALLISONS OF NORTH CAROLINA—FIVE BRANCHES—ALLISONS OF GLASGOW, SCOTLAND, NORTH CAROLINA, AND VIRGINIA.<sup>1</sup>

Five brothers by name of Allison, born in Pennsylvania<sup>1</sup> (one account says in Ireland), lived on the Yellowstone river in that state, and between 1760 and 1770, and before the War of the Revolution, they moved to North Carolina, while their brother, James Allison, remained in Pennsylvania. They were of that strong Scotch stock which went from Scotland to Ireland, and later to Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, and the southern states, and who have been such magnificent builders of states and commonwealths. They settled in Iredell and Mecklenburgh counties, where the name to-day is very common. The names of these emigrants to North Carolina were :

579. William Allison<sup>1</sup> (586), who resides at Bethany Church, N. C.

580. John Allison,<sup>1</sup> married, first, a sister of Colonel Richard Allison, of Iredell county, N. C. The relationship between them is not known. There was no issue by this marriage. He married a second time.

581. Polly Anderson,<sup>2</sup> his daughter, married her cousin, 582. James Allison,<sup>2</sup> son of Robert Allison.<sup>1</sup> Mr. Allison lived at Poplar Tent, Mecklenburgh county, N. C.

583. George Allison,<sup>1</sup> settled in Mecklenburgh or Iredell county, N. C.

584. Thomas Allison,<sup>1</sup> born 1743, was never married. He was a school teacher of renown, and was widely known as "Master Allison." He died in Nov., 1811, aged 68 years. A sister of these five Allisons married a Mr. Todd, settled in Mecklenburgh, N. C., and their descendants live in that county today.

585. Robert Allison<sup>1</sup> (588), born in 1750; married Sarah Graham; resided on Clark's Creek, Cabarrus county, N. C.; died in 1804, aged 54 years.

<sup>1</sup>See notice in account of the Allisons of Pennsylvania, in letter of Rev. James Allison, which precedes No. 460.

ALLISONS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

586. William Allison<sup>1</sup> [579], one of the five emigrants from Pennsylvania, and a brother of Robert Allison, as stated in a record by Robert Washington Allison, of Concord, N. C., April, 1887. He was born in Pennsylvania, and his people from Ireland, like all of the residents in Ulster, were weavers. He resided in Pennsylvania, removed to North Carolina with his brothers, and was one of the earliest settlers in Iredell county, and one of its first purchasers of land. He owned a plantation which has been in possession of his descendants for more than one hundred years. Residence at Bethany Church, N. C., where he died.

587. Thomas Allison<sup>2</sup> (597); res. Bethany Church, N. C.

588. Robert Allison<sup>1</sup> [585], one of the five brothers who went south from Pennsylvania, between 1760 and 1770, probably, was born in 1750, and settled near Charlotte, N. C., and married Sarah Graham.<sup>1</sup> Mrs. Allison was a sister of Joseph Graham, the father of Hon. William A. Graham, once governor of North Carolina, and candidate for vice-president of the United States on the ticket with General Winfield Scott, in 1852. Mrs. Allison was the aunt of Miss Graham, sister of Hon. William A. Graham, who married Rev. Hall Morrison, D. D., and one of their daughters married General D. H. Hill, and another married General Thomas J. Jackson, known as "Stonewall" Jackson. In 1790, Mr. Allison removed to Poplar Tent on Clark's creek, in what is now Cabarrus county, and was a ruling elder in the church there. He died in 1804, aged 54 years. Mrs. Allison was delicate in appearance, had great energy, and was a fine manager and a strong Presbyterian.

636. Thomas Johnston Allison<sup>4</sup> [621] (William M.,<sup>3</sup> Thomas,<sup>2</sup> William<sup>1</sup>). He was born at Bethany Church, N. C., some ten miles north of Statesville. Feb. 2, 1849; married, Nov. 23, 1870, Bettie Crawford Chunn, daughter of Matthew Lock and Caroline (Foard) Chunn, and granddaughter of William and Mary (Lock) Chunn, of near China Grove, Rowan county, N. C. Mrs. Allison was born Aug. 31, 1853, near Salisbury, N. C. Mr. Allison was born on the plantation where his great-grandfather settled more than a century ago, and which was owned by his grandfather and his father. The Allisons were the first to acquire land in the opening of the settlement, and the first deeds given in the county were given to Allisons. They were large real estate owners, often buying and rarely selling land. Mr. Allison received a portion of his education at Davidson college, N. C. He was a farmer and tanner, the same as his predecessors. He added the manufacture of harness and saddlery to his business, and dealt in saddlery and hardware till 1884. He has served as county commissioner; was elected sheriff of Iredell county, N. C., in 1884, and held the position till he was appointed by President Cleveland, in 1893, United States marshal for the Western District of North Carolina. Residence, Statesville, N. C.

B., and received the degree of A. M. in 1874, and in the spring of 1868 united with the Davidson College Presbyterian church. In 1871 he entered the Union Theological seminary at Hampden Sidney, Va., and graduated in 1874; was licensed by the Concord, N. C., presbytery in 1874, and in August accepted a call to the Presbyterian church at Tarboro, N. C. He was ordained and installed on Nov. 8, 1875, preaching once a month at Kingston, and at Rocky Mount. On Sept. 12, 1876, he married Jeannette, daughter of Rev. John Tillett. Resigning his charge in 1877, he preached at Rockingham and Lumberton, N. C. In 1879 he was installed over the church at Mebaneville, N. C., and continued there eight years. His work there, as at his former parishes, was greatly blessed. Resigning in 1887, his next pastorate was over the Third Creek and Fifth Creek churches, his home being at Elmwood, N. C. He labored there till April, 1891, when he resigned, and is now engaged in evangelistic work in the Savannah (Ga.) presbytery, and resides at Waycross, Ga.

ALLISONS OF NORTH CAROLINA. BRANCH NUMBER THREE.

The emigrant ancestor of this family, of Scotch blood, Christian name not known, came from the north of Ireland and settled in Pennsylvania or Maryland. His son, 705. William Allison,<sup>2</sup> according to my information, was born in Maryland, lived in Wilkes county, N. C., where he raised a large family, which remained there till each member arrived to mature age, and soon after that period became scattered. He was a Revolutionary soldier.

 720. William Allison,<sup>4</sup> d., unmarried, of yellow fever at New Orleans, La.

Ky., after 1797, and lived in Cooper county, Mo., after March, 1821, where he died April 25, 1846. He married, Nov. 5, 1788, Rebecca Sanders Hartt. Hugh Allison was a fair business man. Was elected coroner of Cooper county, Mo., August, 1824, and again in 1828, serving eight years in all. As a military man he served three years in Colonel Whitley's regiment of volunteers in 1812-'13-'14, and was in Harrison's army, was at the battle of Lundy's Lane. After his discharge he was commissioned a captain in the Kentucky militia. He always declared that he would gladly have fought three years longer rather than to have let Great Britain have one foot of ground in America. He was a fiery patriot and was ever ready to serve his country. He was a believer in a sound national currency that was worth one hundred cents on a dollar anywhere on earth. In 1840, by appointment, he met and spent a short time with Gen. W. H. Harrison, the Whig candidate for president, at Vincennes, Indiana. On July 4, 1840, he was present at the grand Whig rally at Rochefort, Mo., it being one of the largest political gatherings ever held in the state. There are said to have been 17 steamboats loaded with people who came to attend. Mr. Allison was a great friend and admirer of President Harrison, and was greatly overcome when the news reached him in 1841 of the death of his old commander. He was a farmer, and a dealer in fat cattle and hogs. Was a Baptist. Was an uncompromising Whig. He took an active part in the election of General Harrison to the presidency in 1840. He favored the extension of the charter of the U. S. bank; he also favored a protective tariff.

ALLISONS OF THE PARISH OF LIFFORD, COUNTY OF DONEGAL, IRELAND, AND OF TENNESSEE, U. S.

848. Andrew Allison,<sup>1</sup> of Scotch blood, lived at Churchminster, near Ballandreat, in the parish of Lifford, county of Donegal, Ireland. This parish is a few miles southwest of the city of Londonderry, on the border of the county of Tyrone, and in the province of Ulster, so noted for its settlement by Scotch and English colonists more than two centuries ago. Lord Lifford owns much landed property at this place, and is its chief inhabitant. From the small railway station we can see on a high, ledgy adjacent hill a flagstaff, which is flagless when his lordship is absent, but from which a flag flutters in the breeze when his lordship is at home. In this locality lived Mr. Allison and his family.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Alexander Porter, of Churchminster, near Ballandreat, parish of Lifford, county of Donegal, Ireland, was of the Scotch Presbyterians, that strong, sturdy race, which leaves its imprint and influence on men and institutions wherever planted. He had a daughter, Matilda Porter, who married Andrew Allison, and in 1798 (see his record). His son, Rev. James Porter, a Presbyterian clergyman, distinguished for his learning, ability, and zeal, was a patriot in the troubles of 1798, and was condemned to an ignominious death, and executed before his church door by the unjust decision of a court-martial. His two sons were cared for by his uncle in Tennessee. One became an able jurist in Louisiana. The other sons of Mr. Porter, of Lifford, were Alexander Porter, Robert Porter, and William Porter, who came to the United States in August, 1798, with their sister, Mrs. Andrew Allison. Alexander first settled in Wilmington, Del., and finally in Nashville, Tenn., and was a successful merchant. He d. of Asiatic cholera, at Dresden, Tenn., in April, 1833. His wife was Susan Massingill, of East Tennessee. Their son, Dr. James Armstrong Porter, was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1800; married Sally Ann Murphy. Resided at Nashville, where he died in 1853. He was a man of distinguished ability, and held a professorship in the university at Nashville. His son, Alexander James Porter, was born in Nashville, Tenn., June 6, 1822, residence, Nashville, where he died Feb. 11, 1888. He married Martha Watson. Their daughter, Mary Amanda Porter, b. Jan. 14, 1851, m. Joseph Webster Allison, her relative, June 12, 1872 (see his record), their marriage thus reuniting the branches of this family in the fourth and fifth generations. Their son, Alexander Porter Allison, born Memphis, Tenn., July 13, 1876, revives the name and blood of the common ancestor of his parents in Ireland, who died more than a hundred years before.

850. Andrew Allison<sup>2</sup> [849] (Andrew<sup>1</sup>). He was born in the parish of Lifford, county of Donegal, Ireland, Dec. 26, 1775. He married, about 1798, Matilda, daughter of Alexander Porter, of Churchminster, near Ballandreat, parish of Lifford, Ireland; who was some six years his junior. It is to be presumed that Mr. Allison was not fully satisfied with his home locality, nor with the prospect of reaping great harvests from the rocky and sterile soil of Lifford, for in his young manhood, somewhere about 1802, he settled in Hartsville, Tenn. He died at Carthage, Tenn., Sept. 29, 1818. He was a merchant. He organized the first lodge of Masons in that section, and was master of the lodge at his death.

853. James Porter Allison,<sup>3</sup> b. about 1807. He graduated at West Point military academy, but resigned his commission after a short term of service in the army. He studied law and commenced its practice in Nashville, Tenn., then removed to Bowling Green, Ky., where he d., without issue, about 1834. He m. in 1830, Elizabeth Garnet of Clarksville, Tenn. He was a merchant and planter.
854. Robert Porter Allison<sup>3</sup> (862), b. at Hartsville, Tenn., July 25, 1809; res. Lebanon, Tenn. He m. Alithea Sanders.

855. Andrew Allison<sup>3</sup> [852] (Andrew,<sup>2</sup> Andrew<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Hartsville, Tenn., Sept. 24, 1805; married, May 24, 1832, Rebecca Greer Allen, daughter of Robert Allen of Carthage, Tenn. He was a dry goods merchant, and succeeded to his father's business. Later he removed to Carthage, Tenn., and engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods. He erected a large factory, which was destroyed by fire in 1850, rebuilt and again destroyed in 1852. He then removed to Nashville, and engaged in the wholesale dry goods business, being of the firm of Allison, Anderson & Co. He died in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 24, 1860.

His home was in Lebanon, Tenn., from 1838-'56, in Nashville from 1856-'66; in Memphis from 1866-'76; in St. Louis, Mo., from 1876-'81; and Jackson, Tenn., from 1881 to the present time. In 1857 he graduated at Cumberland university at Lebanon, Tenn., and the same year entered his father's store as bookkeeper and cashier; in 1860 formed a partnership in the wholesale hat business. After the war, which had divested him of his property, he opened a cotton commission house with his brother Alexander as partner, in Nashville, and was successful; removed to Memphis, and with three brothers engaged in the wholesale hardware business; and was for a time successful. In 1873 the firm lost heavily, and he gave up the business later and engaged in other business in St. Louis. He is now in business, and resides in Jackson, Tenn., where he is an elder in the First Presbyterian church. He married, Feb. 14, 1861, Isabel Kelso, born at Fayetteville, Lincoln county, Tenn., Feb. 1, 1840. She was daughter of Henry and Rebecca (Rutledge) Kelso. Her father was born Sept., 1818; died June, 1866. He was a son of Henry Kelso, who was born near Kelso, in Scotland, who married Ruth Wells of Kentucky, and he died in 1831, in Lincoln county, Tenn.

CHAPTER X.

THE ALLISONS OF MAGILLEGAN AND LIMAVADY, COUNTY OF LONDONDERRY, IRELAND, AND OF NOVA SCOTIA AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

997. John Allison<sup>1</sup> was born in 1652, and lived at Drumnaha, Magillegan, near Newton-Limavady, in county of Londonderry; in and near also the waters of Lough Foyle, some twenty miles distant from the city of Londonderry, and about equidistant between that place and the parish of Aghadowey in the same county. From the latter evidently emigrated, in 1718, Samuel Allison, the progenitor of the New Hampshire Allisons, together with the first settlers of Londonderry, N. H. Limavady is a place of great antiquity, is well built, and has a population of several thousand. At Drumnaha, Magillegan, Mr. John Allison was a prominent citizen, and died in 1736. He is buried in Magillegan, in the family burying-ground. This place is in county of Londonderry, about eight miles from Limavady, and situated in the angle made by the junction of Lough Foyle and the Atlantic ocean. There several generations of this family of Allisons are buried, and there their living connections, as well as being the connections of the numerous Allisons of this branch in Nova Scotia, are living in 1893. On Mr. Allison's tombstone is this inscription: "Here lieth the body of John Allison, who departed this life on the 19th of November, 1736, aged 84 years; here also lieth the body of Jane Clarke, first wife of the above John Allison, who departed this life 10th May, 1684, aged 24 years. Also lieth the body of Mary Fleming, second wife to the aforesaid John, who departed this life 17th March, 1733, aged 78 years."

CHILD.

998. William Allison<sup>2</sup> (999), b. in Drumnaha, Ireland, in 1680; resided there, and d. there June 20, 1766.

999. William Allison<sup>2</sup> [998] (John<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Drumnaha, county of Londonderry, Ireland, where he lived and died. In the family cemetery there he is buried, and above him is this inscription: "Also here lieth the body of William Allison, son to the above John, who departed this life on the 20th June, 1766, aged 86 years. Here also lieth the body of Rebecca Caldwell, wife of the above William, who departed this life 11th March, 1751, aged 66 years." William and Rebecca (Caldwell) Allison had several children, among them were,—

CHILDREN BORN AT DRUMNAHA, IRELAND.

1000. Joseph Allison<sup>3</sup> (1002), b. about 1720; emigrated to Horton, Kings Co., Nova Scotia, and d. in 1794.
 1001. William Allison<sup>3</sup> (1009), b. in 1724; m. Mary Lawrence, lived in Drumnaha, and d. there Nov. 24, 1798.

1002. Joseph Allison<sup>3</sup> [1000] (William,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Drumnaha, near Limavady, Ireland, about 1720, and when he reached manhood's estate, he rented a farm belonging to a London corporation, paying yearly rates, which were collected by an agent in Ireland. On one of these visits of the agent he was invited by Mr. Allison to dine with him. The best the house afforded was given to him as an honored guest. On that day silver spoons were used. Turning to Mr. Allison the agent said,—

"I see that you can afford to have silver on your table. If you can afford this, you can afford to pay more rent. Your next year's rent will be increased."

"I will pay no more rent," said Allison. "I will go to America first."

The agent increased the rent, which Mr. Allison would not pay. He sold all his property, and, with his family and six children, in 1769 left the home of his fathers and the graves of his kindred, and embarked from Londonderry for the New World, intending to land at Philadelphia. He had relatives in Pennsylvania with whom he had corresponded, who had urged him to come to them in that state and bring his family. Their names were Pollock, the children of Mrs. Allison by her first marriage; they settled in Pennsylvania about 1760. Their passage was rough, and the vessel was wrecked on Sable Island, and he and his family were taken to Halifax, Nova Scotia. It was then difficult and expensive to journey from one section of the country to another. A few years previous to the arrival of Mr. Allison in Halifax, the French people had been most cruelly expelled from their Acadian homes, and their lands thrown open to settlement. Through the persuasion of Admiral Cochrane, then admiral on that coast and station, and by the liberal offers made to them by the authorities, these sturdy people of Scotch blood were induced to go in and occupy. Of those who came with the Allisons, the McHeffys settled in Falmouth, N. S., the Magees in Aylesford, the McCormicks in Annapolis, and Mr. Allison purchased a farm in Horton, Kings county, Nova Scotia, on the border of the historic Grand Prè, where he lived till his death in 1794. He was a Presbyterian, though many of his descendants have departed from the ancient faith, and belong to other denominations. He married in Limavady, county of Londonderry, Ireland, Mrs. Alice Polk (or Pollock) Caldwell, who survived him for several years. She gave the historic silver spoons to her youngest child, a daughter who lived to be ninety years old. They are now in the possession of her great-grandson, Hon. Leonard Shannon, of Halifax, N. S.

1031. John Allison<sup>4</sup> [1005] (Joseph,<sup>3</sup> William,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>). He was born near Limavady, Ireland, in 1753, and came to America with his father's family when he was sixteen years of age, and settled on the shores of Acadia, bringing with him the loyalty and religion of his ancestors. From 1769 to 1804 he lived in Horton, N. S., where he successfully contended with all the privations and difficulties incident to a new settlement, and while there, and later in life, by great perseverance, industry, frugality, and integrity, secured for himself and family a respectable competency. In 1804, he removed to Newport, Hants county, N. S., which was his home the remainder of his life. He was a trader, and later on became one of the most successful farmers in Nova Scotia. He was a man of solid virtues, of good sense, excellent judgment, and a pleasant conversationalist. Being a magistrate, he exerted his powers oftentimes successfully for the settlement of differences. Brought up a Presbyterian, in his later years he was an active member of the Methodist church. He was a friend of God, and delighted in the duties of religion. For many years he represented Newport in the provincial parliament. By his efforts the Hants Branch Bible society was reorganized, and new life infused into the organization. This was his last public work. He told his family that the fear of death was past, and died in peace March 1, 1821, and went over the river to be reunited with many beloved friends, and to join "that great multitude which no man can number."

Mr. Allison married in 1779, Nancy, daughter of John Whidden, a leading magistrate in Cornwallis, Nova Scotia.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>John Whidden emigrated to Truro, N. S., with the New Hampshire settlers in 1761. He married a Miss Longfellow of Gorham, Me., who was closely related to the family of the poet Henry W. Longfellow. Mrs. Whidden and her sister, Maria Longfellow, lie buried at Horton, N. S., in the very centre of the village of the historic Grand Pré, made forever famous by the genius and soul of the great poet.

He was born on the Mantua Farm in Newport, Hants county, Nova Scotia, May 16, 1821. He was educated at Annapolis, N. S., and Dalhousie college in Halifax, N. S. In September, 1849, he was ordained to the ministry in Fredericton, New Brunswick. He afterward graduated as A. B. and A. M. at Syracuse University, N. Y., was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Cornwallis, N. S., Woodstock, N. B., St. John, N. B., and was principal of the Mount Allison Ladies' academy at Sackville, N. B., for eight years. In 1863 he travelled in England, Scotland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, and Germany. In 1864-'65 he was pastor of a church in Buffalo, N. Y., and later was pastor four years in Milwaukee, Wis. In 1872 he established the "Allison Classic" academy at Oconomowoc, Wis. Was pastor at Lanesboro', Minn., for three years; chaplain of the Minnesota state senate in 1885; lectured for the Minnesota State Teachers' Institute for three years. In 1891 he was writing for the press and lecturing. He was, in Nova Scotia, considered one of the first pulpit orators in the maritime provinces. He married in Fredericton, N. B., Nov. 24, 1847, Martha Louisa, daughter of Richard and Mary Davis (Hosier) Knight. Her father was of Exeter, England. She was born, Feb. 26, 1823, in Newfoundland. She was his excellent helper in his life work, and was an A. B. and A. M. of Genesee college, Lima, Livingston county, N. Y. She died in 1892. He resided at Minneapolis, Minn., and d. July 19, 1893.

CHILDREN.

1216. Charles Edward Allison,<sup>7</sup> b. Woodstock, N. B., May 23, 1850; d. Dec. 25, 1852.
1217. William Richard Allison,<sup>7</sup> b. Woodstock, N. B., Feb. 26, 1852; m., April 22, 1874, Susie M. Curran. He is a physician; res. Minneapolis, Minn. Child:
1218. May Louise Allison,<sup>8</sup> b. March 10, 1878.

1219. David Allison<sup>6</sup> [1120] (James Whidden,<sup>5</sup> John<sup>4</sup>, Joseph,<sup>3</sup> William,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>). Prof. Allison was born at Newport, Hants county, Nova Scotia, July 3, 1836. He was educated at Halifax academy, and by a four years course at the academy at Sackville, N. B., where he took the highest stand as a student, at the Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn., where he pursued his collegiate course and graduated in 1859 at the head of a large and brilliant class. For a short time he taught at Stanstead, Quebec, then he returned to Sackville, N. B., and was a teacher of the classics in the academy, and was made professor of the classics on the establishment of the college. In 1869 he succeeded Dr. Pickard in the presidency, which he resigned in 1878 to take the superintendency of education for the province of Nova Scotia. That position he held until Oct. 31, 1891. He was reappointed president of the university at Sackville in June, 1891, and entered upon the duties of the position in November, 1891. The eminent ability with which he filled these various positions furnishes an ample guaranty that there lies before him, as president of Mount Allison university for the second time, an administration of a most satisfactory nature. Among the accepted and cherished traditions of that collegè are his exceptional capacity as an instructor, and his power to impress himself for good on the heads and hearts of those under his charge and influence. As a classical scholar he has rare acquirements, and is noted for broad and tolerant views on matters of ecclesiastical and political dispute. His power as a preacher must not be omitted in enumerating the elements which go to make up his educational and life record. Students are unanimous in speaking with admiration of the manly, thoughtful, and weighty discourses which strongly impressed the hearts of his hearers, and often turned in the right direction forever some young career that might, but for those pregnant words, have ended in a lamentable failure. Many there are that for these sermons alone, can say to him, "It is better with me, it shall be better with me, because I have known you." In the history of this branch of the Allison family he has taken a deep and decided interest and furnished much information to the author which is gratefully acknowledged. He received the degree of A. B. and A. M. from Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., and of LL. D. from Victoria university, Coburg, Ontario, in 1871. He married, June 18, 1862, Elizabeth Powell of New Brunswick, a lady well qualified to grace the various circles in which her husband's various positions have called her to move. She 1225. Charles Allison<sup>6</sup> [1135] (Samuel Leonard,<sup>5</sup> Joseph,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> William,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Kentville, N. S., Sept. 22, 1821. In 1858 he was appointed justice of the peace for Queens county, N. S.; in 1864 was elected to the Nova Scotia parliament as representative of North Queens Co.; in 1865 was appointed lieutenant-colonel of the militia, and in 1867 was chosen a member of the provincial government with the office of commissioner of mines. In September, 1867, he and all his colleagues were defeated at the election, with the exception of the attorney-general, Hiram Blanchard. In 1879 he was appointed inspector of weights and measures for the Yarmouth division, a position he still holds. He married, July 19, 1848, Lavinia, daughter of George and Kate (Kempton) Freeman, of Milton, Queens county, N. S. She was born in the township of Caledonia, Nov. 30, 1828. Resides Yarmouth, N. S.

B., March 31, 1850. His family removed to Sackville, N. B., when he was four years of age, and there he was educated at Mount Allison academy and college, founded by his uncle, Charles F. Allison. In 1871 he became a book-keeper for Douall & Miller, a large business house in Halifax, N. S. There his business faculties unfolded rapidly, and later he went into the commission business, and later still into partnership with the late John P. Mott, and in 1876 his name appeared as a member of the firm of John P. Mott & Co., where he has since been an active member. In its interest he has travelled throughout the maritime provinces, through Quebec and Ontario, and other parts of Canada. Since the death of John P. Mott, in 1890, Mr. Allison has been the manager and executor of the estate, which is above three fourths of a million of dollars in value. He is a director in the People's Bank of Halifax; a director in the Eastern Assurance Company (capital $1,000,000); a director in the New Glasgow Iron, Coal and Railway Co. (capital $1,000,000); a director in the Nova Scotia Permanent Benefit Building Society and Savings Fund, one of the largest monetary institutions in the lower provinces; a director in the Ocean Mutual Marine Insurance Co., and a director in the Nova Scotia Steam Packet Co. His various monetary and commercial responsibilities tax his powers heavily, but not beyond their strength. He married, Oct. 10, 1876, Mary Prescott, of Bail Virte, N. B. No children. Resides at Halifax, N. S.

ALLISONS OF EVISH HILL AND OF LIMAVADY, COUNTY OF LONDONDERRY, IRELAND, AND LATER OF STILLWATER, MIRAMICHI COUNTY, NEW BRUNSWICK.

1235. Thomas Morrison Allison lived in Limavady, county of Londonderry, Ireland, in 1892, and his family of Allisons came from Evish Hill in the immediate vicinity of Londonderry, Ireland. This Evish Hill is near Enoch Loch, somewhat off the road leading from Limavady to Londonderry.

1236. Rev. James Allison, a great uncle of Mr. Allison, preached for many years at Breckfield Presbyterian church in the same district, but nearer Cumber Cloudy than to Londonderry.

The grandfather of T. M. Allison, born in 1768, sold his farm at Evish Hill, and with his whole family, except one son, the father of T. M. Allison, of Limavady, emigrated to Stillwater, Miramichi, New Brunswick, in the early part of this century, or about 1825. The names of his sons who emigrated with him were,— 1237. William Allison, who died about 1872.

1237a. Samuel Allison.

1238. David Allison.

1239. Hugh Allison ; and two daughters emigrated.

This family is probably connected with the Allisons of Drumnaha, Ireland, and of Nova Scotia.

THE MORRISONS, ALLISONS, HUNTERS, AND CROOKS.<sup>1</sup>

Claggan, county of Londonderry, Ireland, is about equidistant from Londonderry and Aghadowey, and on the road between those places. There the Morrisons have lived from long before the siege of Derry, 1688-'89, and live there still. At one time they were in possession of the greater portion of Bally Kilby Highlands. The deed to their farm, granted by the Connally family, is dated in 1700. William Morrison resided at Claggan in 1892. As early as 1644 it is said that Hugh and Robert Morison came from Scotland and settled in Dromore, and the Morrisons of Maghera, Claggan, and vicinity are their descendants. It is claimed that James Morison and Robert Morison, immortalized by Macauley as among the brave defenders of Londonderry in 1688-'89, were from Claggan. This is possible, but hardly probable. The house in which one of the Morisons is said to have lived was pointed out to me in Londonderry in 1884, and I met an inhabitant of that city of the same name who claimed to be a descendant.

My relatives, the Morrisons of Windham and Londonderry, N. H., together with the founders of the branch at Nottingham, N. H., endured the horrors of the "siege," and shared the honors of the final triumph.

At the time of the siege it is said,—“Lord Antrim’s men, the Red Shanks, coming through Limavady, every one hurried for safety to Londonderry, among the rest, Rev. Mr. Crooks, the then Presbyterian minister of Bally Kilby, taking with him many of his people. Rev. Mr. Crooks was one of the Presbyterian clergymen who officiated alternately in the cathedral of Derry with their Episcopalian brethren. He is buried in Walworth (Bally Kilby) old burying-ground, beside the Hunters and Allisons of Claggan.” The Allisons were old settlers in Claggan, and intermarried with the Morrisons.

Another branch of the Allisons lived at Evisk Hill, as stated, in the immediate vicinity of Londonderry, Ireland. Some of them emigrated to Miramichi, New Brunswick, about 1825 to 1830, and are yet in that locality. Thomas Morrison Allison, of Limavady, Ireland, is as before stated, of this latter family.

CHAPTER XI.

THE ALLISONS OF HOLLAND, AND LATER OF ROCKLAND COUNTY, NEW YORK.

Godfrey McAlestor of Loupe, Scotland, adhered to the cause of James VII, and was at the Battle of Killiecrankie, Scotland; and also at Cromdale, May 1, 1690. Later he went to Ireland, and was at the Battle of the Boyne. He had three sons: Hector McAlestor, or Alison, as the name is alternately called, of Loupe; Charles, who succeeded his brother, and Duncan McAlestor, or Alison, who settled in Holland (had a son, who was a general in the Dutch service and commanded the Scots brigade) and left many descendants. It is possible, and very probable, that this branch of the Allisons sprang from him.

1240. Noah Allison<sup>1</sup> was born in Holland, migrated to the United States, and died in Rockland county, New York. His son 1241. Thomas Allison<sup>2</sup> was born in New York, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1777. He was a sea captain and followed the seas for years. He married Catherine Hoffman, who was born May 26, 1789, and died June 4, 1828. They resided in New York, N. Y. One night the house of Mr. Allison was entered by an Irish sailor, who stabbed him eleven times on the head and breast, and escaped. Mr. Allison lingered for seven years, and died, Nov. 5, 1819, from the effects of the brutal assault. He had lived 42 years, 1 month, 27 days. At the time of the assault the fiend threw Mrs. Allison and one child down into the cellar. After the death of Mr. Allison his widow cared for her family for a few years, and died at Newburgh, N. Y., aged 39 years, 9 days.

CHAPTER XII.

THE ALLISONS OF ORANGE COUNTY, NEW YORK.

The name appears in the records both as Allison and Ellison. Three Allison, Joseph Allison, John Allison, and Richard Allison, settled in Orange county, N. Y. The first mentioned appeared early at Southold, Long Island, N. Y. He and the others may have come directly from the old world, as Southold was a port of entry, and diligent search might fail to reveal his place of origin; or they may have landed in New England, and emigrated later to New York; or, possibly, they may have been offshoots of some Allison or Ellison family given in this book, but where the connecting lines have not been discovered. The similarity of Christian names would argue in favor of the latter proposition. On the other hand, there is a tradition in the family that Joseph Allison came from or near Edinburgh, Scotland. Diligent search has been made, in many offices, books, records, and places, for some clue to their earlier history and for their ancestry, but nothing has been found, and probably nothing more will ever be ascertained than what is given in this book. These Allison were probably brothers.

1281. Joseph Allison,<sup>1</sup> about 1720, was at Southold, Long Island, N. Y., and was a resident there in 1721. He is called "yeoman" in various deeds. In 1725 or 1726 he went to the town of Goshen, Orange county, as one of the first settlers, having previously purchased a large tract of land. In the patent this purchase was called "the Allison tract," and has since been known by that name, is so designated in the Wawayanda patent, and is among the richest lands in the county. The home of Mr. Allison was in Goshen, where he lived till his death in 1755. He made his will in 1752, which is recorded in the surrogate's office in New York, N. Y. His daughters, Christian names not given, married as follows: one daughter married Mr. McNeal, and left a son, William Allison McNeal;<sup>2</sup> another married Mr. Edsall, and left a son, William Allison Edsall;<sup>3</sup> the third daughter married Mr. Jones, and left a son, Micah Allison Jones.<sup>3</sup> Mr. Allison left a money legacy to his granddaughter, Mary Horton,<sup>3</sup> with her mother's wearing apparel. Another legacy was to his grandson, Nathan Moore,<sup>3</sup> who was not of age. He left legacies to Ann Thompson and Margaret Bradner. The following are the known Christian names of his children :

1303. William Allison,<sup>2</sup> m. Martha ———, lived in New York city, and died in 1797. No children. He was a merchant. He was an inn-keeper in New York. Had a wife, Martha. He made his will Jan. 19, 1797, proven Feb. 5, 1797. His brother, John Allison, was then living. Among others mentioned was William, son of Stephen Sears.
1306. Elizabeth Allison,<sup>2</sup> m. Mr. Carpenter. Child: Benjamin Carpenter.<sup>3</sup> She was living Jan. 19, 1797.

1307. Gen. William Allison<sup>2</sup> [1284] (Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was, for that period, a very wealthy farmer and land-owner, and resided on the Drowned Lands, Goshen, Orange county, N. Y. On April 20, 1777, he was a delegate from Orange county, to a convention which met at Kingston to frame the constitution of New York. He was patriotic, and during the Revolutionary War did valiant service as an officer. He was then colonel of the militia, and commanded an Orange County regiment. Forts Clinton and Montgomery were important strongholds on the Hudson river, and garrisoned by the American troops. The British desired free passage over the Hudson's waters. From early spring till late in the fall the militia had been often summoned to the defence of the forts. In September, 1777, Col. William Allison (with other regimental commanders) was ordered to summon his regiment to the defence of Fort Montgomery. The minute men assembled, but not in sufficient numbers. Only a portion of his regiment was present. Thus matters stood on Sunday, Oct. 5, 1777. Then the Sabbath's stillness was disturbed by excited people, who heralded the approach of the enemy's ships on the Hudson for the attack upon the strongholds. On the day following (Oct. 6, 1777) the attack was made by overpowering numbers, and after a stubborn resistance the Americans were defeated with loss. Colonel Allison was taken prisoner, and his son, Micah Allison, was killed.<sup>1</sup> For several months he was a prisoner on board a prison ship, and was exchanged during the following winter. On his return to his home he brought to Governor Clinton two thousand dollars in gold, in aid of the American cause, loaned by a patriotic citizen of Long Island. He commanded a division of the troops in the Battle of Long Island. In the early history of Orange county he was the most distinguished citizen and a prominent military leader. He was a member of the first provincial convention of New York from 1775 to 1777. On April 4, 1782, William Allison was brigadier general in the brigade formed by Allison's, Woodhull's, and Hathorne's regiments; state senator from 1783 to 1786; member of the assembly in 1795, and was judge of the court of common pleas. He married Mary Jackson, and died in 1804. He and his wife are buried opposite his old home on Drowned Lands, in Goshen, N. Y.

CHILDREN.

1308. Micah Allison.<sup>3</sup> He was a soldier, and was killed in the gallant defence of Fort Montgomery, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1777, aged 18 years.

<sup>1</sup>The Elmer family is a very ancient one. There are many of the name in Switzerland, who claim to be able to trace their descent back to the twelfth century, and theorize that before that date the Elmers came from Italy or Greece. In 1006 Elmer, a person of great sanctity, was chosen abbot of the monastery of St. Augustine, at Canterbury, England, and in 1022 was made bishop of Sherburne. After the Norman conquest, in 1016, Elmer, one of the chiefs of William the Conqueror, was holder of several pieces of land, one of which was at Braintree Hundred, county of Essex, England, from thirty to forty miles east of London. John Elmer was a bishop of London in the time of Queen Elizabeth. Representatives of the family are in different countries. Alfred Elmere, a distinguished artist, was a member of the Royal Academy, and died a few years since.

N. Y., Jan. 19, 1758, and died May 24, 1816, aged 58 years, 4 months, 5 days. She died April 20, 1821, aged 58 years, 5 months, 4 days. He was a physician; resided in or near Goshen, N. Y., where he and his wife lived and where they are buried. Dr. Elmer was the son of Dr. Nathaniel Elmer, Sr., and his wife, Ann Thompson. Dr. Nathaniel is said to have been "remarkably humorous." Dr. William Elmer was always a companionable man; was cheerful, and pleasant in his manners, and had a large vein of natural humor. Of Mrs. Elmer, his wife, her daughter, Sarah Maria, said,— "She was a kind, affectionate, self-denying mother, a woman of most correct principles and habits, a decided Christian as was also my father." He and his family were Presbyterians.

He was born in 1815, at Clonakilty, county of Cork, Ireland. It is on the southeast coast.

Edward Elmer, the emigrant ancestor of this American family, was a young man, probably not married, when he left England. He was a Puritan, and left England to escape the persecution to which that sect was subjected, as did those who came with him. It is probable that he came from the county of Essex, as did many of his fellow-passengers, and likely from Braintree, where Rev. Thomas Hooker preached before he came to New England. He with 123 passengers came in the ship Lion, which arrived in Boston, Mass., Sept. 16, 1632, having been twelve weeks on the ship and eight weeks from "Land's End." He settled first at Newton, now Cambridge, Mass., with Rev. Thomas Hooker and the others, and in June, 1635, he, with Mr. Hooker and his congregation, removed to Hartford, Conn., where he settled. Later he removed to Northampton, Mass., and returned to Hartford. He owned a farm at South Windsor, Conn., where he was killed by the Indians during King Philip's War, in 1676. A part of his farm is still owned by his descendant, Samuel E. Elmore, of Hartford, Conn. The emigrant, Edward Elmer, married Mary ———. Their son, Samuel Elmer,<sup>2</sup> married Elizabeth ———, and lived in Hartford, Conn. Their son, Dea. Jonathan Elmer,<sup>3</sup> married Mary ———, and lived in Norwalk, Conn. Their youngest son, Dr. Nathaniel Elmer,<sup>4</sup> married Anne Thompson. Their son, Dr. William Elmer,<sup>5</sup> married Mary Allison, as mentioned above. (From MS. of Samuel E. Elmore, of Hartford, Conn.)

1383. Isaac Allison<sup>3</sup> [1322] (Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was a soldier of the Revolution, and served at Fort Stanwix, now Rome, N. Y. While there a messmate gave him his powder horn, still most carefully preserved, and (in 1893) in the possession of his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Sarah (Vail) Divers, of Middletown, N. Y. It is an interesting and handsome relic of that war. Upon it is beautifully engraved a picture of the fort with the surrounding houses and the church steeple of a village. It bears this inscription (fac-simile):

PETER VANORDER
HIS HORN
MADE AT FORT STAN-WIX NOVEMBER THE
17 1780.

While Mr. Allison was in the army, his wife and family were at home, in charge of the farm during his absence. Often during that trying period the Indians came to the home of Mrs. Allison. She treated them with kindness, gave them food, won their good will, and their assurance, that to her and hers, no harm should come from them.

He married Mary Davis, whose brother, Benjamin Davis, lived near the Allison homestead, near Amity, Orange county, N. Y. Mount Adam and Mount Eve rear their summits near this old home. Mr. Allison lived on the homestead. He was of medium stature, of light complexion with blue eyes and dark hair. Following rigidly the style of those early years, he did not change with the changing fashion, but wore his hair, which was at least two feet in length, braided, and tied up with a ribbon, into a cue. This style he followed till his death. The land he owned was extensive. He sold portions to Nathan Furman, Timothy Roe, Jed Sears, and John Gardner. He then gave his son Isaac a farm, and had enough land remaining for himself. In his time there was no church edifice in Amity, and he attended public worship in a school-house. He died in 1825, and is buried in the family burying ground, near the old farm-house. This cemetery, which forms part of a knoll, contains about three fourths of an acre, which, with the road leading to it, is still the property of the Allisons. Mrs. Allison was a very energetic woman. After the death of her husband, she removed to Ohio with her children, died there, and is buried in Newark, or Norwalk, Ohio.

She married Mahlon Ford, who died March 23, 1888. She lived in Newark, N. J., till 1870, and then removed to St. Louis, Mo.; is buried in Newark, N. J. In a letter written in 1874 she says, "I, an only daughter, was loved and indulged all I ought to be; had a very happy childhood, girlhood, and youth; hardly knew anything about care or sorrow; had all the necessaries, most of the comforts, and many of the luxuries of life. At nineteen the first real sorrow of my life occurred in the death of my dearly loved father. I had then come into possession of the property left me by my Grandfather Allison, who was a very extensive, wealthy farmer. Next, to fill my cup of sorrow to the brim, my beloved mother, who was living with us, died of apoplexy."

1425. Isaac Allison<sup>4</sup> [1384] (Isaac,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Warwick, near Amity, Orange county, N. Y., April 10, 1787; died Jan. 1, 1835. He was of medium size, with light complexion, blue eyes, and dark hair. His heart was full of kindness, and he was fond of merriment and wit. He loved children. In morals he was strict, was the friend and helper of those less fortunate than himself, and was industrious and frugal. About one mile from the Allison homestead was built the first Presbyterian church in Amity, which he aided in erecting. To this day the Allisons own a pew in that church, although there is no one of the family living there to occupy it. He, his wife, and his sister Sarah were members of that church. All of his sons and daughters were Presbyterians, except his daughter Mary, wife of Egbert Mills, who was a member of the Calvary Baptist church in New York, N. Y. The beloved pastors who ministered to the church in Amity during Mr. Allison's lifetime were Rev. Mr. Hopkins and his successor, Rev. William Timlow. The latter often held neighborhood prayer-meetings at the Allison home. When the pastor came to make a pastoral call at the Allison home, the dinner horn was blown, calling the workmen from the fields, that they might be present with the family at prayers. During the last war with Great Britain, Mr. Allison was drafted into the service. He served for a time, and then returned home on account of sickness in the family, and his place in the army was supplied by his brother, Nathaniel Allison. The work of his life was well executed. In the strength of the years of his mature manhood (being in his forty-eighth year) the summons for his departure came. When he was dying he called his children to his bedside, laid his hand lovingly on their foreheads, and upon them invoked the blessings of God. He married his second cousin, Sarah, daughter of James and Amy (Knapp) Allison of Ridgbury, Orange county, N. Y. She was born May 13, 1794. Her father lived on a very large and beautiful farm, about ten miles from Amity, town of Wawayanda, Orange county, N. Y. Mrs. Allison was an attractive woman, of medium stature, light complexioned, with rosy cheeks, dark hair, and black eyes. She was a devout Christian, generous in her nature and acts, and often ministered to the necessities of the sick and suffering. A great bereavement came to her. Within a space of nine days her husband and her sons, Gabriel and Andrew, were removed by death. She bravely took up life's burden, looking for strength to the God of the widow and the fatherless. So carefully did she train her sons and daughters, that they in mature years called her blessed. When their own locks were "whitened with the snow that never melts," tenderly and lovingly they spoke of her to their children and grandchildren, gratefully acknowledging her solicitous care during their childhood and youth.

1491. Richard Allison Elmer<sup>6</sup> [1402] (Micah Allison Elmer,<sup>5</sup> Elizabeth Allison,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Sussex Co., N. Y., Aug. 28, 1808. He was grandson of Dr. William Elmer, of Goshen, N. Y., and Richard Allison, of Wawayanda, N. Y., and a descendant of Edward Elmer, who came to America in 1632, and settled in Hartford, Conn., in 1636, and was one of the original proprietors of the site of the city. Thrown upon his own resources at an early age, he also had the care and responsibility of the education of his brothers and sisters. He was a farmer. Under his guidance one brother entered college and became a clergyman, and the other engaged in business. Through the influence of his brother, Rev. Nathaniel Elmer, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Waverly, N. Y., he, in Nov., 1850, was induced to locate in that place. His business was insurance and real estate. He became closely identified with the interests and growth of that town. With its schools and churches, and matters pertaining to the advancement of the morals of the community, he was always interestedly connected. He was quiet and unobtrusive in his manners. He married, Sept. 11, 1832, Charlotte, daughter of Col. Jonathan and Catherine (Stewart) Bailey, of Wawayanda, N. Y., who died Sept. 4, 1882. He d. Aug. 8, 1867. He and his wife and children were Presbyterians.

CHILDREN.

1492. Howard Elmer,<sup>7</sup> was b. in Wawayanda, Orange Co., N. Y., August 2, 1833. He prepared for college at the Ridgebury and Goshen academies, but delicate health prevented the taking of his course. In November, 1850, his parents moved to Waverly, N. Y., his father's brother, Nathaniel Elmer, being then the pastor of the Presbyterian church there. Soon after removing to Waverly, then seventeen years of age, he entered the Waverly bank, after which he was employed in the Chemung Canal bank, and the First National bank of Elmira. In 1864 he organized the First National bank, of Waverly, and was its cashier until 1868, when he became its president, which position he held until the time of his death. In 1870 he associated with him C. L. Anthony, of New York, James Fritcher, and his brother Richard, of Waverly, and purchased about 1,000 acres of land, on which Sayre is now situated. On the death of Mr. Anthony, a few years later, he induced the Packer family, E. P. Wilbur, and Robert Lockhart of South Bethlehem to assume the Anthony interest, and this resulted in the location of the Lehigh shops at Sayre and the consequent growth and development of that village. Mr. Elmer was a potent factor in this development, and it was mainly to his faith in the future of the village, his planning, his encouragement, and his indefatigable efforts, that it owes its growth and prosperity. Through his encouragement the Cayuga Wheel foundry, the Sayre pipe foundry and Sayre steam forge was built. He also built the Sayre and Athens water-works. For several years past he has been president and active manager of the companies named, and also of the Sayre Land company. He was also the director of the Pennsylvania & New York Railroad company and the Geneva & Sayre Railroad company, treasurer of the Geneva & Buffalo railroad, and a trustee of the Robert Packer hospital at Sayre. He has been a member of the board of education of Waverly, but never held political office. He was an ardent Republican, but not active in politics, the work being distasteful to him.

Mr. Elmer was a man of cultured literary tastes, unostentatious, courteous, and honorable. On questions of general welfare he was broad-minded, public-spirited, and progressive; and in his death his locality lost one who labored most assiduously for its prosperity: one whose place in the community, church, and all good works will not readily be filled. He was one of the trustees of the Presbyterian church of this place, of which society he has been a member for upwards of twenty years. The pastor of the Presbyterian church at Binghamton, N. Y., writes,—“Howard Elmer impressed me as being a very pure, thoughtful, and lovable spirit. He spoke of the Saviour as One who walked with him, and of the church as an object of love and dear desire.” He m., Oct. 10, 1865, Sarah P. Perkins, dau. of George A. and Julia A. 1514. Rev. Nathaniel Elmer<sup>5</sup> [1405] (Elizabeth Allison,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was born at Wantage, N. J., Jan. 31, 1816; was graduated at Union college in 1840, and at Union Theological seminary in New York in 1843, and died at Middletown, N. Y., July 11, 1884. The following notice is prepared from an obituary of him by Rev. Charles

Elmer Allison, of Yonkers-on-the-Hudson: "Among the thirty-nine names on the roll of the Hudson, New York, Presbytery, the name of Rev. Nathaniel Elmer stood the first. His name, so long enrolled among God's ministers on earth, has been transferred to those pages which carry the names of victorious saints. After his life journey of sixty-eight years, the pilgrim's staff has dropped from his hand, and he is safe home. It is a privilege to lay a wreath on his grave, to pay a tribute to the memory of one whose words were 'like apples of gold in baskets of silver.' His nature was gentle; meekness and kindness dwelt in his heart and spoke through his lips. The churches at Stanhope, Circleville, Waverly, Avon, Belmont, and Emporium, to which he ministered, bear grateful witness that his life was a sermon. He always spoke of the everlasting truths of the Bible with the accent of conviction. With the docility of a child, and with contrite heart he listened to the words of Scripture. The closing years of his life were spent in retirement in Middletown, N. Y., where he looked with thoughtful eyes upon the world's affairs, but with profound and loving interest upon his Redeemer's growing kingdom. His death was as peaceful as his faith was firm. His family, and God's church on earth, and the unforgotten friends and beloved Master above were the magnets of his loving thought. His life ended with the day, and for him 'at evening time it was light.' He married, in 1845, Caroline, daughter of Rev. John Ford, of Parsippany, Morris county, N. J. She lived but six months after marriage. He married second, in 1849, Mary A. Post, b. July 26, 1826. She was daughter of James Post, of Middletown, N. Y. His widow and daughter reside in Middletown, N. Y."

1540. Isaac William Allison<sup>5</sup> [1429] (Isaac,<sup>4</sup> Isaac,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was born at the "old homestead," near Amity, in the town of Warwick, Orange county, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1820, and was an Orange county farmer and merchant, and lived at Slate Hill, and at the homestead near Amity and Edenville, also in Unionville and at Chester, Orange county, N. Y. He married, Feb. 6, 1845, Teresa Amelia, the youngest daughter of Micah Allison Elmer, a granddaughter of Dr. William Elmer, of Goshen, N. Y., and of Richard Allison, of Wawayanda, Orange county, N. Y. She was great-granddaughter of Dr. Nathaniel Elmer, of Florida, N. Y., and of Gen. William Allison, of Goshen, N. Y. She was a descendant of Edward Elmer, a Puritan, who came to America in the ship Lion, in 1632, settled in Hartford, Conn., in 1636, where he was one of the early proprietors. She was born Nov. 6, 1819, and was educated at Chester academy, N. Y. She was attractive in person, cheerful, and affectionate in her disposition. Her mind was clear and strong and bright, and she had a profound interest in all that was good. She was a member of the Presbyterian church at Chester, where the family lived many years. During the war she was secretary of a society of ladies who furnished articles to the Sanitary commission for the Union soldiers in hospital and field. In her own village the poor knew her as their friend. In all her relations as daughter, sister, wife, and mother, she was true and faithful. She was a Christian, and her life was sweet with tenderness and rich in counsel. Her children rise up and call her blessed. She lived to see her two sons graduated from Hamilton college, and Howard, the elder, a practising lawyer. She died before her son Charles Elmer had entered the Union Theological seminary, where he completed his preparation for the Christian ministry. She entered into rest Sept. 27, 1870, and was buried in the family lot in the Chester cemetery.

“Happy he
With such a mother! faith in womankind
Beats with his blood, and trust in all things high Comes easy to him.”

Mr. Allison was a person of great industry. He loved learning, and by reading the best works supplemented his slender early education. He and his wife made many sacrifices that they might give their surviving children a liberal education. They and their sons were members of the Presbyterian church in Chester, N. Y. He was a Republican in politics, and clerk of his town.

Mr. Allison married, second, April 3, 1873, Elizabeth Adelia, daughter of Samuel and Nancy (Parcel) Gardner, who was born near Florida, Orange county, N. Y., and who now lives at Oxford Depot, N. Y. Her grandparents were Samuel and Hannah (Owen) Gardner, of Long Island, N. Y. Mr. Allison died in Chester, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1881, and with his first wife and deceased children is buried in the family lot in Chester, N. Y. His father and grandfather are buried in the family lot near Amity, N. Y., about eight miles from Chester, Orange county, N. Y.

He was only five years of age at his father's death. He was educated at Unionville and at the academy in Chester, N. Y. Before he was fourteen he went into the printing office of The True Whig at Goshen, N. Y. Later, this paper was united with The Goshen Democrat, published by Mead and Webb, and was the confidential organ of Hon. William H. Seward. In 1851 Mr. Allison went to the city of New York, and, with Charles Mead of the Erie Railroad printing office, in 1852, he purchased the Newburgh Gazette, which he published till 1856. In the latter year he became an editor of the New York Evening Mirror, a daily. In 1862 he purchased The Working Farmer, and later united with it The National Agriculturist. This paper he edited for fifteen years and then disposed of it. In 1869 he purchased, of James O. Kane, the book plant at the corner of Beekman and Nassau streets in New York, since which time he has been in the book business and has published about two hundred and fifty works. He is the author of "Allison's Revision of Webster's Cou House Dictionary," which in its several editions has attained a circulation of half a million copies. He revised Cushing's Manual, "The Arctic Discovery in the Nineteenth Century," and edited Plutarch, Cooper, and other works. The home of Mr. Allison has been in New York city, Norwalk, Conn., and other places. Their residence is now 76 Hancock street, Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Allison died there March 4, 1893.

1605. Richard Allison Elmer<sup>7</sup> [1496] (Richard Allison Elmer,<sup>6</sup> Micah Allison Elmer,<sup>5</sup> Elizabeth Allison,<sup>4</sup> Richard,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). He was born at Wawayanda, Orange county, N. Y., June 16, 1842; d. Oct. 1, 1888. He graduated at Hamilton college in 1864; studied law, was admitted to the bar, then entered his brother's bank at Waverly, N. Y., where he was cashier for twelve years. There he resided till his removal to the city of New York. In 1870 he became interested in the organization of the Sayre Land company, under which was built up that thriving village. He was director of the First National Bank, the Sayre water company, the Cayuga wheel foundry, the Sayre pipe foundry, and the Sayre steam forge company. In 1881 he was appointed, by President Garfield, second assistant postmaster-general, and held this position for three years, where he was a most faithful and efficient officer. In 1884 he resigned, and organized the American Surety company at New York city, became its president, and remained such until his death at his home in New York, 54 West 20th street. He was a man of high character and greatly admired. As a banker and president of the American Surety company, he proved that he had "a genius for business." He married, June 16, 1870, Sarah France, of Middletown, N. Y. She was daughter of J. F. and Isabella France. She with her children live in the city of New York.

CHILDREN BORN WAVERLY, N. Y.

1606. Robert France Elmer,<sup>8</sup> b. July 3, 1871. He was a member of the scientific department of Yale college in 1888, and left college on account of his father's death.
1607. Richard Allison Elmer,<sup>8</sup> b. Nov. 10, 1875. He is a student preparing for Columbia college.
1608. Charles Howard Elmer,<sup>8</sup> b. Jan. 29, 1878. He is a student making preparations to enter Columbia college.

Elmer, was founder and president. Mr. Allison has a wide knowledge of the department of law to which he has given his attention. He is a member of the college Greek letter society, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and is also a director in the Sydenham post-graduate course and hospital of the city of New York. He is a director of the New York, Boston, Albany, & Schenectady Railway company, and director and president of the "Allison Drug Company" of New York city, and of Orange, N. J., and director and vice-president of "The Chappaqua Mineral Spring Company." He married, Jan. 2, 1872, Edith A., daughter of George and Ellen (Douglass) Thurber, who was born, Nov. 14, 1849, at Patchogue, Long Island, New York. Residence, Hempstead, Queens county, Long Island, N. Y.

1615. Charles Elmer Allison<sup>6</sup> [1542] (Isaac W.,<sup>5</sup> Isaac,<sup>4</sup> Isaac,<sup>3</sup> Isaac,<sup>2</sup> Joseph<sup>1</sup>). Rev. Charles E. Allison was born at Slate Hill, town of Wawayanda, Orange county, N. Y., July 21, 1847. On his maternal side he is the eighth generation in descent from Edward Elmer, a Puritan, who came from England to Boston, Mass., in 1632, and settled at Hartford, Conn., in 1636, as one of the original proprietors of the site of the city. His childhood was spent at the homestead, near Amity, and at Chester, N. Y. He united with the Presbyterian church in Chester, March 5, 1865. His preparatory course was received at the Chester academy, where he won the first prize for excellence of declamation. He entered Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y., where he was graduated in 1870. During his junior year he was appointed one of the Clark prize orators of his class.

His theological studies were pursued at Union Theological seminary, New York, N. Y., where he graduated in May, 1874, and was licensed to preach by the Hudson, N. Y., Presbytery, April 21, 1875. During his senior year in the seminary he preached in Yonkers, N. Y., and also after his graduation. On April 21, 1879, he assisted in the organization of the Dayspring Presbyterian church in Yonkers, and was ordained and installed over that church by the Westchester presbytery April 30, 1879.

HOWARD ALLISON.

EDITH THURBER ALLISON.

TERESA ELMER ALLISON.

REV. CHARLES ELMER ALLISON.

LIZZIE ELMER ALLISON.

Mr. Allison is a member of the Greek letter college fraternity, Delta Kappa Epsilon, of the presbytery of West Chester, N. Y., of which he was moderator in 1886, the Pastor's association of New York, N. Y., the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument association of Yonkers, the Historical society of Yonkers, the Westchester county Historical society, and president of the Yonkers Clerical association in 1892. His favorite studies have been belles-lettres, theology, and the principles of persuasive public speech. The Yonkers Daily Herald, Dec. 9th, 1891, has the following:

Rev. Dr. Cole said on Tuesday evening, in accepting the gift of a costly oil portrait from the citizens of Yonkers, that they could not have selected a more acceptable presenter than the Rev. Charles E. Allison; and we fully endorse the doctor's remarks. Unboundedly popular with Yonkers audiences, both young and old, and wonderfully adapted to the demands of public speech, he could not have been surpassed as the orator of the occasion. His long companionship with the doctor in that ministry of which both are such worthy exemplars, gave him opportunities that a stranger could not have embraced, and the emblematic eloquence of his oration was rendered doubly impressive by the tender sentiment that characterized the speaker. It was a beautiful address, and will be long remembered by those who were privileged to hear it.

For the press he is a frequent contributor, and is the author of the "History of Hamilton College." In politics Mr. Allison is a Prohibitionist, and is "a zealous and active laborer in the temperance cause, and has given to it his time and talents. He takes the high ground that the Bible and the ballot are the two best weapons for the overthrow of intemperance, and his published utterances indicate that he is fixed in purpose and strong in faith in the prayers and final triumph of temperance through moral and legal means." (From the recent work, "Church and Sunday-School Work in Yonkers, N. Y.," by Agnes E. Kirkwood.)

Rev. David Cole, D. D., of Yonkers, N. Y., said, in a historical sketch of that city,—“During his ministry in Yonkers Mr. Allison has been a most active, zealous, and popular minister, and a most effective and successful worker. In the pulpit he is clear, direct, and impressive. All his sermons are warm and magnetic. He is a close student and a good thinker. And above all, he is noted for a kind heart and for a profound interest in all that belongs to the higher needs of the people. Too much cannot be said for his devotion to his work and its useful results to his own church and the city. He is always ready to respond to the calls for service, and is especially acceptable as a reader and speaker in every social gathering that may be held.” The flashes of wit and glow of humor which brighten his addresses increase his popularity as a speaker. A specimen of his oratory is an oration, entitled, "The Monument's Message," which he delivered to a great audience in Music Hall, Yonkers-on-the-Hudson, on Memorial Day. It was published in full in the daily papers of that city, May 31, 1893.

In this "History of the Allison Family," Rev. Mr. Allison has taken a deep and active interest, from the moment that he knew the work was in progress to its consummation, and I am greatly indebted for facts of interest and for aid, especially in the preparation of the history of his own branch of the family. He is unmarried. Resides at Yonkers, N. Y.

GOSHEN, N. Y., RECORDS.

This information is taken from the oldest personal records of the First Presbyterian church of Goshen, Orange county, N. Y. The first entry is dated Dec., 1773. These records are in the possession of Charles G. Elliott, Esq., of Goshen, who is a descendant in the seventh generation from Elliott, the early missionary to the Indians.

The Goshen church was organized evidently as early as 1721, but the early records were probably burned, as well as the town records, as they are not to be found.

The following records of Allisons and others are not woven into the genealogies:

Joseph Allison, Sept. 4, 1775, was an elder in the Presbyterian church in Goshen, N. Y., when a petition for a charter was made.

Henry Allison, m. Hannah Jackson Nov. 18, 1776.

Richard Allison, m. Amy Case Sept. 15, 1777.

Mary Allison, daughter of Richard Allison and Mary Case his wife, b. Aug. 21, 1779.

Margaret Allison was wife of John McNeal. Children: William Allison McNeal, baptized Aug. 25, 1776. Thomas McNeal, baptized Aug. 25, 1776. Joseph McNeal, baptized Jan. 1, 1778.

Mary Allison, m. John McNeal Dec. 24, 1780.

Elizabeth Allison, daughter of John Allison, b. Oct. 21, 1775.

Michael Allison, son of John Johnes and Hannah Jackson his wife, b. April 4, 1779.

William Allison, m. Mary Graham Jan. 10, 1789.

Mary Allison, m. Nathaniel Harrison April 26, 1790.

Hamilton Morrison, m., Nov. 20, 1817, or May 23, 1818, Maria Miller.

OTHER RECORDS.

On Jan. 20, 1611, John Allison and Thomasin White were married at St. Mary, White Chapel, London, Eng.

In 1737, John Allison was an attorney in Orange Co., N. Y. In 1748, William Allison was a surgeon in New York, N. Y.

The following Allisons, Allistons, are found on the muster rolls of the state of New York. Vol. III:

1616. Van Ransaellaer Allison, 18 yrs. old, was in Co. G, 86th Reg't, N. Y. Vols.; enlisted at Canisteo, N. Y.
 1617. William Allison, aged 29, was in Co. G, 86th Reg't, N. Y. Vols.; enlisted at Canisteo, N. Y.
 1618. William I. Allison, aged 20, was in Co. F, 95th Reg't, N. Y. Vols.; enlisted at Haverstraw, Rockland Co., N. Y.
 1619. Cornelius Allison, aged 20, was in Co. F, 95th Reg't, N. Y. Vols.; enlisted at Haverstraw, Rockland Co., N. Y.
 1620. Joseph Allison was in Co. A, 70th Reg't, N. Y. Vols. This company was recruited at Paterson, N. J., and in the city of New York.
 1621. Frank Alliston, 23 yrs. old, was a private in Co. K, 72d Reg't, N. Y. Vols. This company was recruited in New York, N. Y.

“The History of Monmouth and Ocean Counties, N. J.,” has the following:

1622. John Ellison is named as a witness in court proceedings in 1705.
 1623. Richard Ellison's will was dated March 5, 1719, proven Dec. 23, 1723.
 1624. Daniel Ellisen was taxed in Freehold, N. J., in 1776, for eighty-six acres of land and other property.
 These parties all lived in Monmouth and Ocean counties, N. J.

REFERENCES FROM THE COLONIAL HISTORY OF NEW YORK.

From that interesting work published by the state of New York, entitled “Documents Relative to Colonial History of the State of New York,” procured in Holland, England, and France by John Romeyer Broadhead, Esq., agent of the legislature to procure and transcribe documents in Europe relative to the colonial history of the state, and edited by E. B. O'Callaghan, M. D., LL. D., the following references are taken:

On Sept. 3, 1664, Sir Robert Carr, at Fort James in New York, was ordered to subdue the Dutch at Fort Delaware. The fort was stormed and captured Oct. 13, 1664. He reported to Colonel Nichols, and requested him to send him two men, whose services he needed, in these words,—“Lett mee begg ye favor of you to send Mr. Allison and Mr. Thompson, the one to ye reedifying of the fort, ye other to fix our arms.”—Vol. III, p. 74.

The Christian name of Mr. Allison is not given.

A number of loyal citizens of New York city, adherents of King William (Prince of Orange) and his wife, Queen Mary (New York was then an English province), drew up a document declaring their abhorrence to illegal proceedings of certain men in the province. It was to have been presented Jan. 25, 1689, to the mayor's court; but before that date persons of note were seized, houses broken open, so it was not thought safe to proceed in the matter. One of these usurpers was Jacob Leyster, a captain of a train band. On Aug. 16, 1689, he captured the fort, and by force of arms dragged thereto many persons of note. Among them was Mr. Robert Allison, a merchant and considerable trader in the city and province of New York.—Vol. III, p. 673. (Robert Allison is also indexed Robert Allinson.)

Leyster was arbitrary, and claimed the title of lieutenant-governor. Later on, Robert Allison and others assaulted Leyster. On June 6, 1690, Robert Allison and about forty others went to the city hall and said it was their day to get the prisoners out of the fort. They gave "two or three huzzas" (according to depositions taken June 8, 1690), and went toward the fort. On the way they met Captain Leyster, who claimed to be lieutenant-governor, and "there beset him close." Allison seized his sword to wrest it from him. During the scrimmage Leyster was roughly handled.

On Dec. 30, 1701, the Protestants of New York sent an address to King William III expressing their loyalty, and asking to be relieved of evils brought upon them by those who were divesting the king's subjects of their rights and possessions, and dividing the same among themselves and their confederates. This was signed by many citizens. Among the signatures were those of Robert Allison, John Ellison, and Thomas Ellisson.

Oct. 2, 1702. Among the chief inhabitants who signed an address to Lord Cornbury, governor of New York, were Robert Allison, Thomas Ellyseen, John Ellison. In a list of the freeholders and inhabitants of the county of Albany, N. Y., dated Dec. 30, 1701, is the name of Tennis Ellissen.

OCCURRENCE IN CANADA DURING THE YEAR 1747-'48.

In a letter dated "Cahos, Oct. 20, 1747," the French commander says,—“We have three Englishmen well treated and closely watched—John Hawkes, Matthew Ellison, and John Taylor.” Hawkes commanded Fort Massachusetts in 1746.

Lt. Gov. James DeLancey wrote as follows:

New York, Jan. 31, 1755. Yesterday the Lieutenant-Colonels (Robert Ellison and Mercer) came to this town. I have ordered horses to be got for them to carry them to Connecticut in their way to Boston, for which place they will set out as soon as the weather permits.—Vol. VI, p. 235.

The 44th Reg't of Foot was commanded by Colonel Ellison, who was succeeded by James Abercromby March 13, 1756.

In 1687 complaint was entered by the Royal African Company of England against Robert Allison for infringement of the charter by importing negroes, elephants' teeth, etc., into New York from Africa. In the same year he was charged with making a threat that he would "take the Ketch Adventure." In 1688 he petitioned to retain an Indian slave to be purchased in Honduras, which was rejected.

Robert Allison had license to marry Hannah Bray, Nov. 29, 1693.

On Sept. 15, 1704, he made his will; proved July 18, 1705. He was a resident of New York city, and had a wife, Hannah. He had a brother, Thomas Allison, apparently deceased, who had a son, Robert Allison, to whom Robert Allison first named gave one third of his real estate when twenty-one years of age. In case Robert Allison, the younger, dies before that time, the property was to go to the "loving sister" of Robert, Sr., Sarah Holmes, living in Bridgewater in kingdom of England.

He also remembered Hannah Allison, daughter of his brother, Thomas Allison. This nephew and niece lived at his house in New York city.

Rip Van Dam and William Smith, executors.

Inventory of this estate taken March 28, 1706.

THE ELLISONS. UNASSIGNED RECORDS.

The following records were taken in Oct., 1891, by the author, from the surrogate's office in the city of New York, and from the records of the different counties of New Jersey, previous to 1804, which are kept in the office of the secretary of state, at Trenton, N. J., and from the records of Suffolk county, Mass., at Boston, Mass.

William Ellison, of Elizabeth, N. J., sold land Feb. 6, 1688. On Oct. 7, 1695, or Feb. 20, 1696, then of Woodbridge, N. J., he bought land of Capt. Samuel Walker, late of Boston, Mass., merchant, now of Piscataqua, N. J. On March 27, 1707, he made his will, proven Aug. 19, 1707. He had a wife, Mary Ellison, and children, Enoch Ellison and Emma Ellison.

John Ellison, merchant, of the city of New York, bought land of Hannah, widow of William Barton, in Perth Amboy, N. J., Nov. 22, 1699. He had, on Nov. 7, 1699, bought land in Middletown, N. J.

John Ellison, of New York, N. Y., made his will Oct. 12, 1718. He mentions his wife, Eleanor Ellison, his son, John Ellison, Jr., William Ellison, Thomas Ellison, Joseph Ellison, his sister, Elizabeth Finch, and his brother, William Ellison in England.

John Ellison, Jr., of New York, N. Y., was a merchant like his father. He made his will July 11, 1725. He mentions his wife, Mary Ellison, his eldest son, John Ellison, Jr., his daughter, Mary Ellison, and his brothers, William Ellison, Thomas Ellison, Joseph Ellison.

In the previous year, March 2, 1724, the three brothers of this John Ellison—William Ellison of New York, N. Y., a mariner, Thomas Ellison of the county of Ulster, merchant, and Joseph Ellison of the city of New York, mariner,—"three of the sons of John Ellison, late of the city of New York, merchant," relinquished all claim to some land in Perth Amboy, N. J. This brother John had relinquished to them various messuages in New York and elsewhere in that province.

William Ellison made his will Dec. 13, 1725. He mentions his wife, Mary Ellison, lands, slaves, etc., in Virginia and North Carolina, and property in the province of New York. He mentions his brother, Thomas Ellison, and gives this property to him at the death of his wife, including "two Indian boys named North and South."

Joseph Ellison made his will Dec. 15, 1732, and mentions his brother, John Ellison, his wife, Margaret Ellison, and his brother, Thomas Ellison.

Joseph Ellison, of Shrewsbury, N. J., bought land of Arthur Brown, March 1, 1731.

Joseph Ellison, of New Brunswick, county of Middlesex, N. J., apparently the same as above, made his will May 9, 1739; proven June 9, 1739. He had wife, Martha Ellison, and children, Anna Ellison, Mary Ellison, and daughter-in-law Ann ———. Thomas Allison was one of the executors.

Thomas Ellison, of Hempstead, N. Y., Queen's Co., "on Nassau Island," N. Y., bought land in New Jersey, called Havorsneck, of Walter and Mary Newman, one hundred and sixty-four acres, Sept. 4, 1708.

Thomas Ellison of Shrewsbury, county of Monmouth, N. J., yeoman, bought land in that town of John Lawrence, June 16, 1709.

Thomas Ellison, of Perth Amboy, N. J., husbandman, on March 20, 1723, and Seth Allison, carpenter, passed a legal document in relation to land.

Thomas Ellison, of Shrewsbury, N. J., bought land in that place, Jan. 21, 1739, of Beriah Goddard, of Dartmouth, Mass.

Thomas Ellison, of Shrewsbury, N. J., on April 13, 1762, bought land there of James Towney, of Buck's Co., Penn. He made his will Sept. 10, 1766; proven Dec. 1, 1770. He had a wife, Margaret Ellison. He had a daughter, Anna Ellison, who married Mr. Allen, and had a son, Samuel Allen. He had daughters,—Elizabeth Ellison, who married Mr. Morris, Rebecca Ellison, Hannah Ellison; sons,—Amos Ellison, Lewis Ellison, Thomas Ellison, and granddaughters,—Elizabeth and Mary Ellison.

FROM SUFFOLK COUNTY RECORDS, AT BOSTON, MASS.

Thomas Ellison, Jr., of the city of New York. Merchant. He married Mary Peck, Nov. 10, 1761. He and wife, Mary (Peck) Ellison, and Hannah Peck of the same place, spinster, two of the six daughters of and co-heirs of Benjamin Peck, late of the city of New York, deceased, sold July 9, 1771, to Jeremiah Leaming, of Norwalk, Conn., their part of land and wharfs at Boston, Mass., which belonged to Benjamin Peck, which he got from his father, Thomas Peck.

William Ellison, of Boston, Mass., Oct. 28, 1773, sold land to Thomas Hill.

OTHER RECORDS.

Thomas Ellison, of New Windsor, Ulster Co., N. Y., made will Sept. 18, 1789, mention of his sons—Thomas Ellison, John Ellison, William Ellison, and daughters—Eleanor Ellison, Mary Ellison, and Margaret (Ellison) Croke.

Thomas Ellison, of New York city; will dated Feb. 1, 1796. He mentions his eldest son, Thomas Ellison, daughter, Sarah Lumberson; to son Joseph Ellison one half the land the father lived upon was given. His daughter Martha Buckalew received land of him in Middletown, county of Monmouth, N. J. His son, Samuel Ellison, was deceased, but the sons of the latter, Seth Ellison and Samuel Ellison, were remembered in this will. (See previous notice of Thomas Ellison and Seth Ellison of Perth Amboy, N. J.)

THE ELLISONS OF NEW WINDSOR AND NEWBURG, N. Y.

Cuthbert Ellison<sup>1</sup> was sheriff of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, in 1544, and was mayor in 1549 and to 1554. He had a grandson, Cuthbert Ellison, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The son of the latter, Christopher Ellison, also a resident of Newcastle, was born Jan. 26, 1612; died 1695. He had a son.

John Ellison, born 1688, emigrated to America and settled in New York, N. Y. The history of Orange county, N. Y., p. 214, says that he secured a claim to property in New Windsor, Webster county, N. Y., in 1718, by an investment of £160, and had an additional claim by a loan of £140, in 1721, and perfected the "title to the property in May, 1723."<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup>John Ellison made his will in 1718, but he may not have died till sometime later. He had a brother, William Ellison, in England, as appears from that document. See former quotations from probate records, which give his children. The preceding quotations from probate and other records relating to the Ellisons throw great light upon the Ellison family of New Windsor and Newburg, N. Y., and corroborate some of the information received from a distinct source. The author has not made a special study of the history and genealogy of the Ellisons, but

When his son Thomas Ellison took possession, he erected a stone mansion on the bluff overlooking the river, and a dock and storehouse, and founded the freighting business, which was continued a century by himself and his descendants. His house was occupied by General Washington in 1779 as his head-quarters.

JOHN ELLISON'S CHILDREN.

- I. John Ellison. No record.
- II. Thomas Ellison was a colonel in French and Indian war.
- III. William Ellison. No record.
- IV. Joseph Ellison. No record.

Col. Thomas Ellison, son of John, married Margaret Garbrant in 1723. He built the homestead that year, the house afterwards occupied as Washington's headquarters. He died there.

CHILDREN.

- I. Thomas Ellison, d. young.
- II. Elizabeth Ellison, m. Cadwallader Colden.
- III. Margaret Ellison, m. John Crook, and had one daughter.
- IV. Eleanor Ellison, b. 1730.
- V. Thomas Ellison, b. 1732; m. Mary, daughter of Benjamin Peck. See notice of them and the Peck family from Suffolk Co., Mass., records, p. 244, and Mr. Ellison's will.
- VI. Mary Ellison. Single.
- VII. John Ellison, d. young.
- VIII. John Ellison, m. Catherine Jameson.
- IX. Francis Ellison, d. young.
- X. William Ellison, m. Mary Floyd and had three children.

If the foregoing account of the origin of this family is correct, these Ellisons of Newburgh and New Windsor, N. Y., are not related, on this side the ocean, to the Long Island Ellisons, who were, and are now, the Allisons of Rockland county, N. Y. But it is not improbable that upon the other side the sea they both sprang from a common source, and that, the Allisons of Scotland.

has incorporated what he has himself gleaned, and what has been furnished by others, so that the information would be preserved, and with the hope that it would aid and stimulate the future historian of the Ellison family.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE ALLISONS OF ROCKLAND COUNTY, N. Y.<sup>1</sup>

1625. Lawrence Ellison,<sup>2</sup> the progenitor of this branch of the Allisons, according to "Thompson's History of Long Island, N. Y.," was a Puritan, and came from Watertown, Mass., to Weathersfield, Conn.; removed from there to Stamford, thence to Hempstead, L. I., with other emigrants who accompanied Rev. Richard Denton in 1644. Most of the early families of Hempstead were under his leadership, and came from Hemel, Hempstead, England, about twenty miles from London. Some, however, came from Halifax, County of York, whence Rev. Richard Denton himself emigrated. The latter was for a time minister in Coley Chapel, Halifax. These emigrants are supposed to have been a part of the colony which came across seas with Robert Winthrop and Sir Richard Saltonstall in 1630.

In June, 1643, Lawrence Ellison obtained a verdict of £4 damages against Thomas Marshfield, in particular court, Connecticut. In 1657 he was taxed in Hempstead for twenty-nine acres. From the Hempstead, L. I., town records in 1658, Lawrence and John Ellison became sureties for the good behavior of Lawrence's son-in-law and John's brother-in-law, John Ellington. On Nov. 29, 1658, he had ten acres of land allotted him in Hempstead, L. I. Lawrence Ellison was chosen townsman in 1659. Not long did this early settler of Hempstead continue with the youthful settlement. He died in Hempstead, in the North Riding, Yorkshire, Long Island, N. Y., in 1664. At the court of sessions, held at Hempstead Jan. 2, 1665, letters of administration on his estate were granted to his three sons, Richard, Thomas, and John Ellison. This is the oldest record but one recorded in the surrogate's office in the city of New York. In legal documents he signed his name by "his mark."

<sup>1</sup>I am greatly indebted for information to the "History of Rockland County, New York," published in 1884 by J. B. Beers & Co., 36 Vesey St., New York, N. Y.; edited by Rev. David Cole, D. D. To the "Isaac Kool (Cool or Cole)" genealogy, by Rev. David Cole, D. D., of Yonkers, N. Y., and especially to the "Family Genealogy of Jonathan Barlow and Plain Rogers of Delaware County, New York;" compiled and edited by George Barlow, Esq., of 405 Clermont Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. From the latter work a great deal of my information has, with the permission of the author, been obtained and transcribed.

<sup>2</sup>From the fact that some of the Hempstead colonists came from Yorkshire, Eng., and from the custom of spelling the name Ellison and Allison interchangeably, and from knowledge that some of the Allisons in this book originated from Halifax, Yorkshire, Eng. (see No. 920), where Rev. Richard Denton officiated before coming to America, and his settlement at Hempstead, N. Y., it may not be amiss to state that that locality may have been the place from which came Lawrence Ellison, and the parish records in that place or locality might throw light upon his early history and that of his ancestry.

CHILDREN.

1626. Richard Ellison<sup>2</sup> (1629), res. Hempstead, N. Y. He was b., presumably, about 1620.
 1627. Thomas Ellison<sup>2</sup> (1638), res. Hempstead, N. Y. He was b., presumably, about 1622.
 1628. John Ellison<sup>2</sup> (1645), res. Hempstead, N. Y. He was b., presumably, about 1624.
 — Ellison m. John Ellington; res. Hempstead, N. Y.

1629. Richard Ellison<sup>2</sup> [1626] (Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born, presumably, about 1620. He was evidently at one time a resident of Braintree, Mass., and the peculiar and unusual name of his wife identifies the man. The record of the births of his children appears upon the Braintree records, showing that he was a resident there from 1645 to as late a date as 1660, and that he appears upon the Hempstead records in 1663. The name of his wife, "Thamasin," appears on the records of Braintree, and the same is mentioned in his will. In 1663 he was of Mad Nan's Neck, L. I., a strip of land which was granted that same year to his brothers, John and Thomas Ellison, and Thomas Hicks. In 1673 he was taxed in Hempstead on sixty acres of land. Land was allotted to him in 1677, and the same year more was allotted to him on Hempstead Plains; he was living there in 1682. He made his will Feb. 14, 1680, which is recorded in the surrogate's office in New York city. This was proven June 13, 1683, showing that he died between those dates. In that instrument he gave "unto my loving and well-beloved wife, Tamisen Elison, ten pounds," also the "bed with its furniture she now Lyeth on;" to his son John he gave one hundred and fifty acres of land and "one hors;" to his son Thomas he gave twenty-two acres; and he remembered his sons-in-law, Jonathan Smith and Joshua Jannock. In closing, he recommended his "Dearly beloved children and wife, aforesaid, to the merciful keeping and protection of our most blessed Saviour, Jesus Christ our Lord." Residence, Hempstead, N. Y. The family of "Richard and Thomasin Allison born Brantrey, Mass.," as found upon the records.

CHILDREN.

1630. Mary Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. June 15, 1646. proved with Samuel Marshall 1631. Hanna Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. May 24, 1648. said to be 1632. John Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. June 26, 1650; evidently not married. He left a will dated Nov. 8, 1684, proven in the city of New York, in which he gave his property to his brother, Thomas Allison; res. Hempstead, N. Y. Richard 1633. Sarah Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. Oct. 4, 1652; perhaps m. Joshua Janneck.
1634. Thomas Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. Jan. 1, 1655. He was living Jan. 10, 1688, and received property by his brother's, John Ellison's, will. Richard 1635. Experience Ellison,<sup>3</sup> b. June 2, 1657.
1636. Richard Ellison,<sup>3</sup> (1648), b. Feb. 7, 1660.
1637. Rachael Ellison,<sup>3</sup> m. Jonathan Smith.

1638. Thomas Ellison<sup>2</sup> [1627] (Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born, presumably, about 1622. He was a resident of Hempstead, N. Y., and signed his name by "his mark" to a legal document in 1656. He had ten acres of land in Hempstead allotted to him Nov. 27, 1658; in 1662 was chosen a townsman; in 1663 he became part owner of Mad Nan's Neck; in 1677, at a public meeting, land was allotted him in Hempstead; in same year land was given at Hempstead Plains; in 1685 he was taxed on sixty acres of land and on two hundred and seventy acres; in December, 1696, he conveyed lands in Hempstead to Richard Allison. Thomas Ellison, Sr., died in summer of 1697. His will was dated April 7, 1697, proved at Jamaica, L. I., Dec. 11, 1697. By that document he had wife, Martha Ellison, and several

CHILDREN.

1639. Thomas Ellison,<sup>3</sup> He was in East Jersey in 1702. A Thomas Allison and Cornelia Johnson had license of marriage granted them July 4, 1698.
1640. John Ellison,<sup>3</sup>
1641. Grace Ellison,<sup>3</sup>
1642. Mary Ellison,<sup>3</sup>
1643. Elizabeth Ellison,<sup>3</sup>
1644. Martha Ellison,<sup>3</sup>

1645. John Ellison<sup>2</sup> [1628] (Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born presumably about 1624. John Ellison, then a young man, in company with Rev. Richard Denton and his son, Robert Coe, John Coe, John Karman, Jeremy Wood, Richard Gilder-slieve, William Raynor, John Ogden, Jonas Wood, John Fordham, Edmund Wood, Thomas Armitage, Simon Seiring, Henry Pierson, Robert Jackson, Thomas Sherman, and Francis Yates, in 1644, composed a colony, which, according to the history of Stamford, Conn., were aggrieved at the limited franchises granted the town of Stamford by the New Haven colony, left the jurisdiction of England, and took up land under the Dutch government, on the south side of Long Island, N. Y. This was in 1644. In 1647 land was apportioned to him in Hempstead. In 1656 he signed legal documents by "his mark." In 1658 he became one of the sureties for the good behavior of his brother-in-law, John Ellington. On Nov. 29, 1658, ten acres of land were allotted to him in Hempstead. He was chosen townsman in 1662, and in 1663 land was granted to him and others at Mad Nan's Neck, and this same year he was taxed for thirty acres, and on ten acres, two oxen, and four cows. In 1676 he was chosen overseer. He was granted four acres of land, for which he was required to furnish the town with two gallons of rum to drink. At a public meeting in Hempstead, in 1677, land was given to him, and also land on Hempstead Plains. In 1678 he was chosen constable and real estate valuator. He made no will and his property went to relatives.

CHILD.

1646. John Ellison, Jr.<sup>3</sup> (1656). Res. Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y. In 1677, at a public meeting in that town, land was allotted to him.

1648. Richard Ellison<sup>3</sup> [1636] (Richard,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Braintree, Mass., "7-2-1660," and went early in life to Hempstead with his parents. He was one of a committee to lay out Hempstead Plains in 1685. He then resided in Hempstead. On March 17, 1715, as appears from the records of Queen's county, Long Island, New York, he conveyed land in Hempstead, and signed his name Richard Ellison, but his name was written Richard Allison in the body of the deed. He was called Allison by the witnesses and was indexed Allison. He probably emigrated to Monmouth county, N. J., shortly afterward, as it appears from the records of that county previous to 1804, which are in the secretary of state's office in Trenton, N. J. (as are all other county records of that state previous to that date and after that date at the county seats); he emigrated to Freehold, Monmouth county, N. Y., where he made his will March 5, 1719; probated Dec. 23, 1732. He married Alice, or Elsie ———, who survived him. His son, Daniel Ellison<sup>4</sup>, was executor. He gave to his three sons and daughter, Sarah, his land on Long Island to be divided equally.

CHILDREN.

1649. Daniel Ellison,<sup>4</sup> who received plantation where he dwelt, and perhaps made legal document 1774-'76. Recorded Liber L, secretary of state's office, Trenton, N. J.
 1650. Richard Ellison.<sup>4</sup>
 1651. Samuel Ellison,<sup>4</sup> perhaps made will 1766-'68. Recorded page 154, Book I in secretary of state's office, Trenton, N. J.
 1652. Ruth Ellison.<sup>4</sup>
 1653. Mary Ellison.<sup>4</sup>
 1654. Susannah Ellison.<sup>4</sup>
 1655. Sarah Ellison.<sup>4</sup>

1656. John Allison, Jr.<sup>3</sup>, [1646] (John<sup>2</sup>, Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). The subject of this sketch was the immediate founder of the family of Allisons, which for a number of generations, and a numerous race, have lived, acted life's part, and slept within the soil of Haverstraw, Rockland county, New York. Mr. Allison was born in Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y., and was one of the company that purchased the north part of the Kakiat patent of land in Orange county, the portion which is now in Rockland county, in the year 1719, on which they founded the settlement of New Hempstead, now Ranapo. He became owner of the greater part of De Hart's patent, which included the present townships of Haverstraw and Grassy Point in Orange county, now in Rockland county. In the strength of his manhood and in the hey-day of life, he, with his family, removed to New Hempstead and later to Haverstraw, and founded his home, which remained such till his death. His house stood on the bank of the sparkling Hudson river "on the west side of what is called Allison street and about eight rods north of Main street" in Haverstraw. (History of Rockland county.) From the knowledge we have of his business enterprises, he appears to have been a man of push and executive ability. In the history of Rockland county he is called of the English settlers, i. e., of English descent. He died in 1754, between June 6, when his will was made, and Oct. 21, when it was proven in court. He was probably buried in the old cemetery on the "Neck" near the Minisceongo creek, or in the old Allison burying-ground, some sixty rods east of the former home of Benjamin Allison.

CHILDREN.

1659. Joseph Allison<sup>4</sup> (1673), b. Aug. 3, 1721, or Aug. 4, 1722; d. Jan. 2, 1796. Res. Haverstraw, N. Y.
1660. William Allison,<sup>4</sup> d. about 1758. He was remembered in the will of his father, as was his son, Edward Allison.<sup>5</sup>
1661. Elizabeth Allison,<sup>4</sup> m. Mr. Cuyper.
1662. Deborah Allison,<sup>4</sup> m. John Johnson.
1665. Richard Allison,<sup>4</sup> was a physician and died before his father in 1749. He made a will Jan. 9, of that year, witnessed by his brother, John Allison, and Cornelius C. Cuyper, probably his brother-in-law and sister Elizabeth's husband. His father was executor. He divided his estate between his brothers and sisters, who were then all living, and left legacies to his friend, Phebe Hubs, and to her children, Richard Hubs and Hannah Hubs. These Hubses seem to have been inmates of his father's household, relationship, if any, not known. His father remembered her by his will in 1754, and mentions her daughter, Priscilla Hubs. Dr. Allison res. in Haverstraw, N. Y.

1666. Benjamin Allison<sup>4</sup> [1657] (John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born probably in New Hempstead, N. Y., as his father helped to found that place in 1720. The date of his birth is unknown. He resided in Haverstraw, N. Y., in a house built in 1754, of brown stone blocks, located at the meeting of two roads, the Grassy Point road and the old Benson road, and north of the First Presbyterian church about half a mile. It was standing in 1890 in fair preservation, and was an interesting old-time relic. He received this land from his father, which originally belonged to Dick Crom and which included all the land lying between the Minisceongo creek and the Benson farm. His father left him besides, the south part of lot No. 7 in Haverstraw, which he in turn left to Hannah and Rebecca Allison, daughters of his son, Thomas Allison. He was patriotic, and exemplified his love for American freedom, and hatred of British oppression, by furnishing, during the Revolutionary struggle, a large amount of supplies to Colonel Hay and his men of the Continental forces, stationed at Haverstraw. The Continental bills with which he was paid proved, eventually, to be a total loss. He was twice married; name of first wife is unknown. He married, second, Leah Ackerman, marriage bond dated Nov. 1, 1769, who is mentioned in his will made March 19, 1796.

CHILDREN BORN IN HAVERSTRAW, ROCKLAND COUNTY, N. Y., PROBABLY.

1667. John Allison.<sup>5</sup> He was born probably between 1725 and 1730. He was living at the time his father's will was made, March 19, 1796, and was then not married. There is no evidence that he was ever married. He probably died single and was buried in the family cemetery. The History of Rockland County is said to be in error in giving his name in two marriages instead of that of his brother, Thomas Allison.
1668. Robert Allison<sup>5</sup> (1691), b. Haverstraw, N. Y.; m. Elizabeth _____, Res. Haverstraw, N. Y.
1670. Thomas Allison<sup>5</sup> (1703), res. Haverstraw, N. Y.
1671. Samuel Allison<sup>5</sup> (1709). He was living on March 19, 1796, when his father made a will, and by it he received a consideration in land and personal property. He m. Sarah Phillips.
1672. Joseph B. Allison<sup>5</sup> (1715), b. Dec. 13, 1761; m. Mary Storms. Res. Haverstraw, N. Y.

1673. Capt. Joseph Allison<sup>4</sup> [1659] (John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born probably in New Hampstead, N. Y., Aug. 3, 1721, or Aug. 4, 1722; died, Jan. 2, 1796, at the age of 74 years, 4 months, 29 days. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Matthew Benson, March 10, 1743. She died Dec. 12, 1767, leaving ten children. He married, second, May 4, 1769, Elsie Parcells, who died April 16, 1815, aged 64 years. Eight children. Resided at Haverstraw, N. Y., where he owned a large farm and much landed estate. The headstone of Mr. Allison appears in the old Allison burying-ground. His remains now rest in Mount Repose cemetery.

CHILDREN BORN IN HAVERSTRAW, ROCKLAND COUNTY, N. Y.

1678. Joseph Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. May 29, 1752; res. Haverstraw, N. Y. He received with his brothers a tract of land from his father; sold April 9, 1793.
1679. John Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. May 12, 1754. He received with his brothers a great tract of land from his father, which they sold April 9, 1793, situated in Haverstraw.

1680. William Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. March 11, 1756. With his brothers he was part owner of a large tract of land in Haverstraw, given by his father. Sold by them April 9, 1793.
1681. Thomas Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. Feb. 11, 1760; res. Haverstraw, N. Y. His son, Benjamin T. Allison,<sup>6</sup> res. near Yorktown, N. Y.
1682. Deborah Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. June 29, 1762; m. William Willis.

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE.

1684. Peter Allison<sup>5</sup> (1734), b. Nov. 19, 1769; m. Margaret Suffern; res. Haverstraw, N. Y.
1685. Amos Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. May 29, 1771. He was a blacksmith, a man of great strength and of powerful physique; res. Haverstraw, N. Y. He m. ———, and had several children. Among them were Leonard Allison,<sup>6</sup> and Jacob Allison.<sup>6</sup>
1686. Michael Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. June 3, 1773; d. unmarried. He was a man of wealth, and res. in the city of New York, where he d. at his residence, 46 Vesey street, March 25, 1855, and is buried in Greenwood cemetery.
1687. Parcells Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. April 25, 1777; res. Haverstraw, N. Y. He m., Aug. 5, 1800, Nellie Parcells, his deceased brother's widow.
1688. Richard Allison<sup>5</sup> (1740), b. Oct. 23, 1780; m. Eliza Ruckel. He d. Nov. 26, 1825, in the city of New York.
1689. Elsie Allison<sup>5</sup> (1750), b. Nov. 9, 1783; m. Jacob Archer, in 1801; res. Haverstraw, N. Y.
1690. Abraham Allison,<sup>5</sup> b. Nov. 9, 1783; d. in infancy.

1691. Robert Allison<sup>5</sup> [1668] (Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Haverstraw, N. Y.; and by his father's will, made March 19, 1796, he received considerable land; res. Haverstraw, N. Y. He m. Elizabeth ———, who became intemperate and depraved in morals. This preyed deeply on his mind. He became disheartened, lost ambition, and worked as a common laborer for his nephew, William Cosgrove. She survived her husband, and forty-five acres of land were given to Christopher Cosgrove for her support in her old age.

CHILDREN BORN IN HAVERSTRAW, N. Y.

1692. Benjamin Allison.<sup>6</sup> He is said to have lived and died a bachelor. He was named for his grandfather, who in his will left the use of a tract of land to his son, Robert, which should be inherited by this Benjamin, who was to pay his sisters £5 each, and to support his mother.
1693. Hannah Allison.<sup>6</sup> She m. Benjamin Youmans; res. in Haverstraw, N. Y., where he died. She m., second, James Kenney, of Sufferns, Rockland Co., N. Y. They had one child: Patty Kenney,<sup>7</sup> m. Mr. Bostwick. He was employed by the Garner Print Works, Garnersville, Haverstraw, N. Y., and had a family of children.
1694. Margaret Allison,<sup>6</sup> m. John Devine. They res. on Long Island where he was a farmer, raising produce for the markets.

1695. Peter Allison<sup>5</sup> [1669] (Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Haverstraw, N. Y. He inherited the homestead from his father, and resided for many years in Haverstraw in the old stone house of Benjamin Allison, northeast of the First Presbyterian church, about one half mile distant, and at the junction of the old Benson and Grassy Point roads. He added to his possessions, and was a substantial and prosperous farmer. He ranked high among his fellow-citizens, and possessed abilities of no common order. He resided near the lime kilns, with his family, on the Byron place, in North Haverstraw, which he had purchased. He was twice married. The name of his first wife is not known. They had five children. He married, second, Mrs. Earl, of New York city. He died in 1815.

CHILDREN BORN IN HAVERSTRAW, N. Y.

 1697. Leah Allison.<sup>6</sup> After the death of her sister, Hannah, she married her brother-in-law, Baxter June. They res. in Haverstraw, N. 1715. Joseph B. Allison <sup>5</sup> [1672] (Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born at Haverstraw, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1760 or 1761, in the old Benjamin Allison brown stone house, situated at the junction of the Grassy Point and old Benson farm roads, and one half mile northeast of the First Presbyterian church. Here he lived, working at farm work for his father till the age of manhood. When fifteen years of age his father sent him on a perilous journey to General Washington's encampment, back of Newburg, with a bill for supplies furnished the Continental troops encamped at Haverstraw. On reaching Washington's tent he was overawed by the majestic bearing of the commander-in-chief. The general invited him in, received his message, and, putting his hand on the young man's head, commended his bravery and fidelity. When seventeen years of age he was enrolled as a "minute man," one liable to be called out for military duty at a minute's notice. While acting as teamster, carrying supplies to the troops, he became well known at head-quarters. He was a volunteer at the taking of Stony Point. His portion of the trophies were a British cartridge-box and a bayonet. These relics are now in the possession of the Demarest branch of his descendants. He was of medium size, wiry, and active. From his father he received a large farm, and he married, and settled down to the duties of a farmer and the quarrying of brown stone. His homestead, a large frame dwelling, with a kitchen extension on the end, was situated on the west side of Miniscongo creek, opposite to the spot where Peck's rolling mill now stands. This building was standing recently.

Some years after the death of his wife he sold eight thousand dollars' worth of land, and divided the proceeds among his children. His son, Abraham, and his daughters, Catherine and Margaret, received land from him and aid in erecting their buildings, and all were situated adjoining each other on the mountain side of the road to Ramapo, beginning about one eighth of a mile beyond the Mount Repose cemetery and running west. He gave to his son, Jonas Allison a place on the opposite side of this road and half a mile farther west, on the east side of the hill. The subject of this sketch spent the last years of his life in the homes of his children. He died Dec. 20, 1848, and the remains of himself and wife now repose in Mount Repose cemetery in Haverstraw, N. Y., and the place is marked by old brown headstones in good preservation.

Mr. Allison married, in 1781 or 1782, Mary Storms, who was born at Haverstraw, June 20, 1760, and who died there March 24, 1824. She was stout, had black hair and eyes and an amiable disposition, and was full of courage and patriotism. They resided at Haverstraw, N. Y.

1829. George Suffern Allison,<sup>6</sup> [1735] (Peter,<sup>5</sup> Joseph,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in New York, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1792. He married, Oct. 28, 1818, Hannah, daughter of Jonas and Mary (Burns) Brewster, of Haverstraw, Rockland Co., N. Y. She was born July 13, 1794, and died in Haverstraw, Sept. 2, 1867. He died there Aug. 27, 1884.

Mr. Allison passed his early life in the city of New York. In the last war with Great Britain he took an active part, and in 1812 was an officer in Colonel Washburn's regiment, and was stationed at Sandy Hook. When hostilities had ceased he removed to Haverstraw upon the invitation of his grandmother, who was occupying the old Allison homestead, which had been left to her by her husband. Soon afterward she purchased land in North Haverstraw, now Stony Point, where his residence stood, occupied by his son Brewster J. Allison, in 1892. This land was owned by Wandell Mace, who was anxious to sell and move to what was then the "West," now the central part of the state of New York, "where 100 acres of good land could be bought for fifty dollars."

The first business of Mr. Allison was to keep a small store and furnishing goods needed in a country neighborhood. By marriage and by purchase he became the owner of a large tract of timber land, and he connected with his mercantile business that of wood and lumber. He afterward purchased a tract of farm land adjoining his homestead, and carried on quite an extensive farm in connection with his other enterprises. The brick-making business soon gave him a wider field for the exercise of his powers, and this, with the rapid advance in the value of real estate, increased his wealth to such an extent that he became one of the wealthiest men of the county. In 1829 he was elected a member of the assembly of New York, and reëlected in 1830. He took a deep and active interest in the military profession, and was a colonel and afterward a brigadier-general of the militia of Rockland county, N. J. He also became judge of the court of common pleas.

five years of age his parents removed to Haverstraw, Rockland county, N. Y., where he received a good academic education, and learned the trade of ship carpentry with his father. He worked at his trade as a journeyman in Brooklyn, N. Y., for several years. Then he leased a ship-yard in Hoboken, N. J., and removed his family to that city. Here he did a very large business, repairing vessels and building new ones, chiefly three-masted schooners, for the Virginia trade, stanch sea-going vessels with very fast sailing qualities, and steamboats, all of which were remarkable for their speed, notably the steamboats J. W. Baldwin and Mary Powell. From Hoboken he moved with his family to 178 Pacific avenue, Lafayette, now a part of Jersey City, N. J. This dwelling and grounds he purchased, and it became his permanent home. He also became the owner of an extensive ship-yard at Jersey City, where he continued the business during the remainder of his life.

Love and veneration for his mother and her memory were distinguishing traits in his character. He inherited from his father a sound, vigorous constitution. He was about five feet and nine inches in height, thick set, with a powerful frame, very muscular; he had double teeth all around in both jaws; brown hair, becoming partly bald on the top of his head, and blue eyes. From his mother he derived deep reverence for God and his revealed truth. Early in life he became identified with religious work as a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he continued a useful and honored member, holding the office of steward or trustee during life. He contributed largely of his means to church and benevolent causes. His hospitable home was always open to the ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was the headquarters of its bishops when their duties called them in that vicinity. He was a member of the order of Odd Fellows and of the Masonic fraternity, and a director in several banking and other institutions. He died at his home in Jersey City on May 22, 1881. On May 24 impressive funeral services were held at the residence, thirty clergymen being present, besides the relatives and friends in that vicinity. Rev. Mr. Lowrie, a former pastor, referred to him as a model man in every phase of life. Other clergymen followed in the same strain, some of whom, having been very near to him in religious and social life, spoke with great tenderness, even with tears. The following day his remains were conveyed to Haverstraw on the steamboat John Sylvester, which he had built and always owned in part. Accompanying the remains were delegations from the Amity lodge, No. 103, F. and A. M., Amity chapter, No. 31, R. A. M., Columbia lodge, No. 63, I. O. O. F., all of Jersey City, six clergymen, and the workmen in his employ, members of his family, and a large number of friends. They were met by the Stony Point lodge of F. and A. M., and the procession, including over fifty carriages, slowly proceeded to the Methodist Episcopal church. The day was serene and lovely. Five clergymen participated in the services, four of whom, Messrs. Lowrie, Coit, Ellison, and Monroe, had been pastors of the deceased. His remains were interred in the family plot in Mount Repose cemetery. He had accumulated a large property and left his family in good circumstances, with a wise provision for the continuance of the business by his sons.

He married, at the home of her parents in Haverstraw, Catherine, daughter of Christopher and Rebecca (Allison) Cosgrove. She was born in Haverstraw, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1819; died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1845, and her remains are interred in Mount Repose cemetery. She was reared to a life of useful industry, and in the love and fear of God. Possessing an amiable disposition, with a bright, cheerful expression of countenance, she became the sunshine of her home, and greatly endeared to her husband and family. Her early death was partly due to her rather delicate physical organization. She possessed a fine mind, with deep religious convictions. She died as she had lived, in the full consciousness of her Saviour's love. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Allison married, second, Sept. 17, 1845, at the home of her parents in Haverstraw, Jane Eliza Cosgrove, a sister of his first wife. She was born in that place Feb. 9, 1817. Brought up on the old homestead, under the guidance of her remarkable mother, she acquired habits of useful industry in doing her full share in the varied duties of farm life, which included assisting in garden work, gathering fruits in season, husking corn, milking, churning, baking, cooking, spinning, and sewing, thus fitting her to become a model housewife. She was converted early in life and joined the Methodist Episcopal church. Since then she has found the comforts and consolations of religion her highest joy and support in the many afflictions she has been called to endure. She is about five feet, seven inches in height, and large framed. She has dark hair (now gray), regular features, and black expressive eyes, a mild and forbearing disposition; is domestic in her tastes and habits, and cherishes a loving devotion to all her friends. Since her husband's decease she has continued to reside with her three unmarried daughters in their home on Pacific avenue, Jersey City.

CHILDREN.

1857. Catherine Delemater Allison,<sup>8</sup> b. in Haverstraw, N. Y., March 12, 1838; m., Oct. 20, 1870, Oscar A. Jobes. She died in Jersey City, N. J., May 9, 1885, and is interred in Mount Repose cemetery in Haverstraw. Her religious training early induced her to give her heart to God. Her adult life was largely devoted to the Sunday-school work of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she was a member. She excelled as a teacher of infant classes, her sweet spirit winning the hearts of the little ones, inducing many to become lambs of the Good Shepherd's flock. Her life was not without its sorrows or trials, all of which she bore with meekness and Christian fortitude. She died a triumphant death. The funeral services were held at the residence of her mother, from which she had passed into eternal rest. Several of her former pastors were present and officiated. She had one child, Michael Allison Jobes,<sup>9</sup> b. in Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 8, 1871.
1858. Edward Snedeker Allison,<sup>8</sup> b. Brooklyn, N. Y., July 12, 1844; m., Dec. 20, 1866, Sarah Frances, daughter of William and Catherine (Miller) Zeluff. He received a superior education, and was taken into business by his father, and, since his father's death, has in company, with his brother, Samuel Allison, and a competent ship-builder as foreman, successfully carried on the business. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and has been for many years. Res. in Newark, N. J. Children:
- I. Marian Zeluff Allison,<sup>9</sup> b. in Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 16, 1868.
- II. Catherine Cosgrove Allison,<sup>9</sup> b. in Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 27, 1870.

CHILDREN BY SECOND WIFE.

1859. Samuel Cosgrove Allison,<sup>8</sup> b. in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 26, 1846. He was well educated, and was then taken into his father's office, where were developed his abilities as an accountant and book-keeper. This has since been his special branch of the business, continuing with his father till his death. Since then he has continued the business with his brother, Edward Allison, their energies being devoted to the more profitable branch of this business, the repairing of vessels. Early in life he gave his heart to God, when he joined the Methodist Episcopal church, and he has continued to live an upright, unblemished life. He m., Oct. 1, 1873, Henrietta W. 1877. Garrett T. Allison<sup>7</sup> [1781] (James,<sup>6</sup> Thomas,<sup>5</sup> Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Haverstraw, N. Y., and was a house carpenter by trade and occupation. He was upright and industrious, quiet and retiring in his manners, a sincere Christian, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Residence in Haverstraw, where he owned a few acres of land, on which was a comfortable frame dwelling with barn, situated on the mountain side of the Ramapo road, just beyond the Mount Repose cemetery. There he lived with his family till advanced in life, when with his companion he located in the village where he died. He and his wife are buried in Mount Repose cemetery in Haverstraw, N. Y.

He married, in Haverstraw, May 25, 1833, Charlotte, daughter of Abraham and Jane (De Pew) Allison. She possessed a sensitive, nervous temperament. Her delicate constitution was easily overcome by any undue excitement. She was very devout. Her Bible and the church of God were her chief sources of enjoyment. She was never so happy as when attending the revival services of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she was a member and a shining light, and would sometimes be overcome by her emotions amid the spiritual excitement of those meetings. She died at Haverstraw, N. Y.

CHILD.

1878. Martha Allison,<sup>8</sup> b. Haverstraw, N. Y., April 4, 1834. She received a superior education. It may truthfully be said of her, "She was always a Christian." Taught to avoid all appearance of evil from her earliest years, and inheriting the pious, devotional spirit of her mother, her life was truly "hid with Christ in God." Her sweetness of spirit inspired the purest thoughts and purposes of all who came in contact with her. She died at Princeton, N. J., and is buried in Mount Repose cemetery, Haverstraw, N. Y. She married Mr. Jamison, a professor in the Mountain institute at Haverstraw village. After marriage they removed to Princeton, N. J., where he practised medicine. He married a second wife.

1879. Charles Allison<sup>7</sup> [1789] (David,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Union township, Broome county, N. Y., three miles from Binghamton, Feb. 21, 1827. When nine years of age he went to Troy, Oakland county, Mich., with his parents. He was educated in the common schools and at the academy at Romeo, Macon county, Mich. He soon became very prominent in business circles. For twenty-six years prior to 1880 he was extensively engaged at Oswego, N. Y., in the canal and lake transportation business between New York, Oswego, Cleveland, and Chicago. He had been agent, general manager, and vice-president of the Northern Transit Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, which had a fleet of twenty-five steamers plying between the lake ports. He was president of the Oswego and Bay of Quinte Navigation Co., and agent of the Royal Mail line and several other steamboat companies. He was largely interested in canal property, and was the principal owner of the Northern Transit Co. canal line, which did the chief part of the canal freight business between New York and Oswego. At the time of his decease he was the head of the firm of Allison, Stroup & Co., of New York, N. Y., dealers in fertilizers. He died in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 7, 1892. He married, in 1857, Catherine E., daughter of Thomas Macfarlane. She was born in Cleveland, Ohio, May 16, 1834, and resides at Brooklyn, N. Y.

1897. Brewster Jonas Allison<sup>7</sup> [1831] (George Suffern,<sup>6</sup> Peter,<sup>5</sup> Joseph,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>). He was born in Haverstraw (in the portion now Stony Point), Rockland county, N. Y., July 5, 1821. After attending the district school of his neighborhood, he was sent to an institution at Peekskill, N. Y., where he obtained a more extended education. The first part of his business life was spent in a store with his father, and he afterward engaged with him in brick-making, which he continued two years. The yards were then leased to other parties, and he engaged in land surveying. He held the office of town superintendent of schools from 1848 to 1853, when the office was abolished. He was a member of the assembly in 1850, and served on the committee on roads and bridges and towns and cities. The rival candidate for the position was Edward Pye. Mr. Allison was elected on a "free soil" ticket and naturally drifted into the Republican party, at its formation, to which he is still attached. In 1853 he again entered into the manufacture of brick, in which he is still engaged.

Mr. Allison was connected with the First Presbyterian church of Haverstraw, with which he united in 1854, and was one of its elders until August, 1892, when he united with the Presbyterian church of Stony Point, and was elected to the same position. He is a pronounced temperance man, and has been a zealous worker in that cause. He lives at the village of Stony Point, N. Y., in the house where lived his father, Hon. George S. Allison. He married, Nov. 19, 1856, Anna Elizabeth, daughter of William C. Housman, of Haverstraw. She died in Haverstraw, April 27, 1862. He married, second, May 2, 1868, Anna Given, daughter of Nelson and Mary C. (Denniston) Andrus, of Haverstraw. She was born Dec. 3, 1848; died Aug. 2, 1889, and is buried in the Allison plot in Mount Repose cemetery, in Haverstraw. He resides in Stony Point, Rockland county, N. Y.

The following sketch of Mr. Allison was written by his friend, J. M. Peters, Esq.:

Lawrence, the first Allison of this branch of the family known in America, who was one of the early settlers in the New Haven colony, left the place to join his son John whom the records show was one of the founders of the town of Hempstead on Long Island about 1644. Whether John was born in this country is unknown to us, but he appears to have engaged in this enterprise before attaining his majority.

In 1719 his grandson John, who was evidently a man of some wealth for the time, went with a number of others from the Hempstead settlement to the west of the Hudson, and bought a large tract of land known as the Kakiat Patent, in Orange, now Rockland county. He subsequently became the owner of a large part of the land lying between what is now known as Rockland Lake and Stony Point on the Hudson river. He had a numerous family, among them a son Joseph, who added largely by purchase to his inherited possessions in land, and was one of the most extensive landholders in that section. Joseph's oldest son, Matthew Allison, died before his father, and left a number of children, among them Hendrick, who married Sarah Marks, a Haverstraw maiden, with whom, about 1810, he settled on the bank of the Hudson at a point considerably south of his native place. Here William H. Allison was born in 1820, and after marriage settled in old Hackensack, now Palisades township, in Bergen county, N. J., where William O. Allison, the subject of this sketch, was born on March 30, 1849. The maternal ancestry of William O. Allison had resided for more than two hundred years within a few miles of this spot. His maternal great-grandfather [Jordan] was French, having come to this country with Lafayette and become a Revolutionary soldier. He subsequently married a Jersey Dutch wife and settled upon the Palisades, a few miles north of the present home of his great-grandson, whose other ancestors on his mother's side were among the original Dutch settlers at old Tappan, one of the earliest settlements in New Jersey.

The student of heredity and the defender of the law of entail will each find something of interest in tracing the history of the ancestry of the subject of this sketch. From the earliest records of Lawrence Allison, or, more directly, from those of his son John, we find the evidences of foresight and thrift which, developing in the third in descent from the resident of the New Haven colony, led to the foundation of a great fortune in land on the west banks of the Hudson. With succeeding generations ownership of this vast estate became divided and subdivided, but no generation of the family down to the present has been wholly without an inheritance from the estate acquired more than a century and a half ago. This possession proved enough to afford the means of a livelihood, growing more meagre, however, with successive generations, but yet enough to dispel want, and so, perhaps, to curb ambitions; for circumstances more affluent or less comfortable might have developed in a larger number of the descendants of John Allison the traits which the records of his operations as a pioneer showed him to possess. But the assurance of enough land from which to earn a livelihood by working, or to acquire a living by sale, is not a favorable culture-medium for those qualities which make pioneers, or develop conspicuous successes in any walk of life; and for several generations many of the strongest qualities of the Allison family lay dormant in this branch of its descent, for the need of the actual necessities for their development, or for some other incitement to their employment.

From his early boyhood the subject of this sketch lived much of the time in the family of William B. Dana, a prominent resident of the Palisades, a man of forceful and exemplary character, and a journalist of culture. The intelligent observer of his own life cannot deny the important part which the accident of his environment has had in his successes quite as much as in his failures, and it has been alike creditable to his intelligence and his loyalty to so good a friend as she was, that William O. Allison has never failed to give full measure of acknowledgment, no less by deed than by word, of the benign influence which Mrs. (Katharine Floyd) Dana exerted upon his life. This good woman, herself childless, took a deep interest in the boy, and his intellectual development was guided by her in a manner born of the superior intelligence and the inbred refinement, and wielded by the great strength of character which she possessed. That she found in him the inherent traits for development, was as satisfactory to her as was her training grateful to him, and I doubt if such a befriending was ever more liberally rewarded, than was hers by the character which she saw develop into manhood, no less than by the devotion which he accorded to her. His middle name, Otis, was adopted by him to gratify a fancy of Mrs. Dana's that his initials should correspond to those of her nom de plume, "Olive A. Wadsworth."

In 1868 young Allison entered the office of the Financial Chronicle and the Daily Bulletin, which was owned by Mr. Dana, and the brother of Mrs. Dana, Mr. John G. Floyd, and he there gained a general and thorough knowledge of the publishing business. With this knowledge, and possessing keen business instincts, he developed in a few years into the best reporter of commercial markets that has ever been on the New York press, and instituted a system of thoroughness in reports which had previously been unknown and which few reporters have been able to successfully copy. From a salary of $7 per week, which he received when he entered Mr. Dana's employ, he reached inside of three years a salary of $40 per week as a reporter; but this rapid progress did not satisfy his ambition even for the time, and on October 21, 1871, as a result of the confidence which he felt in his system of making a specialty of a few markets and doing them thoroughly, he issued the first number of the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. The early issues of the Reporter were in the form of a small four-page paper of extremely modest appearance as compared with other papers already prominent in the industries to which it was devoted, but contained more of real value to the subscribers than the conductors of any other sheets had possessed sufficient comprehension of the possibilities of market reporting to furnish. The growth of the paper in circulation was remarkable, and its advertising patronage, in connection with added departments of valuable reading matter, was sufficient to force numerous successive enlargements. But it was only after a hard struggle of several years that the plucky young publisher saw the fulfilment of the hope he entertained at the beginning of his career, that he should some day make five thousand dollars per year. From this point, however, the successful growth of the paper is, I believe, without any parallel in commercial journalism, and the Reporter soon became one of the most profitable class publications in the country, and exerted an influence in the trades to which it was allied such as no other commercial publication has ever wielded. This influence was the direct result of the policy of obtaining and furnishing accurate, comprehensive, and, therefore, valuable information concerning all the markets which the paper reported; and upon all these markets the proprietor of the Reporter, so long as he was actually engaged in the conduct of the paper, was admitted to be the best informed man in New York. This fact brought Mr. Allison closely into personal contact with a large clientage, and made his judgment and opinions much sought after. It also led him into enterprises outside of the publishing business, and proved a source of profit to him in many ways. In addition to these interests, a perhaps inherited tendency to operate in real estate has led him to acquire from time to time tracts of land, chiefly on or in the vicinity of the Palisades, until he has become one of the largest land-owners in that section.

As a publisher, financier, and real estate operator, William O. Allison has achieved successes which have won for him the admiration and respect that legitimate successes, born of industry and good judgment and gained by no sacrifice of integrity, gain for any man. He had enjoyed the confidence of merchants and financiers, for the most part many years his senior, to the extent that is rarely accorded a young man, long before he attained to that mile-post in life which the lexicographers define as the beginning of middle age. And even before that period had been reached, he had gained a prominent place as a factor in very extensive commercial and financial enterprises. But his most attractive qualities are best known to those who have come into the closer social contact with him, and are not measured by financial successes, nor influenced by them except as they have afforded him the opportunities for extending unostentatious and oft-times unappreciated benefactions. When a man has made a good use of every opportunity that has presented itself to him, and has lived a thoroughly exemplary life amid surroundings shorn of none of the temptations which beset every man, it affords me much satisfaction to be permitted to record the facts to his praise, and I take it that in a sketch intended for the purpose to which this is to be put, I may be permitted to indulge this inclination without being guilty of that ostentation which is as far from my wishes, as it would be unjust and distasteful to him of whom I write.

He married, Oct. 22, 1884, Caroline Longstreet Hovey, daughter of Alfred Howard Hovey and Frances (Noxon) Hovey, of Syracuse, N. Y. Her parents died when she was very young. She was adopted by Hon. George F. Comstock and his wife, and took the name of Comstock. Mr. Com-
