BALLADE OF THE GAY GORDONS.

In distant days of Border Raid,
Ere Scot was Scot, and foe was foe,
'Twas hard to tell the hostile blade,
And harder still it was to know
For whom to strike the battle blow—
The kindly keep, the adverse moat ;
Yet, even then, in weal or woe
The Gordons had the guidin' o't.

They fought and fell in sun and shade ;
The battle sometimes brought them low ;
Yet never were their sons afraid
To face the risks of overthrow.
The slogan rang from hearts aglow
With courage 'neath the mailéd coat :
With "Bydand!" cry and bended bow
The Gordons had the guidin' o't.

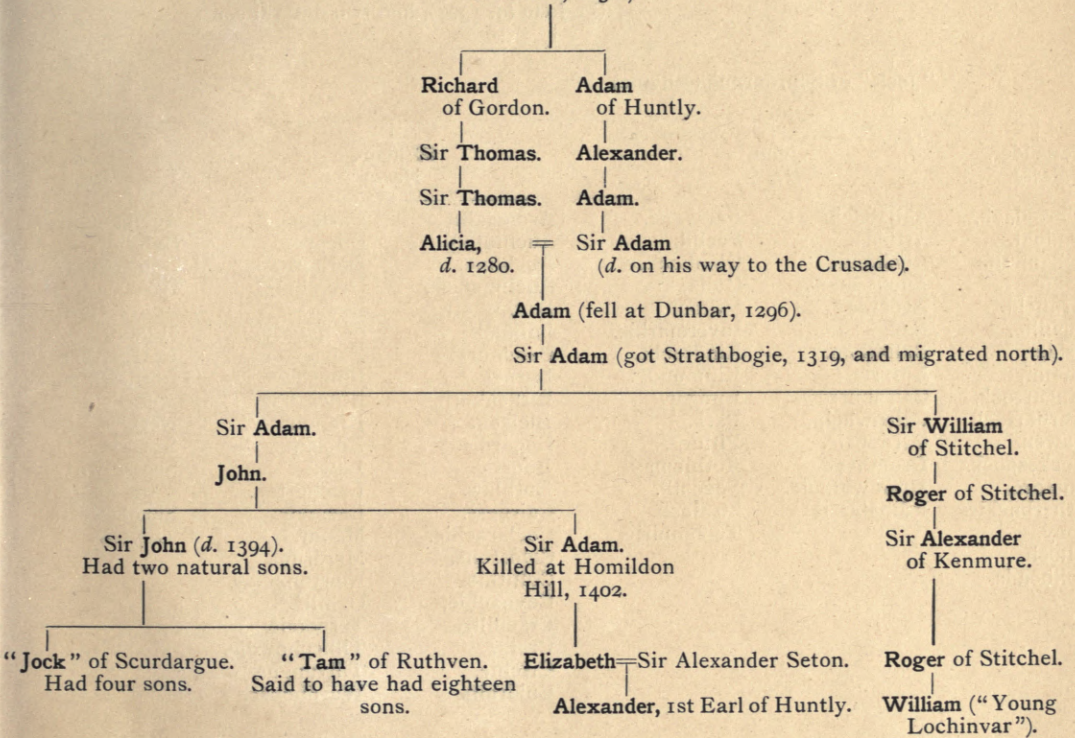

The March was mastered by their aid,
And proudly did the king bestow
The mighty track of glen and glade
Athwart the Grampians' line of snow.
And since the days of Long-Ago,
Where'er they've stood, where'er they've smote,
The stories of their prowess show

ENVOY.

Cock of the North! To you we owe
The hearts which, at your slogan note,
Are fain to prove, by veldt and voe,
The Gordons hae the guidin' o't.

THE PURPOSE AND THE METHODS OF THIS BOOK.

You may remember the tragedy—common-place enough, no doubt, and yet so true—of Mr. Henry James's poignant little story, The Madonna of the Future. It tells of an artist who became possessed of a great desire to paint a picture of the Virgin which should be an epitome of the representations of all the ages and all the schools of thought and of art. For years he accumulated materials by ransacking the galleries of the world. He knew the Raphaels and the Rubenses by heart. He had sketches of Giotto and Titian: memories of Moroni and Murillo: notes on Dürer and the Dutchmen. But he never painted his Madonna: and when he died posterity discovered that his great canvas was nothing but a paralysed daub. The moral of that story is the inspiration of this book.

The endeavour to paint the picture of the House of Gordon has been extremely disappointing. It began in the middle of the sixteenth century when the Piedmontese monk, John Ferrerius, confronted the task. He was followed by a long line of patient workers; but the sum total of their labour bears no sort of proportion to the time spent upon it. Delay has increased the difficulty of the subject: the difficulty has made the desideratum seem all the greater: and the desideratum has set up a standard of definitiveness, which has resulted, to use Olive Schreiner's phrase, in "a striving and striving and ending in nothing". The desire to compass the task, however it has arisen, has always been strong : and makes it unnecessary for me to apologise for the present attempt to trace the history of the House throughout its numerous branches. I could become as cynical as anybody on the "waste" of labour involved in such an endeavour : and I could show cause why it need not be undertaken. But such a criticism would be wholly superficial, for the "waste" of labour is not inherent in the desideratum ; it is merely incident to the methods by which realisation has been pursued for more than four centuries. In short, if any apology were necessary, it would be not for the work undertaken, but for the work not undertaken, or rather not published ; for therein lies the crux of the whole matter.

Premising then for the moment the immense fascination of the subject, we have to attribute the failure to do anything worthy of the name of a survey to the bogey of definitiveness, which by its very desirability has by a curious irony defeated itself, and resulted in a perpetual (and pathetic) pother. In speaking thus, I am far from belittling the industry of the many workers who have devoted so much time to the subject : but I can find no other phrase to describe the endless going over of the same ground, which manuscript after manuscript demonstrates in a melancholy way. Let me explain how the enthusiasm of the worker and the timidity of the publisher have operated against the progress of the task.

Few men have had the temerity to propose a survey of the whole House, as their starting point. The worker has almost invariably begun on a particular branch of the family ; and, even at that, each enthusiast has had to begin, in the absence of the printed results of his predecessors' labours, not where they left off, but almost exactly where they started. Fascinated by the interesting side issues of his quest, he has hesitated on the brink of the completed monograph, and has gone on accumulating material, first on the environs of the particular sept on which he began, then on the wider issues of a leading line ; and lastly he has become possessed of the desire to tackle the whole subject. An examination of the manuscript collections of several workers has borne out this theory of the elusiveness of the subject, and I may be permitted to support it by my own experience, which is quite typical.

Always fascinated by the Gordons—as a mere boy I helped my father to accumulate much material for his Historic Scenes in Aberdeenshire at a time when greater attention to “versions” might have been more to the point—I became thoroughly interested in the subject again in the summer of 1897 when the Byron revival began to attract notice. This resulted in the compilation of a rough (and incorrect) chart of the “Ennobled Gordons and Lord Byron” (Scottish Notes and Queries, Oct., 1897), prepared with the view of tracing the poet’s waywardness. The necessity of having to summarise the history of the Duke of Fife’s fortunate family and the achievements of the Gordon Highlanders (apropos of their famous exploit at Dargai) led me further afield ; and before I knew where I was I found myself in possession of a great mass of collateral information, much of which had never been co-ordinated into readable form. The picturesque possibilities of the subject very soon became apparent, and, though many of these had been exploited, a great number had not been touched upon. There was, for example, the alliance of Lady Catherine Gordon with the Polish statesman and poet, Count Andreas Morsztyn, by whom she became the ancestor of Stanislas Poniatowski, the last King of Poland. There were the achievements of Colonel John Gordon of the Gight family, who was partly responsible for the assassination of Wallenstein in 1634 : the Jacobite intrigues with Admiral Thomas Gordon, governor of Kronstadt : the escapade of young Gordon of Wardhouse, who lost his head as a spy at Brest in 1769; the crazy abduction of Mrs. Lee, De Quincey's "female infidel," by the two young Aboyne Gordons; the elopement of Lord William Gordon, brother of the Rioter, with the charming Lady Sarah Lennox; and so on. My point is this, that but for the inducement of being able to publish (in newspaper form) the result of my inquiries, I might have gone on, like so many of my predecessors, accumulating material for years, in the hope of one day being able to write a history of the House more or less definitive; until I should have been too tired, or too paralysed by the vastness of the subject, to put anything on printed record at all.

This is precisely what has occurred to so many workers in the same field. They have been immensely industrious: some of them have even been methodical: and most of them have collected much material, which would have been of great service to their successors if it had been printed. But how was that to be done, when the desire for a definitive work always loomed large before them, and when there was no fair chance of publishing the piecemeal effort; for the commercial publisher has offered no inducement, and the antiquarian clubs have either tabooed the partial contribution or fought shy of a project which seemed to have no beginning and less of an end? What has happened? The enthusiast has passed away without being able to publish the results of his labour, without giving the next worker the chance of knowing what has been done, what might be taken as finished, and what line he might pursue to most advantage. Sometimes the very existence of the enthusiast has been forgotten and the benefit of his labour lost. His papers have been carefully guarded by his representatives for sentimental—and sometimes dog-in-the-manger—reasons; or else they have been ignorantly consigned to the paper mill by executors who knew nothing, and cared less, about the matter. In very few cases have collections such as these found their way into libraries available to the public. Even if they had, it will be found all too frequently that the material so laboriously gathered is in such a state of confusion that none but the original compiler could provide a key to it, for the worker with the best intentions in the world who has no hope of publishing his discoveries ceases to have a care for their manipulation by posterity.

One of the most remarkable cases in proof of the point is the so-called Balbithan MS., which forms the first item in the present volume. Here is a document of unique interest; a guide of first-rate value and validity, which covers ground traversed by no other work. And yet, notwithstanding the fact that it has been in existence for possibly two hundred years, the student has had to wait until now for the opportunity of seeing it in print. Meantime, the MS. has been copied by several workers; these copies, in turn, have been re-copied; and in the process endless errors have crept in, vitiating more than one printed deduction. The extraordinary neglect of the materials for a history of the House is further illustrated in the case of Sir Robert Gordon's Genealogical History of the Earldom of Sutherland. Written in 1630, it was not put into type until 1813, and then less as a genealogical venture than as a matter of personal pride on the part of the Marchioness of Stafford, the last of the long line of Gordons who had borne the name of Sutherland. Sir William Fraser justly contrasted the attention which had been paid to Hume's History of the Douglasses, written about the same time (1644) and published in 1743.

It might be argued with some show of reason that the earlier publication of material on the House of Douglas has been the cause of the more thorough investigation of the history of that family. Accepting this explanation, one is confronted with the fact that the published accounts of the House of Gordon are very inadequate and disappointing. I do not forget that seventeen years before Hume's book on the Douglasses there had appeared the History of the Antient and Illustrious Family of Gordon by William Gordon; but it is really a history of Scotland told in terms of the ennobled Gordons. Even at that, however, it might have been followed up by further inquiries. Yet how was this done? In 1754 a Charles Gordon (whose origin is uncertain) issued a Concise History of the House, which is more or less a condensation of William Gordon's two volumes, and even the reprint of 1890 contained little more than can be found in a good modern peerage. In fact, the first real contribution to the history of the House was the publication of Sir Robert Gordon's great work in 1813. Excepting Sir William Fraser's Sutherland Book (1892), which was an expansion, based on charter chests, of Sir Robert's monograph, nothing of first-rate quality was done until 1894, when the Records of Aboyne, edited by the present Marquis of Huntly, was issued by the New Spalding Club.

In the intervening eighty years we had various efforts to extend our knowledge of the subject, but nearly all of them were spasmodic and incidental. The publications of the old Spalding Club (1841-71) form an invaluable quarry of facts; but the Club, with all its enthusiasm, shirked the task of compiling a special work on the subject. It discussed the matter at its initial meeting in the year 1839, and Mr. Murray Rose informs me that he has seen a letter in which Cosmo Innes referred to an elaborate history of the cadets of the House upon which a friend was engaged. Transcripts were made of all available Gordon charters; but the scheme, if ever formulated, fell through, and the material seems to have been used up in various issues of the Club. With such a start, however, as the publications of the Club afforded, some one, it might have been supposed, would have taken up at least one line of cadets. What has been the result? Just three monographs—two on the Gordons of Lesmoir and Terpersie by Captain Wimberley, and a pamphlet on the Gordons of Croughly by the late Captain Huntly Blair Gordon. It is somewhat remarkable that both these compilers were partly of English parentage. Each of these books, however, is mainly sectional, and even at that is by no means exhaustive. In any case, they form no part of a scheme to deal with the whole family, root and branch, and therefore they represent a vast mass of duplicated labour. Some of that labour might have been profitably expended on other branches of the family, for it has to be noted that none of the printed histories touches that important branch of the Gordons who elected to remain on the Borders when the great exodus to the north took place. Not only so, but most of the printed histories deal with the main line represented by the Marquis of Huntly and the Duke of Richmond and their cadets. The other branches which spring from "Jock" and "Tam" Gordon have been so much neglected that even Lord Aberdeen's family has gone without a chronicler.

Disappointing as the direct work on the House of Gordon has been since the year when William Gordon issued his verbose history, there has been an increasing interest in topography and genealogy in general. We have had histories of nearly all the great Aberdeenshire families—the Frasers, the Farquharsons, the Forbeses (very incompletely), the Skenes, the Bairds, the Burnetts, the Leslie's, the Lumsdens, the Cadenheads, and so on. The contributions to topographical literature have even been greater, and have reached the general reader in a popular County Series (Blackwoods'). Kirk Session, Municipal and University records have been ransacked, and though there has been a strong disinclination to co-ordinate the matter thus unearthed, there is scarcely a parish that has not had its chronicler. Most important of all is the splendid series of records, such as the Registers of the Privy Council, and of the Great Seal, published officially during the last twenty years, which make it unnecessary for the worker to spend money on having the Register House ransacked for his special benefit. True, there are sources of information, notably the treasures in the Aberdeen Town House and Sheriff Court House, which have been imperfectly tapped : but if we are to wait until that is done thoroughly, we shall be as far from tackling the subject as ever.

A cursory glance at the materials I have enumerated will soon convince the student that the ground to be covered is enormous. For instance, a searching inquiry into the history of one branch alone, the Gordons of Lesmoir, who were descended from "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue, discloses the fact that they produced some thirty distinct branches, holding different estates in as many parishes scattered over five counties. In the entire survey of land-owning families bearing the name of Gordon, we have hundreds of families, the cadets descending from "Jock" of Scurdargue alone running into a hundred families.

It ought to be noted here that in making this calculation I have not attempted to trace the family further back than their appearance in Scotland : and even then, their beginnings are very doubtful. For instance, the most recent critic of the origin of the Gordons, Mr. George S. C. Swinton, suggests (Genealogist, New Series, vol. xv.) that they were originally Swintons, and he places the traditional brothers, Richard and Adam, thus :—

Writing in Notes and Queries (March 29, 1902) he asks :—

Can any human being named Gordon or de Gordun be dated in Scotland

before 1200? That is the approximate date which, by comparing the witnesses with other dated charters, I give to charter cxvii. in Raine's North Durham in which Richard de Gordun and Adam de Gordun, the traditional brothers, made what is, I believe, their first appearance. Any way, this charter cannot be earlier than 1182, in which year its grantor, Patrick Earl of Dunbar, great-grandson of the above-mentioned Cospatrick, succeeded.

Putting all other questions aside, we come to the solid fact that a Sir Adam Gordon got Strathbogie in 1319, and migrated from the Borders northwards. Thus the family split into two great halves. Sir Adam's eldest son, Adam, got the estates in the north; and his descendants, mostly located in the counties of Aberdeen, Banff, Moray and Sutherland, represent the senior line. Adam's second son, William, retained the family holdings in the south of Scotland.

Another great division then occurred among the Gordons in the north. Sir Adam (of 1319) had two great-grandsons, John and Adam. John had two natural sons, the traditional "Jock" of Scurdargue and "Tam" of Ruthven. Adam, their uncle, had an only daughter, Elizabeth, who went to the south for a husband, Alexander Seton, and thus reinforced the northern strain with the old Border blood. She founded the so-called "Seton-Gordons," represented mainly by the ducal line. But the great majority of the cadets in the north are descended from "Jock" and "Tam," who represent the senior line in its genealogical purity.

The Gordons in the south of Scotland are believed to be descended from William, second son of Adam of 1319. Their history, as I have pointed out, has been followed with much less minuteness than that of the family in the north; but enough is known to show that the southern cadets number many hundreds. They are particularly interesting as the ancestors of the Gordons in Ireland and of most of the old Gordon families in America (notably Virginia), who come of Scoto-Irish stock.

The wide distribution and the fascination of the House of Gordon is not a mere theory put forward by the enthusiastic genealogist. A very curious example of the belief in the ubiquity of the race is afforded by Mr. Stead's never-ending story, "To be Continued in our Next," which was begun in the Review of Reviews, January, 1903. The story is a statement of the news of the day told in terms of fiction:—

We take the chief events of the month and use them as the central incident of a series of short stories, each of which . . . is linked on to all its predecessors and those which will come after it by its bearing upon the fortunes of the Gordon family, whose widely scattered members are at the heart of most human affairs in all parts of the world.

If this journalistic exaggeration is not quite valid, the task of tracing the fortunes of the House is so great that the individual worker, trammelled by the desire for definitiveness, can make no progress. For this reason the New Spalding Club has resolved to tackle the subject in a piecemeal way by issuing monographs on different cadets without reference, for the present, to a general scheme for a history of the family. This book, while aiming ultimately at definitiveness, starts primarily in the interests of the monograph. The issue of several of these monographs under one cover, as in the present instance, is mainly accidental. The collected form has been adopted here as an earnest, an advertisement if you will, of the desire of the New Spalding Club to undertake a task which is so great a desideratum for all genealogists and topographical students. But the essential characteristics of the monograph are preserved, most notably in the separate pagination of the account of each family, so that those who wish to bind them up in their ultimate sequence may be able to do so. Indeed, it was the original intention to issue the monographs separately from time to time as occasion offered; and once the old manuscript accounts of the family, hitherto unpublished, are printed off this will be done, for it is of the utmost importance to put into type as much matter as has been prepared. The idea of the Club has been to make a start, to do something to place ascertained facts on record; and to this end the monographs that were actually ready have been printed. There has been no attempt to begin with any branch on the ground of its seniority. But it may be said that the Gordons of the direct line have been purposely passed over for the present, for they have been done over and over again; not exhaustively, it is true, but with sufficient clearness to offer an accurate idea of their development. What has hitherto been neglected are the descendants of the other great line of the Gordons in the north, the descendants of "Jock" and "Tam"; while the smaller cadets on both sides have been scamped, although the mere fact that their poverty made men of them by driving them abroad—as, for instance, the Russian General, Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries—gives them an interest reaching far beyond the confines of their paternal acres.

But if the selection of the families to be dealt with has been to this extent haphazard, the method of dealing with them will be found to be more or less on a definite plan. The method employed is that of the undisguised chronological compilation of actual facts, set forth without comment. Each entry opens with the year, the month and the day, and closes with the citation of the authority. For the most part there has been no attempt to "run on" the matter thus brought together, for nothing is so irritating in genealogical books as the method of "setting" them as if they were connected narratives, whereas in the great majority of cases they are merely chronological compilations, with unavoidable lacunae, which make a narrative almost impossible. In a few cases, such as that of Colonel John Gordon, of Wallenstein notoriety, it has been possible to cast the known facts into something like the shape of a story, but the general method is chronological. It need hardly be said that if, in the present state of our knowledge, we cannot write a story, the construction of a history, in any sense worth speaking of, is still more remote, because it is essentially a definitive process; and definitiveness, as I have argued, cannot be aimed at in the present state of our knowledge. In any case, the book suitable for the man who runs and reads—and several such could be written about the sensational adventures of the Gordons—is quite beyond the scope of an organisation like the New Spalding Club, the duty of which, I take it, is to supply a quarry rather than create a structure.

The plan, then, has been to take the laird, or at any rate the senior representative (for the time being) of each cadet, as a unit. After a very brief introduction and summary of his position, his career is built up in a series of extracts (chronologically arranged), compiled from all sorts of sources. Furthermore, these extracts have been printed in smaller type, as an indication that the busy reader may conveniently skip them if he so choose. By means of the chronological introduction of each paragraph the reader can discover at a glance whether certain facts which he may have come across are stated. At the close of these extracts, the facts about the "unit's" marriage are given, and these are followed by an account of his children and their descendants set out in the orthodox genealogical manner. His children are indicated by Arabic figures and one indent: his grandchildren by Arabics - within - brackets and two indents: his great-grandchildren by Roman figures: and so on as follows:—

 2. } the Children of the unit.
 3. }

(1) }
 (2) } the Grandchildren of the unit.
 (3) }

i. }
 ii. } the Great-grandchildren of the unit.
 iii. }

(i) }
 (ii) } the Great-great-grandchildren of the unit.
 (iii) }

The surname of descendants has not been given except in cases where it is something other than "Gordon".

The families treated in this volume illustrate some of the leading characteristics that have made the name of Gordon famous all over the world. The House of Abergeldie, always strong territorially, and still powerful in the regions of its ancestors of four centuries ago, gave the world an intrepid soldier in the person of Sir Charles Gordon, who, in his thirst for adventure, showed the Prussians how to beat the Dutch at Amstelveen, in 1787: while his brother, William, distinguished himself at the capture of Martinique and endeared himself to the people of Barbadoes. The Gordons of Coclarachie were the ancestors of Major-General Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul, who began his career in the army of Peter the Great, and put his experience to such use as a Jacobite leader. The Gordons of Gight, the most unruly family that ever reigned in Aberdeenshire, produced the man who checkmated Wallenstein, and gave us the brilliant Colonel Nathaniel Gordon, of anti-Covenanting fame: while they are known universally as the maternal ancestors of Byron, who displayed so many of their lawless characteristics throughout his life.

In addition to these monographs, the volume contains some very valuable repositories of facts in general about the Gordons. First and foremost is the unique Balbithan MS., which is printed for the first time. It affords the most minute account of the descendants of "Jock" and "Tam" Gordon, and forms a most appropriate set off to a volume which starts with cadets and not with main lines. The index to Gordons in the Retours and the Services of Heirs supplies another want, for though the volumes are to be found in most public libraries they are indexed in a very puzzling way, and are not always available to the genealogist who is beyond the reach of libraries. Then there is an index to the invaluable Poll Book of Aberdeenshire, which was compiled in 1696 and printed, with a most inadequate index, in 1844. The other indexes tap various sources of information, and should prove of assistance in identifying members of the House.

This opening volume is far from exhausting the material which has already been brought together. The present writer alone has ready for the printer monographs on the Gordons of Pitlurg, Cairnburrow, Park, Glenbucket, Auchleuchries, Knockespock, Rothiemay and the minor septs attaching to the same. He has compiled an alphabetically arranged list of Gordons who distinguished themselves in every conceivable activity, in every part of the world, but whom he is at present unable to assign to the particular families to which they belong. Over and above that, he has notes, gathered from time to time in conducting systematic researches, on no fewer than 369 families who possessed lands; and of those ninety belong to one great branch, the Gordons of Lochinvar. Captain Wimberley, the historian of the Gordons of Lesmoir and Terpersie, has placed his material, greatly enlarged since the publication of his monographs, at the disposal of the Club, and this will be printed in the second volume.

The justification of the piecemeal method here adopted and deliberately advocated has been proved by the fact that the announcement that the Club was to deal with the House led Rev. Stephen Ree to place at its disposal his admirable deduction of the Gordons of Coclarachie. Again, the knowledge that I was interested in the subject led the late Father William Gordon, Superior of the Brompton Oratory, to give me the elaborate notes which he had been compiling for years on his family, the Gordons of Kethocksmill, near Aberdeen. These I was able to print in Scottish Notes and Queries the very month in which he died. But for that publication his work might have been lost sight of altogether. The intense interest in the whole subject is evidenced by the many communications I have received from all parts of the English-speaking world. The most recent came from an American, Mr. John Gordon late of Buenos Ayres, who belongs to the Gordons of Holm, cadets of the Lochinvars. For years he has been making elaborate (and expensive) researches into the history of his line, and he has placed all his material at the disposal of the Club. American genealogists, always keen on origins, have been particularly enthusiastic. I am especially indebted to the Hon. Armistead C. Gordon, Staunton, Virginia, whose work has disentangled the history of the Gordons in Ireland. Mr. Henderson Smith, Edinburgh, has come forward with his knowledge of bookplates belonging to the family, while scores of other correspondents have plied me with letters of inquiry on doubtful points in their pedigree.

A glance at the skeleton tables of the cadets of the Gordons prefixed to the volume will show the wide extent of ground to be covered. Indeed the work is so vast that one can well understand how it could never be attempted on a definitive basis, nor even by preconceived co-operative methods. But there is no doubt whatever that it can be ultimately overtaken in a piecemeal way : and, if not completed, much may be done, with enthusiasm and industry, to realise the desideratum of centuries.

The accompanying bibliography, incomplete in itself, indicates what has already been achieved. The scheme of the Club is to focus those spasmodic and tentative efforts, and produce a work more or less worthy of the great family, which, under the most varied conditions, has distinguished itself all over the world.

I have to thank many helpers for suggestions, assistance and encouragement. In particular, I am indebted to Mr. P. J. Anderson, the secretary of the Club ; to the Rev. Stephen Ree, who has thrown himself with immense enthusiasm into the whole scheme ; to Captain Douglas Wimberley ; and to Mr. Murray Rose, whose vast knowledge has always been placed at my disposal. Special thanks are due to Mrs. Skelton, who undertook the very laborious task of indexing the Poll Book and the Services of Heirs, besides making tedious transcriptions with rare accuracy for other parts of this volume.

In conclusion, let me say that the Club will be only too glad to hear of any research that has been made, with a view to its incorporation in the present scheme. The great difficulty involved in devising a plan of operation must be held responsible for the blunders and omissions in this opening volume.

APPENDIX TO PREFACE.

A SKETCH BIBLIOGRAPHY OF GORDON GENEALOGY.

THE following list does not pretend to be a complete bibliography of the genealogy of the Gordons. Anything approaching definitiveness would cause endless delay: and even then the list would be incomplete. So this bibliography is the merest skeleton of the data which I have gathered for years, and only the shadow of the material that is available: but it deals with all the leading lines both in the north and south of Scotland. The literature of the Gordons in the north of Scotland is familiar. The great store-houses of information to the north-east of Scotland are the Antiquities of the Shires of Aberdeen and Banff (Spalding Club, 5 vols., 1843-69) and Lord Huntly's Records of Aboyne (New Spalding Club, 1894). The history of the Gordons who remained in the south has, as I have noticed in my preface, been more neglected, but the prominence of the family may be gauged from the fact that in P. H. McKerlie's Lands and Owners in Galloway, 1870-79, there are 164 entries dealing with Gordons possessing land, and fifty-nine other entries giving only Christian names.

This list has been prepared chiefly on the principle of citing monographs on different branches, and of noting books where they are mentioned, but where one might not naturally search for them. No attempt has been made to include any of the printed public records, for the searcher instinctively turns to them for information, which their elaborate indexes readily supply. These records are:—

- Scots Acts of Parliament* (1124-1707).
- Services of Heirs* (1545-1799).
- Registrum Magni Sigilli* (1306-1651).
- Register of Privy Council* (1545-1630).
- Exchequer Rolls* (1264-1588).
- Accounts of Lord High Treasurer* (1473-1513).
- Calendar of Documents relating to Scotland* (1108-1435).

Calendar of State Papers, Scotland (1509-1603).

Laing Charters (854-1837).

Scots Testaments (1514-1800).

Historical MSS. Commission Reports.

As an example of the richness of these records, I may cite minor families of Gordon noted in the Scots Acts of Parliament alone:—

Aberdour (1787-93); Achomachy (1698); Adiwel (1581); Aikenhead; Airtloch (1662-1703); Ardlogie (1639-56); Ardoch (1748-57); Aroquhain (1674); Arradoull (1663-92); Auchinachie (1643-1782); Auchinangzie (1573); Auchincairne (1662); Auchindore (1591-1633); Auchindoun (1587-1600); Auchinhalrigg (1724); Auchinhannok (1655-1710); Auchinhove (1678); Auchinreith (1647-65); Auchlean (1652); Auchlyne (1714-34); Auchmull (1744); Auchmunziel (1745); Auchridie (1702); Auchtirairne (1574); Baccharowe (1690); Balcomy (1686-1703); Balcraig (1608); Balery (1607); Balgown (1786); Ballegorno (1743); Ballone (1649); Balmade (1673-74); Balmeg (1648-1794); Balmuir (1790); Banchory (1740-51); Bandane (1607); Bandloch (1645); Barharrow (1662); Baranrine (1595-1654); Barnfalsie (1662); Barnharnie (1690); Barns (1698-1740); Barrelmad (1661); Barroch (1662); Bellieturey (1649); Beoche (1607-16); Bermart (1662); Birkenbush (1754-70); Birkinburn (1647); Birness (1751-56); Blackford (1645); Blaiat (1548-1634); Blairmad (1728); Boddam (1685-89); Boghall (1661); Boigs of Darley (1681); Boytath (1720); Braichlie (1663-1704); Branelane (1669); Brora (1649); Buitle (1645-58); Cairstown (Kerston) (1750-99); Camdell (1685-96); Carrell (1643-1766); Carron (1797); Castraman (1610); Chirmers (1656-62); Clerkseat (1740); Clone (1596); Cloinyard (1687); Cloves (1718); Coldwells (1766-83); Colholstane (1559); Coliston (1690-1719); Combrie (1665); Corachrie (1622); Cowbairdy (1773-82); Coyanach (1704-99); Crabstoun (1735); Crago (1620); Craigellie (1704); Craigieheid (1682); Craigmyle (1763); Cranach (1689-90); Crathienaird (1767); Creiche (1553-1663); Crimonmogate (1685-89); Cringlay (1663); Culreoch (1646); Cumry (1779); Cults (1662); Cuffurroch (1724); Dallochie (1685-1770); Dendeuch (1737); Deskfurd (1556); Doil (or Doll) (1648-85); Dorlathers (1753); Drumjoy (1648); Drumrash (1773); Drumwhyndle (1693-1735); Dungeuch (1695); Dundeauch (1682-90); Eaynbo (1648); Edintore (1742-63); Enrick (1649); Farnachtie (1737); Fetterangus (1768); Fidderey (1649); Forskan (1713); Gaitley (Gaithy) (1700-02); Gallachie (1647); Gararie (1672-1704); Gartie (Garve) (1678-1704); Gedgill (1662); Glascoforrest (1574); Glasnick (1649); Glass (1645-46);

Glassauch (1643-49); Gleanicht (); Glencatt (1744); Glendaveny (1774); Glenderrick (1734); Glenlady (1662); Glenluce (1610-49); Gordonsmilne (1639-50); Govell (1704); Greencastle (1776); Grievshop (1778); Hallcraig (1706); Hallhead (1685-1704); Hillhead (1712); Hilton (1735-44); Hospidell (1704); Humetoun (1686); Innermarkie (1628-33); Invergordon (1766); Invernaver (1667); Kegnith (1702); Kilgour (1723); Killileoch (1697); Killielour (1657-62); Kinaldie (1740); Kinbo (1664); Kincaldrum (1659); Kingoodie (1697); Kingsgrange (1774-77); Kinmundy (1704-41); Kinnedour (1718); Kirkdaill (1628); Kirketilbreke (1644); Kirkhill (1694-1708); Kirkland (1617-1731); Knarie (1605); Knockgrant (1645); Knockgray (1643-90); Knockreoch (1610); Langdale (1661-63); Langwell (1704); Largmoir (1648-1704); Laussie (1741); Law (1645-96); Little Cocklaw (1766-74); Littleknox (1788); Littlemylne (1647); Logie (1704-52); Lumsdeall (1661-62); Makaitnay (Mercartney) (1607-62); Midgarthie (1663-67); Midmar (1621); Migstrath (1690); Mill of Esslemont (1744); Mill of Kincardine (1744-70); Minidow (1759); Minybowie (1662); Moy (1649); Mundork (1626); Mureick (1645-46); Nether Boddom (1698); Newbigging (1704); Newcoundaw (1647); Newhall (1764-87); Newmilne (1649); Newtown (1644); Newtyle (1681-85); Overbarr (1690-1708); Overhall (1647-1704); Oxhill (1647); Pennyghame (1648); Pinkaitland (1690); Pittendreich (1645-63); Rainieshill (1731); Rany (1645); Rathleif (1678); Robertoun (1646-62); Rogart (1667-85); Rothiemurkus (); Rovie (1663-85); Sallach (1649); Sands (1732); Seaton (1690-1704); Shives (1546-65); Skibo (1678); Spedoch (1687); Strangaslyle (1650); Strathdoun (1567-1606); Swellend (1669); Techmuir (1648-1747); Thornbank (1661-85); Tilliangus (1567-1663); Tillisoules (1696); Tillythroskie (1639); Towie (1712); Tulloch (1637-56); Uppat (1649); Waterside (1662); Wetcraige (1598); Whiteley (1783); Whitepark (1612-28); Woodhall (1704-46); Zeochrie (1694).

In this bibliography I begin with the MS. genealogies, and go on to a classified list, arranged alphabetically according to the lands held by them. I am deeply indebted to Rev. Stephen Ree for his invaluable help in examining several of the MSS.

I.—MANUSCRIPT SOURCES (a) ARRANGED CHRONOLOGICALLY.

Ferreri^{us} MS.—Historiæ compendium de origine et incremento Gordoniarum familiae, Joanne Ferrerio Pedemontano auctore, apud Kinlos, 1545, fideliter collectum.

Ferreri^{us}, who was an Italian from Piedmont, was brought in 1528 to Scotland from Paris by Robert Reid, afterwards Abbot of Kinloss and Bishop of Orkney, and for some time taught the monks of Kinloss in Morayshire. A notice of him will be found in Stuart's Records of Kinloss (p. xiii.-xxii.). The preface to his history of the Gordon family is addressed to George, fourth Earl of Huntly, and is dated at Kinloss, March 30, 1545; and in it he says that the history was written at the request of the Earl's kinsman and secretary, Mr. William Gordon, who had supplied him with an outline in Scots (idiomate vestro) of the family history. He further states that he had read the histories and annals of Scottish affairs, except those that were written in the vernacular, and that his history is based upon what he found in the public chronicles (in publicis historiarum monumentis). William Gordon, the historian of the house, who made use of a copy of Ferrerius, says: "That History is very short and superficial, and comes no further down than the Year 1545; it may be printed in less than two Sheets of Paper, and so must be very defective, as indeed it is." There are several transcripts of the MS.—two in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, two in Gordon Castle. The laird of Parkhill owns a fifth.

Macquair MS.—Vera narratio ingentis et miraculi plenae victoriae, partae apud Avinum in Scotiae borealibus partibus a Georgio Gordonio Huntlaeo et Francisco Haijo Errolio Catholicis principibus contra Archim-baldum Cambellum Argadorum imperatorem 5 Nonas Octobris anno domini 1594.

This MS., consisting of twenty folio pages, is now in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh (MS. 33.2.36). The writer was a priest who accompanied Huntly's forces, and is said to have been Alexander Macquair, S.J. An English translation, slightly abridged in some parts, is given (vol. i., pp. 136-52) in Sir John Graham Dalyell's Scottish Poems of the Sixteenth Century (Edinb., 1801). In vol. i., pp. 255-70, of the Spottiswoode Miscellany (Edinb., 1844), there is printed "Account of the Battle of Balrinnes 3d of October, 1594". This account is "from a MS. formerly belonging to the Rev. Robert Wodrow, now in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates," and is founded on the Vera Narratio, though containing some additional information. The MS. of the Narratio was probably written previous to 1629, as the cover of the volume in which it occurs bears that it was presented to Camden in that year by Sir Robert Cotton. The hand is early seventeenth century. The volume contains the Battle of Balrinnes (ballad) in a different hand.

Domus Gordon Comes Huntley.

A genealogical table in the same volume in the Advocates Library as contains the Vera Narratio (MS. 33. 2. 36). The descent terminates with the sixth earl, and is accompanied by two coats of arms: the Earl of Huntley and the Lord Seaton.

MS. of circa 1600.

A MS. of nineteen folio pages, without title or date, is in the possession of Mrs. Elphinstone Dalrymple, of Kinellar Lodge. It is called "a Gordon Pedigree of 1580" in Records of Aboyne, p. vii., but that date is clearly erroneous, as the Battle of Glenlivet is unmistakably referred to on page 16. The MS. deals with the Houses of Petlurge, Carnburrow, Haddoch, Auchmeinnie, Tilleminnatt and Lesmoir.

MS. of circa 1610.

A MS. of sixteen pages folio, without title, is in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh (MS. 35.5.5a). It begins—"This George Gordone first Marquis of Huntley succeeded his father George the yeir off God ," and ends abruptly with the account of the battle between the Macleans and the Macdonalds in 1597. It was written in the lifetime of the Marquis, after 1607 and before 1620.

Alexander Ross's MS.—Sutherlandiae Comitum Annales: in quibus eorum origo et incrementa, vitae et res bello paceque gestae dilucide explicantur: multa quoque notatu digna in regionibus Scotiae ultra Caledonios, a Scriptoribus nostris vel breviter tacta, vel penitus omissa, fusiùs proponuntur. Authore Alexandro Rossaëo Aberdonense Scoto, 1631.

The original is in Dunrobin. A quarto MS. ("penes Dom. Robertum Sibbald") is mentioned in Nicholson's Scottish Historical Library, 1702 (p. 245 †). The "dedication bears date from Ross's study at Southampton, August 1, 1627. He begins with a description of the county, and largely proceeds with the Annals of the Earls to 1625." In the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, there is a small quarto MS. (34, 6, 18) with the title: Gordoniorum et Southirlandorum historia duobus libris descripta: quorum prior Huntileae familiae res gestas a Joanne Ferrerio Pedemontano conscriptas complectitur; posterior vero Southirlandiae comitum originem et incrementa, vitas et res bello paceque gestas, in quo multa notatu digna in regionibus Scotiae ultra Caledonios, a scriptoribus nostris vel breviter tacta vel penitus omissa, fusiùs explicantur. Authore Alexandro Rossaëo Aberdonense Scoto. The portion containing the Southirlandiae comitum Annales, etc., extends to eighty-one pages, of which four are blank. The dedication begins: Viro stemmatis splendore et virtutibus eximio, D. Roberto Gordonio, equiti aurato, Britanniarum regi ex interioris cubiculi familiaribus, Alexandri Southirlandiae comitis filio secundo-genito, jam Southirlandiae Tutori, et primo Scotiae (ut vocant) Baronetto, Alexander Rossaëus S.P.D., and ends: Ex musaëo nostro Southamptoniae primo die Januarii anno millesimo sexcentesimo vigesimo sexto. A different but contemporary hand has corrected Januarii into Augusti and sexto into septimo, and the same hand (apparently the author's) has made frequent corrections throughout the volume. In the dedication Ross states that he had the "Annales" ready for publication several years before, but the volume had been lost; that he had now prepared them anew at the request of Sir Robert Gordon, and had dedicated them to him for various reasons, but chiefly because Sir Robert had not only incited him to write the history, but had also supplied him with his own observations and collections. Sir William Fraser, in the Preface to his Sutherland Book, describes Ross's "Annales" as only an abstract in Latin of Sir Robert Gordon's work. It would probably have been better to say that Sir Robert Gordon, recognising that Ross had worked up only the material he had supplied, had so freely used Ross's MS. in writing his own history, that Ross's "Annales," though written first, serves as an abstract in Latin of Sir Robert's work. Sir William Fraser deals not only with the Dunrobin copy of the MS., but also with two in the possession of Mr. Gordon of Halmyre (descended from the Gordons of Gordonstoun).

Funeral procession of the first Marquis of Huntly, 1636.

An apparently contemporary representation in the possession of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland. The painting is on a roll of paper measuring 16 ft. 9 in. in length, by 8 in. in breadth. The dresses and armorial bearings are of great interest.

Records of the Regality of Huntly (1640-1744).

These are preserved in H.M. General Register House, Edinburgh, and the following description has been kindly furnished by Dr. Maitland Thomson:—

- “ 1. Deeds, 1 vol., 20 Oct., 1686—5 Jan., 1734.
2. Hornings and Inhibitions, vol. i., 15 Oct., 1687—14 Apr., 1710.
3. — vol. ii., 11 Nov., 1717—11 Jan., 1748. (This volume, though not used till 1717, was issued by a Clerk of Session on 11 July, 1710).
4. Court Book, 7 Oct., 1697—30 Mar., 1711 (Huntly).
5. — 10 July, 1724—2 Feb., 1739 (Huntly).
6. — 24 Nov. 1721—10 Aug., 1733 (Fochabers and Gordon Castle).
7. — 30 Apr., 1698—25 Aug., 1736 (Badenoch and Lochaber).
8. Volume of original papers, 19 Mar., 1700—27 Aug., 1744, with a few earlier documents (1640 onwards) added at end (Badenoch and Lochaber).”

Prony MS.

It will be seen from the Balbithan MS. (59, 60), that there was a “manuscript that goes under Proneys name”. The Gordons of Proney were cadets of the Buckie family. William Gordon in his History (i., 5) says, “I have an old MS. before me written by one, John Gordon, son to George Gordon of Prony”. What has become of the Prony MS. nobody knows. It was used by Theodore Gordon in his MS. history of the Gordons, and there are copies of fragments of it in the Lyon Office.

MS. of circa 1644.

The University Library, Aberdeen, possesses a fragment of a quarto MS. account of the Gordons. It begins at page 31 and ends abruptly at page 46. This MS. must have been used as the basis of some of the Balbithan MS. and is possibly part of the Prony MS.

Delmore MS.—A Genealogical Account of the Family of Gordon and their Cadets, with a note of their Lives and Fortunes.

William Gordon of Delmore (fl. 1553-1604), son of Alexander (who was the second son of the third Earl of Huntly), is said to have spent his leisure hours in writing a history of the Gordons, which about the middle of the eighteenth century was in the possession of James Man, a historian resident in Aberdeen. The history, of which no trace has since been discovered, is thus described by Man (Gordon's Scots Affairs, i., p. xxxii.). “There is little in it but mere genealogy till we come to 1630; and the rest of it has been engrossed, almost word for word, by Spalding in his Memoirs. So there needs nothing more to be said of it, only it goes a little further than Spalding into the year 1645.” “The whole of it could not have been written by William as he did not live so long.” (The Croughly Book, by Capt. G. H. B. Gordon, 1895, pp. 59, 60). He was the ancestor of the Gordons of Croughly.

A folio MS. in Dunrobin Castle containing Genealogical Tables of Huntly, Sutherland, Gordonstoun, Ferack, Garty, Lochinvar, Drummoy, Sideray, Enbo, Backies, Craighton and Overskibo; apparently framed by Sir Robert to accompany his Earldom (cf. p. 104, l. 7 from foot). A transcript for the use of the Club has been kindly supplied by the Rev. J. M. Joass, LL.D., Golspie.

The author was Robert Gordon of Straloch, the mapmaker, who died 1661. It was written in his old age, and William Gordon (History of Gordons, i., p. xxiv.) says that Straloch's "old Age and the Situation of his Dwelling hindred him from searching into the Registers and publick Records, so that it is in many Things very defective. But what we have of it is very well done, and deserves the greatest Credit, for he was a Gentleman of the strictest Veracity". The original is now in Gordon Castle, having been presented to the Duke of Gordon in 1773 by John Gordon of Craig; and consists of forty-one pages folio, with forty-nine or fifty lines on the page. On blank pages at the end are pasted two small sheets, the one having notes by Mr. Robert Burnett of Crimond, the other having notes by Dr. George Middleton, Principal of King's College (1684-1717). James Man (Gordon's Scots Affairs, i., p. viii.) says Straloch's "History of the illustrious Family of the Gordons, which is carried down only to the year 1595, is writ in a clear and concise Latin style and very exact as to the geography of places, with which he was so well acquainted. I have seen the original MS. of this book (which has been composed after 1655, as appears by his mentioning Spotswood's and Johnston's Histories, which were not published till that year) with the Remarks of Mr. Robert Burnett of Crimond and Dr. George Middleton, Principal of the King's College of Aberdeen, upon it. I have likewise seen several copies of it." A transcript is in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, but the first leaf is wanting. A transcript is in the possession of the laird of Parkhill; this was copied in 1763 for Rev. Theodore Gordon, and the copy is now in Gordon Castle. A transcript (including Principal Middleton's notes) was in the possession of Rev. Dr. Woodward, Montrose, and at his death passed into the hands of A. W. Macphail, bookseller, Edinburgh, who offered it in December, 1899, for £2 15s. and subsequently sold it.

MS. of circa 1670.—A genealogie of the name of Gordon with the branches and cadets thereof.

This is a quarto MS. of 12 pages, and is bound up (with copies of the MSS. of Ferrerius and Straloch) in a volume now in the possession of the laird of Parkhill. It deals with Huntly (to about 1668) and with "Jock" and "Tam". A copy of the part dealing with "the genealogie of Thomas Gordon of Daach," made on a foolscap sheet about 1760 for (or by) John Gordon of Craig, is now in the University Library, Aberdeen.

Burnet MS.—The pourtrait of true loyalty exposed in the Family of Gordon without interruption to this present year 1691, with a relation of the siege of the Castle of Edenbrughe in the year 1689.

This MS. is now in Blairs College, near Aberdeen. It is a quarto volume of 303 pages, and has the book plate of the Scots College at Paris. The dedicatory letter, addressed "to the Right Honourable the Earle of Huntly," extends to four pages (not numbered) and concludes "My Lord, your Lo. most humble and most obedient servant, W. R." William Gordon in his History (p. xxiv.) says it "was written (as I am told) by one Mr. Burnet, a Priest of the Romish Church, who lived in Scotland in King James VII.'s Time, and I am sorry I can give no further Account of him, only I've been told he was a Mearns Gentleman". The copy of Gordon's History in the University Library, Aberdeen, has the following note in the hand-writing of Professor Thomas Gordon: "This author's name was David [Burnet]. He studied in the Scots College at Rome from the year 1661 to 1669, when he was ordained a priest and came as a missionary to Scotland, where he remained for seven years. From 1676 to 1680 he was Prefect of Studies in the Scots College of Paris. In 1680 he returned to Scotland and died anno 1695. He was for several years Chaplain to the family of Gordon at Gordon Castle, where he was much esteemed. This information from Bishop John Geddes. T. G." William Gordon describes the author as "honest, loyal, and a Man of good Learning"; and says also, "as he continues his History much further than any of the former Authors I have mentioned, so he is more exact and full than any of them; yet in many Things, even of Moment, he is very defective, and gives but a lame Account of what happened to the Family of Gordon in the Time of the Rebellion against Charles I. and II. It appears he did never see Sir Robert Gordon's MS. History, nor has he at all looked into the Registers or Records, and so behooved to be guilty of many Omissions. He seems to have been pretty well acquainted both with the Scots and English Historians; but being an entire Stranger to our Registers, has with them fallen into a good many chronological Mistakes." Lord Huntly had the use of this MS. in preparing his Records of Aboyne (p. vii.). There is a transcript in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, a small quarto of 62 pages, written about 1750; and on the margin of the title page there is this note: "The most part of this MS. is printed in Gordon's History of the Family of Gordon".

Mackenzie MS.—Collections of the most remarkable accounts that relate to the families of Scotland.

This MS., which is in the Advocates Library (34. 3. 19), was begun by Sir Patrick Lyon of Carse (d. 1695?) and annotated by Mackenzie. It deals with the supposed French origin of the Gordons; the Huntly and the Gordonstoun families.

MS. of circa 1700.—The abridged history of the antiente and most illustrious family of Huntly and Duke Gordone together with the genealogie and armes blazoned in abrupt lynes.

This is a small quarto volume in Gordon Castle. Its contents are: The names of the authores from which the history is compyled, 1 p. The epistle to the reader, 6 pp. The Armes (pen and ink), 1 p. The Armes of that most noble and antient house of Huntlie blazoned in som abrupt lynes, 12 pp. The genealogy of that noble and illustrious family of Huntlie or the lyne of the ancestores of Duk Gordone according to the best and most exact genealogies and accountes thereofe, 18 pp. The history of the most antient and illustrious family of Huntlie or ane account of the trans-actiounes of the ancestoures of Duk Gordone, 197 pp. A table or index of the most materiale points contained in this traitaise, 15 pp. The history ends with a brief notice of Lewis, the third Marquis. The author's name is not given. This MS. is probably that referred to in the following note by the late Mr. C. Elphinstone Dalrymple. "Mr. Spottiswood of Spottiswood (then an old man), writing to William Gordon of Harperfield in 1781, says: 'I was told by my father's clerk, who served him all his life, that he was employed by the old Duke of Gordon, who held out the Castle of Edinburgh against King William, and in this cause he had occasion to give a history of the family, with which his grace was so pleased that he ordered the clerk to make a copy of it to be deposited in his charter kist; which he did, but he had forgot the particulars and the year, which according to my conjecture behoved to have been about the year 1703 or 1704'."

R. M.'s MS., 1707.—Genealogie of the familie of Gordon, collected by R. M. Anno. Dom. 1707.

This MS. is referred to by Joseph Robertson in a footnote (p. 38) to his edition of the Diary of Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries (Spalding Club). The MS. was then in the Skene Library. In 1899 when part of that library was sold, the Duke of Fife informed the present writer that he knew nothing of the MS.

Balbithan MS.

This unique document is reprinted in the present volume from a copy in the possession of Mrs. Charles Elphinstone-Dalrymple, of Kinellar Lodge. It is valuable mainly as a guide to the descendants of "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue.

Lesmoir MS.—Genealogy from father to son of the House of Lesmoir, as it was painted on the chimney of the said House, and bears date 1405, transcribed therefrom by Dr. Thos. Gordon of Craigelly.

It is printed in Captain Wimberley's Memorials of Lesmoir, p. 99. The date 1405 is probably a mistake for 1505. The pedigree comes down to the issue of Sir James Gordon, XIII. of Lesmoir, but does not give his son George as baronet. As Sir James died about 1743, the pedigree must have been made before that date.

Theodore Gordon's MSS.—A Genealogy of the name of Gordon "with the branches and cadets thereof agreeable to the preceding histories of Straloch and Ferrerius, and likewise to ane old MS. written by John Gordon son to George Gordon of Proney, and several other unexceptionable authorities". By Theodore Gordon, minister of Kennethmont.

Rev. Theodore Gordon was the son of William Gordon, Drumbulg, and married Anne Gordon, youngest daughter of Professor George Gordon, professor of Hebrew, King's College, Aberdeen, a member of Kethocksmill family. Theodore Gordon died in 1779. A copy of his work (made by the late Dr. Burnett) is in the Lyon

Deuchar's MSS.—“Genealogical Collections relative to the Family of Gordon.”

These are mentioned in an editorial note in Notes and Queries for 30th March, 1867. Alexander Deuchar was a seal engraver in Edinburgh.

Sinclair MS.—Memoranda relative to the Families of Gordon and Forbes in Mr. Alexander Sinclair's collections now in Crawford Priory Library.

Alexander Sinclair (1794-1877) was the second son of the Right Hon. Sir John Sinclair of Ulbster, 1st Bart. He was a very learned genealogist and wrote an essay on Heirs Male. Col. Robert Boyle writes to me: “Mr. Sinclair made many notes, but they are not of much use to others, as they are mostly undated, and give no authorities; and one of his notes is frequently contradicted by another, presumably later in date; but there is no means of knowing which of the two is the first and which the revised edition. The notes that I saw were chiefly in the form of fragmentary tables of pedigrees.” This is so typical of Gordon genealogy, as I have pointed out in my Preface.

Ronald MS.

A history of the Gordons in the Cabrach was compiled by William Ronald, M.A. (K.C.), 1822, schoolmaster of Cabrach.

I.—MANUSCRIPT SOURCES (b) ARRANGED ACCORDING TO OWNERSHIP.

Abergeldie MSS.

Aboyne MSS.

See Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, ii., 180. To a considerable extent the earlier papers have been printed in Lord Huntly's Records of Aboyne, but several old rentals of Mar are still in MS. An inventory (MS.) of the muniments is in existence.

Blairs College MSS.

The Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, ii., 201, gives the titles of two manuscripts: The genealogies of the families of Scotland, collected by Sir George Mackenzie [1636-91], His Majesty's Advocate; and An account of various noble Scottish families with topographical notes, written in 1728. The college authorities decline, meantime, to permit examination of these MSS. See also Burnet MS. (supra).

Charleton MS.—Memoirs of the Origin and Descent of several Branches of the Surname of Gordon, 1822.

Mr. More-Gordon of Charleton, Montrose, tells me that he has “a MS. book written by Cosmo Gordon in 1822, containing the history of several families of the name of Gordon”. It was given to Mr. More-Gordon's grandfather, Harry Gordon, by Cosmo Gordon, Liverpool, who was a cousin. A copy of it is now in possession of Miss Jean Anne Gordon, Elgin, daughter of the late Rev. George Gordon, LL.D., minister of Birnie, near Elgin. It is a quarto volume of about 318 pages and deals with the ducal Gordons (pages 1-246) and the Beldornie Gordons.

Dunrobin MSS.

See Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, ii., 177, which refers to an inventory of the papers. See also Sir Robert Gordon's Tables and Alexander Ross's MS. (supra).

Earlston MSS.—A Short and Concise Abridgement of the origin of the name and illustrious family of Kenmure, with their no less renowned descendants.

This manuscript contains the most elaborate account of the Gordons in the south of Scotland that I have come across. It is a folio of 101 pages, written by the fourth baronet of Earlston, Sir John Gordon (born 1720: died 1795), and is divided into three main sections. The Kenmure family gets thirty-one pages, the families of Airds, Ayton and Earlston thirty-eight; while the author devotes twenty-nine pages to his autobiography, in which he describes at length his experiences as an officer in the Scots Brigade in Holland. The manuscript, which is exceedingly interesting, if a little prolix, is now in the possession of Sir William Gordon, Bart., of Earlston, whom I have to thank very much for his courtesy in allowing me to examine it minutely.

Fyvie MSS.

See Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, v., 644. A number of documents dealing with the Fyvie Gordons are in the possession of the Rev. Dr. Milne, Fyvie.

Gordon Castle MSS.

See Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, i., 114. Selections from these papers were printed in 1846-49 by the Spalding Club: Miscellany, vols. iii. and iv. A detailed MS. inventory in Gordon Castle makes the documents accessible. See also Ferreri's MS. and Straloch MS. and MS. of circa, 1700 (supra).

Gordonstoun MSS.

“The more important part of the papers at Gordonstoun consists of the correspondence of Sir Robert Gordon, of documents which he collected, or which came at a later period into the family archives through connections formed by the marriages of his descendants. . . . A record of the Barony of Gordonstoun is preserved, beginning in 1663. . . . The collection is very extensive and miscellaneous, and contains many authentic materials for the domestic history of the North of Scotland during the seventeenth century” (Dr. John Stuart in Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, vi., 681-88). Sir William Gordon-Cumming has courteously granted permission to Mr. Ree to examine the enormous (and uninventoried) collection at Gordonstoun.

Haddo MSS.

See Hist. MSS. Comm. Report, v., 608. These papers include many charters of the lands of Haddo, Kellie, Methlick, Auchtercoull, etc. A portion of the correspondence was printed in Letters illustrative of public affairs in Scotland, 1681-84 (Spalding Club, 1851). The papers are being examined by the Rev. James Brebner, M.A., with a view to a deduction being contributed to The House of Gordon by the Earl of Aberdeen.

Pitfour MS.—Genealogical Notices of the Gordons of Cairnburrow, Rothiemay, Glenbucket, Park, Farskane and others (ten pages). Compiled by James Mitchell, Factor, Pitfour, circa 1830.

Mitchell was a native of Banff, and entered the service of James Ferguson of Pitfour, M.P., as a lad. He was factor from 1789 to 1839, and died about 1840, leaving between £3,000 and £4,000 invested at 3½ per cent., the interest being divided yearly among the schools in Fetterangus, Longside, Rora, St. Fergus and Banff, and a sum of £1 10s. every second year amongst "old men and women, widows, natives of and residing on the Pitfour estates, who have never been under church censure". There is no date on the MS., but it is written on foolscap, bearing the watermark "Wallyfield, 1815". Mitchell was apparently keenly interested in local history. This volume, which belongs to the Pitfour family, and is now in the hands of the assistant factor, Mr. John Fullerton, himself an industrious antiquary, contains an account of the Duff family, running into eleven pages: notes of "Tryals" from 1537-1701 (ninety-six pages); copies of documents regarding the liberation of two of the domestic servants of Sir John Gordon of Haddo (eight pages); facsimile of the signatures of the Earls of Huntly (two pages); an account of the Abbey of Deer, with copies of charters (twenty-six pages); copy of tack by William Earl Marischal, 1699; rental of Marischal's lands in Buchan, 1712; sale of the forfeited estates of Marischal, Panmure and others, 1764; remarks on the purchase of Marischal's lands in Buchan by Ferguson of Pitfour (eighteen pages); notes on monuments in the Abbey Church of Deer (two pages), and charters by Fergus, Earl of Buchan (seven pages). Some of the items have been printed in Scottish Notes and Queries by Mr. Fullerton. The MS. deals with the families of Cairnburrow, Rothiemay, Glenbucket, Park, Edinglassie, Carnousie, Farskane, Artlock, Balbithan and Edinglassie.

Auchendolly.—Burke's Landed Gentry (1898), i., 600, 601.

A curious fact about this estate is that it was given by Miss Gordon of Auchendolly to Michael Biddulph, the well-known London banker, because he was connected with the Gordons of Abergeldie (see infra, p. 104).

Auchleuchries.—

The interest of this family centres in General Patrick Gordon of Peter the Great's army, who left a very valuable diary, published in German under the title of Tagebuch des Generals Patrick Gordon [1655-1669], by Obolenski and Posselt; vol. i., Moscow, 1849; vols. ii. and iii., St. Petersburg, 1851, 1853, 8vo. A summary of this book was published by the Spalding Club in 1859, edited by Joseph Robertson, under the title of Passages from the Diary of General Patrick Gordon, 4to, pp. 244. This edition contains an appendix dealing, from the documentary point of view, with the family of Auchleuchries: Patrick Gordon, by Alexander Brueckner, St. Petersburg, 1878 (pp. 184: in Russian). Crogo.—McKerlie, iii., 82, 95, 96, 303.

Croughly.—The Croughly Book, compiled by Captain George Huntly Blair Gordon, R.E.; edited by J. Percy Gordon, and printed by subscription for private circulation, 1895, 8vo, 103 pp.

The family of Croughly in the parish of Kirkmichael are descended from Alexander, 3rd Earl of Huntly (died 1524). This pamphlet, which opens somewhat cynically in sketching the decay of the power of the Gordons, gives a very complete record of the later members of the Gordons of Croughly, who have been distinguished as a Service family, the most notable active member being General Redmond Gordon of the 15th Hussars, a brilliant cavalry leader in the South African War of 1899-1901. The author of the book, Capt. G. H. B. Gordon, R.E. (born 1857), succumbed to pneumonia, Nov. 18, 1897. He was the great-grandson of James Gordon of Croughly (1726-1818). He collected a good deal of matter on other branches of the Gordons. It is still in MS. (in the possession of Rev. Andrew Meldrum, Logierait), but is not of great value. The editor was his cousin, John Percy Gordon (born 1840), a solicitor in London. See also Jervise's Epitaphs, i., 70.

This family, which has remained Roman Catholic, is a branch of the Minmore line, and that in turn of the Knockespoek. The present Roman Catholic Bishop of Jamaica is a brother of the present laird of Drimnin. See Medical Directory, 1903.

Drumbulg.—Balbithan MS., 43, 45, 59, 60.Drumearn.

Edward Strathearn Gordon, a Lord of Appeal, was created Baron Gordon of Drumearn, 1876. The peerage became extinct 1879 (see G. E. C.'s Complete Peerage, iv., 53), but his issue will be found in the peerages since 1897, when a royal decree granted the courtesy title of Honourable to the children, of both present and deceased life peers. Lord Gordon was the son of Major John Gordon, 2nd Queen's Regiment, who was the son of Adam Gordon, of Griamacharry, Kildonan (1750-1831), beyond whom the family cannot be traced. Sir Thomas Edward Gordon (see Debrett's Knightage, 1902) is the son of Captain William Gordon, who was a son of this Adam. Lord Gordon's daughter Ella married Gen. Sir John James Hood Gordon.

Earlston.—The family, created baronets 1706, is described in all the baronetages, notably Burke and Debrett. See McKerlie, iii., 30, 85, 98, 145, 181, 191*b*, 195, 197, 229, 297, 307, 308, 314, 318, 321, 367, 387, 399, 414*b*, 427, 429, 435, 436, 438, 440, 441, 443; iv., 26, 61, 62, 63, 66, 76, 78, 80, 100, 282, 291, 302, 306, 318, 480, 481; v., 37, 43, 60, 121, 198, 300, 301; Scottish Nation, ii., 325; Records of the Corrie Family, A.D. 802-1899, by J[essie] E. Corrie; London: Mitchell & Hughes, 1899; vol. i., 109-129.

Miss Corrie's book includes pictures of Earlston Castle, the arms of the Earlston family; of Sir William Gordon of Afton, brother of Sir Alexander Gordon of Earlston; and of the oak cabinet carved in captivity by John Gordon of Earlston. The connection between the families is clearly stated in a pedigree by Miss Corrie, printed on one sheet (57 inches by 30 inches), entitled Genealogical Table of the Houses of Gordon, Corrie and Goldie, published 1897. The Earlston family, who were zealous Protestants, figure very largely in Covenanting literature. In the Dictionary of National Biography there will be found good summaries of the line of Alexander Gordon (1587-1654), of his second son, William (1614-1679), and of the latter's son, Sir Alexander (1650-1720), all by Mr. Henry Paton.

Mr. John Gordon, 22 South Audley Street, London, has made large collections on the history of this family and has placed his material at the disposal of the Club.

Huntly.

It is a curious fact that this family, the Gordons of Huntly, both in the main and ducal line, and in the matter of its cadets, should have had more attention paid to them than any other branches of the House of Gordon. This is all the more strange in that they were not of pure Gordon blood. They were "Seton Gordons," a term that has been used (one recalls Mrs. Byron's reference), and is still sometimes spoken of with a touch of contempt. And yet nearly all the printed histories and most of the manuscripts devote themselves to this line as if it summed up the family. I have, therefore, included under the title of "Huntly" those books which really deal with this line, under the guise of histories of the whole race.

Genealogie de l'illustre et ancienne maison de haut et puissant prince Mylord Duc de Gourdon, Marquis de Huntly, Comte d'Ainzie, Seigneur de provinces de Badenots et Lokaber, Baron de Stradoun, d'Achindoun, de Strabolgy, etc., Pair d'Escosse, descendant par les Rois d'Escosse, des Rois d'Angleterre, des Rois de Francè et d'autres Princes Souverains. [Circa 1700].

A folio volume of six pages printed on parchment and now in Gordon Castle. In the same volume there is a MS. translation into English made by Archibald Anderson, library keeper at Gordon Castle, in 1748, followed by a continuation of the genealogy to 1748, and by a "short account of the principal transactions during the time of Alexander, second of that name and fourth Duke of Gordon," beginning in 1758 and ending abruptly in 1765. This volume is referred to on p. 61, of C. A. Gordon's Concise History. A MS. copy of the genealogy in French is mentioned in Nicholson's Scottish Historical Library, 1702, as being then penes Dom. Robertum Sibbald.

The History of the Ancient, Noble and Illustrious Family of Gordon, from their first arrival in Scotland in Malcolm III.'s time to the year 1690 ; together with the history of the most remarkable transactions in Scotland from the beginning of Robert I., his reign, to the year 1690, containing the space of 400 years : all faithfully collected from ancient and modern Scots and foreign historians, manuscripts, records and registers of this nation. In two volumes. By Mr. William Gordon, of Old Aberdeen. Edinburgh : printed by Mr. Thomas Ruddiman, for the author, 1726-27. 8vo. Vol. i., pp. xxxi., 440 ; vol. ii., pp. viii., 624.

This is an account of the Gordons told in the terms of the general history of Scotland. In his Preface to the second vol. he says "I have already, in the Introduction to the First Volume, accounted for the motives that induced me to publish this History, and the Authors from whom I collected it. In that Introduction I promised to bring down the History of the Nation, with that of the Family of Gordon, to the year 1689 ; but the many and various Accidents that happened during the Rebellion in King Charles I.'s Time having swell'd this Volume to a greater Bulk than is proper for an Octavo Book, I was forced to break it off abruptly at the martyrdom of that most excellent Prince, and confine myself to the History of the Family of Gordon." Next to nothing is known about the author save that he was a student at Marischal College, 1694-98. In his History (ii., 405), he says: "I shall give an account of it [the taking of Kelly in 1644], as I had it from an uncle of my own, Gilbert Keith of Caldhome, who was there with his chief the Earl Marischal, and other gentlemen who were present". Scott (Fasti Eccles. Scot., iii., 589), says that William Gordon—minister of Kintore, 1679 to 1695 (ejected), and died 1697)—married Janet Keith, and had two sons Alexander and James, and two daughters—Catherine (married Mr. Rob. Keith, min. of Ballantrae) and Anna. Munro's Old Abdn. (i., 280), shows that in 1702 "Mr. Wm. Gordon, merchant burghess of Aberdeen, sone to Mr. Wm. G., min. at Kintore," was admitted a burghess of Old Aberdeen. Thus the min. of Kintore had at least one son more than those mentioned in Scott's Fasti. May not the Mr. Wm. Gordon, burghess of Old Aberdeen, in 1702, whose mother was Janet Keith, be the historian, "Mr. William Gordon of Old Aberdeen," whose uncle was Gilbert Keith? Gordon's book is not very useful, but it is rising in price. Wodrow in a letter to Dr. James Fraser dated Aug. 27, 1728 (Analecta Scotica, i., 3, 20-1) says:—"I am told Mr. Gordon of Aberdeen, who was at Sheriffmuir and who hath lately published the History of the Gordons designs an answer to my book. If he support what he sayes by no better vouchers, and breath the same bitter and violent spirit of slavery, that in my opinion is pretty plain in his History of the Gordons, I imagine, if I live to see his book, I shall notice it as little as I have done the pelts I have got from some Jacobite and high-flying writers on the other side."

A concise history of the Antient and Illustrious House of Gordon, from the origin of the name to the present time : together with an account of the pedigree of his grace the Duke of Gordon and of the Right Honourable the Earl of Aboyne, and the Lord Andrew, Count Gordon, nearest collateral branches of the illustrious family ; all faithfully collected from Scotch and Foreign historians, manuscripts, records and registers. By C [harles] A. Gordon. Aberdeen: printed for the author, 1754. 8vo. Pp. xi., 320. It was reprinted by D. Wyllie & Son in 1890 (8vo; pp. xi., 155); edited by A. M. Munro.

Nothing is known of the author of this book (which is mainly a condensation of William Gordon's work) except his own statement that he was "a stranger in this country".

Surgundo. Edinburgh: Thomas G. Stevenson, 1837.

This metrical history of the Gordons written in some 2000 doggerel couplets is really entitled The Valiant Christian, and was edited by Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, who printed fifty copies in 1837 as a quarto of 69 pp. The original is in the Advocates Library, Edinburgh. There is no vestige of the author's name; but at the bottom of the first page is this memorandum: "Lent by Patrick Gordon of Bonhall [Binhall?] to Glenbucket"; and on the blank page at the end: "John Gordon of Glenbucket". Its argument runs:—

"The Authores Proheme poyntes at his sadde fate.
Gordone Duke Raymore [Moray] killes, which breids debate.
The Gentilles rysse in armes, and him assealles;
Chrystes lawe he doeth professe, and stille preveilles."

The names of persons and places in the poem are written as anagrams. Thus Abergeldie appears as "Rabidegell"; Avochie as "Chiava"; Knockespok as Paeseneok and so on. The hero Surgundo [Gordonus] is the first Marquis of Huntly.

The Records of Aboyne, MCCXXX-MDCLXXXI. Edited by Charles XI., Marquis of Huntly, Earl of Aboyne, P.C., LL.D. Aberdeen: printed for the New Spalding Club, 1894, 4to, pp. xliii., 589.

This is a brilliant piece of genealogical work, in which Lord Huntly had the able assistance of Mr. D. Murray Rose (cf. Notes and Queries, 8, iv., 287). It contains an excellent sketch of the rise of the Gordons, and takes the reader down to Charles I., Earl of Aboyne. While primarily dealing with the ennobled Gordons of Huntly, it contains brief deductions of various cadets who crossed their path in the innumerable land transactions recorded in Lord Huntly's charter chest. It is a model of how such a book should be done.

A history of the Family of Seton during eight centuries. By George Seton, advocate, M.A. Oxon. etc. Edinburgh: privately printed by T. & A. Constable, printers to her Majesty, 2 vols., 1896.

These volumes, forming probably the most sumptuous of Scottish family histories, treat the Huntly branch as cadets of the great Seton family (pp. 375-459).

The Earl of Aboyne presented a second petition claiming the older title of Earl of Huntly, but this claim was not pressed. Lords Journals, lxi., 27; lxx., 329, 342, 358, 383, 402, 471.

The Gordon Book, edited by J. M. Bulloch, 1902.

This volume (8vo, pp. 84) was published in connection with the Fochabers Reading Room Bazaar. It contains fourteen full-page pictures and articles by the editor on Jane Maxwell, wife of the fourth Duke of Gordon and on her daughter the Duchess of Richmond besides a list of all officers of the name of Gordon, who fought in the South African War, 1899-1901. A good deal of out of way gossip about Jane Maxwell has been contributed by J. M. Bulloch to Bon-Accord (Aberdeen), July 3, 10 and 17, 1902; Oct. 2 and 9, 1902, and July, 16 and 23, 1903. The later volumes of Scottish Notes and Queries contain a great deal of matter about the Duchess.

The Gay Gordons, in the Scottish Review, xxv., 246-69. April, 1895. Also under same title by J. M. Bulloch, in Blackwood's Magazine, Feb. 1898. The Gay Gordons is also the name of a volume of "Ballads of an ancient Scottish Clan". Edited by Armistead C. Gordon, Staunton, Virginia. 1902.

Mr. Gordon is a lawyer in Staunton, is descended from an Irish branch of the Gordons who were probably descended from the Gordons of Craichlaw in Wigtonshire. The volume (of which 250 only were printed—in black and red, Jensen type) is an octavo and contains the ballads of "Edom o' Gordon," "Gordon of Brackley," "Knockespoock's Lady," "Kenmure," "Young Lochinvar," "Lewis Gordon," "O Where, tell me Where," "The Baron of Brackley," "Kenmure," 1715, "Castle Gordon," "Suspense" (by a Virginian Gordon, written upon "Chinese" Gordon at Khartoum) the "Gay Gordons" by Henry Newbolt, and "Ivy" by the editor.

An attempt to deal with this family was made (pp. 615-23), in Virginia Genealogies; a genealogy of the Glassell family of Scotland and Virginia, also of the families of Ball, Brown, Bryan, Conway, Daniel, Ewell, Holladay, Lewis, Littlefrage, Moncure, Peyton, Robinson, Scott, Taylor, Wallace and others, of Virginia and Maryland. By Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden, M.A., Wilkes-Barre, Penn., 1891-97 8vo., 759 pp. The late Rev. Father William Gordon, Superior of the Oratory, Brompton (1827-1901), spent the latter years of his life in investigating the history of his family, and the present writer was greatly indebted to him in compiling the descent of the family in Scottish Notes and Queries, July, 1900, and May, 1902.

Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonstoun, second son of Adam, Earl of Sutherland, was created premier baronet of Nova Scotia, 1625, and on the death of his great-great-grandson in 1795, without issue, this baronetcy passed to James Gordon of Letterfourie, who was descended from James I. of Letterfourie, brother of Adam, Earl of Sutherland. A branch of this family settled in Holland, and the Biographisch Woordboek der Nederlanden states that Solomon Gordon, of the Swiss Regiment in Holland, was the great-grandson of James I. of Letterfourie. Solomon's daughter, Gertrude (born 1669), was a poet, and is biographed in the Woordboek. Another member of this family was Otto Dirck Gordon, Colonel of a Company of the Civil Guards, Utrecht.

This family were notorious in connection with the bloody vendetta which they carried on with the Crichtons of Fren draught. The first laird of Rothiemay (who belonged to the Cairnburrow family) was killed in a march dispute with Crichton in January, 1630, and his son, the second laird, was burned at Fren draught House in the following October, along with John, Viscount Aboyne, son of the first Marquis of Huntly. An enormous amount of literature deals with their feud, notably in the Privy Council Register. Reference may also be drawn to D. Stanmore (Baron).—See Haddo.

Lord Stanmore, youngest son of the 4th Earl of Aberdeen, and created Baron, 1893, was associated when young with Bentley Priory, Stanmore. It is a curious fact that Bentley Priory is now in the possession of Mr. Frederick Gordon, the founder of the Gordon Hotels of London and elsewhere. Mr. Gordon was born in Herefordshire, but he writes that his family came originally from Aboyne. His son Vivian is an officer in the 1st Gordon Highlanders. Lord Stanmore's son is an officer in the 3rd Gordons—so that the two families, totally unrelated, have joined a common cause.

Stitchel.—See Lochinvar.Straloch.—Cadet of Pitlurg.

This family, which is descended from the Gordons of Pitlurg, included some notable men. Robert Gordon (1580-1661), of Straloch, together with his son James Gordon (1615?-1686), the famous parson of Rothiemay, contributed greatly to the maps of Scotland in Beau's "Atlas". Sutherland.

After the Huntly Gordons themselves, the history of their cadets who became Earls of Sutherland—and used the family name of Gordon until the time of John, Earl of Sutherland (1660-1733), who "quitted" it at a date unknown—has been more elaborately dealt with than that of any other branch of the family. The published histories are as follows:—

A Genealogical history of the Earldom of Sutherland, from its origin to the year 1630. Written by Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonstoun, Baronet. With a continuation to the year 1651 [by Gilbert Gordon of Sallagh]. Published from the original manuscript. Edinburgh: printed by George Ramsay & Co., for Archibald Constable & Company, Edinburgh; and White, Cochrane & Co., London, 1813. Folio. Pp. xvi. + 575 + xi.

This fine folio is printed from the MS. in possession of the Duke of Sutherland. The writer, Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonstoun, who dedicated his work to John Earl of Sutherland, dating from Dornoch 1630, was the 11th Earl of Sutherland's second surviving son by Lady Jane Gordon, daughter of the 4th Earl of Huntly. He died 1656. The work was continued (pp. 447-562) by Gilbert Gordon of Sallagh. The oldest MS. of Sir Robert Gordon is preserved at Dunrobin. It is a folio of 228 pages, to which is prefixed (according to the Sutherland Book, i., x.):—

- (1) An elaborate title page, extending over the whole page;
- (2) Catalogue of the principal authors consulted, including volumes collected by the learned William Camden, 2 pp.;
- (3) "The Epistle dedicatorie" to John, 13th Earl of Sutherland (2 pp.);
- (4 & 5) Descriptions of the armorial bearings of the Earl of Sutherland and Sir Robert Gordon (one page each);

(6) "The description of the province off Sutherland with the Commodities thereof": 7 pp. ;

(7) The Preface, one page.

Appended to the Genealogie proper there is a short discourse of the Earle of Southirland his precedence in Parliament of the Earle of Cateyness, wryten the year 1617 by Sir Robert Gordoun, 12 pp. The volume is beautifully bound in russia leather, and on a fly leaf of the modern binding is the following note holograph of the second Duke of Sutherland: "This manuscript of the History of the Family of Sutherland was given to me by Mr. Richard Gordon, descendant of Sir Robert Gordon in 1643—Sutherland." Underneath that note is another—"This volume is altogether in the handwriting of Sir Robert himself." This second note is in pencil by the late Mr. Cosmo Innes. Sir William Fraser took a different view. "Throughout the copy there are many additions and alterations in the undoubted handwriting of Sir Robert, extending occasionally to whole pages, while his marginal additions are numerous. These certainly show that the finely engrossed copy was made from an earlier draft which had been superseded by the copy on which the author made his additions and emendations from time to time. In this way the copy of the original draft had come to be considered as the original." Sallagh's continuation extends to sixty-three folios. This and a copy of Sir Robert's manuscript belong to Sir Robert's son, Robert Gordon of Cluny. It was acquired by Lady Jean Wemyss, the Countess of the 14th Earl of Sutherland, and presented by her to her son the 15th Earl in 1705. It is this copy that was printed. It was entrusted by the Marchioness of Stafford to Archibald Constable in October, 1806, to be printed privately as a presentation quarto, but it did not appear till 1813, and then it came out as a folio in the ordinary way. It was edited by Henry Weber (1783-1818), the crazy Anglo-Westphalian, who was Scott's amanuensis. He challenged Scott (see Lockhart's Life) in a moment of madness to a mortal duel in the year of the publication of this book. There are three other MSS. besides the Dunrobin one in existence: and the Duke of Sutherland possesses some interesting supplementary tables by Sir Robert, supra, p. xxxv. While dealing primarily with the noble house of Sutherland, Gordon's work throws a flood of light on other branches.

The Sutherland Book, by Sir William Fraser, K.C.B., LL.D. In three volumes [vol. i., Memoirs, pp. xlvi. + 520: vol. ii., Correspondence, pp. xxxviii. + 381: vol. iii., Charters, pp. lix. + 357]. Edinburgh, 1892. Printed by Constable. 4to.

This bulky work forms a dry-as-dust supplement to Sir Robert Gordon's very readable work. It is very similar to the other family chronicles by Sir William Fraser (1816-1898).

A large amount of valuable genealogical matter appeared in connection with the succession of Lady Elizabeth Sutherland to the Earldom, 1766. The 18th earl (and his wife) died of "putrid" fever at Bath in June, 1766, leaving an only daughter, Elizabeth, then thirteen months old. Her claim to succession was opposed by (1) Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonstoun, as heir male of the body of Adam Gordon, Earl of Sutherland, by his wife suo jure Countess: (2) by George Sutherland of Forss, as heir male of the first Earl of Sutherland. The literature bearing on this subject consists of—

[“Lady Elizabeth Sutherland’s voluminous additional case was not delivered to Sir Robert till Nov. 9 last, and six weeks were employed in examining it, and in detecting the errors with which it abounds. There remained, therefore, a very short and inadequate space of time for the preparing and the printing of the present brief. On this foundation Sir Robert Gordon rests his apology for the inaccuracies of language and errors of small moment which may appear in it.”]

GORDONS ON THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE.

Austria.

John Gordon of the Gight (q.v.) family assisted at the assassination of Wallenstein at Eger, 1634.

France.

Some genealogists, notably Rymer (Foedera, i., 791), maintain that the Gordons originally came from France. The Abbey of Gourdon (department of Lot) was the scene of many "treasure" digging expeditions down till 1842 (Chambers Journal, Nov. 20, 1897). Bernard Gordon, a notable physician, wrote a book De Curandis Mortis, 1305 (see Larousse). M. de Gourdon was Governor of Calais, and owned ships. He betrayed Gravelines to the Spaniards in 1578 (Calendar of State Documents, Foreign Papers, 1560-78, and Gordon's Earls of Sutherland, 137). The "Counts of Gordon" descended from the Glenluce family are dealt with in C. A. Gordon's Concise History of the Gordons (reprint 1890), pp. 125-130. Several soldiers of the name are dealt with in Father Forbes-Leith's Scots Men at Arms of France. Angelique Gordon, poet, is biographed in Larousse. A Gordon family in Alsace (consisting of Gilbert Gordon, Captain of the Bourbon Regiment, chief surveyor for the town of Lichtenberg, and his brother John, Captain of the Navarre Regiment) were recognised by the Duke of Gordon as kinsmen in 1722 (quoted in Aberdeen Free Press, Sept. 15, 1887). A Capt. Gordon, who invented a flute, who was a member of the Swiss Guards in Paris and threw himself into the Lake of Geneva in 1847, was dealt with by J. M. Bulloch in the Aberdeen Philharmonic Society's Bazaar Book, Feb., 1899. Adjutant Commandant Gordon of the French army, murdered in 1815, is dealt with in Scottish Notes and Queries, 2nd series, vol. ii., 31, 79. Arthur Young in his Travels in France describes a Gordon who was imprisoned in the Bastille for thirty years. Mirabelle de Gordon, a French engineer, came to Scotland with the Jacobite leaders, 1745 (Chevalier Johnston's Rebellion, edited by Winchester, i., 70, 71, 81, 83). Alexander Gordon of Wardhouse was executed at Brest for espionage, on Nov. 24, 1769. In May, 1900, a Colonel Gordon was arrested while sketching from a boat, Fort Taureau, at Finistère. A great many Jacobite refugees named Gordon sought sanctuary in France. Members of the family (notably the Hallhead Gordons) landed at Boulogne and Bordeaux, Rouen and Paris. William Gordon, the banker in Paris, figures frequently in Jacobite literature: see specially "a letter dated March 20, 1723, directed to Monsieur G[ordon], London, folio 1723". For priests of the name see Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus, 7 vols., 8vo, London, 1877; also Dict. Nat. Biog. for James Gordon (1553-1641) confessor to Louis XIII. Adam Lawrence Gordon was rector of Douai about 1666 (Hist. MSS. Com., v., 654). Father Gordon was principal of the Scots College at Paris, 1751 (Oliphants of Gask). Lady Henrietta Gordon (fl. 1658), daughter of John, Viscount Melgum, was maid of honour to Princess Henrietta, Duchess of Orleans (see Blakhal's Three Noble Ladies, 1844). For the Gordons at Waterloo see Dalton's Waterloo Roll Call, 1890. See also Diary of the Scots College at Douai.

Germany.

A great many Gordons became traders in Germany. The references are too scattered to be noted here, but special attention may be called to Mr. Th. A. Fischer's excellent books: The Scot in Germany (1902), pp. 8, 26, 33, 58, 60, 113, 118, 133, 162, 218 and 255; and The Scots in Eastern and Western Prussia (1903), pp. 37, 105, 199, 203, 205, 223. Andrew Gordon (1712-1751), professor of natural philosophy at Erfurt, gained a great reputation as an electrician (Dict. Nat. Biog.). Gordons at German universities will be found in various university Fasti.

Greece.—See Cairness.

Holland.

Many officers of the name of Gordon are dealt with in Ferguson's Scots Brigade in Holland. The Biographisch Woordboek der Nederlanden deals with Gertrude Gordon (born 1669), poet: and Otto Dirck Gordon, a soldier, both said to be descended from the Letterfourie Gordons. Robert Jacob Gordon, Dutch Commander-in-chief at the Cape, who committed suicide there in 1795, was dealt with by J. M. Bulloch in the Anglo-Saxon Review, Dec., 1900; see also Kaye's Life of Sir John Malcolm (1856). Presbyterian ministers of the name are dealt with in Steven's History of the Scots Church at Rotterdam; also Scott's Fasti, i., 154, 182, 543. For traders see Munro's Lord Provosts of Aberdeen, 200; Cramond's Banff, ii., 220; (English) Privy Council Acts, i., 235, 416; Birth Brieves in Spalding Club Misc., vol. 5 (see under Abergeldie, infra, pp. 98-9).

Italy.

For priests see Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus, 7 vols., 1877. Francis Gordon, who died in the service of the King of Naples, belonged to the Craig family (Wimberley's Gordons of Lesmoir, 107).

Poland.

In the year 1727 Mr. Finch, "late Envoy from the King of Great Britain to Poland," wrote a letter to the Duke of Gordon (probably at His Grace's request) giving the descent of Lady Catherine Gordon, daughter of the 2nd Marquis of Huntly and wife of Count Morsztyn. This document seems to have been highly prized, for I have seen two copies of it (it fills a sheet and a half of foolscap). One is in possession of Rev. Dr. Milne, of Fyvie, and the other belongs to the New Spalding Club. There is also a copy in Gordon Castle. Taking this document as a basis, the present writer has written several articles—"The Last King of Poland," in the Aberdeen Free Press, May 3, 1898, and the Aberdeen Evening Gazette, Nov. 17, Dec. 15, 1902; and "The Gordons in Poland," in Scottish Notes and Queries, May, July, Sept. and Dec., 1898, Aug. 1902. Col. Fabian Gordon of the Coldwells family was in the Polish service (see Services of Hcirc). A notorious character, Patrick Gordon, nicknamed "Steelhand," who gave the Covenanters a lot of trouble, went into the Polish cavalry. He is dealt with in the Diary of Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries (Spald. Club), and in articles by J. M. Bulloch on "Mercenaries" in the Aberdeen Free Press, Jan. 24-25, 1901. His origin has not yet been settled. For Sir Francis Gordon, H.M. Agent in Poland, see Braco. Robert Gordon, founder of Gordon's College, Aberdeen, was a merchant in Dantzic. See biographies of him by Alexander Walker (1876) and Robert Anderson (1896).

Portugal.

Lieut.-Col. John Gordon, died 1785, was in the Portuguese army. He was a brother of George Gordon of Gordonbank (Edin. Commissariat, vol. 126). Alexander Gordon, of Funchal, Madeira, is described, in 1764, by Lord Adam Gordon as "my relative and kind host" (Genealogist, xiv.). The wine firm of Cossart, Gordon & Co., Madeira (so called since 1861), was founded in 1745. In 1758 Thomas Gordon entered into partnership with Francis Newton. He came from Kirkcudbrightshire, and purchased the estate of Balmaghie (q.v.). John Gordon, of Lisbon, had a son, Edward, who entered Christ Church, Oxford, in 1781 (Foster's Oxford Graduates).

Russia.

Owing to the fact that many Russian and Polish Jews have taken the name of Gordon—some say from the town of Grodno—the genealogist of the Scots house encounters great difficulties not only with the Gordons in Russia and ancient Poland, but also in every corner of the world to which the Hebrew, driven from the Pale, has betaken himself. The great authority on the subject of the Gordons in Russia is the Diary of General Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries (q.v.), the favourite of Peter the Great. See also The History of Peter the Great (1755), by General Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul, the son-in-law of the above Patrick. Admiral Thomas Gordon, who was Governor of Kronstadt, was dealt with by J. M. Bulloch in the Aberdeen Free Press, Sept. 3, 19, 1898, and in Scottish Notes and Queries, Dec., 1898, and Jan., 1900; also in The History of the Russian Fleet under Peter the Great, edited by Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge (Navy Records Society). Admiral Gordon's ancestry is not known. The famous Jacobite, General John Gordon of Glenbucket, had a son in the Russian Navy.

Spain.

There have been many Gordons in Spain. Captain Juan Gordon was killed on the San Felipe, one of the Spanish Armada (Spanish State Papers). Godfred Gordon, "a Spanish lord, descended from a noble house," behaved with great gallantry at the siege of Bergen-op-Zoom, 1588 (Gordon's Earls of Sutherland, 197). The Gordons of Warehouse (q.v.) have long been in Spain, and the present family is almost Spanish. A William Gordon was in the Spanish army, 1719 (Jacobite Attempt of 1719). William Gordon, a Scoto-Hispano Jesuit priest, went to convert the North American Indians, and wrote Historia de las Misiones Jesuitas en la California baja desde su establecimiento hasta, begun at La Paz, 1734, ended at Santiago, 1737. The MS. (small 4to, 360 pp.) is described in Quaritch's great catalogue (vol. v.) as "very charming". America returned the compliment in the person of Mrs. Alice Gordon Gulick (died Sept. 14, 1903), who was president for thirty years of the International Institute for Girls in Spain (Times, Sept. 15, 1903). Mrs. Gulick (whose maiden name was Gordon) belonged to an American family.

Sweden and Norway.

The wars of Gustavus Adolphus took several Gordons to Sweden, notably Col. John Gordon of the Cotton family (see Wishart's Deeds of Montrose, edited by Morland Simpson, 282-6). Col. Alexander Gordon, grandson of Bishop William Gordon of Aberdeen, was also in the Swedish army (Gordon's Earls of Sutherland, 477-8). See also Spottiswoode, Misc., ii., 384, and Donner's Brief Sketch of the Scottish Families in Sweden and Finland, Helsingfors, 1884. William Gordon of the Farskane family was a merchant at Christiansand, circa 1758. William Gordon was a merchant in Gothenburg in 1812 (Scots Mag.). George Gordon, vice-consul for Sweden at Algiers, belonged to the Lesmoir family (see Wimberley's Gordons of Lesmoir, 71).

GORDONS IN AMERICA.

Many branches of the family of Gordon are to be found in America. Several emigrated from Scotland to Virginia, as in the case of the ancestors of Mr. John Gordon, of Rio de Janeiro, who is now working on the history of the Gordons of Holm. His brother, Mr. Seton Gordon, of New York, is also a great enthusiast. Another branch settled in Massachusetts, where Mr. G. A. Gordon has compiled a good deal of material on the family. As an indication of the prominence of the family in America it may be noted that in the American Who's Who, 1901-2, seventeen Gordons are biographed as against twelve Grants and three Forbesees. The family figures in many of the genealogies which Americans are so fond of compiling, and which unfortunately are so rarely to be found in libraries in this country. There is a good deal about it in Hanna's Scotch Irish (New York, 1902). Mr. Armistead Gordon, of Staunton, Virginia, has collected a vast amount of matter (still in MS.) on the family in America. Descended from the Gordons of Sheepbridge House near Newry, co. Down, he has directed his attention specially to the Gordons in Ireland. He writes to me: "I have lists of all Gordons now [1903] living in New York City, Chicago, Philadelphia and Toronto, with their street addresses, and in the four cities they number something over 1,200. Among these, however, are many Russian and Polish Jews." Captain Charles Gordon of U.S. Chesapeake (38 guns), was dealt with by J. M. Bulloch in the Banffshire Journal, Sept. 9, 1902. General Patrick Gordon, the first Governor of Pennsylvania (born 1644, died 1736), belonged to the Birsemoir family (see Appleton's Encyclopædia; Dalton's Blenheim Roll; Burke's Commoners, iv., 9). Rev. William Gordon (1728-1807), the historian of the United States, was a Herts man (Dict. Nat. Biog.). The following references to the family of Gordon are given in the index to American Genealogies, 5th edition, Albany, N.Y., 1900 (pp. 136, 137):—

GORDONS IN BRITISH COLONIES.

Africa.

For the Gordons who fought in the South African War of 1899-1902 see a list by J. M. Bulloch of "The Gordons as Campaigners in Africa," printed in the Gordon Book (1902), 75-84. See also under Holland (supra) for Robert Jacob Gordon, the Dutch commander-in-chief at the Cape, who christened the Orange river.

British Columbia.—The Gordons of Nanaimo and Cemox; (Burke's Colonial Gentry (1891), vol. i.).

Canada.—Canadian Men and Women of the Time, 1st edition, 1898.

The best-known Canadian of the name is the Rev. Charles W. Gordon, of Winnipeg, who has made a great success with some novels written under the name of "Ralph Connor". His father, Rev. Daniel Gordon, belonged to Blair Athole, and was at Marischal College, 1842-6. He emigrated to Canada. This Daniel is not to be confused with the Rev. Daniel Miner Gordon (son of William Gordon, a native of Sutherland) who made a great tour, in 1879, which he described in Mountain and Prairie, a Journey from Victoria to Winnipeg via Peace River Pass (Montreal, 1880, pp. 310). The Rev. Charles Gordon's ancestry was dealt with in the Aberdeen Free Press, Feb. 23, 1889, Dec. 29, 1900, Jan. 2, 1901. His English publishers have issued a leaflet entitled Ralph Connor: an Interpretation.

Egypt.

The outstanding Gordon in the history of Egypt is Charles George ("Chinese") Gordon (1833-1885) the hero of Khartum. An immense literature has been written about him, the British Museum catalogue containing 90 items, including lives by M. A. de Bovet, Boulger, Sir W. Butler, Forbes, Haines, Hake, Swaine, Tabarie, Walch and others. But his connection with any line of the Scots house is still untraced. Tentative solutions have been offered by J. M. Bulloch in the Genealogical Magazine, Oct., 1898, Scottish Notes and Queries, Nov., 1898, Feb., 1901 and Jan., 1903.

India.—The appearance of the Gordons in India has mainly been in the Army or the Civil Service. For notices of them reference should be made to Dodwell and Miles's Alphabetical Lists of (1) Officers of the Indian Army (1760-1837); (2) Medical Officers of the Indian Army (1764-1838); (3) The Honourable East India Company's Bombay Civil Servants (1798-1839); (4) Bengal Civil Servants (1780-1838); (5) Madras Civil Servants (1773-1839). For more modern services see the India List published annually by Harrison, the Indian Army List, Thacker's Indian Directory.

Jamaica.—Scottish Notes and Queries, May, 1902. The Antiquary (ed. Jewitt), iv., 129, 130, has an article by Charles Sotheran on Gordon and French families.

FAMILIES WITH COMPOUND GORDON NAMES.

A considerable number of families have hyphenated "Gordon" either before or after other surnames. In many cases it is easy to trace the reason of this. In others the reason is not so obvious. The Army List, the happy home of the hyphen, contains the greatest number of those compound names, showing at least that the Gordons are still animated by their old martial spirit. It may be noted as proof of the fighting faculty of the Gordons that in the Monthly Army List of Aug. 1903, there were 86 officers of the name (and 18 with the hyphenated name) wearing the king's uniform; against 93 supplied by the Burnetts, Forbeses, Farquharsons and Leslies—perhaps the most common Aberdeenshire surnames after Gordon.

Gordon-Browne.—See Cambridge Matriculations, 1851-1900.

Gordon-Canning.—See Hartpury.

Gordon-Cumming-Skene.—See Pitlurg.

Gordon-Dalrymple.

Mr. Arthur Dalrymple Gordon-Dalrymple of Greenknowe, Gordon, Berwickshire, and Langlee, Roxburghshire, is the son of the late Mr. Arthur Forbes-Gordon of Rayne, Aberdeenshire (whose father, born Forbes, assumed the additional name of Gordon under the entail of his cousin, John Gordon of Avochie). His mother, Christina Dalrymple, was co-heiress of the laird of Greenknowe and Langlee. This lady's mother (Catherine Milne) was an Aberdeenshire woman (see Tancred's Annals of a Border Club).

Gordon-Dill.

This family claims descent (via Ireland) from the Gordons of Glenbucket. See Cambridge Matriculations, 1851-1900 (under "Dill"); Medical Directory, 1903; Army List, 1903; London Directory, 1903.

Gordon-Duff.—See Drummuir.

Gordon-Gilmour.—See Hallhead.

Gordon-Hallyburton.

Lord John Frederick Gordon, third son of the ninth Marquis of Huntly, took the additional name of Hallyburton. See Add. MSS. (British Museum), 35,798, f. 383; 35,802, ff. 56, 556; 35,800, f. 102; 35,802, f. 510; Foster's Members of Parliament (Scotland), 152.

Evans-Gordon.—See Shirmers.

This family is descended from the Gordons of Shirmers. Major W. E. Evans-Gordon, M.P., has in his possession a pedigree of the family compiled at the Herald's office. His arms are given in Fox-Davies' Armorial Families.

Fellowes-Gordon.—See Knockespock.

Forbes-Gordon.—Burke's Landed Gentry (1898), i., 599.

Arthur Forbes (died 1873) assumed the additional name of Gordon on succeeding to the estate of Rayne, under the entail and settlement of his late cousin, John Gordon of Avochie (q.v.).

Forlong-Gordon.—See Pitlurg.

William Forlong of Erins, Argyllshire, married Crawford, daughter of the Lieut.-Gen. Gordon-Cumming-Skene of Pitlurg, and their son Thomas Alexander George (b. 1831) of South Erins, Argyllshire, assumed the name of Gordon on succeeding to his mother's estates (Walford's County Families, 1903).

Page (88).—The 6th Laird died in March, 1631, not in 1630 as stated (Privy Council Reg.).

Page (89), line 13.—Auchmill should be Inchmill. In any case the sentence quoted refers to the 6th laird, not his son William (who is mentioned in the Balbithan MS.).

Page (89), lines 14 and 15.—Thomas Gordon, “Abergeldie filius, annorum 17, pro figuris,” was dismissed from the Scots College at Douai in 1633 “propter ineptitudinem in Maio”. On the same date (Jan. 6, 1633) his brother James, aged 14, “pro trivialibus scholis, dimissus propter ineptitudinem in Sept.” (Diary of Scots Coll. at Douai).

Page (90).—The 7th Laird. Alexander Gordon, fiar of Abergeldie, was prosecuted, Jan. 25, 1631, for carrying arms (Privy Council Reg.). On Aug. 11, 1631, Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie petitioned the Privy Council as follows: Some years ago, he was heritably infeft in the lands of Abergeldie under reservation of the liferent of his father, William Gordon of Abergeldie, who died in March last. He shortly afterwards obtained warrant from the Lords of Session for the inventoring of the goods within the place of Abergeldie and his own entering on possession; and his mother Elizabeth Seatoun, widow of William Gordon, left the place and went to Knock of which she was life rentrix. “But on ——” she came back to Abergeldie and “has taken possession thereof with her family and will not remove”. He craved that letters should be issued “charging her to remove” and the Privy Council agreed to this. On July 2, 1632, Donald Farquharson of Inchemarrow was cautioned for Abergeldie to appear before the Council to underlie their censure touching his misbehaviour towards his lady under pain of 500 merks, and commanding him not to visit Jesuits and Papists (Ibid.). On Sept. 6, 1632, the tack granted to Lady Abergeldie of her conjunct fee was cancelled by the Council (Ibid.). Alexander Gordon, VII. of Abergeldie, owed in 1633-4 the following sums: 200 merks to John, son of Alexander Keith, portioner of Duffus; 300 merks to James Irving in Cullairlie; 1,000 merks to James Irwing (second lawful son of John Irwing of Artamphart) and Anna Keith his spouse, lawful daughter of the late Alexander Keith, portioner of Duffus; 1,400 merks to Robert Irwing of Fedderit; 1,000 merks to Arthur Ross of Sterein on the lands of Brasbeig; 9,225 merks to Mr. William Burnet, minister at Kinnernie in a woodset on the lands of Badinleithe and Kinnernie (Spald. Club Misc., iii., pp. 89, 108, 111, 116, 130 and 138).

Quarterly: 1st, azure, 3 boars heads coupéd; 2nd, or, 3 lions heads erased gules; 3rd, azure, 3 fraises; 4th, or, 3 crescents within a treasure flory counter-flory gules; all four quarters within a bordure company of 6 pieces or, 8 gules. A rare Chippendale plate of date c. 1740-1750. The shield is set in a rococo frame with floral accessories, and the helmet is set affrontée; which it should not be. The crest is a greyhound trotting.

He was A.D.C. to the governor of the Straits Settlements, 1880-1, and at the Staff College, 1887-8 (Harrow School Register, p. 373). He is now (1903) Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General at Barbadoes. His half-brother, CHARLES, is now in the 4th East Surrey Regiment. GEORGE HAMILTON GORDON is in the Artillery, not the Engineers as stated on page 105.

GIGHT.

Page (189).—The second Laird's wife. The Balbithan MS. statement that the second laird of Gight married a daughter of Robert Gordon of Fetterletter seems corroborated by a letter in the Morton Charter Chest, for a copy of which I am indebted (since writing about my inability to get it on page 211) to Mr. Murray Rose. The letter is written "to my werray guid my Lord Erlr Mortoune" by "Dame Elizabeth Gordoun Lade of Gycht," who dates from Fetterletter, Oct. 21, 1597. The letter runs:—

My Lord eftir my maist hairtlie commendationes of service I haif desyrit the Laird of Bolquhallie [Mowat with whose family the 5th laird of Gight had a vendetta in 1601] to spek your lordship sundrie tymes lyk as I spak your lordship with the Laird Bolquhollie in Aberdein at your lordships last being ther with the King's Maiestie for the Waird landis of Fetterlettir and Lethinthie and will maist ernstlie requeist your lordship to latt me haif eis and eis thairin as your lordship hes done to utheris obefoir And your lordship sall find me as freindlie and thankfull thairin as ony wtheris that hes delt with your lordship. Page (263).—The 6th Laird's daughter MARY, wife of ALEXANDER INNES, of Coxton. This lady proved nearly as troublesome as the rest of her kinsfolk. On Dec. 24, 1640, Gilbert Ross, minister of Elgin, is appointed to go to the goodman of Cokstoune and his wife Marie Gordon "that she may quyte her obstinacie in poperies, repair to the kirk, and hear the word and partake of the Sacrament" (Cramond's Churches of the Parish of St. Andrews-Lhanbryd, p. 6). On Feb. 18, 1641, the goodwife of Cokstoune is to reply within eight days. On April 29 she promised to go to church. On Jan. 27, 1642, the minister reported that he had good hopes for her conversion. For the present she is sick unto death, so no process is to be used against her. On July 27, 1643, she was to be processed if she be not a constant hearer of the word and "vse conferences, reading to the good meanes whilk may most conduce for her conversiōe from poprie and superstition". On Aug. 10 she declares herself to be a Protestant and of the reformed religion and promises to be a constant hearer of the word. On Nov. 2 she is to be excommunicated if she do not "constantly heare the word". On Nov. 15 she promises to hear the word "if it should pleas God her health sould serve". On June 18, 1646, the Presbytery ordained that some of the brethren should go and speak with the "goodwyf of Cockstoun". On Aug. 6 it was reported that she had gone to Balvenie, "but Cockston did deale with her and be a good instrument to mov her to giv satisfaction to the kirk". On May 7, 1647, it was ordained that if the goodwife of Coxtoun conform not, the process of excommunication is to go on against her. She died Aug. 20, 1647. In Lhanbryd old churchyard there is a stone tablet on the side wall of the aisle in her memory, erected by her husband Alexander Innes of Coxtoun. "Two shields of arms—Innes without difference, but without Aberchirder, and Gordon—also, I think, without difference" (Family of Innes, p. 258).

Page (264).—The 7th Laird. The Book of Annualrentaris shows he was a good deal in debt. In 1633-4 George Gordon "younger of Gicht" owed: 1,000 merks to Alexander Keith, portioner of Duffus; 3,000 merks to Alexander Lyon of Muireisk; 4,000 merks to Patrick Wod in Litill Ardo on the lands of Chapel-toun of Schives; 100 merks to William Watson at the Mill of "Tollie" (Spalding Club Misc., iii., 96, 132).

Pages (270-1, 273).—The 8th Laird's daughter, MARIE. Marie Gordon married Lieut.-Col. John Gordon. In a single page manuscript deduction of the Newton family, in the possession of Mr. A. M. Gordon of Newton, it is stated that John Gordon, son of James Gordon of Newton ("who married Auchmacoes daughter"), married "the Ladie Gicht". This clearly means the Marie Gordon who puzzled me so much. She and her husband seem to have acted as tutors for her brother "Sir George's" daughter (Mrs. Davidson). The Newton deduction further solves the difficulty (stated on page 273) about the two John Gordons.

Page (270).—The 9th Laird. "Georgius Gordon, filius Baronis de Gicht," entered Douai "ætāt 12 ad figuras," on Nov. 9, 1663 (Diary of Scots Coll. at Douai).

Pages (280-1).—The 11th Laird's issue. I find from papers in the possession of Mr. A. M. Gordon of Newton that it was only the second son of the 11th laird of Gight who took the name of "Davidson". The rest called themselves Gordon. The second son, Alexander Davidson of Newton, had a son Alexander Davidson alive in 1784 when his grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Duff Gordon, widow of the 11th laird, bequeathed £200 to her son Lieut. Archibald Gordon, failing whom to Alexander Davidson, the son of her second son, and £100 to each of the latter's daughters, Mary and Margaret. She left her daughter Elizabeth her sole executrix. Robert Gordon, youngest son of Alexander, XI. of Gight, was alive in 1772, when it is stated that his patrimony, £400, had gone to purchase him an ensigncy in the 44th regiment. I find that Ensign Robert Gordon of the 44th Foot was gazetted a lieutenant in the 35th Foot in July, 1776 (Gent.'s Mag.).

HOUSE OF GORDON.

THE BALBITHAN MS.

NEW SPALDING CLUB.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE valuable genealogical account of the family of Gordon, known as the Balbithan MS., is set in type here for the first time. It is printed from a small octavo volume of 159 pages, in a handwriting of the beginning of the eighteenth century. There is no title on the back, and no title page, but the late Mr. Charles Elphinstone-Dalrymple, to whom the manuscript belonged, and whose widow has kindly lent it to the Club, had written on the fly-leaf the legend: "Copy of the Genealogical Account of the Family of Gordon, called the Balbithan MS.".

The origin of the document is far from clear. The Dalrymple volume may or may not be the original, but it is certainly the basis of most, if not all, of the transcripts that have been made during the last quarter of a century. Some idea of the mystery of the manuscript is conveyed by the fact that one genealogist, the Rev. Dr. Temple, Forgue, gives two different accounts of its authorship in four years. In a letter to Mr. A. M. Munro, dated 16th October, 1890, he declares that the manuscript "was compiled about 1730 by one of the Gordons of Craig, and came somehow into possession of Gordon of Balbithan—hence the name". In his Thanage of Fermartyn (Aberdeen, 1894, p. 350), the same writer tells us that "James Gordon, I. of Balbithan, was the author of a MS. history of the Gordons of date about 1730, called the Balbithan MS.". Which of these statements is correct, I cannot say; nor do we know how Mr. Dalrymple, who was a keen genealogist, and who married one of the Gordons of Parkhill, came to possess the Balbithan MS.; nor whether his was the original. The number of obvious misspellings of place names suggests that it was only a copy.

One thing, however, is certain. The manuscript of 1730 is identical in parts with an older one of 1644, a fragment of which, written on quarto sheets of paper and beginning at page 31 and ending abruptly at page 46, is now in the University Library, Aberdeen. There has, however, been a slight rearrangement of the text. Thus the 1644 fragment begins with the Cluny Gordons (page 19 of this Balbithan reprint) and goes on to page 24. It then turns back to pp. 7-9, and afterwards jumps to pp. 56-65. Equal obscurity overshadows the authorship of the 1644 MS.; but the bare fact that both it and the Balbithan MS. deal at greatest length with the descendants of "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue, suggests that the compiler, whoever he was, belonged to one of the many cadets of "Jock's" house. He only touches on the Lochinvar Gordons—"I leave it to others to fill up what remains, not being informed thereof". He deals very briefly with the ducal line; and in the case of the descendants of "Tam" Gordon, the brother of "Jock," he soon finds himself "run aground for want of further and better information".

It is difficult to say when the Balbithan MS. was first used by genealogists. The manuscript pedigree of the Drummuir family, made about 1821, and now in the possession of Mr. Thomas Gordon Duff of Drummuir, was plainly based on it. Dr. Davidson seems to have made use of it in his Earldom of the Garioch, 1878, while Dr. Temple in the Thanage of Fermartyn, 1894, makes constant use of it, having had a transcript of Mr. Dalrymple's copy.

Whatever the origin of the Balbithan MS., there can be no doubt as to its great value to the genealogist, for a reference to state documents and other historical sources corroborate its validity. As a whole it is wonderfully correct, especially in its details, coming down to beginning of the eighteenth century. Some cadets are brought down to a later date than others. Thus the Gight family is made to stop short at the eighth laird, though the existence of his daughter, the tenth laird (who died in 1740), is just mentioned—without a name. Other families, for instance, Park and Craig, are dealt with much more minutely during the period 1720-30.

The Balbithan MS. has been printed exactly as it is written ; it is for the compilers of the pedigrees of the various branches of the house of Gordon, to deal with any emendations or additions that may be necessary. The variants of the 1644 MS. have been noted.

In conclusion, it should be stated that the Gordons of Balbithan were cadets of the Gordons of Park, and did not purchase Balbithan until eighty-one years after the 1644 manuscript was written. One of the supposed compilers, James Gordon, I. of Balbithan, was not very fortunate in his own descendants, for his male issue died completely out in the person of his son, General Benjamin Gordon, II. of Balbithan. The estate then passed to a Forbes, and then to an Abernethy ; an ironic comment on the point of view which flouted the "Seton Gordons," and reminiscent of Sir Walter Scott's luckless attempt to found a line bearing the magic name of Scott.

THE BALBITHAN MS.

To begin this History I propose this method to myself. First of all, I shall give an account of the Cadents of Huntley their descent, as they happened by prioritie of time, beginning from Sir Alexander Gordon the fourth of that Family of Huntly, who flourished in the Reign of K. Alexander the first Sirnamed the fierce about the year 1107, and so go on till our times.

As for the Families of Jock and Thom two Cadents of Huntly in the Reign of King Robert the Second about the year 1388; tho' I say these two Brothers were the first Cadents of Huntly, after Lochnavarr for any thing we read of, and so might claim a priviledge to be inserted in order of time yet upon the account of their Legittimacie being Contraverted by some I shall here leave their Geneaoligie to be treated of in the last place.

LOCHNAVAR.

The first Cadent I find of the Family of Huntly is Robert Gordon of Stichel third son to Sr Alexander Gordon of Huntly the fourth of that Family, who lived in the Reign of King Alexander Sirnamed the fierce anno 1107. This Robert Gordon was also the third brother to Sr William Gordon the fifth of Huntly who dyed in Affrica fighting in Support of Lewis the ninth King of France against the Saracens anno 1260. This Sr William dying without issue the Estate of Huntly fell to his Second Brother Sr Adam Gordon, and before the said Sr William left his native Country he left to this Robert Gordon the third Brother the Lands and Barronie of Stichel. The King gave him the Lands of Ballachlaggan and Kenmoirdy for killing the wild Scot in Galloway. The said Robert married a noble and rich Heiress in Galloway by whom he had the lands called Glen Lochnavar and Kenmuire ; upon this lady he begot two sons Sr John Gordon of Lochnavar and Robert Gordon of Glenturk, of whom the family of Glenturk is descended, he had also a natural son Adam Gordon, whom the great Sir William Wallace made Governour of the Castle of Wigtoun, of whom the Family of Vigtoun is descended. Their Father departed

His Son Sir John Gordon of Lochnavar married , who begat three sons Sr Robert Gordon of Lochnavar, William Gordon of Park of whom the family of Park, his third son Alexander Gordon of Muirfadd of whom the Family of the Haddibeyes are descended. Their Father departed

His son Sr Robert Gordon of Lochnavar married Elizabeth Corson Heretrix of Glen, and begat three sons Sr William Gordon of Lochnavar, and John Gordon of whom the familys of Knockenard and Garry are descended ; his third Son Robert Gordon called red-haffet of whom the family of Collithy's come. Their Father departed

His son Sr William Gordon of Lochnavar married my Lord Sachar's Daughter Chrichton and begot two sons, Sr John Gordon of Lochnavar, and William Gordon of whom the families of Arieck and Crastanout and Killenoch are descended. Their father dyed

His Son Sr John Gordon of Lochnavar married Elizabeth Maxwell daughter to my Lord Haries with whom he begot three Sons, Sr Robert Gordon of Lochnavar and William Gordon, of whom the families of Denmuckham [Den and Muckham¹] are descended, his 3d Son Alexander Gordon of whom the family of Burdcross is descended. Their father dyed

His Son Sr Robert Gordon of Lochnavar conquest the Lands of Badenoch [Bannoch¹] and Boyll in Ireland ; he married Elizabeth Ruthven daughter to the Earl of Gaurie and begat four sons, John Gordon Viscount of Kenmore, his second William Gordon of Butole and his family, James Gordon of [Upper¹] Burdcross and his family, his fourth son Alexander Gordon of Arrick and his family. Their father departed in peace

His son John Gordon 2d Viscount of Kenmore married the Earl of Argyle's Daughter Campbell and sister to the M. Argile and begot sons and daughters who all dyed in their nonage. Sr Robert Gordon of Lochnavar brothers son, son to William Gordon of Butle is now called James Gordon Lord Lochnavar and Viscount of Kenmore who Lived 1664, [Lives in this present year 1644¹] and here I leave it to others to fill up what remains not being informd thereof.

The next Cadents I read of was Jock and Thom two sons of Lord Adam Gordons Lord of Huntly and Strathbogie and the Eleventh of that noble Family begotten upon Elizabeth Cruickshank, Asswanly's daughter about the year 1376, but for the above reason I pass by them and proceeds to the next Cadents viz.

THE FAMILY OF ABERGELDIE.

The Geneologie of Alexander first Earle of Huntlys second son Sir Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie begotten on Chancellour Chrichton's Daughter about the year 1445. Here the Manuscript that goes under Proneys name is guilty of an double error: the first in calling the forsaid Alexander Gordon of Abergeldy the third son of Alexander first Earl of Huntly, whereas indeed he was the second son begotten on Chancellour Crichtons daughter; the second error is in asserting the forsd Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie to be not only the third son of the first Earl of Huntly but also begotten on the Heiress of Enzie Ægidia Hay, whereas indeed as above he was the second son of the said first Earl begotten on Chancellour Crichtons daughter. As for the Heiress of Enzie Aegidia Hay she only bore to the said first Earl of Huntly only one son named Alexander, and after that was divorced. Her son Alxr. got from his Father the first Earl the Lands of Tough and Tillabody in Stirlingshire wherewith he rested satisfied retaining the name of Seton to this day.

CLUNY.

The Cadents and Geneaologie of Alexander Laird of Strathawen and Cluny, the 3^d son of Alexander 3^d Earl of Huntly.

The manuscript here under Proneys name has fallen into another mistake in calling this Alexander Laird of Strathawen the second son of Alex^r third Earl of Huntly, whereas indeed he was only his third son: for the said Alexander third Earl of Huntly had only four Sons, viz. George the Eldest who died without succession and of whom there is no memory, John the Second Lord Gordon of whom is come the Family of Huntly, Alexander the third Son who was Laird of Strathawn and thereafter of Cluny of whom is come the Family of Cluny, and the 4th son William Gordon who was Bishop of Aberdeen.

His eldest daughter married the Laird of Altar Cumming, one married the Laird of Pitsligo Forbes, one married Pat. Gordon Goodman of Oxhill, the 4th daughter married Andrew Halyburton of Drummoys. The said Alexander their Father excambed (with his father) the Lands of Strathawen, with the Lands of Cluny in Mar, reserving his own liferent, and the Heritable Right of Blairfindy. He dyed in peace in Drummin. It seems also that the said Alexander first Laird of Strathawen first married my Lord Glames Daughter, by whom he had no children, and after her death he married Grants daughter as above.

His eldest Son Alexander Gordon heir of Strathawen married the Laird of Banff's Daughter Ogilvy with whom he begat a daughter, who married James Gordon of Birkenburn. He died without further succession.

Lawrence Gordon his fourth Son died in Strathbogie of Eighteen [20¹] years of age.

His fifth son Lord John Gordon of Melgin [Melgum¹] and Aboyn married Sophia Hay daughter to the Earl of Errol with whom he begat one Daughter Henret Gordon; thesaid Lord John was burnt in the House of Fren draught and John Gordon Laird of Rothemay, with four Servants Gentlemen, upon Fridays night the eight of October 1630 and buried in the Isle of Gairtly. It's here remarkable that before this tragical accident the said Family of Fren draught was in a very flourishing condition as any of their rank in the North, and tho' they were not to be reached by the Law after tryal, yet it seems the Secret but Just Judgment of God so pursued them that their Estate suddenly vanished away like the morning dew, and their posterity evanished, scarcely being any now living to represent them, and besides all whoever matched with that family were liable to signal misfortunes. Meldrum of Hatton being put to a legal Tryal for that horrid murder suffered upon the account of malum minatum et damnum secutum.

I need not here inform my Reader that George first Duke of Gordon having married Elizabeth eldest daughter to the Duke of Norfolk had no more Children but only one Son and a Daughter, his Eldest and only Son Alexander Second Duke of Gordon married the Earl of Peterborrows daughter his Sister Lady Jean Gordon married my Lord Drummond thereafter Earl of Perth and by King James the Seventh Duke of Perth.

JOCK AND THOM.

The Genealogy of Jock the Heiress Eldest Brother and stock of Pittlurge.

I proceed now to account for the genealogie of Jock and Thom the Heiress two Brothers begotten by Adam Gordon fifth Lord of Huntly on Elizabeth Cruickshank Aswanlies daughter in the Reign of King Robert the Second about the year 1383.

Here indeed occurs no small difficulties raised and objected by the contending Partys pro et con, the Family of Huntlys disputing the Legittimacy of the said two Brothers Jock and Thom their birth; the second difficulty is, allowing their birth to be good and Lawfull, the Cadents of Jock who was undoubtedly the Eldest brother and so owned nemine contradicente spleet amonst themselves; some contending Buckies Family was Jocks eldest son, others again contending and that not without Reason that Pitlurge's predecessors was undoubtedly Jocks eldest son begotten in a Lawfull and regular marriage.

In these straights it is hard, yea simply impossible, to satisfy all Parties, as I observed before, only as a Lover of the truth without being attached to either of the contending partys I shall without prejudice or favour plainly set down, what is commonly alledged by each to support their pretensions, and what has been most commonly and universally received about these disputes, from the beginning to this present Age; and Last of all I shall Leave it to the impartial Reader to make a Judgment according to the strength and weight of the Evidences brought and Examined by both sides in sober cold blood.

As to the first, the Legittimacy of Jock and Thom their birth, it's questioned on these Heads. First, that it was inconsistent with the Honour and Prudence of Lord Adam Gordon to have married so meanly and far below his birth, as this Elizabeth Cruickshank was, who at the best must claim no higher than the station of a private and obscure Gentlewoman and a mean Vasalls daughter; and the rather to confirm this, it was never alledged they were formally and Lawfully married, but only hand fasted, and if there was any private promises made twixt the parties spe matrimonii, yet the same were not binding in Law, and accordingly the said Lord Adam annulled the same by his entering into a lawfull and regular marriage w^t another the Earl of Sommerveile's daughter, and Esto they had been Lawfully married, yet on second and Just considerations the first marriage might have been annulled by Divorce or non adherence etc.

To this its answered that inequality of Birth does in no ways dissanull marriages, many Instances might be adduced where great and noble persons have married below their birth meerly for fancie and pleasure; and if the marriage was clandestine and not so formall Lawfull and regular as it ought to have been, its to be remembered that Church discipline or Ceremonies of the Church were not then so strictly observed as now they are, especially having to do with a person of Lord Adam's Birth, honour and great Interest and Sway in the North. Consensus et Copulatio facit matrimonium, only the Church by the Ceremony, declares the marriage Lawfull, which was real before their declaratory Sentence, and we know that a Justice of Peace in England [Scotland] may Lawfully marry where both parties are willing and Consenters.

2^{do} its answered inequality of Birth in that marriage was the ruin of Jock and Thom, they not being capable by Friends to Copp or debate with the Heiress their Sister, or claim any share in their Father's inheritance save only what he pleased to give them out of his free good will.

Lastly its answered their Legittimacy was owned in so far, as Jock and Thom and their posterity to this hour were allowed to bear and keep in their publique Ensigns and Coats of Arms, upon all publick and private occasions, the bare and simple Arms their father and all the Family of Huntly had used from their first arise in Scotland till then; without any addition or alteration, far less any mark of Bastardie; and to be sure (as was observed formerly) the office of herauldrie and giving out Coats of Arms and bestowing other such honours was the Kings province the fountain of all honour who very well knew how to bestow honours on such as were worthy and deserving of them, and if any should take upon them to assume to themselves such Coats of Arms as they deserved not, they were severely handled by authority for their presumption, and if there was any blot in their birth be sure it was insert in their Scutcheon, and there were narrow Inquiry of this taken by the King and others he employed for that purpose. Now the Lairds of Pittlurge Jocks Representatives being frequently honoured with the dignity of Knighthood by the Kings, and having also att Pinkie and several other publick Battles and appearances still carried in their Banners and Coats of Arms the Antient Arms of the House of Huntly without any mark of Bastardie, could they have done this so avowedly publickly and without challenge had they not been truly thought deserving of the Same as their right and proper heritable due. I shall trouble my Reader with no more on this first objection viz: Jock and Thom's Bastardie.

I proceed to the second difficultie viz: whither Pittlurge or Buckie be the eldest son of Jock both laying claim to it, whose pretensions and reasons shall be impartially examined and weighted. Its beyond Contraversie that Jock and Thom were the two sons begotten by Lord Adam Gordon fifth Lord of Huntly and Strathbogie upon Elizabeth Cruickshank Asswanlie's daughter before the said Adam his second marriage with the Earl of Somervills daughter, and that of these two Brothers Jock was the eldest; in this all parties agree. But then comes the competition who was this Jocks eldest Lawfull son? Buckie and these come of him assert that this Jock was first married to Hanault Mcclaud of Heiras daughter, Sister to the Lady Mcintosh at that time, with whom he begat a Son called Alexander Gordon of Essy of whom Bucky is come.

Pittlurge and all come of him absolutly deny this marriage, tho' they own that Jock begot on this McLeod the said Alexander Gordon, who was only a Bastard begotten on a free woman but not of a married Couple.

Pittlurge further advances that his predecessor the said Jock was never Lawfully married save only to the Laird of Gights daughter Maitland with whom he begat three sons viz. John Gordon of Botarie, William Gordon of Tillytarmount, and James Gordon of Haddo. Their Father the said Jock or John Gordon the Heiress brother gave Botarie and the Lands of Langar in the Merns which he conquest, to his eldest Lawfull son John of Botarie and gave the lands of Essy and Scordairg to his Bastard Son the forsd Alexr. Gordon of Essie. For Confirmation of Pittlurge's pretensions its further advanced that both parties Buckie as well as Pittlurg doe own Jocks marriage with the Laird of Gights Daughter Maitland, and the issue proceeding therefrom to be Lawfull, which never any to this hour made ever the least objection or exception against ; whereas all come of Pittlurg did ever and constantly deny any Lawfull marriage twixt Jock their sd predecessor and Mackleod of Haris daughter. Again, the Lairds of Pittlurg as the eldest Sons of Jock were richly provided, at first with large provisions of Lands by their Fathers, viz, the Lands of Pittlurge Boaterie and Langor, were advanced and dignified with the Kings honours, and on all publick occasions behaved and were owned by all as the Representatives and Chiefs of Jocks Family without any opposition Contradiction or Challenge or pretensions to the contrary ; till of Late the last Duke of Gordon coming North with his Lady to Aberdeen, and being to be publickly entertained by the Magistrates of that Burgh, the throng of Gentry and others attending them was very great and pressing up stairs who could first make his entry, by chance Bucky went up some steps of the stair before the Laird of Pittlurge, and Pittlurge in the throng takes hold of Buckie's coat to win up. Buckie not out of any design sets Pittlurge back, only to keep himself free of the Press. Pittlurge takes this as a design of Buckies to take place before him, whereas indeed there was no such thing in Buckies mind : however Pittlurg retires and is highly offended. The Duke and Dutchess missing Pittlurge call for him again and again, till the story is told that had passed, the Duke and Dutchess send for Pittlurg to his Quarters, telling they would not sit down to Dinner till he came. Upon this Pittlurge comes and is placed at the Head of the Table on the Dutchess Left hand the Duke being on her right hand, and the Laird of Buckie had his place below the Duke. By this Situation and preferment of place att Table, both Duke and Dutchess seemed to give the precedence to Pittlurge, and did all they could for to humour him and take away the quarrel. Pittlurg not satisfied with all this, sends Buckie a Challenge to fight, the Duke and Dutchess finding matters come to that height interpose at Meldrum, and in a publick company Buckie offers satisfaction to Pittlurge, assuring he had no such Design against him to strive for Place or Precedence, and in testimony thereof drank first to Pittlurg his Service, whereupon the Seeming mistake was comprised and Pittlurg satisfied. This tedious but true relation I had from severall good Gentlemen witnesses present to all had passed. Besides I have known Buckie express himself very modestly and mannerly on that head without the Least tincture of pride vanitie or affectation, only the grand Objection they insisted upon was this, that Mcleoad of Haris daughter being of such account and following they could not imagine how Jock in point of good manners could or was safe, to get her with child, and not marry her. However this might be answered, I think these nice and frivolous intestine debates amongst friends ought not to be too passionately insisted upon, especially considering both Partys own Jock for their common undoubted parent and therefore let none take it ill that I begin and go on with the Laird of Pittlurge's Genealogie as Representative of Jock, seeing antiquity tradition and uninterrupted possession seems all to concur to give Sentence in his and predecessors favour; reserving all due honour and respect for the Family of Buckie, which all must own is truly antient and honourable.

PITTLURGE.

To return then as I hinted before John Gordon the Heretrix brother married to his Lawfull wife the Laird of Gights daughter Maitland with whom he begat three sons viz. his eldest son John Gordon of Boterie of whom Pittlurge is come, his 2^d son William Gordon of Tillytermont of whom Blelack Lesmoir and Craig are come, and James Gordon of Meithlick thereafter Laird of Haddo his third Son of whom are come the Earl of Aberdeen. Their father the said John Gordon dyed and was buried in the Kirk of Essy, others say in the Kirk of Botarie.

His eldest son John Gordon of Botarie Langar and Pitlurge married my Lord Pitsligo's daughter Forbes, with whom he begat two sons John Gordon Laird of Pittlurge Botarie and Langar, his second son James Gordon of Cairnborrow. Their father the forsd. John Gordon ex-cambed the Lands of Langar with the Barroney of Travechin, he conquest the Lands of Pittlurge. He dyed in peace and was interred in the Burial place of the Kirk of Botarie.

His son John Gordon second Laird of Pitlurge married the Earl of Athols daughter Stuart, with whom he begat a son John Gordon third Laird of Pittlurge; likewise he begat on a Gentlewoman Maitland two natural sons and two daughters viz. William Gordon of Belchirrie and George Gordon of Kindrught; one daughter married the goodman of New Forbes, another married Menzies Provost of Aberdeen. Their Father the forsaid John Gordon 2^d Laird of Pittlurg was killed at the battle of Pinkie anno 1547. [He married secondly Margaret Drummond. It was his son who fell at Pinkie.¹]

His son John Gordon 3^d Laird of Pittlurge married Jannet Ogilvie of Cullen's daughter, with whom he begat a Son John Gordon of Pittlurge. Their father died.

His Son John Gordon fourth Laird of Pittlurg married my Lord Forbes daughter with whom he begat two Sons [and a daughter Barbara married Hon. Alex. Elphinstone, 3^d son of fourth Lord Elphinstone¹] viz. John Gordon fifth Laird of Pittlurg and Mr Robert Gordon of Strathlock. Their Father dyed in Kinmundy and interred in their ordinary burial place in Martinkirk anno 1600.

His Son John Gordon sixth Laird of Pittlurg married the Laird of Kinnairds daughter Kinnaird, with whom he begat a daughter married to Thomas Gordon son to John of Bagos sherriff Deput of Aberdeen.

His Brother Mr Robert Gordon seventh Laird of Pittlurg and Strathlock married the Laird of Lenturks daughter Irvine, with whom ne begat Ten sons and six Daughters; viz: the eldest son Robert, John, Mr. William, Alexander Advocate in Edenburgh, Mr James Parson of Rothemey, George, Hugh, Arthur, Patrick and Lodvick Gordons; one daughter married Alexander Urquhart of Craighouse in Ross, Mary was married to the Goodman of Achencreive Richard Maitland, Jean, Barbara, Margaret, and Anne his daughters.

His eldest son Robert Gordon eight Laird of Pittlurge and Strathlock married the Laird of Leyes daughter Burnet.

The Genealogy of the Laird of Pittlurg's natural sons.

William Gordon of Bellchere married Janet Gordon the Goodman of Blelacks daughter with whom he begat two Daughters, one married Thomas Spens in Brunstone the other married William Grant of Blairfindie. His Second natural Son called George Gordon in Fyvie, who married and begat John Gordon Burgess in Aberdeen. His 3rd

CAIRNBORROW.

The Cadents or second Sons of the Laird of Pittlurge viz James Gordon of Cairnborrow gotten upon the Laird of Pitsligo's daughter Forbes.

James Gordon of Cairnborrow was the 1st Laird of Pittlurg's Second Son and first Cadent of that family begotten upon the Laird of Pitsligo's daughter Forbes. The said James Gordon of Cairnborrow married the Laird of Barns daughter with whom he begat three sons, viz. his Eldest son George Gordon of Cairnborrow, his second son William Gordon of Abachie, and his third Son M^r James Gordon of Cromellat. Their father the said James Gordon of Cairnborrow dyed and was interred amongst his predecessors in their ordinary Burial place of Martin or Botarie Kirk.

Here again Abachie's people do pretend to be the said James Gordon of Cairnborrow's eldest son, but very unjustly; for it does not consist with reason, prudence, or practice, that the Father should leave the greatest and far better part of his Interest, and that by which he and his successors were designed and titled to his second son George Gordon of Cairnborrow (as Abachie's people would have it) and only leave Abachie, which was but a small and inconsiderable part of his Estate to his eldest son by which the father nor his eldest sons were never designed nor took the Title thereof; but on the contrair the said George Gordon the eldest son and Representative of his father retained the paternal Estate and Title, and he and his has been so owned even by Abachie and Achanachie giving Cairnborrow the preference, as their Paternal and heritable due and right, whereof Instance could be adduced were it proper.

So I go on with the Genealogie of this eldest Son George Gordon of Cairnborrow who married Alexander Gordon of Drumoyes Daughter, Sister to Alex^r Gordon of Proney, Katharin Gordon who was spouse to Achencrive Maitland, next to the Laird of Ardneidlie Baylie, and thereafter married the said George Gordon of Cairnborrow with whom he begat a Son and two daughters viz: John Gordon of Cairn-borrow: his eldest daughter Margaret Gordon married first my Lord Salton's Son Michael Abernethie with whom he begat a Daughter married to John Gordon of Licheston, the said Margaret was second spouse to Mr Adam Gordon son to the Earl of Sutherland and after his death she married Lesmoir's son Alex^r Gordon first Birkenburn; George Gordon of Cairnborrow's second Daughter Katharine Gordon married first Drainie Innes and after his death she married the Goodman of Coxtan Innes. Their Father the said George was killed in the Battle of Pinkie 1547.

His Son John Gordon of Cairnborrow married Bessy Gordon Buckies daughter with whom he begat Eight Sons and three Daughters, his eldest Son John Gordon Laird of Cairnborrow and Edenglassie, the second George Gordon of Sockach, the third son James Gordon of Far-naughtie, the fourth Son Mr William Gordon who coft Cairnborrow, the fifth Mr Arthur Gordon, the Sixth Son Mr Thomas Gordon of Artloch, 7th Son Robert Gordon of Gollachie, Eight Son Patrick Gordon of Craigston in Sutherland; all these Eight sons with their Father each having a Jackman and a footman went with the Earl of Huntly and Erroll from Cairnborrow to the Battle of Glenlivet, a good Company being twenty Seven well mounted men out of one Family. His eldest daughter married the Laird of Eden Meldrum, and after his death she married the Laird of Craigston Tutor of Cromarty her name was in the Said House of Craigston. His Second daughter Margaret Gordon first married the Goodman of Craighead Mr John Duff who bore to him Eleven Sons of whom is come Braccho, and all the opulent Sir-name of Duffs; after the Craigheds Death she married the goodman of Milton Ogilvie in the parish of Keith; she built the House of Craighead, which is now razed, she built the House of Milton, Achoynanie and the Steeple of Keith; her name and Husbands is on the House of Achoynanie dated 1601; she was interred in her Paternall Burial place in the Kirk of Botarie. His third daughter married Mr Alex^r Gordon of Tulloch Chancellour of Murray Glengerack's Predecessor. Their Father the said John Gordon of Cairnborrow dyed in Cairnborrow and was honourably buried in Martin kirk.

His Son John Gordon Laird of Edenglassie and representative of the Family of Cairnborrow married first the Laird of Wattertons daughter Bennerman now Lairds of Elsick, with whom he begat three Sons and two daughters, his eldest son William Gordon Laird of Rothemey and Stock of Cairnborrow, his second Sir Adam Gordon of Park Glenbuckiet Innermarkie Edenglassie and Achinandach, his third son John Gordon Laird of Invermarkie Edenglassie etc.; his eldest daughter married the Laird of Brux Forbes, his second daughter married Robert Coutts Laird of Achterfoull. The said John Gordon Laird of Edenglassie etc. married to his second wife the Lady Benum and Lady Foveran, her name is on the House of Glenbuckiet which he built but by that Lady he had no Succession. He coft the Lands of Benum, had also Caffurrach Tynet and Tulloch in the Enzie; he sold the Lands of Benum again and with the money thereof he assisted his two eldest sons to buy the Lands and Estates of Rothemey and Park from the Lord Salton Abernethie, which cost them very dear, not only the price of the Lands but also continual trouble and Law pleas, and the life and blood of two worthy Gentlemen Lairds of Rothemey the father and the Son Successively. Their father dyed in peace in the House of Edenglassie, and was honourably buried in the Kirk of Edenglassie, but should have been in the Kirk of Botarie the Ordinary Burial place of their family and good Ancestors.

His Eldest Son William Gordon Laird of Rothemey and Representative of Cairnborrow married first the Barron of Killravock's daughter Ross Lady Foules who had no succession; after her death he married my Lord Forbes daughter Katharin Forbess with whom he begat two sons and five daughters. His Eldest Son John Gordon Laird of Rothemey unmarried was burnt in the House of Frendraught with Lord John Gordon of Aboyn 8th of October 1630. His Second Son James Gordon a Student at the Colledge who succeeded to his father and Brother. The forsaid William Gordon Laird of Rothemey their Father was killed by the Laird of Frendraught and the Laird of Banff Ogilvie, they being five score of men horse and foot and the Laird of Rothemey being but ten Horsemen 2^d January 1630, so that if you reckon right you'll find only ten months twixt the killing of the Father and the burning of the Son.

It's credibly reported of this worthy and brave Gentleman that finding Frendraught's Party too strong for him, he was reasonably averse to go out and encounter them (the contraversie being about some Marches and a little parcel of Contraverted ground) till his Lady insinuate if he did not go, it would be a reflexion on his Honour. This if it was true, was but bad Counsell, and unadvisedly offered. Rothemey upon this goes out with only ten of his menial Servants mounted in haste on horse and engages Frendraught and Bamff and being overpowered with numbers his Horse is killed under him and falls to the ground with his Rider. In this fall Rothemeys Helmet went off and ere he could recover himself he received his Death wounds in the Head, notwithstanding of which he gets hold of a firelock and with one shot he killed one Adam Gordon of Frendraughts Partie and wounded some others fighting Couragiously till he gott another Horse which he mounted and made a honourable retreat and comes home with his Servants to the House of Rothemey, and seeing his Lady tells her he had faced Frendraught, and called for a Drink to his Servants who had behaved themselves as became and desired his Piper to play and with his Servants he Danced round about the Hall and having lost much blood and finding himself faint, he desired his Lady to make his Bed and told her he would never rise again in life.

After the death of the said William and John Gordons father and son the said James Gordon a Student then at the Colledge succeeded to the Estate of Rothemey. He married the Laird of Pittfoddells daughter Menzies, with whom he begat sons and daughters, his eldest son John Gordon Laird of Rothemey and Representative of the family of Cairnborrow.

His eldest son the said John Gordon married Elizabeth Barclay Heiress of Towie and with her got the Lands of Towie. With her he begat two Daughters viz M^{rs} Anne Gordon who dyed unmarried of a Decay, the second daughter M^{rs} Beattie Gordon married first Sir George Innes of Coxtan who dyed at Scoon after Shirriff-muire; with her the said S^r George begats sons and daughters. The said John Gordon of Rothemey begat on his Lady the Heiress of Towie a son called Peter, who being next dore to an Idiot was induced to Dispone the Lands of Towie to the said Sir George Innes his Brother in law who now possesses the Estate of Towie, the right Heir only retaining ane Aliment during life.

James Gordon Laird of Rothemey had Several daughters, one married To Nethermuire Gordon, one married to Wartle Elphinston, one married to David Tyrie of Dunieder.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THERE are various sources of information on the family of Abergeldie. There is a pedigree in the Balbithan MS. (pp. 9-11); in Burke's Landed Gentry, 1898 (corrected by the late Hugh Mackay Gordon, XVII. of Abergeldie); by Rev. J. G. Michie in the Crathie Church Bazaar Book Under Lochnagar, 1894, and in Lord Huntly's Records of Aboyne; while there is a brief account of the contents of the charter chest in the sixth report of the Historical MSS. Commission, appendix (p. 712); and various stories are given in Rev. J. G. Michie's Deeside Tales. Many references to the Abergeldie family, more particularly in connection with various land transactions and march disputes, will be found in Mr. Michie's Records of Invercauld. Two articles on the Abergeldie Gordons by the present writer appeared in the Aberdeen Free Press of 10th and 17th Nov., 1900. He is indebted for special information to the late Mr. Hugh Mackay Gordon, who told him that many family papers were destroyed by a fire in 1812; to Mr. Kenneth Gordon, Lee, Kent; to Dr. Charles Gordon, Pietermaritzburg; to Mr. D. Murray Rose and to others. The picture of Abergeldie Castle which is reproduced in this monograph is from a photograph by Annan of Glasgow, and represents the fine old structure from the north.

THE LAIRDS OF ABERGELDIE.

ABERGELDIE.

The lands of Abergeldie lie in the parish of Crathie, Aberdeenshire. The meaning of the name is the "confluence of the Geldie" with the Dee at the west end of the castle. The derivation of "geldie" is very uncertain. (Macdonald's Place Names of West Aberdeenshire, p. 2.) The lands have been held by the same family of Gordon, descendants of the 1st Earl of Huntly, practically since 1449, though actual possession did not come until 1482. The interest in the family has been heightened by the fact that Queen Victoria as owner of the neighbouring estate of Balmoral, rented Abergeldie during many years, and that her mother, the Duchess of Kent, and her son, King Edward VII., as Prince of Wales, used to live there. He is still the tenant (until 1922), at a rent of £4500 a year. The Empress Eugenie, who is descended from the old Scots family of Kirkpatrick, has frequently stayed at Abergeldie.

The castle, which stands on the south bank of the Dee about six miles above Ballater and two below Balmoral, has been much altered and added to; but, according to MacGibbon and Ross's Castellated and Domestic Architecture of Scotland, which contains a view of the building from the north-east (figure 520), it still retains the original tower which formed the nucleus of the whole, and which with its rounded angles, its crow-stepped gables and its somewhat elaborately corbelled angle turret, is a good and picturesque example of a sixteenth century manor house in Aberdeenshire. The means of access from the north bank of the river was formerly by a picturesque contrivance called a "rope and cradle" bridge, the bridge being really a rope from which the cradle or basket containing the passenger was suspended, and along which it ran.

The arms of the Gordons of Abergeldie as registered 1676, are: Quarterly: 1st, Azure, three boars' heads coupé or; 2nd, Or, three lions' heads erased gules; 3rd, Or, three crescents within a double tressure flory counterflory gules; 4th, Azure, three fraises argent; the whole within a bordure quarterly argent and gules. Crest: A deerhound argent collared gules. Motto: "God for us".

ALEXANDER, 1ST EARL OF HUNTLY.

Abergeldie appears in the hands of the Gordons for the first time in 1449, when it was in possession of Alexander, the first Earl of Huntly, who got it from the king for his services in suppressing the rebellion headed by the Earl of Douglas.

Abergeldie was originally part of the vast possessions of the notorious Earldom of Mar. Thomas, Earl of Mar, the last of the direct male line (he died in 1376), granted "Abbirgedly" in 1358 to "Duncan son of Roger," who was bound to give suit at the Earl's three courts held "apud lapidem de Mygvethe"—a stone at the Earl's great manor of Migvie in Cromar. In 1435 James I. boldly claimed the Earldom for reasons denounced by all the genealogists. In 1436 the lands were in the hands of John Mowat, for in 1438, according to the accounts of the Chamberlain of Mar, a payment is entered out of the rents of Cambusnakist by the King's grant of £10 to John Mowat for his right of the lands for the two previous years. In 1445 and 1446, the receiver of the king's rents is ordered to inquire carefully who is in possession of the lands, and what is their value, and in 1449 he reports them to be in the hands of Alexander, 1st Earl of Huntly, and in 1451 the Chamberlain accounts for £10 as the rent of Abergeldie, which is said to be in the Earl's hands. But the Roger claim was still recognised so late as 1507 as I shall show.

The Earl of Huntly married Elizabeth, daughter of Lord Crichton, Chancellor of Scotland, and had (Records of Aboyne):—

1. GEORGE, 2nd Earl of Huntly, who married the daughter of James I.
2. Sir ALEXANDER, I. of Abergeldie.
3. ADAM, Dean of Caithness, ancestor of the Gordons of Beldornie, Drummuy, and Sidderay.
4. JANET.
5. ELIZABETH, mar. (1) the 2nd Earl of Erroll, and (2) John, Lord Kennedy.
6. CHRISTIAN, mar. William, Lord Forbes.

SIR ALEXANDER GORDON, I. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of 1st Earl of Huntly : died before 1504.)

Sir Alexander Gordon clinched the hold that his house had got on Abergeldie. He received various lands in the barony of Midmar. The following dates bear on his annexation of Abergeldie and other estates :—

1482. Dec. 26.—By deed of gift, James III. granted the lands of Abergeldie to Alexander Gordon (Records of Aboyne, p. 219).

1488. Nov. 22.—He got a charter of the lands of Tullitermont from his brother, Lord Huntly (Aberdeen Burgh Sasines, vol. i.).

1489. Jan. 23.—He got a grant of the lands of Eastoun in Cromar from the King upon the resignation of John Rutherford of Tarland (Great Seal).

1501. Nov. 1.—His charter on Abergeldie and Eastoun, which were incorporated in one free barony, was confirmed (Great Seal).

1503.—He sold Old Midmar to James, Lord Ogilvie of Airlie, who however was to “tak na profit of the said lands” until Gordon’s grandsons Alexander or James came of age to complete a marriage either with Janet or Marion, Lord Ogilvie’s daughters. If the marriage did not take place, the lands were to remain in the hands of the Ogilvies until the sum of 600 merks was paid (Abergeldie Charter Chest, quoted in the Records of Aboyne, p. 220).

Sir Alexander, who died before January, 1504, married Beatrice Hay, daughter of the Earl of Erroll. On Oct. 1, 1504, when she was a widow, she was found entitled to her terce of the lands of Carnetralzeane and others in Kinellar, of the davach of Abergeldy and of Easton, and of the lands of the barony of Midmar (Antiq. of Aberdeen and Banff, iii., p. 242). The first laird of Abergeldie had, according to the Balbithan MS. :—

1. GEORGE, II. of Abergeldie.

2. WILLIAM, of Netherdale, who lived in Ruthven of Cromar. In 1522 he raided the Corryhoul lands of Agnes Grant, the widow of John McAllan, in Inverernan and took away much booty (Antiq. Aberdeen and Banff, iv., p. 477). In April, 1530, James Gordon of Abergeldie as surety for William, was ordered to pay to Agnes “sex score of yowis price of the pece v schillingis, lx of wedderis & yeild schein price of the pece iiij schillinges, & foure score of lambs price of the pece ij schillingis. And for the proffictis of the said vj^{xx}. yowis in woll, mylk, & lammis xxvij pundis. The proffictis of the saidis lx wedderis & yeild schein sen the tyme of the said spulye three pundis. The proffictis of the said lxxx lammis sen the said spulye as saidis iiij pundis” (Acta Dom.

- Conc.*) On March 8, 1532-33, King James V. granted a charter to Agnes Grant, who had by that time married Thomas Cuming, of six bovates of the sunny half of the lands of Craibstone, appraised from James Gordon of Abergeldie for 126 marks due by him as surety for William Gordon's plunder of 60 rams & barren sheep, 100 wethers & 80 lambs (Great Seal). His nephew James, the third laird of Abergeldie, became surety for him. The Balbithan MS. says he was killed at Ruthven by John Gordon alias John Geer. He married and had—MARGARET, who got Netherdale as her tocher (Sasine, 26 May, 1530).
3. JANET, married before Oct., 1501, at which date she was living, Thomas Fraser, Lord Lovat, and had a son—
HUGH FRASER, Lord Lovat, who was slain by the Macdonalds at Lochlochy, 1544. He was the ancestor of the present Lord Lovat.
4. Daughter, married Mortimer, the laird of Craigievar (Balbithan MS.).
5. Daughter, married —— Ogilvy of Clova (Balbithan MS.).
6. BEATRIX (alive 1555), married (1) Garden of Dorlathers ("of whom is come Mr. Robert Garden of Bellimore"): (2) Ross of Auchlossin (Balbithan MS.); she was alive in 1574 (Records of Aboyne, p. 222). In 1487 there was a marriage contract (Antiq. Aberdeen and Banff, iii., p. 299) between the heir apparent of Alexander Irvine of Drum and a daughter of Alexander Gordon of Midmar; but the ceremony never seems to have been solemnised, and the girl may have been one of the four daughters mentioned in the Balbithan MS.

GEORGE GORDON, II. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of I.: died before 1523.)

This laird is distinguished by the fact that he got complete and indisputable possession of the lands of Abergeldie. Like everything connected with the Earldom of Mar, his tenure had been, to say the least of it, shaky. The Crown still put forward claims and the Roger family also had a claim. Gordon first cleared off the claim of the Crown:—

1507. Feb. 25.—The Privy Council decided that George Gordon was "quit fra" the petition of the Crown, which claimed the lands, "because it was clearly sene . . . that the said lands of Abergeldie war destynct and separate lands fra the properte of [the Earldom of] Mar, when it was cled with ane Earl, and quhen it wes uncled with ane Earl, as our soverane Lordis old rollis sene and considered propertis" (Records of Aboyne, pp. 220-1).

Then he got rid of the Rogers' claim :—

1507. March 24.—By a notarial instrument (in the Abergeldie Charter Chest) dated March 24, 1507 (a month after the Privy Council decree), wherein it is set forth that in the Court of the King's Justiciar held at Dundee, there appeared Thomas, son of Alexander, asserting himself to be heir of Christina Roger, his great grandmother, in the lands of Abergeldie and others in the Earldom of Mar, and confessing that he had been fully satisfied and paid by George Gordon of Midmar, his rights therein being thereby renounced, and the original charter granted by Thomas, Earl of Mar, to his predecessors being now delivered to the said George (Hist. MS. Com., 6th Report, Appendix).

The second laird was alive in 1510, but died before 1523. He married Margaret Stewart (the Balbithan MS. calls her "Grizal"), daughter of the Earl of Buchan. She died in 1534. They had :—

1. ALEXANDER, alive in 1503 (Abergeldie Charters), but apparently dead before his father (Records of Aboyne, p. 221): though the Balbithan MS. gives him as third laird.
2. JAMES, III. of Abergeldie.
3. WILLIAM, in Logies (an illegitimate son), who married the daughter of — Irving of Tulloch, and had five sons. The Balbithan MS., however, names only four, namely, Alexander, Robert, James and John Gordon of Coull.

JAMES GORDON, III. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of II. : killed at Pinkie, 1547.)

On April 24, 1523, the young laird, "having arrived at the years of 'discretion and marriage,' petitioned his guardian [Walter Ogilvie in Boyne] that he might be 'coupled' in lawful matrimony. Ogilvie . . . offered him his choice of two damsels in every respect equal to himself—Janet Sinclair and Elizabeth Ogilvie" (Records of Aboyne, p. 221). But he scorned them both and married Janet Leith, daughter and coheir of George Leith of Barnes, and widow of Alexander Seton of Meldrum. He was returned heir to his father only on October 6, 1534. In 1528 he had confirmation of a charter by John Stewart, Earl of Buchan (his uncle or grandfather), of the lands of Grandoum, Auchmull, Perslie, and others (Great Seal).

Abergeldie, as I have shown, had to pay dearly for his uncle William's raid on Agnes Grant. He had to surrender six bovates of the sunny half of the lands of Craibstone. The other part of Craibstone, in the barony of Grandholm, he sold to James Cheyne, burghess of Aberdeen. Abergeldie was to pay Cheyne "the sovme of sewyntene scoire of merkis in gold of angell nobilis crownis of weicht unycornis and Leitht crownis . . . witht ane sufficient lettre of tak . . . of the said landis . . . for all the termes . . . of fyfteyne zeiris . . . followinge the rademyng . . . of the said landis for tene merkis of pennye maill . . . monye of Scotland and als one sufficient lettre of balyerye of the said landis . . . for the said 15 zeiris . . . thane . . . I sall ranunce the said landis . . . to the said James": witnessed 5th August, 1536 (Antiquities of Aberdeen and Banff, iii., p. 222). This transaction gave rise to a feud between the Aberdeen burgh authorities and Forbes of Strathgirnock, who had some claim on the property.

The third laird was killed at Pinkie in 1547 (Exchequer Rolls). He had three sons and at least one daughter:—

1. ALEXANDER, IV. of Abergeldie.

2. JAMES of Lastis. Mr. Michie says he killed Gilbert Knowles and his son at the Calsayend. The Balbithan MS. says he married (Dec. 1, 1574) the daughter of Donald Coutts of Kinarnie and had:—

(1) THOMAS.

(2) JOHN, Ledach, Skene.

(3) JAMES, burghess of Aberdeen.

(4) ALEXANDER. He may have been the merchant in Aberdeen who wrote very many poems in the Scottish language (Maidment's Catalogues of Scottish Writers, p. 120).

3. Mr. WILLIAM, married Janet Cairngill and had Alexander, burghess in Aberdeen (Balbithan MS.).

4. BETRIX. She had for liferent the lands of Knock. This is mentioned in the precept of sasine given to her in 1556. It is unusual to sign sasines, and the designation is curious. The sasine, which is in the Abergeldie charter chest, has been summarised by Mr. D. Murray Rose as follows: "Alexander Gordon de Perslie dilectis meis Johanni Leyth . . . ballivis meis in hac parte Salutem Quia vendidi . . . dilecte mee Beatrice Gordon, sorori honorabilis viri Alexandri Gordon de Abirgelyd, in vitali redditu . . . terras meas de Knock cum suis pertinentiis jacentes in parochia de Glenmyk infra vicecom. de Aberdeen tenandas in capite de me . . . vobis . . . precipio . . . quatenus . . . sasinam dictorum terrarum cum suis pertinentiis dicte Beatrice in vitali redditu . . . certo attornato . . . per lie thak et raip ut moris est . . . tradatis Reservando tamen . . . libere tenementum dictarum terrarum . . . Jacobo Gordon de Leismoir patri meo pro toto tempore vitae sui. In cujus rei testimonium presentibus mea manuali subscriptione subscriptis sigillum meum proprium est appensum apud Aberdene decimo tertio die mensis Julii Anno Domini Millesimo quinquagesimo Sexto Coram hiis testibus Thoma Chalmer de Cultis Alexandro Chalmer ejus filio Willelmo Cristesoun Magistris Gilberto Murray et Johanne Nicholoun notariis publicis cum diversis aliis. Alex. Gordon of Parsle Brynkburn with my hand." She was the second wife of Alexander Gordon (3rd son of James Gordon, I. of Lesmoir), I. of Birkenburn. She was the mother of:—

- (1) HARRY, in Knock. He was killed in Nov., 1592, by the raiding party of Mackintoshes who also killed the Baron of Brackley (Earls of Sutherland, p. 217).
 - (2) DUNCAN of Perslie.
 - (3) JAMES.
5. HELEN, "daughter of James Gordon of Midmar and Abergeldie," apparently the 3rd laird, married Thomas Fraser of Durris (Macfarlane's Genealogical Collections, ii., 323) and became the grandmother of Sir Alexander Fraser, the famous physician who trepanned Prince Rupert, and whose daughter, Carey Fraser, married (about 1678) the third Earl of Peterborough. Sir Alexander's son Charles translated Plutarch (Dict. Nat. Biog.).

ALEXANDER GORDON, IV. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of III. : died 1596.)

This laird signed a bond against the regent, 27th April, 1560 (Cal. Scottish Papers I., p. 383), "to expel the French maintained by the Queen dowager and take plain part with the Queen of England's army, sent by her for that purpose". He was known as "Black Alister," and Mr. Michie (Deeside Tales, p. 140) relates some wild legends about him—notably one concerning an attack which he made on the Forbeses of Strathgirnock, who had a bitter feud with the Gordons of Knock. Abergeldie surrounded Strathgirnock's house and broke into it. Forbes was knocked down by a musket ball, and then hanged, and Abergeldie served himself heir to the lands of Strathgirnock, and came into the lands of Knock as nearest of kin. Certain it is he took part in Huntly's rebellion in 1562, and was compelled to ward in St. Andrews (on Oct. 30) under penalty of 5,000 merks. Alexander Irvine of Drum was co-cautioner with him (Privy Council Register). In 1564 his lands were restored to him by

1565. Oct. 12.—Abergeldie was one of the assisors at the trial of Alexander Lyon of Aberdeen and his wife for the murder of John Wood of Colpna (Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, i., 471).

1566. May 4.—Tack by James, Lord St. John, Preceptor of Torphichen, to Alexander Gordon of Abergeldy and his heirs and assignees “ane or ma being of na hiar degre nor himself,” of the teynd schevis of the Kirkis and parochynnys of Tullich and Oboyne, with their pertinents, lying within the diocese and Sheriffdom of Aberdeen for the space of 19 years, which shall begin at the out running of the tacks made by the said Lord St. John to Beatrix Gordon, Lady Auchlossin [who was, according to the Balbithan MS., the grand aunt of the 4th laird] and Mr. Robert Gardyn, hir sone, and to their assignees of the saidis kirkis and teyn sheves for 19 years following the feast of Lammas 1555: The said Alexander Gordon entering thereto at the feast of Lammas 1574 and paying yearly of teind duty the sum of 75 merks within the burgh of Aberdeen at the feast of St. Bartholomew in August, or at the farthest in a whole yearly sum . . . , within one month next thereafter. At Edinburgh 4 May 1566. Witnesses John Forbes of Brux, Patrick Leyth of Harthill, Robert Abercromby, James Boyd, servant to the said Lord St. John (Records of Aboyne, p. 222).

1568. May 8.—The laird of Abergeldie was one of those (including 9 earls, 9 bishops, 18 lords and others) who signed the bond of adherence to Mary against those who had threatened to “tak hir majesties lyfe maist unjustlie from hir, expres aganis all lovable law of God and man” (Calendar of Scottish Papers II., p. 404).

1574. Sept. 1.—“The quhilk day in presens [at Aberdeen] of my Lord Regentis Grace and Lordis of Secreit Counsaill, compeirt Alexander Gordon of Abirgeldy and producit ane vallyntyne deliverit to him for presenting of Matho Frig befor the Justice or his deputtis, quhilk he ressavit upon the fourteene day of August last bipast: and that same nycht he send away spyis to se gif he was at the Mylne of Hoill, quhair he remainit with his fader. And the spyis remainit thair quhill the deponaris weir cuming, quhilk wes from the — day of the same moneth. And efter the resett of this valentyne [Abergeldy] depones that the said Matho come to his faderis hous, and how sone he come the spyis quhom the deponar directit come bak agane and tauld the deponar that he [Frig] wes thair, supponand he sould not haif past away. Notwithstanding befor the deponaris cuming he wes eschapit.” Abergeldie denied that he gave the spies orders to arrest Matho. On the same day James Gordon of Haddo was surety that Alexander Knowis, younger, burgess in Aberdeen, would be “harmless” of Abergeldie whose uncle James had killed Gilbert Knowles and his son in Aberdeen. Penalty £1,000 (Privy Council Register).

1578.—He took part in the attempt to decide a dispute between the Forbeses and the Gordons (Acts of Parliament).

1592.—Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, p. 218) says that Abergeldie as ABERGELDIE.

baillie in Badenoch to Lord Huntly was ordered by his master to raid the Mackintoshes in Petty for the slaughter of the Baron of Brackley.

1594. Oct. 3.—At the battle of Glenlivet Lord Huntly was supported on the left by “the laird of Abergeldie” (Earls of Sutherland, p. 227).

His son Alexander is called “apparent” as late as Oct. 24, 1594, but “of Abergeldie” in 1598.

The fourth laird, who “dyed at home,” according to the Balbithan MS., married Janet Irvine, daughter of Alexander Irvine, VII. of Drum (Wimberley’s Family of Irvine, p. 6), and had six sons and six daughters:—

1. ALEXANDER, V. of Abergeldie.
2. Mr. WILLIAM, VI. of Abergeldie.
3. JOHN of Craibstone: alive 1614; he “had succession” (Balbithan MS.).
4. GEORGE, killed at the battle of Glenlivet, 1594. Birrell in his diary, as quoted by Pitcairn (Criminal Trials, i., 361), says: “The goodman of Dorth and his son were slain at Balrinnes. This Dorth was the brother of Abergeldie.” Mr. Michie says he got Knock from his father, who bought the property. There seem, however, to have been two different families of Gordon in possession of Knock.
5. THOMAS of Grandholm.—A charter was granted on July 25, 1604, by William Allan, burges of Aberdeen, with assent of Andrew Hervie of Alrik, and James Hervie, his eldest son and heir, for their interest in terms of a contract between the granter on the one part and Thomas Gordon of Grandholm for himself and Margarete Forbes his wife on the other, granting to them and their heirs male in feu farm the town and lands of Carnefield (i.e. Balgownie) with manor house, etc., also the lands of Danestoun and Corthyburn (St. Machar): to be held from the granter of the Principal, regents, etc., of King’s College (Laing Charters, p. 357). On March 4, 1606, Thomas Gordon of Grandoun was admitted a burges of Aberdeen (New Spald. Club Misc., i., 101). In 1607 Thomas Gordon of Grandholm granted a letter of reversion in favour of George, Marquis of Huntly, over the lands of Auchoilzie in Glenmuick as principal, and the lands of Brodland, Newton of Watternady, as in warrandice, which Huntly had sold him redeemably for 2,000 merks (Records of Aboyne). In the same year Robert Stewart, burges in Aberdeen, became bond for Gordon in 1,000 merks that he would not reset or intercommune with Patrick and Thomas Fraser, sons of Thomas Fraser, elder of Durris, who had been put to the horn for the slaughter of William Irvine and Robert Burnet. According to the Collections on the Shires of Aberdeen and Banff (p. 231), Grandholm was called Dilspro “while possessed by the Jaffrays”. In 1626 Thomas Gordon of Dilspro was caution in £20 (Privy Council Register) that Sir James Gordon of Lesmoir (whose sister Thomas Gordon of Grandholm married) should pay his College of Heralds bill (Sir James was made a baronet in 1625). Dilspro had belonged to the Lesmoir Gordons, for the first Laird of Lesmoir had a son Harry of Dilspro. In Nov., 1638, Thomas Gordon, "late of Dilspro," resigned the shady half of the lands of old Govill in New Machar to John Kintie. Thomas of Grandholm married (1) Margaret Forbes, daughter of Alexander Forbes at the Mill of Gellan, and they had sasine on the lands of Carnfetic, July 2, 1604. He married (2) Janet, daughter of Alexander Gordon, 3rd Laird of Lesmoir, and widow of James Crichton of Fren draught, whose son was the host of Lord Aboyne when the latter was burned at Fren draught in 1630. (A Thomas Gordon appears in 1635 as one of the Gordons called on to give caution for their good behaviour, especially in view of the Fren draught affair.) A Thomas Gordon of Dilspro married Margaret, daughter of John Allardyce of that ilk. (Information from Mr. D. Murray Rose.) Again Thomas Gordon "of Grandhum" was married to Elspet Grant, apparently a widow, for (according to the Privy Council Register, x., p. 486) on March 28, 1616, Alexander Watsoun, messenger in Aberdeen, complained that when he went to summon James Murray, brother of the Laird of Cowbardie, and others, to appear before the Council to answer the charge of ravishing Marjorie Fergusoun, daughter of Elspet Grant ("now wife of Thomas Gordoun of Grandum"), and was executing the charge against Arthour Chalmer, in his house in the Kirk toun of Kinnoir, he was attacked by the said Arthur, who "preassit to haif rivene his Majesties blasin of his breist," struck him with "fauldit nevis," and pulled out a long dirk, with which he would have slain pursuer, had he not escaped. Pursuer having gone afterwards to the house of Alex. Mathesoun, messenger, "and efter supper haveing past to his bed for taking the nichtis rest thairintill," the said Arthour, accompanied by Johnne Abircrombie in Sandistoun, and other accomplices, to the number of ten, all armed, came to the house about midnight, surrounded it, "strak in at the windois" with swords and long weapons, forced an entrance at the door, and thereafter most cruelly assaulted pursuer, who "narrowlie eschaipit from thame". The Lords order Chalmer and Johnne Abircrombie to be denounced rebels. The Thomas who married Elspet Grant may have been the son of Thomas of Grandholm, who, according to the Balbithan MS., "had succession" by his first wife. It is just possible that these Grandholm Gordons represented different cadets (which may account for the several marriages mentioned). A Thomas Gordon of Grandholm had at any rate a daughter:—

AGNES, who married Rev. Thomas Forbes, minister of Keig, son of the 6th Laird of Corsindae. They had:—

ISOBEL FORBES, who married Robert Lumsden of the Cushnie family (Lumsden's Forbeses).

6. JAMES of Easton.—In 1609 (July 13) he brought an action against David Kynnymonth of Craighall, William Gray of Bandirrane, and George Seton of Parbroth, for remaining unrelaxed from hornings of Feb. 20 and June 23 (1609), for not paying complainer as assignee to his brother (William) 6,000 merks as principal and £1,000 expenses, with 720 merks over and above. He married (according to the Balbithan MS.) Marion Scrimgeour, apparently a relation of Sir James Scrimgeour of Dudhope, Constable of Dundee, who frequently was surety for his brother. He had a son by her (Balbithan MS.). Sir John Scrimgeour of Dudhope married Margaret Carnegie whose sister was the wife of a Gordon of Cairnburrow. Was this James laird of Balmoral?
7. Daughter, married as his second wife Alexander Gordon of Tulloch, Chancellor of Moray, a cadet of the Buckie family (Balbithan MS., p. 62). She bore him three sons who all died young.
8. Daughter, married Thomas Menzies, Provost of Aberdeen (Balbithan MS.).
9. MARJORIE, married (1) Robert Duguid of Auchenhove; and (2) John Leslie, XI. of Balquhain (died 1638) (Balbithan MS.). Duguid was first married to Janet Forbes who divorced him for adultery in 1583. He then contracted a marriage with Marjorie Gordon, "as then held incompetently" (Leslie's Leslies, iii., 442): but on account of his extreme youth, King James VI. granted him remission and dispensation, July 29, 1589, as if he had married Marjorie Gordon for his first wife. By Duguid she had a son William, VI. of Auchenhove, and Robert (Birth Brieve), who married Marie Forbes and had a son Robert in Poland.
10. Daughter, married Patrick Mortimer of Enzie.
11. Daughter.
12. CATHERINE (natural), married James Farquharson, I. of Inverey (Michie's Records of Invercauld, p. 112).

ALEXANDER GORDON, V. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of IV. : died 1601.)

This laird was an ardent Roman Catholic. The following items refer to him:—

1593. March 3.—Alexander Gordon apparent of Abergeldie as Principal and Sir James Scrimgeour of Dudhope (probably a relation of his sister-in-law, Marion Scrimgeour, the wife of James Gordon of Easton) as surety gave 2,000 merks assurance not to join the Catholic Earls (Privy Council Register).

1593. May 26.—Sir John Gordon of Pitlurg was caution in 2,000 merks for Alexander Gordon, apparent of Abergeldie (1) that by June 15 he should return to the Clerk of Council a bond subscribed by Alexander Irving apparent of Drum, (2) that he should keep ward besouth the water of Dee till he return Lord Marischal's letter allowing his liberty. In respect of the surety he is relieved of his present ward in Edinburgh (Privy Council Register).

1594. June 12.—Alexander Gordon apparent of Abergeldie is charged to appear before the King to answer for his good rule and loyalty (Privy Council Register).

1594. July 11.—He was denounced (along with John Gordon of Newton, Robert Gordon of Savocho, and George Gordon of Cochlarachy and others) for not appearing to answer the charge of being "treasounable practizaris and conspiratoris aganis the true religioun" (Privy Council Register).

1594. Oct. 24.—The Privy Council ordered the forfeit of the caution given on June 13, 1593, by Gordon as principal and Alexander Irving younger of Drum as surety for him in 2,000 merks to appear before them. On Nov. 4 there is a warrant under the sign manual freeing Irving as surety (Privy Council Register).

1598. Dec. 9.—Registration by John Halyday as procurator of bond by Sir James Scrymgeour of Dudhope, constable of Dundee, for Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie in 2,000 merks not to harm John, Earl of Mar. Subscribed at Dundee, Nov. 30, 1598 (Privy Council Register).

The fifth laird of Abergeldie married before 1586 Margaret Mackintosh, daughter of William of that ilk, who had previously been the wife of Duncan Grant, Laird of Grant, who died in 1581, and of the Laird of Pitsligo. On April 2, 1604, she had sasine on the lands and barony of Abergeldie (Aberdeen Sasines). On Dec. 21, 1604, she married William Sutherland of Duffus (Great Seal, Nov. 25, 1608) who died before 1616; she was alive in 1627 (Fraser's Chiefs of Grant, vol. i.). The Balbithan MS. says he died without issue, but he really left an only daughter:—

BEATRICE, who had sasine on the lands of Waukindale, Tollibog, Hilloch, Auldtoun, etc., on Jan. 20, 1601 (Aberdeen Sasines, vol. ii.).

He also seems to have had an illegitimate son, for according to the Privy Council Register a commission was granted in June 16, 1629, to the lairds of Pittodrie, Glenkindie, Invercauld, Monaltrie, and others to arrest:—

"ALEXANDER GORDON, the natural son of Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie, Alaster McComeis McFerrucher, his brother on the mother's side, and Robert Smith in Clauch, ane toune in the barony of Abergeldie, who on May 27 were put to the horn at the instance of Marjorie Brebner with Duncan Stewart as son, Robert Stewart in Aberardour and Arthur and James Stewart as brothers, and the remaining kin and friends of the deceased John Stewart in Aberardour for failing to answer for the slaughter of the said John Stewart. Power is given of fire and sword and there is a clause of immunity."

The fifth laird died in 1601 and was succeeded by his brother,

WILLIAM GORDON, VI. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Younger son of IV. : died 1630.)

He was retoured heir to his brother on May 30, 1601. He had originally got Birkhall (formerly Stering) from his father. The most interesting incident in his career was his connection with the Catholic plot usually known as the "Spanish blanks," by which a Spanish invasion of this country was to be manœuvred. The chief figures in the business were a Scots priest William Crichton and Father James Gordon, the son of the Huntly who had fallen after Corrichie. Young Abergeldie's connection with the scheme may be told thus :—

1591. March 7.—Row says that on this date William Crichton ("quho hes remained in Spaine these two yeares") sent William Gordon, "sonne to Abergeldie, with letteris to Mr James Gordon jesuit to let Papists heir know quhat travel Crichton had taken with the King of Spaine since his arriving thither": and that the King of Spain was to invade England and alter the religion of Scotland by Crichton's advice. Therefore Crichton craved, "be this gentleman," so many blanks and procurations to be sent to him, as could be had of the noblemen here, "for the assurance of his trafficke". Upon the receipt of the blanks, it was proposed to send, at the end of the spring of 1592, an army of 30,000 men, landing either in the Clyde or in Kirkcudbright. The answers were taken by George Ker, but he was apprehended at the Isle of Cumbray. He bore many letters. One of them was written in French by Huntly and signed by two other noblemen, regretting "the defeate of the Navall Armie quhilk the King of Spaine called blasphemouslie The Invincible Armado". Huntly is said to have averred that the Navy had not taken the right time in view of the great winds in harvest—"forgeting," adds Row, that "the Lord of Hosts, who comands winds and seas, did avowedlie fight against him, proving his 'Invincible Armado' verie easilie vincible".

1593. March 5.—William Gordon and others were denounced as rebels for having failed to appear before the Privy Council to answer "touching the hearing of mess and resetting of priestis and papistis" (Privy Council Register).

1594. Oct. 3.—He was present at the battle of Glenlivet, for he got remission in 1603 (Spalding Club Miscellany, vol. iv., p. 159). His old friend Father Crichton has left a curious account of the battle (printed by Father Forbes Leith in his Narratives of the Scottish Catholics, 1885).

1602. April 13.—Notwithstanding that Huntly had been ordered to arrest certain Papists, it was announced by the Privy Council that Abergeldie and others had not “purged themselves of the excommunication under which they live, but still remain in this country practising against the true religion” (Privy Council Register).

1602. Nov. 21.—He had sasine of the lands of Ballogie, Mill hole, etc. (Aberdeen Sasines, vol. ii.).

1602. Dec. 20.—He had sasine of the Barony of Midmar (Aberdeen Sasines, vol. ii.).

1603. July 20.—William Gordon of Kennertie was caution in 2,000 merks that Abergeldie should not harm John and Harry Stewart of Ballagan, Andrew M'Andow, John Moir M'Allaster, Donald M'Allaster (his brother), John M'Comie, John Ker, John Gordon, and James M'Patrick (the last three in Crathie). The bond was signed at Abergeldie before James Gordon, Abergeldie's brother, and others (Privy Council Register).

1605. June 10.—Alexander Montgomery, citizen of Old Aberdeen, was caution in 300 merks that Abergeldie should enter John Donald, Findlay Dow and Patrick Ewen in Stradie, alleged to be his men, to answer to the Council for going to the house at Craigmouth of Ogle, occupied by William Johnston, tenant of James Fenton of Ogle and breaking up the doors spoiling the goods (Privy Council Register).

1605. July 18.—Fenton got Abergeldie and his associates denounced as a rebel for robbing and wounding Johnston. In 1608 Abergeldie's brother-in-law Patrick Mortimer of Enzie was surety in £1,000 that Abergeldie should bring his three servants to the Council. Fenton himself was put to the horn in 1609 for an offence of his own (Privy Council Register).

1607. Feb. 21.—John Scrimgeour, apparent of Dudhope, was caution in £1,000 that Abergeldie should not reset his kinsmen Thomas and Patrick Fraser, sons of the laird of Durris, who had been put to the horn on July 22, 1606, for the slaughter of William Irvine of Glassick (Glassel), who married a Margaret Gordon, and Robert Burnet of Cowcardie in June, 1606. On Jan. 13, 1607, Abergeldie reset the Frasers and was fined 1,000 merks (Privy Council Register).

1607. Aug. 13.—He had charter under the Great Seal of the lands and barony of Abergeldie.

1608. Feb. 5.—Abergeldie was caution in £2,000 for Alexander Irving of Drum (who in turn was caution for his brothers Robert, James, William and John) not to harm the Forbeses, of whom a list is given (Privy Council Register).

1608. Nov. 26.—Abergeldie and his old Catholic associate Patrick Butter, son of Patrick, sometime of Marytoun, found caution in 500 merks not to wear hagbuts or pistols in future (Privy Council Register).

1609. June.—He was made a Justice of the Peace for Aberdeenshire.

1611. January 10.—Two of Abergeldie's tenants on Easton and Lochmaynis, George and James Ross, complained that albeit the reset and intercommuning with that “vnhappie and rebellious race and handful of wicked people callit” the Clan Gregor was strictly discharged, yet on Aug. 27, 1610, Nicol Davie, accompanied by ten or twelve armed men went to the market of St. Mary's and felled them (the Rosses) to the ground, and wounded them with drawn swords; and all the people bolted in fear. Davie was denounced as a rebel (Privy Council Register).

1611. Jan. 15.—Abergeldie, Sir Robert Gordon of Lochinvar and James Gordon of Lesmoir were caution for the conduct of Lord Huntly after his present ward in Stirling Castle in the sum of 20,000 merks (Privy Council Register).

1611. Dec. 3.—Abergeldie was ordered to arrest Coutts of Auchtercoull (Privy Council Register).

1612. Jan. 23.—He was ordered to arrest several of the Leslies (Privy Council Register).

1612. July 28.—He was ordered to arrest James Gordon of Auchdryne and other "broken men" (Privy Council Register).

1614. April 1.—The Aberdeen Register of Deeds (as quoted by Mr. Rose) records a contract between Arthur, Lord Forbes, on the one part and William Gordon of Abergeldie on the other; whereby, for 18,000 merks, the said Lord dispones to the said William Gordon heritably without reversion or regres the town and lands of Lairie with the croft thereof, callit Carriauchtane, town and lands of Strathgirnock, with the pendicles thereof called Tarnagowne, Candacraig, Lynefork, otherwise called Overpleuche of Strathgirnok: the town and lands of Easter and Wester Abirgardynes, Kirktown of Abirgardyne, with woods, boiges, fishings on the water of Dee, and Glengardyne scheilling, commonties, common pasturages, pertaining to the said lands and specially to the lands of Lairie, Strathgirnok and Abirgardyne, with the manor place and stanehous foundit upon Wolt on the said lands of Easter Abirgardyne; all lying in the parish of Glengardyn, barony of Aboyne and shereffdom of Aberdeen: And likewise in security of the said sum the said Lord Forbes has constitut the said William Gordon, his heirs, etc., to be assignees in and to the contents of a reversion given to him by Arthur Forbes of Boigis and Margaret Forbes, his spous, for redeeming from them or their heirs the town and lands of Sonehume (Sonehinnie?) with the pertinents and teynd sheaves thereof lying in the parish of Midmar, barony of Cluny and Sheriffdom of Aberdeen; by payment of 300 merks: and farther, for security to the said William Gordon of the said lands of Sonehume, the said Lord Forbes has sold the said lands to him: constituting here also the assignee in and to a letter of tack of the teind sheaves of the town and lands of Lairie, etc., above mentioned made to the said Lord Forbes by the Principal, Masters, Regents, and Members of the King's College of Auld Aberdeen for the space of a liferent and two 19 years tack of date at Aberdeen Oct. 13, 1608: And in and to another letter of tack and assedation of the teind sheaves of the said lands, granted to the said Lord Forbes by Mr John Strathachin, person of Kincardine, with the consent of the patron Bishop, Dean, and Chapter of the Cathedral Kirk of Aberdeen, for the space of two liferents and three 19 years, for the yearly payment of 8 merks teind silver and two bolls meall, of date at Aberdeen, Oct. 11, 1611. Reserving to the said Arthur Forbes of Sonehume and his said spouse, their right and tack of the teind sheaves of the said lands of Sonehume, during the next redemption thereof from them; And seeing that the said Lord Forbes has disponed heritably to Alexander, Master of Forbes, his Lordship's son, the said whole lands, mills, etc., above specified, with the whole living and lordship of Forbes under revision of an angell of gold; Therefore the said Lord binds himself to give to the said William Gordon a declarator and decreit of the Lords of Council and Sessions upon the lawful redemption of the said lands in favour of the said Lord Forbes, finding and declaring the same to be lawfully redeemed from the said Alexander, Master of Forbes, his son. At Aberdeen, 1st April, 1614. Witnesses, Mr Thomas Menzies of Balgownie, Thomas Gordon of Grandoum, Mr Robert Forbes, portioner of Fynnersie, etc.

1617. Sept. 10.—He was one of those who appeared before the Privy Council on behalf of the Gordons when the latter and the Hays "choppit hands" and buried the hatchet that had been sharpened over the extraordinarily barbaric murder of Francis Hay, who had shot (in a duel) Adam Gordon of the Gight family (Privy Council Register).

1621. March 14.—He was retoured heir to James Gordon, his grandfather, in the lands of Carntralzane, Beldestone and others (Inquis. Spec. Aberdeen).

1621. Dec. 6.—He was ordered to arrest certain Macgregors for the murder of William Macpherson (Privy Council Register).

1623. Nov. 7.—When the Justices of the Peace for Aberdeenshire were ordered to appear in the Tolbooth of Aberdeen all did so except Abergeldie, Gordon of Brackly and another, who, giving no excuse, were each fined £40 (Privy Council Register).

1628. March 20.—"Sir" William (he is thus described) was commissioned to arrest several Highland thieves in Braemar and Perthshire (Privy Council Register).

1630. March 25.—Robert Skene, younger, Burgess in Aberdeen, son of Robert Skene of Slydie and Erdifork, got decreit against William Gordon of Abergeldie on a bond to the late Robert Skene, dated May 29, 1618. There was a similar decreit on July 19, 1634, and again on July 22, 1642 (but these last two must have been against the next laird) (Skene's Skenes, p. 76).

The sixth laird of Abergeldie, who died at Abergeldie in 1630, married Elizabeth Seton, the "Laird of Peitbroth's" (Parbroath's?) daughter (Balbithan MS.). Burke (Landed Gentry, 1898) says that he married (1) Francisca daughter of Andrew Lord Gray, but I cannot verify the statement: which "has always been handed down in the family". According to Baird's Genealogical Memoirs of the Duffs (pp. 137, 138), Catherine Ruthven, daughter of — Ruthven, provost of Perth and brother of the Earl of Gowrie, married "Gordon of Abergeldie" (William?) and had a daughter Jean, who married Adam Duff of Drummuir, who died about 1660. He had five sons and two daughters:—

1. ALEXANDER, VII. of Abergeldie.

2. JOHN. The "Livetennand Colonell Gordon, brother to the Laird [of] Abirzeldie," who in 1642 "schippit" at Aberdeen men for Lord Argyll's regiment in France, as mentioned by Spalding (Troubles, II., 187), may be the John Gordon in Littlemill who had been in perpetual service with the rebels—fighting at Inverlochic, Kilsyth and other battles first as captain, then as major and then as Lieut.-Colonel. He appeared before the General Assembly Commission at Aberdeen in May, 1647, and begged for pardon. There was a John Gordon in Littlemill in Ruthven son of Alexander Gordon of Cromellat and grandson of James Gordon, I. of Letterfourie. A John Gordon in Littlemill was excommunicated as a papist, Nov., 1643. A John Gordon in Littlemill was made a burgess of guild of Aberdeen on March 16, 1663, and similar honour fell to his son Patrick Gordon on Oct. 12, 1664.

3. WILLIAM. He was served heir to his father in the lands of Grandoun, Auchmill, Perslie and Craibstone, June 17, 1607 (Inquis. Spec.).
4. THOMAS.
5. JAMES.
6. MARGARET, married Donald Farquharson of Monaltrie (known as Donald Oig). He was an enthusiastic anti-Covenanter and frequently figures in Spalding and in Britane's Distemper. On March 15, 1645, he was slain "anent the court de guard—a brave gentilman, and ane of the noblest capitans amongis all the hielanders of Scotland". Next morning his body was found in the "calsey stript naikit, for they had tirrit from of his bodie ane ritche stand of apparrell bot put on the samen day. His corpis ar taken w the wynd, and put in ane cloiss kist and had wp to the Cheppelhill, thair to ly on the Castelhill." On the following day, Sunday (March 17), "Donald wes buriet in the Laird [of] Drumis Iyll, with mony wo hairtis and dulefull schottis" (Spalding's Troubles, II., 455-7). Britane's Distemper gives Farquharson a fine character. He was "beloued of all sortes of people . . . he gaue prooffe of alse much true curraige as any man could hawe. . . . There was no man more humble, no man, saue a prodigal, that cared lesse for to morrow. . . . He was upon a sixe monthes stay at court, so become so weell lyked of, and in so good grace with, his soueraine lord, as he euer after called him his man. . . . In fine, nether is my judgment nor my experience able to give a true charectore to the lyfe of this gentleman's singular and most commendable parts."
7. MARY, married a Gray of Schivas and thus increased the influence of the Abergeldies in Buchan, for her brother-in-law Farquharson was the constant companion of Nathaniel Gordon of the Gight family, who was ultimately executed. She gave a great deal of trouble to the Ellon Presbytery, which excommunicated her in 1668 (Mair's Ellon Presbytery Records). "A View of the Diocese of Aberdeen" (Collections for a History of the Shires of Aberdeen and Banff, p. 334) declares that the Grays of Schivas were "still Roman Catholicks" in 1732.

ALEXANDER GORDON, VII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of VI.: died 1655.)

Like his father before him he was all for the old order : and necessarily a strong anti-Covenanter. He figures frequently in Spalding, and suffered for his faith :—

1626. Sept. 12.—Alex. Gordone, “fiar of Abirzeldie,” was admitted a burgesse of Aberdeen (New Spald. Club Misc., i., 142).

1635. Aug. 7.—Alexander Gordon of Abergeldie and other Gordons were summoned before the Privy Council to find caution for their good behaviour (Privy Council Register). His rents this year were £1368 13s. 4d. (Michie's Records of Invercauld, p. 464).

1639. May.—Abergeldie was one of the gentry who gathered round Lord Aboyne at Aberdeen as a counterblast to the meeting of the Covenanters at Turriff (Spalding's Troubles, vol. i., p. 88).

1644. March.—Abergeldie was one of the lairds who met Lord Huntly in Aberdeen (Spalding's Troubles, vol. ii., p. 330).

1644. July 6.—Thomas Nicolson, advocate, Procurator for the Estates of the Kingdom, complained to the Parliament that he had “by great charge and expense acqyured not only y^e heritable right and property of the landis of Aberzeldie, bot also hes obtaint y^e gift of y^e single escheit and escheit of lyferent of Alexander Gordon of Aberzeldie from y^e Kingis Majestie off all landes haldine be the said Alexander of the king, be vertew q^rof I [Nicolson] have y^e only good and undoubted right to y^e said lands of Aberzeldie and to y^e mailles and dewtyes therof which I have bestowed and employed yearly for y^e mentinance and intertenement of Katherine Nicolsone my sister, spous to y^e said Alexander Gordon and of her sevine childrene. begs for an order for the removal of the soldiers so that his sister and her children—“who are now dispersed in ye cuntry of Angus in severall strangeres houss attending till ye Lord provyde remeid”—may return to their home. He asks also that a sum of money should be granted by the Parliament to his sister and her children “who will be destitute of interteinment and mentinance this yere to come in respect of ye destroying of ye grounds, goudes and cornes”. The Parliament remitted the matter to the Committee of Estates, which declared “that to be publict debt dew” to Nicolson which the Committee “eftir consideratioune and tryall shall think fitting to be restored” to him (Acts of Parliament). Spalding (Troubles, II., 418) says that Argyll did not leave “ane four futed beaste” in Abergeldie.

1644. Aug. 9.—Notwithstanding Nicolson’s petition and position Abergeldie was one of the castles that the Covenanters “be the sond of the trumpet” at the cross of Aberdeen ordered at this date to be razed. But the castle “standis still” (Spalding). In 1732, according to Sir Samuel Forbes, it was “ruinous”.

1644. Sept. 16.—Abergeldie and Donald Farquharson of Tulligarmont or Monaltrie (his brother-in-law) with several other distressit gentilmen join’d Montrose in Aberdeen and marched to Inverurie (Spalding’s Troubles, II., 413).

1644. Nov.—Abergeldie was one of those regarding whom the Estates ordered the authorities to “mell with the papistis rentis” in order to recompense Forbes of Echt (Spalding’s Troubles, II., 433).

1645. Feb.—Abergeldie joined Montrose in his expedition to Lochness (Spalding’s Troubles, II., 443).

The seventh laird, who died in 1655, married (contract 8 (12) May, 1624) Katherin, sister of Thomas Nicolson, advocate, Edinburgh, the ancestor of the Nicolsons of Glenbervie. They had :—

1. ALEXANDER, VIII. of Abergeldie.

2. JEAN.

3. ANNA, married Cruickshank of Tillymorgan. In 1689 she is described as a widow, and at the same date she and her sister Jean are stated to have been granted a pension (Calendar of Domestic State Papers). The dates suggest that they were the daughters of the 7th laird. Mr. Michie (Records of Invercauld, pp. 239, 260) says that William Farquharson of Inverey married as his second wife Ann Gordon, “daughter of Abergeldie”. She brought Balmoral to the Farquharson family.

ALEXANDER GORDON, VIII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of VII.)

The eighth laird was involved in the feud which arose between John Gordon of Braickley and the Farquharsons of Inverey in September, 1666 (Macfarlane's Genealogical Collections, vol. i., pp. 377-380). In the course of the quarrel Braickley and his brother William and James Gordon of Cults were killed. The affair is recounted in the well-known ballad on the Baron of Braickley.

It seems to have been during the life of the 8th laird that Abergeldie was garrisoned by General Mackay's troops. In 1689 Mackay set out to arrest Viscount Dundee, who escaped to Glen Ogilvie and thence to Braemar, where he was protected by Colonel John Farquharson of Invereye (the notorious "Black Colonel"). As Invereye House was very small, Dundee transferred himself to the stronghold of Abergeldie and from there directed the insurrection. Mackay burned the country for twelve miles round Abergeldie, destroying 1,400 houses. He burned Invereye and then descended on Abergeldie, which was held by 72 of his soldiers in 1689. David Guthrie, of Castletoun, minister of Glenmuick, preached to the garrison on Nov. 3, 1689 (Gideon Guthrie, 1900, p. 38).

The record of Privy Seal, as quoted in Amelia MacGregor's History of the Clan Gregor, notes under August 13, 1685: "Eschait Liferent of Alexander Gordon of Aberzeldie, James McGregor, in Glencallater, James McGreigar ther Alexander McGrigar ther James McGrigar ther given to Charles, Earl of Marr, — fferquharson of Invercald and — McIntosh, Lady Invercald, his mother". The Particular Register of Sasines for Aberdeenshire notes (vol. xiii., p. 279) that in February 16, 1689, there was recorded "Sasine to Allaster Mcgrigor, sometime in Balnacroft, now in Tornawarran, on heritable bond by Alexander Gordon of Aberzeldie, under reversion of 1,000 merks in the lands of Tornawarran. Witnesses Gregor McGregor in Belno, Robert and John McGregors, sons to John McGregor, Portioner of Wester Micrae." The record of justiciary as noted in Amelia MacGregor's History of the Clan Gregor (vol. ii., p. 14) notes that on June 13, 1692, Malcolm McGregor of Ballater and Alexander McGregor, sometime in Clachenturne, now in Tilliechurder, were charged along with Gordon of Abergeldie, at the instance of Robert Steuart of Innerchat with burning his house.

The eighth laird married Euphemia Graham, daughter of Robert Graham, the laird of Morphie. She was alive in 1696 (Poll Book). They had:—

1. JOHN, IX. of Abergeldie.
2. RACHEL, X. of Abergeldie.

JOHN GORDON, IX. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of VIII.: died 1698.)

He married Elizabeth, daughter of (the late) Hugh Rose, XIV. of Kilravock. The marriage contract, which is dated Dec. 11, 1694, is witnessed at Kilravock by Sir Charles Ramsay of Balmain, Alexander Rose of Clova, Hugh Rose of Broadly, Captain Charles Gordon in Pitchaise, Mr. William Falconer, minister at Dyke; and Mr. David Guthrie of Castleton, minister of Glenmuick, Alexander Falconer in Kinstearie, and Henry Rose of Ardersier (Register of Sasines, Elgin, vol. v.). In the Family of Kilravock (page 385) she signs her "deed of destiny" as Betsy Rose, in what Cosmo Innes calls a "s. Roman hand". Her brother, Kilravock, "instantly makes payment of 7,000 merks in name of tocher. She is to be infett in 1,400 merks of yearly rent out of ye barony of Abergeldie, and to have the manor house of Abergeldie to live in if she becomes a widow during the life of Euphemia, Abergeldie's mother, and after Euphemia's death to have the house of Knock as a dowry house." The house of Knock was described by Mr. R. A. Profeit in Under Lochnagar. John Gordon died in 1698 without leaving issue and was succeeded by his sister Rachel. In 1696 the value of Abergeldie's property in Glenmuick was £430 out of the total of £1,122, and in Kincardine £140 (Poll Book).

RACHEL GORDON, X. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Daughter of VII.)

Rachel succeeded her brother John in 1698. She married (before July 5, 1698) Captain Charles Gordon of the Minmore family, which was a cadet of the Knockespoons and descended from "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue. Thus, though the direct male line of Gordon of Abergeldie was broken, the name was retained, for Abergeldie is one of the very few estates in Aberdeenshire which have been retained by the same family for so long a period as four centuries. The captain's descent runs as follows (Balbithan MS.):—

“Jock,” of Scurdargue, illegitimate cousin of Elizabeth Gordon, had a son, Alexander, of Essy, who had a son,
 John, I. of Buckie, who had a son,
 William, I. of Knockespock, who had a son,
 Alexander, II. of Knockespock, who had a son,
 Alexander, Burgess in Elgin, who had a natural son,
 William, of Minmore, who had a son,
 Peter, of Minmore, who married Janet Gordon of Cluny and had a son,
 Charles, married Rachel Gordon of Abergeldie.

Charles Gordon who, described as “in Pitchaise,” witnessed his brother-in-law’s marriage contract in 1694, signed a bond for the Earl of Aboyne insuring the peace of the country in 1700 (Allardyce’s Jacobite Papers, p. 21), and he was made a Commissioner of Supply in 1704 (Acts of Parliament). He built the house of Birkhall in 1715. He had:—

- (1) PETER, XI. of Abergeldie.
- (2) ALEXANDER. He was at the Grammar School and at Marischal College 1706-1710, and was an advocate and merchant in Aberdeen. An Alexander Gordon, who had served his apprenticeship with Alexander Thomson, was admitted a member of the Aberdeen Society of Advocates, June 4, 1718. One of his servants, Charles Davidson, was imprisoned at Aberdeen for taking part in the rebellion of 1745 (Allardyce’s Jacobite Papers, p. 237). He acted as tutor and guardian to his nephew Charles, XII. of Abergeldie. He is apparently the Alexander Gordon in Aldihash, Glenmuick, “sometime merchant in Aberdeen,” who died Nov., 1751, Charles Gordon of Abergeldie being his executor dative qua creditor. Charles had paid £165 13s. 4d. for his grave linen, coffin and funeral expenses; £36 to a physician “for his pains and trouble” in coming about 18 miles and attending the defunct during his sickness whereof he died; together with other sums paid to John Watt, Charles Stewart, James Glass, James Mackandrew, Thomas Ogilvy and others. The inventory contains the sum of £225 8s. Scots, as the value of the defunct’s household furniture, cow, calf, an old horse and other effects, roup’d on Dec. 24, 1751, by Samuel Gordon in Miltown of Braickley and Charles Farquharson in Drumnapark, Joseph Gordon in Birkhall being judge of the roup (Aberdeen Commissariat Testaments).
- (3) JOSEPH, in Birkhall, was cautioner for his brother Peter’s widow, as executrix to Peter’s will, Nov. 29, 1735 (he was alive Dec., 1751). I think it was his wife who sheltered the Oliphants of Gask when the latter were in hiding after Culloden. Old Gask, Laurence, 6th laird, lived in the moors near Birkhall for six months under the name of “Mr. Whytt,” while his son, the 7th laird, took the name of “Mr. Brown,” and this disguise they kept up for 20 years. Gask landed at Maisterland, Sweden, on Nov. 10, 1746. His escape was planned by Mrs. (Eliza) Gordon of Birkhall as described here in a letter to Gask’s wife as follows (see the Oliphants of Gask):—

Madam—The bearer, John Glass, tould me you asked him for a mare I should have of Gasks. When I had the honour of seeing him first, he had a big brown mare. He desired me either to sett her att liberty in the hills, or send her to any place I thought she was safe in. Andrew Forbes, younger of Balfour, came here two days after I gott that mare. He took her along with him and put her into Parks in the Mearns. One Baillie Arbuthnott att Edinburgh proved the mare to be hiss. Your nephew the Master of Strawthallan knew all the story and seed the threatening letters I gott about her. My nephew Abergeldie when he has the honour of seeing your ladyship will inform you likewise. Andrew Forbes sent me an account from the time off Culloden to August for keeping the mare in Parks, which account I have not paid nor do I desire to pay, because I think it reasonable the gentleman who has the nag ought (to) pay that himself. If you please to inform yourself concerning the mare, you will find all to be Truth I have wrote you. All I have belonging your husband is a silver snuff box, which he oblidged me to take as a memorandum off him. Whenever you please to call for it, I have it ready. No doubt there might have been some small things lost, as I was oblidged to remove them oft times from place to place. If it pleases God to send Gask to his Native Country, he will do me the justice and honour to acknowledge me one of his friends. His watch which I caused mend, he sent an express for it two days before he left Glenesk. I seed a letter from a gentleman, written from Gottenborg, who writes me Mr. White and Mr. Brown is in very good health. I trust in Almighty God you’ll have the pleasure off seeing them in triumph soon, and I am with regard and esteem humble servt.

ELIZA GORDON.

PETER GORDON, XI. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of X. : died 1733.)

He entered Marischal College in 1706. He was three times married, (1) to Margaret, daughter of Peter Strahan, Edinburgh ; (2) to Elizabeth, daughter of Lord Gray ; (3) to Margaret, daughter of Sir George Foulis of Dunipace, and sister of Sir Archibald Foulis, who assumed the name of Primrose and was executed as a Jacobite at Carlisle at the same time as the laird of Terpersie, Nov. 5, 1746. Peter Gordon died in Sept., 1733, and left his widow as his executrix. According to his will, which was confirmed Nov. 29, 1735, with his brother Joseph Gordon in Birkhall as cautioner, there was owing to the laird the following sums:—

£775 3s. 4d. Scots, the value of his "sheep, some kine and young store" which were roup'd, with Thomas Gordon, portioner of Crathienaird, and John Gordon, his son, as judges.

£475 12s. Scots, the estimated value of his riding horses, plough oxen and some young store on the Mains of Abergeldie.

£250 15s. Scots, "as the amount of the whole produce of the Mains of Abergeldie in Peter Gordon's own hand, cropt 1733, that cropt being for the most part bad or wrong in the High Country; and to which the sums last mentioned, the said rideing horses, oxen, and grain, etc., were appretiate by John Bowman in Gowindargue and John Gordon in Balmorall".

The Bond of Caution by Joseph Gordon, dated Abergeldie, Nov. 22, 1735, and written by John Gordon, the eldest son of Thomas Gordon, portioner of Crathienaird, is witnessed by Alexander Gordon, Abergeldie, merchant, Aberdeen. The following entries in the Aberdeen Inventories also refer to the will:—

1737. March 24.—Peter's widow, who had by this time married Harry Lumsden of Cushnie, appeared before the Commissary of Aberdeen, and reported that she had added, eiked and conjoined to the sums of money formerly given up the sum of £149 2s. 6d. received by her for wood sold since the last confirmation. David Lumsden, eldest son to the late Charles Lumsden of Harlaw, was her cautioner.

1740. March 1.—She accounts for £9 stg. as the price received by her for a "yellow horse," which had belonged to Abergeldie.

As stated, Peter's widow, Margaret Foulis, married Harry Lumsden of Cushnie, as her second husband. Peter Gordon had the following children, by which wife I cannot say:—

1. CHARLES, XII. of Abergeldie.
2. JANET, died unmarried at Edinburgh, Feb. 14, 1811, aged 87 (Scots Mag.).
3. RACHEL, died unmarried.
4. EUPHEMIA, married in or before 1752 James, 5th Viscount Strathallan, whose father had been killed at Culloden. Her husband held the peerage for four days, April 14-18, 1746, when it was forfeited. He died 1765, and she on July 5, 1796. They had:—
 - (1) James Drummond (de jure), 6th Viscount Strathallan. He was an officer in the navy, and died unmarried 1775.
 - (2) Andrew John Drummond (de jure), 7th Viscount Strathallan; a general in the army. His petition for the restoration of the peerage honours was rejected by the House of Lords 1790; and, as he died unmarried, the Abergeldie strain in the Drummonds died out. The family honours were restored in 1824, to his cousin, the great-grandfather of the present Viscount Strathallan, who was born in 1871, and is heir-presumptive to the Earldom of Perth.

5. JEAN, died unmarried (Burke's Landed Gentry, 1898).
6. BARBARA (daughter by the second wife), married David Hunter of Burnside.

CHARLES GORDON, XII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of XI. : died 1796.)

He was born in 1724 (Scots Mag.). He was served heir to his father in 1737 and to his grandfather Charles in 1760. He entered Marischal College in 1739. The principal improvements on Abergeldie Castle were made by him. He voted in 1786 for Skene of Skene in the Parliamentary contest against Ferguson of Pitfour.

He married (contract Oct. 6, 1750) his cousin Alison, daughter of David Hunter of Burnside "and widow of one Paterson". "They lived together," says their tombstone in Glenmuick churchyard, "nearly half a century in this part of Deeside, the best of parents, giving a good example in every way and serving to the utmost of their power all who stood in need."

The 12th laird died at Birkhall, March 19, 1796, aged 72 (Scots Mag.), and his wife died in March, 1800. He left his eldest son Peter his executor under date Feb. 8, 1783. From the will (Aberdeen Inventories in the Register House) it appears that he had acquired since his marriage in 1750 the following lands:—

From James Farquharson of Invercauld.—The Town and Lands of Toldow, Tombrack, and Altveit, in Glenmuick in excambion for the lands of Dilliefour and Broghdow and the Glen of Glencallater in Braemar and Glenmuick.

From Charles, Earl of Aboyne.—The Forest of White Mounth and the Haugh of Achallie, commonly called the Haugh of Dalmullachie, in Glenmuick.

All these lands, together with Abergeldie, he left to his eldest son Peter. To his other sons, he left 100 merks Scots each, to be paid out of the sums and subjects conquest and acquired by him during his marriage. His daughter Margaret (Mrs. Skene) was excluded as she had already got her marriage portion. There were owing to him at the time of his death the following sums:—

£14 15s. stg. and interest thereof, since due, contained in a bill dated May 20, 1794, drawn by James Gordon, then in Spittal of Glenmuick, now in Tombrack, upon and accepted by John Thow in Haugh and John Donaldson in Lochside.

£1 5s. stg. as the expense of raising and executing horning at the defunct's instance against the said John Thow and John Donaldson, on the foresaid bill.

The 12th laird had the following children :—

1. PETER, XIII. of Abergeldie.
2. DAVID (3rd son), XIV. of Abergeldie.
3. CHARLES (2nd son), born 1756. He assisted in raising the 71st Fraser Highlanders formed at Glasgow during the early part of the American War by Lt.-Gen. the Master of Lovat, and got a lieutenancy in the regiment in April, 1776. He went with it to America and got a company in the 26th Cameronians on Jan. 8, 1778. When the Cameronians arrived home in a skeleton state in February, 1780, he became regimental major and obtained a brevet lieut.-colonelcy in April, 1783. In 1787, when French intrigues led to the invasion of Holland by the Prussians under the Duke of Brunswick (for according to the Gent.'s Mag. he possessed a "perfect acquaintance with the topography of Holland" and spoke several continental languages), Gordon accompanied the Duke, and planned the capture of Amstelveen, which was the key of the defences of Amsterdam. As an attack in front was impossible the Duke determined to take the enemy in the rear. Thomas Bowdler in Letters written in Holland says that, to determine if this was possible, Gordon, "who had acted as a volunteer throughout the expedition, was directed to proceed in a boat along the Harlem Meer and make as accurate a survey as possible of the ground behind Amstelveen. This dangerous but important service was executed with courage, ability and success, and our countryman passed several of the enemy's batteries. He proceeded along the Harlem Meer to the further part of it where the lake terminates in a long narrow tongue, which is called the Nieuve Meer. He examined the situation of the ground near the water and returned in safety to the Duke, making his report that the enterprise though difficult was not impracticable. The Duke immediately resolved to undertake it, and a detachment of between 600 and 700 men embarked in float-boats at the valley of Aalsmeer. The troops were ordered to proceed along the Harlem Meer to endeavour to land and gain the high road between Amsterdam and Amstelveen, and then by attacking the post in the rear to make way for the entrance of the Duke's army. As this object was of the greatest importance, the Duke for fear the detachment which crossed the lake should not be successful ordered two companies to endeavour, under cover of the night, to proceed along a footpath by the edge of the water, and in like manner to get the road at the back of Amstelveen. The charge of the embarkation was committed to the same British officer [Gordon]. Under his direction the whole was conducted in such a manner that not one boat was upset, nor one man lost either in embarking or landing the soldiers [at Leile]. After the troops landed they were forwarded under the command of a Prussian officer." Gordon seems to have been recalled to England and made lieutenant-colonel of the 41st Regiment which had till then been a corps of invalids. "Viator A," who had investigated Gordon's career, writing to the Gentleman's Magazine (vol. lx., p. 1066), speaks of Gordon's "intrepidity, activity and military knowledge". He adds: "Upon the probability of war between the Houses of Austria and Brandenburg, he joined the Prussian army in Silesia in the course of last spring [1780], and from the great estimation in which he was held by the chief personages, there it is probable he would have been conspicuously employed there had a rupture actually taken place. Sensible of the services rendered in Holland by Colonel Gordon, and highly pleased with his intelligence and activity, the King of Prussia not only treated him with every mark of flattering attention, but invested him with the [Prussian] Order of [Military] Merit [which like all foreign Orders, until 1814, carried knighthood with it in England. He got permission to wear it in England, Aug. 3, 1790. Up to 1793 he was the only foreigner on whom this decoration had ever been conferred.] The King of Prussia also I believe gave him the strongest letters of recommendation to the Sovereign of this country. When Colonel Gordon passed through Saxony a short time since upon his return to England, I heard the highest praise bestowed on him by the first military characters in the Electoral service. At Brunswick I heard him mentioned with the greatest esteem and commendation by the most illustrious personages at the Court, and the reigning Duke of Brunswick gave him letters for this country full of approbations and esteem." A letter from Gordon to the Duke of Leeds, dated Dresden, April 3, 1790, says the Duke of Brunswick wished him for his A.D.C., and the Dictionary of National Biography says that Gordon "appears to have gone through the campaign of 1791-2 as British Military Commissioner". In 1793 a large expedition (4,891 strong) went to the West Indies under Sir Charles Grey (1st Earl) and Admiral Jervis. Gordon was one of the three brigadiers (pending the arrival of the Duke of Kent) who commanded the attack on Cas de Navire, at the attack on Martinique, and was thanked in general orders (see Rev. Cooper Wilyams' Account of the campaign, 1796). He was employed at the capture of St. Lucia and was made governor of the island. Difficulties and disputes as to prize rights in property in the captured islands led to the most unfounded charges of confiscation and extortion against the sea and land commanders of the expedition. Against Gordon like accusations proved either better founded or more successful. Formal complaints were made against him, in his capacity of governor of St. Lucia, of extortion and taking bribes from disaffected persons to allow them to remain in the island and afterwards breaking faith with them. Gordon was court-martialled and sentenced to refund the money and be cashiered. In consequence of his past services and circumstances disclosed at the court-martial he was allowed to receive the value of his commissions; for the sentence of cashiering was confirmed neither by the authorities in the West Indies or at home. He survived his dismissal more than forty years. He appears to have been in Holland in 1803 and in communication with the home authorities just after the Peace of Amiens. He died in Ely Place, London, 26th March, 1835, aged 79. According to Mr. Hugh Gordon, the 17th laird of Abergeldie, Sir Charles, was constantly employed by the Foreign Office in various capacities on the Continent from 1799 to 1815. "I well recollect him visiting at my father's house at Blackheath, when I was a boy, as a fine, upright old gentleman, and I have a good portrait of him painted some years earlier."

4. ADAM, of Denmark Hill, London, was born in 1758. He and his brother David, who married sisters, were members of the firm of Gordon & Biddulph, iron manufacturers, engineers and shipbuilders. Mr. John Biddulph, their partner and brother-in-law, was also a partner in the banking firm at Charing Cross, now Cocks, Biddulph & Co. The Biddulphs are an old family, who settled at Ledbury in Hereford in the 17th century. One of them was married to the sister of Major-General Shrapnel, the inventor of shrapnel shell (1793). Adam Gordon married Penelope, the daughter of Michael Biddulph. He died on the 28th May, 1800, leaving an only son:—

WILLIAM, of Haffield, Hereford, born Dec. 8, 1794. He matriculated at Brasenose College, Oxford, in 1812 (Foster). He was High Sheriff in 1829. He married, at St. George's, Bloomsbury, Dec. 21, 1820, Mary, eldest daughter of William Wingfield, a Master in Chancery, by Lady Charlotte Digby (Burke's Commoners). Besides two daughters, Charlotte Florence and Caroline Anne, he had a son:—

REV. EDWARD WILLIAM, born May, 1828. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, 1847-1851; M.A. 1854; and was called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn 1860 (Foster). He married, at Florence, on May 5, 1855, Mathilde Henriette Adelaide Heloise, daughter of Baron de Hagermann, and died April 29, 1879, leaving issue:—

- (i.) ARTHUR MICHAEL WINGFIELD, born May 11, 1859.
 - (ii.) HERBERT EDWARD, born March 4, 1862.
 - (iii.) CLARA GEORGINA MARY, born Dec. 26, 1856.
 - (iv.) EDITH LUCY, born Oct. 23, 1860.
 - (v.) ALICE EMILY, married Arthur Midgley Kettlewell.
5. WILLIAM. He was born in 1765 and was a tertian and magistrand at Marischal College, 1778-80. Then he entered the 60th Regiment, now the King's Royal Rifles. He was captured (Oct. 19, 1781) at the siege of Yorktown, Virginia, where he commanded the light infantry company of the 71st Regiment (Michie's Records of Invercauld, p. 184). In recording his death at Dominica on July 6, 1793, in the 28th year of his age, the Scots Magazine says: "It was owing to Major Gordon's gallant conduct at the head of the storming party composed of a small column of light infantry, who dashed into the enemy's walls and forced the commandant to surrender at discretion, that the island of Tobago was captured. [The 17th laird of Abergeldie possesses several letters by him dealing with Tobago, copies of resolutions in praise of him passed by the Council of the island. The silver vase, which was presented to his father in his memory, is still preserved as an heirloom in the family.] For during the event, Brigadier-General Ayler, who commanded the main body of the troops, had been obliged to fall back and knew not that the fort had been taken till the fact was announced by the firing of the morning gun and the hoisting of the British colours by Major Gordon. When the attack on the island of Martinique was afterwards determined on, Major Gordon was appointed to the command of the light infantry companies of all the regiments in the Leeward Islands, in which important situation he evinced the same intrepid spirit. And at the landing of the troops on that expedition he pushed forward and penetrated upwards of six miles into the island under every possible disadvantage, exposed to a heavy fire from the enemy, almost incessant rain succeeding scorching sun, and during forty hours under arms, without a morsel to eat or any other covering but the heavens. The House of Assembly at Barbadoes, in which island Major Gordon had commanded the battalion many months, voted to him in June last [1793] an elegant sword as a token of their respect and expression of their approbation of the uniform regularity and good conduct of his troops. And the inhabitants in general testified their regard to him by stocking with every kind of refreshment the man-of-war on which he embarked against Martinique, where his gallant and soldier-like conduct in repulsing an attack of the enemy was so peculiarly distinguished that the Commander-in-Chief returned particular thanks in public orders."

6. ALEXANDER SINCLAIR, d. s.p. June 30, 1837, aged 77. He was adjutant to the London and Westminster Volunteers. The Abergeldie family possess an oil portrait of him on horseback, with drawn sword, in the uniform of the regiment (Scottish Notes and Queries, 2nd series, i., 95).

7. JOHN, died young.

8. MARGARET, married Oct. 26, 1769, Dr. George Skene, physician in Aberdeen, VI. of Dumbreck. He was made Professor of Natural Philosophy in Marischal College at the age of 19. Mrs. Rodger (Aberdeen Doctors, p. 68) says a portrait of his wife "shows a lady of keen Aberdeenshire features in a mob cap and ribbons". Dr. Skene died suddenly March 25, 1803, aged 61: his wife died Jan. 16, 1802, aged 51. He had five sons and six daughters (Anderson's Fasti Academiae Mariscallanae, ii., 46). His fourth son, ANDREW SKENE, became Solicitor-General for Scotland (Skene's Skenes, pp. 73-4).

PETER GORDON, XIII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of XII. : died 1819.)

He was born in 1751 and entered Marischal College in 1762. He was one of the assessors to the Lord Rector in 1804 (Fasti Acad. Marisc., vol. ii., p. 19). Mr. Michie (Under Lochnagar) says he was captain in the 81st Regiment, which was raised by Colonel William Gordon, brother of the Earl of Aberdeen, and disbanded in 1783. In Deeside Tales Mr. Michie says he was a lieutenant in the Gordon Highlanders, and was instructed to get recruits for the new regiment (1794). The Peter Gordon, however, who was a lieutenant of the Gordons at that date is stated in Gardyne's Gordon Highlanders (p. 20) to have died in 1806.

It was in his time that Keith wrote (Agriculture of Aberdeenshire, 1811)—

Abergeldie abounds in so many natural beauties as are seldom to be met with in one place; and it is at least doubtful whether the present venerable mansion would not in this Highland district be preferred by a person of taste and sensibility to a modern house of the most correct architecture.

He married (1) Mary, daughter of John Forbes of Blackford (Landed Gentry, 1898), and (2) at Glenkindy in April, 1803 (Scots Mag.), Elizabeth Ann, second daughter of Alexander Leith of Freefield (by Mary Elizabeth, daughter of James Gordon of Cobairdy). Her brother, Sir

Alexander Leith, the "Knycht of Glenkindie," was a notable soldier. His second wife died without issue at Palmer's Cross, Morayshire, Oct., 1855, and was buried in Elgin Cathedral (Descendants of James Young, p. xvi.). It was probably in honour of one of the thirteenth laird's wives that Robert Petrie (1767-1828), the famous Strathardle fiddler, composed the air known as "Mrs. Gordon of Abergeldie," to which Mr. W. M'Combie Smith has written a ballad called "A' for Love". It may be noted that Burns's song, "The Birks of Aberfeldy," was founded on an earlier song in which Abergeldie was the place mentioned.

The thirteenth laird died at Aberdeen on Dec. 6, 1819, aged 68 (Scots Mag.), and was buried in Glenmuick Churchyard, and was succeeded by his brother David, for his only daughter (by his first wife), KATHERINE, died at her uncle's house, Dulwich Hill, Camberwell, January 26, 1802, in her 18th year (Scots Mag.).

DAVID GORDON, XIV. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Younger Son of XII. : died 1831.)

Born in 1753, he is probably the David Gordon who was at Marischal College 1768-72. He began his career in the army, for he was captured at the siege of Yorktown, Virginia, Oct. 19, 1781, along with his brother William (Michie's Records of Invercauld, p. 184). He was back at Birkhall by Aug. 24, 1782 (p. 191). He was, as stated, a member with his brother Adam of the firm of Gordon & Biddulph. He married June 15, 1789, his brother's wife's sister Anne, daughter of Michael Biddulph of Ledbury. Mr. Michie says that it was in his time that there arose a complication of march interests between the estates of Abergeldie and Birkhall which was finally settled in the law courts in an action by the late laird Mr. Hugh Mackay Gordon and King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales. The Laird of Abergeldie lost his case. David Gordon was served heir to his brother Peter on Feb. 28, 1820 (Services of Heirs). He died Oct. 22, 1831, aged 78. Mr. A. I. McConnochie states (The Royal Dee, p. 77) that the last occasion on which we have mention of birch wine being produced at Abergeldie was at the funeral of this laird. In 1810 the author of The Scenery of the Grampian Mountains got some of the "excellent birch wine" from the thirteenth laird, and it seemed to him to be "superior to the finest champagne". David Gordon's wife died Feb. 26, 1841. He had four sons and three daughters. I may say that all these later descents are taken from the article in Burke's Landed Gentry (1898), which was specially corrected by the late Mr. Hugh Mackay Gordon :—

1. CHARLES DAVID, born October 30, 1790. He was at Harrow with Lord Byron, with whom he was a great favourite. Letters from Byron to him (dated Aug. 4 and 14, 1805) are printed in Mr. Prothero's Byron. In the latter Byron says :—

Believe me, my dearest Charles, no letter from you can ever be unenterprising or dull, at least to me. On the contrary, they will always be productive of the highest pleasure as often as you think proper to gratify.

Byron once visited him at Abergeldie. He married, April 22, 1819, Marian, eldest daughter of Robert Phillips of Longworth, Hereford (by a daughter of Michael Biddulph of Ledbury). He died Nov. 24, 1826, leaving four daughters :—

- (1) ANNA MARIA, married in 1871 Count von Schmisning Kersebrock, and died May, 1889. She had the superiority rights over Birkhall. They were bought up by the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII.
 (2) KATHERINE FRANCES, married in 1842 Duncan Davidson of Tillychetly, Aberdeenshire, and died Feb., 1868. She had an only son :—

Henry Oliver Duncan Davidson of Tillychetly (born 1856), who is an assistant master at Harrow School. He is married and has issue.

- (3) ISABELLA MARGARET, married (1) in 1854 Anthony Gibbs of Merry Hill, Herts, brother of the 1st Baron Aldenham, and (2) in 1866 R. H. Lee Warner of Tyberton Court, Hereford. She died March 15, 1895.

- (4) EMILIA LUCY.

2. MICHAEL FRANCIS, XV. of Abergeldie.

3. ROBERT, XVI. of Abergeldie.

4. ADAM, born March 30, 1801. He married at Topsham Church, Devon, Nov. 8, 1825, Susan, sixth daughter of Rev. John Swete of Oxton House, Devon, and lived at Blackheath near Charlton, Kent. He died Jan. 14, 1839. She died March 21, 1861, leaving seven sons and a daughter.

(1) HUGH MACKAY, XVII. of Abergeldie.

(2) LEWIS, XVIII. of Abergeldie.

(3) CHARLES VINCENT, Colonel, Madras Corps, born Dec. 2, 1829. He went through the whole of the Mutiny. He married (1) June 15, 1854, Emma Morgan (died 1859), second daughter of Charles Godwin, and (2) in 1866 Frances Edith, eldest daughter of George Olliver of Kingston,

Sussex. He died June 6, 1897, having had two sons by his first wife and the rest of his children by his second:—

- i. COSMO HUNTLY, born June 13, 1855. Major in the Buffs (East Kent Regiment). He went through the Zulu War. He married, Oct. 19, 1892, Ida Mary, daughter of Captain O. W. Ford, late Bengal Army.
 - ii. ROBERT FRANCIS, born Aug. 24, 1856; died May 30, 1861.
 - iii. CHARLES GERALD, born Oct. 15, 1868; Captain Steinaecker's Horse in the South African War, 1900-1.
 - iv. GEOFFREY SETON, born Nov. 2, 1880; Lieut. East Yorkshire Regiment (gazetted May 26, 1900).
 - v. JOHN EDMUND, born June 9, 1887.
 - vi. FLORENCE.
 - vii. HELEN BLANCHE.
 - viii. CONSTANCE EVELYN.
- (4) REV. ADAM STEPHENSON, was born on Nov. 27, 1831, and was educated at Oriel College, Oxford, 1850-1854; M.A. 1856. He was curate of Chelsfield, 1855-69. He lives at the Villa Gourdon, Cannes. He married Aug. 11, 1869, Julia Isabella, daughter of Rev. I. W. Baugh, rector of Ripple, Worcester. She died Feb. 9, 1892.
- (5) DUNDAS WILLIAM, born March 24, 1833. He entered the Bengal Artillery, and was killed at Lucknow on Jan. 8, 1858.
- (6) COSMO, born Nov. 2, 1837; Major, Madras Staff Corps, died July 19, 1878.
- (7) JAMES HENRY, C.B., D.S.O., born Jan. 25, 1839. He entered the service of the East India Company and was attached to the 46th Madras Native Infantry in 1857, and entered the Madras Staff Corps in 1869. He became Colonel in 1883, and served in the Burmese War, 1885-6. He was granted the D.S.O. in 1887 and created C.B. in 1893. He married, Jan. 28, 1869, Arabella, 2nd daughter of the late Charles Hewit Sams of Lee, Kent (his brother Hugh, the late laird of Abergeldie, married her elder sister), and has—
- i. CHARLES CECIL, Captain, Royal Scots, born Sept., 1871; died April, 1899.
 - ii. GEORGE HAMILTON, Captain, Royal Engineers, born March 29, 1875.
 - iii. LUCY, married 1889, Lieut.-Col. Willoughby Verner Constable, R.E.
 - iv. JULIA MARGARET ARABELLA.
- (8) ANNE CECILIA GORDON.

5. ANNE PENELOPE, died 1868.
6. HARRIET MARGARET, died 1865.
7. MARY ANNE, married, May 6, 1824, Rev. William Swete, brother of the wives of her brothers Adam and Michael, and died 1859.

MICHAEL FRANCIS GORDON, XV. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Son of XIV. : died 1860.)

He was born April 21, 1792, and married, at Kenton, Devonshire, on Aug. 31, 1820, Caroline, fifth daughter of Rev. John Swete of Oxton House, Devon. His brother Adam married her younger sister, while his sister Mary Anne married the latter's brother. The fifteenth laird died Dec. 31, 1860, and was succeeded by his brother, Admiral Gordon, for his sons predeceased him. He had:—

1. FRANCIS DAVID, born July 24, 1821. Was a law student at Edinburgh, 1839-40. He was killed at Jhansi in 1857 during the Mutiny.
2. JOHN HENRY, born Jan. 7, 1824; died April 20, 1848.
3. MICHAEL LAWRENCE, born Sept. 3, 1833; died Oct. 27, 1850.
4. WILLIAM HERBERT, born May 29, 1840; died Dec. 6, 1850.
5. CAROLINE ANN, married, 1854, E. P. St Aubyn, Lt.-Col. Madras Army, and has issue.
6. MARGARET, married Rev. F. Cardew and has issue.
7. BERTHA, married at Gettisham, Devon, on October 4, 1855, Charles Gordon, a doctor at Pernambuco, Brazil, where she died Dec. 4, 1857. Dr. Gordon, who is the son of James Gordon, Ballater, was a bajan and magistrand at Marischal College, 1846-48. He took the M.D. of King's College, 1850. From Pernambuco he went to Pietermaritzburg, Natal, where he and his brother were living in Feb., 1900. He married again. He had two daughters by his first wife:—
 - (1) MARGARET ALICE, died at Algiers, March 23, 1883.
 - (2) BERTHA, died at Bath, Jan., 1872.
 - (3) CHARLES AUSTIN, the son by the second wife, was educated at Oxford and became a mining engineer. When the Boer War broke out in 1899 he joined the Imperial Light Horse, and was present at Elandslaagte, being afterwards besieged in Ladysmith. On Dec. 17, 1900, he was accidentally wounded at Johannesburg, and lost his left leg.

ROBERT GORDON, XVI. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Brother of XV. : died 1869.)

Robert Gordon was born Sept. 7, 1796. He entered the Navy, May 24, 1810, as a second class volunteer on board H.M.S. Phœbe (44 guns). In this vessel—subsequently to the reduction of the Isle of France—he contributed (May 20, 1811), while cruising off Madagascar in company with H.M.S. Astrea, Galatea and Racehorse, to the capture, after a long and trying action with the French, of three 40-gun frigates. The Phœbe had seven men killed and twenty-four wounded. On May 25, five days later, he was present at the surrender of the Néréide and of the settlement of Tamatave, and in the following summer he co-operated in the conquest of Java. Becoming a midshipman (Jan., 1813) on H.M.S. Centaur, he cruised in the North Sea and Channel, and was transferred (Jan., 1814) to H.M.S. Tonnant bearing the successive flags on the North American and Cork stations of Sir Alexander Cochrane and Sir Benjamin Hallowell, under the former of whom he took part in many operations against the Americans, and was present at the attack on New Orleans. On July, 1816, he was transferred to H.M.S. Queen Charlotte, the flagship of Lord Exmouth, who invested him with the rank of Acting Lieutenant, thus enabling Gordon to share in that capacity in the bombardment of Algiers, Aug. 27, 1816. He subsequently served on H.M.S. Iphigenia (at Jamaica), Ontario and Confiance, Herald and Pearl (on the West India Station). This last vessel was put out of commission in Dec., 1834, and by 1849 he had not been employed again. He attained post rank 1857 (O'Byrne's Naval Biographical Dictionary). He was sometime Deputy Master of the Corporation of Trinity House. He died s.p. Feb. 18, 1869, and was succeeded by his nephew.

HUGH MACKAY GORDON, XVII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Nephew of XVI. : died 1901.)

He was born on Sept. 24, 1826. Col. Munro, A.D.C. in Jersey to General Hugh Mackay Gordon, was his godfather. He was a retired

Lieut.-Col. and Hon. Col. of the 2nd Volunteer battalion of The Queen's Own (Royal West Kent) Regiment. On May 19, 1859, he married Susan Amelia, elder daughter of the late Charles Hewit Sams of Lee, Kent, whose younger daughter married his brother, Colonel J. H. Gordon, D.S.O., C.B. He died at the Courtyard, Eltham, at 10.30 A.M. on March 19, 1901, leaving no issue.

Mr. Gordon, who had a house and stayed during the summer months at Ballater, took a very great interest in the history of his family—he communicated with the present writer on a point of genealogy only six days before his death. He had resided in Eltham over thirty years, and took the keenest interest in the affairs of his parish and its neighbourhood. Indeed he was so closely connected with Eltham that the local paper, the Eltham Times, in a long obituary (March 22) made no mention of his having been laird of Abergeldie. The journal says:—

He was for twenty-five years a member of the Eltham Vestry, retaining his seat upon that body until its dissolution last year under the new London Local Government Act. It was an anomaly of the Local Government Act of 1894 that the formality of appointing a chairman at each meeting had to be respected. But Colonel Gordon, whenever present—and it was seldom he missed an attendance—was elected to the chair, and the kindness, courtesy and ability with which he presided over the deliberations of that sometimes turbulent body can only be properly appreciated by those who were privileged to sit under his presidency. Colonel Gordon was one of those who were strongly opposed to Eltham being included in the Woolwich Municipal Borough. He felt that Eltham, having more in common with Lee than with Woolwich, which comprised the area administered by the Lee Board of Works, should be itself created a Municipal Borough. But when it came to be officially decided that Eltham must be annexed to Woolwich, Colonel Gordon threw his whole heart into securing for the parish such representation upon the Borough Council as should make the new alliance, so far as Eltham was concerned, a success. Those who attended the inquiry held by the Commission under the London Government Act for the purpose of hearing evidence prior to the final adjustment of the proportion of representatives for the three parishes comprising the Woolwich Borough were struck with the force and pertinacity with which he, in his capacity as representing the parish, argued in favour of Eltham's representation being increased. Had his health permitted, there is no doubt that Colonel Gordon would have been Eltham's first Alderman upon the new Borough Council.

For many years Colonel Gordon was a churchwarden of the Parish Church, an office from which he retired in 1898. He was a trustee of all the Eltham charities, was treasurer of the Eltham National Schools since 1876, and formerly twenty years treasurer of the Eltham Cottage Hospital, until he resigned the appointments this (1900-1901) winter in consequence of failing health. To mark their appreciation of Colonel Gordon's great services to the Cottage Hospital, of which he was one of the founders, and largely instrumental in establishing the new hospital, the subscribers at the annual meeting a fortnight ago gave directions for a resolution of thanks to be engrossed on vellum and presented to him; and, anxious that he should not entirely sever himself from an institution which owed so much to his kindly interest, elected him president for the ensuing year. The managers of the Eltham National School, at their meeting on 6th March, when Colonel Gordon's resignation from the treasurership of the schools was before them, passed a resolution placing on record their great regret that he had found himself obliged to resign the office he had held for so many years. . . . Colonel Gordon was also, up to the time of his death, president of the Eltham Rose and Horticultural Society.

But Colonel Gordon did not confine his services entirely to the parish in which he had made his home. He was a Justice of the Peace for the counties of London and Kent, and there was no more regular attendant than he upon the judicial bench at Clerkenwell; he was also a familiar figure upon the magisterial bench at the Blackheath Petty Sessional Court. He was chairman and treasurer of the Greenwich Pier Company, a liveryman of the Goldsmith's Company, and a prominent and ardent freemason, as well as an honorary member of the Oddfellows. Colonel Gordon was a colonel of the West Kent Volunteers, from which he retired, with the long service medal, upon attaining the age limit. He was one of the original volunteers, joining the ranks of that useful arm of the Imperial forces when it was first established. All classes learned to love and respect him and the poor had no truer friend.

His estate was valued at £68,746 16s. 7d. gross, and £67,669 os. 11d. net. He bequeathed—

To the executors £500 for accumulation until the lease of Abergeldie Castle to trustees for Queen Victoria shall expire, and then to apply this sum to put in order the roads on the Abergeldie estate, many of which in his opinion had not been kept in proper order; and the trustees may also apply this fund in payment of the expenses of contesting the claim of the Duke of Fife to seats in the Parish Church of Crathie. He bequeathed also £2,000 in trust for accumulation until the expiration of the lease, and then, if it shall not be renewed, for the purchase of furniture for Abergeldie Castle and Abergeldie Mains or farmhouse, to devolve as heirlooms with Abergeldie, also the sword given to his great-uncle by the Westminster Light Horse Volunteers; and the vase of Dresden China flowers brought over by Sir Charles Gordon as a present for the Prince Regent. To his god-daughter, Arabella Sams, £500; to other children of Mr. J. S. Sams, £250 each; to his brother James Henry, £500; to his nephew Cosmo Huntly Gordon, £1,500; to his sister Anna Cecilia, £2,000; to his sister-in-law Mrs. Francis Edith Gordon, £100 and cottages at Preston, Sussex; to the children of his late brother Charles Vincent Gordon, other than Cosmo, £1,000; to the children of his brother James Henry, £1,000; to his brother Lewis Gordon, his wife, £1,000; and to the children of his brother Lewis, other than his eldest son, £1,000; to his cousin Margaret Cardew and her children, £200; and to Margaret Mabel Lennox, daughter of his partner, £100; and to his wife £1,000, the furniture of his house at Eltham, and the income of a sum of £30,000, which, subject to her life interest, is to be in trust—as to one-third for his brother James Henry and his children, as to one-third for his said sister Cecilia during her life, with power of appointment to her of £5,000, and as to the remainder of her share for his brother James Henry and his children; and as to the remaining one-third for his nephew Cosmo Huntly Gordon for life, and subject to his life interest, as to £5,000 as he may appoint and as to the remainder of his share for the other children of the testator's brother Charles Vincent; he devised the house which he had lately built at Ballater in trust for his wife during her life and subject to her life interest; for his brother James Henry during his life and subject to his life interest for his nephew Cosmo Huntly; and the effects at Ballater are to devolve as heirlooms therewith. Mr. Gordon left his residuary estate to his wife.

LEWIS GORDON, XVIII. OF ABERGELDIE.

(Brother of XVII.)

The present laird was born on Jan. 23, 1828. He married, July 17, 1862, Louisa Isabella, 4th daughter of William Lyall, and has—

1. REGINALD HUGH LYALL, born July 14, 1863. He is married and has one daughter, Gertrude Alice Margaret.
2. BERTRAM FULLER, born March 10, 1868; married Florence, 2nd daughter of Charles Lorking Rose; no issue. He is in business.
3. LEWIS MALCOLM, born May 13, 1873. He is 2nd officer in the P. and O. Company, and a sub-lieut. in the R.N.R.
4. KENNETH FRANCIS, born Feb. 2, 1877. He is curator bonis of his father.
5. WILLIAM MAURICE, born 1880. He is in business. He is serving (Nov., 1901) with a section of the London Scottish Volunteers who are attached to the Gordons in South Africa. I am indebted for this information about his brothers and sister to Mr. Kenneth Francis Gordon.

OTHER GORDONS IN THE ABERGELDIE COUNTRY.

Several Gordons in the district of Abergeldie are difficult to connect. Some of these may be connected with the Gordons of Knock or the house of Braichley. I simply print my notes on them for the use of other investigators.

Abergeldie.—Maidment in his Catalogues of Scottish Writers (p. 120) prints a manuscript (in Wodrow's hand) which states that "Mr. Alexander Gordon, a merchant in Aberdeen of the House of Abergeldie, wrote very many poems in the Scottish tongue which were very elegant and learned, for all his letters he wrote to his wife were poetical".

Jervise (Epitaphs, II., 164) says that a daughter of Abergeldie married a medical officer in India named Gordon, the son of a notorious poacher "Jamie" Gordon.

Mary (?) Gordon married Nathaniel (?) Morren.—Mrs. Harper, Aberdeen, tells the present writer that her ancestor Nathaniel (?) Morren married a Mary (?) Gordon of the Abergeldie family about 150 years ago. "This Morren returned from France or Belgium with one of the Gordons as secretary, valet, barber surgeon or in some other more or less menial capacity. He fell in love with one of the daughters, Mary Gordon. The family opposed the marriage, and the pair went off together, but were shortly after forgiven and received back to Abergeldie. A farm was bought for them, and they settled somewhere near Rayne (Barflet may have been the name). My grandmother, Harriet Morren, was the grand-daughter of this pair, and the Gordon Christian names remained in his family—George, Hugh, etc." I cannot trace this alliance.

Aucholzie.—The estate of Aucholzie, pronounced "Achwillie," is dealt with at length in Michie's Records of Invercauld (pp. 26-37), Aucholzie. The estate was long held by a family named Stewart, and on July 9, 1714, we have the marriage contract registered between Anna, daughter of Robert Garden of Corse, and Alexander, son of William Stewart of Aucholzie (Records of Invercauld, p. 28). The Earl of Aboyne ultimately became proprietor of the lands in consequence of the debts due to him by James Stewart. The lands passed in 1766 to the Farquharsons of Invercauld, and were finally sold to Sir James Mackenzie of Glenmuick. A family of Gordons occupied Aucholzie from about 1750 to 1875 (with the exception of the years 1815-17 when it was let). In 1875, when Aucholzie was sold to Mackenzie, the grazing was turned into a deer forest. The founder of the family, so far as I have been able to discover, was—

DONALD, who went to Aucholzie, about 1750, from Bridge of Lee, Glenesk. According to Mr. John Gordon, Cullisse, Nigg, he married — Small, Altonree, Glenmuick. Her sister Euphemia married Peter Gordon, in Ardmeanach, Glenmuick, who is now represented by Mr. D. Stewart Ramsay Gordon, Edinburgh. According to another account Donald Gordon married (possibly as his second wife) Elspet Taggart, a widow (she is described on the stone in Glenmuick Churchyard as Elspet Donald, probably her maiden name). She and her husband died in 1810, aged 80 (Jervise's Epitaphs, and information from Mr. William Gordon, Auchallater). Donald Gordon had—

i. JAMES, born 1757; married (1) about 1786 Ann Leys (died 1791), and (2) Ann Gordon (died 1827). James had—

(1) WILLIAM (by the first marriage), born 1788, died 1875. He married (1833) Helen Fletcher, and had—

i. JAMES, died young.

ii. WILLIAM, went in 1870 to Auchallater, where he still resides.

iii. JOHN, died young.

iv. ANNIE, married John Watson, and has a son and two daughters.

v. MARGET, married her cousin, James A. Gordon, Arabella, and died 1900.

(2) DONALD (by first marriage, died young).

(3) ALEXANDER (by second marriage), born Feb. 8, 1794. He married and had issue: now all dead.

(4) SAMUEL (by second marriage), born March 24, 1798. He went to Ross-shire in 1854. He married Helen Hunter of Polmood, Forfarshire, and had—

i. JAMES A. GORDON, of Arabella, Nigg, Ross-shire. He married his cousin, Marget Gordon (died 1900), and has four daughters, Annie, Elizabeth, Meta and Ada. (Information from Dr. J. Scott Riddell.)

ii. JOHN, at Cullisse. He married Jane Forbes Paterson. He has—

(i.) ALEXANDER PATERSON.

(ii.) SAMUEL HUNTER.

(iii.) ANNIE HUNTER.

(iv.) JANE GRINDLEY, married to Dr. John Scott Riddell, surgeon, Aberdeen.

(5) JANE, born Feb. 9, 1804.

Ardmeanach.—I am indebted to Mr. D. Stewart Ramsay Gordon, Edinburgh, for some details of this family. A John Gordon was tenant in Ardmeanach, Glenmuick, in 1696 (Poll Book). He may have been the father, or grandfather, of—

1. JOHN GORDON, born at Ardmeanach about 1720. Mr. D. S. R. Gordon says that tradition assigns the origin of the Ardmeanach Gordons to the family of Knock, and an old aunt of his, Margaret Stewart, “said her mother prided herself on belonging to the Gordons of Braichlie”. Mr. Gordon also tells me that his family claims kin with some Gordons in Lethnot, Forfarshire. To return to John, born about 1720, he married in 1752 ——— Watt, and had—

(1) PETER, married Euphemia Small, Altonree, Glenmuick, whose sister married Donald Gordon, Aucholzie. As a marriage present Peter got a punch bowl from the laird of Abergeldie. It is now in the possession of Mr. D. S. R. Gordon. Euphemia Small lived to be nearly a hundred years of age. Peter had—

i. SAMUEL (the youngest of the family), born at Upper Aucholzie, July, 1797. He married in 1832 Mary Ramsay, of Newbigging, Forfarshire (descended from William Forbes VI. of Newe). He went to Bellamore in 1805, and died there at the age of 88. He owned Woodside, near Brechin. He had—

(i.) D. STEWART RAMSAY, born at Woodside in 1845. He married Mary Glegg, and has a son—

a. REGINALD GLEGG, born at Valparaiso, Chili, Sept. 26, 1878.

(2) SAMUEL, tenant of Tombreck, died Dec., 1798, aged 48 (Jervise's Epitaphs). He had a daughter—

i. JANE, who died at Newton of Tullich, May 9, 1874, aged 103 (Jervise's Epitaphs).

Balmoral.—The first reference I can find to Balmoral occurs in the Exchequer Rolls of Scotland under 1539, when Alexander Gordon and John Gordon appear as tenants of Balmoral, while John Reid Gordon was a tenant of Crathienaird. There was a James Gordon of Balmoral in 1633 when the Book of Annualrentaris (Spalding Club Miscellany, Vol. III.) was compiled. He owed money to Alexander Keith, portioner of Duffus, and to George Irvine of Dorvattie (Dornasillie?). In 1629 the King granted Patrick Gray of Invergowrie and his heirs and assignees the lands of Hayistoun and Scrogiefield in Forfar which James Gordon of Balmoral resigned (Great Seal). I suggest that this James—who is described as “of Balmorall,” valued at £88, in 1635 (Michie's Records of Invercauld, p. 463)—is the James of Easton (son of the 4th laird of Abergeldie) the husband of Marion Scrimgeour, who apparently was a relative of Sir James Scrimgeour of Dudhop, Constable of Dundee. In 1696 Charles Farquharson was laird of "Balmurell" (Poll Book). He was the second son of William Farquharson of Inverey, by his second wife, Anne Gordon, "daughter of Abergeldie," who brought the estate of Balmoral to the Farquharsons. They held it until it was bought by Earl Fife, from whom it passed, after a tenancy by Sir Robert Gordon, brother of the (premier) Earl of Aberdeen, to Prince Albert.

The Aberdeen Inventories in the Register House contain the will of John Gordon in Balmoral, who died 1750. He declared in his will that he "cannot write". The will is dated Oct. 9, 1750, and the executor is James Gordon in Balmoral, the testator's eldest son. He left 10 merks Scots for the poor of Crathie. There was owing to him 600 merks contained in a bond dated Nov. 22, 1714, granted by him to the now deceased James Farquharson of Balmoral. The will was confirmed Feb. 4, 1767, James Gordon in Belnacroft being cautioner (bond signed at Abergeldie, Jan. 26, and witnessed by Charles Gordon of Abergeldie). John Gordon married Margaret M'Donald and had—

1. JAMES, "eldest son". Executor of his father's will, 1767. He was left the "equal half of the croft" (of the tack held by his father) for the year 1751; and the other half to be divided between his wife Margaret M'Donald and his second lawful son,
2. DONALD.
3. JEAN, "my youngest daughter," spouse to Robert Mitchell "presently" (1750) in Balmoral got £50 Scots under her father's will.

Crathie.—Thomas Gordon, Crathie, had a son James who was at Marischal College, 1767-71 (Anderson's Fasti Academiae Mariscallanae).

Littlemill (Crathie).—A broken headstone in Glenmuick Churchyard refers to Alexander Gordon of Littlemill, and his wife Bessie Smith who came from Birse. I have an interesting letter from Mr. J. Leask, Bombay, bearing on this descent. Alexander Gordon died in 1809, aged 82, and his wife in 1800, aged 59. They had a son—

1. GEORGE, who died at Leith, 1834, aged 64. Like his forbears for generations he was a farmer at Littlemill. He married Betty Gauld (died at Littlemill, 1866, aged 80). Betty Gauld was the daughter of a farmer at Migvie who had married Mary Moir. Her brother Donald had a daughter who married John Skeen of Tarland and had, among others, Surgeon William Skeen (three of whose sons are doctors) and Surgeon Andrew Skeen, whose widow married in 1887 Sir Henry Thoby Prinsep, High Court Judge at Calcutta. George Gordon and Betty Gauld had a large family. Among these:—
 - (1) GEORGE, died at sea.
 - (2) JOHN, engineer, London.

- (3) WILLIAM, began life as a planter in Ceylon, and then farmed at Littlemill. He died in 1897. His Daughter married Mr. J. Leask, Bombay.
- (4) DUNCAN, died in Ceylon.
- (5) JAMES, died in Ceylon.
- (6) MARY (Mrs. Lancaster, London).
- (7) AGNES, married — Simpson, Aberchirder, and is dead.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL HUGH MACKAY GORDON.

There was a lieutenant-general in our army at the beginning of the 19th century who bore the same name as the 17th laird of Abergeldie, and yet, though he is said to have been "in some way" connected with that family, the precise relationship is difficult to trace.

His father, according to information sent me by the late laird of Abergeldie, was an Alexander Gordon of Boston (Mass.), a merchant. His mother was Miss Jean Mackay, "who was said to have been born at Inverness about 1718, and who was a grand-daughter of Captain Hugh Mackay of Scoury, Sutherlandshire. She died in Edinburgh," on June 29, 1789 (according to the Scots Magazine), when she was a widow. Mr. George H. Gordon of Somerville, Mass., tells me, however, that Gordon was named after Dr. Hugh Mackay, a Scots resident in Boston, who was a friend of his father. He was the fourth son. His eldest brother, George, was baptised in Boston, Aug. 6, 1755; Alexander, the second, on Aug. 21, 1757, and a sister Anabella on April 27, 1758. Mr. G. H. Gordon also notes that Hugh M. Gordon, who was baptised in King's Chapel, Boston, on Sept. 5, 1760, was a pupil at the Boston Latin School 1766-7, at which he had as a school-mate Sir David Ochterlony, a general in the East India Service. Mr. B. F. Stevens, in his Campaign in Virginia, and Cannon, in the Historical Record of the 16th Regiment, give these particulars about him :—

He served as a volunteer under Sir William Howe in America, 1775-6; was ensign in the 71st Regiment, 1777; lieutenant in the 16th Regiment, 1778; and sailed from New York for the West Indies, joining his regiment at Pensacola in January, 1779. He stayed there until 1780, when he was sent to solicit reinforcements from the Commander-in-Chief, returning to Pensacola in 1781. He was taken prisoner while A.D.C. to Major Campbell. He got his company in 1788, and went to the East Indies in the following year. He was present at the capture of the Cape of Good Hope in 1795. He became brevet major in 1796. He was Quartermaster-General in Bengal, 1797. He became brevet lieut.-col. in 1798; and major in 1799. He returned to England in 1801. He was military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief in Ireland in 1805, and Lieutenant-Governor in Guernsey in 1816, in which year he was colonel of the 16th Foot. He was a lieut.-gen. in 1821.

He also commanded the British forces in Madeira for a time. The 17th laird of Abergeldie possessed two most interesting views of the town of Funchal dedicated to the general and drawn by one of his A.D.C.'s, a Portuguese officer. He also had a large mass of his letters and papers at Eltham, and a portrait of him by Opie. General Gordon died in Dean Street, Mayfair, on March 12, 1823, and was buried in a vault under St. James's Church, Piccadilly.

PREFATORY NOTE.

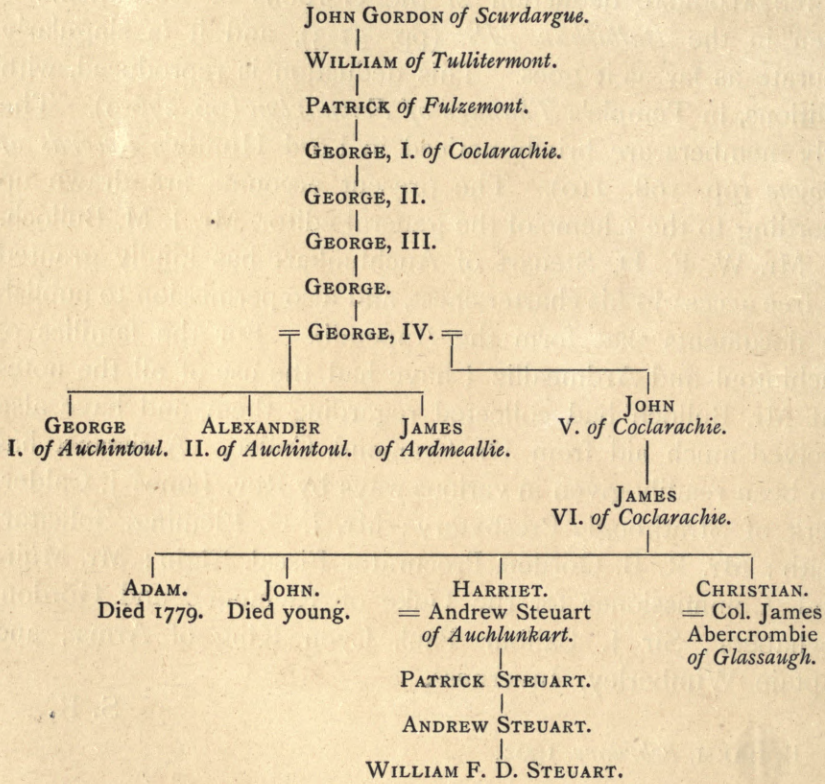

A GENEALOGICAL deduction of the Gordons of Coclarachie is given in the Balbithan MS. (pp. 51-3), and it is singularly accurate as far as it goes. This deduction is reproduced, with additions, in Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn (pp. 276-9). The early members are briefly noticed in Lord Huntly's Records of Aboyne (pp. 168, 210). The present accounts are drawn up according to the scheme of the general editor, Mr. J. M. Bulloch.

Mr. W. F. D. Steuart of Auchlunkart has kindly granted me free access to his charter chest, and also permission to publish the documents that form the Appendix. For the families of Auchintoul and Ardmeallie I have had the use of all the notes that Mr. Bulloch had collected regarding them, and have also received much aid from Dr. Cramond, Cullen. Assistance has also been readily given in various ways by Rev. James J. Calder, Clerk of Strathbogie Presbytery; Mr. J. G. Fleming, Solicitor, Keith; Mr. R. B. Gordon, Procurator Fiscal, Elgin; Mr. Muirhead, Commissioner for the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, Fochabers; Sir J. Balfour Paul, Lyon King of Arms; and Captain Wimberley, Inverness.

BOHARM, February, 1902.

THE LAIRDS OF COCLARACHIE.

COCLARACHIE.

The lands of Coclarachie lie in the parish of Drumblade, Aberdeenshire.

On December 6, 1425, Alexander Stewart, Earl of Mar and Garioch, granted the half of the lands of Culclarochy and the sixth part of the lands of Gerry to Alexander Seton, Lord Gordon (Antiq. Aberd. and Banff, iii., 517-8). These lands were apparently given to found the chaplaincy of St. Mary of Coclarachie, for on March 20, 1557, Mr. David Carnegy, rector of Kinnoul, and possessor of the chaplaincy, feued the lands to Mr. Thomas Ker (Ibid.). On December 9, 1564, Thomas Ker of Coclarachie granted a letter of reversion of the lands of Begeshill in favour of William Leslie of Balquhain, and renewed it in November, 1566 (Leslie's Family of Leslie, iii., 44-5). Afterwards this half came into the possession of the Marquis of Huntly, and in 1617 was acquired by George Gordon.

The other half of Coclarachie was held in 1504 by Alexander Winton of Andat, in the parish of Tarves, for in a Head Court held at Aberdeen on January 9 of that year the Laird of Andat was found in default for his lands of Coclarachie (Coll. Aberd. and Banff, pp. 111-3). This half passed to his two daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret.

Elizabeth Winton was the second wife of George Gordon of Milton of Noth, and her only child, Jonet Gordon, succeeded to a fourth part of Coclarachie. Jonet Gordon married Patrick Forbes of Kinmuck, in the parish of Keithhall, and her son, Alexander Forbes, in 1560 sold his fourth part to his mother's half-brother, George Gordon of Blairdinnie.

Margaret Winton received sasine on a fourth part of Coclarachie in 1518 (Exchequer Rolls, xiv., 606). She married William Leslie, eldest son of George Leslie of Aikenway in the parish of Rothes, Morayshire, and grandson of George, first Earl of Rothes; and her son, George Leslie, was served heir to her in a fourth part of Coclarachie on October 1, 1549 (Retours). On July 15, 1557, George Leslie obtained from the Marquis of Huntly the lands of Tocher in the parish of Rayne, Aberdeenshire, in exchange for his fourth part of Coclarachie (Reg. Mag. Sig., December 12, 1557). This fourth part was acquired by George Gordon in 1587.

Coclarachie remained in possession of this family till 1767. The arms borne by Gordon of Coclarachie, not recorded, appear to have been: Azure, three boars' heads erased within a bordure or.

GEORGE GORDON, I. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Died before 1534.)

George Gordon, of Milton of Noth in the parish of Rhynie, also designed "of Coclarachie" in right of his second wife, was a son of Patrick Gordon of Fulzemont. According to the Balbithan MS. (p. 51) he was the fifth son, but according to Lord Huntly's Records of Aboyne (p. 210) he was the fourth son.

"George Gordoun of Coclaraquhy" is one of the sureties nominated in a contract, dated at Elgin, November 9, 1527, between Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland and her husband, Adam, Earl of Sutherland on one part and their son and apparent heir, Alexander, Master of Sutherland, on the other part; but he is not among the sureties who took oath, on November 17 following, in accordance with the contract (Orig. Paroch. Scot., ii., 664-5). This absence may point to his death at that time: he was dead before May 18, 1534, when his daughter had sasine on Coclarachie.

George Gordon of Milton of Noth married (1) a daughter of Oliphant of Berridale, widow of Calder of Asloun, and by her had (Rec. of Aboyne, p. 210):—

1. GEORGE, afterwards of Coclarachie.
2. JAMES.
3. BESSIE. Probably this is the Bessie Gordon who married Laurence Leith of Kirkton of Rayne, from whom descend Leith-Hay of Leith-hall (Burke's Landed Gentry—Leith-Hay).

He married (2) about 1512 Elizabeth Winton, daughter of Alexander Winton of Andat, who was heiress of a fourth part of Coclarachie, and who died in 1526. The only child of this marriage was

4. JONET, who as heir to her mother got sasine on a fourth part of Coclarachie, May 18, 1534 (Appendix I.). She married Patrick Forbes of Kinmuck (brother of Mr. Duncan Forbes of Monymusk), who appears, as portioner of Coclarachie, on a jury of appretiators of Middle Pitfodels, June 6, 1539 (Reg. Mag. Sig., iii., 2133). On June 23, 1554, Alexander Forbes was served heir to Jonet Gordon, portioner of Coclarachie, in a fourth part of Coclarachie, etc. (Retours). By a charter, dated at Aberdeen, November 15, 1550, and confirmed under the Great Seal, December 1, 1554, Alexander Forbes son and heir of the late Patrick Forbes of Kynmukkis (with consent of Mr. Robert Lumisden, his curator) sold his fourth part of Coclarachie to his paternal uncle, Mr. Duncan Forbes of Monymusk, with reservation of his liferent of the same. This sale must either have been a formality during his minority, or have been afterwards cancelled, for on February 10, 1560, Alexander Forbes sold the lands to George Gordon of Blairdinnie.

GEORGE GORDON, II. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Son of I.: executed 1562.)

George Gordon of Blairdinnie, in the parish of Clatt, was the eldest son of George Gordon of Milton of Noth and Coclarachie. By a charter, dated at Aberdeen, November 16, 1556, and confirmed under the Great Seal, August 13, 1586, William, Bishop of Aberdeen, feued to George Gordoun of Blairdynnie, "the hauch of Bogy" in the parish of Clatt. On February 7, 1560, George Gordon bought the fourth part of Coclarachie that belonged to Alexander Forbes, the son of his half-sister, and he got sasine thereon on February 10 following, being described in the instrument of sasine (Appendix II.) as "Georgius Gordoun hereditarius de Blairendenny". He was taken prisoner at the battle of Corrichie in October, and was executed at Aberdeen on November 2, 1562, at the same time as Sir John Gordon, second son of the Marquis of Huntly (Balbithan MS., p. 52; Macfarlane's Genealogical Collections, i., 237).

He married a daughter of John Gordon of Tilphoudie, who was second son of Adam Gordon of Aboyne and his wife Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland, and by her had :—

1. GEORGE, his successor (Rec. of Aboyne, pp. 42, 210).
2. BESSIE (Temple's Fermartyn, p. 277).

GEORGE GORDON, III. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Son of II.: died 1633.)

George Gordon, III. of Coclarachie, was a minor at the time of his father's forfeiture and execution, but was included in the remission for Corrichie, granted February 26, 1567 (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 155). On November 20, 1587, he bought from the Earl of Huntly a fourth part of Coclarachie (Appendix III.). Having joined the Earl of Huntly and having been present at the Battle of Glenlivet in October, 1594, he was again forfeited, and did not obtain remission till April 2, 1603 (Spald. Club Misc., iv., 159). On March 16, 1615, he obtained confirmation under the Great Seal of the charter of February 7, 1560, by which his father had acquired from Alexander Forbes a fourth part of Coclarachie, it being explained that the delay in obtaining confirmation had been caused by his father's death soon after the purchase and his own minority at the time of his father's death. Having resigned the fourth part purchased in 1587, he received from the Marquis of Huntly on May 21, 1617, a charter on the three fourth parts of Coclarachie, redeemable on payment of 6,000 merks (Appendix IV.). He thus obtained the whole of Coclarachie, which remained in possession of his descendants till 1767. This laird also acquired other lands in Aberdeenshire.

1582.—He is said in Records of Aboyne, p. 168, to have been made a burghess of Aberdeen in May, 1582, along with other followers of Huntly. This is probably founded on the extract in Spald. Club Misc., v. 52-3, where the entry "Ge. Gordoun of Clockrachy" occurs, but in New Spald. Club Misc., i., 77, the entry is given as "Go. Gordoun of Clochrathn".

1590. August 8.—He found James Gordoun of Knokespik cautioner for him that James and George Leslies in Tailyeauch shall be harmless of him (Privy Council Register).

1591. July 23.—Bond of caution of date July 17, for £1,000, by him for John Lumsden of Cuscheny that he will not harm James Robertson in Westir Lochell. John Lumsden of Cuscheny grants a bond of same date and for same amount for William Strachan of Glenkindie that he will not harm the same James Robertson (Ibid.).

November 11.—He was witness of a notarial instrument executed at Lesmoir (Rec. of Aboyne, p. 170).

1593. March 3.—He was surety in 1,000 marks for John Gordoun of Auchanachie that he should do nothing in hurt of his Majesty's government nor take part with George, Earl of Huntly, etc. (Privy Council Register).

1594. June 12.—He was charged to appear before the King and Council to answer concerning "persute and invasioun of his Majesties declairit tratouris, rebellious and unnaturall subjectis, treasonable practizaris and conspiratouris aganis the trew religion presentlie professit within this realme, his Majesties persone and estate and libertie of this cuntry". Failing to appear on July 11, he was then denounced rebel (Ibid.).

1600.—He was tenant of Huntly's lands of Learge in Cabrach (Spald. Club Misc., iv., 281).

1602.—He and Bessie Duncan, his spouse, had sasine on the third part of lands of Corbanchrie, Overtouris, Cokstoun, Jempstone, Duncanstoun and New Merdrum, Balnakellie, etc. (Records of Aboyne, p. 168). On 17th May there is sasine on the half lands of Merdrum and Balnakellie in favour of him and Bessie Duncan, his spouse, in liferent, and to Alexander and George Gordon, their sons, heritably (Ibid., p. 168).

1603.—By a charter dated at Huntly, May 23, 1603, and confirmed under the Great Seal, January 12, 1604, George, Marquis of Huntly, sold to him Birkinhill, Fidlerseat, Bordelseat, and Kirkhill in the parish of Gartly, redeemable on payment of 6,000 merks.

1607.—He and George Gordoun, his son and heir apparent, were witnesses to a charter, dated at Grantulie and Buckie, April 28 and May 13, 1607, and confirmed under the Great Seal, July 4, 1608, by which Alexander Gordoun of Baldornie, George Gordoun, his elder son and heir apparent, and John Gordoun of Buckie for his interest, sold to Abraham Forbes of Blackton the lands of Waster Foullis, Craigmyle and Eister Lochill in the lordship of Monymusk.

To him was directed the precept of sasine in the charter, dated at Aberdeen, May 27, 1607, and confirmed under the Great Seal, February 14, 1609, by which Arthur, Lord Forbes feued to Robert (Forbes), commendator of Monymusk, the lands of Tilliryauche and Tullauchvayneis in the barony of Cluny.

He was a witness of mutual bonds of caution, dated at Aberdeen, December 11, 1607, by Robert (Forbes), commendator of Monymusk, and Abraham Forbes of Blackton that they would not harm Alexander Irving of Drum (Privy Council Register, viii., 636-7).

1608. December 10.—He got sasine on Tailzeoche (Sasines).

1612.—By a charter dated at Aberdeen, June 4, and confirmed under the Great Seal, July 28, Francis, Earl of Errol sold to him the town and lands of Bomatuithill, the shady half of the Maynis of Slaynis, the town and lands of Auchmabo, the town and lands of Brogane, with the mill of Brogane in the parish of Slains. George Gordoun, apparent of Coclerauchie, was one of the witnesses.

July 28.—He was one of those to whom a commission was granted to apprehend and try according to law certain persons of the names of Gordon and Grant in Upper Banffshire, “brokin men, committing oppin reiffis, privie stouthis, slauchteris, mutilationis, soirningis and utheris insolenyis” upon the good subjects in the adjacent parts (Privy Council Register).

1617.—“George Gordone of Blerindinie and Talzeauche” was one of the feuars of the Bishopric of Aberdeen within the parish of Clatt (Munro’s Old Aberdeen, i., 57).

1629. May 17.—With consent of his sons, Alexander Gordon of Merdrum and Mr. William Gordon, doctor of medicine, he made provision for his grandson, George Gordon, in view of his marriage with Grissell Seton, daughter of Alexander Seton of Pitmedden (Appendix VI.).

George Gordon, III. of Coclarachie, married Bessie, daughter of James Duncan of Merdrum. Bessie Duncan survived her husband. In a court held at Aberdeen, February 20, 1634, by William Cordoner, sheriff-depute, “Bessie Duncan, relict of umquhill George Gordone of Coclarachie, declarit be Doctor Williame Gordoun, doctor of medicine, her sone, that shoe hes hir lyfrent of the third pairt landis of Coclarachie, wedset of the Merques of Huntlie for the soume of 6,000 merkis. Quhair of thair is to be defaisit that the said Bessie is restand to Marjorie Duncan, hir sister, the yeirlie annuelrent of 2,000 merkis, with the quhilk yeirlie annuelrent the wodsett is granted and no uther wayes; and that shoe is restand to Alexander, Mr. Hew and Williame Gordones, hir children, Mr. Robert Bisset of Lesindrum, George Gordoun of Raynie, and Williame Seatoun of Hadow, equallie amongs them, 600 merkis; to George Gordoun of Coclarachie, 500 merkis” (Spald. Club Misc., iii., 123). In 1636 “the guidwyff of Coclarachie” was residing in Old Aberdeen (Munro’s Old Aberdeen, i., 354); and probably the charter of liferent to Grissell Seton on December 15, 1643 (Appendix VII.), was granted shortly after Bessie Duncan’s death. This laird had four sons and four daughters.

1. GEORGE, the eldest son, died before his father. He is mentioned in notices of his father, 1602, 1607, 1612; and was dead before June 18, 1618, when his widow was wife of John Gordon, younger of Craig

(Reg. Mag. Sig.). He married Jean, daughter of James Gordon of Lesmoir, and by her had:—

(1) GEORGE, IV. of Coclarachie.

(2) JAMES (Balb. MS., p. 52); or ALEXANDER (Wimberley's Gordons of Lesmoir (1893), p. 109, from Prony MS.; also Theodore Gordon's MS.).

2. ALEXANDER, of Merdrum. On May 17, 1602, he got sasine on the half lands of Merdrum and Balnakellie. See notices of his father, 1602, 1619, 1629. On December 18, 1634, he was one of those who were ordered to be summoned as witnesses regarding the disorders that had arisen in the north since the burning of the house of Fren draught (Spalding's Troubles, i., 423). On February 22, 1637, he gave evidence regarding certain accusations made by George Gordon of Rhynie against Mr. Henry Ross, minister of Rhynie. On October 20, 1638, he was chosen by the Presbytery of Strathbogie ruling elder to the General Assembly, and the same presbytery, on April 24, 1644, chose "for Rhynie and Essie, Alexander Gordon of Merdrum" as one of a "list of able men from euerie parochin for to be insert in a commission for sorcereris and charmeris". On July 26, 1646, he was one of those who were appointed to "estimat and appreciat" the manse of Rhynie. He was one of the elders of Rhynie who were present at a presbyterial visitation of that parish on August 13, 1651 (Presbytery Book of Strathbogie, pp. 13, 19, 53, 67, 207). He married and had, at least, one son and two daughters:—

(1) JAMES, of Merdrum. James Gordon, younger of Merdrum, appeared before the Presbytery of Strathbogie on February 23, 1648, and confessed his accession to the late rebellion, and was ordained to "satisfy" in his parish church; but on May 17 the minister of Rhynie reported that "James Gordon of Merdrum had fled the boundis for the tyme". In 1651 the presbytery summoned before them all delinquents who had not then obeyed their injunctions, and on October 29 "compeired James Gordon in Merdrum . . . and being humbled in sackcloathe was accused of quadrilaps in fornicatioune, deserting his repentance, contempt of the Session of Rynie, drunkenness, relapsing into rebellion with James Grahame, and the setting lightly of his father and his admonitiounes. Confessed all . . . was ordained to satisfie the discipline of Rynie in sackcloath thrie quarters of a yeare, for purgeing away the long continued scandell of his former ill spent life in maner abouewritten . . . promised obedience therunto in euerie thing according to his abilitie" (Ibid., pp. 85, 89, 213). He had sasine on Merdrum in 1654 (Sasines). He married and had three daughters, Margaret, Jean, and Marie, who had sasine on New Merdrum in January, 1669 (Cadenhead's Family of Cadenhead, p. 36).

- (2) BARBARA, who married (1) Orem, and (2) on December 24, 1663, William Lunan in Dallob, son of the Rev. Alexander Lunan, minister first of Monymusk and afterwards of Kintore. By her second husband she had a son, William, and a daughter, Anna, both of whom married and had issue (Ibid., pp. 32-6).
- (3) ELSPET, who married William Gordon of Sockach (Balb. MS., p. 45).
3. HEW. He was witness of a bond of caution dated at Straloch July 16, 1621 (Privy Council Reg., July 25, 1621). By a charter, March 9, 1633, James Ogilvy of Auchleuchries, proprietor of the lands afternamed, and Hew Gordon, lawful son to George Gordon of Coclarachie, with consent of Marjorie Gordon, spouse of the said James Ogilvy, granted certain parts of Auchleuchries to Marie Ogilvy, daughter of said James Ogilvy, and future spouse of John Gordon, third son of the deceased Patrick Gordon of Nethermuir, and to their heirs. By a charter, August 19, 1633, Sir Alexander Hay of Delgatie, immediate superior of the lands afternamed, granted to Hew Gordon, lawful son to the deceased George Gordon of Coclarachie, the lands of Easter and Wester Auchleuchries (Gen. Pat. Gordon's Diary, p. 207). [March, 1645] "as Montross is in Angouss, the Viscount of Fren-dracht, the Lord Fraser, the Maister of Forbes, thair freindis and folloueris leaves thair houssis and cumis to the feildis, and beginis to oppress whome they culd overtak. And first thay mell vpon the hie way with Hew Gordoun, sone to George Gordoun of Coklarachie" (Spalding's Trubles, ii., 462).
4. WILLIAM, A.M., doctor of medicine. See notices of his father, 1619, 1629, and of his mother. He may have been the William Gordon, A.M., who was Mediciner at King's College, Aberdeen, from 1632 to 1640; but no direct proof has yet been discovered.
5. MARJORIE. She married (1604) James Ogilvy, younger of Blerack, and had a daughter, Marie, who married (1633) John Gordon of Auchleuchries and had issue, of whom the second son, Patrick, became a General in the Russian army, and had, by his first wife, a daughter, Katherine Elizabeth, who married Major-General Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul.
6. Daughter, who married Mr. Robert Bisset of Lessendrum, and had issue.
7. Daughter, who married William Seton of Hadow.
8. CHRISTIAN, who married George Gordon of Rhyne and Sheelagreen, and had issue.

George Gordon, III. of Coclarachie, died in 1633 between March 9 and August 19, as is shown by the charters referred to under notice of his third son, Hew.

GEORGE GORDON, IV. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Grandson of III. : died 1663.)

This laird succeeded his grandfather in 1633, though he and his first wife had received, on the occasion of their marriage in 1629, a charter on Coclarachie and also on Overblairton and Pettens in the parish of Belhelvie, Aberdeenshire (Appendix VI.). On October 6, 1643, he sold the lands in Belhelvie to George Davidson, burgess of Aberdeen (Scottish Notes and Queries, ii., 102); but he also acquired lands in the parish of Marnoch, Banffshire, including the barony of Auchintoul.

1635.—He was one of those to whom a commission was granted on March 19, 1635, to apprehend certain rebels and "brokin men" who were oppressing the Laird of Frendraught and his tenants; and on August 7, 1635, he was one of those who were charged to appear personally before the Lords of Council and to find sufficient caution "for observing his majestie's peace and keeping of good rule and quyetnes in the countrie under paine of rebellion" (Spalding's Trubles, i., 426, 429).

1643.—He was one of "the Committee appointed by the Estaitis for the taxatione and loane of moneyes within the shirefdome of Abirdein," which met at Aberdeen on October 3, 1643, and on that day he, Sir Robert Gordone of Straloch and George Gordone of Knockaspock, were appointed a sub-committee for the district of the Presbytery of Strathbogie. He was also present at meetings of the Committee on October 4, 1643, and January 6, 1644 (Spald. Club Misc., iii., 143-7).

He married (1) in May, 1629, Grissell, daughter of Alexander Seton of Pitmedden, by whom he "begat sons and daughters" (Balb. MS., p. 52):—

1. GEORGE of Auchintoul. See p. 17.
2. ALEXANDER of Auchintoul. See p. 18.
3. JAMES of Ardmeallie. See p. 27.
4. MARIE, who married in March, 1659, John Grant in Lettoch, eldest son of James Grant of Auchernick (Elgin Commissary MS. Records, 26th June, 1684).

Grissell Seton died in 1644, and George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie, married (2) in December, 1645, Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander Fraser of Philorth, and widow of William Meldrum of Haltoun of Auchterless

(Appendix VIII.) Elizabeth Fraser had, by her first marriage, an only child, Isabella Meldrum, who married in May, 1664, William, eldest son of John Forbes of Asloun (Appendix IX.) The children of the second marriage were :—

5. JOHN, who succeeded to Coclarachie.
6. CHARLES.
7. JANET, who in September, 1696, became the second wife of Alexander Leslie of Little Wartle and had no issue (Appendix XI.)

George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie, died in 1663. On August 5, 1664, a warrant was passed under the Great Seal appointing Elizabeth Fraser tutrix-dative to John, Charles and Jonet Gordon, her lawful children, mention being made therein that a year and a day had elapsed since the death of George Gordon of Coclarachie (Auchlunkart Charter Chest).

JOHN GORDON, V. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Son of IV. : died 1714.)

John Gordon, V. of Coclarachie, the eldest son by the second marriage of George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie, was a minor when his father died in 1663, and received sasine on Coclarachie in February, 1670. He was a student at King's College, Aberdeen, in 1668 (Fasti Aberd., p. 487). The valuation of Coclarachie in 1696 was £330 6s. 8d. Scots (Poll Book, ii., 271).

He married in December, 1679, Anna, daughter of Sir James Baird of Auchmedden (Appendix X.), by whom he had :—

1. GEORGE,
2. ALEXANDER, } alive in 1696 (Poll Book, ii., 271), but died before their father.
3. JAMES, who succeeded to Coclarachie.
4. CHRISTIAN.
5. ANNA, who married in June, 1712, James Lunan, eldest son of Alexander Lunan, M.A., minister of Daviot, Aberdeenshire (Appendix XII.)
6. ISOBEL.

John Gordon, V. of Coclarachie, died on July 8, 1714.

JAMES GORDON, VI. OF COCLARACHIE.

(Son of V. : died 1771.)

James Gordon, VI. of Coclarachie, was served heir to his father on July 14, 1721 (Index of Heirs), and a Crown precept of sasine on a fourth part of Coclarachie was issued in his favour on July 24, 1721 (Auchlunkart Charter Chest). He was elected a burghess of Banff on September 30, 1727 (Burgess Ticket in Auchlunkart Charter Chest).

On February 26, 1767, he sold the lands of Coclarachie to Alexander, Duke of Gordon, but sasine was not taken till May 1, 1771 (Index of Charters in Gordon Castle).

He married, in 1730, Jane, daughter of Robert Bisset of Lessendrum, by whom he had :—

1. ADAM, who died in 1779, his sisters being served heir to him on August 4, 1779 (Index of Heirs).
2. JOHN, who was a student at Marischal College, Aberdeen, 1772-73 (Anderson's Fasti Acad. Marisc., ii., 344), and died before his brother.
3. HARRIET, who married in December, 1778, Andrew Steuart of Auchlunkart, in the parish of Boharm, Banffshire, second son of George Steuart of Tanachie in the parish of Rathven, Banffshire. He was a Writer to the Signet in Edinburgh, being admitted on July 15, 1763, and he was elected a burghess of guild of Aberdeen in 1767. In 1771 he bought the lands of Auchlunkart. Andrew Steuart died at Peterhead on October 10, 1798, and his widow died at Auchlunkart on September 10, 1814. Their children were :—

(1) PATRICK STEUART, of Auchlunkart, succeeded also to Tanachie on the death of his cousin, George Steuart. At Edinburgh, on June 21, 1800, he was admitted one of H.M. Royal Company of Archers (Auchlunkart Charter Chest). He married on November 9, 1820, Rachel Missing Duff, daughter of Lachlan Gordon of Park, by whom he had an only son, Andrew Steuart. He died at Paris on March 25, 1844, aged 64, and his widow died at Auchlunkart on May 8, 1872, aged 84.

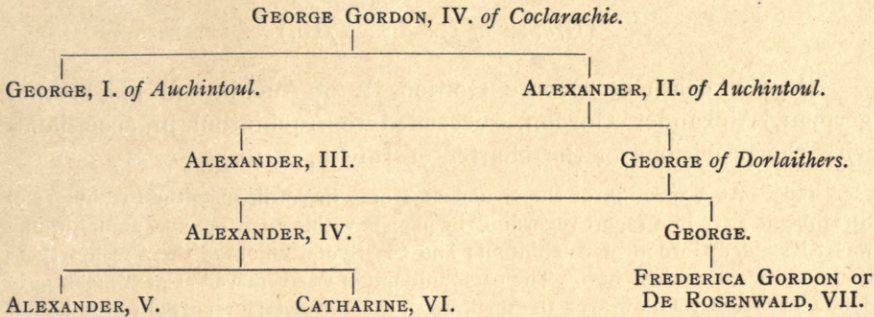

- i. ANDREW STEUART, of Auchlunkart and Tanachie, B.A. Cantab., 1844 (First Class in Classical Tripos, and a Senior Optime), M.A., 1848, was M.P. for Cambridge, 1857-62. In 1885 he resigned Auchlunkart and Tanachie in favour of his only surviving son, William. He married, in 1847, his cousin, Elizabeth Georgiana Graham, third daughter of Thomas Duff Gordon of Park, and by her (who died on March 28, 1888) he had:—

- (i) PATRICK STEUART, died in infancy.
 - (ii) GEORGE ALEXANDER STEUART, scholar of Winchester College; died June, 1865.
 - (iii) THOMAS GORDON STEUART, died young.
 - (iv) WILLIAM FRANCIS DAY STEUART, now of Auchlunkart and Tanachie, married in 1899 Florence, daughter of S. Hammond, Woolwich.
 - (v) HARRIET ELIZABETH STEUART, married in 1871 General William Gordon, C.I.E., youngest son of the late Adam Gordon of Cairnfield, Banffshire, and has issue.
 - (vi) RACHEL ELEANOR STEUART, married, in 1880, Hastings A. Clarke, Achareidh, Nairn, and has issue.
 - (vii) LOUISA MARY STEUART.
 - (viii) MABEL STEUART, married, in 1894, C. A. Seton, Preston, Linlithgow, and has issue.
- (2) JAMES STEUART, Captain, Royal Scots, killed at St. Sebastian on September 2, 1813, unmarried. "Captain Steuart's brilliant but short career was terminated in front of the castle of St. Sebastian while reconnoitring along with Major-General Hay, to whom he was aide-de-camp; he received a musket ball in the head and survived about an hour, leaving a character most honourable and as an officer most distinguished" (Scots Mag., lxxv., 799).
- (3) GEORGE STEUART, Midshipman, R.N., died in February, 1820, unmarried.
- (4) MARY STEUART, who married David Monypenny (Lord Pitmilley), one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and died on December 2, 1808, without issue.
4. CHARLOTTE, who married Col. James Abercrombie, of Glassaugh, Banffshire, son of General James Abercrombie of Glassaugh, but had no issue.

James Gordon, VI. and last of Coclarachie, died at Aberdeen on November 29, 1771, in the 77th year of his age (Aberdeen Journal).

THE GORDONS OF AUCHINTOUL.

The arms of Gordon of Auchintoul as recorded in 1765 are: Azure, a mullet between three boars' heads coupéd or within a bordure of the last. Crest: a demi-boar proper. Motto: "Bydand".

GEORGE GORDON, I. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Son of George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie: died 1661.)

George Gordon, I. of Auchintoul, was the eldest son, by the first marriage, of George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie.

On July 8, 1646, the King granted the lands and barony of Auchintoul, in the parish of Marnoch, Banffshire, to George Gordon of Coclarachie, in liferent, and to George Gordon, his eldest son, in fee, and to the heirs of the body of George Gordon, junior; whom failing, to Alexander Gordon, second son of George Gordon, senior, and his heirs (Reg. Mag. Sig.).

The "noblemen, gentlemen and heretouris" of Aberdeenshire held meetings at Aberdeen on November 11 and December 2, 1659, at the request of General Monk, and elected commissioners to meet him and confer with him on the affairs of the time. Among those present at the first meeting was the "Laird of Auchintoull younger," and at the second meeting "Auchintoull Gordoune" (Rec. of Aboyne, pp. 319, 323).

He died before his father in 1661, unmarried, and his next brother, Alexander, was served heir to him on July 24, 1661 (Retours).

ALEXANDER GORDON, II. OF AUCHINTOUL, LORD AUCHINTOUL.

(Brother of I. : died 1710.)

On the death of George Gordon, I. of Auchintoul, his brother german, Alexander Gordon, succeeded to Auchintoul in accordance with the provisions of the charter of July 8, 1646.

1669.—At a meeting of the Synod of Moray in April, 1669, the Presbytery of Strathbogie gave in a report regarding the papists within their bounds, among whom was Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul; and the Synod enjoined the Presbytery to begin a process against him. The same injunction was renewed at next meeting of Synod in October following. In April, 1670, the Presbytery reported to the Synod that Auchintoul was under process. At subsequent meetings of Synod the same report was given in till April, 1672, when the Presbytery reported that he had been called before the Privy Council, and that consequently the process against him was laid aside (Synod of Moray MS. Records).

1678. July.—Infetment was given in the town and lands of Auchintoul and others to Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul in liferent and to Alexander Gordon, his eldest lawful son, in fee; the liferent of Isobel Gray, spouse of the said Alexander Gordon, elder, being reserved, and the foresaid lands being erected into a barony to be called the barony of Auchintoul (Geneal. Mag., 1901, p. 361).

1684. January 8.—He was admitted an advocate (Brunton and Haig's Senators of the College of Justice, p. 431).

1687. February 2.—He witnessed a deed executed at Delmanie, in the parish of Boharm, Banffshire (Auchlunkart Charter Chest).

1688. June 15.—He was admitted an Ordinary Lord of Session (Fountainhall's Decisions, i., 506). As the Revolution took place soon after, he held office only for a few months, but continued to be known as Lord Auchintoul.

1704. May 15.—The list of papists given in to the presbytery of Strathbogie by the minister of Marnoch includes "Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul, sometym Senator in the College of Justice, baptized and brought up in the reformed protestant religion which he professed in his youth till he went to France, since which time he has been a professed papist; his children all born and bred in the Romish religion, and forisfamiliat; there are only two daughters with him, viz., Mary and Margaret, unmarried, both papists" (Blakhal's Narration, Spalding Club, p. xxxvi.).

1709. February 10.—William Duff of Braco on February 21, 1707, sent his servant to the house of Auchintoul, who counted down "on the table in specie current at the time" the amount of the principal and interest of a debt of £1,000 Scots due upon bond by his deceased father to Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul; and upon Auchintoul's declining to accept the money, the servant consigned it in the hands of Grant of Ruddy and protested that Braco was free of interest in time coming. Among other reasons for declining to accept the money at that time, Auchintoul alleged that "there was a rumour, then dispersed and which ultimately fell out, that the money of Scotland was to be called in and made conform to that of England in terms of the Union, and he apprehended that Braco was taking advantage to palm upon him the loss" that would thereby arise, and which he estimated would amount to about 500 merks. The Lords of Session found that Auchintoul should have accepted the money when it was offered and that the loss must fall on him (Fountainhall's Decisions, ii., 490).

Lord Auchintoul married Isobel Gray, "daughter of Gray of Braik and niece of Lord Gray" (Life, prefixed to Major-Gen. Gordon's Peter the Great), "with whom he begat three sons and daughters" (Balb. MS., p. 52).

1. ALEXANDER, succeeded to Auchintoul.
2. GEORGE, was in Monedie in 1704, when he and his wife, Barbara McKenzie, with "but one chyld, on the breast," were returned as among the papists in the parish of Marnoch (Blakhal's Narration, p. xxxvi.), was in Monedie in 1709 (Strathbogie Presb. Rec.), and was afterwards of Dorlaithers, in the parish of Turriff, Aberdeenshire. He perished at sea in 1716 on his way to Holland (Balb. MS., p. 52). He married Barbara, daughter of Alexander Mackenzie of Ardloch, and niece of Sir George Mackenzie, first Earl of Cromartie (Fraser's Earls of Cromartie, ii., 53), and by her (who died on May 26, 1762, aged 80) he had "three sons and a daughter" (Balb. MS., p. 52). The eldest son, Alexander Gordon of Dorlaithers, succeeded his uncle in Auchintoul. The second son, George, who died in July, 1762 (Marnoch Sess. Rec.), married, and had two daughters: the elder, Frederica, married Quieten de Rosenwald in the service of the Emperor of Germany, and in 1798 succeeded her cousin, Catharine Gordon, in Auchintoul; the younger, Christine, married Theiner de Retheim, Major in the German army: and both were widows in 1798 (Auchintoul Titles).
3. JAMES, "third son to the Laird of Auchintoul, living in the house of Cairnborrow," was included in the list of papists given in to the presbytery of Strathbogie by the minister of Glass on May 11, 1704 (Blakhal's Narration, p. xxxvi.). He married (♀) a daughter of Barclay of Cottcairn (Balb. MS., p. 52), and she died under circumstances indicated in two letters printed in Fraser's Earls of Cromartie (ii., 51-3).

In one of the letters Sir George Mackenzie, first Earl of Cromartie, writing to John, Earl of Mar, on November 30, 1707, says: "This day one James Gordon, a sonne of the quondam Lord Auchintowl, had a persuit against Duff of Braco for comeing with 29 or 30 armed men to seaz the said James on account of a ryot committed by him on Alexander Alexander. Braco defended himself as being obliged, as a baron, to seaz any committers of ryot, as also he had the shirrefs warrand to search and seaz the said James. The advocats for James alleadge this to be a gross ryot in Braco and ane infringement of our act of Habeas Corpus, &c. But unhappily, by Bracos clamorous irruption into the hous, his lady who was a while befor brought to bed did from the fright fall into a fever and dyed. Now that which is notable in this process is that Braco did raise a lybell against Gordon for raising so scandalous lybel against him and befor any procedur he pleaded that Gordon, the persuer, should also enter the pannell. . . . The Lords made Gordon also enter the pannel. . . . We are next day of court to hear them on the principall cause." The other letter is from Barbara Mackenzie, wife of George Gordon, to her uncle, Sir George Mackenzie, first Earl of Cromartie, and, though not dated, was evidently written a short time before the Earl's own letter.

My LORD—I took the freedom to writ in sommer with my husbands brother to your Lordship, who owns himself much bound and obliged to your favour and civility, and I no less, who flatter myself with the fancy that a share of them were on my account, for which I render your Lordship my cordiall thanks, and intreats your protection and friendship to him in an action he has befor your Lordship wherin he pursues Braco for the death of his wife. I need not enter on the detail of the affair, you'll be sufficiently acquainted with it; but one thing I must say, the poor gentelman has but too great raison to pursue Braco in this affair, he having occasioned the death of a very good wife, my particular friend, their being no room left to doubt but his affrighting of her was certainly the occasion of her death, who was known befor that, particularly to myself, to be one of the strongest and healthfullest women in the country. My Lord, I must solicit your favor and beg your justice not only in my brother-in-laws behalf but likewise in my own and all women who are bearing children, for how can we secure ourselves against the being affrighted out of our lives if this go unpunished? These people, with whom my brother has to do, boast so much of their wealth that they undervalue and despise men of meaner fortunes and think to do all and secur for themselves against all events with their money. But I have no fears on that head, being long agoe convinced of your Lordships judgement, integrity and justice. My Lord Auchintoull, who presents you with this, can inform you better than any man, having been witness to all the sad tragedie; and I'll assure you, my Lord, that nothing, no not his sons concern, will make him say any thing contrary to truth.

I'm always glaid to hear of your Lordships health, and wishes and prays for the continuance of it. My husband kisses your hands and longs to be known to you. My sister Mary do's the same but particularly, my Lord,

Your most obedient neece and humble servant,
BARBARA MCKENZIE.

James Gordon married (2) Margaret Chalmers, daughter of a solicitor in Edinburgh, who survived him and died at Edinburgh on January 21, 1739, leaving two daughters (Edinb. Commissariat, Dec. 12, 1740).

(1) KATHERINE, died abroad, unmarried, in 1768 (Edinb. Commissariat, April 11, 1769).

(2) CLEMENTINA, married at Edinburgh in 1751 James Elphinston, and died at London in 1778. Elphinston was a native of Edinburgh, who removed to London in 1753 and set up an academy at Kensington, which he successfully carried on till 1776. He died at London on October 8, 1809, aged 88, being survived by his second wife, a daughter of the Rev. James Falconar and niece of Bishop Falconar. He was a friend of Johnson and other prominent literary men of his time, and was himself the author of several educational works (Gent.'s Mag., Nov., 1809).

4. Daughter, married John Gordon of Letterfourie (Balb. MS., p. 18).

5. MARY, }
6. MARGARET, } unmarried in 1704.

Lord Auchintoul died at Auchintoul in 1710.

ALEXANDER GORDON, III. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Son of II. : died 1751.)

The third laird, the eldest son of Lord Auchintoul, was the most distinguished member of the family. He was born at Auchintoul on December 27, 1669, and at the age of fourteen was sent to Paris to complete his education. During his stay in France he entered the French army and rose to the position of Captain. Returning to Scotland after the Revolution he did not find the position of public affairs to his mind, and accordingly about 1692 he went to the continent and soon found his way to Russia. There he joined the Russian army, then under the command of his kinsman, General Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries. His first commission was obtained under exceptional circumstances. Not long after his arrival he was present at a marriage, where some young Russians, notwithstanding his remonstrances, persisted in speaking in contemptuous terms of all foreigners, and specially of Scots. The dispute proceeded from words to blows, but ended in Gordon's favour. A complaint having been lodged against Gordon, he was summoned before the Czar himself to answer for his conduct. Having heard Gordon's account of the incident, the Czar said—"Well, Sir, your accusers have done you justice in allowing that you beat six men; I also will do you justice"; and thereupon he gave him a Major's commission. In the same year Gordon was made a Lieutenant-Colonel, and three years later, in 1696, he had command of a regiment at the siege of Azof. When the Czar in 1700 gave liberty to the slaves on condition that they should become soldiers in his army, Col. Gordon specially distinguished himself by his skill in training the new men in the methods that had been adopted for reforming the army. At the disastrous defeat of the Russians by the Swedes at Narva on November 30, 1700, Col. Gordon became a prisoner of war, and remained in the hands of the Swedes for nearly seven years, having been released by exchange only in September, 1707. Immediately after his release he met the Czar at Pleskow, was ordered to accompany him to St. Petersburg, had frequent conferences with him there, and was raised to the rank of Brigadier. In the following year he was made a Major-General, in reward for the successes he had gained over the Polish troops. While in service in Poland in 1711 he heard of his father's death, and having obtained permission to leave the Russian service he returned to Scotland in the end of that year. He at once began to make several improvements on the house of Auchintoul, and he also enlarged his estate by the purchase, in 1712, of the lands of Laithers in the parish of Turriff, Aberdeenshire. On June 27, 1713, he was served heir general to his father (Index of Heirs).

In the rebellion of 1715 he took a prominent part. He attended the Earl of Mar's hunting-match at Braemar on August 27, and was also present at the meeting at Aboyne on September 9, at which it was decided that the time had come to take up arms. Thereafter he was sent into the Highlands to raise the western clans, and soon collected a body of over 4,000 men. An attempt to surprise Fort William proved unsuccessful, and he then marched towards Inverary with a view to giving the Jacobites of Argyleshire an opportunity of joining his standard. After Gordon had been some time before Inverary, thereby preventing the Earl of Islay from taking action, the Earl of Islay in October "appointed Clanronald and Glengary to treat with Sir Duncan Campbell of Lochnell and Lieut.-Col. Campbell of Finab on the part of General Gordon, and it was agreed that Gordon and his people should abandon Argyleshire and compensate the poor people for their losses, and on the other hand that the Hanoverian troops should not molest the clans" (Townshend MSS., Hist. MSS. Com. Reports, p. 164). Thereupon Gordon withdrew his men towards Perthshire, arriving at Drummond Castle about the beginning of November, and on November 10 joined the Earl of Mar's army. At the battle of Sheriffmuir on November 13 the centre of the first line, which proved victorious over the Government troops, was under the command of Gordon. When the Chevalier's army reached Montrose on February 3, 1716, it was placed under General Gordon and he received from the Chevalier a commission "to command the army till dispersed and to act and in all things contribute as much as in him lay to the common safety" of the men. The army reached Aberdeen on February 6, when General Gordon intimated the instructions he had received; and thereafter he conducted the march westwards to Badenoch, where the men who had not already withdrawn quietly dispersed. From the time that he received full command he conducted the march with such prudence and skill that, though closely pursued, he lost few of his men (Browne's Hist. of the Highlands, chaps. xii.-xiv.). Thereafter he retired to the Highlands and in 1717 escaped to France. In February, 1719, he was at Bordeaux in consultation with those who were planning the invasion of 1719, which ended in the defeat at Glenshiel on June 10, 1719. When it was reported that the Spanish ships were to sail from Passage on March 8, "General Gordon falling sick a few days after, it was found he could not make the voyage" (Oliphant's Jacobite Lairds of Gask, p. 452); but in April he, with forty other officers, left Bordeaux in two Swedish ships (Dickson's Jacobite Attempt of 1719, p. 247). He was included among those attainted for treason, but by being misnamed Thomas in the Act of Attainder of 1716 he did not lose his estates.

Major-General Gordon did not return to Scotland till 1727, and thereafter he lived quietly the life of a country gentleman. On June 28, 1729, he received from James Mitchell of Auchanacie in the parish of Keith a discharge for 10,000 merks which had been borrowed on the security of the lands of Auchintoul (Sasines). He did not take any part in the rebellion of 1745, though the leaders of the rebel forces were in communication with him in February, 1746 (Oliphant's Jacobite Lairds of Gask, p. 182). The village of Aberchirder was founded by him in 1746, the first feus being given off in that year (Dr. Cramond in Aberdeen Free Press, September 24, 1901). In his later years he occupied his time in writing a life of the Emperor of Russia, under whom he had served, which was published in two octavo volumes at Aberdeen in 1755, with the title—The History of Peter the Great, Emperor of Russia, to which is prefixed a short General History of the Country from the rise of that monarchy, and an account of the Author's life.

Major-General Gordon married (1) in 1699 or 1700 Katherine Elizabeth, elder daughter of General Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries, and widow of Colonel Strasburg of the Russian army, and by her (who died in December, 1739) he had several children who all died in infancy. He married (2) Margaret, eldest daughter of Sir Thomas Moncrief of that Ilk, by whom he had no issue. His widow died at Edinburgh on September 19, 1788 (Scots Mag.).

Major-General Gordon died at Auchintoul on July 31, 1751 (Scots Mag.), and was buried in the churchyard of Marnoch. Having no surviving issue he was succeeded in Auchintoul and Laithers by his nephew.

ALEXANDER GORDON, IV. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Nephew of III. : died 1763.)

Alexander Gordon of Dorlathers, eldest son of George Gordon of Dorlathers, was served heir general to his uncle, Major-General Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul, on July 24, 1753 (Index of Heirs). Alexander Gordon of Dorlathers joined the rebels as a volunteer in 1745, and in 1746 the rental of Dorlathers was said to be £60 sterling, with a mansion house in "pretty good condition" (List of Rebels, Scot. Hist. Soc., pp. 30, 312).

He married Helen, second daughter of Alexander Irvine of Drum, and by her (who died on December 6, 1764, aged 64) he had a son, Alexander, and a daughter, Catharine, who both succeeded to Auchintoul.

The fourth laird died on June 2, 1763, aged 58 (Jervise's Epitaphs, ii., 224).

ALEXANDER GORDON, V. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Son of IV. : died 1768.)

Alexander Gordon, V. of Auchintoul, succeeded his father in 1763. He was an officer in the rebel army of 1745 (List of Rebels, Scot. Hist. Soc., p. 30); and was in France in 1748, when he received from the King of France a gratuity of 800 livres (Browne's Hist. of the Highlands, Stuart Papers, No. cxxiv.). From John Abernethie he bought the town and lands of Corskie in the parish of Marnoch and had sasine thereon on May 15, 1764 (Sasines). He died unmarried on March 30, 1768.

CATHARINE GORDON, VI. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Daughter of IV. : died 1797.)

Catharine Gordon was served heir to her brother, Alexander Gordon of Auchintoul, on August 12, 1768 (Index of Heirs). On September 19, 1772, sasine was granted to Lord Adam Gordon of Prestonhall in liferent and Miss Katherine Gordon of Auchintoul in fee upon the barony of Auchintoul; and on September 23, 1772, sasine was granted to James Irvine of Kingcaussie in liferent and Katherine Gordon of Auchintoul in fee upon the lands of Mid Culvie and others in Marnoch (Sasines). She died unmarried in June, 1797, and was succeeded by her cousin.

FREDERICA GORDON OR DE ROSENWALD, VII. OF AUCHINTOUL.

(Cousin of VI.)

Frederica Gordon, widow of Quieten de Rosenwald, was served heir of provision special to her cousin, Catharine Gordon of Auchintoul, in the barony of Auchintoul and the lands of Laithers on July 12, 1798 (Index of Heirs), and that year sold the lands to John Morison, afterwards of Bognie. On May 10, 1799, Christine Gordon, widow of Theiner de Rethem, Major in the service of the Emperor of Germany, resigned her half of the lands of Corskie in favour of her sister, Frederica Gordon, widow of Quieten de Rosenwald in the service of the Emperor of Germany; and on June 17 Madame de Rosenwald sold the whole lands of Corskie to John Morison of Auchintoul (Auchintoul Titles). According to tradition, the weather of the first winter that Madame de Rosenwald and her sister spent in Scotland after the death of their cousin was so severe that they resolved to return to Germany; but the vessel in which they sailed was never heard of again and was believed to have foundered in a storm (Banffshire Journal, July 30, 1889).

THE GORDONS OF ARDMEALLIE.

The arms of Gordon of Ardmeallie as recorded in 1721 are: Quarterly: 1st and 4th, Azure, three boars' heads erased or within a bordure of the last charged with eight crescents (referring to the Seton descent) gules; 2nd and 3rd (for Meldrum), Argent, a demi otter issuing out of a bar wavy sable. Crest: a boar's head erased or. Motto: "Byd bee".

JAMES GORDON, I. OF ARDMEALLIE.

(Son of George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie; died 1723.)

James Gordon, I. of Ardmeallie, was the third son, by the first marriage, of George Gordon, IV. of Coclarachie. He obtained possession of the lands of Ardmeallie in the parish of Marnoch, Banffshire, between 1672 and 1674.

The former proprietor was John Gordon. There is recorded in the Elgin Commissary Records, on October 24th, 1681, a discharge, "written be Johne Gordone of Ardmellie and subscribed at Patrick Brouns hous in the Raws of Strathbogie the fourth day of July 1672 befor thir witnesses James Innes in Ardmellie and Johne Gordone of Ardmellie," by which James Gordon, merchant in Aberdeen, having received "nyne bolls and thrie firlotts of oats with the fodder," discharged his uncle, Robert Gordon sometime in Ardmellie, of a bond, dated May 17, 1672, for "thrie scoir and seven merks". James Gordon of Ardmeallie was the husband of Isobel Meldrum on January 16, 1674, when she and her two sisters were served heirs portioner to Mr. John Hay of Logie, their uncle (Retours).

Through his wife James Gordon of Ardmeallie became in 1674 portioner of the lands of Logie in Crimond, Aberdeenshire. Mr. John Hay of Logie died 1673 and left these lands to the three daughters of his sister who had married Peter Meldrum of Laithers, and these three sisters were served heirs portioner on January 16, 1674. Mary, the eldest, had married David Stewart of Newton, commissary of Moray; Isobel, the second, had married James Gordon of Ardmeallie; and Elspet, the youngest, had married Mr. David Cumming, minister of Edinkillie in Morayshire. Before 1696 David Stewart and James Gordon had acquired Mrs. Cumming's right, as they alone appear as portioners of Logie in the Poll Book (ii., 48). David Stewart died in February, 1705, and his widow died in June, 1708 (Index of Heirs); and shortly after James Gordon acquired the whole of Logie.

1679. December 15.—He witnessed the marriage contract of his half-brother, John Gordon of Coclarachie (Appendix X.)

1696. May 5.—He had sasine on an annualrent of 6,600 merks out of Rattanach and Knachland in the parish of Rothiemay (Sasines).

September 26.—He gave his consent to the marriage of his half-sister, Janet Gordon (Appendix XI.)

1700. November 7.—He was chancellor of the jury that condemned James Macpherson, the freebooter (Cramond's Banff, i., 101).

1708. March 15.—He was made an ensign in Aberdeen on account of the threatened invasion of the French (Aberdeen Burgh Records).

July 2.—His wife was served co-heir to her sister, Mary, widow of David Stewart, commissary of Moray (Index of Heirs).

James Gordon of Ardmeallie married Isobel, second daughter of Peter Meldrum of Laithers, by whom he had three sons and a daughter:—

1. PETER, succeeded to Ardmeallie.

2. ALEXANDER, succeeded to Logie in Crimond before 1721 (Coll. Aberd. and Banff, p. 426). In 1746 the laird of Logie was said to have a rental of £260 sterling, with "a fine house" (List of Rebels, Scot. Hist. Soc., p. 305). He married, and had a son and two daughters:—

(1) ROBERT, succeeded to Logie. Robert Gordon, younger of Logie, joined the rebels at Edinburgh in 1745 (Ibid., p. 91), and was one of those who were excepted by name from the general pardon of June, 1747 (Gent.'s Mag., June, 1747; Chambers' Rebellion of 1745-6, 7th ed., p. 482). On October 4, 1752, he was served heir to his father (Index of Heirs).

He seems to have sold the lands of Logie. He married and had twin sons and a daughter.

- i. JAMES, born at Milton of Drum in the parish of Peterculter, Aberdeenshire, was a farmer at Logie in Crimond and afterwards at Mains of Orrock in the parish of Belhelvie, and was distinguished for improvements in the cultivation of turnips. He died at Aberdeen on November 6, 1841, aged 89 (Scottish Notes and Queries, viii., 99; Smith's Hist. of Aberdeenshire, p. 428).
- ii. ALEXANDER, twin brother of James, was a student in Arts at Marischal College, Aberdeen, 1763-67, and thereafter studied medicine at Aberdeen and Edinburgh. Having obtained a certificate from the Corporation of Surgeons, London, he entered the Royal Navy in 1780 as a surgeon's mate, was raised in 1782 to the rank of surgeon, and served on H.M.S. Otter. In 1785 he was placed on half-pay, and, after spending some time in London in the special study of midwifery, he went to Aberdeen and began general practice there. In 1786 he was appointed physician to Aberdeen Dispensary, and was annually re-elected till he left Aberdeen. While in Aberdeen he gave lectures on midwifery to medical students. In 1788 he received the degree of M.D. from Marischal College. In January, 1796, he relinquished his practice in Aberdeen, having been called on to resume active duty in the Navy; and in the same year he was admitted a Member of the Corporation of Surgeons, London. In 1799 he was invalided home, and went to Logie, the residence of his brother, where he died on October 19, aged 47. In 1795 he published a Treatise on the Epidemic Puerperal Fever of Aberdeen, which was reprinted at Edinburgh in 1822 as an appendix to Dr. William Campbell's Treatise on the Epidemic Puerperal Fever of Edinburgh, 1821-22. Dr. Campbell says in his preface (p. xii.)—"To the present work I have added the valuable essay of Dr. Gordon as an appendix, for it is now entirely out of print, although a publication of the first practical utility, and one the possession of which must be desirable to every man in practice, since to its author we are unquestionably indebted for having been the first to prove that puerperal fever was not quite so untractable as the plague, but that it might on the contrary be successfully encountered". The value of the treatise was again recognised in 1849, when it was reprinted by the Sydenham Society (Anderson's Fasti Acad. Marisc., ii., 131, 334; Scottish Notes and Queries, viii., 99; Biog. Note by his grandson, Dr. A. Harvey, in reprint of Treatise on Fever, 1849; Rodger's Aberdeen Doctors, pp. 46, 67). Dr. Gordon married in 1783 Elizabeth Harvey, and by her (who was born on February 21, 1760, and died on March 10, 1840) he had two daughters.

(i.) MARY, born on November 12, 1784, married Dr. Robert Harvey of Braco near Inverurie, and died on June 14, 1818, leaving, with other children, a son Alexander Harvey, A.M., M.D., Professor (1860-78) of Materia Medica in the University of Aberdeen.

(ii.) ELIZABETH, died on January 7, 1793, aged 6.

iii. Daughter, died, unmarried, at Banff on July 29, 1824, aged 70 (Aberdeen Journal).

(2) ISOBEL, died, unmarried, at Aberdeen in March, 1780 (Aberdeen Commissariat, Gen. Reg. House, July 20, 1780).

(3) ELIZABETH, died, unmarried, at Aberdeen on August 8, 1790 (Aberdeen Journal).

3. JAMES was a merchant in Aberdeen. He purchased in 1724 the lands of Banchory in the parish of Banchory-Devenick, Kincardineshire, but sold them in 1743 to Alexander Thomson, advocate in Aberdeen (Coll. Aberd. and Banff, p. 265; Henderson's Banchory-Devenick, p. 20); and in 1741 possessed lands in the parish of Premnay of the annual value of £766 13s. 4d. Scots (Scottish Notes and Queries, 2nd series, ii., 120). He died at Aberdeen on February 6, 1751, aged 67. "He acquired a considerable fortune by merchandize, with an irreproachable character; was universally esteemed for many valuable qualities and distinguished for his benevolent and peaceable disposition" (Aberdeen Journal). His brother, Alexander, had from him on loan £11,200 Scots (Aberdeen Commissariat, Gen. Reg. House, June 20, 1753). He married (1) Margaret, daughter of Robert Cumming of Birness, and had two daughters, who on May 7, 1740, were served heirs portioner to their aunt, Ann Cumming, daughter of Robert Cumming of Birness (Index of Heirs)—

(1) ANN, who married in 1757 John Gordon of Craig, and died in 1774, leaving issue.

(2) ISOBEL.

He married (2) Mary, daughter of James Buchan of Auchmacoy, and had—

(3) THOMAS, who was served heir to his father on November 9, 1751 (Index of Heirs). He succeeded to his father's lands in the parish of Premnay; and also acquired Sheelagreen in the parish of Culsalmond, and in 1798 Heathcot in the parish of Maryculter (Henderson's Lower Deeside, p. 201). He died at Suffolk Street, London, W.C., on July 19, 1819, aged 73 (Gent.'s Mag.), and was succeeded by his sister, Mary. He bequeathed to the parish of Premnay £1,000 and to the parish of Culsalmond £600, the interest of which sums is applied for the support of the poor of these parishes (Smith's Hist. of Aberdeenshire, pp. 462, 1166).

(4) MARY, who married on January 21, 1768, Dr. (afterwards Sir) Alexander Bannerman, Professor of Medicine in King's College, Aberdeen, and had issue (Anderson's Officers, etc., of King's College, p. 38). She succeeded to her brother's lands, but soon sold them.

4. MARY, married Skene of Lethintie (Balb. MS., p. 53).

James Gordon, I. of Ardmeallie, died in 1723; for in June, 1723, it was reported to the Kirk Session of Marnoch that "James Gordon of Ardmeallie, lately deceased," had bequeathed 100 merks for the poor of the parish (Marnoch Session Rec.).

PETER GORDON, II. OF ARDMEALLIE.

(Son of I.: died 1762.)

Peter Gordon, II. of Ardmeallie, was the eldest son of James Gordon of Ardmeallie.

1709. April 24.—Peter Gordon of Ardmeallie was one of the heritors of Marnoch (Marnoch Session Rec.).

1726. August 10.—He had sasine on part of the moss of Tilliedoun (Banff Sasines).

1729. March 11.—He had sasine on an annualrent of 200 merks out of Haddo in the parish of Forgue (Sasines).

1733.—He bought the lands of Barrie in the parish of Marnoch from William Duff of Crombie (Antiq. Aberd. and Banff, ii., 426).

1747. September 4.—He and his spouse had sasine on a tenement in Portsoy (Sasines).

1748. May 27.—He was one of those qualified to wear arms after the Jacobite rebellion (Banffshire Journal, May 30, 1899).

1750. March 20.—The presbytery of Strathbogie visited the school of Marnoch and ascertained that, although they had on February 15, 1749, "recommended all schoolmasters to take particular care that the several schoolhouses should not be alienated to any other purpose than the teaching of youth allendarly, and had ordered every schoolmaster to get an extract of this resolution as a sufficient warrant for them not to give up the schoolhouses for to be used for selling of ale and other abuses at mercats or other publick occasions, which the presbytery understood had been frequently practised, particularly at Marnoch," yet Patrick Gordon of Ordmelly, after being shown a copy of the presbytery's resolution, had by letter demanded from the schoolmaster, John Smith, the keys of the schoolhouse for Marnoch fair on March 6, 1750, and "Mr. Smith still refusing to deliver up the keys, James Gordon, younger of Ordmelly, with several others in company, did on the said day in a violent and riotous manner break open the door both of the schoolhouse and school-chamber, breaking and destroying the seats belonging thereto, and making use of the schoolhouse through that day for selling of ale and other purposes. The presbytery looking upon this as a matter of publick concern . . . and having discoursed with Ordmelly thereanent," resolved that they would, "if he persisted in claiming any property in the said schoolhouse in time coming, take care to guard against any encroachments of the like nature, and this they intimated to him" (Strathbogie Presb. Rec.).

He married (1) in 1706 Ann, daughter of Robert Bisset of Lessendrum (Temple's Fermartyn, p. 252), by whom he had three children who died young; and (2) Mary, eldest daughter of James Duff of Crombie (Baird's Duffs, p. 46), by whom he had:—

1. JAMES, who succeeded to Ardmeallie.
2. ARCHIBALD, who received from his father, on June 30, 1733 (Sasines), the lands of Zeuchrie, part of Ardmeallie, but died, unmarried, in September, 1741, before his father. On April 5, 1753, his brother, James, was served heir to him in these lands (Index of Heirs), his father having renounced his right in the lands (Sasines, September 28, 1753).
3. MARY, who married John Gordon of Avochie, in the parish of Huntly, and died on April 5, 1785, leaving issue (Jervise's Epitaphs, ii. 382).
4. HELEN, who married John Innes of Muiryfold, in the parish of Grange, and had no issue.

Peter Gordon, II. of Ardmeallie, died at Ardmeallie in April, 1762 (Marnoch Session Rec.).

JAMES GORDON, III. OF ARDMEALLIE.

(Son of II. : died 1791.)

James Gordon, III. of Ardmeallie, was the eldest son of Peter Gordon of Ardmeallie. In 1757 he had sasine on February 8 on Ardmeallie, on May 5 on Barrie, and on May 6 on Northfield (Sasines).

He married on January 25, 1757, Janet, daughter of John Leith of Leith-Hall (Scots Mag.).

He died at Ardmeallie on July 31, 1791 (Scots Mag.), and after his death the lands were sold to John Morison, afterwards of Bognie.

ABSTRACT OF I.

Instrument of sasine attesting that on May 18, 1534, Patrick Orum of Cardnavit as "attorney for Jonet Gordoun, daughter of the late George Gordoun," produced letters from James, Earl of Moray, Sheriff Principal of Aberdeen, containing Crown precept of sasine which enjoined sasine to be given to Jonet Gordoun, as legitimate and nearest heir of Elizabeth Wentoun, her mother, of the fourth part of Kovclairoquhy with the mill of the same, of the half of the sixth part of Garrye, and of the fourth part of Drumdurnoht, and stating that William Forbes of Crossindavy had become security for £70 Scots, feuduties resting for seven years; and that accordingly John Bessat, one of the mairs of Aberdeen, gave sasine in presence of Mr. John Gordoun, John Maky, John Covbayn, George Leslie, Patrick Davistoun and Mr. John Smolt; the notary being William Davidsoun.

On the outside of the Instrument is this note:—"23 Junij, 1554 product. et admiss. in assisa," i.e., "23 June, 1554, produced and admitted in an assize"—evidently the assize at which Alexander Forbes was found heir to his mother, Jonet Gordon.

ABSTRACT OF II.

Instrument of sasine attesting that on February 10, 1560, "George Gordoun, hereditary proprietor of Blairrendenny" produced a charter of sale with precept of sasine, dated at Aberdeen February 7, 1560, by "Alexander Forbes, portioner of Cokclaroquhy," and received sasine in "the fourth part of the town and lands of Cokclaroquhy, the fourth part of the town and lands of Newbiging, the fourth part of the croft of Futtly, with the two oxgangs of the lands of Garry, as also the fourth part of the Mill of Cokclaroquhy, commonly called the Mill of Ryalbane . . . lying within the barony of Drumblait and county of Aberdeen"; in presence of . . . Gordoun in Cokclaroquhy, James . . . there, William Bisset there, and John . . . in Balquharne; the notary being John Grey.

The instrument is to a large extent illegible through damp. The charter of sale of February 7, 1560, was confirmed under the Great Seal on March 16, 1615 (Reg. Mag. Sig.).

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE great source of information about the Gight Gordons is the Privy Council Register, and the importance of the family is so great, and their lawlessness is so vividly described there, that I have not hesitated to quote at length. The Balbithan MS. contains a good account of the family (pp. 15-8). Dr. Temple in his Thanage of Fermartyn (pp. 72-8) gives a deduction based on the Balbithan MS. I have consulted a great many other authorities, who will be found cited in the course of the history, which is an enlargement of two different sets of articles contributed by me to the Aberdeen Free Press, November 11, 18 and 25, December 21, 1898, and March 25, 1899, to Scottish Notes and Queries, February, 1899-February, 1900. I have been unable to discover the whereabouts of the contents of the Gight charter chest. I am indebted for help to Rev. Dr. Temple, Mr. Murray Rose, Rev. Dr. Milne, Fyvie; Mr. A. M. Munro, Aberdeen; and others, notably Rev. Stephen Ree, Boharm; and Captain Wimberley, Inverness, who have read the proof sheets—a very laborious task. I have dealt in a more or less narrative fashion with the two most famous members of the family, Colonel John Gordon, who was implicated in the assassination of Wallenstein, 1634, and Colonel Nathaniel Gordon, the Royalist, who was executed at St. Andrews, 1646.

THE LAIRDS OF GIGHT.

G I G H T.

THE lands of Gight lie in the parish of Fyvie. The name "Gight" is possibly derived from the Gaelic word Gaothach, pronounced "Ghuach," meaning a windy place. Locally it is pronounced "Gecht". The lands have been held by two different branches of the Gordons since 1467. In that year they came into the possession of Sir William Gordon, third son of George, second Earl of Huntly, and were held by his descendants until 1787, when they were sold to the third Earl of Aberdeen, representing the Gordons of Haddo, who are descended from "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue, the natural cousin of Elizabeth Gordon who was the founder of the House of Huntly. The Gight Gordons have gained more notoriety than almost any other cadet in view of the fact that Lord Byron represented their line, and by reason of their extraordinary spirit of revolt which was exemplified in the poet's strange career, and is summed up in a number of well-known "frets":—

- (1) Twa men sat down by Ythan Brae :
The ane did to the ither say—
"And what sic men may the Gordons o' Gight hae been ?"
- (2) When the heron leaves the tree
The laird o' Gight shall landless be.
- (3) At Gight three men a violent death sall dee,
And efter that the land shall lie in lea.

The career of the first branch, which ended with the "unlucky" number, the thirteenth laird, was certainly crowded with murder and sudden death; and from first to last was dominated by a spirit of revolt against the established order of things unequalled in the history of any other branch of the House of Gordon. Consequently, the career of the Gight family has been a happy hunting-ground for the modern theorists on “degeneracy,” and a great deal has been written about the family, though, curiously enough, this is almost the first chapter-and-date investigation. It must however be admitted that in the case of the Gight Gordons, history completely verifies the traditionary character of the family. One may sum up the disasters which attacked the family in tabular form, so that the reader may see at a glance what to expect.

The 1st Laird of Gight fell at Flodden.

One son killed at Pinkie (?).

One son-in-law was murdered.

One son-in-law fell at Pinkie.

Three grandsons (including the 3rd Laird) were murdered.

One grandson was executed.

One grandson was drowned.

One grandson fell in Holland.

One grandson fell in Flanders.

One grand-daughter's husband was murdered (by her own brother).

Two great-grandsons were murdered.

One great-grandson assassinated Wallenstein.

One great-grandson fell in Holland.

One great-grandson died in prison.

One great-grand-daughter's husband was poisoned.

One great-grand-daughter was arrested for an assault (on a man).

One great-grand-daughter was excommunicated.

One great great-grandson decamped to Germany.

One great great-grandson was murdered.

One great great-grandson was executed.

One great great-grandson was killed in Paris (?).

One great great great-grandson (8th Laird) besieged his own mother's house.

The 11th Laird (great-grandson of the 8th) was drowned (? suicide).

His son,

The 12th Laird, was drowned (? suicide). It was his daughter,

The 13th and last Laird, who married Captain Byron.

The house of Gight, which is now a complete ruin, stands most picturesquely on the brink of a rocky eminence, looking down upon the beautiful valley of the river Ythan. I cannot say exactly when the house became a ruin. In May, 1644, the Covenanters had done much to destroy it, as related by Spalding (The Troubles, Spalding Club Edition, ii., 369):—

Thay [the Covenanters] tuke out the staitlie insicht and plenishing, sic as bedding, naiprie, veschell caldrouns, chandleris, fyre veschell, quhair of thair wes plenty; kistis, cofferis, cabinetis, trvnkis, and all vther plenishing and armour (quhair of thair wes [of course] plentie . . .), quhilk thay could get careit on horss or foot, bot wes takin away south: togidder with the haill oxin, nolt, ky, horss, meiris, and scheip, quhilkis war vpon the said Maynes of Haddoche and Geicht, and not ane four footed best left that thay could get. When thir commodeteis wes plunderit and spolzeit, then thay began to wirk vpon the tymber warkis quhilkis war fixt, and thair thay cruellie brak doun the wanescot burdes, bedis, capalmries, tymber wallis, sylring, toome girnellis and the lyk, and maid fyre of all. Thay took out the iron yettis, iron stauncheouns of windois, brak doun the glassin windois and left nather yett, dur, nor wyndo onbrokin doun; and, in effect, left thame desolat befor thay removit.

This was not the final finishing of the house; but I suspect that the actual decay of the place began during the absences of Mrs. Byron's grandmother in Banff and of her father in England. That the place was going to rack and ruin during his ownership is shown by the observation of the writer of the article on Fyvie in the new Statistical Account (1845). He says:—

The burial place of the family of Gordon of Gight is in the parish churchyard. Formerly it was within the old church, and, upon the new church being built, my predecessor acquainted the Honourable Mrs. Byron of the altered situation in which it stood as being now exposed; and put in her view the propriety of raising some protection round it, but without success.

In Byron's time the castle was in ruins, for he described it in Childe Harold's Pilgrimage (canto iii., stanza 47) as—

Worn, but unstooping to the baser crowd,
 All tenantless save to the cranny wind,
 Or holding dark communion with the cloud.
 There was a day when they were young and proud;
 Banners on high and battles passed below;
 But they who fought are in a bloody shroud,
 And those which waved are shredless dust ere now,
 And the bleak battlements shall bear no future blow.

Sir William Allan, M.P., in the Rose of Methlic, describes the ruins thus:—

Like some old eagle's barren nest,
 High perched upon a rocky crest,
 The ruined castle, grim and grey,
 Still beautiful in cold decay,
 Looks down upon the glen beneath,
 In silent majesty of death.

They were described in Sir Andrew Leith Hay's Castellated Architecture of Aberdeenshire; they were pictured by Mrs. J. B. Pratt in her husband's book on Buchan (1858). There is an excellent ground-plan of Gight Castle in Macgibbon and Ross's Castellated and Domestic Architecture of Scotland, 1888 (i., 322). The writers say:—

The plan of the ground floor is well preserved, and is somewhat remarkable. It is on the L plan, but the door enters in the centre of one limb, and has a long passage running right through the building to the staircase, which is in the centre of the back wall. The same arrangement may be observed at Craig Castle. From a bend in the passage a shot-hole commands the entrance door. In the vault of the lobby adjoining the door there is a small compartment of ribbed and groined vaulting, which is a feature peculiar to several castles in Aberdeenshire. The kitchen has the usual large fire-place, and a service window to the stair. The other compartments, which are vaulted, were bakehouse and cellars, one having the private stair down from the hall. The hall, which occupies the principal portion of the building on the first floor, was a spacious apartment, 37 ft. by 21 ft. It is entered in a peculiar manner, by a stair through one of the window recesses, the stair to the cellar, which was also continued up to the upper floors, also entering from a similar door in the opposite side of the window recess. A small vaulted room is obtained between the hall and the private room, and the walls of the latter are riddled with wall chambers in the manner common in the fifteenth century. From the thickness of the walls, and the number of wall chambers and other features, this castle evidently belongs to the fifteenth century, although probably it was remodelled at a later date. The remains of the tympanum of a dormer window still existing seem to point to this.

One of the most recent descriptions of the ruin appears in a notable parish history, Methlick, Haddo House, Gight, and the Valley of the Ythan, 1899, which was written co-operatively by members of the Methlick Free Church Guild. Mr. Alexander Keith, the editor of this volume, in describing the ruins (pp. 67-75), which are illustrated by wash drawings by Mr. David West, says:—

The part of the castle in best preservation is the doorway, formed of large dressed stones. Immediately above is a recess, where formerly had been the family coat of arms. Entering into the small dark porch, the visitor has his attention arrested by the finely groined arch, with the keystone in the centre. This stone [is] ornamented with symbols of Christ's passion and death. On the lower face, the pierced heart, surrounded by the crown of thorns, can be readily made out, while less clearly, on the sides, may be discovered the pierced hands and feet, the ladder, the hammer, the nails, the spear, and the reed. Facing the doorway is a large room, with an opening in the wall directly opposite the entrance door of the castle. On the left is the kitchen with its huge chimney. . . . Proceeding up, either over the ruins of what had once been a large circular staircase, or by the remains of a smaller and shorter stair, the great hall of the castle is reached, which had on its west side, where attack was least likely to be made, a large window. Amid the wrack and ruin . . . it is impossible to form an adequate idea of the appearance of the structure in its resplendent days. On the level of the hall [which is 37 ft. by 21 ft.] will be observed a triangular structure, consisting of three dressed stones, and surmounted by an ornamental carving. On the middle stone is a cross, and on the lowest are carved the letters M. A. R., with a heart pierced by a sword at the extreme base. This is commonly supposed to have been the upper portion of a dormer window, the remains of a private chapel or oratory dedicated to the Virgin. [This seems to have been the chapel which the General Assembly had ordered to be demolished in 1608.]

The Arms of Gordon of Gight, as recorded 1775, are:—Quarterly : 1 and 4, Azure, a mullet argent between three boars' heads coupé or ; 2 and 3, Azure, on a fess engrailed between three pheons argent a buck's head erased of the field. Crest : a buck's head and neck affrontée issuing out of the crest wreath, charged on the breast with a star argent. Motto : " Bydand ".

SIR WILLIAM GORDON, I. OF GIGHT.

(Killed at Flodden, 1513.)

Sir William Gordon, first of the House of Gight, was the third son of George, second Earl of Huntly (died 1500), by his second wife, Princess Annabella Stuart, daughter of James I. of Scotland. She had been married to Lewis, Count of Geneva, son of Lewis, Duke of Savoy, but the marriage was dissolved owing to the intrigues of the French King. She married Huntly in 1459, and was divorced from him under Papal law in 1471.

The estate of Schives had belonged to the old family of Maitland. Sir Patrick Maitland died, leaving two sisters, Elizabeth and Janet. The second Earl of Huntly financed them, and they resigned Schives in his favour, as will be seen by the following documents now in the charter chest of Ellon Castle (transcribed by Mr. Murray Rose):—

1467. May 25.—Elizabeth and Janet Maitland, sisters, heirs of Sir Patrick Maitland of Netherdale, become bound and " oblist till ane noble and michte lord, our deirist lord George Lord Gordon, master of Huntlie [afterwards 2nd Earl of Huntly], for his gret lordschips favour in maintenance, supply and help done till us in supplying, helping and following and recovery of our said fadyr heritage . . . and alsua for ye helping and furthering of us till oure marriages and for gret somys of gold, silvuyr and other moveabils, gudes giffine till us . . . for the gret costs, expensis, travils, and labouris which the said lord has made. . . ." When they are infest in their father's property they will make resignation thereof in the favour of Huntly.—Dated at Methlick.

1467. June 12.—The Royal Charter following on last, to George, Lord Gordon of Gight, Naterdale, Pettinbrinzeane and Drumnaketh.—Dated at Perth.

The Balbithan MS. account of the whole affair runs :—

Sir Patrick Maitland Barron of Gight and Sheeves leaving only three [only two are mentioned in the charters] Daughters, Earle George got the gift of the Ward of their marriage, and his said third son William Gordon not being willing to marry any of the three daughters, Earl George provided them of other Husbands, with whom he transacted for the Lands of Gight and Sheeves, which he gave to his son the said William.

The elder daughter Elizabeth is stated (Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 308) to have married "Jock" Gordon of Scurdargue, but the dates seem to suggest that "Jock's" consort was at least the aunt of Elizabeth mentioned in the charter of 1467. In the Sir Name of Baird (1870, p. 13) we are told that Huntly gave the other daughter, Janet Maitland, in marriage to her cousin-german, Thomas Baird, and with her the lands of Drumnaketh, Pettinbrinzeane and others in the Boyne, and several lands, fishings and houses about Banff, "particularly the lodging formerly belonging to Lord Airly and now to Lord Fife". This Maitland-Baird marriage, according to the same authority, took place in 1490, "and is instructed by the following writs" :—

1505. April 11.—Discharge: Thomas Baird and Janet Maitland, his spouse, to William Gordon of Gight, upon the payment of 3,000 merks in lieu of claims.

The Maitlands retained some hold on the lands of Schives,¹ for they received a charter of infestment from the king on July 6, 1672

(Acts of Parliament). On August 3, 1674, Sir Richard Maitland of Pitrichie, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and his son, Sir Richard (as noted in the Records of Aboyne, p. 337), entered into a contract with Charles, Earl of Aboyne, whereby they sold to him the lands and barony of Gight, or Schivas, and, in terms of that contract, they resigned the lands. Thereupon Charles II. granted a charter under the Great Seal of the lands and barony of Gight in favour of the Earl of Aboyne, dated Edinburgh, August 4, 1675. On May 31, 1678, Sir Richard (the second) was served heir to his father, the Senator, in (among other places) the shady third part of Newton of Schivas, with the pertinents called Skillmanee, which lands were held "immediately in chief of Sir George Gordon of Gight and Robert Irvine of Fedderet, or either of them . . . in feu farm and heritage for yearly payment of 40 shillings Scots at two terms in the year". He also held the double part of the towns and lands of Auchincrive from the same owners (Antiq. Aberdeen and Banff, iii., 76). On January 28, 1681, Charles Maitland was served heir to his brother, Sir Richard, in the lands and barony of Gight, with the tower, fort, manor place and tithes, which were all held in chief of the king in free barony and heritage perpetually (Ibid., iii., 559).

On October 8, 1479, Huntly gave the estate of Gight to his second son, Adam, who married Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland, and who founded the Gordon line of the Sutherland family. Huntly dated a charter "apud le Geych" on May 4, 1481 (Ibid., ii., 271). Adam exchanged Gight for Aboyne with his younger brother, William ("familiaris armiger"), on November 1, 1490:—

Rex confirmavit cartam Georgei comitis de Huntlee et dom. de Badienach—[qua—pro filiali affectione etc.—concessit filio suo carnali Willelmo Gordoun—terras et baroniam de Scheves cum juribus et pertinentiis vic. Abirdene—quas Adam Gordoun filius carnalis ejusdem comitis, in excambium quarundam terrarum baronie de Oboyne, vic. predict, in manus dicti comitis personaliter resignavit. Tenend. dicto Wil et heredibus ejus masculis de corpore legitime procreatis, quibus deficientibus heredibus dicti comitis quibuscunque reversuras. Faciend. regi servitium forinsecum quantum de terris et baronia de Scheves pertinet, et dicto comiti tres sectas ad tria placita capitalia de Huntlee apud principale messuagium ejusdem, necnon debita et consueta servitia]. Test. Alex. dom de Gordoun, David Ogilvy de Tolmad, Pat. Grantuly, rectore de Glas, John Andree, vicario de Botary, And. Frasare et And. Nesbit:—Apud Huntlee, 2 Oct., 1490 (Great Seal).

Another stage in the history of the estate was when Lord Huntly resigned Schivas, for on May 16, 1498, the king confirmed William's charter, settling the estate on him; failing him, on his brother, James; and failing him, on the earl and his heirs.

On January 4, 1510-1 (Great Seal), the king again confirmed the charter by William Gordon and Jonete Ogilvy, his wife (mentioned here for the first time).

On December 6, 1512, the king confirmed the charter by which William sold to Alexander Gray, burgess of Aberdeen, the lands of Newton of Schivas (Ibid.). This deal may explain the fact that Sir William was elected a burgess of Aberdeen in 1511-2, along with Robert Anthone, tailor (Miscellany of the New Spalding Club, p. 45). It shows that William was borrowing money and that the worthy burgess of Aberdeen had money to lend.

On November 24, 1506, there is a deed of sasine in favour of John Gordon, son and heir of John Gordon, of Lungar, on charter of William Gordon of Schivas, of the lands of Petnagoak, in the barony of Schivas (Index to the Parkhill Charters, quoted in Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 309).

On May 2, 1508, William Gordon of Schivas was one of the witnesses to the protest of John, Earl of Crawford, respecting the lands of Park and Kellie.

Sir William Gordon, with his brothers, the Earl of Huntly and Lord Adam, fought at Flodden (September, 1513). Adam fled from the field; Sir William was found among the dead (Earls of Sutherland, p. 86).

He married Janet Ogilvie (who was alive in 1511), daughter of the laird of Boyne, "with whom he begat three sons and a daughter" (Balbithan MS., p. 15). I suggest another son and another daughter:—

1. GEORGE, II. of Gight.

2. JAMES of Cairnbannoch. The Balbithan MS. makes James the third laird, but I cannot get corroborative evidence from official documents. As showing the difficulty of describing definitely the succession of the third and fourth lairds of Gight, the following statement (which contradicts itself) from the Familie of Innes (p. 248) concerning Colonel John Gordon, who helped to assassinate Wallenstein, may be quoted:—

"This Coll. John Gordon was near Cousin german once removed with John Innes of Leuchars, whos mother was Marjorie Gordon, dochter to William Gordon [V.] of Gight, who was cousin german with the said Colonell Gordon. This Collonell Gordon's father was ane John Gordon sone to John Gordon of Kadenbanno, brother to ane Gilbert [really John] Gordon off Ardmachyer, who was father to William Gordon who fell in to be laird of Gight after the slaughter of Sir George. . . . This Collonell Gordon's father and William Gordon of Gight umquhill John Innes's grandfather war brother barnis. Collonell Gordon's guidstyr [was] Gordon of Kadenbanno and William Gordon of [Gight's father] was John Gordon of Ardmachy. Kaddenbanno and Ardmacher were twae brothers cadent neare cousins ather brothers or brothers sons off the laird of Gight."

James at first had the lands of Cairnbannoch, which means the "peaked cairn" (Macdonald's Place Names of West Aberdeenshire, p. 84). Cairnbannoch, which is mentioned in a charter of Fergus, Earl of Buchan, in 1214, had originally belonged to the Abbey of Deer (Aberdeen and Banff, p. 470). Almost the only fact about Cairnbannoch that I have discovered is the statement in the Privy Council Register that William Gordon, V. of Gight, demolished the House of Cairnbannoch. James of Cairnbannoch married, according to the Balbithan MS., — Cheyne, of the Straloch family. The Balbithan MS. says he begat two sons, "Alexander," who became laird of Gight, and William; but the third laird was undoubtedly George. I therefore give James's descendants as follows :—

(1) WILLIAM, who, according to the Balbithan MS., was drowned in the Bogie and left no issue.

(2) JOHN, of Milton of Noth, described in the Balbithan MS. as a natural son. He seems to have gone abroad, for he is stated in the Familie of Innes to have been killed at the "battle of Flanders". He is probably the "Captain Gordon" who, according to Ferguson's History of the Scots Brigade in Holland, was killed before Antwerp, August 13, 1584. Mr. Ferguson identifies him as the Gordon who served in the company of Colonel William Stuart in the brigade, 1579-81. He married Margaret Caldwell (Familie of Innes). On his death she married John Nairn, and had Juda Nairn (whose husband, — Gregor, merchant at St. Andrews, fell at the battle of Kilsyth "contra Montrose"). Margaret Caldwell married, thirdly, Lieutenant Weache, and had a daughter, Anna Weache, whose husband (Alexander Petrie, son of — Petrie, minister of the Scots Church at Rotterdam) was Colonel Gordon's executor. Margaret Caldwell had by her first husband (John Gordon) a son—

COLONEL JOHN, who immortalised himself, in 1634, by helping to assassinate Wallenstein, the generalissimo of the Holy Roman Empire. He began life in the French army. Schiller, in his Death of Wallenstein, says that Gordon and Wallenstein "were pages at the Court of Burgau" at the same period. But this is merely poetical license. Certain it is that Gordon, though a Protestant, entered the army of the Emperor. Fischer (The Scots in Germany, p. 113) says that Schiller fused Walter Leslie and Gordon into one. Schiller's Gordon is "merely a creature of the imagination. History knows nothing of the days of his boyhood being spent together with Wallenstein at Burgau, neither is the Gordon of history the weak-minded old man such as Colonel Butler, the Irishman, describes him. It must be granted, however, that we know little enough of his life." The Rev. Walter Harte's Life of Gustavus Adolphus, London, 1759 (pp. 51-7), quotes Pufendorf to the effect that Wallenstein had "raised him from a private soldier". Burton passed him over in The Scot Abroad. The Dictionary of National Biography does not refer to him; and the local genealogists are quite at sea. You must go to the extensive literature (in German) on Wallenstein to catch the slightest glimpses of him. The Protestantism of Gordon was so strongly marked that one of Wallenstein's correspondents (quoted by Förster in his Life of Wallenstein) declares that "der Calvinische Geist hat den Obrest Gordon zu einem Schelm gemacht"; while Andrew Leslie, writing to Father John Seton in 1638 (as quoted in the State Papers), complains that "Colonel Gordon is not yet a Catholic"; as if strenuous efforts had been made to convert him. This is all the more strange in that the Gight family was defiantly Catholic, and at this very moment was fighting the Covenant with inveterate determination. But Gordon was first and foremost a soldier; not a religionist. Had he been that, he would have entered the army of the Protestant champion, Gustavus Adolphus—"that thundering scourge, that terror of Germanie," as Patrick Gordon calls him in Britane's Distemper. When or how Gordon entered the Austrian service I cannot say, but it was probably via France, and through the influence of Richelieu. Wallenstein's successes roused the jealousy of the hereditary princes of the empire, and he was dismissed in 1630; but, on the death of Tilly at Lech in 1632, he was recalled. On June 26 of that year Wallenstein appeared before Nuremberg, and on July 28 he was attacked vigorously by Gustavus. Gilbert Gordon of Sallagh, in his continuation of The Earls of Sutherland (p. 474), says that Gordon, who "is descended of the hous of Gight," had followed the Emperor (Ferdinand's) "parties since the last warrs in Germany. He was taken prisoner be the King of Sweden [Gustavus Adolphus] hard by the cite of Norenborgh, when he hade his leaguer about that town in defence thereof. The King of Sweden issued out of his leaguer about Norenborgh with a party of a thousand foot and fyve hundredth hors, and rencountering with Collonel Spaw, Leivetenant-Collonel John Gordon, Captain Walter Leslie [son of John Leslie of Balquhain], and others leading a stronger and greater partie of the emperialists, the king invaded them and beat them, after a long and sharp fight : killed the most part of them ; tooke Spaw, Gordon and Leslie prisoners, and sent them into Norembourgh. [Nuremburg, Nov., 1631.] The king kept Leivetenant-Collonel Gordon prisoner with him six weekes, and then for his valour released him without ransome." They were complimented on their gallantry in the fight. But they were not allowed to leave the camp of the victors for five weeks, for Sir John Hepburn, Munro, and the other Scots soldiers in the strange army of Gustavus entertained them, and did not permit them to leave until the armies were once more ready to fight. The next great feature of the campaign was not Swede against Austrian, but Wallenstein against his own Emperor. Wallenstein's victories had turned his head, and he plunged into a series of intrigues by which he hoped to gain high power, if not to found a dynasty. His treasonable enterprise had reached such a point that on January 24, 1634, the Emperor signed a secret patent removing him from his command. Wallenstein was not to be baulked, so he resolved to deliver the town of Eger, which is about twenty-five miles from Karlsbad—to-day it has a population of some 19,000 souls—into the hands of the Protestant enemy. On February 23 Wallenstein arrived in the little town with his friends and an army of a thousand men. Leslie discovered the plot, and reported it at once to Gordon, who was the commandant of the town. No time was to be lost to save the Emperor. Before a courier could reach Ferdinand the Swedes might be hammering at the gates. Only one alternative to surrender remained. Wallenstein must be removed at once by the assassin's hand. Gordon was loth to countenance the stroke. He had fought with him on many a field, and had found him a great tactician and an inspiring leader. In The Death of Wallenstein Schiller emphasises (without historic support) this disinclination when he makes Gordon say :—

Seize him and hold him prisoner ; do not kill him :
Murder's a black deed, and Nature curses it.

Gordon listened doubtfully to the advice of his staff. Leslie was all for immediate action ; indeed, he is the heavy villain of the Tragedy of Albertus Wallenstein, by Henry Glapthorne, which was "acted with good allowance at the Globe on the Bank-side by His Majesty's servants" in London in 1639. In the first act Leslie tells Gordon :—

This Wallenstein, like a good easie mule,
 Have I led on by th' nose to this rebellion ;
 Forc'd with such venom as will spread
 Like swift infection through his soul.

There is no evidence that the tragedian's view is historical, but the play must have its villain. Colonel Butler, a fiery Irishman who commanded Count Tertzky's regiment, supported Leslie; the generalissimo must be despatched at once. "Think of his greatness," says Gordon in Schiller's play (in a passage which is a paraphrase of the speech in Glaphthorne); "he's himself so mighty: he seems above his part." Gordon still hesitates, and Butler scouts him (in Schiller) as "poor, weak Gordon," who Prizes above all his fealty.

 His conscious soul accuses him of nothing
 In opposition to his own soft heart.

In the end Leslie and Butler triumphed, and a scheme was laid to nip the traitor's design in the bud. Wallenstein was staying at a house (which is still standing) on the tiny market-place. (A plan of the building and a copy of Gordon's signature will be found in Richard Wapler's Wallenstein's letzte Tage, Leipsic, 1884.) The chief officers of his staff, Count Tertzky, Count Kinsky, Colonel Illo and Colonel Neumann were invited by Gordon on Saturday evening, February 25, to a banquet in the Citadel. All went merry as a marriage bell for a time. Everybody was in the highest spirits, when, at a given signal, the room was filled with dragoons, who had been placed in the adjoining apartments. "Vivat Ferdinandus!" they shouted, as with drawn swords they rushed on the guests. Before such forces the Counts and the Colonels had no chance. Illo and Kinsky were despatched on the spot. Neumann tried to scramble to the kitchen to summon his servant, but was slain in the attempt. Tertzky managed to get his orderly, but the two were overpowered and fell. Thus, in a twinkling, five men fell to save Ferdinand and the Empire; though, if he had been guided by his religious creed, Gordon should have opened the gates to the Protestant troops. But the arch-traitor of all remained. Wallenstein's lodging had already been surrounded by loyal troops, and thither Gordon and his fellow-officers marched. To the last (Schiller's) Gordon protested, and was left to watch the door, while the Irishmen, Colonel Butler and Captain Devereux, accompanied by six Dutch soldiers, mounted the staircase to Wallenstein's room, which looked out on the street. He had just taken a bath, and was standing in his shirt at the windows listening to the tumult. Two of the generalissimo's bodyguard and a servant had to be slain before an entry was effected. Devereux ran Wallenstein through the heart with his halbert, and the traitor sank without a sigh. The Empire had been saved. At first it was rumoured that Gordon himself had done the deed, but this is not so, though the dramatists must needs change history. The ingenious Glapthorne makes Gordon say: "Come softly, and if my stroke miss, second me". Gordon is then made to stab Wallenstein. Schiller even makes Wallenstein harangue Gordon:—

How the old time returns upon me. I Behold myself once more at Burgau, where We two were pages at the Court together.
We oftentimes disputed. My intention
Was ever good; but thou wert wont to play
The moralist and preacher; and wouldst rail at me
That I strove after things too high for me.

Wallenstein then goes over his career, as a drowning man might do; while Gordon bids him remember the "good old proverb":—

Let the night come before we praise the day.
I would be slow from long-continued fortune
To gather hope; for hope is the companion
Given to the unfortunate by pitying Heaven.
Fear hovers round the heads of prosperous men,
For still unsteady are the scales of Fate.

To which Wallenstein replies:—

I hear the very Gordon that of old
Was wont to preach to me, now once more preaching.

Gordon sent Leslie at once to the Emperor with the news. Leslie was created Count of Neustadt, and made a great marriage by wedding Princess Anna de Dietrichstein, the daughter of the Prime Minister. Gordon was created a Marquis, and was made Bearer of the Gold Key, as High Chamberlain to the Emperor. Never before nor since have any natives of Aberdeenshire struck a blow of such international import, for Wallenstein was the Napoleon of his age; and his assassination in the town of Eger on February 25, 1634, made all Europe, then writhing in the Thirty Years' War, open its eyes in wonder. Gordon visited his kinsman, John Innes, at Leuchars in 1644, but "the intesten trouble of Scotland diverted him" from buying an estate in Scotland. He died at Dantzic, and was buried at Delft, Sir John Hurry, the famous Covenanting General, being at the funeral (Familie of Innes, p. 248). He was never married, his property being inherited by his half-sister, Anna Weache, who married Alexander Petrie (son of Petrie, the minister at Rotterdam), whom Gordon left as his executor. There was some squabble about the property, in which Leuchars was involved. Gordon is said to have killed a young man who was "half brother to his sister, called Weache". According to Steven's Scots Church at Rotterdam (1836), a Col. John Gordon died at Delft and left a legacy to the Church in 1649. The same authority says that two silver communion cups were presented to the Scots Church at Rotterdam by Alexander Petrie, one being inscribed "In memoria nobiliss. Dni. John Gordonii, Equst. aur. dn. de Smidars," etc. The cups are now (1902) much battered, and the inscription indecipherable. They have been lent to the Scots Church at Brussels. The official burial record of the Nieuve Kerk at Delft, under date June 1, 1649, gives "Johan Gordon, baron tot Sneidons [sic] Schrivius [Schivas?] . . . collonel". In a MS. at Delft, written and illustrated by Willem van der Lely, burgomaster at Delft, 1768, entitled Collectio Monumentorum sepulcralium, etc., a reproduction of Gordon's escutcheon is given, inscribed "Hic jacet sepultus Ds. Johannes Gordonius, Scotus Eques auratus, dominus in Smipars [sic] et Scrivan, Caesariae majestatis Chiliarcha orthodoxus, gubernator Aegrae, imperatori Ferdinando 2^{do} a cubiculis, obiit Dantisci 17 decemb. Ao. 1648" (Information from the burgomaster of Delft, who says that there is a little about Gordon in P. Fimareten's Versameling van gedenkshikken in Nederland, Delft, 1777, and in R. Boitet's Beschrijving der Stadt Delft, Delft, 1779). Colonel Gordon's will continued to be a subject of dispute for nearly forty years after his death. Fountainhall records that on November 16, 1687, "Sir William Binning, late Provost of Edinburgh, pursued Hope of Carse on the testament of Colonel Gordon. This cause was res hactenus judicata in Holland and the Lady Carss assoylized there. Answered, the process there was upon is previledge, as being testamentum militare: but here it is not insisted on super eo medio bot as holograph: and it is certain that res judicata takes no place except the two lybells be both super eodem medio. . . . Lady Kerss had shunned these papers upoun oath and to evade it had reteired out of the kingdome to Holland and had assigned and conveyed her joynture and all her effects, particularly this right, to some confident for her son's behoff. Her son stated himself a party, and the Court of Session directed (Nov. 23) two commissions, one to Holland for her to depone anent the haveing, and to try, if this defence was proponed there, to take of the res judicata, and the other was direct to Lubick, where the testament was made, if holograph testaments, by their law be probative. The cost of this process was of great importance, being upwards of 40,000 rix dollars; and Sir William [Binning] in journeys to Holland and in processes had wasted more than £1,000 stg. on it" (Fountainhall, Historical Notices, ii., 827-8).

3. JOHN, IV. of Gight.
4. THOMAS. Mr. Murray Rose, who has mislaid his precise reference, tells me that on April 6, 1537, Thomas Gordon, "brother to George of Schives," witnessed a charter at Huntly. Thomas does not appear in Balbithan MS., and I have found no other reference to him.
5. BARBARA, daughter of the first laird. The term "procreatis" in the extract from the Great Seal, November 1, 1490, already quoted, proves that George, II. of Gight, who was born about 1502 was younger than his sisters. Married first William Hay of Lormy (Fraser's Chiefs of Grant, i., 520). In 1553 there was precept of sasine by George Earl of Erroll in favour of Barbara Hay as heir to William Hay of Lormy her father ("consanguineus noster") in the half of the town of Nether Leask (Antiq. Abd. and Banff, iii., 156). Barbara Gordon, who was probably the mother of this Barbara Hay, married secondly, in 1541, John Grant, the first laird of Ballindalloch (who was a widower at the time), and who was killed on September 11, 1559, by John Roy Grant of Carron. As a sample of the idea that ill luck followed the Gight family, I may quote Sir Robert Gordon, who notes (in the Earls of Sutherland, p. 416) that, on the same day seventy-one years later (1630), when the "inveterat feid and malice" between the families were still rampant, John Grant of Ballindalloch, the great-grandson of Barbara Gordon's husband, killed James Grant of Carron. Sir Robert Gordon looked upon this as "the providence and secret judgement of the Almighty God". He remarks:—

John Roy Grant of Carron [the murderer of 1559] wes left-handed: so is this John Grant of Ballendallogh [in 1630] left-handed also: and moreover it is to be observed that Ballendallogh, at the killing of Carron [in 1630], had vpon him the same coat-of-armour, or maillie-coat, which John Roy of Carron had vpon him at the slaughter of the great-grandfather of this Ballendallogh [in 1559]: which maillie-coat Ballendallogh had, a little befor this tyme [1630], taken from James Grant in a skirmish that passed betuixt them. Thus wee doe sie that the judgements of God are inscrutable, and that, in his owne tyme, he punisheth blood by blood.

The "judgement of God," however, did not prevent Ballindalloch's being so harried by the Carrons that he had to "flee from the north of Scotland and live for the most part in Edinburgh". In 1553 the queen granted a charter to John Grant (murdered in 1559). George Gordon "miles," apparently the second laird of Gight, his brother-in-law, and Mr. William Grant appear in it as the "curatores" of Patrick Grant, who bought the land of Tullochcarron at this date. It was he who carried on the Ballindalloch line. Barbara Gordon and John Grant, I. of Ballindalloch, had (according to Fraser's Chiefs of Grant) with other issue:—

PATRICK GRANT, II. of Ballindalloch, born before his parents' marriage, but legitimated October 22, 1542. He had five sons and three daughters, and was succeeded by his eldest son—

PATRICK GRANT, III. of Ballindalloch, who had a son—

JOHN GRANT, IV. of Ballindalloch, who had—

JOHN GRANT, V. of Ballindalloch (died before 1690); had—

JOHN ROY GRANT, VI. of Ballindalloch; married Anne Leslie of Balquhain. Under him the estates became very much encumbered, and were taken possession of by his creditors, who sold them in 1727 to Colonel William Grant (of the regiment which is now the Black Watch), younger son of James Grant of Rothiemurcus, who thus became the founder of the present family of Grant of Ballindalloch. John Roy Grant had a son—

CAPTAIN JOHN GRANT, who entered the Dutch service in 1708. He died before 1763. He had—

PATRICK LESLIE GRANT, who, though no longer holding the Ballindalloch property, became a laird by succeeding his cousin, Count Ernest Leslie, as Protestant heir (he 'verted from Roman Catholicism) to the lands of Balquhain, of which he was the twentieth laird. He died unmarried, and was succeeded by his sister, ELIZA GRANT'S, husband, PATRICK LESLIE DUGUID of Auchenhove. They had no issue. Duguid married a second time, and had a son, John, the 22nd laird of Balquhain, the ancestor of the present laird (Leslie's Family of Leslie).

6. CATHERINE GORDON. I think the "Catherine Gordon of Gight," who married James Innes of Rathmckenzie, as noted in the Familie of Innes (p. 201, and also in the Great Seal), was a daughter of the first laird, and may have been named after his half-sister, Lady Catherine Gordon, who married Perkin Warbeck. James Innes was the son of Robert Innes of Cromy (that is Crombie, in the parish of Marnoch), who was the second son of Alexander Innes of that ilk (died 1491), armour-bearer to James III., by Janet Gordon, daughter of the first Earl of Huntly. James Innes of Rathmakenzie, who was his wife's cousin-german, fell at Pinkie, 1547, and his son—ALEXANDER INNES of Crombie, was brutally murdered in Aberdeen, 1580. Innes of Invermarkie had quarrelled with Crombie, and tracked him to Aberdeen. Simulating a fit, and crying "Murder! Murder! A Gordon! A Gordon!" outside Crombie's lodging at night, Invermarkie induced his enemy to come out, and then shot him dead, while his followers decorated the dead man's body with their dirks. Crombie's son, a young boy, escaped by the back door, afterwards finding shelter with his father's second cousin, Alexander Innes of Cotts, known as "Crag-in-Peril" on account of the part he played at the murder of Invermarkie. "Crag-in-Peril," as we shall see, married his cousin-german, a daughter of the fifth laird of Gight. (See the Familie of Innes, pp. 198, 201.)

SIR GEORGE GORDON, II. OF GIGHT.

(Son of I.)

The second laird of Gight was a minor when his father, Sir William, fell at Flodden. This is shown by the entry in the Exchequer Rolls serving him heir in accordance with the Act of Parliament passed after the battle:—

1516. Sept.—Vicecomes respondebit pro 110 li de firmis terrarum et baronie de Scheves cum suis annexis, unitis tenen. etc, cum pertinen. jacentium infra balliam suam existentium in manibus regis per spatium 3 annorum ult. elaps. sasina non recuperata et pro 40 li de relevio earundem, regi debitis per sasinam datam Georgeo Gordoun de eisdem apud Edinburgh 17 Sept., a. r. 4. per dispensationem et statutum quondam s. d. n. regis predict. ut patet in retornatu (Exchequer Rolls, xiv., p. 587).

The following items refer to the second laird:—

1522. July 15.—He was one of those who witnessed, in Lord Huntly's lodging in Edinburgh, Sir William Scott of Balweary's resignation of the lands of Parkhill in favour of his lordship (Records of Aboyne, p. 55). The same authority tells us (p. 54), that he and his wife, Elizabeth, were parties (no date is stated) to a contract with Alexander Con of Auchry and William, his son, wherein it was stipulated that "so soon as Sir George or his heirs gets lands paying 80 merks penny mail in Buchan or Garioch, and infests said Alexander or William Con, or their heirs therein, by Charter and Sasine, they shall grant to said Sir George wadset right thereof, not to be redeemed for 10 years, for the sum of £800, and a fifteen years' tack after redemption".

1528. Oct. 7.—The king confirms the charter by George Gordon, who had sold to Robert Maitland and Marjorie Garden, his wife, the lands of Auchincreif in Schivas. The witnesses (at Aberdeen, Oct. 2, 1528) were Alexander Hay, Prebend of Turriff, Gilbert Hay of Schivas, Alexander Gordon, Mr. Gilbert Chalmers and Mr. William Hay (Great Seal).

1530. March.—He witnessed the marriage contract between the fourth Earl of Huntly and Lady Elizabeth Keith (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 139).

1530. June 25.—"Geo. Gordoune of Geicht" was cautioner in £1000 that Alexander Fraser of Philorth would thole a great assise for the unjust acquittal of John Dempster of Auchterless (Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, i., 148*).

1531. Dec. 16.—Charter again confirmed, Gordon having sold "ingenioso juveni" Alexander Knowis, son and heir of the late James Knowis, burgess of Aberdeen, the lands of Newton of Schivas. Gilbert Menzies of Findon was young Knowis's tutor (Great Seal).

1532. Feb.—George Gordon, "of the Gycht," witnessed Hector Mackintosh's bond (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 152).

1534. May 7.—Gordon's charter confirmed, he having sold to Laurence Ogilvy ("consanguineo suo"), Newton of Schivas and Boquhanyoquhy in Schivas—"Reservatis dicto Geo. arrendatione et fructibus dict. terrarum donec dict. Laurentius in terris de Newtoun molestaretur et regressu ad eas casu quo non molestaretur" (Great Seal).

George Gordon of Gight was witness of the warrandice of the lands of Migvie in favour of Walter Innes of Touchs. This deed, which is among the Innes Charters at Floors, is undated, but as the Earl has the consent of his curator, Alexander, Bishop of Moray, it must have been within 1526-30 (Information from Mr. Murray Rose. See also Exchequer Rolls, xvi., 22.)

1536. Aug. 23.—George Gordon of Gight witnessed, at Edinburgh, a charter to James Gordon of Coldstone (Great Seal).

1537. Aug. 31.—The Gordons are described for the first time as "de Geith" in the Privy Council Register. Till then they are described as "de Scheves".

1538. July 31.—George Gordon of "Gycht" witnessed Lord Hume's bond at Edinburgh (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 203).

1539. Feb. 11.—The king confirmed the charter of George Gordon of Schives and Elizabeth Gordon, his wife, to the lands of Boquhanyochquhy, in the barony of Schives, which the said George resigned (Great Seal).

1539. Dec. 4.—John Abbot of Deer, having "sett in assedacione to ane rycht honorable man and our speciall louit friend, George Gordone of Scheues . . . all and haill our lands of Carnebannoct, Auchtmontzell and Ardmauchtar . . . for all the termis . . . of nynetene yeris," charges his baillies to deliver sasine of the lands (Antiq. Aberdeen and Banff, iv., 552).

1540. Feb. 11.—The king confirmed the charter by Gordon to his wife in the lands of Boquhanochquy, which Gordon had resigned personaliter (Great Seal).

1540. April 18.—George Gordon, "baron of Gight," as "oure" lord of Robert Gray of Schivas figures in a march dispute about the lands of Sanquhat, the Master of Erskine's property, Auchnagatt and Gultors (Aberdeen Papers, Hist. MSS. Com., 5th Report, Appendix, p. 609).

1543. July 18.—Gordon's charter was confirmed on his selling to David Gordon in Savoch the lands of Newton of Schivas (Ibid.). On July 24 George Gordon of "Schewh" signed a bond made by Cardinal Beaton and others for mutual defence (Gairdner's Letters . . . of Henry VIII., i., 508).

1546. Sept. 3.—He witnessed, at Stirling, a charter of Alexander, Lord Elphinstone, dealing with the lands of Corgarff, Skellater and others (Aberdeen Papers, Hist. MSS. Com.).

1546. Aug. 13.—The protection of Gight was proclaimed at the Cross of Aberdeen by Thomas Hunter as follows: "Maria dei Gracia Regina Scottorum, Omnibus probis hominibus suis ad quos litere pervenerint salutem Sciatis nos dilectum nostrum Georgium Gordon de Schevas terras suas homines suos universas earundem silvas possessiones ac omnia bona sua mobilia et immobilia sub firma pace et protectione nostra juste suscepisse Quare firmiter imhibemus ne quis malum molestiam injuriam seu gravamen aliquod inferre presumat injuste super nostram plenariam forisfacturam. . . . Apud Edinburgh decimo tertio die mensis Augusti anno regni nostri quarto" (Information from Mr. Murray Rose).

1546. Oct. 5.—He was served heir to his father, William Gordon of Schivas, in the lands of Littil Geych within the barony of Schivas (Inquisit. Speciales). George had not got sasine on Little Gight as a minor in 1516, probably because it had been let on tack.

1546. Nov. 15.—The sheriff will answer for £3 6s. 8d. of fermes of the lands of Litill Geych, lying in the barony of Scheves and within his own bailiary, being in the hands of the King of the term of St. Martin's last past, sasine not having been executed: and for £6 13s. 4d. for relief of the same due to the Queen for sasine granted to George Gordon: date as above (Exchequer Rolls).

1547. March 27.—George Gordon witnessed, at Edinburgh, a charter dealing with the Earl of Atholl (Great Seal).

1547. May 8.—The king confirmed the charter by Gordon and his wife, Elizabeth Gordon, in the lands of Little Gight, Boquhannochquhy (with mill), which George resigned. On the same occasion he witnessed, at Edinburgh, one of Lord Huntly's charters. On May 10, George Gordon of Schivas witnessed a deed at Edinburgh (Ibid.).

1547. May 20.—He appeared, with some other lairds, on behalf of William Lord Ruthven, who brought before the Privy Council the dispute he had with Patrick fourth Lord Gray (Privy Council Register).

1547. September 10.—Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, p. 128) says that "Gordon of Gight" was killed at Pinkie. It certainly was not the second laird.

1548.—He witnessed the contract of marriage between John, Lord Forbes, and Margaret, daughter of the fourth Earl of Huntly. Forbes afterwards repudiated the lady, and this added fuel to the feud between the Gordons and the Forbeses, in which the third laird of Gight lost his life (Records of Aboyne, p. 469).

1562. Oct.—George Gordon of Gight, along with the lairds of Haddo, Abergeldie and Lesmoir (all Gordons), were ordered to keep within the burgh of Edinburgh, and “remain within the same and four miles thereabout till freed by the Queen’s Majesty” (Privy Council Register).

1563. Sept. 8.—Queen Mary presented to the Commendator and Convent of Aberbrothock George Gordon of Schivas (“eques auratus”) and his wife Elizabeth to be their hereditary tenants in the lands of Monkshill, the Kirklands, Mill, and brewhouse of Fyvie, and the lands of Ardlogy, previously held by George, formerly Lord Gordon (Antiq. Abd. and Banff, iii., 550).

1564. Oct. 12.—George Gordon, “knycht,” and George Gordon, “younger” of Gight, and eighteen others were arraigned before the Privy Council for the “crewale invasion of William Con of Auchry and hurting and wounding of him in divers parts of his body to the great effusion of his blude; and striking and draging with a brydill three of Con’s cottars and otheris”. “My Lord of Cassillis, My Lord Barthwik, The Lord of Colsgaile, Hew Kennedy of Barquhynaycuire, procurators for the pursuers.” The prolocutors for the panel were Mr. Tho. McCalzane, Mr. David Borthwik, George Baird of Auchmaddy, Mr. Tho. Gordoune. “Beacus sufficient noumer of Barronys and Pearis compeirit nocht to pass upon Assyise of the saidis Lairdis of Geycht elder and younger, the Justice ordanit Souarties to be ressaut of thame, for thair comperance the thred day of the next Justice-aire (Aberdeen) or soner vponne xv dayes warnyng to vnderly the law for the saidis crymes.” Verdict—“Acquittis James Cheyne and the other pannels.” “The Lord of Pittindreych, George Johnestonne of Alychtmond, Mr. Duncan Forbes of Monymusk, and John Forbes of Fynzeak were the only Barons on the Assise. Among the Absentees was William Gordoune of Auchindoune” (Pitcairn’s Criminal Trials, i., 453).

1565. Nov. 29.—George Gordon “miles” was served heir in the lands of Shives to his father William, who had been killed in 1513 (Retours). He probably considered the sasine in his minority as insufficient. If his mother survived till 1565 and had infetment in conjoint fee in certain lands he could not serve himself as heir to his father in these lands until after his mother’s death, as they were for all practical purposes her property till then in consequence of settlement of marriage.

1568.—George Gordon of “Shives, knycht,” signed a bond for the Queen’s service (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 157). On June 27, 1568, he witnessed, at Huntly, the Laird of Macintosh’s bond of manrent to the Earl of Huntly (Ibid., iv., 225).

relevis earundem: regi debitis per sasinam datam Georgio Gordoun de Scheves (Exchequer Rolls, xx., 406). This entry gives a clue to Gight's age.

1570. July 29.—George Gordon of Gight was one of the arbiters for the Earl of Sutherland in a dispute (Fraser's Sutherland, Book ii., p. 140).

1573. Oct. 21.—Vicecomes respondebit pro £12 de firmis totarum integrarum terrarum de Littill Folley . . . existentium in manibus domini regis per spatium unius anni et unius termini ultime elapsorum sasina non recuperata: et pro £8 de relevis earundem regi debitis per sasinam datam Georgio Gordoun (Exchequer Rolls, xx., 449).

The second laird married Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of Robert Gordon of Fetterletter, son of James Gordon, I. of Haddo. Cullen in his diary (Spalding Club Misc., ii., 58) records that Elspet Gordon, Lady Schives, "departit at Aberdeen" on June 10, 1587. The Balbithan MS. (p. 54) says that the second laird had no issue, but the 1564 extract from Pitcairn already quoted seems to show that he had a son.

GEORGE GORDON, III. OF GIGHT.

(Son of II.: killed 1579.)

After full consideration of all the documentary facts, I am compelled to forego the Balbithan MS. theory of the early Gight succession in favour of another as follows:—

I abandon the Balbithan MS. with reluctance, because as a rule it is very correct: but it is unquestionably wrong in calling the fourth laird, who, it says, married Agnes Beaton, "Alexander"; while there is undoubted evidence that John of Ardmachar was served heir to Schivas. I can find no documentary evidence whatever to show that James of Cairnbannoch ever succeeded to Gight ; while the 1564 reference in Pitcairn, already quoted, to the two George Gordons, elder and younger of Gight, strongly suggests that the two were father and son. When George, III. of Gight, died his daughter was served heir to him (1580), while in 1581 his uncle John of Ardmachar was served second heir to him. In any case, George III. was undoubtedly a grandson of the first laird, and represented the third generation of the Gordons of Gight. Very little is known about him. As I have shown, he was delated in 1564 with George Gordon of Schivas, "knycht" (II. of Gight), for the "crewale" invasion of Con of Auchry. The following items also refer to him :—

1568.—George Gordon, "appearand" of Gight signs a bond for the Queen's service (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 157).

1576. May 24.—George Gordon of "Geych" witnessed at Edinburgh a caution of Adam Gordon of Auchindoun on behalf of Allan Balfour (Privy Council Register).

1576. Oct. 26.—George Gordon of Geycht finds surety to re-enter Linlithgow (Privy Council Register).

1577. Nov. 22.—The king confirmed Gight's charter : "qua—pro observatione promissi facti quondam Mariote Ogilvy, domine de Melgem, pro variis gratitudinibus sibi ante complementum matrimonii sui prestitis"—he sold to Agnes Betoun, his wife (and daughter of Lady Melgum), "during her lifetime," various lands, including Gight ("cum turre et fortalicio"). The deed was witnessed at Gight on Oct. 20, 1577, by Gilbert Auchterlony (possibly a relative of the wife of his cousin, William Gordon, fifth laird, who married Isobell Ochterlony), John Gordon, servant of the laird ; John Gordon of Audiaill, and Mr. Patrick Bisset, burghess of Edinburgh (Great Seal).

1579. Jan. 30.—The king confirms the charter—"factam per Guilielmum Craig, dominum liberi tenementi de Craigisfintray ac terrarum subscript. et M. Tho. C., advocatum ac feoditarium earundem"—by which to implement a contract of date December 18 and 22, 1578, a fourth part of the lands of Tullimald, in Turriff, had been sold to George Gordon and Agnes Betoun his wife (Great Seal). On Dec. 10, 1579, the king granted to Patrick Cheyne of Esslemont ("pro bono servitio") these same lands which Gordon and his wife resigned. A daughter of the first laird married a Cheyne of Pennan (Ibid.).

1579. Feb. 20.—Although there had been an act of caution on Nov. 6, 1576, by John Blacader of Tulliallane for the appearance of George Gordon of Gight when required, and also for the good behaviour of him and his under pain of £5,000, it is complained that Gordon "hes not keipit gude reule in the cuntrie sen the dait foirsaid of the said act, in sa far as he continewallie sen syne hes resset within his place of Geycht William Gordon, sone to John Gordon of Ardmauchar, our Soverane Lordis rebell, and at the horne for act and part of the cruell slauchter of umquhill Thomas Fraser of Straichin, and upoun diverse utheris landis within his boundis and jurisdiction; lyke as the said Williame presentlie dwellis and remanis upoun the said George proper landis and heretage of Litile Ardoch, quhairin he hes remanit this lang tyme bigane, suppleit, intercommonit with, fortiffit and maintein be him". It is represented therefore that the said Blacader, cautioner for Gordon of Gicht, "hes incurrit the foirsaid pane of five thowsand pundis". Letters of summons having been issued, and "the said Johnne Blacader of Tullyallane compeirand be Robert Erskin his sone in law and procuratour, quha enterrit and presentit personalie the said George Gordoun of Geycht, and tuke instrumentis that the said Johnne had satisfied and fulfillit the command of the saidis letters in that part," and there being no appearance for the prosecution in the person of the Lord Treasurer, the King's advocates or any other official, the said George Gordon of Geycht "askit instrumentis that his said souirtie and he had obeyit and fulfillit the command of the charge of the saidis letters, and that nane compeirit to persue him according thairto, and that he sould not be haldin to answer in tyme cuming, quhill he be first lauchfullie and ordourlie chairgit and his expenssis payit". The Lords admit this protest of Gordon, "finding and declairing notwithstanding that the said Johnne Blacader, his cautioner, standis obleist as afoir according to the said act" (Privy Council Register).

1579. Feb. 26.—Caution was given by George Gordoun of Geycht for himself that he will appear personally before the Council at any time on a month's warning, and also that he, his kin, tenants and servants "sall keip gude reule in the cuntrie in the menetye under the pane of £5000". In respect of this caution the Laird of Geycht for himself, the previous caution for him made by Johnne Blacader of Tulliallane is ordered "to be deleit, sa thot na executioun pas upon the same in tyme cuming" (Ibid.).

1579. March 2.—Representation by George Gordon of Geycht that he finds himself in difficulties in the matter of the caution he has given for his good behaviour in lieu of the former caution given for him by Blacader of Tulliallane. The conditions of this band "he myndis and sall, God willing, observe and keip, and continew trew and obedient subject to his Majestie"; but private parties have interpreted the band as entitling them to pursue him, for their own ends, in civil causes betwixt them and his tenants. Therefore "gif his Hienes and Lordshippis sall not yit gif thair interpretatioun how far, and to quhome, and for quhat caus the said band maid be him sall extend, he sall be continewallie trublit and callit upoun wrangus and sinister narrationis of sic as seikis na thing les then the observatioun and keiping of gude reule and quietnes of his Majesteis obeydient subjectis, to the greit hurt of the said George, his freindis and servandis". His petition accordingly is that the King and Council "wald gif thair declaratioun quhidder the samyn sould extend for the said George obeydience and keiping of gude reule to his Hienes in tyme cuming allanerlie, or gif ony his Majesteis subjectis sould tak occasioun thairby, upoun sinister narratioun to be maid be thame, to call and persue him at sic tymes as pleisses thame thairupoun". The decision is in his favour; for it "ordanis and commandis the Secretar and his deputis to direct na letters for calling of the said George Gordon of Geycht for contravening of the act abovewrittin, without it be upoun speciale occasioun committit be him aganis the Kingis Majesteis self or his auctoritie, and that upoun directioun of his Hienes with avise of his counsale and na utherwise" (Privy Council Register).

1579. Dec. 7. — Caution in 2,000 merks by George Gordon of Gicht and Alexander Lindesey of Vane, James Leirmonth of Dersy, James Leirmonth apparent of Balcomy, Michael Balfour of Monquhany, and David Farrett of that ilk, for the good conduct of David, Earl of Crafurd, who is licensed to go abroad for three years (Privy Council Register).

The third laird took a leading part in the bitter Gordon-Forbes feud, conducted under the direction of Adam Gordon of Auchindown (the notorious Edom o' Gordon), son of the fourth Earl of Huntly. In the famous ballad of the burning of the Forbes stronghold at Towie (1571), the imprisoned lady is made to express a preference for Gight. Although she declines to come down to Edom, she declares:—

But gi'e me Cluny, Craig, or Gight,
Or gi'e me young Lesmoir,
And I'll gi'e owre my bonny hoose
To ony o' the four.

In the beginning of 1574, according to Sir Robert Gordon of Gordons-town's history, Gight went across to France with Edom o' Gordon and six other gentlemen, and was entertained by Charles IX. They were followed by Arthur Forbes, son of Lord Forbes, who attempted to assassinate Auchindown. The French king sent out his guards, who, with the aid of the Gordons, killed Forbes. Auchindown recovered (dying in 1580). Gight had to pay the penalty of the act, for late in 1579, or early in 1580 (Sir Robert Gordon gives 1579), he fought a duel with John Lord Forbes—the Privy Council Register calls his antagonist Alexander Forbes, younger of Towie—on the shore of Dundee. The Privy Council Register, under date January 30, 1580, refers to the affair thus:—

For sa meikle as upoun the occasioun of sum contentiuous wordis quihilk is laitlie happanit to fall out in presence of the Kingis Majestie betuix umquhill George Gordoun of Geicht on the ane part and Alexander Forbes younger of Tollie on the uther part, quhairupoun schortlie eftir followed baith thair slauchteris, the kin and freindis alsua of baith the saidis parties ar movit in quarrell and contraversie, ayther of thame aganis utheris : quihilk, gif the samyn be not removed and taiken away in tyme be sum mid and indifferent way to thair ease and weill, gretar inconveniensiis is abill to follow, to the trubling of the gude and quiet estait of the haill cuntrie.

Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, pp. 174-5), who gives the name of Gordon's antagonist as John Lord Forbes, describes the affair in the following terms:—

The cause which the Lord Forbes pretended for this slaughter was that the Laird of Gight had given him some injurious words before the [Privy] Councill, which wes then by the lords reconciled in some measure. Yit the Lord Forbes returning into the north [apparently after the Council meeting in Edinburgh] did watch the Laird of Gight when he landed at the ferrie of Dundie, wher the Forbesses shott him v nawars with musketts, besyd the wundmilne upon the shoar. He fought with them a long tyme after he wes shott and wounded, and pursued them eagerlie vntill he wes oversuayed with ther multitude. So he died feighting with great couraę among them, haveing killed some of them at that instant. The Laird of Auchindoun [Adam Gordon] went about to pursue the Lord Forbesse by the lawes of the kingdome for this slaughter ; bot such wes the great malice of the ring-leaders then at court against the Gordons (the King being minor) that he culd have no justice at that tyme ; and so Auchindoun delayed the mater, thinking to repair that wrong by some other occasion ; bot he wes prevented by death [in 1580. The Privy Council tried to stop the feud in 1580, but it was still going on as late as 1587, when the Council again intervned.]

George Gordon married Agnes Beaton (she was alive in 1597), natural daughter of Cardinal David Beaton (murdered 1546) and Mariota Ogilvy, described in the Great Seal as Lady of Melgem, and in G. E. C.'s Complete Peerage as sister of Lord Ogilvy. She had a whole sister, Margaret Beaton, who married the tenth Earl of Crawford. An important reference to Agnes Beaton occurs in the Great Seal:—

pro variis gratitudinibus sibi ante complementum matrimonii sui prestitis—venditit Agneti Betoun conjugii sue, filie dicte Mar., pro tempore ejus vite”—the lands of Gight and others, to be held by the king. John Gordon of “Audiaill” is one of the witnesses.

Agnes Beaton, after George Gordon’s death, married (before January, 1583) Sir Patrick Gordon of Auchindown, Sheriff-Depute of Aberdeenshire (killed at the battle of Glenlivet, Oct. 1594), the brother of Edom o’ Gordon (her first husband’s old friend) and of the fifth Earl of Huntly. Thus the Gights and the Huntlys were once more brought together. On July 26, 1597, Dame Agnes Beaton, Lady Auchindoun, complained to the Privy Council that in—1595. Dec.—Johnne Mulwart and Callum McCandrachie stole from her, at night, furth of her lands of Inach, 66 wedders. They had been convicted by an assize in a Court held at the place of Cambrathok, on November 20 last, by William Gordoun of Dasky, bailie to the Laird of Grant. They had, however, found caution for payment to her of the prices of the said wedders within 15 days thereafter, viz. : Mulwart had found for his cautioner Duncane Grant, brother of the Laird of Grant, and McCandrachie had found for his cautioner Johnne Miller. The 15 days are long bygone, but the complainer after divers applications has received no satisfaction from principals or cautioners. The complainer appearing by Mr. Williame Harte, her procurator, the said principals and cautioners for not appearing are to be denounced rebels (Privy Council Register).

By her husband, the laird of Gight, she had only one child, a daughter, Elizabeth, and from her many noblemen of to-day are descended. These descents are so curious that I venture to work out a few of them. The daughter was—

ELIZABETH. She was served heir to her father, June 23, 1580 (Inquisit. Generales). She was under the guardianship of her step-father, Sir Patrick Gordoun of Auchindoun (Great Seal), and married Sir George Home of Spot, High Treasurer of Scotland, afterwards Earl of Dunbar. In 1582 her step-father contracted with John Gordon (IV. of Gight) on her behalf to sell Schives to the latter’s grandson, George (VI. of Gight). This may corroborate the Balbithan MS. as showing that while the main estate went in the male line—to her granduncle, John—yet she had certain rights in the property as the descendant of a younger son. On Nov. 15, 1595, William Gordon of Gight and Lady Elizabeth Gordon, with the consent of Sir George Home of Spot, resigned the lands of Cairnfechil, Auchinlech, the mill of Fechil and the lands of the Fechil in favour of Robert Maitland, Gleninchreiff, which had been granted “quondam Joanni Gordon de Geycht” (Great Seal). On May 22, 1596, Elizabeth Gordon and her husband, Home, were granted the lands of Derington (Great Seal). Home was created Baron Hume of Berwick in 1604, and advanced to the Earldom of Dunbar in 1605. He attended King James VI. into England, and was made K.G. in 1608. He died suddenly at Whitehall on January 29, 1611-2. Some say he was poisoned, which ought just to have been a Gordon's luck, for her father and her step-father had been killed and her maternal grandfather murdered. Lord Dunbar left no male issue, and his earldom became dormant (G. E. C.'s Complete Peerage, iii., 201). His barony seems to have vested in his two daughters and co-heirs, Anne and Elizabeth. These were as under:—

THE EARLS OF HOME.

- (1) LADY ANNE HOME married Sir James Home of Coldingknows, and had JAMES HOME, who succeeded to the Earldom of Home as third Earl in 1633. He married Lady Jane Douglas, daughter of Lord Morton, grand-daughter of the fifth Earl Marischal, and was succeeded by his three sons in turn.
- ALEXANDER, 4th Earl of Home (died s.p. about 1674).
 JAMES, 5th Earl of Home (died July 22, 1706).
 CHARLES, 6th Earl of Home (died August 20, 1706). He had
 ALEXANDER, 7th Earl of Home (died 1720). He had WILLIAM, 8th Earl of Home (died 1761), and
 ALEXANDER, 9th Earl of Home (died 1786). He had
 ALEXANDER, 10th Earl of Home (died 1841). He had COSPATRICK, 11th Earl of Home (died 1881). He had CHARLES, 12th and present Earl of Home. Born 1834.

THE EARLS OF SUFFOLK.

- (2) LADY ELIZABETH HOME, a second grand-daughter of the fourth Laird of Gight, married, in 1612, Theophilus Howard, 2nd Earl of Suffolk (died 1640). She died August 19, 1633, at the Tower in Greenwich Park, of which her husband was keeper. She had four sons (three of whom succeeded to the Earldom in turn) and five daughters. Her immediate male issue became extinct in 1745, on the death of the 10th Earl of Suffolk (the 11th Earl succeeded, as descending from her husband's brother, the second son of the first Earl). Before going into the Suffolks in the main line, I may refer to Lady Elizabeth's daughters, still represented.
- (v) ELIZABETH married as his second wife in 1642 Algernon Percy, 4th Earl of Northumberland, and became the grandmother of Lady Elizabeth Percy, who was married three times before she was sixteen, and who was dealt with at some length by the present writer in the English Illustrated Magazine of March, 1898. The Earldom of Northumberland became extinct (1670) in Lady Elizabeth's father, the fifth Earl. Her son, Algernon Seymour, by her third husband (the Duke of Somerset), was created Earl of Northumberland in 1749. The latter's daughter married Sir Hugh Smithson, who succeeded to the Earldom, in 1750, and was created Duke of Northumberland in 1766. This Smithsonised Percy was the ancestor of the present Duke.

- (vi) MARGARET married, in 1640, Roger (Boyle), 1st Earl of Orrery, who is represented in the main line to-day by the Earl of Cork. In this connection I may recall the fact that the fourth son of the 8th Earl married (in 1845) Eleanor Vere, daughter of Alexander Gordon of Ellon. She is well known as a writer on gardening under the initials "E. V. B."
- (vii) FRANCES married Sir Edward Villiers, and became the mother of the 1st Earl of Jersey, and the ancestor of the present Earl.

In order to place clearly the descent of Lady Elizabeth Home's sons (who succeeded each other), I rearrange them thus :—

- (ii) GEORGE (Howard), 4th Earl of Suffolk (1625-1691), succeeded his brother, the third Earl (see below), and was succeeded by his brother
- (iii) HENRY, 5th Earl of Suffolk (1627-1709), who had
 - HENRY, 6th Earl of Suffolk (1670-1718), who had
 - CHARLES, 7th Earl of Suffolk (1693-1722). He was succeeded by his uncle,
 - EDWARD, 8th Earl of Suffolk (1671-1731), who was succeeded by his brother,
 - CHARLES, 9th Earl of Suffolk (1675-1733). He had
 - HENRY, 10th Earl of Suffolk (1706-1745), who exhausted Lady Elizabeth Home's male issue. I now return to the eldest son.

THE BARONS HOWARD DE WALDEN.

- (i) JAMES (Howard), 3rd Earl of Suffolk (1620-1689), died without male issue, his Earldom going to his brother (as above), and his barony of Howard de Walden falling into abeyance between his daughters (G. E. C.'s Complete Peerage, iv., 265).
 - LADY ESSEX HOWARD married, in 1667, Edward (Griffin), 1st Baron Griffin, but her male issue became extinct in 1799, when her right to the Barony of Howard de Walden went to the issue of her sister,
 - LADY ELIZABETH HOWARD (1656-1681), married Sir Thomas Felton, Bart., and had
 - ELIZABETH FELTON, married, in 1695, John (Hervey), 1st Earl of Bristol, and had

LORD HERVEY, died (in 1743) before his father, and had GEORGE WILLIAM, 2nd Earl of Bristol (1721-1775).
 AUGUSTUS JOHN, 3rd Earl of Bristol (1724-1779).
 FREDERICK AUGUSTUS, 4th Earl of Bristol and Bishop of Derry, 1730-1803, whose daughter, Elizabeth, married, as his second wife, the 5th Duke of Devonshire (see Vere Foster's Two Duchesses). He had
 ELIZABETH HERVEY, married Charles Rose Ellis (1771-1845), who was created Baron Seaford in 1826, and by him had
 CHARLES AUGUSTUS (Ellis), 2nd Baron Seaford, who got the Barony of Howard de Walden on petition (1807). He had
 FREDERICK (Ellis), the 7th Baron Howard de
 Walden, the father of the present peer,
 THOMAS, 8th Baron Howard de Walden, born 1880.
 FREDERICK WILLIAM (Hervey), the second son of the Bishop, succeeded as 5th Earl in 1803, and was created Marquis of Bristol in 1826. He died in 1859, having had
 FREDERICK, 2nd Marquis of Bristol (1800-1864). He had FREDERICK, 3rd and present Marquis of Bristol (born 1834).

JOHN GORDON, IV. OF GIGHT.

(Son of I. : died before 1592.)

The Gight family had been so unlucky in the matter of male issue that the estates reverted, in the person of the fourth laird, to a son of the first, for the third laird, who left an only daughter, was succeeded by his uncle, John Gordon, who had held the lands of Adieill in Strichen, and also those of Ardmachar.

1577. Oct. 20.—John Gordon of Audiaill witnessed charter by which George Gordon of Gight made provision for his wife, Agnes Beaton (Great Seal, Nov. 22, 1577).

1581. July 31.—John Gordon of Adiwill was served heir of entail to his nephew, George Gordon of Gight (Retours).

1581. Nov. 21.—John Gordon of Adieil (or Adiwell) was served heir special to his nephew George in the lands of Schives with superiority (Inquisit. Generales).

1581. Dec. 21.—Vicecomes de Aberdeen necnon marusfeodi ejusdem, vicecomes dicti vicecomitatus de Abirdene in hac parte ex deliberatione dominorum consilii specialiter constitutus, respondebunt pro £96 de firmis totarum et integrarum terrarum et baronie de Scheves, cum superioritate, tenentibus, tenandriis et libere-tenentium servitiis, jacentium infra balliam suam, existentium in manibus Supremi domini nostri regis per spatium duorum annorum aut eo circa ultime elapsorum sasina non recuperata : et pro £48 de relevio earundem, reservato tamen vitali redditu totarum et integrarum terrarum et aliarum particulariter subscriptarum, que sunt partes et pendicule prefate baronie Schives. . . . Elizabethhe Gordoun domine vitalis redditus earundem, pro toto tempore vite sue, necnon reservato vitali redditu totarum et integrarum terrarum et aliarum subscriptarum, que etiam sunt partes et pendicule prefate baronie de Schives, videlicet . . . cum partibus, pendiculis, annexis, et connexis, domine Agnete Betoun, domine vitalis redditus earundem, pro toto tempore vite sue ; regi debitis per sasinam datam Joanni Gordoun de Adyell [Edinburgh, 2 Dec.] (Exchequer Rolls of Scotland, xxi., 461-2).

1585. April 5.—The king confirms the charter by John Gordon of Gight (which, with the consent of William, his son and apparent heir) for fulfilment of a contract entered into between Sir Patrick Gordon of Auchindoun, tutor dative to Elizabeth, daughter and heir legally served to the late George Gordon of Scheves and in name of Agnes Betoun his spouse on the one part, and the said John in name of Marjorie Gordon his spouse and the said William for himself and in name of Elizabeth Auchterlonie his spouse on the other part, of the date at Aberdeen, 3rd January, 1582-3, granting to his grandson, George Gordon, eldest son of the said William, the lands and barony of Scheves, etc. Reserving to the said John elder, Marjorie, William elder, and Elizabeth Auchterlonie, their life rents as outside the terms of the contract between the said John and William, of date 1582, with precept of sasine directed to Alexander Gordon in Stanehouse. Reserving also to Elizabeth, Lady of Gight, her life rent of the lands and pertinents, etc. The witnesses are William Gordon of Auchindoir, three advocates (William Davidson, John Cheyne and Patrick Cheyne), and Captain John Gordon [the last probably being Ardmachar's son, who was executed for the Donibristle affair of 1592] (Great Seal).

He seems to have taken part in the great Keith feud of 1587 which the Gordons waged, for, according to the diary of George Clark, school-master of Deer, quoted in Gordon's Scots Affairs (vol. i., p. xxxiii.), the lairds of Lesmoir and Gight, and Captain (John?) Gordon, the latter's son, slew, Nov. 28, 1587, John Keith of Cryallie. This would seem to be a different slaughter from that of John Keith of Clachriach which occurred a few days later, Dec. 2, 1587. The Keith feud, as I shall show later, was going on merrily as late as 1597, when the Town Council of Aberdeen intervened. In the Border Papers (i., 309) there is a mysterious reference to a slaughter by the "Larde of Giche," for Hunsdon, writing to Walsingham, Feb. 2, 158 $\frac{1}{8}$, says:—

The King . . . sent specially to Huntley to know whether hee woulde obeye and performe that comandement which the King had sent unto him, or noe: which was, that hee shoulde put from him those Jessewites which resorted unto him and that he shoulde come to Eddinborrowe and bring the Larde of Giche with him who killed the Earle of Marches kinsman to aunswer the lawe; who aunserd that if hee might bring his frinds and forces with him hee would bring the Lairde of Giche to underlaye the law—otherwise not.

It is difficult to say when the fourth laird died. It is stated in Pitcairn's Criminal Trials (iii., 64) that the "laird of Gight was killed at the Battle of Balrinnes, Oct. 3, 1594". If "John" was at the battle of 1594, he must have been more than eighty years of age. Sir Robert Gordon, in the Earls of Sutherland (p. 227), mentions the laird of Gight among those who were "hurt" in the battle. "John" is described as "quondam" in the Great Seal under date November, 1595, and yet his son, William, the next laird, is described as "de Geyht" in the Great Seal under the date February 4, 1591-2. The Balbithan MS. says John married the first laird of Lesmoir's daughter. Captain Wimberley, in the Gordons of Lesmoir (p. 17), calls her Marjory. Patrick Grant of Rothiemurcus was surety, March 3, 1592-3, for Marjory Gordon, "relict" of John Gordon of Gight, in 500 merks, not to assist the Catholic Earls (Privy Council Register). Thus it is extremely difficult to say when the fourth laird died.

The fourth laird had four sons and (possibly) seven daughters:—

1. WILLIAM, V. of Gight.

2. JOHN was admitted a Burgess of Guild of Aberdeen, September 17, 1582. He is remembered by reason of his share in the murder of the Bonny Earl of Moray, at Donibristle, in Fifeshire, February 7, 1591-2. The Earl of Huntly and his brother-in-law were commissioned to arrest the Earl of Bothwell, who escaped to Bute. One of his partisans, the Earl of Moray, took refuge at Donibristle. There he was besieged by Huntly and a party of forty Gordons, including William and John Gordon. Huntly sent the latter to summon Moray from the castle; Gordon was fired on and mortally wounded. Huntly then fired the castle, and Moray fled with Patrick Dunbar, Sheriff of Moray. The pair were pursued and murdered among the rocks by William Gordon of Gight and the laird of Cluny. Calderwood (History of the Church of Scotland, v., 145) declares that John ("Captain") Gordon was "left for dead at Dinnybrissell". "His hatt, his purse, his gold, his weapons were taken by one of his own companie : his shanks were pulled off. He was taken into the Earle of Moray's mother [the Baroness Doune, née Lady Margaret Campbell, daughter of the 4th Earl of Argyll], and was cherished with meate and drinke and clothing. A rare exemple ! She brought him over with her sonne's corps to seek justice." Gordon protested that he was brought "ignorantlie" into the business: "but confessed the Lord had brought him to his shamefull end for his menie other great offences". Wounded as he was, he was executed at Edinburgh (12th February) five days after the murder; and "hes man was hangitt" (Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, i., 358). Lord Moray's mother, according to Calderwood, "caused draw her sonne's picture as he was demaimed, and presented it to the King in a fyne lane cloath with lamentations and earnest suite for justice". She supported her case by exhibiting the three bullets that were found "in the bowelling of the bodie". One of these she presented to the king, another to some one else (not named). She kept the third to preserve her sense of revenge. On June, 1593, according to the Balquhain Charter, No. 659, quoted in the History of the Family of Leslie (iii., 64), "Marjory Gordon, relict of Captain John Gordon, brother of William Gordon of Gight, granted a letter of reversion of the lands of Kirkhill, containing the sum of 3000 merks, in favour of John Leslie of Balquhain". The Balbithan MS. says that the Captain married the "laird of Shevthins daughter Affleck, with whom he begat two daughters, and was killed at Dinnibersell without more succession". Captain Gordon's widow, Marjorie Auchinleck, afterwards married Robert Burnet, parson of Oyne, who figures in Barclay's protocol, 1601, as having a large claim on the Gight estates on behalf of his wife (Davidson's Earldom of the Garioch, p. 242).

3. ALEXANDER was a soldier. The Balbithan MS. says that he was "killed at the wars in Holland," but Sir Robert Gordon's statement (The Earls of Sutherland, p. 180) is probably the more correct. "The yeir of God, 1585, Captane Alexander Gordoun (brother to William Gordoun of Gight) was governor of the fort of Tour-Louis, besyd Antwerp, when it was rendered to the Duke of Parma : which fort wes manfullie defended by Captane Alexander Gordoun a long tyme against the Spaniards, with the losse of much of his owne blood, and the lyves of many of his souldiers. Then wes he maid governor of Bergen-op-zom by Prince Maurice his excellence, and thereafter maid Colonell of a Scottish regiment. [This regiment was probably part of the Scots Brigade in Holland, for, according to Ferguson's history of the same, an Alexander Gordon served in Col. William Stewart's Regiment, 1579-81.] In end, coming home to visite his friends in Scotland, he wes slain in Monteith by some evill willers who had secretlie layd ane ambush for him." The issue of this Alexander is not quite clear. According to the Balbithan MS. he married "a gentlewoman in Holland, and begat with her

- (1) CAPTAIN ALX^R GORDON in Holland. This Alexander married
Holland, and begat
A son, who was a captain anno 1633." According to Mr.
James Ferguson's History of the Scots Brigade there was an Alexander Gordon in Captain James Scott's company in 1639.
Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, p. 180) gives a different account of Alexander Gordon's issue. He says that he "mareid Jacobee Pedralis of Aungadere, ane Italian gentlewoman, by whom he had tuo sons":—
- (2) GEORGE.
- (3) CAPTAIN JOHN, who was slain in Holland. There is a good deal in Mr. Ferguson's Scots Brigade about a Captain John Gordon who was reported in 1609 to have been absent from his regiment for six months. His company fell into a very bad state and was discharged. In 1618 his case was still before the States of Utrecht, to whom he made references to the services done by his father in Brabant. The Captain John Gordon mentioned in the Earls of Sutherland had according to that authority (p. 180) a son, ALEXANDER.
4. GEORGE. The Balbithan MS. says he was killed "by the Master of Monteith".
But the MS. has mixed him up with his brother, Alexander, for George Gordon, according to Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, p. 217), was "slain at Harlam in Holland". He does not appear in the Scots Brigade in Holland. The Balbithan MS. says he married "Lady of Skillmaroch" (possibly Skillmanee which formed part of Schivas, or Skillymarno in Deer) and had a daughter.
5. MARGARET, married as his second wife, Alexander Chalmers of Strichen.
Her brother, William (V. of Gight), murdered her husband's step-father, Thomas Fraser of Strichen, on Christmas Eve, 1576, at Old Deer. Her son, John Chalmers, took part in the fight at Donibristle, 1592. Margaret Gordon, according to the Balbithan MS., married secondly "the laird of Philorth's brother".
6. CATHERINE married John Keith of Clachriach (Great Seal), who was murdered, December 2, 1589, at the Justice Port, Aberdeen, by her brother, William. This led to a feud between the Gordons and the Keiths. She was probably the mother of William Keith (brother of George Keith of Clachriach), who (with her nephew, John Gordon of Ardlogie) waged a deadly war on Leask of that ilk, 1616.
7. ELSPET, married Arthur Garden of Banchory, who was the son of George Garden and Isobel Keith, daughter of John (?) Keith, laird of Troup (brother of the 5th Earl Marischal). According to the "Birth Brieves," published in the Spalding Club Miscellany, they had ALEXANDER GARDEN of Banchory, who married Janet Strachan, and had

GEORGE GARDEN, captain in the German army. He probably was the Rittmaster who initiated General Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries into the ways of foreign service. The mother of the Rev. Dr. William Garden Blaikie was descended from this family. A Major Garden, "laird of Troup," son to the laird of Nether Banchory, died May, 1662. (Scottish Notes and Queries, 1st series, vii., 54.)

8. ISOBELL, married (1) — Hay, and (2) Patrick Grant of Rothiemurcus (Balbithan MS.). According to Fraser's Chiefs of Grant (i., 509), P. Grant of Rothiemurcus married Jean Gordon, daughter of "the Laird of Echt"; where Echt is evidently a slip for Gight. On May 17, 1616, Captain John Gordon was served heir of Jean Gordon, Lady of Rothiemurcus, his father's sister (Retours). This confirms Sir Robert Gordon's account of Alexander's (3) issue as given above.
9. A daughter married Patrick (?) Sinclair of Auchynachie (Balbithan MS.). John Sinclair, brother to the laird of Auchynachie, took part in the attack made by the Gights on the Hays of Brunthill in 1616 (to be referred to), and Patrick Sinclair of Auchynachie took part in the sixth laird of Gight's attack on his mother-in-law, Lady Saltoun, in 1618.
10. A daughter married — Gordon, brother of the laird of Haddo (Ibid.).
11. Daughter married, according to the Familie of Innes (p. 201), John Innes of Blackhills, and was the mother of "Crag-in-peril" ("sister-son to the laird of Gight"), who married his cousin Marjorie Gordon, daughter of the fifth laird of Gight.

WILLIAM GORDON, V. OF GIGHT.

(Son of IV. : died 1604.)

William Gordon, the fifth laird of Gight, son of John, the fourth laird, by Margaret Gordon of the Lesmoir family, seemed to have been impelled by the double dose of Gordon blood in his veins to outdo his predecessors in a spirit of rebellion. The check which the advent of the Kirk implied lashed him into a fury of revolt, and this was accentuated in the conduct of his seven stalwart sons, and several of his grandsons, including the eighth laird of Gight, and his cousin, Nathaniel Gordon of Ardlogie, whom the Kirk at last beheaded (1646).

Before he succeeded to Gight in 1592, William had made himself a terror. Let me summarise his career:—

No date.—According to Colonel Leslie in the History of the Leslies (iii., 296), he killed William Leslie (son of William Leslie, first of Warthill), who had married a daughter of Gordon of Auchindoir. Gordon was really quarrelling with Troup of Begshall, and Leslie seems to have interfered. At any rate, he was killed more by accident than design.

1576. Dec. 23.—The murder of Thomas Fraser.—On this date William Gordon killed Thomas Fraser of Strichen (step-father-in-law of Gordon's sister, Margaret, who had married Alexander Chalmers). Fraser and Gordon appear to have met at the village of Old Deer. Some quarrel occurred between them on the way home. Gordon followed Fraser, and coming up with him on the bridge which spans the Ugie, struck him a blow with his sword, killing him on the spot. Gordon was afterwards obliged to pay 5,000 merks as compensation for the murder. Lord Saltoun, who tells the story in this way (Frasers of Philorth, ii., 148-9), scouts the origin of the quarrel as given in Anderson's History of the Family of Fraser. Anderson gives an account of how the estate of Strichen first came into the possession of one of the name; but this is "altogether incorrect". He says that Isobel Forbes, "daughter of Forbes of Corfurdie, had taken as her first husband William Chalmers of Strichen. This person's elder brother, George Chalmers, had been long abroad and there was little chance of his returning. William died in possession of the estate. His widow sometime after married Thomas Fraser, son of Philorth, who assumed the title of Strichen. But the old proprietors, unwilling to part with their inheritance, threatened to dispossess him, and their disputes led to several fruitless conferences. The Chalmers in their necessity had recourse to Gordon of Gight. He and Fraser met at Old Deer in the hopes of effecting a compromise, but the overtures of either party meeting with contempt, Gordon in a rage followed after Fraser, and coming behind him at the Bridge of Deer, laid him dead with one blow of his two-handed sword." Anderson quotes MSS. of the Strichen Family and the Wardlaw MSS., "but the evidence of charters shows how little dependence can be placed upon those MSS. From the charters the whole story seems to have been an invention of the authors of the MSS., and it is highly improbable that the quarrel which took place between Thomas Fraser and Gordon of Gight could have any connection with the purchase of Strichen."

1582. May 9.—William Gordon, "apperrand of Gycht," was made a free Burgess of Aberdeen.

1584. April 5.—The following charter (of which a partial translation has already been given under John IV.) is very important for its genealogical information: Rex confirmavit cartam Joannis Gordoun de Geycht—[qua, cum consensu Willelmi G. filii sui et apparentis heredis—ob perimpletionem contractus initi inter Pat. Gordoun de Auchindoun militem, tutorem dativum Eliz. Cheyne, advocatis, capitano Jo. Gordoun:—Apud — 1582] (Great Seal).

1587. Jan. 12.—William Gordon of "Geicht" and George Gordon of Crichtie (his son-in-law?) were caution for David Craik (Privy Council Register).

1587-97.—Vendetta with the Keiths.—Caution in £1,000 was given on May 20, 1587, by John, son and apparent heir of John Gordon of Cairnburrow, that William Gordon should cause rebuild and repair the place of Cairnbannoch, lately demolished by certain persons at his command, in as good state as "before the doun-casting of the same," at the sight of John Gordon of Pitlurg, George Gordon of Kindrocht, Michael Fraser of Stonywood, Johnne Fraser of Crichtie, and Gilbert Hay of Park, or any three of them conjunctly, between this date and 20th June next. Sir George Ogilvy of Dunlugas gave caution, £2,000, that William Gordon of "Geyth" should not harm John Keith, fiar of Troup, brother of George, Earl Marischal, and his tenants of the lands of Cairnbannoch. On Dec. 2, 1587, William Gordon murdered his sister's husband, John Keith of Clachriach. On Nov. 28, 1587, the lairds of Lesmoir and Gight and Captain (John?) Gordon (the brother of William), who was beheaded for his share in the Donnibrister affair (1592), killed John Keith of Cryallie (Diary of George Clark, quoted in the preface to Gordon's Scots Affairs, vol. i., p. xxxiii.). For the murder of Clachriach young Gight had to fly, and he was harboured at Linlithgow by Huntly, who declined to surrender him to the king. Notwithstanding the Acts of Parliament (and especially the Act 1584, c. 17, iii., 301) forbidding litigants to come to courts except in "sic noumer and cumpany as the saidis actis provydis, under the pane of incurring the cryme of convocatioun of his Hienes lieges," yet the king is informed that George, Earl Marischal, and the friends of the late Johnne Keyth of Glak on the one side, and William Gordoun of Geych and his accomplices on the other side (which latter are charged to answer in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh upon 5th January next for the slaughter of the said late Johnne), intend to come, with a convocatioun of their adherents respectively, to the said diet. Now there being among them "sindrie deidlie feidis," both parties are charged under the penalty above written to repair to the said Tolbooth, with no more attendance than is authorised by the said Acts of Parliament (Privy Council Register). The Keith feud was going on merrily as late as 1597, when (on April 29) the magistrates of Aberdeen thought it necessary to dispatch the Bishop of the Diocese and his man, as an ambassador to Gight and Inverugie, "so as to secure peice betuix the lairds of Gycht and [Keith of] Benholme". But his lordship's mission was a failure, for on December 30 George, Earl Marischal, and his wife, Margaret Ogilvy, John Keith, Captain of Dunnottar, and James Hog in Ballyedrie, complained to the Privy Council that Alexander Keyth in — and his accomplices had been convicted of having stolen from the said lady a gray horse and from Hog two mares. But because the culprit was a Keith, the assize had continued the pronouncing of doom upon him till they had "devysit ane forme of death to him," and in the meantime had delivered him to the said captain, to be kept in the said castle. He had escaped thence, and the complainers have ever since used all diligence not only for his re-apprehension, but also for recovery of the said goods. At last they had found the animals "gangand and pasturand" upon the lands of Gight, in the possession of Gordon of Gight and certain of his tenants. Thereupon they had attached the goods and desired the laird of Gight to make restitution of them, offering to "verifie the horse and meiris challengeit". The laird of Gight however not only refused to deliver up the said goods, but "maist maliciouslie and cruellie," accompanied by George Gordon (and three others), and divers other of his men, all armed with hagbuts, pistolets, jacks, steelbonnets, swords, gauntlets and other weapons, pursued the said Hog, and those with him at the said challenge, and wounded them in divers parts of their bodies. Farther, ever since the said Alexander's escape he had been resetted and maintained by Gight. The pursuers appearing by Mr. George Fraser, their procurator, the laird of Gight for neither appearing, nor having entered Keyth as charged, is to be denounced rebel (Ibid.).

1589. April 10.—Gight was commanded as a rebel to surrender his castle within six hours after being demanded (Ibid.).

1590. Dec. 16.—He had to find caution in £10,000 for the preservation of good order on his estate (Ibid.). By the Act of Parliament passed in July, 1587 (Acts, iii., 461-467), all landlords and bailies on the borders and in the Highlands on whose lands broken men dwell are required to find sufficient sureties within fifteen days after being charged under pain of rebellion, that they, and all for whom they are "bound to" answer by the general bond, shall keep good rule in the country, and also that they shall make themselves and their men answerable to justice. Accordingly certain persons are ordered to find caution to the effect foresaid.

1591. June 30.—The lairds of Gight, Auchindoun, Cluny, Lord Huntly and others had got commissions to arrest the laird of Grant, who on this date got the commission suspended (Ibid.).

1591-2. Feb. 7.—The murder of the "Bonny" Earl of Moray.—Gight took part in the affair at Donibristle, for which his brother Captain John was executed. Sir Robert Gordon (Earls of Sutherland, p. 216) says that it was the Laird of Gight who actually killed the Earl "among the rocks of the sea". On March 22, 1592, the Privy Council denounced the Earl of Huntly and others concerned in the affair. William Gordon of Gight, and others, having failed to appear "at ane certain day bigane as charged to answer touching the lait tressounable raising of fyre and burning of the place and houssis of Dunnybirsell and slauchter of umquhill James, Erll of Murray, and certane uthiris being thairin," are to be denounced rebels. This order was merely for form's sake and by way of legal sequence to a charge previously given. In fact the Earl of Huntly and his associates were now free from all chance of pursuit. David Moysie in his Memoirs noticed that Huntly had warded himself by arrangement in Blackness Castle on March 10, but that his associates had neglected to ward themselves at the same time in Edinburgh Castle as had also been arranged. The minutes of proceedings in the Earl's case are "suspiciously scanty" in the Register of Council. It was a disagreeable affair, and a good deal may have been left purposely unregistered. On March 9, 1593, William Gordon's arrest "for treasonable fire raising and burning of the place of Dynnibirsill" was again ordered. On March 16, however, he was relaxed from the horn (Privy Council Register).

1593. March 1.—William Gordon was one of those who witnessed at Aberdeen a bond of caution in £20,000 that Lord Huntly should keep the peace (Privy Council Register).

1594. Oct. 3.—Calderwood says that the laird of Gight was killed at the battle of Glenlivet (History of the Church of Scotland, v., 351), but this is not so, for he got remission in 1603 (Spalding Club Misc., iv., 159).

1595. July 26.—The king confirmed the charter of Sir Richard Cockburn of Clerkingtoun, junior. With the consent of Patrick Barclay of Towie and William Meldrum "de Haltoun," he had sold the lands to Gight and his wife, Isobel.

1595. Feb.—John Carey writes to Burghley that the Duke of Lennox had frustrated most of Huntly's friends, including "Geithe" (Border Papers, ii., 15).

1595. Nov. 15.—The king granted the lands of Carnefechill, Auchinlek and Pittrichie to Robert Maitland of Auchincrief, who had sold them to William Gordon of Gight and Elizabeth Gordon (Great Seal).

1595. April.—He was excommunicated (Calderwood's History, v., 366).

1596. March.—The General Assembly ordered his arrest, and, a little later, that he should be "chargeit to come south" (Acts of Assembly: Bannatyne Club, Part iii., pp. 873, 877).

1596. March 24.—At the General Assembly of the Kirk in Edinburgh (the sixtieth of the series of General Assemblies since the Reformation, and an unusually memorable Assembly) a memorial representing grievances was sent to His Majesty, who was urged, amongst other things, "to cause the lairds of Cluny, Geicht, and a number of others, to enter themselves in ward" (Privy Council Register and Booke of the Kirk of Scotland, v., 409, 417).

1597. Jan. 27.—William Gordon was made a burges of Aberdeen (New Spalding Club Miscellany).

1597. June 24.—William Gordon was one of the sureties to George, Earl Huntly, who gave caution in £20,000 that he would not communicate with Jesuits. The bond was subscribed at Aberdeen on this date (Privy Council Register).

1598. July 25.—William Gordon of Gight, as cautioner for John Innes, alias McCarie, elder, burges of Elgin (who was accused as art and part in the slaughter of the wife of the provost of Elgin), is fined 400 merks, being double of the penalty prescribed by the Act of Parliament, because he was at the horn. Who this John Innes was I do not know: his too-name was McCarie: his Gight connection may point to his belonging to the Inneses of Blackhills (Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, ii., 42).

The vendetta with the Mowats.—Having tired of his feud with the Keiths and the Kirk, Gight turned his attention to the Mowats and the Hays. On Sept. 10, 1601, Magnus Mowat of Balquholie (a deduction of whose family appeared in Scottish Notes and Queries, Dec. 1898, Jan. 1899), complained to the Privy Council that, although he is heritably infest in the lands of Balmelie and others after specified, and he and his predecessors have peaceably possessed the same past memory of man, yet Williame Gordon of Geicht, John and Alexander, his sons, and George Gordoun in Bridgend, envying the pursuer's possession, and not content to live in peace "as it becomis Christianis," continually trouble and molest him. For example: (1) In May, 1601, the said George, having the roum of Brigend adjacent to the complainer's lands of Balmelie, built a fold dyke within the bounds of the pursuer's said lands; and, while Johne Mowat, servitor to the complainer, endeavoured to stay the erection of the same, the said George and his brother, armed with lances, swords and pistolets, shot the said John with a pistol and afterwards wounded him with a sword; (2) Upon June 5 Gordon of Geycht and the said George, in Brigend, with others to the number of twenty men, all armed with hagbuts, pistolets, swords and lances, came to the lands of Balquholie, "raid athort and trampit down the cornes sawin thairupoun," wounded Robert Catto, servitor to the complainer, "with ane reach of ane pistolett on the face," hurt Andro Jaffray, likewise his servitor, with a sword in the shoulders, and afterwards presented a pistolet at Thomas Cheyne, also complainer's servant; (3) Upon June 6 the said John Gordon, accompanied by the said George and others, to the number of 300 persons, on horse and foot, all armed with jacks, hagbuts, spears, steelbonnets, swords and gauntlets, came again to the said lands of Balquholie, and tramped down and destroyed the corns; (4) Upon June—John and William, sons of the said John Gordon of Gight, accompanied by a number of "evill disposed persons," came to complainer's lands of Lescraigie, Galstoun and Bromhill, broke up the doors and windows of his tenants' houses, sought them for their slaughter, and, having apprehended William Smythe, one of the said tenants, struck him in his own house, and carried him as prisoner to the place of Gight. Charge had been given to the said William Gordon of Gight, William and Adam Gordon, his third and fourth sons, Robert Dalgleische in Stanie-hous of Gight, Walter Maitland, servitor to the said William Gordon, and others, John Gordon, second son of the laird of Gight, George Gordon at the Brigend, Patrik Gordon and others, servitors to the laird of Gight, and others, to appear on Sept. 10 and answer; and now the pursuer appearing the order is to denounce all the defenders for non-appearance (Privy Council Register).

How the Laird of Gight defied the law.—On Sept. 27, 1601, Alexander Chalmer, messenger (according to his complaint to the Privy Council on October 24), executed letters raised against William Gordon of Gight by Magnus Mowat, apparent of Balquholie, charging him to answer for certain crimes and to find law surety to Mowat. While returning from the place of execution Chalmer was pursued by a number of Gordon's men, and violently brought back to the laird of Gight, who at first sight of the officer would have shot him with a pistolet if he had not been stayed by some persons present. "He then hurlit him within his hall, tuik the copyis" of the said letters, believing them to be the principal letters, and "kaist thame in a dische of bree," and forced the said officer "to sup and swallow thame, held ane drawne dagger foiranent his hairt, avowing with mony horrible and blasphemous aithis to have thrust the dager throw his hairt gif he had not suppit the saidis copyis; and efter that the said officer, for feir and saultie of his lyfe, had swallowit the saidis copeis, the said laird getting some previe informatioun that the principall letters wer yet extant and that the copeis wer only destroyit, he come to the said officer in a new rage and furie, raif the principall letters onte of his sleif, raif thame in peices, and kaist thame in the fyre." Gordon not appearing, the order is to denounce him rebel. This bit of bravado seems to have become quite historic, for twenty-eight years later (that is in 1629) Luke Simpson complained to the Privy Council of an attack that had been made on him by James Wishart of Potterrow, who told him when he came to serve a summons, "Luke, the Laird of Gight caused ane messenger eat his awin letters". When Luke reminded Wishart that Gight "wes caused pay als weill thairfore," Wishart struck him in the face. On Oct. 17, 1601, the Marquis of Huntly was rebuked for carelessness in the execution of the laws within the bounds of his northern lieutenancy, and especially for his laxness in dealing with Gordon of Gight. "And how that now of lait thair wes a maist vyld contempt and indignitie done to his Majestie be William Gordoun of Geycht, quha, to the contempt and dishonour of his Majestie, forceit and compellit ane officer of armes to supe his Majesteis letters, quhilkis the said officer had put to executioun againis him." Accordingly, his Majestie, in presence of the Council, commands the Marquis to apprehend the said Gordoun of Geycht and to bring him "quick or deid" to his Highness, or if the said Gordoun escape apprehension, then to do his utmost in holding him furth of the bounds of his office and to assist the King's servants in intromitting with the goods and house of the culprit.

The Mowat vendetta prolonged until the year 1610.—On Feb. 16, 1604, George, Earl Marischal, was caution for Magnus Mowat, far of Balquholly, not to harm

William Gordon of Gight. On Feb. 24, 1604, the warrant of the Privy Council was subscribed by Lord Fyvie, commanding James Prymrois, clerk, to receive the Marquis of Huntly as caution for William Gordon of Gight for the indemnity of the laird of Balquholly, and to receive William Chalmer of Drumlettie as surety for Gight for his compearance before the Council. On March 1, 1604, Chalmer gave caution in 2,000 merks for William Gordon; and on March 14, 1604, George, Marquis of Huntly, gave caution for William Gordoun of Gight and his servant, 5,000 merks not to harm Magnus Mowat, fiar of Balquholie. Mr. Alexander Cumyng, advocate, registers and writes the bond, which is subscribed at Leith, February 23, before Alexander, laird of Spynie, John Gordon of Cairnburrow, John Gordon, his son, John Gordon of Pitlurg. On June 14, 1606, Robert Drummond of the Dole of Carnock was caution for Andrew Meldrum of Drumbrek in £100 to answer before the Council on July 17 to the complaint of Magnus Mowat, fiar of Balquholie, for coming with the laird of Gight to his place. On May 23, 1608, Sir Thomas Ker of Hilton was caution for Gight's second son, John, to appear before the Privy Council in answer to complaints by Magnus Mowat and not to harm Mowat. On July 28, 1610, James Gordon of Lesmoir was caution in 100 merks for Patrick Gordon, in Tulloch, sometime domestic servitor to the late William Gordon of Gight, to answer before the Council on Nov. 22 to the complaint of Magnus Mowat. On the latter date Patrick Gordon complained to the Council against Mowat for suspension of horning "as he has never been lawfully charged is most innocent, and had nevertheless found caution in 100 merks to answer this day and to pay 10 merks for his escheat to the Treasurer, the horning should be suspended simpliciter". Pursuer appearing, but not the defender, the Lords suspend the horning (Privy Council Register).

A midnight attack on Turriff.—1601. July 18.—A complaint was made to the Privy Council on Sept. 10, 1601, by Alexander Coupland and William Duffus, inhabitants of Turriff, Ralph Anislie, servitor to Francis, Earl of Erroll, and Alexander, Master of Elphingstoun, as follows: Upon July 18 last Johne Gordoun, second son of the laird of Geicht, accompanied by Patrik Gordoun, servitor, and George Troupe, burgess in Aberdene, came to the town of Turriff and pursued Coupland and Anislie for their lives, wounding Anislie beyond hope of recovery. William Gordoun of Geicht, being informed of what had happened, and having "enterit in communing" with George Hay, parson and minister of Turriff, the said minister had given him his word that the whole of the inhabitants of the said town should be answerable for any injury done to himself, his son, or any of his company; whereupon the laird of Gight had departed, and all the inhabitants, thinking themselves thereby secure for the time, had retired to rest. Yet, in spite of this agreement, William Gordon of Gight, George Gordon, his son and apparent heir, William and Adam, also his sons, and others, and Patrik Gordon (servitor), George Gordon at the Brigend (and three servitors), and many others, came to the town of Turriff that same night at twelve o'clock, all armed with long guns, spears, and pistols, and "oppress the hail toun". More especially, they went to the dwelling-house of William Duffus, and "thair tuik him furth of his bed, and brocht him to the gait, he being sark allane; quhair the laird of Geicht seeing him, drew his sword, and had slaine him, unles ane of his cumpany keppit the straik upoun ane lang gun. Thair-eter the said William Duffus fled for feir of his lyfe, quhilk the Laird of Geicht persaveing, cryit, 'Lett him not away, bot schuite him'; quhairpoun dyvers schottis wer schot at him with pistolettis, muscattis and hacquebuttis. In end, he was schot with ane muscat with nyne bulletis in dyvers pairtis of his body, quhairby the said Williame remanis in sic danger of his lyfe as na man knawis quhat houre he sall die." Charge had been given to the defenders above written to appear on Sept. 10 and answer, and now the said William Duffus, appearing for himself and the other pursuers, the Lords ordain the defenders to be denounced rebels for non-appearance (Privy Council Register).

1601. Oct. 30.—A commission was granted to the Earl of Erroll of justiciary against Gordon of Gight and the rebels who adhered to him: William Gordon of Gight, John, Adam and William, his sons, George Gordoun, sometime at the Brigend of Turreff, now in Little Geycht, Patrik Gordoun, servitor, and others, on account of recent counts brought against them. The execution of this commission against the said laird of Geicht is superseded, however, till Nov. 15 next (Ibid.). Gight, however, had escaped across the Border, for on Nov. 21, 1601, Sir John Carey, the Governor, writes to Cecil: "Ther is a leard of Scotland named the Leard of Gethe, wiche for some particulars amongst themselves hathe byn thought fitt bey the Kinge to be banyshed for a tyme his owen counterey: whoe hathe mad choyse to com hether tyll his remission be granted and tyll the Earle of Arrell can be gred withe him. This Lerd of Gethe is the onley prinsepall man of the Earle of Huntleyes howes, and on that hathe ever parted him in all his actyones, and is on that maye doe most and knowes most of the earles mynd of aney man livinge." On Dec. 17, 1601, Carey again writes: "For the Earl of Huntly's offer by Gethe, I shall as you direct let it fall. Yet I would have been glad that it might have been accepted at the least with thanks if but to have kept them from doing ill, for no man living in Scotland has more power to harm his Majesty, and is therefore worth keeping in good terms" (Border Papers, ii., 775-6).

1602. Jan. 17.—As notwithstanding the promise made by George, Marquis of Huntly, and his obligation by an Act of Council (see Oct. 17, 1601) to keep William Gordon of Geycht furth of his lieutenantancy while at the horn for the "vyld contempt and indignitie" done to the King's officer, the said Gordoun has returned within the realme and has passed home, or at least haunts the said bounds, there is order to charge the Marquis to enter Gordoun before the Council upon — to answer (Privy Council Register).

1603. Feb. 22.—William Gordon of Gight was one of the sureties in 4,000 merks that the Marquis of Huntly should appear before the Privy Council on April 10 (Ibid.).

1603. Oct. 17.—William Gordon of Gight gave caution for Robert Birney in Brakley Tarves 1,000 merks not to harm James Gordon of Haddo, or Johnne Gordoun of Tirelt. Mr. Lawrence registers the bond, subscribed at the Kirk of Tarves, 6th October, before William Prot, George Pringle, William Kar, William Steward, Johnne Meldrum, William Gordoun, and William Leslie, notary public (Privy Council Register).

1605. April.—William Gordon was put to the horn for not paying to William Buchan and James Anderson, burgesses of Aberdeen, the sum of 200 merks with £54 as principal and 40s. for expenses. On Aug. 15, 1605, it was reported to the Privy Council that Gordon "remains at the horn unrelaxed". The Lords ordered the captain of the guard to apprehend him and "remove his family furth of his house and inventory his goods for his Majesty's use" (Ibid.).

1605. His death.—William Gordon died in this year, and in death gave nearly as much trouble as when in life, for he was buried with Roman Catholic honours. On January 3, 1607, the king sent a letter from Whitehall to the Privy Council of Scotland "concerning the mode of dealing with noble men suspected in their religion". In the course of the epistle his Majesty said: "And heirwith we are specialie to recommend unto you that exact tryall be taikin of these two verie heynous offenceis committed at the two severall buryallis and funerallis of the Lord Ogilvy and Laird of Geicht, quhairin ther wes sum superstitious ceremoneis and rittes used as gif the profession of papistrie had bene specialie licenced and tolerated, and upon the knauledge of the authouris of those insolenceis, owre plesour and will is that ye do presentlie commit thame, and efter the examination of all the particular circumstances in that mater that ye acquent us thairwith to the effect that we may returne bak unto yow owre will and plesour thairin". At Edinburgh, April 2, 1607, Sir Thomas Hamiltoun, King's Advocate, complained to the Privy Council as follows: "Notwithstanding the Acts of Parliament against 'superstitious and popische rates,' yet at the burial of William Gordoun of Geycht, George Crawford, now servitor to — Hay of Urie, of the special causing of George Gordoun, now of Geycht, bore a crucifix on a spear immediately before the corps the whole way in the place of burial, the said George being present on the occasion and assisting at this superstitious and popische custom" (Privy Council Register).

William Gordon married Isobel Ochterlony, daughter of (William ?) Ochterlony of Kelly (Balbithan MS.). In the charter chest of Lord Morton (Hist. MSS. Com., 2nd Report, Appendix, p. 184) there is a letter from "Dame Elizabeth Gordon Lady of Gycht," under date 1597. Alice Lady Morton declined to let me examine it. Isobel Ochterlony died in May, 1604, and like her spouse was buried according to the rites of the Roman Catholic Church. On April 2, 1607, Sir Thomas Hamilton, the King's Advocate, complained to the Privy Council that at the funeral David Wilson, tenant of part of the lands of Gight—

By command of George Gordon, now of Geycht, the Lady's son, careyed ane crucifix upoun ane speir immediatelie before the corps of the said umquhill Issobell the haill way to the place of her buriall. Charge had been given to George Gordon, David Wilsoun and George Crawford to answer, and now pursuer appearing, but none of the defenders, the Lords, after hearing the depositions of certain witnesses, find the libel proved against Gordoun in both points, and also the charge against Crawford, and therefore ordain both to enter in ward in the Castle of Edinburgh within eighteen days after being commanded under pain of rebellion (Privy Council Register). On May 13, 1604, John Melville, painter in Aberdeen, was summoned by the Presbytery for painting the crucifix.

William Gordon and his spouse, Isobel Ochterlony, had seven sons and seven daughters. All the boys followed in the footsteps of their sire—one of the daughters, even, was charged with a brutal assault on a man; and the grandchildren of the laird (the sons of his sons and of his daughters alike) became notorious. The issue of the fifth laird was as follows:—

1. GEORGE, VI. of Gight.

2. JOHN, of Ardlogie. He was the father of the famous Royalist, Nathaniel, and himself was a redoubtable warrior. In 1601 he took part in the Turriff Raid, to which I have referred. But his chief contribution to the history of his house was his connection with a dare-devil gang of marauders, called the "Societie and Companie of Boyis," or "Knights of the Mortar" (who are fully described in the Privy Council Register). They went about the country as champions of Rome, but their real object was plunder. On January 20, 1607, the Privy Council wrote a letter to the Marquis of Huntly calling on him to suppress the "Societie" as follows: "After owre verye hairtlie commendationis to your goode Lordships: We ar informed of a very great insolence begun, and like to grow to a greater hicht, within the boundis of your Lordshipis office be Johne Gordoun, callit of Gycht, — Forbes of Corsindae, Patrik McInneis, and some otheris, who, having associat unto thameselffis ane number of deboscheit and laules lymmaris calling thameselffis 'The Societie and Companie of Boyis,' they haif most unlauchfullie and seditiouslie bound thameselffis in ane fellowschip with aithis, vowis, and protestationis of mutuall defence and persute, and that every one of thair quarrellis salbe common to all, and that the purposis and interprise of ony one of thame salbe prosequuted, bakkit, and followit onte be the haill societie aganis all and quhatsomevir without respect of personis. Lyke as thir same lymmaris keepis thameselffis togidder, committing open and avowed reiffis, heirshippis and utheris enormities in all partis quhair they may be maisteris and commandaris. Quhilk proude and detestable attempt, as it is odious be hard of in a peaceable estate, subject to a Prince whom God hes armed with pouer and force able to suppress the same, so the same caryis with it no little sclander and prejudice to your Lordshippis honour and credit.—That within your boundis quhair your Lordship may command suche ane handfull of lymmaris dar presome to attempt such interpriseis. And we are certane that the knaulege hairof being broght to his Majestie will mak his heynes wonderfully till admeir your Lordshippis lang patience and connivence in not apprehending, punisheing and suppresseing of thir lymmaris and what constructionis may be made heirupon to his Majestie aganis your Lordship we remit to your Lordshippis consideratioun. Alwayes we are heirby to request and desyre your Lordship that, with all convenient speede, you tak orderis for apprehending of the saidis personis and some otheris the chieftanes of that laules societie and present thame heir befor the Counsell, and that your Lordship prosecute with fyre and swerd the hail raist of thair followaris and nevir leaf of the persute of thame while thay may be apprehendit, punist and altogidder suppress, as you respect his Majesteis service, the peace of the countrey, and your awne credite, honnour, and reputatioun, and as your Lordship wold estew that hard censure and constructioun whiche his Majestie may mak of your behaviour in this point. Sua we committ you to God.” On July 13, 1607, Ardlogie (supported by Alexander Copland of Udoch, Patrick Con of Auchry and his son, and Robert Udny of Tilliecorthy) raided the lands of Magnus Mowat of Balquholly, his neighbour. On July 29 Mowat returned the compliment by taking away the peats of Auchry and of Mrs. Patrick Copland of Udoch, widow (possibly the mother of the aforesaid Alexander, who in 1603 had been charged with assaulting Magnus Mowat, apparent of Balquholly, at the fortalice of Freswick, Caithness). In 1616 he waged war on William Leask of Kelly, whose daughter seems to have married his brother Adam. He was also implicated in the brutal murder of Francis Hay. In 1618 he helped, according to the Privy Council Register of June 11, 1618, his brother Alexander and his “suster’s son, William Gordon of Saphak, to raid the lands of Sir William Keith of Balmuir, a civile, obedient, and ansuerable subject who never offendit thame”. An account of this affair will be found in the account of Ardlogie’s brother, Alexander. On March, 6, 1618, Ardlogie went on horseback with a sword in his hand to the “ball greene of Kellie” when Sir William Keith was at the place of Kellie, “rode up and down the greene, making provocation to him to have come furth, and with schouting and crying he utterit the wordis following, ‘Up thy hairt, Ardlogie!’” I think this John was the John Gordon of Ardlogie who offered to raise levies for the King of Denmark’s army (1626-7), for which Scotland raised 14,000 men. On March 8, 1627, Captain James Sinclair of Murkill got a commission to raise 3,000 men. Ardlogie undertook a “charge” in Murkill’s regiment, and received his Majesties “moneyes,” and gave his bond for “lifting and transporting of thame toward Germanie”. He failed to do so, for on July 25, 1618, the Privy Council reported that he

"hes most undewtfullie and unworthilie failyied in performing his conditioun, sua that after ane yeares patience and attending his discharge of dewtie he is at last for that caus denounced his Majesteis rebell and put to the horne, quhairat he hes remained this lang tyme, as he does yitt, unrelaxt, to the high and proud contempt of his Majesteis auctoritie and disappointing and hindering of his Majesteis service". The Council therefore requested Lord Huntly to arrest him, "for we know very weill if your lordship kythe in this earand (as we perswade our selffis you will) thair is no possibilitie that the said Johne can escape your lordships hands" (Privy Council Register). In 1634 John of Ardlogie helped the Huntly Gordons to avenge themselves on Fren draught for the burning of Viscount Aboyne, robbing Alexander Innes, minister of Rothiemay, of his ryding horss (Troubles, i., 48). He was denounced as a rebel, and ordered (in 1635) to be arrested. He seems to have escaped to Germany, for it is apparently he who is referred to in a letter from Andrew Leslie to Father John Seton (dated March 26, 1639), and quoted in the Domestic Series of State Papers (Charles I., 1638-9, p. 569): "I have tasted of your Germany . . . Colonel Gordon [of Wallenstein fame?] is not yet a Catholic. He has had a cousin [Ardlogie would have been his cousin-german] by him, who is lately dead, called John Gordon of Ardlogy, his brother's son [this is nonsense in any case], who married the Provost of Melrose's daughter." The Balbithan MS. says that Ardlogie married the daughter of Captain Thomas Keir and had four sons and two daughters.

(1) ADAM took part in the attack made by the sixth laird of Gight, his uncle, on Sir Harry Wood of Bonnyton (when he is described as "appearand" of Gight) in 1624 (to which I shall refer). In 1625 he was admitted to the Scots Men at Arms in France by Huntly, who was captain in the corps, and who made his first muster at Leith, July, 1625. Adam Gordon, who had Patrick Gordon of Boghead (his uncle?) as one of his cautioners, promised that he should "dewlie observe and keip the hail mustoris dewlie preparit with ane man and tua horse, armit in all peices with ane case of pistollis at sic place and tyme as the said capitaine [Huntly] should appoint" (Spalding Club Miscellany, iv.). I think he must be the Gordon referred to by Robert Innes, the nephew of John Gordon of Ardlogie, who wrote to his brother, the laird of Leuchars, from London, July 15, 1636, as follows (Familie of Innes, p. 225): "Young Arlogie I think be this tyme be deid. The nycht befor I cam to Parris [he] was run throw the bodie by on[e] Achterfoall. Arlogie being wery drunk persuit the wther in stritts. My Lord [Gordon] was wery cairfull off him. . . . He told me he thocht he could not live tuo dayes."

(2) JOHN is described by Spalding (i., 355) as "second son," and (ii.,

324) in 1644 as "goodman of Ardlogie". He joined in the attack (1634) on the laird of Frendraught, who had burned up Lord Aboyne in 1630, and was denounced as a rebel. He went to Berwick in June, and returned in November, 1640 (Spalding's Troubles, i., 293. In the latter month, while drinking at Fyvie, he shot Sergeant Forsyth, of Lieutenant Fotheringham's musketeers, dead. The Gordons got clear away, and Fotheringham was afterwards (Jan. 16, 1641) drummed out of the army in public, the degradation taking place at the Cross of Aberdeen, when the hangman broke the sword of the lieutenant, who was then "convoyit out of the toune, throw Futteis port, to seik his fortun" (ibid., ii., 4). He was alive in January, 1647 (Acts of Parliament), when he "received assurances without acting". On June 27, 1655, a John Gordon got a pass to go to Poland or Sweden (Calendar of State Papers). I think that this John Gordon of Ardlogie must have been the one who married Isobel Innes, one of the three daughters of Jerome Innes, minister of Fyvie, and son of the first laird of Edingight. The genealogy at this point is very puzzling, for this Isobel may have been John's mother, not his wife, though the dates seem to indicate the latter supposition. At any rate John Gordon of Ardlogie and Isobel Innes had a daughter, Elizabeth Gordon, who married her distant kinsman, John Innes of Edingight (probably about 1659), and (possibly) had three sons and a daughter. One of these sons, John, sixth of Edingight, was the father of Alexander Innes of Rosieburn, and the grandfather of Katherine Innes, Mrs. Byron's mother (See Colonel Innes' Chronicles of the Family of Innes of Edingight).

- (3) NATHANIEL, the daring Royalist, was probably the third son of old Ardlogie. He was the only member of the Gight family that ever met his death on the scaffold (Jan. 20, 1646). Few of the Cavaliers present such a dashing figure as Nathaniel Gordon. Indeed, he is so picturesque that I fancy Scott, who considered him one of "the bravest and best soldiers in Europe," had he ever written a romance of Aberdeenshire, might possibly have taken Gordon for his hero: the unusual length of a note in Border Minstrelsy points that way. In addition to his escapades as a soldier, the gay Gordon did not leave it to the imagination of the romancer to supply a "love interest," for, as became a man of the same ancestry as Byron, and with the amatory Montrose as his leader, he could spell Woman as well as War. I fancy Nathaniel must have been a trained soldier from the fact that he was entrusted with important commands by Huntly and Montrose, and is constantly spoken of as "Major Gordon". Bishop Wishart speaks of him as having served gallantly "both abroad and at home". The fact that his mother was a daughter of the Provost of Melrose, and that his father died in Germany, indicates that the Ardlogie family were not stay-at-homes; and it is just possible that his kinsman, Wallenstein's assassin, may have given him a taste of fighting in the Empire. He crosses our path first in the very year (1634) when Europe rang with Wallenstein's death, and during the next decade he figures constantly in the annals of the Loyalists who defied the Covenant. In November, 1634 (Spalding's Troubles, i., 48), he joined the band of Gordons who set about avenging the death of the first Viscount Aboyne, who had been burned at Frendraught Castle four years before—for family feuds were carried on with the vigour of invincible vendettas. They "spolzeit" cattle from Crichton. They stole the minister of Rothiemay's "ryding horss". They took "sum moneyis fra Mr. Robert Jamesoun, minister at Mairtyne Kirk, violentlie and maisterfullie". They hanged one of Crichton's friends, suspected of being a spy, "most cruellie vpon the gallous neir to Strathbogie". They drove off 260 oxen and 360 sheep from Frendraught. They burned up the corn-yard of the Mains of Frendraught, "quhairin thair wes standing four scoir stakis". They effected an entrance at the house of Rothiemay, and "took it up royallie," killing a large number of sheep for their banquets. Some of these they "saltit, sum they rvistit, and sum they eitit freshe," while they compelled Frendraught's tenants to replenish their larder with "meill, malt, cokis, customs, and pultrie". The laird of Frendraught went to Edinburgh and laid his case before the Privy Council. One day a herald in "cot armes, with sound of trvmpit," rode forth to summon the "misdoeris" to answer to the Crown. He met the band on the road between Banff and Elgin, only to be told that they intended to be avenged on Frendraught. Of course the "misdoeris" did not appear before the Privy Council; and the bulk of them, including Nathaniel Gordon, were declared rebels. Ever a favourite with women, the dashing young cavalier was harboured by the lady of Rothiemay (née Katherine Forbes), whose son had also been burned. She got nearly a year's imprisonment in Edinburgh for her trouble (being liberated in the autumn of 1637), but Nathaniel escaped and lived to fight another day. Whether he left the country with his father, who, as noted, died in Germany in 1638, I cannot say. In any case, he does not reappear in the great struggle till June, 1639, when he captured Ogilvy of Powry in a hand-to-hand struggle near Elsick (Gordon's Scots Affairs, ii., 275). In June, 1640, he left for Berwick with George, Lord Gordon (the elder brother of Viscount Aboyne, who had been burned at Fren draught) (Spalding's Troubles, i., 293), and he is absent from the pages of Spalding until the spring of 1644, the most violent year of his restless career. In Feb., 1644, as Nathaniel and his friends were plundering the lands of Taarty, belonging to the learned Dr. Dun, of Aberdeen, they encountered a band of Covenanters, who were bound on a similar errand to the estates of some persistent Loyalists. The Covenanters were routed and disarmed, and cam shamefully back againe to Aberdene (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 322). Encouraged by this success, the little band of Loyalists kidnapped the Provost and Magistrates of Aberdeen on March 19, 1644. At seven o'clock in the morning nine cavaliers—Irvine of Drum and his brother, Seton of Shethin, Meldrum of Iden, Innes of Tippetty, Sir John Gordon of Haddo, Sir George Gordon of Gight, John Gordon of Ardlogie and his brother, Major Nathaniel Gordon—at the head of sixty or a hundred horsemen—the number differs according as your authority is Loyalist or Covenanter—rode into the town, kidnapped Patrick Leslie (the Provost), ex-Bailies Robert Farquhar and Alexander Jaffray, and Dean of Guild John Jaffray, and within four-and-twenty hours had clapped them in Huntly's stronghold at Strathbogie. The poor burghers were kept there till April 2, when they were transferred to Auchindoun, another Gordon keep; nor were they set at liberty until May 7, when the Marquis of Argyll appeared on the scene and rescued them (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 324). On April 5, 1644, Nathaniel made a daring deal on his own account which got him into trouble with his chief, Lord Huntly. A Danish herring smack, which had been taken by an English pirate and depleted of its crew, drifted into Aberdeen Bay. Nathaniel Gordon, assisted by twenty musketeers, seized the prize, and clapped the Englishmen who had been put on board in the Tolbooth. The pirate duly made its appearance to claim the prize. Nathaniel promptly arrested the pilot and the skipper, who turned out to belong not to the pirate, but to an English man-of-war. In retaliation the pirate began to harry the local shipping, and even made a descent on the land at Belhelvie. The fishing population, which suffered most, complained to Lord Huntly, who reproved Nathaniel "veray bitterly" for taking the prize without his permission. Gordon, hitherto an obedient soldier, resented the reproof. He was indeed so "angrie that he hastellie took his leive and left the Marques' service". Just before taking that step, however, he had been one of the force (300 strong) which (on April 24) had raided the town of Montrose, where he is said to have killed a baillie, Alexander Peirson. The laird of Drum tried to set fire to the town twice, but Gordon "pat out the samen"—which surely more than counterbalanced his slaughter of the worthy bailie. On April 29 he sent in his resignation to Huntly, offered his services to the marquis' son, Lord Gordon, and when they were refused, "leivit be him self" (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 339-52). But he could not live long "be himself". If he had been wise he would have got out of the country, for the forces of the Kirk were quickly closing round the Cavaliers. On May 8 the Covenanters made a dead set on the Gight country as the hotbed of the Loyalist cause in the north. Kelly, where Sir John Gordon of Haddo lived, surrendered; the House of Gight was captured, the young laird managing, however, to escape; Gight and Haddo were marched off to Edinburgh as prisoners; while a reward of 18,000 marks was offered for the "inbringing" of Lord Huntly "quik or deid," and "sic vther soumes" for young Gight and Nathaniel Gordon. So Nathaniel put all his private grievances aside, for he "luikit for no better himself, if he hapnit to cum in [to the Covenanters'] handis". He therefore resolved to fight it out to the death, and "defend him self als long as he could". His policy, however, was not the negative one of mere defence. He opened a positive campaign of attack by setting upon the merchants of Aberdeen and Dundee who assembled at St. James' Market in Elgin on July 24. The merchants came back to Aberdeen 14,000 marks the poorer, and Lord Gordon was despatched to arrest Nathaniel and his friends. His lordship returned without his "pray, and the honest men gat no amendis" (ibid., ii., 392). Then came a brief respite, for Nathaniel, eager to escape the ban of excommunication, agreed to a truce with the Covenanters, and even allowed the redoubtable Andrew Cant to reprove him, Nov., 1644. Spalding describes all this as "politique". On Feb. 6, 1645, however, he signed the Royalist Bond of Union (History of the Clan Gregor, ii., 92). By the following March Cant's power had crumbled to pieces. The ministers "fled for feir"; there was no sermon in "either of the Aberdenis"; and on Sunday, March 9, Nathaniel marched into the town with a hundred Irish dragoons, got the keys of the Tolbooth, set free the prisoners, and seized all the available arms. On March 15 Sir John Hurry, the Covenanting general, came into the town, to find Nathaniel and his friends "drinking cairleslie" in their lodgings. Hurry's men killed Captain Donald Farquharson, who had married Margaret Gordon, of the Abergeldie family, and two or three other Cavaliers. Nathaniel once more escaped with his life, losing Lord Huntly's best horse, which had been lent to him, for he had regained the favour of his chief (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 453-5). But he could not really escape, for fighting was in his very blood, and soon he got a chance of showing his mettle, for the deciding battles of the great struggle followed fast on one another. In each of these he occupied an important post, commanding the right wing of Montrose's army either alone or in conjunction with some one else. His bravery is described in glowing terms in Britane's Distemper. He was present at the battle of Auldearn (May 9), and afterwards helped young Graham to rescue his sister, Lady Margaret Stirling of Keir, from Linlithgow, where she had been imprisoned after being captured (on the very day of the battle) by the Kirk. At the battle of Alford (July 2) he hacked his way through a lane of the enemy, bidding his musketeers throw aside their weapons and hamstring the horses with their dirks. Once again he escaped, but he left Lord Gordon a corpse on the field which Montrose won so dearly. He also fought at the battle of Kilsyth, August 15. The periods between these battles were filled in with escapades which sorely troubled the Covenanters. For instance, some time in the September after Kilsyth, the ragged rebels whom Nathaniel and Lord Ogilvie commanded quartered themselves on the Rev. Bernard Sanderson, the minister of Nithsdale. They "brake vp his cofferis, chistis, and almries; carried away his whole bedding and the haille abuilzements" of "the minister and his wife. They "brunt and spoyled his buekis, chistis, chyres, stoolis, and vther tymber work"—for a camp fire had to be kept going; and they ate up "his haille cornes vpon his gleib"—for even dashing cavaliers could not live on loyalism alone. The unfortunate parson fled to Carlisle for "safety of his lyff"; while his servants and "motherless childring" took to the "hillis and mountaines, destitute bothe of food and harbourie". This escapade cost the Crown 1,200 merks, for that was the compensation voted to Sanderson by the Scots Parliament. Then Nathaniel's luck turned, for he was captured after the battle of Philiphaugh (September 13), and marched off to Edinburgh in triumph by the Covenanters (Earls of Sutherland, p. 529). He was charged with the deadly crime of having taken upon him to "rise in arms, and to remain with, fortify, assist, and supply James Graham, the avowed enemy of this kingdom, leader of that rebellious army, which lately this year by-gone has infested this kingdom and troubled the peace thereof". The gay Nathaniel parleyed with the Presbyterians. There is even a subtle irony in the fact that his answers to the Court—still preserved in the Duke of Montrose's charter chest (Hist. MSS. Commission, 2nd Report, Appendix, pp. 174-5)—have Scripture texts scribbled on the back. But the Court closed its ears to all entreaties, for it knew that his release would mean renewed trouble. So it declared him guilty, and condemned him to die as a traitor. The execution took place at the Cross of St. Andrews on January 20, 1646, the maiden or guillotine being brought from Dundee for the purpose. Gordon was the first of the prisoners, who included Sir Robert Spottiswood, to mount the scaffold. Wishart's account of him (as translated by Mr. Morland Simpson in the Deeds of Montrose, p. 169) is memorable:—

When he saw death so near he bitterly lamented the sins of his youth. Just before his death a paper was thrust into his hands to sign, in attestation of his penitence. To this he readily put his name. At the same time he called God and His angels and all who were present to witness that, if there were anything in that document derogatory to the King and his authority, he utterly disowned it. He was then absolved from the sentence of excommunication laid upon him for an adultery he had committed long before. Amidst the profound pity of the spectators he laid his head upon the block.

Even in death, however, Nathaniel was not at rest, for Parliament and Presbyteries continued to wrangle over him for five years at least. His estate was a matter of dispute (Acts of Parliament, vi., part 2, p. 227). He seems to have had no ready money towards the end of his career, for Robert Keith, the minister of Deer, advanced 200 merks, and Elspet Donaldson, widow of an Aberdeen burghess, lent 100 merks to support Nathaniel in prison and to afford him decent burial. Gordon, however, declared to the end that 500 merks were due to him by Janet Gordon, the widow of William Gordon of Tulloch, and he directed in his last will and testament that his creditors should be paid out of this, the residue going to his wife, Grisel Seton—probably of the Shethin or Udny families. But Mrs. Gordon of Tulloch resolutely declined to pay the 500 merks, and the poor parson of Deer had to appeal to Parliament as late as 1649 to help him to get back his money. Nathaniel's wife Grisel must have had to practice the patience of her great namesake, for he was fancy-free, and did not let the marriage vow interfere with his inclinations. Cant had once criticised his polygamous instincts, whereon Nathaniel wrote the parson a letter which "fleyet him to the hairt, and causit him to remove out of the toun" of Aberdeen. Nathaniel afterwards confessed his sin, "but God knowis," says Spalding (ii., 431), "if this humiliatioun wes fra his hairt". Long after his death his emotional misdemeanours were torturing the conscience of the Presbytery of Strathbogie, which persecuted Jean Gordon, "Lady Alter"—she is sometimes called "Lady Glengerak"—from 1645 to 1651 on the ground that she had borne one child to Nathaniel and another to his comrade-in-arms, Captain Mortimer. The Duke of Fife's first known ancestor, Adam Duff in (not of) Clunybegg, gave evidence in this case. He told the Presbytery (January 19, 1650) that the lady "vas in a barne of his fourteen days or thereaboutt, and for anything that he or the women thereaboutt could perseave, shoe vas with child" (Presbytery Book of Strathbogie). A contemporary ballad (preserved by Peter Buchan) pictures Nathaniel as serenading a widow:—

Widow are ye sleeping yet ?	If I promised to marry you,
Or widow are ye waking ?	My dow, but an' my dawty ;
Ye'll open the gin, let me come in,	And if I promised to marry you
And me your only darling. . . .	I'm sure I'm nae sae fauty.

Despite all this pillorying, however, Nathaniel Gordon remains a picturesque, almost likeable, figure in history. He is referred to in the ballad of the "Gallant Grahams":—

Nathaniel Gordon, stout and bold,
Did for King Charles wear the blue.

Patrick Gordon in Britane's Distemper (p. 168) declares that he was "weel belowed euen by his enemies". He was "too walourous a cauelyre". Wishart says he was "famous for his courage and military skill," and that he was "a brave, faithful gentleman" who had "great influence in his own country". Nathaniel had a son—ADAM, who was served heir to his "gudsir," Jan. 2, 1656 (Inquisit. Gen.). He was possibly the Adam Gordon of Ardlogie who was at Konigsberg in 1659, for General Patrick Gordon of Auchleuchries, the friend of Peter the Great, sent letters home to Scotland by him (Patrick Gordon's Diary).

- (4) GEORGE helped his father in 1634 to steal the horse of Alexander Innes, the minister of Rothiemay, who was deposed in 1647, when he was succeeded by James Gordon, the well-known parson of Rothiemay (Spalding's Troubles, i., 48). He may have been the George Gordon, one of his tenants at Lethenty, who in 1622 went forth to do battle on his own account with two brothers named Ferguson, at Newburgh. Undeterred by the fact that the day was the Sabbath, he struck one of them with "his faldit neiff upoun the faice and head, and thereby damneist and feld him deid to the ground," and then "verrie barbarously cuttit off his right lug". Not satisfied with this barbarism, he pursued the other brother with a drawn sword, and "cutt ane grite peece of his harne pane" (Privy Council Register). George of Lethentie was accused by William Durhame, fiar of the Grange, Henry Ramsay of Ardownie, and Mr. William Murray in Ardownie, of helping Sir George Gordon of Gight to "minass" them, 1631 (Privy Council Register).

(5) Daughter married John Gordon, son to Knockespock (Balbithan MS.).

3. WILLIAM took part in a raid on Turriff (July, 1601), and was put to the horn. He disappears from all records after this date. The Balbithan MS. says he was "killed in Turreff".
4. PATRICK held the farm of Boghead on the Gight estate; in 1695 its poll tax was set down at £9 14s. In 1601 he murdered Robert Catto, servant of Mowat of Balquholly (Privy Council Register). On July 2, 1606, Sir John Lindsay of Wodray and Sir William Ochterlony of Kellie were caution to the Council for Patrick Gordon, brother to the laird of Gight, not to harm Archibald Douglas and Magnus Mowat, fiar of Balquholly. He was implicated with his brother Adam in an assault on Fraser of Stoneywood and Fraser of Durris in Aberdeen, 1609. On July 23, 1612, Sir Thomas Hamilton of Byres, the King's Advocate, and Alexander Bannerman of Waterton, and others, complained to the Council that Patrick and Adam Gordon, brothers of George Gordon of Gight, pursued Bannerman and his friends for their lives in Aberdeen and wounded two of Bannerman's servants. Moreover, they "daily since this assault and insolence hes borne and worne hagbutis and pistolletis, and ridden and gon thairwith publictlie and avowedlie in all pairtis" of the country to attack pursuers. The Lords find defenders guilty of the assault and wounding, and ordain them therefore to enter in ward in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh, there to remain at their own expense till further order be taken with them in the matter, but assoilzie them from the charge of having worn hagbuts and pistols, pursuers having failed in proving that particularly. In 1615 he was implicated in the attack on the Hays. In 1616 William Leask, of that ilk, complained that Patrick and his brothers, John and Alexander, had annoyed him for eighteen months. On Nov. 4, 1617, he was asked by the Privy Council to leave the country. On Sept. 10, 1623, a complaint was tendered to the Privy Council by the King's Advocate and George Thomson, Writer to the Signet, to this effect: Patrick Auchterlony of Bonhard owed various sums of money to the said George Thomson, who had with great patience waited for payment, but at last was constrained to raise letters of horning and then a caption against his debtor. On — May, 1623, while Auchterlony was in Dundee, Thomson charged the provost and bailies of that burgh to apprehend him. Auchterlony, being warned, absented himself, and the complainer caused his horse, which was valued at £12, to be pointed in part payment. For this cause alone Auchterlony resolved to have the complainer's life, and in company with Patrick Gordoun, brother of George Gordon of Gight, and others, lay in wait for complainer, who was to ride from Dundee to Forfar, there to appraise the horse anew at the market-cross. When he was seen on his way thither, Patrick

Gordoun, at Auchterlony's instance, leaped on horseback, and "haveing tua chargit pistollettis at his belt," rode after Thomson. Gordon, on overtaking Thomson, demanded "how he durst be so bald as to poynd" his kinsman Auchterlony's horse (Patrick's mother, it may be remembered, was an Ochterlony). Thomson "simplie ansuerit that he understoode that his Majesteis auctoritie was a sufficient warrand"; whereupon Patrick "most prouddie said that, yf he haid all the warrands that the King hes, he sould mak him repent the doing thairof, and without ony forder (speeches?) pullit furth ane of the saidis pistollis frome his belt, and thairwith gaif the said George a cruell straik and wound on the rycht side of the head, and then gaif him ane uther cruell and deadlie straik and wound a little above his left eye, and thairby almost dammeist him dead". The complainer fled for safety to a house near, when Gordon "bendit" one of his pistols and rode furiously after the complainer "to the said house gavell," but some well-disposed neighbours "stayit him and convoyit him away". Pursuer appearing personally, while the two defenders do not appear, the Lords order them to be denounced rebels. Patrick was engaged in a vendetta in 1625 to avenge the case of his illegitimate son William. He had been anxious that this son should marry Margaret, the only daughter of John Cushnie, Culsalmond. The girl, however, set her heart on one Richard Gordon. He was the son of John Gordon of Drymies (a cadet of Craig). Richard was servitor of Leslie of Wardes (a brother, Oliver, was servitor to the laird in 1627); he was put to the horn in 1623 for the "felloun and cruell slaughter of John Johnston in Inverurie," and in 1622 had been denounced as having worn hagbuts for three years, and "shoit thairwith at deir, rae, and wyld foull". Patrick Gordon heard of the intended wedding in September, 1625, and he immediately sent his son William "with a nomber of plaules personis" to Cushnie's house, "of purposis to haif ravished" the girl. They offered "grite violence both to hir fathir and mother," hurt "diverse of hir familie," and "perforce caryed away the said Margaret Cushnie, band hir upon a horse behind ane of thame, and at last the said William verie barbarouslie did force hir". By the aid of the justices of the peace she was rescued, and shortly afterwards married her Richard. The Gights resolved to be avenged. They lay in wait for Richard, "soght him divers tymes, and [at] last, rancontering him betuix Tillyfour and Newton of Colsalmond, he wes violentlie assaultit and persewit of his lyffe by the said Patrik, accompanied with Johnne Gordoun of Ardlogie, his brother [the father of the notorious Nathaniel, executed in 1646], Johnne Gordon of Knockespock [who had married the latter's sister], and a nombir of thair complices, who, nochtwithstanding of the said Richart his humble salutioun unto thame, and of his submissive intreatie for Godis peace and his majesties, did hurt and wounde bothe him and his hors". At last Richard was "constrayned in his just and necessar defence to stand to the saulf-tie of his lyffe, and haveing a pistoll about him, wheras no prayer nor intercession avaiellit him, he shoit " Patrick " with the pistolett ". Patrick succumbed to his wounds, " acknowledging at the verie houre of his death his fault and just deserving, and did freeilie acquite and pardoun the said Richart ". Richard appealed to the king for pardon. His Majesty referred his petition to the Privy Council (Feb. 12, 1626), and summoned both parties (July 4, 1626). None of the Gight Gordons appeared however, and the Council found Richard entitled to at least a year's protection, " the reason why they did not go further having apparently been that though the slaughter committed had been in self-defence, yet Richard Gordon, in having a pistol about him at all, had incurred the penalties imposed by the Acts against useing or wearing fire-arms ". When Cushnie wanted to return home from Edinburgh, he was afraid lest his action against the Gights would " mak thame the more violent and insolentlie disposed aganis him, sua that he cannot live in the cuntrey for feare of thair trouble and persute ". So the Council (July 6, 1626) wrote to the Marquis of Huntly: " We haif thoght goode to recommend the honnest man [Cushnie] to your Lordshipis protectioun and saulf-gaird, earnestlie requeisting and desiring your Lordship to tak the patrocinie and defence of him, and so to provide for his indempnitie aganis the rage and malice of the said William Gordoun and his partakeris as they may be restreaned and awed by your Lordshipis countenance and auctoritie from harmeing of him, and that he may repose in peace and follow out his adois without feare or danger of thair persute ". On August 1, 1626, caution was given by Mr. Patrick Dunbar, fiar of Westerton, in 2,000 merks, that Adam Gordon, son of John Gordon of Ardlogie, would not molest Richard Gordon, " son to John Gordon of Drummoureis " (in 1627 he is described as of Drymies), Oliver, John and Patrick, his brothers, George Gordon of —, John Cushnie in Newton of Culsalmond, nor their families. On August 23, 1626, the Council again wrote to the king relating what they had done in the matter. On March 13, 1627, Mr. John Paip, younger, advocate, as procurator for the cautioner, registered a bond of caution by James Gordon, fiar of Tillielt, in 3,000 merks, " that George Gordon, apparent [and afterwards VII.] of Geyght, will not molest Richard Gordon, John Cushnie in Cowcraigs, Isobell Hervie, his spouse Margaret Cushnie [Mrs. Richard Gordon, his daughter], Olipher Gordoun, servitor to the Laird of Wardes, John Gordon, servitor to Lord Gordoun, and Patrick Gordon in —, brothers to the said Richard, nor their families, tenants, etc., in terms of lawburrows raised by them, with clause of relief ". The bond written by John Lessell, notary, at the new Kirk of Deer, is dated at the Mill of Kellie, March 8, 1627. The feud, however, as related in the Privy Council Register, did not stop there. On May 16, 1628, Oliver Gordon, brother of Richard Gordon aforesaid, complained to the Council about the Gight Gordons. He told how he had been "upoun the Linkes of Aberdeen [on a date not stated, in this year] ryding upoun my awin hors, haveing a course to have runne with John Johnestoun, servitor to the Laird of Cluny". John Gordon, Ardlogie (brother of Patrick), who had hate and malice against him, getting notice of this, came on horseback to the links, "with a bendit hacquebutt in his hand and a paire of pistolets at his belt, and John Dalgleische, his servant, running at his hors foote with a paire of pistolets at his belt and a gwune in his hand". When Ardlogie saw Oliver he made his way to him behind his back and would have shot him unawares, if Johnstone had not called on him to save himself. Ardlogie fired, but his hagbut misgave, whereupon Oliver, who had neither sword nor armour upon him, having left the links and "sett spurres" to his horse, was followed by Ardlogie, who had his hagbut in hand "readie bendit" to shoot. Oliver craves the Privy Council for a summons against Ardlogie. Patrick Gordon married Margaret Erskine of Ardestie, Forfarshire (Balbithan MS.). On July 18, 1642, the king confirmed the charter (dated May 29, 1613) by the late Sir Henry Lindsay (13th Earl of Crawford) to Alexander Durham of Downiemylne, Forfar, with a precept of sasine to Patrick Gordon. Janet Durham married Robert Erskine of Ardestie, whose son resigned these lands to the sixth laird of Gight in 1623 (the year that Sir Henry Lindsay died). It will be remembered that Patrick Gordon committed a brutal assault on George Thomson, writer to the signet, on the highway near Dundee in 1623, when the lawyer had apparently been settling this business with him. This was the third alliance of the Gight Gordons with Forfarshire women, for Patrick's father, William, V. of Gight, married an Ochterlony, while his brother, George, VI. of Gight, married Isobell Wood of the House of Bonnyton. The Balbithan MS. says that Patrick Gordon "has issue". A son (whose Christian name is not given) was denounced in August, 1634, for joining in the attacks on the laird of Frendraught. Two of his sons were—

JOHN. He was served heir to his father, Patrick, on June 4, 1630 (Inquisit. Gen.), and may have been the one who figured in the Frendraught vendetta.

WILLIAM, illegitimate, was concerned in the attack on Richard Gordon, as already described.

5. ADAM. He was a fighter, like all his brothers. He was implicated with his brother Patrick in an assault made on Fraser of Stoneywood and Fraser of Durris in Aberdeen, 1609. On July 6, 1609, he, his brother Patrick, and several other Gordons, "to the number of six score persons, all armed with certain weapons, including hagbuts and pistolets, came at night to the house of Robert Davidsoun in Abirdene, where the complainers were for the time, pressed violently to enter therein for their slaughter, and would have succeeded if they had not been stayed by some good people". The next day the defenders followed complainers with drawn swords and with "bend hagbuts and pistollets" while they were repairing from Newtown of Abirdene to the Auldtoun, and would have slain them if they had not been stopped by the magistrates at the port of the said burgh. When called on to appear before the Privy Council a few of the gang did so, and were found guilty. In June, 1612, Adam and his friend Francis Hay of Logierieve, who was to kill him three years later, and his brother Patrick Gordon, attacked Alexander Bannerman of Waterton and two of his servants "to the effusion of thair blood in grite quantities" (Privy Council Register). Adam fought a friendly sword duel with his comrade Francis Hay (son of George Hay of Ardlethan, cousin-german to the Earl of Erroll). Hay was defeated, and in pique shot Gordon dead (Dec. 15, 1615). Three days later Hay was captured in the house of William Hay of Logierieve by George (the laird of Gight) and John and Alexander, the brothers of Adam. He was carried by them to their "awne ludgeing," the Bonnie Wife's Inn, in the Gallowgate of Aberdeen, and tried before a packed jury by a clansman, John Gordon of Clubsgoul, Sheriff of Aberdeen. The whole case is detailed at length, on account of its extraordinary lawlessness and ferocity, in the description of the next laird, the sixth, who took his brother Adam's death very much to heart. Adam Gordon had got into a trouble with a woman, for on October 6, 1608, he promised the Presbytery of Ellon (Mair's Records, p. 76) to marry Isobell, daughter of William Leask of that ilk. Whether the marriage ever took place I cannot say (the Balbithan MS. does not supply the name), but he declared that he was willing "to satisfie for entycing" her out of her father's house, to pay five merks, and make repentance in the Kirk of Ellon. Adam at any rate took umbrage at the House of Leask, for on July 24, 1615, he was put to the horn at the instance of the King's Advocate and Alexander Leask in Balschamphie, Thomas Fidler there, and William Smyth in the Mains of Leask. On August 2, 1615, his arrest was ordered for not appearing before the Council in answer to a charge of wearing hagbuts and pistollets, and committing acts of oppression on the said pursuers. On July 25, 1616, William Leask, apparent of that ilk, complained to the Privy Council that "in the previous December George Gordon of Gight and William Hay, his son-in-law, attacked him on the highway, the former with a drawn sword and the latter with two swords pulled out of one scabbard. George broke his weapon upon Leask's head and his son-in-law struck him in divers places through the clothes. Pursuer appearing personally, and the defender George Gordon not appearing, the Lords ordered him to be denounced rebel. Later on, Leask complained to the Council that he had been annoyed for eighteen months by John, Patrick, Alexander and Robert Gordon of Gight, and William Keith, who was probably their nephew.

5. ALEXANDER, "in Burngraynes" (so described in the Privy Council Register), took part in the murder of Francis Hay. He was denounced as a rebel in 1616 for attacking Leask of that ilk. He was also prosecuted as a Papist. The most notable events in his career were his attacks on Sir William Keith of Balmure. On August 11, 1617, the Lords of Secret Council reported that "of lait thair has ane unhappie accident fallin oute betuix" James Forbes of Blakstoun on one part, and the late William Keith, brother to the Goodman of Clachriach, and Alexander Gordon, brother to the laird of Gight, on the other, wherein Keith was killed and Forbes taken a prisoner by Keith's friends. The next we hear of Alexander Gordon is as an enemy of Sir William Keith of Balmure, for on June 4, 1618, it was reported by Keith to the Privy Council that "mony insolencyis" had been committed on him by John Gordon of Ardlogie, his brother Alexander in Burngraynes, and William Gordon of Saphak, "thair suster sone". On March 10, 1618, according to Keith's story, the three went armed to the land of Kellie, belonging in liferent to Keith's wife, Dame Margaret Bannerman, rode about in a bragging and insolent manner near to the place where pursuer happened to be staying, and endeavoured to provoke him to come forth. They then went to some of his cottars who were near at hand, and told them "that they were come thair to fetche a bair". Disappointed in their desire by the interference of pursuer they rode away to the Kirk of Methlik, where some masons were at work setting up a loft for pursuer. The masons had been warned of their wicked purpose, and so escaped the assault which defenders had intended to make upon them. "With drawin swerdis in thair handis thay enterit in the kirk and raid athorte the said Sir Williame's and his said spous landis, searcheing and seeking thair tennantis, demanding of all personis thay mett gif thay wer" Keith's men, and "compellit thame with mony threatningis and minassingis to sweir upoun thair swordguardis that thay wer not thair men". When James Ewing, in Little Methlick, one of Keith's men, who dwelt near the Kirk, heard of the affray and came to see what was wrong, the three Gordons "schamefullie and unhonestlie, without respect or regairde had to his grite age, persecut him of his lyff, and he haveing humelie beggit mercie of thame, saying he wes a friend and had nothing to do with thame, thay commanded him to cast his sword frome him; quhilk he haveing done for saultie of his lyff, thay then of new persecut him of his lyff, and had not faillit to haif slane him, wer not be the providence of God, his awne bettir defence, and help of some personis present, he wes fred from thame". Pursuers appearing personally, and defenders not appearing, the Lords order the three defenders to be denounced rebels. According to the Privy Council report of June 11, 1618, the three Gordons were not content with this swaggering and "lawles forme to injure and trouble gentlemen thair nichtbouris (who yf the reverent respect and regaird of his Majesteis authoritie and obedience restreanit thame not, wald mak the saidis personis to content thameselffis with resson and to forbear thair foleysis). Thay misheantlie, shamefullie, and unhonestlie come be way of hamesuckin to the dwelling house and corneyaird of Mr. Johnne Mersair, a harmless, innocent minister, and finding him single and allone at his meditatioun with a booke in his hand, thay invadit and perseuit him of his lyffe; housit him in his house, and fleeing to his horse gaif him a number of straikis with swerdis, and hurte and woundit him; assezeit him in his house; brasheit his durris with grite jestis; held in bendit pistollis at his windois of purposis to haif shoite him yf thay had gottin a sight of him, and thay had not failed to haif rissen fyre and brinte the house and the said Mr. Johnne within the same, wer not, be the providence of God, some gentilmen and nightbouris, hairing of thair cruell and barbarous purposis, come and releist the said Maister Johnne. For the quhilkis barbarous and detestable insolencyis the saidis Johnne, Alexander and Williame Gordonis being callit and convenit afoir his Majesteis justice and chargit to find cautioun to haif underlyne the lawis, thay absentit thameselffis frome thair tryall, refused to find cautioun, and wer thairfoir, upoun the 18 day of Aprile (1618), denunceit rebellis and putt to the horne; quhairat they remane as yitt unrelaxt, hanting all publict placeis and societie of men as yf thay wer laughfull and obedient subjectis, heighlie to the offence of owre Soverane Lord and misregaird of law and justice. And quhairas the uncontrolled ressett and supplie quhilk the rebellis findis in the cuntrey, not onlie fosteris thame in thair impietie and rebellious, bot encourageis otheris insolent and lawles personis to adhere unto thame, and the Lordis of Secreit Counseill haveing resolved examplarlie to punishe all suche personis as sall gif ony ressett, supplee or comforte to thir rebellis so lang as thay continew in thair rebellious; and to the effect all pretext of excuse salbe tane frome thame, yf thay or ony of thame sal happin to offend in this case . . . command, charge and inhibit all and sindrie his Majesteis liegeis and subjectis be oppin proclamatioun at all placeis neidfull that nane of thame presooome nor tak upoun hand to ressett, supplee, nor intercommoun with the saidis rebellis, furneis thame meate, drink, house nor harborie, nor haif intelligence with thame, privatlie nor publictlie, be letteris, messageis, nor no other maner of way during the tyme of thair rebellious, certifeeing thame that sall failyee or do in the contrair that they sall be callit, persewit and punist thairfoir with all vigour." On July 27, 1619, the Marquis of Huntly, who had been charged at the instance of Sir William Keith and Mr. John Merser to produce Burngraynes and his brother Ardlogie before the Council, protested, and as the pursuers did not appear the protest was admitted. On Jan. 27, 1620, the horning against Ardlogie, who had found caution in 1,000 merks to appear before the Council, which he did, was relaxed. On June 4, 1618, John Hedderwick in Boddam complained to the Privy Council that on the night of April 4, 1618, Alexander Gordon, brother to the laird of Gight, Johne Sinclair, brother of — Sinclair of Achannachie, and George Bruce, servitor to the said Alexander, all armed with swords, hagbutts and pistollets, assaulted him at the place of Fortrie, "shote tua billotis throw his richt thie, and with ane lance ran him throw the same thie". They then struck him to the ground and wounded him very seriously in the head. Alexander Gordon did not appear before the Council and was put to the horn. According to the Balbithan MS., Alexander Gordon married a Hay.

7. ROBERT. He took part in the Hay and Leask affairs, and on Nov. 4, 1617, he and his brother Patrick appeared before the Privy Council and "acit thameselffis to depairt and pass furth of this cuntrey for obedyence of his Majesteis decretit". He was one of a band of raiders who, in 1634, entered the lands of "Lady Fren draught," "spyling and laying of the same waist, and hanging one of her tenants at Strathbogie". The Aberdeen Town Council was ordered (December, 1634) to arrest him, but declined the task. In July, 1636, the Privy Council issued a proclamation for his arrest in connection with this affair. According to the Balbithan MS., he married a daughter of Ogilvie of Kempcairn.
8. JANET. The Balbithan MS. says that one of the fifth laird's daughters married a Leith of Harthill. Dr. Davidson in his Earldom of the Garioch notes that John Leith, second of Harthill, married as his second wife a Janet Gordon, whom I take to be Gight's daughter. Dr. Davidson further adds that Leith had by his first wife (Beatrice Fraser) a son John, third of Harthill, the notorious rebel who broke out of the Tolbooth of Aberdeen, July, 1640; and that it was his son Patrick who was executed as a rebel in Edinburgh, Oct. 26, 1647 (at the age of twenty-five). Now Spalding (Troubles, ii., 392) speaks of this Patrick as the "cousing" of Nathaniel Gordon. Hence I am inclined to believe that — Gordon of Gight married John the third, not the second, laird of Harthill, as Dr. Davidson says. In any case, the Spalding reference makes it clear that Patrick Leith was descended from a Gight Gordon (whereas Dr. Davidson's statements make no relationship at all). She was either the mother or the grandmother of "young Harthill," who was hand-in-glove with Nathaniel Gordon, notably in the raid on the Aberdeen merchants at St. James' Fair, Elgin, July 24, 1644, and at the capture of Forbes of Craigievar's troopers at Inverurie on Sunday, Feb. 23, 1645.
9. CHRISTIAN made a good match by marrying, as his first wife, Sir Adam Gordon of Park. George Jamesone painted the portraits of Sir Adam and his spouse, which are now in the possession of Mr. Gordon Duff of Park and Drummuir; but whether the lady was Christian Gordon or Helen Tyrie, Sir Adam's second wife, I cannot tell (John Bulloch's George Jamesone, p. 138). As the Park genealogy will be treated in another volume, I shall content myself here with tracing it out only in regard to the Duff connection, because it is the first landed family with whom we can connect the Duke of Fife. The eldest son of Sir Adam was—

SIR JOHN GORDON of Park, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir James Sibbald of Rankeillor, in 1631, and had—

(i) SIR JOHN GORDON, created a baronet in 1680. The baronetcy became extinct in 1804.

(ii) SIR GEORGE GORDON of Edinglassie, Sheriff of Banff. He had, with other issue, a daughter—

JEAN GORDON, married William Duff of Dipple (grandson of the much-disputed Adam Duff in Clunybegg), and became the mother of the first Earl Fife, and ancestor of the Duke of Fife (Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 121).

10. ANNA married, according to the Balbithan MS., (1) Alexander Gordon of Tulloch, son of Alexander, III. of Cracullie, and (2) Thomas Gordon of Pittendreich, the fourth son of Sir Thomas Gordon of Cluny (by Elizabeth Douglas, daughter of the Earl of Angus), and brother of Sir Alexander Gordon of Cluny and of Patrick Gordon of Ruthven, who wrote Britane's Distemper. Pittendreich was implicated in an attack in Aberdeen, March 26, 1644 (Spalding's Troubles, p. 330). Sir Thomas Gordon of Cluny was caution to the Privy Council for the sixth laird of Gight in connection with the murder of Francis Hay in 1617. On Feb. 28, 1629, Anna Gordon, spouse to Thomas Gordon of Tulloch, was infeft in the lands of Pittendreich. On June 4, 1674, Thomas Gordon of Pittendreich was given as the liferenter of Tulloch, the laird of which was then a minor (Records of the Meeting of the Exercise of Alford, p. 225). By her first husband (Alexander Gordon of Tulloch) she had—

WILLIAM GORDON of Tulloch, who went to France with a corps of men in March 5, 1642, and was made a captain (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 125). He married the laird of Cluny's daughter (Balbithan MS.), Janet Gordon, who (as a widow) was due Nathaniel Gordon 500 merks in 1646. He had two sons—

ALEXANDER GORDON of Glengarroch.

THOMAS GORDON of Garioch.

11. JEAN married George Gordon of Crichtie. The Balbithan MS. (p. 107) gives the name of "Cushney". But Crichtie is unquestionably correct. Crichtie, who was a cadet of Lesmoir, had first married Katherine McIntosh, by whom he had Adam of Bogholl (Balbithan MS., p. 45). He then married Jean Gordon, by whom he had—

WILLIAM GORDON of Saphak, described in the Privy Council Register as the sixth laird of Gight's "suster sone". William assisted his uncle, Alexander Gordon in Burnegraynes, to raid the lands of Sir William Keith of Balmure in March, 1618 (Nathaniel Gordon's father also being implicated). He was put to the horn. On June 9, 1619, George Gordon of Gight was caution for him and Harry Gordon in Haddo not to molest William Keith and John Merser. On July 8, 1619, William complained to the Privy Council as follows: "He is informed that he is denounced as a rebel at the instance of Sir William Keith, Merser, and the King's Advocate for not appearing to answer to a charge of wearing hagbutis" coming to the lands of Kellie and near to Sir William Keith's house, "and in defiance of him ryding and courseing thair horse foiranent his; searcheing of the said Sir William his maisonis at the kirk of Mathelick, who wer building to him ane dask thairintill, of purposis to haue slane thame, compelling his awne men to sweir vpon naiked swerdis that thay wer not his servandis; invading and perseuing the said Mr. John Merser of his lyff within his awine barneyard, houseing him within his house and besedgeing him thairin a lang space". Pursuer appearing personally and defenders not appearing, and pursuer pleading that he was not lawfully charged, had given caution of £500 for obedience, and had offered £20 for his escheat, the Lords suspend the process until the principal letters of horning are produced. The Great Seal calls his wife Elizabeth Forbes and mentions him as late as 1620. The Balbithan MS. calls him simply "William Collonell Gordon". He had, as noted, a brother by his father's first wife, Katherine McIntosh (ibid., p. 45).

ADAM of Bogholl (Great Seal). He was one of several Gordons, including William of "Saquhan," who granted a bond in 1606 to Patrick Gordon of Ruthven, author of Britane's Distemper, Aug. 28, 1616. "The justice be the mouth of Thomas Young, Dempster of Court, ordanit Adam Gordoun of Boigholl [as cautioner and surety for the entry of John Gordon of Clubsgoul, the judge who "tried" Francis Hay] to be vnlawet in the pane of ffyve hundreth merkis for the nocht entrie: and that the said John Gordoun sall be denuncet our Soverane Lordis rebell and put to his hienes horne, and all his moveabill guides to be escheited" (Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, iii., 401). On July 16, 1620, Adam Gordon of Bogholl, was cautioner for Harry Gordon of Haddo, who was accused of the slaughter of John Johnston, servant and near kinsman to the laird of Caskieben, and was "unlawit for nocht entrie of the said Harie in the pane of 200 merkis" (ibid., iii., 48).

12. LUCY (?) married James (?) Mowat of Balquholly (Balbithan MS.). Mr. Hay in his Sinclairs of Rosslyn says that "Lucy Gordon, daughter of the laird of Gight," married "James Mowat of Balquholly," and had a daughter—

MARGARET MOWAT, who had two illegitimate children (Patrick and John) to the Hon. William Sinclair, second son of the fourth Earl of Caithness. These boys were legitimated in 1607. The second of them—

REV. JOHN SINCLAIR, was the ancestor of Sir John Sinclair, the compiler of the Statistical Account of Scotland, and of the present baronet of Ulbster, and the Archdeacon of London.

13. ELSPET (or ELIZABETH) was a sister worthy of her brothers' exploits. She married, in 1600, James Cheyne of Pennan, a James Cheyne (possibly of Esslemont) being charged by the Ellon Presbytery (Feb. 11, 1600) with having performed the ceremony, he "having no function in the ministrie" (Mair's Presbytery of Ellon, p. 32). Cheyne belonged to a very lawless family. On March 23, 1619, John Gordon of Buckie made a series of complaints to the Privy Council about Elspet and her husband. "Of late," he says, "in his absence they had molested his tenants on the lands of Esslemont, compelling them with oppin force and violence to yeild unto quhat sumevir is demandit of them." In June, 1617, Elspet and her spouse went to the dwelling-house of Alexander Anysoun in Cairnhill, tenant of pursuer, assaulted him in a very cruel manner, and swore that he would have his life unless he removed from that town and the lands of Esslemont, or paid "in name of blak maill" a number of cayne fowls and a yearly pension. From Nov., 1617, to Feb., 1618, Elspet and her husband had gone to the pursuer's barnyard of Esslemont and taken away corn for the use of their horses and cattle. On a night of May, 1618, they went to the dwelling-house of John Petrie in Esslemont and Issobell Tillery, his spouse, broke up the doors, made themselves masters of the house, opened lockfast "loomes," etc., and took away "the haille meite, drink, meill, beiff and muttoun being within the same". When the tenants requested them to depart, Cheyne set upon Petrie with a sword and dagger, and would have slain him had he not escaped from the house. Thereupon Cheyne "cryit for fyre," and endeavoured to burn the house. He was prevented by some neighbours who had gathered together. In July, 1618, Cheyne went to the pursuer's lands of Carstane and assaulted Johnne Ligertwood, another tenant, whom he felled to the ground. He then demanded some meal and malt from Johnne Ligertwood, but was refused. Thereupon Cheyne went to Ligertwood's house and took a number of hens, capons, and other fowls. He swore that if he were again denied, he should neither eat nor drink till he had taken Ligertwood's life. When the latter raised letters of lawburrows against Cheyne, that worthy vowed that he would take his life "in caise he gaif his aith that dreides him bodelie harme". It is further stated that Petrie having asked the said Elspet Gordon to "forbeir suche unseamelie forme of doing," she thereupon "consaueing ane heich offence aganis him in the hicht of his distemperit passioun and unreulie humour, pat violent hand on him, and schamefullie and unhonnestlie strak and dang him with hir handis and feit in sindrie partis of his body and left him for deid". Her husband has so often threatened to burn pursuer's houses, cornyards, etc., that his tenants and servants intend to "leave of the labouring of his lands and to cast the same in his hands". Pursuer appearing and the said James Cheyne appearing for himself and his said wife, the Lords assoilzied the defenders because pursuer had failed to prove the charges.

14. MARJORIE married, before 1587, her cousin-german, Alexander Innes of Cotts, who was known as "Crag-in-Peril". His mother was a daughter of the fourth laird of Gight. (I may note in parenthesis that her husband's grand-niece, Jane Innes, who died in 1727, married Thomas Pitt, the ancestor of Lord Chatham and William Pitt. A table giving the full connection between the Inneses and Pitts was published in Scottish Notes and Queries, June, 1898. A very elaborate table of the Pitts appears in Lady Russell's Swallowfield and its Owners p. 195.) Marjorie had a strain of the family blood, for there was "sum intrigue" between her and Innes, the marriage coming off "abruptly," though she was really "contracted with the Laird of Tolly Barclay" (Familie of Innes, p. 201). They had seven sons and two daughters:—

- (1) JOHN INNES of Leuchars was his mother's son. In 1612 he and several other boys, including two Gordons (of course), were arraigned before the Aberdeen Town Council for a series of riots in the Grammar, Song and Writing Schools of the city. On December 1 they took possession of the Song School, "lang before the superstitious tyme of Yeuell, against the laudibill acttis and statutes maid thairanent obofor, nochwithstanding that souertie wes found be thame that thay sould not tack the schullles at that time nor na uther tyme of the year; and that thay sould observe gude ordour and discipline within the saidis schullis". They were also charged with carrying guns and with "schouting thairwith alsweel on the nicht as on the day". Their "greit deids of oppressionne and ryottis" included their forcible entry of the citizens' houses, and "bracking up thair durris and windowis and maisterfullie tacking of thair fouillis, pultrie, breid, and vivaris". They also looted the country carts which brought "fewall and vivaris cumeing to this burghe and mercat thairof" (Spalding Club, Extracts from the Council Register of Aberdeen). The ringleaders were imprisoned in the Tolbooth. This John Innes began life in the French army with his distant kinsman, Colonel Gordon (of Wallenstein notoriety). His eldest son married Marjorie Geddes, daughter of James Geddes of Auchenreath, and had eighteen children, including—

JOHN INNES of Leuchars, who married, at the age of forty-nine, Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of Sir George Gordon of Edin-glassie, the latter being his father's first cousin. His wife's sister married William Duff of Dipple. John Innes had no issue.

- (2) ALEXANDER INNES entered the English service, and was attached successively to Buckingham, Stafford, and the King. He was

- once employed on a State mission to Holland (Familie of Innes, p. 208).
- (3) JAMES INNES was also in the English (Royalist) service, and was made a prisoner by the Parliamentary army at Windsor, 1643.
 - (4) PATRICK INNES of Mefts was employed by the Earls of Argyll and Huntly.
 - (5) GEORGE INNES had a pair of colours in Lord Spynie's regiment, raised for service with Gustavus Adolphus, 1621. He was laird of Caldcots; married Isobel, daughter of Adam Gordon of Park; and was ancestor of Cosmo Innes the antiquary. The Balbithan MS. (p. 36) erroneously calls him John Innes.
 - (6) ROBERT INNES was also worthy of his mother's son. On Aug. 7, 1621 (Privy Council Register), his uncle, the laird of Gight, had to appear on his behalf as cautioner in 500 merks that the boy should not disturb Marion Strachan, relict of John Innes of Leuchars (probably his aunt), and John Dunbar, notary public, burgess of Elgin, and their families. The bond is dated at Coittis, July 20, 1621, and is witnessed by, among others, James Rutherford, Provost of Elgin. He entered the French army, and afterwards served with the English Royalists (Familie of Innes, p. 208).

GEORGE GORDON, VI. OF GIGHT.

(Son of V. : died in prison, 1640.)

This laird, the eldest of the fifth laird's seven sons, carried on the family traditions with unswerving fidelity, and his life was one long struggle against law and order. He had arrived at that point of culture when a man is able to formulate the philosophy of his conduct. According to the Privy Council Register, he once said to his wife—

I can tak no rest. I knaw I will die upon a scaffald. Thair is ane evil turne in my hand, quhilk I avow to God presentlie to reform (Privy Council Register, July 2, 1618).

Secondly, we are informed by the same authority that Gight thought that it was

A cryme unpardonable in the person of ony of his rank or within to resset or schaw favour to ony person aganis whome he beiris querrell.

The Council ultimately labelled him as

A most rebellious and disobedient person, who, by a concourse of a nombir of odious crymes, [had] made himself in a kynd eminent abone offendaris of the heichest degree.

As a final evidence of his evil reputation, let me quote Lord Dunfermline, who, writing to Lord Binning on Feb. 18, 1616 (Fraser's Earls of Haddington, ii., 134), says:—

The insolence and misrewll committed by Geight can nather be vncouthe to yow nor me that knaws the humouris of these folkes, althocht wee might have hoped that the good ordour of all the rest of the countrie might have tempered thame suim better.

Gight simply revelled in his effrontery, and, after the manner of a Jack Shephard, he once bragged that (Privy Council Register)

He knew the Wynd of the Tolbuith, and how to gyde his turne [and that he had had to do] with the gritest of Scotland, and had outit his turnis aganis thame.

Let me demonstrate these obiter dicta by the leading incidents in his career, extending over a period of six and forty years (1594-1640):—

1593. April 12.—George Gordon, fiar of Gight, and others, having failed to appear to underlie such order “as sould haue beine prescrivit to thame tuicheing the observatioun of peax and quietnes in the cuntrie,” are denounced as rebels (Privy Council Register).

1594. Dec. 26.—Robert Betoun of Balfour became surety in 5,000 merks for George Gordon, apparent of Gight, to keep ward in the place of Bonytoun or any other place besouth the Tay. On Feb. 13, 1595, this bond was deleted (Ibid.). Note that the third laird of Gight, who died in 1578, had married a daughter of Cardinal David Beaton, while the sixth laird himself was captured in 1640 by a Captain Beaton.

1602. Nov. 23.—The contract between George Gordon, fiar of Gight, and Mr. Robert Maitland on the third part of the lands of Auchincruive is recorded (Sasine Register).

1605. Oct. 19.—John Gordon of Buckie had to offer caution of £2,000 that Gight should not harm Archibald Douglas of Bennettle (Privy Council Register).

1606. Feb. 8.—George Gordon of Gight, “haeres masculus et talliae Willielmi Gordoun de Geicht, patris,” was served heir in the lands of Badichill, Over and Nether Murefundlands, Over and Nether Suanfurde, Blacrie, and Mactarrie (Inquisitiones Speciales).

1607.—A “witch” named Malie Wyse was said to live on the lands of Gight (Mair's Ellon).

1607. July 3.—A priest named William Murdo, examined by the Privy Council, declared that he “understandis Mr. David Law as he belevis [is] bruther to the Bischop of Orknay, who is ane preist and not as yit ressavit in the ordour of Jesuitis, bot is desyreous to be thairin, and that Mr. David Law come to this cuntrey some yeiris syne frome Pareis, as the deponer rememberis, and the deponer knew him not afoir he come to this cuntrey bot as a young scoller in Pareis. And the deponer knowis that he remanit a quhyle with young Geycht, and with his sister in Buchane, with whom he maid his residence. Examinat upoun that part of the writting beiring 'Estate preterita visitavi loca in quibus peregrinatus fuerat Machareus noster pie memorie,' etc., quhat placeis thir wes wher M'Quhirrie had hantit of auld, deponis that it wes with the Laird of Geycht in Buchane and no uther part, and deponis that he remanit in the wynter with William Leslie of Conrak and the rest of the partis contenit in his former depositioun" (Privy Council Register).

1609. March 16.—Alexander, Lord Elphinstone, successfully petitioned the Privy Council for letters against George Gordon of Gight, James Gordon, apparent of Newton, John Gordon of Ardlogie, and others, for resetting and supplying John Meldrum of Ordley, who, on May 13, 1607, was put to the horn at the complainer's instance for not obtempering the decret obtained by Andro Meldrum, now of Drum-bek, before the Lords of Council and Session on March 14, 1607.

1610. February.—The Bishop of Moray assured the king that Gight had shown himself a "great furdrerar and favourer of peace".

1612. September 29, 30.—The Synods of the diocese of St. Andrews north of the Forth ordered Gight's excommunication to be intimated from its kirks (Minutes of the Synod of Fife), which was pillorying him again in 1614.

1615. June 15.—The king confirmed the charter by Henry Wood of Bonytoun, who sold to Gight, his son-in-law, the lands of Cuikburnes, "cum pendiculo," Tully-brex (Great Seal).

1615. December.—Gight was summoned by the Privy Council for breaking a sword across the head of the laird of Leask, whose daughter had been abducted in 1608 by his brother Adam.

GIGHT'S REPUDIATION OF THE "TREW" RELIGION.—Between 1597 and 1616 Gight carried on a constant battle against the "trew religion". In this he was supported by his wife, Isobel Wood, of the Bonnyton family. The Woods were Papists, and the Presbytery Records of Ellon (which Mr. Mair has summarised) teem with reference to their heresy. Gight was in constant conflict with the Reformed Church, and was accused of harbouring "masse priests," who went about the country disguised as "medicinars". On June 12, 1594, he was one of the north countrymen charged to appear before the King and Council to answer for good rule and loyalty, to answer concerning "persute and invasioun of his Majesteis declairit tratouris, rebellious and unnaturall subjectis, tressounable practizaris and conspiratouris aganis the trew religioun presentlie professit within this realme, his Majesteis persone and estate, and libertie of this cuntrey". On July 11, 1594, Gordon was denounced as rebel in connection with this edict. In November, 1594, "young Geicht and Clunie" were received by the Duke of Lennox, who had been left in Aberdeen by the king as his lieutenant in the north. The Duke "tooke up vigourouslie the penalteis of the commoun people that obeyed not the proclamatiouns, but compounded easilie with the assisters of the rebels. He had power to receave to peace whom he pleased. He had avaritious and craftie counsellers left with him" (Privy Council Register). In 1597 the Presbytery of Ellon learned that Gight (who then lived at Little Ardo) and Isobel Wood had "laitlye caused ane popish priest to baptise ane bairne to them". Gight retorted that the minister of Tarves had declined to baptise "ye first of ye four bairnes".

Gight and his wife excommunicated, 1601.—In January, 1601, Mrs. Gordon was excommunicated, "as nothing is seen in her bot contumacie," and in the following September Gight was excommunicated. He had a fear of this sentence—extraordinary in a man of his turbulent type—and gave "the brethren" a trying time. On April, 1601, he was summoned to Aberdeen by the Presbyteries of Aberdeen and Ellon under pain of excommunication, but he did not appear. A letter was received from the Marquis of Huntly pointing out that George had ridden south with him "chairgit in his majesties adois". Gordon himself sent a letter, adding in addition to Huntly's excuse, that his brother-in-law, young Wood of Bonnyton, was in danger of his life at Edinburgh, "and to be executed as he fearit this xxiii of Aprile". The brethren put off the examination of Gordon until May 8, when he duly appeared. Sentence of excommunication was deferred until July 1, under certain conditions, among them that he should have the Confession of Faith read to him and attend the Kirk of Methlick. On July 24 he was summoned by the Presbyteries for failing to fulfil the conditions. His father, William, appeared in his absence and produced "tua testimionallis, testifeand his diseass, quhilkis the presbyteries fand irrelevant, becauss thair was na offer maid thairwith that he wald satisfie". But upon his father's "ernist" request, the pronounciation of sentence was again postponed. He was summoned again on Aug. 7, but did not appear. Instead, he sent a servant with a letter, written from Kelly, on Aug. 6. He declared that he had a "deadlie diseass," which made him unable to leave the country, although the brethren might think this "ane fenyeit excuse. Befoir God I persuaid my selff that I haue fewe daies to leve in respect of yeiris." He offered to ward himself in his house to receive "nane quha is excommunicat (my bed fellow being exceptit)," and that he would confer with them when his "deidlie secknes dois permitt". He had simply a terror of excommunication, and went on to say: "I heir offeir, giff thair is nathing can satisfie yow [if] I remane Catholick, bot my bluid and wardlie wraik, to enter my selff . . . in ony place ye pleiss till opponit, and giff it sall pleiss Majestie and your wisdomes of the Kirk of Scotland sa to tack my bluid for my professioun, quhilk is Catholick Romane, I will maist willinglie offere it for the same". The brethren were dissatisfied and summoned him (for the fourth time) on Aug. 14. Instead of appearing he sent his father, William. The brethren excommunicated him on Sept. 20 (Aberdeen Kirk Session Records, pp. 178-183; Mair's Presbytery of Ellon, pp. 7-11).

Gight summoned as a Papist by the Privy Council.—On Oct. 24, 1601, he appeared before the Privy Council on the charge (which he denied) of having often, notwithstanding divers proclamations to the contrary, resetted Mr. Johne Hamiltoun, who has made "schamefull defectioun and apostacie fra the treuth," and been "a trafficquar and practizar aganis the lauchfull autoritie and government of Princeis," and the Council ordered him, on a caution of 5,000 merks, to enter in ward in the burgh of Montrose, and remain there till freed by his Majesty, "to the effect in the meanetyme he may have conference with the ministeris, and be resolvit be thame in sicheidis and pointis of his religioun quhairin he standis in doubt". Sir David Wode becomes his surety. On March 2, 1601, Sir Johnne Lindsay of Wodheid was caution in 5,000 merks that Gight should repair to his own house of Ardoch and remain there, going monthly, if his health permit, to the burgh of Abirdene, where he is to reside eight days every month, occupied in conference with the Bishop of Abirdene and Presbytery thereof for his resolution in such points of religion as he stands in doubt of. He is to continue in the said ward and eight miles thereabout till freed by his Majesty. If he be so visited with "disease and seiknes" that he cannot repair to the said burgh, he shall monthly advertise the said Bishop and Presbytery thereof, with a request to send some one to reason with him on the said matter. On April 13, 1602, Huntly was charged by the Privy Council to enter certain Papists still at large in the north (Gight included) before the King and Council. In 1604 he was accused of having carried a crucifix on a spear at his mother's funeral. On Feb. 18, 1608, the captain of the guard was ordered to apprehend him and inventory his goods as he had been excommunicated, and had remained a long time unrelaxed from the horn. On April 28, 1608, John Dempstair and certain other officers of the guard reported to the Council that they had apprehended him in the north in the company of Francis, Earl of Erroll, "who, however, had prevented them from fully executing their warrant, alleging that he was a councillor himself, and would enter Gordon before the Privy Council when charged". Erroll was ordered to "compeir before the Counsell and to exhibit the Laird of Geycht". In 1608 the General Assembly ordered the "downcasting" of Gight's private chapel (Mair's Ellon). In 1609 the Privy Council summoned him for sheltering a Jesuit, Walter Murdo, "a traffiquair and practizar aganis the lauchfull autoritie and government of Princeis". He was ordered, under a caution of 5,000 merks, to confine himself to the burgh of Montrose, where he was to confer with the ministers.

Gight banished.—On Feb. 1, 1614, he was ordered to go abroad and remain there "dureing all the dayis of his lyftyme," without skaith to his person or property, provided he attempt nothing against the king or the present religion (Privy Council Register). On July 2, 1616, a commission under the signet was granted to the captain and lieutenant of the guard to apprehend Gight, as "ane profest and avowed Papist," who, "in the pryde of his heart, contemning and disdainig all kynd of procedeur, alsweill ecclesiastique as criminall," has made himself eminent above other offenders, especially by the wearing of hagbuts, the assault on the brethren of Brunthill and the murder of Francis Hay, and his refusal to appear for trial. Since he was put to the horn for these crimes he had been summoned before the High Commission of the Kirk for practising against the religion, but he had refused to appear.

THE VENDETTA WITH THE HOUSE OF HAY, 1615-23.—The feud between the Gordons of Gight and the House of Hay is unparalleled even in the history of the Gordons for its ferocity. It arose from several causes, and as usual had a basis in friendship and relationship. In the first place, Gight felt that he had to avenge the death (in a duel, Dec. 15, 1615) of his brother Adam, at the hands of Francis Hay of Logierieve, who had been his bosom companion ; and second, there seems to have been some disagreement between his son-in-law, William Hay, son of the eighth Earl of Erroll, and the Hays of Brunthill. The vendetta assumed almost national importance, so that the Earl of Dunfermline thought it worth while to write to the king, Dec. 23, 1617 (Letters to King James VI., Maitland Club, 1835) : "Your Sacred Majesty agreed [the Marquis of Huntly and Lord Erroll] and thair freindis in a particuler perrollus deadlie feade [which] was fallin out amongs thameselffis, and lykelye to haue maide great truble betuix thame for the slauchter and bloode betuix Laird of Gight Gordon and ane brother of the Erll of Erroll's and some otheris his freindis".

The capture of Francis Hay, who killed Adam Gordon in a duel, 1615.—Adam Gordon fell on Dec. 15, 1615. Three days later, according to the statement of the King's Advocate before the Privy Council (April 16, 1616), "George Gordoun of Geycht, William Hay, his son in law, Johnne, Alexander, Robert and Patrik Gordonis, his brether, James Baird, William Gordoun in the Maynis of Geycht, Johnne Sinclair, bruther to the Laird of Achannachie, Andro Nicolson, servitor to William Hay, Patrik Clyntlie in Ardiffery, Thomas Bisset, servitour to the Laird of Geycht, and Johne Gordoun, Scheref-depeite of Abirdene, with utheris thair complices, and with convocatioun of hes Majesteis leigeis to the noumir of — personis, all of thame being privat men, cled with no lauchfull warrand, pouer, auctoritie nor commissioun, and being bodin in feir of weir, with invasive forbidden and unlauchfull wapponis, and convocat and assemblit togidder, the said Laird of Geycht come in a hostile and weirlyke maner to William Hay his dwelling house of Logyruiff, quhair umquhill Francis Hay, his Majesteis frie leige, wes for the tyme. [They] invironed and belayit the house on all sydis, upoun set purpose, provisioun and resolutioun to have assedgit the same, and in end to have ressin fyre, gif any oppositioun had bene maid to thame in the deleverie of the said Frances. And haveing assaylled the said William Hay within his awne house a certane space with mony threatning and minassing speitcheis, in end thay forcit him for eschewing of thair barbarous crueltie . . . to grant thame acces in his house. And thay, usurping upoun thayme his Heynes royall pouer and auctoritie, took the said Frances prisouner and transportit him, guairdit with a number of men in armes, to the burgh of Abirdene. Comeing thair about ten of the cloke at nicht, thay committit and detenit him presoner in thair awne ludgeing in the Gallowgait of Abirdene callit the Bony Wyffis Inne the space of fourty-aucht houris,—to witt, quhill the twentye day of the said moneth at ellevin of the clock in the foirnoone, suffering no persone of his kin and freindschip to haif access unto him nor to confer nor intercommoun with him in this meanetye."

Gight arranges a sham trial of Hay.—"Gycht in this tyme directit his messageis and letteris to the haill baronis and gentilmen of the cuntrey thairaboute who profest him freindschip and goodwill, intreating thame to come and assist him in the acting of that detestable, violent, and barbarous tragidie which he had in handis. Quhairupoun thair come flocking unto him frome all the cornaris of that province numberis of baronis and gentilmen in airmes. Being all assemblit togidder to the number of twa hundreth people in airmes, and the Laird of Geycht—thinking himself of sufficient pouer, force and strength to do his turne and to resist quhatsumevir thing sould be intendit be ordour of law or utherwyse for defence of the said Frances his lyff, he being backit, assistit and accompaneit with the haill number of personis foirsaidis in airmes—brocht the said Frances frome thair ludgeing the said twenty day at elevin of the clock in the foirnoone.” Hay was carried “alangis the hie calsay to the Tolbuith of Abirdene, quhair Johne Gordoun of Clubbisgoul, scheref-depeite of Abirdene, ane of thair awne complices and direct pairtie with thame in all that mater, wes attending, he being the cheife persone whose advise, counsaill, and directioun and opinioun thay followit in the prosequioun of this haill busynes. And he being guiltie in his awne conscience before God of partialtie and preoccupyt opinioun, and knawing weill aneugh that the tyme of his priviledge, gif he ony had, wes expyrit, he, notwithstanding to the offence of God, contempt of his Majestie, and scandail of the justice of the cuntrey, most presumptuouslie, arrogantlie, and with ane evill conscience, usurpit upoun him the place of judge and presentit himself and sat down in judgement.”

Hay was refused the benefit of legal advice.—“Mr. William Barclay, advocate, wes preparit to haif compeirit for defence of the said Frances lyff, and had mony gude reasonis and exceptionis aganis the pretendit judge, as partiall and incompetent, being pairtie aganis his jurisdiction as expyrit (the defendair not being tane reid hand), aganis the tyme (as not being cited upoun fyftene dayis wairning) and aganis the actioun as excludit, because the pairtie [Adam Gordon] slayne be Frances died at the horne for divers criminall causis, quhair of the horningis wer reddie to produce. But the said scheref-depute, Laird of Geycht, and thair freindis being foirsene thair of, and understanding weill aneugh that ony ane of thir exceptionis according to the course of law and justice wald haif frustrat and maid void that dyet, and thay, being bent and resolvit to haif the said Frances lyff, thay directit George Leslie of Kinraigie to the said Mr. William Barclay with a commissioun dischargeing him upoun the perrell of his lyff to come and speik for the said Frances. [They told Barclay] gif he compeirit that, howevir thay wald reverence his Majesteis seate during his being thair, thay sould put twenty quhinyearis in him efter he wes anes down the stair. And some uther advocatis in the toun were boistit, threatnit, and minassit gif in any wayis thay spak in that mater. And some of the said Frances freindis, who wer preparit to come to Abirdene to dischaige that dewtie unto him, quhilk became thame, thay wer adverteist and forwairnit to come upoun thair gaird, or utherwyse upoun thair hasard and perrell. And sua the poore gentilman, being bereft of the benefite of lauchfull defence quhilk God and nature has indifferentlie allowed unto all men, and debarrit fra speiche, company and conference of his freindis and advocatis, who durst not assist him for feir of that unlauchfull assemblee of forces, he wes enterit upoun pannell and put to the knowledge of ane assise selectit and chosen be the pairties thameselfis, and who wer so far addictit unto thame as no doubt wes had of the said Frances convictioun. Lykeas he wes convict be thame of the said slauchter, and sentence of death pronuncit aganis him to losse his head.”

Hay condemned to death by a packed court and brutally murdered by the Gordons.—“After the pronouncing of quhilk sentence the pretendit usurping judge deliverit the said Frances to the pairtie, to be demanit as thay thocht good, who took him bak to thair awne privat prisone agane, and keipit him till the nixt day. And chuseing the tyme of sermone for his executioun about seven in the cloik in the morning, to the effect the eys of these who delytit to heir the preiching of Godis word sould not be polluted, nor thair hairtis grevit with that act worthie of no uther spectatouris bot the cruell actouris, thay being all convenit in airmes as afoirsaid, took the said Frances doun the crosse of thair ludgeing oute at a backyette, and caryit him to a hoill betuix tua mottis, not a rig lenth or tua fra the said dure, quhair they crowned thair tragidie with so butcherly mangling the poore gentilman with sex severall straikeis upoun his shoulderis, hind head and neck, as the lyke hes nevir, or seldome, bene sene or hard.”

The Gordons then make an attack on the victim's kinsmen, the Hays of Brunthill, 1616.—The Gights, however, were not satisfied with the brutal murder of Francis Hay. They made a daredevil attack on the Hays of Brunthill (who had sheltered Francis) in “a most raigefull crueltie,” for the laird of Gight thought it a “cryme unpardonable in the persone of ony of his rank or within to resset or schaw favour to ony persone aganis whom he beiris querrell”. So on February 1, 1616, the laird of Gight, his brothers Alexander, Patrick and Robert, his son-in-law, William Hay, his servants, James Baird and William Gordon, in the Mains of Gight, Andrew Milne, falconer, John Sinclair, brother to the laird of Auchanachie, Andrew Nicolson, servant to William Hay, and Andrew Cantlie, “all bodin in feir of war, and haveing hagbutis and pistolletis upoun thair personis,” did battle with the Hays. According to the complaint of the King's Advocate to the Privy Council (April 16, 1616), Gight was informed by a spy sent out by him that William, George and Patrick Hay, the sons of Alexander Hay of Brunthill, were “at ane brydaill at the mylne of Ardiffrie, within twa flicht shott of thair fatheris dwelling hous and upoun Frances Erll of Erroll his proper land and heritage of the barony of Slaines”. The Gordons “raid about the house in a bragging forme, purpoislie to have trayned” the Hays out. The Hays, knowing that their lives were in imminent danger, sent out their brother George without “swerd or weapone” to parley with the intruders. In “most gentill termes” he desired them to “go away in peace and not to crave moir blood, seeing ther was aneugh already gottin. Bot so far wer they [the Gordons] frome giving care to the intreaty of the said George, that most feirslie, schamefullie and cruellie they set upoun the said George and his saidis tua brethir, and invaidit and perseuit thame of thair lyevis, hurte the said Williame deadlie in the oppin of the head with a swerd eftir he wes schote throw the thie with a hagbute, gaif the said George tua deidlie stryakis, ane on the head and ane upoun the left hand, sua that he is mutilat of tua fingeris, and strak the said Mr. Patrik through the body, and left thame all lyaid upoun the ground for dead, suirle beleving thay had bene dead, utherwyse thay had not left thame quhill thay had bene dead, and thay left ane hagbute and pistollet behind thame.” According to the King's Advocate (on March 12) it was the laird of Gight who "schote a lang hagbute at William Hay, quhair-with he schote him throw the thie," and then attacked Patrick and George. It was also stated that the laird's son-in-law, William Hay, presented a pistol at Patrick Hay, "quhilk misgaif, and that thaireftir he stoggit him with a rapper".

The Laird of Gight gives the Privy Council a different version.—The laird of Gight, who did not appear as ordered before the Privy Council, had quite a different story to tell. He declared that, as there was "some question, controversie and difference standing betuix" his son-in-law, William Hay, and the latter's mother, Dame Agnes Sinclair, Countess of Erroll, he (the laird of Gight) travelled for the "freindlie settling of the materis forsaidis standing questionable". He arranged a tryst between Hay and his mother at the Kirk of Cruden. In the evening, he, his son-in-law, his servant Baird, and two other "husband men," left the house of Hay, which was near the church. They were "single and thame allanes with ganging staulffis in their handis walking on fute for seiking ane flicht to the said Laird of Geycht his halk upoun the watter of Cruden. They come alongis the said watter neir unto the mylne of —, pertening to the said William Hay, in a verie peciable and quiet manner, lippyning for nothing les then ony oppin violence or injurie to have bene done to thame be ony persone or personis. Notwithstanding, it is of treuth that Maister Patrik, Williame and George Hayis, sones to Alexander Hay of Brunthillis, being in ane oisler house neir unto the said mylne, quhair they had spent the most part of that day in the intertenment of thameselfis with excesse, and persaveing the said Laird of Geycht walking on his fute with ane staulf in his hand as said is, upoun a deidlie malice and privat grudge consavit and borne be thame in thair hairtis aganis him resolvit at that tyme to have his lyfe. And for this effect the said Mr. Patrik Hay, him allane comeing first furth of the said house, verie tantanlie, scornfullie, and disdanefullie schoutit and cryit the falconneris cry, and said 'Wow, wow, schit schew!' and the said Laird of Geycht, not knowing at first who it wes, nor quhat the mater meanit, patientlie comportit with the speitcheis foirsaidis; bot heireftir persaveing that it was Mr. Patrik Hay, for eschewing of forder trouble thay went directlie fordwart alongis the said watter, comporting with the injurie foirsaid. And the said William Hay, bruther to the said Mr. Patrik, comeing then furth of the said house, thay both, armed with swerdis, came trotand eftir the said complenaris; and the said William Hay, brother to the said Erl of Erroll, haveing went to thame to ask of thame quhat thay meanit, and to haif dissuadit thame fra committing ony oppin violence aganis his said father-in-law, thay directlie past by him, pullit out thair swerdis, and most feirsleie set upoun the said Laird of Geycht, and schamefullie, cruellie, and unmercifullie in vaidit and perseuit him of his lyff. And he having fled from thame a grite space, thay, accompanyit with the said George Hay, thair said thir bruther, followit him over the bra of the mylne dame of the said mylne (fra quhilk place he could not flie ane fute farder), and thair the saidis thrie brether most cruellie and unmercifullie in vaidit and perseuit him of his lyff, lichtit all thrie upoun him at once with thair drawne swerdis, cuttit down thairwith his pickadill upoun both his sheulderis, strak him on his bak in the said mylne dame, and had not faillit to have slayne and drownit him thairintill (his said son-in-law and his said servand being singlit frome him and haldis fast be the persones present for the time) wer not, be the providence of God, the said Laird of Geycht his said servand, who bore his halk, pat ane hagbute in his hand, which he then accidentlie caryed for slaying ane crow to the halk, (and) the said Laird of Geicht defendit himself thairwith. And the saidis personis also cruellie and unmercifullie invadit and perseuit the said William Hay and — Baird of thair lyveys, and thay narrowlie eschavit with their lyves.”

How the Privy Council tried in 1616 to bring the Gordons to justice.—The Privy Council found it a difficult task to bring the Gordons to book. On Feb. 8, 1616, the Council ordered all the parties to appear, the laird of Gight and his son-in-law, Hay, under pain of 5,000 merks each. On March 12 Hay appeared, and he and the laird of Gight, together with the latter's brother, John, who did not appear, were ordered to enter their persons in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh within fifteen days. The laird's brother, Alexander, was denounced as a rebel, and all his movables were to be escheated for his non-appearing. On behalf of the Brunthill victims, Mr. David Ratray, minister at Cruden, appeared and declared that they were unable to travel—their father in respect of his “aige and seikness,” and the three sons in respect of the “hurtis and woundis quhillkis they ressavit”. On April 16 the King's Advocate detailed the whole story at great length. It was stated that the laird of Gight, “feiring the event of his tryall, and takand upoun him the ignominie and guilt of that cryme, he abstentit himself and compeirit not” before the Council. James Gordon of Knockespock appeared to excuse the absence of the defenders, all of whom were absent except William Hay, Gight's son-in-law. So the Lords ordered that the laird of Gight, his brothers John and Alexander, together with John Gordon of Clubisgoul (the sham judge of Francis Hay) and Gight's servant, James Baird, should enter their persons in the Tolbooth. William Hay was delivered to the lieutenant of the guard to be similarly confined. The charge against Gight's brothers, Robert and Patrick, and against John Sinclair, Adam Nicolson, William Gordon, Patrick Bisset and Patrick Cantlie was found not proven so far as the actual capture of Francis Hay was concerned, though they were all put to the horn in respect of the attack on the Brunthill Hays in February.

The Hays accused of making an attack on the Laird of Gight.—The quarrel took a new turn in June, 1616, when the Hays attacked the Gordons, for, according to the complaint (Feb. 25, 1617) by the King's Advocate and the laird of Gight, the Hays, accompanied by George Hay of Achairne and Johnne Fraser of Crechie, “with utheris, thair compliceis, all bodin in feir of weir and with hagbutis and pistolletis prohibite to be worne be the lawis of this realme, come upoun the — day of the said moneth of Junij, ryding upoun horsbak, to the said George [Gordon] his landis of Birnes, and searcht and socht the said George throughout all the partis of his saidis landis, raid about the housis of the same, and had not faillit to have slane him upoun set purpois, provisioun and foirthocht felloun wer not be the providence of God he come not thair that day”. The Gordons appeared personally, as also did George and William Hay, the latter presenting a testimonial under the hand of Mr. David Rattray, minister at Cruden, stating that Mr. Patrick Hay was sick and confined to bed. The other defenders, George Hay of Auchquhairney and George Fraser of Crechie, not appearing, and the said William and George Hay having admitted that they had worn hagbuts and pistollets since the beginning of trouble with pursuer, but without ever having done harm to any person, the Lords assoilzie George and William from the charge of assault because they have denied the charge on oath. They excuse the absence of Mr. Patrick, and order the other defenders who have not answered the summons to be denounced rebels.

General indictment of Gight and his "odious crymes," July, 1616.—On July 6, 1616, the Privy Council resolved to punish Gight, not only on account of the Hay affair, but also as a Papist. He was described as "ane profest and avowed trafficquing Papist and adversair to God and his treuth, having shaikin af his dewtie and alledgeance to his Majestie, his obedience to the laws and discipline to the Kirk, and in the pryde of his hairt contempning and disdainin all kynd of procedour that can be used aganis him. [He] hes of laitt gevin prooffe of a most rebellious and disobedient persone, and by a concurse of a number of odious crymes hes maid himself in a kynd eminent above offendaris in the heichest degree." The laird had been "chairgit to haif compeirit befor the Lordis of his Majesties Previe Counsall to haif underlyne such ordour as sould haif bene tane with him for observeing of his Majesteis peace and keiping of goode reule and quietnes in the cuntrey, as alsua to haif answerit to ane complaint maid upoun him for his Majesteis Advocatt for his Hienes witnessse for bearing and wearing of hacquebuttis and pistolletis and persute of the brether of Brunthill hard by thair fatheris dwelling house". But the laird, "takand the cryme upoun him, and disdaneing either to gif obedience to his Majestie or to purge and cleir himself of the said cryme, absentit himself and compeirit not befor the saidis Lordis to haif answerit upoun his usurpeing of his Majesties princleie power and auctoritie in the unlauchfull taking of umquhill Frances Hay, and for the barbarous and butcherlie murdering of him he lykewyse tooke the cryme upoun him and absentit himself, for the quhilk decret and sentence is gevin and pronunceit, and letteris of horning direct aganis him for entrie of his personie in wairde within the Tolbuith of Edinburgh. And alsua upoun the said xxviiiij day of Marche, Alexander Gordon, brether to the said George Gordon of Geycht, wes denunceit rebell and putt to the horne be vertew of letteris raisit at the instance of his Majesties Advocat for his not compeirance personallie at ane certane day before the saidis Lordis to have answerit to ane complaint maid upoun him tuitcheing the bearing and wearing of hacquebuttis and pistolettis as the saidis letteris execute, indorsate, and registrat beiris. And siclyke upoun the fourt and sex dayis of Julij instant Alexander, Patrik, and Robert Gordonis, brether to the said George Gordon of Geycht, James Baird and William Gordon, in the Maynis of Geycht, Andro Mylne, falconer, Andro Nicolsoun, servitor to William Hay, son in law to the said George Gordon of Geycht, and Patrik Cantlie in Ardiffrie, wer denuncit rebellis and putt to the horne be vertew of letteris raisit at the instance of his Majesties Advocat foirsaid for not compeirance personallie before the saidis Lordis of Secreit Counsall at ane certane day bigane to haif ansuerit to ane complaint maid upoun him be his Majesties said Advocat for the persute and invasioun of the forsaidis brether of Brunthill with unlauchfull and forbidden waponis in maner and at the tyme specifeit and contenit in the saidis letteris as the samyn beiris. . . . Quhairfore the Lordis of Secreit Counsall hes gevin and grantit and be the tennour hair of gevis and grantis full power and commissioun, expres bidding and chairge to the Capitane or Leutennant of the Gaird and to suche of the Companie of the Gaird as salbe direct be thame to convocate his Majesties liegeis in armes, and to pas, search, seik, and tak the personis rebellis foirsaidis quhairvir thay may be apprehendit, and to bring, present and exhibite thame befor the saidis Lordis to be tane ordour with as apperteynis, as alsua to pas, persew, and tak thair houses" (in customary form).

The King intervenes in the Gordon-Hay vendetta.—At last the king himself intervened. Writing to the Privy Council from Bletso (July 24, 1616), with "most princelie, wyse and judicious direction," his Majesty said: "We once hard of ane aggreiance betwene the Hayes and Gordons, but are not the les now certified of the contrarie, and that the saidis Hayes are now resolved to urge the benefit and executioun of our lawes allsweill against the unlauchfull imprisonaris and putteris to death of thair late kinsman, Francis Hay, as against the invaderis and hurteris of the brethren Brunthill. In whiche regaird and upoun the not aggreiance of the afoirnamed parteis wee have thocht good to recommend unto yow two thingis which yee are accordinglie to performe. The first is that yee proceed with all care and diligence to a full and exact tryall of the committeris and accessaries guiltie of the foirsaidis crymes, especiallie of the unlauchfull committment and executioun of the said Frances Hay, and that this done, yee caus do justice against the offenderis according to the merite and qualitie of the cryme quhair of thay salbe fund culpable. The next thing whiche we are to recommend to yow is (after due triall and punishement of the delinquentis) to urge the foirsaidis pairties to reconcile and aggrie. For, as a reconciliatioun can not upoun equall termes intervene betweene guiltie and innocent, so is it necessarie that justice preceid for making the guiltie pairtie innocent by punisheing offenderis, that thairefter a freindschip and aggreiance may be performed betuix the pairties so made innocent on both sides. And what in this case we have prescribed, the lyke yee ar to observe and use as a rule and square to direct yow in all incidentis of this or the lyke nature, knowing that as wee rigne not precario bot a frie and absolute king, so we will nather suffer the reconciliatioun of pairties amongst thameselfis to intersept the dew course of justice in the punishment of crymes whairin we have interesse, nor that the lauchfull instance of pairties interessed against suche malefactoris to be punished by the hand of our justice salbe ane occasioun of discorde amongst the freindis of suche pairties thereafter. And so, not doubting bot yee will proceed to the performance of the premisis with that care and diligence that the consequence of the mater, and wee for our satisfioun do require, wee bid yow fairwell."

Special precautions taken for the trial of the Gordons in Edinburgh, Aug., 1616.—The extraordinary intimidation at the "trial" of Francis Hay in Aberdeen gave the Crown authorities such a fright that when they resolved to try the Gordons in Edinburgh they took extraordinary precautions. On August 27, 1616, they issued a proclamation for keeping of the peace in Edinburgh on the approaching day of law for the trial of parties concerned in the taking and execution of Francis Hay. "Forsamekle as althocht by divers actis and proclam(ationis) maid and publeist heirtfoir the convocatioun of his M(ajesties) liegeis for backing of parties to dayis of law be pro(hibite) and dischairgit under divers pases mentionet and (contentin) the actis maid theranent, notwithstanding (the Lordis) of Secreit Counsall ar informed thair is grite numberis of people come to this burgh for assisting and backing the pairties haveing entres in persute and defence at the dyet appointit befor his Majesties Justice in the Tolbuith of Edinburgh upoun the xxvij day of August instant for the taking and executioun of umquhill Frances, it is to be suspected that some inconvenientis sall fall oute betuix thame within this burgh to the breck of his Majesties peace without remeid be providit : Thairfore the saidis Lordis ordanit ane maiser to pas to the mercat croce of Edinburgh and utheris placeis neidfull and thair be oppin proclamatioun to command and chairge all and sindrie his Majesties liegeis and subjectis who ar alreddy come or that salhappin to come to this burgh to attend and await upoun the said day of law, or for ony uther caus or occasioun quhatsumevir, that thay and everie ane of thame observe his Majesties peace, keepe goode reule and quietnes ane with another, and that thay nor nane of thame presoom nor tak upoun hand to invade or persew ane another, nor to mak provocatioun of offence or displeasour ane to another by worde, deade, countenance, toukeing, nor by na uther maner of way, under quhatsumevir collour or pretext under the pane of deade:—certifeeing thame that failyees or that sall happin to do in the contrair that thay salbe takin, apprehendit, and the pane of deade salbe execute upoun thame withoute favour or mercye: and to command and chairge and inhibite all and sindrie his Majesties liegeis and subjectis that nane of thame presoom nor tak upoun hand to accompany ony of the saidis pairties to the bar the day foirsaid without ane warrant in wryte from the saidis Lordis to be grantit upoun the petitioun and desyre of the pairtyis persewar and defendair under the pane of warding of thair personis and forder punishment at the discretioun of his Majesties Counsall."

The outlawing of Francis Hay's unjust judge, John Gordon of Clubisgoul.—According to the MSS. collections of Sir James Balfour, preserved in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates, and printed in Pitcairn's Criminal Trials (iii., 39), John Gordon of Clubisgoul, who had been summoned with Gight and his accomplices for Hay's slaughter, appeared before the justice and his deputes in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh, August 28, 1616, accompanied by "sum gentilmen of the name of Gordon". He came with outward "show and apperance," and petitioned the Council to let some gentlemen of his name assist him at the bar. This was granted "to sex persones selected and maid choise of be himselff. The Erll of Erroll came lykeways heir for persute of that mater, he having procurit ane Licence from the Counsell convenit at Abirdene for his cuming heir." He also "cravit licence that he might go to the Bar to assist the persute of that mater, bot in regaird he wes excommunicat it was not thought expedient that he sould go in persone to the bar, becaus it wes suspectit that the excommunication would be objectit aganist him to debar him from proces. And als becaus His Maties Advocat was pairtlie persewar in the Letteris who wold prosecute that mater, als weill as if the Erll war present. The Court being fensit, the justice, Justice Clerk, with the hail membership of the Court, and the parteis persewaris being all present, and the Sheref-depute being constantlie looked for to compeir, he notwithstanding absentit himself, and is thairfoir declairit fugitive and his cautioneris vnlaut." This was but a formal beginning of the proceedings against the main culprit, Gordon of Gight himself.

Gight complains to the Council about their injustice to him in the Hay affair, 1617.—On January 16, 1617, the laird of Gight complained to the Council that he had been put to the horn wrongfully for not entering into ward to answer three charges: (a) the pursuit of William, George and Mr. Patrick Hay; (b) the slaughter of Francis Hay; and (c) his not appearing to answer the complaint anent the trouble between him and the brethren of Brunthill. As he was never lawfully charged to enter his person or to appear, and as he had found caution in 6,000 merks to appear this day, and will make payment of 200 merks to the treasurer for his escheat, he pleads that the hornings should be suspended. Pursuer and the King's Advocate appearing personally, the Lords, in respect of the laird's appearance, suspend the letters of horning. They order him to find caution in the sum of 5,000 merks to keep the peace, and to appear before them to answer for the said crimes, and to find caution in the Books of Adjournal for his appearance before the justice to the same effect under the said pain of 5,000 merks. Caution is to be found within forty-eight hours. On Jan. 14, 1617, William Hay was ordered to be set at liberty, the laird of Gight being made his cautioner. February 26 was appointed as the day of Gight's appearance, and as the Council learned that there would be "grite contestatioun and reasoning betuix the pairties, and that divers questionis, objectionis, ansueris and replyis" would require good advice and deliberation, "the saidis Lordis hes appointit and nominat and be the tennour heirof nominatis and appointis the personis following—thay ar to say, Sir Richard Cokburne of Clerkintoun, knicht, Lord Previe Seale; Sir Williame Levingstoun of Kilsyth; Sir Andro Hammiltoun of Ridhous; Sir Alexander Drummond of Medop; and Sir James Skeene of Currihill—to be assessouris to our Soverane Lordis Justice, and to assist him with thair advise and opinioun in suche thingis as salbe propouned in that judgement".

The Marquis of Huntly and the Earl of Erroll ordered to intervene.—On February 20, in view of the "hairtburning, private grudge, and discontent" which the whole vendetta had occasioned, the Council ordered that the officers of arms should "pas to the Mercat Croce of Edinburgh" and charge the Marquis of Huntly, "as chief to the said Laird of Geycht," and Francis, Earl of Erroll, as to the brether of Brunthill, "as alsua the pairtyis thameselffis, and the hail noblemen, baronis, and gentlemen of thair name, and all thair servandis, followaris, and propper dependaris, who ar alreddy come to this burgh or sall come to the same to attend and awaitt upoun the said day, and for assisting and baking of one of the pairties, that they immediatelic adresse thameselffis to thair ludgeingis within this burgh [of Edinburgh] and contee thameselffis thairin, and onnawayes come furthe thairof withoute licence of the saidis Lordis had and obtenit to that effect, and that the pairtyis thameselffis onnaweyes presooome to come to the Justice Court quhill the magistratis of the said burgh of Edinburgh come and mak thair convoy and addresse to the same under the pane of rebelloun, etc., with certificatioun. And siclyke to command, chaarge, and inhibite all and sindrie personis that nane of thame be fund walking upoun the streetis of this burgh efter the ringing of the ten hour bell at night under the pane to be takine, apprehendit, wairdit, and punist as accordis."

The trial of Gight was a fiasco.—The trial proved a sheer fiasco. On Feb. 26, 1617, the Court met as appointed, the prosecutors being Lord-Advocate Oliphant and Marjorie Keith, the mother of the deceased Francis Hay, while as prolocutors for the defence were Gordon of Cluny, the Laird of Strathdon, Thomas Nicolson elder, and Alexander Peebles and Robert Fairlie, advocates. By consent of both parties the trial was adjourned till the 28th, Gordon of Cluny becoming cautioner in 5,000 merks for the appearance then of Gordon of Gicht. "Upon the 26 Februar," writes Calderwood, "the Crosse of Edinburgh was taken down. The old long stone, about fortie fouts or thereby in length, was translated by the devise of certaine mariners in Leith from the place where it stooode past memorie of man to a place beneath in the High Street without anie harme to the stone, and the bodie of the old Crosse was demolished and another buildit, whereupon the long stone or obelisk was erected and sett up on the 28th Marche." When Feb. 28 came round the Lords of Secret Council thought it expedient for "mony goode respectis and considerationis tending to the observation of his Majesteis peace within the burgh that the justice courte now presentlie sitting for tryeing of the Laird of Geycht anent the unlauchfull taking and detening of umquhill Francis Hay and for persuite of the brether of Brunthill sall sitt no (langer this nyght nor fyve of the cloke at nyght and so lang heirefter as this mater salbe of continewance), that the Courte (sitt no langer bot till fyve of the cloke nyghtlie), and ordanes the (clerk of) Counsall to (go and make intimation heirof to the justice) and to desire him to conforme himself in this mater accordinglie". The second day of the trial (Feb. 28) is described at length in Pitcairn's Criminal Trials (iii., 419-422). Sir William Hart and Alexander Colville were the judges. The prosecutors, as on the first day, were Lord-Advocate Oliphant and Marjorie Keith, mother of the deceased Francis Hay, but with George Hay, brother of the deceased William Hay, fiar of Brunthill, and George Hay, his brother, now conjoined with them; as prolocutors for the pursuit were named the Earl of Erroll, Lord Oliphant, Lord Yester, and Alexander Keith of Ludquharne; and the prolocutors for the defence now named were the Marquis of Huntly, the Earl of Eglinton, Viscount Lauderdale, Lord Ochiltree, Mr. Thomas Nicolson, and Mr. Alexander Peebles. After a good deal of ingenious argumentation between the laird of Gight's counsel and the Lord Advocate, the trial was adjourned to the following day (1st March), Gordon of Cluny continuing his caution for the laird of Gight. The Court duly met for its third sitting on March 1 as appointed. From Pitcairn (iii., 422-424) it appears that, in consequence of the illness of Sir William Hart, the single judge on the bench that day was Mr. Alexander Colville, and that it was pleaded on behalf of Gordon of Gight that Colville could not be lawfully a judge in the case, because he was fourth of kin to the Countess of Erroll, whose husband was a party to the pursuit, and that the sitting was consumed in argument pro and con on this question between the counsel for Gight and the Lord Advocate. There was again adjournment to the present 4th March, on which day, as appears from Pitcairn (iii., 424-427), Mr. James Bannatyne of Newtyle presented his commission and took his place on the bench along with Mr. Alexander Colville, and much of the proceedings consisted in argument pro and con on a declinature submitted in retaliation by the Lord Advocate of the competency of Drummond of Medhope and Hamilton of Redhouse to be assessors on the trial, in respect that they were both related to the Marquis of Huntly, and therefore likely to be prejudiced in favour of Gight. The question was left undecided and the Court again adjourned. Since the 4th March, the third day of the sittings, there had been adjourned sittings on the 7th, the 8th, and the 11th and 12th (see Pitcairn, iii., 427), where it appears that the pursuers had abandoned their declinature of the assessorships of Drummond of Medhope and Hamilton of Redhouse, and that on the 11th and 12th there were very prolix disputations on the merits of the case.

The trial stopped.—On March 13, which was the eighth day of the trial, there was a stop in the proceedings, which is recorded thus: "The Justice and Assessouris for obedience of ane warrand of the Lordis of Secret Counsall product be my Lord Justice Clerk, continewis this Justice Court and all forder disputatioun in this cause to the aughtene day of Junii nixtocum". The warrant is signed by the Chancellor, Marr and Binning. The trial was postponed on June 18 to June 27, when, according to Pitcairn, "the Justice be directioun of the Kingis Majestie declairit be my Lord Advocat continewis all forder disputatioun in this process and tryell of the particular crymes respective contenit in that summondis to the third day of the next justice-air of the sherefdome quhair the parteis, alsweill persewaris as defendaris, duelles (Aberdene), or soner upon xv dayes wairning: and ordanis the Laird of Geicht to find caution for his compeirance to the effect and in maner above written, under the pane of 5,000 merks, conforme to his Majesteis directioun reportit to his Majesteis Advocat as said is". Gight found William Gordon of Rothiemay his surety.

Erroll objects to Huntly.—On July 27, 1617, the Lords of Secret Council decided on the proposition laid before them by the king "tuitching" the exemption craved by Francis, Earl of Erroll, from the office and judgment and jurisdiction of sherriffship of George, Marquis of Huntly, which the Earl desired "be insert in his Majesteis decret, and sentence arbitrall to be gevin and pronuncet be his Majestie upoun that submission, maid unto his Majestie be the said Marques takand the binding on him for George Gordoun of Geycht and Johnne Gordoun, lait scheref-depute of Abirdene, on the ane pairt, and the said Erll of Errole, takand the burdyne on him for the fader and bairnes of Brunthill and for the moder and freindis of umquhill Frances Hay, on the other pairt". The Lords, understanding that the submission proceeded not upon any deeds done by the Earl and the Marquis, "or upoun ony controversie or debait standing amangis thameselffis, bot onlie upoun the occasiounis fallin oute betuix thair freindis, and that thay ar no forder bundin bot to caus thair freindis underly and obey his Majesteis decreit and sentence to be pronunceit betuix thame; and considering thairwithall that a schereff-principall can not be answerable in criminalibus for his depute, seeing the cryme is personall and the punishment dew thairfoir aucht onlie to be execute upoun the persone guiltye: Thairfoir the saidis Lordis findis that his Majestie in his decreit and sentence can not of law decerne the said exemptioun seeing thair is no suche mater submittit, and his Majestie can not pas the boundis of the submissioun; and yf the said Erll hes ressoun for him to seik the said exemptioun he wil be hard thairupoun befor the Lordis of Counsell and Sessioun”.

The King settles the vendetta.—“It was the King himself,” says the editor of the Privy Council Register (vol. xi.), “that had thought the trial worthy of his own interposition during his visit to Edinburgh. He wanted the trial arranged so that it should run aground by being transferred to Aberdeen. Then he took the whole affair into his own hands, and resolved to settle it by a royal decree arbitral which the parties should be invited to accept.” So on August 20 the Privy Council sent letters to Lord Huntly and Lord Erroll summoning them to Edinburgh on Sept. 8 in “peciable maner, accompanied onlie with thair houshalde servandis, and to keepe thair ludgeings quhen thay come heir”. Huntly was ordered to bring Gight and his brother, John Gordon of Ardlogie. Erroll was to bring the three brothers Hay of Brunthill. On Sept. 10, 1617, there appeared before the Privy Council the Marquis of Huntly, George, Lord Gordon, the laird of Gight, and his son-in-law, Hay, Sir Alexander Gordon of Cluny, Gordon of Abergeldie, and John Gordon of Buckie, on the one part; and the Earl of Erroll, his son, Lord Hay, his brother, — Hay, Nathaniel Keith, and the brothers Hay of Brunthill, on the other. It was “signifiet” to the two parties that the king had pronounced his sentence arbitral in the dispute, and that it “wes his Majesteis will and pleasour that afoir his decreit wer showne unto thame that thay sould be reconciliat and aggreit, and promise to stand to his Majesteis decreit and sentence fairsaid. And thay being demandit yf thay wer content to conforme thameselffis to his Majesteis will and pleasour on this point, thay declairit that in all reverence and humilitie thay wold acquiesce to his Majesteis will and plesour. Therefore in testificatioun of thair willing obedience to his Majestie, thay choppit handis, one with another, and promise to buriè all formair greiffis, displeasouris, and unkyndnes standing amangis thame, and to stand and underly and fulfil the decreit and sentence gevin and pronunceit be his Majestie betuix thame.”

A recrudescence of the feud, 1617.—Even then, however, the dispute was not settled, for on January 31, 1618, the King’s Advocate and William Hay, Gight’s son-in-law, petitioned the Council as follows: Despite the publication of the decree in the matter of the feud between them and the “brether of Brunthill,” and the “chopping” of hands in presence of the Council, the said Williame Hay, when walking on the links, less than a mile from his house, on —, was attacked by William Hay, younger of Brunthill, and Mr. Patrik Hay, on horseback, and armed with hagsbuts and pistollets. Petitioner having his “led horse” with him made his escape. The brothers thereupon retired to an "oistlar" house at the Kirk of —, on the highway home, and there hid themselves. They assembled together twelve horsemen and twenty footmen all armed, but petitioner, suspecting the ambush, rode home another way. On — November last "the said Johnne Hay" assaulted David Nicolsoun, petitioner's servant, in Patrik Blak's booth in Abirdeene. All these persons are guilty of carrying forbidden weapons, and should be ordered to appear before the Council. The petition is signed "Sir W. Oliphant"; on the back, "Fiat ut petitur, P. Pollok".

The final settlement.—On June 29, 1623, Mr. Robert Learmonth, advocate, as procurator for the dischargers, registers a discharge by Francis, Earl of Erroll, and William Hay, fiar of Brunthill, and George and Mr. Patrik Hay, his brothers, to James Prymrois, clerk of the Privy Council, for £2,000 consigned in his hands by George Gordon of Gight, for obedience of part of a decree arbitral pronounced by the king as judge and arbiter chosen by George, Marquis of Huntly, and the said Earl of Erroll, dated at Carlisle, August 6, 1617, and registered in the books of Council and Session on September 10 thereafter. The discharge is dated at Slains, May 26, 1623. Witnesses: John Hay, burges of Aberdeen, Alexander Davidson, John Hay and David Syme, servitors to the Earl of Erroll, and Walter Hay, inserter of the date and names of witnesses. On the same date there is an acquittance by Erroll and the Hays. The discharge is signed "Errol"; "Wm. Hay, w^t my hand"; "George Hay, w^t my hand"; "M. P. Hay, with my hand"; "Alex^r Davidsonsone, witness"; "W. Hay, witnes"; "J. Hay, witnes"; "apud Edinburgh, nono Junij, 1623". Mr. Robert Learmonth, advocate, as procurator for Erroll and William, George and Patrik Hay, "consentis to the registratione of this above writtin discharge in the buikis of Secreit Counsall" (Privy Council Register).

1618. April 10.—This day Mr. James Lawtie, advocate, as procurator for William, Lord Blantyre, and George Gordon of —, gave in a document for registration bearing that they had become cautioners for George Gordon of Gight, that he shall not molest James Cuming in —, Johnne Andersone, George Grede (?) —, Williame — of Methlick, James Hay in — Methlick, George his brother, John Raith there, and — their families and tenants. The act of caution, which was written by Thomas Crombie, writer, was signed at Leyth on April 10, 1618, by the said parties before Mr. Andro Skene of Chapelton, Mr. James Buchane, son of the laird of —, William Hammyltoun, "my servitor," and Alexander Blair (Ibid.).

GIGHT'S ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL HIS DYING MOTHER-IN-LAW, THE DOWAGER LADY SALTOUN, 1618.—Gight's next venture was an attempt to blackmail his mother-in-law, Lady Saltoun. In 1617 he married at Rothiemay, as his second wife, Lady Jean Lindsay (who had married, in 1607, Sir John Lindsay of Kinfauns and Carraldstone, son of the twelfth Earl of Crawford). She was the daughter of George Abernethy, seventh Baron Saltoun (died 1600), by his wife (married 1588), Lady Margaret Stewart, daughter of the fourth Earl of Atholl, Chancellor of Scotland, who had married Lady Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of the fourth Earl of Huntly. The parson of Rothiemay was suspended for celebrating the marriage, Gight being a Roman Catholic (Frasers of Philorth, ii., 63). Gight got two step-daughters.

His wife's sister, Lady Margaret Abernethy, married Sir Alexander Fraser of Philorth, and became the mother of the tenth Baron Saltoun, the first Fraser to bear that title. It may be remembered that Gight's father, William, killed Thomas Fraser of Strichen in 1576. He had been married less than a year when he tried to blackmail his mother-in-law, old Lady Saltoun, who was lying at the point of death at Corncairn (which was afterwards bought for Gight's brother-in-law, and called Park), to make a will in his favour. The whole case was recited before the Privy Council on July 2, 1618, when Patrick Livingstone of Inchorsie, his brother, Mr. William, and the King's Advocate made this complaint.

Gight intimidates the dowager's adviser, Patrick Livingstone.—On April 20, 1618, Gight, accompanied by George, his eldest son, James Baird, and John Alschinner, his servants, and others, all armed with pistollets and other weapons, went to Corncairn, “quhair umquhill Dame Margaret Stewart, Lady Saltoun, lay seik for the tyme, and quhair he looked to have found the said Patrik. And missing him thair, being informed that he wes riddin to the place of Tullidone, to the baptisme of his susteris bairne, he address him selff with als speid and come to the said place. Quhair of notice being gevin to the said Patrik, he and all these that wer with him come furth and mett the said George, ressavid him with all schawis of hairtie love and kyndnes, and he acquat thame with suche outward formes of goodwill and hairtynes as thay could haif wished, and past with thame to denner, intertennyng pleasant and familiar discourseis at the denner, with mony promis and attestationis of his best affectionis to the said Patrik and his wyff. And efter denner thay accompaneid him to his horsse, lookeing for nothing les then that he had ony bad or sinister purpois in his hairt aganis the said Patrik. Bot afore he took horsse he called the said Patrik asyde unto him, and, in presence of the minister of Rothemay, he begun to questioun him anent the testament and latter will maid be the said laite lady, and quarellit the said Patrik for suffering hir to mak ony testament, as gif it had layne in his pouer to have stayed hir, alledgeing that all that scho had wes his birth right, and that no utheris had interesse thairto. And the said Patrik . . . verie modestlie and soberlie ansuerit him that it wes the laydis will to mak a testament for the weele of hir oyis, and that he had no reasoun, nather lay it in his pouer, to stay and hinder hir, and that he wald quite his pairt of the said testament for ane plak, so as he micht have his releif of twa thousand merkis quhairin he stood ingadgait as cautionair to him self for the said lady.” Gight, “not being content with this the said Patrikis ansuer, burst furth in moist bitter and passionat speetcheis aganis him, protesting and avowing with mony horrible aithes that he sould stryk ane daigger to the said Patrikis hairt, and that he sould cleive him to the harne pane unles he causit the said testament ather to be nullit or reformat to his contentment. And the said George, his sone, presentit ane bend pistollet to the said Patrik, of purpois and intentioun to have schote and slane him thairwith. And he and his said sone and thair complices had not faillit at that tyme to have tane some unhonest advantage of him, wer not thay stayit be the gentilmen present and in company with the said Patrik for the tyme. And so, finding him selff disapoint of his blodie and wicked purpois at that tyme, he past away with mony threatningis to have the said Patrikis lyff gif the testament wer not reformit agane the nixt meeting."

A second attempt to threaten Patrick Livingstone.—"And schoirtlie thairefter the said lady haveing send for the said Mr. Williame to confer with him upoun some particulairis concerning hir estaite, and he accordinglie haveing addrest him self unto hir, the said George, being informed thairof, and that the said Mr. Williame wes riddin to Rothemay to his said bruther, quhair he hes dwelt thir sax yeiris bigane," resolved to "tak some advantage of thame at that tyme, [and] accompaneid with George Craufurd, William Pratt in Monkishill, Johnne Abirnethie, his servitor, and Williame Essillis in Fettircarne, with utheris his compliceis, bodin in feir of weir, with pistolletis prohibite to be worne, as said is, came upoun the sext day of Maij last to the said place of Rothemay. And the said Mr. Williame, persaveing him comeing, he addrest himself to meete him, expecting all freindlie and kynd useing of him, in respect of the mony good officeis done be the said Mr. Williame to him and the mony promiseis of freindship maid be him to the said Mr. Williame. And at the said Mr. Williame's first meeting with him, he, persaveing the said Patrik walking some space asyde with the minister of Rothemay, he brak at him in a grite raige and furie, and with verie grite difficultie wes he stayed be some personis present for the tyme. And the said Mr. Williame, being informed that Sir James Skene of Curriehill, one of the number of the Lordis of Prevey Counsaill, wes than newlie lichtit at the Kirk of Rothemay, he past unto him, acquentit the said Sir James with the lawles and insolent cariage of the said Laird of Geicht, and humelie desyrit him, as one of his Majesteis Prevey Counsaill, to bind the said Laird to the peace. Quhilk the said Sir James did."

Gight tries to confront old Lady Saltoun herself.—When Skene returned south "the said Laird of Geycht, being forgetfull of the promise maid for keiping of the peace, he upoun the thretene day of Maij last directit and send his awne wyff, his eldest sone, Johnne Abirnethie, and Andro Wood to the place of Cornearne in commissioun to the saidis Patrik and Mr. Williame, that thay sould caus the said testament be reformed to his contentment, or ellis it sould be the darrest testament that evir wes maid in the North. And the said Lady Saltoun being delt with to reforme the said testament, scho panelie declairit that scho wold not alter ane word thairof. Quhilk answer being returnit to the said George, he wes so incensit and commovit thair-with that upoun the morne thaireftir, being the fourtene day of Maij, he, accompaneid with George Gordoun, his eldest sone, James Baird in the Mayne of Geicht, William Prat in Munskishill, William Stewart in McTarie, George Gordoun in Lethentie, Walter Ogilvy in Dudweik, Patrik Sinclair of Achannachie, Johnne Abirnethie, Johnne Alexander, and Alexander Boun, servitoris to the said Laird of Geicht, and with convocation of his Majesteis eigeis to the noumer of ten personis, all bodin in feir of weir, with jackis, secretes, teil-bonnetis, tua-handit swerdis, and utheris wapponis invasive, and with pistolletis, prohibite to be worne as said is, come to the place of Cornearne, quhair he thocht to have surprysit the saidis Patrik and Mr. Williame at denner tyme ar evir thay had bene war of him. And quhen he come to the place, finding the yettis oppin, he appointit tua of his servandis to guard the yet, and he send ane uther up to the hall to try and persave quhair thay wer sitting, resolveing gif thay had bene togidder to have slane thame at that same instant. Bot, seeing be the providence of God the said Patrik wes a little before riddin to Rothemay, he directit his servand, James Baird, to the said Mr. Williame, desyreing him to come and speik with him."

Gight makes William Livingstone his prisoner.—Mr. William, "being sitting at his denner, he rais presentlie frome the table and went unto him single and allane, without company or wapponis, dreiding no harme of him, seeing as the said Mr. Williame apprehendit all his discontentment wes aganis his said bruther. And quhen the said Mr. Williame come unto him, his servandis past betuix the said Mr. Williame and the yet, and thairby cutt him schorte of all meanis of retreat to the house. And he himselfe enterit in most dispytfull and railing speetcheis aganis him, commanding the said Mr. Williame presentlie to gif him satisfioun in that mater of the testament, or ellis he sould have the said Mr. Williame's hairt bloode, and that he sould wasche his handis in his blood. And the said Mr. William, haveing opposit aganis his furie his awne innocence and impossibilitie to gif him contentment in that mater quhairwith he burdynit him, and then the respect quhilk he aucht to carey to his Majestie and his lawis, and the havie wraith and judgement of God that wold still persew him gif he medlit with the said Mr. Williame his innocent blood, yit nothing could content him, bot with horrible aithes he avowed that nane sould releve him out of his handis, and that he sould ding a sword throughe thame that durst presome to releve him, uttering in this meanetyne mony disdane-full speetcheis aganis his Majestie and his lawis, saying that he knew the Wynd of the Tolbuith and how to gyde his turne, and that he hes had to do with the gritest of Scotland, and had outit his turnis aganis thame, and in this forme he detenit and held the said Mr. Williame the space of tua houres as a prisoner under his power, dureing the quhilk haill space the said Mr. William evir expectit that he sould have put violent handis on his persone, and that he sould have tane his lyff. And at last he propossit this overture unto the said Maister Williame—that he wold spare his lyff gif he wold bring his bruther out of Rothemay unto him. Quhilk proposition being with reasoun rejectit be the said Mr. Williame, as a mater unworthie to be hard of, and most unnaturall to have bene performit on his pairt, he than urgeid the said Mr. Williame to go with him to Rothemay, and that he sould tak on with him, and that he sould decyde his querrell with the said Mr. Williame and his bruther. Quhilk being of the nature of ane challenge, he wes forcet to undirtak the same, purposlie to be red and quite of the said George truble. And so, thay being sinderit, he past in to the place, and with grite intreaty wes moved to tak some refreschement, and then to ly doun and tak rest; bot he wes so far distemparit and careyed with a cruell purpos of revenge as he could tak no rest, bot rease immediatlie, saying to his wyff, 'Jeane, I can tak no rest. I knaw I will die upoun a scaffold. Thair is ane will turne in my hand, quhilk I avow to God presentlie to performe.' And with that he maid searche for the said Mr. Williame, sua that he wes constrayned to reteir himself to ane quiet chalmer and to hyde him selff." The next move in the game shows the vengeful pertinacity of Gight,

A raid on Rothiemay in search of Patrick Livingstone.—"Persaveing that he could not get the said Mr. Williame, he with all haist, accompaneid with George Gordoun, raid to Rothemay thinking to have surprysit the said Patrik unawaris. Lyke as he being walking in quiet maner afoir the yet, he wes almost surprysit of him, and with grite difficultie releivit himself within the house. The yettis quhairof being closed and locked, he chapped verie rudlie at the yet, crying and schouting unto the said Patrik to come furth that he micht have his hairt blood; bot finding him self frustrat of his wicked purposis, he come back immediatlie to the place of Cornecarne, resolved to have had the said Mr. Williame's lyff, avowing with mony horrible aithes that he sould nevir see Geycht till he had the said Mr. Williame and his brotheris lyff, and that it sould coast him his lairdschip of Geycht or he sould have thair lyveys, saying thay had bound him to the peace, and that he caired not for the peace; he had doubled out his turne aganis the best in Scotland; and that he sould go mad, lyke Richie, the foole, gif he wer not revengeit upoun thame. And he remanit in the place all that day and tua dayis thaireftir threatning the deeing lady to reforme hir testament. And finding hir constant in hir resolutioun to stand be that quhilke scho had done, he send commissionaris to the saidis Patrik and Mr. Williame to Rothemay, quhairunto the said Mr. Williame had reteirit him self in the nicht for eschewing of his raige and furie, commanding thame outhur to caus him ressave satisfioun in that mater of the testament, or than assure thame that no house in the North sould keepe thame, and behavit him self so ruidlie and insolentlie within the place of Cornecarne in the sicht and presence of the diseasit aiget lady that without all doubt he haistned hir death, quhilke fell out that tyme."

The decision of the Privy Council in the case.—Gordoun appeared for himself, his son, James Baird, Williame Pratt, Williame Stewart, George Gordoun, Johne Alexander, Alexander Broun, and Williame Eshillis; George Crawford and Walter Ogilvy did not appear. The Lords find that the laird "hes verie injuriouslie boistit, minassit and threatnit" defenders, and that his son, "who is bot ane young boy under his pouer and commandement," has been suffered to carry pistollets in his company, and therefore order him to be committed to the Castle of Edinburgh, therein to remain at his own expense till he present his said son before the Lords, and till he be liberated by them. He is also to pay a fine of 500 merks to the treasurer, and not to depart till he have paid the same. "And whereas thair hes bene divers complaintis formarlie maid to the saidis Lordis aganis him, sua that it is verie evident and liklie that he will not be reclaimed from his oppressioun nor halden under obedience of the law, unles some strait course and ordour (be) tane with him and his said sone," order is therefore given that the said laird and his said son find caution in 10,000 merks each to keep the peace, and to appear before the Lords when called upon to do so, in £500 each not to wear hagbutts and pistollets, and shall also find lawburrows in 5,000 merks each. The Lords order George Crawford and Walter Ogilvy to be denounced rebels. On July 9 Gight "exhibited" his son George to the Council, who committed him to the Castle of Edinburgh, where he was to remain at his own expense during their pleasure. On July 16 Gight and his son were fined 500 merks for wearing pistols. They had to find caution in 10,000

merks to appear before the Council when called; lawborrowis to the two Livingstones in 5,000 merks, and £500 caution not to wear hagbutts. Adam Gordon of Park, Gight's brother-in-law, and George Chalmer of Cowburtie, became caution for old Gight, who in turn was caution for his son until the time of the latter's marriage, when he was to be presented to the Lords by his father to find new caution for himself. On Feb. 14, 1622, Gight informed the Council that he was finally reconciled to the Livingstones, and that "all quarrellis, contraverseis, eilistis and dabaittis standing betuix thame are removed and tane away, and thay stand under most hairty termeis of frendschip," so that now Patrick and William desire no such caution. "Lykeas thay ar attending at the doore, and being callit will compeir," and will renounce and pass from the caution so far as they are concerned.

Gight's protest against the Council's finding.—As touching the remaining points of keeping the peace, Gight and his son declare that they are hardly used, being law-abiding subjects, and ever ready to appear for trial on all complaints that can be made against them. "Thair is no uther baronis nor gentlemen in the country putt under this forme of caution, and to injoyne conditionis to thame, and to hold bondis over thair headis with the lyke quhairof no uther guid subjectis ar burdeyneit within this kingdome, it caryes a foull and havie imputatioun aganis thame, as gif thay wer brokin men, aganis whome the course of law could have no executioun, and in this caise thay ar in a maner seperat frome the whole rest of the subjectis of the kingdome, and sett by be thameselffis with a mark of reprotche over thair headis, whilk is a verie grite greif unto thame; and thay ar expoisit to the malice of all the malicious toungis in the countrey, who takis hold of this cautionarie that thay underly to misprese thame at thair pleasour." As for George Gordoun, younger, "he wes bot a young boy the tyme of that complaynt, and wes onlie in company with his father at that tyme, and rakleslie laid a pistolett upoun him, being ignorant of the law, and nevir afoir nor sinsyne wes thair any complaynt maid upoun him. And sieing the saidis George Gordoun, elder, and George Gordoun, younger, ar ansuerabill and lawbyding subjectis, and as the saidis Lordis knawis ar bleist with good estaittis and fortnis quhilkis thay will be loathe foolishhelie to haisard or perrell to thair awne wrak, besydeis the haisard of the law, humblie thairfoir beseikand the saidis Lordis to exoner thame of this cautionarie and of all thay (that) may follow thairupoun, sua that thay leive in the rank and condition of the remanent baronis and gentilmen of the countrey, and that the saidis Lordis wold this day accept of the compeirance of the said George Gordoun, younger, and declair the said George Gordoun, elder, his act satisfeit in that poynt and he simpliciter fred thairof." Mr. William Livingstoun being called in, appears for himself and his brother, and the petitioners being also present, declares that he and his brother are reconciled with them, and do renounce the caution for indemnity. The Lords therefore exonerate the petitioners and their cautioners from the burden of the indemnity; they also relieve the elder Gordoun from his cautioning of his son, and ordain the son to find caution for himself in £500 that he shall not wear hagbutts. They find, however, that it is not expedient that the elder Gordon should be altogether freed from caution for keeping the peace and appearing before them; but they modify the amount from 10,000 merks to 2,000 merks, and order him to find new caution in that sum, and also in £500 not to wear hagbuts. Adam Gordon of Park and George Chalmer are freed from their responsibility (Privy Council Register).

1618. July 30.—The king granted to the laird and his second wife (Jean Abernethie), and erected into a free barony, the lands of Many (consisting of Lyntoun, Cothill, Cowhill, and Altersait) in Belhelvie, which William Forbes of Craigievar and Patrick Forbes of Corse, his brother, resigned (Great Seal).

1619. Jan. 14.—The king ratified the charter by George Gordon, the next laird, of these lands, granted to Andrew Meldrum, second son of the late Andrew Meldrum of Fyvie.

1621. Nov.—In the Minute Book of Processes we find mention of “letteris against Gordon of Geight and utheris papists to appear” (ibid.).

1623. Jan. 30.—Gight sold to Patrick Gordon of Nethermuir and the latter’s heir, George, the lands of Cuikburnes (in Logie-Buchan), Many, Leyton, Cothill, Cowhill, and Altersait (in Belhelvie) (Great Seal). According to the Collection for a History of the Shires of Aberdeen and Banff (p. 285), Menie was bought in 1623 from Gordon of Gight by William Seton of Udney, and after that mortgaged (1659) by Sir Robert Graham of Morphie to Robert Kerr, burgess in Aberdeen.

GIGHT’S ATTACK ON HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW, SIR HARRY WOOD OF BONNYTON, 1623.—Gight became hard up—a condition demonstrated by the sales of his lands. Having failed to squeeze his second wife’s mother, old Lady Saltoun, he turned on his first wife’s brother, Sir Harry Wood of Bonnyton. According to Wood’s complaint to the Privy Council (April 28, 1624), Gight suddenly appeared on Sunday, July 20, 1623, in the parish kirk of St. Vigeans, where Wood was sitting “in his awne dask, in a verie modest and quyet maner”. He was accompanied by William Gordon of Chapel-toun, John Abernethy and George Ireland (alias Abercrombie), his servitors, John Gordon of Ardlogie, Adam Gordon his son, John Gordon, son to the goodman of Knockespock, Andrew Cook in Meny, Andrew Udney, servitor to the laird of Foveran, Thomas Shewan, messenger in Brechin, and others, “all bodin in fear of wear, with swords, long dagours, buffell coites, secreitts, plait sleives, steil hattis, with plait stringis, gantellitts," and other weapons. They rushed into the kirk with drawn swords, when the parson "after the ending of the sermone wes at his prayer, and rusheing throw the kirk, and overtradeing weomen and bairnis who wer sitting upoun thair kneis at the prayer, they come directlie to the complenaris dask, quhair he wes lykewyse upoun his kneis at his prayer, and shamefullie and unhonestlie invadite and persecut him as he supposeit of his lyff, shouting and cryeing 'Traitor be tane,' holding thair drawne swordis and dagouris in thair handis in threatning maner gif he maid ony resistance, sua that he wes constrained to yeild to the necessitie and to rander himself in thair will".

Sir Harry taken prisoner.—Then, "he haveing in modest and sober maner demandit of thame the cause and reason of thair so lawles and insolent procedour aganis him, the said Laird of Geyght, out of the pryde and malice of his hairt, replyit and ansueirit that he wald knaw no law, and that the complener sould goe with thame nil he wald be quhair they pleasit. And sua they caried him as prisonnar with thame to his awne house of Lethem, quhilk they supprysed and tooke, locked the yetts thairof, held his wyff and children out of the same, and with drawne durkis and daigers thrattenit his servandis within his house, and keipit him captive and prisonnar within the said hous, suffering non to come neir him, or acces unto him, and in end presentit unto him ane bond conteining diverse gritt soumes of money and uther hard conditionis, quhilkis thay wald nowise reveill unto him, and propoussed unto him thane to subscrie the bond. And he, preferring the saittie of his credite to onything that might follow and happin upon that bond, he subscrivit the same, not knowing the tennour nor contents thairof. And dureing the time that thay remained within his house thay sett thair haille horse upon a shote of his best infeitd aittis, and held thame thairon till they eate, trade, and distroyit the same; and suche of his servandis as preast to turne the horse thay minassit of thair lyffis."

The punishment of Gight.—Parties having been called, the pursuer was personally present, as also the laird of Gight for himself and in the name of John Gordon of Ardlogie, Adam Gordon, his son, John Gordon, son to the guidman of Knockespock, Andrew Cook, and Andrew Udny, for whom he declared he would answer in this case, but the said John Abernethie, George Ireland, and Thomas Shewan did not compear. The laird of Gight, having referred the proof of the matter simply to the pursuer's oath, and pursuer having deponed to the above effect, adding that had the laird of Gight "presentit unto him a writ concerning the liveing of Bonnytoun he would have subscrieveit it at that tyme," the Lords "finds and declairs that the said John Gordoun of Ardlogie, Adame Gordoun, his sone, and John Gordoun, sone to the guidman of Knokespak, come with the said laird of Geight to the kirk at the time foirsaid, and in a verie tumultuous and unseemlie maner, haveing tua drawne swordis in thair handis, patt violent handeis in the said Laird of Bonnytoun without chargeing and arreisting of him be ane officiar, and quhen the said Laird of Bonnytoun asked of Geyght quhair his officiar wes and be quhat warrand he tooke him, the Laird of Geight answeirit that 'I will tak yow and be answeirable to the Counsall,' and finds and declairs that the said Laird of Bonnytoun subscrieveit the bond foirsaid, he being Geight's prisonnar for the tyme"; which being "ane verie gritt insolence against the said Laird of Bonnytoun, of a wicked and pernicious praeparative and example, and to the braik of his Majesteis peace," the Lords ordain the laird of Gight to be committed to ward in the Tolbooth of Edinburgh, and to remain there upon his own charges till released, also to pay to the treasurer a fine of 500 merks, to the poor of St. Vigeans parish 200 merks, "for the offence committed be him within the kirk foirsaid," and to the witnesses for their expenses £5 for every horseman and forty shillings for every footman. They also ordain him to present before them the said John Gordon of Ardlogie, Adam Gordon his son, and John Gordon, son to Knockespoock, that they may be committed to ward and otherwise punished. Finally, they ordain the lairds of Gight and Bonnyton to find caution acted in the books of Council in 5,000 merks each to keep the peace towards each other. On April 29, 1624, John Leith, fiar of Harthill, Harry Ramsay of Ardownie, and Patrick Gordon, indweller in Edinburgh, were cast in 5,000 merks for Gight not to molest Wood or his family; also in £5,000 that on his being released from the Tolbooth he will keep ward in Edinburgh till he pay the fines for his insolence to the laird of Bonnyton, and until released by the Council; with clause of relief, signed "Jon. Leythe, Henri Ramsay, Patrik Gordoun, George Gordoun of Gichtt". On the same date Alexander Ramsay, fiar of Arbikie, gave caution in 5,000 merks for Wood not to harm Gight. On May 3, 1624, Henry Ramsay of Ardownie was caution in 2,000 merks that Gight would present his nephew, Adam Gordon, younger of Ardlogie, and also young Knockespoock to the Council on June 1. On the same date there is caution by Gight in £1,000 for Henry Ramsay, elder of Adney, and in 1,000 merks for Henry Ramsay, fiar thereof, his son, not to molest Mr. Williame Durehame, apparent of Lumquhy, nor his family. On the same day Mr. John Paip, younger, advocate and procurator for the dischargers, registers an acquittance by Sir Henry Wardlaw of Pittreive, knight, to John Aitkyne, in name of George Gordon of Gight, for 500 merks, being the fine imposed upon Gordon for his assault upon Wood of Bonnyton. Dated at Edinburgh, May 3, 1624 (Privy Council Register).

GIGHT AND HIS FRENCH GOVERNESS.—The poverty of Gight, which was only increased by these expensive attacks on his relatives, is strikingly illustrated by the remarkable letter about his daughter's French governess which the Privy Council wrote to Lord Huntly, his chief, as follows, under date September, 1623: "After oure verie hairtlic commendationis to your goode lordship, it has bene complenit unto us be Mr. Johne Paip, writter, that he haveing causit denunce the Laird of Geyght, eldair, and putt him to the horne for non payment to him of the soume of iij^m iij^c merkis money as principall and iij^c merkis of expenssis, that the said Laird notwithstanding, in contempt of the law and justice, lyis still at the horne without ony purpois or intentioun to mak payment of the said soume. We understand, althocht Mr. Johnne his name be used in this mater, that the soume nevirtheles is the proper debt of a strangeair, a Franshewoman, who thir divers yeiris bigane hes had and still hes the charge of educatioun of one of the said Laird his doghtoris, and intertenyis and furnissis hir verie honnestlie in hir apparell and dyet, and bringis hir up in all verteous exercisais beseameing a young gentlewoman of hir birthe, and this soume is a grite pairt of the chargeis deu to the poore strangear for that caus; quhairin the said Laird oversees himself verie far in neglecting suche a point of dewtie to a strangear who hes had and still hes such a care of his doghter, and he gevis hir mare nor just caus to blame the justice of this kingdome, whilk in a mater of this kynd hes provin and provis so frindles unto hir. The consideratioun whereof hes moved us to recommend the same to your Lordship requesting and desiring your goode Lordship to deale with the said Laird to haif some regaird of his credite and dewtie in this point, and to mak tymous and thankfull payment to the said Mr. Johnne of this soume. Quhairin yf he shall mak ony refuse or delay, that then your Lordship, according to the dewtie of your office, apprehend him and committ him to warde till he purge this hoirning. We doubt not bot your lordship in your awne honourable regaird to justice and to the furtherance of a poore strangear to justice will so behave yourself heirin as by your meanis the poore strangear may haif ressoun. Wherein as yow sall do that whiche to your honnour and dewtie in this caise apperteynis, so yow will do us a singulair pleasour. And so committing yow to Godis protectioun, we rest your Lordships verie loving freindis, Mar, Roxburgh, Melros, Lauderdaill, Arskine, Ar. Naper, S. W. Oliphant, Kilsaithie."

1623. Nov.—The Minute Book of Processes notifies "Alexander Annand a cautioner for the appearance of Gordon of Geight" (Privy Council Register).

1623. Dec. 24.—The king granted to Gight the lands of Ardestie, Murdrum, and part of Downykeane in Forfar, which Robert Erskine of Ardestie (son of the late Robert) resigned, and the lands of Carlonge and Newbigging in Forfar, which (the 14th?) Lord Crawford resigned. It will be remembered that the third laird of Gight's sister-in-law (Margaret Beaton) married the tenth Earl of Crawford (Great Seal).

1628. April 18.—Sasine to George Gordon, younger of Gight, of the town and lands of Chapelton of Schivas (Aberdeen Bugh Sasines).

1629. April 1.—Gight sold the lands of Many to William Seton of Udny and Marjory Innes, his wife, for 40,000 merks (Great Seal).

1631. June 19.—Gight was ordered (on July 5) by the Privy Council in his absence to enter into ward at the Edinburgh Tolbooth for attacking "Mr." William Murray in Ardownie after the sermon in the parish kirk of Monfuthie. Murray was dining with Jerome Lindsey when Gight enticed him "farre out of the toune," and then "er ever he wes awar . . . strake out a number of strakes . . . and had not failed to have slaine him, wer not his [Murray's] awne better defence". On July 5 William Durham, fiar of Grange, Henry Ramsay of Ardownie and "Mr." William Murray in Ardownie complained that Gight whose "turbulent dispositioun is not unknowne . . . daylie troubles and molests us and others gentlemen dwelling about him, threatning us with all sort of violence, by hacquebuts, pistolets and uthers forbidden weapouns". Gight was ordered to find £1,000 caution to desist (Privy Council Register).

1631. July 27.—Gight and his brother John of Ardlogie with a gang of armed men were charged before the Privy Council with having on this date gone to the Kirkton of Rayne to kill John Leith of Harthill, which they would have done "if some noble weomen and ladeis had not interceedit" (ibid.).

1633.—George Gordon of Gight owed Patrick Wood in Little Ardo 4,000 merks on the lands of Chapelton of Schivas (Spalding Club Misc., iii., 132).

1634. Nov. 13.—Gight was ordered by the Privy Council to arrest those who had attacked the laird of Fren draught (Spalding's Troubles, i., 421).

1635. July 3.—He was caution that his son-in-law, Coxton, John Innes of Leuchars and others should not harm Innes of Balvenie (Familie of Innes, p. 230).

1639. Feb. 14.—He took part in the first Raid of Turriff (Spalding, i., 137).

1639. April 16.—Gight, who throughout the Covenanting struggle "kythit" with the anti-Covenanters, was one of a deputation to Lord Aboyne, then at Percok, to request him not to go south, as the country was "heidles" (Ibid., i., 172).

1639. May 8.—Gight was one of another deputation who, supported by eighty horse and sixty foot, "cam to the kirkyeard of Ellon, and send to the laird [Kennedy] of Kermvk, being in his owne hous of Arduthie, desyring him to refuse the countrie covenant, and to subscribe the Kingis covenant." Kennedy refused (Ibid., i., 181).

1639. May 10.—Gight, the young laird of Cromartie, with some other lairds, intended to "cum to the place of Tolly Barclay, and thair to tak out sic armes, mvscatis, gvnis, and carrabinis as the lairdis of Delgatie and Tollie-Barclay had plunderit from the said young laird of Cromartie out of the place of Balquholly [which belonged to the Mowats, who were relatives of Gight]; bot it hapnit the Lord Fraser and maister of Forbes to sie thair cuming. Thay manit the hous of Towy, cloissit the yettis, and schot diuerss schotis fra the hous heid, whair ane seruand of the laird off Geichtis wes schot, callit Daud Prat. . . . Heir it is to be markit that this wes the first blood that wes drawin heir sen the begining of this covenant." Gight's party ultimately retreated, "thinking it no vassalage to stay whill thay war slayne: syne, but more ado, rode their way" (Ibid., i., 182).

1639. May 13.—Gight took part in the Trot of Turriff, when the Royalists surprised the Covenanting Committee (Ibid., i., 185).

1639. June.—Montrose and his artillery attacked the castle of Gight, which was well defended by the laird and Colonel Johnston. The siegers, however, withdrew to Aberdeen (on June 3) when they heard that a Royalist army was approaching. Spalding says the soldiers left the siege, "but more skaith" (Ibid., i., 201; Britane's Distemper, p. 23).

1639. July 10.—On this day it was reported to the Presbytery of Ellon that Gight had "come to ye Kirk of Ellon upon ye Saboth day, and having maid some ryding throuche ye toun of Ellon which wes scandelous". Gight (at a subsequent meeting) declared that "he cam not to the Kirk of Ellon to mak' ony convocatione, nor to offend or to irritat any gentleman there, but onlie to visit ye laird of Ochterellone and Mr. David Leache [the minister], to tak with him the young laird of Foveran [his grandson], wha was in Ochterellone [the lad's mother, Gight's daughter, having died in the early part of the year]". He said he was sorry if he had offended any of the brethren (Mair's Records of the Presbytery of Ellon, p. 141).

1640. April.—Gight began to fortify his house with "men, mvskat, meit, and drink, and vther devysis of defenss," in view of Monro's advance (Spalding, i., 265).

1640. June.—Gight, described as a "seiklie, tender man, being by chance at this samen tyme in Montross, is takin by ane Capiten Betoun, and had to [the Tolbooth of] Edinbrugh with the rest; his houss of Ardessie [in Forfarshire] pitifullie plunderit, becauss he wes ane papist and out stander aganes the good caus' (Spalding, i., 285). Upon caution he had "libertie of frie waird within the toune".

1640. Nov. 17.—He "wes confynit in the toun, whair old Geicht departit this lyf" in November (Ibid., i., 285), "either through age or greefe or bothe together. He was a Papist in his profession. That was eneuch indytmment against him" (Gordon's Scots Affairs, iii., 200).

1640. Dec. 30.—"Collonell Maister of Forbes send out to the intaking of the place of Geicht ane capiten with 32 soldiouris. The hous is randerit be the lady, becauss none laird wes there. Aluaies scho cam in and delt so with the collonell that they wère all removit and cam bak agane to Abirdene" (Spalding, i., 375).

Gight was twice married: (1) before 1597 to Isobell, the daughter of Sir Patrick Wood of Bonnyton—the name of his lands in Udny and in Forfarshire (see a deduction of the Woods in Scottish Notes and Queries, Nov., 1898); and (2), before May 18, 1617, to Jean, daughter of George Abernethy, seventh Baron Saltoun, and widow of Sir John Lindsay of Kinfauns. She was involved, it may be remembered, with her husband, Gordon, in his attack on her mother, in 1618. Dr. Temple (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 264) says that James Gordon, son of James, IV. of Newton, married "the lady of Gight, but had no issue". The dates suggest that the lady was probably the widow of the sixth laird of Gight, but I cannot verify Dr. Temple's assertion. The second laird of Newton (the brother of Sheelagreen) was hand-in-glove with the Gights in their war against the Covenant, and was executed for his share in the rising (1644). Mr. Mair, in his Presbytery Records of Ellon (p. 8), notes that Gight's first wife (Isobell Wood) bore him at least five children before 1597. The Balbithan MS. says that the first wife bore Gight two sons and three daughters, and that his second wife bore him a son and a daughter.

1. GEORGE, VII. of Gight.

2. JOHN assisted his nephew, the eighth laird, to raid the town of Montrose.

He was imprisoned in Edinburgh, 1644, with his brother, the seventh laird, who was granted, through his agent, Thomas Gordon, 300 merks to "menteyn" himself and his brother in prison (June 19, 1644, Acts of Parliament).

3. ALEXANDER is referred to in a charter of 1642 as the son of Sir George Gordon and Lady Jean Abernethy. Like his father and his uncle Patrick, he married a Forfarshire woman, Liliias, second daughter of Sir William Menteith of Kers. In 1642 the king confirmed the charter of 24th February, 1636, by the seventh laird, in implement of a marriage contract of the same date to Lilius, second daughter of Sir William Menteith of Kers, promised spouse of Alexander Gordon, in life-rent, to continue during her widowhood; and in fee to Alexander and his heirs by Lilius, whom failing to said Sir George and his heirs by said Jean, whom failing to heirs and assignees whatsoever of said Sir George. In 1636 he got the estate of Ardestie, in Forfarshire, from Robert Erskine (Great Seal). His father was known as "Old Ardestie" (Gordon's Scots Affairs), he having probably got that estate through his first wife, Isobell Wood, who was a Forfarshire woman. He, too, had dealings in 1630 with Alexander Durhame of Downiemyln. In 1642 the king confirmed a charter (dated 18th February, 1631) by Alexander Lindsay of Potterlie to Alexander Gordon for a payment of 16,000 merks by his nephew (the seventh laird).

BARBARA married Sir John Turing, both of them "recusants," 1623 (Mair's Presbytery of Ellon, p. 67). A royal charter of July 29, 1623 (the year when they were recusants), shows the marriage contract between Barbara Gordon and Sir John Turing of Foveran was dated at Gight, August 3, 1620. On January 5, 1629, she renounced her right in the Mains of Gight in favour of her father. Her husband was present at the battle of Worcester, 1651, and had been created a baronet, 1639. He lost his lands at Foveran, which his house had held for three centuries. He had by Barbara Gordon a son, George, who was alive in 1644 (Troubles, ii., 330), but predeceased him. By his second marriage (in 1652) he had a son, who died unmarried in 1682, when the representation of the family devolved on the (first) baronet's nephew, the ancestor of the present baronet, who lives at Chichester. Barbara Gordon died early in the beginning of 1639, and Lord Huntly, whose "ant" she was (according to Spalding's Troubles, i., 137), attended her funeral. The Turings are dealt with in the Thanage of Fermartyn (pp. 565-572).

5. MARY married Alexander Innes of Coxton, who was concerned in the anti-Covenanting struggle, but was pardoned, 1647 (Acts of Parliament). On January 5, 1629, she renounced Little Gight and Faldonhill. She died August 20, 1647 (Familie of Innes). She is buried at Lhanbryde (Jervise's Epitaphs).
6. LILIAN married the Hon. William Hay of Fetterletter, son of the eighth Earl of Erroll, by Lady Agnes Sinclair, daughter of Lord Caithness (Privy Council Register). He quarrelled with his mother in 1616 (Ibid.), and helped his father-in-law to attack the Hays of Burnthill (1616), to which I have already referred. On January 5, 1629, Lilian renounced her rights in Meikle Ardo and Carnerie, with the consent of her husband, in favour of her father.
7. — GORDON. The Balbithan MS. says Gight had a daughter by his second wife. I cannot verify this.

GEORGE GORDON, VII. OF GIGHT.

(Son of VI.)

I do not know when the seventh laird was born, but he was described by the Privy Council in 1618 as "ane young boy". His career was almost as stormy as his father's. Its leading events are as follows:—

1618.—Gight, though "a young boy," helped his father, in April and May of this year, as I have shown, to worry old Lady Saltoun, his step-grandmother, into altering her will. On July 2 the Privy Council ordered the lad to be imprisoned in Edinburgh. On July 9 his father "exhibited" him, and committed him to the castle, "therein to remain at his own expenses during their Lordships' pleasure".

1623. Aug. 20.—Complaint by the King's Advocate against John Forbes of Pitsligo, George Gordoun, fiar of Geicht, Robert Innes of Balvennie, Alexander Bannerman of Elsick, Alexander Annand of Auchterellon, George Gordoun of Newtown, Johne Leith, apparent of Harthill, and Johne Burnet of Campbell, who since 1617 had worn hagbuts and pistolets and shot at wild fowl and deer in contravention of the laws. The pursuer appeared personally, with all the defenders (except George Gordoun, fiar of Gight, who is therefore ordained to be denounced rebel) (Privy Council Register).

1623. Nov. 21.—Alexander Annand of Arduthie was caution in 1,000 merks for George Gordon, fiar of Gight, to appear before the Council on Sept. 10 and answer a charge of wearing hagbuts and pistolets (Ibid.).

1633.—George Gordon, younger of Gight, owed 100 merks to the miller of Towie (Spalding Club Misc., iii., 132).

1636. Dec. 20.—The Privy Council granted him letters of protection against his creditors for a year, repeating the favour in 1638.

1640. June 11.—"The young laird of Geicht is forsit be Marschall and Monro to cum in; and vpone Frydday the 11th of Junij he cam to Aberdein befor the counsall of warr. He getis 48 houris protectioun. Ane challenge of combat past betuixt him and [Alexander Fraser] the laird of Phillorth. Marschall getis word, sendis ane pairty of soldouris for him (to eschew this fight), and took him out of his naikit bed, lying in Mr. Thomas Lilleis house in Old Abirdein. Geicht (wnder protectioun) mervallis at this bussines, not knowing Marischallis purpoiss. Aluaies he gettis libertie from the capiten that took him to ryde beside him (who wes also horst) over to the toun, and speik with Marschall. The capiten, seing his horss bot ane litle naig, wes content: and so thay ryde on with his soldiouris whill thay cum to the Justice Port, whair Geicht schiftis the capiten and all his keiparis, and be plane speid of foot he wynis cloiss away, to all thair disgraces, and to Germanie goes he"

(Spalding's Troubles, i., 287). He may have lived in Germany with his kinsman, Colonel John Gordon, who assassinated Wallenstein, and who had seen John Gordon of Ardlogie die in 1638. He spent part of the time in England as the next item shows.

1642. April 20.—On this date King Charles wrote this letter, which has been discovered in the Record Office by Mr. Murray Rose: "Charles, by the Grace of God King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, To all and sundry to whom these presents shall come, Greeting: Seeing that a noble and most brave knight, George Gordon of Gight, faithful to us and beloved, one of the lords of our bed-chamber, descended of the most noble house of Huntley in Scotland, has so proved his fidelity to us in the late troubled times, that not only did he for two years perform the duties of commander of a troop of horse and company of foot in our service with the highest credit, but also out of his great zeal on our behalf defrayed at his own expense the charge of both companies; and that after the pacification of Berwick fresh troubles having broken out in England, he proceeded thither, and there being made a Colonel by us, he for the space of a whole year conducted himself with the highest bravery and merit. And now that peace has been restored, he asks our permission to depart; and we being desirous not only to accord to him our benign permission, but also to grace him with this passport as a testimony of his fidelity and bravery. Therefore we earnestly desire all Kings, Princes, and States others, our Friends and Neighbours through whose countries he may pass, or in which he may give evidence of his bravery, as well as their vice-gerents and other magistrates and goodmen: and we strictly enjoin our subjects that they afford to the said George Gordon full freedom and power of going, abiding and returning with his household and goods, permitting none to molest or injure him, but rather afford him all offices of humanity, benevolence and friendship which every one expects to be rendered to himself: and they may rest assured that whatever aid they shall confer on this excellent man will be very grateful to us, and will be willingly rewarded by us as occasion offers; and we have caused this passport to be given under our regal hand and seal, in our Court at York, the twentieth of April, 1642, and of our reign the eighteenth year."

1643. Feb. 20.—The king granted to Robert Cruickshank, junior, and Alexander Burnet, senior, merchant burgesses of Aberdeen, their heirs and assignees whatsoever, the lands and barony of Geight, which belonged to George Gordon of Geight, son and heir of the late Sir George, and were valued 8th November, 1642, at 16,800 libs. (Great Seal).

1643. June.—"Schir George Gordon, elder of Geicht, cam hame out of Germanie," where he had been for three years (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 254).

1643. July 31.—The king grants to James, Earl of Airlie [the laird's brother-in-law], his heirs and assignees whatsoever the Kirklands of Gight, etc., etc., and the other lands and tacks of teinds on July 18, 1643, at 11,504 merks. Gight was in hiding in Germany from 1640 to 1643. During this period his creditors seem to have fallen on his assets, and that may have caused him to come "out of Germany" in 1643, as Spalding tells us.

1644. March 19.—He was one of the band of Royalists who rode into Aberdeen and captured Provost Leslie, Robert Farquhar and Alexander Jaffray, "lait baillies," and John Jaffray, Dean of Guild, and took them to Strathbogie, and then to Auchindown (Troubles, ii., 324-5).

1644. March 26.—He and his son accompanied the Marquis of Huntly to Aberdeen (Ibid., ii., 330).

1644. April.—He was one of the band that went to Banff, "took in the toun but contradictioun, mellit with the keyis of the tolbuith, took frie quarteris, and plunderit all the armes thay could get, buffill cotis, pikis, pistollis, suordis, carrabinis, yea and money also. Thay took from Alexander Winchester, ane of the bailleis thairof, 700 merkis, quilk he [had] as ane of the four collectouris of the taxationis, and loane siluer of Banff, and fra — Schand in Doun thay plunderit some moneis. Thay causit the balleis (for Doctor Douglass thair prouest had fled) and tounesmen subscribe and sueir the band denying the last Covenant. . . . Thay also took from George Geddess, ane vther of the saidis four collectouris, 500 merkis of taxatioun and loane siluer. Geicht keepit all the moneyis, about 2,500 merkis. Thairefter thay rode to Muresk, perseuit the place, and being randerit, thay took the Laird with thame; syne returnit to Innervrie, quhair thay met with the Marquis" (Ibid., ii., 342).

1644. May 1.—He rode through Old Aberdeen with a company of about 60 horse, bearing "new quhyte lances in thair handis," to Strathbogie" (Ibid., ii., 352).

1644. May 9.—The house of Gight was "randerit" by the laird to the Covenanters. Gight was captured (though his son escaped). "Thair is ane capitan with about 24 soldiouris put within the place of Geicht, quhilc wes weill provydit with meit and drink and other necessares; and quhairin thair wes store of ammvni-tioun, pulder and ball, with victuall in girnellis aboundantlie" (Ibid., ii., 359).

1644. May 13.—Gight and the other prisoners, his brother John, and Sir John Gordon of Haddo, were brought to Aberdeen "throw the lynkis". The Aberdeen Town Council spent £26 13s. 4d. in entertaining Patrick Chalmers, the lieutenant of the horse troop, "that cam as convoy with Haddo and Gight," and his men (Spalding Club Mis., v., 161). Haddo and Gight were taken to Edinburgh. In June the Parliament (see Acts of Parliament) granted Gight liberty to write to his wife and get the services of an "ypothecarie" because of the "weakness of his bodie". He also asked to be relieved of the "burdene of his interteanment of his brother" [John], who was in prison with him. Parliament granted him 300 merks, through his agent, Thomas Gordon. In July he was granted permission to see his wife and his daughter, Barbara. In the same month witnesses against him were granted £20 each. In June, Mr. George Sharpe, the minister of Fyvie, had complained to Parliament that Gight owed him "87 bolles victuell and £251 13s. 4d. of his stipend," which the laird was ordered to pay up. Haddo was tried in July, and condemned and executed (July 19, 1644). Gight's trial was postponed till January, 1645. Meantime he escaped.

1647. Jan. 5.—He was pardoned by Parliament.

1648. Feb.—The Commission of that General Assembly declared of Gight and Gordon of Ardlogie that the Presbyteries where they lived were overawed.

1648. May.—He was summoned by Parliament to appear for the “cryme of malignancie for his complyand with the rebels, assisting of them in the rebellion, or being accessorie or active himself in said rebellion”. A messenger-at-arms was ordered to “warne and charge the said — Gordon” personally “giff he can be apprehendit”. The proclamation for his arrest was to be exhibited at the market crosses of “the head burghes of the shyre quhair he dwellis” (Acts of Parliament).

Gight married Lady Elizabeth Ogilvy, daughter of the sixth Lord Ogilvy of Airlie (died 1616) and sister of the first Earl of Airlie (died 1648), whose wife (a daughter of the Earl of Haddington) is the heroine of the well-known ballad, “The Bonnie Hoose o’ Airlie”. In 1624 Gight was described as an “apostate,” and his wife as a “recussant” (Mair’s Presbytery of Ellon, p. 67).

1. GEORGE, VIII. of Gight.
2. A son (Balbiithan MS.).
3. BARBARA was allowed to visit her father in Edinburgh Jail, July, 1644 (Acts of Parliament).

GEORGE GORDON, VIII. OF GIGHT.

(Son of VII.)

This laird followed precisely in the way of his ancestors; and even surpassed them by an attempt to oust his own father from the estates. His career runs thus:—

1635.—He was a student at King’s College, Aberdeen (University Register).

1642. July.—He married Keith, the laird of Ludquharne’s daughter, while his father was still in Germany. Keith was a Covenanter, which may account for Spalding’s statement (Troubles, ii., 175) that young Gight “fell [at this time] in sum variance with his awin mother,” at the instigation of Ludquharne, “as wes thocht”. He wished to enter into possession, as his father, who was in Germany when the seventh laird died, was never infest “thairintill”. “The lady ansuerit scho would not deliuer these wreittis (hir husband being absent) without his consent. Quhairvpone, be Ludquharnes assistans, thay resolue to tak in the place of Geicht, whiche scho schortlie manis, and stoutlie defendis. Thay tak in barnes and laiche bigging to sie if thay could get the yetis opnit, and schot in at the hall wyndoys, quhair ane William Gordone wes schot through the schulder bleed.” The affair reminds one of the plight of the lady’s sister-in-law, who had been besieged in the “Bonnie Hoose o’ Airlie” two years before. In the present attack on “Lady Gight,” her brother, the Earl of Airlie, “heiring of his sisteris distress,” remonstrated with Lord Huntly on the subject. The Marquis “satlit” the business at Leggitisden “betuixt Geicht

(who cam thither) with the ladie his mother". Spalding relates a curious incident. When Gight was returning from Leggitisden, "weill content of the agriement, Johne Lesk, ane of his owne folke, schooting ane volay with ane hagbut of found for joy (lying at the seige of Geicht), hes hand wes schot fra him, and schortlie thairefter [he] deit. This hagbut of found in the trubles wes plunderit be Ludquharne, the said Johne Lesk being in his company, out of the place of Foverane; so he gat his reward, and this seige dissoluit."

1644. Feb. 23.—A band of Covenanters, who had set out to raid the lands of several lairds who would not sign, met a troop of loyalists, including young Gight, who were plundering the lands of Dr. Dun at Taartie. The Covenanters were "schamefullie dvng bak, thair armes tane fra thame, and routit pitifullie. . . . Quhairat our Committee of Aberdene . . . wes heichlie offendit" (Spalding's Troubles, ii., 322).

1644. March 26.—Young Gight and a number of Royalists met Lord Huntly in Aberdeen. Young Gight, Drum and Haddo, and some horsemen were left in charge of the town, which Huntly left (Ibid., ii., 330).

1644. April 22.—Young Gight and a band of Royalists left Aberdeen and crossed the Bridge of Dee. At two o'clock in the morning of April 24 they entered the town of Montrose, "dang the toun's people [who were on the watch] fra the calsey to thair housis, and out of the foirstaires thay schot desperatlie, bot thay war forssit to yeild by many feirfull schotes schot aganes thame; quhair vnhappellie Alexander Peirsonne, ane of thair bailleis, wes slayne". The raiders then tried to charter an Aberdeen ship, then lying in the harbour, to carry off the town's "cartowis". But the provost had taken refuge in the vessel, which "schot fyve or six peices of ordinans disperatlie amongis" the Royalists, "with about fourtie mvscattis, quhair by the gryte providens. of God thair wes bot onlie tuo men killit and sum hurt". The Royalists then "brak the quheillis of the cartowis, for moir thay could not do, nor brak them thay nicht not, and threw thame over the schoir to mak thame vnserviceable". They afterwards plundered the shops of the town, and "cruellie spolzie ritche merchandice, clothis, silkis, veluotis, and other costlie wair, siluer, gold and siluer wark, armes, and all vther thing, quhairat the hieland men wes not slow. Thay brak up a pype of Spanish wyne, and drank hartfullie. Thay took Patrick Lichtoun, lait Provost," and another man prisoner. "Thay left Montroiss in wofull cace, about tuo efternoone"—not a bad twelve hours' work. "Syn that samen nicht [they] went to Cortoquhy to meet with the Erlle of Airlie [young Gight's uncle], who heiring of the Marques of Argyllis cuming wold not give thame entrie." As a consequence, thirty-two of the party who lingered plundering the town of Montrose were captured by the Covenanters, and taken to Edinburgh (Ibid., ii., 347-8). A few days before old Gight had plundered the town of Banff. A reward of 18,000 merks was offered for the capture of young Gight (among others), "quik or deid".

1644. May 9.—When old Gight surrendered his house to the Covenanting party at this date, "his sone, the young laird, escaipis with tuo or thrie, and being weill horsit, lap the park dykes and saillie wan away in presens of the soldiouris

1645. July.—He was wounded at the battle of Alford (Earls of Sutherland, p. 526).

1644. July 19.—Sir John Gordon of Haddo, his neighbour, was executed at Edinburgh.

1649. March 22.—The second Marquis of Huntly, chief of his clan, was executed at Edinburgh.

Considerable ambiguity exists about the name of his wife. Spalding says (Troubles, ii., 174) he married (in July, 1642) a daughter of Sir William (?) Keith of Ludquharne (whose ancestor, Sir John Keith, had been killed at Flodden). He seems to have married as his second wife Lucretia, daughter of Robert Irvine of Fedderat by his wife Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Sir Duncan Campbell of Glenurchy, who was married in 1621 (MS. Pedigree, by Col. Forbes-Leslie at Drum Castle). According to Row, whose Journal was printed in Scottish Notes and Queries, Jan., 1894, Dame Anna Forbes, "Lady Gight," daughter to the Lord Forbes, died Sept. 14, 1667, aged 67. According to Macfarlane's Genealogical Collections (ii., 244), "Arthur Forbes of Eight married Anna Forbes, daughter to my Lord Forbes . . . and the said Arthur to his second Lady married Barbara Forbes, daughter to the Laird of Asloun . . ." Hence in Row Gight is probably a slip for Eight. The mention of this lady, however, seems to give some semblance of truth to the ballad entitled "Gight's Lady," which Peter Buchan printed. In this ballad the lady says:—

First I was lady o' Black Riggs,
 And then into Kincaraigie ;
 Now I am the Lady o' Gight,
 And my love he's ca'd Geordie.

I was the mistress o' Pitfour,
 And madam o' Kincaraigie,
 And now my name is Lady Anne,
 And I am Gight's own lady.

The ballad describes how Gight went after "Bignet's lady". He then got into prison, and owned first to having stolen "ane o' the King's best brave steeds," and "sold him in Bevany"; secondly, to having killed five orphans for their money. A ransom of 10,000 crowns is then put on "Geordie's" head. His wife then Spread her mantle on the ground,

 Dear but she spread it bonny ;
 Some gaed her crowns, some ducadoons,
 And some gaed dollars mony.

Gight, of course, is saved, and his spouse prepares to ride off with him, when he announces his unswerving devotion to her rival: "A finger o' Bignet's lady's hand is worth a' your fair body". And he is made to stab her to the heart.

Now a' that lived intil Black Riggs,
 And likewise in Kincaraigie,
 For seven lang years were clad in black,
 To mourn for Gight's own lady.

Historically, I cannot verify the ballad at all. Peter Buchan makes a third laird of Gight (killed in 1578) the hero of this affair, but I fear that Buchan is simply guessing at the truth. The eighth laird of Gight, at any rate, had two children (although the Balbithan MS. says he "begat a daughter and dyed").

1. GEORGE, IX. of Gight.

2. MARIE. On July 16, 1684, there is a discharge and renunciation by her to her brother of 12,000 merks, "contained in heritable bond by him, with consent of Dame Elizabeth Urquhart, his spouse, to his said sister, of date April 20, 1683: whereby for security of said sum he bound himself to infest his said sister in an annual rent of £480, furth of the town and lands of Newseat, Ardoe, etc., in the Parish of Tarves". At Aberdeen, May 22, 1684 (Aberdeen Sasines, xii., 57). She seems to have been the "Mrs. Mary Gordon of Gight" who was married on June 2, 1691, to Lieut.-Colonel John Gordon. The marriage ceremony was performed by the minister of Fyvie before the Laird of Meldrum and the Laird of Knockleith. The Lieutenant-Colonel is spoken of in the Poll Book as "the laird of Gight" in 1695. On Sept. 30, 1697, "Lieut. Col. John Gordon of Gight" was a witness to the baptism of Margaret, daughter of Mr. George Dalgarno, minister at Fyvie (Fyvie Register of Baptisms). Lieut.-Col. Gordon and his wife Marie had a daughter—

ELIZABETH, baptised by the minister of Fyvie, in presence of John Gordon of Rothnie, William Pantoun in the Miltoun of Fyvie and others, June 12, 1694 (Ibid.). What became of this Elizabeth I cannot say. She is mentioned in the Poll Book.

SIR GEORGE GORDON, IX. OF GIGHT.

(Son of VIII.)

Very little is known about this laird. Dr. Temple, in the Thanage of Fermartyn, dismisses him with four-and-twenty words. Almost the only fact I can discover about him is that he was a Commissioner of Supply in 1678 and 1685 (Acts of Parliament). In 1682 Lord Aberdeen sent a present of plums to Gight's gardener (Aberdeen Papers, Historical MSS. Commission, 5th Report, p. 609). In a sasine of 1685 Gight is described as "Knight, Baronet". The following item from the Register of Aberdeen Sasines (xii., 137) throws some light on him, suggesting that the family had fallen into debt:—

1685. Jan. 15.—Discharge and renunciation by George Keith of Knock, Sheriff-Depute of Kincardine, to Sir George Gordon [ninth] of Gight, and George Gray of Schivas, his cautioner, of £3,000, which he agreed to pay in consideration of the sums contained in a heritable bond by the deceased Sir George Gordon [eighth] of Gight to Nathaniel Keith in Aden, of date December 30, 1642, and registered February 1, 1649, in and to which bond the said Nathaniel constitute the deceased Major George Keith of Whytriggs, father of the foresaid George, cessioner and assignee by his assignation of date September 11, 1656. Whereupon the said Major, having raised letters of horning against the said deceased Sir George Gordon, and by virtue thereof caused charge him to pay to the said Major the sums of money foresaid, which being suspended by the said deceased Sir George Gordon, the said umquhile Major obtained dereet of suspension before the Lords of Council and Session on November 16, 1667, against the said Sir George Gordon, whereby they found the saids letter and charges orderly proceeded, and decern the same to have effect, and be put to further execution, etc. At Aberdeen, December 4, 1684.

The ninth laird married his kinswoman, Elizabeth Urquhart, only daughter of Patrick Urquhart of Meldrum (1611-1664) by Lady Margaret Ogilvie, who was the daughter of the first Earl of Airlie, and the cousin of her husband, for it will be remembered that the seventh laird of Gight had married the sister of the first Earl of Airlie. Gight died before 1695, for his wife was described (Poll Book) in 1695 as the "duager of Gight," and was living at the Mains of Gight. Among her servants occurs the name of Donald M'Queen. He may have been the hero of the ballad called "Donald M'Queen's Flicht wi' Lizie Menzie," quoted by Peter Buchan. Donald is said to have tempted her with a cheese as a love philtre! It is certain, however, that Lizie Menzie was not "Lady of Fyvie" in the sense of being the wife of the last Earl of Dunfermline, as Buchan makes out. According to the Poll Book, Mrs. Magdalen Crichton, relict of Laurence Oliphant, son of Lord Oliphant, was living at Woodhead of Gight in 1695. Lady Gordon, who was alive in 1704 (Privy Council Register), afterwards married Major-General Thomas Buchan of the Auchmacoy family, who died in 1721 (without leaving issue), at Ardlogie, the jointure house of the Gights (Joseph Robertson's Preface to the Diary of General Patrick Gordon). Buchan met General Patrick Gordon in Edinburgh on June 20, 1686. He had served in France and Holland, and was made a Major-General by James II. in 1689. The tombstone that marks the resting-place of the Gights stands in the churchyard of Fyvie. One side of it bears a coat of arms, of date 1685, with the letters "S[ir] G[eorge] G[ordon]" and "D[ame] E[lizabeth] U[rquhart]" in the body of it, surmounted by the Gordon motto, "Bydand," and at the base runs the Urquhart motto, "By sea and land". The ninth laird had an only daughter—

MARIE GORDON, X. of Gight.

MARIE GORDON (MRS. DAVIDSON), X. OF GIGHT.

(Daughter of IX. : died 1740.)

She was the only child of the ninth laird. I think that this is made quite clear by the following extract from the Register of Sasines, Aberdeen (xii., 514):—

1687. June 22.—Sasine on Charter under the Great Seal to Marie Gordon, only lawful daughter procreated between Sir George Gordon of Gight and Elizabeth Urquhart, his spouse, and the heirs male of her body: which failing to the eldest heir female without division of her body, and the heirs male or female of her body: and the said heirs as well male as female, and the heirs of tailie and provision nominated by the said Sir George, and succeeding to his lands and estate shall assume the surname of Gordon and insignia of the family of Gight, etc., of the lands and barony of Gicht, alias Schives. . . . At Whythall, April 4, 1685. Sasine on June 13, 1687. George Gordon in Gight is a witness.

There is a curious difficulty in connection with the tenth laird, involved in the presence of two John Gordons on the estate—a Captain John in 1685, and a Lieutenant-Colonel John in 1695. Captain John figures in two references:—

1685. February 23.—Sasine on disposition by Dr. Patrick Urquhart [uncle of the tenth laird of Gight], Professor of Medicine in King's College, Aberdeen, and Elizabeth Muir, his spouse, with consent of Sir George Gordon of Gicht, Knight, Baronet, to Captain John Gordon, sometime tutor of Glenbucket, for an annual rent of £60 Scots, corresponding to the principal sum of £1000: furth of the town and lands of Little Gicht, mill and mill lands of Ardo, lying in the parishes of Fyvie and Tarves. At Aberdeen, May 20, 1684: Sasine on January 30, 1685 (Aberdeen Sasines, vol. xii., folio 171).

1708. February 12.—Sasine on letters of obligation by William Keith of Ludquharne [the eighth laird of Gight had married a Keith of Ludquharne], with consent of Lady Jean Smith, his spouse, and George Keith, their second lawful son, to Agnes Gordon [of the Badenscoth family], relict of Captain John Gordon, tutor of Glenbucket, and George Gordon, his eldest son, of an annual rent of £40 Scots furth of two crofts of the town and lands of Stirlinghill, sometime possessed by Alexander Bruce and George Darg, lying in the parish of Peterhead. At Boddam, December 13, 1707: Sasine on December 31, 1707 (Ibid., xix., 412).

The "tutor of Glenbucket" was the grandson of Sir Adam Gordon of Glenbucket, by his second wife, Helen Tyrie. Sir Adam's first spouse was Christian, a daughter of the fifth laird of Gight. The other John, the Lieutenant-Colonel, figures in the List of Pollable Persons in Aberdeenshire, 1695 (ii., 289), where the "laird of Gight" is stated to be "Livetennent-Collonell John Gordon" (to the amount of £996 13s. 4d. Scots). His wife is stated to be "Dame Mary Gordon," and his daughter "Mrs. Betty Gordon". Now, who was this Lieutenant-Colonel John Gordon? Was he the first husband of Marie, the tenth laird, or was his wife Marie the daughter of the eighth and the aunt of the tenth laird; and did he assume the guardianship of her lands during her minority? The laird of Gight's valuation in the parish of Ellon in 1695 was £149 16s. The valuation of the lands of Gight was £996 13s. 4d. Scots, as follows:—

Lieut.-Col. John Gordon should pay of the proportion of the valued rent £1 11s., effeirand to the duty of the saids lands in his own labouring, but its absorbet in the highest, in which he is raited, being £24 Scots: inde with the generall poll is	£24	6	0

"Lady" Marie Gordon, who was the first woman laird of Gight, married at Fyvie, Nov. 2, 1701, Alexander Davidson, younger of Newton of Culsalmond. The witnesses were "the laird of Cubardie, the lairds of Knockleath, Bancharie, and many others". On the margin the "Lairds of Newton and Lady Gight" are given (Fyvie Register of Marriages in the Register House). The marriage contract, dated Edinburgh, October

20, 1701, is referred to in the Register of Aberdeen Sasines (xix., 559) thus:—

1712. June 26.—Sasine on (1) contract of marriage between Alexander Davidson, younger of Newton of Culsalmond, with consent of Alexander Davidson, his father, on the one part, and Lady Mary Gordon, heiress of Gight, with consent of Lady Elizabeth Urquhart, her mother, for infesting her in liferent after the decease of the said Alexander Davidson, now her future spouse, in 22 chalders victual furth of the one or other half of the lands, mills, etc., of Newtoun of Culsalmond, Williamstoun and Melinsyde, by letters of resignation by the said Mr. Alexander Davidson, his father: contained in the said contract, which is dated at Edinburgh, Oct. 20, 1701. Also, on (2) charter of resignation by the Queen to the said Alexander Davidson and the said Mary Gordon of the said lands. At Edinburgh, June 22, 1711, and registered June 5, 1711. Sasine in —, 1712.

There should have been a certain irony in this alliance, because, while the Gight family had been notorious law-breakers, the Davidsons had for generations been administering the law as “advocates” in Aberdeen. Yet the Gight lawlessness was uninfected by the marriage, for Alexander Davidson exhibited (so late as 1704) an extraordinary contempt for the law, so that his progeny may be supposed to have had a good share of Gight morality in their blood. It was part of his marriage contract that Davidson should pay the debts of his mother-in-law, who had married General Buchan. Davidson apparently regretted this arrangement, for, in 1704—at which date the contract had not been registered—he borrowed a copy of the contract from his mother-in-law, through James Hamilton of Cobairdy. Then followed a curious lawsuit, which is condensed from the Privy Council Register in Chambers’s Domestic Annals (iii., 304), under date September, 1704:—

When the [Gight] family creditors applied for payment of their debts, Davidson did not scruple to send them, or allow them to go, to the old Lady Gight and her husband (General Buchan) for payment. Beginning to feel distressed by the creditors, old Lady Gight sought back the copy of the contract for her protection; but, as no entreaty could induce Davidson to return it to Cobairdy, she was forced to prosecute the latter for its restitution. Cobairdy, being at length, at the instance of old Lady Gight and her husband, taken upon a legal caption, was, with the messenger, John Duff, at the Milton of Fyvie, on his way to prison, 16th September, 1704, when Davidson came to him with many civil speeches, expressive of his regret of what had taken place. He entreated Duff to leave Cobairdy there on his parole of honour, and go to intercede with General Buchan and his wife for a short respite to his prisoner, on the faith that the contract should be registered within a fortnight, which he pledged himself should be done. Duff executed this commission successfully; but when he came back Davidson revoked his promise. It chanced that another gentleman had, meanwhile, arrived at the Milton, one Patrick Gordon, who had in his possession a caption against Davidson for a common debt of £100 due to himself. Seeing what stuff Davidson was made of, he resolved no longer to delay putting his design in execution; so he took Duff aside and put the caption into his hand, desiring him to take Davidson into custody, which was immediately done. In the midst of these complicated proceedings, a message came from Mrs. Davidson, entreating them to come to the family mansion, a few miles off, where she thought all difficulties might be accommodated. The whole party accordingly went there, and were entertained very hospitably till about two in the morning (Sunday), when the strangers rose to depart, and Davidson came out to see them to horse, as a host was bound to do in that age, but with apparently no design of going along with them. Duff was not so far blinded by Gight's hospitality as to forget that he would be under a very heavy responsibility if he should allow Davidson to slip through his fingers. Accordingly he reminded the laird that he was a prisoner, and must come along with them; whereupon Davidson drew his sword, and called his servants to the rescue, but was speedily overpowered by the messenger and his assistant, and by the other gentlemen present. He and Cobairdy were, in short, carried back as prisoners that night to the Milton of Fyvie. This place, being on the estate of Gight, Duff bethought him next day that, as the tenants were going to church, they might gather about their captive laird, and make an unpleasant disturbance; so he took forward his prisoners to the next inn, where they rested till the Sabbath was over. Even then, at Davidson's entreaty, he did not immediately conduct them to prison, but waited over Monday and Tuesday, while friends were endeavouring to bring about an accommodation. This was happily so far effected, the Earl of Aberdeen and his son, Lord Haddo, paying off Patrick Gordon's claim on Davidson, and certain relatives becoming bound for the registration of the marriage contract. From whatever motive—whether, as alleged, to cover a vitiation in the contract, or merely out of revenge—Davidson soon after raised a process before the Privy Council against Cobairdy, Gordon and Duff for assault and private imprisonment, concluding for £3,000 of damages; but, after a long series of proceedings, in the course of which many witnesses were examined on both sides, the case was ignominiously dismissed, and Davidson decerned to pay 1,000 merks as expenses.

1708. July 15.—Mr. Alexander Davidson of Newton, having married Anne [Marie] Gordon, the heretrix of the lands of Gight, it was represented to him that the debt affecting the estate was only £40,000, whereon, by his contract of marriage, his father obliged himself to advance that sum to disburden the lands, and accordingly paid it in; but after the marriage debts emerged double of that sum, and far above 100,000 merks; and being pursued by [Patrick?] Gordon of Cults for a debt owing to him by Gight, and he insisting, primo loco, to have him made liable for the annual rents of that sum, he alleged that being unluckily engaged for that family, he finds the debts so insuperable, and so far exceeding the value of the estate, that he is willing to renounce and abandon the whole to the creditors, upon liberating him of the debts that had so unexpectedly and surprisingly emerged on that estate, even though he should lose the £40,000 advanced by his father. . . . The Lords thought Mr. Davidson's case very hard, to make him liable in the annual rents of the debts far exceeding the rents of his wife's land; yet, ita lex scripta est, the same was now turned into a fixed known custom and law. Only, he was thus far relieved, but the Lords did not think him liable in the principal sums, but left them to affect the lands by adjudication and other diligence for securing that.

In 1702 Alexander Dunbar, the laird of Monkshill, received from Mary Gordon and her husband a precept of clare constat, whereby the town and lands of Monkshill were declared redeemable by them as superiors, for the sum of 3,000 merks (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 80).

Davidson died about 1716. His widow seems to have died in 1739 or in 1740, for on 29th January, 1740, their son, Alexander, was served heir to his mother. Alexander Davidson and Mary Gordon had—

1. GEORGE DAVIDSON, born and baptised May 20, 1704. Mr. Alexander Davidson, elder of Newton, sponsor: witnesses, James Ogilvie at miln of Airdo, Adam Panton in Litlegight, Patrick Chalmers in the Newtown and Alexander Wilson in Buchquhandachie (Fyvie Register of Baptisms).
2. ALEXANDER DAVIDSON, born and baptised Jan. 30, 1707. Major General Buchan and Alex. Davidson, Laird of Newton, present. The Earl of Huntly, the Laird of Cockstown, the Laird of Pitmeden, god-fathers (Ibid.).
3. ALEXANDER DAVIDSON, born and baptised May 16, 1711, by Mr. George Dalgarno, minister of Fyvie, at the Milne of Williamston in the parish of Culsalmond, Alexander Davidson, Laird of Newton, elder, Thomas Buchan, Major General, were present and several others (Ibid.).
4. ALEXANDER GORDON, XI. of Gight.
5. ELIZABETH DAVIDSON, married James Gordon of Techmuiry, and died at Faichfield on October 1, 1788, in the eighty-fifth year of her age (Scots Magazine (1, 518), which calls her "sister of Alexander Gordon of Gight"). I may note that Dr. Temple (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 76) says she "married, in 1767, Alexander Innes of Breda and Cowie". This is a mistake. The Elizabeth Davidson whom Innes married was the daughter of William Davidson, Provost of Aberdeen from 1760 to 1762. The Provost died in 1765 (A. M. Munro's Memorials, p. 240).
6. ISOBEL DAVIDSON, baptised Dec. 11, 1705, married (as his first wife) William Fordyce of Monkshill, Aquhorties, who bought the lands of Monkshill from her brother, Alexander, in 1744 (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 80). She was dead before 1738, when Fordyce married Margaret, daughter of

Walter Cochrane of Dumbreck, Provost of Aberdeen (Scottish Notes and Queries, May, 1900). Isobel Gordon had one son—

WILLIAM FORDYCE of Monkshill, Captain in the Marines, who was the grandfather of Sir Fitzroy Kelly, Attorney-General, 1858-9. Captain Fordyce sold Monkshill to George Gordon, XII. of Gight, in 1768.

7. JEAN DAVIDSON, born and baptised June 1, 1709, Jean, Countess of Dunfermline being the godmother (Fyvie Register of Baptisms), who married Andrew Robertson of Foveran (Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn, pp. 76, 575). They had a son—

JOHN ROBERTSON of Foveran, who married Mary, daughter of David Stewart of Dalguise, Provost of Edinburgh, and died 1826. He was succeeded by his son—

ANDREW ROBERTSON of Foveran. He sold the estate of Foveran to David Gill of Aberdeen, to Alexander Mitchell of Ythan Lodge, and to Miss Christina Mackenzie (Ibid., p. 575).

ALEXANDER GORDON, XI. OF GIGHT.

(Son of X. : born 1716 ; drowned 1760.)

Alexander, the eleventh laird, was baptised May 25, 1716, the Earl of Huntly, the Laird of Cockstoune and the Laird of Pitmeddan being godfathers, and Alexander Gordon in Bochelle and William Panton at the Miltoune of Fyvie witnesses (Fyvie Register of Baptisms). In accordance with the sasine on charter granted to his mother (June 22, 1687), he assumed the "sirname of Gordon and insignia of the family of Gight". Dr. Temple calls him "Alexander Davidson Gordon," but I can find no authority for this middle name. On his tombstone he is called "Alexander Gordon," while the Service of Heirs describes him (in 1735 and 1740) as "Alexander Gordon or Davidson".

He was served heir to his father in Newton, Wrangham, Glenistoun, Skares and Melvinside on January 10, 1735; to his grandfather, Alexander Davidson of Newton, on January 10, 1735; to his grand-uncle, James Davidson of Tillymorgan, who died September, 1720, in Tillymorgan, Sauchieloan, Graystone and Catdenaill in Culsalmond, January 10, 1735; to his mother, January 29, 1740.

The eleventh laird, soon after his accession, redeemed from Elizabeth Smith (who was a sister of "Tiftie's Annie") and her son, William Dunbar, the wadset of Monkshill, by paying up the 3,000 merks due thereon. In 1744 he sold the lands to William Fordyce of Aquhorties, his brother-in-law (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 80). In 1768 the latter's son, Captain William Fordyce of the Marines, resold Monkshill to the next laird of Gight, George Gordon, and the burden of 4,000 merks was discharged by the payment of this sum to Isobell Fordyce, his mother.

He married Margaret Duff, born Dec. 20, 1720; died at Banff, Nov. 13, 1801 (vide Gight tombstone). She was the daughter of Patrick Duff of Craigston (uncle of the first Earl Fife, and founder of the Duffs of Hatton). This alliance was interesting from several points of view besides Byron's famous love affair with his cousin, Mary Duff. The Duffs represented everything that the Gordons of Gight did not. They were never reckless—especially where money was concerned; for their rise is one of the most wonderful stories of success, and was mainly due to brains as applied to commerce. Sometimes (as I argued at considerable length in Scottish Notes and Queries, May, 1898) their brains led them into literature (Sir M. E. Grant-Duff and his brother, Mr. Douglas Ainslie, are cases in point to-day), and it might be advanced that Byron was a good deal indebted to this strain in his blood for his literary instincts. In any case, it may be taken for granted that the Gight family increased their balance at the bankers during the reign of Margaret Duff, despite the fact that she had a large family, and apart from the annexation of the Davidson estates.

The eleventh laird of Gight lived at a period when the landed gentry had ceased to go out to slaughter their neighbours, and, in turn, get killed for their trouble. But, like so many of his ancestors, he met a violent death (at the age of forty-four), for he was drowned in the river Ythan, on January 24, 1760. The Aberdeen Journal, in recording the event, says: "He was an honest, inoffensive gentleman, an affectionate husband, indulgent parent, sincere friend, master, and good Christian. He had frequently found benefit to his health by using the cold bath, and he had the misfortune to perish in the water of Ythan, while he was bathing, being suddenly swelled with melted snow"! In his plenitude of grief, as you will note, the reporter's sense of syntax failed him (for surely no man ever succumbed to an overdose of melted snow); and I am further inclined to believe that the journalistic reticence of 1760 may have led him to gloss the fact of suicide. Scotsmen in 1760 had not become slaves to the tub so much as to induce them to bathe in ice-covered rivers in the depths of winter. Furthermore, the victim's son, the next laird of Gight, is said to have drowned himself in the Bath Canal, though no obituary notice I have seen mentions the fact.

Mrs. Gordon, with all the common-sense tenacity of her race, survived her spouse for forty-one years, having a jointure of £55 11s. on the Gight estate to the very end. She took herself to Banff, where she lived with her sister, in a three-storeyed house in Low Street. She practically brought up her granddaughter, Mrs. Byron, whose reckless marriage must have shocked her, though it did not prevent her from entertaining her great-grandson (Lord Byron) at Banff when he was about seven or eight years old. In Dr. Cramond's Annals of Banff (i., 228-237) will be found various legends about Byron's boyhood in Banff, and a letter which shows what an illiterate speller old "Lady Gight" was. The eleventh laird of Gight and his spouse had no fewer than twelve children—nine sons and three daughters. Beyond the appearance of their names on the Gight tombstone at Fyvie and the Register of Baptisms, I have been able to discover nothing about them, so that I imagine most of them died young. Only the eldest of them took the name of Gordon. The rest were Davidsons, as follows:—

1. GEORGE GORDON, XII. of Gight, born Nov. 14, 1741.
2. ALEXANDER DAVIDSON, baptised Nov. 26, 1744 (Fyvie Register of Baptisms).
He was at Marischal College, 1758-62. He got his father's estate of Newton in 1760. He was a captain in General R. Dalrymple-Horn-Elphinstone's regiment, the 53rd Foot, and married the General's daughter, Jean, by whom he had three daughters, including Mary and Margaret, who died unmarried, having sold the estate of Newton to the grandfather of the present proprietor, Mr. A. M. Gordon of Newton (Private information).
3. PATRICK DAVIDSON, baptised Dec. 19, 1745, before the laird of Techmuirie and Mr. Milne (Fyvie Register of Baptisms).
4. JOHN DAVIDSON, baptised Nov. 30, 1749 (Ibid.).
5. WILLIAM DAVIDSON, baptised July 24, 1750 (Ibid.).
6. JAMES DAVIDSON, baptised Nov. 24, 1752, before William Stuart of Achorachan and George Gray, servitor to the laird of Gight (Ibid.).
7. ARCHIBALD DAVIDSON, baptised Oct. 15, 1754 (Ibid.). Dr. Temple (Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 77) says he was a lieutenant in the same regiment as his brother, namely, the 53rd Foot, and that he infested, by clare constat, in

- 1787, his niece, Catherine Gordon (Mrs. Byron), in the lands of Melvinside, Gleniston, and others in Culsalmond. He appears to have been unmarried.
8. ROBERT DAVIDSON (Temple's Thanage of Fermartyn, p. 77).
9. ADAM DAVIDSON (Ibid.).
10. MARY DAVIDSON
11. MARGARET DAVIDSON } twins: baptised Jan. 9, 1736.
12. ELIZABETH DAVIDSON, baptised Nov. 14, 1742 (Fyvie Register of Baptisms), died at Banff, June 20, 1804, having survived all her family. She erected the tombstone to her father and mother and brothers and sisters in Fyvie churchyard.
13. MARY DAVIDSON, baptised Dec. 29, 1743 (Ibid.).
14. MARGARET DAVIDSON, baptised Oct. 19, 1747 (Ibid.); she died 1764.

GEORGE GORDON, XII. OF GIGHT.

(Son of XI.: born 1741; drowned 1779.)

With this laird the male line of the Gight family became extinct for the second time—it had really ended in the ninth laird, his great-grandfather. The twelfth laird was baptised in the manor place of Ardlogie, Nov. 14, 1741, by the Rev. Thomas Scott, minister of Fyvie, in the presence of “the Lady Gight and William Knight, servitor to the laird of Gight” (Fyvie Register of Baptisms). He was served heir to his father in April 18, 1760. On these letters, and a certified rent-roll of £1470 13s. 4d., he was enrolled a freeholder in Aberdeenshire. On Sept. 14, 1771, sasine was granted in favour of George Gordon of Gight on the lands of Minmore and others, in the parish of Inveravon, Banffshire, proceeding on a charter and disposition of the Duke of Gordon (Banff Sasines).

He revived the old alliance between the Gordons and the Inneses, by marrying Catherine Innes, the daughter of Alexander Innes of Rosieburn (1701-1761), who was Sheriff-Clerk of Banffshire, and Provost of Banff for five terms of office. This Alexander Innes had married Catherine Abercromby (1708-1784), second daughter of Alexander Abercromby of Glassaugh, M.P. for Banffshire (from 1706 to 1727; he died 1729). The graves of the Inneses and the Russells are in Banff church (Annals of Banff, ii., 358-9). The connection between the Gordon and Innes families, which began in the sixteenth century, will be more clearly understood from the accompanying table:—

It will be noticed that the twelfth laird of Gight and his wife were second cousins (see Colonel Innes' Chronicle of the Family of Innes of Edingight, 1898). The marriage contract between them is dated June 2, 1763, and is (or was) in the possession of Mrs. Katherine Russell

Jack, the wife of John Jack, Inspector-General of Hospitals. I am indebted for the digest of it to the late Dr. Garden Blaikie, who perused it after writing his articles on the Gight family in the Scotsman (Sept. 24, 1896), where he repeated the old blunder that the twelfth laird had married Catherine Duff.

The contract secured for Mrs. Gordon a jointure of £1,000, the trustees being General James Abercromby of Glasshaugh, M.P. (died 1781), her uncle; Captain Abercromby, his eldest son; Thomas Innes of Rosieburn, her brother (1749-1784); and John Innes of Edingight (the Duffs, Gordons, Abercrombys and Inneses being closely intermarried). The property consisted of the Barony of Gight, which comprised Mains of Gight, Potts and Carfulzie, town and lands of Millbrecks, Blackhillock, Swanford, Fawdonhill, Little Gight, Middlemuir, Balquhynachie, Miln of Ardo, Corn and Walk Milns of Gight, Miln lands and Stonehouse of Gight, Coal town thereof, Fetterletter (comprehending Ardlogie and Woodhead); the town and lands of Windyhills (comprehending Blackhills); the town and lands of Lethenty and Bruckleseat, the town and lands of Newseat, the town and lands of Little Folla, with the miln of Balquhydaches, etc., in the parishes of Fyvie and Tarves. The contract also provided very explicitly that should the succession fall to a daughter, she must marry either a Gordon or one who would assume that name.

The children of the marriage are said to have been brought up by the laird's mother, who lived at Banff. His youngest daughter died there in 1777, and this seems to have weighed on the mind of the laird, who is described by Dr. Kiernan, an American writer on degeneracy, as "a victim of periodical melancholia". The laird made a will, dated Dec. 19, 1777:—

Whereas I have no heirs male procreate of the marriage betwixt me and Katherine Innes, my present spouse, I am resolved to settle my lands and barony of Gight and whole estate upon my daughters and their heirs, and in order and in manner after-mentioned: By these presents I do give, grant and dispoine, with the reservations, etc., to and in favour of myself, whom failing by decease, to Katherine Gordon, my eldest daughter procreate betwixt me and the said Katherine Innes, my present spouse, and the heirs male to be lawfully procreate of her body, and the heirs whatsoever to be lawfully procreate of their body, the eldest heir female in case the succession shall devolve upon females, always succeeding without division, and excluding heirs portioners: which failing, to the heirs female to be lawfully procreate of the body of the said Katherine Gordon, and the heirs whatsoever to be lawfully procreate of their bodies: which failing, to Margaret Gordon, my youngest daughter, procreate betwixt me and the said Katherine Innes [and the heirs of her body] . . . which failing, to my own nearest heirs and assignees heritably and irredeemably the lands of Gight, comprehending the particular towns, teinds and others after-mentioned, namely the Mains of Gight, comprehending Potts, with the tower, fortalice and manour place thereof, houses, bigging, yards, orchards and pertinents thereof; the town and lands of Millbrecks, Blackhillock, Swanford, Fawdonhill, Little Gight, Meiklearde and pendicle called Middlearde, Middlemuir, Balquhynachie, Milne of Ards, Corn and Waulk milns of Gight, Miln Lands, multure, sucken and sequels of the said Miln, Stenhouse of Gight, Coaltown thereof, Fetterletter, comprehending Ardlogie and Woodhead, the town and lands of Windiehills, comprehending Blackhills, the town and lands of Lethintie and Bruckleseat, the town and lands of Newseat, the town and lands of Coaltown, with pendicle called Little Folla with the miln of Balquhynachie, miln, lands, multure, sucken, sequels and pertinents thereof, together with the hail houses, biggings, yards, orchards, tofts, crofts, outsetts, insetts, mosses, muirs, marshes, woods, fishings, pasturages, meadows, commonty, common pasturage, annexis, connexis, dependencies, pendicles, and hail prevaleges and pertinents thereof, with the teind sheaves of the said hail lands all lying within the parishes of Fyvie and Tarves and the Sherifffdom of Aberdeen, all which lands, teinds and others aforesaid with certain other lands were erected into a hail and free barony called the barony of Gight, and the Manner Place of Gight is declared to be the principal messuage conform to Charter, etc., as also all and hail the Burgh of Barony of Woodhead of Fetterletter lying within the said lands and barony of Gight, with burdens, etc.

In the beginning of 1779 Gordon made another disposition :—

Whereas I purchased some time ago from Captain William Fordyce, of the Maines, the property of the lands of Monkshill, teinds and fishings, and I having afterwards purchased the superiority of the fishings after mentioned, the same were conveyed and disposed in favour of Thomas Innes of Rosyburn, in liferent during all the days of his lifetime, and to me George Gordon of Gight, my heirs and assignees whatsoever in fee: and, as I have no heirs male procreate of my own body, I am resolved to settle the said lands of Monkshill and teinds thereof with property, the superiority, and the superiority of the fishings after mentioned in favour of myself, and after my decease, upon Katherine Gordon, my eldest daughter: . . . all and hail the town and lands of Monkshill, with the teinds and feu-duties thereof, houses, biggings, yards, tofts, crofts, pendicles and pertinents of the same whatsoever lying within the Barony of Gight, parish of Fyvie, and Sherifffdom of Aberdeen; as also all and hail that half nets fishing of salmon fish in the river of Don near the city of Old Aberdeen, with all the privileges, etc., which sometime belonged to the deceased James Colinson, burges of Aberdeen, to me George Gordon, whom failing by decease, the said Catherine Gordon, my eldest daughter, and the other heirs substitutes in manner aforesaid.

Gordon seems to have gone to Bath in search of health, and committed suicide in the canal there, on Saturday, January 9, 1779. The only reference to the fact of suicide is in a letter which his daughter wrote to her solicitor at the time of her son's proving his title before taking his seat in the House of Lords. I have not seen the letter. Mr.

Prothero (Byron's Letters and Journal, i., 3) just states that Gordon committed suicide. I have searched all the available newspaper files in vain for any information on the point. The Bath Chronicle of Jan. 14, 1779, recorded that

On Saturday evening last [January 9] died here George Gordon, Esq. of Gight, in the county of Aberdeenshire, descended from an ancient family, and possessed of considerable estate. He was a gentleman of great probity, much esteemed by his acquaintance for the generosity and goodness of heart, and will be sincerely regretted by many to whom he was a warm friend and liberal benefactor.

The Aberdeen Journal (of 25th Jan.) stated

On Saturday, the 9th curt., died at Bath, George Gordon, Esq. of Gight. It is hoped his friends will accept this as a sufficient notification of his death.

He was buried "under Mr. Pierce's stone by the font," in Bath Abbey, Jan. 15, 1779 (Register of Bath Abbey, Harleian Society, ii., 465). Colonel Alexander Campbell was buried "in George Gordon's ground by the font," April 24, 1779. Had he committed suicide, would he have been buried in the abbey? A tablet to Gordon, in the extreme south-east corner of the abbey, bears the inscription:—

GEORGE GORDON, Esq. of Gight
in the Shire of ABERDEEN
Died 9th of Jany. 1779.

His widow survived him a few years. Her will was proved by her daughter, Catherine, before the Commissary of Aberdeen on January 16 ("last"), and confirmed on Feb. 22, 1783, Thomas Innes of Rosieburn and John Innes of Edingight being cautioners. The "relict of the deceased George Gordon" is returned as having died "upon the — day of — last".

The executrix [Catherine] gives up and acknowledges to be resting to the defunct as executrix nominated by the now deceased Miss Margaret Gordon, her daughter, conform to her last will and testament, dated Dec. 1, 1779 . . . the principal sum of £1,500 sterling contained in the said deceased George Gordon of Gight his bond of provision to the said Miss Margaret Gordon, dated Aug. 24, 1776 . . . : also another £1,500 contained in an additional bond of provision by the said George to the said Margaret, dated Dec. 19, 1777.

The twelfth laird and his wife had three daughters—

1. CATHERINE, XIII. and last of Gight.
2. MARGARET, born 1766; died at the Bristol Hot Baths, March 7, 1780 (Scots Magazine). In her will, of which her sister Catherine was executrix, and which was confirmed Feb. 22, 1783—Thomas Innes of Rosieburn and John Innes of Edingight being the cautioners—she is described as “youngest lawful daughter” of the deceased George Gordon of Gight.

3. ABERCROMBY. The Aberdeen Journal of Feb. 3, 1777, records that “On Tuesday last, died at Banff, Miss Abercromby Gordon, youngest daughter of George Gordon, Esq. of Gight. Her relations and friends will please accept of this notification of her death.” In the churchyard of Banff there is an inscription: “An affectionate and sorrowing parent places this memorial of his attachment upon the grave of a promising and beloved daughter, Abercromby Gordon, who in the bloom of life was cut off by a fever in Banff in January, 1777”.

CATHERINE GORDON (MRS. BYRON), XIII. AND LAST OF GIGHT.

(Daughter of XII. : died 1811.)

Catherine Gordon was the last of her line, and ended the first of the two branches of the Gordons who have held the lands of Gight. She became mistress of the estates on attaining her majority, for she was served heir to her father in September, 1785, by which date she had taken the very step to lose everything—by marrying John Byron. Her whole life up to this point had been that of loss after loss. Her mother had died while she was a mere child. One sister died in 1777; her father died in 1779; her only other sister died in 1780. Her mother's trustees, General Abercromby and Thomas Innes, died respectively in 1781 and 1784. Her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Innes, died in 1784, so that, by 1785, the Gight family had reduced itself to the young heiress, her paternal grandmother (née Duff), and her aunt, Margaret Davidson. The heiress started her career (according to Moore) with £3,000 in cash, two shares of the Aberdeen Banking Company, the estates of Gight and Monkshill, and the superiority of two salmon fishings on the Dee. She was “a stout, dumpy, coarse-looking woman, awkward in her movements, and provincial in her accent and manners” (Prothero's Byron), but “proud as Lucifer” (as her son said) “and very headstrong”. She considered herself quite a great personage, and her idea of her own superiority was doubtless increased by her having lived in “England,” and figured among the beaux of Bath like a Society lady. Bath proved her ruin, for it was there she met and married Captain Byron. The marriage register (as quoted in Peach's Historic Houses of Bath, 1886) runs as follows (although Cordy Jeaffreson, in the Real Lord Byron, 1883, declares that the marriage, which he describes as a sham elopement, took place in Scotland):—

John Byron, Esquire, of the parish of St. Peter and St. Paul, in the city of Bath, a widower, and Catherine Gordon, of the parish of St. Michael, in the same city, spinster, were married in this church [St. Michael's, Bath] this thirteenth day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five [May 13, 1785], me, John Chapman, Rector.

This marriage was solemnized between us.

[Signed] John Byron.
Catherine Gordon

In the presence of Sarah Hay [and Dr.] Alexander Hay.

It is a curious fact that the bride was the third Catherine Gordon who had married an alien adventurer. Lady Catherine Gordon, the daughter of the second Earl of Huntly, married, in 1495, the French impostor, Perkin Warbeck; while Lady Catherine Gordon, the daughter of the second Marquis of Huntly, married, about 1659, the Polish traitor, Count Andreas Morsztyn.

The Byron mating was almost incredible from every point of view, and, of course, it turned out impossible. Byron was notorious; Catherine Gordon was a nonentity. Byron was handsome; she was very plain. Byron was bankrupt; she had a good balance at her bankers—doubtless exaggerated by herself (unconsciously) and by the people of Bath (through ignorance). This, and this alone, may be taken as the reason of the marriage. Byron had borne down on Bath with the view of getting an heiress, for the £4,000 a year which he had enjoyed for five years lapsed in 1784 on the death of his first wife, the former Marchioness of Carmarthen. He found himself up to the ears in debt within a few months.

Let me recall Byron's story briefly, familiar though it is. Captain John Byron was the eldest son of Admiral the Hon. John Byron (who was in turn the second son of the fourth Lord Byron), by Sophia Trevanion of Carhays, Cornwall (whose pedigree will be found in Burke's History of the Commoners, 1833, i., 253-5). The Byrons had become a bye-word. The fifth Lord (who was in Aberdeen as a captain in the Duke of Kingston's Horse, March 20, 1745-6) made himself notorious by reason of his killing his kinsman, William Chaworth, in a duel, fought in a tavern in Pall Mall, in 1765. The Admiral (1723-1786) started life by being wrecked on the coast of Chili, in 1741 (he wrote a book about it); and, as a Don Juan of fifty summers, he again found himself on a dangerous coast, for he set up an establishment in London for his wife's ex-maid (Town and Country Magazine, Dec., 1773). His handsome son, Captain John Byron, regarded him as an excellent model, for he ran away, in December, 1778, with the beautiful, but bored, Marchioness of Carmarthen, Baroness Conyers in her own right, and daughter-in-law of the 5th Duke of Leeds. The town rang with the scandal (see ibid., Jan., 1779, and Bon-Accord, August 19, 1898). Byron had the temerity to marry the lady, June, 1779. She bore him one child, the famous Augusta. She kept him in pocket-money, and departed this life, in France, Jan. 27, 1784, the victim of "consumption and his ill-usage".

At this crisis Catherine Gordon crossed his path. Whether he piqued her or petted her I do not know; but the blasé bankrupt man-about-town (ætat 30), with the memory of his beautiful Marchioness constantly before him (in the face of her daughter), went one day to St. Michael's, Bath, with the dumpy little "heiress" (who had a Scots accent), and the tragedy of her line reached a climax. A legend is related in the Memoirs of Robert Chambers (p. 287) about Catherine Gordon's marriage with Byron. In 1784 (the year in which Byron's first wife died) Miss Gordon, who was present at a performance in Edinburgh of Mrs. Siddons, as Isabella, in The Fatal Marriage, was "carried out of her box in hysterics, screaming loudly the words caught from the great actress, 'Oh, my Biron! my Biron!'" A strange tale was therewith connected. A gentleman, whom she had not at this time seen or heard of, the Honourable John Biron, next year met, paid his addresses, and married her. It was to her a fatal marriage in several respects, although it gave to the world the poet, Lord Byron." The marriage was not welcomed by Miss Gordon's relatives, especially her economical grandmother. It was tabooed even by her neighbours. Peter Buchan published in his collection of ballads (1828, p. 258) the following verses, which he says were "written by a Scottish bard who had been dissatisfied with the marriage of Miss Gordon":—

O, whare are ye gaein', bonny Miss Gordon?
 O, whare are ye gaein', sae bonnie and braw?
 Ye've married, ye've married wi' Johnny Byron,
 To squander the lands o' Gight awa.

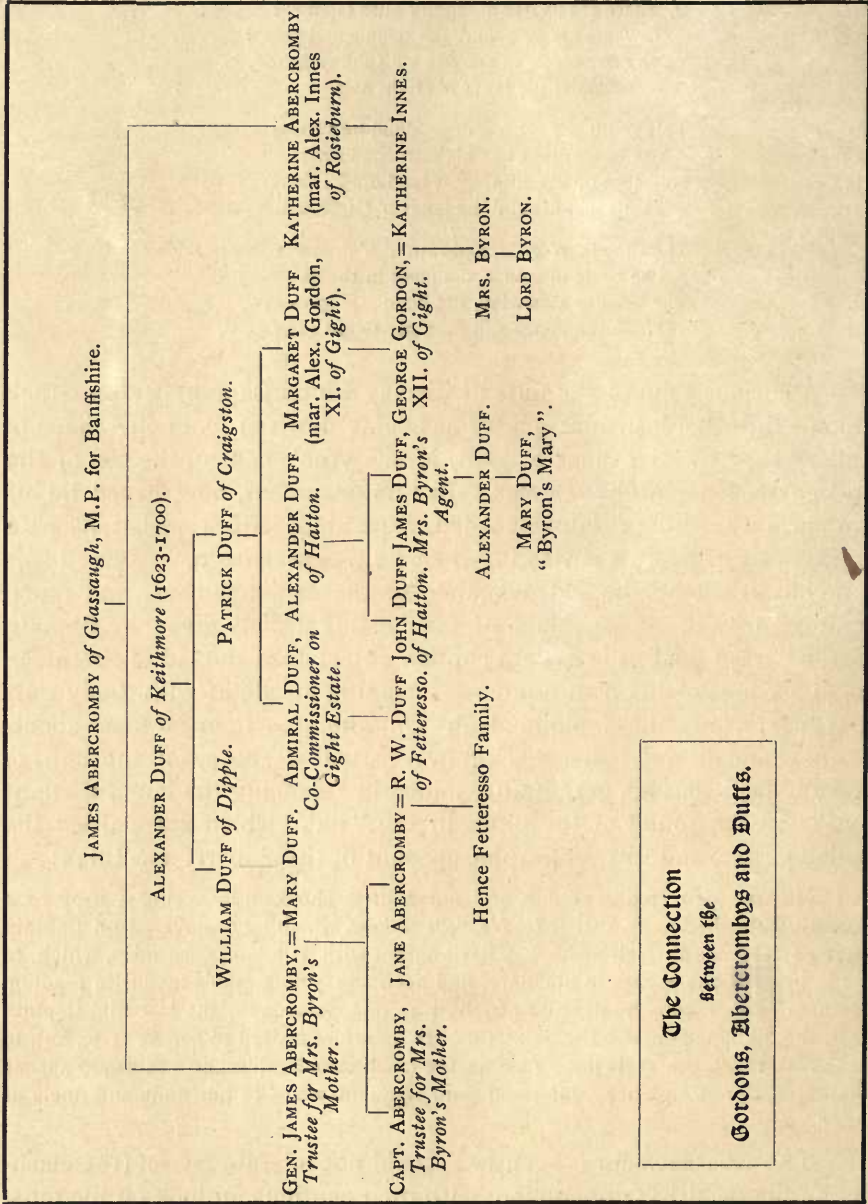

This youth is a rake, frae England he's come;
 The Scots dinna ken his extraction ava;
 He keeps up his misses, his landlord he duns;
 That's fast drawin' the lands o' Gight awa.

The shootin' o' guns, and rattlin' o' drums;
 The bugle in woods, the pipes in the ha',
 The beagles a' howlin', the hounds a' growlin'—
 These soundings will soon gar Gight gang awa'.

A curious echo of the note of dismay which Captain Byron struck among the Aberdeenshire gentry has come down to us in the shape of a diary kept by Alexander Russell, Mrs. Byron's cousin, the son of the co-commissioner on her estates. In this document, now owned by his grandson, the present laird of Aden, Russell describes a visit he paid the Byrons in September, 1785, when he was seventeen. Russell was "much struck by the extravagance of the establishment, and much impressed by the descriptions of fashionable society given by Captain Byron". No doubt the gallant captain entertained the lad of seventeen to an account of his own amours—including his flight with Lady Carmarthen; while the exploits of old Q., who was then the man-about-town, would be related. Boys, however, will be boys, for the laird of Aden tells us that his grandfather joined in "dancing the lands of Gight awa'" to the sound of the pipes in the "ha'," which scandalised the ballad writer, and gives a graphic account of these merry meetings:—

He was also greatly edified, and not a little shocked, by seeing a copy of a recently published work, called La Nouvelle Heloise, which he discovered on Captain Byron's table, and which in no way harmonised with Tillotson's sermons, which, to judge by previous entries in his diary, had been the young man's favourite reading. He also relates how greatly alarmed he was one Saturday night lest wild Captain Jack should dance on into the Sabbath. He therefore retired to bed at 11.30, but, to his great relief, the reels left off before the clock struck midnight. It would appear that Mrs. Byron and her young son paid frequent visits to her aunt and uncle at Aden.

The Aberdeenshire "gentry" could not tolerate Byron (the clashing of his reckless temperament with their cautious outlook on life must have been very comic), although he seems to have gone half way to meet them, by living at Gight and adopting his wife's name, by calling himself "John Byron Gordon". Their repudiation of him was shown when he tried to vote in the Parliamentary election of February, 1786, when George Skene of Skene, backed by the Whig Duffs, offered himself as member for Aberdeenshire against James Ferguson of Pitfour, the nominee of the Tory Gordons. Byron's vote was disallowed, although he put himself forward as "John Byron Gordon of Gight". A squib of the period (reprinted in Davidson's Earldom of the Garioch) dismisses him thus:—

And there was an Englishman, married in haste
To an heiress that suited him just to his taste ;
Yet his right of attendance at court was not clear,
So they sent him to dance it at home for a year.

It is interesting to note that Lord George Gordon also tried to vote:—

There, too, was the Lord of the Protestant mob,
Who came post a long way to assist at the job ;
And yet, when he came, no assistance could grant,
For no oath he would take but the old Covenant.

Very soon after this Mrs. Byron suffered further degradation. Unlike her mother, her grandmother, and her great-grandmother, she had no marriage settlement—which shows how little she had profited by the Duff strain in her; and her husband's creditors fell upon her income. The stocking was very soon emptied. The Aberdeen Bank shares went for £600. The timber on the estate was cut down and sold, to the amount of £1,500. Monkshill was sold in 1787 to James Hay of Brigend, Lord Aberdeen's factor, bringing in (with the superiority of the Dee fishings) £480. Meantime £8,000 had been borrowed on the Gight estate, and it too had to go—Byron and his wife having left it for good in the summer of 1786, when they went to Hampshire in the first instance, and then to Cowes (not to France, as Moore makes out).

Some very interesting correspondence, dealing with the sale of Gight, was published (for the first time) by the Rev. Dr. Milne of Fyvie in the supplement to his parish magazine (February, March and April, 1886). In order to understand the nexus of the families involved in these disputes the table on the preceding page should be studied.

On July 15, 1785, Alexander Duthie wrote from Aberdeen to the laird of Aden as follows:—

Mr. Innes, Breda, has been in the country for some time, and I have not yet seen him since I got your last letter, but I know he has refused payment of a number of drafts upon him from Mr. Byron Gordon, which were returned protested. I suppose he had heard from the lady. For some days past a rumour has gone thorrow in the town that Capt. Byron and his lady were parted, which I am afraid is too true, for late last night Mr. Byron arrived here in a chaise and four without any other person. What has become of the lady I know not. He has not an acquaintance here, nor is he recommended to anybody. Mr. Innes is not in town. So what the Captain intends nobody knows. It is said he is going to Gight.

On November 25, 1785, Duthie, who seemed to have been confidential agent of the Russell family, wrote to Russell:—

Mr. Innes [who came to Aberdeen on Nov. 24] says that Captain Byron had wrote to his father to see if he would advance money for paying off the debts of Gight upon an heritable security, to be granted by Captain Byron and his lady, but as yet they had got no return. Mr. Innes is going next week to Gight to see if there is any return from the Admiral. If not, he proposes to take an heritable security in his own name for the debts of Gight, and to convoy it to some person who will lend the money.

Captain Byron (writing from his mother's birthplace, Carhays, in Cornwall, on August 22, 1786) addressed the following remarkable letter to the co-commissioners of the Gight estate, namely Admiral Robert Duff (I. of Fetteresso, who died 1787), Mrs. Byron's grand-uncle, and Alexander Russell of Montcoffer, who had married her aunt (Eliza Innes):—

Gentlemen,—I received yours this instant, with your copy, and am perfectly satisfied with the determination, except in one respect, namely, the coach-horses going to Mr. Stewart, Mill of Arden, as Mrs. Byron Gordon is at S[outh] Warnborough, a house I have taken in Hampshire, and I being obliged to be here on business, I can only give you my sentiments with regard to the bond Mr. Watson has signed, therefore the other two must be given up. With respect to the sale, I have wrote to Lord Aberdeen and Fyvie. When I get their answers I will send them to you with our resolutions. I think it is the best way to dispose of the Estate as soon as possible, as I see no end to the expense we may incur.

I hope Mr. Duff, as soon as the money is got, will remit a certain sum to us, as we have been obliged to borrow of Mr. Hay, our factor, when we thought we should have been relieved by Mr. Duff on the 20th June, and I beg Mr. Duff will make out to the Commissioners the sums we are indebted to him, and that the produce of the bond may be sent immediately to me, and also the amount of the meal rent due, etc., may be sent us.—I am, etc., etc.,

JOHN BYRON GORDON.

James Duff (fourth son of Alexander Duff, I. of Hatton), Sheriff-Clerk of Banffshire, who was Mrs. Byron's agent, communicated (on September 18, 1786) with Russell as follows :—

Dear Sir,—Some posts ago I had a letter from Mr. Byron Gordon in answer to the one wrote when you was here, copy of which is subjoined; to it I shall refer when I again hear from him as to the price I shall advise you. In the meantime I have wrote Mr. Hay, the factor, to get back the horses from Mr. Stewart. I have delayed the roup proposed, as Mr. Byron says nothing of it; by this there can be no inconveniency. At last the proposed loan from Cairnbanno I think will take place, and as there is now no time to be lost it will be necessary for you to fix some day to be here next week—when Mr. Abercrombie is ready to attend in order to finish the transaction, the papers being now all in my custody, and Mr. Byron's affairs require despatch, so in course will expect to hear from you.—I am, Dear Sir, etc., etc.,

JAMES DUFF.

As there is no regular post to you, [I] have sent this by express, so as to have time to advise the gentlemen the day you are to be here.

On August 16 Mr. Russell got a letter from a Mrs. Clerk :—

I am sorry to hear from every quarter that the estate of Gight is to be sold for certain. I wish you and Mrs. Byron's friends could only get but £100 a year secured to her, but I will not meddle in it, for I have done all I can for her, poor unhappy creature!

Mrs. Byron, for her part, did not approach the Commissioners in the first instance. Doubtless she thought that she had put herself out of court by marrying the roué; and yet she felt herself so much in his power, through her affections (the point is exceedingly interesting in a woman of her hard instincts), that she demanded protection against herself, as well as against her husband. She approached the Commissioners through her kinswoman, Miss Uquhart of Craigston, to whom she wrote from South Warnborough, on November 13, 1786, in this strain :—

It is by Admiral Duff and Mr. Russell of Montcoffer's advice that we sell the estate [of Gight]. You know they are the Commissioners, and if they act as my friends they should see that there is a proper settlement made upon me, the best that I could wish or expect would be ten thousand pounds; and I would have that settled in such a manner that it would be out of Mr. Byron's power to spend, and out of my own power to give up to him, though I should wish to have the power of spending it myself, or to leave it to any lady I pleased, though I am not sure if that could be done; though if it could I should wish it. I suppose if that could not be done, it might be settled in such a manner that he could not spend it, and that I could not give it up to him, but that I might leave it to him if I was to die. I should not wish to appear in it myself or that Mr. Byron should know that I wrote or spoke to any one on this subject, because if he did he would never forgive me, but I should wish it to be done without my appearing in it. Admiral Duff is certainly the best person, but I should wish that he would not mention me in it, but as if it came from himself, and as being my uncle, that he thought it his duty to demand and see properly settled upon me. For God's sake mention it to nobody but who is necessary, and I beg that your answer to this letter you will send under cover to my maid, Mrs. Bawn, at South Warnborough, near Hartford Bridge, Hampshire. I trust to your friendship.

This letter was duly communicated by Miss Urquhart to Admiral Duff. In order to reach his colleague (Russell) it was communicated by Miss Urquhart to Miss Helen Innes, who sent it to her brother-in-law, Russell. Miss Innes wrote (from Banff, November 30, 1786):—

If anything could be done to secure her, you will be best judge what steps are proper, now that she sees the necessity of it herself. [Up to this point Mrs. Byron would seem to have repudiated the interference of her relatives.] It will be an act of charity in her friends to do what they can for her. Miss Urquhart is desirous that it should not be mentioned to any person here, as you will see that it would not be proper that Mr. Byron should hear of it, and she has mentioned it to nobody but me.

There was great difficulty in selling the estate; Alexander Gordon of Letterfourie, who had married Alexander Russell's daughter Helen (by his first wife), was anxious to buy it. The estate was at last put up for sale on December 12, 1786, but was withdrawn. Mr. J. Buchan, W.S., offered £16,000. Gight was at last bought in 1787 for £17,850, by the third Earl of Aberdeen, for his son, Lord Haddo, the descendant of that Sir John Gordon of Kellie (or Haddo) who had lost his head for the very same cause which the Gight Gordons had followed with impunity. The prevalent idea that the family of Gight was pursued by an unlucky fate—crystallised, as I have shown, in several "frets"—was expressed at this period by a legend related by Moore, who repeats the gossip of a correspondent, to the effect that, shortly before the sale of Gight, a number of herons, which had nested for years in a wood on the banks of a large loch at Gight, called the Hagberry Pot, flew over to Haddo. When Lord Haddo was informed of this, he said: "Let the birds come, and do them no harm, for the land will soon follow". The omniscient "Thomas the Rhymer" had prophesied that

The laird o' Gight shall landless be.

The evil fate did not end with the old Gight family, for Lord Haddo met his death on the "Green of Gight," by being thrown from his horse (October 2, 1791), leaving several children, including the future Premier (labelled by Byron "the travelled Thane, Athenian Aberdeen"), and the Hon. Sir Alexander Gordon, Wellington's A.D.C., who was killed at Waterloo. Haddo's death was believed to fulfil "Thomas the Rhymer's" prophecy:—

At Gight three men a violent death shall dee, which was completed by a servant from the home farm being killed in a similar way. Mr. James Davidson (of the Scottish Employers' Liability and General Insurance Company) tells me that the prophecy was fulfilled in 1855 or 1856, when James Davidson, Bridge of Methlick (my informant's father), was commissioned to destroy the outhouses at Gight and turn the land into lea. A youth named Main, son of Francis Main, a "dyker," set about the work of demolition light-heartedly, with the remark: "Thomas the Rhymer made a mistak' for aince, for the place will be ca'ed doon without a third man bein' kilt". He had no sooner said this than a wall fell and killed him. Mr. Davidson vividly remembers the washing of the blood-stained blankets in which young Main had been carried away.

Mrs. Byron was not much better off even after the estate was sold. On Dec. 10, 1786, Mrs. Duff, the mother of Mary, whom Byron fell in love with and who married Robert Cockburn, wrote to Russell from Bath "with reference to our poor niece," Mrs. Byron. She says that a joint letter had been written to Byron representing to him "the justice and necessity of securing £3,000 or £4,000 out of the estate of Gight for their joint lives, the principal to go to the survivor, the annuity not to be touched by the debts of either. To ask for more would have given Byron an excuse to grant nothing." Mrs. Byron saw nothing like the £10,000 which she wished to be settled on her. The whole proceeds of the sale, £17,850, were mopped up by her husband's creditors, except £1,122, which was required to pay her grandmother (née Duff) an annuity of £55 11s. 1d., and £3,000 for herself, which was lent by the trustees to Mr. Carsewell of Rathillet, Fifeshire. It says much for Mrs. Byron's thrift that this capital sum, £4,122, was untouched during her remaining life of twenty-four years, for her son inherited it intact on her death, and by his will (dated 12th August, 1811) directed that it should be used to pay off certain legacies and debts.

After the sale of Gight, Captain Byron and his wife seem to have gone to Chantilly, to escape the duns who had not yet been satisfied. Mrs. Byron was reported, in September, 1787 (Annals of Banff, i., 236), to be "big with bairn". She returned to England about the close of 1787, and, on January 22, 1788, she gave birth to the poet, at 22 Holles Street, off Oxford Street, London. The house, which used to be marked by a metal medallion, was pulled down years ago, and the site is now occupied by the huge drapery establishment of John Lewis & Co., whose business notepaper bears a bust of Byron, and who have erected in a niche in the wall a statue to mark the site of the historic spot.

The birth seems to have reconciled Mrs. Byron to her family, for Mr. Duff of Fetteresso and the Duke of Gordon (Jane Maxwell's husband)—whose line she despised, ignorantly supposing her own to be descended from the real Gordons—were the godfathers. As a specimen of the confusion in Byron biography, I may note that R. C. Dallas declares that the poet was born at Dover; while Sir Cosmo Gordon goes the length of saying that the event occurred at Gight. Shortly before the boy's birth Mrs. Byron sent her step-daughter, the six-year-old Augusta, to the child's grandmother, the Dowager Lady Holderness.

Mrs. Byron, probably to gratify her relatives, and also for the sake of economy, took up her residence, in 1790, at Aberdeen, which she made her headquarters for the next eight years. But for her son's succeeding to the baronage of Byron (in 1798) she might have lived and died in Aberdeen, and Byron's genius might have been choked in consequence. She lived at different periods in Virginia Street (apparently with a Mrs. Cruickshank, "on the shore," to whom she wished a letter addressed to her in January, 1791); in two different houses in Queen Street, and at 64 Broad Street, which was demolished in 1901. The last is her best known residence. This house kept up the traditions of literature by sheltering Dr. John Mackintosh, the author of the History of Civilisation in Scotland. She sometimes spent her summer holiday in a little cottage off the South Stocket Road, called Honeybrae, which has been demolished to make way for the voracious villa (Aberdeen Free Press of July 26 and September 4, 1898, and Evening Express, January 19, 1899). Mr. George Walker (author of Aberdeen Awa') learned this fact from a Mrs. Black (who was Mrs. Byron's servant) or her son. Mrs. Black, who was a member of the George Street U.P. Church, died in the forties. The west room of the first floor of the villa used to be pointed out as the room occupied by Byron. It has been said that Villa Franca, in the South Stocket Road district, was the house in which Byron stayed. As the house had at that time been recently built by old Peacock, the dancing master, for his own residence, it is unlikely that he would have let it for summer lodgings. Mrs. Byron's grandmother seems to have forgiven her, for Byron and his mother visited (on one occasion at least) the veteran dowager (née Duff) at Banff. Some illustrated articles by Rev. W. Rogerson on Byron's connection with Aberdeen were given in Bon-Accord, May 8-July 10, 1902.

Her husband continued to worry her till his death (by suicide?) at Valenciennes, on August 2, 1791, aged thirty-six. Moore declares that he paid her two visits at Aberdeen, apparently with the object of getting money out of her. The fear of herself, which she had expressed to Miss Urquhart five years before, proved too true, for, though she had been ruined by the Captain, she gave him more than she could spare, and got £300 into debt. The interest on this debt reduced her income to £135 a year, and it was not until the jointure of £1,122 fell to her (by her grandmother, the dowager's, death, in 1801) that she was able to clear her feet. It was probably one of her husband's visits that made her write, from Aberdeen, the following piteous letter to her uncle, Alexander Russell of Montcoffer, on January 24, 1791. As quoted by Dr. Milne, the letter runs thus:—

Dear Sir,—I wrote to your son some time ago about some business, which I suppose he has told you of. I wrote Mr. Duff at the same time, and I meant to have wrote to yourself, but, as Mr. Russel was at Fetteresso, I wrote to him. They both called on me, and your son said he did not think you would have any objection to do what I requested of you. I said I would write to you, but he said that was not necessary, as he would tell you of it, and as I have heard nothing to the contrary you will have no objection to sign the enclosed paper; it will be doing me a very particular favour, and I will feel very grateful for it. I am in great want of the money. The paper is this: Lord Aberdeen to advance me a hundred pounds at present out of the twelve hundred pounds settled on me at Lady Gight's death, but in case both me and Mr. Byron should die before my grandmother, he will not lend the money without the trustees guarantee any conveyance of mine, or Mr. Byron by a formal deed, which is the same thing as becoming bound for the money. I really do not perfectly understand the settlement, but I believe if Mr. Byron or myself was to die before Lady Gight, my son when he came of age, if he was to insist on it, could make them pay him the money, but I am not certain. But as the sum is only £100, Mr. Duff, Fetteresso, has signed the paper, and Mr. Watson and Mr. Clark at Edinburgh have agreed to sign it when it is signed by you and Mr. Duff. Indeed, Mr. Watson seemed to wish your son also to sign it, but in that he may do as he pleases. The paper is made out by Dr. Thom, who was in possession of all my papers, and made it out accordingly. Therefore I hope you will have no objection to sign it when the rest have agreed, as it is only for £100, and there is four of you, and it is only running the risk of £25 in case Mr. Byron and me was to die before Lady Gight. If I was not in great want of the money I would not ask it, and it would be doing me a great favour. I beg you would return it as soon as possible. I hope all your family are well. I beg to be kindly remembered to my aunt. I hope she is pretty well in her health, and believe me, dear sir, your affectionate niece,

C. BYRON GORDON.

Mrs. Byron spent the summer holidays in 1795, 1796, 1797 and possibly 1798 with her son in the house of James Robertson at Ballaterich (Michie's Records of Invercauld, pp. 166, 391). She left Aberdeen in 1798, on her boy's succeeding to the title, and never came north again, so far as I know. Her life in England, spent mainly at Newstead during the next thirteen years, is too well known to be recapitulated here. But, as typical of her temperament, I may quote a letter (see Prothero's Byron) she wrote to one of her neighbours at Newstead, in September, 1809, as it recalls the violent boundary disputes which her ancestors had carried on with one another at the point of the sword. I retain her italics.

Sir,—I must insist on your confining yourself to your own premises, or at least not coming on Lord Byron's Manor to hunt and commit trespasses, which you have been so long in the habit of doing that you now, I suppose, fancy you have a right to do so; but I am fully determined to convince you to the contrary. Pray, Sir, do you suppose that I will remain here and tamely submit to every insult from you? If you think so you will find yourself extremely mistaken.

I cannot send out my Keeper but he must be abused by you on Lord Byron's own Manor. You presume on his absence to insult a Woman and assault an Old Man; that is, you insult his Mother, and injure the Property, attack the Persons and threaten the Lives of his Servants. In short, your language is unbecoming, and your behaviour totally unworthy, a Gentleman. To a man of courage these are harsh truths, but they are truths nevertheless.

I will now take the trouble to inform you that Lord Byron's Tenants shall be no longer annoyed by you with impunity, but that a prosecution will be immediately instituted against you for divers trespasses and one assault. You are surely not so ignorant as not to know that breaking down fences and riding through fields of standing corn with your Hounds are unjustifiable, arbitrary, and oppressive acts, and will not be submitted to in a free country, even if you was the first Man in it. I will not suffer my Keeper to be abused or interrupted in the execution of his duty, and he has my positive orders to use every possible means to destroy the Foxes. Lord Grey de Ruthyn's poaching and these abundant, noxious Animals have nearly deprived this once excellent Manor of game, and the Woods on this estate shall not continue to be a Dépôt for your vermine, and I'm determined to extirpate the breed here, and to suffer so great a nuisance no longer. If the breed of Fox-hunters could be as easily got rid of, the benefit to society in general would be great. No earths shall be stopt on Newstead, as I shall encourage neither Foxes nor their Hunters on these premises.

I understand the earths have been stopt, and whoever shall be found at that work shall have sufficient cause to regret it, and care shall be taken to watch for them.—I remain, Sir, etc., etc.,

C. G. BYRON.

Mrs. Byron died at Newstead on August 1, 1811. Moore says she succumbed to "a fit of rage, brought on by reading over an upholsterer's bill"—so that she died as she had lived. A few days before her death (July 23, 1811) Byron had written to her: "You will consider Newstead as your house, not mine: I'm only a visitor". She was taken ill so suddenly that Byron, who was living in London, did not reach Newstead in time to see her die. He was very much affected by her death. "Thank God," he wrote one of his friends, "her last moments were most tranquil. I am told she was in little pain, and not aware of her situation. I now feel the truth of Mr. Gray's observation: 'That we can only have one mother'. Peace be with her." Moore relates that

On the night after his arrival at Newstead, Mrs. Byron's maid, on passing the room where the body lay, heard a heavy sigh from within. On entering the room she found Byron sitting in the dark by the bed. When she spoke to him he burst into tears, and exclaimed: "Oh, Mrs. By! I had but one friend in the world, and she is gone!" On the day of the funeral he refused to follow the corpse to the grave, but watched the procession move away from the door of Newstead: then turning to Rushton, bade him bring the gloves, and began his usual sparring exercise. Only his silence, abstraction, and unusual violence betrayed to his antagonist the state of his feelings.

Mrs. Byron was buried in the vault in the chancel of Hucknall Torkard Church, Notts, where Byron and his daughter lie. The chancel door opens directly on the slab which covers the Byron vault, and over its lintel is a mural tablet to the memory of the Countess of Lovelace, "Ada, sole daughter of my house and heart," whose coffin is beneath. A plain marble slab let into the wall, nearer to the communion slab, marks the site of Byron's grave. There is also a slab of rosso-antico marble let into the pavement immediately above the spot where the body of Lord Byron lies. In the vestry there hangs a small escutcheon little more than a foot square, painted on silk, and bearing on the reverse the following inscription:—

The Honourable Cath. Gordon Byron of Gight,
 Mother of Geo. Lord Byron,
 And lineal descendant of the Earl of Huntley,
 And Lady Jane Stuart,
 Daughter of King James the First of Scotland,
 Died in the 46th year of her age,
 August 1st, 1811.

Mr. Charles B. Doran, writing to the Pall Mall Gazette many years ago, remarked:—

This magniloquence and pride of birth, lofty enough to befit a mausoleum, contrasts painfully with the poverty of the material on which it is presented to the eye. The silk is dingy, tattered and faded, falling away from the sides of the wooden frame to which it is stitched, and the inscription, which is on ordinary cardboard, in rude letters, as if drawn by a careless schoolboy, with only a miserable attempt at colouring, is fast becoming illegible. The contrast between the pride of long descent in the inscription, and the poverty perceptible in the decayed scrap of silk and ragged bit of pasteboard, is painful in the extreme.

The Rev. J. E. Phillips, the vicar of the church, tells me that the escutcheon "is in a good state of preservation, and is in a handsome frame". I venture, however, to think that its former decay was more symbolic of Mrs. Byron's sad life.

Byron drafted a will on August 12, 1811, in consequence of his mother's death, by which he decreed that the £4,200 which came to him (through his mother) from the sale of Gight, four and twenty years previously, should be used to pay legacies and debts.

What was Byron's attitude to his mother? The question is very difficult to answer, for his own letters are as contradictory as the stories of his biographers. For instance, Rogers, in his Table Talk, gives two versions in these stories:—

(1) A lady, resident in Aberdeen, told me that she used to sit in a pew in St. Paul's Chapel in that town, next to Mrs. Byron's, and that one morning she observed the poet (then seven or eight years old) amusing himself by disturbing his mother's devotions: he every now and again gently pricked with a pin the large round arms of Mrs. Byron, which were covered with white kid gloves.

(2) Professor Stuart, of the Marischal College, Aberdeen, mentioned to me the following proof of Byron's fondness for his mother: Georgy, and some other little boys, were one day allowed, much to their delight, to assist at a gathering of apples in the Professor's garden, and were rewarded for their labours with some of the fruit. Georgy, having received his portion of apples, immediately disappeared, and on his return, after barely an hour's absence, to the query where he had been, he replied that he had been "carrying some apples to his poor dear mother".

One of Byron's schoolfellows contributed an impression of the pair to the ramshackle Appreciation of Byron written by Sir Cosmo Gordon in 1824, as follows:—

[Mrs. Byron] was a lady of very staid and sober habits. Her face was comely, and her air that of a lady, but her stature was diminutive, and she was too much en bon point for being accounted handsome. Notwithstanding, her son was all to her: she was all to her son: and the attentions which the mother showed to her son were more than repaid by the fondness which the son evinced for the mother.

Byron himself has described her thus:—

My mother was as haughty as Lucifer, with her descent from the Stuarts and her line from the old Gordons—not the Seyton Gordons, as she disdainfully termed the ducal branch [of course she was quite wrong]. She told me the story, always reminding me how superior her Gordons were to the southern Byrons, notwithstanding our Norman and always masculine descent.

He treated her with dignity, for he always addressed her on letters as the "Hon. Mrs. Byron," although, of course, she had no claim to the epithet (see the long series from 1808 to 1811, quoted in R. C. Dallas's Life of Byron, i., 77-121, and ii., 1-31). Beaconsfield sketched Mrs. Byron under the name of Mrs. Cadurcis in Venetia, published in 1837. He gives a lurid picture of the lady:—

Mrs. Cadurcis, since she was a widow, has lived in strict seclusion with her little boy. But I am afraid she has not been in the habit of dining as well as we have to-day. A very limited income. . . . [She was] a short and very stout woman with a rubicund countenance, and dressed in a style which remarkably blended the shabby with the tawdry. . . . Mrs. Cadurcis was a great workwoman . . . not able to walk for any length of time. . . . Puffing, panting and perspiring, now directing her waiting woman, and now ineffectually attempting to box her son's ears, Mrs. Cadurcis indeed offered a most ridiculous spectacle. "Take that, you brat," shrieked the mother [when Lord Cadurcis mimicked her], and she struck her own hand against the doorway. . . . Mrs. Cadurcis threw the cage at her son's head. . . . Mrs. Cadurcis went into an hysterical rage: then suddenly jumping up, she rushed at her son. . . . Mrs. Cadurcis remained alone in a savage sulk. . . . [There was] a renewed burst of hysterics from Mrs. Cadurcis, so wild and terrible, that they must have been contagious to any female of less disciplined emotions than her guest. [She succumbed to] the most violent epileptic fits (chaps. i.-xvii.).

The latest investigator of Byron's "degeneracy" is an American professor, Dr. James G. Kiernan, who contributed a series of articles on Byron to the Alienist and Neurologist (reprinted in the defunct London Humanitarian, 1899). He sees degeneracy in Mrs. Byron's "predilection for quacks" (who tortured her boy's lame foot), and in her "premature obesity". Dr. Kiernan, coming to the subject with the microscopic eye of the specialist, which sees "stigmata" everywhere, mentions her father's suicide, and adds, on what authority I know not, that "other members of the family were suicides". He sums up Mrs. Byron thus:—

Mrs. Gordon was a woman of very unbalanced temperament. At the theatre in Edinburgh she went into convulsions, shrieking about her love to "Mad Jack" [Byron] on seeing Mrs. Siddons as Juliet. She half-worshipped, half-hated, her blackguard husband, and fell into grand hysteria at his death. Her mental defects were the theme of comment by the poet's schoolfellows. "Your mother's a fool," said a schoolboy to Byron. "I know it," was his curt reply, followed by an ominous silence. A more exasperating mother for a sensitive, passionate child cannot be imagined than this vehement, undisciplined woman, who had fits of ill-temper hourly, and who rarely passed a week without a wild outbreak of hysteric rage. Lavish of kisses to the child when good-humoured, she was lavish of blows when he incurred her capricious displeasure. In a later stage of his infancy, instead of fearing, he hated her. Once, after pouring coarse abuse and profanity upon him, she called him a "lame brat". At this the glare came from the child's eyes that so often flashed from them in after-time. Whilst his lips quivered and his face whitened from the force of feeling never to be forgotten, he was silent, and then said, with icy coldness, "I was born so, mother," and he turned away from the woman who dared not follow him. The scene was in the poet's mind when he told the Marquis of Sligo that it was impossible for him to love Mrs. Byron as a son ought to love a widowed mother. The scene was still in his mind when, three years before his death, he wrote the first words of The Deformed Transformed—

Bertha: Out, Hunchback!

Arnold: I was born so, mother.

[Mrs. Byron's] features had that exaggeration of the Scotch type which constitutes arrest of facial development. She was by no means devoid of the shrewdness and ordinary intelligence of inferior femininity. She was capable of generous impulses to the persons whom, in her frequent fits of uncontrollable fury, she would assail with unwomanly violence. Mrs. Byron's early education was remarkably neglected at a time when Scottish young ladies of her station were exceedingly well educated, and the contrast between them and the women of the lower class [whom Dr. Kiernan says Mrs. Byron "reached"] was enormous. She found that her husband, to whom she had sacrificed her fortune, was the meanest kind of a profligate, who did not hesitate to leave her practically penniless, burdened with her own infant and the daughter [Augusta] of [his] first wife [Lady Carmarthen], whom she seems to have treated with all the kindness possible to an ill-regulated nature.

Dr. Kiernan, of course, may be exaggerating Mrs. Byron's incapacities; but, to my mind, there can be no doubt that she came of an utterly impossible race, and came at the fag end of it, when mere ebullieny of spirit had passed into a form of actual insanity on the one hand (as illustrated by her father), and of enfeebled physique on the other (as shown by the rapid decay of the family). The biographers of Byron (few of them Scots by the way) have, in the absence of the necessary genealogical knowledge, sketched Mrs. Byron's family by starting and guessing from her backwards. I have reversed the process, and the two results are identical. A crude engraving of Captain Byron's bust is given in the Town and County Magazine of 1779, and Mr. R. E. Prothero tells me that a Mr. Hemmell, who resides in London, owns another portrait. Mrs. Byron's portrait, painted by Thomas Stewartson in 1806, is in the possession of Mr. John Murray, of Albemarle Street, and is reproduced by photogravure in Mr. Prothero's edition of Byron's Letters and Journals (i., 194).

GEORGE GORDON, LORD BYRON.

Aberdeen has never produced a really great poet (a writer in the Scots Observer once hinted it never would); but it has made the most of its share of half of one, by creating a great saga round Lord Byron. Born January 22, 1788, in Holles Street, London, Byron spent only eight years (1790-8) of his life in Aberdeen and the north, but into that brief and boyish period many legends and some passions (the possession of which at such an age only proves Byron the more degenerate) have been laboriously packed. This is not the place to biograph Byron; but I must indicate the sources of information on his life in Aberdeen.

The influence of Aberdeen on Byron (besides that of his mother, which I have already dealt with) lasted until 1801, when (as a boy of thirteen) he left the school at Dulwich taught by Dr. William Glennie (born 1761), who was an Aberdonian, the son of Rev. John Glennie, D.D., minister of Maryculter, and brother of Dr. George Glennie, Professor of Moral Philosophy, Marischal College. Byron had two Aberdonians, the sisters Agnes and Mary Gray, for his nurses. Moore has drawn them in bright colours. When Agnes Gray married Alexander Melvin of Aberdeen, Mrs. Byron was present at the christening of her first-born, who was called George Byron Melvin. Byron gave him a gold watch, which passed to the child's brother (Alexander Melvin), and from him to his aunt, Mary Gray, who gave it to Dr. Ewing of Aberdeen. It is now in the possession of the widow of Major Ewing, the doctor's son, who lives at Taunton, and reproductions of the back and front of it were given in the English Illustrated Magazine (1897), along with reproduction of the younger Kay's portrait of Byron (at the age of seven), equipped as an archer. Byron is said to have stayed for a time with Agnes Gray (Mrs. Melvin) at 177 Barron Street, Woodside, which was known as "Byron's Hall" (see Morgan's Annals of Woodside, pp. 105-6). Mary Gray was in attendance on Byron at Nottingham in 1799. (An article on his stay at Nottingham, by Mr. J. A. Hammerton, appeared in The Sketch of September 22, 1897.) Moore has presented the Grays as being very kind to Byron, but Hanson (quoted in Prothero's Byron, i., 10) gives a very different story. Writing to Mrs. Byron on September, 1799, Hanson says:—

Her [Mary Gray's] conduct to your son was shocking. It was the general topic of conversation at Nottingham. Byron told me that she was perpetually beating him, and that his bones sometimes ached from it; that she brought all sorts of company of the very lowest description into his apartments; that she was out late at night; and he was frequently left to put himself to bed; that she would take the chaise boys into the chaise with her, and stopped at every little alehouse to drink with them. But, madam, this is not all; she has even traduced yourself.

The Aberdeen period of Byron's life has been fully dealt with by Moore (who is generally the only authority quoted by north country writers). Byron's boyhood in Aberdeen was described at length in Harper's Magazine (August, 1891), by Dr. Garden Blaikie (who told me that his article was very much cut down), and by Mr. Prothero in the Nineteenth Century, 1898. Dr. Blaikie says:—

[At the age of five Byron was sent to the school of "Bodsy" Bower, in Longacre, the schoolroom being] a room like a wareroom, perhaps 25 or 30 feet long, low in the ceiling, with three or four small windows, ill-glazed and ill-cleaned, the walls and roof begrimed with dust, the rough, unwashed floor worn here and there into holes, suggesting excellent quarters for the rats below.

Altogether, the school was so uncongenial that his mother took Byron away, and engaged private tutors, two of whom became ministers of the Church of Scotland. Mr. Ross was a man of mature years, and Byron says: "Under him I made astonishing progress, and I recollect to this day his mild manners and good-natured painstaking". Of his other tutor, afterwards Rev. Dr. Joseph Paterson, Montrose, who died in 1865, at the age of ninety-two, Byron says:—

Afterward I had a very serious, saturnine, but kind young man, named Paterson, for a tutor. He was the son of my shoemaker, but a good scholar, as is common with the Scotch. He was a rigid Presbyterian also.

Dr. Blaikie forgot to mention that David Grant, the compiler of The Beauties of Modern British Poetry, was one of Byron's tutors. He afterwards had a side school at Buffle, and used to boast to my maternal grandfather, Andrew Malcolm, M.A., schoolmaster of Cushnie, that he had taught Byron.

Byron ended his school experience at Aberdeen as a pupil at the Grammar School, then in the Schoolhill. The best description of his schooldays is that which was written by Mr. Morland Simpson for The Sketch (June 22, 1898), where facsimiles of two pages of the register, with his name inscribed, "Geo. Bayron Gordon"—superinscribed, "Dom. de Byron"—were reproduced. The school registers show his name entered quarterly, from January 29, 1796, to the quarter which began (or ended) on June 18, 1798 (his granduncle, whom he succeeded in the peerage, died May 19, 1798). On January 29, 1796, he was in the second class. But Dr. Blaikie declared (Harper's Magazine) that Byron entered the school in November, 1794, along with Dr. Blaikie's father. I think that is probable, for he would have entered the first class (the registers before 1796 have not been preserved, if they ever existed). The last survivor of this class was Charles Winchester, advocate. I may note that Winchester was distinctly literary. In 1802 he was writing most of the articles in the Intruder, a penny-halfpenny octavo, issued by J. Burnett, Aberdeen, which at least reached a twenty-sixth number. Winchester also translated the memoirs of that bombastic Jacobite, the Chevalier Johnstone. Another contemporary of Byron at the Grammar School, though not in the same class, was William Knight, afterwards Professor of Natural Philosophy in Marischal College (1822-44). He used to relate that Byron, who was his junior by two years, once tore his jacket, and was recompensed by a sound thrashing (Alma Mater, vi., 96).

Dr. Glennie's school at Dulwich, which Byron attended (1799-1801), is fully described in Harnett Blanch's History of Camberwell (pp. 388-92). Byron thought it a "damned place". On going to Harrow he made a companion of Charles David Gordon (died 1826), son of David Gordon, XIV. of Abergeldie. Two letters he wrote to Gordon (August 4 and 14, 1805) are quoted by Prothero (Letters of Lord Byron, i., 69 and 77). In one of them he says:—

I recollect passing near Abergeldie on an excursion through the Highlands; it was at that time a most lovely place. I suppose you will soon have a view of the eternal snows that summit the top of Lachin-y-Gair, which towers so magnificently above the rest of our Northern Alps. I still remember with pleasure the admiration which filled my mind when I first beheld it, and, further on, the dark, frowning mountains which rise near Invercauld, together with the romantic rocks that overshadow Mar Lodge.

Rev. J. G. Michie (Records of Invercauld, p. 389) is responsible for the statement, which is new, that Byron visited Invercauld in the autumn of 1803. A ghillie told Mr. Michie that His lordship rested often and looked at the scenery. He was very quiet, and did not often speak to me. When we began to climb the crags of Loch-an-uan, I thought he would not be able to scramble up, for he was rather lame, and I offered to assist him, but he would not have any help from me. When we got to the top he sat a long time on the edge of the rocks looking about him, but seldom asked me any question.

Byron was then a boy of fifteen and a half, and was much more likely to have been struck with the glories of "dark Lochnagar" than he could possibly have been on his earlier visits as a boy of nine or ten.

Apropos of Byron's famous verses, I may note that a poem, in pretty much the same measure, appeared in the Aberdeen Magazine of October, 1798. The first verse runs thus:—

Ye hills and high mountains surrounding Mount Battoo, Ye groves and bright fountains, ye surely can tell
 How sportive and merry, my ewes, I've been with you,
 How now I must bid thee, sweet mountains, Farewell :
 I drove from the cot to the hill where I tended
 My ewes, and my lambs from the wolf I defended.
 The charms of sweet Nature my pleasure so blended
 I sang like a lark in the Glen of Lochlee.

The verses were said to be the work of a "young shepherdess, whose images were drawn from the bleatings of her flock, the story of the skylark, and the wild flowers blooming in her native vale". Byron was living at Ballaterich in the summers of 1795-1797 and possibly 1798, and is said to have been courting Mary Robertson, his host's daughter. Is it possible that he wrote the verses, figuring as a "young shepherdess"? He was just nine at the time.

It is interesting to remember that Robert Louis Stevenson found a great inspiration within sight of "dark Lochnagar," for, as he wrote (McClure's Magazine, September, 1894), it was while recruiting in "Miss Macgregor's Cottage," Braemar, that he "ticketed" his performance Treasure Island.

There was a schoolboy [staying at the same time in Miss Macgregor's cottage]. He had no thought of literature: it was the art of Raphael that received his fleeting suffrages, and with the aid of pen and ink and a shilling box of water colours, he had soon turned one of the rooms into a picture gallery. My more immediate duty towards the gallery was to be showman: but I would sometimes unbend a little, join the artist (so to speak) at the easel, and pass the afternoon with him in a generous emulation, making coloured drawings. On one of these occasions I made the map of an island: it was elaborately and (I thought) beautifully coloured: the shape of it took my fancy beyond expression: it contained harbours that pleased me like sonnets: and, with the consciousness of the predestined, I ticketed my performance "Treasure Island".

I have already referred to the elaborate compilation of notices of Byron's residence in Banff in Dr. Cramond's Annals. A photograph of the pear tree in the garden of the old manse, which Byron is said to have robbed, has been taken by Rae of Banff, and was reproduced in The Sketch (April 13, 1898).

Byron has been credited with at least two amazing love affairs while he was in Aberdeen. Patrick Morgan (in the Annals of Woodside, p. 105) mentions an incredible affair he had with a Woodside girl,

"Lexy" Campbell. As Byron was only nine years old at the time it is inconceivable that "poor 'Lexy'" should have "lost caste by this affair," as Morgan declared, and if her subsequent career was "unfortunate," Byron was surely not responsible. Byron himself and Moore told the extraordinary story of his "passion" for his kinswoman, Mary Duff, of the Hatton family. Like many points in Byron's career, the identity of Mary is in dispute. The late Mr. R. W. Duff of Fetteresso declared she was a Duff. Rev. J. G. Michie (Records of Invercauld, p. 391) says she was Mary Robertson, the daughter of James Robertson of Ballaterich, with whom Byron lodged in the summers of 1795, 1796, 1797 and possibly of 1798. The girl was Byron's senior by six years. A good summary of the controversy was contributed by Mr. Robert Anderson to Scottish Notes and Queries (December, 1892), and is re-stated in Mr. A. I. McConnochie's book, The Royal Dee (pp. 103-4). Mr. Michie (Records of Invercauld, pp. 389-95) goes over the ground elaborately. The "box" bed in which Byron slept at Ballaterich now serves as a cheese press at Dee Castle, a short distance to the east of the Robertsons' cottage. Mary Robertson married an excise officer, and died in Aberdeen in 1867; while Mary Duff married the excise officer's raison d'être, a wine merchant, Robert Cockburn, by whom she had four sons. Her portrait, taken after death (a somewhat gruesome sight), was reproduced in Scottish Notes and Queries (December, 1892). Dr. Blaikie suggested that Byron may have been in love with two Marys at once. The idea is at least permissible in the great Byron saga.

Aberdeen is at this moment attempting to equip its strangely un-stated streets with a statue of Byron; but the movement has been attended by some extraordinary difficulties. Aberdeen has always assumed a curiously half proud, half shame-faced, allegiance to Byron. For instance, it was Dr. Alexander Kilgour (died 1874) who compiled a very frank (and anonymous) biography of Byron, under the title:—

Lord Byron, from authentic sources, with remarks illustrative of his connection with the principal literary characters of the present day. "Dead scandals form good subjects for dissection."—Don Juan. London: Knight & Lacy, Paternoster Row; Aberdeen: W. Gordon, A. Stevenson, D. Wyllie, and L. Smith, 1825. [Printed by William Aitken: pp. xvi., 207.]

The preface to the volume contains a few rather unreliable statements as to Byron's family history, and a few anecdotes about his residence in Aberdeen. But nothing is extenuated.

Byron has six descendants still living (September, 1902). By his marriage (in 1815) with Anne Isabella (1792-1860), daughter of Admiral Sir Ralph Milbanke, sixth baronet (in 1856 she became entitled to the Barony of Wentworth by the death of her cousin the third Baron Scarsdale), he had an only child—

HON. ADA AUGUSTA NOEL, born December 10, 1815, in Piccadilly Terrace, London. She married, on July 8, 1835 (as his first wife), William King, eighth Lord King, Baron of Ockham. He was created Viscount Ockham and Earl of Lovelace in 1840, and took the additional name of Noel in 1860. He died, Dec. 29, 1893. She died, November 27, 1852, and was buried beside her father at Hucknall, Notts. She had:—

- (1) HON. BYRON NOEL KING, Viscount Ockham. He was born, May 12, 1836, and succeeded to the peerage as Baron Wentworth, on the death of his grandmother (Lady Byron), in 1860. He died unmarried, September 1, 1862.
- (2) RALPH GORDON KING-MILBANKE, the second and present Earl of Lovelace, born July 2, 1839. He succeeded his brother in 1862, and his father in 1893. Lord Lovelace assisted in editing the new edition of Byron issued by Mr. Murray. He married (1) in 1869 Fannie (died 1878), daughter of Rev. George Heriot; and (2) on December 30, 1880, Mary Caroline, daughter of the Right Hon. James Stuart-Wortley (son of the first Baron Wharncliffe), by whom he has no issue. His half-brother (Lionel) is heir to the title. By his first wife Lord Lovelace has a daughter—

LADY ADA MARY KING-MILBANKE, born Feb. 26, 1871. She is, of course, the most direct descendant of Byron, belonging to the second generation now alive. She belongs to the fifteenth generation of the Gights.

- (3) LADY ANNE ISABELLA NOEL KING-MILBANKE, born 1837, married, June 8, 1869, Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, poet, politician, and Arab horse-breeder. They have only one child—

JUDITH ANNE DOROTHEA BLUNT. She married, on February 2, 1899, at the Roman Catholic Church of Zeytun, Cairo, the Hon. Neville Stephen Bulwer-Lytton, second son of the second Earl Lytton, and grandson of the novelist Bulwer-Lytton. This is a most interesting literary alliance; the bride being the great-granddaughter of a poet (Byron) and the daughter of another (Blunt); the bridegroom being the grandson of a novelist (Bulwer-Lytton) and the son of a poet ("Owen Meredith"). The bride was given away (in her father's absence) by Lord Cromer (whose son, the Hon. Roland Baring, acted as best man). The honeymoon was spent at Heliopolis, and the young couple were escorted part of the way by a body-guard of mounted Bedouins. They have—

- (1) NOEL ANTHONY SCAWEN BULWER-LYTTON, born April 7, 1900.
- (2) ANNE BULWER-LYTTON, born August 24, 1901. These children represent the sixteenth generation of the Gordons of Gight.

HOUSE OF GORDON.

APPENDICES TO VOLUME I.

LISTS OF GORDONS IN SCOTLAND.

NEW SPALDING CLUB.

SS

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE appendices to this volume form part of the editorial scheme to supply a quarry as well as a structure—illustrated by the deductions of Abergeldie, Coclarachie and Gight, which show to what use the quarry may be put. They are intentionally confined to Scotland to begin with; and present in a handy form trustworthy information regarding the Gordons who owned land, studied at the Scots Universities, entered Parliament, or joined certain branches of the clerical and legal professions.

I.—THE RETOURS AND SERVICES OF HEIRS.

This appendix has been prepared—a very laborious task—by Mrs. Skelton, to whom the best thanks of the Club are due. The Retours and the Services of Heirs, though known to professional genealogists, are not always accessible. The entries have been extracted from the following works, which, while well known, are not easy to manipulate :—

Inquisitionvm ad Capellam Domini Regis Retornatarvm quæ in publicis archivis Scotiæ adhuc servantvr abbreviatio. [Edited by Thomas Thomson, Keeper of State Documents.] Printed by command of his Majesty George III. in pursuance of an address of the House of Commons of Great Britain. Folio. Vols. I. and II., 1811; Vol. III., 1816.

Decennial Indexes to the Services of Heirs in Scotland. Commencing January 1, 1700. [Only the first two volumes, edited by John M. Lindsay, and comprising ten decades, down to 1800, have been indexed here.] Edinburgh: Printed for Her Majesty's Stationery Office. Folio. Vol. I. (1700-49), 1863; Vol. II. (1750-99), 1870.

The Retours were printed under the direction of Thomson, by command of the Crown, which, in answer to a petition from the House of Commons, dated July, 1800, appointed (in 1806) Commissioners to provide "for the better arrangement and preservation and more convenient use" of the Public Records. Thomson (born 1768, died 1852), who was appointed Keeper of the Records in 1806, edited a long series of volumes, the most important of which were the Acts of the Scots Parliament. To the Retours he contributed a most instructive and highly condensed preface, which has to be studied closely. The Retours in Thomson's volumes, which come down to 1699, are in Latin and are arranged chronologically in each of the sections formed by the nature of the service as described below. The Services, which are in English, are a continuation of the Retours, but are arranged alphabetically in sections, each of which covers ten years. In this appendix will be found every person of the name of Gordon who was served heir of land in Scotland for two and a half centuries (1546-1800).

By the law of Scotland, on the death of a person possessed of freehold property, such property did not immediately become vested in the heir of the deceased person, but remained in abeyance until the person claiming to be the heir of the deceased person had established the fact of his kinship. Such being the case, it followed of course that some procedure was necessary to enable the person claiming to be heir or, for brevity, "the claimant," to have it judicially declared that the claimant was the heir to and entitled to succeed to and enjoy the lands of the deceased person, who is hereafter called "the ancestor". This judicial declaration was obtained in the following manner: On the death of the ancestor an order was issued by the Court of Chancery to the local judge (usually the sheriff) to make an inquiry into these points:—

- (1) What were the lands the ancestor owned when he died.
- (2) Whether the claimant was in fact the heir of the ancestor.
- (3) Whether the claimant was of age.
- (4) What was the value of the lands.
- (5) Of whom, as feudal lord, the lands were held.
- (6) By what feudal services the lands were held; in other words, what was the nature of and the incidents of the tenure.
- (7) In whose possession the lands in question then were.
- (8) How the lands came to be in the possession of the person holding them and how long they had been so held.

The document or order addressed to the sheriff commanding him to make the inquiry was called the " Brieve of Succession ". The local judge or sheriff had jurisdiction for a certain defined district only. Therefore, if the ancestor owned lands in various parts of Scotland it was necessary for a " Brieve of Succession " to be issued to the sheriff of every district involved. But, in order to avoid the same proceedings being gone through in different districts, an innovation was made, by which an officer of the Court of Session was appointed to make the inquiry concerning all the lands of the ancestor, wherever those lands might be situated.

The proceedings upon the Brieve of Succession were held before a judge and jury, and were described as a Service. When those proceedings were held before the local judge or sheriff they were called " Special Service," or " Service of an Heir in Special," for they related to lands in one district only ; whilst the proceedings before the officer of the Court of Session were called " General Service," or " Service of an Heir in General," as they related to all the lands of the ancestor, wherever those lands were situated.

The verdict of the jury was transmitted to, and the " Brieve of Succession " was returned to, the Court of Chancery, where it was recorded, and an extract of the record was given to the claimant, and the extract so given was called the " Retour of the Service ".

We have no certain knowledge of the ancient practice as to the registration of the "Retours of Service," but Thomson surmised that the verdict of the jury was retoured to Chancery "as a necessary step towards the feudal investiture of the heir," that is to say, the act by virtue of which the claimant was placed in possession of the lands of his ancestor. Thomson also notes :—

That the original inquisitions were again delivered to the private party (the claimant), and not merely an extract, as at present, may be fairly conjectured from the many originals which yet remain in private custody.

In addition to the two classes of Inquisitions retoured to Chancery there were retours to a "Brieve of Tutorship" and to a "Brieve of Idiocy or of Furiosity". The former was for the purpose of ascertaining the person who ought to be appointed tutor to a claimant who was a minor. The latter was for the purpose of ascertaining the mental incapacity of the heir to the ancestor. If it were found that the heir was mentally incapable of managing his own affairs, then it was further found who was his nearest relative of proper age and capacity upon whom that management devolved.

There were two other sorts of retours, one as to the estimated value of the whole of the lands of a county or district ; the other for the purpose of ascertaining the real estate of which persons whose lands were forfeited for treason were in possession for five years preceding the dates of forfeiture.

Thomson sums up the importance of the Retours very neatly :—

With certain limitations it [the Retour] may be considered as exhibiting an authentic history of the transmission by inheritance of the far greater part of the landed property of Scotland as well as that of the descent of the greater number of its considerable families during the course of the two last centuries. That part of the Record which precedes the date of the Scottish Statute of 1681 "concerning the Election of Commissioners for Shires," derives a peculiar importance from its affording the appropriate evidence of a certain class of Freehold Qualifications.

Where are the ancient records of Chancery? Some remarks by Lord Stair on a judgment of the Court of Session of 1624 throw light on the point. Stair says that "Services before the year 1550 were sufficient to satisfy . . . because at that time the books of Chancery were destroyed by war".

It ought perhaps to be explained that the contractions "A. E." and "N. E." in the Retours stand for "Auld Extent" and "New Extent". These terms are explained by Skene in his De Verborum Significatione, 1597.

EXTENT of landes signifies the rents, profitis and issues of the samin, quhair of there is twa kindes, the AULD EXTENT and the NEW EXTENT. For it appearis that the rental and valour of lands hes bin taxed and liquidat to ane certain sum of silver, conforme to the profitis and dewties quhilk the lands payed at that time [the time of the Alexanders] quhilk is called the Auld and first Extent. Bot because the revenues and dewties of land be progresse of time did increase and grow mair and mair, ane vther taxation and extent was made in the time of peace, as the former extent, conforme to the profitis augmented as saide is: quhilk is called, the New, or second, Extent.

The preface to the Service of Heirs, written by Mr. John M. Lindsay, describes the different kinds of heirs under Scots law as follows:—

Heir of Line.—This term means the same thing.

Heir of Conquest.—The word "Conquest" means real property acquired by purchase or otherwise than by inheritance. When a man dies intestate and childless in Scotland his inherited property goes to his immediate younger brother or heir of line, but his "Conquest" goes to his immediate elder brother (or to that brother's issue) as heir of conquest.

Heir Portioner means one of several females, or their issue, succeeding jointly.

Co-heir of Provision means one of several heirs having right by settlement or will in the Scots form.

Heir Male of the Body and of Provision.—An heir is served in these terms when the lands stand destined to male descendants, excluding all female descendants and the issue of all females.

Heir Male and of Provision.—An heir is served in these terms when the lands stand destined to heirs male general—that is, not to male descendants only but also to other heirs male, collaterals or ascendants.

Heir of Entail, Taillie or Tailzie means an heir succeeding under the destination of an entail.

Heir “cum beneficio inventarii” means an heir who, doubting his predecessor’s solvency, gives in an inventory of all his predecessor’s real property, and thus obtains legal exemption from liability beyond the value of that property.

The index has been arranged on the following principle :

1. Christian name, the surname, which is, of course, always “Gordon,” being omitted ;
2. the place name first mentioned ;
3. the date of the Retour or the Service. Where two dates are given the second refers to the registration.

II.—THE POLL BOOK OF ABERDEENSHIRE.

This invaluable work was printed in two volumes (aggregating xxiv. and 1309 pp.) in a handsome quarto in 1844 under the title :—

List of Pollable Persons within the Shire of Aberdeen. 1696. Aberdeen.
Printed by William Bennett, MDCCCXLIV.

The volumes were printed under the direction of Dr. John Stuart from the folio manuscript of 1541 pages, in the possession of General Gordon of Cairness, bearing the title :—

The Book or List off Poleable persons within the Shire off Aberdein and Burghs within the same : containing the names off the hail persones poleable and polemoney payable be them, conform to their respective capacities, according to the Act off Parliament anent Pole-Money daited the 25th day of June 1695. Faithfullie extracted ffurth of the Principall Lists of poleable persons off each paroch within the shyre, as they were reported by the Commissioners and Clerks for the severall paroches appointed for that effect. By William Hay collector appointed off the Polemoney payable ffurth off the said shire. And revised and examined by an quorum of the Commissioners of Supplie off the samen shyre and attested by them the first day of April 1696.

The MS. was submitted to the (old) Spalding Club, who relegated the printing of it to a committee of county gentlemen. The present appendix of Gordon entries has also been compiled by Mrs. Skelton. The late Mr. A. Dingwall Fordyce, of Fergus, Ontario, a great enthusiast on Aberdeenshire genealogy, made an index (of persons only), a model of neatness and accuracy. It is a MS. quarto of 271 pages, and is now in the possession of the New Spalding Club, to whom Mr. Dingwall Fordyce presented it in May, 1891. It is entitled:—

Extracts alphabetically arranged (Special and General) from the Poll Tax Book of Aberdeenshire (1696). (Special, pp. 1-148: General, pp. 151-262.) With list of orthographical variations. Synopsis of special extracts (S).

The Poll Tax was first imposed in May, 1693, to pay arrears due to the country and the army. Exceedingly unpopular, it was farmed out by the Government to Lord Ross and others for the sum of £44,000 stg. of tack duty. But in July, 1695, an Act was passed for turning the tack of the poll into a collection, on the ground that

The levying of money by pole was new, and as the countrey and others concerned had not observed the rules and ordinances contained in the Act of Parliament thereanent, the tacksmen were unable to pay the stipulated tack-duty unless they were allowed to exact the penalties imposed by the Act, which would have tended to the disturbance and oppression of the whole kingdom: therefore his Majesty liberated the said tacksmen from the said tacks and tack duty, providing that they should make just count and reckoning of all their intrusions with the said Pole-money as if they had been only collectors.

The Poll Tax was again put in force in 1695 (payable first at Martinmas, the term being afterwards extended to October 15) to increase the army and navy. The tax amounted to six shillings per head, leviable on all except "poore persons" and children under the age of sixteen, and "in families of all these persons whose pole doth not exceed £1 10s. Scots". In addition to the six shillings, a cottar having a trade had to pay six shillings more. The following grading also was imposed:—

Seamen	12 shillings Scots
Tenants (on their valued rent)	$\frac{1}{100}$ part
Merchants (with from 500 to 4,999 merks)	£2 10 0
" (" " 5,000 to 9,999 ")	4 0 0
" (" " 10,000 merks and over)	10 0 0
Gentlemen ("so holden and repute")	3 0 0
Heritors (with below £50 valued rent)	0 20 0
" (" " from £50 to £199)	4 0 0
" (" " £200 to £499)	9 0 0
" (" " £500 to £999)	12 0 0
+ 2s. 6d. for each child in familia
" (with £1,000)	24 0 0
+ £3 for each child in familia
Lords	40 0 0
Viscounts	50 0 0
Earls	60 0 0
Marquises	80 0 0
Dukes	100 0 0
Widows (whose husbands would have been worth £1 10s. poll or over)	$\frac{1}{3}$ husband's poll
Heiresses were subject to the same poll as their predecessors would have been.
Notaries, procurators and messengers-at-arms	4 0 0

Writers, not to the Signet, Agents, Clerks of Inferior Civil Courts, Macers and Under-Clerks of Session	£6 0 0
Advocates, Writers to the Signet, sheriffs, doctors	12 0 0
Commissioned officers in the Scots army	two days' pay

The total tax collected in Aberdeenshire amounted to £28,148 7s. 1d. Scots, or £2,345 13s. 7d. stg.

III.—STUDENTS AT THE SCOTTISH UNIVERSITIES.

These lists have been compiled, partly from printed, partly from manuscript sources, by Mr. P. J. Anderson. To each name is prefixed the first year of the class to which the student belonged.

The names of students at University and King's College, Aberdeen, and at Marischal College and University, Aberdeen, are taken from Mr. Anderson's Roll of Alumni at University and King's College, 1596-1860 (Aberdeen University Studies: No. 1. 1900); and his Fasti Academiæ Mariscallanæ, 1593-1860. Vol. II.: Officers, Graduates and Alumni (New Spalding Club, 1898).

The names of Glasgow graduates are taken for the period prior to 1727 from the late Mr. Cosmo Innes' Munimenta Universitatis Glasguensis, Vol. III. (Maitland Club, 1854); for the period subsequent to 1727, from Mr. W. Innes Addison's Roll of the Graduates of the University of Glasgow, 1727-1897 (Glasgow, 1898). Mr. Addison has kindly supplemented the information to be found in his admirable volume by furnishing the names of all non-graduate alumni of the name of Gordon during the same period, 1727-1897.

The names of Edinburgh graduates are taken from the late Mr. David Laing's Catalogue of the Graduates in the Faculties of Arts, Divinity and Law of the University of Edinburgh since its Foundation (Bannatyne Club, 1858); and List of the Graduates in Medicine of the University of Edinburgh from 1705 to 1866 (Edinburgh, 1867). The Matriculation Albums of the University for the period 1634 to 1860 have also been searched for Gordon alumni by the Rev. Walter Macleod, Edinburgh, and the results incorporated with the extracts from the lists of graduates. The entries in the Edinburgh Albums are unfortunately very meagre and yield but slight means of identification.

None of the St. Andrews records have as yet been printed. Mr. J. Maitland Anderson, librarian to the University, has obligingly searched the Matriculation and Graduation Registers (1429 to 1879) for Gordon entries.

An attempt has been made to identify in the various University lists the Gordons who appear in Dr. Hew Scott's monumental work, Fasti Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ: the Succession of Ministers in the Parish Churches of Scotland from the Reformation A.D. 1560 to the Present Time. 3 vols. Edinburgh, 1866-71. The Gordons of the Fasti that have not been traced in the Universities are added in a separate list.

IV.—SCOTS MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

The Gordons in this list are taken from Mr. Joseph Foster's Members of Parliament, Scotland, including the Minor Barons, the Commissioners for the Shires and the Commissioners for the Burghs, 1357-1882, on the basis of the Parliamentary Return, 1880, with Genealogical and Biographical Notices. London, 1882.

V.—MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY OF ADVOCATES, OR WRITERS TO H.M. SIGNET.

For the lists of Gordons who have been members of the Faculty of Advocates the best thanks of the Club are due to

Mr. J. T. Clark, Keeper of the Advocates' Library, who furnished the names for the present publication.

The names of Gordons who were Writers to the Signet are taken from Dr. T. G. Law's History of the Society of Writers to Her Majesty's Signet, with a list of Members of the Society from 1594 to 1890. Edinburgh, 1890.
