This manuscript or genealogy is dedicated to the memory of my dear beloved father, James Franklin McCaleb, Jr., of Claiborne County, Mississippi. It is the history of a proud and honorable family, which has been made up largely of plain, educated, hard working people who have been highly respected in their communities for their industry, integrity and, who by their way of life, have helped to build a great nation.

The compiler of this data is a person with little experience in such work and one who lives a great distance from a research library. The manuscript no doubt has many errors. It is the fond hope of the compiler that some member of the Clan will someday publish a more worthy work.

The compiler wishes to express her gratitude to those relatives who have been so generous with their help--namely, Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb, Col. A. F. McCaleb, William McCaleb of Birmingham, and Duncan B. McCaleb and many others.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME McCALEB

RESEARCH IN SCOTLAND

ANCESTRY OF CAPTAIN WILLIAM McCALEB

ORIGIN OF THE NAME McKILLOP OR McCALEB

FROM: THE CATHOLIC HIGHLANDS OF SCOTLAND by DON BLUNDELL, page 139

"Another family of influence were MacDonalds of Sherrageg. They were originally M'Killops but took the name McDonald on their marrying into the Keppoch Family".

FROM: SURNAMES OF SCOTLAND by Dr. GEORGE F. BLACK
(New York, 1946)

The name McCaleb was a corruption of McKillop which in turn was a corruption of the Gaelic MacFhilib, son of Philip.

MacKILLOPS, A SEPT OF THE CLAN MacDONELL (Macdeonnell)

WILLIAM McCALEB (McKillop or McKellop), 1715-1775, is said to have been a member of the McKillop family who were a Sept of the Macdonell of Keppoch Clan of Scotland. The spelling of the names Macdonald and Macdonnell are synonymous as the various branches of the Clan Donald are so interwoven.¹ The Macdonalds were the most powerful of the Highland Clans. The Clan, like other clans of Scotland, was made up of two classes: (1) Clansmen who were related by blood and (2) "Broken men", individuals or groups from other clans who obtained the protection of the Clan. Don Odell Blundell's explanation of the union of the Macdonnells of Keppoch and the Mac Killops of Sherrebeg (Above cit.) may refer to the marriage of William McCaleb (McKillop), father of William McCaleb (MacKillop) 1715-1775, to Mary Macdonnell, who was said to be the daughter of Chief Macdonnell. (This would have been about 1714). Sherrabeg was a tenant farm in the District of Badenoch and is no longer in existence.²

EXTRACTS FROM THE SURNAMES OF SCOTLAND by Dr. George Black
(New York, 1946-page 629)

McKillop, MacFhilib, "Son of Philip".

But who this Philip was who gave the name is not known. The asperation of the "f" in the genitive case causes it to disappear. Philip is originally a Greek personal name (Phillippos), meaning "Horse Lover". Some of the names are said to have been standard bearers to the Campbells of Dunstaffnage. Others are included in the Septs of MacDonald of Glencoe and of Macdonnells of Keppoch, and MacKillop also occurs as a surname in Arran. FINLAIUS MacPILIBH, priest of the Diocese of Argyll, is in record in 1433 (Pap. Lett. VIII, page 470), and in 1437 JOHN, son of FYNLAIUS PRIORIS MacPHILIB, appears as perpetual vicar of Kilcalmonell. (Saniti Colmaneli in Cnapdul), (Ibid of page 626). WILLIAM MacKILLOP, a follower of the Earl of Cassilis, was repited for murder in 1526 (RSS., I. 3386) DONALD M'GILLIP is mentioned in 1532 (MacGregor I, p. 87). ROBERT MAKILLIP was a witness at Penkill, Ayrshire, in 1545 (RMS., III 3160). MALCUM M'KILLIB witnessed a Glenurquhay Bond of Manrent in 1547. CHARLOCHT M'KILLIB was a witness at "Ill of Lochtay" in 1649 (BBT. pps. 185 and 189), and Duncan McGillop in the Kirktone of Weeme is in record in 1692. Makellop 1509. (Extracts of Black's book copied by William McCaleb about 1959).

The name is also current in the abbreviated form MacGilp. A family of this name took the name MacDonald on their inter-marrying with the Keppoch family. (Bluncell, The Catholic Highlands, 1909, p. 139). The Gaelic "motto" of the Family, "Cadail Cha'n Aom Air Faire" is of the twentieth centruy. McKillip and McKyllap 1692--See also MacKyllap.

JOHN MCKILLOP

The only McKillop who is mentioned as being a prisoner in the 45 Rebellion was John whose home was in Sterling and who was a malster. He was in prsons of Linthgow and Leith for about three weeks in 1746 and was liberated on July 2, 1746. (Scots Ancestry Research Society.)

PARISH RECORDS OF SCOTLAND (SCOTS ANCESTRY RESEARCH SOCIETY)

Prior to 1855 registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages in Scotland were voluntarily recorded in the old parochial registers (unindexed) of each parish. The old parochial registers of the parishes in the county of Inverness which have extant records for the period in which you are interested, namely:

The Scots Ancestry Research Society found no McCalebs (McKillops) in a search of the above available records.

The director of the Scots Ancestry Research Society stated in a letter to K. H. in 1949: "I would have liked to assist you, but the parish records of Invernesshire are of such poor quality that I can do nothing. There are few, if any, possible sources of information as early as 1715. This incessant subdivision of property in Scotland amongst all the sons ultimately led to the dispersal of a family, being unable to gain a subsistence in Scotland".

In Vol. II I have included all McCalebs, McKalebs, McKillips, McKillops, Mc Gillups and like spellings. Most of these early families settled on the same spelling of the name, "McCaleb". I have always been taught and my research seems to bear out the claim that McKillips (McCalip) and McKillops are not the same family in late Scot and early America. K. H.

INFORMATION FROM THE SCOT ANCESTRY RESEARCH SOCIETY

McKillops were Septs of McDonalds of Glengarry, Macdonnells of Keppoch, Magregors (Magruders), Campbells. They were groups who sought the protection of major Clans.

THE CLAN DONALD by I. F. Black

This is a very fine history of the MacDonald Clan and all of its division. It states that the MacDonalds were the largest and most powerful Clan in Scotland. It names the McKillops as a Sept of the McDonalds.

THE CLANS AND TARTANS OF SCOTLAND, by Robert Bain (Collins in London, Glasgow, New York)

The Mcdonnells were wise enough to settle where there was firwood (Kingussie), salmon fish in the Spey and Tummel, and peatmoss, and tillable soil.

WILLIAM McCaleb married MARY MacDONNELL

WILLIAM McCaleb (MacKillop), Highland Chieftan, was a native of Scotland. Family tradition says that he was the son of William McCaleb. The dates of his birth and death are not know. Neither is it certain where in Scotland the family lived.³ Family tradition says that they lived in Invernesshire. It seems likely that they lived at Sherrabeg, a farm that is now extinct, in Badenoch,⁴ or somewhere east of Loch Lochy between the present towns of Kingussie and Pithlochry.⁵

When the family changed the spelling of the name is not known. The name McCaleb was a corruption of Mac Killop which in turn was a corruption of the Gaelic MacFhilib, son of Philip.⁶ It seems reasonable to believe that the family was using the present spelling before leaving Scotland since there are McCalebs in Scotland today, and since nearly all the families in America were using the more recent spelling by the time of the American Revolutionary War.

William McCaleb married MARY MACDONNELL (also written "McDonald" and "Macdonell") of the Keppoch family.⁷ Some say that she was the daughter of Chieftan Macdonnell of Keppoch, but there is nothing to bear out this claim. William and Mary (Macdonnell) McCaleb had at least one child, William McCaleb, who was born in Scotland in 1715 and died in South Carolina in 1775.⁸

William McCaleb is thought to have fought with the major Clan Macdonnell at Preston-Moor.⁹

WILLIAM NEIL McCaleb married SARAH MacALPIN

WILLIAM NEIL McCaleb (McKELLOPE), son of William and Mary (Macdonnell) McCaleb, was born in Scotland in 1715, and he died in North or South Carolina 1775.¹⁰ Tradition and evidence seems to indicate that he was known as "Neil". Tradition says that he was born in Invernesshire, Scotland and that he died in South Carolina.

William Neil McCaleb married SARAH McALPIN¹¹, daughter of Highland Chieftan McAlpin, in Scotland about 1746. Tradition says that they eloped.

William Neil McCaleb (McKellope) fought at Culloden in 1746 for the cause of Bonnie Prince Charles. The McCalebs (McKellopes) were a Sept of the Macdonells of Keppoch, and William fought with, or under, the leadership of the major Clan at the battle. Coll, 15th of Keppoch, known as "Coll of the Cows", withstood all attempts of the MacKintoche, assisted by government troops, to capture him, and for forty years he held his lands in Lochaber by right of the sword. His son, Alexander, succeeded him, and with his followers joined Prince Charles Edward in 1746, and by intercepting government troops who were attempting to surprise the gathering at Glenfinnon, they were the first to strike a blow at the "45". Tradition says that Alexander was a tall and very large man and that he was very angry because he was not allowed to lead all the Scots forces at Culloden, where he was killed in battle. Because the army of William Duke of Cumberland was hunting down the followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie, William McCaleb, with his consort, Sarah (MacAlpin) McCaleb, fled in 1746 to Ireland, and they immigrated from Dublin, landing in Charleston, Province of South Carolina, in the year.¹² Tradition says that there was much suffering aboard ship because the ship was lost at sea for many weeks, and that a child was born aboard ship, presumably to a McCaleb. Tradition says that the MacKeys came over on the same ship with the McCalebs from Ireland that two or three of William Neil's brothers were aboard the same ship.¹³

William Neil McCaleb and his wife moved inland and, according to tradition, settled in either South or North Carolina with "other exiled followers of Bonnie Prince Charles". It has not been proven exactly where in this area they settled. Evidence seems fairly conclusive that the McCalebs settled in the area of Lancaster and Chesterfield Counties, South Carolina, or Anson and Mecklinburg, N. C. In this same area were the McKeys, McAlpins (See Addenda for research on MacKey and MacAlpin families in this area), Flora McDonald, Shelbys, Wileys, Alexanders.

In 1766 Neil McKellope was in the Indian Wars as a member of Adam Alexander's Militia from Mecklinburg County, North Carolina. William Neil and Sarah (MacAlpin) McCaleb, who was born in 1747. They probably had other children. It seems likely that James McCaleb of Cabarrus and John McCaleb of Orange were sons. (See Book II of McCaleb History).

2. Information from the librarian of The Corporation of Glasgow, Librarian Dept., Mitchell Library, 1948
3. Dr. James F. McCaleb, medical doctor and journalist, a resident of Carlisle, Mississippi, did a great deal of research on the McCaleb family. He secured the help of professional genealogists to help him. He had in his possession the earliest known McCaleb family Bible and valuable old papers which had been handed down to him from his ancestor, David McCaleb. These old papers, Bible, and research were burned when Dr. McCaleb's home was destroyed by fire. The fact that he had these records is substantiated in the Dictionary of American Biography, Vol. II, pages 560-561. Dr. McCaleb told what he could remember to Mrs. Katy McCaleb Headley. He said that he had proof that William McCaleb lived at Invernesshire, Scotland; that William McCaleb was chieftain of a small McKillop Clan which was a Sept of the Mac donnells of Keppoch; that William McCaleb fought at the battle of Preston Moor; that William and Mary (Macdonnell) McCaleb were the parents of William McCaleb, who was born 1715 in Invernesshire, Scotland and died in 1775 in South Carolina; that this son married Sarah MacAlpin, the daughter of Highland Chieftain MacAlpin. He said Mac-Killops and McKillips were different families.
4. Don Odo Blundell in the Catholic Highlands of Scotland has this to say: "Another family of influence were the Macdonalds of Sherrabeg. They were originally M^cKillops, but took the name Macdonald on their marrying into the Keppoch family". Sherrabeg was in the district of Badenoch and was a tenant farm. Scotland did not have primogeniture and therefore the farms became very small or extinct. Today Sherrabeg is nonexistent.
5. The Clans and Tartans of Scotland (Published by Collins in London, Glasgow, and New York) says that the Macdonnells of Keppoch lived east of Loch Lochy between the present towns of Kingussie and Pithlochry. (Gaelic for Kingussie....head of the firwood).

7. Old Bible which was owned by Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb, of Carlisle, Mississippi, is said by Dr. McCaleb to have given the fact of marriage, but the tradition of Mary Macdonnell's father being a chieftain is probably wishful thinking.
8. Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb's old McCaleb that burned with his home.
9. Research which Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb said that he had done.
10. Dates of birth and death came from the old McCaleb Bible which was owned by Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb and which burned when his home was destroyed by fire. Dr. McCaleb said that the old Bible stated that William and Sarah eloped and married after Culloden, went to Dublin, Ireland and from there immigrated to Charleston, South Carolina--all the same year, 1746. The old Bible said that they moved inland and settled with other exiled followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie. This information or tradition has been handed down to all descendants of William Neil McCaleb.
11. Goodspeed (Biography of Dr. William C. McCaleb) says that William McCaleb (1715-1775) married Caroline Calvert. This is most certainly not true and is no doubt the source of the error which has caused so much confusion. Each generation of McCalebs of descendants of Captain William McCaleb have been taught that Sarah McAlpin was Captain McCaleb's mother. Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb, in a letter to Mrs. Katy McCaleb Headley, had this to say: "The Mississippi Memoirs" from which you quote is a totally unreliable authority and Genealogically worthless. William McCaleb never married Caroline Calvert, who was the wife of Captain Pulliam of Maryland and Georgia. I challenge anyone to prove that this Caroline Calvert, a descendant of Lord Baltimore, ever married a McCaleb." Mrs. Headley had two professional genealogists search the records of Maryland for any trace of William McCaleb or his family. No William or William Neil was found. No McCaleb, or like spelling was found in Maryland before the American Revolution. The only McCalebs found came during the Revolutionary War from York and Adams County, Pennsylvania. On the other hand, Mrs. Headley found Neil (Neal) M'Kellope listed as one who was formerly a member of Captain Adam Alexander's Company of Militia, 1776 (Indian Wars) from Mecklinburg County, North Carolina (Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. 22,

11. (Continued)
p. 396. Adam Alexander was from Mecklinburg County, North Carolina.

Mrs. Thomas Paul Roberts of Baton Rouge, La. has this to say about the marriage of William Neil McCaleb's marriage: "Captain William's parents were William McCaleb (McKillip) and his wife Caroline Calvert, born 1730 in Maryland and died in South Carolina. This has been verified by professional genealogists and accepted by Magna Charta, of which I am a member, by the Colonial Dames, of the XVII, by the American Colonists, and by the James Society, and others". She said: "William McKillip was born about 1726 in Scotland and died after 1747 in South Carolina, and Caroline Calvert was born 1730 in Maryland". Mrs. Headley's research in New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina did not bear out the above claim. Neal McKellope, who lived near Mecklinburg, North Carolina in 1766 is the only trace found of our ancestors.

12. Biographical and Historical Memoirs of Louisiana, Vol. II, (1892) and the Dictionary of American Biography, Vol. II, p. 560 confirms the arrival of the McCalebs or McKillops in America.

13. Some say that several brothers came from Scotland together. They say that one settled in South Carolina; one settled in North Carolina; one settled in Pennsylvania. Some say that one brother moved west and married an Indian. James McCaleb of Cabbarus County, North Carolina had a son named William Neil who died August 21, 1813, aged 73 yr., 6 mo., and 6 days. He was buried in the Popular Tent Graveyard in Cabarrus County. Descendants of John McCaleb of Orange County, North Carolina claim that he was a brother of Captain William McCaleb. Both John and James were Revolutionary soldiers. Other Revolutionary soldiers from North Carolina who probably were related to Captain William McCaleb were: Hugh, Aneas (Enos), and Archibald (who may have been from South Carolina).

CAPTAIN WILLIAM AND ANN (MACKEY) McCALEB
AND

CAPTAIN WILLIAM McCaleb married ANN MACKEY

WILLIAM McCaleb, pioneer, soldier, and legislator was born in South Carolina or just over the boundary in North Carolina. He was born in 1747, and he died at his Hermitage Plantation, which was located on the North Fork of Bayou Pierre in Claiborne County, Mississippi, Mar. 7, 1813.¹ He was the son of William and Sarah (MacAlpin) McCaleb who had immigrated from Scotland by way of Dublin, Ireland to Charleston, South Carolina in 1746.

It is not known where in South Carolina or North Carolina Captain William McCaleb was born and spent his childhood. It probably was in Lancaster or Chesterfield County, South Carolina or Anson or Mecklenburg County, North Carolina. He may or may not have had sisters and brothers.² It is known that he married ANN MACKEY, who was born 1746, in South Carolina October 23, 1769, at which time he was a young man of twenty-three years of age and was probably living with his parents. That they married in South Carolina is confirmed by the inscription on their joint tombstone which is in the Hermitage Plantation Cemetery. He probably married in Chesterfield or Lancaster County, South Carolina. He may have married his wife in the Pendleton District (96th District), South Carolina as William MacKey.³ His wife, a son under sixteen, six daughters, and four slaves appear as a household on the census of 1790 and were living in Ninety-Six District, Pendleton County. This William MacKey may have been a brother to Ann (MacKey) McCaleb. Tradition says that the MacKeys came to America on the same ship with the McCalebs in 1746, and it is logical that the two families settled near one another. Captain William McCaleb and his wife were probably living in the Pendleton area as early as 1774, since their son, David McCaleb, said that he was born in the Pendleton District.

Captain William McCaleb served in the Revolutionary War under Generals Marian and Pickens. He held the rank of Captain and commanded a company of Hussars or horse of the 91st Militia, South Carolina Line. He participated in the battles of Camden, the Cowpens, Guilford Court House, Eutaw Springs, the Seige of Charleston, and Ninety Six.⁴

William McCaleb and his colleague, General Wade Hampton, represented the South of the Saluda District in the South Carolina Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution.⁵ (Elliott's Debates on the Federal Constitution, Vol. IV, Page 239).

The table top tombstone which covers the graves of Captain William and Ann (McKey) McCaleb, confirms his service in the Revolutionary army. The tombstone inscription reads: "William McCaleb died March 7, 1813, aged 66 years. Ann, his wife, died October 10, 1821, aged 75 years and 7 months. They were married in South Carolina where he held the rank of Captain in the army of the Revolution and sacrificed his youthful vigor in the cause of American Independence. She, amid the perils to which her husband was exposed, displayed her devotion as a wife and the courage of the heroine".

The first land grant to a McCaleb, which has been located in South Carolina, is 275 acres on 12 Mile Creek, 96th District, granted on July 12th, 1784. 12 Mile Creek is in Anderson and Pickens Counties, and it was in Old Pendleton District until it was discontinued in 1821 to form Anderson and Pickens Counties. Pendleton was opened to settlement about 1784 by an Indian Treaty. Some settlers had pushed into lower Pendleton before the Revolution,⁶ but the main influx began about 1785. In 1787 Capt. William McCaleb obtained a grant of 466 acres on Coffee Creek in 96 District and 369 acres on 12 Mile Creek. In 1788 he obtained 300 acres on Carre Creek in the 96th District. In 1796 he received a grant of 359 acres on Keowee River in the Pendleton District.⁷

The South Carolina census of 1790 for Pendleton County, 96 District, shows that Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb had three sons over sixteen years of age, two sons under sixteen years of age, and three daughters, and eight slaves. This same census shows that General Andrew Pickens, Esquire (General Pickens, hero of the Revolution) and General Robert Anderson Esquire, for whom Pickens and Anderson Counties were respectively named, were the nearest neighbors of the McCalebs.

On June 27, 1799 Captain McCaleb purchased land in West Florida, near Natchez, from William Marshall of the city of Charleston, South Carolina. This transaction is on record in the Chancery Court Records of Adams County, Mississippi. This land consisted of 950 acres on the south branch of Fairchild's Creek about twelve miles east of the old Fort. In this land transaction, Captain McCaleb is described as being from Pendleton County, South Carolina.⁸ Gale and Seaton's edition, American State Papers shows that William McCaleb (non-resident) obtained a British grant to 600 acres on Fairchild Creek, dated 1777. This seems to be the Marshall land that Marshall obtained in 1777 and William McCaleb purchased in 1799.

In 1799 Captain William and Ann (MacKey) moved their family and eight slaves to the Province of West Florida, Natchez District. Matilda, the youngest daughter had died. William Neil, the oldest son, had probably died. David remained in South Carolina for a few more years before following the family. Captain William, Ann, and the rest of the family and slaves moved to Natchez. They arrived in Natchez in 1799. Tradition says that they came overland across the mountains, down the Tennessee, Ohio, and Mississippi Rivers to Natchez. Tradition says also that they stopped for a visit with Archibald McCaleb, brother to Captain William McCaleb, and his family at Campbell's Station near Knoxville.⁹ Shortly after the family arrived in Natchez, Captain McCaleb obtained a land grant on the North Fork of the Bayou Pierre¹⁰ in what is now Claiborne County, where he established his Hermitage Plantation. It is not known why he did not make his home on the fertile land which he had purchased from John Marshall near Natchez, but it is almost certain that he sold or gave this property to his son, John McCaleb.

To take care of his family, Captain William McCaleb built a large rambling one story home on his Hermitage Plantation. It had a long, wide front porch, an enclosed hall, and several wings which were added as need.¹¹ Large, live oaks grew on the spacious, sloping lawn which overlooked hundreds of acres of Bayou Pierre bottom lands. The cemetery was on a hill and within sight of the house.

Like most of the early planters who came early to this section and who obtained choice lands, Captain McCaleb and his sons became wealthy in cotton and slaves. (Note the wills and probate court records of Adams and Claiborne Counties, Mississippi and of West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana). Because his sons obtained large tracts of land for themselves at $1.25 per acre, Captain McCaleb requested in his will that his property be held together by his son Jonathan McCaleb, a bachelor, for the duration of Jonathan's life or until such time as Jonathan McCaleb thought it wise to divide it.

The "Mississippi Messenger" for November 12, 1805, page 3, Column 1, states: "William McCaleb, Esq. is elected a member of the Legislature of this territory to fill the place of John Shaw, resigned".

At the time of the Indian scare, Captain McCaleb and Colonel Farrar built and commanded a fort for the protection of the whites in the neighborhood.¹² They had been fellow officers under General Pickens in the Revolution.

Both William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb died at the Hermitage plantation and are buried there in the family cemetery.¹³

It is recorded of Ann (MacKey) McCaleb that "she was an elegant woman, and was never thrown off her dignity so much as to frown--not even in household affairs".¹⁴

Captain William and Ann McCaleb probably were or became members of the Presbyterian faith, as he was one of several who helped finance building the old stone church in the Pendleton District.¹⁵

All dates of birth and marriages were taken from the Captain William McCaleb family Bible, which is now in the possession of Col. Alfred Francis McCaleb of Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi. Some of the dates of birth can also be verified by tombstone inscriptions. Some dates of death are recorded in the Captain McCaleb Bible, and some are not. The ones which were not recorded in the Bible can, with the exception of William Neil and Matilda McCaleb, be found on the respective tombstones. For these records, see the Appendix. While dates of William Neil and Matilda McCaleb are burned off the Bible record, the chronological order shows about when the deaths occurred. It is probable that William Neil and Matilda were buried in the Old Stone Church Cemetery in South Carolina.

Ann MacKey's (McKey) relatives came to Claiborne County, Mississippi. William Mackey and family were living in the Pendleton District of South Carolina as early as 1790. Thomas MacKey estate was settled in Claiborne County, Mississippi in 1815. William McKey got an early land grant in Mississippi--66.52 acres in T. 11N; Jonathan MacKey got 306 acres Sec. 12 T. 11N, R 1 (Original Land Entry Book). Samuel MacKey died in Claiborne 1878. (Will-no children).

1. Dates of births, marriage, and deaths of William and Ann MacKey McCaleb are confirmed by the inscription on their joint tombstone which is in the Hermitage Plantation Cemetery. These dates are also confirmed by the remains of the Captain William McCaleb Bible which is now in the possession of Col. Alfred Francis McCaleb, of Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi.
2. It seems likely that John McCaleb, Revolutionary soldier from Orange County, North Carolina, was a brother to Captain William McCaleb. Tradition says that two or three brothers came to America together. James McCaleb, Revolutionary soldier from Cabarrus County, North Carolina, may have been another brother. William Neil McCaleb, who is buried in the Popular Tent Cemetery in Cabarrus County, North Carolina probably was a son of James McCaleb.
3. See excerpts from The Mackeys and Allied Families, by Mrs. Beatrice Makey Daughtie (Bowen Press, Inc., Decatur, Georgia).
4. Captain William McCaleb's Revolutionary War service is also confirmed by the following records: A History of Mississippi by Robert Lowry and William McCardle (Jackson, Miss. Published by R. H. Henry and Co., 1891); The Louisiana Sunday Review (New Orleans, Louisiana, Sunday, December 23, 1894); Biographical and Historical Memoirs of Louisiana by J. S. Whitaker (1847); The Dictionary of American Biography, Vol. XI, pp. 560-561; Daughters of the American Revolution membership numbers 119727, 119748, 87425, 40132, 147485, 141302 and others; To Live the Dream by Pearl Smith McFall (New York, N. Y., Comet Press Books, 1953). The story of Ann McCaleb's heroism during the Revolutionary War has been related to each generation of her descendants. Mrs. Mary (Hunt) McCaleb, a poetess of some note, related the story in The Old Slaves Story.
5. After the Mississippi Delta was opened for settlement, General Wade Hampton's son and Captain McCaleb's son Jonathan both obtained large plantations in Washington County on Lake Washington.

6. There is a Highland, North Carolina just across the border from Oconee county, South Carolina. Some D. A. R. papers say that Captain McCaleb was born in Highland (Highlands), which may mean the highlands of Scotland. Highlands, North Carolina is a resort city.
7. Records of land purchases and sales made by Captain McCaleb and his older sons can be found in South Carolina in the Office of Records in Anderson, Pickens, and Oconee Counties, from the year 1784 to 1796. In 1790 Captain William McCaleb seems to be living near present Pendleton, South Carolina, where Anderson, Oconee, and Pickens Counties join.
8. In the old South Carolina records, Captain William McCaleb spelled his name "McCalleb" when he gave his signature, and it was spelled "McCaleb" when written by a notary. After coming to Mississippi, he spelled his name "McCaleb". (Will and other records, Claiborne County.)
9. Archibald McCaleb and William Campbell, with their families, and with one other man, established Campbell's Station near the present site of Knoxville, Tennessee, in 1787. Goodspeed says that Archibald McCaleb was from South Carolina. There is no proof of the legend of Captain McCaleb's family visit. (See Vol. II for descendants of Archibald McCaleb).
10. Bayou Pierre is a small river or Bayou which runs through Claiborne County. The Bayou forks into north and south forks which meet west of Port Gibson and flows into the Mississippi River.
11. This description was given to Mrs. Katy McCaleb Headley by her father, James Franklin McCaleb, Jr. and by Mrs. Cornelia (Regan) Clark. The Hermitage burned July 2, 1891. ("Port Gibson Reveille")
12. Tecumseh had aroused the Southern Indians.
13. The will of Captain McCaleb is on record in the Chancery Court office, Claiborne County, Mississippi. His son John's estate was settled in Adams County, Mississippi. Samuel's will was probated in West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana. Wills and probate records of Captain McCaleb's other children can be found in Claiborne County, Mississippi.

WILLIAM NEIL MCGALEB

WILLIAM NEIL McCALEB

WILLIAM NEIL McCALEB, son of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born August 8, 1770 in South Carolina and died before 1813.¹ In 1786 William Neil McCaleb received a grant of 622 acres on Twelve Mile Creek, the 96th District, in South Carolina. It would seem that he died 1786-1790, as he does not appear on the census of 1790 as a head of a family or in the home of his parents. It seems most certain that he and his sister Matilda died in South Carolina before the family moved to Mississippi in 1799, since neither are buried in the Hermitage family burial ground. It is probable that both are buried in the Old Stone Church yard in South Carolina, as the earliest stones there are field stones and bear no inscriptions.

FOOTNOTE

1. The Captain's Bible verifies the birth of William Neil McCaleb, lists his death among three who died prior to 1813, and does not list his marriage. (See Bible Records).

Jonathan McCaleb, who willed something to every nephew and niece or their heirs, did not mention William Neil McCaleb or heirs in his will.

William McCaleb (not William Neil McCaleb) came early to Madison County, Alabama from Virginia. Mrs. Balch, of Huntsville, Alabama, has his family Bible. She copied the genealogical pages for Mrs. K. H. in 1959. In a letter which accompanied the information she stated that she used a magnifying glass in order to be absolutely correct. The Bible Record showed her ancestor to have been born November 27, 1780 and died, aged 38. Census records bear out this information.

Mrs. Wilkerson of Shelby County, Mississippi, a descendant of William McCaleb of Virginia and Alabama claims that William McCaleb of Madison County and William Neil McCaleb, son of Captain William McCaleb, to be one and the same in her D. A. R. membership papers and in a book Wilkersons and Allied Families. She also has confused the records by using Goodspeed's error concerning the marriage of William McCaleb, (1715-1775), to Caroline Calvert, instead of Sarah McAlpin. Mrs. Wilkerson is probably descended from Enos or Aneas McCaleb, who appears on the North Carolina Revolutionary roles, and who appears in Rockbridge County, Virginia in 1803 with sons, William, Samuel, Eli, and Joseph. Samuel went to Illinois. Joseph stayed in Virginia, and William and Eli appear in Madison County, Alabama records. The name Harriet Sydney appears in the Joseph and William families, as do Joseph, Thomas, William, etc. (See Vol. II).

David, son of Captain McCaleb, had a son, William Neil, who died before 1813 and before David came to Miss.

William Neil McCaleb, who died Aug. 21, 1813, aged ?3 yrs., 6 mo., and 6 days, is buried in the Popular Tent Cemetery, Carrabus Co nty, N. C. He was no doubt the son of James McCaleb, Rev. Soldier, Carrabus County, who had a daughter, Matilda Jameson, buried in the same cemetery.

LOUIS JAMES McCALEB AND (1) PAMELIA (TRIGG) McCALEB
(2) CAROLINE (BUCK) McCALEB

AND

LOUIS JAMES McCALEB married (1) PAMELIA TRIGG
(2) MRS. CAROLINE BUCK

LOUIS JAMES McCALEB, second of the children of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born in South Carolina February 17, 1772 and died in Claiborne County, Mississippi February of 1822.¹ He was buried in the Hopewell Plantation Cemetery,² Claiborne County, Mississippi. Louis James McCaleb, known to his family as "James", was twice married. He first married PAMELIA TRIGG. This marriage is recorded in the Captain William McCaleb Bible, but no date or place is given for the marriage. The placement in the Bible indicates that they were married 1794-1803. To this marriage was born a daughter.³ James McCaleb's second marriage was to a widow, MRS. CAROLINE BUCK, a native of South Carolina.⁴ It is certain that they married before 1816, because in that year she signed a land deed when James sold land to his brother, Jonathan. James and Caroline were the parents of two sons and a daughter.⁵

James McCaleb owned land in Anderson County, South Carolina in 1790. In 1800 he sold land in Oconee County, South Carolina to his brother, David McCaleb. He probably did not come to Mississippi to live until about 1806. On December 29, 1806 he was given a grant of 390 acres on the North Fork of Bayou Pierre. In 1803 James McCaleb owned 400 acres of land in Baton Rouge District, Louisiana. The Original Entry Book, Claiborne County, lists land owned by James McCaleb as 31T 12N-R4E 494.5 acres, Receipt D96. He evidently owned more than this, because in 1816 he sold 318 acres located on Booth Creek, in Claiborne County, to Samuel Lum.

James McCaleb's Bayou Pierre Plantation was known as Hopewell. Here he built a home west of the site where his son-in-law, Mr. Martin, later built his home, Talbot. James McCaleb left no will. His property was divided between his second wife and their three children. James Stuart McCaleb's share remained known as Hopewell Plantation, and Mary M. McCaleb took the part which became Talbot. By 1840 Mary M. McCaleb Martin and her husband had built a beautiful two story home on Talbot, so named because her husband was from Maryland. The rooms were large; the woodwork was exceptionally fine; it had a remarkably beautiful stair; and it had a long, wide one story front porch supported by lovely columns. It was located on a sloping, large lawn overlooking Bayou Pierre bottom land. At the foot of the hill was a pretty little spring house.

Hopewell was located on the North Fork of Bayou Pierre, near the once famous Grindstone Ford, Bayou Pierre Landing. The land was fertile, and the Natchez Trace crossed the Bayou Pierre here. Planters in this neighborhood became very prosperous and built beautiful homes for themselves. Near Hopewell was the beautiful Pleasant Hill Plantation home which was built by John Booth and later owned by John and Indiana (Booth) McCaleb. (John McCaleb, Jr. was a nephew of James McCaleb). John Taylor Moore built a mansion on Fairview Plantation. Bowling Green, which was just west of the McCaleb property, was magnificent with its large columned porches. The Watsons built a large two story home nearby.

James McCaleb was considered a bad manager by his brothers. He never became quite as wealthy as they, but he was very well off in his day. Hopewell⁶ was just across the Bayou Pierre from the Hermitage, home of Captain William McCaleb and his son, Jonathan McCaleb, and it was said that when the stream was up and unfordable, James and Jonathan would meet at the Bayou and exchange greetings across the creek. It has been said in the family that James often borrowed money, which he forgot to repay, from his brother Jonathan and that Jonathan derived a lot of fun from telling the other members of the family about these transactions. James McCaleb left no will. When his estate was settled in 1823 he owned 45 slaves valued at $17305.00. The best one was valued at $1200.00. The household goods were listed and valued at $18772.64; the farm equipment was valued at $20892.39. Malinda Ann, his daughter by his first marriage, died very shortly before he did. At his death, he left a widow and three living children. The widow later married FLETCHER CREIGHTON, a teacher, in December 18, 1828 in Claiborne County. (Book 3, p. 512). Mrs. Caroline Creighton made a will in 1846. In this will she left her property to her two living McCaleb children and to her grandson by a previous marriage, Richard Buck, of Pennsylvania. Caroline and Fletcher Creighton are buried in the Port Gibson Wintergreen Cemetery.⁷

DESCENDANTS OF LOUIS JAMES AND (1) PAMELIA (TRIGG) McCALEB
(2) CAROLINE (BUCK) McCALEB

- I. MALINDA ANN McCALEB was the daughter of Louis James and Pamela (Trigg) McCaleb. In March of 1818 James McCaleb made a deed of gift (Deed Book G Chancery Court Records, Claiborne County, Mississippi) to his daughter. This deed probably was to give her property left to her by her mother and also her child's share of property after her marriage. In May of 1822 she is mentioned by her guardian, David McCaleb, as "the infant daughter of James McCaleb". She married GEORGE LAKE in Claiborne County, Mississippi December 8, 1821. George Lake was a descendant of the very prominent Lake family of Dorchester County, Maryland. (Side Lights on Maryland History by Hester Dorsey Richardson, pp. 157-160.) They had no children. She died, a minor, in 1822. George Lake married (2) JANE BRIGGS, who was first cousin to his first wife.
- II. JAMES STUART McCALEB⁸ was the son of Louis James and Caroline (Buck) McCaleb. The McCaleb family claimed kinship with the royal Stuart family of Scotland, and it was for this family that James Stuart was named. When his father died in 1822 James S. was a minor under fourteen years of age, and he asked the Court to appoint his uncle, Jonathan McCaleb, his guardian. He died in his native Claiborne County just before the November term of Chancery Court in 1842. He married ELEANOR HALL June 26th, 1839 in Anne-Arundell County, Maryland.

The following quotation is from a letter written by Robert L. Burwell, son of Dr. Elliott and Caroline Burwell: "A son of Henry A. Hall and Annie Lyle Estep Hall brought home from the University of Virginia, during the Christmas vacation a school mate from Port Gibson, Mississippi by the name of James S. McCaleb. James S. fell in love with Eleanor Hall, a sister of his school mate. They were married June 26th, 1839 in Anne-Arundell County, Maryland, (Records in St. Anne's Church) and James took his bride to Claiborne County, Mississippi to live on his plantation on Bayou Pierre. Eleanor bore James S. McCaleb two children-James and Annie Caroline. (I believe that the name of the plantation was Hopewell and consisted of 1500 acres). She, after the death of James S. McCaleb, married, June 15, 1847, ELLIOTT BURWELL,⁹ a teacher, but later a physician, from Buffalo, New York. He, after the death of his first wife, removed to Port Gibson to practice his profession. Dr. Burwell's original ancestor in America was John Burwell, who was one of the first settlers in Milford, Connecticut where he died in 1649. Dr. Elliott Burwell was probably the McCaleb's physician because after the death of James S. McCaleb he and James McCaleb's widow were¹⁰ married June 15, 1847 at Epiphany Episcopal Church near Carlisle, Mississippi. The family lived in Claiborne County until 1854 when they sold their plantation and returned to Anne-Arundell County, Maryland to a farm called "Oakley" near Mt. Zion in the region where the Halls had lived for many years and still do. Eleanor Hall McCaleb was born at 'Tudor Hall', her father's home, March 20, 1818 and died March 1, 1894. Dr. Elliott Burwell was born March 10, 1807 and died April 14, 1884. Eleanor Burwell was a direct descendant of Henry Hall, who was sent to America by the Bishop of London in 1798 as the first Rector of Saint James, located a few miles south of Tudor Hall."

- A. JAMES McCALEB, son of James Stuart and Eleanor (Hall) McCaleb, was born July 27, 1840 in Claiborne County, and he was baptized into the Episcopal Church, Arundell County, Maryland. His birth date is recorded in Anne-Arundell County on the records of St. Ann's Parish. Orphan Court records, Claiborne County, 1855, page 336 shows that Elliott Burwell, step-father and guardian of James and Ann McCaleb, received permission of the court to move the property of James and Ann to Maryland. James and Ann had inherited property from their father and inherited $5000.00 each from their great uncle, Jonathan McCaleb. (Jonathan McCaleb remembered both Eleanor and Doctor Burwell in his will). At the outbreak of the War between the States, James McCaleb sided with the Confederacy and became a member of Company "B" Maryland Guard, 21st Va. Inf. He died of typhoid fever in Richmond, Virginia, August 22, 1861. He is buried at Christ Episcopal Church at Owensville, Anne Arundell County. Eleanor Burwell, his mother, built Christ Church in memory of her two McCaleb children, as a stain glass window attests.¹¹ (Christ Church was consecrated December 2, 1869, and is still standing. Those who have seen it say that it is very lovely.) James McCaleb never married.

B. ANN CAROLINE McCALEB was born in 1839. She was the daughter of James S. and Eleanor (Hall) McCaleb. While still a young lady, she was killed in a horse and buggy accident which resulted from her hitting a tree. She is buried in Christ Episcopal Church, which was built in her and her brother's memory by her mother.

III. MARY M. McCALEB, daughter of Louis James and Caroline (Buck) McCaleb, was born 1814 in Claiborne County, Mississippi and died in her native county in 1865. Mary M. McCaleb married WILLIAM HEYWARD MARTIN¹² May 23, 1833 in Claiborne County. The marriage was performed by Reverend Zebulon Butler, the first resident Presbyterian minister in Port Gibson. William H. Martin was born in Maryland in 1800 and died in Claiborne County in 1878 of yellow fever. He was a lawyer, a graduate of Princeton, son of Doctor Ennels Martin who served as a surgeon's mate on Doctor Shippen's Staff in the War of 1812, William Heyward Martin often told of witnessing the passage of the British ships up the Chesapeake Bay and of seeing the bombardment of Fort William Henry.

For some years William H. Martin practiced law in Port Gibson where he and his wife resided. He won the reputation of being one of the most talented Lawyers of Claiborne County, if not of the state. After a time, at the solicitation of his wife, he gave up his chosen profession and engaged in looking after his large landed interests, which were wrecked by the war. They moved to Talbot Plantation where they spent the remainder of their lives. Near Talbot, at Pleasant Hill Plantation, resided John McCaleb, son of John and Marie (Collins) McCaleb, and the Martin and McCaleb children grew up as cousins and fast friends as well as neighbors.

- A. CAROLINE M. MARTIN, daughter of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was named for her maternal grandmother. She never married and for some years she kept house for her brothers Jonathan McCaleb and Fletcher in a house which stood on the lower end of College Street in Port Gibson. (The house, which burned, was located where Waddy Abraham's home now (1964) stands.) She was a fine piano player and aspired to be a singer. She was an interesting conversationalist and had a very alert mind. Shortly before her brother Jonathan McCaleb Martin married she moved to New York City. She was living as late as 1891.¹³
- B. GEORGE HEYWARD MARTIN was the son of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin. He served in the Confederate Army. After the war he settled in Wichita Falls, Texas, where he resided until his death. It is believed he never married.
- C. FLETCHER CREIGHTON MARTIN, son of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was named for his mother's step-father. He served in the army of the Confederacy. He was a graduate of the University of Texas, and he practiced law for some years in Seymour, Texas.
- D. JAMES E. MARTIN, son of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was a student of high rank at William College. After leaving college he began devoting his attention to agriculture. He entered the Confederate army as Captain of a company of infantry (Co. I, Mississippi Battalion Army of Northern Virginia), and during his career as a soldier showed remarkable courage and bravery. He was killed September 17, 1862 at the terrible battle of Sharpsburg, having, just prior to his death, been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel of the Forty-eighth Mississippi Infantry Volunteers.

- E. WILLIAM McCaleb MARTIN, son of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, entered the Confederate service in the Claiborne Guards, in which he soon was promoted to 1st. Lieutenant but resigned this position to return home and raise a cavalry company (Magruder's Partisan Rangers) in connection with Captain Magruder, in which he assumed the role of 1st. Lieutenant. In an engagement which took place soon after, Captain Magruder was killed, and Lieutenant Martin was promoted to Captaincy of his company. Captain Martin was shot three times and was killed at Harrisburg, Mississippi July 14, 1864. (His brother, Jonathan McCaleb Martin, saw him killed). He was a young man of brilliant prospects, was a graduate of Yale College, and was expecting to make law his profession.
- F. CHARLES HENRY MARTIN, son of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin was possessed of a fine analytical mind and gave every promise of making a name and fame for himself. He served in Magruder's Partisan Rangers, CSA in War between the States. In early manhood he was assassinated by a negro.
- G. JONATHAN McCaleb MARTIN¹⁴, the sixth child of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was known sometimes as "Jon. McC." Martin. He was born in Claiborne County June 2, 1846. He received his early education under a governess and a private tutor. He attended the Seidlitz School at Port Gibson until his education was interfered with by the bursting of the war cloud which was hanging over the country, and he left the halls of education at the early age of fifteen years to shoulder his musket, don his suit of gray, and defend his country. Prior to his enlistment he had taken part in the Battle of Port Gibson, and three days after entering service he had his horse shot out from under him, this being the Battle of Harris' Landing. He became a member of the Fourth Mississippi Cavalry in 1863 and was later transferred to General Bedford Forrest's command. He served at Harrisburg, Mississippi, where he saw his brother killed, at Johnsonville, Tennessee, at the campus fight at Oxford, Mississippi, and at Selma Alabama. He surrendered at Gainsville, Alabama. After the war, he attended the University of Virginia. He held the chair of English and Mathematics at Prytonnia High School in New Orleans, and in 1874 he engaged with the White League in the famous Battle of the Levee. He was admitted to the Louisiana bar in 1875, but he returned to Port Gibson and set up a law practice the same year. He became a member of the Mississippi Legislature and introduced the bill which created the Industrial Institute and College for Women, which later became Mississippi State College for Women.¹⁵ He was a member of the Methodist Church, the I. O. O. F., the Knights and Ladies of Honor, and the American Legion of Honor.

Mr. Martin married Miss AMANDA (Wood, nee McCall) MILES, a native of Mississippi, in Port Gibson, Mississippi December 15, 1885. She was a graduate of Columbia Female Institute at Columbia, Tennessee, a member of the Episcopal Church, an intelligent and talented lady. They resided in a beautiful old home on College Street in Port Gibson. Both Jonathan McCaleb and Amanda Miles Martin are buried in the Wintergreen Cemetery at Port Gibson, Mississippi. He died July 19, 1924. Amanda Malvia (Myles), who was born February 13, 1858, died December 23, 1945. They had no children. (The Martin home stood where Dr. D. Segrest's home now stands--1963).

- H. SARAH HEYWARD MARTIN, daughter of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was a graduate of the famous Female College at New Haven, Connecticut, of which Mrs. Edwards was president. She died in 1866.
- I. MARY E. MARTIN, daughter of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was a graduate of the Female College of New Haven, Connecticut. She died of yellow fever in 1873.
- J. MALINDA ANN MARTIN, daughter of William H. and Mary M. (McCaleb) Martin, was named for her mother's sister, Malinda Ann McCaleb. She died at the age of nine years.

DAVID AND MATILDA (FARRAR) McCALEB

AND

DAVID McCaleb married MATILDA FARRAR

DAVID McCALEB, pioneer and legislator was born in South Carolina April 2, 1774.¹ He was the son of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb. As a small boy, David McCaleb proved himself a hero. During the American Revolutionary War was, while on a short visit to his home, surprised by Tory soldiers, and he hid in the woods after admonishing his children not to tell that he had been home. The Tories suspected that he was near by, as there was a freshly dressed deer in the house. They attempted to force the young David to divulge his father's hiding place and went so far as to hang him by the neck with a horse bridle. David was saved by the timely arrival of General Marion's men. Before the Tories joined battle with the fast approaching patriots, a young Tory officer, drawing his sword, cut the bridle by which David hung.

In 1800 David McCaleb was grantee of six land deeds in Anderson County, South Carolina north of what is now Pendleton end near the Seneca River. Between 1800-1803 he sold land, and in 1800 he bought land in Oconee County from his brother, James (Louis James) McCaleb.

In early manhood David McCaleb was for some years high sheriff of the Pickens District, South Carolina (Oconee South Carolina Records). Also he served as Judge.

David McCaleb married MATILDA FARRAR² daughter of Thomas and Margaret Prince Farrar³ November 20, 1794. About 1812 David and Matilda (Farrar) McCaleb and their children followed his parents to Mississippi. (About this time Thomas Farrar and his wife also came to Caliborne County, Mississippi). They first settled near Red Lick, Jefferson County subsequent to settling in Claiborne County. David McCaleb obtained land on the North Fork of Bayou Pierre near that of his father and brothers. Because of the abundance of springs on his property he named his plantation Cold Springs⁴ On Cold Springs he built a fine home. It burned, and he built another on the same site. (The latter home burned at some time after his death).

David McCaleb soon became very wealthy from cotton and slaves. When the Choctaw lands were opened he operated plantations in the Mississippi Delta.

Jonathan McCaleb also operated plantations in the Mississippi Delta. To supervise this delta farming was something of a task. They hired overseers, but they visited the plantations regularly. They rode horses to Grand Gulf, a Mississippi River port in Claiborne County, and took a river boat to the delta where they were met with horses to ride to their plantations.

David McCaleb was appointed by the President of the United States to represent Jefferson and Claiborne Counties in the territorial Legislature of Mississippi (Territorial Papers of the United States, Vol. VI, p. 21) and was a prominent member of the territorial Council.

During the threatened outbreak of the Creek and Choctaw Indians in 1813 he was a member of the Frontier Committee with Harmon Blennerhassett, a historical character.⁵ This committee met in Port Gibson September 18, 1813, after the fall of Fort Mims. Other members of the Frontier Committee were John Booth,⁶ Moses Shelby,⁷ and Captain Briscoe. On the Central Committee were Samuel Gibson, Col. Ralph Regan, Col. Thomas Farrar, Daniel Burnett, and Thomas Barnes. David and Matilda Farrar were both devout members of Epiphany Episcopal Church. They contributed to a building fund to build this church, and David McCaleb gave the beautiful old hand-pump pipe organ to Epiphany.⁸

The McCalebs often were guests and also entertained the Davis family of which Jefferson Davis was a member. David William McCaleb, son of David and Matilda (Farrar) McCaleb, married the daughter of General Joseph Davis, brother of Jefferson Davis who was the only president of the Confederate States of America.

David and Matilda McCaleb are both buried in the Cold Springs family cemetery. She died October 12, 1844, and he died March 4, 1850.

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID AND MATILDA (FARRAR) McCALEB

I. THOMAS FARRAR McCALEB, son of David and Matilda (Farrar) McCaleb, was born in South Carolina November 29, 1795. He served as lieutenant in the Confederate army in the War of 1812 in Captain Green's Company of Mississippi. He graduated with honors from Princeton College, New Jersey, studied law and established himself in 1818 in New Orleans, where he obtained eminence in his profession. In those halcyon days of the profession in New Orleans he was of counsel in nearly every important case before the Supreme Court of the State, also representing in that capacity Donaldson, the founder of the town of Donaldsonville, Louisiana, and John McDonogh, the eccentric philanthropist.

Elected Secretary of State in 1831, he did not live to complete his term of office, as he expired of cholera November 5th, 1832 in New Orleans. He was brought home to Cold Springs Plantation for burial. The obituary from the "Louisiana Courier of November 7, 1832, page 1, Column 3 says: "Thomas Farrar McCaleb, esq., late Secretary of State of Louisiana and a distinguished member of the bar, will be mourned as his friends and society will be deprived of an object of their dearest affection, and his country mourns at his tomb the premature loss of his talents".

Thomas McCaleb married MARY ANN CURTIS⁹ about 1820. Only one child, a son, was born to this couple. Thomas Farrar McCaleb was a slave owner in 1830 and owned 12 slaves (Census 1830). He became extremely wealthy, and he invested in a great acreage around Biloxi Bay, Biloxi, Mississippi. He had in his possession a pair of beautiful china vases, which William and Sarah (MacAlpin) McCaleb are said to have brought with them from Scotland when they immigrated to America.¹⁰ A very fine portrait of Thomas McCaleb hangs in the Edgar Morris home in Port Gibson, Mississippi. It was willed to Theodore Howard McCaleb by his father, David McCaleb.

A. CHARLES EUGENIUS McCALEB, son of Thomas and Mary (Curtis) McCaleb, was born in New Orleans, Louisiana in 1821. (Census Record of Harrison County, Mississippi). JOHN AND MARIA MERTLI. (COLLINS) McGALEB

AND

JOHN McCaleb married MARIA McRILL COLLINS

JOHN McCaleb, pioneer and planter, son of Captain William and Ann (McCaleb), was born in South Carolina March 12, 1777¹. He was educated as an engineer. He was only twenty-two years of age when he came to Mississippi with his parents in 1799. In 1808 he was given by or purchased from his father the land which Captain McCaleb had purchased of William Marshall in 1799. This land was about twelve miles north of Natchez in the section which came to be known as the Pine Ridge Community. The old King's Road connected this community with Natchez. Here lived many aristocratic old families among whom were the Collins, Dunbar, Samuel Marshall, Peter Bisland, Shields, and Samuel Chamberlain families. John McCaleb named this plantation Peachland, and here he engaged in merchandising and planting. Soon he gave up his merchandising business and followed planting, exclusively. In 1806 he obtained a land grant of 650 acres on the Bayou Pierre in Claiborne County, Mississippi. This plantation he named Elmwood. In 1808 he bought a large tract of land in Jefferson County, Mississippi, which he paid for with 6400 pounds of baled cotton. Each of these properties he operated as a unit, (so many slaves to each hundred acres). He became a leading planter by increasing his lands every few years (Adams, Jefferson, and Claiborne County land deeds). He raised cotton, mules, and owned many slaves. He was thorough going and enterprising and was well on the way to becoming extremely wealthy when he died, a young man.

In 1803 John McCaleb was one of the commissioners appointed to purchase land for a county seat for Claiborne County. "On the 12th of March, 1803, the legislature had passed an Act defining the boundary between Jefferson and Claiborne counties, and establishing the seat of Justice for the latter 'the place commonly called Gibson's Landing, on the South Fork of the Bayou Pierre'. By the same Act, Thomas White, David Burnet, G. W. Humphreys, and John McCaleb were appointed commissioners to purchase two acres of land from Samuel Gibson, and to contract for the erection of a court house, jail, stock, pillory, and whipping post. Two acres, the site of the present court house and jail, were accordingly bought, and James Davenport undertook the erection of the public buildings and completed them that winter." (Biographical and Historical Memoirs of Mississippi by Goodspeed Pub. Co., 1891, Vol. II, p. 213).

John McCaleb married MARIA McRILL COLLINS, daughter of William and Jane (Pipes) Collins², at the home of her parents at Pine Ridge, Adams County, Mississippi, July 22, 1805 (Jefferson Co., Miss. Marriage Records). William Collins,³ her father, owned land adjoining that of John McCaleb in Adams County. At the time of her marriage Maria Collins was under age and had to have the consent of her parents. (Capt. McCaleb gives the date of marriage as July 4, 1805).

John McCaleb built a beautiful home for his wife in his Peachland Plantation. It was not as pretentious as that of some of the later homes in the neighborhood, but it was large, graceful, and comfortable. The home stood in a large, fairly level park. It had wide upper and lower porches across the front of the white clapboard house and had several ells. It was wrecked or razed for the lumber about 1960.

John McCaleb's son, John McCaleb, Jr., often told his children about his father's encounter with Mason, the notorious Natchez Trace highwayman, who tried unsuccessfully to stop and rob his father. John McCaleb, Sr. was riding along the Trace between Rockey Springs and his home when Mason stepped from behind a tree and caught at his bridle reins. John was surprised but raised his loaded riding crop and beat Mason off and escaped. He said that it all happened so suddenly that he had no time to become frightened until it was all over and he realized that the highwayman was really Mason, who more often than not, killed his victims after robbing them.⁴

John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb had seven or eight children. Maria (Collins) McCaleb and her children inherited land and slaves from her mother and father, Jane and William Collins, (See Wills).

John McCaleb died at Peachland July 18, 1823. He was buried in the Peachland cemetery, located back of the Peachland home. His tombstone is inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of John McCaleb who departed this life July 18, 1823 aged 46 years". Maria (Collins) McCaleb and Jonathan McCaleb, brother of Jonathan McCaleb, were made guardians for John McCaleb's minor children (Adams County, Miss. Orphan Court Records).

Maria (Collins) McCaleb, an unusually beautiful woman, married (2) William A. Miskell of Natchez, September 4, 1826 (Adams Co. Book 5, p. 22). There probably was one child born to this marriage.⁵ In 1827 W. H. and Maria Miskell sold Elmwood, the plantation owned by John McCaleb in Claiborne County. Maria Miskell often went to Graham Springs, Kentucky for her health and to visit her daughter, Mary (McCaleb) Rochester, in or near Danville. It was on one of these trips that she died about 1830. She probably was buried in the Rochester lot in Danville, Kentucky. W. A. Miskell married (2) Miss Jack.

Eliza Jane McCaleb is assumed to be a child of John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb, because she was buried in their cemetery behind their Peachland home.

Caroline McCaleb's name appears in the Natchez paper June 7, 1827 as follows: "Married-on Tuesday evening last, at the residence of Thomas Ford, Esq. by Rev. M. Carson, Mr. Nannen Balance to Miss Caroline McCaleb, all of this county, M. S. and M. G. June 7, 1827". This Caroline McCaleb is probably the daughter of Daniel McCaleb who settled about 1807 on Cole Creek and married in Jefferson County. (See Jefferson County marriage records and military service of Daniel McCaleb).

It has not been determined what, if any, kin Daniel and Alexander McCaleb were to Capt. William McCaleb. They came the early part of the 18th century.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND MARIA (COLLINS) McCALEB

I. ELIZA JANE McCALEB, daughter of John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb, was born at Peachland Plantation, Adams County, Mississippi, the home of her parents. She was named for her mother's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth (Collins) Chamberlain, and for her grandmother, Jane (McAfee) Collins. She died as a child and was buried in the Peachland family cemetery. This cemetery caved into a bayou. Part of Eliza Jane's tombstone was found and placed in the side yard of Peachland alongside that of her father's tombstone.

II. INDIANA McCALEB, daughter of John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb, was born about 1807 or 1808 at Peachland. She married WILLIAM A. BOUGHAN January 1, 1824 in Adams County, Mississippi. (Book 3, p. 75⁶) Deed Book B, p. 466 Adams County Records refers to William A. Boughan as a resident of Natchez and states that his wife, Indiana Boughan, was an heir of John McCaleb and that she settled her claim with the other children of John McCaleb February 2, 1827. He may have owned property or resided in West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana before he resided in Natchez. In 1834 William A. Miskell gave a gift to Indiana Boughan and children (Adams County, Books p. 344). Evidently Indiana (McCaleb) and William H. Boughan died before 1834-1847, as their daughter, Ann Boughan, was an orphan about that time.

A. ANNE ELIZABETH BOUGHAN, daughter of William A. and Indiana (McCaleb) Boughan, was born about 1825 (Adams County Census). Her father left her some real estate and her great uncle, Jonathan McCaleb, willed her money. After the death of her parents she lived in the home of her great aunt, Elizabeth (Collins) Chamberlain, whose husband Samuel Chamberlain was Anne Boughan's guardian. In 1847 Samuel Chamberlain told the Court that Anne E. Boughan was in school and that he had been supporting her. He felt that she should stay in school, but that her property was bringing in no income. He wanted to sell some of her real estate in order to keep her in school. The Coffee House was mentioned.

Anne Boughan was married to WILLIAM STANTON in Adams County, Mississippi February 23, 1854, by Rev. B. H. Williams (Marriage Book 7, p. 229 Adams County Marriage Records). There were children born to this marriage.

Anne E. (Boughan) Stanton's portrait hangs beside that of her husband in Stanton Hall, a beautiful Natchez mansion, which at present is owned by a Natchez Pilgrimage Club.

B. INDIANA BOUGHAN, daughter of William A. and Indiana (McCaleb) Boughan was born 1831. She appears on the census of 1850 living in the home of Samuel and Eliazbeth Chamberlain, her guardians. She died before 1853

III. DAVID WILLIAM McCALEB⁷, son of John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb, was born in 1809 in Adams County, Mississippi (For date of birth see Orphan Court Records, Adams County, Mississippi). She was the grand daughter of John Bisland and the daughter of James Dunbar. She inherited a large tract of land, which was a part of a Dunbar Spanish grant, from her grandfather's estate May 18, 1830. David W. became a prosperous farmer and a large slave holder. His plantation, known as Locust Grove, was located about five miles north of Fayette, Mississippi. Three children were born to David and Matilda (Dunbar) McCaleb. He died November 14, 1842 at Peachland Plantation, the home of his brother, James Franklin McCaleb. Ann Matilda (Dunbar) McCaleb married (2) JAMES G. GARRETT September 6, 1845 in Jefferson County. Two daughters were born to this marriage. Cordelia Jane Garrett, born July 12, 1846 and died February 25, 1925, married Ben Y. Wade February 1, 1869. Sallie Wilson Garrett, born August 22, 1862, died June 8, 1932, unmarried. Ann (Dunbar) Garrett died 1861.⁸

HARRISON April 8, 1830 (Jefferson County marriage records). She was the daughter of Richard and Hannah Brown (Sims) Harrison, who came to Jefferson County before 1781, and the granddaughter of Richard and Martha (Truly) Harrison of Virginia. (Richard Harrison saw service in the Revolutionary War as Lieutenant of artillery, Virginia State Troops and as captain of an Illinois Regiment under General George Rogers Clark)¹⁵ Francis McCaleb appears on the Adams County, Mississippi census of 1830 as a male 20-30 years of age with no children. Deed Book B, Jefferson County shows that Francis McCaleb was a resident of Yazoo County, Mississippi in 1833 and that in that year he borrowed $10,000 from his father-in-law, Richard Harrison of Jefferson County, Mississippi, and put up his slaves, by name, as security. Francis McCaleb does not appear on the Yazoo County census, and it seems logical to believe that he died about this time. Another reason to believe that he died without issue is that his Uncle Jonathan McCaleb, who was his guardian, did not mention him, his wife, or heirs in his will of 1853.

VIII. JOHN McCALEB, JR., son of John and Marie (Collins) McCaleb, was born August 14, 1823 about one month after the death of his father.³³ He was born at Peachland Plantation, Adams County, Mississippi, and it was here that he spent his early years. He, like his brothers and sisters, was taught by a private tutor. He attended Centre College in Kentucky. He, as did his brothers and sisters, inherited property and money from his Collins grandparents, from his parents, and from his Uncle Jonathan McCaleb. Jonathan McCaleb and Samuel Chamberlain, his uncle by marriage, were his guardians.³⁴ As a boy and young man John McCaleb often visited his uncle Jonathan McCaleb at the Hermitage Plantation in Claiborne County, Mississippi. It was on one of these visits that he met INDIANA BOOTH, who was born July 28, 1827 at Pleasant Hill Plantation, Claiborne County, Mississippi, and who was the daughter of John and Sarah (Prior) Booth and the granddaughter of John Booth, Sr.,³⁵ a Revolutionary War soldier. They were married April 10, 1845 at her parents' Pleasant Hill home (Book 6, p. 12) by Rev. B. H. Williams, Bishop of Presbyterian Church, Pine Ridge, Mississippi. They made their home with John and Sarah (Prior) Booth because Indiana (Booth) McCaleb was an only child, sole heir to her fathers large plantation, and her parents wanted her at home. In 1848 she inherited Pleasant Hill Plantation. Here she and John McCaleb made their home, and here their children were born. John McCaleb was very prosperous. He owned many slaves and increased his lands. He and his wife were members of Epiphany Episcopal Church and they reared their children in the Episcopal faith. John McCaleb contracted tuberculosis and died at 33 years of age December 18, 1856 at 2 P. M. Indiana (Booth) McCaleb contracted the disease from her husband, and she, too, died at 33 years of age July 6, 1860 at 3 P. M. Both were buried in the Booth Pleasant Hill Cemetery within sight of their home.

A. JOHN BOOTH McCALEB, son of John and Indiana (Booth) McCaleb, was born January 8, 1846 at Pleasant Hill

Plantation,³⁶ Claiborne County, Mississippi. He was only ten years old when his father died. His mother died four years later. He received his early schooling at home under a private tutor. He was sent to Danville, Kentucky to school when he was thirteen years old. At the outbreak of the War between the States he came home. He served in the Confederate forces in Barnes' Cavalry until a few months before the end of the war. He came home on furlough in May 1864 to find his orphan sisters living in the home of the Rollins family in Port Gibson, no one at home, Pleasant Hill ravaged, the stored cotton crop burned. He knew that the cause was hopeless and that he was needed at home. Instead of returning to the war, he married his sweetheart, ANNIE ROLLINS, May 12, 1864 at her home in Port Gibson. She was born July 14, 1845. John and Annie (Rollins) McCaleb took his young sisters back to Pleasant Hill and began the job of rebuilding the plantation which had been so neglected during the war. James Franklin McCaleb, brother of John Booth McCaleb, was still in the army of the Confederacy, but soon the war was over, and he returned to the plantation. The task of saving the plantation was too much for two young boys, and eventually it was lost. John McCaleb³⁷ died at Martin (Pattison) Mississippi December 15, 1911 at the age of 66 years. Annie (Rollins) McCaleb died at Pattison (Martin), Mississippi September 29, 1928 at the age of 83 years. Both are buried in the Port Gibson Wintergreen Cemetery. John Booth McCaleb was a member of Epiphany Episcopal Church of Claiborne County, Mississippi.

1. ROSE ANNIE McCALEB, daughter of John Booth and Annie (Rollins) McCaleb, was born July 25, 1868 at Pleasant Hill Plantation. She lived with her father and mother at Pattison, Mississippi. After the death of her father she continued to live in the family home. She was very beautiful and she worked very hard. She supported herself, her mother, and her orphaned nephew by running a boarding house. Late in life she married JOSEPH EDWIN REGAN August 18, 1924. She was later estranged from him. She died in Jackson, Mississippi in 1944 and is buried in the Wintergreen cemetery at Port Gibson, Mississippi. There was no issue from her marriage.

2. PERCY ROLLINS McCALEB, son of John Booth and Annie (Rollins) McCaleb, was born August 2, 1866 at Pleasant Hill, Claiborne County, Mississippi. He married MARGARET ELIZABETH "BESSIE" MAGEE³⁸ March 28, 1901 at Brookhaven, Mississippi. Both died young of tuberculosis. He died February 19, 1910, and she died February 23, 1911, age 28 years, 23 days. Both are buried in the Port Gibson Wintergreen Cemetery.

a. DUNCAN BENNETT McCALEB, son of Percy Rollins and Margaret Elizabeth (Magee) McCaleb, was born January 6, 1902. He attended the public school at Pattison, Mississippi and later the Presbyterian preparatory school at Union Church, Mississippi. In 1920 he enlisted in the United States Navy. He made the navy his career. During World War II he served as chief engineer and was promoted to naval commander. January 3, 1932 he married PEARL LYNN, daughter of Alma H. and Rhoroda Caroline Lynn of Panguitch, Utah, at her father's home in San Diego, California. She was born July 28, 1905. They were married in San Diego, California. The couple have no children. He is retired from active duty, and they reside San Diego, California.

b. MARGARET ROLLINS McCALEB, daughter of Percy Rollins and Margaret Elizabeth (Magee) McCaleb, was born March 8, 1904 and died of diphtheria December 12, 1906. She is buried in the Port Gibson Wintergreen Cemetery.

3. LUCY M. McCALEB, daughter of John Booth and Annie (Rollins) McCaleb) was born August 27, 1870 and died October 17, 1872.

5. JOHN BOOTH "MAX" McCALEB, JR., son of John Booth and Annie (Rollins) McCaleb, was born June 30, 1877 and died January 1, 1900. He was buried in the Port Gibson Wintergreen Cemetery. He never married.

F. SARAH ELIZABETH "SALLY" McCALEB, daughter of John and Indiana (Booth) McCaleb, was born January 28, 1847 at Pleasant Hill Plantation, Claiborne County, Mississippi. She never married. She died of tuberculosis September 13, 1864 at Pleasant Hill. She was named for an ancestor, Sarah (MacAlpin) McCaleb and for her aunt, Elizabeth Booth.

G. MARY MARTIN "MOLLY" McCALEB, was born May 3, 1851 at Pleasant Hill in Claiborne County, Mississippi. She was named for her cousin Mary Martin, a descendant of James and Caroline (Buck) McCaleb. (The Martins lived on Talbot Plantation which adjoined Pleasant Hill Plantation. The Martin and McCaleb children were close friends as well as kinsmen.) Molly McCaleb was quite young when her parents died. In 1860 James Franklin McCaleb of Pine Ridge and H. N. Spencer of Claiborne County were her guardians. Much against the wishes of her family she married her first cousin, Jonathan "Bosey" McCaleb April 9, 1874. He was the son of James Franklin and Sophie (Moore) McCaleb of Pine Ridge, Adams County, Mississippi. The couple resided on his property at Pine Ridge neighborhood. (See the descendants of James F. and Sophie (Moore) McCaleb). She died June 26, 1902.³⁹

D. JAMES FRANKLIN McCALEB, son of John and Indiana (Booth) McCaleb, was born October 29, 1848 at Pleasant Hill Plantation, Claiborne County, Mississippi. He received his early education under a private tutor. Later he boarded in the home of Judge Baldwin and attended the Seidlitz private school at Port Gibson until the war interfered with his education. At the age of fourteen he shouldered his musket, donned a uniform of gray, and went to defend his country.

James Franklin McCaleb⁴⁰ was restless after his brother and his Martin cousins (Descendants of James and Caroline (Buck) McCaleb) went to join the Confederate army. He finally decided to go himself, though he was only fourteen years of age. His guardian, Dr. William McCaleb, had settled his orphan sisters with the Rollins family in Port Gibson for the duration of the war. James Franklin McCaleb bade them farewell, went to Pleasant Hill to see what could be done before leaving, to pack what he needed, and to pick up his body servant. At Pleasant Hill he found much confusion. The overseer had gone, and the negroes were very frightened at the rumors of the eminent arrival of the Yankees. While he was still at his home a detachment of Yankee soldiers rode in. They pillaged the home, burned the stored cotton, and drove off most of the livestock. They were unable to find the silver which had been hidden by the negro houseman. They took James F. McCaleb to the graveyard, a short distance from the house, and there they threatened to hang him unless he gave them the silver. He said afterward that he did not know where the silver was hidden and that he was not afraid that they would hang him, but he was afraid that they would whip him. They did neither, and they did not get the silver. Next day he set out with his body servant to find his brother or his Martin cousins. He found the Martins and enlisted in Company C, 4th Mississippi Regiment in Magruder's Partisan Rangers. He acted mostly as courier. After the war, James Franklin McCaleb came home to Pleasant Hill and began the task of helping his brother put Pleasant Hill back into production. December 19, 1872 he married KATY HULL,⁴¹ daughter of P. C. and Caroline (Bethea⁴²) Hull, at her father's "Hull Home". Because Katy (Hull) McCaleb's mother had died, she felt that she had to stay at Hull Home and make a home for her father and her four young sisters. James Franklin and Katy (Hull) McCaleb made their home at

Hull Home, and P. C. Hull willed them the home and a large portion of the plantation. Katy (Hull) McCaleb died May 25, 1896 at 3 P.M. at Hull Home. For about sixteen years after her death James Franklin McCaleb and his daughter made Hull Home⁴³ their home. Because of poor health, and because his son had lost his wife and was left with two small children, James Franklin McCaleb and his daughter decided to move into his son's home in Hermanville, Mississippi. In this way the daughter could care for her father and her brother's household. James Franklin McCaleb died in the home of his son at Hermanville September 1914. Both he and his wife were buried in the Hull-Moore Cemetery.⁴⁴

As a child James Franklin McCaleb liked to play war games and pretended that he was General Zachary Taylor, and for this reason his sisters nicknamed him "Zack". His brother called him "Tim", and his friends called him "Jimmy".

1. HOPE McCALEB, son of James Franklin and Katy (Hull) McCaleb, was born September 30, 1873 and died in 1876. He was buried in the Moore Cemetery.

2. JAMES FRANKLIN McCALEB, JR., son of James Franklin and Katy (Hull) McCaleb, was born August 10, 1875 at Hull Home, Claiborne County, Mississippi. He attended private school at home until he was seventeen years of age. This school was conducted in the large schoolroom which was an annex of the main house. The teachers were Anna and Nona Hull, aunts of James Franklin McCaleb, Jr., who were graduates of St. Mary's of Louisiana and of Whitworth College. Four neighboring planters employed these ladies to teach their children at Hull Home. The South had not yet recovered from the war and Reconstruction, and times were hard. James Franklin McCaleb could not afford to go to college. Because he had a very keen mind, a good foundation of knowledge, and a love of reading, he became a well educated person. He always believed in education, and it was largely through his untiring efforts that his community had the first consolidated public school in Claiborne County. James Franklin McCaleb, Jr. began work as a clerk in a store. He later owned his own mercantile business. He purchased a farm adjoining that of his father and farmed as a side line. At the death of his father, he and his sister inherited Hull Place.⁴⁵

James Franklin McCaleb, Jr. married (1) ELLA CLARK, daughter of John and Roberta (Trim) Clark, August 25, 1904 in Claiborne County, Mississippi. She was born April 12, 1880 in Claiborne County, Mississippi. Soon after James F. and Ella (Clark) McCaleb married they bought a home in Hermanville, Mississippi. Here two children were born to them, and here

she died May 19, 1912.⁴⁶

After the death of Ella (Clark) McCaleb, James McCaleb's sister and father came to live with him. The sister, Sutie (Cora) McCaleb, helped her brother care for and make a home for his children. James Franklin McCaleb, Jr. married (2) MATTIE BELLE STEGALL November 22, 1914 in Jackson, Mississippi. She was a native of Copiah County, Mississippi and was the daughter of Joel Sims and Alice (Colliers) Stegall.⁴⁷ She was born March 9, 1890. Mattye Belle (Stegall) McCaleb was known to her husband and his two children as "Stiggie". She was deeply beloved by her husband's children and was a real mother to them to the day of her death. Six years after her marriage to James Franklin McCaleb a daughter was born to them. James Franklin McCaleb retired from business at eighty years of age. His few retirement years were very happy. He died in the Claiborne County Hospital April 10, 1959 after a very short illness. Mayyte Belle (Stegall) McCaleb died at the Mercy Hospital, Vicksburg, Mississippi December 16, 1959 after she had major surgery.

Katy McCaleb Headley has the following remarks to say of her parents: " I admired my father more than anyone in the world. I coveted his approval more than anything else. Daddy had dark hair and dark brown eyes. In later years he lost the hair on the top of his head and was partially bald. He was only about five feet six inches tall. He had the most beautiful mouth and smile. He was always gentle, indulgent, and understanding. He loved to read, and he had a most rentive mind. He never made much money, but he saw to it that his family had comforts and lived graciously. He despised a liar more than anything. Above all else he loved his family and enjoyed nothing so much as having them near him. He was a generous man, and I recall that he often sent groceries to old or sick negroes. He was accustomed to negro servants and always employed one or two. His mind was keen and alert, and though in late years he became a little deaf and his eyesight became poor, his mental faculties were good until his death. He was a member of the Epiphany Episcopal Church and he was a Mason. He voted the Democratic ticket.

My mother, Ella (Clark) McCaleb, died when I was a very small child. I remember very little about her except that she was a remarkably beautiful woman.

My mother, "Stiggie" McCaleb (We never used the word "step-mother") was a small slender woman. She had golden naturally curly hair and blue eyes. She was always neat and well groomed. She was the kindest and most unselfish person I ever knew. She was good to all of us, and she never ran out of ways to make us happy. She never made an unkind remark about anyone. She was miserable if there was any dissention, and she would not tolerate quarreling or unpleasantness. Stiggie was a member of the Epiphany Episcopal Church. When I think of her I think of love. When I lost her, I lost not only a mother but the best friend and companion I ever had".-----Katy McCaleb Headley, tribute.

1. Notation by Katy McCaleb Headley: Though I know several members of the family who have seen the John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb family Bible, I have been unable to locate it.

John McCaleb's birth, marriage, and death dates are recorded in the Captain William McCaleb Bible. His birth and age are recorded on his tombstone. The tombstones of John McCaleb and "Eliza Jane" were found half buried in the ground on the side of a stream bank back of the Peachland home by Mrs. Louise Henderson, owner of Peachland and a descendant of John McCaleb. These tombstones are all that is left of the Peachland cemetery which caved into the stream. Mrs. Henderson placed the stones in the side yard of Peachland where they still remain.

Biographical Memoirs of Mississippi, published by the Goodspeed Company, Vol. I, p. 1170 gives a short biography of John McCaleb. The account has one serious error. It names Caroline Calvert instead of Sarah MacAlpin as the paternal grandmother of John McCaleb. This is probably the origin of the error which has caused confusion to some.

Census records give John McCaleb as John N. McCaleb.

2. William Collins, born in Ireland, was the son of John and Mary Abraham (Odam) Collins who came to Natchez and obtained a land grant March 20, 1778. Mary (Odam) Collins married (2) Parker Carradine. She and John Collins had three sons, John, born 1766, Joshua, born 1758, and William, born 1759. (McBee Collection of Miss. Court Records).

Jane Pipes, b. Nov. 18, 1769, d. Adams County, Miss. 1830. She was daughter of Jane or Jeannete (MacAfee) and Windsor Pipes. (See Pipes Family published by Mrs. Elizabeth Prather Ellsberry of Chillicothe, Mo.

3. Court Records Adams County 1781 show that William Collins was the son of John and Mary Abraham (Odam) Collins show that he was b. 1759. Source Material for Mississippi, Vol. 32, Part II, Jefferson Co., Miss. states that William Collins was a militia officer 1789-Ensign.

4. This story was told to me by my father, who heard it from his father, and by Dr. Jas. F. McCaleb, who heard it from his father. K. H.

5. Elizabeth Chamberlain, sister of Maria (Collins)McCaleb heirs were named in the settlement of her estate. She named as the heirs the McCaleb children of her sister and William A. Miskell, her nephew, son of her sister's second marriage. (Estate Box 183, Adams Co., Miss. Elizabeth Chamberlain owned Forest Plantation at Pine Ridge, Adams Co.)

9. This year date should probably be 1873.

10. Information concerning the descendants of James Franklin McCaleb, son of David William McCaleb, was given to me by J. V. McCaleb of Bunkie, Louisiana. Mrs. Geraldine Yglesias, 2925 Robertson Ave., Baton Rouge, La. is the daughter of Gerald McCaleb.

11. The Stowers family were early settlers in Adams and Jefferson counties.

12. Burch and McCaleb families also married early in N. C. (See Vol. II) in Dublin County.

13. Information concerning William D. and Maude (Self) McCaleb and their descendants came from Mr. Charles F. Darden of Beaumont, Texas.

14. Francis McCaleb may have been buried in the Old Peachland Cemetery, which caved into a stream. There are no markers for him or his wife in the Old Harrison cemetery in Jefferson County, Mississippi.

17. It is possible and probable that James and Sophie (Moore) McCaleb were buried in the Peachland Plantation Cemetery which caved into the creek.

The home was a large two story plantation, colonial type. Along the front of the house upper and lower porches extended the full breadth. An upper and a lower hall ran through the depth of the house. On either side of the halls were two large rooms. On the ground floor two of these adjoining rooms were separated by folding doors and were used as double parlors. Jonathan McCaleb, his Uncle willed him $5000.00. Samuel McCaleb stated in his will that William Briggs McCaleb was not temperate and was given to wasting his property so he left his inheritance in trust with Solomon W. Downs as trustee. May 8, 1845 William Briggs McCaleb married ELIZA PARKER in Ouachita Parish, Louisiana. In 1882 he sold land there.

5. A will on record in Ouachita Parish and signed by Soloman Downs was made November 8, 1849 and mentions no wife or children. There seems to be some error here. Ouachita Parish marriage records give marriage of Mrs. Ann M. Downs to John G. Taylor March 9, 1858 and Soloman W. Downs married Louisiana Mitchell February 18, 1868. The latter Downs may have been Soloman W. Down's sister's son who took his name.

JONATHAN McCaleb

JANE McCaleb

MATILDA McCaleb

JONATHAN McCALEB

JONATHAN McCALEB, son of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born in the Pendleton District, South Carolina December 16, 1786.¹ At the age of eleven years he came to Mississippi when his parents emigrated from South Carolina to the Natchez District of West Florida and settled on the north fork of Bayou Pierre in what is now Claiborne County, Mississippi. Jonathan McCaleb was afflicted with a club foot about which he was sensitive but never morbid. He, like his brothers, was an educated and Christian gentleman. There are at least two portraits of Jonathan McCaleb in existence. Both were painted by Thomas Healy, an artist and portrait painter of some note.² Jonathan McCaleb inherited all of his father's estate with the understanding that any of the family who needed financial aid was to get it, but that the bulk of the property would be held together until it had increased enough in value or until Jonathan McCaleb thought it wise to divide it. Jonathan McCaleb increased the value of the property and acquired and increased the slaves. He also bought land of his own in Claiborne and Adams counties. When the Mississippi Delta was opened to settlers he acquired a very large plantation known as "Mosquito Plantation" and another plantation in the Delta near Glenn Allen which he called "Greenfield Plantation". To visit and oversee these plantations he traveled by horse or carriage from the Hermitage to Grand Gulf and there took a river boat to the Delta. Greenfield Plantation consisted of 244 acres and brought $110,000.00 when it was sold after his death. The negroes from this plantation sold for $40,650.00, and the equipment brought $9,032. Jonathan McCaleb became one of the wealthiest men in the rich section where he lived. It is estimated that at one time he owned about 30,000 acres of land, and at his death he left $134,000.00 in cash to his relatives. During his life, though he never married, he always had several nieces and nephews living in his home. He gave large sums of money, slaves, plantations, and lots to the less fortunate members of his family in his life time. He willed the Hermitage Plantation to his nephew Theodore Howard McCaleb. Although he was beloved by his family for his generosity and lavish gifts, it was his kindness and gentleness and fairness which endeared him to each member of the family. He believed in the Church and a deed of gift in Washington County, Mississippi shows that he gave four acres of land on Lake Washington on which to erect St. John's Episcopal Church. The materials for this church were imported. He left a yearly income to his Episcopal minister and a lump sum seen to the minister's daughter. Jonathan McCaleb died April 11, 1853 at the Hermitage. He was buried in the Hermitage cemetery and his grave like most of the other graves is covered by a large table top marble slab, and the sides are bricked in to make a vault.

JANE McCaleb

JANE McCaleb, daughter of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born April 22, 1789 in the Pendleton District, South Carolina. She came to Mississippi in 1799 with her parents. She never married, and she made her home at the Hermitage with her parents until her death, March 31, 1813, aged 25 years, and she is buried in the Hermitage cemetery alongside her parents.³

MATILDA McCaleb

MATILDA McCaleb, the youngest child of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born in the Pendleton District of South Carolina February 23, 1793. There seems to be little doubt that she died in South Carolina before her parents came to Mississippi in 1799.⁴

1. Dates of birth and death can be verified in the Captain William McCaleb Bible and by the inscription on his tombstone.
2. One is owned by Mrs. Katy McCaleb of Port Gibson and the other by William McCaleb of Carlisle, Mississippi.
3. Dates of birth and death were taken from her tombstone and from the Captain William McCaleb Bible.
4. The Captain McCaleb Bible lists birth, marriages, and deaths in chronological order. Matilda McCaleb is listed as the first death. The date was burned off when the Bible partially burned. In Captain McCaleb's will Jane McCaleb is mentioned as the youngest living daughter. There is no tombstone at the Hermitage for Matilda McCaleb as there is for each other child.

FAMILY RECORDS-FROM THE WILLIAM AND ANN (MACKEY) McCALEB BIBLE.

The following sworn statement by Alfred Francis McCaleb, along with photostatic copies of the remains of the Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb Bible are in the possession of Katy McC. Headley, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

"I have in my possession a family Bible published by Phoenix N. Wood & Company of Baltimore, John D. Toy, Printer. The date of publication is not shown but it was prior to 1864 because some of the family entries in the handwriting of my grandfather, Theodore Howard McCaleb, who died in that year at the Hermitage Plantation, Claiborne County, Mississippi. The direct entries in that Bible concern him and his wife, children and descendants. With this Bible, however, is a family record from an older Bible. My father, Dr. Jonathan Howard McCaleb, brought both Bibles, along with numerous other books and records, from the old Hermitage Library to my mother's family home at China Grove Plantation, near Lettersworth, Pointe Coupee Parish, Louisiana, in the 1890's. About 1900 China Grove House burned and most of the library was destroyed including most of the older Bible. Some of the family record from the old Bible was salvaged and attached hereto is a photostatic copy of that old family record which I have in my possession.

Photostatic copies of the Family Record are attached and made a part hereof.

The inscription taken from the marker of Martha Bisland

McCaleb at Pine Ridge Presbyterian Churchyard show her passing as May 30, 1900. The death of James Bisland as shown by his marker at Pine Ridge, June 17, 1849 conflicts with the Court Records at Natchez, Adams County, Mississippi. HISTORY TOLD IN OLD LETTERS AND LEGENDS

EXCERPTS FROM A GENEALOGY COMPILED BY DR. JAMES FOULHOUZA

McCALEB

"William McCaleb, or McKillop, as the name was originally spelled, was born in Invernesshire, Scotland, 1715, son of the Highland Chieftan, William McCaleb and his wife, Mary McDonnell of the clan McDonnell. His father fought at the battle of Preston-Moor. He fought with his major clan McDonald at the battle of Culloden 1746. Being pursued by the army of William Duke of Cumberland, he fled to Ireland with his consort, Sarah McAlpin, daughter of Chief McAlpin and immigrated from Dublin, landing in Charleston, province of South Carolina in the same year.

"William McCaleb and his family settled with the exiled followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie in the south of Saluda in Pendleton District, South Carolina. He died in 1775. His son, William McCaleb, pioneer, soldier and legislator, was born in Pendleton District, South Carolina 1747. He fought under General Marion and Pickens in the American Revolutionary War, commanding a company of Hussars or Horse of the 91st Militia, South Carolina Line. He participated in the battle of Camden, Eutaw Springs, 96 and the siege of Charleston. After the war he represented the South of Saluda with his colleague, General Wade Hampton, in the South Carolina convention that ratified the Federal Constitution. Captain McCaleb married Ann MaKey, a South Carolina heroine of the Revolutionary War, whose clan colors are Blue and Green, like those of the Marquis of Lorne. They migrated in 1798 to the Spanish province of Florida, Natchez District, settling on the Big Bayou Pierre, Claiborne County, Mississippi where they established the Hermitage Plantation. He died in 1813 and is buried on that plantation."

The above was included in a letter to Mrs. Katy McC. Headley by Dr. McCaleb. It was written only a few months before his death.

----- THE OLD SLAVE'S STORY

Loud and clear across the mountain
Came the shrill blast of the bugle
Winding, warbling through the valley,
And the Tories paused and listened;
Listened to that danger signal

For an instant there in silence.
"Marion's men!" they quickly shouted;
At the word of their commander
Every man sprang to his saddle;
Every coward of them trembled
At the thought of Marion's vengeance,
Should his brave men dash upon them.

One, relenting, drew his sabre
As he passed the swinging figure,
Cut the rope-the childish body
Swayed, and fell before his mother
With a dull dead thud of horror,
Like the first clods on a coffin;
Then his old black nurse rushed wildly,
Pressed him closely to her bosom
Saying, "Bless Gawd, he's livin'
I can feel his heart a beatin'
Jis' a tremble-but I kin feel It."
Then she bore him to his chamber
While his mother followed after-

Followed like a dreaming woman
Walking in the land of slumber.
Far adown the verdent valley
Lying eastward of the mountains,
Came the gallant men of Marion
With their brave and daring leader
Bearing down upon the Tories.
Right and left they came upon them,
Taking not a single capture,
For their War-cry was "no quarter!"
And few indeed were living
When their vengeance had been sated.

One or two crawled through the bushes
Bleeding, weakly seeking shelter;
On their hands and knees they groveled,
Making slow and painful headway,
From the bloody field of battle.
When the gory struggle ended,
And the valley with its ghastly
Load of death and blood was littered,
Then the gallant General Marion
Called his valiant men about him
Gave them sad and gloomy orders-

For the dead must all be buried
And the living must attend them-
Then he rode in silence onward,

To the homestead of McCaleb
With his loved and loyal Captain
Riding swiftly on beside him.
When they reached the grand old Mansion
There were lights in all the windows;
Many forms were flitting past them
In the hurry of excitement.

McCaleb's foot scarce rested
On the broad and open door-way
When his wife rushed out to meet him
Falling senseless on his bosom.
When the eyes of little David
Opened up to life and reason,
His father knelt beside him-
Weeping, sobbing on his pillow.
The childish fingers rested
Softly on the soldier's temple,
And the first words that he uttered
Were-"I did not tell them, Father,
I did as mother bade me;
I would have died to save you".

Then they all knelt there about him
Knelt in silence, thanking heaven
For the son spared to the father
Through the courage of the mother,
And his own undaunted spirit.
Not a whispered word was spoken,-
Words seemed meaningless and idle,
While this saintly, baby hero
Rose above them, grand and lovely;
Dwarfing all their boasted courage
With the greatness born within him
Like the Christ in the Temple
There among them crowned with glory.

An hundred years have blossomed
Borne their fruitage, and have fallen
And those war clouds long have vanished
From the peaceful skies above us.
Little David, loved and honored,
Grew to bright and happy manhood.
Left his father and his mother
And his home in South Carolina;
Sought the rolling Mississippi
In the vale of Bayou Pierre.
Brought a fair young wife beside him,
Sons and daughters grew about him
Strong and manly, sweet and pleasing;

Peace and plenty crowned his hearthstone
Filled his years with happy measure.

From the broad old-fashioned windows
Of the mansion that he builded,
One can see the gleaming marble
Of his tomb upon the hill side.
Trees he planted bend above him
Like a silent guard of honor
Where six generations slumber
Of the grand race of McCaleb.

Old Simon's voice grew fainter,
Fainter still, as darkness gathered;
And the children listened-listened-
Crept up to him, leaned upon him
But the silence and the darkness
Wrapped him closely like a mantle-
The old man had told his story
And he died there as he told it.

EASTER ON THE NATCHEZ TRACE

On April 17, 1808, which happened to fall on Easter, many people along the Natchez Trace in Jefferson and Claiborne Counties celebrated the great feast of the Resurrection.
Those living in the Bayou Pierre valley of Claiborne County met at Grindstone Ford. Those of the Cole Creek area in Jefferson County met at Church Hill where Christ Church now stands. Pine Straw was hauled to these places so that the heavy dews of early morning would not wet the boots and shoes of those coming for the celebration. They began coming on Easter Eve and continued through the next day.
Some stopped at the Inns of old Granville and of Grindstone
Ford, while others spent the night with friends nearby.
They came on foot as well as on horseback; a few came in carriages and covered wagons.

Usually the roads were very good from Natchez to Grindstone

Ford on the Natchez Trace, and they were surely lively with vehicles and pedestrians that Easter Eve and Easter Morn. They brought food for breakfast and dinner on the grounds.

As time came to dress the men parted their hair in the middle, wore knee breeches, cotton or silk stockings with buckled shoes, and triangle hats. The women were in colors that brightened the day, long to be remembered and talked about.

Just as the sun was beginning to rise, the people assembled with their fronts to the east. They bowed their heads in prayer and just as the sun arose, lifted their faces to heaven while singing Easter hymns such as 'Christ the Lord Is Risen Today' and 'Angels, Roll the Rock Away'. There was no instrumental musical but there was depth and sweetness in their songs.

Many of the dresses worn on this occasion were of silks and brocades. Especially was that true of the gentle Green women of 'Springfield'. The most colorful were those worn by the Scotch lady descendants of the Highland Clans; for the tartans and kilts had lasted for three centuries longer than any other native costumes among the different races of Europe. After the Battle of Culloden 1746, the English Parliament prohibited wearing of the Scotch garb in order to punish those yet faithful to the Jacobite cause--at last lost forever.

The mention of tartans and plaids is made of the ladies who wore them because they were descendants of the followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie. So on Sunday at Church Hill, on that particular Easter, Mrs. James McIntosh was clad in red squares with brown, green, and blue checks with blue lines of the clan McIntosh. Mrs. D. McGillivray in red ground with small squares of dark blue and green with narrow blue lines of the clan McGillivray.

Mrs. William McDougal of the McDougle clan in brown, green and red backgrounds with green and white narrow lines. Mrs. Isaac Ross represented the clan Ross in red squares with brown, blue and green lines. Mrs. James Magruder, corrupted from the clan McGregor, in large green and red squares with a broad white line. Roby Roy of this clan had alternate checks of red and black, peculiar to his own. Mrs. James Stewart of the Royal Stewarts in red, dark blue and black with a fine white line crossing the plaid. Mrs. James Cameron had on a red and blue with broader white lines of the clan, Cameron of Lochiel. Mrs. Willis McDonald in dark blue, dark green and light green small squares with narrow lines of the clan McDonald.

All these clanswomen wore the blue bonnets without peaks at the Church Hill Easter day.

At Grindstone Ford, Mrs. E. Frazer was attired in the tartan of the clan Frazer, having very broad red squares with small blue and green checks and narrow bands with narrow white plaid that cross the background of red. Mrs. Duncan McLean was dressed in tartan similar to the Stewarts with small white squares and a double white line of the clan McLean. Mrs. Hector McNeill, Mrs. James McMillan, also Mrs. John McGill were in yellow and red squares with narrow red lines and red squares of the clan McMillan. Mrs. H. McDonnell was in blue, green and black with red and white lines of the clan McDonnell. Mrs. William McIntyre was in broad blue and green squares with narrow red and white lines. Mrs. William McCaleb or McKillop (as originally spelt, a sept. of the clan McDonald) was dressed in her MacKey clan colors of blue and green, similar to that of the Marquis of Forne. She wore a cone pointed hat with a blue veil streaming behind her headdress; Mrs. John McCaleb was in her husband's grandmother's clan MacAlpin tartan of green and blue with yellow and white lines and was the best dressed woman in the Natchez Country.

After the battle of Culloden a great number of Highland clans were corrupted in name to escape the fury of the Duke of Cumberland's soldiers.

A preaching service was held at ten o'clock that Easter Day by Rev. James Thomson. He had come by coach, carrying three other passengers. He wore a scarlet coat, knee breeches, silver buckled shoes and a tricorne hat. The people were amazed that a preacher would be clad in such clothing and they were provoked to gossip. Soon, however, he exchanged this for sombre black with a clerical collar having two cut pendulants of white escaping down his chest. He did not read a text, but his sermon was, 'He is Risen' and he added another text found in John VIII-44, so he said, and he said it was not necessary to read it. The verse begins, 'Ye are of your father the devil'. He was a fine looking young man and had a fine delivery. Just before the service was over he passed the plate himself. The men dropped their coins in with emphasis, but the women kept their purses closed.

Many of the guests remained at Wooldridge Inn for the dancing and games the following day, Monday. The Rev. Thomson was not at the supper table. Upon rising the next morning.

the ladies discovered that their purses had been robbed all their monies had been taken from them. Since Mr. Thomson was nowhere to be found on the Natchez Trace, they suspicioned him all the more. They wondered if he was a robber.

The Highland Fling and Irish gigs were in full flavor at the dances Monday night. The men played curling in the morning, but instead of ice they used pine straw on the rinks. The winners urged on with fierce Highland yells.

Night fell and the people were still having fun. A traveler alighted to join the crowds. They informed him of the robbery by the sanctimonious preacher. This traveler informed them that this preacher was none other than James Thompson Hare, a robber and a successor of the bold highwayman of the Natchez Trace, Samuel Mason; moreover, that he had been perfecting thefts from New Orleans to Baltimore, and his victims were usually women. No doubt the pilfering was done in revenge on the women for having withheld Easter contributions.

As the years rolled by the Sunrise Easter service fell into disuse, for innumerable churches had sprung up all along the Natchez Trace in both town and country, thus passed away into memory and tradition one custom and spiritual feature of pioneer life in the Southwest which had color and distinction all its own.

This above account by Jas. Foulhouza McCaleb was found among his old papers. The original is in the possession of William McCaleb, Burnsmore Plantation, Carlisle, Mississippi and was copied for K. H. by Mrs. Wm. McCaleb.

LETTER CONCERNING FARRAR FAMILY

The following letter was written on the business stationery of E. Howard McCalcl, Attorney at Law, 164 Common Street, New Orleans, May 17th, 1893. The original letter is in the possession of Alfred Francis McCaleb of Past Christian, Mississippi, who sent Mrs. Katy McC. Headley a photostatic copy. The letter follows:

My dear Ned:

The following were the inscriptions on our great-grandfather's and great grandmother's tombs in the Cold

Springs burying ground. The tombstone was broken by the falling of a tree upon it, and it ought to be replaced by us.

"Erected to the Memory of
Colonel Thomas Farrar,
Born October 1, 1754,
Died August 24, 1833

"Erected to the Memory of
Margaret Farrar,
Born March 4, 1750,
Died November 8, 1830.

Cousin Fred Farrar writes me: "Our common ancestor, my grandfather, your great-grandfather, Col. Thomas Farrar, was either born in Pendleton, S. C., or came there from Virginia at a very early age. He married Miss Margaret Prince. They both died at your grandfather's (David McCaleb) house between 1830 and 1833. He was a Revolutionary officer, rising to the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel, and was in command of Fort 96, in 1783, at the close of the war. He served principally under General Pickens, of South Carolina. He was at the fights of Charleston, Savannah, and either Guilford Court House, or the Cowpens. I forget which, and besides engaged in innumerable brushes with the Tories.

Your paternal grandfather, William McCaleb, was a brother Captain serving in the army at the same time."

Mrs. C. R. Byrnes writes: "In old family conversations with Aunt Lucinda Hankinson (born Farrar, daughter of Col. Thomas Farrar), she told me that the family lived there (Pendleton District, South Carolina) as far back as she could remember; and that the Farrars too, lived nearby; also Jeff Davis' father. And she often recalled the time she met old Joe Davis at the stile, where the path led from her father's field into the Davis's field, or pasture. Nor did she deny that he made love to her. The Davis family sold out, and her father, Col. Thomas Farrar, bought the property, the Davis family going to Kentucky.

In The War of the Revolution of South Carolina, by David Ramsey, published at Trenton by Isaac Collins, in 1785, Vol. 2, page 393, note 4 to page 40, there appears among the list of the wounded officers, in the attack on the Lines of Savannah, on the 9th October, 1779, the name of Thomas Farrar".

I write these facts to you in order that you may preserve them for your children.

Very sincerely yours,
W. Howard McCaleb

WILLIAM FARRAR MARRIED CICELY JORDAN

The following is extracted from a letter from Dr. James Foulhouza McCaleb to Dean Ella McCaleb of Vassar College.

"In colonial Virginia William Farrar and one Stephen Pouley courted a Widow Cicely Jordan. They both became engaged to her at the same time. She married William Farrar in preference to Rev. Pouley. Thereupon the rejected suitor sued her for breach of promise. The suit was tried and the minister lost his cause. It created such a furor among the people of Virginia that the colonial council passed a law prohibiting any woman from being engaged to two men at the same time. And this law has never been repealed. And I may add that in the Southern states no man yet has won a breach of promise suit in its courts."

The above letter was dated December 19, 1931. Miss Ella McCaleb's home was in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She was of the Pennsylvania McCaleb family. For some years she was Dean of Vassar College.

EARLY CHURCHES ATTENDED BY McCABLES

THE STONE MEETING HOUSE AT HOPEWELL, SOUTH CAROLINA

From: To Live the Dream by Pearl Smith McFall, p. 32.
Comet Press Books, New York, 1953.

"The first church at Hopewell 1789-90 was built of logs and was soon destroyed by a forest fire. It was built on land donated by (Printer) John Miller, who gave sixteen acres of land for a church and cemetery. The site of the first church is marked.

"The Stone meeting House", as the next church was called, was built by popular subscription about 1797-1802 on the same tract of land. It stands an enduring monument to its founders: General Andrew Pickens, General Robert Anderson, George Reese, William Steele, Captain McCaleb, Major Taylor, Mr. Neale, Mr. McGuffin, Handy Owens, Mr. Whitner, Mr. Calhoun, General Earle, and John Miller. The seats and pulpit were given by General Andrew Pickens."

This was a Presbyterian meeting house near Pendleton, S. C. In the churchyard is a cemetery. Many of the early graves are marked with field stones and have no inscriptions. General Pickens is buried here. No graves bearing tombstone inscriptions are McCalebs.

THE OLD BRICK CHURCH, PINE RIDGE, ADAMS COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI

This church was an early Presbyterian church in Miss. James son of John McCaleb, for a time was a ruling elder in the church.

CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY

"The Church was organized in 1843 at "the McCaleb settlement" about 5 miles northeast of Hermanville on the road to Utica and Jackson. A Dr. Styles and the McCalebs seem to have been among the founders. Twenty acres of land was obtained and a church, school, and rectory were built. James S. Greene was teacher of the school and priest to the Church. The church was consecrated by Bishop Otey April 19, 1844. A $350 organ was installed in 1849, but I have no record of its being a memorial. The church had 22 communicants in 1852 and in 1860, for example, Bishop Green confirmed 9 whites and 5 colored persons there. The parish languished after the Civil War but continued. The address by then was usually given as St. Elmo, the name of the nearest railroad station and post-office.

In the 1880's a mission was organized at Hermanville by Bishop Thompson and the members of the Old Church at St. Elmo or the McCaleb settlement. The Church building was even taken down and the materials used at Hermanville.

A few graves and foundation stones were all that I could find at the original site of the Church when I visited it about 5 years ago. The site, as mentioned, is about 5 miles from Hermanville and on the left-hand side of the road as one goes to Hermanville to Utica."

The above material concerning Epiphany Church was derived from the Journals of the Diocese of Mississippi.

My father, James Franklin McCaleb, Jr. thought that Epiphany originally stood about where 18 Highway intersects with the county road leading to Old St. Elmo Station and the plantation Valley of the Moon. K. M. H.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

"This Church was originated in 1844 by Bishop Otey and G. G. Skipworth and other planters of the Delta. Early services were held in a temporary frame Church on Lake Washington. The Rev. William T. Leacock was the first rector, and the Church was received into the Diocese in 1848. In the 1850's a brick Church and a rectory were built on the south end of Lake Washington. This building was consecrated April 5, 1857. The building was defaced and made unfit for use during the Civil War, but services have continued at one place or another--at present, I believe, in a brick, union church used by various denominations."

The above material concerning St. John's Episcopal Church was derived from the Journals of the Diocese of Miss.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

(Copied from Mississippi by Federal Writers Project, published by the Viking Press, N. Y. pp. 356-357.)

"Right our from Glen Allen on a narrow paved road are the ruins of St. John's Episcopal Church, completed 1857, the first Episcopal structure in the Delta. The group of planters who settled around Lake Washington in the 1800's were of English descent, some of them were English born, extensive land owners in older Southern States, they had come to Mississippi in the boom times, and from the proceeds of the sale of their former holdings, had invested in the fertile acres of what were then known as the Mississippi Bottoms. The mansions they built are the remaining evidence of their prosperity. To them in 1844 came Bishop Otey of Tennessee, and the fruit of his visit was the gift by Jonathan McCaleb of five acres of land to be used as a site for the church and a glebe.

In October 1852, at which time the families which leave that region in summer generally return to their plantations, the building was begun. There was delay because of the necessity to import material from England and an organ for the wilderness. When the church was dedicated 1857, the services were stopped by a snow storm.

Slaves were given their own gallery, and the richly carved chancel, pulpit, and altar were fashioned by the negro sexton, James Cromwell, who was buried from the church, and was afterwards given a place in the adjacent cemetery. After the War between the States, the Church began to decay, and a cyclone completed the ruin. Still evident is the outline of the corner tower with circular brick windows webbed with vines. Its design is based upon that of the English Gothic. The Church yard still bears the name of "Greenfield", the plantation of Jonathan McCaleb. In its well kept enclosure, a number of Iron crosses mark the graves of Confederate dead."

DAVID McCALEB SAMPLER

(Mrs. Cornelia Regan Clarke gave this information to K.M.H.)

Matilda Eveline Metcalf Hammett made an exquisite sampler. She embroidered it herself. It has the names of her father and mother, David and Matilda (Farrar) McCaleb, and the dates of their births. She also embroidered, on the same sampler, the names of the children of this couple and their birth dates. This sampler is still in her family.

"Jonathan McCaleb"

"Jonathan McCaleb was born December 16, 1786, the son of William McNeal and Mary Ann McCaleb. As a lad of twelve he was brought by his parents to what is now the Southern part of Mississippi while it was still under Spanish rule and known as West Florida.

William McCaleb, according to the inscription on his tomb on "Hermitage" plantation in Claiborne County, was born 1747, fought in several battles in his native state of South Carolina, as a captain in the Revolutionary War, and was a member of the South Carolina convention which ratified the Federal Constitution.

Of the children of William and Mary Ann, David married Matilda Farrar and their daughter, Evelina Matilda, married Albert Metcalf. A number of their descendants are now members of St. James' church in Greenville. Ann McCaleb, another daughter of William and Mary Ann McCaleb, married 1808, Joseph Briggs. Mrs. Briggs spent part of her time in Washington County as home maker for her brother, Jonathan McCaleb, who was unmarried. The "Young Briggs" who are mentioned as members of the Choir of St. Johns' Church at one time were presumably her grandsons. There was a David I. Briggs who owned land in Washington as early as 1838.

Jonathan McCaleb, at the time of his death on April 11, 1853, was 67 years of age. As he was unmarried he left his large estate to be divided among his brothers and sisters. His will is on file in Claiborne County, where he had large holdings. His lands in Washington County, which he had acquired as early as 1829, were during his life time known as "Mosquito Point", but at a later date came to be known as Greenfield Plantation. This property when sold in the late 1850's consisted of 2444 acres of land which brought $110,000; the Negroes brought $40,650, and the plantation equipment $9,032.

The Deed of Gift of about four acres of this land to St. John's Church was drawn in 1852, but no month or day is mentioned in the deed. It was recorded in Washington County on May 7, 1853, nearly four weeks after the death of the donor. Apparently the deed was drawn in Claiborne County as not one of the three witnesses was a Washington Countian.

EXCERPT FROM THE CIVIL WAR JOURNAL OF BISHOP GREEN

"Tuesday (February 5th 1861) Accompanied by Rev. (Frederick W.) Damus, I reached Diamond Plantation, the residence of Mr. Laughlin, and preached that day to his family and servants and a few of his neighbors. Seven of his servants were at the same time confirmed. In preparing them for this holy rite, much pains had been taken not only by the Rev. Mr. Damus, lately in charge, but by the pious and zealous lady whom they are privileged to call their mistress."

Diamond Plantation was located a few miles south of Vicksburg. It was willed by General Joseph Davis, brother to the President of the Confederate States of America, to his daughter whose first husband was David McCaleb, Jr. and whose second husband was Mr. Laughlin.

McKeys (Mackays) were numerous along the North Carolina border and many of the Scotch emigrants by the name of McKay resided in the old Cheraw District, which at one time bordered on old Bladen and Cumberland Counties in North Carolina before Robeson County, North Carolina, which separated Bladen and Cumberland from South Carolina and old Cheraw District, was formed.

BOOKS AND NEWSPAPERS

"THE LOUISIANA SUNDAY REVIEW", December 23, 1894 and December 30, 1894 featured The McCaleb Family in America. This article states that Captain William McCaleb's father "was a member of a Scottish Highland family which gave many brave chiefs and soldiers to Scotland in the past", and that William McCaleb fought at Culloden for Bonnie Prince Charles. After the battle of Culloden William McCaleb and his wife came to America and settled in the Pendleton District of South Carolina. The article states that Captain William McCaleb, son of William McCaleb, served the cause of Independence as Captain of a company of Hussars at Cowpens, Guilford Court House, Eutaw Springs, and Ninety-Six. He was a member of the South Carolina Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution. The rest of the article has to do with the descendants of David McCaleb. There are pictures of David McCaleb, Laura McCaleb Simonds, Theodore Howard McCaleb, Mr. and Mrs. E. Howard McCaleb, Thomas McCaleb, and T. Wharton Collens.

A HISTORY OF MISSISSIPPI by Robert Lowry and William H. McCardle, published at Jackson, Mississippi by R. H. Henry and Co., 1891, p. 458. This history has this to say: "Among the early settlers were David, James, John, Samuel, and Jonathan McCaleb, all natives of South Carolina and sons of Captain William McCaleb, an officer of the Revolutionary War."

THE TULANE NEWS BULLETIN, Vol. II, May 1931, Number 8, Published by the Tulane University of Louisiana, New Orleans La. This bulletin gives a biography of Theodore Howard McCaleb. The bulletin states that Theodore Howard McCaleb's great grandfather, "William McCaleb (or McKillip, as the name was originally spelled), after taking part in the battle of Culloden, 1746, in behalf of Bonnie Prince Charlie, fled to Ireland for refuge and in 1747 emigrated to South Carolina. His grandfather, William McCaleb, served as a captain in the American Revolutionary army, was a member of the South Carolina convention that ratified the federal constitution and in 1787 moved to the Spanish province of West Florida and settled in the Natchez District.

His father, David McCaleb was high sheriff of Pendleton District, S. C. and moved to the Mississippi Territory in 1802." The rest of the article deals with the career of Theodore Howard McCaleb, who served as judge of the United States District of Louisiana and who was a member of the law school faculty of the University of Louisiana. Later he served the University as professor of admiralty and international law and then as president.

BIOGRAPHICAL AND HISTORICAL MEMOIRS OF LOUISIANA, Vol. II, Published 1892. This is a biography of Edwin Howard McCaleb. It verifies the service of William McCaleb at Culloden, and the military service of Captain William McCaleb and Colonel Farrar in the patriot army which fought for Independence in the Revolutionary War.

THE DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, Vol. II, pp. 560-561 This biography of Theodore Howard McCaleb verifies the military service of William McCaleb at Culloden. It states that William McCaleb fled Scotland after the defeat of Bonnie Prince Charlie and went to Ireland. From Ireland he emigrated to South Carolina. The article states that Theodore Howard McCaleb's grandfather William McCaleb, son of William McCaleb, served in the Revolutionary Army and was a member of the South Carolina Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution.

THE LOUISIANA BOOK, 1894

BIOGRAPHICAL AND HISTORICAL MEMOIRS OF MISSISSIPPI, Vol. I, Published by the Goodspeed Publishing Company of Chicago in 1891. Page 1170. This biography is of Dr. William Collins McCaleb, son of James F. and Sophie (Moore) McCaleb. He was grandson of John and Maria (Collins) McCaleb. The biography states that "Capt. William McCaleb, the great grandfather of Dr. McCaleb, was a native of Maryland, where he married Caroline Calvert, who was a native of Maryland." The biography also states that "John McCaleb was born in Claiborne County, Mississippi", and that he was educated as an engineer. The biography states that William Collins came to North Carolina from Ireland.

(This is the beginning of the error that William McCaleb married Caroline Calvert of Maryland. Captain William McCaleb married Ann MacKey in South Carolina. This is proven by their tombstone inscription and by their family Bible. The father, William McCaleb married Sarah MacAlpin before they left Scotland in 1746.)
(John McCaleb, son of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born in Pendleton District, South Carolina.

FAMILY RECORDS MISSISSIPPI REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS compiled by Alice Tracy Welch and published by the Miss. Society of D. A. R., pp. 186-189. This record states that Captain William McCaleb was the son of William and Sarah (McAlpin) McCaleb and that he was born in Pendleton County, South Carolina in 1747. The record gives the military service of Captain McCaleb, the date of his marriage to Ann MacKey, and the birth and death dates for Ann MacKey. The children and grandchildren of Capt. William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb are named. This record states that William Neil McCaleb, son of Captain and Ann McCaleb, was born November 17, 1780 and that "Another record says 27 Nov. 1770", and that he had children.

WILKERSON AND ALLIED FAMILIES by M. M. Wilkinson of Shelby, Mississippi. Mrs. Wilkinson relates the ancestry of Caroline Calvert. She says that Caroline Calvert was born in Maryland in 1730 and that in 1747 she married William McCaleb, who had emigrated to America from Scotland in 1747 after the battle of Culloden. She claims that William McCaleb, son of Captain William and Ann (MacKey) McCaleb, was born November 27, 1780. The rest of her work has to do with the descendants of William (who she designates as William III) and his wife, Rhoda Gordon Wood. She states that William III settled near Richmond, Virginia.

HEADS OF FAMILIES-South Carolina Census 1790

Captain William McCaleb's family-Four (4) free white males of 16 or over including heads of families. Two (2) free white males under sixteen. Four (4) free white females including heads of families. Eight (8) slaves. (Pendleton District, S. C.)

Jonathan MacKey on Caup or Camp Creek

Jonathan MacKey in Claiborne County, Miss. on land adjoining Waterman Crane, Humphreys, and Alexander Montgomery. 1802.

Jonathan MacKey land grant in Lancaster County, 1769-Wife, Margaret.

Jonathan MacKey came to Mississippi in 1793 with his brother-in-law, Alex Montgomery. Alexander Montgomery was from the Waxhaw settlement, Lancaster District, S. C. Waxhaw settlement or are was on the Mecklingburg, N. C. line

Jonathan MacKey appears on the census 1794-95 in the Lancaster District, S. C.

Daniel MacKey was the brother of Jonathan Mackey. Came to Adams County, Miss. 1807.

Jonathan McKey deed from William Collins, Adams County on Coles Creek, 1807 (William Collins, 1805, was father-in-law of John McCaleb, son of Capt. Wm. McCaleb. K.H.)

Mrs. Doughtie's book consists of about 1000 pages. This compiler saw it only briefly two days before typing was begun on this manuscript. It would seem that this is the only family of MacKeys which could belong as kin to Ann (Mackey) McCaleb. Mrs. K. H. was always told that the Mackeys who came to Mississippi were kinsmen. Research would probably prove that Ann was a sister to Jonathan, Daniel, Samuel, and a sister who married Alexander Montgomery. Their father was probably John and their grandfather Samuel Mackey.

Mr. Leonardo Andrea, who did research for K. H. said in 1749 John Macket was in 1749 Ex. of estate of his father-in-law, Benjamin McKinnie. John's wife was Sarah McKinnie. She married (2) Moore. John and Sarah moved to Chesterfield County, S. C. His colonial war service was Mackey, McKay, and McKee.

1. This data on McAlpin has been compiled from what data is filed under that surname in the South Carolina Archives in Columbia. There are variations of these spellings.
2. Object...To find something on the Sarah MacAlpin who wed in either Scotland or Ireland to WILLIAM McCALEB I, and circa 1746 came to Charleston, it is thought, and then traveled inland to some Scotch settlement in North Carolina where the followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie had settled...Andrea-The Scotch followers of Prince Charles settled mainly in North Carolina and in old Bladen, Cumberland, and later formed counties of Scotland, and Robeson and Columbia---Same flowed over into South Carolina in old Chewaw District which included present counties of Marboro, Marion in part of Marion now dormed into Dillon, Chesterfield and Darlington.
3. In Index of Immigrants 1762 to 1772 no McAlpins name shows under any of the spellings.

The old counties of Craven and Granville have long since been discontinued...Granville County was along the east bank of the Savannah River from Beauford on the Atlantic to Pendleton on N. C. Boundary...Craven County was north of the Santee River and followed the N. C. boundary for nearly 200 miles...Land was granted by head rights and a man got 100a for himself and 50a for wife and 50a for each child under the age of 16 years..... When other children were born he could take 50a more for each child born after first grant...After the Revolution, the headright land law was not in effect.

5. I did not check the land tax memorials for land grants before the Revolution...each of the above in #4 will show provided the man had not died or sold his land grant.
6. Land Grants after the Revolution...Index II has none.. Index III has Robert McAlpin, 150a on Long Canes In Abbeville of 96 on Aug. 1, 1785.
