AUTHORS' PREFACE

In preparing this work the authors have had the usual experience of genealogical writers. There have been difficulties to overcome, doubts to solve and many tangled threads to unravel. It has taken years of careful research and study, an endless correspondence and assiduous labor to accumulate, assort and record in proper position the subject-matter of the book.

Yet it has been a "labor of love," and our only thought has been to produce a volume giving a complete record of our family and showing something of the lives of our ancestors; of their avocations, their families, their surroundings and their standing among their fellows. While making every effort to get the record of births, marriages and deaths absolutely correct, we have gone a little farther, and given short personal sketches of many persons and historical data that we trust will be interesting to the present generation and useful to posterity.

Of course we do not claim that the work is perfect. Unfortunately many families do not appreciate the importance of keeping an accurate record of births, marriages, deaths and other events. Some families keep no record at all, and many others only very scant and incomplete. So, in compiling a work like this, one has to depend largely upon the memory of persons, which after the lapse of years is often uncertain.

We also find that often members of the same branch of family do not agree in their records or in their recollections. We often receive several different statements as to date of certain events, each being strongly supported by different members of family. Sometimes all efforts to harmonize the different statements fail and the event has to be left in uncertainty.

It is from the faulty and inaccessible records scattered over this country and in foreign lands, and from the uncertain memory of busy people that the authors have constructed this book. Hence it has not been possible to avoid errors. We are conscious of earnest, unremitting efforts to reach the exact truth in every instance and to give our friends a perfect record. If errors and omissions occur, we beg our readers to be charitable and consider the difficulties which we have encountered. We have received valuable assistance from many persons. As a rule every one called on for information has responded generously, albeit sometimes slowly. In connection with this subject the authors desire to acknowledge with gratitude the able and intelligent assistance rendered by Mrs. Adah McMillan Foster of Cambridge, N. Y.; Mrs. Ida Ferris Waterman of Austin, Minn.; Mrs. Huldah Powell of McMillan, Wis., and by Mrs. Mamie A. Sherry of Cottonwood, Idaho. While many others have helped to make the book a success, these noble women have made themselves conspicuous by their earnest, unselfish labors and researches. They have always responded zealously to every call, no matter how exacting. They have looked over town and church records, copied the inscriptions of numberless tombstones, examined letters and title deeds, forwarding everything promptly to the authors. They have proved by their untiring efforts that the good, red blood of the Scotch Covenanters, which is indeed thicker than water, still flows warmly within their veins. To these good women the thanks of every member of the McMillan family are due.

PLAIDS AND COAT OF ARMS.

From "Johnston's Scottish Clans and Tartans" we find the following description of the McMillan plaid, which it was the custom of all McMillans to wear in kilts: "Yellow and red squares alternating. Each square about one and one-fourth inches in size and each square divided by several lines of different widths of the opposing color." "Keltie's History of Scottish Highlanders, etc.," corroborates this description. A fac-simile of this plaid is given in this book.

"Burke's General Armory" gives five "Coat of Arms" to as many clans McMillan. It seems to have been the custom for each clan or branch of the family to have its own peculiar crest. The one given in this publication is the only one of the five that has been available. According to Burke's description, it must have been the crest of the most ancient clan bearing the name, whose home was in the highlands north of Loch Arkaig. The motto belonging to the crest is the same as that of the McMillans of Dunmore, "Miseris succurrere disco" (I learn to aid the wretched). This motto has been the "slogan" of the McMillans from time immemorial.

The authors regret that more cuts of the oldest patriarchs of the family could not have been secured. As far as we have been able to learn, however, no portraits of them, except Arthur McMillan² and Martha, his wife, are in existence. The cuts introduced are those of honorable representatives of the family, and we are sure our readers will be pleased to look upon the faces of their departed kinsmen as well as upon those whose labors are not yet completed.

EXPLANATORY.

The outer row of figures opposite the names on the left-hand margin are the consecutive numbers of persons mentioned in the book. The inner row indicates the number of children in each family.

The figure placed to the right of each name shows the generation to which the person belongs. By carefully noting the figures closely following the names, the readers will be able to keep clear as to the generations, and will avoid becoming confused over so many persons of the same name.

Where deaths are recorded in this book, the place of death is always the place of burial unless otherwise specified.

CHAPTER I.

If the readers of this book will take a glance backwards over the pages of Scottish history during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, noting the terrible persecutions of the Covenanters during those years, they will at once recognize the firm, undying faith, the fearless devotion and the indomitable courage of that persecuted sect. They will also be proud that they are the lineal descendants of the persecuted, yet faithful, heroic Scottish Covenanters.

In Temple's history of the "Covenanters, Cavaliers and Puritans," we find: "The merciless Claverhouse, as if to furnish a climax of the horrors of the persecution and to completely exterminate the faithful followers of John Knox, set out with fierce dragoons, with bloodhounds and a band of corrupted, traitorous Highlanders to hunt down the Covenanters who had been driven from their homes and were secreted in their native mountain fastnesses. These persecutors were given every license and received indemnity in advance for all possible excesses. For months these cruel allies ran riot through the country, burning and slaying. They spared neither age nor sex. They robbed, murdered and even stripped the faithful Covenanters of their clothing and turned them out naked to die from exposure and starvation. The crimes committed by the direction of the infamous Claverhouse were too terrible to be told." It is little wonder that many of the persecuted people gave up their native land, broke the ties which bound them to their beloved hills and heather and fled to the north of Ireland. For a time they prospered there and became frugal, industrious citizens. Even here, however, they were not free to follow the dictates of their consciences unmolested.

Of the Scotch Covenanters in Ireland Temple says: "They were a brave, austere, self-poised people. No danger could daunt them; no earthly power subdue their stubborn will or swerve them from the path of duty. Their Presbyterianism, founded upon conviction, had been confirmed by persecution. It was a part of their very being." Even in their adopted country the Covenanters were not allowed the religious liberty they sought.

They were still persecuted by the Bishops of England's established church. Their ministers were forbidden to perform the marriage ceremony without using the established liturgy. They could not bury their dead in their own way. Their rights and privileges were curtailed, until feeling themselves wronged by the church and belittled by the perfidy of the government, the patience of the Covenanters was at last exhausted. They determined to seek homes in the wilderness beyond the Atlantic, where they would be accorded the boon for which they yearned, "freedom to worship God." Again quoting from Temple: "The influence exerted on the thought and mind of the world by the Scotch Covenanters has never been fully appreciated. Theirs was the first great revolution in Europe resulting in a complete independence of thought and conduct. Covenanters or Presbyterians as individuals and as churches took active part in the American Revolution. Fourteen of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were the descendants of Covenanters whose ancestors had signed the famous covenant in Scotland one hundred and thirty-eight years before." The active part taken in the war for independence by these Scotch-Irish Presbyterians is a matter of American history. They are indeed a "brave, austere, self-poised people" today as well as in the past, and wherever they are found, whatever their surroundings or circumstances, they stand unalterably for universal independence and freedom of thought and action.

Readers, these are the people from whom our family sprung. These are our ancestors. The subject is well worthy of thought. To paraphrase the immortal lines of the great Scottish bard:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
These are my own, my native people?"

Among the early Covenanters who suffered persecutions in Scotland, who fled to Ireland and thence to America were many McMillans. According to early history of Scottish clans and their names, the name McMillan was first written Macmillan as one word with no capital letter except the first. All Scottish names beginning with Mac were written the same way. Thus we read Macdonald, Macpherson, Macdougall and others. Later it became the practice of the family to write their name Mac Millan as two words, each beginning with a capital. This manner of writing the name seems to have prevailed until after the exodus into Ireland early in the eighteenth century, when the McMillans began dropping the "a" from the first syllable, writing the name McMillan. Whether this was done for the sake of brevity or for some more potent reason we have not been able to ascertain. We only know that as early as 1755 our immediate ancestors wrote their names McMillan. Ever since that period this manner of writing the name has obtained. Of late, however, some members of the family have returned to the old Scottish style and write their name Mac Millan. This is perfectly proper, and no fault can be found with any who wish to restore the name to its old Scottish rendering. Neither is there fault for others to cling to the shorter method. Legal and business interests may readily make it prudent and necessary to do so. In this work the writers have, for obvious reasons, used the shorter method.

ORIGIN AND DEFINITION.

The word "Mac Millan" or "Mc Millan" has three definitions by as many authors. One authority on ancient Scottish clans says the word "Millan" signifies "of the mill" or "men of the mill;" McMillan, "son of the men of the mill." Another authority says the name signifies "son of the hills," Mac meaning son, Millan meaning hills or highlands. Still another authority claims that the name is from the Gaelic "MacMhaoil-avin," signifying "son of the bald (or bare) man."

We are inclined to favor this last interpretation as being the correct meaning of the name. In early childhood the writer was often told by his uncle, Morrison McMillan,³ who was a profound student of Scottish history and especially that part bearing upon genealogy of the family, that the word McMillan meant "son of the bald (or bare) head."

In connection with this there was a legend that in ancient times a certain Highland chief becoming mortally offended by some indignity or injustice heaped upon him, made a solemn vow that he would never again wear head covering of any kind. So all his life, in summer and winter, he went about his avocations and on his hunting trips, and even to war, bare-headed. His descendants were therefore called "sons of the bare head." The weight of authority seems to support Uncle Morrison's version, but our readers are at liberty to accept any version they choose.

According to Keltie's history of the Scottish Highlanders the McMillans descended from the second son of Aurelan, 7th Laird of Buchanan, and are connected by tradition with the Clan Chattan. Their earliest seat being on Loeh Arkaig. They were early dependent on the Lairds of the Isles, but later on the Camerons who became possessed of Loeh Arkaig. Another branch possessed a large part of Knapdale in Southern Argyle and they were once powerful there, but are now extinct. One of the towers in Castle Sweyn is called McMillan's tower.

A number of McMillans left Knapdale in 1746 and returned to the north where they joined the forces under Loehiel near Inverness and did valiant service under that chieftain at the battle of Culloden which resulted so disastrously to the cause of the Stuarts.

There is a richly sculptured cross in the church yard at Kilmory Knapdale, twelve feet high, on one side of which is a Highland chief hunting a deer and an inscription in Latin in old Saxon letters "Here is the cross of Alexander McMillan." The McMillans obtained most of their possessions in Knapdale by marriage with the heiress of the chief of the McNeils in the sixteenth century.

The Clan McMillan was once of considerable importance, but the principal families have become extinct in Knapdale. Their lands were fought for by the Camerons and McNeils. In 1775 these came into the possession of Sir Archibald Cameron of Inverneil. Many McMillans also settled in Galloway, Wigtownshire, and were famous in the annals of the Covenanters. The modern representatives of the Covenanters in Galloway are as often called McMillanites as Cameronians. Some of the McMillans of Knapdale and Galloway went to the island of Arran to live, early in the eighteenth century and from them have sprung the most distinguished bearers of the name. The Isle of Arran is near the north coast of Ireland and it seems the conclusion of history that from Arran went the McMillans to Ireland and from this branch descended the forefathers of our family. From copies of letters and records handed down from the days of the persecutions in Scotland, it is found that there was once imprisoned a man by the name of McMillan and his wife and small babe. The man and his wife were afterwards beheaded, but before her death the woman passed her babe through a small diamond shaped opening in the prison door to a friend. This man-child was spirited away and grew to manhood and became the father of our immediate ancestors. This is not authentic history, but is a legend handed down from generation to generation and is doubtless correct.

From a careful study of Scottish history and in view of the fact that the name Alexander has ever been so common in our family, the authors are convinced that our branch is descended directly from the old highland chief whose remains lie under the sculptured cross in the old church yard at Kilmory, Scotland. The trend of history, the well known religious faith of our forefathers and the dim light which shines upon us from that distant period, all seem to prove that the lineage of our family is traced directly from the Alexander under the cross at Kilmory, through the babe rescued from the prison door, down to the John McMillan, who, on account of the persecutions in his native land, fled in 1754 to the north of Ireland and eventually to America.

It is notable that the middle of the eighteenth century witnessed the departure of many McMillans from the old country for America. The time of the arrival in America of our own immediate ancestors has long been in doubt. From their earliest recollection the authors of this work have understood that John McMillan arrived in New York in 1758. There is an old legend which has been so often repeated that it bore the semblance of historical truth. The legend has it that in 1758 John McMillan, with his brothers Donald and Arthur, sailed from Ireland bound for the New World. The vessel on which the brothers sailed was wrecked in mid-ocean. The brothers were separated, but were all eventually picked up and carried to land, each supposing the other lost. John landed at New York, and ascending the Hudson located in Charlotte (now Washington) county, making his home in what is now the town of Salem. The next year he returned to Ireland for his wife and children and brought them to his new home in the wilds of America. From this home center in Washington Co., N. Y., his descendants have gone forth from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This is the branch of the family whose lineage and records this book traces.

The brother Donald landed at Philadelphia and his descendants have migrated to the southwest through Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The brother Arthur was carried to Quebee and there made his home, and from him sprung the McMillans who have scattered over the British Possessions even to the Pacific ocean.

More recent investigation seems to demonstrate that this legend is not founded upon fact. After a careful study of different historical works, especially those treating on the early settlement of Washington Co., N. Y., the authors are inclined to believe that their ancestor, John McMillan, came to this country with the Clark Colony which sailed from Newry, Ireland, May 10, 1764, and arrived at New York, July 28, the same year. There is not at hand absolute proof that John McMillan and Mary, his wife, were actually members of Dr. Clark's company; but all the circumstances of Dr. Clark's labors among the Scottish people living in Ballybay, Ireland, and of the early settlement of Salem in Washington Co., N. Y., point to that conclusion. History shows that the first actual settlement of New Perth (now Salem) was made in 1764 by pioneers from New England and that the Scotch colonists under Dr. Clark made their appearance in the settlement the next season. History also gives a full account of the Scotch settlement in Ballybay, Ireland; of these people being driven there from their native land by persecution; of their calling upon the Presbytery of Glasgow, Scotland, for a preacher; and of the appointment of Dr. Thomas Clark to that field. The Presbyterian society organized and established by Dr. Clark in Ballybay, Ireland, was transplanted by him to the virgin soil of America. Over one hundred families from the church in Ballybay joined Dr. Clark in his voyage to America in 1764. Although we were taught in childhood that our ancestors reached America at an earlier period; although the old legend of the shipwreck has lingered in our memory until it has become one of our idols, we are constrained by the light of history and by late investigations to cast aside our shattered idols and accept the truth as it is given us.

It may readily be imagined that the little band composing Dr. Clark's company were filled with many misgivings and regrets when they drew away from the land of their fathers and started out upon the perilous voyage over unknown seas towards a land that was deemed an inhospitable wilderness filled with treacherous savages perhaps more cruel and bloodthirsty than the persecutors they had left behind. Of the world they were approaching, but little was known. What would be their fate in that strange land they could not tell. On that voyage, however, and through the trials that followed their landing upon the shores of the new world until they entered upon their chosen lands, their unfaltering faith, their stubborn will and their indomitable courage spoken of by Temple, bore them up and filled their hearts with brightest hopes.

“Amidst the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free.”

In 1754 there also came from the north of Ireland one Andrew McMillan who settled at Concord, N. H. In 1758 he received a commission from General Abercrombie and served with distinction through the French-Indian War, retiring at the close with the rank of colonel. For his services he was given a large tract of land, by the Provincial Government, comprising what is now Conway, N. H., and vicinity. He removed to this tract in 1774 and settled down into a quiet, peaceful life. He was a prominent, patriotic citizen. On his large farm he kept up a fine establishment. He had horses and carriages galore, colored servants and all the appurtenances required by a proud, wealthy man. By his usefulness as a citizen and by his dignified, courteous manners he won and retained the respect and confidence of his neighbors. After a long, active life Col. Andrew McMillan passed away at his home in Conway. Some of his descendants still live at the old place, others are scattered, as is inevitable. Several of his great-grandchildren, descended through his son John, are living in Minneapolis, Minn. (in 1908). They are Putnam D. McMillan, Frank G. McMillan, James McMillan and his sisters the Misses Edith and Caroline McMillan. It is a pleasure to note that these descendants of the old Indian fighter of Conway have maintained the high standard of integrity and citizenship, which has ever characterized those bearing the name McMillan.

Another family of McMillans that reached America about the middle of the eighteenth century was one Thomas McMillan and his sons Thomas, Samuel and William. These settled in New Jersey, but their descendants removed to Bucks County, Pa., and to Maryland, and even to the western states. Many descendants are at present settled near Pittsburgh, Pa., other prominent ones are living at St. Paul, Minn., as late as 1908. Of the three sons mentioned above, Thomas never married. Samuel, after serving with credit four years in the Revolutionary army, married Miss Isabelle Long of Westmoreland County, Pa. Among their children was Thomas Long McMillan, who was married July 11, 1815, to Jane Gornly of Pittsburgh, Pa. They had twelve children. Their sixth child was a son, whom they named Samuel James Renwick. On reaching early manhood this son, filled with a desire to accomplish something in the world, took up the study of law. He was for several years a student in the office of the late Edwin M. Stanton, the great Secretary of War during the Lincoln administration. After being admitted to the bar, young Samuel removed to Minnesota, where his ability was soon recognized. He was made a judge of the Supreme Court of the state and held the position for more than a score of years. Later, when Minnesota needed a man of sterling qualities and unswerving fidelity to represent her in the United States Senate, she chose Judge McMillan. Events have proved that the state chose wisely. The new senator was assigned to the chairmanship of the Committee of Commerce, a position so long held by the Hon. Roscoe Conklin. Judge McMillan served twelve years in the United States Senate, meeting every emergency and every exigency with the firm conscientiousness, the judicial discrimination that was ever his wont. After his two terms in the United States Senate, Senator McMillan made his home in St. Paul, engaging in the practice of his profession. Through his busy life, with the multitude of responsibilities pressing upon him, Senator McMillan clung to the faith of his fathers and was ever a faithful and consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and a firm supporter of its rules and tenets. He was the western member of the committee appointed for the revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian church. Samuel James Renwick McMillan was married in early life to Miss Harriet Butler, of Pittsburgh, Pa. They had six children now grown to maturity. Two of them, Mrs Kate Beals and Mrs Frank P. Shepard, residing in St. Paul, Minn.

S. J. R. McMillan died at his home in St. Paul, Oct. 3, 1897, loved and honored not only by the people of his home city, but of the whole state.

A John McMillan settled in the Mohawk valley in New York and has many descendants still living in that region; Daniel H. McMillan, a prominent citizen of Buffalo, being his grandson. Another John McMillan was a noted preacher and missionary among the Indians in Virginia. There were also a number of McMillans settled in South Carolina. These were all strong, self-sustained men and useful citizens. As this book, however, is a record of the descendants of the John McMillan who married a woman named Mary Arnott, who removed from Scotland to the north of Ireland, thence to Washington Co., N. Y., it is not our province to undertake the task of tracing the genealogy of all the various families bearing the name.

If time and means were available the task might prove a pleasing one, but in this work we are content to "stick to our text" and write only of our own.

CHAPTER II.

JOHN McMILLAN 1.

- 1 John McMillan was born in Scotland in the year 1736. His ancestors were born in Scotland. They were a large and important clan around Loch Arkaig in the seventeenth century and later were located in Knapdale in southern Argyle. The persecutions of the Covenanters, the relentless cruelties of the government representatives in those awful days ruined the fortunes of the McMillan Clans and drove them in large numbers from the country. At a very early age, John McMillan¹ married a woman who was also born in Scotland, as were her ancestors. Her name was Mary Arnott. She was born in 1733. Shortly after their marriage, in 1754, John¹ and Mary went to visit friends living in the north of Ireland. There being a large colony of Scottish refugees living in the place (presumably Ballybay, Monaghan Co.), and his native land being in an unsettled and unhappy state, John¹ and his wife decided to remain and make their home in Ballybay. For a few years the couple lived a peaceful, quiet life in Ireland. Industrious and frugal, the canny Scotchman and his wife prospered temporarily, but spiritually there was no prosperity, even in their adopted land. John McMillan,¹ like all the early Covenanters, desired and demanded perfect liberty of conscience and freedom to worship God according to his own faith. So when Rev. Doctor Clark organized a company of his devoted parishioners to try life in the new country beyond the Atlantic, John¹ and Mary were among the first to join. They had a safe and smooth passage over the sea and landed at New York in July, 1764. How or where this couple spent the time until their lands in Charlotte county were surveyed and ready for occupancy, is not on record. It is only known that they reached New Perth (now Salem) early in the summer of 1765.

The county in which John McMillan¹ settled was for many years the scene of deadly conflicts with the Indians and later with the French from Canada. The settlers were never safe from attacks and were necessarily always fully armed and prepared to defend themselves. Then when the war for American independence began, Washington county became the theatre of war between the contending armies. British forces under trained and skillful officers marched and countermarched through this chosen garden spot of our ancestors, while from the bosom of Lake Champlain echoed the reports of the enemy's cannon. It may be readily believed that it was indeed the "strenuous life" that John McMillan¹ and his sons lived during those trying years. In his native land John¹ had been acquainted with war and its cruelties, and in his adopted home he shrank from nothing that promised independence of government and freedom of thought to himself and his neighbors. As the war for American independence progressed and the government was hard pressed for men, John McMillan,¹ although he was a man of peace who fled from his native land to escape war and bloodshed, despite the fact that he had a growing family in his care and many private interests to serve, renounced them all and enrolled himself in Col. Webster's regiment of militia, county of Charlotte (Washington) New York land bounty rights men. We quote a letter from the adjutant general of the army at Washington, D. C., touching upon the military record of our ancestor.

"The name of John McMillan appears (without remarks relative to his service) on an undated abstract of certificates delivered to Colonel Webster's regiment of militia county of Charlotte (Washington) New York, which abstract shows that certificate number 9080 was delivered to him." We find the name of John McMillan on page 168 in the "Salem Book" in the list of those doing service during the Revolution. His name also appears in "New York in the Revolution," page 239, and he was given a grant of land in Washington Co., N. Y., by the general government in consideration of his services; lot 297 of Turner's patent being credited to him in the records on file in the capital in Albany, N. Y. This land was afterwards conveyed to his son Andrew. We append herewith a certified copy of the deed of transfer which is a curious and interesting relic of the past. Not only interesting as a relic, but the deed also forms another link in the chain of evidence establishing the right of all lineal descendants of John McMillan¹ to become members of the "Sons (or daughters) of the American Revolution." In using this evidence reference should be made to "Liber C page 159 of deeds of county elerk's office, Washington County, New York."

When peace was declared John¹ returned to his home and went on in the even tenor of his way. The strength and fortitude of this man must have been sublime. His faith founded upon conviction, confirmed by persecution and cemented in blood, bore him up until the trials and fears of war were past and the country rested in security and in conscious strength. Those were the days of strong men and women. It is easy to believe our Scotch ancestors were among the strongest.

1 JOHN McMILLAN¹ and

2 MARY ARNOTT.

1 John¹ was married at the early age of eighteen in the year 1754 to Mary Arnott.

To them were born:

3 1 John,² born in October, 1754, in Monaghan Co., Ireland.

3A 2 Alexander,² born in 1758, in Monaghan Co., Ireland.

4 3 Andrew,² born in 1762, in Monaghan Co., Ireland.

5 4 Arthur,² born March 17, 1769, in Salem, N. Y.

6 5 David,² born Oct. 1, 1770, in Salem, N. Y.

6A 6 Mary,² born in 1772, in Salem, N. Y.

7 7 Nancy,² born in 1775, in Salem, N. Y.

After an active, eventful life, with duties fully performed and responsibilities bravely met, John McMillan¹ the father of the above seven children, passed away at his home in Salem, N. Y., July 17, 1812, in the seventy-sixth year of his age.

2 Mary McMillan, his beloved and faithful helpmate having died in the same place Jan. 23, 1803, in the seventieth year of her age.

* See foot note.

*The authentic information and record of Alexander² and Mary,² the second and sixth children respectively of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, did not reach the authors until a part of this work was already in press. It was therefore too late to give them the proper consecutive numbers, but it was thought best to put them in their place in the family, designating them with numbers as above. It seems that these two children became entirely lost to all other members of the family and all record of their birth destroyed. Alexander,² dying young, leaving no issue, it was easy for the flight of years to bury him in oblivion; but that Mary,² who married and raised a large family, whose life was more or less connected with historical

3 JOHN McMILLAN² and

8 LYDIA LOUDON.

3 John,² the first child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married Feb. 15, 1785, in Cambridge, N. Y., to Lydia Loudon, an accomplished young woman of Scotch parentage. John² was but a few years old when his parents reached their chosen home in Washington Co., N. Y. He grew to manhood in the very midst of Indian wars and cruelties; with contending armies ranked around his father's humble home. Inured to toil and the hardships incident to the settlers' life in a new, unbroken wilderness, the young man developed into a worthy son of his noble sire. Sharing the labors and dangers of his father's life, he also shared the religious faith and the unconquerable convictions of the old Scotch Covenanter. He became a faithful member of the old church society which had its birth on the other side of the Atlantic and through all his life he was a devout Christian gentleman. He met with many adversities and much sorrow during his life, yet he was never found wanting. He ever pressed on undaunted by trials, with unwavering faith in the God he served.

To John McMillan² and Lydia, his wife, were born:

- 9 1 A daughter,³ not named, born April 28, 1786, in Washington Co., N. Y.
- 10 2 Agnes,³ born April 4, 1787, in Washington Co., N. Y.
- 11 3 John,³ born June 3, 1789, in Washington Co., N. Y.
- 12 4 Lydia,³ born April 2, 1792, in Washington Co., N. Y.

events of her time, whose numerous descendants have been prominent in several states for over a century, should have so completely dropped from the memory of all relatives is very strange indeed. During the authors' years of research in the musty records of the past in the preparation of this work there have indeed on several occasions come faint suggestions of a second daughter in the family of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, but not until the book was about completed and the consecutive numbering was finished did we get any tangible evidence that an Alexander and Mary ever existed. This came in a letter from Mrs. Martha Brooks of Battle Creek, Mich., widow of Filmore Brooks,⁴ who was a grandson of Andrew McMillan.² Following the clue furnished by Mrs. Brooks and prosecuting our inquiries swiftly and assiduously, we have learned of Alexander's death and obtained a fair record of the descendants of Mary McMillan, which we lay before our readers in the proper order. Mrs Brooks and her daughter, Miss Loella Brooks, have been of great assistance in procuring this record, their memory of names and dates having been remarkable and their letters full and comprehensive.

- 11 John,³ the third and only surviving child of John McMillan² and Lydia, his wife, was married Oct. 8, 1812, to Elisabeth Livingston. John³ was born and raised in Washington Co., N. Y. He became a farmer, and after his father's removal to Ohio in 1818 John³ moved to the old original McMillan farm where his grandfather, John McMillan,¹ first settled in 1765. In 1840, however, John³ moved to a farm two miles north of Salem, where he lived until a short time before his death. He was for many years an elder in the United Presbyterian church. He was of a happy, cheerful disposition, and in every sense a gentleman of the "old school." In the war of 1812 John³ served as captain in the Lott Woodworth company of volunteers. He marched his company to Lake Champlain, hoping to participate in an action against the British, but arrived just at the close of the battle. Elisabeth Livingston was the daughter of Alexander and Nancy Livingston, who came from Scotland. She was a woman of strong character; was also handsome and proud spirited, and was a fitting companion for the stalwart young Scotchman who won her. Their home was ever open to all those who were in need of physical or spiritual help. They faithfully lived up to the time-honored motto of the McMillan clan, "Miseris succurrere disco."

MORRISON McMILLAN 4, of JOHN 3.

- 16 MORRISON McMILLAN⁴ and
59 MARY ELLIS ROBERTSON.
- 16 Morrison,⁴ the third child of John McMillan³ and Elisabeth, his wife, was married Feb. 13, 1851, to Mary Ellis Robertson. As a brief sketch of the life and character of Morrison McMillan⁴ we copy the words of his son, John Loudon McMillan,⁵ which tells of a successful, thrifty farmer, a profound student, a considerate and indulgent husband and father, and a conscientious Christian gentleman:
- “My father was also a farmer during all his life, and it is fair to say that he was an exceptionally good one, making a success of farming in a financial way and giving all of his children a good academic education and starting them with a moderate sum of money when they became of age. He was regarded by his neighbors as a ‘book farmer’ and was looked upon as somewhat visionary because of the extravagant prices which he paid for various animals to improve the character of his stock and because he was generally the pioneer in the adoption of labor saving machinery. It is fair to say, however, that the results he obtained amply justified the course he took, and it is probable that the net result obtained from his management was double or triple that of his neighbors who had equal opportunities in the way of acreage, etc. His education was what was known as a common school education in those days, but his habits were those of a student, and his reading and erudition along certain lines was most profound and thorough. His preference was the study of theology, and it is probably true that no one was better informed in regard to the various religions, religious beliefs and customs than he. His study was thorough and covered a wide range. His temperament was quiet and un-demonstrative, and his family all had the greatest respect and affection for him. He was very generous with his family and also, as far as his means would permit, helpful in public and private charities. The family always lived well in a big, old-fashioned, comfortable house about twenty minutes' walk from Cambridge village. The old house has fifteen rooms, eight of which are bedrooms, and is the ordinary type of country farmhouse, beautifully situated in a grove of maple and other trees on the turnpike which runs from Albany to Whitehall. This homestead is retained by my mother."

- 59 Mary E. Robertson was the daughter of William F. Robertson and Jane McFarland, who were both of Scotch descent. She is a woman of eminent piety and always endeavored to be a true helpmate to her husband in the training of sons and daughters and molding them into upright and honorable men and women.

63 JOHN LOUDON McMILLAN⁵ and

85 MARTHA ELIZABETH WEAVER.

63 John Loudon,⁵ the fourth child of Morrison McMillan⁴ and Mary E., his wife, has had an active, eventful career. It is safe to say that few men of his years have developed such remarkable genius for inventing, creating and managing. Few have met and overcome so many insuperable obstacles, emerging at last into the sunlight of final prosperity. Born on his father's farm in Washington Co., N. Y., in 1857, he early showed a predilection for machinery and mechanical appliances. He passed successively through the district school, the academy of Cambridge, N. Y., the Claverach College and a commercial school in Troy, N. Y. He was also a teacher for a time in the Putman Institute at Cambridge, N. Y. During these years of study he devoted all his spare time to mechanical drawings and in studying the hidden secrets of mechanical power. Before he was twenty-one years old he had invented and perfected a machine for the manufacture of shirts which reduced the cost of production of those articles a large per cent. He then turned his inventive genius to perfecting a machine for setting type and soon had a model built at Albany which proved to be a complete success. A company was formed to develop and introduce the machines. It was not long before the McMillan Typesetting machines were in general use in the offices of the New York Sun, the Century Magazine and others. Competition backed by millions of dollars and by far-reaching influences crowded the McMillan company from the field. Not to be daunted, John Loudon⁵ hastened to Germany, where he formed a company and began introducing his machines. When fairly launched upon what promised to be a successful and lucrative career, the German government began certain patent litigation, which resulted disastrously to the McMillan company and eventually drove it from the country. John L.⁵ returned to his native land and in 1889 formed the McMillan Book Company, of which he is president and manager, with headquarters in Syracuse, N. Y. The business of this company is based upon various inventions of Mr. McMillan's, including loose leaf devices, typewriting record books, and other improved forms of office and counting room work. Nothing could stop the work of the man's busy brain nor suppress his vital energies. He soon invented an improved form of turbin engine and organized a company to develop and introduce it, called the "McMillan Engine and Machine Company," of which John Loudon⁵ is vice president and manager. Despite his activities and labors Mr. McMillan⁵ has held many offices of trust and responsibility. At one time he was a trustee of the Remington Gun and Machine Co. of Illion, N. Y., and for a short time president of the same corporation. He is, like his father, a strong Presbyterian and a firm supporter of the church of his choice.

CHAPTER III.

THOMAS McMILLAN 3, of JOHN 2.

3 JOHN McMILLAN² and
148 RACHEL MORRISON.

8 Lydia, the first wife of John McMillan,² having died as before stated, he married for his second wife May 1, 1794, in Washington Co., N. Y., Rachel Morrison. She was a woman of superior attainments. The daughter of a titled gentleman, she had been reared and educated in a home of luxury with surroundings elegant and refined. She was well informed in legal rights and claims. It was related of her that during the Revolutionary war she became involved in a law suit in which she was her own lawyer and pleaded her own case and won the suit.

To the above couple were born:

149 1 Thomas,³ born June 3, 1796, in Washington Co., N. Y.

150 2 Andrew,³ born April 14, 1798, in Washington Co., N. Y.

151 3 Morrison,³ born Dec. 21, 1799, in Washington Co., N. Y.

148 Rachel McMillan, the mother of the above three children, died at the birth of Morrison,³ Dec. 21, 1799, in the forty-third year of her age, and was buried in Cambridge, N. Y. Further record of John McMillan² to follow.

149 THOMAS McMILLAN³ and

152 ELIZABETH ROBERTSON.

149 Thomas,³ the first child of John McMillan² and Rachel, his wife, was married Aug. 26, 1817, in Washington Co., N. Y., to Elizabeth Robertson. Thomas was a man of more than ordinary education and ability. In early manhood he was engaged in teaching school. His learning and his aspirations seemed to be leading him to a plane of life above the ordinary class. A few years after his marriage, however, he moved to Ohio, and was taken with a severe attack of sciatica which made him a cripple for life. Dismayed by this change in his physical standing, he gave up his high aspirations and turned his attention to the most simple way of securing a livelihood for his little family. He started in as a farmer on a piece of land which he purchased in Morrow Co., Ohio.

His sons were still young, but with their help he went bravely at the task of clearing a new farm in the beech woods. It was a hard struggle, but by constant application they succeeded in making a living. Thomas³ learned the tailor's trade, and worked at that winters and all his spare time. After the family began to feel a little easy in circumstances, he was induced to indorse a paper for a merchant in the town of Iberia. By this move he lost all his possessions, for he was a man of unflinching integrity, and paid the debt to the last farthing. He then moved to Washington Co., Iowa, and opened up a farm on the prairie and prospered fairly well. As old age came on, however, and his lameness increased, he took up tailoring again, and for many years followed that calling in the village of Washington, Iowa. As an illustration of the well-known Christian probity and true manliness of the man it is said that when his small boys were playing on the streets of the village, citizens (merchants, lawyers and others) would point them out to friends with the remark, that those were the sons of Thomas McMillan.³ The boys soon learned that their father's good name, his honesty and uprightness was their capital for a start in life. Although occupying a humble station in life, Thomas³ was fitted by nature and education to ornament the highest. It can truly be said that "his works have followed him," two of his sons going into the ministry and all of them being educated Christian gentlemen. He was ever a faithful and earnest member of the United Presbyterian Church.

To Thomas McMillan³ and Elizabeth, his wife, were born:

- 153 1 John,⁴ born May 23, 1818, in Washington Co., N. Y.

Harris, who was a pupil in the school he was teaching in that place. John grew up a hard-working boy on his father's farm, obtaining his education by studying evenings and reciting to his father. In this way he fitted himself for teaching. In early manhood, however, he fell in love with his fair pupil and decided to remove west and engage in farming. It was a long, hard journey the young man and his bride made from Ohio to the state of Iowa. He stopped at several places but found no suitable location until reaching Washington, Iowa, where he became a thrifty farmer, living for twenty-eight years on the same farm. He also opened and operated a stone quarry. Later John⁴ moved to Emporia, Kansas, making that his home until his death.

PETER R. McMILLAN 4, of THOMAS 3.

- 154 PETER ROBERTSON McMILLAN⁴ and

- 197 ELIZABETH CULLY.

- 154 Peter R.,⁴ the second child of Thomas McMillan³ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married Aug. 24, 1850, in Dalton, Ohio, to Elizabeth Cully, who was born in Dalton, Oct. 24, 1829. While his baptismal name was Patrick, he was always called Peter, and was known only by that name. Peter R.⁴ moved with his parents to Seneca Co., Ohio, when only a small boy. He worked hard to help his father open up a farm, acquiring an education, as did his brother John, by studying at home evenings and reciting to his father. On reaching his majority, he began teaching village schools and in academies and followed it for several years, continuing his studies meantime, and thus acquired a fine classical education. In 1856 Peter R.⁴ moved with his family to Washington Co., Ia. For five years he was engaged in the mercantile business with his brother Richard in Crawfordsville, Ia., then removed to a farm three miles from the village of Washington where he continued to reside until his death. On the farm Peter R.⁴ turned his attention particularly to raising blooded stock of all kinds. He was very successful, the sale of his thoroughbreds bringing him a handsome revenue. Peter R. McMillan⁴ was a man of unswerving integrity and honesty. His was as true and noble a soul as ever throbbed within the breast of man. Patient, cool and deliberate in his habits, tall and commanding in figure, with his mind fully stored with useful knowledge, he was a man to command the respect and inspire the confidence of his neighbors. To him his neighbors and townsmen always went for counsel and advice. Peter R.⁴ was naturally a leader of men and would have made an admirable military commander; not by his eloquence or dash, but by his cool self-possession and his admirable poise at all times. Early in life he became identified with the United Presbyterian church, and continued a devoted, faithful member through all his days.

To Peter R. McMillan⁴ and Elizabeth, his wife, were born:

- 198 1 Jane Alice,⁵ born Jan. 27, 1852, in Dalton, Ohio.
 199 2 Horace Greely,⁵ born May 29, 1854, in Dalton, Ohio.
 200 3 Maria Frances,⁵ born Sept. 29, 1855, in Dalton, Ohio.
 154 Peter McMillan,⁴ the father of the above three children, died March 13, 1882, in Washington, Iowa, in the sixty-second year of his age.
 197 Elizabeth McMillan, his widow, lives with her two daughters, Mrs. Jane Alice Rodgers⁵ and Mrs. Maria Frances Glenn⁵ alternately.

August, 1908, her postoffice address was Milbank. S. D.

- 198 JANE ALICE McMILLAN⁵ and 201 THOMAS C. RODGERS.
 198 Jane Alice,⁵ the first child of Peter R. McMillan⁴ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married June 22, 1877, in Washington, Iowa, to Thomas C. Rodgers, who has been for more than twenty years a grain and elevator man. After working at different occupations when a young man he embarked in the grain business and has made a pronounced success. He has been a member of the Kansas legislature and is prominent in his vicinity. It is rarely that one meets with a woman who is so completely the embodiment of all the sweet, womanly graces and charms as is the subject of this sketch, Jane Alice Rodgers. The fact that her parents were both pure and lofty characters, that she was reared in the sweetness and beauty of a pure, happy home, and under the influences of a simple, constant, religious faith, explains it all. It is no accident that certain persons excel others in intellectual and spiritual gifts. A look into

HORACE G. McMILLAN 5, of PETER R. 4.

- 199 HORACE G. McMILLAN⁵ and

- 203 ALICE VAN DOREN.

- 199 Horace G.,⁵ the second child of Peter R. McMillan⁴ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married Aug. 28, 1877, in Washington, Ia., to Alice Van Doren, who was born in Washington, Ia., being the daughter of the late W. A. Van Doren, an early settler and long a prominent attorney in that section of the state. To write a sketch of the life and career of Horace G. McMillan⁵ is to tell a story of a long, hard struggle against heavy odds, burdened by a huge load of debt and responsibilities; of courage and determination that never flinched or wavered; of undaunted perseverance, grim endurance and patience that was almost sublime; of a calm, self-contained, heroic man, who through all his life, under all circumstances, ever kept his eyes firmly fixed upon the shining goal which he early set before him. The writer has known the man since he was a boy, and we can truly say that he possesses the above named qualities to an extent that is rarely met with among men. With all these, he is kind and gentle in disposition, a loving husband and a fond parent. He is also a faithful friend, true and constant in all relations of life. Like his father, he is a worthy representative of the old Scotch Covenanters from whom he sprung. It is a pleasure to know that he has conquered success and reached the fruition of his hopes as stated by his wife, whose words we quote on another page. That our readers may know more fully what manner of man is this, our relative, and how he is regarded by the people of his state, we append the following remarks and quotations:

199 Horace G. McMillan⁵ received his primary education in the public schools and at the academies of Washington and Grandview in Iowa. For several years following he was engaged with his father in raising and handling fine stock. In the meantime he began the study of law and entered the office of McJunkin & Henderson of Washington, the senior member of the firm being at the time attorney general of the state of Iowa. Young McMillan⁵ was admitted to the bar in 1880 by Circuit Judge L. C. Blanchard of Oskaloosa, Ia., and immediately opened a law office in Washington. From "Progressive Men of Iowa," we quote: "In 1882 Mr. McMillan⁵ became interested in northwestern Iowa, and the same year located in Rock Rapids, Lyon County, where he entered into a law partnership with A. Van Wagenen which lasted until 1891. A few days after leaving his old home his father died, and having endorsed for friends and relatives, left an indebtedness of about $4,000.00. After attending his father's funeral young McMillan⁵ called upon all the creditors and voluntarily assumed all the indebtedness. With this burden on his shoulders, and with no money, the young attorney invaded the open country of northwestern Iowa determined to succeed. Ten years afterwards he returned to Washington for the first time, having paid off every dollar of the family indebtedness. As a lawyer he has been eminently successful. He has been connected with the most important litigation of the state and especially prominent in the bond litigation of Lyon County. He tried those cases in both the state and the United States courts, the Supreme Court at Washington deciding two of them in his favor. Thus he saved many thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of the county. He has also been successful in the trial of personal injury cases. As a boy of nineteen he served several months as a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, which experience was useful to him in later years. His practice has brought him a large income for many years. From his boyhood Horace G. McMillan⁵ has taken an active part in politics. By birth and conviction he is an unswerving Republican. He served three terms as county attorney of Lyon County, although some of the time the county was Democratic. He served as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Iowa for three successive terms. He had charge of the campaign in which Gen. Francis M. Drake was elected governor by an almost unprecedented majority. He also had charge of the McKinley and Hobart campaign in Iowa, which he conducted in such a manner as to win the praise of Republicans and Gold-Democrats alike. As a campaign manager, Mr. McMillan has tenacity of purpose, persistence of effort combined with judgment and a wise spirit of conciliation, and under him the party has developed no factions nor has it wavered." The "Biographical History of Lynn County" says: "As a citizen he ever stands ready to discharge any duty devolving upon him. His public service has been most commendable, and he stands deservedly high in professional, political and social circles."

He was appointed by President McKinley United States attorney for the northern district of Iowa, the Senate confirming the appointment in February, 1898.

One who has known Mr. McMillan⁵ for a score of years, himself a gentleman of ability and influence, says:

"From the beginning he proved himself to be a thorough lawyer, having the peculiar ability which characterizes the successful practitioner of getting the right theory of the law as to his case. He is a man of strong purpose and great energy supported by a courage that never showed the white feather when everything was going wrong—judge, jury and evidence. His practice has been characterized by the strictest adherence to the exact line of professional ethics."

On receiving his appointment from President McKinley, Mr. McMillan⁵ moved to Cedar Rapids, where he erected a large, commodious dwelling in which he installed his family and took up the duties of his important position. Again quoting from "Progressive Men of Iowa": "Mr.

McMillan⁵ is a business man. In 1898 the Cedar Rapids Daily Republican was for sale. Seeing an excellent opportunity for building up a strong newspaper and a profitable business, Mr. McMillan, in company with Mr. Cyrenus Cole of the Iowa State Register, bought the paper. It immediately took a leading position and grew in circulation and influence."

In spite of his active life and his marked successes in the legal and newspaper fields and in politics, the subject of this sketch has ever turned a longing eye towards the business of his early life, that of farming and the raising of fine blooded stock. Early in his business career he began investing in land in Lyon County adjacent to Rock Rapids. Having sold the small farm originally purchased, he bought, in 1887, the first five hundred acres of the present stock farm. To this he kept adding acres from time to time until the farm in 1908 consists of 1,020 acres of as fine land as Iowa contains, with the Rock River, a stream of pure spring water, running diagonally through it. He named the farm "Lakewood" from a wooded lake lying in the tract. On this farm are bred and raised Percheron horses, Shorthorn and Jersey cattle and Poland-China pigs that in breeding and quality will compare with the best to be found in the United States. The Lakewood farm is now the largest breeding establishment for pure-bred stock in the state of Iowa, and its stock is known and valued throughout the United States and Canada. In the fall and winter of 1907 Lakewood Percherons won the championship cups over all competitors at the Iowa State Fair, the Inter-State Fair held at Sioux City, Ia., and at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago. It is related that after the purchase of the first five hundred acres of land by Mr. McMillan⁵ a friend asked him what he gave for it. He replied laconically, "Fifty dollars and sand." Yet he was never known to fail in his payments and his notes never went to protest. We quote a few lines of a letter received from Mrs. Alice Van Doren McMillan:

“I remember driving from Rock Rapids to Lakewood with Mr. McMillan soon after its purchase, and he, with that sanguine outlook which is so characteristic, enlarged on his future plans for this farm. From an eminence overlooking the land he unfolded his plans. Weeds should be subdued, the land fenced, groves planted here, an orchard there, fine, new buildings should replace the small ones then in view, and blooded stock should range over the pasture fields. All that he planned twenty years ago has reached fruition, and his fine stock business has more than met his early dreams and expectations.”

On retiring from the office of United States attorney in 1907, which position he filled for nearly ten years with conspicuous ability, Mr. McMillan⁵ disposed of his interest in the Cedar Rapids Republican and has devoted his time and energies to his Lakewood farm and other farms which he owns in Moody Co., S. D., and Stevens Co., Minn.; also to the Farmers' Tribune, published in Sioux City, Ia., of which he is the sole proprietor. It is probable that the subject of this sketch will hereafter devote himself entirely to agricultural pursuits, to breeding and raising blooded stock and to pushing and extending the excellent paper which he controls. He is, in 1908, the president of the Percheron Society of America, which is composed of some two thousand members.

203 Alice Van Doren McMillan is a woman of rare accomplishments. Of her the “Biographical History of Lynn Co., Ia.,” says: “She is a member of the Presbyterian church, has always taken a deep interest in educational affairs and was largely instrumental in founding the public library in Rock Rapids, Ia.” We also quote from “Progressive Men of Iowa”: “Mr. McMillan’s wife has been a helpmate to him not only in his home, but in his public life. She has taken a deep interest in political affairs in which her husband has been prominent. She has taken especially an interest in educational matters and was largely instrumental in founding the free public library at Rock Rapids, and feels

216 WILLIAM ANDREW GLENN.

200 Maria Frances,⁵ the third child of Peter R. McMillan⁴ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married Aug. 28, 1877, in Washington, Ia., to William Andrew Glenn. Maria Frances,⁵ like her sister, is a woman of rare attainments. Finely educated, experienced in teaching, reared by the most wise and judicious parents, with her early surroundings and associations well calculated to mould and ennoble character, a conscientious member of the United Presbyterian Church, it is a little wonder that she has developed into a most lovable woman, wife and mother. She has gladly furnished some interesting facts for this work. William A. Glenn was raised on his father's farm in Washington Co., Iowa. His parents were members of the United Presbyterian Church and very prudent in the training of their children. William A. received a good common school education and became a good farmer. In early manhood, however, he left the farm and moved to Minnesota, where he secured service with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. Beginning as a brakeman, his faithfulness and efficiency soon won him promotion and he became a passenger train conductor. For more than twenty-five years he held that position, through many administrations and various circumstances. He has ever been found faithful and equal to all the exigencies of the business. In 1907 he retired from the railway service and settled on a farm in Grant Co., S. D., which he had long been fitting up for his old age. Back to the occupation of his boyhood, William A. seems perfectly contented, and after his active life on the "rail" enjoys the quietness and peace of a pastoral life.

To Maria Frances Glenn⁵ and William A., her husband, were born:

RICHARD BOUTON McMILLAN 4, of THOMAS 3.

155 RICHARD BOUTON McMILLAN⁴ and

225 MARY JANE CURRIE.

155 Richard Bouton,⁴ the third child of Thomas McMillan³ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married in March, 1849, in Washington, Ia., to Mary Jane Currie, who was born Oct. 4, 1830, near Columbus, Ohio. Richard B.⁴ removed to Ohio with his parents when a small boy. The facilities for securing an education in northern Ohio in that early day were very limited, but by some means the sons of Thomas McMillan³ succeeded in becoming finished scholars. Richard B.⁴ like his older brothers, worked hard and faithfully on his father's farm, pursuing his studies evenings and holidays under his father's instructions. For lack of proper schools and colleges Richard B.⁴ obtained much of his learning from private tutors, so in time he became a fine scholar, having a thorough knowledge of Greek and Latin and was a linguist of more than ordinary ability. He was a student all his life, never ceasing to acquire knowledge of books. He was a member of the United Presbyterian Church and was a profound Bible student and teacher. About 1847, he moved to Washington Co., Ia., where he engaged in mercantile business with his brother, Peter R.,⁴ for a number of years. He then worked at the carpenter trade awhile and at last went to farming. He remained in Washington county for many years, and by his ability and education and by the beauty and simplicity of his daily life won all hearts to him. He was a strong, manly man, yet his nature was as refined and gentle as that of the tenderest woman. In 1872 Richard B.⁴ moved to Kansas. Being deeply interested in affairs of state he became active in politics, and in 1874 was elected to the Kansas State Senate, where his eloquence and powers as a debater won him much renown. On account of his honesty and probity he was known as the "conscientious senator." After a few years spent in Kansas, he returned to his old home in Washington, Ia.

REV. ANDREW McMILLAN 4, of THOMAS 3.

159 ANDREW McMILLAN⁴ and

291 MARY ELLEN BROWN.

159 Andrew,⁴ the seventh child of Thomas McMillan³ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married March 31, 1868, to Mary Ellen Brown, known in her school days as "Minnie Brown," who was born Dec. 25, 1850. Andrew,⁴ after working faithfully with his father until early manhood, turned his attention to acquiring an education. After passing through the high school in Washington, Ia., he entered the Monmouth College, then located in Washington, but afterwards moved to Monmouth, Ill. It was a United Presbyterian college fitting pupils for the ministry in that society. He passed through successfully and was for several years a teacher in the college. While thus engaged he met his future wife in the person of a modest little school girl, one of his pupils. After fully completing his theological course he began preaching and for thirty-six years was a faithful and successful minister of the gospel of Christ, twenty years in the United Presbyterian Church and the last sixteen years in the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. His life was one of self-sacrifice, wholly devoted to his family and to his church.

291 Minnie McMillan was a worthy helpmate of her pious husband. She was an earnest Christian worker, a devoted wife and mother, and a peculiarly sweet and attractive woman.

Their union was blessed with one child:

- 292 1 David Wallace,⁵ born Feb. 9, 1869, in Washington, Ia.
293 2 Florence Marguerite,⁵ born May 14, 1892, in St. Joseph, Mo. This child was legally adopted by Andrew McMillan⁴ and Minnie, his wife, when three years old. Her parents were F. C. Townsley, of Washington, Ia., and Emma Brown Townsley, sister of Minnie Brown McMillan. When Andrew McMillan⁴ died the child (then twelve years old) was taken in charge by Rev. James Addison Alexander and Mary Emma,⁵ his wife, who are educating her, although not adopting her. Her lawful name is McMillan, and Rev. Alexander is her guardian. In January, 1908, she was attending the seminary for girls founded by the late Dwight L. Moody at East Northfield, Mass. She is a very sweet, lovable child and is developing into a noble, Christian woman.

- 291 Minnie McMillan, the mother, died Oct. 19, 1899, in Ottumwa, Ia., forty-nine years of age. She was attending the laying of the cornerstone of a new Presbyterian church, became tired out, took cold, and passed away unexpectedly. In speaking of her death, her son said: "Her death, like her life, was a joyous triumph. When she realized that death was near, she said in sweetest tones: 'Jesus can make a dying bed like unto downy pillows.'" Thus passed over one of the sweetest, noblest characters whose lives have ever brightened this world.
- 159 Andrew McMillan⁴ died Jan. 2, 1905, in Lyons, Ia., in the seventy-second year of his age, and was buried in Ottumwa, Ia., beside the grave of his wife.

161 William H.,⁴ the ninth child of Thomas McMillan³ and Elizabeth, his wife, was married July 18, 1864, to Mary Margaret Couden, who was born Oct. 25, 1840, in Reynoldsburg, Ohio. William H. McMillan,⁴ as a boy on his father's farm, was accustomed to hard manual labor. He received his early education in his native town in Ohio. Determined to gain a college education and with his aspirations drawing him towards the ministry, he entered the United Presbyterian College at Washington, Ia., and graduated there in the class of 1860. He was elected moderator of the first synod of the west in 1877. Of Dr. William H. McMillan⁴ a leading paper of the east says: "He is one of the best-known and most prominent ministers in the United States." Dr. McMillan⁴ has made several trips abroad, his last being an extended journey through the "Holy Land." It is a pleasure to add that, with all his learn-

DR. ANDREW McMILLAN 3, of JOHN 2.

150 DR. ANDREW McMILLAN³ and

311 EFFE DRAKE WHEELER.

150 Andrew,³ the second child of John McMillan² and Rachel, his wife, was married Nov. 19, 1822, in Norwalk, Ohio, to Effe Drake Wheeler. Dr. Andrew McMillan³ was baptized and raised a Presbyterian, as were his ancestors. In the year 1825, however, he broke away from the church of his fathers and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Clarksfield, Huron Co., Ohio, being one of five members to organize that society, then under charge of Rev. James McIntyre. Having been deemed by his father too frail in physique for a farmer, Andrew³ was early placed in college to prepare himself for a professional career. He chose the study of medicine, and in 1827 he graduated from the Ohio Medical College at Cincinnati, Ohio. He was for more than a score of years a practicing physician and surgeon in Huron Co., Ohio, and vicinity. He was not only a skillful physician, but was an upright Christian gentleman. He realized to the full extent the responsibilities resting upon him. He was always ready, night or day, rain or shine, to respond to the call of the sick and suffering. No storms were so severe, no woods so dense, and no roads so impassable as to deter him from visiting his patients. Dr. McMillan was active in politics and deeply interested in all questions affecting the interest and welfare of the masses. He had a distinctive literary talent and was a regular contributor to several church papers, as well as to political journals. He was also an able exhorter and lecturer, and was all his life a consistent member of his chosen church, as well as its able defender.

father and oldest brother were soldiers in the Revolutionary war. Four brothers were in the War of 1812, and her youngest brother in the Mexican war. The strain of patriotism and of undying devotion to principle was hereditary in the family. In the character of Effe Drake Wheeler this family trait was very marked. Marrying when very young, bearing a large family of children, for many years a widow, passing through many trying scenes; she was ever a strong, noble woman. Her native strength of character, her lofty ideals and her unwavering trust in the God she faithfully served, were ever her strength and shield, and enabled her to meet the adversities and exigencies of life with calmness and fortitude.

To Dr. Andrew McMillan and Effe D., his wife, were born:

- 312 1 William,⁴ born July 18, 1823, in Clarksfield, Ohio; died July 18, 1824, in Clarksfield, Ohio.

- 325 14 Charles Edwin,⁴ born Dec. 7, 1849, in Clarksfield, Ohio.

It is notable that all these children except the first two were born in the same house, the one which Dr. McMillan built soon after his marriage. He died in the same house in Clarksfield, Ohio, April 18, 1849, fifty-one years of age, and was buried in the Methodist cemetery. He was virtually a victim of his untiring devotion to his profession and to the exposure incident to a physician's labors in a new, sparsely settled country.

150 Dr. Andrew McMillan having died, as before stated, Effe D. married for her second husband, Dec. 31, 1854, in Clarksfield, Ohio, Martin Easterly. 319 LUCY JANE McMILLAN⁴ and 327 WILLIAM ALEXANDER HALL.

319 Lucy Jane,⁴ the eighth child of Dr. Andrew McMillan³ and Effe D., his wife, was married Aug. 10, 1855, in West Union, Ia., to William Alexander Hall. She received her education in the schools of her native town, receiving a certificate to teach when only seventeen years old. She taught school several terms in Huron Co., Ohio, with conspicuous success. In 1854 she went to Iowa to visit her sister and taught school one term in West Union, Ia. She had a special literary talent and contributed much poetry and blank verse to local papers. Some of her works were of a high order. Judge J. O. Cunningham of Urbana, Ill. (an old schoolmate and friend), for whose paper she contributed poems when only eighteen years old, says: "Even at that early age her verse compared favorably with that of the great masters." We quote below an extract from "Lines on the Death of a Schoolmate" written by Lucy Jane⁴ before she was eighteen.

LUCY JANE HALL 4, of ANDREW 3—Continued.

“The sun had passed in glory to rest 'neath
 The glowing brightness of western skies. A rich
 Mellow light was thrown o'er all earth's scenes,
 And in its gentle wanderings stole softly
 Through the parted curtains which hung
 In drapery folds around the couch of death.
 A deep silence reigned in the chamber of Sorrow; and many sighs from half broken
 Hearts told of grief that was hard to bear.

“The sun rose upon another
 Day of beauty—the day they met to gaze
 For the last time upon the face of the silent dead.
 How beautiful in her childish innocence.
 Robed in spotless white our Anna lay
 While 'round her brow and in the dark folds
 Of her glossy hair was a gift of love.
 A wreath of blushing flowers. A tear gemmed the Petal of a rose which in its loveliness
 Lay upon her pulseless breast. Emblem of life,
 It seemed to say, ‘the young, the bright, the beautiful
 Like flowers, must fade away.’”

The subject of this sketch was a prominent member of the Daughters of the Revolution and a gifted woman in every way. While her experiences in life were sad and depressing (having buried the husband of her youth and all her children save one), she ever retained the cheerful, sunny disposition that characterized her through life.

HARRIET E. PARKHURST 4, of ANDREW 3.

320 HARRIET ELIZABETH McMILLAN⁴ and

345 ANDREW JACKSON PARKHURST.

320 Harriet Elizabeth,⁴ the ninth child of Dr. Andrew McMillan³ and Effe D., his wife, was married, Feb. 22, 1854, in Clarksfield, Ohio, to Andrew Jackson Parkhurst. Harriet Elizabeth was of a nature so sensitive and refined as to border on the spiritual. Naturally inclined to piety, her soul aspiring to pure and lofty ideas, she seemed at times a being not of earth, but living in a realm beyond the reach of poor mortality. Yet she was a fond, obedient daughter, a gentle, loving sister and a true and trusting wife. She possessed literary and musical talent of a high order. While still in her teens, she composed beautiful music and contributed poems of power and pathos to various publications. Below we quote a short poem from her pen, which she contributed the year of her marriage:

CHILDHOOD HOURS.

By H. E. M. PARKHURST.

“When morning gleams with Aurora’s beams,
And the sky-lark’s voice is heard,
I wake from sleep, while roses weep
In groves by zephyrs stirred.

My thoughts then rove to scenes I love—
The hours of childhood’s glee,
When wandering wide in childish pride,
And life was joy to me.

All things looked fair, I knew not care,
And little did I dream,
That things so bright, when brought to light,
Were never what they seem.

The merry smile that shows no guile,
Conceals a bitter tear:
The cheerful face or noble grace,
Oft hides some horrid fear.

I thought I knew that friends were true,
And that they loved me well,
But now I find the echanging mind,
Oft breaks the magic spell.”

After marriage Andrew J. Parkhurst and Harriet E., his wife, moved to Bremer Co., Ia., where they settled on a new farm. Although her married life was short, she was very happy and was tenderly devoted to her husband. She died Oct. 12, 1866, thirty years of age, in Leroy, Bremer Co., Ia., leaving no children.

- 345 Andrew J. Parkhurst married again a few years later and became a prosperous merchant. He died suddenly in Fort Worth, Tex., leaving a widow and one son.

ANDREW McMILLAN 4, of ANDREW 3.

- 321 Andrew,⁴ the tenth child of Dr. Andrew McMillan³ and Effe D., his wife, after spending his boyhood working at various occupations to help support his mother and younger brothers and sisters, was, at nineteen years of age, engaged in the Michigan pineries not far from Muskegon, Mich. Here he received an injury to his spine by too heavy lifting to save a fellow employe's life. He never recovered, but gradually declined and died at the home of his mother in Sparta, Wis., Aug. 20, 1858, in the twentieth year of his age, and was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery there. Thus perished in early life a young man whose life promised much, whose heart was full of hope, and swelled with noble ambitions. He was loved by many, and even after the lapse of half a century his memory is still green.

John⁴ moved with his mother from Ohio to Sparta, Wis., in May, 1855. After working on his mother's farm several years he began work on the railroad and spent more than thirty years in that vocation; passing through the several grades until he became general roadmaster of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway. In all positions he showed special fitness and judgment; winning the respect and confidence of his employes and the commendation of his superior officers. In every walk in life and under all circumstances, he was a rugged, manly man, a faithful husband, a fond parent, a genial friend and a devoted Christian gentleman. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and of the Masonic fraternity.

346 Mary Ann, the wife of John McMillan,⁴ having died, as before stated, he married for his second wife, Sept. 20, 1869, in Faribault, Minn., Carrie Delancey Brewer, the Rev. Rogers officiating. This lady was born March 4, 1850, and was the daughter of Peter Brewer and Per-mela Merchant Brewer.

To the above couple were born:

348 1 John Edwin,⁵ born Oct. 9, 1870, in Faribault, Minn.

349 2 Effie D. Arnott,⁵ born Jan. 27, 1873, in St. James, Minn.

351 4 Franklin Gere,⁵ born Sept. 25, 1882, in Minneapolis, Minn.

352 5 Carrie Mauneena,⁵ born March 5, 1885, in Minneapolis, Minn.

322 John McMillan,⁴ the father of the above children, died Sept. 1, 1892, in the fifty-second year of his age, in Barrett, Grant Co., Minn., from injuries received in the wreck of a train while attending to his duties as road-master, the train going through a bridge over the Pomme de Terre river. Thus this noble man, who was ever faithful and efficient in the discharge of all duties, whom no storms nor dangers could daunt, died "in the harness" in the performance of his duties, as true a hero as the men of the Light Brigade at Bala-klava, or the men of the First Minnesota at Gettysburg. He was buried with Masonic honors in Lakewood Cemetery, Minneapolis, Minn.

was in more than a score of battles and numberless skirmishes and was engaged in the pursuit of the Confederate army under Gen. Stirling Price, from the Missouri river to the Arkansas in 1864, being wounded in the battle of Little Blue river in the right shoulder. He still carries the bullet in his body. He is a Free Mason, a member of the Royal Arcanum, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and of the Grand Army of the Republic. He has been actively engaged in railroad life since 1868, rising from brakeman to superintendent of operating. He retired in March, 1907, since which time he has lived a quiet life at his summer home, "Vi-Lo-Ra," at Mahtomedi, on the shore of White Bear Lake. William F. McMillan⁴ has found time in his busy, active life to devote to literature, for which he has a special talent. He has written and published four works of fiction, which received much praise from readers and critics. He has also indulged in poetry to some extent. Below we quote a short poem entitled "Waiting," which was written by him when undergoing a severe mental and moral strain:

 "Though waters deep around me roll,
 Though tempests fierce without control,
 With gloom and doubts o'erwhelm my soul,
 Amidst the storms defying fate,
 I'll proudly wait.

Though bends my form from before the blast,
 Though grievous burdens on me cast,
 I'll raise my head erect at last
 And firmly stand in sorrow's strait
 And grimly wait.

Though unrequited toil and strife
 Have been my portion all my life,
 Though disappointments still are rife,
 I will remain in hopeful state
 And calmly wait.

Though Poverty with frightful mein,
 With hideous form so gaunt and lean,
 Close by my side is ever seen;
 Whose presence known is but to hate,
 I'll watch and wait.

Some day I'll get him on the hip,
I'll give the demon grim the slip,
From Fortune's cup I yet shall sip
Prosperity. It may be late,
But I will wait.

Though throbs with pain my aching head,
Though earthly joys from me have fled,
Though life's most cherished hopes seem dead,
In Him who holds the hand of fate
I'll trust and wait."

357 LOLA ODESSA McMILLAN⁵ and

360 FREDERICK SPENCER YAEGER.

357 Lola Odessa,⁵ the fourth child of William F. McMillan⁴ and Odessa R., his wife, was married June 20, 1905, at Mahomed, Minn., to Dr. Frederick Spencer Yaeger from Helena, Mont. Although naturally a strong, healthy person, Lola Odessa has been afflicted with nearly all the ills to which flesh is heir and has been brought to death's door many times. It has been a constant struggle for her parents to ward off the many dreadful diseases that have seized upon her from early childhood. Her strong heart and her clear Scotch grit is all that has saved her. She is a woman of culture and refinement. Calm, reserved and gentle in her demeanor; constant and devoted in her affections; sublime in her patience, and heroic in her courage.

360 Dr. Frederick Spencer Yaeger is of German parentage. He was born in Fort Hayes, Kan., July 24, 1873, his father being an officer in the regular army at that time. While he was still a small child, his parents moved to Helena, Mont., where Frederick S. received his education. He served two years in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war as a lieutenant in the First Montana Regiment. He took part in all the engagements under Gen. MacArthur in the pursuit of Aguinaldo. Returning to the United States, he entered the State University of Minnesota as a student in dentistry.

He was graduated in June, 1903, and was at once appointed a member of the faculty, having a class in crown and bridge work. He gives two days a week to these duties and practices dentistry in St. Paul the remainder of the time in Room 403, Germania Life Building.

324 MARY ARNOTT McMILLAN⁴ and

362 JOHN F. SNEATHEN.

324 Mary Arnott,⁴ the thirteenth child of Dr. Andrew McMILLAN³ and Effe D., his wife, was married May 1, 1876, in Sparta, Wis., to Dr. John F. Sneathen, a dentist practicing in Reedsburg, Wis. Mary Arnott was a woman of superior character and attainments. She was educated in the schools of Sparta, Wis., and for years was a successful teacher in the public schools there. She was also proficient in piano and organ music, and as a teacher on those instruments she had but few superiors. She was pious, conscientious and just. A lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and her life was as near perfect as is possible for mortals. Unfortunately her union with Dr. Sneathen was not a happy one. In June, 1884, her husband confessing to an attachment for another, Mary Arnott was compelled to seek a separation and in time was legally divorced. She returned to her mother's home, then in Minneapolis, Minn., taking up her old vocation of music teaching. In later years her eyesight failed her and her teaching was given up. Her life, on the whole, was a sorrowful one, everything having failed her except her faith in God, to which she clung to the last. She died April 20, 1905, in the sixtieth year of her age, in Minneapolis, Minn., leaving no children, and was buried in Lakewood cemetery. We append lines which were found among her relics after her death, which were evidently written in her eighteenth year, while her brother was in service in the field:

MARY ARNOTT McMILLAN 4, of ANDREW 3—Continued.

“’Twas hard to let thee go my brother,
Thy love to me was as no other.
To me the thought that we must sever,
Oh, it was hard.

’Twas thou who shared my childish play,
Who loved as only brothers may,
And was my guide from day to day,
By gentle words.

I sadly miss thy loving smile
So dear to me, so free from guile,
Oh, yes; I miss thee all the while,
Dear brother mine.
But shall my heart to sorrow yield,
And stay thee from the battlefield,
Where brave hearts beat and blood is spilled,
Precious as thine?

No; brave and honored brother, go,
And for our country service do,
Till every traitor is laid low
And war unknown.
I know thy courage ne’er shall waver,
Thy heart grow faint and weary never,
Know then thy sister’s prayer shall ever
Ascend the throne.”

CHAPTER V.

MORRISON McMILLAN 3, of JOHN 2.151 MORRISON McMILLAN³ and 373 CLARISSA BROWN.

151 Morrison,³ the third child of John McMillan² and Rachel, his wife, was married in 1820, in Seneca Co., Ohio, to Clarissa Brown, who was born Oct. 29, 1801, in Elizabethtown, Canada. He moved with his father from Washington Co., N. Y., to Huron Co., Ohio, when he was a young man. He remained at home a year or two helping his father to open up a new farm on the Huron river, about three miles from the village of Monroeville. Morrison³ had acquired a fine education, and, still thirsting for knowledge, kept up his studies even until old age, and eventually acquired a knowledge of the higher branches seldom obtained by persons not college graduates. He chose farming as a vocation, however. After a few years spent in Huron, Seneca and Wood counties, Ohio, he moved with his family to Wisconsin, then a new state. He was naturally a pioneer, always keeping at the extreme front of civilization. He lived in Rock, Dane and Plover counties in Wisconsin, and finally, in 1851, settled in Monroe county in the then renowned La Crosse valley. On his farm, three miles from the village of Sparta, he spent several quiet, peaceful years. Morrison³ was a prominent member of the Masonic order, and gave much time in his later years to lecturing on Free Masonry and in organizing lodges.

To Morrison McMillan³ and Clarissa, his wife, were born:

374 1 Rachel,⁴ born Dec. 20, 1820, in Huron Co., Ohio.375 2 John,⁴ born Dec. 19, 1822, in Huron Co., Ohio.376 3 Orlando,⁴ born Aug. 8, 1824, in Seneca Co., Ohio.377 4 Charlotte,⁴ born March 10, 1826, in Seneca Co., Ohio.378 5 Jane Agnes,⁴ born July 15, 1827, in Seneca Co., Ohio.379 6 Matilda Cherilla,⁴ born Feb. 16, 1829, in Seneca Co., Ohio.380 7 Morrison,⁴ born Dec. 8, 1832, in Seneca Co., Ohio.381 8 Sarah B.,⁴ born Dec. 8, 1833, in Seneca Co., Ohio.

- 382 9 Daniel,⁴ born Jan. 24, 1835.
- 383 10 }
384 11 } Two infants,⁴ born 1837.
- 385 12 Mary Arnott,⁴ born Jan. 6, 1843, in Wood Co., Ohio.
- 386 13 Amanda,⁴ born August, 1846.
- 373 Clarissa, the mother of the above thirteen children, died April 8, 1857, in Sparta, Wis., and was buried in the Woodlawn cemetery. In her obituary, published in the Monroe County Freeman April 16, 1857, we find: "Clarissa McMillan was the oldest daughter of Ezra Brown and wife, formerly of Kinderhook, N. Y. He resided in Canada for some years, where he accumulated a handsome property, which he gave up and returned to the United States in 1813, rather than to become a British subject. Clarissa was brought up by a devoted Christian mother and ever ordered her life by those early teachings. She was a model wife and mother, a kind neighbor and friend, and her death is mourned by a large circle of acquaintances. Appropriate resolutions were adopted by the Masonic lodge of Sparta, Wis., extending sympathy and condolence to Brother Morrison McMillan in his bereavement."

151 MORRISON McMILLAN³ and

387 MRS. REBECCA CHAPMAN.

373 Clarissa McMillan having died, as before stated, Morrison³ married for his second wife, in August, 1858, in La Crosse, Wis., Mrs. Rebecca Chapman. They lived in Sparta until Morrison's death, which occurred Feb. 26, 1860, in the sixty-first year of his age. He was buried with Masonic honors in the Woodlawn cemetery in Sparta, Wis.

387 Mrs. Rebecca McMillan married again, and died in Sparta, Wis.

In regard to the death and burial of Morrison McMillan³ we quote from the obituary notice published in the Sparta Herald of Feb. 29, 1860: "The funeral of this much-regretted gentleman took place Feb. 28. Rarely has a more marked expression of esteem been given to the memory of any man in this community than that given to Morrison McMillan by the Free Masons of Monroe and adjoining counties. In all the relations of life Mr. McMillan maintained the highest character. He stood high in the order of Free and accepted Masons in this state. He was the father of Masonry in the northwest and he had organized most of the lodges west of the Wisconsin river. Late in life he was elected grand lecturer and fulfilled the duties of that position with conscientious exactness and punctuality. There was in Morrison McMillan a gentleness of disposition which won the affection of all with whom he came in contact. The smile on his honest face was the expression of the true heart within; the grasp of his hand the index of his big-heartedness and true manliness. His remains were followed to the tomb by a large concourse of friends, and the Masonic ceremonies at the grave were solemn and impressive. A long list of fitting resolutions was adopted by the Valley Lodge No. 60, F. A. M., which gave voice to the heavy grief and sincere regrets of his fellow Masons.”

John⁴ was a farmer nearly all his life, though in his late years he owned and operated a lumber yard. He was a very industrious man, prudent and conservative in all his dealings. He was a strong temperance man, always the first in his neighborhood to rally to the support of any temperance measure or to sign any petition curtailing the liquor power. Perhaps his leading trait was love for his family, and it may be said that his life was devoted to the interest and welfare of those he loved.

Morrison McMillan⁴
No. 380

MORRISON McMILLAN 4, of MORRISON 3.

380 MORRISON McMILLAN⁴ and

519 SARAH STROWE.

380 Morrison,⁴ the seventh child of Morrison McMillan³ and Clarissa, his wife, was married in 1854 near Toledo, Ohio, to Sarah Strowe, an old schoolmate to whom he became engaged when a boy at school. In the summer of 1855 in Sparta, Wis., she gave birth to a child, was very sick for months and finally became violently insane and died. She was taken back to her old home in Ohio for burial. Her babe also died and was buried with its mother.

380 MORRISON McMILLAN⁴ and

520 LUCINDA MELOTT.

519 Sarah McMillan having died, as before stated, Morrison⁴ married for his second wife, Sept. 19, 1861, in Sparta, Wis., Lucinda McLott, who was born in Morrow Co., Ohio, March 3, 1843. Morrison⁴ grew to manhood on his father's farm, working several winters in the pine woods of Wisconsin. Accustomed to pioneer life and to the somewhat dangerous life in the pineries and on rapid streams, Morrison became a strong, sturdy fellow. Like his father, he was a member of the Masonic order, and like his father a pioneer, ever keeping abreast of the "Star of Empire" in its onward westward march. For several years after his second marriage he lived in Sparta, Wis., then in Chippewa Co., Minn., until that memorable day, the 23rd of May, 1877, when, with his family and effects loaded in the old style canvas covered wagons, he set out across the vast expanse of plain and forest, of mountain and stream toward the land by the sunset sea. Only those who have made the journey in that early, primitive way can tell of the dangers and trials, the fatigue and hardships through which they passed. After months of tiresome travel, with jaded horses and worn out equipment, the family halted at Baker City, Ore. After spending a year or two near that place and at Dayton, Wash., Morrison⁴ at last settled permanently in Asotin Co., Wash. Here he became a prosperous farmer

To the residents of cities and the densely populated district of the eastern states, the phase of life in the interior mountainous regions of the west is very interesting to contemplate. For instance, to see a family of bright, intelligent girls like the Stone family grown to womanhood, educated in good schools, cultured, refined and fully alive to the grandness and the responsibilities of life, who have never traveled beyond the boundary lines of their home county, never seen a railroad or street car, never walked the streets of a modern city, is indeed a wondrous thing. Yet they read papers and magazines, and although hemmed in their own little community by vast mountain ranges they keep abreast of the times and are very pleasant, piquant, interesting companions. The writer has been among them, has seen their beauty, marked their naive modesty and knows their worth.

CHAPTER VI.

MARY ARNOTT SOWERS 3, of JOHN 2.

3 JOHN McMILLAN² and
584 AGNES MAYNE REID.

148 Rachel Morrison, the second wife of John McMillan,² having died, as before stated, John² married for his third wife in Washington Co., N. Y., July, 1801, Mrs. Agnes Mayne Reid, a widow with three children. It is said that she was of the family of Capt. Mayne Reid, the novelist. She was a very gifted woman and proved a kind mother to the several broods of children found in the house of her husband. In the year 1818 John McMillan² left his home in Washington Co., N. Y., and moved with his family to Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio, making the long journey with ox teams, being six weeks from Buffalo, N. Y. He settled on a new farm on the Huron river about three miles from that village. He found the work of clearing and subduing the new farm very arduous and trying for one of his age, and, his grown boys striking out for themselves, he was left without their assistance. He became involved in debt, and through the faithlessness of a friend, with whom he had signed a note for a considerable amount, he lost his farm, his health gave out, and with it much of the courage and determination which had ever characterized him. As old age came on his prospects were somewhat gloomy, but his religious faith was firm and steadfast and enabled him to face the inevitable with a degree of dignity and composure.

To John McMillan² and Agnes Mayne, his third wife, were born:

- 585 1 Agnes,³ born in April, 1803.
586 2 Mary Arnott,³ born Feb. 3, 1805.
587 3 Alexander Ball,³ born Nov. 8, 1806.

CHAPTER VII.

ANDREW McMILLAN 2, of JOHN 1.

4 ANDREW McMILLAN,² and
649 MARGARET ROWAN.

4 Andrew,² the third child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married in 1783 in Washington Co., N. Y., to Margaret Rowan, who was born of Scotch parentage in Monaghan Co., Ireland. She was a small child when her parents moved to America and settled in Salem, N. Y. It is said that Andrew² and Margaret came from Europe in the same ship, their parents being members of the Clark Colony. Of the early life of Andrew McMillan² but little is known. He was probably born in Ballybay, Monaghan Co., Ireland, whither his parents had moved from Argyleshire, Scotland. He was a small child when his parents reached Salem, and grew to manhood on his father's farm, and his life must have been much the same as that of others in that new country in that early period. The young man evidently became inured to danger and hardship and grew up a strong, fearless fellow. He ever retained the warm friendship for his little fellow passenger that was formed while crossing the Atlantic, for when both reached the proper age he made her his wife. His life was spent in Washington Co., N. Y., in Salem and Argyle townships. We find by the records that in 1797 he purchased from his father a tract of land in Salem, near Shushan, which included the original lot 297 of Turner's patent, which was granted to John McMillan¹ by the general government for his services in the Revolutionary war.

CHAPTER VIII.

ARTHUR McMILLAN 2, of JOHN 1.

5 ARTHUR McMILLAN² and 1077 MARTHA DUNCAN.

5 Arthur,² the fourth child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married Dec. 28, 1795, to Martha Duncan, whose family, like the McMillans, was of Scotch-Irish descent. He grew up a strong, sturdy lad. When the Revolutionary War began, although too young to enter the service, he used to assist the soldiers in moulding bullets and in other preparation for conflict. Arriving at manhood, Arthur² became a miller and followed that business much of his life, though in his later years he moved to the west and engaged in farming. In early manhood he was a very powerful man with an iron jaw. It is related of him that in his grist mill in Fort Covington, N. Y., where he lived many years, he often lifted large sacks of flour with his teeth. Finally, in an exhibition of his strength, he ruined the sight of one eye, actually bursting the eyeball. During the Indian wars along the border Arthur² was an active participant. In the War of 1812 he became a scout and spy for the United States government, often crossing the St. Lawrence river and entering the British camp. The Indians called him "One Eye" and feared him as something supernatural. So valiant were his services in his country's cause that a reward of five hundred dollars was offered by the British commander for his capture dead or alive. This offer has never been withdrawn. Arthur² had many desperate encounters with the Indian allies of the British and many hair-breadth escapes. His bravery and his great strength stood him in good stead in those trying times. Beside him in the ranks as a scout and as a soldier marched his young son, James Enos,³ who, though but a boy, proved himself a brave, fearless soldier. About 1838 Arthur² and his family moved to Kane Co., Ill., where he took up a farm in Pidgeon Woods township, but still engaged in milling. As old age came on and he was no longer able to carry on his farm, he and his wife went to live with their son, James Enos,³ in the same town, an addition being built to the house to accommodate the old couple.

To Arthur McMillan² and Martha, his wife, were born :

- 1078 1 Sarah,³ born Oct. 19, 1796, in Franklin Co., N. Y.
 1079 2 James Enos,³ born Jan. 18, 1798, in Franklin Co., N. Y.
 1080 3 Margaret,³ born Dec. 2, 1799, in Franklin Co., N. Y.
 1081 4 Alexander,³ born Feb. 9, 1802, in Franklin Co., N. Y.
 1082 5 Arthur, Jr.,³ born July 15, 1804, in Franklin Co., N. Y.

 1088 11 Eliza,³ born Oct. 13, 1816, in Franklin Co., N. Y.
- 5 Arthur McMillan,² the father of the above eleven children, died May 24, 1845, aged seventy-six years, two months and seven days. On that day, his grandson Alexander⁴ being on a visit, Arthur,² to show his strength and activity, took his axe, went into the adjoining woods and proceeded to fell a large tree. He succeeded, but by some mischance he ran in the way of the falling monarch and was caught by the spreading branches and crushed to the ground, unconscious. He lingered only a few hours and died the same day without recovering consciousness. He was buried in the village cemetery in Pidgeon Woods, Ill.
- 1077 Martha, his widow, lived with her sons, James E.³ and Duncan,³ still plying her trade of tailoress until her death, which occurred at the home of James Enos³ June 26, 1852. She was buried beside her husband in Pidgeon Woods, Ill.
- 1078 Sarah,³ the first child of Arthur McMillan² and Martha, his wife, died Oct. 27, 1796.

1089 BETSEY ELIZABETH HASWELL.

1079 James E.,³ the second child of Arthur McMillan² and Martha, his wife, was married in 1820 to Betsey E. Haswell, a school teacher, who was the daughter of Anthony Haswell, the editor of the Green Mountain Gazette, the first paper published in the state of Vermont. She was an educated, worthy woman. James E. McMillan³ was a worthy son of his sturdy Scotch father. At the opening of the War of 1812 he was but sixteen years old, yet he joined his father in the perilous duties of a scout and spy upon the frontier. He displayed not only great bravery and fearlessness, but unusual caution and sagacity and became a valuable accession to the limited force in that locality. A reward of three hundred dollars was offered for capture, but the young man, like his father, always eluded his enemies, though sometimes by the merest "scratch." Before he was eighteen years old James E.³ was appointed a sergeant and placed in charge of the blockhouse at Fort Covington in sight of his parents' home. On one occasion the Indians, having burned his father's house, his parents escaping to the woods, the young sergeant saved his mother by leading her across the stringers of a bridge over the Big Salmon river and conveying her on a handsled to a neighbor's house, his father saving himself by flight. When the war closed and James Enos³ returned to his home, he became enamored of the school teacher who boarded at his father's house and finally married her, as stated above. With his father and others he moved to Kane Co., Ill., about 1838, where he lived many years as a well-to-do farmer. He afterwards moved to Fihmore Co., Minn., later to Jackson Co., Minn., and finally settled at Cresco, Ia., where he spent his last days. He and his wife were universally loved and honored.

ANDREW McCORNACK 5, of MARTHA M. 4.

- 1176 ANDREW McCORNACK⁵ and

- 1182 ELSIE E. HANAFORD.

- 1176 Andrew,⁵ the first child of Martha M. McCornaek⁴ and John, her husband, was married May 3, 1869, in Monticello, Minn., to Elsie E. Hanaford. He was a soldier in the Civil War, serving three years in Co. I, One Hundred Twenty-seventh Illinois Regiment. So brilliant was this man's service during the war that it is worthy of more than passing mention. He enlisted in August, 1862. His regiment was soon sent to Memphis, where it was assigned to Grant's army in the immediate command of Gen. W. T. Sherman. Here the subject of this sketch participated in all the manœuvres and battles of that active, untiring commander. He helped to dig Grant's great ditch; was along with Sherman on the expedition to Young's point, and was in the movement against Vicksburg from start to finish. He was on the skirmish line that drove in the rebel pickets as the army of Grant closed in on the doomed fortress. It is recorded that Private Andrew McCornaek⁵ fired the first shot over the walls of Vicksburg aimed at an officer who was riding along the works. At the first assault on the works of the city, young McCornaek,⁵ with a comrade, made himself conspicuous for noble courage and fearlessness by carrying from the field several wounded comrades in the midst of a perfect hail of shot and shell. May 22, preceding the second great assault on the fortress, a number of volunteers were called for to lead the assault, and McCornaek⁵ was quick to respond. In speaking of this action recently, he said, "It was fearful." The country knew it was at the time. Soon after Vicksburg surrendered he was promoted to a sergeant and given a furlough to visit home. Congress voted him a medal of honor for his conspicuous gallantry, which medal is still in his possession, prized beyond all comparison. Young McCornack⁵ was along with Sherman on that wonderful flanking campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta, and for one hundred and ten consecutive days he was constantly within range of the enemies' bullets. He marched with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea and up through the Carolinas and Virginia to Washington. His regiment was detailed to forage for the Army of the Tennessee, and on that great march they reveled in horses and cattle and in the turkeys and sweet potatoes which the old song has made famous. After the grand review at Washington his regiment was soon mustered out and Andrew⁵ returned to his home and parents in Elgin, Ill. At this late day, although a modest man, he delights to talk of the exciting days of his youth, and rejoices that he was a worthy member of "Sherman's Bummers."

ARTHUR CHARLES McMILLAN 4, of JAMES E. 3.

1094 ARTHUR CHARLES McMILLAN⁴ and 1318 REBECCA CHEEVERS.

1094 Arthur C.,⁴ the fifth child of James E. McMillan³ and Betsey E., his wife, was married Feb. 2, 1854, in Elgin, Ill., to Rebecca Cheevers. In writing a sketch of Arthur C. McMillan,⁴ the writer cannot do better than quote from one who knew him well and loved him: "He was as near a perfect man as this world ever produces. Gentle and refined in manner and disposition, the best people were drawn to him and became his warmest friends. Possessing a deep spirituality, his life and example ever taught the lesson of divine love, of Christ and the Bible. Any one who ever knew him was a better man, a better citizen and a better Christian for having met him, and contemplated the grandness of his character. He had the rare faculty of seeing only the good around him. He could be grieved, but he never criticised. He was a fluent and gracious talker, and a visit with him was like listening to a lecture or a sermon. Many have drawn inspiration therefrom for lofty purposes and a higher life."

Arthur C.⁴ was a man of strong intellect and wonderful memory. He was intensely loyal to his family and to those of his own blood. He took great interest in this work and furnished much valuable information of his ancestors. He was tireless in his efforts to assist his niece, Mrs. Ida Ferris Waterman,⁵ in gathering and preparing data to be embodied in the "McMillan Genealogy and History." To the sorrow of all his kindred far and near, he passed to his reward before the work was completed. He moved from Fort Covington, N. Y., with his parents when a small boy. He lived in Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa. His last years were spent at the home of his daughter, Lunetta Jane McIntosh in Cresco, Ia.

To Arthur Charles McMillan⁴ and Rebecca, his wife, were born:

CHAPTER IX.

1345A Nathan Richardson having died, as before stated, Sarah J.,⁴ his widow, married for her second husband, Sept. 25, 1853, Elias K. Ferris, who was born in Dutchess Co., N. Y., but early moved to Illinois. He was a soldier in the Civil War, serving in the One Hundred Second Illinois Infantry. Was discharged in 1863 on account of a broken leg, but enlisted again in 1865 in the Third Minnesota Infantry and served until the end of the war. He came from a military family. An ancestor on his father's side was a colonel in the Revolutionary Army. His mother's mother was the granddaughter of Gen. Stark of the Revolution. Himself a patriot, Elias K. Ferris, with three brothers, served in the Union Army during the Civil War. He was a man of sterling qualities, strictest integrity, and of strong character. He was always a student, capable as a speaker and always ranged himself on the side of right and justice. He had much ability as a writer, often contributing forcible articles to the press of his vicinity. From him, doubtless, his gifted daughters inherited much of their literary and dramatic ability. He was a prominent Grand Army man, working in season and out for the good of that order. Following his children, he settled near Doland, S. D., in 1883 and later moved to Montana.

Of Sarah J. McMillan Ferris we quote again from one who knew and loved her: "Words would fail to ex-these states. She once was nominated for county superintendent of schools, but failed of election owing to certain political exigencies. She has always been a student; always striving for higher and grander things. She inherits from her grand old father a noble courage, a strict sense of right and justice and from her mother all the sweet, noble attributes which go to make a perfect woman, wife and mother. She is a tireless worker. Her hands, her brain and her pen are never idle. She always sees the need of work and effort in this world. So, in the words of Longfellow, she goes on "Still achieving, still pursuing." Ida C.⁵ has given particular attention to elocution. She is a dramatic reader of a high order. Her performances in public are highly spoken of by the press. She is a successful teacher of elocution and is also a writer of ability, especially of poetry. Being early left a widow, she has maintained and educated her children by her efforts in her chosen field. While teaching in South Dakota she located and proved up a homestead, and in Montana secured a desert claim. She is certainly an able and successful woman. Frank B. Waterman was a young man of fine character and proved a worthy companion of his talented wife.

CHAPTER X.

DAVID McMILLAN 2, of JOHN 1.

6 DAVID McMILLAN² and
1764 HANNAH STOWE.

6 David,² the fifth child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married in 1799 in Granville, Mass., to Hannah Stowe. There is but little known of David's early life. The fact of his growing to manhood during the Revolutionary War and his living near the scene of active operations and of his working with his father to open up and carry on a new farm, justifies the conclusion that he became a strong, fearless, self-contained man. He early turned his thoughts to serious things and became a follower of his ancestors in the Presbyterian faith. Hannah Stowe was born in Granville, Mass., Nov. 24, 1770, being the daughter of Benjamin Stowe and Lavina Stiles, whose ancestors came over in the Mayflower. Shortly after marriage David² moved to Fort Covington, Franklin Co., N. Y., where for years he operated a saw mill. Later, however, he bought a farm and spent the remainder of his life as a farmer. The records show that he was a thrifty, prosperous farmer, and the minutes of the church meetings in those early days show that David and his wife helped to organize the first Presbyterian church in Fort Covington and became regular attendants. The minutes show that he held many important offices in the church for many years and was always a devoted and useful member. From the church minutes we also find that David's daughter Mary and his niece Florella McMillan united with the same church when they were young misses, and it is a pleasure to know they ever proved faithful to their early convictions. While nearly all his children moved to the West, David was content to remain in 1766 Benjamin,³ the second child of David McMillan² and Hannah, his wife, was married in Ohio to Achsah Brown, a sister to Clarissa Brown, already recorded. It has not been practicable to ascertain the date of this marriage, but it was probably about 1832, for we find that Benjamin³ and Achsah moved to Rock Co., Wis., about 1838. Here they engaged in hotel keeping, and followed it for years, and acquired considerable means which stood them in good stead in later years. About 1850 he was stricken with paralysis, which deprived him of the use of his limbs, and rendered him well-nigh helpless. Shortly after this they went to live with Achsah's niece, Matilda C. Lathrop and Emory S., her husband. They continued under the care of this couple all their lives, although often living in a separate house. He was a whole-souled, jolly man and in spite of his affliction got much pleasure from life, and greatly enjoyed his friends. Achsah was a kind-hearted, noble woman, and devoted her life to the unselfish care of her afflicted husband. They lived for years in Sparta, Wis., near the Lathrops. In the year 1860 they moved to Minnesota, near Centreville, where Benjamin³ died, May 12, 1867, in the sixty-

CHAPTER XI.

MARY FLETCHER 2, of JOHN 1.

6A MARY McMILLAN² and
1979 THOMAS FLETCHER.

6A Mary,² the sixth child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married about 1793 in Washington Co., N. Y., to Thomas Fleteher. They soon moved to Franklin Co., N. Y., where they settled on a new farm near Ft. Covington. Thomas was an industrious, thrifty person. His leading trait was intense love of country and hatred for all its enemies. It is related of Mary, that one day while living on the farm which was in the midst of a vast wilderness, as evening approached she started out to bring in the cows. Hearing the cow-bell in the distance she followed it farther and farther into the woods until she became lost. The bell passed out of her hearing, and she wandered until dark, and fearing wild animals she climbed a tree and passed the night. For five days and nights she wandered around, living upon berries and shrubs, in constant fear of wild animals which she could hear around her, and thinking continually of her small children whom she had left in her rude cabin, and of her husband's fear and distraction. She finally, on the fifth day, became so exhausted and overcome that she seated herself beside a tree and gave herself up to die. She fell into a deep sleep from which she was aroused by hearing voices. Opening her eyes she saw several men standing around her. She was carried to her home and soon recovered her usual health. The recollection of that fearful experience was always like a terrible nightmare to her.

To the above couple were born:

- 1980 1 James,³ born about 1794.
- 1981 2 William,³ born about 1796.
- 1982 3 Nancy,³ born about 1798.
- 1983 4 Rachel,³ born about 1800.

- 1985 6 Emma.³
- 1986 7
- 1987 8
- 1988 9
- 1979 Thomas Fleteher, the father of the above nine children, was shot and instantly killed in the doorway of his house near French Mills, N. Y., by British troops in the summer of 1812. A column of British soldiers was marching from Ft. Covington to French Mills. On seeing the enemies of his country in possession of the land and marching by his house, Thomas became so indignant and enraged that without thinking or caring for the consequences seized his rifle and fired upon the column. A score of British muskets instantly returned the shot and Thomas fell dead, literally in his wife's arms. The firing was at such close range, and Mary stood so near her husband at the time, that her face was burned with powder, the sears of which she bore until her death. After the death of Thomas Fletcher his family became scattered. Some of the children were bound out and doubtless took other names. It has been found impossible to obtain accurate record of some of these children.

6A MARY FLETCHER² and1989 CAPT. HENRY LEWIS.

- 1979 Thomas Fletcher having died, as before stated, Mary, his widow, married for her second husband Capt. Henry Lewis, who had won much distinction by his services in the war of 1812. With him she moved to Huron Co., Ohio, where two boys were born to her, one named
- 1990 1 Mortimer; the other, no record.
- 1989 Capt. Lewis died in April, 1837, near Monroeville, Ohio, and Mary went to live with her son, James, near Cleveland, Ohio. Later she returned to Huron county, and lived for two years with her niece, Jane Heath,³ afterwards with her son, William.³ In July, 1848, her son, Samuel, came and took her to his home in

- 1980 James,³ the first child of Mary Fletcher² and Thomas, her husband, lived for a number of years near Cleveland, Ohio, where he was a farmer by occupation, and unmarried in 1837. There is no record of his death, although he is supposed to have died about 1847.
- 1981 Of William,³ the second child of Mary Fletcher² and Thomas, her husband, nothing is known except that he lived in Huron Co., Ohio, in 1837 and 1838. Of his family and his death nothing can be obtained at this writing.
- 1982 Of Nancy,³ the third child of Mary Fletcher² and Thomas, her husband, nothing is recorded except in 1837 she lived in Huron Co., Ohio.
- 1983 RACHEL FLETCHER³ and

1983 Rachel,³ the fourth child of Mary Fletcher² and Thomas, her husband, was married about 1830, to James Raymond. They moved to Huron Co., Ohio, and were living near Clarksfield in that county as late as 1849. CHAPTER XII.

NANCY FRAZIER 2, of JOHN 1.

7 NANCY McMILLAN² and
2062 THOMAS FRAZIER.

7 Nancy,² the seventh child of John McMillan¹ and Mary, his wife, was married about 1797 in Washington Co., N. Y., to Thomas Frazier, whose family, like the McMillans, fled from Scotland to the north of Ireland, thence to America, to avoid persecution and to obtain the religious liberty they sought. Thomas was born in Ireland and was a small boy when his parents reached Washington Co., N. Y. It is related of him that when a boy he used to repeat a short verse when asked of his birthplace. It ran as follows:

"Thomas Frazier is my name
And Ireland is my nation,
Cambridge is my dwelling place
And Christ is my salvation."

These lines, written on the fly-leaf of an old book, have come down to the present generation. Thomas Frazier and Nancy, his wife, lived for some years in Washington county, and it is supposed that Nancy² died there, although it is said by some descendants that she died in Herkimer county.

To this couple were born:

2076 Jane F.,⁴ the fourth child of Margaret McCumber³ and Joseph, her husband, was married Jan. 14, 1847, in Milan, Ohio, to De Witt C. Wilson, who was born May 14, 1827, in Wakeman, Ohio. After receiving a common school education, he was sent to Norwalk Seminary and later to Oberlin College, where he studied two years. He also studied law and was admitted to the bar. After his marriage he spent some time on his father's farm and in the railway office in Wakeman. He then moved to McDonough Co., Ill., where he was employed as station agent on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. About 1857 he moved with his family to Monroe Co., Wis., where for a time he was engaged in farming, but in 1859 he settled in the village of Sparta, was elected justice of the peace and also did editorial work on the village paper. At the opening of the Civil War in 1861 he entered the service as first lieutenant of Co. D, Eighteenth Wisconsin Infantry. His regiment was sent to Grant's army at Pittsburg Landing, arriving there the night before the attack by Johnston's troops, and was placed on the extreme front. During the severe fighting on that first memorable day he was taken prisoner and sent to Selma, Ala. He was a prisoner for seven months, and when exchanged returned to his regiment, where he served until March, 1863, when he was made captain of Co. A, Ninth Louisiana (colored), afterwards the Forty-Seventh United States Regiment (colored). With this command he took part in several severe engagements around Yazoo City and Vicksburg. Capt. Wilson resigned his commission in the autumn of 1864, and on reaching his home at Sparta was chosen sergeant-at-arms of the state senate at Madison. The winter of 1865 and 1866 Capt. Wilson represented Monroe county in the state legislature. The next two years he served in the state senate with distinguished ability. Retiring from the senate, Capt. Wilson entered the newspaper field, owning and editing successively the Sparta Eagle, Monroe County Republican, the Chippewa (Minn.) County Leader, and a paper at Viroqua, Wis. He was always a fluent writer and eloquent speaker. On this subject the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph of Aug. 20, 1883, said: "Captain Wilson is one of the ablest and clearest political writers and speakers in the state. His rhetoric is always good, his ideas are clear, and his reasoning pointed and able." He was a man of commanding presence, of strong personality, and was always a genial, entertaining companion. Jane F. Wilson,⁴ although an unassuming person, quiet and reserved in her manner, was a woman of wonderful ability, and of great strength of character. She was in many respects the equal of her gifted husband. While he was serving his country at the front, she was busy at home looking after the interests of soldiers' families, and working earnestly with other noble, Christian women, to alleviate the suffering of sick and wounded soldiers at the front and in hospitals throughout the north. When her husband was confined in a southern prison she braved the dangers of the battle line, smiled at the anger and threats of the people of the south and hastened to his side, cheering him with her presence and doing much to hasten his exchange.

To Jane F. Wilson⁴ and De Witt C., her husband, were born:

- 2145 1 Ellen Elizabeth,⁵ born Oct. 5, 1847, in Wakeman, Ohio.
 2146 2 Mary Virginia,⁵ born ———, 1850, in Wakeman, Ohio.

Jane F. Wilson⁴ having died, as before stated, De Witt C., her husband, married for his second wife in November, 1874, Mrs. Abby Taylor, widow of Lute M. Taylor, once a prominent editor and author of La-Crosse, Wis. She died in Montevideo, Minn., about 1880. 2146 Mary V.,⁵ the second child of Jane F. Wilson⁴ and De Witt C., her husband, was married Aug. 3, 1872 in Wakeman, Ohio, to Stephen C. Booth of Astoria, Long Island. There are times when encomiums are superfluous. There are persons of whom words of praise seem out of place. To those who have been associated with Mary V. (Wilson) Booth from her early childhood, as has the writer, who have known of her beautiful life and character, words are useless. Some one has said: “Nobility of soul is God’s own signet.” One has but to look upon the subject of this sketch to behold the signet which God himself hath set and sealed.

We cannot pass this young woman without a word or two as to her character and life. It is seldom that one meets so sweet and winsome a girl. From her earliest childhood she was a favorite with friends of the family. Her beautiful personality and her pure qualities of mind and soul rendered her more than ordinarily interesting and lovable. Her early demise, when life was just opening before her so bright with promise and so full of possibilities, was a dispensation of Providence which is difficult to understand and very hard to bear. She was buried in Mount Hope Cemetery beside other members of the family.

MARY A. WILSON 4, of MARGARET 3.

- 2080 MARY A. McCUMBER⁴ and
2266 ALFRED W. WILSON.
2080 Mary A.,⁴ the eighth child of Margaret McCumber³ and Joseph, her husband, is a woman of noble principles and strong character. She has ever been prominent in the W. C. T. U. circles and a loyal, earnest worker in the cause of temperance. After teaching school many years in Illinois and Wisconsin, she was married in 1863 in Norwalk, Ohio, to Alfred W. Wilson, who was born in Huron Co., Ohio, a brother of DeWitt C.
Wilson, already recorded. He was a pioneer Californian, having gone to that state overland in the early fifties.
It is stated that the party, which consisted of eight men,
was thoroughly equipped with every article of necessity on the long overland journey and with a splendid team to haul their belongings. The party started from Sparta, Wis., in high spirits, receiving a fine parting salute from friends and neighbors. The trials and hardships of this party were especially severe and nerve testing. Before reaching Laramie two of the party turned back; at Salt Lake City two more; and later another, until but three were left—John McCumber, Wm. Heath and Alfred W. Wilson. Their horses gave out and had to be abandoned, and it is a matter of history that these three heroic, hardy men crossed the Sierras and entered Sacramento city on foot, ragged, hungry and footsore. After remaining in California several years, Alfred W. returned to the east via the Isthmus of Panama. He was engaged in furnishing supplies to the Union army around Vicksburg for a year, then returning to his native county in Ohio, engaged in the mercantile business in Wakeman. In a few years he moved to Sparta, Wis., where he became freight and passenger agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, which position he held until his death. He was a pleasant, genial gentleman, a useful citizen and a kind, indulgent husband and father.

To Mary A. Wilson⁴ and Alfred W., her husband, were born:

- 2267 1 Alfred J.,⁵ born ———, 1865, in Wakeman, Ohio.

2269 3 Roy Frazier,⁵ born ———, 1874, in Sparta, Wis.
2270 4 Harry W.,⁵ born ———, 1876, in Sparta, Wis.
2266 Alfred W. Wilson, the father of the above four children, died Jan. 1, 1900, at his home in Sparta, Wis., mourned by every man, woman and child in that village. Every place of business in the village closed during the funeral. Mary A.,⁴ his widow, left Sparta after her husband's death and makes her home with her son, Harry W., in Olivia, Minn., though she spends much time with her sister, Mrs. Melissa Grubaugh, in Lima, Ind.
2267 Alfred J.,⁵ the first child of Mary A. Wilson⁴ and Alfred W., her husband, has never married. He was for years a railway man, conductor and station agent, mostly in California. He was a soldier in the Spanish-American War, enlisting in 1898 in the First Arizona Regiment, being mustered out in 1899 at Albany, Ga. He enlisted again in a California regiment, went to the Philippines and served until the close of the war. When the regiment mustered out he remained in the islands for several years. He returned to the States in 1907, and makes his home in California.

He was a member of the party which left that place for California, which experienced so many difficulties and hardships, and was one of the three whose pluck and endurance held out to the end of the memorable journey. He went into the Golden State penniless and shoeless. His pluck and staying qualities, however, stood him in good stead. He rapidly recuperated and became a prosperous rancher. He has lived in California ever since his first arrival, never having but once visited his old home. He has lived in Stanislaus county most of the time, has never married, but has ever been a father and brother to all his kin.

JANE FRAZIER HEATH 3, of NANCY 2.

- 2064 JANE FRAZIER³ and 2277 ALVA HEATH.
 2064 Jane,³ the second child of Naney Frazier² and Thomas, her husband, was married in 1820 in Washington Co., N. Y., to Alva Heath. Jane had grown to womanhood in her father's home, and on account of her mother's sickness had virtually been the mother of the younger children. While her sister Margaret attended to the household cares, Jane² was ever the nurse and attendant for the children. She was naturally inclined to piety, and even as a child she was a church member and widely known for labors in church and missionary work. Alva, her husband, came from an old pioneer family whose ancestors were from Connecticut. In the year 1827 Alva and Jane³ moved to Herkimer Co., N. Y., where they spent a few years on a farm. In 1832 they went to Oswego Co., N. Y., and in 1833 they moved to Ohio and settled in Clarksfield, Huron county. They remained there, engaged in farming, until 1851, when they again turned their faces towards the west. They made a stop of about a year near Rockford, Ill., then pushed on into Wisconsin, finding a permanent home in the then famous LaCrosse valley. Alva located a homestead in the oak openings three miles from the village of Sparta, Monroe county, (then containing less than a dozen houses) in the summer of 1852. There were but few settlers in the vicinity, none of the necessities of life to be had, and the settlers were compelled to live in a very primitive and frugal manner for years. Jane Heath,³ while assisting her husband in every way possible, did not forget her religious duties. She instituted prayer meetings and Sunday schools, acting as leader, superintendent and teacher, and assiduously labored to enlighten and elevate the families of the early settlers. Having no children of her own, she was the nurse and mother to every one's children throughout the whole settlement. She was known by every one far and near as "Aunt Jane" and loved for her sweet, gentle ways and her noble, generous womanhood. The couple prospered in their western home and became independent, well-to-do citizens, but ever maintained their plain, simple manner of living and were ever the same kind, friendly, sympathetic, generous people.

2277 Alva Heath died at his home on the old farm, ———, and was buried in the Leon Cemetery.

2064 Jane Heath³ died in November, 1894, in the ninety-fifth year of her age, on the old farm, and was buried in the Leon Cemetery.

JOHN FRAZIER 3, of NANCY 2.

2065 JOHN FRAZIER³ and

2278 CLARA SERVICE.

2065 John,³ the third child of Nancy Frazier² and Thomas, her husband, was married about 1838 in Clarksville, Ohio, to Clara Service. They moved to New Carlisle, Ind., where they lived many years, later to Valparaiso. The scant records which it has been possible to obtain of this family show that five children were born to the above couple, but their names and records are lost in obscurity. John Frazier³ died about 1860 and his wife a few years later.

2066 Thomas,³ the fourth child of Nancy Frazier² and Thomas, her husband, died in Herkimer Co., N. Y., when about eighteen years old.

WEBSTER FRAZIER 3, of NANCY 2.

2067 WEBSTER FRAZIER³ and

2279 HARRIET SERVICE.

2067 Webster,³ the fifth child of Nancy Frazier² and Thomas, her husband, was married about 1826 in Clarksville, Ohio, to Harriet Service. They moved to Valparaiso, Ind., where they lived for many years. He was a brick mason by trade. There is very little to be learned about this family, for those who would know about them are dead, and there seems to be no record left behind. From a letter written by Mrs. Jane F. Heath³ in 1875 we learn that there were born to Webster Frazier³ and Harriet, his wife, fourteen children, nearly all of whom died in infancy. There were four known to have reached mature years:

2280 1 Frank.⁴

2281 2 George.⁴

2282 3 Frederick.⁴

2283 4 Hattie.⁴

2067 Webster Frazier³ died at his home in Valparaiso, Ind., May 12, 1875, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. Harriet, his widow, moved to Colorado and lived with her son, Frederick, and died there some years later.

WEBSTER FRAZIER 3, of NANCY 2—Continued.

- 2280 Frank,⁴ the son of Webster Frazier³ and Harriet, his wife, was a baker by trade. He lived in various places and always did a successful business. He married and had two children. He was located in Daytonia, Fla., in 1900, since which time no record is available.
- 2281 George,⁴ son of Webster Frazier³ and Harriet, his wife, died unmarried when about twenty-two years old in Valparaiso, Ind.
- 2282 Frederick,⁴ son of Webster Frazier³ and Harriet, his wife, was married and lived in Golden, Colo., at last account.

It was the writer's good fortune to have been personally acquainted with Hattie,⁴ daughter of Webster Frazier³ and Harriet, his wife. She was a young woman of rare beauty, and her manners and her personality were as beautiful as her girlish face. She died, unmarried, at the early age of twenty years, at her father's home in Valparaiso, Ind.

AGNES HUSTED 3, of NANCY 2.

2068 AGNES FRAZIER³ and

Thomas had received a good education and possessed many of the sterling qualities of his pioneer father. He was a miller by trade and followed that calling in Clarksfield and Elyria, Ohio.

To this couple were born:

Hiram Frazier's early life was spent in the common schools in Clarksfield, Ohio, and in his father's mill, where he learned the miller's trade. Later he was sent to Oberlin College, where he graduated about 1855. He then went to his father's home in Michigan. In 1856, in company with his sister, Esther, he moved to Sparta, Wis., where he spent several years engaged in farming summers and in teaching school and singing classes winters. He returned to Michigan in 1860, where he was married. A short time after this he moved to Nebraska and located a homestead near Lincoln. He obtained a thorough knowledge of ordinary branches, but developing a wonderful talent for music, he turned his attention to that field. He took repeated courses of study in harmony and composition and became an artist on several instruments, though the violin was his favorite, and his teachers on that instrument pronounced him as proficient as was possible to become in this country. The young man's promising career was cut short by death. His incessant labors and struggles to acquire knowledge finally sowed the seeds of consumption. He died with that dread disease Jan. 14, 1907, in Lincoln, Neb., thirty-one years of age, and was buried in Wynea Cemetery.

ESTHER ELIZA McINTYRE 4, of AGNES 3.2286 ESTHER ELIZA HUSTED⁴ and2307 ALEXANDER McINTYRE.

2286 Esther E.,⁴ the second child of Agnes Husted³ and Thomas, her husband, was married March 19, 1873, in Sparta, Wis., to Alexander McIntyre. She received her education in the common schools of her native town and in Oberlin College, where she studied several years. Special attention was given to vocal music, in which she became very proficient. Soon after leaving Oberlin College, in company with her brother Hiram,⁴ she left her father's home in Kalamazoo Co., Mich., and moved to Sparta, Wis., where she made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Jane Heath,³ whose record has already been given in this work. For several years she taught school in Sparta and vicinity, ever proving herself a woman of rare virtues and an estimable character. Alexander McIntyre was born in Steuben Co., N. Y., June 18, 1838. He moved to Monroe Co., Wis., with his brothers in 1856 and engaged in farming in Leon Valley in above county. In 1886 he moved to Watertown, S. D., making his home there until 1894. He was a dealer in agricultural implements and also interested in farm lands. During his residence in South Dakota he served two years in the legislature of that state and was for several years a member of the Board of Regents of the University of South Dakota. Returning to Sparta, Wis., he made his home on the old Jane Heath³ farm, which had descended to Esther E.,⁴ his wife, as the heir. He was a soldier in the Civil War, serving as first lieutenant in the Fifty-first Wisconsin Infantry. He held many offices of trust in Monroe county at different times and was a reliable, substantial citizen.

- 2070 Mary A.,³ the eighth child of Nancy Frazier² and Thomas, her husband, was married about 1857 to Socrates Griswold, a man of some means living in Valparaiso, Ind. She was a seamstress and remained single until well on in years, making her home with her brother Webster. About 1888 they moved to Sparta, Wis., where Soerates Griswold managed the farm of Jane Heath,³ who was a widow. They both died there in 1893, leaving no children. Mary Griswold died in the seventy-seventh year of her age.

The authors inadvertently omitted to acknowledge, in the proper place, the receipt of valuable data for this work from Mrs. Ella M. Dyson of Eugene, Ore.

This good woman gladly furnished complete records of her mother's family and descendants. She and her genial husband have always responded promptly to every call and their letters have been full and explicit.

They are entitled to the thanks of all members of our family.

GOOD-BYE.

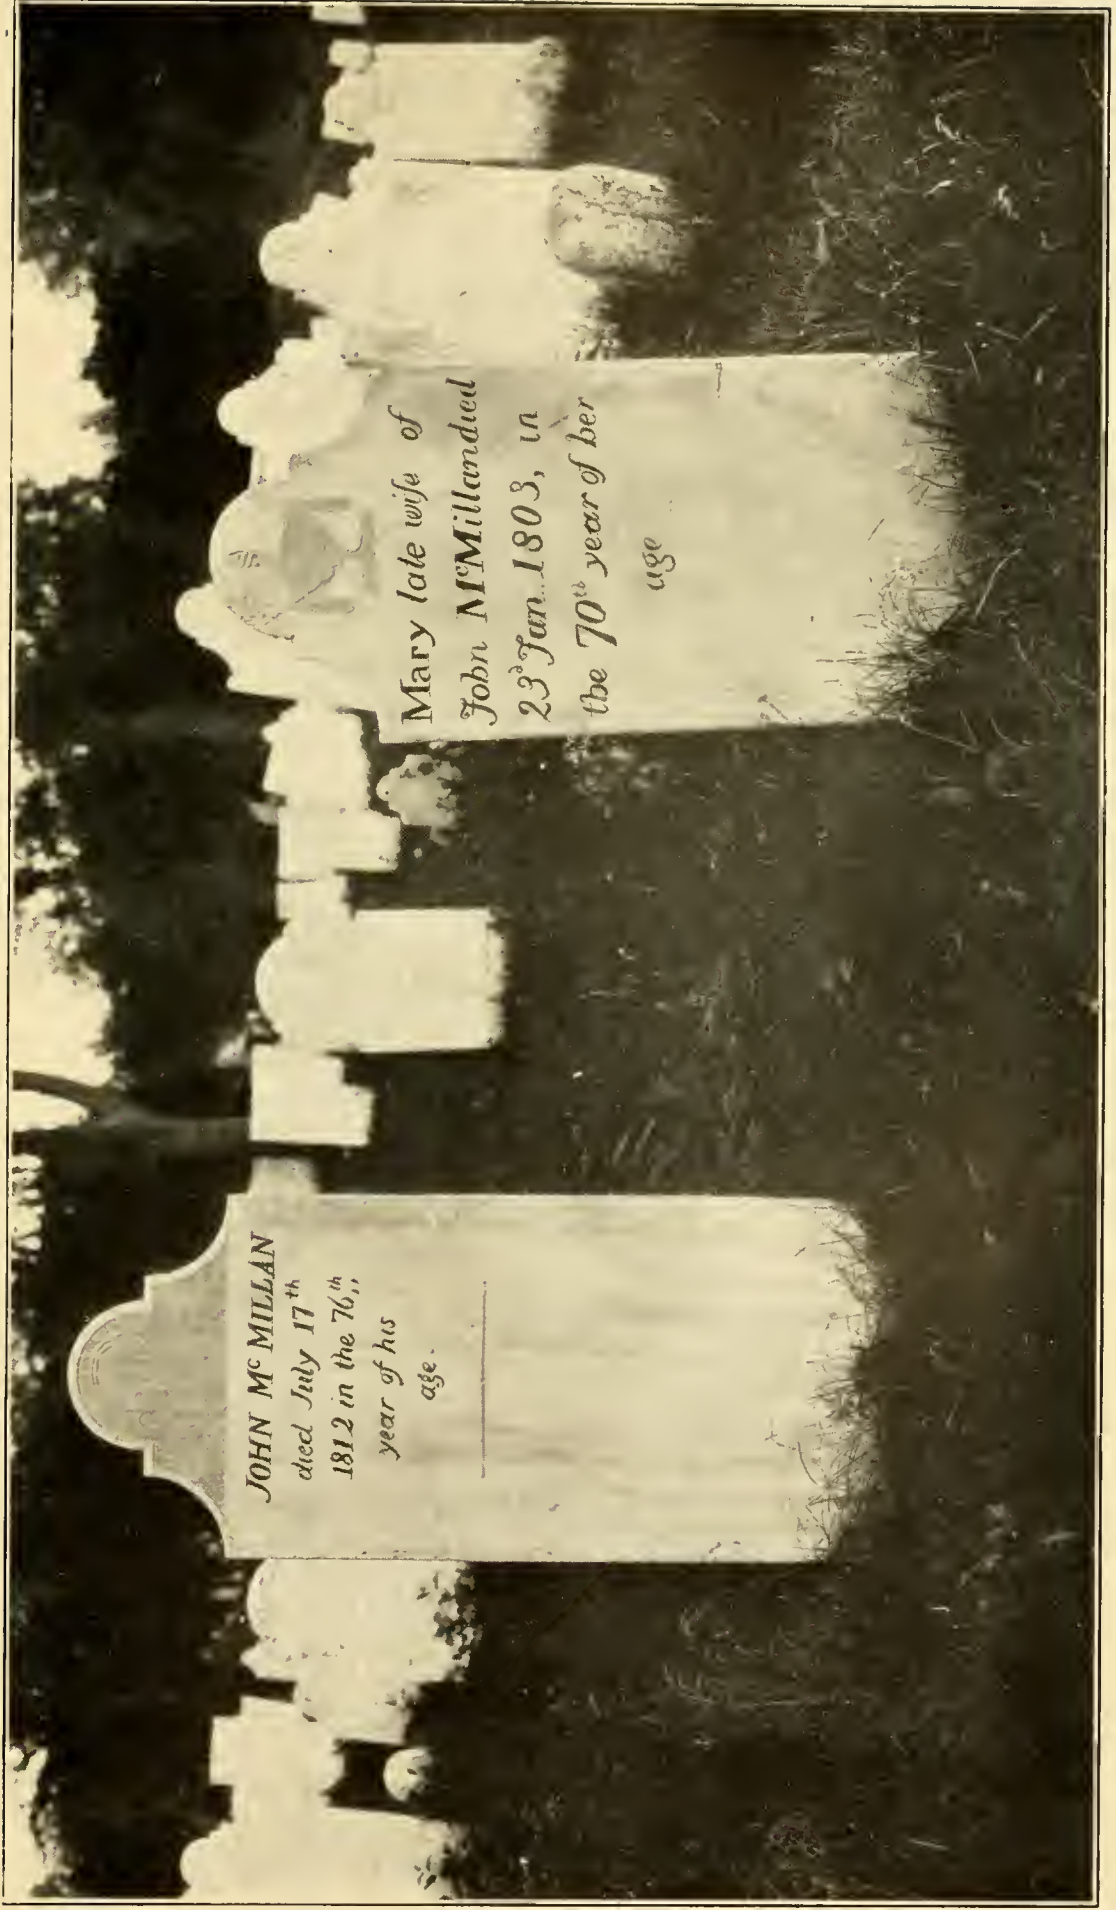

Before closing this volume we desire to ask our readers to contemplate for a moment the characteristics of the family whose record we have laid before them. It will be seen that its members are living in every part of the United States and a number in foreign lands. They are an active, energetic, aggressive people. They are engaged in all lines of business, every honorable trade and profession being represented, and wherever they are and in whatever engaged they are honest, earnest workers and usually successful in their calling. Wherever our old pioneer ancestors have settled that country has been bettered by their presence. They always took deep root and at once proceeded to build themselves homes, churches and schoolhouses and became identified with the interests of the community. In fact, the entrance of our fathers into any community was like the magician's wand, waved over the land, bringing civilization and prosperity in its train.

In their places of abode the cause of education and Christianity always flourished, and by their industry, their simple tastes and their frugal habits, the country around their homes was made to "blossom as the rose."

The descendants of these Scotch ancestors partake of the methods and habits of their fathers. They follow closely in the footsteps of those who have gone before. We find them much the same in their business and in their lives. Few are extremely wealthy, none are in the poorhouse. A few are world-wide scholars, all are more or less educated. They are peaceable, law-abiding citizens, and as a whole they are just and honorable in their dealings, pure and constant in their family relations.

Although peaceably inclined, the members of our family have not been wanting in patriotism. They have always been quick to fly to the defense of home and country. Several were soldiers in the Revolutionary War, a greater number in the War of 1812 and in the Mexican War. More than a hundred were active participants in the Civil War, and many of the younger generations were in the Spanish-American War.

In compiling this work the authors have lived more or less in the past. In writing of generations that are gone, in telling of the lives, the loves and the struggles of those who have preceded us, we necessarily placed ourselves among them and became in a degree identified with their lives and their times.

In company with our highland ancestors we scaled the heights and traversed the vales of their native land. We accompanied them to the fields, upon the chase and even marched with them to the weird strains of the bagpipe upon the blood-stained field of Culloden. We went with them to Arran's Isle and thence to the quiet scenes of northern Ireland. In Ballybay we worshipped with the Scottish congregation of Dr. Clark. With our fathers we crossed the boisterous Atlantic and plunged into the unbroken wilderness of northern New York. There, in fancy, we visited in their primitive homes, helped them to fell the monarchs of the forest, and with them we followed the plow afield. We shared the dangers of the fearless Indian fighters of our family and along the border passed through many thrilling experiences. With others of our race we braved a thousand dangers in wending our way through the primeval forests of Ohio and Michigan, across the prairies of Illinois and Iowa and into the pineries of northern Wisconsin. We even continued with them the westward course until we reached the land of the setting sun.

We have noted the coming and going of generation after generation, and our hearts have been moved by the solemnity and pathos of human life. We are forcibly reminded of that wonderful poem by the old Scotch minister, William Knox, a few verses of which we quote:

"The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid,
And the young and the old, the low and the high
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved,
The mother, that infant's affection who proved,
The husband that mother and infant who blest,
Each, all are away to their dwelling of rest.

The maid, on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye
Shone beauty and pleasure, her triumphs are by
And the memory of those who have loved her and praised
Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne,
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn,
The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave
Are hidden and lost in the depth of the grave.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed
 That wither away to let others succeed,
 So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
 To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same that our fathers have been;
 We see the same sights that our fathers have seen;
 We drink the same stream, and we view the same sun
 And run the same course that our fathers have run.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold;
 They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold;
 They grieved, but no word from their slumber will come;
 They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died! Ah! they died, and we things that are now,
 Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
 Who make of their dwelling a transient abode,
 Meet the things they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain
 We mingle together in sunshine and rain,
 And the smiles and the tears, the song and the dirge,
 Still follow each other like surge upon surge."

So it is. These lines tersely express the sum of human existence. We are born, we live, we joy, we sorrow, we grow old, we die; and others come on to take our places. It is a never-ending procession that moves along the stage of time, forever coming, forever going. We are here but a day. How important that we act well our part during the little time allotted us! It certainly becomes us to live so as to worthily represent our fathers and to honor and bless posterity. Leaving the dead past with all its dead, we come down to the living present, to the busy, rustling, happy men and women of today—men and women who are too busy to think of the past, too practical to know or care aught of ancestry or for things that have gone before. In fancy we are with you in your places of business, in your homes and in your families. Friends, we bid you all hail! We greet you as kinsmen and fellow laborers.

In accumulating the subject-matter of this book we have come in touch with all our kindred. We have formed many delightful acquaintances through our correspondence, and we have learned to love all those "whose names these pages bear."

We lay down our pen with feelings of regret, with a touch of sadness that these pleasant associations must end. Friends.

must they really end? Shall we be as strangers henceforth, or shall we not rather keep in touch and sometimes communicate with each other?

With earnest hopes that this may be so, and with a thousand wishes for the prosperity and happiness of each and every one, we bid you, for the present, an affectionate good-bye.

THE AUTHORS.
