4 If any of thine be driven out unto the utmost parts of heaven, from thence will the Lord thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee:

5 And the Lord thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And the Lord thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the Lord thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.

8 And thou shalt return and obey the voice of the Lord, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day.

9 And the Lord thy God will make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good; for the Lord will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers:

11 For this commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off.

12 It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

14 But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

15 See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil.

16 And that I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply; and the Lord thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

17 But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other Gods, and serve them;

18 I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land, whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXX.—God speaks loudly in his providence, both by the blessings he bestows, and the sufferings he inflicts. It is our interest to hear the voice of God, and to yield a ready obedience to him whose authority must not be trampled upon; who has blessings to confer on those who obey, and curses to inflict on those who despise his laws. Backsliders and apostates cannot too speedily return to their holy allegiance to Jesus, as their Sovereign, who has power to save, and power to destroy; but who delights infinitely more in the salvation of the penitent, than in the destruction of the impenitent. Hardened exceedingly are those hearts which are neither allured by promises, nor alarmed by threatenings. May God, by his Spirit, deliver us from hardness of heart, the evidence of spiritual death, and bestow upon us hearts susceptible of Divine impressions, and animated with holy emotions, the blessed evidence of spiritual life, and the prelude of eternal life in heaven. May the Gospel which is nigh us, and in our very mouth, be made the power of God to our salvation! Amen.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, with believing reverence and godly fear, to approach thy Divine presence. Before entering on the secular business of another week, before encountering its temptations or being exposed to its snares, we would prostrate ourselves before thy throne, to adore thy glorious excellence and supplicate thy heavenly grace.

We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as the Divine lawgiver. Thou hast an essential right to deliver laws to angels and men; and the laws thou hast delivered reflect the greatest honour on thy wisdom, thy righteousness, and thy goodness. Thy laws are holy, just, and good. O that each one of us were enabled, with unfeigned admiration, to say respecting thy laws, More to be desired are they than gold; yea, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey, and the honeycomb.

Thou hast in some measure written thy law upon the natural consciences of men; but we rejoice that thou hast given a clear record of thy laws in the Word of life. Convince us, therefore, that, if we live in the habitual violation of thy laws, we are without excuse. We confess that, like the prodigal son, we have wandered from thee our Father. So far have we wandered from thee, that we never can return without thy Divine grace. O fulfil in us as a family that promise, Thou shalt return unto the Lord thy God, and shalt obey his voice, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul. Most merciful Father, graciously do as thou hast said. We also earnestly pray that thou wouldst fulfil in us as a family this promise, which we would esteem more precious than costly jewels: And the Lord thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

May we see this most blessed promise accomplished in our children. O Jesus, who carriest the lambs in thine arms, circumcise the hearts of our children to love thee. We would rather see them filled with love to thee, than filled with earthly treasures. And let our servants be consecrated to thy glory.

Deliver us, and all our relatives, from that awful curse which we deserve for our transgressions. By thy righteousness, O Jesus, may we be ever delivered from those curses which a violated law proclaims. We rejoice, O Saviour, that thou art near us, as our prophet, priest, and king. Thy salvation is not hidden from us, neither is it far off. We praise thee, that it is not beyond the sea, lest we should say, Who shall go over the sea, and bring it unto us? We bless thee that it is nigh us, and in the very mouth of thy servants who proclaim thy grace.

We desire now to seek the salvation of our God: then shall we yield a willing obedience to thy laws.

Accept of our thanks for thy preserving and comforting mercy during the past night, and be to us this day an unerring guide for the sake of Jesus, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

LEADINGS OF THE SPIRIT.

Sherburn. Warminster. Wareham. Alic Street. L. K.

- 1 COME, gracious Spirit, heavenly Dove,
With light and comfort from above;
Be thou our guardian, thou our guide!
O'er every thought and step preside.
- 2 Conduct us safe, conduct us far
From every sin and hurtful snare;
Lead to thy word that rules must give,
And teach us lessons how to live.
- 3 The light of truth to us display,
And make us know and choose thy way;
Plant holy fear in every heart,
That we from God may ne'er depart.

BROWN.

JOHN XVI.

Christ's Counsels and Comforts.

THESE things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.

2 They shall put you out of the synagogue: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheless, I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away: for, if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but, if I depart, I will send him unto you.

8 And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment.

9 Of sin, because they believed not on me:

10 Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more:

11 Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit when he, the spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.

14 He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

16 A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XVI.—Offended with Christ! God forbid! May we be over delighted with what Christ is, with what he says, with what he does, and with what he commands. If we are called to suffer shame for Christ, may we consider it our greatest honour; and consider ourselves more honourably distinguished than if we wore the diadems of Kings. The remembrance of what Christ suffered for us ought, and does, reconcile believers to all they may be required to suffer for him. By the Spirit of God this has given heroism to martyrs, and made them triumphant over death, though presented in the most appalling form, and accompanied by the most excruciating torments. Let us rejoice that the Church of Christ on earth suffers no loss by the absence of his bodily presence; and the absence of his humanity is made up by the presence and wonderful work of his Spirit, whose influences are afforded, to be the portion and consolation of the saints, till time shall close, and mortality is swallowed up in life.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, to draw near to thee as children to a father. Holy Spirit, breathe upon us thine influence from above, while we endeavour to hold converse with God. We adore thee, O Lord, in thy mercy and grace, for thou liftest up the meek. We adore thee in thy justice, for thou castest the wicked down to the ground. Thou art the God of providence, constantly supplying the wants of every living thing from the stores of thy goodness. Thou coverest the heaven with clouds; thou art he who preparest rain for the earth, and who makest grass to grow upon the mountains. Thou givest to the beast his food, and to the young ravens which cry.

We rejoice thou dost exercise a peculiar care over thy people, for whom thou hast most munificently provided the blessings of thy grace.

We desire at the close of another day to approach our God with the voice of thanksgiving. We thank thee for any assistance in religious duties, and for any smile on our temporal pursuits. We praise thee for that degree of reason and bodily health which has enabled us to attend to our daily calling. We come to Christ, the fountain opened, that the guilt of this day, and the guilt of our lives, may be completely and for ever washed away. Be to us our preserving God this night. May we and all our relatives sleep as under thy pavilion, and may no evil be suffered to befall us.

Bless to us the gracious and consolatory words of our dear Saviour which we have now read. May they be to us as refreshing waters to the thirsty soul, and as good news from a far country.

Never allow us, O Jesus, to be offended in thee. May we never be offended with the difficulties and trials inseparable from following thee. May we never be offended with thy cross, but take it up and follow thee. May we never be offended with the method of salvation by thy righteousness and death. Should it ever be required in thy providence, may we be willing to suffer and die for thee and thy cause. We praise thee for the Divine assistance given to thy martyrs in the midst of the sufferings they were called to endure, and for the blessings which attended their sufferings.

O Lord, send thy Holy Spirit to all the churches. Graciously fulfil the promise: I will send him unto you. Wherever the Gospel is preached, may he convince the people of sin, that they may see their lost and helpless circumstances. May he convince the people of the infinite value and necessity of the righteousness of Christ, by which alone justice can be satisfied and the guilty sinner pardoned. May he convince the people of Christ's mediatorial and almighty power, by which he is able to reform the world, overthrow the kingdom of Satan, and at last condemn to punishment the unbelieving and unrighteous.

Have mercy on our beloved children, whom we would now affectionately commend to the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Divine Spirit, be their instructor, and guide them and our servants into all truth.

Gracious Spirit, have mercy on our aged friends, and be to them a Comforter. Comfort them by assisting them in their prayers; comfort them by bringing thy precious promises to their remembrance; comfort them by discovering to them their interest in Christ; and comfort them by the cheering hopes of heaven.

Lord, forgive our imperfect approach, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

DEUTERONOMY XXXI.

The Address of Moses before his Death.

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

2 And he said unto them, I am an hundred and twenty years old this day ; I can no more go out and come in : also the LORD hath said unto me, Thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

3 The LORD thy God, he will go over before thee, and he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them : and Joshua, he shall go over before thee, as the LORD hath said.

4 And the LORD shall do unto them as he did to Sihon, and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them whom he destroyed.

5 And the LORD shall give them up before your face, that ye may do unto them, according unto all the commandments which I have commanded you.

6 Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them : for the LORD thy God, he it is that doth go with thee ; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

7 And Moses called unto Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, Be strong and of good courage : for thou must go with this people unto the land which the LORD hath sworn unto their fathers to give them ; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

8 And the LORD, he it is that doth go before thee ; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee ; fear not, neither be dismayed.

9 And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto the priests the sons of Levi, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and unto all the elders of Israel.

10 And Moses commanded them, saying, At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11 When all Israel is come to appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose, thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law :

13 And that their children, which have not known any thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land, whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUTERONOMY XXXI.—Ministers, like Moses, should continue, as long as life and strength remain, active in the service of Christ, and for the interests of his kingdom. The very prospect of their departure should excite and maintain their zeal, to be actively useful in Christ's cause on earth, in a way in which it is impossible even to be useful in heaven. How lovely the character and graces of Moses appear, in counselling Joshua and the priests, while he was on the very verge of eternity, and about to exchange his extraordinary labours on earth, for a place of distinguished honour and blessedness among the ransomed millions in heaven. As Jesus comforted, encouraged, and counselled his disciples before he ascended to glory, so Moses comforted, encouraged, and counselled Joshua and the Levites, before he entered upon his heavenly inheritance. Ever may zeal for God's glory, and concern for the interests of Zion, be predominant in our hearts, and conspicuous in our lives ! Amen.

PRAYER.

WE bless thee, most gracious God, that we have been again permitted to open our eyes upon the light of another day, and that the darkness of death has not been permitted to surround us, when we were enveloped in the darkness of night. May our meeting this morning around the domestic altar, and before the throne of grace, be a sweet emblem of our assembling together at thy right hand, on the morning of the resurrection-day.

While we acknowledge the frailty, uncertainty, and brevity of our mortal lives, we desire with devout and holy reverence to acknowledge and adore thee in thine unchangeable glory and everlasting duration. Our days are like a shadow that declineth, and we are withered like grass ; but thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever, and thy remembrance unto all generations. Never shall thy boundless years decrease. Thy praises shall be celebrated for ever and ever. Thy dwelling-place is ETERNITY, and EVER is thy time !

Show compassion, O Lord, to aged pilgrims, who can no more go out and in before their families as in times past. Comfort them with thy presence. May they sing with David, Though we walk through the valley of the shadow of death, we will fear no evil, for thou art with us ; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort us.

Have mercy on aged ministers, who are no more able to go out and in before their flock as in times past. May they rejoice that the preaching of the Gospel shall not cease, and that labourers shall be raised up and prepared, like Joshua, to go out and in before thy people. Enable them with Paul to say, We have fought the good fight, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith. Such of thy servants as are unable by bodily affliction or the infirmity of years to proclaim the gospel-message, comfort them with the prospect of crossing Jordan's stream, and meeting with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of our God.

We thank thee, heavenly Father, for the encouraging promises thou hast given thy people, that all their spiritual enemies shall be subdued, and that their plans and intentions shall be frustrated and overturned. Give us grace to be strong and of good courage ; to fear not, nor be afraid of them. When we encounter our spiritual enemies, may we ever believe that thou the Lord our God shalt go with us, and that thou wilt not fail us nor forsake us.

May all thy ministering servants be encouraged by the advices given to Joshua. May they believe them, and may they follow them. May they be strong, and be of good courage ; and may they never fail to deliver the whole counsel of God.

May thy holy Scriptures be more generally and more carefully read. Teach parents most diligently to enforce upon their offspring the reading of the word of life. May all the people of our land—men, women, and children—and all the strangers that are within our gates, hear, learn, and fear thee, the Lord our God, and observe to do all the words of thy law, and believe all the words of thy Gospel.

May our children love thy word, and may they read it as the word of eternal truth. May they and our domestics obey its divine precepts, and may they believe its divine doctrines.

May we through life use this sword of the Spirit, and obtain distinguished victories over all the enemies of the soul.

Lord, assist in all the duties of the day, and hear our prayers, for Christ our Saviour's sake. Amen.

JOHN XVI.

Christ's Counsels and Comforts.

THEN said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me: and, because I go to the Father?

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye inquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

24 Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:

27 For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no proverb.

30 Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.

31 Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe?

32 Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered every man to his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

33 These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but he of good cheer; I have overcome the world.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XVI.—The life of the believers on earth is accompanied with much darkness, ignorance, perplexity, and doubt. In heaven they shall know even as they are known, and shine with bright intelligence and wisdom, like angels before the throne. Jesus is the Fountain of wisdom; he is the Counsellor, one among a thousand. He is able to give divine knowledge to the ignorant, and saving wisdom to the foolish. He is a most willing, patient, and affectionate Instructor, and is well pleased when we apply to him for his counsel, that our minds may be enlightened and enriched by his wisdom. What a privilege is prayer. Let us employ and improve our privilege. We cannot ask spiritual blessings too liberally nor too urgently. The God of salvation fills the throne of grace; why, therefore, are we so sparing and limited in our applications for spiritual blessings?

PRAYER.

ALmighty and eternal Jehovah, whom angels worship, and whom the spirits of just men made perfect adore, we, thine unworthy servants, approach thy divine majesty in the name of Christ. Thou alone art worthy to receive divine worship, and thou alone art able to bestow those blessings which are needful for the bodies and the souls of men. Thy goodness is a boundless and an overflowing fountain. What reason have we to rejoice that streams of mercy are constantly flowing from that fountain, through the channel of our Saviour's righteousness! We humbly desire, as a family, to apply this evening to those sacred streams, and by faith to drink of the waters of a rich salvation.

We thank our God for the mercies of the day, for the blessings which respect the body, but more especially for those which respect the soul. We lament that every day we offend and come far short of thy glory. Wash away our daily guilt by the unceasing merit of a Saviour's blood.

Now we are entering on another night, we apply unto thee our God for those blessings we require during the silent watches of the night. Preserve us as the apple of thine eye, and hide us under the shadow of thy wings. Lord, increase our faith and confidence in thee as our redeeming God: then we shall contemplate the night of death without fear, and look upon our dissolution as an introduction into the perfection and blessedness of the celestial world.

Give our dear children grace to think daily on their latter end, on the grave in which their bodies shall be laid, and on the eternal world in which their souls shall soon be introduced.

Let all our minds be solemnly impressed with thoughts of eternal things. In the prospect of an eternal world, we would lift up our eyes to thee, and earnestly pray, Our God, who hast been the help of thy people in the ages that have passed away, and who shall be our hope in the days which are to come, O be thou our guard while the troubles of life remain, and at last conduct us to our heavenly home.

Sanctify to our minds what we have now read in the word of life. Give us the satisfying evidence that we are thy children; then we shall glorify thee in the furnace of affliction, and enjoy the strengthening support of the arm of thine omnipotent grace amid all the sufferings of life. Show us more and more the utter vanity of all carnal joys. Never leave us to prefer the joys of the world to the joys of religion, nor the short-lived pleasures of time to the ceaseless pleasures of eternity.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for the encouragement given us to pray, and for the promise that our prayers shall be answered. Thou hast said, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Agreeably to thy gracious counsel may we be enabled by the Spirit to ask; then shall we receive, and then shall our joy be full.

We praise thee that, while the joys of the world are followed by the miseries of hell, the sorrows of believers are followed by the joys of heaven.

May these our feeble prayers, and this our evening sacrifice, be accepted, through Jesus Christ, our exalted Mediator. Amen.

WATTS, Ps. 23.

DEUTERONOMY XXXI.

Israel encouraged.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers; and his people will rise up, and go and lust after the gods of the strangers of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will forsake me, and break my covenant which I have made with them.

17 Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall them; so that they will say in that day, Are not these evils come upon us because our God is not among us?

18 And I will surely hide my face in that day for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.

19 Now therefore write ye this song for you, and teach it the children of Israel: put it in their mouths, that this song may be a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For when I shall have brought them into the land which I swore unto their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, and waxen fat; then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for I know their imagination which they go about, even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swore.

22 Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, Be strong and of a good courage: for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I swore unto them: and I will be with thee.

24 And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying, 26 Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee.

27 For I know thy rebellion, and thy stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death?

28 Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXI.—We should consider God's threatenings as merciful warnings. When we think of God's threatened vengeance against those who impiously forsake him, and wantonly cast off his allegiance, we should stand in awe and sin not, seeking grace that we may be faithful unto death. What miseries they escape and what blessings they obtain who are steadfast and immovable, always abounding in every good word and work. May God preserve us from sinning against him; may our life be a life of filial obedience, and not a life of obstinate rebellion; then we shall live in the enjoyment of Jesus' smiles, and daily walk in the light of his countenance. Since the constant tendency of our minds is to follow the counsel of our own wills, to lean on our own understanding, what necessity there is for daily watchfulness and prayer. May our hearts be fixed, trusting in the Lord!

PRAYER.

INFINITELY merciful Lord God, thou who hast watched over us during the last night, and hast graciously answered the supplications we presented at the close of the past day, we are again encouraged to lift up our eyes to thee, from whence cometh our help. Preserve us from the snares and temptations of the day. Teach us to maintain a constant remembrance, O Lord, of thy spotless holiness, thine omnipresence, and omniscience. We have reason to mourn that this remembrance is so little maintained, and that we have so often fallen into the commission of grievous offences, by our most culpable forgetfulness of thine infinite abhorrence of sin, and thy righteous determination to punish the guilt of habitual and impenitent transgressors. O Lord, wash us thoroughly from our iniquity, and cleanse us from our sins. To thee, O Jesus, we would fly, the blessed fountain opened for sin and uncleanness.

As thou didst say unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, may we be suitably affected with the truth, that we too shall soon sleep with our fathers. May the death of our bodies be a falling asleep in the arms of Jesus. Even if we have no earthly relatives near, to hold up our dying head when conflicting with the last enemy, may we have thy presence, most gracious Saviour. In the valley and shadow of death, may we sing with believing triumph, We will fear no evil, for thou art with us; thy rod and thy staff, they are our comfort and our stay. If thou art with us there, thou Conqueror of death, the last enemy cannot make us afraid; then we will not, we cannot yield to fear, even though we walk through its darkest shade.

May our minds be suitably impressed with what we have now read of the backslidings of Israel. Lord, enable us to preserve our Christian profession, to keep our garments clean. O may we never be left to bring a blot or a reproach upon the Christian name. Hold us up, almighty Father, by the hand of thy gracious power; then shall we be faithful to thee and to thy cause. Like Israel, alas! we have often forsaken thee, and we have broken thy covenant. What reason have we to praise thee, that thou hast not dealt with us as our iniquities deserve! Thine anger has not been kindled against us, thou hast not forsaken us, thou hast not hid thy face from us, and thou hast kept far from us the evils and the troubles which our transgressions so richly merited.

May our dear children be instructed to love thy law and to believe thy Gospel. May they choose thy law as a rule of their conduct, and thy Gospel as the rule and foundation of their faith. Teach our servants to keep thy law.

Lord, have mercy on all our friends, and in particular on our aged friends. Let them not be intimidated with the near prospect of Jordan's stream; but rather let them be comforted by the near prospect of Canaan's shores.

Abundantly encourage all thy ministering servants. Like Joshua, may they be strong and of a good courage, and instrumental in leading multitudes into the promised land above.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our great high-priest. Amen.

INTERCESSION OF CHRIST.

Mount Pleasant. Ozenden Scotch Church. London. Hammond. c. n.

- 1 LIFT up your eyes to the heavenly seats
Where your Redeemer stays;
Kind intercessor, there he sits,
And loves, and pleads, and prays.
- 2 'Twas well, my soul, he died for thee,
And shed his vital blood,
Appeared stern justice on the tree,
And then arose to God.
- 3 Petitions now, and praise may rise,
And saints their offerings bring;
The priest with his own sacrifice
Presents them to the King.

Watts, 37, B. II.

JOHN XVII.

Intercessory Prayer.

THESE words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son that thy Son also may glorify thee:

2 As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

3 And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me: and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

11 And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me that they may be one, as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the Scripture might be fulfilled.

13 And now I come to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XVII.—Awfully dark was the hour when Jesus was called to suffer and die. To that hour the purposes of God pointed from eternal ages; to that hour the slain and bleeding sacrifice directed the attention of Old Testament saints. But from the events of that dark hour have issued beams of brightness, which will fill heaven with ceaseless blessedness and joy. On the events of that hour has depended ever since, the efficacy of the intercession of Christ, and which events shall continue to render his advocacy effectual for ever and ever. How infinitely valuable and important is the knowledge of Christ. Is it essentially necessary to the possession of spiritual life on earth, and the enjoyment of eternal life in heaven? Then, let us seek after this Divine knowledge with all the earnestness of our hearts. Let us count all things but loss for the exaltation of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, and that we may be found in him, clothed with the comely robe of his imperishable righteousness.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art infinitely worthy to be feared, and to be held in the most profound reverence in all the assemblies of thy saints. May we, as a family, be inspired with the Holy Ghost; then, in our approaches to thy throne, we shall worship thee in spirit and in truth. May we never forget that they who fear thee are the objects of thy favour. Thou, O Lord, takest pleasure in them that fear thee, and in those that hope in thy mercy. O let this fear be our portion, and this hope our inheritance. Convince us of the importance of that truth, The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; and to depart from evil, that is understanding. Enrich us with that hope which maketh not ashamed—that hope which has Christ for its author and heaven for its object.

We praise thee, heavenly Father, for the opportunity we have now enjoyed of reading those blessed petitions which Jesus as our intercessor presented at the heavenly throne, before he died for our sins on Calvary's cross. What reason have we to raise hallelujahs of praise to thy glorious name, that thou hast provided for us a Divine advocate, even thine only begotten Son! We bless thee that there is comfort held out to us in the midst of our wretchedness; and to prevent us sinking into the depths of despair, we praise thee there is an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, who is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but for the sins of the whole world.

Exalted Saviour, we thank thee that thou art willing to undertake our cause, and successfully to intercede in our behalf before our Father's throne above.

We confess our miserable state by nature, deprived of spiritual life, and exposed to the inconceivable calamity of eternal death. Divine Redeemer, it is thy prerogative to give spiritual life, and to bestow a title to life eternal in the skies. May we know God, and Jesus Christ whom he has sent; then shall we live for ever.

May our children live before thee. From us, O Jesus, they have received a legacy of death: from thee, we earnestly pray, may they receive a legacy of life. When our life on earth is closed in death, may we be united together in the enjoyment of a life eternal in the heavens.

Comfort all our relatives, and in particular our afflicted and aged friends, with the assured conviction that they are interested in Jesus, the Divine high-priest, and the skillful intercessor. And may they believe that, in answer to his intercessory prayers, they shall at last reach the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Manifest thyself unto us, merciful Saviour, in a way that dost not unto the world. By faith may we see the glories of thy person, and may our souls be captivated with thine excellences. Keep us by thy mighty power; then shall we boldly withstand all our enemies, and successfully resist every temptation.

Lord, cleanse us from the guilt we have contracted this day, and may we sleep in peace this night, enjoying the favour of a reconciled God, as the God of our salvation.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GOD LEAVING ISRAEL.

Melbourne. Letter (for Canada). Rockford.

L. E.

- 1 GIVE thanks to God: he reigns above,
Kind are his thoughts, his name is love;
His mercy ages past have known
And ages long to come shall own
- 2 Let the redeemed of the Lord
The wonders of his grace record;
Israel the nation whom he chose,
And rescued from their mighty foes.
- 3 In their distress to God they cried,
God was their Saviour and their guide;
He led their march far wandering round,
'T was the right path to Canaan's ground.

DEUTERONOMY XXXII.

God's Mercy, Israel's Sin.

GIVE ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

2 My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass:

3 Because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment; a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he.

5 They have corrupted themselves, their spot is not the spot of his children: they are a perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus requite the Lord, O foolish people and unwise? is not he thy father that hath bought thee? hath he not made thee, and established thee?

7 Remember the days of old; consider the years of many generations: ask thy father, and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

8 When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For the Lord's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance.

10 He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings:

12 So the Lord alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him.

13 He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and he made him to suck honey out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock;

14 Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rans of the breed of Bashan, and goats, with the fat of kidneys of wheat; and thou didst drink the pure blood of the grape.

15 But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked: thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness; then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation.

16 They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods; with abominations provoked they him to anger.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXII.—If we fear God and receive His word, heaven and earth will be witnesses for us; but if we rebel against God and reject His Son, they will be witnesses against us. How pure is the rain and the dew, and how pure the word of God!—a pure stream flowing from the fountain of Divine Intelligence and purity. How refreshing and how fructifying the rain and the dew!

How spiritually refreshing and fertilizing the word of God when applied to the heart and life by the power of the Holy Ghost! What an amazing change is produced upon the face of the earth by the rain and dew! What a blessed change is produced upon the soul by the word accompanied by Divine influence! The moral desert is changed into a spiritual paradise.

PRAYER.

WE desire, Lord of hosts, the ruler of kings and the disposer of all events, to draw near to thy mercy-seat with the voice of adoration, thanksgiving, and praise. When we take a survey of the rich inheritance exhibited before us in the everlasting Gospel, what reason have we to sing, Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us in Christ with all spiritual blessings.

We would acknowledge with thankfulness, O Lord, thine infinite mercy, in thinking from eternity on our sinful, fallen race, and making a provision for our wants. And we praise thee that, in the fulness of time, the plan of salvation and the riches of redeeming grace have been proclaimed by thy Son, the meek and lowly Saviour, who never breaks the bruised reed, nor quenches the smoking flax.

We earnestly pray that the glorious Gospel may soon be proclaimed in all nations. Let the kings of the earth, and all people, princes, and all the judges of the earth, young men and maidens, old men and children, be brought under the preaching of the Word of life, and praise the Lord for the matchless wonders of redeeming grace.

We thank the Father of all mercies that we are brought in safety to the beginning of another day, and that we are mercifully permitted, in circumstances of undeserved comfort, to meet before the throne of grace, where the blessings of salvation are dispensed.

Be graciously pleased to preserve us this day from everything offensive to thee or injurious to our own souls; and may we mingle religious and heavenly meditations with our usual worldly callings: thus we shall live with thee, and enjoy the light of thy gracious countenance.

May deep and lasting impressions be produced on our minds by the word now read, and may our conduct and example this day prove we are living under its sacred influence.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the mercy and kindness thou hast shown to ancient Israel. Thy dealings with thine Old Testament church remarkably illustrate the truth, that thou art a Rock, that thy work is perfect, that thy ways are judgment, that thou art a God of truth and without iniquity, and just and right in all thy providential arrangements.

We acknowledge that thy kindness to us, as a nation, as a church, as a congregation, and as a family, has resembled thy kindness to thy people of old. Thou hast led us, thou hast given us ministers and ordinances to instruct us, thou hast kept us as the apple of thine eye, and watched over us and preserved us with peculiar care. As the eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, and beareth them on her wings, so thou the Lord alone didst lead us. But, alas! like Jeshurun, we have often forsaken God who made us, and we have lightly esteemed thee the Rock of our salvation.

Impart unto our offspring and domestics thy grace. When they read or hear thy Word, may it drop upon them as the rain, may it distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass.

Bring to our aged friends the enlivening remembrance of Divine truth, to comfort their souls when flesh and heart begin to fail.

We supplicate an answer to our prayers, and the pardon of all our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

JOHN XVII.

Christ's earnest Prayer.

NEITHER pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word:

21 That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me.

26 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

JOHN XVIII.

WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, he went forth with his disciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.

2 And Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: for Jesus oftentimes resorted thither with his disciples.

3 Judas then, having received a band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns, and torches, and weapons.

4 Jesus therefore, knowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also, which betrayed him, stood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way:

9 That the saying might be fulfilled which he spake, Of them which thou gavest me have I lost none.

10 Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name was Malchus.

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XVII., XVIII.—Vast and comprehensive are the intercessory prayers of Christ. What multitudes are interested in his pleadings before the heavenly throne! There is a real and blessed unity in the Church of Christ, notwithstanding all the external marks of difference. When the unity of the Church is more visibly displayed, the attention of the world will be attracted, its wonder excited, and a desire promoted to be enrolled among the "living in Jerusalem." May the conduct of Judas ever prove a salutary beacon before our eyes. May we never be left to deny our Lord or to disown his cause; but may we consider it our greatest honour to bear his name.

PRAYER.

BLESSED and glorious Jehovah, the heavens declare thy glory, and the earth showeth forth thy handy works. We praise thee that thou hast given a far more glorious and endearing manifestation of thy perfections in the method of salvation through the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son. O bestow on each of us such an interest in the blessings of the covenant of grace, that we shall be induced with Moses to exclaim, We will publish the name of the Lord: we will ascribe greatness to our Lord.

O that our beloved children may begin now, and continue to the close of their mortal lives, to publish the name of the Lord, and to ascribe greatness to our God. Soon may they appear on the Lord's side, and esteem it their highest honour and greatest joy to live and die the servants of Christ.

As a family, we would humbly and earnestly pray that we may be interested in the boundless merit of Christ's atonement as our sacrificing High-Priest, and in the efficacy of his most blessed intercession as our advocate before his Father's throne. Thus, O Lord, we shall become thy portion, and thus thou wilt declare us to be the lot of thine inheritance. Blessed Jesus, give us faith to believe in thy Word. May we find its saving efficacy on our minds, in giving light to our understanding and holiness to our affection. Then we shall have an evidence in ourselves that thy Word is true, proceeding from thyself alone.

We supplicate from thee, O God, a saving union with thyself and thy Son Jesus Christ. As a family, may we be united by the closest and the most sacred ties. Never may the firebrands of discord or strife be scattered among us. May a saving union subsist between each member of our family and our Divine Redeemer; then shall we be all one, as thou the Father art in Christ, and Christ in thee. We seek not for ourselves the perishing empty honours of time, but O give us that glory which our Saviour prayed to be given to all his people. Give us a glorious interest in thy love, and a glorious interest in the propitiation which Jesus made for the sins of men. Give us a glorious life, even spiritual life arising from a vital union with thy blessed Son. Give us a glorious robe, even a robe of righteousness, by which the guilt of unnumbered transgressions shall be taken away, and a blessed title to the heavenly inheritance secured.

O give us a glorious resemblance to thy holy image; then, bearing the likeness of our God, we shall have the satisfying mark that we are the children of the Most High.

May we, and all the families with which we are connected, be interested in that prayer of our Divine Immanuel: Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me. May we be with thee on earth, thou gracious Saviour, living in close intimacy and fellowship; and when we are removed from this land of tears, may we be with thee for ever, to behold thy glory in heaven.

May our aged friends be cheered by thy gracious presence here below, and be animated by the pleasing hope of an eternal residence with Christ above.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Redeemer. Amen.

GOD'S WARNINGS TO HIS PEOPLE.

Psalm. From Woodlands. Ryland. Simon's. a. n.

- 1 SING to the Lord aloud,
And make a joyful noise,
God is my strength, our Saviour God;
Let Israel hear his voice.
- 2 From vile idolatry
Preserve my worship clean;
I am the Lord who set thee free
From slavery and sin.
- 3 Stretch thy desires abroad,
And I'll supply them well;
- But if ye will refuse your God,
If Israel will rebel,
- 4 I'll leave them, saith the Lord,
To their own lusts a prey,
And let them run the dangerous road—
'Tis their own chosen way.

Watts, Ps. 81.

DEUTERONOMY XXXII.

God's Warnings and Threatenings.

OF the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee.

19 And when the LORD saw it, he abhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons and of his daughters.

20 And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be; for they are a very froward generation, children in whom is no faith.

21 They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger with their vanities: and I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

22 For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will heap mischiefs upon them; I will spend mine arrows upon them.

24 They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send the teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust.

25 The sword without, and terror within, shall destroy both the young man and the virgin, the suckling also with the man of gray hairs.

26 I said, I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should say, Our hand is high, and the LORD hath not done all this.

28 For they are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them.

29 O that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!

30 How should one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had sold them, and the LORD had shut them up?

31 For their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges.

32 For their vine is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

33 Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps.

34 Is not this laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?

35 To me belongeth vengeance and recompense; their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXII.—Forgetfulness of God is followed by the most alarming consequences; but the daily loving and confiding remembrance of God is followed by a lengthened train of the most distinguished blessings. We never can calculate the evils which sin has produced, and of which Moses furnishes so heart-melting a description. It kindles the fire of Divine wrath; it is the vast fountain whence flow all the bitter streams of suffering and of sorrow with which our fallen world is overspread; it has defaced the image of God in the soul of man; it expelled angels from heaven, and unfitted them for a place before the throne of God; it nailed the humanity of Christ to the accursed tree; and it has kindled the flames of Tophet! Lord, deliver us from sin!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the Divine and unchanging Rock. Thou art the Rock that begat us, and thou art the God that formed us. O suffer us not to be unmindful of thee our Rock; O suffer us not to forget thee, the Lord that formed us. Divine Saviour, when we think of the situation of heathen lands, and the deplorable and helpless situation of those who are placing their hopes of heaven on false foundations, what reason have we as a family to take up the song of Moses into our lips? For their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges!

O Lord, we adore thee with humility and fear, as a jealous God. Thou art jealous of thy worship, thy prerogatives, and thine ordinances. And thou art a God of vengeance as well as of mercy. Prevent us, O Lord, from moving thee to jealousy, or of provoking thee to anger by our vanities. Convince us that thy jealousy is never more moved than when thy Son is rejected; that thine anger is never more provoked than when the rich blessings of his salvation are despised. O convince us that the fire of thy vengeance never burns with greater vehemence than it does against those who live and die wilfully rejecting thine unspeakable gift. Heaven preserve us from such a sin! O Son of God, preserve us from such a doom!

May our children and domestics be deeply affected with the evil and danger of the sin of despising and rejecting Christ. Convince them that it is better never to have been born, than to live and die rejecting the greatest of heaven's blessings, even salvation by a Saviour's blood.

Impress on our minds, gracious Spirit, the deplorable consequences of a life of obstinacy, rebellion, and impenitence. By the terrors of the Lord may we be affected and aroused to flee to the refuge provided by infinite mercy for perishing souls.

We would affectionately plead with God for such among us as are unconverted and unconvinced. Open their eyes to see that God is just to punish, as well as merciful to save. May they consider how dreadful is God's wrath; that when the fire of thy wrath is kindled, it will burn to the lowest hell—that it shall consume the earth with its increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains. Convince them of the utter vanity of living without Christ, and opposed to God; for thou hast threatened to heap mischiefs upon thy enemies; yea, to spend thine arrows upon them. O Lord our God, awake, awake our graceless relatives and friends out of that sleep of carelessness and unconcern which will prove the forerunner of eternal death, if thy rich mercy prevent not. May we live to see them alive to God, and heirs of heaven. Have mercy on our nation. Justly mayest thou say respecting us, They are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them. O that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!

We thank our God for the mercies of the night, and we supplicate grace to perform the duties of the day. Lord, hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

JOHN XVIII.

Christ's Sufferings.

THE high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world, I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing.

21 Why askest thou me? ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said.

22 And, when he had thus spoken, one of the officers which stood by struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so?

23 Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil: but if well, why smitest thou me?

24 (Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest.)

25 Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the hall of judgment: and it was early; and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the passover.

26 Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring ye against this man?

27 They answered and said unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

28 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

29 That the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying what death he should die.

30 Then Pilate entered into the judgment hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the King of the Jews?

31 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me?

32 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me: what hast thou done?

33 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

34 Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.

35 Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews, and saith unto them, I find in him no fault at all.

36 But ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one at the passover: will ye therefore that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

37 Then cried they all again, saying, Not this man, but Barabbas. Now Barabbas was a robber.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XVIII.—Men may make inquiries respecting Christ from motives of enmity and envy. Blessed are they who wish from motives of admiration and love to know more of Christ's person, and to obtain increasing and clearer perception of the doctrines of the glorious Gospel of Christ. In Jesus, the truth was embodied and exemplified and illustrated and enforced, throughout the whole of his useful, spotless, and unparalleled life. None disposed to be instructed as humble disciples at his feet would forbear to acknowledge that he was the Light of the world, and of the Church; and that Divine, unerring truth, shone in him with all the brightness of a meridian sun. May our hearts be deeply and solemnly affected with the sufferings of Christ! Was he smitten by an officer rude and barbarous? He was smitten that we might escape the smiting of the rod of Divine wrath. Was he bound as a prisoner? It was that we might be set free from the slavery of sin, and obtain the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

PRAYER.

GOD of providence and of grace, we bless thee that thou hast preserved us to the close of another day; and that an opportunity is afforded us, before we retire to rest, of pouring out our supplications at thy throne, and of commending ourselves, soul and body, to thy Divine guardianship and care. May the night on which we are entering admonish us of the night of death, when our eyes shall be for ever closed on all earthly objects, and when our ears shall hear no more for ever the noise of this busy, changing world. In the prospect of that night of death, which will overtake us sooner or later, may we escape for our lives, may we tarry not in all the plain, and may we find ourselves safe in Christ, the true city of refuge. We thank thee that, at the close of this day, we have a place to lay our heads; and we would fervently pray that, at the close of the day of human life, we may find a heaven to receive our spirits, even the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

May our souls be duly impressed with what we have now read of the sufferings of Jesus. May his sufferings affect us more than our own; and may we think and speak of them with infinitely greater interest than of the sufferings of the nearest and dearest of earthly connections. O Saviour, we thank thee for thy Gospel, the doctrine which thou didst speak openly to the world, and which thou didst ever teach in the synagogue and the temple. Give us grace to believe thy doctrine, and by faith to feed on thy Gospel. Let not our knowledge be merely speculative, may it be saving. Let it not only be the knowledge of the head, may it also be the knowledge of the heart. May we not only admire the Gospel as a lovely system, but may we enjoy it as the life and nourishment of the soul.

May the details we have now read of the cruelty with which our Saviour was treated, when he was abused by the high-priest and struck by his servant, teach us to mourn over the fallen, degraded nature of man. May we mourn over the depth of impiety into which it has sunk, and over the foul stains of cruelty and murder by which it is stained.

May our dear children be melted into love, when they see how Jesus loved them, and how he suffered for them. Kindle, Holy Spirit, in their youthful hearts the sacred flame of love to Christ; then will they prove in life, and till death, the faithful champions of a Saviour's cross.

Teach our aged friends, while bearing the burden and feeling the infirmities of advanced years, to remember the burden the Saviour bore, and the afflictions and agonies under which he died. May the remembrance strengthen them and strengthen us during the part of our journey that remains.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou art a Prince as well as a Saviour. We acknowledge thee as our Saviour, and we bow before thee as our King.

O Lord our God, forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our glorious Advocate.

- 1 DEATH cannot make our souls afraid,
If God be with us there;
We may walk through her darkest shade,
And never yield to fear.
- 2 I could renounce my all below,
If my Creator bid;
And run, if I were called to go,
And die as Moses did.
- 3 Might I but climb to Pisgah's top,
And view the promised land,
My flesh itself should long to drop,
And pray for the command.

Watts, 49, B. 11.

DEUTERONOMY XXXII.

Counsels to Israel.

FOR the Lord shall judge his people, and repent himself for his servants, when he seeth that their power is gone, and there is none shut up, or left.

37 And he shall say, Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted, 38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.

39 See now that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.

40 For I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 If I whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment; I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me.

42 I will make mine arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain and of the captives, from the beginning of revenges upon the enemy.

43 Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people: for he will avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.

44 And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, he and Hoshea the son of Nun.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

46 And he said unto them, Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

48 And the Lord spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying,

49 Get thee up into this mountain Abarim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession:

50 And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

51 Because ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Sin; because ye sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel.

52 Yet thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I gave the children of Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXII.—Never did parents watch over their children as God watches over his people. His love is most ardent; his knowledge of their circumstances the most perfect and minute. Earthly parents must slumber and sleep, when they can afford their children no help. God is a Father "who never slumbers, who never sleeps." God is alone in his absolute, universal, and irresistible sovereignty. What a Deliverer is Christ. He delivers his people out of the hand of the most formidable enemies. "But neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities and powers, nor things present, nor things to come," nor any other creature, shall be able to take the objects of his care from the arms of his mercy, or the bosom of his love.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, who art the Divine and overflowing fountain of all goodness, thou makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to praise thee. Thou hast given us reason and understanding, that we may know thee: O impart thy grace; then we shall be enlightened in the knowledge of Christ. Thou hast given us affections, that we may love thee: impart thy grace; then we shall love thee with all our heart. Thou hast given us the faculty of speech, that we may praise thee: give us thy Holy Spirit; then our lips shall proclaim thy praise. We draw near to thee as thy professed children to present our morning-sacrifice through the mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We rejoice that this name is always acceptable and all-prevailing in the court of heaven.

We bless thy kind and gracious providence, that, after the sleep, protection, and rest of another night, we are allowed in the enjoyment of health to enter upon another day, and to begin our daily duties by fellowship with God. May thy blessing, O Lord, accompany us all in the engagements of the day. When following our temporal pursuits, may we be preserved from the love of worldly objects, and may none of them be allowed to withdraw our thoughts or affections from thee. May temporal business never be allowed to unfit us for religious duties. Convince us that giving preference to the things of time before those of eternity, is to place the soul in circumstances of the most alarming danger.

If our dear children should be spared to engage in the lawful pursuits of this life, O preserve them from covetous hearts. May their minds never be under the dominion of the love of the world; but may they covet earnestly the best gift, even Jesus Christ, the Son of thy love. We earnestly pray that our servants may live in grace here and glory hereafter.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the great and almighty Sovereign, whose right it is to kill and to make alive, to wound and to heal. There is none able to deliver out of thy hand. O Lord, may we not be brought under thy deserved wrath, but may we be made alive by thy regenerating grace, and obtain eternal life through the merits of our Saviour's death. Have mercy on our graceless and impenitent friends. Convince them that there is no state so dreadful as to die unprepared, and thus fall into the hands of the living God; for none, O Lord, can deliver out of thy hand.

We rejoice that thou wilt never forsake thy people, nor allow their enemies finally to prosper. What reason have we to praise thee, that thou wilt avenge the blood of thy servants, and render vengeance to thine adversaries! but thou wilt be merciful to thy land and to thy people. O Lord, be merciful to our land and to our people.

Prepare us all for the eternal world. May we obtain by faith a sight of heaven; then we could run if called to go, and die as Moses did. Give to our aged relatives a view of heaven as their home; then they shall long to depart and be with Christ, which is far better.

We humbly ask the answer of our prayers, and the pardon of all our sins, for Jesus' sake, our blessed Redeemer. Amen.

IT IS FINISHED.

JOHN XIX.

Christ's Death.

THE Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? but Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldst have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend. Whosoever maketh himself a king, speaketh against Cæsar.

16 Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away.

25 Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son!

27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

28 After this, Jesus, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst.

29 Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth.

30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XIX.—Never did wild beast thirst more earnestly for the blood of its victim, than the cruel malignant Jews thirsted after the death of God's incarnate Son. Pilate was afraid when Jesus was before his tribunal. O, what shall be his terror when he appears before the judgment seat of Christ! Pilate declared he had great power. But how did he abuse that power in pronouncing on the innocent Jesus, in opposition to his conscience, the sentence of death! And what must be his confusion and despair at the last day, when he finds himself in the judicial power of Jesus, whom he condemned to die! Peculiarly affecting the situation of the Virgin! Mary when she saw her Son after the flesh nailed to the accursed tree! Then the prophecy of Simeon was fulfilled, "A sword shall pierce through thine own bowels." That tormenting wound has long since passed away for ever. She saw Jesus a lifeless corpse upon the tree; she now sees him an exalted Saviour on the throne. She saw him die to save; she now sees him alive again, "a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance unto Israel, and remission of sins unto many." She saw him encompassed with the darkness of death; she now beholds him enveloped with the glories of heaven.

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Redeemer, we have now read of thee as an humbled, suffering Saviour, but we rejoice that thy sufferings are for ever past, and that thou art now the exalted Redeemer. Thou art elevated infinitely above all principalities and powers in the heavenly places. O that we could sing with believing ecstasy and joy, Blessing and honour and glory and power be unto our God who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb, for ever and ever.

We acknowledge and adore thee, O Jesus, as the Son of God, equal with the Father and Spirit, in perfections and prerogatives and as possessed of the same Divine nature and glory.

As a family we praise thee that thou didst become the surety of a lost world. O give us faith to believe that thou art our surety, that thou hast undertaken our cause, that thou hast suffered and died in our room and stead, and that the guilt of all our sins is for ever taken away. May we believe that thou didst bear our sins in thine own body on the tree.

Give us grace to admire the manner in which thou didst suffer. With silence and meekness thou didst submit to thine unparalleled sufferings. Like a lamb thou wast led to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so thou openedst not thy mouth. In all our afflictions may we be enabled to show that the same mind is in us which was also in thee. In all our afflictions may we be endued with a rich supply of patience and meekness, to bear our afflictions; and impart unto us a lively faith, to look beyond all our afflictions, to the glorious and gracious recompense of reward. May we often meditate with emotions of exalted joy on the finished work of salvation completed on Calvary's cross. We rejoice that the law is now magnified and made honourable, that all the demands of justice are completely satisfied, and the infinite perfections of the Divine nature glorified.

Teach, O Lord, our children to admire that blessed and tender display of affection which our Saviour manifested to his mother when suspended from the cross. May their love to their earthly parents continue and increase; and never, never may it be weakened or destroyed by courses of depravity and sin. May our servants be affected by the sufferings of Christ and saved by his death!

We thank thee, O Lord our God, for the mercies and deliverances of the week which has nearly come to a close; and praise thee for what we have experienced of thy goodness, patience, and mercy.

We implore that the sins of the week may be forgiven. We have not only offended thee in our temporal business, but in our spiritual duties. In all things we offend. But we would pray that we may be enabled constantly to look by faith to Jesus, as the only propitiation.

We would anticipate, O Lord, with pleasure the near approach of thy holy day. If it is thy will, may we live to see it, and engage in its sacred exercises. May it be a day of great improvement to us as a family, and a day of great joy to all the churches. May it be a day of great comfort to aged pilgrims, and may they obtain fresh and renewed strength for the part of their journey that remains.

Assist all thy ministering servants, and may thy word have free course and be glorified.

Hear us, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

OBEDIENCE BETTER THAN SACRIFICE.

Colchester. Rowell. Gainsborough. St. Milton. C. M.

- 1 THUS saith the Lord, The spacious fields,
And flocks, and herds, are mine;
O'er all the cattle of the hills
I claim a right divine.
- 2 I ask no sheep for sacrifice,
Nor bullocks burnt with fire;
To hope and love, to pray and praise,
Is all that I require.
- 3 Call upon me when trouble's near,
My hand shall set thee free;
Then shall thy thankful lips declare
The honour due to me.

Watts, Ps. 50, p. 11.

PSALM L.

God's Majesty and Justice.

THE mighty God, even the Lord, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof.

- 2 Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined.
- 3 Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence: a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him.
- 4 He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people.
- 5 Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice.
- 6 And the heavens shall declare his righteousness: for God is judge himself. Selah.
- 7 Hear, O my people, and I will speak; O Israel, and I will testify against thee: I am God, even thy God.
- 8 I will not reprove thee for thy sacrifices, or thy burnt-offerings, to have been continually before me.
- 9 I will take no bullock out of thy house, nor he goats out of thy folds.
- 10 For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills.
- 11 I know all the fowls of the mountains: and the wild beasts of the field are mine.
- 12 If I were hungry, I would not tell thee: for the world is mine, and the fulness thereof.
- 13 Will I eat the flesh of bulls, or drink the blood of goats?
- 14 Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the Most High.
- 15 And call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.
- 16 But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldst take my covenant in thy mouth?
- 17 Seeing thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee.
- 18 These things hast thou done, and I kept silence; thou thoughtest that I was altogether such an one as thyself; but I will reprove thee, and set them in order before thine eyes.
- 19 Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver.
- 20 Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me: and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM L.—That will be a day of infinite importance and solemnity, when Jesus, with his loud and powerful voice, as the mighty God, shall summon an intelligent universe to appear before his judgment-seat. Then he shall appear as Zion's God, and King, and Saviour; in the midst of which he unceasingly shines in glory, and in the midst of which he shall shine in all the brightness of his Divine and mediatorial glory, for ever and ever. How glorious and lovely shall his saints appear on that judgment-day, for which every other day was made! Arrayed in all the graces of his Spirit, and covered with the robe of his righteousness, they shall be fair as the moon, and clear as the sun; they shall shine as the firmament, and, through eternity, as the stars. What a prospect does the judgment-day furnish to the enemies of Christ! Now let them hear his voice, and receive his grace!

PRAYER.

IN the commencement of thy sacred, hallowed day, O Lord, we would adore thee in the name of Jesus. Thou art the mighty God, even the Lord. Thou didst speak by thy creating voice, and call the earth into existence. As the God of providence, thou dost preside from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same. Thou art glorious in all thy works. But we rejoice that, as the God of redemption, the very perfection of thy beauty and thy grace has shone with peculiar glory in Zion thy church.

O redeeming God, we adore thee not only as the Saviour of men, but as the Judge of the world. Thou hast appointed a day in which thou shalt come, and shalt not keep silence. A fire shall devour before thee, and to all thine enemies it shall be very tempestuous round about. O prepare each one of us, and all our beloved friends in whose salvation we feel concerned, for that solemn day, when thou wilt call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that thou mayest judge thy people. Like them, may we be found at the right hand of the Judge; and, clothed in the righteousness of Christ, may we be acquitted before an assembled world. We bless thee, most gracious God, for the Sabbath-day. To us may it ever be a day of spiritual advancement in things divine, and a day that will remind us of the society, the employments, and the enjoyments of heaven. Thus may we ever say of thy blessed Sabbath: Welcome, sweet day of sacred rest, on which our Saviour rose triumphant from the grave! Ever may thy services be reviving to my breast, and thy light animating to my soul!

May we, as individuals and as a family, consider one day in thy courts in the enjoyment of thy divine fellowship, as preferable to ten thousand days in pleasurable sin.

We rejoice, O Lord, to think that multitudes of thousands shall this day hear the everlasting gospel of thy Son. While we pray for all thy people, that they may be advanced this day in divine attainments, we would more especially supplicate our God in behalf of the unconverted hearers of the word. By thy law, applied to the conscience by the power of the Holy Ghost, may their eyes be opened to see their sin and danger. Convince them that to live in a state of enmity against thee is to continue in a situation of danger which heart cannot conceive. May they see that they are among the number of those who forget God, and that thy threatening is directed against such. Say to them, this day, by divine power, Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver. Under thy Gospel faithfully preached may many be persuaded to accept of Jesus, as he is offered to sinners, even the chief.

We pray for our rulers, that their hearts may be adorned with grace, and their laws established in righteousness. We pray that they may exercise authority as under the eye of God. We pray for the mighty and the wealthy, that they may be made the benefactors of our race. We pray for the instructors of the young in our universities and schools, that they may be taught of God. We pray for our Bible and missionary institutions, that they may be instrumental in the salvation of millions.

O comfort the afflicted in their abodes by thy presence, and by the hopes of an eternal Sabbath in heaven.

Be present with our pastor and his flock. Hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CONFESSION.

- Walterham. St. Mary. Charnock. Walcott. C. N.*
- 1 LORD, I would spread my sore distress
And guilt before thine eyes;
Against thy laws, against thy grace,
How high my crimes arise!
  - 2 Shouldst thou condemn my soul to hell,
And crush my flesh to dust,
Heaven would approve thy vengeance well,
And earth must own it just.
  - 3 Born in a world of guilt, I drew Contagion with my breath;
And, as my days advanced, I grew
A juster prey for death.
  - 4 Cleanse me, O Lord, and cheer my soul
With thy forgiving love;
O, make my broken spirit whole,
And bid my pains remove.

PSALM LI.

Confession.

HAVE mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving-kindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions.

2 Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

3 For I acknowledge my transgressions: and my sin is ever before me.

4 Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight; that thou mightest be justified when thou speakest, and be clear when thou judgest.

5 Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me.

6 Behold thou desirest truth in the inward parts; and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom.

7 Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

8 Make me to hear joy and gladness; that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.

9 Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities.

10 Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.

11 Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me.

12 Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit.

13 Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee.

14 Deliver me from bloodguiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation: and my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness.

15 O LORD, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise.

16 For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it: thou delightest not in burnt offering.

17 The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.

18 Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion: build thou the walls of Jerusalem.

19 Then shalt thou be pleased with the sacrifices of righteousness, with burnt offering and whole burnt offering: then shall they offer bullocks upon thine altar.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LI.—The mercy of God teaches repentance for sin, mercy encourages to seek the pardon of sin, and mercy bestows the forgiveness of sin. David's sin was truly great; but his penitence was great, and great sovereign grace bestowed a great forgiveness, which excited the wonder, and called forth the adoring thankfulness and love of the royal penitent who watered his couch with his tears; and who, ever afterwards, looked upon himself as the least of saints, and as the chief of sinners. Breathing after holiness is a satisfying mark that sin is pardoned, and the soul regenerated. A wish for pardon, associated with a desire to live in sin, is an undoubted evidence of being in the "gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity." What a sacrifice Christ has made to atone for sin, and what a provision he has made to remove the pollution of sin!

PRAYER.

WHAT are we, O Lord, that we should be permitted to enjoy privileges so distinguished? We have not only been allowed to hear thy gracious voice in the gates of Zion, thy public courts; but we are permitted to hold fellowship with thyself in the dwellings of Jacob, even our private abodes. For these blessings of inestimable worth we would encourage each other to bless and praise thy holy, gracious name; for thy mercy endureth for ever.

O Lord we adore thee and approach unto thee as the God of our salvation. Thou art the God of our salvation, and our tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness. As a family, may we sing of thy righteousness all our days; and when our mortal tongue shall remain silent amid the darkness of the tomb, may God, glorified by the righteousness of Christ, be the endless subject of our praise in the heavenly world.

We confess, O Lord, our sinfulness. We were shapen in iniquity, and in sin did our mothers conceive us. As by our natural birth we are polluted and vile, by a new birth may we be made righteous and holy. Lord, we acknowledge our transgressions. May our sins in their enormity and guilt be ever before us, that we may be led to a constant feeling of humility, and the constant exercise of repentance. We confess that all our sins are directed against thee, even though they may be more immediately committed against others. May we see the enormity of sin as directed against God, and as infinitely opposed to the holiness of thy nature.

In the language of thy servant we would supplicate holiness. Purge us with hyssop, and we shall be clean; wash us, and we shall be whiter than the very snow. Holy Spirit, we would humbly yet earnestly invoke thy sanctifying influences. Thy power alone can remove the loathsomeness of sin, and impart the beauties of holiness.

Let our beloved children and domestics be washed with the washing of regeneration; let them be made the subjects of a new creation, and be transformed by the renewing of the Holy Ghost.

May glorious effects be produced by the preaching of the Gospel on this hallowed day. May many feel a sense of sin who never felt it before; may many be alarmed on account of the consequences of unpardoned guilt who never felt before the fear of wrath. May many be induced to flee to Jesus for redemption who have hitherto refused the offers of redeeming grace.

Have pity, O Lord, on the descendants of Jacob, and open their eyes, which have been so long blinded by prejudice, enmity, and unbelief, that they may now clearly see that Christ is come, and that Jesus is the true Messiah.

We thank thee for thy kindness to us as a family and as a congregation. We bless thee for thy kindness to our beloved minister, in enabling him to dispense among us the oracles of truth. O deliver our congregation from spiritual deadness; and may all our hearts be warmed with the sacred fire of holy zeal.

May all of us be made to hear joy and gladness. Restore unto us the joy of thy salvation; and may we retire to rest under the believing impression that thou art our God.

May all our prayers and services this day be accepted, and our sins pardoned, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PROVIDENCE.

- 1 YE servants of your God, his fame
In songs of highest praise proclaim;
Ye who, on his command intent,
The courts of Israel's Lord frequent.
- 2 Him praise—the everlasting King,
And mercy's unexhausted spring:
Haste, to his name your voices rear;
What name like his the heart can cheer?

With awful gratitude imprest,
Nor know, among the seats Divine,
A power that shall contend with thine. MERRICK.

DEUTERONOMY XXXIII.

Moses blessing the Tribes.

AND this is the blessing, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

2 And he said, The Lord came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them; he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of saints: from his right hand went a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, he loved the people; all his saints are in thy hand: and they sat down at thy feet; every one shall receive of thy words.

4 Moses commanded us a law; even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was king in Jeshurun, when the heads of the people and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 Let Reuben live, and not die; and let not his men be few.

7 And this is the blessing of Judah: and he said, Hear, Lord, the voice of Judah, and bring him unto his people: let his hands be sufficient for him; and he thou an help to him from his enemies.

8 And of Levi he said, Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.

10 They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law: they shall put incense before thee, and whole burnt sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, Lord, his substance, and accept the work of his hands: smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again.

12 And of Benjamin he said, The beloved of the Lord shall dwell in safety by him; and the Lord shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

13 And of Joseph he said, Blessed of the Lord be his land, for the precious things of heaven, for the dew, and for the deep that coucheth beneath,

14 And for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things put forth by the moon,

15 And for the chief things of the ancient mountains, and for the precious things of the lasting hills,

16 And for the precious things of the earth and fulness thereof, and for the good will of him that dwelt in the bush: let the blessing come upon the head of Joseph, and upon the top of the head of him that was separated from his brethren.

17 His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the horns of unicorns: with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth: and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.

18 And of Zebulun he said, Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy going out; and, Issachar, in thy tents.

19 They shall call the people unto the mountain; there they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness: for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXIII.—Very interesting and impressive it is, to hear the affectionate and solemn and seasonable expressions which fall from the lips of saints on the borders of the heavenly kingdom. Glorious was God's appearance at Mount Sinai, but unspeakably more glorious will be the appearance of Christ at the last day, when the countless myriads of his saints shall accompany him to pronounce just sentences upon an assembled universe. O may we be prepared for that great, that glorious, that decisive day! None can conceive God's love to his people. It is from everlasting; it is immutable; it is eternal; it flows through the channel of a Saviour's righteousness.

PRAYER.

O LORD God of hosts, we adore thee as the almighty and universal King. With glorious majesty thou didst deliver thy laws to ancient Israel. Thou camest from Sinai, and didst rise up from Seir unto thy people; thou didst shine forth from mount Paran in thy glory; thou camest with ten thousand of thy saints, and for their government a fiery law went from thy right hand.

Thou art a God in Christ, loving thy people with an everlasting love. All thy saints are in thy hand, and all their enemies united shall never be able to pluck them out of thine everlasting arms. Mercifully give us as a family the pleasing evidence that we are in the hand of thy special providence and grace.

As a family may we be especially blessed, even with all spiritual and heavenly blessings in Christ Jesus. Let our riches be the riches of faith, and our inheritance an inheritance of grace, and our hopes the ceaseless glories of immortality.

As Moses prayed for Reuben, so we would pray for our dear children; Let them live, and not die. Give them the life of true religion in the soul, that life of union to Jesus which will be followed by a life of eternal blessedness in heaven.

We thank thee, O God of providence and grace, for the rich provision of temporal blessings thou hast made for the children of men. We thank thee for the precious things of heaven, for the dew, and for the abundance of the deep that coucheth beneath. We thank thee for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things put forth by the moon, and for the chief things of the ancient mountains, and for the precious things of the lasting hills, and for the precious things of the earth, and the fulness thereof. Above all, we thank thee for the goodwill of him that dwelt in the bush. All these blessings rested on Joseph, who was separated from his brethren. O may these blessings rest on us, and on all the families with which we are connected. Ever, ever may thy goodwill dwell among us.

Lord, give us the blessing of Judah. May the voice of our prayers be heard; may we at last be brought to our kindred and people in heaven; may our hands be sufficient for us in all our duties, trials, and difficulties; and may God be our deliverer and help out of the hand of all our enemies.

Lord, have mercy on all thy ministering servants. Teach and enable them most faithfully to observe thy Word and keep thy covenant: Earnestly may they proclaim thy message, teaching Jacob thy judgments and Israel thy law.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the mercies of the night. While our eyes were shut in sleep, thy watchful eye beheld us, and thy gracious hand preserved us. We pray that we may conduct ourselves this day as those who have entered upon it in fellowship with thee. May we be indeed the beloved of the Lord, and may the Lord protect us all the day long.

Graciously hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

Walsworth New. Kelley. Resurrection. Darwell. 1486A n.

1 YES! the Redeemer rose,
The Saviour left the dead,
And o'er our hellish foes
High raised his conquering head;
In wild dismay
The guards around
Fall to the ground,
And sink away.

2 Lo! the angelic hands
In full assembly meet,
To wait his high commands,
And worship at his feet:
Joyful they come,
And wing their way
From realms of day
To Jesus' tomb.

DODDRIDGE.

JOHN XX.

Disciples at Christ's Grave.

THE first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.

2 Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

5 And he, stooping down, and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lie,

7 And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

8 Then went in also that other disciple which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

10 Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre.

12 And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master.

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XX.—We cannot think of Mary Magdalene's love to Jesus without admiring its strength, its ardour, and its constancy. She was forgiven much, and she loved much. May our love to Christ bear some resemblance to hers, in ardour, in degree, and in continuance. Though Mary, through ignorance, was disappointed when she saw the Saviour's empty grave, she soon found that Christ's empty sepulchre was the Church's glory, and the blessed security for the resurrection of all the members of the Church at the last day. And what a glorious day, when the graves of the redeemed shall be empty sepulchres, and the bodies which inhabited them for ages arrayed in robes of immortality! What an honour was conferred on Mary Magdalene! She was the first who beheld the risen Saviour: she saw him on the cross, the victim of mortality; she saw him laid in the tomb, in the apparel of death; and she now beholds him, the resurrection and the life.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY holy and gracious Lord God, from thee alone cometh every good and perfect gift. Thy blessings are innumerable, like the dew-drops of the morning. We acknowledge that we are indebted to thee for all those comforts which render the vale of tears tolerable, and which even in some cases make it a little heaven here below. We praise thee for that Divine foundation revealed in the Word of life, on which we are permitted with the greatest security to build our hopes of heaven and immortality. May it, therefore, be the loving desire of our heart to begin and end every day in the enjoyment of intercourse with thyself.

Let unfeigned gratitude inspire our hearts for the personal and social, the temporal and spiritual blessings we have this day enjoyed. For the light of reason we praise thee, but above all for the light of Divine truth; for the society of friends we praise thee, but above all for fellowship with thee our God; for assistance in our temporal calling we praise thee, but above all for assistance in our religious engagements.

We thank thee for unknown mercies conferred upon us, many of which consist in deliverance from unknown evils and dangers. And we thank thee for known blessings, which are like the hairs of our head, which cannot be numbered.

We look up to thee, thou Preserver of men, for preservation this night. Mercifully surround our habitation and our persons: for except thou keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain. If it is thy holy will, spare us to the light of another day, and may we awake amid thy gracious smiles. Preserve us from the predatory sons of violence; preserve our persons and our dwelling from devouring flames: but, above all, preserve our souls, and the souls of our beloved children in thy presence, and the souls of all our relatives and friends, from the flames of hell. O God, forbid that any of us should die finally impenitent, and, at last, perish in those abodes of endless despair where the worm never dies, and where the fire is never quenched!

Bless to us, O Lord, the Word we have now read. May each one of us be enabled, from a believing experience of the Divine excellence of thy Word, to sing, We will never forget; for with it thou hast quickened us.

Lord, bestow upon us the spirit of piety and love which shone with such humility and loveliness in the life of Mary Magdalene. While we admire the love she manifested to Jesus while standing and weeping beside his grave, may we earnestly supplicate the Spirit to kindle in our bosom a superlative love to Christ.

May we derive great consolation from the resurrection of Jesus. Mighty Saviour! the grave could not retain thee in its power. We rejoice that thou didst burst asunder the fetters of mortality, and thus proclaim thyself before an astonished universe the Conqueror of death.

Comfort us with the animating prospect of a glorious resurrection. May thine aged people, who are on the brink of the grave, look beyond the Jordan of death, and rejoice in the blessed hope of awaking in the likeness of Christ.

All we ask is for the sake of our risen and exalted Saviour. Amen.

DEATH OF MOSES,

- 1 LORD! 'tis an infinite delight
To see thy lovely face,
To dwell whole ages in thy sight,
And feel thy vital rays.
- 2 This Gabriel knows, and sings thy name,
With rapture on his tongue;
Moses the saint enjoys the same,
And heaven repeats the song.
- 3 While the bright nation sounds thy praise
From each eternal hill,
Sweet odours of exhaling grace
The happy region fill.

DEUTERONOMY XXXIII.

Blessing of the Tribes.

AND of Naphtali he said, O Naphtali, satisfied with favour, and full with the blessing of the LORD: possess thou the west and the south.

24 And of Asher he said, Let Asher be blessed with children; let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him dip his foot in oil.

25 Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be.

26 There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun, who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky.

27 The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms; and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; and shall say, Destroy them.

28 Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: the fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his heavens shall drop down dew.

DEUTERONOMY XXXIV.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab, unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho: and the LORD shewed him all the land of Gilead, unto Dan.

2 And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, unto the utmost sea.

3 And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, the city of palm trees, unto Zoar.

4 And the LORD said unto him, This is the land which I swear unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither.

5 So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

6 And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.

7 And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated.

8 And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9 And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him: and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

10 And there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face,

11 In all the signs and the wonders, which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land, 12 And in all that mighty hand, and in all the great terror which Moses shewed in the sight of all Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON DEUT. XXXIII., XXXIV.—There is nothing to be compared with the favour of God: it is life; and his lovingkindness is better than life. May every worldly possession be insignificant in our estimation compared with this. Jesus is the overflowing fountain of all blessing. It is our privilege to apply daily to this fountain; and if we apply with humility and faith we shall be blessed with all spiritual blessings, we shall receive out of his fulness and grace for grace. What wonders encircled the life of Moses, from his entrance into time until his entrance into heaven. He was in many respects typical of Jesus: he was wonderful as a babe, and wonderful in his public life as the leader and legislator of Israel: he was wonderful in his graces, and in his fellowship with God: he was wonderful in his death. Moses was distinguished as a prophet, and thus typical of Jesus, the great Prophet of the Church. He was typical as a mediator, and his intercessions were successful in preventing Israel from being destroyed by Divine wrath; and as king in Jeshurun, he was typical of Jesus, who is King eternal, immortal, and invisible.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we adore thee as Israel's God. There is none like unto thee, thou God of Jeshurun, who ridest upon the heaven in thy help, and in thine excellency on the sky. Thou art the eternal God, immutably the same from generation to generation. Thine arms are everlasting arms, which thou placost underneath thy people, to bear them up above all the calamities of time, and to prevent them from sinking under the raging waves of human affliction.

Look mercifully upon us as a family, and place underneath each one of us the arms of thy mercy and thy power. Make us a pious, holy family; then shall the enemies of our soul be thrust out from before us; then shall we dwell in safety alone. May we be a family saved by the Lord; and may we by faith look on thee our God in Christ as the shield of our help. Teach us to seek thy favour in preference to the esteem of all the inhabitants of the earth. Open our eyes to see that thy favour is life. We would now seek it as the life of our souls on earth; as that which renders temporal enjoyments really sweet, and as that which effectually soothes and comforts the soul under all the sufferings which can befall us in the present life. O Lord, may we be filled with thy blessing. Suffer us not to rest satisfied with temporal blessings. May we value them for the purpose for which God bestows them; but may we seek after spiritual blessings, which will enrich the soul when all earthly comforts shall have passed away for ever.

Bless our children. If it is thy holy will to spare them to maturity of years, may they be prepared for the journey which is before them. May their shoes be iron and brass; and as their days, so may their strength be.

Fulfil this most encouraging promise in the sweet experience of thine aged servants, who have reached that period of life when the keepers of the house are beginning to tremble, and those which look out at the windows are beginning to be darkened.

Bless to us the pleasing and sublime account we have now read of the death of Moses. Like him, may we die in the enjoyment of the Divine favour. Like him, may we enjoy in our dying moments the gracious presence of Christ. Like him, may we die in the enjoyment of the full assurance of faith, believing that we shall most assuredly exchange earth and all its sorrows and imperfections for a heaven of eternal bliss.

We thank thee that thou hast heard our prayer, and vouchsafed to us thy protection and care through the last night. Enable us, as gratefully sensible of thine unmerited and unwearied goodness, to live this day in thy fear and devoted to thy glory. Ever may our hearts be regulated by thy Spirit, and our lives by thy law.

Hear our imperfect supplications, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our glorious Saviour and advocate. Amen.

PARDON AND PEACE.

Dover's Brook Street, Cyprus, Broomgrove. C. H.

- 1 LORD, how divine thy comforts are!
How heavenly is the place
Where Jesus spreads the sacred feast
Of his redeeming grace!
- 2 There the rich bounties of our God,
And sweetest glories shine;
There Jesus says that I am his,
And my beloved's mine.
- 3 Here, says the kind redeeming Lord,
And shews his wounded side,
See here the spring of all your joys,
That opened when I died.

Watts, 11, B. III.

JOHN XX.

The Unbelief of Thomas.

WHEN the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

20 And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord.

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.

22 And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost:

23 Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

24 But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless but believing.

28 And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.

29 Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.

30 And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book:

31 But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing ye might have life through his name.

JOHN XXI.

AFTER these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias; and on this wise shewed he himself.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth and entered into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XX., XXI.—Jesus is both his people's peace and their preserver. If they are exposed to danger and injury from men, they are never without Christ's presence and defence. If a believing sight of Jesus on earth fill the saints with such joy, what must be their enjoyment and delight when they shall behold him face to face in heaven? Refreshing are the natural breezes of the sky, but infinitely more refreshing the spiritual breezes of the influences of the Holy Ghost. With what earnestness we should seek these sacred and Divine breezes, saying with earnestness of soul, "Holy Spirit, blow upon our garden, that the spices thereof may flow out!" May it be our privilege often to enjoy believing views of Jesus, as our Lord, and our God!

PRAYER.

GREAT and only Lord God, we are infinitely unworthy to come before thee. We praise thee that, notwithstanding our unworthiness, we are welcome to approach thee. What are we, that thou hast made the exercise of prayer not only our privilege, but our duty? Thou art the Lord God almighty; we are feeble worms of the dust. We are but of yesterday, and know nothing; but thou art from everlasting to everlasting God.

With what humility and penitence we should acknowledge our sins! Thou hast nourished and brought us up as children, but we have rebelled against thee. Like lost sheep, we have wandered far from thee, and there is no health in us. We have resembled the prodigal who left his father's house, and brought himself into poverty and want. We have left thee our Father and our God, and have plunged ourselves into the depths of sin and guilt. Lord, give us true repentance; not only a desire to be delivered from the consequences and punishment of sin, but a desire to be delivered from the love and service and power of this the greatest enemy of our souls. We seek for pardon through the mediation and righteousness of Christ, through whom alone pardon can be extended to perishing men.

Unworthy as we are, we praise thee that we are permitted to commit our bodies and souls to thy care. Now we cast ourselves on the gracious care of our Father who is in heaven. We present our thanks for the mercies of the past day. May the remembrance of daily sins produce humility and watchfulness; and may the remembrance of daily mercies excite gratitude, love, and praise.

We cannot expect thy bodily presence, O Jesus, for thy humanity is gone to heaven, there to remain till the restitution of all things. But we seek thy Divine and gracious presence. When we assemble for prayer and the exercises of our holy religion, most blessed Saviour, appear in the midst of us, and say unto us what thou saidst unto thy disciples: Peace be unto you.

Give our beloved children grace, that they may seek the peace and the pleasures of wisdom. Preserve them from the follies and vanities of time, and may they and our servants surrender their heart to Jesus, who will give them joys eternal as his throne.

Manifest thyself, O Saviour, to our aged friends; and when afflicted by the weakness, fears, and infirmities of advanced years, may their faith in Jesus be vigorous and lively: may they often look to Jesus, and exclaim, My Lord and my God!

We have now read of the unbelief of Thomas thy disciple: Lord, deliver us from unbelief. Destroy that highly God-dishonouring sin, and may we have the blessedness of those who, though they see not Jesus with their bodily eyes, yet, believing in him, rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

Blessed Jesus, when we see thee at thy table, exhibited in the elements of bread and wine, may we by faith behold the print of the nails, and believe that thou didst suffer and die for us.

Mercifully hear our prayers, O Lord, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

GOD'S SUPPORT UNDER THE DEATH OF MINISTERS.

Roman; Bath Abbey. Micham. C. N.

- 1 NOW let our drooping hearts revive,
And all our tears be dry;
Why should these eyes be drowned in grief,
Which view a Saviour nigh?
- 2 Though earthly shepherds dwell in dust,
The aged and the young;
The watchful eye in darkness closed,
And mute the instructive tongue;
- 3 The eternal Shepherd still survives,
New comfort to impart;
His eye still guides us, and his voice
Still animates our heart.

DORRIDGE.

JOSHUA I.

Moses and Joshua.

NOW after the death of Moses the servant of the Lord it came to pass, that the Lord spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' minister, saying,

2 Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3 Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon, even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

6 Be strong and of a good courage; for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swore unto their fathers to give them.

7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law which Moses my servant commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest.

8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success.

9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

10 Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

11 Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; for within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the Lord your God giveth you to possess it.

12 And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying, 13 Remember the word which Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying, The Lord your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren armed, all the mighty men of valour, and help them.

15 Until the Lord have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the Lord your God giveth them: then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses, the Lord's servant, gave you on this side Jordan, towards the sun-rising.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA I.—When eminent saints, ministers, and rulers, distinguished by piety and usefulness, are removed by death, how delightful to know and believe that the residue of the spirit is with Christ, and that he is able with the utmost ease to supply their place, and to raise up others to follow their example and walk in their footsteps. Solemn thought—we have to cross the Jordan of death! But, blessed thought, if we are interested in Christ, our Divine Joshua shall lead us safely through death's cold stream, and introduce us into the heavenly Canaan, beyond the influence of every sin, and the reach of every foe.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY holy and gracious Lord God, thou hast declared, Blessed is the man whom thou chooseth, and causeth to approach unto thee. We approach unto thee as a family, and may we be blessed in our approach. As an evidence that we are blessed, may our hearts be filled with an increasing love to all thine ordinances, secret, private, and public. Ever may we be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple. As a family, may we have a name and a place in thy house, which will be more precious to us than all the possessions, pleasures, or honours this world can bestow. Convince us of the utter vanity of the greatest abundance of the good things of this life without an interest in Christ. May we see that, in such a case as this, even in the fulness of our sufficiency, we should be in straits. We would therefore earnestly pray that thou wouldst be our God, and that we may be thy people.

We thank thee, O Lord, that in the enjoyment of many comforts we are permitted, enabled, and disposed to draw near the throne of grace, and after the preservation afforded during another night to present our morning sacrifice.

Let our thoughts and actions this day be under thine especial direction. May we live this day, and all our days, as those who expect through the merits of our Saviour's righteousness at last to reach the heavenly Canaan, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of our God. Preserve us from sin, temptations, and trials. If exposed to the allurements of sin, may we vigorously resist them; if tried by afflictions, may we endure them as a salutary discipline provided by the covenant of grace. When we are tossed upon the billows of human affliction, may we have the presence of him whom the winds and the seas obey.

Suffer not our children to expect any resting-place on this side the grave. Preserve them from the pernicious influence of youthful hopes, and let not their souls be lost by the fascinating charms of earthly joys. May they and our servants seek and know the pure joys of salvation.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, the death of relatives; and particularly the removal of ministers from their labours here below to their immortal crown in heaven. Bless to us the remembrance of the discourses they delivered, the supplications they presented, and the holy example they exhibited. As Israel mourned many days after the death of Moses, may the death of pious ministers produce on our minds effects of the deepest solemnity.

Lord, encourage thy ministering servants in all their sacred, honourable, and useful labours. May they be strong and of a good courage; may they not be afraid nor dismayed, believing that thou the Lord their God art with them.

Have mercy on all the families with which we are connected. May they travel up the wilderness of human life clothed with the whole armour of God, and at last reach the land which thou hast prepared for the possession of thy people.

We present our prayers in the name of Jesus, to whom, with the Father and the Spirit, we would ascribe eternal praises. Amen.

CASTING THE GOSPEL-NET.

Charity. Cottage. Salington. Lebanon.

L. E.

- 1 NOW, while the gospel-net is cast,
Do thou, O Lord, the effort own:
From numerous disappointments past,
Teach us to hope in thee alone.
- 2 May this be a much-favoured hour
To souls in Satan's bondage led!
O clothe thy word with sovereign power,
To break the rocks, and raise the dead.
- 3 To mourners speak a cheering word,
On seeking souls vouchsafe to shine;
Let poor backsliders be restored,
And all thy saints in praises join.

AMON.

JOHN XXI.

Christ's Interview with his Disciples.

AND he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked,) and did cast himself into the sea.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples after that he was risen from the dead.

15 So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him, the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.

19 This spake he, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.

20 Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following: which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XXI.—The Gospel is a sacred net; and when the faithful preaching of the Word is accompanied with Divine success, then it is that the "net is cast on the right side of the ship." The extensive influence of gospel truth and of gospel ordinances should be near our hearts. Frequently and earnestly we should pray for the rich and abundant fulfilment of that precious promise, "My word shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that which I please, and prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it." Do we love Jesus as really as our Lord said to Peter, "Lovest thou me?" Does Jesus address the question to our conscience and heart, "Lovest thou me?" They are greatly blessed, and greatly honoured, who can say with humility and confidence, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that we love thee." May this attainment be ours! Then we shall have reason to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. Amen.

PRAYER.

HEAVENLY Father, thou who art ever worthy of the praises of thy saints, because of thy goodness and thy wonderful works to the children of men, we come before thee as a family, to express our thankfulness for the continuation of thy mercies during the past day. Though we are poor and needy, thou art rich and kind to all who call upon thee. How great is thy goodness!

May we lie down upon our beds in the exercise of faith in thy providence, and of faith in thy promise. Teach us to believe that thou art our Father, and that we are thy children. Teach us to rely wholly and implicitly on Jesus Christ for pardon of sin and acceptance with God; then, whether we awake on the approaching day in time or in eternity, our souls shall be bound up in the bundle of life.

We thank thee, O Lord, as a family, for the Gospel of thy Son. What reason have we to praise thee that this gospel-net has been ever cast into the troubled sea of this life! We bless thee for the multitudes which have been encompassed and caught in this net. We thank thee in behalf of all our relatives, who are converted by redeeming grace, and who have been mercifully enclosed in this net.

May we live to see our dear children, each one of them, caught by this net, and preserved from the destroying consequences of sin.

Powerfully assist all thy ministering servants in casting the gospel-net. As Peter cast the net on the right side of the ship, according to the command of Christ, may thy servants preach the Gospel under thine immediate direction; then it will be followed by great success. Though their disappointments may be numerous and long, may they persevere in their merciful and sacred calling. May our beloved minister, in his regular duties of thy day, be a successful instrument in laying hold on perishing sinners, and in rescuing them from the miseries of eternal woe.

We praise thee that ever the gospel-net was cast in these lands of our nativity, and that myriads have been saved from sin and hell. May we by this gospel-net be delivered from the troubled sea of a natural state, and may we be at last conveyed to that blessed haven, where sin shall never ensnare the soul, and where temptation shall never wound the heart.

We come to thee, O Lord our God, as a family, to seek superlative love to Jesus Christ. O Saviour, thou art saying to each of us, Lovest thou me? May we believe this to be the case, and that we are as really addressed thus by Jesus, as Peter after the resurrection. May all of us be enabled to answer in reply, with unfeigned humility, We desire to love thee.

We earnestly pray that all thy ministers may be enabled, with increasing fidelity, to feed the lambs and the sheep of thy flock, giving all thy children their portion of meat in due season.

Graciously hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our blessed Redeemer and High-priest. Amen.

- 1 IN songs of sublime adoration and praise,
Ye pilgrims! for Sion who press,
Break forth, and extol the great Ancient of days,
His rich and distinguishing grace.
- 2 His love, from eternity fixed upon you,
Broke forth and discovered its flame,
When each with the cords of his kindness he drew,

JOSHUA II.

Rahab, who hid the Spies.

AND Joshua the son of Nun sent out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho. And they went, and came into an harlot's house, named Rahab, and lodged there.

2 And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to night of the children of Israel to search out the country.

3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come to search out all the country.

4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I wist not whence they were;

6 But she had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof.

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate,

8 And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof.

9 And she said unto the men, I know that the Lord hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land faint because of you.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, swear unto me by the Lord, since I have shewed you kindness, that ye will also shew kindness unto my father's house, and give me a true token.

14 And the men answered her, Our life for yours, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the Lord hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then she let them down by a cord through the window: for her house was upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

16 And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterwards may ye go your way.

17 And the men said unto her, We will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear.

18 Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: and thou shalt bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee.

19 And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, his blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA II.—Though Rahab had for years been a woman of the greatest depravity, we have every reason to believe that when she entertained the spies she was a child of God, and an heir of heaven. Her old name is historically preserved, and given to her by way of distinction, to mark God's sovereignty and grace, in making those the subjects of grace who were formerly sunk in the lowest depths of infamy and sin. Let us admire Divine grace in the extraordinary change which was made in the heart and life of Rahab. When God pleases, he makes the most eminent saints of the vilest sinners, and raises them up to be eminent blessings to his Church.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY great and glorious Jehovah, thou art Zion's God and our God. Thou art he who struck Egypt with dismay, and punished its king for his cruelty to thy Church. Thou art he who dried up the waters of the Red Sea, to open up a passage before thy people, that they might pass through dry-shod. Thou didst destroy Pharaoh and his hosts, and thou didst utterly destroy Sihon and Og, who endeavoured to prevent the progress of thy Church in journeying to the promised land. Truly thou art the Lord our God; thou art God in heaven above, and in earth beneath. As a family, may we be enabled through eternity to sing, O give thanks unto the Lord, who hath redeemed us from all our enemies; for his mercy endureth for ever.

Holy Spirit, give us grace at the commencement of this day, and after the enjoyment of the providential care of our God during the past night, to present our morning sacrifice. May our prayers be suitable, reverential, believing, and acceptable. As the rain descends upon the tender herb, and refreshes the earth, so may thine influences descend on us, and make our souls to resemble a fruitful field. Thou, Holy Spirit, alone canst teach us to worship God in spirit and in truth.

We desire to present our unfeigned thanks for the mercies of the past night. Thou hast given us the sleep which has refreshed us: the light is thine, and thou hast opened our eyes to behold it. Our health is a communication from thy goodness, which all the skill of man is neither able to confer nor preserve without thy blessing. Having received these blessings from thee, the bountiful giver of all good, we desire to be gratefully sensible of thy mercies.

This day may we conduct ourselves as thy children, and live by the faith of thy well-beloved Son. May we enjoy the light of thy countenance, and may we be preserved from perplexing, anxious cares about our temporal concerns, ever believing we are under the management of a gracious Providence, and that all things shall work together for our good.

May we derive instruction and improvement from the portion of thy Word we have now read. May we by faith search the heavenly Canaan. Often may we look within the veil, and see the glories of the place.

We would mourn over the deplorable effects which sin has produced upon the human mind, exemplified by Rahab in her unconverted state. We would pray for our fallen, degraded race, which is even sunk below the brutal tribes. Mercifully lift up the sons and daughters of Adam, our first covenant head from wallowing in the mire of depravity and sin.

As Rahab was plucked a brand out of the burning, may our dear children be plucked as brands out of the burning; and may they never be left to become the slaves of fleshly lusts.

Have mercy on our graceless friends, and make them monuments of mercy. Give the washing of regeneration. Instead of being under the dominion of hateful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition, may they live and die under the reign of grace.

In the name and for the sake of Jesus, we implore the answer of our prayers and the pardon of our sins. Amen, and amen.

- 1 OUR Lord is risen from the dead
Our Jesus is gone up on high!
The powers of hell are captive led,
Dragged to the portals of the sky.
- 2 There his triumphal chariot waits,
And angels chant the solemn lay:—
Lift up your heads, ye heavenly gates!
Ye everlasting doors, give way!
- 3 Loose all your bars of massy light,
And wide unfold the ethereal scene;
He claims these mansions as his right—
Receive the King of glory in.
- 4 Who is the King of glory, who?
The Lord that all our foes o'ercame;
The world, sin, death, and hell o'erthrow;
And Jesus is the conqueror's name. C. WESLEY.

ACTS I.

Christ's Ascension.

THE former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach,

2 Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen:

3 To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

4 And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

5 For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.

6 When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

8 But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

9 And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.

10 And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel;

11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a Sabbath day's journey.

13 And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14 These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS I.—The life of Christ is without a parallel. It furnishes a display of wonders, which will engage the attention, and call forth the adoring praises of angels and saints for ever and ever. Let us present the life and example of Christ daily before our eyes. As an evidence that we are saved by his death, let it be our constant study to imitate the lovely example he furnished in his life. We should rejoice in the irresistible proofs which our Saviour furnished of the reality of his resurrection, which no prejudiced Jews or malignant infidels have ever been able to impugn. The fact of the resurrection of Jesus rests upon the immutable pillar of Divine truth, which no reasoning, the most crafty and plausible, has ever been able to shake. With what joy and thankfulness we should meditate on the ascension of Christ. Earth was the scene of his humiliation; heaven is the scene of the glories of his exaltation. Here he was despised and rejected of men; in heaven he is the object of the adoring praises of saints and angels.

PRAYER.

BLESSED and gracious Lord God, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, there is none like unto thee. Thou art almighty, and there is none like unto thee. Compared with thee, archangels are feeble worms. Thou art infinite and unerring in thy wisdom, and there is none like unto thee. Thou chargest the wisest of created intelligences with folly.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that our obligations to love, adore, and serve thee are increased and strengthened by the continued mercies of this day. We now thank thee as a family for preserving mercy. We thank thee for preserving our health, our reason, and our life. But we have reason to mourn that, while thy conduct to us is merciful and kind, our conduct to thee has been unthankful and sinful. We plead for pardon through our Saviour's blood.

We bless thee that thou hast appointed night as a season of rest: and we bless thee that thou hast given us beds on which to repose. May we not retire to rest like the beasts which perish; but may we lie down on our beds after earnest supplications to thy throne, and solemn remembrance that the time is coming when we shall lie down in the dust.

Thou knowest, O Lord, the folly and the thoughtlessness of youth; graciously deliver our beloved children from the thoughtlessness and folly of youthful days. May they remember their Saviour and their God before the days come when they shall say they have no pleasure in them.

Accept of our humble thanks, O Lord, for the blessed history of our Saviour contained in the Word of life. We thank thee for the history of his descent into the grave, his resurrection from the dead, and his glorious ascension to heaven. Glory to thy name for the fulfilment of this prediction: Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou hast indeed ascended from Mount Olivet with shouts of praise. We rejoice that the gates have lifted up their heads, even the everlasting gates, and that thou the King of glory hast entered in, taken possession of thy mediatorial throne, and received from thy Father a crown brighter than the lustre of the sky, amid the songs of angels, and the praises of the myriads of thy saints. O Jesus, thine head, which was once dishonoured, is now lifted far above the loftiest of archangels; and, though thou once dwelt among the dead, thou shalt reign through unnumbered ages in the heaven of heavens.

Give us grace to long to see our Saviour in the heavens. May our lives furnish evidence that we are in reality journeying to heaven, and that we are heirs of an immortal inheritance beyond the skies. God forbid we should fall short of heaven! Let our hopes of celestial rest be founded on the righteousness of Christ alone; then our hope shall never make us ashamed. Suffer not our aged friends to be afraid to go down to the tomb. Give them the assured conviction that they are interested in Christ; then they shall long to depart and be with Christ, which is far better.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our advocate and Redeemer. Amen.

ISRAEL'S MIRACULOUS JOURNEY.

Newport. Nford. Green's 100th. Wareham.

- 1 WHEN Israel, freed from Pharaoh's hand,
Left the proud tyrant and his land,
The tribes with cheerful homage own
Their King, and Judah was his throne.
- 2 Across the deep their journey lay;
The deep divides to make them way:
Jordan beheld their march, and fled
With backward current to his head.
- 3 The mountains shook like frightened sheep,
Like lambs the little hillocks leap;
Not Sinai on her base could stand,
Conscious of sovereign power at hand.

Watts, Ps. 114.

JOSHUA III.

Israel crossing Jordan.

AND Joshua rose early in the morning; and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.

2 And it came to pass after three days, that the officers went through the host;

3 And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.

4 Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way heretofore.

9 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God.

10 And Joshua said, Herby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12 Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap.

14 And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,)

16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA III.—What a wonderful spectacle—the children of Israel, amounting with their followers to nearly two millions of human beings, assembled on the banks of Jordan, with no visible means by which they could cross the flowing river, and take possession of the promised Canaan! And it is an event of great solemnity and importance—the spiritual Israel of God on the verge of the Jordan of death, and about to enter upon the possession and enjoyment of the heavenly Canaan, the goodly heritage of the host of nations, and the most glorious province of the universe of God. The Israelites crossing Jordan was a miracle of Divine power and goodness; and what a miracle of grace, by which the redeemed of God are safely led through the Jordan of death to enter the many mansions of the heavenly city! Let our hopes be firmly placed on Jesus, then our passage across the stream of death will be safe, triumphant, and blest.

PRAYER.

MOST holy and gracious Lord God, though we are unworthy of the least of all thy mercies, still the streams of thy goodness unceasingly attend us, and the showers of thy providential kindness constantly descend upon us. Thy mercies are new unto us every morning. We have awoken under thy smiles, and while we might have been numbered with the dead, thou hast opened our eyes to see the light of another day.

We adore thee in the wide extension of the blessings of thy goodness over the face of the earth, and over all the habitations of men. The earth is not only full of thy glory, but the earth is full of thy mercy. Instead of making it an Acelandia, a field of blood and universal desolation, thou causest thy rain to descend, and thy sun to rise on the evil and the good, on the just and the unjust.

We supplicate for ourselves and all our relatives that grace and assistance which we respectively require. We need thy wisdom to guide us: Lord, guide us by thy wisdom, not only in the affairs of the soul, but also in those which respect our body and time. We are constantly exposed to danger from the snares of the world, the temptations of Satan, the designs of wicked men, and the corruptions of our own hearts. To thee, O Lord, our God and Father in Christ, we lift up our eyes for all the protection and defence our souls need.

Give us diligence and perseverance in duty, and thus we shall bear some resemblance to Israel and Joshua, who, notwithstanding many difficulties, at last reached the promised Canaan. May we never be alarmed at the difficulties which oppose us in our journey to the heavenly world. May we never be left to say, There is a lion in the way, I shall be slain in the streets. But may we rather say, We will go forward in the strength of God the Lord, making mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only.

Mercifully impart thy grace to our beloved offspring, that they may begin the Christian course in the golden period of their days, before their minds are entangled or oppressed by the business and the cares of life. May they and we at last meet on the other side of the Jordan of death, to behold and enjoy the glories of God and the Lamb in the celestial Canaan.

We would ever take thy word for our guide. On all occasions may we seek its counsels; then shall we participate its comforts.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the true ark of the covenant. By thee alone we can successfully and triumphantly pass the Jordan of death. In the prospect of our dissolution, we would look to thee. In the prospect of entering into the eternal world, we would look to thee. Thou hast taken away the sting of death; O deliver us from death's sting! Thou art the only way to the heavenly Canaan. To thee we look, that thou mayest graciously admit us into that heaven where we hope for ever to behold and enjoy thee. As a family we would comfort ourselves with these words: We shall ever be with the Lord.

In every trial, in every difficulty, and in the Jordan of death, may thy ministering servants be examples to thy people. O hold them up as stars in thy right hand.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb that was slain. Amen.

EFFUSION OF THE SPIRIT.

Peter's. Suffolk New. Wells. Winchester.

- 1 GREAT was the day, the joy was great,
When the divine disciples met;
Whilst on their heads the Spirit came,
And sat like tongues of cloven flame.
- 2 What gifts, what miracles he gave!
And power to kill, and power to save!
Furnished their tongues with wondrous words,
Instead of shields, and spears, and swords.
- 3 Thus armed, he sent the champions forth
From east to west, from south to north:
Go and assert your Saviour's cause;
Go, spread the mystery of his cross.

WATTS, 144, B. II.

ACTS I.

Choice of an Apostle.

AND in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the names together were about an hundred and twenty,) 16 Men and brethren, this scripture must needs have been fulfilled, which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry.

18 Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem; insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood.

20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and his bishoprick let another take.

21 Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, 22 Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection.

23 And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen.

25 That he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.

26 And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

ACTS II.

AND when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.

4 And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

6 Now when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

Reference:—1st Act 1, 11.—When our Saviour ascended to heaven his followers on earth were few in number, but when the days of millennial glory arrive, O what a multitude! Then the members of his Church will be like the stars of heaven for multitude. What a blot upon our fallen nature is the betrayal of Judas—a disciple of Jesus, a constant attendant upon his person, who often listened to the matchless expressions of wisdom and of love which fell from our Saviour's lips, who was treasurer of the little college of disciples of which our Lord was the principal, master, and head; and after all this, and in defiance of all this, betrayed his Lord with a kiss, and for thirty pieces of silver, into the hands of his enemies and murderers! O what a blot upon our fallen nature! May the remembrance of the descent of the Spirit on Pentecost encourage us to pray with holy earnestness that the influence of the Holy Ghost may descend on us.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in the name of thine holy child Jesus we draw near thy blessed throne, and we would adore thee as our Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer. Thou art the fountain whence all our blessings flow. Put us among the number of those who place their trust under the shadow of thy wings; then shall we be satisfied with the fatness of thy house, and thou shalt make us drink of the river of thy pleasures; for with thee is the fountain of life. It is in thee we live and move and have our being.

As a family and as individuals we have reason to lament and weep that we have so often followed the wicked devices and the foolish desires of our own heart, in direct opposition to thy holy will. We acknowledge that, in acting at variance with thy glory, we have acted at variance with our own interest.

Particularly impress the minds of our dear children with the solemn and salutary truth, that the wages of sin is death. O convince them that, though the pleasures of sin be sweet in the mouth, it is sweetness which produces the pains of eternal woe.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the alarming consequences of the sin and apostacy of Judas. May we learn from his wretchedness, from those agonies of mind which led him to the act of self-murder, and from the place of untold sorrow to which he is gone, to see sin in its true light, and to flee from it as the very greatest enemy which can endanger the safety of the souls of men. Lord, preserve us from the sin of backsliding. Deeply convince us of the greatness and the danger of this sin. Open our eyes to see that backsliding leads to apostacy, and apostacy to hell. O Jesus, may we never deny thee, may we never betray thee. Make us faithful unto death; then shall we receive a crown of life. Teach us to endure unto the end; then shall we be saved.

We desire, O Lord, to lament over the sin of professors, and particularly over the sins of the professed ministers of Christ. Graciously hold up the goings of all who profess to love thee, and especially the goings of those who labour as ministers in thy vineyard. Hold them as stars in thy right hand. We adore thy sovereignty in removing from their office unworthy, hypocritical ministers; and we rejoice that thou dost raise up faithful ambassadors to fill their place, in answer to the fervent prayers of thy believing servants. Glory to thy name, that thou hast honoured prayer; by making it the powerful mean of the prosperity of thy Church, and the blessed harbinger of the pouring down of the influence of the Holy Spirit. Lord, give to us and our congregation a spirit of grace and supplication.

Look upon the sins we have committed this day, and forgive them; look upon the duties of the day, and bless them; look upon the events of the day, and sanctify them. Be to us our protecting God this night. May all of us look beyond the night of human life, and exercise good hope through Christ that we shall enjoy a day of everlasting joy in heaven.

Hear us, for Jesus' sake, our glorious and exalted High Priest. Amen.

How various and how new
 Are thy compassions, Lord!
 Each morning shall thy mercies shew,—
 Each night thy truth record.
 Thy goodness, like the sun,
 Dawned on our early days,
 Ere infant reason had begun
 To form our lips to praise.
 Each object we beheld
 Gave pleasure to our eyes;
 And nature all our senses held
 In bands of sweet surprise.

JOSHUA IV.

Remembrance of Mercy.

AND it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over Jordan, that the Lord spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man,

3 And command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night.

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the Lord your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

6 That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the Lord; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

9 And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day.

10 For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the Lord commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people hastened and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the Lord passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

15 And the Lord spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command the priests that bare the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all his banks, as they did before.

20 And those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?

22 Then ye shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over the Jordan on dry land.

23 For the Lord your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the Lord your God did to the Red Sea, which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over:

24 That all the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord, that it is mighty; that ye might fear the Lord your God for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA IV.—Who can conceive the joy which fills the hearts of ransomed souls, when they have crossed the Jordan of death, when they have clean passed over, and have safely reached their heavenly home! Great joy shone in the countenances of the Israelites, when, for the first time, they placed their feet on the promised land. But when believers reach the promised heaven, they shine brighter than the sparkling stars; they shine more gloriously than the sun in his meridian splendour. Animating were Israel's songs when they found themselves safe in Canaan, after a journey of forty long years in a waste howling wilderness. Oh! how sweet the songs of the saints of God, when they reach the paradise of the blest, after their pilgrimage in the vale of tears; and when their conflicts, and sorrows, and sufferings, have come to an eternal close.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY exalted Lord God, our God and Father in Christ, thy glorious name is exalted above all blessing and praise. In thy great goodness thou hast given us refreshing sleep upon our beds, and thou hast raised us up in the enjoyment of health and in the exercise of reason. For these mercies we praise thee. May the bodily strength we enjoy, may our health, and may our reason, be all employed this day as valuable talents in thy service. Now we draw near thy throne with the sacrifice of prayer and praise. We present our bodies before thee. After the dissolution of the grave, may they rise on the morning of the resurrection arrayed in the comely garments of immortality.

O enable us at this time to lift up our hands and our soul in earnest and believing prayers, through the atoning sacrifice which our great High-Priest presented upon the altar of the divine nature.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the goodness thou didst manifest to thy church and people in ancient times. As they were called to remember their passage through Jordan's stream by erecting a memorial of twelve stones, may we be enabled to set up in our hearts memorials of God's mercies. Thou hast been kind to us as individuals and as a family; and it becometh us to sing of mercy. Thou hast delivered us from many sorrows, and from many calamities, which threatened our existence; and it becometh us to sing of mercy. While other families have been visited with peculiar judgments, we have been comforted and enriched by peculiar mercies; and it becometh us to sing of mercy. Lord, save our precious souls; O save them from Satan, the devouring lion; save them from the guilt, the love, the reign, and the alarming consequences of sin; then shall we sing of mercy for ever, and join the church triumphant in songs of loudest praise.

When we remember, O Jesus, the effect produced on the waters of Jordan by the ark of the covenant on the shoulders of the priests, may this wonderful fact lead our thoughts to the contemplation of the astonishing effect produced on the death of thy people by thine atonement.

Suffer not, O Lord, the liveliness and thoughtlessness of youth to prevent our dearly beloved children meditating with seriousness on the event of death. Now may they seek the love and the friendship of Jesus, whose presence in the Jordan of death will comfort their hearts with the hopes of immortality.

Let not our aged friends be afraid to die. May they long to enter the Jordan of death, believing that beyond the Jordan of death there is a paradise of unspeakable beauty, where grows the tree of life, bearing the richest fruits, and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations.

O mercifully hear our morning prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GIFT OF THE SPIRIT.

Duke Street. Newport. Derby. Redemption.

- 1 LORD, when thou didst ascend on high,
Ten thousand angels filled the sky;
Those heavenly guards around thee wait,
Like chariots that attend thy state.
- 2 Not Sinai's mountain could appear
More glorious when the Lord was there;
While he pronounced his dreadful law,
And struck the chosen tribes with awe.
- 3 How bright the triumph none can tell,
When the rebellious powers of hell,
That thousand souls had captive made,
Were all in chains like captives led.

WATTS, Ps. 68, p. 11.

ACTS II.

Day of Pentecost.

AND they were all amazed and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans?
8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherewith we were born?

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking said, These men are full of new wine.

14 But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day.

16 But this is that which is spoken by the prophet Joel;

17 And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams:

18 And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy:

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:

20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come:

21 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24 Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved:

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope:

27 Because thou wilt not leave my humanity in the grave, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS II.—Immediately after our Saviour's ascension to heaven, was that divine and blessed promise fulfilled, "Thou hast ascended up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men, even for the rebellious." The gift of tongues upon the day of Pentecost was a wonderful miraculous display of Christ's mercy and power, and at the same time delightfully intimated that the glorious Gospel of salvation should in future days be proclaimed in every language and in every land. Even now, the numerous tongues in which the Gospel is preached, and the numerous languages into which the Bible, the word of salvation, is translated, furnish a most hopeful and encouraging intimation that the time is fast approaching when all nations, in their own language, shall hear of the salvation of our God. Let each one of us earnestly plead for the descent of the Spirit on our persons, families, and churches.

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Lord God, the only creator and preserver of all things, we desire, in the exercise of a lively faith, and in the name of Jesus, to draw near thy mercy-seat. We rejoice that thou art our merciful Father, that thou knowest our wants, and feelest for our necessities. We praise thee, O Jesus, that thou hast said, for the encouragement of all thy people, Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.

Give us thy gracious aid, Holy Spirit, while at this time we engage in the solemn exercise of prayer. O Lord, fulfil in our experience that promise, I will pour out my spirit upon you.

We offer up our thanks for the mercies we have this day received, and for the divine goodness which has unceasingly attended us during the whole of the past week. By day and by night we have enjoyed thy fatherly care; thou hast supplied our wants, and borne with our offences. Alas, because of the sins we have committed, and the guilt we have contracted! Alas, because of the careless or irregular manner we have engaged in the various ordinances of thy gracious appointment! Where can we look for pardon but to thee? With shame and confusion we confess our sinfulness; yet with earnestness and humility we would supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood.

We pray that we may be enabled at this time to call to our grateful remembrance the early testimonies which our Saviour gave of the efficacy of his atonement after his ascension to heaven. By thy death, O Jesus, thou didst purchase blessing for men; and, after thine ascension, thou didst most wonderfully and abundantly bestow gifts on men, even the rebellious, that the Lord our God should dwell among them. We thank thee for the literal fulfilment of that promise, I will pour out my Spirit on all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; and on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy. O let the following promise receive an extensive and blessed fulfilment on the approaching Sabbath: And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

Teach our children and domestics to call on the name of the Lord. May they love and practise secret prayer, and call on the name of the Lord for mercy. May we live to see them believers in Jesus, and possessors of the jewel of great price.

O bless all the churches on thy day with a remarkable effusion of thy divine spirit. Let the Spirit rest upon the understanding, the heart, and the lips of all thy ministers; then a holy, heavenly unction will attend their labours. Let there be an abundant communication of thy Spirit to all the congregations; then multitudes shall be witnesses of the holy efficacy of his divine power. As it is summer in the season, may a spiritual summer pervade all our churches; then shall the flowers of grace bloom with spiritual glory and fragrance.

Particularly bless thy servant who labours among us in holy things. When he appears in thy name, may he preach by thy power.

We commend ourselves and friends to thy care this night and for ever.

Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us, and all the household of faith, for ever and ever. Amen.

DELIVERANCE FROM PERSECUTION.

New Windsor. Highbury College. Tunbridge. Grove House. c. 11.

- 1 ARE all the foes of Zion fools,
Who thus devour her saints?
Do they not know her Saviour's rule,
And pity her complaints?
- 2 They shall be seized with sad surprise;
For God's revenging arm
Scatters the bones of them that rise
To do his children harm.
- 3 In vain the sons of Satan boast
Of armies in array;
When God hath first despised their host,
They fall an easy prey.

Watts, Ps. 53.

PSALM LII.

Man's Depravity.

WHY boastest thou thyself in mischief, O mighty man? the goodness of God endureth continually.

2 Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs: like a sharp razor, working deceitfully.

3 Thou lovest evil more than good; and lying rather than to speak righteousness. Selah.

4 Thou lovest all devouring words, O thou deceitful tongue.

5 God shall likewise destroy thee for ever, he shall take thee away, and pluck thee out of thy dwelling place, and root thee out of the land of the living. Selah.

6 The righteous also shall see, and fear, and shall laugh at him:

7 Lo, this is the man that made not God his strength: but trusted in the abundance of his riches, and strengthened himself in his wickedness.

8 But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God: I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever.

9 I will praise thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait upon thy name; for it is good before thy saints.

PSALM LIII.

Folly of Atheism.

THE fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominable iniquity: there is none that doeth good.

2 God looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek God.

3 Every one of them is gone back: they are altogether become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

4 Have the workers of iniquity no knowledge? who eat up my people as they eat bread: they have not called upon God.

5 There were they in great fear, where no fear was: for God hath scattered the bones of him that encampeth against thee: thou hast put them to shame, because God hath despised them.

6 Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion! when God bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LII., LIII.—What an immense evil is the wickedness of man, when connected with great power; but what a blessed, and effectual, and glorious antidote is God's goodness to this evil. While the gift of speech is the characteristic honour of our race, sin has rendered it one of the greatest curses and injuries to our species. A sanctified tongue is man's glory; but an unsanctified tongue in the service of malignity and falsehood man's greatest disgrace. Many have accomplished by their tongue the temporal ruin of the objects of their enmity; but they have not failed to treasure up for themselves an accumulation of Divine wrath, against the day of wrath. What a contrast! a malicious man doomed to endless woe, and a merciful man destined for eternal bliss! To deny the being of a God, the government of Providence, and the immortality of the soul, is a combination of the perfection of folly with the perfection of wickedness. Happy are we, if we can say in faith, "We know that our Redeemer liveth."

PRAYER.

WHAT are we, O Lord, that we are allowed to present ourselves before thee, a holy and a righteous God? Thou art excellent in power, and in judgment, and in plenty of justice. While the government of the greater number of earthly kings has been marked by injustice, cruelty, and blood, justice and judgment are the ornament of thy crown, and mercy adorns the sceptre thou dost sway. Just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints.

Glory to thy name that we are permitted, on the morning of another day, and especially on the morning of another Sabbath-day, to approach the throne of our God, and to supplicate for ourselves and for others the invaluable blessings of thy salvation. We thank thee, O Lord, for the Sabbath, and for all the ordinances and institutions which render this blessed day a day so deservedly precious in the estimation of all thy children. In the near prospect of assembling with thy people, in common with all the thousands of Israel, may each one composing this our family be enabled thus to sing, I was glad when it was said unto me, Let us go up unto the house of the Lord our God.

In every part of the globe may thy Church, O Immanuel, be blessed with great and increasing prosperity. Let Satan's kingdom fall like lightning from heaven; and may they who are now his faithful followers forsake his disgraceful standard, and become the loyal subjects of the Prince of peace. We pray for every minister, and for every believer in Christ, in every part of the earth, and of every name and denomination. Great grace be on them all. We would affectionately pray for them all, as belonging to the same family, as redeemed by the same Saviour, and as journeying to the same heaven.

Smile on all our universities and schools. Bless the schools of the young prophets, the future instructors of thy Church. O bless the schools of the poor. There, may they seek and find the pearl of inestimable worth.

Take pity on the Jews, and may they fall prostrate at Jesus' feet, and acknowledge him as the true Messiah.

Crown our rulers with a rich diadem of Divine grace, and may they fear the Saviour of men, and the future Judge of the world.

May great success attend the preaching of the Gospel. In the churches in general, and in the congregation with which we are connected in particular, may the vile corruptions of the hearts of men fall before the powerful influence of the glorious Gospel. May the haughtiness and pride and malice of men be cast down, and may humility, mercy, and love take possession of the soul and reign supreme.

May our dear children know, believe, feel, and practise the joyful sound. Grant that our servants may know and believe the Gospel to their eternal salvation.

May the aged be strengthened by its promises while they attend thy courts; and may the afflicted and the aged who are unable to assemble publicly with thy people enjoy in their private abodes the exhilarating foretastes of heaven. May they sit down under the shadow of Christ, the tree of life, and may his fruit be sweet to their taste. And may they rejoice in the prospect of being introduced into the banqueting house above, where they shall for ever feast on the love of God. Hear us, for Jesus' sake, our only Saviour. Amen.

- 1 WHY should the children of a King
Go mourning all their days!
Great Comforter, descend, and bring
Some tokens of thy grace.
- 2 Dost thou not dwell in all the saints,
And seal the heirs of heaven?
When wilt thou banish my complaints,
And show my sins forgiven?
- 3 Assure my conscience of her part

And bear thy witness with my heart,
That I am born of God.

WATTS, 144, B. I.

PSALM LIV.

Saints' Confidence in God.

SAVE me, O God, by thy name, and judge me by thy strength.

2 Hear my prayer, O God; give ear to the words of my mouth.

3 For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul: they have not set God before them. Selah.

4 Behold, God is mine helper: the Lord is with them that uphold my soul.

5 He shall reward evil unto mine enemies: cut them off in thy truth.

6 I will freely sacrifice unto thee: I will praise thy name, O Lord; for it is good.

7 For he hath delivered me out of all trouble: and mine eye hath seen his desire upon mine enemies.

PSALM LV.

David's Afflictions.

GIVE ear to my prayer, O God, and hide not thyself from my supplication.

2 Attend unto me, and hear me: I mourn in my complaint, and make a noise;

3 Because of the voice of the enemy, because of the oppression of the wicked: for they cast iniquity upon me, and in wrath they hate me.

4 My heart is sore pained within me: and the terrors of death are fallen upon me.

5 Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and horror hath overwhelmed me.

6 And I said, Oh that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest.

7 Lo, then would I wander far off, and remain in the wilderness. Selah.

8 I would hasten my escape from the windy storm and tempest.

9 Destroy, O Lord, and divide their tongues: for I have seen violence and strife in the city.

10 Day and night they go about it upon the walls thereof: mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it.

11 Wickedness is in the midst thereof: deceit and guile depart not from her streets.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LIV., LV.—Is God's name the salvation of his people? Then, whom he justifies, none shall be able to condemn. Sanctified afflictions upon the mouth of prayer, and stimulate the believing soul to earnestness in prayer. When the saints compare their enemies who are against them, with their redeeming God and Saviour who is for them, their hearts are filled with confidence, and they exclaim, in the language of holy and triumphant defiance, "Who can separate us from the love of Christ?" What a wonderful deliverance awaits the believer at death! Then, however many his afflictions, the Lord delivereth him out of them all. In every affliction prayer is the solace and the comfort of the believer's heart; in this ordinance, and in this exercise he pours his very soul into his Saviour's bosom, and he enjoys that sweet fellowship which is the foretaste of heaven, where no cloud of sorrow ever obscures the celestial sky, and where he shall behold his Saviour face to face. In that peaceful world he shall be eternally beyond the reach of all his foes, and be for ever blessed with the beatific vision of God and the Lamb.

PRAYER.

IN thy great mercy, O Lord, we have been permitted to engage in the ordinances of thy gracious appointment; and we adore and bless thee that we are again permitted to encompass thy holy altar, before we retire to rest. In all our religious exercises give us the sincerity of unfeigned devotion. Thou art the searcher of the heart, and nothing but sincerity of soul can be acceptable unto thee; the mere service of the lips can avail nothing. Deliver us from the daring presumption of only giving thee bodily service. O teach us to worship thee in spirit and in truth.

We acknowledge, O Lord, the imperfect and sinful manner in which we have observed the ordinances of religion. Our hearts have been comparatively cold and languid, while they should have been warmed with the fire of sacred love. Graciously pardon the coldness of our hearts, and let the sins connected with our holy things be washed away by the merit of our Saviour's blood. We seek forgiveness through the atonement and mediation of thy well-beloved Son. O enter not into judgment with thy servants; but behold, O God, our shield, and look upon us in the face of thine anointed.

We would present the sacrifice of thanksgiving. Praise to thy name, that the trumpet of the Gospel has been sounded this day in the ears of thousands. We thank thee for the assistance which has been given to thy ministers in preaching, and to thy people in hearing, the everlasting Gospel. We thank thee for those gracious smiles manifested to the congregation with which we are connected. We thank thee for the message our beloved minister was enabled to deliver, and for any measure of saving efficacy which attended his labours. Abundantly bless all the means which have been employed for extending the boundaries of the Mediator's empire, and for rescuing Satan's captives from their galling bondage.

Deliver us, O Lord, from our spiritual enemies. Save us, O God, by thy name. Deliver us out of all our troubles, and may we trample on the neck of all our spiritual foes.

Preserve our dear children from the most dangerous snares of wicked company, who never set God before them. May they love the wise, and walk with them; may they hate the sins of the ungodly, and avoid the path of destroyers. May our servants ever be preserved from the snares of the world, and be adorned with the beauties of holiness.

Lord, have mercy on the afflicted who have been unable to wait on thee in thy public courts. Be unto them their constant helper, and uphold their soul.

We earnestly pray that our hearts may be weaned from the world; and that our affections, desires, and hopes may constantly ascend to the heavenly state. We pray that each one of us may say, in the language of the Psalmist, O that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest. I would hasten my escape from the stormy wind and tempest.

These our evening prayers we present before thee. Give ear to our prayer, O God; and hide not thyself from our supplication. With thy servant, may we ever resolve to praise thee. Let each one say, I will freely sacrifice unto thee; I will praise thy name, O Lord; for it is good.

Graciously protect us this night, and hear our prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 JESUS! O word divinely sweet!
How charming is the sound!
What joyful news! what heavenly sense
In that dear name is found!
- 2 Our souls, all guilty and condemned,
In hopeless fetters lay;
Our souls, with numerous sins depraved,
To death and hell a prey.
- 3 Jesus, to purge away this guilt,
A willing victim fell;
And on his cross triumphant broke
The bands of death and hell.

JOSHUA V.

Circumcision and the Passover.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the sea, heard that the Lord had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 At that time the Lord said unto Joshua, Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.

3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at the hill of the foreskins.

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised: but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcised.

6 For the children of Israel walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the Lord: unto whom the Lord swore that he would not shew them the land, which the Lord swore unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

7 And their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

8 And it came to pass, when they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp, till they were whole.

9 And the Lord said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal unto this day.

13 And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And he said, Nay; but as captain of the host of the Lord am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua, Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

REMARKS UPON JOSHUA V.—How vain it is in the enemies of the Church of Christ to oppose and withstand God! It is the interest, the safety, and the honour of Christ's enemies to lay aside the weapons of their enmity and hostility, and to swear allegiance to his government and laws. Circumcision was an emblem of purity: O may our hearts be circumcised by the power of the Holy Ghost to love our God and Saviour with all our hearts! The mortifying of the corruptions may be accompanied with suffering; but the holy fruits of mortification are more delicious and refreshing than the most luxuriant clusters that were ever furnished by the vine. Is the life of the believer a pilgrimage? Blessed prospect! the descent below shall be followed by the paradise above.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the God of the spirits of all flesh. In no respect art thou dependent upon any creature, while all creatures are dependent on thee. All creatures were formed for thy glory, and thou shalt derive a revenue of glory from them all; even from those which have risen up in rebellion against thee, and trampled under their feet thy righteous laws. Thou makest the very wrath of men to praise thee, and the remainder of their wrath thou dost restrain by the arm of thine omnipotence.

We thank thee, our Father and our God, for the mercies of the past night, and for the testimonies of thy kindness we enjoyed on the past Sabbath. Teach us, O Lord, more highly to estimate thy day and thy house and thine ordinances. We are now, in thy gracious providence, entering on another week; may we show that our heart and life are under the influence of the Gospel of thy Son. May this influence appear in all our duties and engagements, whether they respect the soul or the body, time or eternity.

We desire, O Lord, to rejoice in thee as our almighty friend. Give us that confidence in thy friendship and love which will bear us up amid all the afflictions of this journeying state, and will make us smile at all the purposes and efforts of our enemies.

Suffer none of our family to remain in a state of enmity to thee. Convince them that, if they die without an interest in thy favour and the righteousness of thy Son, when they come to the brink of eternity, then shall their heart melt for fear, neither shall there be spirit in them any more. Earnestly we would supplicate thee our God in behalf of our graceless relatives, who are dead in trespasses and sins. Suffer them no longer to remain in the congregation of the dead. Deliver them from the dreadful delusion of devoting all their time, attention, and thought, to the body, which must soon die, while they discover no concern for the soul, which shall live for ever. God forbid that any of this family should be found on the left hand of the Judge at the last day. We are assembled before the throne of grace on earth; O may we meet before the throne of glory in heaven! Merely forbid that any now kneeling before thee should perish amid the flames of Tophet, and, like the rich man in the parable, see, from the place of their torment, the happiness of the blest in heaven.

Have mercy on our children, and circumcise their hearts to love thee. Take away the pollution of their nature, and give them the beauties of holiness, which will last and flourish when the loveliness of youth has fled for ever.

Lord, enable us diligently to use and improve the means of grace. As the manna ceased when Israel came to Jordan, may we most seriously remember that all the means of grace shall cease for ever, when we come to the Jordan of death. Deeply impress on our minds this solemn truth: Life is the time to serve the Lord—the time, the only time, to ensure the great reward; and, while the lamp of our mortal life holds out to burn, the chief of sinners may return.

Blessed Jesus, we acknowledge thee as the captain of the Lord's host. Give us grace to receive, follow, and obey thee as the captain of our salvation.

Hear these our imperfect prayers, only for Jesus' sake, our prophet, priest, and king. Amen.

PRaise FOR RENEWING GRACE.

L. M.

- 1 TO God, my Saviour and my King,
Fain would my soul her tribute bring;
Join me, ye saints, in songs of praise,
For ye have known and felt his grace.
- 2 Wretched and helpless once I lay,
Just breathing all my life away:
He saw me weltering in my blood,
And felt the pity of a God.
- 3 With speed he flow to my relief,
Bound up my wounds, and soothed my grief;
Poured joys divine into my heart,
And bade each anxious fear depart.

ACTS II.

Day of Pentecost.

MEN and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day.

30 Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne;

31 He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his humanity was not left in the grave, neither his flesh did see corruption.

32 This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35 Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

37 Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39 For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.

41 Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.

44 And all that believed were together, and had all things common;

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, 47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS II.—Very glorious was David's throne, extensive his power, dreadful his battles, and most wonderful his victories. In these he was typical of Jesus. But how infinitely superior in all these is Jesus, the antitype, beyond David, the type! How insignificant are the enemies of Christ in themselves, and in their power, when compared with him in his omnipotence, and in his victories! They are only as ashes beneath the soles of his feet. They who nailed Jesus to the cross murdered him without a single pang of pity or remorse. Their hearts were colder than ice, and harder than the adamant rock. How wonderful—when they were brought under the faithful ministry of the Word, as proclaimed by the Apostle, and accompanied by the power of the Spirit—their hardened insensibility gave way to feelings of the most pungent penitence and sorrow! What was their amazement, when they found they were saved by the very blood their own hands had shed!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the uncreated, the self-existent Jehovah. From thy great self thy being springs: thou art thine own original, made up of uncreated things, and self-sufficiency bears them all.

We desire with humility to lift up our eyes to thee, Holy Spirit, for that assistance which our souls need in approaching the throne of grace. May that promise be fulfilled in our experience, I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and I will make known my words unto you. May we therefore pray with the spirit, and in our songs of praise may we sing with the spirit.

We thank thee, God of providence and grace, for all the mercies which have rendered our day profitable and pleasant. We bless thee for the light of day, which is necessary for our usual employment; and we thank thee for the darkness and the silence of night, which is suitable for our sleep and repose.

What thou hast seen amiss in us this day we humbly pray thou mayest graciously forgive. We seek thy pity and we seek thy forgiveness. Favour us with a peaceful and refreshing night. We rejoice that the night and the day, the light and the darkness, are both alike unto thee. If, in thy great goodness, we are permitted to enter on another day, may our lives be regulated as the lives of those who are washed and sanctified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the spirit of our God.

May the dew of the Spirit's influences attend the blessed word we have now read. O that the Holy Ghost, of whom we have read such wonders, may graciously visit us as a family, and dwell among us, that we may have the satisfying evidence that we are born of God!

We rejoice in the literal and ample accomplishment of those prophecies which respected the resurrection of Christ. We praise thee that the testimony of those who witnessed the resurrection of Christ is preserved; and that we have these words on record, This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

We adore thee, blessed Saviour, as infinitely exalted above the thrones of the principalities and powers in the heavenly places. May the remembrance of thy crucifixion fill our hearts with love, gratitude, and praise.

O Lord our God, give us repentance, and may we be baptized with the Holy Ghost, in the name of Jesus, for the remission of sins.

We earnestly pray that we and our children and domestics may receive the Holy Ghost; and may the promise which is made unto us and them be mercifully accomplished.

Lord, increase the number of thy people. Let there be added daily unto the Church such as shall be saved. We beseech thee, let brotherly love prevail. May every root of bitterness be destroyed, and may harmony and love prevail among thy professing people more extensively than at any past period of the history of the Church.

Graciously hear our prayers, and accept our services, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy of our adoration and praise. Amen

THE SUN COMMANDED TO STAND STILL.

DELIVERANCE FROM GOD ALONE.
Penitenti. Geneva. Warham. Finsbury. L. M.

- 1 LORD! how shall wretched sinners dare
 Look up to thy Divine abode?
 Or offer their imperfect prayer
 Before a just and holy God?
- 2 Bright terrors guard thy awful seat,
 And dazzling glories veil thy face;
 Yet mercy calls us to thy feet,
 Thy throne is still a throne of grace.
- 3 O may our souls thy grace adore,
 May Jesus plead our humble claim,
 While thy protection we implore,
 In this prevailing, glorious name.

JOSHUA X.

The Sun and Moon stand still.

NOW it came to pass, when Adoni-zedec king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; as he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to Ai and her king; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them;

2 That they feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty.

3 Wherefore Adoni-zedec king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying,

4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.

7 So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 ¶ And the Lord said unto Joshua, Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night.

10 And the Lord discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Beth-horon, and smote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah.

11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, that the Lord cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

12 ¶ Then spake Joshua to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon.

13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. Is not this written in the book of Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

14 And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the Lord fought for Israel.

15 ¶ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA X.—What a dreadful inclosure, to be hommed in on all sides by God's judgments. It is a barrier through which no enemy can break: it is a wall which no enemy can scale. May it be our privilege to be surrounded by the barrier of God's mercy, to be encompassed with the wall of salvation, that mighty bulwark, against which the contending powers of hell shall never be able to prevail. Dreadful was the doom of the idolatrous Amorites. They perished under the heavy judgments of Jehovah. Through Jesus may we be reconciled to God; then we shall escape deserved wrath, and for ever enjoy unmerited mercy.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as our delivering God. But in an especial manner, we adore thee, O Jesus, as our deliverer from the curse of a broken law, our deliverer from Satan, from sin, from the world, from death's sting, and from the miseries of hell. We rejoice that in thee is accomplished that promise, There shall come out of Zion the deliverer.

We bless thee, O Lord, for another opportunity of presenting ourselves before thee in domestic worship. We thank thee that thy gracious providence surrounded our dwelling and encompassed our bed; and that we are now permitted to lift up our eyes to thee in adoration, supplication, and praise.

We seek wisdom from our God, which is profitable to direct us in our duties, both temporal and spiritual. In our ordinary business may we be prevented from injuring ourselves by indolence or covetousness; and may we be preserved from the chicanery or dishonesty of others. But, above all, assist us in our spiritual engagements. May we hunger and thirst after righteousness, and be disposed at all times, like little children, to sit and learn at Jesus' feet. Strengthen us, O Lord, and uphold us with the right hand of thy righteousness, that we may not only be preserved from falling, but be constantly improving in holiness and every grace.

Give our dear children and domestics a love to spiritual duties and sacred ordinances. Now may they acquire an habitual practice in religious observances that will attend them to their grave.

Bless to us what we have now read of the miraculous extension of the day, and may we ever feel thankful that the power of the Almighty is always sufficient for the welfare of his people. May we be duly impressed with thankfulness that the God of Joshua is our God, and that through his mercy we shall finally enter upon a day which shall be from everlasting to everlasting.

We praise thee that a preached Gospel is honoured as the effectual means of bringing down proud and lofty walls of high imaginations, us and our traditions, and long-established laws of iniquity. May all the corruptions of our hearts, and all the errors in our lives, fall down before the Word of God, attended by the irresistible power of the Holy Ghost. We adore thee, O Lord, that by means so humble, so weak, and so unlikely, as the preaching of the Gospel by man, thou hast accomplished such wonderful and blessed revolutions on the face of the earth. Lord, hasten that glorious day when Jesus shall reign over all the nations of the earth; and when the light of his salvation shall shine wherever the natural sun pours down his light.

Lord, give us grace to persevere in pursuing our Christian course, and in contending with our spiritual foes; then we shall conquer all our enemies, and at last reach our heavenly home.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S GRACE.

Foundling. Job. Lenton. Rippon's 188. L. M.

- 1 LET me but hear my Saviour say,
Strength shall be equal to thy day;
Thou I rejoice in deep distress,
Leaning on all-sufficient grace.
- 2 I glory in infirmity,
That Christ's own power may rest on me;
When I am weak, thou art I strong,
Grace is my shield, and Christ my song.
- 3 I can do all things, or can bear
All sufferings, if my Lord be there;
Sweet pleasures mingle with the pains,
While his left hand my head sustains.
- 4 But if the Lord be once withdrawn,
And we attempt the work alone,
When new temptations spring and rise,
We find how great our weakness is.

WATTS, 18, B. I.

ACTS III.

Peter and John in the Temple.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.

2 And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple:

3 Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength.

8 And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping, and praising God:

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God.

10 And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

12 And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go.

14 But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you;

15 And killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.

18 But those things, which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS III.—The spirit of grace and supplication is the genuine evidence of the existence of spiritual life in the soul. Like the Apostles, may we delight to frequent God's sanctuary, and look upon the services of God's house as a foretaste of the joys of heaven. Happy the state and frame of the minds of those who can say, "Our soul thirsteth for God, for the living God. When shall we appear before God in Zion?" After our Lord ascended up on high, he gave ample proof that his Divinity was graciously present with his Church and Apostles on earth, while his humanity was in heaven, there remaining until the restitution of all things. See the miracles of power performed on the bodies, and the miracles of grace performed on the souls of men!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob; and thou art the God of our fathers, who hast glorified thy Son Jesus. We adore thee in the glory thou gavest to thy Son, when thrice thou didst proclaim from heaven, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. We adore thee in the glory thou gavest thy Son, in raising him from the dead by an act of thy justice, thy truth, and thy power. We adore thee in the glory thou gavest thy Son, when he ascended up on high, and when he received from thy hand, amid the acclamations of angels and saints, the mediatorial crown he now wears. And we adore thee in all the glory thou hast since given to thy well-beloved Son, by the pouring out of the Holy Ghost, and the effectual preaching of the blessed Gospel, by which multitudes of thousands have become the subjects of Immanuel's kingdom.

We adore thee, O Lord, as a prayer-hearing God. Thou hast graciously appointed prayer as a duty and a privilege. We would honour thee, our God, by obeying the duty and embracing the privilege. As the devout Jews were regular in presenting their prayers in the temple, may we be regular and sincere in presenting our supplications before thy throne. May we acquire that regularity in our secret prayers, our domestic worship, and our public observances, which will attend us to the close of life.

We adore thee, O Jesus, in the miracle performed by thy power on the lame man who sat begging at the Beautiful gate of the temple. Thy power, O Saviour, and thy mercy, are still the same. Look with pity on such of us, and on such of our congregation, as have appeared regularly in thy temple, and yet have not moved one step in the journey to heaven. Fulfil in their experience that promise, Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing.

Give to our dear children and servants grace diligently and steadfastly to attend the ministrations of thy servants, and from their lips to hear the Word of life; then, by thy blessing, they shall receive life and strength, and ever manifest themselves living members of the body of Christ.

Have mercy on aged saints who are finding their natural strength beginning to decay. May their spiritual strength be daily renewed; may they run and not be weary, may they walk and not faint.

Make all of us thankful for the mercies we have received from thy gracious hand. We thank thee, O Lord, for temporal mercies; for giving us, not only the necessaries, but many of the comforts of life. Above all, we praise thee for our spiritual blessings, and for Jesus, the chief of all thy blessings. Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift!

We thank thee for the mercies of the day. May we be preserved this night from all evil, and raised from our beds on the following day to serve and honour thee. We seek a gracious answer, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed the kingdom, the power, and the glory, now and for ever. Amen.

JOSHUA XXIII.

Joshua's Exhortation before his Death.

AND it came to pass a long time after that the Lord had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua waxed old and stricken in age.

2 And Joshua called for all Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age:

3 And ye have seen all that the Lord your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for the Lord your God is he that hath fought for you.

4 Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea westward.

5 And the Lord your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, as the Lord your God hath promised unto you.

6 Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, that ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left;

7 That ye come not among these nations, these that remain among you; neither make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them:

8 But cleave unto the Lord your God, as ye have done unto this day.

9 For the Lord hath driven out from before you great nations and strong: but as for you, no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the Lord your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

11 Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the Lord your God.

12 Else if ye do in any wise go back, and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them, and they to you:

13 Know for a certainty that the Lord your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you; but they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.

14 And, behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth: and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the Lord your God promised you; so shall the Lord bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOSHUA XXIII.—That is a lovely old age, and a prerogative of glory, which is preceded by a life of unfeigned piety, and accompanied with great usefulness to the Church of God. Such was the life of Joshua. How affectionately, and suitably, he counselled the elders and chief men of Israel, immediately before his death, and when about to enter his heavenly home, and receive his great and gracious reward. In this he manifested great zeal for the glory of God, and great concern for the prosperity of Zion. On this solemn and interesting occasion, the great captain of Israel reminds us of Jesus counselling his disciples, with the greatest tenderness and wisdom, before he ascended from Olivet to take possession of his heavenly kingdom. Joshua, before he died, gave a noble testimony to the faithfulness of God in the rich fulfilment of all those great and precious promises which have animated and encouraged the hearts of believers in their pilgrimage through this vale of tears to their heavenly home.

PRAYER.

MOST glorious Jehovah, we adore thee as the all-seeing God. Teach us by thy spirit to take comfort from the truth of thine omniscience. May we rejoice that thou knowest our wants. Hast thou not said, O Jesus, for our consolation, Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him? Mercifully supply all our wants out of thy fulness, O Lord. We praise thee, divine Saviour, that thou hast taught the doctrine of thy Father's omniscience, and employed it as an encouragement to thy people to beware of unnecessary anxiety. In thy mercy thou hast said, Take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. We bless thee that, every day of our lives, we have experienced the truth of these Divine sayings, and that not one word has failed of all that God has spoken to us.

We desire with thankful hearts to present the sacrifice of our gratitude, that thou hast guarded and refreshed us during the past night, and that thou hast brought us in safety to the beginning of another day. May thy gracious and paternal hand, which defended us when asleep, and which raised us from our bed, defend us from the temptations and dangers of this day, preserve us from falling, and lead us in the diligent discharge of all its duties. Bless to us, O Lord, the interesting account we have read of the dying sayings of Joshua, the leader of thy people Israel. As Israel obtained rest from all their enemies, may we be preserved from all our enemies, and particularly from our greatest enemies—the corruptions of our own heart. When we have finished the journey of human life, may we obtain rest from all our enemies, in heaven.

As thou, most gracious God, didst comfort Joshua, when he was old and well-stricken in years, may all our aged friends enjoy the succours of thy grace in the evening of their days. May they look by faith on Christ, the conqueror of death; then they shall see death to be an enemy unstinged, and therefore stripped of all his terrors.

Have mercy on our children; and as thou gavest to the children of Israel an inheritance in the earthly Canaan, O give to them and our domestics a blessed inheritance in the Canaan which is beyond the stars.

Give all of us grace to follow the salutary counsel which Joshua gave to Israel, and take heed unto ourselves, that we love the Lord our God. Teach us to take heed to thee, O Lord, in thy word, and in thy providence. Above all, let a superlative love to thee, the Lord, our God and Father in Christ, be formed in our hearts. Preserve us, and particularly the rising race, from the alluring and corrupted example of the wicked, lest they should be scourges in our sides, and thorns in our eyes.

Let our prayers come up before thee with acceptance, through the merit and intercession of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Watts, Ps. 2.

ACTS IV.

Boldness of Peter and John.

NOW when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.

14 And beholding the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.

15 But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, they conferred among themselves, 16 Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might punish them, because of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them.

24 And when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is:

25 Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together, 28 For to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done.

29 And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word, 30 By stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS IV.—It is of little consequence to be considered illiterate or vulgar by carnal men, if we are Christ's scholars, and taught by his Spirit; for what is the culture of the schools, and what are the embellishments of human literature, when compared with the living, spiritual, and instructing ornaments of grace? By our conversation and lives, may it be our privilege and honour to manifest to all around us that we are Christ's, that Christ is ours, that we are clothed with the garments of his salvation, and arrayed in the robe of his righteousness. Peculiarly aggravated was the wickedness of the Jewish rulers; they acknowledged his power, but they resisted his grace. They saw undeniable evidences of his Messiahship, but rejected and despised him as an impostor. How awful to die under a load of such unpardoned guilt! Blessed are we, if we can say, "We know he is the Christ, for we have felt in our hearts his saving power."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, who made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all that is therein. We praise thee that we are not only taught by thy works to adore thee as the God of creation, but also by thy Word to adore thee as the God of redemption. Thou art the omniscient Jehovah, who from thy lofty throne in heaven didst behold the conduct of the Jewish and other rulers, in conspiring to take away the life of Christ. As a divine witness thou didst behold the kings standing up, and the rulers gathering themselves against the Lord, and against his Christ. For, of a truth, against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done. We adore thee, O Lord, in the righteous vengeance with which thou hast punished those rulers who imbrued their hands in the innocent blood of thy well-beloved Son. Sitting in the heavens thou didst laugh at them; thou didst hold them in derision. Thou didst speak to them in thy wrath, and hast vexed them in thy sore displeasure. Thou hast broken them with a rod of iron, and thou hast dashed them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

We confess, O Lord, our natural aversion to thy child Jesus, and our natural unwillingness to be saved by his righteousness. We confess our natural aversion to his laws, and the ordinances of his gracious appointment. We lay this our sin at thy feet, and implore forgiveness. Fill our hearts with a superlative love to Christ, in his person, ordinances, and laws. May each one of us be enabled, from the heart, to give utterance to the following expressions of love to Jesus: Whom having not seen we love; in whom, though now we see him not, yet believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

We ask for ourselves, O Lord, as a family, the unspeakable blessings of salvation by Christ, of fellowship with him, and of resemblance to him. May the men of the world, may thine own people have reason to say respecting us, They have been with Jesus. May we be with thee, O Jesus, as thy disciples, and may we learn of thee, who art meek and lowly in heart. May we be animated with thy spirit; and when we speak, our words will be the language of piety and love. May we receive grace out of the boundless fulness of Christ; then shall our actions be a clear illustration of the reality of our faith, and of the purifying influence of the Gospel.

Give our dear children grace and fortitude to take up and maintain a Christian profession. In mingling with their youthful associates, may they neither be afraid nor ashamed to testify their love to Jesus, and their attachment to his cause.

In our Christian life, and in the observance of Christian ordinances, may we be preserved from the fear of man, which bringeth a snare. May we never hearken unto men more than unto God. Give us wisdom and boldness to speak for Christ and his cause. May we have such an experience of the truth, power, and influence of the Gospel, as to say with the apostles, For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard. Let this grace be given to our servants.

Receive our thanks for the mercies of the day, and be our protecting God this night, for our dear Redeemer's sake.

- 1 CHOOSE whom ye'll serve, and choose this day,
For time is on the wing;
And the swift hour is on its way,
Which will your last one bring.
- 2 The Tempter, ever watchful, waits
To draw your heart away;
He loves the soul that hesitates,
And makes a long delay.
- 3 The world all lovely now appears,
And pleads with outstretch'd arms;
But dangerous is the form it wears,
And fading are its charms.
- 4 Fleeting are all the joys of earth
And quickly pass away;
What should we deem those pleasures worth,
That will not last a day?
- 5 The Saviour, from his throne above,
Stoops down and asks your choice;
Choose him, and through the realms of love,
Ev'n angels shall rejoice!
- 6 He speaks,—O listen to his voice,
Obey the heavenly call;
This moment make the happy choice,
And take him for your all.

JOSHUA XXIV.

Death of Joshua.

AND the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods;

19 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an holy God: he is a jealous God; he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, Nay; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

23 Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem.

29 And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-serah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash.

31 And Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that overlived Joshua, and which had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel.

32 And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem for an hundred pieces of silver: and it became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

33 And Eleazar the son of Aaron died; and they buried him in a hill that pertained to Phinehas his son, which was given him in mount Ephraim.

REMARKS FROM JOSHUA XXIV.—To forsake God, and abandon his service, is the greatest folly, and inflicts upon the soul the greatest injury. From a principle of love may we resolve to cleave to God as our God, to his laws as our rule, and to his ordinances as our delight. Powerful, reasonable, and irresistible are Christ's claims upon us for our love, obedience, and worship. He is the fountain whence all our blessings flow; and, to enrich us with his saving goodness, he laid down his precious life. He hath delivered us out of the hands of spiritual enemies, far more formidable and powerful than the ancient Philistines and Amorites, and he has prepared for our eternal residence the heavenly Canaan, where we shall be for ever beyond the annoyance of all our foes. Like Joshua, may our life be useful, and our death blessed!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, with profound reverence and humility, mingled with love and confidence, we desire to approach the gracious throne of thy sacred and Divine Majesty. In the language of Joshua, we adore thee as a holy God, and as a jealous God. Thou art he who broughtest up thy people from the land of Egypt, and from the house of bondage. Thou didst work great signs in their sight: thou didst preserve them in all the way wherein they went, and among all the people through whom they passed. When they arrived at Canaan, thou didst drive out before them all the nations, and gavest to the children of Abraham thy servant the promised land.

As a family we adore thee as the Lord our God. O let each of us be brought out of the Egypt of a natural state, from the bondage of guilt, and from the ignominy of sin. Display before us, and upon us, and by us, the great wonders and signs of thy saving grace. Preserve us from the temptations of Satan, from the snares of the world, from the plans of wicked men, and from the still more dangerous corruptions of our own heart, while we are on our way to heaven. Remove from before us all those obstacles which are ready to impede our progress; and, after all the trials and changes of life are over, may we obtain a blessed and triumphant entrance into the heavenly Canaan.

We desire to acknowledge and adore thee as our refuge and our strength, by whose kind providence our life has been preserved to the present hour, and by whose grace we hope to obtain the blessing of life eternal in the heavens. We acknowledge thy gracious and unmerited goodness in preserving us during the past night, and in enabling us, with some measure of health, strength, and mental tranquillity, to approach thy throne, and join in the sacred and honourable exercise of presenting our morning sacrifice. May thy blessing rest upon us this day. May we enjoy it in our various employments, and remember that all our efforts to advance our temporal interests will avail nothing without thy blessing. May we enjoy thy blessing when our temporal plans are disappointed. Though temporal hopes disappear like a cloud, may we have the blessing of our God and Saviour, which no vicissitude can disturb, and which no enemy can take away.

Suffer us not to forsake thee, O Lord. May the following threatening, which thy servant Joshua delivered to Israel, prove to us a salutary warning; If ye forsake the Lord, then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you. Holy Spirit, prevent us from forsaking our God and Saviour.

O impress upon the tender minds of our dear children the inconceivable misery of those who forsake thee. Thou hast said that those who forsake thee thou wilt cast off for ever.

Enable us, O Lord our God, to enter into covenant with thee. May we as individuals, and as a family, solemnly surrender ourselves, soul and body, to the honour and service of our God. Relying alone upon the promised grace of Christ, we would now say, in the presence of an omniscient God, The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

As Joshua lived may we live, serving the Lord fully; as Joshua died may we die, and receive the righteous crown.

These our prayers we offer up in the name of Jesus, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, we would ascribe the kingdom, the power, and the glory, world without end. Amen.

TRUTH AND FALSEHOOD.

Bowen Tracy, Kerwell, Thornton, Sprague. C. M.

- 1 LET those who bear the Christian name
Their holy vows fulfil:
The saints, the followers of the Lamb,
Are men of honour still.
- 2 True to the solemn oath they take,
Though to their hurt they swear:
Constant and just to all they speak,
For God and angels hear.
- 3 Still with their lips their hearts agree,
Nor flattering words devise:
They know the God of truth can see
Through every false disguise.

Watts, 85, B. I.

ACTS IV.

Christians selling their Possessions.

AND when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.

32 And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul: neither said any of them that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.

33 And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.

34 Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold,

35 And laid them down at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.

36 And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, The son of consolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37 Having land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

ACTS V.

Ananias and Sapphira struck dead.

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession.

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

3 But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias hearing these words fell down, and gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.

11 And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS IV., v.—The spirit of prayer is the gift of the Spirit. The holy exercise of prayer is accompanied by the influences of the Spirit, and also the prelude of their more abundant descent. What is said of the voice of God, may be said of prayer. The voice of prayer is powerful. In answer to prayer the hearts of many are shaken by the convincing power of the Divine Spirit. In answer to prayer foolish human confidence is shaken, and souls led to build their hopes on Christ alone, the sure foundation laid in Zion. In answer to prayer the days of millennial glory shall visit our world and make it a magnificent and blessed habitation of heaven. How deplorable the death of Ananias and Sapphira! Heart-rending thought, to die in the very act of their impiety! Heart-rending thought, to be ushered into the eternal world, and into the presence of an heart-searching God, with a lie in their right hand! O let us stand in awe of God, and sin not!

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we to praise thee, O Lord our God, when we consider the uncreated excellences of thy nature, by which thou art infinitely superior to the most exalted and perfect of created intelligences? And what reason have we to bless and adore thee for the goodness manifested in creation and providence; but know not for those infinite richer displays of thy grace given to Jesus, the Son of thy love, the brightness of thy glory, and the express image of thy person!

We thank thee for the tokens of thy goodness which has fallen upon us and around us this day. Thou mightest have fed us upon the bread of sorrow, but thou hast given us the delicious manna of thine unmerited blessing. In addition to all thy blessings, O give us the blessing of a grateful heart. Lord, we want hearts very capable of the name of thy mercie and hearts very grateful for thy mercies received.

This evening may we lie down to rest, rejoicing in thee, our God. O that we and all our relatives, when retiring to enjoy the comfort of sleep, could rest in the full assurance of faith, God is our redeeming God in Christ, the robe of righteousness is our glory and defence, and the blessings of salvation our rich inheritance.

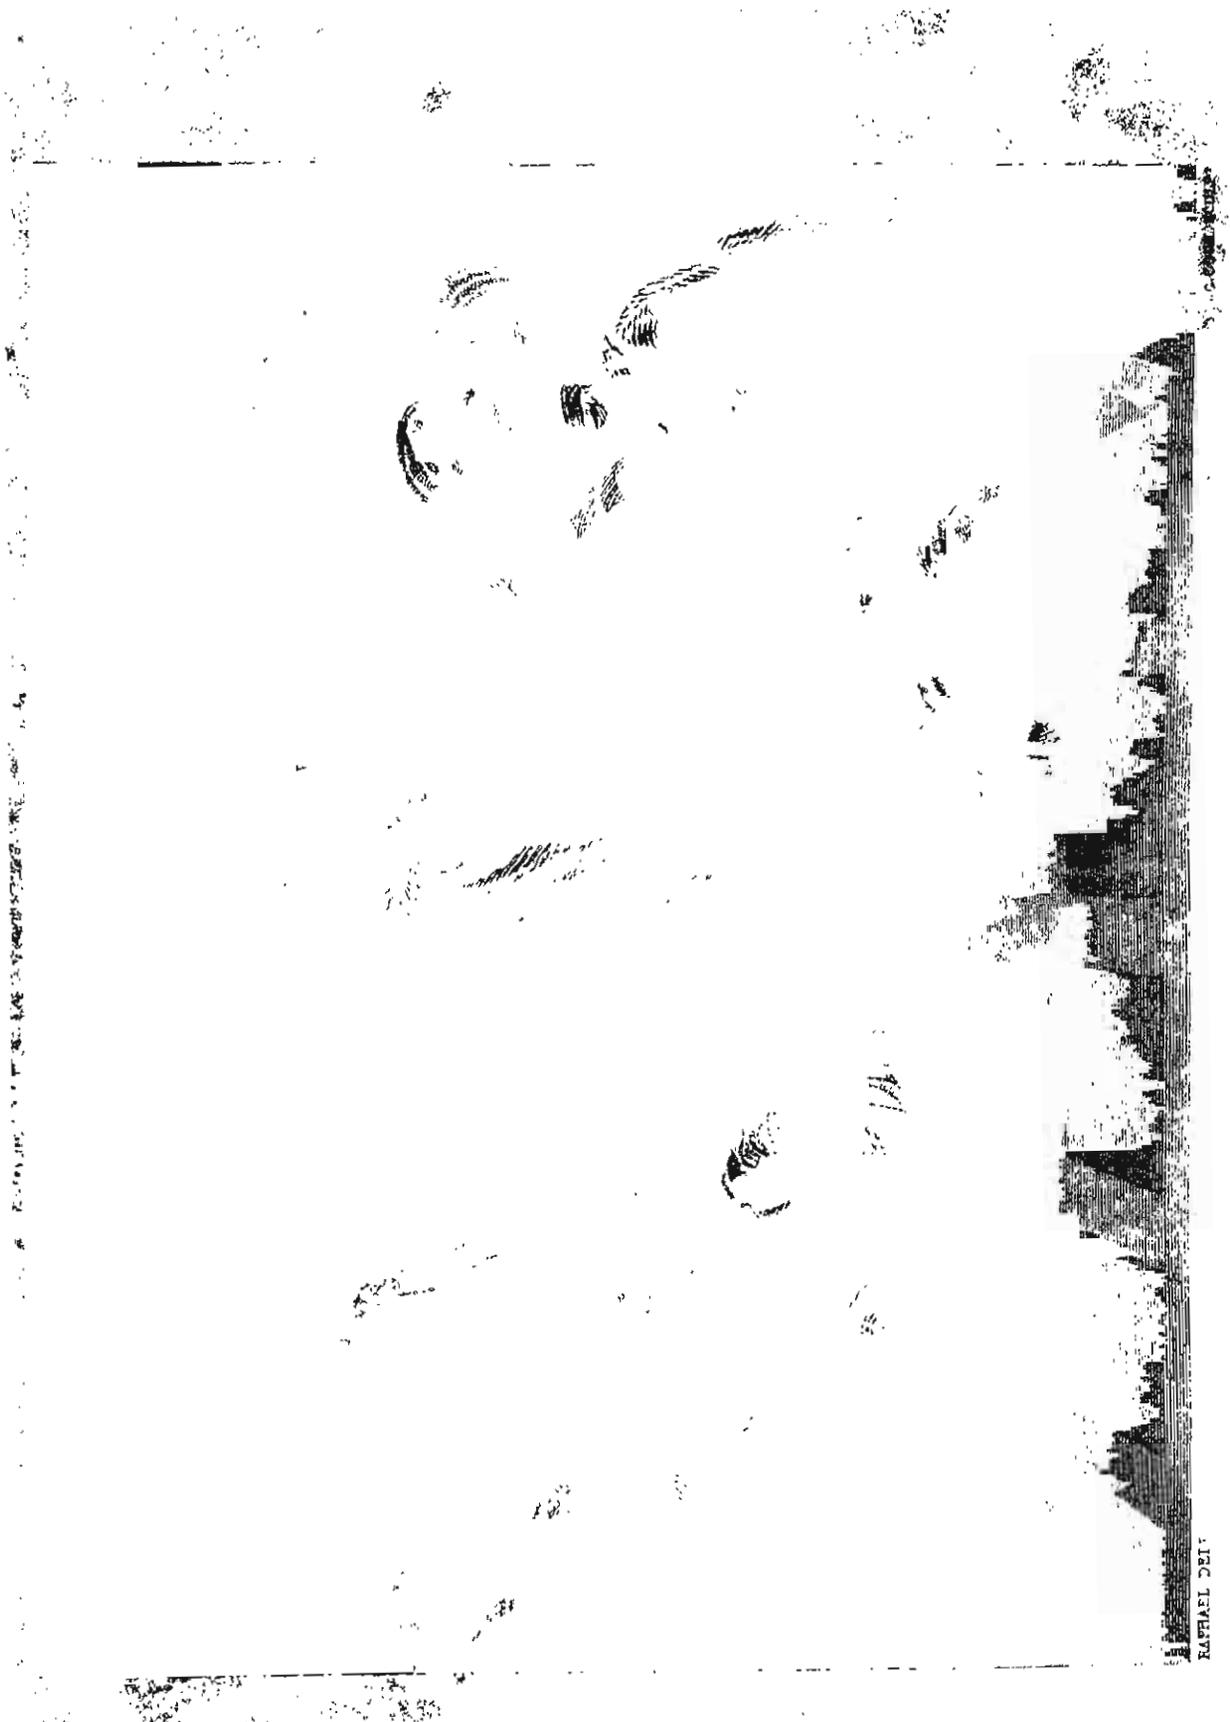

May the unity of the Church prevail more and more. Many professing people of various denominations no longer look on each other as if they believed in different Saviours, and were travelling to a different heaven. O that the lovely spirit which prevailed among the early Christians were now more extensively prevalent among the professing people in these days, throughout the Christian world!

Teach us, O Lord, to admire the affectionate spirit of early Christians, who without reluctance parted with their valuable possessions and estates, when the interests of the Church required such a sacrifice. Thou Divine Saviour, who became poor for us, who died for us, who became an inhabitant in the grave for us, make us, we beseech thee, willing to part with property, friends, health, and even life, if thou shouldst require such a sacrifice for the honour of thy name, the interests of thy Gospel, and the prosperity of thy kingdom.

Bless to our dear children the melancholy account we have now read of the sudden death of Ananias and Sapphira, for lying unto the Holy Ghost. Convince them of the evil of this sin: open their eyes to see the alarming consequences of pursuing this practice; and on all occasions may they speak the truth, as in the presence of a just and holy God.

Let great grace be upon us all. May thy grace rest on when asleep and awake, in life and in death.

Graciously answer these our supplications, for our Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

JUDGES IV.

Deborah, Barak, and Jael.

AND the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord, when Ehud was dead.

2 And the Lord sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, that reigned in Hazor; the captain of whose host was Sisera, which dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles.

3 And the children of Israel cried unto the Lord: for he had nine hundred chariots of iron; and twenty years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

4 And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time.

5 And she dwelt under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim; and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment.

10 And Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men at his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now Heber the Kenite, which was of the children of Hobab, the father in law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of Zaanaim, which is by Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor.

13 And Sisera gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the Lord hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: is not the Lord gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

15 And the Lord discomfited Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword, before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles; and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not a man left.

17 Howbeit, Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a mantle.

19 And he said unto her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent; and it shall be, when any man doth come and enquire of thee, and say, Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.

21 Then Jael Heber's wife took a nail of the tent, and took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: for he was fast asleep and weary. So he died.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDGES IV.—Israel were determined on sinning, and were therefore determined upon their ruin. They fled from God's service, and forfeited all claims upon his mercy and protection. Still, God manifested the greatness of his condescension, in providing for them deliverers when in the greatest danger, and placed on pinnacles of the greatest peril. The enemies of God often think they are enjoying the greatest security while on the very brink of destruction. Sisera, who had been Israel's terror, said within himself in Jael's tent, "Peace, peace," but sudden destruction came upon him, "like pain on a woman in travail." Truly, "the wages of sin is death."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as the protector and the deliverer of thy people. Thy care toward them is not only the care of a God, but the care of a Father. As a Father pitiest his children, so thou the Lord pitiest them who fear thee. We thank thee for what we have now read of the great deliverance thou didst accomplish in behalf of thy people Israel by means of Deborah and Jael. We adore thy power in effecting so great a deliverance by means so weak. May this encourage the meanest and the weakest of thy people to diligence in thy cause, seeing that the blessing is not by might or by power, but only by thy spirit.

When we remember the deliverance thou hast wrought for thy Church, and the deliverances thou hast wrought for us, we would take up the language of thanksgiving and praise: Thou art our rock, and our fortress, and our deliverance. Blessed be our rock, and exalted be the God of our salvation. Thou hast saved us from our enemies, and put them to shame who hated us. Therefore in thee will we boast all the day long, and praise thy name for ever and ever.

We have now read that Israel did evil in thy sight, O Lord, immediately after the death of a powerful enemy. Alas, how often have we, as a family and as individuals, done evil in thy sight, after special mercies and great deliverances! We cannot even cease from adding sin to sin. When thy mercies loudly called for diligence in thy service, we have sunk into negligence and indifference. When thy cause required us to make some sacrifice of our substance to thy service, alas, we have been guilty in keeping back what was not ours, but thine.

May our dear children be affected with the thought, that all the evil they do and the sins they commit are in the sight of an all-seeing God. May these words attend them and our domestics all their days: Thou God see! me.

Lord, give us thy spirit, that we may resemble those distinguished individuals of whom we have now read in zeal for thy glory, and concern for the defence of thy Church. Let us not be so occupied with our own personal and temporal business, as neither to feel concern nor find time to be employed in the cause of Christ and the objects of eternity. We would mourn over our cold indifference, and that, in the review of our past life, we see so little we have done for Christ and the interests of the souls of men.

We thank thee, gracious Father, for all the continued mercies of the past week. May the events which have passed over our heads be attended with thy blessing. O let an act of pardon be passed on all our sins! Let not the catalogue of our sins appear against us at death in lengthened array. As a thick cloud may they be blotted out; O may they be blotted out for ever!

We thank our God that, under the shadow of thy wings, we have passed the night in peace and safety. And we rejoice that we are now assembled before thee, to supplicate a continuance of thy loving-kindness and tender mercies.

Graciously listen to our prayers, for Jesus' sake, thy Son and our Surety. Amen.

VOICE.

ACTS V.

Boldness of the Apostles.

AND by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them.

14 And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.)

15 Inasmuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and were filled with indignation, 18 And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20 Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them, 28 Saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

29 Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS V.—It is only when the Holy Spirit accompanies the labours of ministers with his powerful influences, that they are made blessings to the souls of men. Then what holy unity prevails, what spiritual maladies are healed, and what abundant consolation is communicated! When numbers are added to the Church, whom Zion is enlarged, whom she is stretching forth on the right hand and on the left, there is even an increase of joy among the angels of heaven, and there is a blessed addition to the melody and the rapture of their songs. How vain it is in men—and how hopeless!—to oppose the progress of the Gospel, and the enlargement of Christ's kingdom. His truth must prevail, and his kingdom endure for ever.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the living God, and, we rejoice, we are the living to praise thee as the Lord our God. While many have finished their mortal course since this week began, and have not been spared to see its close, thou hast graciously lengthened out our days, and, in thy great kindness, thou art allowing us to assemble around thy throne, to taste the pleasures of religion, to seek the blessings of salvation, and to anticipate the joys of heaven.

We are drawing near thy blessed, hallowed day, when the gospel trumpet shall sound from shore to shore. O may it gladden the hearts of thousands, and may great numbers be added to thy Church! As it was in the days of the apostles, may multitudes be added to the Lord, both of men and women. Paul may plant, and Apollos may water, but thou, O Lord, alone canst give the increase.

May our relatives and aged friends who are members of thy Church flourish like the palm-tree, and grow like a cedar in Lebanon. May their life and example and consistency and happiness show to others the blessed reality of the Christian faith, and be instrumental in persuading many to taste and see that God is good.

We thank God for those promises which respect the future glory, increase, and prosperity of the Church of Christ. May we live, O Lord, to see the accomplishment of that promise, There shall be an handful of corn in the earth, upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon; and they of the city shall flourish like the grass of the field. May many be taken from our rulers and our merchants, and become the humble followers of Jesus, and useful, devoted members of the household of faith.

We rejoice, O Lord, in those miracles which confirmed the truth of the Christian faith. Though the period is now past when the power of the Gospel is manifested by the performance of miracles on the bodies of men, we praise thee that the time is not past for the performance of miracles of grace upon the souls of men. May all our graceless relatives be persuaded to hear the everlasting Gospel; and, when they hear it, may the power of the Holy Spirit apply it effectually to their hearts, by which a regenerating change shall be accomplished upon them, and the soul, which resembles the brier, shall become verdant and beautiful as the myrtle.

Lord grant that all our children may soon experience the saving power of the Gospel of Jesus. May the Gospel, which is the rod of the Saviour's strength, be instrumental in accomplishing spiritual wonders in them, more astonishing than the wonders accomplished in Egypt by the rod of Moses.

O Lord, as the prison doors were opened, and the apostles miraculously set free, may the prison doors of a natural state be opened on the approaching day, and may many spiritual captives be set free. May many be seized, by a sacred surprise, and, ere ever they are aware, find themselves the free-born subjects of the God of salvation.

Lord, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, through the atonement and mediation of Jesus Christ. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us, and all the Israel of God, for ever and ever. Amen.

WATTS, Ps. 55.

PSALM LV.

The Deceitful Friend.

FOR it was not an enemy that reproached me; then I could have borne it; neither was it he that hated me that did magnify himself against me; then I would have hid myself from him:

13 But it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance.

14 We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company.

15 Let death seize upon them, and let them go down quick into hell: for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.

16 As for me, I will call upon God; and the Lord shall save me.

17 Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice.

18 He hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me: for there were many with me.

19 God shall hear, and afflict them, even he that abideth of old. Selah. Because they have no changes, therefore they fear not God.

20 He hath put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him: he hath broken his covenant.

21 The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart: his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords.

22 Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

23 But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction: bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in thee.

PSALM. LVI

Violent Enemies.

BE merciful unto me, O God: for man would swallow me up; he fighting daily oppresseth me.

2 Mine enemies would daily swallow me up: for they be many that fight against me, O thou most high.

3 What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee.

4 In God I will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

5 Every day they wrest my words: all their thoughts are against me for evil.

6 They gather themselves together, they hide themselves, they mark my steps, when they wait for my soul.

7 Shall they escape by iniquity? in thine anger cast down the people, O God.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LV., LVI.—Our Saviour suffered in every form, and his sufferings were of every variety. He was severely tried by the treachery of man; but he felt no treachery so cruel, so acute, so base, as the treachery of Judas: it was a dart whose poison drunk up his spirit. Greatly did David feel the treachery of Ahithophel; but infinitely more did our Saviour feel the treachery of Judas. This formed a portion of our Saviour's suffering, and in this respect it was necessary that the "Captain of our salvation should be made perfect through suffering." Let it be our constant daily prayer that we may be faithful to Christ, whose faithfulness to our cause led him most willingly to lay down his life for us, and without which eternal death must have been our dreadful doom. When our mortal life comes to a close, may our holy surviving relatives have reason to say respecting us, "They were faithful unto death!" If God is ours, we have no reason to be afraid of our enemies, however numerous, however mighty. In Christ's bosom we are perfectly secure, for ever safe.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, with the voice of adoration and praise to approach thy sacred throne. Thou hast said for the encouragement of all families who call on thy name, Whoso offereth praise, glorifieth me. Holy Spirit, teach us to sing forth the honour of the name of our God, and to make his praise glorious. May that day soon arrive, through the instrumentality of a preached Gospel, when all the earth shall sing to thy holy name.

O let the following promise be fulfilled in us as a family, in the congregation with which we are associated, and in the land and nation to which we belong—in our rulers, and in the whole body of the people: I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, and will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me: and it shall be to me for a name of joy and praise, and an honour before all nations of the earth.

We would enter upon the duties and ordinances of the day distrustful of ourselves, but confidently relying on the arm of thine omnipotent grace. We have the near prospect of enjoying valuable opportunities of receiving wisdom and grace and help and consolation. God forbid that we should either despise, neglect, or undervalue those precious privileges. Teach us the worth of our souls; then shall we value those means thou hast appointed for their salvation. Now we would thank thee for the sanctuary, the place where thine honour dwelleth. We thank thee for thy ministering servants, and pray that in an eminent degree thou wouldst put the heavenly treasures into the earthly vessels. We thank thee for the communion of the saints, and that we are allowed to enjoy fellowship with thy sons and daughters, with whom we pray to be associated for ever in the heavenly state.

May many receive by means of a preached Gospel the spirit of prayer, and with David resolve, As for me, I will call upon God; and the Lord shall save me. Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice.

We pray not that thou wouldst give our children earthly riches, but we earnestly supplicate our God that thou wouldst give them a spirit of grace and supplication. And may our servants be rich in faith and heirs of the heavenly kingdom.

May thousands derive great comfort this day from a preached Gospel. Such as enter thy courts borne down with heavy burdens, teach them, encourage them, to cast their burdens over on the Lord, and he will sustain them. Suffer us not to carry our burdens in our own strength. Whatever time we are afraid, may we trust in thee. When corruptions strive for the mastery, and when the billows of affliction roll high, we would trust in thee.

Graciously assist our pastor, and all thy messengers, in proclaiming salvation through our Saviour's blood.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our only Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

C. M.

- 1 GOD counts the sorrows of his saints,
Their groans affect his ears;
Thou hast a book for my complaints,
A bottle for my tears.
- 2 When to thy throne I raise my cry,
The wicked fear and flee;
So swift is prayer to reach the sky,
So near is God to me.
- 3 In thee, most holy, just, and true,
I have reposed my trust;
Nor will I fear what man can do,
The offspring of the dust.
- 4 Thy solemn vows are on me, Lord,
Thou shalt receive my praise;
I'll sing, How faithful is thy word!
How righteous all thy ways!

Watts, Ps. 56.

PSALM LVI.

God's Care of his People.

THOU tellest my wanderings: put thou my tears into thy bottle: are they not in thy book?

9 When I cry unto thee, thou shalt mine enemies turn back: this I know; for God is for me.

10 In God will I praise his word: in the Lord will I praise his word.

11 In God have I put my trust: I will not be afraid what man can do unto me.

12 Thy vows are upon me, O God: I will render praises unto thee.

13 For thou hast delivered my soul from death: wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?

PSALM LVII.

The Psalmist betaking himself to God.

BE merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me: for my soul trusteth in thee: yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge, until these calamities be overpast.

2 I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me.

3 He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth.

4 My soul is among lions: and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

5 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth.

6 They have prepared a net for my steps; my soul is bowed down: they have digged a pit before me, into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves. Selah.

7 My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed: I will sing and give praise.

8 Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp: I myself will awake early.

9 I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations.

10 For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds.

11 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: let thy glory be above all the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LVI., LVII.—Never did earthly parent take so deep an interest in his children, as Jesus, the loving Saviour, takes in his people. He never for one moment withdraws his watchful eye from them; in all their wanderings through the desert of human life he provides for all their wants, he actually prevents them with his goodness, surprises them with unexpected mercies, and sympathises with them in all their afflictions. What a Saviour, what a Friend is Jesus! It is interesting to see the chickens gathered under the mother's comforting and protecting wings; but it is infinitely more interesting to see believers hiding themselves under the wings of God's glorious perfections, and enjoying the delightful protection of the wide spreading wings of the righteousness and intercession of Christ. Strong and firm is the hold which faith takes of God, as the God of salvation. There, may our hearts be fixed! Amen.

PRAYER.

IN the name of our Intercessor, Jesus Christ, we desire with reverence and confidence to approach the gracious presence of our God. We will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for us. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth. We desire, O Lord, to praise thee among the people; we will sing unto thee among the nations. What reason have we to praise thee that thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds!

We bless thee that vast multitudes have heard this day of thy mercy; and we desire to trust that many have experienced joy unspeakable, while hearing the proclamations of thy mercy. May those who have heard of thy mercy flowing to sinful man through the channel of a Saviour's righteousness feel thy saving mercy, sing to thy mercy on earth, and shout the triumph of thy mercy for ever in heaven. We thank thee for what we have heard of thy mercy, and pray that all of us may be enriched out of the treasury of thy mercy, and drink of the rivers of thy pleasure for ever and ever.

We thank thee, O Lord, for that paternal compassion thou dost constantly manifest to all thy people. Thine eye doth follow them in all their wanderings, and thou puttest into thy bottle all their tears. May our hearts be comforted by the conviction that thou knowest all our afflictions, and that thou art ever near to give us the consolations of thy salvation. Lord, deliver us from our spiritual enemies, and may we be convinced that the most effectual way of being delivered from their craft and their power is by betaking ourselves to earnest and believing prayer.

Have mercy on such of us as have commemorated the death of Christ by sitting at his table this day, or on former days: may we remember that thy vows are upon us; and may we render praises unto thee. As we have vowed to the Lord, may we never go back.

Have mercy on our dear children. Give them thy grace, that in thy due time they may appear at the sacramental table, and publicly testify they are the disciples of the lovely Jesus. May our servants through life show that they are saved by the death of Christ.

Lord, preserve all of us, and particularly such as have appeared at thy table, from falling into the commission of sin, and thus bringing a reproach on the Christian name. O deliver our feet from falling, that we may walk before God in the land of the living. Be merciful unto us, O God, be merciful unto us, for we desire to trust in thee. O teach us amid all the calamities of life to make our refuge under the shadow of thy wings.

May aged pilgrims travelling to the Zion above enjoy a sweet consolation, reposing under the protecting and comforting shadow of the wings of thy gracious power.

We thank thee for the assistance granted to our beloved minister this day. Through his instrumentality may the hearts of many be fixed on God; may they sing and give praise.

In our own behalf, and in behalf of all our beloved relatives, we implore rest and safety this night. May we all meet in the blessed resting-place beyond the grave, for ever to live in the enjoyment of the Father, Son, and Spirit. Hear us for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

JUDGES V.

Deborah and Barak's Song.

THEN sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying,

2 Praise ye the LORD for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves.

3 Hear, O ye kings; give ear, O ye princes; I, even I, will sing unto the LORD; I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

4 LORD, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchest out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water.

5 The mountains melted from before the LORD, even that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

6 In the days of Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of Jael, the highways were unoccupied, and the travellers walked through byways.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel.

8 They chose new gods; then was war in the gates: was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governors of Israel, that offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the LORD.

10 Speak, ye that ride on white asses, ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.

11 They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of his villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD go down to the gates.

12 Awake, awake, Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then he made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have dominion over the mighty.

14 Out of Ephraim was there a root of them against Amalek; after thee, Benjamin, among thy people; out of Machir came down governors, and out of Zebulun they that handle the pen of the writer.

15 And the princes of Issachar were with Deborah; even Issachar, and also Barak: he was sent on foot into the valley. For the divisions of Reuben there were great thoughts of heart.

16 Why abodest thou among the sheep-folds, to hear the bleatings of the flocks? For the divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.

Paraphrase upon Judges v.—Christ makes the cause of his people his own; and as the Nos of the tribe of Judah he is terrible to the enemies of his Church, and will speak to them in his righteous vengeance and vex them in his sore displeasure. What astonishing matter of praise was furnished to the Israel of God, when they saw the complete destruction of their Egyptian enemies in the Red Sea! Then the God of salvation triumphed gloriously—the horse and his rider were cast into the sea. Deborah, the prophetess, is an illustrious instance of a woman of piety being raised up by Providence, and qualified to accomplish a temporal salvation for God's Church. Let holy women earnestly pray to be filled with her spirit, and imitate her example. Like Mary, she was blessed among women.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Jehovah, who shall not fear thee? for thou only art holy. Thou art infinitely worthy of the reverence of angels and men. O that our minds were always suitably impressed with reverential feelings, when we engage in the services of our holy faith. We adore thee, O Lord, in the displays of thy majesty, thy power, and thy glory, given in the deliverance of thy people Israel from the hands of their enemies in the days of old. Lord, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water. The mountains melted from before the LORD, even that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

Teach us as a family to stand in awe of thy majesty, and to admire the displays of thy glory given in the person, the sufferings, and the triumphs of thy well-beloved Son.

Give us grace willingly to offer ourselves to the Lord. As the people and the governors of Israel willingly offered themselves in the days of Deborah, to hazard their lives in the defence of thy Church, so may we willingly present our persons and our all, when our Saviour requires, for the honour of his name, and for the prosperity of his kingdom. May that blessed spirit ever pervade our mind which pervaded the mind of St. Paul, when he said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? and when he said, in the prospect of the dangers which awaited him in Jerusalem, I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus. Preserve us, we beseech thee, from the sin of backwardness to devote either our time or our substance to the sacred cause. May we not be found at last among the unprofitable servants, who shall be gathered like bundles, and cast into the lake that burns with unquenchable fire. May such a doom awake and arouse our slumbering energies; but, above all, may the love of Christ reign in our hearts; then we shall ever exemplify a holy readiness in obeying the will and seeking the honour of our God and Saviour.

O thou King of kings, have mercy on the rulers of the earth. Preserve them from the snares and allurements of their exalted rank. May they give ear to the voice of God in his providence, in his law, and in his Gospel. While they are raised up to enforce obedience to human laws in others, may they themselves be examples of faithful obedience to the laws of heaven, and of faithful observance of the ordinances of Christ.

Deliver our dear children from rebellious hearts. May their natural aversion to thy laws and to the salutary restraints of religion be destroyed. May they and our servants now feel that no earthly enjoyment is worthy to be compared with the enjoyment of serving God.

Give us grace as a family to remember and rehearse the righteous and merciful acts of the Lord our God. We thank thee for the constant succession of blessings which have attended us from our birth to the present day.

Accept of our humble thanks for the mercies of the past Sabbath and of the past night. May we willingly offer ourselves to thy service this day, and all our days.

Hear our imperfect supplications, for Jesus' sake; and may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE EXALTED SAVIOUR.

Ps. Triumphant. Portugal. Redemption.

L. M.

1 NOW let us raise our cheerful strains,
And join the blissful choir above;
There our exalted Saviour reigns,
And there they sing his wondrous love.

2 While seraphs tune the immortal song,
O, may we feel the sacred flame;
And every heart and every tongue
Adore the Saviour's glorious name!

3 Jesus, who once upon the tree
In agonizing pains expired;
Who died for rebels—yes, 't is he
How bright! how lovely! how admired!

STABLE.

ACTS V.

Gamaliel's Counsel.

THE God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.

81 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

82 And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

83 When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

84 Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space;

85 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men.

86 For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought.

87 After this man rose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

88 And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought:

89 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.

40 And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

41 And they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name.

42 And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

ACTS VI.

Grecians Murmuring.

AND in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration.

2 Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.

3 Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business.

4 But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS V., VI.—It was the great malice of the Jews which made Christ the victim of death; but Jesus by his own almighty power rose from the dead, and thus triumphed over death and the grave. Glorious victory! in which all the redeemed of God are interested, and which will furnish matter for songs of sweetest melody in heaven for ever and ever. Let us never cease to rejoice in the close connection betwixt Christ's exaltation to his mediatorial throne in heaven, and the constant communication of spiritual blessings to his Church on earth. Important questions—"Have we felt the connection? Has the blessing of repentance and forgiveness fallen down upon us from that exalted Saviour, who fills heaven's loftiest throne?" The king and head of the Church has made a rich provision for its management and comfort, for the flowing of Christian charity, and for the perfecting of his saints.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, to come before thee as a family, and before we retire to rest would seek thy fellowship and grace. Thou art good and gracious, full of mercy and compassion, and of great patience and long-suffering. Thou art slow to anger, and of great mercy; therefore we are encouraged to prostrate ourselves at thy feet. When we think of thy power and wisdom, what reason have we to acknowledge that there is none like unto thee our God! And we rejoice that when we think of thy compassion and mercy we have equal reason to exclaim, Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? He retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy.

It is because of thy mercy we now appear before thy throne, and supplicate salvation and all its blessings, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness. Though in ourselves we are altogether without worthiness, yet we rejoice that, through the worthiness of another, we are not only permitted, but commanded to approach the throne of grace.

We have been the recipients of thine unmerited goodness during another day, for which we present our united thanksgiving. Let thy mercies be extended to us during the night. May our dwelling, and the dwelling of all who are dear to us, be preserved from evil. May the sons and daughters of affliction be enabled, even during the night watches, to look beyond the dark clouds of present suffering, and have their minds comforted by the blessed hopes of heaven, where the sun of their glory shall go no more down, and where the days of their mourning shall be ended. Teach them, O Lord, to lift up their eyes to thee, from whence cometh their help; and from whom they shall not only receive present assistance, but future glory.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as our exalted Saviour. We rejoice that the time of thy sorrow and humiliation is over; and that God the Father, as the reward of thy righteousness, hath exalted thee to his right hand, to be a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance unto Israel, and forgiveness of sins. We now earnestly pray that all of us may receive the grace of repentance and the blessing of forgiveness.

Teach our dear children to mourn over their sinfulness and folly. May they lament that they have so long refused to give their hearts to the merciful and compassionate Jesus.

Make all of us witnesses in our own experience, and to those around us, of Christ's power and grace as a Saviour. May our conversation show that we are sanctified by his spirit; may our zeal for his glory show that all the powers of our mind are subservient to his will; and may our cheerfulness and peace show that we are delivered from the guilt of all our sins, and accepted as righteous in the sight of God.

Lord, give us the Holy Ghost. May we be among the number of those who obey thee; for it is to such as obey thee thou dost mercifully communicate thy spirit.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

- 1 A H! reign, whosoever man is found,
My Lord beloved and divine!
Then shall my noblest joys abound,
When every human heart is thine.
- 2 A thousand sorrows pierce my soul
To think that all are not thine own:
Ah! be adored from pole to pole;
Where is thy zeal? arise; be known.

JUDGES V.

Song of Barak and Deborah.

GILEAD abode beyond Jordan: and why did Dan remain in ships? Asher continued on the sea shore, and abode in his breaches.

18 Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that jeoparded their lives unto the death in the high places of the field.

19 The kings came and fought: then fought the kings of Canaan in Tanach by the waters of Megiddo; they took no gain of money.

20 They fought from heaven; the stars in their courses fought against Sisera.

21 The river of Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon. O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.

22 Then were the horsehoofs broken by the means of the pransings, the pransings of their mighty ones.

23 Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of the Lord, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

24 Blessed above women shall Jacl the wife of Heber the Kenite be; blessed shall she be above women in the tent.

25 He asked water and she gave him milk; she brought forth butter in a lordly dish.

26 She put her hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workman's hammer; and with the hammer she smote Sisera, she smote off his head, when she had pierced and stricken through his temples.

27 At her feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down: at her feet he bowed, he fell: where he bowed, there he fell down dead.

28 The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?

29 Her wise ladies answered her, yea, she returned answer to herself,

30 Have they not sped? have they not divided the prey; to every man a damsel or two; to Sisera a prey of divers colours, a prey of divers colours of needlework, of divers colours of needlework on both sides, meet for the necks of them that take the spoil?

31 So let all thine enemies perish, O Lord; but let them that love him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might. And the land had rest forty years.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDGES V.—They are highly honoured of God who can place their lives in danger for the honour of Christ. That mortal life which is laid down for his cause who laid down his life for us, is followed by the gracious reward of a life of blessed and glorious immortality in heaven. Did the stars of the sky fight against Sisera, the enemy of God's people? This shows that all nature is subject to Christ's will, and that he can make it subservient to his purposes, whenever, and in whatever manner he pleases. How vain, how foolish, how daring, and presumptuous to fight against Christ and his Church! Such enemies make nature with all its elements their enemies. They fall themselves into the avenging arms of the living God, and cannot escape! Great is the difference, even now, betwixt the foes and the friends of Christ. But who can conceive the difference at the last, the judgment-day, when the former shall appear on the left hand, and the latter on the right hand of the JUDGE OF ALL?

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art almighty. Thine arm is an arm of power. Thou art able to pluck up the lofty mountains by the roots, and cast them into the depths of the sea. The proudest and most powerful enemy thou canst level with the dust.

We acknowledge, O Lord, our weakness. Without thy support we cannot continue one moment in existence; and without thy grace we cannot for one moment withstand temptation. Glory to thy name, that, though the greatest degree of human strength cannot resist the attacks of the weakest enemy; yet the weakest saint, by the assistance of thy grace, can subdue the mightiest foe. O may we be ever encouraged by this promise: My grace is sufficient for thee; and my strength shall be made perfect in thy weakness. We bless thee that thou hast given peculiar consolation to the weak. Thou hast promised to gather them with thine arms, and carry them in thy bosom. Do as thou hast said. Strengthen the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees; say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not.

We thank thee, O Lord, that we have enjoyed during another night the blessings of protection, sleep, and repose; and that we are now permitted to enjoy each other's fellowship, but, above all, fellowship with God, around the domestic altar. May our intercourse as a family become sweeter and sweeter. May we become more and more united by the endearing bonds of Christian affection. Let our fellowship be rendered sacred by the love of Christ; then our society on earth shall be followed by uninterrupted fellowship in our Father's house beyond the grave.

Graciously defend us from every temptation this day. Thou knowest, O Lord, the snares prepared for us; thou knowest our weakness, and with what ease the enemy can obtain the dominion over us, if we are left to our own infirmities. We therefore look to thee, O Lord, for wisdom to detect the designs of our enemies, and for grace to withstand all their efforts.

Lord, have mercy on all the family of man, and on all the nations of the earth. May the remarkable intercourse which now exists among nations pave the way for the universal spread of the Gospel, when all the tribes of men shall live together in holy harmony, as members of the same family. We have now read of Asher continuing on the sea-shore; O hasten that day when the fame of Christ shall be proclaimed from shore to shore, and from the rivers to the ends of the earth.

May what we have now heard of the curse pronounced against Meroz for indifference to the cause of God, prove an excitement to us to be zealous for the Lord of hosts.

Teach our children to love the cause and the kingdom of Jesus. Whatever others say, may they speak to the honour of Christ; and, whatever others do, may they serve the Lord.

Lord, have mercy on aged saints. May their desires to enter the heavenly world become stronger and stronger. When they meditate on the enjoyments of the heavenly state, and on the blessedness they shall experience in fellowship with Jesus in their Father's house, may they say, Why is his chariot so long in coming?

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. And to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed unceasing praise. Amen.

ACTS VI.

Choice of Stephen.

AND the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith.

8 And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake.

11 Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

12 And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council,

13 And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law:

14 For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the customs which Moses delivered us.

15 And all that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

ACTS VII.

Stephen's Defence.

THEN said the high priest, Are these things so?

2 And he said, Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

3 And said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land, wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God spake on this wise, That his seed should sojourn in a strange land; and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.

7 And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: and after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.

8 And he gave him the covenant of circumcision: and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VI., VII.—Sin and idolatry have long prevailed in our world; but what a delightful change shall take place when the word of God, when the Gospel of Christ, and when the knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth, yea, the whole earth, as the waters cover the channels of the great sea. Then, there shall be nothing to hurt nor destroy in God's holy mountain! The heralds of salvation are the most useful and the most merciful messengers the God of mercy ever commissioned to address the miserable inhabitants of our fallen world; yet what multitudes of these messengers have been rejected and despised, treated as the very filth of the world, and the offscouring of all things. This, certainly, is the very perfection of unthankfulness and impiety! "Lord, what is man!"

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord God, as the author of our being: And we praise thee that thou hast called us into existence, and given us souls that shall live for ever. We acknowledge thee as our preserver, constantly keeping the wheels of our life in motion, and by the continued agency of thy goodness and power preventing us from sinking into death or returning to nothing. We rejoice that thy goodness is as great as thy power. How infinitely great is thy goodness! For the eternal display of thy goodness in Christ thou hast contrived the plan of redemption, which will furnish the most glorious manifestations of thy goodness through all eternity. May we long to reach the heavenly world, where we shall fully enjoy the loving-kindness of the Lord, and in loudest strains of sweetest melody proclaim its wonders for ever and ever.

O that each one of us could now pray with believing desire, When shall the day arrive, that we shall mount and soar away to the lofty abodes of purity and bliss! O may we rejoice in the prospect of singing for ever and ever of the wonders of thy loving-kindness beyond the skies!

As thou hast mercifully preserved us this day from many evils, and blessed us with many comforts, we now present before thee the sacrifice of our thankfulness and praise. Every day may we feel our heart glowing with increasing love to our God and Saviour; every day may we feel our hearts enlarged with increasing thankfulness; and every day may we experience increasing delight in employing all our faculties and talents and affections in the service of our God.

As we need thy care by day, we need thy protection by night. Sensible of our necessities, and rejoicing in thy goodness, we place ourselves and all our friends under thy immediate care this night. Fill our hearts with joy, that there is a Divine and special providence; and that it is our privilege and duty to cast ourselves, and our burdens, and our cares, over on the Lord, who careth for us.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy Word, which furnishes such encouraging views of thy providence, thy government, and thy love. May the knowledge of thy Word increase, and may its influence upon the hearts of kings and rulers and nations daily increase.

Teach our children to believe the Gospel; may its doctrines be brought home to their hearts, and may they long after the enjoyment of all the rich blessings which the Gospel reveals.

We pray that the eminent gifts which were conferred on Stephen may be given to all thy ministering servants. O give them that wisdom and that spirit which the enemies of the truth shall not be able to resist. May the power of the Holy Ghost very eminently accompany and bless the gifts, the graces, and the labours of all thy beloved servants, at home and abroad. Let them never be discouraged by the number, the craft, or the power of the enemies of the cross.

Graciously hear our imperfect prayers for Jesus' sake, our only Mediator and Saviour. Amen.

CHRISTIAN'S RACE.

Parallels. Sentinels. Firmness. Millstone Port. c. n.
1 WAKE, my soul! stretch every nerve,
 And press with vigour on;
 A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
 And an immortal crown.
2 'Tis God's all-animating voice
 That calls thee from on high:
 'Tis his own hand presents the prize
 To thine aspiring eye.
3 Blest Saviour! introduced by thee
 Have we our race begun;
 And, crowned with victory, at thy feet
 We'll lay our laurels down.

JUDGES XIV.

Samson.

AND Samson went down to Timnath, and saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines.
2 And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore get her for me to wife.
5 Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath: and, behold, a young lion roared against him.
6 And the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, and he rent him as he would have rent a kid, and he had nothing in his hand: But he told not his father or his mother what he had done.
7 And he went down, and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well.
8 And after a time he returned to take her, and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion: and, behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase of the lion.
9 And he took thereof in his hands, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.
10 So his father went down unto the woman: and Samson made there a feast; for so used the young men to do.
11 And it came to pass, when they saw him, that they brought thirty companions to be with him.
12 And Samson said unto them, I will now put forth a riddle unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me within the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty sheets and thirty change of garments:
13 But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets and thirty change of garments. And they said unto him, Put forth thy riddle, that we may hear it.
14 And he said unto them, Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. And they could not in three days expound the riddle.
15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they said unto Samson's wife, Entice thy husband, that he may declare unto us the riddle, lest we burn thee and thy father's house with fire: have ye called us to take that we have? is it not so?
16 And Samson's wife wept before him, and said, Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not: thou hast put forth a riddle unto the children of my people, and hast not told it me. And he said unto her, Behold, I have not told it my father nor my mother, and shall I tell it thee?
17 And she wept before him the seven days, while their feast lasted: and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because she lay sore upon him: and she told the riddle to the children of her people.
18 And the men of the city said unto him on the seventh day before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey? and what is stronger than a lion? And he said unto them, If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDGES XIV.—When our blessed Lord was tempted of Satan in the wilderness forty days and forty nights, the lion of the bottomless pit roared against him. Single-handed, and alone, he contended with the enemy; after a lengthened contest he triumphed over him, and trampled upon his neck. Without the spirit of the Lord, Samson would have been as other men, and his life been unconnected with those vallant achievements by which his life was so eminently distinguished, as the temporal Saviour of Israel, and the terror of her enemies. O may the Divine Spirit rest on us, and we too shall be valiant and do exploits!

PRAYER.

AGAIN, O Lord our God, thou hast permitted us to open our eyes, to behold the light of another day. After the dark night of death, may the eyes of our bodies awake on the morning of the resurrection, and behold the glories of the Sun of righteousness for ever and ever.

We adore thee, O Lord, not only as the author of our being, but as the source of all those varied blessings which render our existence comfortable, and which mitigate the sorrows and sufferings of our journeying state.

We assemble ourselves in the name of Christ around the domestic altar, to acknowledge thy continued kindness during the past night, and to supplicate thy blessing upon us this day. Let not this day pass over our heads in vain. May our corruptions be mortified; may ejaculatory prayers often rise from our minds to the throne of God; may our affections ascend to heavenly things; and may our hopes reach onward to that celestial state, where the soul is eternally blessed in the enjoyment of God.

Bless to us, O Lord, that remarkable portion we have now read of the history of Samson. We praise thee that, when thy people were brought into great danger by their enemies, thou didst raise up for their deliverance this Nazarite. May we derive instruction and benefit from every part of his life. Preserve us from the danger of a wandering eye. Never allow the eye of our body to ensnare our soul. When we are ready to be led astray by the eye of the body, may we remember we are under the eye of God, and may we stand in awe, and sin not.

O preserve our beloved children from those snares which may be placed before their eyes to beguile them from the ways of God. May they and our servants employ their eye, not in following after lying vanity, but in reading thy blessed Word, and in beholding thy glory in thy works.

Preserve all of us, O Lord, from forming friendships or entering into relations with the ungodly. May we learn from the infatuated son of Manoah the unspeakable evil which arises from such ungodly associations. May our most intimate friends be the sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty.

Give us grace to admire the humility of Samson. While thou didst honour him, O Lord, to perform great exploits for thy cause and kingdom, thou didst prevent him from glorifying in himself. Preserve us, O Lord, from pride. May we breathe the spirit of St. Paul, who said, God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of Jesus Christ our Lord.

Sanctify to us, gracious Father, all the afflictions of life. Thy people have often found that the sweetest blessings have issued from the severest trials. May all our afflictions prove blessings in disguise. Teach us to see the connection between the sufferings of the present life and the glories of heaven. Never may we murmur under affliction. May we see thy justice in sending them, and may we also see thy wisdom. Teach us not only to know that we deserve them, but that we need them. May our persons and prayers be accepted in thy sight, O Lord our God, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SUPPLICATION.

P. M.

- 1 JESUS, full of all compassion,
Hear thy humble suppliant's cry;
Let me know thy great salvation:
See! I languish, faint, and die:
Guilty, but with heart relenting,
Overwhelmed with helpless grief,
Prostrate at thy feet repenting,
Send, O send me quick relief!
- 2 On the word thy blood hath sealed
Hangs my everlasting all;
Let thine arm be now revealed;
Stay, O stay me, lest I fall!
Saved—the dood shall spread new glory,
Through the shining realms above,
Angels sing the pleasing story,
All enraptured with thy love!

TURNER.

ACTS VII.

Joseph and Moses.

AND the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no sustenance.

12 But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

13 And at the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threescore and fifteen souls.

15 So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he, and our fathers,

16 And were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor the father of Sychem.

17 But when the time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18 Till another king arose, which knew not Joseph.

19 The same dealt subtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live.

20 In which time Moses was born, and was exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:

21 And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.

24 And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they understood not.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VII.—Stephen, the first martyr, was enabled to give a noble testimony to the truth before he sealed it with his blood. Extensive was his acquaintance with the history of the Church of the living God. With holy interest he held up to the view of his accusers—who were impatiently awaiting to be his murderers—the most distinguished saints who lived in Old Testament days, and the remarkable events which had taken place, in connection with the Church, in remote periods of antiquity. What a contrast—these holy men of distant ages, and those before whom the blessed Stephen appeared, who were soon to imbrue their hands in his blood! He reminded them of the piety and usefulness of Joseph; of Jacob, who wrestled with God and prevailed; and of Moses, who saw God face to face. These details produced no salutary effect, and only left them hardened in their unbelief, enmity, and crime!

PRAYER.

WE adore and praise thee, O Lord our God, as the almighty and merciful God, and as the infinite and gracious source of all happiness and bliss. Thou art the fountain of living waters. We have often forsaken thee, the only fountain from whence those streams of blessings flow which our souls need, and without which they must perish. We have often preferred human fountains before thee, the Divine fountain; we have applied to created fountains in preference to thee, the uncreated fountain. We have hewn out to ourselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. Thus we have deprived ourselves of much pleasure, peace, and joy, which we might have otherwise possessed; and thus we have experienced many doubts, fears, and sufferings which we might have otherwise escaped. As we have so often departed from thee, as we have so long given a deaf ear to thine inviting voice, to return unto thee our Father, with justice thou mightest have left us to ourselves, to have been filled with our devices, and to have perished for ever. With justice thou mightest have shut thine ear against us in the day of our calamity, and have said, I will laugh at your calamity, and mock when your fear cometh. Glory to thy name, that what thou mightest have done in a way of justice, thou hast not done in a way of mercy.

Prevent, O Lord, that our dear children should ever despise or refuse mercy. May they see their absolute need of mercy through a Saviour's blood. And may they give themselves no rest till they have obtained all the blessings of salvation which are constantly flowing from the fountain of God's mercy.

As a family we seek mercy, and mercy alone. We seek mercy to wash away our sins; we seek mercy to remove their guilt. We seek mercy to glorify thee in life; we seek mercy to honour thee in the swellings of Jordan; and we seek mercy to enjoy thee for ever and ever in the heavenly state. All we ask, O Lord, is thy mercy; thy mercy through our Saviour's righteousness is all our plea. O let thy mercy come, and flow like a refreshing stream!

Bless to us the valuable portions of ancient history to which we have now listened. May the envy of Joseph's brethren convince us of the vileness of that passion, and of the necessity of lifting up our eyes to thee to be delivered from its power. O Jesus, thou wast made the victim of Jewish envy, and brought by their malevolence to the dust of death. Never, never may we forget that thou wast delivered up to the death for us all.

Gracious Father, as thou wast with Joseph amid all the changes he experienced in Egypt, O be with us in all the temptations and sufferings which are before us in our journey to heaven. As thou didst deliver Joseph out of all his afflictions, may we and all our friends, and particularly our aged and afflicted friends, be delivered from all our afflictions, and at the close of life exchange the troubles of the wilderness for the joys of heaven.

We thank thee for all the blessings, temporal and spiritual, we have this day received from the fountain of thy goodness. Graciously continue thine undeserved goodness to us this night. Let our sins be mercifully forgiven, and our prayers answered, through Jesus, our Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

- 1 WHY should a living man complain
Of deep distress within,
Since every sigh, and every pain,
Is but the fruit of sin?
- 2 No, Lord! I'll patiently submit,
Nor ever dare rebel;
Yet sure I may, here at thy feet,

JUDGES XV.

Samson destroying the Philistines.

AND Samson said concerning them, Now shall I be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure.

4 And Samson went and caught three hundred foxes, and took firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the midst between two tails.

5 And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burnt up both the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives.

6 Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? And they answered, Samson, the son in law of the Timnite, because he had taken his wife, and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up, and burnt her and her father with fire.

7 And Samson said unto them, Though ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you, and after that I will cease.

8 And he smote them hip and thigh with a great slaughter: and he went down and dwelt in the top of the rock Etam.

9 Then the Philistines went up, and pitched in Judah, and spread themselves in Lehi.

10 And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? And they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us.

11 Then three thousand men of Judah went to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, Knowest thou not that the Philistines are rulers over us? what is this that thou hast done unto us? And he said unto them, As they did unto me, so have I done unto them.

12 And they said unto him, We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson said unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not fall upon me yourselves.

13 And they spake unto him, saying, No; but we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hand: but surely we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock.

14 And when he came unto Lehi, the Philistines shouted against him: and the spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, and the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands loosed from off his hands.

15 And he found a new jawbone of an ass, and put forth his hand, and took it, and slew a thousand men therewith.

16 And Samson said, With the jawbone of an ass, heaps upon heaps, with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men.

17 And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking, that he cast away the jawbone out of his hand, and called that place Ramath-lehi.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDGES XV.—Samson was the instrument God employed for punishing the Philistines, who poured contempt upon his name, his cause, his worship, and his people. We see in the destruction of their standing corn the uncertainty of earthly comforts and possessions, and how soon temporal hopes are blasted, and the fairest expectations followed by the most painful disappointment. Samson's sinful marriage alliance shows how aggravated is the sin of God's people when, during the time of the suspension of the exercise of grace, they enter into alliance with the ungodly and profane, and thus cannot expect God's blessing, but must expose themselves to God's frowns. Such alliances are often the source of long-continued afflictions and sorrows. In many respects Samson was typical of Jesus, the Captain of salvation, who encountered the enemies of his people alone, and gained over them the most glorious victories.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, our God and our guide, as the righteous Governor who sits upon the throne of universal empire, in the exercise of thy wise government, and in the enjoyment of thy glorious prerogatives. All thy ways are judgment; thou art a God of truth and without iniquity; just and right art thou. Thou art the righteous Lord, that loveth righteousness. In all the events of providence which have visited us, in all the bodily affliction and mental grief which we have been called to experience, we acknowledge thy wisdom and righteousness. We adore thee in the death of beloved and valuable relatives. It is the Lord, let him do what seemeth him meet.

In whatever circumstances we are placed, teach us to adore thy providence and grace. If the cup of prosperity be put into our hand, may we not be lifted up with pride and forget God. When the bitter cup of adversity is put into our hand, may we not be overwhelmed, but flee to the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past night, and for the comfortable state in which we are permitted to assemble this morning before the throne of grace. We thank thee that thou hast neither laid the hand of disease nor the hand of death upon us. May we live this day under the solemn impression of the certainty of the event of death, by which we shall be removed one after another to the world of spirits, when our present family state shall cease for ever. Glory to our God, that in the serious and animating services of our holy faith we find ourselves bound together by the sacred ties of Christian affection, which shall exist for ever when our natural relation is dissolved by death.

We thank God for pious relatives, and that we are allied to those who are the sons and the daughters of the Lord God Almighty. O increase the number of our pious connections! May such of them as are now related to us by the ties of nature or human friendship soon be related to us by the ties of grace.

Make our beloved children the subjects of a new birth. May we be related to them by still more endearing bonds than those of nature, and may we have the blessedness of seeing all of them before we die living members of the mystical body of Christ.

Give us grace, O Lord, to bear and to improve the trials of life. When, in thy wisdom and sovereignty thou layest upon us the burden of affliction, hold us up by the hand of thine almighty grace. When we are cast into the furnace of affliction, O let us not be consumed! May the dross of our corruptions be destroyed, and in thy due time may we come out purified and prepared for the Master's use.

Prevent us, O Lord, from ever looking on this world as our resting-place or our home; may we long to enter heaven, the only resting-place which remains for them that love thee.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, Amen.

ACTS VII.

Moses and the burning Bush.

AND the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou diddest the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.

30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush.

31 When Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold.

33 Then said the Lord to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush.

36 He brought them out, after that he had shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the wilderness forty years.

37 This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear.

38 This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us:

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt,

40 Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

41 And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness?

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VII.—Moses showed himself a lover of peace. Like him we should endeavour to pour the waters of good counsel into the flames of strife, even though we may have but little hopes of success. Blessed are the peace-makers. Moses was for many years a stanger in the land of Midian; yet, in his distant solitude, he enjoyed much of God's fellowship and many tokens of his love. A wilderness with God's presence and smiles is changed into a paradise, and becomes even a gate of heaven. Believers are in the wilderness of this world; and in the wilderness they have the unspeakable and delightful enjoyment of the presence of their God, who sees all their afflictions, who supports them under all their afflictions, and will in due time deliver them out of them all.

PRAYER.

HOLY and gracious Spirit, we humbly supplicate thine aid while we draw near to the Lord our God in the name of Jesus, to present our evening sacrifice. With reverence and godly fear we would draw near unto thee, thou searcher of the hearts of the children of men. Thou art the all-seeing, the omniscient God. Thy knowledge is essential to thyself, and infinitely independent of all beings. Thou art the uncreated Sun of knowledge and wisdom; and all the knowledge which men and angels enjoy is only a beam of thy brightness. With whom didst thou take counsel, and who instructed thee? Who taught thee in the path of judgment, and taught thee knowledge, or showed thee the path of understanding? The hearts of all men are open before thee. Thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men. Thou lookest to the ends of the earth, and seest under the whole heaven. Darkness hideth not from thee, but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike unto thee.

What shame ought to fill our minds, when we think of the manner in which we have conducted ourselves in the presence of thee, an holy and omniscient God! Alas, our imaginations and purposes have been allowed to take their own corrupted course within us, as if thine omniscience had not been our witness. We have spoken with our lips as if we had not been under the ear of an omniscient God. And our actions have been rash and vicious and sinful, as if there had been no all-seeing Jehovah taking cognizance of the conduct of men. Lord, forgive this our sin, and may we no more be under the influence of such atheistical indifference.

May we ever feel in thy presence that holy awe which Moses felt when he saw the glory and heard the voice of God in the holy mount.

We would mourn over the enmity and corruption of the human heart. May we see in the strivings of the two Israelites a melancholy emblem of the discord and enmity which so generally prevail among the children of men. We lament that so little love exists among those who profess the Christian name. Bless our congregation with peace. Bless all the churches with peace. Bless all the families with which we are connected with peace.

May our beloved children love one another more and more. O give them and our domestics pure Christian love, which shall survive the ravages of death.

O Lord, as thou wast present in the burning bush, be present with us in all our afflictions. As thou didst declare thyself to Moses to be Abraham's God, in all our afflictions may we by faith hear the encouraging voice of our God saying to us, I am the Lord thy God.

We thank thee, heavenly Father, for all the enjoyments of this day, both personal and social. We look to thee, O Lord, for preservation this night. May we lie down to rest under the blessed conviction that we are saved by the blood of Christ.

Hear our unworthy prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is infinitely worthy of all honour and praise. Amen.

FLESH AND SPIRIT.

- 1 WHAT different powers of grace and sin
Attend our mortal state!
I hate the thoughts that work within,
And do the works I hate.
- 2 Now I complain, and groan, and die,
While sin and Satan reign;
Now raise my songs of triumph high,
For grace prevails again.
- 3 So darkness struggles with the light,
Till perfect day arise;
Water and fire maintain the fight,
Until the weaker dies.

JUDGES XVI.

Samson's Failings.

AND it was told the Gazites, saying, Samson is come hither. And they compassed him in, and laid wait for him all night in the gate of the city, and were quiet all the night, saying, In the morning, when it is day, we shall kill him.

3 And Samson lay till midnight, and arose at midnight, and took the doors of the gate of the city, and the two posts, and went away with them, bar and all, and put them upon his shoulders, and carried them up to the top of an hill that is before Hebron.

4 And it came to pass afterward, that he loved a woman in the valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah.

5 And the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and said unto her, Entice him, and see wherein his great strength lieth, and by what means we may prevail against him, that we may bind him to afflict him: and we will give thee every one of us, eleven hundred pieces of silver.

6 And Delilah said to Samson, Tell me, I pray thee, wherein thy great strength lieth, and wherewith thou mightest be bound to afflict thee.

7 And Samson said unto her, If they bind me with seven green withs that were never dried, then shall I be weak, and be as another man.

8 Then the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven green withs which had not been dried, and she bound him with them.

9 Now there were men lying in wait, abiding with her in the chamber, and she said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it toucheth the fire. So his strength was not known.

10 And Delilah, said unto Samson, Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mightest be bound.

11 And he said unto her, If they bind me fast with new ropes that never were occupied, then shall I be weak, and be as another man.

12 Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him therewith, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And there were liars in wait abiding in the chamber. And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.

13 And Delilah said unto Samson, Hitherto thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: tell me wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said unto her, If thou weavest the seven locks of my head with the web.

14 And she fastened it with the pin, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awaked out of his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

Paraphrase upon Judges xvi.—Samson, though a child of God, was an impatient man, and exposed himself to many temptations.

And what are temptations? They are snares which entangle the soul: they are fetters and cords which bind it fast: they are polluted mire which cover it with the vilest deformity. Let our earnest prayer be, "Lord, lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil!" Samson placed an unhallowed affection upon Delilah, a graceless woman, and brought upon himself those calamities which hastened his death. Let us take warning, and learn to acknowledge God in all our ways, and he will direct our steps.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee in all the wise and righteous arrangements of thy providence. Thy judgments are unsearchable, and thy ways past finding out. Thy plans and purposes are often concealed amid impenetrable clouds of the darkest mystery. In language of humility and reverence we would acknowledge, "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are thy judgments, and thy ways past finding out!" Clouds and darkness are round about thee, which no eye can penetrate.

We adore and praise thee in all the dark, mysterious, and afflictive providences which have respected ourselves. Infinitely wise and just have all thine arrangements been, and thou hast mingled mercy with all thy judgments. Thou dost great things past finding out, yea, and wonders without number. Behold, God taketh away, and who can hinder him? Who will say unto him, What dost thou?

O Lord, we acknowledge that we have greater reasons to be amazed at thy mercy than at thy judgments. We deserve thy judgments, for we have forsaken thy covenant, and we have gone astray like sheep prone to wander. If thou hadst left us to have been filled with the consequences of our devices, thou wouldst only have dealt with us as we deserved. This thou hast not done. Thou hast visited us with undeserved mercies without number. We would therefore sing, O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever! May we be among the number who shall have reason to sing of mercy for ever and ever.

May our dear children see their need of mercy. Early may they knock at mercy's door. O teach them to knock in faith; then thou wilt open, thou wilt allow them to enter, and wilt give them all the blessings of thy salvation.

Bestow on our aged friends enlarged communications of strengthening mercy, while they feel their natural strength decay; and give them enlarged communications of comforting mercy, while they feel their natural and temporal enjoyments diminish.

Impress, O Lord, on our minds what we have now read of the failings of Samson, one of Israel's deliverers. Lord, preserve us, and particularly our young friends, from the pernicious influence of vain and licentious society. Convince us, O Lord, that their house inclineth unto death, and their paths unto the dead; that their house is the way to hell, leading down to the chambers of death. Preserve us all, and particularly our young friends, from fleshly lusts. However dear their indulgence, may they remember that uncontrolled lusts are the fetters by which thousands have been bound, and cast into that world of perdition, where lusts rage with all their fury, but where the miserable inhabitants do not receive so much as one drop of water to cool their tormented tongues!

We earnestly pray that none of us may be under the dominion of lusts; but may all of us be under the dominion of grace. May we preserve our garments clean this day from the pollutions of the flesh. May thy law be our guide, both in the duties which respect the body and the soul.

Accept our thanks for thy providential goodness during the night.

Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

DODDRIDGE.

ACTS VII.

Death of Stephen.

OUR fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses, that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen.

45 Which also our fathers that came after brought in with Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David;

46 Who found favour before God, and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

47 But Solomon built him an house.

48 Howbeit, the Most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet, 49 Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me? saith the Lord: or what is the place of my rest?

50 Hath not my hand made all these things?

51 Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:

53 Who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it.

54 When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, 56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord, 58 And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.

59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

60 And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VII.—The tabernacle in the wilderness was a satisfying evidence that God was present with, and in the midst of, his people. A devout Israelite could never look on that sacred tent, and see the cloud suspended over it, without saying with holy satisfaction, thankfulness, and joy, "The Lord is there." What reason have we to rejoice that we have in the midst of us the lamp of salvation, the ordinances of religion, and the courts of the living God! Especially blessed was the death and departure of Stephen. Like his Divine Lord, he died blessing his murderers. Before entering heaven, he saw heaven's glory. Before receiving his martyr's crown, he saw his Lord in all the splendour of his Mediatorial glory; and then his happy spirit took its flight to the celestial mansions.

PRAYER.

WE desire, most merciful Father, to approach thy sacred throne, under a deep impression of thy gracious condescension. Though thou art the infinitely glorious Jehovah, thou lookest down on us worms of the dust with mercy and grace. And though we are unworthy to take thy holy name into our lips, we are permitted to address thee as our Father who art in heaven. Though we deserve to be for ever placed in circumstances of the greatest ignominy for our offences and guilt, thou art willing to give us a place in thy heaven, and to allow us to sit down beside thee on thy throne.

And what are we that thou shouldst command us to cast our burdens over on the Lord? Many of our burdens have been formed by our own sins; and we deserve to be pressed down into despair by their overwhelming weight. But such is thy compassion, that thou stretchest out thy hand to hold us up and to sustain us when we are ready to faint and die.

As a family may we especially enjoy thy help. Blessed are they who have thee for their help. May we have all the pleasing marks that we are a family blessed of God. May we be among the godly who are set apart for thyself. May we be a people formed for thyself, that we may show forth thy praises on earth, and shout thy melodious praises for ever in heaven.

The mercies of another day loudly call for the thankfulness of our hearts. We adore thy sovereignty in continuing mercies with us withheld from thousands. O let not thy sovereign goodness prove an aggravation of our sins, which must be the case, if we remain hardened and ungrateful amid the constant manifestations of thy goodness.

We commend ourselves, our relatives, and friends, to thy protection this night. May the afflicted, for whom restless nights are appointed, find rest in Christ. May their hopes of immortality be fixed on the righteousness of Christ alone; then assuredly they shall exchange the sufferings of the vale of tears for that fulness of joy which is at God's right hand for evermore.

Impress on all our hearts the reading of the Scriptures. May our understandings be enlightened, and may our affections be purified. Let the daily and regular reading of the Word of life prove the daily food and nourishment and comfort of our souls.

We thank thee, O Lord, that as Israel had thy tabernacle in the wilderness, we have thy Word and ordinances in the desert of this life. May we value them all, and, as a family, grant that our enjoyment of the services of the domestic altar may prove a harbinger of the employment and felicity of heaven.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the death of Stephen. Like him, may we be filled with the Holy Ghost.

By faith may we often look up steadfastly into heaven, and see the glory of God, and Jesus as a triumphant Mediator sitting at the right hand of God.

Have mercy on our children and servants, and make them witnesses for Christ. May they savingly know Jesus, and boldly confess him before men.

Show kindness to our aged friends. When they come to die, may they die as Stephen did, and say, Lord Jesus, receive our spirit.

We humbly look unto thee, O Hearer of prayer, for an answer unto our feeble and imperfect supplications, for Jesus' sake, to whom be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

JUDGES XVI.

Samson's Death.

AND she said unto him, How canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? Thou hast mocked me these three times, and hast not told me wherein thy great strength lieth.

16 And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death;

17 That he told her all his heart, and said unto her, There hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.

19 And she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of his head; and she began to afflict him, and his strength went from him.

20 And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the Lord was departed from him.

21 But the Philistines took him, and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house.

22 Howbeit the hair of his head began to grow again after he was shaven.

23 Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto Dagon their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hand.

24 And when the people saw him, they praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, which slew many of us.

25 And it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house; and he made them sport: and they set him between the pillars.

26 And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whercupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

27 Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the roof about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

28 And Samson called unto the Lord, and said, O Lord God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.

29 And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and on which it was borne up, of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left.

30 And Samson said, Let me die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein. So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDGES XVI.—Though many blemishes were connected with the life of Samson, he was still a child of God, and a type of Christ. His birth was preceded by remarkable predictions. Like the mother of our Lord, an angel was sent to announce to the mother of Samson the approaching birth of her son. He was consecrated and set apart for the service of God, and for the interests of the Church. He fought with the enemies of the Church with extraordinary zeal, bravery, and success. Most splendid were his victories, and they were gained by himself alone. Most marvellously he trampled upon the neck of his numerous, proud, and powerful foes. Finally, he died for his people; and by his death accomplished the ruin of Israel's enemies. In these respects he was an illustrious type of Jesus.

PRAYER.

ALMIGHTY God, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we adore thee as the author of our being, the creator of our bodies, and the former of our spirits. Thou art the fountain from whence all our comforts and blessings flow. If thou shouldst for one moment withhold thine hand, we should perish and die, and all the streams of our enjoyment would instantly disappear. In thine hand, O Lord, is power and might. Thou hast an arm of grace, to save those who come unto thee; and thou hast an arm of vengeance, to destroy such as despise thy mercy. We rejoice on account of the hopes of salvation furnished by the Gospel of Christ. We bless thee that there is a throne of grace, and that we have access to that throne as individuals and as a family. On the morning of another day we draw near thy sacred presence, and seek salvation through our Saviour's death.

We supplicate thy forgiveness of the sins committed this week. Convince us more and more of the alarming danger of unpardoned guilt. And may we give ourselves no rest, till we have fled to a pardoning God, to seek forgiveness through a Saviour's blood. Lord, we seek pardon; we seek forgiveness now. We come polluted and guilty; O say unto us, Your sins are forgiven; go in peace, and sin no more.

We thank thee for the mercies of the night, and for the mercies of the week. May our hearts never be strangers to feelings of thankfulness and love.

Preserve us, O Lord, from the temptations of this day. May our bodies not only be preserved from disease, but our souls be preserved from sin. May we live this day under the impression that thy day is near; and may our meditations be preparatory to the engagements of thy holy Sabbath.

We beseech thee, heavenly Father, make our beloved children spiritual Nazarites, holiness to the Lord. Give them grace to obtain signal victories over all their lusts: may they and our servants be conquerors, and more than conquerors, through Christ who loved them.

As the judge of Israel was peculiarly influenced by God's spirit in the victories he gained over the enemies of the Church, may we receive the graces of the Spirit in large measure, that we may resist Satan and all his temptations, and that we may trample the world under our feet.

May we see, O Jesus, in the betraying of Samson by his professed friend, an emblem of thy cruel treatment, when Judas betrayed thee. Peter thrice denied thee, and all thy disciples forsook thee and fled. Suffer us not, blessed Saviour, ever to deny thee, ever to betray thee. May no dangers, no difficulties, ever deter us from adhering firmly and constantly to thy cause. Make us faithful unto death; then shall we receive a crown of life.

Blessed God, we supplicate an answer to our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

DEFENCE OF THE GOSPEL.
Colchester. Mabel. Providence College. Follett. C. H.

- 1 SHALL atheists dare insult the cross
 Of our incarnate God?
 Shall infidels revile his truth,
 And trample on his blood?
- 2 What if he choose mysterious ways
 To cleanse us from our faults!
 May not the works of sovereign grace
 Transcend our feeble thoughts?
- 3 What if his Gospel bid us strive
 With flesh, and self, and sin!
 The prize is most divinely bright
 That we are called to win.

ACTS VIII.
Success of the Gospel.

AND Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem; and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles.

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.

3 As for Saul, he made havock of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison.

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.

5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one:

10 To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God.

11 And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.

12 But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

14 Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost.

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

18 And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

20 But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VIII.—What a contrast is presented by the unconverted and the converted life of the great Apostle of the Gentiles! He assisted at the martyrdom of Stephen, and closed his own life by being a distinguished martyr for the faith of Christ. How solemn and honourable the interment of Stephen! While surviving saints were weeping below on account of his death, his happy spirit was mingling with the redeemed before the throne, and engaged in singing the praises of God and the Lamb. The martyr's sufferings were soon followed by the martyr's crown.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, with reverence and joy to approach the throne of grace, in the name of Jesus, our Advocate and Mediator. We adore thee as the preserver of men. Lord, thou hast made all things, and thou preservest them all. When we think of the way in which thou hast led us, and of the continuance of thy providential goodness, from our feeble infancy to the present moment, we have reason to use the language of thy servant in ancient days: Thou hast granted us life and favour, and thy visitation preserveth our spirit. In six troubles thou hast preserved us, and in seven no evil has befallen us. When we were brought to the very brink of the grave, thou didst preserve us; thou didst restore our soul. When multitudes were falling down on the right hand and the left before the breath of the destroying pestilence, thou didst preserve us from all evil, thou didst preserve our soul.

We desire to call to mind the numerous bodily diseases, afflictions, and pains from which thou hast delivered us. We lament that we have benefited so little by those marked and unmerited instances of thy sovereign goodness.

If there are any of our beloved relatives or friends now suffering bodily afflictions, Lord, mitigate their sufferings; but, above all, sanctify them. Bring them out of the furnace, but let them be brought out purified, and more conformed to the image of our holy Saviour.

Prepare our children for affliction. We thank thee that they have been hitherto preserved. If in early days thou shouldst lay them on the bed of sickness, may they find that it is good to bear the yoke in their youth.

May our minds be suitably affected with what we have now read. We thank our God for the history of the progress of the Gospel, at the beginning of the Christian Church. We praise thee that the persecutions which furiously raged, and which were designed to destroy the Gospel in its commencement, were overruled by thy providence for the extraordinary furtherance of the truth. We bless thee that in all parts of the earth where thy faithful servants, suffered death for the truths of the Gospel, almost invariably the blood of the martyrs has proved the seed of the Church.

As the Church lamented over the death of Stephen, may we lament and mourn over the death of those who were great and useful ornaments of thy Church. While we have reason to rejoice over the felicity of the departed, may we mourn over the great loss sustained by survivors.

As the apostles were scattered abroad, and preached the Word everywhere, may the Gospel be preached in every dark and benighted corner of our beloved land. Would to God that every minister who bears the name of Christ resembled Philip in preaching Christ! May Christ in his person, Christ in his offices, Christ in his cross, and Christ on his throne, be the great and blessed theme of the discourses of all who profess to be the ambassadors of the great Redeemer.

We thank thee for the mercies of the day and of the week; and we implore thy blessing to attend us this night. May we arise from our beds in health and vigour on the morning of thy Sabbath, to engage in the services of thy day, and in the solemnities of thy house.

Graciously forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

WARNING TO MAGISTRATES.

Battersea. Frostenden. Old 1134. Scotch. 1134 M.

- 1 JUDGES, who rule the world by laws,
Will ye despise the righteous cause,
When the injured poor before you stands?
Dare ye condemn the righteous poor,
And let rich sinners 'scape secure,
While gold and greatness bribe your hands?
- 2 Have ye forgot, or never knew,
That God will judge the judges too?
High in the heavens his justice reigns;
Yet you invade the rights of God,
And send your bold decrees abroad,
To bind the conscience in your chains.

Watts, Ps. 58.

PSALM LVIII.

Wicked Rulers.

DO ye indeed speak righteousness, O congregation? do ye judge uprightly, O ye sons of men?

2 Yea, in heart ye work wickedness; ye weigh the violence of your hands in the earth.

3 The wicked are estranged from the womb: they go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies.

4 Their poison is like the poison of a serpent: they are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear:

5 Which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely.

6 Break their teeth, O God, in their mouth; break out the great teeth of the young lions, O Lord.

7 Let them melt away as waters which run continually: when he bendeth his bow to shoot his arrows, let them be as cut in pieces.

8 As a snail which melteth, let every one of them pass away: like the untimely birth of a woman, that they may not see the sun.

9 Before your pots can feel the thorns, he shall take them away as with a whirlwind, both living, and in his wrath.

10 The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance: he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked.

11 So that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous; verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth.

PSALM LIX.

Prayer to be delivered from Enemies.

DELIVER me from mine enemies, O my God: defend me from them that rise up against me.

2 Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men.

3 For, lo, they lie in wait for my soul: the mighty are gathered against me; not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O Lord.

4 They run and prepare themselves without my fault: awake to help me, and behold.

5 Thou therefore, O Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel, awake to visit all the heathen: be not merciful to any wicked transgressors. Selah.

6 They return at evening: they make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city.

7 Behold, they belch out with their mouth: swords are in their lips: for who, say they, doth hear?

8 But thou, O Lord, shalt laugh at them; thou shalt have all the heathen in derision.

9 Because of his strength will I wait upon thee: for God is my defence.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LVIII., LIX.—It is a great national calamity when unrighteous men fill places of rule, authority, and power. Had David, the type, reason to complain of this evil?

Jesus, the anti-type, had infinitely greater reason. He was placed before the tribunal of the worst of men, whose injustice and cruelty could not be surpassed, and who gave him up at last to be crucified and slain by wicked hands! God overrules the cruelty and injustice of the wicked as a blessing to his saints; as it stimulates them to make numerous applications to a throne of grace, to seek a Saviour's fellowship, a Saviour's counsel, and a Saviour's help. Such applications are never made in vain.

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL and Divine Father, let joy fill our hearts, that our lives are prolonged to the present hour, and that we are most mercifully permitted, on the morning of another Sabbath-day, to assemble around the domestic altar to hold fellowship with thee, the God of salvation.

We adore thee, O Lord our God, in all thine attributes. As a family may we look on all thy perfections as lofty walls of defence around us, which will eternally preserve us from the malicious schemes of all our enemies. O Lord, thou art a righteous God. Though in thy sovereignty and wisdom thou dost permit unjust rulers, for a season, to afflict the children of men, and to afflict the righteous, thou dost take cognizance of all their acts of iniquity, and in thy justice wilt inflict upon them merited vengeance. Thou wilt break their teeth, O God, in their mouths; thou, O Lord, wilt break out the great teeth of the young lions. Thou hast in many instances made wicked rulers melt away as waters; and when they bent their bow to shoot their arrows, thou didst cut them in pieces. We rejoice, O gracious God that, notwithstanding all the injuries thy people sustain from the hands of the wicked, there is a time fast approaching when thy children shall receive from thy hand a crown of righteousness and of life.

Holy Spirit, give us grace now to offer up suitable and earnest prayers for the blessed success of the Gospel which is to be preached this day. Deeply impress the minds of all thy ministers with the solemn importance of faithfully and affectionately addressing the whole truth to the hearts and consciences of men. O that thy ministers, at the close of the day, were able to address their flocks in the language of St. Paul: So, being affectionately desirous of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the Gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear to us.

O Lord, we lay before thee the depraved and corrupted state of thousands who shall be present in thy courts. Lord, they are estranged from the womb; as soon as born they and we went astray, speaking lies. Sin, which has taken possession of their souls, is like the poison of a serpent. Alas, they lend a deaf ear to the sound of salvation; they resemble the deaf adder, that stoppeth her ear; which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely. Lord, incline all their hearts to hear the voice of God, through the voice of thy servants.

May our dear children no longer resemble the deaf adder. Lord, open their ears, and incline their hearts to hear the voice of salvation. Grant that our servants may have their hearts impressed with the value of the soul, and the necessity of salvation through our Saviour's blood.

Have mercy on our rulers, and may they be subjects of grace. May the stream of salvation flow in the midst of all our universities, colleges, and Sabbath-schools. Let our Bible and missionary societies shine like the sun in its strength. O hasten the millennial glory of the Church! Let Abraham's descendants bow before Jesus of Nazareth. Let the whole earth be filled with thy glory. Mercifully hear and forgive, for Jesus' sake. We would ascribe to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, equal and undivided praises.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

TWENTY-FOURTH WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

DISAPPOINTMENT IN WAR.

Christ's Church. Westerham. St. Mary's. Walsal. c. n.

- 1 LORD, hast thou cast the nation off,
Must we for ever mourn?
Wilt thou indulge immortal wrath?
Shall moreye ne'er return?
- 2 The terror of one frown of thine
Melts all our strength away;
Like men that totter, drunk with wine,
We tremble in dismay.
- 3 Lift up a banner in the field,
For those that fear thy name;
Save thy beloved with thy shield,
And put our foes to shame.

WATTS, Ps. 60.

PSALM LIX.

Misery of the Saints' Enemies.

THE God of my mercy shall prevent me: God shall let me see my desire upon mine enemies.

11 Slay them not, lest my people forget: scatter them by thy power; and bring them down, O LORD our shield.

12 For the sin of their mouth and the words of their lips let them even be taken in their pride: and for cursing and lying which they speak.

13 Consume them in wrath, consume them, that they may not be: and let them know that God ruleth in Jacob unto the ends of the earth. Selah.

14 And at evening let them return; and let them make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city.

15 Let them wander up and down for meat, and grudge if they be not satisfied.

16 But I will sing of thy power; yea, I will sing aloud of thy mercy in the morning: for thou hast been my defence and refuge in the day of my trouble.

17 Unto thee, O my strength, will I sing: for God is my defence, and the God of my mercy.

PSALM LX.

God the Defence.

O GOD, thou hast cast us off, thou hast scattered us, thou hast been displeas'd; O turn thyself to us again.

2 Thou hast made the earth to tremble; thou hast broken it: heal the breaches thereof; for it shaketh.

3 Thou hast shewed thy people hard things: thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment.

4 Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth. Selah.

5 That thy beloved may be delivered; save with thy right hand, and hear me.

6 God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth.

7 Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of mine head; Judah is my lawgiver;

8 Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe: Philistia, triumph thou because of me.

9 Who will bring me into the strong city? who will lead me into Edom?

10 Will not thou, O God, which hadst cast us off? and thou, O God, which didst not go out with our armies?

11 Give us help from trouble: for vain is the help of man.

12 Through God we shall do valiantly: for he it is that shall tread down our enemies.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LIX., LX.—Delightful and blessed are the fruits produced by the grace of faith. This Divine tree brings forth fruit of the greatest variety, and as luxuriantly in the winter of adversity as in the summer of prosperity. It is a tree which no storms can shake, which no elements can injure, and which no lightning can destroy. A dreadful doom awaits the impenitent enemies of Christ and his Church. Now, God is angry with them every day, and the miseries of endless despair await them in the world of spirits. God, for wise ends, may appear to cast off his people, but he never leaves them nor forsakes them. He may appear to allow their enemies to prevail, but it is only that their deliverance may be more glorious and complete.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the God of mercy. Give us grace to believe that thou wilt go before us in the exercise of this most comforting attribute, and that thou wilt let us see our desire on all our spiritual enemies. Thou art our shield, O Lord, most mighty. We have never been able to defend ourselves from temptations, or enemies, or sorrows; but thou hast been our defender and shield. As a family, we would sing of thy power; yea, both morning and evening we would sing aloud of thy mercy; for thou hast been our defence and refuge in trouble.

At the conclusion of thy sacred Sabbath, and after the public solemnities of thy house, we desire to adore thee as the God of redemption. While angels so earnestly desire to look into a salvation never provided for them, may we, for whom it was purchased, dwell constantly in our thoughts upon the pleasing theme, and may we ever ascribe glory and praise to the God of our salvation.

What gratitude should inspire our hearts, that our lot has been cast in a land of Bibles, and of ministers, and of ordinances, and of privileges! May we so value our inestimable privileges, as to wish and pray that all tribes of human beings throughout the earth may become sharers of the same privileges and blessings.

May our minds be suitably and savingly affected with the love of Christ to our fallen, ruined world. May wonder, gratitude, and joy be excited in our minds, by thinking on the breadth, and length, and depth, and height of the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge.

May our dear children be taught by the Spirit of God to admire the love of God to sinful men. Lead them to mercy's feet, to seek with holy earnestness an interest in the love of God and righteousness of Christ. O may the love of God be shed abroad in the hearts of our servants.

Glory to God in the highest, that the love of God, and redemption through his well-beloved Son, have been proclaimed this day in the ears of myriads! Would to God that they who heard the tidings believed the gracious report! In particular, may each one of this family, and may all our relatives and friends, and may all who are associated with us in public congregational worship, learn in some measure how to value the love of Christ, who gave himself a ransom for many. May we by faith see his love displayed on the cross, where beneath our sins he groaned and died. By faith may we see the displays of his love in heaven, where he sits to plead our cause, by his almighty Father's side.

We would earnestly pray that the good news of our Saviour's love may soon overspread the earth; and let the glory of his salvation very speedily scatter, by the beams of its Divine brightness, the darkness of Pagan ignorance and idolatry which covers so great a part of the moral firmament of the nations of the world.

O Lord, may we retire to rest this night impressed most deeply with what we have read and heard this day; and, during the whole of our future lives, may we by thy Spirit be living examples of the fruitifying, purifying influence of the Gospel of Christ. Hear us, O Lord, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

FOLLOWING CHRIST.

Highbury College. Quebec. Charnmouth. Abridge. C. N.

- 1 DEAR Lord, and will thy pardoning love
Embrace a wretch so vile?
Wilt thou my load of guilt remove,
And bless me with thy smile?
- 2 Hast thou the cross for me endured,
And all its shame despised?
And shall I be ashamed, O Lord,
With thee to be baptized?
- 3 Didst thou the great example lead,
In Jordan's swelling flood?
And shall my pride disdain the deed
That's worthy of my God?

FELLOWS.

RUTH I.

Naomi's Afflictions.

NOW it came to pass in the days when the judges ruled, that there was a famine in the land. And a certain man of Beth-lehem-judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Naomi, and the name of his two sons Malilon and Chilion, Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah. And they came into the country of Moab, and continued there.

3 And Elimelech Naomi's husband died; and she was left, and her two sons.

4 And they took them wives of the women of Moab: the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth: and they dwelled there about ten years.

5 And Malilon and Chilion died also both of them; and the woman was left of her two sons and her husband.

6 Then she arose with her daughters in law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the Lord had visited his people in giving them bread.

7 Wherefore she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters in law with her; and they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 And Naomi said unto her two daughters in law, Go, return each to her mother's house: the Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me.

9 The Lord grant you that ye may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them; and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10 And they said unto her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy people.

11 And Naomi said, Turn again, my daughters: why will ye go with me? are there yet any more sons in my womb, that they may be your husbands?

12 Turn again, my daughters, go your way; for I am too old to have an husband. If I should say, I have hope, if I should have an husband also to night, and should also bear sons;

13 Would ye tarry for them till they were grown? would ye stay for them from having husbands? nay, my daughters; for it grieveth me much for your sakes that the hand of the Lord is gone out against me.

14 And they lifted up their voice, and wept again: and Orpah kissed her mother in law; but Ruth clave unto her.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods: return thou after thy sister in law.

16 And Ruth said, Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.

REFLECTIONS UPON RUTH I.—Sin is the fruitful source of all calamities which afflict individuals, families, and nations. Famine, war, pestilence, and death, are the corrupted, poisonous, fatal streams which flow from this fountain, and which for thousands of years have spread desolation and woe over the face of the earth. Naomi, deprived of her husband and sons, was peculiarly an afflicted and bereaved widow. How she must have felt her solitude—in a land far distant from her native home! But she found God to be the husband of the widow. In him she found a counsellor, a provider, and a comforter. She sowed in tears, while God had in reserve for her in future years, and in the evening of her days, a harvest of remarkable prosperity and joy.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, who hast commanded us to address thee as our Father who art in heaven, we desire with humility and love, before engaging in the secular employments of the week, to engage in fellowship with thyself. The whole earth is full of thy glory, and all thy works praise thee, O Lord. We adore thee in thy wisdom, power, and goodness, so abundantly manifested even in creation and providence. The works of thy hand, in the heavens above, and in the earth beneath, declare that thou alone art he who stretched out the heavens, and laid the foundations of the earth.

Blessed Jesus, thou art not only the Saviour of thy people, but thou art the Creator of unnumbered worlds. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty, for all that is in heaven and in the earth is thine: thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. All things were made by thee, and without thee there was not anything made that was made. What god is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might? What mortal knows thy sovereign power? Who dares oppose, if thou command? God girds himself around with strength, and treads the rebels to the ground.

O Lord, we would approach thy throne with the voice of thanksgiving and praise. We bless thee for continuing with us thy protecting goodness during the past night. We thank thee that so many were engaged on the past Sabbath in proclaiming the mercy and grace of God to sinful men. We praise thee for the assistance afforded to thy ministering servants, and particularly to thy servant appointed in thy providence to dispense among us the invaluable oracles of Divine truth. In our walk and conversation may we manifest this day, and all our days, that we believe and feel the Gospel to which we listen; that it is not to us a dead letter, but a living principle, sanctifying our heart and regulating our life.

May our children and servants show pleasing evidence that they are impressed by a preached Gospel—that it is not to them the savour of death unto death, but of life unto life.

Let aged Christians, by means of public ordinances and private exercises, renew their strength, and find their faith become more lively and vigorous the nearer they approach the celestial world.

Sanctify to us the portion of sacred history which has now engaged our attention. We bless thee that our land has not for ages been visited by the horrors of famine, and that scarcity of bread has not compelled us to flee to distant parts of the earth. What reason have we to bless thee that we are not visited by a famine of the Word of God, nor compelled to seek the food of our souls at the peril of our lives!

Suffer us not to flee from the cross, which our heavenly Father wishes us to carry: but may we take up the cross, and follow Christ. Lord, render our present crosses blessings.

O inspire us with a superlative attachment to Christ and his cause. May all of us enter by faith on the Christian course, and pursue it with holy perseverance, till at last we reach our heavenly home. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

- 1 HE dies! the friend of sinners dies!
Lo, Salem's daughters weep around!
A solemn darkness veils the skies!
A sudden trembling shakes the ground!
- 2 Come, saints, and make your tears to flow
For him who groaned beneath your load;
He shed a thousand drops for you,
A thousand drops of richer blood.
- 3 Here's love and grief beyond degree,
The Lord of glory dies for men!
But, lo! what sudden joys we see;
Jesus the dead revives again!

WATTS.

ACTS VIII.

Ethiopian Eunuch.

AND the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert.

27 And he arose and went: and, behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship, 28 Was returning, and sitting in his chariot read Esaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

32 The place of the Scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth:

33 In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?

37 And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

39 And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and passing through he preached in all the cities, till he came to Caesarea.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS VIII.—Though angels are not visible to the Church, as in former ages, they are still ministering spirits, sent forth to minister to them who are heirs of salvation. With great delight an angel delivered the heavenly and divine message to Philip—a message which respected the salvation of one of the great men of the earth, belonging to an order of whom our Saviour said, "Not many mighty, not many noble are called." What a blessing he has not said "Not any!" Let it be our earnest prayer, that there may be an increase of piety among the great and mighty of the earth, and that kings and princes and nobles may hasten, in great numbers, to pay their homage at Immanuel's feet. There is much to admire in the Ethiopian nobleman giving all glory to God, namely, his love to the Holy Scriptures, the earnestness with which he read Divine truth, the humility and readiness with which he received instruction from Philip's lips, and the saving power which effectually applied Divine truth to his heart.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art over all, blessed for ever; and we rejoice in thy universal government. Let the nations be glad and sing for joy, for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon the earth. Blessed Jesus, thou dost reign as the God and the King of Zion; therefore, let the earth rejoice, let the multitudes of the isles be glad. We desire to unite with thy people in their expressions of joy and praise, that the Lord our Saviour reigns; let the whole earth in songs rejoice, and distant islands join their voice.

As a family, O Jesus, we would acknowledge ourselves to be thy subjects. Thou hast an infinite right to reign over us. We acknowledge thy right, and we would now affectionately and earnestly entreat thee to take each one of us under thy mediatorial dominion.

Make our children and domestics thy loving subjects. To all around them may they testify they are Christ's, and that they are crucifying the flesh, with its affections and lusts.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the very pleasing and animating account we have now read of the conversion to Christ of one who was in great power under Candace, the queen of the Ethiopians. Like him, may our great and mighty men devote a portion of their time to the daily perusal of the Scriptures. Give them a veneration for thy Word and ordinances. When they read the sacred Scriptures, may they understand what they read. Would to God that the hearts and lives of the rulers of our land were under the saving influence of the Gospel of Christ! May men of piety, acknowledging the reign of Christ, and influenced by the spirit of Christ, ever fill our places of authority. May they be able men, such as fear God, men of truth, and hating covetousness. May our governors and legislators ever remember that it is the will and command of God, that he who ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God.

We express our thanks for the institution of the holy ministry; and that it hath pleased God, through the instrumentality of men of like passions with ourselves, to confer the blessings of salvation on our ruined race. Give all thy servants grace, to make full proof of their ministry, and to be determined to know nothing among their people but Jesus Christ, and him crucified. Divine Redeemer, we bless thee for the rich and glorious truths concerning thy humiliation and exaltation contained in the everlasting Gospel, and which thy ministers have an opportunity of proclaiming in the ears of the children of men. As Philip preached Jesus to the Ethiopian stranger, may Jesus, in his person, offices, salvation, and reign, be fully preached by all who profess to be the heralds of mercy. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou wast humbled for us! O make us willing to submit to humiliation and degradation for thee! We desire for ever to admire the grace, and to sing of the wonders of thy love, in willingly laying down thy life, that we might be saved from the lowest hell, and enjoy a life of immortal glory in heaven.

We present our humble thanks for the health of body and tranquillity of mind we have enjoyed this day, and for the gracious supply of our daily returning wants.

We implore thy gracious care and protection this night with the pardon of all our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

- 1 O HAPPY soul, that lives on high,
 While men lie grovelling here!
 His hopes are fixed above the sky,
 And faith forbids his fears.
- 2 His conscience knows no secret stings,
 While peace and joy combine
 To form a life whose holy springs
 Are hidden and divine.

 His God in secret sees:
 Let earth be all in arms abroad,
 He dwells in heavenly peace.

Watts, 81, B. I.

RUTH I.

Naomi in Beth-lehem.

SO they two went until they came to Beth-lehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Beth-lehem, that all the city was moved about them; and they said, Is this Naomi?

20 And she said unto them, Call me not Naomi, call me Mara: for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me.

21 I went out full, and the Lord hath brought me home again empty: why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the Lord hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter in law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Beth-lehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

RUTH II.

AND Naomi had a kinsman of her husband's, a mighty man of wealth, of the family of Elimelech; and his name was Boaz.

2 And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go to the field, and glean ears of corn after him in whose sight I shall find grace. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter.

3 And she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers: and her hap was to light on a part of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech.

4 And, behold, Boaz came from Beth-lehem, and said unto the reapers, The Lord be with you. And they answered him, The Lord bless thee.

5 Then said Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this?

6 And the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab.

7 And she said, I pray you, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves: so she came, and hath continued even from the morning until now, that she tarried a little in the house.

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearst thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens:

9 Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them; have I not charged the young men that they shall not touch thee? and when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men have drawn.

10 Then she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, seeing I am a stranger?

11 And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been shewed me, all that thou hast done unto thy mother in law since the death of thine husband; and how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not heretofore.

REFLECTIONS UPON RUTH I., II.—It is great consolation to believers, that their God and Father in Christ prepares the cup of their lot. Does he put into that cup bitter afflictions? It is to promote spiritual health, by reducing the power and virulence of the maladies of the soul. Naomi, the bereaved widow, tasted the bitterness of sorrow; but it was mingled with the sweet honey of her heavenly Father's blessing. Wherever we look, we see marks of the goodness and benevolence of God. Every ear of corn upon the harvest-field, and gathered by the poor and destitute, proclaims the providential goodness of God. It is astonishing, the connection betwixt events of comparatively little and great importance. Ruth, a poor orphan, gleaming in the harvest-field of a man of opulence and piety, was apparently of little moment; but this led to events connected with the birth of kings, and the birth of Christ! Ruth was a female ancestress of King David and King Jesus!

PRAYER.

TRULY, O Lord, thou art a prayer-hearing God. We bless thee that the prayers we presented when we last assembled around the domestic altar thou hast graciously answered. Thou hast protected our dwelling, and preserved our persons; thou hast given us peace and rest. Again we appear before thee as a family, in the capacity of humble supplicants, to seek a renewal of thy mercies to us this day; and that thou wouldest graciously preserve us from the corruptions of our own hearts, the temptations of the wicked one, and the snares of a deceiving world. In all our temporal engagements may we be under the management of thy wisdom and the control of thy grace, that we may be diligent in the business which respects time, and fervent in spirit as to the solemn realities which respect eternity.

Have mercy on our aged friends, amid all the weakness and infirmity connected with that period of life. O let not their age be borne down with poverty! May their wants be supplied abundantly out of thy fulness, and their minds not be overwhelmed with anxiety about their temporal support. If tried with poverty, may they resemble Naomi in contentment of heart, and in submission to the will and arrangements of a good and a righteous God.

Lord, have mercy on our poor relatives. Though poor as to the objects of this world, O may they be rich in grace, rich in faith, rich in enjoyment, and rich in the possession and exercise of a lively hope of the boundless blessedness of the heavenly state.

Preserve us all from the love of earthly riches. Suffer us not to love that which can never satisfy the desires of an immortal soul. If we are affected with a worldly, covetous spirit, mercifully and speedily deliver us from that love of the world, which is incompatible with the love of God. If any of our beloved relatives are under the dominion of an avaricious spirit, O rescue them from the fetters of their captivity, and fill their hearts with the love of Christ, and raise their affections to the sublime realities of the heavenly world.

O Lord, may our dear children bear a resemblance to Ruth in affection to their parents, in submission to thy will, and in dependence on thy providence.

Give us grace, O Lord, to see thy hand in all our afflictions. May we ever remember that, though thou dost not afflict thy people willingly, thou dost afflict them wisely and mercifully. Teach us that, though thou takest no pleasure in the afflictions of thy people, thou takest delight in the consequences of their afflictions—the peaceable fruits of righteousness which, by thy blessing, they afterwards yield.

We seek from our God contentment with our lot. Often may we reflect on what we deserve, even thy wrath and curse; and may we be amazed at the multitude of undeserved mercies with which the cup of our lot is filled, and overflows.

Lord, hear these our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus, our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

- 1 NOT unto us; but thee alone,
Blessed Lamb! be glory given;
Here shall thy praises be begun,
And carried on in heaven.
- 2 The hosts of spirits now with thee
Eternal anthems sing:
To imitate them here, lo! we

ANON.

ACTS IX.

Paul's Conversion.

AND Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest,

2 And desired of him letters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

3 And as he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven:

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

5 And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: it is hard for thee to kick against the thorns.

6 And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.

7 And the men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.

9 And he was three days without sight, and neither did eat nor drink.

10 And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias; and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord.

11 And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and inquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of Tarsus: for, behold, he prayeth, 12 And hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight.

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem:

14 And here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that call on thy name.

15 But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way: for he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel:

16 For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake.

17 And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS IX.—Saul, in his unconverted state, furnished an example, seldom equalled, of the most deep-rooted, malignant enmity against Christ, his cause, and his people. He was determined upon the very and utter extinction of the Christian faith. Such attempts are as foolish as an attempt to obliterate the sun from the heavens, or to pluck up the everlasting hills by the roots. The religion of Christ is a tree planted by the right hand of Jehovah, and therefore the power of earth and hell combined can never be successful in its destruction. How marvellous and how marked the conversion of Saul, which disarmed in a moment the most violent and determined enemy of the faith—which changed the most malignant and furious adversary into the most devoted and zealous friend, and which made a persecutor of the faith a preacher and advocate of the truth. Like converted Saul, may each one of us say, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the sovereign disposer of all events. Adversity and prosperity are equally under thy control. We have reason to exclaim, in the language of thy servant Job, Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil? Thou art he who maketh sore, and bindeth up; who woundeth, and whose hands make whole.

We thank thee that we have been preserved in health this day, and that we are enabled, in the enjoyment of many comforts, to conclude the day before thy mercy-seat. We bless thee in behalf of all our relatives and friends whom thou hast preserved from tasting the bitter cup of affliction. We look up unto thee, O Lord, as our defender from evil this night, and humbly hope that thou wilt restore us to the light of another day.

Blessed Jesus, we would rely on thee as our defence. In the prospect of all the sufferings, disappointments, and dangers to which we may be exposed in the future period of our lives, we would look to thee as our defence. We will wait upon thee, for God is our defence. In the past thou hast defended us; in the future be thou our strong rock, and for an house of defence to save us.

As for our beloved children, convince them of their danger, of their helpless situation, and of the necessity of Jesus as their defence. Let each one of them be instructed by thy Spirit thus to cleave to thee as their only defence, and say, Thou art my rock and my fortress.

We supplicate God in behalf of all our relatives and friends; and particularly those who are afflicted and aged. Whether they be afflicted by the temptations of Satan, or by bodily disease, or by poverty, or by the misconduct of those closely related to them, let thy grace, which is sufficient, be sufficient for them; and be thou a very present help to them in trouble. May their and our afflictions be sanctified, and lead us constantly to thee our God, the blessed rock that is higher than man.

We now pray that the reading of the Scriptures may be graciously accompanied by the illuminating influences of the Holy Ghost. May the saving light which fell on the mind of Paul under the walls of Damascus, fall on ours. May not one of us die in a state of spiritual blindness. Heaven forbid that the light of conviction should never shine on our souls till we open our eyes in the world of despair! Our heart is naturally filled with enmity against Christ, his Gospel, and his salvation. O mercifully subdue it, and let the blessed light of saving grace shine within us, and surround us. Let our minds be in a state of loving subjection to the will of God, that, with St. Paul, we may be ready to be, to do, or to suffer whatever our heavenly Father may require. Would to God that each one of us were saying, in the language of the converted Apostle, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? Holy Spirit, take our minds and our bodies, our faculties, affections, and talents, and let all be consecrated to the service of our God and Saviour.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

To say, My Father, God!
Lord! at thy feet I fain would lie,
And learn to kiss the rod.
- 2 I would submit to all thy will,
For thou art good and wise:
Let every anxious thought be still,

RUTH II.

Ruth gleaning.

AND when she was risen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and reproach her not:

16 And let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her, and leave them, that she may glean them, and rebuke her not.

17 So she gleaned in the field until even, and beat out that she had gleaned: and it was about an ephah of barley.

18 And she took it up, and went into the city: and her mother in law saw what she had gleaned: and she brought forth, and gave to her that she had reserved after she was sufficed.

19 And her mother in law said unto her, Where hast thou gleaned to day? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that did take knowledge of thee. And she shewed her mother in law with whom she had wrought, and said, The man's name with whom I wrought to day is Boaz.

20 And Naomi said unto her daughter in law, Blessed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead. And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, one of our next kinsmen.

21 And Ruth the Moabitess said, He said unto me also, Thou shalt keep fast by my young men, until they have ended all my harvest.

22 And Naomi said unto Ruth her daughter in law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they meet thee not in any other field.

23 So she kept fast by the maidens of Boaz to glean unto the end of barley harvest and of wheat harvest; and dwelt with her mother in law.

RUTH III.

Ruth and Boaz.

THEN Naomi her mother in law said unto her, My daughter, shall I not seek rest for thee, that it may be well with thee?

2 And now is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? Behold, he winnoweth barley to night in the threshingfloor.

3 Wash thyself therefore, and anoint thee, and put thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking.

4 And it shall be, when he lieth down, that thou shalt mark the place where he shall lie, and thou shalt go in and uncover his feet, and lay thee down; and he will tell thee what thou shalt do.

5 And she said unto her, All that thou sayest unto me I will do.

REFLECTIONS UPON RUTH II., III.—The gleanings of Ruth, and the smiles of providence which accompanied her humble, but useful occupation, should remind us of the rich mercies which are to be gleaned in the sacred fields of Divine ordinances, where there is enough and to spare. Like Ruth may we glean with diligence; let us never weary in well doing, "for in due time we shall reap, if we faint not." Boaz was blessed of the Lord. He was one of the ancestors of the humanity of Christ. The Spirit of God dwelt in him. Grace shed lustre on his character and life. His wealth was not suffered to lift up his heart with vanity, but was made subservient to the glory of God, and the interests of the poor and needy. As a "near kinsman," Boaz was typical of Christ, who has most mercifully made himself our near Kinsman, by becoming our Surety, taking upon him our nature, and redeeming for us the lost inheritance.

PRAYER.

WE adore and praise thee, O Lord, as the fountain of all blessedness, and as the God of all comfort. The most desirable of earthly objects is nothing without thee. In every earthly comfort there is emptiness without thy blessing. Vanity of vanities, all is vanity! Without thee, our light is darkness; our wisdom, folly; our wealth, poverty; and all our temporal comforts, misery in disguise. It is thine appointment, O Lord, that no blessing can be found apart from thyself, and that they who prefer the creature before the Creator, shall only find labour, disappointment, and sorrow.

We thank thee for the most animating account we have now read of the submission and contentment of Naomi and Ruth, when tried by poverty and struggling with indigence. We bless thee for the manifestations of those shining graces in the old age of the one and in the youth of the other; in the one stooping down to meet the grave, and in the other at the commencement of the active journey of human life.

Should we be visited with poverty, and called upon to struggle hard for the bread that perisheth, with Paul may we learn, in whatsoever state we are, therewith to be content. We bless thee, O Lord, for the example we have now read of poverty and piety united. In all our temporal difficulties, may we possess godliness with contentment, which is great gain.

Lord, have mercy on the poor in our land, and give them an inheritance of grace here and of glory hereafter. May they not be cast down, because thou art refusing them an earthly inheritance, which is neither satisfactory nor durable; but may they rejoice that thou art willing to give them an inheritance which includes the joys of heaven, which will fill the boundless desires of the soul, and continue through the ceaseless ages of eternity.

Have mercy on the graceless poor. Blessed God, bring them under the sound of the Gospel, and the moralising influences of the ordinances of religion. May they resemble Ruth and Naomi, and be the possessors of that piety which will sweeten poverty, lighten the burden of indigence, and animate their souls with the cheering prospects of another and a better world, where the chilling blasts of want and suffering are for ever unknown.

Have mercy on the indolent poor, and may they resemble Ruth and Naomi in diligence and industry. Rescue them from those careless habits which ever carry along with them want and disgrace.

O Lord, have mercy on the gracious poor. May their spiritual wealth rapidly increase. May scarcity of this world's comfort be connected with abundant supplies of heavenly enjoyment.

May our dear children acquire that diligence in the things of time which, by thy blessing, will enrich them with many comforts; and may they acquire that diligence in the service of God which will be the harbinger of the joys of heaven.

We thank thee that thou hast not been unmindful of us during the past night. Give us grace to serve thee with conscientious diligence this day. Forgive our sins, and hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

 And wet their couch with tears;
 They wrestled hard, as we do now,

ACTS IX.

Paul and Dorcas.

AND after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counsel to kill him:

24 But their laying await was known of Saul. And they watched the gates day and night to kill him.

25 Then the disciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a basket.

26 And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he essayed to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.

28 And he was with them coming in and going out at Jerusalem.

29 And he spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the Grecians: but they went about to slay him.

30 Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Caesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 Then had the churches rest throughout all Judæa and Galilee and Samaria, and were edified; and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied.

36 Now there was at Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: this woman was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did.

37 And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick, and died: whom when they had washed, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 And forasmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter arose, and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows stood by him weeping, and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed; and turning him to the body said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: and when she saw Peter, she sat up.

41 And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up: and when he had called the saints and widows, presented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa; and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass, that he tarried many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS IX.—Very soon after Saul's conversion, his sincerity was brought to a severe test. His life was sought, and the Jewish enemies of Christ and his cross longed to shed his blood. Their intended victim was especially under the care and guardianship of Christ. He was destined to lead a life of unparalleled usefulness, to proclaim the Gospel in nations and kingdoms, to plant numerous churches, and in many places of the earth to overturn the worship of idols, and to establish the worship of the only living and true God—the God of salvation; therefore no craft of his enemies could succeed in depriving him of life until he had completed the work which his Divine Saviour gave him to do. When that work was done, when he finished his course, he was ready to receive the martyr's crown, and he nobly died the martyr's death! Like him, may our lives be distinguished by usefulness, and at last may we receive the crown of life!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, and our fathers' God, we adore thee as the God and the guide and the guardian of all those families which fear thy name. Thou didst promise to be the God of the families of Israel: O be the God of our family, and of all the families with which we are connected. Thou dost set the solitary in families; thou hast formed us a family; in our family capacity thou hast preserved us; all our wants, as a family, thou hast most graciously and abundantly supplied: and we trust thou hast given us some desire to encompass the domestic altar as we now do, and to supplicate the salvation of Christ, in whom all the families of the earth shall be blessed. O Lord, we seek not for ourselves, as a family, worldly wealth, distinction, or power; but we would now most earnestly and humbly pray, that thou wouldst give us the treasures of the covenant of grace, the blessings of salvation, the sure mercies of David. We seek an alliance with thy family, the Church. May all our domestics, and may all our beloved children, be members of the family of Jesus, and show to all around that they bear a saving resemblance to their Father who is in heaven.

Have mercy on those families with which we are connected, and who are living without the fear and the worship of God. Lord, we pray for them with emotions of affection, earnestness, and pity. We mourn over their circumstances, and cry to heaven that their hearts may be brought back to God. May these words of the inspired volume most deeply affect their souls: Pour out thy fury on the heathen that know thee not, and on the families that call not on thy name. Suffer them no longer to live in a course of disobedience to thy laws and neglect of thine ordinances, which must inevitably bring down upon them the vials of thy wrath.

We pray, O Lord, that our minds may at all times be suitably impressed when we read thy holy Word. Give us the satisfying evidence that, like Paul, we are converted by Divine grace. May we be in reality on the Lord's side. Boldly, yet prudently, may we ever testify to all around us that we are not ashamed of Christ. O Lord, give a double portion of thy Spirit to all thy ministering servants. May zeal for the honour of Christ, and may compassion for immortal souls, be their animating motives in sounding the Gospel trumpet.

Under the successful labours of thy servants, may all the churches have rest, living in harmony with each other, preserving the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. May all the churches be edified by the faithful preaching of the whole truth, as Christ himself has given it. May all the churches walk in the fear of the Lord; and may they be multiplied in the comfort of the Holy Ghost.

May the example of Dorcas be extensively imitated by all the daughters of Zion; and may thousands, and tens of thousands, the recipients of their counsels and their charities, have reason to call them blessed.

We thank thee for thy care of us during the past day; and we pray for a continuance of thy kindness during the night. Lord, hear our petitions, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

THE HOLY SPIRIT INVOKED.
Psalm. Psalter. Newcastle. New Eagle Street. A. M.

1 COME, Holy Spirit, come!
 With energy divine;
 And on this poor benighted soul
 With beams of mercy shine.

2 From the celestial hills,
 Life, light, and joy dispense;
 And may I daily, hourly feel
 Thy quickening influence.

3 Melt, melt this frozen heart:
 This stubborn will subdue;
 Each evil passion overcome,
 And form me all anew.

BEDDOME.

RUTH III.
Ruth and Boaz.

AND it came to pass at midnight, that the man was afraid, and turned himself: and, behold, a woman lay at his feet.

9 And he said, Who art thou? And she answered, I am Ruth thine handmaid: spread therefore thy skirt over thine handmaid; for thou art a near kinsman.

10 And he said, Blessed be thou of the Lord, my daughter: for thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than at the beginning, inasmuch as thou followedst not young men, whether poor or rich.

11 And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for all the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman.

12 And now it is true that I am thy near kinsman: howbeit there is a kinsman nearer than I.

13 Tarry this night, and it shall be in the morning, that if he will perform unto thee the part of a kinsman, well; let him do the kinsman's part: but if he will not do the part of a kinsman to thee, then will I do the part of a kinsman to thee, as the Lord liveth: lie down until the morning.

14 And she lay at his feet until the morning; and she arose up before one could know another. And he said, Let it not be known that a woman came into the floor.

15 Also he said, Bring the vail that thou hast upon thee, and hold it. And when she held it, he measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her: and she went into the city.

16 And when she came to her mother in law, she said, Who art thou, my daughter? And she told her all that the man had done to her.

17 And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty unto thy mother in law.

RUTH IV.
Ruth and Boaz.

THEN went Boaz up to the gate, and sat him down there: and, behold, the kinsman of whom Boaz spake came by; unto whom he said, Ho, such a one! turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside, and sat down.

2 And he took ten men of the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat down.

3 And he said unto the kinsman, Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech's:

4 And I thought to advertise thee, saying, Buy it before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it: but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know; for there is none to redeem it, beside thee; and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it.

5 Then said Boaz, What day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance.

Reflections upon RUTH III., IV.—Is Jesus our near kinsman? Has he become our Surety, and furnished the most astonishing displays of his condescension, mercy, and love? Then let us with humility and confidence fall down before him, and pray, "Spread over us the skirt of thy righteousness, for thou art our near kinsman: bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh." He will not—he cannot lend a deaf ear to our cry. As Boaz answered the prayer of Ruth, Jesus will mercifully answer our supplication. He will do unto us all that we require; he will bring forth the best robe and put it on us. He will take us into covenant with himself; he will invest us with spiritual and imperishable wealth; and, at last, place us beside himself upon his throne.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we acknowledge our inability to approach thy throne in prayer, with becoming feelings of heart, without the assistance of the Holy Ghost. Divine Spirit, we know not what to pray for without thy teaching; and we cannot present our prayers with earnestness, reverence, and faith, without thine influence. Our Father who art in heaven, we implore the fulfilment of thy promise in our experience, as a family and as individuals: 'This is my covenant with them, saith the Lord: my Spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed. I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and I will make known my words unto you. Holy Spirit, we would breathe after thee! Display to us the light of truth, and make us know and choose the way.

When we read the Scriptures, may we enjoy the teaching of the Spirit. When we hear the Gospel, by the power of the Spirit may our hearts be opened, and may Divine truth enter and reign for ever. Let the Holy Spirit visit all the churches. Let them wait and long and pray for thy gracious visits. Come, Holy Spirit, and visit withered, formal churches, where no sacred vitality now appears. Let there be a shaking among the dry bones in our valley of vision.

Merciful Spirit, let thine influences descend upon our offspring. Earnestly we pray that they and our servants may be among the living in Jerusalem.

Praise to thy name, O Jesus, that thou art revealed to us as our near kinsman. Thou didst not take upon thee the nature of angels, but the nature of men. Glory to thy name that thou didst espouse our nature, that thou mightest redeem for us our lost inheritance. Eternal praises to thee, O Lamb of God, that thou hast bought back the inheritance by thy precious blood. Teach us more and more to see the necessity of thy righteousness, for our acceptance with God, and for the pardon of sin. We come to seek for each one of us an interest in thy righteousness. O spread this thy skirt over us, for thou art our near kinsman. We are encouraged to come, and boldly to seek this comely garment; for thou wilt not cast us away. Thou hast said, Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out. May none of us enter the valley and shadow of death, till we are able to sing, We are not redeemed with corruptible things, such as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot.

O Jesus, fill our hearts with love to thee, as our redeeming God. May we love thee more than the nearest and dearest of earthly relatives. May a knowledge of thy personal excellences fill our hearts with a superlative love. May a knowledge of thy sufferings and death, a knowledge of the infinitely valuable price thou didst freely give to purchase for us the joys of heaven, fill us with that ardent love which many waters cannot quench, nor floods drown.

We thank thee for the mercies of the night; and may we live this day as thy redeemed subjects and loving children.

Graciously hear, pardon, and accept, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

BREATHING AFTER THE SPIRIT.

Funeral Thought. New Caenden. Brighthelmstone. c. m.

- 1 COME, Holy Spirit, heavenly dove,
With all thy quickening powers,
Kindle a flame of sacred love
In these cold hearts of ours.
- 2 Look, how we grovel here below,
Fond of these trifling toys;
Our souls can neither fly nor go
To reach eternal joys.
- 3 Dear Lord! and shall we ever lie
At this poor dying rate?
Our love so faint, so cold to thee,
And thine to us so great?

Watts, 34, E. II.

ACTS X.

Peter and Cornelius.

THERE was a certain man in Caesarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band.

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.

3 He saw in a vision evidently about the ninth hour of the day an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter:

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him continually;

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 On the morrow, as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the housetop to pray about the sixth hour.

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten; but while they made ready, he fell into a trance.

11 And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were all manner of fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

14 But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

16 This was done thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

17 Now, while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate,

18 And called, and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS X.—Though a military life is most unfavourable to piety, yet even among military men have been found examples of distinguished holiness and grace: witness a Joshua, and a Cornelius. Let us impartially inquire whether, like Cornelius, we are devout, walking in the fear of God, maintaining religious order in our families, merciful to the indigent and afflicted, and constant and earnest in our approaches to a throne of grace? Un-speakable the pleasure, distinguished the honour, and immense the benefit, of loving and believing approaches to the throne of grace.

This is more especially the case when we have the humble, believing conviction that our prayers are accepted and answered. Numerous are the predictions of the calling of the Gentiles into the Church of Christ: let us rejoice that these prophecies are already so amply accomplished.

PRAYER.

GREAT and merciful God, graciously give us thy Holy Spirit, while we engage in our domestic solemnities. Say to us as a family, My spirit remaineth among you, fear not. We have now read that Cornelius was a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house. We earnestly seek that down-pouring of thy spirit, that will make the heads and the members of our family a society of thy devout and faithful worshippers. We would say to each other at this time, O come, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our maker. Lord, enable us to worship thee in the beauty of holiness. May our minds be suitably impressed with the nature of that worship which is acceptable to thee. Thou art the searcher of the heart, and may we ever remember, in all our approaches to thy throne, that thou desirest truth in the inward part. O make us in the inward part to know wisdom. And teach us to offer up prayers in the name of Christ, and under the influence of humble and penitent hearts. Those sacrifices which are acceptable to thee are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart thou wilt not despise. May we have such a delight in thy service, and may we derive such benefit from thy worship, that we shall join the Church, and pray, that vain and worldly thoughts may be ever banished from our minds. May we soon obtain a gracious visit from our Lord, and enjoy the delights of his fellowship.

We pray for an increase of worshipping and devout families. May our rulers, both civil and military, resemble the centurion Cornelius. Let not their families discover an absence of the fear and worship of God. In their situations of influence, may they show an example of piety and devotedness to Christ, which may stir up other families to seek and serve God. May our families of rank and power devote their wealth and influence to the honour of thy name, and to the prosperity of thy kingdom. May their prayers and their alms come up for a memorial before God. May the graceless and careless families of the great call to their remembrance the situation of Dives in the habitations of the lost, who was for ever stripped of all his delicacies and fond delights, and who was without even a drop of water to cool his tormented and parched tongue.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the means thou hast appointed for the conversion of sinners, and the building up of saints. We bless thee that we so richly enjoy these means. May the reading and preaching of the Word be rendered effectual in the conversion of all of us now before thee who have not yet felt the saving power, nor tasted the refreshing sweetness of Divine grace.

Let all our children be made the early trophies of a Saviour's conquest. Let the beginning of their days, and the youthful ardour of their lives, be devoted to Jesus; and to a good old age may they live the ornaments of his Gospel.

We thank thee for all the blessings of thy providence and grace we have enjoyed this day. Let our daily offences be forgiven, and our daily duties crowned with thy blessings. We thank God for a place of abode, and that we are not wandering, desolate exiles. We thank thee that we have a bed on which to lay down our head, while our Saviour, the Lord of the universe, was without that comfort, while he tabernacled in circumstances of great humility among the sons of men. We implore the providential protection of our God this night, with the answer of our prayers, and the pardon of our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

COMMUNION OF SAINTS.

Whitby. Mablethorpe. Keston. Flambury.

A. M.

- 1 BLEST are the sons of peace,
Whose hearts and hopes are one,
Whose kind designs to serve and please
Through all their actions run.
- 2 Blest is the pious house
Where zeal and friendship meet,
Their songs of praise, their mingled vows,
Make their communion sweet.
- 3 Thus when on Aaron's head
They poured the rich perfume,
The oil through all his raiment spread,
And pleasure filled the room.

WATTS, Ps. 133.

RUTH IV.

Early History of David's Family.

AND the kinsman said, I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I mar mine own inheritance: redeem thou my right to thyself; for I cannot redeem it.

7 Now this was the manner in former time in Israel concerning redeeming and concerning changing, for to confirm all things; a man plucked off his shoe, and gave it to his neighbour: and this was a testimony in Israel.

8 Therefore the kinsman said unto Boaz, Buy it for thee. So he drew off his shoe.

9 And Boaz said unto the elders, and unto all the people, Ye are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi.

10 Moreover Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this day.

11 And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders, said, We are witnesses. The LORD make the woman that is come into thine house like Rachel and like Leah, which two did build the house of Israel: and do thou worthily in Ephratah, and be famous in Beth-lehem:

12 And let thy house be like the house of Pharez, whom Tamar bare unto Judah, of the seed which the LORD shall give thee of this young woman.

13 So Boaz took Ruth, and she was his wife: and she bare a son.

14 And the women said unto Naomi, Blessed be the LORD, which hath not left thee this day without a kinsman, that his name may be famous in Israel.

15 And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy life, and a nourisher of thine old age: for thy daughter in law, which loveth thee, which is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him.

16 And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it.

17 And the women her neighbours gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.

18 Now these are the generations of Pharez: Pharez begat Hebron,

19 And Hebron begat Ram, and Ram begat Amminadab,

20 And Amminadah begat Nahshon, and Nahshon begat Salmon, 21 And Salmon begat Boaz, and Boaz begat Obed,

22 And Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David.

REFLECTIONS UPON RUTH IV.—Infinitely precious is the redemption of the soul. No man can by any means redeem his brother, or give for him a sufficient ransom. Thousands of lambs and oxen offered in sacrifice cannot redeem the soul. Rivers of oil, of the most fragrant perfume, poured out, cannot redeem the soul. Even a first-born presented upon the altar, or the fruit of the body, offered for the sin of the soul, can make no atonement for human transgression. None but Christ, none but Christ was sufficient to make atonement for human guilt, or to recover the lost inheritance. For this purpose he has shed his blood, he hath laid down his life. May these words, sweeter than the music of angels, sink deep into our hearts, and fill our souls with joy unspeakable, "Deliver him from going down to the pit, for I have found a ransom." What a delightful change was produced in the circumstances of Ruth, through her alliance to Boaz. But who can conceive the change produced in the state and circumstances of a soul, when it becomes savingly united to Christ?

PRAYER.

O LORD, encouraged by thy promises, invitations, and commands, we draw near to thy throne of grace, and we would affectionately and humbly unite in presenting our morning sacrifice. We adore and praise thee for all those endearing and gracious names by which thou hast made thyself known. We bless thee that thou hast said and promised, I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters. As a family and as individuals, we would now, by the assistance of the Holy Spirit, claim an interest in thee as our Father. Thou, Lord, art our Father: we are the clay, and thou art our potter; we are all the work of thine hands.

We confess we have been disobedient children. We have wandered far from thee our Father; and unless thou hadst sought and found us, we still had been seeking after the wicked devices of our own heart. If thou hadst not sought us, and brought us under the means of grace, and conducted us within the fold of thy visible Church, long ere now, we had been in the abodes of the lost, and our doom of misery and punishment irrevocably fixed. Lord, forgive our wanderings, and may we not only be brought back to thee, but may our hearts be fixed on God. With the Psalmist, may we have reason to sing, Our heart is fixed, our heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord.

Take the hearts of our dear children, and let them be fixed on Christ. May they be fixed on his person, and admire him: may they be fixed on his wise counsels, and obey them; may they be fixed on his ordinances, and observe them.

Bless to us the account we have read of the piety and affection of Boaz and Ruth. We thank thee, O Lord, for pious relatives. Ever may we consider it a greater honour to be related to those who are good than to those who are great. Highly may we value our pious friends. May we value them as the children of God: may we value their counsels, and follow them; may we value their example, and imitate it; may we value their prayers, knowing that the effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

In all new relations and connections in life, may we earnestly seek to be associated with those who breathe the Spirit of Jesus, and who are clothed with his righteousness. May we travel together on earth with those who shall assist us in prosecuting our journey to the heavenly state. May it be our object and delight to be associated with those here below with whom we hope to enjoy eternal fellowship before the throne of God.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for the luxuriant fields of Gospel ordinances, where Gentiles as well as Jews are permitted to enter, and glean the truths of Divine wisdom and the blessings of eternal life. Blessed Saviour, we praise thee for putting in our way abundance of promises, exceeding great and precious. May all of us embrace such invaluable opportunities, and may we reap a rich harvest of heavenly grace.

We thank thee that we have enjoyed thy watchful care during the past night; and may we walk with God this day.

Hear, O Lord, our humble and imperfect prayer, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

THE SPIRITUAL CORONATION.

Coronation. Coronation New. Miles's Lane.

C. M.

- 1 ALL hail, the power of Jesus' name!
Let angels prostrate fall:
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown him Lord of all.
- 2 Crown him, ye martyrs of our God,
Who from his altar call;
Extol the stem of Jesse's rod,
And crown him Lord of all.
- 3 Let every kindred, every tribe,
On this terrestrial ball,
To him all majesty ascribe,
And crown him Lord of all.

DUNCAN.

ACTS X.

Gospel first preached to the Gentiles.

THEN called he them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

24 And the morrow after they entered into Cæsarea. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen and near friends.

25 And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up; I myself also am a man.

27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation; but God hath shewed me that I should not call any man common or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for: I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me?

30 And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, 31 And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.

32 Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea side; who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

33 Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons:

35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

36 The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ: (he is Lord of all:)

37 That word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judæa, and began from Galilee, after the baptism, which John preached;

38 How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS X.—How exceedingly interesting to see St. Peter setting out upon his journey to preach the Gospel for the first time to the Gentiles, on which occasion the first addition of Gentiles to the Christian Church should take place. He, though inspired, had prejudices to remove. These by the miraculous vision of the descended sheet from heaven, were speedily dispelled; and thus he was enabled, under the high sanction of the King and Head of the Church, to proceed, and invite, and persuade Gentile sinners to enter into his Christian fold, and to become the subjects of his mediatorial kingdom. Faithfully and fully, earnestly and successfully he proclaimed the doctrines of the Gospel, and made known the unsearchable riches of Christ; and thus commenced the entrance of the Gentiles into the Christian Church.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, mercifully impart unto us thy grace, that we may draw near to the throne of our God with reverence and godly fear. We adore thee, O Lord, as the God of providence, as the sovereign disposer of all events, and as having and exercising the right of managing all creatures as seemeth thee meet. We acknowledge thy wise and righteous sovereignty in all the afflictions which have come upon us in this vale of tears. Thou hast caused grief, but it hath been in mercy. When we have been laid upon the bed of languishing, it has been in mercy. When we have been injured in our temporal circumstances, when our plans have failed, when our hopes have been frustrated, it has been all in mercy. When we have been deprived by death of dear and valuable relatives, we acknowledge it has been all in mercy. Thou didst not forsake us, thou hast not cast away our prayer, neither hast thou turned thy mercy from us. As a Father, thou hast had compassion upon us, according to the multitude of thy mercies. Thou hast been our help, and a very present help in the time of trouble. We thank thee that thou art saying to us, in the time of danger, of suffering, and of sorrow, O Israel, trust thou in the Lord, he is thy help and thy shield. Ever, ever may we as a family be among the number of those of whom it is said, Happy are they who have the God of Jacob for their help.

May our hearts be duly sensible of the unmerited kindness we have received this day. Teach us to look on all our temporal blessings as new covenant blessings, and as flowing to us through the channel of our Saviour's righteousness.

As the shades of night are beginning to surround us, we are reminded of our dependence upon thee; therefore we renew our application to thee our God, for protection to ourselves and all in whom we feel interested. O give us that lively faith in Christ by which we shall look upon the night of death as the harbinger of the glorious day of life immortal in the skies. Give us that faith in Jesus which will teach us to say, in the prospect of that night: When time with us shall be no more, we have a building with God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

We humbly seek the blessing of our God on the Word now read. May we as a family admire and imitate the holy example of Cornelius. As he anxiously and affectionately assembled his kinsfolk and friends to hear the Gospel proclaimed by Peter, may we employ all the means in our power with our careless connections, to bring them under a preached Gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile.

To all our children may the Gospel be a joyful sound; and may they earnestly seek and believingly receive at the hand of Jesus the remission of all their sins.

What reason have we to rejoice, O Lord, that the Gentiles are not excluded from the Church of Christ! We thank God that we live in that period of the world when we see an ample fulfilment of this promise: And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious.

Lord, hasten the day when Jews and Gentiles shall be united together in one sheepfold, acknowledging Jesus as their exalted Lord.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our only Mediator. Amen.

DEVOTING THE SOUL TO GOD.

Weymouth. Burton. Collier Row. Kibworth.

- 1 AND will the eternal King
So mean a gift reward?
That offering, Lord! with joy we bring,
Which thine own hand prepared.
- 2 We own thy various claim;
And to thine altar move,
The willing victims of thy grace,
And bound with cords of love.
- 3 Descend, celestial fire!
The sacrifice inflame:
So shall a grateful odour rise
Through our Redeemer's name.

DODDRIDGE.

1 SAMUEL I.

Hannah's Grief and Prayer.

NOW there was a certain man of Ramathaim-zophim, of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, an Ephrathite:

2 And he had two wives; the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other Peninnah: and Peninnah had children, but Hannah had no children.

3 And this man went up out of his city yearly to worship and to sacrifice unto the Lord of hosts in Shiloh. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinhas, the priests of the Lord, were there.

4 And when the time was that Elkanah offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and her daughters, portions.

5 But unto Hannah he gave a worthy portion; for he loved Hannah: but the Lord had shut up her womb.

6 And her adversary also provoked her sore, for to make her fret, because the Lord had shut up her womb.

7 And as he did so year by year, when she went up to the house of the Lord, so she provoked her; therefore she wept, and did not eat.

8 Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I better to thee than ten sons?

9 So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk. (Now Eli the priest sat upon a seat by a post of the temple of the Lord.)

10 And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord, and wept sore.

11 And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life, and there shall no razor come upon his head.

12 And it came to pass, as she continued praying before the Lord, that Eli marked her mouth.

13 Now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli thought she had been drunken.

14 And Eli said unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from thee.

15 And Hannah answered and said, No, my lord, I am a woman of a sorrowful spirit; I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured out my soul before the Lord.

16 Count not thine handmaid for a daughter of Belial: for out of the abundance of my complaint and grief have I spoken hitherto.

EXPLANATIONS FROM 1 SAMUEL I.—Elkanah was greatly honoured in being the father of one of the most distinguished of Old Testament prophets. His name signifies, "God is jealous." This should re- mind us that God is jealous as well as merciful. He is, and must be, jealous of his glory. Let us, therefore, under the blessed influence of filial fear and love, beware of trifling with his prerogatives. Let it be the delight of our hearts to give unto the Lord our God, even our God and Father in Christ, the glory due unto his name. In the mistake which the aged Eli formed of Hannah, we see a striking illustration of that truth, "Man judgeth from the outward appearance, but God sooth the heart." Blessed are they who are upright before God.

PRAYER.

ALMIGHTY Creator and gracious Father, what reason have we to bless and magnify thy name, that thou hast formed us rational beings, that thou hast given us faculties and powers, by which we are not only placed above the beasts which perish, but bear a resemblance to angels, the loftiest order of created intelligences! We bless thee that thou hast given us minds formed for knowing, loving, and enjoying thee. We thank thee for the faculty of speech, by which we are fitted for the enjoyment of each other's fellowship, and of imparting to each other, as the followers of the Lamb of God, pleasures resembling the joys of heaven.

We would mourn and weep over the sad and melancholy change which sin has effected upon our nature. We come to thee our God, that our souls may be delivered from the love and reign of sin, and that all the faculties and affections of our mind may obtain a blessed freedom from spiritual captivity. Evermore give us thy grace, that we may live up to the great end of our being—the glory and the service of God.

We thank the Giver of all good for the comforts of the past night. Surely it becometh us to begin the day with thanksgiving and praise. O Almighty Father, gracious Lord, the kind guardian of our days, let our hearts continually record thy mercies in early songs of praise.

We implore thy presence, direction, and help, in all the lawful avocations and duties of the day. In this concluding day of the week, may we show forth thy praise, not only with our lips, but in our lives. May we live this day as those who anticipate the pleasure of entering into thy courts on the approaching Sabbath, to hear of immortality, and enjoy fellowship with the Father, and with his Son, Jesus Christ.

May the reading of the Scriptures at this time show us the importance of families living together in unity, and the necessity of cultivating gentleness and love, and banishing all malice and jealousy and envy. As a family, may we live in the exercise of all the Christian graces and affections. May we bear one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ.

Let the love of Christ reign in the hearts of all our children. May they not only love one another with natural affection, as children of the same family, but may they love each other as members of the family of Jesus, as fellow-heirs of a heavenly inheritance.

Teach us, O Lord, like Hannah, when our minds are affected with grief, to betake ourselves to earnest prayer. May we know what prayer is, and what the relief is which prayer affords. O give us the golden key of prayer, by which we can unlock the treasury of heaven. Convince us, that if we live in the neglect of prayer, we deprive ourselves of the greatest blessings, and deliberately shut ourselves out from converse with God, whose fellowship forms the chief enjoyment of heaven. May we know what it is to pour out our souls unto God in earnest supplications.

Hast thou answered our prayers? Lord, we praise thee for this distinguished mark of thy love. Give us grace, O Lord, to continue instant in prayer, till we enter the heavenly world, where prayer will be exchanged for praise.

Hear, and answer, and forgive, for Christ's sake, our Advocate and Surety. Amen.

THE GENTILES CALLED.

Buckingham. Swanwick. Oxford. Charlestown. c. x.

- 1 PRAISE waits in Zion, Lord, for thee,
There shall our vows be paid;
Thou hast an ear when sinners pray,
All flesh shall seek thine aid.
- 2 Lord, our iniquities prevail,
But pardoning grace is thine,
And thou wilt grant us power and skill
To conquer every sin.
- 3 In answering what thy church requests,
Thy truth and terror shine,
And works of dreadful righteousness
Fulfil thy kind design. WATTS, Ps. 65, p. 1.

ACTS X.

Gentiles Converted.

AND they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost.

46 For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, 47 Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?

48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

ACTS XI.

Peter accused for going to the Gentiles.

AND the apostles and brethren that were in Judæa heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him,

3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised and didst eat with them.

4 But Peter rehearsed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, saying,

5 I was in the city of Joppa praying: and in a trance I saw a vision, A certain vessel descend, as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me:

6 Upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

7 And I heard a voice saying unto me, Arise, Peter; slay and eat.

8 But I said, Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice answered me again from heaven, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.

11 And, behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Cæsarea unto me.

12 And the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house:

13 And he showed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is: Peter;

14 Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS X., XI.—How strange that the Jews should have fallen into the erroneous, unjust, and unreasonable opinion, that Gentile nations should never enjoy a place in God's Church, or enjoy the blessings of Messiah's reign! and that they should be for ever doomed to be abandoned by God to an eternal exile from his heaven!

This opinion was not confined to those Jews only who still adhered to the Levitical law, but was retained and cherished by those Jews who were converts to the Gospel of Christ. But when they saw the actual change which the preaching of the faith of Christ produced in the minds and lives of Gentiles, and that the Holy Ghost was copiously poured out on them, as well as others, they were filled with wonder, thankfulness, and joy. O may the Holy Ghost descend on us, as individuals, families, and churches!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, enable us at the close of the week, with true devotion of heart, to present our evening sacrifice. We adore thee, O Lord, as the omniscient God. Thine eyes are upon the ways of men, and thou seest all their goings. Thine eyes behold and thine eye-lids try the children of men. May we most seriously think of thine omniscience, and be afraid to sin in the presence of a holy and a righteous God. May we think of thine omniscience, and be astonished at our presumption, in so frequently and so daringly sinning in the presence of a holy and righteous God. May the remembrance of thine omniscience fill thine enemies with terror, and induce them to lay down the weapons of their rebellion. Affect them with the thought, that there is no darkness nor shadow of death where the workers of iniquity may hide themselves. May thy people remember thy omniscience, and be comforted that the eyes of the Lord run to and fro, to show himself strong in behalf of those whose heart is perfect before him.

Through the merit of our Saviour's blood, we supplicate the pardon of all the sins of the past week and of our past life. O convince the impenitent, that though their sins are past, the guilt of their sins is not past, nor the account past, which must be given at thy judgment-day. Give us, O Lord, the grace of a penitent and broken heart, which is of great estimation in thy sight. And, O give us the full and the free pardon of all our sins. Take, we pray thee, the manifold transgressions of our past lives, and blot them out of the book of thy remembrance.

We thank our God for all the mercies of the past week. Hast thou blessed us in our temporal callings? hast thou preserved us from temptation, and defended us from danger? hast thou assisted us in duty, and blessed to our soul the means of grace? To thee, O Lord, we ascribe all the praise; we will praise and magnify thy name for ever and ever.

We pray that thou wouldest continue thine undeserved kindness with us this night; and, if it is thy holy will, may we rise on the morning of another Sabbath-day, with hearts filled with thankfulness and joy, that the day of salvation still remains, and that overtures of mercy and reconciliation are still presented to our miserable and fallen world.

May multitudes under a preached Gospel receive the Holy Ghost, and magnify God as well as others. May we as a family, and as a congregation, be baptized of the Holy Ghost. Now, Divine Spirit, we commit into thy hands our souls, polluted and diseased by sin, and humbly entreat an interest in thy purifying influences.

O take our beloved children and domestics, and sprinkle them with the clean water of thy grace; then they shall be clean: wash them, and they shall be whiter than the very snow.

We desire, O Lord, to remember with gratitude and joy the occasion when Peter first preached to the Gentiles; and we praise thee that so many felt the saving power of the Gospel under his ministrations. Lord, have mercy on the myriads of Gentiles now living without Christ and salvation and hope.

Graciously hear the prayers of thine unworthy supplicants, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us, now and for ever. Amen.

SAFETY IN GOD.

From Woodlands. Repose. Ryland. Hopkins. A. M.

- 1 WHEN overwhelmed with grief
My heart within me dies,
Helpless, and far from all relief,
To heaven I lift mine eyes.
- 2 O lead me to the rock
That's high above my head,
And make the covert of thy wings
My shelter and my shade.
- 3 Within thy presence, Lord,
For ever I'll abide;
Thou art the tower of my defence,
The refuge where I hide.

Watts, Ps. 61.

PSALM LXI.

God the Defence of his People.

HEAR my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer.

2 From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is higher than I.

3 For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy.

4 I will abide in thy tabernacle for ever: I will trust in the covert of thy wings. Selah.

5 For thou, O God, hast heard my vows: thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear thy name.

6 Thou wilt prolong the king's life: and his years as many generations.

7 He shall abide before God for ever: O prepare mercy and truth, which may preserve him.

8 So will I sing praise unto thy name for ever, that I may daily perform my vows.

PSALM LXII.

Trust in God.

TRULY my soul waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation.

2 He only is my rock and my salvation; he is my defence; I shall not be greatly moved.

3 How long will ye imagine mischief against a man? ye shall be slain all of you: as a bowing wall shall ye be, and as a tottering fence.

4 They only consult to cast him down from his excellency: they delight in lies: they bless with their mouth, but they curse inwardly. Selah.

5 My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him.

6 He only is my rock and my salvation: he is my defence; I shall not be moved.

7 In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge is in God.

8 Trust in him at all times: ye people, pour out your heart before him: God is a refuge for us. Selah.

9 Surely men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie: to be laid in the balance, they are altogether lighter than vanity.

10 Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery: if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.

11 God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God.

12 Also unto thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy: for thou renderest to every man according to his work.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXI., LXII.—Fellowship with God in prayer, and other Divine ordinances, support and comfort the believer under the severest sufferings, the heaviest burdens, and the most overwhelming calamities; and he is greatly encouraged in his earnest applications to the throne of grace, by the remembrance of past and numerous instances of the loving-kindness of the God of his salvation. By faith he looks beyond all the troubles of the present life, and anticipates his dwelling-place on high, where he shall for ever dwell in the presence of his God, and see his Saviour face to face. Under the influence of faith the believer presents his supplications before the mercy-seat, and in the exercise of the same faith humbly waits the answer of his prayers.

PRAYER.

O LORD God of hosts, the God of salvation, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we acknowledge and adore thee in all thy perfections and excellences. Worthy art thou, Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah, to receive glory and honour and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. All things are upheld by the word of thy power, and thou dost derive a revenue of glory from all thy works.

We thank thee, O Lord, for another day, but more especially for another Sabbath-day, the best of all the seven. We thank thee for the near and animating prospect of entering thy courts, and associating with thy people in exercises of holy devotion.

We would earnestly supplicate thy blessing to rest on all thy ministers and people. May thine ambassadors deliver the message with much earnestness and success, and be made honoured instruments in the deliverance of many captive souls now under the thralldom of Satan's galling yoke.

Many of thy beloved children may be overwhelmed: may a spirit of prayer be abundantly communicated, and may they pour out their soul unto thee, and be led by thy gracious hand to the Rock that is higher than man. O Jesus, thou art the true rock, the rock of salvation, the rock of ages. We pray that thousands of sinners may be persuaded this day to abandon all their false grounds of confidence, and all their false hopes of mercy, and place their faith and their hope on Jesus Christ alone.

Be a shelter and a strong tower unto thy people. Preserve them from all their enemies, and may they and we trust under the covert of thy wings. In all the afflictions and changes of life, amid all the violent storms of temptation, in the prospect of the valley and shadow of death, and when we come to the dark valley, and look the king of terrors in the face, may we be powerfully taught to trust in the covert of thy wings.

Have mercy on us as a family. May the sacred engagements of the day be instrumental in rendering us more holy and heavenly. May the Word be so blessed to us, that we shall be more and more united together by the ties of holy affection, and thus bear a greater resemblance to that illustrious family above, whose fellowship we hope for ever to enjoy.

Give thy holy spirit to our children. May they know and love and believe the Gospel. May they abide before God for ever: O prepare mercy and truth, which may preserve them. Let our servants feel the power of thy Gospel on their hearts, and in all their actions may they enjoy the guidance of the Holy Ghost.

Be the Comforter of aged saints. Whether they be engaged in public or private ordinances, may their spiritual strength be revived, and may their youth be renewed like the eagle's.

Visit the sons and daughters of affliction in their retirements of suffering. Enable them to sing, In God is our salvation and glory: the rock of our strength and our refuge is in God.

Let the great institutions of our land continue and flourish, till the whole earth has acknowledged the mediatorial dominion of Jesus.

Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SEEKING GOD.

Can pant for water more.
- 3 Within thy churches, Lord,
I long to find my place;
Thy power and glory to behold,
And feel thy quickening grace.

WATTS, Ps. 63.

PSALM LXIII.

Seeking God early.

O GOD, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is;

2 To see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary.

3 Because thy loving-kindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee.

4 Thus will I bless thee while I live: I will lift up my hands in thy name.

5 My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and my mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips:

6 When I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches.

7 Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice.

8 My soul followeth hard after thee: thy right hand upholdeth me.

9 But those that seek my soul, to destroy it, shall go into the lower parts of the earth.

10 They shall fall by the sword: they shall be a portion for foxes.

11 But the king shall rejoice in God; every one that sweareth by him shall glory: but the mouth of them that speak lies shall be stopped.

PSALM XLIV.

Prayers to be delivered from Enemies.

HEAR my voice, O God, in my prayer: preserve my life from fear of the enemy.

2 Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked; from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity:

3 Who whet their tongues like a sword, and bend their bows to shoot their arrows, even bitter words:

4 That they may shoot in secret at the perfect: suddenly do they shoot at him, and fear not.

5 They encourage themselves in an evil matter: they communicate of laying snares privily; they say, Who shall see them?

6 They search out iniquities; they accomplish a diligent search: both the inward thought of every one of them, and the heart, is deep.

7 But God shall shoot at them with an arrow; suddenly shall they be wounded.

8 So they shall make their own tongue to fall upon themselves: all that see them shall flee away.

9 And all men shall fear, and shall declare the work of God; for they shall wisely consider of his doing.

10 The righteous shall be glad in the Lord, and shall trust in him; and all the upright in heart shall glory.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXIII., LXIV.—The believer has his wilderness here, and his paradise hereafter. On earth, he is often encompassed with dark clouds of sorrow, temptation, and fear, but in heaven he shall enjoy a glorious, an eternal day, when his sun shall no more go down, and where God the Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah, shall be his everlasting light. Unspeakingly dear to the children of God is his sanctuary. The attraction does not consist in the gorgeous magnificence of the building, or in its internal splendour; the chief attraction consists in God's presence, fellowship, and worship. This renders the house of God on earth the epitome of his house in heaven. It is this which makes it the anti-chamber of the New Jerusalem, of the celestial city, and of the palace of the great King. The present annoyances of the wicked teach believers more ardently to long for their heavenly home.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we would adore and praise thee as the Lord our God. We were permitted to seek thee early in the closet, when we were under no eye but thine; we were permitted to seek thee early around the domestic altar; we were permitted to seek thee early in thy sanctuary; and we bless thee that, at the close of the day, the door of mercy is still open, and that we have still access to the throne of grace.

We present our thanks for the blessings of this hallowed day. Thou hast given rest to our souls, by leading us to Jesus, the true resting-place, the only resting-place; and thou hast furnished instruction to our minds, by presenting before us in rich variety the manna of Gospel wisdom. Thou hast brought within our reach the consolations of religion, and directed our hopes to the pure and ceaseless joys of heaven. We thank our God that these our privileges are continued with us, and that our lives are continued in their enjoyment. O Lord, forgive the sins of the day. Forgive the imperfections of all thy ministering servants. Where they have been careless or indifferent—where they have been constrained by the fear of man to keep back a portion of the sacred truth—where they have in any measure preached the truth in their own spirit, and not in the Spirit of Jesus, O do thou graciously forgive, and mercifully prevent a repetition of these imperfections and sins in the future period of their days. We pray thou wouldst forgive our sins of which we are guilty as a family and as a congregation, in the manner we have attended upon the public ordinances of thy day and of thy house. We would mourn over our wandering thoughts, our worldly cares, and the spiritual carelessness and indifference which have attended us more or less in the spiritual engagements of the day. O suffer not our numerous corruptions and failings to prevent a blessing on the ordinances we have so imperfectly and unworthily observed.

Merciful God, impart to each one of us that love to thyself and thine ordinances which animated the mind of David thy servant.

Heaven grant that our dear children may resolve now to seek thee, and to seek thee early. Holy Spirit, give them grace thus to resolve; O Lord, thou art our God, and early will we seek thee. Mercifully teach our servants to seek the Lord, and the salvation which is in Christ.

O have mercy on the rising race, and enable them to seek thee early, to seek thee now. God prevent that they should delay what is so desirable now. Affect them with the thought, that if they refuse to seek thee now, in thy deserved wrath thou mayest cast them off for ever.

Teach all of us, O Lord, to look upon this world not as our home, but as a dry and thirsty land, where no water is. May we ever long to see thy power and thy glory in the sanctuary, and at death may we see thy unveiled glory in heaven. Lord, instruct us in the blessed exercise of Divine meditation.

Into thy hands we commend ourselves and our relatives this night. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

CHILDREN GIVEN TO GOD.

Petition. Stilly. Mount Ephraim.

- 1 GREAT God! now condescend
To bless our rising race;
Soon may their willing spirits bend
To thy victorious grace!
- 2 O what a vast delight
Their happiness to see!
Our warmest wishes all unite
To lead their souls to thee.
- 3 Dear Lord, thy spirit pour
Upon our infant seed;
O bring the longed-for happy hour,
That makes them thine indeed.

1 SAMUEL I.

Samuel dedicated to God.

AND they rose up in the morning early, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah: and the LORD remembered her.

20 Wherefore it came to pass, when the time was come about after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son, and called his name Samuel, saying, Because I have asked him of the LORD.

21 And the man Elkanah, and all his house, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly sacrifice, and his vow.

22 But Hannah went not up; for she said unto her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned, and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, and there abide for ever.

23 And Elkanah her husband said unto her, Do what seemeth thee good; tarry until thou have weaned him; only the LORD establish his word. So the woman abode, and gave her son suck until she weaned him.

24 And when she had weaned him, she took him up with her, with three bullocks, and one ephah of flour, and a bottle of wine, and brought him unto the house of the LORD in Shiloh: and the child was young.

25 And they slew a bullock, and brought the child to Eli.

26 And she said, Oh my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.

27 For this child I prayed; and the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of him:

28 Therefore also I have lent him to the LORD; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the LORD. And he worshipped the LORD there.

1 SAMUEL II.

Hannah's Song.

AND Hannah prayed, and said, My heart rejoiceth in the LORD, mine horn is exalted in the LORD; my mouth is enlarged over mine enemies; because I rejoice in thy salvation.

2 There is none holy as the LORD: for there is none beside thee; neither is there any rock like our God.

3 Talk no more so exceeding proudly; let not arrogancy come out of your mouth: for the LORD is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed.

4 The bows of the mighty men are broken, and they that stumbled are girded with strength.

5 They that were full have hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry ceased: so that the barren hath born seven; and she that hath many children is waxed feeble.

6 The LORD killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

7 The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich: he bringeth low, and lifteth up.

8 He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for the pillars of the earth are the LORD's, and he hath set the world upon them.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL I., II.—Blessed of God are those days which begin with the early worship of God. Does our worship of God commence early in the day, under the shining of the morning's sun? There is another sun shining upon us; it is the Sun of righteousness, which riseth with healing in his wings on those who fear the Lord. Happy are those parents who receive their children from God, as God's gift; and who train them up for God's service and glory. Greatly honoured of God are those parents who can look on their children as the children of God, regenerated by his grace; and who can say with thankfulness and joy, Our children are the subjects of grace, in answer to our earnest prayers. Such was the joy of Hannah's heart to which she gave utterance in songs of sweetest praise.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, after the rest, repose, and protection afforded us during the past night, to approach thee, our God, in the name of our adorable Mediator, and present our morning sacrifice. Now, may our heart rejoice in the Lord; may the horn of our strength be exalted in the Lord; and we would rejoice in thy salvation. On earth may we sing of thy salvation; and through eternity may we join unnumbered myriads in proclaiming the glories of thy salvation in heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the holy Lord God. There is none holy as the Lord, for there is none besides thee; neither is there any rock like our God. Angels are holy, and the spirits of just men made perfect are holy; and heaven is holy, for it is the very place of thy holiness; but there is none holy as thou art holy. Thou art essentially and infinitely and immutably holy. O Lord, make us holy. Take our unholy natures, and wash away the foul depravity by which they are rendered so loathsome and vile.

Soon may we see the ornaments of holiness beginning to appear in our beloved children. O that the Lord would guide their ways to keep his statutes! O that the Lord would grant them and our domestics grace to know and do his will!

O Lord, enable parents, like Hannah, to dedicate their children to the Lord. As children are God's heritage and gift, may parents cheerfully dedicate them to God, and most carefully and conscientiously train them up for his service. God forbid that parents should be the mean of the spiritual and eternal ruin of their offspring. Arouse careless parents to a sense of their duty. May they reflect on the awful misery of parents and their children meeting in the habitations of the lost.

At the great and solemn day, when assembled worlds shall appear before the tribunal of the wise and mighty Judge, may each member of our family, and all the families with which we are connected, be found on the right hand of Christ, and be declared the objects of his love, in the presence of congregated millions.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the righteous disposer of all events. Thou art he who killest and makest alive; and thou art accountable to none. Thou art he who bringest down to the grave, and bringest up; and thou art accountable to none. Poverty is one of thy messengers, and riches can neither be received nor enjoyed without thy permission; thou bringest low, thou liftest up, and thou art accountable to none. Honour and dignity and power are at thy disposal; for thou raisest up the poor out of the dust, and liftest up the beggar from the dunghill, to set them among princes, and make them inherit the throne of glory. Lord, mercifully raise us from the dust of sin and ignominy, and give each of us a place among thy children; then shall we possess honour and dignity, with which the glory of earthly princes is unworthy to be compared.

We invoke thy blessing this day, that we may glorify thee in our temporal calling, and in our religious duties.

Hear our feeble prayers, for the sake of our Divine Redeemer. Amen.

LIBERALITY TO THE POOR.

Piety. Willshire News. New York.

C. H.

- 1 HAPPY is he that fears the Lord,
And follows his commands,
Who lends the poor without reward,
Or gives with liberal hands.
- 2 As pity dwells within his breast
To all the sons of need;
So God shall answer his request
With blessings on his seed.
- 3 No evil tidings shall surprise
His well-established mind;
His soul to God his refuge flies,
And leaves his fears behind.

WATTS, Ps. 112.

ACTS XI.

Success of the Gospel.

NOW they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only.

20 And some of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, which, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.

22 Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.

23 Who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.

24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.

25 Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul:

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

27 And in these days came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cæsar.

29 Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judæa:

30 Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

ACTS XII.

Peter in Prison.

NOW about that time Herod the king stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church.

2 And he killed James the brother of John with the sword.

3 And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.)

4 And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

5 Peter therefore was kept in prison: but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XI., XII.—Speaking after the manner of man, the murder of Stephen appeared to hinder the progress of the Gospel; but otherwise was the case—it tended wonderfully to promote the rapid furtherance of the Gospel. How remarkable—while men employ cruel persecutions to check and destroy Christ's cause, the unsearchable wisdom and almighty power of God are mercifully and irresistibly employed in overruling the most bitter and formidable persecutions, for spreading abroad Christ's renowned fame, and for promoting the prosperity of his kingdom. As cold water to a thirsty soul, so the minds of genuine saints are refreshed by the welcome tidings of the success of the Gospel, and of sinners flocking to Jesus as doves to their windows.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the infinitely blessed and only potentate whom we adore as our creator, and preserver, and most merciful benefactor. Thou hast given us, as rational and immortal beings, an important place among thy creatures. May we ever remember the great end why thou hast given us rational and reflecting powers—namely, that we should know thee, love thee, fear thee, believe in thee, and enjoy thee.

We have great reason to lament that we have lived so much in opposition to the great end of our existence, and come so short of thy glory. We have loved other things more than thee; we have feared the creature more than the Creator; we have been more afraid of offending man than of offending God; and the world has occupied the chief place in our thoughts, while we have forgotten our merciful Redeemer, the author of all our blessings, and the fountain of all our comforts. These are our sins, thou heart-searching God, for which we deserve thy wrath and curse. O visit us not with deserved punishment; but, in the midst of deserved wrath, remember us with undeserved mercy.

We desire gratefully to acknowledge the kindness we have received this day. For personal, family, social, relative, and public mercies, we present the tribute of our praise. This night may we lie down to rest, relying on Jesus Christ for acceptance with God, the pardon of sin, and a title to heaven. God forbid that we should lie down to rest either with a guilty conscience or a careless heart.

May we be suitably impressed with what we have now read of the early history of the Christian Church. We praise thee for the fortitude thy ministers exercised under persecutions cruel and severe. We rejoice that persecutions were most wondrously overruled for the furtherance of the Gospel, and for the rapid and extensive enlargement of the Church of Christ. Thou, in thy wisdom, O Lord, didst defeat in all ages the purposes of persecutors, in employing their cruelty and rage as instruments in establishing the cause they were intended to destroy.

As thy hand was with the apostles and evangelists, may thy hand be with thy ministers now, in giving great and increasing efficacy to a preached Gospel. In our congregation, in our neighbourhood, and throughout the world, may great numbers believe, and turn unto the Lord.

Take our dear children, and work saving faith in their youthful hearts, by the power of the Holy Ghost. Give them and our domestics grace to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ; then shall they be saved.

Increase the faith and advance the joy of aged pilgrims. May they show to all around, that they are not only ransomed ones, but that they are returning to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads.

Give to each one of us, and to all in whom we are interested, the true marks of genuine grace. May we be full of the Holy Ghost and of faith. May we be filled with love to the brethren; and particularly may our compassion flow to the poor brethren. May we be among those of whom it is said: He hath dispersed; he hath given to the poor; his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted with honour.

Lord, hear the breathings of our soul, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

IT IS THE LORD.

Salisbury. Providence. Gross House.

- 1 IT is the Lord—enthroned in light,
Whose claims are all divine;
Who has an undisputed right
To govern me and mine.
- 2 It is the Lord—should I distrust,
Or contradict his will,
Who cannot do but what is just,
And must be righteous still?
- 3 It is the Lord—who can sustain
Beneath the heaviest load;
From whom assistance I obtain
To tread the thorny road.

1 SAMUEL III.

God appearing to the Child Samuel.

AND the child Samuel ministered unto the Lord before Eli. And the word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no open vision.

2 And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place, and his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see;

3 And ere the lamp of God went out in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep;

4 That the Lord called Samuel: and he answered, Here am I.

5 And he ran unto Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not; lie down again. And he went and lay down.

6 And the Lord called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son; lie down again.

7 Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, neither was the word of the Lord yet revealed unto him.

8 And the Lord called Samuel again the third time. And he arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the Lord had called the child.

9 Therefore Eli said unto Samuel, Go, lie down: and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the Lord came, and stood, and called, as at other times, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak; for thy servant heareth.

11 And the Lord said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, at which both the ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle.

12 In that day I will perform against Eli all things which I have spoken concerning his house: when I begin, I will also make an end.

13 For I have told him that I will judge his house for ever for the iniquity which he knoweth; because his sons made themselves vile, and he restrained them not.

14 And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.

15 And Samuel lay until the morning, and opened the doors of the house of the Lord. And Samuel feared to shew Eli the vision.

16 Then Eli called Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL III.—How peculiarly gratifying it is to aged saints who have the near prospect of reaching their heavenly home, when they see little children adorned with piety, as the future hopes of the Church of Christ. In all cases there is something very affecting in witnessing the infirmities of old age; but, when old age is associated with Divine grace, bodily weakness and infirmities are greatly alleviated, and tend to lift up the soul to that heavenly world near at hand, where bodily infirmities are for ever unknown, and where the ransomed millions flourish in all the loveliness and vigour of eternal youth. What a blessing, when children resemble Samuel in the grace of prayer, and in the enjoyment of fellowship with God!

PRAYER.

MOST blessed and gracious Lord God, we adore thee in all the goodness, compassion, and benevolence of thy character. Cold is the affection of the fondest parents compared with thy love. In our creation thou hast manifested thy wisdom and thy goodness; in thy providence thou hast followed us with a succession of uninterrupted kindnesses; but thy goodness in the gift of thy Son, and in the salvation he has purchased, shines with infinite and unrivalled glory.

When we compare thy love with our enmity, and thy goodness with our rebellion, what reason have we to be humbled in the dust before thee! Holy Spirit, enable us with penitent souls and with broken and contrite hearts to cast ourselves at mercy's feet, and confess our transgressions. O Lord, we have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, and are no more worthy to be called thy children. Such of us as have been seated at thy table, alas! how often have we broken our vows! How easily have we yielded to the slightest temptation! how readily have we allowed our corruptions within, and Satan and the world without, to obtain over us a partial dominion! Lord, pardon us through our Saviour's blood. Where can we go, where can we look, but to thee alone? Thou art our only help, our only hope.

Jesus our Saviour, thy blood alone hath power sufficient to atone for sin; thy blood can make us whiter than the snow; no Jewish types could cleanse us so.

We thank our God for thy preserving goodness and care during the past night, and that we are permitted again in a family capacity to encompass thine holy altar. Preserve us from offending thee this day. Keep back thy servants from presumptuous sins, and let them not have dominion over us. In all worldly and temporal engagements, may we resemble Joseph in fidelity towards men; at the same time cultivating godliness with respect to God.

We pray, O Lord, that thou wouldst graciously send prosperity to all the churches. We would mourn over the low circumstances in which many of the churches are found as to zeal, love, spirituality, and unfeigned godliness. Let withered and decayed churches revive as the corn, and grow as the vine. Deliver the church from graceless, carnal ministers. We lament that so many have intruded themselves into the sacred office, who have neither love to Christ nor compassion for the souls of men. Send, we beseech thee, faithful, humble, zealous, and affectionate ministers into thy holy Church, who shall exalt Jesus and his cross before the eyes of men.

Have mercy on our beloved children, and may they resemble the youthful and the holy Samuel in early and distinguished piety. O most merciful God, give us this, the desire of our hearts.

Give heads of families grace to teach and govern their offspring; and to lay upon their children all wise, necessary, and salutary restraints. May all parents with whom we are connected never have reason to believe that, through their carelessness, their children have plunged themselves into those excesses which have accomplished their ruin.

In every afflictive event of providence, teach us submission to the Divine will, and with Eli to acknowledge, It is the Lord; let him do what seemeth him good.

All we ask is for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

MINISTRY OF ANGELS.
Newport. Foundling. Chard.

L. M.

- 1 GREAT God! what hosts of angels stand,
In shining ranks at thy right hand,
Arrayed in robes of dazzling light,
With pinions stretched for distant flight'
2 Hither, at his command, they fly,
To guard the beds on which we lie,
To shield our persons night and day,
And scatter all our fears away.
3 Send, O my God! some angel down,
Though to a mortal eye unknown,
To guide and guard my doubtful way
Up to the realms of endless day.

S. STERNETT.

ACTS XII.

Peter's Miraculous Escape.

AND when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

7 And, behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

8 And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

9 And he went out, and followed him; and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision.

10 When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city; which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street; and forthwith the angel departed from him.

11 And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

12 And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together praying.

13 And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damsel came to hearken, named Rhoda.

14 And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate.

15 And they said unto her, Thou art mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, It is his angel.

16 But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and saw him, they were astonished.

17 But he, beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.

18 Now as soon as it was day, there was no small stir among the soldiers, what was become of Peter.

19 And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judæa to Cæsarea, and there abode.

20 And Herod was highly displeased with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him, and, having made Blastus the king's chamberlain their friend, desired peace; because their country was nourished by the king's country.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XII.—Outwardly Peter had men keeping his body as a prisoner, while an angelic deliverer was near, ready, under the warrant and commission of the King of kings to set him at liberty, to the confusion of enemies who longed for his death, and to the unspeakable joy of loving and holy friends, who earnestly prayed for his liberty and life. Great was the surprise of Peter, when, at the command of the angel, the chains fell from his hands, and the fetters fell from his feet. Great is the joy of the convinced sinner when the blessed hour of his deliverance from his spiritual captivity arrives, when the chains of his guilt, and the fetters of his corruption are burst asunder, and he enjoys the liberty of a son of God, to be in bondage no more for ever!

PRAYER.

O LORD, we approach thee in the name of Jesus, and in humble dependence upon thy Holy Spirit, to enable us at this time to draw near with a true heart, and in the full assurance of faith. We would extol thee, our God, O King; we would bless thy name for ever and ever. O teach us to bless thee every day, and to praise thy great and holy name for ever and ever. While we live, may we resolve to speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works. O let all the inhabitants of the earth be brought under the sound of the Gospel of Jesus, that they may abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and sing of thy righteousness.

O Father of mercies, we would ascribe to thee blessing and glory, honour and praise, for all the good things we now possess, and for all the blessings we hope to enjoy beyond the grave. What are we, that we should have so valuable an inheritance in present possession, and that we should have a still more valuable inheritance in reversion? We bless our God for his renewed kindness to us during the past day, in our spiritual concerns, and in our temporal affairs; and for the liberty and privilege we now enjoy of drawing near the mercy-seat. May we ever seriously reflect, that these invaluable opportunities are becoming fewer and fewer; and that all the means of grace on earth are fast hastening to a close. Convince all of us, and particularly the most careless and indifferent among us, of the infinite necessity of a diligent use of all the means of grace, for their present peace and their eternal felicity.

Merciful Father, we would commit ourselves, and all that we are and have, this night, to thy mercy. Lord, defend us from those dangers to which we are exposed, both in body and soul, on account of the weakness of our nature, the craft of Satan, and the corruptions of our own heart. Refresh our frail bodies by comfortable sleep, rest, and repose; and, if it is thy holy will, may we rise, on the morning of another day, to serve thee better than we have ever done.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy miraculous interposition in behalf of thy servant Peter, when bound with fetters and doomed to die. As he was delivered from fetters of iron, may we and all our relatives be delivered from fetters of sin. As he was taken from a gloomy dungeon, and restored to thy Church, may all our beloved connections be delivered from the dungeon of a natural state, and become living members of Christ's mystical body.

As Peter was liberated in answer to earnest prayer, Heaven grant that, in answer to our earnest prayer, our dear children and domestics may be delivered from Satan's power, and obtain a place in the family of Christ.

We bless thee, O Lord, for what we have now read of the efficacy of prayer in the deliverance of Peter. We believe it is thine appointment; we believe thou delightest to hear the supplications of those who present earnest prayers, in the name of Christ; we believe that thou hast peculiarly honoured prayer: O Lord, give us the gift and the grace of prayer.

Lord, condescend to hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, our exalted Intercessor. Amen.

GLORY TO CHRIST AND SUCCESS OF THE GOSPEL.

From Burton Mount Epitaph.

L. M.

- 1 MY Saviour and my King,
Thy beauties are divine;
Thy lips with blessings overflow,
And every grace is thine.
- 2 Now make thy glory known,
Gird on thy dreadful sword,
And ride in majesty to spread
The conquests of thy word.
- 3 Strike through thy stubborn foes,
Or melt their hearts to obey,
While justice, meekness, grace, and truth,
Attend thy glorious way.

WATTS, Ps. 45.

1 SAMUEL V.

The Ark in the Temple of Dagon.

AND the Philistines took the ark of God, and brought it from Eben-ezer unto Ashdod.

2 When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon.

3 And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the Lord. And they took Dagon, and set him in his place again.

4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the Lord; and the head of Dagon and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold; only the stump of Dagon was left to him.

5 Therefore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day.

6 But the hand of the Lord was heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with emerods, even Ashdod and the coasts thereof.

7 And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our god.

8 They sent therefore and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto Gath. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither.

9 And it was so, that, after they had carried it about, the hand of the Lord was against the city with a very great destruction: and he smote the men of the city, both small and great, and they had emerods.

10 Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron. And it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us and our people.

11 So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not, and our people: for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there.

12 And the men that died not were smitten with the emerods: and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL V.—Most easily God can confound the worshippers of graven images, and lay the honour of their hateful idols in the dust. He has vindicated, and he will vindicate his glory against blasphemous, presumptuous idolaters. Truly, there is no God beside our God: his glory he will not give to another, nor his name to graven images. What he did to the idol of the Philistines, he will do to all idols upon the face of the earth; and when the time for the full accomplishment of his purposes arrives, his pure and holy evangelical worship shall prevail in every portion of the habitable globe. In the dishonour which the Philistines showed to God's Ark, they brought themselves under the Divine displeasure. Truly, "Them who honour God, he will honour; but those who despise him, shall be lightly esteemed."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire to consider ourselves honoured and blessed, in having another opportunity of drawing near thy sacred and Divine majesty, in the exercises and ordinances of our holy religion. Thou art gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy. Thou art good to all, and thy tender mercies are over all thy works. A revenue of glory riseth to thee from all thy works; and thy saints shall bless thee. From generation to generation, they shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power. In the ages which are to come, they shall make known thy mighty acts to the sons of men, and shall proclaim the glorious majesty of thy kingdom.

We have reason to mourn and confess that our minds have been so little impressed with the glory of thy perfections in the visible creation, in the management of the affairs of providence, but more especially in the great work of redemption. And we have reason to mourn and confess that, while all thy works have praised thee, we, who are endowed with reason and destined for immortality, have so sinfully neglected to proclaim thy glory. In our contemplations, in our speech, in our life, we have come short of thy glory. We have not served the great end of our existence. Woe unto us, for we have sinned!

We thank thee as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, that we are delivered from the abominations of gross idolatry. Praise to thy name, that in our land no temples are to be seen dedicated to heathen idols. We thank God that we have the Bible, the Gospel, the ordinances, and the ministers of God in the midst of us, blessings more valuable than was the ark of the covenant to ancient Israel. Teach us, O Lord, to value these inestimable privileges. Prevent us, O Lord, from neglecting or abusing these valuable privileges.

We have now read of the low ebb of religion in the Jewish church, when the ark of the covenant, the symbol of the Divine presence, was in the hands of the Philistines, and when the Israelites made no effort to recover it out of their hands. We would lament, O Lord, the low state of religion in our land and nation. How few are there who really profess to live in the fear of God and in the faith of Christ! And how few of those who bear the name of Jesus, are zealous for his honour and the extension of his kingdom! As a family we would lament that we have so little zeal and spirituality and heavenly-mindedness, and that we are so little animated by the fire of sacred devotion in our religious exercises.

Lord, what wait we for? We wait and long and pray for thy Spirit, and for a blessed revival of religion throughout all the churches. Fulfil, we earnestly pray, these promises in all the congregations of thy people: In that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and of darkness. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine.

Enkindle in the minds of our dear children an early flame of zeal for the glory of God, and for the spread of the Gospel of Christ. May they delight to join those sacred associations which are formed for the enlargement of the kingdom of Christ.

We offer up our grateful acknowledgments for the mercies of the night. This day may we discover an increase of zeal for thy glory and delight in thy service.

Hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

ATTENTION TO THE GOSPEL.

Orpheus. Orange. Peckham.

A. M.

- 1 COME sound his praise abroad,
And hymns of glory sing;
Jehovah is the sovereign God,
The universal king.
- 2 He formed the deeps unknown
He gave the seas their bound!
The watery worlds are all his own;
And all the solid ground.
- 3 Come, worship at his throne,
Come, bow before the Lord;
We are his works, and not our own;
He formed us by his word.

Watts, Ps. 95.

ACTS XIII.

Paul preaching in Cyprus.

NOW there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.

2 As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work wherunto I have called them.

3 And when they had fasted, and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away.

4 So they being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Seleucia; and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.

5 And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John to their minister.

6 And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus;

7 Which was with the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God.

8 But Elymas the sorcerer (for so is his name by interpretation) withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul, (who also is called Paul,) filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,

10 And said, O full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?

11 And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 Now, when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departing from them returned to Jerusalem.

14 But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Pisidia, and went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and sat down.

15 And after the reading of the law and the prophets the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on.

16 Then Paul stood up, and beckoning with his hand said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience.

17 The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought he them out of it.

18 And about the time of forty years suffered he their manners in the wilderness.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIII.—It is peculiarly striking to see the sovereign distinctions betwixt individuals in their mature life, who were associates in early days. In early days they were alike as children of wrath; but in maturity, some continue the subjects of corruption, and others are made the subjects of grace. What an honour; what a privilege—to enjoy the tuition, and to be under the guidance of the Holy Ghost! God will greatly bless those teachers, parents, and ministers, who have received the Holy Spirit as their instructor and guide. May that delightful and animating promise be fulfilled in our experience, "I will put my promise within you." Amen.

PRAYER.

BLESSED and exalted Jehovah, we adore thee as the sovereign potentate of the universe. Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations. Thou art kind and gracious to all thy subjects who place their trust in thee. Thou upholdest all that fall, and raisest up all that are bowed down. Thou art the boundless source of all the blessings which thy creatures require, and with a bountiful hand thou dost supply all their wants. The eyes of all wait upon thee, and thou givest them their meat in due season. Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing.

We thank thee, gracious God, that during the past day thou hast opened thy liberal hand, and supplied our daily wants. Thou hast instructed us to pray, Give us day by day our daily bread; and as thou hast commanded us to present this petition daily, thou hast daily answered this petition. Graciously continue with us thy kindness this night; and may we lie down to rest under the confident persuasion that thou art our Father, and that we are thy children. May we lie down to rest in the conviction that our sins are pardoned and our persons accepted.

We praise thee, O Lord, for all the instances of thy providential goodness we have enjoyed as a family. Though in the vast universe over which thou rulest we are only an insignificant speck, we bless thee that we are neither lost nor overlooked. We are as much the objects of thy care, and the charge of thy kind providence, as if we were the only creatures thou hast formed. For thy spiritual blessings we desire more especially to praise thee. We thank thee for the bread of life provided for our souls to nourish them, and for the water of life to refresh them; for the promises of the Gospel to animate them, and the garments of salvation to defend them.

We pray that these invaluable blessings which we enjoy may be extended over the whole earth. O that the privileges of the Gospel were as extensive as the habitations of men! As thou didst separate Barnabas and Paul for the work wherunto thou hadst called them—as thou didst remarkably qualify and prepare them for the important work of preaching the Gospel, so do thou graciously raise up and prepare great numbers of able and faithful men for sounding the gospel trumpet, for attacking the strongholds of Satan, and for persuading sinners to submit to the pacific sceptre of Immanuel. We lament that in our day men are to be met with as opposed to the truth as Elymas, the sorcerer, in the days of Paul.

Let not the day ever arrive, when our beloved children shall be turned away from the faith by the craft of infidels, or the deceitfulness of their own hearts.

We earnestly pray for a communication of faith to those who are without it, and for an increase of faith in the minds of those who possess it. May many believe and be astonished at the doctrine of the Lord. Increase the faith and the comfort of aged pilgrims, and may they go on their way rejoicing.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

FAITH AND SALVATION.

Penitents. Warrington. Ulverston.

L. M.

- 1 NOT by the laws of innocence
Can Adam's sons arrive at heaven:
New works can give us no pretence
To have our ancient sins forgiven;
- 2 Not the best deeds that we have done
Can make a wounded conscience whole:
Faith is the grace,—and faith alone,
That flies to Christ, and saves the soul.
- 3 Lord, I believe thy heavenly word!
Fain would I have my soul renewed:
I mourn for sin, and trust the Lord
To have it pardoned and subdued.

WATTS.

I SAMUEL VII.

Ark restored and Israel Penitent.

AND the men of Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched up the ark of the Lord, and brought it into the house of Abinadab in the hill, and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the Lord.

2 And it came to pass, while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, that the time was long; for it was twenty years: and all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord.

3 And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do return unto the Lord with all your hearts, then put away the strange gods and Ashtaroth from among you, and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only: and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away Baalim and Ashtaroth, and served the Lord only.

5 And Samuel said, Gather all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray for you unto the Lord.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh, and drew water, and poured it out before the Lord, and fasted on that day, and said there, We have sinned against the Lord. And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Mizpeh.

7 And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard it, they were afraid of the Philistines.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, Cease not to cry unto the Lord our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

9 And Samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered it for a burnt offering wholly unto the Lord: and Samuel cried unto the Lord for Israel; and the Lord heard him.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: but the Lord thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them until they came under Beth-car.

12 Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it Eben-ezer, saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.

13 So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

REFLECTIONS UPON I SAMUEL VII.—Many and affecting are the outward changes and vicissitudes which the Church of God has experienced; but, how comfortable to know and believe, that the security of the Church continues for ever unchanged. She is built upon a rock, and the gates of hell can never prevail. May we profitably remember Samuel's advice to Israel, and earnestly pray that every idol may be expelled from our bosom, and that Jesus may fill the throne of our hearts, and reign for ever within us, by the influences of his Spirit. What a blessing is unfeigned evangelical repentance! May our sins be our grief and our burden! By Divine grace may we turn from sin with holy hatred and holy sorrow, and with full purpose of heart may we constantly endeavour after that obedience which is new, flowing from a new principle of filial love and zeal for the glory of our God and Father in Christ.

PRAYER.

OTHOU who art the Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and God of all glory, we adore and praise thee that thou hast so loved the world, as to give thine only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. We acknowledge in thy presence, with shame and confusion, that we have been slow of heart to believe the record thou hast so clearly and abundantly given of thy Son. What reason have we to mourn over our evil hearts of unbelief! and yet what reason have we to rejoice that thou hast not destroyed us in our unbelief!

We pray for love to the Lord Jesus Christ. Affect us with the thought, that they who love not the Lord Jesus Christ are accursed. Mercifully bestow upon us all this precious inheritance—hearts filled with love to Christ. May all our relatives and friends be filled with the love of Christ.

May our dear children love Jesus more than their earthly parents. May they love him who has done and will do more for them than any earthly parent can ever accomplish.

Have mercy on unbelievers. Fill their minds with just and alarming apprehensions respecting their true state. Convince them most powerfully and effectually that they who believe not on the Son of God are condemned already, and that the wrath of God abideth upon them. We place all our ungodly relatives at our Saviour's feet. Lord Jesus, thou knowest their grievous maladies. If thou wilt, thou canst make them whole.

We adore and praise that gracious Providence which has cared for us, and watched over us, and protected us during the past night; and we humbly pray that, in all our spiritual duties, we may be led this day by the Spirit of God. When employed in our worldly calling, may we be preserved from a worldly spirit; and when employed in the things of time, may we never be left to fall into the awfully destroying sin of preferring the objects of time before the realities of eternity.

We pray for the prosperity of all the churches. As thou didst gladden the hearts of Israel by bringing back the ark of the covenant, after an absence of twenty years, so do thou restore to cold and withered churches the reviving influences of the Holy Spirit, which have been long withdrawn. O let these influences copiously and speedily descend like rain upon the mown grass, and like showers that water the earth.

Come, Holy Spirit, thou heavenly Dove, O come with all thy quickening powers, mercifully kindle a flame of sacred love in these our hearts, which are so cold and lifeless.

Impart unto us, and all in whom we are interested, the grace of repentance. Like Israel of old, may we obtain such a sight of our sinfulness and guilt, that we shall fall down prostrate at mercy's feet, and acknowledge, We have sinned against the Lord. Give us an interest in the prayers of pious men and pious ministers, whose prayers, like those of Samuel, have influence with a prayer-hearing God; but, above all, may we be interested in the intercessory prayers of Christ.

Lord, hear our feeble supplications, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

GRACE AND GLORY.

Fordingbridge. Lesson (or Oration). Bramcote. L. M.

- 1 THE Almighty reigns exalted high
O'er all the earth, o'er all the sky;
Though clouds and darkness veil his feet,
His dwelling is the mercy-seat.
- 2 O ye that love his holy name,
Hate every work of sin and shame;
He guards the souls of all his friends,
And from the snares of hell defends.
- 3 Immortal light and joys unknown
Are for the saints in darkness sown:
Those glorious seeds shall spring and rise,
And the bright harvest bless our eyes.

WATTS, Ps. 97, p. 111.

ACTS XIII.

Christ's Life and Resurrection.

AND when he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land to them by lot.

20 And after that he gave unto them judges about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet.

21 And afterward they desired a king: and God gave unto them Saul the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years.

22 And when he had removed him, he raised up unto them David to be their king; to whom also he gave testimony, and said, I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfil all my will.

23 Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus;

24 When John had first preached before his coming the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And as John fulfilled his course, he said, Whom think ye that I am? I am not he. But, behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feet I am not worthy to loose.

26 Men and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

27 For they that dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 And though they found no cause of death in him, yet, desired they Pilate that he should be slain.

29 And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre.

30 But God raised him from the dead:

31 And he was seen many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his witnesses unto the people.

32 And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise which was made unto the fathers, 33 God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is also written in the second psalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

34 And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead; now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure mercies of David.

35 Wherefore he saith also in another psalm, Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

36 For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption:

37 But he, whom God raised again, saw no corruption.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIII.—However numerous and powerful the spiritual enemies of the believer, he can say in the language of the Psalmist, "Though they compass me about like bees, yet in the name of the Lord I will destroy them: The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge." How awfully God displayed his righteous vengeance in the destruction of the idolatrous and polluted nations of ancient Canaan! This teaches the important lesson, that it is man's highest honour, and greatest security, and best interest, to serve God and observe his ordinances. And it teaches the solemn lesson, that his impenitent enemies must perish, that "the wicked shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that forget God!" Seeing that Jesus obeyed, suffered, died, made atonement for human transgression, and is now exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour, may we have peace with God, through Jesus Christ our Lord!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the God of salvation. Thou art the governor among the nations; kings, sceptres, and thrones are at thy disposal. Thou didst place Saul upon the throne of Israel, and in thy displeasure thou didst cast him down from the place of his power. In thy gracious sovereignty, thou didst raise up David to be Israel's king, who fulfilled thy will, as the man according to thine own heart. We rejoice that of his seed thou didst raise unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus, according to the promise. We praise thee for thy wondrous love.

At the close of the day we present our tribute of thanksgiving for the mercies received. For the continuance of health and of reason, those inestimable blessings—for the portion of usefulness thou hast connected with our lives as relatives, as friends, and as members of society—for smiling upon us in our temporal calling, and for assisting us in our religious duties—for defending our bodies from danger, and our souls from temptation;—for all these mercies we praise and thank the name of the living God.

We come to thee, our God and Father, for thy providential care, and protection this night. May we look beyond the night of human life to a day of glory in heaven, relying on the righteousness of Christ that we shall enjoy that day for ever in the society of holy angels and glorified saints.

May all our children be delivered from the night of spiritual death, and introduced into the day of grace. O that each one of them may sing for ever and ever the triumphs of redeeming grace, in the society of countless myriads of redeemed saints.

Sanctify to our souls the Word we have now read, and impress upon our minds thy gracious interposition on behalf of the Old Testament church, to which we have now listened. As thou didst destroy seven nations, the inhabitants of Canaan, and give thy people undisturbed possession of that promised inheritance, we would earnestly pray that thou wouldst graciously expel from our souls the numerous corruptions which have long held undisturbed possession, and let the Holy Spirit enter with his heavenly grace, and reign over all our powers, affections, and desires.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the word of salvation. We praise thee that from our early days the word of salvation has been addressed to our ears; we now pray that it may be addressed to our hearts. Give us grace to believe that this word of salvation has been as really and personally sent to us, as if our names had been announced from the heavens. We lament that we have so long listened in vain, and that the voice of mercy has produced so little effect upon our hearts and lives. Holy Spirit, mercifully give efficacy to a preached Gospel, and let none of us remain hardened under its joyful sound. May we discover those fruits of repentance, and that baptism of the Spirit, which will be the pleasing evidence that the word of salvation has reached our heart. All we ask is for the sake of Jesus, our glorious Surety. Amen.

LOVE TO GOD AND OUR NEIGHBOUR.

Charity. Covetousness. Murders.

L. M.

- 1 THUS saith the first, the great command,
Let all thy inward powers unite
To love thy Maker and thy God,
With utmost vigour and delight.
- 2 Then shall thy neighbour next in place
Share thine affections and esteem;
And let thy kindness to thyself
Measure and rule thy love to him.
- 3 This is the sense that Moses spoke,
This did the prophets preach and prove;
For want of this the law is broke,
And the whole law's fulfilled by love.

WATTS, 116, B. J.

I SAMUEL XII.

Samuel's Fidelity.

AND Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you.

2 And now, behold, the king walketh before you: and I am old and gray-headed; and, behold, my sons are with you: and I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.

3 Behold, here I am: witness against me before the Lord, and before his anointed: whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any bribe to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you.

4 And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.

5 And he said unto them, The Lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found ought in my hand. And they answered, He is witness.

6 And Samuel said unto the people, It is the Lord that advanced Moses and Aaron, and that brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt.

7 Now therefore stand still, that I may reason with you before the Lord of all the righteous acts of the Lord, which he did to you and to your fathers.

8 When Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers cried unto the Lord, then the Lord sent Moses and Aaron, which brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place.

9 And when they forgot the Lord their God, he sold them into the hand of Sisera, captain of the host of Hazor, and into the hand of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them.

10 And they cried unto the Lord, and said, We have sinned, because we have forsaken the Lord, and have served Baalim and Ashtaroth: but now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee.

11 And the Lord sent Jerubbaal, and Bedan, and Jephthah, and Samuel, and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelled safe.

12 And when ye saw that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon came against you, ye said unto me, Nay; but a king shall reign over us: when the Lord your God was your king.

13 Now therefore behold the king whom ye have chosen, and whom ye have desired! and, behold, the Lord hath set a king over you.

14 If ye will fear the Lord, and serve him, and obey his voice, and not rebel against the commandment of the Lord, then shall both ye and also the king that reigneth over you continue following the Lord your God:

15 But if ye will not obey the voice of the Lord, but rebel against the commandment of the Lord, then shall the hand of the Lord be against you, as it was against your fathers.

REFLECTIONS UPON I SAMUEL XII.—Kindness, patience, and impartiality, are essentially necessary for the judges of the earth. Of these exalted virtues the venerable and holy Samuel furnished an illustrious example. Covetousness is a great stain upon the character of rulers, who, like Samuel, should live above the allurement of wealth, and never prefer personal and family aggrandisement, before the moral and spiritual prosperity of the community. Fearing God, and hating covetousness, should be the characteristic ornament of all rulers. These should be "an ornament of grace to their head, and as chains of gold around their necks." How much, then, do magistrates and judges require an interest in the prayers of those who, through Christ, have influence at the throne of grace!

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, whom we approach in the name of Christ, we acknowledge thine we are and thee we ought to serve. Thou hast mercifully refreshed and preserved us during the past night. When we were fast asleep, helpless as children, and unable to defend ourselves from the attack of any foe, thou didst surround us with the arms of thine almighty care, and permit no evil to befall us. We desire to feel our obligations to love and serve thee strengthened by the continuance of thine undeserved kindness.

We have now read of the faithfulness of thy servant Samuel in thy work during a long life. Like him, may we be diligent in seeking after the prosperity of thy kingdom; like him, may our affection and attention be occupied by the advancement of the interest of thy Church.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy law. May we feel the obligations under which we are laid to obey thy law from its high and Divine sanction, as coming from thyself. May we most sensibly feel our obligations to obey thy law and observe thine ordinances, from a conviction of thy love. Thou hast given us thy law as much by the love of a Father, as the authority of a ruler. May thy laws, which are holy, just, and good, be the rule of our actions this day, and the constant guide of our steps all the future period of our lives.

Graciously write thy laws on the hearts of our dear children. Enable them to make a holy choice of thy holy laws to be their counsellors; then they shall ever find them to be a lamp unto their feet and a light unto their path.

We desire to offer up our prayers for aged friends, that they may enjoy those soothing, religious consolations in the evening of their days which thy servant Samuel so richly enjoyed. When their power of enjoying temporal comfort diminishes, may their capacity for enjoying spiritual and heavenly blessings increase. May their hoary hair, white with age, be found accompanied with unfeigned godliness; then it will prove a crown of glory more valuable and more desirable than the diadems of kings. Give our aged friends grace to pray with the Psalmist, Cast me not off in the time of old age, forsake me not when my strength faileth.

Have mercy on all thy ministers, and make them faithful in thy service to the close of life. If they live till they are old and gray-headed, may they be continued ornaments of the glorious Gospel, and exhibit the blessed and comforting influence of that truth and of those promises which they have so long published to others. When they have finished their course, may they hear their redeeming God thus address them: Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord.

We pray for all the magistrates and rulers of our land. Give to them the piety, integrity, humility, and firmness which shone with such brightness in the character and actions of Samuel. At all times may the people have reason to say respecting them, Ye have not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither have ye taken ought of any man's hand.

O thou Hearer of prayer, forgive our sins, and answer our requests, for Jesus our Saviour's sake. Amen.

THE GOSPEL FEAST.

Old England. Peters. Warham.

L. M.

- 1 HOW rich are thy provisions, Lord!
Thy table furnished from above!
The fruits of life o'erspread the board,
The cup o'erflows with heavenly love.
- 2 Thine ancient family, the Jews,
Were first invited to the feast;
We humbly take what they refuse,
And Gentiles thy salvation taste.
- 3 We are the poor, the blind, the lame,
And help was far, and death was nigh;
But at the gospel-call we came,
And every want received supply.

WATTS, 12, B. III.

ACTS XIII.

Despising Christ.

BE it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins:

39 And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses.

40 Beware, therefore, lest that come upon you which is spoken of in the prophets;

41 Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you.

42 And when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them the next sabbath.

43 Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas: who, speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God.

44 And the next sabbath day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God.

45 But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming.

46 Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.

47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed.

49 And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.

50 But the Jews stirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.

51 But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIII.—None but God can forgive sins. Christ forgave sins when he dwelt on earth in his humiliation, and he now forgives sins while in heaven in his exaltation. This act proclaims his Divinity. Besides, he atoned for sin, and therefore has the right to forgive sin. Let each one of us ask with solemn sincerity, "Have I applied to Jesus for the pardon of my sins, and the renewing of my nature? Believing in his power to pardon, and in his willingness to forgive, have I said, in the language of the penitent, and afterwards pardoned publican, 'Lord, have mercy on me a sinner!'" How seriously we should reflect upon and feel the importance of this truth, that in proportion to Christ's willingness to save and forgive will be the aggravation of our guilt, and the greatness of our punishment, if we refuse to ask salvation, to implore forgiveness through a Saviour's death. If we are wise we will think in time, and consider those things "which belong to our peace before they be for ever hid from our eyes."

PRAYER.

THY mercy, O Lord, is above the heavens, while thy truth reacheth unto the clouds. We acknowledge that all thy perfections have been dishonoured by the sins of men; but we rejoice that all thy perfections have been glorified by the obedience, sufferings, and death of thy well-beloved Son. Glory to thy name, that thy mercy has obtained an honourable vent, by which it can flow to miserable, guilty men, consistently with the honour of all thine attributes. We take encouragement from thy mercy to put our trust under the shadow of thy wings. Thou art the fountain of all those blessings which our souls need, and thou dost mercifully withhold from us all those evils which our sins deserve. If thy mercy had not been great, long ere now every blessing had been taken from us. If thy mercy had not interposed, long ere now the hand of thy justice had fallen upon us, and made us the victims of thy vengeance. We will therefore sing of thy mercy. Thy mercy shall be built up for ever. We desire to acknowledge thy daily goodness, which has not been interrupted by our daily and aggravated offences. Deeply affect us with the thought, that our offences are greatly aggravated by thy goodness, in opposition to which we have long sinned. Humble us under a sense of our sins and our sinfulness. Give us that repentance which is evangelical; give us that repentance which is connected with genuine, fervent desires to be delivered from the pollution of sin as well as its guilt.

Lord, we entreat thy gracious pardon through the righteousness of Christ alone. We believe that he alone atoned for human guilt, and take comfort that they who seek forgiveness through his blood shall obtain the pardon of all their sins. Glory to our God, that one great object of the Gospel is to proclaim forgiveness through the blood of Christ. O may we be among the blessed number of those who are justified through the righteousness of Jesus from all things, from which we could not be justified by the law of Moses. Suffer none of us to despise Christ, or the method of salvation by his sufferings and death.

Preserve our beloved children from neglecting their salvation, or despising Christ. Convince them that the destruction of despisers of Christ and his Gospel who die impenitent is inevitable. God forbid that this should be their sin, that this should be their doom!

Lord, give us an increasing love to the preaching of the Gospel. As the Gentiles besought the Apostles to preach to them the same words next Sabbath-day, may we have an increasing pleasure in hearing the same words of gospel truth reiterated in our hearing. Never, never may thy blessed Gospel be to us as a tale that is told; but may it ever be to us the joyful sound.

We rejoice that thy Gospel is preached to Gentile nations, and that when the Jews rejected it, the Gentiles received it. O Jesus, be a light to the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

We thank our heavenly Father for the mercies of the day, and pray for the pardon of all our sins. We commend ourselves and all our beloved friends to thy care this night. May we be so strengthened by refreshing repose, as to be prepared on the approaching day to serve thee according to thy will.

All we ask is for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

JOYING AND GLORYING IN THE LORD.

- 1 YE saints of every rank, with joy,
To God your offerings bring:
Let towns and cities, hills and vales,
With loud hosannas ring.
- 2 Let him receive the glory due
To his exalted name;
With thankful tongues, and hearts inflamed,
His wondrous deeds proclaim.
- 3 Praise him in elevated strains,
And make the world to know
How great the Master whom ye serve,
And yet how gracious too.

BEDFORD, alt.

I SAMUEL XII.

Counsels to serve God.

AND Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have done all this wickedness: yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart;

21 And turn ye not aside: for then should ye go after vain things, which cannot profit nor deliver; for they are vain.

22 For the Lord will not forsake his people for his great name's sake: because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his people.

23 Moreover, as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you: but I will teach you the good and the right way;

24 Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart: for consider how great things he hath done for you.

25 But if ye shall still do wickedly, ye shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

I SAMUEL XIII.

Saul rebuked by Samuel.

AND the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand which is on the sea shore in multitude: and they came up, and pitched in Michmash, eastward from Beth-aven.

6 When the men of Israel saw that they were in a strait, (for the people were distressed,) then the people did hide themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in high places, and in pits.

7 And some of the Hebrews went over Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul, he was yet in Gilgal, and all the people followed him trembling.

8 And he tarried seven days, according to the set time that Samuel had appointed: but Samuel came not to Gilgal; and the people were scattered from him.

9 And Saul said, Bring hither a burnt offering to me, and peace offerings. And he offered the burnt offering.

10 And it came to pass, that as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, behold, Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might salute him.

11 And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed, and that the Philistines gathered themselves together at Michmash;

12 Therefore said I, The Philistines will come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not made supplication unto the Lord: I forced myself therefore, and offered a burnt offering.

13 And Samuel said to Saul, Thou hast done foolishly: thou hast not kept the commandment of the Lord thy God, which he commanded thee: for now would the Lord have established thy kingdom upon Israel for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON I SAMUEL XII., XIII.—We have no reason to be afraid of God's wrath, if, under a penitential sense of our sinfulness and unworthiness, we have fled to Jesus to obtain forgiveness through his blood. There is then no condemnation, for we are in Christ Jesus, clothed with his righteousness, and redeemed by his death. As Samuel prayed for Israel, may we offer the earnest supplications of our heart for our families, for the churches and congregations with which we are associated, for society, for our country, and for the interests of Immanuel's kingdom. How affecting to think of the infatuation of Saul, and of his sacriligious acts, which proved the harbingers of his ruin! "Lord, hold us up, and we shall be saved!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as our Creator and our Governor. Thou art infinitely worthy to be feared, and to be served. Yet we confess that we have often turned aside from following the Lord. We have often preferred our own foolish counsels to thy wise laws. We have willingly obeyed our own corruptions, and we have firmly resisted thine authority. We have gone after vain things, which can neither profit nor deliver the soul. We have gone after vain things, by which our souls have sustained the greatest loss, and by which they have been exposed to the greatest danger.

Convince our dear children of the vanity, the disgrace, and the danger of a life of sin. Convince them that, though sin is sweet to the carnal taste, it is a deadly poison, sufficient to bring upon the soul the inconceivable miseries of eternal death. O deliver them from sin the destroyer, and lead them to Christ the Saviour.

Preserve such of us, O Lord, from backsliding, as enjoy thy saving grace. Enable us to keep our garments clean. May we, through the Spirit, perfect holiness in the fear of the Lord.

We rejoice, O gracious God, that thou hast in thy gracious sovereignty formed a people for thyself, by separating them from the rest of the world, and adorning them with the graces of the Holy Ghost. O mercifully place us among the number of thy children, and may each one of us belong to thy Church, whom thou hast made a peculiar people. Give us an increasing attachment to thy people. May we love the spirit they breathe, the language they speak, the pursuits they follow, and the graces with which they are adorned.

We bless thee for the gracious promise, The Lord will not forsake his people for his name's sake. Give us faith to plead this promise, and to derive from it that sweet consolation which it is fitted to impart in the hour of trial and of grief. We rejoice that it is impossible thou shouldst ever forsake thy people, for thou lovest them with an everlasting love, and hast pledged thine eternal veracity, which is immutable as thy throne, that thou wilt not forsake thy people for thy name's sake.

We commend to thy saving care all our friends and relatives. Incline the hearts of all of them, without exception, to serve thee. Such of them as are now following after vanity, touch their souls by thine almighty grace, and may they serve the Lord with all their hearts. Make them as zealous in the service of Jesus as they have been zealous in the service of sin.

Lord, impress our hearts with the grateful remembrance of the great things thou hast done for us. In giving us life and reason and immortality, thou hast done great things for us. In preserving us from our birth to the present moment, and continuing with us the means of grace, thou hast done great things for us. But, in giving us Jesus, thy gift unspeakable, thou hast done great things for us, for which we would praise thee for ever and ever.

We thank thee for thy kindness during the night, and we humbly seek thy guidance and assistance in the duties of this day.

Hear our humble prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

THE GOSPEL THE POWER OF GOD.
Pentecost. Westminster. Gould's.

L. M.

- 1 WHAT shall the dying sinner do,
That seeks relief for all his woe?
Where shall the guilty conscience find
Ease for the torment of the mind?
- 2 How shall we get our crimes forgiven,
Or form our natures fit for heaven?
Can souls, all o'er defiled with sin,
Make their own powers and passions clean?
- 3 In vain we search, in vain we try,
Till Jesus brings his Gospel nigh;
'Tis there that power and glory dwell,
Which save rebellious souls from hell.

WATTS.

ACTS XIV.

Success of the Gospel.

AND it came to pass in Iconium, that they went both together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the Greeks believed.

2 But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected against the brethren.

3 Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the apostles.

5 And when there was an assault made both of the Gentiles, and also of the Jews with their rulers, to use them despitefully, and to stone them,

6 They were ware of it, and fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about:

7 And there they preached the gospel.

8 And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked:

9 The same heard Paul speak: who steadfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked.

11 And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.

12 And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the people.

14 Which when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,

15 And saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? we also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein:

16 Who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways.

17 Nevertheless he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.

18 And with these sayings scarce restrained they the people, that they had not done sacrifice unto them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIV.—Faith is God's gift. Jesus is the author and finisher of faith. If we have no faith, let us, without delay, seek faith from Jesus, who giveth liberally and upbraideth not. If we have obtained faith, let us seek more faith, saying with the disciples, "Lord increase our faith!" How delightful it is to preach the Gospel, and how delightful it is to hear the Gospel, when it is accompanied with the demonstration of the Spirit and with power. O with what earnestness and continuance we should intercede and plead with God for the copious descent of the influence of the Holy Spirit on all the churches, and wherever, and whenever, and by whomsoever the Word of truth is proclaimed. These influences alone can cause the incorruptible seed to germinate, to spring up, to bring forth spiritual fruit. These alone can melt the heart cold as ice, and impress the lovely image of God upon the soul.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art the living God. The gods whom blinded heathens worship are vanities and lies; but thou art the true God, who made the heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein. During a long tract of ages thou hast left the nations to walk in their own ways; but, we rejoice, there is a period coming, when all nations under the influence of the Gospel shall walk in the light of thy countenance.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the wise and merciful arrangements of thy providence. The breezes of the heavens proclaim thy beneficence, and the showers which descend from the clouds refresh the earth with thy blessing. Thou hast not left thyself without a witness, even among idolatrous heathens, in that thou doest good, making them the constant sharers of thy kindness, giving rain from heaven and fruitful seasons, and filling their hearts with food and gladness. Hasten the day, Father of mercies, when the Sun of righteousness shall illuminate all the habitations of darkness and cruelty, and when showers of the Spirit's influences shall descend and gladden all their hearts.

Let the Gospel, we earnestly pray, be abundantly blessed wherever it is proclaimed. Like the Apostles, may thy ministers preach the Word boldly in the name of the Lord, ever remembering that it is thy Word, and delivered for thy glory, under the high sanction of thy Divine and gracious authority. May a similar blessing attend their labours to that which attended the labours of thine inspired messengers: may multitudes believe, both of Jews and Gentiles. We have long heard the Gospel report, and may each one of us be among the number of those who believe it. Let none of us ever connect ourselves with those who are evil affected towards thy people. If there are any among our relatives determined enemies of Christ and his Gospel, may the enmity of their hearts soon be destroyed, and may they become the willing subjects of his gracious dominion.

Make our beloved children the early and devoted subjects of the Prince of Peace, and may their aversion to his government and laws be completely subdued. We present them before thee, O Jesus, for thy blessing. Suffer our dear children to come unto thee.

We thank our God for the privileges we enjoy, in connection with the congregation with which we are associated. We bless thee for all the assistance thou hast given to thy servant, in the discharge of his ministerial and public duties. We thank thee for all who have been brought to the knowledge of the truth, through his instrumentality. We pray that on the approaching Sabbath, and while he is sounding the Gospel trumpet, thou wouldst most graciously and extensively give testimony to the Word of thy grace.

Accept of our humble acknowledgments for the mercies of the past day and the past week. Refresh us with sleep and repose, that we may be prepared for the solemnities of an approaching Sabbath. All that we ask is for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

SUMMER.

Downy dale. Flow'ring. Wells.

L. M.

- 1 SEASONS and times obey his voice:
The evening and the morn rejoice
To see the earth made soft with showers,
Laden with fruit, and dressed in flowers.
- 2 'Tis from his watery stores on high
He gives the thirsty ground supply;
He walks upon the clouds, and thence Doth his enriching drops dispense.
- 3 The desert grows a fruitful field,
Abundant food the valleys yield;
The valleys shout with cheerful voice,
And neighbouring hills repeat their joys.
- 4 The pastures smile in green array;
There lambs and larger cattle play;
The larger cattle and the lamb
Each in his language speaks thy name.

Watts, Ps. 65, p. 11.

PSALM LXV.

Reasons for Praising God.

PRAISE waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed.

2 O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.

3 Iniquities prevail against me: as for our transgressions, thou shalt purge them away.

4 Blessed is the man whom thou chooshest, and causedst to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple.

5 By terrible things in righteousness wilt thou answer us, O God of our salvation; who art the confidence of all the ends of the earth, and of them that are afar off upon the sea:

6 Which by his strength setteth fast the mountains; being girded with power:

7 Which stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people.

8 They also that dwell in the uttermost parts are afraid at thy tokens: thou makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to rejoice.

9 Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it: thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water: thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it.

10 Thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly: thou settlest the furrows thereof: thou makest it soft with showers: thou bleasest the springing thereof.

11 Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness.

12 They drop upon the pastures of the wilderness: and the little hills rejoice on every side.

PSALM LXVI.

God's glorious Power.

MAKE a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands;

2 Sing forth the honour of his name: make his praise glorious.

3 Say unto God, How terrible art thou in thy works! through the greatness of thy power shall thine enemies submit themselves unto thee.

4 All the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thee; they shall sing to thy name. Selah.

5 Come and see the works of God: he is terrible in his doing toward the children of men.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXV., LXVI.—God waits in his courts to bless his people, and there his people wait to receive the blessings of his bounty, to experience the influences of his Spirit, and to enjoy the delights of his fellowship. How lovely is the character of God as the Hearer of prayer! He is able, he is willing; and through the mediation of Jesus the throne of grace is always accessible. All flesh have not yet approached that throne. Oh! how glorious shall that day be when people of all nations, and colour, and languages, shall hear of God as the God of salvation, as the hearer of prayer, and when from every part of the earth supplications shall ascend to the mercy-seat of the Father of mercies! Does God, as the God of providence, cover the earth with verdure and fruitfulness? Does he irrigate its surface with streams, and send down refreshing showers from the clouds? Let us earnestly pray that God, as the God of salvation, may graciously increase the spiritual verdure and fruitfulness of his church, and that the moral desert of our world may soon become a spiritual garden, lovely with the flowers of grace, and glorious with the trees of righteousness.

PRAYER.

WE come into thy presence, O Lord, in the name of Jesus; and we bless and adore thee that we have been preserved through another night, and are permitted, in the enjoyment of many comforts, to open our eyes on another day of the Son of man. While entering on the Sabbath, we would unite in earnest supplication; and may the Hearer of prayer answer our supplications.

We have the near prospect of entering into thy public courts; and we rejoice that praise waiteth for thee in Zion, and unto thee shall the vow be performed. Let thousands and tens of thousands praise thee this day in Zion, and let their songs, sweetened by the melody of love, devotion, and faith, ascend with acceptance before thy heavenly throne. Lord, make us as a family joyful in thy courts, and may we taste a portion of the pure and sacred blessedness of heaven.

We adore thee, gracious God, as the only foundation of our hope. Thou art the confidence of all the ends of the earth, and of them that are afar off upon the sea. We would rejoice that many are to be found in distant nations, of different colour, language, and climate, all trusting in the same Saviour, and travelling to the same heaven. Let the efforts of faithful missionaries be signally honoured of God in the increase of the numbers of those who forsake their vanities and lies, who worship God as the only Jehovah, and who trust in Christ as the only Saviour.

We bless thee for thy kindness in the season of the year. Thou hast given us the Spring, and now we are permitted to behold all the verdure, luxuriance, and glory of Summer. Thou hast not only made the outgoings of the morning and evening, but thou hast made the outgoings of the seasons to rejoice over us. When we look on the surface of the earth, when we see the rich valleys adorned with the future hopes of harvest, we are reminded of thy covenant with Noah, that seed-time and harvest shall not cease. Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it; thou preparest corn for the children of men, when thou hast so provided for it. Thou sendest rain from the clouds to refresh the fields, which are cultivated by the hands of the husbandman. Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop fatness. Praise to thy name!

Let our dear children not be thorns and briars in Satan's wilderness; but make them fir-trees, olives, and myrtles in the garden of thy church. And may our servants be trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that he may be glorified.

May our aged friends be trees of great beauty, exhaling the fragrance of that heavenly paradise to which they hope soon to be transplanted.

Graciously assist our beloved minister in breaking among us, and the congregation with which we are associated, the bread of life.

Comfort afflicted souls, whether they are in thy house or in their private retirements. O let these our supplications be acceptable in thy sight, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

HEARING PRAYER.

Buckingham. Spilbrook. Newbury.

C. M.

- 1 NOW shall my solemn vows be paid
To that almighty power,
That heard the long requests I made
In my distressful hour.
- 2 My lips and cheerful heart prepare
To make his mercies known;
Come, ye that fear my God, and hear
The wonders he has done.
- 3 When on my head huge sorrows fell,
I sought his heavenly aid
He saved my sinking soul from hell,
And death's eternal shade.

Watts, Ps. 66, p. 11.

PSALM LXVI.

Resolutions to praise God.

O BLESS our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard:

9 Which holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved.

10 For thou, O God, hast proved us: thou hast tried us, as silver is tried.

11 Thou broughtest us into the net; thou laidst affliction upon our loins.

12 Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water: but thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place.

13 I will go into thy house with burnt offerings: I will pay thee my vows, 14 Which my lips have uttered, and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in trouble.

15 I will offer unto thee burnt sacrifices of fatlings, with the incense of rams; I will offer bullocks with goats. Selah.

16 Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what he hath done for my soul.

17 I cried unto him with my mouth, and he was extolled with my tongue.

18 If I regard iniquity in my heart, the LORD will not hear me:

19 But verily God hath heard me: he hath attended to the voice of my prayer.

20 Blessed be God, which hath not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

PSALM LXVII.

Prayer for God's Kingdom.

GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us. Selah.

2 That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations.

3 Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee.

4 O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth. Selah.

5 Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee.

6 Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us.

7 God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXVI., LXVII.—Christ, as God, gave us natural life; and, as God, he preserves it. "It is in him we live, in him we move, and in him we have our being." As our Saviour, he communicates spiritual life to the souls of his saints, and preserves that spiritual life within them on earth, until it becomes eternal life in heaven. What abundant reason, then, we have to worship him in loudest strains of praise! Does God afflict his people? He afflicts them because he loves them. He employs the discipline of afflictions to teach them lessons more valuable than treasures of silver and gold. He prepares the medicine of affliction to promote their spiritual health, and heal the maladies of their soul. He kindles the furnace of affliction, that they may come forth like the gold that has been seven times tried. Oh! with what joy we should anticipate the arrival of millennial days, when the mediatorial reign shall universally prevail, accompanied with universal blessedness and peace!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the living God, and as the life-giving God. It is in thee we live and move and have our being. From ten thousand dangers thou hast preserved us, and from ten thousand perils thou hast delivered us. When we were brought to the very brink of the grave, thou didst restore our soul. What reason have we to exclaim, in the language of the Psalmist, O bless our God, ye people, and make the voice of his praise to be heard: who holdeth our soul in life, and suffereth not our feet to be moved.

We confess our sinfulness, by which we deserve the heaviest afflictions; and we acknowledge thy justice in all the afflictions which have befallen us. Give us grace to believe that thou hast had a providential hand in all our sufferings. Thou hast cast us into the furnace of afflictions, and hast proved us. As we have been tried as silver, may we be purified as silver. Take away the dross of our sins, and the tin of our corruptions. We have been in the net of affliction, and may we believe that thou broughtest us into the net. At various times wicked men seemed to prevail against us, and may we believe that, for wise reasons, thou didst allow them to ride over our heads. We have been in the fire and in the water of affliction, but we praise thee that we have been conducted safely through fire and through water. O may we be in reality conducted to thyself, and to thy covenant, and to thy church; and, when the journey of life is over, may we be led to heaven: then shall we be brought into the wealthiest and the happiest portion of thy dominions, where we shall for ever behold, and enjoy, and praise the Lamb, who is in the midst of the throne. Teach every member of the family to consider thy church as the wealthiest place on earth, where spiritual treasures of innumerable worth are to be found.

May our dear children be impressed with the happiness and blessedness of those who are members of thy church; and may they be induced to say, We will go with you, for God is with you. May our servants be made members of thine invisible church, and heirs of thy heaven.

We thank the King of Zion for a preached Gospel, and that we have been permitted to listen to the joyful sound. From what we have heard of thy grace and mercy, and of the obligations under which we are laid to love and serve thee, may we make solemn resolutions and vows, in the strength of divine grace, that we will devote ourselves, soul and body, to thy service—that we shall be for thee, and not for another. O to be enabled to say and resolve, We are not our own, for we are bought with a price; therefore, we will glorify thee, our God, with our bodies and our spirits, which are thine! Having so vowed, may we resolve, in the language of the Psalmist, We will pay these our vows which our lips have uttered, and which our mouth hath spoken.

Lord, have mercy on all the nations of the earth. O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee.

We thank thee for the mercies and privileges of this blessed, honoured day, and we seek the gracious care of our now covenant God this night, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

- 1 BEHOLD thy waiting servant, Lord,
Devoted to thy fear;
Remember and confirm thy word,
For all my hopes are there.
- 2 Hast thou not writ salvation down,
And promised quickening grace?
Doth not my heart address thy throne,
And yet thy love delays?
- 3 Mine eyes for thy salvation fail;
O bear thy servant up;
Nor let the scoffing lips prevail,
Who dare reproach my hope.

1 SAMUEL XV.

Saul rejected.

SAMUEL also said unto Saul, The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the LORD.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel, how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

7 And Saul smote the Amalekites from Havilah until thou comest to Shur, that is over against Egypt.

9 But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile and refuse, that they destroyed utterly.

10 Then came the word of the LORD unto Samuel, saying,

11 It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is turned back from following me, and hath not performed my commandments. And it grieved Samuel; and he cried unto the LORD all night.

18 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the LORD: I have performed the commandment of the LORD.

17 And Samuel said, When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the LORD anointed thee king over Israel?

19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

22 And Samuel said, Hath the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

23 For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

29 And also the Strength of Israel will not lie nor repent: for he is not a man, that he should repent.

30 Then he said, I have sinned; yet honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD thy God.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul; and Saul worshipped the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XV.—God is the fountain of all legitimate authority, from whom the rulers of the earth derive their power, and to whom they are accountable for its use. It is not for their own sake they are invested with this power. It is for the glory of God, the prosperity of the Church of Christ, and the welfare of those committed by Divine Providence to their care. How much, then, they need wisdom from above, and to be anointed with the graces of the Holy Spirit, that they may prove blessings to the community, and be qualified to fulfil the important duties of their high and responsible calling! Saul furnishes a melancholy example of a king destitute of those high and gracious attainments which were necessary to enable him faithfully and implicitly to obey the commands of Israel's God. What a blessing when rulers follow Christ's example, and rule in righteousness!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as Israel's God. In ancient times, and during a long succession of ages, thou didst wonderfully appear as Israel's God. Thou didst choose Jacob unto thyself, and Israel for thy peculiar treasure. Thou art the Strength of Israel; O be to us, as a nation, as a church, as a congregation, and as a family, our strength. In the day of bodily affliction, in the day of trying bereavements, in the time of severe temptations, and in the prospect of encountering the king of terrors, be thou the strength of our heart and our portion for ever.

We adore thee as a God of truth. Thou the Strength of Israel wilt not lie nor repent; for thou art not a man that thou shouldst repent. We thank thee for thy promises, which are applicable to thy people in all the varieties of circumstances in which they can possibly be placed. We thank thee for thy promises, which are a balm for every wound, and a cordial for every fear. May we individually find the suitability of thy promises to every case, and may we lean upon them as a staff which can support the soul under the pressure of the heaviest calamities. And what reason have we to rejoice that thy promises never fail in their accomplishment! Give us that saving faith, without which we can have no interest in thy promises; and may it be the happiness of each one of us to take a vigorous hold of all thy promises, in every part of our journey through the vale of this world to the heavenly mansions.

Bless to us what we have now read of the destruction of the Amalekites. May we learn, from their history and their doom, the great sin and the great danger of injuring even the least and the meanest of thy children. May the enemies of thy people reflect that thou treasurest up in the book of thy remembrance every instance of cruelty and oppression exercised against them; and though thy children are not allowed to avenge themselves upon their enemies, yet thou art a jealous and a righteous God, and wilt bring down upon their head the iron rod of thy righteous vengeance.

From the conduct of Israel, in falling greedily upon the spoil of Amalek, and in refusing fully to obey God's command in utterly destroying them, may we learn the sin and danger of the sin of covetousness and disobedience. Preserve us, O Lord, from an unhallowed love of the world. Deliver us from the sin of covetousness, and teach us to covet earnestly the best gift. O Jesus, thou art that gift. These may we seek as the pearl of great price.

Teach our children to yield a ready and a constant obedience to all thy commands. Suffer them not to fall into the sin of rebellion, either against God or their earthly parents. Open their eyes to see that rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and that stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry.

O Lord, hold us up, that we fall not into the sin of rejecting God. May we not reject thy greatest gift—the gift of thy well-beloved Son. May we not reject the counsels, the warnings, and the consolations which our Saviour mercifully holds out in a preached Gospel.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the night, and may we walk this day under the light of thy countenance, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

ACTS XIV.

Diligence of the Apostles.

AND there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people, and, having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.

20 Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 And when they had preached the gospel to that city, and had taught many, they returned again to Lystra, and to Iconium, and Antioch, 22 Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.

23 And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.

24 And after they had passed throughout Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia:

26 And thence sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God for the work which they fulfilled.

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 And there they abode long time with the disciples.

ACTS XV.

Dispute about Circumcision.

AND certain men which came down from Judæa taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved.

2 When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and disputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.

3 And being brought on their way by the church, they passed through Phenice and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles: and they caused great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them.

5 But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying, That it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.

6 And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIV., XV.—In many instances public opinion has appeared changeable as the winds of the heavens. Connected with our Saviour the multitude shouted "Hosannah!" to-day, and to-morrow, "Crucify him—crucify him!" As to Paul, the Apostle of the Gentiles, on the same day the populace, who wished to worship him as a god, dragged him out of the city, stoned him, and left him, supposing he was dead! "Lord, what is man!" Persecutors may attempt to destroy the lives, and cut short the usefulness of the faithful heralds of the Cross, and they may throw numerous impediments in the way of the progress of the Gospel of Christ. The purpose of God stands sure. No malice or efforts of men can prevent the success of the Gospel which God has decreed, or shorten for one moment the lives of his holy servants, which he has purposed to preserve. At the very commencement of Christianity attempts were employed to corrupt the Christian faith, and at no period have the clouds of erroneous opinions completely disappeared from the firmament of the visible Church. Still, we have reason to rejoice that we enjoy to the present day Divine truth in all its fulness, and in all its spotless purity.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we desire to esteem it our honour and delight that we are allowed, after the ordinary engagements of the day, to draw near thy throne in humble dependence on the Holy Spirit, and in the name of Jesus to adore thee as our Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer. We desire each one of us to say, with adoring humility, in the language of inspiration, The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life. We acknowledge thee as our preserving God. May this blessed promise be applicable to us, and mercifully accomplished in us: The Lord preserveth the souls of his saints, he delivereth them out of the hands of the wicked. We adore thee as our redeeming God. We lift up our eyes to thee for that appropriating faith by which we shall claim an interest in Christ as our redeeming God, and say, in the language of humble yet exulting confidence, I know that my Redeemer liveth: and that at the latter day he shall stand upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. Heavenly Father, mercifully grant that each member of our family may be able to use this believing and consolatory language, and cleave to Jesus as their Divine Redeemer.

May sacred and saving light accompany what we have now read. We would glorify thy name for the remarkable instances in which thou hast appeared in behalf of thy ministering servants, and for prolonging their lives to accomplish the work they were destined to perform. Lord, continue to a good old age the lives of useful labourers in thy vineyards, and make them, like Paul, remarkably successful in extending the boundaries of the Mediator's kingdom over the face of a corrupted, rebellious, and miserable world.

May our dear children, through the instrumentality of a preached Gospel, be added to the kingdom of Immanuel, and become his loyal, loving, and obedient subjects.

Have mercy on all thy people, wherever they are found. Let their faith be confirmed, and all their graces strengthened. Suffer not aged or afflicted saints to be cast down by the tribulations of this wilderness state. Teach them to lay their account with the storms of the desert. Let them not imagine, when they are assaulted by Satan, when they are reproached by wicked men, or when the band of disease is laid upon them, that any strange thing has befallen them. Bring to their remembrance the words of the Apostles: We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God. May we be amazed at the love of God in providing a kingdom for his people, which they shall inherit after all the tribulations of the journey have come to an end. O Lord, we would mourn over the miserable doom of the wicked and unbelieving, if they die impenitent.

Bless, O Lord, the duties and engagements of the day, and be our shield and defence this night. When our days and nights come to an end, O may we enter upon a glorious eternal day in heaven, for the sake of Jesus, our Advocate and Surety. Amen.

COMFORT IN CHRIST.

Orations from New Poland. Miller's Lane. Acton. C. K.

- 1 OUR God, how firm his promise stands,
E'en when he hides his face!
He trusts in our Redeemer's hands
His glory and his grace.
- 2 Then why, my soul, these sad complaints,
Since Christ and we are one?
Thy God is faithful to his saints,
Is faithful to his Son.
- 3 Beneath his smiles my heart has lived,
And part of heaven possessed;
I praise his name for grace received,
And trust him for the rest.

Watts, 40, B. II.

1 SAMUEL XVI.

David chosen and anointed.

AND the LORD said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Beth-lehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons.

2 And Samuel said, How can I go? If Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the LORD.

3 And call Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoint unto me him whom I name unto thee.

4 And Samuel did that which the LORD spake, and came to Beth-lehem. And the elders of the town trembled at his coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably?

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the LORD: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely the LORD's anointed is before him.

7 But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart.

8 Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

9 Then Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

10 Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The LORD hath not chosen these.

11 And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit down till he come hither.

12 And he sent, and brought him in. Now he was ruddy and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the LORD said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

14 But the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the LORD troubled him.

15 And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit from God troubleth thee.

16 Let our lord now command thy servants, which are before thee, to seek out a man, who is a cunning player on an harp: and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand, and thou shalt be well.

17 And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring him to me.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XVI.—To be rejected of men may be a great calamity, and render life oppressive, and this world a wilderness of woe! but none can conceive the magnitude of the calamity in being rejected of God! O may it be our blessedness to enter into covenant with Christ, then we shall for ever enjoy God's favour, which is life, and his loving-kindness, which is better than life. Then we shall walk all day in the light of his countenance, and rejoice in the prospect of that glorious day, when we shall be satisfied, and awake with his likeness.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY glorious and gracious Jehovah, we adore thee as the sovereign ruler of the universe. Thou art no respecter of persons; and, in dispensing thy blessings among the children of men, thou art neither influenced nor guided by external appearances. Thou didst pass by the seven sons of Jesse, and thou didst choose David the youngest, who followed his father's flocks, and thou didst raise him up to be the king of thy people Israel. One member of a family thou raisest to great honour, while others, who have enjoyed the greatest share of their parents' admiration, are left to sink into comparative indigence and obscurity. Thou the Lord seest not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but thou the Lord lookest on the heart.

We praise thee that as David was especially chosen and anointed to be the ruler of Israel, Jesus, thy well-beloved Son, was especially chosen and anointed to be the King of Zion. Eternal praises be ascribed to thy glorious name, that thou spakest in vision to thy holy one, and saidst, I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people. I have found David my servant; with my holy oil have I anointed him: with whom my hand shall be established; mine arm also shall strengthen him.

Glory to our God that thine anointed Son hath appeared, and that he hath accomplished, by his almighty power, a deliverance far more wonderful than the deliverance from Egyptian slavery or Chaldean bondage. Mighty Jesus, may we as a family be captives ransomed and set at liberty by thy meritorious righteousness and powerful arm.

We adore and praise thee, O Lord, as a merciful and compassionate God. Lord, teach us highly to value thy compassion and thy mercy. Amid all the afflictions of this journeying state, may our hearts be comforted by the remembrance and enjoyment of thy mercy. O let these words be fulfilled in our experience: The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him.

And may these encouraging words be fulfilled in our dear children, and his righteousness unto our children's children.

As David was anointed with oil, may we, and our relatives, and our congregation, be anointed with the oil of grace. O let it be poured out upon us in a rich degree! As the Spirit of God entered into David, may the spirit of grace enter into us, and may we become temples of the Holy Ghost.

Alas, we have been long under an evil spirit! Satan has had long dominion over us: O deliver us from his power. Lord, we have long been under a spirit of pride, enmity, and unbelief, graciously deliver us from this evil spirit, and let humility, love, and faith reign in our hearts, and adorn our souls.

We thank God that we have been preserved upon our beds, and that we have awoke surrounded by thy mercies.

Be our God and our guide this day. Bless our approach to thy throne, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Immanuel's sake. Amen.

THE KINGDOM OF CHRIST.

New England. Suffolk New. Bronsley. Derby. L. M.

- 1 GREAT God, whose universal sway
The known and unknown worlds obey;
Now give the kingdom to thy Son;
Extend his power, exalt his throne.
- 2 Thy sceptre well becomes his hands,
All heaven submits to his commands;
His justice shall avenge the poor,
And pride and rage prevail no more.
- 3 With power he vindicates the just,
And treads the oppressor in the dust;
His worship and his fear shall last
Till hours, and years, and time be past.

WATTS, Ps. 72, p. 1.

ACTS XV.

Gospel preached to the Gentiles.

AND when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe.

8 And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us;

9 And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.

10 Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they.

12 Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

13 And after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me:

14 Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written,

16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up:

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God:

20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day.

22 Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XV.—On earth believers see through a glass darkly; in heaven they see face to face. Here below difference of opinion exists among the best of saints, and even disputations may arise, to interrupt the love and disturb the fellowship of Christ's family; but in heaven the ransomed millions see eye to eye; clouds of error and mists of ignorance have past away for ever. There is no night there, for God is the everlasting light of his redeemed and glorified church, and the Lamb in the midst of the throne is the light thereof. We belong to Gentile nations, made, in Old Testament Scriptures, the subjects of the most illustrious, animating, and glowing predictions that ever flowed from the lips, or were recorded by the pen, of inspired prophets. Glory to God that we live in days when these predictions of Gentiles coming to Christ's light, and fleeing into his Church like doves to their windows, are actually accomplished. What Jubilee songs shall be celebrated in heaven, in unison with those on earth, when Jews and Gentiles shall constitute one flock under Jesus, the great Shepherd and Bishop of souls!

PRAYER.

HOLY and Divine Spirit, we humbly seek thy grace, that we may be enabled with the voice of thanksgiving and praise to approach the throne of God. O Father of mercies, we ascribe to thee glory and honour, for all the good things which we now enjoy, and for the rich inheritance which we hope to possess beyond the grave. We present our thanksgivings, however imperfect, for the continuance of thy kindness to us during the past day; for any assistance imparted in our religious duties, and for any smiles of thy gracious providence upon our temporal concerns. We thank our God for the daily supply of our temporal wants, and for thy forbearance and patience with our daily offences.

Merciful Father, we commit ourselves this night, and all that we are and have, with all our beloved relatives, to thy merciful care. May both our souls and bodies be defended from every evil. May our feeble nature be refreshed with sleep; and on the approaching day may we serve thee with renewed liveliness, fidelity, and strength. As every day is bringing us nearer the eternal world, may we become every day more prepared for the heavenly state. Have pity on our careless relatives who are living without God, and who are every day becoming less fit to die; and who, alas! are becoming every day more prepared for the abodes of the lost. Let divine grace mercifully interpose, and stop them in their dangerous career, and through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ may they be saved, as well as others.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the Gospel of thy Son, and that so many of the Gentile nations have opportunities of hearing the joyful sound. We adore that sovereignty by which they were separated for many hundreds of years from the Church of God, while the Jews enjoyed the ordinances of thy gracious appointment. And we adore that sovereignty by which the Jews are now separated from thy Church, and the Gentiles introduced into their place. Even so, Father, for so it hath seemed good in thy sight. Glory to our God, that there is a period fixed by the gracious purposes of heaven, when Jews and Gentiles shall be united in one Church, sitting down together around thy Gospel table, and feasting upon the delicious provision of thy grace. We lay the following promises at thy feet, O God of mercy and of truth, and we humbly pray that they may be speedily fulfilled: After this I will return, and build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. O Lord, hasten the accomplishment of these promises in thy due time. We rejoice that they are on record, and that their accomplishment is as secure as the throne of God.

Lord, have mercy on our dear children, and may their hearts be purified by faith. Give us the early evidences that they are washed with the washing of regeneration.

We seek in behalf of the aged and afflicted the consolations of the Gospel. Prepare them for that world where thy people flourish in immortal youth.

All we ask is for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

1 SAMUEL XVII.

Goliath's Threatenings.

AND there went out a champion out of the camp of the Philistines, named Goliath, of Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span.

5 And he had an helmet of brass upon his head, and he was armed with a coat of mail; and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass.

6 And he had greaves of brass upon his legs, and a target of brass between his shoulders.

7 And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron: and one bearing a shield went before him.

8 And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? Am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? Choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me.

9 If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants: but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and serve us.

10 And the Philistine said, I defy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight together.

11 When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

12 And David said to Saul, Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine.

13 And Saul said to David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: for thou art but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth.

14 And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, and a bear, and took a lamb out of the flock:

15 And I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him.

16 Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear: and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God.

17 David said moreover, The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, Go, and the Lord be with thee.

18 And Saul armed David with his armour, and he put an helmet of brass upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail.

19 And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go; for he had not proved it. And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them. And David put them off him.

20 And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine.

21 And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XVII.—Goliath may be considered a figure of the spiritual enemies of the people of God. These may be arranged under the devil, the world, and the flesh. Compared with the giant of the Philistines, David was weak; compared with these three formidable enemies, the believer is weak, and in himself altogether insufficient. If he looks to his proud and powerful enemies, and then to himself, he is ready to be overwhelmed with fear, and sink into despondency. But when he looks upon his enemies, and then upon his Saviour, his fears are speedily dispelled. When the Church is in the greatest disquiet and perplexity, in answer to earnest prayer God may send sudden and unexpected relief, and that from sources the most unlooked for, and by means the most apparently inadequate. Israel never could expect to be saved from the Philistines by a shepherd-youth from the fold. Thus, "God's ways are not as our ways, nor his thoughts as our thoughts."

PRAYER.

INFINITELY glorious Lord God, thou art a very present help in every time of trouble. Thou art sovereign and wise in all the troubles, perplexities, and fears which befall thy Church and people. By terrible things thou dost show them their sinfulness, weakness, and helplessness. We acknowledge thy sovereignty in allowing the proud Goliath to strike terror into the minds of thine ancient Israel; and for allowing others in succeeding ages to arise and fill the minds of thy people with fear, that they might be stirred up to look to thee for help. Thou, O Lord, hast never been unmindful of thy people. In their greatest danger thou hast watched over them, and when all prospect of deliverance seemed to vanish away, thou didst bring help from quarters the most unlikely.

Teach us, in all the afflictive events of providence, to place implicit confidence in Jesus, who is the great God our Saviour. O to be able to sing with thy Church of old, The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge!

Lord, preserve us from the machinations and enmity and assaults of Satan. Suffer us not to be allured by his wiles; and suffer us not to be overwhelmed by his threatenings. May we not be alarmed at his power, remembering that our Saviour is almighty. May we not be alarmed at his craft and cunning, remembering that in our Saviour are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. May we not be alarmed at his enmity, remembering the boundless love of Christ. May we not be alarmed at his determined perseverance, when we remember the constant care and watchfulness of Christ.

Deliver us, O Lord, from the power of Satan. May we be preserved from his suggestions, and our imagination and affections not left to be polluted by his influence. May we be preserved from blasphemous thoughts, which are so generally the fiery darts of the wicked one. If there are any among us as a family, or among our relatives, or among the congregation of which we form a part, harassed and afflicted by the temptations of Satan, we earnestly and affectionately pray that they may be no longer held in bondage by that enemy.

Let not our dear children or servants become or continue the victims of Satan's power. Never, never may they be carried captive at his pleasure.

O that all of us were enabled to follow the wholesome counsel of thine inspired servant: Be sober, be vigilant, for your adversary, the devil, goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

We present our united thanks for the mercies of the past night, and that the arms of a compassionate God have kindly surrounded and defended us. We supplicate thy blessing to attend us this day, in all the duties in which we expect to be engaged. May it rest on our bodies and our souls. Suffer us not to offend thee; forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, the Lamb that was slain. Amen.

GOD SPEAKING PEACE.

Hancock Chapel. Marylebone. Stillman. Michael's. C. H.

- 1 UNITE, my roving thoughts! unite
In silence soft and sweet;
And thou, my soul, sit gently down
At thy great Sovereign's feet.
- 2 Jehovah's awful voice is heard,
Yet gladly I attend:
For lo! the everlasting God
Proclaims himself my friend.
- 3 Harmonious accents to my soul
The sounds of peace convey:
The tempest at his word subsides,
And winds and seas obey.

DODDRIDGE.

ACTS XV.

The Letter of the Apostles and Elders.

AND they wrote letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia:

24 Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law: to whom we gave no such commandment:

25 It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,

26 Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle:

31 Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in peace from the brethren unto the apostles.

34 Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

36 And some days after Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again, and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whose surname was Mark.

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 And the contention was so sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other: and so Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus;

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XV.—The piety of those professors is greatly to be called in question, and their sincerity to be suspected, who, under the pretext of adherence to the truth, are agitators in the Church, and disturbers of its peace. There is immense meaning in our Saviour's words, "Blessed are the peace-makers; for they shall be called the children of God." Important question: If peace-makers are blessed, what are peace-disturbers? If the former are the children of God, what are the latter? The Gospel is a religion of holiness. May we be savingly influenced by its doctrines; then, by Divine grace, we shall abstain from every pollution, from every degrading appetite, and from every hateful passion. The doctrines of the Gospel may be compared to an overflowing fountain, from which flow streams of living water, and of Divine comfort and peace. Blessed fountain!

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, we approach thee in the all-prevailing name of Christ, and in humble reliance on the Holy Ghost for Divine aid, in presenting our evening prayer. We adore thee as the God of peace. As the God of peace, thou art ever present with thy people, to soothe their minds amid the sorrows of life, and to convince their consciences that their sins are pardoned, through the peace-speaking blood of Jesus. Thou art the God of peace, who shall deliver thy people from Satan's power, and enable them shortly to trample upon his neck. O Lord, may each one of us shortly bruise Satan under our feet. O thou, who art the God of peace, sanctify us wholly; that our whole spirit, soul, and body may be preserved blameless unto the coming of Jesus Christ. We would earnestly pray for ourselves and our beloved friends, and for the congregation with whom we associate in holy things, that the God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, would make us perfect in every good work, to do his will, working in us that which is well-pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ. Lord, hear this our prayer!

We pray, O Lord, for the peace of thy Church. As thy servants and Apostles in the early days of Christianity discovered such anxiety for the peace of thy Church, when differences began to arise, may we imitate their holy example, in seeking the peace of Jerusalem. May we ever pray in the language of David, Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces. For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee. Because of the house of the Lord our God, I will seek thy good. Let the prosperity of thy Church increase; and may she appear fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.

Lord, have mercy on all thy ministering servants. May they increase in number. Truly the harvest is great, but the labourers are few; O send an increase of faithful labourers into thy vineyard! We entreat the King and Head of Zion, that the gifts and graces which rested on Paul and Barnabas may rest on all thy ministers. Make them more pious, and more faithful, and more useful. Let the love of ministers to their Master and their work increase: and let the love of people and congregations to their ministers and Saviour increase. When we look upon, or when we hear a faithful minister of the Cross, may we remember that we see one who is sent to us in the name of the Divine Redeemer.

May our children hear the Gospel with increasing attention, reverence, and love. To them and to our servants may a preached Gospel be the power of God in accomplishing their salvation.

We would express our thanksgivings for the mercies of another day, and that as a family we have been refreshed by those streams which unceasingly flow from the fountain of thy goodness. We commit ourselves and our relatives to thy gracious care this night.

Hear, answer, and forgive, for the sake of our Divine Mediator. Amen.

PROTECTION FROM GOD.

- 1 YE sons of men, a feeble race,
Exposed to every snare,
Come, make the Lord your dwelling-place,
And try and trust his care.
- 2 No ill shall enter where you dwell;
Or if the plague come nigh,
And sweep the wicked down to hell,
'Twill raise his saints on high.
- 3 He'll give his angels charge to keep Your feet in all your ways;
To watch your pillow while you sleep,
And guard your happy days.

Watts, Ps. 91, p. 11.

1 SAMUEL XVII.

Goliath slain.

AND the Philistine said unto David, Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods.

44 And the Philistine said to David, Como to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied.

46 This day will the LORD deliver thee into mine hand; and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give the carcases of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.

47 And all this assembly shall know that the LORD saveth not with sword and spear: for the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands.

48 And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose, and came and drew nigh to meet David, that David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine.

49 And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth.

50 So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David.

51 Therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they fled.

54 And David took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem; but he put his armour in his tent.

55 And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, whose son is this youth? And Abner said, As my soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell.

56 And the king said, Inquire thou whose son the stripling is.

57 And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand.

58 And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse, the Beth-lehemite.

REMARKS UPON 1 SAMUEL XVII.—Satan and the spiritual enemies of believers may rage and rave against them, pouring from their lips threatenings and anathemas. With such a protector as Christ they have no reason to be afraid, for all the curses and threatenings of their adversaries are only empty air. How amazingly different the situation of believers and their proud boasting foes. Their enemies depend upon themselves, their own craft, their own power; believers have the advantage of unerring wisdom for their guidance, and of almighty power for their defence. David prevailed over the gigantic champion. Believers, even the weakest, shall prevail over Satan, and trample upon his neck. "They shall tread upon the lion and the adder; the young lion and dragon they shall trample under feet."

PRAYER.

BLESSED and gracious God, thou art the deliverer of thy people. We adore thee in all the deliverances thou didst accomplish for David thy servant. Thou didst deliver him out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear. We desire to take encouragement from the deliverances thou didst work out for him, and we would look up to thy throne, relying on the word of thy promise, that thou wilt deliver us from all our corruptions, and from all our enemies. Give us that lively faith by which we shall be enabled to say, in the language of David, Thou art our hiding-place, thou shalt compass us about with songs of deliverance. And may we say, in the language of Hezekiah, Thou hast in love to our soul delivered it from the pit of corruption, for thou hast cast all our sins behind thy back.

May the signal instances we have now read of gracious and Divine interposition produce on our minds animating and encouraging effects. When we are brought in the way of duty into great difficulties, and exposed to great dangers, let not our hearts fail, and may all our confidence be placed in the mercy, the truth, and the power of God. May the remembrance of what God has done for us in the past, convince us that God will not forsake us in the future. As a family and as individuals, when we take a review of our past lives and of thy past kindness, we have abundant reason to acknowledge, Thou hast done great things for us, wonderful things, which we looked not for. On us thy providence has shone with gentle, smiling rays; O may our lips and lives make known thy goodness and thy praise!

Lord, give us grace to imitate the example of David, by being bold in a good cause. Even when there may be no human hope of success, may we believe that, while the path of duty is clear, God will stand by us, as he stood beside David; fulfilling his own promise, maintaining his own cause, and honouring his own name. Suffer us not to be overwhelmed or overawed by the proud threatenings of spiritual enemies or wicked men. Teach us to reply to them, as thy servant replied to the boasting Philistine, We come unto you in the name of the Lord of hosts.

May our beloved children resist every tempter and every temptation in the name of the Lord of hosts. As David subdued the gigantic foe by a smooth stone out of the brook, may they and our domestics employ thy holy Word as a successful weapon to encounter and vanquish all those enemies who lie in wait for their destruction.

Preserve us, gracious God, from relying upon an arm of flesh, in the hour of conflict and of danger. May all our confidence be placed upon the arm of God alone. O fulfil in our experience that promise, Thou shalt tread upon the lion and the adder; the young lion and the dragon thou shalt trample under feet. Never allow Satan and his temptations to prevail over us.

We thank a kind Providence for the mercies of the night, and seek a continuance of thine undeserved kindness during this day. Lord, hear our prayers, accept our persons, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who loved us, and died for us. Amen.

JOYFUL SOUND.

Monaster New. Arundel. Streatham. Knareboro'. c. n.

- 1 BLEST are the souls that hear and know
The gospel's joyful sound;
Peace shall attend the path they go,
And light their steps surround.
- 2 Their joy shall bear their spirits up
Through their Redeemer's name;
His righteousness exalts their hope,
Nor Satan dares condemn.
- 3 The Lord, our glory and defence,
Strength and salvation gives;
Israel, thy king for ever reigns,
Thy God for ever lives.

Watts, Ps. 80, p. III.

ACTS XVI.

Timothy and Lydia.

THEN came he to Derbe and Lystra: and, behold, a certain disciple was there, named Timotheus, the son of a certain woman, which was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek:

2 Which was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.

4 And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem.

5 And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.

6 Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia,

7 After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 And they passing by Mysia came down to Troas.

9 And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10 And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.

11 Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

12 And from thence to Philippi; which is the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 And on the sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither.

14 And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.

15 And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us.

16 And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel possessed with a spirit of divination met us, which brought her masters much gain by soothsaying:

17 The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.

18 And this did she many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And he came out the same hour.

19 And when her masters saw that the hope of their gains was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the market-place unto the rulers,

20 And brought them to the magistrates, saying, These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city,

21 And teach customs, which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, being Romans.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVI.—Our blessed Saviour makes no distinction betwixt the Jew and Greek. All are welcome to his grace, his Church, his fellowship, his covenant, and his heaven. Timothy had a good report of the brethren. What an honour it is to be the possessor of unfeigned piety, which secures a good name, which is more fragrant than odoriferous ointment, and more precious than rubies. What a great and glorious work to be employed in planting churches! How very different the names of the conquering Caesars and the names of the holy Apostles appear upon the pages of history! The former were the servants of blood-stained ambition; the latter the servants of mercy. The former sounded the alarm of cruel, desolating war; the latter sounded the sweet trumpet of salvation and peace. The former desolated nations and cities; the latter planted churches, accompanied with the choicest spiritual blessings from the Father of lights and the Father of mercies.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the high and Holy One who inhabitest eternity, and thou art God over all. In thy nature and attributes and government and blessedness thou art over all. Unspeakably happy are they who stand in thy presence, and are constantly employed in beholding, admiring, serving, and adoring thee. Truly blessed are they who stand in thy heavenly courts; they shall be still praising thee. Selah. As a family we desire, as far as our imperfections will allow, to join the ransomed millions before the throne, and to ascribe unto thee blessing, and honour, and glory, and praise. To the only wise God our Saviour be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever.

O Lord, we desire to be humbled in the dust before thy glorious majesty. When we look upon the corruption of our nature, we have reason to exclaim, Unclean, unclean! When we reflect upon the incomprehensible lustre of thy glory, and upon the pure and perfect beings who surround thy throne in humble adoration, each one of us has reason to acknowledge, I am as a beast before thee.

Bless to us, O Lord, the interesting facts we have now read respecting some of the early disciples of the Christian faith. May all the members of our family, and the members of all the families with which we are connected, resemble Timothy, who was well reported of by the brethren.

We pray for all the churches of Christ, which we rejoice are only ONE CHURCH, notwithstanding the external divisions and distinctions which have been introduced by the prejudices and the pride of men. May all the churches be established in the faith, and be increased in number daily. Establish us in the faith who are now prostrate before thee; then shall we successfully resist the temptations of the adversary of souls.

Give us grace to feel for the millions of our race who are without the Gospel, and living without the pale and privileges of the Christian Church. May we hear the voice of their misery saying to the ministers and members of Christian Churches, Come over, and help us. Lord, help them! Bless those who have gone to heathen lands to preach Christ; and soon may the voice of mercy be heard over those vast regions of the globe where Satan reigns with alarming sway.

Lord, deliver our children from Satan's power. In the name and by the power of Jesus Christ, may their youthful minds be delivered from his influence.

We raise the voice of thanksgiving for the mercies of the day; and we supplicate the care of the Father of our spirits this night, for Jesus, our Mediator's sake. Amen.

GIBBONS.

1 SAMUEL XVIII.

Jonathan's Love to David.

AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

2 And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

3 Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

4 And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David; and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle.

5 And David went out, whithersoever Saul sent him, and behaved himself wisely; and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

6 And it came to pass at that time, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of musick.

7 And the women answered one another as they played, and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.

8 And Saul was very wroth; and the saying displeased him; and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom?

9 And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.

10 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times, and there was a javelin in Saul's hand.

11 And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.

12 And Saul was afraid of David, because the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul.

13 Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand; and he went out and came in before the people.

14 And David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the LORD was with him.

15 Wherefore, when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.

16 But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

20 And Saul was yet the more afraid of David; and Saul became David's enemy continually.

30 Then the princes of the Philistines went forth: and it came to pass, after they went forth, that David behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul; so that his name was much set by.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XVIII.—David and Jonathan were adorned with mutual excellences, and were filled with ardent mutual affection. Jesus loved his people when there was no spiritual excellence in their nature, or grace in their heart. He loved them when they had nothing lovely; and because he loved them, he made them comely with his comeliness, and gracious with his grace. The love of David and Jonathan was strong: Christ's love is infinite. Jonathan gave his robe to David: Jesus gives the robe of righteousness to all the objects of his love. Jonathan stripped himself of his robe because he loved David: because Jesus loved us, he allowed himself to be stripped of his garments; and he died in shame, that we might be arrayed in robes of dignity and of glory. All Israel and Judah loved David: and the day shall arrive when all the inhabitants of the earth shall love Jesus: We hail the blessed day!

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, we acknowledge that we are thine, and that thou art most justly entitled to our love, adoration, and obedience. We are now professedly engaged in thy service: O may we feel the obligations of thy Divine and gracious authority; but, above all, the endearments of thy love. By thy Holy Spirit, may we be faithful and sincere in the work of the Lord.

Blessed Saviour, we would rejoice in thee, not only as having made an atonement for our sins by thy death, but as furnishing an example for our imitation in thy life. Give us grace, O Jesus, to walk as thou also walkedst. May we remember this day, and every day, that we are called by thy name, thy blessed name; and therefore that we should study to honour the Christian name, by adorning the Gospel of Christ. Convince us that the reason why we were preserved through the last night is, that we might glorify God in heart, speech, and behaviour. O that all of us, and all we love, were followers of Christ as dear children, adorning the doctrine of God, our Saviour, as dear children.

We confess our natural aversion to Divine things, and we would mourn over this aversion, and long for the arrival of that day when it shall be destroyed, and when the love of God in all his attributes shall reign superlative within us. Holy Spirit, write the law of holiness upon our minds, that it may be our meat, and drink to do the will of our Father who is in heaven; and that it may be our delight, in following the footsteps of our Saviour, to be constantly going about doing good.

Lord, inspire us with thankfulness for all the mercies which thou hast most graciously and abundantly poured into the cup of our lot. We thank thee, O Lord, for friends, and for the blessings of friendship. Deeply impress upon our minds that no friendship can survive the ravages of death, except that which is cemented by Christian love. May all our friendships resemble the holy love which glowed in the minds of David and Jonathan. Heaven grant that all the members of our family may love each other with Christian affection; then shall we be cheered by the blessed hope of being united together in the heavenly world, where we shall never be separated by those calamities and changes by which families are divided and dissolved here below.

Teach our beloved children to remember Jonathan and David; and may they ever live in harmony and peace. O let all of them be members of the family of Christ, united by bonds of love lasting as eternity.

We rejoice in thee, blessed Saviour, as a mighty conqueror. What were David's victories compared with thine! Thou hast conquered death and hell. Thou hast spoiled principalities and powers, and made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in thy cross. O give us victory over all our spiritual enemies, and make us conquerors, and more than conquerors, for Jesus' sake, our triumphant Conqueror and Saviour. Amen.

LAW AND GOSPEL.

Falsworth. Mchtabel. George's.

L. X.

- 1 THE law commands, and makes us know
What duties to our God we owe;
But 'tis the gospel must reveal
Where lies our strength to do his will.
- 2 The law discovers guilt and sin,
And shows how vile our hearts have been;
Only the gospel can express
Forgiving love and cleansing grace.
- 3 My soul, no more attempt to draw
Thy life and comfort from the law,
Fly to the hope the gospel gives;
The man that trusts the promise lives

WATTS, 121, B. II.

ACTS XVI.

Conviction and Conversion of the Jailor of Philippi.

AND the multitude rose up together against them: and the magistrates rent off their clothes, and commanded to beat them.

23 And when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging the jailor to keep them safely:

24 Who, having received such a charge, thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks.

25 And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed.

27 And the keeper of the prison awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm: for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, 30 And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

31 And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.

32 And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house.

33 And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house.

35 And when it was day, the magistrates sent the serjeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 And the keeper of the prison told this saying to Paul, The magistrates have sent to let you go: now therefore depart, and go in peace.

37 But Paul said unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, being Romans, and have cast us into prison; and now do they thrust us out privily? nay verily; but let them come themselves and fetch us out.

38 And the serjeants told these words unto the magistrates: and they feared, when they heard that they were Romans.

39 And they came and besought them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.

40 And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia, and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVI.—It is remarkable to think, that while the Gospel is intended for, and suited to, people of every description and of every grade, people of every grade and of every description have united in hostile enmity against the Gospel, and have vainly attempted to extinguish this noble lamp of Divine and eternal truth! Christ's ministers are messengers of mercy and love, sent to beseech men to be reconciled to God, who is willing to bestow upon them the blessings of immortality. Such is the horrid perversion, folly, enmity, and corruption of the hearts of men, that they have treated Christ's messengers as if they were murderers and robbers, unworthy to exist upon the face of the earth! O what shall these foolish persecutors feel whom, placed on the left hand of an offended Judge, they shall see the former objects of their enmity and persecuting rage seated on the right hand of the Judge; and when they shall hear the sentence pronounced, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, and inherit the kingdom prepared for you before the foundation of the world!"

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, O Lord, for that amiable and encouraging light in which thou hast so kindly condescended to manifest thyself. Thy mercy, O Hearer of prayer, is higher than the heavens. We are encouraged to place ourselves this night under the shadow of thy wings; and as children commit themselves to their earthly parents with confidence and love, we desire with confidence and love to commit ourselves and all our beloved relatives this night to thy gracious care. In the prospect of the solemnities of death and the realities of a judgment-day, we would entrust our souls, O Jesus, to thy mercy alone. We are allured by thine invitation, and we are encouraged by thy promise, that they who come shall never be cast out.

We thank our God for the glorious Gospel of our blessed Saviour. We have now read of the enmity and rage which were manifested against the early heralds of the cross of Christ, and we would lament over the hostility of our minds against that message of mercy and peace. Holy Spirit, we would earnestly pray for remarkable and extensive manifestations of thine almighty grace, in subduing and destroying the enmity of the hearts of men against the revelations of thy love.

We bless thee that thou didst enable thy ministers and people to rejoice and triumph in the midst of those persecutions they were called to endure in proclaiming to a guilty world the love and mercy of a gracious God.

We praise thee that Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises unto God in the prison. Teach us, O Lord, to endure hardness in the cause of truth, as the good soldiers of Jesus Christ. In all our afflictions may we believe that we have the kind sympathy of Christ; and in all our afflictions may we enjoy and exercise strong faith and lively hope. May we remember that one great end of affliction is, the trial of the graces. Give us thy grace; and may we find in the furnace of affliction that the trial of our faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried by fire, should be found unto praise and honour and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ.

Sauctify to our minds the remarkable instance we have now read of the conviction and conversion of the jailor of Philippi. We adore that gracious power by which such an astonishing change was so rapidly and effectually accomplished.

We long, O Lord, for the arrival of that hallowed day when our beloved children shall be supplicating the throne of grace with earnestness of heart, What shall we do to be saved? Lord, hasten it in thy time.

May all of us be baptized by the Holy Ghost, as with fire; and may that Divine love and holy zeal be enkindled in our minds which many waters shall not be able to quench.

We present our thanks for the mercies we have received as a family and as individuals this day, and pray that thou mayest give us the sleep of thy beloved this night. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, the great God our Saviour. Amen.

FREE SALVATION.

Wampton Street. Rousseau's Dream. Calcutta. Levee. P. M.

- 1 JESUS is our great salvation,
Worthy of our best esteem!
He has saved his favourite nation;
Join to sing aloud to him:
He has saved us,
Christ alone could us redeem.
- 2 When involved in sin and ruin,
And no helper there was found;
Jesus our distress was viewing,
Grace did more than sin abound:
He has called us,
With salvation in the sound.

ANON.

✓ 1 SAMUEL XIX.

Saul attempting David's Death.

AND Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.

2 But Jonathan Saul's son delighted much in David: and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself:

3 And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee; and what I see, that will I tell thee.

4 And Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul his father, and said unto him, Let not the king sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good:

5 For he did put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?

6 And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan: and Saul sware, As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain.

7 And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan shewed him all those things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, as in times past.

8 And there was war again: and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter; and they fled from him.

9 And the evil spirit from the Lord was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand: and David played with his hand.

10 And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night.

11 Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, and to slay him in the morning: and Michal David's wife told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to night, to morrow thou shalt be slain.

12 So Michal let David down through a window: and he went and fled, and escaped.

20 And Saul sent messengers to take David: and when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as appointed over them, the Spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied.

21 And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also.

22 Then went he also to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David? And one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

23 And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and the Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied, until he came to Naioth in Ramah.

24 And he stripped off his clothes also, and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and lay down naked all that day and all that night. Wherefore they say, Is Saul also among the prophets?

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XIX.—Envy is the rottenness of the bones; it is a moral canker, which destroys the happiness of the soul. They who are under its sway, are the subjects of misery; their soul resembles a region covered with poisonous weeds, venomous reptiles, and wild beasts. Envy is the fruitful parent of the most atrocious vices, and the most overwhelming miseries. Of this humiliating fact, Saul was a most affecting example. What a contrast presented by Saul and Jonathan; the father brooding over the intended murder of David, and the son stimulated by love, the most pure and ardent, contriving plans for the preservation of David's life. If we bear Christ's image, holy affections will be predominant in our hearts.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as the God of salvation, and as the God of our salvation. Truly, O Lord, in its contrivance, accomplishment, and application, thou art the God of salvation. We would take up the language of the amiable and the merciful Jonathan, while he interceded for David's life, and would acknowledge, The Lord hath wrought a great salvation, not only for all Israel, but for all nations. As a family, may all of us be the subjects of thy salvation. May we look upon all thine ordinances as wells of salvation, and may we draw water with joy out of these wells. Every day of our lives may we repair again and again to these sacred fountains, that we may drink and live for ever. With the church of old, may we be glad and rejoice in thy salvation. As thou hast appointed salvation to be the walls and bulwarks around thy Church, O make thy salvation to be the bulwark and defence of our family. May we be within the sacred enclosure, against which the gates of hell shall never prevail. Let each one of us be instructed to wait for the God of our salvation, and, like thy servant of old, even in circumstances of the greatest outward adversity, sing, We will joy in the God of our salvation.

We supplicate our God to give us increasing love to Jesus, and to all who bear his image. Wherever we see a true Christian, may we recognise a brother or a sister. As Jonathan and David delighted in each other, may we delight in thy people. May the following language be the unfeigned expressions of our heart, O Lord: Thou art our Lord: our goodness extendeth not unto thee; but to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all our delight.

Heavenly Father, let Christian love dwell in the heart of every member of this family.

Deliver our children and domestics from the friendship of the wicked. O convince them that the friendship and the fellowship of the wicked lead to the chambers of destruction.

Give us the satisfying evidence, O Jesus, that we are the objects of thy love, and that thou art the Divine, the hallowed object of ours. Teach us to delight ourselves in God. We bless thee for that blessed command and blessed promise, Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart. We seek grace to obey the command, and faith to obey the promise.

We thank God that our eyes are permitted to see the light of another morning. This day, in the ordinances of religion, may we, and particularly our aged friends, by faith see the King in his beauty, and the land which is afar off. May we spend this day under the direction of thy grace. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

THE BIBLE.

Bengolian. Elwall. Trowbridge. Welch.

P. M.

- 1 BY the thoughtless world derided,
Still I love the word of God;
'Tis the crook by which I'm guided,
Often 'tis a chastening rod:
'Tis a sword that cuts asunder
All my pride and vanity;
When abased I lie and wonder
That he spares a wretch like me.
- 2 This confirms me when I waver,
Sots my trembling judgment right;
When I stray, how much soever,
This is my restoring light:
Satan oft, and sin, assail me,
With temptations ever new;
Then, O nothing can avail me,
Till my bleeding Lord I view.

COLLYER.

ACTS XVII.

Paul in Berea and Athens.

NOW, when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews.

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the Scriptures,

3 Opening and alleging, that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ.

4 And some of them believed, and consorted with Paul and Silas; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

5 But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 And when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also;

7 Whom Jason hath received: and these all do contrary to the decrees of Cæsar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus.

8 And they troubled the people and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things.

9 And when they had taken security of Jason, and of the other, they let them go.

10 And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who, coming thither, went into the synagogue of the Jews.

11 These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

12 Therefore many of them believed; also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few.

13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and stirred up the people.

14 And then immediately the brethren sent away Paul, to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there still.

15 And they that conducted Paul brought him unto Athens: and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus for to come to him with all speed, they departed.

16 Now, while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

17 Therefore disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVII.—We anticipate and long for the day when the whole surface of the earth shall be adorned with sacred Christian sanctuaries, where the glorious Gospel shall be fully, clearly, and faithfully proclaimed, and where the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, and the God of salvation shall be worshipped and adored. The Bible is the text book which guides the faithful minister and the believing parent and instructor. It is only by a strict and conscientious adherence to its sublime, holy, and consolatory truths, that we have any reason to expect the descent of the influences of the Holy Spirit. The incarnation, the suretyship, the sufferings, the death, the resurrection, the ascension, and the glorious reign of Christ are mysterious and Divine realities, which constitute the essence of the Gospel. These, faithful ministers delight to proclaim; and on these true believers delight to meditate; they are the joy of their heart, and the firm foundation of their faith.

PRAYER.

O THOU who reignest over the heavens and the earth, we approach thee in the name of Christ, and in our family capacity we adore thee as the only Jehovah. Thou art the Lord God who dwellest between the cherubim; thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth. While we mourn over the abominations of idolatry, and lament that millions are the deluded votaries of false deities, we rejoice that thine eternal purpose has fixed a period when all nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord, and shall glorify thy name; for thou art great, and doest wondrous things; thou art God alone.

We thank thee, thou true God, for the Holy Scriptures, where thy nature, personality, and attributes, are so clearly made known. We thank thee for the Word of light, which has dispelled the dark clouds of heathen ignorance and idolatry from the firmament of our beloved land; and that by means of its heavenly beams a Gospel day of grace and joy now shines. Let everlasting thanks be thine, O Lord, for such a bright display of grace as makes a world of darkness shine with beams of heavenly day.

Give thine ambassadors grace to preach and reason more extensively out of the Holy Scriptures. May all of them be more impressed than they have ever been with the truth, that God will only bless his own Word in the conversion of sinners, the building up of saints, and the extension of the Mediator's kingdom. O let all their discourses and addresses to the understanding, heart, and conscience of men be enriched with the marrow of Gospel truth.

Enable our beloved children and servants to read the Word of God with believing and loving hearts. Holy Spirit, teach them to wield this thy sword: then shall they obtain blessed victories over their corruptions and every spiritual foe.

We acknowledge, O Jesus, the necessity of thy sufferings and death. Thou didst die willingly; yet the salvation of thy people had never been accomplished, unless thou hadst died the death. May we remember with gratitude and joy thy victory over death, by rising from the grave, and bursting asunder the fetters of mortality.

May all the families with which we are connected, and the congregation to which we belong, imitate the example of the ancient church of Berea, by receiving the word with all readiness of mind, and searching the Scriptures daily, whether the things they hear have the authority of the standard of eternal truth.

Lord, mercifully forgive the sins of the past day and the past week. Bless the duties performed and the ordinances observed. Sanctify the events of providence which have passed over our heads, and make us thankful for the mercies received. Watch over us this night, and spare and prepare us for the service of thy holy Sabbath, for our Saviour's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all, now and ever. Amen.

THE VENGEANCE AND COMPASSION OF GOD.

Fordingbridge. Job. Chard.

L. M.

- 1 LET God arise in all his might,
And put the troops of hell to flight,
As smoke that sought to cloud the skies
Before the rising tempest flies.
- 2 He comes arrayed in burning flames;
Justice and vengeance are his names:
Behold his fainting foes expire
Like molting wax before the fire.
- 3 He rides and thunders through the sky;
His name Jehovah sounds on high:
Sing to his name, ye sons of grace;
Ye saints, rejoice before his face.

Watts, Ps. 68, p. 1

PSALM LXVIII.

Christ's Triumph.

LET God arise, let his enemies be scattered: let them also that hate him flee before him.

2 As smoke is driven away, so drive them away: as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish in the presence of God.

3 But let the righteous be glad; let them rejoice before God: yea, let them exceedingly rejoice.

4 Sing unto God, sing praises to his name: extol him that rideth upon the heavens by his name JAH, and rejoice before him.

5 A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation.

6 God setteth the solitary in families: he bringeth out those which are bound with chains: but the rebellious dwell in a dry land.

7 O God, when thou wentest forth before thy people, when thou didst march through the wilderness; Selah:

8 The earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God: even Sinai itself was moved at the presence of God, the God of Israel.

9 Thou, O God, didst send a plentiful rain, whereby thou didst confirm thine inheritance when it was weary.

10 Thy congregation hath dwelt therein: thou, O God, hast prepared of thy goodness for the poor.

11 The Lord gave the word: great was the company of those that published it.

12 Kings of armies did flee apace: and she that tarried at home divided the spoil.

13 Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

14 When the Almighty scattered kings in it, it was white as snow in Salmon.

15 The hill of God is as the hill of Bashan; an high hill as the hill of Bashan.

16 Why leap ye, ye high hills? this is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; yea, the Lord will dwell in it for ever.

17 The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels: the Lord is among them, as in Sinai, in the holy place.

18 Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXVIII.—God is the best of friends, but the most formidable of enemies. He is mighty to save those who flee to him for mercy, and he is mighty to destroy those who impatiently despise his grace. What reason then have the wicked to tremble, and what reason have the righteous to rejoice! Great is the blessedness of those who can say in faith, "God is my God in Christ: as the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the persecutions of Jehovah are round about me for my defence." Infinitely merciful is God as the God of salvation; and he stands to his people in the most endearing relations, delightfully suited to them in all their bereavements, trials, and sorrows. He is the husband of the widow, the father of the fatherless, and the stay of the orphan. Jesus is to his people their ALL AND IN ALL. How very clearly, and in what sublime strains, the inspired Psalmist foretold the ascension of Christ! He spake as if he had been an eye-witness, gazing on Jesus as he ascended to his mediatorial throne.

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we to praise and adore thee, thou King of saints, that our eyes are permitted to see the gladdening light of another day of the Son of man! We desire to enter upon the sacred services of this hallowed day, in the name of our Divine Intercessor, and in humble dependence on the promised aid of the Holy Spirit. Teach us as a family to use with unfeigned sincerity and love the language of David, on the morning of this thy day: O Lord, thou art our God, and early will we seek thee.

Teach us to look on the Sabbath below as an harbinger of the eternal Sabbath above.

We adore thee, O God of salvation, in all the mercy of thy character. Thou art the father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows; thou settest the solitary in families, and thou settest at liberty those who are bound with chains. Lord, have mercy on such of our beloved relatives and others as are fatherless and orphans, and take them under thy paternal and especial care. Have mercy upon bereaved and disconsolate widows, and encourage them to place implicit confidence in that Saviour who has promised to be the husband of the widow. Give them heart-cheering views of the inexhaustible stores of a gracious providence, and of the infinite willingness of a merciful God to take under his special care those who place their trust in him.

May this Sabbath-day be distinguished by a rich communication of spiritual blessings from the throne of grace. Lord, send a plentiful rain. We long, we pray for the refreshing showers of the influences of the Holy Spirit. Look down upon thy Church, which thou hast called thine inheritance. Now that thine inheritance is weary with remaining corruption, and with the craft and temptations of the enemy, confirm thine inheritance in faith, patience, and hope.

Glory to our God, that thou hast prepared of thy goodness for the poor! May the poor feast in thy sanctuary on the rich provision which will be presented before them on thy Gospel table.

May our beloved children experience the sanctifying influence of a preached Gospel. O that the charms of youth may be accompanied by the Divine ornaments of saving grace! Amid the business of life, may the minds of our servants be ever impressed with the fear of God.

Holy Spirit, look upon the multitudes who are now lying degraded among the pots of sin; and, by the sanctifying energy of thy power, may they become lovelier than the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

Pour out thy Spirit upon our rulers. Make them the willing subjects of an exalted Saviour, and may they add to the triumph of that mighty Redeemer who hath led captivity captive, and who hath received gifts for men. O may these royal gifts of our risen Lord be sought and received by multitudes this day. As a family, as a congregation, as a church and nation, may the Lord our God dwell among us.

Let our imperfect prayers be heard, and our sins be pardoned, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

TWENTY-SEVENTH WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

PRAISE FOR BLESSINGS.

Alfred. Duke Street. Wells.

L. M.

- 1 WE bless the Lord, the just, the good,
Who fills our hearts with joy and food,
Who pours his blessings from the skies,
And loads our days with rich supplies.
- 2 He sends the sun his circuit round,
To cheer the fruits, to warm the ground;
He bids the clouds with plenteous rain
Refresh the thirsty earth again.
- 3 'Tis to his care we owe our breath,
And all our near escapes from death;
Safety and health to God belong;
He heals the weak, and guards the strong.
- 4 He makes the saint and sinner prove
The common blessings of his love;
But the wide difference that remains
Is endless joy or endless pains.

WATTS, Ps. 68, p. III.

PSALM LXVIII.

Acclamation of Praise to Christ.

BLESSED be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah.

20 He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death.

21 But God shall wound the head of his enemies, and the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses.

22 The Lord said, I will bring again from Bashan, I will bring my people again from the depths of the sea:

23 That thy foot may be dipped in the blood of thine enemies, and the tongue of thy dogs in the same.

24 They have seen thy goings, O God; even the goings of my God, my King, in the sanctuary.

25 The singers went before, the players on instruments followed after; among them were the damsels playing the timbrels.

26 Bless ye God in the congregations, even the Lord, from the fountain of Israel.

27 There is little Benjamin with their ruler, the princes of Judah and their council, the princes of Zebulun, and the princes of Naphtali.

28 Thy God hath commanded thy strength: strengthen, O God, that which thou hast wrought for us.

29 Because of thy temple at Jerusalem shall kings bring presents unto thee.

30 Rebuke the company of spearmen, the multitude of the bulls, with the calves of the people, till every one submit himself with pieces of silver: scatter thou the people that delight in war.

31 Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God.

32 Sing unto God, ye kingdoms of the earth; O sing praises unto the Lord; Selah:

33 To him that rideth upon the heavens of heavens, which were of old; lo, he doth send out his voice, and that a mighty voice.

34 Ascribe ye strength unto God: his excellency is over Israel, and his strength is in the clouds.

35 O God, thou art terrible out of thy holy places: the God of Israel is he that giveth strength and power unto his people. Blessed be God.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXVIII.—Jesus is an overflowing fountain, from whom the blessings of his salvation flow in copious streams to the objects of his love. He has life and death at his command. Through him may we be delivered from spiritual death. Through him may we obtain eternal life. "The gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." It is true that the enemies of the saints of God are numerous and powerful: it is also true that they shall never prevail, and that a glorious victory awaits the redeemed over all their enemies. Under Jesus, their skilful and mighty captain, they shall be conquerors, and more than conquerors. Jesus is infinitely worthy to receive the homage of all the rulers of the earth. When his fame is universally spread abroad, when his mediatorial reign shall extend over the earth, the nations shall unite in praising his name in sweet, melodious songs.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Spirit, whose grace and mercy have been proclaimed by thy ministering servants this day, and heard by thousands and tens of thousands, we adore thee as the Lord our God. Truly our God is the God of salvation; and unto thee alone belong the issues from death. All the diseases and dangers by which men are exposed to death are under thy control; and thou art able and willing to deliver the soul from all those sins which expose men to the miseries of death eternal. Unto thee, O Lord, we would ascribe strength. By thy power, thou art able in one moment not only to confound, but to annihilate all thine enemies. We rejoice that the excellency of thy strength is over Israel. Out of thy holy places thou hast shown thyself terrible in the destruction which thou hast brought upon the enemies of thine Israel; thou art he who giveth strength and power to thy people. God of salvation, blessed be thy holy name, and blessed be thy name for ever and ever.

We present our thanksgivings in behalf of all the churches, and of all the ministers of eternal truth, to whom thy goodness has been manifested this day. We believe it, for thou hast said that thy word shall not return unto thee void. And we thank God in behalf of every individual who has received benefit this day over the vast extent of the Church in every part of the habitable globe. As a family, and as individuals, we would take up the sweet strains of the inspired Psalmist into our lips: Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with his benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah.

O Lord, thou didst bring thy people Israel from the depths of the sea; and we rejoice, O Jesus, that thou hast preserved thy Church and people from the Red Sea of Divine wrath.

O Saviour, teach our dear children to flee to thee as the only refuge, that they may be preserved from the misery of hell, which is the dreadful consequence of unpardoned guilt. Grant that our servants may flee from the snares of sin, and escape to Jesus as the only refuge of the soul.

We praise thee, O God, that for thousands of years thy goings have been seen in thy sanctuary. Glory to thy name for the goings of thy saving grace which have been seen in the sanctuary during the public and sacred services of this thy hallowed day. Lord, we hail the day when the Gospel and its ordinances shall be enjoyed by all nations. We thank thee for the promise, that princes shall come out of Egypt, and that Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands to God. Lord, have mercy on African nations, and under a Gospel dispensation remove from the descendants of Ham that grievous curse by which they have been debased for many thousands of years. May the waters of salvation soon make those moral deserts a fruitful paradise which are now far more desolate than those frightful wastes which occupy so great a portion of the African continent. Let the kingdoms of the earth sing unto our God; let all the nations sing praises unto the Lord.

We commit our souls and bodies and abodes to the care of our heavenly Father this night. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, our only Saviour. Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

- 1 GREAT God! in vain man's narrow view
Attempts to look thy nature through:
Our labouring powers with reverence own
Thy glories never can be known.
- 2 Not the high seraph's mighty thought,
Who countless years his God has sought,
Such wondrous height or depth can find,
Or fully trace thy boundless mind.
- 3 Yet, Lord, thy kindness deigns to show
Enough for mortal minds to know;
While wisdom, goodness, power divine,
Through all thy works and conduct shine.
- 4 O! may our souls with rapture trace
Thy works of nature and of grace;
Explore thy sacred name, and still Press on to know and do thy will!

1 SAMUEL XXI.

David's Perplexities.

THEN came David to Nob to Ahimelech the priest: and Ahimelech was afraid at the meeting of David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee?

2 And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, The king hath commanded me a business, and hath said unto me, Let no man know anything of the business whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee: and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place.

3 Now therefore what is under thine hand? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what there is present.

4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand, but there is hallowed bread.

5 So the priest gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there but the shewbread, that was taken from before the LORD, to put hot bread in the day when it was taken away.

6 Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before the LORD; and his name was Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of the herdmen that belonged to Saul.

7 And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste.

8 And the priest said, The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in the valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.

9 And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to Achish the king of Gath.

10 And the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king of the land? did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

11 And David laid up these words in his heart, and was more afraid of Achish the king of Gath.

12 And he changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard.

13 Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man is mad: wherefore then have ye brought him to me?

14 Have I need of madmen, that ye have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXI.—David's afflictions, perplexities, and dangers were of no ordinary description; but they led him to think of God's priests and of God's sanctuary, where God has stores of blessings and consolations for all his afflicted people. This holy man showed the frailty of human nature in using an improper mean to gain a lawful end. In greatest straits we should never cease to place implicit confidence in our God and Saviour, who never fails to guide his people by his counsel, and afterwards bring them to glory. We cannot tell how many gloomy and dark clouds may yet encompass us in our journey through this wilderness world to our heavenly home. May the counsel of the inspired Isaiah sink deep into our hearts: "Who is among you that feareth the Lord, and obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God!"

PRAYER.

THOU, O Lord, art the God of providence. Though thy dispensations may appear dark and mysterious to our feeble capacities, all thine arrangements are infinitely wise and infinitely good. When we reflect on the very singular and perplexing events with which David was tried, may we never consider that any strange thing has befallen us. When we are so hemmed in by circumstances and trials, that we know not whether to turn to the right hand or to the left, may we console ourselves with this animating truth, that with thee our God in Christ there is no darkness at all, and that thou wilt safely conduct thy people through all their difficulties, and at last bring them to thy heavenly home, where they shall never be surrounded by dark clouds, and where the sun of their glory shall no more go down.

Holy Spirit, amid all the dark and trying dispensations of providence, may we remember and rejoice that God is light, yea, that he is perfect in knowledge. Thou art HE who putteth wisdom in the inward parts, and who hath given understanding to the heart. Thou art HE who giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding.

We seek the blessing of our God on what we have now read. We have seen in the history of thy tried servant that situations of eminence are slippery places. Have mercy on such of our relatives and friends as are possessed of wealth or invested with power. Preserve them from the numerous snares and dangers with which such situations are ever accompanied. May the impression of the vanity and uncertainty of earthly wealth, and the infinite importance of a heavenly inheritance, never for one day be absent from their thoughts.

Deliver us, on all occasions, from those snares to which the soul is exposed by the fear of man. We have now seen the dissimulation into which even David fell; and may we consider the record of the melancholy fact as a beacon to warn us of our danger, and to avoid by Divine grace those snares by which even David was entangled.

Preserve us, O Lord, from the oppression of the proud. We see in David an affecting illustration of the truth, that oppression makes a wise man mad. If it is thy will, may we never be placed in those situations where we should be liable to fall into such a snare: but, if in thy providence we should be so tried, we earnestly pray that we may not be suffered to fall.

In a peculiar manner, O Lord, preserve our dear offspring from the temptations to which they are now exposed, and from all the hosts of temptation which shall meet them in the future period of their days. Jesus, hold them as stars in thy right hand.

O King of Zion, we thank thee for the bread of life, of which the vilest and the most unworthy are invited to partake. Lord, enable us to eat, and live for ever.

Receive, O Lord, the tribute of praise for the mercies of the past Sabbath and the past night. May we live this day under the salutary influence of the Word yesterday proclaimed.

Hear our prayer, and forgive our sin, for the sake of Jesus, our Ransom and Surety. Amen.

- 1 LOOK up, ye saints, direct your eyes
To him who dwells above the skies:
With your glad notes his praise rehearse
Who formed the mighty universe.
- 2 The word he gave, the obedient sun
Began his glorious race to run:
Nor silver moon, nor stars delay,
To glide along the ethereal way.
- 3 Teeming with life—air, earth, and sea
Obey the Almighty's high decree!
To every tribe he gives their food,
Then speaks the whole divinely good.

ACTS XVII.

Athenian Idolatry.

WHEN certain philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountered him. And some said, What will this babbling say? other some, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods: because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 (For all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.)

22 Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious.

23 For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.

24 God that made the world, and all things therein, seeing that he is the Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands:

25 Neither is worshipped with men's hands as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things;

26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

27 That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us:

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring.

29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.

30 And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent:

31 Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

32 And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked: and others said, We will hear thee again of this matter.

33 So Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit certain men clave unto him, and believed: among the which was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVII.—The infidels, the wicked, and the profane hate the Gospel, and pour contempt upon its doctrines. Thus, they expose their folly and their shame; thus, they demonstrate their moral derangement, in despising and rejecting that only guide which can lead to heaven and immortal bliss. In derision, the Athenian philosophers called the doctrine of the Gospel new. Without intending it, they uttered a delightful truth. The light of the Gospel is always new, like the animating light of the morning sky. The streams which flow from this fountain are always new and refreshing to the soul. The fruit which grows on this Divine evergreen is always new, and affords to the spiritual taste of the soul constant and undiminished enjoyment and delight. Affecting, humiliating truth!—the world by wisdom knew not God. The wisest philosophers on the face of the earth, and in Athens, the far-famed city of Greece, the most distinguished for learning and schools, were ignorant of Him in whom they lived, moved, and had their being!

PRAYER.

HOLY and Divine Spirit, graciously solemnize our minds, and abstract our thoughts from all worldly objects and cares, while we prostrate ourselves before the throne of grace, to present our evening prayer.

God of salvation, we acknowledge that we are unable to form adequate and suitable conceptions of thy majesty, glory, and grace. Yet we rejoice that thou art not altogether to us the unknown God. Thou hast favoured us with a blessed revelation of thyself in the Word of life. God prevent that we should ignorantly worship thee, who art the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Ever may we be enabled to worship thee in spirit and in truth.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the great God who made the world and all things therein, seeing that thou art the Lord of heaven and earth, who dwellest not in temples made with hands. It is impossible that thou canst be worshipped by the workmanship of men's hands, for all idol worship is an abomination to thy holy and spiritual nature, while it is infinitely derogatory to thy glory. Thou, O Lord, art absolutely independent of all creatures, while the whole universe of creatures is ever dependent on thee. Thou givest to all life, breath, and all things. Thou alone hast given existence to all the tribes of human beings on the surface of the earth. Thou hast made of one blood all the nations of men, and hast brought them from one common source, even Adam, from whom they have received a nature corrupted and fallen. We adore thee, O Lord, in all the wisdom of thy purposes, which thou hast formed before the world began. Thou hast determined the times before appointed, and hast fixed the bounds of the habitations of all the children of men, that they might seek thee, the Lord.

We acknowledge that it is in thee we live, move, and have our being. Remembering this, may we see the infinite obligations under which we are laid to give thee the homage and worship of the heart. Remembering this, may we be led to make a full surrender to thee, O Jesus, of all we are and all we have. Holy Spirit, enable us as a family to perform this act of spiritual and personal dedication. From henceforth may we consider with solemnity and joy that we are the Lord's.

Affect the minds of our beloved children with the prospect of the solemnities of a judgment-day, and of the resurrection from the dead. On that day, that great and solemn day, when heaven and earth shall flee away, may they and we be found on the right hand of God.

Accept of our united thanks for the blessings of reason, health, the necessaries and the comforts of life, this day enjoyed. Afford us thy fatherly care this night. May we and all our friends enjoy the protection of a covenant God. Hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, who liveth and was dead, and who is alive for evermore. Amen.

1 SAMUEL XXII.

Saul slaying the Priests.

DAVID therefore departed thence, and escaped to the cave Adullam: and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him.

2 And every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented, gathered themselves unto him; and he became a captain over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab: and he said unto the king of Moab, Let my father and my mother, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you, till I know what God will do for me.

4 And he brought them before the king of Moab: and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold.

5 And the prophet Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came into the forest of Hareth.

6 When Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him, (now Saul abode in Gibeah under a tree in Ramah, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him;)

7 Then Saul said unto his servants that stood about him, Hear now, ye Benjamites; will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds;

8 That all of you have conspired against me, and there is none that sheweth me that my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse, and there is none of you that is sorry for me, or sheweth unto me that my son hath stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

9 Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants of Saul, and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech the son of Ahitub.

10 And he enquired of the Lord for him, and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11 Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father's house, the priests that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the king.

12 And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, Here I am, my lord.

13 And Saul said unto him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse, in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast enquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

14 Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is the king's son in law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine house?

15 Did I then begin to enquire of God for him? Be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more.

16 And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou, and all thy father's house.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXII.—What a difference betwixt David in a cave, and David in a palace! Here we may consider him typical of Christ. What a difference betwixt Jesus on the cross, and on the throne! What a difference betwixt Jesus in the grave, surrounded with darkness, and in heaven, shining brighter than ten thousand suns! Peculiar, trying, degrading, and distressing, were the circumstances of those who came to David, to be guided by his wisdom, to fight under his standard, and to enjoy his protection. In this David was remarkably typical of Christ. Jesus invites the vile, the wretched, the poor, the guilty, and the abandoned, to come to him. He is willing to become their leader, their commander, their protector, and their Saviour. Marvellous grace! They require none to recommend them: they are welcome as they are—laden with guilt, and loathsome with disease. When they come they are washed, and sanctified, and justified. What a change!—what a blessed change!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, in all the mysteries of thy sovereignty. We adore thee in the displays of sovereignty and grace connected with the life and experience of thy people in this vale of tears. O Lord, thou dost reign alone, with undivided and eternal authority. As a family we bow down before thy sceptre, acknowledging that thou dost rule with wide and absolute command; over the broad ocean and the solid land thou dost reign almighty and alone, and all creation hangs upon thy throne.

Sanctify to our minds the affecting account we have now read of the persecutions and afflictions of the man according to thine own heart. We thank God that none of our afflictions have ever been so severe as his. O Lord, thou hast corrected us in measure, thou hast never dealt with us as our iniquities deserve. In the hour of suffering, graciously impart unto our minds that rich supply of Divine strength by which we shall be enabled to take up our cross and follow Christ. As in the dark night of affliction David believed in the providential and paternal care of God, and waited to know what God would do for him; may we in the night of gloomy adversity believe in the watchful care of God, and with filial submission and dependence wait to know what God, our heavenly Father, will do for us. O our God, we would lay hold of the promise which is given to those who wait upon thee: Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart. O for that faith by which we shall be able to say, in humble reliance upon our God and Father in Christ, Our soul waiteth for the Lord, he is our help and shield.

Teach us, O Lord, to look on David as a type of Christ. As David received persons of every description into his service, may we rejoice that our merciful Saviour is willing to receive sinners, however great their guilt and numerous their sins, into his employment, and to take them under his gracious protection. Praise to our God, we have upon record that invitation and promise, which stands secure as the eternal throne: Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out.

Persuade and enable our beloved children and domestics to join the ranks of Christ's army, and to become the faithful servants of the Captain of salvation, who will give them the most splendid victories over all their lusts and corruptions.

We seek for our afflicted and aged friends all the consolations of the Gospel. May they eat the exhilarating fruit which grows on Christ, the tree of life.

Accept our humble thanks for the mercies of the night, and graciously assist in the duties of the day, for Jesus' sake, the faithful and true Witness. Amen.

Seized the poor trembling slaves of sin,
And urged the outcast to come in.

Forth with a fresh commission send,
And all thy servant's steps attend.

ACTS XVIII.

Paul in Corinth.

AFTER these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth;

2 And found a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome:) and came unto them.

3 And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and wrought: for by their occupation they were tent-makers.

4 And he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, and persuaded the Jews and the Greeks.

5 And when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus was Christ.

6 And when they opposed themselves, and blasphemed, he shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

7 And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, one that worshipped God, whose house joined hard to the synagogue.

8 And Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house; and many of the Corinthians hearing believed, and were baptized.

9 Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace:

10 For I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city.

11 And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 And when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews made insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment seat, 13 Saying, This fellow persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the law.

14 And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdness, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you.

15 And he drave them from the judgment seat.

16 And Paul after this tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and sailed thence into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow.

17 And he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he himself entered into the synagogue, and reasoned with the Jews.

18 When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not;

19 But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh in Jerusalem: but I will return again unto you, if God will. And he sailed from Ephesus.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVIII.—The banishment of the Jews by Claudius was an edict severe, cruel, and barbarous. It occasioned great inconvenience, and, no doubt, much suffering. But God brought light out of this darkness, and good out of evil. In consequence of this edict the usefulness of Priscilla and Aquila was greatly increased. They were probably converted in Rome, under the preaching of Peter. Having been made partakers of grace, and distinguished for piety, they were made peculiarly useful in promoting the spread of the Gospel, and extending the boundaries of the kingdom of Christ. In this, and in ten thousands of instances, Satan has been taken in his own craftiness; and God has made the wrath of men to praise him, while the remainder of their wrath he has restrained. How astonishing the sovereignty, the wisdom, and the power of God, in employing the unhallowed actions of wicked men for accomplishing his own purposes of mercy and grace!

PRAYER.

IT is our unspeakable privilege, O Lord our God, to worship and bow down before thee. We desire to avail ourselves of our privilege, and to kneel before the Lord our Maker; for thou art our God and Father in Christ, alluring us by arguments the most powerful to come unto thee, to receive the rich treasures of grace, and the hopes of the glory and felicity of heaven. What reason have we to rejoice in the abundance of thy condescension and mercy! Though the heavens be thy throne and the earth thy footstool, yea, though the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee, thou hast said in thy great mercy, 'To this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word. Holy Spirit, may we be of an humble and contrite heart, and deeply affected with the word of thine authority and grace; then shall we have the pleasing evidence that we are walking with God, and that we are temples of the Holy Ghost.

We would humbly and earnestly supplicate zeal for the glory of God, for the salvation of sinners, and the extension of the kingdom of Christ. When we remember the zeal and labours of Paul and Aquila and Priscilla, we are ashamed at our languor, and would mourn over our cold and culpable indifference.

Lord, make us successful in the conversion of some careless souls. As Paul reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath-day, persuading both Jews and Greeks, may we be instruments in adding members to thy Church, considering it the greatest honour, and a mark of the greatest wisdom, to win souls to Christ. God forbid that any of us should be indifferent to the salvation of our own souls, or the souls of our beloved relatives who are still far from God, and who have not moved one step in their journey to the heavenly state. O Lord, we acknowledge with shame our past indifference about the salvation of those related to us by the ties of nature and blood. Henceforth may we use affectionate diligence in persuading them to bow before Immanuel, and become his loving and his faithful subjects.

Have mercy on our children, and deliver them from the guilt and reign of sin. Teach us to travail as in birth for their salvation.

Lord, increase the faithfulness of thy ministers. At the close of their ministerial course, may they be enabled, like thy servant, to say, We are pure of the blood of all men.

Give thy ministers great encouragement in their honourable and arduous employment. Say to them in the midst of the greatest difficulties, and in the face of the greatest dangers, Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace.

Graciously forgive the offences and imperfections of this day. Daily may we remember the merit of the Saviour's blood, which alone can wash away the guilt of sin. We thank thee for all the blessings of thy providence this day received. We commit ourselves into thine everlasting arms this night. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

COLLYER.

1 SAMUEL XXIII.

David's Difficulties.

WHEN they told David, saying, Behold the Philistines fight against Keilah, and they rob the threshing-floors.

2 Therefore David enquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the Lord said unto David, Go and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah.

3 And David's men said unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah: how much more then if we come to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?

4 Then David enquired of the Lord yet again. And the Lord answered him and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for I will deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

5 So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and smote them with a great slaughter. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

6 And it came to pass, when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with an ephod in his hand.

7 And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah. And Saul said, God hath delivered him into mine hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town that hath gates and bars.

8 And Saul called all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.

9 And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod.

10 Then said David, O Lord God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, to destroy the city for my sake.

11 Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O Lord God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. And the Lord said, He will come down.

12 Then said David, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And the Lord said, They will deliver thee up.

13 Then David and his men, which were about six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go. And it was told Saul that David was escaped from Keilah; and he forbore to go forth.

14 And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds, and remained in a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

15 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life: and David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a wood.

16 And Jonathan Saul's son arose, and went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God.

17 And he said unto him, Fear not: for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee; and that also Saul my father knoweth.

18 And they two made a covenant before the Lord: and David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his house.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXIII.—In the midst of our own personal trials and troubles we must not be insensible to the troubles of the Church, or be forgetful of her claims. David, in the midst of his own trials and perplexities, felt for Keilah in her difficulties and dangers, and nobly and valiantly delivered her out of the hand of her enemies. Very perseveringly Saul longed and thirsted for David's blood, and to accomplish his death. Very perseveringly the Jews longed and thirsted for Jesus' blood, and at last succeeded in putting him to death. Jesus appeared among men as a Saviour, and men rose up against him as destroyers. David, in his afflictions, sought and enjoyed the fellowship of God. This Divine intercourse lightens the heaviest burden, and sweetens the bitterest cup. Jesus is the nearest, the best, and the most compassionate of friends. Happy and blest are they who pour their complaints into the bosom of his love!

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Jehovah, we adore thee as the counsellor of thy people. Infinite are the stores of thy wisdom; and we bless and praise thee that, on all occasions, thy children have access to thee as their Father for direction and comfort. May each one of us value thy counsel, and seek it. Like the Psalmist, may we have reason to sing, I bless the Lord, who hath given me counsel. We seek that faith in Christ as our counsellor which will enable us in holy confidence to exclaim, Thou wilt guide me with thy counsel, and afterwards receive me to glory. We thank God for this gracious promise, and we earnestly plead for its accomplishment: I will instruct thee, and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye.

Convince our beloved children of the folly which is naturally bound up within them, and give them grace to seek direction and wisdom from Christ, who is the wonderful counsellor. Fill their hearts with love to thy Word, and may they form the following resolution: Thy testimonies are my counsellors.

We present our thanks to our God for the example which David has given us of seeking direction from God, when he was embarrassed with difficulties and exposed to danger. And we bless God that he sought not direction in vain. We rejoice that the Word of God furnishes the most suitable counsels, both for the soul and body, for time and eternity. Give us thy Spirit, that we may affectionately search the Scriptures for direction in every case; and when we have found it, to follow it. May we not resemble him who knew his Lord's will and did it not, and who was therefore beaten with many stripes. In ten thousand instances we have been chargeable with this sin; and have reason to wonder at the patience and mercy of our God, that we have not been visited with deserved wrath. O blessed God, may it never be said of us, or of any of our beloved relatives, at the day of death, Because I have called, and ye have refused: I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded; but ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would have none of my reproof; I will also laugh at your calamity, I will mock when your fear cometh.

We thank our God for religious friends. O teach us more highly than ever to value the affection, the fellowship, the example, and the prayers of pious friends. May our friends resemble the pious Jonathan, who strengthened David's hand in God, and may they strengthen our hand in God. May we be ever preserved from the society of such as would tempt us to draw aside from wisdom's ways.

We thank God for the care of the past night, and we seek the direction and blessing of our God this day.

Lord, hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, only for the sake of our dear Redeemer. Amen.

RICHES

Bethel New, Kernell, Providence College.

- 1 LET avarice, from shore to shore,
Her favourite God pursue;
Thy word, O Lord, we value more Than India or Peru.
- 2 Hero mines of knowledge, love, and joy,
Are opened to our sight;
The purest gold without alloy,
And gems divinely bright.
- 3 The counsels of redeeming grace
These sacred leaves unfold;
And here the Saviour's lovely face
Our raptured eyes behold.

ACTS XVIII.

The eloquent Apollos.

AND a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures, came to Ephesus.

25 This man was instructed in the way of the Lord; and being fervent in the spirit, he spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John.

26 And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue: whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was disposed to pass into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him: who, when he was come, helped them much which had believed through grace:

28 For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, shewing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

ACTS XIX.

Paul in Ephesus.

AND it came to pass, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus: and finding certain disciples, 2 He said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.

3 And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism.

4 Then said Paul, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

9 But when divers were hardened, and believed not, but spake evil of that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus.

10 And this continued by the space of two years; so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

11 And God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul:

12 So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XVIII., XIX.—Apollos was enriched with grace, and mighty and successful in wielding the sword of the Spirit. He was a champion for the faith, and for the Gospel. His name signifies "Destroyer;" he spiritually honoured his name, by manfully opposing the kingdom of Satan, and by laying waste the territories of sin, of ignorance, and of Paganism. Important searching question: "Have we received the Holy Ghost?" Have we received him in his convincing influences? Have we seen sin in its vileness, enormity, and guilt? And have we fled to Jesus, the Fountain opened for sin and uncleanness? Have we received the Spirit in his enlightening influences, and has the dark night of spiritual ignorance and folly been changed into the bright day of saving knowledge and wisdom? Have we received the Spirit in his quickening influences, and is our soul the subject of the Divine and vital principle of grace? Have we felt the comforting influences of the Spirit? Then, we have been taught to rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, we are again permitted, in the multitude of thy mercies, to approach thee seated on the throne of grace. We would call on thee, who art infinitely worthy to be praised. But how unspeakably unfit are we, on account of our ignorance, folly, weakness, and sin, to address thee, O Lord, a God of unspotted holiness, and of boundless and unerring wisdom! We, therefore, earnestly pray that thou wouldst graciously send forth thy light and thy truth. Instruct us in the way in which we should go in thy worship; for such is the darkness of our minds, that we are unable to order our speech aright before thee. Lord, enable us to offer up our prayer under a deep sense of our sinfulness and unworthiness. O that all our prayers rose to thy throne from hearts softened and subdued by filial fear and evangelical repentance!

Sanctify to us the events of the past day. We thank thee for the measure of health and strength afforded us in the discharge of its various duties, and in the pursuit of our lawful calling. O pardon the guilt we have contracted this day, and may our sins of omission and commission be mercifully forgiven, through the infinite merit of our Saviour's righteousness.

May we lie down to rest this night under the holy and well-grounded confidence that thou art the Lord our God, and that we are encompassed by the everlasting arms of a gracious God. In this most blessed persuasion may we live, and in this persuasion may we die. While we live like Paul, who laboured with indefatigable zeal in the service of Jesus, may we live to the Lord; and when we die, may we die unto the Lord. Living or dying, may we be the Lord's.

Heavenly Father, enable aged and experienced Christians to imitate the example of Aquila and Priscilla, who taught Apollos, and expounded unto him more perfectly the way of God. May they communicate of their knowledge and experience to younger and less experienced disciples in the school of Christ.

O Lord, give to our dear children an increasing thirst for useful, and more especially for Divine knowledge. May they and our servants ever listen with veneration and delight to the counsels and admonition of experienced saints.

We ask not for ourselves, O Lord, worldly wealth or earthly power; but may we be rich in grace, and mighty in the Scriptures. Make all thy dear, ministering servants, like Apollos, mighty in the Scriptures. With the fervour of sacred and heaven-taught eloquence, may they proclaim the glories of Christ, the greatness of his love, the merit of his righteousness, and the freeness of his grace.

Mercifully hear our imperfect prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy, with the Father and Divine Spirit, to receive eternal praises. Amen.

PRAYER FOR HELP.

Oldford. Westerham. Bedford.

C. M.

- 1 HELP me to persevere in grace,
Still gladly following on;
Save me from each backsliding path
To which my heart is prone.
- 2 Help, in prosperity, that I
True gratitude may find:
Save me from pride and carnal ease,
And from an earthly mind.
- 3 Help, in adversity, to bow
My neck to bear the yoke:
Save me from wrath and discontent,
Which would my God provoke.

ANON.

1 SAMUEL XXIV.

David's Interview with Saul.

AND it came to pass, when Saul was returned from following the Philistines, that it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in the wilderness of En-gedi.

2 Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seek David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats.

3 And he came to the sheep-cotes by the way, where was a cave; and Saul went in to cover his feet: and David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.

4 And the men of David said unto him, Behold the day of which the LORD said unto thee, Behold, I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of Saul's robe privily.

5 And it came to pass afterward, that David's heart smote him, because he had cut off Saul's skirt.

8 David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself.

9 And David said to Saul, Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?

10 Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the LORD had delivered thee to day into mine hand in the cave: and some bade me kill thee: but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is the LORD's anointed.

11 Moreover, my father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee: yet thou huntest my soul to take it.

12 The LORD judgo between me and thee, and the LORD avenge me of thee: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

13 As saith the proverb of the ancients, Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

14 After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? after a dead dog, after a flea.

15 The LORD therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and deliver me out of thine hand.

16 And it came to pass, when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice, and wept.

17 And he said to David, Thou art more righteous than I: for thou hast rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXIV.—In Saul we have an affecting instance of the strength of envy, and of the workings of jealousy, the most unreasonable and cruel. A mind under the dominion of the sinful passions is an emblem of hell; for it contains the very essence of what constitutes the misery of Tophet. A mind under the dominion of grace, onlightened by Divine light, and warmed by Divine love, is an emblem of heaven; because it contains all that is essential to heavenly blessedness, joy, and peace. Did David spare the life of Saul, his greatest enemy? Let us earnestly seek after and cultivate a forgiving spirit, which never can be exercised without communicating the sweetest and most refined enjoyment, while it is one of the most satisfying evidences that we are forgiven of God, through the merits of our Saviour's righteousness. How wonderfully our Saviour manifested this forgiving spirit when his enemies nailed him to the cross; He prayed, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do!"

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord God, as the helper of thy people. Thou art a helper infinitely sufficient, for thou art almighty. Thou art a helper near at hand, for thou art omnipresent. There is none like unto thee, O thou God of Jeshurun, who ridest upon the heavens in thy help, and in thine excellency on the sky.

Suffer us not to be cast down when we think either on the number, or strength, or violence of our enemies. Teach us to remember that their arm is an arm of flesh, while the Lord our God is with us, to help us, and to fight our battles. With an Apostle, may each one of us boldly say, The Lord is mine helper, I will not fear what man shall do unto me. In every danger, and in every affliction, fulfil in our experience that animating promise, Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee, with the right hand of my righteousness. We thank thee that thou hast said, I, the Lord thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee. Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the Lord and thy Redeemer, the holy one of Israel. Give us faith, O Lord, to lay hold of these promises.

Open the eyes of our beloved children, that they may see the absolute necessity of Jesus as their helper and their Saviour. In the prospect of all the difficulties which are before them in the journey of life, may they be enabled to sing, Our help cometh from God, who made heaven and earth.

We present prayers in behalf of our aged friends. While their natural faculties are beginning to fail, may their graces prosper and be in health. May they eminently find the God of Jacob to be their helper. Cause them to flourish like the palm-tree, and to grow like the cedar in Lebanon.

Give us grace, O Lord, to mourn over the fallen and degraded state of the nature of man. We would lament that those displays of cruelty, envy, and malice which were furnished by Saul against David, were not confined to those ages of the world, but continue to the present day, in all their violence and force. As a race, we confess that we have become altogether filthy; there is none among us who doeth good, no, not one. O Jesus, extend the blessings of thy salvation over the minds of men. Where sin has so long reigned, may grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life.

Enable all of us, O Lord, to resemble David in a forgiving spirit; and may we never be left to dishonour God or injure our own souls, by harbouring in our bosom malice or revenge. Let not angry passions betray us into angry and unseemly expressions; but, amid the greatest provocations, may we use the soft word, which turneth away wrath.

We present our humble tribute of praise for the mercies of the night, and supplicate God that we may live this day under the direction of Divine grace. Bless to us the religious service in which we have now been engaged, and hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Intercessor's sake. Amen.

GOSPEL VICTORIOUS OVER IDOLATRY.

Old England. Hatton. Angels' Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 BEHOOLD with pleasing ecstasy,
The gospel standard lifted high,
That all the nations from afar
May in the great salvation share.
- 2 Why then, Almighty Saviour, why
Do wretched souls in millions die?
While wide the infernal tyrant reigns
O'er spacious realms in ponderous chains.
- 3 Scarce can our glowing hearts endure
A world where thou art known no more;
Transform it, Lord, by conquering love;
Or bear us to the realms above.

DODDRIDGE.

ACTS XIX.

Triumph of the Gospel.

THEN certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the priests, which did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

18 And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their deeds.

19 Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

21 After these things were ended, Paul purposed in the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.

22 So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus; but he himself stayed in Asia for a season.

23 And the same time there arose no small stir about that way.

24 For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen;

25 Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth.

26 Moreover, ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods which are made with hands:

27 So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshippeth.

28 And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole city was filled with confusion: and having caught Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the theatre.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIX.—The heart is greatly depraved in those men who employ sacred things as a mean of obtaining unhallowed gain. All the members of Sceva's family were united in employing the same sacrilegious means, for accomplishing the same sinful end. Over such families Satan pre-eminently reigns. Lamentable spectacle: all the members of a family closely leagued together in those practices of iniquity which, unrepented of, must unavoidably lead to perdition! How delightful it is to witness the powerful and saving effects of the Gospel upon the hearts of men! Corrupt prejudices, habits, and practices, are immediately laid aside, and the service of God is immediately, affectionately, and thankfully embraced. Sin, Satan, and the world, the old tyrants of the soul, are cast off for ever, and allegiance is sworn to King Jesus.

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and gracious Lord God, our appearance before thy throne of grace is a blessed proof of thy forbearance, compassion, and mercy. Though we are less than the least of all thy mercies, yet thou givest us every encouragement to put our trust under the shadow of thy wings. Thou art the bountiful donor of all the blessings which our souls need, and thou dost with great mercy avert from us those evils and calamities which our sins deserve. All our days thou hast been our help, and therefore we are encouraged to repose in thee all our hope. Thy goodness to us is great, and our unworthiness is great. Thy mercies to us are daily and constant; and, alas! our offences are daily and constant. Thou hast exercised towards us great patience; but we are chargeable with the sins of trying and abusing thy patience. Holy Spirit, give us a humble and penitential view of our sins and our sinfulness; and give us a believing view of Christ, as the propitiation for our sins. With an Apostle, may we be enabled to say, in the exercise of a lively faith, Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

We desire, O Lord, to be gratefully impressed with a loving sense of thy kindness to us during the past day. We thank God for bodily health, for mental tranquillity, and for the means of grace. We thank God for the comforts of domestic life; but, above all, for the pleasing hopes of being associated in heaven with God, angels, saints, and all our pious relatives and friends, for ever and ever.

We commend ourselves to thy merciful care this night; and we would beseech our God to preserve us from all evil. May our sleep be sweet, peaceful, and refreshing, that we may be inclined and prepared to enter on the duties of the approaching day with increasing diligence and fidelity.

May the word of God we have now read be applied to our hearts by the power of the Holy Spirit. Thou hast appointed it as a mean of grace; O that each of us may find it an effectual mean in illuminating our minds and softening our hearts. As the Gospel was effectual in the conversion of magicians, and in prevailing upon them to forsake their curious and lying arts, may thy Gospel be effectual in persuading us to abandon every lust, even though it were as valuable in our estimation as a right hand or a right eye.

May our dear children feel the saving influence of the Gospel of Christ. By means of it may they fear God, and through their conversion may the name of the Lord Jesus be magnified.

Lord, have mercy on our native land. Here may the word of God grow mightily and prevail. Before its glorious light may the dark clouds of infidelity, immorality, and vice speedily disappear. May the Gospel be instrumental in gaining many victories over the hearts and consciences, the prejudices and habits, of all ranks of the community.

Lord, we look up unto thee for the answer of our prayer and the pardon of our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Intercessor and High-priest. Amen.

Watts, Ps. 18, p. 1.

1 SAMUEL XXX.

The Amalekites spoiled.

AND it came to pass, when David and his men were come to Ziklag on the third day, that the Amalekites had invaded the south, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire:

2 And had taken the women captives, that were therein; they slew not any, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.

3 So David and his men came to the city, and, behold, it was burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken captives.

4 Then David and the people that were with him lifted up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep.

5 And David's two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite.

6 And David was greatly distressed; for the people spake of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was grieved, every man for his sons and for his daughters: but David encouraged himself in the Lord his God.

7 And David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod. And Abiathar brought thither the ephod to David.

8 And David enquired at the Lord, saying, Shall I pursue after this troop? shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.

9 So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where those that were left behind stayed.

10 But David pursued, he and four hundred men: for two hundred abode behind, which were so faint that they could not go over the brook Besor.

11 And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he did eat; and they made him drink water;

12 And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: and when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him: for he had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days and three nights.

13 And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And he said, Swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to this company.

14 And when he had brought him down, behold, they were spread abroad upon all the earth, eating and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil that they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah.

15 And David smote them from the twilight even unto the evening of the next day: and there escaped not a man of them, save four hundred young men, which rode upon camels, and fled.

16 And David recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away: and David rescued his two wives.

17 And there was nothing lacking to them, neither small nor great, neither sons nor daughters, neither spoil, nor any thing that they had taken to them: David recovered all.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXX.—David's alliance with the Philistines was sinful, and soon followed by severe calamities, which were evident marks of the Divine displeasure. How important it is never to leave the path of duty, which the experience of saints in all ages proves that it is the way of safety. We see in the Amalekites that covetousness prompts to the greatest excesses of iniquity and crime. It has given origin to the most cruel wars which have desolated cities, and overspread states, and provinces, and kingdoms with the most frightful ravages. God remembered David in his afflictions, and mercifully preserved the lives of his family when in the hand of bloodthirsty enemies, and exposed to the greatest peril. In many instances, the interpositions of providence in behalf of his people are sudden, unexpected, and marvellous. How important to know and believe, that great deliverances from great dangers are preceded by earnest and believing applications!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we bless thee that we are encouraged to approach thee as children approach an earthly parent, and that we are permitted to address thee as our Father in heaven. We rejoice that as our Father thou art better acquainted with our wants and necessities than we are ourselves. We thank thee, O Jesus, that thou hast said, for the encouragement of all thy people, Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him. Mercifully grant that each one of us may receive the spirit of adoption, whereby we shall cry, Abba, Father. Give us the pleasing evidence that we are the children of God; and may the Spirit bear witness with our spirits that we belong to the family of Christ. May we know, in deed and in truth, that our Father hath loved us, and may we receive everlasting consolation and good hope through grace.

We thank our God and Father for the mercies of the past night, and that we are graciously preserved to see the return of another day. May we live this day as if it were our last; and may we live as we should wish to do on the last day of our residence here below. Constantly may we feel that we are under the eye of an all-seeing God. By this salutary impression may we be prevented from offending God; and by this comforting impression may we be led to exercise continual dependence on God in every difficulty, perplexity, and sorrow.

May our minds improve by the reading of the Word of God. Thereby may we be furnished unto every good work.

We have now read of the horror and the ravages of war; and we would mourn over the melancholy depravity and cruelty of our ruined and apostate race. O merciful God, we not only earnestly pray that thou wouldst restrain the malicious passions of men, but we supplicate thee that these passions may be destroyed, and their depraved nature mollified and changed. Teach the children of men by thy Word and Spirit to love one another as members of the same family. May those who now resemble lions and wolves, resemble lambs and doves, and may there be nothing to hurt or destroy in all thy holy mountain. O let the knowledge of Christ and salvation cover the earth as the waters cover the sea; then shall love and peace universally prevail.

Deliver our dear children from angry and malicious passions. Teach them by thy Spirit lessons of self-government. May they obtain the government of their temper and the government of their tongues, and ever speak and act as become the children of the lowly Jesus.

As David sought and obtained counsel of God, may we be encouraged to seek counsel of God in every difficulty. Mercifully hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

IDOLATRY REPROVED.

New Sermon. Mottram. New 50th. Guestwick. 2nd u.

- 1 NOT to our names, thou only just and true,
Not to our worthless names is glory due;
Thy power and grace, thy truth and justice, claim
Immortal honours to thy sovereign name:
Shine through the earth from heaven, thy blest abode,
Nor let the heathen say, And where's your God?
- 2 Heaven is thine higher court; where stands thy throne
And through the lower worlds thy will is done;
Our God framed all this earth, these heavens he spread,
But fools adore the gods their hands have made:
The kneeling crowd, with looks devout, behold
Their silver saviours, and their saints of gold.

WATTS, Ps. 115.

ACTS XIX.

Idolatrous Uproar.

AND they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.

34 But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 And when the townclerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess.

38 Wherefore, if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a lawful assembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

ACTS XX.

Eutychus raised to Life.

AND after the uproar was ceased, Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed for to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3 And there abode three months. And when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

6 And we sailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days; where we abode seven days.

7 And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight.

8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him said, Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him.

11 When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XIX., XX.—ALEXANDER signifies literally, "A helper of men." If we are earnestly and spiritually desirous to be the helpers of our species, and useful to the Church, we must not be afraid of the enmity and rage of wicked men. The history of our world shows with what zeal error is embraced, and with what ardour false gods are worshipped. O may we surpass them in our zeal for the worship of the only, the living, and the true God! Christ's providence can carry his servants safe through the wildest uproars, and turn mad outrage into calm tranquillity and peace. Parting with Christian friends, whom we expect to see no more on earth, ought to be very devout and affectionate. And, if murderous enemies lie in wait for us, we may cautiously avoid them. How criminal and dangerous it is, even at midnight, to sleep during the worship of God! What if he whom we affront as unworthy of our notice—he whom we condemn as unworthy of our embrace, should seize the moment—strike us dead, and awaken us in eternal fire! Surely then every sermon should be heard, every sacrament received, every praise poured forth, and farewell of friends taken, as on the brink of the eternal world.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the only Jehovah; and praise thee that thou hast put into our hands thy blessed Word, by which we are made acquainted with thy being, three-fold personality, character, perfections, purposes, and works. Idols which the heathen worship are the workmanship of men's hands, but thou art he who made the heavens. Heathen idols have eyes, but they see not; thine eye is omniscient: they have ears, but they hear not; thine ear listens to the prayers of saints, and the hallelujahs of angels: they have hands, but they work not; but thy hand formed the universe; they have mouths, but they speak not; but thou dost speak to men with the voice of thy providence, and makest the nations to tremble; and thou dost speak to thy Church with the voice of thy Gospel, and fillest their hearts with joy and gladness. Thou art the Lord our God. As a family we bow before thee, and adore thee as the only, the living, and the true God. O teach every member of our family, and all the families with which we are connected, thus to own and acknowledge thee: Thou art my God, and I will praise thee; and my father's God, and I will adore thy name.

We thank thee that thou hast brought us in safety to the close of another day. O may we be brought safely, honourably, and triumphantly to the close of life. May the sins and infirmities of this day, and of all our past days, be graciously pardoned. Suffer us not to die under the grievous, the overwhelming load of unpardoned guilt. Lord, have mercy on us sinners!

We have now read of the idolatry of the ancient Ephesians, which reminds us of the idolatry of our miserable and degraded ancestors, who paid their adorations to those who were no gods, who were only vanities and lies. We thank the God of providence and of grace that the dark cloud of idolatry is now removed from the firmament of our land, and that the glorious Gospel of the great God and Saviour Jesus Christ shines like the sun in its strength. O blessed Spirit, deliver the nations from idolatry. For the honour of the Divine majesty, and for the sake of the eternal interests of hundreds of millions of Adam's race, do thou mercifully and speedily deliver the earth from this most dreadful abomination, this unparalleled outrage upon the attributes and prerogatives of Jehovah.

Bless to our dear children and domestics the calamity which befell the young man under the preaching of Paul. Make them attentive hearers of a preached Gospel.

We commend ourselves and all our dear relatives to thy care this night; and would supplicate thy compassion to the afflicted and the aged. Graciously hear our prayer, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 SOVEREIGN of life! I own thy hand
In every chastening stroke;
And, while I smart beneath thy rod,
Thy presence I invoke.
- 2 To thee in my distress I cried,
And thou hast bowed thine ear;
Thy powerful word my life prolonged,
And brought salvation near.

DODDRIDGE.

1 SAMUEL XXXI.

Death of Saul and Jonathan.

NOW the Philistines fought against Israel: and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down slain in Mount Gilboa.

2 And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchi-shua, Saul's sons.

3 And the battle went sore against Saul, and the archers hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.

4 Then said Saul unto his armourbearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me. But his armourbearer would not; for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.

5 And when his armourbearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.

6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armourbearer, and all his men, that same day together.

7 And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were on the other side Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

8 And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen in Mount Gilboa.

9 And they cut off his head, and stripped off his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to publish it in the house of their idols, and among the people.

10 And they put his armour in the house of Ashtaroth: and they fastened his body to the wall of Beth-shan.

11 And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard of that which the Philistines had done to Saul;

12 All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh, and burnt them there.

13 And they took their bones, and buried them under a tree at Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 SAMUEL XXXI.—How dreadful the day of God's vengeance when it arrives! The threatening of his vengeance is like the roaring of the thunder, and the inflicting of his vengeance is like the falling of the thunderbolt. They are wise, they are safe, who enter into covenant with Christ. In this case, all the perfections of Jehovah are on their side. Whatever befall others they are secure: they are hid in the secret of his pavilion. Even their death, like that of Jonathan's, is no calamity: it only hastens their eternal deliverance from all earthly calamities, and accelerates their entrance into their Father's celestial abode, where they are exalted to the enjoyment of the perfection of their graces, and where they receive their crown of glory and their palm of victory. How tragical, how mournful, how instructive, as a most solemn warning, the death of Saul! Truly, in his departing moments, he was surrounded by impenetrable gloom! When we come to the vale of death, may we find it illuminated by the bright beams of Divine love!

PRAYER.

WE desire, gracious and glorious Jehovah, to approach thy blessed throne, suitably and gratefully impressed with a sense of thy kindness during the past night, and thankful that we are inclined and permitted to present our morning sacrifice in the name of Christ. We praise thee that we are monuments of the patience and the mercy of God. O make us monuments of thy saving grace!

We adore thee in the affecting displays of thy justice and sovereignty we have now read. We adore thee in the afflicting disappointment which followed the unwarrantable and sinful wishes of Israel to obtain a king. We adore thy justice in the distressing circumstances which surrounded Saul, when he fell before his enemies on Mount Gilboa. O Lord, teach us to stand in awe of thy judgments! We adore thy righteousness in forsaking Saul, who had most grievously forsaken thee. May this teach us to stand in awe of thy judgments. We adore thee in the display of thy sovereignty, in allowing the righteous Jonathan to be slain beside his ungodly and infatuated parent. May this teach us to acknowledge thee as the righteous disposer of all events. Suffer us not, infinitely wise and gracious Jehovah, to stumble at the mysterious events of thy sovereign providence in the present calamities which befall thy children. Teach us to look onward to that future state where the true difference between the righteous and the wicked shall fully appear. Give us the eye of faith, by which we shall look within the veil, and beyond the present state, where the joys, the blessedness, and glory of thy people, will infinitely make up for all they have suffered on earth; and where they shall never be afflicted with the painful remembrance of the wormwood and the gall. We earnestly and affectionately pray for thine afflicted and aged people. Let not present sufferings and sorrows overwhelm their hearts. May the afflictions of earth remind them of the joys of heaven; and may the raging tempests of the wilderness raise their thoughts to the delightful contemplation of the peaceful and undisturbed rest of the celestial paradise.

We pray that our dear children may resemble the amiable and the pious Jonathan. Like him, may they be loving and obedient and holy; and, when they die, may their souls ascend to that blessed world where Jonathan and David are now living in the enjoyment of eternal peace.

Lord, deliver us from the sin of forsaking God, and from the calamity—the most dreadful of all calamities—of being forsaken of God. Heavenly Father, we seek thy grace, that we may never cast thee off; and we seek an interest in thy love, thine eternal and immutable love, that we may never be cast off by thee.

Have mercy on all who are desponding and sorrowful, and particularly on those who are tempted of Satan to terminate their own life. Lord, deliver them from the temptation, and dispel their sorrows.

Assist us in all the duties of the day, and crown this religious service with thy blessings, for Jesus' sake, who loved us, and shed his blood for us. Amen.

HOPE OF HEAVEN.

ACTS XX.

Paul's Farewell Address to the Church of Ephesus.

AND from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church.

18 And when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,

19 Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews :

20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house,

21 Testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

22 And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there :

23 Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me.

24 But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God.

25 And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.

27 For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God.

28 Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.

31 Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears.

32 And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

33 I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel.

34 Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.

35 I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.

36 And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, 38 Sorrowing most of all for the words which he spake, that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XX.—How honourable is the life of minister, when his holy example is the living illustration of its beauty, truth, and excellence of the Gospel he proclaims! Then he a workman not needing to be ashamed, for he rightly divides the Word of truth. Christ's ministers must lay their account with temptations in their Master's service. However, it is pleasing temptations, successfully overcome, only render Christ's faithful servants more qualified for watching over and feeding the flock which they are the overseers. Let us admire and imitate the holy Apostle, in the earnestness of his affectionate prayers for the members of the church of Ephesus. Above all things, we should pray for those in whom we are interested, that they may be made partakers of grace. It is a present inheritance of incalculable value and it prepares for the reception and enjoyment of an inheritance beyond the sky, of which the Apostle says, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, what God hath prepared for them who love him."

PRAYER.

O JESUS, we adore thee as the King of Zion. Thou art infinitely entitled to reign over the universe, for thou art the essential Jehovah; and thou art infinitely worthy to reign over the Church, for as Mediator thou didst purchase it with thy precious blood. Graciously reign over us, the mighty Saviour; and as a family may we indeed form a part of thy spiritual kingdom.

We thank a gracious Providence for all the mercies we have received this day, and for all we have enjoyed during the week. Impress our minds with this truth, that not one of these mercies we have merited; and that our God had committed no act of injustice, if we had been deprived of them all. We supplicate the pardon of this week's sins. Where can we look, O Lord, for deliverance from our guilty stain, but to the all-prevailing blood of Jesus? There would we look, O our Father. What joy should fill our hearts, that we hear a voice sweeter than the singing of birds, addressing us from the throne of mercy: Look unto me, and be ye saved for I am God, and beside me there is none else.

We praise thee that we are drawing near thy sacred, blessed day, the holy Sabbath, the best of all the seven. O enable us to say respecting it, in the language and with the animated feelings of an inspired Psalmist, This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will be glad and rejoice in it.

As thy children, we pray to be enabled to be diligent and constant in thy service. Like the Apostle of whom we have now read, may we serve thee in all places and all seasons. We would mourn over our spiritual indolence, over our sin of omission and commission. Would to God we were a diligent in the affairs of eternity as in the business of time and that we were as concerned about the interest of the soul as about the welfare of the body! Holy Spirit, grant this our earnest prayer.

Prepare our beloved minister, and all thy servants, for the arduous and honourable duties of an approaching day. As Paul preached, may they preach; as he prayed, may they pray as he worked, may they labour. O may they serve the Lord with all humility of mind; and with many tears may they beseech their beloved people to flee from the wrath to come. May they not even esteem their life dear to them, if they shall only finish their course with joy—if they shall only accomplish the great object of the ministry which they have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God.

We now commend our dear children to God and the word of his grace, which is able to build them up.

And we commend ourselves, and all our beloved friends, to the care of our God this night, who is able to give us an inheritance among all them who are sanctified. All we do is for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST'S OBEDIENCE AND DEATH.

Serenity. Grenville. Abridge.

c. w.

- 1 FATHER, I sing thy wondrous grace,
I bless my Saviour's name;
He bought salvation for the poor,
And bore the sinner's shame.
- 2 His deep distress has raised us high;
His duty and his zeal
Fulfilled the law which mortals broke,
And finished all thy will.
- 3 His dying groans, his living songs,
Shall better please my God,
Than harp or trumpet's solemn sound,
Than goat's or bullock's blood.

WATTS, Ps. 69, p. 111.

PSALM LXIX.

Christ's Sufferings.

SAVE me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul.

2 I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing: I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me.

3 I am weary of my crying: my throat is dried: mine eyes fail while I wait for my God.

4 They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of mine head: they that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are mighty: then I restored that which I took not away.

5 O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from thee.

6 Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord God of hosts, be ashamed for my sake: let not those that seek thee be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel.

7 Because for thy sake I have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face.

8 I am become a stranger unto my brethren, and an alien unto my mother's children.

9 For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up; and the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me.

10 When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach.

11 I made sackcloth also my garment; and I became a proverb to them.

12 They that sit in the gate speak against me; and I was the song of the drunkards.

13 But as for me, my prayer is unto thee, O Lord, in an acceptable time: O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation.

14 Deliver me out of the mire, and let me not sink: let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters.

15 Let not the waterflood overflow me, neither let the deep swallow me up, and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

16 Hear me, O Lord; for thy lovingkindness is good: turn unto me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies.

17 And hide not thy face from thy servant; for I am in trouble: hear me speedily.

18 Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: deliver me because of mine enemies.

19 Thou hast known my reproach, and my shame and my dishonour: mine adversaries are all before thee.

20 Reproach hath broken my heart; and I am full of heaviness: and I looked for some to take pity, but there was none, and for comforters, but I found none.

21 They gave me also gall for my meat; and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXIX.—As the breezes of the sky waft ships onward to their desired haven, so under the influence of sanctified afflictions believers are carried onward to the bosom of God's mercy, where they find consolation and peace in the time of trial and suffering. David, as an afflicted man, was an eminent type of Christ, whose afflictions, in an awful degree, entered into his very soul and drunk up his spirits. The sufferings of his soul were the very essence of his sufferings. May the words of our Lord excite the love and wonder of our hearts: "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death!" May each one of us be enabled to say, in the language of appropriating faith, "Jesus suffered for me, he was wounded for my transgressions, and by his stripes I am healed!"

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, we desire to begin another week and another Sabbath-day in fellowship with thee; and in the name of Jesus we would assemble around our domestic altar, and present our morning sacrifice. May our acknowledgments, our adorations, and our prayers come up unto thee in an acceptable time. O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear us, and in the truth of thy salvation. We thank our God and Father that we have been preserved through another night; and that we are permitted, notwithstanding our unworthiness and guilt, to open our eyes on another day of the Son of man. In the prospect of entering thy public courts and mingling with the assemblies of those that love thee, we would pray that among the assemblies of thy saints we may ever raise our voice of thanksgiving; that in thy courts we may pour our complaints into thy bosom, and there proclaim thy praise.

We would particularly plead with God in behalf of all thy ministering servants. Deliver them from the fear of man, and fill them with a filial fear of God. In addressing the congregations who shall assemble in thy courts, may they speak as they are moved by the Holy Ghost. May they lift up Christ in a preached Gospel. May they lift him up in his person as God and man; may they lift him up in his righteousness; may they lift him up in his sufferings, his death, and his triumphs. In all their discourses may the sufferings of Christ, of which we have now read a prophetic description, form a principal part; and in all thy churches may that blessed promise be fully accomplished, And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me.

Let showers of spiritual blessings descend upon our beloved land, and may the hearts of all the inhabitants be turned unto the Lord our God, against whom the great mass of the community have so grievously revolted. Give to our rulers and magistrates wisdom and grace to rule, as in the name and fear of God.

May those institutions of our country prosper exceedingly which are formed for presenting the Bible to every nation in their own language, and for sending them living teachers to unfurl the banners of salvation, and proclaim the riches of redeeming grace.

Show great kindness to all thy people, whether they shall be assembled in thy sacred courts, or confined to the chambers of suffering. Hide not thy face from thy people who are in trouble; hear them speedily.

Smile upon our offspring, and may they taste, under a preached Gospel, the sweets of godliness, and find there is no pleasure to be compared with the joys of religion. O teach our servants to seek after the unsfading joys of religion, and to flee from the destroying pleasures of sin.

May this be a distinguished day among thy Sabbaths, and may multitudes bow before Immanuel's sceptre.

Hear our prayer, O Lord, for thy loving-kindness is good; turn unto us, according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies. Hear us, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S PASSION.

Expectation. St. Mary's. Ellenborough.

c. n.

- 1 SAVE me, O God! the swelling floods
Break in upon my soul;
I sink, and sorrows o'er my head
Like mighty waters roll.
- 2 I cry till all my voice be gone,
In tears I waste the day:
My God, behold my longing eyes,
And shorten thy delay.
- 3 They hate my soul without a cause,
And still their number grows
More than the hairs around my head,
And mighty are my foes.
- 4 Thus in the great Messiah's name
The royal prophet mourns;
Thus he awakes our hearts to grief,
And gives us joy by turns.

Watts, Ps. 69, p. 1.

PSALM LXIX.

Misery of Christ's Enemies.

LET their table become a snare before them: and that which should have been for their welfare, let it become a trap.

23 Let their eyes be darkened, that they see not; and make their loins continually to shake.

24 Pour out thine indignation upon them, and let thy wrathful anger take hold of them.

25 Let their habitation be desolate; and let none dwell in their tents.

26 For they persecute him whom thou hast smitten; and they talk to the grief of those whom thou hast wounded.

27 Add iniquity unto their iniquity: and let them not come into thy righteousness.

28 Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous.

29 But I am poor and sorrowful: let thy salvation, O God, set me up on high.

30 I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving.

31 This also shall please the LORD better than an ox, or bullock that hath horns and hoofs.

32 The humble shall see this, and be glad: and your heart shall live that seek God.

33 For the LORD heareth the poor, and despiseth not his prisoners.

34 Let the heaven and earth praise him, the seas, and every thing that moveth therein.

35 For God will save Zion, and will build the cities of Judah: that they may dwell there, and have it in possession.

36 The seed also of his servants shall inherit it: and they that love his name shall dwell therein.

PSALM LXX.

Earnest Prayers.

MAKE haste, O God, to deliver me; make haste to help me, O LORD.

2 Let them be ashamed and confounded that seek after my soul: let them be turned backward, and put to confusion, that desire my hurt.

3 Let them be turned back for a reward of their shame that say, Aha, aha.

4 Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: and let such as love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified.

5 But I am poor and needy: make haste unto me, O God: thou art my help and my deliverer; O LORD, make no tarrying.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXIX., LXX.—There is no real blessing in the possessions and enjoyments, and there is no real sweetness in the luxurious delights and pleasures of those who are living in a state of enmity against God, who are habitually trampling upon his authority, breaking his laws, despising his ordinances, and refusing the offers of his mercy and grace. Above all others, the persecutors of God's people live under the Divine displeasure, and are every moment in danger of being sent to Tophet, that gloomy prison of despair, from which there is no escape! Wherever there is the gift and spirit of prayer, it is distinguished by holy sincerity and believing importunity. Persecutors pour out obloquy and shame on the saints of God: if they die impenitent, they shall be covered with eternal shame and confusion. The measure they meted out for the children of God, he will mete out for them in his righteous judgment.

PRAYER.

GLORY to our God, that we are permitted, after our public assembling in the gates of Zion, to meet together as a family in the private dwellings of Jacob, to prostrate ourselves before thee as our God and Father in Christ. Like David thy servant, may we rejoice to praise thy name with a song; and in our domestic worship may we never separate praise from prayer. Ever may we approach the Divine presence with grateful hearts, and magnify our God with thanksgiving. O let the number increase of those who praise thee. By means of the Gospel this day proclaimed, may the ears of many hitherto deaf to the voice of God be unstopped, and the tongues of many heretofore dumb be made to sing the praises of the God of our salvation.

May thy people be greatly comforted who listened this day to the joyful sound. Let all those who have this day sought thee rejoice and be glad in thee; and let such as love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified!

We thank thee as a family for the comfort and benefit we have enjoyed in thy courts. We trust some of us can say—O that all of us could say, in accents of unfeigned sincerity and joy, A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. We thank thee for assisting thy ministering servant, our pastor; and for the gracious aid imparted to all thy faithful ambassadors this day. We praise thee for the saving good accomplished through their instrumentality. Glory to thy name for all the instances in which thy Word has been made the power of God unto salvation. If any of this family have been benefited, if our dear children have been impressed, if their hearts have been tenderly touched, like the heart of Lydia, we would ascribe to God the Spirit hallelujahs of praise. May Divine grace touch the hearts of our servants, as it touched the heart of Lydia.

Seal deeply on the minds of the rising race the instructions and warnings which have been addressed to them by teachers, parents, and ministers. O take the children instead of the parents, and make them princes in all the earth. Perfect praise out of the mouths of babes and sucklings. Let there be many instances of early conversion; and in our day may multitudes of children resemble the beloved children who accompanied Jesus in his triumphant entrance into Jerusalem: and may they sing, Hosannah to the Son of David in the highest, who cometh in the name of the Lord to save us!

Lord, have mercy on unconverted, hardened sinners. O affect them with a deep sense of the awful consequences of a life of impenitence and unpardoned guilt. Convince them that, if they die as they live, thine indignation shall be poured out upon them, and thy wrathful anger shall take hold upon them. Now may they escape to Jesus Christ, through whom alone they can be preserved from the wrath to come.

Graciously watch over us this night, and hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

DEATH OF FRIENDS.

Christ Church. Funeral Thought. Carolina. c. n.

- 1 MUST friends and kindred drop and die,
And helpers be withdrawn?
While sorrow with a weeping eye
Counts up our comforts gone!
- 2 Be thou our comfort, mighty God!
Our helper and our friend:
Nor leave us in this dangerous road,
Till all our trials end.

Our pious fathers led!
With love and holy zeal obey
The counsels of the dead!

Watts, 47, B. I.

2 SAMUEL I.

David's Lamentation over Saul and Jonathan.

NOW it came to pass after the death of Saul, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag;

2 It came even to pass on the third day, that, behold, a man came out of the camp from Saul with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head: and so it was, when he came to David, that he fell to the earth, and did obeisance.

3 And David said unto him, From whence comest thou? and he said unto him, Out of the camp of Israel am I escaped.

4 And David said unto him, How went the matter? I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, That the people are fled from the battle, and many of the people also are fallen and dead; and Saul and Jonathan his son are dead also.

5 And David said unto the young man that told him, How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son be dead?

6 And the young man that told him said, As I happened by chance upon mount Gilboa, behold, Saul leaned upon his spear; and, lo, the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him.

7 And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called unto me. And I answered, Here am I.

8 And he said unto me, Who art thou? And I answered him, I am an Amalekite.

9 He said unto me again, Stand, I pray thee, upon me, and slay me: for anguish is come upon me, because my life is yet whole in me.

10 So I stood upon him, and slew him, because I was sure that he could not live after that he was fallen: and I took the crown that was upon his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord.

17 And David lamented with this lamentation over Saul and over Jonathan his son:

19 The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how are the mighty fallen!

20 Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

21 Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you, nor fields of offerings: for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty.

23 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions.

24 Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.

25 How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places.

26 I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

27 How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL I.—David's military life, of almost incessant warfare, may be considered figurative of the believer's life in this wilderness state, during which he must continue the contest with his spiritual enemies, and not desist until he be able with the Apostle to say and sing, "I have fought the good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith." In the man who attempted, for the purposes of gain, to deceive David respecting the death of Saul we see the folly of falsehood, and the fatal consequences with which it may be followed. Important prayer—"Let integrity and truth preserve me!" Very tender and affecting is the lamentation of David over Saul and Jonathan. We cannot conceive the miseries of war, the rivers of tears which it has caused to roll down the cheeks of bereaved widows and parents! May the time soon arrive when wars shall cease to the end of the world!

PRAYER.

WITH solemnity and reverence we desire to approach the throne of grace. We have now read of thy justico, O Lord, in the awful death which befell Saul; and we pray that we may stand in awe of thy judgments. Thou triest the righteous: but the wicked, and him that loveth violence, thy soul hateth. Upon the wicked thou shalt rain snares, fire and brimstone, and a horrible tempest: this shall be the portion of their cup. As for the wicked, thou wilt destroy with death all their children who walk in their steps; and all the churches shall know that thou art he who searchest the reins and hearts; and that thou wilt give unto every one according to his works.

We confess, O Lord, that we have not been suitably impressed under a sense of thy holiness and justice. We have acted and felt as if sin had not been infinitely loathsome in thy sight, and as if thou wert not strict to mark, and just to punish, impenitent transgressors. In many instances we have hardened ourselves against God: deliver us, we earnestly pray, from hardness of heart, and from scaredness of conscience.

Preserve our children from this mortal calamity, which is so much to be dreaded. May we never see our offspring bound by the insatiable chains of sin, or rushing into the commission of iniquity, as the horse rushes into the battle.

Have mercy on our unconverted relatives, who have never had a sense of sin or danger. Mercifully open their eyes to see their danger, while living at a distance from thee, and in a course of disobedience to thy holy and righteous laws. Holy Spirit, awaken them out of their moral sleep, lest it should issue in eternal death beyond the grave. Let them remain asleep no longer upon the brink of endless woe. Soon may we see in them the symptoms of the beginning of that spiritual life of grace which will issue in all the blessedness of a life of glory before the throne of God.

May we be instructed by what we have now read, that it is proper to mourn over the death of departed friends. Teach us often to remember the departure of our beloved relatives who have gone before us to the world of spirits. Though they have gone to the land of forgetfulness, may they not be forgotten by us. May the remembrance of the pious excellence and active graces of friends who have fallen asleep in Jesus animate us to imitate their example, and to follow their steps. Thus may we live in the pleasing and well-grounded hope that we shall meet them in another and better world.

We thank thee for the mercies of the past night and the past Sabbath; and we seek thy blessing and smiles this day, and throughout this week. Hear us graciously, for the sake of Jesus, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

A LOVELY CARRIAGE.

ACTS XXI.

Paul's Visit to Tyre, Caesarea, and Jerusalem.

AND it came to pass, that after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara:

3 Now when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden.

4 And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days: who said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.

5 And when we had accomplished those days, we departed and went our way; and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed.

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they returned home again.

7 And when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Caesarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the evangelist, which was one of the seven; and abode with him.

9 And the same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy.

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judaea a certain prophet, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard these things, both we, and they of that place, besought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.

14 And when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after those days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jerusalem.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the day following, Paul went in with us unto James; and all the elders were present.

19 And when he had saluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry.

20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

21 And they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXI.—What an honour it is to journey in Christ's service, and for the advancement of the interests of his kingdom! Such enjoy the privilege of his fellowship, protection, and care: "the Lord God is their sun and shield." The islands of the Mediterranean are numerous, lovely, and fruitful. Let us rejoice that there are numerous promises which respect the evangelizing of these islands, and all islands which adorn the ocean. When these promises are fulfilled the little isles shall be gems of spiritual loveliness, sparkling and shining in all the beauties of holiness. The success of the Gospel filled the mind of the Apostle of the Gentiles with unspeakable joy. May we resemble him in compassion for souls, and with holy zeal for the enlargement and prosperity of Christ's kingdom.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, though in ourselves we are polluted, guilty, and unworthy, yet we venture to approach thy throne of grace, relying on the atonement and intercession of Jesus for the acceptance of our persons and the answer of our prayers. Holy Spirit, we lift up our eyes to thee for a spirit of grace and supplication. Divine Father, accomplish in our experience that blessed promise, I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes and judgments.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the inconceivable majesty, greatness, and glory, which belong to thy nature and character. Thou art almighty, and hast given, not only glorious manifestations of thy power in the creation of all things, but also in the new creation accomplished in the hearts of men, in the day of regenerating grace. We thank God for the numerous instances of thy converting power which are presented to us by the records of eternal truth. May we know experimentally, each one of us, that the day of conversion is the day of God's power.

We present our humble thanksgivings for the continued instances of our heavenly Father's goodness which we have this day enjoyed. May thy goodness lead us to repentance. O suffer us not to live and die insensible of thy goodness, that we may be prevented from learning repentance by the vials of thy wrath in the world of spirits. We commit ourselves, our relatives, and all in whom we are interested, to thy paternal protection. Ever may the eternal God be our refuge; and, when our days and nights are brought to a close, may all of us, through the blood of the Lamb, enter upon an eternal day of glory, when God himself shall be our everlasting light, and our God our glory.

Bless to us, O Lord, the appointed ordinance of reading the Scriptures of Divine veracity. We thank thee for the account we have now read of Christian affection. O may all of us possess the mark of eternal life, even love to the brethren. Let Christian love grow and prevail among all the churches. Increase the love of Christians to each other. Increase the love of people to their ministers, and of ministers to their people.

Let Christian love be enkindled in the bosom of our children. May the associates and friends of their early days be selected from among those who love and serve the Lord.

When we are called to separate from pious friends, whether by death or other causes, may we rejoice in the prospect of meeting them in our Father's house, where we shall be ever with the Lord.

Graciously hear these our imperfect prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our great atoning High-priest. Amen.

2 SAMUEL V.

David made King.

THEN came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the Lord said to thee, Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel.

3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; and king David made a league with them in Hebron before the Lord: and they anointed David king over Israel.

6 And the king and his men went to Jerusalem unto the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land: which spake unto David, saying, Except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither: thinking, David cannot come in hither.

7 Nevertheless David took the strong hold of Zion: the same is the city of David.

8 And David said on that day, Whosoever getteth up to the gutter, and smiteth the Jebusites, and the lame and the blind, that are hated of David's soul, he shall be chief and captain. Wherefore they said, The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.

9 So David dwelt in the fort, and called it the city of David. And David built round about from Millo and inward.

10 And David went on, and grew great, and the Lord God of hosts was with him.

11 And Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons: and they built David an house.

12 And David perceived that the Lord had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for his people Israel's sake.

17 But when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David; and David heard of it, and went down to the hold.

18 The Philistines also came and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

19 And David enquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I go up to the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into mine hand? And the Lord said unto David, Go up: for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

20 And David came to Baal-perazim, and David smote them there, and said, The Lord hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, as the breach of waters. Therefore he called the name of that place Baal-perazim.

21 And there they left their images, and David and his men burned them.

22 And the Philistines came up yet again, and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

23 And when David enquired of the Lord, he said, Thou shalt not go up; but fetch a compass behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees.

24 And let it be, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself: for then shall the Lord go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL V.—The tribes of Israel were gathered to David; and all tribes shall be gathered unto Christ. The tribes were gathered unto David willingly; and all who are gathered unto Christ come willingly. They are made willing in the day of his power. David was raised to feed God's Israel. Jesus feeds the spiritual Israel of God like a flock; he is their Shepherd, and leads them in the green pastures of Gospel ordinances, beside the still waters of Divine consolation. David was Israel's captain. Jesus is the Captain of our salvation; he teaches us to fight with our spiritual enemies; he is present with us in the holy contest, and he will make us more than conquerors.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, to adore thee as the strength of our heart and our portion for ever. With David we would say, Blessed be the Lord, our strength, our goodness, and our fortress, our high tower and our deliverer, and our shield in whom we trust. We acknowledge before thee our sinfulness, unworthiness, and helplessness. Thou art infinite, we are insignificant; thou art eternal, while in a few months or days we may be numbered with the dead. Lord, what is man, that thou takest knowledge of him? or the son of man, that thou makest account of him? Man is like to vanity: his days are as a shadow that passeth away. Holy Spirit, mercifully grant, by thy gracious influence, that these acknowledgments may be more than the expressions of the mouth; may they be the sentiments and feelings of the heart.

We thank our God for the opportunity we have now enjoyed of consulting the sacred oracles. Teach us to see in the history of David a remarkable type of our blessed Saviour, who is both the root and the offspring of David. Divine Redeemer, as Israel addressed David, we would address thee: Thou art our bone and our flesh. Glory to thy name, that thou didst take upon thee our human nature, that we might be partakers of thy Divine nature. With feelings of adoring wonder we would express our astonishment at thy gracious sovereignty, in passing by the angels who sinned, and in taking into union with thy Divine person the nature of man. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight. Thou, O Jesus, art the Shepherd of Israel, and thou dost feed thy people with the manna of the Gospel, even with food convenient for them. O be to us as a family a Divine Shepherd, and may we be led in the green pastures beside the still waters.

We earnestly pray that thou wouldst be to our dear children a gracious shepherd. Soon we may be separated from them by the hand of death. O take them up into thine arms, and bless them.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the captain of thy Church. Thou dost teach the hands of thy people to war, and their fingers to fight. Be to us the captain of our salvation. Under thy banners may we fight; and under thy direction may we obtain victories over all our spiritual adversaries, and may we be more than conquerors through Christ that loved us. Let not our spiritual enemies have the dominion over us. Though we are only worm Jacob, may we thresh the mountains, and beat them small. As David smote and subdued the Philistines, and the enemies of the Church, may we smite and subdue our lusts and corruptions, the determined enemies of our souls. May we tread on the lion and the adder; the young lion and the dragon may we trample under foot.

Accept of thanks for the mercies of the past night, and give us thy gracious help in the duties of the day. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

WATTS, Pt. 14, p. 11.

ACTS XXI.

Paul apprehended.

WHAT is it therefore? the multitude must needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come.

28 Do therefore this that we say to thee: We have four men which have a vow on them;

24 Them take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges with them, that they may shave their heads: and all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing; but that thou thyself also walkest orderly and keepest the law.

25 As touching the Gentiles which believe we have written and concluded that they observe no such thing, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them, entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

27 And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him.

28 Crying out, Men of Israel, help: This is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and, further, brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had seen before with him in the city Trophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.)

30 And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were shut.

31 And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

32 Who immediately took soldiers and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33 Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done.

34 And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the castle.

35 And when he came upon the stairs, so it was, that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37 And as Paul was to be led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? who said, Canst thou speak Greek?

38 Art not thou that Egyptian, which before these days madest an uproar, and leddest out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers?

39 But Paul said, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and, I beseech thee, suffer me to speak unto the people.

40 And when he had given him licence, Paul stood on the stairs, and beckoned with the hand unto the people. And when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew tongue.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXI.—We find that the Jewish converts to the Christian faith in the days of the Apostles were under the influence of strong prejudices, and clung with great eagerness to Levitical rites and ceremonies. Those prejudices even excited the fear of the great Apostle of the Gentiles, and presented a perplexing snare into which he fell, which involved him in much trouble, and actually exposed his life to peril. Great was the barbarity, and outrageous the cruelty which the unbelieving Jews showed to Paul, who came to them with the tidings of salvation, and who was one of the greatest benefactors of the human race that ever appeared on the face of the earth.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, though we are unworthy of the very least of thy mercies, yet we are encouraged to draw near unto thee with boldness, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness. We adore thee in all the glory of thine uncreated excellence, and in all the sovereignty of thy universal empire. May we be humbled in the dust, when we compare our sinfulness with thy holiness, and our insignificance with thy majesty.

We thank thee, O Lord, for our Gospel privileges, and that our lot has not been cast under the bondage of the Jewish law. We rejoice that we have a more effectual method of purification than the washing appointed by Moses, and that we have blood infinitely more precious with which to be sprinkled than the blood of goats and of lambs which flowed on Jewish altars. May each of us know by experience the value and the effectual saving influence of the blood which our Saviour shed, and the death to which he submitted. Holy Spirit, we humbly and earnestly supplicate from thee the views, the feelings, and the faith which the Apostle possessed when he said, For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God! May all of us be the blessed subjects of this purifying influence. Our sins are as scarlet, O make them as snow! they are as crimson, O make them as wool:

Take our dear children, and purify them from the vile stains of original corruption, and wash away from them the pollution of actual transgression. Give them and our servants, we pray, the beauties of holiness.

We mourn over the opposition to Christ, his Gospel, and his servants, which is so natural to the human heart, and of which we have now read some melancholy displays. We praise thee, that the opposition which has been manifested for centuries against the cause of Christ has been overruled for the furtherance of the Gospel. We praise thee that, though thy servants have been bound with chains, the Gospel has not been bound; and though thy servants have been destroyed by the flames of martyrdom, the enemies of Divine truth have neither been able to destroy the Bible, nor to extinguish the sacred flames of Gospel grace. Glory to our God, that though persecuting enemies have said, Away with Jesus, crucify him, crucify him; and though they have said respecting Paul, Away with him; and respecting the Gospel, Let it be destroyed from the face of the earth: yet, the fame of Christ is preserved, his ambassadors are maintained, and his Gospel proclaimed.

Give us, O Lord, thy protecting care this night, and accept of our thanks for the mercies of another day. May our sins be pardoned, and our prayers be answered, for Jesus' sake, the great Shepherd of the sheep. Amen.

CHRIST REIGNING.

To God the sovereign King!
Let every land their tongues employ,
And hymns of triumph sing.
- 2 Jesus our God ascends on high,
His heavenly guards around
Attend him rising through the sky
With trumpets' joyful sound.
- 3 While angels shout and praise their King,
Let mortals learn their strains;
Let all the earth his honour sing
O'er all the earth he reigns.

WATTS, F. 17

2 SAMUEL VI.

Ark brought to Jerusalem.

A GAIN, David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand.

2 And David arose, and went with all the people that were with him from Baale of Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God, whose name is called by the name of the Lord of hosts that dwelleth between the cherubims.

3 And they set the ark of God upon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in Gibeon: and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart.

4 And they brought it out of the house of Abinadab which was at Gibeon, accompanying the ark of God: and Ahio went before the ark.

5 And David and all the house of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments made of fir wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals.

6 And when they came to Nachon's threshing-floor, Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it: for the oxen shook it.

7 And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah; and God smote him there for his error; and there he died by the ark of God.

8 And David was displeased, because the Lord had made a breach upon Uzzah: and he called the name of the place Perez-uzzah to this day.

9 And David was afraid of the Lord that day, and said, How shall the ark of the Lord come to me?

10 So David would not remove the ark of the Lord unto him into the city of David: but David carried it aside into the house of Obed-edom the Gittite.

11 And the ark of the Lord continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months: and the Lord blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.

12 And it was told king David, saying, The Lord hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness.

13 And it was so, that when they that bear the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed oxen and fatlings.

14 And David danced before the Lord with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod.

15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

16 And as the ark of the Lord came into the city of David, Michal Saul's daughter looked through a window and saw king David leaping and dancing before the Lord; and she despised him in her heart.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL VI.—How delightful it is when kings are subjects of grace and when they stir up the great men of their kingdoms, and those who occupy places of influence near their throne, to take a deep interest in Christ's cause, and to be zealous for God's glory and the salvation of souls! The Ark of Israel was typical of Christ. He is the true ark of his people. He dwells in the midst of them. His continued presence is their glory and defence. To place the Ark on a cart drawn by oxen, was a grievous offence on the part of Uzzah the priest. The Ark was the very highest emblem of the Divine presence. It was the appointment of God that on all occasions, when removed from place to place, it should be carried on the shoulders of priests—holy men consecrated to God's service. Uzzah's death was the consequence of his neglect. How important it is to observe Divine ordinances, and worship implicitly as God hath appointed in his Word!

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Jehovah, we adore thee as the Lord of hosts, who dwellest between the cherubim. Innumerable angels for ever praise thee, and are ready every moment to go as swift messengers to the most distant part of the universe to execute thy pleasure. May we, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness, and the efficacy of his intercession, be admitted at death into the heavenly world, for ever to be associated with saints and angels in shouting joyful hosannas to God and the Lamb.

We confess that, on account of our aggravated and long-continued transgressions, we deserve a place in those dark and miserable abodes where fallen angels are reserved in everlasting chains, until the judgment of the great day. Most gracious Lord God, deal not with us according to our guilt, but according to thy mercy, flowing to sinful man through the channel of our Saviour's righteousness.

We rejoice, O Lord, in remembering that thou didst dwell with thy Church in Old Testament days, and didst condescend to make the ark the visible place of thy sacred and mysterious abode. We thank thee that, though the ark is long since destroyed, thy residence with thy Church has continued without interruption till the present day. Glory to thy great name, that thou art still saying respecting thy Church and people, The Lord hath chosen Zion, he hath desired it for his habitation. This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell, for I have desired it.

We praise thee that, though the ancient ark is no more in the midst of the Church, the mercy-seat is found there, from which blessings of unspeakable value and necessity are constantly dispensed by a God of grace among those who seek salvation through our Saviour's blood. Earnestly we supplicate for thy gracious presence in the midst of all the churches, and in the midst of us as a worshipping family, now prostrate before thee.

Enter, O Lord, with all thy glorious train. Enter with thy Spirit and thy truth; all that the ark did once contain could not such grace afford.

Teach our dear children sincerely and diligently to approach the mercy-seat. There, may they apply for those graces which will enable them to the close of life to subdue all their spiritual enemies, and triumph over all their corruptions.

May each one of us resemble David, in a powerful attachment to the ordinances of thy kingdom. May we engage in them joyfully, and by means of them advance in spiritual attainments, and be prepared for heaven. May the death of Uzzah convince us of the importance of observing ordinances in the way God has graciously appointed; and also of the danger of introducing into the Church ceremonies and observances which have no authority in the Word of life. O let spiritual worship prevail in all the churches of thy saints.

Lord, accept our humble tribute of thanksgiving for the mercies of the night, and assist us in the duties of the day. Preserve us from every snare, and hear our supplications for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

DEDICATION OF OURSELVES TO GOD.

- 1 HOW can I sink with such a prop
As my eternal God,

Pardon and grace my soul receives
From mine exalted Head.
- 3 All that I am, and all I have,
Shall be for ever thine,
Whate'er my duty bids me give
My cheerful hands resign.

Watts, 176, B. 11.

ACTS XXII.

Paul's Conversion.

MEN, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you.

2 (And when they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence: and he saith,)

3 I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

4 And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women.

5 As also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.

6 And it came to pass, that as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

9 And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me.

10 And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 And when I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damascus.

12 And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews which dwell there, 13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked up upon him.

14 And he said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and see that Just One, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

16 And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXII.—The Apostle, by the manner in which he delivered his defence before his enemies, plainly showed that they who are under the saving influence of Gospel truth, are instructed in lessons of holy gentleness and courtesy. It was a privilege, great and honourable, to be brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, the wisest of Jewish Rabbis and instructors. But who can conceive the greatness of the privilege and honour of being brought up and taught at the feet of Jesus, "in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and of knowledge?" What a stain upon the rulers of the Jewish Church—who ought to have been the very first to acknowledge Jesus as the true Messiah, and to have recommended him to their brethren—they were the first to reject him, the first to persecute him, and the first to show an example in seeking his death! "He came to his own, and his own received him not!" What a sudden, universal, and delightful change Divine grace produced on the heart of Paul! In one moment the wolf was changed into the lamb.

PRAYER.

OUR Father and our God, in the name of our Divine High-Priest we now assemble in thy sacred and gracious presence, to present our persons and our sacrifice. After the business, the temptations, the trials, and the snares of the day, we seek fellowship with thee, the Father of all mercies, and the God of all consolation. As a family we desire now, with solemnity, sincerity, and joy, to receive thee as the Lord our God. God the Father, we receive thee as our Father; God the Son, we receive thee as our Redeemer; God the Spirit, we receive thee as our sanctifier and comforter. God the Father, Son, and Spirit, we receive thee as our new covenant God in Christ. Never may we forget that we have thus received thee, and that thou art saying to us in thy Word, I am the Lord your God.

We now dedicate ourselves as a family to thee our God. We dedicate ourselves as individuals; we dedicate our souls, our bodies, our persons, our influence, our property, our all to thee, the Lord our God. From henceforth we would no longer consider that we are our own, but that we are bought with a price, and therefore constrained by the most endearing obligations to glorify God with our bodies and our spirits, which are his.

Let our children be thine. Now we surrender them: now we hold them up on the arms of our love and our prayers. By the ornaments of thy grace may our sons be as plants grown up in their youth, and may our daughters be as corner-stones polished after the similitude of a palace.

We present our thanks for all the instances of thy providential and gracious kindness we have experienced this day. We praise thee for thy patience in bearing with our sins, and for thy mercy in supplying our wants. May we lie down on our beds with the well-grounded conviction that our sins are pardoned, that we are sharers of the Divine favour, and members of the family of Christ. Preserve our persons and our abode, and preserve all our beloved relatives in peaceful security. Keep far from us the assaults of wicked men, and defend us from the ravages of disease. But when in thy wise providence affliction comes on our bodies, may the hand of Divine grace uphold our spirits, may thy blessing accompany all our sufferings, and may we come out of the furnace vessels sanctified and fit for the Master's use.

May the affecting and encouraging things we have now read of the conversion of Paul lead us carefully to examine ourselves, whether we are the subjects of converting grace. The light of the Gospel has long shone around us, while our minds remained enveloped in the shades of spiritual death. May the blessed light of conversion now shine within us, and may life, love, hope, and joy prevail where corruption, enmity, and unbelief reigned with despotic sway.

Have mercy on aged converts, and may their piety, experience, and peace convince all around them of the divinity of the Christian faith, and that it is the only solace of the mind on the brink of the grave, and in the prospect of eternity.

Lord, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our glorious High-Priest and Intercessor. Amen.

PSAL FOR THE HOUSE OF GOD.

Halifax Chapel. Nottingham. Baltimore. Leach. P. M.

- 1 THE joyful morn, my God, is come,
That calls me to thy honoured dome,
Thy presence to adore;
My feet the summons shall attend,
With willing steps thy courts ascend,
And tread the hallowed floor.
- 2 Hither from Judah's utmost end,
The heaven-prototied tribes ascend,
Their offerings hither bring:
Here, eager to attest their joy,
In hymns of praise their tongues employ,
And hail the immortal King.

MERRICK.

2 SAMUEL VII.

David resolving to build a Temple.

AND it came to pass, when the king sat in his house, and the LORD had given him rest round about from all his enemies;

2 That the king said unto Nathan the prophet, See now, I dwell in an house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains.

3 And Nathan said to the king, Go, do all that is in thine heart; for the LORD is with thee.

4 And it came to pass that night, that the word of the LORD came unto Nathan, saying,

5 Go and tell my servant David, Thus saith the LORD, Shalt thou build me an house for me to dwell in?

6 Whereas I have not dwelt in any house since the time that I brought up the children of Israel out of Egypt, even to this day, but have walked in a tent and in a tabernacle.

7 In all the places wherein I have walked with all the children of Israel spake I a word with any of the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to feed my people Israel, saying, Why build ye not me an house of cedar?

8 Now therefore so shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I took thee from the sheep-cote, from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people, over Israel:

9 And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have cut off all thine enemies out of thy sight, and have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth.

10 Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime, 11 And as since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies. Also the LORD telleth thee that he will make thee an house.

12 And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom.

13 He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever.

14 I will be his father, and he shall be my son. If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men:

15 But my mercy shall not depart away from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee.

16 And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever.

17 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL VII.—Believers have infinite reason to rejoice in the prospect of that day, that glorious day—the day of their admission into their heavenly home, when they shall see their enemies no more, when they shall have rest from all their labours, and when they shall enter upon the undisturbed enjoyment of that “rest which remaineth for the people of God.” David presents before us a noble example in preferring God’s glory before his own personal fame, and the prosperity of the Church before his own kingly greatness, and his own temporal comfort. May we breathe his spirit, and walk in his footsteps! May zeal for God’s glory glow in our bosom, and animate us in his service!

PRAYER.

O THOU who art the Shepherd of Israel, we desire with humility and thankfulness to approach the throne of grace, through the blessed and all-prevailing name of Christ. Thou hast most graciously commanded us that we shall have no other gods beside thee. In obedience to this command, we lift up our eyes to the Holy Ghost, that by his grace we may be enabled to follow up the intention of this command, and receive and acknowledge thee as the Lord our God. As a nation may God eminently be our God, and as a congregation may God be our God, and as a family may God be our God; then shall we be a happy people, and a happy congregation, and a happy family: for thou hast said, Happy is that people that is in such a case; yea, happy is that people whose God is the Lord.

We thank thee, heavenly Father, that thou hast not forsaken us during the past night. As we are spared to another day, may we testify our gratitude by our conscientious obedience. Amid all the secular and ordinary duties of life, may we never forget that we are thy subjects, bound to obey thy righteous laws, and accountable to thee at last, as our governor and judge. Bless to us the perusal of the Holy Scriptures. While we have the Bible in our hand, may we have its holy and Divine principles in our hearts. With the Psalmist may we say, with unfeigned and animating sincerity, Thy testimonies have we taken as an heritage for ever; for they are the rejoicing of our heart.

We offer up thanks to our God and Father for all the comforts of relative and domestic life. We thank God for a home, and for all that peace, rest, and fellowship we have enjoyed. Like David, may we sit in our house, and may God give us rest from all our enemies round about. Give us peace with God, and peace with conscience, arising from a firm persuasion of an interest in the righteousness of Christ. While enjoying rest and comfort in our habitation, may the glory of God, and the prosperity of the kingdom of Jesus, be uppermost in our thoughts, and may we often ask ourselves, What can we do for the honour of God, for the advancement of the Church of Christ, and for the welfare of the children of men? Lord, deliver us from a spirit of indolence in thy cause, and of indifference about thy glory. Enrich our minds with holy desires; and may the seeds of holy desires be productive, under thy blessing, in bringing forth an abundant harvest of holy, useful actions.

Have mercy on the Jewish nation. May the following promise receive a blessed accomplishment in their spiritual experience: I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more.

Say to our children what was said to Solomon; I will be their Father, and they shall be my children. If they commit iniquity, I will chasten them; but my mercy shall not depart away from them.

Condescend, O Lord, to hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed the kingdom, power, and glory, for ever. Amen.

ORIGINAL ENMITY OF THE HEART TO GOD.

On our original;
How is our nature dashed and broke
In our first father's fall!
- 2 To all that's good averse and blind,
But prone to all that's ill;
What dreadful darkness veils our mind!
How obstinate our will!
- 3 How strong in our degenerate blood
The old corruption reigns,
And mingling with the crooked flood,
Wanders through all our veins!
- 4 What mortal power from things unclean
Can pure productions bring?
Who can command a vital stream
From an infected spring?

WATTS, 57, B. 1.

ACTS XXII.

The Jews enraged at Paul.

AND it came to pass, that, when I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance;

18 And saw him saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.

19 And I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee:

20 And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him.

21 And he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

22 And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live.

23 And as they cried out, and cast off their clothes, and threw dust into the air, 24 The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, and bade that he should be examined by scourging; that he might know wherefore they cried so against him.

25 And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?

26 When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman.

27 Then the chief captain came, and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He said, Yea.

28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born.

29 Then straightway they departed from him which should have examined him: and the chief captain also was afraid, after he knew that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

30 On the morrow, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bands, and commanded the chief priests and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXII.—In the miraculous trance of the Apostle we see the great power of God, by paralyzing the strength of the body, making it helpless as the dead, but still preserving in the liveliest activity the energies of the mind, and in making it capable of receiving the most important and sacred communications. Jesus has the key of human hearts: may he mercifully open the door of our hearts, and enter in with all his train of heavenly grace! The rejoicing of the Gospel testimony is—on the part of those who hear the Word—the greatest sin, and to the genuine ministers of the Word an occasion of the greatest sorrow. It was part of the lamentation of the great Prince of preachers, the treating of his testimony of truth as an idle tale. Thus it was foretold in prophecy, that he should express his sorrow in the following mournful strains: "Who hath believed our report, and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?"

PRAYER.

WE draw near unto thee, O Lord, as a family. And to whom can we go, but unto thee? None can hear or answer prayer, but thou, O Lord, alone. While we assemble before thee, under the covert of the righteousness of Christ, we would take up the words of the Psalmist, and thus plead with thee: Hear our prayer, O God, give ear to our supplications: in thy faithfulness answer us, and in thy righteousness. Thou knowest our sinfulness and guilt. Thou knowest our worthiness of the lowest hell. Looking upon the atonement which Jesus completed on Calvary's cross, we pray with humble confidence, Enter not into judgment with thy servants; for in thy sight shall no man living be justified. O God, behold Jesus our shield, and look on the face of thine anointed.

We thank our God for thy watchful care which we have enjoyed this day. May thy blessing crown our lawful engagements. And when we meet with disappointment in our temporal pursuits, with humble submission to the wise arrangements of a gracious Providence may we say, Good is the will of the Lord.

As children repose with confidence upon their earthly parents, we would repose with still more implicit confidence on thee our heavenly Father during this night. May our minds be elevated with joy and wonder, when we contemplate the greatness of the privilege, that we have a God in Christ in whom to trust at all times. We rejoice that there is a command addressed to us from the throne of grace: Trust in the Lord for ever.

As Paul prayed in the temple, may we delight to supplicate God in the closet, in the family, and in the sanctuary. While the hearts of many seek pleasure in assemblies called together for purposes of carnal and unhallowed amusement, may we delight to assemble with thy people in thy sacred courts, to taste the joys of religion, and to join with the multitude in sounding the joyful praises of God and the Lamb. We seek from God the gift and the spirit of prayer. Let this most invaluable gift be conferred on all our relatives and friends. Convince the prayerless among them that no hope can be more presumptuous than to expect to enter the heavenly world after a prayerless life.

O give our dear children and servants the holy gift of prayer. Teach them to converse with God, and to walk with God. Impart to them a holy confidence in God, by which they shall believingly seek from God every needful blessing.

Destroy, O Lord, in every land, that aversion to the Gospel which is natural to the heart of man. May determined enemies of Christ, his cross, and his ministers, lay aside their enmity and rage, and become the docile and the loving disciples of the Saviour of men. We bless God for such examples of submission to the grace and authority of Christ as have taken place in our day, as well as in past ages. Increase their number, and may the triumphs of the Gospel soon be universal.

Our Father in Christ, hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thy humble petitioners, for Jesus' sake, thine only-begotten and well-beloved Son. Amen.

WATTS, Ps. 128.

2 SAMUEL VII.

David's Prayer.

THEN went king David in, and sat before the Lord, and he said, Who am I, O LORD God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

19 And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. And is this the manner of man, O Lord God?

20 And what can David say more unto thee? for thou, Lord God, knowest thy servant.

21 For thy word's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all these great things, to make thy servant know them.

22 Wherefore thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears.

23 And what one nation in the earth is like thy people, even like Israel, whom God went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make him a name, and to do for you great things and terrible, for thy land, before thy people, which thou redeemedst to thee from Egypt, from the nations and their gods?

24 For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel to be a people unto thee for ever: and thou, LORD, art become their God.

25 And now, O LORD God, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, establish it for ever, and do as thou hast said.

26 And let thy name be magnified for ever, saying, The LORD of hosts is the God over Israel: and let the house of thy servant David be established before thee.

27 For thou O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to thy servant, saying, I will build thee an house: therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer unto thee.

2 SAMUEL IX.

David's Kindness to Jonathan's Son.

AND the king said, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may show the kindness of God unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath yet a son which is lame on his feet.

4 And the king said unto him, Where is he? and Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar.

5 Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar.

6 Now when Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, was come unto David, he fell on his face, and did reverence. And David said, Mephibosheth. And he answered, Behold thy servant!

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL VII., IX.—Humility is invariably a part of that salvation which is the inheritance of the saints. It is truly painful when some professors of the faith show so little humility, that there is much reason to suspect the sincerity of their profession. Humility shone in David's life. Like him, may we ever approach the throne of God with the profoundest humility and reverence! How infinitely precious are God's promises. They not only secure for believers present blessings, but secure the reception of every needful blessing to the close of life, and furnish also the full assurance of a heavenly inheritance for ever and ever. Morey is an attribute which shines with peculiar brightness among the Divine perfections; and believers never reflect so much of the glory of the Divine likeness, as in acts of kindness, compassion, and mercy.

PRAYER.

O THOU who art the Creator of the ends of the earth, we adore thee as the hearer of prayer, as the only object of religious worship, and as the Lord our God. May we be enabled to approach thy throne under the influence of holy sincerity, deep humility, filial love, and lively confidence. May we ever approach the throne of grace under the conviction that thou wilt hear, answer, and accept.

Thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like unto thee, neither is there any God besides thee, according to all we have heard with our ears. There is no kingdom like thy kingdom, the Church, over which thou dost reign in thy mediatorial government. When we think what thou hast done for thy people in the various periods of their wonderful history, we have reason, in the language of David, thus to praise thee: What one nation on earth is like thy people, whom God went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make thee a name! for thou hast confirmed them unto thee for ever, and thou, Lord, art become their God. Let thy name, O Jesus, the God of Zion, be magnified for ever; for thou, the Lord of hosts, art God over Israel.

We thank thee, O Lord, for all the kindness which thou hast manifested to us as a family. When we think of the calamities with which other families have been visited, and which we have escaped; and when we think of the great mercies we have enjoyed, and which other families have not participated, we have indeed abundant reason to be astonished at thine inscrutable and distinguished sovereignty. With adoring reverence we would say, in the words of David, And is this the manner of man, O Lord God?

We desire with joyful hearts to thank and bless the name of the Lord, that we have been refreshed, comforted, and protected during another night, that no evil has befallen us, nor any plague has come nigh our dwelling. May divine wisdom guide us this day, may divine grace enrich us, may divine love comfort us, and may divine power defend us.

With respect to ourselves, the families with which we are connected, and the congregation with which we are associated in holy things, may the goodwill of him who dwelt in the bush ever dwell in the midst of us; and when our residence on earth comes to a close, may we dwell in the house of the Lord our God for ever in heaven.

Be the God of our beloved children; may they choose God for their portion, and give early evidence to all around that they have begun their journey to the celestial Canaan above.

As a family may we and our servants be established in righteousness; then, though our names be forgotten on earth, we shall join our spiritual kindred above, where we shall be for ever established before thee.

We affectionately pray for all our own friends, and for the children of our deceased friends. Suffer us not to forsake our own friend or our father's friend. May they and we be clothed with the righteousness of Christ; then our friendship on earth shall be followed with the refined society of heaven. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Lord. Amen.

ANON.

ACTS XXIII.

Paul's defence before the High Priest.

AND Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.

2 And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him to smite him on the mouth.

3 Then said Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, thou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law, and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law?

4 And they that stood by said, Revilest thou God's high priest?

5 Then said Paul, I wist not, brethren, that he was the high priest: for it is written, Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.

7 And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both.

9 And there arose a great cry: and the scribes that were of the Pharisees' part arose, and strove, saying, We find no evil in this man: but if a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God.

10 And when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

11 And the night following, the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

12 And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and bound themselves under a curse, saying, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than forty which had made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse, that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul.

15 Now therefore ye with the council signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you to-morrow, as though ye would enquire something more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

16 And when Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the castle, and told Paul.

17 Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath something to say unto thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXIII.—As our Saviour appeared before the high priests of the Jews to hasten his death, it is remarkable that the great Apostle of the Gentiles appeared before the same tribunal to give his testimony for Jesus, whom they crucified and slew, but could not retain in death's prison, who rose triumphant from the grave, who was dead and is now alive again, and who hath the keys of hell and of death. O what confusion and shame shall cover that cruel and mercenary high priest at the judgment-day, when he sees Jesus on his throne, whom he delivered up to be crucified, and when he sees the glorified Apostle on his right hand, whom he treated with such wantonness and scorn! Greatly aggravated are the sins of those who are invested with important offices in the Church of God: and they cannot be too deeply impressed with a sense of the necessity of personal piety, and of their accountability at the last day to the Judge of all.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, teach us to approach thee under the impression that thou art the omniscient and the all-seeing God: May this impression fill us with reverential awe and animating delight. Holy Spirit, may we have such views of thine omniscience, as to be afraid to offend thee; and may we have such views of this truth, that we shall be encouraged to place implicit confidence in God. O Lord, thou hast searched and known us. Thou knowest our down-sitting and our uprising, and thou understandest our thoughts afar off; even before they are formed in our mind, they are naked and open before thee. Thou knowest all the plans of the enemies of thy Church and people; and as thou didst easily defeat the plan formed by the cruel conspirators against Paul, so thou canst overturn with the utmost ease all the schemes which are contrived for the dishonour of thy name and the injury of thy people.

Remember not against us, O Lord, the short-comings and offences of the past day. At the close of every day, we have abundant reason to be humbled for our sins of omission and commission. Accept of our thanks for personal and family blessings this day received. Lord, teach us every day, like Paul, to live in all good conscience before God. We thank God for that conscience which is planted within us. Let not our conscience fall asleep; and may our conscience be sanctified and enlightened by the influences of the Holy Ghost.

Give our dear children and domestics a tender conscience, and convince them of the value of this blessing. Make their conscience to reprove them for every sin; and may they not only be afraid to commit sin because of punishment, but also unwilling from a fear of offending God.

The approach of night reminds us of our dependence upon thee, and therefore we now supplicate thy gracious protection. O that we could lie down to rest with a peaceful conscience, and under the sweet persuasion that our sins are pardoned, and that God has made with us an everlasting covenant, well ordered in all things.

We thank God for judges and rulers, which are so necessary for the well-being of society and the interests of the Church. We adore thee in all the sufferings which thy people in various ages have experienced under judges cruel and unjust, of which we have now read a humiliating example. We rejoice that neither the injustice nor the cruelty of persecuting rulers has ever been able to prevent the success of the Gospel.

Lord, have mercy on all the rulers of our land, and make them genuine believers. Under the influence of the Gospel, may they exercise the authority with which they are invested. Hear our humble prayers, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit we ascribe equal and undivided praise. Amen.

2 SAMUEL XIV.

Absalom's Beauty.

BUT in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty: from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.

26 And when he polled his head, (for it was at every year's end that he polled it; because the hair was heavy on him, therefore he polled it;) he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels after the king's weight.

31 Then Joab arose and came to Absalom unto his house, and said unto him, Wherefore have thy servants set my field on fire?

32 And Absalom answered Joab, Behold, I sent unto thee, saying, Come hither, that I may send thee to the king, to say, Wherefore am I come from Geshur? it had been good for me to have been there still: now therefore let me see the king's face; and if there be any iniquity in me, let him kill me.

33 So Joab came to the king, and told him: and when he had called for Absalom, he came to the king, and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king; and the king kissed Absalom.

2 SAMUEL XV.

Absalom's Ambition.

AND it came to pass after this, that Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him.

2 And Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate: and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy came to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, Of what city art thou? And he said, Thy servant is one of the tribes of Israel.

3 And Absalom said unto him, See, thy matters are good and right; but there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee.

4 Absalom said moreover, Oh that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice!

5 And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, and took him, and kissed him.

6 And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment: so Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 And it came to pass after forty years, that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the LORD, in Hebron.

8 For thy servant vowed a vow while I abode at Geshur in Syria, saying, If the LORD shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then I will serve the LORD.

9 And the king said unto him, Go in peace. So he arose, and went to Hebron.

10 But Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom reigneth in Hebron.

11 And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called; and they went in their simplicity, and they knew not any thing.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XIV., XV.—Very numerous are the instances in which the greatest loveliness of body has been connected with the greatest deformity of mind. Scarcely was ever soul so depraved as that of Absalom, which dwelt in a body of unexampled beauty, elegance, and proportion. Many are often proud of that which has proved their ruin. Absalom was proud of his royal locks, which afterwards proved his death, while he was acting the part of a cruel parricide, thirsting for his father's blood, longing for his father's death, and panting for his father's throne! Dreadful is the infatuation of sin. Under the influence of the most deluding and fatal ambition, we see the rebellious and cruel Absalom laying plans for the murder of his father, which he should never accomplish, and for usurping a father's throne he should never fill!

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, we adore thee as the sovereign Lord God, the ruler of the heavens and the earth, and as our God and Father in Christ. We have experienced thy kindness during another night, and when we were unconscious of our existence thou didst surround us with the arms of thine almighty protection. Thou compassest our path and our lying down, and art acquainted with all our ways. Give us that gratitude for mercies received which will lead us to serve our God with filial fidelity and diligence, during every part, and in all the duties and engagements, of this concluding day of another week. May we live under the constant impression of this solemn truth, that all our actions and all our expressions are under the constant observations of a God of unspotted holiness, inflexible justice, and almighty power.

Holy Spirit, bless to each one of us the affecting and heart-revolting facts we have now read of the ambition, the unnatural rebellion, and the hypocritical impiety of Absalom. May these affecting details teach us to mourn over the dreadful depravity of the fallen nature of man. May they be instrumental in filling us with a deep-rooted disgust at sin; and may they lead us to rejoice that from eternal ages the goodness and wisdom of God contrived a plan by which the fallen nature of man might be renewed, by which his loathsome corruptious might be changed for heavenly graces, and, at the same time, all the Divine perfections which had been dishonoured by his apostasy are honoured by his recovery. Glory to the God of salvation, that the heralds of mercy, the ministers of truth, are commissioned thus to invite rebellious man to return to his God, and enjoy the blessings of a Saviour's purchase: We then, as ambassadors of Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you, in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God: for he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.

O Lord, convince our dear children of the infinite necessity of better accomplishments than those which are only personal, and of the necessity of better ornaments than those which are merely bodily. O give them the ornaments of grace, which the ravages of the grave cannot destroy.—O give them and us the ornaments of a meek and quiet spirit, which, in the eye of God, are of great price.

Lord, have mercy on the rising race, and bless to them the affecting history of Absalom's unhallowed ambition, in wishing his father's throne, and his unnatural cruelty, in wishing his father's life. Have pity on such among them as are vain of beauty, and teach them to seek after those spiritual attainments which will render them lovely in the estimation of the saints, and inestimable blessings to all around. Lord, preserve us from sinful ambition, and from the unlawful love of worldly wealth, pleasures, or honours. And let none of us live and die wearing the mask of hypocrisy. May our professions of piety be ever accompanied with unfeigned sincerity.

Lord, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, the only Saviour of men. Amen.

ACTS XXIII.

St. Paul's Deliverance.

THEN the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aside privately, and asked him, What is that thou hast to tell me?

20 And he said, The Jews have agreed to desire thee that thou wouldest bring down Paul to morrow into the council, as though they would enquire somewhat of him more perfectly.

21 But do not thou yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themselves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from thee.

22 So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou hast shewed these things to me.

23 And he called unto him two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers, to go to Cæsarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night;

24 And provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent governor Felix sendeth greeting.

27 This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

28 And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their council:

29 Whom I perceived to be accused of questions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds.

30 And when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accusers also to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell.

31 Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the castle:

33 Who when they came to Cæsarea, and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him.

34 And when the governor had read the letter, he asked of what province he was. And when he understood that he was of Cilicia;

35 I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers are also come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment hall.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXIII.—God has the hearts of all men in his hands; and he can easily touch and soften the minds of military officers, and make them the active defenders of his endangered and persecuted ministers. When the wicked spread their nets to entangle the feet of God's people, they forget that an omniscient eye beholds them, and that there is unerring wisdom to defeat and confound all their projects. How delightful it is when youthful lips are employed to advocate the cause of God's saints, and the interests of Christ's kingdom! May the Spirit eminently descend on all our youth, taking the children instead of the fathers, and making them noble princes in all the earth! The enemies of the Church are crafty; they are educated in the school of Satan, the crooked serpent; and much caution and wisdom are necessary in dealing with those cunning foes, to defeat their crafty plans.

PRAYER.

LORD God of hosts, we desire, in the exercise of filial confidence and love, to prostrate ourselves before thee, and, in the name of our merciful and righteous Advocate, to supplicate the blessings of the covenant of grace.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine omnipresence, and in thy constant and universal agency. We acknowledge that thou hast beset us behind and before, and hast laid thy gracious hand upon us. In mercy thou hast laid thine hand upon us, in supporting, defending, and comforting us. In thy fatherly wisdom and goodness thou hast in times past laid thine afflicting hand upon us, that our hearts might be weaned from earthly things, that our souls might be purified from the dross of sin. O that all our afflictions may be successful in producing these effects, for which they are wisely and graciously designed by our Father who is in heaven.

We present our thanksgivings for the mercies of the day. At the close of another week we implore forgiveness for the sins we have committed, whether in connection with our temporal business or our religious duties—whether in reference to ourselves, our relatives, or thee our God. Lord, forgive our sins, through the merit of the great atonement made by thine eternal and well-beloved Son. O that these blessed and animating words may be applicable to each individual of our family, and to all with whom we are connected: There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

Mercifully afford thy protecting care this night, and on the morning of thy sacred day may we rise from our beds invigorated and refreshed, and our minds disposed and prepared for the sublime and delightful solemnities of thy house.

May our dear children and domestics love thy house before every other place, and the engagements of thy sanctuary before every other employment. May they meet with Christ and salvation in thy courts: then shall they have reason to praise thee for ever and ever.

Impress on our minds what we have now read. We rejoice that though the craft of the enemies of thy people is great, thy wisdom is greater; that though their plans are deep and cruel, thou art able with the utmost ease to overturn them all; yea, to overrule them for the glory of thy name, the interests of thy children, and the confusion of the adversaries of thy Church. We praise thee for the interesting example we have now read of this encouraging truth.

Teach all of us to see the unspeakable advantage of being children of God. In all their afflictions, O Jesus, thou dost show them thy sympathy; and in all their trials thou dost animate and comfort them with thy presence. Lord, put us among the number of the just—the number of those who believe in Jesus and breathe his Spirit; then we shall experience the fulfilment of thy promise, that with favour thou wilt compass the righteous, as with a shield.

Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with us all, for ever and ever Amen.

HOPE OF THE AGED SAINT.

Shid'da. University. Brightelmstone.

c. v.

- 1 MY God, my everlasting hope,
I live upon thy truth;
Thine hands have held my childhood up,
And strengthened all my youth.
- 2 Still has my life new wonders seen,
Repeated every year;
Behold my days that yet remain,
I trust them to thy care.
- 3 Cast me not off when strength declines,
When hoary hairs arise;
And round me let thy glory shine
Whene'er thy servant dies.

Watts, Ps. 71, p. 1.

PSALM LXXI.

Prayer, Confidence, and Hope.

IN thee, O LORD, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion.

2 Deliver me in thy righteousness, and cause me to escape: incline thine ear unto me, and save me.

3 Be thou my strong habitation, whereunto I may continually resort: thou hast given commandment to save me; for thou art my rock and my fortress.

4 Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

5 For thou art my hope, O Lord God: thou art my trust from my youth.

7 I am as a wonder unto many; but thou art my strong refuge.

8 Let my mouth be filled with thy praise and with thy honour all the day.

9 Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth.

10 For mine enemies speak against me; and they that lay wait for my soul take counsel together, 11 Saying, God hath forsaken him: persecute and take him; for there is none to deliver him.

12 O God, be not far from me: O my God, make haste for my help.

14 But I will hope continually, and will yet praise thee more and more.

15 My mouth shall shew forth thy righteousness and thy salvation all the day; for I know not the numbers thereof.

16 I will go in the strength of the Lord God: I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only.

17 O God, thou hast taught me from my youth: and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works.

18 Now also, when I am old and greyheaded, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come.

19 Thy righteousness also, O God, is very high, who hast done great things: O God, who is like unto thee!

20 Thou, which hast shewed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again, and shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth.

21 Thou shalt increase my greatness, and comfort me on every side.

22 I will also praise thee with the psaltery, even thy truth, O my God: unto thee will I sing with the harp, O thou Holy One of Israel.

23 My lips shall greatly rejoice when I sing unto thee; and my soul, which thou hast redeemed.

24 My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long: for they are confounded, for they are brought unto shame, that seek my hurt.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXI.—Trusting in Christ implicitly is the inseparable attendant of earnest believing prayer. He has learned an invaluable lesson in Christian experience who can say, "My heart is fixed, my heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord!" God is always faithful to his promises, therefore the protection and deliverance of his people are always certain. God's attributes are the constant dwelling places of the redeemed, and the righteousness of Christ is a high tower, where they are safe from all their foes, and where they may laugh to scorn all their unjust and malicious accusations. How consolatory! though the hand of Zion's enemies is strong, the hand of Zion's God is almighty; and though the cruelty of Zion's enemies is great, God's mercy is unbounded. Early piety is connected with the most agreeable recollections, and is followed by a train of innumerable mercies.

PRAYER.

OLORD, our redeeming God, we draw near unto thee as a family, on the morning of thy hallowed day, and acknowledge thee as our father and God. We desire to express our thankfulness for the mercies enjoyed during another night, and that we are permitted to see another Sabbath, which will gladden the hearts of thousands who are the children of God and the heirs of heaven. O Lord, when we endeavour, in humble dependence on the Holy Spirit, to offer up our morning prayer, incline thine ear unto us and save us. We acknowledge thee, and hope in thee as our rock and our fortress. O Jesus, thou art the rock of ages, against whom the gates of hell shall never, can never prevail. May multitudes of poor, helpless sinners flee to thee this day as their only refuge, and build all their hopes of eternal salvation on thee alone as the rock of ages, where complete security can alone be obtained from the storms of Divine wrath, the curses of a broken law, the fiery darts of the wicked one, and from the miseries of hell.

Persuade our beloved children and domestics, O Jesus, to flee to thee as the only refuge. Would to God that they were enabled, before this day terminates, to sing, Jesus is our refuge and our strength: the Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge!

We adore thee, O Lord, as our hope; thou hast been our trust from our youth up. In a period of our days the most dangerous, thou didst avert from us many temptations, and deliver from us many snares, which would have otherwise involved us in destruction.

We adore thee as the glory and defence of thy Church. In her history thou hast most wonderfully displayed thy wisdom, thy power, and thy righteousness. Thy righteousness, O God, is very high, who hast done great things: O God, who is like unto thee!

Now we are entering upon the sacred solemnities of thy Sabbath, may we thus resolve with the Psalmist: Our mouth shall show forth thy righteousness, and thy salvation all the day. We earnestly pray for all the ministers of Christ; in an eminent degree may their mouth show forth the righteousness of Immanuel, the only foundation of a sinner's hope and acceptance with God. May they preach with feeling hearts upon the salvation which was purchased by the sufferings of Christ, and prove the honoured instruments of persuading many to fall prostrate at our Saviour's feet.

Make the Gospel effectual in producing the most blessed effects on all our rulers and judges and magistrates. Convince them that this alone will increase their true greatness, and comfort them on every side.

Show pity to the aged, and instruct them to pray, Now, when I am old and greyheaded, O God, forsake me not; until I have showed thy strength unto this generation.

Bless our beloved pastor, and enable him and the people with whom we are connected thus to resolve: We will go in the strength of the Lord God: we will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only. Hear us, for Jesus' sake, the glorious Intercessor. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S EXTENSIVE KINGDOM.

- 1 JESUS shall reign where'er the sun
Does his successive journeys run;
His kingdom stretch from shore to shore,
Till moons shall wax and wane no more.
- 2 Behold the islands with their kings,
And Europe her best tribute brings;
From north to south the princes meet,
To pay their homage at his feet.
- 3 People and realms of every tongue
Dwell on his love with sweetest song;
And infant voices shall proclaim
Their early blessings on his name.

Watts, Ps. 72, p. 11.

PSALM LXXII.

Christ's blessed Reign.

GIVE the king thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the king's son.

2 He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment.

3 The mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness.

4 He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor.

5 They shall fear thee as long as the sun and moon endure, throughout all generations.

6 He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth.

7 In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth.

8 He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth.

9 They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; and his enemies shall lick the dust.

10 The kings of Tarsish and of the isles shall bring presents: the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts.

11 Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him.

12 For he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and him that hath no helper.

13 He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall save the souls of the needy.

14 He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence: and precious shall their blood be in his sight.

15 And he shall live, and to him shall be given of the gold of Sheba: prayer also shall be made for him continually; and daily shall he be praised.

16 There shall be an handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth.

17 His name shall endure for ever: his name shall be continued as long as the sun: and men shall be blessed in him: all nations shall call him blessed.

18 Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things.

19 And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen, and Amen.

20 The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXII.—The grace of God is the richest inheritance which kings can enjoy, and the brightest jewel by which they can be adorned. How copiously was the humanity of Jesus filled with grace. The Spirit was not given by measure unto him. Grace was poured into his lips. No thrones, no governments are worthy to be compared with Christ. He is omnipotent and able to destroy oppressors, to vindicate his persecuted and afflicted people, and to scatter all their enemies as chaff is driven before the whirlwind and the tempest. Infinite and constant are the blessings of his mediatorial government, descending on his loving and loyal subjects like copious and refreshing showers. "Blessings abound where'er he reigns." The universality of Christ's gracious reign on earth is as certain as that God is, that God is true. Let us therefore anticipate with holy joy the universality of Christ's kingdom, and also the intelligence, purity, love, harmony, joy, and peace which shall prevail and reign throughout the habitable globe. It is true wisdom in earthly rulers to bow before his sceptre; but if they refuse, there is no alternative, they must lick the dust. What is the history of earthly kings? It is the history of the extinction of dynasties. How glorious! Christ's name, and throne, and kingdom are for ever and ever!

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, One God, we adore thee as the everlasting God, and as dwelling for ever amid the splendours of the heavenly world. With feelings of devotion, confidence, and love, we would approach the gracious presence of our God, and supplicate an interest in the sure mercies of David.

O Jesus, we adore thee in thine essential and mediatorial glory and government. Thou art the eternal Son of the King of the universe. Into thine hand all judgment is committed; with a sceptre of love thou wilt govern the members of thy Church; and with an iron rod of merited vengeance thou wilt punish and destroy thine impenitent foes. In the exercise of thy most blessed perfections thou dost reign over thy Church; and thou wilt judge thy people with righteousness, and the poor with judgment. Thou knowest the evil purposes formed by the wicked against thy people; and thou wilt confound the enemies of thy Church, and accomplish the salvation of thine afflicted poor. Thou wilt judge the poor of the people, thou wilt save the children of the needy, and shalt break in pieces the oppressor.

Lord Jesus, we acknowledge ourselves as thy subjects, and we would receive thee as our king.

Persuade our dear children to become thy loyal subjects, and to devote the youthful period of their days to thy service and honour; even to thee, who art the prince of the kings of the earth. Give our servants grace to become the faithful servants and the loyal subjects of our blessed Lord and Saviour.

As David prayed for Solomon, so we would pray for our earthly rulers. Give them thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto their offspring.

We pray for all the rulers of the earth. Let that day soon arrive when they shall become the subjects of Jesus, and when their government shall be regulated by the principles of the Gospel. We long and pray for that day, when all kings shall bow down before the Redeemer of men, and when all nations shall abandon the service of idols, and shall render their obedience and homage to him who is the everlasting Father and the Prince of Peace.

We rejoice, O Lord, that the Gospel-trumpet has been sounded in our land this day, and that the proclamations of mercy have been published in other nations. O Lord, send a plentiful rain of the Spirit's influences. We mourn over withered churches and congregations, and over extensive districts of populous provinces, where spiritual barrenness prevails. O send the influences of the Spirit, like rain upon the mown grass, and like showers that water the earth. O send thy blessed Spirit, then there shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; then the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon.

Into thy hands, O Lord, we commit our spirits this night. Hear our prayers, for Jesus our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

WATTS, Ps. 119, p. XLV.

2 SAMUEL XV.

David fleeing from Absalom.

AND there came a messenger to David, saying, The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.

14 And David said unto all his servants that were with him at Jerusalem, Arise, and let us flee; for we shall not else escape from Absalom: make speed to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly, and bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword.

15 And the king's servants said unto the king, Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall appoint.

17 And the king went forth, and all the people after him, and tarried in a place that was far off.

23 And all the country wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over. The king also himself passed over the brook Kidron, and all the people passed over, toward the way of the wilderness.

24 And lo Zadok also, and all the Levites were with him, bearing the ark of the covenant of God: and they set down the ark of God; and Abiathar went up, until all the people had done passing out of the city.

25 And the king said unto Zadok, Carry back the ark of God into the city: if I shall find favour in the eyes of the LORD, he will bring me again, and shew me both it, and his habitation:

26 But if he thus say, I have no delight in thee; behold, here am I, let him do to me as seemeth good unto him.

30 And David went up by the ascent of mount Olivet, and wept as he went up, and had his head covered, and he went barefoot: and all the people that was with him covered every man his head, and they went up, weeping as they went up.

31 And one told David, saying, Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, O LORD, I pray thee, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.

32 And it came to pass, that when David was come to the top of the mount, where he worshipped God, Behold, Hushai the Archite came to meet him with his coat rent, and earth upon his head:

33 Unto whom David said, If thou passest on with me, then thou shalt be a burden unto me.

34 But if thou return to the city, and say unto Absalom, I will be thy servant, O king, as I have been thy father's servant hitherto, so will I now also be thy servant: then mayest thou for me defeat the counsel of Ahithophel.

35 And hast thou not there with thee Zadok and Abiathar the priests? therefore it shall be, that what thing soever thou shalt hear out of the king's house, thou shalt tell it to Zadok and Abiathar the priests.

36 Behold, they have there with them their two sons Ahimaas Zadok's son, and Jonathan Abiathar's son; and by them ye shall send unto me every thing that ye can hear.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XV.—God in his sovereignty, justice, and wisdom, may often send painful messages and communications by his Providence. But he always sends the most pleasing, encouraging, and heart-cheering messages by the Gospel of his grace. David had indeed an unnatural son, from whom he had nothing to expect but the most severe and barbarous cruelty! He had a heavenly Father to whom he looked. From him he had received the most great and precious promises; and in the diligent use of means he was confident that God would assuredly fulfil all he had spoken, and at last deliver him effectually and triumphantly out of the hand of all his enemies. As Absalom sought his father's death, Judas Iscariot betrayed his Master into the hands of his enemies, who cruelly put him to death. David went weeping over the brook Kidron. A short time before our Saviour's death, in a dark and dreary night of grief, he went sorrowing over the same brook.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious Lord God, we adore thee as the unchangeable Jehovah, whom we approach in Jesus' name. We find that human friendship is liable to the greatest change, and that human love is changed for the most violent enmity; but we rejoice that thy love is unchangeable love. While we mourn over the uncertainty of all human friendship and regard, may our hearts be filled with joy unspeakable, that thy love is immutable like thyself. Teach us to meditate on thy justice as well as thy love. Teach us to look to thy holiness, that we may learn how abominable sin is in thy sight. Teach us to look to thy justice, that we may learn thou wilt by no means clear the guilty. Teach us to look to thy mercy, that we may see the infinite disposition and readiness in thy mind to forgive transgression through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness.

We thank a gracious providence that we have been preserved during the past night, and that we are enabled in the land of the living to encompass the domestic altar, to present our united supplications for mercy, salvation, and heaven. We are entering on another day and another week: O may we enter upon them under the impression of what we heard in thy sacred courts on the Sabbath that is past. In our conversation and our actions may we really manifest that our profession is not hypocrisy, but that we know and feel and love the blessed truths of a preached Gospel, and that we are not only hearers but doers of the Word. Holy Spirit, we earnestly pray that this may be the case.

We pray that our hearts and affections may be placed on Christ. Suffer us not to resemble the rebellious Israelites, who placed their affections on Absalom in preference to David. Prevent us, O Lord, from placing our hearts on lying vanities in preference to Christ. Deliver us from the pernicious allurements, the promises, the smiles, and the pleasures of a corrupted world.

Mercifully preserve our dear children from worldly snares. On all hands we see these snares around us, by which multitudes are entangled and ruined. May we never see our offspring carried away by the delusions of a carnal world. In dependence on their Saviour may they overcome the world.

Deliver us, O Lord, from a murmuring spirit, under the afflicting hand of God. Give us a proper, submissive feeling under the afflictions of life. May we ever see the wise, the just, and the good hand of our heavenly Father in all our afflictions. May we rejoice that, though man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward, it is a truth we have from the voice of inspiration, as well as experience, Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. Daily may we remember the afflictions which our Saviour endured, and may this remembrance be rendered more impressive by what we have now read of David's sufferings as a type of Christ.

Graciously hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb who was slain. Amen and amen.

CHRISTIAN PATIENCE.

Warrington. Mulberry Gardens. Peel Street Chapel. L. M.

- 1 PATIENCE,—Oh what a grace divino!
Sent from the God of power and love,
Submissive to its Father's hand,
As through the wilds of life we rove.
- 2 By patience we serenely bear
The troubles of our mortal state,
And wait contented our discharge,
Nor think our glory comes too late.
- 3 Though we, in full sensation, feel
The weight, the wounds, our God ordains,
We smile amid our heaviest woes,
And triumph in our sharpest pains.

ACTS XXIV.

Paul's Accusation and Defence.

AND after five days Ananias the high priest descended with the elders, and with a certain orator named Tertullus, who informed the governor against Paul.

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,

3 We accept it always, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness.

4 Notwithstanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldest hear us of thy clemency a few words.

5 For we have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes:

6 Who also hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law.

7 But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands,

8 Commanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining of whom thyself mayest take knowledge of all these things, whereof we accuse him.

9 And the Jews also assented, saying that these things were so.

10 Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself:

11 Because that thou mayest understand, that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship.

12 And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city:

13 Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me.

14 But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets:

15 And have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

16 And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men.

17 Now after many years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings.

18 Whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult.

19 Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought against me.

20 Or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil doing in me, while I stood before the council,

21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXIV.—The rulers of the Jewish Church thirsted for the death of Christ. Not yet satiated, they thirsted for the blood, and longed for the death, and strove hard for the destruction of his faithful servants. They vainly attempted to destroy the lovely plant of Christianity in its early growth; and to extinguish the fire of Christian truth as it began to shed the pleasing lustre of its heavenly beams upon a miserable and benighted world. In the Apostle's haughty and unjust accusers, we have an affecting illustration of that inspired declaration, "The carnal mind is enmity against God, is not subject to the law of God; and neither indeed can be." What a difference betwixt Paul's accusers and himself. Their plea was founded on falsehood, injustice, and malice; his was firmly fixed on the basis of truth. What a comfort! believers can look on all their accusers and exclaim, "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God who justifieth."

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the infinite Jehovah, whose existence was before all worlds, and whose being is essential. Thou art the creator of the heavens and the earth, and all things visible and invisible were made by thee. Thou didst experience ineffable delight in bringing all things into existence: and, though sin has accomplished the most melancholy effects in some parts of thy dominions, none of thy plans have been deranged, and none of thy purposes have been overturned. Thou art the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; and we rejoice that in and through him thou art the God of all mercy, consolation, and goodness. Through Jesus, as the way of Divine appointment, we, a company of sinners and unworthy petitioners, now approach thee, to present our evening prayer. Grant, Holy Spirit, that this our prayer may come up before thee as the incense, and the lifting up of our hands as the evening sacrifice.

Another day proclaims thy goodness; and we desire, O thou Fountain of never-failing benevolence and kindness, to thank thee for thy preserving mercy, and the continued supply of those temporal comforts which are necessary for maintaining our lives. We thank thee that we are not prevented by disease or any other cause from meeting together on this solemn yet joyful occasion, to fall down in grateful homage before thy throne, to adore thy majesty and supplicate thy grace.

Extend to us, thy creatures, thy subjects, and thy children, thy providential and watchful care this night. May the conviction that thine eye is upon us and thine arm around us make us lie down in peaceful security, placing implicit and filial confidence in thee our God.

Bless to us what we have now read of the unjust accusations brought against thy faithful and beloved servant. O that we possessed the spirit which animated thine apostle, and the hallowed fortitude which enlivened his heart in the trying hour. When we are brought to the trying hour, may we not be suffered to faint in the day of adversity. Teach us to remember with suitable emotions the sufferings Jesus endured, and the keen shafts of reproach which entered his soul and drank up his spirit. Holy Jesus, if we should be ever called, make us willing to suffer reproach for thee, May we consider no hardship too great, and no privation too severe, as a testimony of our love to Jesus, who endured the cross and despised the shame for us.

Divine Redeemer, captivate the hearts of our dear children, and from henceforth may they become thy faithful servants.

O comfort the aged with the joys of salvation and the hopes of heaven.

Mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our multiplied offences, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST THE TRUE FRIEND.

- 1 POOOR, weak, and worthless, though I am,
I have a rich almighty Friend;
Jesus, the Saviour, is his name:
He freely loves, and without end.
- 2 He ransomed me from hell with blood;
And, by his power, my foes controlled:
He found me wandering far from God,
And brought me to his chosen fold.
- 3 He cheers my heart, my wants supplies,
And says that I shall shortly be Enthroned with him above the skies:
Oh! what a friend is Christ to me!

2 SAMUEL XVI.

Shimei cursing David.

AND when David was a little past the top of the hill, behold, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth met him, with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them two hundred loaves of bread, and an hundred bunches of raisins, and an hundred of summer fruits, and a bottle of wine.

2 And the king said unto Ziba, What meanest thou by these? And Ziba said, The asses be for the king's household to ride on: and the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat; and the wine, that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink.

3 And the king said, And where is thy master's son? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he abideth at Jerusalem: for he said, To day shall the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father.

4 Then said the king to Ziba, Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth. And Ziba said, I humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king.

5 And when king David came to Bahurim, behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was Shimei, the son of Gera: he came forth, and cursed still as he came.

6 And he cast stones at David, and at all the servants of king David: and all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left.

7 And thus said Shimei when he cursed, Come out, come out, thou bloody man, and thou man of Belial:

8 The Lord hath returned upon thee all the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; and the Lord hath delivered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son: and, behold, thou art taken in thy mischief, because thou art a bloody man.

9 Then said Abishai the son of Zeruiah unto the king, Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head.

10 And the king said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? so let him curse, because the Lord hath said unto him, Curse David. Who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?

11 And David said to Abishai, and to all his servants, Behold, my son, which came forth from my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite do it? let him alone, and let him curse; for the Lord hath bidden him.

12 It may be that the Lord will look on mine affliction, and that the Lord will requite me good for his cursing this day.

13 And as David and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, and cursed as he went, and threw stones at him, and cast dust.

14 And the king, and all the people that were with him, came weary, and refreshed themselves there.

15 And Absalom, and all the people the men of Israel, came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XVI.—Every sin is hateful; but there is something peculiarly hateful, and even loathsome in the sin of hypocritical deception, when the vilest purposes are concealed under the fairest and most agreeable professions. Of this sin, Ziba was a most repulsive example. And the hateful name of this deceiver is held up to our view, on the pages of inspiration, to excite our abhorrence of his sin, and that we may take warning, and most carefully avoid its commission. Ziba, not satisfied with lying to aggrandise his own interest, and gain the favour and patronage of the king, attempts to ruin a kind master, to whom he owed the most unfeigned thankfulness, and the most devoted, affectionate, and faithful obedience. Truly, "lying lips are an abomination to the Lord." If lying to promote the temporal interests of a friend is offensive to God, peculiarly offensive to a God of truth and of mercy must be those falsehoods which spring from envy and malevolence, and which are uttered to accomplish the ruin of the unsuspecting and the innocent!

PRAYER.

O THOU Hearer of prayer, we desire to approach thy sacred presence under a deep sense of thine immaculate holiness and of our sinfulness and guilt. Thou art of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, neither shall sin dwell in thy presence. We acknowledge that, in the sufferings and death of thy well-beloved Son, thou hast shown, in the greatest possible form, thine infinite hatred of sin. Blessed Jesus, the great object of thy merciful mission to our world was to take away sin, and to bring in an everlasting righteousness. As this was the great end of thy humiliation and death, we earnestly pray that thou wouldst look down upon us as a family: make us a holy family, purify us unto thyself as a peculiar people, and make us zealous of good works. We long for an inward and universal change. Create us anew in Christ Jesus: and as an evidence that this blessed, spiritual change is begun, may we hunger and thirst after righteousness.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the past night. We praise thee that we were not found on our beds numbered with the dead. Assist us in all the duties of the day. Whether we are engaged in the things of time or in those of eternity, may we show that we are under the influence of the Holy Spirit. As HOLINESS TO THE LORD was written upon the mitre of the high-priest under the law, may HOLINESS TO THE LORD be written on this house, and upon the heart and life of every member of this family.

May HOLINESS TO THE LORD be written upon the hearts of our beloved children. We earnestly pray that they may be washed and sanctified and justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

Bless to us, O Lord, the ordinance of reading thy sacred word. May we ever find thy word a well of salvation, and may we draw water with joy out of this well every day of our mortal existence.

We have now read of the cruel and unjust treachery of Ziba, one of David's pretended friends: may what we have read teach us to avoid falsehood in all its hateful varieties. Lord preserve us from a lying and backbiting tongue; and may we never be left to fall into the sin of employing our tongue to the injury of others. Bless to us the affecting account we have now heard of the conduct of Shimei. We bless God that, amid all the afflictions we have met with in our journeying state, we have met with no calamities equal to those which David experienced, when, with dust upon his head, he was assailed with the execrations of the enraged Shimei.

Give us a lively faith in the realities of the heavenly state. When tried with the storms of life, may we think of the joys of heaven. Graciously hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake, who suffered and died for us. Amen.

FELIX TREMBLING.

Kendal, Brook Street, Tunbridge.

C. II.

- 1 SEE Felix, clothed with pomp and power,
See his resplendent bride,
Attend to hear a prisoner preach
The Saviour crucified.
- 2 He well describes who Jesus was,
His glories and his love,
How he obeyed and bled below,
And reigns and pleads above.
- 3 Felix up starts, and trembling cries,
Go for this time away;
I'll hear thee on these points again
On some convenient day.
- 4 Attention to the words of life
Let Felix thus adjourn;
Lord! let us make these solemn truths
Our first and last concern.

ANGU.

ACTS XXIV.

Felix trembling.

AND after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ.

25 And as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee.

26 He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

27 But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix, willing to show the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.

CHAP. XXV.

Paul appeals to Cæsar.

NOW when Festus was come into the province, after three days he ascended from Cæsarea to Jerusalem.

2 Then the high priest and the chief of the Jews informed him against Paul, and besought him,

3 And desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, laying wait in the way to kill him.

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickedness in him.

6 And when he had tarried among them more than ten days, he went down unto Cæsarea; and the next day sitting on the judgment-seat commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove.

8 While he answered for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cæsar, have I offended any thing at all.

9 But Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?

10 Then said Paul, I stand at Cæsar's judgment-seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.

11 For, if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cæsar.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXIV., XXV.—The hearts of all men are within the reach of Divine influence. God can impress as easily the mind of a Pagan prince, as that of a Christian ruler. That will be a peculiarity of the blessedness of millennial days, "The minds of all the rulers of the earth shall be under the sanctifying and directing influence of Gospel truth." In a way, and at a time the most unexpected, Paul found the accomplishment of the promise, that "He should speak before governors and kings." We see, in the extraordinary effect which the preaching of Paul produced upon the mind of Felix, the truth of that inspired statement, "The Word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword." It is solemn to stand before an earthly tribunal, but how infinitely solemn the thought, "We must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ."

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, at the close of another day, to fall prostrate before thy throne of grace, and to unite with heavenly hosts in ascribing to thee glory, honour, thanksgivings and praise. Most glorious and merciful Lord God, thou art infinitely worthy of the adoration, love, and homage of all thine intelligent subjects, for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

We bless thee, O Lord, for our creation, and that thou hast given us souls rational and immortal. Thou hast made us only a little lower than the angels; and by the humanity of thine own eternal Son thou hast raised our nature far above that of angels. We rejoice that Jesus in our nature, as the incarnate Divinity, is seen in the midst of the throne, and is now receiving the joyful adorations of the countless millions of the new Jerusalem. May it be the happiness of all who are now bowing the knee before thee, to join the ransomed myriads in the heavenly world, in the lofty exercises of the celestial temple.

We thank thee for the opportunity now enjoyed of reading thy holy Word. May we ever feel impressed with the truth, that we are really addressed in thy sacred Word. Ever may this divine ordinance be accompanied with divine influence. O let not thy word return unto thee void!

We thank thee for a preached Gospel, and that it is our blessed privilege to hear from the mouth of thy commissioned servants the message which makes known the faith of Jesus Christ. Open our eyes to see that we have no righteousness of our own, and therefore that we stand in need of the righteousness of another to obtain acceptance with God, who is a God of righteousness, and who can by no means clear the guilty without a righteousness of boundless worth. Give each one of us faith, by which we shall receive Jesus in all his meritorious and gracious fulness, and ever look upon him and rejoice in him as the Lord our righteousness.

Take our dear children, and convince them of their lost and ruined situation by the fall of Adam, and by their own transgressions. Give them and our servants a longing desire for the righteousness of Christ, and clothe them with that comely robe.

May all of us know practically that temperance of which Paul reasoned. Enable us to avoid every unlawful and forbidden pleasure; and to avoid the sinful use of lawful enjoyments. May we live above the world in all its objects, pursuits, smiles, promises, and pleasures. Lord, prepare us for a judgment to come. May the prospect of that solemn and glorious day fill us with joy and not with grief. O suffer us not, like Felix, to delay the day of salvation. May we improve the present time, which is the most convenient time, for embracing Jesus as our Saviour, and committing our souls to his care, in the prospect of a judgment to come.

Forgive the sins and bless the duties of the day. May we enjoy the kind protection of our God this night, and be comforted with refreshing sleep. May our evening sacrifice be accepted through Jesus, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

THE CONVINCED SINNER.

Penitence. Contrition. Babylon Streams.

L. M.

- 1 HERE, Lord! my soul convicted stands
Of breaking all thy ten commands;
And on me justly mightst thou pour
Thy wrath in one eternal shower.
- 2 But thanks to God, its loud alarms
Have warned me of approaching harms,
And now, O Lord, my wants I see;
Lost and undone, I come to thee.
- 3 I see my fig-leaf righteousness
Can ne'er thy broken law redress;
Yet, in thy gospel plan, I see
There's hope of pardon o'en for me.
- 4 Here I behold thy wonders, Lord!—
How Christ hath to thy law restored
Those honours, on the atoning day,
Which guilty sinners took away.

ANON.

2 SAMUEL XVII.

The Counsel of Ahithophel defeated.

MOREOVER, Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Let me now choose out twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue after David this night:

2 And I will come upon him while he is weary and weak-handed, and will make him afraid; and all the people that are with him shall flee; and I will smite the king only:

3 And I will bring back all the people unto thee: the man whom thou seekest is as if all returned: so all the people shall be in peace.

4 And the saying pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel.

5 Then said Absalom, Call now Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear likewise what he saith.

6 And when Hushai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake unto him, saying, Ahithophel hath spoken after this manner: shall we do after his saying? if not; speak thou.

7 And Hushai said unto Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath given is not good at this time.

8 For, said Hushai, thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty men, and they be chafed in their minds, as a bear robbed of her whelps in the field: and thy father is a man of war, and will not lodge with the people.

9 Behold, he is hid now in some pit, or in some other place: and it will come to pass, when some of them be overthrown at the first, that whosoever heareth it will say, There is a slaughter among the people that follow Absalom.

10 And he also that is valiant, whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall utterly melt: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and they which be with him are valiant men.

11 Therefore, I counsel that all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, as the sand that is by the sea for multitude; and that thou go to battle in thine own person.

12 So shall we come upon him in some place where he shall be found, and we will light upon him as the dew falleth on the ground: and of him and of all the men that are with him there shall not be left so much as one.

13 Moreover, if he be gotten into a city, then shall Israel bring ropes to that city, and we will draw it into the river, until there be not one small stone found there.

14 And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel. For the Lord had appointed to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that the Lord might bring evil upon Absalom.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XVII.—Unavailing and vain was the talented counsel of Ahithophel to accomplish the destruction of his kind and generous royal master, and once confidential friend. If we are in the hollow of God's hand—if we have his truth for our shield and buckler—if we are under the wings of his omnipotence—who can do us injury? Surely, it was under the immediate influence of God's wise and sovereign power Absalom wished to hear the counsel of Hushai, David's concealed friend, in addition to the counsel of Ahithophel, now David's open enemy. This was the doing of God alone to preserve the life of David, the object of his love, and ultimately to defeat the purpose, and to accomplish the confusion and destruction of the enemies of his persecuted and afflicted servant. God is a very present help to his people in the time of trouble. If men's plans and malice and rage are like the waves of the tempestuous ocean, God says, "Hitherto shalt thou come, and no further."

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the only wise God, and with the utmost case thou dost turn the counsels and devices of thine enemies headlong. Thou art the God of love, and we rejoice that thou hast given the richest and the most blessed manifestations of thy love, in the plan of salvation contrived by thy wisdom, and in the person of thy Son, whom thou didst send into our sinful world to accomplish salvation by his sufferings and death. What reason have we to bless and praise thee, that thou hast given us thy well-beloved Son to be a propitiation for our sins, and to conduct us by his doctrine in that way which leads to heaven and immortality! Exalted Saviour, we rejoice that thou hast risen from the dead as the first-fruits of them who sleep in the dust, and as the security that the bodies of all thy people shall awake from the tomb on the morning of that day when the Divine Father shall make up his jewels.

We desire to feel humbled before God, on account of the corruptions of our hearts and the errors of our life. What reason have we to exclaim, Woe unto us, for we have sinned! If there are any of our beloved family now before thee not yet convinced of sin, Lord, open their eyes, that they may see their sinfulness, their guilt, their numerous and hateful corruptions, and the constant danger to which they are exposed, standing on the brink of eternity, without the slightest hope of eternal blessedness. Mercifully awake them out of their spiritual slumbers, and pour out upon them a spirit of supplication, that they may cry to Jesus for mercy to be delivered from the wrath to come.

Affect our minds deeply with the account we have now read of the treachery of Ahithophel, and the monstrous rebellion of Absalom. O preserve us from the treachery of false friends, and suffer us not to trust in the friendship of men. Convince us of the greatness of the sin of trusting in man, or of preferring an arm of flesh before the arm of omnipotent grace. Lord, teach us to improve the treachery of false friends. May we be thereby instructed to place implicit confidence in our Divine Redeemer, who is the friend that sticketh closer than any brother, and whose love is unchanging as his nature.

Impress on the minds of our children the history of the rebellion, the cruelty, and the crimes of Absalom. May his conduct convince them of the great enormity of the sin of disobedience to parents.

Glory to thy name, O Lord, that, when crafty plans are laid for the injury of thy saints and for the hurt of thy Church, thine eye is watching the actions of thine enemies, and thy wisdom is employed in arranging effectual means for confounding all their schemes and blasting all their efforts.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of another night, and graciously be our God and our guide through the whole of this day. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake; our only Saviour. Amen.

THE RIGHTEOUS BELOVED OF GOD.

L. 22.

- 1 MY refuge is the God of love;
Why do my foes insult and cry,
Fly like a timorous, trembling dove,
To distant woods or mountains fly?
- 2 If government be all destroyed,
(That firm foundation of their peace,)
And violence make justice void,
Where shall the righteous seek redress?
- 3 The Lord in heaven has fixed his throne,
His eye surveys the world below;
To him all mortal things are known,
His eyelids search our spirits through.
- 4 If he afflicts his saints so far,
To prove their love, and try their grace,
What may the bold transgressors fear?
His very soul abhors their ways.

WATTS, Ps. 11.

ACTS XXV.

Paul before Agrippa and Festus.

AND after certain days, king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Cæsarea to salute Festus.

14 And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix:

15 About whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him.

16 To whom I answered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, and have license to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him.

17 Therefore, when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I sat on the judgment-seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth,

18 Against whom when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed:

19 But had certain questions against him of their own superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And because I doubted of such manner of questions, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these matters.

21 But when Paul had appealed to be reserved unto the hearing of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I might send him to Cæsar.

22 Then Agrippa said to Festus, I would also hear the man myself. To morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

23 And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and was entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city, at Festus' commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought not to live any longer.

25 But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that, after examination had, I might have somewhat to write.

27 For it seemeth to me unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXV.—Was Paul a prisoner before Agrippa? He occupied a more honourable place than the king before whom he appeared. Agrippa shone in royal robes; but the chain with which Paul was bound was more honourable than the golden diadem which encircled the monarch's head. What a contrast!—Paul arraigned before the tribunal of an earthly king, and Paul in heaven arrayed in robes of light before the throne of the King of kings! Paul was in bonds for Christ, and his Gospel. Christ was in bonds for us. He was a prisoner before Pilate, a prisoner on the cross, and a prisoner in the grave. Glory to God in the highest! he has come from prison and from judgment; he has come to set his people free, "to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison-door to them that are bound." Paul rejoiced to be a prisoner for Christ. Our Jesus came from heaven to earth, on wings of love, to purchase our freedom by his bondage. Have we fled to Jesus, the mighty and merciful Deliverer, to set us free?

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Jesus, as the Wonderful, the Counsellor, the everlasting Father, and the Prince of peace. Thou art the Lord of life and of glory: Thou art the light of life: and now we desire, after the duties and engagements of another day, and before retiring to enjoy from our God the blessings of rest and repose, to dedicate ourselves to thee, that we may be thy faithful disciples all our days, and at the close of life to be able with thy faithful servant and Apostle to exclaim, We have fought the good fight, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith.

What reason have we to lament that our obedience to the commands of our God and Saviour has been so defective, irregular, and inconstant! We confess that, in our obedience and profession we have had much formality and little zeal. May we rejoice, O Jesus, that we are under the government of so gracious and Divine a prince, and that we are under laws so wise, just, and merciful. Now we would surrender our wills to thine; and we supplicate grace, that we may cleave to thy law with genuine love and ardent affection. And in all our acts of obedience may we be sweetly constrained by the love of Christ, and find that our service flows from a principle of lively faith.

Give us grace to admire the character and imitate the example of thy devoted servant of whom we have now read. We have not, like him, been called to suffer bonds and imprisonment for Christ. Breathe upon us that Divine influence by which we would consider ourselves highly honoured and blessed, if we should be counted worthy to suffer, and even to die, for the sake of Christ. As we are not called to testify our love to Jesus by suffering for him, may we never forget that we are called to testify our love by serving him. May we never be unwilling, but rather may we be ever ready, to surrender to Jesus all we are and have, to advance his cause and glorify his name.

Let the minds of our dear children be warmed with the love of Christ in their early days. O let the ardour of youth be associated with the ardour of piety; and may they now acknowledge themselves the willing servants of Immanuel.

We have heard of the malice of Jewish priests against thy servant and Apostle. We lament that so many hypocrites have obtruded themselves into the ministerial office, and have profaned its sacred functions by their impiety and crimes. Lord, change the hearts of graceless ministers. May they either be thrust out of the office of which they are unworthy, or may they be converted in it, and thus become the warm advocates of that Gospel which they now hate.

We thank thee for the mercies we have richly enjoyed this day, and we would retire to rest under the conviction that we are the objects of thy gracious care. We humbly supplicate an answer to our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our God and Saviour. Amen.

DEATH AND ETERNITY.

Christ Church, Chesham, London.

C. H.

- 1 MY thoughts, that often mount the skies,
Go search the world beneath,
Where nature all in ruin lies,
And owns her sovereign—Death.
- 2 But where the souls,—those deathless things,
That left their dying clay?
My thoughts, now stretch out all your wings,
And trace eternity.
- 3 Prepare us, Lord! for thy right hand!
Then come the joyful day;
Come, Death, and some celestial band,
To bear our souls away!

2 SAMUEL XVIII.

Absalom's Death.

AND David numbered the people that were with him, and set captains of thousands and captains of hundreds over them.

2 And David sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of Joab, and a third part under the hand of Abishai the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of Ittai the Gittite.

5 And the king commanded Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, Deal gently for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom. And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom.

6 So the people went out into the field against Israel: and the battle was in the wood of Ephraim;

7 Where the people of Israel were slain before the servants of David, and there was there a great slaughter that day of twenty thousand men.

8 For the battle was there scattered over the face of all the country: and the wood devoured more people that day than the sword devoured.

9 And Absalom met the servants of David. And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth; and the mule that was under him went away.

10 And a certain man saw it, and told Joab, and said, behold, I saw Absalom hanged in an oak.

11 And Joab said unto the man that told him, And, behold, thou sawest him, and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle.

12 And the man said unto Joab, Though I should receive a thousand shekels of silver in mine hand, yet would I not put forth mine hand against the king's son: for in our hearing the king charged thee and Abishai and Ittai, saying, Beware that none touch the young man Absalom.

13 Otherwise I should have wrought falsehood against mine own life: for there is no matter hid from the king, and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me.

14 Then said Joab, I may not tarry thus with thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the midst of the oak.

15 And ten young men that bare Joab's armour compassed about, and smote Absalom, and slew him.

16 And Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing after Israel: for Joab held back the people.

17 And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the wood, and laid a very great heap of stones upon him: and all Israel fled every one to his tent.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XVIII.—David's afflictions were numerous; but in his afflictions he had numerous friends ready to be the instruments of his deliverance, and, if necessary, to lay down their lives for his sake. At all times friends are valuable; but in the time of trial, affliction, and sorrow, their value cannot be calculated. What a spectacle of disappointed ambition, of a miserable, tragical, shameful death—the death of Absalom, the rebellious son, the intended parricide and regicide, on whom fell the indignation of Jehovah, like a burning thunderbolt from the sky! When we die, may we fall asleep in peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, graciously communicate to us thy divine influence, by which we shall be enabled with devout and believing hearts to approach the throne of grace, and present our morning sacrifice. O that we could engage in all our religious services under the animating conviction that we are not our own, that we are redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, and that we ought to glorify thee our God with our bodies and our spirits, which are thine!

O Lord, most holy and most mighty, we adore thee as a God of inflexible justice. We will ascribe righteousness to thee our God. Righteousness, O Lord, belongeth unto thee. Bless to us the afflicting display given of thy justice in the portion of Scripture we have now read. O may the death of Absalom convince us how dreadful it is to be arrested by the hand of justice in the midst of our crimes; and how inexpressibly awful it is to die when engaged in hotly pursuing the ways of rebellion and sin. If there are any among us as a family thinking lightly of sin or death, or the justice of God, or an eternal world, O let such careless indifference continue no longer. Open our eyes to see the folly, the madness, and the danger of living one moment longer without Christ, and of living one moment longer neglecting the things which belong to our everlasting peace, until they should be for ever hid from our eyes. As we consider the offence of those peculiarly aggravated who deliberately seek after our temporal injury, may we see that our sin is much more aggravated in deliberately working out the ruin of our immortal souls, in preparing for them the miseries of Tophet, and in rejecting the glorious and gracious method which infinite mercy and wisdom have devised for putting us in possession of the joys of heaven. May we and all our relatives be united together by the endearing and everlasting bonds of Christian love. In our family and domestic relations let no root of bitterness ever be allowed to spring up and disturb our peace. Let none among us be left to exemplify the depraved principles and passions which were exhibited by the character of Absalom, and which led him at last to an untimely and disgraceful grave.

Powerfully impress the minds of all our children with the heinousness of the sin of disobedience to parents. When they remember how the hand of God pursued and punished and destroyed disobedient, rebellious Absalom, may they affectionately honour and obey their father and mother, that their days may be long in the land which the Lord their God giveth them.

Have mercy on the graceless offspring of pious parents. Hear the prayers which are earnestly and tenderly offered up in their behalf. May none of thy beloved servants have reason to weep and mourn over the untimely death of graceless children.

We thank our God for the sleep and protection of the last night: and we supplicate the guidance and presence of our God throughout this day, for the sake of Jesus, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

CONFESSION AND PARDON.

Mercy Seat. Munich. Winchester.

L. M.

- 1 WHILE I keep silence and conceal
My heavy guilt within my heart,
What torments doth my conscience feel!
What agonies of inward smart!
- 2 I spread my sins before the Lord,
And all my secret faults confess;
Thy Gospel speaks a pardoning word,
Thine Holy Spirit seals the grace.
- 3 For this shall every humble soul
Make swift addresses to thy seat;
When floods of huge temptations roll,
There shall they find a blest retreat.
- 4 How safe beneath thy wings I lie,
When days grow dark and storms appear!
And when I walk, thy watchful eye
Shall guide me safe from every snare.

WATTS, Ps. 32, p. 11.

ACTS XXVI.

Paul's Defence before Agrippa.

THEN Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself,

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews:

3 Especially because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews; wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.

4 My manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, know all the Jews.

5 Which knew me from the beginning, if they would testify, that after the most straitest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee.

6 And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers:

7 Unto which promise our twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come. For which hope's sake, king Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.

8 Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?

9 I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth.

10 Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death I gave my voice against them.

11 And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities.

12 Whereupon as I went to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests, 13 At midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me and them which journeyed with me.

14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVI.—Paul preaching before Agrippa, shows that God in his providence, and for the furtherance of the Gospel of his kingdom, can furnish his ministers with the most remarkable opportunities of doing good; and his servants, under the influence of Christian faithfulness, will allow no opportunity to escape. The Apostle, in making a defence for himself ostensibly, and, as it may be considered, formally and legally, before an earthly tribunal, was in reality making a defence for the Gospel, for the truth, in opposition to error; and for the kingdom of light and of life, in opposition to the kingdom of darkness and of death. It was therefore a recompense to Paul for all he suffered; as it furnished him with an occasion of performing the functions and discharging the duties of his lofty and honourable office—namely, of preaching Christ, and him crucified, as the wisdom of God, and the power of God, to them that believe. Like him, may our love to the Gospel be genuine and fervent, and may we count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ!

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, we acknowledge thee as the universal proprietor of all things. Wherever we cast our eyes, we see thy works, thy creatures, and the displays of thy wisdom, power, and goodness. We are thine, O Lord, and thee we ought to serve. By thine undisputed authority and sovereignty we are bound to serve thee; O may we be constrained to serve thee by the love of Christ! May we never endeavour to obey thy laws or observe thine ordinances from force, but from love. Teach us to look upon thy service as a yoke that is easy, and as a burden that is light. May the sentiments of the Psalmist be the language of our heart: I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart. And with an Apostle may we say with genuine sincerity, I delight in the law of the Lord after the inward man.

We confess that we are imperfect, unfaithful, and unprofitable servants. We lament that our natural love to sin is powerful; and that, in the practice of sin, we have drunk up iniquity as the ox drinketh up the water. Our provocations are innumerable, and our trespasses have grown up to the very heavens. If our consciences are not asleep, they will tell us that, instead of living to him who died for us and rose again, we have lived to ourselves; and, though our souls and our bodies were formed for the express purpose of honouring thee, we have refused to glorify thee with our bodies and our spirits, which are thine. Lord, recover us from sin by renewing grace. To thee alone we look for the blessed, renovating change, for in thee alone our help is found.

Lord, forgive the sins and imperfections of the past day. May thy blessing attend the various lawful engagements which have engaged our attention. Give us this night the watchful care of a gracious providence. When the night of death arrives, may our minds be tranquil and blessed, in the exercise of the well-grounded faith, that the night of mortality shall be followed by the glorious light of immortality.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the minute account which the Scriptures give of the affliction of eminent saints and apostles. If we are called to endure any description of suffering for the sake of Jesus, may we not consider that any strange thing has befallen us. Glory to thy name that thou hast in thy wisdom and goodness connected the sufferings of thy people with the prosperity of their own souls, and the advancement of the interests of thy church.

Teach our children the sweet and inestimable advantages of true religion. Give them that faith in Jesus by which they shall be strengthened to bear every affliction, and by which they shall improve all the sufferings of their future days.

Give to our aged friends a large portion of that vigorous, contented, happy spirit, which animated Paul. Give them large degrees of that grace which will make the burden of their bodily infirmities light, and which will animate them with great joy, in the prospect of their heavenly home.

Graciously hear our feeble supplications, for Jesus sake who shed his blood and died for us. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE.

Christian Warfare. Suffolk New. Bromley.

L. M.

- 1 MY Captain sounds the alarm of war,
Awake! the powers of hell are near!
To arms! to arms! I hear him cry,
'Tis yours to conquer or to die!
- 2 Roused by the animating sound,
I cast my eager eyes around;
Make haste to gird my armour on,
And bid each trembling fear begone.
- 3 Hope is my helmet; faith my shield;
Thy word, my God! the sword I wield;
With sacred truth my loins are girt,
And holy zeal inspires my heart.

STERNETT.

2 SAMUEL XXIII.

David's Last Words and Mighty Men.

NOW these be the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, and the man who was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel, said,

2 The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

3 The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God.

4 And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds: as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain.

5 Although my house be not so with God; yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, and sure: for this is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make it not to grow.

6 But the sons of Belial shall be all of them as thorns thrust away, because they cannot be taken with hands:

7 But the man that shall touch them must be fenced with iron and the staff of a spear; and they shall be utterly burned with fire in the same place.

8 These be the names of the mighty men whom David had: The Tachmonite that sat in the seat, chief among the captains; the same was Adino the Eznite: he lift up his spear against eight hundred, whom he slew at one time.

9 And after him was Elcazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three mighty men with David, when they defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battle, and the men of Israel were gone away.

10 He arose, and smote the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto the sword: and the Lord wrought a great victory that day; and the people returned after him only to spoil.

11 And after him was Shammah the son of Agee the Hararite. And the Philistines were gathered together into a troop, where was a piece of ground full of lentiles: and the people fled from the Philistines.

12 But he stood in the midst of the ground, and defended it, and slew the Philistines: and the Lord wrought a great victory.

13 And three of the thirty chief went down, and came to David in the harvest time unto the cave of Adullam: and the troop of the Philistines pitched in the valley of Rephaim.

14 And David was then in an hold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Beth-lehem.

15 And David longed, and said, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Beth-lehem, which is by the gate!

16 And the three mighty men brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David:

nevertheless he would not drink thereof, but poured it out unto the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XXIII.—The saint dying in triumph, in the full assurance of faith, may be compared to the sun setting in a sea of glory. Their last words uttered on earth before they enter on their sweet anthems of praise in heaven are an invaluable treasure. They are like precious ointment. They exhale fragrance, resembling the delicious and refreshing fragrance rising from the unfading flowers of the celestial paradise above. How important are the last words which Christ uttered upon the cross. Blessed prayer he offered for those who nailed him to the tree. Consolatory words he poured into the ears of his blessed Mother and the beloved Disciple. Comforting words he delivered to the poor thief on the cross, when he told him, and assured him, that he should meet him on that very day in the heavenly kingdom. Before he ascended to heaven his last words were those of wisdom, of love, of encouragement, and of peace.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the God of Israel and as the Lord our God. Thou hast chosen thy people for thyself as thy peculiar treasure, and thou wilt defend them from all their enemies; and after the storms of life thou wilt take them to thy heavenly home. We praise thee as the rock of Israel, of whom thy servant the sweet singer of Israel sung in animating strains. As a family, may we belong to thy spiritual Israel, and by faith may all our hopes of pardon, acceptance, and immortality be built on Jesus, the Lord our righteousness. O true Rock of Israel, against whom the gates of earth and hell have never been able for our moment to prevail, forbid that we, or any of our beloved relatives, should prefer the rags of our supposed righteousness before the gloriously finished righteousness of Christ.

O Jesus, we adore thee as the anointed Mediator. Thou art he whom the God of Jacob anointed and raised up, to give repentance unto Israel, and the remission of sins unto many. Holy Spirit, enable us to receive Jesus in all his suitableness, and in all his fulness. Divine Saviour, thou art the word of God. Thou didst appear on earth in thine own person, to publish the tidings of salvation. The Spirit of the Lord spake by thee, and his word was in thy tongue. Thou didst not only send angels and prophets as heralds of mercy, but thou didst actually visit the world thyself, agreeably to Divine purposes and predictions. Teach us to feel, as the Apostle did, the infinite importance of receiving the salvation thou didst publish, and the salvation thou didst purchase. Lord, teach us to utter with solemnity and profit the language he expressed: For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great a salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him?

Blessed Saviour, we pray that thy fame may soon overspread the nations of the earth. In the Divine influence of thy Gospel, be unto the kingdoms of the world as the light of the morning when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; and be unto them as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain. Give us the pleasing evidence, O Lord, that thou hast made with us an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and sure.

May we never have reason to mourn over our children as David did. O make thy gracious covenant with them and our domestics; then shall our house be in league with heaven.

Lord, make all of us valiant soldiers of Jesus Christ, and every day may we triumph over our spiritual enemies.

We thank our God for the protection, sleep, and repose of the past night; and this day may we live as those who are in covenant with thyself. O hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, our exalted Mediator. Amen.

GRATEFUL RECOLLECTION.

- 1 COME, thou fount of every blessing,
Tune my heart to sing thy grace,
Streams of mercy never ceasing
Call for songs of loudest praise.
Teach me some melodious sonnet,
Sung by flaming tongues above:
Praise the mount—O fix me on it,
Mount of God's unchanging love.
- 2 Here I raise my Ebenezer,
Hither by thy help I'm come:
And I hope, by thy good pleasure,
Safely to arrive at home:
Jesus sought me when a stranger,
Wandering from the fold of God;
He, to save my soul from danger,
Interposed his precious blood.

ROBINSON.

ACTS XXVI.

Paul before Festus.

AND I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest.

16 But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee;

17 Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee;

18 To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God; that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and an inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me.

19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:

20 But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judæa, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21 For these causes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come:

23 That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24 And as he thus spake for himself Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus: but speak forth the words of truth and soberness.

26 For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

27 King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

29 And Paul said, I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

30 And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them:

31 And when they were gone aside, they talked between themselves, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death or of bonds.

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVI.—Great is the change produced upon the block of stone dug from the quarry. By the hand of the skillful artificer, it now shows the appearance of the human body in its loveliest form and in its most beautiful proportions. None can behold it without emotions of wonder and delight. This bears no comparison with the blessed change produced upon the soul in the day of conversion—that memorable never-to-be-forgotten day, the day of Christ's power. Of this, the regenerating change produced upon the soul of Paul furnishes the most astonishing illustration. His moral deformity was changed into spiritual beauty. His persecuting spirit of enmity and blood was changed into the most ardent love to Jesus, admiration of his Gospel, attachment to his saints, and overwhelming desire to promote the prosperity of that kingdom he sought to destroy. Have we felt this change, this blessed change?

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the Father of all mercies and as our merciful Lord God. So great is thy delight in bestowing countless mercies upon thy people, that thou art pleased to be denominated the Father of mercies. Thou art the God of all comfort. There is no real comfort which does not flow from thyself, the fountain of all blessedness. What reason have we to exclaim, How precious are thy thoughts towards us! how great is the sum of them!

We unite in presenting the humble tribute of our thanksgiving at thy feet, for the personal and domestic blessings we have received from thy bountiful hand this day. We are encouraged again to commit ourselves to thy fatherly care during another night, trusting to thee for protection, and praying that our lives may be prolonged to another day. O let our lives be continued till we are prepared to enter upon a life of immortality in heaven!

We supplicate the blessing of the Holy Spirit on what we have now read from the volume of Divine truth. We adore that grace which subdued the ferocious and persecuting spirit of Saul of Tarsus, and which changed him into a zealous and successful ambassador of Jesus Christ. Lord, have mercy on those who are now the persecutors of thy people, and the determined enemies of thy Gospel; make them, like Paul, the holy and devoted servants of the cross of Christ.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the astonishing effects which the Gospel is instrumental in producing on the hearts of the children of men. May a preached Gospel be remarkably blessed among the people with whom we are connected by the ties of Christian fellowship. May our beloved minister, like Paul, be the honoured instrument in thy hand of opening the eyes of those who are spiritually blind, of turning them from darkness unto light, and from the power of Satan unto God.

Heaven grant that our children may feel the saving effects of a preached Gospel. O let the day of grace dawn upon their youthful minds, and may the shadows of folly, sin, and guilt soon flee far away,

Have mercy on all our relatives and friends. We pray not that thou wouldst confer upon them earthly greatness or temporal wealth, but we earnestly pray that thou wouldst give them repentance unto life, and bestow upon them the remission of all their sins, and an inheritance among those who are sanctified by the faith that is in Christ Jesus. Lord, make all of us, in our various stations and relations, witnesses for Christ. In our conversation and life may we exhibit the salutary, experimental, and practical effects of the truth as it is in Jesus. Mercifully hear our prayers, only for the sake of Jesus, our glorious Saviour. Amen.

CONFESSION AND FORGIVENESS.

Amos. Bambergfeld. Stralund. Salisbury.

c. n.

- 1 O BLESSED souls are they
Whose sins are covered o'er!
Divinely blest, to whom the Lord
Imputes their guilt no more!
- 2 They mourn their follies past,
And keep their hearts with care;
Their lips and lives without deceit,
Shall prove their faith sincere.
- 3 While I concealed my guilt,
I felt the feasting wound;
Till I confessed my sins to thee,
And ready pardon found.

Watts, Ps. 32.

2 SAMUEL XXIV.

David numbering the People.

AND again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he moved David against them to say, Go, number Israel and Judah.

8 And Joab said unto the king, Now the LORD thy God add unto the people, how many soever they be, an hundred fold, and that the eyes of my lord the king may see it: but why doth my lord the king delight in this thing?

4 Notwithstanding, the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the captains of the host. And Joab and the captains of the host went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of Israel.

9 And Joab gave up the sum of the number of the people unto the king: and there were in Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword; and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

10 And David's heart smote him, after that he had numbered the people. And David said unto the LORD, I have sinned greatly in that I have done: and now, I beseech thee, O LORD, take away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have done very foolishly.

11 For, when David was up in the morning, the word of the LORD came unto the prophet Gad, David's seer, saying, 12 Go and say unto David, Thus saith the LORD, I offer thee three things; choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee.

13 So Gad came to David, and told him, and said unto him, Shall seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land? or wilt thou flee three months before thine enemies, while they pursue thee? or that there be three days' pestilence in thy land? now advise, and see what answer I shall return to him that sent me.

14 And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait: let us fall now into the hand of the LORD; for his mercies are great: and let me not fall into the hand of man.

15 So the LORD sent a pestilence upon Israel, from the morning even to the time appointed: and there died of the people, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, seventy thousand men.

16 And when the angel stretched out his hand upon Jerusalem to destroy it, the LORD repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed the people, It is enough: stay now thine hand. And the angel of the LORD was by the threshingplace of Araunah the Jebusite.

17 And David spake unto the LORD, when he saw the angel that smote the people, and said, Lo, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly: but these sheep, what have they done? let thine hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house.

18 And Gad came that day to David, and said unto him, Go up, rear an altar unto the LORD in the threshing-floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

19 And David, according to the saying of Gad, went up, as the LORD commanded.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 SAMUEL XXIV.—It was the sin of pride which moved David to perform an act which was followed by the sudden removal from time to eternity of seventy thousand men! It is pride, more than any other sin, which kindles the flames of God's anger. If this be our ruling passion, we are preserving alive that fire, which, if mercy prevent not, must accomplish our ruin. May we be preserved from such a sin, which is so offensive to God, the perfection of goodness, and which is so ruinous to the soul! Even graceless men like Joab may see the danger of pride, and may utter wholesome counsels, which, if followed, God may bless to prevent the greatest calamities. God never permits his people to continue in sin. If they fall, he will raise them up again, and even give them greater strength and stability than before they fell.

PRAYER.

OUR Father and our God, we come unto thee, for thou hast graciously invited us to come, and thou hast confirmed thine invitation with thy promise, Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out. Lord, we come at thy command, and in the name of Christ, thy well-beloved Son, through whose name myriads have obtained access, and through whose righteousness they have obtained acceptance. Lord, we come to thee this morning as a family, that we may obtain mercy and grace to help in every time of need. O give us the satisfying evidence that we have received thy favour, and that thou art reconciled to us through the all-prevailing mediation of our anointed Saviour.

We have now read of an affecting instance in which David thy servant fell into the mire of temptation and sin. O sanctify to us this account of human weakness and infirmity, in one of the most distinguished of thy saints. Lord, forsake us not in thine ire. Our sins have often provoked thee to cast us off. Suffer not, we beseech thee, our sins to bring upon our heads a calamity so dreadful. Let not the suggestions or temptations of Satan have the dominion over us. Deliver us from all his wiles, and defend us from all his fiery darts. Teach us always to have our armour on, and to be ready for the conflict. May we rejoice, that if we wield the sword of the Spirit, employ the shield of faith, and pray with all prayer and supplication, it is impossible that our spiritual enemies can ever prevail. When thou dost afflict thy people for their sins, and chastise them for their transgressions, O comfort them with the conviction that thou wilt not forsake them, nor utterly cast them off. May they see that the calamitous events of providence brought upon them for their sins, are not the frowns of an angry judge, but the chastisement and the wholesome corrections of a loving Father.

Lord, make our dear children thy loving disciples. O convince them that a life of sin is a life of dishonour and danger. Teach and enable them and our servants to give a ready and constant obedience to all thy laws, which are holy, just, and good.

Let all our minds be affected with the deepest humility, that we have so often and so grievously offended thee. May we call to our remembrance the chief offences of our life, and thus acknowledge our sins: We have sinned greatly in what we have done; and now, we beseech thee, O Lord, to take away the iniquity of thy servants; for we have done very foolishly. O Lord, we look to the atonement of Christ alone for our hopes of pardon. There, O Lord, thy justice found satisfaction, and there alone we look for rest for our troubled conscience, and the forgiveness of all our sins.

Lord, incline thine ear to the voice of our supplication, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and Divine Spirit, we ascribe glory, honour, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

THE SPIRITUAL VOYAGE.

Birmingham New. Finsbury Chapel. Clapham. 148rs.

1 JESUS! at thy command
I launch into the deep,
And leave my native land,
Where sin lulls all asleep:
For thee I would the world resign,
And sail to heaven with thee and thine.

2 Though rocks and quicksands deep
Through all my passago lie;
Yet Christ will safely keep
And guide me with his eye;
My anchor hope shall firm abide,
And I each boisterous storm outride.

ACTS XXVII.

Paul's Voyage to Rome.

AND when it was determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus' band.

2 And entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to sail by the coasts of Asia; one Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, being with us.

3 And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself.

4 And when we had launched from thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 And when we had sailed over the sea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia.

6 And there the centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed under Crete, over against Salmone;

8 And, hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called, The fair havens; nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

9 Now, when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, because the fast was now already past, Paul admonished them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ship, but also of our lives.

11 Nevertheless, the centurion believed the master and the owner of the ship, more than those things which were spoken by Paul.

12 And, because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the south west and north west.

13 And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete.

14 But not long after there arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euroclydon.

15 And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

16 And running under a certain island which is called Claudia, we had much work to come by the boat:

17 Which when they had taken up, they used helps, undergirding the ship; and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, strake sail, and so were driven.

18 And we being exceedingly tossed with a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship;

19 And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.

20 And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVII.—What is the setting out of a general on a military campaign, compared with an Apostle setting out on a spiritual embassy, under the sanction of the God of salvation, to proclaim the tidings of grace in the most distinguished city on the face of the earth? It is pleasing to consider, how much ships have been made subservient to the interests and prosperity of the cause of truth, the extension of the Church of Christ, and the salvation of souls. Sidon was once a city of great wealth, splendour, and power. It was pre-eminent and influential among the cities of the earth. Where is Sidon now? This great city, with all its wealth and glory, is no more; and thus most strikingly illustrates, that all earthly glory is vanity. Are we on the voyage to heaven? Then, "we have Christ in the vessel, and smile at the storm."

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we to rejoice, O Lord, and to magnify thy great and gracious name, that we have enjoyed thy providential protection through another day, and that another blessed opportunity is now afforded us of engaging in the ordinances of domestic worship! For these blessings we praise thee. Holy Spirit, condescend to breathe upon us thy Divine influence, that we may draw near the throne of God with the sincerity of unfeigned devotion.

O Lord, thou art the guide, the preserver, and the comforter of thy people, in all the circumstances of danger and suffering in which they can possibly be found. We thank thee for the instance we have now read of that fellowship which Paul thine Apostle enjoyed with thyself, when tossed upon the raging billows of a tempestuous sea. In all the trials with which we may be surrounded, may we look immediately to thee, and nowhere else, for help. We desire ever to sing, in the language of the Psalmist, Truly, in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills and from the multitude of mountains; truly in the Lord our God is the salvation of Israel.

Merciful God, give us proper views of the Christian life. Convince us that, though it is a life of great blessedness and peace, it is also a life of peculiar difficulties and sufferings. We rejoice that the comfort is greater than the sorrow, and that the security infinitely exceeds the danger. If there are any in thy sacred presence who have not yet entered upon the Christian life, O let them not be deterred by difficulties or discouraged by dangers. Teach them to compare a life of holiness with a life of impiety, and a life of folly with a life of wisdom; and then convince them of the immense advantage of preferring a life of godliness before a life of sin.

Open the eyes of our dear children to see the blessedness of early piety, and touch their hearts, that they may choose Christ for their leader, their captain, and Saviour.

Comfort the minds of aged Christians, who have been long tossed upon the sea of human life. Make them thankful that they have been so long preserved, that their Saviour has been near them in all their difficulties, and that they have not suffered the shipwreck of their faith and their salvation.

We thank our God for all the goodness which has passed before us during the past week, for the blessings conferred upon our bodies, but above all for those bestowed on our souls. If we have enjoyed thy fellowship and direction, if we have experienced the comfort of faith in Jesus and the hopes of heaven, we praise thy glorious name. Watch over us this night. Preserve us to see, improve, and enjoy another day of the son of man. Prepare all thy ministering servants in general, and our beloved pastor in particular, for dispensing the Word of life. May our sanctuary be filled with thy glory.

Lord, hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us, and all the Israel of God, for ever and ever. Amen.

SAINTS AND SINNERS.

c. v.

- 1 NOW I'm convinced the Lord is kind
To men of heart sincere,
Yet once my foolish thoughts repined,
And bordered on despair.
- 2 I grieved to see the wicked thrive,
And spoke with angry breath,
How pleasant and profane they live!
How peaceful is their death.
- 3 Yet while my tongue indulged complaints,
I felt my heart reprove;
Sure I shall thus offend thy saints,
And grieve the men I love.
- 4 But still I found my doubts too hard,
The conflict too severe,
Till I retired to search thy word,
And learn thy secrets there.

Watts, Ps. 73, p. 1.

PSALM LXXIII.

The Righteous and the Wicked.

TRULY God is good to Israel, even to such as are of a clean heart.

2 But as for me, my feet were almost gone; my steps had well nigh slipped.

3 For I was envious at the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

4 For there are no bands in their death: but their strength is firm.

5 They are not in trouble as other men; neither are they plagued like other men.

6 Therefore pride compasseth them about as a chain; violence covereth them as a garment.

7 Their eyes stand out with fatness: they have more than heart could wish.

8 They are corrupt, and speak wickedly concerning oppression: they speak loftily.

9 They set their mouth against the heavens, and their tongue walketh through the earth.

10 Therefore his people return hither: and waters of a full cup are wrung out to them.

11 And they say, How doth God know? and is there knowledge in the Most High?

12 Behold, these are the ungodly, who prosper in the world; they increase in riches.

13 Verily I have cleansed my heart in vain, and washed my hands in innocency.

14 For all the day long have I been plagued, and chastened every morning.

15 If I say, I will speak thus; behold, I should offend against the generation of thy children.

16 When I thought to know this, it was too painful for me;

17 Until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end.

18 Surely thou didst set them in slippery places: thou castedst them down into destruction.

19 How are they brought into desolation, as in a moment! they are utterly consumed with terrors.

20 As a dream when one awaketh; so, O Lord, when thou awakest, thou shalt despise their image.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXIII.—They who belong to the spiritual Israel of God have undergone an inward saving change; their hearts are sanctified, and their lives are holy; they are the objects of Divine love, and the subjects of Divine grace; they alone are prosperous, living under the gracious smiles of their God and Father in Christ. While on earth, believers are constantly within temptation's reach; and, without constant dependence upon Divine grace, they cannot stand—they must fall. But, while they completely distrust themselves, and implicitly trust in Jesus, they must stand—they cannot fall. The foolish, the wicked, and the proud may revel in luxury, and may shine in all the splendour of earthly greatness, still they are not real objects of envy; they are objects of pity; they are like oxen fatted for the slaughter. Where, O where does the sun of their glory set? In the gloom of Tophet, and in the darkness of never-ending despair! How deplorable to behold them on a dying bed, hardened in sin, and without the slightest apprehension of their approaching doom. It avails nothing, that during life they were in a measure strangers to the troubles and sorrows of other men; like other men, they must die; and, dying in an unregenerate state, they must perish. Of this, the rich man in the parable is a most awfully affecting illustration. He changed his luxuries for torments, while holy Lazarus exchanged his poverty and his sores for heaven and its joys.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, O Lord our God, that the light of another Sabbath-day shines around us, and that we have the near prospect of entering thy sacred courts, where, we pray, the light of the Sun of righteousness may shine on our souls in all its influence and in all its comfort. We adore thee, O Lord, as the God of grace, and as having given the most wonderful display that ever God himself can give of his grace, in the unparalleled gift of thy well-beloved Son. We bless thee that we have entered on that day which is appointed to preserve the animating remembrance of the resurrection of Jesus from the dust of death, and to commemorate his most triumphant victory over death, the grave, hell, and all the enemies of the church. And we thank God that we are entering upon a day celebrated throughout all ages, and in all generations, for the bestowing of spiritual and saving blessings upon the children of men. O Lord of heaven and earth, most graciously visit all thy ministers and churches. May the rain of the Spirit's influences descend upon all the congregations of thy people, like refreshing and fructifying showers. Make a preached Gospel mighty through God, to the pulling down the strongholds of ignorance, folly, prejudice, superstition, bigotry, and immorality—those battlements which Satan employs for the defence of his gloomy empire of captivity, misery, and death. Truly, O Lord, thou art good to Israel, even to such as are of a clean heart.

Put our dear children among thy spiritual Israel, and give them the pleasures and the honours of unfeigned piety. Put within them a clean heart. O sprinkle clean water upon them and our domestics, and they shall be clean.

May we and all thy people learn many important lessons in thy sacred courts, and under a preached Gospel. May thy servant our minister, be directed by thy Spirit to speak to our heart, our conscience, our case. In thy sanctuary may we learn not to be envious at the foolish, nor be distressed when we see the prosperity of the wicked. When we consider their present moral circumstances, as living without God, and in a state of constant exposure to the miseries of hell, may we see that no earthly grandeur nor wealth nor honour can compensate for such a state as this; and that poverty and pain, with the well-grounded hopes of heaven, are infinitely more worthy to be desired.

We present supplications for all our rulers, both supreme and subordinate, that they may live the devoted subjects of Jesus the King of kings.

Lord, preside in the midst of all our universities, colleges, seminaries of learning, and Sabbath-schools. Let all of them be illuminated with rays of heavenly wisdom and grace.

Remember the afflicted in the abodes of suffering, and give them to drink of the refreshing waters of salvation. Graciously hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

G. M.

- 1 GOD my supporter and my hope,
My help for ever near,
Thine arm of mercy hold me up
When sinking in despair.
- 2 Thy counsels, Lord, shall guide my feet,
Through this dark wilderness;
Thine hand conduct me near thy seat,
To dwell before thy face.
- 3 Were I in heaven without my God,
'Twould be no joy to me;
And whilst this earth is my abode,
I long for none but thee.      WATTS, Ps. 73, p. 11.

PSALM LXXIII.

The Psalmist's Hopes.

THUS my heart was grieved, and I was pricked in my reins.

22 So foolish was I, and ignorant: I was as a beast before thee.

23 Nevertheless I am continually with thee: thou hast holden me by my right hand.

24 Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel, and afterward receive me to glory.

25 Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee.

26 My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

27 For, lo, they that are far from thee shall perish: thou hast destroyed all them that worship idols.

28 But it is good for me to draw near to God: I have put my trust in the Lord God, that I may declare all thy works.

PSALM LXXIV.

Calamities of the Jews.

O GOD, why hast thou cast us off for ever? why doth thine anger smoke against the sheep of thy pasture?

2 Remember thy congregation, which thou hast purchased of old; the rod of thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed; this mount Zion, wherein thou hast dwelt.

3 Lift up thy feet unto the perpetual desolation; even all that the enemy hath done wickedly in the sanctuary.

4 Thine enemies roar in the midst of thy congregations; they set up their ensigns for signs.

5 A man was famous according as he had lifted up axes upon the thick trees.

6 But now they break down the carved work thereof at once with axes and hammers.

7 They have cast fire into thy sanctuary, they have defiled by casting down the dwelling place of thy name to the ground.

8 They said in their hearts, Let us destroy them together: they have burned up all the synagogues of God in the land.

9 We see not our signs: there is no more any prophet: neither is there among us any that knoweth how long.

10 O God, how long shall the adversary reproach? shall the enemy blaspheme thy name for ever?

11 Why withdrawest thou thy hand, even thy right hand? pluck it out of thy bosom.

12 For God is my King of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXIII., LXXIV.—Though the believer knows his sins are forgiven, and that his person is accepted as righteous in God's sight through the righteousness of Christ imputed, still he most sensitively feels grief of heart on account of past sins, and on account of the remains of sin in his soul. In this we see the effects produced by tenderness of conscience, and the precious fruits which are produced by unfeigned evangelical repentance. The saints of God are on a pilgrimage to the heavenly Canaan. Though the troubles, and dangers, and storms by the way are numerous, the advantages they enjoy are immense. They have the Word of God for their chart; they have the unerring wisdom of Jesus for their guide; they have the Divine presence for their comfort; they have almighty power for their defence; and when their pilgrimage comes to a close, they have heaven for their home, and the joys of immortality for their eternal inheritance. Personal calamities are nothing to be compared with the calamities of the Church, in the estimation of the children of God. External calamities cannot affect the real security of Christ's kingdom, for two reasons. It is redeemed by Jesus' blood, and God has taken up his residence in the midst of it, thore to dwell for ever.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, though the distance between thine uncreated essence and our created existence is infinite, yet, we praise thee, we are admitted to the enjoyment of fellowship with thyself, and are allowed, with the assured hopes of success, to supplicate from our God, in the name of Jesus, all those spiritual blessings which we need for time and eternity. O Lord, thou art King of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth. Thy government is ancient as the creation of the universe; and thou shalt remain for ever and ever on thy throne, swaying a sceptre of wisdom, justice, and power.

O Jesus, we acknowledge thee as our king, and we desire for ever to live under the sway of thy mediatorial sceptre. Mighty Saviour, destroy the hardened obstinacy of our wills and the enmity of our hearts. Our enmity is an iron sinew which thou alone canst bend and subdue; and to thee we come, that we may be brought under thy blessed government, and for ever yield a loving and a ready obedience to all thy laws. O take possession of our hearts, and expel every rival from our souls. We are thine by purchase; make us thine by conquest. Holy Spirit, work in our hearts that genuine and superlative love to Jesus, by which each one of us, young and old, shall be able with sincerity of spirit and ardour of love to say, in the language of Asaph, Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth I desire beside thee. Divine Saviour, when the time arrives that our flesh and heart shall faint and fail, O be thou the strength of our heart, and our portion for ever.

Comfort the afflicted and the aged, amid all their afflictions and infirmities, with the conviction that thou, O Lord, art the strength of their hearts, and the stay of their declining years. Cheer them with the animating hope, that when the sun of their present life shall set amidst the dark shades of death, the sun of their immortal life shall rise amidst the glories of heaven, to go no more down.

Let thy richest blessings attend a preached Gospel, and may many sons and daughters be added to the family of Christ.

May our dear children be among the number. Teach them to cry, Abba, Father. Put them among thy children, and make them heirs of the goodly heritage beyond the stars. Give our servants the adoption of children, and animate them with the spirit of Christ.

We thank God for all the good that has been accomplished this day. As there is joy in heaven over repenting sinners, may there be joy in our hearts over sinners converted to the faith of Jesus. We lament that the number of the faithful followers of Jesus is so small. O hasten, hasten the blessed day when the little one shall become a thousand, and the small one a strong nation! Lord, hasten it in thy time.

Watch over us this night, and may we lie down on our beds under very lively impressions of thy goodness. Lord, hear us, for our Mediator's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

WATTS, Ps. 71, p. III.

1 KINGS I.

Adonijah's Usurpation.

NOW king David was old and stricken in years; and they covered him with clothes, but he gat no heat.

5 Then Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, I will be king: and he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.

6 And his father had not displeas'd him at any time in saying, Why hast thou done so? and he also was a very goodly man; and his mother bare him after Absalom.

11 Wherefore Nathan spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of Haggith doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not?

12 Now therefore come, let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son Solomon.

13 Go and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

14 Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I also will come in after thee, and confirm thy words.

15 And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was very old; and Abishag, the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

16 And Bath-sheba bowed, and did obeisance unto the king. And the king said, What wouldest thou?

17 And she said unto him, My lord, thou swarest by the Lord thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne.

18 And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, thou knowest it not:

19 And he hath slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant hath he not called.

20 And thou, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou shouldst tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.

21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted offenders.

22 And, lo, while she yet talked with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in.

23 And they told the king, saying, Behold Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, he bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground.

24 And Nathan said, My lord, O king, hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne?

25 For he is gone down this day, and hath slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and, behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, God save king Adonijah.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS I.—What a contrast—David in the full vigour of his active life, and David borne down with the infirmities of advanced years. And what a difference—the believer on earth in a state of comparative infancy, and the saint in heaven, having reached the state of a perfect man in Christ Jesus. Adonijah, David's son, furnishes a most humiliating example of carnal ambition, pride, vanity, and filial enmity and rebellion against an aged, holy, and indulgent parent, bowing down to meet the dust. This arrogant, foolish, and deluded prince, has clothed his name with infamy, for having attempted to bring down the grey hairs of a loving parent with sorrow to the grave. How wonderful—David, a saint of God, enriched with the most exalted gifts, and the most transcendent graces, visited almost more than any other saint with the most overwhelming domestic afflictions. Still he comforted himself with that covenant "which was all his salvation, and all his desire."

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, encouraged by thine invitations, promises, and gracious commands, we draw near thy mercy-seat. Through the mediation of thy well-beloved Son, we bow before thy footstool, and present our supplications, with the hope of being answered and accepted. As individuals and as a family we would look upon this liberty of access as the greatest honour and the highest privilege.

We thank thee, O Lord, for creating us rational beings, and that thou hast given us capacities by which, through thy Spirit, we may know, love, worship, and enjoy thee. We would mourn over that affecting and humbling change which has been produced within us by the apostasy and fall of Adam, our first covenant head. We acknowledge that the eyes of our understanding are blinded, that our judgment has become erroneous, our will obstinate, our affections sensual, our memory weak, our conscience treacherous, and our whole heart a cage of every unclean and hateful lust. But we rejoice that in thee our help is found. Thou hast found out a mode of recovery, thou hast laid our help on one mighty to save. Jesus, thou art that mighty one; thou art not only able but willing to save to the very uttermost all that come unto thee. Lord Jesus, thou hast been precious to thousands as a Saviour; O be precious to our souls. May the language of our hearts be, Thou art white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely.

Blessed Jesus, may the hearts of our dear children be taken from lying vanities, and may their affections be placed on thee. May it be our happiness to see our children delighting themselves in God, and rejoicing in thy covenant as all their salvation and all their desire.

Give all of us grace, O Lord, to serve thee with diligence in the vigour of our days; and if like David, we live to a good old age, may the evening of our days be brightened with the prospect of an eternity of celestial joys.

Lord, preserve us from sinful ambition. May we not be left to long after objects sinful and unhallowed; and may we not sinfully desire or excessively long after temporal things lawful in themselves.

Bless what we have now read of the history of Adonijah. In him we have seen the sad effects of parental indulgence. May this prove as a warning to all parents. Lord, convince them that, when they indulge their offspring, they are strengthening their corrupted passions, adding fuel to their lusts, and accelerating their destruction.

We thank our heavenly Father for the mercies of the past night and of the past Sabbath. Give us grace to live in the fear of the Lord all this day. Hear these our imperfect prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

PEACE AFTER A STORM.

Tooley Street. Cottage. Munich.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN darkness long has veiled my mind,
And smiling day once more appears,
Then, my Redeemer! then I find
Tho folly of my doubts and fears.
- 2 I chide my unbelieving heart:
And blush that I should ever be
Thus prone to act so base a part,
Or harbour one hard thought of thee.
- 3 O let me, then, at length, be taught
What I am still so slow to learn,
That God is love, and changes not,
Nor knows the shadow of a turn.

COWPER.

ACTS XXVII.

Paul's safe Arrival in Melita.

BUT, after long abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, and not have loosed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loss.

22 And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship.

23 For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve, 24 Saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Cæsar: and, lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee.

25 Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me.

26 Howbeit we must be cast upon a certain island.

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria, about midnight, the shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country;

28 And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

29 Then, fearing lest they should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day.

30 And as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into the sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, 31 Paul said to the centurion, and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

33 And, while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, having taken nothing.

34 Wherefore I pray you to take some meat: for this is for your health: for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.

35 And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all: and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good cheer, and they also took some meat.

37 And we were in all in the ship two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea.

39 And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they discovered a certain creek with a shore, into the which they were minded, if it were possible, to thrust in the ship.

40 And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themselves unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoised up the mainsail to the wind, and made toward shore.

42 And the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them should swim out and escape,

43 But the centurion, willing to save Paul, kept them from their purpose; and commanded that they which could swim should cast themselves first into the sea, and get to land:

44 And the rest, some on boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship. And so it came to pass, that they escaped all safe to land.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVII.—How valuable is wise counsel; how important to follow it; how foolish and dangerous to reject it! By following it the greatest losses, sufferings, and sorrows may be escaped, and the greatest blessings and comforts may be inherited and enjoyed. Paul cheered the sailors and the crew when exposed to great danger, and, to all human appearance, ready to perish. He addressed them under Divine direction, and under the highest sanction gave them encouragement and hope. This reminds us of the Gospel message, which brings the most joyful tidings to the guilty, diseased, and afflicted; yea, to those who are ready to perish, and ready to suffer the shipwreck of their hopes and their souls. The Gospel points to Jesus, who is "the hiding place from the wind, the covert from the tempest, rivers of waters in a dry place, and the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

PRAYER.

DIVINE Spirit, mercifully communicate to us thy light, thy grace, and thy power, while we endeavour to approach the throne of our God, to present our evening supplications.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine almighty power, and in all the displays thou hast given of thine irresistible control over boisterous waves, tempestuous winds, and raging storms. Thou art he who dividest the sea by thy power, and by thine understanding thou smitest through the proud. By thy Spirit thou hast garnished the heavens; thine hand hath formed the crooked serpent. Lo, these are a part of thy ways; but how little a portion is heard of thee! and the thunder of thy power who can understand?

We adore thee in those manifestations of thy power and providence, in preserving the life of thy servant Paul, and the lives of those who were with him, while exposed to great danger upon the waves of a stormy sea. We adore and praise thee for the many instances in which we have enjoyed thy preserving providence, while our lives were in circumstances of the greatest hazard, and when all human means of deliverance seemed of no avail. Lord, give us that grace, that holy confidence in Christ, by which we shall look onward to all future events, trials, and storms with tranquillity and peace, believing that thou art our God and Father in Christ, who will never leave us nor forsake us.

Prepare, O Lord, our dear children for the storms of human life. Give them and our domestics an interest in the righteousness of Christ; then they shall remain in perfect security, though the earth itself should be removed, and the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea.

Smile upon our aged friends in the last days of their mortal journey, which must soon close in death. Thou hast preserved them in many storms; and do thou graciously comfort them with the near prospect of reaching the blessed haven of eternal rest, where not a wave of trouble or of sorrow shall ever pass across their peaceful breasts. And when the time of their departure arrives, may they have such clear views of Christ in his person, his righteousness, and glory, that they shall exclaim in their dying moments, Now lettest thou thy servants depart in peace, for our eyes have seen thy salvation.

We thank our God for the continued mercies of this day. May the guilt we have contracted be removed by the merit of our Saviour's blood. When we lie down on our beds, may we be refreshed with sleep, and may no plague come near our dwelling. These our prayers we present in our exalted Mediator's name, our God and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST KING OF SAINTS.
New Victory. Jerusalem. America. C. M.

- 1 COME, ye that love the Saviour's name,
And joy to make it known;
The Sovereign of your heart proclaim,
And bow before his throne.
- 2 Behold your King, your Saviour crowned
With glories all divine;
And tall the wandering nations round
How bright these glories shine.
- 3 Infinite power, and boundless grace,
In him unite their rays:
You that have e'er beheld his face,
Can you forbear his praise?

STEELE.

1 KINGS I.

Solomon proclaimed King.

THEN King David answered and said, Call me Bath-sheba. And she came into the king's presence, and stood before the king.

29 And the king sware, and said, As the Lord liveth, that hath redeemed my soul out of all distress,

30 Even as I sware unto thee by the Lord God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day.

31 Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the earth, and did reverence to the king, and said, Let my lord king David live for ever.

32 And king David said, Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride upon mine own mule, and bring him down to Gihon:

34 And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel: and blow ye with the trumpet, and say, God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and sit upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead: and I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, Amen: the Lord God of my lord the king say so too.

37 As the Lord hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.

38 So Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took an horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; and all the people said, God save king Solomon.

40 And all the people came up after him; and the people piped with pipes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

41 And Adonijah, and all the guests that were with him, heard it, as they had made an end of eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, Wherefore is this noise of the city being in an uproar?

42 And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came: and Adonijah said unto him, Come in; for thou art a valiant man, and bringest good tidings.

43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS I.—David had in great degree the success and the consolations of religion in his old age. In addition to vigour of intellect, he had vigour of grace. He traced up all his deliverances—and they were numerous—to God alone. God was with him in all his afflictions, and, at last, God delivered him out of them all. The rebellious and ambitious Adonijah did everything in his power to prevent Solomon from sitting on the throne of Israel; but all in vain. The rulers of the Jews used every effort—yea, earth and hell united, strove to prevent Jesus from filling the mediatorial throne; but all in vain. He hath ascended up on high; he has led captivity captive; and he now fills his mediatorial throne in the heavens, and receives the homage and adoration of countless myriads of saints and angels. David could not live for ever. His ashes repose with his fathers. His throne and dynasty have ceased to exist. The royalty of the tribe of Judah is no more! Jesus, the root and offspring of David, lives—he lives for ever. He is the resurrection and the life. His throne can never be overturned. His name shall endure for ever!

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of angels and saints, God and Father of our Lord and Mediator Jesus Christ, thou art the high and lofty one who inhabitest eternity and its praises; thy name is holy, and thou dwellest in the high and holy place. We, O Lord, are thy humble petitioners. We are humble in circumstances and state, O that we may be humble in heart, and contrite and penitent in spirit; then shall we enjoy the fulfilment of thy promise, to dwell with humble and contrite spirits, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of contrite ones. We come unto thee, for we are encouraged by thy merciful invitations; we come unto thee, for we are constrained by our own necessities. We bow before thee, confessing our sins, and acknowledging that we are the chief of sinners. With thy servant may we exclaim, with penitential sincerity and believing joy, 'This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners, of whom we are the chief. We bow before thee, O Lord, thankful to acknowledge thy mercies, and our unworthiness of the smallest tokens of thy goodness. We bow before thee, O Lord, earnestly to supplicate mercy and grace to help in every time of need.

We desire with grateful hearts as a family to approach thy sacred presence. We thank thee that we have been preserved during the past night, and that we are now introduced by the hand of our Divine Mediator into the gracious presence of a prayer-hearing God. What shall we render to the Lord for all his benefits toward us! We will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord.

Give thy blessing, O Lord, in connection with the reading of the Holy Scriptures. May the usurpation of Adonijah remind us of far more formidable and dangerous usurpers, who are constantly attempting to obtain the possession of our souls. Preserve us, O Jesus, thou captain of our salvation, from the usurpation of Satan, the world, and our own lusts.

May we never see our dear children the subjects of depraved passions. Graciously defend them and our servants from the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life.

Great Immanuel, we rejoice in thy royal, mediatorial, and Divine honours. Thou art the anointed king of Zion, and thou wilt subdue all nations and kings under thee. Thou art proclaimed King. The arches of heaven have re-echoed with the gracious proclamations! Thou art crowned with glory, honour, and immortality. As joyful multitudes went forth to see Solomon, to see the royal crown upon his head, may we by faith go forth and see thee our Divine Solomon wearing thy glorious crown, placed upon thy head on the day of thine espousals, and on the day of the gladness of thine heart.

We humbly seek thy grace, to perform the duties and overcome the temptations of the day. Graciously hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thy humble petitioners, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne. Amen.

PROVIDENCE.

Alfred. Longfield. Alie Street.

L. M.

- 1 HIGH in the heavens, eternal God!
Thy goodness in full glory shines;
Thy truth shall break through every cloud
That veils and darkens thy designs.
- 2 For ever firm thy justice stands,
As mountains their foundations keep;
Wise are the wonders of thy hands;
Thy judgments are a mighty deep.
- 3 Thy providence is kind and large,
Both man and beast thy bounty share,
The whole creation is thy charge,
But saints are thy peculiar care.
- 4 My God! how excellent thy grace,
Whence all our hope and comfort springs:
The sons of Adam, in distress,
Fly to the shadow of thy wings.

Watts, Ps. 36.

ACTS XXVIII.

St. Paul at Melita.

AND when they were escaped, then they knew that the island was called Melita.

2 And the barbarous people shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold.

3 And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand.

4 And when the barbarians saw the venomous reptile hang on his hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffereth not to live.

5 And he shook off the reptile into the fire, and felt no harm.

6 Howbeit, they looked when he should have swollen or fallen down dead suddenly: but, after they had looked a great while, and saw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and said that he was a god.

7 In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius; who received us, and lodged us three days courteously.

8 And it came to pass, that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever, and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9 So, when this was done, others also, which had diseases in the island, came and were healed:

10 Who also honoured us with many honours; and when we departed, they laded us with such things as were necessary.

11 And after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose sign was Castor and Pollux.

12 And landing at Syracuse, we tarried there three days.

13 And from thence we fetched a compass, and came to Rhegium: and after one day the south wind blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli:

14 Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven days: and so we went toward Rome.

15 And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii Forum, and The three taverns: whom, when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard: but Paul was suffered to dwell by himself, with a soldier that kept him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVIII.—All who were in great peril in the ship with Paul the Apostle escaped: not one perished. Great must have been their joy and thankfulness when they stood upon the rocky shores of Melita, and found that not one of them had perished in the waters of the great deep. Great were the dangers to which they were exposed: by the especial care and protection of Providence they all escaped. There was, at least, one wrestling, praying saint in the midst of them; and in answer to his prayers they were all preserved, and escaped a watery grave. How true!—"Praying breath was never spent in vain!" The dangers of the deep, and the perils of shipwreck, are nothing compared with those awful spiritual dangers which the poor sinner escapes when he flees to Jesus, and obtains deliverance from sin, Satan, the world, the law as a covenant, and the miseries of hell. O may that deliverance be ours! Amen.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as a God of mercy, and we praise thee for all those manifestations of mercy which thou hast shown to thy people in circumstances of suffering and danger. In all the sorrows of thy people, thou hast never forsaken them. Though the Lord cause grief, yet will he have compassion, according to the multitude of his mercies. What reason have we to say when we think of thy mercy, How kind are thy compassions, Lord! how slow thine anger moves! but soon he sends his pardoning word to cheer the souls of those who are the objects of his mercy.

Innumerable are the mercies, O Lord, which thou hast conferred upon us. From our birth to the present moment, the history of our lives has been a history of thy continued mercies. Above all the mercies we have received, we desire more especially to thank thee for spiritual mercies. We thank thee for the means of grace, for the Holy Word, and for thy blessed day. If any of us have been called to be sharers of thy saving grace, we would sing aloud of thy mercy, and would exclaim, O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever. Blessed be God, who hath not turned away my prayer nor his mercy from me!

Lord, suffer none of us to despise thy mercy. Long thou hast called upon us by thy word and providence, to flee to Jesus, the true city of refuge. Suffer us not to resist the kind and pressing calls of mercy. Convince us that, if we will not hear the kind call of thy mercy, we shall be compelled to hear the alarming thunder of thy justice; and that, if we refuse to be saved in thy love, we must submit to be destroyed in thine anger.

Lord, deliver our dear children from hardness of heart. Touch their hearts by Divine grace, that they may see their true state—their sin, their danger; and open their hearts to admit Jesus and his grace.

Have mercy upon us as a family, a congregation, and a nation. We have reason to mourn over our abuse of our great privileges, and have just cause to lament that in many cases we are far exceeded by heathens themselves. God forbid it should be said of us, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon, in the day of judgment, than for you. May we remember the hospitalities of the pagans of Melita to Paul and those who accompanied him, and may we feel ashamed that in kind affections and amiable feelings we should be so much surpassed by untutored pagans.

As Paul was preserved from the envenomed reptile which fastened on his hand, may we be preserved from the envy and malignity of all our enemies—from the evil of sin, and from Satan the crooked serpent. O heavenly Father, whatever plans they form for our injury, do thou mercifully defeat and overturn them all.

We present our thanks for the temporal and spiritual blessings which we have this day enjoyed; and we desire, under the influence of a grateful heart, to commit ourselves and all our relatives to thy care this night. Lord, hear these the imperfect supplications of our heart, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

DEATH LEADS TO IMMORTALITY.

Peters. Nainworth. Leeds. Marks.

- 1 DEATH'S but a path that must be trod,
If man would ever pass to God:
A port of calms, a state of ease,
From the rough rage of swelling seas.
- 2 As men who long in prison dwell,
With lamps that glimmer round the cell,
When'er their suffering years are run,
Spring forth to greet the glittering sun:
- 3 Such joy, though far transcending sense,
Have pious souls at parting hence;
On earth, and in the body placed,
A few, and evil years, they waste.

FARNELL.

1 KINGS II.

David's Death.

NOW the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying,

2 I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man;

3 And keep the charge of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself:

4 That the LORD may continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart, and with all their soul, there shall not fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

5 Moreover thou knowest also what Joub the son of Zeruah did to me, and what he did to the two captains of the hosts of Israel, unto Abner the son of Ner, and unto Amasa the son of Jether, whom he slew, and shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war upon his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet.

6 Do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that eat at thy table: for so they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

8 And, behold, thou hast with thee Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, which cursed me with a grievous curse in the day when I went to Mahanaim: but he came down to meet me at Jordan, and I swore to him by the LORD, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword.

9 Now therefore hold him not guiltless: for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but his hoar head bring thou down to the grave with blood.

10 So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David.

11 And the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.

41 And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again:

42 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, Did I not make thee to swear by the LORD, and protested unto thee, saying, Know for a certain, on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, that thou shalt surely die? and thou saidst unto me, The word that I have heard is good.

43 And king Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD for ever.

44 So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; which went out, and fell upon him, that he died. And the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS II.—David was deeply impressed with the near prospect of the termination of his life and reign, and of his entrance into that heaven of which he wrote and sung so sweetly, "In thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand are pleasures for evermore." It is appointed for men once to die; and they are wise who think daily of that appointed day, and who daily look to Jesus, the Conqueror of death, to deliver them from the sting of death. Like David, pious parents, especially on their dying bed, feel anxious and earnestly pray that their offspring may dedicate themselves to Christ, and devote their persons and their all for advancing the interests of his kingdom. "The wages of sin is death!" In the prophetic denunciations of David against his enemies, and which were literally fulfilled in their disgraceful fatal end, we have a solemn illustration of this serious truth recorded by the Apostle's pen!

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, what are we, that we are permitted to take thy holy name into our polluted lips! what are we, that we are permitted as petitioners to approach thy throne, and present our supplications before thee! what are we, that we are allowed to enjoy fellowship with thee, the king eternal, immortal, and invisible! We desire to be lost in wonder, love, and praise, when we think that worms of the dust such as we, are admitted to the enjoyment of privileges so transcendent and great.

We have now read of the death of David thy servant, a king of great piety, celebrity, and power. O Lord, the power of the mightiest of earthly princes is abject weakness compared with thine; and the duration of their government is only a passing dream, when compared with the eternal and undisturbed continuance of thy reign. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth or the world, even from everlasting to everlasting thou art God. O Lord, our God, we would rejoice in thy government. O Jesus our Saviour, we would rejoice in thy reign as King of Zion.

Sanctify to our minds what we have now read of the last moments of the man according to God's own heart. May the graces which adorned him adorn the mind of all who are invested with rule and authority in these lands, and in all lands. Like him, may they be men of prayer, zealous for the honour of God, and anxious for the prosperity of thy Church.

We implore the influences of thy promised Spirit, that we may be enabled to follow the counsels which the expiring David delivered to Solomon, his successor and son. Make us strong in the Lord.

Make our beloved children and servants strong in the Lord; strong to subdue their passions and lusts, strong to run the Christian race, and strong to fight the battles of the Lord of hosts.

Holy Saviour, make us strong in thy strength, and wise in thy wisdom. In every duty, in every difficulty, and in every part of our journey to eternity, may we quit ourselves like men, and be strong. Instead of being discouraged at our own weakness, may we be encouraged by the power of thy gracious omnipotence.

Lord, prepare us for our latter end. When we shall be gathered with our fathers, may our departure resemble that of David; may we fall asleep in the arms of redeeming love, and exchange the clay tabernacle for the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Graciously receive the expressions of our thankfulness for the mercies of the past night, and assist and prosper us in all the duties of the day.

Hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, who lived and was dead, and is alive for evermore. Amen.

CHRIST OUR HOPE.

Charity. Sherburne. Uverston.

L. M.

- 1 O GOD of grace and righteousness,
Hear and attend when I complain;
Thou hast enlarged me in distress,
Bow down a gracious ear again.
- 2 Ye sons of men, in vain ye try
To turn my glory into shame;
How long will scoffers love to lie
And dare reproach my Saviour's name?
- 3 Know that the Lord divides his saints
From all the tribes of men beside;
He hears the cry of penitents,
For the dear sake of Christ that died.
- 4 When our obedient hands have done
A thousand works of righteousness,
We put our trust in God alone,
And glory in his pardoning grace.

Watts, Ps. 4.

ACT'S XXVIII.

Paul preaching in Rome.

AND it came to pass, that after three days, Paul called the chief of the Jews together: and when they were come together, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans.

18 Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.

19 But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Cæsar; not that I had ought to accuse my nation of.

20 For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you: because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

21 And they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judæa concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came shewed or spake any harm of thee.

22 But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against.

23 And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening.

24 And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

25 And when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers,

26 Saying, Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive:

27 For the heart of this people is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed: lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

28 Be it known therefore unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it.

29 And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves.

30 And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, 31 Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ACTS XXVIII.—It is an evident and satisfactory mark of grace when no outward circumstances, however unpropitious, indispose us to promote the great interests of the Gospel of Christ. We find some resemblance between the life of Jesus, and that of his faithful servant, the Apostle of the Gentiles. Though there was no cause of death found in Paul, the Jews wished to put him to death. Though there was no cause of death found in Jesus, the Jews put him to death. In both cases, the envy and malice of the Jews were deadly and murderous. How infinitely honourable and dignified was the position of the great Apostle, in being bound with a chain for the sake of Christ, by whom his soul had been set at liberty from the bondage of sin, of Satan, of prejudice, and of bigotry. Are we among the number of those whom Jesus has set free?

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father, we acknowledge and adore thee as infinitely righteous and holy. All the acts of thy government, whether in reference to the world or the Church, are acts of wisdom and justice. We rejoice that all thy faithful servants who have been unjustly treated by men and by human judges shall be publicly acquitted by thee before an assembled universe, at the last day. All thy ways are judgment; thou art a God of truth and without iniquity; just and right art thou. Thy right hand is full of righteousness. Righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne. Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is truth.

We adore thy wise sovereignty, in permitting thine apostles and saints to suffer unjustly at the hands of wicked men; and we bless thee that all these sufferings have been overruled for good; and we thank thee that thy servants have been enabled to look beyond the storms of the present life, to the peaceful calm of heaven, where a rest remaineth for the people of God. In all our sufferings for Christ, may we remember his sufferings for us; in all our sufferings for Christ, may we think of the blessedness of the celestial state, the rivers of immortal pleasure which flow from the throne of God and the Lamb.

As Paul communicated an account of his unjust sufferings to his brethren in Rome, may we be instructed to value and improve the communion of the saints. Give us grace to communicate with freedom and prudence to those who are journeying with us to the heavenly world an account of our sufferings, temptations, perplexities, and sorrows, that we may enjoy the benefit of their sympathy, their counsel, and their prayers. Thus may we bear one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ.

Preserve our dear children from those associates whose example and counsel will rather hinder than promote their journey to heaven. O may they seek as their associates those who bear the image and adorn the Gospel of Christ.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the HOPE OF ISRAEL. We thank thee for the promised Messiah, in whom ancient Israel hoped, and for whom they waited in earnest expectation for a long succession of ages. May Jesus be the anchor of our hope in the day of trial, the day of temptation, and the day of death. O for a lively faith to lay hold on Jesus as the sure anchor of our hope! While thy servant Paul was bound with a chain for the hope of Israel, graciously impart to us and our beloved relatives that hope of Israel, even a lively faith in Jesus, the true anchor of our hope; then we shall be effectually set free from the chains of sin and the fetters of guilt.

We present our grateful acknowledgments for the blessings of thy providence and grace afforded during the past day. May we lie down to rest, exercising vigorous faith and lively hope in Jesus, our Redeemer and Advocate. Lord, hear our imperfect prayers, and forgive our aggravated offences, for Jesus' sake, the faithful and true Witness. Amen.

- 1 COME, my soul, thy suit prepare,
 Jesus loves to answer prayer;
 Jesus who hath bid thee pray
 Cannot, will not say thee nay.
- 2 Thou art coming to a King,
 Large petitions with thee bring;
 Such his grace, his bounty such,
 None can ever ask too much.
- 3 Lord! I come to thee for rest,
 Take possession of my breast;
 There thy blood-bought right maintain,
 There without a rival reign.

I KINGS III.

Solomon praying for Wisdom.

AND Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt, and took Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David, until he had made an end of building his own house, and the house of the LORD, and the wall of Jerusalem round about.

2 Only the people sacrificed in high places, because there was no house built unto the name of the LORD, until those days.

3 And Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the statutes of David his father: only he sacrificed and burnt incense in high places.

4 And the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that was the great high place: a thousand burnt offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

5 In Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee.

6 And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David my father great mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day.

7 And now, O LORD my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child; I know not how to go out or come in.

8 And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

9 Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

10 And the speech pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing.

11 And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern judgment;

12 Behold, I have done according to thy words: lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee.

13 And I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both riches, and honour: so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.

14 And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as thy father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days.

15 And Solomon awoke; and, behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt offerings, and offered peace offerings, and made a feast to all his servants.

REFLECTIONS UPON I KINGS III.—Alliances and friendships formed with the ungodly by those who are the partakers of grace, never fail to prove snares to their souls. When we think of the wisest of men and of princes falling into this sin, we have indeed reason to exclaim in the language of his holy and inspired father, "Lord, what is man?" While the volume of eternal truth gives a faithful account of the graces and excellences of God's saints, it is also faithful in pointing out their blemishes and faults: and if we read it with conscientious attention and application, we shall not fail to see that it furnishes a most faithful and minute picture of our own hearts. What an ornament, what an inheritance, what an honour is wisdom! May our souls be captivated with its loveliness, and charmed with its excellence. May we seek it as silver, and search for it as for hidden treasures. May our prayers rise daily to the heavenly throne, that our God and Saviour may send down upon us this blessing from above.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art he who fillest the hungry with good things, whilst the rich are sent empty away. In approaching thy throne, may we be among the number of those who are hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and who shall be filled. We desire, on the morning of this day, to approach thy throne under the sensible impression of our need of spiritual blessings and of Divine grace. We feel our need of temporal blessings for our bodies this day: O that we were equally sensible of our need of spiritual blessings for our souls! We rejoice that thou hast promised that such as come unto thee weary and heavy laden, thou wilt give them rest. We plead the fulfilment of thy promise. Holy Spirit, teach and enable us to hunger and thirst after pardoning mercy, rejoicing that we shall not be sent empty away. Teach us to hunger and thirst after sanctifying and comforting mercy, rejoicing that we shall not be sent empty away. May we long for Christ and spiritual blessings more than for our natural food; and may we desire the experience of thy favour and love far more than the esteem and friendship of the most affectionate of earthly relations.

We thank thee that we are brought in safety to another day, and that a kind and special Providence mercifully watched over us during the helpless hours of sleep. Every morning we awake may we remember the great end of our existence, and may we make some progress this day on which we have entered in knowledge of Divine things, in holiness, in the mortification of the flesh, and in glorifying our God. Let not this be a lost day, but may we redeem the time, seeing the days are evil. Lord, give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may walk before thee in truth, in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart. We seek from our God holiness of heart and holiness of life. May we have the inward experience of thy love, and may we outwardly manifest the powerful influence of thy grace. We come to thee as Solomon did, and we pray for wisdom. As to our knowledge, experience, and attainments, we are but little children, and we would therefore ask an understanding heart. Lord, give us thy heavenly light, by which we shall become acquainted with ourselves, by which we shall discern the glory of all thy perfections shining so pre-eminently in Jesus Christ, and by which we shall see wonderful things in thy law.

Inspire the minds of our children with an ardent thirst for saving wisdom and Divine knowledge. Like David's son, may they not seek for themselves riches nor length of days, but may they ask for a wise and understanding heart.

We thank our God for the Holy Scriptures, and the ordinances of religion, which are the means of saving wisdom, and we praise thee for the promise of the Holy Ghost, by whose grace these means are rendered effectual to the soul.

Lord, hear these our humble and imperfect prayers, only for the sake of Jesus, who shed his blood for us. Amen.

THE APOSTLES' COMMISSION.

Cottage. Triumphant. Wareham.

L. M.

- 1 GO preach my Gospel, saith the Lord,
Bid the whole earth my grace receive;
He shall be saved that trusts my word,
He shall be lost that won't believe.
- 2 I'll make your great commission known,
And ye shall prove my Gospel true,
By all the works that I have done,
By all the wonders ye shall do.
- 3 Go heal the sick, go raise the dead,
Go cast out devils in my name;
Nor let my prophets be afraid,
Though Greeks reproach, and Jews blaspheme.
- 4 Teach all the nations my commands;
I'm with you till the world shall end;
All power is trusted to my hands,
I can destroy, and I defend.

WATTS, 128, B. 1.

ROMANS I.

Paul's Mission.

PAUL, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God,

2 (Which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy scriptures,)

3 Concerning his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, which was made of the seed of David according to the flesh;

4 And declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead:

5 By whom we have received grace and apostleship for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name:

6 Among whom are ye also the called of Jesus Christ:

7 To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints: Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.

9 For God is my witness, whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers.

10 Making request, if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God to come unto you.

11 For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established;

12 That is, that I may be comforted together with you by the mutual faith both of you and me.

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you, (but was let hitherto,) that I might have some fruit among you also, even as among other Gentiles.

14 I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians; both to the wise, and to the unwise.

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS I.—How delightful and encouraging it is to know and believe that Jesus, who is the depositary of all wisdom and grace, is the king and head of his Church; and that offices and ordinances which are necessary for the maintenance of the truth, and for the interest of his Church, originate in him, and are appointed by him! Exalted was that place which Jesus filled in the heart and affections of the holy Apostle. He never mentions his name, or speaks of his works of mercy and grace, without testifying that love to his Lord, of no ordinary kind, glowed in his bosom. Let each one of us ask, as under the discerning eye of an omniscient God, "What think I of Christ?" Ever may Jesus be to us the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely. What a blessed example the Apostle presents before us in his love to the brethren! May we bear some resemblance to him in the possession and exercise of this peculiarly blessed and heavenly grace! Then, by our love to the brethren, we shall know that we have passed from death to life. Are we the children of God? Then we will highly value the communion of the saints. If we delight in their fellowship on earth, it is an evidence that we shall enjoy their society in heaven. Numerous are the interruptions of the fellowship of saints here below. But when they reach their heavenly home, they shall meet to part no more for ever. These words greatly delighted the heart of the Apostle in the midst of all his afflictions, and they greatly delight us: "We shall be ever with the Lord."

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, enable us to enter into thy sacred presence, under a deep and adoring impression of thy love, which passeth all knowledge and conception. Truly, thy goodness shines in all thy works; but when we turn our attention to the gift of thy well-beloved Son, and when we think of what has been accomplished by his atonement and intercession, we see the goodness, mercy, and love of our God shining with pre-eminent brightness and glory. O that, in approaching thy throne, we felt a portion of that adoring astonishment of Divine love manifested in Jesus which Paul the Apostle of the Gentiles felt! O the height and depth and breadth and length of the love of God, in sending his Son into the world, and in giving him up to the death for us all! May this unexampled manifestation of mercy enkindle in our hearts that flame of admiration, love, and praise, which shall continue and increase for ever and ever. As a family we would now sing, Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, and good will towards men!

We thank thee, O thou King of Zion, for raising up from the midst of the Jewish church Saul of Tarsus, to be the apostle of the Gentiles, to be one of the most extensively successful heralds of the Gospel, and to be one of the most highly honoured and useful penmen of the inspired volume. We praise thee for all that has been done through his instrumentality in extending the Gospel, and in enlarging the boundaries of the Mediator's kingdom. O inspire all thy ministering servants with a large portion of that noble, zealous, disinterested, and Divine spirit which so remarkably characterised thy servant. O may they imitate him in the matter of their preaching! May Jesus, in his personality, his sonship, his incarnation, his atonement, his resurrection, and his intercession before the throne, be the chief subjects of their public instruction. May all thy professed servants receive abundantly out of thy fulness, and grace for grace; then they shall determine to know nothing among their people but Jesus Christ, and him crucified; then shall the earthen vessel be filled with the heavenly treasure, that the excellency of the power may appear to be of God, and not of man.

Bless to our offspring a preached Gospel. May we soon witness satisfying evidence that they have received grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

We would affectionately pray for all who are related to us, after the flesh; may we be related to them after the Spirit. May they and we possess the same Divine grace; then shall we be mutually comforted by each other's faith. Lord, communicate to all our minds a powerful desire of being useful to one another. Like Paul, may we be desirous to impart unto all our relatives and friends some spiritual gift, to the end they may be established.

Lord, forgive the sins and failings of this day, and accept our thanks for personal and domestic blessings. May we be encompassed by thy love this night. All we ask is in the name of our divine High-priest, Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRAYER FOR CHILDREN.

Honour. Hosam.

P. M.

1 GRACIOUS Lord, our children see,
By thy mercy we are free;
But shall these, alas! remain
Subjects still of Satan's reign?
Israel's young ones, when of old
Pharaoh threatened to withhold;
Then thy messenger said, No;
Let the children also go.

2 When the angel of the Lord,
Drawing forth his dreadful sword,
Slow, with an avenging hand,
All the first-born of the land;
Then thy people's doors he passed,
Where the bloody sign was placed;
Hear us, now, upon our knees,
Plead the blood of Christ for these!

1 KINGS III.

Solomon's wise Decision.

THEN came there two women, that were harlots, unto the king, and stood before him.

17 And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

18 And it came to pass the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

19 And this woman's child died in the night: because she overlaid it.

20 And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

21 And when I arose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear.

22 And the other woman said, Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

23 Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

24 And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

25 And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other.

26 Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

27 Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof.

28 And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged; and they feared the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS III.—There are no ruins to be compared with a soul in ruins! Such ruins appear affecting and peculiarly distressing when we see women, whose natures are susceptible of the most tender and amiable emotions and affections, sunk into the lowest state of human depravity and pollution; yet they are not beyond the reach of hope. Our Saviour states, what was illustrated by many examples, that even such enter into the kingdom of heaven sooner than scribes, pharisees, and hypocrites, with all their fair professions, being wolves in sheep's clothing, but inwardly ravening wolves, and having a name to live while dead. Solomon's decision in the case of the two degraded women, was an admirable display of early wisdom, which shone with such unparalleled lustre in the future period of his history and reign. The wisdom of Jesus shone with great brightness in the sentence pronounced upon the woman brought before him by hypocritical Jews: To her accusers he said, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone." To the woman he said, "Go, and sin no more."

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, God of grace, that, notwithstanding our vileness, unworthiness, ignorance, and guilt, we have constant and abundant encouragement to draw near to the throne of grace, and present our earnest, humble prayers. Though we are thine offending children, thou art saying to us, Seek ye my face. Our Father who art in heaven, we desire with our hearts to reply, Thy face, O Lord, will we seek. We praise thee that thou hast given an especial blessing to those who frequent the throne of grace. Blessed are they whom thou chooseth, and causeth to approach unto thee. We bless thee that we have found it good to draw near unto thee, for thou art gracious to them that seek thee; and thou hast never said to any of thy servants, Seek ye me in vain. What reason have we to rejoice that thou art rich in mercy to all them that call upon thee, to all that call upon thee in truth!

Bless to us the reading of the Scriptures. O graciously put thy laws into our minds, and write them in our hearts; and give us that lively faith in Christ which will lead us to see that a sentence of pardon is pronounced upon us, and that our sins and iniquities shall be remembered no more.

O teach our dear children the Divine lesson of prayer. May they begin their days with prayer, may they spend their lives in prayer; and when their mortal career terminates, they shall enter upon a life of praise beyond the grave.

What reason have we, O Lord, constantly to mourn over the depravity of our fallen nature! When we look around us, and see the multitudes who are serving and indulging their lusts to the ruin of their souls, what cause have we to mourn and weep over the extensive and deadly ravages of sin! Lord, have mercy on our depraved race, and hasten the arrival of that glorious day when the hearts of all the nations of the earth shall be turned unto thee, and when, agreeably to thy promise, there shall be new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Thy Word we have now read reminds us of our infant state, when, as feeble, helpless babes, we hung upon our mother's breast. Lord, we bless thee for preserving us in the infant period of our days. We thank thee that, in thy kind providence, we have survived those diseases peculiar to infancy, and by which thousands have been removed to an untimely grave. Glory to thy great name, O Jesus, thou didst not only appear in our nature, but thou wast actually born of a woman, and didst assume the feeble form of a weeping infant. We rejoice that the Church has been enabled for ages to sing triumphantly of thine infancy, Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government is upon his shoulders.

O Lord, as thou didst give wisdom to Solomon to decide respecting the babes, give wisdom to all our judges and magistrates to give righteous decisions.

Graciously accept of our thanks for the mercies of the past night. Bless our approach to thy throne of grace. Smile upon us this day in all our duties and engagements. For the sake of Jesus, we humbly implore the answer of our prayers and the acceptance of our persons. Amen.

BEDDOME.

ROMANS I.

The World without the Gospel.

FOR I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.

17 For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, 'The just shall live by faith.'

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness;

19 Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them.

20 For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse:

21 Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful: but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened.

22 Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools,

23 And changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things.

24 Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves:

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen.

28 And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient;

29 Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despitful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents,

31 Without understanding, covenant-breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful:

32 Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. I.—The Gospel is intrinsically glorious. It is a stream of life from the Divine Fountain of life. It is a collection of pure light emanating from the Sun of righteousness, who is the glory of the Church triumphant in heaven, and the light and blessedness of the Church militant on earth. How glorious also is the Gospel in its effects when applied by the Divine Spirit to the heart. It changes, morally and spiritually considered, the lion into the lamb, and the serpent into the dove. It makes the rebel a loving subject, the alien an affectionate son. It polishes the rude barbarian, and makes the proud philosopher an humble disciple at Jesus' feet. It makes children of wrath the children of the living God; it sets the captive free, and it makes the heir of hell an heir of heaven. O what a change! What a blessed, heavenly change! Paul loved the Gospel for what it is in itself, for the benefit it conferred on man, and for the glory which it brought to God. For these reasons, may the Gospel be the object of our admiration and the source of our delight!

PRAYER.

O LORD, how infinitely glorious art thou in holiness! When we think of the holiness of thy nature, thy purposes, thy laws, and thy throne, what reason have we to cry out in deep abasement, What is man, that he should be clean? and he that is born of a woman, that he should be righteous? Behold, God putteth no trust in his saints; yea, the heavens are not clean in his sight: how much more abominable and filthy is man, which drinketh iniquity like water! Shall mortal man be more just than God? Shall a man be more pure than his maker? Behold, he putteth no trust in his servants; and his angels he chargeth with folly; how much less in them that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, which are crushed before the moth?

We confess the dreadful depravity of our fallen nature, and we would lament the truth and justice of the frightful picture of human corruption so faithfully depicted in the portion of Scripture now read. We confess, as a family and as individuals, the wickedness, the covetousness, the maliciousness, and the envy of our hearts. We acknowledge, to our shame, that we have not only taken pleasure in the commission of sin ourselves, but have taken pleasure in the workers of iniquity. We would mourn over the malady of sin, which continues to overspread the whole human race. O send abroad, over the face of the earth, the purifying and healing waters of the Gospel of Christ. O send speedily that blessed Gospel which is the wonderful and gracious power of God to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. We thank God that the Gospel has been instrumental in the salvation of myriads, in turning their hearts from vanity and lies, and in directing their thoughts to God, to holiness, to heaven, and immortality. May each one in our family feel the illuminating, sanctifying, and saving influence of the Gospel of Christ. While that sacred light is shining around us, O may it shine within us. While its affectionate and urgent calls are addressed to us, under the high sanction of God's authority and love, suffer us not to resist the kind and merciful invitations.

O touch the hearts of our children with thy Divine and gracious power. Convince them, and our servants, of the solemn importance of an immediate acceptance of the offers of mercy; convince them of the danger of delay.

Look down with pity on such among us, and look with pity on such among our relatives and the congregation with which we are associated, as are hardened under the means of grace, and who have hitherto resisted the calls of mercy. Convince them that the wrath of God will be very particularly revealed against the ungodliness and unrighteousness of such transgressors. O suffer them not to slumber in cold indifference upon the brink of endless woe.

Bless to us, gracious God, the duties and events of the day; and, under a grateful sense of thine unmerited kindness, we would retire to rest this night, relying upon the mercy and promise of our God. Mercifully hear, and answer, and accept, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

1 DAVID rejoiced in God his strength,
Raised to the thrones by special grace,
But Christ the Son appears at length,
Fulfills the triumph and the praise.

2 How great is the Messiah's joy
In the salvation of thy hand!
Lord, thou hast raised his kingdom high,
And given the world to his command.

3 Thy goodness grants what'er he will,

Watts, Ps. 21.

I KINGS IV.

The Glory of Solomon.

SO king Solomon was king over all Israel.

20 Judah and Israel were many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, eating and drinking, and making merry.

21 And Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the river unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt: they brought presents, and served Solomon all the days of his life.

22 And Solomon's provision for one day was thirty measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, 23 Ten fat oxen, and twenty oxen out of the pastures, and an hundred sheep, beside harts, and roebucks, and fallowdeer, and fatted fowl.

24 For he had dominion over all the region on this side the river, from Tiphshah even to Azzah, over all the kings on this side the river: and he had peace on all sides round about him.

25 And Judah and Israel dwelt safely, every man under his vine and under his fig tree, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, all the days of Solomon.

26 And Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen.

27 And those officers provided victual for king Solomon, and for all that came unto king Solomon's table, every man in his month: they lacked nothing.

28 Barley also and straw for the horses and dromedarics brought they unto the place where the officers were, every man according to his charge.

29 And God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the sea shore.

30 And Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and all the wisdom of Egypt.

31 For he was wiser than all men; than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol: and his fame was in all nations round about.

32 And he spake three thousand proverbs: and his songs were a thousand and five.

33 And he spake of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon, even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall: he spake also of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes.

34 And there came of all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon from all kings of the earth, which had heard of his wisdom.

REFLECTIONS UPON I KINGS IV.—Extensive was the reign of Solomon. Christ, as God, reigns over the universe; and as Mediator, his kingdom shall extend from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. All the surrounding princes and nations paid tribute to Israel's king; and the joyful, prosperous day is destined to arrive, by heaven's immutable decree, when all nations, with their rulers and princes, shall pay their homage at our Saviour's feet. Solomon had astonishing resources at his command: in Jesus dwells all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. Far did the fame of Solomon's wisdom extend: the unerring and boundless wisdom of Christ fills saints on earth with wonder, and excites and calls forth the admiration and the praises of angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven. Great words of wisdom fell from Solomon's lips: grace is poured into Jesus' lips. His words are as ointment poured forth; they exhale the fragrance of heaven. His word is penetrating as the two-edged sword, and its brightness infinitely surpasses the glory of the firmament.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Immanuel, thou art the light of the world. Thou art the light of the visible universe, and the Creator of those orbs of brightness which rule the day and preside over the night. Thou art the light of the rational world, for thou didst communicate reason and understanding to angels and men. Thou art the light of the Church. Thou art the bright and morning star, and thou chasest away the clouds of pagan ignorance which cover the nations, and the clouds of natural ignorance, depravity, and folly, which overspread the minds of men. O thou Sun of righteousness, rise on our souls, and let each member of our family be brought under thy healing wings. Give us grace to refuse any longer to walk agreeably to the dictates of our own corrupted minds, but may we walk in the light of saving wisdom and grace, as thou, O Jesus, art in the light. Thus may we have fellowship with thee, the Father, and with thy Son Jesus Christ. We present before thee our sinful hearts, that they may be effectually purified by the renovating influences of the Holy Ghost. May we be the partakers of that blessed hope by which we shall purify ourselves even as thou art pure; and impart unto us that ardent love by which we shall exemplify practical godliness, and delight to run in the way of thy commandments.

We desire with unfeigned gratitude to present our thanksgiving for the mercies of the past night. On the morning of another returning day, enable us as a family and as individuals thus to dedicate ourselves to thee our God: Lord, we are thine, entirely thine, purchased and saved by Divine love; with all our hearts we would be thine, and own thy sovereign right to reign over us for ever.

Teach us to enter on the duties and encounter the difficulties of the day, under the delightful impression that we are thine, that we are no longer our own, but bought with love Divine.

Let a sacred and Divine influence attend what we have now read of the splendour, the power, the extent, and the wisdom of the reign of Solomon. O Jesus, we rejoice in thy boundless and unerring wisdom, compared with which the wisdom of Solomon is less than a ray of light. Lord Jesus, impart to us of the stores of thy wisdom. Give increasing degrees of wisdom to all thy ministering servants throughout the world. Smile on those young men who are candidates for the holy ministry, and make them wise in all the blessed and glorious mysteries of thy cross and kingdom. We pray, O Jesus, for the extension of thy kingdom. We long for the day when all nations shall bow before thy sceptre, and enjoy the unspeakable benefits of thy blessed government. Great were the prosperity and happiness of the subjects of King Solomon; but, O how blessed and happy shall the nations be, great Immanuel, when thy reign overspreads the earth! Hasten that glorious day!

Bow the hearts of our dear children and domestics before thee; may they touch thy golden sceptre, and live for ever.

These our prayers we present before a prayer-hearing God, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

GOD'S PATIENCE PRODUCING REPENTANCE.

Colchester. Webster's. Wantage. Bangor. C. H.

- 1 AND are we sinners yet alive?
And do we yet rebel?
'Tis boundless, 'tis amazing love,
That bears us up from hell.
- 2 The burthen of our weighty guilt
Would sink us down to flames,
And threatening vengeance rolls above,
To crush our feeble frames.
- 3 Almighty goodness cries, Forbear,
And straight the thunder stays;
And dare we now provoke his wrath
And weary out his grace?
- 4 Lord, we have long abused thy love,
Too long indulg'd our sin;
Our aching hearts e'en bleed to see
What rebels we have been.

WATTS, 105, B. II.

ROMANS II.

Consequences of Sin.

THEREFORE thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things.

2 But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God;

6 Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

7 To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life:

8 But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath,

9 Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile;

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile;

11 For there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law;

13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.

14 For when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the meanwhile accusing or else excusing one another;)

16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel.

17 Behold, thou art called a Jew, and reatest in the law, and makest thy boast of God,

18 And knowest his will, and approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law;

19 And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,

20 An instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, which hast the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS II.—They are wise who daily sit as impartial judges upon their own hearts and lives, and who are more ready to condemn themselves than to judge and pass sentence upon others. Important, solemn truth—they who unjustly judge and condemn others, plainly testify that they themselves are condemned of God! Let such remember, that if they could ride upon the wings of the wind, or command the swiftness of the lightning, they cannot escape from Divine justice, when that awful day for retribution arrives! There are no sins which God punishes with more severity than those which are committed against his mercy, and there are no sins which more effectually harden the heart with impenitence and enmity. The rich man is accumulating earthly treasures; the philosopher is laying up stores of earthly wisdom and knowledge; the believer is laying up an inheritance in heaven. Alas! the Gospel despiser is heaping up wrath against a judgment-day!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the King eternal, immortal, and invisible, we adore thee in all the holiness and justice of thy nature. So holy art thou, that it is impossible for thee to do otherwise than to look on sin with the very utmost detestation and abhorrence. So just art thou, that it is impossible for thee to allow the wicked to escape without satisfaction. With thee, O Lord, there is no respect of persons. If thine enemies escape the punishment of their crimes in this life, thou hast fixed a day in thine immutable decrees when thou wilt judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. On that great and memorable day all thy decisions will be the decisions of wisdom and of equity. Thou, O Lord, wilt render to every man according to his deeds. Thou wilt confer eternal life on those who, amid all the trials and temptations of life, shall continue patiently in well-doing, and seek for glory, honour, and immortality. O let such animating and sublime prospects comfort and strengthen thy children, while encountering difficulties and dangers, while submitting to privations trying to flesh and blood, and while contending with enemies who are waiting for their halting and contriving their ruin. May our pious and aged relatives, and such as are in the furnace of affliction, find those blessed prospects peculiarly refreshing to their hearts, as cold water to a thirsty soul. Grant, O Lord, that they may experience, at the same time, the strengthening and the comforting influence of the Gospel of Christ.

If there are any among us living under the reigning power of sin, Lord, awaken us out of our dangerous slumbers. Suffer us no longer to despise the riches of thy goodness, forbearance, and long-suffering. If thy goodness has produced no softening, penitential effects on our heart, let our insensibility remain no longer. By the blessed power of the Spirit of God may thy goodness lead us to repentance. May many on the approaching Sabbath be melted into penitence, love, and thankfulness, under a deep and lively sense of thy patience and forbearance, in keeping them so long out of the miseries of the state of the lost, and in patiently inviting them so long to begin their journey to the mansions of the blessed.

Affect the minds of our dear children with the danger of trifling with thy mercy, and resisting the calls of thy grace.

Convince those who are contentious, and obey not the truth, but obey unrighteousness, that they are accumulating for themselves wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God. O convince them that, if they die impenitent, tribulation and anguish shall unavoidably come upon them. God forbid that such a doom should befall them. Before it is too late may they be persuaded to flee to Jesus from the wrath to come.

Accept of thanks for the mercies of the day and the blessings of the week. We commit ourselves to the gracious care of our God this night. Hear our prayer, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST AND THE CHURCH.

Alfred. Iford. Martin's Lane.

L. S.

- 1 THE King of saints, how fair his face,
Adorned with majesty and grace!
He comes with blessings from above,
And wins the nations to his love.
- 2 At his right hand our eyes behold
The queen arrayed in purest gold;
The world admires her heavenly dress,
Her robe of joy and righteousness.
- 3 He forms her beauties like his own,
He calls and seats her near his throne:
Fair stranger, let thine heart forget
The idols of thy native state.

Watts, Ps. 45, p. 11

PSALM LXXIV.

God's Care of his Church.

THOU didst divide the sea by thy strength: thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters.

14 Thou brakest the heads of leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness.

15 Thou didst cleave the fountain and the flood: thou driedst up mighty rivers.

16 The day is thine, the night also is thine: thou hast prepared the light and the sun.

17 Thou hast set all the borders of the earth: thou hast made summer and winter.

18 Remember this, that the enemy hath reproached, O Lord, and that the foolish people have blasphemed thy name.

19 O deliver not the soul of thy turtle-dove unto the multitude of the wicked: forget not the congregation of thy poor for ever.

20 Have respect unto the covenant: for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty.

21 O let not the oppressed return ashamed: let the poor and needy praise thy name.

22 Arise, O God, plead thine own cause: remember how the foolish man reproacheth thee daily.

23 Forget not the voice of thine enemies; the tumult of those that rise up against thee increaseth continually.

PSALM LXXV.

Destruction of the Proud.

UNTO thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks: for that thy name is near thy wondrous works declare.

2 When I shall receive the congregation I will judge uprightly.

3 The earth and all the inhabitants thereof are dissolved: I bear up the pillars of it. Selah.

4 I said unto the fools, Deal not foolishly: and to the wicked, Lift not up the horn:

5 Lift not up your horn on high: speak not with a stiff neck.

6 For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south.

7 But God is the judge: he putteth down one, and setteth up another.

8 For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same: but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them.

9 But I will declare for ever; I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

10 All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXIV., LXXV.—Jesus divided the Red Sea for his Church, and for the sake of his people he destroyed the royal and cruel crocodiles of Egypt. For the sake of his people Jesus passed through the stormy billows of the sea of Divine wrath, and encountered Satan, the crooked serpent, the leviathan of Tophet, and trampled him under his feet. He separated the literal waters of the river Jordan that his chosen ones might safely reach the promised Canaan. And he divides the waters of the Jordan of death, that his redeemed ones might safely and triumphantly enter upon the eternal, secure, and undisturbed possession of the heavenly Canaan, the object of their fondest hopes, and the fruit of their Saviour's purchase. Who made the glowing months of summer, with all the varied and abundant loveliness, verdure, and beauty with which they are accompanied? It was Jesus, who is both our Creator and Saviour. And he will never cease, as the Sun of righteousness, to shine upon his saints, the spiritual trees of his own planting, and he will cause them to grow up as among the grass, and as willows by the water courses. God takes particular notice of the enemies of his people. While they are contriving plans for afflicting God's saints, he is preparing for them a cup of wrath which, if they die impenitent, they must drink to the very dregs: "Let the wicked forsake their way!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, whom we approach and adore in Jesus' name, thou art the mighty God of Jacob. In past ages thou hast wonderfully and graciously interposed for the deliverance of thy Church, and for the confusion and destruction of thine enemies. Thou didst divide the sea by thy strength; thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters. Thou brakest the head of leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness. For thy people thou didst cleave the fountain and the flood: thou driedst up many rivers. Thou wilt continue thy mercy to all thy people, and wilt not forsake the weakest or the meanest of thy flock. Thou wilt guide them by thy counsel, and afterwards receive them to glory. When they come to the Jordan of death, O Jesus, with the mantle of thy righteousness thou wilt smite the waters; then shall they go hither and thither, and thy children shall go through dry shod. We praise thee, O Lord, for the unbounded love thou hast shown to thy Church, and for the endearing names thou hast given thy people in the Word of life. Thou hast called thy Church thy turtle-dove. Thou knowest the plans which thine enemies have formed for the injury of thy people. We would pray, in the language of the Psalmist, O deliver not the soul of thy turtle-dove unto the multitude of the wicked: forget not the congregation of thy poor for ever.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for the distinguished privileges we enjoy as a church and nation. We lament that we have not sufficiently valued our privileges. Justly mightst thou remove the candlestick of the Gospel from us, and give it unto a people more righteous than we. O Lord, deal not with us as our iniquities deserve.

We desire to think with compassion on those nations of the earth who have never yet heard the joyful sounds of salvation. O thou God of boundless mercy and compassion, have respect unto the covenant: for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty.

We thank thee, our God, for sparing us through another night, and for allowing us to witness the light of another Sabbath. The day is thine, the night also is thine: thou hast prepared the light and the sun. We pray for all thy faithful ministers, that by thy powerful Spirit they may be instrumental in plucking many as brands out of the burning.

May our dear children and servants improve by the ordinances of thy Word, and furnish pleasing evidences that their hearts are impressed with truth Divine.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

THIRTY-FIRST WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

GOD MIGHTY IN DEFENDING HIS PEOPLE.

Ebenezer New. Amaraham. James's.

c. m.

- 1 IN Judah God of old was known;
His name in Israel great;
In Salem stood his holy throne,
And Zion was his seat.
- 2 Among the praises of his saints
His dwelling there he chose;
There he received their just complaints
Against their haughty foes.
- 3 From Zion went his dreadful word,
And broke the threatening spear,
The bow, the arrows, and the sword,
And crushed the Assyrian war.

WATTS, Ps. 76.

PSALM LXXVI.

Jerusalem's Glory.

- IN Judah is God known: his name is great in Israel.
- 2 In Salem also is his tabernacle, and his dwelling place in Zion.
  - 3 There brake he the arrows of the bow, the shield, and the sword, and the battle. Selah.
  - 4 Thou art more glorious and excellent than the mountains of prey.
  - 5 The stout-hearted are spoiled, they have slept their sleep: and none of the men of might have found their hands.
  - 6 At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, both the chariot and horse are cast into a dead sleep.
  - 7 Thou, even thou, art to be feared: and who may stand in thy sight when once thou art angry?
  - 8 Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven; the earth feared, and was still,
  - 9 When God arose to judgment, to save all the meek of the earth. Selah.
  - 10 Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee: the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain.
  - 11 Vow, and pay unto the Lord your God: let all that be round about him bring presents unto him that ought to be feared.
  - 12 He shall cut off the spirit of princes: he is terrible to the kings of the earth.

PSALM LXXVII.

Earnest Prayer.

- I CRIED unto God with my voice, even unto God with my voice; and he gave ear unto me.
- 2 In the day of my trouble I sought the Lord: my sore ran in the night, and ceased not: my soul refused to be comforted.
  - 3 I remembered God, and was troubled: I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed. Selah.
  - 4 Thou holdest mine eyes waking: I am so troubled that I cannot speak.
  - 5 I have considered the days of old, the years of ancient times.
  - 6 I call to remembrance my song in the night: I commune with mine own heart: and my spirit made diligent search.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXVI., LXXVII.—God's glory shines throughout the whole universe; but it is more especially in his Church that God's perfections are displayed, as glorified in Christ, and honoured in the salvation of the objects of his love. God fills unbounded space with his presence, but it is only of Zion he saith, "Here will I dwell, for I have desired it." How great, how glorious the security of Christ's Church. Surely it is impossible the gates of hell can ever prevail against her, for Jesus dwells in the midst of her, and is around her as a wall of fire. Dreadfully confounded are Christ's enemies, when he rises against them to inflict upon them his merited judgment. Their efforts are instantly paralysed, and they sink into the horrors of endless despair! How different the circumstances of the faithful followers of Christ. They have fellowship with him in all their afflictions, and by pouring out their souls into his bosom by earnest supplications, they are animated with hope and filled with joy which the men of the world know nothing of.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art Israel's God. For many ages thy name was known in Judah, which is now cast off; and thy name was great in Israel, a people and nation whose minds are now blinded by the most alarming prejudice. Thy tabernacle was once fixed in Jerusalem, which is now trodden down of the Gentiles, and thy dwelling-place was found in Zion, which was once the mountain of thy glory, but on which Ichabod is now written. Lord, remember thy covenant with Abraham thy servant, and bring back his descendants to thy Church, from which they have been so long excluded. May the day soon arrive when the words of thy servant shall be seen, understood, and felt, in all their proper force: Now, if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their fullness? For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead?

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the manifestations of thy justice and power given in the punishment and destruction of the enemies of thy people. Thou art more glorious and excellent than all the mountains of prey. The stout-hearted were spoiled, they have slept their sleep; and none of the men of might have found their hands.

Most merciful God, if there are any among us living in a state of enmity against God, open our eyes to see our danger and our folly. Thou, even thou, art to be feared; and who may stand in thy sight, when once thou art angry? Lord, reconcile us to thyself by the death of thy Son.

Take the enmity of the hearts of our children, and destroy it. Enkindle in their souls that sacred fire of love to the Father, Son, and Spirit, which will fill their minds with peace, and make them the ornaments of thy Church. And may Divine love dwell in our servants' hearts, and may all around them see that they are the friends of God.

We thank our God, the gracious King of Zion, for all the good which has been accomplished this day by means of a preached Gospel. If sinners have been saved, if rebels have been subdued, if wanderers have been reclaimed, if backsliders have been restored, if the sorrowful have been comforted, if those who were bowed down have been graciously raised up, we ascribe to God the Spirit glory, honour, and praise. We thank God for the kindness manifested to thy servant our pastor, and to all thy loving and zealous servants throughout the Christian world. O Jesus, thou hast been lifted up this day in a preached Gospel; may many, agreeably to thy promise, be drawn unto thee, and thy mediatorial kingdom be much extended over the face of the earth.

Lord, comfort the afflicted and the aged. Give them greater degrees of a lively faith in Christ; then shall they renew their strength, and mount up as on the wings of eagles. Have mercy upon widows, fatherless, and orphans.

As a family, we would now solemnly dedicate ourselves to thee. Holy Spirit, teach us to vow and to pay unto the Lord our God: and may we bring presents of thanksgiving and praise unto thee, that ought to be feared.

Encompass us, and all our friends, with the arms of thy gracious protection through this night. Sanctify this family ordinance to every heart, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Intercessor's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE CHURCH IS GOD'S HOUSE.

Hoxton Chapel. Radiance. Chard.

L. M.

- 1 PRAISE ye the Lord, exalt his name,
While in his holy courts ye wait:
Ye saints that to his house belong,
Or stand attending at his gate.
- 2 Praise ye the Lord; the Lord is good:
To praise his name is sweet employ:
Israel he chose of old, and still
His Church is his peculiar joy.
- 3 Through every age the Lord declares
His name, and breaks the oppressor's rod:
He gives his suffering servants rest,
And will be known, the Almighty God.

Watts, Ps. 135, p. 1.

1 KINGS V.

Solomon preparing to build the Temple.

AND Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants unto Solomon; for he had heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father: for Hiram was ever a lover of David.

2 And Solomon sent to Hiram, saying,

3 Thou knowest how that David my father could not build an house unto the name of the Lord his God for the wars which were about him on every side, until the Lord put them under the soles of his feet.

4 But now the Lord my God hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent.

5 And, behold, I purpose to build an house unto the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spake unto David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name.

6 Now therefore command thou that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants: and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants according to all that thou shalt appoint: for thou knowest that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians.

7 And it came to pass, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly, and said, Blessed be the Lord this day, which hath given unto David a wise son over this great people.

8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have considered the things which thou sentest to me for: and I will do all thy desire concerning timber of cedar, and concerning timber of fir.

9 My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea: and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place that thou shalt appoint me, and will cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt accomplish my desire, in giving food for my household.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar trees and fir trees according to all his desire.

11 And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand measures of wheat for food to his household, and twenty measures of pure oil: thus gave Solomon to Hiram year by year.

12 And the Lord gave Solomon wisdom, as he promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and they two made a league together.

13 And king Solomon raised a levy out of all Israel; and the levy was thirty thousand men.

14 And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month by courses: a month they were in Lebanon, and two months at home. And Adoniram was over the levy.

15 And Solomon had threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains;

16 Beside the chief of Solomon's officers which were over the work, three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people that wrought in the work.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS V.—There is much wisdom in the inspired counsel recorded by the pen of Solomon, "Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not." The king of Tyre followed this wholesome maxim after the death of David. Jesus is our best friend at all times, and our chief comforter, especially when bereaved of earthly relatives. Solomon showed his wisdom as a lover of peace, and by cultivating peace, not only at home, but with all surrounding nations and kings. Peace is the true strength of families, of communities, of thrones, and of kingdoms. Israel was blessed under the wise government of Solomon, and as a nation rose to a pinnacle of unexampled wealth, power, and prosperity. Delightful emblem of the reign and kingdom of Christ!

PRAYER.

WE desire, in our family capacity, O Lord our God, to approach thy sacred and thy gracious presence under a deep and comforting sense of thy boundless mercy, flowing to sinful man through the channel of a Saviour's righteousness. We adore thee in the mysterious and infinite manifestation of thy grace, in giving thy beloved Son, that we might have life, and that we might have it more abundantly. O that each one of us could say in holy sincerity, And out of his fulness have we all received and grace for grace! We bless thee for the opportunities yesterday enjoyed of entering thy holy sanctuary, and of hearing the joyful sound. May we, by means of thy blessed ordinances, go from strength to strength, growing in grace, till at last we reach the heavenly Zion. May we not belong to the wicked, who know not at what they stumble; but may our path be that of the just, shining more and more unto the perfect day.

We lament that, under a preached Gospel, we are so barren and unfruitful—that we are making so little progress in humility, in knowledge, in love, in the mortification of our hateful passions, and in zeal for the glory of God. Alas that we are so much behind others in the Christian race, many of whom are our inferiors in years, and also whose privileges and advantages were much inferior to ours! Lord, we confess these things with shame. Lord, forgive us; and enable us more and more to put off the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and to put on the new man, which, after God, is created in righteousness and true holiness.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy providential care and goodness we have experienced during the past night, and that we now enjoy the distinguished privilege of uniting together in presenting our morning sacrifice. This day may we be enabled to live to the glory of our God; and may we take thy blessed Word for a lamp to our feet and a light to our paths.

Teach our dear children to prefer the dictates of this blessed book to the dictates of their own heart. May they and our servants embrace it as a Divine companion, and enjoy its fellowship till their eyes are closed in death.

Holy Spirit, may we learn important lessons from what we have now read. May the sympathy which a heathen prince showed to Solomon after his father's death teach us to feel for each other in our sorrows, and to sympathise with those who are weeping on account of the death of valuable departed friends. O Jesus, enable our bereaved friends to cleave to thee, the friend who died once, but who lives for ever. As thou didst give Solomon rest on every side, Lord, give us that holy rest of mind which arises from thy favour, and flows from an interest in Christ. As Solomon devoted his time and substance to the erecting a temple for Israel's God, O make us zealous for the extension of the Mediator's kingdom. May we form a part of the temple, the Church, which is the favoured residence of Zion's King.

Forgive, O Lord, our imperfect approach to thy presence, and hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, our once crucified but now glorified Redeemer. Amen.

THE CONTRITE HEART.

Salisbury Plain. Worcester. Abingdon.

C. H.

- 1 THE Lord will happiness divine
On contrite hearts bestow :
Then tell me, gracious God, is mine
A contrite heart or no ?
- 2 I hear, but seem to hear in vain,
In sensible as steel :
If aught is felt, 'tis only pain,
To find I cannot feel.
- 3 I sometimes think myself inclined
To love thee, if I could ;
But often feel another mind,
Averse to all that's good.

COWPER.

ROMANS II.

Vanity of outward Forms.

THOU therefore which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?

23 Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God?

24 For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written.

25 For circumcision verily profiteth, if thou keep the law: but if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore if the uncircumcision keep the righteousness of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision?

27 And shall not uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who by the letter and circumcision dost transgress the law?

28 For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh;

29 But he is a Jew which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God.

ROMANS III.

God true, and Man depraved.

WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision?

2 Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God.

3 For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar: as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged.

5 But if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I speak as a man.)

6 God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world?

7 For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory; why yet am I also judged as a sinner?

8 And not rather, (as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say,) Let us do evil, that good may come? whose condemnation is just.

9 What then? are we better than they? No, in no wise: for we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin;

10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS II., III.—When the teachers of Divine truth do not practise it—when their conduct is opposed to their instructions, they are exceedingly offensive to God and injurious to men. They kindle a fire, and then endeavour to extinguish it; they sow seed, and then prevent its growth; they introduce plants into the ground, and then pluck them up; they light the candle of truth, and then put it out. With what earnestness we should pray that God, by his Spirit, would sanctify his priests and clothe them with his salvation; then, all his saints would shout aloud for joy. Great were the privileges which the Jews possessed above all other nations: great was their abuse of those privileges. Numerous and great were the punishments which God inflicted upon them. Our privileges are much greater than theirs. May God prevent our abuse of them, and give us his grace to improve them! Amen.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, we humbly pray that thou wouldst inspire our minds with that reverence and holy confidence we ought to cherish in approaching the throne of God. O enable us to appear before God as creatures ought to feel in the presence of their Creator, and as children ought to feel when addressing their Father in heaven. We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as our merciful Father, in whom we live, move, and have our being. It is to thy tender care we owe our protection during the past day, it is to thy goodness we owe the constant supply of all our wants, and it is on thy blessed promise we depend for all the blessings we expect to enjoy for the time that is to come. We desire to give thanks unto thee, O God, our exceeding joy; every day we would bless thee, and thank thy name for ever and ever. To thy watchful and special providence we commit ourselves this night, that we may be defended from danger, and that we may be refreshed with sleep and repose. On the morning of another day may we rise from our beds in the exercise of reason and in the enjoyment of health, that we may run with alacrity and joy in the way of thy commandments.

Bless to us the reading of the Holy Scriptures, and particularly the searching truths which have now engaged our attention. Thy Word reminds us that we have been guilty of presumptuous sins, that we have reprov'd sins in others which we have overlooked in ourselves, and that we have sinned against the light of conscience and the light of Divine revelation. We praise thee that we have not been destroyed in our sins, which has been the case with thousands whose sins have been less aggravated than ours, and whose privileges and opportunities have been less numerous than ours. We adore thy gracious sovereignty, which has shown such unmerited forbearance to us, who so richly deserved to have been cast, long ere now, into the abodes of the lost. Thy Word which we have now read reminds us of our formality and hypocrisy. Too often we have satisfied ourselves with a name to live while we were dead, and with outward professions unconnected with inward sincerity. Lord, forgive these our sins, through the merit of our Saviour's sacrifice.

If there are any members of our family, or any among our beloved relatives, who have nothing of religion but the appearance, and no more of godliness but the profession, convince them of the sin and danger of an hypocritical state. Open their eyes to see that the hypocrite's hope shall perish; that his hope shall be cut off, and his trust shall be as the spider's web; that when he leans upon his house, it shall not stand; and even if he hold it fast, it shall not endure. O convince them that the joy of the hypocrite is but for a moment.

Lord, give to our dear children the blessed reality of Divine grace. At an early period may their hearts be adorned with holiness, and may Jesus sit upon the throne of their affections.

Forgive what thy pure eyes have seen amiss in our imperfect service. Hear our prayer, for the sake of Jesus, our Advocate and Redeemer. Amen.

GOD'S TEMPLE ON EARTH.

Cottage. Newport. New Sabbath.

L. M.

- 1 GOD in his earthly temple lays Foundations for his heavenly praise;
He likes the tents of Jacob well,
But still in Sion loves to dwell.
- 2 His mercy visits every house
That pay their night and morning vows;
But makes a more delightful stay
Where churches meet to praise and pray.
- 3 What glories are described of old!
What wonders are of Sion told!
Thou city of our God below,
Thy fame shall Tyre and Egypt know. WATTS. Ps. 87.

1 KINGS VI.

The Building of the Temple.

AND it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that he began to build the house of the LORD.

2 And the house which king Solomon built for the LORD, the length thereof was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits.

3 And the porch before the temple of the house, twenty cubits was the length thereof, according to the breadth of the house; and ten cubits was the breadth thereof before the house.

4 And for the house he made windows of narrow lights.

5 And against the wall of the house he built chambers round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple and of the oracle: and he made chambers round about:

6 The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

7 And the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was in building.

8 The door for the middle chamber was in the right side of the house: and they went up with winding stairs into the middle chamber, and out of the middle into the third.

9 So he built the house, and finished it; and covered the house with beams and boards of cedar.

10 And then he built chambers against all the house, five cubits high: and they rested on the house with timber of cedar.

11 And the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying,

12 Concerning this house which thou art in building, if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments to walk in them; then will I perform my word with thee, which I spake unto David thy father.

13 And I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel.

14 So Solomon built the house, and finished it.

15 And he built the walls of the house within with boards of cedar, both the floor of the house, and the walls of the ceiling: and he covered them on the inside with wood, and covered the floor of the house with planks of fir.

16 And he built twenty cubits on the sides of the house, both the floor and the walls with boards of cedar: he even built them for it within, even for the oracle, even for the most holy place.

17 And the house, that is, the temple before it, was forty cubits long.

18 And the cedar of the house within was carved with knops and open flowers: all was cedar; there was no stone seen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS VI.—The Church is Christ's spiritual temple. He is its Architect, Builder, and the glorious, secure, and immutable Foundation on which it rests. This noble edifice was begun on the very day, and in the very moment fixed by God's ancient and eternal decree. The temple was magnificent and capacious. How capacious is the Church! There is room and accommodation, provision and comfort for all who come. How capacious is the covenant of grace!—full of mercies to all who belong to this temple—as full as the ocean's bed is of the watery treasures with which it is filled. Costly were the materials of the ancient temple. One stone, one redeemed soul in Christ's spiritual temple, is more valuable than all the precious materials of that earthly temple, the most noble on which the sun of heaven ever shone.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, how inconceivable thy condescension in permitting such ignorant, polluted, and unworthy worms of the dust to approach thy blessed and gracious presence! It is an act of great condescension in thee, O Jehovah, to allow archangels to enjoy fellowship with thee: what must thy grace be, in allowing beings so inferior and so vile as we are to enjoy a privilege so distinguished! How incomprehensible thy kindness! Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight!

Thou hast been to us a Father, compassionate, tender, and gracious: thou hast borne with our ingratitude and rebellion; thou hast invited, entreated, and commanded us to come unto thee, notwithstanding our numerous denials, and presumptuous provocations; even now thou art knocking at the door of our hearts, and saying, If any man open the door, I will come in to him. O Lord, as a family, we take encouragement from all this, and we would surrender ourselves soul and body into thy hands, which have so long been extended towards us; and we implore thy grace, that we may never be left to depart from thee.

We thank thee for the renewed tokens of thy love we have experienced during the past night; and we beseech the communications of thy holy Spirit, that we may be enabled in every part, and in all the duties of the day, to glorify thy name. To thee, O Lord, we resign our souls and our bodies, that we may ever fear thee, and obey thy laws. Our hearts are thine; O take them, and accept the service of our hands.

We adore thy goodness, O Lord, in permitting a temple to be erected in the midst of ancient Israel, as thy visible residence among them. We rejoice that, though the Jewish temple has been long since demolished, thou the king of Zion still continuest in the midst of thy Church. Praise to thy holy name, that thou art saying respecting it, This is my rest, here will I dwell, for I have desired it. O Lord, may each one now before thee belong to thy spiritual temple.

By regenerating grace may our beloved children be separated from the rude quarry of nature; may they be polished by thy holy Spirit, and form a part of that noble structure of which Jesus is the chief corner-stone.

May all the members of this family, may all who are related to us by the bonds of friendship and of blood, may all who worship with us in thy sanctuary, be living stones in the Gospel temple. May they and we be built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone. O may we belong to that building which is fitly framed in Christ, and which groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord. Blessed God, let each one of us be made a temple of the Holy Ghost.

Hearer of prayer, forgive our offences, and accept our services, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

MAN'S GUILT, AND CHRIST'S RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Oldham. Oraven Chapel. Gainsboro'.

C. H.

- 1 VAIN are the hopes the sons of men
On their own works have built;
Their hearts by nature all unclean,
And all their actions guilt.
- 2 Let Jew and Gentile stop their mouths
Without a murmuring word,
And the whole race of Adam stand
Guilty before the Lord.
- 3 In vain we ask God's righteous law
To justify us now,
Since to convince and to condemn
Is all the law can do.
- 4 Jesus, how glorious is thy grace!
When in thy name we trust,
Our faith receives a righteousness
That makes the sinner just.

Watts, 94, B. I.

ROMANS III.

All the World guilty before God.

THERE is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.

12 They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

13 Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips:

14 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness:

15 Their feet are swift to shed blood:

16 Destruction and misery are in their ways:

17 And the way of peace have they not known:

18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19 Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God.

20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin.

21 But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets;

22 Even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe: for there is no difference:

23 For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;

24 Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:

25 Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God;

26 To declare, I say, at this time his righteousness: that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus.

27 Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay: but by the law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law.

29 Is he the God of the Jews only? is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also:

30 Seeing it is one God, which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith.

31 Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.

tion has escaped its ravages. As the inundation of waters covered the whole earth, so the inundation of sin has overspread the whole soul. It has struck the understanding, the soul's eye, with moral and spiritual blindness. It has converted the whole human race into an army of malicious rebels against God their Creator, their Father, and their Benefactor. The mouth which was formed for proclaiming his excellence and sounding his praise, it has made the estuary, the outlet of falsehood, anger, enmity, impiety, and blasphemy! It has made man the enemy of man, and rendered him more blood-thirsty than the hyena, and more cruel than the ostrich. It has stripped him of the image of God, and has engraven upon his heart in deepest lines the image of Satan, the deceiver and murderer of our race.

PRAYER.

WHAT are we, O Lord, that we are permitted to draw near unto thee, a holy and a righteous God, and call thee ours? Thou art infinitely and inflexibly just. With Elihu we will ascribe righteousness to our Maker. In all thy laws, in every part of thy government, in the judgments and calamities which have befallen guilty nations, in the miseries of the lost, but more especially in the sufferings of thy beloved Son, thou hast furnished illustrious displays of thy holiness, righteousness, and justice. Thy righteousness is very high. Righteous art thou, O Lord, and upright are thy judgments. Thy righteousness endureth for ever.

Bless to our souls the just and humiliating account we have now read of the depravity, guilt, and misery of man. May it be instrumental in promoting within us humility and repentance. Holy Spirit, enable us as a family to make sincere and penitential confession. O Jesus, we look up to thee, not only for the remission of sins, but for repentance on account of our transgressions and guilt. We confess, O Lord, the universal ignorance and folly of man, and acknowledge that, till Divine grace reach the soul, with all the attainments derived from human learning and philosophy, there is still none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. We confess that man in his natural state is living directly opposite to the great and noble end of his creation; for they are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. Thou didst furnish men with the blessed faculty of speech, that they might proclaim the praises of God, and utter expressions of kindness to their fellow-creatures; but, alas! they have made this faculty the vehicle of blasphemy, malignity, cruelty, and envy. Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips; their mouth is full of cursing and bitterness. We lament, O Lord, that the rising race so soon acquire the degrading art and habit of profaning the name of the living God.

Preserve our dear children from the destroying sin of cursing and swearing. Affect them with the thought, that it is the language of devils, that it is the language of hell.

With regard to ourselves, and with respect to mankind, we confess that we are all guilty before God; we have no power to burst asunder the fetters of our guilt; and we have no righteousness of our own, wherewith to satisfy offended justice. We have all sinned, and come short of the glory of God. O Jesus, we look to thy righteousness alone as the ground of our hope. O for that lively faith by which we shall sing for joy, We are justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ!

Accept of our thanks for the blessings of thy providence and grace enjoyed this day. May we lie down to sleep relying on the righteousness of our great High-priest, believing that we are justified by his blood. Hear these confessions and petitions, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. III.—How deplorable are the effects which sin has produced upon the whole man. No faculty, power, or affection

APPROACHING GOD THROUGH THE INTERCESSOR.

German Hymn. Edmester. Bath Abbey. P. 2.

- 1 GRACIOUS Lord, who stand'st between God the Judge and sinful man,
Thee we joyfully will hear;
Speak, divine Interpreter,
Speak whate'er he speaks to thee,
Then we shall obedient be,
Then our answering heart shall prove
All the law fulfilled in love.
- 2 Do according to thy will,
Answer all thy soul's desire;
Holy principles instil,
Breathes the awe thou dost require;
Grant an heart to fear my Lord:
Take this heart of stone away,
Let me tremble at thy word,
Only live thy word to obey.

C. WESLEY.

1 KINGS VIII.

Preparing to dedicate the Temple.

THEN Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto king Solomon in Jerusalem, that they might bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, which is Zion.

2 And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at the feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month.

3 And all the elders of Israel came, and the priests took up the ark.

4 And they brought up the ark of the Lord, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, even those did the priests and the Levites bring up.

5 And king Solomon and all the congregation of Israel, that were assembled unto him, were with him before the ark, sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

6 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubims.

7 For the cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark and the staves thereof above.

8 And they drew out the staves, that the ends of the staves were seen out in the holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are unto this day.

9 There was nothing in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place, that the cloud filled the house of the Lord.

11 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord.

12 Then spake Solomon, The Lord said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

13 I have surely built thee an house to dwell in, a settled place for thee to abide in for ever.

14 And the king turned his face about and blessed all the congregation of Israel: (and all the congregation of Israel stood;)

15 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which spake with his mouth unto David my Father, and hath with his hand fulfilled it, saying,

16 Since the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel to build an house, that my name might be therein; but I chose David to be over my people Israel.

17 And it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

18 And the Lord said unto David my father, Whereas it was in thine heart to build an house unto my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart.

19 Nevertheless thou shalt not build the house; but thy son that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS VIII.—The ark in the temple was an emblem and memento of the Divine and gracious presence. Its presence in that sacred structure was necessary for the observance of sacred ordinances, and to encourage the worshippers in presenting their sacrifices. The temple was nothing without the ark: the Church is nothing without Christ. The ark was the glory of the temple, and its richest furniture: Jesus is the glory of his Church, and its rich inheritance. The ark was brought into the temple with great joy: when the grace of Christ enters the soul, it is filled with peace and joy; and it is his presence which is the life and joy of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, our God and our Father in Christ, thou art the infinite Jehovah, whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain. Thou art seated upon the throne of providence. Though all thy dispensations are under the direction of unerring wisdom, yet to our dim and limited perception many of them are involved in impenetrable mystery. Thou, O Lord, dwellest in thick darkness. Clouds and darkness are round about thee. What reason have we, O Lord, as guilty, fallen creatures, to rejoice that, as the God of salvation, thou art surrounded with the brightest beams of grace! On thy merciful throne thou dost appear, smiling upon the children of men, and inviting the penitent and the humble to come and receive from thy hand the choicest blessings of thy love.

We thank our God for the return of the morning light, and that we have been so mercifully preserved during the silence, the darkness, and the helplessness of another night; and that we are allowed, before entering upon the temporal employments of another day, to lift up our eyes to thy throne, and plead for mercy through our Saviour's blood. Teach us to live this day under the impression and according to the direction of Divine truth; then shall we walk with thee, and preserve ourselves unspotted from the flesh.

Preserve our dear children from the snares and temptations of the day. Give them grace and diligence to treasure up that knowledge which will be useful for the present life; but, above all, may they and our servants treasure up that Divine knowledge which is necessary for eternity.

Bless to us what we have now read of the solemn and animating preparations which were made for dedicating the temple. May this teach us to take an increasing interest in the prosperity of thy Church, in the glory and enlargement of thy kingdom, and in the salvation of the souls of men. If it is thy will that any of us now in thy presence should ever be venerable for years, O may we be venerable for wisdom, and may our hoary hairs be adorned with piety. Have mercy on the elders and the aged in our churches. Make them examples of Christian patience, faith, cheerfulness, and hope.

Gracious God, as thy glory filled the temple when thy servant Solomon stood up to bless the people, O may thy spiritual glory fill our hearts and habitations, when we draw near to address thy Divine majesty. May the glory of thy grace and love fill thy sanctuary, when we assemble in thy public courts, to hear of Jesus, salvation, and immortality. May our morning sacrifice be accepted, and all the blessings we have petitioned received, for the sake of Jesus, our Mediator and Saviour. Amen.

- 1 PLUNGED in a gulf of dark despair
We wretched sinners lay,
Without one choerful beam of hope,
Or spark of glimmering day.
- 2 With pitying eyes, the Prince of grace
Beheld our helpless grief;
He saw, and (O amazing love!)
He ran to our relief.
- 3 O for this love let rocks and hills
Their lasting silence break,
And all harmonious human tongues
The Saviour's praises speak.

Our souls are all on flame,
Hosanna round the spacious earth

WATTS, 79, B. 11.

ROMANS V.

Justification.

THEREFORE being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ:

2 By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

3 And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience;

4 And patience, experience; and experience, hope:

5 And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.

6 For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly.

7 For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die.

8 But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

9 Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.

10 For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.

11 And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned:

13 For until the law sin was in the world: but sin is not imputed when there is no law.

14 Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression, who is the figure of him that was to come.

15 But not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

18 Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life.

19 For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous.

20 Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound:

21 That as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS V.—Faith, acceptance, forgiveness, holy tranquillity and peace, form a bright constellation in the firmament of the believer's heart, which afflictions may obscure, but which the greatest earthly calamities cannot remove from its place. Jesus said to his disciples, "I am the door!" Truly, he is the door by which we enter the building of mercy, and the city of salvation. He is the door by which we are admitted into the covenant of grace, and become the possessors of its sacred treasures. He is the door by which we have access to the throne of grace, before which we present our petitions, and enjoy delightful fellowship with the God of our salvation. What a difference betwixt the first and second Adam! Let us rejoice that the second has come to repair the ruins of the fall, and to deliver from the miseries of eternal death. Halle lujah!

PRAYER.

IN approaching thy blessed throne, O Lord God of hosts, we acknowledge that there is no other method of access but through Jesus, who is the way, the truth, and the life. Should we come before thee, O Lord, with burnt-offerings, and calves of a year old, thou wouldst not be pleased. If we came before thee with thousands of rams, and ten thousands of rivers of oil, thou wouldst not be pleased. Even if the first-born were presented for the transgression, and the fruit of the body given for the sin of the soul, thou wouldst not be pleased. Thou thyself hast found out the way, the only way by which access to thy throne can be obtained, even through the mediation of thine only-begotten Son. In that way, O Lord our God, we now draw near to thy gracious throne, and would prostrate ourselves as humble suppliants at thy feet.

We acknowledge the kindness we have experienced at thy hand in the various duties and engagements of the day. We praise thee that the streams of thy goodness, special and common, still continue to flow. When we are surrounded with the shades of darkness this night, may we be surrounded with thy perfections as our secure defence; and when our days and nights shall cease, may our disembodied souls awake amid the glory of the heavenly world, which is illuminated by the bright beams of the uncreated glory of God and the Lamb.

Holy Spirit, enable us to express the unfeigned thankfulness of our heart, that thine abundant grace has enabled us to answer the all-important question, How should man be just with God? From all eternity thou didst contrive the wondrous plan by which man might be just with God, through the infinitely meritorious righteousness of Jesus, thine only-begotten Son. O Jesus, thine incarnation, obedience, sufferings, and death form that righteousness by which we shall be just before God. Holy Spirit, we now earnestly implore thy grace, to give us that faith by which we shall come empty handed, and seek and receive that blessed righteousness by which we shall be justified from all things, from which we could never be justified by the law of Moses. As a family, bestow on each one of us that faith, by which we shall sing the triumphant language of the Apostle: Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Convince our dear children of their guilt, and of the necessity of the righteousness of Christ for their pardon and acceptance. O may we see them building on Jesus, the Divine foundation!

Have mercy on our aged and afflicted friends. Give them large measures of that Divine faith by which they shall look on all their bodily infirmities and sufferings as blessings in disguise, sent to prepare them for the joys of heaven. Teach them and us to glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope.

O heavenly Father, hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and sanctify these imperfect services, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Advocate. Amen.

GOD'S CONDESCENSION TO OUR WORSHIP.

Duke Street. Green's 100th. Rathwell.

- 1 THY favours, Lord, surprise our souls;
Will the eternal dwell with us?
What canst thou find beneath the poles
To tempt thy chariot downward thus?
- 2 Still might he fill his starry throne,
And please his ears with Gabriel's songs;
But the heavenly Majesty comes down,
And bows to hearken to our tongues.
- 3 Great God, what poor returns we pay
For love so infinite as thine!
Words are but air, and tongues but clay,
But thy compassion's all divine.

1 KINGS VIII.

Solomon's prayer in dedicating the Temple.

AND Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven:

23 And he said, LORD God of Israel, there is no God like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepst covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart:

24 Who hast kept with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him: thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

25 Therefore now, LORD God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him, saying, There shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit on the throne of Israel; so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me.

26 And now, O God of Israel, let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

27 But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded?

28 Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee to day:

29 That thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, My name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make toward this place.

30 And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, when they shall pray toward this place: and hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place: and when thou hearest, forgive.

31 If any man trespass against his neighbour, and an oath be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house:

32 Then hear thou in heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

36 Then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, that thou teach them the good way wherein they should walk, and give rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.

37 If there be in the land famine, if there be pestilence, blasting, mildew, locust, or if there be caterpillar; if their enemy besiege them in the land of their cities; whatsoever plague, whatsoever sickness there be;

38 What prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man the plague of his own heart, and spread forth his hands toward this house:

39 Then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and do, and give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for thou, even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men;)

40 That they may fear thee all the days that they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS VIII.—A king praying before the throne of grace, clothed with humility, animated with devotion, and deeply concerned for the glory of God and the interests of his Church, is a sight on which angels gaze with delight. Such kings are infinitely more honoured, engaged in such exercises, than when they are seated upon the throne of earthly majesty, arrayed in royal robes, and receiving the homage of nobles and princes. We must consider Solomon, in presenting his remarkable prayer in so remarkable a place, and on so remarkable an occasion, as typical of Jesus, our great intercessor, before the heavenly throne.

PRAYER.

MOST gracious and merciful God, we desire to address thee this morning in the language of thy servant Solomon at the dedication of thy temple: LORD God of Israel, there is no God like thee in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepst covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their hearts. As there is none like unto thee, O Jesus, may there be none in our hearts and affection allowed to occupy that place which is due to thee alone. We invite thee, O Saviour, to come by thy grace into our souls, and make them thy sanctified temple. As an evidence that we are thine, may we walk before thee this day with all our hearts. In our temporal calling, in all our relative duties, and in mingling with our friends, may we give evidence to all that we are in covenant with God, and that we are living in the fear of the Most High.

We adore our God, as the God, the king, the glory, and the defence of Zion. We praise thee that the history of thy Church and people in all ages furnishes a joyful answer to that question, Will God indeed dwell upon the earth? Glory to thy name, that thou dost indeed dwell on the earth with thy Church and people. The heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; and yet thou dost indeed dwell with thy people. As a family give us thy gracious presence, and as a congregation give us thy gracious presence.

We thank thee, O LORD, for the wisdom and piety thou didst give to Solomon, and which shone so pre-eminently in the building and dedication of the temple. Have mercy upon the nations of the earth, and bless them with righteous rulers. Deliver earthly princes and rulers from those vices which dishonour earthly power, and entail such misery on states and nations. May our seats of authority ever be established by mercy, justice, and judgment.

Blessed Jesus, exercise the gracious power of thy kingly office, and subdue to thyself the minds of our children. Give them faith to believe thy promises, and love to obey thy laws.

O let a spirit of grace and supplication be communicated to each one of us. May we see the blessings we indispensably need, and by faith may we earnestly seek them at the throne of grace. It is our privilege as a family, to be permitted each morning and evening to surround the family altar. May our love to this exercise increase: and may our faith be strengthened in God, who is the hearer of prayer; and in Jesus, through whose intercession our prayers shall come up before thee with acceptance. Looking to Jesus, the Intercessor above, we plead, Have respect unto the prayers of thy servants; O hearken unto the cry and the prayers which we thy servants present from day to day. Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place: and when thou hearest, forgive.

We thank thee for the care of a special Providence during the past night, and that we have been both preserved and enabled to present this our morning sacrifice. These our prayers we offer up in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

BELIEVERS DELIVERED FROM SIN.
Warrington. St. Lawrence Jewry. Winchester

L. M.

- 1 DO we not know that solemn word,
That we are buried with the Lord,
Baptized into his death, and then Put off the body of our sin?
- 2 Our souls receive diviner breath,
Raised from corruption, guilt, and death:
So from the grave did Christ arise,
And lives to God above the skies.
- 3 No more let sin or Satan reign
Over our mortal flesh again;
The various lusts we served before,
Shall have dominion now no more.

WARRE, 122, B. I.

ROMANS VI.

Dominion of Sin destroyed.

WHAT shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?

2 God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

3 Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?

4 Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:

6 Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

7 For he that is dead is freed from sin.

8 Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him:

9 Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

11 Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

13 Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.

14 For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 I speak after the manner of men because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity unto iniquity; even so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness.

16 For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness.

17 What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death.

18 But now, being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.

19 For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS VI.—They who abuse the glorious doctrine of grace for the purposes of licentiousness, show that they are the determined enemies of grace, that they are without grace, that they are removing themselves to the greatest distance from grace, that they are rendering their reception of grace most hopeless, and above all, that they are exposing their souls to the hottest thunderbolts of the Divine displeasure. They whose hearts revolt from the practice of sin, who mourn over the remains of sin in their own heart, and who long and pray to be completely and for ever delivered from the existence of sin in the soul, furnish satisfying and undoubted evidence that they are the possessors of grace, the regenerated sons of God, and the heirs of heaven. Such have the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and show that they are inheriting the rich and imperishable blessings, which are the wonderful fruits of Jesus' death. What a consolatory truth!—Christ died, was buried, rose from the dead, and ascended into heaven, as the Surety, and representative of his people! In this way he has secured for the objects of his love the blessings of salvation—namely, a new life, conformity to the Divine likeness, an untinged death, a blessed resurrection, and the glories of immortality.

PRAYER.

WE acknowledge thee, O Lord, as our Divine proprietor. Thou art our Creator and our preserver. Thou hast every claim upon us for our love and our obedience. We have reason to confess with shame that we have lived as if we were our own, and at our own disposal. We have often acknowledged thee as our king and our ruler; but we have reason with shame to confess that, in thousands of instances, we have not acted the part of loving and loyal subjects, but of obstinate rebels and offenders. We confess that we have laid aside thy wise and holy laws, and have followed the carnal desires of our foolish and corrupted hearts. We have often acknowledged that thou art goodness itself, that thou art a God of love, adorned with every amiable perfection, and therefore infinitely entitled to all the affections of our heart. Yet we have reason to confess, to our shame—O that we could confess with genuine evangelical repentance!—we have given our hearts to unworthy idols. Other lords and other gods have had the dominion over us. To this deceitful and unworthy world we have given our love, our care, our thoughts, our time, our labour, and our influence, as if this world were to be our only residence, and as if this present state were not to be followed by an endless eternity.

Now, O Lord, we have confessed our sin, we would pray earnestly, Lord, give us thy Spirit, that we may forsake our sin, and forsake it wholly and for ever. Through the peace-speaking blood of Jesus, may our sins be forgiven. As far as the east is distant from the west, so far do thou remove our transgressions from us. We pray that we may be baptized by the Holy Ghost. As Christ was raised from the dead by the glorious power of the Father, may we be raised from the death of sin by the glorious power of Christ, and walk with him in newness of life.

Lord, raise our dear children from the death of sin; and may we live to see them blessed with spiritual resurrection.

Lord, thou knowest the number and the strength of our corruptions, and thou art willing to destroy the old man of sin, which has so long defaced thy lovely image, and alienated our hearts from thee. Heaven grant that our old man may be crucified with Christ, that the body of sin may be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

We acknowledge that we have never derived any satisfaction from sin, and that the commission of sin only treasures up the most painful recollections in the heart. We have reason to take up the apostle's language into our lips, and acknowledge that the wages of sin is death. O heavenly Father, enrich us with that inestimable gift which is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

We present our thanks for the food, raiment, and health we have this day enjoyed. Bless to us the sacred duties in which we have been permitted to engage. Vouchsafe to us this night thy gracious care, and may we fall asleep under the impression that thou art the Lord our God. All we ask is for our dear Redeemer's sake, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be ascribed ceaseless praises. Amen.

WAITING GOD'S WILL.

Matthews. Petitions. Hopkins.

1 MOST gracious God, reveal
Thy will concerning me;
Whate'er I do, whate'er I feel,
I follow thy decree.
Myself, and all my ways
To thee I still resign,
Led by the Spirit of thy grace,
And by the word divine.

2 Jesus, I here abide
Thy pleasure to fulfil;
My soul and all its motions guide,
By thy most holy will;
The counsels of thy love
Be on my heart imprest,
It thou shalt at thy bidding move,
And at thy bidding rest.

C. WEALEY.

1 KINGS VIII.

Dedication of the Temple.

MOREOVER concerning a stranger, that is not of thy people Israel, but cometh out of a far country for thy name's sake.

42 (For they shall hear of thy great name, and of thy strong hand, and of thy stretched-out arm;) when he shall come and pray toward this house;

43 Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for: that all people of the earth may know thy name, to fear thee, as do thy people Israel; and that they may know that this house, which I have builded, is called by thy name.

44 If thy people go out to battle against their enemy, whithersoever thou shalt send them, and shall pray unto the LORD toward the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name:

45 Then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their cause.

46 If they sin against thee, (for there is no man that sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives unto the land of the enemy, far or near;

47 Yet if they shall bethink themselves in the land whither they were carried captives, and repent, and make supplication unto thee in the land of them that carried them captives, saying, We have sinned, and have done perversely, we have committed wickedness;

48 And so return unto thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies, which led them away captive, and pray unto thee toward their land, which thou gavest unto their fathers, the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name:

49 Then hear thou their prayer and their supplication in heaven thy dwelling place, and maintain their cause.

50 And forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee, and give them compassion before them who carried them captive, that they may have compassion on them:

51 For they be thy people, and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest forth out of Egypt, from the midst of the furnace of iron:

52 That thine eyes may be open unto the supplication of thy servant, and unto the supplication of thy people Israel, to hearken unto them in all that they call for unto thee.

53 For thou didst separate them from among all the people of the earth, to be thine inheritance, as thou spakest by the hand of Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord God.

54 And it was so, that when Solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication unto the LORD, he arose from before the altar of the LORD, from kneeling on his knees with his hands spread up to heaven.

55 And he stood, and blessed all the congregation of Israel with a loud voice, saying,

56 Blessed be the LORD, that hath given rest unto his people Israel, according to all that he promised: there hath not failed one word of all his good promise, which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS VIII.—We should daily remember that we are by nature strangers to God, and aliens from the commonwealth of Israel. May we be no longer strangers, but sons. May we be no longer aliens, but citizens! We have heard of Christ's great name, and of Christ's great salvation. Has the intelligence been grateful to our souls? has it produced saving and blessed effects on our souls? Can we say respecting Jesus' name, it is more fragrant than the richest odour of the most refreshing perfume? Happy are we, if we can say, "Jesus we love thy charming name, 'tis music to our ears!"

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, who sittest between the cherubim, we desire this morning to assemble as a family before thy throne of grace, to dedicate ourselves to thy service and glory. As Solomon dedicated the temple to thee, to be constantly devoted to thine honour and worship, may we with our hearts surrender ourselves to thy service, that in time and eternity our souls may be temples devoted to thy praise.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that thy name is great: O may we never be left to dishonour thy glorious name. Holy and reverend is thy name: God forbid that we should ever take thy blessed name in vain.

We adore thee in thy power; thine hand is strong, and thy stretched-out arm in past ages has performed wonderful deeds for the deliverance of thy people, and for the destruction of thy foes. We praise thee for all that thou hast done and art doing for thy Church. Blessed be the Lord, that hath given rest to his people, according to all that thou hast promised. We praise thee that thou hast given them rest in thy purpose, in thy love, in thy covenant, and in thy kingdom. We rejoice that thou hast provided for them a glorious rest in heaven. Give us faith to believe that this heavenly rest is provided for us; and may we and all our relatives rejoice in the words of inspired truth: There remaineth a rest for the people of God.

O teach our dear children and servants to seek a resting-place in Christ. Suffer them not to wander in the paths of folly and sin, seeking rest and enjoyment where they never can be found.

O Lord, thou art a God of truth, and not one good thing has failed of all that thou hast promised to thy people. Bestow on us that lively faith by which we shall lay hold of all the promises of a promising God: and then we shall be enabled to exclaim, in the language of an apostle, with joyfulness of heart, Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these we might be made partakers of the Divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

As Solomon prayed for strangers, we pray for all who are enduring the miseries of exile in various parts of the earth. May the sufferings of their restless and changing state lift up their hearts to heaven and Christ, and may they desire a city of habitations, even a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

We thank our God for the unmerited mercies of the night, and we pray for grace to live this day as if it were our last. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, who died for us, the just for the unjust. Amen.

CONVICTION OF SIN.

Walter's. Zebulun. St. Mary's. Workshop. c. v.

- 1 LORD, how secure my conscience was,
And felt no inward dread!
I was alive without the law,
And thought my sins were dead.
- 2 My hopes of heaven were firm and bright;
But since the precept came
With a convincing power and light,
I find how vile I am.
- 3 My guilt appoured but small before,
Till terribly I saw
How perfect, holy, just, and pure,
Was thine eternal law. WATTS, 115, B. I.

ROMANS VII.

Grace and Corruption.

KNOW ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2 For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband.

3 So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man.

4 Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin.

15 For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I.

16 If then I do that which I would not, I consent unto the law that it is good.

17 Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

18 For I know that in me, (that is, in my flesh,) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me; but how to perform that which is good I find not.

19 For the good that I would, I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.

20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

21 I find then a law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me.

22 For I delight in the law of God after the inward man:

23 But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members.

24 O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?

25 I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. VII.—Human laws reach the life and actions; the law of God reaches the heart, and all its movements, affections, and desires. The power of human laws terminates with our mortal life; the law of God is eternal in its authority and obligations. The most endearing of earthly relations are destroyed by death; but if we are savingly united to Christ, there exists a relation, the most endearing and profitable, over which death has no influence, and over which it can exercise no control. If we are thus united to Jesus, he has our whole heart—no rival divides the government with him. He reigns superlative and alone within us. Are we delivered from the law as a covenant? Then, we are clothed with the righteousness of Christ, we are accepted in the beloved, and we yield to him the obedience of sons, and not of slaves; the obedience of love, and not of constraint. Is sin our greatest burden, and the possession of perfect holiness our greatest ambition? Then, assuredly Christ is ours and we are his.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, O Lord our God, that there is constant access to the throne of grace, through Jesus, the new and the living way. If in thy justice thou shouldst deal with us as we deserve, thou wouldst place a seraph with a flaming sword, to prevent our access to thy mercy-seat; or in thy wrath thou wouldst remove us to those abodes of misery, where despair reigns with irresistible control. What shall we render to the Lord for all his benefits? and for this—which ranks among the chief—constant access through Jesus to the throne of grace?

Look upon us with great compassion, thou Shepherd of Israel, who neither slumberest nor sleepest, now that we are assembled together to thank thee for the mercies of the past day, and to commit ourselves to thy gracious care this night. Forgive the sins and sanctify the events of the day. We acknowledge our unworthiness of the blessings received, and we acknowledge our unthankfulness: Bless the Lord, O our soul, and forget not all his benefits.

We are about to be surrounded with the shades of night, but there is no darkness with thee: to thee the night is as clear as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike unto thee. As a family and individuals we commit ourselves to thy protection, as to the care of a compassionate father. May we in reality belong to thy flock; then we shall have an interest in that promise, He will gather the lambs in his arms, and carry them in his bosom.

Preserve our beloved children from the designs and ravages of Satan, who goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour, and who employs the most crafty and early methods for the destruction of the rising race. Thou Divine Shepherd, have mercy upon them and our domestics.

We confess, O Lord, that we are by nature under the law as a broken covenant of works. By the righteousness of Christ imputed may all of us be delivered from the tremendous curse of that broken law. May we be married to Christ, even to him who is raised from the dead, and may we bring forth fruit unto God. Too long we have brought forth the vile and poisonous fruits of sin; now may we bring forth the fruits of love, holiness, and obedience, which are to the glory of God the Father. May our obedience to thy law be the obedience of sons and not of slaves; may it flow from love, and not from constraint; and may we serve God in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

Teach us, O Lord, ever to esteem sin a burden. May we look on sin within us as a body of sin and death, and ever consider it the grievous plague of the heart. Alas, that we have been so long under sin's dominion! that we have been so long its willing captives! May each one of us be acquainted with the spiritual warfare, and know what it is to obtain victories over our powerful corruptions. May we rejoice that all who fight under Christ's banners shall be more than conquerors. Lord, hear the prayers of thine unworthy petitioners, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THIRTY-FIRST WEEK.—SATURDAY MORNING.

MAJESTY OF CHRIST.

Worship. Eya. Irish.

C. M.

- 1 THE majesty of Solomon,
How glorious to behold!
The servants waiting round his throne,
The ivory and the gold!
2. But, mighty God, thy palace shines
With far superior beams;
Thine angel-guards are swift as winds,
Thy ministers are flames.
- 3 Now to the hands of Christ our King
Are all their legions given:
They wait upon his saints, and bring
His chosen heirs to heaven.

Watts, 113, B. 11.

1 KINGS X.

Queen of Sheba wondering at Solomon.

AND when the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the Lord, she came to prove him with hard questions.

2 And she came to Jerusalem with a very great train, with camels that bare spices, and very much gold, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart.

3 And Solomon told her all her questions: there was not any thing hid from the king, which he told her not.

4 And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he had built,

5 And the meat of his table, and the sitting of his servants, and the attendance of his ministers, and their apparel, and his cupbearers, and his ascent by which he went up unto the house of the Lord; there was no more spirit in her.

6 And she said to the king, It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and of thy wisdom.

7 Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it: and, behold, the half was not told me: thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard.

8 Happy are thy men, happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and that hear thy wisdom.

9 Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighted in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel: because the Lord loved Israel for ever, therefore made he thee king, to do judgment and justice.

10 And she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices very great store, and precious stones: there came no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon.

11 And the navy also of Hiram, that brought gold from Ophir, brought in from Ophir great plenty of almug trees, and precious stones.

12 And the king made of the almug trees pillars for the house of the Lord, and for the king's house, harps also and psalteries for singers: there came no such almug trees, nor were seen unto this day.

13 And king Solomon gave unto the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, beside that which Solomon gave her of his royal bounty. So she turned and went to her own country, she and her servants.

21 And all king Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; none were of silver: it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

22 For the king had at sea a navy of Tharshish with the navy of Hiram: once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

23 So king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom.

24 And all the earth sought to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart.

25 And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, and mules, a rate year by year.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS X.—The fame of Solomon spread to distant Ethiopia; the fame of Jesus shall overspread the earth: "A greater than Solomon is here." It was honourable and praiseworthy to the queen of Sheba, that she was attracted and charmed by the wisdom of Solomon. Are we attracted and charmed by the wisdom of Christ? And are we concerned to be the disciples of him who teaches as never men or angels taught? Solomon showed himself to be a willing, wise, condescending, and efficient instructor. Many possess stores of intelligence, who manifest no aptness in communicating of their treasures. In Jesus, our Divine Solomon, are laid up all the treasures of wisdom. He is willing to receive the most ignorant, and enrol them among his disciples, and teach them lessons by which they shall be fitted for the life that now is, and for that which is to come.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, infinitely glorious and blessed in thyself, and in all thy perfections, we come unto thee as the Lord our God, to supplicate, according to thy will, the blessings of the covenant of grace. We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of boundless and unerring wisdom. Thou art wise in heart and mighty in strength; none ever hardened himself against thee and prospered. We have now read of the wisdom of Solomon, whose fame was conveyed to distant and remote nations; and we adore thee for that wisdom given to thy servant as a blessing to thy Church, and as an illustrious type of thy well-beloved Son. What, O Jesus, was the wisdom of Israel's king, compared with thine? When we think of thy wisdom, O King of Zion, O King of heaven, we have reason to give utterance to the sublime expressions of an inspired and devout Apostle, O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of God, or being his counsellor hath taught him? As the queen of Sheba was filled with wonder at the wisdom and wealth and splendour of Solomon, may our minds be filled with wonder, love, and joy, when we think of the uncreated wisdom of Jesus, and the glory and majesty in which he appears upon his heavenly throne.

We bless thee, O Immanuel, for what thou hast made known to us already of thy greatness and thy grace. Convince us that much more remains to be revealed in a future and a heavenly state. O may we rejoice that, though we now see thee through a glass darkly, there is a day fast approaching when all the dark clouds and shadows that obscure our minds shall be for ever removed, and we shall see thee face to face. Prepare us, Holy Spirit, for that blessed day—teach us to long for the arrival of that glorious day.

We have read of the happiness of Solomon's household, and of the felicity and prosperity of his subjects. What reason have we, thou exalted Saviour, thou blessed King of Zion, to exclaim, Happy are thy men, happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and hear thy wisdom!

We entreat thee, O merciful Saviour, to take our children, and make them thy children; advance them to the honour of belonging to thy household, and may they sit and hear thy wisdom. Make our servants thy servants.

Give aged saints enlarged enjoyment of heavenly consolation; and comfort them with the near prospect of beholding Christ's glory in heaven.

Accept of our thanks for all the mercies of the past night, and enable us to spend this concluding day of the week as if it were the concluding day of our lives. Graciously hear us, for Jesus' sake, the only wise God our Saviour. Amen.

SAINTS QUICKENED BY THE SPIRIT.

Spilbrook. Serenity. Stephen's. G. N.

- 1 WHY should our mourning thoughts delight
To grovel in the dust?
Or why should streams of tears unite
Around the expiring just?
- 2 Did not the Lord our Saviour die,
And triumph o'er the grave?
Did not our Lord ascend on high,
And prove his power to save?
- 3 Doth not the sacred Spirit come,
And dwell in all the saints?
And should the temples of his grace
Resound with long complaints?
- 4 Awake, my soul, and like the sun
Burst through each sable cloud;
And thou, my voice, though broke with sighs,
Tune forth thy songs aloud.

DODDRIDGE.

ROMANS VIII.

The Flesh and Spirit.

THERE is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

2 For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

3 For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh:

4 That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

5 For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit.

6 For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

7 Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.

10 And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

11 But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

12 Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh.

13 For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.

14 For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

15 For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.

16 The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God:

17 And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together.

18 For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS VIII.—Exalted is the character, and distinguished the privileges, of the children of God. Once they were condemned; now they are acquitted. Once they were living under God's frowns; now they are living under his smiles. Once they were bond-slaves; now they enjoy a glorious liberty, and shall return into bondage no more for ever. Once the flesh was their master; now they live by the Spirit, are enlightened by the Spirit, and are led by the Spirit. Once they were spiritually dead, and strangers to heavenly joys; now they are spiritually alive, and are filled with that peace which passeth all understanding. Once they were rebels against the Divine authority; now it is their earnest and unfeigned desire to be conformed to God's image inwardly in their hearts, and to please him outwardly in their lives. Are we the subjects of this change—this blessed change?

PRAYER.

HOLY and Divine Spirit, mercifully enable a company of unworthy suppliants to approach the throne of grace with reverence, humility, and faith, and to offer up their evening prayer in spirit and in truth.

O thou glorious Lord God, we adore thee as a God of justice, who cannot consistently pronounce upon the guilty a sentence of pardon, without ample satisfaction being given to the righteous demands of thy justice. We adore thee as a God of infinite and unerring wisdom, and rejoice that thou hast in thy great mercy contrived a scheme of salvation, by which thou art able to exercise thy justice and mercy to the fullest extent in the redemption of our ruined race. Praise to our God, that we are able to sing of justice as well as mercy in the salvation of man. Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne, while mercy and truth go before thy face.

We thank our God that we have been preserved to the close of another day and of another week, while many have been ushered into the eternal state who, at the beginning of this week, were in the land of the living. Sanctify to us all the events of thy Providence which have passed over our heads, and mercifully forgive the guilt we have contracted. Give us this night an interest in thy protecting care; and may our lives and health be preserved to another Sabbath, that we may enter thy courts, and unite with thy people in the sacred and animating services of thy sanctuary. O Lord, we desire to esteem a day in thy courts better than a thousand anywhere else. May we ever look on thy sanctuary as an emblem of heaven, and the Sabbath as an emblem of the rest which remaineth for the people of God.

We thank thee, O Lord, for what we have now read of the privileges of thy people. We desire to long and pray for their possession. May they be ours. May we be, in Christ Jesus, interested in his love, his righteousness, and his spirit. Clothe us, O Jesus, with thy righteousness; then we shall be brought from a state of condemnation into a state of pardon and acceptance. Glory to thy name, great Advocate, that what the law could not do through the weakness of the flesh, thou hast done by thine atoning sacrifice. Lord, deliver us from the carnality and the enmity of our nature.

Sanctify the hearts and affections of our dear children, and may they furnish early symptoms of being spiritually-minded, which is life and peace.

May the spirit of Christ dwell in us, and in all our relatives, as an illuminating, quickening, and sanctifying spirit. O give us that spirit, by whose power our bodies shall be raised in the morning of the resurrection, and likened unto Christ's glorious body. Lord, give us the spirit of adoption, by which we shall cry, Abba, Father: and may the Spirit be a witness with our spirits that we are the sons of God, and the heirs of heaven.

Condescend, O heavenly Father, to hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

GOD'S ANCIENT DEEDS.

Council, Smithfield, Providence College.

G. M.

- 1 I'll meditate his works of old;
The king that reigns above;
I'll hear his ancient wondrous told,
And learn to trust his love.
- 2 Strange was thy journey through the sea,
Thy footsteps, Lord, unknown:
Terrors attend the wondrous way,
That brings thy mercies down.
- 3 Thy voice with terror in the sound
Through clouds and darkness broke;
All heaven in lightning shone around,
And earth with thunder shook.

WATTS, Ps. 77, p. 11.

PSALM LXXVII.

Remembering God's Works.

WILL the LORD cast off for ever? and will he be favourable no more?

8 Is his mercy clean gone for ever? doth his promise fail for evermore?

9 Hath God forgotten to be gracious? hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies? Selah.

10 And I said, This is my infirmity: but I will remember the years of the right hand of the most high.

11 I will remember the works of the Lord: surely I will remember thy wonders of old.

12 I will meditate also of all thy work, and talk of thy doings.

13 Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary: who is so great a God as our God!

14 Thou art the God that doest wonders: thou hast declared thy strength among the people.

15 Thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph. Selah.

16 The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee; they were afraid: the depths also were troubled.

17 The clouds poured out water: the skies sent out a sound: thine arrows also went abroad.

18 The voice of thy thunder was in the heaven: the lightnings lightened the world: the earth trembled and shook.

19 Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known.

20 Thou leddest thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM LXXIX.

Earnest Prayer.

REMEMBER not against us former iniquities: let thy tender mercies speedily prevent us: for we are brought very low.

9 Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name: and deliver us, and purge away our sins for thy name's sake.

10 Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is their God? let him be known among the heathen in our sight by the revenging of the blood of thy servants which is shed.

11 Let the sighing of the prisoner come before thee; according to the greatness of thy power preserve thou those that are appointed to die.

12 So we thy people and sheep of thy pasture will give thee thanks for ever: we will shew forth thy praise to all generations.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXVII., LXXIX.—In the believer we have a remarkable mixture of good and evil, of grace and corruption. The question of the Psalmist, "Will the Lord cast off for ever," is an expression of unbelief, and yet we see in it an expression of love and a high estimation of the unspeakable privilege of the Divine fellowship.

A superlative love to Jesus forms the basis of that sorrow he feels when his Saviour's smiles seem to be withdrawn, but which are only concealed by an intervening cloud, which shall soon be mercifully removed. It is only in a little anger and for a short moment Jesus hides his face from his people. His affection never changes, while with everlasting loving-kindness he will have mercy upon them. It is justly said that the saint of God, under the influence of holy penitence, never forgets his sins. Like David, "his sin is ever before him." But God treats the sins of his people as if he had forgotten them. He says, he will remember them no more. Clothed with the righteousness of Christ, he looks upon them as free from guilt as if sin had never existed within them.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, enable us to draw near to the God of our salvation with filial boldness, and in the full assurance of faith. O give us grace to present those prayers which will come up with acceptance before the throne of grace, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness.

Our Father who art in heaven, we desire to address thee in the language of humility and thankfulness. We would extol thee, our God, O King; we will bless thy name for ever and ever. Every day we would bless thee; and we will praise thy name for ever and ever. We thank God for hearing our prayers, and preserving us through another night. We bless thee that we have entered on another day of sacred rest. May we enter joyfully on the exercises of thy day, and may the prospect of entering thy sanctuary fill our hearts with holy delight. O that each one of us could say, in the language of thine inspired servant, I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.

Teach our beloved children and servants to love thy day more than any other day, thy house more than any other place, and thy service more than any other employment.

Lord, have mercy on the heralds of salvation of every name, and give them a large portion of thy Spirit. May they be filled with increasing zeal for the glory of God, increasing concern for the salvation of souls, and increasing desires for the extension of the kingdom of Christ. Fill thy servants in their public ministry with the fear of God, and deliver them from the fear of man, which ensnares the soul.

We present our prayers for all who shall hear the glorious Gospel of our blessed Saviour this holy day. Have mercy on the hardened and indifferent; and awake them out of their slumbers. Have mercy on those who are convinced, and lead them to the feet of Jesus, to receive from his hand the blessed inheritance of pardon and eternal life. O have mercy on such as are on the borders of despair, and convince them that all who apply to Jesus as broken-hearted penitents he will not, he cannot, cast out.

May thy Spirit graciously descend on all the churches, and in particular on the church and congregation with which we as a family are more immediately connected. Make it like a well-watered vineyard; even as a field the Lord hath blessed.

Lord, have mercy on thy suffering children in every part of the habitable globe. Comfort them with the remembrance of the works of the Lord, even with the remembrance of thy wonders of old. Thou art a God that doest wonders; and thou hast declared thy strength among the people.

Lord, bless our sovereign and all inferior rulers. May they seek the welfare of thy kingdom, and prove nursing fathers to thy Church. Make our great men the ornaments of the Gospel, and may they be enabled to furnish that example of piety which will induce multitudes to fear the Lord.

O thou King of saints, mercifully hear our prayers for Jesus' sake, the Lamb that was slain. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE CHURCH GOD'S VINE.

Job. Athlone. Rippon's.

L. M.

- 1 HAST thou not planted with thy hands
A lovely vine in heathen lands?
Did not thy power defend it round,
And heavenly dews enrich the ground?
- 2 How did the spreading branches shoot,
And bless the nations with the fruit!
But now, dear Lord, look down and see
Thy mourning vine, that lovely tree.
- 3 Return, almighty God, return,
Nor let thy bleeding vineyard mourn;
Turn us to thee, thy love restore,
We shall be saved and sigh no more.

WATTS, Ps. 80.

PSALM LXXX.

Sufferings of the Church.

GIVE ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubim, shine forth.

2 Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy strength, and come and save us.

3 Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

4 O Lord God of hosts, how long wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people?

5 Thou feedest them with the bread of tears; and givest them tears to drink in great measure.

6 Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbours: and our enemies laugh among themselves.

7 Turn us again, O God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

8 Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen and planted it.

9 Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land.

10 The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedars.

11 She sent out her boughs unto the sea, and her branches unto the river.

12 Why hast thou then broken down her hedges, so that all they which pass by the way do pluck her?

13 The hoar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it.

14 Return, we beseech thee, O God of hosts: look down from heaven, and behold and visit this vine;

15 And the vineyard which thy right hand hath planted, and the branch that thou madest strong for thyself.

16 It is burned with fire, it is cut down: they perish at the rebuke of thy countenance.

17 Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself.

18 So will not we go back from thee: quicken us, and we will call upon thy name.

19 Turn us again, O Lord God of hosts, cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXX.—How precious are the privileges of the children of God. They can say, Jesus is our Shepherd, we shall not want. He leads us by his wisdom and mercy through the waste howling wilderness of this world. With more than paternal affection he listens to our complaints. He graciously hears and answers our supplications; and at last he will conduct us to his heavenly palace, where he dwells in the midst of his adoring worshippers, sheds upon them the lustre of his glory, and fills them with ineffable delight and joy. On earth the light of Jesus' countenance is sometimes interrupted, and even concealed. In heaven Jesus is to his people their everlasting light. He is their sun, and he never goes down; and the days of their mourning are ended—yes, ended for ever and ever. Glorious prospect!—May the prospect of that day, that blessed day, teach us to rejoice in hope of the glory of God. The bitter herbs and the bitter waters of affliction are indispensably necessary for promoting the spiritual health of the family of God, weaning their hearts more and more from earthly things, and lifting up their thoughts, hopes, and affections more fully, ardently, and constantly to the blessed realities of their heavenly home.

PRAYER.

O GOD of our salvation, thou art the Shepherd of Israel, and thou leadest Joseph like a flock. Blessed Saviour, thou art the good Shepherd, for thou hast laid down thy life for the flock. We praise thee for the Divine and constant care thou dost unceasingly manifest to thy flock. Thine eye is never for one moment withdrawn from their interest, and all the plans of their enemies thou dost effectually overturn. Lord, make us in reality the sheep of thy pasture. We are professedly thy sheep: God forbid that we should be wolves in sheep's clothing. Divine Spirit, teach us impartially to examine ourselves—to bring ourselves to the light of thy Word, that we may know whether we are Jesus' sheep or Satan's goats. If there are any of us who do not belong to the flock of Christ, let us not remain at a distance from his direction and defence, without which we shall never arrive at the sheepfold above.

Make our dear children lambs of the Saviour's flock. Where can we take them, O Jesus, but to thee? We can entrust them to none else. Rejoice our hearts, by encircling them with thine everlasting arms. May our servants belong to the flock of Jesus, and acknowledge him as the Shepherd of their souls.

We earnestly pray that a Divine unction may abundantly attend the preaching of the everlasting Gospel this day, through all the churches. May thy Word prove to thousands an enlightening word, and be instrumental in dispelling from the soul the dark clouds of ignorance, folly, superstition, and error. May thy Word prove a sanctifying word, and may the unholy and impure be delivered from their degrading passions and lusts, and become lovely with the ornaments of holiness and grace. And may thy blessed Word prove to many a comforting word, and fill the hearts of the mourners, the sorrowful, and the despairing, with heavenly joy. O that many, by means of a preached Gospel, may be enabled this day to sing respecting Jesus, the only source of true and unfading joy, Whom having not seen we love: in whom, though now we see him not, yet believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

We thank thee, God of ordinances, for the assistance given this day to all thy ministering servants, and in particular to thy servant our pastor. We thank thee for all the good enjoyed by the churches of the saints; and in particular for the spiritual benefit enjoyed by the church and congregation to which we belong.

Lord, bless thy Church universal more and more. We thank thee that thou hast planted this noble vine on the face of the earth, and that thou hast most wonderfully preserved this vine, and hast not suffered Satan, the boar of the forest, to destroy it. We pray for the increase of the vine. We long for that day when the branches of this vine shall cover the earth. O Lord, look down from heaven, and visit this thy vine. May our sovereign and rulers be branches in this noble vine!

As a family, turn all our hearts to thyself, cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved. Protect us this night, O Lord: hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

FOLLY AND MADNESS OF SIN

Old Ford. Westham. Ann's.

C. M.

- 1 SIN, like a venomous disease,
Infects our vital blood;
The only balm is sovereign grace,
And the physician, God.
- 2 Our beauty and our strength are fled,
And we draw near to death;
But Christ the Lord recalls the dead
With his almighty breath.
- 3 Madness by nature reigns within;
The passions burn and rage,
Till God's own Son with skill divine
The inward fire assuage.

WATTS, 153, B. II.

I KINGS XII.

Rehoboam refusing the old Men's Counsel.

AND Rehoboam went to Shechem: for all Israel were come to Shechem to make him king.

2 And it came to pass, when Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who was yet in Egypt, heard of it, (for he was fled from the presence of king Solomon, and Jeroboam dwelt in Egypt;)

3 That they sent and called him. And Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake unto Rehoboam, saying,

4 Thy father made our yoke grievous: now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said unto them, Depart yet for three days, then come again to me. And the people departed.

6 And king Rehoboam consulted with the old men, that stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, and said, How do ye advise that I may answer this people?

7 And they spake unto him, saying, If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants for ever.

8 But he forsook the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men that were grown up with him, and which stood before him:

9 And he said unto them, What counsel give ye that we may answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter?

10 And the young men that were grown up with him spake unto him, saying, Thus shalt thou speak unto this people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it lighter unto us; thus shalt thou say unto them, My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins.

11 And now whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke: my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying, Come to me again the third day.

13 And the king answered the people roughly, and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him;

14 And spake to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

15 Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; for the cause was from the LORD, that he might perform his saying, which the LORD spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam, the son of Nebat.

16 So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king saying, What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: to your tents, O Israel: now see to thine own house, David. So Israel departed unto their tents.

17 But as for the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

REFLECTIONS UPON I KINGS XII.—Kings of human appointment are no real benefit to mankind, unless, like David, they are anointed by God with the spirit of wisdom and knowledge, the spirit of understanding, and of the fear of the Lord. Like Rehoboam, the instant kings and nations begin to depart from God, his service and worship, then dangers and calamities begin. Those who honour God he will honour; but they who despise him, he will lightly esteem. Though no obedience of ours can merit God's defence, it is equally certain and true that they shall enjoy God's protection and smiles who live in observing God's ordinances, and in obeying his commandments. The accumulated experience of advanced years is an inheritance more precious, and unspeakably more useful, than treasures of silver and gold. When the young value, and seek the counsel of the experienced and the wise, and when they follow the counsel they seek, it is an evidence that already the plant of wisdom has taken root in their minds, and that, in future years, it shall bring forth an abundant harvest of precious fruit.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the God of ordinances; and we praise thee for the gracious end of their institution, and for the blessed effects they have been instrumental in producing by the power of the Holy Spirit.

We thank and praise thee for the dispensation of the Gospel during the past Sabbath, and for all the instances of saving benefit which have accompanied a preached word. We present our thanks, that we have experienced the preserving kindness of our God during another night, and that we are now assembled before that throne of grace where the God of mercy is seated in all his benignity to bestow the blessings of his salvation. What reason have we to sing, O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever.

O enable us this day to live under the blessed influence of the Gospel of Jesus. May we be guided by Divine wisdom, and not be left to follow our own corrupted counsels. May our lives show that there is some difference between us and the men of the world. May our actions manifest that we are washed and sanctified. And even in our temporal pursuits may it be evident that we are living above the world, and that our hearts and affections are placed on Christ and immortality. Suffer us not, most gracious Father, to seek a resting-place here below—may we remember that a rest remains for the people of God; and when we have been delivered from this world and all its storms, may we arrive, through the blood of the Lamb, at that city of habitations whose maker and builder is God.

Impress on our minds, Holy Spirit, what we have now read from thy sacred word. May the folly of Solomon's son convince us more and more of the value and necessity of wisdom. Give us grace to love wise men, and to seek their counsel. Teach us to venerate our aged friends, and to listen with affectionate interest to the words of wisdom, piety, and experience, which fall from their lips.

Have mercy on our dear children, and never suffer them to be led astray by the ensnaring counsel of foolish men. O suffer not our children to be wise in their own conceit.

Lord, bless our aged, pious friends. Long preserve them among us, as a blessing to our family, to society, and the church of Christ.

Have mercy on our friends who are not yet the subjects of the kingdom of Christ. Persuade them, O Lord, to forsake the government of Satan and of sin; and may they now exchange the government of these tyrants for Christ's yoke, which is easy, and for his burden, which is light. O may all now prostrate before thee be thy faithful and loving subjects. Mercifully read these our imperfect prayers, for the Mediator's sake. Amen.

COMPLETE SALVATION.

Arundel. Cyprus. Ashley.

C. M.

- 1 SALVATION, through our dying God,
Shall surely be complete;
He paid whate'er his people owed,
And cancelled all their debt.
- 2 Ho sends his Spirit from above,
Our nature to renew;
Displays his power, reveals his love,
Gives life and comfort too.
- 3 Ho heals our wounds, subdues our foes,
And shows our sins forgiven;
Conducts us through the wilderness,
And brings us safe to heaven.

ANON.

ROMANS X.

Salvation to all who believe.

BRETHREN, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

2 For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.

4 For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

5 For Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, that the man which doeth those things shall live by them.

6 But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to bring Christ down from above:)

7 Or, who shall descend into the deep? (that is, to bring up Christ again from the dead.)

8 But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach;

9 That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

10 For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.

11 For the Scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.

13 For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.

14 How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?

15 And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But they have not all obeyed the Gospel. For Isaias saith, Lord, who hath believed our report?

17 So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

20 But Isaias is very bold, and saith, I was found of them that sought me not; I was made manifest unto them that asked not after me.

21 But to Israel he saith, All day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. X.—Like the holy Apostles, may the spiritual interests and salvation of our relatives, our kindred, and our country, be near our hearts. Their sins and infirmities should stimulate us in our supplications, that the loveliness of grace may soon supersede the depravity of corruption, and that spiritual health may take the place of spiritual disease. They who have clear and correct views of their guilt, on the one hand, and of the justice of God on the other, will soon see that they never can be acquitted, pardoned, and accepted by a just and holy God, except by the righteousness of Christ. They are infinitely to be pitied who imagine and believe they have a righteousness of their own, and who foolishly build their hopes of pardon and eternal life upon a foundation which has no existence. This must be the greatest folly. And, what is worse, if mercy prevent not, must be followed by consequences the most fatal and deplorable. From such delusions may God mercifully preserve us.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely great and infinitely gracious. The mind of an archangel cannot comprehend thy glory. What reason have we to rejoice, as guilty creatures, that thou delightest in mercy, and that thy mercies are over all thy works! We adore thee as a God of unspeakable patience and long-suffering. Great and long continued our provocations have been, and thy patience has been equal to our offences. Though our provocations are peculiarly aggravated, thy bounty has never ceased, and our wants have continued to be abundantly supplied. O Lord, though infinitely unworthy in ourselves, we approach thee in the name of Christ, and earnestly pray that his blood may wash away the guilt of all our sins, and that the Holy Spirit may afford us that heavenly grace by which we shall resist every temptation, and obtain the most distinguished victories over all our corruptions.

Let not the sins of the past day rise up in judgment against us; and may unfeigned and filial gratitude inspire our minds on account of the mercies we have this day received. May we enjoy this evening the blessing of sleep, and retire to rest under the blessed persuasion that we are the children of God. O give us that faith in Christ by which we shall believe, that when the morning of the resurrection arrives, we shall awake under the inviting voice of our Saviour to enter the mansions of the blessed.

Bless to us the reading of the Scriptures. We rejoice that this is one of the appointed means of salvation, and that the Holy Spirit in countless instances has rendered it effectual. May our knowledge of God and Christ, our acquaintance with our own hearts, our hatred of sin, and our love of holiness, be advanced by the reading of the Holy Scriptures.

Lord, have mercy on Israel, the descendants of Jacob thy servant. O rescue that nation from the melancholy delusion and unbelief by which they have been held fast for ages. Now may they see that the Messiah is come, and that Jesus is the Messiah who has taken away sin by the sacrifice of himself; and that he is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

We would mourn, O Lord, over those parts of the earth where the joyful sound of salvation is never heard. As men cannot believe on him of whom they have not heard, and as they cannot hear without a preacher, O send out the ambassadors of Jesus to every part of the earth, to proclaim the fame of Christ, and beseech rebellious man in Christ's stead to be reconciled to God. We thank thee, O God, for Gospel ministers, and that it is our privilege to hear the joyful sound.

Give to our dear children and servants a warm love to thy ministering servants, and may they hear them as thy messengers.

Lord, teach all of us to say respecting them, with sentiments of gratitude and love, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace. Lord, hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thine unworthy suppliants, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be glory, honour, and praise, for ever. Amen.

That dwells in bright eternity!
We gaze, and we confound our sight,
Plunged in the abyss of dazzling light!
- 2 Seraphs, the nearest to the throne,
Begin, and speak the Great Unknown:
Attempt the song, wind up your strings
To notes untried, and boundless things!
- 3 You, whose capacious powers survey
Largely beyond our eyes of clay:
Yet what a narrow portion too
Is seen—or known—or thought—by you!

1 KINGS XIII.

Jeroboam reproved by a Prophet.

AND, behold, there came a man of God out of Judah by the word of the LORD unto Beth-el: and Jeroboam stood by the altar to burn incense.

2 And he cried against the altar in the word of the LORD, and said, O altar, altar, thus saith the LORD; Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee.

3 And he gave a sign the same day, saying, This is the sign which the LORD hath spoken; Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out.

4 And it came to pass, when king Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, which had cried against the altar in Beth-el, that he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, Lay hold on him. And his hand, which he put forth against him, dried up, so that he could not pull it in again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.

6 And the king answered and said unto the man of God, Intreat now the face of the LORD thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored me again. And the man of God besought the LORD, and the king's hand was restored him again, and became as it was before.

7 And the king said unto the man of God, Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and I will give thee a reward.

8 And the man of God said unto the king, If thou wilt give me half thine house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place:

9 For so was it charged me by the word of the LORD, saying, Eat no bread, nor drink water, nor turn again by the same way that thou camest.

10 So he went another way, and returned not by the way that he came to Beth-el.

11 Now there dwelt an old prophet in Beth-el; and his sons came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Beth-el: the words which he had spoken unto the king, them they told also to their father.

12 And their father said unto them, What way went he? For his sons had seen what way the man of God went, which came from Judah.

13 And he said unto his sons, Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him the ass: and he rode thereon;

14 And went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak: and he said unto him, Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah? And he said, I am.

15 Then he said unto him, Come home with me; and eat bread.

16 And he said, I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee; neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place:

17 For it was said to me by the word of the LORD, Thou shalt eat no bread nor drink water there, nor turn again to go by the way that thou camest.

18 He said unto him, I am a prophet also as thou art; and an angel spake unto me by the word of the LORD, saying, Bring him back with thee into thine house, that he may eat bread and drink water. But he lied unto him.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XIII.—Neither kings nor subjects can conceal their notions, nor the purposes and motives by which they are influenced. We should ever remember and be impressed by the fact, that God is no indifferent witness of the thoughts and conduct of men. God is greatly and necessarily jealous of his glory; and is never more greatly or justly offended, than when rulers interfere with the purity and order of his worship. It is merciful in God to utter threatenings against offenders, that they may take warning, seek grace to repent, and escape his vengeance. Solemn thought!—If the threatened warnings are despised, and that impenitently, the flood-gates of wrath must be opened, and then escape is impossible! They are really wise, who now consider the things which regard their everlasting peace, and escape for safety to the bosom of a Saviour's love.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we approach thee in the name of Jesus, and, relying on his righteousness for acceptance, we would present our morning sacrifice. We adore thee as the infinite and incomprehensible Jehovah. Thy being, attributes, and glory can be comprehended by none but thyself. How great is thy majesty, for the heaven is thy throne, and the earth is thy footstool! All things within the vast universe, however great, or however minute, are under the distinct observation of thine eye; and all things are at thy sovereign disposal. Thou holdest with thy hand the helm of Providence. In this may we delight, and with this may we be satisfied, that thy hand is a hand of wisdom and a hand of power. Thou art the searcher of hearts, and, wherever we are, our lives are under the observance of thine omniscience. Thou encompassed our path, and our lying down, and art acquainted with all our ways. O that our minds were suitably impressed with what our lips have now acknowledged!

We present our thanks before thy throne for the providential care and protection of the past night, for the sleep and repose by which we are refreshed, and for the opportunity now enjoyed of presenting our supplications, and enjoying fellowship with a prayer-hearing God. We seek thy grace to enable us faithfully to serve thee this day, and that we may mingle with the world and engage in our temporal business under the purifying influence of the Gospel of Christ.

O that our beloved children resembled Josiah in early piety! God forbid that the beginning of their days, the beginning of their faculties and strength, the golden period of their lives, should be devoted to any but to thee, O Jesus!

What cause have we to rejoice that, for a long series of generations, Christ was promised to thy Church, and that, when the fulness of time was accomplished, the promised Messiah appeared! Glory to thy great and gracious name, the Church can now sing, Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

May the history we have now read teach us to treat sacred things with solemnity. When we hear of the hand of Jeroboam being dried up, because he treated God's messenger with contempt, may we see that God watches with the greatest jealousy over his sacred institutions, and considers every indignity shown to his ministers as shown to himself. May we ever receive thy ministers as thy messengers, and may we believe the promises of thy truth, and the invitations of thy mercy, which they are commissioned to make known.

Lord, hear these our imperfect prayers, and sanctify this service, for Jesus' sake, who is the resurrection and the life. Amen.

- 1 THE Lord, how fearful is his name!
How wide is his command!
Nature with all her moving frame
Rests on his mighty hand!
- 2 Immortal glory forms his throne,
And light his awful robe;
Whilst with a smile, or with a frown,
He manages the globe.
- 3 A word of his almighty breath
Can swell or sink the seas;
Build the vast empires of the earth,
Or break them, as he please.

ROMANS XI.

Jews not wholly rejected.

I SAY then, Hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the Scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying,

3 Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life.

4 But what saith the answer of God unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal.

5 Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace.

6 And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work.

7 What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded.

8 (According as it is written, God hath given them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear;) unto this day.

9 And David saith, Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumbling-block, and a recompense unto them:

10 Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not see, and bow down their back away.

11 I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy.

12 Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulness?

13 For I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office:

14 If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them.

15 For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?

16 For if the first fruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches.

17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree;

18 Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS XI.—Notwithstanding the strength of parental affection, instances have been found in which fathers, and even mothers, have abandoned their offspring. The fire of parental love became extinguished in their bosoms, and was succeeded by the government of the vilest and most repulsive passions. With what grandeur and endearing majesty the love of God rises to our view! He never casts off his people; he hateth putting away: he loves with an everlasting love. How dreadful was the doom of ancient Israel, for despising the love which God manifested to them as a nation and people! They cast off God, who brought them out of Egypt with a strong hand and a stretched out arm, and who put them in possession of the loveliest and the richest spot upon the face of the earth. They preferred idols to Jehovah, and therefore they were cast off. Still, if they return and embrace his Son, he will return unto them, and save them with an everlasting salvation.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, in thy glorious sovereignty. The thrones of earthly kings are overturned in close and rapid succession, but thy throne stands for ever fixed. How limited are their kingdoms, confined to narrow spots of ground! but the vast universe is thine empire, over which thou dost reign in undivided authority. All other kings are dependent on their subjects; but thou art the infinitely independent Jehovah, dwelling within thine own unfeathered essence, and filling the vast immensity of space with thine own unbounded presence.

We adore thee, O king of Zion, in the displays given of thy sovereignty in choosing the children of Israel from among all other nations to be thy people; and we adore that sovereignty which afterwards rejected them as a church, and took the long-rejected Gentile nations in their place. We praise thee that, even in the midst of this awful and just rejection, a remnant was preserved according to the election of grace. We thank thee, that a remnant has been preserved from the time of their being cast off till the present moment. O may that number rapidly increase! We have great reason to mourn over the degeneracy of the present times, and on account of the immense majority of the enemies beyond the friends of Christ. But we praise thee that there are still many thousands who fear God, love Jesus, and refuse to bow the knee before the Baal of this world. May the time soon arrive when thy faithful worshippers shall be the majority among the nations; when a little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation; when the feeble among them shall be as David, and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the Lord before them. Lord, fulfil thy gracious promise,—I the Lord will hasten it in his time.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the contrivance of salvation, for its gracious revelation, and for its merciful application to the hearts of the children of men. We acknowledge that salvation is wholly of grace. Suffer none of us to fall into the fatal delusion of imagining we can do anything to merit the salvation which is in Christ. We now come as humble supplicants, to seek salvation on God's own gracious terms, without money and without price. Lord, we desire to be debtors to that Divine grace which is sovereign, rich, and free.

Make our dear children subjects of grace. We pray not that they may be enriched with worldly wealth, or distinguished by earthly honours, but may they be enriched with grace, and adorned with salvation.

Have mercy on our relatives and friends, and may all of them belong to the honourable remnant of those who fear God, keep his commandments, and build their hopes of salvation and heaven on the righteousness of Christ alone. Comfort thine aged disciples with the assured conviction that the God of Jacob is their inheritance, and that they shall flourish in immortal youth beyond the skies.

We thank our God for the blessings of the day, and we would commit ourselves into the hands of our covenant God this night, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Lord. Amen.

COWPER.

1 KINGS XIII.

The disobedient Prophet slain by a Lion.

AND it came to pass, as they sat at the table, that the word of the Lord came unto the prophet that brought him back:

21 And he cried unto the man of God that came from Judah, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Forasmuch as thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and hast not kept the commandment which the Lord thy God commanded thee, 22 But camest back, and hast eaten bread and drunk water in the place, of the which the Lord did say to thee, Eat no bread, and drink no water; thy carcase shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 And it came to pass, after he had eaten bread, and after he had drunk, that he saddled for him the ass, to wit, for the prophet whom he had brought back.

24 And when he was gone, a lion met him by the way, and slew him: and his carcase was cast in the way, and the ass stood by it, the lion also stood by the carcase.

25 And, behold, men passed by, and saw the carcase cast in the way, and the lion standing by the carcase: and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt.

26 And when the prophet that brought him back from the way heard thereof, he said, It is the man of God, who was disobedient unto the word of the Lord: therefore the Lord hath delivered him unto the lion, which hath torn him, and slain him, according to the word of the Lord, which he spake unto him.

27 And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him.

28 And he went and found his carcase cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcase: the lion had not eaten the carcase, nor torn the ass.

29 And the prophet took up the carcase of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back: and the old prophet came to the city, to mourn and to bury him.

30 And he laid his carcase in his own grave; and they mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother!

31 And it came to pass, after he had buried him, that he spake to his sons, saying, When I am dead, then bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried; lay my bones beside his bones:

32 For the saying which he cried by the word of the Lord against the altar in Beth-el, and against all the houses of the high places which are in the cities of Samaria, shall surely come to pass.

33 After this thing Jeroboam returned not from his evil way, but made again of the lowest of the people priests of the high places: whosoever would, he consecrated him, and he became one of the priests of the high places.

34 And this thing became sin unto the house of Jeroboam, even to cut it off, and to destroy it from off the face of the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XIII.—God displays his sovereignty in the manner and means he employs for expressing his will and accomplishing his purpose. Balaam the sorcerer and the false and lying prophet, who delivered God's will to the prophet who violated God's express command, are striking illustrations of this truth. The hearts and talents of all men are in God's hand, and he can and will render them subservient to his pleasure. How very affecting the sudden and violent death of the disobedient prophet! May we live in the implicit and constant keeping of God's command, and at last depart in the enjoyment of the Divine smiles!

PRAYER.

MOST gracious Lord God, in approaching thy merciful throne in the name of Christ, we desire with humility and joy to ascribe to thy great name, glory, honour, and praise. O that each one of us would thus address thee in the exercise of a lively faith: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our God and Father in him, who, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again to a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy sovereign greatness, and in thy glorious power. Thou dost reign with undivided authority; and men and angels are subject to thy control. Thou art the disposer of riches and honour: thou givest them as seemeth meet in thy sight; and sometimes thou bestowest them on the basest of men. But we rejoice that thou dost confer on thy people the choicest blessings of thy grace. Thou takest the choicest jewels out of thy cabinet, and givest them to thy saints. If their bodies are covered with mean garments, thou dost array their souls in raiment of spiritual beauty and glory; and if they now inhabit mean abodes, thou hast made them heirs of many mansions above, where they shall enjoy the delights of thy fellowship for ever and ever.

We praise thee, O Lord, that after another night we are assembled before thy throne in the exercise of reason and in the enjoyment of health. Graciously enable us to resist the temptations of the day on which we have entered, and strengthen us in the discharge of the various duties we have in prospect; may our duty be always our delight, and may our obedience be that of loving children, and not of unwilling slaves.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the disobedient prophet, and of the prompt and alarming punishment with which his crime was followed. Teach us, O Lord, to obey thee fully and obey thee readily. We confess our disobedience with respect to thy precepts, and with respect to thine ordinances. We confess we are very guilty, in having long resisted thy command to believe in Jesus, and receive him as thine unspeakable gift. If thou hadst destroyed us in the very midst of our acts of rebellion, if thine invitations of mercy had never been renewed, and if we had been banished as eternal exiles from the land of hope to the world of gloomy despair, thou wouldst only have dealt with us according to our deserts. But we praise thee that thou art continuing thine administration of mercy and grace.

Convince our dear children of the dreadful consequences of a life of disobedience against God; that rebellion is the sin of witchcraft; but that to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

Lord, prepare us for death. If thou shouldst remove us by sudden death, O may we not die, like the disobedient prophet, under the hand of thy judgment, but, like Moses, under the smiles of thy mercy. May we live in Christ, and may we die in Christ.

Graciously lend an ear to the voice of our supplication, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

ISRAEL PUNISHED AND PARDONED.

Egypt. Isaiah. Wilmshurst.

- 1 GOD of eternal love,
How fickle are our ways;
And yet how oft did Israel prove Thy constancy of grace!
- 2 They saw thy wonders wrought,
And then thy praise they sung;
But soon thy works of power forgot,
And murmured with their tongue.
- 3 Now they believe his word,
While rocks with rivers flow;
Now with their lusts provoke the Lord,
And he reduced them low.
- 4 Yet when they mourned their faults,
He hearkened to their groans;
Brought his own covenant to his thoughts,
And called them still his sons.

Watts, Ps. 106, p. 11.

ROMANS XI.

God's Judgments Unsearchable.

THOU wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in.

20 Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear:

21 For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee.

22 Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.

23 And they also, if they abide not in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft them in again.

24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree?

25 For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.

26 And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob:

27 For this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins.

28 As concerning the Gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes.

29 For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 For as ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief:

31 Even so have these also now not believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy.

32 For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

33 O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!

34 For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor?

35 Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again?

36 For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. XI.—The Jews cast off from the Church of God, after enjoying his ordinances, protection, and smiles during a long succession of centuries, and the introduction of idolatrous Gentile nations in their place, are events without a parallel in the history of man, and are most stupendous displays of the sovereignty of God! How peculiarly offensive is unbelief to God, who is a God of truth, of mercy, and of grace! This sin was the frightful axe which was laid to the root of the Jewish nation, and by which, as a church, they were cut down and levelled with the ground, and have continued prostrate for many hundreds of years. May God mercifully preserve us from evil hearts of unbelief, that we may be preserved from the calamity of being cast off in the Divine displeasure!

PRAYER.

HOLY and gracious Spirit, the promised Comforter, we look up to thee for thy Divine influence, by which we may approach the presence of our God with holy reverence and believing confidence. We feel our unfitness, as ignorant and corrupted creatures, to present our supplications as we ought. With an Apostle may we be enabled to acknowledge that the Spirit helpeth our infirmities, and maketh intercession for us, with groanings that cannot be uttered.

We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of just severity, in casting off the Jews who crucified the Lord of glory, and who refused to receive him as thy Son and their Saviour. They imprecated the blood of Jesus to fall on their heads, and by an act of just severity thou hast visited that guilty nation with thy merited indignation for many hundreds of years. O Lord, may we stand in awe and sin not; and may we be prevented from rejecting thy well-beloved Son, and thus crucify him afresh. Convince us, O Jesus, that to reject thee is to commit against thee a sin of the highest aggravation; yea, is putting thee to an open shame, and doing despite unto the Spirit of grace.

We adore thee, most high God, as a God of unexampled and infinite goodness. We praise thee for that great manifestation of thy goodness, in calling Gentile nations into the Christian church, and making them partakers of the blessings of the covenant of grace. We praise thee for the benefits we have received by the introduction of the Gentiles into the Church of Christ. We confess as a family that we belong by nature to the wild olive-tree. May we by grace, which is contrary to nature, be grafted into the good olive-tree.

Take our dear children, who have received from us by natural descent a corrupted nature, and may they receive from thee a new nature by Divine grace. Our hearts' desire and prayer is, that they may be united to Christ, the true vine.

We rejoice, O Lord, that there is a time coming when all Israel shall be saved. We would look with pity on the rejected and unbelieving descendants of Abraham thy servant, and we would earnestly pray that thou wouldst speedily accomplish that promise, which is sure as thy throne: And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Zion, the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant with them, when I shall take away their sins.

We rejoice, O Lord, in the perpetuity of thy saving gifts, and pray that we may be invested with their possession. Suffer us not to imagine that, if we once possess them, we shall ever lose them, seeing the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

When we meditate on the mysteries of thy providence and grace, we would exclaim, O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God!

We thank God for our daily mercies, and supplicate our heavenly Father's care this night. These our prayers, we present in the name of Jesus, our great High Priest and Mediator. Amen, and amen.

1 KINGS XV.

Asa's Good Reign.

NOW in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam the son of Nebat reigned Abijam over Judah.

2 Three years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom.

3 And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father.

4 Nevertheless for David's sake did the LORD his God give him a lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and to establish Jerusalem:

5 Because David did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, and turned not aside from any thing that he commanded him all the days of his life, save only in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

6 And there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of his life.

7 Now the rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the Chronicles of the kings of Judah? And there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.

8 And Abijam slept with his fathers; and they buried him in the city of David: and Asa his son reigned in his stead.

9 And in the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Asa over Judah.

10 And forty and one years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom.

11 And Asa did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, as did David his father.

12 And he took away the sodomites out of the land, and removed all the idols that his fathers had made.

13 And also Maachah his mother, even her he removed from being queen, because she had made an idol in a grove; and Asa destroyed her idol, and burnt it by the brook Kidron.

14 But the high places were not removed: nevertheless Asa's heart was perfect with the LORD all his days.

15 And he brought in the things which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, into the house of the LORD, silver, and gold, and vessels.

16 The rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his might, and all that he did, and the cities which he built, are they not written in the book of the Chronicles of the kings of Judah? Nevertheless in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet.

17 And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead.

REMARKS UPON 1 KINGS XV.—An ungodly king is an affecting spectacle. When kings rebel against the King of kings, they present a most corrupting example before their subjects, which spreads its baneful fatal influence, like the desolating deadly pestilence! Abijam the king of Judah resembled his father's sins, and bore his father's image. Our parents have handed down to us a legacy of sin, and we were by nature children of wrath, even as others. Parents cannot be too deeply and too constantly impressed with the importance of presenting before their offspring a holy example, exhibiting in living characters and lives the loveliness and influence of Gospel-truth, the loveliness and influence of grace Divine. By a corrupt example, what myriads of children are led to hell; while we rejoice that multitudes of children, by a holy example, are allured and persuaded by the Holy Spirit to begin their journey to heaven.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, our sanctifier and comforter, let gratitude and joy inspire our hearts, that we are permitted, on the return of another day, to present our morning sacrifice. We adore the condescension of our God, that the sinfulness of our persons and the imperfection of our services are no insuperable bar in our way to prevent the acceptance of our persons or the answer of our prayers. Gracious God, thou hast done much for us, and thy patience is great in having borne long with us under all our numerous and aggravated sins. Thou art he alone from whom cometh our salvation; and it is by thee alone we can be preserved from our spiritual enemies, and obtain deliverance from the sting of death. To whom therefore can we go, but unto thee? Lord, prepare our hearts for approaching thy throne, and enjoying fellowship with thyself. The preparation of the heart is from thee alone. O pour out upon us the spirit of grace and supplication.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the mercies of the night. We laid ourselves down to sleep, and we have risen again in safety, for thou hast sustained us. In all the duties and engagements of this day, may we be disposed to glorify thy name. In all places, in all employments, and in all societies, may we be preserved from evil, and may we discover the sanctifying influence of religion on our heart, our conversation, and our lives. May we enjoy thy power as our guard, thy wisdom as our guide, and thy promises as our consolation. Along the vale of life may we be led by thy wisdom; and, when our journey terminates, may we be brought to thy kingdom and glory.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy sovereignty, in permitting wicked kings to reign over nations, as a punishment of their sins. May our beloved land be preserved from the heavy calamity of wicked and profane rulers. Give unfeigned piety to our legislators and our magistrates; that they may not only be holy toward God, but righteous toward men. May our rulers resemble Asa, who did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, as did David his father.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the King of kings. Thou art possessed of every perfection; justice and judgment are the security of thy government, while thy mercy and truth diffuse innumerable blessings among thy loving and devoted subjects.

We find, O Lord, that Abijam walked in the sins of his father: mercifully prevent that we should exhibit before our children an example of sin, to betray them from thy paths.

As thy servant Asa endeavoured to improve the corrupted inhabitants of the land over which he reigned, may we individually be enabled to remove from our hearts and lives what is offensive to God and injurious to the soul.

When our present life comes to a close, may we die in peace, as Asa died. O impart unto us that lively faith in Christ by which we shall smile at death's alarms, and look upon the last enemy as a conquered foe.

May our prayers come up with acceptance before thy throne, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

ROMANS XII.

Practical Duties.

I BESEECH you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

2 And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God.

3 For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.

6 Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophecy according to the proportion of faith;

7 Or ministry, let us wait on our ministering; or he that teacheth, on teaching;

8 Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: he that giveth, let him do it with simplicity; he that ruleth, with diligence; he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.

9 Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good.

10 Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love: in honour preferring one another;

11 Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord;

12 Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer;

13 Distributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality.

14 Bless them which persecute you: bless, and curse not.

15 Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.

16 Be of the same mind one toward another. Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate. Be not wise in your own conceits.

17 Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men.

18 If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.

19 Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.

20 Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.

21 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. XII.—Did Jesus present himself a sacrifice for us upon the altar of the Divine nature? Did he shed his blood for us? Did his body experience the agonies of crucifixion for us? In presenting himself a sacrifice for us, did his blessed and spotless humanity expire upon the accursed tree? Then how just, how important, how necessary, that we should dedicate ourselves and all we are and have to his service and glory. Pride is the characteristic of a child of Satan, but humility is a characteristic of a child of God. May we be clothed with humility! May this grace be our daily exercise! May it be our daily apparel! The believer, in addition to his natural talents, has spiritual and saving gifts. These are given by the Divine Donor for the very highest purposes and the most important ends—namely, his own glory, his people's good, and the interests of Zion. In proportion as the graces of the Spirit are in lively exercise in the believer's heart, is he alive to the holy, sacred ends for which his gifts were bestowed, and diligent in devoting all to the service and honour of his Saviour and his God. The Gospel inculcates pure and universal morality. It especially teaches, that we were not made for ourselves alone, that we are all members of one great redeemed family, whose spiritual prosperity should be the object of our affectionate interest, and the subject of our earnest prayers.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the God of salvation, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art incomprehensible in thy nature, and infinite in all thine excellencies. All things are before thine eye, which is omniscient, and all things are at thy disposal. Thou wilt overrule every event for declaring thy glory and accomplishing thy will. How unfit are we to appear before the throne of an all-seeing, heart-searching God! We would therefore supplicate the Holy Spirit to give us that devotional, reverential frame, and those holy Divine graces, which are so necessary in approaching the mercy-seat of a prayer-bearing God.

O Lord, we acknowledge our unworthiness of the mercies we have received during the past day. We thank thee for the exercise of our mental powers, and for the degree of health and bodily strength we enjoy. Lord, give us better blessings than those which are natural and temporal; give us blessings which are spiritual and eternal. Keep and bless us this night, and may thy powerful hand avert from us every description of danger. We feel our need of sleep and repose: may we be refreshed by these blessings. May our bodily wants and bodily weakness remind us often of another and a better state, where the infirmities of mind and body are for ever unknown. Lord, prepare us for the sleep of death; and when our mortal eyes shall cease to see the glory of the natural sun, may the eyes of our soul be opened to behold the unveiled glory of God and the Lamb.

Gracious Spirit, bless to us the suitable and practical counsels we have now read. Incline our hearts to follow and obey them. Now we would dedicate to the Lord our God our bodies and our souls. We seek thy heavenly grace, that we may present ourselves living sacrifices, holy and acceptable, which is our reasonable service.

May our dear children be persuaded to make an early surrender of themselves to Jesus. Never may they be left to give up their bodies and souls to the service of Satan or the vile drudgery of carnal lusts.

Lord, deliver us from the corruptions of a depraved and an ensnaring world. Suffer us not to be conformed to the world in its sinful maxims and polluting pleasures. We long for the transforming influence of the Spirit, by which our mind may be renewed, and the image of Jesus impressed on our soul.

Gracious God, inspire us with holy benevolence. Ever may we be kindly affectionate one toward another, in honour preferring one another. Give us sympathy for the indigent members of the family of Christ. As far as providence has given us the power, may we distribute to the necessities of the saints. We pray that we may ever be the lovers, the promoters, and the followers of peace. As a family may we be blessed with that Gospel peace which is the prelude of the peace of heaven.

Graciously hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

STEELE.

1 KINGS XVII.

Elijah fed by Ravens.

AND Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, As the LORD God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word.

- 2 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,
- 3 Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.
- 4 And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there.
- 5 So he went and did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.
- 6 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook.
- 7 And it came to pass after a while, that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.
- 8 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,
- 9 Arise, get thee to Zarephath, which belongeth to Sidon, and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee.
- 10 So he arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold the widow woman was there gathering of sticks: and he called to her, and said, Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.
- 11 And as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thine hand.
- 12 And she said, As the LORD thy God liveth, I have not a cake, but an handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse: and, behold, I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die.
- 13 And Elijah said unto her, Fear not; go and do as thou hast said: but make me thereof a little cake first, and bring it unto me, and after make for thee and for thy son.
- 14 For thus saith the LORD God of Israel, The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall the cruse of oil fail, until the day that the LORD sendeth rain upon the earth.
- 15 And she went and did according to the saying of Elijah: and she, and he, and her house, did eat many days.
- 16 And the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by Elijah.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XVII.—Elijah was one of the most wonderful of God's saints and prophets that ever lived upon the face of the earth. His name excels every other name given even to the most distinguished of prophets. It literally signifies, "My God, he is Jehovah!" God was pre-eminently his God: he was pre-eminently with him all his life, as his counsellor, his comforter, and his defender. He enjoyed in a most especial degree the fellowship of his God. Never were prayers more powerful than the prayers of this holy man, whether in a way of judgment, or in a way of mercy. His most interesting life was accompanied with the most splendid miracles, in a period of the darkest idolatry and contempt of Jehovah; and miracles which made him the terror of the worst of kings, and the most corrupted of priests.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O God of our salvation, as the Divine and inexhaustible source of all blessings. We thank thee for the gracious protection of another night, and that we hear the voice of mercy saying unto us, They that seek me early shall find me. May we, as a family, answer in the language of holy and animating devotion, O Lord, thou art our God, and early will we seek thee. Would to God that all possessed the spirit which animated thy servant, when he said, Unto thee have I cried, O Lord; and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee. I prevented the dawning of the morning, and cried; I hoped in thy word. Mine eyes prevent the night watches, that I might meditate in thy word. We would earnestly long for those sacred and animating emotions which warmed the Psalmist's heart; and would sincerely mourn in the presence of God, that our devotions are so languid, and our hearts so cold.

We look to God for grace to live up this day to the great end of our being. May we not be slothful in business, but fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Let us not be left to seek temporal blessings in preference to spiritual mercies, nor the comforts of the body before those of the soul. O teach us to seek the kingdom of heaven first, believing, according to thy word, that all other things shall be added unto us.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the God of providence. We hear thy voice in the refreshing breeze, and we see thy goodness in the descending showers. When thou seest meet to punish a nation for their sins, how easily canst thou restrain the clouds from sending down rain, and how soon art thou able to involve a nation in all the calamities of destroying famine! Thus thou didst punish guilty Ahab and his guilty subjects; for years thou didst withhold the blessings of rain and dew. We thank thee for not dealing thus with our guilty nation; thou hast given us the former and the latter rain. And we praise thee for the appearance of plenty with which our valleys and our plains are adorned.

We adore thee, O Lord, for all those gracious and Divine interpositions of thy Providence in behalf of thy people so numerous recorded upon the pages of inspiration. Thou didst often appear miraculously in behalf of thy prophets and people. Give us, we earnestly pray, a lively faith in thy promises for temporal blessings as well as for spiritual comforts. If we are exposed to indigence and straits, may the remembrance of the ravens which were sent to feed Elijah, and the supplies he received from the barrel of meal and the cruse of oil in the house of the widow of Zarephath—may this convince us that thou wilt never leave us, that our bread shall be given us, and that our water shall be sure.

O that our beloved children may never feel the suffering of the want of bread. But, above all, may they and our domestics hunger and thirst after righteousness.

May all of us dwell high in the Divine favour; and may our place of defence be the munition of rocks. We desire, O Lord, to trust in thee for life, for death, and for the eternal world. Hear our feeble prayers, for our adorable Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 ETERNAL Sovereign of the sky,

Our first obedience owe.
- 2 Our souls adore thy throne supreme,
And bless thy providence,

ROMANS XIII.

Subjection to Magistrates.

LET every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God.

2 Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves condemnation.

3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same:

4 For he is the minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil.

5 Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake.

6 For this cause pay ye tribute also: for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing.

7 Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.

8 Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.

9 For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

11 And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

12 The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.

13 Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying.

14 But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS XIII.—Is submission to human authorities essentially necessary for our own individual happiness, and for the well-being of society? How much more necessary, just, and advantageous it must be to yield implicit obedience to the authority of Jesus, who is both our Saviour and our King. If the violating of human laws be so injurious, an impenitent violation of the laws of Christ must be attended by consequences fatal and irreparable. Good earthly government never fails to prove a blessing to man: inestimable are the blessings which flow from the government of Christ, Zion's renowned and gracious King; and of whom it is said, as it never could be said of any earthly rulers, "Justice and judgment are the habitation of his throne, mercy and truth go before his face." When the grace of Divine love has taken possession of the soul, it is the blessed fountain whence flows the performance of those duties we owe to our rulers, our relatives, our neighbours, the Church, ourselves, and our God. If all our duties we are required to perform be compared to a machine, consisting of numerous wheels, love is the main spring which must move the whole: otherwise, all will be motionless and dead.

PRAYER.

MOST blessed and glorious Jehovah, we thy creatures, dependents, and subjects, encouraged to approach thee under the merit of our divine Advocate, adore and praise thee as the unlimited and absolute ruler of the universe, from whom all righteous and legitimate authority and government proceed. It is by thee kings reign and princes decree justice. It is by thee princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth. We adore thee, God of salvation, in the glory and extent of thy dominion.

High as the heavens are above the earth thou dost reign the Creator, God; and thine awful rod extends as far as the limits of creation.

We present the tribute of thanksgiving for the goodness which we, as thy subjects, have experienced at thy gracious hand this day. Every portion of our time proclaims, The goodness of the Lord endureth continually. While we have reason to rejoice that thy goodness is daily, we have reason to lament that our sins are daily. Lord, extend, through Christ, thy pardoning goodness to the sins of the past day; and may all of us have reason to believe that by an act of pardoning goodness thou hast removed our sins from us, as far as the east is distant from the west.

We seek the blessing of God on the word read. We thank God for the constitution and advantages of civil society. We thank thee that our lot is cast in a country where rulers and laws exist, under which great security is given to our life, our property, our liberties, and our religious privileges. We praise God that we have the unspeakable privilege of sitting down under our own vine and our own fig-tree, none daring to make us afraid. We thank thee that not a few of our rulers fear God; and we earnestly pray that all our magistrates and legislators may be adorned with Divine grace. May they ever trace the authority they possess to Christ, the Lord of lords; and may they employ their influence and power for the glory of God, and for advancing the prosperity of Immanuel's kingdom. Give to them a spirit of wisdom and understanding, a spirit of counsel and of might, a spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord.

Wherever wicked and tyrannical rulers are found, either mercifully renovate their souls with Divine grace, or, in compassion to those who are suffering under their iron yoke, do thou remove them from their authority.

As it is our duty to pay lawful tribute to earthly rulers, may we never forget to render the tribute of love, of homage, and obedience to our Saviour and Lord.

O Jesus, make our dear children thy loving subjects. May they love thee as a gracious and condescending King. Ever may they consider thy yoke easy and thy burden light.

We thank thee, O Lord, not only for the doctrines, but also for the morality of the Gospel. Blessed Jesus, thou author of the Gospel, in conformity to thy will, may we be careful to owe no man anything, but to love one another. Let our family and our congregation be distinguished for Christian love. And by thy Spirit may we put on the Lord Jesus, and make no provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof.

We commit ourselves to thy care this night. Hear our humble prayers, for Jesus our Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

SANCTIFIED AFFLICTION.

1 KINGS XVII.

Widow's Son raised to Life.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore, that there was no breath left in him.

18 And she said unto Elijah, What have I to do with thee, O thou man of God? art thou come unto me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son?

19 And he said unto her, Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.

20 And he cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?

21 And he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again.

22 And the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived.

23 And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, See, thy son liveth.

24 And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in thy mouth is truth.

1 KINGS XVIII.

Elijah and Obadiah.

AND it came to pass after many days, that the word of the LORD came to Elijah in the third year, saying, Go, shew thyself unto Ahab; and I will send rain upon the earth.

2 And Elijah went to shew himself unto Ahab. And there was a sore famine in Samaria.

3 And Ahab called Obadiah, which was the governor of his house. (Now Obadiah feared the LORD greatly:

4 For it was so, when Jezebel cut off the prophets of the LORD, that Obadiah took an hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water.)

5 And Ahab said unto Obadiah, Go into the land, unto all fountains of water, and unto all brooks: peradventure we may find grass to save the horses and mules alive, that we lose not all the beasts.

6 So they divided the land between them to pass through-out it: Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

REMARKS UPON 1 KINGS XVII., XVIII.—Parents are much tried by the maladies with which their beloved offspring are visited in infancy and childhood. The sufferings of the children are the sorrows of the parents. Believers are taught to believe and enjoy this truth, "That while God does not afflict his people willingly—that though he takes no delight in their afflictions as such, he afflicts them wisely, mercifully, and beneficially." When may we know and conclude our afflictions are sanctified? This is the case when they deeply and penitentially humble us, by bringing our sins to remembrance. Many have to mourn over the untimely death of their children, and think that all these things are against them. But the child of God is taught to believe, that his dear little children removed by death are taken away from the evil to come, and that they are removed to a heavenly home, for ever to enjoy a Saviour's smiles.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art sovereign, wise, and just in all the afflictions of the children of men. We rejoice that no affliction ever befalls thy people, which is not mingled with thy goodness. We praise thee that the sufferings of thy people are not permitted to accomplish the destruction, but are employed to promote the improvement, of those that love thee. We rejoice that thou hast said, Behold, I have refined thee, but not with silver: I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction.

We thank thee, gracious God, that we are not now laid upon the bed of affliction, but are permitted and enabled, in the enjoyment of some degree of bodily health and mental tranquillity, to approach thy throne, after the darkness and retirement of another night, and present our morning supplications. We seek thy grace to guide us this day in our various duties, whether these duties respect time or eternity, the soul or the body, earth or heaven. Lord, preserve us from falling into temptation. Give us strong desires to seek and do thy will, and strong desires to avoid whatever is opposed to thy holy and Divine pleasure.

We humbly crave the blessing of the Holy Spirit on what we have now read. We adore thee in the affliction which deprived the pious widow of Zarephath of her beloved son and her only child. We thank thee that the death of her child brought her sin to her remembrance. Lord, grant that all our afflictions may bring our sins to our remembrance. God forbid that we should be hardened under our afflictions, which are sent by a wise and gracious God to soften our hearts, to alienate our affections from earthly objects, and raise our hopes and desires to heaven. In taking a review of all our afflictions, we pray that we may have just cause to acknowledge, Lord, thou hast proved our suffering souls in thy mercy, to make our graces shine, as silver is refined by burning coals.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the displays of thy mercy given to thy people in the furnace of affliction; for supporting them under their afflictions, and for giving them sometimes the most unexpected deliverances. We adore thee in thy compassion toward the bereaved widow whose son was miraculously raised to life by thy servant Elijah. We thank thee for the great honour thou hast affixed to the humble, earnest prayers of thy people, and for the instances recorded in Scripture of miraculous answers given to their believing supplications.

As the prophet prayed for the natural life of the widow's son, so we would pray for the spiritual life of our dear children. Let them no longer remain in a state of spiritual death.

O have mercy on all our relations who are dead in trespasses and sins. May a principle of spiritual life be communicated to them, which will issue in a life of immortality in heaven. We lament over the wages of sin, which is death; O give us reason to rejoice over the gift of God, which is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord! We present these humble prayers before thee, with all their imperfections, and lift up our eyes to thee for acceptance, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

ROMANS XVI.

Paul's Salutations.

I COMMEND unto you Phebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchræa:

2 That ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also.

3 Greet Priscilla and Aquila my helpers in Christ Jesus:

4 Who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles.

5 Likewise greet the Church that is in their house. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, who is the first-fruits of Achaia unto Christ.

6 Greet Mary, who bestowed much labour on us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia, my kinsmen, and my fellow-prisoners, who are of note among the Apostles, who also were in Christ before me.

8 Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbane, our helper in Christ, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles approved in Christ. Salute them which are of Aristobulus' household.

11 Salute Herodion my kinsman. Greet them that be of the household of Narcissus, which are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which laboured much in the Lord.

13 Salute Rufus chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

14 Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren which are with them.

15 Salute Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints which are with them.

16 Salute one another with an holy kiss. The churches of Christ salute you.

25 Now to him that is of power to establish you according to my Gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery, which was kept secret since the world began,

26 But now is made manifest, and by the Scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith:

27 To God only wise, be glory, through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON ROM. XVI.—Phebe was only a humble servant; yet, on account of her piety, zeal, and activity, she was instrumental, in the hand of God, in rendering the Church and cause of Christ the greatest service in the days of their early history. While the names of kings and of heroes are forgotten, her honoured name is preserved upon the page of inspiration, and shall be for ever held in remembrance. May we all feel powerfully and effectually influenced by the example of Phebe, this humble, honoured maid-servant. May the genuine language of our hearts be, "Lord Jesus, I am thy servant, what wilt thou have me to do?" How different from Priscilla and Aquila, are many professors of the faith!—instead of being helpers to the ministers of Christ, they are hinderers. That is a noble ambition which God will honour, bless, and accept—namely, an earnest desire to be instruments in the hand of the Spirit, by giving help, succour, and encouragement to the faithful ministers of Christ, who are employed in the most sacred and important work that can possibly occupy the attention of men, or of angels—namely, holding up Christ and salvation, and making known his unsearchable riches to a perishing world.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the Lord our God, and as a God of boundless benevolence and mercy. Thou art the FATHER of mercies, delighting in the happiness of thy creatures, and making thy sun to shine alike upon the evil and the good, and causing the rain to descend upon the just and the unjust. We thank thee for the enjoyment of all that goodness, temporal and spiritual, we have experienced in the past day and enjoyed in the past week. We praise thee that another opportunity is afforded us at the end of the week to acknowledge thy mercy, and to supplicate the continued communication of thy goodness, till our bodily eyes are shut in death; yea, to remain with us during an endless immortality.

We invoke the protecting care of our heavenly Father during this night. If consistent with thy wise and sovereign arrangements, may we rise, on the morning of the sacred Sabbath, from our bed, refreshed with sleep, and invigorated and animated for the holy services of thy sanctuary.

May all thy ministering servants enter upon the engagements of the day with spiritual animation and with holy vigour. May they be like giants refreshed; may they resemble the strong man, ready to run a race. May their hearts be warmed with Divine love, and may thy most blessed word fall with burning ardour from their lips. But above all, may the unction of the Holy Ghost accompany a preached Gospel. O take thy word, the incorruptible seed, and where it is sown may it spring up in many hearts, and bring forth a rich harvest of converting grace, and of the fruits of righteousness.

Let a preached Gospel be to our children and servants a saving message; and, while hearing the word with their external ear, may their hearts inwardly experience its quickening power.

Lord, bless to us that holy and abundant manifestation of Christian and apostolical love of which we have now read. When we think of that warm display of Christian affection, so beautifully expressed by thy servant in his letter to the Roman Church, what reason have we to mourn over the coldness of our love to our Saviour, and to those who bear our Saviour's image, breathe his spirit, and appear clothed in his righteousness! Lord, increase our love to thyself, and our love to thy saints. May each of this family, may all our relatives and friends, and may all who constitute the congregation to which we belong, be enabled with the heart to employ the language of an Apostle: We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren.

Lord, graciously bestow on us these comely excellences, which adorned those humble, active, primitive Christians of whom we have now read. May we resemble Phebe, who was a succourer of many. Like Aquila and Priscilla, may we be helpers in Christ Jesus. As a family may we be beloved in the Lord, and may we labour much in the Lord. Graciously hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. The grace of our Lord Jesus be with us all. Amen.

To God, only wise, be glory, through Jesus Christ, for ever. Amen.

L. H.

- 1 GREAT God, how oft did Israel prove
By turns thine anger and thy love!
There in a glass our hearts may see How fickle and how false they be.
- 2 How soon the faithless Jews forgot
The dreadful wonders God had wrought!
Then they provoke him to his face,
Nor fear his power, nor trust his grace.
- 3 The Lord consumed their years in pain,
And made their travels long and vain;
A tedious march through unknown ways,
Wore out their strength, and spent their days.
- 4 Yet did his sovereign grace forgive
The men who not deserved to live;
His anger oft away he turned,
Or else with gentle flame it burned.

Watts, Ps. 78, p. IV.

PSALM LXXXI.

God's Kindness.

SING aloud unto God our strength: make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob.

2 Take a psalm, and bring hither the timbrel, the pleasant harp with the psaltery.

3 Blow up the trumpet in the new moon, in the time appointed, on our solemn feast day.

4 For this was a statute for Israel, and a law of the God of Jacob.

5 This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony, when he went out through the land of Egypt: where I heard a language that I understood not.

6 I removed his shoulder from the burden: his hands were delivered from the pots.

7 Thou calledst in trouble, and I delivered thee; I answered thee in the secret place of thunder: I proved thee at the waters of Meribah. Selah.

8 Hear, O my people, and I will testify unto thee: O Israel, if thou wilt hearken unto me;

9 There shall no strange God be in thee; neither shalt thou worship any strange god.

10 I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it.

11 But my people would not hearken to my voice; and Israel would none of me.

12 So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lust: and they walked in their own counsels.

13 Oh that my people had hearkened unto me, and Israel had walked in my ways!

14 I should soon have subdued their enemies, and turned my hand against their adversaries.

15 The haters of the Lord should have submitted themselves unto him: but their time should have endured for ever.

16 He should have fed them also with the finest of the wheat: and with honey out of the rock should I have satisfied thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXI.—Is Jesus our strength and salvation? then he deserves our loudest, sweetest, and most loving songs of praise. What reason we have for thankfulness and joy, that we have so rich, and diversified, and suitable a collection of inspired songs, by which we are assisted in presenting our sacrifices of praise before the throne of grace; and also taught by the Spirit to make melody with our hearts unto the Lord. God's deliverances of his Church and of his individual saints furnish matter of never-ceasing songs of thanksgiving and praise. While pious Israelites proceeded in their journey through the wilderness to Canaan, great were their emotions of gratitude and love when they remembered their unparalleled deliverance from the galling bondage of Egypt, and their miraculous passage through the Red Sea. Though God taketh no pleasure in the troubles of his people, he takes the greatest pleasure in changing them into blessings, and in listening to their earnest, believing, and loving supplications, which in the day of trouble ascend before his throne.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we praise thee for another day of sacred rest, another day of the Son of man—another day, the emblem of that eternal day of heavenly rest on which thy people shall enter, when the present night of their sorrow, temptation, and trial has come to an end. We thank a gracious and a special Providence that we have been refreshed and preserved during the past night. O Lord, we would begin the day by calling on thy name. With the Psalmist we desire to say, O Lord, thou art our God, early will we seek thee. We acknowledge that this world in itself, and as it respects the concerns and wants of the soul, is a dry and thirsty land, where no water is. May we look forward with earnest expectations to thy public ordinances, that we may see thy power and thy glory. O let our souls be satisfied as with marrow and fatness, when we surround thy Gospel table, and when thy rich blessings are presented before us for our acceptance. Blessed shall we be, if each one of us shall be able to say respecting the rich and the spiritual provision of thy house and of thy holy, hallowed day, Not all the rich dainties of a feast can please my soul so much, as when I taste the provision of thy house, and dwell in thy presence.

O Lord, fulfil thy gracious promise in the experience of all thy ministers. Thou hast said, Lo! I am with you always. O enable them to lay hold of this promise; then they shall enjoy thy help, and in thy strength shall be successful in pulling down the strongholds of corruption and rebellion. Make them faithful in addressing the hearts and consciences of men, faithful in exposing the corruptions of the heart, faithful in showing the vanity and danger of false grounds of confidence and hope, faithful in proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ, and faithful in showing the necessity of the influence of the Spirit for the conversion of sinners and the edification of saints.

Have mercy on the thousands of the rising race who shall be assembled this day for the purpose of Divine instruction. O Lord, have mercy on these lambs of thy flock. Take them up into thine arms, and bless them.

May our dear children be introduced into the flock of Christ, and be enabled with the Psalmist to sing, The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want. May our servants taste the pure joys of religion, and drink of the waters of salvation.

Have mercy on our rulers. May they hearken unto thee, and walk in thy ways; then thou wilt subdue their enemies, and turn their hand against their enemies. God forbid that our rulers should ever provoke thee to say respecting them, So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lusts, and they walked in their own counsels.

We pray, O Lord, for the afflicted who are unable to appear in thy courts this day. Have mercy on such of them as are graceless, and lead them to Jesus, who alone can comfort the soul amid the sorrows of life. O convince them of the dreadful folly of living without Him who is the only comforter of the afflicted. And have mercy on the afflicted who fear thy name; and enable them this day to glory in tribulation, and look forward to the joys of heaven.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

MAGISTRATES WARNED.

L. M.

- 1 AMONG the assemblies of the great,
A greater Ruler takes his seat;
The God of heaven, as Judge, surveys
Those gods on earth, and all their ways.
- 2 Why will ye then frame wicked laws?
Or why support the unrighteous cause?
When will ye once defend the poor,
That sinners vex the saints no more
- 3 Arise, O Lord, and let thy Son
Possess his universal throne,
And rule the nations with his rod;
He is our Judge, and he our God.

Watts, Ps. 62.

PSALM LXXXII.

Advice to Magistrates.

GOD standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods.

- 2 How long will ye judge unjustly, and accept the persons of the wicked? Selah.
- 3 Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy.
- 4 Deliver the poor and needy: rid them out of the hand of the wicked.
- 5 They know not, neither will they understand; they walk on in darkness: all the foundations of the earth are out of course.
- 6 I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most high.
- 7 But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes.
- 8 Arise, O God, judge the earth: for thou shalt inherit all nations.

PSALM LXXXIII.

Miserable End of the Enemies of the Church.

KEEP not thou silence, O God: hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God.

- 2 For, lo, thine enemies make a tumult: and they that hate thee have lifted up the head.
- 3 They have taken crafty counsel against thy people, and consulted against thy hidden ones.
- 4 They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; that the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance.
- 5 For they have consulted together with one consent: they are confederate against thee:
- 6 O my God, make them like a wheel; as the stubble before the wind.
- 7 As the fire burneth a wood, and as the flame setteth the mountains on fire;
- 8 So persecute them with thy tempest, and make them afraid with thy storm.
- 9 Fill their faces with shame; that they may seek thy name, O Lord.
- 10 Let them be confounded and troubled for ever; yea, let them be put to shame, and perish:
- 11 That men may know that thou, whose name alone is JEHOVAH, art the most high over all the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXII., LXXXIII.—Dignified is the office of magistrates, as the deputies of God. And with solemn awe and strict equity ought they to fix their decisions, as in God's presence, and as accountable to him. Yet how commonly do many of them indulge themselves in injustice and partiality! For want of substance to obtain their rights, the poor are ordinarily trampled upon by unjust and cruel oppressors: but God is their guardian; and let wicked magistrates do their worst, he will at last redress the grievances of his poor and afflicted ones. When rulers are wicked, let us fervently pray that God may soon subdue the world to the righteousness and government of his Son. When God in answer to the earnest and believing prayers of his persecuted people, lifts up his voice against the enemies of his Church, it is louder and more terrible than the thunders of the sky. For a season the enemies of Zion may appear to prosper and triumph; but they are preparing for themselves a dreadful doom. Now, they will not open their eyes to see their sin and their guilt; but when the day of God's vengeance comes, their eyes shall be open to see the cup of wrath, the very dregs of which they shall be compelled to drink. Often they have sought and attempted the utter destruction of Christ's cause and kingdom; they have always failed, and they must always fail. For what can human craft do in contending with boundless wisdom and human weakness—in fighting with omnipotent power?

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, with humility and reverence we would approach thy throne of grace, through the merit of our Divine and merciful Redeemer. We adore thee as the ruler of princes, and the ruler of angels. Thou art he who standeth in the congregation of the mighty, and who judgeth among the gods. Thou dost observe and control and overrule all the decisions of earthly kings and earthly rulers. How often hast thou in mercy to thy people defeated their proud and tyrannical purposes! how often hast thou said to them, Hitherto shalt thou come, and no farther; and here shall the proud waves of thy pride and cruel ambition be stayed! Thy name alone is Jehovah. This thy name thou wilt not give to another, and this is thy glorious memorial, which shall endure to all generations. Thou art the Most High over all the earth; and all kings and princes and conquerors are only grasshoppers in thy sight. O impress the minds of earthly rulers with a deep and humbling sense of thy glory, thy might, and thy sovereignty. May they feel their own insignificance when compared with thee; and may they remember that they are accountable to thee, and that there is a day fast approaching when, like other men, they shall stand before thy tribunal, and hear a just and impartial sentence pronounced upon them by Christ, the judge of all.

Teach all our rulers, and all the rulers of the earth, to place Jesus before them as their pattern, and may they walk in his footsteps as their example. May righteousness be the girdle of their loins, and faithfulness the girdle of their reins.

We thank thee, O thou King of Zion, that the Gospel has been preached this day in many parts of the earth by thy faithful servants. We praise thee for all thy gracious assistance which has been afforded to thy ministers, and for all that edification and comfort which has been imparted to thy people. Especially we would thank thee for that saving benefit which has been extended to perishing sinners, in bringing them from under the degrading slavery of sin and Satan, and introducing them to the glorious liberty of the children of God. O Lord, we would rejoice over their deliverance, and join our thanksgivings and praises with the songs of praises before the throne.

Blessed Jesus, make our dear children and servants the subjects of converting grace, if they have not yet tasted the sweet joys of Divine love.

We pray for aged pilgrims. Encourage their hearts with the animating prospect of being for ever with the Lord, when the infirmities of old age shall afflict them no more for ever. May they mount up with wings as eagles; may they run, and not be weary; may they walk, and not faint. Make them in old age to flourish like the palm-tree, and grow like the cedar in Lebanon.

We commit ourselves, and all our beloved connections and friends, this night, to the care of our new-covenant God. O hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

WATTS, 103, B. I.

1 KINGS XVIII.

Elijah, Obadiah, and Ahab.

AND as Obadiah was in the way, behold, Elijah met him : and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said, Art thou that my lord Elijah ?

8 And he answered him, I am : go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

9 And he said, What have I sinned, that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me ?

10 As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee : and when they said, He is not there ; he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not.

11 And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

12 And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that the Spirit of the Lord shall carry thee whither I know not ; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me : but I thy servant fear the Lord from my youth.

13 Was it not told my lord, what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the Lord, how I hid an hundred men of the Lord's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water ?

14 And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here : and he shall slay me.

15 And Elijah said, As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself unto him to-day.

16 So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him : and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

17 And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel ?

18 And he answered, I have not troubled Israel : but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim.

19 Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, which eat at Jezebel's table.

20 So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets together unto mount Carmel.

21 And Elijah came unto all the people, and said, How long halt ye between two opinions ? if the Lord be God, follow him : but if Baal, then follow him. And the people answered him not a word.

22 Then said Elijah unto the people, I, even I only, remain a prophet of the Lord ; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men.

23 Let them therefore give us two bullocks ; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under : and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under :

24 And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord : and the God that answereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, It is well spoken.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XVIII.—In whatever place, or in whatever circumstances true believers meet, like Obadiah and Elijah, they recognise and love each other as children of the same family, redeemed by the same Saviour, and travelling to the same heaven. As in the case of Ahab, we find that the most wicked of masters have sometimes the best of servants. Ahab was the vilest idolater, and his servant Obadiah the most faithful and devout worshipper of the God of Israel, the only, the living, and the true God. God overruled Obadiah's service in Ahab's house for most important ends ; and one of these consisted in this holy influential man's hiding an hundred of the Lord's prophets in a cave. How commendable when pious servants, in graceless families, lay themselves out for usefulness in Christ's cause.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire, as thy humble and unworthy suppliants, to draw near to thy throne, under a reverential impression of thy glorious and unbounded majesty. O what reason have we to rejoice that the God of glory is a God of grace, and that God is as glorious in his grace and mercy as in any other of his attributes ! O Lord Jehovah, thou art he who framed the globe, and who built the firmament of the sky. The shining worlds on high, the blessed residence of angels, are thy workmanship. There thou art arrayed in robes of uncreated light, compared with which the brightest created glory sinks into complete obscurity. How divinely bright, thou great Immanuel, thy beauties shine amid the spirits of just men made perfect, who are raised from ignominy and sin by thy blood and righteousness, to sit beside thee on thy throne, and to be sharers of the blessedness of thy triumphs and thy glory ! O that all who are kneeling before thee may now receive thee by faith as their Surety and Saviour ! then shall they be associated for ever with those glorious bands who for ever live in the enjoyment of all that felicity which is peculiar to the beatific presence.

What reason have we to thank a gracious Providence for the preserving care we have experienced during the past night, and that we are now assembled in thy presence and around the domestic altar in circumstances of comfort and of peace ! Give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may serve thee faithfully this day, that we may be preserved from the snares of a corrupting world, and that our lives and actions may adorn the Gospel of Christ.

Bless to us the important history we have now read. May all of us resemble Obadiah, the servant of king Ahab, in love to thy ministers. May we be instructed to love them, for the sake of their Divine Master, for the sake of the Gospel, and for the sake of thy kingdom. Lord, have mercy on all thy persecuted servants, whether they are openly persecuted by wicked magistrates, or more privately by the crafty enemies of thy church.

O Lord, put the spirit of Elijah into the minds of all thy ministers. Deliver them from the fear of men and of princes. May they openly yet prudently expose the sins of the great before whom they are called to preach, as Elijah, with manly fidelity, exposed the sins of Ahab, who had forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and followed Baalim.

Lord, show compassion to our beloved offspring, and let them not halt between two opinions, whether they shall serve sin or Christ. O give them and our servants grace to decide now, and surrender themselves to the love, the faith, and the service of Jesus.

Prepare us, gracious God, for all the duties, temptations, events, and trials of this week. All we ask is only for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE GLORY OF CHRIST.

Christian Soldier. Warfare. Gloucester.

L. M.

- 1 NOW be my heart inspired to sing
The glories of my Saviour King,
Jesus the Lord; how heavenly fair
His form! how bright his beauties are!
- 2 O'er all the sons of human race
He shines with a superior grace;
Love from his lips divinely flows,
And blessings all his state compose.
- 3 Dress thee in arms, most mighty Lord,
Gird on the terror of thy sword,
In majesty and glory ride,
With truth and meekness at thy side
- 4 Thine anger, like a pointed dart,
Shall pierce the foes of stubborn heart;
Or words of mercy, kind and sweet,
Shall melt the rebels at thy feet.

WATTS, Ps. 45, p. 1.

1 CORINTHIANS I.

Paul's affectionate Salutation.

PAUL, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother.

2 Unto the church of God, which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both their's and our's:

3 Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ;

5 That in everything ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge;

6 Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you:

7 So that ye come behind in no gift: waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ:

8 Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.

11 For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos: and I of Cephus; and I of Christ.

13 Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?

14 I thank God that I baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius:

15 Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name.

16 And I baptized also the household of Stephanus: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel: not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God.

19 For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. I.—No human priesthood can make mortals like themselves ambassadors of Christ. Their office immediately emanates from Jesus, our real High-priest. And those he calls, he qualifies. What a comfort it is to faithful ministers, when, like Paul the holy Apostle, they enjoy the satisfying evidence that they have the call of Christ, and the sanctifying preparation of his Spirit. Of all places on the face of the earth, for the introduction of the Gospel, and the planting of a Christian Church, Corinth was the most hopeless. Idolatry the most gross, licentiousness the most extensive and disgusting, and philosophy the most influential, stood in the way of the entrance of the Gospel, as a wall of brass. Nothing can withstand Jehovah's purpose, or successfully resist the power of his omnipotence. He gave the word, and a breach was made in the formidable wall. The Gospel entered. The banner of salvation was unfurled, and a Christian Church planted.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, our guide and comforter, breathe upon us thy gracious influences; then we shall draw near the throne of God as children to a Father. We adore thee, O Lord, as our King; we bow down before thy blessed sceptre, and we rejoice in thy gracious government. O teach us and enable us to praise thy name for ever and ever! May we in reality enter upon that work of believing adoration and praise on earth, which will be continued through all eternity, in the heavenly world, in loftier and purer strains. May a due and lasting impression be produced on our minds by the portion of the sacred records to which we have now listened. May our eyes be opened to see wondrous things in thy laws. Convince us that there are more wonderful things to be seen on the pages of the inspired volume than we can see upon the starry sky, and that the perfections of the Divine nature are more remarkably exhibited by the word of God than by the works of the visible universe. If there are any among us spiritually blind, graciously open the eyes of our understanding, and suffer our minds no longer to remain enveloped in the dark clouds of spiritual ignorance and moral death.

We pray, O Lord, that all of us may resemble the Corinthian converts; may we be sanctified in Christ Jesus, and called to be saints. We have the name; O may we have the dispositions, the graces, the attainments, and the spirit of saints. Like thy saints, may we love the name of Christ; to us may it be as ointment poured forth; may it be fragrant and refreshing to our minds, travelling through the wilderness of this world, and looking onward to the joys of heaven. We bless thee, O Lord, for the institution of the ordinance of prayer. Grant that all of us may be instructed in this most sacred and profitable exercise; and daily may we call on the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. O Jesus, we acknowledge thy Divinity, and we would unite with primitive Christians in giving thee Divine homage, and in calling on thy blessed name in the exercise of prayer.

Holy Spirit, teach our beloved children and domestics the important lesson of earnest and believing prayer. Convince them of the necessity of prayer, and that it is vain to expect the joys of immortality after a prayerless life.

We thank thee in behalf of all our beloved relatives, who are the partakers of saving grace, which is given them by Jesus Christ. May our remaining friends, who have not yet obtained the treasure of Divine grace, soon receive it from the hand of mercy. Say to them, O Jesus, I counsel of you to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich. O make with them an everlasting covenant, and give them the sure mercies of David. May all of us rejoice on account of the future appearance of the Son of God; and may we long for his coming to judge the world. Accept of our thanks for the personal and family blessings we have this day received. May we, and all our friends, enjoy thy paternal care this night; and all we ask is for our Saviour's sake, the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

IDOLATRY REPROVED.

C. M.

- 1 SAVE me, O Lord, from every foe:
In thee my trust I place;
Though all the good that I can do
Can ne'er deserve thy grace
- 2 Yet if my God prolong my breath,
The saints may profit by it;
The saints, the glory of the earth,
The men of my delight.
- 3 Let heathens to their idols haste,
And worship wood or stone;
But my delightful lot is cast
Where the true God is known.

WATTS, Ps. 16, p. 1.

1 KINGS XVIII.

Prophets of Baal slain.

AND Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, Choose you one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under.

26 And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning even until noon, saying, O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any that answered. And they leaped upon the altar which was made.

27 And it came to pass at noon, that Elijah mocked them, and said, Cry aloud: for he is a god; either he is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked.

28 And they cried aloud, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them.

29 And it came to pass, when mid-day was past, and they prophesied until the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that there was neither voice, nor any to answer, nor any that regarded.

30 And Elijah said unto all the people, Come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down.

31 And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the Lord came, saying, Israel shall be thy name:

32 And with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

33 And he put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, Fill four barrels with water, and pour it on the burnt sacrifice, and on the wood.

34 And he said, Do it the second time. And they did it the second time. And he said, Do it the third time. And they did it the third time.

35 And the water ran round about the altar, and he filled the trench also with water.

36 And it came to pass at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near, and said, Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things at thy word.

37 Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again.

38 Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the burnt sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench.

39 And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces: and they said, The Lord, he is the God; the Lord, he is the God.

40 And Elijah said unto them, Take the prophets of Baal;

let not one of them escape. And they took them: and Elijah brought them down to the brook Kishon, and slew them there.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XVIII.—We should never read of idolatry, or think of those who are the deluded worshippers of false gods, without thoughts of thankfulness to our God that we know him as the only, the living, and true God, that we enjoy the ordinances of religion as the appointed means of his worship, and are taught to look to the Holy Spirit for his gracious aid, and to rely on the atonement of Christ for acceptance. With what just scorn Elijah treated idolatrous worship; and with what dignified and holy sarcasm he treated the worshippers of Baal! Truly, idolatry is a display of the greatest impiety against God, and the greatest folly of man.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art God alone. There are lords many, and gods many, but thou alone art he who made the heavens; thou art he alone who art possessed of every perfection. We would exclaim in the language of astonished Israel, when fire came down from heaven and destroyed the sacrifice, The Lord, he is the God; the Lord, he is the God. We would address thee in the language of Elijah: Thou art the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel. Let the day soon arrive when it shall be known in all the earth that thou art Israel's God. Give us the pleasing evidence that we are thy servants, that all around us may see that we have been with Jesus, that we are on the Lord's side, that we are no more halting between two opinions, that we are for thee and not for another.

We confess, O Lord, the treachery and the corruption of our hearts. As Baal reigned in the hearts of his blinded votaries, we confess that the Baal of lusts and worldly-mindedness has long reigned in our hearts. Idols have been permitted by our own consent to occupy that place in our affections due to thee alone. O Saviour, deliver us from all our lusts and all our corruptions; expel them from our souls; let them not be only subdued, but destroyed.

Convince our dear children and servants of the natural depravity of the human heart. O give them, by thy Spirit, a discovery of their own hearts, as deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. Holy Spirit, enable them thus to pray: Lord, bring me to Christ, renew my heart, forgive my sins, and keep me from evil.

God and King of Zion, mercifully look down on the myriads of the children of men living without the knowledge of thy name, and yielding to false gods that worship and adoration which is due to thee alone. We long and pray for the arrival of that day, when all the nations of the earth shall know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou art the God of salvation. We lament that the hearts of the greater number of the inhabitants of the earth are alienated from thee. Let the knowledge of thyself and of thy plans of mercy be diffused among the blinded and idolatrous nations, and let the hearts of men be turned unto thee.

We bless thee, most high God, that the true worship of thy name is established in our land. We thank thee for all the evidence thou hast given of the truth of thy Word and the Divine appointment of thine ordinances, by rendering them instrumental in the salvation of thousands. Thou hast never left thyself without a witness. Thou didst give a miraculous testimony in the days of Elijah; and in our day thou art giving many special evidences of the Divine origin of thy Gospel, in its blessed effects upon the hearts of thousands of our race.

We thank our God for the mercies of the night, and we implore the gracious presence and blessing of our God in all the duties and engagements of the day. All we ask is for Immanuel's sake. Amen.

CHRIST CRUCIFIED, THE WISDOM AND POWER OF GOD.

Kennedy. New Bethlehem. Old 100th.

L. M.

- 1 NATURE with open volume stands
To spread her Maker's praise abroad,
And every labour of his hands
Shows something worthy of a God.
- 2 But in the grace that rescued man
His brightest form of glory shines;
Here on the cross 'tis fairest drawn,
In precious blood and crimson lines.
- 3 Here his whole name appears complete;
Nor wit can guess, nor reason prove
Which of the letters best is writ,
The power, the wisdom, or the love.

WATTS, 10, B. III.

1 CORINTHIANS I.

Gospel Preaching.

WHERE is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?

21 For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

22 For the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom:

23 But we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Greeks foolishness;

24 But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God.

25 Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called:

27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty;

28 And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are:

29 That no flesh should glory in his presence.

30 But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

1 CORINTHIANS II.

Simplicity of Preaching.

AND I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God.

2 For I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

3 And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling.

4 And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power:

5 That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. I., II.—Dark as midnight is the brightest intelligence, when compared with the omniscience of Jehovah; and the wisdom of men, and even angels, is folly, when compared with the wisdom of God. What an astonishing difference betwixt the philosophy of the wisest of heathen sages, and the glorious doctrines of the Gospel!—exhibiting the attributes of Jehovah in all their alluring excellence, the Son of God in all his loveliness and suitableness, and bringing life and immortality to light. May the Holy Spirit inspire us with unfeigned thankfulness for the glorious Gospel, which is the wisdom and power of God to them who believe. Numerous and powerful are the obstacles and impediments in the way of man's acceptance and belief of the Gospel of Christ. This is applicable to our whole race, of whatever age, and of whatever grade. But it is more especially and extensively true of the wealthy, the mighty, and the great. The allurements and temptations to keep the heart away from Christ, and to prevent his acceptance, are more numerous in connection with them, than with any other portion of our race. Let us, however, rejoice in the instances, of a most illustrious description, furnished by individuals of noble rank, who have lived and died the ornaments of the Christian faith.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and mighty Jehovah, how incomprehensible is thy glory, and how inconceivable thy blessedness! Thou dwellest, O Lord, amidst the dazzling light of vast immensity. So ineffable is that glorious and uncreated light, that no mortal eye has ever been able to approach it, and shall never be able to behold its Divine brightness, till mortal is swallowed up in immortality. Holy Spirit, teach our souls to soar and rise above earthly things, and ascend in longing desires to thy celestial throne. Give those holy and sacred affections which will lead us to anticipate with holy delight the arrival of that period when, through the righteousness of Christ, we shall behold the Trinity in unity, the blessed Three, the undivided One.

We assemble before thee this evening, O prayer-hearing God, and we praise thee for the undeserved mercies of the day. Thou hast opened the hand of thy providential bounty, and afforded us our daily supply of mercies. May the offences of the day be graciously forgiven, and the events which are constantly passing over our heads be attended with thy blessing:

We thank thee, O Lord, that, when our exhausted nature needs rest, thou hast provided beds where we may lie down and enjoy the blessing of repose. If it is thy will, give us refreshing sleep.

Have mercy on the afflicted and diseased from whose eyes sleep shall be banished, and lead their minds to the meditation of those Divine doctrines and animating discoveries of the Gospel which will cheer their hearts amid the heaviest affliction, and by thy grace enable them to glory in tribulation also.

Lord, prepare the minds of our beloved children for the sufferings and sorrows which unavoidably await them in the journey of life. Now may they receive thy grace, which will effectually preserve them in every danger, and comfort them in every affliction.

Teach us, gracious God, to express our thankfulness for spiritual blessings. We thank thee that thou hast not left our world with no more light than the glimmering rays of human philosophy and wisdom. Glory to thy name for the Gospel of Christ. We praise thee that, though the men of the world have looked upon the preaching of the Gospel as foolishness, it hath pleased thee, by the preaching of the Gospel, to save them that believe. We rejoice that, though it is to unbelieving Jews a stumbling-block, it is both the wisdom of God and the power of God to those who are taught by the Spirit to see its excellence and feel its power.

O Lord, may all of us be in Christ, interested in his love, his righteousness, and intercession; and may Jesus, in his person, offices, and relations, be made of God unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption.

Lord, teach all thy ministers, of every name, to imitate thy servant Paul, in simple, plain, affectionate, earnest, and faithful preaching. May their speech not be with the enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, that the faith of their people may stand, not in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

Graciously hear our prayer, forgive our sins, and accept our persons, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

DECEITFULNESS OF SIN.

Bovey Tracy. Fallsworth. Walsal.

c. n.

- 1 SIN has a thousand treacherous arts
To practice on the mind;
With flattering looks she tempts our hearts,
But leaves a sting behind.
- 2 With names of virtue she deceives
The aged and the young;
And while the heedless wretch believes,
She makes his fetters strong.
- 3 She pleads for all the joys she brings,
And gives a fair pretence;
But cheats the soul of heavenly things,
And chains it down to sense.

WATTS, 150, B. 11.

1 KINGS XIX.

Jezebel's Wickedness, and God's Word to Elijah.

AND Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal how he had slain all the prophets with the sword.

2 Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by to-morrow about this time.

3 And when he saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there.

4 But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree: and he requested for himself that he might die; and said, It is enough: now, O LORD, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers.

5 And as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat.

6 And he looked, and behold, there was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his head. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again.

7 And the angel of the LORD came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise and eat: because the journey is too great for thee.

8 And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat forty days and forty nights unto Horeb, the mount of God.

9 And he came thither unto a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said unto him, What doest thou here, Elijah?

10 And he said, I have been very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.

11 And he said, Go forth, and stand upon the mount before the LORD. And, behold, the LORD passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the LORD; but the LORD was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the LORD was not in the earthquake:

12 And after the earthquake a fire; but the LORD was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice.

13 And it was so, when Elijah heard it, that he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out, and stood in the entering in of the cave. And, behold, there came a voice unto him, and said, What doest thou here, Elijah?

14 And he said, I have been very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword: and I, even I only, am left: and they seek my life, to take it away.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Go, return on thy way to the wilderness of Damascus: and when thou comest, anoint Hazael to be king over Syria.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 KINGS XIX.—Ahab had sufficient proof by the miracle which was performed in the consuming of the sacrifices by fire from heaven, that the slaying of Baal's priests was a judgment immediately from God, and not an unauthorised act upon the part of Elijah. By such a miracle, connected with such a judgment, he was loudly and solemnly called upon to forsake his idols, and return to the worship of Jehovah, Israel's God. He, and his abandoned queen, were wedded to their idols, and after them they would go. And after them they did go, to their own destruction. They preferred weak, dumb idols, which could give them no help, before the Most High, who was willing and able to deliver them from all their enemies, to heautify them with his grace, and at last raise them to his heaven!

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS and Holy Spirit, lift our thoughts above sub-lunary things, and mercifully dispose our minds to praise and adore the glorious and the triune Jehovah. Thou art from everlasting God. Long before the lofty skies were spread and stretched out like a curtain, thou, O Lord, didst fill the throne of thine essential majesty. Myriads of ages before the human race existed, or angels shouted thy praise, thou didst live alone in the enjoyment of all thine infinite glory and blessedness. Great and glorious and incomprehensible as thou art, we, humble worms of the dust, encouraged by thy mercy, approach thy throne, to present our morning prayer in the name of Jesus, the Son of thy love, and the Saviour of our souls.

May the mercies of the past night inspire our hearts with gratitude, and warm our hearts with love. Lord, make us thy willing, active, zealous, useful, and persevering servants. And in the transactions of this day may the great end of our existence, the glory of God, be ever present before our eyes. Give us that appropriating faith in Christ, by which we shall see and rejoice that we are not our own, and are therefore sweetly constrained to glorify God in our bodies and our spirits, which are his.

May thy gracious blessing accompany the word now read. Teach us to read thy word with care, with reverence, with faith, and with earnest desire, that the Holy Spirit may render the exercises effectual in the enlightening of our understanding, the purifying of our affections, and the improvement of our hearts.

May our minds be deeply affected with the malignity of sin, which was so extensively manifested by the cruelty and idolatry of Jezebel. May sin appear more odious to our minds than ever, when we look around us and see its painfully demoralising effects, not only on the sons, but also on the daughters of Adam.

Lord, sanctify our beloved children and domestics, and may they never become the prey of mental passions, or the victim of bodily lusts.

Promote grace, O Lord, in the hearts of all thy people. When they are brought into great difficulties and straits, when borne down with accumulated sorrows, suffer them not, like thy servant Elijah, to give place to unhallowed fear, to the workings of unbelief, or the workings of a murmuring spirit. Give them courage and firmness in all their trials, relying on an arm of omnipotent grace, confiding in promises of unchanging truth, and rejoicing in the unbounded stores of Divine goodness.

Lord, refresh our souls with the bread of life while travelling in this wilderness state, and give thine angels charge over us in all our wanderings. May the still small voice of the Gospel ever comfort us; and in that voice may we hear the voice of a Father and a God.

May our sins be pardoned, and our prayers answered, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WATTS, 105, B. I.

1 CORINTHIANS II.

Wisdom of God in Salvation.

HOWBEIT we speak wisdom among them that are perfect: yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought:

7 But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory:

8 Which none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

9 But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13 Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

14 But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

15 But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man.

16 For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

1 CORINTHIANS III.

Contentions about Ministers.

AND I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ.

2 I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions; are ye not carnal, and walk as men?

4 For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal?

5 Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?

6 I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase.

7 So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. II., III.—Earthly wisdom is from below—a stream flowing from human sources; saving wisdom is from above—an emanation from the Sun of righteousness. Earthly wisdom has its eye only on time; spiritual wisdom has its eye on heaven and immortality. The one is fixed on objects which are perishing; the other is fixed on objects which shall endure for ever. The first is directed to honours which are fading like the grass upon the house top; but the second is directed to a crown of glory, which shall never fade away. May this wisdom, so heavenly and Divine, fill our souls with its brightness, and adorn our lives with its celestial radiance! If we have this wisdom, we have the mind of Christ, and shall at last sit beside him on his throne. Ministers are appointed by Christ for the interest of his Church, and are most useful, when viewed in their place, only as means which Christ has graciously appointed.

PRAYER.

EXALTED Jehovah, thou art the only wise God, and the Lord our God. We adore thee in the displays of thy wisdom given in creation. The heavens declare the glory of thy wisdom, and the earth showeth thy handy-work. We adore thee in all the displays of thy wisdom given in providence. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night declareth knowledge of thee. But we adore thee in the richer displays of thy wisdom given in the contrivance of salvation by the incarnation, obedience, sufferings, and death of thy well-beloved and only-begotten Son. When we think of thy deep and wonderful design respecting the deliverance of a lost world, we would exclaim, in the language of the Apostle, For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? or who hath been his counsellor? Thy wisdom is a Divine and boundless sea, which flows too deep to be sounded by the conceptions of men.

Lord, we confess the natural and practical depravity of the heart of man. We acknowledge the correctness of the melancholy picture which the Apostle has given of the degenerate mind of man: The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. Teach us, O Lord, to receive the things of the Spirit of God; even those spiritual doctrines which the Spirit presents before us in the Scriptures, and those spiritual blessings which he kindly offers in a preached Gospel. May we no longer look upon these spiritual doctrines and blessings as foolishness. Open our eyes to see their incalculable value, and may we receive and enjoy them as an invaluable inheritance.

We thank our God for the blessed Gospel, which makes known to us the wisdom of God in our salvation, which is the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God ordained before the world began. O teach us to see that the contrivance of the scheme of salvation is the very masterpiece, yea, the most glorious manifestation of Divine wisdom ever given to created intelligences.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the glory and felicity of the heavenly world, which is a blessed part of the consequences which follow the accomplishment of the scheme of mercy. We rejoice that thou hast prepared for thy people beyond the grave an inheritance exceeding in glory and richness the utmost comprehension of the imagination of man. We praise thee that thou hast prepared for them that love thee, what eye hath not seen, what ear hath not heard, and what has not entered into the heart of man to conceive.

O Lord, fill the hearts of our dear children with the love of Christ and with the love of heaven. May they often think of the purity and the joys of heaven, and now begin the journey to that celestial world.

Comfort the pious poor with the hopes of the unseen inheritance laid up in heaven, and convince them that their present poverty will in some measure enhance the enjoyment of the heavenly blessedness.

We commit ourselves to the gracious care of our heavenly Father this night, and all we ask is for our great Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 IN vain the giddy world inquires,
Forgetful of their God,
Who will supply our vast desires,
Or show us any good?
- 2 Through the wide circuit of the earth
Their eager wishes rove,
In chase of honour, wealth, and mirth,
The phantoms of their love.

Set my affections right;
Bid me aspire to joys above,
And walk no more by sight.

STENNETT.

I KINGS XXI.

Ahab covets Naboth's Vineyard.

AND it came to pass after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard, which was in Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria.

2 And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house: and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or, if it seem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

3 And Naboth said to Ahab, The Lord forbid it me, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

4 And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased, because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him: for he had said, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. And he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

5 But Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?

6 And he said unto her, Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he answered, I will not give thee my vineyard.

7 And Jezebel his wife said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry: I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

8 So she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city, dwelling with Naboth.

9 And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people:

10 And set two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst blaspheme God and the king. And then carry him out, and stone him, that he may die.

11 And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them:

12 They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people.

13 And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him: and the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones, that he died.

14 Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

15 And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money: for Naboth is not alive but dead.

REFLECTIONS UPON I KINGS XXI.—No evil can arise from the possession of grace, or from being heirs of a heavenly inheritance. In Naboth's tragical case, we see that earthly possessions often prove sources of the greatest calamities, and excite the enmity of the covetous, who will commit the most unseemly and repulsive crimes to become unjustly possessed of the property of others. Naboth may have considered his paternal estate enhanced in value, by being situated near the abode of royalty: whereas this very circumstance was the occasion of the loss of his property, and the loss of his life. Uncertainty is written on all earthly possessions, in language the most solemn, luminous, and distinct. O let us not then place our hearts on that which is not! But what do we see written upon the bequeathed inheritance of the redeemed of God? We read these words, brighter than burnished gold, "Incorruptible, undefiled, and that which fadeth not away."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as holy, just, and true. We desire to stand in awe of thee, most mighty Jehovah, when we think of thy justice and thy terrible majesty. Thou art the witness of the crimes, the cruelty, and the oppression which stain the government of the unjust rulers of the earth; and as thou didst punish Ahab and Jezebel for their covetousness, their cruelty, and their pride, so thou wilt bring down the iron rod of thy vengeance upon the heads of all the tyrannical oppressors of the children of men. We adore and fear, for thou, O Lord our God, art a consuming fire to thine obstinate and impenitent foes. O who can abide the fierceness of thine indignation!

We desire with humility and contrition to confess that we deserve thine anger, and that we have no claims on thy mercy. When we think of the multitude and the aggravation of our iniquities, we have reason to wonder that long ere now the cup of wrath has not been put into our hand. Holy Spirit, give us evangelical repentance, and enrich our minds with that faith in Christ's atoning sacrifice by which we shall see that all our sins are forgiven, and that a gracious and propitiated judge has pronounced upon us a blessed sentence of justification, by which the debt of our guilt is for ever cancelled.

We thank thee, gracious Father, that, during the darkness and silence of the past night, thou didst not visit us with the punishment of our sins. We thank thee that the angel of death was not sent to convey us unprepared into the world of spirits. We seek thy fatherly smiles this day: may we walk in thy fear and in thy love all the day long. May we walk, not after the flesh, but after the spirit.

As Naboth resisted the temptation to surrender his paternal inheritance, may we be enabled to resist every temptation to surrender our souls to the lust of the eye, the lust of the flesh, or the pride of life.

When our dear children may be hard pressed by the allurements of the tempter, may they say in the language of Naboth, The Lord forbid it me! and may they lift up their eyes to Christ for help.

Preserve us, O Lord, from the sin of covetousness, of which we have read so melancholy and appalling a display. Give us grace to check the very earliest rising in our bosom of an unhallowed love of earthly objects. If there are any of us, or of our beloved relatives, under the influence of a covetous heart, may we remember that the Lord abhors the covetous. O suffer us to remain no longer under the dominion of a disposition which secures the abhorrence of Jehovah. Teach all of us to covet earnestly the best gift, even Jesus, and all the blessings of his purchase. So earnestly may we seek this great gift, that we shall be ready to exclaim, Give me Jesus, else I die.

May all our sins be pardoned, and our humble petitions answered, for Jesus' sake, our God and Saviour. Amen.

- 1 HOW vast the treasure we possess!
How rich thy bounty, King of grace!
This world is ours, and worlds to come:
Earth is our lodge, and heaven our home.
- 2 All things are ours, the gifts of God,
The purchase of a Saviour's blood:
While the good spirit shows us how
To use and to improve them too.
- 3 If peace and plenty crown my days,
They help me, Lord, to speak thy praise;
If bread of sorrows be my food,
Those sorrows work my lasting good.
- 4 I would not change my blest estate
For all the world calls good or great:
And while my faith can keep her hold,
I envy not the sinner's gold.

WATTS, 43, B. J.

1 CORINTHIANS III.

Inheritance of the Saints.

NOW he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour.

9 For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.

10 According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11 For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 Now, if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble;

13 Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

14 If any man's work abide, which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.

15 If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire.

16 Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

18 Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise.

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness.

20 And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain.

21 Therefore let no man glory in men. For all things are yours;

22 Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours;

23 And ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 Cor. III.—What a lovely plantation is the Church!—filled with evergreens which shall never wither, and with trees of righteousness which shall never be plucked up by the roots. Pious parents, teachers, and ministers, are engaged by the King and Head of the Church, in watching over the interests of this spiritual garden. Blessed are they who are instrumental in training up plants for the heavenly paradise to flourish in immortal bloom, and exhale the fragrance of Divine grace, for ever and ever. Thus they are fellow-workers with Christ, though he stands in no need of their aid; thus they become sharers with Christ in his honour, and partakers with Christ in his blessedness. Important question!—What are we doing in Christ's service, and the interests of his kingdom? Are we labourers or loiterers? Christ's servants are rich, beyond the princes of the earth. All things are theirs—grace here, and glory hereafter.

PRAYER.

WE assemble, O Lord our God, to worship thy great and glorious name. Thou art a spirit, and thou wilt only accept spiritual worship. Holy Ghost, mercifully teach us to worship God in spirit and in truth. Ever may we worship thee in a spiritual manner, from spiritual motives, and for spiritual ends. We adore thee as unspotted in thy holiness, whose pure essence is invisible to mortal eyes. Thou art from everlasting to everlasting, the infinite, the good, the only wise.

We present before thee the humble tribute of our praise for the supply of our wants this day, and for any degree of assistance communicated in the various duties in which we have been engaged. We thank our God, the Father of mercies, for the continuance of our reason, and that we are not in the situation of many, who, by the suspension of their rational powers, are a terror to themselves and all around them. We look up to thee our God for the continuance of thy gracious protection this night, and pray that the blessing of sleep may be given to these dying tabernacles of dust. Keep thy kind arms around all our relatives and friends, and may they be brought within the bonds of the covenant of grace, and enriched with the sure mercies of David.

We thank God for the sacred truths we have now read respecting the ministerial office, respecting Christ the great foundation, and respecting the rich and imperishable inheritance of the saints.

Make thy ministers very successful in planting trees of righteousness in the garden of thy Church. When they sow the good seed of the Word upon the minds of men, may it be watered by the influences of the Holy Spirit, without which thy servants must plant in vain and labour in vain.

We adore thy condescension and grace, thou King and Head of the Church, in making men fellow-workers with thyself. O that each one of us, in our various spheres, may be labourers together with God, in seeking the salvation of souls, and advancing the prosperity of the kingdom of Christ.

Lord, bless our beloved minister, who labours among us in word and doctrine; and make him a wise master-builder, and greatly successful in adding many living stones to that sacred temple, the Church, of which Jesus is the chief corner-stone.

O Lord, separate our beloved children and servants from the rude quarry of nature; polish them by thy grace; and may they form a part of thy building, the Church.

God forbid that any of us should reject Christ, who is the only foundation laid in Zion. O Jesus, we would cast off our own pretended righteousness, which is no righteousness, and we desire, through the Spirit, to build all our hopes of acceptance, pardon, and heaven on thee as the only foundation. Make all of us thy temples, and may we find of a truth that the Spirit of God dwelleth in us.

Comfort thy poor and indigent saints with the delightful conviction that they have a rich and imperishable inheritance: and that all things are theirs; that they are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

Mercifully pardon the sins and hear the prayers of thy humble petitioners, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 NOW in the heat of youthful blood
Remember your Creator, God;
Behold, the months come hastening on,
When you shall say, Our joys are gone!
- 2 Behold, the aged sinner goes,
Laden with guilt and heavy woes,
Down to the regions of the dead,
With endless curses on his head.
- 3 The dust returns to dust again,
The soul in agonies of pain
Ascends to God, not there to dwell,
But hears her doom and sinks to hell.

WARRE, 91, B. I.

2 KINGS I.

Destruction of Persecutors.

THEN Moab rebelled against Israel after the death of Ahab.

2 And Ahaziah fell down through a lattice in his upper chamber that was in Samaria, and was sick; and he sent messengers, and said unto them, Go, enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron whether I shall recover of this disease.

3 But the angel of the Lord said to Elijah the Tishbite, Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to enquire of Baal-zebub the God of Ekron?

4 Now therefore thus saith the Lord, Thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die. And Elijah departed.

5 And when the messengers turned back unto him, he said unto them, Why are ye now turned back?

6 And they said unto him, there came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, Go, turn again unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire of Baal-zebub the God of Ekron? therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

7 And he said unto them, What manner of man was he which came up to meet you, and told you these words?

8 And they answered him, He was an hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said, It is Elijah the Tishbite.

9 Then the king sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty. And he went up to him: and, behold, he sat on the top of an hill. And he spake unto him, Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down.

10 And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, If I be a man of God, then let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

11 Again also he sent unto him another captain of fifty with his fifty. And he answered and said unto him, O man of God, thus hath the king said, Come down quickly.

12 And Elijah answered and said unto them, If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And the fire of God came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

13 And he sent again a captain of the third fifty with his fifty. And the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell on his knees before Elijah, and besought him, and said unto him, O man of God, I pray thee, let my life, and the life of these fifty thy servants, be precious in thy sight.

14 Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifties with their fifties: therefore let my life now be precious in thy sight.

15 And the angel of the Lord said unto Elijah, Go down with him: be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went down with him unto the king.

17 So he died according to the word of the Lord which Elijah had spoken. And Jehoram reigned in his stead in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah; because he had no son.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS I.—When kings cast off their allegiance to God, they may read their sin in their punishment, when their tributaries and subjects cast off allegiance to them. Ahaziah, in the time of health, was without the comforts of religion, and in his affliction, and in the prospect of his dissolution, was destitute of all the consolations which religion could afford. In the article of death, royal splendour is of no avail; Christ and his righteousness alone can inspire the soul with peace and joy.

PRAYER.

PRAISE to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, that we are thy preserved worshippers, that no evil has befallen us during the past night, and that we are permitted, in the name of our adorable High-Priest, to approach the throne of Divine grace. We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as the immutable Jehovah. Thy nature, perfections, glory, blessedness, and purposes, have never experienced, can never experience, the slightest change. While nature changes, and while her works corrupt, decay, dissolve, and die, thy pure essence, O Lord, remains immutable, and secure of immortality.

May thy gracious Spirit sanctify and apply to our hearts the reading of the Holy Scriptures. As we continue reading the sacred volume, may we discern increasing beauty in its doctrines, its precepts, and its promises.

Lord, bless to our minds what we have now read of the sickness and death of a graceless and idolatrous prince. When we are visited, in thy sovereign providence, with bodily suffering, or any other affliction, may we enjoy the sweet consolations of religion, may we have clear views of thy wise and gracious purposes respecting us, and may our minds be soothed and comforted with that peace of conscience which flows from a lively faith in Christ the propitiation. May we never, like Ahaziah, in the day of suffering, apply to improper sources for help. God forbid that we should prefer the broken cistern that holds no water, to Jesus, the living fountain, whence streams of blessings flow for ever.

In all our afflictions, may we remember, and may we rejoice, that there is a God in Israel, a new covenant God, a God of boundless mercy and compassion, and a God near at hand, and not far off. In the time of health may we enjoy constant intercourse with Israel's God, and exercise constant dependance on Israel's God; then we shall sing triumphantly, when the storms of outward adversity howl around us, God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in time of trouble.

If it is thy will, O Lord, that our dear children should meet with bodily affliction in their early days, may they find it good to bear the yoke in their youth.

O Lord, we adore thee in the exercise of thy righteous vengeance, in commanding fire to descend from heaven to destroy those men who had been persecutors of thy cause and people. If any of our beloved friends and relatives are not on the Lord's side, open their eyes to see the danger of living constantly exposed to the Divine displeasure. Bring to their remembrance the doom of thine enemies at death, who shall be cast into hell, with all the nations that forget God. O heavenly Father, may the death of Ahaziah convince us of the importance of being prepared to die, by having our faith placed on Jesus, the only conqueror of death.

Lord, give us thy gracious aid in the duties of the day, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

MINISTER'S WISH FOR HIS PEOPLE.

Charity. Warminster. Magdalen.

L. M.

- 1 MY brethren, from my heart beloved,
Whose welfare fills my daily care,
My present joy, my future crown,
The word of exhortation hear.
- 2 Stand fast upon the solid rock
Of the Redeemer's righteousness:
Adorn the gospel with your lives,
And practise what your lips profess.
- 3 With pleasure meditate the hour,
When he, descending from the skies,
Shall bid your bodies mean and vile,
In his all-glorious image rise.

GIBBONS.

I CORINTHIANS IV.

Sufferings of Apostles.

LET a man so account of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God.

2 Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.

3 But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment: yea, I judge not mine own self.

4 For I know nothing by myself; yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord.

5 Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God.

6 And these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one against another.

7 For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive? Now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it?

8 Now ye are full, now ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us: and I would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you.

9 For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death: for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.

10 We are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, but ye are strong; ye are honourable, but we are despised.

11 Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place;

12 And labour, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bless: being persecuted, we suffer it:

13 Being defamed, we entreat: we are made as the filth of the earth, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day.

14 I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you.

15 For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel.

16 Wherefore I beseech you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach everywhere in every church.

20 For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. IV.—The office of the ministry cannot be too highly estimated by the people of God. For their sake, men of like passions and infirmities with themselves are placed in circumstances of the greatest responsibility; and a trust is committed to their hands, of such magnitude and importance, as is quite sufficient to impress an angel's mind with solemnity. How much then the heralds of salvation need the help and encouragement of the prayers of the loving and believing members of the Church of Christ! Ministers are peculiarly stewards. But every individual believer is also a steward. He is required to watch over his own soul, over the souls of all committed to his charge, in consequence of the various relations he is called to fill in society and in the Church of Christ. May the holy Spirit make us faithful to our trust. O how delightful to hear our Saviour thus address us in loving accents, when our stewardship shall come to a close: "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord!"

PRAYER.

WE bless thee, O Lord our God, that notwithstanding the sins and provocations of the past day, we are graciously permitted to lift up our eyes to thee at this time, as our Father who art in heaven. Enable us, Holy Spirit, under a grateful sense of the unmerited goodness we have experienced this day, to approach the throne of grace and present our evening sacrifice.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the infinitely glorious I AM. There is none like unto thee among the greatest and the best of human beings; and such is thy glory, that there are none among the archangels worthy to be compared unto thee.

We thank thee, O Lord, for all the rich privileges we enjoy in the Christian and New Testament Church. We bless thee for the Gospel, and that thou hast entrusted the sacred oracles to ministers, who are men of like passions with ourselves, and who can sympathise with us, not only in the bodily afflictions to which we are exposed, but also in the mental weaknesses, infirmities, and sorrows, with which we may be tried.

Have mercy on all thy stewards, of every name, and of every denomination in thy Church, and make them faithful. Make them faithful to their Divine Master, whose name they bear, faithful to that Divine cause in which they are embarked, and faithful to the souls of men, whom they profess to love. Affect their minds with the prospect of that judgment-day, when they must give an account of their stewardship. May they consider the favourable opinion of man as nothing without the acceptance and approbation of God. May our beloved minister, at the last day, be enabled to give an account of his stewardship with joy, and not with grief. O that all our family may be found with him at the right hand of the judge, and hear a sentence pronounced upon us which will acquit us in the presence of an assembled world, and welcome us to the mansions of the blessed.

Affect the minds of our dear children and domestics with the prospect of the judgment-day, that great and awful day, that day for which every other day was made.

If any of us are made partakers of Divine grace, preserve us from spiritual pride, remembering that grace has made us to differ; and that all we possess is what we have received. Graciously animate us with the same mind which dwelt in thine Apostle. Like him, may we not only be zealous for the glory of God, but, if our heavenly Father should require, may we be willing to endure hunger, and thirst, and buffeting, and exile, and reproach, for the furtherance of a blessed Gospel. Teach us, gracious God, to be followers of those who, after a life of distinguished piety and zeal, are now inheriting the promises. Like them, may we live by faith, and at last die in peace.

We humbly seek the care and guardianship of our heavenly Father this night. Hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake, our glorious Advocate. Amen.

SAINTS' FAREWELL.

Cottage, Ringwood. Alice Street.

- 1 THEY presence, everlasting God!
Wide o'er all nature spreads abroad;
Thy watchful eyes, which cannot sleep,
In every place thy children keep.
- 2 While near each other we remain,
Thou dost our lives and souls sustain:
When absent, happy if we share
Thy smiles, thy counsels, and thy care.

Still on our souls vouchsafe to shine,
And guard and guide us still as thine.

DODDRIDGE.

2 KINGS II.

Elijah translated to Heaven.

AND it came to pass, when the LORD would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with Elisha from Gilgal.

2 And Elijah said unto Elisha, Tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to Beth-el. And Elisha said unto him, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they went down to Beth-el.

3 And the sons of the prophets that were at Beth-el came forth to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away thy master from thy head to day? And he said, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

4 And Elijah said unto him, Elisha, tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to Jericho. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they came to Jericho.

5 And the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho came to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away thy master from thy head to day? And he answered, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

6 And Elijah said unto him, Tarry, I pray thee, here; for the LORD hath sent me to Jordan. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on.

7 And fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood to view afar off: and they two stood by Jordan.

8 And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground.

9 And it came to pass, when they were gone over, that Elijah said unto Elisha, Ask what I shall do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Elisha said, I pray thee, let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me.

10 And he said, Thou hast asked a hard thing: nevertheless, if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so.

11 And it came to pass, as they still went on, and talked, that, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

12 And Elisha saw it, and he cried, My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. And he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own clothes, and rent them in two pieces.

13 He took up also the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and went back, and stood by the bank of Jordan:

14 And he took the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and smote the waters, and said, Where is the LORD God of Elijah? And when he also had smitten the waters, they parted hither and thither: and Elisha went over.

15 And when the sons of the prophets which were to view at Jericho saw him, they said, The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and bowed themselves to the ground before him.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS II.—The love and unity of the saints are always lovely; but when they are about to be separated by death these shine with peculiar splendour, and appear arrayed in peculiar comeliness. On earth believers are united by close, intimate, sacred, and endearing ties. They cannot be dissolved by death. That event can only interrupt their fellowship for a season: it shall be resumed in heaven, to be interrupted no more for ever. How sublime and glorious, honourable and blessed, the translation of the prophet Elijah to heaven! What a signal display of Jehovah's approbation and love! And what a loud call to idolatrous Israel to return to the allegiance and worship of Israel's God! In this great event we have a typical representation of the ascension of Christ, "Who ascended up on high, who led captivity captive, and who received gifts for men."

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Hearer of prayer, we adore thee as the infinitely blessed and incomprehensible Lord God, our God. Though exalted angels are more extensively acquainted with thy perfections and glory than the wisest of human beings on earth, still thy perfections and purposes are as incomprehensible to them as the most ignorant of the children of men. Adorable Jehovah, thou art only known to thyself, and thou canst only be known by thyself.

We lift up, O Lord, the voice of gratitude and praise for the continuation of thy providential kindness and protection during the past night. O deliver us from a spirit of insensibility under thine abundant and unmerited goodness! Lift upon us, heavenly Father, the light of thy countenance, in the performance of all the duties of this day. May we perform spiritual duties in a spiritual, holy manner; and may a holy, spiritual feeling influence our minds, in all our worldly employments. May the apostolical advice sink deep into our hearts, and accompany us throughout the whole journey of life, Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

We thank thee, Holy Spirit of inspiration, for the interesting portion of history we have now read. We supplicate thy blessing. We adore thee in the display of thy gracious sovereignty, given, by conveying Elijah, thine honoured and faithful servant, to heaven, without tasting of death. We praise thee for this very remarkable testimony given to idolatrous Israel of the truth of all thy prophet proclaimed respecting the abominations of idolatry, and the worship of thyself as the true Jehovah, and the only legitimate object of religious homage and adoration.

We rejoice that, though thy people cannot enter heaven without tasting of death, yet they are already delivered from the guilt of sin, which is death's most formidable sting. We rejoice that, though they shall not be conveyed through the sky by a chariot of fire and horses of fire, their happy, disembodied spirits shall be conveyed to the glorious portals of the New Jerusalem in the chariot of the covenant of grace.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, the death of pious friends and useful ministers. May we, their survivors, be clothed with their mantle; and, when we come to the Jordan of death, may we find the waters divided by the righteousness of Christ, and may we pass through dry-shod.

If our dear children survive us in this vale of tears, may they be prepared for the solemn separation; and when we are gone, may they find thee to be their Father and their God.

Gracious God, may we, and all our friends, when this life comes to a close, meet joyfully in the heavenly world, to sing thy praise and enjoy thy love for ever and ever. Lord, hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, who is worthy of our adoration and praises. Amen.

BLESSINGS OF FRIENDSHIP.

Dalton. John's.

122nd.

- 1 HOW pleasant 'tis to see
Kindreds and friends agree,
Each in their proper stations move,
And each fulfill their part,
With sympathising heart,
In all the cares of life and love.
- 2 'Tis like the ointment shed
On Aaron's sacred head,
Divinely rich, divinely sweet;
The oil through all the room
Diffused a choice perfume,
Ran through his robes, and blest his feet.

Watts, Ps. 133.

I CORINTHIANS VI.

Holiness.

DARE any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints?

2 Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church.

7 Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?

8 Nay, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind,

10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any.

13 Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power.

15 Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 What? know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot is one body? for two, saith he, shall he one flesh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit.

18 Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body.

19 What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?

20 For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.

REFLECTIONS UPON I COR. VI.—Generally, legal litigations may be traced to corrupt passions. How important, then, it is to seek grace to expel from our bosoms pride, envy, jealousy, and malice! How important to supplicate the Holy Spirit to fill our souls with Christian love, that this noble and Divine grace may fill the throne of our heart! Thus animosity and strife would cease to exist, and our holy, peaceful, loving lives, would become an epitome and prelude of heavenly bliss. They who love their neighbour as sincerely as they love themselves, bear upon their heart the image of Jesus, and carry about with them in their bosom a heavenly treasure of holy principles, affections, and emotions, which are a preparation for heaven, and a most delightful foretaste of its joys. On the other hand, how fearful the state of those who are the slaves of their passions, corruptions, and lusts. These form a dreadful wall of separation betwixt God and the soul, unfit for glorifying and enjoying God on earth; and, alas! prepare for that world of endless woe, the misery of which is enhanced by the unrestrained and unsubdued reign of these passions in the soul. O how blessed are they who are renewed by Divine grace, in whose soul the dominion of sin has ceased, and where grace reigns through righteousness unto eternal life!

PRAYER.

FATHER of mercies, and God of our salvation, we adore thee as the God of peace. Thou art the God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant. Blessed Jesus, we adore thee as the Prince of peace; thou art our peace, who hath reconciled God to man by satisfying offended justice, and who reconciles man to God by taking away the enmity of his heart, and filling his soul with Divine love. Eternal Jehovah, we desire to praise and adore thee for thine ancient, infinite, and eternal love. Holy Spirit, mercifully and deeply affect us with an admiring and believing view of the saving love of the Father manifested in Christ.

Give us grace, O Lord, at all times, to approach thy throne with sentiments of holy and evangelical repentance. We would mourn over that affecting change which sin has produced upon the nature of man. When we look around us, and see the animosity, strife, enmity, jealousy, and envy which so extensively prevail, what reason have we to mourn over the ravages sin has committed upon the mind and happiness of the children of men! We acknowledge that man is not only a practical enemy of the God that made him, and of the Saviour that died to redeem him, but we lament that the character of our race is, They are hateful, and hating one another. We would mourn over the consequences of this enmity, as they appear in innumerable litigations in courts of human laws, by which the reputation, property, peace, health, usefulness, and even souls of vast multitudes, have been lost and destroyed. We mourn over the natural and family ties which have been torn asunder by legal strife. We lament in thy presence, thou God of peace, that many professed Christians have laid aside the Divine principle of love which the Gospel breathes, and have gone to law before the unjust, and not before saints. If there are any families with which we are connected afflicted by unhallowed litigation, O disappoint the expectation of their unjust adversaries, and suffer them not to be destroyed by the cruel plans of their enemies.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the everlasting Gospel, which is calculated by thy Spirit to renovate the world, to subdue the vile and hateful passions of the human mind, and to place the soul under the pacific reign of sacred love. May the Gospel soon be universally preached, and its effects universally felt.

May our beloved children and domestics feel its purifying influence. May we and all our relatives experience its sanctifying power. O may we be washed and sanctified and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the spirit of our God. Teach us, O Lord, to flee every lust, and to perfect holiness in the fear of the Lord. We acknowledge, O Lord, that we are thine, soul and body; give us grace to glorify thee in our bodies and our spirits, which are thine.

We thank our God for the mercies of the week. May we receive refreshing sleep this night, and be spared to enter on the duties of thy day. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

- 1 MY soul, how lovely is the place
To which thy God resorts!
'Tis heaven to see his smiling face,
Though in his earthly courts.
- 2 There the great Monarch of the skies
His saving power displays,
And light breaks in upon our eyes
With kind and quickening rays.
- 3 With his rich gifts the heavenly Dove

PSALM LXXXIV.

Love to the Public Ordinances.

HOW amiable are thy tabernacles, O LORD of hosts!
2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

3 Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O LORD of hosts, my King, and my God.

4 Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee. Selah.

5 Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee; in whose heart are the ways of them:

6 Who passing through the valley of Baca make it a well;
the rain also filleth the pools.

7 They go from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God.

8 O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer: give ear, O God of Jacob. Selah.

9 Behold, O God, our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

10 For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

11 For the LORD God is a sun and shield: the LORD will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly.

12 O LORD of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

PSALM LXXXV.

God the Deliverer of his People.

LORD, thou hast been favourable unto thy land: thou hast brought back the captivity of Jacob.

2 Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of thy people; thou hast covered all their sin. Selah.

3 Thou hast taken away all thy wrath: thou hast turned thyself from the fierceness of thine anger.

4 Turn us, O God of our salvation, and cause thine anger toward us to cease.

5 Wilt thou be angry with us for ever? wilt thou draw out thine anger to all generations?

6 Wilt thou not revive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee?

7 Shew us thy mercy, O LORD, and grant us thy salvation.

8 I will hear what God the LORD will speak: for he will speak peace unto his people, and to his saints: but let them not turn again to folly.

9 Surely his salvation is nigh them that fear him; that glory may dwell in our land.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXIV., LXXXV.—Love to the ordinances of God's house, and enjoyment in their observance, are satisfying evidences of a renewed heart. As the child enjoys his parents' presence under the parental roof, so believers rejoice in Christ's presence in his sanctuary. As the child far distant from home longs to return to his father's house, to enjoy his parents' fellowship and smiles, so the believer, when at a distance from God's house, longs—yea, earnestly longs—to return to his heavenly Father's courts, that he may hear his voice and enjoy his smiles. The men of the world may wonder why the people of God cherish such love to his sanctuary and worship. It is the wonder of ignorance. It is in God's house and in his worship they enjoy the foretaste of heaven—in which they experience joys as far superior to those of carnal sense, as the light of day exceeds the obscurity of night.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, while entering on a new day and on a new week, we would draw near the throne of grace, and in the name of Christ we would present our morning sacrifice.
In the language of Joshua we would resolve, in humble dependence on the Holy Spirit, whatever others do: As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Heaven grant that all our religious services may be accepted in the beloved, and that our prayers and praises may come up before God as the fragrant incense.

We humbly and joyfully adore thee, most merciful Lord
God, as a sun and shield; thou wilt give grace and glory, and no good thing wilt thou withhold from them that walk uprightly. Thou art the God of salvation, and surely thy salvation is nigh unto them that fear thee, that glory may dwell in our land. Blessed art thou, O Lord, and blessed are all who trust in thee. We praise thee that thy blessedness is peculiarly manifested and thy blessings richly bestowed in thy public courts. We would therefore appropriate the language of the Psalmist, and sing, How amiable are thy tabernacles, O LORD of hosts! Blessed are they that dwell in thy courts:
they shall still be praising thee. Selah.

We thank thee, God of grace, and God of ordinances, that we have been preserved through another night, and that we have entered upon another hallowed day, another sacred day, another day of the Son of man. Give us an ardent love to all thine ordinances, and in particular to thy public courts. God forbid that we should ever treat them with indifference or neglect. Holy Spirit, mercifully bestow on us such enlarged and spiritual views of thy public courts, that we shall sing with inward sincerity, A day in thy courts is better than a thousand: we would rather be doorkeepers in the house of our God, than dwell in the tents of wickedness.

Give to our children a strong and spiritual attachment to thy public courts. O may they acquire in early life that love to thy house and thine ordinances which will attend them all their days.

We affectionately pray that a large measure of the influences of the Spirit may descend on all thy ministering servants, and in particular on thy servant whom thou hast appointed over us in the Lord. Give to them all an abundance of the heavenly treasure, that the excellency of the power may be of God.

May our rulers feel the influence of Divine truth, and find in thy courts that heavenly grace which will render their authority a blessing to those over whom they are required to rule.

Bless the preached Word to all who love the Lord Jesus Christ—to all whose flesh and heart are crying out for the living God. May they go from strength to strength, till at last they appear before God in the heavenly Zion.

Have mercy on unconverted sinners, and may they hear savingly what God the Lord will say unto them. O speak salvation unto them, and let them not return again to folly.
Comfort the afflicted and aged in their retirements. Now do thou enrich them with grace, and animate their souls with the delightful prospects of glory beyond the Jordan of death.

May our prayers be answered, and our sins forgiven, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

- 1 AMONG the princes, earthly gods,
There's none hath power divine;
Nor is their nature, mighty Lord,
Nor all their works, like thine.
- 2 The nations thou hast made shall bring Their offerings round thy throne;
For thou alone dost wondrous things,
For thou art God alone.
- 3 Lord, I would walk with holy feet;
Teach me thine heavenly ways,
And my poor scattered thoughts unite
In God my Father's praise.

PSALM LXXXV.

Harmony of the Attributes.

MERCY and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other.

11 Truth shall spring out of the earth and righteousness shall look down from heaven.

12 Yea, the Lord shall give that which is good; and our land shall yield her increase.

13 Righteousness shall go before him; and shall set us in the way of his steps.

PSALM LXXXVI.

Earnest Prayers.

BOW down thine ear, O Lord, hear me: for I am poor and needy.

2 Preserve my soul; for I am holy: O thou my God, save thy servant that trusteth in thee.

3 Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I cry unto thee daily.

4 Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

5 For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

6 Give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer; and attend to the voice of my supplications.

7 In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me.

8 Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works.

9 All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name.

10 For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone.

11 Teach me thy way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.

12 I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart: and I will glorify thy name for evermore.

13 For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

14 O God, the proud have risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul; and have not set thee before them.

15 But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

16 O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me; give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid.

17 Shew me a token for good; that they which hate me may see it, and be ashamed: because thou, Lord, hast holpen me, and comforted me.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXV., LXXXVI.—Come my soul and behold the harmony of the Divine perfections in Christ. Mercy longs and calls for the salvation of lost men. Justice says, I cannot submit to the pardon of the sinner without satisfaction. My honour, my prerogatives cannot be compromised; sooner than this, men must be left to perish for ever in their guilt. Mercy calls on wisdom for her aid, and moves this glorious attribute to contrive a plan by which justice may receive all her righteous claims, and thus salvation be obtained for the objects of Jehovah's love. The plan wisdom contrived, moved by Divine love, has been accomplished, and its invaluable blessings actually applied to myriads of our race. Justice has received all her claims; Mercy has realised all her compassionate desires; Truth shines forth in the fulfilment of the Divine purposes; Peace is proclaimed between God and man—between heaven and earth; and the harmony of the Divine perfections is for ever secured. Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, thou art infinitely good in thyself. Thou art essentially good. There is none good but One, and thou art that blessed One. There is none essentially, infinitely, and immutably good but thyself. We rejoice that, while thou art infinitely good in thyself, thou art the most merciful and beneficent donor of good to others. Thou dost good continually; yea, the Lord shall give that which is good; and our land shall yield her increase. Blessed Saviour, we praise thee that, when thou didst tabernacle amongst men in thy humbled state, thou didst constantly go about doing good; and thou hast left a blessed example, that we should follow thy steps. Divine Redeemer, may thy blessed example be ever before our eyes, and may we look upon it with admiration and delight, and with greater joy than a child looks upon the countenance of a fond parent.

God of salvation, we adore thee in all thy compassion, mercy, and grace, manifested in the pardon and acceptance of sinners, through our Saviour's righteousness and death. Glory to God in the highest, that, by the accomplishment of the plan of salvation, mercy and truth are met together, righteousness and peace have embraced each other. When we think, O Lord, of the rich provision thou hast made for wretched, guilty, ruined man, what reason have we thus to acknowledge and adore thee! Thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy to all them that call upon thee. Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the glorious Gospel, which has been proclaimed in our hearing, and in the hearing of multitudes, this day. Glorious art thou in all the displays of thine attributes given in creation and providence; but how transcendent are these manifestations of thy glory given in the contrivance, execution, and application of the plan of redeeming grace! Truly, among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto thy works.

O may our dear children be added to the number of thy converts. Give them a place in thy family, and make them the early trophies of a Saviour's conquest. May thy tender compassion lead our servants to cast themselves down at mercy's feet, to seek salvation through the blood of Jesus.

Have mercy on the Jews, thine ancient people, who originally enjoyed the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises. Soon, O Jesus, may they and all the nations of the earth whom thou hast made come and worship before thee, and glorify thy name.

Lord, forgive the sins of this day—the sins of thy ministers in preaching, and of the people in hearing. O pity those who have treated thine ordinances with open contempt, and have not even entered thy sacred courts. O change their rebellion into obedience and love!

Graciously hear our prayers, and watch over us this night, while we retire to enjoy the blessings of repose. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

2 KINGS V.

NOW Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria was a great man with his master, and honourable, because by him the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria: he was also a mighty man in valour, but he was a leper.

2 And the Syrians had gone out by companies: and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she waited on Naaman's wife.

3 And she said unto her mistress, Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would recover him of his leprosy.

4 And one went in, and told his lord, saying, Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

5 And the king of Syria said, Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed, and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment.

6 And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying, Now when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy.

7 And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that he rent his clothes, and said, Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? wherefore consider, I pray you, and see how he seeketh a quarrel against me.

8 And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9 So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha.

10 And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

11 But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper.

12 Are not Ahana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage.

13 And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean?

14 Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS V.—God is the sovereign disposer of rank, talents, influence, and enjoyments. How often is it that the greatest temporal comforts, are mingled with the greatest alloy! Let the leprosy of Naaman remind us of the leprosy of sin, with which all are affected by nature, and not one of the whole race of man exempted. All, without exception, have reason to exclaim under the influence of the deepest penitence and humility, "Unclean, unclean!" Is it of great importance to be informed by whom, and where, we may be cured of a dangerous, loathsome malady? Surely, it is of infinitely greater, and more solemn importance, to be informed by whom, and where, and when, we may be delivered from the spiritual leprosy of sin. Naaman washed in Jordan, and was cleansed. May we wash in Jesus' blood, and our leprosy of guilt and pollution shall be washed away.

PRAYER.

WE bless the name of the living God, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, that we have been refreshed upon our beds with sleep, and that our forfeited lives have been preserved, and that another sacred opportunity is now furnished of approaching thy throne of grace through the all-prevailing merit of the righteousness of Christ, and through the all-prevailing efficacy of his gracious and skilful intercession. We adore thee, O Lord, as an almighty deliverer. Thou art able to deliver from the diseases of the body and the soul; and thou art able to deliver from enemies who endanger our eternal as well as our temporal prosperity and comfort. We attribute to thee alone, and not to statesmen and armies, all the deliverances which our nation has received from the plans and from the assaults of powerful enemies. When we remember the history of our land, and more especially of thy Church in our land, we would sing, The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the important and instructive history we have now read of the miraculous cure of Naaman the Syrian. May we see in his disease the vanity of wealth and greatness, as altogether insufficient to afford relief, when touched with the afflicting hand of God. Preserve us from the sinful love of earthly objects, and may all the affections of our hearts be placed on Jesus, and the invaluable blessings of salvation which he died to procure.

As Naaman mourned over the leprosy of his body, may we feel and mourn over the leprosy of our soul. We beseech thee that we may not remain ignorant of our spiritual leprosy, and foolishly imagine that all is well, while we may be exactly in the situation of the church of Laodicea—poor, wretched, blind, miserable, and naked. As Naaman could only obtain deliverance from his loathsome disease by washing in the river Jordan, O convince us that we never can be delivered from the vile pollution of sin, except by washing in Christ, the only fountain opened for spiritual uncleanness.

May our dear children feel the leprosy of sin. Enable them and our servants to feel it as a heavy burden—as a grievous, a loathsome disease. To thee, O Jesus, may they flee for the healing influence of thy blood.

We adore thy sovereignty, O Lord, in employing a captive out of the land of Israel, a little maid, as the mean of directing her master to the only source where he could obtain deliverance from his disease. We pray that servants generally may be endued with grace, and rendered spiritual blessings to the families with which they are connected. We praise thee for all the instances of saving benefit which have attended the humble efforts of pious domestics.

Give us thy grace, O Lord, to glorify thee this day in all our engagements. Forgive all our sins, and hear our imperfect, feeble prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake.

1 CORINTHIANS IX.

Kindness to Ministers.

AM I not an apostle? am I not free? have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? are not ye my work in the Lord?

2 If I be not an apostle unto others, yet doubtless I am to you: for the seal of mine apostleship are ye in the Lord.

3 Mine answer to them that do examine me is this,

4 Have we not power to eat and to drink?

5 Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working?

7 Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, 'Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen?

10 Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope.

11 If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?

12 If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ.

13 Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar?

14 Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things: neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void.

16 For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel!

17 For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward: but if against my will, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? Verily that, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. IX.—Saul, who was once the blood-thirsty persecutor, and who became the faithful servant and apostle of Christ, is one of the most remarkable trophies of Divine grace furnished by the history of the Church in any age. O with what emotions of humility, love, thankfulness, and joy, he gave utterance to the following exclamation: "By the grace of God, I am what I am!" With great interest parents look upon their own offspring—flesh of their flesh, and blood of their blood; but with what peculiar interest holy ministers, and others, behold those of whose blessed conversion they have been the honoured means, and who are therefore their spiritual children in Christ Jesus! God has established a most interesting relation betwixt his people and his ministers. As to spiritual matters, he has committed his people to the affectionate care and supervision of his ministers; and as to temporal matters and support, he has committed his minister to the affectionate care of his people.

PRAYER.

WE acknowledge thy prerogatives, O Jesus our Saviour, as the King of Zion, and as the Shepherd of Israel. As God, thou hast an essential right to the government of the Church; and as Mediator, thou hast purchased by thy death a right to fill its glorious throne. We rejoice that God the Father has said in the glorious economy of salvation, Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion. Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. We thank and praise thee, O Jesus, that, in the wise and gracious exercise of thine authority, thou hast furnished thy Church, in all ages, with ministers and office-bearers, for the perfecting of the saints, and for the edifying of the body of Christ.

Sanctify to all our minds what we heard of thy glorious Gospel from the lips of our beloved pastor on thy sacred day. Let not the sermons to which we have listened, and the ordinances we have observed, rise up against us and condemn us. Deeply impress our minds with the thought, that there will be at the last day a resurrection of sermons as well as of ministers; and that we must give an account of the manner we have improved the labours of thy faithful servants. Alas, that we have valued our privileges so little, and that we have improved them so little! Considering our great advantages, we should have been qualified to be the instructors of others; but, to our shame, we confess, we need to be taught ourselves the first principles of the oracles of God.

Lord, give to us, and to all thy professed people, increased love to thy ministers, and an increasing veneration for their sacred office. May we never speak of them or act towards them with disrespect. May the conviction never leave our minds, that Jesus identifies his ambassadors with himself, and that he considers injury done to them as committed against his own person, and that touching them he considers as touching the apple of his eye.

Never allow our children to fall into the sin of neglecting thy holy servants. In their early days may that hallowed affection toward thy ministers be formed in their bosoms which will follow them to the grave.

Show great kindness to thy ministering servants who are tried with poverty; give them rich treasures of grace, and many seals to their ministry. On the one hand, preserve thy ministers from a sinful love of worldly wealth, luxury, and ease; and, on the other, preserve them from those hypocritical oppressors who would bear down the minds of thine ambassadors, by withholding from them necessary support. May the mutual duties of ministers and people be better known and practised in the future than they have ever been in the past.

We thank our God for the mercies of the day, and now commit ourselves and our relatives to thy gracious protection and care this night. Lord, hear our supplications, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S PITY TO THE TEMPTED.

Waltham Abbey. Craven Chapel. David's.

G. M.

- 1 HOW keen the tempter's malice is How artful and how great!
Though not one grain shall be destroyed,
Yet will he sift the wheat.
- 2 But God can all his power control,
And gather in his chain;
And, where he seems to triumph most,
The captive soul regain.
- 3 There is a Shepherd, kind and strong,
Still watchful for his sheep;
Nor shall the infernal lion rend
Whom he vouchsafes to keep.

DODDRIDGE.

2 KINGS XIX.

Hezekiah's pious Conduct under Rab-shakeh's Threatenings.

AND it came to pass, when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD.

2 And he sent Eliakim, which was over the household, and Shehnah the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz.

3 And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, and blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 It may be the LORD thy God will hear all the words of Rab-shakeh, whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to reproach the living God; and will reprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that are left.

5 So the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

6 And Isaiah said unto them, Thus shall ye say to your master, Thus saith the LORD, Be not afraid of the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will send a blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumour, and shall return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 So Rab-shakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish.

9 And when he heard say of Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, Behold, he is come out to fight against thee: he sent messengers again unto Hezekiah, saying,

10 Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God in whom thou trustest deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Behold thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, by destroying them utterly: and shalt thou be delivered?

12 Have the gods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have destroyed; as Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Thelasar?

13 Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Hena, and Ivah?

14 And Hezekiah received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah went up into the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah prayed before the LORD, and said, O LORD God of Israel, which dwellest between the cherubim, thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth.

16 LORD, bow down thine ear, and hear: open LORD, thine eyes, and see: and hear the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent him to reproach the living God.

17 Of a truth, LORD, the kings of Assyria have destroyed the nations and their lands.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS XIX.—Under afflictions, we should feel more anxious for their sanctified improvement than for their removal. Angels look down with affectionate interest upon the people of God when with humility, holy penitence, and filial dependence they submit to the afflictive dispensations of a sovereign and gracious Providence. When believers are suffering at the hands of wicked men, they look on the Divine and sovereign will of God as employing them merely as a rod of discipline to promote their spiritual advancement in things Divine. David was deeply, and profitably impressed with this truth when he described even wicked men as "God's hand," and "God's sword."

PRAYER.

THOUGH we are worms of the dust, O Lord, we desire, through Jesus, the new and living way, to approach thy throne and adore thy majesty. And what are we, that adorations so feeble and imperfect should come up with acceptance before thee! Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight.

We desire, holy and righteous God, to be humbled in thy presence, under a deep sense of our natural depravity and our actual transgression. Convince us that the greatness of our privileges adds to the greatness of our guilt and the aggravation of our sins. If thou hadst visited us with the demerit of our sins, long ere now awful calamities had visited us, and swept us from the very face of the earth. Glory to thy name, that we are prisoners of hope, and not of despair—that we are monuments of mercy, and not the spectacles of thy merited indignation.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the afflictions which have befallen us: for in these visitations thou hast manifested thy justice, thy wisdom, and thy mercy. Give us the satisfying evidence that all our afflictions are sanctified. May the same effects be produced on us by means of our afflictions, which were produced on the mind of the pious Hezekiah, when the ambassador of the king of Assyria threatened the overthrow of Judah, and blasphemed the God of Israel. May our afflictions never fail to remind us of our sins. Teach us to look on all our sins as the source of our afflictions, and with David to acknowledge—Iniquities, we must confess, prevail against us: as for our transgressions, O Lord, do thou purge them away.

Deliver us, most gracious God, from all our spiritual enemies. Preserve us from the fiery darts of Satan, an enemy far more formidable than the proud Rab-shakeh, who struck terror into the mind of Judah's king. We know, O Lord, that Satan goeth up and down the world like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. May we be preserved from his allurements when he transforms himself into an angel of light, and may we be defended from his fiery darts of blasphemies when he appears in his real, unveiled character.

Captain of salvation, make our dear children and servants soldiers in thine army. O put upon them the whole armour of God; then we shall see them valiant in thy service, and victorious over all their enemies.

As Isaiah thy prophet encouraged thine afflicted servant Hezekiah in the day of his sorrow, we praise thee that ministers still continue to be the comforters of thine afflicted people. Thy Gospel, O Jesus, is delicious wine, to comfort those who are of a heavy heart. To thee, and thee alone, may we look for the consolations and joys of thy salvation.

The mercies of another night proclaim thy goodness; O that we could present a suitable sacrifice of praise! Preserve us from the snares and temptations of this day, and make us diligent and conscientious in the discharge of its duties. Lord, hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our only Advocate. Amen.

MORTIFYING CORRUPTIONS.

- 1 STRAIT is the way, the door is strait,
That leads to joys on high:
'Tis but a few that find the gate,
While crowds mistake and die.
- 2 Beloved self must be denied,
The mind and will renewed;
Passions suppressed, and patience tried,
And vain desires subdued.
- 3 Flesh is a dangerous foe to grace,
Where it prevails and rules;
Flesh must be humbled, pride abused
Lest they destroy our souls.
- 4 The love of gold be banished hence,
(That vile idolatry,)
And every momber, every sense,
In sweet subjection lie.

WARR, 161, B. II.

1 CORINTHIANS IX.

St. Paul's Earnestness in his Work.

FOR though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all, that I might gain the more.

20 And unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law;

21 To them that are without law, as without law (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ), that I might gain them that are without law.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

24 Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air:

27 But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway.

1 CORINTHIANS X.

Avoiding Sin.

MOREOVER, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea;

2 And were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea;

3 And did all eat the same spiritual meat;

4 And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ.

5 But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness.

6 Now these things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed of serpents.

10 Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. IX., x.—They who are really called to the ministry, by the chief Shepherd and Bishop of souls, consider themselves as the servants of all. Thus they breathe the spirit of their Divine Lord, who made himself the servant of all, who girded himself with a towel, and washed his disciples' feet. What humility—what condescension! O what a blessed example, which should excite the admiring love, and secure the loving imitation of his ministers and people in every age. The great Apostle of the Gentiles most faithfully walked in the footsteps of his Divine Lord. When the influences of the Holy Spirit shall descend on all who are invested with the office of the ministry, a sun of millennial glory shall shine upon the Church of Christ, and fill the earth with blessedness and peace.

PRAYER.

HOLY and gracious Spirit, fill our minds with sublime and reverential views of God, while, agreeably to the Divine command, we approach the throne of grace to present our evening sacrifice. We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of glory infinite, and of holiness unspotted. How inconceivable is thy holiness, when the very heavens are not clean in thy sight! and how inconceivable is thy wisdom, when thou chargest with folly the wisest intelligences who stand before thy throne! We praise thee for the pleasing and comforting lustre which is spread over thy holiness and truth by the atonement and intercession of Christ.

We bless thee, O Lord, that the salvation of Christ is a salvation from sin as well as from misery. God forbid that we should be among the number who only wish to be delivered from misery, and who have no desire to be delivered from sin. Create in our minds, Holy Spirit, the hatred of sin, and the fixed determination, in thy strength, to mortify the lusts of the body, and to subdue the passions of the mind. May we admire the holy character of the Apostle, and, like him, keep our body under subjection. O Lord, deliver us from the fire of those lusts which, if not restrained and subdued in this life, must be followed by the pains of hell in that life which is to come. O that each of us were engaged in running the Christian race! and may we be animated with the cheering prospect of obtaining, at the end of the Christian course, that blessed prize, the crown of life, which fadeth not away.

Heaven grant that all our children may be persuaded to lay aside every weight, and enter upon that blessed and honourable career of piety, the Christian race, which conducts at last to the joys of heaven.

We thank thee, heavenly Father, for the account we have now read of the ministerial labours and diligence of the Apostle Paul. O that a large portion of his spirit may be communicated to the heralds of salvation in these lands, and throughout the world! Taking the rules of thy Gospel for their guide, may they become all things to all men, that by all means they may save some. Teach them to lay aside all repulsive and authoritative severity, and may they ever recommend Jesus and his cause by Christian kindness, humility, and love.

Lord, teach all of us often and conscientiously to examine ourselves, whether we be in the faith, and whether our profession of piety be accompanied by heartfelt sincerity. O suffer us not to wear the mask of hypocrisy! God forbid that, when our souls lay down the tabernacles of clay, we should find ourselves for ever cast away from the gracious presence of Jehovah. Now may we eat the spiritual food and be refreshed by the spiritual water which the Gospel supplies. Now may we build our hopes on Christ, the spiritual rock.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the day, and refresh us with sleep this night. Sanctify our services, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake; the Divine Redeemer. Amen.

GROWTH IN GRACE.

Transport. Derby. Portugal New.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, 'tis a pleasant thing to stand
In gardens planted by thy hand;
Let me within thy courts be seen,
Like a young cedar fresh and green.
- 2 There grow thy saints in faith and love,
Blest with thine influence from above;
Not Lebanon with all its trees
Yields such a comely sight as these.
- 3 The plants of grace shall ever live;
(Nature decays, but grace must thrive;)
Time, that doth all things else impair,
Still makes them flourish strong and fair.

Watts, Ps. 92, p. 11.

2 KINGS XIX.

Safety of the Church and Ruin of Sennacherib.

THEN Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, That which thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria I have heard.

21 This is the word that the Lord hath spoken concerning him; The virgin the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee.

23 By thy messengers thou hast reproached the Lord, and hast said, With the multitude of my chariots I am come up to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon, and will cut down the tall cedar-trees thereof, and the choice fir-trees thereof: and I will enter into the lodgings of his borders, and into the forest of his Carmel.

24 I have digged and drunk strange waters, and with the sole of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of besieged places.

25 Hast thou not heard long ago how I have done it, and of ancient times that I have formed it? now have I brought it to pass, that thou shouldest be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps.

26 Therefore their inhabitants were of small power, they were dismayed and confounded; they were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb, as the grass on the house-tops, and as corn blasted before it be grown up.

27 But I know thy abode, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy rage against me.

28 Because thy rage against me and thy tumult is come up into mine ears, therefore I will put my hook in thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way by which thou earnest.

31 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and they that escape out of mount Zion: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.

32 Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a bank against it.

33 By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord.

34 For I will defend this city, to save it, for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake.

35 And it came to pass that night, that the angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses.

36 So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh.

37 And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, that Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons smote him with the sword: and they escaped into the land of Armenia. And Esarhaddon his son reigned in his stead.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS XIX.—We cannot be too much encouraged with the loving readiness with which God graciously hears, accepts, and answers the prayers of his people. The prayers of holy Hezekiah issued in the destruction of the proud Assyrian army; showing that the enemies of Zion have more to fear from the prayers of the people of God, than from battalions of armed hosts. Blasphemous rebels against God are not aware of that great God whom they impiously oppose. They shut their eyes, and will not see his justice and omnipotence; they will not believe in the vials of his indignation he has laid up in store for his audacious, impenitent enemies. At last, the day of their just visitation arrives: the thunderbolts of Divine wrath burst upon their devoted heads; and they find now, what they would not formerly believe, that escape from an offended God is impossible.

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and merciful Lord God, while it is our privilege, at the commencement of another day, to appear as petitioners before thy throne of grace, O that it may be our blessing to draw near impressed by holy, reverential, and devotional feelings, arising from a sense of thy condescending mercy and our own insignificance and unworthiness.

We adore thee, heavenly Father, as a God of almighty power and unbending justice. While these attributes are so comforting to thy children, they are clothed with terror to thine implacable and impenitent enemies. We have now read of the alarming threatenings with which the haughty king of Assyria struck terror into the hearts of thy people; and we have also read, O Lord, of the untimely death of the proud tyrant whom thy justice laid low in the dust. We adore thy sovereignty in permitting his own sons to rise up against their father, and put to death a persecuting prince, who laughed to scorn thine eternal majesty, and who threatened to lay waste the vineyard of thy Church. We will proclaim thy justice and judgment, which are the habitation of thy throne; and thy mercy and thy truth, which go before thy face. How swift is thy mercy, and how slow is thine anger!

We present, O Lord, our united thanksgivings for thy preserving kindness during another night, and that we are not sent unprepared into the eternal world, before the return of the morning's light. Give us grace to glorify thee this day, not only in our religious duties, but also in our temporal engagements. May the sweet savour of religion mingle with all our duties, all our sufferings, and all our enjoyments.

We desire to pray for the enemies of Christ and his kingdom. Lay restraints upon their power and their malice. If it is thy will, mercifully accomplish in them a change similar to that which Paul experienced; who, from being a most violent enemy of the Gospel of Christ, was made one of the most eminent servants of the Cross. If there are any of our beloved friends secret or public enemies of the Gospel of Jesus, O let Divine grace reach their hearts, and may they now be more zealous in advancing the cause of Jesus than they have been in opposing it.

Deliver our dear children and servants from the enmity of the heart against things Divine. May we see in them a warm love to thy Bible, thy day, thy house, but, above all, to thy Son.

Eminently bless the congregation with which we are connected. We would now bear them up affectionately in our prayers before thee. Under the sanctified labours of our beloved minister may all the people become green olives in thy house. Make them trees of righteousness; may they take root downward, and bring forth fruit upward. Fulfil that promise in the experience of thy people: I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine, and the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon. Lord, give each one of us grace, and growth in grace. May we be in reality living branches in Christ, the true vine; and not withered branches, which shall be cut down and cast into the flame.

Mercifully hear us, for Jesus' sake, our merciful Redeemer. Amen.

WELCOMING THE CROSS.

- 1 THIS my happiness below
Not to live without the cross;
But the Saviour's power to know,
Sanctifying every loss:
- 2 Trials must and will befall;
But—with humble faith to see
Love inscribed upon them all—
This is happiness to me.
- 3 God, in Israel, sows the seeds
Of affliction, pain, and toil;
These spring up and choke the weeds
Which would else o'erspread the soil;
- 4 Trials make the promise sweet;
Trials give new life to prayer;
Trials bring me to his feet,—
Lay me low, and keep me there.

COWPER.

I CORINTHIANS X.

Holy Counsels.

NOW all these things happened unto them for ensamples; and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

12 Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

14 Wherefore, my dearly beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

22 Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?

23 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not.

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

25 Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, that eat, asking no question for conscience sake:

26 For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof.

27 If any of them that believe not bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But if any man say unto you, This is offered in sacrifice unto idols, eat not for his sake that shewed it, and for conscience sake: for the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof:

29 Conscience, I say, not thine own, but of the other: for why is my liberty judged of another man's conscience?

30 For if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that for which I give thanks?

31 Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.

REFLECTIONS UPON I Cor. x.—The sins committed by ancient Israel were peculiarly great, and, therefore, the judgments inflicted upon them were justly severe. Even from those distant ages they speak to us with a loud, solemn, warning voice; calling upon us to beware of despising God's mercy, or of trampling upon his authority, if we wish to escape his indignation and enjoy his smiles. Some who think they are firm and secure, are in circumstances of the greatest peril, and tottering upon a pinnacle of the greatest danger. None are really safe, but they who feel their own weakness and insufficiency, and who implicitly lean upon the arm of Christ's gracious omnipotence. Are our eyes open to see our own helplessness? Are our hopes built upon the Rock of ages? Then we are safe; yes, for ever safe. Then, "we can smile at Satan's rage;" yes, and "we can face with confidence a frowning world." Temptations are those spiritual whirlwinds, to which the heaven-bound travellers are exposed, in travelling through the wilderness of this world to their celestial home; but none of them shall prevent their certain and safe arrival at their promised rest.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee as a faithful God: thou art faithful to thy purposes, and faithful to thy promises. We rejoice that, firm and sure as we know the heavens to be, thy word is more sure; for the heavens and the earth may pass away, but thy word shall never fall to the ground. We thank thee for the display of thy faithfulness given to thy people, in supporting them under all their afflictions, in mitigating their sufferings, and in giving them deliverance at last out of all their temptations and troubles.

Lord, give us confidence in thee, as a promising and faithful God. Deliver us, we beseech thee, from evil hearts of unbelief. May we believe all thine invitations of mercy, and accept of them; may we believe all thine offers of spiritual blessings, and receive them; and may we believe all the promises of thy truth, and rely upon them. We confess, O Lord, our unbelief; Lord, destroy our unbelief, and take from us that heart-hardening and God-dishonouring sin.

We thank God for the continued stream of thy providential goodness of which we have been permitted this day to drink. And we thank thee that this day the waters of salvation have been brought within our reach, in the secret and private ordinances of religion. As we are about to retire to rest, may we enjoy the fatherly care and protection of our God. May our natural rest remind us of that spiritual and heavenly rest which remains for the people of God beyond the grave.

Sanctify to us, Holy Spirit, our promised comforter, the Word now read. Bless to us the remembrance of departed saints. May we ever look on thy people, whose names are recorded in the Word of life, as examples, in whose steps we are required to walk, in as far as they were followers of Jesus. For this purpose, bless to us the remembrance of departed friends who have fallen asleep in Christ. And may the remembrance of such as have left behind them no satisfying evidence of vital godliness produce on our minds the most solemnising effects, and convince us how awful it is to die without an interest in Christ, and without a title to heaven.

Lord, impress the minds of our dear children with the conviction of the nearness and the certainty of death. Daily may they think of death, and daily may they flee to Jesus, the conqueror of death.

Preserve all of us, O Lord, from presumption. May we never confide in our own strength; and, while we stand, may we take heed lest we fall. O convince us that it is in vain to expect to stand in the day of temptation without taking heed; and that, if watchfulness and prayer are laid aside, we shall speedily fall. When we are tempted, holy Saviour, hold us up by thy mighty arm. Ever in thy strength may we resist the devil, then he will flee far from us. We rejoice there is always a way of escape. May we know the way of escape, and not tarry till our tempting foe prevail. Ever may we glorify thy name, whether we eat or drink, or whatsoever we do.

Lord, hear our feeble, humble prayer, for Jesus' sake, the only wise God, our Saviour. Amen.

HEZEKIAH'S SONG.

Buckingham. Spiltbrook. Crooks.

c. n.

- 1 WHEN we are raised from deep distress,
Our God deserves a song;
We take the pattern of our praise
From Hezekiah's tongue.
- 2 The gates of the devouring grave
Are opened wide in vain,
If he that holds the keys of death
Commands them fast again.
- 3 Pains of the flesh are wont to abuse
Our minds with slavish fears;
Our days are past, and we shall lose
The remnant of our years.

WATTS, 55, L. 1.

2 KINGS XX.

Hezekiah's Sickness and Recovery.

IN those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz came to him, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then he turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto the LORD, saying,

3 I beseech thee, O LORD, remember now how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah wept sore.

4 And it came to pass, afore Isaiah was gone out into the middle court, that the word of the LORD came to him, saying,

5 Turn again, and tell Hezekiah the captain of my people, Thus saith the LORD, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will heal thee: on the third day thou shalt go up unto the house of the LORD.

6 And I will add unto thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; and I will defend this city for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake.

7 And Isaiah said, Take a lump of figs. And they took and laid it on the boil, and he recovered.

8 And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, What shall be the sign that the LORD will heal me, and that I shall go up into the house of the LORD the third day?

9 And Isaiah said, This sign shalt thou have of the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing that he hath spoken: shall the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go back ten degrees?

10 And Hezekiah answered, It is a light thing for the shadow to go down ten degrees: nay, but let the shadow return backward ten degrees.

11 And Isaiah the prophet cried unto the LORD: and he brought the shadow ten degrees backward, by which it had gone down in the dial of Ahaz.

12 And Isaiah said unto Hezekiah, Hear the word of the LORD.

13 Behold, the days come, that all that is in thine house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the LORD.

14 And of thy sons that shall issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

15 Then said Hezekiah unto Isaiah, Good is the word of the LORD which thou hast spoken. And he said, Is it not good, if peace and truth be in my days?

16 And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought water into the city, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

17 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers: and Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS XX.—We shall be sick unto death: "It is appointed unto man once to die." In the prospect of passing through the valley and shadow of death have we committed our souls, our precious souls, our never-dying souls, into the hands and care of Jesus, the Conqueror of death? Have we supplicated the Divine Spirit to enrich us with those graces by which we shall be prepared for leaving the Church militant below, and of uniting with the Church triumphant above? Then we shall be able to welcome death as a friend, and not look upon him as a foe; then we shall lift up our joyful hopes to Jesus, the Lamb of God, who fills the loftiest throne in heaven, and sing, "Even so come quickly, Lord Jesus!"

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we assemble to present our morning sacrifice in the name of Christ. Mercifully impart to us the believing conviction that we shall be graciously accepted, and that our humble prayers shall be answered.

We adore thee, O Jehovah, as a merciful sovereign. Thou art sovereign in all the afflictions which befall thy people, and thou art gracious in overruling all their afflictions to promote thy glory and advance their interest. How infinitely kind and merciful, that, when thy children, like Hezekiah, are assailed by temporal evils, thou bringest good out of evil; when enveloped in clouds of dark providences, thou bringest light out of darkness; when the path before them is crooked, thou makest it straight; and when they are in rough places, thou makest them plain!

We desire, O Lord, to stand in awe of thy sovereignty.

We thank thee, O Lord, that, in answer to our prayers, we are preserved in safety to behold the light of another day; and that we are engaged in those delightful services which not only prepare for heaven, but which afford by the Spirit the foretastes of celestial joys. O that all the families with which we are connected were persuaded by the Holy Spirit to erect a family altar, and regularly under their domestic roof to adore the perfections and implore the grace of God! We supplicate the guidance of thy wisdom in all the duties and amid all the perplexities which may occur this day; and we seek thy grace, to enable us successfully to resist every temptation which may be placed before us by the enemies of the soul.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the afflictions, the feelings, the prayers, and the recovery of thy servant Hezekiah. When sickness is laid upon our bodies, may it remind us of our mortality, and of the infinite importance of an immediate application to Jesus, that we may be prepared for the eternal world. Give us thy grace, that we may set our house in order, under the solemnising impression that death is certain, and that a judgment-day is fast approaching, when we must answer for the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or whether they be bad. We seek for ourselves, and for all our relatives, a spirit of prayer. In the time of affliction may we know the benefit and enjoy the consolation arising from fellowship with God in the exercise of solemn and believing prayer.

Give to our children and domestics the gift and spirit of prayer. At an early period may they possess the golden key of prayer, by which they shall have access to the treasury of heaven.

We thank our God for all the recoveries from sickness and disease afforded us by our heavenly Father in answer to our prayers. O prepare us for our last sickness, which will cut the silver cord of our mortal life. Then may we die like Hezekiah; and, through the death of Jesus, may we receive a life immortal in the skies. Hear these our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, who is the resurrection and the life. Amen, and amen.

CHRIST'S BODY INCOMPARABLE FOOD.

Kemsey. Admiration. Uverston.

L. M.

- 1 JESUS, we bow before thy feet,
Thy table is divinely stored;
Thy sacred flesh our souls have eat,
'Tis living bread; we thank thee, Lord!
- 2 And here we drink our Saviour's blood,
We thank thee, Lord, 'tis generous wine,
Mingled with love the fountain flowed
From that dear bleeding heart of thine.
- 3 On earth is no such sweetness found,
For the Lamb's flesh is heavenly food;
In vain we search the globe around
For bread so fine, or wine so good.
- 4 Carnal provisions e'en at best
But cheer the heart or warm the head,
But the rich cordial that we taste
Gives life eternal to the dead.

Watts, 18, B. III.

1 CORINTHIANS XI.

Lord's Supper.

FOR first of all, when ye come together in the Church, I hear that there be divisions among you; and I partly believe it.

19 For there must be also heresies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's supper.

21 For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper; and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 What? have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God, and shame them that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

23 For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread:

24 And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me.

25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come.

27 Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28 But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh judgment to himself, not discerning the Lord's body.

30 For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep.

31 For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world.

33 Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, carry one for another.

34 And if any man hunger, let him eat at home; that ye come not together unto condemnation. And the rest will I set in order when I come.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 Cor. xi.—When churches exemplify unity and love, they are like the apple-tree among the trees of the wood. When they are separated by the winds of division, bigotry, pride, and carnal ambition, they are like a tree nearly denuded of its leaves, whose blossoms have almost disappeared by the ravages of devouring caterpillars. Satan has many expedients by which he attempts to hinder the fruitfulness of the churches. Erroneous opinions are among the most successful of his crafty and malicious efforts. The ordinances of the Gospel are all invaluable, but we must acknowledge with thankfulness and joy that Jesus, the King and Head of the Church, has conferred very peculiar honour on the ordinance and sacrament of the Supper. In this ordinance he is held up even before the bodily senses in the elements of bread and wine; and thus great spiritual edification and comfort are conveyed to the soul. Let no genuine believers neglect this Divine ordinance while its observance is within their reach. Ever may the dying command be as music to their ears, "Do this in remembrance of me!"

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as the God of ordinances, and as the Lord our God. Thou art glorious in the appointment of the ordinances of nature: in the rising and setting of the sun, and in the succession of days and nights and months and seasons. But we rejoice that thy glory shines with greater glory in appointing the ordinances of worship for thy Church. Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come. Honour and majesty are before thee: strength and beauty are in thy sanctuary. Holy Spirit, bestow on us as a family an increasing love to thine ordinances, and an increasing delight in thy worship. May we ever look on thine ordinances as an invaluable inheritance; and may we ever be led to worship thee in the beauties of holiness.

Graciously bless what we have now read, and may it be profitable for correction and instruction in righteousness. We thank thee, O Lord, for the history of good men recorded in Scripture. We pray that we may be followers of them, as they were of Christ. But, above all, may we ever place before our eyes the example of Jesus. We would immediately come to thee, O Jesus, that we might learn of thee; for thou art meek and lowly in heart. May we bear some resemblance to thee in zeal—may we be constantly going about doing good. May we resemble thee in compassion to the souls of men; and may we pray and strive that they may flee from the wrath to come.

Like Paul, may we travail as in birth, that Christ may be formed in the heart of our offspring. Soon inflame their hearts with Divine love, and may they testify their superlative admiration of Jesus, by sitting at his table, and partaking of the emblems of his body and blood.

Lord, we bless thee for our New Testament passover, the sacrament of the Supper. We rejoice that by this sacred ordinance the death and sufferings of Christ have been so clearly preserved in the remembrance of thy Church. We thank God for the unspeakable benefit which thy people, in all ages, have derived from this sacred institution. We praise thee for that most intimate and endearing fellowship which thy people have enjoyed with thyself while seated at the sacramental table. May all of us now in thy presence obtain correct and holy views of the sacrament of the Supper, and may none of us die till we are enabled with conscientious liberty to sit down at the table of the Lord, to swear an oath of allegiance to his service, and thus testify our love to his person, and our admiration of the matchless love he manifested in his sufferings and his death. Teach us, heart-searching God, impartially to examine ourselves, to know whether we are in heart the disciples of Christ, and so eat of the sacramental bread, and drink of the sacramental cup.

We thank God for the blessings and enjoyments of the day. Give us thy gracious care this night, and may our sleep be refreshing and sweet. Mercifully hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

USEFULNESS OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Peter's Triumphant. Mark's.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN Israel through the desert passed,
A fiery pillar went before,
To guide them through the dreary waste,
And lessen the fatigues they bore.
- 2 Such is thy glorious word, O God!
'Tis for our light and guidance given;
It sheds a lustre all abroad,
And points the path to bliss and heaven.
- 3 It fills the soul with sweet delight,
And quickens its inactive powers;
It sets our wandering footsteps right,
Displays thy love, and kindles ours.

BRODENE.

2 KINGS XXII.

Good King Josiah.

JOSIAH was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of Boscath.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the way of David his father, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left.

3 And Hilkiah the high priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord. And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it.

4 And Shaphan the scribe came to the king, and brought the king word again, and said, Thy servants have gathered the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of them that do the work, that have the oversight of the house of the Lord.

5 And Shaphan the scribe showed the king, saying, Hilkiah the priest hath delivered me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king.

6 And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the book of the law, that he rent his clothes.

7 And the king commanded Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and Achbor the son of Michaiah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asahiah a servant of the king's, saying,

8 Go ye, enquire of the Lord for me, and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that is found: for great is the wrath of the Lord that is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according unto all that which is written concerning us.

9 So Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asahiah, went unto Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Tikvah, the son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe; (now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the college;) and they communed with her.

10 And she said unto them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Tell the man that sent you to me,

11 Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the words of the book which the king of Judah hath read:

12 Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched.

13 But to the king of Judah which sent you to enquire of the Lord, thus shall ye say to him, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, As touching the words which thou hast heard;

14 Because thine heart was tender, and thou hast humbled thyself before the Lord, when thou heardest what I spake against this place, and against the inhabitants thereof, that they should become a desolation and a curse, and hast rent thy clothes, and wept before me; I also have heard thee, saith the Lord.

20 Behold therefore, I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered into thy grave in peace; and thine eyes shall not see all the evil which I will bring upon this place. And they brought the king word again.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS XXII.—A bad king is the greatest curse; a good king is the greatest blessing. Therefore, a good king succeeding a wicked king, is like the clear shining after the rain: it is like the sweet singing of birds, after the raging tempest and the earthquake. In every rank and grade, however low, true piety sheds a lovely lustre on childhood and youth. But all must acknowledge, that piety in youthful princes shines with lustre of a peculiar brightness. What a sacred treasure is "the Word of God!" the light which it contains is unspeakably more glorious than the light which fills the sky at noon-day. The love which young king Josiah manifested to the volume of eternal truth was a lovely demonstration of that unfeigned piety which was the brightest jewel in his crown. In his day, only one copy could be found: in our day, the copies of the Word of Life are like the stars for multitude.

PRAYER.

GREAT and exalted Saviour, we adore thee in all thy Divine and mediatorial prerogatives. Thou art God, and possessed of essential sovereignty. Thou art the Saviour of a lost world, and as the Redeemer of men thou dost fill the throne of Zion. Thou hast a name, with which the names of archangels are not worthy to be compared. Thy name is above every name; and at thy name every knee shall bow. O what homage shall be paid to thy name, when a universe of intelligence shall be assembled before thy tribunal! Then, O Jesus, every tongue, whether voluntarily or reluctantly, shall confess that thou art Lord, to the glory of God the Father. Open our eyes to see thine excellence and to admire thy beauty. May we join the Old Testament Church, and sing, Our beloved is white and ruddy; the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely.

We thank a gracious Providence that the last night has not proved to us the night of death. What are we, that our lives should have been so long preserved, while thousands less guilty have been removed to the world of spirits unprepared?

As a family may we feel that love to thy Word and law which Josiah felt. As he was powerfully impressed under the reading of thy Word, may our hearts be softened and our penitential feelings excited under this sacred ordinance.

We pray that all our rulers may value the Word of God as Josiah valued it; and, like him, may they be guided by its light and purified by its influence.

May the history of the youthful piety of Josiah produce upon the minds of our dear children the most blessed effects. Like him, may they love thy Word and ordinances, and be affected in their early days with the infinite importance of things Divine.

Holy Spirit, fill our hearts with thankfulness for the abundance of the Holy Scriptures in these lands of our nativity. We thank our God that the period of the scarcity of the Word of life is now passed away. While one copy of thy Word could only be found in the days of good king Josiah, we thank thee that in our day millions of copies of the inestimable treasure are found in various parts of the earth. Holy Spirit, enable us to value thy sacred Word.

We have reason to lament that, in our hearts and lives, we have wandered so far from thy revealed will. We are guilty as individuals, as families, and as a nation. It is of thy mercy that thy wrath is not kindled against us, because we have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according unto all that which is written therein.

We pray that our persons and services may be accepted, and our sins forgiven, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

INFLUENCE OF THE SPIRIT COMPARED TO WIND.

Auburn. Sandgate. Follett.

C. M.

- 1 THE blessed Spirit, like the wind,
Blows when and where he please;
How happy are the men who feel
The soul-enlivening breeze.
- 2 He forms the carnal mind afresh,
Subdues the power of sin,
Transforms the heart of stone to flesh,
And plants his grace within.
- 3 He sheds abroad the Father's love,
Applies redeeming blood,
Bids both our guilt and grief remove,
And brings us near to God.

BEDDOCK.

1 CORINTHIANS XII.

Various Gifts of the Spirit.

NOW concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant.

2 Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led.

3 Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

4 Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit.

5 And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord.

6 And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal.

11 But all these worketh that one and the selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.

12 For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

14 For the body is not one member, but many.

15 If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?

17 If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18 But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him.

19 And if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are they many members, yet but one body.

21 And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Nay, much more those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary:

23 And those members of the body, which we think to be less honourable, upon these we bestow more abundant honour; and our uncemely parts have more abundant comeliness.

24 For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked:

25 That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. XII.—Natural talents and gifts, however valuable in themselves, are never sufficient, without Divine grace, to enable us to live up to the great end of our existence—namely, to glorify God and enjoy him for ever. Let us, therefore, with much earnestness, seek after spiritual gifts; let us seek them as silver, and search after them as for hidden treasures. Happy are those who pray, not that they may be rich in gold, but that they may be rich in grace. May it be our holy and fixed determination to seek the kingdom of God and its righteousness before everything else, and in preference to everything else. Then all other things necessary and suitable, according to the promise, shall be given us. This will indeed be seeking, and obtaining, that good part which shall never be taken away. We should be filled with admiration and thankfulness, when we think of the great variety of spiritual gifts imparted to all believers, but especially to the ministers of Christ, for promoting the interests of his kingdom, and for the edifying of the body of Christ, until all its members shall reach the full maturity and perfection of grace in heaven.

PRAYER.

MOST gracious Lord God, we praise thee that there is a way of access to the throne of grace, through Jesus, the way, the truth, and the life. Holy Spirit, we adore thee as God, equal with the Father and the Son. Thou art he who in the morning of creation moved upon the face of the waters, and who brought order out of confusion. Thou art he who workest upon the mind of man in his unregenerate state, and makest old things to pass away, and all things to become new. Thou art he who givest a quickening influence to the Word read and preached, by which the incorruptible seed springeth up unto everlasting life. Thou art he who standest by the grave of those who are spiritually dead, and sayest unto them, Come forth. We adore thee as the Divine author of all those gifts and graces by which thy people are enriched, and by which thy ministers are prepared for the arduous and important duties of the ministerial office. We acknowledge that no prophets, or apostles, or pastors, or teachers, were ever fitted for their spiritual undertaking, but as they were inspired and qualified by thee. And we acknowledge that thou art the Divine agent by whom all the blessings of a Saviour's purchase are conveyed to the minds of the children of men.

We seek the blessing of the Holy Spirit on what we have now read. Make thy blessed Word profitable for our correction, and instruction in righteousness, that we may be thoroughly furnished unto every good work.

We thank thee, O Lord, that we are not surrounded by the abominations of pagan rites, and that we are not carried away by dumb idols. O have mercy on the myriads of the family of Adam who are now giving that worship to false gods which is only due to thee, the Father, Son, and Spirit, the only, the living, and the true God. Hasten the day, the predicted day, when the banners of the Cross shall be unfurled in every land, and when the fame of Christ's person and righteousness shall overspread and bless the earth.

Bless the heralds of salvation, and impart unto them an increasing supply of gifts and graces. Great, O Lord, is the work to which they are called. What reason have they to exclaim, Who is sufficient for these things? We rejoice, gracious God, that their sufficiency is of thee, and that thou hast never yet forsaken a minister thou hast sent to proclaim the glorious message of pardon and acceptance through a Saviour's blood.

We pray, heavenly Father, for thy Church universal. May all of us be members of thy body the Church, and may we look with peculiar affection on all the children of thy spiritual family.

Make our children thy children. We consider it a greater honour that they belong to thy Church, than if they were allied to the families of kings. O Lord, make them thine.

Be our gracious protector this night, and may our dying bodies be refreshed with sleep. We acknowledge thine unmerited goodness in the mercies of the past day. Mercifully hear and accept us, for the sake of Jesus, our Redeemer and Advocate. Amen.

PRAYER FOR A REVIVAL.

Horion, Pious's, Guard. Broughton.

L. M.

- 1 O GOD of Zion! from thy throne
Look with an eye of pity down;
Thy Church now humbly makes her prayer—
Thy Church, the object of thy care.
- 2 We are a building thou hast raised,
How kind thy hand, that hand be praised!
Yet all to utter ruin falls,
If thou forsake our tottering walls.
- 3 O show that in our low estate,
No blessing for us is too great;
We plead thy Son, we plead thy Word,
O Founder, Patron, bounteous Lord!

ANON.

2 KINGS XXIII.

Josiah reforming Spiritual Abuses.

AND the king sent, and they gathered unto him all the elders of Judah and of Jerusalem.

2 And the king went up into the house of the LORD, and all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, both small and great: and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant which was found in the house of the LORD.

3 And the king stood by a pillar, and made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes with all their heart and all their soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. And all the people stood to the covenant.

19 And all the houses also of the high places that were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the LORD to anger, Josiah took away, and did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Beth-el.

20 And he slew all the priests of the high places that were there upon the altars, and burned men's bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

21 And the king commanded all the people, saying, Keep the passover unto the LORD your God, as it is written in the book of this covenant.

22 Surely there was not holden such a passover from the days of the judges that judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, nor of the kings of Judah;

23 But in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, wherein this passover was holden to the LORD in Jerusalem.

24 Moreover the workers with familiar spirits, and the wizards, and the images, and the idols, and all the abominations that were spied in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, did Josiah put away, that he might perform the words of the law which were written in the book that Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD.

25 And like unto him was there no king before him, that turned to the LORD with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses; neither after him arose there any like him.

26 Notwithstanding the LORD turned not from the fierceness of his great wrath, wherewith his anger was kindled against Judah, because of all the provocations that Manasseh had provoked him withal.

27 And the LORD said, I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as I have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 KINGS XXIII.—We see in Josiah the great influence of kings, and the unspeakable benefit accompanying and following the holy example of good kings. Nations never can be pronounced truly prosperous, unless God's house is generally and regularly frequented, the ordinances of religion observed, and the Sabbath sanctified by all classes of the community. Cities may be defended by lofty walls, and nations protected by numerous and powerful armies; but while God is dishonoured, his ordinances despised, his house forsaken, and his Sabbath desecrated, these cities and nations are weak, notwithstanding all their apparent strength, and in constant peril, notwithstanding all their apparent security. Blessed are nations and individuals, when, like good Josiah, they have entered into covenant with God. We should give ourselves no rest until we have entered into covenant with Christ; until we can say, in the language of holy assurance, "He hath made with me an everlasting covenant."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art our lawgiver, our king, and our judge. We acknowledge that all thy laws are infinitely worthy of thyself; they are holy, just, and good. Thou art exalted, O God, inconceivably above the comprehension of men and of angels. O what reason have we to rejoice that, though thou art high, yet thou hast respect unto the lowly. May we be among the penitent, the humble, and the lowly, whom thou respectest. O deliver us from pride which is so abominable in thy sight. With justice thou seest the proud afar off. We confess the pride and the corruption of our hearts. We have now read of the corruption which prevailed in Judea, when Josiah, thy pious servant, ascended the throne. Gracious God, the depravity of that degraded and backsliding nation reminds us of the depravity of our own hearts. What reason have we as a family to mourn over our unconcern, our apathy, and carelessness, about things Divine! We would lament that as a family we are so little governed by Gospel principle, and so little illuminated by Gospel light. We would lament that as a family we are so irregular in the discharge of those duties and the observance of those ordinances which are wisely appointed for thy glory and for our advantage; and as individuals we would confess and mourn over our personal corruption. Incline our hearts, O Lord, to come unto thee for the sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit, by whom alone we can be instructed to hate and forsake sin. We pray for the gracious fulfilment of that promise: Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols will I cleanse you. Heavenly Father, mercifully do as thou hast promised. Thou hast promised, A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. Heavenly Father, mercifully do as thou hast promised. Thou hast promised, I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments and do them. O heavenly Father, through the merit of our Saviour's death, do as thou hast promised.

We lay the hearts of our beloved children before thee. Thou knowest their folly and ignorance and corruption. O give them new hearts—hearts beautified with holiness, and hearts warmed with the love of Christ. May our servants be born again.

We thank thee, O King of Zion, that at various periods thou didst qualify and raise up men as reformers in thy Church, to correct and remove those abuses which in the course of ages were accumulated by the pride, ambition, and covetousness of men. Lord, we pray for an increase of such men in our day. O let there be a reformation in our hearts, in our families, in our churches, and in our nation.

We present our thanks for the kindness of a gracious Providence during the past night; and may Divine grace be communicated to assist in all the duties of the day. Hear our imperfect prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

RELIGION VAIN WITHOUT LOVE.
Abbas Comb. Charity. New Sabbath.

- 1 HAD I the tongues of Greeks and Jews,
And nobler speech than angels use
If love be absent, I am found
Like tinkling brass, an empty sound.
- 2 Were I inspired to preach and tell
All that is done in heaven and hell,
Or could my faith the world remove,
Still I am nothing without love.
- 3 Should I distribute all my store
To feed the howels of the poor,
Or give my body to the flame
To gain a martyr's glorious name;
- 4 If love to God and love to men
Be absent, all my hopes are vain;
Nor tongues, nor gifts, nor fiery zeal,
The work of love can e'er fulfil.

Church one Body.

AND whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.

28 And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues.

31 But covet earnestly the best gifts: and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way.

I CORINTHIANS XIII.

Christian Love.

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

2 And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

3 And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

4 Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

5 Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

6 Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

7 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8 Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

9 For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

10 But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

11 When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12 For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

13 And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. XII., XIII.—Are we the members of the mystical body of Christ? If so, we take an interest—a peculiar interest—in those who are fellow-members with ourselves in the same body. We weep with those of them who weep, and we rejoice with such of them as rejoice. When we consider those office-bearers whom Christ has appointed to watch over the concerns of his Church, we should pray with much fervour and persevering constancy, that God would fill his ministers with his Spirit. It is when ministers are eminently endowed with the influences of the Spirit, poured down from on high, that God's saints shout aloud for joy. It is then that the gardens of the churches exhale in rich degree the fragrance of grace, that the odoriferous spices flow out; and it is then the fruits of righteousness are most rich and abundant. "God is love:" love brought Christ from heaven to earth. Because he loved us, he gave the highest testimony of his love—he died for us. If we are his, love reigns in our heart, and Jesus fills the throne of our affections. May the grace of love be ours, and may we be made perfect in love! Amen.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Saviour, we acknowledge and adore thee in all thy Divine perfections and mediatorial excellences. Thou art God, equal with the Father and the Holy Spirit. Thou and thy Father are one; thou art one in nature, in essence, in attributes, in prerogatives, in blessedness, and glory. Thou art uncreated, immutable, and independent, without beginning of days or end of life. We would therefore take up our song and sing, Hosanna to the Son of David in the highest! Thy nature is two, thy person is one: hosanna in the highest to the Son of God!

Divine Saviour, we acknowledge and adore thee as the head of thy body, the Church. Thou art far above all principality and power and might and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but in that which is to come. We rejoice that in thy mediatorial capacity all things are put under thy feet, and that thou art the head over all things to the Church. We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou art not only a head of authority to thy Church, but also a head of influence. As the members of the natural body depend upon the head, so may we depend on thee. As the members of the natural body derive influence from the head, so may we derive influence and grace from thee. Lord, give us that faith, by which we shall hold Christ the head, from whom all the body by joints and bands having nourishment ministered, are knit together, and increase with all the increase of God.

We thank the God of Providence that we are assembled at the close of the day, and at the close of the week, in such circumstances of comfort before the throne of grace. O that all of us may cherish the well-grounded hope of assembling together with angels and saints before the throne of glory! May the mercies of the week excite the gratitude and love of our hearts. Lord, sprinkle us with the merit of our Saviour's blood; then shall the guilt of all our sins be removed from us, as far as the east is distant from the west. If consistent with thy holy will, may we be preserved through this night, and spared to see the light of another Sabbath-day. We thank thee for the Gospel, which contains a religion of love, and which exhibits a Saviour of love. May Divine love be richly shed abroad in the hearts of all thy ministers and people on the approaching day. Bless to us what we have now read of Christian love. May that love reign in the midst of us as a family, and in the midst of us as a congregation.

Let Christian love adorn the minds of our children and domestics. O fill their hearts with love to Christ, and with love to all who bear his image.

Comfort aged saints with the believing conviction of their interest in the love of Christ, and fill their hearts with increasing love to all the members of his Church. As they draw nearer and nearer to that heavenly world where love reigns pre-eminent, may their love to Christ become more ardent, and all their graces more vigorous and lively.

Lord, hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

- 1 I'll bless the Lord from day to day;
How good are all his ways!
Ye humble souls that use to pray,
Come, help my lips to praise.
- 2 Sing to the honour of his name,
How a poor sufferer cried,
Nor was his hope exposed to shame,
Nor was his suit denied.
- 3 I told the Lord my sore distress
With heavy groans and tears;
He gave my sharpest torments ease,
And silenced all my fears.      WATTS, Ps. 34, p. 1.

PSALM LXXXVII.

Mount Zion.

HIS foundation is in the holy mountains.

2 The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob.

3 Glorious things are spoken of thee, O city of God. Selah.

4 I will make mention of Rahab and Babylon to them that know me: behold Philistia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia; this man was born there.

5 And of Zion it shall be said, This and that man was born in her: and the highest himself shall establish her.

6 The Lord shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there. Selah.

7 As well the singers as the players on instruments shall be there: all my springs are in thee.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

Prayer in Affliction.

O LORD God of my salvation, I have cried day and night before thee:

2 Let my prayer come before thee: incline thine ear unto my cry;

3 For my soul is full of troubles: and my life draweth nigh unto the grave.

9 Mine eye mourneth by reason of affliction: LORD, I have called daily upon thee, I have stretched out my hands unto thee.

10 Wilt thou shew wonders to the dead; shall the dead arise and praise thee? Selah.

11 Shall thy lovingkindness be declared in the grave? or thy faithfulness in destruction?

12 Shall thy wonders be known in the dark? and thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

13 But unto thee have I cried, O LORD; and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee.

14 LORD, why castest thou off my soul? why hidest thou thy face from me?

15 I am afflicted and ready to die from my youth up: while I suffer thy terrors I am distracted.

16 Thy fierce wrath goeth over me; thy terrors have cut me off.

18 Lover and friend hast thou put far from me, and mine acquaintance into darkness.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXVII., LXXXVIII.—How infinitely secure is Zion, the Church of the living God, in having for her foundation Jesus the Rock of ages. We cannot conceive Christ's love to his Church, and the delight he enjoys in the adoring worship and in the loving obedience of his people, for whom he shed his blood and laid down his life. Let us rejoice in the glorious mediatorial victories Christ has yet to achieve. He is destined to conquer all nations by his Word and Spirit. He is destined to emancipate all nations from paganism, idolatry, and superstition. When these moral, spiritual, and merciful victories are accomplished; when the streams of salvation, flowing from the springs of Divine love, shall have invigorated and fertilised all portions of the globe, then shall the arches of the heavenly temple re-echo with the following song of triumph, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ! Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" On earth believers cry in prayer; in heaven, they lift up their voice in lofty songs of loudest, sweetest praise. Here, they are sometimes full of sorrows; in heaven, they are filled with the delights of immortality, in the immediate presence of their exalted and glorified Redeemer, "in whose presence is fulness of joy, and at whose right hand are pleasures for evermore."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the God of salvation, to whom all flesh should come in prayer and humble adoration. Great art thou, and greatly to be feared and held in reverence by all who draw near unto thee. We come unto thee as a family, on the morning of thy blessed, honoured day. We thank thee that we have been preserved during another night, and that we appear before thee crowned with many blessings, and are encouraged to prostrate ourselves in thy gracious presence to seek an increase of blessings from the treasury of thy grace.

Glory to thy name, O Lord, that thou hast laid in the holy mountains of Zion Jesus Christ as the sure foundation of the faith and the hopes of thy people. Make thy ministers faithful in exhibiting this foundation in all the public services of the sanctuary. Teach them, Holy Spirit, to convince the hardened and the careless of their true state, and that their danger is great while they build their hopes on any other foundation than Christ; and that if they die rejecting Jesus, the only foundation, their destruction is inevitable. Lord, make thy servants compassionate and faithful.

We bless thee, O God of ordinances, for that love which thou hast ever manifested to all the means of grace. But we acknowledge with joy that, while thou lovest thy private ordinances, represented by the dwellings of Jacob, thou hast a peculiar love to the public ordinances, represented by the gates of Zion. We bless thee for all the saving good which has been effected through the private ordinances of religion; but we would more especially magnify thy name because of the far more extensive benefit which the Holy Spirit has communicated by the public preaching of the everlasting Gospel of Christ. Thou hast promised, Of Zion it shall be said, This and that man was born in her; and the Highest himself shall establish her. The Lord shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there. Heaven grant that this promise may be literally fulfilled in the experience of all now before thee.

When our children hear the Gospel in thy courts, may it be instrumental in accomplishing their regeneration. May they be born of incorruptible seed, even the Word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever. Teach our servants to place their hopes of pardon, acceptance, and heaven on Christ, the sure and only foundation laid in Zion.

Lord, have mercy on all the hearers of thy Word, whenever and wherever they may be assembled. Faith cometh by hearing. O may multitudes give the hearing of faith! May the afflicted be comforted under the hearing of the joyful sound. Such as are confined at home by bodily affliction and the infirmities of age, may their meditations on the glorious doctrines of the Gospel and the promises of Divine truth sooth their afflicted hearts, and may their souls be animated and cheered by the well-grounded hopes of the joys and the blessedness of heaven. Lord, prepare us for the day of affliction; and, when that day arrives, may we enjoy the presence of our God, which will render all our afflictions blessings in disguise.

Graciously hear these our humble prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Advocate. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

FAITHFULNESS OF GOD.

- 1 MY never-ceasing songs shall show
The mercies of the Lord,
And make succeeding ages know
How faithful is his word.
- 2 The sacred truth his lips pronounce
Shall firm as heaven endure;
And if he speak a promise once,
The eternal grace is sure.
- 3 How long the race of David held
The promised Jewish throne!
But there's a nobler covenant sealed
To David's greater Son.
- 4 His seed for ever shall possess
A throne above the skies;
Tho' meanest subject of his grace
Shall to that glory rise.

WATTS, Ps. 89, p. 1.

PSALM LXXXIX.

Praise for God's Mercies.

I WILL sing of the mercies of the Lord for ever: with my mouth will I make known thy faithfulness to all generations.

2 For I have said, Mercy shall be built up for ever: thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens.

3 I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant,

4 Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. Selah.

5 And the heavens shall praise thy wonders, O Lord: thy faithfulness also in the congregations of the saints.

6 For who in the heaven can be compared unto the Lord? who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the Lord?

7 God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him.

8 O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee?

9 Thou rulest the raging of the sea: when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them.

10 Thou hast broken Rahab in pieces, as one that is slain; thou hast scattered thine enemies with thy strong arm.

11 The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine: as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them.

12 The north and the south thou hast created them: Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name.

13 Thou hast a mighty arm: strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand.

14 Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne: mercy and truth shall go before thy face.

15 Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance.

16 In thy name shall they rejoice all the day: and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted.

17 For thou art the glory of their strength: and in thy favour our horn shall be exalted.

18 For the Lord is our defence; and the Holy One of Israel is our king.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXIX.—Who can calculate the multitude of God's mercies in providence and in grace? They are innumerable as the stars of heaven. Who can calculate the value of God's mercies? They are more precious than the gold of Ophir. All that the heart of man can possibly desire are not worthy to be compared with them; especially the blessings of salvation, which cost Immanuel his blood and his life, shall furnish matter for the songs of the Church militant to the close of time, and for the songs of the Church triumphant in heaven through the ceaseless ages of eternity. What a glorious edifice is the building of mercy! Look to its foundations; they are the perfections and purposes of God; they are the righteousness and intercession of Christ; they are the faithful promises of God, sure and firm as the thrones of the great Eternal. Let us rejoice in the covenant concluded betwixt the Father and the Son. May we see our interest in that covenant. And let us rejoice in the mediatorial throne which Jesus fills.

WE desire, exalted Jehovah, in dependence upon thy Holy Spirit, and through the infinite merit of our Divine Mediator, to approach thy throne of grace, and present our evening sacrifice. Glory to thy name for a preached Gospel, for the assistance given to thy servant our minister, for the assistance given to all the ambassadors of the cross, for the comfort imparted to thy people, and for any instances of saving benefit, in turning sinners from the error of their ways, and making them lie prostrate at our Saviour's feet. May we retire to rest under a lively impression of thy goodness; and, if we are spared to enter upon the duties of another day, may we testify that we have felt the saving and purifying influence of a preached Gospel.

We adore thee, O Lord, for the displays of thy mercy given in Jesus Christ. May we know what saving mercy is, and be instructed with joyful hearts to sing of mercy. With the Church militant we would sing on earth of thy mercy flowing to sinful man through the channel of our Saviour's righteousness; and may we sing of thy mercy with the Church triumphant for ever in heaven.

O Lord, thou art a faithful God—faithful to thy purposes, and faithful to thy promises. Thy mercy shall be built up for ever; and thy faithfulness thou hast established in the heavens. When we think of thy glorious attributes, and of the purposes of thy mercy—when we meditate on the covenant of thy grace, and of the blessings of a Saviour's purchase, what reason have we to adore thee in the language of the inspired Psalmist: For who in the heaven can be compared unto the Lord? Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the Lord? Thou, the Lord of hosts, art greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all that are round about thee. Lord, teach us to fear thee, and in every religious ordinance may we be inspired with the reverence of filial devotion and unfeigned love.

Thou art glorious, O Lord, in all thou hast done for thy Church, and in the mighty deliverances thou hast accomplished for thy people. O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee?

We desire, O Jesus, to rejoice in thy royal authority, and in the exercise of thy mediatorial power over thy Church. Thy government is wise and righteous and merciful. Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne; mercy and truth go before thy face. We acknowledge ourselves as thy subjects, and thyself as our king. May it be our happiness on earth, and our blessedness in heaven, to crown thee Lord of all.

We thank our God for the joyful sound. May each one of us know it, and love it, and believe it.

Lord, apply the joyful sound to the minds of our offspring and servants; and may they walk in the light of thy countenance.

praise thee that we have heard of the covenant of grace. May we and all our relatives and friends be brought within the bonds of the everlasting covenant, and may we be interested in all its blessings. As a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, may the Lord be our defence, and the Holy One of Israel our king. All we ask is for the sake of Jesus, thy well-beloved Son. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

DESIRIOUS TO FINISH OUR COURSE WITH JOY.

Triumphant. Kirby. Trebles.

L. M.

- 1 ASSIST us, Lord! thy name to praise
For the rich Gospel of thy grace;
And that our hearts may love it more,
Teach them to feel its vital power.
- 2 With joy may we our course pursue,
And keep the crown of life in view;
That crown which in one hour repays
The labour of ten thousand days.
- 3 Should bonds or death obstruct our way,
Unmoved their terrors we'll survey;
And the last hour improve for thee,
The last of life or liberty.

2 CHRONICLES XXXV.

Good Josiah's Death.

AFTER all this, when Josiah had prepared the temple, Necho king of Egypt came up to fight against Charehemish by Euphrates: and Josiah went out against him.

23 And the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants, Have me away; for I am sore wounded.

24 His servants therefore took him out of that chariot, and put him in the second chariot that he had; and they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried in one of the sepulchres of his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah.

25 And Jeremiah lamented for Josiah: and all the singing men and the singing women spake of Josiah in their lamentations to this day, and made them an ordinance in Israel: and, behold, they are written in the lamentations.

26 Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and his goodness, according to that which was written in the law of the Lord, 27 And his deeds, first and last, behold; they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

2 CHRONICLES XXXVI.

The Captivity.

THEN the people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah, and made him king in his father's stead in Jerusalem.

2 Jehoahaz was twenty and three years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem.

3 And the king of Egypt put him down at Jerusalem, and condemned the land in an hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold.

4 And the king of Egypt made Eliakim his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem, and turned his name to Jehoiakim. And Necho took Jehoahaz his brother, and carried him to Egypt.

5 Jehoiakim was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: and he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord his God.

6 Against him came up Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and bound him in fetters, to carry him to Babylon.

7 Nebuchadnezzar also carried off the vessels of the house of the Lord to Babylon, and put them in his temple at Babylon.

8 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and his abominations which he did, and that which was found in him, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah: and Jehoiachin his son reigned in his stead.

9 Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem: and he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord.

10 And when the year was expired, king Nebuchadnezzar sent, and brought him to Babylon, with the goodly vessels of the house of the Lord, and made Zedekiah his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 CHRON. XXXV., XXXVI.—It is humbling to think that a blemish should have appeared in the character of holy king Josiah, immediately before he exchanged his earthly for his heavenly crown. At all times, we should carefully avoid every description of association and friendship with graceless men, which is not clearly sanctioned by duty, and pointed out by the Divine will. Most earnestly should believers pray, that they may be enabled to keep the garments of their profession clean and unspotted from the world. The dying pillow, even of a genuine saint, may be filled with the thorns of painful recollections and regrets. Happy and honoured are they who finish their course with holy consistency, and thus prevent their genuine piety from being suspected, or their dying moments from being enveloped with the dark clouds of sorrow and gloom.

PRAYER.

HOLY and gracious Spirit, our sanctifier, mercifully communicate to our souls thy Divine grace, that we may be enabled to lift up the eyes of our souls in earnest prayer to the perfections of God, those hills of Divine and uncreated strength from whence cometh our help. O that each one of us could sing, in the exercise of a lively faith, I will lift up mine eyes to the hills whence cometh my help. My help cometh from thee, Lord, who made heaven and earth.

We would draw near unto thee, O Lord, under a deep and humbling sense of our sinfulness and guilt. O that we were instructed to view the corruptions of our hearts as a body of sin and death! God forbid that we should admire what is so vile and loathsome; or that we should wish to preserve that which deserves to be destroyed. We would lament that we cleave so closely to that which should be cast away with abhorrence, like the viper which attached itself to the Apostle's hand. Teach us, divine Spirit, to oppose and restrain and crucify the flesh, with its affections and lusts. We humbly seek an interest in the righteousness of Jesus, to take away the guilt of sin; and we humbly seek an interest in the spirit of Christ, to take away the vile and hateful stains of sin, and adorn us with the imperishable beauty of Divine holiness and grace. O that each one of us were longing for holiness with greater earnestness than the hart panteth after the water-brooks! May that day arrive when we shall be holy as God is holy; when that which is perfect shall have come, and that which is in part shall be done away. We pray, thou King of kings, that the nations of the earth may be blessed with holy Christian rulers. Soon may the Gospel visit all the nations and kingdoms of the world, and its regenerating influence be felt by all their rulers. O that all rulers resembled good Josiah in their lives, and when they die had their memories embalmed in the loving lamentations of their subjects!

Deliver the earth from wicked rulers. Convince these enemies of God and men of their awful responsibility, and that they must stand, like the meanest of their subjects, before the judgment-seat of Christ. We acknowledge thy justice in allowing wicked princes to reign as the punishment of sinful and rebellious nations.

Enable us, O Lord, who are the heads of this family, to exhibit before all who are committed to our care an example adorning the Gospel of Christ. God forbid that we should present an example that should either lead them astray, or encourage indifference about the concerns of the soul.

Suffer not our dear children to do what is evil in the sight of the Lord. May they never forget that thou art an all-seeing God. May our servants do the will of God from the heart.

We present our humble thanks for the mercies of the past Sabbath and the past night. We supplicate the blessing and smiles of our God this day. May we show by our lives that we have not heard the Gospel of Christ in vain. Graciously hear and forgive, for our great Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S VICTORY OVER SIN, DEATH, AND HELL.

New Victory. New Conquest. Halifax. C. M.

- 1 THE Lord! how glorious is his face!
How kind his smiles appear!
And O what melting words he says
To every humble ear!
- 2 When hell and all its spiteful powers
Stood dreadful in my way,
To rescue those dear lives of yours
I gave my own away.
- 3 But while I bled, and groaned, and died,
I ruined Satan's throne;
High on my cross I hung, and spied
The monster tumbling down.
- 4 Victorious God! what can we pay
For favours so divine?
We would devote our hearts away
To be for ever thine.

Watts, 21, B. III.

1 CORINTHIANS XV.

Christ's Death and Resurrection.

MOREOVER, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand;

2 By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain.

3 For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures;

4 And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:

5 And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve:

6 After that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep.

7 After that, he was seen of James; then of all the apostles.

8 And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.

9 For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.

10 But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.

11 Therefore whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

12 Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen:

14 And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.

15 Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ; whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not.

16 For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised:

17 And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins.

18 Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished.

19 If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 Cor. xv.—When the Gospel is faithfully proclaimed, and believingly and affectionately received, the great end of the Gospel is fully obtained; for God is honoured, Christ is exalted, and souls are saved. What is the sum of Gospel-preaching? It is to hold up Jesus in his person, his offices, his righteousness and intercession. It is to point out his death as the fountain of life, and his exaltation as the glorious and well-merited reward of his humiliation, obedience, and sufferings. How delightful, satisfactory, and consoling to know, and believe, the connection betwixt the resurrection of Jesus, and the resurrection of his saints. He rose as their representative; they rose in him; and because he rose, their glorious resurrection is secured.

PRAYER.

JESUS, our divine Saviour, we adore thee as a mighty conqueror; and we praise thee for what we have now read of thy sufferings and thy glory, of thy contests and of thy triumphs. Thou art the conqueror of sin, of death, of the grave, and of the powers of darkness. Thou hast ascended up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men, even for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. Thou art our God, even the God of our salvation; and unto thee, the Lord, the issues of death do belong. We adore thee, O Jesus, in that honour and glory ascribed to thee by angels, after thy victory over death and the grave: they brought thy chariot from above, to bear thee to thy throne; Oh with what ecstasies of loudest triumph they sweetly sung, The glorious work is done!

Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah, we present our tribute of thankfulness before thee, that we are permitted, after the business, the cares, and the temptations of the day, to draw near to thy mercy-seat, to present our evening sacrifice. Make us grateful for the undeserved mercies of the day. We thank thee for temporal mercies, but above all for spiritual blessings. O wash away, in the laver of a Redeemer's righteousness the guilt we have contracted. The shades of night are now beginning to surround us; may they remind us of the approaching shades of death. Exercising a lively confidence in Jesus, may we be no more afraid to lie down in the grave than to lie down on our beds. As we can only hope to awake on the approaching day, without any assured confidence that our eyes shall see the light of tomorrow's sun, may we exercise the believing confidence that we shall awake on the morning of the resurrection amid the songs of angels, and that these bodies of ours, which must be reduced to the ruins of the grave, shall be raised out of the tomb arrayed in all the glories of immortality.

We thank our heavenly Father for the great and encouraging truths we have now read. We thank thee for what they have told us of the resurrection of Jesus, which is past, and what they have foretold of the resurrection of believers, which is to come. O give us grace to admire and believe and retain that Gospel, which is the revelation of thy love, and which holds out the animating and encouraging prospects of a heavenly state.

Lord, impart the grace of faith to our beloved children, that in their early days their minds may rejoice in the prospect of a glorious resurrection, and of eternal fellowship with Christ in heaven.

May we and all our relatives possess that faith in Christ which will enable us to look onward to the heavenly state, when we shall be associated in the employments and sublime blessedness of the celestial world. Comfort the minds of our aged friends with the prospects of the glory of a future state. Though now surrounded by the mists of age, may they look through these dark clouds, and with the eye of faith behold the glory which awaits the saints of God. May they feel that they are on the verge of heaven, and therefore patiently bear the infirmities of advanced years. Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

And to their Maker's grace.
- 2 He from the rock their thirst supplied;
The gushing waters fell,
And ran in rivers by their side,
A constant miracle.
- 3 Yet they provoked the Lord most high,
And dared distrust his hand:
Can he with bread our host supply
Amidst this desert land?
- 4 The Lord with indignation heard,
And caused his wrath to flame;
His terrors ever stand prepared
To vindicate his name.

Watts, Ps. 78, p. 11.

2 CHRONICLES XXXVI.

Jews carried captive.

ZEDEKIAH was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem.

12 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord his God, and humbled not himself before Jeremiah the prophet speaking from the mouth of the Lord.

13 And he also rebelled against king Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God: but he stiffened his neck, and hardened his heart from turning unto the Lord God of Israel.

14 Moreover all the chief of the priests, and the people, transgressed very much after all the abominations of the heathen; and polluted the house of the Lord which he had hallowed in Jerusalem.

15 And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, rising up betimes, and sending; because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling place:

16 But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised his words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy.

17 Therefore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who slew their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man or maiden, old man, or him that stooped for age: he gave them all into his hand.

18 And all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king, and of his princes; all these he brought to Babylon.

19 And they burnt the house of God, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces thereof with fire, and destroyed all the goodly vessels thereof.

20 And them that had escaped from the sword carried he away to Babylon, where they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia:

21 To fulfil the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed her sabbaths: for as long as she lay desolate she kept sabbath, to fulfil threescore and ten years.

22 Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying,

23 Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord God of heaven given me; and he hath charged me to build him an house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? The Lord his God be with him, and let him go up.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 CHRON. XXXVI.—Had Zedekiah lived up by Divine grace to the meaning of his lovely name, he would have proved one of the best of men, and one of the most useful of princes. His name signifies the "righteousness of God." By faith, may we receive the righteousness of Christ. By faith may we receive him as the Lord our righteousness. Then we shall not be, like Zedekiah, rebels against God; then we shall not commit evil in the sight of the Lord; then our God will not leave us to fall into the hand of our spiritual enemies. Thus we shall be preserved from the gloomy captivity of Tophet. Thus we shall reach the glories of immortality.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, to approach thy throne this morning, in the name of Jesus, and under a deep impression of thy holiness and justice. Thou art so holy, that thou canst not look on sin, but with the utmost detestation and abhorrence; but thou art so just, that it is impossible for thee to forgive sin without satisfaction. In this respect thou canst by no means clear the guilty. Thou art a jealous God; thou art jealous of thy prerogatives, and of the honour of thy perfections, and authority, and laws. Thou canst not look down with indifference upon the sins and rebellions of men. In thy kindness thou didst warn ancient Israel of the consequences of breaking thy laws and forsaking thine ordinances. Thou didst promise that their obedience should be followed by great blessings; and thou didst threaten that great judgments should follow their disobedience. O Lord, ancient Israel rejected thy counsel, and would have none of thy reproof. We adore thee in the displays of thy justice, which brought upon them all the threatened calamities, and stirred up the Assyrian king to carry them captive to distant Babylon.

Bless to us, O Lord, the remembrance of the afflicting sufferings of the apostate Jews. Teach us to see that it is an evil and a bitter thing to forsake God. Truly, O Lord, our offences have been great; they have been of a crimson colour, and of a scarlet dye. We deserved to have been destroyed. If our portion had been assigned us in the regions of the lost, we had only received the reward of our deeds. But, glory to thy name, thou hast dealt with us in mercy and not in judgment.

We would earnestly pray to be preserved from those sins into which Israel fell, and by which their ruin was accomplished. Holy Spirit, preserve us from pride and hardness of heart. May we learn of Jesus, who was meek and lowly of heart. O make our souls susceptible of Divine impressions, and fulfil in our experience that promise: I will take from you the hard and stony heart, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

Mercifully deliver our dear children and domestics from pride and hardness of heart. O melt them down with the influence of grace Divine, and may they be moulded and fashioned after the lovely image of Christ.

Lord, preserve us from the grievous sin of neglecting thine ordinances and despising thy ministers. Affect us with the thought that these are sins which in a very peculiar sense bring down the displeasure of heaven. O Lord, have pity on such of our relatives as are living the awfully perilous life of neglecting thine ordinances and despising thy ministers. May they remember this, that when Israel mocked the messengers of God, and despised his words, and misused his prophets, the wrath of the Lord rose against his people, till there was no remedy.

Blessed Jesus, let all of us be the objects of thy love and the subjects of thy grace. O receive our thanks for the mercies of the night, and assist us in all the duties of the day. Sun of righteousness, rise on each one of us this day with healing in thy wings. Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Christ our Mediator's sake. Amen.

1 CORINTHIANS XV.

Christ risen as First-fruits.

BUT now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept.

21 For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

23 But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming.

24 Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power.

25 For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet.

26 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.

27 For he hath put all things under his feet. But when he saith, All things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put all things under him.

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 And why stand we in jeopardy every hour?

31 I protest by your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die.

33 Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame.

35 But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

36 Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die:

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

38 But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him: and to every seed his own body.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 Cor. xv.—It is the unspeakable privilege of the sons of God to believe, they are so interested in the resurrection of Christ, as to see their own blessed resurrection secured by the resurrection of Jesus, as the Surety and the Representative of his people. What a gloomy legacy we have received from our first covenant Head—namely, death! O what a blessed inheritance the redeemed have received from Jesus, the second Adam, their covenant Head—namely, acceptance, forgiveness, holiness, and “a title sure to mansions in the sky.” True, death is a formidable foe; the king of terrors, and the terror of kings. But Jesus is the Conqueror of death; he hath deprived him of his sting. Jesus has given to his people, who are the objects of his love, the glorious fruits of his renowned triumph over death and the grave. Has the saving knowledge of God enlightened our soul? Has our spiritual night been changed into a spiritual day? Then we shall live and reign with Christ for ever and ever.

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, thou art the only object of religious worship, and thou only art possessed of infinite and uncreated glory. We thank thee that we have been preserved during another day, and that we are enjoying the unspeakable privilege and the distinguished honour of prostrating ourselves before thy throne, and acknowledging thy glory, majesty, and grace. Thou hast set thy glory above the heavens. The heavens declare thy glory, and the firmament sheweth thine handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night declareth knowledge. The heavens declare thy righteousness, and all the people see thy glory. Who is like unto the Lord our God, who dwelleth on high?

We supplicate thy gracious, protecting care this night. Thou hast most mercifully watched over us to the present moment, and we earnestly pray that thou wouldst be our guide even unto death. When our days and nights terminate on earth, may we and all our relatives become the inhabitants of that blessed world, where our sun shall no more go down, and where our moon shall no more withdraw its shining; where Jesus shall be our everlasting light, and where the days of our mourning shall be ended.

We thank thee, gracious Father, for the animating and consolatory truths we have now read. We bless thee for hope in Christ; that hope which maketh not ashamed; that hope which is fixed on heavenly realities, sure as the throne of God. Mercifully bestow on each one of us good hope through grace. O that we could fix our eyes on Jesus, the foundation of our hope, and sing, Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth within the veil!

Deliver our dear children and domestics from the dangerous snares of carnal, earthly hope. Inspire them with the love of Divine blessings, and animate them with the hopes of the ceaseless joys of heaven.

Holy Spirit, give us grace to rejoice in the resurrection of Christ. O Jesus, may we look on thy resurrection as the blessed evidence of thy triumph over death, and as the blessed security of the glorious resurrection of the bodies of them that love thee. Deliver us, O Lord, from the gloom and the fear of death. Comfort us with this, that though in Adam all die, yet in Christ all shall be made alive. By Christ, may our souls become spiritually alive; and by the Spirit of Christ, may our bodies receive in the morning of the resurrection an immortal life, which will be accompanied with the pure and imperishable enjoyment of heaven.

Lord, deliver our graceless relatives from a spirit of insensibility as to eternal things. Suffer them not to imitate the example of those who say, Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die. Lord, preserve us all from the influence of corrupt example; and preserve us from exhibiting a corrupt example before the eyes of others. O teach us to awake to righteousness, and sin not.

Hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus Christ's sake, who, with the Father and Holy Ghost, is worthy of all honour and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

DODDRIIDGE.

EZRA I.

Proclamation of Cyrus respecting the Temple.

NOW in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying,

2 Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

3 Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel, (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem.

4 And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, beside the free-will offering for the house of God that is in Jerusalem.

5 Then rose up the chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, with all them whose spirit God had raised, to go up to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem.

6 And all they that were about them strengthened their hands with vessels of silver, with gold, with goods, and with beasts, and with precious things, beside all that was willingly offered.

7 Also Cyrus the king brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem, and had put them in the house of his gods;

8 Even those did Cyrus king of Persia bring forth by the hand of Mithredath the treasurer, and numbered them unto Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah.

9 And this is the number of them: thirty chargers of gold, a thousand chargers of silver, nine and twenty knives,

10 Thirty basons of gold, silver basons of a second sort four hundred and ten, and other vessels a thousand.

11 All the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. All these did Sheshbazzar bring up with them of the captivity that were brought up from Babylon unto Jerusalem.

REFLECTIONS UPON EZRA I.—Some consider that the name "Cyrus" signifies the "Sun." As a pagan prince, Cyrus shone unrivalled among the most celebrated and virtuous of heathen kings. His life was peculiarly pure, and uncontaminated by those infirmities, vices, and crimes, which in so many instances have disgraced the character and reign of the rulers of the earth. This man, in preference to all others, was raised up to be the deliverer of the Israel and Church of God from a long-continued captivity, and to restore them to the earthly Canaan which had been promised to their fathers, and enjoyed for so many ages by their descendants. This great prince acknowledges that he was immediately called by Jehovah himself to accomplish this great work—of setting Israel free, and enabling them to rebuild that temple for Israel's God which had long remained in ruin and desolation. Daniel was for a considerable time the prime minister of this amiable and powerful monarch. And we have some reason to hope, that under such tuition he became a possessor of grace and an heir of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the faithful God. We approach thee under the covert of the righteousness of Christ. Thou art faithful to thyself, to thy perfections, to thy purposes, to thy covenant, to thy promises, to thy threatenings, to thy Son, and to thy people. What reason have we to rejoice that we are permitted, in the language of inspiration, thus to adore thee: Thou art the faithful God, which keepest covenant and mercy with them that love thee and keep thy commandments, to a thousand generations. Thy mercy, Lord, is in the heavens, and thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds. O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee, or unto thy faithfulness round about thee?

We would express our thankfulness for what we have now read of the displays of thy faithfulness and truth, in bringing the seventy years' captivity of thy Church in Babylon to a close. Glory to thy name for touching the heart of Cyrus thine anointed, and for raising up in him a glorious deliverer for thy people. Truly, O Lord, the hearts of all men are in thy hand; O touch the hearts of all earthly kings and rulers by thy grace, and raise them up to be eminent blessings to thy cause and people.

Eternal praises to the Most High, for raising up Jesus Christ to be the deliverer of his Church, and to rescue his people from the awful slavery of sin, and to preserve them from the captivity of hell. O Jesus, may we be thy rescued captives. Sin and Satan have long had the dominion over us. Let their dominion continue no more. Destroy the power of the god of this world, and let Christ the anointed Son of God reign over us for ever. As thou didst bring back the captivity of Jacob, may each member of our family be delivered from the captivity of sin and the chains of guilt. We have been long dead in sin—graciously quicken us by the power of the Holy Ghost. May we no longer walk according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience.

Convince our dear children that they are by nature children of wrath. Make them dissatisfied with their natural state, and may they long and pray to be the regenerated children of Christ.

We supplicate for ourselves and all our relatives zeal for the glory of God. May the remembrance of the zeal of Cyrus animate us to seek from heaven that concern for the prosperity of Zion which every genuine believer feels. Whatever talents we possess, whether property, or influence, or grace, may we lay them willingly down at our Saviour's feet, and in the language of converted Saul of Tarsus exclaim, Lord, what wilt thou have us to do?

Give to our servants love to Jesus as their Divine master. In yielding obedience to men, may they not forget to yield service to Christ.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past night; and we seek the countenance, the smiles, and the guidance of our God, to attend us in all the engagements of this day. Mercifully hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for the sake and through the merits of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

1 CORINTHIANS XV.

Glories of the Resurrection.

ALL flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption:

43 It is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power:

44 It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

45 And so it is written, The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit.

46 Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven.

48 As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, 52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall he brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.

55 O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law.

57 But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. XV.—How amazing are the displays of God's power in the immense variety of living creatures he hath formed, which exist in the sea, on the dry land, and in the air! In wisdom he hath made them all. Great is the glory of the stars: far greater the glory of the saints, who shall shine brighter than the stars for ever and ever. Great is the glory of the sun; but infinitely greater the glory of Christ, the Sun of righteousness, whose beams shall fill heaven through endless day. Great has been the desolation effected by the apostasy of the first Adam; but infinitely greater the blessedness of the restoration which has been accomplished by Christ, the second Adam. How affecting to think of the humiliating circumstances of the bodies of the saints, when laid in the grave! but O how delightful to anticipate the change their bodies shall undergo in the morning of the resurrection, when the trumpet of the archangel shall sound! How wonderful the conquests of Immanuel! He has deprived death of its sting, and the grave of its victory. And how inconceivable the love of Jesus, who is willing to give us the benefit of all his conquests!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, though we are worms of the dust, insignificant and sinful, yet we venture to approach thy throne of grace through the merit of the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son. Holy Spirit, breathe upon us in thy great mercy a spirit of grace and supplication.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the infinitely incomprehensible Jehovah. Tho heaven is thy throne, and the earth is thy footstool. How insignificant and mean are earthly thrones when compared with thine! and how limited are earthly kingdoms when compared with thy vast empire! Thine eye is omniscient, and no action can possibly escape thine observation; yea, the very thoughts of the heart of men and of angels are naked and open before thee. As a family we would bow before thy sovereign majesty, and we will acknowledge thee as our lawgiver, our king, and our Saviour.

We bless thee for the displays of thy gracious sovereignty given in our creation. We thank thee for making us rational beings, and not forming us among the irrational tribes of thy creatures; we thank thee for giving us souls that shall never die, and not souls similar to the beasts of the earth, which go down to the dust. And we bless thee that, through Christ, our souls may be elevated to the purity, perfection, and glory of heaven, and be made to partake of glory far superior to the brightness of the firmament and the lustric of the stars.

Teach us, O Lord, to mourn over the melancholy and affecting change which sin has produced upon the body and the soul of man. We would mourn over the moral diseases and the frightful passions with which the beauty and the glory of the soul are defaced. We would mourn over the diseases, infirmities, and weakness by which the body is degraded, and afterwards made the humbled victim of mortality and corruption.

O suffer not our children to be proud of beauty or the sprightliness of youthful ardour. Teach them to meditate on death and contemplate the grave. And O may they seek that life of grace which will issue in the glories of immortality.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the mighty conqueror of death, and we rejoice that by death thou didst deprive death of its sting. Give us faith to believe that we are interested in the blessing of a glorious resurrection. May we not be afraid to lie down in the grave, since thou hast promised, That which is sown in corruption shall be raised in incorruption, and that which is sown in dishonour shall be raised in glory. Teach us, O Lord, to look on death as a conquered enemy, and to lift up our hearts in such thankful acknowledgments as these: Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Mercifully watch over us this night, and accept of our thanks for the undeserved mercies of the past day. Into the hands of a gracious God we commend our spirits; and all we ask is for Jesus' sake, the mighty Conqueror of death. Amen.

EZRA IX.

Ezra's Prayer and Confession.

NOW when these things were done, the princes came to me, saying, The people of Israel, and the priests, and the Levites, have not separated themselves from the people of the lands, doing according to their abominations.

2 For they have taken of their daughters for themselves, and for their sons: so that the holy seed have mingled themselves with the people of those lands: yea, the hand of the princes and rulers hath been chief in this trespass.

3 And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment and my mantle, and plucked off the hair of my head and of my beard, and sat down astonished.

4 Then were assembled unto me every one that trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the transgression of those that had been carried away; and I sat astonished until the evening sacrifice.

5 And at the evening sacrifice I arose up from my heaviness; and having rent my garment and my mantle, I fell upon my knees, and spread out my hands unto the Lord my God,

6 And said, O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift up my face to thee, my God: for our iniquities are increased over our head, and our trespass is grown up unto the heavens.

7 Since the days of our fathers have we been in a great trespass unto this day; and for our iniquities have we, our kings, and our priests, been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, and to a spoil, and to confusion of face, as it is this day.

8 And now for a little space grace hath been shewed from the Lord our God, to leave us a remnant to escape, and to give us a nail in his holy place, that our God may lighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage.

9 For we were bondmen; yet our God hath not forsaken us in our bondage, but hath extended mercy unto us in the sight of the kings of Persia, to give us a reviving, to set up the house of our God, and to repair the desolations thereof, and to give us a wall in Judah and in Jerusalem.

10 And now, O our God, what shall we say after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments, 11 Which thou hast commanded by thy servants, the prophets, saying, The land, unto which ye go to possess it, is an unclean land with the filthiness of the people of the lands, with their abominations, which have filled it from one end to another with their uncleanness.

12 Now therefore give not your daughters unto their sons, neither take their daughters unto your sons, nor seek their peace or their wealth for ever: that ye may be strong, and eat the good of the land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children for ever.

13 And after all that is come upon us for our evil deeds, and for great trespass, seeing that thou our God hast punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and hast given us such deliverance as this;

14 Should we again break thy commandments, and join in affinity with the people of these abominations? wouldest not thou be angry with us till thou hadst consumed us, so that there should be no remnant nor escaping?

15 O Lord God of Israel, thou art righteous: for we remain yet escaped, as it is this day: behold we are before thee in our trespasses: for we cannot stand before thee because of this.

REFLECTIONS UPON EZRA IX.—They are blessed, and honoured, and useful, and happy, who have separated themselves from the sinful manners, customs, and pleasures of a corrupted and ensnaring world. Most assuredly, the secret of true happiness is true holiness. If we wish to have a portion of the happiness of heaven in our souls, we must earnestly pray that we may have a portion of heaven's holiness in our hearts. Marriages, alliances, and friendships, which have true religion for their basis, never fail to be the sources of the greatest advantages and the richest enjoyments.

PRAYER.

O THOU Holy One of Israel, our God and Father in Christ, though we are polluted and vile, we venture to approach thy sacred and Divine presence. In all our approaches, we pray that we may be most solemnly impressed with a sense of thy holiness, and with a sense of our own vileness and corruption.

What reason have we, O Lord, to mourn over national and family and personal sins. We acknowledge the affecting prevalence of corrupted manners and example among all classes of the community. How many of our rulers, who ought to be patterns of piety, are patterns of profanity! We would lament that thy laws are so despised and thine ordinances so neglected by rich and poor. Our land is called Christian, but we lament that so little even of the profession of Christianity exists.

Lord, we confess our family sins. Our ignorance, our carelessness, our irregularity in duty, and the very small degree of vital godliness which is found among us, should fill us with shame and confusion, in the presence of a holy and heart-searching God. What cause have we to take up the penitential language of Ezra into our lips, and thus make confession before thee! O our God, we are ashamed, and blush to lift up our face to thee, our God; for our iniquities are increased over our head, and our trespass is grown up into the heavens. We acknowledge that, as a family and individuals, our sins are far more aggravated than the sins of others. We have sinned against greater light, and greater convictions, and greater privileges, and greater mercies, and greater patience. O Lord, if thou shouldst deal with us according to our demerit, how dreadful at this moment would be our doom! As a nation thou wouldst deliver us up to the will of our enemies. For our iniquities thou wouldst deliver our rulers, our priests, and our people, into the hand of other nations, to the sword, to captivity, to a spoil, and to confusion of face. But, glory to thy name, that through Jesus, thy well-beloved Son, in the midst of deserved wrath thou hast remembered us with undeserved mercy.

Take our beloved children, and make them disciples in the school of Christ. Holy Spirit, soon do thou most graciously melt their hearts with evangelical repentance, and may we never see them hardened with impenitence and sin.

O pour out upon us, as a nation, a congregation, a family, and as individuals, the influences of thy sanctifying Spirit. We have provoked and grieved the Spirit by our sins; now turn us unto thee, O Lord, and let our hearts be living temples of the Holy Ghost.

Give our servants the grace of true repentance, and preserve them from indifference about their eternal concerns.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the past night, and give us grace to glorify thee in all the duties of the day, for Jesus our Divine Mediator's sake. Amen.

- 1 BEHOLD, where, breathing love divine,
Our dying Master stands!
His weeping followers gathering round,
Receive his last commands.
- 2 Blest is the man whose softening heart
Feels all another's pain;
To whom the supplicating eye
Was never raised in vain:

A stranger's woes to feel;
And bleeds in pity o'er the wound
He wants the power heal.

1 CORINTHIANS XVI.

Kindness to poor Saints.

NOW concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye.

2 Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

8 But I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost.

9 For a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 Now if Timotheus come, see that he may be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do.

11 Let no man therefore despise him: but conduct him forth in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren: but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he shall have convenient time.

13 Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.

14 Let all your things be done with charity.

15 I beseech you, brethren, (ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints.)

16 That ye submit yourselves unto such, and to every one that helpeth with us, and laboureth.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that which was lacking on your part they have supplied.

18 For they have refreshed my spirit and yours: therefore acknowledgo ye them that are such.

19 The churches of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house.

20 All the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an holy kiss.

21 The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 COR. XVI.—God has wisely ordered that the poverty of indigent saints should prove a real and substantial blessing to those believers who are in circumstances of comfort or the possessors of wealth. Thus, occasions are afforded for exciting compassion, and for the performance of acts of mercy and liberality, which never fail to benefit the soul when they flow from feelings of benevolence and pity. It is a blessing to receive; "But it is more blessed to give than to receive." It is promised, and the promise stands secure,

"The liberal soul shall be made fat;" and "He that watereth, shall be also watered himself." They who are without compassion to the poor, and particularly to the poor members of Christ's family, have reason to tremble, because they have just reason to call in question the sincerity of their Christian profession. What saith the inspired Apostle? "But whose hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" May the success of the Gospel be near our hearts, and by the exercise of vigorous faith, holy courage, and lively zeal, may we testify to all around that we are the loving and the faithful soldiers of Jesus, the Captain of salvation.

PRAYER.

IN approaching thy throne, O Lord our God, in Jesus' name, we desire to feel deeply impressed with a sense of the providential kindness we have this day experienced. Our bread has been given us, and our water has been sure. And now, in this religious ordinance of domestic worship, thou art permitting our souls to partake of that spiritual food, and of those spiritual comforts, which are suited to our present wants, and preparatory for our future glory. We look up to thee, our gracious Father, for the blessings of sleep, repose, and protection during the night on which we are now entering. O let not the shades of this night prove to us the shades of death! Thou hast wisely concealed from us the time and manner of our dissolution; but we earnestly pray that thou wouldst not separate our souls from our bodies, till a saving connection is formed between Jesus and our souls. O let us not enter into the eternal state till we are introduced into a state of grace. Let not our body die, till sin die within us, and its reigning power be for ever destroyed.

We seek the blessing of the Spirit on what we have now read. Ever may the Word of God prove to us spirit and life. Give us reason to exclaim, in the language of thankfulness, joy, and praise, Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of his creatures. O may we be indeed born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, even by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

Breathe upon us, O Lord, the spirit of charity and compassion, which shone with brightness in the life and character of thy servant Paul. We thank thee that, while in a measure forgetful of his own necessities and poverty, he was most sensibly alive to the poverty and wants of tried and afflicted brethren. Lord, animate us with love to the saints. Teach us to love them because they are the objects of thy regard, because they are members of thy body mystical, and because they are redeemed by the blood of Jesus. Convince us that if we are without love to the brethren, we have never passed from death to life. Lord, have mercy on thine afflicted and indigent saints. Supply all their wants out of the inexhaustible stores of thy providential bounty. Touch the hearts of the wealthy with feelings of Christian charity and compassion, that they may minister of their abundance to the indigent and tried members of thy Church.

Give us grace to be diligent in the service of our God. To all of us may a great and effectual door be opened for glorifying God, and for advancing the interests of Zion.

Lord, give to our children an interest in Divine things, and may their youthful ardour be devoted to the service of Christ.

Lord, richly endow us and our relatives with the graces of the Spirit. Enable us to watch, to stand fast in the faith, to quit ourselves like men, and to be strong. May we live and die with hearts warmed with the love of Christ. O preserve us from the awful curse which will light on those who love him not. We present these our prayers in Jesus' name. May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

- 1 JESUS! lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,
While the raging billows roll,—
While the tempest still is high!
Hide me, O my Saviour! hide,
Till the storm of life is past;
Safe into the haven guide,
O receive my soul at last!
- 2 Thou, O Christ! art all I want;
All in All in thee I find:
Raise the fallen, cheer the faint,
Heal the sick, and lead the blind:
Just and holy is thy name,
I am all unrighteousness;
Vile and full of sin I am—
Thou art full of truth and grace.

NEHEMIAH I.

Nehemiah fasting for Jerusalem.

THE words of Nehemiah the son of Hachaliah. And it came to pass in the month Chisleu, in the twentieth year, as I was in Shushan the palace,

2 That Hanani, one of my brethren, came, he and certain men of Judah; and I asked them concerning the Jews that had escaped, which were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem.

3 And they said unto me, The remnant that are left of the captivity there in the province are in great affliction and reproach; the wall of Jerusalem also is broken down, and the gates thereof are burned with fire.

4 And it came to pass, when I heard these words, that I sat down and wept, and mourned certain days, and fasted, and prayed before the God of heaven,

5 And said, I beseech thee, O Lord God of heaven, the great and terrible God, that keepeth covenant and mercy for them that love him and observe his commandments:

6 Let thine ear now be attentive, and thine eyes open, that thou mayest hear the prayer of thy servant, which I pray before thee now, day and night, for the children of Israel thy servants, and confess the sins of the children of Israel, which we have sinned against thee; both I and my father's house have sinned.

7 We have dealt very corruptly against thee, and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes, nor the judgments, which thou commandedst thy servant Moses.

8 Remember, I beseech thee, the word that thou commandedst thy servant Moses, saying, If ye transgress, I will scatter you abroad among the nations:

9 But if ye turn unto me, and keep my commandments, and do them; though there were of you cast out unto the uttermost part of the heaven, yet will I gather them from thence, and will bring them unto the place that I have chosen to set my name there.

10 Now these are thy servants and thy people, whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, and by thy strong hand.

11 O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name: and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man. For I was the king's cup-bearer.

REFLECTIONS UPON NEH. I.—The state of the Church of God on earth is a state of comparative captivity. Here, believers are in a strange land, and far from home. In some respects, their circumstances resemble those of the Israel and Church of God when they dwelt in a strange land, beside the rivers of Babylon. It is, however, a captivity of short duration: their deliverance and emancipation are at hand. Soon they shall exchange the perplexities and sufferings of the desert of this world, for the pure and unalloyed delights of the celestial Canaan. How much there is in the character of Nehemiah to esteem, admire, and imitate! Though in the palace of a pagan prince, he was not afraid nor ashamed to confess Israel's God, and to show his attachment to the despised Church of God. May we never be ashamed of Christ, or of his people, or of his ordinances. Though in a palace where the discouragements to devotion were numerous, Nehemiah was a man of earnest believing prayer. Like him, may we possess the Spirit of grace and supplication. Amen.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, thou art the God of heaven, and the Lord our God. We adore thee as the great and terrible God, that keepeth covenant and mercy for them that love thee, and keep thy commandments. Mercifully look upon us in the face of thine Anointed. O that we as a family had reason thus to acknowledge, as thy servant Nehemiah did, We are thy servants, and thy people whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power and by thy strong hand.

Lord, we come unto thee in the name of Christ, rejoicing that, though in ourselves we are infinitely unworthy, yet through his worthiness we can obtain acceptance. With the Psalmist we would now say, Our voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and look up. Lord, give us praying hearts. May we feel ourselves surrounded with a sacred atmosphere of enjoyment and delight, when we engage in prayer, and in the other ordinances of religion. With thine inspired servant may we be enabled to say, with unfeigned hearts, Our soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and our mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips; when we remember thee upon our bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches.

We thank our God that we awoke on our beds this morning in the enjoyment of reason and health, and that we are now prostrate before the throne of grace, where a gracious Saviour most readily dispenses the blessings of his purchase. Teach us to honour God in all the engagements of the day, and, whatever we do, to do all to his glory.

Bless to us, O Lord, what we have now read of thy sacred Word, respecting the humility, the zeal, and the piety of Nehemiah. Like him, may we feel a deep interest in the prosperity of thy Church. O let the welfare of Zion be near our heart. May we ever say respecting it, If we forget thee, O Jerusalem, let our right hand forget her cunning, and let our tongue cleave to the roof of our mouth. We would lament, O Lord, over those circumstances of Zion which should excite our grief, and mourn over the small number of the genuine citizens of Zion.

Graciously make our dear children members of thy Church. We would desire and pray, rather that they may be allied to Christ by faith, than allied to the most distinguished families on earth. May our servants resemble Nehemiah in fidelity to the Lord our God.

We would earnestly pray for the increase of faithful ministers. O thou King of the Church, the harvest is great, the labourers are few; send forth more labourers into thy harvest. Increase the number of thy faithful servants, and increase their graces. Suffer not, we pray, the enemies of the Church to exceed in zeal those who are its professed friends and advocates. God forbid that thy ministers should be less zealous in building up than thine enemies in pulling down thy cause. O that each one of us may say, like Paul, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? Graciously answer our humble prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

- 1 LORD, how secure and blessed are they
Who feel the joys of pardoned sin!
Should storms of wrath shake earth and sea,
Their minds have heaven and peace within.
- 2 The day glides swiftly o'er their heads,
Made up of innocence and love;
And soft and silent as the shades
Their nightly minutes gently move.
- 3 Quick as their thoughts their joys come on
But fly not half so fast away;
Their souls are ever bright as noon,
And calm as summer evenings be.

2 CORINTHIANS I.

Use of Affliction.

PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints which are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort;

4 Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble by the comfort, wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.

5 For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ.

6 And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is effectual in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

7 And our hope of you is steadfast, knowing, that, as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life:

9 But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead:

10 Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us;

11 Ye also helping together by prayer for us, that for the gift bestowed upon us by the means of many persons thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

12 For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshy wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-ward.

13 For we write none other things unto you, than what ye read or acknowledge; and I trust ye shall acknowledge even to the end;

14 As also ye have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye also are ours in the day of the Lord Jesus.

20 For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us.

21 Now he which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God;

22 Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 Moreover, I call God for a record upon my soul, that to spare you I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 Cor. I.—Like the Apostle of the Gentiles, may we show that we are members of the mystical body of Christ, by breathing a universal spirit of holy, catholic love for all saints. If grace reigns in our hearts we shall feel the most earnest desires, and offer up the most earnest prayers, that grace may copiously descend on all in whom we are interested, and especially for the whole household of faith. God has the wisest ends in the afflictions and tribulations of his people; while, at the same time, he has the greatest delight in pouring into their wounded spirits the balm of Divine peace and consolation. Afflictions may abound to the objects of God's love, but they shall never exceed their consolations. And their heaviest and most prolonged afflictions, when compared to the joys which await them in heaven, are only momentary, transient, and light. Sanctified afflictions are to ministers the most valuable lessons, by which they are qualified to be the instruments of conferring on their people the greatest benefit, and of communicating the greatest comfort. Have we received the earnest of the Spirit—the inward evidence that we are the children of God? Then, all things will work together for our good.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Through Christ as the way we approach the throne of God, believing what Christ has said: No man cometh unto the Father but by me. Blessed Jesus, we desire to draw near the throne of grace through thee, as the way, the truth, and the life. O Lord, we rejoice in thee as the Father of mercies. Innumerable are the mercies we have received from thee. The history of our past days is a history of thy continued mercies. We acknowledge thee as the Father of all temporal mercies. Thou causest thy sun to rise upon the evil and the good, and makest thy rain to descend upon the just and the unjust. More especially we adore thee as the Father of all spiritual blessings. If any of us have been made partakers of thy saving mercies, we would praise and magnify thy name for such manifestations of thy goodness. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places, in Christ Jesus. If there are any among us not yet the partakers of spiritual and saving blessing, may the time not be far distant when they shall be made the sharers of thy grace.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the afflictions we are called to experience in the journey of life. We acknowledge that they are all under thine arrangement; and that thou art the comforter of thy people in all their tribulations. We thank thee for the comfort we have experienced amid the various sufferings we have been called to endure. Give us grace to comfort others in their afflictions. Peculiarly sanctify the afflictions of thy ministering servants, that they may not only be the instructors, but the comforters of thy people. Enable all thy ministers to say, in the language of the Apostle, Whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation; or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation. O Lord, impart to all pastors in thy Church a most earnest and conscientious desire to be useful to the souls of those who are committed to their care. May they discharge their ministerial duty, in the midst of their congregations, with affection, simplicity, and godly sincerity.

Bring our children under the saving influence of a preached Gospel. Teach them to love and respect the ministers of Christ as the heralds of salvation and the messengers of peace.

Lord, we bless thee for the promises of eternal truth. We rejoice that they are all in Christ yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God. We thank God for the number of the promises and for the suitableness of the promises. Give us grace to value them as an unspeakable inheritance.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the day, and implore thy Divine care this night. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

DELIVERANCE BY PRAYER.

- 1 LORD, I will bless thee all my days,
Thy praise shall dwell upon my tongue;
My soul shall glory in thy grace,
While saints rejoice to hear the song.
- 2 Come, magnify the Lord with me;
Come, let us all exalt his name:
I sought the eternal God, and he Hath not exposed my hope to shame.
- 3 I told him all my secret grief,
My secret groaning reached his ears:
He gave my inward pains relief,
And calmed the tumult of my fears.

Watts, Ps. 34, p. 1.

NEHEMIAH II.

Nehemiah's Prayer and Mission.

AND it came to pass in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him: and I took up the wine, and gave it unto the king. Now I had not been beforetime sad in his presence.

2 Wherefore the king said unto me, Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? this is nothing else but sorrow of heart. Then I was very sore afraid,

3 And said unto the king, Let the king live for ever: why should not my countenance be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' sepulchres, lieth waste, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire?

4 Then the king said unto me, For what dost thou make request? So I prayed to the God of heaven.

5 And I said unto the king, If it please the king, and if thy servant have found favour in thy sight, that thou wouldest send me unto Judah, unto the city of my fathers' sepulchres, that I may build it.

6 And the king said unto me, (the queen also sitting by him,) For how long shall thy journey be? and when wilt thou return? So it pleased the king to send me; and I set him a time.

7 Moreover I said unto the king, If it please the king, let letters be given me to the governors beyond the river, that they may convey me over till I come into Judah;

8 And a letter unto Asaph the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the palace which appertained to the house, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall enter into. And the king granted me, according to the good hand of my God upon me.

9 Then I came to the governors beyond the river, and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me.

10 When Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant, the Ammonite, heard of it, it grieved them exceedingly that there was come a man to seek the welfare of the children of Israel.

11 So I came to Jerusalem, and was there three days.

12 And I arose in the night, I and some few men with me; neither told I any man what my God had put in my heart to do at Jerusalem: neither was there any beast with me, save the beast that I rode upon.

13 And I went out by night by the gate of the valley, even before the dragon well, and to the dung port, and viewed the walls of Jerusalem, which were broken down, and the gates thereof were consumed with fire.

14 Then I went on to the gate of the fountain, and to the king's pool: but there was no place for the beast that was under me to pass.

15 Then went I up in the night by the brook, and viewed the wall, and turned back, and entered by the gate of the valley, and so returned.

16 And the rulers knew not whether I went, or what I did; neither had I as yet told it to the Jews, nor to the priests, nor to the nobles, nor to the rulers, nor to the rest that did the work.

REFLECTIONS UPON NEH. II.—When we are grieved for the external calamities of the Church of Christ, and when her prosperity is the object of our affectionate desire and the subject of our fervent supplications before a throne of grace, it is an undoubted evidence that we have experienced a regenerating change, and that we are members of the family of God. The king affectionately noticed the grief of Nehemiah, inquired into its cause, and showed his readiness to receive his petition and to accomplish his wishes. Jesus, our King and Saviour, most mercifully observes the afflictions of his people, puts their tears in his bottle, and answers their prayers.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou who art the light of heaven, we bless thee that thou hast preserved us during the darkness and dangers of the past night, and that thou hast graciously opened our eyes to behold the returning light of another day. Praise to thy name, that our eyes are not closed in death, and that we have not been sent unprepared into the world of spirits.

We supplicate from our God, in Jesus' name, the mercies necessary for this day. Give us day by day our daily bread. Give us wisdom and strength for the honourable management of all our temporal concerns. Teach us to testify to all around us, that in all our worldly pursuits we are under the benign and sanctifying influence of the principles of the Gospel. We also humbly supplicate blessings for our souls, which require thy daily and constant care as much as our bodies of clay, which will soon be numbered with the dead. Lord, bestow upon us the grace of heavenly-mindedness. In the midst of the pursuits of earth, may we find our thoughts and desires rise to the pure and sublime objects of heaven. May our thoughts be more in heaven than on earth, that our conversation may be in heaven, from whence we look for the Saviour. Convince us that our hopes of heaven are vain and unfounded, if our thoughts and wishes are seldom directed to the heavenly state. Like Paul, thy faithful Apostle, may we have a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the King of kings. We rejoice in the control thou dost exercise over earthly kings and rulers, in employing them as instruments in thy hand to defeat the purposes of thine enemies, and to advance the prosperity of thy Church. We thank God for what we have now read of the remarkable effect produced upon the mind of the Assyrian king, in answer to the earnest prayers of Nehemiah thy servant. Lord, make all the rulers of the earth nursing fathers to thy Church.

O Lord, look down on thy Church in its present circumstances. Give more zeal to thy ministers, and more activity to thy people. Raise up men of eminent gifts and eminent grace, who shall imitate the Ezras and the Nehemiahs of ancient days, and prove honoured instruments in reforming those abuses which have crept into thy Church, and which have defaced the beauty of thy kingdom.

Make our dear children the admirers of Christ, and teach them to take the liveliest interest in the prosperity of his spiritual kingdom.

Grant that our servants may be members of thy Church, and subjects of thy spiritual kingdom.

We bless thee for the immediate answer thou didst give to the prayers of Nehemiah. Teach us to pray in faith, and may we seek spiritual blessings under the assured conviction that we shall obtain them through the mediation of Christ.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Lord. Amen.

- 1 DO not I love thee, O my Lord?
Behold my heart, and see;
And turn each cursed idol out
That dares to rival thee.
- 2 Do not I love thee from my soul?
Then let me nothing love:
Dead be my heart to every joy,
When Jesus cannot move.
- 3 Then knowest I love thee, dearest Lord;
But, O! I long to soar
Far from the sphere of mortal joys,
And learn to love thee more.

DODDRIDGE.

2 CORINTHIANS III.

Efficacy of the Ministry.

DO we begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, epistles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men:

3 Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart.

4 And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward:

5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God;

6 Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life.

7 But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away:

8 How shall not the ministration of the Spirit be rather glorious?

9 For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth.

11 For if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

12 Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech:

13 And not as Moses, which put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look to the end of that which is abolished:

14 But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which vail is done away in Christ.

15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is upon their heart.

16 Nevertheless when it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away.

17 Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 But we all, with open face, beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. III.—The fidelity of ministers is their greatest honour, and their success in winning souls to Christ their greatest delight. Kings may boast of their diadems, but no diadem is to be compared with the conversion of sinners, which is the crown of rejoicing which faithful ministers wear, and which shall never fade away. The Apostle's success in the service of Christ was the most eminent and distinguished, while his views of himself were the most humbling; plainly illustrating that most important and long-established truth, that those who have the greatest attainments in grace have the deepest sense of their own helplessness, unworthiness, and insufficiency. May we all possess that grace here, which will be the morning-dawn of that glory we shall enjoy hereafter!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O gracious God and Father in Christ, at the close of another day and of another week, to approach thy throne and seek thy face. May each one of this family belong to the generation of them that seek thee, even of them that seek thy face, O God of Jacob.

May our children be early taught to seek thee; and may their hearts be touched with that promise, They that seek me early shall find me.

We come unto thee, O Lord, to present our adorations, acknowledgments, and thanksgivings. And to whom should we go but unto thee? Thou art the Father of mercies and the fountain of all goodness, and thou art able to do for us exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think. In all our approaches to thy throne may our prayers be before thee as the incense, and may the lifting up of our hands be as the evening sacrifice, acceptable in thy sight, through the blood and intercession of thy well-beloved Son.

Lord, forgive the sins of the past week. When we look upon the guilt of the sins of the week, and of the sins of our life, we would at the same time turn our eyes to the atoning blood of Jesus, which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. Mercifully fulfil in our experience that promise, delivered by thy servant Micah, He will turn again, he will have compassion on us: he will subdue our iniquities: and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Lord, sanctify to us the providences of the week, whether they have presented themselves before us in the way of crosses or comforts. May all things work together for our good.

We seek the protecting care of our God during another night. May we and all our relatives have underneath us the everlasting arms of our God and Saviour. We would joyfully anticipate the holy Sabbath, which is drawing near at hand. Spare our lives to see thy sacred day, and to engage in thy courts in its Divine observances. May our beloved minister come before the congregation powerfully assisted by the Holy Ghost, and may a sacred unction accompany the message he may be enabled to deliver. Make us his epistle written in his heart, known and read of all men. Above all, may we be the epistle of Christ, having his love and grace written on our hearts, not with ink, but with the spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart. Have mercy on all thy ministers. Let them not be discouraged on account of their own personal weakness or unworthiness. In this may they rejoice, that their sufficiency is of God. Lord, make them able ministers of the New Testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit.

We thank our God that we live, not under the old, but under the Gospel dispensation. Have mercy on the blinded Jews, who still cleave to the old dispensation, which is removed by the coming of Christ. O take the vail away from their hearts, and may they see that the true Messiah has really appeared.

O that all of us may with open face behold, as in a glass, the glory of the Lord; and may we be changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, who loved us and died for us. May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST'S MEDIATORIAL REIGN.

O. M.

- 1 HEAR what the Lord in vision said,
And made in mercy known:
Sinners, behold your help is laid
On my almighty Son.
- 2 High shall he reign on David's throne,
My people's better King;
My arm shall beat his rivals down,
And still new subjects bring.
- 3 My truth shall guard him in his way,
With mercy by his side,
While in my name through earth and sea
He shall in triumph ride.
- 4 My covenant stands for ever fast;
My promises are strong;
Firm as the heavens his throne shall last,
His seed endure as long.

Watts, Ps. 89, p. 17.

PSALM LXXXIX.

Prosperity of Christ's Kingdom.

THEN thou spakest in vision to thy Holy One, and saidst,
I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people.

20 I have found David my servant; with my holy oil have
I anointed him:

21 With whom my hand shall be established: mine arm also shall strengthen him.

22 The enemy shall not exact upon him; nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

23 And I will beat down his foes before his face, and plague them that hate him.

24 But my faithfulness and my mercy shall be with him:
and in my name shall his horn be exalted.

25 I will set his hand also in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers.

26 He shall cry unto me, Thou art my father, my God, and the rock of my salvation.

27 Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth.

28 My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him.

29 His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven.

30 If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments;

31 If they break my statutes, and keep not my commandments;

32 Then will I visit their transgression with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes.

33 Nevertheless my lovingkindness will I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail.

34 My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.

35 Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David.

36 His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me.

37 It shall be established for ever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven. Selah.

52 Blessed be the Lord for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM LXXXIX.—Jesus is the Holy One. Do we bear any resemblance to him in holiness? He is the Mighty One.
Have we laid the weight of our souls and of our salvation on him, who is mighty and willing to save to the very uttermost? Jesus in his humanity was anointed with grace, and thus qualified for his mediatorial work. Are we anointed with the unction from the Holy

One? Have we received out of Christ's fulness, and grace for grace?
Let us rejoice in the kingly government of Christ; that he is set upon the holy hill of Zion; that all his enemies shall be made his footstool; that justice and judgment are the habitation of his throne; that mercy and truth go before his face; that his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom; and that his dominion shall remain from generation to generation. It is a humbling truth that through the remains of corruption in their hearts, even saints have a natural tendency to wander. In all their wanderings God's eye is upon them, and he employs the rod of his fatherly discipline to bring them back to the paths of righteousness, for his name's sake.

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, and hearer of prayer, thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day. Praise to thy name, that our lives are continued to another day of the Son of man. We adore thee as the God of grace; and we rejoice that thou hast laid the help of thy people on one that is mighty, even Jesus, thine anointed Son, in whose name we approach thy throne.
Thou art a God of faithfulness and of mercy; and in thy name shall the horn of our Redeemer be exalted. We adore thee, O Lord, as our Father, our God, and the Rock of our salvation.

We thank thee, gracious God, that the enemies of Christ and his Church cannot prevail; and we bless thee for the promise that thou wilt beat down his foes before his face, and plague them that hate him. We pray that by the preaching of the everlasting Gospel this day many enemies of Christ and his kingdom may be persuaded to lay down their weapons of hostility, and become the admirers of his glorious person.
Such of our beloved relatives as have not yet become the decided followers of Christ, O suffer them no longer to halt between two opinions—suffer them no longer to delay the surrender of their persons and their hearts to Christ.

May our eyes be blessed by seeing our children become the loving and devoted servants of Christ. Blessed Saviour, captivate their hearts, and adorn them with the graces of the Holy Spirit. Let the spirit which rested on thy servant David rest on our servants.

We pray for the rapid and extensive enlargement of the kingdom of Christ. We thank thee, thou hast promised, I will set his hand in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers. Glory to God that this promise in many instances is already accomplished, and the gracious and governing hand of Christ is already felt in many islands of the sea. Already, O Jehovah, thou hast made thy firstborn higher in his mediatorial capacity than all princes; and we rejoice that all the kings of the earth shall bow down before him, and that all nations shall serve him.

We supplicate the continued blessing of heaven on all Bible and missionary institutions which have for their object the extension of the fame of Jesus and the universal diffusion of the blessings of our Saviour's purchase.

Let all our universities and schools become nurseries for the Church. Let a more glorious light than that of human learning irradiate these literary establishments—let them be illuminated by the light of salvation.

Sanctify all the sufferings of thine afflicted people. Convince them that the afflictions of thy providence are no evidence that they are without an interest in thy love. May they rejoice in this, that though their transgressions be visited by the rod, and their iniquity with stripes, thy lovingkindness shall not be taken from them, and thy faithfulness shall not utterly fail.

Lord, assist all thy ministers and people in the solemnities of the day. May it be a day distinguished by the smiles of heaven. Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake, who gave himself an offering for us. Amen.

FRAILTY AND SHORTNESS OF LIFE.

Egypt. Orange. Ustick.

A. M.

- 1 LORD, what a feeble piece
Is this our mortal frame!
Our life, how poor a trifle 'tis,
That scarce deserves the name.
- 2 Our moments fly apace,
Nor will our minutes stay:
Just like a flood our hasty days
Are sweeping us away.
- 3 Well, if our days must fly,
We'll keep their end in sight,
We'll spend them all in wisdom's way,
And let them speed their flight.
- 4 They'll waft us sooner o'er
This life's tempestuous sea:
Soon we shall reach the peaceful shore
Of blest eternity.

WATTS, Ps. 90.

PSALM XC.

Human Frailty.

LORD, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations.
2 Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.

3 Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men.

4 For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

5 Thou carriest them away as with a flood, they are as a sleep. In the morning they are like grass which groweth up.

6 In the morning it flourisheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth.

7 For we are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled.

8 Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our secret sins in the light of thy countenance.

9 For all our days are passed away in thy wrath; we spend our years as a tale that is told.

10 The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labour and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.

11 Who knoweth the power of thine anger? even according to thy fear, so is thy wrath.

12 So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

13 Return, O Lord, how long? and let it repent thee concerning thy servants.

14 O satisfy us early with thy mercy; that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.

15 Make us glad according to the days wherein thou hast afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil.

16 Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children.

17 And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us:
and establish thou the work of our hands upon us: yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XC.—Jesus in his person, righteousness, office, and relations is the dwelling-place of his people, where they remain secure from every danger, and safe from every foe. "A man shall be an hiding-place from the wind, a covert from the tempest, and the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Our great Redeemer was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or over the earth was. His goings forth were of old from everlasting; therefore he must be God as well as man, essentially possessing all the Divine perfections and prerogatives in common with the Father and the Holy Spirit. God is the living God, and he is the sovereign disposer of life, giving it, and taking it away when he pleases; and none daring to say, "What doest thou?" But there is a life he gives in his gracious sovereignty, and which he will never take away, and that is spiritual life, which issues in life eternal. "The Lord will give grace and glory. The gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." A constant living impression of the frailty, the uncertainty, and the shortness of our mortal life is profitable to the soul, calculated to wean our hearts from earthly things, and to raise our thoughts to that holy, happy land, where there are rivers of pleasure for evermore.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one undivided Jehovah, enable us by thy gracious Spirit to approach thee with that reverence with which creatures should approach their Creator, and to draw near with that confidence and love with which thy children should come before their Father who is in heaven. O Lord, thou hast been the dwelling-place of thy people in all generations; and thou hast ever surrounded thy people with thy perfections, as with mountains of almighty and eternal strength. We adore thee in the antiquity and eternity of thy being. Before the mountains were formed, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. With thee the revolution of time and of generations is but as the passing of a moment. A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

We acknowledge, O Lord, the ruin which is brought upon our race by the fall and apostasy of Adam, our covenant head. We adore thy justice in all the sufferings inflicted on man in consequence of the fall. Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right? Thou art wise and just in permitting death, like an overwhelming flood, to convey one generation after another to the silent grave. Affect us, O Lord, with the brevity, uncertainty, and vanity of the present life. In the morning we are like grass when it groweth up; in the evening of our days we resemble the flower which is cut down and withereth.

Lord, deliver us from a spirit of insensibility; and may the thoughts of death, of the interment of the body in the tomb, of the appearance of our souls before the presence of the eternal Jehovah, and of a state of endless blessedness or misery beyond the grave, produce on our minds the most solemnising effects.

Lord, preserve our dear children from a spirit of thought-lessness and folly. Let them not live as if they imagined they were to live always. Teach them to live under the conviction that they must die, and under the impression that they may die soon.

Bless the preaching of thy Gospel on this thy sacred day.
Open the eyes of many to see that their sins deserve thy wrath; and that, unless their sins are repented of and forgiven through a Saviour's blood, the weight of thine anger must be endured for ever and ever. Affect our graceless friends with an alarming view of the Divine wrath. Who knoweth the power of thine anger?

Merciful God, give us grace so to number and observe our days, as to apply our hearts unto wisdom. In behalf of the congregation with which we are connected, and our relatives and friends, and ourselves as a family, we would earnestly pray, O satisfy us early with thy mercy, that we may rejoice and be glad all our days. Let the work of thy salvation appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. O let the beauty of the Lord, even the graces of the Spirit, be upon us; in all our pious designs establish thou the work of our hands.

Give us the sleep and the protection of thy Beloved this night. Accept us in the Beloved, whom thou hearest always.
Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE CHURCH'S CHANGES.

Cyrow. Bethlem. Clark's.

P. M.

- 1 LO, the Church with gradual light,
Her opening charms displays,
After a long and dreary night
Looks forth with glimmering rays;
Scarcely perceptible appears,
Until the day-spring from on high,
All the face of nature cheers,
And gladdens earth and sky.
- 2 Fair as the unclouded moon,
With borrowed rays she shines,
Shines—but ah! she changes soon,
And when at full, declines!
Frequent, long eclipses feels,
Till Jesus drives the shades away,
All her doubts and sins dispels,
And brings the perfect day.

C. WESLEY.

NEHEMIAH VI.

Sanballat opposing Nehemiah.

NOW it came to pass, when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had builded the wall, and that there was no breach left therein; (though at that time I had not set up the doors upon the gates;)

2 That Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying, Come, let us meet together in some one of the villages in the plain of Ono. But they thought to do me mischief.

8 And I sent messengers unto them, saying, I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down: why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you?

4 Yet they sent unto me four times after this sort; and I answered them after the same manner.

5 Then sent Sanballat his servant unto me in like manner the fifth time with an open letter in his hand;

6 Wherein was written, It is reported among the heathen, and Gashmu saith it, that thou and the Jews think to rebel: for which cause thou buildest the wall, that thou mayest be their king, according to these words.

7 And thou hast also appointed prophets to preach of thee at Jerusalem, saying, There is a king in Judah: and now shall it be reported to the king according to these words. Come now therefore, and let us take counsel together.

8 Then I sent unto him, saying, There are no such things done as thou sayest, but thou feignest them out of thine own heart.

9 For they all made us afraid, saying, Their hands shall be weakened from the work, that it be not done. Now therefore, O God, strengthen my hands.

10 Afterward I came unto the house of Shemaiah the son of Delaiah, the son of Mehetabeel, who was shut up; and he said, Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple, and let us shut the doors of the temple: for they will come to slay thee; yea, in the night will they come to slay thee.

11 And I said, Should such a man as I flee? and who is there, that, being as I am, would go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in.

12 And, lo, I perceived that God had not sent him; but that he pronounced this prophecy against me: for Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him.

13 Therefore was he hired, that I should be afraid, and do so, and sin, and that they might have matter for an evil report, that they might reproach me.

14 My God, think thou upon Tobiah and Sanballat according to these their works, and on the prophetess Noadiah, and the rest of the prophets, that would have put me in fear.

15 So the wall was finished in the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul, in fifty and two days.

16 And it came to pass, that when all our enemies heard thereof, and all the heathen that were about us saw these things, they were much cast down in their own eyes: for they perceived that this work was wrought of our God.

17 Moreover, in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters unto Tobiah; and the letters of Tobiah came unto them.

REFLECTIONS UPON NEH. VI.—The constant watchfulness of the enemies of Zion, waiting for every opportunity to injure the Church of Christ, should stir us up to increasing watchfulness and prayer, that their plans may be frustrated, and all their malicious efforts prove in vain. Our Saviour came from heaven to earth to engage in a great work—far greater than the creation of the universe. In this great work he met with every description of interruption and opposition. But nothing prevented him from pursuing his object, or accomplishing his purpose. He set his face as a flint; and never ceased until he finished salvation, and brought in an everlasting righteousness, infinite in its merit and boundless in its efficacy.

PRAYER.

ALmighty and infinitely blessed Lord God, and the Father of mercies, we come as a family, trusting in the atonement of Christ, and bow as humble suppliants before thy throne. Thou art the inexhaustible fountain of all that blessedness which angels and men enjoy: in thy presence there is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

We thank our God, the bountiful giver of all good, for the preserving care we experienced during the past night, and that under the refreshing influence of rest and sleep we are now enabled to approach the throne of our God, and seek the blessings of salvation. As in thy good providence we are entering upon another day and another week, we humbly pray that we may live this week under the beneficial and sanctifying power of the religious ordinances observed during the past Sabbath.

As the Father of mercies we seek from our God the supply of all our temporal necessities and wants. We ask not that we may fare sumptuously every day, but graciously feed us with food convenient for us, and afford us that bread which is necessary to strengthen man's heart.

Lord, we pray that our dear children may never be visited with poverty and want. Never may they know what it is to suffer scarcity of bread. Above all, enrich them with the blessings of thy salvation, and feed their souls with the bread of life. While our servants are under this roof, may they feed upon the bread of life, and ever relish the ordinances of religion.

May the word we have now read be accompanied with thy blessing: O give it divine efficacy! We mourn over our indolence in thy cause; and we feel ourselves reproved by the holy and persevering zeal of thy servant Nehemiah, in the midst of the annoying opposition and malevolent plots of the enemies of Jerusalem. God forbid that any of us should stand aloof from thy Gospel, thy cause, thy kingdom. We now seek from our God zeal for the Lord of hosts. Convince us that the cause of God is a GREAT WORK, that there is no work worthy to be brought into comparison with it. May our whole souls, and every faculty and talent we possess, be engaged in the work of our Lord. Suffer us not to be intimidated by opposition or obstacles. May we go forward in the strength of God the Lord, neither turning to the right hand nor the left.

Lord, bless thy Zion; build thou the walls of Jerusalem, thy New Testament Church. Strengthen and encourage all thy servants who are placed as watchmen upon the wall of thy Zion. O Lord, we would ever pray for thy Church. Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces.

Graciously hear, accept, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb who was slain for us. Amen, and amen.

STERLE.

2 CORINTHIANS IV.

Paul's Zeal in preaching the Gospel.

THEREFORE seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not;

2 But have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost:

4 In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.

5 For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake.

6 For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

8 We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair;

9 Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed:

10 Always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body.

11 For we which live are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh.

12 So then death worketh in us, but life in you.

13 We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak;

14 Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you.

15 For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God.

16 For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

17 For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory;

18 While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 Cor. iv.—There is no employment so important, sacred, and honourable, as that of the ambassadors of Christ. Very great are the discouragements they meet with from Satan and wicked men; but far greater are the encouragements they meet with arising from Christ's promise, Christ's help, and Christ's presence. What joy should fill our hearts, and what praise and thanksgiving should flow from our lips, that we have the Word of God in its unadulterated purity in our hands, and that we have constant opportunities of hearing the Gospel purely, faithfully, and affectionately proclaimed! How lamentable it is to read the Word with the bodily eyes, and yet enjoy no spiritual discernment of its excellence and loveliness and suitableness! May it not be our case to possess the casket, and remain ignorant of the invaluable jewel which it contains. By nature our minds resemble the darkness of midnight; by grace may our souls be filled with Divine light, and thus resemble the sky, filled with the brightness of the sun.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, thou art the all-seeing Jehovah, from whose penetrating eye no circumstances or actions can be concealed in any part of thy vast dominions. The darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike unto thee. Relying on the merit of our great High-priest, we approach thy throne.

Every day of our lives, may we live under the lively sense of the all-seeing eye of God, and that thou who art our constant witness shall be our impartial judge.

We desire with affectionate gratitude to express our thanks for the mercies of the past day. We have been permitted to drink of the streams of thy common bounty; for this we praise thee. And we trust that thou hast allowed us to taste of the blessings of thy special grace; and for this we praise thee. We are entering upon another night; O let it not prove the night of death! But, if it should, may this short night be followed by an eternal day of immortal blessedness and rest. Into the arms of our God and Saviour we commend our spirits.

We thank our God for the portion of the Holy Scriptures we have now been permitted to read. Divine Spirit, mercifully apply it to our hearts. We bless thee for the holy ministry: for committing it into the hands of men of like passions and weaknesses with ourselves; and for the most blessed advantages which a Gospel ministry has been employed to confer upon the children of men. We fervently pray that all thy ministering servants may be enabled to follow the example of holy Paul, in the faithful and humble and zealous performance of the duties of their sacred office. Suffer them not to faint when they meet with difficulties and discouragements. Never allow them to forget that they are not sent a warfare on their own charges. Teach all thy professed ambassadors to renounce the hidden things of dishonesty; not to walk in craftiness, but in holy simplicity. So may they manifest the truth, as to commend themselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God. Give all thy ministers large degrees of grace, that they may never preach themselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord. We thank God that the heavenly treasure is put, not in angelic, but earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of men.

Lord, bless our dear children and domestics. On the morning of the resurrection may they and we be raised up in glory by Christ Jesus, and presented faultless before the heavenly throne.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, all the afflictions of life. May we not despond when we feel the decay of natural strength, either by disease or advanced years. O teach us to look on all our afflictions as light compared with the weight of that glory which is promised; and may we look on all our afflictions as momentary compared with the eternal duration of heavenly joys.

Graciously hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

ESTHER III.

Haman's proud Revenge.

AFTER these things did king Ahasuerus promote Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and advanced him, and set his seat above all the princes that were with him.

2 And all the king's servants, that were in the king's gate, bowed, and revered Haman: for the king had so commanded concerning him. But Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence.

3 Then the king's servants, which were in the king's gate, said unto Mordecai, Why transgressest thou the king's commandment?

4 Now it came to pass, when they spake daily unto him, and he hearkened not unto them, that they told Haman, to see whether Mordecai's matters would stand: for he had told them that he was a Jew.

5 And when Haman saw that Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence, then was Haman full of wrath.

6 And he thought scorn to lay hands on Mordecai alone; for they had shewed him the people of Mordecai: wherefore Haman sought to destroy all the Jews that were throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus, even the people of Mordecai.

7 In the first month, that is, the month Nisan, in the twelfth year of king Ahasuerus, they cast Pur, that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day, and from month to month, to the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar.

8 And Haman said unto king Ahasuerus, There is a certain people scattered abroad and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of thy kingdom; and their laws are diverse from all people; neither keep they the king's laws: therefore it is not for the king's profit to suffer them.

9 If it please the king, let it be written that they may be destroyed; and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver to the hands of those that have the charge of the business, to bring it into the king's treasures.

10 And the king took his ring from his hand, and gave it unto Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the Jews' enemy.

11 And the king said unto Haman, The silver is given to thee, the people also, to do with them as it seemeth good to thee.

12 Then were the king's scribes called on the thirteenth day of the first month, and there was written according to all that Haman had commanded unto the king's lieutenants, and to the governors that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province according to the writing thereof, and to every people after their language; in the name of king Ahasuerus was it written, and sealed with the king's ring.

13 And the letters were sent by posts into all the king's provinces, to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish, all Jews, both young and old, little children and women, in one day, even upon the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar, and to take the spoil of them for a prey.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER III.—As in the case of Haman, we see that the worst of men are often elevated to power, wealth, and honour. And we also see that, like him, they totter on the pinnacle of their glory. There are two things which strikingly illustrate the corruption of the heart of man. The first is, "when men prefer their own honour before the glory of God." The second is, "giving honour to man without ever giving honour to God." May it be our blessedness to keep the end of our existence and the end of our salvation constantly in view—namely, "To glorify God, and enjoy him for ever." Wicked Hamans may contrive plots to injure Christ's flock; but "he who sits in the heavens shall hold them in derision."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, most holy, most mighty, and most glorious, we acknowledge thine infinite greatness; and we rejoice that we are not overlooked by thee on account of our insignificance, nor cast off by thee on account of our sinfulness and guilt. We praise thee that we are welcome to thy presence through Christ. Deeply impress us, O our God, with a sense of our unworthiness, of thy kindness and care toward us during the past night, which we now humbly and gratefully acknowledge. Truly, O Lord, we are less than the least of all thy mercies. Give us grace to walk humbly before thee during this day. May we engage in our worldly business under the impression that all these employments shall soon come to an end, that every earthly object shall pass away like the dream of night, and that we shall enter into another world, where we shall be for ever surrounded with the solemn realities of eternity. Preserve us this day from every temptation and snare to which we may be exposed and by which we may be endangered. May the God of Jeshurun be our God; may the everlasting and almighty arms of Divine grace be constantly underneath and around us.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the pride and ambition of Haman, an ancient and resolute enemy of thy Church. Lord, teach us to see the insignificance of the wealth, greatness, and honours of this world, since the God of providence often allows the worst and the basest of men to be their possessors. Glory to thy name, that though thy children, the objects of thy saving love, are often tried with poverty, yet thou, in the abundance of thy mercy, hast given them present blessings more valuable than the treasures of kings, and also the assured hopes of celestial glory beyond the grave.

Lord, deliver us from pride. Convince us that pride is idolatry—that it is a worship of self in preference to God. Open our eyes to see that pride is a sin of peculiar vileness, criminality, and danger. O give us the fear of the Lord, that we may hate evil, pride, arrogancy, the evil way, and the forward mouth. Deliver us from pride, which bringeth shame; and may we be among the lowly with whom wisdom is found. Convince us that while pride deserves destruction, it is the infallible harbinger of ruin. Deeply impress upon our minds these words of inspired truth: Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall.

Preserve our beloved children from the risings of pride, and deliver them from every desire to obtain an unlawful superiority over each other. O give them and our servants that humility which is the great fountain of family peace and of social comfort.

Lord Jesus, teach us humility. In thee we behold the most glorious displays of humility. Thou didst take up little children into thine arms and bless them; and thou didst wash the disciples' feet. May we learn of thee, O Jesus, who art meek and lowly of heart. Drive the idol of pride from the throne of our souls, and make us meek and lowly in heart.

O Lord, hear the imperfect prayers of thy humble petitioners, for Jesus' sake, thy beloved Son and our gracious Saviour. Amen.

DEATH AND IMMEDIATE GLORY.

Mount Pleasant. Walsingham. Bath Chapel. c. xi.

- 1 THERE is a house not made with hands,
Eternal and on high;
And here my spirit waiting stands,
Till God shall bid it fly.
- 2 Shortly this prison of my clay
Must be dissolved and full;
Then, O my soul, with joy obey
Thy heavenly Father's call.
- 3 'Tis he, by his almighty grace,
That forms thee fit for heaven;
And, as an earnest of the place,
Hus his own Spirit given.

WATTS, 110, B. I.

2 CORINTHIANS V.

Glory of Heaven and the general Judgment.

FOR we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven :

3 If so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked.

4 For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened : not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath wrought us for the selfsame thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord :

7 (For we walk by faith, not by sight :)

8 We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord.

9 Wherefore we labour, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him.

10 For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

11 Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men ; but we are made manifest unto God ; and I trust also are made manifest in your consciences.

14 For the love of Christ constraineth us ; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead :

15 And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

16 Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh : yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature : old things are passed away ; behold, all things are become new.

18 And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation ;

19 To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them ; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us : we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin ; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. v.—We cannot conceive the blessedness which awaits the souls of believers at death, when they lay down their earthly tabernacles, and are admitted into their heavenly, glorious, and eternal abode. And we cannot conceive the glory which awaits their bodies at the resurrection, when, at the command of Christ, they shall rise to immortality. Now, comparatively speaking, the body is a clog and hindrance to the soul ; but, at the resurrection, the body, by the spiritual, holy, and immortal properties with which it shall be invested, shall be rendered a fit and glorious associate for the soul through the ceaseless ages of eternity. Now, the bodily senses and appetites often prove a snare to the soul ; but after the resurrection, the body being perfect in holiness as well as the soul, shall delightfully participate in the refined and spotless enjoyments of immortality. The fellowship of Christ on earth, in the observance of ordinances and in the exercise of grace, makes the state of the believer a little heaven here below. Still this blessedness falls unspeakably short of that which consists in the full enjoyment of Christ, in heaven. Let us strive not to cleave to the dust, not to desire to live alway, but pray, with believing fervour, that we may be both ready and willing to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire to address thy sacred throne in the exercise of filial confidence and holy reverence. Through the all-prevailing name of Jesus, we present our persons and our services before thee for acceptance.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the essential eternity of thy being. From all eternity thou didst exist in thyself, infinitely blessed in the enjoyment of thy being. Thy throne is of old, and thou art from everlasting. How short-lived are earthly kings, and how temporary their thrones and kingdoms ! But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever, and thy remembrance unto all generations. Thou art Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, which was, which is, and which is to come—the Almighty.

We thank God for what we have enjoyed this day of thy goodness, whether in the common blessings of thy providence, or in the blessings of thy saving grace. O let the guilt we have contracted this day be washed away by the merit of our Saviour's blood. Speak peace to all our consciences, by pronouncing a sentence of forgiveness, and by convincing us that all our transgressions are removed from us, as far as the east is distant from the west. Let all our relatives obtain regeneration by the Spirit of Christ, and pardon through the merit of his blood.

Cause the dew of heavenly grace to accompany the precious and animating words we have now read from the volume of inspired and eternal truth. As we have the assured prospect of the dissolution of the body, the earthly house of this tabernacle, may we possess the assured hope of a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Give us that lively faith in Jesus, and in the glories of the eternal world, which will dispel the fears of death, and animate us with an earnest desire of laying aside the rags of mortality which we now wear, that we may be clothed upon with the bright robes of immortality.

Suffer not the minds of our dear children to be carried away by the delusive objects of the present world. In their early days may they know the walk of faith, and begin that life of grace which will terminate in a life of glory.

O prepare us all for an appearance before the judgment-seat of Christ. Now may we be clothed in that righteousness which will secure for us at the last day an acquittal before an assembled universe, and a place on the right hand of the exalted Judge. Lord, make us new creatures. We bless thee for our first creation ; O bless us with a second creation ! May old things pass away, may all things become new.

O thou, who art our God in Christ, reconciling a guilty world to thyself, we earnestly pray that we may be reconciled to God, and that all the enmity of our hearts may be destroyed.

We commend our souls and bodies to thy care this night, and implore acceptance and forgiveness, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

I WILL GO IN UNTO THE KING.

- 1 COME, humble sinner, in whose breast
A thousand thoughts revolve,
Come, with your guilt and fear oppress,
And make this last resolve:—
- 2 I'll go to Jesus, though my sin
Hath like a mountain rose;
I know his courts, I'll enter in,
Whatever may oppose.
- 3 I'll to the gracious King approach,
Whose sceptre pardon gives;
Perhaps he may command my touch,
And then the suppliant lives.

ESTHER IV.

Mordecai's Advice to Queen Esther.

WHEN Mordecai perceived all that was done, Mordecai rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth with ashes, and went out into the midst of the city, and cried with a loud and a bitter cry;

2 And came even before the king's gate: for none might enter into the king's gate clothed with sackcloth.

3 And in every province, whithersoever the king's commandment and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, and fasting, and weeping, and wailing; and many lay in sackcloth and ashes.

4 So Esther's maids and her chamberlains came and told it her. Then was the queen exceedingly grieved; and she sent raiment to clothe Mordecai, and to take away his sackcloth from him: but he received it not.

5 Then called Esther for Hatach, one of the king's chamberlains, whom he had appointed to attend upon her, and gave him a commandment to Mordecai, to know what it was, and why it was.

6 So Hatach went forth to Mordecai unto the street of the city, which was before the king's gate.

7 And Mordecai told him of all that had happened unto him, and of the sum of the money that Haman had promised to pay to the king's treasuries for the Jews, to destroy them.

8 Also he gave him the copy of the writing of the decree that was given at Shushan to destroy them, to shew it unto Esther, and to declare it unto her, and to charge her that she should go in unto the king, to make supplication unto him, and to make request before him for her people.

9 And Hatach came and told Esther the words of Mordecai.

10 Again Esther spake unto Hatach, and gave him commandment unto Mordecai;

11 All the king's servants, and the people of the king's provinces, do know, that whosoever, whether man or woman, shall come unto the king into the inner court, who is not called, there is one law of his to put him to death, except such to whom the king shall hold out the golden sceptre, that he may live: but I have not been called to come in unto the king these thirty days.

12 And they told to Mordecai Esther's words.

13 Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther, Think not with thyself that thou shalt escape in the king's house, more than all the Jews.

14 For if thou altogether holdest thy peace at this time, then shall there enlargement and deliverance arise to the Jews from another place; but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed: and who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?

15 Then Esther bade them return Mordecai this answer,

16 Go, gather together all the Jews that are present in Shushan, and fast ye for me, and neither eat or drink three days, night or day: I also and my maidens will fast likewise; and so will I go in unto the king, which is not according to the law: and if I perish, I perish.

17 So Mordecai went his way, and did according to all that Esther had commanded him.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER IV.—Often the saints of God are called upon, like holy Mordecai and the pious Esther, to sow in tears. But however much and however long they sow in tears, they shall reap in joy. Never did these distinguished saints imagine that such a calamity should befall them as the threatening of the barbarous massacre and utter extinction of their people and nation. And when the dark cloud hovered over their heads, they could not anticipate the bright splendour with which the dark cloud was destined to be followed, and the harvest of the most astonishing joy and gladness which awaited them. Mordecai employed Esther as a mediator, to plead for the salvation of the Church of God: let us commit our souls and all into the hands of Christ, to plead for us before his Father's throne.

PRAYER.

OUR LORD our God, we desire to approach thy throne under deep impressions of thy sovereignty and of thy mercy, displayed in Jesus. We adore thee in all the sovereign arrangements of thy Providence, both as they respect individual saints and thy Church in general. We rejoice that all thy dispensations respecting thy Church and people, however mysterious, dark, and afflicting, are dictated by wisdom and mingled with mercy. We praise thee that the dispensations of thy sovereignty which we shall not be able to comprehend or reconcile on this side the grave, we shall fully understand in the heavenly world. Glory to our God!

We adore thy justice and wisdom in the dark cloud which covered the firmament of thy Church in the days of Esther and Mordecai, when Haman obtained the sanction of the king for the barbarous destruction of the believing Jews. May afflictive events of Providence produce on us, as a family and as individuals, effects similar to those which were produced upon thy Church, when the malevolence of Haman threatened it with destruction. May we be led to humiliation and prayer. If ever our afflictions have been instrumental in humbling us before thee, we praise thy name. If they have been instrumental in taking our dependence from the creature, and placing it wholly upon Jesus, our Surety and Saviour, we give thee all the praise.

We would glorify our God for the overthrow which has attended all the plans which the enemies of God have ever formed to oppose the purposes of heaven and accomplish the ruin of Christ's kingdom. Thou God of salvation, thine adversaries can conceal none of their conspiracies from thee; and, with all their collected and boasted power, they are unable, even for one moment, to withstand the awful stroke of the iron rod of thine almighty vengeance. Myriads of archangels could never stand before thee, if once thou wast angry; yea, the whole intelligent universe could not abide the fierceness of thine indignation.

O teach our dear children and our servants to be afraid of thy wrath, and suffer them not by early impiety to provoke thine anger.

Deliver each one of us from a careless indifference about the glory of God and the salvation of our soul. Holy Spirit, give us thy grace, that we may fall in with the encouraging call of mercy: Kiss ye the Son, lest he be angry. Show great pity to all who are under convictions of sin, and who now feel an anxious concern about deliverance from the wrath to come.

We present the tribute of our thankfulness for the mercies of another night, and we seek the blessing of our God to attend us this day. Lord, pardon, accept, and save, for Jesus' sake, our only Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

I WILL BE THEIR GOD.

Providence. Eps. Grove House.

- 1 IF God is mine, then present things,
And things to come, are mine;
Ye, Christ, his word, and spirit too,
And glory all divine.
- 2 If he is mine, then from his love
Ho every trouble sends;
All things are working for my good,
And bliss his rod attends.
- 3 If he is mine, I need not fear
The rage of earth and hell;
Ho will support my feeble frame,
Their utmost force repel.

Let wealth and honours flee—
Sure he who giveth me himself,
Is more than these to me.

2 CORINTHIANS VI.

Paul's Faithfulness.

WE then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

2 (For he saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.)

3 Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed:

4 But in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses,

5 In stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings;

6 By pureness, by knowledge, by long-suffering, by kindness, by the Holy Ghost, by love unfeigned,

7 By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left,

8 By honour and dishonour, by evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true;

9 As unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and, behold, we live; as chastened, and not killed;

10 As sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

11 O ye Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you, our heart is enlarged.

12 Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own bowels.

13 Now for a recompence in the same, (I speak as unto my children,) be ye also enlarged.

14 Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?

15 And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?

16 And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

17 Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you,

18 And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. VI.—Most justly is the Gospel designated the grace of God. It is a revelation of his grace—of the plan of salvation, which furnishes a manifestation of grace the most wonderful the eyes of men or of angels could ever behold. It is, besides, the great mean which the Divine Spirit employs for conveying grace to the heart, and maintaining it in vigorous exercise in the soul. By means of the Gospel, believers are introduced into a state of grace, and prepared to enter into a state of glory. To labour in the Gospel is the greatest honour; while to possess the privilege of hearing the Gospel, without believing its doctrines or feeling its power, is the greatest calamity. Is this our day of salvation? Are we within mercy's reach? Do we hear the invitations of mercy? Are we now welcome to receive all the blessings of a Saviour's purchase? Then this, our day, is our day of salvation: a day more valuable than worlds. God forbid that we should neglect or despise this day—this precious day—which may soon pass away, never to return!

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS and eternal Jehovah, the Father of all our mercies, and the fountain of all our comforts, we come before thee as a family at the close of another day, and we desire through Jesus Christ, at this time, to enjoy fellowship with thyself in the blessed ordinance of domestic worship. O that each of us could say from the heart, and from a holy experience of Divine things, Truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the day: for the supply of our temporal wants, for the continuance of our lives, and for the exercise of our reason. If we have enjoyed assistance in our religious duties, if we have been preserved from the sinful influence of the world, and if our meditations have ascended above the perishing objects of time, and have been raised to the animating realities and joys of heaven, we praise that Divine grace which has been so mercifully extended to objects so unworthy. We desire, O Lord, with the loving confidence of children, to commit ourselves to the fatherly and gracious care of our God and Saviour this night. O prepare us for that heavenly state where the shades of night never obscure the celestial sky, and where the redeemed are invigorated with such Divine strength as never to require the reviving influence of sleep, rest, or repose. What we now supplicate for ourselves, we also seek for our beloved relatives and friends. May they and we live a life of grace on earth, and through eternity a life of glory in heaven. On earth we have fellowship with each other in our infirmities, weaknesses, temptations, and sorrows; in heaven may we have fellowship with each other in the enjoyment of unspotted holiness, unclouded intelligence, perfect blessedness, and eternal joy.

Lord, give our children a love to the heavenly world. O teach their young minds often to think of the miseries of hell, that they may be induced to flee to Jesus from the wrath to come; and may they often meditate on the joys of heaven, that they may seek a title to immortal glory.

The word we have now read reminds us of the high and honourable office of thy ministers. Never may they forget that they are fellow-workers with Christ; and may their hearts feel the most vehement desire that the people of their care may not receive the Gospel of thy grace in vain. May we receive both thy Gospel and thy grace.

O preserve us from the pollutions of the world, which are ever before our eyes as temptations to draw us from thyself. Lord, make us temples of the living God. In our heart may God be loved, worshipped, and adored. Fulfil in our experience that most blessed promise, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. O be to us a Father; and may we be thy sons and daughters. Give us fortitude and strength to separate ourselves from the unclean thing; then we shall be received of thee.

Graciously hear our feeble prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE ACCEPTED TIME.

1 COME, guilty souls, and flee away
To Christ, and heal your wounds;
This is the welcome gospel-day,

To drink the cup of wrath:
And Jesus says he'll cast out none,
That come to him by faith.

ANON.

ESTHER V.

Esther accepted by the King.

NOW it came to pass on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the king's house, over against the king's house: and the king sat upon his royal throne in the royal house, over against the gate of the house.

2 And it was so, when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court, that she obtained favour in his sight: and the king held out to Esther the golden sceptre that was in his hand. So Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre.

3 Then said the king unto her, What wilt thou, queen Esther? and what is thy request? it shall be even given thee to the half of the kingdom.

4 And Esther answered, If it seem good unto the king, let the king and Haman come this day unto the banquet that I have prepared for him.

5 Then the king said, Cause Haman to make haste, that he may do as Esther hath said. So the king and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared.

6 And the king said unto Esther at the banquet of wine, What is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request? even to the half of the kingdom it shall be performed.

7 Then answered Esther, and said, My petition and my request is;

8 If I have found favour in the sight of the king, and if it please the king to grant my petition, and to perform my request, let the king and Haman come to the banquet that I shall prepare for them, and I will do to morrow as the king hath said.

9 Then went Haman forth that day joyful and with a glad heart: but when Haman saw Mordecai in the king's gate, that he stood not up, nor moved for him, he was full of indignation against Mordecai.

10 Nevertheless Haman refrained himself: and when he came home, he sent and called for his friends, and Zeresh his wife.

11 And Haman told them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and all the things wherein the king had promoted him, and how he had advanced him above the princes and servants of the king.

12 Haman said moreover, Yea, Esther the queen did let no man come in with the king unto the banquet that she had prepared but myself; and to morrow am I invited unto her also with the king.

13 Yet all this availeth me nothing, so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the king's gate.

14 Then said Zeresh his wife and all his friends unto him, Let a gallows be made of fifty cubits high, and to morrow speak thou unto the king that Mordecai may be hanged thereon: then go thou in merrily with the king unto the banquet. And the thing pleased Haman, and he caused the gallows to be made.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER V.—How interesting and glorious it is to behold the Church, the Lamb's wife, clothed with the garments of salvation and arrayed in the robe of righteousness, presenting her adorations before the throne of grace, filled by her Divine Lord, looking down upon her with smiles of complacency and love! Esther, in appearing before her royal husband, was accepted. If we approach our God and Saviour with penitent and believing hearts, we shall be accepted in the beloved. God is ready to embrace us with the arms of his mercy, and to lay us in the bosom of his love. Esther's acceptance was the harbinger of Haman's overthrow; and the acceptance of our prayers is the forerunner of the confusion of all our spiritual enemies.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, thou art clothed with majesty; and we rejoice thou art also clothed with grace. Thou art clothed with strength, wherewith thou hast girded thyself. Thou hast established the world, so that it cannot be moved. While the thrones of earthly rulers have been overturned and destroyed one after another, thy throne has never suffered the slightest change; it is established of old: thou art from everlasting. We come before thy throne of grace, relying on the blessed merit of the righteousness of thy beloved Son and our Intercessor, whom thou hearest always.

We thank thee, O Lord, for watching over us during the silence and darkness of the past night, when we were unconscious of our very being, and when our situation was helpless, like that of children. May our awaking in the morning, under the light of the natural sun, remind us of the morning of the resurrection, when the sleeping bodies of the saints shall awake, and rise triumphantly from their graves amid the songs of angels, and under the bright beams of the Sun of righteousness—the Sun of uncreated glory. Give us, O Lord, the direction of thy wisdom this day. Instruct and teach us in the way in which we should go, and guide us with thine eye.

Lord, give to us and all our relatives the genuine gift and spirit of prayer. As Esther went into the presence of the king with humility and boldness, may we ever be enabled with unfeigned humility and holy boldness to approach the throne of God. As Esther approached the king under an affecting sense of the alarming and dangerous circumstances in which her nation was placed, may we draw near to God under a lively and humbling impression of the danger to which our immortal souls are exposed by Satan, the world, and the corruptions of our own heart. As Esther approached the king and obtained acceptance, O Lord, may we approach our God and Father in faith; then shall we obtain acceptance through our Saviour's blood—then shall we touch the golden sceptre of thy grace, and live for ever.

Heaven grant that our dear children may learn wisdom from the piety of Esther, and from the unhallowed ambition, pride, and wickedness of Haman. O may they imitate the piety of Esther; and may they be preserved from falling into vanity, pride, and malice, by which the ruin of ungodly Haman was accomplished. Let our servants hear the voice of mercy, and live for ever.

We would earnestly pray for poor, careless, graceless, prayerless sinners; and particularly for such as may be found among our relatives and friends. Deliver them from the grievous and alarming infatuation of sporting on the brink of everlasting woe. Awake them out of their slumbers, lest the slumbers of impenitence should be followed by the affecting misery of the abodes of the lost. O Saviour, to-day may they hear thy voice.

Lord, hear our imperfect supplications, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

2 CORINTHIANS VIII.

Liberality to poor Saints.

MOREOVER, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia;

2 How that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 For to their power, I bear record, yea, and beyond their power they were willing of themselves;

4 Praying us with much intreaty that we would receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints.

5 And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God.

6 Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also.

7 Therefore, as ye abound in every thing, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

10 And herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be forward a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have.

12 For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened:

14 But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want: that there may be equality:

15 As it is written, He that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little had no lack.

16 But thanks be to God, which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you.

17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation; but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches;

19 And not that only, but who was also chosen of the churches to travel with us with this grace, which is administered by us to the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind:

20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance which is administered by us:

21 Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which I have in you.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. VIII.—It is peculiarly comely and worthy of that grace which Jesus has conferred upon his people, when members of his Church show compassion to saints who are tried by indigence, and when they unite together to relieve their necessities and to promote their comfort. Is this mercy ours? And do we delight in the performance of acts of mercy? Then, we breathe Christ's Spirit, and show that we are members of his mystical body. What a blessed state is conversion! it is connected by an act the most honourable and blessed. In the very moment when the converting change is accomplished, the believer gives himself to God. If we are new creatures, we have received Christ as ours. O invaluable treasure! We have surrendered ourselves to Christ as his. O invaluable privilege! Where there is true grace, all acts of obedience to the Lord Christ flow from love, the only source of acceptable services.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Jesus, our God and Saviour, we adore thee in thy boundless grace. All displays of generosity and compassion on the part of the best and most merciful of human beings sink into the greatest insignificance when compared with thy condescending kindness to our wretched and impoverished world. Though possessed of all the fulness of the Godhead bodily, though the fountain of all that blessedness which is enjoyed by the angels of heaven, though having at thy command and under thy control all the treasures of the universe, thou didst become poor, that we through thy poverty might become rich. Lord Jesus, have mercy on thy poor saints. When they are ready to be cast down by the fear of want, may they remember thy poverty. If they are tried by scarcity, may they remember that Jesus was often an hungered. In their mean habitations, may they remember that Jesus had not where to lay his head. Glory to thy name, exalted Saviour, that from thy poverty flows the spiritual and eternal wealth of thy people.

We pray, O Lord, for sanctified afflictions. May our afflictions produce on us, by means of thy Spirit, an effect resembling that which afflictions produced on the minds of the Macedonian believers. As their trial of affliction made them abound in liberality to saints more afflicted and impoverished than themselves, may all our afflictions be instrumental in the increase of love to thy people, and of compassion and pity toward the suffering and impoverished members of thy family. Lord, give us bowels of compassion to all who are afflicted, and particularly to thy afflicted people. May we remember with joyful gratitude that our Saviour considers as done to himself those acts of benevolence and mercy which are shown to the poor and afflicted members of his Church.

Deliver us, O Lord, from hardness of heart. Convince us that if we see the afflictions and necessities of thy people, and shut up our bowels of compassion from them, it is a melancholy evidence that the love of God has no place within us.

Lord, teach our children to love one another with pure hearts fervently, and to love all thy people. May our children love each other all their days; and if any of them should receive more wealth than the rest, may they abound in love, and kindness, and mercy.

Lord, bless us as a family in all our temporal concerns. Teach us to provide for things honest, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men. And may we abound in faith, and utterance, and in all diligence, and may we prove the sincerity of our love to all the saints.

Accept of our thanks for daily bread, daily raiment, and daily protection. Be our God and our defence this night. Mercifully forgive our sins and hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

ESTHER VI.

Mordecai honoured and Haman disappointed.

ON that night could not the king sleep, and he commanded to bring the book of records of the chronicles; and they were read before the king.

2 And it was found written, that Mordecai had told of Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king's chamberlains, the keepers of the door, who sought to lay hand on the king Ahasuerus.

3 And the king said, What honour and dignity hath been done to Mordecai for this? Then said the king's servants that ministered unto him, There is nothing done for him.

4 And the king said, Who is in the court? Now Haman was come into the outward court of the king's house, to speak unto the king to hang Mordecai on the gallows that he had prepared for him.

5 And the king's servants said unto him, Behold, Haman standeth in the court. And the king said, Let him come in.

6 So Haman came in. And the king said unto him, What shall be done unto the man whom the king delighteth to honour? Now Haman thought in his heart, To whom would the king delight to do honour more than to myself?

7 And Haman answered the king, For the man whom the king delighteth to honour,

8 Let the royal apparel be brought which the king useth to wear, and the horse that the king rideth upon, and the crown royal which is set upon his head:

9 And let this apparel and horse be delivered to the hand of one of the king's most noble princes, that they may array the man withal whom the king delighteth to honour, and bring him on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaim before him, Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delighteth to honour.

10 Then the king said to Haman, Make haste, and take the apparel and the horse, as thou hast said, and do even so to Mordecai the Jew, that sitteth at the king's gate: let nothing fail of all that thou hast spoken.

11 Then took Haman the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai, and brought him on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaimed before him, Thus shall it be done unto the man whom the king delighteth to honour.

12 And Mordecai came again to the king's gate. But Haman hastened to his house mourning, and having his head covered.

13 And Haman told Zeresh his wife and all his friends every thing that had befallen him. Then said his wise men and Zeresh his wife unto him, If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou shalt not prevail against him, but shalt surely fall before him.

14 And while they were yet talking with him, came the king's chamberlains, and hastened to bring Haman unto the banquet that Esther had prepared.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER VI.—The influence of God upon the minds of kings—particularly in connection with the interests of Zion—is most mysterious and irresistible. How delightful it is to observe the preliminary arrangements of Zion's King, in preparing the way for the deliverance of his Church from one of the greatest calamities with which she had ever been threatened and alarmed! We see the malicious enemy of the Church of God glorying and rejoicing in the false and presumptuous assurance, that his cruel and infernal scheme should succeed, and that for the Church's ruin. On the other hand, we see and admire the wise plans laid by Zion's Saviour, for overturning the scheme of the Church's enemy, and for bringing destruction and inevitable ruin upon his guilty head. How astonishing the exaltation of Mordecai! and how confounding to his mortal adversary to be compelled to proclaim the glory and renown of him, whom he expected to see brought out on the following day to die an ignominious death, by the hand of the common executioner! Great, infinitely great, were the sufferings and humiliations of Christ; but infinitely great and glorious his exaltation to his heavenly throne. And what shall be the confusion of his enemies, when, at the last day, they shall appear before his judgment-seat to receive their final doom!

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, thou art the God of providence and of grace. Floods of wicked men have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice: the floods have lifted up their waves. This thy people have seen from the time of the cruel malevolence of Haman to the present day. We praise thee that they have enjoyed the most illustrious demonstration of this animating and encouraging truth, The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

We thank thee, gracious Father, for the mercies of another night, and for the opportunity we now enjoy of calling on thy name. O incline our hearts to worship and adore thee. Ever may our outward observances of religion be accompanied with unfeigned piety. O Lord, we would not remain satisfied with a name to live, and yet continue in the state of spiritual death. Give us this day the benefit of thy counsel, that our thoughts, words, and actions may be regulated agreeably to thy holy will.

Preserve us from every snare and temptation. In all our lawful worldly pursuits may we be preserved from worldly-mindedness; and may our worldly engagements not be suffered to deaden our spiritual feelings. Every day may the merciful admonition of our Lord be alive in our remembrance: Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness.

We pray for the sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit to attend the word we have now read. May we learn many useful lessons from this portion of the inspired volume. We rejoice in the especial care thou dost exercise toward thy people, so wonderfully exemplified in the history of Mordecai. Mercifully make all of us thy children; then shall we be the objects of thy special care.

Convince our dear children of the immense benefit of being the children of God; and may they give themselves no rest till they find that they are indeed the children of God and the heirs of heaven.

Blessed Jesus, we desire to rejoice in the great glory and honour which, as Mediator, thou hast received from thy Father, as the well-merited reward of thy sufferings and death. O may it be our blessedness, and that of all our servants, to witness thy glory upon the golden streets of the new Jerusalem, that we may join the ransomed millions in their joyful anthems, and thus sing, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sits upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever.

Through Christ may all of us be delivered from the degradation of sin, and be raised to the enjoyment of all those honours which accompany salvation. Lord, accept our persons and hear our prayers, for the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

2 CORINTHIANS X.

Spiritual Warfare.

NOW I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in presence am base among you, but being absent am bold toward you:

2 But I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence, wherewith I think to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh:

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds;)

5 Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ.

2 CORINTHIANS XI.

Paul's Sufferings.

I SPEAK as concerning reproach, as though we had been weak. Howbeit whereinsoever any is bold, (I speak foolishly,) I am bold also.

22 Are they Hebrews? so am I. Are they Israelites? so am I. Are they the seed of Abraham? so am I.

23 Are they ministers of Christ? (I speak as a fool) I am more; in labours more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, in deaths oft.

24 Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one.

25 Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep;

26 In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren;

27 In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.

28 Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not?

30 If I must needs glory, I will glory of the things which concern mine infirmities.

31 The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is blessed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In Damascus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damascenes with a garrison, desirous to apprehend me:

33 And through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall, and escaped his hands.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. X., XI.—How astonishing and delightful the change which grace produces on the heart, the dispositions, and the character of man! Witness the Apostle of the Gentiles: in a state of nature, he was like a furious and blood-thirsty wolf; in a state of grace, he was meek and gentle as a little child. May it be our blessed privilege to be the subjects of this spiritual, this amazing change! Grace meets with much opposition in the carnal heart of man; but the spiritual weapons of the Divine law, and of the holy Gospel, wielded by almighty power, soon subdue the rebellious heart, and fill the soul with joy and peace and love. Paul, and his associates, had the honours, and enjoyments, and successes, and the gracious rewards of apostleship. But they had also the reproach, and poverty, and toil, and suffering, and martyrdom, with which their great office was accompanied.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee as the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Thou art blessed for evermore. In thyself thou art infinitely and essentially blessed, and from eternity thou didst exist in the enjoyment of thy glorious excellences. The creation of the universe, though it furnishes a most magnificent display of thy glory, yet can add nothing to thine essential blessedness. We adore thee as the fountain—the overflowing fountain of all the blessedness enjoyed by angels and men. Through Christ, may each one now kneeling prostrate before thee be admitted to drink of the streams of grace which flow from thee as the God of salvation; and through eternity may we drink of that river of life, pure as crystal, which flows from the throne of God and the Lamb.

Mercifully forgive the infirmities and blemishes and offences of the past day. Forgive our worldly-mindedness, carnality, and carelessness. O manifest to us our interest in a Saviour's blood: then shall we have the pleasing evidence that our sins are pardoned; then shall we enjoy that peace which passeth all understanding, and which the men of the world know nothing of.

Extend toward us, and all our beloved relatives and friends, thy providential protection and care this night. Give us faith to lie down upon our beds in the believing conviction that thou art our God, and that we are thy people.

Give us grace to engage in that warfare of which we have now read. While we walk in the flesh, may we not live under the dominion of the flesh. Teach us to war against the sinful appetites of the flesh, and the corrupted passions of the mind. We thank thee, blessed Saviour, for spiritual weapons to enable us to engage successfully in our spiritual warfare. Teach us to look upon the graces of the Spirit as those blessed weapons which are mighty through God, to the pulling down the strongholds of sin, and to the casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God.

Lord, make our dear children the good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Never, never allow them to be subdued and carried away captive by vile lusts and corrupted passions. O give them and our servants the loveliness and the dignity of true grace.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, what we have now read of the labours and the sufferings of Paul. We thank God for the great success which attended his labours, and for the blessing with which his extraordinary sufferings were crowned. From the zealous labours of thy servant may we learn to be the active servants of our Saviour; and from the sufferings of thy distinguished apostles may we learn to endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ, if we should ever be called to suffer for his sake. O Lord, make us ashamed of our past indifference about Divine things and the prosperity of Christ's kingdom, and may the future part of our lives be distinguished by zeal for the glory of God. Graciously hear and answer our imperfect prayers, for Christ our Mediator's sake. Amen.

WATTS, Ps. 7.

ESTHER VII.

Human hangod.

SO the king and Haman came to banquet with Esther the queen.

2 And the king said again unto Esther on the second day at the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, queen Esther? and it shall be granted thee: and what is thy request? and it shall be performed, even to the half of the kingdom.

3 Then Esther the queen answered and said, If I have found favour in thy sight, O king, and if it please the king, let my life be given me at my petition, and my people at my request.

4 For we are sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slain, and to perish. But if we had been sold for bondmen and bondwomen, I had held my tongue, although the enemy could not countervail the king's damage.

5 Then the king Ahasuerus answered and said unto Esther the queen, Who is he, and where is he, that durst presume in his heart to do so?

6 And Esther said, The adversary and enemy is this wicked Haman. Then Haman was afraid before the king and the queen.

7 And the king arising from the banquet of wine in his wrath, went into the palace garden: and Haman stood up to make request for his life to Esther the queen? for he saw that there was evil determined against him by the king.

8 Then the king returned out of the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine; and Haman was fallen upon the bed whereon Esther was. Then said the king, Will he force the queen also before me in the house? As the word went out of the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face.

9 And Harbonah, one of the chamberlains, said before the king, Behold also, the gallows fifty cubits high, which Haman had made for Mordecai, who had spoken good for the king, standeth in the house of Haman. Then the king said, Hang him thereon.

10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. Then was the king's wrath pacified.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER VII.—We now see Haman in the presence of the king and queen, animated with murderous hopes which were never realized, and visited with a disgraceful doom which he never anticipated. The deliverance of the Church of God, whose destruction Haman plotted, is now at hand; there was an intercessor near, whose pleadings God mercifully made successful in reaching the heart of her exalted and mighty Lord. The intended murderer was present to hear those eloquent and melting pleadings, which should issue in the extinction of all his hopes, the termination of his wicked blood-stained life, and in the glorious deliverance of the people of God from one of the most dreadful and heart-appalling schemes that ever originated in the malicious enmity of the imagination of man. Esther was encouraged, by the affectionate and munificent offers of her royal husband, to present before him the most enlarged petitions. Infinitely more munificent and liberal are those gracious Gospel offers and promises, by which we are encouraged to approach the throne of grace, and seek those spiritual blessings which our souls need. Such is the love of him who fills the mercy-seat, that he is ever willing to bestow upon us "exceeding abundant, more than we can ask, or think." Esther was a royal intercessor: Jesus, the King of kings and Lord of lords, is our Intercessor, before the throne above. Esther pleaded with her husband: Jesus pleads with his Father, and our Father. Esther pleaded for the life of her people: Jesus pleads for his people, his brethren, whose nature he wears; Jesus pleads for their life, that they may be delivered from eternal death, and inherit eternal life. Esther interceded successfully: Jesus obtains all he asks before his Father's throne.

PRAYER.

O LORD most high, in the name of our great High-Priest, Jesus Christ, we appear before thy throne of grace; and we desire to express the animating hope, that, through his blessed merit and intercession, we shall appear before thy glorious throne in heaven. We cannot expect always to live, or even to live long, in our family capacity. We know that events of thy providence may separate us before we die; and we are convinced of the solemn truth that death will come and remove us, one after another, from the present scene of things to the world of spirits. May all of us be solemnly affected with this thought. Our petition and our request is, O Lord, that we may all meet in heaven, after we have passed through the sufferings and trials of the present life. O may all of us sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of our God. May all of us form a part of the illustrious company who shall sing joyfully, in the presence of angelic myriads, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

We thankfully acknowledge the goodness and mercy of our Lord, in preserving our lives and health during another night, and that an opportunity is afforded us, in the enjoyment of many comforts, to draw near the throne of grace, and engage in the profitable and blessed exercise of domestic worship. Holy Spirit, we lift up our longing eyes to thee; to give us grateful hearts. O teach us to appreciate God's mercies, and never to forbear daily to express the thankfulness of our souls. Preserve us this day from the depravity of our own hearts, from the temptations of the wicked one, and from the snares of the world. Give us grace to be diligent in our temporal calling, and to be sincere in all our religious observances.

We praise thee that thou art saying to us what the king said to Esther: What is thy petition? and it shall be granted; and what is thy request? and it shall be performed. Glory to thy name, that this is the case; that there is a mercy-seat, that there is a golden sceptre of love; and that Jesus is the way of access to God, by whom the vilest and most unworthy who are influenced by penitent hearts may obtain an answer to their earnest prayers.

Our petition and request is, O Lord, that our dear children may be instructed to present humble, earnest, believing, and constant prayers before the throne of grace.

Our petition and our request is, that our servants and all of us may be arrayed in the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness; and that those of our relatives who are living in sin and far from God may be plucked as brands out of the burning, may be introduced into the family of Christ, and may be advanced to the distinguished honour of being heirs of heaven.

May the most miserable death of the impious Haman deeply impress our minds with the necessity of an interest in Christ, without whom we can never obtain deliverance from hell and receive a title to heaven.

Lord, hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb of God and Saviour of men. Amen.

MY GRACE IS SUFFICIENT.

NEEDHAM.

2 CORINTHIANS XII.

Paul caught up to the third Heaven.

IT is not expedient for me doubtless to glory. I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I knew a man in Christ about fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth;) such an one caught up to the third heaven.

3 And I knew such a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth;)

4 How that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

5 Of such an one will I glory: yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities.

7 And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure.

8 For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.

10 Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong.

11 I am become a fool in glorying; ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing am I behind the very chiefest apostles, though I be nothing.

12 Truly the signs of an apostle were wrought among you in all patience, in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds.

13 For what is it wherein you were inferior to other churches, except it be that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdensome to you: for I seek not your's, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

15 And I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved.

16 But be it so, I did not burden you: nevertheless, being crafty, I caught you with guile.

17 Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the same spirit? walked we not in the same steps?

19 Again, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speak before God in Christ: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 Cor. XII.—The greater God displays his grace to his people, the objects of his redeeming love, the greater is their display of self-abasement and humility. Paul, in consequence of his union to Christ, had a wonderful sight of the glories of heaven. If we are united to Jesus, we shall obtain a glorious entrance into the New Jerusalem, and at the last day our souls and bodies, united never more to be separated, shall enter into the heaven of heavens, with the countless myriads of glorified saints, to be ever with the Lord. We can form no conception of the pure delight enjoyed in heaven while listening to the conversation and melodious songs of the blessed inhabitants, who are all perfect in knowledge, wisdom, purity, and love. In our present state of imperfection, great manifestations of Divine love are sometimes made, by the corruptions of the heart, occasions of sinful pride. What need, therefore, have the most eminent saints of watchfulness, prayer, holy jealousy, and deep searchings of heart! God employs sanctified afflictions, as blessed and effectual means of suppressing the pride and promoting the humility of his people.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Lord God, we draw near to thy gracious presence in the name of Christ, whose name is above every name. What are we, that we should be permitted to fall down before thy mercy-seat, and address thee as our Father who art in heaven? Each one of us has reason to say, in the language of Asaph, So foolish am I, and ignorant, I am as a beast before thee. Holy Spirit, give us faith, by which we shall claim an interest in the Lord, and exclaim, with lively and humble confidence, Whom have we in heaven but thee, and there is none upon earth whom we desire beside thee. When our flesh and our heart faileth, O be thou the strength of our heart, and our portion, for ever.

We thank our God for the continued and uninterrupted kindness we have received during the past week. While many have been removed to eternity since the commencement of the week, we have been mercifully preserved; for this great mercy we praise the Lord. Grant us this night the blessings of sleep, rest, and protection. Let not the hopes of seeing the light of thy Sabbath, and of entering thy courts, be disappointed. How amiable are thy tabernacles, Lord God of hosts! When we think of thy courts, we would say, Return to thy rest, O my soul, for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee. Shine upon the understanding of our minister, and of all thine ambassadors, and touch their lips with a live coal from thine altar.

May the blessing of God crown our domestic worship, and may the Holy Spirit bless for our instruction and consolation the Word of life we have now read. We thank God for that blessed and miraculous sight of heaven which Paul was admitted to enjoy. Lord, give us a believing sight of heaven. By faith may we see the King in his beauty, and the land which is afar off.

O make our children heavenly-minded. We see with grief that they have received from us an inheritance of corruption, binding them to the earth; O may they and our domestics receive from Jesus an inheritance of grace, by which their affections shall rise to heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the afflictions of thy people, and in all the afflictions by which we are tried. Give us grace to endure the pain inflicted by the thorn in the flesh. May it lead us, like Paul, to approach the throne of grace, and in earnest prayer to seek the blessing. Comfort us with a believing application of that promise which comforted the mind of the Apostle in his sufferings, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Give to thy ministering servants that love to souls, and that earnest anxiety for their salvation, which warmed Paul's heart. Teach them gladly to spend and be spent, that saints may be edified and sinners saved. Lord, hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our light and our salvation. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

SAFETY IN GOD.

- 1 HE that hath made his refuge God,
Shall find a most secure abode;
Shall walk all day beneath his shade,
And there at night shall rest his head.
- 2 Then will I say, My God, thy power
Shall be my fortress and my tower;
I, that am formed of feeble dust,
Make thine almighty arm my trust.
- 3 Thrice happy man! thy Maker's care
Shall keep thee from the fowler's snare—
Satan, the fowler, who betrays
Unguarded souls a thousand ways.
- 4 Just as a lion protects her brood,
From birds of prey that seek their blood,
Under her feathers, so the Lord
Makes his own arm his people's guard.

Watts, Ps. 91, p. 1.

PSALM XCI.

God the Refuge of his People.

HE that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

2 I will say of the LORD, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.

3 Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

4 He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

5 Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day;

6 Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

7 A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee.

8 Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked.

9 Because thou hast made the LORD which is my refuge, even the most high, thy habitation;

10 There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

11 For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.

12 They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.

13 Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.

14 Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will set him on high, because he hath known my name.

15 He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him.

16 With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XCI.—Kings may boast of their castles, palaces, and towers, which in one moment the earthquake may level with the dust. The believer can boast in loudest strains of thanksgiving and praise of Jesus, as his defence, his munition of rocks, his impregnable fortress, against which the gates of hell can never prevail. From this lofty tower he can look down with scorn on all his enemies, and utter the bold and the blessed challenge: "Who shall separate me from the love of Christ?" Can we use the bold and appropriating language of faith, and say: "Christ is ours; his omnipotence is our defence, his wisdom is our guide, his faithfulness is our shield?" Is this the case? Then we shall be safe from Satan's subtlety and from Satan's malice. Sin is a pestilence which consumes by its filth and destroys by its guilt. If we have fled to Jesus as our refuge, we shall be safe from this pestilence, by which myriads have been destroyed. We shall be delivered from sin's guilt by his righteousness, and from sin's filth by the influences of his Spirit.

PRAYER.

WE desire, most merciful and gracious Jehovah, our God and Father in Christ, to approach thy throne of grace on the morning of the first day of the week, to express our homage, adoration, gratitude, and praise. Holy and reverend is thy name: O give us that reverence and godly fear which are so suited to thy worshippers. By the merit of our Lord and Saviour, may our services and persons be accepted.

O Lord, thou art the Most High. In thy government thou art most high above all rulers and kings; and in thy nature and essence thou art most high, being infinitely above those spotless cherubim who praise and adore before thy heavenly throne. We adore thee, O Lord, as our refuge, our fortress, and our God, in whom it is our privilege and duty to place all our confidence and trust.

What reason have we to mourn, O gracious God, that we have been so backward in placing our trust in thee; and that we have often preferred an arm of flesh before an arm of almighty grace! Deliver us, we pray, from the sin of placing that confidence in the creature which should only be placed in God our Creator. God forbid that we should be left to fall into the sin of making a saviour of our own righteousness, to the neglect of the righteousness of Christ our Saviour.

Give thy ministers grace to preach faithfully this day thy law, to awaken sinners who are dead and unconvinced; and faithfully to proclaim the doctrines and the promises of thy Gospel, for the comfort, nourishment, and edification of thy people. Give each one of us grace to embrace Jesus as our refuge from guilt and condemnation, and as our fortress of defence from Satan, death, and hell.

Convince our dear children that the devil is a fowler who has already spread snares for their feet. Give them and our servants the Holy Spirit, that they may watch and pray; then the wings of thy love will protect them from all their enemies.

This day may the righteousness of Christ cover many souls, now defenceless, as with glorious and Divine wings. Such as are travelling headlong the downward road to perdition, may their souls be awakened to see the true danger of their case, and, before the sun shall have performed his daily course, may they have fled for refuge to Jesus, the only help and the only hope set before them. We bless thee, O Lord, that we ever heard of the wings of mercy. May we, our servants, and all the families with which we are connected, and the congregation with which we are associated in holy fellowship and religious ordinances, enjoy the comfort and protection of the wings of thy mercy.

Preserve us from all our enemies, temporal and spiritual. Though they resemble lions and dragons, may we trample them under our feet.

We pray for our legislators and our rulers; make them men of prayer and men of God.

Comfort afflicted souls in their retirement, satisfy them with long life, and show them thy salvation. Hear, answer and forgive, for Jesus, our divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

- 1 SWEET is the work, my God, my King,
To praise thy name, give thanks and sing,
To show thy love by morning light,
And talk of all thy truth at night.
- 2 My heart shall triumph in my Lord,
And bless his works, and bless his word;
Thy works of grace, how bright they shine!
How deep thy counsels—how divine!
- 3 Fools never raise their thoughts so high;
Like brutes they live, like brutes they die;
Like grass they flourish, till thy breath
Blast them in everlasting death.
- 4 But I shall share a glorious part
When grace hath well refined my heart,
And fresh supplies of joy are shed,
Like holy oil, to cheer my head.
- 5 Then shall I see, and hear, and know,
All I desired or wished below;
And every power find sweet employ
In that eternal world of joy.

PSALM XCII.

A Psalm for the Sabbath-Day.

IT is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most high:

2 To shew forth thy loving-kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night,

3 Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon the psaltery; upon the harp with a solemn sound.

4 For thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy work: I will triumph in the works of thy hands.

5 O Lord, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep.

6 A brutish man knoweth not; neither doth a fool understand this.

7 When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever:

8 But thou, Lord, art most high for evermore.

9 For, lo, thine enemies, O Lord, for, lo, thine enemies shall perish; all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered.

10 But my horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an unicorn: I shall be anointed with fresh oil.

11 Mine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me.

12 The righteous shall flourish like the palm-tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

13 Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God.

14 They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing;

15 To shew that the Lord is upright: he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XCII.—God's mercies are innumerable, like the hairs of our head; and are continued every moment of our existence, without interruption. How reasonable and how just it is to cultivate thankful dispositions, and to pour from our lips expressions of thanksgiving and praise! The works of creation, and the works of Providence, call forth our wonder and our praise; but it is the work of redemption which fills the hearts of the children of God especially with joy unspeakable and glorious. Not to observe and admire the works of God—not to see and admire God in his works, is a mark of confirmed folly. But to see and admire and adore God in his glorious perfections, as manifested in his works—and especially in the work of redemption—is a mark of that true wisdom which cometh from above. What a lovely sight is an aged saint, filled with grace, and prepared for glory! Truly, hoary hairs, accompanied with piety, are a crown of greater glory than was ever placed on the head of kings.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, in the name of Christ, in the exercise of thankfulness and joy, to draw near thy mercy-seat. What abundant reason have we to express our gratitude and praise for the innumerable blessings of thy providence and grace which we have received and enjoyed as a family and as individuals! Teach us, we pray, the blessed lesson of thanksgiving. Surely it is good to give thanks unto thee the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High. It is good to show forth thy loving-kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night. We adore thee, O Lord, in thy works of creation, providence, and grace. O Lord, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep. How vast and impenetrable are thy purposes and plans! O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are thy judgments, and thy ways past finding out! We adore thee in all thy moral perfections manifested in the government of the world and in the government of the Church. Thou art upright, thou art the rock of thy people's confidence, and there is no unrighteousness in thee.

We acknowledge and confess the brutish depravity of our fallen race; and we desire with humble penitence to confess our own ignorance, folly, carnality, and unbelief. We have reason to lament that the works of creation and providence, and more especially that the works of redemption, engage so small a portion of the thoughts of the children of men.

At an early period may the thoughts of our dear children be directed to the concerns of the soul and to the wonders of redeeming grace; and may they show early symptoms of being regenerated by the power of the divine Spirit.

Have mercy on our aged friends. In the evening of their days, when natural vigour is beginning to decay, may they discover the actings of vigorous, grace. Grant, O Lord, that they may flourish like the palm-tree, bringing forth fruit in old age, and grow like the cedar in Lebanon. As the cedar strikes its roots deep into the ground, may we be rooted and grounded in Christ. As the cedar of Lebanon was remarkable for its height, may we grow upwardly in heavenly-mindedness. O give us that lively faith and hope by which we shall rise in our affections and wishes above sublunary things; yea, by which we shall mount up with wings as eagles, run and not be weary, walk and not faint.

O bless the preaching of the Gospel this day. We rejoice it has been preached, and that it shall not return unto thee void. We rejoice it has been preached: O that it were universally proclaimed throughout the earth! Soon may millions far from God be brought within the influence of a preached Gospel: O may they be planted in the house of the Lord, and flourish in the courts of God!

We present the humble tribute of our praise for the mercies of the day. Be our God and our refuge this night. Mercifully hear our prayers and accept our persons, for the sake of our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

BLESSEDNESS OF THE SAINTS.

ON the mountain's top appearing,
Lo the sacred herald stands;
Welcome news to Zion bearing,
Zion long in hostile lands:
Mourning captive!
God himself will loose thy hands.

2 Has thy night been long and mournful?
All thy friends unfaithful proved?
Have thy foes been proud and scornful,
By thy sighs and tears unmoved?
Cease thy mourning!
Zion still is well beloved. KELLY.

ESTHER VIII.

Mordecai's great Honour.

ON that day did the king Ahasuerus give the house of Haman the Jews' enemy unto Esther the queen. And Mordecai came before the king: for Esther had told what he was unto her.

2 And the king took off his ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai. And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

3 And Esther spake yet again before the king, and fell down at his feet, and besought him with tears to put away the mischief of Haman the Agagite, and his device that he had devised against the Jews.

4 Then the king held out the golden sceptre toward Esther. So Esther arose, and stood before the king,

5 And said, If it please the king, and if I have found favour in his sight, and the thing seem right before the king, and I be pleasing in his eyes, let it be written to reverse the letters devised by Haman the son of Hammedatha the Agagite, which he wrote to destroy the Jews which are in all the king's provinces:

6 For how can I endure to see the evil that shall come unto my people? or how can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred?

7 Then the king Ahasuerus said unto Esther the queen and to Mordecai the Jew, Behold, I have given Esther the house of Haman, and him they have hanged upon the gallows, because he laid his hand upon the Jews.

8 Write ye also for the Jews, as it liketh you, in the king's name, and seal it with the king's ring: for the writing which is written in the king's name, and sealed with the king's ring, may no man reverse.

10 And he wrote in the king Ahasuerus' name, and sealed it with the king's ring, and sent letters by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, camels, and young dromedarics:

11 Whercin the king granted the Jews which were in every city to gather themselves together, and to stand for their life, to destroy, to slay, and to cause to perish, all the power of the people and province that would assault them, both little ones and women, and to take the spoil of them for a prey,

12 Upon one day in all the provinces of king Ahasuerus, namely, upon the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar.

13 The copy of the writing for a commandment to be given in every province was published unto all people, and that the Jews should be ready against that day to avenge themselves on their enemies.

14 So the posts that rode upon mules and camels went out, being hastened and pressed on by the king's commandment. And the decree was given at Shushan the palace.

15 And Mordecai went out from the presence of the king in royal apparel of blue and white, and with a great crown of gold, and with a garment of fine linen and purple: and the city of Shushan rejoiced and was glad.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER VIII.—Jesus has secured for his ransomed ones a complete and glorious victory over all their enemies. And even as to temporal prosperity, the history of God's special providence furnishes many instances, as in the case of Mordecai, of the meek inheriting the earth; and also of "the wealth of the sinner being laid up for the just." The king conferred great honour on the holy Mordecai in putting the royal ring upon his finger. Jesus has greater honour in reserve for all his people when they reach their heavenly home. He will give them a white stone, and in the stone a new name engraven, never to be erased, and which no man knoweth, saving he who receiveth it. The king raised Mordecai to the power and authority of a prince, and made him next unto himself upon his throne. Hear the song of the redeemed in heaven, expressive of the honour, power, and authority to which they are exalted: "Unto Him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen."

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, to whom we look in Jesus' name, thou art the God of inviolable truth, and all the promises on which thou hast caused thy children to rest shall most assuredly be fulfilled. The heavens may pass away, and the mountains may be cast into the midst of the sea, but not one word thou hast spoken shall ever fail of its accomplishment. Thou art sovereign, just, and wise, in all the dark clouds of thy providence which have for a time overspread thy Church and people. Thou hast always made the afflictions of thy people a furnace, to purge away their dross, and take away their tin. For this we praise thy name. O that our applications may be instrumental in producing on us similar effects! We thank God for thy very remarkable interposition in behalf of thy Church, when overwhelmed with grief, and sunk down in the deepest sorrow, by the infernal plots of Haman. O how wonderfully thou didst turn headlong his crafty designs!

Deliver us, O Lord, from a sinful love of worldly wealth, greatness, and power. May the sudden fall and the complete destruction of Haman convince us of the vanity of all earthly greatness, and of the necessity of an interest in Christ and his righteousness, for the present felicity and the eternal safety of the soul. Impress us deeply with the thought, how awfully affecting it is to fall from the lofty pinnacle of temporal wealth, splendour, and power, into the depths of hell.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy justice and mercy, when wicked men are driven from their situations of greatness and influence, and thus deprived of that power which they employed in the days of their unhallowed greatness for inflicting cruelty on thy people, and opposing the prosperity of the kingdom of Christ. We adore thee in thy goodness and grace, when good men are raised to greatness and power, as Mordecai was raised at the palace of Shushan, to be a guardian to thy people, and to watch over the interests of thy Church.

Teach our dear children the blessed lessons of earnest, persevering, and believing prayer. As Esther touched the golden sceptre, and supplicated the king, may our dear children and domestics daily approach thy throne in prayer, and touch the golden sceptre of thy grace.

We adore thee, O God of Zion, in the awful calamities which have befallen the cruel and persecuting enemies of thy Church. Surely thine enemies have perished, they have been as the fat of lambs; they have consumed, into smoke have they consumed away. Have mercy on all our relatives and friends who are living in a state of enmity against God. Take away the enmity of their hearts, and fill them with the love of Christ.

Accept of our praises for the mercies of the night, and assist us in all the duties and lawful engagements of the day. Hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

2 CORINTHIANS XIII.

Important Counsels.

THIS is the third time I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.

2 I told you before, and foretell you, as if I were present, the second time; and being absent now I write to them which heretofore have sinned, and to all other, that, if I come again, I will not spare:

3 Since ye seek a proof of Christ speaking in me, which to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified through weakness, yet he liveth by the power of God. For we also are weak in him, but we shall live with him by the power of God toward you.

5 Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?

6 But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now I pray to God that ye do no evil; not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be as reprobates.

8 For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad, when we are weak, and ye are strong: and this also we wish, even your perfection.

10 Therefore I write these things being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to destruction.

11 Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

12 Greet one another with an holy kiss.

13 All the saints salute you.

14 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 COR. XIII.—Christ's ambassadors address sinners under his high sanction, in his name, in his place, and for his sake. The truth which they proclaim is substantiated by the highest testimony and the most satisfying evidence. When it is brought home with power to the heart—when it is instrumental in opening the eyes of the understanding, in purifying the affections, in hurling sin down from his usurped dominion, and in kindling in the soul a flame of superlative love to the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, then there is the most powerful, convincing, and satisfying evidence that the Gospel is the truth of God, stamped with the seal of the immutable veracity of the great Jehovah. Glorious mystery! Christ was weak upon the cross, and his humanity became the victim of death! Yet upon the cross he displayed his power more wonderfully than when he called into existence unnumbered worlds of light. On that very cross he finished transgression, and made an end of sin: he sapped the foundations of Satan's empire and deprived Death of his sting. On that cross, and in the very moment of dissolution, when his humanity reached the very extreme of weakness, he satisfied offended justice, he paid the last farthing of the enormous debt contracted by Adam's fallen race, brought in an everlasting righteousness, and obtained salvation for countless millions of rebellious, fallen men. O what deeds of mercy! O what stupendous deeds of power! Often saints on earth utter the word "farewell!" But in heaven they meet together to part no more for ever. Glorious prospect! Blessed hope!

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art the King of saints. O enable us with humility and holy confidence to claim an interest in thee as the Lord our God. By thy Divine Spirit may we obtain a sight of thy glory, and may we be captivated with thy grace. O Lord, thou art the great and eternal Majesty, and thy kingdom is the vast and boundless universe. Thou art the most high God, blessed for ever and ever. Thou art God alone, possessed of infinite and immutable excellences, and enjoying undivided and eternal dominion.

What are we, that we should approach the throne of God? We, who are only sinful dust and ashes, have taken upon us to speak to God. We deserve for our sins eternal banishment from thy presence; and, were we immured in the prison of woe, we should only receive the demerit of our crimes. But, glory to thy name, thou art arrayed, not in the robes of vengeance, but in robes of mercy; thou art a God in Christ, reconciling a guilty world unto thyself. O enable us to lay aside the enmity of our hearts, and may we be reconciled unto God through Christ.

We acknowledge our unworthiness of the temporal mercies and the spiritual blessings we have received and enjoyed this day. May our daily guilt be forgiven, and our daily mercies followed by constant thankfulness and love. Graciously watch over us this night. We rejoice that the watchman of Israel never slumbers or sleeps. Give us, O God, an interest in thy watchful care this night, and may we lie down to rest under the agreeable conviction that we are the children of thy redeemed family, and the objects of thy special care.

May the Word we have now read prove the spiritual food of our souls. O bless to us the remembrance of the crucifixion of Christ. In his agonizing and shameful death may we see the greatness of the guilt of sin, that could only be expiated by such sufferings; and may we see in the death of Christ the infinite greatness of his love, that led him to endure such sufferings for the salvation of an abandoned and fallen world.

O that our children were taught by the Spirit daily to remember the sufferings, the death, and the love of Christ! May their youthful bosoms be warmed with love to that Jesus who died from love to them.

Lord, make all of us concerned to possess religion in our hearts, in all its genuine influence and power. Convince us of the great importance of the ordinance of self-examination. Lord, enable us impartially to examine ourselves whether we be in the faith; to prove our own selves, and to know our own selves, that Jesus Christ is in us, unless we be reprobates. Lord, give us the consolations of the Gospel, and the peace which passeth all understanding. As a family teach us to live in that holy unity which death itself cannot destroy. O may the God of love and of peace ever abide in the midst of us, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with us all. Amen.

- 1 BRIGHT with lustre not her own,

Clothed with that eternal Sun,
Which sets the worlds on fire!
Bright shall she for ever shine,
Enjoying, like the Church above,
All the light of truth divine,
And all the fire of love.
- 2 From her dark, inconstant state
To perfect love restored,
Stands the Church divinely great—
The army of the Lord;
Wide his bloody sign displays;
And lo, the hosts of Satan fall!
Terrible in holiness,
She more than conquers all.

ESTHER IX.

The Church's Triumphs over her Enemies.

NOW in the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar, on the thirteenth day of the same, when the king's commandment and his decree drew near to be put in execution, in the day that the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, (though it was turned to the contrary, that the Jews had rule over them that hated them;)

2 The Jews gathered themselves together in their cities throughout all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, to lay hand on such as sought their hurt: and no man could withstand them; for the fear of them fell upon all people.

3 And all the rulers of the provinces, and the lieutenants, and the deputies, and officers of the king, helped the Jews; because the fear of Mordecai fell upon them.

4 For Mordecai was great in the king's house, and his fame went out throughout all the provinces: for this man Mordecai waxed greater and greater.

5 Thus the Jews smote all their enemies with the stroke of the sword, and slaughter, and destruction, and did what they would unto those that hated them.

6 And in Shushan the palace the Jews slew and destroyed five hundred men.

10 The ten sons of Haman the son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews, slew they; but on the spoil laid they not their hand.

11 On that day the number of those that were slain in Shushan the palace was brought before the king.

12 And the king said unto Esther the queen, The Jews have slain and destroyed five hundred men in Shushan the palace, and the ten sons of Haman; what have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? now what is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: or what is thy request further? and it shall be done.

13 Then said Esther, If it please the king, let it be granted to the Jews which are in Shushan to do to-morrow also according unto this day's decree, and let Haman's ten sons be hanged upon the gallows.

14 And the king commanded it so to be done: and the decree was given at Shushan; and they hanged Haman's ten sons.

15 For the Jews that were in Shushan gathered themselves together on the fourteenth day also of the month Adar, and slew three hundred men at Shushan; but on the prey they laid not their hand.

16 But the other Jews that were in the king's provinces gathered themselves together, and stood for their lives, and had rest from their enemies, and slew of their foes seventy and five thousand, but they laid not their hands on the prey,

17 On the thirteenth day of the month Adar; and on the fourteenth day of the same rested they, and made it a day of feasting and gladness.

18 But the Jews that were at Shushan assembled together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth thereof; and on the fifteenth day of the same they rested, and made it a day of feasting and gladness.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER IX.—In the confusion which fell upon the enemies of the Church of God throughout the Persian empire, and in the sudden and marvellous deliverance achieved for God's Israel, when they appeared altogether and inevitably doomed to destruction, we see the immutability of God's purpose with respect to the safety and prosperity of his redeemed kingdom. There is something peculiarly lovely and animating, when we behold the practical unity and co-operation of the members of Christ's Church: it is then that fear, and even terror, fall upon the Church's enemies; it is then she appears "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as infinitely blessed in thyself, and infinitely glorious in all thy works. In the name of our divine Mediator we approach thee, rejoicing that, notwithstanding our fall in Adam, and the melancholy change which sin has accomplished in our souls, we are still welcome to draw near thy mercy-seat, and supplicate the blessings of thy salvation. Thou hast made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their shining hosts; thou hast made the seas, and the innumerable myriads of living creatures by which they are inhabited. By thy bounty they are all preserved; they are all fed at thy table; thou suppliest the wants of every living thing: none of thy creatures are unknown to thee; thou takest notice of the most insignificant and minute; yea, a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without thy knowledge.

We thank thee that we have not only been preserved, but that we have been refreshed with sleep during the past night, and that we are permitted, in the enjoyment of renewed vigour and health, and in the exercise of the inestimable faculty of reason, to encompass the family altar: O that in the exercise of lively and vigorous graces we were enabled to present our morning prayer! We pray, O Lord, that, as thou art distinguishing us day after day by thy preserving care, our lives may be more distinguished by active obedience, and by humble and unfeigned expressions of gratitude and praise. Alas, that we have hitherto made such poor returns for thine abundant and unmerited and unceasing kindness! May our future days manifest increasing gratitude and love, and may our whole lives demonstrate that we are thy faithful subjects and thy loving children.

We thank God for what we have now read of the great triumph which thy Church obtained over numerous and powerful enemies, who waited for the cruel overthrow of thy people.

Suffer not our dear children to join the ranks of the enemies of thy Church. Neither allow them to remain indifferent to the advancement of religious objects, or to the increase of the kingdom of Christ.

Have mercy on the rising race, and cause, by thy good Spirit, their youthful ardour to be devoted to the glory of God. Have mercy on the aged; and though their natural ardour is diminished, O may their zeal for the glory of God increase.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy sovereign disposal of earthly honour, greatness, and power; and we praise thee when thou conferrest these talents on men of wisdom and piety, for the honour of thy name, and for the defence of thy people.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our only Intercessor before thy heavenly throne. Amen

- 1 BRIGHT as the sun's meridian blaze,
Vast as the blessings he conveys,
Wide as his reign from pole to pole,
And permanent as his control:
- 2 So, Jesus, let thy kingdom come,
Then sin and hell's terrific gloom
Shall, at his brightness, flee away,
The dawn of an eternal day.
- 3 Then shall the heathen, filled with awe,
Learn the best knowledge of thy law,
And antichrist, on every shore,
Fall from his thrones to rise no more.

ANON.

GALATIANS I.

Paul's Commission and Doctrine.

PAUL, an apostle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead:)

2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be to you, and peace, from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father:

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

10 For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ.

11 But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man.

12 For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it:

14 And profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace,

16 To reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood:

17 Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, before God, I lie not.

21 Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia;

22 And was unknown by face unto the churches of Judea which were in Christ:

23 But they had heard only, That he which persecuted us in times past now preacheth the faith which once he destroyed.

24 And they glorified God in me.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. I.—How infinitely worthy is the Gospel of our acceptance, when we consider that this stream of purity and of truth flows from Christ the Divine fountain, full of grace and of truth! Did Jesus rise triumphantly from the grave? This stupendous and magnificent event demonstrated to the minds of men and of angels the authenticity of the Gospel which Christ proclaimed, and that it is the wisdom of God and the power of God to all who believe. How delightful it is to observe the frequency with which the Son is associated with the Father in the same Divine, gracious, and almighty acts, and in the reception of the same Divine worship, homage, and adoration. No archangel can conceive that love so boundless and so free, which moved our glorious Surety to present his humanity a sin-offering to make atonement for our guilt; and it will require eternity to illustrate the blessed consequences of his death. May each of us, by the Holy Spirit, be taught to say, in the language of appropriating faith and of comforting assurance, "Jesus suffered for me, died for me, atoned for me. He paid my debt; justice will demand no more. Clothed in his righteousness, I stand acquitted before my heavenly Father's throne." Those who are called to proclaim the messages of mercy preach under the highest sanction; they receive their qualifications and supplies from him in whom all fulness dwells.

PRAYER.

OTHOU who art our Creator, our Preserver, and our redeeming God, with what reverence and solemnity we should approach thy gracious throne, and make mention of thy great and glorious name! O look down upon us in the Beloved! We acknowledge thee as the only Lord God, and as a God of boundless grace. Praise to thy name, that, though thou art infinitely greater and more exalted than we can possibly imagine or conceive, thou dost display condescension, mercy, and grace, as wonderful and great as thy glorious majesty and might.

O how unspenkably worthy art thou of the admiration of our hearts! but we have reason to mourn over the coldness of our affections, and also the strength of our enmity against God. Alas, if we have no grace, enmity reigns predominant within us. Deliver us, we pray, from the enmity of our souls, and grant that we may love the Lord our God with all our heart and with all our mind.

We supplicate pardon for the offences of the past day. Wash us in the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness. O Jesus, be to us the Lord our righteousness; then there will be no condemnation to us in time, nor at the judgment-day. May our hearts be warmed with gratitude on account of the temporal and spiritual blessings we have this day received from the stores of thy providence and grace. Continue with us this night thy gracious kindness and care. This night may we lie down in peace with God; and at last, when this our mortal journey is brought to a close, may we fall asleep in the arms of our redeeming Saviour, and may the eyes of our souls awake amid the bright glories of heaven.

Exalted Jesus, we adore thee as the King of Zion, and as having in thy gracious sovereignty appointed apostles, evangelists, and pastors, to proclaim, during a succession of many ages, the glorious Gospel of peace. Grant that all who have the name of ministers of Christ may be in reality called to the great work, not by men, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead.

Thou divine Saviour, who callest thy faithful servants into their sacred office, O call our dear children into a state of grace. Preserve them and our servants from Satan's snares, and preserve them from the miseries of the lost.

Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou gavest thyself for our sins. Graciously preserve us from this present evil world, according to the will of God our Father. Preserve us from the world's smiles, that we may not be too much lifted up in prosperity; and preserve us from the frowns of an evil world, that we may not be cast down in adversity. Teach us to live above the world, to live as those whose inheritance is secure beyond the skies, beyond the restless elements and impetuous storms of the present life. Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake. And to Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, be glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

JOY OF THE HUMBLE.

- 1 YE humble souls, rejoice,
And cheerful praises sing!
Wake all your harmony of voice,
For Jesus is your King.
- 2 That meek and lowly Lord,
Whom here your souls have known,
Pledges the honour of his word
To avow you for his own.
- 3 He brings salvation near,
For which his blood was paid!
How beauteous shall your souls appear
Thus sumptuously arrayed!

DOUBRIDGE.

ESTHER IX.

The great Rejoicing of the Church.

AND Mordecai wrote these things, and sent letters unto all the Jews that were in all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, both nigh and far,

21 To stablish this among them, that they should keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the same, yearly,

22 As the days wherein the Jews rested from their enemies, and the month which was turned unto them from sorrow to joy, and from mourning into a good day; that they should make them days of feasting and joy, and of sending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor.

23 And the Jews undertook to do as they had begun, and as Mordecai had written unto them;

24 Because Haman the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had devised against the Jews to destroy them, and had cast Pur, that is, the lot, to consume them, and to destroy them;

25 But when Esther came before the king, he commanded by letters that his wicked device, which he devised against the Jews, should return upon his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows.

26 Wherefore they called these days Purim after the name of Pur. Therefore for all the words of this letter, and of that which they had seen concerning this matter, and which had come unto them,

27 The Jews ordained, and took upon them, and upon their seed, and upon all such as joined themselves unto them, so as it should not fail, that they would keep these two days according to their writing, and according to their appointed time every year;

28 And that these days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, every family, every province, and every city; and that these days of Purim should not fail from among the Jews, nor the memorial of them perish from their seed.

29 Then Esther the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai the Jew, wrote with all authority, to confirm this second letter of Purim.

30 And he sent the letters unto all the Jews, to the hundred twenty and seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, with words of peace and truth.

ESTHER X.

AND the king Ahasuerus laid a tribute upon the land, and upon the isles of the sea.

2 And all the acts of his power, and of his might, and the declaration of the greatness of Mordecai, whereunto the king advanced him, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia?

3 For Mordecai the Jew was next unto king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews, and accepted of the multitude of his brethren, seeking the wealth of his people, and speaking peace to all his seed.

REFLECTIONS UPON ESTHER IX., X.—Mordecai's astonishing elevation to rank, wealth, and power, increased, and did not diminish, his concern for the prosperity of the Church of God, and that its members should offer before the throne affectionate sacrifices of thanksgiving for the wonderful and effectual deliverance which God so mercifully accomplished in their behalf, out of the hand of enemies so numerous, malicious, and powerful. This holy man was anxious that the deliverance should be constantly and periodically remembered, from generation to generation. His recommendation has been faithfully followed; and the Jews to the present day keep up the remembrance of the great event which so remarkably illustrates God's constant care of his Church, and his special interposition in its behalf. What an unparalleled event is the death of Christ! It is the most wonderful that ever took place in the universe of God. On this event depends the deliverance of millions of millions from the lowest hell. May we remember it with the deepest interest—obeying the dying command of Him who said, "Do this in remembrance of me."

PRAYER.

O LORD of hosts, in all our approaches to thy throne in Jesus' name, may our hearts be sweetly allured by thy love. It is good to draw near unto thee in prayer, and in all the ordinances of thine appointment. O may we find it good to draw near unto God. Like the Psalmist, may our hearts pant after thee, and may we say with Job, O that we could come nigh thee, even unto thy seat! Draw us, O Lord, and we will run after thee. When thou hast enlarged our hearts, we will run in the way of thy commandments.

Humble us, O Lord, under a sense of our sinfulness and unworthiness. We confess that we have been very unmindful of thy mercies. We have not called to our remembrance many particular instances of thy special kindness which should never have been erased from our minds. And we acknowledge that we have been unthankful as well as forgetful. Lord, forgive these our sins, and preserve us from the commission of those sins in the future, of which we have been so guilty in the past.

We have now read of the great joy with which the hearts of the Jews were filled, when thou didst so wonderfully deliver them from the machinations of their enemies. O deliver us from the intentions of all our spiritual and all our earthly enemies, and may we never be delivered up to their will. Give us, we earnestly pray, the joys of religion, the joys of salvation. Give us the joy of pardon; and may we find that all our sins are forgiven through a Saviour's blood. Give us the joys which flow from the conviction that we are the children of God. Teach us, in the exercise of lively faith, to sing, Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is.

O Lord, teach our dear children to seek after better joys than this world can afford. Let them not be carried away by those earthly, carnal joys which are followed by remorse and misery, and which lead to the chambers of perdition.

We thank thee, gracious God, that as the Jews were commanded to observe a feast in commemoration of their great deliverance from the destruction contrived by Haman, thou hast appointed the feast of the Lord's Supper, to preserve the remembrance of that most glorious deliverance from sin, death, and hell, which was accomplished on Calvary by the death of Christ. O that all now kneeling before thee were prepared to observe that sacred ordinance, by sitting down at the sacramental table, and in the exercise of faith to receive the elements of bread and wine!

We bless God for the renewed instances of thy kindness during the past night, and we seek the direction, the presence, and the blessing of our God in all the duties of this day. Hear our imperfect prayers, for the sake of Jesus who died for us, and rose again. Amen.

CRUCIFIED WITH CHRIST.

- 1 EMPTIED of earth, I fain would be,
The world, myself, and all but thee;
Only reserved for Christ that died,
Surrendered to the crucified.
- 2 Sequestered from the noise and strife,
The lust, the pomp, the pride of life;
For heaven alone my heart prepare,
And have my conversation there.
- 3 Nothing, save Jesus, would I know;
My friend, and my companion thou;
Lord, take my heart—assert thy right,
And put all other loves to flight.

TOPLADY.

GALATIANS II.

Justification by Faith.

THEN fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain.

3 But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised:

4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.

9 And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision.

10 Only they would that we should remember the poor; the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed.

12 For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

15 We who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles,

16 Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

17 But if, while we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found sinners, is therefore Christ the minister of sin? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor.

19 For I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.

21 I do not frustrate the grace of God: for if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. II.—Peculiarly valuable, and extensively useful, were the years of the great Apostle's life. What an honour and what delight it was to Barnabas and Titus to have been associated with a man whose labours were so pre-eminently blessed, in the conversion of multitudes of sinners, and in the planting of numerous churches! Ministers have only one message to deliver, under the high sanction of the King and Head of the Church, and in humble and implicit reliance upon the promised aid of the Holy Spirit. That message is the blessed and glorious Gospel, which is, by way of eminence, the rod of the Redeemer's strength, by which rebellious and obstinate sinners are made willing in the day of his power. In things not sinful, ministers may employ discretion and wisdom in softening and overcoming the prejudices of the hearers of the Gospel. The Apostle was not only faithful in preaching the Gospel in its purity and in its fulness, but he was also wise in the manner, time, and place in which he proclaimed its glorious doctrines. He became all things to all men; but never in the slightest degree did he compromise the truth by passing over the line marked by his Saviour and his God. The Gospel is a system of practical mercy: while it reveals God's mercy to us, it calls upon us to show mercy to others, and especially to indigent saints.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we address thee as our Father who art in heaven, and as our God and Father in Christ. How infinite is thy goodness, and how infinite is thy delight in the manifestations of thy goodness and grace! Thou delightest in mercy. Thy loving-kindness is new every morning, and thy faithfulness every night. The history of every day is a history of thy forbearance, compassion, and mercy.

We thank our God for the manifestations of thy providential and gracious goodness this day. Because thou hast been at our right hand, we have not been greatly moved. In our past afflictions, if thou hadst not been our stay and our help, we had been overwhelmed, and had sunk into the deeps of despair. This night fulfil in our experience thy promise, The eternal God is thy refuge. We feel the weakness of our bodies, and our need of sleep to refresh our exhausted earthly frames. O prepare us for that heavenly world where there is no bodily weakness and no mental languor—that blessed land where the redeemed shall possess the vigour of angels, and where the soul with unwearied attention shall for ever gaze upon the unveiled splendours of the uncreated Jehovah!

May the Word of God we have now read be instrumental in producing on our minds sanctifying effects. May the diligence of St. Paul in preaching the Gospel animate us with zeal for the salvation of souls, and for the extension of the kingdom of Christ. We pray for the prosperity of Zion. Suffer not false brethren to enter in unawares and disturb its peace. Deliver thy Church from wolves in sheep's clothing. Give thy ministers abundance of grace, that they may be enabled in all circumstances, and in the midst of the greatest dangers and temptations, to act consistently.

We commend our children to thine especial care. Introduce them into thy family, and may their lives be marked by Christian consistency all their days.

Suffer us not to seek justification by the works of the law; but may we obtain it by faith in the righteousness of Christ. Impress upon our heart the words of eternal truth: By the works of the law shall no flesh living be justified. We bless thee, O Lord, that thou hast revealed to us the method by which alone a poor guilty sinner can be justified in thy sight as a God just and holy. Enable us to believe that when Christ was crucified, he was crucified for us, and therefore that in the eye of the law we were crucified with him. O may we live in Christ, and derive from him that life of justification and regeneration which can be derived from him alone; and may we live by the faith of the Son of God, believing that he loved us, and gave himself for us. Mercifully hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WATTS, 5, B. 1.

JOB I.

Job's Calamities.

THERE was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God, and eschewed evil.

2 And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters.

3 His substance also was seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, and a very great household; so that this man was the greatest of all the men of the east.

4 Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them.

5 And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it.

6 And the Lord said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil?

7 Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, Doth Job fear God for nought?

8 But put forth thine hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face.

9 And the Lord said unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power; only upon himself put not forth thine hand. So Satan went forth from the presence of the Lord.

10 And there was a day when his sons and his daughters were eating and drinking wine in their eldest brother's house:

11 And there came a messenger unto Job, and said, The oxen were plowing, and the asses feeding beside them:

12 And the Sabeans fell upon them, and took them away; yea, they have slain the servants with the edge of the sword; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee.

13 While he was yet speaking, there came also another, and said, The fire of God is fallen from heaven, and hath burned up the sheep, and the servants, and consumed them; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee.

14 While he was yet speaking, there came also another, and said, The Chaldeans made out three bands, and fell upon the camels, and have carried them away, yea, and slain the servants with the edge of the sword; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee.

15 While he was yet speaking, there came also another, and said, Thy sons and thy daughters were eating and drinking wine in their eldest brother's house;

16 And, behold, there came a great wind from the wilderness, and smote the four corners of the house, and it fell upon the young men, and they are dead; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee.

17 Then Job arose, and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped,

18 And said, Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

19 In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB I.—“Job” signifies “weeping.” This man, so eminent for piety, was a remarkable illustration of that Divine saying, “He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.” How mysterious and how wise the arrangements of the God of providence and of grace! Numerous are the instances in which saints, who have been peculiarly enriched with grace, have been peculiarly tried by severe sufferings and heavy afflictions. At one time we behold Job’s temporal prosperity consisting of a numerous, promising, dutiful, and loving family; of thousands of sheep and oxen, camels and asses; of abundance of silver and gold; of numerous servants; and of great honour, and influence, and power. Then, the sun of his prosperity shone in an unclouded sky. And at another time we see him stripped of all, forsaken, indigent, and afflicted. “Even so, Father! for so it seemed good in thy sight.”

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, whom we approach in the name of Christ, give us thy good Spirit, that we may have boldness to draw near unto thee by the blood of Christ, that new and living way which Jesus hath consecrated for us through the veil; that is to say, his flesh. O that now, and in all our approaches, we were enabled to draw near with a true heart, in the full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water!

We thank thee, O Lord, for the circumstances of comfort in which we are permitted and enabled to present ourselves as a family, this morning, before the throne of grace, where the prayers of thy people are presented and answered. When we consider the dangers to which we are exposed in the helpless hours of sleep, what reason have we, with renewed acclamations of praise, to thank thee that we are now in one of the most sacred and honourable places on earth, before thy mercy-seat! O that all the families with which we are connected were enabled conscientiously, regularly, and devoutly to worship God in their habitations, to erect a family altar in their dwellings, and call on the name of the Lord.

Give us thy grace, that we may live this day as in the presence and under the eye of the Lord our God. Whatever we do, may we do all to the glory of God. O that we could mingle our secular and worldly duties with religious feelings, and never forget the infinite superiority of the things of the soul beyond those of the body!

Give us Divine wisdom to improve what we have now read of the history of Job. We adore thy sovereign grace in giving piety as well as wealth: that piety which preserved him humble amid the sunshine of prosperity; that piety which preserved him submissive and patient amid the dark night, and the raging storms of adversity. Deeply affect our minds with the uncertainty of worldly wealth, and of the vanity of placing our hearts on that which may so soon take to itself wings, and flee away as an eagle toward the heavens. Lord, give us the imperishable inheritance of salvation. We rejoice thou art willing to give us this description of invaluable treasure.

Spare the lives and save the souls of our dear children. O cut them not down, as tender flowers, in the beginning of their days. Spare them to a good old age the bright ornaments of thy Gospel.

Sanctify to us all the bereaving events of providence. May the language of our souls be, under the most painful bereavements, whether of substance or of friends, The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord. Mercifully hear our feeble and unworthy supplications, for Jesus our Mediator’s sake. Amen.

LAW AND GOSPEL.

Old England. Emdon. Green's 100th.

L. 2.

- 1 CURST be the man, for ever curst,
That doth one wilful sin commit:
Death and perdition for the first,
Without relief and infinite.
- 2 Thus Sinai roars, and round the earth
Thunder and fire and vengeance flings;
But, Jesus, thy dear dying breath,
And Calvary, say gentler things:
- 3 Pardon, and grace, and boundless love,
Streaming along a Saviour's blood;
And life, and joys, and crowns above,
Obtained by a dear bleeding God.

WATTS.

GALATIANS III.

No salvation by the Law.

FOOLISH Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you?

2 This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

3 Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?

4 Have ye suffered so many things in vain? if it be yet in vain.

5 He therefore that ministereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doeth he it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

6 Even as Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness.

7 Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be ble-sed.

9 So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

10 For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

11 But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, The just shall live by faith.

12 And the law is not of faith: but, The man that doeth them shall live in them.

13 Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:

14 That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I speak after the manner of men; Though it be but a man's covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no man disannulleth, or addeth thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ.

17 And this I say, that the covenant, that was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

19 Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made; and it was ordained by angels in the hand of a mediator.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. III.—The influence of sin is powerful, deluding, bewitching, and destroying. May we be preserved from the dominion of sin, and ever enjoy the unspeakable advantages of the reign of grace! Destruction and ruin are the consequences of living and dying under the covenant of works. Yet, with what eagerness the heart of man cleaves to that covenant, that broken covenant, which has now no blessings to bestow, but only curses to pronounce on those who are under its sway! Have we received the Spirit? He has been communicated through the medium of the covenant of grace, all the conditions of which Jesus the great Surety has honourably and amply fulfilled. Have we received the Holy Spirit? Then we are taught to seek salvation only through the covenant of grace; then we have left the shifting sands of our own supposed merit as the foundation of our hope, and are now building our hopes alone upon the righteousness of Christ, as all our salvation and all our desire.

PRAYER.

LORD our God, the Father of mercies, the God of all comfort, we come before thee in the name of Jesus the Divine Mediator. We are so guilty and vile, that we could never approach thee, and our prayers could never be heard, without a mediator. Glory to thy great name, there is a Mediator. O how wonderful thy grace! thou, the God whom we have offended, hast thyself provided the Mediator! We thank thee as a family and as individuals that there is one Mediator between God and man, Jesus Christ the righteous. What reason then have we to rejoice that we may, with the assured hopes of acceptance, lift up our eyes to thee with gratitude! Now, O Lord, we lift up our eyes unto thee, from whence alone cometh our help. Our help cometh from thee our God, who made heaven and earth.

We confess that we are sinners. We were born corrupted, and we were born under the curse of the law as a broken covenant of works. Ever since reason dawned in our bosom, we have committed innumerable offences against thee. What reason have we to wonder that we have not been destroyed! that the curse of a broken, insulted, violated law has not fallen with overwhelming violence on our guilty heads! Justly thou hast cast us down, without remedy, as cumberers of the ground. Glory to thy name, that while the covenant of works breathes nothing but vengeance and wrath, the covenant of grace breathes mercy, compassion, and love. Lord, we now seek an interest in the rich blessing of the covenant of grace. O Jesus, all the blessings of that covenant are at thy disposal. We therefore come unto thee as the only refuge from the wrath of God and the curse of a violated law.

Affect the minds of our dear children and servants with the thought, that they were born under a dreadful curse. Convince them that sin is an infinite evil, and that, if it is not forgiven and removed, they must perish. O preserve them from such a doom!

Lord, enable us to obey the truth. We praise thee that thou hast put into our hands thy Gospel and thy laws. May we ever obey the truth of the Gospel by believing its doctrines, and receiving with all our hearts that exalted Saviour whom it sets forth as crucified and slain. Ever may we yield a filial obedience to all thy blessed laws, submitting to them joyfully as a rule of life in the hands of a Mediator. God forbid that we should ever trust for salvation to our own works. Thou alone, O Jesus, canst redeem from the curse of the law by thy righteousness. May we, and all our relatives and friends, be enabled to use the language of the Apostle in the exercise of a lively faith: Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us. Under the impression of this blessing may we retire to rest, committing ourselves to the everlasting arms of a gracious God. We thank thee, O Lord, for the mercies of the past day. O hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

SATAN'S TEMPTATIONS.

Spillbrook. St. Mary's. Brightelmston.

c. m.

- 1 HOW long wilt thou conceal thy face,
My God, how long delay?
When shall I feel those heavenly rays
That chase my fears away?
- 2 See how the prince of darkness tries
All his malicious arts;
He spreads a mist around my eyes,
And throws his fiery darts.
- 3 Be thou my sun, and thou my shield,
My soul in safety keep;
Make haste before mine eyes are sealed
In death's eternal sleep.

WATTS, Ps. 13.

JOB II.

Satan's Rage and Job's Sufferings.

A GAIN there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan came also among them to present himself before the LORD.

2 And the LORD said unto Satan, From whence comest thou? And Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it.

3 And the LORD said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil? and still he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movedst me against him, to destroy him without cause.

4 And Satan answered the LORD, and said, Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life.

5 But put forth thine hand now, and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will curse thee to thy face.

6 And the LORD said unto Satan, Behold, he is in thine hand; but save his life.

7 So went Satan forth from the presence of the LORD, and smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot unto his crown.

8 And he took him a potsherd to scrape himself withal; and he sat down among the ashes.

9 Then said his wife unto him, Dost thou still retain thine integrity? curse God, and die.

10 But he said unto her, Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh. What! shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil? In all this did not Job sin with his lips.

11 Now when Job's three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place; Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite: for they had made an appointment together to come to mourn with him, and to comfort him.

12 And when they lifted up their eyes afar off, and knew him not, they lifted up their voice, and wept; and they rent every one his mantle, and sprinkled dust upon their heads toward heaven.

13 So they sat down with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights, and none spake a word unto him: for they saw that his grief was very great.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB II.—How presumptuous the conduct of Satan—actually to enter God's sanctuary, to mingle himself with God's people and worshippers, and to endeavour to counteract the blessed influence of the Gospel of Christ upon the hearts of the children of men! How important then it is, before we enter the house of God, to put on the whole spiritual armour, that we may be able manfully and successfully to resist the wiles of the wicked one! Satan is a spirit distinguished by the most restless and persevering activity. He can move in an instant to the most distant places; and we cannot conceive the multitude of immortal souls he can visit in one hour, and influence in the most astonishing variety of forms by his vile suggestions. Does he go up and down the world like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may alarm, injure, and destroy? How infinitely necessary for us to be on our constant guard; and by earnest prayer and unceasing watchfulness to take care that we fall not into temptation! To what pains and sufferings sin has exposed us in this life! But let believers never lose sight of the glorious and consolatory truth, that God appoints and employs the diseases of the flesh to promote the health of the mind, and the sufferings and pains of the body to enhance the joys and comfort of the soul. O how singularly distressing it is when, in the day of temporal calamity and affliction, our earthly relatives should prove tormentors and not comforters! Jesus is our true friend in our affliction, for he is "the Brother born for adversity." When Job's relatives beheld his extraordinary sufferings, they lifted up their voice and wept. Blessed truth: "In all our afflictions Christ is afflicted!" that is, in all our afflictions we have his sympathy, compassion, and love.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the creator and preserver of all things, we bow ourselves prostrate before thy throne, in the name of Jesus, our Advocate and Saviour, in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Lord, we adore thee as the sovereign disposer of all events, and we acknowledge thine agency in all the afflictions which befall the children of men; and we acknowledge thy gracious and paternal agency in all the afflictions which come upon thy people, who are the objects of thy favour. O Lord, thou art mighty, and despisest not any; thou art mighty in strength and in wisdom.

Warm our hearts with lively gratitude, on account of thy continued kindness unto us during the past night. We thank God that our bodies are not overspread with loathsome disease, like the body of Job, when Satan was permitted to afflict him with the most grievous maladies. Lord, bless us this day, and preserve us from the temptations of Satan. Suffer not the adversary of souls to tempt us by his allurements, or to terrify and afflict us by his fiery darts. Preserve us from his snares when he comes in the disguise of an angel of light; and preserve us from his fiery darts, when he would fall upon us as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

Give us that grace by which we shall remember that Satan is a restless, an active, and a most malignant enemy. Lord, bless us with the grace of watchfulness. Convince us that Satan never can be resisted without power and watchfulness. Let these be united in us; then we shall be able to stand in the evil day.

Preserve our dear children and domestics from the devices of Satan. Make them sensible of the affecting truth, that this powerful enemy has already contrived their ruin, and that nothing can prevent the execution of his purpose but an interest in Christ.

We bless thee, O Lord, that we have on record the remarkable piety of Job. Like him, may we possess the reality of grace; like him, may we be upright; like him, may we fear God and eschew evil. May we much rather desire to imitate thy servant in his piety, than to resemble him in the wealth he originally possessed, when for his affluence and power he was the greatest man in the east. O Lord, prepare us for all the future afflictions of life. Convince us that nothing but grace can bear up the mind amidst the waves of earthly affliction. Affect our graceless friends most deeply with a sense of the misery of those who suffer affliction, without an almighty arm of grace on which to lean.

Give us thy merciful spirit, that we may weep with them that weep. May we be afflicted in the afflictions of our friends; and in the day of our grief may we be blessed with the sympathy of kind and praying friends, but, above all, with the sympathy of Christ. O Jesus, thou art our best, our unchanging friend. O hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, who is the bright and morning star. Amen.

CLAIMS OF GOD'S CHILDREN.

Peters, Sherbourn, Ulverston.

L. N.

- 1 'TIS not too hard, too high an aim,
Secure in Christ thy part to claim;
The sensual instinct to control,
And warm with purer fires the soul.
- 2 Nature will raise up all her strife,
Foe to the flesh-abusing life;
Loath in a Saviour's death to share,
Her daily cross compelled to bear.
- 3 But grace omnipotent at length
Shall arm the saint with saving strength;
Through the sharp war with aids attend,
And his long conflict safely end.
- 4 Act but the infant's gentle part,
Give up to love thy willing heart;
No fondest parent's tender breast
Yearns like thy God's to make thee blest.

LUTHER.

GALATIANS III.

Salvation through Faith.

NOW a mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one.
21 Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law.

22 But the scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe.

23 But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed.

24 Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

26 For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

27 For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.

28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

29 And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.

GALATIANS IV.

God sending his Son.

NOW I say, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all;

2 But is under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the father.

3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the elements of the world:

4 But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law,

5 To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.

6 And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. III., IV.—What a glorious revelation, and worthy of all acceptance—Christ the Mediator, the only mediator—a mediator infinitely sufficient, and our mediator! Let us put our cause, without delay, into the hand of this merciful and skilful intercessor; through the influence of whose intercessory prayers, we shall at last reach the heavenly kingdom. It is in Christ we see the blessed harmony betwixt the law and the Gospel—both originating in God. We behold Jesus magnifying the law, and making it honourable. We behold Jesus presenting the magnified, satisfied law as a rule of life, to guide the obedience of his people. And we see in the Gospel the most powerful motives and reasons to encourage and enforce obedience. Has the law been brought home to our conscience by the power of the Divine Spirit? Has it been instrumental in showing us our need of Christ, and in stirring us up to flee to Jesus from the wrath to come? Then we are the adopted children of God, and heirs of the heavenly inheritance.

PRAYER.

WHEN we think, O Lord, our God and Saviour, on what thou art, and on what thou hast done, and on the streams of blessings which are unceasingly flowing from the fountain of thy kindness and mercy, what reason have we to exclaim, in the language of thy servant the prophet, How great is thy goodness! Thy paternal care has followed us all our days, and every day of our lives we have existed upon thy goodness.

We thank thee that no evil has befallen us this day, that our wants have been supplied, and that we are encouraged to draw near to thy throne, and supplicate the blessings of thy special goodness. Preserve us from all evil this night. While we are awake, may our thoughts rise to the Father, Son, and Spirit; and may we be able to say, in the language of the Psalmist, Our soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness, and our mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips, when we remember thee upon our beds, and meditate upon thee in the night watches. Whether asleep or awake, may we be ever with God. Be thou constantly at our right hand; then we shall never be greatly moved.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou art our Mediator. We pray that we may receive a lively faith in thee as the Mediator between God and man; then our approaches to the throne of grace will be followed by showers of blessings from on high. We acknowledge that we are all by nature under sin, and exposed to the wrath of an offended God. O give us faith, by which we shall lay hold of the righteousness of Christ; then we shall be delivered from the curse, and become heirs of the blessing. Blessed Saviour, thou art the author of faith, and we now humbly seek from thee that faith by which we shall lay hold of thy justifying righteousness, and thus be delivered from the condemning power of sin. Deliver us from a legal, self-righteous spirit. Convince us of the vanity and folly of imagining that by our works of obedience we can obtain eternal life, seeing that the obedience and death of Christ were absolutely necessary for procuring a blessing so transcendently great. We seek from God the baptism of the Spirit. We acknowledge that the baptism with water will avail us nothing without the baptism of the Spirit.

O Lord, baptize our children with the Holy Ghost. We long for their salvation. We would travail as in birth, that Christ in his blessed graces may be formed in their souls.

Adored and praised be thy name for ever, O Lord, that, in thy pity for our fallen, ruined race, thou didst send thy Son on an embassy of mercy for our redemption. We bless thee that in the fulness of time the Saviour came, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that they might receive the adoption of sons. O Lord, put the spirit of thy Son into our hearts, and teach us to cry, Abba, Father. Make us children, then we shall be heirs of God through Christ.

Hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake, the exalted Mediator between God and man, and our Surety and Ransom. Amen.

GOD FAR ABOVE MEN.

- 1 SHALL the vile race of flesh and blood
Contend with their creator, God?
Shall mortal worms presume to be More holy, wise, or just than he?
- 2 Behold, he puts his trust in none
Of all the spirits round his throne;
Their natures, when compared with his,
Are neither holy, just, nor wise.
- 3 But how much meaner things are they
Who spring from dust and dwell in clay?
Touched by the finger of thy wrath,
We faint and vanish like the moth.

WILKES, 22, B. I.

JOB IV.

Eliphaz reproveth Job.

THEN Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said,
2 If we assay to commune with thee, wilt thou be grieved?
but who can withhold himself from speaking?

3 Behold, thou hast instructed many, and thou hast strengthened the weak hands.

4 Thy words have upholden him that was falling, and thou hast strengthened the feeble knees.

5 But now it is come upon thee, and thou faintest; it toucheth thee, and thou art troubled.

6 Is not this thy fear, thy confidence, thy hope, and the uprightness of thy ways?

7 Remember, I pray thee, who ever perished, being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off?

8 Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same.

9 By the blast of God they perish, and by the breath of his nostrils are they consumed.

10 The roaring of the lion, and the voice of the fierce lion, and the teeth of the young lions, are broken.

11 The old lion perisheth for lack of prey, and the stout lion's whelps are scattered abroad.

12 Now a thing was secretly brought to me, and mine ear received a little thereof.

13 In thoughts from the visions of the night, when deep sleep falleth on men, 14 Fear came upon me, and trembling, which made all my bones to shake.

15 Then a spirit passed before my face; the hair of my flesh stood up:

16 It stood still, but I could not discern the form thereof: an image was before mine eyes, there was silence, and I heard a voice, saying,

17 Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker?

18 Behold, he put no trust in his servants; and his angels he charged with folly:

19 How much less in them that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, which are crushed before the moth?

20 They are destroyed from morning to evening: they perish for ever without any regarding it.

21 Doth not their excellency which is in them go away? they die, even without wisdom.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB IV.—Communing with our own hearts, and with each other, are Divine ordinances which should be conscientiously cultivated and observed, as greatly calculated to strengthen the graces, and to advance the soul in spiritual attainments. If we are anxious to instruct the ignorant and to comfort the afflicted and the sorrowful, we bear some resemblance to Jesus, who strengthened the weak hands, and who comforted the feeble knees, who comforted those who mourned, who gave them beauty for ashes, and the oil of joy for mourning. Believers of the most mature grace are weak in themselves, and without leaning upon the arm of Divine sufficiency would soon sink and faint in the day of temporal adversity. Without this dependence the lightest affliction would overwhelm them: with this dependence they can do all things, and stand secure under the heaviest burden. God searcheth the heart; and he knew the righteousness and genuine integrity of his servant Job, while Eliphaz and his friends drew false conclusions from his outward trials, and pronounced upon him a sentence of harsh condemnation, considering him as a hypocrite, who had hitherto acted as a deceiver, and therefore was deservedly abandoned of God. This formed one of the severest parts of his sufferings, and added pungent gall to the bitter wormwood which he was called to drink. What a blessing! God seeth not as man seeth, God judgeth not as man judgeth. "Man judgeth according to the outward appearance, but God judgeth the heart." In ourselves, we must plead guilty before God; but if we are clothed with the righteousness of Christ, the sentence of condemnation has passed away for ever.

PRAYER.

OLORD, our God and Father in Christ, thou art tho infinitely glorious and absolutely independent Jehovah. Thou puttest no trust in thy servants, and thine angels thou chargest with folly. The greatest power of the mightiest of thy creatures is weakness compared with thy strength, and the richest wisdom of the most exalted of archangels is folly compared with thy wisdom. May we be humbled in the dust when we consider our weakness, our ignorance, our folly, and our guilt. What are we in thy presence, Divine and gracious Majesty, who dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, and who are crushed before the moth?

Praise to our God, that, notwithstanding all our unworthiness, and helplessness, and vileuess, there is a new and living way, by which we may not only approach the throne of God with acceptance, but also with boldness.

We thank God that thou hast raised us this morning from our beds in safety and in peace; and that we are now assembled in the gracious presence of our God, to seek mercy and grace to help in every time of need. Lord, enable us to hold converse with thyself in the exercise of holy reverence and filial confidence. Leave us not, we beseech thee, this day, to our own corruptions, or to our own weakness. Preserve us from sinful thoughts, let no unhallowed expression fall from our lips, and may our actions be in conformity to thy holy will. We seek the guidance of thy wisdom, and the protection of thy power. Thy wisdom is an unerring counsellor, and thy power is an almighty defender.

O Lord, enrich us with thy grace, that we may serve the great end of our existence—that we may glorify God, and prove useful to our fellow-men. Like thy servant Job, may we instruct many.

Make our children apt to receive instruction. As the newborn babe desires the milk of its mother, may they long for the milk of useful and saving knowledge, that they may grow thereby.

Lord, inspire us with merciful dispositions. As God delights in acts of mercy, may we delight in acts of mercy. In imitation of the example of thy servant, of whose excellences and sufferings we have now read, may we strengthen the weak hands, may our words of comfort uphold those that are falling, and may we strengthen the feeble knees.

Lord, have mercy on our graceless friends. Open their eyes to see the consequences of living without God and salvation. Open their eyes to see that they who plow iniquity and sow wickedness reap the same. O convince them that by the blast of God they must perish, and that by the breath of his nostrils they must be consumed, unless they flee to Christ for refuge and forgiveness.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who died to wash us in his blood. Amen.

SINCERITY PROFESSED.

L. 2.

- 1 MY God, what inward grief I feel
When impious men transgress thy will;
I mourn to hear their lips profane,
Take thy tremendous name in vain.
- 2 Does not my soul detest and hate
The sons of malice and deceit?
Those that oppose thy laws and thee,
I count them enemies to me.
- 3 Lord, search my soul, try every thought;
Though my own heart accuse me not
Of walking in a false disguise,
I beg the trial of thine eyes.
- 4 Doth secret mischief lurk within?
Do I indulge some unknown sin?
O turn my feet whene'er I stray,
And lead me in the perfect way.

WATTS, Ps. 139, p. III.

GALATIANS IV.

The two Covenants.

MY little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, 20 I desire to be present with you now, and to change my voice; for I stand in doubt of you.

21 Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a freewoman.

23 But he who was of the bondwoman was born after the flesh; but he of the freewoman was by promise.

24 Which things are an allegory: for these are the two covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar.

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children.

26 But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all.

GALATIANS V.

The Liberty Christ has given.

STAND fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testify again to every man that is circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whole law.

4 Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace.

5 For we through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith.

6 For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love.

7 Ye did run well; who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth?

8 This persuasion cometh not of him that calleth you.

9 A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. IV., v.—True piety manifests itself in highly estimating the value of the soul, and in earnest, longing desires, to be successful in winning souls to Christ. How important and useful are these affectionate desires in the minds of ministers, of parents, and of the instructors of the rising race! Professors of the faith should study great Christian consistency, without which the sincerity of their profession may be justly called in question, weak saints injured, and those who are without may be tempted to cast reproach upon the Christian name. The desire to be accepted and pardoned, by a supposed personal righteousness, is both natural and strong: if we are under its influence, let us without delay pray for deliverance: if we are relying alone on the finished and infinitely meritorious righteousness of Christ, the Divine Spirit has indeed placed our feet upon a Rock, and hath established our going. We are in reality set free from the bondage of the law as a condemning covenant; we are as completely free and safe from its curses as if we had never sinned. We are the adopted and regenerated children of God; we are the saved citizens of the New Jerusalem—the Church of the living God—and are invested with all the rich privileges of citizenship, of which we shall never be deprived. Blessed are they who see that this is true liberty, and who have fled from the covenant of works and all its threatenings, and who have come to the covenant of grace, to be interested in all its promises and in all its blessings.

PRAYER.

OTHOU Hearer of prayer, and the God of our salvation, we desire as a family, in the name of Christ, and in humble dependence on thy Holy Spirit, to separate ourselves, at the close of the day, and at the close of the week, from worldly pursuits and cares, and now prostrate ourselves before thee, to supplicate the blessings of salvation through a Saviour's blood.

Glorious Jehovah, we adore thee as the only Lord God. There is none like unto the Lord our God. Who is like unto thee, O Lord? amongst the gods who is like unto thee—glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?

We now plead with our God to pardon the sins of the past week. We lament that our thoughts, desires, and affections are so carnal and corrupted. We lament that our speech is so seldom seasoned with the salt of wisdom, meekness, and grace. We lament that so many of our actions are the fruits of sin, and not the fruits of holiness. Lord, forgive our sins, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness.

Graciously watch over us and all our relatives this night, and may we be preserved in health, and in soundness and tranquillity of mind, to enter into thy blessed sanctuary, and to worship thy great and glorious name in the ordinances of thy wise and gracious appointment. Lord, prepare thy ministers for standing between the living and the dead, and for proclaiming the threatenings of thy law, and delivering the invitations and promises of thy Gospel. May all parents, instructors of the rising race, and ministers of Christ, resemble thy servant, the Apostle of the Gentiles, in their ardent and earnest desires and prayers for the salvation of men. O that every minister entrusted with the care of souls could say respecting the people of their charge, We travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you. Lord, hear this our prayer, for the honour of thy name, and for the advancement of thy kingdom. King and Head of the Church, suffer none to embrace the holy office of the priesthood as a mere profession, or as a source of temporal support. May none enter upon the duties of that sacred office, except they who love Jesus Christ, who mourn over man's sinfulness and misery, and who are earnest to be made instruments, in the hand of the Spirit, in setting Satan's captives free.

Lord, deliver our beloved children and servants from his influence and reign. Give them the liberty of thy sons, and in that liberty may they stand fast till the day arrive when they shall exchange earth for heaven.

O Lord, who searchest the heart, deliver us all from a hypocritical profession of the faith of Christ. Suffer us not to belong to that class of whom the Apostle stood in doubt. Teach us often to examine ourselves, to look within, to behold ourselves in the glass of thy Word, that we may know our true state. Whatever we have been in the past, O make us thy children now, and fill us with the graces of the Holy Ghost. We present these our prayers in Jesus' name. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

GOD'S GOVERNMENT.

1st M.

- 1 JEHOVAH reigns! he dwells in light,
Girded with majesty and might;
The world, created by his hands,
Still on its first foundation stands.
- 2 But ere this spacious world was made,
Or had its first foundations laid,
Thy throne eternal ages stood,
Thyself the ever-living God.
- 3 Like floods the angry nations rise,
And aim their rage against the skies;
Vain floods that aim their rage so high!
At thy rebuke the billows die.

WATTS, Ps. 93.

PSALM XCIII.

God's Government.

THE LORD reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the LORD is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself; the world also is established, that it cannot be moved.

2 Thy throne is established of old: thou art from everlasting.

3 The floods have lifted up, O LORD, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves.

4 The LORD on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

5 Thy testimonies are very sure: holiness becometh thine house, O LORD, for ever.

PSALM XCIV.

Enemies of the Church.

OLORD God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself.

2 Lift up thyself, thou judge of the earth: render a reward to the proud.

3 LORD, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph?

4 How long shall they utter and speak hard things? and all the workers of iniquity boast themselves?

5 They break in pieces thy people, O LORD, and afflict thine heritage.

6 They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.

7 Yet they say, The LORD shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it.

8 Understand, ye brutish among the people: and ye fools, when will ye be wise?

9 He that planted the ear, shall he not hear? he that formed the eye, shall he not see?

10 He that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know?

11 The LORD knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are vanity.

12 Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O LORD, and teachest him out of thy law;

13 That thou mayest give him rest from the days of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked.

14 For the LORD will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

15 But judgment shall return unto righteousness: and all the upright in heart shall follow it.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS XCIII., XCIV.—Christ reigns over the universe as God, and over the Church as Mediator. His attributes are the royal robes of his Divine and kingly Majesty; and the stability of the earth, the foundations of which he has laid, shows the greatness of his power. Earthly kings are but of yesterday; Jesus, the King of kings, is from everlasting. Wicked men in their number, power, and violence, may resemble the roaring waves of the tempestuous ocean; in one moment Zion's King can control their violence, when he says, with the voice of his irresistible omnipotence, "Peace, be still." The doctrines and promises of the Gospel, the commandments and ordinances of God, are his testimonies: they declare his will; they bear his impress; they breathe the purity of his nature; and, in the hand of the Spirit, they are that precious mean by which the soul is sanctified, and fitted, and disposed for the holy services of God's house. The wicked may seem to prevail and to prosper, but it is only for a season. Their cup of punishment and suffering is fast filling up; every day they are heaping up for themselves, by their own act and deed, wrath against the day of wrath. Their outrageous cruelty against the fatherless, the widow, and the unoffending sheep of Christ's flock, shall soon, very soon, meet its merited reward!

PRAYER.

ON the morning of this joyful, this sacred day, we desire, O Lord, to appear before thee in the name of Christ, to present our prayers, and to express our homage. God and Father of Christ, thou dost reign over the vast universe, thou art clothed with majesty infinitely more glorious than the splendour of ten thousand suns. Thou art clothed with strength; with the greatest ease thou canst pluck up mountains by the roots, and cast them into the deeps of the ocean. Thou hast established the world, that it cannot be moved; even thou hangest it upon nothing. Eternal is the duration of thy government, and the security of thy throne cannot be disturbed by the fall of men or the rebellion of myriads of powerful angels.

We adore thy wisdom and justice in all the afflictions which have befallen us in the past period of our lives. Glory to thy great name, that the floods have not been permitted to carry us away or overwhelm us. And we rejoice that, notwithstanding all the proud waves of persecution which have rolled over thy Church, thou hast preserved thy sacred ark from sinking among the waves. The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine omniscience. Thou art he who planted the ear, and therefore must hear; thou art he who formed the eye, and must see; thou art he who teacheth man knowledge, and therefore must know. Impress the minds of all thine enemies with the alarming truth, that all their malicious purposes formed against thy Church, and all their attempts to injure thy people, are fully known to thee; that they are all recorded in the book of thy remembrance. Convince them that, if the weapons of their enmity are not laid aside, and their hearts humbled before thee in unfeigned repentance, their destruction is inevitable.

We pray for all thy ministers and people this day. Give to thy ministers freedom in proclaiming the tidings of salvation and peace, and give thy people faith in lively exercise to feed upon the Word of life.

Lord, give our children and domestics divine love to divine things: O may we soon see them living examples of the saving power and the sanctifying influence of the Gospel of Christ.

We pray for all thy afflicted people, whether confined in their abodes or able to attend thy sanctuary. Comfort them with this most consoling truth: Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law. May they rejoice that there is a day coming when they shall receive rest from the days of adversity, and that thou wilt never cast off thy people nor forsake thine inheritance.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the night, and O may this day prove to us and thousands a day never to be forgotten. O Lord, hear our prayer, for the sake of Jesus who was slain to take away the sins of the world. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

REASONS FOR PRAISING GOD.

Worship. Furman. Suffolk.

C. M.

- 1 SING to the Lord Jehovah's name,
And in his strength rejoice;
When his salvation is our theme,
Exalted be our voice.
- 2 With thanks approach his awful sight,
And psalms of honour sing;
The Lord's a God of boundless might,
The whole creation's King!
- 3 Let princes hear, let angels know,
How mean their nature's seem;
Those gods on high, and gods below,
When once compared with him.

Watts, Pa. 95.

PSALM XCIV.

God the Helper of his People.

WHIO will rise up for me against the evil-doers, or who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?

17 Unless the Lord had been my help, my soul had almost dwelt in silence.

18 When I said, My foot slippeth; thy mercy, O Lord, held me up.

19 In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul.

20 Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by a law?

21 They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood.

22 But the Lord is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge.

23 And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the Lord our God shall cut them off.

PSALM XCV.

Praising God.

OCOME, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.

2 Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms.

3 For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods.

4 In his hand are the deep places of the earth: the strength of the hills is his also.

5 The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.

6 O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our Maker.

7 For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. To day if ye will hear his voice,

8 Harden not your heart, as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my work.

10 Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways:

11 Unto whom I swear in my wrath that they should not enter into my rest.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS XCIV., XCV.—Evil-doers are God's enemies, and their own enemies. In proportion as they oppose God's will do they accelerate their own ruin. While evil-doers oppose the saints of God, the saints have reason to rejoice; they have omnipotence upon their side, who will vindicate them against every unjust accusation, and deliver them from every danger. Believers are constantly exposed to temptations and snares, but they are infinitely indebted to the hand of mercy, by which they are preserved from falling in the evil day. In no instance have believers ever been held up and preserved from falling, but by the hand of gracious omnipotence. How solemn the anticipations of the judgment-day! then God will pour out the vials of his wrath upon the head of all his impenitent enemies; then "the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment, and the righteous into life eternal." O what a contrast! May we belong to the latter, and not unto the former! If we hope and desire to praise God with the ransomed millions in heaven, we must unite in praising him with the ransomed saints on earth. Has God filled the cup of our lot with blessings, has he crowned us with mercies? then let us approach his throne of grace in the closet, in the family, and in the sanctuary, with thanksgiving and praise!

PRAYER.

AT the close of thy blessed day we desire, O Lord our God in Jesus' name, to come into thy presence with thanksgiving. What reason have we to express our adoring thanksgiving, that we have enjoyed another Sabbath-day, another day the harbinger, the emblem of an eternal day of glorious rest beyond the skies! Praise to our God that our ears have heard the joyful sound; that sound which has gladdened the hearts of millions, and imparted to them a foretaste of thy joys of heaven. Thanks to the Most High for all that assistance given to the ministers of truth, and for the heavenly treasure which has been put into the earthen vessel; and we bless thee above all for the saving benefit which has attended a preached Gospel in the accessions which have been made to the kingdom of Christ, by poor captives of sin and guilt being set at liberty, and the fetters of their spiritual and legal slavery being burst asunder.

We acknowledge thee, Father, Son, and Spirit, as a great God, and a great King above all gods. In thy hand are the deep places of the earth, and in thy hand are the destinies of nations and of worlds. O Lord, we stand in awe of thy majesty. The strength of hills is thine also. The sea is thine, for thou didst make it; thy hands formed the dry land. Notwithstanding thy glorious majesty and might, we look up to thee as our God and Father in Christ. O Lord, thou art our God, and we are the people of thy pasture and the sheep of thy hand.

We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as our helper. Thou art, O Jesus, a sufficient help; thou art a help near at hand; thou art ever willing to afford thy help to those who lift up their hearts to thy throne in earnest supplication. We bless thee, Divine Saviour, that in many instances, when we were in the greatest danger of falling into temptations, thou didst hold us up.

Lord, preserve our dear children during the dangerous and slippery period of youthful years. Enable them to take Jesus for their guide; then they shall be instructed to sing. When my foot slipped, thy mercy, O Lord, held me up.

O Lord, be our defence all our days. Be our defence from the corruption, pride, and vanity of our own hearts. Be our defence from the snares of the world. Be our defence from the fiery darts of the wicked one. Be our defence from the malevolence and the cunning of ungodly men. When we come to encounter the storms of affliction, be the rock of our refuge. When we come to die, may we be delivered from all our fears, rejoicing that Jesus is the rock of our refuge. Lord, deliver us and the congregation with which we are connected, and all our beloved relatives, from hardness of heart. Suffer us not to offend the holiness or provoke the displeasure of our God, or grieve his Holy Spirit. God forbid that we should come short of the heavenly rest! Through Jesus may we at last arrive at those peaceful mansions, where a rest remaineth for the people of God. In the name of Jesus we present our evening sacrifice. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven. &c.

AFFLICTION SANCTIFIED.

Basil Avaricia. Folatona. Portugal.

I. M.

- 1 A MIDST these various scenes of ills,
Each stroke some kind design fulfils;
And shall I murmur at my God,
When sovereign love directs the rod?
- 2 Peace, rebel thoughts!—I'll not complain,
My Father's smiles suspend my pain;
Smiles that a thousand joys impart,
And pour the balm that heals the smart.
- 3 Though heaven afflicts, I'll not repine,
Each heart-felt comfort still is mine;
Comforts that shall o'er death prevail,
And journey with me through the vale.

CURTON.

JOB VI.

Job justifies his Complaint.

- BUT Job answered and said,
2 Oh that my grief were throughly weighed, and my calamity laid in the balances together!
3 For now it would be heavier than the sand of the sea: therefore my words are swallowed up.
4 For the arrows of the Almighty are within me, the poison whereof drinketh up my spirit: the terrors of God do set themselves in array against me.
5 Doth the wild ass bray when he hath grass? or loweth the ox over his fodder?
6 Can that which is unsavoury be eaten without salt? or is there any taste in the white of an egg?
7 The things that my soul refused to touch are as my sorrowful meat.
8 Oh that I might have my request; and that God would grant me the thing that I long for!
9 Even that it would please God to destroy me; that he would let loose his hand, and cut me off!
10 Then should I yet have comfort; yea, I would harden myself in sorrow: let him not spare; for I have not concealed the words of the Holy One.
11 What is my strength, that I should hope? and what is mine end, that I should prolong my life?
12 Is my strength the strength of stones? or is my flesh of brass?
13 Is not my help in me? and is wisdom driven quite from me?
14 To him that is afflicted pity should be shewed from his friend; but he forsaketh the fear of the Almighty.
15 My brethren have dealt deceitfully as a brook, and as the stream of brooks they pass away;
16 Which are blackish by reason of the ice, and wherein the snow is hid:
17 What time they wax warm, they vanish: when it is hot, they are consumed out of their place.
25 How forcible are right words! but what doth your arguing reprove?
26 Do ye imagine to reprove words, and the speeches of one that is desperate, which are as wind?
27 Yea, ye overwhelm the fatherless, and ye dig a pit for your friend.
28 Now therefore be content, look upon me; for it is evident unto you if I lie.
29 Return, I pray you, let it not be iniquity; yea, return again, my righteousness is in it.
30 Is there iniquity in my tongue? cannot my taste discern perverse things?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB VI.—If the sufferings of the saints are sometimes heavy, the burden of Christ's sufferings and sorrows was infinite. Unless the humanity had been held up by the almighty power of the Divinity, it never could have borne the enormous load of suffering and of wrath necessary to atone for human guilt. If the fatherly chastisement which Job received was so severe, what must have been the judicial vengeance which Christ endured! Animals by their natural instinct express their sense of hunger, thirst, pain, or pleasure: may we by the Spirit know our wants and necessities; and by him may we be taught to plead before a throne of grace for the merciful supply of all our wants, and for the relief of all our necessities! Job was earnest to obtain an answer to his prayers: like him, may we possess the spirit of grace and supplication; then we will patiently wait, as loving children, for the answer of those prayers we present before our heavenly Father's throne.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and our guide, thou art the uncreated and the eternal Jehovah, before whom all the kings of the earth, with their mighty armies, are only as grasshoppers. In thyself, thy blessedness, and thy government, thou art infinitely exalted above our highest thoughts. Thy works declare thy glory and thy majesty. We rejoice that thou hast given us a rich display of thy goodness in the provision thou hast made for supplying the wants of every living thing. Thy holiness and justice shine in thy laws, thy truth shines in thy promises, and thy grace shines with pre-eminent lustre in the plan of salvation contrived for the recovery of our ruined race.

We present our thanksgivings for the mercies of the past night, and for the continuance of many blessings, without which our existence here below would be intolerable and miserable. Let all our temporal comforts be sanctified, may we see a good and a gracious God in all his blessings, and may they fill our hearts with emotions of gratitude, love, and praise. We look up unto thee our heavenly Father for thy direction and blessing this day. In our temporal pursuits suffer us not to offend thee, either by an unhallowed attachment to time's objects, or by a cold indifference about the Divine and exalted realities of the heavenly world. Ever keep us in thy fear, and may impressions of thine omnipresence and of thine all-seeing eye continue with us all our days.

May thy Word which we have now read be instrumental in solemnizing our thoughts, and may it teach us by thy Holy Spirit lessons of humility, wisdom, and experience. May the grief of Job remind us of the grief of Jesus. Blessed Saviour, thou wast a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. Thy grief was heavier than the sand of the sea. Give us grace to wonder that thy love to our ruined race did make thee willingly submit that the arrows of the Almighty should enter within thee, the poison whereof drank up thy spirit. Glory to thy name, that thou didst willingly submit to endure the severest suffering, that man should inherit eternal and unfading joys; and that thou didst die, that they might live who deserved for ever to be the objects of thy vengeance.

Teach our children daily to remember the love of Christ, so wonderfully manifested by his sufferings and death. O that the remembrance of such love may warm their hearts, and the hearts of our servants, with love to Christ.

Lord, preserve us from a sinful dependence on earthly friends. May the instances in which we have found them deal deceitfully as a brook, and the instances in which we have seen them pass away as a stream, produce on our own minds sanctifying and useful effects. If our earthly friends have resembled the snow and the ice which have melted before the sun, may we rejoice that Jesus is an unchanging, a tender-hearted, compassionate friend, who will never leave us, and who will never forsake us.

Thou Hearer of prayer, listen to the voice of our supplication, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus' sake, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

DIVINE GLORIES AND GRACES.

Israel. Serenity. George's.

C. M.

- 1 HOW are thy glories here displayed!
Great God, how bright they shine,
While at thy word we break the bread,
And pour the flowing wine!
- 2 Here thy revenging justice stands,
And plods its dreadful cause;
Here saving mercy spreads her hands,
Like Jesus on the cross.
- 3 Thy saints attend with every grace
On this great sacrifice;
And love appears with cheerful face,
And faith with fixed eyes.
- 4 Dear Saviour, change our faith to sight,
Let sin for ever die;
Then shall our souls be all delight,
And every tear be dry.

WATTS, 25, B. III.

GALATIANS V.

Works of the Flesh and Graces of the Spirit.

I HAVE confidence in you through the Lord, that ye will be none otherwise minded: but he that troubleth you shall bear his judgment, whosoever he be.

11 And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? then is the offence of the cross ceased.

12 I would they were even cut off which trouble you.

13 For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

14 For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

15 But if ye hate and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another.

16 This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.

17 For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

18 But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

19 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies,

21 Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

22 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23 Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

24 And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.

25 If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

26 Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. V.—Erroneous opinions are a dangerous spiritual pestilence. They are to the souls of men "firebrands, arrows, and death." Certainly, a great punishment awaits those who disseminate corrupted opinions, to the dishonour of God, to the hinderance of the Gospel, and to the injury of the souls of men. Paul's voluntary sufferings for Christ show his sincerity in the doctrines he taught, and his ardent attachment to him whose name he bore. Many may profess Christ, but how few, like Paul, will suffer for Christ. They who disturb the peace of churches set themselves off from that blessing and promise of our Lord, "Blessed are the peace-makers, for they shall be called the children of God." May Divine grace incline our hearts "to follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man can see the Lord!" Have we the graces of the Spirit? Let us breathe after an increase of grace, that we may flourish like the palm-tree, and grow like the cedar of Lebanon.

PRAYER.

O LORD God of Israel, the Father of mercies, there is no god like thee, in heaven above or in earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their hearts. We praise thee that we are encouraged by thy great kindness and condescension to draw near to thy presence in Immanuel's name. As children seek the help and succour of their earthly parents, we are permitted in like manner to seek from thee, our Father who art in heaven, the blessings of thy grace.

We thank our God for the mercies poured into the cup of our lot this day. Thou art he who givest us life, and health, and all things. Every moment we are furnished with some fresh occasion of praise and thankfulness.

May the preaching of the Gospel on the past Sabbath be followed by the illuminating and saving power of the Spirit. Abundantly bless the labours of our beloved pastor. May he be upheld by the power of Divine grace, in answer to the fervent, affectionate, and believing prayers of his people. May he and all thy faithful ministers have reason to say to the congregations of their care, Our Gospel came unto you not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance.

Give us the defence of thy Divine care this night, and prepare us for that heavenly state where the shades of night and the darkness of death shall be for ever unknown.

Animate us, Holy Spirit, with the delightful sentiments expressed in the word we have now read. Warm our hearts with Christian love. By love may we ever serve one another, and may our hearts be forcibly affected with the declaration, The law is fulfilled in one word: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Let Christian love reign in all the families with which we are connected, and let it reign in all the churches. We would mourn over the enmity and all the other corruptions of our heart. We would mourn over the great absence of Christian love among those who are Christians by profession. As an evidence, O Lord, that thou art again visiting the churches, let brotherly love prevail.

Preserve us as a family from all the works of the flesh. Suffer us not to live under the degrading influence of bodily lusts, nor under the humiliating sway of mental passions.

Preserve our dear children from the works of the flesh. By Divine grace may they be taught to flee youthful lusts, and be among the happy number who crucify the flesh with the affections and lusts.

We would earnestly pray for the graces of the Spirit. Enrich our souls and adorn our lives with love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, and temperance. Daily may we admire those graces, daily may we seek them, and daily may we exercise them to the honour of God, to the welfare of our own souls, and for the comfort of others. May it be our privilege, our blessing, our honour, our delight, to walk in the Spirit, and to live in the Spirit; then we shall not be desirous of vain glory—then we shall not be among the number of those who provoke one another, and who envy one another.

Lord, we present our prayers in Jesus' name, to whom, with the Father and Spirit, be endless praise. Amen.

HYPOCRISY EXPOSED.

Mercy seat. Sholden. Babylon Streams. Angel's Hymn. L. M.

- 1 THE Lord, the Judge, his churches warns,
Let hypocrites attend and fear,
Who place their hope in rites and forms,
But make not faith nor love their care.
- 2 They watch to do their neighbours wrong,
Yet dare to seek their Maker's face;
They take his covenant on their tongue,
But break his laws, abuse his grace.
- 3 To heaven they lift their hands unclean,
Defiled with lust, defiled with blood;
By night they practise every sin,
By day their mouths draw near to God.

WATTS, Ps. 50, p. 111.

JOB VIII.

The Hypocrite's Doom.

- THEN answered Bildad the Shuhite, and said,
2 How long wilt thou speak these things? and how long shall the words of thy mouth be like a strong wind?
3 Doth God pervert judgment? or doth the Almighty pervert justice?
4 If thy children have sinned against him, and he have cast them away for their transgression;
5 If thou wouldest seek unto God betimes, and make thy supplication to the Almighty;
6 If thou wert pure and upright; surely now he would awake for thee, and make the habitation of thy righteousness prosperous.
7 Though thy beginning was small, yet thy latter end should greatly increase.
11 Can the rush grow up without mire? can the flag grow without water?
12 Whilst it is yet in his greenness, and not cut down, it withereth before any other herb.
13 So are the paths of all that forget God; and the hypocrite's hope shall perish:
14 Whose hope shall be cut off, and whose trust shall be a spider's web.
15 He shall lean upon his house, but it shall not stand: he shall hold it fast, but it shall not endure.
16 He is green before the sun, and his branch shooteth forth in his garden.
17 His roots are wrapped about the heap, and seeth the place of stones.
18 If he destroy him from his place, then it shall deny him, saying, I have not seen thee.
19 Behold, this is the joy of his way, and out of the earth shall others grow.
20 Behold, God will not cast away a perfect man, neither will he help the evil doers;
21 Till he fill thy mouth with laughing, and thy lips with rejoicing.
22 They that hate thee shall be clothed with shame; and he dwelling place of the wicked shall come to nought.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB VIII.—The wisest sayings are perverted when heard by the ear of prejudice. How peculiarly becoming is Christian love! "It thinketh no evil." It traces holy actions to holy principles and holy motives, and refuses to consider that they are performed for hypocritical purposes, or merely to serve selfish ends. God is essentially possessed of every perfection, and his moral government furnishes a bright display of the moral attributes of his nature. In thousands of instances, afflictions and bereavements are testimonies of God's fatherly love, and not of his judicial displeasure. When parents are deprived by death of their offspring, they should remember that they are more Christ's property than theirs, that their affection bears no proportion to Christ's love, and that in answer to their earnest supplications they have entered upon the blessedness of immortality. The children of God are adorned with purity, they are enriched with uprightness, and he casts them into the furnace of affliction, that they may become more pure, and that their graces may shine forth with all the brightness of noon-day. It is true of the believer, his beginning is small; but when he reaches his heavenly home, to what an astonishing increase of knowledge, wisdom, and felicity he shall have attained! Here he is the tender plant, in heaven he is the full-grown tree. Here, he knows the feeble light of a star; in heaven, he shines with the glory of a sun.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the merciful Jehovah, and by thy mercy thou hast shed the most blessed and glorious lustre over all thy perfections. Thine eye is ever open to see all the injuries thy people sustain from the hand of their enemies, and in thy due time thou wilt accomplish in their behalf a most complete deliverance. O Lord, who is like unto thee, who deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that spoileth him!

We desire, O Lord, to feel humbled in thy presence, under a conviction that we have sinned against thee; and great reason have we to wonder that thou hast not cast us away for our transgression. We have often forgotten thee, O Lord; we have forgotten thy omnipresence, we have forgotten thy holiness and justice, and we have been most unmindful and insensible of thy goodness. We have also reason to mourn over our formality in our religious services, and, alas! that in many instances our professions of piety have been accompanied with the most culpable hypocrisy. Now we plead the merit of our Saviour's blood, by which alone the guilt of these our sins can be washed away. And we supplicate the cleansing power of the Holy Spirit, by whom alone we can be adorned with the beauties of holiness. We lift up our eyes to thee for holiness. Sprinkle us with hyssop, and we shall be clean: wash thou us, and we shall be whiter than the snow.

Lord, extend thy great compassion to pious parents who are afflicted with ungodly and perverse children, and who daily send their supplications to thy throne that they may not be for ever cast away in thy wrath. O remove from them the dark cloud of suffering and grief which hangs over them, and do thou send them relief, by plucking their graceless children as brands out of the burning, and making them monuments of thy saving mercy.

Lord, awake slumbering hypocrites out of that lethargy which endangers their eternal peace. O show them the fallacy of their present hope—that it is a hope which must perish. Mercifully give us that hope which is a fruit of the Spirit, and deliver us from that false confidence which must be cut off, and from that trust which only proves a spider's web, which can afford no defence from the raging storms of adversity and affliction.

Look down with compassion on our offspring, and O give them the pearl of great price—an interest in Jesus, thine unspeakable gift. Never may our children prefer the profession before the reality of Divine grace.

We thank our God that we have been preserved through the night, and that we have lived to see another day. This day may we walk with God; may we walk in dependence on an arm of gracious power, and may we walk under the direction of thy wisdom, O Jesus, in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

Have mercy on aged and afflicted travellers, and give them an animating prospect of the King in his beauty, and of the land that is afar off.

Hear our unworthy and imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake, to whom we ascribe glory, honour, and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

GLORIFYING IN THE CROSS.

Coleham. Arms. Carey's.

P. M.

- 1 REDEEMER! whither should I flee,
Or how escape the wrath to come?
The weary sinner flies to thee,
For shelter from impending doom:
Smile on me, gracious Lord, and show
Thyself the friend of sinners now!
- 2 Beneath the shadow of thy cross
The heavy-laden soul finds rest;
I would esteem the world but dross,
So I might be of Christ possessed!
I borrow every joy from thee,
For thou art life and light to me.

GALATIANS VI.

Exhortations to Duties.

BRETHREN, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.

2 Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ.

3 For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself.

4 But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another.

5 For every man shall bear his own burden.

6 Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things.

7 Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

8 For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

9 And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

10 As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.

11 Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.

12 As many as desire to make a fair shew in the flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised; only lest they should suffer persecution for the cross of Christ.

13 For neither they themselves who are circumcised keep the law; but desire to have you circumcised, that they may glory in your flesh.

14 But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

17 From henceforth let no man trouble me: for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.

18 Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON GAL. VI.—Fallen brethren and sisters in Christ need our pity, our forbearance, our counsel, and our prayers. Expressions of anger may do them the greatest injury; while expressions of affection and tenderness may be of the greatest benefit, in awaking their slumbering graces, and in restoring them to that sphere of Christian usefulness from which they have been removed for a season by the influence of temptation. Is Christian forbearance a grace? Then we may expect, while we continue in this state of imperfection and frailty, numerous opportunities will occur for the exercise of this grace. As nothing has such a tendency to produce self-deception as pride, let it be our daily, earnest prayer, that we may be clothed with humility, and filled with those abasing views of ourselves, which will prove the exalted place we occupy in Christ's unmerited and boundless love. We cannot too narrowly watch our own hearts; we cannot too closely scrutinize our own motives and ends; we cannot too earnestly plead with God to search us and try us. It is thus, by the Holy Spirit, that we shall make rapid progress in Divine and holy attainments, and "flourish like the palm-tree, and grow like the cedar in Lebanon."

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious Lord God, while there is none like thee in thy power and majesty, there is none like thee in thy compassion and goodness. Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious; long suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

We humbly approach thy footstool in the name of our Divine Intercessor, whom thou hearest always. Behold, O Lord, our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. Such is our vileness and guilt, that without a mediator our prayers never could ascend to thy throne, and our persons never could be acceptable in thy sight. O be merciful to our unrighteousness; our sins and our iniquities, remember them no more. Blessed Saviour, we are affected with the leprosy of sin; our disease is deeply rooted, and it has overspread all the faculties, desires, and affections of our soul. If thou wilt, O Jesus, thou canst make us whole. Graciously say to us, in the exercise of thine almighty power, I WILL; be ye whole.

We supplicate forgiveness of the sins of the past day, and pray that the mercies we have received may excite repentance, love, thankfulness, and praise. We thank a prayer-hearing God that we are enabled, and we trust in some measure disposed, to draw near the throne of grace to present our evening prayer. Lord, enable us to present it in the exercise of a lively faith in thee, as willing to answer our requests through the atonement of the Lamb of God. Be our God and our guard this night. Refresh our bodies with sleep, and mercifully spare our lives to another day. May we love to live, that we may glorify the living God, be more diligent in his service, and more useful to all around us, but more especially to the Church of Christ.

Give us grace to follow the wholesome counsels we have now read in the sacred volume. Give us that wisdom and compassion by which we must endeavour most tenderly to recover a fallen brother. Let us not despise him when he has fallen, but rather consider ourselves, lest we also be tempted.

Suffer not our children to fall into temptation. By the guidance of early piety may they be preserved from temptations, which will otherwise prove overwhelming.

O teach us with Christian affection to bear one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. Give us humility, and suffer us not to think we are something, if we are nothing. Deliver us from self-deception, and may we never forget that God cannot be mocked. Convince the unconverted among us—if there be any such—that, if they sow to the flesh, they shall of the flesh reap corruption. O teach us all to sow to the Spirit, then of the Spirit we shall reap eternal life.

As a family may we all glory in the cross of Christ. Teach us to glory in thy love, O Jesus, which brought thee to the accursed tree. Teach us to glory in the honour brought to the Divine perfections, and the salvation brought to ruined men, by thy sufferings and death on the accursed tree. God forbid that we should glory, save in the cross of Jesus Christ. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with our spirit. Amen.

JOB IX.

God's Greatness and Justice.

THEN Job answered and said,

- 2 I know it is so of a truth: but how should man be just with God?
- 3 If he will contend with him, he cannot answer him one of a thousand.
- 4 He is wise in heart, and mighty in strength: who hath hardened himself against him, and hath prospered?
- 5 Which removeth the mountains, and they know not: which overturneth them in his anger.
- 6 Which shaketh the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof tremble.
- 7 Which commandeth the sun, and it riseth not; and sealeth up the stars.
- 8 Which alone spreadeth out the heavens, and treadeth upon the waves of the sea.
- 9 Which maketh Arcturus, Orion, and Pleiades, and the chambers of the south.
- 10 Which doeth great things past finding out; yea, and wonders without number.
- 11 Lo, he goeth by me, and I see him not: he passeth on also, but I perceive him not.
- 12 Behold, he taketh away, who can hinder him? who will say unto him, What doest thou?
- 13 If God will not withdraw his anger, the proud helpers do stoop under him.
- 14 How much less shall I answer him, and choose out my words to reason with him?
- 15 Whom, though I were righteous, yet would I not answer, but I would make supplication to my judge.
- 16 If I had called, and he had answered me; yet would I not believe that he had hearkened unto my voice.
- 17 For he breaketh me with a tempest, and multiplieth my wounds without cause.
- 18 He will not suffer me to take my breath, but filleth me with bitterness.
- 19 If I speak of strength, lo, he is strong: and if of judgment, who shall set me a time to plead?
- 20 If I justify myself, mine own mouth shall condemn me: if I say, I am perfect, it shall also prove me perverse.
- 21 Though I were perfect, yet would I not know my soul: I would despise my life.
- 22 This is one thing, therefore I said it, He destroyeth the perfect and the wicked.
- 23 If the scourge slay suddenly, he will laugh at the trial of the innocent.
- 24 The earth is given into the hand of the wicked: he covereth the faces of the judges thereof; if not, where, and who is he?
- 25 Now my days are swifter than a post: they flee away, they see no good.
- 26 They are passed away as the swift ships: as the eagle that hasteth to the prey.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB IX.—How vile is man, when compared with a holy God! and if God were to enter into judgment with us, we could not answer for one of a thousand of our transgressions. It is they only whom God has pardoned, accepted, and sanctified, who have just, deep, penitential, and humbling views of their personal sinfulness, helplessness, and unworthiness. This is a lesson never learned while the soul remains in nature's darkness. When the soul is spiritually prosperous, and the graces of the spirit vigorous and active, it is then the believer has the most exalted views of God's majesty, glory, and grace. When we view the omnipotence of God connected with his justice, how great the folly and madness of those appear, who live the open and avowed enemies of the Most High! Their opposition must necessarily prove the most hopeless, and, without a regenerating change, issue in their endless perdition. Infinitely blessed are those who can say, "We have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, our merciful Father, to approach thy throne with solemnity, and under a grateful impression of the mercies we have received during the past night. We praise thee that we are in the land of the living, and that we are now prostrate before thy gracious throne, where the blessings of salvation are dispensed. We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as wise in heart, and mighty in strength. None ever hardened himself against thee and prospered. Mercifully impress this solemn and serious truth upon the minds of our graceless friends, who are sunk in cold indifference, and, without the risings of an awakened conscience, are living in a state of opposition to the Divine Majesty, and in a course of rebellion against the Divine laws. We adore thee, O Lord, in thy great power. Thou removest the mountains, and they know not; they are overturned in thine anger. Thou dost shake the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof tremble. Thou commandest the sun, and it riseth not; thou scalest up the stars. Thy mighty hand did spread out the heavens, and thou treadest upon the waves of the sea. The glorious constellations of the sky are thy workmanship. But who can conceive the glory of thy works? for thou doest great things past finding out, and wonders without number. We rejoice that we have heard of the greatest of thy wise contrivances—the plan of redemption; and we rejoice that we have heard of the most wonderful of thy works—salvation through a Saviour's blood. Adorable Saviour, thou dost appear more wonderful, working out salvation on the cross of Calvary, than calling worlds into existence at the commencement of the creation. O thou holy and righteous God, we acknowledge our unworthiness and guilt. In ourselves we cannot be just before God. Surely, if thou wert to contend with us, we could not answer thee one of a thousand. Lord, teach us often to take a review of our sinfulness, and in the exercise of genuine repentance, may we be humbled in the dust in the presence of a heart-searching God, because of the sins of our heart, and the errors of our lives.

Sanctify all our past afflictions; and in the afflictions that await us, may we never be left to arraign the wisdom, the justice, or the mercy of our God.

Let the minds of our children be impressed with the uncertainty, the shortness, and the swiftness of time. Convince them that, though they are young, their days are swifter than a post. May they not calculate on length of days, and may they be taught by grace to lay up treasures for eternity.

Bless our aged friends; and, while they find that their days are passed away as the swift ships, and as the eagle that hasteth to the prey, may their hopes of heaven be firmly fixed on Jesus, the unchanging rock.

Assist us, O Lord, in all the duties of the day, hear our prayers, and forgive us our sins, for Immanuel's sake, our Intercessor and Saviour. Amen.

WATTS, 54, B. I.

EPHESIANS I.

The Grace of God.

BLESSED be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ:

4 According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love:

5 Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will,

6 To the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved.

7 In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace;

8 Wherein he hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence;

9 Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself:

10 That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him:

11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will:

12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ.

13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

15 Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints,

16 Cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers;

17 That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him:

18 The eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints,

19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power,

20 Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places,

21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come:

22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church,

23 Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. I.—Are the blessings of salvation ours? then the God of salvation infinitely deserves our love, our thanksgiving, and our praise. What a delightful subject of contemplation are the decrees of God to the believer! who can, on the one hand, read his name in the Lamb's book of life, and, on the other, "read his title clear to mansions in the sky." May the Holy Spirit inspire us with that faith by which we shall enjoy this glorious discovery, and experience this holy delight. What a rich and overflowing Fountain is Christ! from him the river of salvation flows—consisting of innumerable streams of blessings—"which make glad the city of God, even the holy place of tabernacles of the Most High." Is Jesus, as the Surety of his Church, the great depository of wisdom and knowledge? May we be enlightened by the bright beams of that knowledge, and irradiated by the bright rays of that wisdom which emanates from him alone—the glorious Sun of righteousness and of grace!

PRAYER.

OUR creating, our preserving, and our redeeming God, we adore thee as the God of grace. God the Father, we adore thee as a God of grace. Thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness. God the Son, thou art a God of grace: thou art full of grace and truth. O that each member of this family could sing, in the exercise of a lively, vigorous faith, Out of thy fulness have we all received, and grace for grace. God the Holy Ghost, we adore thee as a God of grace: thou art the Spirit of grace and supplication. Glory to God in the highest, that the Triune Jehovah is held up before us in the everlasting Gospel, shining in all the loveliness of mercy and grace.

We present ourselves before a throne of grace, filled by a God of grace, to present our evening sacrifice. O Lord, we offer up a sacrifice of thanksgiving for the food, the raiment, the health, the reason, and all the temporal and spiritual, personal and social blessings we have this day enjoyed. Lord, forgive the sins of the day. We desire to repose with confidence on thy goodness this night. In our defenceless state upon our beds may we be surrounded by thy special care.

While our dear children are enjoying the health, the sprightliness, and vivacity of early day, O may they remember that the days of affliction will come, and may they flee to Jesus now, who is willing to comfort them in all their afflictions, and in due time to convey them to the enjoyments of heaven.

Lord, we come to thee as a family, and we would now earnestly pray that all of us may be put in possession of converting grace. Lord, save us. O that we could sing together on earth, and after death in heaven, that song which the Apostle and the believing Ephesians sung: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ. Give us faith to receive and rest on Jesus as he is offered to us in the Gospel; then shall we see that we have been chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, according to the good pleasure of thy will, to the praise of the glory of thy grace.

Eternal praises to our God that there is redemption, and that the chief of sinners are encouraged to seek redemption through the blood of Christ, even the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace.

We thank thee for the work of the Spirit in the hearts of thy people, which is the blessed earnest of the heavenly inheritance. We humbly ask this earnest, and that we may be sealed by the Holy Spirit.

May our prayers and our persons be accepted through Christ the beloved, and the chiefest among ten thousand. Amen.

JOB XI.

God incomprehensible.

THEN answered Zophar the Naamathite, and said,

- 2 Should not the multitude of words be answered? and should a man full of talk be justified?
- 3 Should thy lies make men hold their peace? and when thou mockest, shall no man make thee ashamed?
- 4 For thou hast said, My doctrine is pure, and I am clean in thine eyes.
- 5 But oh that God would speak, and open his lips against thee;
- 6 And that he would shew thee the secrets of wisdom, that they are double to that which is! Know therefore that God exacteth of thee less than thine iniquity deserveth.
- 7 Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection?
- 8 It is as high as heaven; what canst thou do? deeper than hell; what canst thou know?
- 9 The measure thereof is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea.
- 10 If he cut off, and shut up, or gather together, then who can hinder him?
- 11 For he knoweth vain men: he seeth wickedness also; will he not then consider it?
- 12 For vain man would be wise, though man be born like a wild ass's colt.
- 13 If thou prepare thine heart, and stretch out thine hands toward him;
- 14 If iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles.
- 15 For then shalt thou lift up thy face without spot; yea, thou shalt be steadfast, and shalt not fear:
- 16 Because thou shalt forget thy misery, and remember it as waters that pass away:
- 17 And thine age shall be clearer than the noon-day; thou shalt shine forth, thou shalt be as the morning.
- 18 And thou shalt be secure, because there is hope; yea, thou shalt dig about thee, and thou shalt take thy rest in safety.
- 19 Also thou shalt lie down, and none shall make thee afraid; yea, many shall make suit unto thee.
- 20 But the eyes of the wicked shall fail, and they shall not escape, and their hope shall be as the giving up of the ghost.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XI.—Let us take warning from Zophar, to guard against an uncharitable spirit, which never fails to obscure the lustre of the graces; which strengthens the moral maladies of the heart, and also makes the most sinful application of truth the most sacred and valuable. It should be our constant care, both in the world and in the Churoh, that our words be few, well ordered, ever seasoned with the salt of grace, and directed to the great object of God's glory and the spiritual welfare of ourselves and others. How true the saying of the Apostle: "He that offendeth not in word is a perfect man!" Wisdom is the most precious, the most useful jewel. May it be the object of our love and of our choice! May we seek after it, even with greater intensity and earnestness than the covetous man seeks after his treasures of silver and of gold. Jesus is the depository of this jewel, and if we ask it, he will mercifully bestow it.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the infinitely incomprehensible Jehovah, whom we rejoice to approach in Jesus' name. Thine attributes never can be comprehended, even by the most exalted and intelligent beings who minister before thy heavenly throne. Thy days are everlasting, and cannot be numbered, and thy nature fills the immensity of space. The line of human or angelic understanding can never sound the wonderful depths of thy purposes or thy wisdom. Who can by searching find out God? who can find out the Almighty unto perfection? It is high as heaven; what can we do? it is deeper than hell; what can we know? The measure thereof is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea. Impress us, O Lord, with a sense of thy glory. In the presence of such boundless majesty, we desire to be affected with a sense of our own insignificance; and before the lustre of thy holiness, we desire to mourn over the vileness and depravity of our nature.

Truly, O Lord, thou hast not dealt with us as our iniquities deserved. In all the afflictions which have befallen us, even if they had been tenfold more severe, we should still have reason to acknowledge, with gratitude and praise, God hath exacted of us less than our iniquities deserved.

We acknowledge, O Lord, thy great and irresistible power. When thou stretchest forth the hand of thy vengeance, thy mightiest foes are compelled to tremble. If thou dost cut off, or shut up, or gather together, then who can hinder thee? When thy wrath is kindled but for a little, blessed are all they who put their trust in thee.

Lord, impress the wicked, and particularly our ungodly relatives, with the solemn truth, that a God of holiness and justice is the witness of all their purposes, their words, and their actions. Thou knowest vain man; thou seest his wickedness also, and thou wilt consider it.

May our dear children be humbled by the thought, that they are born like the wild ass's colt; yea, that folly is bound up in their hearts. Lord, give them wisdom. We thank thee thou hast given them reason; in addition, give them and our servants thy grace.

Humble all of us deeply under the thought, that we are born in such circumstances of degradation as to resemble the wild ass's colt. We rejoice that through Christ we may be raised up from the degradation of folly and sin, to the blessed heights of holiness and wisdom. Lord, prepare our hearts, that they may love and honour thee. And give us grace, in earnest and believing prayer, to stretch out our hands to God. O teach us to put the iniquity of our lives far away, and may we not suffer wickedness to dwell in our tabernacle. May our hearts be holy temples, and may our habitations be a Bethel, the holy, consecrated residence of the Lord our God. O prepare us for the heavenly world, where we shall lift up our face without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing; where we shall shine forth, and be as the morning.

We thank a kind Providence for the mercies of the night, and may we live and act this day under the direction and smiles of a new-covenant God.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy to receive power and riches and strength.

Salvation by Grace.

AND you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins;

2 Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience:

3 Among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others.

4 But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;)

6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus:

7 That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus.

8 For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God:

9 Not of works, lest any man should boast.

10 For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands;

12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world:

13 But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us;

15 For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

16 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God;

17 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone;

18 In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord:

19 In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. II.—The first Adam has left us a legacy of death, temporal, spiritual, and eternal! If we flee for refuge to Christ, the second Adam, he will confer upon us a legacy of spiritual and eternal life; and in the morning of the resurrection he will raise our lifeless bodies to the possession of immortality, and liken them to his own glorious body. Unspeakably blessed is the change which takes place in the moment of conversion. He who was running the downward course to the world of misery and despair, now begins the upward course which leads to heaven and its endless joys. It is humbling and profitable to the child of God to remember, and thank frequently, what he once was, and to think with thankfulness and praise on what he now is. He can say, Once I was dead, now I am alive; once I was the child of Satan, bound for hell; now I am the child of God, and bound for heaven. "O to grace how great a debtor!"

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we come before thee as a family this evening, because thou art a God of boundless compassion and grace. We are unworthy, but thou art gracious to the unworthy. Divine Saviour, give us an interest in thy righteousness and intercession, while we present our supplications before a prayer-hearing God. Holy Spirit, give us the benefit of thy blessed influences in our present approach to the Lord our God; then shall we draw near in the exercise of holy sincerity, deep humility, and lively faith. In the exercise of thy grace, O Lord, thou art a sovereign. Thou hast said, I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy. We bless thee that thou hast given some of the most illustrious instances of thy gracious sovereignty, in changing the hearts of the very vilest of the children of men, and making them the objects of thy saving love.

Bless to us the Word of inspired wisdom we have now read. We thank God for the faithful account there given of man's depravity as a fallen being, and the encouraging description of man's state as restored to God's favour, image, and fellowship.

O Lord, we would with humility acknowledge the degraded and wretched circumstances of man as living without thee. We confess that by nature we were dead in trespasses and sins; that in time past we walked according to the course of this world, according to the dictates of the prince of the power of the air, and not according to the spirit of Christ. We confess, O Lord, that we had our conversation in times past in the lusts of the flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind; and that by nature we were children of wrath, even as others.

Lord, impress our beloved children with the melancholy truth, that they are by nature children of wrath. O by grace, by a new and divine birth, make them children of God.

We also acknowledge that in our natural state we were without Christ, having no interest in his merit, and having no interest in his spirit. We were aliens from the commonwealth of Israel thy spiritual Church, we were strangers from the covenants of promise, we were without God, and we were without hope in the world.

If any of us have been delivered from this state, we ascribe to a God of love and mercy, glory, honour, and praise. Through Jesus may we be raised from the grave of a spiritual state, and at last may we be elevated to those heavenly mansions where Jesus dwells in all the splendour of his uncreated and mediatorial glory. We pray for all our relatives and friends who are still far from God. Let them be no more strangers and foreigners; make them fellow-citizens with the saints; and may they form a part of that Church of which Jesus is the foundation-stone. We thank our God for the mercies of the day, and we would believingly commit ourselves, O gracious Father, to thy care this night. Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

GOD'S GREATNESS AND MAN'S MEANNESS.

- 1 YE weak inhabitants of clay,
Ye trifling insects of a day,
Low in your native dust bow down
Before the Eternal's awful throne
- 2 With trembling heart, with solemn eye
Behold Jehovah seated high;
And search what worthy sacrifice
Your hands can give, your thoughts devise.
- 3 Loud let ten thousand trumpets sound,
And call remotest nations round,
Assembled on the crowded plains,
Princes and people, kings and swains.
- 4 The drop that from the bucket falls,
The dust that hangs upon the scales,
Is more to sky, and earth, and sea,
Than all this pomp, O God, to thee.

JOB XII.

God's Power and Wisdom.

- AND Job answered and said,
- 2 No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you.
  - 3 But I have understanding as well as you; I am not inferior to you: yea, who knoweth not such things as these?
  - 4 I am as one mocked of his neighbour, who calleth upon God, and he answereth him: the just upright man is laughed to scorn.
  - 5 He that is ready to slip with his feet is as a lamp despised in the thought of him that is at ease.
  - 6 The tabernacles of robbers prosper, and they that provoke God are secure; into whose hand God bringeth abundantly.
  - 7 But ask now the beasts, and they shall teach thee; and the fowls of the air, and they shall tell thee:
  - 8 Or speak to the earth, and it shall teach thee: and the fishes of the sea shall declare unto thee.
  - 9 Who knoweth not in all these that the hand of the Lord hath wrought this?
  - 10 In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind.
  - 11 Doth not the ear try words? and the mouth taste his meat?
  - 12 With the ancient is wisdom; and in length of days understanding.
  - 13 With him is wisdom and strength, he hath counsel and understanding.
  - 14 Behold, he breaketh down, and it cannot be built again; he shutteth up a man, and there can be no opening.
  - 15 Behold, he withholdeth the waters, and they dry up: also he sendeth them out, and they overturn the earth.
  - 16 With him is strength and wisdom: the deceived and the deceiver are his.
  - 17 He leadeth counsellors away spoiled, and maketh the judges fools.
  - 18 He looseth the bond of kings, and girdeth their loins with a girdle.
  - 19 He leadeth princes away spoiled, and overthroweth the mighty.
  - 20 He removeth away the speech of the trusty, and taketh away the understanding of the aged.
  - 21 He poureth contempt upon princes, and weakeneth the strength of the mighty.

EXPLANATIONS UPON JOB XII.—Pride is an abomination to the Lord. It expelled angels from heaven and man from Paradise. It is a moral malady, which covers the soul with spiritual deformity, and renders it peculiarly loathsome in the eyes of a holy God. May God, by his gracious Spirit, preserve us from this most dangerous disease, and may we ever exemplify the humility of the genuine followers of the Lamb, "esteeming each other better than ourselves!" As outward adversity, in itself, is no proof of God's wrath, outward prosperity is often no proof of his love. Does the sun of prosperity sometimes shine with great brightness and long continuance on the enemies of God? This bright day, if mercy prevent not, shall be followed by a dreary night of endless darkness and woe! Are we thirsting after wisdom? Are we in any measure apt to learn and receive instruction? Then creatures animate and inanimate shall become our teachers. These proclaim God an omnipotent and wise Creator; these proclaim God in his providence holy, benevolent, and kind.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the great Omnipotent, who created all things. When we behold the earth with all its inhabitants, every thing proclaims, The Lord hath wrought this. When we look up to the heavens, every sparkling star proclaims, The Lord hath wrought this. O, through Christ, accomplish in us a new creation. May our minds experience that blessed change, through regenerating grace, by which our souls shall ever appear lovely in the eye of God.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the source of life. In thy hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind. O breathe upon us the Holy Spirit, and impart to each of us that spiritual life which will be followed by a life of immortality beyond the skies. Thou, O Lord, art the ancient ONE, with whom there is wisdom; and thou art the fountain of all that wisdom which is communicated to angels and men. Lord Jesus, give each of us saving wisdom—that wisdom by which we shall know God as the God of salvation—that wisdom by which we shall act the wise part of committing our souls to the hand of Christ, who is a faithful Redeemer.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the almighty and irresistible control thou dost exercise over all beings and events. May a sacred solemnity fill our minds when we think of thine awful sovereignty, and of thine absolute dominion. Thou breakest down, and it cannot be built up again; and when thou shuttest up a man in thy providence, there can be no opening.

O God of salvation, suffer not our dear children to remain shut up in the grave of a natural state. Praise to God, it is a grave that may be opened. Say to them, by thy mighty power, Come forth!

Have mercy, on the hardened, impenitent, and profane, and particularly on such as are related to us by the ties of nature and blood. Stop them, gracious Saviour, in their course of guilt, and allow them to go no farther in a road which inevitably leads to the dark chambers of everlasting perdition. Teach them to think of the unutterable miseries of the state of the lost, who are shut up in the prison of God's justice, where there is no opening.

We acknowledge, mighty Saviour, thine infinite superiority to the kings of the earth, in wisdom, power, and dominion. O teach earthly kings and rulers their dependence upon thee, and that they are responsible to thee for the use they make of that authority with which they are entrusted. O with what ease thou canst punish, with what ease thou hast punished wicked kings! Thou leadest princes away spoiled, and overthrowest the mighty. Thou pourest contempt upon princes, and thou dost weaken the strength of the mighty. O teach our rulers to stand in awe of thee, and sin not!

We thank thee, most gracious God, for thy kindness during the past night, and we implore the guidance and protection of thy grace this day. Lord, hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Amen.

CHRIST'S LOVE IN THE HEART.

Lutton. Conacher. Jude's. Eaton.

L. M.

- 1 COME, dearest Lord, descend and dwell
By faith and love in every breast;
Then shall we know, and taste, and feel
The joys that cannot be expressed.
- 2 Come fill our hearts with inward strength,
Make our enlarged souls possess,
And learn the height, and breadth, and length
Of thine unmeasurable grace.
- 3 Now to the God whose power can do
More than our thoughts or wishes know,
Be everlasting honours done
By all the church, through Christ his Son.

Watts, 135, B. I.

EPHESIANS III.

The Gospel and the Love of Christ.

FOR this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles,

2 (If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God which is given me to you-ward :

3 How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery ; as I wrote afore in few words,

4 Whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ)

5 Which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit ;

6 That the Gentiles should be fellow-heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel :

7 Whereof I was made a minister, according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me by the effectual working of his power.

8 Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ ;

9 And to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ :

10 To the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God,

11 According to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord :

12 In whom we have boldness and access with confidence by the faith of him.

13 Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which is your glory.

14 For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

15 Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,

16 That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man ;

17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith ; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love,

18 May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height ;

19 And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God.

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. III.—How mysterious and wise the arrangements of providence! Paul was a prisoner at Rome, and while in his confinement, he was inspired to write those letters by which multitudes have been made spiritually free, and have obtained the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Ministers of Christ are sent upon a blessed and sublime embassy, and are commanded to deliver a commission of mercy, on which depends the glory of God, the interests of Zion, and the salvation of myriads. How striking the declaration of the Apostle, "We then, as ambassadors from God, beseech you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God!" How thankful we should feel that we are born amid the bright beams of the Gospel-dispensation. Under the law the great mystery of salvation was enveloped in comparative obscurity. That period was only the morning dawn of the Church. Then believers saw through a glass darkly; now we see face to face. Glory to God!

PRAYER.

OUR God and our Father in Christ, we adore thee in those rich displays of thy wisdom, power, and goodness, which appear in the works of creation, the visible universe around us. But we more especially praise thee for those richer manifestations of thy wisdom, power, and goodness which shine in the great work of redemption through our Saviour's blood. As a family we thank thee for all those temporal, social, and earthly comforts we are permitted to enjoy; but we would more especially thank our God for the mystery of the Gospel, which was hid in God before the foundation of the world. We would thank thee, God of grace, for the Gospel, which is the word of thy grace, and which is able by thy quickening and promised spirit to build us up, and to give us an invaluable inheritance among them who are sanctified. Glory to God on high, that the grace of God, which bringeth salvation, hath appeared unto all men. Holy Ghost, may we be enabled to show to thy Church, and to all around, that we have not received the Gospel of thy grace in vain. O that we may show, and that abundantly, the living, sanctifying effects of the Gospel on our hearts and lives. May we practically deny all ungodliness and worldly lusts, and live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world, looking for the blessed hope, and the glorious appearance of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Forgive the sins we have committed this day, and may we earnestly desire that we may be the inhabitants of that holy heaven where sin's polluting stain shall never appear to deface the beauty of the glorified immortals. Graciously afford us this night the care and the protection of thy providential wings. O that we could say every evening, when retiring to rest, We know in whom we have believed, and are persuaded that he is able to keep that which we have committed to him against that day.

We thank God that the Gospel is preached unto the Gentiles, and that St. Paul was especially appointed to be the apostle of the Gentiles. Glory to our God for the numerous churches which were planted among Gentile nations, and for the vast multitudes of Gentiles who were converted to Jesus through his instrumentality. O hasten the day when all nations shall hear of the unsearchable riches of Christ—when all nations shall be astonished at the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge.

Open the eyes of our children to see the wonders of thy love, O Jesus. May they and our domestics see greater glory in thy person than in the sun; and greater wonders in thy love than in all the universe beside.

May all of us savingly know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge. May we ever admire the height, the depth, the length, and the breadth of the love of Christ. We present our prayer in Jesus' name. Now to him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, be glory in the Church, by Christ Jesus, throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

WAITING FOR DEATH AND GLORY.

Surrey Chapel. Epton. Lytham. Fitch's.

P. M.

- 1 HIDE me in my Saviour's grave
Till thy wrath is all o'erpast;
Now appoint a time to save,
Think on me for good at last;
Brought out of thy secret place,
Pure in heart, to see thy face.
- 2 For this only thing I wait,
Wait with fervent, patient hope,
Raised to an eternal state
I shall after God wake up,
Glorious in thine image shine,
Filled with life and love divine.

C. WRESLY.

JOB XIV.

The Condition of Man's Life.

MAN that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble.

- 2 He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.
- 3 And dost thou open thine eyes upon such an one, and bringest me into judgment with thee?
- 4 Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? not one.
- 5 Seeing his days are determined, the number of his months are with thee, thou hast appointed his bounds that he cannot pass;
- 6 Turn from him, that he may rest, till he shall accomplish, as an hireling, his day.
- 7 For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease.
- 8 Though the root thereof wax old in the earth, and the stock thereof die in the ground;
- 9 Yet through the scent of water it will bud, and bring forth boughs like a plant.
- 10 But man dieth, and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?
- 11 As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up:
- 12 So man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep.
- 13 O that thou wouldest hide me in the grave, that thou wouldest keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldest appoint me a set time, and remember me!
- 14 If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come.
- 15 Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands.
- 16 For now thou numberest my steps: dost thou not watch over my sin?
- 17 My transgression is sealed up in a bag, and thou sewest up mine iniquity.
- 18 And surely the mountain falling cometh to nought, and the rock is removed out of his place.
- 19 The waters wear the stones: thou wastest away the things which grow out of the dust of the earth; and thou destroyest the hope of man.
- 20 Thou prevailest for ever against him, and he passeth: thou changest his countenance, and sendest him away.
- 21 His sons come to honour, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them.
- 22 But his flesh upon him shall have pain, and his soul within him shall mourne.

PARABLES UPON JOB XIV.—Is the life of believers on earth short? Their life in heaven shall extend through the ages of a never-ending eternity. Delightful and assured hope! Is their life in many cases full of trouble? In heaven it shall be filled with imperishable joy. O delightful anticipation! Is their mortal life a fading flower? Shall their bodies wither like the tender herb under the rays of a sultry sun? An immortal and glorious life awaits the bodies of the redeemed when, at the last day, that which is sown in corruption shall be raised in incorruption, and when this mortal shall put on immortality. O delightful expectation! Shall the death of their bodies be a long sleep, and probably extended during thousands of years? It shall not be an endless sleep. When the heavens and the earth shall pass away as a scroll, when all terrestrial glory shall be burnt up, the bodies of the saints shall awake out of this long sleep, amidst the music of angels and the splendours of the descending Judge!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, whom we approach in the name of Christ, thou dwellest in the highest heavens. No archangel can conceive the height or the glory of thy throne. O with what awe and reverence we should prostrate ourselves before thee! With humility and thankfulness we acknowledge thy gracious condescension, that, notwithstanding thy greatness, majesty, and power, thou dost humble thyself to admit such worms as we are into thy presence; thou dost encourage us to present our supplications, and assure us that all the mercies we seek in the name of Christ, and agreeably to thy holy will, we shall certainly obtain. Thou art worthy to be admired with our highest thoughts: O let our thoughts rise to thyself. Thou art worthy of our most ardent affection; teach us to love thee with all our heart, with all our strength, and with all our mind. Thou art entitled to all our obedience; give us grace that we may serve thee cheerfully and constantly all the days of our life. When our journey on earth comes to a close, may we be engaged in admiring, serving, praising, and enjoying thee, for ever and ever.

We thank God that during the past night thou hast preserved our lives, our reason, and our health. We rejoice that we are permitted to begin the day with thee. May we now receive from thy throne all those graces we require to enable us to serve and honour thee this day. Thou hast brought us in safety to the end of another week; bring us in safety to the end of our life. We are now entering upon the last day of the week; teach us to live as if it were the last day of our lives. We are drawing near the Sabbath; O that we could feel as if we were drawing near the glorious Sabbath in heaven, which will last as long as eternity itself.

Bless to us the very solemn truths we have now read. May they be instrumental in bringing our mortality to our remembrance.

Make them the mean of impressing the minds of our dear children with the shortness of time, the certainty of death, and the nearness of eternity.

Teach us daily to think upon the event of death; and may we never separate the remembrance of death from the remembrance of Christ, the glorious conqueror of death. Give us the animating hope that, when our bodies shall be cut down like fading flowers, our souls shall flourish in heaven, amid all the glories of immortality. Enable us to believe that when our bodies shall be fast asleep in the tomb, our souls shall be mingling with angels amid the glories of heavenly light.

We thank thee, O Jesus, that thou hast sanctified the grave of thy saints, and that it is changed into a bed of rest. In the hopes of an untinged death, in the hopes of a blessed resurrection, and in the hopes of a glorious immortality, may each one of us say, in the language of Job, All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come.

Hearer of prayer, bless this service, and hear our supplications, for Jesus' sake, our divine Mediator. Amen.

DODDRIDGE.

EPHESIANS IV.

Holiness and Unity recommended.

I THEREFORE, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called,

2 With all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love;

3 Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling;

5 One Lord, one faith, one baptism,

6 One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

7 But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ.

8 Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth?)

10 He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things.)

11 And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers;

12 For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ:

13 Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ:

14 That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive;

15 But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ:

16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. IV.—True piety in the heart cannot be concealed: it must show itself in the life. As health of body appears in the countenance, piety, which is the health of the soul, appears in all its loveliness, liveliness, and influence, in the walk and conversation, the expressions and actions, of those who are the partakers of grace and the sons of God. Among the graces of the Spirit, humility, meekness, and love, shine with peculiar and becoming brightness. While men of carnal ambition seek after worldly fame—while they who hold their persons in admiration seek after jewels and imposing costly apparel, may we seek after the graces of the Holy Spirit, which will be an unfading ornament to our head, and chains of imperishable brightness about our neck. What a wonder, before the eyes of heavenly hosts, is the mystical body of Christ! Are we members of this body, of which Jesus is the illustrious head? Have we entered into covenant with him, and given him our hearts? Then a union exists, which neither time nor eternity shall dissolve.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, thou hearer of prayer, as the Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah; and we rejoice that thy threefold personality is so clearly illustrated and held forth by the great plan of the salvation of our ruined race. Glory to our God, that we see in that scheme of mercy the Father contriving, the Son accomplishing, and the Holy Spirit applying.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the blessed unity of thy nature, being, perfections, blessedness, and glory. There is one Lord, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in all. O Jesus, we adore thee as an exalted Mediator and King. Thou hast received the deserved honours which thou didst purchase by thine incarnation, obedience, and death. Thou hast ascended to the highest heavens, to receive the adoration and homage of the spirits of just men made perfect, and of holy angels. Thou hast led captivity captive; thou hast received gifts for men, even for the rebellious, that the Lord our God should dwell among them. We praise thee that thou hast continued to confer abundant blessings on thy Church and people, ever since thou hast taken possession of thy mediatorial throne above. We bless thee, O Jesus, for the succession of office-bearers and instructors thou hast given to thy Church. And now as a family we thank and praise thee for all those apostles and prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers, thou hast given to thy Church since thine ascension to thy celestial kingdom. We thank thee for all the benefit the Church has derived from the labours of thy faithful servants, in all the ages that are past. We earnestly pray that thou wouldst most eminently bless the labours of thy ministers in the present day, and let multitudes through their instrumentality flock to Jesus the Saviour, as doves to their windows. May the handful of corn on the top of the mountains soon shake like Lebanon. Let the great purposes designed by the institution of the Gospel ministry be fully served. Let thy saints be led from one degree of grace unto another, until they reach perfection, and all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto perfect men, and unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.

May our dear children experience the benefit of the Gospel ministry. Under a preached word may their consciences be awakened to a sense of sin, and may their hearts be made the subjects of converting grace.

Prepare all thy ministering servants for the duties of an approaching Sabbath. May our pastor be divinely assisted in holding up Christ, the head, to the view of the people. May we, as a family and as a congregation, be united to Christ as the head of the Church, and may we grow up into him in all things.

We thank our God, and our fathers' God, for the mercies of the week. O let the sins of the week be graciously forgiven. Encompass us with thy favour this night, and hear our imperfect supplications, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE GOD OF THE GENTILES.

Gay's Anniversary. New Court.

- 1 LET all the earth their voices raise
To sing the choicest psalms of praise,
To sing and bless Jehovah's name:
His glory let the heathens know,
His wonders to the nations show,
And all his saving works proclaim.
- 2 The heathens know thy glory, Lord;
The wondering nations read thy word,
And here art thou, Jehovah, known:
Our worship shall no more be paid
To gods which mortal hands have made,
Our Maker is our God alone.

WATER, Ps. 55.

PSALM XCVI.

God's Glory.

- O SING unto the LORD a new song: sing unto the LORD, all the earth.
- 2 Sing unto the LORD, bless his name; show forth his salvation from day to day.
  - 3 Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people.
  - 4 For the LORD is great, and greatly to be praised: he is to be feared above all gods.
  - 5 For all the gods of the nations are idols: but the LORD made the heavens.
  - 6 Honour and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.
  - 7 Give unto the LORD, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORD glory and strength.
  - 8 Give unto the LORD the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts.
  - 9 O worship the LORD in the beauty of holiness: fear before him, all the earth.
  - 10 Say among the heathen that the LORD reigneth: the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved: he shall judge the people righteously.
  - 11 Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof.
  - 12 Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice.
  - 13 Before the LORD: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth.

PSALM XCVII.

God's Majesty.

- THE LORD reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles be glad thereof.
- 2 Clouds and darkness are round about him: righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne.
  - 3 A fire goeth before him, and burneth up his enemies round about.
  - 4 His lightnings enlightened the world: the earth saw, and trembled.
  - 5 The hills melted like wax at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the LORD of the whole earth.
  - 6 The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS XCVI., XCVII.—Redeeming love furnishes matter for songs of praise which shall never end, and yet shall be for ever new. May the salvation of Christ be the delightful subject of our daily thought, and the burden of our daily praise! We hail the day, the happy day, when the glory of Christ shall shine among all nations; when the wonders of salvation shall be known by all people; and when joy, and peace, and universal brotherhood, and love, shall prevail over the whole earth. Dumb, motionless idols shall not always receive religious homage: he, who is above all gods, shall triumph over all nations, establish his mediatorial reign over all kingdoms, and then he shall receive the homage, love, and obedience of all the inhabitants of the world. If it is so delightful to see Christ by the eye of faith on earth, how inconceivable must be the blessedness of those who behold his unveiled glory in heaven! May that be our hope—may that be our blessedness! May our worship be the worship and melody of the heart! May our songs be holy songs, flowing from holy minds, sanctified by the Holy Spirit, and bearing some resemblance to the holy image of a holy Saviour! How different the reign of earthly kings from the reign of Christ! That of the former is often a source of unmixed suffering and sorrow; that of the latter is always a source of blessedness and peace.

PRAYER.

WE desire, most merciful and gracious Lord God, with joyful hearts, to draw near to thy throne on the morning of the first day of the week, in the name of Christ, and under the covert of the righteousness of Christ; and to adore thee in thy majesty, and in thy glorious and uncreated perfection. Truly, O God, the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, thou art great, and greatly to be praised; thou art to be feared above all gods. All the gods of the heathen are idols; they have neither power, nor life, nor being; but thou art he who made the heavens. Honour and majesty are before thee, thou God and Father of Christ; thou God of salvation, strength and beauty are in thy sanctuary.

We adore thee as the God of providence. Though all thy movements are under the direction of wisdom, and infinitely calculated to accomplish thy purposes, yet to us many of them are involved in the greatest mystery. Clouds and darkness are round about thee; still we rejoice that justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne. In thy providence thou hast often proved thyself terrible to thine enemies. A fire goeth before thee, and burneth up thine enemies round about. So dreadful is thy wrath that, when it is kindled but a little, the earth trembles. The hills melt like wax at thy presence, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth. Under the ministry of thy word this day may multitudes of thine enemies be made sensible of their true state, and see how foolish it is to live in a state of enmity against God, whose power is so great, and whose justice is so tremendous. O let there be a great awakening among souls dead in trespasses and sins, under the convincing influences of the Holy Ghost. Have pity on any members of this family, or any of our beloved relatives, who are still held fast by the deadly chains of sin. O set them at liberty from the captivity of spiritual death: breathe upon them by thy spirit; then a new and divine life will be communicated, the blessed commencement of that life of glory in heaven, which will be continued during the endless ages of eternity.

Glorify thyself this day, O Lord, in all the churches. We pray for every congregation, every minister, and every saint upon the face of the earth. Enable all thine ambassadors, and in particular thy servant our pastor, to hold up Jesus in his loveliness, majesty, and grace, in a preached gospel. May all their hearts be inditing a good matter concerning the King, and may their tongue be as the pen of a ready writer in proclaiming his glory.

Lord, make our beloved children and servants the genuine and the devout worshippers of God. May they be instructed to worship God in the beauty of holiness.

Bless our rulers, and teach them to how in humble and believing adoration at the feet of Jesus. Have mercy on the afflicted this day. If they cannot attend thy courts, send to them in their retirements the special tokens of thy love. May their afflictions be to their souls what the furnace is to the gold.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the past night, and graciously answer our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake, our exalted High Priest. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S COMING AND KINGDOM.

Arundel. Jerusalem. Milbourn Port.

c. n.

- 1 JOY to the world; the Lord is come:
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing.
- 2 Joy to the earth, the Saviour reigns;
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills, and plains,
Repeat the sounding joy.
- 3 No more let sins and sorrows grow,
Nor thorns infest the ground;
He comes to make his blessings flow,
Far as the curse is found.
- 4 He rules the world with truth and grace,
And makes the nations prove
The glories of his righteousness,
And wonders of his love.

WATTS, Ps. 98, p. 11.

PSALM XCVII.

Fall of Idols.

CONFOUNDED be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: worship him, all ye gods.

8 Zion heard, and was glad; and the daughters of Judah rejoiced because of thy judgments, O LORD.

9 For thou, LORD, art high above all the earth: thou art exalted far above all gods.

10 Ye that love the LORD, hate evil: he preserveth the souls of his saints; he delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked.

11 Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart.

12 Rejoice in the LORD, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.

PSALM XCVIII.

Christ's Salvation and Glory.

OSING unto the LORD a new song; for he hath done marvellous things: his right hand, and his holy arm, hath gotten him the victory.

2 The LORD hath made known his salvation: his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heathen.

3 He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.

4 Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all the earth: make a loud noise, and rejoice, and sing praise.

5 Sing unto the Lord with the harp; with the harp, and the voice of a psalm.

6 With trumpets and sound of cornet make a joyful noise before the LORD, the King.

7 Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

8 Let the floods clap their hands: let the hills be joyful together.

9 Before the LORD; for he cometh to judge the earth: with righteousness shall he judge the world, and the people with equity.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS XCVII., XCVIII.—How debasing is idolatry, and how debased are idolaters! Let us earnestly pray for idolatrous nations, that the light of Divine knowledge may shine upon them, and that they may be turned from the worship of dumb idols to know, and love, and serve the living God. It is the privilege of the citizens of Zion to hear the Gospel's joyful sound; and they must be blessed,—the possessors of happiness now, and the heirs of perfect felicity hereafter. Are we the citizens of Zion? If we belong to that honourable community, Jesus fills the throne of our heart, sin is the object of our deep-rooted, penitential abhorrence, the Sun of righteousness has enlightened our understanding with the bright beams of saving knowledge, and we delight in God as a God of holiness, as well as a God of love. The great things God has done for his Church, the miracles he has performed in working out her deliverance from the most alarming dangers, and from the most formidable enemies, will furnish matter for the praises of the redeemed to the end of time, and throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art transcendently great and glorious, and still we venture to approach thy throne of grace as humble suppliants. Thou alone canst prepare the heart for presenting earnest and believing prayers before thy mercy-seat. The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue are from thee, the Lord. Mercifully prepare our hearts to worship thee, and enable us to order our speech aright before thee.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine unrivalled majesty and glory. Thou art high above all the earth; thou art exalted far above all gods. Thou art not forgetful of the meanest of thy saints; thou dost preserve their souls, and deliver them out of the hands of the wicked. Lord, preserve our souls, and deliver us from the malice and the plans of wicked men.

Preserve our dear children from the snares of the wicked. Never leave them, O Lord, to be led astray from the ways of wisdom into the crooked paths of folly, destruction, and sin.

Blessed Jesus, we adore thee as a mighty and triumphant Saviour. Thou hast done marvellous things. Even on the cross of Calvary, and amid the pains of death, thou didst confound the plans of thine enemies, and didst accomplish a salvation for thy people, which will animate their hearts with joy, and fill their mouths with praise, for ever and ever. We rejoice that thy right hand and thy holy arm hath gained the victory, and that thou hast, even by thy death, spoiled principalities and powers, and made a show of them, openly triumphing over them in thy cross. Give us faith, we earnestly beseech thee, to see the glorious victories which Christ gained when suspended from the accursed tree. O enable us to see the glory which the perfections of the Divine nature obtained by the sufferings and dying agonies of God's eternal Son. By faith may we see that our salvation as individuals was wrought out on Calvary's tree. With an apostle may we exclaim, with believing wonder, ecstasy, and joy, God forbid that we should glory, save in the cross of Jesus Christ, by which we are crucified to the world, and the world crucified to us.

We thank thee, Holy Spirit, for that gracious assistance which thou hast afforded to the ministers of eternal truth. We praise thee in behalf of all those who have been introduced into a state of grace. And if any now before thee have been benefited under a preached word, to thee we ascribe deserved glory and thanksgiving. We praise thee that light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart. And we thank thee for all that light which has shone this day upon the minds of thy people, and for all that spiritual gladness which has filled their hearts. Lord, make us, and all our relatives and friends, truly righteous. May we possess the righteousness of Christ, and the inward grace of his spirit; then we shall be truly righteous, and live and die in the enjoyment of the light of thy countenance. Watch over us this night, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE SAINT HAPPY, THE SINNER MISERABLE.

Banfield. Leominster. Aynhoe.

S. M.

- 1 THE man is ever blest
Who shuns the sinner's ways,
Among their counsils never stands,
Nor takes the scorner's place:
- 2 But makes the law of God
His study and delight,
Amidst the labours of the day
And watches of the night.
- 3 Ho like a tree shall thrive
With waters near the root:
Fresh as the leaf his name shall live;
His works are heavenly fruit.
- 4 Not so the ungodly race,
They no such blessings find:
Their hopes shall flee, like empty chaff
Before the driving wind.

WATTS, Ps. 1.

JOB XV.

Misery of the Wicked.

- THEN answered Eliphaz the Temanite, and said,
- 2 Should a wise man utter vain knowledge, and fill his belly with the east wind?
  - 3 Should he reason with unprofitable talk? or with speeches wherewith he can do no good?
  - 4 Yea, thou castest off fear, and restrainest prayer before God.
  - 5 For thy mouth uttereth thine iniquity, and thou chooseth the tongue of the crafty.
  - 6 Thine own mouth condemneth thee, and not I: yea, thine own lips testify against thee.
  - 7 Art thou the first man that was born? or wast thou made before the hills?
  - 8 Hast thou heard the secret of God? and dost thou restrain wisdom to thyself?
  - 9 What knowest thou, that we know not? what understandest thou, which is not in us?
  - 10 With us are both the greyheaded and very aged men, much elder than thy father.
  - 11 Are the consolations of God small with thee? is there any secret thing with thee?
  - 12 Why doth thine heart carry thee away? and what do thy eyes wink at,
  - 13 That thou turnest thy spirit against God, and lettest such words go out of thy mouth?
  - 14 What is man, that he should be clean? and he which is born of a woman, that he should be righteous?
  - 15 Behold, he putteth no trust in his saints; yea, the heavens are not clean in his sight.
  - 16 How much more abominable and filthy is man, which drinketh iniquity like water?
  - 17 I will shew thee, hear me; and that which I have seen I will declare;
  - 18 Which wise men have told from their fathers, and have not hid it:
  - 19 Unto whom alone the earth was given, and no stranger passed among them.
  - 20 The wicked man travaileth with pain all his days, and the number of years is hidden to the oppressor.
  - 21 A dreadful sound is in his ears: in prosperity the destroyer shall come upon him.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XV.—Men may possess, like Job, the jewel of saving wisdom, and yet be stigmatised as fools. Even our blessed Lord was considered by his kinsfolk as beside himself, and by the malicious Jews as possessed of a demon, and speaking and acting under his influence. In the vile and cruel reproaches which lighted on Job, he was a remarkable type of our Lord, whose heart was wounded and lacerated by the cruel reproaches of his enemies. They who are blessed with genuine wisdom put a watch before the door of their lips, and endeavour to order their conversation aright. Such are blessed in themselves, and they are a blessing to others. If grace is prospering in our heart, we are studying to walk in God's fear all the day long, and we are enjoying sweet fellowship with God in prayer and in the other ordinances of his gracious appointment. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," and the wicked show their true state, as enemies of God, by the streams of corruption and depravity which flow from their lips. True saints are never backward to acknowledge, with penitence and humility, their own personal guilt, while they can sing with triumph, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus!"

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, our creating, preserving, and redeeming God, we bow the knee before thee, and would present our morning sacrifice in the name of Jesus Christ. Lord, deliver us from formality in our religious services. We humbly seek the gift, the grace, and the spirit of prayer. O Lord, thou art infinitely great, and exalted above the conceptions of archangels. Thou puttest no trust in thy saints, and the heavens are not clean in thy sight. Thou art glorious in holiness.

We thank our God for all the showers of spiritual blessings which descended upon the churches during the past Sabbath. We praise thee for any assistance afforded to thy servant who ministered to us in holy things; and for any blessings of conversion to sinners or edification to saints which attended his labours.

Accept of our expressions of gratitude for thy kindness to us during the past night. We praise thee for the continuance of life, reason, health, hope, and the means of grace. Lord, graciously assist us in all the duties of this day. May we show to all around us that we are living under the salutary and practical influence of those sacred and Divine truths to which we listened on the past Sabbath.

May the Holy Spirit bless the portion of the inspired Word we have now read. May these affecting declarations of human depravity and guilt to which we have now listened produce our minds humbling effects. Suffer us not, like the wicked, to cast off the fear of God, or to restrain prayer before God. O may we live in the fear of God all our days. Teach us to be afraid to sin against a God of such holiness, justice, and power, as thou art. But above all, make us unwilling to sin against a God of such goodness, compassion, and mercy.

Inspire our children with a genuine delight in prayer. O convince them that, if they restrain prayer before thee, the flood-gates of sin will open upon them, and, if mercy prevent not, accomplish their ruin.

We acknowledge, O Lord, the depravity and corruption of our fallen race. We confess that the degeneracy is great and universal. What is man, that he should be clean? and he which is born of a woman, that he should be righteous? If the very heavens are not clean in thy sight, how much more abominable and filthy is man, which drinketh iniquity like water? We confess, to our shame, our natural love of sin, and that we have often drunk it like water, and rolled the deadly poison as a sweet morsel under our tongue. Lord, we rejoice that there is a fulness in Christ; and that we are encouraged to look to him for sanctifying grace. O let Christ be made of God to us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption. Deliver us, O Jesus, from the love of sin, and create within us a real and unperilative love of holiness. May we and all our beloved relatives hunger and thirst after righteousness, and give ourselves no rest till we are adorned with the beauties of holiness. Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 AS new-born babes desire the breast
To feed, and grow, and thrive;
So saints with joy the gospel taste,
And by the gospel live.
- 2 With inward gust their heart approves
All that the word relates:
They love the men their Father loves,
And hate the works he hates.
- 3 Not all the flattering baits on earth
Can make them slaves to lust;
They can't forget their heavenly birth,
Nor grovel in the dust.
- 4 Not all the chains that tyrants use
Shall bind their souls to vice;
Faith, like a conqueror, can produce
A thousand victories.

WATTS, 143, B. 1.

EPIHESIANS IV.

The Old and New Man.

THIS I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind,

18 Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart;

19 Who being past feeling have given themselves over unto lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

20 But ye have not so learned Christ;

21 If so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus;

22 That ye put off concerning the former conversation, the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts;

23 And be renewed in the spirit of your mind;

24 And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.

25 Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 Be ye angry, and sin not; let not the sun go down upon your wrath:

27 Neither give place to the devil.

28 Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.

29 Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers.

30 And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice:

32 And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. IV.—We should mourn over the melancholy fact that the greater proportion of the human race is travelling the downward road to perdition! Have we, by Divine grace, left the way of a natural state which leads to hell, and are we pursuing that way of faith, holiness, and love, which leads to heaven? Bodily blindness is a great calamity; but to have the eyes of the understanding blinded by the god of this world, is a far greater calamity! If we are delivered from such a calamity, we have reason to utter hallelujahs of praise. If we are not, let it be our earnest prayer that our night of spiritual darkness may be changed into a day of glorious light. It is a state greatly to be deplored to have the heart ruled by the feelings of licentiousness, and to be destitute of that holy feeling of spiritual affection which is the greatest honour of holy angels, and the greatest blessedness of the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven. Let it be our constant prayer before the mercy-seat, that the Holy Spirit may sanctify our heart, and conform it to the Divine image; and sanctify our life, and conform it to the Divine law.

PRAYER.

EVER blessed and glorious Lord God, whose we are, and whom we are bound to serve by the most sacred obligations, look down upon us at this time in mercy from the habitation of thy holiness. O give us thy good spirit, that we may lift up our hearts with our hands unto the heavens. Thou art the Creator of the ends of the earth; and it is by thy spirit the new man is formed in the heart of thy people, when they are made the subjects of regenerating grace. Thy perfections appear in thy works. The invisible things of thee from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even thine eternal power and Godhead; so that they are left without excuse who profanely deny thy being and oppose thine authority.

We desire at this time to present our evening prayer under a deep and humbling sense of our sinfulness and unworthiness. O give us that repentance which is evangelical, and which never needs to be repented of; that repentance which is accompanied by spiritual and followed by eternal life. We acknowledge that, if we were left to ourselves, and thy restraining and renewing grace withdrawn, such is the depravity of our nature, that we should walk according to the enmity of our minds, and live in the indulgence of our vile passions and our fleshly lusts. Too long, O Lord, our understandings have been alienated from thee, through the ignorance and vanity of our heart. Let them be alienated no more; and do thou enkindle in our souls that genuine love to God and Christ which many waters cannot quench, nor floods drown.

Lord, have mercy on the thousands of our race who are sunk in the polluted mire of licentiousness and sin, who are given over to lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness. If there are any of our relatives who are such slaves of the flesh, O convince them by thy spirit that a life of unhallowed indulgence must be followed by the miseries of hell. Fix their minds on the contemplation of the affecting consequences of sin, on that state where the worm of an awakened conscience never dies, and where the fire of Divine wrath is never quenched.

Preserve our dear children and servants from the dominion and infatuation of sin. Renew them in the spirit of their mind.

Lord, give to all of us that principle of grace which is the new man; and may our hearts be created after God in righteousness and true holiness. Lord, teach us to employ the faculty of speech in thy service. Let no lying or deceitful or corrupt communication ever fall from our lips. Deliver us from sinful passion: when we are justly angry, may we sin not. We have often grieved the Holy Spirit: God forbid that we should evermore grieve the Spirit! O fill us with the love of God!

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the day, and watch over us this night. May our persons be accepted and our prayers answered, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WAITING FOR DEATH.

Burnt Ash. Lambeth. New Jerusalem.

P. M.

- 1 I WAIT a few sorrowful years,
And then I no longer shall mourn,
But flee from the valley of tears
A way I shall never return:
From earth I shall quickly remove
To sure everlasting abodes,
And sing with the spirits above,
And triumph with angels and gods.
- 2 My days are extinguished and gone,
My time as a shadow is fled,
And gladly I lay myself down
To rest with the peaceable dead:
The dead ever-living attend,
Whose dust is all safe in the tomb,
And many a glorified friend
Is ready to welcome me home.

C. WESLEY.

JOB XVI.

Job's Sufferings.

THEN Job answered and said,
2 I have heard many such things; miserable comforters are ye all.

3 Shall vain words have an end? or what emboldeneth thee that thou answerest?

4 I also could speak as ye do: if your soul were in my soul's stead, I could heap up words against you, and shake mine head at you.

5 But I would strengthen you with my mouth, and the moving of my lips should assuage your grief.

JOB XVII.

MY breath is corrupt, my days are extinct, the graves are ready for me.

2 Are there not mockers with me? and doth not mine eye continue in their provocation?

3 Lay down now, put me in a surety with thee; who is he that will strike hands with me?

4 For thou hast hid their heart from understanding: therefore shalt thou not exalt them.

5 He that speaketh flattery to his friends, even the eyes of his children shall fail.

6 He hath made me also a hy-word of the people; and aforetime I was as a tabret.

7 Mine eye also is dim by reason of sorrow, and all my members are as a shadow.

8 Upright men shall be astonished at this, and the innocent shall stir up himself against the hypocrite.

9 The righteous also shall hold on his way, and he that kath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger.

10 But as for you all, do ye return, and come now: for I cannot find one wise man among you.

11 My days are past, my purposes are broken off, even the thoughts of my heart.

12 They change the night into day: the light is short because of darkness.

13 If I wait, the grave is mine house: I have made my bed in the darkness.

14 I have said to corruption, Thou art my father: to the worm, Thou art my mother, and my sister.

15 And where is now my hope? as for my hope, who shall see it?

16 They shall go down to the bars of the pit, when our rest together is in the dust.

REMARKS UPON JOB XVI., XVII.—It is a painful event for genuine believers to be falsely calumniated, to be charged with sins which their soul hates; and it is often difficult to stop the mouth of false accusers. But how delightful to the children of God—their Divine Saviour is their witness, their heavenly Father is their judge! and since he justifies, who dare, who can condemn? Their accusations, as far as it respects God's accused saints, are only empty air, or like the chaff which the wind speedily and effectually chaoseth away.

Jesus is the true Comforter. In the day of affliction, if we apply to human sources for consolation we shall find them to be wells without water; yea, poor empty cisterns that can hold no water.
Are ministers comforters? They are only so as Christ teaches them, as Christ makes them, who is the consolation of Israel. Happy are we, if we can look on Jesus with the eye of love and with the faith of believing experience, and say, "Jesus, all my springs are in thee!" Job had an affecting view of the frailty of his humanity, and of the humbling change which awaited it in the grave. The noisome sores which covered him indicated the change that should inevitably take place. Though he met with no pity from his earthly relatives he was comforted in Christ his Surety, and he rejoiced in the prospects of a glorious resurrection. Blessed hope!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, thou art the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last; the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords, before whom all the monarchs of the earth shall be compelled to how in prostrate submission. Give us, O Lord, that faith and love by which we shall be enabled to draw near unto thee with childlike confidence, and address thee as our Father in heaven.

We thank our God for all the blessings of life. For our health, our reason, our food, our raiment, our liberty, and our friends, we adore and praise thy glorious name. We thank thee for the protection and the comfortable rest extended to us during the past night. We would commit our persons, our friends, and all our spiritual and temporal concerns, into thy hand this day. Fill our hearts with ecstasies of joy, that we have at all times a redeeming God, to whose care we may commit ourselves for time and for eternity.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the mournful expressions we have now read, which fell from the lips of Job, thy tried and afflicted servant. As he found even his earthly friends miserable comforters, may we be prevented from falling into the dangerous snare of preferring earthly comforters before Christ.
O enable us to seek comfort from Christ, the consolation of Israel, when disappointment can never take place. Give us grace to look on all earthly objects, on wealth and honour and power, yea, even on earthly relatives and friends, and say to them all, Compared with Christ, miserable comforters are ye all.

Lord, diminish the number of those who are the open and profane enemies of the Gospel of Christ. Pity such as belong to the class of mockers of eternal things. O let them beware, lest their hands be made strong, and their hearts become so hardened and insensible, that they shall never feel their danger, till their eyes and their ears are opened amid the torments of hell.

Preserve our children from the influence of the pernicious example of those who treat the Gospel with scorn. God forbid that they who are related to us by the dearest ties should ever belong to that devoted class who set God at defiance, and sport with the solemnities of eternity.

Lord, deeply impress our minds with the prospect of the dissolution of our mortal frame. Daily may we remember that the grave is our house, and that it is appointed unto man once to die. We would say, with thy servant, to corruption, Thou art our father; and to the worm, Thou art my mother and my sister. Lord, make us righteous, and the prospects of death will be a source of joy and not of grief. Make us righteous, then we shall hold on our way; sanctify us, give us clean hands, and we shall wax stronger and stronger. Graciously listen to the voice of our supplication, for our gracious Saviour's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S LOVE.

Triumphant. Admiration. Redemption.

L. M.

- 1 NOW let our faith grow strong, and rise
And view our Lord in all his love;
Look back to hear his dying cries,
Then mount and see his throne above.
- 2 See where he languished on the cross;
Beneath our sins he groaned and died;
See where he sits to plead our cause,
By his almighty Father's side.
- 3 If we behold his bleeding heart,
There love in floods of sorrow reigns;
He triumphs o'er the killing smart,
And souls our pleasure with his pains.
- 4 How shall vile pardoned rebels show
How much they love their dying God?
Lord! here we'd banish every foe,
We hate the sins that cost thy blood.

EPHESIANS V.

Christian Duties.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as dear children;
2 And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour.

3 But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints;

4 Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks.

5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

7 Be not ye therefore partakers with them.

8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light:

9 (For the fruit of the spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;)

10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.

12 For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret.

13 But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light.

14 Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.

15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.

17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.

18 And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit;

19 Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord;

20 Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ;

21 Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. V.—God has his inimitable attributes, but let us rejoice he has also his imitable perfections. May we by Divine grace be assimilated to the image of Christ, and taught to walk in his footsteps! Truly, Jesus came to make atonement for our guilt by his death, and he also came, that by his life he might teach us the lessons and the practice of holiness. If we are his genuine disciples our souls are saved by the former, and our lives are regulated by the latter. May we, therefore, as making progress in Divine things, have Jesus daily before our eyes, that we may rejoice in the acceptance and pardon he has obtained for us by his death, and in the perfect example he has placed for our imitation in his life! As an evidence that our faith in the atonement is genuine, may holiness be the object of our affection and the ornament of our life!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, to approach thy gracious throne under a deep sense of thy boundless beneficence and mercy. All our temporal comforts flow from thee. From thee descends every good and perfect gift. It is in thee we live, move, and have our being. And if any of us are born again, if any of us are the subjects of redeeming grace, it was thy gracious power which accomplished this blessed change. For our natural birth and being we praise thee; but if we are thine by regeneration, we more especially praise thy name, that we are the children of the living God by faith in Christ Jesus.

We acknowledge, holy Lord God, the corruptions of our nature, and the errors, transgressions, wanderings, and inconsistencies of our lives. We would lament over our fleshly lusts and carnal passions. Lord, sanctify us; Lord, save us. Teach us to mourn over the general depravity which pervades the children of men. May our minds lament, when we behold our fellow-immortals living in the unhallowed indulgence of passions, which prepare for hell and exclude from heaven. Lord, have mercy on the unclean and covetous, and convince them that, without a change, it is altogether impossible they can have any inheritance in the kingdom of God. O strike terror into the heart of the licentious and impenitent, and open their eyes to see that the wrath of God rests upon the children of disobedience.

Preserve our dear children from the alluring and destroying charms of sin. Convince them that there is deadly poison in the cup of carnal and unlawful pleasure: O prevent them from drinking the deadly cup.

Holy Spirit, teach us as a family to be followers of God as dear children. With one another, and with thy Church, may we walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us. O may the remembrance of his love and of his death powerfully excite us to love him and to love one another. Never, O Jesus, may we forget the sacrifice of thy body and soul, which thou didst give to satisfy offended justice, and make atonement for the sins of men.

We are by nature in the darkness of ignorance, pollution, and death: O that we, who were sometimes darkness, may be light in the Lord. May all of us live under the light of Jesus, the Sun of righteousness.

Have mercy on our unconverted friends. Bring all of them under a preached Gospel; and may the Holy Spirit say to them with almighty and irresistible power, Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee life. Lord, give to us the joys of religion. Teach us to speak to ourselves in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in our hearts to the Lord.

Accept of our humble tribute of praise for the mercies of the day, and give us the sleep of thy beloved this night, for Jesus' sake, thy Son and our Surety. Amen.

GOD'S REASONING WITH SINNERS.

Warrington. Campbell. Gould's.

L. M.

- 1 COME, sinners, saith the mighty God,
Heinous as all your crimes have been,
Lo! I descend from mine abode
To reason with the sons of men.
- 2 No clouds of darkness veil my face,
No vengeful lightnings flash around;
I come with terms of life and peace;
Where sin hath reigned, let grace abound.
- 3 Yes, Lord, we will obey thy call,
And to thy gracious sceptre bow;
O make our crimson sins like wool,
Our scarlet crimes as white as snow!

S. STENNETT.

JOB XVIII.

Misery of the Wicked.

- THEN answered Bildad the Shuhite, and said,
- 2 How long will it be ere ye make an end of words?
mark, and afterwards we will speak.
  - 3 Wherefore are we counted as beasts, and reputed vile in your sight?
  - 4 He tearoth himself in his anger: shall the earth be forsaken for thee? and shall the rock be removed out of his place?
  - 5 Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out, and the spark of his fire shall not shine.
  - 6 The light shall be dark in his tabernacle, and his candle shall be put out with him.
  - 7 The steps of his strength shall be straitened, and his own counsel shall cast him down.
  - 8 For he is cast into a net by his own feet, and he walketh upon a snare.
  - 9 The gin shall take him by the heel, and the robber shall prevail against him.
  - 10 The snare is laid for him in the ground, and a trap for him in the way.
  - 11 Terrors shall make him afraid on every side, and shall drive him to his feet.
  - 12 His strength shall be hunger-bitten, and destruction shall be ready at his side.
  - 13 It shall devour the strength of his skin: even the first-born of death shall devour his strength.
  - 14 His confidence shall be rooted out of his tabernacle, and it shall bring him to the king of terrors.
  - 15 It shall dwell in his tabernacle, because it is none of his: brimstone shall be scattered upon his habitation.
  - 16 His roots shall be dried up beneath, and above shall his branch be cut off.
  - 17 His remembrance shall perish from the earth, and he shall have no name in the street.
  - 18 He shall be driven from light into darkness, and chased out of the world.
  - 19 He shall neither have son nor nephew among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.
  - 20 They that come after him shall be astonished at his day, as they that went before were affrighted.
  - 21 Surely such are the dwellings of the wicked, and this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XVIII.—The words of men are too often like sharp swords, and even the words of good men sometimes partake more of the corrupted flesh than of their sanctified spirit. How different the kind, the consolatory words of Christ to his suffering, afflicted people! They are sweeter than the honey which droppeth from the comb; they are more refreshing than the ripe clusters which are suspended from the vine; they are music to their ears; and they are like the bright shining of the morning sky after the darkness of midnight. Can we say with the prophet, "thy word was found of me and I did eat it, it was the joy and the rejoicing of my heart?" Can we say with the holy Psalmist, "Thy word is my song in the house of my pilgrimage?" If so, Jesus has given us that grace, that vital, heavenly principle, which is in us a "well of water springing up into everlasting life."

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, we adore thee as the only object of religious worship, as the living and true God, as the glorious source of all being, wisdom, perfection, and blessedness, and as the Lord our God. Thou art the portion of Jacob, and Israel is the lot of thine inheritance, the Lord of hosts is thy name. We are infinitely unworthy to approach thy gracious presence, and to lift up our eyes toward thy mercy-seat. We have nothing of our own, and we can do nothing of ourselves, to present before thee, by which we can procure thy gracious acceptance, or obtain the answer of our prayers. Wherewith shall we come before the Lord, and bow ourselves before the high God? Shall we come before thee with burnt offerings, or with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Will the Lord accept a first-born for a transgression, or the fruit of the body for the sin of the soul? O thou holy and righteous God, were we able actually to present these offerings before thee, they would all be deservedly rejected. In the name of Jesus alone do we draw near, and in dependence alone on his righteousness and intercession do we look for pardon, acceptance, and eternal life.

O Jesus, we come to thee this morning as the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness; O wash us in thyself, as the only fountain where alone we can be delivered from the guilt and pollution of sin.

We bless our God for the preservation and refreshment of the past night. Thou art adding to our days; mercifully add to our graces. May thy kind providence watch over us this day, and all our days. While engaged in worldly business, may we be preserved from the love of the world, and from that covetousness which excludes from the heavenly inheritance. May we never fall into the sin of neglecting ordinances and religious duties by an over anxious attachment to worldly enjoyments.

Bless to us what we have now read respecting the impiety and misery of the wicked. Affect us with the thought, that the candle of his life and hopes and enjoyments shall be put out at death, and remain in eternal darkness and gloom. Lord, impress the minds of our graceless relatives and friends with a lively sense of the deplorable misery of the wicked at death, when all his false and foolish confidence shall cease, when it shall be taken up by the roots, and only serve to bring him to the king of terrors as a miserable captive, pressed down under the intolerable load of unpardoned guilt. Lord, teach us all to see the utter vanity of earthly prosperity without an interest in Christ and a title to heaven.

Lord, teach our children thy fear, and enable them to remember their Creator in the days of their youth. May they never be found in the situation of the wicked, who at death are driven away in their wickedness. And make our servants heirs of heaven.

Grant, O Lord, that when our eyes are shut in death, our souls may ascend to the heavenly abodes, and join the ransomed millions in their songs of praise to the God of salvation.

Mercifully hear our feeble prayers, for the sake of Jesus, the Lord our righteousness. Amen.

CHRIST'S LOVE TO THE CHURCH.

Canticles. Amara. Breidby.

L. M.

- 1 KIND is the speech of Christ our Lord,
Affection sounds in every word;
Lo, thou art fair, my love, he cries,
Not the young doves have sweeter eyes.
- 2 Sweet are thy lips, thy pleasing voice
Salutes mine ear with secret joys,
No spice so much delights the smell,
Nor milk nor honey taste so well.
- 3 Thou art all fair, my bride, to me,
I will behold no spot in thee:
What mighty wonders love performs,
And puts a comeliness on worms!
- 4 Defiled and louthsome as we are,
He makes us white, and calls us fair;
Adorns us with that heavenly dross,
His graces and his righteousness.

Watts, 78, B. 1.

EPHESIANS V.

Christian relative Duties.

WIVES, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.

23 For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the saviour of the body

24 Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing.

25 Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it;

26 That he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, 27 That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish.

28 So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself.

29 For no man ever yet hated his own flesh; but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord the church:

30 For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.

31 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh.

32 This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the church.

33 Nevertheless, let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself; and the wife see that she reverence her husband.

EPHESIANS VI.

CHILDREN, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.

2 Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise;

3 That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth.

4 And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. V., VI.—Genuine affection among members of families is the only real source of domestic comfort and happiness. When fathers and mothers exemplify this love, united with unfeigned piety, they are instrumental in conferring the greatest benefit upon their offspring, and in making their habitation an epitome of heaven. Is the relation of husband typical and illustrative of Christ's blessed relation to his Church? Then how much should husbands endeavour to imitate Christ in following his blessed example—in loving their wives as HE loved the Church! Let us admire the display of Christ's love to his Church, in sanctifying her by his Spirit, making her conformable to his holy image, and in adorning her with his comeliness. This teaches the important lesson, that we should feel deeply concerned for each other's spiritual improvement; that we should study to resemble Christ's image, and to follow his footsteps.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father and God, in drawing near thy throne we would humbly pray that, in our frequent approaches to thy presence, we may receive an increasing love to religious exercises, and an increasing delight in fellowship with thee, the Father, Son, and Spirit. With reverence and humility we adore thee as the self-existent God. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting thou art God. We seek the aid of the Holy Spirit, to enable us to present our evening sacrifice with sincerity and faith; remembering that without faith it is impossible to please God, and whatsoever is not of faith is sin. Let our prayer at this time be set before thee as incense, and the lifting up of our hands as the evening sacrifice, through the merits of Jesus.

Bless to us the reading of the Holy Scriptures; may what we have now read remind us of our great short-comings in the exercise of Christian love, and in the performance of relative duties. Lord, bless all the families with which we are connected, and let Christian love reign in the midst of them. Enable fathers and mothers to love one another as Christ loves the Church. Teach husbands ever to place before their eyes the most blessed example of Jesus, and may the love of the Redeemer to his people stir them up mightily to the exercise of that Christian affection which will render their families on earth a blessed emblem of the felicity of the church in heaven.

We pray for parents generally, that they may be enabled, with conscientious diligence and affection, to watch over the eternal interests of their children, and train them up for God, for heaven and immortality. O impress the minds of parents with a sense of the unspeakable worth of the souls of their offspring. Teach them to surrender their children to the arms and the care of Jesus, encouraged by the merciful invitation which fell from the lips of the Saviour of men: Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God.

We pray for the rising race. May the means used for their conversion issue in the conversion of thousands. O that all the children in our land were instructed to sing, Hosanna to the son of David, who has come in the name of the Lord to save us! Hosanna in the highest!

May our dear children never forget the first commandment with promise: Honour thy father and mother.

O Jesus, we rejoice in thy love to the Church. Thou hast died for thy people, and we rejoice that thou wilt present them all before thy Father's throne in heaven, a glorious church, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing. May we belong to thy Church and kingdom, and be found among thy people, for ever arrayed in garments of salvation and glory.

Mercifully forgive our sins, and accept of thanks for the mercies of the day. Give to our feeble bodies of clay invigorating and refreshing sleep. Hear our prayers, for our Mediator's sake. Amen.

TRIUMPH OVER DEATH.

Obituary. Oram Chapel. Providence College. C. M.

- 1 GREAT God, I own thy sentence just,
And nature must decay:
I yield my body to the dust,
To dwell with fellow clay.
- 2 Yet faith may triumph o'er the grave,
And trample on the tombs:
My Jesus, my Redeemer lives,
My God, my Saviour comes.
- 3 The mighty Conqueror shall appear,
High on a royal seat,
And Death, the last of all his foes,
Lie vanquished at his feet.

WATTS, G. D. I.

JOB XIX.

Job's Sorrows and Hopes.

THEN Job answered and said,

2 How long will ye vex my soul, and break me in pieces with words?

3 These ten times have ye reproached me: ye are not ashamed that ye make yourselves strange to me.

4 And be it indeed that I have erred, mine error remaineth with myself.

5 If indeed ye will magnify yourselves against me, and plead against me my reproach:

6 Know now that God hath overthrown me, and hath compassed me with his net.

7 Behold, I cry out of wrong, but I am not heard: I cry aloud, but there is no judgment.

8 He hath fenced up my way that I cannot pass, and he hath set darkness in my paths.

9 He hath stripped me of my glory, and taken the crown from my head.

13 He hath put my brethren far from me, and mine acquaintance are verily estranged from me.

14 My kinsfolk have failed, and my familiar friends have forgotten me.

15 They that dwell in mine house, and my maids, count me for a stranger: I am an alien in their sight.

16 I called my servant, and he gave me no answer; I cut-treated him with my mouth.

17 My breath is strange to my wife, though I intreated for the children's sake of mine own body.

18 Yea, young children despised me; I arose, and they spake against me.

20 My bone cleaveth to my skin and to my flesh, and I am escaped with the skin of my teeth.

21 Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends; for the hand of God hath touched me.

23 Oh that my words were now written! oh that they were printed in a book!

24 That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever!

25 For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth:

26 And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God:

27 Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me.

28 But ye should say, Why persecute we him, seeing the root of the matter is found in me?

29 Be ye afraid of the sword: for wrath bringeth the punishments of the sword, that ye may know there is a judgment.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XIX.—Are believers sometimes sorrowful and perplexed? Jesus is their very present help in time of trouble.

He is near them to comfort them, and he is near to counsel them. Valuable as human comforters are, they sink into insignificance compared with him. What is the cup of water compared with the overflowing fountain? And what is the twinkling star compared with the splendours of the sun? We can afford to be without earthly comforters if Jesus is our comforter, who is the consolation of Israel. False friendship fades and dies under the influence of adversity. The love of Jesus, the true friend, remains still the same, even when his people are enveloped with adversity's darkest gloom. While adversity drives false friends away, it is then Christ's love shines with greatest brightness. May we be inspired with faith in Christ as the resurrection and the life, and as the glorious Judge, who shall pronounce upon us a sentence of acquittal before an assembled universe. Like Job, may we have the assured hopes that our bodies at the last day shall awake, arrayed in robes of immortality. Amen.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, thou art the sovereign of the universe, and the almighty maker of heaven and of earth. O graciously help us at this time by thy good spirit to call on thy great name with filial affection and devotional humility, relying on Christ for acceptance. Thou hast set thy glory above the heavens. Thou art so exalted above all blessing and praise, that the loudest anthems of the chiefest angels cannot in the slightest degree increase thine essential felicity.

What reason have we to mourn under the influence of the most sincere penitence, that the glory of our nature, with which we were originally formed, has been laid in the dust by the desolating ravages of sin! We should not only lament over our own individual and family sins, but we should mourn over the alarming prevalence of sin among all the tribes of men. Alas, O Lord, our world is a province of thy vast dominions, where all the race of man has risen up in rebellion against thee their Creator and God! Lord, have mercy on a rebellious world, and turn the hearts of the inhumantists to thyself. Lord Jesus, gird thy sword on thy thigh, ride prosperously in thy gospel chariot among the nations, and let the kingdoms of the earth bow in loving submission before thy mediatorial authority.

Sanctify to our minds what we have now read of the afflictions of Job. We rejoice that the bright beams of heavenly glory shone through the dark cloud of his suffering and grief. In all our afflictions, may we have the presence of God, and be comforted with the hopes of the joys of heaven.

When we are called upon in thy providence, O Lord, to be vexed in our spirit by the malevolence and enmity of men, may we rejoice in the unchanging love of God. Blessed Jesus, teach us to remember thy sorrows. What are all the sorrows of the most afflicted of human beings compared with thine? Truly there was no sorrow like unto thy sorrow, in the day when the Lord afflicted thee.

Give to our children that grace by which they shall be prepared for the day of affliction. Should they be called in early life to endure thy chastening rod, may they find that it is good to bear the yoke in their youth.

May the pride of our heart be humbled and subdued, when we think of the body being dissolved by death, and laid down in the dust, to be reduced to ashes in the tomb. But may we not be overwhelmed with the thought, when we remember that Jesus died to take the sting of death away, and raise the bodies of the saints from the ruins of the grave arrayed in robes of immortality. May each one of us be taught to sing, I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself, though my reins be consumed within me.

We thank our God for the blessings of another night: guide us by thy counsel this day; and all we ask is for Immanuel's sake, our blessed and exalted High Priest. Amen.

THE ARMOUR OF GOD.

Stepney, Vermont, Lonsdale.

P. M.

- 1 SOLDIERS of Christ, arise
And put your armour on,
Strong in the strength which God supplies,
Through his eternal Son;
Strong in the Lord of hosts,
And in his mighty power;
Who in the strength of Jesus trusts,
Is more than conqueror.
- 2 Stand then in his great might,
With all your strength endued,
But take, to arm you for the fight,
The panoply of God:
That having all things done,
And all your conflicts past,
Ye may overcome through Christ alone,
And stand entire at last.

C. WESLEY

EPHESIANS VI.

The Christian Armour.

SERVANTS, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ;

6 Not with eyeservice, as mepleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart;

7 With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men;

8 Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

9 And, ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening: knowing that your Master also is in heaven; neither is there respect of persons with him.

10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

14 Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness;

15 And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

16 Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:

18 Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints;

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth holdly, to make known the mystery of the gospel,

20 For which I am an ambassador in bonds: that therein I may speak holdly, as I ought to speak.

21 But that ye also may know my affairs, and how I do, Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall make known to you all things:

22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON EPHES. VI.—Servants should remember that Jesus, though Lord of all, became the servant of all. "Though in the likeness of God, and esteeming it no robbery to be equal with God, he took upon him the form of a servant." Let servants make Christ their pattern: then they will prove valuable to their earthly employers, as Eliezer proved to Abraham, and as Phoebe did to the apostles. Those servants are blessings to themselves, to others, and to the Church of Christ; yea, they are lovely and lively epistles, seen and read of all men, who, in their service, are more influenced by the fear of God than the fear of man. On the other hand, masters who have the fear of God in their heart, will never act toward their servants the overbearing part of tyrants. They will study to perform the part of friends, comforters, guardians, and instructors. Are we the soldiers of Christ? May we carefully and valiantly fight the good fight of faith, then we shall at last receive the conqueror's crown.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Saviour, thou alone hast immortality. How inconceivably dazzling and glorious is that light in which thou dost dwell, and which no mortal eye has seen or can see, till it is invested with spiritual properties and immortal strength! We are infinitely unworthy to take thy holy, reverend name into our polluted lips. We rejoice that there is an infinite worthiness in Jesus, and that we are encouraged to draw near thy mercy-seat with confidence and acceptance. Thou, O Lord, art the searcher of all hearts, and thou understandest all the thoughts of the imaginations of men. Thine eye is never for one moment removed from the meanest of thy creatures; and thou art constantly beholding the evil and the good.

Alas, that our hearts, our imaginations, our desires, and our affections are so vile! Thou seest all the corruption and depravity of our deceitful hearts. Truly, O Lord, we have been unprofitable servants, and deserve to be cast into outer darkness, where there is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. We bless thee that we have not been sent to receive the demerit of our sins. We thank thee for sparing mercy; O bless us with saving mercy! Now we are the monuments of thy forbearance—through eternity may we be the objects of thy love.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the day. May the sins of which we have been guilty be forgiven. Blot out as a thick cloud our transgressions, and as a cloud our sins. May we and all our relatives be in thy holy keeping this night. When we are asleep, may we be secure from all danger, under the wings of thy love.

Give all of us grace to obey the salutary counsels we have now read. Bless all who are in the capacity of servants. May they be obedient to those who are their masters after the flesh, in singleness of heart as unto Christ. Comfort them with the pleasing truth, that they are under the Saviour's affectionate eye, and that their faithful service given to their earthly masters will meet with the acceptance of their gracious Redeemer.

We thank thee, the captain of our salvation, for providing the whole armour of God. Convince us of the absolute necessity of this armour. Give us thy grace, that we may put it on, and use it in our spiritual defence. Arrayed in this armour, may we obtain victory over our flesh and blood, principalities and powers, the rulers of the darkness of this world; yea, even over spiritual wickednesses in high places. Lord, give us skill to use the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God; then we shall be conquerors, and more than conquerors.

Make our dear children and domestics the good soldiers of Jesus Christ; and in early life may they subdue their spiritual foes.

Graciously hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

- 1 NO, I shall envy them no more
Who grow profanely great,
Though they increase their golden store,
And rise to wondrous height.
- 2 They taste of all the joys that grow
Upon this earthly clod;
Well, they may search the creature through,
For they have ne'er a God.
- 3 Shake off the thoughts of dying too,
And think the life your own;
But death comes hastening on to you,
To mow your glory down.

JOB XXI.

Prosperity and Ruin of wicked Men.

BUT Job answered and said,

- 2 Hear diligently my speech, and let this be your consolations.
- 3 Suffer me that I may speak; and after that I have spoken, mock on.
- 4 As for me, is my complaint to man? and if it were so, why should not my spirit be troubled?
- 5 Mark me, and be astonished, and lay your hand upon your mouth.
- 6 Even when I remember I am afraid, and trembling taketh hold on my flesh.
- 7 Wherefore do the wicked live, become old, yea, are mighty in power?
- 8 Their seed is established in their sight with them, and their offspring before their eyes.
- 9 Their houses are safe from fear, neither is the rod of God upon them.
- 10 Their bull gendereth, and faileth not; their cow calveth, and eateth not her calf.
- 11 They send forth their little ones like a flock, and their children dance.
- 12 They take the timbrel and harp, and rejoice at the sound of the organ.
- 13 They spend their days in wealth, and in a moment go down to the grave.
- 14 Therefore they say unto God, Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.
- 15 What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what profit should we have, if we pray unto him?
- 17 How oft is the candle of the wicked put out? and how oft cometh their destruction upon them? God distributeth sorrows in his anger.
- 22 Shall any teach God knowledge? seeing he judgeth those that are high?
- 23 One dieth in his full strength, being wholly at ease and quiet.
- 24 His breasts are full of milk, and his bones are moistened with marrow.
- 25 And another dieth in the bitterness of his soul, and never eateth with pleasure.
- 26 They shall lie down alike in the dust, and the worms shall cover them.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXI.—Job's pretended friends refused to hear his voice. May we never refuse to hear Christ's wise and merciful voice. May it not be said of us at the judgment-day, "I called, and ye refused; I stretched out my hand, and no man regarded!" May God forbid, and prevent that we should live and die in the commission of such a sin, and that we should ever bring upon ourselves such a doom! We should never undervalue the compassion of earthly friends; but the situation of those is exceedingly to be deplored, who prefer the compassion of human friends to the compassion of Christ, and who would rather pour their complaint into their bosom than into the bosom of Christ. Long life, wealth, and power, without piety, are lost talents, which will immensely add to the compunction, sorrow, and despair of wicked men, when they shall shut their eyes in death, and enter upon the awful realities of a future world. When the wicked man dies, all is lost, irrevocably lost, lost for ever! When the righteous man dies, all is gain, he enters upon an inheritance that never fadeth away.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY holy and blessed Jehovah, whom we approach in Jesus' name, we worship and adore thee as the uncreated fountain of all being, wisdom, purity, and perfection. Thou art God alone, and beside thee there is none else. So dependent are all creatures and worlds on thee, that, if thou wert to withdraw from them for one moment thy maintaining and upholding hand, they must instantly return to their original nothing. Thou art the wonderful Creator of the vast universe, and art worthy of the homage of all thine intelligent subjects. We feel that it is not only our duty, but our privilege, to worship before thee. O may we experience increasing delight in thy service! May we ever find that there is no time so pleasantly, so profitably engaged, as that which is filled up by the service and the worship of God. Animate our hearts with unfeigned thankfulness and joy, that we can have constant access to the mercy-seat, by the blood which Jesus shed upon the accursed tree.

We thank thee, gracious God, for thy paternal and watchful care during the past night, and that we are still within the reach and call of mercy's voice. We bless thee for the light of another day: O give us the light of thy smiles, and the light of thy salvation! Entering on another day, we would resign ourselves and all that we have into thy hand, that we may ever be employed in thy service and devoted to thy glory. Direct us in the path of duty, preserve us in thy fear, and may all our lawful undertakings be crowned with success. When we are blessed with temporal prosperity, make us humble; and when we are called to experience temporal losses, make us submissive to the will of our heavenly Father, who has permitted us to call him the portion of our soul.

We pray for the blessing of the Holy Spirit on what we have now read. May we ever look upon the sacred Scriptures as the speech of Christ. Teach us diligently to hear the speech of Christ; then we shall find his speech comforting words. O that we could say of Christ's gracious words, Thy word was found of me, and I did eat it; thy word was the joy and the rejoicing of my soul!

In all our afflictions may we be instructed to make our complaint known unto God; and may we rejoice exceedingly that, though the door of earthly friends is shut against us in the day of our calamity, the door of mercy is ever open, and the throne of grace constantly accessible.

Lord, give thy Holy Spirit to our children. Never may they be left to say to God, Depart from us, for we desire not the knowledge of thy name.

O have mercy on hardened and impenitent souls, who say with daring presumption, and on the very border of eternity, What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what profit should we have, if we pray unto him? Teach such to reflect on the awful consequences of such hardened impenitence, in the world of spirits. O pluck our graceless friends as brands out of the burning!

We present before thee our morning sacrifice. Hear, answer, and forgive, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

ETERNAL AND UNCHANGEABLE LOVE.

P. M.

- 1 O MY distrustful heart,
How small thy faith appears!
But greater, Lord, thou art
Than all my doubts and fears:
Did Jesus once upon me shine?
Then Jesus is for ever mine.
- 2 Unchangeable his will,
Though dark may be my frame,
His loving heart is still Eternally the same:
My soul through many changes goes,
His love no variation knows.
- 3 Thou, Lord, wilt carry on,
And perfectly perform
The work thou hast begun
In me a sinful worm:
Midst all my fears, and sin, and woe,
Thy Spirit will not let me go.

ANON.

PHILIPPIANS I.

The Apostles' Love to the Saints.

PAUL and Timotheus, the servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus which are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons:

2 Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God upon every remembrance of you,

4 Always in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy,

5 For your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now;

6 Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ:

7 Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, because I have you in my heart; inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the gospel, ye all are partakers of my grace.

8 For God is my record, how greatly I long after you all in the bowels of Jesus Christ.

9 And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more in knowledge and in all judgment;

10 That ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ;

11 Being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God.

12 But I would ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel;

13 So that my bonds in Christ are manifest in all the palace, and in all other places;

14 And many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the word without fear.

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILIP. I.—Paul, and his associates in the holy ministry, furnish a lovely and instructive lesson of Christian unity. This is the bond of peace. This is the Divine cord which binds saints on earth and saints in heaven. This is the cement which strengthens and unites the living stones of the spiritual temple, the Church, forming a compact whole, which never can be rent asunder. O what an infinite, over-flowing, ever-flowing fountain of streams and blessings, mercies and comforts, is the God of salvation, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ! Let us daily, earnestly, and thankfully apply to this Divine and gracious fountain. There we shall receive grace for every time of need; there we shall receive that peace which passeth all understanding, which is of a heavenly origin, which is a preparative for, and a prelude of, the joys of heaven. O may we hear Jesus saying to us, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you: let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid!" Amen.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art most high and holy. The very heavens are not clean in thy sight. We adore thee as the Lord and the life of all creation. Great is our Lord, and of great power; his understanding is infinite. Holy Spirit, give us thine influence, that we may glorify thy perfections, which appear in all the objects of thy vast creation, by which we are surrounded. O what reason have we to rejoice in the richer manifestations of thine attributes in the great plan of salvation accomplished in the fulness of time on Calvary's cross!

Blessed be thy name, that, when sacrifices and offerings could not remove thine anger, which our sins had awfully provoked, at the appointed time thy Son came from heaven to earth, and bowed his head and died. We rejoice that by his blood justice is satisfied, and that by his stripes we are healed.

Thou gracious and Divine Benefactor, we thank thee for the protection and blessings of the past day. By thy goodness we are continued in the land of the living; and we are the witnesses of thy mercy, compassion, and forbearance. O that the conclusion of the day may remind us of the close of life! We commend ourselves and all our relatives and friends to thy care this night. Give thine angels charge over us, and may they hold us up in their hands for good. During the hours of darkness, sleep, and repose, may they watch around our beds. And may we awake on the approaching day, to speak of thy power and to glorify thy grace.

Like Paul, may we be loving and faithful servants of Christ. By nature we are sinners, filled with enmity against God; by grace may we be made saints, filled with the love of God. By nature we are sinners, travelling the downward road to perdition; by grace may we be made saints, then shall we travel upwards to the abodes of holiness and love. Lord, give us unfeigned love to thy saints, and unfeigned compassion for souls perishing in sin. Let this love, let this compassion pre-eminently reign in the hearts of all who profess to be the heralds of the Gospel and the ministers of Christ.

Enable us as a family fervently to love each other, and earnestly to commend each other to the mercy of God on the arms of our affectionate supplications. Give each one of us the satisfying evidence that we are the subjects of grace. If the good work of salvation is begun within us, we praise and adore thine unmerited love and boundless compassion.

If our dear children or servants have not yet tasted that the Lord is gracious, if they have not yet seen and admired the loveliness of Christ, O do Thou begin in their souls the good work of a regenerating change.

Teach us all to abound in love more and more, in knowledge and in all judgment. May we approve the things that are excellent; and in the day of Christ may we be sincere and without offence. O fill us with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Christ, unto the glory of God.

Lord, hear our imperfect supplications, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy of the praises of saints, and of the adoration of angels. Amen.

- 1 EARTH has engrossed my love too long!
 'Tis time I lift mine eyes
 Upward, dear Father, to thy throne,
 And to my native skies.
- 2 Seraphs with elevated strains
 Circle the throne around;
 And move and charm the starry plains
 With an immortal sound.
- 3 Jesus, the Lord, their harps employ:—
 Jesus, my love, they sing!
 Jesus, the life of both our joys,
 Sounds sweet from every string.
- 4 Now let me mount and join their song,
 And be an angel too;
 My heart, my ear, my hand, my tongue,—
 Here's joyful work for you!

JOB XXII.

Eliphaz reproving Job.

- THEN Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said,
 2 Can a man be profitable unto God, as he that is wise may be profitable unto himself?
 3 Is it any pleasure to the Almighty, that thou art righteous? or is it gain to him, that thou makest thy ways perfect?
 4 Will he reprove thee for fear of thee? will he enter with thee into judgment?
 5 Is not thy wickedness great? and thine iniquities infinite?
 6 For thou hast taken a pledge from thy brother for nought, and stripped the naked of their clothing.
 7 Thou hast not given water to the weary to drink, and thou hast withholden bread from the hungry.
 8 But as for the mighty man, he had the earth; and the honourable man dwelt in it.
 9 Thou hast sent widows away empty, and the arms of the fatherless have been broken.
 10 Therefore snares are round about thee, and sudden fear troubleth thee.
 12 Is not God in the height of heaven? and behold the height of the stars, how high they are!
 13 And thou sayest, How doth God know? can he judge through the dark cloud?
 14 Thick clouds are a covering to him, that he seeth not;
 and he walketh in the circuit of heaven.
 21 Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace:
 thereby good shall come unto thee.
 22 Receive, I pray thee, the law from his mouth, and lay up his words in thine heart.
 23 If thou return to the Almighty, thou shalt be built up, thou shalt put away iniquity far from thy tabernacles.
 24 Then shalt thou lay up gold as dust, and the gold of Ophir as the stones of the brooks.
 25 Yea, the Almighty shall be thy defence, and thou shalt have plenty of silver.
 26 For then shalt thou have thy delight in the Almighty, and shalt lift up thy face unto God.
 27 Thou shalt make thy prayer unto him, and he shall hear thee, and thou shalt pay thy vows.
 28 Thou shalt also decree a thing, and it shall be established unto thee: and the light shall shine upon thy ways.
 29 When men are cast down, then thou shalt say, There is lifting up; and he shall save the humble person.
 30 He shall deliver the island of the innocent; and it is delivered by the pureness of thine hands.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXII.—Infinite independence is one of the essential attributes of Jehovah. All are necessarily dependant on him; for "it is in him we live, and move, and have our being." He is, therefore, necessarily independent of all, and dependent on none. The graces and righteousness of God's people cannot add to his essential happiness, but still he delights in their graces more than they can do themselves, and in that glorious robe of righteousness in which they are arrayed. No earthly parent, of the most exalted piety, can possibly rejoice in the virtues and graces which beautify their regenerated children, as Christ delights in the graces of his redeemed people. In the glowing language of the sacred, inspired song, Jesus is represented as saying respecting his Church, "Let me see thy face, let me hear thy voice; for sweet is thy voice, and thy countenance is comely."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely independent of all beings, and thou requirest neither the counsel of the wise nor the help of the mighty. Compared with thy wisdom, the wisdom of the wisest is folly; and, compared with thy power, the strength of the most mighty is weakness. None can be profitable unto thee, as he that is wise is profitable to himself. The righteousness of men cannot increase thine essential blessedness; and it is no gain to thee, even if our ways were perfect. O Lord, thou dwellest on high; thou art in the height of heaven, on a throne so high that the imagination of archangels cannot reach its height. Even the height of the stars sinks into insignificance, compared with the lofty magnificence of thy throne. Still, it is our privilege to approach thy throne in Jesus' name.

Lord, we confess that our iniquities are great, and our wickedness infinite. We acknowledge that all our sins are directed against the infinite glory of all thy perfections. Lord, enter not into judgment with us, for we could not stand before thee. Look upon us not as we have sinned, but look upon us in the face of thine Anointed; then we shall be accepted in thy sight.

Lord, have mercy on our dear friends who are living in impenitence and sin. Deliver them from the delusive thought that they can conceal their sin and impiety from thee. Suffer them not to say, in the language of atheistical profanity, How doth God know? can he judge through the dark cloud? O Lord, thick clouds are no covering to thee; and, though thou walkest through the circuit of heaven, thy penetrating eye sees with the greatest distinctness all the thoughts, purposes, and actions of the children of men.

Lord, make our dear children and domestics sparingly acquainted with thee; then they shall be at peace with thee as their reconciled God in Christ.

Blessed Jesus, may all of us be under thy Divine and saving instruction. Teach us to receive the law from thy mouth, and to lay up thy words in our heart. Graciously sanctify our memory, and make it a treasury filled with the richest jewels of Divine knowledge. Lord, we mourn over the weakness and the treachery of our memory.

We confess that by nature and practice we have wandered far from God. Thou art calling upon us in thy Gospel, Return. If thou hadst dealt with us according to our desert, thou wouldst have cast us off for ever, and have said to us, Depart. Holy Spirit, turn us and all our relatives to God our Father in Christ. We thank thee that thou hast promised that, if we turn, thou wilt build us up, and thou wilt put iniquity far from our tabernacles. As a family may we be wholly turned unto thee, the Father of our spirits; then our abode shall become the sanctified residence of the Lord our God.

We thank God for the mercies of the night, and we seek the comfort of thy direction and presence this day. Lord, hear the prayer we have presented before thee, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost we would ascribe glory, honour, and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

DESIRING TO DEPART, AND BE WITH CHRIST.

DOUBTLESS.

PHILIPPIANS I.

Paul's Devotedness to Christ.

SOME indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of good will:

16 The one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds:

17 But the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel.

18 What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice.

19 For I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20 According to my earnest expectation and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldness, as always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death.

21 For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

22 But if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I shall choose I wot not.

23 For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better:

24 Nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you.

25 And having this confidence, I know that I shall abide and continue with you all for your furtherance and joy of faith;

26 That your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jesus Christ for me by my coming to you again.

27 Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ: that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel;

28 And in nothing terrified by your adversaries: which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of salvation, and that of God.

29 For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake;

30 Having the same conflict which ye saw in me, and now hear to be in me

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILIP. I.—What a precious boon is the Gospel of Christ! and it is peculiarly and flagrantly dishonoured and desecrated when it is proclaimed, not for the honour of God, or the eternal interest of souls, but from the base motives of pride, selfishness, or envy. The Gospel is pre-eminently the gospel of peace, showing how peace with God may be obtained, and also the mean in the hand of God's Spirit by which peace is conveyed to the soul, from which it never can be removed. How preposterous, how daring, to employ this peaceful gospel as a mean of animosity and contention! Let us rejoice the Gospel is preached, and may it be our earnest prayer, that all who preach this gospel of love and peace may have their hearts warmed with love to Jesus, the author of this gospel, that their lives may exemplify that gentleness and peacefulness which the Gospel breathes, and which appeared in our Saviour's life in all their loveliness and glory.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, thou hast proclaimed thyself to be gracious and merciful, and thou hast declared thy delight in forgiving iniquity, transgression, and sin. Lord, be gracious to us, for we are unworthy; be merciful to us, for we have rendered ourselves miserable by sin. O thou Hearer of prayer, give us the Divine aid of thy Spirit, while we endeavour to lift up our eyes in earnest, humble, and believing prayer. Lord, we are unworthy of thy smiles and of thine acceptance, for we are perverse and disobedient; and we have, in instances without number, trampled upon the authority of the Lord our God. O enable us to exemplify a godly sorrow for sin, and the most lively faith in Jesus as the Saviour from sin.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the favours of the past day and of the past week. Surely goodness and mercy have followed us all the days of our life. O may we dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. Preserve us from all those dangers to which we may be exposed this night, and suffer no plague to come near our dwelling, or to come near the abode of those families and friends in whose welfare we are deeply concerned.

Prepare us, and the minister who watches over us, and prepare all the congregations of the people, for the solemnities and services of the approaching Sabbath. May the Sun of righteousness shed down his glorious beams of light and love on every family and on every congregation who shall supplicate the mercy and grace of God.

May Christ be clearly and faithfully preached by all who profess to be the ministers of Christ. We desire to rejoice with the apostle that Christ is preached. May all who preach Christ proclaim his glory and his grace from holy motives, from love to his person and admiration of his excellences, and an experience of the blessings of his purchase. Lord, give to us a rich supply of the influences of the Holy Spirit.

May our children and servants be filled with the Holy Ghost. O may we behold in them the blessed and satisfying evidence that they are the subjects of his enlightening and sanctifying grace.

Thou, O Jesus, as a Divine creator, hast given us life; and as our Saviour thou didst die, that we might live for ever: O enable us to live to thee. Great are the obligations under which we are laid to live to thee; give us grace, that, whether we live, we may live to Christ; or, whether we die, we may die to Christ. With the apostle may we be able to say, For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Lord, give us a greater love to heaven than earth; give us, we earnestly pray, a greater desire to depart and be with Christ, than to remain here below in this life of sin, of weakness, of ignorance, perplexity, temptation, and sorrow. Teach us, in the exercise of lively faith, to believe that it is infinitely better to depart and be with Christ. Lord, sanctify us; and may our conversation be such as becometh the Gospel. Mercifully hear our prayers, and blot out our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

ENTERING GOD'S COURTS WITH JOY.
Malmathon. Ringvold. Denmark. New Denmark. L. M.

- 1 SING to the Lord with joyful voice;
 Let every soul his name adore;
 The British isles shall send the noise
 Across the ocean to the shore.
- 2 Nations, attend before his throne
 With solemn fear, with sacred joy;
 Know that the Lord is God alone;
 He can create, and he destroy.
- 3 His sovereign power, without our aid,
 Made us of clay, and formed us men;
 And when like wandering sheep we strayed,
 He brought us to his fold again.
- 4 We are his people, we his care,
 Our souls and all our mortal frame:
 What lasting honours shall we rear,
 Almighty Maker, to thy name!
- 5 We'll crowd thy gates with thankful songs,
 High as the heavens our voices raise;
 And earth, with her ten thousand tongues,
 Shall fill thy courts with sounding praise.
- 6 Wide as the world is thy command,
 Vast as eternity thy love;
 Firm as a rock thy truth must stand,
 When rolling years shall cease to move.

Watts, Ps. 100.

PSALM XCIX.

Worshipping God.

THE LORD reigneth; let the people tremble: he sitteth between the cherubims; let the earth be moved.

2 The LORD is great in Zion; and he is high above all the people.

3 Let them praise thy great and terrible name; for it is holy.

4 The king's strength also loveth judgment; thou dost establish equity, thou excellest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.

5 Exalt ye the LORD our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy.

6 Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the LORD, and he answered them.

7 He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar: they kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them.

8 Thou answeredst them, O LORD our God: thou wast a God that forgavest them, though thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.

9 Exalt the LORD our God, and worship at his holy hill; for the LORD our God is holy.

PSALM C.

Joyfulness in God's Service.

MAKE a joyful noise unto the LORD, all ye lands.

2 Serve the LORD with gladness: come before his presence with singing.

3 Know ye that the LORD he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

4 Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name.

5 For the LORD is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS XCIX., c.—Christ as God reigns over the universe. Does Christ as Mediator reign over my soul? Have I supplicated Jesus to fill the throne of my heart? Was his heart torn with a spear for me? O how infinitely entitled is he to reign on the throne of my affections! Happy is he who can say, "O Jesus, if I had a thousand hearts, I'd give them all to thee!" Jesus is exalted high in the adoring admiration of the Church triumphant in heaven, and in the Church militant on earth. Let it be our earnest prayer, that he may be exalted high in our adoring admiration, and that we may say with holy sincerity and devotion, "None but Christ!

 none but Christ!" If the joy of believers be so great on entering God's sacred courts below, what must be their ecstasies of delight when they shall pass through the pearly gates, and enter the heavenly temple above! May our hearts be filled with the love of Christ!
 This will tune our hearts to sing his praise, and prepare us for joining sweetly in the song of Moses and the Lamb before his glorious throne.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, the creator of the universe, the author and the end of all things, thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day. In the name of Jesus we approach thy throne of grace. We seek thy spirit, that we may enter on this thy day, and engage in its various sacred ordinances with reverence, faith, and thankfulness.

O Lord, we adore thee as wonderful in thy nature, and in all thine acts. Thou hast done marvellous things. Thou hast confounded thine enemies; thy right hand and thine holy arm hath gotten thee the victory. Enable thy ministering servants to speak faithfully of the marvellous things of redemption, which so far surpass the wonders of creation and providence. Prepare our minds, and the minds of the congregation, and the minds of all who shall assemble in thy courts, to hear and believe and enjoy the wonders of redeeming love. Thou, O Lord, art the God of salvation; and we rejoice this salvation is revealed in the Holy Scriptures, and that it is made known to many nations of the earth. Glory to God that the tidings of this salvation have reached these lands and the islands of the sea. We thank thee, O Most High, for all the natural and national blessings thou hast conferred upon our native land; but, above all, we thank thee for the glorious Gospel, the message of eternal love, and for that salvation by which the hearts of millions have been filled with joy.

Have mercy on heathen lands, and soon may this salvation and thy righteousness be shown in the sight of the heathen.
 O let the abominations of idolatry speedily be destroyed before the blessed light of the Gospel of Christ. Let the efforts which are employed by the people to disseminate the knowledge of Jesus in pagan countries be crowned with increasing success.
 O have mercy on the fallen house of Israel! Remember graciously thy mercy and thy truth to the house of Jacob; let all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God. O
 Lord, thou art great in Zion; appear great in Zion this day.
 May Christ's glory be revealed to thousands, and may thy great grace be glorified in the conversion of multitudes who are now in the darkness of spiritual death.

Enable all thy ministers and people and churches this day to make a joyful noise unto the Lord. May we all enter thy courts with thankfulness, and thy gates with praise. To us may thy Sabbath be a profitable and a joyful day. O gladden the hearts of those who are cast down; and may aged pilgrims experience a revival of their spiritual strength. May they bring forth fruit in old age.

Bless to our dear children the solemn services of thy day.
 May Divine impressions be produced on their minds, and on the minds of our domestics, salutary, saving, and lasting.

Have pity on the sons and daughters of affliction. May they rejoice, amidst the clouds of suffering, that thou art good, that thy mercy is everlasting, and that thy truth endureth to all generations.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the night, and give us this day thy Holy Spirit. Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our only and our exalted Saviour. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PSALM FOR THE HEAD OF A FAMILY.

Mehetabel. Swanwick. Bedford

C. M.

- 1 OF justice and of grace I sing,
And pay my God my vows;
Thy grace and justice, heavenly king,
Teach me to rule my house.
- 2 Now to my tent, O God, repair,
And make thy servant wise;
I'll suffer nothing near me there
That shall offend thine eyes.
- 3 Tho man that doth his neighbour wrong,
By falsehood or by force,
Tho scornful eye, the slanderous tongue,
I'll thrust them from my doors.
- 4 I'll seek the faithful and the just,
And will their help enjoy;
These are the friends that I shall trust,
Tho servants I'll employ.

WATTE, Ps. 101.

PSALM CI.

Family Order.

- I WILL sing of mercy and judgment: unto thee, O LORD, will I sing.
- 2 I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk within my house with a perfect heart.
  - 3 I will set no wicked thing before mine eyes: I hate the work of them that turn aside; it shall not cleave to me.
  - 4 A froward heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked person.
  - 5 Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I cut off: him that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer.
  - 6 Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walketh in a perfect way, he shall serve me.
  - 7 He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house: he that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight.
  - 8 I will early destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all wicked doors from the city of the LORD.

PSALM CII.

The Prophet's grievous Complaint.

- HEAR my prayer, O LORD, and let my cry come unto thee.
- 2 Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me: in the day when I call answer me speedily.
  - 3 For my days are consumed like smoke, and my bones are burned as an hearth.
  - 4 My heart is smitten, and withered like grass; so that I forget to eat my bread.
  - 5 By reason of the voice of my groaning my bones cleave to my skin.
  - 6 I am like a pelican of the wilderness: I am like an owl of the desert.
  - 7 I watch, and am as a sparrow alone upon the house-top.
  - 8 Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that are mad against me are sworn against me.
  - 9 For I have eaten ashes like bread, and mingled my drink with weeping,
  - 10 Because of thine indignation and thy wrath: for thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CI., CII.—God's attributes, glorified in Christ, will furnish matter for the songs of angels and of saints for ever in heaven. These songs shall be ever new, and each repetition as delightful, fresh, and animating, as if they had never been sung before. When families are "churches in the house," the voice of singing and of joyful praise is heard in their habitations. O may this be true of our families—may this be true of our habitations! May our families be regulated on Gospel principles! May it be written on the lintels and posts of our doors, "Jehovah Shammah—the Lord is there!" When all the families on the face of the earth shall be so regulated, when the morning and evening sacrifice shall be regularly presented upon the family altar, then shall have arrived the days of millennial glory, and of millennial blessedness. Great and many were the afflictions of David. But what stamps them with peculiar interest is this—they were typical of the afflictions of our Lord, David's root and David's offspring. There was no suffering like Christ's suffering, and now there is no glory like his glory. Now he is highly exalted, and has received a name above every name; and, infinitely blessed himself, he fills heaven with blessedness and joy.

PRAYER.

THOU Holy one of Israel, before whom cherubim and seraphim bow in humble adoration, thou art the Lord God Almighty, which art and wast and art to come. Thy great and glorious name endureth for ever, and thy memorial to all generations. O give us thy good Spirit, to help us, at the close of the day, to bow before thee in profound reverence, adoration, and love. We desire with grateful hearts to thank thee for the Sabbath, and all those sacred privileges by which it is distinguished. What are we, that we have been allowed to enter thy holy courts, mingle with thy spiritual family, and hear the animating and consolatory accents of the gospel trumpet! Our eyes are honoured to read the pages of thy word, our ears are honoured to hear the joyful sound, and our lips are honoured to proclaim the praises of the God of our salvation. Lord, accept of the services of thy people wherever they have been assembled in thy name throughout the Christian world. Through the mediation of Jesus, the Divine advocate, may all the solemnities of this day be followed by consequences glorious to God and beneficial to men. We present an offering of thankfulness for all the assistance thy ministering servants have received from Jesus, the great Head of the Church, and for all the benefit which the souls of men have derived from their labours. Lord, forgive the sins which have accompanied our holy things. If we have been guilty of wandering imaginations, if we have waited upon thee with cold and languid hearts, if our minds have been more influenced by unbelief than by faith, we seek forgiveness through our Saviour's blood.

Praise to our God, that we are surrounded by mercies. Notwithstanding all the afflictions we have been called to endure, we acknowledge that they are infinitely less than our iniquities deserve; and we acknowledge with thankfulness that thy mercies far exceed thy judgments. As a family we will sing of mercy as well as of judgment; unto thee, O Lord, will we sing.

Lord, give grace to the heads of this family, to regulate all our domestic concerns on those blessed principles and by those Divine rules by which the inspired Psalmist was resolved to manage the affairs of his house. O keep back from our family and our abode those who slander their neighbour, and such as are of an high look and a proud heart.

May the character of our dear children never be stained by the foul blot of lying lips and a deceitful tongue. May they never forget that hell is the doom of those who speak lies. Wherever our servants are placed in thy providence, let integrity and truth preserve them.

Bless our rulers. Like David, may their eyes be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with them; and may all the wicked be removed far distant from the seat of government and influence.

Lord, watch over us this night, and let no evil befall us. Hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SINS AND SORROWS SPREAD BEFORE GOD.

Highbury. New Ascension. Quebec. Crowds.

C. M.

- 1 O THAT I knew the secret place
Where I might find my God!
I'd spread my wants before his face,
And pour my woes abroad.
- 2 I'd tell him how my sins arise,
What sorrows I sustain;
How grace decays, and comfort dies,
And leaves my heart in pain.
- 3 I'd say—How flesh and sense rebel!
What inward foes combine
With the vain world and powers of hell,
To vex this soul of mine!
- 4 He knows what arguments I'd take,
To wrestle with my God;
I'd plead for his own mercy's sake,
And for my Saviour's blood.

WATTS.

JOB XXIII.

Job's Love to God in Affliction.

THEN Job answered and said,

2 Even to-day is my complaint bitter: my stroke is heavier than my groaning.

3 Oh that I knew where I might find him! that I might come even to his seat!

4 I would order my cause before him, and fill my mouth with arguments.

5 I would know the words which he would answer me, and understand what he would say unto me.

6 Will he plead against me with his great power? No; but he would put strength in me.

7 There the righteous might dispute with him; so should I be delivered for ever from my judge.

8 Behold, I go forward, but he is not there; and backward, but I cannot perceive him:

9 On the left hand, where he doth work, but I cannot behold him: he hideth himself on the right hand, that I cannot see him:

10 But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold.

11 My foot hath held his steps; his way have I kept, and not declined.

12 Neither have I gone back from the commandment of his lips; I have esteemed the words of his mouth more than my necessary food.

13 But he is in one mind, and who can turn him? and what his soul desireth, even that he doeth.

14 For he performed the thing that is appointed for me: and many such things are with him.

15 Therefore am I troubled at his presence: when I consider, I am afraid of him.

16 For God maketh my heart soft, and the Almighty troubleth me:

17 Because I was not cut off before the darkness, neither hath he covered the darkness from my face.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXIII.—In the day of severe trial may we be mercifully preserved from a murmuring spirit! God's judgments are never heavier than we deserve, and there is no affliction which he has not promised to bless, and there is no burden which he has not promised to enable us to bear. When afflictions are sanctified, believers earnestly desire God's fellowship, and they long after the enjoyment of his smiles with as much earnestness as the hunted, parched "hart panteth after the water-brooks." It is when the Spirit comes with his gracious influences, that we are taught to present suitable and acceptable petitions before the mercy-seat, and successfully to plead our cause before a prayer-hearing God, relying wholly on the atonement of Jesus. It is when we are taught by the Spirit to pray, and when we found our plea upon the merit of Christ's atonement alone, that our cause is ordered wisely before God, and that our supplications are to him as the odour of the fragrant incense. Thus may we be taught to pray; then our prayers here will prove the happy prelude of our introduction to that holy, happy land, where the prayers of the saints on earth are exchanged for songs of endless praises in heaven. What an encouraging and what a mysterious truth—God graciously communicates his own power to his praying children, that they may have power to prevail over himself, and obtain the most abundant answers to their earnest supplications. Thus praying, Jacob had power and prevailed.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, our God and Father in Christ, thou who art the hearer of prayer, and who delightest even in the imperfect praises and adorations of thy people, thou art the unchanging Jehovah. In thy nature, perfections, purposes, and blessedness, thou art the unchanging Jehovah. Thou art of one mind, and who can turn thee? and what thy soul desireth, that thou doest.

We bless the Lord our God that we have enjoyed the comforts of thy watchful care during the past night. In thy goodness thou hast opened our eyes to see the light of another day. May our awaking on our beds amid the light of a rising sun remind us of the morning of the resurrection-day, when all the saints who sleep in the dust shall awake, to enjoy the glories of immortality. We supplicate the blessing of our God to attend us this day. May we keep our hearts with all diligence, seeing out of them are the issues of life. Suffer no temptation to befall us; give us devotional feelings in our religious duties; and in our worldly pursuits may we be preserved from the pernicious influence of earthly cares.

Sanctify to us and all our relatives the public ordinances of religion yesterday dispensed. May we be enabled during the whole of the week, and during the whole of our lives, to exemplify the blessed influence of the holy and Divine truths to which we have listened. O let not the word, to which we have so long and so often listened, resemble water spilt upon the ground, that cannot be gathered up again. God forbid that this should be the case in the midst of such privileges, and surrounded by such invaluable opportunities.

May we see in our children, and in our servants, the saving effects of a preached Gospel. Heaven grant that the Word of God may come to them in the demonstration of the Spirit and with power.

O Jesus, we bless thee that thou didst willingly undertake to endure the heaviest sufferings to accomplish the salvation of men. If the complaint of Job was bitter, and if his stroke was heavier than his groaning, all his sufferings were light as air, compared with that awful load of ignominy and wrath to which thou didst willingly submit, to rescue a miserable world from the consequences of the fall. Truly, O Lamb of God, there was no sorrow like unto thy sorrow, in the day when the Lord afflicted thy suffering humanity for the sins of men.

In the day of our affliction may we resemble Job, in laying all our sufferings before thee in earnest prayer. May the school of our affliction prove to us a school of instruction, where we shall learn to plead earnestly with God. And if our bodily affliction is connected with the hiding of thy countenance, may this only tend to excite our love, and promote the earnestness of our supplications. O that all of us may be able to say, in the assurance of a lively faith, When he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold. In days of trouble may we especially esteem the words of Christ more than our necessary food.

Bless this domestic ordinance, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our only Saviour and Advocate. Amen.

LONGING FOR THE MIND OF CHRIST.

Arundel. Stratford. Condescension.

G. V.

- 1 IF duty calls, and suffering too,
My Lord! I'd follow thee;
As thou hast done, so would I do,
As thou art would I be.
- 2 With zeal inflamed, 't was thy delight
To do thy Father's will;
May the same zeal my soul excite
Thy precepts to fulfil.
- 3 Meekness, humility, and love,
Did through thy conduct shine;
O may my whole deportment prove
A copy, Lord, of thine!

BEDDOME.

PHILIPPIANS II.

The Love, Humility, and Glory of Christ.

IF there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies,

2 Fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind.

3 Let nothing be done through strife or vain-glory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.

4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.

5 Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus:

6 Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God:

7 But made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men:

8 And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

9 Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name:

10 That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth;

11 And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

12 Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

13 For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmurings and disputings:

15 That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world;

16 Holding forth the word of life; that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain.

17 Yea, and if I be offered upon the sacrifice and service of your faith, I joy, and rejoice with you all.

18 For the same cause also do ye joy, and rejoice with me.

19 But I trust in the Lord Jesus to send Timotheus shortly unto you, that I also may be of good comfort, when I know your state.

20 For I have no man likeminded, who will naturally care for your state.

21 For all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's.

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILIP. II.—Jesus is an overflowing fountain of grace and consolations. Sanctified ordinances are wells filled from this blessed and glorious fountain. May it be our privilege and delight, daily to draw water with joy out of these wells of salvation. Ministers have abundant reason to rejoice in the belief that their labours are crowned with the efficacy of the Holy Spirit, when they are successful in producing among the people of their care, love, unity, and peace. Behold how good and how pleasant is this unity! It is like the copious and fertilising dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion, for there God commanded the blessing, even life for evermore. Disinterestedness is one of the loveliest branches which grows upon the plant of grace. While the holy Apostle recommended the practice of this Christian virtue to others, he enforced his command by being himself one of its brightest examples. But it was in Jesus this gracious disposition shone forth in all its matchless excellence. We see it in his poverty and want—in the privations to which he willingly submitted, and in the sufferings which he readily endured. And all this for sinful, rebel man!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Jesus, to adore thee in thy Divinity, and in all the majesty and glory of thy nature, character, and office. We praise thee for that unparalleled love which thou hast manifested to fallen man. Though in the form of God, thou thoughtest it no robbery to be equal with God, yet thou didst make thyself of no reputation, and didst take upon thee the form of a servant. O Jesus, we adore thy love. Being found in fashion as a man, thou didst humble thyself, and become obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. O Jesus, we adore thy condescending grace. Praise to thy name, O Immanuel, that the day of thy suffering is past, and that the day of thy glory is come. Praise to thy name, O Immanuel, that thou didst pass through the deep seas of thy humiliation, and that thou art now seated on the lofty throne of thine exaltation. As God, thou art possessed of glorious prerogatives which never could be laid aside; thou fillest a throne of essential glory. But we also rejoice that, in thine official capacity as Mediator, thou art elevated to the enjoyment of the greatest honour, blessedness, and power. Thou hast received the rich reward of thine obedience, sufferings, and death. Thou art highly exalted; a name is given thee by thy Father above every name. O Jesus, every knee shall bow before thy name, and every tongue confess that thou art Lord, to the glory of God the Father. As a family we now acknowledge thy Divine majesty and thy mediatorial glory.

Great Saviour, make our dear children the subjects of thy mediatorial government. Give them grace to touch the golden sceptre of thy love; and may they be eternal trophies of thy gracious conquest.

Lord, we pray for the increasing influence of Christian love in our family, in all the families with which we are connected, and in all the churches. May they be all like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, and of one mind. Let the same mind be in us that was also in Christ Jesus. Teach us to resemble Jesus in zeal for the glory of God, for the extension of his Church, and for the salvation of the souls of perishing immortals. We mourn over the coldness of our zeal, and over the great deficiency of this grace among those who bear the name of Christ. Teach us to resemble Jesus in meekness and humility. Subdue in our minds all those angry passions which are so injurious to the soul, and so offensive to the Lord our God. Make us meek and lowly in heart. Holy Spirit, let the same mind be in us which was also in Christ. And if ever sufferings should be necessary for testifying our attachment to his cause, and for promoting the interest of his Church, may we willingly submit, may we readily endure, remembering the animating example of Christ, who left the realms of bliss, to save from sin and hell.

Accept of our thanks, gracious God, for the mercies of the day, and continue with us this night thine unmerited care. Forgive all our sins, and hear our prayers, for our Divine and exalted Saviour's sake. Amen.

END OF THE RIGHTEOUS AND THE WICKED.

Ezequias. Willakres New. Burford.

c. n.

- 1 BLEST is the man who shuns the place
Where sinners love to meet;
Who fears to tread their wicked ways,
And hates the scoffer's seat.
- 2 But in the statutes of the Lord
Has placed his chief delight:
By day he reads or hears the Word,
And meditates by night.
- 3 Green as the leaf, and ever fair,
Shall his profession shine,
While fruits of holiness appear
Like clusters on the vine.
- 4 Not so the impious and unjust,
What vain designs they form!
Their hopes are blown away like dust,
Or chaff before the storm.

WATTS, Ps. 1.

JOB XXIV.

Prosperity and Destruction of the Wicked.

WHY, seeing times are not hidden from the Almighty, do they that know him not see his days?

2 Some remove the landmarks; they violently take away flocks, and feed thereof.

3 They drive away the ass of the fatherless, they take the widow's ox for a pledge.

4 They turn the needy out of the way: the poor of the earth hide themselves together.

7 They cause the naked to lodge without clothing, that they have no covering in the cold.

8 They are wet with the showers of the mountains, and embrace the rock for want of a shelter.

9 They pluck the fatherless from the breast, and take a pledge of the poor.

10 They cause him to go naked without clothing, and they take away the sheaf from the hungry.

14 The murderer rising with the light killeth the poor and needy, and in the night is as a thief.

15 The eye also of the adulterer waiteth for the twilight, saying, No eye shall see me: and disguiseth his face.

16 In the dark they dig through houses, which they had marked for themselves in the daytime: they know not the light.

17 For the morning is to them even as the shadow of death: if one know them, they are in the terrors of the shadow of death.

18 He is swift as the waters; their portion is cursed in the earth: he beholdeth not the way of the vineyards.

19 Drought and heat consume the snow waters: so doth the grave those which have sinned.

20 The womb shall forget him; the worm shall feed sweetly on him: he shall be no more remembered; and wickedness shall be broken as a tree.

21 He evil entreateth the barren that beareth not: and doeth not good to the widow.

22 He draweth also the mighty with his power: he riseth up, and no man is sure of life.

23 Though it be given him to be in safety, whereou he resteth; yet his eyes are upon their ways.

24 They are exalted for a little while, but are gone and brought low; they are taken out of the way as all other, and cut off as the tops of the ears of corn.

25 And if it be not so now, who will make me a liar, and make my speech nothing worth?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXIV.—Since God is omniscient, he is infinitely qualified to govern the Church, and the world, and the universe. But multitudes think and speak and act as if there were no omniscient God to witness them, no righteous God to judge them, and no almighty God to punish them. They attempt to hide themselves amid the thick darkness of their unbelief and atheism, and thus foolishly imagine that they can with impunity commit the most during acts of cruelty against men, and the most presumptuous acts of impiety against God. The following practical truth should ever be present in our mind: "Thou, God, seest me." Thus, by the aid of the Holy Spirit, with what watchfulness we would guard against every temptation, and with what carefulness we would endeavour to discharge every duty! Is the life of the righteous now often marked with adversity, and that of the wicked marked by prosperity? What a change hereafter, in the world to come! Endless bliss will be the portion of the one, and endless woe the portion of the other.

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL and glorious Lord God, though thou dwellest in the highest heavens, though thou art receiving the homage and praises of the loftiest of archangels, though thou art clothed with the splendours of uncreated glory and light, we draw near unto thee under the sanction of the name of Jesus: and on thine own most gracious authority we address thee as our Father and our God. O inestimable, inconceivable privilege, that creatures so mean and so vile should be permitted to claim the highest honour, and to enjoy the greatest blessedness that can be enjoyed, even by the most exalted of created beings, that of calling thee our Father and our God!

O teach our beloved children to address thee as their Father who art in heaven. Enable them, under the influence of the spirit of thy Son, to cry, Abba, Father.

Lord, we desire to feel amazed at thy condescending grace. Notwithstanding the ineffable greatness of thy majesty, thou dost humble thyself to take notice of creatures so sinful and rebellious, and thou sayest in language the most consolatory and encouraging, I am the Lord your God. In our approaches to thy throne, may our minds be animated by pure devotion, and may we admire, love, and praise thee as the God of grace and salvation.

We thank thy gracious providence that, after the mercy and protection of another night, we are permitted as a family to draw near the throne of grace, and supplicate those blessings that are necessary for time and eternity. Suffer us not to value temporal mercies more than spiritual blessings. Grant that the unceasing continuance of thy temporal goodness may produce on our minds spiritual effects, and make us thirst more and more after those heavenly comforts which flow from thee as the God of salvation.

May our minds be suitably impressed with what we have now read. Convince us of the real misery of those who, in the midst of temporal prosperity, are living as practical atheists, without God, and under the reigning power of the vilest passions of the human heart. Lord, preserve the needy and the fatherless from the tyrannical cruelty of such men. Lord, pity the widow, the fatherless, and the orphan. Preserve them from every attempt that may be made to deprive them of their rights. O Jesus, though they are deprived of human protectors, may they have the protection of thy mighty arm; and if the rapacious hand of covetousness and injustice should take from them earthly possessions, mercifully give them thy salvation, adorn them with thy righteousness, and make them the blessed heirs of an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, beyond the skies.

Lord, have mercy on all our graceless friends, and give them grace to think of the grave, where their bodies shall soon be consumed, and of that eternity into which their souls shall soon be introduced.

Assist us in all the duties of the day, hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our aggravated sins, for the sake of Jesus, in whom all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. Amen.

VALUE OF CHRIST AND HIS RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Bradley. Newark. Lewton.

L. 2.

- 1 NO more, my God, I boast no more
Of all the duties I have done;
I quit the hopes I hold before,
'To trust the merits of thy Son.
- 2 Now, for the love I bear his name,
What was my gain I count my loss:
My former pride I call my shame,
And nail my glory to his cross.
- 3 Yes, and I must and will esteem
All things but loss for Jesus' sake:
O may my soul be found in him,
And of his righteousness partake.      WATTS, 109, B. I.

PHILIPPIANS III.

Paul's Love to Christ.

FINALLY, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write the same things to you, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is safe.

2 Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the concision.

3 For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh.

4 Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more:

5 Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee;

6 Concerning zeal, persecuting the church; touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless.

7 But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.

8 Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ,

9 And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith:

10 That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death;

11 If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead.

12 Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus.

13 Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before,

14 I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

15 Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you.

16 Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing.

17 Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them which walk so as ye have us for an ensample.

20 For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ:

21 Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILIP. III.—Regenerate men have unceasing reasons of constant joy; unregenerate men have constant reasons of unceasing sorrow. How desirable to have sanctified lives! but to obtain and to preserve this blessing, it is of indispensable necessity that we keep at a distance from those who are erroneous in their principles and corrupted in their practices. How exalted are the graces and attainments of the children of God! Their hearts are circumcised to love God; the fire of sacred devotion glows in their bosom; a song of joyful praise is upon their lips; they are separated from a world lying in wickedness; and their hopes and confidence are built on Christ, the only foundation laid in Zion. Great were the attainments, distinguished the usefulness, rich the gifts, and transcendent the graces of the Apostles of the Gentiles; but he rejected them all as a ground of confidence, and built his hopes of pardon, acceptance, and immortality alone on Jesus, as the Lord his righteousness.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, so glorious art thou, that thou art possessed of every perfection. Justice and judgment are the habitation of that throne of government and dominion thou dost fill, and mercy and truth go before thy face. Lord, enable us to draw near in faith, relying on the atonement of Christ alone for acceptance, and believing that we shall be accepted through his merit.

We adore thy goodness for the mercies of another day, for the temporal blessings of thy providence, and for the special comforts of thy grace. Divine Saviour, thou didst promise to thy Church, before the ascension of thy humanity to heaven, I will not leave you comfortless. We praise thee for the promise, and for the fulfilment of the promise. Thou hast not left thy children comfortless; and thou hast given them and continued with them thy Spirit, who is the Comforter. Continue with us this night thy kindness, and give us, we humbly pray, the blessings of sleep, protection, and repose.

We seek from our God the Divine blessing on that portion of sacred food of which we have been permitted to partake. Give us, we pray, the gift of caution, and the grace of watchfulness. Teach us to beware of the wicked, who resemble dogs, and may we always keep ourselves at a distance from the corrupting example of evil-workers.

God forbid that our dear children should ever allow themselves to become the companions of fools; but may they be followers of Christ, as dear children.

May we as a family be among those whose hearts are circumcised by the Holy Spirit, who worship God under his sacred influences, and who have no confidence in the flesh. Preserve us from a pharisaical spirit, and may we never remain under the power of that most destructive infatuation, satisfying ourselves with a name to live, while we may be spiritually dead. Graciously warm our hearts with a superlative love to Jesus, in his person, in his righteousness, and in his cross. Teach us to count all things but loss, when compared with the excellency of the knowledge of Christ. O illuminate our minds with enlarged views of Christ, and with enlarged degrees of the knowledge of Christ. May we be found in him, found in his righteousness, found in his covenant, and at last found in his heaven. Give us the satisfying evidence that we are clothed with the righteousness of Christ, and that we indeed know him in the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable to his death. May our conversation be in heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour. Enable us to think much and often of heaven; and to look upon it as our home. Give us faith to believe with the apostle, and to say with him, Christ will change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body.

Mercifully listen to the voice of our feeble prayers, for the sake of Jesus, our Saviour and Lord. Amen.

GOD'S GLORIOUS EXCELLENCES.

Zebulun. Penarth. Cambridge. Abridge. c. n.

- 1 HOW wondrous great, how glorious bright Must our Creator be,
Who dwells amidst the dazzling light
Of vast infinity!
- 2 Our soaring spirits upward rise
Toward the celestial throne;
Fain would we see the blessed Three,
And the almighty One.
- 3 Our reason stretches all its wings,
And climbs above the skies;
But still how far beneath thy feet
Our grovelling reason lies!
- 4 Lord, here we bend our humble souls,
And awfully adore,
For the weak pinions of our mind
Can stretch a thought no more.

JOB XXV.

God's Glory.

THEN answered Bildad the Shuhite, and said,
2 Dominion and fear are with him, he maketh peace in his high places.

3 Is there any number of his armies? and upon whom doth not his light arise?

4 How then can man be justified with God? or how can he be clean that is born of a woman?

5 Behold even to the moon, and it shineth not: yea, the stars are not pure in his sight.

6 How much less man, that is a worm; and the son of man, which is a worm?

JOB XXVI.

BUT Job answered and said,
2 How hast thou helped him that is without power?
how savest thou the arm that hath no strength?

3 How hast thou counselled him that hath no wisdom?
and how hast thou plentifully declared the thing as it is?

4 To whom hast thou uttered words? and whose spirit came from thee?

5 Dead things are formed from under the waters, and the inhabitants thereof.

6 Hell is naked before him, and destruction hath no covering.

7 He stretcheth out the north over the empty place, and hangeh the earth upon nothing.

8 He bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds; and the cloud is not rent under them.

9 He holdeth back the face of his throne, and spreadeth his cloud upon it.

10 He hath compassed the waters with bounds, until the day and night come to an end.

11 The pillars of heaven tremble and are astonished at his reproof.

12 He divideth the sea with his power, and by his understanding he smiteth through the proud.

13 By his spirit he hath garnished the heavens; his hand hath formed the crooked serpent.

14 Lo, these are parts of his ways: but how little a portion is heard of him? but the thunder of his power who can understand?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXV., XXVI.—A holy, believing meditation on the vast and absolute authority of God, is well calculated, by the Divine Spirit, to fill our minds with humbling views of ourselves, and to promote a holy, reverential, adoring fear of the Most High.
Is the Lord the Lord of Hosts? Has he innumerable armies at his command, ready to vindicate his justice, to punish his enemies, and to prove a powerful wall of defence to the objects of his love? What course of joy, of triumph, and of praise it is to the believer to be able, in the full assurance of faith, to say, "This God is my God, and will be my guide, even unto death!" It is true we are by nature and practice guilty in God's sight, and that it is impossible for us to work out a righteousness by which we can be justified in God's sight;

but it is also true, that God himself has found for us, through Christ, a justifying righteousness, by which the guilt of our sins may be effectually and for ever removed. Let me seriously ask, Have I been able to receive, by faith, this righteousness as mine? May we be amazed at the light of God's wisdom and omniscience, compared with which the shining of the moon, and the brightness of the sun, are darkness! And how holy is God, when the purity of the sparkling stars, compared with him, is impurity! May we be filled with wonder when we think of God's power in creation and providence; and with adoring delight, when we contemplate his matchless power in the great scheme of redemption and of grace!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, on the return of another day, with thankfulness, joy, and reverence to approach thy blessed throne in our domestic worship, and to adore thee in thy grace, and in all the uncreated excellences of thy nature.
Dominion and fear are with thee. O Saviour, thou fillest the throne of thy Zion, and the throne of universal empire; and there is a period fast approaching when all the intelligences in thy vast dominions shall fear thy great and glorious name.
Great is the number of thine armies, Lord of hosts, and thou art able, as thou hast done in times past, to call forth thine armies in one moment of time, and execute thy vengeance on thine impenitent foes. Infinitely holy art thou, O King of saints, O God of salvation. Behold even the moon, and it shineth not; yea, the stars are not clean in thy sight. How loathsome then, and how vile must we be, in the sight of a holy God! How can we be justified before God, if we only appear in the rags of our own righteousness? How can man be clean that is born of a woman?

Lord, justify us by the righteousness of thy dear Son; then we shall be justified with thee our God. O sanctify us by the purifying grace of thy spirit; then in due time we shall be presented before the throne above, without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing.

O Lord, hell is open before thee, thine eye seeth the inhabitants of the grave, and thou beholdest all those miserable captives who are now reserved in everlasting chains, in the abodes of the lost, until the judgment of the great day.

Graciously convince our dear children and our servants, that, without an interest in Christ, it is impossible they can ever escape the prison of hell, or obtain admission into the heavenly state.

O Lord, we adore thee in thy great power, manifested by the creation of the heavens and the earth. With the greatest ease thou didst call into existence those revolving worlds which move in the immensity of space. Thou stretchest out the north over the empty place, and thou hangeh the earth upon nothing. Thou bindest up the waters in the thick clouds; and then thou causest them to send down refreshing showers on the parched ground. O Lord, mercifully exert thy great power in creating us anew in Christ Jesus. And may the showers of heavenly grace descend upon us as a family and as a congregation, and may we become gardens of spiritual beauty and fruitfulness, and may we resemble a well watered vineyard, a field the Lord hath blessed.

We present our humble thanks for the repose, sleep, and protection of the past night. May God bless us this day. Give us grace to be diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Suffer us not to fall into temptation, or to be ensnared by the corruptions of our own heart. All we ask is for our blessed Saviour's sake, who bled and died for us. Amen.

FORTIETH WEEK.—WEDNESDAY EVENING.

JESUS WITH THOSE WHO PRAY.

Cottage. Sharon's Vale. Wareham.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN two or three, with sweet accord,
Obedient to their sovereign Lord,
Meet to recount his acts of grace,
And offer solemn prayer and praise ;
- 2 There, says the Saviour, will I be,
Amid this little company ;
To them unveil my smiling face,
And shed my glories round the place.
- 3 We meet at thy command, dear Lord,
Relying on thy faithful word :
Now send thy Spirit from above ;
Now fill our hearts with heavenly love.

PHILIPPIANS IV.

Prayers and Contentment.

THEREFORE, my brethren dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and crown, so stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved.

2 I beseech Euodias, and beseech Syntyche, that they be of the same mind in the Lord.

3 And I intreat thee also, true yoke-fellow, help those Romen which laboured with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellowlabourers, whose names are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice in the Lord always : and again I say, Rejoice.

5 Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand.

6 Be careful for nothing ; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God.

7 And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

8 Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report ; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

10 But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again ; wherein ye were also careful, but ye lacked opportunity.

11 Not that I speak in respect of want : for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

12 I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound : every where and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need.

13 I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

14 Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my affliction.

17 Not because I desire a gift : but I desire fruit that may abound to your account.

18 But I have all, and abound : I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were sent from you, an odour of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, wellpleasing to God.

19 But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

20 Now unto God and our Father be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

21 Salute every saint in Christ Jesus. The brethren which are with me greet you.

22 All the saints salute you, chiefly they that are of Cæsar's household.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all
Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILIP. IV.—If the graces of the saints afford the ministers of Christ such joy on earth, what inexpressible and ineffable delight must they experience when they behold their perfection, blessedness, and glory in heaven ! Here, they see them as the tender child ; there, they see them perfect men in Christ.
Here, they see them as little plants ; there, they behold them as trees of righteousness, having reached a glorious maturity. Let men of ambition boast of their titles, and kings of their diadems ! Believers have something infinitely more important of which to glory, and in which to rejoice : their names are written in the Lamb's book of life, and neither death nor life, time nor eternity, shall ever erase them from the hallowed, sacred page. O how infinitely desirable are the ornaments of grace ! Their loveliness shall never fade, their excellence shall never be impaired, and their duration shall never cease. While the men of the world are seeking after the objects of a carnal ambition, which, when obtained, can never satisfy, may we seek after the graces of the Spirit, which are an imperishable inheritance, and a well of water springing up into life eternal. Amen.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, great is thy glory. Inconceivably great is the glory of thine uncreated essence. Great is the glory of thy works of creation and providence ; but peculiarly great is the glory of thy redeeming acts, by which the greatest honour is brought to thy perfections, and a great salvation to thy people. We have abundant reason to rejoice that, though thou art higher than the conception of archangels, yet thou hast respect unto the lowly and humble in spirit, while the proud thou seest afar off.

We present before thee the tribute of our thanksgiving for the kindness of the past day. Sanctify the events which have passed over our heads, and sanctify the duties in which we have been permitted to engage. With humility we confess our daily sins, and supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood. We commit ourselves, and all our beloved relatives and friends, to thy providential care this night. May we lie down to rest, exercising the well-grounded conviction that we are the objects of thy love and the subjects of thy grace.

Lord, we desire to pray for all the hearers of the everlasting Gospel, that they may become the joy and crown of all thy faithful ministers who dispense among them the oracles of eternal truth.

O make our dear children a crown of joy and rejoicing to our beloved minister in the day of the Lord. May they, and our servants, be eternal monuments of thy mercy, and not of thy wrath.

Lord, grant that we may all stand fast in the Lord ; and may we have the pleasing evidence that our feet are placed upon Christ, the Rock of ages, against which the gates of hell can never prevail. Give these undeniable marks of grace, by which we shall clearly see that our names are written upon the pages of the book of life. Give us the unfeigned joys of religion. Elevate our affections and desires above the most valuable of earthly objects, and may we rejoice in the Lord always. Teach us to rejoice in the name of Christ, which is as ointment poured forth. Enable us to rejoice in Christ's wisdom as our prophet, in his merit and intercession as our priest, and in his power, authority, and laws, as our king. O that we could rejoice in God always, even all our days ; and when our pilgrimage state is over, may we enter upon the joys of heaven.

Lord, have mercy on the poor and needy ; preserve them from sinful and immoderate care about the supply of their temporal wants. May we be sinfully careful about nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication make our requests known unto God, with thanksgiving. Lord, give us contented hearts. Like Paul, may we be instructed by the Spirit, in whatsoever state we are, therewith to be content. Hear our prayers, for our Saviour's sake ; and may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all, for ever and ever. Amen.

SINCERITY AND TRUTH.

- 1 LET those who bear the Christian name
Their holy vows fulfil;
The saints—the followers of the Lamb—
Are men of honour still.
- 2 True to the solemn oath they take,
Though to their hurt they swear;
Constant and just to all they speak—
For God and angels hear.
- 3 Still with their lips their hearts agree,
Nor flattering words devise:
They know the God of truth can see
Through every false disguise.

JOB XXVII.

The Hypocrite.

- MOREOVER Job continued his parable, and said,
- 2 As God liveth, who hath taken away my judgment;
and the Almighty, who hath vexed my soul;
3 All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils;
4 My lips shall not speak wickedness, nor my tongue utter deceit.
  - 5 God forbid that I should justify you: till I die I will not remove mine integrity from me.
  - 6 My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go: my heart shall not reproach me so long as I live.
  - 7 Let mine enemy be as the wicked, and he that riseth up against me as the unrighteous.
  - 8 For what is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained, when God taketh away his soul?
  - 9 Will God hear his cry when trouble cometh upon him?
10 Will he delight himself in the Almighty? will he always call upon God?
  - 11 I will teach you by the hand of God: that which is with the Almighty will I not conceal.
  - 12 Behold all ye yourselves have seen it: why then are ye thus altogether vain?
  - 13 This is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the heritage of oppressors, which they shall receive of the Almighty.
  - 14 If his children be multiplied, it is for the sword: and his offspring shall not be satisfied with bread.
  - 15 Those that remain of him shall be buried in death: and his widows shall not weep.
  - 16 Though he heap up silver as the dust, and prepare raiment as the clay;
  - 17 He may prepare it, but the just shall put it on, and the innocent shall divide the silver.
  - 18 He buildeth his house as a moth, and as a booth that the keeper maketh.
  - 19 The rich man shall lie down, but he shall not be gathered: he openeth his eyes, and he is not.
  - 20 Terrors take hold on him as waters, a tempest stealeth him away in the night.
  - 21 The east wind carrieth him away, and he departeth:
and as a storm hurleth him out of his place.
  - 22 For God shall cast upon him, and not spare: he would fain flee out of his hand.
  - 23 Men shall clap their hands at him, and shall hiss him out of his place.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXVII.—In the midst of every affliction, however severe, may it be our privilege and our delight ever to vindicate the righteousness, wisdom, and benevolence of the Divine government; and constantly to employ our reason and our speech in promoting the glory of God, and in advancing the interests of his Church. Hypocrisy is a sin the most daring, presumptuous, and dangerous. The hypocrite, during the whole of his life of delusion and deceit, is an object of the Divine displeasure and abhorrence. How miserable must that death be which is preceded by such a life! Our heart shudders at the thought! In the hour of affliction, the hypocrisy of the spiritual deceiver shuts him out from Divine consolation; in the hour of suffering, he is an utter stranger to the delightful enjoyment and soothing comfort which flow from fellowship with God; in the hour of dissolution, all his false confidences vanish as a shadow, and he dies despised by men and rejected of God! O let us, therefore, earnestly pray for unfeigned piety, the assured harbinger of heavenly joys!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, our God and Saviour, as the wise, just, and irresistible Sovereign. However mysterious many of the events of thy providence are to our obscure and feeble minds, whatever thou doest is infinitely consistent with the glory of thy perfections, and with the present and eternal interests of thy people. Just and true are all thy ways, thou King of saints. Thou hast at various times visited thy children with afflictions outwardly severe; but even in those instances thy mercies have exceeded thy judgments, both in number and in magnitude. Glory to our God, that Jesus the Divine surety has converted sufferings into blessings, and that he has formed a link between the afflictions of the wilderness and the glories of heaven.

Lord, we confess that for our sins we deserve the heaviest burden of sorrow. When we think of the infinite demerit of our sins, and the lightness of our afflictions, we have abundant reason to be amazed at the gentleness, compassion, and forbearance of God.

We pray for all that are afflicted. Particularly bless, comfort, and relieve those of whom it may be said, The Almighty hath afflicted their souls. Preserve them from calling in question their interest in Jehovah's love or in Jesus' righteousness. Preserve them, we earnestly pray, from falling into the horrors of despair. In their affliction may their lips not speak wickedness, but may they be taught, in humble submission, to exclaim, Good is the will of the Lord. O prepare us all for the day of affliction, and may we now be enriched with that grace which will prove our guide, our comfort, and our defence, when assailed by the severest storms of distress.

Heavenly Father, enable our dear children and domestics to form the resolution of Job, when he said, My lips shall not speak wickedness, nor my tongue utter deceit. Preserve them from lying, profane, polluted, and unkind expressions. O that grace may be poured into their lips!

We praise thee, O Lord, that we have heard of the righteousness of Christ. May that righteousness be ours by imputation, and may we receive it by faith. In the prospect of death, the solemnities of judgment, and the important realities of the eternal world, we desire at this time us a family to say, We will hold fast the righteousness of Christ, and will not let it go.

O Lord, we pray for all professors of the Gospel who are hypocrites in the sight of God. If any now kneeling before thee are in this state, O may they be led to see that there is nothing more vain than the hope of the hypocrite; that it is like the spider's web; and that he will have gained nothing but the miseries of hell, when God sends the messenger of death to take away his soul. If we have any friends who are rich, and who prefer their perishing possessions before an interest in Jesus, O give them grace to seek the sure mercies of David.

We thank God for the mercies of the night, and for the return of another day. Bless us this day with thy guiding and protecting hand, for the sake of Jesus, thy dear Son our Saviour, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

GRACE AND GLORY BY THE DEATH OF CHRIST.

- 1 SITTING around our Father's board,
We raise our tuneful breath;
Our faith beholds her dying Lord,
And dooms our sins to death.
- 2 We see the blood of Jesus shed,
Whence all our pardons rise;
The sinner views the atonement made,
And loves the sacrifice.
- 3 Thy cruel thorns, thy shameful cross,
Procure us heavenly crowns;
Our highest gain springs from thy loss,
Our healing from thy wounds.

WATTS, 23, E. III.

COLOSSIANS I.

Christ's Dignity.

PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,

2 To the saints and faithful brethren in Christ which are at Colosse: Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you,

4 Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of the love which ye have to all the saints,

5 For the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel.

9 For this cause we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding;

10 That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God;

11 Strengthened with all might, according to his glorious power, unto all patience and long-suffering with joyfulness;

12 Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light:

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son:

14 In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins:

15 Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature:

16 For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him:

17 And he is before all things, and by him all things consist.

18 And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence.

19 For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell;

20 And, having made peace through the blood of his cross, by him to reconcile all things unto himself; by him, I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven.

21 And you, that were sometime alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled

22 In the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable and unproveable in his sight.

REFLECTIONS UPON COLOSS. I.—What reason we have to rejoice with thankfulness that God has preserved in his Church, from the commencement of time to the present day, a succession of faithful prophets, priests, and ministers to proclaim his will, and to present before the minds of men the great scheme of redemption through the incarnation, death, and righteousness of his well-beloved Son. God has made the prayers of his people valuable and useful. May we consider it a greater privilege to be interested in the prayers of the righteous, than to enjoy the patronage of kings. How delightful to observe how love glowed in the bosom, and shone in the life, of the great Apostle of the Gentiles! Like him, may we possess and cherish an ardent love to the Gospel of Christ; to his saints, who bear Christ's image; to his ordinances, which he has appointed as galleries to display his glory and bestow his grace; and to the best interests of his kingdom, for which he laid down his life. Such love in the heart is heaven in the soul, and the foretaste of the bliss of the heavenly paradise.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Lord God, we fall prostrate before thee, at the close of another day, in Jesus' name, and we adore thee as the King eternal, immortal, and invisible, and as the Lord our God. We praise thee for the revelation of the mysteries of the Trinity, and that we have heard of the glorious truth of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as one God.

Blessed Jesus, thou art the image of the invisible God, and as Mediator thou art the first-born of every creature. Thou art in thy Divine nature the Creator of all things. By thee all things were created that are in heaven and that are in earth, visible and invisible: whether they be thrones or dominions, or principalities or powers, all things were created by thee and for thee. O thou mighty Creator, impart to us, by thy Divine power, the graces of thy Spirit. Let a new creation take place within us; and may we have the satisfying evidence to believe that we are new creatures, the blessed workmanship of a gracious Saviour. Exalted and blessed Saviour, we acknowledge thee in the eternity of thy being. Thou art before all things; from everlasting thou art God. In thy mediatorial capacity, thou wast set up from everlasting. Thou, Divine Redeemer, didst not only create, but thou dost maintain all things. By thee all things consist.

We acknowledge thee, thou Lamb of God, as the glorious and Divine head of the Church. Thou art the beginning and first-born from the dead. With great power and glory thou didst rise triumphant from the tomb, and didst demonstrably complete victory over death and the grave. In all things thou hast the pre-eminence. Thou art infinitely exalted above all earthly potentates and princes, in the throne on which thou art seated, and in the kingdom over which thou dost reign. In all things thou hast the pre-eminence. Thou art infinitely exalted above all the principalities and powers in the heavenly places. These heavenly hosts acknowledge thee as their Lord, and bow in humble adoration before thy throne. In all things thou shalt have the pre-eminence.

All fulness dwells in thee. The fulness of Divine wisdom, power, holiness, and love dwells in thee. We come unto thee, O Jesus, that we may receive out of thy fulness, and grace for grace.

We would remember our dear children before thee, and pray that thou wouldst deliver them from the kingdom of darkness, and translate them into the kingdom of thy dear Son.

Have mercy on aged saints bowing down under the pressure of advanced years: make them meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light. Lord, have mercy on all with whom we are united by the ties of nature and blood, or church fellowship; may they and we walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, increasing in the knowledge of God.

Accept of our thanks for the temporal and spiritual mercies this day received, and graciously watch over us this night.

Our Father who art in heaven, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our only Advocate and Saviour Amen.

TRUE WISDOM.

Colossum. Arne. Carey's.

F. M.

- 1 BE it my only wisdom here
To serve the Lord with filial fear,
With loving gratitude;
Superior sense may I display
By shunning every evil way,
And walking in the good.
- 2 O may I still from sin depart!
A wise and understanding heart,
Jesus, to me be given;
And let me through thy Spirit know
To glorify my God below,
And find my way to heaven.

C. WESLEY.

JOB XXVIII.

The Fear of God is Wisdom.

SURELY there is a vein for the silver, and a place for gold
where they fine it.

2 Iron is taken out of the earth, and brass is molten out of the stone.

3 He setteth an end to darkness, and searcheth out all perfection: the stones of darkness, and the shadow of death.

4 The flood breaketh out from the inhabitants; even the waters forgotten of the foot: they are dried up, they are gone away from men.

5 As for the earth, out of it cometh bread: and under it is turned up as it were fire.

6 The stones of it are the place of sapphires: and it hath dust of gold.

7 There is a path which no fowl knoweth, and which the vulture's eye hath not seen:

8 The lion's whelps have not trodden it, nor the fierce lion passed by it.

12 But where shall wisdom be found? and where is the place of understanding?

13 Man knoweth not the price thereof; neither is it found in the land of the living.

14 The depth saith, It is not in me: and the sea saith, It is not with me.

15 It cannot be gotten for gold, neither shall silver be weighed for the price thereof.

16 It cannot be valued with the gold of Ophir, with the precious onyx, or the sapphire.

17 The gold and the crystal cannot equal it: and the exchange of it shall not be for jewels of fine gold.

18 No mention shall be made of coral, or of pearls: for the price of wisdom is above rubies.

19 The topaz of Ethiopia shall not equal it, neither shall it be valued with pure gold.

20 Whence then cometh wisdom? and where is the place of understanding?

21 Seeing it is hid from the eyes of all living, and kept close from the fowls of the air.

22 Destruction and death say, We have heard the fame thereof with our ears.

23 God understandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof.

24 For he looketh to the ends of the earth, and seeth under the whole heaven;

25 To make the weight for the winds; and he weigheth the waters by measure.

26 When he made a decree for the rain, and a way for the lightning of the thunder:

27 Then did he see it, and declare it; he prepared it; yea, and searched it out.

28 And unto man he said, Behold, the fear of the LORD, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXVIII.—Gold and silver require to be purified from dross; how much more do the souls of men need to be purified from the dross of corruption! The opulent may rejoice in their earthly treasures, which perish in the using, and which at the death of their possessors flee away, never, never to return! but the genuine, humble saint can rejoice in the possession of saving wisdom—a treasure which never can be lost—a tree of life and of eternal verdure—a star whose burning and living brightness shall never be extinguished—a crown of glory, of righteousness, and of life, which never fadeth away. With this treasure, the humble saint, in his lowly cottage, is unspeakably more opulent, honourable, and blest, than the graceless monarch, of the greatest might, inhabiting his gorgeous palace, and seated upon his magnificent throne. “My soul, seek this wisdom from Jesus: he is willing, the precious JEWEL, to bestow!”

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art a God of boundless knowledge, and of infinite and unerring wisdom. Look upon us in the face of Jesus, thine Anointed. Thou art the great and inexhaustible fountain from whence flows all the wisdom of angels and of men. Thy spirit, O Lord, is that spirit of inspiration by whom the writers of the Holy Scriptures were enlightened, and by whom thy servants the prophets were enabled to foretell the events of future and of distant ages. Thou art the all-seeing Jehovah; thou lookest to the ends of the earth, and seest under the whole heaven. Thou makest a weight for the winds, and thou dost weigh the waters by measure. Thou holdest in the hollow of thine hand all the waters of the ocean. Thou alone hast made a decree for the rain, and a way for the lightning of the thunder. All the elements of the sky are under thy control, and ever ready to execute thy commands.

Lord, we thank thee for what we have now read of wisdom. We confess our folly; by nature folly is bound up in us. While we have reason to bless thee for our natural understanding, yet we have reason to confess that if we lean to our own understanding we cannot stand, and if we follow the dictates of our own mind we shall wander in the paths where destroyers go. O wise Saviour, give us wisdom to see our own folly—give us wisdom to love wisdom; and let it be our happiness to enjoy the saving tuition of thy Holy Spirit.

Lord, convince our dear children of the necessity of Divine wisdom. May their minds be deeply affected with the melancholy instances around them of many of the rising race hastening to ruin under the dictates of their foolish hearts.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for the promise of the Holy Ghost as an instructor. We praise thee for ministers as instructors; but, above all, we praise thee for the instruction of the Holy Spirit. Divine Spirit, lead us into all truth, and show us things to come. We pray, O Lord, that we may be taught to prefer wisdom before gold and silver. God forbid that we should seek a perishing inheritance in preference to wisdom and grace, an inheritance which shall endure for ever. Make us thankful for the Holy Scriptures, where true wisdom is to be found. O teach us by faith to dig in that sacred mine where treasures are to be found, with which those jewels that sparkle in the diadems of kings are unworthy to be compared. Give us grace to make thy Word our counsellor and guide; then it will be a light to our feet and a lamp unto our paths.

We thank thee that thou hast informed us that the FEAR OF THE LORD is wisdom. O teach us thy fear. Give us a filial fear of thee as our Father and our God.

We thank thee for the rest and sleep of another night, and pray that we may be preserved from the temptations and snares of another day. O hear us, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy of the praises of saints, and of the adoration of angels. Amen.

HUMILIATION AND TRIUMPHS OF CHRIST.

Fordingbridge. Admiration. Angel's Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 THE mighty frame of glorious grace,
That brightest monument of praise
That e'er the God of love designed,
Employs and fills my labouring mind.
- 2 Begin, my soul, the heavenly song—
A burden for an angel's tongue:
When Gabriel sounds these awful things,
He tunes and summons all his strings.
- 3 Proclaim inimitable love!
Jesus, the Lord of worlds above,
Putt off the beams of bright array,
And veils the God in mortal clay.

WATTS.

COLOSSIANS II.

Constancy in Christ.

FOR I would that ye knew what great conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh;

2 That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgment of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ;

3 In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

4 And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words.

5 For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ.

6 As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:

7 Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.

8 Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.

9 For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

10 And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power:

11 In whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ:

12 Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.

13 And you, being dead in your sins and the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses;

14 Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross;

15 And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in it.

16 Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holy-day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days:

17 Which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ.

18 Let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility and worshipping of angels, intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up by his fleshly mind, 19 And not holding the Head, from which all the body by joints and bands having nourishment ministered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON COLOSS. II.—How necessary it is for parents, teachers, and ministers to wrestle in prayer for the eternal salvation of those precious and immortal souls committed to their care. Of this, the holy Apostle was a great, an encouraging example. The unity of the Church, the increase and prevalence of Christian love, should form an especial part of the matter of the earnest prayers of the followers of the Lamb. When this unity and love prevail in churches and families, it is an evident proof of the descent of the influences of the Spirit, a satisfying evidence of the prosperity of grace in the soul, and a proof of the gracious presence of him, who walked in the midst of the golden candlesticks. Let us daily rejoice in the fulness of Christ, in the fulness of his love, his wisdom, his grace, and his influence. Glorious truth—we are as welcome to the blessings flowing from the infinite fountain of his fulness, as we are to the light of the sun, to the air we breathe, to the descending showers, and to the influence of the breezes of the sky!

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Jehovah, we rejoice that we can approach thy Divine presence acceptably through the Mediator Jesus Christ. We lift up to thee the eyes of our souls for that faith without which we cannot lay hold of Christ as our advocate. In thee, O Jesus, are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. In thee are laid up those stores of wisdom from whence ancient prophets received all their prophetic wisdom and intelligence. Thou, O Immanuel, didst instruct all those inspired penmen who were employed in writing the Old Testament Scriptures. Holy men of old spake as they were moved and illuminated and directed by thy good spirit. Great Saviour, thou art God as well as man; and we bless thee for the numerous and forcible illustrations and proofs of thy Divinity with which the Bible is stored. In thee dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. All the perfections of Jehovah are thine, for thou art Jehovah. Thou art infinite, eternal, and unchangeable in thy being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness, and truth. Thou art possessed of unlimited, absolute, and eternal authority. All rulers on earth, and all principalities and powers in heaven, are thy subjects. O Jesus, mercifully enter the chariot of thy Gospel, and ride triumphantly among all the nations of the earth, that all their inhabitants may know thee, and acknowledge thee as their Saviour and their God. Lord Jesus, as a family we acknowledge and adore thee as our Saviour and our God. Out of thy fulness may we all receive, and grace for grace. Thou art the glorious and eternal Head of thy Church. O that the heads and the members of this family may be members of that body of which Jesus is the Divine and glorious head! Give us faith to hold the head every day, from whom the body in all ages, by joints and bands having nourishment ministered and knit together, increased with all the increase of God.

May our dear children and servants be sparingly united to thee, O Jesus. From thee as their prophet may they receive wisdom, from thee as their priest may they receive a justifying righteousness, and from thee as their king may they receive defence from all their enemies.

We praise thee, exalted Saviour, that thou hast removed by thy death the hand-writing—the awful claims which the law as a covenant, and which the offended justice of God, could make upon us, but claims which we were infinitely unable to answer. Thou, as our surety, hast taken away the hand-writing by thy death upon the accursed tree, and thou hast answered every claim. Lord Jesus, accept the praises and the homage of our hearts. We present our thanks for the mercies of another day—for mercies conferred upon the body, but more especially upon the soul. Watch over us this night, give us the sleep of thy beloved, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

REMEMBER ME.

Mount Calvary. University. Brighthelmston. c. n.

- 1 O THOU, from whom all goodness flows!
I lift my heart to thee;
In all my sorrows, conflicts, woes,
Dear Lord! remember me!
- 2 When groaning, on my burdened heart
My sins lie heavily,
My pardon speak, new peace impart,
In love remember me!
- 3 Temptations sore obstruct my way,
And ills I cannot flee;
O give me strength, Lord! as my day;
For good remember me!
- 4 Distressed with pain, disease, and grief,
This feeble body see;
Grant patience, rest, and kind relief;
Hear, and remember me!

JOB XXIX.

Job's Remembrance of former Days.

- MOREOVER Job continued his parable, and said,
- 2 Oh that I were as in months past, as in the days when God preserved me;
  - 3 When his candle shined upon my head, and when by his light I walked through darkness;
  - 4 As I was in the days of my youth, when the secret of God was upon my tabernacle;
  - 5 When the Almighty was yet with me, when my children were about me;
  - 6 When I washed my steps with butter, and the rock poured me out rivers of oil;
  - 7 When I went out to the gate through the city, when I prepared my seat in the street!
  - 8 The young men saw me, and hid themselves: and the aged arose, and stood up.
  - 9 The princes refrained talking, and laid their hand on their mouth.
  - 10 The nobles held their peace, and their tongue cleaved to the roof of their mouth.
  - 11 When the ear heard me, then it blessed me; and when the eye saw me, it gave witness to me:
  - 12 Because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him.
  - 13 The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me: and I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy.
  - 14 I put on righteousness, and it clothed me: my judgment was as a robe and a diadem.
  - 15 I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame.
  - 16 I was a father to the poor: and the cause which I knew not I searched out.
  - 17 And I brake the jaws of the wicked, and plucked the spoil out of his teeth.
  - 18 Then I said, I shall die in my nest, and I shall multiply my days as the sand.
  - 19 My root was spread out by the waters, and the dew lay all night upon my branch.
  - 20 My glory was fresh in me, and my bow was renewed in my hand.
  - 21 Unto me men gave ear, and waited, and kept silence at my counsel.
  - 22 After my words they spake not again; and my speech dropped upon them.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXIX.—We should make it matter of daily, fervent prayer, that we may wisely remember, observe, and improve the past events of a gracious, sovereign, and special providence. The remembrance of past sins will then fill us with penitential humility, and the remembrance of past mercies with adoring thankfulness. O how important and encouraging it is, to be able to look back upon the bloom of youth accompanied with the glowing loveliness of early piety! Many saints mourn with shame that their youthful days were graceless days, and that the most precious period of their past lives was devoted to sin, and not to holiness; to the service of the flesh, and not to the service of Christ. Happy are they who can look back, like Job, on their early days, and say, "Then we walked with God; then we enjoyed the influences of his Spirit, the delight of his fellowship, and the smiles of his countenance." This furnishes a preparation for usefulness and suffering in future days, yea, for heaven and its unceasing joys.

PRAYER.

OUR God and our Father in Christ, thou art the mighty God; thou hast spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. O God, thou hast shined out of Zion, the perfection of beauty. Great art thou, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, and in the mountain of thy holiness. In the midst of all the afflictions, changes, and bereavements connected with our pilgrimage state here below, we would say with the Psalmist, God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble. The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge.

We acknowledge, O Lord, thy kindness toward us during the past night. We thank thee for the refreshing and invigorating influence of sleep; and we pray that we may be enabled to live this day as children of so many mercies, whose cup has long overflowed with the unmerited and abundant goodness of Jehovah.

Holy Spirit, may the ordinance in which we are now engaged prove profitable to our souls, and may we enjoy fellowship with the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. O may we experience that sweet enjoyment in those sacred observances which will give us the assured foretaste of the blessed enjoyments of the heavenly world. Sanctify what we have now read, and may the sacred and affecting truths which have now presented themselves before us in reading thy Word be applied to our heart by the gracious and irresistible power of the Holy Spirit.

Give us grace, like Job, to remember past times, past mercies, and past sins. If any of us, in looking back to past times, have reason to conclude that our love to Jesus is less ardent, and our zeal more languid, than in former days, O may we be deeply humbled under a sense of our spiritual decay. We would now earnestly pray that our barren and unfruitful minds may again revive as the corn, under the blessed influence of the Holy Spirit. O breathe upon the garden of our soul, that the spices of Divine graces may flow out. Gracious God make thy candle to shine upon us, and by thy light may we walk through darkness. May we be among the happy number to whom God reveals the secrets of his love. O give us a token for good, that we are in reality the children of God.

Lord, give our dear children and servants that sacred prudence which will teach them to respect their superiors, and particularly to venerate the aged.

Have mercy on such as, like Job, are mourning over the death of their offspring. Give them submission, and may they say with thy servant, the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

Lord, have pity on the poor and needy. Give us compassion for the indigent and the afflicted; and may we have the blessing of those who are ready to perish. In the name of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we present our morning sacrifice. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed glory, honour, dominion, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

HOPE OF THE RESURRECTION.

Bankfield, Zara, Whitfield, Broderip's.

- 1 AND must this body die?
This mortal frame decay?
And must these active limbs of mine
Lie mouldering in the clay?
- 2 Corruption, earth, and worms
Shall but refine this flesh,
Till my triumphant spirit comes
To put it on afresh.
- 3 Arrayed in glorious grace
Shall these vile bodies shine,
And every shape and every face
Look heavenly and divine.
- 4 These lively hopes we owe
To Jesus' dying love;
We would adore his grace below,
And sing his power above.

WATTS, 110, B. 11.

COLOSSIANS III.

Hopes and Counsels.

IF ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.

2 Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth.

3 For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God.

4 When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.

5 Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry:

6 For which things' sake the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience:

7 In the which ye also walked some time, when ye lived in them.

8 But now ye also put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth.

9 Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds;

10 And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him:

11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all.

12 Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, longsuffering;

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.

14 And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness.

15 And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful.

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

17 And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.

18 Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord.

19 Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them.

REFLECTIONS UPON COLOSS. III.—They who are saved by grace enjoy the deepest interest in the resurrection and ascension of Christ. When he rose from the dead, he rose as their Head, and secured their glorious resurrection. When he ascended to heaven, he ascended as their surety and representative, and thus secured for them a sure and happy residence in the heavenly places. Do we possess this blessed interest in Christ? Then it will appear in our heavenly dispositions, heavenly hopes, and heavenly lives. If we have a title to heaven, and are in reality bound for heaven, "our conversation must be in heaven, whence we look for the Saviour." If this be the case, bodily lusts, vile appetites, and corrupted passions, will be hateful to our souls. We shall look upon them as mortal enemies, with whom we can conclude no truce. We shall view them as robbers, wishing to deprive us of all that is valuable here, and all that is desirable hereafter. We shall look upon them as murderers, whom nothing will satisfy short of our everlasting destruction. Are these the views and feelings of our heart? Then Jesus is our Saviour, and heaven will be our home.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY powerful and gracious Jehovah, in whom we live, move, and have our being, to whose fatherly care we owe our preservation during the past day and the past week, we draw near thy sacred throne to express our thankgivings and to present our petitions. We thank thee for the supply of our wants and the continuance of our lives. We bless thee that we are enabled, in the possession of some measure of health, in the exercise of reason, and in the enjoyment of some degree of confidence in God, to approach the throne of grace, to supplicate mercy in the name of Christ.

We commit ourselves to thy watchful providence this night. We cannot secure and protect ourselves; may we be secured and protected by thy powerful arm. If consistent with thy Divine arrangements, may we awake in safety on the morning of thy sacred day, and be permitted, in company with thy people, to enter thy sacred courts, and hear of Jesus, of salvation, and of immortality. Lord, prepare our beloved minister, and all thy servants, for sounding the Jubilee trumpet of the Gospel. May multitudes, through their instrumentality, flee to Christ, the true city of refuge, where they shall find the most secure defence from the storms of Divine wrath, and from the alarming consequences of sin.

Have mercy upon us as a family, and have mercy upon us as individuals. Give us faith to believe that we are risen with Christ, that Christ is risen as our public Head, and therefore that our glorious resurrection at the last day is secure. As an evidence that we have already received a spiritual resurrection, and that by Christ we are raised from the grave of a spiritual state, may we set our affections on those exalted objects and blessings which are at God's right hand. O convince us that, if our affections are cleaving to earthly objects, we have no evidence whatever that we are the regenerated children of the Most High. God grant that we may be dead to sin, dead to its reigning power, dead to its love, and dead to its condemning curse. Give us that Divine life which is hid with Christ in God, that life which arises from union to Christ, that life which the men of the world can neither impair nor destroy, that life which is for ever secured by thee, O Jesus, from whom it flows, and with whom it is hid.

Holy God, preserve our children and servants from vile affections and corrupted lusts. May they begin soon to watch over their own minds, and to mortify every rising passion. Enable them now to commence that warfare with their own hearts which will issue in the joys of heaven.

We pray that we may be enriched with Christian tempers and heavenly graces, and constantly put off the old man with his deeds, and put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him who created it.

O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

PRAYER HEARD AND ZION RESTORED.

Clifton. Zion Church. Wiltshire.

C. M.

- 1 LET Zion and her sons rejoice,
Behold the promised hour;
Her God hath heard her mourning voice,
And comes to exalt his power
- 2 Her dust and ruins that remain
Are precious in our eyes;
Those ruins shall be built again,
And all that dust shall rise.
- 3 The Lord will raise Jerusalem,
And stand in glory there;
Nations shall bow before his name,
And kings attend with fear.
- 4 He sits a sovereign on his throne,
With pity in his eyes;
He hears the dying prisoners' groan,
And sees their sighs arise. Watts, Ps. 102, p. 11.

PSALM CII.

Christ's Dominion and Glory.

MY days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.

12 But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations.

13 Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Zion: for the time to favour her, yea, the set time, is come.

14 For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favour the dust thereof.

15 So the heathen shall fear the name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth thy glory.

16 When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory

17 He will regard the prayer of the destitute, and not despise their prayer.

18 This shall be written for the generation to come: and the people which shall be created shall praise the Lord.

19 For he hath looked down from the height of his sanctuary; from heaven did the Lord behold the earth;

20 To hear the groaning of the prisoner; to loose those that are appointed to death;

21 To declare the name of the Lord in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem;

22 When the people are gathered together, and the kingdoms, to serve the Lord.

23 He weakened my strength in the way; he shortened my days.

24 I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: thy years are throughout all generations.

25 Of old hast thou laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

26 They shall perish, but thou shalt endure: yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed:

27 But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.

28 The children of thy servants shall continue, and their seed shall be established before thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CII.—Under the influence of grace, the believer feels solemnly impressed with a sense of his mortal life, which must soon come to a close; but, by the same influence, he is comforted with the assured hope of his life beyond the Jordan of death, which will continue encompassed with a halo of perfect blessedness throughout the endless ages of eternity. While he feels that he has a life that shall die, he knows and rejoices that he has a life, hid with Christ in God, which shall endure for ever. Innumerable are the springs from which the children of God derive comfort and peace. The attributes of God glorified in Christ, the eternity and immutability of Jehovah, God's love to his Church, the security of Zion arising from the constant care and guardianship of Zion's King, the animating prospect of heathen nations elevated to the knowledge, worship, and enjoyment of God, God's tender compassion to the afflicted, his most merciful attention to their prayers, and the deliverance which he will at last give them from all their sorrows and from all their enemies, are sources of consolation and springs of comfort, which furnish believers with joy unspeakable and hope which maketh not ashamed. Ancient is the foundation of our world; but it is only of yesterday, when compared with the unbeginning existence of God. Let us look on Jesus with holy delight, and acknowledge with holy adoration, "Thou art from everlasting to everlasting God!"

PRAYER.

GLORY to God in the highest, that we are among the number of those highly favoured multitudes whose eyes are permitted to behold the cheering light of another day of the Son of man, and to draw near thy throne in Jesus' name. We who now bow before thee are but of yesterday; and, as to our mortal nature, we are like a shadow that declineth. But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever, and thy remembrance unto all generations. Thou whose glory shall continue for ever immutably the same, look down on thy Church in mercy; arise and have mercy on Zion; may the time to favour her, the set time, be come. Then shall the heathen fear the name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth shall see and admire thy glory, as the Father of mercies and the God of salvation.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the immutability of thy nature, the eternity of thy being, and the perpetuity of thy throne. Blessed Redeemer, of old thou didst lay the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thine hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou fold them, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.

We pray, O Jesus, that the glory of thy person, the wonders of thy death, the merit of thine atonement, the infinite excellence of thy righteousness, and the greatness of thy salvation, may this day be faithfully proclaimed. May thy ministers feel the importance of their office, and may they be determined to know nothing in preaching the truth except Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

Lord, have mercy on such as are destitute, whether as to temporal comforts or spiritual blessings. When, in the bitterness of their heart, they present their supplications before thee, O hear their cry and despise not their prayer. If they enter thy sacred sanctuary, may they find those Divine consolations which will mitigate the severest sufferings, and which will lighten the heaviest burdens. O what reason have we to bless and praise thee for thy condescending compassion! Thou lookest down from the height of thy sanctuary, from heaven thou beholdest the earth, to hear the groaning of the prisoner, and to loose those that are appointed to death. Gracious God, may enslaved nations be set at liberty from the tyranny of cruel despots; but, above all, may enslaved souls be set at liberty, through the instrumentality of a preached Gospel, from the tyrannical yoke of Satan's slavery.

Suffer not our dear children, or servants, to remain the slaves of Satan and the captives of sin. Holy Spirit, set them at liberty, and give them the liberty which the sons of God enjoy.

Lord, have mercy on all Satan's slaves. Deliver them from the delusion by which they are held fast. Open their eyes to see their true state, and may they give themselves no rest till they are the citizens of Zion.

Give us grace to glorify thy name in all the services of the day. Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our exalted Redeemer and Intercessor. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PRaise FOR Mercies.

- 1 O BLESS the Lord, my soul;
Let all within me join,
And aid my tongue to bless his name,
Whose favours are Divine.
- 2 O bless the Lord, my soul;
Nor let his mercies lie
Forgotten in unthankfulness,
And without praises die.
- 3 'Tis he forgives thy sins,
'Tis he relieves thy pain,
'Tis he that heals thy sicknesses,
And makes thee young again.
- 4 He crowns thy life with love,
When ransomed from the grave;
He that redeemed my soul from hell
Hath sovereign power to save.

Watts, Ps. 103, p. 1.

PSALM CIII.

God's Mercies.

BLESS the LORD, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name.

- 2 Bless the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits:
- 3 Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases;
- 4 Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies;
- 5 Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.
- 6 The LORD executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed.
- 7 He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel.
- 8 The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy.
- 9 He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger for ever.
- 10 He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.
- 11 For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him.
- 12 As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.
- 13 Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him.
- 14 For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust.
- 15 As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth.
- 16 For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more.
- 17 But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children;
- 18 To such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them.
- 19 The LORD hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all.
- 20 Bless the LORD, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word.
- 21 Bless ye the LORD, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure.
- 22 Bless the LORD, all his works in all places of his dominion: bless the LORD, O my soul.
