PREFACE.

NOTWITHSTANDING all the care that has been spent on the preparation of this work, the Author cannot say that he is satisfied. Though he has done all in his power to collect information relating to the history of each person mentioned, the book must appear to his readers, as it appears to himself, defective in execution and meagre in detail. But had he made perfection his standard it would never have been printed. It is now given to the members of the Kennedy family, in the hope that it may preserve a lively interest in their past history.

The original design was to collect the names of the descendants of William Kennedy and his wife Mary Henderson—she was sometimes called Marian—from the time of their settlement in Bucks County, in 1730, with the view of placing the manuscript in some library, for safe keeping and future reference; but it has been thought best to accede to the request of many members of the family, to have it published for their use.

With the view of keeping the work within reasonable size, and in order to make it practically useful, it has been found necessary to mention only, and that in a very brief way, the main or essential facts in each person's history, viz., the birth, marriage, number of children, profession or business, religion, politics, and residence. This rule has been varied from, in a few instances, in order to introduce the biography of some men of historic interest. It is regretted that, in some instances, correspondents have furnished only the names of the members of their family, without any connecting history.

HISTORICAL.

KENNEDY—Celtic, CEANNA-THIGHE—meaning, it is said, the head of a sept or clan. The family descend from the ancient Earls of Carrick, in Ayrshire, and seem to have changed their name from Carrick to Kennedy in the fourteenth century. The chief was Kennedy of Dunewe, afterwards Earl of Cassilis (now Marquis of Ailsa). In the fifteenth century the power of this great house, in the shires of Ayr and Galloway, was set forth in a popular rhyme:—

“By Wigton and the town of Ayre,
Port Patrick and the Cruives o’ Cree,
Nae man need think for to bide there,
Unless he court wi’ Kennedie.”

The foregoing is from the “Patronymica Britannica,” by Mark Anthony Lower. “Cruives is a trap made of sticks, placed in a river to catch salmon and other fish.” Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is the present Earl of Carrick. He has travelled on the Continent by that title.

The following is from Arthur’s “Etymological Dictionary of Family and Christian Names :”—

“KENNEDY—from the Gallic or Celtic words Kean-na-ty—the head of the house, or chief of the clan. CEANNAIDE signifies also a shopkeeper, a merchant.”

“KENNEDY, the chief of the clan. Duncan de Carrick, living in 1153, was father of Nichol de Carrick, whose son, Roland de Carrick, tem. Alexander III., took the name of Kennedy, and was the ancestor of the family.”

A charter of Nigel, Earl of Carrick, to Roland de Carrick and his heirs, of the chieftainship of his clan; and the right of leading them, under the chief, was confirmed in 1241, and reconfirmed by Robert II. Roland de Carrick was killed in the Holy War; probably he commanded the military expedition organized in 1268, by Adam, Earl of Carrick, against the Saracens. Mention is made that a tract of land was confirmed to him by Alexander III., who reigned from 1249 to 1286.

Robert de Bruce, Lord of Annandale, was married, in 1271, to Martha Margaret, daughter of the Earl of Carrick, and his sole heiress; and in her own right, Countess of Carrick, and by virtue of her right, de Bruce became Earl of Carrick. She was the ward of Alexander III., and he was so much opposed to the marriage that he deprived her of her estate, but afterwards he restored it. Their eldest son, Robert the Bruce, was born March 21, 1272. By the resignation of his father he became Earl of Carrick in 1293. He was crowned King of Scotland, at Seone, March 27, 1306. He carried on an active war against England for twenty-three years. Amongst other adventures, in 1307 he attacked his patrimonial castle of Carrick, at midnight, and drove the English soldiers out of it. Finally, England, in the year 1328, renounced her claim to the crown of Scotland, and on the 9th of July, the following year, the Bruce died. His son David, in 1328, when only four years old, was married to Jane, sister of Edward of England. He ascended the throne as David II., on the death of his father, in 1329; crowned at Seoue, November 14, 1331. After many vicissitudes, he died in 1371, without issue.

Walter Steward married Margery, King Robert the Bruce's only daughter by his first wife. Robert Steward, their son, to whom the crown was entailed, by authority of the Scotch Parliament, in default of male issue by David, was crowned King of Scotland in 1371. He was known as Robert II., and was the first of the Stuart dynasty; his son succeeded him as Robert III. This name was originally written Steward, then Stewart. Queen Mary, after her return from France, was the first to write it Stuart.

Edward Bruce, another son of Martha Margaret, Countess of Carrick, was crowned King of Ireland in 1316, and killed on the battle-field in 1318. All the other children of the countess, except Mary, were executed by the English government.

A charter of David II. to John MacKennedy (Mac signifies son of), the captain of Clan Muntereaduff, authorizes "James Kennedy, who had married Mary Stewart (the daughter of King Robert III., who was the second monarch of the Stuart dynasty), and heirs male, to exercise the captainship, head, and commandment of his kin."

Previous to the fourteenth century surnames were not known in Scotland. Individuals were distinguished by an affix to their Christian name, indicating some peculiarity of their personal appearance, their business, trade, district or clan to which they belonged. Roland de Carrick probably signifies Roland of the District or Earldom of Carrick. The hereditary title or office of Kennedy was conferred on him during the thirteenth century, by the highest lawful authority of the land.

The name of John MacKennedy merely signifies John the son of Kennedy. During the early part of the fourteenth century, the descendants of Roland de Carrick adopted Kennedy as a surname, consequently all the numerous Kennedys of the present day descended from the Ayrshire family, who are lawfully entitled to the name, are his lineal descendants. This explanation will make clear the apparent inconsistency between the quotations from Mark Anthony Lower and C. S. Sims.

We have not been able to trace the exact relationship between the Countess of Carriek, her son, King Robert the Bruce, and the Kennedys; we therefore have compiled the facts relating thereto, as they appear in Scotch history, and without comment will leave the readers free to form their own judgment.

The name of O'Cinnidh appears in Irish history during the tenth century. He was Regent of Munster. Anglieized Kennedy, it signifies a nation or kind. His descendants succeeded to the throne, and were very prominent people, but they all took different names, and the name of Kennedy, for a time, became extinct in Ireland; but after a lapse of several centuries it was revived, as a surname. As they do not seem to have been connected with the Ayrshire family of Kennedys, we dispose of the subject with this brief notice.

James Kennedy, Archbishop of St. Andrews, whose mother was the aunt of King James II. of Scotland, is said to have been one of the most powerful and influential statesmen of Scotland of his time. Through his influence Henry of England, after his misfortunes, was received and protected by Scotland.

For the purpose of refreshing the memory it seems proper that we should introduce, although in a very brief way, a few important facts connected with the Scotch history of the sixteenth century, in order to show the position of the Kennedy family during the religious and political trials of that period. The Kennedys early threw their influence in favor of the Reformed Religion. At first they were somewhat divided; but as early as 1538, Alexander Kennedy, of Ayr, a finely-educated young gentleman, only eighteen years old, a poet, was burned at the stake, in Glasgow, for a poetical satire against the Franciscan Friars.

John Knox was born 1505; he was educated for the priesthood; professed himself a Protestant in 1542. This same year the Scotch Parliament authorized the reading of the Scriptures in the vulgar languages. The Confession of Faith of the Reformers was adopted in 1560.

The Scotch Parliament abolished the Papal jurisdiction, and prohibited the celebration of the mass, August 24, 1560. The third violation of the law, in celebrating the mass, was punishable by death.

Gilbert Kennedy, Earl of Cassilis, was one of the ambassadors sent to negotiate the marriage of Queen Mary to the Dauphin of France. The earl died while in Paris.

Queen Mary returned to Scotland in 1561, very soon after the death of her first husband, the King of France. She was executed February 7, 1587. Jane Kennedy and Mistress Curle were the only two of her maids of honor who were permitted to attend the queen to the scaffold.

QUINTON KENNEDY.

Quinton Kennedy, the uncle of the Earl of Cassilis, and Abbot of Crossraguel, who is very highly spoken of for his intellectual and moral character, in 1559 challenged Wallock to a discussion on the Sacrifice of the Mass. The challenge was accepted. Kennedy claimed that they should use, as authority, the ancient doctors' interpretation of the Scriptures, which the other party would not agree to, and thus ended the matter.

On the 28th of September, 1562, a formal agreement was signed by John Knox and Quinton Kennedy, for a written argument on the Sacrifice of the Mass. The discussion was in the town of Mabole. In addition to the notaries to record the proceedings there were admitted, as spectators for each side, forty noblemen and persons of distinction. The place was not sufficient for the comfortable accommodation of so large a company. The argument, however, was continued for three days, but it proved uninteresting to the spectators, and, through the influence of the Earl of Cassilis, it was abandoned as being unprofitable. Each party claimed the victory, and each failed in accomplishing their expressed desire to have it renewed at a different time and place.

Quinton Kennedy died in August, 1564; and it is said that after his death he was canonized as a saint. His name, however, does not appear at Rome amongst the saints, but the subject of this debate is there canonized.

A SINGULAR INCIDENT, JUNE 26, 1629.

The lightning entered a room in Castle Kennedy, the seat of the Earl of Cassilis, in Ayrshire, where several children, with their dogs, were playing at the time; the dogs were killed, but the children escaped without injury.

THE KENNEDYS WERE LOWLANDERS.

None of the lowland clans had a distinctive tartan, and the kilts were not worn by the men; but they often clothed their children in this beautiful dress.

KENNEDYS IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

The Kennedys, though Protestants, were not in favor of the high-handed political measures of the seventeenth century. They were opposed to the decapitation of King Charles I. (January 30, 1649), and they gave only a passive submission to the administration of Oliver Cromwell.

There was a joint Commission of Seven appointed by the Estates and Kirk of Scotland, who set sail on the 17th of March, 1649, for the Hague, to present to the Prince of Wales a proposition, that if he would sign the Covenant, and agree to adopt the Presbyterian form of worship, that Scotland would acknowledge him as their lawful sovereign. They arrived on the 26th of March, and on the 19th of May Charles declined to sign the document presented; but on his arrival in Scotland, on the 23d of June, and before he landed, he signed what is known as the Covenant.

The distinguished nobleman, John Kennedy, the Earl of Cassilis, who was also an influential ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church, was appointed by both parties, and, armed with his double commission, he was the acknowledged "chief person" in bringing about the restoration of King Charles II.

The Kennedys' uncompromising support of Presbyterianism, and love of law and order, rendered them liable to be crushed between the two conflicting powers of Charles II. and Cromwell. Some of them went to Holland, and many of them removed from Ayrshire to the North of Ireland, and from thence to America.

There was a commission appointed by Cromwell, in 1652, for the purpose of appraising the property of two hundred and sixty prominent Scots, residing in Ulster, Ireland, with the view of giving them a corresponding value in land at other parts of Ireland, to be occupied by them, and in this way to neutralize their influence. Amongst their names we find the following:—Quinton Kennedy, David Kennedy, Lieut. Col. Robert Kennedy, Anthony Kennedy, and Fergus Kennedy. This order was not executed, but we find that Lieut. Col. Robert Kennedy was removed the next year.

BATTLE OF BOTHWELL BRIDGE.

Sir Archibald Kennedy, Laird of Culzen, captain of the militia troops in 1685, was charged with great cruelty, in arresting and bringing to judgment the rebellious Covenanters, after their disastrous defeat at Bothwell bridge, in 1679.

CHAIN OF THE KENNEDYS FROM SCOTLAND TO IRELAND, AND THENCE TO AMERICA.

John Kennedy, sixth Earl of Cassilis, was one of the three Scotch noblemen appointed to act as lay assessors to the Westminster Assembly, in 1643. He never, however, attended. His brother, Col. Gilbert Kennedy, who was with Cromwell at the battle of Marston Moor, had two sons who were Presbyterian ministers—Thomas and Gilbert. Rev. Thomas Kennedy, the eldest, was chaplain to Gen. Munro, who came to Ireland with his army in 1642. Mr. Kennedy afterwards settled in Carland. He refused to conform—that is, to use the prescribed formula for public worship—and was imprisoned in Dungannon for several years, by the order of the Primate of Armagh. During his long imprisonment his wife was not allowed to see him, or even write to him. She, however, continued daily to bring him food and change of linen, which she gave to the jailer, to be handed to him. After the release of her husband, she learned from him that the jailer had appropriated her presents to his own use. Some years after this the jailer, being in want, applied to Mrs. Kennedy for food; instead of refusing him, she filled his bag with meal, saying, In this way I have my revenge. Mr. Kennedy's trials were so great that he thought at one time of removing to America, but his death, in 1714, ended all his troubles. Two of his sons, Thomas and John, were Presbyterian ministers.

It is believed that Robert and William Kennedy, the brothers who emigrated from Ireland and settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, in 1730, were the descendants of Col. Gilbert Kennedy, probably his eldest son Thomas's sons or grandsons. We are led to believe that the founders of the family in America were influenced in the choice of their location, in order to enjoy the society of their cousin, Mrs. Catherine Kennedy Tennent, the wife of Rev. William Tennent, who had settled in Bucks County two years before their arrival.

REV. GILBERT KENNEDY.

The youngest son of Col. Gilbert Kennedy was ordained by the Presbyterian Church as a minister of Girvan, in Ayrshire, in 1651. He was ejected from the church in 1662, for nonconformity. He continued to preach in the glens by starlight, where the children of the neighborhood were brought to him to be baptized. He was compelled finally to flee from Scotland to Holland; from there he returned to Ireland in 1668, and settled in Dundonald, near Belfast, where he died, February 6, 1688, and was buried in the aisle of the church. He had a son named Gilbert, who was ordained a minister of Tullylish in 1704; also a daughter, Catherine, who was married May 15, 1702, to a student of theology, named William Tennent. Mr. Tennent was ordained a deacon of the Episcopal Church, July, 1704, and a priest, September 22, 1706. In 1716 Mr. Tennent left Ireland with his family for America. In 1718 he made a written application to the Presbyterian Synod of Philadelphia, stating his reasons for desiring to leave the Episcopal Church and to join the Presbyterian. The statement being satisfactory, he was received; and for several years he preached in the neighborhood of Philadelphia and New York. In 1726 he was called to the Presbyterian church on the Neshaminy, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. In 1728 he built the celebrated Log College, on a tract of fifty acres of ground adjoining his house. This land was presented to him by his cousin, James Logan, secretary for William Penn. At this period this was the only place in America, west of the New England States, where a young man could receive a classical and theological education, to properly fit him for the ministry.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church placed such value on the association that in 1811, when they were about to establish a more perfect system of education, many advocated placing the proposed new colleges on the same ground; others advocated Chambersburg, Pennsylvania; but finally it was concluded to place them at Princeton, New Jersey.

The attentive reader will notice that the Kennedys were positive characters, and men of position and influence. There seems to have been a very close connection between them and the early Reformation in Scotland; the Westminster Assembly; the establishing of Presbyterianism, not only in the North of Ireland but also in America; and up to the time of writing, 1880, the family have retained their loyalty to the Presbyterian Church, with few exceptions, and they generally the result of marriages with persons belonging to other denominations.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

(Letter A.)—ROBERT KENNEDY emigrated from the North of Ireland, in company with his younger brother William, and settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, in 1730. He died March 26, 1776, in his eighty-third year. His wife died June 3, 1773, aged 73. They are buried at the Stewart Burying Ground, near Bunker Hill, Tinnicum Township, Bucks County.

They had one son, William Kennedy, a major in the Revolutionary Army. He was killed by some outlaws and Tories, named Doanes, in September, 1783, in the fortieth year of his age. He left five children.

JOHN MCCALLA KENNEDY has been a very active and useful man. Early in life he engaged in a successful shipping business. For some years he has been an influential member of manufacturing and railroad corporations, and for many years a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Mr. Kennedy has commanded the respect of the community, and his prolonged life has been rewarded by the accumulation of a sufficiency of this world's goods to relieve him, in his old age, from the cares of a continued business life. His large family of children reside in or near Philadelphia, and occupy useful and respectable positions in society.

(No. 1.)—WILLIAM KENNEDY was born in Londonderry, Ireland, not far from Belfast, in 1695. He married Miss Mary Henderson; she was sometimes called by the synonymous Scotch name, Marian.

Their first son, Thomas, was about a year old when Mr. Kennedy removed his family from Ireland, in 1730, and, in connection with his older brother, Robert, settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where he resided until the time of his death, in 1777; his remains are buried in this county. The names of their children can be found on the chart.

The name of Henderson frequently appears in Scotch history. A man by the name of Henderson read prayers, from the formula written by John Knox, at the High Church of St. Giles, at eight o'clock in the morning of the Sabbath on which the unfortunate attempt was made, a few hours thereafter, in the same church, to introduce the prescribed formula for public worship, that brought on the celebrated riot that, in its results, proved so unfortunate for the Stuart dynasty.

Rev. Alexander Henderson was the leading delegate from Scotland to the Westminster Assembly, and the principal author of the Assembly's Catechism.

(No. 3.)—JAMES KENNEDY, son of William and Mary, or Marian Kennedy, as she was sometimes called, was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, in 1730, probably very soon after his parents arrived in America. He was married in 1761 to Jane Maxwell, daughter of John Maxwell, and sister of Gen. Maxwell of the Revolutionary Army. At the time of their marriage she was in her nineteenth year. She died September 7, 1784, and was buried in Bucks County. The names of their twelve children are on the connected chart. Afterwards, Mr. Kennedy married Miss Jane Macalla; there was not any issue by this marriage, and they both died October, 1799, and were buried in the same grave, at Pequea, about six miles from the Gap, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. In 1788 Mr. Kennedy purchased a farm of 480 acres, at the Gap, Lancaster County. The title to this property has passed by bequest, and at the time of writing, 1880, part of it is owned and cultivated by his grandson, Sylvester Kennedy; the balance of it is owned by his great-great-granddaughter, Mrs. Emma Kennedy Lewis, of Brooklyn, New York. This farm will still be favorably noticed by the traveller on the Pennsylvania Railroad, when at a point near the west entrance of the Gap, and opposite Belle Vue Presbyterian Church, looking north.

The beautiful surroundings, for a distance of five miles, are brought directly in view, and richly reward the traveller's observation. Small farms of one hundred acres, in high state of cultivation, dotted with handsome dwellings, present the appearance of adorned pleasure grounds surrounding luxuriant country seats.

Mr. Kennedy brought up all of his children in the Presbyterian faith. It was the custom for good people, in those days, to consecrate one of their sons to the service of the Lord; with this object in view he gave his son Robert the best classical education that the country at that time would admit of, and in due time he entered the ministry. An account of his useful life can be found in another part of this book.

(No. 11.)—WILLIAM KENNEDY, son of James and Jane Maxwell Kennedy, was born in 1766. He died at Easton, Pennsylvania, in 1850. On January 28, 1798, he married Sarah Stewart; they had eight children. (See chart.)

When only fifteen years old, Mr. Kennedy offered his services to the Continental Government, and served as an aid to his uncle, Gen. Maxwell. In politics he was a Democrat, and represented the counties of Sussex and Warren in the Legislature of New Jersey for several successive sessions, presiding with honor and dignity over the upper house. In the same counties he served for many years as judge of the courts. A man of much natural ability, he possessed, throughout his long course of public life, a wide influence in that section of the State.

His lively sympathy led him to take an active part in relieving the sufferings occasioned by the war of 1812.

In religion a Presbyterian, he was an elder in the church at Greenwich.

(No. 17.)—ROBERT KENNEDY, son of James and Jane Maxwell Kennedy, was born at the Gap, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, July 4, 1778. He died at the Welsh Run, Franklin County, October 31, 1843, and was buried at the Red Church, Greencastle.

Mr. Kennedy received his elementary and classical education at a school not far from his father's, taught by Mr. Grier; his collegiate course he received at Dickinson College, Carlisle, where he graduated with honor, September 20, 1797. He made a profession of religion at the Pequea Presbyterian Church, soon after leaving college. He commenced the study of theology with the Rev. Nathaniel Sample, then pastor of Lancaster and Middle Octorara Presbyterian Churches, on the 20th of August, 1799. He was licensed to preach by the New Castle Presbytery, and appointed to supply the pulpit at Octorara half of his time. On the 9th of October, 1802, he accepted a call to East and Lower West Conococheague Presbyterian Churches, since known as Greencastle and Welsh Run; and on the 13th of August, 1803, he was ordained. He continued to preach here until the 9th of April, 1816, when he removed to Cumberland, Maryland, to take charge of a church and a classical seminary. He remained here until 1825, when he returned to his farm at the Welsh Run. He taught a classical school at Mercersburg, and preached half of his time at the Welsh Run, and the other half at some of the surrounding churches.

Mr. Kennedy was a very industrious, practical man, and supplemented his salary with the proceeds of his school, and his farm of about 400 acres of rich land. He was married February 17, 1801, to Jane Herron, daughter of John Herron, and sister of the late Rev. Francis Herron, D.D., of Pittsburg. She died May 31, 1803. On June 5, 1806, he was married to Mary Davidson, daughter of Elias and Agnes McDowell Davidson, of Greencastle. Miss Davidson was born August 6, 1785, and died March 14, 1845. The names of their children are on the chart.

Mr. Kennedy was a sound theologian, and was ranked as a good preacher by the competent judges of Carlisle Presbytery. He was a fine classical scholar. He wrote with good taste, and expressed his views with great clearness.

The difficulties in the Presbyterian Church commenced in Carlisle Presbytery. Mr. Kennedy was sorely vexed at the approaching troubles, and threw himself into the breach, and used all his influence and power to prevent the division of the church. At the meeting of the Synod of Philadelphia, at Gettysburg, in 1834 (see October number, 1860, of Presbyterian Quarterly Review, published in Philadelphia; also, Men of Mark of Cumberland Valley), he made a speech in opposition to the Act and Testimony, which was very much admired for its condensed wit, argument, and persuasion; but the Presbyterian ship had drifted too far into the rapids to prevent her plunging over the falls. It is only necessary to add the almost-prophetic extract of a document signed by Mr. Kennedy:—"We cannot but hope that the time will come when we will again be united on the basis of our excellent Constitution." (See Harrisburg Presbytery, Pastoral Letter, 1840.) A hope which was fulfilled about thirty years after his death.

Mr. Kennedy's memory was held in such esteem at the Welsh Run that the trustees have had the chartered name of the church changed to the Robert Kennedy Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Kennedy was a Federalist, afterwards a Whig.

(No. 89.)—JAMES KENNEDY MOORHEAD, son of William and Elizabeth Kennedy Young Moorhead, was born September 7, 1806, in Halifax Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania.

At the age of sixteen he was apprenticed to William Linville, of Lancaster County, to learn the art of tanning.

In 1827 he engaged as a contractor on the Susquehanna and Juniata Divisions of the Pennsylvania Canal, in which business he continued until 1838.

About this time he became interested in the Pioneer Packet Line, between Philadelphia and Pittsburg, which rendered his removal to the latter place necessary.

In 1839 he was appointed, by President Van Buren, Postmaster at Pittsburg.

In 1846 he was elected President of the Monongahela Navigation Company, which, under his administration, has been a continuous success from its organization. He has been very extensively engaged in successful manufacturing enterprises in Pittsburg. Mr. Moorhead has also held the position of president in several railroad and telegraph enterprises.

In 1858 he was elected a Representative to Congress from the Pittsburgh District, and was re-elected for four successive terms. At this most critical period of the nation's history he proved himself one of the most active, able, and influential supporters of the government.

Mr. Moorhead has made liberal use of his large fortune in support of religious and charitable institutions in Pittsburgh, and is widely known and much respected.

In 1830 he married Jane Logan, of Lancaster County. They have had eight children. (See chart.)

Mr. and Mrs. Moorhead celebrated their Golden Wedding, December 17, 1879, surrounded by their children, grandchildren, and one great-grandchild, and many relatives and friends. Mr. Moorhead is a leading member in the Presbyterian Church.

Since its organization he has been an influential member of the Republican Party.

(No. 90.)—JOEL BARLOW MOORHEAD, son of William Moorhead and Elizabeth Kennedy Young Moorhead, was born at Moorhead's Ferry, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, April 13, 1813. He was married February 7, 1837, to Elizabeth Hiron, daughter of John Hiron, of Wilmington, Delaware. Their children's names are on the connected chart. Mr. Moorhead was early engaged in the construction of Pennsylvania State internal improvements, and for several years was State Manager of the Columbia Railroad, owned by the State. He also took a very active part in the construction of the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, the Schuylkill Navigation Company, Monongahela Navigation Company, internal improvements of the State of Kentucky, and the local railroad system of the District of Columbia, in all of which he acquitted himself with credit and to the entire satisfaction of those with whom he was associated. For several years Mr. Moorhead has been very extensively and successfully engaged in the mining and manufacturing of iron in its crude state. He is also connected with a great many financial, charitable, and benevolent institutions. Mr. Moorhead, early in life, acted with the Democratic Party. About the time the attempt was made to introduce slavery into Kansas he abandoned the party, and since has been an active Republican. He was brought up in the Methodist faith. His wife was a Quaker, and, by mutual agreement, they have connected themselves with the Episcopal Church, and have brought up all their children according to the order of that faith. Mr. Moorhead is a large, fine-looking man, very frank in his manner, and unostentatious. He has led a very active life, and always enjoyed the confidence and respect of the community. Since his marriage he has resided in or near Philadelphia.

(No. 91.)—WILLIAM GARRAWAY MOORHEAD, son of William and Elizabeth Kennedy Young Moorhead, was born July 7, 1811, at Moorhead's Ferry, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. Mr. Moorhead's business life commenced very early. At the age of seventeen he was appointed to important work in connection with the Juniata Canal, and held other State appointments, in connection with railroads, while still very young.

In 1834 he removed to Sandusky, Ohio, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, in partnership with his brother, James Kennedy Moorhead. While residing in Sandusky he married Sarah Cooke, the only daughter of the Hon. Elewtheros Cooke, a distinguished lawyer and member of Congress. The names of their four children are on the chart. Mrs. Sarah Cooke Moorhead died in Philadelphia. Afterwards Mr. Moorhead married Mrs. Cornelia Badger.

Mercantile life not being congenial to Mr. Moorhead, he very soon returned to Pennsylvania, and was identified with many of the public works then in progress, and gave valuable aid in procuring funds for various railroads and canals then in course of construction.

In 1846 Mr. Moorhead was appointed by President Polk, and confirmed by the Senate, Consul of the United States to Valparaiso, Chili; and, in addition, for several years the duties of Minister from the United States were performed by him. The following year he was appointed purchasing agent for the United States squadron in the Pacific. It was during this period that gold was discovered in California, and before leaving Chili Mr. Moorhead organized the firm of Moorhead, Whitehead & Waddington, who made large contracts with the millers of Chili for supplying flour to California. The operations of this firm were very large, the proceeds from the sales of flour, during the fifteen months of the firm's business, aggregating over $5,000,000. On his return to the United States he re-embarked in the construction of public works. He was elected President of the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad Company, and was instrumental in its successful completion.

In 1861 he formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, Jay Cooke, under the firm name of Jay Cooke & Co., and engaged in a general banking business. The firm was very successful, and established branches in Washington, New York city, and London. At this period the government had exhausted its resources. Jay Cooke and Wm. G. Moorhead advanced the idea to their personal friend, the Secretary of the Treasury, S. P. Chase, that the wealth of the nation was really in the hands of the people, and that the money could be borrowed from them. Jay Cooke & Co. acted as the agents of the United States Government; and it was at their suggestion, and through their instrumentality, aided by the press, that the government loan was speedily popularized, and placed on sale in every important town in the country. There can be no doubt but that Jay Cooke and Wm. G. Moorhead, in thus aiding the government, were important factors in the successful termination of the Rebellion.

In 1873, when the unexpected crash overwhelmed our country, Jay Cooke & Co. were unprepared for it; having advanced millions of dollars to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and having made large investments in railroad securities, which were unavailable at the time, the firm, so prosperous but a short time previous, was obliged to succumb.

Mr. Moorhead has always been an active and benevolent man, and enjoys the esteem of those who know him. He is now (1880) an elder in the Presbyterian Church in West Philadelphia, and is active in church work.

In politics he has always been a conservative Democrat.

For a more minute account of Mr. Moorhead's very active life the reader is referred to the Biographical Encyclopedia of Pennsylvania.

(No. 99.)—JOHN HERRON KENNEDY, son of Rev. Robert and Jane Herron Kennedy, was born at Herron's Run, near Shippensburg, Pennsylvania, November 11, 1801. He died at Canonsburg, December 15, 1840. Was married in Philadelphia, February 15, 1827, to Harriet McCalmont. Their issue are named on the chart.

Mr. Kennedy received his elementary and classical education under his father's care. He graduated, with honor, at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, in May, 1820. He studied theology at Princeton Seminary, and in October, 1822, was licensed by Carlisle Presbytery to preach; and in November, 1825, he was ordained and installed pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia. He resigned this charge December, 1829. Previous to his settlement in this church he had been appointed chaplain to the government ship Brandywine, selected by the government to carry Gen. Lafayette back to France; this appointment, however, failed to reach him until after his installation. On the 11th of March, 1830, he received a call from the Presbyterian Church of "Center," and in connection therewith the appointment of Professor of Mathematics in Jefferson College.

Rev. Matthew Brown, D.D., says of him: "That as an instructor he was discriminating, accurate, and lucid in his illustrations; as a member of the faculty he was energetic, fearless, and ready to share the responsibility of a disciplined government; as a preacher he was instructive, solemn, searchable and forcible; as a pastor he was laborious and faithful; as a writer he was characteristically lucid, simple and concise."

Mr. Kennedy was a Whig. (See Men of Mark of Cumberland Valley.)

(No. 103.)—JAMES MAXWELL KENNEDY, son of Rev. Robert and Mary Davidson Kennedy, was born at Welsh Run, Franklin County, Pennsylvania, February 24, 1809. He died at Philadelphia, March 9, 1848. Was married in Philadelphia, November 23, 1836, to Sibilla Stone Morris, daughter of Evan Morris, of Chester County. Their children's names are on the chart.

Mr. Kennedy received his education at his father's classical academy at Cumberland, Maryland. Soon after his arrival at manhood he repaired to Philadelphia, to engage in the wholesale dry goods business, at first as clerk, but after two years he commenced business for himself, as the head of the following successful firms, as they from time to time changed:—Kennedy, Bowman & Co, Kennedy, Julian & Co., and James M. Kennedy & Co.

Mr. Kennedy was a gentleman of fine personal appearance and elegant manners. He was very resolute and brave. In religion a Presbyterian; in politics a Whig.

(No. 107.)—ELIAS DAVIDSON KENNEDY, son of the Rev. Robert and Mary Davidson Kennedy, was born the 27th of December, 1819, at Cumberland, Maryland. Six years afterwards his father removed to Welsh Run, Franklin County, Pennsylvania. Elias Davidson lived with his parents until 1839, when he came to Philadelphia, to enter the wholesale dry goods store of his brother, James M. Kennedy; here he remained, part of the time as clerk and afterward as a partner, until his brother's death,

March 9, 1848. In December of that year he formed a partnership with another brother, under the name "E. D. & W. T. Kennedy." The new firm purchased a stock of general dry goods, &c., and determined to start for California, W. T. Kennedy going overland, in the company of his cousin, Thomas B. Kennedy, and Elias Davidson Kennedy taking passage, with the stock of merchandise, in the "Levant," from Philadelphia, via Cape Horn. After a tedious and perilous voyage of seven months, the "Levant" anchored off San Francisco, and early the next morning Mr. Kennedy was met by his brother, who had been in California some weeks, and was dismayed and discouraged at their prospects.

The two brothers decided that Sacramento was the most available place to dispose of their merchandise, and from the day of their arrival in that city they did a large and profitable business. Twice was their house destroyed—once by fire and once by flood—but notwithstanding these, and many drawbacks, their business continued to prosper. In 1851 they added banking to their general business. Mr. Kennedy made in all four distinct trips to California.

On the 20th of April, 1854, he married Miss Agnes Shields Clarke, only daughter of Thomas Shields and Eliza Thaw Clarke. Mr. Clarke was a prominent shipping merchant of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and highly esteemed. Immediately after their marriage they left for a tour in Europe. Some time after their return, accompanied by his wife, he went to California to settle the estate of his brother, William T. Kennedy, who died in Philadelphia, December 8, 1855. While in California their daughter Alice was born. In the fall of 1857 they returned to Philadelphia, where they have since resided. They have had two daughters and five sons. (See chart.)

It was Mr. Elias Davidson Kennedy who first proposed to build a church, and afterward furnished the means for its erection, at Welsh Run, Franklin County, Pennsylvania, in memory of his father's years of labor as pastor of the congregation centering around that place. This building was completed about 1870, and stands on or near the site of the old church, built in 1760, in which his father had preached so many years. It is a neat and tasteful edifice, and is called the "Robert Kennedy Memorial Presbyterian Church."

Whilst Mr. Kennedy partakes of that nervous, quick temperament and positive manner peculiar to the Kennedys, he in appearance resembles the Davidsons; is tall and well proportioned, with dark complexion, black eyes, black hair and whiskers.

In business Mr. Kennedy was a man of sagacity and integrity, and success has attended all his undertakings. In religion he is a Presbyterian, and in politics a Republican.—(Contributed by T. B. K.)

(No. 259.)—THOMAS B. KENNEDY was born August 1, 1827, in Warren County, New Jersey. His father, Hon. James J. Kennedy, removed to Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, in 1839. Mr. Kennedy entered the sophomore class of Marshall College at fourteen, and graduated with honor in 1844. He read law with the Hon. Alexander Thompson, of Chambersburg, and was admitted to the Franklin County bar in 1848. The next year he crossed the plains as the leader of a company bound for California.

In 1851 he returned to Chambersburg and commenced the practice of law. He served one term as District Attorney, with general approbation. He afterwards went into partnership with the Hon. James Nill. The business of the firm rapidly increased, so that upon the elevation of Judge Nill to the bench of the district, in 1862, his partner found himself in control of the largest and most lucrative practice at the bar, which he has steadily maintained. Mr. Kennedy has freely used the income from his large estate in sustaining Wilsons College, and all the religious and benevolent institutions of the place. He was married April 22, 1856, to Ariana Stuart Riddle. Soon after marriage they spent a year travelling in Europe. They have had six children. (See chart.) Mr. Kennedy has been President of the Cumberland Valley Railroad and its connections for some years. The present success of the road is principally the result of his good judgment and untiring industry.

Mr. Kennedy is a gentleman of fine personal appearance, with black eyes, black hair and whiskers. He is a Presbyterian; in politics a Democrat.

(No. 283.)—REV. WILLIAM HENRY GREEN, D.D., LL.D., son of George and Sallie Kennedy Green, was born at Groveville, near Bordentown, New Jersey, on the 27th of January, 1825. He graduated at Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania, 1840, where he remained a short time as tutor. He studied theology in Princeton, and, upon the completion of his course, in 1846, he was made assistant teacher of Hebrew. After remaining three years in this capacity, during a portion of which he supplied successively the pulpits of the First and Second Churches in Princeton, he became the pastor of the Central Church, in Philadelphia. In 1851 he was elected Professor of Oriental and Biblical Literature in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, as successor of Dr. J. Addison Alexander. In 1859 the title of the Professorship was changed to that of Oriental and Old Testament Literature. In 1861 he published a Grammar of the Hebrew Language; in 1863 a Hebrew Chrestomathy; in 1866 an Elementary Hebrew Grammar; in 1863 the Pentateuch Vindicated from the Aspersions of Bishop Colenso; in 1870 he translated Zochler's Commentary on the Song of Solomon; he also published a Commentary on the Book of Job. His publications are too numerous here to mention, and the reader is referred to the Index Volume of the Princeton Review, page 185. At the time of writing (1880) Doctor Green is engaged with the Bible Revision Committee, composed of fifty-two eminent English and twenty-seven equally distinguished American divines, of different denominations, in translating the Bible from the original tongues into the English language. He is chairman of the Old Testament Committee.

Doctor Green was married June 24, 1852, to Mary Elizabeth Caldwell, daughter of Stephen and Elizabeth Caldwell, of Philadelphia. She died March 29, 1854, without issue. He was again married April 28, 1858, to Elizabeth Hays, daughter of Doctor Samuel and Eliza Keen Hays. They have had two children. (See chart.)

Doctor Green is a large man, fully six feet high, with a good physical constitution, and can bear an immense amount of professional work. He is a thorough Calvinistic Presbyterian in faith, and Republican in politics. He stands very high as a classical and theological scholar, and is ranked as a good preacher by the most competent judges.

(No. 505.)—REV. SYLVESTER F. SCOVEL, son of the Rev. Sylvester Scovel, D.D., President of Hanover College, was born at Harrison, Ohio, December 29, 1835; graduated at Hanover College in 1853, and immediately commenced the study of theology; was licensed to preach on the 7th of April, 1857, three months after attaining majority; was ordained and installed pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Jeffersonville, Indiana, October 28, 1857; accepted a call to Springfield, Ohio, January 7, 1861; accepted a call to the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, January, 1866.

A man of scholarly tastes and attainments; an able preacher and a faithful pastor; a public-spirited citizen; an accurate thinker and writer, he was appointed to read one of the essays before the General Presbyterian Council, which met in Philadelphia, September, 1880.

Mr. Scovel was married, October 6, 1857, to Miss Caroline Woodruff, daughter of C. Woodruff, formerly of Newark, New Jersey. The names of their children can be found on the foregoing chart.

RESTATEMENT OF No. 7.

The history of the descendants of Col. Arthur and Mary Kennedy Erwin was furnished by a very intelligent member of that connection. The author, relying upon the correctness of this report, was under the impression that the family was nearly extinct; but soon after "The Kennedy Family" had been published, it was apparent that this report included only the third generation, numbering 29 persons, whereas the aggregate number of their descendants, to this time, amounts to 295. It was evident that this very meagre account would leave a wrong impression, and it was thought best to give the following brief statement of the main facts:—

Col. Arthur Erwin and his second wife, Mary Kennedy, were married in 1768 or 1769. She died July 29, 1817. Col. Erwin was a patriotic and very prominent man of his day. As early as December 17, 1776, he was ordered by George Washington to march his regiment to Philadelphia and to report for duty to General Israel Putnam. The original order is now in the hands of Henry N. Paul, Esq., of Philadelphia. The boats used by the Revolutionary army to cross the Delaware river below Frenchtown were built by Col. Erwin. He was assassinated by a squatter while temporarily at the house of Daniel McDuffy, at Tioga Point, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, on the 9th of June, 1791. At the time of his death he resided at Erwinna, Tinicum township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and was the richest man in that county. He owned in the township over two thousand acres of the most valuable land; also in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, between four thousand and five thousand acres; also in Steuben County, New York, thirty thousand acres, on which latter have since been built the following towns:—Erwin, Painted Post, Cooper, Canisteo and Hornellsville. His numerous descendants are cultured and influential, enjoying the advantages of wealth, and worthily proud of their ancestry. The following well-known names are included in the present generation:—The Pauls of Belvidere, New Jersey; Randolphs of Easton, Pennsylvania; Erwins, Coopers, Hickmans, Townsends, Stevens, Morses, Peases, and many others living on or near the patrimonial domains in Steuben County, New York, and other places.
