P R E F A C E .

THE compiler is only too well aware of the incompleteness which marks several parts of the following Genealogy. Being unable, however, at present, to supply these deficiencies, he has decided to have it published, knowing that when printed the information it contains is less liable to be lost, and hoping that some one fitted for the task may be led to prepare a more extended account of the family. The abbreviations which occur are those used in genealogical works, and need no explanation. The figure at the right of the Christian name denotes the generation; e. g. Moses<sup>3</sup> shows that the grandson of George Little is referred to, and he is thus distinguished from his father and his son, who both had the same name. In order to avoid confusion it has sometimes been necessary to add the names of a person's father and grandfather, which are enclosed in brackets. The colored plate of the coat of arms is copied from an old painting belonging to the estate of the late Miss Hannah Little of Newburyport, which has been in the possession of her family for over a hundred years. The exact authority for the use of these "arms" is not known, but Guillim gives two or more families of the name of Little bearing the Saltier (or St. Andrew's cross) on the shield, though of different tinctures, in one of which they are simply reversed. In the Appendix, at the close of the Genealogy, a few letters have been printed, which it is thought may be of interest to members of the family.

The facts contained in the following pages have been gathered from so many sources that it is hardly possible to mention all ; but the writer is under special obligations to Messrs. William and Eben Little of Newbury, Dr. J. L. Hale of Boston, Benjamin Hale, Esq. of Newburyport, and Mr. C. J. Little of Cambridge.

George Little.

GEORGE LITTLE, the founder of the Newbury family of that name, came from Unicorn Street, near London Bridge, to Newbury, Massachusetts, in 1640. Though a young man, he appears to have been quite wealthy for those times, and made extensive purchases of lands. The farms of his selection are said to contain some of the finest land in the town, and have, with hardly an exception, remained in the hands of his direct descendants to the present time. He must have sustained a high reputation for ability and honesty, for we find him appointed the executor of several estates. In the prolonged ecclesiastical dispute which divided the church at Newbury for so many years he upheld the side of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Parker, but soon after the settling of the difficulties joined the first Baptist Church in Boston, and in 1682 became one of the members of a small church of the same denomination in his own town. Though not an educated man, he was remarkable for his strength of mind as well as of body. The following letter, written to him by an acquaintance, is appended as an example of the correspondence of that day, and more particularly to show the way in which his surname was frequently spelled : —

Dear & loving brother littell, in gospell bonds be my hartly love rememered unto you, and unto your wife though unto me unknown, & hoping you are in helth as I being att this wrighting hereof. blessed be the Lord, hartily giving you thanks for your kind entertainment when I was last at your house. ## Rev. Daniel Little.

EV. DANIEL LITTLE of Wells, one of the most eminent and influential of the clergymen in Maine during the last century, was born in Newburyport July 18, 1724. Though he never enjoyed the advantages of a collegiate education, his mental powers were strengthened and trained by several years of teaching, and the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him in 1766 by Harvard College. He studied theology with Rev. Joseph Moody of York, and in March of 1751 he was ordained pastor of the second parish in Wells, a position which he occupied until his death, over fifty years later. His pastoral duties were faithfully and successfully performed. He was deeply interested in the temporal as well as spiritual welfare of his parishioners, and was always employed in devising some means for its promotion. None but the kindest feelings were exercised towards him by his people during the remarkably long term of years he was their minister.

In 1772 he was appointed for missionary service in the eastern portion of the District of Maine. This led, during the course of the following years, to a series of missionary tours in that region, which were in the highest degree arduous. The success which attended his efforts, however, was fully sufficient to justify them, and he came to be styled the Apostle of the East. On one occasion he was sent especially to the Indians on the Penobscot, and established a school for them, which was quite successful until the interference of the Catholic priests, who discouraged the undertaking. At this time he took an opportunity to learn the language, and afterwards prepared a full vocabulary. Throughout his life he manifested much interest in the education of the young, and though then far advanced in years, was selected as one of the trustees of Bowdoin College at its establishment. He died suddenly of paralysis, on the 5th of December, 1801, leaving several children and grandchildren. One of the latter, Charles, afterwards became the leading partner in the firm of Little, Brown, & Co., Boston.

Colonel Moses Little.

COLONEL MOSES LITTLE was a man remarkable for his energy of body as well as of mind. His younger years were devoted to the settling of wild lands in the neighboring provinces. About 1750, in company with one or two others, he obtained from Governor Benning Wentworth a large grant of the unoccupied crown lands lying within the present limits of Vermont. A few years later he purchased a large interest in the township of Apthorp, New Hampshire, which was afterwards divided, one town being named in his honor Littleton, and the other Dalton, from his townsman, Hon. Tristram Dalton. His possessions in this region were increased to a great extent by subsequent purchases. In the mean time, together with Major Samuel Gerrish and Colonel Jonathan Bagley, he acted as agent for the proprietors of Bakerstown, and succeeded in obtaining for them from the General Court of Massachusetts a township of land in Maine in lieu of the one granted in 1736, which was subsequently decided to be within the borders of New Hampshire. By purchasing from time to time the rights of the original proprietors he became the owner of the greater part of the grant, which comprised a large and valuable portion of what is now Androscoggin County. In 1768 the Pejepscot Company granted him and Colonel Bagley a still larger tract in the same county, but on the eastern side of the Androscoggin, on condition that they would settle fifty families there before June 1, 1774, and build certain roads. The conditions, we believe, were only partially fulfilled, and the amount of land actually deeded was somewhat diminished in consequence.

The war of the Revolution found Colonel Little over fifty years of age, but as active and earnest in the defence of his country's liberties as the youngest. Upon the first tidings of the encounter at Lexington he raised a company and marched to the American headquarters at Cambridge. At the battle of Bunker Hill he was in command of a regiment, led his men across Charlestown Neck under a terrible fire from the British batteries and ships of war, and arrived at the scene of action just before the third and final charge of the enemy. He assisted in covering the retreat from the hill. Though unwounded, he had several narrow escapes, men on each side of him being killed, and his clothes bespattered with blood. Called home in August to attend the funeral of two of his children, he rejoined his command after an absence of only two days. He went with the army to New York after the evacuation of Boston, and was present at the disastrous engagement on Long Island. For a month or two subsequently he was intrusted with the command of an encampment at Peekskill, but joined his commander-in-chief in time to take part in the battles of Trenton and Princeton. Early in 1777 he was obliged, on account of ill health, to return home, and two years later, for the same reason, to decline the command of a naval armament raised by the Commonwealth to dislodge the enemy from their position on the Penobscot. He lost his speech in 1781 by a stroke of paralysis. He was characterized by imperturbable self-possession, and an acute knowledge of human nature. Early in the war he became acquainted with Washington, who held him in high esteem, and often relied upon his judgment. An autograph letter from the latter, together with the sword worn at the battle of Bunker Hill, and other relics, are still in the possession of his descendants at Newbury.

RISTRAM DALTON, son of Capt. Michael Dalton and Mary Little, was born in Newburyport, 28 May, 1738, and graduated at Harvard University at the early age of 17.

He studied law as an accomplishment, the fortune which he inherited from his father not requiring him to practise it as a profession, and he took a deep interest in the cultivation of a large landed estate in what is now the town of West Newbury. Washington, John Adams, Louis Philippe, Talleyrand, and other distinguished guests partook of his hospitalities. As eminent for piety as he was for mental endowments, the Episcopal Church, of which he was a warden, shared in his generous liberality. He was a Representative, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and a Senator in the Legislature of Massachusetts, and a Senator of the United States in the first Congress after the adoption of the Federal Constitution. When Washington City was founded Mr. Dalton invested his entire fortune in lands there, and lost it by the mismanagement of a business agent. At the same time a vessel which was freighted with his furniture and valuable library was lost on her voyage from Newburyport to Washington, and he thus found himself, after having lived sixty years in affluence, penniless. Several offices of profit and honor were immediately tendered him by the government, and he accepted the Surveyorship of Boston. He died in Boston 30 May, 1817, and his remains were taken to Newburyport, where they were interred in the burial-ground of St. Paul's Church.

VII. Jacob, born 19 March, 1797, in Newburyport, Mass. He was one of the most prominent of New York brokers.

HRIFT, forecast, and industry distinguished his ancestry, and the archives of the family are stored with precious relics of the patriotism of the founders of the line. His father, Jacob Little, was a man of large wealth and distinction. But disaster, that comes sooner or later to nearly every mercantile house, swept away his property, and the war of 1812 nearly completed his financial ruin.

Jacob inherited from his ancestry a sound constitution, good principles, and indomitable energy. His father as a merchant had transacted business with the leading merchants, and among them was well acquainted with the renowned Jacob Barker, and had no difficulty in securing a place for his son in Mr. Barker's counting-house. In 1817 he entered Mr. Barker's service, and at once became a favorite with that shrewd and successful merchant. Having remained here five years and completed his apprenticeship, he in 1822 selected a small basement office on Wall Street, and began business on his own account as an exchange specie broker. During the next twelve years — working eighteen hours a day in his little office — he promptly and shrewdly executed all orders ; and his success was due no less to his integrity than to his talent.

In 1834 Mr. Little stood at the head of the leading financiers and bankers of the city. He controlled large amounts of stock and money, and was known as the "Napoleon of the board." But, however wise or prudent, shrewd or gifted with forecast a man may be, however large or well invested his fortune, if he is a speculator he cannot be sure that commercial disaster will not overtake him. Mr. Little did not escape. Thrice he was carried down, but he was never dishonored. He recovered himself, and paid up his contracts in full ; on his first suspension, though legally free from liability, he disbursed nearly $ 1,000,000, paying every creditor in full with interest ; so that it was a common saying among moneyed men, that Jacob Little's suspended paper was better than the checks of most merchants. He closed his long career without a stain upon his mercantile reputation.

He died 28 March, 1865, leaving a widow and one son. The news of his death startled the great city. Merchants congregated to do him honor. Resolutions of enduring respect were adopted, and the Stock Board adjourned to attend his funeral. He was borne to his burial (in Greenwood Cemetery) with all honor.

COL. JOSIAH<sup>5</sup> [Moses<sup>4</sup> Moses<sup>3</sup>] married, 23 Nov., 1770, Sarah, daughter of Edward Toppan of Newbury. She was born 27 May, 1748, and died 11 Oct., 1823.

Col. Josiah Little, like his father, was a man of wonderful energy and activity. Every year, until he was nearly eighty, it was his custom to visit his lands in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, driving over the rough roads alone, even after he had lost one hand by a premature explosion while overseeing the blasting of a passage through some rapids on the Androscoggin. He had charge of his father's real estate for many years, and early gained an acquaintance with the worth of wild lands, which was of great service to him. He was also engaged to a considerable extent in shipping. At his death his fortune was valued at several hundred thousand dollars. As the agent of the Pejepscot Company, whose claims were not very readily acknowledged, he was often brought into unfriendly relations with the squatters, who were numerous in Maine at that time, and several adventures of his are handed down by tradition, laughable enough, were it not that his life was oftentimes really endangered. His influence and popularity were almost unlimited in his native town of Newbury, which he represented in the General Court for nearly thirty years in succession. His children were : —

- I. Michael, born 14 March, 1772 ; died 16 March, 1830.
- II. Edward, born 12 March, 1773 ; died 21 Sept., 1849.

Michael<sup>6</sup> graduated at Dartmouth, 1792 ; married, 19 Oct., 1800; Sarah Stover, who died 28 July, 1801. His second wife, Elizabeth Ricker of Somersworth, whom he married Feb., 1802, survived him, dying 18 March, 1864, in her 88th year. He had but one child : —

- I. Josiah Stover, born 9 July, 1801 ; died 2 April, 1862.

ON. JOSIAH STOVER<sup>7</sup> graduated at Bowdoin, at the head of the celebrated class of 1825. He was President of the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad, and Speaker of the Maine House of Representatives for several years. He married Abby Chamberlain Sept., 1833. Their only child was:—

I. Abby Isabella, born 27 Nov., 1834.

Abby Isabella<sup>8</sup> was married to Col. Charles Benjamin Merrill of Portland, 24 Sept., 1856. Col. Merrill was born April, 1827, graduated at Bowdoin in the class of 1847, and at Harvard Law School in 1849. He studied and practised law in Portland for several years. In July, 1862, he was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel of the 17th Maine, and served with distinction in the late war, being a participant in the battles of Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Orange Grove, and Chancellorsville, where he was particularly complimented for his valuable services. Their children are:—

He studied law in the office of Judge Parsons in Newburyport ; practised his profession for several years with considerable success ; was county attorney and publisher of law reports for the Commonwealth. After the destructive fire of 1811, by which he lost nearly all of his property, he removed to Portland, and in 1826 to Auburn, where he continued to reside during the remainder of his life. The owner by inheritance of the larger part of the surrounding territory, he had great influence in directing and promoting the growth of the place. It is needless to say that this power was always exerted in the right direction. One of his first acts was to establish and endow an academy, which continued in successful operation for forty years, and attained a high reputation throughout the State. After the rise of the high-school system the grounds and a portion of its funds were transferred by the trustees to the town, which now maintains an Edward Little High School, and is soon to erect a statue in his honor. His children are:—

- I. Thomas Brown, born 4 Nov., 1799; died 7 March, 1854.

OSIAH L. HALE entered the office of the Merchants Insurance Co. of Boston at the age of 18, where his fidelity and courteous manners soon won him promotion. In 1825 he became Secretary of the Washington Marine Insurance Co.; and in 1828 — on the opening of a branch office — he went to New York as its manager. After a year of marked success in this position, he joined with the late Walter R. Jones in establishing the Atlantic Insurance Co. of New York. To do this he had to raise $ 150,000 of the capital stock ; and his Boston friends proved their confidence in his character and ability by subscriptions to twice that amount.

In this position he remained for 25 years, in which time the company became the leading marine insurance company in the country. He was compelled by continued ill health to resign his office in 1854. In the Resolutions of respect and regret then adopted the Trustees refer to the company as “established essentially through (his) active instrumentality, and (as having) under his administration enjoyed a course of uninterrupted success.”

Mr. Hale held with an intelligent and firm conviction the great doctrines of grace ; but without bigotry or sectarianism. The Bible was his daily companion, and doing good his constant delight.

NEWBURY PORT, June 26th, 1775.

COL. MOSES LITTLE, Cambridge.

IR :

Prior to even business I must congratulate you on your late good Fortune in the Battle in Charlestown, and the Character your first military Action has obtained. It might look like Flattery to express my Sentiments on the occasion, therefore defer it till I see you, which I hope will be in due Season.

I cannot help dropping one Hint that occurs to my Mind on the Method of securing your Entrenchments, that is, whether they would not puzzle the Enemy in a near Approach if some of the young Locusts & Cedar Trees in the neighborhood were laid at a proper Distance without the Entrenchments to scratch the Shins of the Regulars, and impede their Advance. But this I submit, as being one of the least in Military Knowledge.

Will you permit me to recommend to your very particular attention Stephen Jenkins, in Perkins Company, who was not used well in his late Appointment. I think him very deserving and doubt not you'll find him so. If any Opportunity to advance him it will oblige many of his Friends here who are worthy. But this I do not ask if you find him not worthy, nor would I ask it if I thought him so.

You have my best & hearty Wishes for Health & Preservation. May the God of Armies shield you in the Day of Battle and return you safe to your Friends crowned with Honors.

I am

Your particular Friend

Excuse Haste.

& most hble Serv.

TRISTRAM DALTON.

NEWBURYPORT [No date].

MOSES LITTLE, ESQ.

SIR, — Agreeably to your request and as far as my memory will serve I will relate my experience in the regiment under the command of your late father in June, 1775. On the morning previous to the engagement of Bunker Hill those of our regiment that were together, were ordered to parade on the common at Cambridge. About 12 o'clock Col. Little came on horseback and ordered us to march to the hill. When we got to Charlestown neck the enemy were throwing shells and firing from their ships and floating batteries to prevent our passing. The Col. rode ahead and ordered us to follow, single file. A cannon ball went between us as we passed and struck a large stone. We marched to the rail fence on the hill and then halted a little while. A part of our Reg't went to the fort and engaged and checked the enemy there twice. The third time he got in among us and we ran out of the fort down hill as fast as we could. While running to the other hill I found that I had one or two cartridges and stopped to use them. While priming a ball struck my right arm above the elbow. I loaded my gun but found no strength in my right arm, then took my gun in my left hand and ran again. In the fort the person on my left was shot down. After we got off we collected our company together and found 9 wounded and 2 missing, viz. Samuel Nelson killed, Jonathan Norton wounded and carried into Boston (where he died). Wounded, Joseph Whittemore, Amos Pearson, Isaac Howard, Joseph Mitchel, William Pray, Aaron Davis, Patrick Harrington, William Elliot, and Daniel Lane.

From your most obt. servant,

AMOS PEARSON.

[Extract from a letter dated Newburyport, 21 June, 1775. Probably written by John Bromfield to Jeremiah Powell. Taken from Massachusetts Historical Society's Proceeding, 1869-1871.]

Mr. Little of Turkey Hill (who I have heard is lately made a colonel) show'd great courage and marched with those under his command, thro' two regiments of our men who were looking on at a distance but were afraid to advance. he set them an example, it seems they did not chuse to follow — he proceeded till he found our people retreating from the Hill being overpowered by numbers. He cover'd their retreat and got off without much loss. He narrowly escaped with his life, as two men were kill'd one on each side of him and he came to the camp all bespattered with blood.
