REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CIII.—The tendency to forget God's mercies is one of the humbling infirmities of frail humanity, which genuine believers greatly deplore, and which calls forth the exercise of constant watchfulness and earnest prayer. O how profitable and delightful to the soul, the frequent survey of those mercies, blessings, and graces which God confers upon the objects of his love! Does the miser gaze with interest upon his golden and silver treasures? Does the rich man survey from an eminence, with inward gratulation, his wide-spreading and richly cultivated estate? With unspeakably greater enjoyment the child of God can look upon the blessings of salvation and the rich inheritance in heaven, and say, with thankfulness and praise, "They are all my own!" That will be a blessed day, when he shall take his place among the heavenly hosts, and unite with them in hallelujahs of sweetest praise to God and the Lamb.

PRAYER.

GOD of grace and of salvation, we draw near unto thy throne of mercy at the close of thy sacred day, and in the name of Christ we would lift up our eyes to thee, from whence cometh our aid. We bless thee for the enjoyment of another Sabbath on earth, and for all the benefits we and others have enjoyed under the means of grace.

Thou, O Lord, art merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. Thou wilt not always chide, nor keep thine anger for ever. Greatly we have sinned against thee: from our childhood to the present time we have committed against thee innumerable offences. We have reason to mourn and be ashamed, yea, even confounded, when we think of the sins of the heart, of secret sins, and of presumptuous sins, with which we are chargeable in the sight of a holy and of a heart-searching God. Thou hast not dealt with us as we have sinned, nor rewarded us according to our iniquities. If thou hadst visited upon our heads the demerit of a small number of our sins, long ere now we had been confined as eternal prisoners within the adamant gates of Tophet. Our history and thy forbearance are most blessed evidences that thou delightest in mercy. Merciful Father, through Jesus Christ, let our transgressions be removed from us, as far as the east is from the west; then may we know by holy experience that, as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is thy mercy toward them that fear thee. O teach us to fear and reverence thy name; teach us to fear and love thine attributes, and to fear and serve thee.

Teach our children to fear thee. Convince their youthful minds of the unspeakable advantage of fearing God, seeing thy mercy is from everlasting to everlasting on them that fear thee, and thy righteousness unto children's children. May our servants for ever sing of thy mercy, and in this family enjoy the blessings of a rich and free salvation.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the preaching of the Gospel, and for the dispensation of Divine ordinances this day in all the churches. We rejoice that the jubilee trumpet of salvation has been sounded in the ears of thousands, and that the blessings of a Saviour's purchase have been affectionately pressed upon the attention of men for their immediate acceptance. Now, O Lord, we desire to supplicate these invaluable blessings for ourselves, and for all our beloved relatives and friends. Lord, forgive all our iniquities, and heal all our diseases, for they are loathsome, numerous, and dangerous. Let our lives be redeemed from destruction, and may we be crowned with loving-kindness and tender mercy. Satisfy our souls with heavenly manna, and may we feast on the rich provision of thy Gospel.

Show compassion to our aged friends, and may they renew their youth like the eagle's.

Graciously watch over and defend us this night, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SELF-DENIAL.

Brook's. Abraham. A Kingdom. Grove House

C. H.

- 1 AND must I part with all I have,
My dearest Lord, for thee?
It is but right! since thou hast done
Much more than this for me.
- 2 Yes, let it go!—One look from thee
Will more than make amends
For all the losses I sustain
Of credit, riches, friends.
- 3 Saviour of souls! could I from thee
A single smile obtain,
Though destitute of all things else,
I'd glory in my gain.

BEDDOCK.

JOB XXXI.

Job's Integrity.

FOR what portion of God is there from above? and what inheritance of the Almighty from on high?

- 3 Is not destruction to the wicked? and a strange punishment to the workers of iniquity?
- 4 Doth not he see my ways, and count all my steps?
- 5 If I have walked with vanity, or if my foot hath hastened to deceit;
- 6 Let me be weighed in an even balance, that God may know mine integrity.
- 7 If my step hath turned out of the way, and mine heart walked after mine eyes, and if any blot hath cleaved to mine hands;
- 8 Then let me sow, and let another eat; yea, let my offspring be rooted out.
- 9 If mine heart have been deceived by a woman, or if I have laid wait at my neighbour's door;
- 10 Then let my wife grind unto another.
- 11 For this is an heinous crime; yea, it is an iniquity to be punished by the judges.
- 12 For it is a fire that consumeth to destruction, and would root out all mine increase.
- 13 If I did despise the cause of my manservant or of my maidservant, when they contended with me;
- 14 What then shall I do when God riseth up? and when he visiteth, what shall I answer him?
- 15 Did not he that made me in the womb make him? and did not one fashion us in the womb?
- 16 If I have withheld the poor from their desire, or have caused the eyes of the widow to fail;
- 17 Or have eaten my morsel myself alone, and the fatherless hath not eaten thereof;
- 21 If I have lifted up my hand against the fatherless, when I saw my help in the gate:
- 22 Then let mine arm fall from my shoulder blade, and mine arm be broken from the bone.
- 24 If I have made gold my hope, or have said to the fine gold, Thou art my confidence;
- 25 If I rejoiced because my wealth was great, and because mine hand had gotten much;
- 26 If I beheld the sun when it shined, or the moon walking in brightness;
- 27 And my heart hath been secretly enticed, or my mouth hath kissed my hand:
- 28 This also were an iniquity to be punished by the judge: for I should have denied the God that is above.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXXI.—They who seek after the unhallowed pleasures of the flesh, preferring them before the pure and satisfying joys which true religion imparts, inflict upon themselves the greatest injury; for they cut themselves off from the God of salvation, in whose presence alone is fulness of joys, at whose right hand alone are pleasures for evermore. The soul which is determined upon following out a course of continued rebellion against God, is preparing for itself a portion. But what is it? It is nothing less than eternal destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power! Though Job, as an humble saint, remembered with penitential humility the offences of his past life, yet, to the praise of Divine grace, he remembered with thankfulness many transgressions he was enabled to avoid. Even in his sorrow he was comforted by the remembrance, that he was preserved from vain practices, and that he was not drawn aside by vain company; that he had not been left to invade the rights of others, either as it respected their property or relationship; that he had not gloried in his wealth, and that his possessions had not alienated his heart from God.

PRAYER.

WE desire, most merciful Lord God, with gratitude and joy to approach thy sacred presence. We have sinned against thee, and deserve to be excluded from thy presence.
But we praise thee it is on record, if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. O Jesus, through thee, our advocate, we present ourselves as humble suppliants before the throne of God.

O Lord, the ruler of the heavens and the earth, the Lord of angels and of men, thou art exalted infinitely above our highest thoughts. Thy greatness and glory shine in thy works of wonder by which we are surrounded. We would admire and adore thy hountiful beneficence manifested in thy providence, in making so rich a provision for all thy creatures.
What reason have we to rejoice for the displays of thy holiness given in thy precepts, for the displays of thy love in the doctrines of thy Gospel, and for the manifestations of thy veracity in the promises of thy truth.

We present before thee our thanks for the mercies of the past Sabbath and the past night. We would reflect with joy on the edification of thy saints and the conversion of sinners under a preached Word, accompanied by the almighty power of the Holy Spirit. We desire, O Lord, to enter this day upon its duties and engagements, under the sanctifying impression of the sacred ordinances yesterday dispensed. Alas, that we should enter upon the temporal pursuits of another week, as carnal and earthly and unconcerned about Divine things, as if we had never enjoyed the privileges of a Christian Sabbath, or had never listened to the joyful sound!

Bless what we have now read of the integrity of Job. We praise thee that, in the day of his great prosperity, his heart was not lifted up with pride, nor hardened by cruelty. We bless thee that wealth was not permitted to captivate his heart, nor lead his thoughts after unhallowed or sensual enjoyments. Have mercy on such of our friends as are endowed with wealth, and let not their hearts be enanared by that avarice which is the melancholy evidence of the absence of grace, and a sad mark of approaching destruction.
We pray that none of us may ever make gold our hope, or say to the fine gold, Thou art our confidence. Holy Spirit, we seek faith that we may make Jesus our hope, and may say to his finished and glorious righteousness, Thou art our confidence.

Preserve our children and domestics from the love of sinful pleasure. Suffer them not to seek after those earthly, carnal joys, which drown men in destruction and perdition.

Lord, affect us all with the prospect of a judgment-day and its solemn events. With seriousness may we remember that then we shall be weighed in an even balance. We know, O Lord, that, if we appear without an interest in the righteousness of thy Son, when we are weighed, we shall be found wanting. Evermore give us this righteousness. Pardon all our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SPIRITUAL JOY.

British. Oldham. Bath Chapel. Farringdon. C. M.

- 1 HENCE from my soul, sad thoughts, begone,
And leave me to my joys;
My tongue shall triumph in my God,
And make a joyful noise.
- 2 Darkness and doubts had veiled my mind,
And drowned my head in tears,
Till sovereign grace with shining rays
Dispelled my gloomy fears.
- 3 O what immortal joys I felt,
And raptures all Divine,
When Jesus told me I was his,
And my beloved mine!
- 4 In vain the tempter frights my soul,
And breaks my peace in vain:
One glimpse, dear Saviour, of thy face
Revives my joys again.

WATTS, 73, H. 11.

COLOSSIANS IV.

Sundry Counsels.

- MASTERS, give unto your servants that which is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven.
- 2 Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving;
  - 3 Withal praying also for us, that God would open unto us a door of utterance, to speak the mystery of Christ, for which I am also in bonds:
  - 4 That I may make it manifest, as I ought to speak.
  - 5 Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time.
  - 6 Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man.
  - 7 All my state shall Tychicus declare unto you, who is a beloved brother, and a faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord:
  - 8 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that he might know your estate, and comfort your hearts;
  - 9 With Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They shall make known unto you all things which are done here.
  - 10 Aristarchus my fellow-prisoner saluteth you, and Marcus, sister's son to Barnabas, (touching whom ye received commandments: if he come unto you, receive him;)
  - 11 And Jesus, which is called Justus, who are of the circumcision. These only are my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me.
  - 12 Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, always labouring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God.
  - 13 For I bear him record, that he hath a great zeal for you, and them that are in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis.
  - 14 Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas, greet you.
  - 15 Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the church which is in his house.
  - 16 And when this epistle is read among you, cause that it be read also in the church of the Laodiceans; and that ye likewise read the epistle from Laodicea.
  - 17 And say to Archippus, Take heed to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfil it.
  - 18 The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON COLOSS. IV.—God is a righteous and merciful governor, and therefore takes cognizance of the just claims of servants, and of the conduct of masters in dealing with these claims. It is well for masters and servants constantly to remember, that they are both under the discerning eye of their Master in heaven.

Are we truly concerned about our spiritual prosperity and the growth of grace? Then we must be instant, earnest, and constant in prayer. What fuel is to the fire, and refreshing showers to the herbs of the field, prayer is to the soul, when accompanied by the influences of the Holy Spirit. A prayerless soul is a spiritually barren desert. From such barrenness, and its cause, may God mercifully preserve us! Hearers of the Word cannot be too deeply and seriously impressed with the important and urgent necessity of praying for those who dispense the Word. They should supplicate the Divine Spirit to enable them freely, fully, and faithfully to make known the truths of the glorious Gospel, which reveal the unsearchable riches of Christ. Such prayers cannot fail to be crowned with success.

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, and the Lord our God, how excellent is thy loving-kindness! therefore do the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. Because thy loving-kindness is better than life, therefore we are encouraged to erect a domestic altar in our habitation, and worship thy name, which is glorious and gracious. What reason have we to bless the Lord our God for the constant and abundant supply of all our wants since the day we were helpless babes upon our mothers' breast! What shall we render to a God so gracious and so kind! We can make no suitable return to thee, O Lord. O that we were enabled by thy spirit to lay at thy feet a sacrifice of unfeigned thankfulness and love!

Give us grace to obey the wise and salutary counsels we have now read. May we ever remember that, though these individuals and saints to whom this and other epistles were immediately addressed are no more on earth, yet whatever was written aforetime was written for our instruction and improvement, on whom the ends of the world are come.

We pray for masters, that they may be enabled to give their servants what is just and equal: may they not only exercise a care over their bodies, but also over their souls. May pious masters be instruments in the conversion of graceless servants, and pious servants be the mean of the conversion of graceless masters.

Teach us all to continue in prayer. In our closet, at the domestic altar, and in the sanctuary, may we ever continue in prayer. Lord, give us a watchful spirit; and may we never forsake our watch-tower, seeing our spiritual enemies are crafty and persevering, and will allow no opportunity to escape to do us injury.

O Lord, give our beloved offspring the grace of watchfulness. Teach them to watch their heart, and to keep it with all diligence; teach them to watch their tongues, that no corrupt communication may fall from their lips.

Lord, have mercy on all thy ministers. Give them boldness to preach the pure and everlasting Gospel of Christ. Give to them a door of utterance to speak the mystery of Christ, for which Paul, thy beloved servant, suffered imprisonment and bonds. May the heart and lips of our dear minister be in an especial manner touched, as with a live coal, from thine altar. Enable all of us who are now before thee to testify in the presence of a corrupted world, that we are under the purifying and saving power of that Gospel we profess to believe. Enable us to walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time. Grant that our speech may be alway with grace, seasoned with salt. May we stand perfect and complete in all the will of God.

Lord, have mercy on all who are bound by the bonds of affliction: and may their present bonds be followed by the glorious liberty of heaven.

We commend ourselves, soul and body, to thy care this night; and we implore an answer to our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

GOD READY TO FORGIVE.

Pentons. Campbell. Kingsbridge. Virginia. L. M.

- 1 WHAT mean these jealousies and fears?
As if the Lord was loth to save,
Or loved to see us drenched in tears,
Or sink with sorrow to the grave.
- 2 Not all the sins which we have wrought
So much his tender bowels grieve,
As this unkind, injurious thought,
That he's unwilling to forgive.
- 3 What though our crimes are black as night,
Or glowing like the crimson morn!
Immanuel's blood will make them white
As snow through the pure ether borne.
- 4 Lord, 'tis amazing grace, we own,
And well may rebel worms surpris;
But, was not thy incarnate Son
A most amazing sacrifice?

STODOLN.

JOB XXXIII.

Elihu's Reasoning with Job.

WHEREFORE, Job, I pray thee, hear my speeches, and hearken to all my words.

2 Behold, now I have opened my mouth, my tongue hath spoken in my mouth.

3 My words shall be of the uprightness of my heart: and my lips shall utter knowledge clearly.

4 The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life.

5 If thou canst answer me, set thy words in order before me, stand up.

13 Why dost thou strive against him? for he giveth not account of any of his matters.

14 For God speaketh once, yea twice, yet man perceiveth it not.

15 In a dream, in a vision of the night, when deep sleep falleth upon men, in slumberings upon the bed;

16 Then he openeth the ears of men, and scaletli their instruction, 17 That he may withdraw man from his purpose, and hide pride from man.

18 He keepeth back his soul from the pit, and his life from perishing by the sword.

19 He is chastened also with pain upon his bed, and the multitude of his bones with strong pain:

20 So that his life abhorreth bread, and his soul dainty meat.

21 His flesh is consumed away, that it cannot be seen; and his bones that were not seen stick out.

22 Yea, his soul draweth near unto the grave, and his life to the destroyers.

23 If there be a messenger with him, an interpreter, one among a thousand, to shew unto man his uprightness:

24 Then he is gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom.

25 His flesh shall be fresher than a child's: he shall return to the days of his youth.

27 He looketh upon men, and if any say, I have sinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not;

28 He will deliver his soul from going into the pit, and his life shall see the light.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXXIII.—All who are called to be the instructors of others, whether parents, teachers, or ministers, should employ kind and affectionate entreaties; for love, at all times, gains more ready access to the heart than authority. Love is the mightiest moral agent in the universe, and what God himself employs in subduing the hearts of men. The faculty of speech is one of the greatest gifts by which God has distinguished the human race, and man is peculiarly honoured and blessed when this talent is sanctified by grace, and implicitly devoted to God's service and praise. We should often consider the origin of our being, and the great end of our being. We are the wonderful workmanship of the almighty, wise, and immutable Jehovah. We should seriously and thankfully reflect on the important end for which our rational and immortal existence was conferred upon us by our Creator, so munificent and kind. It was for the glory of his great name. May the influences of the Holy Spirit descend upon us! Then we shall not be blanks in God's creation, but live up joyfully to the end of our existence, namely—

"To glorify God, and enjoy him for ever."

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, thou art the God of life, and our God in Christ. Thy spirit hath made us, and the breath of the Almighty hath given us life. As thou hast conferred upon us natural and rational life, O give us spiritual life. May the influences of thy spirit rest on all now prostrate before thee, and may we be animated with that spiritual and Divine life which will issue in the glorious enjoyment of a life immortal in the skies. If there are any among us in a state of spiritual death, mercifully unite us to Jesus Christ; then we shall become spiritually alive, and form a part of that mystical body of which Jesus is the Divine and exalted head. We adore thee, O Lord, in thine infinite greatness. God is greater than man. All the potentates of the earth are only the small dust of the balance when compared with thy power, thy majesty, and thy glory. Thou, O Lord, art accountable to none, and thou givest not account of any of thy matters.

Lord, give us grace to hearken to thy words. Thou art addressing us in thy providence, both by adversity and prosperity; thou art addressing us in the Word of life, and by the preaching of thy Gospel: O give us grace to hearken to all thy words: let us not be like the deaf adder, that stoppeth her ear, and will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely.

O give our children and our domestics ears to hear the voice of wisdom. Convince them that they alone are happy and blest who hear Christ, watching daily at his gates, and waiting at the posts of his doors. O preserve them from the ensnaring voice of folly, which leads to destruction and death.

We have now read, that in a vision of the night God openeth the ears of men; and we praise thee that in various ways, in Old Testament times, thou didst communicate thy mind to the Church. Adored be thy name, that the Scriptures of inspiration are complete, and that they shall be handed down in their present form to the close of time. As our days increase, may our love to thy Word increase; and may we apply to it every day, as to a refreshing fountain, where our souls shall drink reviving and invigorating draughts of heavenly consolation.

Lord, extend thy saving compassion to the aged and the afflicted. Have mercy on those who are chastened upon their beds with pain, and the multitude of their bones with strong pain; whose flesh is consumed away, and whose bones stick out. O give them an interest in Jesus, fill their souls with grace, honour them with the enjoyment of thy fellowship, and animate them with the hopes of heaven. May Jesus, the messenger and the interpreter, one among a thousand, reconcile them to God's mysterious will, and enable them to approve of all his dispensations as holy, just, and good.

Glory to God the Father for Christ the Redeemer, and that the voice of mercy is heard proclaiming, in sweetest accents, Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom.

O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Divine Redeemer, in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Amen.

INCREASE OF THE CHURCH.

Newport. Homerton. Coombs'. Derby.

L. M.

- 1 SHOUT, for the blessed Jesus reigns!
Through distant lands his triumphs spread;
And sinners, freed from endless pains,
Own him their Saviour and their head.
- 2 His sons and daughters from afar,
Daily at Sion's gate arrive;
Those who were dead in sin before,
By sovereign grace are made alive.
- 3 Oppressors bow beneath his feet,
O'ercome by his victorious power;
Princes in humble posture wait,
And proud blasphemers learn to adore.
- 4 Gentiles and Jews his laws obey,
Nations remote their offerings bring;
And unconstrained their homage pay
To their exalted God and King.
- 5 O may his conquests still increase,
And every foe his power subdue;
While angels celebrate his praise,
And saints his growing glories show.

BEDDOKE.

1 THESSALONIANS I.

Power of the Gospel.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the church of the Thessalonians which is in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers;

3 Remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father;

4 Knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God.

5 For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance; as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake.

6 And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost:

7 So that ye were ensamples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia.

8 For from you sounded out the word of the Lord not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place your faith to God-ward is spread abroad; so that we need not to speak any thing.

9 For they themselves shew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God;

10 And to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 THESS. I.—Through the salvation which is in Christ, God stands to his people in the most endearing relations. Are we redeemed by grace? God is our Father; we are spiritually in him, and he in us; we have a place in his love, and in his covenant, and in his Church, from which we shall never be removed; and as the God of our salvation he fills the throne of our hearts, where he shall reign unrivalled for ever. As the shepherd rejoices in the prosperity of his flock, and the husbandman in the fruitfulness of his fields, so the holy parent rejoices with great joy in the salvation of his family, and the faithful minister in the prosperous graces of the people of his charge. Grace is in its nature active and fruitful. It is a shining light, and its rays irradiate the life and actions of the children of God, who are emphatically called the "children of the light and of the day." Immense are the personal, practical, experimental benefits which grace confers, such as holiness, usefulness, and happiness; and also the assured hopes of heaven's blessedness.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, our comforter and guide, in all our approaches to the throne of grace, whether in the closet, or in the family, or in the sanctuary, may we find ourselves drawn by the cords of Divine love, and our minds influenced by thy Divine grace. We would feel astonished, O Lord, at thy condescending mercy, in thy great willingness to admit guilty and polluted sinners into thy presence, to present their humble and earnest supplications in the name of Jesus. Thou art always more ready to hear than we are to pray; and thou art more able to give than we are to ask. Pour out upon us thy sanctifying mercy; and, though we are infinitely unworthy in ourselves, yet do thou give us a rich supply of those blessings we need in time, at death, and through eternity.

We thank a gracious Providence for the food and raiment, health, reason, domestic comfort, and all the spiritual mercies we have this day received, from the kind and bountiful hand of our heavenly Father. We are entering on another night, and the darkness which is beginning to surround us reminds us of the approaching night of death. During this night may we be safe in the arms of thy providence; and when the night of death comes, may we be safe in the arms of thy salvation.

As a family may we receive and enjoy the benediction which St. Paul pronounced upon the Thessalonian church: may grace be unto us, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. Let pure Christian love prevail among us as a family. Not only may we love one another, but may we be enabled to present in each other's behalf earnest and affectionate prayers before the throne of grace. Increase our love to all the saints, and to all the churches; and may our daily prayers rise up before the throne of God in behalf of the church and congregation with which we are more immediately connected; and may the spiritual society to which we belong prove, like the church of Thessalonica, an example of unity and zeal to all the surrounding churches.

O Lord, make our dear children and servants living members of the Church of Christ. Baptize them with the Holy Ghost; and may a spirit of prayer and of love abundantly rest upon them.

Lord, enable us and all our relatives to manifest to all around us that work of faith, that labour of love, and that patience and hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, which will be an evident token that we are the members of thy Church invisible. Give us thy spirit, that we may make our calling and election sure.

May the Gospel come unto us, not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance. Teach us to receive the Gospel with faith and love, notwithstanding all the discouragements which may be put in our way by sin, Satan, and our own corruption. O to be among the number who are waiting for thy Son from heaven, whom thou hast raised from the dead, even Jesus, who delivereth from the wrath to come!

Lord, hear our feeble supplications, for Jesus' sake, who loved us and died for us, and to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, we ascribe undivided and endless glory Amen.

GOD'S PERFECTIONS.

Fordingbridge. Luton. Roslea. Stirling.

L. M.

- 1 JEHOVAH reigns, his throne is high,
His robes are light and majesty;
His glory shines with beams so bright,
No mortal can sustain the sight.
- 2 His terrors keep the world in awe,
His justice guards his holy law;
His love reveals a smiling face,
His truth and promise seal the grace.
- 3 Through all his works his wisdom shines,
And baffles Satan's deep designs;
His power is sovereign to fulfil
The noblest counsels of his will.
- 4 And will this sovereign Lord descend
To be my Father and my Friend?
Then let my songs with angels join;
Heaven is secure if God be mine.

Watts, 168, B. II.

JOB XXXV.

Elihu refuses Job's hard Speeches.

- ELIHU spake moreover and said,
- 2 Thinkest thou this to be right, that thou saidst, My righteousness is more than God's?
  - 3 For thou saidst, What advantage will it be unto thee? and, What profit shall I have, if I be cleansed from my sin?
  - 4 I will answer thee, and thy companions with thee.
  - 5 Look unto the heavens, and see; and behold the clouds which are higher than thou.
  - 6 If thou sinnest, what doest thou against him? or if thy transgressions be multiplied, what doest thou unto him?
  - 7 If thou be righteous, what givest thou him? or what receiveth he of thine hand?
  - 8 Thy wickedness may hurt a man as thou art; and thy righteousness may profit the son of man.
  - 9 By reason of the multitude of oppressions they make the oppressed to cry: they cry out by reason of the arm of the mighty.
  - 10 But none saith, Where is God my maker, who giveth songs in the night;
  - 11 Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth, and maketh us wiser than the fowls of heaven?
  - 12 There they cry, but none giveth answer, because of the pride of evil men.
  - 13 Surely God will not hear vanity, neither will the Almighty regard it.
  - 14 Although thou sayest thou shalt not see him, yet judgment is before him; therefore trust thou in him.
  - 15 But now, because it is not so, he hath visited in his anger; yet he knoweth it not in great extremity:
  - 16 Therefore doth Job open his mouth in vain; he multiplieth words without knowledge.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXXV.—We should entertain the most just and correct views of God's providential dealings with men, however dark and mysterious; and, like Elihu, rejoice in strenuously vindicating the wisdom, righteousness, and mercy of God's providence, in opposition to all the charges with which it may be assailed. How infinitely desirable is the state of that man's mind, who, even in the midst of the greatest losses, the heaviest trials, and the most severe bereavements, remains perfectly satisfied with the wisdom and goodness of the Divine administration, and who can say, under the darkest clouds, "this God is my God, and will be my guide even unto death." That is indeed a state of mind, constituting an inheritance more valuable than all the kingdoms of the earth and their glory. The heavens and the clouds speak for God: they proclaim his greatness, wisdom, and goodness. "The heavens declare his glory, and the firmament sheweth his handywork;" but the Word of God speaks more fully and distinctly of God's being, perfections, and will. A life of sin is altogether without gain; though opposed to God's glory, it cannot impair his felicity; while the deluded transgressor, by multiplying his offences, increases his misery. What matter of lamentation it is, that so few serve God, seek after God, know God, and enjoy God! Let it be our earnest prayer, that the number of those who seek God their Maker, and who proclaim his praises in the night watches, may rapidly increase. Amen.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Father in Christ, may unfeigned thankfulness and love inspire our hearts, on the return of the morning light, that we are permitted to approach thy sacred throne, and to enjoy fellowship with the Father of our spirits, the Saviour of our souls, and the sanctifier and comforter of our hearts.

Most blessed and glorious Jehovah, we acknowledge the inconceivable height of thy majesty, and the infinite independence of the blessedness, the felicity, and glory of thy being. If we sin, we cannot injure thee; and if our transgressions be multiplied, the glory of thy character is still the same. If we are righteous, our righteousness cannot increase thy felicity; and it is impossible that thou canst receive anything from our hand that can add to the unbounded stores of thy fulness. Our wickedness may hurt a man as we are, but cannot hurt thee; and our righteousness may profit the son of man, but can never profit thee. O give us an interest in the righteousness of Jesus Christ, which will reflect the glory of thy grace, justice, and holiness, for ever and ever.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the Creator of angels and men, and we praise thee that we are not only thy creatures, but thy rational subjects. Glory to thy name, thou hast given us reason and immortality. Thou teachest us more than the beasts of the earth, and makest us wiser than the fowls of heaven. We adore thee, O Jesus, as the great teacher of thy people. We thank thee for the Holy Scriptures, from which we may derive knowledge and wisdom, compared with which all the wisdom of the wisest of heathen sages sinks into the greatest obscurity.

Lord, impart saving wisdom to our children and domestics, and may they never be left to fall into the sin of self-conceit. O may they know their ruin by Adam, and may they know their recovery by Christ.

Holy Spirit, may all of us derive benefit from the reproofs which Elihu administered to Job. Preserve us from a pharaonic and self-righteous spirit. Open our eyes to see our true state before a holy and a righteous God. Humble us in thy presence, and with penitential hearts may we look upon ourselves as sinful dust and ashes; yea, as less than the very least of all thy mercies.

Have mercy on our aged friends; and as they are advancing in years, may they advance in humility and heavenly-mindedness. Lord, cleanse us and all our relatives from our sins. Let us not be less careful about the daily cleansing of our souls than the daily cleansing of our bodies. Every day we would come to Jesus, the fountain opened; every day we would come to the blood of sprinkling; every day we would come to the purifying spirit of God.

Lord, bless us all in the duties of this day: may we live as those who make the glory of God the great end of their lives; and may we live as those who consider the enjoyment of God as their greatest blessedness.

Mercifully hear our prayers, and cast all our sins into the sea of thy forgetfulness, for the sake of Jesus. Christ our Lord. Amen.

FEAR NOT.

Arundel. Arabia. Oxford.

C. M.

- 1 YE trembling souls! dismiss your fears;
Be mercy all your theme;
Mercy, which like a river flows
In one continued stream.
- 2 Fear not the powers of earth and hell;
God will these powers restrain;
His mighty arm their rage ropel,
And make their efforts vain.
- 3 Fear not the want of outward good;
He will for his provide,
Grant them supplies of daily food,
And all they need beside.
- 4 Fear not that he will o'er forsake,
Or leave his work undone;
He's faithful to his promises,—
And faithful to his Son.

BENDOME.

1 THESSALONIANS III.

Grace and Confirmation of Believers.

WHEREFORE when we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone;

2 And sent Timotheus, our brother, and minister of God, and our fellow-labourer in the gospel of Christ, to establish you, and to comfort you concerning your faith:

3 That no man should be moved by these afflictions: for yourselves know that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verily, when we were with you, we told you before that we should suffer tribulation; even as it came to pass, and ye know.

5 For this cause, when I could no longer forbear, I sent to know your faith, lest by some means the tempter have tempted you, and our labour be in vain.

6 But now when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, desiring greatly to see us, as we also to see you:

7 Therefore, brethren, we were comforted over you in all our affliction and distress by your faith:

8 For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we render to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your sakes before our God;

10 Night and day praying exceedingly that we might see your face, and might perfect that which is lacking in your faith?

11 Now God himself and our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our way unto you.

12 And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you;

13 To the end he may establish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 THESS. III.—Genuine believers are willing to submit to any inconvenience for the furtherance of the Gospel, and for the extension of the kingdom of Christ. They who willingly suffer for Christ's cause have much to comfort them: they know this, that no affliction can come upon them without their heavenly Father's permission, nor without his blessing. Believers are warned, that in this world they shall have tribulation; but they are refreshed with the promise, that when their tribulations on earth come to a close, it is their Father's good pleasure to give them the kingdom. Parents and ministers should exercise great and affectionate watchfulness over those who are committed to their care, seeing Satan.

the great adversary, is exercising constant diligence to prevent the efficacy of the means of grace, and to accomplish the ruin of immortal souls. They who take a deep interest in the spiritual welfare of those who are committed to their tuition and guidance, are filled with great joy when they see the blossoms of a profession followed by the fruits of grace.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, O God of salvation, that, though thou managest the immense concerns of the universe, thou still takest so kind and gracious an interest in the welfare of thy people, that thou art ever ready to hear their prayers, and give them grace to help in every time of need. We desire at this time to draw near unto thee in the name of Christ, and as children would draw near to their earthly parents, on whom their confidence and affections are placed. Holy Spirit, mercifully breathe upon us thy heavenly influence at this time.

We thank our God for all the blessings, temporal and spiritual, we have received this day from the fountain of Divine goodness. Graciously forgive the offences of the day, and let not our sins rise up against us in judgment to condemn us. Thy righteousness, O Jesus, is the only foundation of our hope, and the only ground of our confidence. Where can the sinner flee for safety but to thee, thou Lamb of God, thou Rock of ages? We implore the continuance of thy protecting care this night. May we and all our relatives retire to rest, enjoying an interest in the blessings of the covenant of grace, and encompassed by the arms of redeeming love. Preserve us, thou preserver of man; for in thee do we trust.

We seek the blessing of our God on the word we have now read, and on the sacred ordinance in which we are now engaged. O let blessings descend upon us, like rain upon the tender herb. And may all of us find that it is good to draw near to God.

God grant that each member of our family may be a partaker of grace. May we be established in the faith and comfort of the Gospel, not driven about with every wind of doctrine, or like the waves of the sea, driven by the wind and tossed. Give us not only the power of religion in strengthening our minds, but the joys of religion in comforting our hearts.

Deliver our dear children from the delusion of imagining that the pleasures of the world are superior to the pleasures of religion. Convince them that those pleasures which are agreeable to the carnal senses, are always dangerous to the soul and offensive to God.

Let not our aged friends be moved by their afflictions; but may they remember that thereunto they were appointed. May present sufferings carry on their thoughts to the heavenly state, where they shall for ever enjoy, through our Saviour's blood, the glorious delights of immortality.

Bless to us the ordinances of religion, and the labours of our minister. Let not the tempter prevail against us, and thus render his labour in vain. By our faith and love may we furnish the pleasing evidence that the ordinances of the sanctuary, the family, and the closet, are accompanied with the saving power of the Holy Ghost. May we ever value, seek, and enjoy the wise direction of God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. May all of us increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men. O establish our hearts unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.

Hear these our prayers, for the sake of our Divine and exalted Mediator, who is the brightness of the Father's glory, world without end. Amen.

THE GOD OF THUNDER.

Warrington. Forest Hill. Old 100th. Dresden.

L. M.

- 1 O THE immense, the amazing height,
The boundless grandeur of our God!
Who treads the world beneath his feet,
And sways the nations with his nod!
- 2 He speaks; and lo! all nature shakes,
Heaven's everlasting pillars bow;
He rends the clouds with hideous cracks,
And shoots his fiery arrows through.
- 3 Well, let the nations start and fly
At the blue lightning's horrid glare,
Atheists and emperors shrink and die,
When flame and noise torment the air:
- 4 Let noise and flame confound the skies,
And drown the spacious realms below,
Yet will we sing the Thunderer's praise,
And send our loud hosannas through.

WARR.

JOB XL.

Job's Humility and God's Power.

- MOREOVER the LORD answered Job, and said,
- 2 Shall he that contendeth with the Almighty instruct him? he that reproveth God, let him answer it.
  - 3 Then Job answered the LORD, and said,
  - 4 Behold, I am vile; what shall I answer thee? I will lay mine hand upon my mouth.
  - 5 Once have I spoken; but I will not answer: yea, twice; but I will proceed no further.
  - 6 Then answered the LORD unto Job out of the whirlwind, and said,
  - 7 Gird up thy loins now like a man: I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me.
  - 8 Wilt thou also disannul my judgment? wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest be righteous?
  - 9 Hast thou an arm like God? or canst thou thunder with a voice like him?
  - 10 Deck thyself now with majesty and excellency; and array thyself with glory and beauty.
  - 11 Cast abroad the rage of thy wrath: and behold every one that is proud, and abase him.
  - 12 Look on every one that is proud, and bring him low; and tread down the wicked in their place.
  - 13 Hide them in the dust together; and bind their faces in secret.
  - 14 Then will I also confess unto thee that thine own right hand can save thee.
  - 15 Behold now behemoth, which I made with thee; he eateth grass as an ox.
  - 16 His bones are as strong pieces of brass; his bones are like bars of iron.
  - 17 He is the chief of the ways of God: he that made him can make his sword to approach unto him.
  - 18 Surely the mountains bring him forth food, where all the beasts of the field play.
  - 19 He lieth under the shady trees, in the covert of the reed, and fens.
  - 20 The shady trees cover him with their shadow: the willows of the brook compass him about.
  - 21 Behold, he drinketh up a river, and hasteth not: he trusteth that he can draw up Jordan into his mouth.
  - 22 He taketh it with his eyes: his nose pierceth through snares.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XL.—It is not only most presumptuous, but most perilous, to arraign the wisdom of God, or to call in question his mercy in connection with the arrangements of his providence. Truly, God is infinitely gracious in bearing with the provocations of men, and, let each one of us say, "in bearing with my provocations and numerous offences." "The voice of the Lord is powerful," and soon melts the heart into humility and penitence. If we are under the salutary influence of genuine contrition, we know and feel that we cannot answer for one of the thousands of our transgressions; and that if God should enter into judgment with us, we could not stand before him. Unspeakable privilege!—we can plead for pardon on the foundation of the atoning righteousness of Jesus, the great Surety, and exclaim, "O Lord, look not on us as we have sinned, but behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine Anointed!"

PRAYER.

WHO can comprehend thy glory, O Lord our God? Thy greatness is infinite; all thy purposes are formed by wisdom which cannot possibly err, and therefore thy judgment can never be disannulled. Thine arm, O Lord, is almighty, and the power of archangels is only the power of a feeble moth compared with thine. Who can thunder with a voice like thine? Awful and overwhelming was thy thundering voice on mount Sinai, when thou didst deliver the law to Israel; and far more awful and overwhelming will be the thunders of thy power and of thy justice when thou shalt appear in the clouds of heaven to judge the world, and to assemble guilty nations before thy tribunal to receive their final doom.

Lord, affect the minds of our beloved children and servants with the prospects of that solemn day. When they hear the voice of thy thunder in the skies, may it remind them of the certain approach of that day when Christ shall come in the capacity of judge, and bring before his bar all that ever lived, or shall live, on the face of the earth.

O Lord, thou art decked with majesty and excellency, thou art arrayed with glory and beauty. May all of us be travelling to that heavenly world where we shall behold thy perfections unveiled, where we shall see God as he is, and where we shall witness the mediatorial glory of the Lamb in the midst of the throne. Give us the well-grounded hope of that blessed state; then our minds shall be supported under all the afflictions of life, and we shall look on death and sing with triumph, O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

Lord, fill us with awe, when we think of the rage of thy wrath, which is directed against thine enemies, and in particular against the proud. Thou beholdest every one that is proud; thou seest his haughty purposes and lofty designs; thou dost observe the actions of his life, which show his rebellious opposition to thine authority and laws: but thou beholdest him as heaping up wrath, and preparing himself for the vials of thine indignation. Thou beholdest every one that is proud, and wilt abase him. Thou lookest on every one that is proud, and wilt bring him low; and thou wilt tread down the wicked in their place: thou wilt hide them in the dust together, and bind their faces in secret. Lord, give us humility, which is the pleasing mark of the favour of God; and deliver us from pride, which is the evident token of the displeasure of heaven.

Holy Spirit, inspire our minds with that humble penitence which inspired the mind of Job. Like him may we thus address the throne of God, and look for pardon through our Saviour's blood: Behold, we are vile; what shall we answer thee? We will lay our hand on our mouth. Once have we spoken; but we will not answer: yea, twice; but we will proceed no further. Blessed Jesus, cast the skirt of thy righteousness over us; then shall we be pardoned and accepted.

We thank our God for the mercies of the night. May we be preserved from all the temptations of this day, and be enabled to live as the children of God and the heirs of heaven. Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our exalted Surety. Amen.

HOPE IN THE MIDST OF MORTALITY.
Green Walk. Chatham. Westbury Leigh.

P. M.

- 1 IF death my friend and mo divide,
Thou dost not, Lord, my sorrow chide,
Or frown, my tears to see:
Restrained from passionate excess,
Thou biddest me mourn in calm distress
For them that rest in thee.
- 2 I feel a strong immortal hope,
Which bears my mournful spirit up
Beneath its mountain-load:
Redeemed from death, and grief, and pain,
I soon shall find my friend again
Within the arms of God.

C. WESLEY.

1 THESSALONIANS IV.

Charity, Holiness, and Love.

FURTHERMORE then we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord Jesus, that as ye have received of us how ye ought to walk and to please God, so ye would abound more and more.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus.

3 For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication:

4 That every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour;

5 Not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

6 That no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter: because that the Lord is the avenger of all such, as we also have forewarned you and testified.

7 For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness.

8 He therefore that despiseth, despiseth not man, but God, who hath also given unto us his holy Spirit.

9 But as touching brotherly love ye need not that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another.

10 And indeed ye do it toward all the brethren which are in all Macedonia: but we beseech you, brethren, that ye increase more and more;

11 And that ye study to be quiet, and to do your own business, and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you;

12 That ye may walk honestly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing.

13 But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.

14 For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.

15 For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep.

16 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first:

17 Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore comfort one another with these words.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 THESS. IV.—Do we know the practice and the blessedness of walking in the way of saving faith and holy, filial obedience? If we are the possessors of grace, we are thankful for what we have received; but not satisfied with the degree of grace, being desirous to grow in grace and to abound in grace. Love to Christ manifests itself by love to his commandments. He said to his disciples, "If ye love me, keep my commandments. Ho that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." May each one of us possess this indispensable mark of love to the person of Christ, namely, love to the law of Christ. How important and beneficial it is constantly to war with the corruptions of our nature, to hold our bodily appetites in subjection, and to seek the Spirit, that they may never obtain over us the ascendancy! What a bright jewel is holiness! May this jewel shine in our persons and lives, and, at last, may we reach to the attainment of spotless purity in the heavenly mansions. All moral and spiritual excellences are concentrated in love. May love to the brethren glow in our bosom! Let it be our daily prayer that love may increase, and prevail, and reign throughout all the churches. Then will the sun of millennial blessedness illumine the whole earth, when Christian love shall prevail over the whole family of man.

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS Lord God, may the important truths we have now read deeply impress our minds with a sense of thy spotless holiness, and our own deformity, vileness, and sin. O what a mystery of grace and mercy, that such unholy beings should be found at the footstool and before the throne of God, who is so glorious in holiness, and so transcendent in his purity! Holy and reverend is thy name; and we would now adore and praise thee for thy spotless holiness, shining gloriously in all thy works, but shining with pre-eminent brightness in the person and Gospel of thy Son. Thou art great in Zion, and thou art high above all people. Let all the nations of the earth praise thy great and terrible name; for it is holy.

Give us grace to study to act in conformity to thy holy will, to obey thy holy laws, and diligently to observe thy holy ordinances. As obedient children, and as loving children, may we know how to walk and please God. We would not only pray, Thy will be done; but would pray, Teach us to know and practise what is the good, and perfect, and acceptable will of God. Lord, we confess and mourn over our disobedience; and we would adore and praise thee for thy forbearing kindness, in not destroying us in the midst of our iniquities.

Holy Spirit, graciously sanctify all the powers, desires, and affections of our minds; and may our bodies be consecrated to the honour and service of the Lord our God.

We pray for the sanctification of our children. We seek not for them worldly honours, but we seek for them the honours of piety and the imperishable ornaments of Divine purity.

Lord, we present our supplication for all those who are the slaves of the flesh, and who are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. O affect them with the awful thought, that their present imaginary delights are only preparing them for that world of misery where there is not so much as one drop of water to cool the tongue of the tormented prisoner. Lord, have mercy on them; deliver them from their delusive dream.

Sanctify to us the removal of departed relatives to the world of spirits; and particularly sanctify the death of such as lived with God on earth, and are now mingling with angels in heaven. May we rejoice in this, that, as Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. Almighty Saviour, who didst triumph over death and the grave, give us that faith which will enable us to say, in the triumphant accents of the Apostle, When Christ shall appear, we shall be caught up, together with those that remain, in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and we shall be ever with the Lord. O teach us to comfort one another with these words, when weeping over the lifeless dust of those beloved relatives who have fallen asleep in Christ.

We thank our God for the mercies of the day, and we humbly commit ourselves to thy Divine care during the night. Hear us graciously, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE BLESSEDNESS OF THE RIGHTEOUS.

Mehetabel. Waltham Abbey. Worksop.

C. M.

- 1 THOUGH saints to sore distress are brought,
And wait and long complain,
Their cries shall not be still forgot,
Nor shall their hopes be vain.
- 2 Rise, great Redeemer, from thy seat,
To judge and save the poor;
Let nations tremble at thy feet,
And men prevail no more.
- 3 Thy thunder shall affright the proud,
And put their hearts to pain;
Make them confess that thou art God,
And they but feeble men.

WATTS, Ps. 9, p. 11.

JOB XLII.

Job's Prosperity and Death.

THEN Job answered the LORD, and said,

2 I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee.

3 Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge? therefore have I uttered that I understood not; things too wonderful for me, which I knew not.

4 Hear, I beseech thee, and I will speak: I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me.

5 I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee.

6 Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes.

7 And it was so, that after the LORD had spoken these words unto Job, the LORD said to Eliphaz the Temanite, My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends: for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job hath.

8 Therefore take unto you now seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering; and my servant Job shall pray for you: for him will I accept: lest I deal with you after your folly, in that ye have not spoken of me the thing which is right, like my servant Job.

9 So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went, and did according as the LORD commanded them: the LORD also accepted Job.

10 And the LORD turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends: also the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before.

11 Then came there unto him all his brethren, and all his sisters, and all they that had been of his acquaintance before, and did eat bread with him in his house: and they bemoaned him, and comforted him over all the evil that the LORD had brought upon him: every man also gave him a piece of money, and every one an offering of gold.

12 So the LORD blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning: for he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she asses.

13 He had also seven sons and three daughters.

14 And he called the name of the first, Jemima; and the name of the second, Kezia; and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

15 And in all the land were no women found so fair as the daughters of Job: and their father gave them inheritance among their brethren.

16 After this lived Job an hundred and forty years, and saw his sons, and his sons' sons, even four generations.

17 So Job died, being old and full of days.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XLII.—The omniscience, omnipotence, and mercy of God, are sources of unspeakable comfort and encouragement to his ransomed children. They know that because he is omniscient, he is able to hear their prayers; because he is almighty, he is able to answer their prayers; and because of his love, he is willing to answer their prayers. Here, believers have reason to mourn over their ignorance and folly, but in heaven they shall know, even as they are known; and unerring wisdom shall for ever shine upon their understandings, like the brightness of a meridian sun. Our ears have heard the joyful sound: have we felt its saving influence? Have we seen Jesus by the eye of faith, and can we say with unfeigned sincerity and love, "He is all our salvation, and all our desire?" Is our knowledge of God saving, and not speculative? Then we are clothed with humility, and, in penitential self-abasement, we fall prostrate at Jesus' feet. Job was unjustly accused by men, but he was mercifully justified by God: and if God justifies, who dare condemn? Amazing were the sufferings of Job, but amazing the prosperity which followed. Thus the humiliation of Christ, is followed by a glorious exaltation in the heavenly kingdom.

PRAYER.

OUR Father in heaven, we approach thee as our God in Christ. We adore thee, O Lord our God, in all the arrangements and operations of thy providence, which we acknowledge are sovereign, just, and good. We thank thee for the remarkable and animating account we have now read of the blessed interpositions of thy wise and gracious providence in behalf of thy servant Job, during the concluding part of his wonderful and eventful life. Thou art the Lord who preserveth the faithful. Lord, make us faithful; then we shall have the unspeakable advantage of the care and protection of thy special providence. We rejoice that thou, the Lord, never forsakest thy saints, but thou preservest them for ever. O make us thy saints: then we shall be preserved for ever, and at last obtain a place in those heavenly mansions, where the malignity of enemies shall never reach the blessed inhabitants.

O Lord, we adore thee as the almighty ruler; we know that thou canst do everything. Thou art omniscient; the hearts of all men are laid constantly open before thee, and no thought can be withholden from thee.

Ever preserve in the minds of our children and servants this important truth, that thou art not only the witness of their actions, but of their thoughts.

Remember not against us the careless and sinful words which have fallen from our lips; and forgive the rash and unguarded words we have uttered on subjects sacred and Divine. We have uttered what we understood not; yea, things too wonderful, which we knew not.

Glory to our God for the revelation thou hast given of thy nature, glory, and grace. Praise to our God for the account which is given us of the great Messiah, the Saviour of men, the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of the Father's person. O Jesus, we would rejoice that we have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, in the preaching of the everlasting Gospel. Lord, grant that we may hear of thee by the hearing of faith; and with the eye of faith may we see thy loveliness, glory, fulness and grace. May we obtain a sight of thee in thine offices, relations, and blessings, as a Saviour infinitely suited to the poor sinner's case. Above all, may we obtain a sight of thee as our Saviour; then we shall say with thy servant of old, We have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now our eye seeth thee.

Like Job, may all our clouds disappear before we enter into the Jordan of death. Whether we die at an early period, or advanced in years, may we die under the smiles of God, and in the arms of Christ.

We thank God for the mercies of the past night; and we supplicate the presence and assistance of God's spirit during the whole of this day. Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ Amen.

INWARD RELIGION.

Melody. Warwick. Ann's.

C. M.

- 1 RELIGION is the chief concern
Of mortals here below:
May I its great importance learn,
Its sovereign virtue know!
- 2 More needful this than glittering wealth,
Or aught the world bestows;
Not reputation, food, or health,
Can give us such repose.
- 3 Religion should our thoughts engage Amidst our youthful bloom;
'Twill fit us for declining age,
And for the awful tomb.

Fawcett.

1 THESSALONIANS V.

Holy Communion.

BUT of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you.

2 For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night.

3 For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape.

4 But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness.

6 Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober.

7 For they that sleep sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night.

8 But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation.

9 For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ,

10 Who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 Wherefore comfort yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do.

12 And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you;

13 And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. And be at peace among yourselves.

14 Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men.

15 See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men.

16 Rejoice evermore.

17 Pray without ceasing.

18 In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you.

19 Quench not the Spirit.

20 Despise not prophesyings.

21 Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.

22 Abstain from all appearance of evil.

23 And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it.

25 Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss.

27 I charge you by the Lord that this epistle be read unto all the holy brethren.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 THESS. V.—As all things are known to Jesus, our Saviour and God, we have no reason to be perplexed about futurity and its events. The arrival of death is often sudden, and the time uncertain. In this we see the wisdom of God, as this forms a solemn and urgent reason to be always watching and ready for our Saviour's call. At whatever time we may hear our Saviour's voice, may we have our loins girt about, and our lamps burning, and ourselves prepared and waiting for the coming and call of our Lord. What a difference betwixt the state of nature and the state of grace! The former is the dark night of sin, bondage, misery, and death; the latter is the blessed day of holiness, liberty, happiness, and life. A state of nature is marked by lothargy, indifference, and unconcern; a state of grace is distinguished by zeal, activity, freedom from fleshly lusts, and holy heroism in fighting the good fight of faith. They who die in a state of nature, are made for ever the objects of God's wrath; they who die in a state of grace, shall be for ever the objects of Jehovah's love. Here they live with Christ on earth, in the enjoyment of his fellowship and smiles; and hereafter they shall live for ever with Christ in heaven, to behold his glory and sing his praise.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the God of peace, who brought again from the dead the Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep. May the God of peace sanctify us wholly; and may our whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Lord, we acknowledge our weakness and infirmity. We can neither preserve ourselves from danger nor from sin. We praise thee that, as thou hast said to Jacob, thou dost also promise to all thy people: Behold I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and I will not leave thee. Agreeably to the blessing with which the Old Testament Church was blessed, we pray that as a family thou wouldst bless us and keep us. Make thy face to shine upon us, and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up his countenance upon us and give us peace.

What shall we render to the Lord for the mercies of the past day and the past week! Gracious God, accept the humble tribute of our thankfulness and praise. We seek the watchful care of our Father in heaven this night. May we and all our relatives be in thy holy keeping. Lord, keep us as the apple of thine eye. On the morning of another Sabbath may we rise invigorated and refreshed. May our bodies be blessed with health, and may our minds be enriched with grace. By the blessed influences of the Holy Spirit may the congregation and our minister enter upon the solemnities of the day, filled with love to Christ, compassion for souls, and concern for the prosperity of Immanuel's kingdom. Bless the sacred and seasonable counsels we have now read. Prepare us for the day of the Lord, which will come as a thief in the night.

May our dear children be spared to a good old age, the ornaments of the Gospel. But whether they shall be removed in early days or in advanced years, O that they may be ready and waiting for the coming of their Lord.

Such of our dear relatives as are living in the service of fleshly lusts, or more especially under the alarming sway of the sin of drunkenness, by thine almighty grace deliver them from their present perilous situation.

Let all of us who profess to be the children of the day of grace be examples to all around. Teach us to be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation. May the remembrance of the death of Christ powerfully persuade us to seek after that holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. O give us the pure joys of religion, and enable us to rejoice evermore. Pour out upon us a spirit of prayer; and may we, from love to prayer, daily and constantly send up to heaven the earnest aspirations of our souls. O hear us, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE SEAMAN'S SONG.

Downdale. Peter's Marks.

L. M.

- 1 WOULD you behold the works of God,
His wonders in the world abroad,
Go with the mariners, and trace
The unknown regions of the seas.
- 2 They leave their native shores behind,
And seize the favour of the wind,
Till God command, and tempests rise,
That heave the ocean to the skies.
- 3 When land is far, and death is nigh,
Lost to all hope, to God they cry;
His mercy hears their loud address,
And sends salvation in distress.
- 4 O may the sons of men record
The wondrous praises of the Lord!
Let them their private offerings bring,
And in the church his glory sing.

Watts, Ps. 107, p. IV.

PSALM CVII.

Dangers of the Sea.

- GIVE thanks unto the LORD, for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 2 Let the redeemed of the LORD say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy;
- 3 And gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west, from the north, and from the south.
- 4 They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in.
- 5 Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them.
- 6 Then they cried unto the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses.
- 7 And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation.
- 21 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!
- 22 And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing.
- 23 They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters;
- 24 These see the works of the LORD, and his wonders in the deep.
- 25 For he commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof.
- 26 They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths: their soul is melted because of trouble.
- 27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wit's end.
- 28 Then they cry unto the LORD in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses.
- 29 He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still.
- 30 Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven.
- 31 Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!
- 40 He poureth contempt upon princes, and causeth them to wander in the wilderness, where there is no way.
- 41 Yet setteth he the poor on high from affliction, and maketh him families like a flock.
- 42 The righteous shall see it, and rejoice: and all iniquity shall stop her mouth.
- 43 Whoso is wise, and will observe these things, even they shall understand the lovingkindness of the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CVII.—When we think of Christ as the Fountain of goodness, and on the streams of blessings which flow from this Fountain, what reason we have for songs of thanksgiving and praise! The saints are Christ's redeemed people; and the love which moved him to become their Redeemer, and the price which he gave for their redemption, will be the burden of their songs for ever and ever. When the redeemed family shall be completed, and when all its members shall assemble before the heavenly throne, it will appear an assembly which no man can number, out of all nations, and tongues, and people, and languages. Who can conceive the sweetness of their music, and the rapturous melody of their songs, when they shall unite in one vast chorus to shout the praises of God and the Lamb! May we be found among the redeemed of God on earth in the ranks of the church militant, then we shall at last form a part of the church triumphant in the New Jerusalem, the city of the Great King!

PRAYER.

GLORY to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, that we have been spared to another Sabbath-day, to approach the throne of grace in Jesus' name, and to adore the God of salvation. Thy mercy, O Lord, is infinite like thyself: thy mercy is higher than the heavens; thy mercy endureth for ever; thy mercy flows to sinful men through the channel of the Saviour's blood. O teach us to give thanks unto the Lord, who is good. Let the redeemed of the Lord, whom he hath redeemed out of the hand of their enemies, give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

O Lord, thou art the Creator of the sea, and thou didst form the waters of the vast ocean. Thou hast gathered the waters of the sea together as an heap, and thou layest up the depth in storehouses. The sea is thine, thou didst make it, and thine hand formed the dry land. Thou didst prepare the heavens, and set a compass upon the face of the deep. Thou hast given to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass thy commandment. Thou knowest every drop of water of which the vast ocean consists, and thou dost measure the waters in the hollow of thine hand.

While thou art wonderful as a creating God, we rejoice thy perfections have shone with far more glory as a redeeming God. Thy goodness is every day most abundantly displayed in providence, in supplying the wants of every living thing. But we rejoice that, in the great scheme of redemption through our Saviour's death, thou hast furnished the most pre-eminent manifestations of thy glorious attributes. When we think of thy love flowing to a ruined world through the mediation of thy well-beloved Son—when we think of the astonishing change accomplished in the situation of those who are preserved from the stormy sea of Divine wrath—when we think of the glorious heaven to which they shall be exalted, where they shall dwell and reign with Christ for ever and ever, may our hearts be tuned to celebrate the praises of a redeeming God, and may we join with the Psalmist, and say, Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

We pray, gracious God, for the multitudes of our fellow-creatures who go down to the sea in ships, who do business in mighty waters, and who see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. Let a spirit of prayer descend upon them. When they think of the storms of the sea, may they remember the storms of Divine wrath which Jesus bore, and may they flee to him from the avenging ire of God, which will pursue and overtake those who die his obstinate and impenitent enemies.

Prepare us, and all thy churches and ministers, for the solemnities of this day. May we be in the spirit on the Lord's day.

Teach our children and servants to believe that the wrath of God is infinitely more dreadful than the raging of the sea. Enable them to flee to Jesus, the only refuge.

Lord, hear our prayers, for the Mediator's sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S KINGDOM AND PRIESTHOOD.

Bethel New, Carr's Lane, Oxford.

C. M.

- 1 JESUS, our Lord, ascend thy throne,
And near the Father sit;
In Zion shall thy power be known,
And make thy foes submit.
- 2 What wonders shall thy Gospel do!
Thy converts shall surpass
The numerous drops of morning dew,
And own thy sovereign grace.
- 3 God hath pronounced a firm decree,
Nor changes what he swore;
Eternal shall thy priesthood be,
When Aaron is no more.

WATTS, Ps. 110.

PSALM CX.

Christ's Office.

THE LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

2 The LORD shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion:
rule thou in the midst of thine enemies.

3 Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power, in the beauties of holiness from the womb of the morning: thou hast the dew of thy youth.

4 The LORD hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek.

5 The LORD at thy right hand shall strike through kings in the day of his wrath.

6 He shall judge among the heathen; he shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over many countries.

7 He shall drink of the brook in the way: therefore shall he lift up the head.

PSALM CXI.

Reasons for Praise.

PRAISE ye the LORD. I will praise the LORD with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.

2 The works of the LORD are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.

3 His work is honourable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever.

4 He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered:
the LORD is gracious and full of compassion.

5 He hath given meat unto them that fear him: he will ever be mindful of his covenant.

6 He hath showed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen.

7 The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure.

8 They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness.

9 He sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name.

10 The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do his commandments:
his praise endureth for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CX., CXI.—Unspeakable must have been the delight of David's heart when, by prophetic inspiration, he foresaw the future government, triumphs, and glory of the Messiah, who should descend from him after the flesh. Great wonders were effected by means of the rod of Moses; but infinitely greater by the Gospel-rod of Jesus. It is profitable seriously to inquire, Are our hearts subdued by grace Divine? Are we adorned with the beauty of holiness? Is Christ's comeliness put upon us? Have our souls been refreshed by the dew of the influences of the spirit of Christ? What joy is diffused through the believer's heart when he contemplates, in the exercise of appropriating faith, his interest in the boundless merit of Christ's righteousness, and in the eternal efficacy of the intercession of Christ! How wonderful are the works of creation, providence, and redemption, which shall furnish matter of sweetest praise to the saints of God for ever and ever! If our hearts are now sacred temples, consecrated to the service and worship of God and the Lamb, it is a satisfying evidence that we shall form a part of the innumerable company in heaven, whose hearts shall be for ever tuned to celebrate the praises of the God of salvation. May the Holy Spirit make our hearts such sacred, consecrated temples; then we shall commence on earth that delightful employment which shall for ever engage our minds in heaven; then we shall have the delightful foretaste of those pure and refined joys which shall constitute our eternal inheritance above.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire to approach thy throne with the voice of thanksgiving and praise, and in the name of our glorified Redeemer. Glory to thy name for thy sanctuary and the ordinances of thy day. Praise to thy name for the assistance given to thy ministers and people; but more especially for the benefit which has attended the preaching of the Word. We thank thee for all the edification and comfort thy people have derived from the ministrations of the sanctuary; and we praise thee for all those instances of conversion which have taken place throughout the Christian world.

O Lord, thy works are great, and sought out of all those who take pleasure therein. Thy redeeming work is the most wonderful of all thy works; this thy gracious work is honourable and glorious, and thy righteousness endureth for ever. O cause this great work of salvation to be made known through all the earth, and make this most blessed and wonderful work to be remembered among all nations. As a family may we never forget the great work of redemption, and may we never forget the death and sufferings of Christ, the wondrous means by which this great work was effected, by which the perfections of God were glorified, and the salvation of man accomplished.

We acknowledge and praise thee, O Jesus, as the eternal and essential and only-begotten Son of God. As God thy glory is essential, but as Mediator thou hast purchased the most distinguished honours. Thou holdest the most elevated station, and thou fillest the most exalted throne in the heaven of heavens. Thou art seated at thy Father's right hand, and from thy lofty eminence thou shalt see the overthrow of all thine enemies, and all thy foes made thy footstool. Blessed Jesus, may we long to see thee in thy glory above. Here may we see thee by the eye of faith; and at death may we be admitted to heaven, where we shall see thee as thou art, where we shall behold thee face to face.

We thank thee for the glorious Gospel, which is the rod of the Redeemer's strength. We praise thee for all that has been effected by means of this rod; and that wonders have been performed by this rod far exceeding the wonders which were accomplished by the rod of Moses. To us and to all our relatives may it prove the rod of the Redeemer's strength.

Lord, subdue and destroy the enmity of the hearts of men against Christ. Let this promise be fulfilled most extensively among the nations, and wherever the Gospel is proclaimed: Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power.

Make our dear children the willing subjects of thy grace; and may they feel the saving influence of a preached Gospel, which is the rod of a Saviour's gracious strength. May our servants trust in Jesus as their atoning priest, and submit to him as their loving king.

Divine Saviour, we acknowledge thee in thine eternal priesthood. Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek. Now we would receive thee as our Prophet, Priest, and King.

Into thy kind arms we commit ourselves this night. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S INVITATIONS RECEIVED OR REJECTED.

- Sherbourn. Bindon. Wareham. L. M.*
- 1 THUS saith the wisdom of the Lord,
Blessed is the man that hears my word,
Keeps daily watch before my gates,
And at my feet for mercy waits.
  - 2 The soul that seeks me shall obtain
Immortal wealth, and heavenly gain:
Immortal life is his reward,
Life, and the favour of the Lord.
  - 3 But the vile wretch that flies from me
Doth his own soul an injury;
Fools that against my grace rebel
Seek death, and love the road to hell. WATTS, 93, L. 7.

PROVERBS I.

Calls of Wisdom.

THE proverbs of Solomon the son of David, the king of Israel;

- 2 To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding;
- 3 To receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and equity;
- 4 To give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and discretion.
- 5 A wise man will hear, and will increase learning; and a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels:
- 8 My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother:
- 9 For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck.
- 10 My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not.
- 20 Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets:
- 21 She crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates: in the city she uttereth her words, saying,
- 22 How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorers delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge?
- 23 Turn you at my reproof: behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you.
- 24 Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded;
- 25 But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof:
- 26 I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh;
- 27 When your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you.
- 28 Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me:
- 29 For that they hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord:
- 30 They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof.
- 31 Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices.
- 32 For the turning away of the simple shall slay them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them.
- 33 But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. I.—Blessed is the man who sees that in this work of wisdom a greater than Solomon is here—even Jesus, the root and offspring. May it ever be the chief ambition of my heart to obtain wisdom and understanding; ornaments which will flourish in unfading beauty when the crowns of kings are buried in the dust. How precious is this Bible, which by the Holy Spirit gives wisdom to the young, the inexperienced, and foolish! Surely that young man shall safely escape the snares of a tempting world, who takes its proverbs, its maxims, its precepts, as a lump to his feet and a light unto his paths. While others listen to the words of folly, may our ears be ever open to hearken to the words of wisdom; and while others seek after perishing pleasures, may we attain to wise counsels. Surely there can be no wisdom without the fear of God! Have we submitted ourselves to the tuition of Jesus, who alone can teach the fear of the Lord, and instruct in those lessons of wisdom which will be followed with the glories of immortality? Let us never trifle with the invitations of mercy, seeing that rejected offers of grace may be succeeded by the heaviest judgments inflicted by offended justice.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the only wise God. Thou art mighty in strength and in wisdom. Wherever we turn our eyes in thy vast creation, whether we view objects of the greatest magnitude, or creatures of the smallest and the feeblest form, we have reason with the Psalmist to exclaim, in wonder and adoration, O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all. But we have infinite cause of thankfulness and praise, that thou hast given the richest displays of thy wisdom in the great plan of redemption by the incarnation and death of thine only Son. In this most blessed scheme thou hast abounded towards us in all wisdom and prudence. In thy person and righteousness, O Jesus, has been made known the manifold wisdom of God.

Gracious God, we acknowledge with humility that our first father, Adam, has left us his descendants a legacy of ignorance and folly. At first we were formed after thine image, in knowledge as well as in holiness; but alas! we are now resembling the image of our covenant head in ignorance, folly, and sin.

We thank our God for the means of instruction yesterday enjoyed. May the light which shone around us in the preaching of the Gospel shine within us by the enlightening influence of the Holy Spirit.

Suffer not the minds of our dear children, or of our servants, to be retained in darkness by Satan, the god of this world. Holy Spirit, take the Word read and preached, and may it fill their souls with the saving light of spiritual day.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy holy Word, by which, accompanied by the power of thy Spirit, saving light has been communicated to the minds of myriads. We thank thee for that sacred book, which thou hast promised to employ as the glorious mean of enlightening the world. We praise thee for the book of Divine proverbs, part of which we have now read. Teach all, and particularly the rising race, to follow the wise and practical counsels which this portion of the Bible contains. Preserve the rising race from disobedience to parents; and do thou incline their hearts to hear the instruction of their father, and not to forsake the law of their mother. Impress their minds with a sense of the blessedness and honour which accompany filial love and obedience. Convince them that it will be an ornament of grace unto their head, and chains around their neck.

Gracious God, we praise thee for the calls of wisdom, and the invitations of mercy, we have now read. God, enable us to accept those gracious invitations. Lord, enable us to turn at thy reproof, and receive from Christ's hand his righteousness as the foundation of our hope, and his laws as the rule of our life.

Lord, have mercy on Gospel despisers, particularly such as are related to us by the ties of nature and of blood. O convince them that a continued and impenitent rejection of Christ must be followed by the miseries of hell.

We thank thee for the mercies of the night, and implore thy blessing to rest upon us this day. Mercifully hear our supplications, and forgive our sins, for the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S REIGN.

Kerwell. Crown Chapel. James.

a. m.

- 1 WHY did the nations join to slay
The Lord's anointed Son?
Why did they cast his laws away,
And tread his Gospel down?
- 2 The Lord that sits above the skies,
Derides their rage below:
He speaks with vengeance in his eyes,
And strikes their spirits through.
- 3 I call him my eternal Son,
And raise him from the dead;
I make my holy hill his throne,
And wide his kingdom spread.
- 4 Ask me, my Son, and then enjoy
The utmost heathen lands:
Thy rod of iron shall destroy
The rebel that withstands.

Watts, Ps. 2.

2 THESSALONIANS I.

Blessedness of Christ's Friends, and the destruction of his Foes.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 Grace unto you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all toward each other aboundeth;

4 So that we ourselves glory in you in the churches of God for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure:

5 Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye also suffer:

6 Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you;

7 And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels,

8 In flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ:

9 Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power;

10 When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day.

11 Wherefore also we pray always for you, that our God would count you worthy of this calling, and fulfil all the good pleasure of his goodness, and the work of faith with power:

12 That the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 THESS. I.—Sacred, intimate, inseparable, and eternal, is the union subsisting betwixt Christ and his Church: he is in them, and they are in him. How encouraging to his disciples were the following words, which he addressed to them a short while before his death: "At that day ye shall know that I am in the Father, and ye in me, and I in you." Let us think with admiration on God, the God of salvation, the overflowing fountain of mercy, whence blessings flow infinitely sufficient for all the redeemed on earth, and for all the glorified saints in heaven, throughout the endless ages of eternity. Holy parents look with peculiar delight upon their beloved offspring when they are growing in grace; holy ministers are filled with peculiar emotions of thankfulness and joy when they look upon the churches committed to their care, and see that they resemble fruitful vineyards, well-watered gardens, and fields which the Lord hath blessed. O may the spiritual prosperity and fruitfulness of our families be near our hearts, and may our prayers be incessant and earnest, that the Holy Spirit by his influences may blow upon them; then the fragrant spices will flow out; then Christ will "come into his gardens, and eat his pleasant fruit."

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Lord God, sanctify the solemn and affecting truths we have now read; and, duly impressed with their importance, we would now draw near in the name of Christ, to present our evening prayer. With thy servant, may all of us have reason to say, It is good for us to draw near to God. Holy Spirit, enable us, in the exercise of a lively faith, to draw near to God; and O may we find the fulfilment of that promise, If ye draw nigh to God, he will draw nigh to you.

We present our tribute of praise for the temporal and spiritual mercies we have this day received. May the sins and infirmities with which we are chargeable be forgiven, and the pollutions of our souls washed away by the Saviour's blood. We seek the fatherly protection of our God and Saviour this night. May we confidently believe that, when awake or asleep, we are encompassed with the gracious arms of our redeeming God. This blessing we supplicate, not only for ourselves, but for all in whom we are interested and to whom we are related. May our relation be spiritual as well as natural; then our bond of union shall not be destroyed by death, but continue through endless ages, amid the joyful blessedness of heaven.

We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as our God and Father. As an evidence that we are thy children, may grace be unto us, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus, thou Divine head of thy Church, thou blessed fountain of all grace, give us, we humbly pray, a lively faith in thee, and in all the doctrines and promises of the everlasting Gospel. Grant that we may not only possess faith, but may our faith grow exceedingly; and may our love toward each other abound. In all the tribulations we are called to endure, may we be invigorated with patience and faith, believing that by an interest in the righteousness of Christ, and by the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit, we shall be counted worthy of the kingdom of God. In the midst of all the troubles of life, may we be comforted with the animating prospect of that rest which remains for the people of God, and which shall be enjoyed in the fullest and most glorious extent when Christ shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels.

O that our fellowship with our beloved children may not be confined to the present life. Give them grace to receive Jesus as their Saviour and Lord; then we shall have the pleasing hope of living together through eternity in heaven.

Lord Jesus, look with mercy on thine hardened and impenitent foes. Bring them under the preaching of thy Gospel, and persuade them to lay down their weapons of rebellion, and no longer to continue the presumptuous struggle of fighting against Christ, and resisting the invitations of his Gospel. O affect them with the thought that, if they will not submit to thee as a Saviour, thou wilt appear against them as a destroyer, and take vengeance on all who know not God, and obey not the Gospel of his Son.

Mercifully hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thine unworthy petitioners, for Jesus' sake, our great Intercessor. Amen.

CHRIST OUR WISDOM.

Bradley. Charity. Winchester.

L. M.

- 1 BURIED in shadows of the night
We lie till Christ restores the light;
Wisdom descends to heal the blind,
And chase the darkness of the mind.
- 2 Our guilty souls are drowned in tears
Till his atoning blood appears;
Then we awake from deep distress,
And sing, The Lord our righteousness.
- 3 Our very frame is mixed with sin,
His Spirit makes our natures clean;
Such virtues from his sufferings flow,
At once to cleanse and pardon too.
- 4 Jesus beholds where Satan reigns,
Binding his slaves in heavy chains;
He sets the prisoners free, and breaks
The iron bondage from our necks.

Watts, 97, B. 1.

PROVERBS III.

Wisdom.

MY son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments:

2 For length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee.

8 Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart:

4 So shalt thou find favour and good understanding in the sight of God and man.

18 Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding.

14 For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

15 She is more precious than rubies: and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her.

16 Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honour.

17 Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

18 She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her: and happy is every one that retaineth her.

19 The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens.

20 By his knowledge the depths are broken up, and the clouds drop down the dew.

21 My son, let not them depart from thine eyes: keep sound wisdom and discretion:

22 So shall they be life unto thy soul, and grace to thy neck.

23 Then shalt thou walk in thy way safely, and thy foot shall not stumble.

24 When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid: yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet.

25 Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh.

26 For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken.

35 The wise shall inherit glory: but shame shall be the promotion of fools.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. III.—Blessed are those memories which are stored with Divine truth, and blessed is that heart on which the laws of heaven are inscribed by the power of the Holy Ghost. Religion not only brings from her treasures blessings for the soul, but often prevents the body from becoming the victim of disease; yea, even prolongs the life to a good old age. O how blessed is that long life which is adorned by the graces of piety, and which is sweetened by the consolations of religion! While the vain seek after the foolish ornaments of dress, let it be my desire to bind mercy and truth around my neck; then I shall be enriched by attainments which will survive the ruins of the grave, and shine like the brightness of the firmament for ever and ever. Rich is that man who is endued with those virtues and graces which not only secure the favour of the good and wise, but meet with the smiles and acceptance of God. Alas! because of the impiety of those who seek happiness in folly! Let Divine wisdom be my guide; then shall I be led to drink the waters of salvation, and be conducted at last to a celestial paradise, where grows the tree of life in all the beauty of eternal luxuriance.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah and God of salvation, thou art the only wise God, and with the piercing eye of thine omniscience thou dost behold every creature in thy vast dominions, and art perfectly acquainted with every particle of matter composing thy glorious universe. O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are thy judgments, and thy ways past finding out!

Divine Saviour, we adore thee as the wisdom of God. As God, equal with the Father and the Holy Spirit, thou art possessed of essential and uncreated wisdom; and as Mediator the spirit of the Most High doth rest upon thee, as a spirit of knowledge, of wisdom, and understanding. Even in the days of thy humbled humanity thou didst furnish many evidences of thine omniscience. Thou didst manifest a perfect knowledge of the thoughts of men. Thou hast a perfect and comprehensive knowledge of thine eternal Father. No man knoweth the Father, save the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.

To thee, O Jesus, our Mediator and Lord, we come for wisdom. May Christ be made of God unto us wisdom. In thee are hidden, O Immanuel, the treasures of wisdom and of knowledge; and may we receive, out of the treasures of thy wisdom, that saving intelligence and light by which we shall be led into Divine truth, and by which we shall be guided with honour and with safety to those heavenly regions where we shall for ever behold, and admire, and enjoy, the glory of thy Divine person.

We thank thee for the mercies of the night, and for the opportunity now enjoyed of approaching the mercy-seat, and casting ourselves upon the Divine and fatherly protection of the Lord our God. Watch over us this day, and may that promise be accomplished in our experience: I will guide thee with mine eye.

Bless to us the sacred and seasonable truths we have now read. We thank thee for thy wise and holy laws. Teach us to love them as the expression of thy will, and give us grace diligently to obey them. Suffer us not to place any dependence on our obedience as a ground of pardon and acceptance. Preserve us from the folly of going about to establish our own righteousness, not submitting to the righteousness of Christ. Lord, give us saving, sanctifying, practical wisdom.

Convince our dear children and domestics of the infinite importance, benefit, and blessedness of Divine wisdom. O Jesus, take them into thy school; then shall they learn invaluable lessons for time and eternity.

Have mercy on our aged friends. Thou hast given them the experience of years: O give them the wisdom of salvation. Have mercy on the aged who are living in the folly of sin. Before their short life terminates, O do thou open their eyes to see the infinite importance of Divine things; and may they lay hold on wisdom, which is a tree of life to all that receive it.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, thy Son and our Advocate. Amen.

PRAISE FOR SALVATION.

Harmony. Ignatius. Sussex. Hanover.

P. M.

- 1 OUR Saviour alone, the Lord, let us bless,
Who reigns on his throne the prince of our peace;
Who evermore saves us by shedding his blood;
All hail, holy Jesus, our Lord and our God.
- 2 We thankfully sing thy glory and praise,
Thou merciful spring of pity and grace;
Thy kindness for ever to men we will tell,
And say, Our dear Saviour redeems us from hell!
- 3 Preserve us in love while here we abide:
O never remove thy presence, nor hide
Thy glorious salvation, till each of us see
With joy the blessed vision completed in thee.

A. M.

2 THESSALONIANS II.

Antichrist and Salvation.

NOW we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our gathering together unto him,

2 That ye be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word, nor by letter as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand.

3 Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition;

4 Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God.

5 Remember ye not, that, when I was yet with you, I told you these things?

6 And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time.

7 For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way.

8 And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming:

9 Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders,

10 And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved.

11 And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie:

12 That they all might be condemned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.

13 But we are bound to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth:

14 Whereunto he called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epistle.

16 Now our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God, even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every good word and work.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 THESS. II.—When the graces of the Spirit are in lively exercise, the prospect of Christ's glorious appearance at the judgment-day fills the heart of the believer with confidence and joy. And abundant reason he has to rejoice: for then he shall be acknowledged and acquitted before an assembled universe by the Judge of all; then he shall sit upon the right hand of him who controls the destinies of the countless myriads of his intelligent subjects; then the following sentence will be pronounced on all the redeemed multitude, and which all their enemies shall hear distinctly with envy and disappointment, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." O what extraordinary events shall take place in our world before the arrival of that day, that august, that solemn day! Already, as foretold, men bearing the name of Christ, and declaring themselves the depositories of the Word of God, and the oracles of Divine truth, have usurped honours and claimed titles due to Christ alone. Already the mystery of iniquity has appeared; for ages it has darkened the firmament of the Church. But that mystery shall pass away like a cloud—like a dream—like a vision of the night. The darkness which has long hovered over the nations shall be removed, and exchanged for the bright shining of a glorious millennial day. Let us earnestly pray for the arrival of that period of holiness, blessedness, and peace.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, at the close of another day, and after the gracious protection and kindness we have received, we desire, with gratitude and joy, to draw near unto thee as the hope of Israel, and the Saviour thereof in the day of trouble. There is no Saviour beside thee. Thou who art the living God, art the Saviour of all men, and especially of them who believe.

Lord, we confess our sinfulness and unworthiness. We have not been sufficiently impressed with Divine truth; and the predictions of a judgment-day, and the future appearance of Christ, have failed to produce on our minds those solemn and practical effects which our hearts and lives ought to have exhibited. We are greatly chargeable with insensibility of heart. Lord, deliver us from this dangerous malady, and may we feel more than ever the importance of Divine things, the value of the soul, and the necessity of an interest in the righteousness of Christ, without which we can never obtain an honourable and blessed acquittal at the judgment-day. Lord, give us that faith in Christ, that confidence in God as our Father, and those assured hopes of heaven as our home, which will enable us to meditate on the coming of Christ with emotions of joy and not of terror.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all thy mysterious dealings, in permitting the opposition which has been made in various ages to thy Church. We bless thee that this opposition has been clearly foretold. Gracious King of Zion, thou hast wise reasons for permitting the antichrist of superstition, of idolatry, of error, of temporal aggrandisement, of pride, of worldly policy and persecution, to assail thy Church. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight. Glory to thy great name that these various formidable appearances of antichrist shall not continue, and that there is a day approaching when all these forms shall be consumed with the breath of thy mouth and the brightness of thy coming. Lord, hasten that blessed day.

Suffer not our children to join the ranks of those who are professedly opposed to the Gospel and the Church of Christ. God forbid that they should bring upon themselves the dreadful doom of the enemies of Christ.

Impress our minds, O Lord, deeply with the thought, that every unbeliever is an antichrist. Prevent any of us from falling into the delusion, that to believe or not to believe is a mere matter of indifference, and not affecting our eternal safety; seeing thou hast said that they shall be condemned who believe not the truth, but take pleasure in unrighteousness. That God may be honoured, and that such a calamity may be prevented, may all of us, and all our relatives, be effectually called by the Gospel to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Mercifully watch over us this night, hear our imperfect prayers; and may God, even our Father who hath loved us, comfort our hearts, and establish us in every good word and work. Bless this sacred ordinance and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CORRUPT NATURE FROM ADAM.

Colchester. Chadwell. Liverpool.

c. n.

- 1 BLESSED with the joy of innocence
Adam, our father, stood,
Till he debased his soul to sense,
And ate the unlawful food.
- 2 Now we are born a sensual race,
To sinful joys inclined;
Reason has lost its native place,
And flesh enslaves the mind.
- 3 While flesh, and sense, and passion reigns,
Sin is the sweetest good:
No fancy music in our chains,
And so forget the load.
- 4 Great God, renew our ruined frame,
Our broken powers restore,
Inspire us with a heavenly flame,
And flesh shall reign no more.

WATTS, 128, B. 11.

PROVERBS V.

The Foolish Woman.

- MY son, attend unto my wisdom, and bow thine ear to my understanding:
- 2 That thou mayest regard discretion, and that thy lips may keep knowledge.
  - 3 For the lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb, and her mouth is smoother than oil:
  - 4 But her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two-edged sword.
  - 5 Her feet go down to death, her steps take hold on hell.
  - 6 Lest thou shouldest ponder the path of life, her ways are moveable, that thou canst not know them.
  - 7 Hear me now therefore, O ye children, and depart not from the words of my mouth.
  - 8 Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the door of her house:
  - 9 Lest thou give thine honour unto others, and thy years unto the cruel:
  - 10 Lest strangers be filled with thy wealth; and thy labours be in the house of a stranger;
  - 11 And thou mourn at the last, when thy flesh and thy body are consumed,
  - 12 And say, How have I hated instruction, and my heart despised reproof;
  - 13 And have not obeyed the voice of my teachers, nor inclined mine ear to them that instructed me!
  - 14 I was almost in all evil in the midst of the congregation and assembly.
  - 22 His own iniquities shall take the wicked himself, and he shall be holden with the cords of his sins.
  - 23 He shall die without instruction; and in the greatness of his folly he shall go astray.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. V.—It is well not only to admire the intrinsic excellence of gracious wisdom, but highly to value the unspeakable blessings which follow in its train. How desirable is that Divine friend whose counsels preserve the young from those delusive snares of youthful lusts, which have done greater havoc among the sons of men than the cruelty of war or the ravages of pestilence! Let daughters commit themselves to the care of Christ, then they shall be preserved from the foulest blots which can degrade the reputation or deface the beauty of the soul; and let sons surrender their hearts to Christ, then they shall not be left to fall before the temptations of the strange woman, whose feet go down to death, and whose steps take hold of hell. How short-lived, how unprofitable, how unsatisfying, yea, how destructive, are the pleasures of sin! The wages of sin is death. O how miserable the life of the wicked!—he is held by the cords of his sins. And how affecting his death!—he dies without wisdom, and under the load of unpardoned guilt. Great is the infatuation of those who are determined on seeking after carnal, earthly, unhallowed pleasures. They are deliberately binding themselves with fetters, the badges of an ignoble captivity. "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return to the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him."

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Father, thou art infinitely and inconceivably holy. Thou art not a God that hast pleasure in wickedness, neither shall evil dwell with thee. Thou canst not be tempted with evil, neither temptest thou any man. Thy name is holy; holy and reverend is thy name. Thy throne is holy; thou sittest upon the throne of thy holiness. Thy heaven is holy; and thou wilt hear the prayers of thy people from thy holy heaven and thou wilt deliver them from their enemies by the saving strength of thy right hand.

We acknowledge that we were made at first holy beings, pure and spotless like thyself; but, alas! our whole race is defiled and debased by sin. The whole head is sick, the whole heart is faint. The defilement of sin is ancient; and we confess that it is as extensive and wide as the habitations of men.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the very humiliating account we have now read of those who are the subjects of sin and the slaves of lust. Truly the gold has become dim, and the most fine gold changed. We lament, O Lord, with shame and confusion, that so many of that part of our species formed to reflect the brightest virtues, and to display the most comely excellences, are so debased by sin and infatuated by lust, as deliberately to form plans for leading astray multitudes of the rising race, and ultimately conducting them to temporal ruin and to eternal destruction. Convince the young and rising race of the unspeakable danger of listening to the voice of temptation. May they feel convinced that the lips of the alluring and tempting flatterer, though they drop as the honeycomb, will in the end prove more bitter than wormwood, yea, sharp as a two-edged sword. O preserve them from those tempters whose feet go down to death, and whose steps take hold on hell.

Blessed Saviour, may we never have reason to mourn and weep over any of our dear children, for having become the voluntary victims of that unhallowed pleasure which, if not repented of, is invariably followed by the alarming miseries of hell. O God, prevent such a doom!

We confess, O Lord, the strong desires of our heart after forbidden and sinful pleasures. We lay our diseased souls at thy feet; Lord, heal us. Look down upon our corrupted desires, our fleshly passions, our debasing lusts, and destroy them before our eyes. Those enemies which have murdered myriads, O suffer them not to destroy us. Give us thy Spirit; fill our hearts with thy grace; then shall we triumph over all our lusts, and at last be presented by our Divine Redeemer pure and spotless before the throne of our heavenly King.

Have mercy on all who are the slaves of lusts and the voluntary servants of Satan. Lord, convert them by thy grace, and may the day never arrive when they shall mourn at the last, and say, Our flesh and body are consumed, and our souls are lost for ever.

We thank our God for the mercies of the night, and that we have now been permitted to approach the throne of God. In all we do this day, teach us to seek the honour of thy name; and in the strength of grace to resist every temptation. All we supplicate is for the sake of Christ, to whom be ascribed glory, honour, and power, now and ever. Amen.

SAINT INDEED.

Psalm. Wiltaher New. Michael's.

C. M.

- 1 HAPPY the man whose cautious steps
Still keep the golden mean;
Whose life, by wisdom's rules well formed,
Declares a conscience clean.
- 2 To sect or party his large soul
Disdains to be confined:
The good he loves of every name,
And prays for all mankind.
- 3 Pure is his zeal, the offspring fair
Of truth and heavenly love;
The bigot's rage can never dwell
Where rests the peaceful dove.
- 4 Not on the world his heart is set,
His treasure is above;
Nothing beneath the sovereign good
Can claim his highest love.

NEEDHAM.

2 THESSALONIANS III.

The Apostle's wise Counsels.

FINALLY, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you:

- 2 And that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men: for all men have not faith.
- 3 But the Lord is faithful, who shall stablish you, and keep you from evil.
- 4 And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things which we command you.
- 5 And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ.
- 6 Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us.
- 7 For yourselves know how ye ought to follow us: for we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you;
- 8 Neither did we eat any man's bread for nought; but wrought with labour and travail night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you:
- 9 Not because we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us.
- 10 For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat.
- 11 For we bear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busybodies.
- 12 Now them that are such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread.
- 13 But ye, brethren, be not weary in well doing.
- 14 And if any man obey not our word by this epistle, note that man, and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed.
- 15 Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.
- 16 Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace always by all means. The Lord be with you all.
- 17 The salutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epistle: so I writc.
- 18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 THESS. III.—The success of the Gospel is always preceded and accompanied by fervent prayer. The Psalmist was deeply and powerfully impressed with this truth, when he said and sung, "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee," and "Prayer shall be made for him continually, and daily shall he be praised." Men who oppose the progress of the truth, are the servants of the wicked one; they are animated by his spirit, and, if mercy prevent not, they must be sharers with him in his endless misery and eternal woe. Such is the power God has given to the devout and believing prayers of his people, that all human impediments in the way of the progress of Divine truth shall be removed; and though lofty as the hills, shall be levelled with the dust. God's mercy and faithfulness are to his people, "the munition of rocks." This is the security of their continuance in a state of grace, and of their introduction at last into a state of glory. Mercy is abundant in the promises of spiritual blessings; and faithfulness gives the believer the assured confidence that all these promises shall be amply and honourably fulfilled. May such promises be our inheritance, the ground of our faith, the foundation of our hope, and the fountain of our joy!

PRAYER.

FATHER of mercies, thou art the faithful God, and thou wilt not allow one word thou hast promised to fall to the ground. Thou art a God of truth and without iniquity; just and right art thou. While thou art merciful and gracious, thou art abundant in truth. All thy paths are mercy and truth to such as keep thy covenant and thy testimonies. O fulfil in our experience that blessed promise, His truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

We thank our God for every instance of thy kindness to us this day; and that thou hast not withholden from us those temporal comforts which are essential to our very being. And we praise the God of all mercy that we are not prohibited from enjoying the greatest of all honours, and the most distinguished of all privileges, that of approaching the throne of grace, and enjoying fellowship with a redeeming God. Vouchsafe to us this night, gracious God, rest and sleep for those bodies that shall soon rest in the grave; and grant refreshing repose to these minds of ours, which shall exist for ever in a state of the greatest activity in the world that is to come.

Bless to us the word of wisdom and of truth which we have now been privileged to read; and may our minds be filled with that grace by which we shall be disposed and enabled to yield a ready and loving obedience to those salutary and inspired precepts to which we have now listened.

We thank thee for the ministers of Christ. Lord, bless them, and may they be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men: for all men have not faith. We thank thee, O King of Zion, that mortal lips are employed to proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. We pray that the Word of the Lord may have free course wherever it is proclaimed, and be abundantly glorified.

Lord, impart saving grace to each member of this family, and may we all be established in the faith, and be kept from evil. Lord, direct our hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ. Our hearts were formed to love thee: O fill them with thy love. Let that sacred flame be enkindled in our hearts, and let it continue within us in great strength till the close of life; and when we fall asleep in death, may our souls be elevated to those regions of purity where the love of God shall shine in the heart with greater glory than the sun in its strength.

Preserve our children from the sin of idleness. May they neither be idle in the business of time, nor in the objects of eternity. Preserve them from that spiritual idleness which never fails to cover the soul with the loathsome rags of sin.

Let none of us be weary in well-doing. May we ardently love the service of God, and continue in it with humility and diligence all our days. Give us wisdom to withdraw from those who walk disorderly; and may the Lord of peace himself give us peace always by all means, for Jesus' sake. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

SPIRITUAL SLOTH.

Worcester. Serenity. Pollett.

- 1 MY drowsy powers, why sleep ye,
Awake, my sluggish soul!
Nothing has half thy work to do,
Yet nothing's half so dull.
- 2 The little ants for one poor grain
Labour, and tug, and strive;
Yet we who have a heaven to obtain,
How negligent we live!
- 3 We for whom God the Son came down,
And laboured for our good,
How careless to secure that crown
He purchased with his blood! WATTS, 25, B. II.

PROVERBS VI.

Slothfulness.

- MY son, if thou be surety for thy friend, if thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger,
2 Thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth.
3 Do this now, my son, and deliver thyself, when thou art come into the hand of thy friend; go, humble thyself, and make sure thy friend.
4 Give not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber to thine eyelids.
5 Deliver thyself as a roe from the hand of the hunter, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler.
6 Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise:
7 Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler,
8 Provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest.
9 How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?
10 Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep;
11 So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man.
12 A naughty person, a wicked man, walketh with a froward mouth.
15 Therefore shall his calamity come suddenly: suddenly shall he be broken without remedy.
16 These six things doth the Lord hate; yea, seven are an abomination unto him:
17 A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood,
18 An heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, 19 A false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren.
20 My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother:
21 Bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck.
22 When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou awakest, it shall talk with thee.
24 To keep thee from the evil woman, from the flattery of the tongue of a strange woman.
25 Lust not after her beauty in thine heart; neither let her take thee with her eyelids.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. VI.—Suretyship engagements have involved multitudes in ruin; and Christ's suretyship engagements for a lost world brought him to the dust of death. We are forbidden to become surety for friends; but Jesus, by an act of unparalleled mercy, became surety for enemies. When we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. O with what diligence we should engage in the service of Christ!

From this day, let us take shame to ourselves for our most culpable neutrality, indifference, and indolence. The example of the ant should arouse us to diligence, and at the same time humble us in the dust, that an insect should be more active in its lowly station than we are in the service of God. We should conscientiously examine ourselves, whether we love what God loves, and hate what God hates. May the Holy Spirit communicate to our souls Divine grace; then we shall be conformed to the Divine likeness. Blessed are those children who keep the instructions of their parents: while others sink into degradation and misery, they live in honour and comfort; and at death join the spirits of the just in the abode of peace.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in drawing near to thy throne in the name of Christ, we desire, with humility and joy, to acknowledge that we are thine. Thou art the Maker of all things, and therefore thou hast an infinite right to dispose of all that thou hast made. For thy pleasure and for thine honour they are and were created. Thy hands fashioned us; and we rejoice that we were made rational and immortal beings, and that we were not formed among the fowls of the air or the beasts of the field. And while the hand of thine omnipotence created us, the hand of thy gracious providence has constantly maintained us, and abundantly supplied our wants. O what claims, what powerful claims thou hast upon us for our gratitude, love, and praise! As we are thy natural workmanship, O make us thy spiritual workmanship, created anew in Christ Jesus unto righteousness and true holiness. Thou hast formed us for thyself, to show forth thy praise; give us thy Spirit, then we shall live every day to thy glory, as we live every day upon thy bounty.

We thank our God that we have been mercifully preserved during the past night, and that we have been graciously permitted to hold fellowship with God in the reading of the Word of life, where thou art as really addressing us as if we heard thy voice calling upon us from the skies. We thank thee that in what we have read we have been drinking of the waters of Divine wisdom.

Give us grace to follow the wholesome counsels of thy wisdom to which we have now listened. Preserve us from rash, foolish, and dangerous engagements. May we not become surety in cases that may give little or no assistance to our friend, and which may involve ourselves and our family in temporal ruin. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst become surety for a fallen, sinful world. Thou, O Saviour, didst smart for thy suretyship engagements. In fulfilling thine engagements, thou didst encounter the wrath of thy Father, the enmity of devils, and the infuriated rage of men. O what wondrous love! Thou didst endure sorrows, agonies, and death. O what wondrous grace!

Lord, preserve us from the sin of spiritual slothfulness; and may we learn from the ANT: may we carefully consider her ways, and be wise. While the summer of opportunities and privileges continues, O may we diligently seek thy heavenly grace, which will prepare us for the wintry evening of human life; yea, which will prepare us for the realities of the eternal world. Have mercy on such of us as are spiritually asleep, and such of our relatives and friends as are in this state. Say to them by thy spirit, How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? when wilt thou awake out of sleep?

Enable our dear children to keep their father's commandment, and not to forsake the law of their mother: may they bind them upon their heart, and tie them about their neck.

Give us thy counsel and presence this day, and suffer us not to fall before the power of temptation. Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father, and Divine Spirit, we would ascribe glory and majesty, for ever and ever. Amen.

GOSPEL WORTHY OF ALL ACCEPTATION.

Arundel, Hanover Chapel, Irish.

L. K.

- 1 JESUS, the eternal Son of God,
Whom seraphim obey,
The bosom of the Father leaves,
And enters human clay.
- 2 Into our sinful world he comes,
The messenger of grace,
And on the bloody tree expires,
A victim in our place.
- 3 Transgressors of the deepest stain
In him salvation find:
His blood removes the foulest guilt,
His Spirit heals the mind.

GIBBONS.

I TIMOTHY I.

Paul's wonderful Conversion.

PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the commandment of God our Saviour, and Lord Jesus Christ, which is our hope;

2 Unto Timothy, my own son in the faith: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God our Father, and Jesus Christ our Lord.

3 As I besought thee to abide still at Ephesus, when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some that they teach no other doctrine, 4 Neither give heed to fables and endless genealogies, which minister questions, rather than godly edifying which is in faith: so do.

5 Now the end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned:

6 From which some having swerved have turned aside unto vain jangling;

7 Desiring to be teachers of the law; understanding neither what they say, nor whereof they affirm.

8 But we know that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully;

9 Knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manslayers;

11 According to the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust.

12 And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry;

13 Who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief.

14 And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

15 This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.

16 Howbeit for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might shew forth all longsuffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting.

17 Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

18 This charge I commit unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mightest war a good warfare;

19 Holding faith, and a good conscience; which some having put away concerning faith have made shipwreck:

20 Of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander; whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they may learn not to blaspheme.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 TIM. I.—Genuine ministers of Christ are introduced into their sacred office by a Divine and gracious call; fulfil its duties according to a Divine command; and perform its functions in humble dependence on Divine and promised strength. Unspeakably great is the honour which God confers upon his faithful ambassadors: he makes them spiritual fathers, as instruments in the regeneration of sinners, and he warms their hearts with a holy, ardent affection to their spiritual offspring. The Gospel is a system of love; and love fills the heart of those who feel its saving power. If we compare the Gospel to a casket, love is the inestimable jewel which this casket contains; if we compare it to a fountain, love is the copious stream which flows from this fountain; if we compare it to the firmament, love is the sun which fills this sky with its brightness. Let us therefore admire the Gospel as the gift of Divine love, as making the riches of Divine love known, and as the blessed mean by which Divine love is communicated to the hearts of the adopted children of God.

PRAYER.

WE praise thee, O Hearer of prayer, and God of salvation, that, after the business and cares and temptations of the day, we are allowed as a family to separate ourselves from the world, and hold intercourse with thyself in the exercise of domestic worship. Holy Spirit, thou knowest our infirmities: O help us to pray. Blessed Jesus, we adore thee as our almighty Creator, and as our Divine Saviour. Thou art our glorious hope. We praise thee that as our hope thou art within the veil, and that we have every encouragement to place all our expectations on thee, and that thou wilt take us at last to thyself, to enjoy in thy presence the pure delights of immortality. Triune Jehovah, we adore thee as the King eternal, immortal, and invisible, the only wise God; and to thee we would ascribe honour and glory, for ever and ever.

We thank a gracious Providence for the blessings of the past day. O Lord, give us the satisfying evidence that we are thy children; then shall we be able to look on all our mercies, whether temporal or spiritual, as new covenant blessings.

While we humbly seek the gracious continuance of all those temporal mercies which thou seest meet for us, we would earnestly seek for spiritual mercies, which are essentially necessary to fit us for thy glory, and to secure our eternal felicity in the life that is to come. May grace, mercy, and peace be to us, and to all our relatives and friends, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. Give us, O Lord, an increasing love to thy law; and may we esteem it sweeter to our taste than honey to our mouth. Lord, give us thy Spirit, that we may walk in the way of holiness, faith, and love. O Jesus! thou art the Witness, the Leader, and the Commander of thy people. Under thy guidance and protection, may we successfully pursue our course in this straight, safe, and honourable way, until at last we reach our heavenly home, and enjoy that rest which remains for the people of God.

Lord, have mercy on the multitudes in our land who are lawless, disobedient, unholy, and profane; who are living in a state of habitual opposition to thy holy law: O bring them under the saving influence of the Gospel of Christ.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the astonishing conversion of Saul of Tarsus, and that he has left on record these remarkable words: This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief. Lord, we are sinners; we are the chief of sinners: Jesus, thou chief of saviours, thou only saviour, be thou the saviour of our souls.

Open the eyes of our dear children and domestics to see that they are sinners; and open their hearts to receive Christ the Saviour.

O that all of us may be enabled to say, and soon to say, We have obtained mercy. Graciously accept our persons, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

HEAVENLY WISDOM.

Auburn. Israel. Cambridge New.

C. H.

- 1 O HAPPY is the man who hears
Instruction's warning voice;
And who celestial wisdom makes
His early, only choice.
- 2 For she has treasures greater far
Than east to west unfold,
And her reward is more secure
Than is the gain of gold.
- 3 She guides the young with innocence
In pleasure's paths to tread;
A crown of glory she bestows
Upon the hoary head.
- 4 According as her labours rise,
So her rewards increase;
Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
And all her paths are peace.

LOGAN.

PROVERBS VIII.

Christ the Wisdom of God.

DOOTH not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice?

- 2 She standeth in the top of high places, by the way in the places of the paths.
- 3 She crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors.
- 4 Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man.
- 5 O ye simple, understand wisdom: and, ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart.
- 6 Hear; for I will speak of excellent things; and the opening of my lips shall be right things.
- 7 For my mouth shall speak truth: and wickedness is an abomination to my lips.
- 8 All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing froward or perverse in them.
- 9 They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.
- 10 Receive my instruction, and not silver: and knowledge, rather than choice gold.
- 11 For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.
- 12 I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions.
- 13 The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way, and the froward mouth, do I hate.
- 14 Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom: I am understanding: I have strength.
- 15 By me kings reign, and princes decree justice.
- 16 By me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth.
- 17 I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me.
- 18 Riches and honour are with me; yea, durable riches and righteousness.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. VIII.—Christ is the wisdom of God. In him are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. How wise is Jesus, who inspired those men by whom the Word of God was written! How wise is Jesus, who illuminates the Church militant and triumphant, who gives wisdom to angels, and who is the glory of heaven! Amazing condescension!—Christ calls on the sons of men by his word, and in the preaching of the Gospel by his ministers, to come and receive from the hands of his mercy the rich blessings of his salvation! My soul, fall down prostrate at his feet, and pray, "Lord Jesus, have mercy on me a sinner!" How inestimably precious are the doctrines of the Gospel! Those are the excellent things which drop as the honeycomb. Insignificant is the power of the greatest of earthly rulers compared with Christ's. Their authority is derived and perishing; but the reign of Jesus is essential, underived, and eternal. Blessed Jesus, I acknowledge thee as my king: reign over me for ever and ever. If Christ be the object of our love, then we may conclude that we are the objects of his love. There is no flower so lovely, or so delightful in its fragrance, as early piety. And what encouragement have the young to seek Jesus? They have the assured promise that they shall find him as their Saviour and their All.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we would with humility draw near to thy throne, under a deep impression of thy wisdom and our folly, of thy knowledge and our ignorance. O that each one of us may feel the practical and sanctifying effects of thine omniscience. Thou art a God of knowledge, and by thee actions are weighed. Thine understanding is infinite. There is no searching of thine understanding. Thou that hast planted the ear, shalt thou not hear? thou that hast formed the eye, shalt thou not see? and thou that teachest man knowledge, shalt thou not know?

O Jesus, we adore thee as the wisdom of God. From thee ancient prophets received all their acquaintance with Divine things, and their knowledge of future events. From thee apostles and evangelists received all that information, wisdom, and grace, by which they were qualified to be the heralds of salvation to a pagan, a corrupted, and a benighted world.

We bless thee for the calls and invitations of wisdom in the everlasting Gospel. Adored be thy mercy, that wisdom doth not only call, but cry. When the invitations of mercy are delivered, in the preaching of the everlasting Gospel, O incline the hearers of the Gospel to listen to the calls of wisdom, and to accept of the rich and kind invitations which are addressed to them by the voice of mercy. We lament that in a land of Gospel light, so few enter the sanctuary of God, where mercy is proclaimed; and we lament that so few of those who attend thy courts believe the joyful sound. Convince us, O Lord, of the infinite importance of hearing, believing, and accepting the invitations and calls of mercy. May we love the excellent things which the lips of mercy make known; and may we believe the right things which mercy reveals. O we thank thee for the clearness and simplicity of the Gospel, by which it is suited to the young as well as the old, to the child as well as the man of hoary hairs, to the unlearned as well as the wise, and to the bond as well as the free. We bless thee that the Gospel is plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge. O teach us to prefer the glorious doctrines of the Gospel, and the blessings of salvation, before silver; may they be in our estimation more valuable than rubies; and may we ever believe that all the things that the heart of man can desire are not to be compared unto them.

Divine Saviour, we adore thee in thine essential government, and in thy mediatorial dominion. It is by thee kings reign, and princes decree justice; it is by thee princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth. O reign spiritually over our hearts as individuals, over all the families with which we are connected, and over our land.

Impress on the hearts of our children, with saving power, that most encouraging promise: I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the night, and give us grace to glorify thee in the faithful discharge of the duties of the day. Hear our imperfect supplications, forgive our aggravated offences, for the sake of Jesus, our mediator and lawgiver. Amen.

GOD WITH US.

Elim Chapel. Orange. Turin.

P. M.

- 1 GOD with us! O glorious name!
Let it shine in endless fame:
God and man in Christ unite:—
O mysterious depth and height!
- 2 God with us! amazing love
Brought him from his courts above;
Now, ye saints, his grace admire,
Swell the song with holy fire.
- 3 God with us! O blissful theme!
Let the impious not blasphemic;
Jesus shall in judgment sit,
Dooming rebels to the pit.
- 4 God with us! O wondrous grace!
Let us see him face to face,
That we may Immanuel sing,
As we ought our God and King.

ANON.

1 TIMOTHY III.

Qualifications of Pastors.

THIS is a true saying, If a man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work.

2 A bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach;

3 Not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient, not a brawler, not covetous;

4 One that ruleth well his own house, having his children in subjection with all gravity;

5 (For if a man knew not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?)

6 Not a novice, lest being lifted up with pride he fall into the condemnation of the devil.

7 Moreover he must have a good report of them which are without; lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil.

8 Likewise must the deacons be grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre;

9 Holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience.

10 And let these also first be proved; then let them use the office of a deacon, being found blameless.

11 Even so must their wives be grave, not slanderers, sober, faithful in all things.

12 Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houses well.

13 For they that have used the office of a deacon well purchase to themselves a good degree, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

14 These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly:

15 But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth.

16 And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 TIM. III.—The office of the ministry is peculiarly sacred and holy, appointed for the most holy purposes and ends. How necessary that they who sustain this office should be filled with the Holy Spirit, and richly adorned by Divine grace! Christ's faithful ministers keep themselves unspotted from the world: they live above carnal, earthly pleasures; their conversation is in heaven; their lives are a commentary upon their sermons; they are living epistles, seen and read of all men. Their families are little churches; the voice of rejoicing and salvation is heard in their dwellings. They are clothed with humility. In their public instructions they avoid the foolish notions of men, and the tenets of what is falsely called science. Their object and their delight is to preach Christ and him crucified, to make known his unsearchable riches, and to proclaim his righteousness as the only foundation of a sinner's hope. Is this the character of a genuine minister of Christ? With what affectionate earnestness should we plead, in the language of the holy and devotional Psalmist, to whose heart the interests of the Church were so dear: "Clothe thy priests with salvation, then shall thy saints shout aloud for joy." May our hearts be filled with increasing wonder and love, when we think of the profound mysteries connected with the person of Christ, the work of Christ, the salvation he has accomplished, and the glory to which he is exalted as the reward of his obedience, sufferings, and death!

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we adore thee in all the mysteries of thine unsearchable essence, and in all the depths of thine unfathomable purposes. Glory to thy blessed name, that thou hast made known to us, through the everlasting Gospel, the mystery of the incarnation of Jesus, the second person of the Trinity, and thine only-begotten and well-beloved Son.

O teach us with genuine emotions of thankfulness, wonder, joy, and praise, to give utterance to the sublime and inspired language of the Apostle: And, without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory.

Exalted Saviour, we thank thee for becoming our surety, and undertaking our cause. If thou hadst not appeared for us, our situation had now been deplorable and desperate, like that of fallen angels. We thank thee that, to save the human race, thou didst take upon thee human nature. Eternal honours to thy name, that thou didst appear in Bethlehem's manger in the form of a feeble babe, and that the Church is now enabled to sing, Unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given. We rejoice, O Jesus, for the testimony given by the Spirit to the divinity of thy mission, in the miracles which proclaimed that thou wast indeed the promised Messiah; and in thy resurrection from the dead, which declared with power that thou art the Son of God. We praise thee that the glorious tidings of thine incarnation, obedience, death, righteousness, and triumphs, were not confined to the Jews, but that the blessed news are communicated to Gentile nations. Adored be the name of our God, that the heralds of salvation were sent to this our land, and that our ears, and the ears of our ancestors, in long distant ages, have heard the wonders of the Son of God taking upon him the nature of man, and dying for a sinful and miserable world.

Convince us that a mere knowledge of this fact will avail us nothing without faith. We rejoice that Christ has been believed on in the world. O may Jesus be believed on by us. Holy Spirit, teach us to believe that when Jesus hung upon the tree, our sins were there, and that he was wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities.

Lord, impart saving faith to our children. O enable them to obey that most merciful invitation, Look unto me, and be ye saved, for I am God, and there is none else.

We pray for all thy ministers, of every name and denomination. Make them vigilant, sober, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach. Preserve them from every sinful indulgence, and from every unhallowed excess. Preserve them from covetousness, and make them patient in the time of suffering and trial. Lord, convert those ministers whose hearts are strangers to the Gospel they preach. O beautify and purify all the members and ministers of thy Church.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the day, and give us thy fatherly and protecting care this night. All we ask is through the intercession of our God and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

CHRIST THE WISDOM OF GOD.
Bradley Church. Kireal Moor. Peckham.

a. m.

- 1 SHALL wisdom cry aloud,
And not her speech be heard?
The voice of God's eternal Word,
Deserves it no regard?
- 2 "I was his chief delight,
His everlasting Son,
Before the first of all his works,
Creation, was begun.
- 3 "Upon the empty air
The earth was balanced well:
With joy I saw the mansion where
The sons of men should dwell.
- 4 "My busy thoughts at first
On their salvation ran,
Ere sin was born, or Adam's dust
Was fashioned to a man.
- 5 "Then come, receive my grace,
Ye children, and be wise;
Happy the man that keeps my ways;
The man that shuns them dies."

WATTS, 92, B. I.

PROVERBS VIII.
Christ the Wisdom of God.

MY fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver.

20 I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment:

21 That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures.

22 The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old.

23 I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was.

24 When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water.

25 Before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth:

26 While as yet he had not made the earth, nor the fields, nor the highest part of the dust of the world.

27 When he prepared the heavens, I was there: when he set a compass upon the face of the depth:

28 When he established the clouds above: when he strengthened the fountains of the deep:

29 When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment: when he appointed the foundations of the earth:

30 Then I was by him, as one brought up with him: and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him:

31 Rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth; and my delights were with the sons of men.

32 Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children: for blessed are they that keep my ways.

33 Hear instruction, and be wise, and refuse it not.

34 Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors.

35 For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord.

36 But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. VIII.—The fruits which grow upon the tree of wisdom are delicious to the spiritual taste, infinitely beneficial to the soul, and more to be valued than the richest of earthly treasures. How amazing to think of those plans of mercy, and of those purposes of salvation, which were contrived and formed for the deliverance of a fallen world, myriads of ages before the foundations of the earth were laid! The love of Christ to sinful men is ancient as eternity. As the delights of the Son of God from all eternity were with the sons of men, may Jesus ever be the delight of our soul, and may the heart be filled with a Divine and superlative regard. The true testimony of love to Christ is keeping his commandments and walking in his ways. How delightful it is to see the young, and the men of hoary hairs, walking in those ways of faith and obedience which at last lead to the abodes of the blest. How amiable, O Lord, are thy tabernacles! If we are found watching at the gates of Gospel ordinances on earth, we shall be found at last before the throne above, adoring worshippers of God and the Lamb.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, we adore thee as the only Lord God. We acknowledge thee in the eternity of thy being, and in the immutability of thy nature.

Exalted Saviour, we adore thee as God equal with the Father. From eternal ages thou didst exist with the Father, a sharer of all the blessedness and glory of uncreated Divinity. Before the mountains were settled, before the hills thou wast brought forth. When thy Divine Father prepared the heavens thou wast there. When he appointed the foundations of the earth, thou wast by him, as one brought up with him. Glory to thy name, that in those periods of eternal antiquity thou didst rejoice in the habitable parts of the earth, and thy delights were with the sons of men. Hallelujahs of praise be for ever ascribed to thy name, that thou didst undertake our cause before the commencement of creation, and that in the fulness of time thou didst actually appear in our world in thy humbled humanity, to complete the purposes of eternal sovereignty and love.

We thank a gracious providence for the mercies of the past night and of this morning. We laid ourselves down upon our beds, and our sleep has been sweet. We thank thee that we have awoke in the land of the living and in the place of hope, and that we have not opened our eyes in the abodes of the lost and in the world of despair. We seek the countenance and assistance of our God in all the duties and engagements of this day. Give us that blessed frame and disposition of mind which will lead us, in all we do, to seek the glory of God.

We supplicate the blessing of God on what we have now read. Give us grace to relish the fruits of wisdom, and may we consider them better than gold; yea, than fine gold. Lord, make us trees of righteousness; then we shall bring forth fruit honourable to thee, and profitable to our own souls. Lord, destroy in our minds that natural and powerful attachment we feel to the fruits of sin.

Deliver our children and servants from a natural love to sinful pleasures. O convince them that, though sweet to the taste, they are spiritual poison, and destructive to the soul.

Blessed Jesus, we acknowledge thee as a Divine, a wise, and a merciful leader. We would now commit ourselves to thy guidance, that we may be led in the way of righteousness, and in the midst of the paths of judgment. Lord, give us an increasing love to thy ways. Form within us a powerful love to the ways of faith and the ways of obedience. We seek a stronger attachment to thine ordinances than we have ever felt. We lament that we have so little valued thy courts, and so little improved thy sanctuary. Holy Spirit, enable us to hear the voice of Christ, and teach us to watch daily at his gates, and wait at the posts of his doors. May we and all our relatives esteem a day in thy courts better than a thousand any where else. In thine ordinances may we find life and obtain favour of the Lord.

Pardon the sins of our holy things, hear our prayers, and bless our souls, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

HAPPINESS OF SALVATION.

Cottage. New Bethlehem. Alpha. Langton. L. M.

- 1 INDULGENT God! to thee I raise
My Spirit, fraught with joy and praise:
Grateful I bow before thy throne,
My debt of mercy there to own.
- 2 Rivers, descending, Lord! from thee,
Perpetual glide to solace me:
Their varied virtues to rehearse
Demand an everlasting verse.
- 3 And yet there is, beyond the rest,
One stream—the widest and the best—
Salvation! lo! the purple flood
Rolls rich with my Redeemer's blood.
- 4 I taste—delight succeeds to woe;
I bathe—no waters cleanse me so;
Such joy and purity to share,
I would remain enraptured there.

FRANCIS.

1 TIMOTHY IV.

Ministerial Duties.

NOW the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils;

2 Speaking lies in hypocrisy: having their conscience seared with a hot iron;

3 Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth.

4 For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving:

5 For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer.

6 If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished up in the words of faith and of good doctrine, wherunto thou hast attained.

7 But refuse profane and old wives' fables, and exercise thyself rather unto godliness.

8 For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.

9 This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance.

10 For therefore we both labour and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the saviour of all men, specially of those that believe.

11 These things command and teach.

12 Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.

13 Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine.

14 Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery.

15 Meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all.

16 Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 TIM. IV.—Whatever others do, may we stand fast in the faith, rejoicing in the great doctrines of the Trinity in unity, the unity in Trinity, the Divinity and righteousness and atonement of Christ, and the work of the Spirit, essentially necessary for regenerating the soul, for communicating and preserving grace, and for preparing believers for entering the heavenly kingdom, and taking their place amid the countless multitude of pure and happy spirits, who are before the throne of God and the Lamb. When we think of the foolish, profane, and destructive errors and heresies into which many have fallen, may we rejoice with great thankfulness that we have been enabled by Divine grace to see, and know, and love, and enjoy the truth. In the spiritual intercourse and fellowship of believers, they should often stir up the pure minds of each other by way of remembrance. In the Gospel there is a rich treasure of the most sublime and holy doctrines, which should pass in daily review before the minds of the people of God; thus their graces will become more and more vigorous, active, and fruitful; their consolation, joy, and peace increase; their conformity to the Divine likeness be promoted, and their preparation for the heavenly kingdom advanced. Blessed are they who can say with the Psalmist, "My soul shall be satisfied with marrow and with fatness, when I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate upon thee in the night watches!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the living God, and the Saviour of all men, especially of those who believe. We acknowledge that we are by nature dead in trespasses and in sins; and we come to thee, the living God, that we may obtain spiritual life. Graciously unite us to Jesus Christ; then shall we derive from him, as our head, that life of grace on earth which will be followed by a life of glory in heaven.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the Holy Spirit. We rejoice that the Holy Ghost speaks in the Holy Scriptures; and we pray that the Divine Spirit may take the Word of life, and through it speak effectually and savingly to our hearts. We lament that so many erroneous opinions have appeared in various ages, in direct opposition to the mind and will of the spirit of truth. O heavenly Father, cause the light of truth to shine with increasing brightness, and may all the clouds of heresy and error disappear before its glorious rays. As false teachers are so diligent in disseminating error, and corrupting the minds of men, make thy ministers equally diligent in disseminating Gospel truth, and advancing the eternal interests of the souls of men.

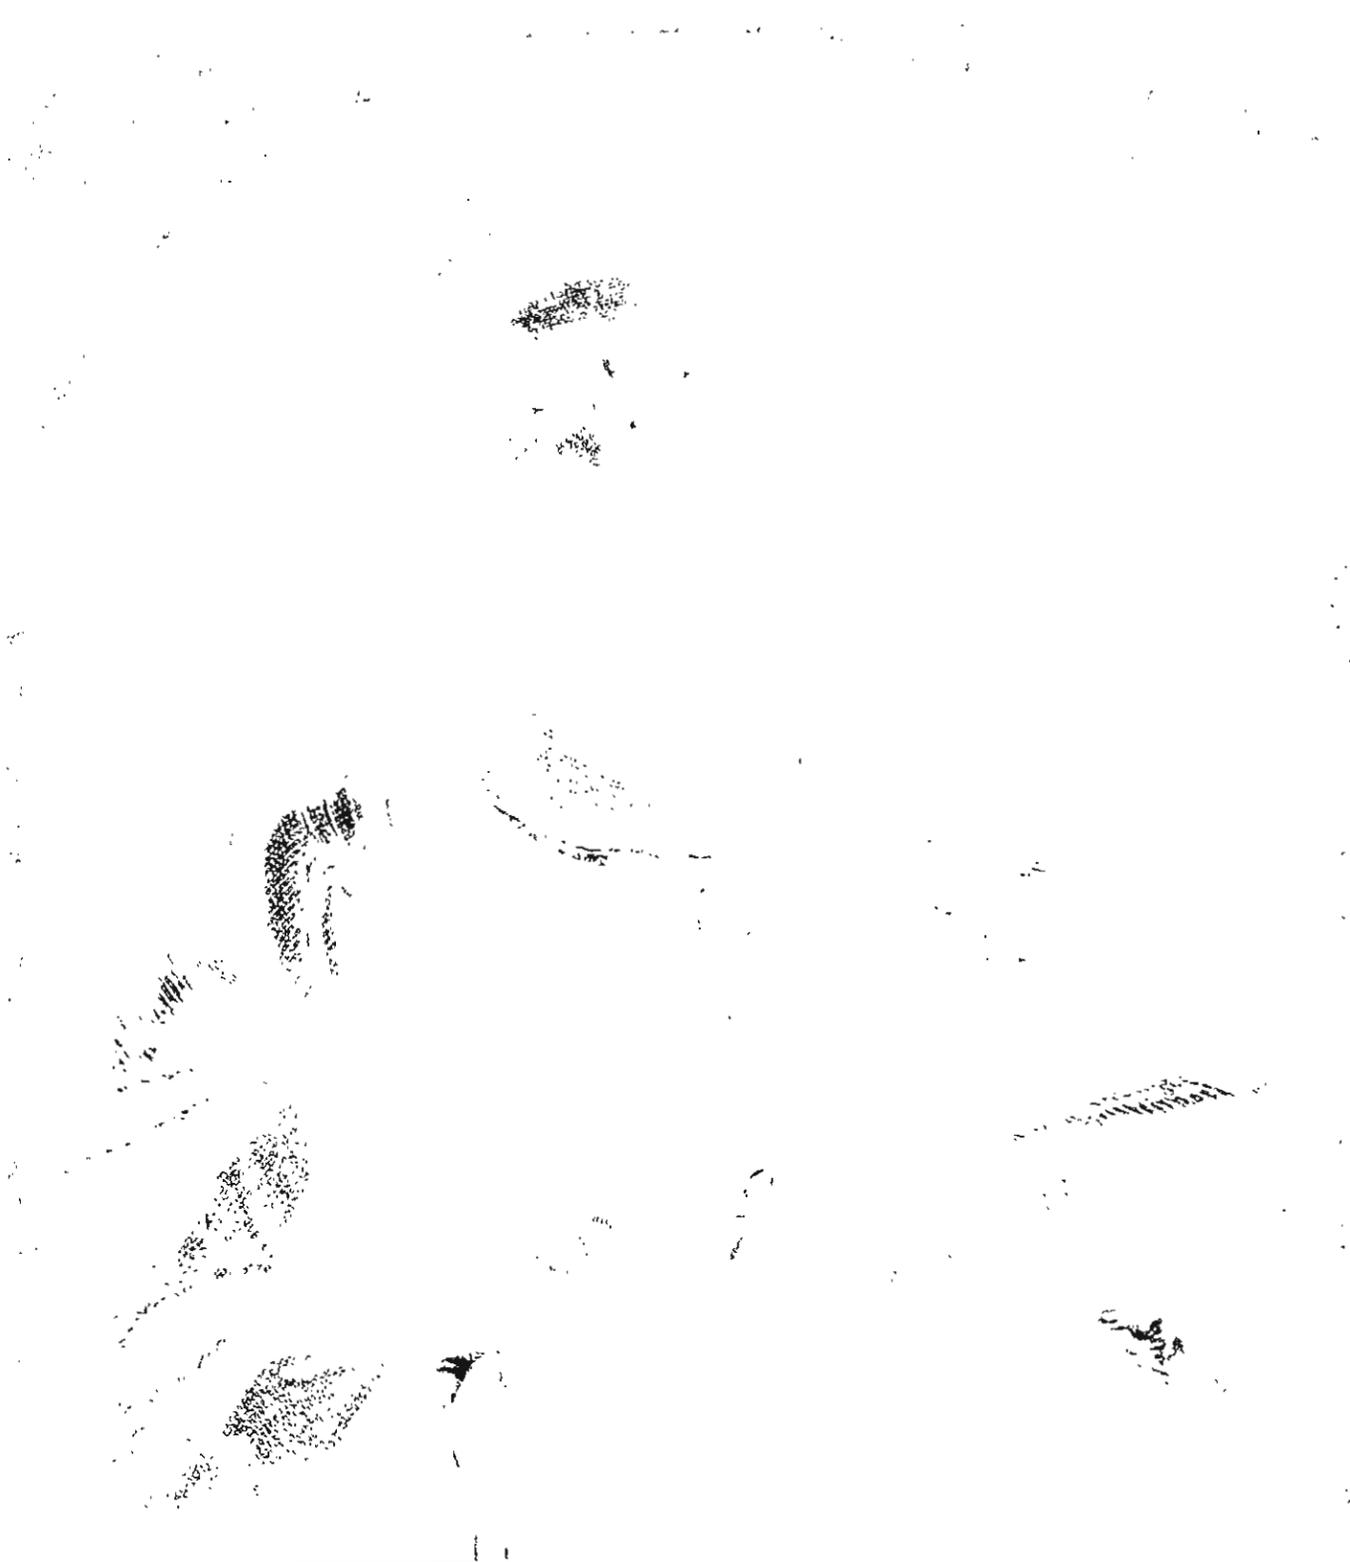

We thank thee, O Lord, for all the good creatures of thy providence which thou hast brought within our reach. Let us not fall into the sin of abusing thy good creatures; but may we receive them with thanksgiving, and find that they are sanctified and blessed by the Word of God and prayer. May all of us live under the purifying influence of the Gospel of Christ, and may we be nourished up in the words of faith and good doctrine. Give us unfeigned godliness, which is the fruit of the Divine Spirit, and which is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.

Impart to our dear children the unspeakable blessings of true godliness. We seek not for them earthly wealth or earthly greatness; but we supplicate true godliness, that inheritance which shall continue during an endless immortality.

Give to our aged friends all the consolation and support in the evening of their days which unfeigned godliness never fails to bestow. Lord, enable us all to be examples of Christian grace. May all around us have reason to say, 'They have been with Jesus. O that we may be examples in word, and in conversation, and in a spirit of charity, faith, and purity. Graciously instruct us in the important exercise of meditation. O that the doctrines of the Gospel, and the mysteries of salvation, and the holy precepts of the Most High, were more frequently the subjects of our devout and believing meditation!

We present our thanks for the mercies of the day, and for the mercies of the week. May the guilt of our weekly sins, and of all our sins, be washed away by the merit of our Saviour's blood. Watch over us as a family this night, O prepare us for the solemnities of thy day. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

BLESSINGS OF THE CHARITABLE.

Duke Street. Refuge. New Sabbath.

- 1 THRICE happy man who fears the Lord,
Loves his commands, and trusts his word;
Honour and peace his days attend,
And blessings to his seed descend.
- 2 Compassion dwells upon his mind,
To works of mercy still inclined:
He lends the poor some present aid,
Or gives them, not to be repaid.
- 3 When times grow dark, and tidings spread
That fill his neighbours round with dread,
His heart is armed against the fear,
For God with all his power is there.
- 4 His soul, well fixed upon the Lord,
Draws heavenly courage from his word;
Amidst the darkness light shall rise,
To cheer his heart and bless his eyes. WATTS, Ps. 112.

PSALM CXII.

The good Man.

- PRAISE ye the LORD. Blessed is the man that feareth the LORD, that delighteth greatly in his commandments.
- 2 His seed shall be mighty upon earth: the generation of the upright shall be blessed.
  - 3 Wealth and riches shall be in his house: and his righteousness endureth for ever.
  - 4 Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness: he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous.
  - 5 A good man sheweth favour, and lendeth: he will guide his affairs with discretion.
  - 6 Surely he shall not be moved for ever: the righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance.
  - 7 He shall not be afraid of evil tidings: his heart is fixed, trusting in the LORD.
  - 8 His heart is established, he shall not be afraid, until he see his desire upon his enemies.
  - 9 He hath dispersed, he hath given to the poor; his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted with honour.
  - 10 The wicked shall see it, and be grieved; he shall gnash with his teeth, and melt away: the desire of the wicked shall perish.

PSALM CXIII.

Praising God.

- PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise, O ye servants of the LORD, praise the name of the LORD.
- 2 Blessed be the name of the LORD from this time forth and for evermore.
  - 3 From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the LORD's name is to be praised.
  - 4 The LORD is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens.
  - 5 Who is like unto the LORD our God, who dwelleth on high,
  - 6 Who humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven, and in the earth!
  - 7 He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth the needy out of the dunghill;
  - 8 That he may set him with princes, even with the princes of his people.
  - 9 He maketh the barren woman to keep house, and to be a joyful mother of children. Praise ye the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXII., CXIII.—While others seek their enjoyment in the perishing objects of time, may our minds be filled with a holy, loving, filial fear of God. May our delight be in the law of God, and may we meditate upon it with joy day and night. Then we shall be like a tree planted by the side of a flowing stream, and bringing forth his fruit in his season. Only they who are righteous are possessed of true wealth. Here they have the wealth of peace, by which the soul is satisfied, exalted, and blessed; and hereafter they shall receive the treasures of glory, represented by crowns of glory, and diadems of righteousness, by fulness of joys and streams of pleasure. May our lives, conversation, and actions, furnish evidence that we are now the possessors of the wealth of grace, and that we shall hereafter be the possessors of the treasures of glory. What an astonishing elevation takes place when the soul is converted by Divine grace! It is raised from bondage to liberty, and from death to life. And what a glorious elevation shall take place when the believer is raised from earth to heaven!

PRAYER.

GLORY to the name of the Father, Son, and Spirit, for the return of another day of sacred rest. Praise to our God, that we are not assembled together to engage in the worship of false gods, but that we are met to fall down prostrate in humble adoration before the mighty God, the only Jehovah, who is the God of salvation, and who made the heavens and the earth.

O Divine Spirit, give us thy gracious influences, that we may present those adorations and petitions which our God will accept; and that we may present them in a manner that is agreeable to the will of our Father who is in heaven.

O Lord, thou art high above all nations. All the kingdoms of the world are prostrate at thy feet, and thou dost dispose of them and of their rulers according to thy wise and sovereign will. Thy glory fills the earth, and thy glory is above the heavens. No archangel can conceive the height of thy glory, nor the grandeur of thine infinite and uncreated majesty. Who is like unto thee, who dwellest on high! Notwithstanding the infinitely lofty throne of glory and of power which thou dost fill, in thy great condescension thou dost humble thyself to behold the things that are in heaven and in the earth. Since it is an act of condescension in thee to take notice of the most exalted of angels, O how inconceivably great thy condescension in taking notice of fallen man, and providing for him a Saviour, by whom he might be rescued from the miseries of hell, and obtain a title to the joys of heaven! Thou art the sovereign disposer of the lot of man. Princes thou dost cast down into the lowest degradation, and persons of the lowest degree thou dost elevate to distinguished honour and power. We praise thee that, spiritually considered, thou dost raise abject, fallen man, placed in the most humiliating circumstances of sin and guilt, and raise him by thy grace to the enjoyment of the distinguished honour and blessedness of salvation. This day, by means of a preached Gospel, may many who are now the abject slaves of corruption and sin be raised by thy spirit out of the dust, and may they be set with princes, even the princes of the land.

O convince our dear children that a life of sin is not only a life of danger, but a life of misery and disgrace. O give them no rest till they have fled to Jesus, who is willing to raise them from the depths of guilt, and place them on the safe and blessed heights of salvation. Lord, teach our servants to love and praise, and may they breathe thy holy spirit.

During this Sabbath, may the character and nature and state of multitudes undergo a saving change. May many be instructed to fear the Lord, and greatly to delight in his commandments. Give them that righteousness which endureth for ever, namely, the righteousness of Christ imputed, and the graces of the Spirit implanted. O that all of us were upright, that we were gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous.

Assist our minister, and all thy servants, in the solemnities of thy house. Prepare our minds for entering thy sanctuary; and all we ask is for Jesus the Mediator's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

IDOLATRY REPROVED.

Doverdale. Warrington. Warcham.

L. M.

- 1 NOT to ourselves, who are but dust,
Not to ourselves is glory due,
Eternal God, thou only just,
Thou only gracious, wise, and true.
- 2 The God we serve maintains his throne
Above the clouds, beyond the skies,
Through all the earth his will be done,
He knows our groans, he hears our cries.
- 3 But the vain idols they adore
Are senseless shapes of stone and wood;
At best a mass of glittering ore,
A silver saint, or golden god.
- 4 O Israel, make the Lord thy hope,
Thy help, thy refuge, and thy rest;
The Lord shall build thy ruins up,
And bless the people and the priest.

WATTS Ps. 116.

PSALM CXV.

Vanity of Idols.

NOT unto us, O LORD, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake.

2 Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is now their God?

3 But our God is in the heavens: he hath done whatsoever
he hath pleased.

4 Their idols are silver and gold, the work of men's hands.

5 They have mouths, but they speak not: eyes have they,
but they see not:

6 They have ears, but they hear not: noses have they, but they smell not:

7 They have hands, but they handle not; feet have they,
but they walk not; neither speak they through their throat.

8 They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them.

9 O Israel, trust thou in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

10 O house of Aaron, trust in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

11 Ye that fear the LORD, trust in the LORD: he is their help and their shield.

12 The LORD hath been mindful of us: he will bless us;
he will bless the house of Israel; he will bless the house of Aaron.

13 He will bless them that fear the LORD, both small and great.

14 The LORD shall increase you more and more, you and your children.

15 Ye are blessed of the LORD which made heaven and earth.

16 The heaven, even the heavens, are the LORD's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men.

17 The dead praise not the LORD, neither any that go down into silence.

18 But we will bless the LORD from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXV.—Saints delight to give Christ all the glory of their salvation; and they rejoice in being debtors to free, rich, and sovereign grace for all they are, for all they have, and for all they expect to enjoy. Ungodly men are complete strangers to the peace and consolation which believers derive from the assurance, that God is ever near them to give them his counsel and help.
We have abundant reason to rejoice in the exalted views the inspired volume gives of God, as reigning over the heavens and the earth in his wisdom, power, justice, and goodness. How insignificant are the mightiest of earthly potentates when compared with Christ, of whom it is said in his Divine sovereignty, "The heavens are thy throne, and the earth is thy footstool!" Let us rejoice that the dark clouds of idolatry are removed from our land, and that we enjoy the cheering light of a blessed Gospel-day!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art God alone. Thou art in the heavens, ruling over all the shining ranks of angels and archangels, of principalities and powers. In all ages thou hast done whatsoever thou hast pleased; none can stay thy hand, or say unto thee, What doest thou? The gods of the heathen are gold and silver, the work of men's hands. They have the outward form of living beings, but are only lifeless, helpless, lying vanities. They that made them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them. Thy peculiar and most glorious residence is the heaven of heavens. The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth thou hast given to the children of men.

We would unite in our expressions of thanksgiving and praise for the mercies of another day, and of another Sabbath-day. We thank thee for the exercise of our reason and the enjoyment of health, without which we could not have waited on thee our God. Glory to thy name, that we were not assembled in a heathen temple, and that we have met in a Christian sanctuary: that we did not assemble to fall prostrate before dumb idols, the workmanship of men's hands;
but that we met to fall down and worship and praise the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, who made the heavens. O that we may be blessed of God, who made heaven and earth! We thank the Holy Spirit for all that assistance communicated to thy ministers in dispensing the truth, and for all that assistance given to thy people in receiving it. We adore the gracious power of God, which has this day raised dead souls to life, and set at liberty some of Satan's captives. There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth: O that we on earth may join our grateful praise with angels in heaven in ascribing honour and glory to the God of salvation, for delivering the poor sinner from the dominion of sin, and for bringing him under the reign of grace.

Merciful God, we would commend to thy gracious sympathy all who love thy name, and who have been prevented from attending thy courts by bodily afflictions. We rejoice, and may they rejoice, that thy gracious presence is not confined to the public sanctuary of praise. Comfort them in their abodes of suffering. Give them grace to trust in the LORD, who is their help and shield. LORD, help them; LORD, defend them. If they are poor, supply their temporal wants out of thy fulness; and if they are friendless, raise up for them human friends and pious friends, who shall minister to their temporal necessities; but, above all, may they cleave closely by faith to Jesus, their Divine, their unchanging friend —the friend that sticketh closer than a brother, and who lives when all other friends are numbered with the dead. We rejoice, O LORD, that thou art mindful of thy ministers, that thou wilt bless the house of Israel, and that thou wilt bless the house of Aaron. And we praise thee that thou art mindful of thy people, and wilt bless them evermore.

Let a spirit of prayer descend upon our dear children, and teach them to rejoice that they do not dwell in a land of idolatry and groven images.

We commit ourselves to thy providential care this night.
Hear our imperfect supplications, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb that was slain. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

INVITATIONS OF WISDOM.

Gibeah. New Victory. Missionary.

c. n.

- 1 LO! wisdom stands with smiling face,
And courts us to her arms;
Who can resist the wondrous grace,
And alight her powerful charms?
- 2 She, generous, holds out to our sight
Riches which shall endure;
Not sparkling rubies half so bright,
Nor finest gold so pure.
- 3 Eternal pleasures fill her train,
Pleasures which never cloy;
Come, drink of bliss unmixed with pain,
And taste celestial joy.
- 4 Immortal crowns she now displays,
And thrones beyond the skies:
Accept her blessings while she stays,
And seize the glorious prize.

DODDRIDGE.

PROVERBS IX.

Calls of Wisdom, and Enticements of Folly.

WISDOM hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars:

2 She hath killed her beasts; she hath mingled her wine; she hath also furnished her table.

3 She hath sent forth her maidens: she crieth upon the highest places of the city,

4 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,

5 Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled.

6 Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding.

7 He that reproveth a scorner getteth to himself shame: and he that rebuketh a wicked man getteth himself a blot.

8 Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee.

9 Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser: teach a just man, and he will increase in learning.

10 The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding.

11 For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased.

12 If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself: but if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it.

13 A foolish woman is clamorous: she is simple, and knoweth nothing.

14 For she sitteth at the door of her house, on a seat in the high places of the city,

15 To call passengers who go right on their ways:

16 Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: and as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,

17 Stolen waters are sweet, and bread eaten in secret is pleasant.

18 But he knoweth not that the dead are there; and that her guests are in the depths of hell.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. IX.—Who can conceive the suitability or the richness of the Gospel feast? It is prepared in the Church of God, for the refreshment and salvation of nations. The humanity and offices of Christ, the blessings of his purchase, the doctrines of the Gospel, the precepts of the law, and the promises of inviolable truth, are the Divine dainties with which the feast is enriched. How kind is it in God to send forth his ministers to invite the simple, the foolish, the profane, the wanderers, and the lost, to sit down among the guests, and become the heirs of heaven! Glorious day, when all nations shall partake of the feast prepared for all people! How blessed are those families who are united together in their admiration of Christ, and who are associated together in partaking of the bountiful provision of the Gospel-feast! In this imperfect state reproofs are often necessary; and when they are administered to me seasonably and affectionately, let me receive them with thankfulness and humility; then I shall grow in learning and in wisdom. How dreadful the doom of those who are deluded by the society of the foolish! Their destination, if mercy prevent not, is the depths of hell. How short-lived are carnal, forbidden pleasures! Most grievous are their present effects, in alienating the mind from God, in unfitting the soul for his service and enjoyment, and in loading down to the gloomy chambers of eternal death!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we praise thee that, under all our infirmity, weakness, impurity, helplessness, and unworthiness, there is a throne of grace, filled by a God of boundless mercy and compassion, and that we are always welcomed and encouraged to draw near, and supplicate mercy to forgive, and grace to help in every time of need. Thy great goodness, O Lord, reminds us of our great sinfulness. We have not sufficiently valued our privileges, and we have not sufficiently improved them. We have reason to wonder that they have not either been withdrawn from us, or we removed from them. O let not our case resemble that of Capernaum of old, whose situation at the judgment-day shall be worse than that of Tyre and Sidon, which cities long ago would have repented in dust and in ashes, if they had possessed the Gospel privileges which we have so long enjoyed and so sinfully abused.

We praise thee for thy patience and forbearance. Accept our thanks for the mercies and ordinances of the past Sabbath. We thank thee for thy day, thy house, thy ministers, and thine ordinances. Receive the tribute of our gratitude for thy continued kindness during the past night, and fulfil in our experience this day thy promise, which we find needful for the things of the body as well as for those of the soul: I will instruct thee, and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go; I will guide thee with mine eye. May all our steps be ordered by the Lord, and ever may we delight in his way.

We thank God for what we have now read of the calls of wisdom, and the enticements of folly. Give us grace to accept the one and to reject the other. We confess our natural aversion to wisdom's invitations: O destroy, in thy mercy destroy this aversion. We confess our natural attachment to the enticements of folly: O destroy, in thy compassion destroy this blinded attachment, and open our eyes to see the danger, the disgrace, and the ruin which must attend the service of folly and of sin.

Lord, we praise thee for the building of mercy, which wisdom has contrived for perishing souls: and we praise thee for the rich and delicious feast of salvation, of which, simple, wandering, perishing sinners are permitted to partake. Enable each one of us to accept the kind and affectionate invitations which are addressed to us. We are simple; enable us to turn in to the building of mercy; we are naturally without understanding, but at mercy's call may we forsake the foolish and live; may we eat of the bread of life which wisdom has prepared, and drink of the wine which wisdom has mingled.

O Lord, convince our dear children of their simplicity, their ignorance, their folly, and their weakness. O teach them most vigorously and promptly to resist the enticements of folly.

Have mercy on all the blinded sons and daughters of carnal pleasure and sinful mirth. Open their eyes to see that the dead are in the house of folly: and that her former guests are now in the depths of hell, bewailing their misery in endless despair. Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, who is the Lord our righteousness. Amen.

CONTENTMENT.

Submission. Oxenden. Scotch Church. Frome. c. n.

- 1 FATHER, whate'er of earthly bliss
Thy sovereign will denies,
Accepted at thy throne of grace,
Let this petition rise :
- 2 Give me a calm, a thankful heart,
From every murmur free ;
Thy blessings of thy grace impart,
And make me live to thee.
- 3 Let the sweet hope that thou art mine
My life and death attend :
Thy presence through my journey shine,
And crown my journey's end.

SCHELE.

1 TIMOTHY VI.

Contentment, Avarice, &c.

GODLINESS with contentment is great gain.

7 For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out.

8 And having food and raiment let us be therewith content.

9 But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition.

10 For the love of money is the root of all evil : which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

11 But thou, O man of God, flee these things ; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness.

12 Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.

13 I give thee charge in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession ;

14 That thou keep this commandment without spot, unrebukeable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ :

15 Which in his times he shall shew, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords ;

16 Who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto ; whom no man hath seen, nor can see : to whom be honour and power everlasting. Amen.

17 Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy ;

18 That they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate ;

19 Laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.

20 O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called :

21 Which some professing have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 TIM. VI.—That man is poor indeed who possesses great earthly treasures if he is destitute of a contented heart. He who has the grace of contentment, even in connection with privation and suffering, has a present inheritance more precious than silver and gold, and he is the heir of an imperishable inheritance beyond the Jordan of death, which he shall enjoy for ever. There are several humiliating circumstances connected with the birth of man. He is born helpless and feeble, unconscious of his existence, every faculty of his soul fast asleep, and sin slumbering in his bosom ready to awake and burst forth when the mental powers are developed : thus we entered this world with a legacy of sin. O when we leave this world, may we depart in the possession of a rich legacy of grace ! It is truly delightful to think, that there is a gracious providence on which we are dependent for every temporal mercy, and that we are fed every day at the table of providence, and clothed every day out of the wardrobe of providence. How many souls are lost by the unhallowed, idolatrous love of earthly objects ! To gain wealth is nothing unless we gain grace ; to gain kingdoms is nothing if we lose heaven. Let the great object of our ambition be to seek the kingdom of heaven first, and everything else will be added which our heavenly Father considers will prove for his glory and our good. The unhallowed love of earthly things is a moral pestilence, which has destroyed its thousands and tens of thousands. If we receive the wisdom which is from above, we will flee from it as we would escape from the devouring flames.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Immanuel, we bless thee for those adoring expressions which the inspired Apostle has recorded under the direction of the Holy Spirit, and which we are now permitted to employ, in acknowledging thy Divine glory and thy mediatorial majesty. Thou, O Jesus, art the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords. Thou only hast immortality in a sense in which it can belong to no creature, and in a sense in which it can only belong to thee, the uncreated Jehovah. Thou dwellest in light which no man can approach unto. Thou art possessed of glorious excellences, which no man hath seen or can see. To thee, in common with the Father and the Holy Spirit, we ascribe honour and power everlasting.

We desire, O Hearer of prayer, with grateful hearts to approach the mercy-seat, and present our expressions of thankfulness for the mercies of the day. While we thank thee for blessings which perish in the using, may we have reason to praise thee for those mercies which shall endure for ever. Continue thy providential kindness and protection this night ; and may we be ever kept by HIM who keepeth Israel. O prepare us for that heavenly and perfect state, where the eternal vigour and the blessed perfection both of soul and body, shall render repose and rest for ever unnecessary.

Holy Spirit, may the dew of thy grace accompany what we have now read. Give us a high estimate of godliness, and may we seek it in preference to all earthly honours and to all earthly treasures. Lord, give us Christian contentment, that we may fully approve of the lot thou hast prepared for us, and that we may earnestly seek the Divine and promised blessing on all the events of a sovereign providence. Deliver us from a sinful love of the comforts of life. If we have food and raiment, make us therewith content. Preserve us from the most destructive sin of covetousness. Open our eyes to see, and open the eyes of covetous men to see, the most certainly fatal consequences of an unhallowed desire to accumulate earthly treasures ; that it leads to temptations and snares, and plunges the soul into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition.

Lord, have mercy on our children, preserve them from the love of money ; O give them the love of grace. May they daily seek Christ, the pearl of great price.

God grant that all of us may be the good soldiers of Jesus. Under the direction of the Spirit may we fight the good fight of faith, and lay hold on eternal life. Have mercy on all our relatives, and may they and we ever follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, and meekness.

Such of our relatives as are rich, preserve them from being high-minded ; let their confidence not be placed in riches, but in Christ. Make them ready to do good, ready to distribute, and willing to communicate. O enable all of us to lay up in store for ourselves a good foundation for the time to come. Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake ; and may thy grace be with us, for ever and ever. Amen.

OUR PRESENT IMPERFECT KNOWLEDGE.

Zebulun. Marylebone. Charnmouth.

C. M.

- 1 WHY way, O God' is in the sea;
Thy paths I cannot trace;
Nor comprehend the mystery
Of thy unbounded grace.
- 2 Here the dark veils of flesh and sense
My captive soul surround,
Mysterious deeps of providence
My wondering thoughts confound.
- 3 When I behold the awful hand
My earthly hopes destroy,
In deep astonishment I stand,
And ask the reason why.
- 4 As through a glass I dimly see
The wonders of thy love;
How little do I know of thee,
Or of the joys above!

FAWCETT.

PROVERBS X.

Virtues and Vices.

THE Proverbs of Solomon. A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother.

2 Treasures of wickedness profit nothing: but righteousness delivereth from death.

3 The LORD will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish: but he casteth away the substance of the wicked.

4 He becometh poor that dealth with a slack hand; but the hand of the diligent maketh rich.

5 He that gathereth in summer is a wise son: but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.

6 Blessings are upon the head of the just: but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.

7 The memory of the just is blessed: but the name of the wicked shall rot.

8 The wise in heart will receive commandments: but a prating fool shall fall.

9 He that walketh uprightly walketh surely: but he that perverteth his ways shall be known.

10 He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow: but a prating fool shall fall.

11 The mouth of a righteous man is a well of life: but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.

12 Hatred stirreth up strifes: but love covereth all sins.

13 In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found: but a rod is for the back of him that is void of understanding.

14 Wise men lay up knowledge: but the mouth of the foolish is near destruction.

15 The rich man's wealth is his strong city: the destruction of the poor is their poverty.

16 The labour of the righteous tendeth to life: the fruit of the wicked to sin.

17 He is in the way of life that keepeth instruction: but he that refuseth reproof erreth.

18 He that hideth hatred with lying lips, and he that uttereth a slander is a fool.

19 In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin: but he that refraineth his lips is wise.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. X.—Incalculable is the joy of pious parents when their children are adorned by heavenly wisdom. No language can depict the base cruelty of those children who bring down the grey hairs of their parents with sorrow to the grave. The happiness of our world much depends upon the dutiful obedience of children to their parents. Calamities numerous, extensive, and overwhelming, may easily be traced to the disobedience of children—a fountain which sends forth the most bitter streams of suffering and anguish. My soul, beware of the unhallowed love of gain, seeing that treasures sinfully obtained are the chains which will for ever bind the soul in the captivity of hell. Blessed are the righteous; for they are the objects of the care of a special Providence, and are encircled by the arms of eternal love. Let the young, in the spring-time of their life, seek the culture of Divine grace; then their summer will be beautiful with the flowers of holiness, and their harvest will be laden with the fruits of eternal life. A righteous man is employed on earth in sowing precious seed, which no stormy tempests shall be able to destroy; and this seed shall be productive of a harvest of glory, which shall be reaped for ever in heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire that we may be enabled at this time, with godly fear, and with filial confidence, to approach thy Divine and gracious presence, and to ascribe to thee, the hearer of prayer, the glory and honour due unto thy name. We are, by thy good providence, permitted to enter on another new day. Holy Spirit, enable us to direct our prayer unto God, and look up. We thank thee for the mercies of the past night; that we have been preserved, that we have been refreshed by sleep, that we have arisen from our beds in health and peace; and, above all, that we are permitted to fall prostrate before the throne of grace, and address thee as our Father who art in heaven. We seek thy spirit, to teach us to set a high value on time, and ever to be impressed with the connection between time and eternity. Enable us to improve time, and therefore to begin and spend and conclude this day with God. Prepare us for the duties, trials, and difficulties of the day. Preserve us from the evil of sin, that it may not grieve us; and, when tribulations fall to our lot, may we have the animating hope of passing triumphantly through all these tribulations, and at last reaching the heavenly kingdom.

Bless the wise counsels we have now read: and open the eyes of every member of our family to see their excellence and suitableness.

Make our children wise, that they may rejoice their parents' heart; and may they never become the slaves and servants of folly. God forbid that they should bring down the grey hairs of their parents with sorrow to the grave.

Lord, pity those parents whose children are blindly pursuing the ways of folly, to their own destruction. May the hand of mercy arrest them in their career of sin, and may the resistless grace of the Holy Spirit change their heart, and fill their souls with heavenly love.

Prevent us, O Lord, from loving or seeking the treasures of sin; but may we seek after an interest in thy love, and in thy promises, and in the righteousness of thy Son—the only treasures which can profit us travelling along the vale of life, and the only treasures which can deliver us in the day of death. O give us wisdom every day to think upon our last day; and every day to look to Jesus for that blessed salvation which will enable us triumphantly to pass through the day of our dissolution, and wing our flight to the regions of immortality where pain and sin and death are for ever unknown.

Convince all of us of the unspeakable advantages of unfeigned godliness. Lord, make us righteous, and may we be indeed separated from the world lying in wickedness; thou wilt not suffer our soul to famish. May our minds be suitably affected with the unspeakable, the irreparable loss which those sustain, and must through eternity endure, who live without an interest in Christ's atoning sacrifice, and who die under the wrath of an offended God. Lord, give us diligence, not only in our worldly calling, but in our spiritual duties. Let it not be found, when we come to die, that we have been all our life asleep, as it respects the objects of the soul and an eternal world.

In the name of Jesus we present these our supplications, and for his sake we implore the pardon of all our sins. Amen and amen.

VICTORY OVER DEATH.

Coleham. Anna Carey's.

P. M.

- 1 AH, grant me, Lord, in death to find
That death is swallowed up in thee;
While on thy loving breast reclined,
I long for immortality,
Purchased by thine expiring groan,
And feel it in my heart made known.
- 2 Ah, Saviour, now in me reveal
The eternal life thou dost bestow,
And when my mortal foe I feel,
I'll trample on my mortal foe,
Into thy hands my spirit give,
And long as my Redeemer live.

C. WESLEY.

2 TIMOTHY I.

Paul's Love to Timothy.

PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus,

2 To Timothy, my dearly beloved son: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 I thank God, whom I serve from my forefathers with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day;

4 Greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy;

5 When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also.

6 Wherefore I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God, which is in thee by the putting on of my hands.

7 For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

8 Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner: but he thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God;

9 Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began;

10 But is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel:

11 Wherunto I am appointed a preacher, and an apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles.

12 For the which cause I also suffer these things: nevertheless I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day.

13 Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

14 That good thing which was committed unto thee keep by the Holy Ghost which dwelleth in us.

15 This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia be turned away from me; of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercy unto the house of Onesiphorus; for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain:

17 But, when he was in Rome, he sought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day: and in how many things he ministered unto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 TIM. I. God's promises are a blessed and delightful expression of his will; they are an invaluable treasure laid up in Christ; and if Christ is ours, these promises are ours. May the sacred fire of holy, Christian love glow in our bosom! Whosoever it exists it calls forth holy wishes, and devout and earnest prayers, in behalf of those on whom that love is placed. Communion of saints is a spiritual ordinance, and a most useful privilege. There is a time to weep, sometimes to shed tears of penitential sorrow; and at other times to shed tears of love, of thankfulness, and of joy: such tears are valuable in Christ's estimation, and such tears are profitable to those who shed them. Jesus is represented as putting them in his bottle as the most precious and fragrant ointment: and such tears are followed by a rich harvest to the soul. They who sow in tears, it is promised, shall reap in joy. Pious parents are a most valuable inheritance; multitudes of children have been converted to Jesus by means of parental instruction, and in answer to earnest parental prayer. It has been well and justly remarked, that "though grace does not run in the blood, it often runs with it;" though it is not given by hereditary descent, it often accompanies it. God has great respect to his promise, that he will take the children in the place of the fathers, and make them noble princes in all the earth. It is endearing, the natural relation of parents and their children; but infinitely more so when accompanied with grace.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God and Father in Christ, thy glory fills the earth, and it is above the heavens. The heaven of heavens is the throne of thy glory. O how infinitely glorious are thy perfections, and with what transcendent brightness does thy glory shine in all thy works! Thou art infinitely worthy to be praised with the rapturous and everlasting songs of men and of angels, for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. We are the creatures of thy wisdom, power, and goodness; and may we ever remember with the liveliest interest that thou hast formed us for thyself, to show forth thy praise. But our consciences tell us that we have not glorified thee as we ought. Alas, much of our lives has been actually spent without glorifying thee at all, we have not only neglected to honour thee, but we have actually dishonoured thee. We acknowledge that we have had no fruit, no real enjoyment in those parts of our lives of which we have now abundant reason to be ashamed.

We seek thy fatherly pardon of all our sins, through the meritorious atonement of our Saviour Jesus Christ. May the offences of this day be forgiven, and may the continuance of temporal comforts and spiritual mercies produce on our minds sanctifying effects. We commit our bodies to thy care this night, and we would place confidence in thy mercy. O enable us, with Paul the apostle, to commit ourselves to the gracious care of our heavenly Father, as our covenant God in Christ.

We thank our God for the faculty of conscience which is implanted within us. Sanctify our conscience, that it may daily reprove us for sin, and arouse us to the diligent discharge of duty. Like Paul, may we serve God with a pure conscience.

Lord, give our children a tender conscience, and may they hearken diligently to the voice of conscience; and when conscience warns and reproves, may they remember that it is the voice of God speaking within them.

Gracious God, give us a taste for religious observances, and may we be the partakers of religious joys. We have the profession of the faith of the Gospel: O may our faith be unfeigned, like that of Timothy. We thank thee in behalf of all our relatives who are the partakers of grace. We bless thee for the rich inheritance of grace which thou hast given them, and we praise thee for all the benefits we have derived from their wise counsels, holy example, and earnest prayers.

Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou hast appeared in our world, and that thou hast abolished death by thy death, and hast brought life and immortality to light by thy Gospel. Bless our aged friends, who have the near prospect of passing through the valley and shadow of death. Deliver them from the fear of death. May they believe that through Christ they are even now delivered from the sting of death.

Graciously hear our feeble prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Saviour and Intercessor. Amen.

FAITH REVIVING.

Hays. Halifax Chapel. Westbury Leigh.

P. M.

- 1 FROM whence this fear and unbelief?—
Hast thou, O Father, put to grief
Thy spotless Son for me?
And will the righteous Judge of men
Condemn me for that debt of sin,
Which, Lord, was charged on thee!
- 2 Complete atonement thou hast made,
And to the utmost farthing paid
Whate'er thy people owed;
How then can wrath on me take place,
If sheltered in thy righteousness,
And sprinkled with thy blood?
- 3 If thou hast my discharge procured,
And freely, in my room, endured
The whole of wrath Divine;
Payment God cannot twice demand,—
First at my bleeding Surety's hand,
And then again at mine.

ANON.

PROVERBS XIV.

Virtues and Vices.

- EVERY wise woman buildeth her house: but the foolish plucketh it down with her hands.
- 2 He that walketh in his uprightness searcheth the Lord: but he that is perverse in his ways despiseth him.
  - 3 In the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride: but the lips of the wise shall preserve them.
  - 3 Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful; and the end of that mirth is heaviness.
  - 14 The backslider in heart shall be filled with his own ways: and a good man shall be satisfied from himself.
  - 15 The simple believeth every word: but the prudent man looketh well to his going.
  - 16 A wise man searcheth, and departeth from evil: but the fool rageth, and is confident.
  - 17 He that is soon angry dealeth foolishly: and a man of wicked devices is hated.
  - 18 The simple inherit folly: but the prudent are crowned with knowledge.
  - 19 The evil bow before the good; and the wicked at the gates of the righteous.
  - 20 The poor is hated even of his own neighbour: but the rich hath many friends.
  - 21 He that despiseth his neighbour sinneth: but he that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he.
  - 22 Do they not err that devise evil? but mercy and truth shall be to them that devise good.
  - 23 In all labour there is profit: but the talk of the lips tendeth only to penury.
  - 24 The crown of the wise is their riches: but the foolishness of fools is folly.
  - 25 A true witness delivereth souls: but a deceitful witness speaketh lies.
  - 26 In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence: and his children shall have a place of refuge.
  - 27 The fear of the Lord is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. XIV.—Wisdom and grace give to a family greater happiness and security than riches and honour. The folly of parents will entail infamy and misery upon their descendants, which often continue through many generations. The fear of God is associated with the lowliest graces, and the want of it attended with the most loathsome crimes. Pride exposes to the greatest danger, while humility and prudence form around the soul a barrier of defence. As we would escape from the pestilence, so should we avoid the society of the foolish, whose language and example so rapidly spread abroad the infection of sin. As indolence in my temporal concerns would involve me in perplexity and lead to ruin, how carefully should I avoid indolence in the concerns of my soul, which may lead to the miseries of eternal woe! As sin is the greatest evil, let me never think lightly of sinful acts, which are so offensive to God, and may bring down the irresistible vengeance of heaven. How blessed are they who seek grace, which is sufficient to comfort the heart amid the most bitter of earthly sorrows!

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Lord God, day after day, and night after night, proclaim thy goodness. We desire with thankful hearts to praise thee that we have been preserved during another night, and have been permitted to see the light of another morning. We find that it is pleasant for our bodily eyes to behold the light of the natural sun; may we find it infinitely more pleasant to our souls to behold the enlivening beams of Christ, the Sun of righteousness. This day may our meditations rise up to the heavenly world, where the redeemed enjoy, and where we hope in fellowship with them to enjoy, unspeakable blessedness and felicity in beholding thy countenance, and in seeing the Lamb in the midst of the throne shining brighter than the sun in his strength.

May thy Word reflect on our minds the light of Christ. As the return of the sun dispels the shades of night, O may thy blessed Word be instrumental by the Spirit in dispelling all the dark clouds of ignorance, unbelief, doubts, and fears. We seek the blessing of our God to attend us during the day. May our lives show that we are really under the practical and saving influence of the words of wisdom we have now read in the volume of inspired truth.

As a family may we be closely united by the bonds of Christian affection. May our love to each other not only be that which arises out of our natural relation, but may it be that which is spiritual and sacred, arising from our mutual interest in Christ as our God and Saviour. Never allow, O Lord, the thorns of discord to spring up amongst us. May our house be established upon the foundations of Christian love, and may we never resemble the foolish woman, who plucketh down her house with her hands. O that every member of our family may be a living stone in that noble edifice, the Church—that glorious structure that never can be pulled down—that temple of which Jesus is the chief corner-stone.

Preserve our dear children and servants from seeking after the perishing enjoyment of sinful pleasure and unalloyed joy. Convince them that all these joys are mingled with the bitter curse of thy displeasure; and that, if they are not forsaken, they will be followed by the miseries of hell. O affect their minds with this solemn truth.

Gracious God, enable us to subdue all our angry passions. May we see that to be soon angry is not only a mark of the greatest weakness, but that it also exposes the soul to the greatest danger. May we be angry with sin; and may we be angry, and sin not. Lord, preserve us from the sin of backsliding. We have been often chargeable with this sin: O forgive our past backslidings, and suffer us no longer and no more to wander from thee our God.

Give us faith; and, if we have faith, strengthen our faith, revive our faith. In thee, O Lord, may we have strong confidence. Give us strong confidence in thy love, in thy power, and in thy truth. May we look on Jesus with the eye of faith, and then sing, How can we sink with such a prop? O Jesus, thou art our place of refuge, and to thee we fly, and in thee we shall be for ever safe.

Lord our God, hear our imperfect prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy of the praises of saints and the adoration of angels. Amen.

UNBELIEF REPROVED.

Stourport. Archangel. Eagle Street. Bethesda. P. M.

- 1 O MY distrustful heart!
 What! must I always doubt?
 Still must I feel this smart,
 And thus be tossed about?
 Did Jesus once upon thee shine?—
 Then Jesus is for ever thine.
- 2 Immutable his will,
 Whatever be thy frame,
 His loving heart is still Unchangeably the same:
 My soul through many changes goes—
 His love no alteration knows.

HAMMOND.

2 TIMOTHY II.

Victory over Death.

THOU therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

2 And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also.

3 Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

4 No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier.

5 And if a man also strive for masteries, yet is he not crowned, except he strive lawfully.

6 The husbandman that laboureth must be first partaker of the fruits.

7 Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things.

8 Remember that Jesus Christ of the seed of David was raised from the dead according to my gospel:

9 Whercin I suffer trouble, as an evil doer, even unto bonds; but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I endure all things for the elect's sakes, that they may also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory.

11 It is a faithful saying: For if we be dead with him, we shall also live with him:

12 If we suffer, we shall also reign with him: if we deny him, he also will deny us:

13 If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful: he cannot deny himself.

14 Of these things put them in remembrance, charging them before the Lord that they strive not about words to no profit, but to the subverting of the hearers.

15 Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

24 And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient,

25 In meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth;

26 And that they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 TIM. II.—There is in Jesus a boundless fulness of grace. Do we possess grace? Let it be our daily exercise to seek more grace, and to pray that the grace which we possess may be more vigorous, active, and fruitful. We should earnestly pray, that the king and head of the Church would increase the number of faithful labourers, filled with wisdom, shining with grace, and apt to teach. All saints are soldiers in Christ's army; and ministers are spiritual officers in this army. They are especially required to show an example of patience, fortitude, and perseverance to those committed to their care, and whom they are required to lead and guide in the Christian warfare. Are we Christ's soldiers? Has he won our hearts? Then, relying on him, we shall tread on the lion and the adder, and we shall be more than conquerors through him that loved us.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the governor among the nations. Thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth. Thou art God in heaven, and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee? O thou blessed and only Potentate, who hast the sovereign control of all nations and thrones, exercise thy gracious power, and hasten the day when all the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ. Jesus, thou king of Zion, take to thee thy great power and reign. We long for the arrival of that period, when all people and nations and languages shall serve thee, and when the kings of the earth shall esteem it their greatest honour to be thy subjects, and their greatest enjoyment to devote their influence and lives to thy glory.

We acknowledge thine undeserved kindness we have this day received. Forgive the imperfect manner in which we have discharged religious duties; and give us grace to lament that our thoughts are so much occupied with the objects of the body and time, and so little engaged with the objects of the soul and eternity. Mercifully watch over us this night. Preserve us, O Lord, for in thee do we put our trust.

We seek grace from our God, if we have not yet received it. If we have tasted that God is gracious, make us strong in the grace that is in Christ. Make us strong in grace to perform duty, to resist temptation, to surmount obstacles, and to conquer enemies. Raise up faithful ministers to labour in thy Church, and who shall be able to teach others. Enable them to endure hardness as the good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Make us all the good soldiers of Christ, the captain of our salvation; and may we furnish the most satisfying evidence to all around that we are studying to please him who hath called us to his service. Lord of light and wisdom, give us understanding in all things. Give us a saving knowledge of the great plan of salvation, and a saving acquaintance with the doctrines of the Gospel. Enable us to maintain a lively remembrance of the resurrection of Christ, and may we see in this event a blessed demonstration of the sonship of Christ, and of the Divine authenticity of his Gospel.

Lord, sanctify all the afflictions of thy saints, and in particular the afflictions of thy ministers. May they be instrumental in stirring up the careless and graceless to flee to Jesus for mercy; and may they be the means of promoting the edification of thy people. Should any of us be ever called to endure suffering for Christ or his cause, enable us to count it all joy; and may we be comforted by the animating promise, that, if we suffer with him, we also shall reign with him. We pray that we may be preserved from unbelief. God forbid that we should be among the number of those who believe not. If we do believe, increase our faith. Thy truth, O Lord, cannot be affected by our unbelief. Thou abidest faithful; thou canst not deny thyself.

Lord, give our children faith, that they may be recovered out of the snare of the devil, and no longer be carried captive by him at his will.

We present these our humble and imperfect prayers before thy gracious throne. Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake, the King of kings and Lord of lords. Amen.

IS THIS THY KINDNESS TO THY FRIEND?

Kemsey. Alpha. Magdalen.

L. M.

- 1 BUT, ah! my inmost spirit mourns;
And well my eyes with tears may swim,
To think of my perverse returns;—
I've been a faithless friend to him.
- 2 Often my gracious Friend I grieve,
Neglect, distrust, and disobey:
And often Satan's lies believe
Sooner than all my Friend can say.
- 3 Sure, were not I most vile and base,
I could not thus my Friend requite;
And were not he the God of grace,
He'd frown and spurn me from his sight.

NEWTON.

PROVERBS XVII.

Virtues and Vices.

BBETTER is a dry morsel, and quietness therewith, than an house full of sacrifices with strife.

2 A wise servant shall have rule over a son that causeth shame, and shall have part of the inheritance among the brethren.

3 The fining pot is for silver, and the furnace for gold: but the Lord trieth the hearts.

4 A wicked doer giveth heed to false lips; and a liar giveth ear to a naughty tongue.

5 Whoso mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker: and he that is glad at calamities shall not be unpunished.

6 Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers.

7 Excellent speech becometh not a fool: much less do lying lips a prince.

8 A gift is as a precious stone in the eyes of him that hath it: whithersoever it turneth, it prospereth.

9 He that covereth a transgression seeketh love; but he that repeateth a matter separateth very friends.

10 A reproof entereth more into a wise man than an hundred stripes into a fool.

11 An evil man seeketh only rebellion: therefore a cruel messenger shall be sent against him.

12 Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man, rather than a fool in his folly.

13 Whoso rewardeth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house.

14 The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water: therefore leave off contention, before it be meddled with.

15 He that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are abomination to the Lord.

16 Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a fool to get wisdom, seeing he hath no heart to it?

17 A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity.

18 A man void of understanding striketh hands, and becometh surety in the presence of his friend.

19 He loveth transgression that loveth strife: and he that exalteth his gate seeketh destruction.

20 He that hath a froward heart findeth no good: and he that hath a perverse tongue falleth into mischief.

21 He that begetteth a fool doeth it to his sorrow: and the father of a fool hath no joy.

22 A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. XVII.—What an enjoyment—peace with God, peace of conscience, and peace in our habitations! The splendour of palaces, the sumptuous delicacies which are spread upon the tables of princes, never can repay the want of peace.—Little do rebellious sons think of the infamy they are bringing upon their own heads.—In every part of the journey of life may I feel impressed with the conviction that I am under the eye of Omniscience, and that God trieth the heart.—How odious, as well as injurious, the lying tongue! ever may I be preserved by integrity and truth.—Peculiarly hateful to the eye of God are they who rejoice at the calamities of others. If we have no compassion for others in their afflictions, what will be our doom, when placed before the tribunal of a righteous God, by whom nations are weighed! Great is the influence of a gift: but who can calculate the effect produced by Christ, the unspeakable gift of ETERNAL LOVE! All who possess it are blessed with prosperity, which will last when suns and moons shall shine no more.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as almighty. Thou art as able to form a world, as thou art to form a particle of dust. Thou art as able to form an archangel, as thou art to form the smallest insect. With thy wisdom there is no perplexity, and with thy power there is no difficulty. In thine hand is power and might, and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all. What God is there in heaven and in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might? Blessed be God, for wisdom and might are his. Comfort thy weak and doubting saints with believing views of thy power, thy wisdom, and thy grace. Bring home to their hearts this sweet declaration, Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. Holy Spirit, apply with gracious efficacy to the souls of thy people these animating, these consolatory declarations.

We unite as a family in expressing our humble acknowledgments for the mercies of the night. While many have been deprived of rest by anguish of their minds, and others by the pains of their diseased bodies, thou hast not only given us protection, but thou hast afforded us repose. When we die may the grave be a bed, and not a prison for the reception of our bodies; and through the blessed atonement of Christ may heaven be a prepared mansion to receive our disembodied and happy souls. Give us grace to glorify thee this day: whether we eat or drink, whether we engage in religious duties or in our usual temporary avocations, O may we be enabled to do all to the glory of God.

Divine Redeemer, we adore thee as the friend of man, as the sinner's friend, as a loving friend, as a friend of the most unparalleled disinterestedness, and as a friend who loveth at all times. There is no friend like thee. Thou art an unchanging friend; the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. Thou art an almighty friend, encouraging weak saints to lean upon thine omnipotent arm. And thou art a friend of the most tender compassion; for as a father pitieth his children, so thou, O Lord Jesus, dost pity and comfort and bless them who fear thee. Divine Saviour, enable us to receive thee as our loving, our saving friend. O give us that faith by which we shall even now receive thee as our only friend, our best friend, our everlasting friend.

Give our beloved children grace to look upon thee and to take thee as their friend. The time may soon arrive when we shall be separated from them by death. Be thou their friend, and the want of earthly parents shall be infinitely made up.

Lord, comfort all the afflicted. May sufferers who have no grace have recourse to Jesus in their afflictions; then they will find a brother born for adversity; yea, born to be the comforter of those who are surrounded by the dark clouds of adversity. And give thine afflicted people greater confidence and joy in Jesus as their ELDER BROTHER. Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for the Saviour's sake. Amen.

INSPIRATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Luton. Warmistor. Ayliff Street.

L. M.

- 1 'T WAS by an order from the Lord
The ancient prophets spoke his word;
His Spirit did their tongues inspire,
And warmed their hearts with heavenly fire.
- 2 The works and wonders which they wrought Confirmed the messages they brought;
The prophet's pen succeeds his breath,
To save the holy words from death.
- 3 Great God, mine eyes with pleasure look
On the dear volume of thy book;
There my Redeemer's face I see,
And read his name who died for me. WATTS, 151, B. II.

2 TIMOTHY III.

Persecutors of the Truth.

THIS know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come.

2 For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy,

3 Without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good,

4 Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God;

5 Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away.

6 For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts,

7 Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth.

8 Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth: men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith.

9 But they shall proceed no further: for their folly shall be manifest unto all men, as their's also was.

10 But thou hast fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, charity, patience, 11 Persecutions, afflictions, which came unto me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra; what persecutions I endured: but out of them all the Lord delivered me.

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution.

13 But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.

14 But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them;

15 And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness:

17 That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 TIM. III.—Times may be perilous, and ev ents may appear formidable and threatening; but strictly speaking, the state of a believer is never perilous, and the Church is never in danger. The perseverance of the saint is secure, and the Church is built on the Rock of ages, and can defy every enemy and withstand every danger. What a miserable spectacle is a man blinded by the delusions of sin, bewitched by the charms of earthly pleasures, and carried a willing captive by his corrupted passions and hateful lusts! The mind of such a man is like the troubled sea, sending forth by its agitation the mire of hateful and contaminating pollution. Rancour against God shows itself in the voluntary diffusion of corrupt opinions in opposition to the purity of Gospel-truth. Let such enemies beware, lest the day arrive when they shall be driven away in their wickedness, and be removed from the face of the earth without hope in their death! God observes and watches the movements of the enemies of the truth: he says, "Hitherto shalt thou go, and no further;" and if mercy prevent not, will, in the day of just retribution, visit them with everlasting destruction from his presence, and from the glory of his power. Let us rejoice that the truth of the Gospel remains sure. It is a sun which shall never set—a sun whose glory shall never be extinguished.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the mighty God, and the God of salvation. Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the Lord? The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea. Thou art the great and mighty God, the Lord of hosts is thy name. In thy providence, thou hast furnished illustrious displays of thy might and of thy wisdom, in overturning the plans of the enemies of thy Church, in laying restraints upon them, in taking away their power, and in bringing down upon their heads deserved vengeance.

We assemble in a family capacity around thy gracious throne. We acknowledge thee as the fountain of all our mercies, and as the source of all the comforts we have this day enjoyed. Forgive the sins of our heart, our expressions, and our actions this day chargeable upon us. We desire this night to repose with confidence in thy providential care, that thou wilt suffer no evil to befall us, nor any plague to come near our dwelling. Keep the arms of thy protection around all our relatives and friends. If there are any of them tried with affliction, O fulfil in their experience those promises, which breathe such comfort and peace: When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee: for I am the Lord thy God.

Bless to us, O Lord, what we have now read from thy sacred Word. What reason have we to rejoice that thy Word bears as evident marks of being thy word, as the sun of being thy workmanship! We would acknowledge with grateful hearts, in the language of the Apostle, All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works: Give to our dear children an increasing love to thine inspired Word; and may its doctrines be the foundation of their faith, and its precepts the rule of their life.

Sanctify to our souls what we have now read of the horrid depravity of the heart, and the dreadful corruption of the life of man. We confess that our hearts contain the seeds of all those frightful passions, grovelling lusts, and appalling sins of which we have now read. If we have been preserved from such heart-revolting excesses, we take no honour to ourselves. Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name be all the glory; for thy mercy and thy truth's sake. Lord, have mercy upon the openly profane, who are lovers of their own selves, wrapt up in their own sensual gratification; who are covetous, proud, boasters, blasphemers, unthankful, and unholy. O bring such under the influence of the Gospel of Christ, and make them as distinguished by holiness as they have been by sin. Lord, give us grace to exemplify the power and purity of the Gospel in our hearts and lives. Make us living evidences of the power and truth of the Gospel, by exercising all those heavenly graces of humility, faith, and love which the Gospel makes known.

Lord, hear our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FEARING GOD ALL THE DAY.

Nailsworth. Melody. Brightelmstonc.

C. H.

- 1 THREE happy souls, who born from heaven
While yet they sojourn here,
Humbly begin their days with God,
And spend them in his fear.
- 2 So may our eyes with holy zeal
Prevent the dawning day,
And turn the sacred pages o'er,
And praise thy name, and pray.
- 3 'Midst hourly cares, may love present
Its incense to thy throne—
And, while the world our hands employs,
Our hearts be thine alone!

DODDRIDGE.

PROVERBS XXIII.

Virtues and Vices.

MY son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine.

16 Yea, my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips speak right things.

17 Let not thine heart envy sinners: but be thou in the fear of the Lord all the day long.

18 For surely there is an end; and thine expectation shall not be cut off.

19 Hear thou, my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way.

20 Be not among wine-bibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh:

21 For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty: and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags.

22 Harken unto thy father that begot thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old.

23 Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding.

24 The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice: and he that begetteth a wise child shall have joy of him.

25 Thy father and thy mother shall be glad, and she that bare thee shall rejoice.

26 My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways.

29 Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes?

30 They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine.

31 Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright.

32 At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.

33 Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things.

34 Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast.

35 They have stricken me, shall thou say, and I was not sick; they have beaten me, and I felt it not: when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. XXIII.—Sinners who are living in the enjoyment of the glittering splendour of rank, who are clothed with purple, and who fare sumptuously every day, are so far from being the objects of envy, that they are objects of pity. A life of sin is followed by the darkness of eternal despair; but the fear of God, though accompanied by present sorrows, is followed by the refined, exalted, and eternal joys of heaven. O how foolish, how infatuated the conduct of those who are not deterred, by the fear of hell, from seeking after unhallowed and licentious enjoyments! How should we mourn over the desolating effects of sin, when we witness beings rational and immortal—beings whose nature is capable by Divine grace of partaking of the Divine likeness, and beings who are welcomed to become the children of God and the heirs of heaven, literally sunk below the level of beasts by unsubdued lusts, grovelling appetites, and hateful sensuality! O for grace to seek after the beauties of holiness, which will shine brighter than the stars for ever and ever!

PRAYER.

IN the name of our exalted Redeemer, we draw near to the throne of grace, praying to be thankful for thy kind and preserving care of us, O Lord our God, during the past night, for which we would adore and magnify thy name. O that our soul, and all that is within us, were stirred up by a holy, grateful, and Divine impulse to praise thy holy name. O Lord, thou art the bountiful preserver of all things. By thee all things consist; thou preservest and upholdest all things by the word of thy power, and they continue this day according to thine ordinance.

Blessed Saviour, we need every day a supply of grace for our souls, as much as we require a supply of temporal blessings for our bodies. We come to thee for both. Lord, supply our temporal wants out of the stores of thy providence, and supply our spiritual wants out of the stores of thy grace. O that we may be enabled this day to live in thy fear all the day long. Teach us to begin our day, to spend our day, and to end our day, under the influence of thy fear. May we not only be afraid to offend thee because of thy justice and power, but may we, as loving children, be unwilling to offend thee because of thy love, thy holiness, thy mercy.

Deliver our minds from envious and malignant passions. Suffer us not to envy sinners their temporal prosperity, seeing worldly wealth can never satisfy the desires of man. Suffer us not to envy the prosperity of sinners, when we consider their awfully affecting doom in the world of spirits. Give us, and all our relatives, the rich treasure of grace; then we shall enjoy an inheritance which will afford us consolation here, and eternal joy and triumph hereafter.

We praise thee, O God of salvation, for the hopes which the Gospel affords. O that these hopes may be ours! Placing all our expectations on Christ, and on Christ alone, may we hope for the sanctified improvement of all our afflictions, may we hope for an unstinged death, may we hope for an abundant entrance being administered to us into the heavenly mansions, and may we hope that we shall ever be with the Lord. Glory to God in the highest, that such hopes, placed on such a foundation as the righteousness of Immanuel, God with us, shall never be disappointed—that it is an expectation which shall not be cut off.

Deeply impress upon the minds of our dear children that blessed and affectionate command of the kind Saviour, My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways.

Lord, take our hearts, and suffer not our affections to be placed on the sinful and unhallowed objects of the present life. Lord, preserve us from every description of intemperance. In eating and drinking, may we use, and not abuse, the providential goodness of our God. O forbid that we should take the good creatures of our God, and make them instruments of rebellion against thee.

Have mercy on those who have fallen into the awful temptation, and who have acquired the soul-debasing habit of drunkenness. Lord, stop them in their career. Suffer them not to accomplish their present and eternal ruin. Shew the strength of thy grace, by enabling them to abandon this their besetting lust, and by turning them to the fear and service of God.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

ASSURANCE OF HEAVEN.

Funeral Thought. Chadwell. Ann's.

C. M.

- 1 DEATH may dissolve my body now,
And bear my spirit home;
Why do my minutes move so slow
Nor my salvation come?
- 2 With heavenly weapons I have fought
The battles of the Lord,
Finish'd my course, and kept the faith,
And wait the sure reward.
- 3 God has laid up in heaven for me
A crown which cannot fade;
The righteous Judge at that great day
Shall place it on my head.
- 4 Nor hath the King of grace decreed
This prize for me alone:
But all that love and long to see
The appearance of his Son.

WATTS, 27, B. I.

2 TIMOTHY IV.

Paul's Triumph in the Prospect of Death.

I CHARGE thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom;

2 Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine.

3 For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears;

4 And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables.

5 But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry.

6 For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand.

7 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith:

8 Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing.

9 Do thy diligence to come shortly unto me:

10 For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica; Crescens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 Only Luke is with me. Take Mark, and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry.

16 At my first answer no man stood with me, but all men forsook me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithstanding the Lord stood with me, and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.

18 And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

19 Salute Prisca and Aquila, and the household of Onesiphorus.

20 Erastus abode at Corinth: but Trophimus have I left at Miletum sick.

21 Do thy diligence to come before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 TIM. IV.—When Jesus appeared in his humiliation, he seemed as a root sprung out of a dry ground, without form or comeliness; but at the judgment-day he will fill the firmament with the brightness of his glory. Shall we appear before the judgment-seat of Christ? We shall! Let us then pass the time of our sojourning in godly, filial fear, preparing for the coming of our Lord, and rejoicing in the prospect of his appearance. The prospect of such an appearance, and of such a day, loudly calls for the greatest activity in Christ's service on the part of private Christians, and the ministers of the Gospel of truth. Delightful and encouraging were the recollections of the Apostle, when he looked back and remembered what he was enabled to accomplish for the Church of Christ; and how comforting his anticipations when he looked before him, and beheld the gracious and glorious reward he was destined to receive!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire that our minds may be solemnised in thy presence, when we consider that thou art the omniscient witness of all our purposes, imaginations, words, and actions; and that there is a day approaching when we shall appear before thy dread tribunal. Great Saviour, the second person of the adorable Trinity, we acknowledge thee in all thy Divine honours as God essential, and we adore thee in all thy mediatorial and official honours as the glorified and exalted Saviour of men. All judgment is committed into thy hand, and at thine appearing and kingdom thou shalt judge the quick and the dead, and all nations shall be assembled before thee as the righteous Judge of all. When that day arrives, that great, that solemn day, that day for which every other day was made, may we rejoice at thy appearance. In company with those who shall remain on earth, when thou the Judge shalt appear in the clouds, may we ascend to meet the Lord in the air; and now, in the exercise of that hope, which shall never be cut off, may we comfort ourselves with these words: We shall be ever with the Lord.

We desire, O Lord, at the close of the day, to express our thankfulness for the temporal and spiritual mercies received. Forgive, through the merits of our Saviour's blood, what thy pure eyes have seen amiss in the various duties and avocations in which we have been engaged. May a humbling sense of our daily infirmities make us long for the arrival of that heavenly day when, through the blood of Jesus, we shall exchange sin for holiness, when that which is perfect shall have come, and when that which is in part shall be for ever done away.

Lord, let thy spirit be eminently poured out on all thy ministering servants. For the honour of thy name, and for the eternal interests of the souls of men, may all thine ambassadors on the face of the earth, and in particular thy servant our pastor, be instant in season and out of season; and may they reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine. Have mercy on those hearers of the Word who prefer error to truth, and who would rather have their imagination pleased than their hearts improved.

Bring our dear children under the saving power of the Gospel of Christ. At an early period may their understandings be enlightened with the knowledge of Jesus, the Lamb of God.

Lord, inspire us with that faith which comforted Paul in the prospect of a future state. As he was ready to be offered to endure the pains of martyrdom, O may we be ready to die, and depart to be with Christ, which is far better. When about to step from time into eternity, with humility and triumph may we give utterance to the blessed words which the Apostle has left on record: We have fought a good fight, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for us a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give unto us at that day; and not to us only, but unto all them that love his appearing.

We supplicate thy fatherly care this night. Refresh us with sleep and repose. Hear these the feeble prayers of this worshipping family, for our merciful Redeemer's sake. Amen.

PRAYER FOR MERCIES.
Serenity. Arabia. Wantage.

C. M.

- 1 TEACH me to feel another's woe,
To hide the fault I see:
Mercy may I to other's show;
Show mercy, Lord, to me!
- 2 Moan though I am, not wholly so,
Sinco quickened by thy breath;
O load me, wheresoe'er I go,
Through this day's life or death;
- 3 This day be bread and peace my lot;
All else beneath the sun
Thou know'st if best bestowed or not,
And let thy will be done!

P. S. Z.

PROVERBS XXX.

Agur's Confession and Prayer.

THE words of Agur the son of Jakoh, even the prophecy: the man spake unto Ithiel, even unto Ithiel and Ucal,

2 Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man.

3 I neither learned wisdom, nor have the knowledge of the holy.

4 Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended? who hath gathered the wind in his fists? who hath bound the waters in a garment? who hath established all the ends of the earth? what is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell?

5 Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him.

6 Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar.

7 Two things have I required of thee; deny me them not before I die:

8 Remove far from me vanity and lies: give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me:

9 Lest I be full, and deny thee, and say, Who is the Lord? or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain.

10 Accuse not a servant unto his master, lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty.

11 There is a generation that curseth their father, and doth not bless their mother.

12 There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet is not washed from their filthiness.

17 The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.

21 For three things the earth is disquieted, and for four which it cannot bear:

22 For a servant when he reigneth; and a fool when he is filled with meat;

23 For an odious woman when she is married; and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress.

24 There be four things which are little upon the earth, but they are exceeding wise:

25 The ants are a people not strong, yet they prepare their meat in the summer;

26 The conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks;

27 The locusts have no king, yet go they forth all of them by bands;

28 The spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. XXX.—We never see ourselves as we ought till we are instructed in lessons of humility and repentance. When we mourn over our deficiency in wisdom and knowledge, it is a true evidence that we are walking in wisdom's ways, and that our path will be as the shining light, which shineth more and more until the perfect day. How inexpressibly glorious the power and the majesty of God! All the elements of nature are under his management, and all the events of providence are under his control. Delightful thought, that the God of creation and providence is the God of grace!—The purity of the Scriptures, the sanctifying effects which they produce upon the heart and life by the influences of the Spirit, and the consolation and relief which they afford to those who put their trust in them, are a plain testimony of their Divine origin—that they come from God.—Happy are they who are contented with their lot in circumstances of poverty; and blessed are they who, in circumstances of wealth are humble and thankful, singing, O to grace how great a debtor!

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, we come to thee in the morning of another day, to supplicate thy mercy and adore thy grace. We acknowledge before thee that we are in a wilderness, exposed to many dangers from the corruptions of our own hearts, from the snares of the world, and from the temptations of Satan. Glory to thy great name that we are not left defenceless. Thy name, O Lord, is a strong tower, the righteous runneth into it and is safe. O put us among the number of the righteous; then shall we run to thy glorious attributes; then shall we escape to the arms of thy mercy, where we shall be safe, and where no evil can possibly befall us. Thou hast said, and promised, Whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe. Give us grace to put our trust in thee, and we shall be safe.

O Jesus, enable us to trust in thy love; then we shall ever enjoy the unspeakable advantages of thy fellowship. Enable us to trust in thy righteousness; then shall we be delivered from the condemnation of thy law. Enable us to trust in thy promises; then shall we be enriched with the choicest blessings. Enable us to trust in thy power; then we shall be able to obtain the most distinguished victories over all our enemies.

We desire with renewed gratitude to thank thee for renewed mercies. Thou hast given us a new day accompanied by new mercies: O may renewed blessings excite renewed emotions of thankfulness, love, and praise. Give us thy grace to honour thee in all the engagements of the day, whether of a temporal or a spiritual nature. Should we be exposed to temptation, or visited by affliction, may we be enabled with Habakkuk to sing, The Lord is our strength; and may we be animated by the promise which cheered the heart of the Apostle, when tried by a messenger of Satan: My grace is sufficient for thee, and my strength shall be made perfect in thy weakness.

Lord, inspire us with that humility and holy repentance which Agur felt when he said, Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man. I neither learned wisdom, nor have the knowledge of the holy.—We have great reason, O Lord, to confess our ignorance of things Divine; and that, while the light of the Gospel has been shining so clearly around us, our minds are so little illuminated by its sacred beams. Great have been our privileges, but great has been the abuse of our privileges, and great the misimprovement of our opportunities.

Lord, grant that our dear children may ever be enabled to honour and obey their father and mother, which is the first commandment with promise; and may we, their parents, diligently train them up for Jesus and immortality.

Have pity on disobedient children. Open their eyes to see their danger, and incline their hearts to forsake their sin. Impress upon their minds this awful threatening: The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.

Lord, forgive the imperfect manner in which we have approached thy throne; and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our merciful and exalted Redeemer. Amen.

SALVATION BY GRACE.

Westerham. Highbury College. Grove.

C. M.

- 1 LORD, we confess our numerous faults,
How great our guilt has been!
Foolish and vain were all our thoughts,
And all our lives were sin.
- 2 But, O my soul, for ever praise,
For ever love his name,
Who turns thy feet from dangerous ways
Of folly, sin, and shame.
- 3 'Tis not by works of righteousness
Which our own hands have done;
But we are saved by sovereign grace
Abounding through his Son.

WATTS, 111, B. I.

TITUS II.

Christ the Saviour.

FOR the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, 12 Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world;

13 Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;

14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

TITUS III.

PUT them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work,

2 To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men.

3 For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another.

4 But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared,

5 Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost;

6 Which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour;

7 That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life

8 This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.

10 A man that is an heretic after the first and second admonition reject;

11 Knowing that he that is such is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of himself.

12 When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

13 Bring Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them.

14 And let our's also learn to maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful.

15 All that are with me salute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON TITUS II., III.—There is a great salvation, provided at an infinite expense for sinners, even the chief. Have our eyes been opened to see our absolute need of this salvation? Have we received this salvation from the hand of mercy? Can we look on Jesus and say, "He is all our salvation and all our desire!" Then we are blessed debtors to Divine grace, sovereign, rich, and free. The Gospel is itself pure and spotless, and when applied by the Spirit to the soul of man, makes him holy in his heart, and holy in his life. An inward belief in its doctrines is invariably connected with the outward visible ornaments of a holy conversation and holy actions. The subjects of grace are the most useful subjects of earthly rulers—they are blessed with gentleness of disposition, gentleness of expression, and gentleness of conduct; they show that they have been brought up at Jesus' feet, and that they are the scholars of him who is meek and lowly of heart. True believers think with humility, penitence, and shame, on what they once were, and are filled with astonishment and thankfulness for what they now are: what a difference—once they were the children of wrath, now they are the sons of God!

PRAYER.

WE adore and praise thee, O Lord, as our creator and preserver. What shall we render unto thee for our being, our reason, our health, our social and domestic comforts, and for the immortal nature with which thou hast invested our souls. While we praise thee for these mercies, we have infinitely greater reason to praise thee for Jesus Christ, as our Saviour from sin, death, and hell. In thine abundant mercy thou hast provided a Saviour for lost sinners. In thy sovereignty thou hast past by fallen angels, and thou hast provided salvation for fallen men. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight. We bless thee that we are permitted and enabled to sing, in the language of inspiration, This is life eternal, to know thee the Lord, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

We bless thee, O Lord, that we have an opportunity, at the close of the day and at the close of the week, of falling down prostrate before thy throne, to present the tribute of our praise for the continuance of thy mercies. Sanctify the events of thy providence which have passed over our heads, bless the various religious ordinances and duties in which we have been engaged, and forgive the offences which we have committed. We seek thy gracious care this night; and pray that our lives may be prolonged to another day, and that we may be permitted to enter into thy sacred courts, and hear the animating and joyful accents of the Gospel trumpet.

We supplicate the blessing of the Holy Spirit on the gracious words we have now read. Glory to God that thy grace, which bringeth salvation, hath appeared unto all men. O may saving grace appear to all who are now prostrate before thee. Give us the rich graces of the Holy Spirit, the promised Comforter; then shall we most effectually deny all ungodliness and worldly lusts—then shall we live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world. O inspire us with the grace of hope—that hope which maketh not ashamed—that hope of which Christ is the author and the object; then shall we joyfully look for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ. Eternal praises to thy name, O Jesus, that thou gavest thyself for us, that we might be redeemed from all iniquity, and purified unto thyself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

O Lord, we seek for our dear children the washing of regeneration, as in them we see the evident marks of the degenerate nature they have derived from us; mercifully grant that we may see in them a new nature derived from thee, even the renewing of the Holy Ghost.

Lord, give us clear views of salvation as wholly of grace. May we never fall into the dangerous and God-dishonouring notion, that we can do anything to merit the pardon of sin, or acceptance with God.

Mercifully hear our prayers, through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

VOWS AND THANKSGIVING.

Buckingham. Warwick. New York.

c. n.

- 1 WHAT shall I render to my God
For all his kindness shown?
My feet shall visit thine abode,
My songs address thy throne.
- 2 How much is mercy thy delight,
Thou ever-blessed God!
How dear thy servants in thy sight
How precious is their blood!
- 3 How happy all thy servants are!
How great thy grace to me!
My life, which thou hast made thy care,
Lord, I devote to thee. WATTS, Ps. 116, p. 11.

PSALM CXVI.

Thanksgiving for Deliverance.

I LOVE the LORD, because he hath heard my voice and my supplications.

2 Because he hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live.

3 The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell gat hold upon me: I found trouble and sorrow.

4 Then called I upon the name of the LORD; O LORD, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

5 Gracious is the LORD, and righteous; yea, our God is merciful.

6 The LORD preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me.

7 Return unto thy rest, O my soul; for the LORD hath dealt bountifully with thee.

8 For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.

9 I will walk before the LORD in the land of the living.

10 I believed, therefore have I spoken: I was greatly afflicted:

11 I said in my haste, All men are liars.

12 What shall I render unto the LORD for all his benefits toward me?

13 I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the LORD.

14 I will pay my vows unto the LORD now in the presence of all his people.

15 Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints.

16 O LORD, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou hast loosed my bonds.

17 I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the LORD.

18 I will pay my vows unto the LORD now in the presence of all his people,

19 In the courts of the LORD's house, in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXVI.—May it be our privilege to know what it is to possess the spirit of prayer, to enjoy the answer of prayer, and to have our hearts warmed with love and thankfulness to HIM who is the hearer of prayer. The answer of prayer, is the greatest encouragement for persevering continuance in prayer. Sometimes the sorrows of believers are intense, and their sufferings severe; but they are only of short duration, and the short night of weeping shall soon be followed by a bright, serene, and cloudless day of endless felicity and peace. Inconceivable were the anguish, sorrow, and sufferings of Christ! Now his glory and blessedness exceed the conception of archangels. It is truly animating, encouraging, and delightful to think of the blessed effects produced in the minds of believers by sanctified affliction. Their faith becomes more vigorous, and their prayers more earnest. The afflictions of believers, however numerous, severe, and lasting, never alter their opinion of God as a wise and merciful Father. On the darkest cloud of sorrow they see with the eye of faith the bright rainbow of mercy. Though the believer is low and insignificant in his own estimation, still he occupies a lofty place in Christ's love and in Christ's covenant. And when he lays down the earthly house of this tabernacle, he shall be elevated to a lofty place on Christ's throne. Blessed promise, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne." May we be among the happy number of those who shall be faithful unto death; then shall we at last receive a crown of righteousness, a crown of life, and a crown of glory, that shall never fade away. Amen.

PRAYER.

O THOU Lord of the Sabbath-day, this day, in its institution and in its ordinances, is a blessed demonstration of thy boundless grace. Gracious is the Lord, and righteous; yea, our God is merciful. The Lord preserveth the simple. O fill our hearts with love to thee as a God possessed of every perfection, and as having all thy perfections eminently glorified by the displays of thy grace.

We thank a gracious Providence that we have been refreshed and preserved during the past night, and that our eyes have been opened to see the light of another hallowed day of sacred rest. O what reason have we to praise thee, thou God of salvation, for all spiritual and heavenly blessings in Christ Jesus, for all the means of grace with which we are so richly surrounded, and for all the hopes of glory! When we enter thy sacred courts, may our hearts be blessed with the rich communications of thy grace. May our beloved minister, and the congregation with which we are connected, and ourselves as a family, derive such benefit from a preached Gospel, and enjoy such Divine comfort in waiting upon thee in thy house, that we shall have reason to sing with joy and thankfulness, Surely it is none other than the house of God, it is the gate of heaven!

O Lord, we seek thy love. Give us the satisfying evidence that we are beloved of God. Warm our hearts with love to thee, as the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; then we shall be authorized to conclude that we are indeed beloved of God, and that our name is recorded in the Lamb's book of life. Enable us with the Psalmist to sing, We love the Lord, because he hath heard our voice and our supplication. Bestow upon us graciously the gift and the spirit of prayer; then shall we know the blessedness and the delight of the answer of prayer. If we have reason to believe that a prayer-hearing God has condescended to hear and answer our supplications, may we take encouragement to continue instant in prayer, and thus to resolve, in the strength of grace Divine, Because our God hath inclined his ear, therefore will we call upon him as long as we live.

Pour out upon our children and domestics a spirit of grace and of supplication. May they know the unspeakable delight of fellowship with God, in pouring out their hearts before him in earnest supplication.

O Lord, we bless thee for all the deliverances thou hast wrought out for us in the days that are past. When the sorrows of death compassed us, when we found trouble and sorrow, we called on thy name, O Lord, and thou didst deliver us. We have been brought low; then we cried unto thee, then thou didst help us; thou hast delivered our soul from death, our eyes from tears, and our feet from falling. When we think of all thy mercies, and more especially thy saving mercy, may we thus resolve, in dependence on Divine grace, and in the language of thy servant, We will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord; we will pay our vows unto the Lord now, in the presence of all his people.

Gracious God, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

FORTY-FOURTH WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

PRAISE TO GOD FROM ALL NATIONS.

Worship. Newington

C. M.

- 1 O ALL ye nations, praise the Lord,
Each with a different tongue;
In every language learn his word,
And let his name be sung.
- 2 His mercy reigns through every land;
Proclaim his grace abroad;
For ever firm his truth shall stand;
Praise ye the faithful God.

WATTS, Ps. 117.

PSALM CXVII.

Praising God.

- O PRAISE the LORD, all ye nations: praise him, all ye people.
- 2 For his merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the LORD endureth for ever. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXVIII.

Praising God for Mercies.

- O GIVE thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: because his mercy endureth for ever.
- 2 Let Israel now say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
- 3 Let the house of Aaron now say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
- 4 Let them now that fear the LORD say, that his mercy endureth for ever.
- 5 I called upon the LORD in distress: the LORD answered me, and set me in a large place.
- 6 The LORD is on my side; I will not fear: what can man do unto me?
- 7 The LORD taketh my part with them that help me: therefore shall I see my desire upon them that hate me.
- 8 It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in man.
- 9 It is better to trust in the LORD than to put confidence in princes.
- 10 All nations compassed me about: but in the name of the LORD will I destroy them.
- 11 They compassed me about; yea, they compassed me about: but in the name of the LORD I will destroy them.
- 12 They compassed me about like bees; they are quenched as the fire of thorns: for in the name of the LORD I will destroy them.
- 13 Thou hast thrust sore at me that I might fall: but the LORD helped me.
- 14 The LORD is my strength and song, and is become my salvation.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXVII., CXVIII.—The mercy of God is an overflowing and ever-flowing fountain of blessings, furnishing matter for the joyful praises of the Church militant on earth, and for the enraptured songs of the Church triumphant in heaven. How wonderful the mercy of God! its movements in the Divine mind were from everlasting, and its acts shall continue to everlasting. Christ's ministers are appointed to publish his mercy, and they are required to be living examples in singing to the honour of his mercy. When the chamber of affliction is the chamber of prayer, it is the antechamber of heaven. They who are the enemies of believers, notwithstanding all their number and all their strength, sink into insignificance when compared with Him who is on their side, namely, Jesus, the Lord of hosts, the mighty God, the everlasting Father. With such a defender they can look upon their enemies with scorn, and defy their rage, their violence, and power. Is man weak, and God mighty? Is man mutable, and God unchanging? Is man treacherous, and God faithful? How wise, how advantageous to trust in God, and to place no confidence in man! Nations and kings have combined against Christ and his saints; but it has been all in vain. And they may continue to combine; but their opposition is hopeless, and their destruction certain. Blessed are they, and they alone, who can rejoice in God as the God of their salvation.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our heavenly Father, whom we desire to worship and adore, let all the nations of the earth praise thee; let all the people praise thee. Destroy the worship of idols, and let all the kingdoms of the earth worship and adore thee as the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; for thy merciful loving-kindness is great toward the children of men, and thy truth endureth for ever. O what reason have we as individuals, as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, to give thanks unto thee the Lord! for thy mercy endureth for ever. Hasten the promised day, when the children of Israel, the descendants of faithful Abraham, shall unite with the Christian Church, and say that his mercy endureth for ever. Let the hearts of kings, of rulers, and princes, be made the subjects of redeeming grace; and let them unite with their believing subjects in proclaiming the honours of Jesus, and in saying with thy Church on earth, and thy Church triumphant in heaven, O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

Praise to our God, that we are encouraged to adore thee as the God of salvation. Holy Spirit, we earnestly pray that thou wouldst communicate thy grace; then we shall be able to say, in the language of appropriating faith, and to the honour of God, The Lord is our strength and song, and he also is become our salvation.

May we live to witness a saving change in our beloved children, and to hear them sing, in joyful accents, The Lord is our strength and song, and is become our salvation. Lord, teach our servants to trust in thee, and under this roof may they receive holy impressions never to be effaced.

Have mercy on all who have called upon thy blessed name this day. Thou hast never said to any of the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain. Many have called upon thee in their afflictions; O that they may have abundant reason to say with thy servant, We called upon the Lord in distress: the Lord answered us, and set us in a large place. Many have called upon thee this day, to be delivered from enemies temporal and spiritual—to be preserved from wicked men, from fleshly lusts, and from tempting devils. O enable them to say, in the language of lively faith, The Lord is on our side, we will not fear what man can do unto us: the Lord taketh our part with them that help us; therefore we shall see our desire on them that hate us.

We rejoice, O Lord, in the glorious victories which Jesus, the captain of salvation, has gained over all the enemies of the Church. O Jesus, thine enemies compassed thee about, they compassed thee about like bees; but by thy powerful arm thou hast destroyed them, and thou hast quenched them as the fire of thorns.

Lord, have mercy on the young and rising generation, and particularly the thousands who have this day been placed under the means of Christian instruction. Preserve their unsuspecting minds from all their lusts, their youthful passions, and from the crafty designs of all the enemies of their soul; and enable them, in the exercise of humble faith in Christ, to look their spiritual enemies in the face and say, In the name of the Lord we will destroy them.

As a family we commend ourselves to the care of our heavenly Father this night. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRISTIAN RACE.

Advers. Piety. Cambridge New.

L. M.

- 1 A WAKE, our souls, away, our fears;
Let every trembling thought be gone:
Awake, and run the heavenly race,
And put a cheerful courage on.
- 2 True, 'tis a straight and thorny road,
And mortal spirits tire and faint;
But they forget the mighty God
That feeds the strength of every saint.
- 3 Thee, mighty God, whose matchless power
Is ever new and ever young,
And firm endures, while endless years
Their everlasting circles run:
- 4 From thee, the overflowing spring,
Our souls shall drink a fresh supply;
While such as trust their native strength
Shall melt away, and droop, and die.

WATTS, 46, B. I.

PROVERBS XXXI.

The wise Woman.

WHO can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies.

11 The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil.

12 She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life.

13 She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands.

14 She is like the merchants' ships, she bringeth her food from afar.

15 She riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household, and a portion to her maidens.

16 She considereth a field, and buyeth it: with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.

17 She girdeth her loins with strength, and strengtheneth her arms.

18 She perceiveth that her merchandise is good: her candle goeth not out by night.

19 She layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff.

20 She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy.

21 She is not afraid of the snow for her household; for all her household are clothed with scarlet.

22 She maketh herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing is silk and purple.

23 Her husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land.

24 She maketh fine linen and selleth it; and delivereth girdles unto the merchant.

25 Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come.

26 She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

27 She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

28 Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her.

29 Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

30 Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the LORD, she shall be praised.

31 Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates.

REFLECTIONS UPON PROV. XXXI.—To no individuals, under God, are society and the Church more indebted than to mothers blessed with wisdom and adorned with piety. Their price is far above rubies. Husbands blessed with such associates, and children blessed with such guardians, counsellors, and comforters, cannot sufficiently express their thankfulness to the God of providence and grace. Let all of us take up the maxim by which the virtuous woman is influenced, and in all our relative situations in life let us do each other good, and not evil, all the days of our life. The prosperity of families much depends upon the industry and prudent economy of parents. From this source flow health, cleanliness, and comfort. But when industry is connected with piety, and when the interests of the soul have the precedence of those of the body, such families have the peculiar smiles of Jehovah, and they are a blessed epitome of the heavenly state. Happy families, where the government of the parents is the reign of affection, and the obedience of the children the submission of love!

PRAYER.

WITH humility, reverence, and love, we desire to bow down before thee, O Lord, as the omniscient Jehovah, who searcheth the heart and trieth the reins of the children of men. O that we could say with the Psalmist, and with the same solemnity of feeling, Search us and know our hearts, try us and know our thoughts; see if there be any wicked way in us, and lead us in the way everlasting. We plead, O Lord, that we may acquire the important habit of self-examination. With the greatest impartiality may we inquire, Have we obtained a sight of the plagues of our heart? Have we seen our need of Christ? Have we fled for refuge to lay hold of the hope set before us? Do we love the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world? Can we say respecting him, He is white and ruddy; he is the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely; he is all our salvation, and all our desire? Holy Spirit, grant that we may often address such questions as these to our heart, and that we may be enabled to give those replies which will be the satisfying evidence that we have passed from death to life. Merciful and Divine Counsellor, we seek thy grace, that we may be enabled to obey the wholesome and practical counsel of the inspired Apostle: Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates. O Lord, may the value of the soul, and the infinite importance of having our feet firmly placed on the Rock of Ages, stir us up often and conscientiously to engage in the exercise of self-examination.

We present the humble tribute of our thanksgiving for the mercies of the past night and for the mercies of the past Sabbath. We thank thee we were permitted to observe the ordinances of thine appointment, and that opportunities were afforded us, and the congregation of which we form a part, for drawing water with joy out of the wells of salvation. We supplicate thy wisdom to direct our steps this day, and thy grace to strengthen us in discharging duty and resisting temptation. Lord, prepare us for all the trials, the events, and the duties of the week.

O enable our dear children to devote the golden period of their days, the spring season of their lives, to the service and the honour of Jesus.

Lord, we present our prayers for heads of families, for guardians of youth, for fathers and mothers, and for all the instructors of the rising race. Mercifully give them thy saving grace. Give them that wisdom and prudence and diligence and affection which are the ornaments of that mother of whom we have now read, and of whom it is said, Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

Lord, enable parents by thy spirit to open their mouth with wisdom; and in their tongue may the law of kindness be found. Lord, forgive and accept our imperfect services. May our souls profit by drawing near thy throne. May these our prayers come up before thee with acceptance, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PASTORAL TENDERNESS.

Kinsey. Sharon's Vale. Uxerston.

WHO can a pastor's heart express,
The unutterable tenderness;
Beyond what fondest mothers prove
The yearning pangs of softest love?
2 He only comprehends, who knows
Whence every grace and blessing flows,
Who feels, but never can explain
The bowels of the Son of man.

C. WESLEY.

PHILEMON.

Conversion of Onesimus, Servant of Philemon.

PAUL, a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved, and fellow-labourer, 2 And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus our fellow-soldier, and to the church in thy house:

3 Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers,

5 Hearing of thy love and faith, which thou hast toward the Lord Jesus, and toward all saints;

6 That the communication of thy faith may become effectual by the acknowledging of every good thing which is in you in Christ Jesus.

7 For we have great joy and consolation in thy love, because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother.

8 Wherefore, though I might be much bold in Christ to injoin thee that which is convenient,

9 Yet for love's sake I rather beseech thee, being such an one as Paul the aged, and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ.

10 I beseech thee for my son Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds:

11 Which in time past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee and to me:

12 Whom I have sent again: thou therefore receive him,
that is, mine own bowels:

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy stead
he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the gospel:

14 But without thy mind would I do nothing; that thy benefit should not be as it were of necessity, but willingly.

15 For perhaps he therefore departed for a season, that thou shouldest receive him for ever;

16 Not now as a servant, but above a servant, a brother beloved, specially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the flesh, and in the Lord?

17 If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as myself.

18 If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account;

19 I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it: albeit I do not say to thee how thou owest unto me even thine own self besides.

20 Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord:
refresh my bowels in the Lord.

21 Having confidence in thy obedience I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt also do more than I say.

22 But withal prepare me also a lodging: for I trust that through your prayers I shall be given unto you.

23 There salute thee Epaphras, my fellow-prisoner in Christ Jesus;

24 Marcus, Aristarchus, Demas, Lucas, my fellow-labourers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.
Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON PHILEMON.—The bodies of saints may be shut up in prisons and bound with chains, but their souls are free, and their prayers ascend with glorious liberty to the thrones of God. Prayers, graces, and holy affections, "no human power can bind with chains." God peculiarly smiles on those houses where his worship is observed. These are the dwellings of Jacob, which Jehovah loves. He says respecting them, "Here will I stay, for I have desired it." The possession of grace is the highest dignity which an immortal mind can receive; it is an inheritance which can never be lost; it is a lovely plant which never withers, nor can be plucked up by the roots; it is a Divine principle in the heart, springing up into life eternal. How mysterious the movements of providence! Onesimus, a slave, runs away from his master, is brought under the Word of life, is converted by Divine grace, and from being a slave of Satan becomes a child of God!

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, in approaching thy throne in prayer, we earnestly supplicate thy Spirit, and the rich effusion of his influences. Father of lights, send forth thy light and thy truth; let them lead us, and let them bring us to thy holy habitation. By nature we seek and love and pursue the path which leads to destruction: but we would for ever praise and adore thy holy name, that in thy condescending mercy thou hast made known in thy Gospel, to wandering, guilty sinners, the blessed way of peace, of safety, and of life; that way through Christ which leads to heaven and immortality.

Glory to thy great name, O Jesus, that thou art revealed as laid in Zion for a foundation, a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner-stone; and that thou hast given us the blessed assurance that whosoever believe in Jesus, by building all their hopes on THIS STONE, shall never be disappointed. Suffer us not to build our hopes of pardon, acceptance, and heaven, on any other foundation than that which has been laid in Zion by unerring wisdom and unbounded mercy.

We thank our heavenly Father for the mercies of the day, and pray that the blessing of God may rest on all our temporal and spiritual engagements. Hide us and all our relatives this night under the shadow of thy providential wings; but, above all, under the wings of thy special love. Whither, O Jesus, can we look for spiritual defence but unto thyself? Hang our helpless soul on thee?

Bless the interesting account we have now read of the conversion of Onesimus. Glory to thy grace, that, though in the capacity of a servant he robbed his master of his property and left his employment, thy rich and saving mercy followed the wandering, wretched sinner, brought him under the ministry of thy servant the Apostle, and made him the object of redeeming love, and the remarkable subject of a converting change. Adored be thy gracious sovereignty, that thou didst employ the preaching of thy servant Paul, when a prisoner in Rome in bonds, as the blessed mean of setting a poor, abandoned, miserable slave at liberty.

We confess, O Lord, that we are by nature Satan's slaves, carried captive by him at his pleasure. By nature we are the slaves of vile passions and hateful lusts. By nature we are the slaves of guilt, and of the law as a broken covenant of works. If any of us have been set at liberty, we would adore and magnify the grace of God, which has conferred upon us a blessing of such incalculable excellence. If there are any now kneeling before thee who are still the slaves of sin and the captives of guilt, most merciful Saviour, in thine abundant compassion do thou set them free.

Are our dear children bound fast in Satan's captivity? O set them free, and make them the regenerated and adopted children of the living God.

Lord, have mercy on an enslaved world, and let the nations of the earth no longer remain under Satan's cruel sway. O Jesus, take to thyself thy great power and reign. O hear, answer, and forgive, for the Saviour's sake. Amen.

VANITY OF EARTH, AND SATISFACTION IN CHRIST.

Surrey Chapel. Eylon. Firth's. Turin.

P. M.

- 1 TAUGHT by long experience, Lord,
By thy Spirit taught, I see
True is thy severest word,
All on earth is vanity.
Empty all our bliss below,
Seeming bliss, but real woe.
- 2 Turning then from earth away,
Seek, my soul, the joys above,
Solid joys without alloy;
Saviour, in thy heartfelt love,
Heavenly comfort I possess,
True, substantial happiness.
- 3 Now I find the good of man,
Now I answer thy design,
All in thee alone obtain
Plenitude of grace Divine,
Plenitude of glory too,
Thee when face to face I view!

C. WALKER.

ECCLESIASTES I.

Vanity of Earth.

THE words of the Preacher, the son of David, king of Jerusalem.

2 Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.

3 What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun?

4 One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever.

5 The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose.

6 The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits.

7 All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again.

8 All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.

9 The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.

10 Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already of old time, which was before us.

11 There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

12 I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

13 And I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven: this sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised therewith.

14 I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

15 That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered.

16 I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem: yea, my heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.

17 And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit.

18 For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

REFLECTIONS UPON ECCLES. I.—It is infinitely greater honour to princes to inherit the piety of their fathers, than to inherit their crowns, thrones, and kingdoms. As earthly objects, even the most precious, can never prove a portion suited to the spiritual and immortal nature of the soul, and as they cannot possibly impart satisfaction to the mind, Vanity is properly inscribed upon them all. Multitudes have lost their souls in seeking after earthly wealth; while they who seek after spiritual treasures shall at last inherit immortal joys. The rapid succession of generations furnishes the most solemn reflections, and should stimulate us to seek after an interest in Christ, which will secure for us a fixed residence in heaven, where such changes are for ever unknown. Very mysterious and inexplicable is the blowing of the winds; and as mysterious the breezes of the influence of the Spirit, by which a regenerating change is effected, and the spiritually dead soul called into newness of life.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thee, O Lord our God, that thine ears are ever open to the prayers of those who seek thee in sincerity and truth. Preserve us from a spirit of formality in our approaches to the Divine presence; but may we ever draw near with a true heart, and in the full assurance of faith. We humbly seek the spirit of grace and supplication. If we have received that spirit in any degree, Lord, we pray that we may receive it in greater measure. May our prayers be copious and rich, like those of David; and earnest, like those of Jacob, when he wrestled with the angel, and prevailed. Praise to our God for the encouragement we have to pour out our supplications before thee, for thou art a God of compassion, and gracious; long suffering, and plenteous in goodness and truth.

We acknowledge, O Lord—and we pray that we may make our acknowledgments with thankfulness and love—that all our dependence is on thee. It is in thee we live, move, and have our being. Every breath we draw depends on thee. If for one moment thou shouldst withdraw thy gracious, powerful hand, we must instantly sink into the state of the dead.

We thank thee for protecting us during the past night, and that we now appear before the throne of grace the monuments of thy sparing and providential care. We supplicate all that grace which is necessary for us this day in our various avocations and duties. As our day is, so let our strength be. O enable us every day to cultivate vital, personal religion; and may the influence of the Gospel attend us wherever we are, whatever we do, or with whomsoever we may be called to have intercourse in the lawful business of life. At all times may the men of the world have reason to say respecting us, They have been with Jesus.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, what we have now read of the experience of Solomon respecting the vanity of all earthly objects, and their total insufficiency to impart peace and satisfaction to the soul. Give us grace to see the emptiness of the world and the fulness of Christ. Thou hast given us, O Lord, boundless desires; convince us of the truth, that it was never thy design that these desires should be satisfied with anything short of thyself. Enable us to compare all earthly things with Jesus in his person, his righteousness, his offices, and his salvation; and then may we say respecting an empty, deceiving world, what Solomon said as the result of his extensive experience: Vanity of vanities, all is vanity.

Preserve our dear children from the delusive hopes of worldly wealth, or earthly pleasure. O give them a love to spiritual treasures and heavenly joys, and inspire them with those hopes which reach to heaven and God.

Bless our aged friends, who have had lengthened opportunities of seeing the emptiness and vanity of earthly objects. Give them a vigorous faith in Christ; then they shall bear the infirmities of age with patience, and be animated with the hopes of heaven and immortality.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Hath. Auricula. Sabbath. Islington.

L. R.

- 1 GOD, who in various methods told
His mind and will to saints of old,
Sent down his Son, with truth and grace,
To teach us in these latter days.
- 2 Our nation reads the written word,
That book of life, that sure record:
The bright inheritance of heaven
Is by the sweet conveyance given.
- 3 God's kindest thoughts are here expressed,
Able to make us wise and blessed;
The doctrines are divinely true,
Fit for reproof and comfort too.
- 4 Ye happy lands, who read his love
In long epistles from above,
(He hath not sent his sacred word
To every land,) Praise ye the Lord.

WATTS, 53, B. I.

HEBREWS I.

Christ's Glory.

GOD, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets,

2 Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds;

3 Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high;

4 Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

5 For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?

6 And again, when he bringeth in the first-begotten into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him.

7 And of the angels he saith, Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.

8 But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom.

9 Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

10 And, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands:

11 They shall perish; but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment;

12 And as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

13 But to which of the angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool?

14 Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. I.—It is consistent with reason, and also with God's sovereignty, wisdom, and goodness, that he should make, even to fallen man, a revelation of himself, his purposes, and his will. What joy should fill our hearts, that he has made himself known as the God of salvation! Blessed is he who can say, "God by his Spirit hath made himself known to me as the God of my salvation, as my God and my Father in Christ." So infinitely important is the revelation which God has given to our world, that his only-begotten Son, the second person of the Trinity, became incarnate, and tabernacled among the children of men, that this glorious revelation of mercy and grace should be made known.

May our hearts be filled with exalted and adoring views of Christ in his Divinity, as the Creator of the vast universe, and as the providential preserver of all things by the hand of his omnipotent power. Amazing love! matchless condescension!—that the mighty Creator, who made all worlds, should, in circumstances of unparalleled humiliation, have made atonement for human transgressions! Are angels called to love and adore this glorious Saviour, who never required the benefit of his righteousness? Surely we have far more reason to love and adore the Prince of life, without whose atoning sacrifice we must have perished for ever.

PRAYER.

IN approaching thy throne, O Lord our God, we seek the gracious aid of thy heavenly grace. O prepare our hearts to present suitable supplications before thee, and cause thine ear to hear the requests which we offer up in the name of Christ. Lord, quicken us, and we will call on thy name.

Blessed and Divine Saviour, we desire as a family to adore thee in all thy Divine excellencies and prerogatives. We praise thee for the rich and sublime declarations of thy Divinity contained in the portion of Scripture we have now read. Holy Spirit, enable us with the most devout reverence to acknowledge and adore our exalted Saviour, as possessed of uncreated attributes, and of Divine and underived per-fections.

O Jesus, thou art he who made the worlds. All things were made by thee, and without thee there was nothing made that was made. Thou art the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of the Father's person. Infinite is thy power; for by the word of thy power thou dost uphold all things in nature, in providence, and grace. Thou art the Lord of angels: they are thy creatures, thy subjects; and it is their delight to minister before thy throne, and to hasten even to the most distant parts of thy vast dominions, to execute thy will. Thou makest thine angels spirits, and thy ministers a flame of fire. Lord Jesus, make us thy willing subjects, and thy devout worshippers. Like angels, may it be our greatest delight to obey the commands of our merciful Redeemer, and to devote ourselves wholly and implicitly to thy service.

May our dear children take angels for their pattern, in yielding a ready and a loving obedience to Jesus Christ. O enable them, almighty Saviour, to surrender their heart to thee.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as the King of nations and as the King of Zion. How insignificant and perishing are earthly thrones compared with thine! Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever. How corrupted and unjust the administration of earthly governments when compared with thine!
For a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom.
Thou dost love righteousness and hate iniquity. Blessed Saviour, may we as a family, and may all the families with which we are connected, be under the mild and merciful sway of thy mediatorial sceptre. O have compassion on an ignorant, enslaved, polluted, miserable world. May the blessings of thy mediatorial government soon overspread the earth.
Sway thy sceptre, Saviour, all the world around. O Jesus, we adore thee in thine immutability. The visible heavens shall perish, but thou remainest; as a vesture shalt thou fold them, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail. Lord Jesus, give us an interest in thine unchanging love, and in the unchanging merit of thy finished righteousness.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the day, forgive wherein we have offended thee our God, watch over our persons this night, and sanctify our approach to thy throne, for our Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

DEATH OF THE RICH SINNER.

Peter's Sermon. Paul's.

L. E.

- 1 IN vain the wealthy mortals toil,
And heap their shining dust in vain,
Look down and scorn the humble poor,
And boast their lofty hills of gain.
- 2 Their golden cordials cannot ease
Their pained hearts or aching heads,
Nor fright nor bribe approaching death
From glittering roofs and downy beds.
- 3 The lingering, the unwilling soul
The dismal summons must obey,
And bid a long, a sad farewell
To the pale lump of lifeless clay.

WATTS, 24, B. J.

ECCLESIASTES VIII.

Providence and Death.

WHO is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the boldness of his face shall be changed.

2 I counsel thee to keep the king's commandment, and that in regard of the oath of God.

3 Be not hasty to go out of his sight: stand not in an evil thing; for he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him.

4 Where the word of a king is, there is power: and who may say unto him, What doest thou?

5 Whoso keepeth the commandment shall feel no evil thing: and a wise man's heart discerneth both time and judgment.

6 Because to every purpose there is time and judgment, therefore the misery of man is great upon him.

7 For he knoweth not that which shall be: for who can tell him when it shall be?

8 There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death: and there is no discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.

9 All this have I seen, and applied my heart unto every work that is done under the sun: there is a time wherein one man ruleth over another to his own hurt.

10 And so I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of the holy, and they were forgotten in the city where they had so done: this is also vanity.

11 Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.

12 Though a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him:

13 But it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God.

14 There is a vanity which is done upon the earth; that there be just men, unto whom it happeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the righteous: I said that this also is vanity.

15 Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry: for that shall abide with him of his labour the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

16 When I applied mine heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth: (for also there is that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes:)

17 Then I beheld all the work of God, that a man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun: because though a man labour to seek it out, yet he shall not find it; yea, farther; though a wise man think to know it, yet shall he not be able to find it.

REFLECTIONS UPON ECCLES. VIII.—Who can describe the excellences and the advantage of that saving wisdom which comes down from above? It lifts up the mind to the noblest heights of moral and spiritual elevation; it gives clearness and penetration to the mental eye; it removes the deformity of pride, and imparts lovely ornaments of humility; it softens the asperities of temper, and beautifies the life with gentleness, meekness, and love. Is it so important and so necessary for the well-being of society, and for the promotion of individual happiness, to keep the commandments of earthly kings? How infinitely more important it is to keep the commandments of the King of kings; and to yield a loving and filial obedience to the laws of heaven—presented by the hand of our Divine Mediator—as a rule of life! Is the eye of an earthly king so powerful and influential? O how much we should feel impressed under the eye of the omniscient Jehovah!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, our God and Father in Christ, as the blessed fountain of all wisdom. Thou art the teacher of angels and the instructor of men. Thou hast given instinct to the inferior tribes of creation, but to man thou hast given reason and understanding. Thou teachest us more than the beasts of the earth, and makest us wiser than the fowls of heaven. O what reason have we to mourn that, on account of our depravity, we are in many respects more degraded than the brutal tribes. What thou didst say of ancient Israel, is justly applicable to us as a family, as a neighbourhood, and as a nation: The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but Israel doth not know, my people do not consider. Lord, we acknowledge the vileness and the deceitfulness of our heart. In our most serious and devout moments, we can perform no services which deserve thy love, and we can present no sacrifices which merit the pardon of the least offence. O Lord, we would earnestly plead that the guilt of all our sins may be washed away in the precious blood of Christ; and through his righteousness may we be accepted in the sight of a holy and a righteous God.

We desire with grateful hearts to acknowledge thy goodness during the past night. Praise to our God that goodness and mercy have attended us all our days. O may it be our happiness to dwell in the house of the Lord for ever, to mingle with pure and perfect spirits, and to shout the praises of our God through the ceaseless ages of eternity. Grant us thy Divine aid, that we may glorify thee during the whole of this day, and during the whole of our lives, in our bodies and in our spirits, which are thine.

Give us, O Lord, saving wisdom. We have now read that a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine. Give us Divine and saving wisdom, then our hearts shall shine with grace, and our lives with holiness. Blessed Saviour, give us thy wisdom; then our light, derived from thee, shall so shine before men, that they shall be induced to associate themselves with us in thy service, and glorify our Father who is in heaven. While it is our duty to keep the commandment of earthly rulers, above all, O may we be enabled to keep the commandment of Jesus, the King of kings.

May our dear children, and servants, feel the influence of thy Word. Thy Word is powerful; may they feel its powerful and its saving efficacy.

Jesus, thou conqueror of death, prepare us for the event of dissolution. Affect us with the solemnity of death, and with the irresistible power of that enemy, in laying level with the dust all ranks and descriptions of men. Affect us with a sense of the awful situation of the rich, the mighty, and the great, who die unprepared. Blessed Saviour, may we be clothed in thy righteousness: then shall we glorify thee in death, and exchange the sufferings of a dying bed for the triumphs of heaven.

Lord, hear, answer, and forgive, for Christ's sake, who is worthy of the praises of angels and saints, for ever and ever. Amen.

DIVINE COMPASSION.

Norton. Gethsemane. Gearsd.

P. M.

- 1 HOW great that compassion, my Saviour, my God,
Which led thee to purchase our peace with thy blood;
When clouds and dark vengeance encompassed the throne,
'Twas pity, soft pity, which brought Jesus down.
- 2 More mild than the morning the Saviour was seen,
His heart all compassion, his spirit serene;
His brow crowned with thorns, and extinguished his eyes,
My father, forgive them—he whispers and dies.
- 3 Assist me, Redeemer, that pardon to gain,
Which thou at the price of thy life didst obtain;
Speak peace to my spirit—then call me away,
To triumph with thee in the mansions of day.

COLLIER.

HEBREWS II.

Christ's Love to Man.

THEREFORE we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip.

2 For if the word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward;

3 How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him;

4 God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?

5 For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come, whereof we speak.

6 But one in a certain place testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him?

7 Thou madest him a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands:

8 Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we see not yet all things put under him.

9 But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man.

10 For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings.

11 For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren, 12 Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee.

13 And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold I and the children which God hath given me.

14 Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil;

15 And deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

16 For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham.

17 Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people.

18 For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. II.—The Gospel is an invaluable treasure; may God the Spirit teach us to see its worth, to receive the blessings which it makes known, and to lay hold upon it and retain it, as an inheritance rich and transcendent. In proportion to the excellence of the Gospel-message, is the guilt and the danger of its rejection. Is salvation a deliverance from every evil, especially in the world to come?—to refuse its acceptance must expose us to all the miseries of the lost. Is salvation the enjoyment of the greatest blessings here and hereafter?—if by faith we receive this salvation, we obtain a secure title to the joys of immortality: to reject such a boon must be the greatest folly, and to accept it the greatest wisdom. The Gospel has had the most astonishing outward, miraculous evidence of its Divine origin and truth. Have we enjoyed the inward testimony of the Spirit, that we are enlightened by its truth, and sanctified by its influence? Then “we count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ.”

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, the God of salvation, and the only object of religious worship, thou art he for whom are all things, and by whom are all things. The heavens and the earth thou didst call into existence, to declare the honour of thine exalted perfections. The heavens declare thy glory, and the earth sheweth forth thine handiwork. We would rejoice in the glory derived from the visible creation; but we rejoice that thy perfections are more glorified by the work of redemption than by all thy works beside. Great is thy delight in the first creation, but infinitely greater thy delight in the new creation, even redemption through the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son.

Forgive, O Lord, the sins of the past day. If we have followed our temporal business with too great earnestness—if we have allowed the love of the world to obtain too great ascendancy—if we have engaged in our spiritual duties with cold indifference, with languor of spirit—if we have yielded to any temptation, or given way to angry and envious passions, Lord, we supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood, and we seek supplies of restraining and renewing grace, that, in the time to come, we may be effectually preserved from the recurrence of these sins. We seek the continued protection and care of our heavenly Father this night. May we retire to rest under the encouraging influence of thy promise: Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose heart is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee.

May the influence of the Spirit render the word we have read profitable to our souls; and may the solemn, animating, and comforting truths sink deep into our hearts, and produce impressions never to be erased. We bless thee for the whole of Divine revelation, part of which was made known by angels to ancient prophets, and part of which was communicated by thine only-begotten Son in his own person, clothed with human flesh. We would lament the treachery of our memory, and that the most sacred and important truths so readily slip from our remembrance.

Teach our children to treasure up in their memory a rich store of Divine truth. Like Timothy, may they know the Scriptures from their early days, and in future life show their saving and sanctifying effects.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for a GREAT SALVATION. O suffer us not to despise this salvation. Convince the graceless and profane, who treat the offers of salvation with scorn, that unless mercy prevent, they cannot escape the miseries of hell. Lord, arrest them in their mad career of impiety, obstinacy, and rebellion.

We adore thee, O Saviour, in thy matchless love and boundless mercy, in taking upon thee the nature of man to become the Redeemer of men. Deliver us, we pray, from the fear of death; but, above all, from the sting of death.

We humbly supplicate the answer of our prayers, only in the name of Christ, our Mediator and Lord. Amen.

LIVE THE DAY OF GRACE AND HOPE.

Downside. Old England. Angel's Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 LIFE is the time to serve the Lord,
The time to insure the great reward;
And while the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return.
- 2 Life is the hour that God has given
To escape from hell, and fly to heaven;
The day of grace, and mortals may Secure the blessings of the day.
- 3 The living know that they must die,
But all the dead forgotten lie;
Their memory and their sense is gone,
Alike unknowing and unknown.

Watts, 88, B. 1.

ECCLESIASTES IX.

Like things happening to Good and Bad.

FOR all this I considered in my heart even to declare all this, that the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God: no man knoweth either love or hatred by all that is before them.

2 All things come alike to all: there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not: as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath.

3 This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all: yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead.

4 For to him that is joined to all the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion.

5 For the living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten.

6 Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

7 Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works.

8 Let thy garments be always white; and let thy head lack no ointment.

10 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

11 I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all.

12 For man also knoweth not his time: as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them.

13 This wisdom have I seen also under the sun, and it seemed great unto me:

14 There was a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great bulwarks against it:

15 Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man.

16 Then said I, Wisdom is better than strength: nevertheless the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard.

17 The words of wise men are heard in quiet more than the cry of him that ruleth among fools.

18 Wisdom is better than weapons of war: but one sinner destroyeth much good.

REFLECTIONS UPON ECCLES. IX.—True believers know with satisfaction, joy, and thankfulness, that all which concerns them in time and in eternity is in the hand of God, who loves them and watches over them with the tenderness of a compassionate Father; while at the same time they do not judge of their interest in God's love by mere outward events; when enduring calamities in common with others, they have the inward testimony of the Spirit bearing witness with their spirit that they are the children of God. O may this testimony, this witness, this assurance be ours! There is often a great resemblance in the outward circumstances of the righteous and the wicked in this life; but what a difference in their inward dispositions, views, affections, and enjoyments; and what a wonderful difference beyond the grave! True piety produces true joy. May we be enabled to exemplify to all around, the holy cheerfulness of Divine grace!

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Lord God, we acknowledge that the righteous and the wise, and their works, are in thy hands. Our souls, our bodies, our substance, our comfort, our hopes, and all, are in thy hand. We desire, in the language of humble submission and believing confidence, to say, We are the Lord's; let him do with us what seemeth good in his sight!

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy sovereignty and wisdom displayed in all the events which befall the children of men. All is under the managing hand of thy providence. In those events which happen alike to the righteous and the wicked, we adore thy wisdom and equity. There is one event to the righteous and the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not. When thou dost permit famine, pestilence, and war, to visit the nations, we see one event befalling the righteous and the wicked. Thou sendest the ordinary diseases which afflict the children of men, and there we see one event befalling the clean and the unclean. In all these we acknowledge the wisdom and the justice of thy providential government. But may our eyes be open to see the affecting difference between the righteous and the wicked, as it respects their state, their prospects, and their enjoyments. Lord give us an interest in thy favour, in thy covenant, in the person and righteousness of thy Son, and in all the blessings which he purchased by his death. O Lord God, give us this interest; then we will say with thy servant Habakkuk, Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vine; the labour of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flocks shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation.

Graciously impress on our hearts what we have now read of death, that last and solemn event, which shall separate us for ever from the objects of time and earth. As we are sure we must die, O enable us assuredly to seek our interest in Christ, without which we shall never be prepared to die. May the prospect of death powerfully convince us of the sinfulness of indulging envious and malevolent passions. And as death may so soon separate us from each other, may we study to provoke each other to love and good works.

Lord, bless to our children and servants that wise and wholesome counsel, Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

Lord, have mercy on our careless and graceless friends, and suffer them not to neglect the great concerns of the soul. May the certain prospect of death animate them to flee to Jesus from the wrath to come.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the night, and assist us in all the duties of the day. Give us grace to glorify thee; and may our prayers be graciously answered, for our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

OBEYING MERCY'S CALL.

Fordingbridge. Charity. Finsbury.

L. M.

- 1 COME, let us hear his voice to-day,
The counsels of his love obey;
Nor let our hardened hearts renew
The sins and plagues that Israel knew.
- 2 Israel, that saw his works of grace,
Yet tempt their Maker to his face,
A faithless, unbelieving brood
That tired the patience of their God.
- 3 Thus saith the Lord, How false they prove!
Forget my power, abuse my love;
Since they despise my rest, I swear,
Their feet shall never enter there.

WATTS, Ps. 95.

HEBREWS III.

Christ's Faithfulness and Invitations.

WHEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus;

2 Who was faithful to him that appointed him, as also Moses was faithful in all his house.

3 For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house.

4 For every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is God.

5 And Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after;

6 But Christ as a son over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

7 Wherefore (as the Holy Ghost saith, To day, if ye will hear his voice,

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They do alway err in their heart; and they have not known my ways.

11 So I swore in my wrath, They shall not enter into my rest.)

12 Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.

13 But exhort one another daily, while it is called To day; lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

14 For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end;

15 While it is said, To day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For some, when they had heard, did provoke: howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcases fell in the wilderness?

18 And to whom swore he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. III.—May Jesus, as our great Surety and High-priest, be the daily object of our loving and adoring admiration. What a rich illustration and proof his incarnation, obedience, sufferings, and death, give of his faithfulness to his new covenant engagements! Great was the work of Moses; infinitely greater the work of Christ. Connected with the Old Testament Church, Moses was wonderful; connected with the New Testament Church, Christ is infinitely more wonderful. Great is the name of Moses, who was king of Jeshurun; Christ's name, as the renowned Saviour of a lost world, is above every name. Now is our Gospel-day; now is the day of mercy, when we may enter into covenant with God; now we may become the possessors of grace, and be made the heirs of glory. Woe will be to those whose hearts continue hardened during such a day! If such a day is lost, never to return, it had been better for them if they had never been born! May the Holy Spirit communicate his grace, that we may improve this our day! Then we shall at last enter upon the enjoyment of that rest which remains for the people of God.

PRAYER.

GOD of salvation, and Hearer of prayer, enable us by thy good Spirit to draw near thy blessed throne, in the exercise of godly fear and lively confidence. In approaching the Divine presence, may we be impressed with the necessity of purity of heart and holiness of affections; remembering that, if we regard iniquity in our heart, thou the Lord wilt not hear us. May we therefore resolve with the Psalmist, We will wash our hands in innocency, so will we compass thine altar.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the apostle and high-priest of our profession; and we praise thee that thou didst cheerfully come from heaven to earth on an errand of mercy, to deliver a miserable and enslaved world from the alarming consequences of sin. Great Saviour, we adore thee as the creator of that vast structure, the universe; thou art God, who built all things. But we adore thee as the builder of another structure, even thy Church, which reflects greater honour on thine attributes than all thine other works beside.

We desire, O Jesus, to rejoice in the glorious fidelity with which thou didst fulfil all thy suretyship engagements. Greatly didst thou honour Moses, in giving him grace to be so faithful in all his house; but thou, O Redeemer of the Church, art infinitely more worthy of honour than Moses, for thou art the actual builder of that spiritual temple, the Church, which thou wilt preserve with great glory for ever. O that we may belong to this house, that we may be living stones in the sacred edifice.

O may our beloved children belong to this spiritual temple; and may they be pillars in thy heaven above, to go no more out.

Give all of us the satisfying evidence that we belong to thy Church. Give us confidence in the righteousness of Christ, and give us joy in Christ; and teach us to hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end of our days; then we shall have the pleasing inward testimony that we are thine, and that we shall live in thy glorified presence through endless day.

What reason have we, thou holy and heart-searching God, to mourn over our own hardness, and obstinacy, and unbelief! and what reason have we to mourn and lament over the proud and infatuated resistance which is made by thousands who hear the Gospel, against the blessed, the affectionate, and the earnest calls of mercy. Alas, multitudes are constantly erring in their hearts, and deliberately refusing to know the ways of wisdom, holiness, and faith, which lead to heaven and immortality. Glory to thy name, O God of mercy, that the calls of love are still continued to the impenitent among us. To such in thy presence as may belong to that number, O say, with Divine and effectual power, To-day, if you will hear my voice, harden not your hearts. Take heed lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.

We thank thee, O God, for the mercies of the day, and for this opportunity of addressing thy throne as the objects of thy special care. Mercifully hear our feeble and unworthy applications, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

YOUTH AND JUDGMENT.

Warrington. Job. Rippon's.

L. M.

- 1 YE sons of Adam, vain and young,
Indulge your eyes, indulge your tongue,
Taste the delights your souls desire,
And give a loose to all your fire:
- 2 Purge the pleasures you design,
And cheer your hearts with songs and wine;
Enjoy the day of mirth, but know,
There is a day of judgment too.
- 3 God from on high beholds your thoughts,
His book records your secret faults;
The works of darkness you have done
Must all appear before the sun.
- 4 The vengeance to your follies due
Should strike your hearts with terror through:
How will ye stand before his face,
Or answer for his injured grace?
- 5 Almighty God, turn off their eyes
From these alluring vanities;
And let the thunder of thy word
Awake their souls to fear the Lord.

Watts, 89, B. 1.

ECCLESIASTES XI.

Diligence in God's Service.

CAST thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days.

2 Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth.

3 If the clouds be full of rain, they empty themselves upon the earth: and if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be.

4 He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.

5 As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child: even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all.

6 In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.

7 Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun:

8 But if a man live many years, and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness; for they shall be many. All that cometh is vanity.

9 Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment.

10 Therefore remove sorrow from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh: for childhood and youth are vanity.

REFLECTIONS UPON ECCLES. XI.—What a plain, profitable, and important duty is that of giving to the poor! Nothing is a more certain mean of making men rich. No objections, drawn from our right to what we have, from the narrowness of our circumstances, from the discouragements which we have already met with in it, or from our not knowing how it can be made up to us, ought to make us neglect so much as one opportunity of charity. But, above all, it is most sinful and foolish for either old or young to indulge their lusts, and live unconcerned about Jesus Christ and his salvation, when heavy troubles, an important death, an awful judgment, and an endless eternity, are before them, and they know not how near. Pleasant is the light of the natural day, but infinitely more delightful the light of Jesus, the Sun of righteousness. O may this sun rise on us with healing in his wings! Temporal prosperity is a snare and injury to the soul, when it excludes from the mind the daily contemplation of the day of death and the eternal world. What a charm is given to youth by the cheerfulness of unfeigned piety! Even the prospects of a judgment-day will not lessen or interrupt the joys of religion. In the exercise of grace, the youthful saint longs for that day, that glorious day.

PRAYER.

WE bless thee, merciful God, who graciously hearest the prayers of thy people, as thou hast promised: The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears are open to their cry. Lord, we are in ourselves unrighteous, and therefore, on our account, no prayer that we present, however suitable, can possibly be answered. But we rejoice that Jesus, our surety, has provided a righteousness, and that we are welcome to receive the benefit of that righteousness, and allowed on the foundation of its merits to plead the answer of our prayers. Look upon us, O prayer-hearing God, in the face of thine Anointed.

We present our humble thanks for the mercies of the night, and that we are now permitted to fall prostrate before the throne of grace. Preserve us this day from offending thee by sinful imaginations, words, or actions. Teach us daily to remember the great end of our existence: to glorify God and enjoy him for ever; and give us grace to live up to that glorious end.

Lord, instruct us in the important habit of going constantly about doing good. Give us a superlative love to God, and a lively, active faith in Christ; then we shall possess within us those holy motives and principles by which we shall be animated to seek the glory of God, and the best interests of the children of men. Teach us to cast the seed of benevolent actions, holy counsels, and wise evangelical instructions, on the waters of society, encouraged by thy promise; then we shall not sow the seed in vain, but assuredly reap the fruit, though at the distance of many days.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the clouds of rain, which empty themselves on the earth in refreshing showers; but, above all, we thank thee for the clouds of grace, from which showers of saving blessings descend upon the garden of thy Church.

Lord, persuade our dear children in the morning of life to sow the seeds of diligence and knowledge and wisdom, by a constant observance of the ordinances of religion, which will afterwards spring up by thy spirit into immortal life.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the natural light of the sun of heaven, and for eyes to behold it. We bless thee we can say, in the enjoyment of the blessings of light, and eyes to see it, Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun. Lord, cause the light of salvation, even the light of Jesus, to shine within us, and give us the eye of faith to behold it; then we shall be able to sing, in joyful accents, Truly the light of salvation is sweet, and it is a pleasant thing to behold the rays of the Sun of righteousness rising upon us with healing in his wings.

Have mercy on our youth, O Lord. O may they never forget that, while they walk in the sight of their eyes, and in the ways of their own heart, yet for all these things God will bring them into judgment. On no day of our lives may we forget that there is a day of death and a day of judgment. In the prospect of those days may we flee to Jesus, who is willing to introduce us into another day, even an eternal, heavenly day. Father of all our mercies, graciously hear our prayers, for our exalted Saviour's sake. Amen.

HOPE IN THE SURE COVENANT.

Penitence. Reliance. Warfare.

L. M.

- 1 HOW oft have sin and Satan strove
To rend my soul from thee, my God!
But everlasting is thy love,
And Jesus seals it with his blood.
- 2 The oath and promise of the Lord
Join to confirm the wondrous grace;
Eternal Power performs the word,
And fills all heaven with endless praise.
- 3 Amidst temptations sharp and long
My soul to this dear refuge flies;
Hope is my anchor firm and strong,
While tempests blow and billows rise.     Watts, 139, B. 1.

HEBREWS VI.

Apostasy and Steadfastness.

THEREFORE leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do, if God permit.

4 For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost,

5 And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come,

6 If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

7 For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God:

8 But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned.

9 But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you do shew the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end:

12 That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself,

14 Saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee.

15 And so, after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise.

16 For men verily swear by the greater: and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.

17 Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath:

18 That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us:

19 Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil;

20 Whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. VI.—Perfection in knowledge, and in every grace, should be the object of our holy ambition, and the subject-matter of our most earnest prayers. We should never rest satisfied with present attainments, nor with present degrees of grace; but diligently seek after a more extensive knowledge of the mysteries of the Gospel, and greater conformity to the Divine likeness. Let us examine ourselves, whether our knowledge of Divine things is speculative or saving, and whether our enjoyment of religion has its origin in the living principle of grace in the soul. It is a serious truth, that much may resemble grace which is not grace, as the counterfeit resembles the current coin. Though no genuine believer can fall from grace, many, alas! have fallen into the depths of endless woe from the lofty pinnacle of numerous, great, and distinguished attainments. What a dreadful spiritual calamity is apostasy! it is a disease seldom cured, and, alas! it is the awful precursor of everlasting despair. Let nothing satisfy us but the root of the matter, namely, the possession of that spiritual life, which flows from a saving union to Jesus, the fountain of life, the way, the truth, and the life. Then we shall be able to sing, "When he who is our life shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is."

PRAYER.

FATHER of our mercies, with solemnity and godly fear we ought to approach thy sacred presence. O Lord, graciously enable us in this manner to approach thee. May these words deeply affect our minds, when we draw near thy throne, and assemble around the domestic altar: The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord, but the prayer of the upright is his delight. Lord, make us holy and upright and sincere in all our religious professions, and in our religious services. O fulfil in our experience as a family that encouraging promise, and may we feel its influence in all our religious observances: I will refine them as silver is refined, and I will try them as gold is tried; and they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people, and they shall say, The Lord is my God.

We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of immutable truth. And we praise thee that thou hast given to thy Church thine oath, to convince them of the immutability of the counsels of thy law and of the covenant of thy grace.

Holy Spirit, sanctify to our minds the affecting account we have now read of the awful and alarming sin of apostasy. Preserve us from that destroying sin. Convince those who have a profession of religion without its power, that apostasy is a sin to which they are liable. May this conviction animate them to seek that saving grace which alone can prevent the calamity of apostasy from befalling them. Open their eyes to see the aggravation as well as the danger of this sin. O convince them that to cast off a profession of the faith of Christ, is to crucify to themselves afresh the Son of God, and put him to an open shame.

O Lord, we lament that while nominal professors are liable to apostasy, real Christians are liable to backsliding. We would mourn over the numerous instances of backsliding which have occurred among thy people; and we confess and lament that we have often offended thee by falling into a backsliding state. Lord, bring home thy word with power to the minds of backsliders. May this word be brought to their remembrance: If any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him. May we and our beloved relatives have reason humbly and confidently to say, We are not of them who draw back to perdition, but of them that believe to the saving of the soul. And now we pray that our whole spirit and soul and body may be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus.

Lord, preserve our dear children from apostasy or backsliding. The Lord preserve them unto his heavenly kingdom. Have mercy on aged saints, and comfort them with the hope of heavenly joys. May they long to enter those heavens whither Jesus, the forerunner, has gone before them.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the day, and afford us thy fatherly care this night. Lord, hear the imperfect prayers of thine unworthy suppliants, for Jesus' sake, the faithful and true Witness. Amen.

LIFE, EARTH, AND HEAVEN.

Eltham. Spas Chapel.

P. M.

1 WHAT is life?—'tis but a vapour,
Soon it vanishes away;

Life is like a dying taper,
Then my soul, why wish to stay?
Why not spread thy wings, and fly
Up to yonder world on high?

KELT.

2 What is earth?—a world of sorrow,
Strow'd with flowers that quickly die;
Lovely though they seem, to-morrow
All in ruin they shall lie:
Upwards fix thy longing eyes,
Seek a heavenly paradise!

3 What is heaven?—a land of glory,
Where the ransomed spirits dwell;
Chanting forth their wondrous story,
Which they shall for ever tell!
Up my soul, and join their lays,
Soar to realms of endless praise.

J. TEMPLE.

ECCLESIASTES XII.

Counsels to the Young.

REMEMBER now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh,
when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them:

2 While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars,
be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:

3 In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened,

4 And the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of musick shall be brought low;

5 Also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail:
because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:

6 Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.

7 Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.

8 Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; all is vanity.

9 And moreover, because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he gave good heed, and sought out, and set in order many proverbs.

10 The preacher sought to find out acceptable words: and that which was written was upright, even words of truth.

11 The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails fastened by the masters of assemblies, which are given from one shepherd.

12 And further, by these, my son, be admonished: of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh.

13 Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.

14 For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

REFLECTIONS UPON ECCLES. XII.—When the young devoutly and affectionately remember that they are made by God, and for God, that all they are and have were given to be devoted to God's service and honour, and that he has a right to their love, service, and worship, this is a blessed preparation for old age, and especially for the joys of immortality. Is the old age of the believer a period of comparative darkness? It will soon be followed by the joys of heaven, where "God shall be his everlasting light, and where the days of his mourning shall be ended." True piety, obtained in youth, sheds over the whole of life a most salutary influence, and in advanced years will sustain and comfort the mind, even under a heavy load of infirmities, and will animate the soul with the cheering prospect of the imperishable vigour and liveliness of the celestial state. The believer, while meditating on the frailty and feebleness of his earthly tabernacle, can take up the language of the inspired Apostle and say, in the exercise of triumphant faith, "He will change our vile body, and liken it to Christ's glorious body."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, enable us by thy spirit to present our morning sacrifice in the name of Christ. Adored and praised be thy name, O Saviour, that thou hast said, for the encouragement of thy Church in all generations, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name he will give it you.
Holy Spirit, enable us to depend upon the righteousness and intercession of Christ alone for the acceptance of our persons and for the answer of our prayers. Respecting our blessed Saviour may we be enabled to say, in the exercise of lively faith, In whom we have boldness and access by the faith of him.

Lord, accept our thanksgivings for the refreshing rest and the kind protection afforded us during the past night. Thou hast kept us as the apple of thine eye, and thou hast hidden us under the shadow of thy wings. Be our God and our guide this day. Thou hast brought us in safety to the concluding day of another week; and we praise thee that long ere now we have not been cut down in the midst of our iniquities. We thank God for what we have now read in the Holy Scriptures.
Thou art the Creator of the ends of the earth. Exalted Saviour, we desire to ascribe to thee deserved glory as Creator of all things. By thee were all things created that are in heaven or in earth, visible and invisible; whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all things were created by thee and for thee. Thou didst exist before all things, and that eternally; and by thee all things consist.

Give the rising race thy holy spirit, that they may be enabled to follow the wholesome counsels we have now read.

Teach our beloved children to remember thee their Creator in the days of their youth, before the days of old age arrive —those evil days of infirmity and weakness and pain, when they shall say, We have no pleasure in them. Give our servants Divine grace to remember their Creator daily, and to feel more concerned to please God than man.

Lord, enable all of us to remember thee our Creator. Ever may we remember that, because thou art our Maker, we are thy property, and therefore thou hast a sovereign right to dispose of us as seemeth meet in thy sight. May we remember that our bodies and souls were formed not only by thy power, but for thy glory. O may we never forget that our Creator actually became man, and came from heaven to earth to become our Redeemer. Thou, O Jesus, art not only the mighty Creator; thou art also the mighty Saviour.

Lord God, have mercy on the aged, whose situation is so affectingly described in what we have now read. While to them the very light of the sky appears darkened by the dimness of their sight, O may their minds be illuminated by the increasing light of a spiritual day. When the hands of the keepers of the house begin to tremble with weakness, O may the hand of their faith be strong and mighty to perform spiritual exploits. When their desire even for lawful, earthly enjoyments begins to fail, may their desire for spiritual and heavenly enjoyments increase.

For the sake of Jesus, mercifully hear our prayers and forgive our sins. Amen.

EXCELLENCE OF CHRIST'S PRIESTHOOD.

Cottage, Duke Street, Leeds.

L. M.

- 1 'MONG all the priests of Jewish race,
Jesus the most illustrious stands;
The radiant beauty of his face
Superior love and awe demands.
- 2 Not Aaron or Melchisedek
Could claim such high descent as he;
His nature and his name bespeak
His unexampled pedigree.
- 3 Descending from the eternal God,
He bears the name of his own Son;
And, dressed in human flesh and blood,
He puts his priestly garments on.
- 4 The mitred crown, the embroidered vest,
With graceful dignity he wears!
And, in full splendour, on his breast,
The sacred oracle appears.
- 5 So he presents his sacrifice,—
An offering most Divinely sweet;
While clouds of fragrant incense rise,
And cover o'er the mercy seat.
- 5 The Father with approving smile
Accepts the offering of his Son:
Now joys the wondering angels feel,
And haste to bear the tidings down.

S. STENNETT.

HEBREWS VIII.

Christ's Priesthood and the New Covenant.

NOW of the things which we have spoken this is the sum:
We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens;

2 A minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices:
wherefore it is of necessity that this man have somewhat also to offer.

4 For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that there are priests that offer gifts according to the law:

5 Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle: for, See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises.

7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second.

8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people:

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

13 In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. VIII.—How infinitely glorious Christ appears in heaven as the representative and advocate of his Church! There he is exalted far above all principalities and powers; there he receives the homage of angels, and of the spirits of just men made perfect; there they have no need of the sun, or of the moon, for God and the Lamb are the light thereof. We cannot conceive the perfection of the worship of heaven; which is performed by perfect beings, and under the sole direction and management of Jesus, in his mediatorial capacity, as the minister of the heavenly sanctuary.
Are we interested in Christ? then we have the assured hopes that we shall form a part of the innumerable choir of adoring worshippers, under the direction of the same Divine Advocate, and animated by his spirit; then we shall rejoice in the exaltation of Christ, and in the assured hope of the glory of God.

PRAYER.

HEAVENLY Father, thou art Israel's God, and as an evidence of thy love to thy people, thou hast made with them an everlasting covenant, well ordered in all things and sure. In our approach to the throne of grace, O Hearer of prayer, graciously fulfil in our blessed experience the promise given to thy Church: I will pour out upon the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and of supplication. O pour out on each of us, on all of us, the spirit of grace and of supplication. O instruct us in the matter of prayer, teaching us what we ought to pray for. Instruct us in the manner of prayer, that we may know how to pray for what we need. Instruct us ever to present our supplications through the all-prevailing merit of the atonement which Jesus made on Calvary, and through his all-prevalent intercession before the heavenly throne.

We thank our heavenly Father for the mercies of another day, and for the blessings of another week. Forgive the sins we have committed, and sanctify the events of providence which have passed over our heads.

Watch over us this night; and O spare us to see another day of sacred rest, and to enjoy the delightful ordinances of thy house. On thy approaching day may great joy pervade all the churches: and may multitudes of Satan's captives be set free, and the songs of angels be proclaimed in sweetest melody, because of repenting sinners.

We would rejoice, O Jesus, in thine exaltation as the great high-priest of the Church. We have such an high-priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the majesty in the heavens. O may we reflect, with wonder, joy, and thankfulness, on the unparalleled dignity of thy priesthood. O Jesus, thou art the second person of the adorable Trinity, the Son of God, equal with the Father and the Divine Spirit. Enable us to rejoice in the dignity of thy priesthood. O Jesus, tho' sacrifice thou presentedst was infinitely more valuable than all the thousands of sacrifices presented during centuries by Jewish priests; for the sacrifice was THYSELF, thy spotless humanity, rendered infinitely valuable by its connection with thy Divine person. Enable us to wonder, love, and praise, when we contemplate the dignity of thy priesthood.

O Lord, make with us as a family an everlasting covenant of grace, of love, and of faithfulness. Say to us, we earnestly pray, I will put my laws into your mind, and write them in your hearts; and I will be to you a God, and ye shall be to me a people.

O make this blessed covenant with our dear children: put thy law in their mind, and write it in their hearts. O Lord, hear this our petition in their behalf.

Hasten the day when all the nations of the earth shall subscribe thy covenant, Jews as well as Gentiles; yea, when all shall know the Lord, from the least even unto the greatest.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST THE CHIEF CORNER-STONE.

Bradley Church. Kireal Moor. Falcon Street.

A. M.

1. SEE what a living stone
The builders did refuse;
Yet God hath built his Church thereon,
In spite of envious Jews.
2. The scribe and angry priest
Reject thine only Son;
Yet on this rock shall Zion rest,
As the chief corner-stone.
3. The work, O Lord, is thine
And wondrous in our eyes!
This day declares it all Divine
This day did Jesus rise.
4. This is the glorious day
That our Redeemer made;
Let us rejoice, and sing, and pray,
Let all the Church be glad.

WATTS, Ps. 118.

PSALM CXVIII.

Christ the Corner-stone.

THE voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tabernacles of the righteous: the right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly.

16 The right hand of the Lord is exalted: the right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly.

17 I shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord.

18 The Lord hath chastened me sore: but he hath not given me over unto death.

19 Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will go in to them, and I will praise the Lord:

20 This gate of the Lord, into which the righteous shall enter.

21 I will praise thee: for thou hast heard me, and art become my salvation.

22 The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner.

23 This is the Lord's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes.

24 This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it.

25 Save now, I beseech thee, O Lord: O Lord, I beseech thee, send now prosperity.

26 Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord: we have blessed you out of the house of the Lord.

27 God is the Lord, which hath shewed us light: bind the sacrifice with cords, even unto the horns of the altar.

28 Thou art my God, and I will praise thee: thou art my God, I will exalt thee.

29 O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXVIII.—The heart of the believer is the seat of happiness; because Jesus fills the throne of his affections. His family is the scene of blessedness; because his abode is a consecrated temple, where God is praised and adored. God has gloriously displayed his power in the triumphs of the cross; and he will furnish additional, illustrious manifestations, in the conquest and destruction of all the enemies of his Church. On earth, the believer really lives, for Christ lives in him by his grace: and he lives on earth to the glory of God, as the God of his salvation. When he dies, he dies to live; and in the heavenly, happy land, he shall proclaim for ever, in sweet, melodious accents, his dear Redeemer's praise.—Even when God chastises his people, he chastises as a father. His chastisements may be sore, but they are in measure. If he wounds, his are the wounds of a friend. While he afflicts, he upholds: his rod is dipped in love, and is applied in mercy.—With great joy the believer enters through the gates of the sanctuary on earth, to sing his great Redeemer's praise. He is glad when it is said to him, "Let us go up to the house of the Lord our God." But with what triumph, and with what ecstasies of joy, he shall pass through the pearly gates of heaven, to unite with the myriads of spotless redeemed spirits in singing the praises of God and the Lamb! None can pass through these gates without a title to heaven, without preparation for heaven: the righteousness of Christ is the title, and the preparation is given by Christ's spirit. If we earnestly seek them, we shall assuredly obtain them.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the return of thy sacred day reminds us of thy mercy, and of the powerful obligations under which we are laid to worship and praise thy name as the God of salvation. We praise thee that we are assembled as a family to glorify thee, our God and Father in Christ. May our abode ever prove to be the habitation of the righteous, and within our walls may the voice of rejoicing and salvation be daily heard. O teach us to sing praises to our God, to sing praises; to sing praises to our King, to sing praises. Because thou art King of all the earth, may we sing praises unto thee with the understanding.

Thou, O Lord, art the mighty God; and as the God of Zion, and the saviour and defender of thy people, thy right hand hath done valiantly. In all our supplications may we have abundant reason to believe that thou art the hearer of prayer, and therefore sing with the Psalmist, We will praise thee; for thou hast heard us, and art become our salvation.

O God, thou art the Lord, the sovereign Ruler; and in thy government exercise almighty power, unerring wisdom, and unlimited goodness. But, in the government of thy Church, how eminently dost thou appear as the God of light! O that each member of our family may have reason to say, God is the Lord which hath shewed us light. We are encouraged, O Lord, to claim an interest in thee as our God in Christ. Holy Spirit, enable us to say with sincerity of heart, Thou art our God, and we will praise thee; thou art our God, and we will exalt thee.

O Lord, let the fame of Christ be exalted this day in the preaching of the everlasting Gospel. And let the right hand of God be exalted, in bringing many under the saving power of the Word of life; and may thy right hand, O Lord, do valiantly in subduing the enemies of the cross, and in making a people willing in the day of thy power.

Gracious God, we rejoice that thy people enjoy a spiritual, a Divine, and an honourable life, which is hidden with Christ in God. O give each of us, and all our relatives, and the congregation with which we hope to worship thee this day, that spiritual life which arises from union to Jesus Christ, and which shall never terminate in death. O Lord, we pray that we may all be taught by thy spirit to say, in the exercise of faith in Christ as our living head, We shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord.

O bless our dear children; may they not die eternally, but may they live spiritually; and when our heads are laid in the silent tomb, may they declare the works of the Lord.

We thank thee for the mercies of the past night. Grant us thy gracious countenance when we enter thy courts. Assist our beloved minister and all thy servants to proclaim the glory of Jesus, as the stone which the builders despise, but who is now made the chief stone of the corner. O hear our feeble prayers for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

BLESSEDNESS OF SAINTS AND MISERY OF SINNERS.

Kennell. Worcester. Bedford.

c. n.

- 1 BLEST are the undefiled in heart,
Whose ways are right and clean:
Who never from thy law depart,
But fly from every sin.
- 2 Blest are the men that keep thy word,
And practise thy commands;
With their whole heart they seek the Lord,
And serve thee with their hands.
- 3 Great is their peace who love thy law,
How firm their souls abide!
Nor can a bold temptation draw
Their steady feet aside.
- 4 Thon shall my heart have inward joy,
And keep my face from shame,
When all thy statutes I obey,
And honour all thy name.

Watts, Ps. 119, p. 1.

PSALM CXIX.

Blessedness of serving God.

ALEPH, PART I.

BLESSED are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the LORD.

2 Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart.

3 They also do no iniquity: they walk in his ways.

4 Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently.

5 O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes!

6 Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments.

7 I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I shall have learned thy righteous judgments.

8 I will keep thy statutes: O forsake me not utterly.

BETH, PART II.

WHEREWITHAL shall a young man cleanse his way?
by taking heed thereto according to thy word.

10 With my whole heart have I sought thee: O let me not wander from thy commandments.

11 Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee.

12 Blessed art thou, O LORD: teach me thy statutes.

13 With my lips have I declared all the judgments of thy mouth.

14 I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches.

15 I will meditate in thy precepts, and have respect unto thy ways.

16 I will delight myself in thy statutes: I will not forget thy word.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX, PARTS I. AND II.—Impurity of nature, unsubdued lusts, and ungovernable passions, are the greatest curses, and the most grievous calamity. A sanctified soul, holy affections, heavenly desires, Divine principles, and a godly life, are the sure evidences of the favour of God, and a title to the celestial abodes. While the men of the world are seeking after its profits, its pleasures, and its honours, may the fondest object of my heart be, to seek conformity to God's image, and to live in the enjoyment of his gracious smiles. What an inestimable blessing, that God has given us his laws to direct our steps! In all the perplexities of life, if we take the light of the Divine law for our guide, our path will be attended with safety, and our minds will be filled with peace. Shame and confusion and fear are certainly found associated with a life of profanity and sin; while they who observe God's ordinances, and respect his laws, are not ashamed in the presence of men, nor confounded in the presence of God. They who love God's laws invariably admire his perfections; and the obedience of the one is always accompanied with the adoring praise of the other. Blessed are they who drink at the fountains of inspiration: the waters are pure, spotless, purifying, and refreshing. And blessed are they whose memories are the sacred depositories of Divine truth.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father and God, we desire, at the close of thy blessed day, to draw near thy throne in the name of our great High-priest, and to acknowledge thy blessedness. Blessed art thou, O Lord; teach us thy statutes. Thou art essentially blessed, and thou art independently and infinitely blessed. Nothing can affect thy blessedness. It remained undisturbed even when the standard of rebellion was unfurled near thy celestial throne, and when myriads of angels left their first estate, and attempted to oppose and overturn thy government. We rejoice in thy communicative blessedness. All the blessedness of angels and men flows from thee. What reason have we to rejoice that thou hast innumerable blessings laid up in the covenant of grace, and that thou art willing to enrich any penitent, humble applicant with that vast and spiritual inheritance! O Lord, may we be blessed with all spiritual and heavenly blessings in heavenly places in Christ Jesus.

We present the tribute of our praise for the distinguished mercies and privileges of this Sabbath. We thank thee for answer to prayers presented in behalf of ministers and congregations. We trust that in many instances thou hast put the heavenly treasure into the earthen vessel, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of man. We commit ourselves to thy gracious care this night. May we and all our relatives find that we are mercifully preserved by him who is the guardian of Israel, who never slumbers nor sleeps.

God grant that the truth to which we have listened this day may be deeply impressed on all our hearts; and let it not resemble the water spilt upon the ground, that cannot be gathered up again.

Lord, sanctify us as a family, and make us an example and a blessing to the neighbourhood in which we dwell, and to the families with which we are connected. May we be among those blessed ones who are the undefiled in the way, and who walk in the law of the Lord. Teach us to walk in the way of faith and in the way of obedience. Enable us to lay up in our heart the promises and precepts of our God; and may we keep them as a sacred treasure of invaluable worth. We are now professedly seeking thee our God and Saviour; O enable us to seek thee with our whole heart.

Have mercy on our dear children. Bless to them this important question: Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? Impress this question on their hearts; and convince them that their way and life will be cleansed, by taking heed thereto according to thy word. Teach our servants to love thy word, to have respect to thy laws, to fear thy name, and to run in the way of thy commandments.

Lord, suffer us not to wander from thy commandments. We confess that we are prone to wander. Give us grace to hide thy word in our heart, and to follow it in our lives; then we shall not sin against thee. Lord, make us to rejoice in the way of thy testimonies, and may we abundantly experience the truth, that wisdom's ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths peace. We desire to prefer thy testimonies, thy word, thine ordinances, and thy Son, before all riches.

Hear these our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST APPEARING TO HIS PEOPLE.

- Metaphor. Canticles. Kimbolton. Attractions. L. W.*
- 1 THE voice of my beloved sounds
Over the rocks and rising grounds;
O'er hills of guilt, and seas of grief,
He leaps, he flies to my relief.
  - 2 Now through the veil of flesh I see
With eyes of love he looks at me;
Now in the gospel's clearest glass
He shows the beauties of his face.
  - 3 Gently he draws my heart along;
Both with his beauties and his tongue;
Rise, saith my Lord, make haste away,
No mortal joys are worth thy stay.

WATTS, 68, B. I.

SOLOMON'S SONG I.

The mutual Love of Christ and the Church.

THE song of songs, which is Solomon's.

3 Because of the savour of thy good ointments thy name is as ointment poured forth, therefore do the virgins love thee.

4 Draw me, we will run after thee: the king hath brought me into his chambers: we will be glad and rejoice in thee, we will remember thy love more than wine: the upright love thee.

5 I am black, but comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon.

6 Look not upon me, because I am black, because the sun hath looked upon me: my mother's children were angry with me; they made me keeper of the vineyards: but mine own vineyard have I not kept.

7 Tell me, O thou whom my soul loveth, where thou feedest, where thou makest thy flock to rest at noon: for why should I be as one that turneth aside by the flocks of thy companions?

8 If thou know not, O thou fairest among women, go thy way forth by the footsteps of the flock, and feed thy kids beside the shepherds' tents.

9 I have compared thee, O my love, to a company of horses in Pharaoh's chariots.

10 Thy cheeks are comely with rows of jewels, thy neck with chains of gold.

SOLOMON'S SONG II.

I AM the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys.

2 As the lily among thorns, so is my love among the daughters.

3 As the apple tree among the trees of the wood, so is my beloved among the sons. I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

4 He brought me to the banquetting house, and his banner over me was love.

10 My beloved spake, and said unto me, Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away.

11 For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

12 The flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land;

13 The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away.

14 O my dove, that art in the clefts of the rock, in the secret places of the stairs, let me see thy countenance, let me hear thy voice; for sweet is thy voice, and thy countenance is comely.

REFLECTIONS UPON SOLOMON'S SONG I., II.—The great burden of Solomon's Song is Christ and his Church. They who read these songs with a spiritual eye, can experience no difficulty in seeing that they are full of Christ, full of the poetical delineations of his excellences, and full of the expressions of his love. The graces of believers are that precious ointment which Christ pours upon his people. When these graces are in exercise, they exhale delightful fragrance; and it is then that the name of Christ, which is above every name, peculiarly inspires his people with love, confidence, and joy. The religion of Christ is full of the most wonderful attractions: Jesus attracts believers to himself. This holy attraction begins in conversation, continues till time shall cease, and shall endure for ever. The ordinances of religion are those blessed chambers where this attraction is especially experienced; it is there the soul is especially drawn out in love to Christ; it is there the believer especially enjoys the delights of his fellowship.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in obedience to thy gracious command, we desire, as a family, to seek thy face and the blessings of thy salvation. O that we were enabled to say, in the language of thine inspired servant, When thou saidst, Seek ye my face, my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek. Holy Spirit, enable us to seek the Lord and his strength; yea, to seek his face continually. Teach us to seek God with the heart, and then we shall find the accomplishment of thine encouraging promise: Thou shalt find the Lord, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul.

We present our humble acknowledgments for the mercies of the night, and that we are the kind monuments of the sparing mercy of the Lord our God. Long hast thou given us providing mercy, supporting mercy, and forbearing mercy; we now earnestly pray that thou wouldst give us, through Christ, saving and redeeming mercy. Graciously continue with us this day the supplies of thy providence. Give us bodily strength and mental energy to perform the duties of our temporal calling, which are necessary for time, but, above all, that we may ardently engage in those spiritual duties which are necessary for eternity. Suffer us not to offend thee this day. O Lord, hold up our goings.

Holy Spirit, bless to us what we have now read of the mutual love of Christ and his Church. Make us living, holy, and useful members of the Church of Christ; give us the pleasing evidence that we are the objects of the Saviour's love; and O let our hearts be inspired with a superlative love to Christ. Thy name, O Jesus, is above every name. Thy name is infinitely more honourable and exalted than the names of angels and archangels; and at thy name every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess that thou art Lord, to the glory of God the Father. Give us grace to love thy name, and may we feel what the saints of old felt, when they said, Thy name is as ointment poured forth. Lord Jesus, draw our hearts to thyself, that we may behold the glorious excellences of thine essence as God, and the matchless perfection of thy character as Mediator. Lord Jesus, draw us by the sweet influences of thy spirit; then shall we observe thine ordinances with delight, and run with joyful perseverance in the way of thy commandments.

O may we see in our dear children the pleasing evidence of their youthful hearts being warmed with love to Christ. Discover to them, O Jesus, thy loveliness, and captivate them with thy glory.

O Lord, have mercy on our aged friends, who are drawing near the grave. Give them assured confidence that they are Christ's, and that Christ is theirs. When they come to the verge of the Jordan of death, O may they hear Jesus inviting them to heaven in such language as the following: Rise up, my fair one, and come away. For, lo, the winter is past, and the rain is over and gone. Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRICE OF PARDON.

Warwick. Graville. New Oxenden. Condescension. c. v.

- 1 HOW condescending and how kind
Was God's eternal Son!
Our misery reached his heavenly mind,
And pity brought him down.
- 2 When justice, by our sins provoked,
Drew forth its dreadful sword,
He gave his soul up to the stroke,
Without a murmuring word.
- 3 He sank beneath our heavy woes,
To raise us to his throne;
There's ne'er a gift his hand bestows,
But cost his heart a groan.

Watts, 4, B. 111

HEBREWS IX.

Jesus the High-priest and Testator.

BUT Christ being come an high priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building;

12 Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

13 For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the nucleau, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh:

14 How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?

15 And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

16 For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator.

17 For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth.

18 Whereupon neither the first testament was dedicated without blood.

19 For when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people, 20 Saying, This is the blood of the testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

21 Moreover he sprinkled with blood both the tabernacle, and all the vessels of the ministry.

22 And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission.

23 It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these.

24 For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us:

25 Nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entereth into the holy place every year with blood of others;

26 For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world: but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment:

28 So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. IX.—Our blessed Lord appeared on earth, in his humiliation, as a sacrificing High-priest; but he now appears in heaven, in his exaltation, as an interceding High-priest. May it be our privilege to behold him in the heavenly tabernacle, arrayed in all the splendour of his glorious mediatorial robes! How infinitely precious is the blood of Christ, in consequence of the mysterious personal connection subsisting betwixt his Divinity and humanity! The value of his precious blood appears in the glory to which he himself is exalted, and in that great salvation which the shedding of his blood procured. Did Jesus shed his blood to save? Let us then never doubt of his willingness to save. Did he freely die to save? O let us freely, thankfully, and immediately receive that salvation which is the fruit of his death. Did all the Levitical observances point to holiness? Did they constantly enforce holiness? Did they direct the mind to Jesus, the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness? Then let us in these blessed New Testament Gospel days look to Jesus, that by his righteousness we may be delivered from sin's guilt, and that by his spirit we may be washed from sin's pollution.

PRAYER.

IN all our approaches to thy throne, O Lord our God, may we be ever deeply sensible of our numerous infirmities and great unworthiness. What reason have we to praise thee, that thy Holy Spirit is willing to help our infirmities, seeing we know not what to pray for as we ought! Lord, enable us to draw near to thee as sons, and may God send forth the spirit of his Son into our hearts, teaching us to cry, Abba, Father.

Forgive, O Lord, the sins of which we have been guilty during the past day. From thee, O Jesus, as the Rock of ages, we seek shelter from that wrath which our sins deserve, and from which nothing can defend us but the shield of thy righteousness. We thank God for the mercies of the day; and we earnestly pray that we may be ever preserved from the sin of unthankfulness.

We acknowledge thee, blessed Saviour, as the high-priest of things to come. Praise to thy name, that, as our high-priest, thou hast obtained for us, by the sacrifice of thyself, a glorious inheritance beyond the grave. Lord, give us a love to heavenly objects, and a longing desire to be admitted into the heavenly world. With an apostle may we be enabled to say, Our conversation is in heaven, whence we look for the Saviour. O that our words, our actions, and our life were constantly manifesting the heavenly influence of the Gospel; and that we were really among the number of those who are travelling to the blissful regions of immortality, holiness, and joy.

Sanctify, Divine Saviour, what we have now read of thy blood and righteousness. We rejoice that, while the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer, could only sanctify ceremonially to the purifying of the flesh, the blood of Christ can purge our conscience from dead works to serve the living God. Glory to thy name, thou exalted Surety, that, for the purpose of sanctifying a polluted world, thou didst offer thyself, through the eternal Spirit, without spot to God. O enable us to believe that, when thou didst offer thyself, thou didst offer thyself for us. We desire at this time to receive thee as our Mediator. Thou art the Mediator of the New Testament, even the covenant of grace; and we thank thee that, agreeably to the arrangements of that covenant, thou didst actually appear in our world in the fulness of time, and as the testator of the new covenant lay down thine invaluable life.

Lord Jesus, give to our dear children an interest in that blessed covenant which is made of force by the laying down of thy life.

Enable us as a family to believe that thou art now appearing in heaven for us. O Jesus, be our Intercessor. None can plead our cause but thyself. None has influence with heaven but thyself. We therefore commit our cause to thee.

O Lord, watch over us this night and for ever, for Jesus' sake, on whom all our hopes are placed. Amen.

THE CHURCH FINDING HER LORD.

Bradley. Amasa. Bradby.

L. X.

- 1 OFTEN I seek my Lord by night,
Jesus, my love, my soul's delight:
With warm desire and restless thought
I seek him oft, but find him not.
- 2 Then I arise, and search the street
Till I my Lord, my Saviour meet;
I ask the watchmen of the night,
Where did you see my soul's delight?
- 3 Sometimes I find him in my way,
Directed by a heavenly ray;
I leap for joy to see his face,
And hold him fast in mine embrace.
- 4 I bring him to my mother's home,
Nor does my Lord refuse to come
To Zion's sacred chambers, where
My soul first drew the vital air.

WATTS, 71, P. 1.

SOLOMON'S SONG III.

The Love of Believers to Christ.

- BY night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth:
I sought him, but I found him not.
- 2 I will rise now, and go about the city in the streets, and in the broad ways I will seek him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not.
  - 3 The watchmen that go about the city found me: to whom I said, Saw ye him whom my soul loveth?
  - 4 It was but a little that I passed from them, but I found him whom my soul loveth: I held him, and would not let him go, until I had brought him into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that conceived me.
  - 5 I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, till he please.
  - 9 King Solomon made himself a chariot of the wood of Lebanon.
  - 10 He made the pillars thereof of silver, the bottom thereof of gold, the covering of it of purple, the midst thereof being paved with love, for the daughters of Jerusalem.
  - 11 Go forth, O ye daughters of Zion, and behold king Solomon with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him in the day of his espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

SOLOMON'S SONG IV.

The Church a Garden.

- A GARDEN inclosed is my sister, my spouse; a spring shut up, a fountain sealed.
- 13 Thy plants are an orchard of pomegranates, with pleasant fruits; camphire, with spikenard,
  - 14 Spikenard and saffron; calamus and cinnamon, with all trees of frankincense; myrrh and aloes, with all the chief spices:
  - 15 A fountain of gardens, a well of living waters, and streams from Lebanon.
  - 16 Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant fruits.

REFLECTIONS UPON SOLOMON'S SONG III., IV.—By night and by day believers highly estimate, and earnestly seek, Christ's presence and fellowship. When Jesus hides his countenance, or seems to withdraw his presence from his people, it is to produce more ardour in their love, and more earnestness in their prayers. Ministers are appointed by the King and Head of the Church to be counsellors and comforters to his afflicted saints; it is therefore well for believers in the day of perplexity to apply to them as counsellors, and in the dark night of suffering and sorrow to apply to them as comforters. Ministors should never forget the command of their Lord: "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem; tell her that her warfare is accomplished, and that she shall receive of the Lord's hand double for all her sins." The Hearer of prayer never fails to honour earnest, believing, and constant prayer. They who persevere in seeking Christ's fellowship shall certainly find him at last; and then they will cleave to him with more affection than ever; then their sorrow will be changed into gladness of heart, their sighs into songs of praise, and their dark clouds "into the clear shining after the rain." That will be a day infinitely blessed, when, at the close of ages, Jesus, the great King of Zion, shall appear in his glory with ten thousands of his saints, and when the heavens shall re-echo with his praise!

PRAYER.

O LORD, our heavenly Father, we rejoice that it is thy will, thy pleasure, thy command, that we should seek thee in prayer. Wonderful condescension! though our prayers and homage cannot add to thy glory, we praise thee that it is well-pleasing to thee that we should draw near unto thee in our religious exercises, and that we should pour out our supplications, in the name of Christ, before the throne of grace. O that the following promise may be fulfilled in our experience: Blessed are they that seek the Lord with their whole heart. Holy Spirit, we lift up our hearts to thee, that thou mayest graciously teach us to set our heart and our soul to seek the Lord our God.

We thank thee, O thou Preserver of men, for thy gracious care of us during the past night and this morning. As we are preserved by thy goodness, may we ever be devoted to thy glory. We seek the direction of thy Divine wisdom this day. May we take thy Word every day to be a light unto our feet, and a lamp unto our paths. O convince us that, if we lean to our own understanding, we must unavoidably fall into the snares of corruption and the temptations of Satan.

May the influences of the Holy Spirit sanctify the good word we have now read. As we seek thy blessing on the food which nourishes the body, may we never forget to seek thy blessing on the Word of life, which nourishes the soul.

Lord, have mercy on thy people who are without the sensible enjoyment of Christ's fellowship and smiles. When, O Jesus, they seek thee in thine ordinances, may they find thee the object of their affections and the joy of their heart. Show pity to those who walk in darkness and have no light; may they trust in the name of the Lord, and stay themselves on their God.

We supplicate our God in behalf of those who have not yet begun to seek Jesus and his salvation. Open their blinded eyes to see that their all, their eternal all, depends on their seeking Christ, and finding him as their Saviour. Such of our beloved relatives as have never yet, with sincerity of heart, presented one petition to Christ for mercy, allow them no longer to delay committing their souls to his care, and crying out for an interest in his righteousness.

We thank thee for what we have now read of the covenant of grace, under the figure of a royal chariot of state.

O may our dear children and domestics be introduced into that magnificent chariot, which is paved with love to the sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty.

We adore thee, O Jesus, in thy royal honours. We rejoice that the Church has placed a crown upon thy head. Enable us by faith to go forth, and behold thee wearing thy crown of glory and of beauty.

May all of us belong to thy garden, the Church, and be fruit-bearing trees in that sacred enclosure. We pray for the refreshing wind of Divine influence, to breathe upon us as a family and as a congregation.

O forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for our Divine and merciful Saviour's sake. Amen.

TYPES OF CHRIST.

Triumphant. Peru. Derby.

L. M.

BEHOLD the woman's promised seed!
Behold the great Messiah come!
Behold the prophets all agreed
To give him the superior room

- 2 Abraham the saint rejoiced of old
When visions of the Lord he saw;
Moses the man of God foretold
This great fulfiller of his law.
- 3 The types here witness to his name,
Obtained their chief design and ceased;
The incense and the bleeding lamb,
The ark, the altar, and the priest.

Predictions in abundance meet
To join their blessings on his head;
Jesus, we worship at thy feet,
And nations own the promised seed.

WATTS, 135, B. II.

of Jewish Sacrifices.

FOR the law having a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto perfect.

2 For then would they not have ceased to be offered? because that the worshippers once purged should have had no more conscience of sins.

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again made of sins every year.

4 For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins.

5 Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me:

6 In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will, O God.

8 Above when he said, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt offerings, and offering for sin thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein; which are offered by the law;

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins:

12 But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, for ever sat down on the right hand of God;

13 From henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool.

14 For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified.

15 Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us: for after that he had said before,

16 This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them;

17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these is, there is no more offering for sin.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. x.—It is fatal to build our hopes of salvation on any other foundation but Christ. Let us beware of attempting to make saviours of ancient Jews. May the language of our Christ; he is all our salvation, he is all important faculty is conscience, as one of the great controlling faculties of the soul! but what a blessing and what a comfort is a sanctified conscience, which proclaims peace to the mind, through the meritorious righteousness of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ! When the conscience thus speaks, it is sprinkled with the blood of Christ, "which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel." No sacrifice could atone for sin, but one of infinite excellence and boundless merit; none but sacrifice to present: glory to God in the highest! he has presented the sacrifice, and the atonement is made!

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and our guide, we adore thee as a holy and a righteous God. Thou art so holy, that thou art necessarily, and unavoidably, and infinitely offended with sin; and thou art so righteous and just, that thou canst not forgive sin without satisfaction being given to thy righteous demands. O Lord, righteousness belongeth unto thee, but unto us confusion of face, as at this day. If thou, O holy and righteous Jehovah, hadst laid judgment to the line and righteousness to the plummet, long ere now we had been confined in the habitations of the lost, where no ray of hope ever shines, and where thy mercy is clean gone for ever. Instead of dealing with us according to the demerit of our sins, thou hast dealt with us according to the magnitude of thy mercy, flowing to us in the channel of the Saviour's righteousness. Thou hast prevented us with the blessings of thy goodness.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past day, and we humbly seek the preserving kindness of our God this night. O place beneath us and around us thine everlasting arms.

What reason have we to thank thee, O Lord, that we live under the New Testament dispensation. We thank thee that it is no longer necessary to worship thee by means of expensive and bloody sacrifices. O Jesus, thou the great antitype hast appeared, to take away sin by the sacrifice of thyself. Glory to thy name, that thou didst so willingly engage from all eternity in the covenant of grace to become the surety of thy people, and to present thyself in sacrifice for their redemption. Glory to God in the highest, that we have these most wonderful words recorded, which fell from our Saviour's lips, when he engaged in the council of peace to be the Redeemer of men: Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will, O God: Sacrifice and offering, and burnt offerings, and offering for sin, thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein.

O Lord, we confess that by nature and practice while we are under the covenant of works, we are the servants of sin, and devoted to the working of iniquity. We pray that all of us may enjoy the unspeakable benefit of the blessed fulfilment of Christ's suretyship engagements. O that we may be sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ.

Sanctify, O Lord, the corrupted nature of our beloved children; and may we witness in their conversation and lives the purifying influence of that grace which is the fruit of the Saviour's death.

We desire to feel astonished, exalted Saviour, when we think on what thou hast done through the sacrifice of thyself. By one offering thou hast perfected for ever them that are sanctified. O Jesus, the merit of thy sacrifice is infinite: give us, we pray, the benefits flowing from that boundless merit. Make with us thy covenant; put thy laws into our hearts, and write them in our minds.

We present our imperfect prayers before God, and supplicate an answer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S LOVELINESS.

Kennedy. New Bethlehem. New Court.

L. M.

- 1 THE wondering world inquires to know
Why I should love my Jesus so;
What are his charms, say they above
The objects of a mortal love?
- 2 White is his soul, from blemish free;
Red with the blood he shed for me;
The fairest of ten thousand fairs;
A sun amongst ten thousand stars.
- 3 His head the finest gold excels,
There wisdom in perfection dwells;
And glory, like a crown, adorns
Those temples once beset with thorns.
- 4 Compassions in his heart are found,
Hard by the signals of his wound;
His sacred side no more shall bear
The cruel scourge, the piercing spear.
- 5 All over glorious is my Lord,
Must be beloved, and yet adored;
His worth if all the nations knew,
Sure the whole earth would love him too.

WATER, 75, B. I.

SOLOMON'S SONG V.

Mutual Love of Christ and Believers.

WHAT is thy beloved more than another beloved, O thou fairest among women? what is thy beloved more than another beloved, that thou dost so charge us?

10 My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand.

16 His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

SOLOMON'S SONG VI.

I AM my beloved's, and my beloved is mine: he feedeth among the lilies.

4 Thou art beautiful, O my love, as Tirzah, comely as Jerusalem, terrible as an army with banners.

10 Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners?

11 I went down into the garden of nuts to see the fruits of the valley, and to see whether the vine flourished, and the pomegranates budded.

12 Or ever I was aware, my soul made me like the chariots of Ammi-nadib.

18 Return, return, O Shulamite; return, return, that we may look upon thee. What will ye see in the Shulamite? As it were the company of two armies.

SOLOMON'S SONG VIII.

WHO is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved? I raised thee up under the apple tree: there thy mother brought thee forth: there she brought thee forth that bare thee.

7 Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it: if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned.

14 Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe, or to a young hart, upon the mountains of spices.

REMARKS UPON SOLOMON'S SONG V., VI., VIII.—Believers are comely: but only comely through Christ's comeliness put upon them. Though now beautified with grace, and lovely in the estimation of their Lord, still many imperfections cleave to them, and infirmities encompass them. But when they shall reach heaven, O what a change! they shall be without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; "they shall be presented faultless by their Lord before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy." If we are the sharers of grace, Jesus fills the throne of our superlative regard; and we consider all other beauty deformity, when compared with his loveliness. Let us press after this superlative admiration of Christ with the greatest earnestness; for truly that mind is an epitome of heaven, which is filled with Divine love. How rich, how varied is the loveliness of Christ! "He is white in his Divinity, he is ruddy in his humanity: he is white in his innocence, and ruddy in the imputation of our guilt; he is white in his obedience, and ruddy in his sufferings."

PRAYER.

O GOD of our salvation, we have abundant and infinite reason to rejoice in thee. Holy Spirit, enable us to use with the heart the language of the Apostle: We joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement. Lord, teach us to rejoice in thy being, thy perfections, and thy purposes. Teach us to rejoice in the works of thy power, and in the words of thy grace. Teach us to rejoice in the person, the offices, and the relations of Christ. Lord, put gladness into our heart, more than in the time when the men of the world rejoice on account of the increase of their corn and wine. O that each member of our family may be enabled to sing, in sweet and believing accents, Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand are pleasures for evermore.

We pray that the animating things we have now read of the fervour of Christ's love to his people, and of the ardour of the Church's love to Christ, may produce on our minds the most blessed effects. Thou, O Jesus, hast discovered love to thy people, at the same time the most unmerited and most transcendent. Even an ocean of wrath and floods of vengeance could not extinguish thy wondrous love. How true of thy love, Many waters could not quench it, nor floods drown it! O fix our eyes on Calvary's cross, to see, by our believing remembrance, our Saviour dying on the accursed tree to work out the redemption of rebel man; and then may we exclaim with wonder and with joy, His love is strong as death!

Divine Saviour, we praise thee for that spiritual loveliness thou hast given to thy Church. The time was, when she was overspread with the vilest deformity, and when she was sunk deep in the very lowest degradation. We bless thee that thou hast taken from her the chains of her guilt, the melancholy badges of her captivity and bondage, and hast given her the robe of thy righteousness. O take from us our guilt, the badge of our spiritual bondage, and array us in the robe of thy righteousness. When thy Church was overspread with the defilement of sin, thou didst apply the influences of thy spirit, and wash out the vile, the hateful stain. Looking on thy Church as justified by thy righteousness, and sanctified by thy spirit, thou didst say respecting her, Thou art beautiful as Tirzah, and comely as Jerusalem. Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners?

Lord Jesus, enable us to claim an interest in thee as ours. Give us that appropriating faith, by which each of us shall say, My beloved is mine, and I am his.

Captivate the hearts of our children with love to Christ. O that they and our domestics may be instructed to say, Our beloved is white and ruddy; he is the chiefest among ten thousand, and the altogether lovely.

Accept our thanks, O Lord, for the rest, sleep, refreshment, and protection of the night. Give us grace to think, speak, and act this day as thy children. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

HOLY BOLDNESS.

Jordan New. Chatham. Hinton. Westbury Leigh. L. M.

- 1 SPRINKLED with reconciling blood,
I dare approach thy throne, O God;
Thy face no frowning aspect wears,
Thy hand no vengeful thunder bears!
- 2 Let me my grateful homage pay;
With courage sing, with fervour pray;
And though myself a wretch undone,
Hope for acceptance through thy Son.—
- 3 Thy Son, who on the accursed tree
Expired to set the vilest free;
On this I build my only claim,
And all I ask is in his name.

BIDDING.

HEBREWS X.

Danger of Apostasy.

HAVING therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, 20 By a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh;

21 And having an high priest over the house of God;

22 Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

23 Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;)

24 And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works:

25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.

26 For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, 27 But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.

28 He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses:

29 Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?

30 For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall judge his people.

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions;

33 Partly, whilst ye were made a gazingstock both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, whilst ye became companions of them that were so used.

34 For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing in yourselves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance.

35 Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompence of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.

37 For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry.

38 Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

39 But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. X.—Boundless is the merit of the blood, or righteousness of Christ; for if we receive this righteousness by faith, we obtain deliverance from hell, and a secure title to heaven. The adamantine gates of the former shall never be open to receive us; but the pearly gates of the latter shall be open to admit us into the celestial city, and into the ivory palaces of the Great King. There is a way to heaven, capacious, free, and safe: the righteousness of Christ is that way. Sinners, even the chief, are permitted, yea, invited and commanded to walk in this safe, this blessed way. "This is the command of God, that we believe in his Son Jesus Christ." Are we exercising faith in the righteousness of Christ? We are then walking in the new and living way. Angels are our guards; the eternal God is our refuge, his everlasting arms are underneath us, and we shall at last obtain our heavenly prize.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the living God; to thy people thou art a God of tenderness and compassion, but to thine impenitent enemies, who resist thy grace and despise thine authority, thou wilt prove a God of awful vengeance. Then will be accomplished these words, It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Lord, have mercy on such among us as may be living in a state of enmity against God, and who have not felt one serious thought about the danger or salvation of the soul. We earnestly pray that their minds may be led to see their folly, and may be persuaded to think of the inconceivable misery of those who live in the midst of great spiritual Gospel privileges, and who die the confirmed despisers of God's love. May they see that it is better for such persons that they had never been born.

Gracious and Holy Spirit, preserve us from the sin of apostasy. O convince the apostate and the backslider, that their sin partakes of the greatest criminality; that they are treading under foot the Son of God; that they are counting the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing; and doing despite unto the spirit of grace. Lord convince apostates and backsliders that, unless they turn to God in humble penitence, looking for mercy alone through the merit of our Saviour's death, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin, there is no other method by which they can escape the miseries of hell, and that there is nothing before them but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.

We present our thanksgivings that the way to the heavenly world is opened up by the blood of Jesus. Fill us with wonder when we think that the way to the land of immortality and blessedness is sprinkled with blood, and with the blood of the only-begotten and well-beloved Son of God. Lord, we pray that, through the blood and righteousness of Christ, we may obtain at death a glorious entrance into the holiest of all; whither the Forerunner hath for us entered, even Jesus, who is made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek.

Lord, give us faith at all times, that, in our approaches to the throne of grace, we may constantly draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. God grant that all of us may feel the practical influence of the Gospel in our hearts, and that we may exemplify its practical virtues and graces in our lives. As a family, may each one of us consider one another, to provoke unto love and unto good works.

Suffer not our dear children to belong to the class of Gospel-despisers, or ever to forsake the assembling of themselves in thy public courts.

We thank God for the mercies of another day, and we commit ourselves, and all our relatives, to thy fatherly care this night.

Graciously condescend to hear our imperfect supplications for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SINNERS REASONED WITH

Proclamation. Dulwich. Sheffield. Paul's.

- 1 SINNER, O why so thoughtless grown?
Why in such dreadful haste to die,
Daring to leap to worlds unknown,
Headless against thy God to fly?
- 2 Wilt thou despise eternal fate,
Urged on by sin's fantastic dreams,
Madly attempt the infernal gate,
And force thy passage to the flames?
- 3 Stay, sinner! on the Gospel plains
Behold the God of love unfold
The glories of his dying pains,
For ever telling, yet untold.

L. M.

WATTS.

ISAIAH I.

Man's Depravity and Hypocrisy.

THE vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

2 Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth: for the LORD hath spoken, I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me.

3 The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider.

4 Ah sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil-doers, children that are corrupters: they have forsaken the LORD, they have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto anger, they are gone away backward.

5 Why should ye be stricken any more? ye will revolt more and more: the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint.

6 From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it; but wounds, and bruises, and putrifying sores: they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment.

10 Hear the word of the LORD, ye rulers of Sodom; give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah.

11 To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the LORD: I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he-goats.

12 When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hand, to tread my courts?

13 Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting.

14 Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them.

15 And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood.

16 Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil;

17 Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless; plead for the widow.

18 Come now, and let us reason together, saith the LORD: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.

19 If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land:

20 But if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH I.—Isaiah signifies "the Salvation of the Lord,"—a name most suitable to him, who is designated by way of eminence, "the Evangelical Prophet," and who wrote with peculiar distinctness and fulness respecting Jesus, in his person, his birth, his sufferings, his death, and his triumphs.—Man's enmity and God's love, man's rebellion and God's forbearance, may justly attract the attention, and excite the wonder of an intelligent universe. What a humiliating effect sin has produced on our race! It has struck the eye of the understanding with blindness, filled the firmament of the soul with impenetrable clouds of ignorance and folly; it hath changed wisdom into stupidity and folly, alienated the affections from God, changed love into enmity, confidence into distrust, and filial obedience into the most obstinate rebellion, and has covered the whole mind with the most loathsome diseases. But what reason we have to rejoice, "there is balm in Gilead, and a physician there!"

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and merciful Lord God, enable us to present our morning prayer under the lively influence of the grace of love; then shall we meet with the accomplishment of that blessed promise, Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore I will deliver him, and honour him: with length of days will I satisfy him, and I will show him my salvation. O that we could draw near in the exercise of a holy, filial fear, rejoicing that thou hast promised, The Lord will fulfil the desire of them that fear him; he also will hear their cry, and will save them. Unto thee alone, O Lord, do we lift up our soul. With sincerity of heart may we ever offer up our supplications, for thou art nigh unto all them that call upon thee in truth.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the past night. Thou art our hiding-place, thou hast preserved us from trouble. We seek the blessing of our God this day to rest upon us in all our lawful, temporal engagements, and in all our spiritual duties. Suffer us not, we beseech thee, to be drawn aside by the corruptions of our own hearts, or by the allurements of an ensnaring world.

O bless to us the true and melancholy account we have now read of the depravity of corrupted, fallen men. We acknowledge that thou hast nourished and brought us up; thou hast given us temporal blessings richly to enjoy; thou hast given us reason, and the means of grace: and yet we have acted the part of enemies; we have rebelled against thee. O suffer us no more to rebel against thee; from henceforth, by the influences of thy spirit, may we be obedient subjects and loving children. Lord, we confess the sins of our native land. There is no portion of the earth on which thou hast conferred more distinguished favours than on us. But we are obliged to confess, to our shame, that we are a sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil-doers, children that are corrupters: we have forsaken the Lord, we have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto anger, we have gone away backward. Lord, have mercy on our beloved but guilty land. O make us a nation of righteousness. Enable our rulers and magistrates to observe thine ordinances, to sanctify thy Sabbath, and to venerate thy name.

Lord, affect the minds of our dear children with a sense of their native and acquired corruption. Open their eyes to see the diseases by which their minds are wholly corrupted; and may they give themselves no rest till they have fled to Jesus the Divine physician.

Lord Jesus, heal all our diseases, for we confess that, spiritually considered, our whole head is sick, our whole heart is faint. O deliver us from the disease of hypocrisy. Convince us that multitudes of outward services, without inward sincerity, are only an abomination in thy sight. O Lord, we thank thee for these gracious words, Come, let us reason together; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. Fulfil his promise in our experience.

Graciously bless this sacred ordinance of domestic worship, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for the Saviour's sake. Amen.

POWER OF FAITH.

Over's Lane, Oxenden. Scotch Church. Abingdon. C. M.

- 1 FAITH adds new charms to earthly bliss,
And saves me from its snares;
Its aid in every duty brings,
And softens all my cares:
- 2 Extinguishes the thirst for sin,
And lights the sacred fire
Of love to God and heavenly things,
And feeds the pure desire.
- 3 The wounded conscience knows its power
The healing balm to give;
That balm the saddest heart can cheer,
And make the dying live.

TURNER.

HEBREWS XI.

Efficacy of Faith.

NOW faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

- 2 For by it the elders obtained a good report.
- 3 Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.
- 4 By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh.
- 5 By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God.
- 6 But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.
- 7 By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.
- 8 By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.
- 9 By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise:
- 10 For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God.
- 11 Through faith also Sara herself received strength to conceive seed, and was delivered of a child when she was past age, because she judged him faithful who had promised.
- 12 Therefore sprang there even of one, and him as good as dead, so many as the stars of the sky in multitude, and as the sand which is by the sea shore innumerable.
- 13 These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.
- 14 For they that say such things declare plainly that they seek a country.
- 15 And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned.
- 16 But now they desire a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.
- 17 By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son;
- 18 Of whom it was said, That in Isaac shall thy seed be called:
- 19 Accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure.

20 By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. XI.—How unspeakably precious is faith! The eye of faith sees the glories of heaven; and the hand of faith brings down from heaven delicious clusters from the wide-spreading branches of the tree of life. While faith brings great glory to Christ, it greatly honours those who believe in Christ. By faith the believer looks back, and views with adoring delight the vast universe his Saviour has formed; and by faith he looks forward into a distant futurity, and clearly sees the wonderful things which Christ shall accomplish in behalf of his Church. What a difference betwixt those who have faith, and those who are without it! Cain, without faith, was an envious murderer; Abel, with faith, was a holy and devout worshipper. May it be our privilege to possess faith—strong faith—triumphant faith!

PRAYER.

O LORD of hosts, we believe that thou art, and that beside thee there is none else. In all our approaches may we be impressed with the truth of thy glorious existence, and that thou art the gracious rewarder of those who diligently seek thee. We adore thee as the almighty Creator of all things. The worlds were framed by the word of thy power. We adore thee, Holy Spirit, as the author of a new creation. O make us the subjects of thy new creation. May we be created anew in Christ Jesus; and may we experience the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, shed on us abundantly by Jesus Christ our Lord. Convince us of the unspeakable importance of faith in our religious observances. May we remember that whatsoever is not of faith is sin; and that, without faith, it is impossible to please God.

Accept of our feeble expressions of gratitude for the blessings of thy providence and grace during the past day. May we be humbled under a sense of our daily infirmities, and blemishes, and weaknesses. We look up to thee, our reconciled God and Father in Christ, for thy kind and protecting care during this night; and, if consistent with thy sovereign and wise arrangements, may our lives be prolonged to another day. O that we could say with thy servant, For us to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Living or dying, may we be the Lord's.

We thank God for what we have now read of the triumphs of faith. Lord, give us that saving faith which comforted thy people in all their afflictions, and which enabled them to look forward, in the exercise of an assured hope of reaching a heavenly city, which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. May we ever look on the present world as a strange country, and on ourselves as pilgrims and strangers on earth. Give us a spiritual love to the heavenly state, and daily may we desire a better country, even an heavenly. Amid all the dark clouds of human adversity, may we look upward to the heavenly state, and rejoice in the prospect of being ever with the Lord, where there is no sin to pollute, no enemy to disturb, no sorrow to afflict, and no temptation to ensnare.

As Noah and his family were preserved from the inundation of waters by the ark which he built under the Divine command, may our dear children be preserved from the storms of Divine wrath by the covenant of grace. O bring our children within that blessed ark.

Gracious God, make us heirs of the righteousness which is by faith. Make us heirs of all those present and future blessings which the righteousness of Christ procured. Make us heirs of that glorious heaven, to which we can never obtain a title but by the infinite merit of the righteousness of Christ.

We humbly seek an answer to our prayers, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness. Amen.

ISAIAH OBEYING THE HEAVENLY VISION.

Fordingbridge, Downy, Strling.

L. H.

- 1 OUR God ascends his lofty throne,
Arrayed in majesty unknown;
His lustre all the temple fills,
And spreads o'er all the ethereal hills:
- 2 The holy, holy, holy Lord,
By all the seraphim adored;
And, while they stand beneath his seat,
They veil their faces and their feet.
- 3 Lord! how can sinful lips proclaim
The honour of so great a name!
O for thine altar's glowing coal,
To touch his lips, to fire his soul!

ANON.

ISAIAH VI.

God's Holiness and Glory.

IN the year that king Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple.

2 Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.

3 And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory.

4 And the posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke.

5 Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts.

6 Then flew one of the seraphims unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar:

7 And he laid it upon my mouth, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged.

8 Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.

9 And he said, Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not.

10 Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and convert, and be healed.

11 Then said I, Lord, how long? And he answered, Until the cities be wasted without inhabitant, and the houses without man, and the land be utterly desolate, 12 And the Lord have removed men far away, and there be a great forsaking in the midst of the land.

13 But yet in it shall be a tenth, and it shall return, and shall be eaten: as a teil tree, and as an oak, whose substance is in them, when they cast their leaves: so the holy seed shall be the substance thereof.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH VI.—Short are the lives, and perishing are the dynasties of earthly princes. Jesus, the King of Zion, was dead, but he is alive again: he is the resurrection and the life; he has the keys of hell and of death suspended to his girdle; and he shall reign for ever and ever, the glory of his Church, and the sovereign of the universe. How delightful it is to Christ's redeemed subjects on earth, to see Jesus with the eye of faith! And how inconceivable will be their joy when they shall behold him face to face in heaven, filling the celestial city with his glory, and the hearts of all its inhabitants with bliss ineffable! There they shall see Jesus attended by innumerable angels of light, presenting their adorations at his feet with the most loving and humble reverence. Is it the case, that spotless angels present the tribute of their praise accompanied with such feelings and expressions of humility? With what self-abasement should polluted worms of the dust approach his presence! Angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect, are peculiarly enraptured with the spotless holiness of Immanuel, which will prove an overflowing fountain of delight, and furnish matter for their songs of praise throughout the endless ages of eternity. May it be our honour and blessedness to see Christ on earth as our Surety and Saviour; and when time with us shall cease, may we behold him in heaven for ever and ever, as the object of our love, adoration, and praise!

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah, thou art the governor of the universe, infinitely entitled and infinitely qualified by thy boundless attributes to hold the reins of authority. Thou art the Lord, sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up; and thy train filleth the temple. How insignificant the pomp and majesty of earthly kings, when compared with thy glory! What are the grandees of the earth compared with those seraphim and cherubim, those angels and archangels, who for ever wait upon thine uncreated majesty, and who are ever prepared and willing to go to the utmost parts of thy vast dominions, to execute thy righteous and thy merciful will!

We desire, O Lord, to imitate the example of holy and adoring angels; and, in the exercise of the deepest humility, we would say, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of thy glory. Lord, enable us to love thee as a holy God. O give us thy spirit, that we may love thy holy perfections, thy holy laws, thy holy ordinances, thy holy Gospel, thy holy day, and thy holy people.

We confess that we are unholy and polluted. We are unclean; we are altogether unclean. O that we felt the humility; and penitence, and self-abasement which Isaiah felt, when he said, Woe is me, for I am undone, because I am a man of unclean lips, and dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. Gracious Spirit, give us those discoveries of Christ's glory and holiness and excellence which will teach us to form correct and humbling views of our own vileness, impurity, and unworthiness.

We present our prayers in behalf of all thy ministers in every part of the earth. Graciously do to them what thou didst to thy servant the prophet. Take as it were a live coal from the heavenly altar, and touch their hearts, that they may burn with increasing zeal for the glory of God; and touch their lips, that with increasing earnestness and love they may proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. For the sake of thy glory, for the honour of Jesus, for the extension of thy Church, and for the downfall of Satan's kingdom, do thou raise up and prepare more zealous, more holy, more devoted, and more successful labourers for thy vineyard, the Church, than any who have filled the ministerial office in the days that are past. While thou art saying, in thy providence, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us, to proclaim salvation through our Saviour's blood to the blinded and miserable inhabitants of the earth? O that many may reply, in the language of Isaiah, Here am I; send me.

Have mercy on our dear children and domestics, and suffer them not to be hardened under the means of grace. O may they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts; and may they be converted, and be healed.

Lord, we seek pardon and purity for ourselves and all our beloved relatives. O say unto us, Your iniquity is taken away, and your sin is purged. Accept of thanks for the mercies of the night, and assist in all the duties of the day, for the sake of our dear Redeemer, the Lamb who died for us. Amen.

THE PILGRIM'S PROSPECTS.

Mottingham. Green Walk. Broadmead.

P. M.

- 1 HOW happy is the pilgrim's lot,
How free from every anxious thought,
From worldly hope and fear!
Confined to neither court nor cell,
His soul disdains on earth to dwell,
He only sojourns here.
- 2 Though I no foot of land possess,
Nor cottage in this wilderness,
A poor wayfaring man,
I lodge awhile in tents below,
Or gladly wander to and fro,
Till I my Canaan gain.

C. WESLEY.

HEBREWS XI.

Triumphs of Faith.

BY faith Jacob, when he was a dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph; and worshipped, leaning upon the top of his staff.

22 By faith Joseph, when he died, made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

23 By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, because they saw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of the king's commandment.

24 By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter;

25 Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season;

26 Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible.

28 Through faith he kept the passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the firstborn should touch them.

29 By faith they passed through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned.

30 By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days.

31 By faith the harlot Rahab perished not with them that believed not, when she had received the spies with peace.

32 And what shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets:

33 Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens.

35 Women received their dead raised to life again: and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection:

36 And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment:

37 They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheep-skins and goat-skins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented;

38 (Of whom the world was not worthy:) they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

39 And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise:

40 God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. XI.—The life of a believer is a life of prayer. It is his exercise, habit, and delight, all his journey through. It accompanies him in all his trials, and it attends him on his dying bed. He spends his last breath in accents of prayer, immediately before he enters his celestial home, where prayer on earth is exchanged for eternal praises in heaven. How interesting to think of Jacob blessing his sons at the close of a life which was accompanied with wonders! but how peculiarly interesting to think of Jesus blessing his disciples on the summit of the Mount of Olives, immediately before he entered his cloudy chariot, and ascended through the sky to the heaven of heavens, to receive his mediatorial reward!

PRAYER.

BLESSED are they, O Lord our God, who dwell in thy house, and blessed is that abode where thou dost take up thy residence. O that our dwelling may be thy residence! In the devotional services of the closet, and in surrounding the family altar, may we often have reason to exclaim, from the sweet enjoyment of thy fellowship, and from the gracious communications of thy Spirit, It is none other than the house of God, it is the gate of heaven!

Lord, we desire to seek thy face, and to wait upon thee at this time in the duties of sacred worship. To whom should we draw near in religious and adoring services but to thyself? Thou art the Father of all mercies, and thou art our Father. Thou art the fountain of all goodness, and we have been drinking of the streams of thy goodness from our birth to the present hour. O what encouragement we have to come! for thou art not only able, but willing to do for us, above all that we are able to ask or think.

We thank a gracious providence for the mercies we have received and enjoyed during the past day. May thy daily goodness lead us to daily repentance, and to daily thankfulness. We desire, in the exercise of faith, to commend ourselves to the care and protection of a gracious and almighty providence this night. Even when we are fast asleep, may our hearts be awake, and may our souls lie open to the influence of thy holy Spirit. As a family may thy blessings never cease to shower down upon our heads, and may the voice of joy and praise be ever heard in our dwelling. May our abode be an house of prayer, and every member of the family a temple of the living God.

Bless to us what we have now read of the illustrations of the grace of faith. Give us, O Lord, that faith which comforted Jacob through life, and which strengthened him upon the bed of approaching dissolution. Like him, may we honour thee in life, and may we worship thee in death. As Joseph exercised an assured faith that the Church should be conducted safely and triumphantly to the promised Canaan, O may we exercise in Jesus our Saviour an assured confidence, that we shall be led in triumph through this wilderness-state, and when our mortal journey terminates, that we shall be admitted into the celestial Canaan. Blessed Saviour, may we see in Moses a type of thyself. Thou, O Jesus, in thine infancy, wast presented to the Church as a proper child, as the child born and the son given.

May our children resemble thee, and furnish evidence to all around, that Jesus, who was the babe of Bethlehem, is the Saviour of their souls. O Lord, hear this our prayer.

Lord, teach us to prefer poverty with Christ, to wealth without Christ; and teach us rather to cleave to Jesus and reproach, than choose the honours and distinctions of time, alienated from Christ and his salvation. Support us by faith, O Lord, under all the afflictions of life, and may we endure as seeing him who is invisible.

Lord, hear, accept, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy of all our love, adoration, and praise. Amen.

PRaising GOD.

Bethel. Chester New. Cookham. Stool.
1 I WILL praise thee every day,
 Now thine anger's turned away!
 Comfortable thoughts arise
 From the bleeding sacrifice.
2 Here, in the fair gospel-field,
 Wells of free salvation yield
 Streams of life, a plenteous store,
 And my soul shall thirst no more.
3 Jesus is become at length
 My salvation and my strength;
 And his praises shall prolong,
 While I live, my pleasant song.

P. M.

COWPER.

ISAIAH XI.

Christ's peaceable Kingdom.

AND there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse,
 and a Branch shall grow out of his roots:
2 And the spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD;
3 And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the LORD: and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears:
4 But with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked.
5 And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.
6 The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fating together; and a little child shall lead them.
7 And the cow and the bear shall feed: their young ones shall lie down together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.
8 And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den.
9 They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.
10 And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious.

ISAIAH XII.

Praising God.

AND in that day thou shalt say, O LORD, I will praise thee: though thou wast angry with me, thine anger is turned away, and thou comfortedst me.
2 Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid: for the LORD JEHOVAH is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation.
3 Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation.
4 And in that day shall ye say, Praise the LORD, call upon his name, declare his doings among the people, make mention that his name is exalted.
5 Sing unto the LORD; for he hath done excellent things:
 this is known in all the earth.
6 Cry out and shout, thou inhabitant of Zion: for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of thee.

REVISIONS UPON ISAIAH XI., XII.—The truth of God shines with peculiar lustre in the fulfilment of the promise which he gave to David, that the fruit of his loins should fill his throne for ever. What a mystery—Christ in his Divinity is David's root, and in his humanity he is David's offspring! The reign of Solomon was a reign of peace.
 When Christ's reign on earth shall be universal, O what peace shall overspread and bless the kingdoms of the world! Men, more ferocious than wild beasts, shall become meek and gentle as the lamb and the dove. Then the inhabitants of the earth shall constitute a holy family of brotherhood and love. Sweet are the songs of Zion; and they are especially sweet, melodious, and rapturous, when God withdraws the marks of his displeasure, and manifests the bright shining of his smiles, complacency, and grace. What precious wells of living water are God's word, promises, precepts, and ordinances!

 Do we value these sacred fountains? Do we daily visit these wells, to be refreshed with those streams which flow out so abundantly, for the consolation and peace of the Church of God?

PRAYER.

WITH humility and love we would bow, O Lord our God, before thy throne. In the name of Jesus we would present our morning prayer; and in dependance upon the Holy Spirit we would offer up our supplications. O that we could take up the language of the Church of old, and thus address thee: Behold, God is our salvation; we will trust and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is our strength and our song: he also is become our salvation. O what reason have we to praise thee, when we consider the great, the merciful, and the excellent things thou hast done! Thou art the Holy
 One of Israel; the Saviour, the deliverer, and the comforter of thy people. O that the whole earth were acquainted with thy mercy and grace, and that the nations were taught by the influence of the Gospel, universally preached and universally felt, to cry out and shout, because of the greatness of the God of salvation in the midst of his Church!

O Lord, be in the midst of us as a nation; then we shall find thee our almighty defence from the malevolence and assaults of all our enemies. Be in the midst of us as a neighbourhood; then the voice of melody and praise shall be heard in all our habitations. Be in the midst of us as a congregation; then shall thy word have free course and be glorified. O be in the midst of us as a family; then we shall be members of Christ's mystical body, and living stones of that spiritual temple of which Christ is the glory and defence.

We praise and adore thee, O Jesus, because of the blessed excellences which belong to thee as Mediator. We adore thee in that spirit of wisdom, and understanding, and counsel, and might, and knowledge, which thou didst so remarkably display in the days of thy humbled humanity, and which thou dost still gloriously manifest as the King of Zion. With righteousness thou dost judge the poor, and reprove with equity the meek of the earth. Lord Jesus, we acknowledge thee in thy mediatorial and essential dominion, and pray that we may enjoy the benefit of thy gracious authority.

We would mourn over the sad effects and consequences of sin, so extensively manifested by our fallen race. We lament that men have even exceeded wolves and leopards and lions, in the ferocity and cruelty of their nature; that the venom of the asp and the voracity of the crocodile are exceeded by the enmity of the heart of man. O let that blessed day soon arrive when a change as wonderful shall take place in the nature and dispositions of men, as if the wolf dwelt with the lamb, and the leopard lay down in harmony with the kid.
 We long for the period when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Teach our dear children and servants to look on thine ordinances as sacred wells; and enable them with joy to draw water out of these wells of salvation.

Lord, accept our thanks for the mercies of the night, and with the Church we would sing, The Lord Jehovah is our strength and our song; he also is become our salvation. Give us grace to spend this day in thy fear.

Mercifully hear the prayers of thine humble supplicants, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S PRIESTHOOD.

Suffolk New. Samaria. Horsley. Weymouth New. L. N.

- 1 BLOOD has a voice to pierce the skies,
Revenge, the blood of Abel cries!
But the dear stream when Christ was slain
Speaks peace as loud from every vein.
- 2 Pardon and peace from God on high,
Behold, he lays his vengeance by,
And rebels that deserved his sword
Become the favourites of the Lord.
- 3 To Jesus let our praises rise,
Who gave his life a sacrifice;
Now he appears before his God,
And for our pardon pleads his blood.

WARRE, 116, B. II.

HEBREWS XII.

Chastisement.

WHEREFORE seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

2 Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

5 And ye have forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him:

6 For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby.

18 For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest,

19 And the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words; which voice they that heard intreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more:

20 (For they could not endure that which was commanded, And if so much as a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart:

21 And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake:)

22 But ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels,

23 To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect,

24 And to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. XII.—We should carefully study, admire, and imitate the example of those saints, whose histories are recorded upon the sacred page; but more especially the holy, lovely, and perfect pattern Jesus has left, that we should follow his steps. The believer has a most honourable race in which to run: it is his privilege to look to Jesus as his guide, his example, and his almighty defence. At the conclusion of the race, he shall receive a glorious prize: an unfading crown shall be placed upon his head, by the gracious hand of the Captain of his salvation. Let us so run, with humility, perseverance, zeal, and holy dependence, that we may at last obtain this blessed prize, and hear our Saviour utter the following welcome, "Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord."

PRAYER.

O LORD of hosts and Father of mercies, we desire, at the conclusion of another week, as a family enriched by thy goodness, to encompass the domestic altar, and call on thy name. We would say with thy Church, Let us lift up our heart with our hands to God in the heavens. O that we could approach thee, and give utterance to our prayers, under the influence of penitential humility, and under a determination to forsake all iniquity in the strength of grace Divine. May our minds be deeply impressed with the importance of the counsel and the promise delivered to ancient Israel: If my people shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

We desire, O Lord, to acknowledge and adore thee as our Father. Thou art a loving Father, and thou dost manifest thy love in chastising thy children. O enable us to consider the afflictions of life as evidences of love and not of wrath. By faith may we look upon our afflictions as coming from the hand of a loving Father, and not from an angry judge. God forbid that we should despise the chastening of the Lord, or faint when we are rebuked of him. Lord, give us strength to bear all our afflictions, and grace to improve them. Though at present they are not joyous but grievous, may they afterwards produce the peaceable fruits of righteousness. Lord, give us the blessedness of connecting present suffering with future glory; and may we sing, in the triumphant language of an apostle, The sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed.

We thank thee, most gracious God, for the cloud of witnesses whose names are recorded in the Holy Scriptures, and who have left behind them a blessed example of running the Christian race. Like them, may we in reality lay aside every weight, every corruption, every favourite lust, every besetting sin, and run with patience the race set before us. Above all, may we fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith. We praise thee, blessed Saviour, that the shame and agonies of the cross did not discourage thee from pursuing thy mediatorial course. O enable us to rejoice in those honours to which thou art exalted as a triumphant Saviour. O give us thy grace, give us saving interest in thy righteousness; then shall we rejoice in joining the ransomed myriads before thy throne, who are for ever engaged in proclaiming thy praise.

Fill the hearts of our dear children with a spiritual love of heaven. May they long to enter heaven, not only because it is happy, but because it is holy.

We affectionately pray for all our relatives and friends. May they and we be admitted at last into the heavenly Jerusalem, to mingle with an innumerable company of angels, and to form a part of the general assembly and Church of the first-born, which are written in heaven. O let these prospects be ours; and, when our pilgrimage on earth is finished, may we enter upon a life of glory endless as the throne of God.

Accept of the humble tribute of our thanksgiving for the mercies of the past day; spare us to enter upon another day of the Son of man; and all we ask is for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

PROFESSIONS OF SINCERITY.

New York. Epith.

c. n.

- 1 THOU art my portion, O my God;
Soon as I know thy way,
My heart makes haste to obey thy word,
And suffers no delay.
- 2 I chose the path of heavenly truth,
And glory in my choice:
Not all the riches of the earth
Could make me so rejoice.
- 3 The testimonies of thy grace
I set before my eyes;
Thence I derive my daily strength,
And there my comfort lies.
- 4 If once I wander from thy path,
I think upon my ways,
Then turn my feet to thy commands,
And trust thy pardoning grace.

WATTS, Po. 119, p. 111.

PSALM CXIX.

GIMEL, PART III.

Great Love to God's Word.

DEAL bountifully with thy servant, that I may live, and keep thy word.

18 Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

19 I am a stranger in the earth: hide not thy commandments from me.

20 My soul breaketh for the longing that it hath unto thy judgments at all times.

21 Thou hast rebuked the proud that are cursed, which do err from thy commandments.

22 Remove from me reproach and contempt; for I have kept thy testimonies.

23 Princes also did sit and speak against me: but thy servant did meditate in thy statutes.

24 Thy testimonies also are my delight and my counsellors.

DALETH, PART IV.

Earnest Prayers.

MY soul cleaveth unto the dust: quicken thou me according to thy word.

26 I have declared my ways, and thou heardest me: teach me thy statutes.

27 Make me to understand the way of thy precepts; so shall I talk of thy wondrous works.

28 My soul melteth for heaviness: strengthen thou me according unto thy word.

29 Remove from me the way of lying: and grant me thy law graciously.

30 I have chosen the way of truth: thy judgments have I laid before me.

31 I have stuck unto thy testimonies: O Lord, put me not to shame.

32 I will run the way of thy commandments, when thou shalt enlarge my heart.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS III. AND IV.—The servants of God esteem the favour of Christ as the chief enjoyment of their existence, and the grace of God as the only security for their obedience. They long for an increase of spiritual light, that they may become increasingly acquainted with glories in the Word of life, far more wonderful than all that can be witnessed in the visible creation, with its multitudes of suns and myriads of stars. Believers look on this world as a strange land, and on heaven as the delightful abode where they shall for ever enjoy the fellowship of their Father and God. While the lofty and the proud are cursed, the humble saint exercises the assured hope, that he shall finally reach the peaceful realms of heavenly joy, where he shall be for ever removed beyond the persecution of princes, and the malvolent reproaches of cruel foes. Carnal men cleave to the dust, to the world, and its perishing objects and empty pleasures; the believer cleaves to Christ in his person, his attributes, his offices, and his Word. Have we given our hearts to Christ?

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, our creating, preserving, and redeeming God, thou alone art worthy to be praised, and to receive the homage of religious adoration. Praise to thy great and gracious name, for preserving us during the past night, and for enabling us, in such circumstances of comfort, to encompass the family altar, and to draw near to the throne of grace on the morning of thy holy, thy hallowed day. As a family, we would encourage each other, and say, in the language of the Psalmist, O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker: for thou art our God, and we are the people of thy pasture, and the sheep of thine hand.

Holy Spirit, graciously make us, and the congregation with which we are connected, increasingly and feelingly sensible of the absolute necessity of thy Divine aid, to enable us, and all thy worshippers, to present the supplications of the heart, in the exercise of repentance, humility, faith, and love. Holy Spirit, condescend to breathe upon us thy blessed influences. May we ever experience thy sacred and Divine power upon our hearts, bearing witness with our spirits that we are the children of God. O give us thy grace, and may it blossom; and bring forth a rich harvest of fruit, good and acceptable.

We thank our God for the blessed truths we have now read. As our ears have been honoured in being permitted to hear them, may our hearts be still more honoured by feeling their quickening and sanctifying power.

What reason have we, O Lord, to adore thee in the displays of thy bounty. Thou hast been to us bountiful in providence. Goodness and mercy, streams flowing from thy bounty, have followed us all the days of our life. O bless each one of us with thy gracious, saving bounty. In the language and spirit of thy servant we desire to pray: Deal bountifully with us as a family and as individuals; then shall we live and keep thy Word. If thou hast opened the eyes of the understanding of any now before thee, we give thee glory and praise; and we earnestly pray for increasing light, that we may behold wondrous things out of thy law. If any in thy presence are blinded by the god of this world, O may the eyes of their understanding be opened, and may they see the excellence of thy Word, the value of the soul, and the glory and the suitableness of Christ.

For the honour of thy name, for the advancement of thy kingdom, for the edification of thy saints, and for the salvation of those who are ready to perish, do thou powerfully assist thy ministering servants of every name and denomination, that they may display the wonders of Divine revelation, exhibit the glory of Jesus, and make known the unsearchable riches of Christ. O that every sanctuary may be found this day to be indeed the house of God and the gate of heaven.

Lord, enable our dear children to choose the way of truth, and to run in the way of thy commandments. May our servants be in reality thy servants, and may they live spiritually and keep thy Word.

Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

DELIGHT IN GOD'S WORD.

Bedford. Newbury.

C. W.

- 1 O HOW I love thy holy law!
'Tis daily my delight;
And thence my meditations draw
Divine advice by night.
- 2 My waking eyes prevent the day
To meditate thy word:
My soul with longing melts away
To hear thy gospel, Lord.
- 3 How doth thy word my heart engage!
How well employ my tongue!
And, in my tiresome pilgrimage,
Yields me a heavenly song.
- 4 When nature sinks, and spirits droop,
Thy promises of grace
Are pillars to support my hope,
And there I write thy praise.

WATTS, Ps. 119, p. 7.

PSALM CXIX.

III, PART V.

Prayer for Grace.

TEACH me, O LORD, the way of thy statutes; and I shall keep it unto the end.

34 Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart.

35 Make me to go in the path of thy commandments; for therein do I delight.

36 Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness.

37 Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity; and quicken thou me in thy way.

38 Stablish thy word unto thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear.

39 Turn away my reproach which I fear: for thy judgments are good.

40 Behold, I have longed after thy precepts: quicken me in thy righteousness.

VAU, PART VI.

Holy Resolutions.

LET thy mercies come also unto me, O LORD, even thy salvation, according to thy word.

42 So shall I have wherewith to answer him that reproacheth me: for I trust in thy word.

43 And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth; for I have hoped in thy judgments.

44 So shall I keep thy law continually for ever and ever.

45 And I will walk at liberty: for I seek thy precepts.

46 I will speak of thy testimonies also before kings, and will not be ashamed.

47 And I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I have loved.

48 My hands also will I lift up unto thy commandments, which I have loved; and I will meditate in thy statutes.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS V. AND VI.—A saving knowledge of God's Word is infinitely more valuable than all the learning which can be derived from the wells of human intelligence. The believer is a scholar in the school of Christ, and there he wishes to make constant progress in the sublime mysteries of salvation; while he is comforted with the hope of being at last introduced into the heavenly world, where he shall no longer see God through a glass darkly, but where he shall behold him face to face. Love to God's laws, running in the way of his commandments, having the heart raised above the vanities of this world, and having earnest desires to be adorned with the graces of the Spirit, are all assured evidences of an interest in Christ, and a title to heaven. How comely is the grace of zeal, which enables the believer, if opportunities occur, to proclaim the testimonies of God in the presence of the rulers of the earth! Of this, St. Paul was a most illustrious example. As to worldly men, their delight is in their corn, their wine, their oil, in their gold and silver, or in their rank, influence, and power. God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, is the delight of the saints. The men of the world say, What shall we eat, what shall we drink, and wherewithal shall we be clothed? The followers of the Lamb say, "The Lord is the strength of our hearts, and our portion for ever."

PRAYER.

FATHER of mercies, thou art he alone whom we ought to love, praise, and adore. What are we, that we should be the recipients of so many blessings! This day thou hast crowned us with thy loving-kindness, thou hast permitted us to engage in the secret, the domestic, and the public ordinances of our holy faith; though worms of the dust, we have been allowed to enjoy fellowship with thyself, whose presence and smiles constitute the joy and glory of the celestial mansions. Bless the Lord, O our soul, and forget not all his benefits!

We pray that thy Word may be sanctified to us, and to all who heard it. Accompany the sowing of the sacred seed with the influences of the Holy Spirit; then there will be a rich harvest of sacred and immortal fruit, which will be gathered unto eternal life. We adore thee for the accomplishment of thy promise to the Church, which has continued in its fulfilment uninterrupted until the present day: The Lord hath chosen Zion; I will clothe her priests with salvation, and her saints shall shout aloud for joy. May thy ministers be more impressed than ever with the honourable and important nature of their sacred office. Amid all the discouragements arising from their own infirmities, the opposition of Satan, and the obstinacy and unbelief of men, may their hearts be cheered and comforted by that sublime and animating promise, They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever. May they ever remember their high calling, and that they are not sent a warfare upon their own charges, but that their sufficiency is of God, and their strength is an arm of almighty power.

We humbly seek the blessing of the Holy Spirit upon the ordinance in which we are now engaged; and in particular on the Word we have now read. May all the petitions we have read be in reality the desires of our hearts. Holy Spirit, be our instructor; then we shall know the will of God, and, unto the end of our days, shall adhere to thy Word, thy statutes, and thine ordinances. We mourn over the ignorance of our minds; and where can we go, O Jesus, but to thyself, that the eyes of our understanding may be opened? O give us understanding. Thou who givest grace to saints and wisdom to angels, mercifully give understanding to us thy humble petitioners; then we will yield sincere and constant obedience to thy laws.

Incline the heart of our children unto thy testimonies, and give them an unfeigned delight in thy Word. Make thy Word their daily counsellor and daily comforter.

As a family, let thy mercies come unto us, O Lord; even thy salvation, according to thy Word. We surrender our souls and bodies to thy care this night; and may our prayers be heard, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SAFETY OF THE CHURCH.

Curr's Lane. Zion's Church. Evans'.

C. K.

- 1 HOW honourable is the place,
Where we adoring stand!
Zion, the glory of the earth,
And beauty of the land!
- 2 Bulwarks of mighty grace defend
The city where we dwell;
The walls, of strong salvation made,
Defy the assaults of hell.
- 3 Lift up the everlasting gates,
The doors wide open fling,
Enter, ye nations that obey
The statutes of our King.
- 4 Here shall you taste unmingled joys,
And live in perfect peace,
You that have known Jehovah's name,
And ventured on his grace.

Watts, G. B. J.

ISAIAH XXVI.

Confidence in God.

IN that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah;
We have a strong city; salvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks.

2 Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in.

3 Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.

4 Trust ye in the LORD for ever: for in the LORD JE-HOVAH is everlasting strength.

5 For he bringeth down them that dwell on high: the lofty city, he layeth it low; he layeth it low, even to the ground; he bringeth it even to the dust.

6 The foot shall tread it down, even the feet of the poor, and the steps of the needy.

7 The way of the just is uprightness: thou, most upright, dost weigh the path of the just.

8 Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.

9 With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.

10 Let favour be shewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness: in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold the majesty of the LORD.

11 LORD, when thy hand is lifted up, they will not see: but they shall see, and be ashamed for their envy at the people;
yea, the fire of thine enemies shall devour them.

12 LORD, thou wilt ordain peace for us: for thou also hast wrought all our works in us.

13 O LORD our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us: but by thee only will we make mention of thy name.

14 They are dead, they shall not live: they are deceased, they shall not rise: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish.

15 Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust:
for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead.

16 Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast.

17 For, behold, the LORD cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XXVI.—The Gospel-day is a joyful day, and it brings the foretaste of the joys of heaven. The Church of Christ is a city remarkable for its wealth, its privileges, its glory, its strength, and its duration: Jesus is its architect, he is a wall of fire around it, and the glory in the midst of it; his person, righteousness, and intercession, constitute the foundation on which it is built. Can the gates of hell prevail against it? Impossible—impossible; it cannot be. What reason for thanksgiving and praise!—the gates of this noble city are open night and day for people of all nations and tongues; they shall continue open till all the objects of Jehovah's love have entered, until the number of his redeemed family is complete. O what myriads shall pass through the gates of this city in the bright days of millennial blessedness! they shall resemble the stars of the sky, and the sand by the sea-shore for multitude—even a multitude which cannot be numbered. Are we the citizens of that illustrious city? Are we among the righteous nation who keep the truth and enter in?

PRAYER.

WE bow before thee, O Lord, and acknowledge and adore thee as the King eternal, immortal, and invisible. Thou art Zion's God, and thou hast surrounded her with salvation for walls and bulwarks. We desire to acknowledge thee as the Lord our God. As a family may we enjoy thy special protection; and O may the salvation of our God surround us as walls and bulwarks.

O Lord, have mercy on our nation, and make it a righteous nation. Deliver us from national pride and national lukewarmness and national profanity. O that all the inhabitants of our land may be admitted within the gates of thy Church, even Zion, thy sacred city, against which thou wilt never permit the gates of hell to prevail. Have pity on all the nations of the earth, and deliver them from the dominion of the god of this world. Jesus, thou great Immanuel, appear in thy majesty and grace; take to thyself thy great power, and reign; and soon may the blinded, pagan myriads of our fallen race enjoy the benefits of thy mediatorial government.

We thank God for giving us the truth as it is contained in the Word of life. Enlighten our understandings, that we may know the truth: and impart unto us saving grace, that we may keep the truth. Lord, deliver us from evil hearts of unbelief, and in thy mercy bestow upon us that faith by which our minds shall be stayed on the Lord our God. Suffer us not, most gracious God, to make man our confidence, but may we trust in the Lord for ever; for in the Lord Jehovah there is everlasting strength. O Jesus, teach us to trust in thy righteousness for acceptance with God, whose justice we have offended, and to whose wrath we have exposed ourselves by our sins. Deliver us from a legal confidence in our own supposed righteousness, which is only a collection of rags polluted and vile. We would now, O Jesus, forsake every other refuge but thyself. To thee we would look alone, as the only refuge from the wind, and the only covert from the storms of Divine wrath; and may we ever be prevented from fleeing to refuges of lies.

Bless our dear children with saving grace. Preserve them from the sin of pride, and give them humility. Deliver them from the sin of hardness of heart, and give them the grace of evangelical repentance.

Teach us, and all our relatives, to wait on God. May we wait upon thee in all thine ordinances, and wait on thee in all the dispensations of thy providence. Let the desire of our soul be to thee and to the remembrance of thy name. And on the morning of the resurrection may we awake out of the dust, and unite with angels and saints in songs of praise.

We thank God for the mercies of the night, and implore the Divine blessing during this day. We seek the answer of our prayers, only for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S ETERNITY.

Downdale. Elindon. Warkham.

L. M.

- 1 IT is the Lord our Saviour's hand
Weakens our strength amidst the race,
Disease and death at his command
Arrest us, and cut short our days.
- 2 Spare us, O Lord, aloud we pray,
Nor let our sun go down at noon;
Thy years are one eternal day,
And must thy children die so soon?
- 3 Yet in the midst of death and grief
This thought our sorrow shall assuage,
Our Father and our Saviour live;
Christ is the same through every age.

Watts, Ps. 102, p. 111.

HEBREWS XIII.

Divers Admonitions.

REMEMBER them which have the rule over you, who have spoken unto you the word of God: whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation:

8 Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever.

9 Be not carried about with divers and strange doctrines. For it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace; not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein.

10 We have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat which serve the tabernacle.

11 For the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are buried without the camp.

12 Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate.

13 Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach.

14 For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come.

15 By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name.

16 But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

17 Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give account, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

18 Pray for us: for we trust we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly.

19 But I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

20 Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, 21 Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is wellpleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation: for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye that our brother Timothy is set at liberty; with whom, if he come shortly, I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the saints. They of Italy salute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON HEB. XIII.—Genuine piety shows itself in love to the ministers of Christ, for their Master's sake and for the truth's sake. How sublime, how animating, how encouraging, are the great subjects which constitute the glory and richness of gospel-preaching—namely, Jesus in his person, in the boundless merit of his righteousness, in the all-prevailing efficacy of his intercession, and in the immutability of his love! May these subjects, so blessed and Divine, be the objects of our love, and the overflowing fountains of our joy! What a blessing it is to be preserved from the pestilential winds of erroneous doctrines, and to enjoy Divine protection in the impregnable tower of Divine truth. Ancient Levitical altars, which gave a ceremonial value to the victims offered upon them, were typical of the Divinity of Christ, which imparts an infinite value to the sacrifice of his humanity. Levitical priests fed upon the sacrifices which were presented upon their altars; and believers feed on the glorious sacrifice of his humanity, which Christ presented upon the altar of his Divinity. May we by faith feed on Christ, the Bread of life!

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, we desire, at the close of another day, to draw near thy throne, and seek the light of thy countenance. With grateful hearts we would acknowledge the unmerited mercies of the past day, and we would take encouragement to seek renewed mercies for this night.

O Lord, thou art the God of peace; give us that peace which passeth all understanding. Thou art the God of peace, graciously preserve us this night in safety and peace, and encompass us with the arms of thy Divine protection.

We adore thee, O Lord, as having exercised thy Divine power, agreeably to the conditions of the covenant of grace, in bringing again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant. O give us the unspeakable benefits of the covenant of grace, purchased by Christ's death, and secured by his resurrection. Make us perfect in every good work, to do the will of thee our God and Father, working in us that which is well-pleasing in thy sight, through Jesus Christ. We thank thee, most merciful God, for the seasonable and sacred instructions we have now read. We pray for a disposition to follow them, and for grace to obey them. Praise to thy name for the ordinances of thy house, and for the ministers of the sanctuary. Give us thy spirit, that we may conscientiously observe thine ordinances, and affectionately remember and follow and obey thy ministers. Glory to our God that thou hast in all ages raised up and qualified and appointed men to be the heralds of salvation. And praise to thy name that the Gospel they preach is made mighty by God, to the pulling down of strongholds of iniquity, and of levelling with the dust everything that is at variance with the will of God. Increase in the minds of thy people, and throughout all the churches, love and veneration for the ambassadors of eternal truth; and make thy people readily to submit themselves to the sacred counsels of their instructors, seeing they watch for the souls of men, as they who must give an account, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief.

Graciously deliver thy Church from those men who profess to be the ministers of Christ, but who are neither sent by God nor are they blessings to men. O introduce into thy Church those who are clothed with thy spirit, and who esteem the salvation of souls a greater object than the conquest of empires.

Make our children members of the Church of Christ, establish them in the faith, and may they never be carried about with divers winds of human doctrines and opinions.

As the time will come when death will dissolve us as a family, may we remember daily that here we have no continuing city, but may we constantly seek one which is to come, even a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. Hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is the same yesterday and to-day and for ever; to whom be glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

CHRIST THE REFUGE.

Bathwick. Hadstock. Tottenham Court.

P. M.

- 1 BY me, O my Saviour, stand
In every trying hour;
Guard me with thy outstretched hand,
And hold me by thy power;
Mindful of thy faithful word,
Thine all-sufficient grace bestow;
Keep me, keep me, dearest Lord,
And never let me go.
- 2 Never let me go, till I,
Upborne on wings of love,
Gain the regions of the sky,
And take my seat above:
Thou hast passed thy gracious word,
That thou wilt bring me safely through:
Thou wilt, therefore, keep me, Lord,
Nor ever let me go.

ANON.

ISAIAH XXXII.

Blessings of the Church.

BEHOLD, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment.

2 And a man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.

3 And the eyes of them that see shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear shall hearken.

4 The heart also of the rash shall understand knowledge, and the tongue of the stammerers shall be ready to speak plainly.

5 The vile person shall be no more called liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful.

6 For the vile person will speak villany, and his heart will work iniquity, to practise hypocrisy, and to utter error against the Lord, to make empty the soul of the hungry, and he will cause the drink of the thirsty to fail.

7 The instruments also of the churl are evil: he deviseth wicked devices to destroy the poor with lying words, even when the needy speaketh right.

8 But the liberal deviseth liberal things; and by liberal things shall he stand.

9 Rise up, ye women that are at ease; hear my voice, ye careless daughters; give ear unto my speech.

10 Many days and years shall ye be troubled, ye careless women: for the vintage shall fail, the gathering shall not come.

14 Because the palaces shall be forsaken; the multitude of the city shall be left; the forts and towers shall be for dens for ever, a joy of wild asses, a pasture of flocks;

15 Until the spirit be poured upon us from on high, and the wilderness be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a forest.

16 Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness remain in the fruitful field.

17 And the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever.

18 And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places;

19 When it shall hail, coming down on the forest; and the city shall be low in a low place.

20 Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters, that send forth thither the feet of the ox and the ass.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XXXII.—The good kings of Judah in their graces and government were typical of Jesus, who infinitely surpasses the best kings that ever lived or shall live, who is by way of eminence the King of kings, and of whom it is said, "Righteousness is the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins." Let us think with humility on that to which sin exposes us, and let us think with thankfulness on Jesus as our protector, defender, and deliverer. Sin exposes us to the stormy tempest of Divine wrath: Jesus comes and hides us in his righteousness. Sin exposes us to the fiery darts of the wicked one: Jesus comes and spreads over us the shield of his omnipotence. Sin exposes us to temptations furious and fierce: Jesus comes and hides us in the secret of his pavillion. Sin has struck the soul with blindness: Jesus comes with his regenerating spirit, and opens the eyes of the understanding. Sin has made the soul earthly, covetous, and selfish: Jesus comes and raises the soul above earthly things, and makes it generous, merciful, and kind. Blessed Jesus!

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Mediator, we acknowledge thee in thy royal and Divine glories, perfections, and prerogatives. Though thou didst appear on earth clothed with human flesh, thou art God as well as man, being in nature and essence the same and equal with the Father and Spirit. We acknowledge thee as the great King of Zion, who dost reign in righteousness. Justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne, mercy and truth go before thy face. Thou art, O Jesus, as the Mediator between God and man, the only hiding-place from the winds of Divine wrath, and the only covert from the violent tempests of Divine vengeance. We come to thee this morning to seek defence and protection under the covert of thy righteousness. Teach us by thy spirit to view this world as a dry place, furnishing no streams of consolation, peace, or hope to the souls of men. Preserve us from an unhallowed love of this world, and may we never fall into the sin of expecting to find it a paradise of delight and enjoyment, while it is only a dry place, and can never furnish the verdure of heavenly bliss.

We pray that Christ's fame as a Saviour and a refuge may spread speedily over the whole earth; and may the kingdoms of the world soon rejoice in the benefits of the reign of Jesus as the Prince of peace. And wherever the Gospel is preached may the eyes of the dim be made clearly to see Divine things, may the ears of the deaf be enabled to hearken to the voice of mercy and the proclamations of love. Under the preaching of the Gospel may the foolish understand knowledge, and the tongue of the dumb be made to sing the praises of God. We have reason, O Lord, to lament over our ignorance in the midst of such invaluable opportunities of having our minds enriched with an extensive knowledge of Divine things. Deliver us from a covetous, avaricious, worldly-minded spirit. Preserve thy Church from worldly-minded men, who are governed by worldly policy, and not the principles of the Gospel, and whose affections are captivated by earthly objects, and not placed on the realities of heaven.

Suffer not our dear children, and domestics, to be carried away by the allurements of this world. Preserve them from the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life.

We supplicate in behalf of our family and all the families with which we are acquainted, in behalf of our congregation and all the congregations of thy people, the descent of the Holy Ghost. O let the Spirit be poured out from on high; then the wilderness shall be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be counted for a forest; then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness shall remain in the fruitful field. Let Divine peace prevail through all the churches, and hasten those days of millennial glory when thy people shall dwell in peaceable habitations, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting-places.

Accept our praises for the mercies of the night, and assist in the duties of the day, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

COMPLAINING OF INCONSTANCY.

Drayton. Athlone. Virginia.

L. M.

- 1 THE wandering star, and fleeting wind,
Both represent the unstable mind;
The morning cloud and early dew
Bring our inconstancy to view.
- 2 But cloud and wind, and dew and star,
Faint and imperfect emblems are;
Nor can there aught in nature be
So fickle and so false as we.
- 3 We sin forsake, to sin return;
Are hot, are cold; now freeze, now burn;
In deep distress, thou raptures feel;
We soar to heaven, thou sink to hell.

BEDDOME.

JAMES I.

Enduring Affliction.

JAMES, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greeting.

2 My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations;

3 Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience.

4 But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

5 If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.

6 But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed.

7 For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double minded man is unstable in all his ways.

9 Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted:

10 But the rich, in that he is made low: because as the flower of the grass he shall pass away.

11 For the sun is no sooner risen with a burning heat, but it withereth the grass, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth: so also shall the rich man fade away in his ways.

12 Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

13 Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man:

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed.

15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

16 Do not err, my beloved brethren.

17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

18 Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath:

20 For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON JAMES I.—A deep concern for the spiritual prosperity of the Church of Christ, and love to his saints, are satisfying evidences of unfeigned piety. Support under affliction, the beneficial effects of sanctified affliction, the connection betwixt sanctified affliction, and the glories of immortality, are to believers sources of joy and matter of thanksgiving. Wisdom is a pearl of great price: let us earnestly pray that we may receive this goodly pearl. Is this valuable jewel to be obtained by prayer? let our prayers be earnest, believing, and constant; then we shall receive that wisdom, which shall prove a diadem of unfading glory. Men that may be placed by Providence in the lowest temporal rank, and by grace enjoy a lofty spiritual degree. While ambitious men are seeking earthly honours, which, however beautiful and alluring to the carnal eye, are only a fading flower, or a fleeting shadow, which must soon pass away, may we seek after the distinctions of grace, the glory of which shall endure for ever.

PRAYER.

WE bow before thee, O Lord, as our Governor and our Lord. Too long we have been the servants of Satan, of the world, and of our own corruptions. We are thine, and therefore we would feel our obligation to love and serve thee. While we acknowledge the duty, we would humbly rejoice in the privilege. Thy ways, O Lord, are ways of pleasantness, and in keeping thy commandments there is great reward. Like James, the Apostle, may each member of our family be a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

O teach our dear children to surrender their youthful hearts to Christ, and now to commence that course of obedience to his wholesome laws which will testify their love to his person, and their faith in his righteousness.

We acknowledge, holy Father, the corruption of our heart, and the sinfulness of our lives. We confess our unbelief, and that many of our prayers have not been presented in faith. We have wavered in our hearts, when we have approached thy throne. We have resembled the waves of the sea, which are driven with the wind and tossed. If thou hadst dealt with us as our unbelieving prayers deserved, thou wouldest never have answered one of our petitions.

We adore thee, O Lord, as just, and wise, and good, in all the temptations and afflictions which have befallen us in this wilderness state. We pray that our afflictions may be sanctified. If we have no saving faith in Christ, may the trials of life show the necessity of this invaluable grace. If we have faith, O may our affliction be instrumental in strengthening our faith and increasing our patience. May patience have her perfect work, that we may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

We adore thee, gracious Saviour, as the only wise God. Thou art the fountain of all wisdom. Thou art the merciful and condescending instructor of the ignorant and foolish. O Jesus, we come to thee as ignorant and foolish. We lack wisdom. We praise thee for the encouragement given us to seek this blessing: for God giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and thou hast promised it shall be given them.

We pray for the poor and needy. Mercifully supply their wants out of the inexhaustible treasury of thy providence. Though thou hast denied them earthly riches, give them a spiritual inheritance; make them rich in faith, and heirs of thy kingdom.

We pray for those who are exalted to the enjoyment of temporal wealth and earthly honours. Give them thy grace, which will make them humble disciples at Jesus' feet. O Lord, grant that we and all our relatives may be heirs of a crown of life, which God has promised to them that love him.

Bless the duties and engagements of the day. May our acknowledgments for thy mercies be accepted. Graciously bless and protect us this night. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, through the merits of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE WAY TO HEAVEN.

West Ham. Essex. Union Cottage. Prior's. s. m.

- 1 NOW let our voices join
To form a sacred song:
Ye pilgrims in Jehovah's ways,
With music pass along.
- 2 How straight the path appears,
How open and how fair!
No lurking gins to ontrap our feet,
No fierce destroyer there.
- 3 But flowers of paradise
In rich profusion spring;
The sun of glory gilds the path,
And dear companions sing
- 4 See Salem's golden spires
In beauteous prospect rise;
And brighter crowns than mortals wear,
Which sparkle through the skies.
- 5 All honour to his name,
Who marks the shining way!
To him who leads the wanderers on
To realms of endless day!

DODDRIDGE.

ISAIAH XXXV.

Future Glory of the Church.

THE wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.

2 It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the LORD, and the excellency of our God.

3 Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.

4 Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you.

5 Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

6 Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.

7 And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water: in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes.

8 And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called, The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.

9 No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there:

10 And the ransomed of the LORD shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XXIV.—How great and how wonderful are the effects produced upon the minds and circumstances of men by the Gospel, when accompanied by the effectual power of the Holy Spirit! Spiritual barrenness is changed into fertility, sorrow into joy, and the dark night of ignorance into the bright day of saving wisdom and intelligence. No blossoms with all their fragrance, no flowers with all their loveliness, no trees with all their luxuriant fruitfulness, can be compared with the spiritual loveliness and sacred fragrance of grace, or with the glory of the righteousness of Christ, in which the saints of God are arrayed. How infinitely adapted to our fallen race is the Gospel with its blessings! Are we weak? the Gospel furnishes spiritual strength. Are we overwhelmed with fear? the Gospel furnishes the assured conviction of an interest in redeeming love, and the assured hopes of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. Are we exposed to the craft, enmity, and cruelty of spiritual enemies? the Gospel leads us to Jesus, the almighty and merciful Deliverer. Are we in a vale of tears? the Gospel reveals heaven and its blessedness as our eternal home! Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy gracious name, O Lord our God, that thou hast mercifully preserved us during the past night, and that we are now honoured by enjoying another blessed opportunity of bowing down before thy throne of grace. We thank a kind providence for sleep, and for awakening us from our slumbers, and permitting us to see the return of the morning's light. On the morning of the resurrection, may we awake to behold the gracious smiles of Jesus, our Saviour and our Judge.

Blessed God, we acknowledge—and would do it with grief—the sad and ruined state of our world, by the sin and apostasy of man. The soul, which was originally a garden of beauty, is now a wilderness of deformity. We rejoice that thou hast not forsaken and abandoned our sinful world. In thy gracious wisdom thou hast contrived a plan by which the depravity of sin may give place to the beauty of holiness. We adore thee in the display of thine Almighty power, by which, in instances innumerable, the wilderness has been changed into the fruitful field. O continue and increase the displays of thy gracious power. Look down on pagan nations, and on myriads of human beings, which present the sad spectacle of a moral wilderness, where grow nothing but the thorns of corruptions, and where the devouring dragons of lusts and hideous passions so alarmingly prevail. Look down on this dreary and extensive moral desert. O make the wilderness and the solitary place to rejoice under the Gospel sound. Cause the desert to be glad under the fertilizing influence of Gospel ordinances, and to blossom as the rose. May Jesus, the true rose of Sharon, be planted in every land, that all nations may be captivated with his beauty and refreshed by his fragrance.

We pray for those that are fearful; may they be strong and fear not: may they rejoice that God the Saviour is come, and has worked out a glorious salvation for a lost and ruined world. Have mercy upon those who are spiritually blind, and open their eyes to see their sinfulness and misery by the fall of Adam. Open their eyes to see the blessed recovery from guilt and ruin, by Christ the second Adam. Persuade men to hear the Gospel; and, when they hear it, O give them grace to believe it.

Lord, comfort aged saints with the promises of thy Word. May their weak hands be strengthened, and their feeble knees confirmed. May their hearts be filled with great joy by the prospect of joining the company of the ransomed of the Lord when this mortal life shall cease, and of dwelling in that land where sorrow and sighing are unknown, and where joy and gladness reign for ever.

Bless our family. Let it not be a moral desert, but make it a spiritual garden of thy grace. May all of us be trees of righteousness.

Take our dear children and domestics out of the desert of a natural state, and O plant them in the lovely garden of thy Church.

We praise thee for the heavenly world, where the ransomed of the Lord for ever praise thee, and where there is nothing to hurt or destroy. Give us grace to glorify thee this day. Preserve us from every snare. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRISTIAN LOVE.

Magdalen. Para.

BLESSED Redeemer! how Divine,
How righteous is this law of thine,— “Never to deal with others worse
Than we would have them deal with us!”

2 This golden lesson, short and plain,
Gives not the mind nor memory pain;
And every conscience must approve
The law of universal love.

3 'Tis written in each mortal breast,
Where all our tenderest wishes rest.
We draw it from our inmost veins,
Where love to self resides and reigns.

4 Jesus, forgive us, that we keep
Thy sacred law of love asleep,
And take our envy, wrath, and pride,
Those savage passions, for our guide.

JAMES III.

Sins of the Tongue.

MY brethren, be not many masters, knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation.

2 For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body.

3 Behold, we put bits in the horses' mouths that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small helm, whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!

6 And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity; so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

7 For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind:

8 But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

9 Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God.

10 Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?

12 Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine, figs? so can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

13 Who is a wise man, and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth.

15 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work.

17 But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

18 And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace.

REFLECTIONS UPON JAMES III.—Those who are filled with carnal ambition, are in constant danger; they who are clothed with Christian humility, are in a tower of impregnable strength, where they are protected from every danger, and safe from every foe. Here, believers have reason to mourn that they have many spots and blemishes; in heaven, they shall be without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing. True personal piety teaches true self-government; and where there is no government of the tongue there is no evidence of the beneficial influence and reign of grace. The tongue in its dimensions is small, but in its influence is great, for good or for evil. How necessary then are the restraints and the guidance of grace! How humiliating to think of the tongue set on fire of hell; but how comforting to think of the tongue set on fire with love from heaven! May God preserve us from the first; may the Holy Spirit, in his abundant mercy, graciously bestow upon us the second. May our speech be ever consecrated to God's service and praise! Amen.

L. M.

WATTS.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art arrayed in robes of glorious and uncreated majesty. Thy throne, O Jesus, is infinitely more exalted than the thrones of the mightiest of earthly kings; yea, infinitely more exalted than the lofty thrones of archangels, those principalities and powers which are in the heavenly places.

Great and glorious Saviour, we desire to feel humbled in thy presence. Deliver us from the pride of our own hearts. Prevent that we should think of ourselves more highly than we ought to think; but may we think soberly. Suffer us not to manifest to others the pride of our hearts, or ever to seek to obtain over them an undue superiority. Restrain the pride of haughty rulers; disappoint their plans, and set at liberty those who are oppressed or afflicted by their tyrannical influence. Strike cruel and tyrannical rulers with thy terrors, and convince them that a great condemnation awaits their crimes, if they are not speedily abandoned with unfeigned repentance.

We confess the number and aggravation of our sins. We would not, we dare not stand before thee with a self-righteous spirit. In many things we offend, in all things we offend. While we have reason, with emotions of thankfulness, to praise thee for the gift of speech, we ought to be humbled in the dust for our abuse of this great, this distinguished gift. If thou shouldst enter into judgment with us for the profane, the irreverent, the false, the idle, the angry, and the rash words which have fallen from our lips, we could not stand in thy presence, holy and righteous Jehovah. We acknowledge our sins of omission, in connection with the faculty of speech. Thou didst give us this faculty to praise thee: alas! how little we have proclaimed thy praise! Thou didst confer upon us this faculty, that we might speak to the honour of Christ, and make known in our respective stations, however humble, the riches of his grace: but, alas! how little we have said in honour of his renowned name! Lord, forgive this our sin. O Jesus, blot it out by the merit of thy righteousness, and let it be remembered no more. By thy good spirit may we be preserved from offending God with our lips, and by thy good providence may we be preserved from the corrupted tongues of others.

Take our children under thy management and care. Let them not fall into the temptation of uttering profane, vile, or lying words.

Give all of us grace to glorify thee with our speech, by praying to and praising thee. We seek not for ourselves earthly treasures, but O give us graciously that wisdom which is from above, which is full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy.

Receive our humble acknowledgments for the mercies of the day, and be our defender this night. Accept of this our evening sacrifice, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

PRaises FOR DELIVERANCE FROM DEATH.

Buckingham. Racton. Salem.

C. M.

- 1 LORD, thou hast heard thy servant cry,
And rescued from the grave;
Now shall he live: (and none can die,
If God resolve to save.)
- 2 Thy praise, more constant than before,
Shall fill his daily breath;
Thy hand, that hath chastised him sore,
Defends him still from death.
- 3 Open the gates of Zion now,
For we shall worship there,
The house where all the righteous go,
Thy mercy to declare.

Watts, Ps. 118, p. 11.

ISAIAH XXXVIII.

Hezekiah's Song.

IN those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came unto him, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the LORD,

3 And said, Remember now, O LORD, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah wept sore.

4 Then came the word of the LORD to Isaiah, saying,

5 Go, and say to Hezekiah, Thus saith the LORD, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will add unto thy days fifteen years.

6 And I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria: and I will defend this city.

7 And this shall be a sign unto thee from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing that he hath spoken;

8 Behold, I will bring again the shadow of the degrees, which is gone down in the sun dial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward. So the sun returned ten degrees, by which degrees it was gone down.

9 The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness:

10 I said in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave: I am deprived of the residue of my years.

11 I said, I shall not see the LORD, even the LORD, in the land of the living: I shall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world.

12 Mine age is departed, and is removed from me as a shepherd's tent: I have cut off like a weaver my life: he will cut me off with pining sickness: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me.

13 I reckoned till morning, that, as a lion, so will he break all my bones: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me.

14 Like a crane or a swallow, so did I chatter: I did mourn as a dove: mine eyes fail with looking upward: O LORD, I am oppressed; undertake for me.

15 What shall I say? he hath both spoken unto me, and himself hath done it: I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul.

16 O LORD, by these things men live, and in all these things is the life of my spirit: so wilt thou recover me, and make me to live.

17 Behold, for peace I had great bitterness: but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption: for thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back.

18 For the grave cannot praise thee, death can not celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth.

19 The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day: the father to the children shall make known thy truth.

20 The LORD was ready to save me: therefore we will sing my songs to the stringed instruments all the days of our life in the house of the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XXXVIII.—Kings must die like other men, and lay their honour in the dust; Jesus, our glorious and exalted King, lives for ever as the fountain of life; and all who believe in him as the resurrection and the life shall have everlasting life. How interesting, but, alas! how rare, are pious, praying kings! Jesus is not only our King, but our Advocate, who ever lives to plead before his Father's throne in behalf of those for whom he bled and died. A holy life is inseparable from a renewed heart. On a dying bed, the remembrance of a life devoted to the glory of God and the interests of his Church, is comforting to the believer's soul. He can look to this as an evidence of grace, but will not look to it as the foundation of his hope. There is one foundation, one sure foundation laid in Zion, and that foundation is CHRIST. May we, like holy Hezekiah, enjoy the consolation that our prayers are heard, accepted, and answered by our God, and by our fathers' God!

PRAYER.

IN approaching thy blessed throne, thou merciful hearer of prayer, we desire to thank our God that our lives, our forfeited lives, have been mercifully preserved during another night, and that thou art still continuing with us the day of grace and the season of hope.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the living God, and as the disposer of life. It is in thy sovereignty thou dost confer life, and in thy sovereignty thou wilt take it away. Lord, impress us with the thought that the time will come, and may come soon, when thou wilt call upon us, by a command that cannot be resisted, to lay aside our mortal life, to appear before thy tribunal, and to give an account of the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or whether they be evil. Holy Spirit, grant that the prospect of such events may fill us with earnest desires to be prepared to meet our God. Teach us not only to set our house in order, to arrange our temporal concerns, but, above all, may we be enabled to set our souls in order, by committing them to the care of Jesus, our Lord and Saviour. Seeing we never can be prepared for the solemnities of eternity without an interest in Christ, O graciously bestow upon us now faith in Jesus as our atoning high-priest; then shall we be ready to obey the call of our heavenly Father when he will say to us, Thou shalt die, and not live; for then we shall die to live for ever.

O Lord, affect us deeply with the vanity, the shortness, and the uncertainty of the present life. Affect us with the thought that the grave cannot praise thee, that death cannot celebrate thee; and that they who go down to the pit cannot hope for thy truth. O therefore teach us, the living, to praise thee this day; and may the fathers to the children make known thy truth.

Most deeply impress our beloved children with the certainty of their own dissolution. O give them early piety, which alone can prepare them for early death, if providence should soon remove them to the world of spirits.

As in the presence of God and in the prospect of the eternal state, give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may walk before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and that we may constantly do that which is good in thy sight. Lord, enable us to do what is well-pleasing in thy sight, not from slavish fear, but from filial love. Glory to thy name, that thou art ever ready to save; and, like Hezekiah, may we praise thee in the house of the Lord all the days of our life.

Hear our prayers, O Lord God, and assist us, thine unworthy servants, in every duty, for Jesus' sake, our merciful High-priest. Amen.

UNSEARCHABLE RICHES OF CHRIST.

Brookham. Goshen New. Usbridge.

P. M.

- 1 HOW shall I my Saviour set forth?
How shall I his beauties declare?
O how shall I speak of his worth,
Or what his chief dignities are?
- 2 His angels can never express,
Nor saints who sit nearest his throne,
How rich are his treasures of grace;
No! this is a mystery unknown.
- 3 In him all the fulness of God
For ever transcendently shines;
Though once like a mortal he stood
To finish his gracious designs.

MAXWELL

JAMES V.

Wicked rich Men warned of God.

GO to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you.

7 Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain.

8 Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

9 Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge standeth before the door.

10 Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction, and of patience.

11 Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

12 But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? let him sing psalms.

14 Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord:

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

17 Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the space of three years and six months.

18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him;

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

JAMES V.—Riches can do much, but they cannot remove the pollution of the heart; they cannot dry up the fountains of sorrow; they cannot prevent the punishment of sin. O may it be our privilege to possess the sure mercies of David, the blessings of salvation! This inheritance secures unfading blessedness and eternal life. The pleasures of the wicked are for a time, a time; the pleasures of the righteous are even great on earth, but they are inexpressible and eternal in heaven. Rich and cruel tyrants may kill the bodies of the saints, and meet with no resistance: a day will come when these rulers, cruel and unjust, shall be summoned to appear before the judgment-seat of the Saviour of believers, when all resistance will be in vain. The cruelty of the enemies of the people of God is followed by the miseries of Tophet; but the patience and sufferings of the saints of God are followed by the joys of heaven, the fellowship of the Father, Son, and Spirit, and by the reception of a crown, "which God, the righteous Judge, will give unto them on that day."

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and exalted Lord God, we adore thee as the omniscient witness, whose eye is invariably fixed on all the persons and thoughts and actions of the children of men. Thou who formedst the eye, shalt thou not see? Thou Lord art judge. Impress on all our minds the solemn truth, that thou the judge standest at the door, and that the coming of thee, the Divine and almighty judge, draweth nigh. Alas, O Lord, because of the forgetfulness of our minds, and that our hearts and lives should be so little impressed and influenced by the solemn truth, that our God is our witness, and that our God, who searches the heart, will be our judge!

We adore thee, O Lord, as the sovereign disposer of riches, honour, and power. We adore thee in thy sovereignty, so often displayed in giving wealth and honour to the unjust, the profane, and the cruel; while many of the most distinguished objects of thy regard are sunk in poverty and tried by want. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight. May thy children who are thus tried be comforted with a delightful prospect of dwelling for ever with God and the Lamb; in whose presence is fulness of Divine joy, and at whose right hand are pleasures the most refined and transcendent, which will continue without interruption through the endless ages of eternity.

Lord, preserve us from the sinful love of earthly riches. Teach us to see the vanity of this world as a portion, when we think of the inconceivable misery of the greater number of the rich and the mighty in a future state. Have mercy on thy people who may now be suffering by the severity, cruelty, and pride of the ungodly rich. Give them patience to endure their sufferings; and may they look forward with solemn interest to the arrival of that day when they shall be placed on the right hand of the Judge, and when all the enemies of Christ and his people shall be humbled in the dust before them.

Gracious God, preserve the minds of our dear children from the love of the world. May we see them now laying up treasures in heaven, and seeking an inheritance lasting as thy throne.

Grant, O Lord, that all of us now kneeling before thee may belong to the number of thy people. Make us just, and may our path be that of spiritual light, shining more and more unto the perfect day. We supplicate patience from God, amid all the unavoidable sufferings and trials of our journeying state. Give us grace to remember the patience of Job, and to rejoice that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

We pray that God would communicate all the consolations of his grace to the aged and afflicted. Enable them to believe that they are not forgotten of God, and may their minds be soothed by the conviction that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of another day. Bless our religious service in approaching thy throne, and refresh us with sleep this night. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, the Divine Surety, and the blessed and only potentate. Amen.

STRENGTH FROM HEAVEN.

Bowyer's. Crown Chapel. Stephen's.

C. M.

- 1 WHENCE do our mournful thoughts arise?
And where's our courage fled?
Has restless sin and raging hell
Struck all our comforts dead?
- 2 Have we forgot the Almighty name
That formed the earth and sea?
And can an all-creating arm
Grow weary and decay?
- 3 Treasures of everlasting might
In our Jehovah dwell:
He gives the conquest to the weak,
And treads their foes to hell.

Watts, 82, B. I.

ISAIAH XL.

Consolations of the Church.

COMFORT ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.

2 Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

9 O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!

10 Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.

11 He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young.

12 Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance?

13 Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him?

14 With whom took he counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him in the path of judgment, and taught him knowledge, and shewed to him the way of understanding?

15 Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing.

16 And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn, nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offering.

17 All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity.

27 Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, My way is hid from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over from my God?

28 Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding.

29 He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

30 Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall:

31 But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XL.—The religion of Jesus is a religion of light, of purity, and of joy; and all who feel its power should carefully study to be comforters of each other in seasons of suffering, bereavement, and sorrow. It is only the citizens of Zion who drink of the streams of consolation which flow from the rock Christ; and they must be joyful in Christ their Saviour, when they think of the victories which he has gained over the enemies of his Church; when they remember that they are pardoned and accepted in Jesus, and that they have received an inheritance from the hand of God, more valuable and satisfying than all the wealth, and honour, and pleasure which this world can bestow. Wonderful, sublime, and peculiar, were the commission, office, and ministry of John, the forerunner of our Lord. Many hundreds of years before, ancient prophets held up this extraordinary and infinitely honoured messenger before the eyes of the Old Testament Church. Nothing can prevent the accomplishment of the predictions of eternal truth, which we find fulfilled to the very letter in the history of John, the humble and honoured messenger of the Lord of hosts.

PRAYER.

WE desire with reverence and thankfulness to appear before thee our God to present our morning sacrifice. We thank thee for the mercies of the night, for our rest, our sleep, our protection; and that we are neither prevented by mental affliction nor bodily pain from assembling at this time around the domestic altar. Lord, give us thy grace, that we may engage in all our temporal employments, as those who are longing and expecting to engage in better employments in another and in a more blessed world. And may we enter this day, and every day, on our spiritual employments, as those who esteem a day in thy service infinitely better than years successfully employed in seeking after and obtaining earthly gain.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the sublime and consolatory truths we have now read. In all ages they have been the consolation of myriads of those who love thee. O make them the joy of our hearts. Let the hearts of all thy people be comforted, when they remember that thou hast expressly appointed thy ministering servants to be the comforters of thy people. Give thy ministers grace to be faithful to their commission; and make them, in preaching the Gospel, the comforters of thy children. Jesus, thou captain of salvation, we praise thee that thou hast accomplished the warfare of thy Church, by subduing all her enemies and frustrating all their designs.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the shepherd of thy spiritual flock. Thou didst die for thy sheep, and thou art still the almighty defender of thy flock. Praise to thy name, that thou gatherest the lambs with thine arm, that thou dost carry them in thy bosom, and that thou dost gently lead those that are with young.

We fervently and affectionately pray that our children may be lambs in thy flock. O gather them with thine arms, and carry them in the bosom of thy love.

Deeply impress our minds with a sense of thine omnipotence, majesty, and glory. Thou didst measure the waters of the ocean in the hollow of thine hand, and thou hast meted out the heavens with a span. How inconceivable thy greatness! Thou dost comprehend the dust of the earth in a measure, thou weighest the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance. How inconceivable thy greatness! All nations before thee are as nothing, and they are counted unto thee less than nothing, and vanity. O how inconceivable is thy greatness!

Lord, comfort thine afflicted and thine aged people by the remembrance of thy gracious power and blessed promise. As thou hast said, O give power to the faint, and increase strength to them that have no might; enable thy people to wait upon thee, then their strength will be renewed; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint.

Hear our prayers, O Lord, for Jesus' sake, to whom be glory, both now and ever. Amen.

REDEMPTION IN CHRIST ALONE.

Old England. St. Lawrence Jewry. Winchester.

L. M.

- 1 ENSLAVED by sin, and bound in chains,
Beneath its dreadful tyrant sway,
And doomed to everlasting pains,
We wretched, guilty captives lay.
- 2 Nor gold nor gems could buy our peace;
Nor the whole world's collected store
Suffice to purchase our release;
A thousand worlds were all too poor.
- 3 Jesus, the Lord, the mighty God,
An all-sufficient ransom paid:
Invalued price! his precious blood,
For vile rebellious traitors shed.

STERNA.

1 PETER I.

Comfort to spiritual Strangers.

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,

2 Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you,

5 Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations:

7 That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:

8 Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

10 Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into.

13 Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ;

14 As obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation;

16 Because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy.

17 And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear.

18 Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers;

19 But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot:

20 Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 PETER I.—All believers know and feel that they are pilgrims and strangers on earth, as all their fathers were. Do we belong to the honourable company of spiritual strangers? Can we say, "Here we have no continuing city nor place of abode, but we are looking assuredly and joyfully for a city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God?" Do we possess the pleasing evidence that we are chosen of God? If holiness is our delight, and the object of our sanctified ambition, if we are taught by Divine grace to look to Jesus as our only Saviour, then, we may rest assured that we are the chosen of God, and that our names are inscribed upon the shining pages of the Lamb's Book of life, from which they shall never be erased. Are we born again? Have we obtained a place in the family of God, and among the sons of God? O what joy and thankfulness should inspire our heart, and what melodious praises should ascend from our lips to him who loved us, and washed us from our sins in his blood, who hath put us, even us, among the children, and "who hath made us kings and priests to God and our Father."

PRAYER.

GRACIOUSLY solemnize our minds, Divine Spirit, our sanctifier and guide, while we endeavour humbly and joyfully to approach the presence of a prayer-hearing God.

We look up unto thee, O Lord, for the pardon of all our sins, and for the pardon of the sins of the past day. O say to us as individuals and as a family, Your iniquity is pardoned. We thank God for the blessings of thy providence and of thy grace, which we have this day received. May our religious duties and our temporal engagements be followed by thy blessing. Convince us of the vanity of expecting true success or enjoyment in any temporal undertaking or spiritual duty, without the blessing of our God. Impress on our minds thine own declaration, Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it.

Give us the rest and sleep of thy beloved this night. O have mercy on those for whom sleepless nights are appointed. Give them sweet and profitable meditation on Divine things, and lift up their thoughts and hopes to that heavenly state of which it is said, There shall be no night there.

We thank our God and Father for the abundant consolation provided for thy children here below, while they are pilgrims and strangers on earth. Suffer them not to be overwhelmed by the sufferings of the present state. Enable them, and enable us, in the exercise of a lively faith, thus to praise the name of the Lord our God: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again to a lively hope, by the resurrection of Christ from the dead. As a family we pray, not that we may be distinguished among the families of the earth for wealth and dignity and power, but we pray that we may be rich in faith, and that we may be kept by the power of God unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

O give our children and domestics the imperishable riches of grace, and may they flourish for ever amid the glories of the heavenly state.

Give us, O Lord, an abundance of the grace of faith; and as gold is tried by fire, may all our afflictions be instrumental in the improvement of our faith, that it may be found unto praise and honour and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ. O Jesus, fill our hearts with an increasing admiration of thy personal glory and excellence.

O Lord, hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, the spotless Lamb of God. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE INCREASE OF THE CHURCH PROMISED.

Carr's Lane. Israel. Missionary.

c. n.

- 1 FATHER, is not thy promise pledged
To thine exalted Son,
That through the nations of the earth
Thy Word of life shall run?
- 2 Ask, and I'll give the heathen lands
For thine inheritance,
And to the world's remotest shores
Thine empire shall advance.
- 3 Hast thou not said, the blinded Jews
Shall their Redeemer own;
While Gentiles to his standard crowd,
And bow before his throne?

GIBBONS.

ISAIAH XLI.

Encouraging Promises.

FEAR thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed, for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.

11 Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish.

12 Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought.

13 For I the LORD thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.

14 Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the LORD, and thy redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

15 Behold, I will make thee a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff.

16 Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them: and thou shalt rejoice in the LORD, and shalt glory in the Holy One of Israel.

17 When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I the LORD will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them.

18 I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water.

ISAIAH XLII.

BEHOLD my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.

2 He shall not cry, nor lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the street.

3 A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth.

4 He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law.

5 Thus saith God the LORD, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth; and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein:

6 I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles;

7 To open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house.

8 I am the LORD: that is my name: and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images.

9 Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XLI., XLII.—Is Jesus our God and Saviour? Is he our strength, our help, our confidence, and the foundation of all our hopes? then we may look on all our enemies and say, "Of whom shall we be afraid?" The enemies of God and his Church are engaged in a most hopeless contest. May they hear the voice of mercy, and, "Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and they perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little." Glorious prospect—when the days of millennial blessedness arrive, the enemies of the Church shall be sought, and shall not be found!
"There shall be nothing to hurt nor destroy in God's holy mountain, for the knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea." Wonderfully great were the natural gifts of sagacity, wisdom, and bravery conferred on Cyrus: a greater than Cyrus is here. The Holy Spirit in his influences was poured out on the humanity of the Son of God, by which he was qualified for his mediatorial work, and which will render him a blessing to all the nations of the earth.

PRAYER.

WE thank thee, O thou God of providence and of grace, that thou hast kindly comforted and protected us during the past night, and that we are brought in safety and peace to see the morning of the last day of another week.
Affect us with the thought, that the time is drawing nigh when we shall enter on the morning of the last day of our mortal lives. We humbly supplicate God's blessing to attend us in all the duties and engagements of the day; and may Divine grace be to us as sacred armour, to defend us from the snares and temptations which may be presented before us by the enemies of our soul.

We thank thee, O God of truth, for the encouraging promises we have now read; in the day of affliction may we fear not, believing that thou art with us; may we not be dismayed, believing that thou art our God. When we are brought into the deep waters of affliction, fulfil in our experience that promise, I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee by the right hand of my righteousness. Preserve us, O Lord, from our spiritual enemies, and also from all the designs of wicked men to wound our character, to injure our usefulness, or to hurt our interest. Awaken convictions in the mind of such of our relatives and connections in life as are living in a state of hostility to thy laws. Open their eyes to see the alarming and inevitable consequences of living and dying in a state of enmity against God, seeing that all thine enemies shall be as nothing, and that they who strive with thee shall perish. Say unto us, I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.
We praise thee for all thy gracious interpositions in behalf of thy Church. Though, considered in itself, it is only a worm, yet, we bless thee, thou hast enabled thy Church, a contemptible worm in the eyes of men, to thresh the mountains, to beat them small, and to make the hills as chaff.

Have mercy on our children and servants, and preserve them from the assaults of those powerful temptations which may oppose them in the journey of life. By thy grace may they thresh the mountains of temptation and beat them small.

Manifest thyself graciously, O Lord, to the poor and needy of thy people. When, spiritually considered, they seek the waters of Divine consolation, and there is none, and when their tongue faileth for thirst, hear them, O Lord, and do not forsake them.

Look down with great mercy on a pagan world, and in thy due time accomplish that gracious promise, I will open rivers in the high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys;
I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water.

O Hearer of prayer, accept this our morning sacrifice, for Jesus' sake, our only Saviour. Amen.

SUBMISSION, OR FOLLOWING CHRIST'S EXAMPLE.

Coleham. Carey's. Hoston.

P. M.

1 COME, O my soul, the call obey,
Take up the burthn of the Lord!
His practice is thy living way,
Thy guide his pure unerring word:
The lovely, perfect pattern read,
And haste in all his steps to tread.

2 Here, then, my calling I discern,
(Tis written in affliction's book)
My first and latest lesson learn,
For nothing here but sufferings look:
I bow mo to the will Divine,
To suffer with my Lord be mine.

C. WEALEY.

I PETER II.

Christ precious.

UNTO you therefore which believe he is precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner, 8 And a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient: whereunto also they were appointed.

9 But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light:

10 Which in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul;

12 Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles: that, whereas they speak against you as evildoers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation.

13 Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme;

14 Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well.

15 For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men:

16 As free, and not using your liberty for a cloke of maliciousness, but as servants of God.

17 Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

18 Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but also to the froward.

19 For this is thankworthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully.

20 For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God.

21 For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps:

22 Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth:

23 Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously:

24 Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.

REFLECTIONS UPON I PETER II.—May we be preserved from unbelief, which sees no beauty in Christ; and may we be enriched with faith, by which we shall see him to be more precious than rubies, by which we shall acknowledge, under the influence of superlative love and admiration, that he is "the chiefest among ten thousands, and altogether lovely." How dangerous is unbelief! if we die under its power, Jesus becomes a stone to destroy; but if we believe, we shall find him willing and able to the very uttermost to save. O let us earnestly seek after this grace, this precious grace! In every respect believers occupy a rank unspeakably superior to that of earthly princes—they belong to the household of faith, they are God's servants, they are God's sons. Amazing the difference which grace produces in the state and circumstances of those who are saved!—formerly they were aliens from God, now they are sons; formerly they were at enmity with the people of God, now they are fellow-citizens with the saints; formerly they were spiritual slaves, now they are made free; formerly they were children of wrath, now they are heirs of heaven.

PRAYER.

HOLY and gracious Spirit, in humble dependance on thy promised aid, we desire, at the close of the day and the close of the week, to approach the mercy-seat of the Lord our God. We present our thanks for the family and personal blessings we have received this day; and for all the protection from sin, direction in perplexity, consolation in suffering, and assistance in duty, we have enjoyed through the past week. Thou hast crowned us with loving-kindness and tender mercies. We deserved for our sins a cup of cursing, and in thy rich mercy we have received a cup of blessing. O enable each one of us to take the cup of salvation, and to call upon the name of the Lord.

We thank our gracious God for the rich repast of Divine truth which has now been presented before us in the reading of the Holy Scriptures. May we find thy Word sweet to our taste, and more valuable in our estimation than fine gold.

Exalted Jesus, we adore thee as infinitely precious. Thou art precious in thy Divine person, in thy blessed offices, and in all thine endearing relations. O be precious to each member of our family. Give us a lively faith in Christ, that we may see his beauty, his suitableness and his worth. May Jesus be precious to all our relatives, and increasingly precious to all our aged friends. May the near prospect of seeing the King in his beauty, and seated on his throne of glory, fill them with unspeakable joy.

Blessed Jesus, captivate the minds and affections of our children, and fill them with thy love. Take their heart from lying vanities, and O place it on thyself alone.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as the corner-stone of the Church. Though disallowed of men, thou art the ancient choice of thy Father, and infinitely precious and glorious. In all ages thou hast been the corner-stone of Zion, her defence, and her ornament. We pray that we, and all in whom we are interested, may be lively stones in the edifice of the Church; that we may be built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God. Lord, we acknowledge that we are by nature allied to Satan; by grace may we be allied to thee, and receive from thy spirit the blessed evidence that we are a chosen generation, an holy nation, and a peculiar people. May we testify our interest in Christ, by showing forth the praises of him who hath called us out of darkness into his marvellous light. May we often remember our original state, that we were not a people; now may we be the people of the living God. By nature we were without mercy; now may we obtain mercy. O Jesus, who bare our sins in thine own body on the tree, on thee alone we place our hopes of pardon and immortality.

O Lord, watch over us this night, forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

GOD THE BELIEVER'S PORTION.

Ladock. Ladbury. Oxford. Eythorn.

C. X.

1. LORD, I have made thy word my choice,
My lasting heritage;
There shall my noblest powers rejoice,
My warmest thoughts engage.
- 2 I'll read the histories of thy love,
And keep thy laws in sight,
While through the promises I rove
With ever fresh delight.
- 3 'Tis a broad land of wealth unknown,
Where springs of life arise,
Seeds of immortal bliss are sown,
And hidden glory lies.
- 4 The best relief that mourners have,
It makes our sorrows blest;
Our fairest hope beyond the grave,
And our eternal rest.

Watts, Ps. . 9, p. VIII.

PSALM CXIX.

ZAIN, PART VII.

Great Comfort in God's Word.

REMEMBER the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope.

50 This is my comfort in my affliction: for thy word hath quickened me.

51 The proud have had me greatly in derision: yet have I not declined from thy law.

52 I remembered thy judgments of old, O LORD; and have comforted myself.

53 Horror hath taken hold upon me, because of the wicked that forsake thy law.

54 Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage.

55 I have remembered thy name, O LORD, in the night, and have kept thy law.

56 This I had, because I kept thy precepts.

CETH, PART VIII.

Cleaving to God. Holy Resolutions.

THOU art my portion, O LORD: I have said that I would keep thy words.

58 I intreated thy favour with my whole heart: be merciful unto me according to thy word.

59 I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies.

60 I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments.

61 The bands of the wicked have robbed me: but I have not forgotten thy law.

62 At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments.

63 I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts.

64 The earth, O LORD, is full of thy mercy: teach me thy statutes.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS VII. AND VIII.—How blessed is the hope of the believer above that of the worldling, having immortality for its object, and God's Word for its security! This hope is the cup of consolation which he drinks in the day of affliction, and which makes the heaviest burden feel light. The saints can well bear the malevolence of the proud, knowing that they are interested in Jehovah's love, and arrayed in the garment of a Saviour's righteousness. Remembrance of past mercies is an abundant source of comfort to the children of God, and confirms their faith in the reception of future blessings. Mourning over the sins of others, and grief for prevailing iniquity, are undoubted evidences of true grace. The pilgrimage of believers is enlivened by songs of praise. These travellers have joys to which the men of the world are strangers; they return to Zion with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads.—Christ's name is as ointment poured forth; and the believing remembrance of it dispels the gloom of night, and gives a foretaste of the joys of heaven. Faith in Christ, and obedience to his laws, are invariably connected with the most exalted enjoyments.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thee, O gracious God, that thou hast watched over us during another night, and that we are led in safety and comfort by the hand of a kind Providence to the domestic altar, where we now prostrate ourselves as a worshipping family before the throne of grace, in Jesus' name. We thank God for the gift of reason, and the continuance of its exercise. O that each one of us may possess, in addition, the gift of grace, and enjoy its lively exercise till the close of life.

Lord, enable us by thy good Spirit to enter on the solemnities of this day with suitable feelings of reverence and love. With the Psalmist may we say, in the language of unfeigned sincerity, Our heart saith unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will we seek. Our flesh and our heart cry out for the living God.

We present our prayers for all the congregations of thy people. Fulfil thy promise, and be in the midst of them. Teach all thy people to plead the promise, In all places where I record my name, I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee. We thank our God for this exceedingly great and precious promise; and we would accept it at thy hand, as our encouragement and joy, in the future observance of all thine ordinances, till the close of life. God of ordinances, assist all thy ministers, of every name and denomination. Deliver them from the fear of man, and strengthen them with a lively, vigorous confidence in God. Make them faithful in exhibiting the whole counsel of God, and in proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ. When they sound the trumpet of the Gospel in the hearing of captive souls, may such feel their chains, and cry aloud for deliverance. May many wretched captives of sin and Satan be set at liberty; and, before this hallowed day comes to a close, may multitudes receive the blessed liberty of the sons of God.

Give us grace, O Lord, to hope in thy Word, and mercifully fulfil in our experience thy gracious Word. We thank thee that thou hast provided for us a comforting Word in our affliction: O may the bright beams of thy Word shine upon the dark sky of our afflictions. Bring to our grateful remembrance past mercies, and thus we shall be comforted by the evidences of thy love. Lord, affect us deeply with the sins of others. May we mourn over the prevailing sins of our neighbourhood and of our country, and lament that by far the greater majority are living in contempt of thy laws, and without God and without hope in the world. O Lord, turn the hearts of the people to thyself, and make the inhabitants of our land a nation of righteousness.

Bless our children and domestics with delight in thy Word. May thy statutes be their songs in the house of their pilgrimage.

O may thy promises this day be the songs of all thine afflicted people. Lord, hear our prayers for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

FORTY-SEVENTH WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

DIVINE KNOWLEDGE.

Onslow.

thy waiting servant, Lord,
Devoted to thy fear;
Remember and confirm thy word,
For all my hopes are there.

- 2 Hast thou not writ salvation down,
And promised quickening grace?
Doth not my heart address thy throne?
And yet thy love delays.
- 3 Mine eyes for thy salvation fail;
O bear thy servant up;
For let the scoffing lips prevail.

Didst thou not raise my faith, O Lord?
Then let thy truth appear:
Saints shall rejoice in my reward,
And trust as well as fear.

WATTS Ps. 119, p. X.

CXIX.

TETH, PART IX.

of Affliction.

Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word.

66 Teach me good judgment and knowledge: for I have believed thy commandments.

67 Before I was afflicted I went astray: but now have I kept thy word.

68 Thou art good, and doest good; teach me thy statutes.

69 The proud have forged a lie against me: but I will keep thy precepts with my whole heart.

70 Their heart is as fat as grease; but I delight in thy law.

71 It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes.

72 The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver.

JOB, PART X.

Great longing for spiritual Blessings.

THY hands have made me and fashioned me: give me understanding, that I may learn thy commandments.

74 They that fear thee will be glad when they see me;
because I have hoped in thy word.

75 I know, O Lord, that thy judgments are right, and that thou in faithfulness hast afflicted me.

76 Let, I pray thee, thy merciful kindness be for my comfort, according to thy word unto thy servant.

77 Let thy tender mercies come unto me, that I may live:
for thy law is my delight.

78 Let the proud be ashamed; for they dealt perversely with me without a cause: but I will meditate in thy precepts.

79 Let those that fear thee turn unto me, and those that have known thy testimonies.

80 Let my heart be sound in thy statutes; that I be not ashamed.

UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS IX. AND X.—God is ever faithful to his word, even in the darkest dispensations; and believers, looking back on all the sufferings they have endured, will readily justify the providence of God, and say, He hath done all things well.
Faith in God's word is a most active principle, and fills the believer with earnest desires for advancement in Divine knowledge and every other spiritual attainment. His sacred education is begun on earth, and will be perfected in heaven. It is in the corrupted nature even of believers to go astray; but as the shepherd's dog brings back the wandering sheep, so afflictions are sent by Christ the good shepherd to bring back his wandering saints. How infinitely honoured believers are, in having God for their instructor, who is himself, and who is constantly performing acts of comfort and blessedness of those who value and Happy are we when even the malevolence of the wicked stimulates us to a greater watchfulness over ourselves, and to greater diligence in God's service.

PRAYER.

OTHOU God of ordinances, and only object of religious worship, we bow ourselves before thy throne of grace, and we desire that, in the exercise of prayer, we may enjoy fellowship with the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as the Lord our God.

We adore thee as our Creator. Thy hands have made us and fashioned us. Thou hast placed within us the lamp of reason, and hast made us intelligent beings, giving us in some measure an alliance to angels. O place within us the Divine light of saving wisdom, and kindle in our hearts the love of Christ; then we shall be allied to thee as thy children, and be adorned with the comeliness of thine image.

We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of mercy. Thy mercy exceeds the height of the stars, and the blessings of thy mercy are countless, like the leaves of the forest. We deserve thy wrath, and not thy mercy; yet, through Jesus, the Son of thy love, we would pray, Let thy tender mercies come unto us, that we may live.

We present before thee, O Lord, the tribute of our thanksgiving for all the goodness which thou hast made to pass before thy people in public and private, throughout all the churches. We thank thee that the joyful accents of the Gospel trumpet have fallen upon the ears of thousands, and gladdened the hearts of many. Praise to God for the descent of the Spirit, and for the accomplishment of that promise, He shall come like rain upon the mown grass, and like showers that water the earth. We thank thee for any measure in which the kingdom of Satan has fallen as lightning from heaven, and for any blessed accessions which have been added to the kingdom of our exalted Immanuel.

Heavenly Father, may we retire to rest this night under a sweet impression of the truths to which we have listened this day. We ask the care of our God, and may our lives be spared to see the return of the morning's light.

Give to our children a veneration for thine ordinances, a love to thy name, and a warm attachment to a preached Gospel. While we live, and when our heads are laid in the darksome tomb, may our children never forsake the sanctuary of God, never abandon the assemblies of thy saints. Teach our servants judgment and knowledge, that they may believe thy commandments.

O Lord, we desire to acknowledge all the kindness thou hast made to pass before us. Thou hast dealt well with us thy servants, O Lord, according to thy Word. O be to us our Divine instructor, and let our minds be filled with saving and heavenly light. We adore thee in all the afflictions which have befallen us, and for all the benefit we have derived from thy gracious and necessary discipline. We naturally go astray from thee. Alas, we have wandered much and far from God. Grant that our afflictions may bring us back to God, and lead us to the feet of mercy, to implore redemption through our Saviour's blood. God forbid that we should be hardened under our afflictions, but may we unfeignedly love the hand that corrects. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S TENDER CARE OF THE CHURCH.

Walsley, Salisbury Plain, Gainsborough. C. M.

- 1 NOW shall my inward joys arise
And burst into a song,
Almighty love inspires my heart,
And pleasure tunes my tongue.
- 2 God on his thirsty Zion-hill
Some mercy-drops has thrown,
And solemn oaths have bound his love
To shower salvation down.
- 3 Why do we then indulge our fears,
Suspicious and complaints?
Is he a God, and shall his grace
Grow weary of his saints?

WATTS, 39, B. I.

ISAIAH XLIX.

Christ's Commission.

LISTEN, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; The LORD hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

4 Then I said, I have laboured in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God.

5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength.

6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.

7 Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.

8 Thus saith the LORD, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners, Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places.

10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my high-ways shall be exalted.

12 Behold, these shall come from far: and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.

13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.

16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XLIX.—The call of Christ to his mediatorial work concerns all the nations of the earth, and all the islands of the sea. Do we feel an interest in this wonderful call? Have we entered into covenant with Christ, by which we shall be secured in all the blessings of our Saviour's purchase? How infinitely qualified was Jesus for the great work in which he was engaged! This he has demonstrated by the triumphs of his cross, and by the myriads who are now the subjects of his grace. Was Christ in his humiliation the Father's servant? How wonderful the service he rendered his Father by the boundless revenue of glory he brought to all the Divine perfections! How unkindly our dear Saviour was received in his public ministry on earth! His doctrines were looked upon as falsehoods, and he himself was treated as an impostor! "He came to his own, and his own received him not." This was part of his suffering: and it was necessary that he should thus be made perfect through suffering? But these sufferings have produced glorious fruit. Already our Lord has seen of the travail of his soul, and is satisfied.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thy mercies are new unto us every morning: how great is thy faithfulness!

We are now, in thy kind providence, assembled before thy throne of grace: O give to us thy Holy Spirit, that we may present believing and acceptable supplications. We are about to enter upon the secular duties and engagements of another week. O may the Word to which we have listened on the past Sabbath prove a heavenly guide to lead us in those paths which are agreeable to thy will, and may it prove a guard to defend us from those temptations which may be laid in our way by the enemies of the soul. May a sense of the Divine presence, and a deep impression that we shall appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, accompany us in all the engagements of the week.

We thank our God for the kindness yesterday manifested to all thy ministering servants, and in particular to thy servant our pastor. O that our congregation may ever prove a spiritual garden of luxuriance and beauty, and that all who worship with us may be trees of righteousness in the garden of the Church, that God may be glorified.

We thank God for what we have now read of Christ's mediatorial commission, and of the success with which his Gospel shall be attended among Gentile nations. We praise thee, O Lord, that the isles have listened unto thee, and that the people of distant lands have heard salvation's joyful sound.

Blessed Jesus, may our minds be filled with thankfulness and love, when we remember that as a Mediator thou didst become the Father's servant, that thou mightest lift thy people from the degradation of Satan's servitude, to the dignity and blessedness of being the children of God. We rejoice, Divine Redeemer, because of thine infinite fitness for the mediatorial work, and that thy humanity was filled with that abundance of grace necessary for the unparalleled engagements of the covenant of grace. O communicate richly of thy grace to all thy ministering servants, that they may labour with wisdom, zeal, and success in thy cause. O let the success of the Gospel constantly increase, and let none of thy servants have reason to mourn and complain, We have laboured in vain; we have spent our strength for nought, and in vain. O say to Satan's prisoners, Go forth.

Let not our dear children, or servants, remain any longer the prisoners of the destroyer of souls. If they are his captives, say to them, Go forth.

We thank thee that it is said for the comfort of thine afflicted people, Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted. O enable all of us to believe that our names are engraven on the palms of thy hands. Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

WONDERS OF REDEMPTION.

Walsley. Ozenden. Scotch Church.

c. n.

- 1 AND did the holy and the just,
The Sovereign of the skies,
Stoop down to wretchedness and dust,
That guilty worms might rise?
- 2 Yes! the Redeemer left his throne,
His radiant throne on high,
(Surprising mercy! love unknown!)
To suffer, bleed, and die.
- 3 He took the dying traitor's place,
And suffered in his stead;
For man, (O miracle of grace!)
For man the Saviour bled!

STARK.

1 PETER III.

Mutual Duties.

LIKEWISE, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands; that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives;

2 While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear.

3 Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel;

4 But let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

5 For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands:

6 Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him lord: whose daughters ye are, as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

7 Likewise, ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered.

8 Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous:

9 Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing.

10 For he that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile:

11 Let him eschew evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil.

13 And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?

14 But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye; and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled;

15 But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear:

16 Having a good conscience; that, whereas they speak evil of you, as of evil-doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.

17 For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing.

18 For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 PETER III.—When true piety is grafted on genuine affection, the duties of our mutual relationship are performed with the greatest fidelity and delight, and also accompanied with the special blessing of heaven. God has often employed holy example as a powerful mean in accomplishing the conversion of graceless relatives. Truly a Christian, meek, and pious example, reflects the loveliness of the Divine likeness; it is encompassed with heavenly and refreshing fragrances, and we see written upon it, in the brightness of burnished gold, the inscription, "Wisdom is more precious than rubies, and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto it." Holy gentleness, meekness, and courtesy, are fruits which grow upon the tree of genuine piety; while the strength, prosperity, and happiness of the Christian Church, depend on unity and love. How different the maxims of the world are from the maxims of the Gospel! The former are founded in pride, and envy, and revenge; the latter are founded in humility, kindness, and love. If we wish to lead lives of usefulness and happiness here below, we must seek grace to subdue sinful passions, to govern our tongue, and endeavour to abound in acts of benevolence, disinterestedness, and mercy.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Father in Christ, we adore thee in thy special providence, and in the exercise of thy special providence toward us this day. We thank thee for all the streams of thy goodness which we have been allowed to taste; but, above all, for the wells of salvation, from which we have been allowed to draw water with joy. Continue thy kindness with us, and all our relatives and friends, during the night on which we are entering. As we feel the frailty of nature requiring the refreshing and invigorating influence of sleep, O teach us to place all our confidence in thee for the supply of the wants of the dying body, and our faith in thee for the supply of all the wants of our immortal souls. O Lord, we would now attempt to cast ourselves wholly on thy care for time and eternity; and we would now solemnly commit our souls into the hand of Jesus, our Divine Mediator; that, arrayed in his righteousness and animated by his spirit, we may be fitted for glorifying our God on earth, and prepared for eternally enjoying and praising our God in heaven.

We bless thee, our heavenly Father, for what we have now read. O accompany the gracious words with gracious influence from above. Glory to thy great name for the unspeakable encouragement now held out for the consolation of thy people. Thou hast said by the mouth of thine inspired servant, The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers. May this consolatory truth ever uphold thy people in the midst of the unavoidable sufferings and trials of the present life. May every affliction appear light when compared with an interest in the love and the increasing care of their heavenly Father. May they be filled with amazement and delight when they consider that, on all occasions, the ear of God is open, and in a state of readiness to hear their prayers.

Lord, deliver our beloved children from that thoughtlessness and folly so peculiar to the rising race. Impress on their youthful minds that alarming truth, The face of the Lord is against them that do wickedly.

Gracious God, we humbly pray that the practical influence of the Gospel may be more extensively felt in all the relations of life. Teach wives and husbands by thy spirit to follow the wholesome counsels of unerring wisdom. May graceless husbands be converted by the means of the example of pious wives, and may graceless wives be converted by means of the holy example of pious husbands.

Lord, enable all of us to love one another as Christ loved us. May we be courteous, and pitiful, and compassionate. Give us grace to restrain our tongue from evil, and our lips from speaking guile. Lord, sanctify us wholly, in soul, body, and spirit. Forgive the sins of thine unworthy petitioners, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is infinitely worthy of all honour and praise. Amen.

INSUFFICIENCY OF OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Penitence. Contrition. Babylon Streams.

L. M.

- 1 WHERE are the mourners, saith the Lord,
That wait and tremble at my word,
That walk in darkness all the day?
Come, make my name your trust and stay.
- 2 No works nor duties of your own
Can for the smallest sin atone;
The robes that nature may provide
Will not your least pollutions hide.

WATTS, 134, B. 11.

ISAIAH XLIX.

Promises to the Gentiles.

FOR thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone; these, where had they been?

22 Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?

25 But thus saith the Lord, even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

ISAIAH L.

Christ the Saviour.

THUS saith the Lord, Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement, whom I have put away? or which of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you? Behold, for your iniquities have ye sold yourselves, and for your transgressions is your mother put away.

2 Wherefore, when I came, was there no man? when I called, was there none to answer? Is my hand shortened at all, that it cannot redeem? or have I no power to deliver? behold, at my rebuke I dry up the sea, I make the rivers a wilderness: their fish stinketh because there is no water, and dieth for thirst.

3 I clothe the heavens with blackness, and I make sackcloth their covering.

4 The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth mine ear to hear as the learned.

5 The Lord God hath opened mine ear, and I was not rebellious, neither turned away back.

6 I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair: I hid not my face from shame and spitting.

7 For the Lord God will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded: therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed.

8 He is near that justifieth me; who will contend with me? let us stand together: who is mine adversary? let him come near to me.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH XLIX, L.—We hail the illustrious day when cities which are now desolate shall be rebuilt with great splendour; and when they shall be filled, not with the luxurious and proud, but with the faithful followers and the sincere worshippers of Immanuel. There is a day fixed by heaven's decree, when the family of God shall exhibit a most astonishing increase; when towns, and cities, and provinces, and kingdoms shall be filled, not with the mercenary and ambitious, but with the humble, crucified, and redeemed children of the Most High. When that day arrives, the Church will compare her past circumstances with those which shall then be present, her former destitution with her present prosperity. Then her heart will be filled with holy amazement, and her mouth with accents of joyful praise. Are we by nature and practice alienated from God? Have we by our sins become debtors to the justice of God—a creditor whom we shall never be able to repay? Let us rejoice in the boundless mercy of Jesus, who is willing to clothe us with his righteousness, to cancel our enormous debt, and to restore us to that union with God which shall never be dissolved.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Jesus, thou art an almighty Saviour, and we acknowledge that, if thou hadst not been God as well as man, thou never couldst have been the Redeemer of men. We would rejoice in the testimonies we have now read of thy power, thy love, and thy conquests. Glory to thy name, that when thou sawest our helpless, hopeless state, thou didst come to our relief. Surely thine hand is not shortened, that it cannot redeem. Thou hast power to deliver. At thy rebuke thou dost dry up the sea, and thou dost make the world a wilderness. When thou seest meet, thou dost clothe the heavens with blackness; and thou makest sackcloth their covering. O Jesus, thou art the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace.

In thy mediatorial capacity thou didst most wonderfully manifest the tongue of the learned, in speaking words in season to the weary. O give wisdom to all thy ministering servants of every name; and teach them to speak words in season to all thy people, according to their various circumstances, trials, and temptations. And enable them to deliver words in season to those who are far from God, that they may be aroused to think of their guilt and danger, and see the necessity of an immediate application to Jesus, who alone can deliver them from the wrath of an offended God.

When words in season are delivered to our dear children, either by us their parents, or by thy ministers, may they feel their lost estate by the first Adam, and may they long and pray for redemption by Christ, the second Adam.

We bless the Lord our God that thou hast planted a church on earth, and we thank the God of truth for the rich and animating promises which respect the future increase and glory of the kingdom of Christ. O hasten those days, those happy days, when the Church, astonished at the rapid and extraordinary increase of her members, shall exclaim, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell. O Lord, fulfil thy gracious promise, and lift up thy hand among the Gentile nations where the light of salvation has not yet shone; and may the inhabitants of these lands bring thy sons in their arms, and may thy daughters be carried upon their shoulders. May kings be nursing fathers to thy Church, and may queens be nursing mothers.

Adored be thy name, O Jesus, that, to save thy Church, thou didst give thy back to the smiters, and thy cheeks to those that plucked off the hair. May all those among thy people who are in darkness remember thy love and thy sufferings; and may all their darkness be dispelled.

We thank thee for the mercies of another night, and we seek thy grace to rest upon us this day. O hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

LORD, SAVE ME.

Jordan Ness. Mount Zion. Chatham. P. M.

- 1 WHEN all thy waves and storms are past
 Shall I, shall I be saved at last?
 Then let my Lord conceal his face,
 Withhold the knowledge of his grace,
 Leave me in doubts, in darkness leave;
 But at my latest hour forgive.
- 2 Deliver from the wrath to come,
 And scourge me, Saviour, to the tomb,
 I to thy righteous will submit,
 And weep unanswered at thy feet;
 But whon my dying head I bow,
 Assure me then, thou heard'st me now!

C. WESLEY.

1 PETER IV.

Comfort in Affliction.

FORASMUCH then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;

2 That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

3 For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you:

5 Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

6 For for this cause was the Gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit.

7 But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer.

8 And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves: for charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

9 Use hospitality one to another without grudging.

10 As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.

11 If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you:

13 But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.

14 If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified.

15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, or as a busy-body in other men's matters.

16 Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.

17 For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the Gospel of God?

18 And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

19 Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 PETER IV.—What effect have the sufferings of Christ, and the manner in which he suffered, produced on our heart and lives? We have reason to rejoice if they have been instrumental in making us seek more resemblance to Christ, and with more earnestness to follow after holiness, without which no man can see the Lord. They who live to their lusts and corruptions are dead while they live. They who live to God's glory are blessed while they live, and a life of imperishable blessedness awaits them beyond the sky. A life of sin is a lost life; yea, it is worse than lost, for it is accompanied with the displeasure of the Most High, and it is preparatory to a life of endless misery beyond the grave. O that the ungodly, the impious, and the profane would think of their guilt and their danger, and seek Divine grace to flee from sin, which, if not repented of, must issue in everlasting perdition! May the prospect of the end of our mortal lives fill our minds with holy seriousness, and thus lead us to ask, Have we received the righteousness of Christ, by which we shall be prepared to meet our God?

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we approach thee at the close of another day, and before retiring to the seclusion and silence of sleep, to acknowledge our obligations to thee as our Saviour and Lord, and earnestly and humbly to seek the light of thy countenance and the blessings of thy grace. Thou art a faithful Creator, and we praise thee that we are encouraged to place all our confidence in thee as a faithful and affectionate Father, ever faithful to thy people, and faithful to thy promise. Holy Spirit, in thy grace and condescension, enable us to commit our souls for time and eternity in well-doing into the hand of our God, as unto a faithful Creator.

We thank thee for the goodness and mercy which have attended us this day. How gracious art thou, O Lord, that the continuance of our provocations has not prevented the continuance of thy mercies! We commit our souls and bodies and property to thy providential care this night. When awake, may our thoughts be engaged in the contemplation of God and Christ and heaven; and when asleep, let not our minds be under the influence of a corrupted, wandering imagination.

We thank God that, in reading the Scriptures, we are so often reminded of the sufferings of Christ. Eternal praises to thy name, O Jesus, that thou hast suffered for us in thy flesh, and that so much has been accomplished by thy sufferings.

May the hearts of our beloved children and domestics be melted into love, when they think of the sufferings which Christ endured for the salvation of a ruined world.

Lord, impress our mind with the great end of the sufferings of Christ—to finish transgression and make an end of sin. Fixing our eyes upon a suffering Saviour, and relying on the Holy Spirit, may we no longer live in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God. We would mourn that so much of our time has been lost to God, to the Church, to the soul, and to eternity. Have mercy upon us, and enable us to devote the period of our life that remains to the service and honour of God. Lord, extend thy saving grace to such of our relatives as are living under the dominion of the flesh. Open their eyes to see that the time past of their lives should suffice to have wrought the will of the Gentiles: O may they walk no longer in lusts and lasciviousness.

Solemnize all our minds with the prospect of the day when we shall stand, each one of us, at the judgment-seat of Christ. O that we may be prepared to give an account to him who shall judge the quick and the dead. In the prospect of that day, may we be sober, and watch unto prayer; and, above all things, have fervent love among ourselves. Whatever grace or gift we may have received from thy hand, may we minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.

Hear our feeble prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, to whom be praise and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

PRaise FOR THE GOSPEL.

Behet Nos. Poland. Sydenham.

c. n.

- 1 TO our Almighty Maker, God,
New honours be addressed;
His great salvation shines abroad,
And makes the nations blessed.
- 2 He spake the word to Abraham first;
His truth fulfils the grace;
The Gentiles make his name their trust,
And learn his righteousness.
- 3 Let the whole earth his love proclaim
With all her different tongues;
And spread the honours of his name
In melody and songs.

Watts, Ps. 98, p. 1.

ISAIAH LII.

The Church roused and comforted.

AWAKE, awake; put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean.

2 Shake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion.

3 For thus saith the LORD, Ye have sold yourselves for nought; and ye shall be redeemed without money.

4 For thus saith the Lord God, My people went down aforetime into Egypt to sojourn there; and the Assyrian oppressed them without cause.

5 Now therefore, what have I here, saith the LORD, that my people is taken away for nought? they that rule over them make them to howl, saith the LORD; and my name continually every day is blasphemed.

6 Therefore my people shall know my name: therefore they shall know in that day that I am he that doth speak: behold, it is I.

7 How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!

8 Thy watchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing: for they shall see eye to eye, when the LORD shall bring again Zion.

9 Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the LORD hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem.

10 The LORD hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

11 Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the LORD.

12 For ye shall not go out with haste, nor go by flight: for the LORD will go before you; and the God of Israel will be your rereward.

13 Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.

14 As many were astonished at thee; his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men:

15 So shall he sprinkle many nations; the kings shall shut their mouths at him: for that which had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LII.—We should watch and pray, that we may be preserved from spiritual slothfulness; that we may be strong in Christ's strength; that our graces may be vigorous and active; that we may be comely with Christ's comeliness; and that our persons, our families, and churches, may be adorned with the beauties of holiness.—Believers were once spiritual slaves: what a change, what a blessed change!—they are now free! Once they were sold for nought: now they are redeemed by the precious blood of Christ. How welcome to the exiles in Babylon, was the proclamation of their liberty from Chaldean captivity! but unspeakably more welcome to the convinced sinner, is the Gospel-message of salvation. Do we hail the ministers of Christ as the heralds of mercy? And have the messages which they deliver brought peace and comfort to our souls? Then we have reason to sing, "Bless the Lord, O our souls!"

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, we draw near thy throne this morning in our great Redeemer's name, that we may worship and glorify thy name as Zion's king, Zion's glory, and Zion's deliverer. When thou dost punish the enemies of thy Church, when thou dost turn their counsels headlong, then shall thy people know thy name; therefore they shall know in that day that it is thou alone that dost speak. Fill our hearts with joy, that thou the Lord not only reignest in the world, and in the universe, but that thou dost reign especially in thy Church; not merely to govern thy people with thy laws, but to defend them by thy power from all their foes. Lord, teach us and all our relatives to exclaim with faith and exultation, in the language of a prophet of old, How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!

We humbly pray that the Church in all places may be visited with the quickening influences of the spirit of God. May she awake out of her lethargy, and be preserved from all her fears; may she put on strength; may she lay aside her raiment of sorrow, and put on her beautiful garments, when she thinks that God will frustrate all the plans of her enemies, and accomplish all the promises of his truth. Glory to thee, O God, that thou hast given to the Church a rich inheritance of promises, and that not one of these promises shall fail in their accomplishment. Graciously fulfil this promise: Thy watchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing. In preaching the everlasting Gospel, may all thy ministers lift up their voice like a trumpet; and may the fear of man never be allowed to deter them from faithfully and boldly proclaiming the whole truth. O impart unto them a holy uniformity in their views of Divine truth, and holy zeal in promoting the same scriptural plans for advancing the prosperity of thy kingdom.

Mercifully deliver an enslaved world from the tyranny of Satan. O make bare thine arm in the sight of all nations, and soon cause all the ends of the earth to see the salvation of our God.

Open the eyes of our beloved children to see their absolute need of salvation. Open their eyes to see that the salvation they need is only to be found in Jesus. Open their hearts to receive it.

Divine Spirit, bless to us what we have now read, and may we rely by faith on the promises which have now engaged our thoughts. Holy Spirit, mercifully fill our souls with a holy, believing admiration of Christ. Make us astonished at the prudence which he manifested in his humbled humanity. May the remembrance of his sufferings, and of his visage more marred than any man, fill us, and fill many with astonishment. May we live this day under the impression of Divine truth, and may we go from this service surrounded with a holy atmosphere of grace. We thank God for the refreshing rest and the gracious protection afforded during the past night. Hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

A PRAYER FOR HUMILITY.

Humility. Zion's Hill. Alcester.

P. M.

- 1 LORD, if thou thy grace impart,—
Poor in spirit, meek in heart,
I shall as my Master be,
Rooted in humility;
- 2 Simple, teachable, and mild,
Changed into a little child;
Pleased with all the Lord provides,
Weaned from all the world besides.
- 3 Father, fix my soul on thee;
Every evil let me flee;
Nothing want, beneath, above,—
Happy in thy precious love.
- 4 O that all may seek and find Every good in Jesus joined!
Him let Israel still adore,
Trust him, praise him evermore.

AMON.

1 PETER V.

Seasonable Counsels.

THE elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:

2 Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind;

3 Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.

4 And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

5 Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

6 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time:

7 Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you.

8 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour:

9 Whom resist steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.

10 But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you.

11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 By Silvanus, a faithful brother unto you, as I suppose, I have written briefly, exhorting, and testifying that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stand.

13 The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you saluteth you; and so doth Marcus my son.

14 Greet ye one another with a kiss of charity. Peace be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 PETER V.—Even saints of great age and experience need counsel; and men of the greatest piety and wisdom most readily and thankfully welcome it and receive it. Parents and teachers, but especially ministers, require great degrees of compassion and faithfulness, in watching over and promoting the spiritual interests of those precious and immortal souls committed to their care. Is Christ's Church a flock? O how dear is that flock to Christ, the Divine shepherd! For this flock he shed his blood; for this flock he laid down his life. Is this flock so dear to Jesus? O may it be dear to our hearts; and, by every mean within our reach, may we zealously and lovingly endeavour to promote its interests.—Great honour is reserved for the humble saints of God. Here they walk in the vale of humility; but lofty thrones await them in heaven. Here they may be despised of men; hereafter they shall occupy a place at their Saviour's right hand. Now their Saviour says to them, in kind and loving accents, "In this world ye must have tribulation; but fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

PRAYER.

WE come before thee, O Lord our God, as the Shepherd who leadeth Joseph like a flock. Give us faith to acknowledge thee in the language of David, The Lord is our Shepherd, we shall not want. He leadeth us in green pastures, beside the still waters.

Blessed Jesus, we acknowledge thee as the good Shepherd. Thou didst lay down thy life for the sheep, and thus preserve them from the storms of Divine wrath, which otherwise would have scattered and consumed them. Thou art the chief Shepherd, who shall appear at the last day, to own thy people before an assembled universe, and to bestow on all thy faithful ministers a crown of glory which fadeth not away.

Merciful God, we ask forgiveness of all the sins of the day. Wherein we have been guilty of worldly-mindedness, or excessive anxiety and care about worldly objects, or forgetfulness of God and the eternal world—for these sins we ask forgiveness, through the merit of a Saviour's death. We present our thanks for all the smiles and blessings of thy providence; whether those smiles respect the body, that shall die, or the soul, that shall live for ever. We commit ourselves, our relatives, and all our concerns, into thy hand and care this night. O that we could retire to rest under the believing conviction that we are the children of God and the heirs of heaven.

May the influences of the Spirit render the Word we have now read savingly profitable to all our souls. We thank God for appointing men of like passions with ourselves to feed the flock of Christ, and to take the spiritual oversight of thy sheep. Give them grace to feed them with the wholesome food of eternal life. Ever may they engage willingly, and not by constraint, in thy blessed cause. May they never be influenced by the unhallowed love of earthly gain, but by the earnest wish of glorifying God, edifying his Church, and turning sinners from the error of their ways. When they are called to submit to privations, or to endure actual sufferings in the great cause, may the prospect of receiving from the hand of Christ a crown of glory make all their present discouragements appear less than nothing, and vanity.

Give our dear children grace to be sober and vigilant, knowing that their adversary the devil goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. Lord, enable them to resist him steadfast in the faith.

We would earnestly pray that all of us may be delivered from the sin of pride, and that we may be blessed with the grace of humility. May we ever remember that God resisteth the proud, but that he giveth grace unto the humble. O teach us by thy spirit to humble ourselves under the mighty hand of God, believing that we shall be exalted in due time.

Lord, deliver us from sinful and excessive care. O preserve us from unhallowed anxiety about any temporal object; and instruct us in the blessed lesson of casting all our cares on Jesus, who careth for us. Ever may our chief anxiety be about the soul, and the important objects of an eternal world. Into thy hands, O Jesus, we commend our spirits.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord; to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS.

Seventy. Grenville. Ann's.

c. n.

- 1 HOW few receive with cordial faith
The tidings which we bring!
How few have seen the arm revealed
Of heaven's eternal King!
- 2 The Saviour comes! no outward pomp Bespeaks his presence nigh;
No earthly beauty shines in him,
To draw the carnal eye.
- 3 Fair as a beauteous, tender flower
Amidst the desert grows,
So, slighted by a rebel race,
The heavenly Saviour rose.
- 4 He died to bear the guilt of men,
That sin might be forgiven;
He lives to bless them and defend,
And plead their cause in heaven.

ROBERTSON.

ISAIAH LIII.

Christ's Sufferings.

WHO hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?

2 For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

3 He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.

4 Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

5 But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

6 All we like sheep have gone astray; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

7 He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

8 He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken.

9 And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

10 Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.

11 He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities.

12 Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death: and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.*

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LIII.—Ministers need not wonder that the Gospel-message proclaimed by them should be rejected, but should remember that even when the incarnate God of truth preached to mankind, his message was rejected as falsehood, and himself despised as an impostor. In Christ we have an assemblage of mysteries: in him we see the personal union of two natures infinitely different, and infinitely distant. We see the creature and the Creator; the weakness of a feeble babe, and the power of omnipotence; humanity of recent date, and Divinity from everlasting; humanity which expired on a cross, and Divinity the source of life, and giving life to all the countless myriads of animated beings. May we never be left to despise infinite love, to hate infinite loveliness, or to look with aversion on infinite benevolence; all of which shone forth in Christ, in the midst of his sufferings and sorrows, with infinitely greater brightness than the sun shines forth in the firmament of the heavens. Let us rejoice, that our Saviour who suffered for us has now received his glorious reward, and is enjoying the delicious fruit of his sufferings and death.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, to approach thy throne under a deep impression of thy justice, holiness, and grace, still believing that through Jesus we are welcome. Thou art infinitely holy, and therefore must hate sin with the greatest detestation and abhorrence. Thou art infinitely and necessarily just, and therefore canst not pardon sin without satisfaction. Thou art infinitely gracious, and delightest to extend mercy to sinners, even the chief. We adore thee that, in thy wisdom, thou didst find out a plan by which thou couldst justify and save the ungodly, and yet thine offended justice receive all its claims. We praise thee that, in the salvation of guilty man, mercy and truth have met together, righteousness and peace have embraced each other.

We present our united thanksgiving for the mercies of the past night, and praise thee that we are permitted to begin the engagements of another day in the enjoyment of fellowship with thyself. We humbly seek thy guidance this day, in preserving us from sin, and in assisting us in the discharge of our various duties.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the blessed Gospel, which proclaims salvation through our Saviour's blood. We have been long privileged to hear that Divine report. Give us, and all in whom we are interested, grace to believe the Gospel report. Suffer not, we pray, our minister to have reason to say respecting the people of his charge, Who hath believed our report, and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

Lord, give our children and servants the attentive ear to hear the Gospel report, give them a retentive memory to remember the Gospel report, and give them a loving heart to believe the Gospel report.

O reveal the arm of thy grace in the midst of us as a family; and may all of us receive faith to believe the Gospel as thy message, and faith to believe in Jesus as our Saviour. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that for our salvation thou didst become a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground. For us, O Jesus, thou didst consent to be despised of men that we might be accepted of God. For this instance of thy condescending love we praise thy glorious name. We seek faith to believe in Jesus as our surety. Holy Spirit, when we think of our sinfulness and our guilt, when we see what sin deserves, and to what sin exposes, O may our consciences be purified, and may our hearts be comforted by the believing conviction, that Christ hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; that he was wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities; that the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and that by his stripes we are healed. We confess that we have gone astray like lost sheep, and that we have followed the corrupt dictates of our depraved hearts, by turning to our own way. Praise to our God, that the guilt of our iniquity was laid on Christ, that we wretched wanderers might be brought back to thyself, and become thy sons and daughters.

Gracious Father, hear our feeble and imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

THIRSTING AFTER GOD.

Brook Street. Abbot's. Maidstone.

C. M.

- 1 HOW sweet the name of Jesus sounds
In a believer's ear!
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear.
- 2 It makes the wounded spirit whole,
And calms the troubled breast;
'Tis manna to the hungry soul,
And to the weary, rest.
- 3 Dear name! the rock on which I build,
My shield and hiding-place;
My never-failing treasury, filled
With boundless stores of grace.

NEWTON.

2 PETER I.

Christian Graces.

SIMON Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ:

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue:

4 Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

5 And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge;

6 And to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness;

7 And to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity.

8 For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:

11 For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

12 Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth.

13 Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance;

14 Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath showed me.

15 Moreover I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance.

16 For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty.

17 For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 PETER I.—How infinitely precious is the righteousness of Christ! Have we received that precious faith which lays hold of this precious righteousness, and will not let it go? While the men of the world long for the increase of earthly wealth which perisheth, may it be our earnest prayer, that we may be enriched with an increase of imperishable grace. How boundless is the fulness of the God of salvation, from whose inexhaustible stores of benevolence flow all those blessings, which are necessary for the life which now is, and for that which is to come. Have our eyes been opened to see the value and the suitableness of Divine promises? Have our hearts been opened to receive them? Never did casket contain such jewels, as those inestimably precious jewels of Gospel blessings contained in the casket of the promises of God. The graces of the Spirit are remarkable for their loveliness, their excellence, their usefulness. May we possess grace, and grow in grace, that we may be fitted to glorify God on earth, and at last to enjoy him in heaven. Amen.

PRAYER.

THOU Hearer of prayer and Father of mercies, we adore thee as the self-existent God. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting thou art God. O with what humility and reverence we should approach thy throne! We look to thee, Holy Spirit, for assistance; and to thy righteousness alone, O Jesus, we look for acceptance. Thou art the beloved Son of the Father. Thou didst receive from the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to thee from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

Lord, we come before thee in the capacity of sinners. We lament that the actions of every day lengthen the catalogue of our sins. We are laden with iniquity. If thou wert to visit us in thy justice for a small part of our offences, or even for the offences of the past day, we could not stand before thee. We therefore pray that we may be baptized with the blood of the Lamb, and then our guilt shall disappear as a cloud from the sky.

We thank thee for thy watchful care over us during another day. Lord of life and salvation, keep us as a family this night. May we and all our relatives sleep in peace and awake in safety.

We thank God for all the interesting, animating, and comforting truths we have now read. Lord, give us precious faith. Convince us of the necessity of faith, and may we give ourselves no rest till we obtain it. Give us the eye of faith, by which we shall see the King in his beauty, and even obtain a glimpse of the glories of heaven. We pray that all our friends, and those who worship with us in thy sanctuary, may obtain like precious faith. May grace and peace be multiplied unto them and us, through the knowledge of God and of our Saviour Jesus Christ.

O give our children repentance to see their sin and ruin, and give them faith to look to Jesus, the only deliverer from guilt and woe.

We thank our God that we have heard of the rich treasury of grace laid up in Christ. To thee, O Jesus, we apply this evening, that we may receive from thee, and grace for grace. We come, that we may add to our faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. Grant, most merciful Father, that we may not only receive these graces, but may we abound in them; then we shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus.

Lord, prepare us for laying down the tabernacle of our mortal flesh. O that we were able to look on death with composure, joy, and confidence similar to the Apostle, when he said, I must put off this tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus hath showed me.

Hear our imperfect prayers, and accept our evening sacrifice, for the sake of our dear Redeemer, Jesus Christ. Amen.

HERITAGE OF GOD'S SERVANTS.

New Zion. Picton's Broughton.

1 ONCE more, O Lord, thy children meet

To bow before thy mercy-seat;
But we unite with lessened joy,
While former days our minds employ

2 Ah! how we hastened to thy house;
Mingled our joys, our tears, our vows!
We thronged to hear, and pray, and praise,
On Sabbath and on weekly days.

3 Alas! those happy days are past,
Our smiling skies are overcast;
But shall we now despairing mourn?
No!—for we hear thee say, Return!

L. M.

A. M. S.

ISAIAH LIV.

Prosperity of the Church.

SING, O barren, thou that didst not bear; break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child: for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married wife, saith the LORD.

2 Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes;

3 For thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited.

4 Fear not; for thou shalt not be ashamed: neither be thou confounded; for thou shalt not be put to shame: for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more.

5 For thy Maker is thine husband; the LORD of hosts is his name; and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Israel; The God of the whole earth shall he be called.

6 For the LORD hath called thee as a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit, and a wife of youth, when thou wast refused, saith thy God.

7 For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gather thee.

8 In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment; but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith the LORD thy Redeemer.

9 For this is as the waters of Noah unto me: for as I have sworn that the waters of Noah should no more go over the earth; so have I sworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee.

10 For the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the LORD that hath mercy on thee.

11 O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with sapphires.

12 And I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones.

13 And all thy children shall be taught of the LORD; and great shall be the peace of thy children.

14 In righteousness shalt thou be established: thou shalt be far from oppression; for thou shalt not fear: and from terror; for it shall not come near thee.

15 Behold, they shall surely gather together, but not by me: whosoever shall gather together against thee shall fall for thy sake.

16 Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work; and I have created the waster to destroy.

17 No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD, and their righteousness is of me, saith the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LIV.—The Church of Christ shall not always have reason to mourn over the very limited number of her members. There is a time fixed by heaven's immutable decree, when she shall increase like the stars of the sky for multitude. Hitherto a very narrow space has been sufficient for the residence of her children; but the day, the joyful day shall arrive, when they shall fill nations, and kingdoms, and islands, and continents; yea, the day shall come, when they shall inherit the earth. Already the whole earth is consecrated to be their future abode, when the beams of intellectual, moral, social, and spiritual prosperity shall shed abundantly their animating lustre upon all nations. Most intimate and endearing is the relation subsisting betwixt Christ and his Church; more endearing than the relation betwixt husband and wife, or betwixt parents and children.

PRAYER.

ALMIGHTY God and merciful Father, thou art the maker of heaven and earth. Glory to thy great and wondrous name, that thou hast said to the Church, for her encouragement, Thy Maker is thine husband; the Lord of hosts is his name; and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Israel; The God of the whole earth shall he be called. We approach thee in the all-prevailing name of Jesus.

We adore thee in all the events of thy providence, connected with thy Church, in all past periods of her history. Though thou couldst have prevented all the storms which have assailed her, yet thou hast been more glorified by permitting them than by preventing them. And we praise thee for promises of the future glory of thy Church, which shall most assuredly be accomplished. Glory to God in the highest, that the day is approaching, and hath in part arrived, when thy Church shall enlarge the place of her tent, and when the curtains of her habitation shall be stretched forth; when her cords shall be lengthened, and her stakes strengthened; when she shall break forth on the right hand and on the left; when her seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and when all the desolate cities shall be inhabited by the genuine followers of the Lamb of God.

We pray that our children and household may be made living members of Christ's Church, and living branches in Christ the true vine. May we live to see them the living ornaments of the Gospel, and practical examples of the power of Divine grace.

Comfort all thine afflicted people. Convince them that, though the storm may be severe, it shall be followed by a calm; that, though the night be dark, it shall be followed by a day of eternal glory. Teach them more and more to look upon the afflictions of life, not as evidences of judicial wrath, but as tokens of fatherly love.

We thank thee that thou hast declared in language so strong and comforting, the immutable nature and the eternal duration of thy love. Enable each one of us now, and through all our days, to take the comfort of thy promise: The mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the Lord that hath mercy on thee.

We thank our God for the refreshing repose of the past night, that our lives are preserved, and that we are surrounded this morning by so many blessings of thy providence and grace. As we are beginning this day before thy throne, may we spend the day in thy fear, and may our time and services be devoted to thy glory. May all our future days be devoted to thee; and when our days and nights on earth shall come to a close, may we enter upon a cloudless, holy, happy, and eternal day in heaven. Mercifully listen to the voice of our feeble supplications, for Jesus' sake, our exalted High-priest. Amen.

ANGELS PUNISHED AND MEN SAVED.

Powdroy. Innton (Canada). Alie Street.

L. M.

- 1 FROM heaven the sinning angels fell,
And wrath and darkness chained them down;
But man, vile man, forsook his bliss,
And mercy lifts him to a crown.
- 2 Amazing work of sovereign grace,
That could distinguish rebels so!
Our guilty treasons called aloud
For everlasting fetters too.
- 3 To thee, to thee, almighty love,
Our souls, ourselves, our all we pay;
Millions of tongues shall sound thy praise
On the bright hills of heavenly day.

Watts, 97, B. 11.

2 PETER II.

Fall of Angels and Wickedness of Men.

BUT there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in condemnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction.

2 And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

3 And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their condemnation slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment;

5 And spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;

6 And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes condemned them with an overthrow, making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly;

7 And delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:

8 (For that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds;)

9 The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished:

10 But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities.

11 Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord.

12 But these, as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption;

17 These are wells without water, clouds that are carried with a tempest; to whom the mist of darkness is reserved for ever.

18 For when they speak great swelling words of vanity, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonness, those that were clean escaped from them who live in error.

19 While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.

20 For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 PETER II.—Spiritual errors are a destroying pestilence, more dangerous to the precious soul than pestilence and famine to the perishing body. They who kill the body incur great guilt, and are liable to heavy punishment; erroneous teachers incur more enormous guilt, and expose themselves to the heaviest punishment, because they are cruel murderers of the souls of men! It is astonishing the infatuating influence of sin, and the deluding influence of erroneous opinions. And these considerations are rendered the more distressing by the ruinous consequences with which such infatuation and delusion are followed in time, and more especially followed in eternity! May it be our happy, blessed privilege, to be firmly rooted and grounded in the truth, and then we shall not be driven about by every wind of doctrine. Then we shall remain sure, like the cedar of Lebanon, and able to withstand the fury of the raging storm.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely holy, and for ever blessed. Thou art the inexhaustible fountain of wisdom, holiness, and felicity. Thou art Jehovah, possessed of every perfection, glorious in every attribute, and worthy of the homage, love, and praises of all thine intelligent subjects. We rejoice, that through Jesus, we can approach thy throne, and with acceptance present our prayers.

We desire as a family, and with sincerity of heart, to acknowledge that it is our duty and our privilege to worship before thy throne of grace. Holy Spirit, grant that it may be ever our delight. While the ungodly and profane wander far from thy ways, may we pursue them with holy avidity and joy; and may we ever acknowledge, with thankfulness and praise, Thy ways are ways of pleasantness, and all thy paths are peace.

Accept the tribute of our thankfulness for thy kind and paternal care of us during the past day. Thou hast clothed and fed and sustained us. All the days of our lives, thy mercies towards us have been innumerable and unceasing. The stream of thy providential supplies has never ceased. Every moment of our lives is a witness of thy goodness. With the Psalmist we would exclaim, Open thou our lips, and our mouth shall show forth thy praise. Grant, O Lord, that each member of our family, and that the families with which we are connected, may be in thy holy keeping this night. While we are asleep, may all danger sleep around us; and kindly spare us to see the light of another day. O that the remaining portion of our days may be spent in the love of God, and in the exercise of a lively faith in Christ; then we shall have the pleasing evidence that our mortal life shall be followed by a life of blessedness and immortality beyond the grave.

We pray, O Lord, for the prosperity of thy Church. Deliver it from false, heretical, and seducing teachers. Bring thy terrors home to the minds of such men, and convince them that without repentance they must endure the special indignation of heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the sovereignty thou hast displayed in connection with fallen angels. Thou didst provide no Saviour for them; while thou didst send the Son of thy love into our fallen world, and proclaim the joyful tidings, that whosoever believeth in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life.

O suffer not our dear children to reject the offers of Christ and his salvation. Convince them, that if they die rejecting Jesus, salvation will be for ever hopeless.

We seek the grace of the Holy Spirit, that we may be preserved from the sin of backsliding. Affect us with the alarming truth, that it is better not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after it is known, to turn from the holy commandment which has been delivered unto us.

Heavenly Father, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

INVITATIONS OF MERCY.

Author's. Leipzig. Broomegrove.

C. N.

- 1 Ho! ye that thirst, approach the spring
Where living waters flow:
Frec, to that sacred fountain all
Without a price may go.
- 2 How long to streams of false delight
Will ye in crowds repair?
How long your strength and substance waste
On trifles, light as air?
- 3 My stores afford those rich supplies
That health and pleasure give:
Incline your ear, and come to me;
The soul that hears shall live.
- 4 With you a covenant I will make,
That ever shall endure;
The hope which gladdened David's hope,
My mercy hath made sure.

SCOTCH PARAPHRASE, 26.

ISAIAH LV.

Invitations and Promises.

HO, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.

2 Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

3 Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David.

4 Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.

5 Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

6 Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near:

7 Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.

8 For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.

9 For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts.

10 For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

11 So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.

12 For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

13 Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LV.—Do we know and believe that in the Gospel, Jesus has provided a feast for perishing sinners, for perishing sinners of all nations? We are by nature spiritually hungry; in this feast we find the bread of life. We are by nature spiritually thirsty; in this feast we find the water of life, clear as crystal, to refresh and revive our thirsty souls. Have we experienced the spiritual hunger, and partaken of the heavenly manna? Have we experienced the spiritual thirst, and partaken of the waters of salvation proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb? The world has never imparted true joy, or communicated permanent delight. It cannot! Have we received the joys of religion secured by the covenant of grace? Then we have entered into covenant with Christ, and shall inherit for ever the sure mercies of David.

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS and merciful Lord God, whom we approach through Jesus, thou art infinitely exalted above angels and men in thy nature, thine excellences, thy thoughts, and thy works. Thy thoughts are not as our thoughts, nor thy ways as our ways. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are thy ways higher than our ways, and thy thoughts than our thoughts. The pillars of heaven tremble, and are astonished at thy reproof. Thou dividest the sea by thy power, and by thine understanding thou smitest through the proud. By thy spirit thou hast garnished the heavens, and thy hand hath formed the crooked serpent. Lo, these are parts of thy ways, but how little a portion is heard of them! And the thunder of thy power who can tell?

We thank our God for the present opportunity of enjoying fellowship with thyself in reading the Word of eternal life, and in observing the ordinance of prayer. We thank thee that we have been refreshed with sleep, and that we have entered upon another day crowned with mercies. In all the engagements of the day may we be preserved in thy fear, may we be directed in the path of duty, and may we prosper in all our lawful undertakings. Whether we eat or drink, or whatever we do, may we do all to thy glory.

Bless to us, Holy Spirit, the encouraging promises and invitations we have been privileged to read. We have reason to confess with shame, that we have long thirsted after sinful, earthly, and carnal enjoyments. O give us a distaste for those corrupting and perishing delights, and enable us to hunger after righteousness. We praise thee for the waters of salvation: may we drink of these waters now, and live for ever. Glory to thy great name for the abundance, the richness, and the freeness of the blessings of salvation. May all these blessings be ours.

O teach and persuade our dear children and domestics to buy of thee the wine and milk of salvation, without money and without price.

Have mercy on the multitudes who hear the Gospel, but who have never heard it with interest, who have never heard it with faith. By the power of thy spirit may they incline their ears and come unto thee. O may they hear with humility and faith; then shall their souls live for ever. Make with us and all our relatives an everlasting covenant, even the sure mercies of David. Show compassion to our graceless connections. We would mourn over their sin, their danger, and their impenitence. O persuade them to forsake their ways of sin, and may they return unto thee the Lord, who will have mercy upon them, and who will abundantly pardon. In all our places of worship may the efficacy of the Gospel be extensively felt. Instead of the thorn, cause the fir-tree to appear; and instead of the brier, O cause the myrtle-tree to spring up; and let it be for an everlasting sign, that shall not be cut off.

We humbly seek the pardon of our sins and the answer of our prayers, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Sulbury Plain. Kemington. Tunbridge.

c. n.

- 1 WHY should this earth delight us so?
Why should we fix our eyes
On these low grounds where sorrows grow,
And every pleasure dies?
- 2 While Time his sharpest teeth prepares
Our comforts to devour,
There is a land above the stars
And joys above his power.
- 3 Nature shall be dissolved and die,
The sun must end his race,
The earth and sea for ever fly
Before my Saviour's face.

WATTS, 164, D. II.

2 PETER III.

Christ's Appearance at Judgment.

THIS second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance:

2 That ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour:

3 Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts,

4 And saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.

5 For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water and in the water:

6 Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished:

7 But the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.

8 But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

9 The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.

10 But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

11 Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, 12 Looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

13 Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless.

15 And account that the longsuffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also according to the wisdom given unto him hath written unto you.

16 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 PETER III.—The very best Christian professors have need to be repeatedly stirred up to their duties, to be reminded of all the doctrines and commandments of Jesus Christ, and cautioned against the errors and evil practices of wicked and designing men. And the purer men's minds are, the more wicked is it to corrupt them.—How precisely the Scripture foretells the conduct of its adversaries, our own deists not excepted, and thereby renders their wicked opposition a proof of its own Divine inspiration! But, notwithstanding all the scoffs of its adversaries, with amazing patience does God delay the seasons of his wrath, particularly the last judgment, that sinners may have full space to repent, and embrace his salvation. And delay of years is quite insignificant, when compared with his absolute eternity.—In the most tremendous manner Jesus will come at last! The heavens shall perish before him; the elements melt away; and the earth, with all that is therein, be burnt up. How terrible for carnal men! when that world which they have chosen for their portion, universally kindling into flames, shall give them a final adieu, and a fearful introduction into the abodes of the lost! But blessed is the change which shall then be made in the purification of our lower world, and in forming out of its ashes new heavens and a new earth for the everlasting happiness of ransomed men. In the faith and contemplation of these great events, how circumspect, holy, and religious ought we to be! Fully should we be weaned from the world, be steadfast in our profession and practice, fervent in prayer for necessary supplies, and earnest to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Christ our Lord.

PRAYER.

WE come before thee, O Lord our God, relying for acceptance on the righteousness of Christ, to pay thee homage, and to render unto thee deserved praise, as the self-existent and the infinitely blessed Jehovah. We adore thee in the eternity and immutability of thy being. With thee one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The past, the present, and the future, are equally present with thee. Thou art a God of inviolable truth. Great, unspeakably great, is the encouragement thou hast given to thy people to rely on the promises. Sooner shall the earth be removed out of its place, than the stability of thy promises be shaken. Thou art not slack concerning thy promise, as some men count slackness; but thou art long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to the knowledge of the truth.

Glory to thee, our God, for the blessed manifestations thou hast given of thine infinite willingness to save. God forbid that any of us or our beloved relatives should resist the invitations of mercy. Affect them and us with the solemn thought that, if we despise the offers of thy mercy, we must endure the vengeance of thy justice. O Divine mercy, save us, and stretch forth thy gracious arms, and place us on Jesus, the true cornerstone; then shall we be secure against the attacks of all our enemies, and be preserved in safety for thy heavenly kingdom.

Grant that our dear children, may be delivered from the bewildering errors and the fascinating delusions of sin; and may they be brought to the knowledge of the truth in the golden period of their days.

We lament that, as there were in the days of the apostles, so there are in ours, scoffers walking after their own lusts, and endeavouring to prove the fallacy of Divine revelation, Divine predictions, and Divine promises. We pray for the conversion of such daring enemies of Christ and the Word of life. We know that thy grace is fully sufficient to regenerate and soften their hearts, though powerfully subdued by enmity and unbelief. Lord Jesus, save them, and make them more zealous as thy friends than they have ever been as thy foes.

Prepare all of us, gracious God, for the coming of Christ the judge. O may we be found of Christ in peace, without spot, and blameless: and may we grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

We present our thanks for the blessings of the day and the mercies of the week. We commit ourselves to thy gracious care this night. May we awake in peace on the morning of thy day; and may it prove a blessed day to us and all the churches, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

BREATHING FOR COMFORT AND DELIVERANCE.

WATERHAM. Highbury College. Walsall. C. M.

- 1 MY God, consider my distress,
Let mercy plead my cause;
Though I have sinned against thy grace,
I can't forget thy laws.
- 2 Forbid, forbid the sharp reproach
Which I so justly fear;
Uphold my life, uphold my hopes,
Nor let my shame appear.
- 3 Be thou a surety, Lord, for me,
Nor let the proud oppress;
But make thy waiting servant see
The shinings of thy face.
- 4 Look down upon my sorrows, Lord,
And show thy grace the same
As thou art ever wont to afford
To those that love thy name.

Watts, Ps. 119, p. XII.

PSALM CXIX.

Prayer for divine Consolation and Help.

CAPH, PART XI.

MY soul fainteth for thy salvation: but I hope in thy word.

82 Mine eyes fail for thy word, saying, When wilt thou comfort me?

83 For I am become like a bottle in the smoke; yet do I not forget thy statutes.

84 How many are the days of thy servant? when wilt thou execute judgment on them that persecute me?

85 The proud have digged pits for me, which are not after thy law.

86 All thy commandments are faithful: they persecute me wrongfully; help thou me.

87 They had almost consumed me upon earth; but I forsook not thy precepts.

88 Quicken me after thy loving-kindness; so shall I keep the testimony of thy mouth.

LAMED, PART XII.

FOR ever, O LORD, thy word is settled in heaven.

90 Thy faithfulness is unto all generations: thou hast established the earth, and it abideth.

91 They continue this day according to thine ordinances: for all are thy servants.

92 Unless thy law had been my delights, I should then have perished in mine affliction.

93 I will never forget thy precepts: for with them thou hast quickened me.

94 I am thine, save me; for I have sought thy precepts.

95 The wicked have waited for me to destroy me: but I will consider thy testimonies.

96 I have seen an end of all perfection: but thy commandment is exceeding broad.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS XI. AND XII.—No objects are so desirable to a believer as Christ and salvation. On these his affections are placed; and, in his estimation, pearls and rubies, gold and silver, when compared with them, are less than nothing, and lighter than vanity. While ungodly men apply directly to perishing creatures as the sources of their comfort, believers apply directly to the great Creator, the God of salvation, with whom is the boundless fountain of all blessedness and joy. An interest in God's love does not exempt from affliction and suffering on earth; but it removes the curse of affliction, and gives a title to that heavenly world where no cloud of sorrow is ever seen, and where no tear of sorrow is ever shed. Though God may delay the punishment of the enemies of his people, yet the day will come when the proud opposers of the truth shall endure the weight of Divine vengeance. The cruelty and persecution of the wicked do not discourage believers in the service of Christ, but rather stir them up to greater activity in promoting his glory.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, in the name of the great Intercessor, we present to thee the tribute of humble thankfulness and praise, that we have been preserved in safety by the gracious hand of thy merciful providence during the past night, and that we are honoured and privileged by being permitted to enter on another Sabbath-day, another day of sacred rest. Give us grace more and more to love that day, whose dawning rays first beheld our triumphant Saviour leave the dark abode of the grave, and rise the conqueror of death.

We thank thee, O God of ordinances, for all the institutions of religion, but more especially for the Sabbath-day. We pray that we, and the congregation with which we hope to worship thy great name, may be in the spirit on the Lord's day, and engage in all the duties of religion with ardour, humility, love, and joy. As Jesus was raised on the morning of this day by the power and glory of his Father, may all of us now before thee be raised by Divine grace from a death of sin to a life of holiness. O cause thy spirit to descend on the heart and lips of all the heralds of salvation. We ask great things for all the churches; and let thy goings, the goings of thy majesty and grace, O God, be seen in every worshipping assembly: and to thousands may thy sanctuary be the house of God and the gate of heaven.

Bless a preached Gospel to all our rulers. Under its blessed sound, may they see the vanity of earthly greatness and power; and that nothing will avail them in the day of death but an interest in the righteousness of Christ, by whom kings reign and princes decree justice. O that all in our land who are raised up to administer justice were the subjects of grace.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the security of thy throne, and in the stability of thy Word. Thy Word is settled in heaven. Thou art a faithful God, and thy faithfulness remaineth to all generations.

O teach our dear children to flee to Jesus as to a faithful Redeemer. Allure them by these words: I love them that love me, and they that seek me early shall find me. When we shall be separated from them by death, may they rejoice and confide in thee as an unchanging friend. Enable our servants to take delight in thy Son and in thy testimonies; then they shall be comforted in all their afflictions.

O Lord, make all now before thee the subjects of thy salvation. Convince the unconvinced among us of the great and urgent necessity of salvation through the death of Christ, and may they long for it with most earnest desires.

Have pity on the aged and the afflicted, the widow and the fatherless. May they apply for comfort to no other fountain but Christ, and may they drink of the waters of consolation which are found in thy Word, as one of the blessed wells of salvation. May they sing with the Psalmist, Unless thy law had been my delight, I should then have perished in mine affliction.

Lord, forgive our sins and accept our services, for Jesus' sake, our glorious Mediator. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

TENDERNESS OF CONSCIENCE.

Chadwell. Swanwick. Brighthelmstonc. C. N.

- 1 WITH my whole heart I've sought thy face,
O let me never stray
From thy commands, O God of grace,
Nor tread the sinner's way
- 2 Thy word I've hid within my heart
To keep my conscience clean,
And be an everlasting guard
From every rising sin.
- 3 I'm a companion of the saints,
Who fear and love the Lord;
My sorrows rise, my nature faints,
When men transgress thy word.
- 4 While sinners do thy Gospel wrong,
My spirit stands in awe;
My soul abhors a lying tongue,
But loves thy righteous law.

Watts, Ps. 119, p. XIII.

PSALM CXIX.

Influence of God's Word.

MEM, PART XIII.

O HOW love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day.
98 Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies: for they are ever with me.

99 I have more understanding than all my teachers, for thy testimonies are my meditation.

100 I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts.

101 I have refrained my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy word.

102 I have not departed from thy judgments: for thou hast taught me.

103 How sweet are thy words unto my taste! yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth!

104 Through thy precepts I get understanding: therefore
I hate every false way.

NUN, PART XIV.

THY word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.

106 I have sworn, and I will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments.

107 I am afflicted very much: quicken me, O LORD, according unto thy word.

108 Accept, I beseech thee, the free-will offerings of my mouth, O LORD, and teach me thy judgments.

109 My soul is continually in my hand: yet do I not forget thy law.

110 The wicked have laid a snare for me: yet I erred not from thy precepts.

111 Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage for ever:
for they are the rejoicing of my heart.

112 I have inclined mine heart to perform thy statutes alway, even unto the end.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX, PARTS XIII. AND XIV.—The Word of God is the object of the believer's love; and he has abundant reason to admire it, for it is the revelation of God's mercy, and brings life and immortality to light. Whatever knowledge we possess, we nevertheless are fools if we are not savingly instructed out of the oracles of eternal truth. They who are taught of God, and interested in the unerring wisdom of Christ, shall never be destroyed by the craft, or overcome by the power of their spiritual adversaries. O how infinitely blessed are they who have the God of Jacob for their refuge! Such is the Divine influence of the Gospel, that they who are enlightened by its wisdom are placed in circumstances far more exalted and honourable than those possessed by the sages of antiquity or the philosophers of modern days, whose wisdom proceeds no farther than the instruction of men. It is vain to imagine we are the subjects of grace, if our actions are habitually at variance with God's laws; while they who endeavour to lead a holy life, show they have a renewed heart. Divine teaching forms the foundation of holy actions. Happy are they who have a real delight in God's Word; for on all occasions it furnishes enjoyment which the rich delicacies of a royal feast can never afford.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the eternal and self-existent Jehovah, we adore thee as the God of all wisdom, knowledge, and light. Glory to thy gracious name, that the light of thy salvation shines in the midst of thy Church militant on earth, and that multitudes have this day seen thy light, and have rejoiced under the beams of thy saving grace. Eternal praises to our God and Father in Christ for the Holy Scriptures, on the pages of which the light of Divine wisdom and love shines with rays of peculiar glory. Illuminate our minds, Holy Spirit, by means of thy Word read, and by means of thy Gospel preached; then we shall be able to say, in the language of the inspired Psalmist, Thy Word is a light unto our feet, and a lamp unto our paths.

O may thy Word prove to us as a sun, as a heavenly and unerring light, to guide us all the days of our earthly pilgrimage; and as a lamp to lead us in safety through every dark night of affliction, and at last through the darkness of the valley of the shadow of death.

We desire, O Lord, thankfully to recall to our remembrance the mercies of the past Sabbath. We thank thee for the sounding of the Gospel-trumpet, and for all the benefit which has been received under a preached Gospel. We thank thee for the assistance graciously afforded to thy servant who brake among us the bread of life, and who dispensed the oracles of Divine truth. Enable him to take these instances of thy kindness as a token for good; and as an evidence that thou hast sent him into the sacred office, and that thou wilt give to his labours the broad seal of thy blessing. We commit ourselves to the care of our heavenly Father this night. O preserve us from the terrors of the night, and from the pestilence that walketh in darkness. When we lie down, and when we rise up, may we enjoy thy presence and care. When the night of death shall arrive, may all now before thee, and all our beloved relatives, fall asleep in Jesus; and, on the morning of the resurrection, may our bodies awake amid the songs of seraphim, and our souls and bodies united enter into the house not made with hands eternal in the heavens.

Bless to us as a family the services of the day. We earnestly pray that our lives and conversation may furnish a plain and evident proof that we are improving under the means of grace. May we have spiritual delight in thy law and in thy Word; may we enjoy comforting meditations on thy Gospel; may we find thy words sweeter to our taste than honey; may we find ourselves growing in holiness and heavenly-mindedness; and may we feel within an increasing admiration of Christ; then we shall have reason to conclude that the ordinances of thy house are accompanied with a saving influence from above.

Lord, give our children grace, that they may refrain their feet from every evil way, and be preserved from every snare which may be laid before them to endanger their salvation.

What are we, that we are allowed to present these petitions? O Lord our God, answer them in thy mercy, for Jesus' sake, who loved us and died for us. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

COMFORT TO BEREAVED PARENTS.

Brooks. Funeral Thought. Orosio.

C. M.

- YE mourning saints, whose streaming tears
Flow o'er your children dead,
Say not, in transports of despair,
That all your hopes are fled.
- 2 While cleaving to the darling dust,
In fond distress ye lie,
Rise, and with joy and reverence view
A heavenly parent nigh.

DODDRIDGE.

ISAIAH LVI.

Blessedness of pleasing God.

THUS saith the LORD, Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed.

2 Blessed is the man that doeth this, and the son of man that layeth hold on it; that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil.

3 Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the LORD, speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree.

4 For thus saith the LORD unto the eunuchs that keep my sabbaths, and choose the things that please me, and take hold of my covenant;

5 Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off.

6 Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant;

7 Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people.

8 The LORD God which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him.

9 All ye beasts of the field, come to devour, yea, all ye beasts in the forest.

10 His watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber.

ISAIAH LVII.

Righteous and Wicked.

THE righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart: and merciful men are taken away, none considering that the righteous is taken away from the evil to come.

2 He shall enter into peace: they shall rest in their beds, each one walking in his uprightness.

15 For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.

16 For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be always wroth: for the spirit should fail before me, and the souls which I have made.

17 For the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth, and smote him: I hid me, and was wroth, and he went on frowardly in the way of his heart.

18 I have seen his ways, and will heal him: I will lead him also, and restore comforts unto him and to his mourners.

19 I create the fruit of the lips; Peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, saith the LORD: and I will heal him.

20 But the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt.

21 There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LVI., LVII.—“Salvation! O the joyful sound!” It is brought near to us in the Word of God, and in the sanctuary of God. It is brought near our eye. Have we admired its beauties? It is brought near our ear. Have we received it into our hearts? The robe of righteousness has been placed before us in all its richness, levelness, freeness, and merit. Have we received Jesus as the Lord our righteousness? Valuable to his family, to society, and to the Church of Christ, is the life of a righteous man. We should rejoice in the continuance of such men on earth, we should earnestly plead for their preservation; and when holy men are removed by death, we should fervently supplicate the God of salvation to raise up others in their stead.

PRAYER.

WE bless thee, Father of mercies, for what we have now read of the Word of eternal truth; for the wholesome counsels, the salutary warnings, and the encouraging promises which have now been presented before us. In reading the Bible, may we believe that God actually speaks to us in his Word; and in hearing the Gospel, may we believe that we are actually addressed in the preaching of the Word. Lord, enable us with devotional solemnity to adore thee in the words of inspiration we have now read. Thou, O God of salvation, art the high and lofty One that inhabitest eternity, whose name is Holy. Thou dwellest in the high and holy place; with him also that is humble and of a contrite spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones. Lord, give us the humility of unfeigned piety, and give us the contrition of unfeigned repentance; then shall we have the pleasing evidence, confirmed by thine own promise, that we are honoured by the Divine presence, and that our abode is the residence of the God of Jacob.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the sleep, refreshment, and protection of the past night. Continue with us this day the watchful care of thy providence. Suffer us not to discover a sinful desire for worldly objects; and, in all our dealings with mankind, may we ever manifest that rectitude which flows from the fear of God and love to Christ. Preserve us from every snare, and give us that degree of prosperity in our temporal calling which will tend to promote thy glory and our good.

Give us thy Spirit, that we may be enabled at all times to keep judgment and do justice. Thy salvation has visited our world, and has been proclaimed in our hearing. O let that salvation be ours, and let thy righteousness be savingly revealed to our souls.

Teach our dear children and servants to sanctify the Sabbath. O suffer no temptation to take them from thy sanctuary, or to alienate them from thine ordinances.

Have mercy on parents who are bereaved of children, and on those who are deprived of all their children. O give them the rich consolations of religion, and convince them that, if they keep thy Sabbath, and choose the things that please thee, and take hold of thy covenant, thou wilt most assuredly give to them in thine house and within thy walls in the new Jerusalem above, a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters, even an everlasting name, that shall never be cut off.

Sanctify the death of thy saints to surviving relatives. Raise up others in their room, to prove as great ornaments as they have been to thy Gospel, and as great blessings to thy cause.

Hear these our imperfect prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

COMMUNION WITH GOD AND CHRIST.

Bankfield, Sutton Coldfield, Harborough, Shireland. A. M.

- 1 OUR heavenly Father calls,
And Christ invites us near;
The Spirit makes our friendship sweet,
And our communion dear.
- 2 Jesus, our living head,
We bless thy faithful care;
Our advocate before the throne,
And our forerunner there.
- 3 The Spirit gives new life,
And prayer and praise inspires;
'Tis he who plucks the worthless brands
From the devouring fires.

DODDRIDGE.

1 JOHN I.

The Word of Life.

THAT which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life;

2 (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;)

3 That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

4 And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth:

7 But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.

8 If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

9 If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

10 If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

1 JOHN II.

The Advocate.

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous.

2 And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

3 And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments.

4 He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him.

6 He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked.

7 Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 Again, a new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you: because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth.

9 He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 JOHN I., II.—We should ever think with adoring love of Jesus, who in his Divinity is from everlasting to 668

overlasting God. They were blessed who saw him in his humanity and believed. And blessed are we, if we can say in faith, "Whom having not seen, we love; in whom, though now we see him not, yet believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Let us give ourselves no rest, till we can utter these precious expressions with unfeigned sincerity, thankfulness, and love—Jesus is the life! As God, "in him we live;" as Mediator, he is the author of life spiritual and eternal. O may he be to us the "resurrection and the life!" How infinitely is the Gospel adapted to our case! We are guilty: it presents Jesus as "the Lord our righteousness." We need an intercessor before heaven's throne: it reveals Jesus as the great Intercessor, and informs us that he is willing to plead our cause. May it be our happiness to say in faith, "We know in whom we have believed, and are persuaded that he is able to keep that which we have committed to him against that day."

PRAYER.

O GOD of heaven and of earth, the Father of mercies, thou art light, and in thee there is no darkness at all. Thou art the light of angels and of men. Thou art the light of the Church militant on earth, and the light of the Church triumphant in heaven. We adore thee as the author of that Divine light which shines upon the pages of inspiration, and that saving light which shines in the souls of all thy regenerated people.

We acknowledge the miserable state of spiritual ignorance, darkness, and folly in which we have been left by the fall and apostasy of Adam. If the eyes of our understanding have been opened to see the light of spiritual day, we praise and adore that sovereign grace which has bestowed on us a blessing so distinguished and precious. If no ray of saving light has yet entered into our souls, we humbly supplicate our God to open our blind eyes, and make us to see the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. We pray that each one of our family may be enabled to say spiritually, in the language of the man whom our Saviour miraculously restored to sight, One thing I know: once I was blind, now I see.

Convince our beloved children that, spiritually considered, they are born blind. Suffer not Satan, who is the god of this world, any longer to keep them in this state. Holy Spirit, open their eyes, that the light of the glorious Gospel of God may shine unto them.

Merciful God, we supplicate the pardon of the sins of the past day, and of our past lives. Blessed be God, that a just God may perform an act of the greatest mercy in pardoning the guilty through the righteousness of the great advocate, Jesus Christ. Glory to the unmerited grace of God, that, if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the righteous. O for that faith by which we shall be able to say with joy, He is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but for the sins of the whole world. We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the day. O thou who art the founder and the benefactor of families, bless our family. O thou God of Jacob, make this house a Bethel, and here may thou delight to dwell. And if any before thee shall be the heads of other families, may their families be blessed of him by whom all the families of the earth alone can be blessed. May we lie down on our beds this night in tranquillity and peace. May we lie down at peace with God, and having our minds warmed with benevolence toward the whole human race. Protect us during the defenceless hours of sleep; and may we live to see the light of another day, rejoicing in the loving-kindness of God, and prepared to enter upon its duties with alacrity and zeal. Every day may our fellowship be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ; and now may we have that life of grace which will be followed by a life of glory in the skies. All we ask is for the Mediator's sake, to whom be glory, both now and for ever. Amen.

UNSUCCESSFUL FASTS.
Mercy Seat. Ashura. Lenten.

L. M.

- 1 WHERE is sovereign mercy gone?
Whither our nation's God withdrawn?
That through long years she should complain
She fasts, and mourns, and cries in vain?
- 2 Thine ear hath heard, thine eye hath seen,
But guilt hath spread a cloud between;
And, rising still before thy face,
Averts thy long entreated grace.
- 3 Dispel that cloud by rays Divine,
And cause thy cheering face to shine;
Our land shall shout from shore to shore,
And dread encroaching foes no more.

DOUBRIDGE.

ISAIAH LVIII.

Hypocrisy reproved.

CRY aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins.

2 Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsook not the ordinance of their God: they ask of me the ordinances of justice; they take delight in approaching to God.

3 Wherefore have we fasted, say they, and thou seest not? wherefore have we afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge? Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labours.

4 Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness: ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high.

5 Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the Lord?

6 Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?

7 Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

8 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity;

10 And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day:

11 And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LVIII.—Affection, faithfulness, and earnestness, are essentially necessary to qualify ministers for presenting before sinners a just account of their guilt, their danger, and the only method by which their natures may be renewed, their pollution washed away, their guilt removed, and the enjoyment of God's fellowship restored. The state of those professors is truly to be deplored who have a delight in the outward observance of ordinances, but who have no delight in the God of ordinances; who have a delight in the melody of praise, but who take no pleasure in the object of religious adoration. Corrupted in the extreme are the hearts of men who perform the outward rites of religion for the purpose merely of obtaining temporal advantage, and who have no regard for God's glory, the extension of the kingdom of Christ, or the spiritual interest of their never-dying souls. From such desecration of ordinances may God preserve us, and may our characters never be stained nor our souls injured by a sin of such enormity, and of so deep a dye. Mortification of the body, from sacred motives, greatly tends to subdue the corruptions and the pride of the soul. Otherwise, the greatest mortifications can only flow from pride and from a self-righteous spirit; and thus produce upon the heart the most pernicious and fatal effects.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we would draw near thy throne under deep and lively impressions of thy majesty and love. Enable us to address thee as our Father in heaven, with the loving confidence of children, looking up to thee for acceptance in the Beloved.

We adore thee as the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last; as the blessed and only potentate, the King of kings, before whom the kings and princes of the earth are only as grasshoppers, their armies as chaff, and the nations over which they reign as the small dust of the balance. Thou knowest our thoughts and purposes afar off. Thou compassest our path, and our lying down, and art acquainted with all our ways. Thou art a heart-searching God. It is impossible for thee, O Lord, to be satisfied with services and sacrifices which are only outward, and not accompanied with devotion of the heart. The sin of formality and hypocrisy is peculiarly hateful in thy sight.

Enable thy ministers to be more and more faithful in showing the people of their charge their transgressions. Let them not be prevented or discouraged by the fear of man. By the operation of the fear of God may the fear of man be extinguished in the bosom. Lord, preserve us from the sin of formality and hypocrisy. When we confess sin with the lips, may we really mourn over sin with the heart. When we seek grace with our lips, may we hunger and thirst for it with our hearts. Lord, instruct us in spiritual fasting and humiliation. May we never imagine that they consist in bowing down the head like a bulrush, or in any other external acts of apparent grief. Convince rulers that they are strangers to true repentance unless they show evident signs of mercy and compassion, such as loosing the bands of wickedness, undoing heavy burdens, setting the oppressed at liberty, giving bread to the hungry, and clothing the naked, and not hiding themselves from their own flesh.

Lord, bestow evangelical repentance on each member of this family. Open our eyes to see that there is an infinite evil in sin, and that it is infinitely offensive to a holy and righteous God. Teach us to mourn over the sins of childhood, youth, and riper years. Affect us, O Jesus, with the evil of sin, when we think of the overwhelming and unparalleled sufferings thou didst endure to take away the sins of men.

Lord, teach our children the lesson of true repentance; O convince them that early repentance will prevent innumerable sins and innumerable sorrows; and may our servants fear thy name.

Lord, make us a holy family; then we shall have thy guidance continually, and we shall be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water whose waters fail not.

We praise thee for the comfortable rest of the past night. Assist us in all the duties incumbent upon us this day. Every day may we grow more fit to live and more prepared to die.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

THE WORLD'S THREE CHIEF TEMPTATIONS.

Oldham. Jordan's Banks. Grove House.

c. x.

- 1 WHEN in the light of faith Divine
We look on things below,
Honour, and gold, and sensual joy,
How vain and dangerous too.
- 2 Honour's a puff of noisy breath '
Yet men expose their blood,
And venture everlasting death,
To gain that airy good.
- 3 Whilst others starve the nobler mind,
And feed on shining dust,
They rob the serpent of his food,
To indulge a sordid lust.

Watts, 191, B. II.

I JOHN II.

Temptations of the World.

HE that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

12 I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you through his name's sake.

13 I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

14 I have written unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one.

15 Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

17 And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.

18 Little children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time.

19 They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us.

20 But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things.

21 I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? he is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.

23 Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father, [but] he that acknowledgeth the Son hath the Father also.

24 Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life.

26 These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you.

27 But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him.

REFLECTIONS UPON I JOHN II.—Divine love is ever accompanied by Divine light. That man enjoys the smiles of God whose understanding is enlightened by spiritual knowledge, and whose heart is warmed with Christian love. Enmity reigns in the souls of unrewarded men, and it is associated with the darkness of spiritual death. And if mercy prevent not, darkness now shall be followed by the gloom of endless despair. Happy, peculiarly happy, are the young, whose youthful hearts are the subjects of grace; and who have just reason, from their sanctified nature, to believe that their sins, through a Saviour's merit, are forgiven, blotted out, and remembered no more. Valuable in its place is the knowledge of various sciences, which regard God's wonderful works; but even this we should count loss when compared "with the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord." The world in its wealth, pleasures, and honours, is an idol which tens of thousands worship, and by which tens of thousands have perished. May that idol never receive the homage and worship of our hearts, and may Jesus reign for ever upon the throne of our affections!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, and whose compassion and grace exceed all limits, thou art God over all, blessed for evermore. Who in the heavens can be compared unto thee! or who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto thee! Thy goodness, O Lord, is boundless as immensity, and endless as eternity. We approach thee in our great Redeemer's name.

Thou art the HOLY ONE. So holy art thou, that the heavens are not clean in thy sight. How vile and abominable, then, must our fallen, corrupted natures appear before the eyes of thy spotless purity! Glory to thy name, that thou art willing to take our polluted hearts, overspread with the deformity of sin, and to adorn them with the beauty of holiness. By the righteousness of thy Son, may we be rendered comely in the eye of Divine justice; and by the communication of the graces of thy spirit may we be rendered comely in the eyes of thy holiness. Lord, give us an unction from the Holy One; then shall the corruptions of our heart begin to wither and die, and then shall the plants of heavenly disposition and affection spring up in sacred luxuriance, and bring forth the fruits of righteousness. O give us the unction from the Holy One; then shall we know all things necessary for life and godliness and immortality.

We thank thee, O Lord, for all the instances of thy providential goodness this day. Write the law of gratitude upon our hearts in lines deep and indelible. As every day is bringing us a day nearer eternity, may each day be bringing us a day nearer heaven. O teach us so to number our days, as to apply our hearts unto wisdom.

Bless to our souls the Word of Divine truth we have now read. By thy spirit may it shed heavenly light upon our understandings, and enkindle Divine love in our hearts. Convince us that our religion is vain, if we live in the indulgence of the passions of enmity and envy.

Lord, have mercy on little children; and, with their expanding faculties, may they receive the saving knowledge of God as the God of salvation; have mercy on fathers—on those who have reached the evening of their days, and may they savingly know Jesus, who is from the beginning, and who alone can comfort their hearts while bowing down to meet the grave. Have mercy on young men, and enable them to overcome the wicked one.

Bless our dear children, and carefully preserve them from the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eye, and the pride of life. Make our servants holy.

May all of us be delivered from the love of the world, and may our souls be filled with the love of Christ, who is the chiefest among ten thousand, and the altogether lovely.

O hear and answer our prayers, for the Saviour's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S COMMISSION.
Compassion. Restland. Sutton.

2. H.

- 1 RAISE your triumphant songs
To an immortal tune;
Let the wide earth resound the deeds
Celestial grace has done.
- 2 Sing how eternal love
Its chief beloved chose,
And bid him raise our wretched race
From their abyss of woes.
- 3 His hand no thunder bears,
Nor terror clothes his brow;
No bolts to drive our guilty souls
To fiercer flames below.

WATTS, 104, B. 11.

ISAIAH LIX.

The general Depravity.

BEHOLD, the LORD's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear:

2 But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear.

3 For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity; your lips have spoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverseness.

4 None calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for truth: they trust in vanity, and speak lies; they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity.

9 Therefore is judgment far from us, neither doth justice overtake us: we wait for light, but behold obscurity; for brightness, but we walk in darkness.

10 We grope for the wall like the blind, and we grope as if we had no eyes: we stumble at noon day as in the night; we are in desolate places as dead men.

12 For our transgressions are multiplied before thee, and our sins testify against us: for our transgressions are with us; and as for our iniquities, we know them;

13 In transgressing and lying against the LORD, and departing away from our God, speaking oppression and revolt, conceiving and uttering from the heart words of falsehood.

14 And judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off: for truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter.

15 Yea, truth faileth; and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey: and the LORD saw it, and it displeased him that there was no judgment.

16 And he saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no intercessor: therefore his arm brought salvation unto him; and his righteousness, it sustained him.

17 For he put on righteousness as a breastplate, and an helmet of salvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance for clothing, and was clad with zeal as a cloke.

18 According to their deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adversaries, recompence to his enemies; to the islands he will repay recompence.

19 So shall they fear the name of the LORD from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the LORD shall lift up a standard against him.

20 And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.

21 As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the LORD; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LIX.—Difficulties, trials, sufferings, and contests, are connected with the believer's journey through the wilderness of this world; but he enjoys the unspeakable pleasure of having a Father's gracious and almighty arm on which to lean, and a Father's gracious ear into which he may pour his cries and supplications. May this privilege be ours! It should be our constant prayer to be preserved from the love and commission of sin, which separates from God's fellowship and smiles, and which exposes to his fatherly displeasure and frowns.—How affecting and melancholy it is to cast our eyes over the family of man, and see the universal alienation of our race from God, manifesting itself in ten thousand forms; but more especially in acts of cruelty, falsehood, profanity, and injustice! The great and the mighty, who should be examples of every virtue, are in many instances examples of every vice. May the purifying influence of the Gospel soon overspread the earth, then we shall see a holy, renovated world! Amen.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Jehovah, after the enjoyment of the continued displays of thy providential goodness and care during another night, we desire, in humble dependence on thy Holy Spirit, and in the name of Jesus, to come before thee in the exercise of worship and of prayer, to acknowledge and adore thee as the Lord our God. Thou art glorious as the former of the universe, in its infinite variety of worlds and beings; but thy glory shines with peculiar splendour as the God of salvation. We thank thee for an opportunity of adoring thee in the language of the inspired prophet: Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear.

Blessed Spirit, enable us now to make a penitential acknowledgment of our own sins, and of the sins of our nation. Our iniquities have separated between us and our God; and our sins have hid thy face from us. If at any time our prayers have remained unanswered, we acknowledge it has been the merited punishment of our wilful and presumptuous transgressions. We confess, and we would do it with grief, that as a nation our sins are of a nature peculiarly aggravated in thy sight. The hands of multitudes are defiled with blood, and their fingers with iniquity; their lips have spoken lies, and their tongue hath uttered perverseness. How few, alas! are guided by justice! how few plead for truth! they trust in vanity and speak lies; they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity. We confess, O Lord, that, in lying against the Lord and departing from our God, by speaking oppression and uttering from the heart words of falsehood, our nation has offended thee, and provoked thy displeasure. Thou hast seen these things, O Lord, and it hath displeased thee that there is no judgment.

O gracious God, deal not with our nation as we deserve for these our numerous and grievous sins. We pray that the waters of salvation may overspread our land, and that all the inhabitants may drink and live for ever. Though the enemy has come in like a flood, and presumptuously displayed his banners over the breadth and the length of the land, may the spirit of the Lord, by the influence of a preached Gospel, lift up a standard against him.

Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that when there was none to help, and when thou sawest there was no intercessor, thou didst pity ruined man, and thine own arm brought salvation unto thee, and thy righteousness sustained thee.

Have mercy on our children, and make thy covenant with them. Give them thy spirit; then thy words shall not depart out of their mouth.

This day may we be directed by thy wisdom, in our thoughts, words, and actions. Assist us in all the lawful duties and business of life. Let it be our blessedness to do all to thy glory.

Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

FORTY-EIGHTH WEEK.—WEDNESDAY EVENING.

ADOPTION.

Middleton. Reposa. New Eagle Street.

E. M.

- 1 BEHOLD, what wondrous grace
The Father has bestowed
On sinners of a mortal race,
To call them sons of God!
- 2 'Tis no surprising thing,
That we should be unknown;
The Jewish world knew not their king,
God's everlasting Son.
- 3 Nor doth it yet appear
How great we must be made;
But when we see our Saviour here,
We shall be like our head.
- 4 A hope so much Divine
May trials well endure,
May purge our souls from sense and sin,
As Christ the Lord is pure.

Watts, 64, B. 1

1 JOHN III.

The Love of God to his People.

BEHOLD, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not.

2 Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

3 And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

4 Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law.

5 And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not: whosoever sinneth hath not seen him, neither known him.

7 Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous.

8 He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.

9 Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God.

10 In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another.

12 Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you.

14 We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

15 Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

16 Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 JOHN III.—How infinitely great the happiness, and how sweet the songs of the redeemed in heaven! for the love of the Father, Son, and Spirit, is the constant subject of their praise. It hath not entered, and it cannot enter into the hearts of believers here below, what God hath prepared in heaven for his adopted children, the objects of his unchanging love. What they shall be as to mental enlargement, as to purity, as to wisdom and intelligence, as to blessedness and enjoyment, as to fellowship and employment, and as to dignity and glory; no imagination of man can possibly conceive. Do we stand to Christ in the relation of sons? Are our hopes of heaven the genuine creation of the Holy Spirit? The reality of our sonship, and the sincerity of our hope, will be manifested by the holiness of our lives. If we are travelling to a holy heaven, we show that we are heirs of the city that hath foundations, by loving, practising, and following after holiness, without which no man can see the Lord. May the love of God reign in our hearts, then holiness will shine in our lives!

PRAYER.

DIVINE Saviour, we adore and praise thee for thy boundless love. Thy love brought thee from heaven to earth. Thy love to lost and ruined men prevailed on thee to become a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, that they might enjoy rivers of pleasures for evermore. Thy love led thee to Calvary's cross, where thou didst die, surrounded by the dark clouds of thy Father's wrath, that men might live for ever in the enjoyment of Jehovah's smiles. Hereby we perceive thy Divine, thy matchless love, because thou didst lay down thy life for us. May thine unmerited love to us teach us to love one another. As thou didst die for us, may we be willing to endure sufferings for the brethren. As thou didst become poor for us, O make us willing to communicate of our substance with the greatest readiness, that we may relieve the necessities of suffering saints.

Lord, touch the hearts of those professors who are enjoying an abundance of earthly things, but whose minds are insensible to emotions of compassion and pity. Convince them of their state, their sins, their danger. O let those solemn words most deeply and powerfully affect their hearts: But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him! If there are any of us, or any of our dear relatives, bound fast by the chains of avarice, Lord, accomplish a saving change, and may the love of Christ soon expel this destroying and heart-withering passion from the soul.

We acknowledge that we are by nature the children of Satan; by grace may we be made the children of God. Teach us seriously to inquire, Are we the children of God? If we are not thy children by regeneration, O mercifully perform an act of distinguished grace, and admit us into thy family. Blessed, blessed shall we be, if we are enabled to sing with thine inspired servant, Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us, that we should be called the sons of God.

O make our children thy children. Give them and our servants the washing of regeneration; and let their lives and characters show that they are indeed born again.

Lord, comfort all thy people, and in particular thine aged, afflicted saints, with the prospect of that blessed change which awaits them in a future world. Enable them, with faith and holy melody, to sing that song, Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

We thank thee for the mercies of the past day, that we are still the monuments of mercy, and that we are still the prisoners of hope. Lord of life, keep us this night. May we sleep in peace and awake in safety.

Sanctify the observance of this domestic ordinance, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

GOD THE EVERLASTING LIGHT.

Original Scotch Church, Harrington, Newcastle. C. M.

- 1 YE golden lamps of heaven, farewell,
With all your feeble light:
Farewell, thou ever-changing moon,
Pale empress of the night.
- 2 And thou, refulgent orb of day,
In brighter flames arrayed,
My soul, that springs beyond thy sphere,
No more demands thine aid.
- 3 Ye stars are but the shining dust
Of my divine abode,
The pavement of those heavenly courts,
Where I shall reign with God.

DODDRIDGE.

ISAIAH LX.

God the Glory of the Church.

ARISE, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

2 For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

3 And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

4 Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee: thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

5 Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee.

6 The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense; and they shall shew forth the praises of the LORD.

7 All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.

8 Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?

9 Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the LORD thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

10 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

11 Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought.

12 For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

13 The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

14 The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall how themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

15 Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

16 Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breasts of kings: and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty one of Jacob.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LX.—It is only in the firmament of the Church where the light of salvation and of the glory of God in the face of Jesus shines. Paganism overspreads the nations with impenetrable darkness; the Gospel enlightens nations with the glorious brightness of Divine knowledge, holiness, and peace. Has that light shone into our hearts? Have we passed from the darkness of a natural state, and have we been introduced into the kingdom of light, of life, and of joy? Let us pity from our heart pagan nations sitting in the darkness of ignorance, idolatry, and death. And let us rejoice that this darkness shall be dispelled, and that the time shall come, fixed by heaven's merciful and immutable decree, that all nations shall see Christ's glory, when "the Sun of righteousness shall rise upon them with healing in his wings."

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the Saviour, the Redeemer, and the mighty one of Jacob. Be to us our Saviour and our Redeemer; and by our deliverance from our spiritual, numerous, and powerful enemies, may we savingly and experimentally know that thou art the mighty one of Jacob. Thou, O God of salvation, art the light of thy Church, and thou wilt conduct her in safety through this wilderness to thy heavenly kingdom, where thy people shall be for ever surrounded with the light of Divine and immortal blessedness.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as Zion's King. Thou art placed upon her throne, and thy reign will bring infinite glory to the Divine perfections, and infinite prosperity to thy Church. Let not thy Church be cast down amid outward discouragements.

Enable her to shake off her fears; to arise, and by the light of prophecy to see the glory which awaits her in future days.
We adore thee, O Immanuel, for all that thou hast done for thy Church, and for the extension of thy spiritual kingdom in our day. We lament that spiritual and moral darkness still covers the larger proportion of the earth, and that gross darkness covers the people. Arise, O Sun of righteousness, on these dark and benighted regions, and let the glory of thy salvation and of thy grace be seen among them. Great Redeemer, cause the Gentile nations to come to thy light, and all their kings to come to the brightness of thy rising. May we as a family come to thy light, and behold the brightness of thy rising. O suffer not one individual among us to remain in the darkness of spiritual death.

Take our children, and unite them to thy spiritual kingdom. O bring them under thy mediatorial government, and let their minds be filled with the light of thy salvation.

Graciously fulfil the great and gracious promises thou hast made respecting the conversion of heathen lands. Let the abundance of the sea be converted unto Christ, and let the numerous forces of the Gentiles be added unto thy Church.
Persuade multitudes to flee to the Gospel standard, as doves flee to their windows.

We rejoice that the gates of the Church are open continually day and night. O may the forces of the Gentiles be introduced through these gates, and may all their kings and rulers be brought to do homage to Zion's King.

Have mercy on thine aged and afflicted people. When they look on the dark clouds of affliction or old age, may they look onward to the brightness and glory of heaven, where their sun shall no more go down, where God shall be their everlasting light, and their God their glory.

We present our thanks for the repose and protection afforded during the past night, and that we are assembled in comfort around the domestic altar. May we live this day to thy glory, and in all we do remember the great end of our existence, the glory of God.

We humbly ask that our prayers may be answered and our sins pardoned, for Immanuel's sake. Amen.

LOVE AND CHARITY.

Auburn. Oldham. Hammond.

C. N.

- 1 LET Pharisees of high esteem
Their faith and zeal declare,
All their religion is a dream,
If love be wanting there.
- 2 Love suffers long with patient eye,
Nor is provoked in haste;
She lets the present injury die,
And long forgets the past.
- 3 Malice and rage, these fires of hell,
She quonches with her tongue;
Hopes, and believes, and thinks no ill,
Though she endures the wrong.
- 4 Love is the grace that keeps her power
In all the realms above;
There faith and hope are known no more,
But saints for ever love.

WATTS, 133, B. I.

1 JOHN III.

Prayer and Faith.

MY little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.

19 And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him.

20 For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God.

22 And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

23 And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.

24 And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

1 JOHN IV.

Trying the Spirits.

BELOVED, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world.

2 Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God:

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world.

4 Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.

5 They are of the world: therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them.

6 We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby know we the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 JOHN III., IV.—It is easy to deceive men with goodly words, and conceal a deceitful heart; but "God cannot be mocked." O may we be impressed with that great and solemn truth: "God searcheth the hearts and trieth the reins of the children of men." "He cannot be mocked."—A holy life never can be the procuring cause of salvation; but it is a satisfying mark of an interest in Christ, and that he is "made of God unto us sanctification." They who habitually lead ungodly lives, their prayers are the expressions of presumption, and must be an abomination to a prayer-hearing God. If we wish our prayers to be accepted in the Beloved, and graciously answered, we must seek the Holy Spirit, that we may "walk in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless." While there are false spirits ever ready to entice, that they may lead to the abodes of woe, let us rejoice that we have the Holy Spirit ever willing to guide us into all truth, and to lead us to the abodes of bliss.

PRAYER.

ADORED and praised be the name of God, that another blessed opportunity is afforded us of enjoying fellowship with the God of our salvation, in the exercise of domestic worship. We have abundant reason to wonder at thy condescension, when we remember and feel that we are unworthy to appear in thy presence, or even to take thy holy, sacred name into our polluted lips. In thee, O Jesus, infinite worthiness is found; and we rejoice that through thy worthiness and merit we are now actually before the throne of grace, and enjoying fellowship with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

Lord, affect us with the solemn truth, that thou searchest all hearts, and that all the purposes and imaginations of the thoughts are clear and evident before the eye of thine omniscience.

We desire with feelings of humility and thankfulness to bless thee that we have been sustained during the past day, and all our wants abundantly supplied. Give us the protection of thine almighty and everlasting arms this night; and may we lie down to sleep under the comforting conviction that we are the sons and daughters of the Lord of angels and of the Saviour of men.

We thank our God for the Word we have now read. O grant us thy Spirit, that thy Word may be quick and powerful, sharper than any two-edged sword. O make it the blessed instrument of separating our corruptions from our souls, and adorning us with the resemblance of the Divine likeness. We pray, O Lord, that our hearts may be warmed with love to Jesus, and with love to one another. Enable us to love one another and all the saints, not in word or in tongue merely, but in deed and in truth. Convince us that, if we are without this love, we are without the truth, and that all our professions are vain, and nothing better than sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. Lord, impart unto us genuine piety; then our heart will not condemn us; then shall we have confidence towards God.

Give our children love to Jesus. May they love thee, O Jesus, more than us their parents. May they love thee more than one another, more than all on earth.

O bestow upon us the spirit of prayer. Teach us, O Lord, to ask suitable blessings, and to ask them with earnestness, humility, and faith. Convince us that, if we keep thy commandments in love, it is the pleasing evidence that a prayer-hearing God is our God, and that our prayers will meet with his gracious acceptance.

Lord, give us, and preserve within us, clear and correct views of Divine truth. May we not be carried about with every wind of doctrine, but remain steadfast in the faith, grounded and settled in love.

We present these our imperfect petitions, together with ourselves, at mercy's feet, and seek an answer and acceptance, for Jesus' sake, the faithful and true witness, Amen.

SECURITY OF CHRIST'S SHEEP.

Leominster. Margate. Hopkins. Kibworth.

s. n.

- 1 MY soul, with joy attend,
While Jesus silence breaks;
No angel's harp such music yields
As what my Shephord speaks.
- 2 I know my sheep, ho cries,
My soul approves them well:
Vain is the treacherous world's disguise,
And vain the rage of hell.
- 3 I freely feed them now
With tokens of my love;
But richer pastures I prepare,
And sweeter streams above

DODDING.

ISAIAH LX.

The Light of Heaven.

THE sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee: but the LORD shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory.

20 Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself: for the LORD shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended.

21 Thy people also shall be all righteous: they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my plauting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified.

22 A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in his time.

ISAIAH LXI.

Christ's blessed Commission.

THE Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

2 To proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn;

3 To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness: that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that he might be glorified.

4 And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations.

5 And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of the alien shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers.

6 But ye shall be named the Priests of the LORD: men shall call you the Ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves.

7 For your shame ye shall have double; and for confusion they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess the double: everlasting joy shall be unto them.

8 For I the LORD love judgment, I hate robbery for burnt-offering; and I will direct their work in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them.

9 And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the LORD hath blessed.

10 I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels.

11 For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LX., LXI.—How glorious shall be the period of millennial blessedness! Then the light of Gospel-truth shall overspread the earth, and the Sun of righteousness shall shine upon his Church with peculiar splendour. The glory of those days will be figurative of the blessed state of the Church of Christ in heaven, when the whole family shall be collected into one immense multitude, and when the full brightness of the unveiled attributes of Jehovah shall shine on all the glorified saints for ever and ever. In those illustrious days, the Church shall appear as a tree of the greatest magnitude and fruitfulness. All nations, and islands, and continents, shall recline in peaceful security under those branches, which shall overspread the globe. And by whom shall this be accomplished? By the Great Mediator, in whom dwells all the fulness of the Godhead bodily, and whose Spirit shall be copiously poured out from on high.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Father, who art in heaven, as a family we draw near thy throuc of grace, to worship thee on earth. As a family may we assemble at last to worship thee in the beauties of perfect holiness, before thy throne of glory in heaven. Thou art the ever-blessed God, and the fountain of all that blessedness enjoyed by men on earth, and by angels and the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven. Thou art the Creator of the ends of the earth, and art infinitely worthy of the love and adoration of all thine intelligent subjects. May our hearts ever be filled with feelings of the liveliest thankfulness that there is a throne of grace, and that we are ever welcome, through the merit of our Saviour's death, to prostrate ourselves before this blessed throne, and pour out the supplications of our hearts. O instruct us in the important lesson of offering up believing prayers, which are always accompanied with the all-prevailing influence of Christ's intercession.

We have reason, O Lord, this morning, for erecting a fresh Ebenezer of thankfulness for the mercies of another night, that we have enjoyed the paternal care of our God, and that we are now before the throne of our God and Father in Christ. We bless thee that, in entering on another day, we are permitted, not only to seek thy counsel, but allowed to commit ourselves and our concerns into thy hand, and to place all at the disposal of our God, who has promised that all things shall work together for good to them who love God, and who are the called according to his purpose. Keep us in thy fear all the day; direct us in the path of duty with thine unerring wisdom; preserve us from the snares of the world, the temptations of Satan, and the corruptions of our own hearts.

We praise thee, O Jesus, for what we have now read of thy gracious commission. Glory to thy name, that thou hast most amply fulfilled thy commission, and that myriads in heaven are singing thy lofty praises, that thou hast delivered them from Satan's captivity, and advanced them to the glories of immortality.

If our dear children are the captives of sin and guilt, Divine Saviour, mercifully come and set them free. May we see our offspring delivered from the power of their spiritual enemies, and blessed with the liberty of thy children.

Show thy tender compassion to the afflicted, O Lord. Comfort all that mourn in Zion; give them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garments of praise for the spirit of heaviness.

Bless our religious exercise at this time, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Saviour's sake. Amen.

GOD IS LOVE.

Strengh. Honour Chapel. Liverpool. Staughton. C. M.

- 1 AMID the splendours of thy state,
My God, thy love appears,
With the soft radiance of the moon
Among a thousand stars.
- 2 Nature, through all her ample round,
Thy boundless power proclaims,
And in melodious accents speaks
The goodness of thy names.
- 3 Thy justice, holiness, and truth,
Our solemn awe excite;
But the sweet charms of sovereign grace
O'erwhelm us with delight.
- 4 Sinai, in clouds and smoke and fire,
Thunders thy dreadful name;
But Zion sings in melting notes,
The honours of the Lamb.
- 5 In all thy doctrines and commands,
Thy counsels and designs—
In every work thy hands have framed
Thy love supremely shines.

ANON.

1 JOHN IV.

Loving one another.

BELOVED, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

9 In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him.

10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.

11 Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

12 No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us.

13 Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God.

16 And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world.

18 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.

19 We love him, because he first loved us.

20 If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?

21 And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 JOHN IV.—Does the fire of Divine love glow in our bosom? Are the saints of God the objects of our affectionate regard? Do we feel deeply interested in them, because they are the objects of Christ's love, because they are members of his family, and because they bear his image? If this love glows in our bosom, we are the objects of Christ's love. Delightful thought, exalted attainment, unspeakable privilege!—we bear a resemblance to God himself, in the most wonderful and glorious of his moral attributes, that is, his love! Is God love? Is love God? How inconceivably glorious then is this attribute, which abides so pre-eminently among the perfections of Jehovah, and sheds its radiant lustre on them all! Lamentable is the state of those, in whom this precious plant of love does not grow; in whom this fire of love does not shine. "Holy Spirit, give us this love."

PRAYER.

ETERNAL praises to thy name, O Lord our God, that thou hast not only revealed thyself as a loving God, but as the God of love. We bless thee that in thy holy Word we have now read, GOD IS LOVE. If thou hadst dealt with us according to our sins, we should only have heard of thee as a God of wrath. Because thou delightest in mercy, we now hear of thee as a God of love. Through the merits of a loving Saviour we approach thy throne.

We have reason to lament that our minds have been and are still so little impressed with the tidings of thy love. May thy love manifested in Christ so powerfully affect our minds, that we shall rejoice more than they rejoice who divide the spoil; that we shall rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. And may thy love so deeply affect our hearts, that we shall fervently love all who resemble the image of God, and feel within ourselves the affection of benevolence to the whole race of man.

Thy continued blessings, O Lord, call for the warmest gratitude and the sweetest praise. Thou great and Divine benefactor, we thank thee for the mercies of the past day. If we have received thine assistance in our religious exercises, and if we have enjoyed thy smiles in our temporal pursuits, we praise thee for thine unmerited kindness. We desire to be the affectionate witnesses of thy continued goodness and grace. We commend ourselves to thy care this night. May thine angels watch around our beds. May we awake on the morning of the approaching day impressed with holy resolutions to glorify thy name and keep thy laws.

We pray that all of us may obtain a saving knowledge of God; and may we be animated with that love to the brethren which will be the satisfying proof that we are born of God. We adore and praise thee, O Lord, for the manifestation of unparalleled love, in sending thine only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Often may we meditate on this manifestation of love, till we feel our hearts burn with admiration of the love and mercy of a redeeming God.

Enable our children to love one another. May we, their parents, enjoy their undiminished love, and may we witness the evident symptoms that Jesus is precious in their esteem.

We rejoice, exalted Saviour, that thou didst become a propitiation for us. We seek faith to believe that thou hast for ever satisfied the justice of God for our sins, by the propitiatory sacrifice of thyself. We pray that the wonderful display of Divine love to us, who deserved the continued infliction of God's wrath, may impress our minds with the greatness of the sin of hating one another, and the greatness of the duty of loving one another.

We seek a filial fear of God. Deliver us from that slavish fear which is incompatible with love. Above all things enable us to sing, We love Christ, because he first loved us. May we love Jesus for his matchless excellence and for his matchless love.

Graciously forgive our sins, and accept our evening sacrifice, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and Spirit, be all praise, both now and ever. Amen.

MINISTERS ENCOURAGED.

Holla Westminster. Mount Ephraim. Lowell. a. n.

- 1 YE messengers of Christ,
His sovereign voice obey;
Arise! and follow where he leads,
And peace attend your way.
- 2 The Master whom you serve
Will needful strength bestow;
Depending on his promised aid,
With sacred courage go.
- 3 Mountains shall sink to plains,
And hell in vain oppose;
The cause is God's, and must prevail,
In spite of all our foes.
- 4 Go, spread a Saviour's fame;
And tell his matchless grace
To the most guilty and depraved
Of Adam's numerous race.
- 5 We wish you, in his name,
The most Divine success;
Assured that he who sends you forth
Will your endeavours bless.

VOL. II.

ISAIAH LXII.

God's Love to the Church.

FOR Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.

2 And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name.

3 Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.

4 Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Heph-zibah, and thy land Beulah: for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married.

5 For as a young man marieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee: and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee.

6 I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence,

7 And give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.

8 The Lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, Surely I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies; and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy wine, for the which thou hast laboured:

9 But they that have gathered it shall eat it, and praise the Lord; and they that have brought it together shall drink it in the courts of my holiness.

10 Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people.

11 Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.

12 And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the Lord: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LXII.—It is characteristic of the saints, and of the faithful ministers of Christ, that the prosperity of the Church is near their heart and dear to their affections; her interests lead them to the throne of grace, where they pour out the most earnest supplications in her behalf, which God in his own time will most abundantly answer, far beyond what they can even ask or think. Delightful thought—the Hearer of prayer is infinitely more interested in the welfare of his redeemed Church, than even the saints who send up their earnest supplications for its prosperity, its extent, and its blessedness! In the most wonderful way Jesus manifests his love to his Church, and the boundless complacency and delight with which he looks upon her. His salvation shines in the midst of her like a glorious lamp, kindled with the fire of Divine love. He has given her a white stone, on which he has engraven a new name, in lines shining with brighter lustre than the splendour of the stars. Such is the beauty with which he has adorned her, that he calls her his royal diadem and crown of glory!

PRAYER.

GLORY to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, that, after the protection thou hast afforded us during the dark and helpless hours of night, we are now assembled, in the name of Jesus, before the mercy-seat, to present our morning sacrifice. Teach us, O Lord, highly, yea, increasingly to value these privileges and opportunities; and, by the assistance of thy Holy Spirit, may we improve them as the harbingers of heaven, and as a preparation for the employments of the heavenly state.

We adore thee, O Lord, as our Father in Christ. O that we could thus acknowledge thee, under the holy feeling of the love of children. As our Creator, thou art our Father. Hath not one God created us? As our preserving God, thou art our Father. We are fed and clothed by thy fatherly hand. Give us faith to adore thee as our redeeming Father. Make us thy children by regeneration and adoption; then shall we cry, Abba, Father; then shall we love thee and serve thee as children; and then shall our minds be animated with the assured hopes of joining the ransomed family above, and dwelling for ever in the presence and in the enjoyment of our Father who is in heaven.

We thank our God that we have been preserved from evil during the past night, and we pray that we may be preserved from the evil of sin this day. Preserve our bodies from the evils of disease and accidental injury, and preserve our souls from temptation. Give us day by day our daily bread—the constant and unmerited supply of all our temporal wants.

We bless God for the interesting and animating predictions and promises we have now read respecting the glory and prosperity of thy Church. We pray for the enlargement of thy Church. May the righteousness with which Zion is adorned go forth as brightness, and the salvation with which she is blessed go forth among the nations of the earth as a lamp that burneth, that all the inhabitants of the earth with their kings may see this righteousness, and be astonished at this glory; and thus be induced to join the city of Zion, and fall down before Jesus as their Saviour and Lord. Comfort thy people throughout the world, and in particular thine afflicted and thine aged people; and may they dwell with delight upon the thought, that they are the objects of Jehovah's love—that they are a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of their God.

Lord Jesus, have mercy on our dear children. Deeply impress their minds with the value of their souls, and the very great and absolute necessity of salvation through a Saviour's blood. O make them jewels in the Saviour's crown.

Hasten the day when the fame of Jesus shall overspread the world; and we pray that thou mayest give thyself no rest, till Jerusalem is made a praise on the earth.

Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, thy Son and our Saviour. Amen.

FAITH CONQUERING.

Hartmouth New. Goshen New. Lambeth. New Jerusalem. P. M.

- 1 THE moment a sinner believes,
And trusts in his crucified God,
His pardon at once he receives—
Redemption in full through his blood:
Though thousands and thousands of foes
Against him in malice unite,
Their rage he through Christ can oppose—
Led forth by the Spirit to fight.
- 2 The faith that unites to the Lamb,
And brings such salvation as this,
Is more than mere notion or name,—
The work of God's spirit it is;
A principle, active and young,
That lives under pressure and load;
That makes out of weakness more strong,
And draws the soul upward to God.

HART.

1 JOHN V.

Faith and eternal Life.

WHOSOEVER believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him.

2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments.

3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not grievous.

4 For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?

6 This is he that came by water and blood, even Jesus Christ; not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.

8 And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.

9 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God which he hath testified of his Son.

10 He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son.

11 And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son.

12 He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life.

13 These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.

14 And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us:

15 And if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him.

16 If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it.

17 All unrighteousness is sin: and there is a sin not unto death.

18 We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness.

20 And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 1 JOHN V.—Are we enabled to exorcise appropriating faith in Jesus as our anointed Saviour, believing that he obeyed the law for us, that he endured its penalty for us, that he atoned for us? If so, we possess an evidence on which we may depend that we are the sons of God, and washed with the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost, sited upon us abundantly by Jesus Christ our Lord. It is impossible to love God without loving the children of God, without loving and admiring the likeness of the Divine Father beaming in the countenance and lives of his redeemed children. Love in the heart is a fruitful tree, bringing forth the fruits of evangelical obedience, profitable to man and acceptable to God. How often the laws of men are unjust, grievous, and oppressive! God's laws breathe the goodness, wisdom, and mercy of their author. His laws tend as much to promote the happiness of his people, as his own glory. Perverted in the extreme are the minds of those who hate God's laws, and who refuse to obey them: they are as much opposed to their own interest and happiness, as they are hostile to God's authority.

PRAYER.

PRAISE to our God and Father in Christ, that no injury or disease has prevented us from appearing before the throne of grace, and around the domestic altar, at the close of another day and another week. May it be the unfeigned delight of our souls, all our lives, to begin and end our days with God, and to begin and end our weeks in thy service and in thy fellowship.

We seek the promised blessing of the Spirit on what we have now read; and we seek the aid of the promised Spirit to enable us to present humble, earnest, and believing prayers before the throne of grace.

We adore thee, O Divine Majesty, in all the deep and unfathomable mysteries of the Trinity. Truly there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one. Suffer us not to stumble at this blessed revelation thou hast condescendingly made of those mysteries of thy threefold personality, which never can be comprehended by the minds of men or angels.

O Lord, we thank thee for what we have now read of the great usefulness of faith. We are in a world where temptations surround us, which we have no native power of our own to resist; and we are exposed to enemies, which we have no native power of our own to subdue. Graciously give us faith, that lively, blessed grace; then shall we be able to withstand temptation, however violent, and to triumph over our enemies, however malignant, or however powerful. May we have reason on good grounds to say, We are born of God, and therefore have overcome the world, and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

O Lord, may our children be born of God, and may they receive the faith of children; then they shall be able successfully to encounter the world, and to trample its temptations under their feet.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the day and of the week, and for the long catalogue of mercies we have received during our whole life. As there are past mercies to excite our thankfulness, may we remember there are past sins to excite our penitence and grief. Watch over us this night, cover us with the powerful wings of thy protection, and awake us on the morning of thy Sabbath-day, refreshed with sleep, and prepared by thy spirit for the solemn and the joyful engagements of thy house.

Hear, and answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

HOLY RESOLUTIONS.

British. Sylvanus. Pollett.

C. N.

- 1 O THAT thy statutes every hour
Might dwell upon my mind!
Thence I derive a quickening power,
And daily peace I find.
- 2 To meditate thy precepts, Lord,
Shall be my sweet employ;
My soul shall ne'er forget thy word,
Thy word is all my joy.
- 3 How would I run in thy commands,
If thou my heart discharge
From sin and Satan's hateful chains,
And set my feet at large.
- 4 My lips with courage shall declare
Thy statutes and thy name;
I'll speak thy word, though kings should hear,
Nor yield to sinful shame.

WATTS, Ps. 119, p. XV.

PSALM CXIX.

SAMECH, PART XV.

Mercy of the Wicked and Confidence of the Just.

I HATE vain thoughts: but thy law do I love.
114 Thou art my hiding place and my shield: I hope in thy word.

115 Depart from me, ye evildoers: for I will keep the commandments of my God.

116 Uphold me according unto thy word, that I may live: and let me not be ashamed of my hope.

117 Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe: and I will have respect unto thy statutes continually.

118 Thou hast trodden down all them that err from thy statutes: for their deceit is falsehood.

119 Thou puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross: therefore I love thy testimonies.

120 My flesh trembleth for fear of thee; and I am afraid of thy judgments.

AIN, PART XVI.

Salvation more valuable than Gold.

I HAVE done judgment and justice: leave me not to mine oppressors.

122 Be surety for thy servant for good: let not the proud oppress me.

123 Mine eyes fail for thy salvation, and for the word of thy righteousness.

124 Deal with thy servant according unto thy mercy, and teach me thy statutes.

125 I am thy servant; give me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies.

126 It is time for thee, LORD, to work: for they have made void thy law.

127 Therefore I love thy commandments above gold; yea, above fine gold.

128 Therefore I esteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right; and I hate every false way.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS XV. AND XVI.—The existence of true grace conspicuously appears in keeping the heart with all diligence, and maintaining a constant watchfulness against vain thoughts. O that I were panting for holiness of soul, as the hart panteth after the water-brooks! The unregenerate are in a state of constant danger; they are under the dominion of their own hearts' lusts, and they are exposed to the wrath of offended justice. They who love God, and rely on the atonement of Jesus as the only ground of their hopes of pardon and acceptance, shall find the perfections of God to be the shield of their defence, and the hiding-place of their safety. Believers cannot endure the society of the wicked in time, and they shall be for ever delivered from their company in eternity. If we have no relish for the company of the redeemed on earth, we have no evidence that we shall be admitted to enjoy their fellowship in heaven. Awful state—to be confined in hell through eternity with the spirits of ungodly men! Blessed state—to enjoy for ever the society of angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect! but, above all, the fellowship of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost! As a family we would comfort ourselves together with these words: "We shall be ever with the Lord."

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art infinitely glorious in thyself, and infinitely gracious in thy Son. We thank thee for preserving us to see another Sabbath, and thus permitting us to enter on its sacred and its pleasant employments. We thank and praise thee for this blessed day of spiritual rest, when our minds may be relieved from earthly cares, and our souls comforted with the sweet enjoyment of spiritual tranquillity and peace.

We bless the Lord, whose love assigns so sweet a rest to wearied minds, in providing an antepast of heaven, and in giving this day the food of seven.

We would humbly and fervently seek the smiles and blessing of the God of ordinances to attend us this day, and also to animate and comfort all our dear relatives, and the congregation with which we hold sacred and heavenly counsel in thy earthly courts below. O preserve our minds all this day in an holy, spiritual frame! We acknowledge that our thoughts are soon and easily drawn aside, when we would wish them to be engaged with things heavenly and spiritual. Lord, give us thy good spirit, that our minds may be fixed with serious attention on Divine things; that we may hear the Gospel as the voice of God himself from the throne of mercy; that we may maintain a lively sense of the perfections of God glorified in Christ, and glorified in the salvation of men; and that our hearts may burn with a fervent and superlative admiration of Christ, as the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world.

Give to thine ambassadors all that grace they need to qualify them for the duties of an office which is the most solemn, important, and difficult which can be filled on earth. We praise thee that thy grace is more than sufficient to qualify thy faithful servants for encountering all the difficulties, and surmounting all the obstacles, which may be placed in their way by the enemy of souls.

Lord, sanctify the Word now read. Teach us to hate every description of vain thoughts, and give us love to thy law in its spirituality, holiness, and extent.

Preserve our children from making their own will and corrupt passions the rule of their conduct. Give them wisdom to receive thy Gospel as the foundation of their faith, and thy law as the unerring rule of their actions.

Be to us, O Lord, our hiding-place and our shield. Hide us from the malevolence of our enemies, and from the storms of Divine wrath; and shield us from the fiery darts of the wicked One. May multitudes under a preached Gospel see their danger, and be persuaded without delay to flee to Jesus, the only hiding-place from the wind, and the only covert from the tempest. O Jesus, suffer us not to flee to our own supposed merit, or good works, for refuge and defence. Now we come to thee, O Jesus: extend thy merciful hand, and save us. Lord, hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PRAYER FOR QUICKENING GRACE.

Colchester. Marylebone. Irish.

C. M.

- 1 MY soul lies cleaving to the dust;
Lord, give me life divino!
From vain desires and every lust
Turn off these eyes of mine.
- 2 I need the influence of thy grace
To speed me in thy way,
Lest I should loiter in my race,
Or turn my feet astray.
- 3 When sore afflictions press me down,
I need thy quickening powers,
Thy word that I have rested on Shall help my heaviest hours.
- 4 Are not thy mercies sovereign still?
And thou a faithful God?
Wilt thou not grant me warmer zeal
To run the heavenly road?

WATTS, Ps. 119, p. XVI.

PSALM CXIX.

PF, PART XVII.

Eurvat Prayers.

THEY testimonies are wonderful: therefore doth my soul keep them.

130 The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple.

131 I opened my mouth, and panted: for I longed for thy commandments.

132 Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, as thou usest to do unto those that love thy name.

133 Order my steps in thy word: and let not any iniquity have dominion over me.

134 Deliver me from the oppression of man: so will I keep thy precepts.

135 Make thy face to shine upon thy servant; and teach me thy statutes.

136 Rivers of waters run down mine eyes, because they keep not thy law.

TZADDI, PART XVIII.

Comfort in God's Word.

RIGHTEOUS art thou, O LORD, and upright are thy judgments.

138 Thy testimonies that thou hast commanded are righteous and very faithful.

139 My zeal hath consumed me, because mine enemies have forgotten thy words.

140 Thy word is very pure: therefore thy servant loveth it.

141 I am small and despised: yet do not I forget thy precepts.

142 Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth.

143 Trouble and anguish have taken hold on me: yet thy commandments are my delights.

144 The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting: give me understanding, and I shall live.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS XVII. AND XVIII.—Great wonders are seen in the book of creation; but far greater wonders are seen in the book of revelation. To see the wonders of creation, I must have the eye of intellectual observation; but to see and enjoy the wonders of revelation, I must have the eye of faith. Glorious is the light of the sun; but far more blessed the light of Divine truth, when it is communicated by the Holy Spirit. By the first I can behold the works of God; but by the second I can behold God as he is glorified in Christ. Blessed are they who pant after God.

When they open the mouth of prayer and faith, God fills it abundantly with choice blessings from the fulness that is in Christ. They who do not open their mouths on earth in the exercise of believing prayer, shall never open their lips in the exercise of joyful praise in heaven. Believers value the favour and smiles of a God in Christ above the richest treasures that can be bestowed by earthly princes. O what a solace does the mercy of God afford to believers in the dark night of affliction, and when fighting the good fight of faith! The sources of earthly comfort are soon exhausted, but the fountain of spiritual consolation is the love of God, which is boundless as infinitude, and endless as eternity.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, with thankfulness, at the close of thy hallowed day, and at the conclusion of the sacred and public engagements of thy house, to approach thy throne, and present our evening sacrifice of adoration, gratitude, and praise. We have been permitted to hear thy Word, and we have been privileged to read thine inspired volume; and, from a conviction of the superlative excellence of the Gospel and of Divine revelation, we would say, in the language of the Psalmist, Thy testimonies are wonderful; therefore doth our soul keep them. We thank thee for all the wonderful things we have seen in thy Word. Praise to the God of grace, that we have there read of a wonderful Saviour, and of a wonderful salvation. Praise to thy name, that we have there read of wonderful mercy and wonderful love. O how wonderful are thy testimonies! Praise to thy name, that we have there read of a wonderful city, the city of Zion; and of a wonderful heaven, where the general assembly and church of the first-born shall for ever dwell in the enjoyment of perfect bliss. We praise thy name, that there we have heard of Jesus, the wonderful way by which we may be led in safety and triumph into the palace of the great King above. O how wonderful are thy testimonies!

We thank God for the unspeakable benefit derived from a preached Gospel, when applied by Divine power to the souls of men. The entrance of thy words giveth light: O may thy Word, to which thousands have listened this day, enter into the understanding, the conscience, and the heart of those who have heard it, and make it the instrument of filling their souls with that light of grace which will be followed by the light of a heavenly day beyond the grave.

Bless our efforts to introduce thy Word into the memories of our children; O make it the mean of conveying the light of salvation to their hearts.

We supplicate, O Lord, increasing manifestations of thy mercy. Multitudes of mercies we have received from thy hand. For all thy temporal mercies we desire to be unfeignedly thankful. But, heavenly Father, we would not be satisfied with temporal mercies—we seek saving mercies, the blessings of the covenant of grace, the sure mercies of David. Look upon us as a family, and be merciful unto us, as thou usest to do unto those that love thy name. Give us Divine direction in every part of our journey to the eternal world; let our steps be ordered in thy Word; and O let no iniquity have dominion over us. Though we deserve thy frowns, yet we pray that, through the merit of our Divine Redeemer, thou wouldst bless us with thy smiles, and cause thy face to shine upon us.

Comfort the afflicted and the aged who have been unable to attend thy public courts, and may they rejoice in their interest in the righteousness of Christ, which is an everlasting righteousness.

Watch over us this night, and bear the breathings of our soul, for Jesus' sake, our only Redeemer. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST'S TRIUMPH OVER HIS ENEMIES.

Ebenezer New. Worship. Allon. America.

C. M.

- 1 WHAT mighty man, or mighty God,
Comes travelling in state,
Along the Idumean road,
Away from Bozrah's gate?
- 2 The glory of his robes proclaim
'Tis some victorious king:
" 'Tis I, the just, the Almighty One,
That your salvation bring."
- 3 "Why, mighty Lord," thy saints inquire,
"Why thine apparel red?
And all thy vesture stained like those Who in the wine-press tread?"
- 4 "I by myself have trod the press,
And crushed my foes alone;
My wrath hath struck the rebels dead,
My fury stamped them down."

WATTS, 28, B. I.

ISAIAH LXIII.

Christ's glorious Victories.

WHO is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save.

2 Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winefat?

3 I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me: for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment.

4 For the day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come.

5 And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me; and my fury, it upheld me.

6 And I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunk in my fury, and I will bring down their strength to the earth.

7 I will mention the lovingkindness of the Lord, and the praises of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses.

8 For he said, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: so he was their Saviour.

9 In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love and in his pity he redeemed them; and he bare them, and carried them all the days of old.

10 But they rebelled, and vexed his holy Spirit: therefore he was turned to be their enemy, and he fought against them.

11 Then he remembered the days of old, Moses, and his people, saying, Where is he that brought them up out of the sea with the shepherd of his flock? where is he that put his holy Spirit within him?

12 That led them by the right hand of Moses with his glorious arm, dividing the water before them, to make himself an everlasting name?

13 That led them through the deep, as an horse in the wilderness, that they should not stumble?

14 As a beast goeth down into the valley, the Spirit of the Lord caused him to rest: so didst thou lead thy people, to make thyself a glorious name.

15 Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of thy holiness and of thy glory: where is thy zeal and thy strength, the sounding of thy howels and of thy mercies toward me? are they restrained?

16 Doubtless thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not: thou, O Lord, art our Father, our Redeemer; thy name is from everlasting.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LXIII.—Jesus is infinitely glorious as the Captain of salvation, clothed with strength, righteousness, and victory. My soul! behold, admire, and adore the conquering Saviour. O what an object of wonder and delight is Jesus in the estimation of his Church, when they see him returning victorious from the field of conflict, and having his armour stained with the blood of his furious and malicious foes. This was work which none but Christ could have accomplished; and how completely has he confounded and subdued these powerful enemies, sin, Satan, death, and hell! having trampled upon their neck, and laid them prostrate in the dust. Delightful truth—Christ's heart is filled with love to his redeemed and believing people! Solemn truth—it is filled with vengeance against his rebellious and impenitent foes! May we hear and obey the warning voice: "Kiss ye the Son, lest he be angry." What reason then have Christ's enemies to tremble, and his friends to rejoice, love, and adore!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art he who seest the deepest recesses in the heart of man, and with the utmost ease thou dost penetrate through the thickest veil of hypocrisy. With humility and reverence we would fall down before thee, supplicating thy Holy Spirit, that we may be enabled to present the sacrifices of sincerity, love, and faith, in Jesus' name.

We thank thee for graciously preserving the lives and health and reason of thine unworthy petitioners through the past night, and during our past lives. What reason have we to praise thee, that we are now before thy mercy-seat, where we may readily obtain from thy hand, in answer to the prayer of faith, all the rich jewels of thy grace. We humbly seek wisdom from thee, O God, to guide us this day, and every day, until the glories of eternity shine on our souls, when we shall no longer be exposed to the perplexities of the desert, and when we shall be for ever irradiated by the glorious beams of unclouded intelligence. O preserve us from the temptations that may beset us this day. Teach us to reflect with astonishment on the victories Jesus gained over all the enemies of the Church. Following his example, and leaning on his almighty arm, O make us conquerors, and more than conquerors, through him that loved us.

Bless to us, O Lord, the animating account we have read of our Redeemer's success in accomplishing the salvation of the Church, and in trampling all his and our enemies under his feet. Truly, O Jesus, thou art glorious in thine apparel, glorious in the perfections of thy Divinity, and glorious in the excellences which adorn thy mediatorial character. Great is thy power. In obtaining victories over the enemies of thy kingdom, over sin, Satan, death, and hell, thou didst travel in the greatness of thy strength. O may the remembrance of thy love fill us with an ardent love to thee. When we think that thou didst tread the wine-press of thy Father's wrath alone, may we be led to exclaim, Behold how he loved us!

Lord Jesus, rescue our dear children from the power of sin, and from the captivity of Satan. O burst the bonds of their captivity asunder, and may they be for ever free from the yoke of such enemies. Give our servants spiritual liberty, and set them free from Satan's power.

Graciously bless us as a family, and may we have reason with the Church of old to sing, We will mention the loving-kindness of the Lord, and the praises of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath bestowed upon us, and the great goodness toward our house, which thou hast bestowed according to the multitude of all thy loving-kindnesses.

Graciously hear our humble petition, and forgive our sins, for our Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

Ebenzer. Hoxton College. Hotham.

P. M.

- 1 JESUS! soft harmonious name,
Every faithful heart's desire!
See thy followers, Holy Lamb!
All at once to thee aspire :
- 2 Drawn by thy uniting grace,
After thee we swiftly run :
While we humbly seek thy face :
Come and perfect us in one !
- 3 Mollify our harsher will :
Each to each our tempers suit.
By thy modulating skill,
Heart to heart, as lute to lute.
- 4 Sweetly on our spirits move ;
Gently touch the trembling strings :
Make the harmony of love
Music for the King of kings !

C. WESLEY.

2 JOHN.

Walking in the Truth.

THE elder unto the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth ; and not I only, but also all they that have known the truth ;

2 For the truth's sake, which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever.

3 Grace be with you, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I rejoiced greatly that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father.

5 And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another.

6 And this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, That, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

7 For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist.

8 Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed :

11 For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds.

12 Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink : but I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face, that our joy may be full.

13 The children of thy elect sister greet thee. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON 2 JOHN.—If we have faith in Christ as our Surety, if we consider him the chiefest among ten thousand, and if we are bringing forth the fruits of righteousness in our lives, we are warranted to believe that our names are written in the Lamb's Book of life. We have the witness of the Spirit that we are the children of God. Let us rejoice that we can answer the question, "What is truth?" which question Pilate addressed to Jesus, when he appeared before his unjust tribunal. We know that Jesus is the "True God and everlasting life." We know that the Scriptures are the true testimony of God, inspired by the Holy Spirit of truth. We know that the doctrines of the Gospel of Christ are the only true revelation of the scheme of mercy, of the immortality of the soul, and of the glories of the life to come. Let us rejoice in the Divine equality of the Father and the Son, and in that rich river of supplies of grace, which flows equally from the Father and the Son. Have we seen our own emptiness, and the necessity of supplies from Christ? Have we applied, and are we daily applying for supplies of his fulness? Then we can say with thankfulness and love, "Out of his fulness have we all received, and grace for grace." Then our hearts are enlarged, and we shall fervently pray that others may be enriched from the same fulness of Divine grace.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art a God of boundless mercy and inconceivable love. Praise to our God, that we are not deterred by the flaming sword of thy justice from approaching thy throne, but that we are allured by the sweet invitations of thy love. O may the remembrance of thy love, and the contemplation of thy goodness, fill our minds with joy unspeakable. What reason have we to celebrate the love and mercy of our God and Father in Christ in songs of sweetest praise! Sweet is the memory of thy love, our God, our heavenly King; let age to age proclaim, in sounds of glory, thy righteousness and praise.

We supplicate the Holy Spirit graciously to bless the portion of the sacred volume we have now read. Give us thy grace, that we may see our names written in the Lamb's Book of life, and know that we were chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world. We seek that faith by which we shall receive Jesus in all his fulness; then shall we see that we are in reality elect, according to the will of God, and interested in that love which is ancient as eternity, and durable as the throne of God. Give us love to the brethren, one of the satisfying marks of a renewed nature. Teach us to love all those who have known the truth; and may this Christian esteem be in no way affected by the temporal circumstances of individuals. May we cherish the same spiritual esteem for the saint in poverty and rags, as we do for those whom providence has placed in situations of influence and wealth. We would now pray for all the saints, and that in the language of inspiration: Grace be with all thy people of every denomination and language, and mercy and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father in truth and love.

We pray for the young and rising race, that they may be taught and led by thy good spirit to walk in the truth.

Give us, as parents, the unspeakable joy of seeing our children loving the truth, and walking in the truth. Suffer them not to travel in the deluded path where destroyers go, and which leads to the mansions of everlasting despair. O Lord, preserve them.

We pray, gracious Father, for the increase of Christian love. We profess a religion of love, a religion which most wonderfully makes known the boundless love of God to men; and yet, alas, how little love is really manifested by thy professing people! May we be examples of the exercise of Christian love, so that all around us, beholding our conversation, may see that we are walking in love. Deliver us from all descriptions of antichrist; and may we see that there is no antichrist more opposed to Jesus than the want of Christian love. Teach us carefully to examine ourselves, and to take heed to ourselves, that we come not short of the joys of heaven. Preserve us from the corrupt society of those who abide not in the doctrine of Christ.

Watch over us this night, and accept our thanks for the blessings of the day. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

ENDING THE HEAVENS AND COMING DOWN.

Serenity. Zebulun. Bedford.

C. M.

- 1 O THAT thou wouldst the heavens rent,
In majesty come down;
Stretch out thine arm omnipotent
And seize me for thy own.
- 2 Descend, and let thy lightning burn
The stubble of thy foe;
My sins o'erturn, o'erturn, o'erturn,
And make the mountains flow.
- 3 Thou my impetuous spirit guide,
And curb my headstrong will;
Thou only canst drive back the tide,
And bid the sun stand still.

WESLEY, 138, p. J.

ISAIAH LXIV.

Churches' prayers.

OH that thou wouldst rend the heavens, that thou wouldst come down, that the mountains might flow down at thy presence,

2 As when the melting fire burneth, the fire causeth the waters to boil, to make thy name known to thine adversaries, that the nations may tremble at thy presence!

3 When thou didst terrible things which we looked not for, thou camest down, the mountains flowed down at thy presence.

4 For since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him.

5 Thou meetest him that rejoiceth and worketh righteousness, those that remember thee in thy ways: behold, thou art wroth; for we have sinned: in those is continuance, and we shall be saved.

6 But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; and we all do fade as a leaf; and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away.

7 And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that stirreth up himself to take hold of thee: for thou hast hid thy face from us, and hast consumed us, because of our iniquities.

8 But now, O LORD, thou art our Father; we are the clay, and thou our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand.

9 Be not wroth very sore, O LORD, neither remember iniquity for ever: behold, see, we beseech thee, we are all thy people.

10 Thy holy cities are a wilderness, Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation

ISAIAH LXV.

Gentiles called.

I AM sought of them that asked not for me; I am found of them that sought me not: I said, Behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name.

2 I have spread out my hands all the day unto a rebellious people, which walketh in a way that was not good, after their own thoughts;

3 A people that provoketh me to anger continually to my face; that sacrificeth in gardens, and burneth incense upon altars of brick;

4 Which remain among the graves, and lodge in the monuments, which eat swine's flesh, and broth of abominable things is in their vessels;

5 Which say, Stand by thyself, come not near to me; for I am holier than thou. These are a smoke in my nose, a fire that burneth all the day.

6 Behold, it is written before me: I will not keep silence, but will recompense, even recompense into their bosom,

7 Your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, saith the LORD, which have burned incense upon the mountains, and blasphemed me upon the hills: therefore will I measure their former work into their bosom.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LXIV., LXV.—We should ardently long and earnestly pray for the copious and constant descent of the Holy Spirit upon us as individuals, families, and churches. When his gracious and refreshing influences descend, holy affections will flow from our hearts like streams from the fountains. Then hearts of enmity, hardened as the adamant, will melt into love. O what astonishment will fill the nations of the earth when the Gospel shall be universally proclaimed, and its influence universally felt! Peculiarly, abundantly, and permanently blessed are they who love Christ, and who patiently and perseveringly wait as humble suppliants at his throne. There are blessings in reserve for them in heaven more glorious than eye has ever seen, or ear has ever heard, or heart has ever conceived. Nothing was more unlikely, nothing more apparently hopeless, than the introduction of the Gentiles into the Gospel Church; and yet they are introduced into the Church of Christ. Let praying parents never despair of their graceless offspring.

PRAYER

MERCIFUL and almighty Father, what reason have we, in Jesus' name, to adore and magnify thy greatness, when we think of the inconceivable glory of thine attributes, and of the greatness of thy condescension, in allowing us to address thee as our Father, and to enjoy fellowship with thyself in the ordinances of thine appointment.

We acknowledge that our existence was not only derived from thee, but also that our lives and comforts and hopes are constantly dependent upon thee. We thank thee for protecting us during the past night, and that, when we were unable to defend ourselves from the slightest evil, thou wast our defence. This day communicate to us thy grace, that we may glorify thee in our lives as well as by our lips, in the sacred services of domestic worship. May our lives testify that our profession of the Gospel is no vain thing, but that it is accompanied by a Divine, holy, and active principle, which purifies the heart and adorns the life.

We now pray for the gracious descent of the Spirit on us as a family, on the congregation of which we form a part, and on all the churches. Oh that thou wouldst rend the heavens, that thou wouldst come down, that the mountains might flow down at thy presence! O make thy saving name more extensively known in our land, and make it known as a name of majesty, power, and grace, even to thine adversaries; then the nations shall tremble at thy presence.

Glory to thy name, O God, for the rich blessings of mercy thou hast provided for thy children. O enable us with amazement to think of the munificent inheritance thou hast laid up for thy people in those regions of safety and love into which no enemy shall ever enter. Truly, since the beginning of the world, men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what thou hast prepared for those that wait for thee.

Lord, teach our dear children to claim thee as their Father, and thy Son as their Saviour. Enable them in faith to say, But now, O Lord, thou art our Father, and we all are the work of thy hand.

Lord, we confess that we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags: and we all do fade as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. Lord, pardon us through a Saviour's blood. O suffer us not to die under the load of unpardoned guilt. Lord, forgive us, thine humble, unworthy, guilty suppliants.

Let our morning sacrifice meet with thine acceptance, and be followed with thy blessing.

All we ask is for the sake of Jesus, thy Son and our Saviour. Amen

GOD'S GREAT COMPASSION.

Sharon. Westminster. Tooting. Stockport. S. M.

- 1 MY soul, repeat his praise,
Whose mercies are so great;
Whose anger is so slow to rise,
So ready to abate.
- 2 God will not always chide;
And when his strokes are felt,
His strokes are fewer than our crimes,
And lighter than our guilt.
- 3 High as the heavens are raised
Above the ground we tread,
So far the riches of his grace
Our highest thoughts exceed.
- 4 His power subdues our sins,
And his forgiving love,
Far as the east is from the west,
Doth all our guilt remove.
- 5 The pity of the Lord
To those that fear his name,
Is such as tender parents feel;
He knows our feeble frame.

Watts, Ps. 103, p. 11.

3 JOHN.

Walking in the Truth.

THE elder unto the well-beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth.

2 Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth.

3 For I rejoiced greatly, when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkest in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth.

5 Beloved, thou doest faithfully whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers;

6 Which have borne witness of thy charity before the church: whom if thou bring forward on their journey after a godly sort, thou shalt do well:

7 Because that for his name's sake they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to receive such, that we might be fellow-helpers to the truth.

9 I wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating against us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself: yea, and we also bear record; and ye know that our record is true.

13 I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 But I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name.

REFLECTIONS UPON 3 JOHN.—The friendship of the world is like the morning cloud and early dew, which appear for a little time and when they are gone; but as to the friendship of the children of God, it is lasting as eternity. Believers are bound by ties of sacred relationship and of Divine love, which never can be burst asunder. If our hearts are right with God, we prefer the health of the soul before the health of the body, and the prosperity of the graces before earthly treasures, which, in a moment, may take to themselves wings, and flee away never to return. May our souls, our families, and our churches resemble well-watered gardens, and fields which God hath blessed. Of what importance it is to seek and pray for the prosperity of Zion! How encouraging the declaration, "They shall prosper who love Zion!" Let trouble of the Church of Christ tremble: without a converting change, they shall live and die under the Divine displeasure.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the chief good. Mercifully look upon us in the face of Jesus. The holiness of the purest of creatures is pollution compared with thy purity; the wisdom of the wisest of intelligences is folly compared with thy wisdom; and the benevolence of the most merciful of beings is cold indifference compared with thy compassion. Thou art kind to all, but particularly gracious art thou to those who wait at thy throne, and who seek thy salvation. Glory to thy name for the encouragement thou givest us to put our trust under the shadow of thy wings. Thou art the bountiful giver of all the good which our souls need or our hearts desire; and it is thou alone, O Lord, who dost kindly withhold from us all that evil which our multiplied sins deserve.

We thank thee that thou hast continued with us daily mercies, and that nothing has failed us in the temporal and spiritual blessings we were enabled in faith to supplicate at the commencement of the day. To thy care and mercy we commend ourselves, and all who are near and dear to us, this night. Preserve us from all those dangers to which both our souls and bodies are exposed by the number and aggravation of our sins. May our repose and sleep be safe and refreshing; and, on the morning of another day, may we rise up invigorated, and prepared for serving thee, our God, with activity and zeal.

We seek the blessing of our God on the spiritual food which has now been presented before us by the oracles of Divine truth. O that each of us were enabled from the heart to say, with thy servant of old, Thy word was found of me, and I did eat it! We pray for more love to Christ, and for more love to all his saints. O may we love Jesus with a superlative regard; then shall we love all them who bear a resemblance to his lovely image. Lord, grant that in all lawful, worldly undertakings we may prosper; but more especially may we prosper in our souls. Even if all our temporal prospects should wither, never, never may we meet with soul-adversity. If our worldly sky should be gloomy, may our spiritual sky be illuminated by the animating beams of thy heavenly smiles.

Lord, have mercy on our children, and give them health of soul. May we taste the greatest joy which parents can feel on this side heaven—may we see our children walking in the truth.

Have mercy on all parents, and give them grace to train up their children in thy nurture and admonition; then will they take encouragement to hope that they shall see their children walking in the truth, and that they shall at last meet in heaven, where no separation can ever take place among the blessed inhabitants. Prepare all of us for joining the society of our dear departed friends who have fallen asleep in Jesus: may we see them face to face in heaven; above all, may we see thee, our God, face to face.

Graciously forgive, and hear, and answer, for the sake of Jesus, thy beloved Son and our Saviour. Amen.

SALVATION IN JESUS.

Bankfield. Sutton Colefield. Repose. Peckham. s. n.

- 1 THE Lord on high proclaims
His Godhead from his throne;
"Mercy and justice are the names
By which I will be known.
- 2 "Ye dying souls that sit
In darkness and distress,
Look from the borders of the pit
To my recovering grace."
- 3 Sinners shall hear the sound;
Their thankful tongues shall own.
"Our righteousness and strength is found In thee, the Lord, alone." WATTS, 95. B. I.

ISAIAH LXV.

A remnant saved.

THUS saith the Lord, As the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not; for a blessing is in it: so will I do for my servants' sakes, that I may not destroy them all.

9 And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains: and mine elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there.

10 And Sharon shall be a fold of flocks, and the valley of Achor a place for the herds to lie down in, for my people that have sought me.

11 But ye are they that forsake the Lord, that forget my holy mountain, that prepare a table for that troop, and that furnish the drink offering unto that number.

12 Therefore will I number you to the sword, and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter: because when I called, ye did not answer; when I spake, ye did not hear; but did evil before mine eyes, and did choose that wherein I delighted not.

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry: behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty: behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed:

14 Behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall howl for vexation of spirit.

15 And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen: for the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name:

16 That he who blasphemeth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the God of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth; because the former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hid from mine eyes.

17 For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind.

18 But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy.

19 And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people: and the voice of weeping shall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying.

20 There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; but the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed.

21 And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.

22 They shall not build, and another inherit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.

23 They shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble; for they are the seed of the blessed of the Lord, and their offspring with them.

24 And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LXV.—Great was the depravity of the Jewish nation, and great the degeneracy of the Jewish church, when the holy Isaiah delivered his wonderful predictions; still, some salt of grace remained; still, some gold of unfeigned piety was found among the accumulated dross; without which, Israel had been utterly destroyed. Delightful truth! Even among Abraham's race, God has never been without a remnant of faithful worshippers; and the time shall arrive, fixed by heaven's decree, when the long-separated, expatriated Jews shall be brought in with the fulness of the Gentiles, and shall form one glorious, united flock, under Jesus the great Shepherd of the sheep. Let us joyfully anticipate the arrival of the millennial blessedness and prosperity of the Church of Christ. What a change shall then take place, when, comparatively considered, there shall be new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness! We hail the blessed day.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we praise thee that it is our privilege again, on the morning of another day, to lift up our eyes to thee, the bearer of prayer, who dwellest in the heavens. We beseech thee to have respect both to us and our offerings, for the sake of him who offered up himself for our offences, and who rose again for our justification. While we meet with thee in prayer, O meet us with blessings; and may thy throne, before which we are now prostrate, prove to us a throne of grace.

Blessed Jesus, we would adore thee as a Saviour gracious and mighty. Thou art a Saviour for all nations—for Jews as well as Gentiles. We adore thee in thy sovereignty, manifested in the very limited number of Jews who have hitherto been made the subjects of thy grace. We praise thee that there has always been a remnant according to the election of grace; and that, as the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it, so hast thou done for thy servants' sake; thou hast not destroyed them all. O let that blessed, illustrious day soon arrive, when thou wilt bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of thy mountains.

We pray for all who are the secret or the avowed enemies of Christ and his people. Such as live without any attendance upon the means of grace, lead them by the hand of thy providence into thy sanctuary, that they may see their sin and danger. Such as only outwardly attend the means of grace, O break their obstinate heart in pieces, and convince them of their peril in sitting under the sound of mercy, and yet rejecting Christ, God's invaluable, God's greatest gift to man. Affect the minds of the unconverted with the calamities of impiety and sin; shew them that, while thy servants eat the food of eternal life, they are hungry, feeding on the husks of sin; that while thy children drink the refreshing waters of salvation, they shall be thirsty, without the consolations of religion; and that while thy servants rejoice, they shall be ashamed and confounded. O convince them that, if they die without Christ, there is a day assuredly approaching when thy servants will sing for joy of heart, while they shall cry for sorrow of heart, and howl for vexation of spirit.

O impress the minds of our children with the solemnity of the truth, that the wicked shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that forget God! Teach them to pray with the heart, Lord Jesus, save our souls.

We present our thanksgivings for the refreshing sleep of the past night, and for the opportunity of presenting our morning sacrifice. This day, order thou our steps in thy word, and let no wickedness have dominion over us. May the angel of thy presence save us, and may the God of angels be our shield, and our exceeding great reward. Hear and forgive, for the sake of Jesus, who is worthy of all blessing and praise. Amen.

PERSEVERING GRACE.

Psalm. Tigris. Isaiah. Falcon Street.

3 2.

- 1 TO God the only wise,
Our Saviour and our King,
Let all the saints below the skies
Their humble praises bring.
- 2 'Tis his Almighty love,
His counsel and his care,
Preserve us safe from sin and death,
And every hurtful snare.
- 3 He will present our souls
Unblemished and complete,
Before the glory of his face,
With joys Divinely great.

WATTS, 51, B. 1.

JUDE.

Wickedness of Men, and the Judgment-day.

JUDE, the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to them that are sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus Christ, and called:

- 2 Mercy unto you, and peace, and love, be multiplied.
- 3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.
- 4 For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ.
- 5 I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterwards destroyed them that believed not.
- 10 But these speak evil of those things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beasts, in those things they corrupt themselves.
- 11 Woe unto them! for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of Core.
- 12 These are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear: clouds they are without water, carried about of winds; trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots;
- 13 Raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever.
- 14 And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints,
- 15 To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.
- 16 These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts; and their mouth speaketh great swelling words, having men's persons in admiration because of advantage.
- 17 But, beloved, remember ye the words which were spoken before of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ;
- 18 How that they told you there should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts.
- 19 These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit.
- 20 But ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost,
- 21 Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.
- 22 And of some have compassion, making a difference:
- 23 And others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh.

24 Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy,

25 To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON JUDE.—Intimate is the relation subsisting betwixt brethren after the flesh; but this relationship must be dissolved at death. Intimate and sacred is the spiritual relation subsisting betwixt brethren in Christ, and that union shall remain permanent and undisturbed throughout the endless ages of eternity. Animating thought! while the adopted children of Christ's family on earth meet to part again, in heaven they meet to part no more; and where—O how glorious and how blessed!—they shall be ever with the Lord. Many earnestly desire to be presented unto earthly princes; may it be the most earnest desire of our souls to be presented at last before the presence of our God in the heaven of heavens, without spot, or wrinkle, or blemish; to unite with angels and the spirits of the just made perfect in praising God and the Lamb for ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER.

WE thank our God and Father in Christ, that we are permitted and enabled, after the business, the temptations, the trials, and the events of the day, to draw near to the gracious presence of a prayer-hearing God. Enable us, in the sacred and solemn service in which we are engaged, to glorify thy name, and to offer to our God acceptable services, through the all-prevailing merit of a Saviour's righteousness.

Exalted Redeemer, we adore thee as the only wise God our Saviour. Thou alone, by thy good spirit, art able to keep us from falling. O keep us from falling by the arm of thine almighty grace. Thou alone art able to present us faultless before the presence of the glory of God the Father. O present us at death faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy. When we think of thy glorious attributes and thy boundless love, what reason have we, in the adoring language of thine apostle, to sing, To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the stream of thy loving-kindness which has followed us this day, and which has followed us all the days of our lives. We seek thy Divine and gracious protection this night. O hide us in thy pavilion, and compass us about with songs of deliverance. Whether asleep or awake, may thine everlasting arms be underneath us, and may our thoughts dwell on thyself, and upon the wonders of redeeming grace. When time with us is no more, may we be admitted into the heavenly city, from which darkness is for ever excluded, and where the glory of God shines with unclouded splendour.

We pray for our relatives, our friends, and for those who worship with us publicly in the same sanctuary: may they be sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Christ Jesus, and called.

We lay down our children at mercy's feet. Mercy unto them, and peace and love, be multiplied. O that they may join the ranks of Jesus' army, and contend earnestly for the faith which was once delivered to the saints!

We adore thee in thy great sovereignty manifested in passing over fallen angels, in providing no Saviour for them, while thou didst provide a Redeemer for fallen men. As fallen angels are reserved in everlasting chains unto the judgment of the great day, convince Gospel-despisers and Christ-despisers that, if they die in their sins, they must endure the vengeance of eternal fire.

We humbly seek an answer to our prayers, and the forgiveness of our sins, for the sake of Jesus, our advocate and Saviour. Amen.

FORMS VAIN WITHOUT SINCERITY.
Bethel. Walsall New. Burton. Price's.

- 1 ALMIGHTY Maker, God!
How wondrous is thy name!
Thy glories how diffused abroad
Through the creation's frame!
- 2 Nature in every dress
Her humble homage pays,
And finds a thousand ways to express
Thine undissembled praise.
- 3 My soul would rise and sing
To her Creator too;
Fain would my tongue adore my King,
And pay the worship due.
- 4 Create my soul anew,
Else all my worship's vain;
This wretched heart will ne'er be true
Until 'tis formed again.

A. A.

WATTS.

ISAIAH LXVI.

The Sincere comforted.

THUS saith the LORD, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest?

2 For all those things hath mine hand made, and all those things have been, saith the LORD: but to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word.

10 Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her:

11 That ye may suck, and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations; that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory.

12 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream: then shall ye suck, ye shall be borne upon her sides, and be dandled upon her knees.

13 As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

14 And when ye see this, your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb: and the hand of the LORD shall be known toward his servants, and his indignation toward his enemies.

15 For, behold, the LORD will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire.

16 For by fire and by his sword will the LORD plead with all flesh: and the slain of the LORD shall be many.

17 They that sanctify themselves, and purify themselves in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, saith the LORD.

18 For I know their works and their thoughts: it shall come, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and see my glory.

19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send those that escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal, and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the Gentiles.

20 And they shall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the LORD out of all nations upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift beasts, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith the LORD, as the children of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel into the house of the LORD.

21 And I will also take of them for priests and for Levites, saith the LORD.

22 For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the LORD, so shall your seed and your name remain.

REFLECTIONS UPON ISAIAH LXVI.—The inconceivable majesty, and the incalculable immensity of God, should fill us with astonishment and delight, when we think of his mercy, condescension, and grace. Though the Creator, proprietor, and sovereign ruler of the vast universe, he has greater delight in the soul of the humble and contrite, than in the most gorgeous and magnificent temple ever reared by the hands of men. While the costliest sacrifices presented to God without solemnity and sincerity must be rejected, may it be our blessedness to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Exalted is the spiritual rank of the saints of God: they are a holy nation, a peculiar people, a royal priesthood; and form a part of that kingdom which shall endure for ever, and enjoy the countless blessings of Immanuel's reign.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the only object of religious worship, we lift up the eyes of our soul to the Divine Spirit, that we may be enabled to adore and praise thee. How inconceivable is thy majesty! The heaven is thy throne, and the earth is thy footstool. No earthly temple of the greatest magnificence can ever contain thee, or be worthy thy residence, for the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee. Thine uncreated and infinite essence pervades the universe, and fills unbounded space. We praise thy gracious condescension, that, notwithstanding thy glorious dignity, thou dost honour with thy presence the sanctuaries where congregations assemble, and the abodes where pious families reside.

Comfort thy poor and afflicted people with the delightful truth, that, though they are overlooked and despised of men, they enjoy the peculiar care and protection of the Creator of the universe, and of the King and Saviour of Zion. We bless thee for that gracious promise, which has never failed in its accomplishment, and which will continue to be the heritage of thy people till the close of ages: To this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word.

We supplicate from our God sincerity in our religious profession. O give us sincere repentance, sincere contrition, sincere love, and sincere zeal for thy glory. May we not only have zeal about religious things, but may our zeal be religious—of that character which is inspired by the Holy Ghost—divine in its origin and permanent in its duration. Let it not be said of us as a family, They draw near unto me with their lips, while their hearts are far from me.

Bless all the genuine members of thy Church with increase of grace, and bless thy Church with a great and rapid increase of unfeigned members. Hasten the glory of the kingdom of Jesus. May he soon see in the conversion of kingdoms the travail of his soul, and be satisfied. Give us great reason to rejoice with our New Testament Jerusalem, that we may be delighted with the abundance of her glory.

Make our children members of thy Church, and may they drink of the milk of her consolations. Convince them of the infinite superiority of the joys of religion above all carnal and corrupt delights.

Say to all our aged friends, and to all who are tried by affliction, As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you, and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

We bless our heavenly Father for the mercies of the night. Thou hast sustained us, and made us to dwell in safety. Dispose of us, and all that concerns us, this day, for thy glory. At all times, in all circumstances, and in all companies, may we be preserved from the greatest of all evils—the evil of sin. Sanctify to us the sacred ordinance which we have now been permitted to observe; hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for the Mediator's sake, thy Son and our Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST PRAISED.

Parwick. Oxenden Scotch Church. Hammond. C. M.

- 1 TO him that loved the souls of men,
And washed us in his blood,
To royal honours raised our hoid,
And made us priests to God,—
- 2 To him let every tongue be praise,
And every heart be love!
All grateful honours paid on earth,
And nobler songs above!
- 3 Behold, on flying clouds he comes!
His saints shall bless the day;
While they that pierced him sadly mourn
In anguish and dismay.

SCOTCH PARAPHRASE, &c.

REVELATION 1.

Christ's Glory.

JOHN to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne;

5 And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, and the first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood,

6 And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

7 Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen.

8 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty.

9 I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

10 I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, 11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia; unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks;

13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the breasts with a golden girdle.

14 His head and his hairs were white like wool, as white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire;

15 And his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp twoedged sword: and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength.

17 And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last:

18 I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death.

19 Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter;

20 The mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the seven churches.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. 1.—Boundless grace is laid up in Christ, the great mediatorial depository of all grace, for the supply of the Church militant on earth, and the Church triumphant in heaven. By daily prayer, may we draw living water from this overflowing fountain of grace. How glorious are the titles of Christ, and how numerous and endearing are the relations in which he stands to his people! May we see our interest in all his titles, in all his offices, and in all his relations. We are assuredly on the way which leads to the heavenly Canaan, if we can say with humility, Jesus is the object of our love; if we believe that we are the objects of his love, that the merit of his blood has washed away the red stains of our guilt, and that the influences of his spirit are washing away the pollution of our sins. Were the seven churches of Asia compared to golden candlesticks? This shows that the gold of grace is the rich inheritance of the saints, and that the light of salvation shines within them and around them. May it be our privilege to form a part of that Church, of which Jesus is the glory and defence.

PRAYER.

EXALTED Saviour, whom angels and the spirits of just men made perfect adore, we now prostrate ourselves as a family before thy throne, and acknowledge thee as a faithful witness, the first-begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. O give us faith in thee as our Saviour, that we may now join in that anthem of praise which is sung by the ransomed millions before thy throne above: Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests to God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

Affect our minds solemnly and suitably, O Jesus, with the prospect of thy future and glorious appearance in the clouds of heaven, to judge the world. Daily may we meditate on the judgment-day, and examine ourselves, whether we are interested in thy righteousness, without which none can be acquitted before thy great tribunal. O strike terror into the minds of hardened and unconverted sinners, by bringing their sins to their remembrance, in connection with the awful solemnities of a final judgment. Impress these Divine words on their hearts: Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him.

Lead the thoughts of our dear children to the solemnities of the last day. O bring forth the best robe, and put it on them, and grant that we and they may appear on the right hand of the Judge; then we shall be ever with the Lord.

Blessed Jesus, thou art Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, who art, who wast, and art to come, the Almighty. May it be our happiness to join the Church triumphant above, where we shall for ever behold the unveiled glories of thy Divine nature and of thy mediatorial majesty.

We thank thee for enabling thy faithful servants, in various periods of the history of thy Church, to endure tribulation with patience, as a testimony of their belief in the truth of the blessed Gospel, and as an evidence of their warm and superlative love to thyself, the object of their most exalted regard.

We thank thee for the Lord's day, and for all the good that has been accomplished on that holy day, and for all the benefit and comfort we have enjoyed in the observance of the various ordinances more particularly belonging to that blessed day. Ever may we be in the Spirit on thy day. As St. John obtained a glorious sight of Jesus on that day, when he appeared before him more glorious than the starry sky, O may we obtain on that day those views of Christ which will fill our hearts with wonder, love, and praise.

Accept our thanks for all the mercies of the day. Graciously be our comforter and defender this night; forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy, with the Father and Holy Spirit, to receive endless praises. Amen.

HUMILIATION.

Orange. St. Bride's. Cricklewood. Whitefield.

a. n.

- 1 THY judgments cry aloud,
O ever righteous God,
And in the sight of all our land,
Thou liftest up thy rod.
- 2 Aloud thy servants cry,
Commissioned from thy throne,
And like a trumpet raise their voice
To make thy judgments known.
- 3 But who that cry attends,
And makes his safety sure,
Rocked by the tempest they should flee,
They sleep the more secure.

DODDRIIDGE.

JEREMIAH I.

Calling of Jeremiah.

THE words of Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah, of the priests that were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin :

2 To whom the word of the LORD came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign.

3 It came also in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive in the fifth month.

4 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Before I formed thee in the belly I know thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations.

6 Then said I, Ah, Lord God! behold, I cannot speak: for I am a child.

7 But the LORD said unto me, Say not, I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak.

8 Be not afraid of their faces: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

9 Then the LORD put forth his hand, and touched my mouth. And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth.

10 See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.

11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, Jeremiah, what seest thou? And I said, I see a rod of an almond tree.

12 Then said the LORD unto me, Thou hast well seen: for I will hasten my word to perform it.

13 And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying, What seest thou? and I said, I see a seething pot; and the face thereof is toward the north.

14 Then the LORD said unto me, Out of the north an evil shall break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land.

15 For, lo, I will call all the families of the kingdoms of the north, saith the LORD; and they shall come, and they shall set every one his throne at the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all the walls thereof round about, and against all the cities of Judah.

16 And I will utter my judgments against them touching all their wickedness, who have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, and worshipped the works of their own hands.

17 Thou therefore gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I command thee: be not dismayed at their faces, lest I confound thee before them.

18 For, behold, I have made thee this day a fenced city, and an iron pillar, and brasen walls against the whole land, against the kings of Judah, against the princes thereof, against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land.

19 And they shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee, saith the LORD, to deliver thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON JER. I.—Jeremiah signifies "One raised up by God." The young and holy prophet in bearing this name was an eminent type of Jesus, the great Prophet of the Church, who was raised up by his Father to vindicate the glory of the Divine perfections, to magnify the law, to repair the ruins of the fall, and to obtain a great and glorious salvation for our ruined race. The word of the Lord came to Jeremiah; and the word of the Lord has come to us. In the reading of the Scriptures it has come to our eye; in the hearing of the Gospel it has come to our ear. Let us ask, with seriousness and concern, Has it come to our hearts by the quickening, saving power of the Holy Ghost? Has it come with demonstration and with power? How encouraging it was to Jeremiah to know that he was included from all eternity in God's purpose of unchanging love! May God enable us, by his Spirit, to say in the language of the Apostle with joy and thankfulness, "God hath chosen us in Christ from the foundation of the world that we should be holy." Amen.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in Zion thy Church, thou art praised by thy redeemed people, the objects of thy regard, whom thou hast delivered from the lowest hell, and whom thou wilt admit into the highest heaven. In the glorious realms of celestial blessedness, angels and archangels, and the spirits of just men made perfect, worship thee with feelings of the most refined and exalted delight, as the fountain of all blessedness, and as the possessor of all uncreated and boundless excellences. O how highly favoured are we, who are permitted, on the morning of this day, to engage in exercises similar to the employment of the blessed above! Enable us to present spiritual and acceptable services, through the prevailing merit of a Saviour's righteousness. We thank our God for the mercies of the night. We desire to trust that we have enjoyed thy special care. We praise thee that no evil has been permitted to come near our dwelling. May we enjoy the great blessing of the guidance of thy wisdom this day in all our engagements, whether of a secular or a spiritual nature.

Enable our dear children and household ever to wield the armour of salvation, and make them victorious over every enemy, and triumphant over every temptation.

We thank thee, O Lord, that thou hast revealed thy will to the children of men, and that the Divine and inspired Word was miraculously communicated to the minds of ancient prophets, who have handed down to us, even in these last days of the world, the Divine revelations with which they were entrusted. We adore thee in thy sovereign choice of those men whom thou didst raise up and qualify for being thine ambassadors to kings and nations. Glory to the Most High, that, as thou didst decree Jeremiah before he was formed, and ordain him to be a prophet to the nations, so thou didst fix from all eternity on Jesus, the Son of thy love, to be the prophet, the priest, and the king of thy Church. We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou hast come, and completed the unparalleled work of the redemption of men.

May what we have now read of the wickedness of ancient Israel remind us of our own sins, and of the sins of our native land. Lord, give our land the prosperity of increasing piety. May a double portion of thy spirit rest on all thy ministers. O touch their hearts with thy gracious influence, put thine own words into their mouths, and let them not be afraid of men, who shall die. Let them not be afraid of their faces, seeing thou hast promised to be with them, and deliver them.

Bless to us this sacred ordinance of domestic worship, hear the breathings of our soul, forgive our sins; and all we ask is for the sake of our exalted Saviour. Amen.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO FIGHT OUR SPIRITUAL ENEMIES.

Cranbrook. Stepney. Essex. Falcon Street.

- 1 HARK! how the watchmen cry!
Attend the trumpet's sound;
Stand to your arms! the foe is nigh!
The powers of hell surround!
- 2 Who bow to Christ's command,
Your arms and hearts prepare;
The day of battle is at hand!
Go forth to glorious war!
- 3 Go up with Christ your head,
Your Captain's footsteps see;
Follow your Captain, and be led
To certain victory.

C. WESLEY.

REVELATION II.

Letters to the Churches of Ephesus and Pergamos.

UNTO the angel of the church of Ephesus write; These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks;

2 I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil: and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars:

3 And hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name's sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted.

4 Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

7 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

8 And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna write; These things saith the first and the last, which was dead, and is alive;

9 I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer; behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: he thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

12 And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write; These things saith he which hath the sharp sword with two edges;

13 I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balac to cast a stumblingblock before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication.

15 So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which thing I hate.

16 Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. II.—Ministers are angels or messengers to whom the great King and Head of the Church has committed the great message of salvation, and of terms of peace and reconciliation to our fallen, rebellious, ruined race. A more sacred and important message never could be committed to the care of holy and faithful angels, worshipping before the heavenly throne, and waiting the command of their Divine Lord. O with what fidelity, earnestness, and affection ministers should deliver this message of matchless love and boundless grace! Has the Gospel-message come home to our hearts with saving power? If this is the case, our lives will exemplify the fruits of righteousness. The society of the holy will be to us a source of the sweetest enjoyment; and the fellowship and practice of the unrighteous the object of our deepest aversion. Have we love to Jesus? Let us be careful that the Divine plant do not wither or decay; let us be careful that the Divine fire burn with increasing ardour and shine with increasing brightness.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, before whose omniscient eyes all hearts are naked and open, from whom no secret can be concealed, mercifully cleanse our hearts at this time, that we may be enabled in the name of Jesus to approach thy presence, and present our prayers under the influence of holy affections and holy fear.

We desire to feel gratefully sensible of thy kindness during the past day, and we supplicate the forgiveness of the offences with which we are chargeable. May we, notwithstanding all our unworthiness, experience this night a continuance of thy gracious kindness and protection. Bless us and keep us, that no evil may befall us, nor any plague come near our dwelling.

Bless, Holy Spirit, the searching and trying truths we have now read. May they teach us to look within, and see whether we possess genuine piety; and, if we possess it, to inquire whether it is flourishing and prosperous. Holy Saviour, we adore thee as the King of Zion, who holdest the stars in thy right hand, and who walkest in thy grace and power, in the midst of the golden candlesticks, even the churches of thy people. Walk, we beseech thee, in the midst of us as a family, and in the midst of us as a congregation, and in the midst of us as a nation; and may all our hearts be captivated with thy loveliness and thy love. As an evidence that we are thy regenerated children, may our hearts be filled with an hatred of sin, and a deep-rooted aversion to the manners and society of them that are evil. Lord, preserve us from spiritual declension. If we have ever known the saving power of religion, may it never be said of us, what was said of the church of Ephesus, Ye have left your first love. Grant, O Lord, that our love to Jesus may increase and not diminish. We supplicate grace to encounter and conquer all our spiritual enemies. O make us conquerors over the devil, the world, and the flesh.

Make our beloved children good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Enable them to obtain victories over their corruptions, before their lusts acquire the vigour of deep-rooted and long confirmed habits.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the blessed promise thou hast given to the overcomer. May we be admitted at death to the heavenly paradise, to partake of the fruits of the tree of life, even the blessings of a Saviour's purchase. Teach us to hold fast thy name; and, amid those who deny the faith, may we contend for the faith once delivered unto the saints. In the heavenly world may we partake of the hidden manna with all the saints, and unite with them in songs of joyful praise.

Lord, hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thine unworthy petitioners, for Jesus' sake, our most blessed Saviour. Amen.

DAILY DEVOTIONS.

- Hobbs. Claremont. Tooting. Aynhoe.* s. m.
- 1 LET sinners take their course,
And choose the road to death:
But in the worship of my God
I'll spend my daily breath.
  - 2 My thoughts address his throne
When morning brings the light;
I seek his blessing every noon,
And pay my vows at night.
  - 3 Thou wilt regard my cries,
O my eternal God!
While sinners perish in surprisè
Beneath thine angry rod.
- WATTS, Ps. 55.

JEREMIAH II.

Israel's Backsliding.

MOREOVER the word of the LORD came to me, saying,
2 Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying, 'Thus saith the LORD; I remember thee, the kindness of thy youth, the love of thine espousals, when thou wentest after me in the wilderness, in a land that was not sown.

3 Israel was holiness unto the LORD, and the firstfruits of his increase: all that devour him shall offend; evil shall come upon them, saith the LORD.

4 Hear ye the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel:

5 Thus saith the LORD, What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?

6 Neither said they, Where is the LORD that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, that led us through the wilderness, through a land of deserts and of pits, through a land of drought, and of the shadow of death, through a land that no man passed through, and where no man dwelt?

7 And I brought you into a plentiful country, to eat the fruit thereof, and the goodness thereof; but when ye entered, ye defiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination.

8 The priests said not, Where is the LORD? and they that handle the law knew me not: the pastors also transgressed against me, and the prophets prophesied by Baal, and walked after things that do not profit.

9 Wherefore I will yet plead with you, saith the LORD, and with your children's children will I plead.

10 For pass over the isles of Chittim, and see; and send unto Kedar, and consider diligently, and see if there be such a thing.

11 Hath a nation changed their gods, which are yet no gods? but my people have changed their glory for that which doth not profit.

12 Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very desolate, saith the LORD.

13 For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

14 Is Israel a servant? is he a home-born slave? why is he spoiled?

15 The young lions roared upon him, and yelled, and they made his land waste: his cities are burned without inhabitant.

16 Also the children of Noph and Tahpanes have broken the crown of thy head.

17 Hast thou not procured this unto thyself, in that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, when he led thee by the way?

18 And now what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor? or what hast thou to do in the way of Assyria, to drink the waters of the river?

19 Thine own wickedness shall correct thee, and thy backslidings shall reprove thee: know therefore and see that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, and that my fear is not in thee, saith the LORD God of hosts.

REFLECTIONS UPON JER. II.—There is something peculiarly lovely and captivating in youthful piety. It resembles the copious and fragrant blossoms of spring, which are the harbingers of a fruitful harvest. It resembles the glowing colours of a morning sky, the harbinger of the splendour of noonday. How affecting the comparison of the ardent love of Israel to God in the early period of their history, with their apostasy, idolatry, and rebellion in future days! May the following words of Jesus, our Divine teacher and Saviour, sink deep into all our hearts: "He that putteth his hand to the plough, and looketh back, is not fit for the kingdom of heaven." We cannot conceive the infatuating and deluding power of sin. It alienates man from God, his Creator, benefactor, and Saviour. Even though the soul is parched with thirst, and panting for the waters of happiness, under sin's power it forsakes Jesus, the only fountain from which the refreshing streams of happiness flow. "Lord, deliver us from sin's deluding reign!"

PRAYER.

O THOU Lord of hosts, we rejoice that thou art the Father of mercies and the Lord our God. We bless thee that thou hast watched over thine unworthy servants and suppliants during the past night, and that we are permitted to enjoy the blessing of fellowship with thee our God in the exercises of domestic worship. As our bodies have been awakened, and we are raised from our beds in safety and in peace, O may our souls be in reality awakened from the slumbers of sin, and be the subjects of a spiritual resurrection, and made partakers of a life spiritual, gracious, and eternal. Bless to us the reading of the Scriptures. May we read the Bible with increasing light, increasing love, and increasing benefit. May we enjoy the heavenly food thy Word presents, and may it be more delightful to our souls than honey to our lips. Through thy Word may we ever hold fast the blessed hope of everlasting life, which thou hast given us in Jesus Christ our Lord.

We lift up our eyes for that supply of grace which is necessary to enable us to glorify thee our God and Saviour in all the engagements of the day. Daily may we receive out of Christ's fulness, and grace for grace.

We adore and praise thee, O Jesus, that thou takest thy people into a saving and intimate union with thyself, which will never be dissolved. May we be united to thee by that marriage covenant which cannot be dissolved by death. Have mercy on young converts, and maintain within them the kindness of their youth; and cherish in lively activity the love of their espousals. Let not the ardour of their piety diminish, and let not their zeal in thy cause become cold. As individuals, and as a family, may we be holiness unto the Lord. O enable us now to consecrate ourselves to thee the Lord. Divine Spirit, give us thy gracious aid. O Lord, we surrender to thee our souls and bodies, that they may be made thy holy temples. Never allow us to be subdued by fleshly lusts, or to become the prey of sinful passions. As thou didst give thyself for us, O Jesus, what obligations are we under to surrender ourselves to thee!

We pray not that our children may be raised to the enjoyment of worldly honours and earthly wealth, but we pray that they may be holiness to the Lord. O sanctify them for thyself!

We seek grace to mourn over our depravity and sin. We have committed two great evils; we have forsaken thee the fountain of living waters, and we have hewn out to ourselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. Lord, forgive us this our sin, and enable us now to return unto thee, the fountain of salvation and love. Lord, we are black, and would fly to thee, the Divine fountain. Blessed Saviour, help us, or we die.

We present our prayers, and supplicate the pardon of all our sins, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, we ascribe dominion and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

TRAVELLING TO HEAVEN WITH SONGS.

Crombrook. Collier Row. Ryland. Shirland. S. M.

- 1 A WAKE and sing the song
Of Moses and the Lamb;
Wake every heart, and every tongue,
To praise the Saviour's name.
- 2 Sing of his dying love;
Sing of his rising power;
Sing how he intercedes above,
For those whose sins he bore.
- 3 Soon shall ye hear him say,
Ye blessed children, come;
Soon will he call you hence away,
And take his wanderers home.

HARMON.

REVELATION II.

Letter to the Church of Thyatira.

AND unto the angel of the church in Thyatira write; These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine brass;

19 I know thy works, and charity, and service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works; and the last to be more than the first.

20 Notwithstanding I have a few things against thee, because thou sufferest that woman Jezebel, which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants to commit fornication, and to eat things sacrificed unto idols.

21 And I gave her space to repent of her fornication; and she repented not.

22 And I will kill her children with death; and all the churches shall know that I am he which searcheth the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works.

23 But unto you I say, and unto the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak; I will put upon you none other burden.

24 But that which ye have already hold fast till I come.

25 And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:

26 And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I received of my Father.

27 And I will give him the morning star.

28 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

REVELATION III.

Letter to the Church of Sardis.

AND unto the angel of the church in Sardis write; These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars; I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead.

2 Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white: for they are worthy.

5 He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

1886

6 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. II., III.—When we think of Christ's majesty, omniscience, and mercy, we see how infinitely entitled his words of truth, love, and mediatorial authority, are to our attention, admiration, and believing acceptance. How astonishing the tenderness and condescension of Christ—he gives his people grace, admires them as arrayed in his graces, and most generously commends and rewards them for their exercise!—It is humiliating to think how prone men are to wander in the byways of erroneous opinions and hateful passions. Though God graciously bears long with such provocations, yet if the day of repentance is despised, an awful day of retribution must inevitably follow. From such sins, and from such consequences, may we be mercifully preserved. Blessed are Christ's faithful soldiers: here they are clothed with his righteousness, and crowns of glory await them in heaven.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Saviour, the only wise God, while thou dost appear gracious to thy people in smiles of love, thou dost appear terrible to thine enemies in frowns of wrath. Thine eyes are like unto a flame of fire, and thy feet like unto fine brass, as when it burneth in a furnace. Suffer us not, O Jesus, to despise thy salvation, or to reject the invitations of thy mercy. Convince all of us that, if we will not submit unto thee as the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world, we must submit to thee as the Lion of the tribe of Judah, who will tear thine enemies in pieces, when there will be none to deliver.

Thou, O Immanuel, art the omniscient God. Thou art not indifferent about the thoughts which are passing through the minds of men, for thou triest the reins and searchest the hearts of the children of men. O deeply impress on our minds that truth, that thou not only seest the heart, but searchest our hearts. O how black and vile must our hearts appear, omniscient Saviour, before the eyes of thy spotless purity! We rejoice that while thou seest the heart in all its vileness, thou art not only able but willing to wash away its stains, and to bestow the ornaments of grace. Thou art willing to take away all its diseases, and bless it with the vigour and liveliness of spiritual health. Come, blessed Saviour, and deliver us from the dominion of all our hateful passions, and enrich our minds with heavenly principles, spiritual views, and holy affections. May we be rich in grace, and rich in good works. Enable us to show that charity, service, faith, and patience, which will testify we are living branches in Christ, the true vine. May we not only show the leaves and blossoms of a profession, but may we bring forth the fruits of grace.

Take our children, who, in consequence of their relation to us their parents, are by nature wild olives, and by grace may they become green olives in thy house.

Preserve thy Church from seducers. We have now read of an early seducer, who was polluted and profane, and who allured professors into the mire of gross immorality: Lord, preserve thy Church from all similar seducers. We pray for such of our relatives as may be living in the indulgence of sensual and unclean enjoyments. Lord, give them repentance; impress them with the conviction of the unavoidable misery which awaits the servants of sin in a future state. O prevent that they should purchase momentary and polluted pleasure at the price of eternal woe, and the loss of eternal bliss.

Accept our thanks for the mercies of the day and of the week. O that our gratitude were bearing some proportion to thy mercies! Watch over us this night. Prepare us for the blessed engagements of an approaching Sabbath. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our only Saviour. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

BREATHING AFTER HOLINESS.

Mount Calvary. Melody. Prooms. C. M.

- 1 O THAT the Lord would guide my ways
To keep his statutes still !
O that my God would grant me grace
To know and do his will !
- 2 O send thy Spirit down to write
Thy law upon my heart !
Nor let my tongue indulge deceit,
Nor act the liar's part !
- 3 From vanity turn off my eyes !
Let no corrupt design,
Nor covetous desires, arise
Within this soul of mine.
- 4 Order my footsteps by thy word,
And make my heart sincere,
Let sin have no dominion, Lord,
But keep my conscience clear.

Watts, Ps. 119, p. XI.

PSALM CXIX.

KOPH, PART XIX.

Early and Earnest Prayer.

I CRIED with my whole heart ; hear me, O LORD : I will keep thy statutes.

146 I cried unto thee ; save me, and I shall keep thy testimonies.

147 I prevented the dawning of the morning, and cried : I hoped in thy word.

148 Mine eyes prevent the night watches, that I might meditate in thy word.

149 Hear my voice according unto thy loving-kindness : O LORD, quicken me according to thy judgment.

150 They draw nigh that follow after mischief : they are far from thy law.

151 Thou art near, O LORD ; and all thy commandments are truth.

152 Concerning thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever.

RESH, PART XX.

Trust in God.

CONSIDER mine affliction, and deliver me : for I do not forget thy law.

154 Plead my cause, and deliver me : quicken me according to thy word.

155 Salvation is far from the wicked : for they seek not thy statutes.

156 Great are thy tender mercies, O LORD : quicken me according to thy judgments.

157 Many are my persecutors and mine enemies ; yet do I not decline from thy testimonies.

158 I beheld the transgressors, and was grieved ; because they kept not thy word.

159 Consider how I love thy precepts : quicken me, O LORD, according to thy loving-kindness.

160 Thy word is true from the beginning : and every one of thy righteous judgments endureth for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS XIX. AND XX.—Believing and earnest prayer is one of the blessed lessons in which the disciples of Christ are educated by the Holy Spirit. May all of us feel the infinite importance of being instructed in this lesson, and thus invoke the Saviour : "Lord, teach us to pray !" God has inseparably connected salvation with believing, humble prayer. It is an evidence that the mind is spiritual and heavenly, when the waking hours of midnight are occupied with Divine meditations and earnest prayers. When the day is begun and ended with prayer to God, it is a pleasing evidence of love to God, of confidence in his truth, and of a saving interest in his mercy. O what encouragement has the child of God to present before his throne the desires of the soul, when he thinks of the loving-kindness of God, which is better than life, and which constitutes the blessedness of the heavenly state ! The saints have no reason to be afraid when their enemies draw nigh, for their almighty Saviour is ever near, who can instantly consume their foes, as the chaff is consumed by the devouring flame. This promise is to heaven-bound travellers a cordial of joy, which never fails to afford the sweetest comfort : "I will never leave thee ; I will never forsake thee."

PRAYER

ADORED and praised be thy name, O God of salvation, that we are spared to see the light of another day, and that our eyes are not shut in the darkness of death. We thank thee for causing the day-spring to know its place. May the day-star of salvation rise on our benighted souls, and on the souls of multitudes, this day. May Jesus, who is the bright and morning star, shine within us ; and may we, and all our fellow-worshippers, enjoy in thy courts those beginnings of heavenly light which will be the presage of that day when our sun shall no more go down, and when we shall be engaged in serving and glorifying the Father, Son, and Spirit, amid the unclouded splendour of the New Jerusalem.

We pray that the influences of the Holy Ghost may so descend upon the ministers of the Gospel, on worshipping assemblies, on families, and on the instructors of the rising race, and in such measure, that this Sabbath shall prove an high day, a day of spiritual feasting and holy joy ; yea, the type of that glorious rest which remaineth for the people of God. May we, and the people with whom we are connected by the ties of Christian communion, be in the spirit on the Lord's day ; and from the secret and inward enjoyment of our souls may we call it a delight, the holy of the Lord, and honourable.

Give us thy Spirit, that we may breathe the feelings which the Psalmist expressed, and of which we have now read in thy holy Word. When we pray, may we present our supplications with our whole heart, and ever resolve that we will keep the word and statutes of our God as an invaluable inheritance.

Lord, sanctify our children's memory, and make it a store-house enriched with the treasures of Divine knowledge. May this treasure increase every day, till they reach the maturity of perfect men in Christ Jesus, in heaven.

Give all of us such a knowledge of the ordinance of prayer, and such a delight in the exercise, that we shall actually prevent, with our supplications, the dawning of the day. May our days ever begin with prayer and end with prayer. In our remembrance and meditation, may we travel every day to Gethsemane's garden and Mount Calvary, there to see the sufferings and witness the death of our exalted Lord, who died for our offences, and who rose again for our justification.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the manifestation of thy loving-kindness in Christ, and for all the streams of thy loving-kindness which have followed us from our birth to the present moment. In life may we sing of thy saving loving-kindness ; and when we pass the Jordan of death, may we sing of thy loving-kindness in the heaven of heavens.

Then let us mount in lively hope, and may our thoughts ascend to the bright realms of endless day ; and sing, with rapture, thy loving-kindness in the heaven of glory and of bliss.

We pray for all thine aged people, and for all thine afflicted saints. O Lord, consider their affliction, and deliver them. May they long joyfully for the arrival of that day when they shall enter their Father's house, where infirmity and pain shall exist no more for ever.

Lord, hear our prayer, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SANCTIFIED AFFLICTION.

Kennedy. Penitent. Kirby. Uiverston.

L. M.

- 1 FATHER, I bless thy gentle hand;
How kind was thy chastising rod,
That forced my conscience to a stand,
And brought my wandering soul to God!
- 2 Foolish and vain, I went astray,
Ere I had felt thy scourges, Lord;
I left my guide, and lost my way,
But now I love and keep thy word.
- 3 'Tis good for me to wear the yoke,
For pride is apt to rise and swell;
'Tis good to bear my Father's stroke,
That I might learn his statutes well.
- 4 The law that issues from thy mouth
Shall raise my cheerful passions more
Than all the treasures of the south,
Or western hills of golden ore.

WATTS, Ps. 119, p. XVIII.

PSALM CXIX.

SCHIN, PART XXI.

Fervent Prayer and holy Resolutions.

PRINCES have persecuted me without a cause: but my heart standeth in awe of thy word.

162 I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great spoil.

163 I hate and abhor lying: but thy law do I love.

164 Seven times a day do I praise thee because of thy righteous judgments.

165 Great peace have they which love thy law: and nothing shall offend them.

166 Lord, I have hoped for thy salvation, and done thy commandments.

167 My soul hath kept thy testimonies; and I love them exceedingly.

168 I have kept thy precepts and thy testimonies: for all my ways are before thee.

TAU, PART XXII.

Longing for the Answer of Prayer.

LET my cry come near before thee, O Lord: give me understanding according to thy word.

170 Let my supplication come before thee: deliver me according to thy word.

171 My lips shall utter praise, when thou hast taught me thy statutes.

172 My tongue shall speak of thy word: for all thy commandments are righteousness.

173 Let thine hand help me; for I have chosen thy precepts.

174 I have longed for thy salvation, O Lord; and thy law is my delight.

175 Let my soul live, and it shall praise thee; and let thy judgments help me.

176 I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek thy servant; for I do not forget thy commandments.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXIX., PARTS XXI. AND XXII.—The enemies of the saints may rage furiously against them, but they will never succeed in depriving them of their believing reliance on God, and of their firm confidence in his Word. The world presents sources of joy which are soon dried up; the Word of God opens up fountains of blessedness, whence flow streams of pleasure for evermore. The peace which the world gives is like a fading flower; the peace which Christ bestows is like a tree of life, which flourishes in immortal bloom. Wherever there is the spirit of prayer there is the earnest desire for the answer of prayer. God gives the praying heart, and then honours what he gives by his gracious answers to those prayers which he himself inspires. Above all things, may we seek after the grace and the spirit of prayer! We have the greatest encouragement to present our supplications before the mercy-seat, for God is the Father of mercies, and his ear is ever open to hear his children's cry, and his hand is ever stretched out for their help.

PRAYER.

O THOU that hearest prayer, and unto whom all flesh shall come, behold, we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God. We approach thee in the name of Jesus. Glory to the name of the Most High, that it is not an act of presumption, even for fallen, sinful creatures, to fall down before the mercy-seat of the uncreated Jehovah, and supplicate the choicest blessings of the covenant of grace. Guilty, weak, and helpless worms, we come unto thee to seek thy mercy, and grace to help in every time of need.

We thank thee for thy care over us this day, not only in a way of providence, but in a way of grace. Glory to thy name, that we have heard thy gracious voice in thy sanctuary below: O may we meet in heaven with those whose fellowship we have enjoyed in thine earthly courts, to hear the voice of Jesus, seated upon his throne of glory, and to behold him face to face!

We pray for those who love thine ordinances, but yet have been prevented by bodily affliction from being present in thy sanctuary. As they have been excluded from the stream of public ordinances, may they drink the deeper at the fountain-head of Divine mercy and love. Grant, O Lord, that we, who have been drinking of the stream of public ordinances, may revive as the corn and grow as the vine. To all around may we testify that we have not received the Gospel of thy grace in vain; and that it is to us, what it is to all them who believe, the power of God unto salvation.

We supplicate the gracious care of our heavenly Father this night; and pray that we may be spared to another day, that we may be the better prepared for our last day, and for an abundant entrance into the heavenly world, where an eternal day awaits thy people.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as a great and mighty prince, reigning over thy Zion, and preserving thy Church from the machinations and efforts of all her enemies. Princes have persecuted thee and thy cause, but thou didst laugh at them, and have them in derision.

Never allow our beloved children to join the ranks of the enemies of Christ; but may their hearts ever stand in awe of thy Word. Give our servants greater joy in thy Word than the joy of those who find great spoil.

May we as a family rejoice at thy Word. May we rejoice at its blessed discoveries, may we rejoice at its sublime doctrines, may we rejoice at its great and precious promises, may we rejoice at the blessed Saviour it makes known, and may we rejoice at its blessed and wonderful effects. May we rejoice at thy Word more than they rejoice who divide the spoil.

Teach us to pray with fervency and frequency. Since the royal Psalmist, amid the pressure of the cares of government, found time to praise thee seven times a day, may we often retire, though for a few moments, from the business of life, and send our ejaculatory prayers to heaven's throne. Suffer us not to go astray. We have wandered often and much, like lost sheep. Lord, seek and preserve thy servants.

Graciously hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our only Surety and Intercessor.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c. Amen.

JESUS OUR WISDOM AND RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Bredley Church, Froome Woodlands, Monksfeld. A. N.

- 1 NOT with our mortal eyes
Have we beheld the Lord;
Yet we rejoice to hear his name,
And love him in his word.
- 2 On earth we want the sight
Of our Redeemer's face;
Yet, Lord, our inmost thoughts delight
To dwell upon thy grace. WATTS, 108, B. I.

JEREMIAH XXIII.

Jesus our Righteousness.

WOE be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! saith the LORD.

2 Therefore thus saith the LORD God of Israel against the pastors that feed my people; Ye have scattered my flock, and driven them away; and have not visited them: behold, I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the LORD.

3 And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and increase.

4 And I will set up shepherds over them which shall feed them: and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall they be lacking, saith the LORD.

5 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth.

6 In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

7 Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that they shall no more say, The LORD liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

8 But, The LORD liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land.

9 Mine heart within me is broken because of the prophets; all my bones shake; I am like a drunken man, and like a man whom wine hath overcome, because of the LORD, and because of the words of his holiness.

10 For the land is full of adulterers; for because of swearing the land mourneth; the pleasant places of the wilderness are dried up, and their course is evil, and their force is not right.

11 For both prophet and priest are profane; yea, in my house have I found their wickedness, saith the LORD.

12 Wherefore their way shall be unto them as slippery ways in the darkness: they shall be driven on, and fall therein: for I will bring evil upon them, even the year of their visitation, saith the LORD.

13 And I have seen folly in the prophets of Samaria; they prophesied in Baal, and caused my people Israel to err.

14 I have seen also in the prophets of Jerusalem an horrible thing: they commit adultery, and walk in lies: they strengthen also the hands of evildoers, that none doth return from his wickedness: they are all of them unto me as Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah.

15 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets; Behold, I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink the water of gall: for from the prophets of Jerusalem is profaneness gone forth into all the land.

16 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you: they make you vain: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the LORD.

17 They say still unto them that despise me, The LORD hath said, Ye shall have peace; and they say unto every one that walketh after the imagination of his own heart, No evil shall come upon you.

REFLECTIONS UPON JER. XXIII.—What a calamity to families are graceless, unfaithful parents! and what a calamity to churches are graceless, worldly, indolent, unfaithful ministers! Of such unfaithfulness God takes impartial cognizance; and, if continued, must follow it by judicial manifestations of his righteous displeasure. Jesus, the great Shepherd, watches over his Church with the most tender care: though it is now a little flock, in millennial days it shall be numerous like the stars of heaven; though it is now a scattered flock, the joyful period shall arrive when it shall be collected from all nations, and introduced into the fold of heaven infinitely glorious and secure. Earthly dynasties must become extinct, and earthly thrones be overturned; but Jesus, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS, sits upon an eternal throne, and reigns over a kingdom—even his ransomed Church—which shall endure for ever!

PRAYER.

AS faithful children draw near their earthly parents with confidence and love, may we be enabled, O Lord, by thy Holy Spirit, to draw near the throne of our Father in heaven with holy faith, that through Jesus our prayers may be accepted and answered.

God of grace we adore thee as the God and deliverer of Zion. Thou art the living God, who brought up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt, and rescued them out of the hands of powerful and bloodthirsty foes. May each of us, almighty Saviour, be delivered from the bondage of a natural state, and be rescued out of the hands of the law as a covenant, and out of the hands of Satan and our own corruptions. O thou who art the living and the life-giving God, communicate to our souls that spiritual life of grace which is the blessed commencement of that life of glory which will endure through the endless ages of eternity.

We pray, O Lord, that thou wouldst have mercy on the descendants of Jacob, who are scattered among all nations, and are experiencing the weight of thy displeasure. O bring them out from all countries to which thou hast driven them, and bring them within the fold of the New Testament Church.

Blessed Jesus, we would now, with thankfulness and joy, acknowledge thee as the righteous branch of the house of David—as the root and offspring of David, raised up in thy humanity to be the tree of life, to give life, salvation, and joy to myriads of the children of men. Thou art, in thy humanity, the lineal descendant of a royal and illustrious house. In thy Divinity thou art the ruler of the vast universe; and in thy mediatorial capacity thou art the King of Zion. Thou shalt reign, and the powers of earth and hell shall not be able to prevent the exercise of thy government. Thou shalt reign and prosper, and shalt execute judgment and justice in the earth. Thy government shall exceed every other in its vast extent, and surpass all others in its endless duration. We rejoice that, under thy wise and just and powerful and merciful government, Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely. May we as a family live in the enjoyment of thy gracious and mediatorial government.

We desire to rejoice in thy name, as THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. We praise thee that thou didst become the surety of thy Church, and that for them thou didst work out a righteousness which has satisfied offended justice, and procured a title to all the blessedness of the celestial world.

May our beloved children be taught by thy Spirit to say in faith, Jesus is the Lord our Righteousness.

Deliver thy Church from corrupt pastors; and, O let thy spirit descend on all thy ministers. We thank our God for the mercies of the night, and we seek daily grace and daily bread. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our glorious High-priest and Saviour. Amen.

INVITATION OF MERCY.
Sherburne. Alpha. Portugal.

L. M.

- 1 I HEAR the counsel of a friend,
And to his soothing voice attend;
Come, sinners, wretched, blind, and poor,
Come, buy from my unbounded store.
- 2 I only ask you to receive,
For freely I my blessings give:
Jesus, and are thy blessings free?
Then I may dare to come to thee.
- 3 I come for grace, like gold refined,
To enrich and beautify my mind:
Grace that will trials well endure,
And in the furnace grow more pure.

ANON.

REVELATION III.
Counsels and Invitations.

AND to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write; These things saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no man shutteth; and shutteth, and no man openeth;

8 I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it; for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name.

9 Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

10 Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is New Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

13 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

14 And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write; These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God;

15 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

16 So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will cast thee out of my mouth.

17 Because thou sayest, I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked:

18 I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.

19 As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent.

20 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

22 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. III.—Infinitely great is the power of Christ: he has the key suspended to his girdle by which he can open the door of the human heart, however barred and bolted against the entrance of truth and grace; he has the key by which he can open and shut the grave, the gloomy residence of the dead; he has that key by which he opens the pearly gate of heaven, through which his people pass to enter on the possession of immortal joys. What a precious treasure is the Word of God! Do we view it as an inheritance more valuable than gold? do we hold fast its promises, and precepts, and doctrines? then we shall be strengthened with patience in the hour of suffering, be invigorated with faith in the hour of temptation, and shall become more than conquerors in the hour of dissolution. The honour of earthly kings is insignificant when compared with the spiritual privileges and exalted honours of the meanest and the weakest of the saints of God; they are pillars in the Church militant below, and shall be pillars in the temple above for ever and ever.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, whom we desire for ever to adore and praise, may our family be a spiritual garden. May all its members be trees of righteousness; and may each tree bring forth abundant fruit, to the honour of God, and the welfare and prosperity of thy Church. As a spiritual garden, do thou breathe upon us the influences of the Holy Spirit, without which we cannot grow in grace, without which we must become withered and desolate, like the barren desert. Merciful God, give all the members of our family reason to exclaim, We stand like trees of myrrh and spice planted by God our Father's hand; and all our springs in Sion flow to make the young plantation grow in verdure and in fruitfulness.

We present our united acknowledgments for the mercies of the past day. May the sins committed be washed away in the blood of thy dear Son—that blood which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that, while the blood of Abel called down the vengeance of heaven on guilty Cain, thy blood calls down from heaven the richest blessings of eternal life. Protect us by thy gracious providence this night; suffer no evil to befall our body, and suffer no sinful thought or corrupted imagination to pollute our mind. Whether we sleep or wake, whether we live or die, may we be thine. With the noble-minded Apostle may we be able to say, each one before thee, For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

We seek the effectual blessing of thy Holy Spirit on the blessed counsels, invitations, and promises we have now read. May they be laid up in our hearts, and may we exemplify their blessed influence in our lives.

O Jesus, we acknowledge thee in thy great authority and power. Thou alone art he who is true, and he who is holy; thou alone dost possess the key of David.

Such is thy power, that when thou shuttest none can open, and when thou openest none can shut. Mercifully open the door of all our hearts, that thy grace may enter. By thy grace may we find the gates of hell shut, that we may never enter those dreary regions. By thy grace may we find the gates of heaven open, that, when our bodies die, our souls may be admitted into the heaven of heavens, to be ever with the Lord.

Have mercy upon our children; keep them from the hour of temptation, make them faithful unto death; then thou wilt make them pillars in the temple of our God.

Lord, preserve us, and preserve the churches from Laodicean lukewarmness in religion. O give us a holy, lively zeal for the glory of God. Show pity to careless hearers of thy Word, who imagine that they stand in need of nothing, while they are poor and wretched, blind, and miserable, and naked. O persuade them to huy of thee gold tried in the fire, the blessings of a Saviour's purchase.

Lord, grant that all of us may be spiritual conquerors; then shall we sit for ever beside Jesus on his heavenly throne.

Pardon our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our only Mediator. Amen.

RETURNING OF THE BACKSLIDERS.

Mercy Seat. Penitents. Contrition. Gould's.

L. M.

- 1 FATHER, for Jesus' sake alone,
Tell me that thou art reconciled,
And own a rebel for thy Son,
Thy son beloved, thy pleasant child.
- 2 Mercy I ask in Jesus' name,
(Who bought the grace for lost mankind;)
Forgiveness through his blood I claim,
Forgiveness through his blood I find:
- 3 For mercy and redeeming grace,
Still on my Saviour I depend,
Till in his strength I win the race,
And through his wounds to heaven ascend

C. WELBY.

JEREMIAH XXXI.

Prosperity of the Church.

THE LORD hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.

4 Again I will build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: thou shalt again be adorned with thy tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry.

5 Thou shalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, and shall eat them as common things.

6 For there shall be a day, that the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim shall cry, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the LORD our God.

7 For thus saith the LORD; Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations: publish ye, praise ye, and say, O LORD, save thy people, the remnant of Israel.

8 Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall return thither.

9 They shall come with weeping, and with supplications will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble: for I am a Father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn.

10 Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.

11 For the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he.

12 Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the goodness of the LORD, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden; and they shall not sorrow any more at all.

13 Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together: for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow.

14 And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the LORD.

15 Thus saith the LORD; A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping; Rachel weeping for her children refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not.

16 Thus saith the LORD; Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the LORD; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy.

REFLECTIONS UPON JER. XXXI.—To be the objects of Jesus' love, and the subjects of his grace, are privileges and honours too great for the heart of man to conceive; and yet such honours and privileges have all the saints. When the Holy Ghost bears witness with their spirits that they are the redeemed objects of God's unchanging and eternal love, their joy is unspeakable. Externally considered, and by means of the ravages of persecution without, and the contentions of professors from within, the visible Church, as a building, may be partially dilapidated and in ruins; but when God comes in his special providence and repairs the breaches, her enemies are filled with confusion, and her saints pour from their lips the most lively expressions of thankfulness and praise. The tragical event of Rachel weeping for her murdered children reminds us that this world is a vale of tears. Let us rejoice that heaven is a world of unfading and eternal joys!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we earnestly pray that, in approaching thy blessed throne in the name of Christ, our understandings may be illuminated with thy light, our hearts may be warmed with thy love, our mouths may be filled with thy praise, and our lives and our all may be devoted to thy service. Thou hast in thine unmerited kindness watched over us during the past night, and thou hast prolonged our lives to another day; we pray for grace, that with cheerfulness and full purpose of heart we may now present our souls and bodies unto our God a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable, which is our reasonable service. Enable us, in all the engagements of the day, to manifest to those around us that our profession of the Gospel is not in word only, but in demonstration of the Holy Ghost, and with power. Give us thy spirit: then we shall testify by our holy conversation and lives that the religion of the Bible is a holy religion, and that they who believe it are happy and blessed.

We seek the blessing of the Holy Spirit on what we have now read. Give us an unction from the Holy One, and may we know all things.

Let the animating promises respecting the building up of Zion, respecting the spiritual ornaments of Divine grace which will be given to thy people, and the great joy with which they shall be comforted, be soon and extensively fulfilled. We would rejoice in that ancient, that everlasting love, thou dost cherish toward thy Church and people. Enable us to prefer thy love before the esteem of the best of human beings. We look upon thy favour as life, and on thy loving-kindness as better than life. O say to us as a family and as individuals, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.

Teach our children to seek an interest in thy love. O give us the pleasing evidence that they are the objects of thy love, by filling their youthful bosoms with a superlative love to Jesus, thy well-beloved Son.

We pray for the watchmen, even the ministers of thy Zion. Give them increasing zeal, and may they show an example to thy people, and say, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the LORD our God. Make thy ministers successful in teaching their people lessons of holy penitence and of evangelical contrition. Let multitudes come to thee with weeping and with supplications, and cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble.

We offer up our supplications for such as have fallen into a state of backsliding. O restore to thyself thy backsliding children. May they say in the language of penitent Ephraim of old, Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised; turn thou me, and I shall be turned; for thou art the LORD my God. O say to thy penitent and returning sons, My bowels are troubled for them, I will surely have mercy upon them, saith the LORD. Lord, have mercy on us, and suffer us not to dishonour Christ, or bring a reproach upon his Gospel, or injure our own souls, by wandering from thy ways.

Graciously forgive our sins and bless our services, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE EVERLASTING SONG.

Opporus. Lydia. Him.

C. M.

- 1 EARTH has engrossed my love too long!
'Tis time I lift mine eyes
Upward, dear Father, to thy throne,
And to my native skies.
- 2 There the blest man, my Saviour, sits:
The God! how bright he shines!
And scatters infinite delights
On all the happy minds.
- 3 Seraphs, with elevated strains,
Circle the throne around,
And move and charm the starry plains
With an immortal sound.
- 4 Jesus, the Lord, their harps employs:
Jesus, my love, they sing.
Jesus, the life of both our joys,
Sounds sweet from every string.

WATTS.

REVELATION IV.

The Vision of the heavenly Throne.

AFTER this I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter.

2 And immediately I was in the spirit: and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.

3 And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

4 And round about the throne were four and twenty seats: and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunders, and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God.

6 And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four living creatures full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first living creature was like a lion, and the second living creature like a calf, and the third living creature had a face as a man, and the fourth living creature was like a flying eagle.

8 And the four living creatures had each of them six wings about him; and they were full of eyes within: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

9 And when those living creatures give glory and honour and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever,

10 The four and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

11 Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. IV.—Believers on earth are in a vale of tears, far distant from their heavenly home; but their hearts are filled with joy when, by the inward witness of the Spirit, they hear Christ saying to them with his sweet, inviting voice, "Come up hither!" That will be a blessed day when, agreeably to their Saviour's gracious call, their disembodied spirits shall pass through the everlasting doors of the New Jerusalem, and behold the Saviour on his throne! The throne of Solomon—the most splendid of earthly thrones—is utterly insignificant when compared with that heavenly throne which is filled by Christ as the Lamb of God, as the incarnate Deity, as the glorified Mediator, as the King of kings, and Lord of lords. Is there a sea of glass before the throne? this intimates the undisturbed tranquillity and peace which reign in heaven; no stormy sea lifts up its raging waves in those peaceful regions; "No wave of trouble ever rolls across the peaceful breast!" May we at last unite with the heavenly choir in singing the Saviour's praise, and casting at his feet our golden crowns!

PRAYER.

WE prostrate ourselves, O Lord our God, before thy gracious throne; and to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost we would ascribe glory, honour, and thanks. O Jehovah, thou art he who sitteth upon the throne of universal dominion and unlimited sovereignty; thou art he who liveth for ever and ever. O that we and our beloved relatives, when removed from the present world of ignorance, sinfulness, temptation, and weakness, may join the ransomed millions before the throne of God and the Lamb, in worshipping him that liveth for ever and ever, in casting our crowns before the throne, and in saying, Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

We thank our God, and our father's God, for all the goodness thou hast made to pass before us this day. Give us the repentance of those things we have committed; and O let the guilt we have contracted be washed away by the blessed merit of our Saviour's righteousness. We seek the paternal protection of our heavenly Father this night: and do thou preserve us constantly in thy fear, till the arrival of that period when we trust, through the atoning sacrifice which Jesus made of himself, to exchange our days and nights below for a glorious, celestial day above, where there is no need of created suns to give light, but where the glory of God and of the Lamb is the light thereof.

When the day of our death arrives, may we hear the voice of our exalted Saviour addressing us in sweet accents, "Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which shall be hereafter. Lord, give us a spiritual love to heaven. Teach us to love it because it is a holy place, and because it is filled with holy inhabitants. Teach us to love it because of the pure and exalted employments in which the blessed inhabitants are constantly engaged. O teach us to love heaven, because there the Lamb of God is seen in the midst of the throne, and because the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, is seen face to face—is seen as he is.

O Jesus, we acknowledge and adore thee in all those mediatorial honours to which thou art exalted in heaven. We praise thee because of all our departed relatives who are worshipping before thy throne, and casting their crowns of glory at thy feet. We would join the redeemed above in those songs of praise they proclaim to thy glory; and in the language of seraphim we would give thee homage: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was, and is, and is to come.

O Jesus, lead our children in that path where they shall assuredly be conducted to that glorious heaven where they shall be arrayed in robes of glory, and for ever partake of the joys of immortality.

Comfort aged pilgrims; and, when they compare their heavenly home with the present wilderness, may they long to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. O be the husband of the widow, the father of the fatherless, and the stay of orphans.

Lord, accept our persons, bless our services, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

COMFORT TO THE DYING FATHER, AND WIDOW, AND FATHERLESS.

Surrey Chapel. St. Bartholomew's. Fifth's. P. M.

- 1 O THOU faithful God of love,
Gladly I thy promise plead,
Waiting for my last remove,
Hastening to the happy dead :
Lo, I cast on thee my care,
Breathe my latest breath in prayer.
- 2 Trusting in thy word alone,
I to thee my children leave;
Call my little ones thine own,
Give them, all thy blessings give :
Keep them while on earth they breathe,
Save their souls from endless death.

C. WHEATLY.

JEREMIAH XLIX.

Mercy to the Fatherless, and Misery of the Wicked.

LEAVE thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive :
and let thy widows trust in me.

12 For thus saith the LORD ; Behold, they whose judgment was not to drink of the cup have assuredly drunken ; and art thou he that shall altogether go unpunished ? thou shalt not go unpunished, but thou shalt surely drink of it.

13 For I have sworn by myself, saith the LORD, that Bozrah shall become a desolation, a reproach, a waste, and a curse ; and all the cities thereof shall be perpetual wastes.

14 I have heard a rumour from the Lord, and an ambassador is sent unto the heathen, saying, Gather ye together, and come against her, and rise up to the battle.

15 For, lo, I will make thee small among the heathen, and despised among men.

16 Thy terribleness hath deceived thee, and the pride of thine heart, O thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, that holdest the height of the hill : though thou shouldst make thy nest as high as the eagle, I will bring thee down from thence, saith the LORD.

17 Also Edom shall be a desolation : every one that goeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all the plagues thereof.

18 As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbour cities thereof, saith the LORD, no man shall abide there, neither shall a son of man dwell in it.

19 Behold, he shall come up like a lion, from the swelling of Jordan against the habitation of the strong : but I will suddenly make him run away from her : and who is a chosen man, that I may appoint over her ? for who is like me ? and who will appoint me the time ? and who is that shepherd that will stand before me ?

20 Therefore hear the counsel of the LORD, that he hath taken against Edom ; and his purposes, that he hath purposed against the inhabitants of Teman : Surely the least of the flock shall draw them out : surely he shall make their habitations desolate with them.

21 The earth is moved at the noise of their fall, at the cry the noise thereof was heard in the Red Sea.

22 Behold, he shall come up and fly as the eagle, and spread his wings over Bozrah : and at that day shall the heart of the mighty men of Edom be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

23 Concerning Damascus. Hamath is confounded, and Arpad : for they have heard evil tidings : they are faint-hearted ; there is sorrow on the sea ; it cannot be quiet.

24 Damascus is waxed feeble, and turneth herself to flee, and fear hath seized on her : anguish and sorrows have taken her, as a woman in travail.

25 How is the city of praise not left, the city of my joy .

26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets, and all the men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the LORD of hosts.

27 And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

REFLECTIONS UPON JER. XLIX.—God graciously affords to dying saints the sweetest consolation. Are they parents, and about to be separated by death from their beloved and dependent offspring ? He comforts them with the promise that he will be the husband of the widow, the father of the fatherless, and the stay of the orphan. The punishments which God inflicts upon the wicked and impenitent are acts of judicial displeasure ; but the afflictions with which he visits his people are fatherly discipline, and the real marks of a father's love. Truly sin has made our world a desolation and a wilderness ; but, when the influence of the Gospel shall be universally felt, it shall become a paradise of moral loveliness and spiritual fruitfulness. The enemies of Christ and his Church may lift up their heads in the pride of their heart ; this shall continue only for a short season. None who harden themselves against him can prosper.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as the Lord of hosts, terrible to thine enemies ; and as the Father of mercies, tender, kind, and compassionate to thy children. We adore thee in all the judgment which befell Sodom and Gomorrah, whose sins assumed the most revolting form, and were carried to the most appalling excess. May we, who live in a land of Christian light, be deeply impressed with a sense of our sin and danger, if we continue thine impenitent enemies, amid the calls of mercy, and the tidings of salvation, which never reached the ears of the inhabitants of Sodom. Bless to us, O Jesus, the remembrance of thy words, that it will even be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for us, if we neglect thy great salvation. We adore thee in the fulfilment of thy threatenings upon ancient Edom, the laud of the Philistines, the enemy of thy Church. Though Edom came up from the swelling of Jordan like a lion, to tear thy Church and people in pieces, yet thou didst speedily bring upon him deserved destruction. Convince all among us, and among our friends who are living without thy fear, that their situation is perilous beyond description ; and that, if they die without an interest in Jesus, they cannot possibly escape the miseries of hell. May thy terrors impress their hearts, excite their fears, and persuade their judgments. Suffer them no longer to trifle with the justice and threatenings of God ; no longer to trifle on the brink of an eternal world ! May the sound of thy threatening voice, which is more alarming and awful than the sound of the loudest thunder, be instrumental in awaking within them a lively concern about their eternal salvation—about obtaining acceptance with God, the forgiveness of sins, and a title to heaven.

O Lord, we adore thee as the Father of the fatherless, as the husband of the widow, and as the stay of the orphan. We bless thee for that promise, which is so consolatory to the mind of a dying father, a surviving widow, and bereaved children : Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive ; and let thy widows trust in me. Thou art the peculiar guardian of the fatherless and the widow ; for thou dost execute the judgment of the fatherless and the widow. We thank thee for this warning in respect of the protection of the widow and fatherless : Ye shall not afflict any widow or fatherless child : if thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry.

O Jesus, be our children's Father. When we are taken from them by death, may they find the fulfilment of that promise, In thee the fatherless findeth mercy.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy kindness during the past night, for the return of another day, and for the continuance of the blessing of reason. Enable us this day to do all to thy glory. Forgive our sins, bless our services, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

A NEW SONG TO CHRIST THE LAMB OF GOD.

Brook Street, Hampstead, Cambridge New. C. N.

- 1 BEHOOLD the glories of the Lamb
Amidst his Father's throne;
Prepare now honours for his name,
And songs before unknown.
- 2 Let elders worship at his feet,
The church adore around,
With vials full of odours sweet
And harps of sweeter sound.
- 3 These are the prayers of the saints,
And these the hymns they raise:
Jesus is kind to our complaints,
He loves to hear our praise.

WATTS, I. B. J.

REVELATION V.

Christ opening the Book of God's Decrees.

AND I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book written within and on the outside, sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?

3 And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not: behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

6 And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

7 And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the book, the four living creatures and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints.

9 And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;

10 And hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth.

11 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders: and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands;

12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

13 And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

14 And the four living creatures said, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. V.—How full, rich, mysterious, and glorious is the book of God's immutable purposes and eternal decrees! Though angels are unable to read the boundless mysteries of that book, the saints of the living God, in the exercise of humble, lively faith, can read their names in the Lamb's Book of life, and also rejoice with holy confidence that their names shall never be erased from the sacred, shining page. The Divinity of our Saviour is demonstrated by his omniscience. He alone knows and fully understands and comprehends the vast materials of the book of the Divine decrees. For this purpose he must be omniscient, and therefore God, equal with the Father and the Holy Spirit. In heaven, our Saviour, who was once on earth, encompassed with the gloomy shades of death and an inhabitant of the darksome tomb, now fills the loftiest throne; and the wounds which were inflicted upon his sacred body shine with glory surpassing the splendour of the meridian sun. O may it be our blessedness to see the King in his beauty, and for ever to unite with the blessed above in singing hallelujahs to his praise! Amen.

PRAYER.

WE draw near, O Lord, our God and our Father, to thy Divine and gracious presence, and we humbly rely on the righteousness of Jesus, as the only foundation of our hopes of acceptance with thee in the observance of all the ordinances of thine appointment, and for our acceptance at this time. Most glorious Jehovah, we adore thee in the book of thine eternal, wise, and inscrutable decrees. We acknowledge that thou hast from eternity laid down a vast and glorious plan, according to which thou hast formed the universe, consisting of unnumbered worlds and countless beings; and agreeably to which thou art conducting the affairs of thy providence, and managing the government of all thy creatures. The book of thy decrees is known only to thyself. None in heaven or in earth have been found worthy but thou, O Lamb of God, to take this wondrous book, and open its mysterious seals. Thou art omniscient, and must know all things; and thou art almighty, and therefore able to accomplish with the utmost ease all thy magnificent and glorious decrees.

Preserve us, O Lord, from a sinful and unhallowed curiosity, in wishing to pry into the impenetrable depths of Jehovah's purposes. We would not be much concerned, O Lord, nor vainly long to penetrate the volume of thy deep decrees, to see what months are writ for us.

When the book of life is revealed at death, and amid the solemnities of a judgment-day, may all now prostrate before thy throne read their names among the chosen of thy love, among the followers of the Lamb.

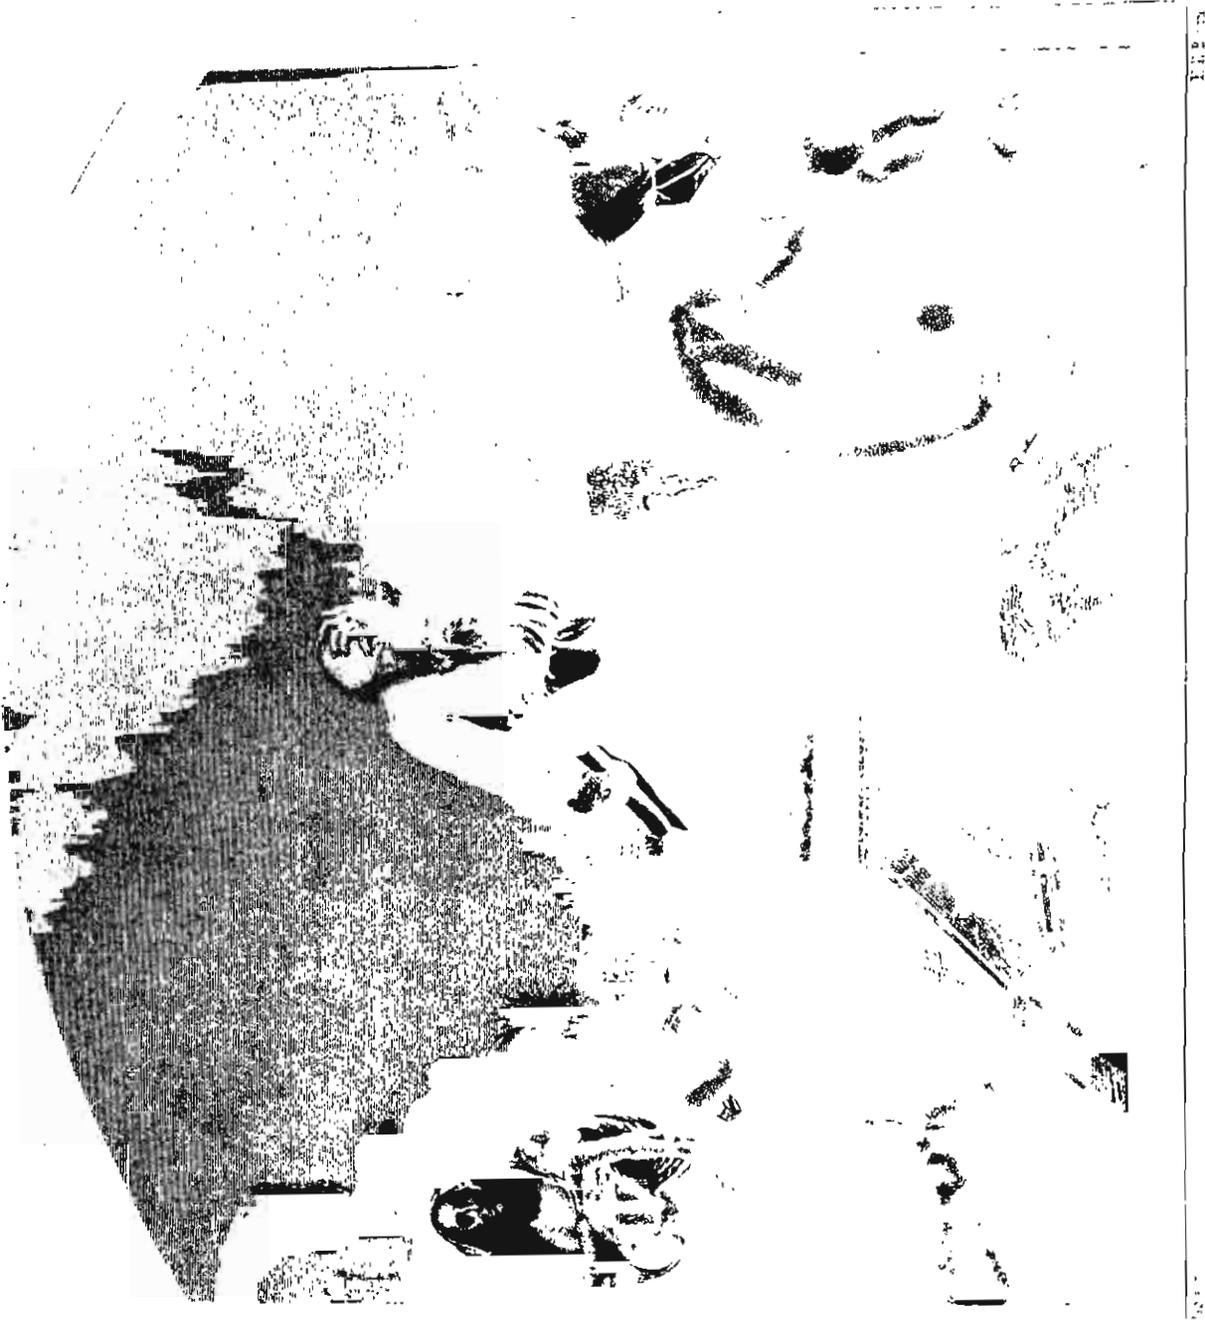

Holy Spirit, give us grace to ascribe to Jesus, our exalted Saviour, deserved honour and praise. We adore thee, O Lamb of God, as the lion of the tribe of Judah, and as the Root of David. We rejoice that, even in the midst of the splendour of the heavenly state, thou dost appear as a Lamb that had been slain; and that the very wounds thou didst suffer on earth are still visible to all thine adoring worshippers in heaven. By faith may we now see thee as the Lamb that was slain for us; and, when our earthly pilgrimage comes to a close, may we behold thee on thy glorious throne, still bearing the marks of those blessed wounds which wrought out the salvation of ruined men.

Give to our children and servants faith in Christ as their Saviour, and love to him as the Lamb of God, who is willing to make them the lambs of his flock.

Animate aged saints and afflicted believers with the prospect of joining, at no distant period, with the ransomed millions above, and singing, Thou, O Jesus, art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood. Through an endless eternity may it be our felicity to sing, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive honour, and glory, and blessing.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the day, and seek the Divine guardianship of our God this night. Hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy to take the book of thy sovereign and unfathomable decrees, and to loose the seals thereof. Amen.

JEREMIAH'S LAMENTATIONS.

CHRIST'S GREAT SORROW.

Herford, Norton, Herwick.

P. M.

- 1 ALL ye that pass by to Jesus draw nigh !
To you is it nothing that Jesus should die ?
- 2 Our ransom and peace, our surety he is ;
Come, see if there ever was sorrow like his.
- 3 The Lord, in the day of his anger, did lay
Our sins on the Lamb, and he bore them away.
- 4 He died to atone for sins not his own :
The Father hath punished for us his dear Son.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 363.

LAMENTATIONS I.

Jerusalem's Sin and Christ's Sorrow.

HOW doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people !
how is she become a widow ! she that was great among the nations, and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary !

2 She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks : among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her :
all her friends have dealt treacherously with her, they are become her enemies.

3 Judah is gone into captivity because of affliction, and because of great servitude : she dwelleth among the heathen, she findeth no rest : all her persecutors overtook her between the straits.

4 The ways of Zion do mourn, because none come to the solemn feasts : all her gates are desolate : her priests sigh, her virgins are afflicted, and she is in bitterness.

5 Her adversaries are the chief, her enemies prosper ; for the Lord hath afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions : her children are gone into captivity before the enemy.

6 And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed : her princes are become like harts that find no pasture, and they are gone without strength before the pursuer.

7 Jerusalem remembered in the days of her affliction and of her miseries all her pleasant things that she had in the days of old, when her people fell into the hand of the enemy, and none did help her : the adversaries saw her, and did mock at her sabbaths.

8 Jerusalem hath grievously sinned ; therefore she is removed : all that honoured her despise her, because they have seen her nakedness : yea, she sigheth, and turneth backward.

9 The adversary hath spread out his hand upon all her pleasant things : for she hath seen that the heathen entered into her sanctuary, whom thou didst command that they should not enter into thy congregation.

10 All her people sigh, they seek bread ; they have given their pleasant things for meat to relieve the soul : see, O
Lord, and consider ; for I am become vile.

11 Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by ? behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow, which is done unto me, wherewith the Lord hath afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger.

12 From above hath he sent fire into my bones, and it prevaileth against them : he hath spread a net for my feet, he hath turned me back : he hath made me desolate and faint all the day.

13 The yoke of my transgressions is bound by his hand :
they are wreathed, and come up upon my neck : he hath made my strength to fall, the Lord hath delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to rise up.

14 The Lord hath trodden under foot all my mighty men in the midst of me : he hath called an assembly against me to crush my young men : the Lord hath trodden the virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a vinepress.

REFLECTIONS UPON LAM. I.—The history of Jerusalem furnishes the most affecting and tragical illustration of the evil of sin, both in itself, and in its most dreadful consequences and effects. What a picture of prosperity, usefulness, and happiness, was Jerusalem in the days of her holiness, and when in the enjoyment of Jehovah's smiles !
but what a picture of desolation and woe when she cast off God, and when the vials of God's wrath were poured out in all their merited and overwhelming severity ! Holiness is the fountain of joy ; sin is the fountain of sorrow : Jerusalem preferred the second before the first ; she rejected God as her King, she preferred the service of sin before the service of God, she sought comfort, and sought it in vain, from sin the bitter fountain—and what was the frightful consequence ? she found herself cast down into the depths of despair, and tears of unavailing sorrow and remorse ran down her cheeks ! she found, when it was too late, that she had most sinfully and culpably forsaken the fountain of living waters ! Let each of us earnestly pray that we may obtain repentance unto life.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we would draw near thy throne this morning with the voice of thankfulness and praise. From our birth to the present hour, we have been the objects of thine unceasing tenderness and care. We bless thee that thou hast preserved us during the past night, and that, while we lay fast asleep, and unconscious even of our being, thy watchful eye neither slumbered nor slept. Give to our bodies the protection of thy providence, and to our souls the defence of thy grace. Help us to surmount difficulties, fortify us to resist temptations, and strengthen us to perform duty. In all the engagements of the day, teach and dispose us to seek the glory of thy name ; and, when our mortal life comes to a close, may we obtain the blessedness of heaven and immortality, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour.

We implore the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit to attend the word we have now read. We acknowledge thy sovereignty and justice in the overwhelming calamities which befell ancient Jerusalem. Impress our minds with the solemn thought, that the greatest sin the inhabitants of Jerusalem ever committed was the rejection of Jesus, and nailing him to the accursed tree.

O enable our beloved children to receive a loving Saviour.
Let them not live and die rejecting Jesus, and thus perish in the commission of the greatest sin which can accomplish the ruin of the soul. Save them, O Lord, from such a sin ;
preserve them from such a doom.

Preserve the nations and the cities of the earth from impiety, luxury, and pride. May the calamities which fell on Jerusalem and other cities for their daring wickedness committed against the God of heaven and the King of Zion, prove to them all salutary warnings. Bless the cities of our land, and cause righteousness to run down their streets like a refreshing stream. Deliver our cities from all those vices which hasten to an untimely grave, which make the faculties of the soul the victims and slaves of the most degrading lusts, and which, alas, prepare for the regions of endless despair !
In every pulpit may the pure Gospel be proclaimed, and in every habitation may the sweet songs of Zion be sung.

Bless to us, O Saviour, the remembrance of thy sorrow.
When we think of thy sufferings in Gethsemane's garden, we acknowledge there was no sorrow like unto thy sorrow. When we think of the events of Calvary's cross, we acknowledge there was no sorrow like thy sorrow, wherewith the Lord afflicted thee in the day of his fierce anger. Enable the afflicted to remember the sufferings of Christ ; and may they believe that the sufferings of Jesus extracted the curse from all their sufferings. Comfort the aged with the conviction that the sorrows of Jesus purchased for them the joys of heaven.

Lord, hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thine unworthy suppliants, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

THE LAST DAY.

Zippin. Orange. Crickwood. Whitefield.

S. M.

- 1 AND will the judge descend?
And must the dead arise,
And not a single soul escape
His all-discerning eyes?
- 2 And from his righteous lips
Shall this dread sentence sound,
And, through the numerous, guilty throng,
Spread black despair around?
- 3 Depart from me, accursed,
To everlasting flame,
For rebel-angels first prepared,
Where mercy never came.

DODDRIDGE.

REVELATION VI.

The six Seals and the last Day.

AND I saw, when the Lamb opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see.

2 And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

3 And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature say, Come and see.

4 And there went out another horse that was red: and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature say, Come and see. And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four living creatures say, A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

7 And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature say, Come and see.

8 And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held:

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellowservants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled.

12 And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood;

13 And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind.

14 And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains;

16 And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb:

17 For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. VI.—May we hear God's gracious voice saying to us, "Come and see" what wonders are to be found in my book of creation, of providence, and of redemption. If we consider providence aright, we shall view it as a marvellous commentary on the book of the eternal purposes of Jehovah. What a wonderful conqueror is Jesus! for while the characters of earthly conquerors are generally stained with cruelty, rapine, and injustice, the character of Jesus shines forth beautified with the bright lustre of every Divine perfection—"Righteousness is the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins." What has sin done to our world! it has taken peace from the earth; it has made it the scene of anarchy, confusion, and death! Let us however rejoice that Jesus, who is our peace, has come to restore peace by the blood of his cross, and finally by his Spirit to change our sinful, ruined race into one family of holiness, concord, and love. Lord, hasten the day!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we draw near to thy throne of grace, through Jesus Christ, by that new and living way which he hath consecrated for us through the veil; that is to say, his flesh. Seeing then that we have such an high-priest as Jesus to represent our cause before the throne of glory above, may we be enabled to draw near the throne of grace below with a true heart, in full assurance of faith. O teach us to offer up our prayers under the believing and well-grounded persuasion that the ear of mercy is constantly open to hear our supplications, and that the God of all mercies never will be offended either with the number, or with the frequency, or with the importunity of our prayers.

We now retire from the business and cares of the day, to enjoy fellowship with thee the Father, and with thy Son Jesus Christ. We thank thee for daily mercies, daily ordinances, and daily privileges. Thou hast given us daily bread for our bodies, and daily supplies for our souls; we now pray for the pardon of our daily sins, and that thou wouldst sanctify daily providences. O make us to dwell in safety this night, and may we be quiet from the fear of evil; and bring us at last to that heavenly kingdom where there are no pricking briars nor stinging serpent—where there is nothing to hurt or destroy in all thy holy mountain.

Bless to us the solemn truths we have now read. We rejoice that under all governments thy Church is safe, and that her blessedness, prosperity, and safety, are not even affected by the calamities which overthrow kingdoms, and involve nations in desolation and ruin. There is no crown like thy crown, O Jesus! thy crown shall for ever flourish on thy head, and the bright glory of thy crown shall continue for ever and ever to fill heaven with the beams of ineffable delight.

May the universal power of death, and the prospect of our own dissolution, produce on our minds the most profitable and solemn effects. Give us faith in Christ as the conqueror of death, and as having destroyed the guilt of sin, which is death's sting; then shall we be delivered from the fear of death. Give us faith to look on death as a friend, and not an enemy.

May our children seriously reflect upon the last day. When Christ shall appear in the clouds of heaven, may none of them have reason to call upon the rocks and mountains to fall down upon them, and hide them from the face of the Judge.

To us, and all our relatives and friends, may it be a triumphant day. Then may we meet the noble army of martyrs and saints; then may we be clothed in white robes; then may we be ever with the Lord.

Accept our evening sacrifice, bear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, the Lamb that was slain. Amen.

BLESSED DAY IN HEAVEN.

Middleton. Tigris. Sicily. Hanley.

A. M.

- 1 NOW we expect a day,
Still brighter far than this,
When death shall bear our souls away
To realms of light and bliss.
- 2 There rapturous scenes of joy
Shall burst upon our sight;
And every pain, and tear, and sigh
Be drowned in endless light.
- 3 Beneath thy balmy wing,
O Sun of righteousness!
Our happy souls shall sit and sing
The wonders of thy grace.

S. STENNETT.

LAMENTATIONS III.

Mercies and Promises.

- IT is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not.*
- 23 They are new every morning; great is thy faithfulness.
  - 24 The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him.
  - 25 The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him.
  - 26 It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord.
  - 27 It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.
  - 28 He sitteth alone and keepeth silence, because he hath borne it upon him.
  - 29 He putteth his mouth in the dust; if so be there may be hope.
  - 30 He giveth his cheek to him that smiteth him: he is filled full with reproach.
  - 31 For the Lord will not cast off for ever:
  - 32 But though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion according to the multitude of his mercies.
  - 33 For he doth not afflict willingly nor grieve the children of men.
  - 34 To crush under his feet all the prisoners of the earth,
  - 35 To turn aside the right of a man before the face of the most High,
  - 36 To subvert a man in his cause, the Lord approveth not.
  - 37 Who is he that saith, and it cometh to pass, when the Lord commandeth it not?
  - 38 Out of the mouth of the most High proceedeth not evil and good?
  - 39 Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins?
  - 40 Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord.
  - 41 Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens.
  - 42 We have transgressed and have rebelled: thou hast not pardoned.
  - 55 I called upon thy name, O Lord, out of the low dungeon.
  - 56 Thou hast heard my voice: hide not thine ear at my breathing, at my cry.

REFLECTIONS UPON LAM. III.—They who possess the grace of evangelical repentance see and believe that they deserve the heaviest judgments, and that they are unworthy of the least mercies. They also acknowledge with thankfulness that it is only by unmerited mercy they are preserved from merited destruction. The believer knows, and acknowledges with thankfulness and joy, that while every morning is the renewal of light, it is also the renewal of mercies; and that every day is a pleasing and encouraging commentary upon the immutability of Divine truth, and the stability of the Divine promise. The men of the world seek as their portion wealth, pleasure, honour, and power. How exalted the state, and how great the felicity of redeemed saints! they can say, "Our portion is Jehovah, who made the boundless universe; he is the strength of our heart and our exceeding great reward:" thus the meanest, poorest, and most secluded saint on the face of the earth can say what no graceless monarch can utter, even though he sway his sceptre over the greatest and the wealthiest empires upon the face of the earth. May we be taught to tread the world beneath our feet; and may our conversation be in heaven, where we shall receive and enjoy "an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and which fadeth not away, reserved for those who are kept by the power of God unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time."

PRAYER.

O LORD, our merciful Father, what reason have we with thankfulness of heart, on the return of another day, to acknowledge thee in the language of the church of old: It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not! They are new every morning; great is thy faithfulness. Holy Spirit, mercifully condescend to give us thy grace, that we may be able to say, in the language of filial love and vigorous faith, The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him. O Lord, we earnestly pray that thou wouldst be our portion. Forbid that we should prefer thy creatures as a portion before thyself. We desire to say with the devout Psalmist, Thou art the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

Teach us the important lesson of hoping in God, as our God in Christ. In the darkest night of sorrow, enable us to exercise a lively hope in our redeeming God, and to sing, Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance and my God. Lord, enable us quietly to wait for the salvation of our God. When our enemies assault us, when temptations appear against us on the right hand and the left, when we are visited with bodily afflictions, when we are tried with mental uneasiness, when the billows of sorrow are numerous and high, O may we find in each and all of these situations the unspeakable benefit of confidence in God, and that it is good we should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of our God.

Bless our dear children, and sanctify to them all the bodily affliction they have been called to experience. If it is thy sovereign will that they should endure affliction in early days, may they find that it is good to bear the yoke in their youth.

Lord, sanctify all our afflictions. May we remember how Jesus endured affliction, and be taught to imitate his blessed example. Silently and meekly may we submit to the will of our Father who is in heaven. Comfort all thine afflicted people with the delightful promise, that the Lord will not cast them off for ever. Glory to thy name that thine inspired servant has said, for the encouragement of all thine afflicted children, But though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion, according to the multitude of his mercies. Convince all thy people, more and more, that every affliction is sent by God to produce upon the mind some invaluable effects; seeing that God doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men. In our afflictions may we be deeply convinced that our sins are the procuring cause of them all.

Prepare us for that heavenly world where the happiness of the ransomed millions is complete, and where no gulf of affliction shall be ever mingled with their cup of joy.

Graciously assist us in the duties of the day. Preserve us from sin, and hear our prayers, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

PLEASURES OF PRAISE, AND HOPES OF HEAVEN.
Matthias. Whistly. Mapplehead. Compassion. B. M.

- 1 HOW charming is the place,
 Where my Redeemer God
 Unveils the beauties of his face,
 And sheds his love abroad!
- 2 Not the fair palaces,
 To which the great resort,
 Are once to be compared with this,
 Where Jesus holds his court.
- 3 Here on the mercy-seat,
 With radiant glory crowned,
 Our joyful eyes behold him sit
 And smile on all around.
- 4 To him their prayers and cries
 Each humble soul presents;
 He listens to their broken sighs,
 And grants them all their wants.

S. STERNETT.

REVELATION VII.

The Multitude and Blessedness of the Saints in Heaven.

AND after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.

2 And I saw another angel descending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea,

3 Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands;

10 And cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.

11 And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders and the four living creatures, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God, 12 Saying, Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

13 And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them.

16 They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat.

17 For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. VII.—Angels are God's messengers and servants, ever ready to do his will in his providence and in his Church. May we bear some resemblance to those angelic spirits in holiness, in love, and in prompt obedience to the will of our God and Saviour! Angels are entrusted by God with great commissions, and they are always faithful to their trust. May we be God's waiting servants, and his faithful servants. O, by the Divine Spirit, may we be faithful unto death! How animating to think of the myriads of ransomed souls in heaven now before the throne! How consistent with the righteousness and mercy of the Divine government, to believe that all who have died in infancy, and before reaching the years of discretion, are now in the celestial city! Then how immense must be the congregated multitude from all parts of the earth during the past generations of the history of our world! At the close of ages, it will indeed be a multitude which no man can number. May we be found among the joyful myriads who have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Amen.

PRAYER.

O THOU King of Zion, and Saviour of the redeemed on earth, and of the ransomed multitude in heaven, thou art the great Almighty. Thou holdest in thy hands the winds of heaven, and they cannot break forth without thy permission, or do good or evil but under the direction of thy sovereign will.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the living God. O thou living Saviour, who died in thy humanity to obtain life for guilty men, mercifully bestow on each of us now before thee that life of regeneration which will be followed by a life of glory in heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the control thou dost exercise over all calamities and all events. Neither the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees of the forests, can be hurt but as thou givest commission to thy servants. Strike guilty nations, and guilty men will fear, when they remember that they are in the hand, under the control, and at the constant disposal of that holy, righteous, and almighty God whose laws they are violating and whose mercy they are treating with scorn.

We supplicate from thee, the Lord our God, pardon of all the sins thy pure eyes have seen committed by us this day. Accept the humble tribute of our thanksgiving for the mercies thy liberal hand hath put into the cup of our lot. Bless us this night with thy fatherly protection and care; and let all evil be kept far distant from our persons, our dwellings, and our friends.

We praise and adore thee, O Jesus, for the myriads who will be saved by thy righteousness and death; and we praise thy glorious name for the immense multitude which is now before thy heavenly throne, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands. O that we may be travelling to the same glorious land, and that we may join them in proclaiming, with ecstasies of unspeakable joy, Salvation to our God, who sitteth upon the throne, and to the Lamb. Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever.

Lord, bless to thy Church the remembrance of thy blessed martyrs, who willingly endured the most excruciating tortures rather than deny the Lord who bought them; and who cheerfully laid down their lives, as an evidence of their invincible attachment to Christ and his cause.

O may our children be filled with love to Jesus; for whom even children have suffered the honourable death of martyrs.

Comfort the mind of all thy poor and afflicted and aged saints. Lift up their hopes to that blessed land where they shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, and where the sun shall not light upon them, nor any heat. May they rejoice that all their sins and infirmities and sorrows shall soon come to an end, and that the Lamb shall lead them to fountains of living waters, and that God himself shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

Mercifully hear and answer and forgive, for the sake of Jesus, the faithful and true witness, who confirmed his testimony by his death. Amen.

MINISTERS.

Comberwell. Welham. Sutton.

G. H.

- 1 YE servants of the Lord,
Each in his office wait,
Observant of his heavenly word,
And watchful at his gate.
- 2 Let all your lamps be bright,
And trim the golden flame;
Gird up your loins as in his sight,
For awful is his name.
- 3 Watch, 'tis your Lord's command;
And while we speak he's near:
Mark the first signal of his hand,
And ready all appear.
- 4 O happy servant he,
In such a posture found!
He shall his Lord with rapture see
And be with honour crowned.

DOBBIDGE.

EZEKIEL I.

Angels.

NOW it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

2 In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity,

3 The word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar; and the hand of the Lord was there upon him.

4 And I looked, and, behold, a whirlwind came out of the north, a great cloud, and a fire infolding itself, and a brightness was about it, and out of the midst thereof as the colour of amber, out of the midst of the fire.

5 Also out of the midst thereof came the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance; they had the likeness of a man.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one had four wings.

7 And their feet were straight feet; and the sole of their feet was like the sole of a calf's foot: and they sparkled like the colour of burnished brass.

8 And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides; and they four had their faces and their wings.

9 Their wings were joined one to another; they turned not when they went; they went every one straight forward.

10 As for the likeness of their faces, they four had the face of a man, and the face of a lion, on the right side: and they four had the face of an ox on the left side; they four also had the face of an eagle.

11 Thus were their faces: and their wings were stretched upward; two wings of every one were joined one to another, and two covered their bodies.

12 And they went every one straight forward: whither the spirit was to go, they went; and they turned not when they went.

13 As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps: it went up and down among the living creatures; and the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning.

14 And the living creatures ran and returned as the appearance of a flash of lightning.

REFLECTIONS UPON EZEK. I.—Tyrants and persecutors may enslave the bodies of the saints, but cannot enslave their souls; they may confine their bodies in prisons, but cannot prevent their affections and hopes from rising to the realities of heaven, and the joys of the celestial paradise above. There are places and dates connected with the history of God's children, which call to their remembrance the most signal manifestations of God's goodness and grace. God's word came prophetically and powerfully to Ezekiel: we should often inquire seriously and impartially, Has the word of God come to us savingly, with the demonstration of the Spirit, and with power? How deep and how mysterious are the purposes of God! and the movements of his providence are often enveloped in dark clouds impenetrable to man; still God's purposes are laid and formed by unerring wisdom, and all the events of providence are wisely managed for his own glory and his people's good.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Jehovah, we acknowledge thee in all thy blessed prerogatives. While with a word thou didst create all things, by the word of thy providence thou dost preserve all things in existence. By the word of thy power thou didst call the universe into being, and by the word of thy providence thou dost rule over the dominions thou hast made. We adore thee, O Lord, as the Lord of angels. These exalted intelligences are thy messengers, whom thou dost send throughout thy vast empire on embassies of the greatest importance. We rejoice that, though multitudes of angels left their first estate, and became rebels, still far greater multitudes remain in their original purity, love, and obedience, and are to this day faithful in their allegiance to Jesus, our exalted Redeemer, whom all the angels of God are commanded to worship. We bless thee that we have reason to believe that these pure and happy beings are confirmed in their glorious excellence and rank by the mediatorial reign of Jesus, and that the spirit of mutiny and rebellion shall no more spread itself among the shining ranks of these ministering angels.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the agency with which angels are entrusted in connection with thy providence, thy word, and thy Church. We adore thee in all those blessed excellences by which thine angels are so qualified for the performance of those great and important duties which are required of them in executing thy will. Bless to us what we have now read of their willingness to serve God. Lord, make us, like them, thy willing servants. May the same mind be in us which was also in Christ; and, breathing his blessed spirit, may we ever say in reference to the service of our God, To do thy will we take delight, yea, thy law is within our hearts. As thine angels are strong to execute thy will, Lord, strengthen us in thy service. May the weak among us become as David, and the house of David as the angel of the Lord. Let us not be intimidated by difficulties, by dangers, by obstacles, by enemies. Encourage us by thy blessed promise, and may we experience its ample accomplishment: They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint.

Gracious God, give thine angels charge of our offspring, to hold them in their hands, lest at any time they should be injured by the stones of temptation which endanger their safety.

We present our thanks for the continued mercies of another night, and for preserving us to see the light and enter upon the duties of another day. This day enable us to run in the way of thy commandments, and even in all our temporal engagements to remember the great end of our existence, the glory of God.

Hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, we would ascribe the kingdom, power, and glory. Amen.

GOD'S ETERNITY.

Kennell. Worship. Gainsborough.

C. M.

- 1 RISE, rise, my soul, and leave the ground,
Stretch all thy thoughts abroad,
And rouse up every tuneful sound
To praise the eternal God.
- 2 Long ere the lofty skies were spread,
Jehovah filled his throne;
Or Adam formed, or angels made,
The Maker lived alone.
- 3 His boundless years can ne'er decrease
But still maintain their prime;
Eternity's his dwelling-place,
And Ever is his time.
- 4 While like a tide our minutes flow,
The present and the past,
He fills his own immortal Now,
And sees our ages waste.
- 5 The sea and sky must perish too
And vast destruction come;
The creatures—look how old they grow,
And wait their fiery doom!

WATTS, 17, B. 11.

REVELATION X.

End of Time.

AND I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire;

2 And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot upon the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 And sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer:

7 But in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

9 And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey.

10 And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 And he said unto me, thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. X.—Our Lord Jesus Christ is infinitely glorious as the messenger of the covenant; and, as the ruler of the universe and the king of Zion, he is clothed with infinite majesty and power. He holds in his hand the book of the Divine decrees, all of which are the result of his own wisdom, and in their fulfilment the effect of his own power. He has essentially boundless wisdom to purpose, and boundless power to accomplish: "He doth all his pleasure." His voice in creation and providence is powerful, it is full of majesty. O how gentle, melting, and influential, is his voice of love in the Gospel of his grace! "it drops as the rain, it distils as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass." Who can conceive the power and majesty of his voice at the last day, which the dead in their graves shall hear, and under the irresistible power of which they shall come forth—they who have done good to the resurrection of life, and they who have done evil to the resurrection of condemnation! O may we be prepared to hear his powerful voice on that day, that great and solemn day! Amen.

PRAYER.

O THOU who art the Holy One of Israel, we fall down before thy throne, agreeably to thy gracious command, to present our evening sacrifice, to acknowledge thee in thine uncreated glory, and in thine eternal and immutable existence, relying on Jesus for acceptance.

We would thankfully praise thee for the kind providence which has watched over us during another week, in supplying the wants of our bodies, in presenting before our souls the bread of life, derived from the store-house of revelation, and in preserving us from many temptations and dangers which our wisdom could not foresee, and from which our feeble strength could afford no adequate defence.

We supplicate the continuance of thy paternal kindness and care this night. Refresh our feeble bodies with sleep and repose; and, if it is thy holy will, may we be spared till another day of sacred rest, and yet of spiritual activity, that we may join thy people in the sanctuary, in ascribing deserved hallelujahs of praise to the God of our salvation.

Bless to our souls the solemn account we have now read of the close of ages, when the kingdoms and governments of this world shall cease for ever, and when time shall be no longer. O impress us with the thought, that time shall be succeeded by an awful, by an endless eternity—and that we, even we, shall be the witnesses of that sublime and affecting event, when a mighty angel amid the noise of the loud thunder shall set his right foot on the sea, and his left foot upon the earth, and sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth and the things that therein are, and the sea and the things that are therein, THAT THERE SHALL BE TIME NO LONGER! In the prospect of that solemn period, of which we shall be the interested living witnesses, we now earnestly implore the God of all grace to give us an interest in Jesus Christ and his righteousness. Awful thought, O Jesus, to live for ever without thee! Give us, we pray, the great blessing of thy salvation. We would seek it before riches and honour, health and life.

Seriously impress the minds of our dear children and servants with the prospect of an endless eternity. Give them love to Jesus, and faith in his death: then the solemnities of eternity will fill them with joy and not with grief.

May we all long to enter heaven, to behold and enjoy the glory of that holy paradise. If the face of thine angels, O Lord, is like the sun, and if their feet are like pillars of fire, what must be the mediatorial glories of Immanuel! what must be the uncreated glories of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost! May we daily long to enter that blessed place where such glory is to be seen, and daily pray that we may be prepared for the inheritance of the saints in light. Hear us graciously, for our Saviour's sake; and may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all, now and for evermore. Amen.

DIVINE PROTECTION.

Newport. Suffolk New. Marks.

L. M.

- 1 UP to the hills I lift mine eyes,
The eternal hills beyond the skies;
Thence all her help my soul derives;
There my almighty refuge lives.
- 2 He lives, the everlasting God,
That built the world, that spread the flood;
The heavens and all their hosts he made,
And the dark regions of the dead.
- 3 He guides our feet, he guards our way;
His morning smiles bless all the day!
He spreads the evening veil, and keeps
The silent hours while Israel sleeps.
- 4 Israel, a name divinely blest,
May rise secure, securely rest;
Thy holy guardian's wakeful eyes
Admit no slumber nor surprise.
- 5 On thee foul spirits have no power;
And, in thy last departing hour,
Angels, that trace the airy road,
Shall bear thee homeward to thy God.

Watts, Ps. 121.

PSALM CXX.

Wicked Tongue.

IN my distress I cried unto the LORD, and he heard me.
2 Deliver my soul, O LORD, from lying lips, and from a deceitful tongue.

3 What shall be given unto thee? or what shall be done unto thee, thou false tongue?

4 Sharp arrows of the mighty, with coals of juniper.

5 Woe is me, that I sojourn in Mesech, that I dwell in the tents of Kedar!

6 My soul hath long dwelt with him that hateth peace.

7 I am for peace: but when I speak, they are for war.

PSALM CXXI.

Divine Help.

I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

2 My help cometh from the LORD, which made heaven and earth.

3 He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

4 Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

5 The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand.

6 The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.

7 The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

8 The LORD shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXX., CXXI.—In the midst of the severest afflictions the prayers of God's children are generally most fervent, and the music of prayer most sweet. There is no dungeon so deep from which even the whisper and the sigh of prayer cannot ascend to the throne of heaven, and enter acceptably and speedily into the ear of the Father of mercies. Inestimable are the advantages of prayer to the afflicted saint. By the prayer of faith he flees, during the storms of falsehood, reproach, and persecution, to the bosom of his God and Saviour, as the doves flee to their windows, and there he finds safety, consolation, and peace. If we compare the Divine perfections to mountains, they are the defence of the redeemed: in the time of danger they look by faith to these mountains for help; and they never look in vain. They are engaged in a most interesting journey, and passing through a wilderness of thorns, difficulties, and danger. But Jesus is their guide, their comforter, and defender; and he will never leave them until he has conducted them to their heavenly home.

PRAYER.

GLORY to the God of all grace, our God and our Father, that we have been preserved and comforted during the past night, and that we are assembled before the throne of thy grace. What are we, that another day should be added to our lives? What are we, that another Sabbath-day should be added to our lives? For other days we praise thee, but especially for this day, this sacred, heavenly day, we would praise and magnify thy name.

To thee, O Lord, alone we would lift up our eyes this day. We would lift up the eyes of our soul to thy perfections, glorified in Christ. These thine attributes are the hills of eternal strength to which we look for protection from our spiritual enemies, from which no arm of human strength could ever defend us. From thy perfections alone cometh our help. We adore thee, most mighty Jehovah, as the helper of thy Church, and as our help. In the prospect of the day of affliction, and of the hour of temptation, and of the day of death, and of the solemnities of judgment, we desire as a family to say, in the exercise of faith, Our help cometh from the Lord, who hath made heaven and earth.

Teach our children to seek Jesus as their only guide and as their only helper. By his wisdom may they be guided, and by his power may they be defended. May our servants be the partakers of grace, and be preserved from this time forth, and even for ever.

Give consolation to thine aged followers. May they firmly cleave to that promise, The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. Have mercy on all thine afflicted people, and particularly those who are prevented from entering thy sanctuary; and may they derive great comfort from these words of promise and encouragement, The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

Have mercy on thy children who are suffering under the keen shafts of reproach. Lord, deliver them from the slandering, the backbiting, and the lying tongue. May what thy people suffer among the sons and daughters of strife and enmity, strengthen their longing desires to enter the peaceful world where they shall for ever enjoy that pure, celestial, and undisturbed peace which passeth all understanding.

Have mercy on all thy ministering servants, that they may preach as in the name, by the authority, and for the glory of a once crucified, but now exalted Redeemer. May our beloved minister be especially filled with the Holy Ghost. We bear him up on the arms of our prayers before the throne, that he may prove God's messenger to us, and be the honoured instrument of conveying spiritual blessings to our souls.

Let thy blessing, in a remarkable degree, attend the dispensation of Divine ordinances throughout all the congregations of thy people. This day may there be a great harvest of immortal souls brought to Christ and his Church; and graciously comfort thine afflicted people in the chambers of suffering by the smiles of thy countenance.

Graciously hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOING TO GOD'S HOUSE.

Zion Church. University. Southwark New.

c. w.

- 1 HOW did my heart rejoice to hear
My friends devoutly say,
In Zion let us all appear,
And keep the solemn day.
- 2 I love her gates, I love the road;
The church, adorned with grace,
Stands like a palace built for God,
To show his mild face.
- 3 Up to her courts, with joys unknown
The holy tribes repair;
The Son of David holds his throne,
And sits in judgment there.

WATTS, Ps. 122.

PSALM CXXII.

Love to God's House.

- I WAS glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.
- 2 Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem.
  - 3 Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together:
  - 4 Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord.
  - 5 For there are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David.
  - 6 Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee.
  - 7 Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces.
  - 8 For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee.
  - 9 Because of the house of the Lord our God I will seek thy good.

PSALM CXXIII.

Confidence in God.

- UNTO thee lift I up mine eyes, O thou that dwellest in the heavens.
- 2 Behold, as the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress; so our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until that he have mercy upon us.
  - 3 Have mercy upon us, O Lord, have mercy upon us: for we are exceedingly filled with contempt.
  - 4 Our soul is exceedingly filled with the scorning of those that are at ease, and with the contempt of the proud.

PSALM CXXIV.

Deliverance from God.

- IF it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say;
- 2 If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us:
  - 3 Then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us:
  - 4 Then the waters had overwhelmed us, the stream had gone over our soul:
  - 5 Then the proud waters had gone over our soul.
  - 6 Blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth.
  - 7 Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers: the snare is broken, and we are escaped.
  - 8 Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXII., CXXIII., CXXIV.—In the sanctuary believers hear their Saviour's voice, and are admitted to the enjoyment of the most intimate and endearing fellowship with their Saviour and their God. It is there the showers of the Spirit's influences peculiarly and copiously descend; it is there the graces of the spirit are exercised with greatest liveliness and vigour; it is there the most heavenly emotions, frames, and feelings, are experienced and cherished. Thus we see the reason for that exalted and ardent delight which believers take in the house of the Lord. How marked; how great the distinction betwixt the sinner and the saint! The former cleaves to the dust; the latter lifts up his heart to heaven. The former turns away his eye from God; the latter looks to God as his father, his guide, and his portion. Are we the children of God? then we resemble angels, and wait to obey our Saviour's laws and do our Saviour's will. Can we call God our Father, and Christ, our Saviour? In this case we have no reason to be afraid either of the number or strength of our enemies. "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah."

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the God of love, and the Lord our God. Teach us by the Holy Spirit thus to acknowledge thee: Thou hast loved us with an everlasting love, and therefore with loving-kindness hast thou drawn us. O that every member of our family were drawn to thyself with the cords of love, as with the bands of a man!

Bless to us the observance of religious ordinances this day. We have indeed been led by our beloved minister, and do thou inspire our souls with a superlative love to Jesus, the Divine Shepherd. In the prospect of the solemn event of our dissolution, which is fast approaching, may we be enabled to sing in the exercise of a lively faith, Yea, though we walk through the valley of the shadow of death, we will fear no evil, for thou, O Jesus, art with us; thy rod and thy staff they comfort us.

Give efficacy, O Lord, to the preaching of the Gospel by thy ministering ambassadors. May the incorruptible seed which they have sown this holy, sacred day, spring up, come to maturity in the hearts of thousands, and be followed by an abundant harvest of precious fruit. Lord, have mercy on hardened, obstinate, and rebellious sinners. May what they have this day heard be followed by their conversion in Christ.

We lament that we have improved so little under the means of grace. O stir us up more diligently to wait upon thee in thine ordinances, and more faithfully and cheerfully to obey thy laws.

We thank thee that we have listened to the sound of the Gospel in the house of the Lord. There may the news of salvation gladden our hearts and the hearts of thousands. May we and our relatives have more pleasure in the ordinances of thy house, than the men of the world have when their corn, wine, and oil abound. We pray for the peace of Jerusalem, thy Church. Let all that love Zion prosper. Peace be within her walls, and prosperity within her palaces.

Teach us, O Lord, affectionately and faithfully to wait on thee, to perform thy will, and to observe thine ordinances. As the eyes of servants look unto the hands of their masters, so may our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until that he have mercy upon us.

We thank thee, gracious God, for all the deliverances thou hast wrought for us. Thou hast preserved us from many temptations, thou hast protected us from many dangers, and thou hast defended us from many enemies. If thou hadst not been on our side, then our enemies had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us. We bless thee that we have not been given a prey to their teeth.

Holy Spirit, enlighten the understanding, and purify the heart of our dear children. O preserve them from their spiritual enemies. May every snare laid for them be broken, and may they escape.

We commit ourselves, soul and body, to thy care this night. Forgive all our offences, and accept our services, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S AWFUL POWER.

Sabel. Footing. Simon's.

c. n.

- 1 O! the Almighty Lord,
How matchless is his power!
Tremble, O earth, beneath his word,
And all the heavens adore.
- 2 Let proud imperious kings
Bow low before his throne;
Crouch to his feet, ye haughty things,
Or he shall tread you down.
- 3 Above the skies he reigns,
And with amazing blows
He deals insufferable pains
On his rebellious foes.
- 4 Yet, everlasting God,
We love to speak thy praise;
Thy sceptre's equal to thy rod,
The sceptre of thy grace.

WATTS, 80, B. 11.

EZEKIEL I.

Wheels of Providence.

NOW as I beheld the living creatures, behold one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, with his four faces.

16 The appearance of the wheels and their work was like unto the colour of a beryl: and they four had one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel.

17 When they went, they went upon their four sides: and they turned not when they went.

18 As for their rings, they were so high that they were dreadful; and their rings were full of eyes round about them four.

19 And when the living creatures went, the wheels went by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up.

20 Whithersoever the spirit was to go, they went, thither was their spirit to go; and the wheels were lifted up over against them: for the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.

21 When those went, these went; and when those stood, these stood; and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up over against them: for the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.

22 And the likeness of the firmament upon the heads of the living creature was as the colour of the terrible crystal, stretched forth over their heads above.

23 And under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward the other: every one had two, which covered on this side, and every one had two, which covered on that side, their bodies.

24 And when they went, I heard the noise of their wings, like the noise of great waters, as the voice of the Almighty, the voice of speech, as the noise of an host: when they stood, they let down their wings.

25 And there was a voice from the firmament that was over their heads, when they stood, and had let down their wings.

26 And above the firmament that was over their heads was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire stone: and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it.

27 And I saw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it, from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about.

28 As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And when I saw it, I fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one that spake.

REFLECTIONS UPON Ezek. 1.—In this sublime portion of Scripture the cherubim, or angels, are represented by the face of a man, an emblem denoting wisdom: may it be our earnest desire to be enriched with saving wisdom from those boundless stores of wisdom which are laid up in Christ! Surely wisdom is more precious than jewels, and all the things we can desire are not to be compared unto it. These cherubim are represented by emblems of fire, light, and air; may those remind me of the light of salvation, the sacred fire of love Divine, and of the breathing of the Holy Spirit! What reason have we to rejoice in a special providence! and that angels consider themselves honoured in having a share of activity in those events which respect the welfare of the saints, and the prosperity of the Church on earth. Let me never murmur at the dark and mysterious events of providence, being fully persuaded that a wise, a merciful, and unerring hand is at the helm of all affairs.

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we, O Lord our God, after the providential kindness of another night, to praise and glorify thy name, as the God of providence. In thine unerring wisdom thou didst, from all eternity, form thy purposes and plans. Thy counsel stands, and thou dost all thy pleasure. Thou art of one mind, and none can turn thee. We acknowledge that in thy providence thou dost invariably adhere to thy purposes, and accomplish all thy vast designs. The wheels of thy providence never move but as thy purposes direct, and the wheels of thy providence always move according to thine unchangeable decrees. We praise thee for the glorious manifestation of thy perfections in the arrangement and in the movement of thy providence. We thank thee for the history of the most remarkable providences recorded in thy Word. Solemnize our minds by the remembrance of the dreadful events of thy providence connected with the punishment and destruction of guilty men, cities, and nations, whose pride and sensuality and crimes rendered them peculiarly obnoxious to a holy, a just, and a mighty God.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the manifestation of thy wisdom in all the events of thy providence; which wisdom was figured out before the mind of the astonished prophet, by those eyes of brightness with which the wheels were surrounded and adorned. O give us that faith by which we shall implicitly believe that thou dost constantly manage all things in the best manner and to the best end. We acknowledge, mighty Saviour, the sublime heights of thy providence. Many of thy events are high and dreadful, and infinitely exceeding the comprehension of our feeble minds. Never allow us to stumble at dark and afflictive ends of providence. May we ever rejoice that thy providence unfolds a book which makes thy counsels shine; and that each opening leaf, and every stroke, fulfils some good and great design of wisdom and of grace.

Give our dear children grace to believe that they are the objects of the kind and special care of providence. When we are removed from them by death, O convince them that thou, the Lord, wilt take them up.

We would recall to our remembrance, with thankfulness, the mercies of the past night, and of the past Sabbath. We bless thee for the joyful sound of salvation which saluted our ears; and which, we trust, gladdened our hearts. We thank thee that we saw Jesus, the only foundation laid in Zion for the sinner's hope and the sinner's safety. Preserve us from building on any other foundation than that which thou hast appointed and made known.

Lord, give us an abundant supply of thy grace for the duties and difficulties of the week on which we have entered. God forbid that we should fall into temptation, and thus bring a reproach on our Christian profession. Hold us up by thy gracious power. Hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is infinitely worthy of all honour and praise. Amen.

SATAN VANQUISHED.

New England. Zion Temple. Armageddon. Redemption. L. M.

- 1 LET mortal tongues attempt to sing
The wars of heaven, when Michael stood
Chief general of the Eternal King,
And fought the battles of our God.
- 2 Against the dragon and his host
The armies of the Lord prevail;
In vain they rage, in vain they boast,
Their courage sinks, their weapons fail.
- 3 Down to the earth was Satan thrown,
Down to the earth his legions fell;
Then was the trump of triumph blown,
And shook the dreadful doops of hell.

Watts, 85, B. I.

REVELATION XII.

The Church represented by a Woman.

AND there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars:

2 And she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads.

4 And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth, and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born.

5 And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days.

7 And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels,

8 And prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitants of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man child.

14 And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent.

15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth.

704

17 And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. XII.—Is the Church compared to a woman? she is the bride, the Lamb's wife; she is arrayed in the robe of his righteousness, which is more glorious than the sun; she treads the world under her feet, despising all the world calls good or great; she is enriched out of the inexhaustible treasury of her royal and Divine husband, and she wears upon her head a diadem of grace which exceeds the brightness of the stars. As a mother she is most illustrious; she is the parent of countless saints, nourished in her bosom, and dandled upon her knees. Sin, Satan, the world, idolatry, superstition, infidelity, and licentiousness are her enemies, her deadly foes; they have combined against her, they have employed the most vigorous and persevering efforts for accomplishing her destruction; but all in vain; at all times her loving husband, who is the mighty God, and the everlasting Father, has spread over her the shield of his protection; amid the most furious storms of persecution she has always sung this song, "God is my refuge and my strength, a very present help in trouble."

PRAYER.

INFINITELY holy and blessed Lord God, the Father of mercies, we draw near unto thee under great encouragement; for thou hast mercifully promised to draw nigh unto all those who call upon thy name. Now we present our bodies before thee in the attitude of prayer; O enable us to present our souls before thee in the exercise of unfeigned devotion. We seek the gracious aid of the Holy Spirit, that we may approach thee in sincerity; for thou wilt accept none but those who worship thee in truth. Thou art of purer eyes than to behold iniquity; and, though our best services are defiled, yet we venture to draw near thy throne, believing and rejoicing that the merit of our Saviour's righteousness will even render our imperfect sacrifices acceptable in thy sight.

We thank a gracious God for the mercies of the day, and pray that thy continued goodness may render sin more hateful to our view. We thank thee for the soundness of mind and vigour of body with which we have been enabled to engage in the various duties of our temporal calling. We would retire to rest this evening, wondering at the loving-kindness of our God. Lord, encompass us and all our relatives with thy favour as with a shield this night.

We thank thee, Divine Redeemer, for that spiritual glory thou hast given to thy Church, represented by the sun, the moon, and a diadem of stars. We humbly pray that all of us may be savingly united to thyself, and become the living members of thy Church. May we be illuminated by the bright rays of Jesus, the Sun of righteousness, and may we trample the moon of this world under our feet. May our conversation be in heaven, whence we look for the Saviour.

We praise thee, O King of Zion, for the wonderful preservation of thy Church in troubled times. In days of severe suffering, when the flames of persecution raged with great fury, thou didst preserve thy Church from being consumed. And when floods of errors and heresies have threatened to carry thy Church away, thou hast maintained her purity, and enabled her to remain firm and unmoved upon the Rock of ages.

Lord, preserve our beloved children from Satan, the accuser of the brethren. Fill their understandings with Divine wisdom, and their hearts with Divine grace; then shall they triumph over the crafty foe.

Lord, have mercy on all our graceless relatives. Make them trophies of a Saviour's victory. Open their eyes to see the awful consequences of a life of impiety and sin, and persuade them to flee to Jesus, the only refuge.

Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. Amen.

COVENANT AND PROMISE.

Psalm's. Sabbath-school. Alle Street.

L. M.

- 1 THE Lord proclaims his grace abroad :
Behold, I change your hearts of stone ;
Each shall renounce his idol-god,
And serve henceforth the Lord alone.
- 2 My grace, a flowing stream, proceeds
To wash your filthiness away :
Ye shall abhor your former deeds,
And learn my statutes to obey.
- 3 My truth the great design insures,
I give myself away to you ;
You shall be mine, I will be yours,
Your God unalterably true.

COOPER.

EZEKIEL XXXVI.

Rick Promises.

BUT I had pity for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went.

22 Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God ; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went.

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which ye have profaned in the midst of them ; and the heathen shall know that I am the Lord, saith the Lord God, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes.

24 For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

25 Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean : from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.

26 A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you : and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

27 And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

28 And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers ; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

29 I will also save you from all your uncleannesses : and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.

30 And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

31 Then shall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations.

32 Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord God, be it known unto you : be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel.

33 Thus saith the Lord God ; In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded.

34 And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by.

35 And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden ; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited.

36 Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate : I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it.

37 Thus saith the Lord God ; I will yet for this be enquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them ; I will increase them with men like a flock.

REFLECTIONS UPON Ezek. xxxvi.—Amazing is the forbearance of God ! His compassion followed guilty Israel to distant Chaldea ; and, even while they profaned his name in that land of graven images, his pity was extended toward them. He was not forgetful of them, though they were unmindful of him. Free grace is the only channel through which mercies flow to guilty man ; and if God should deal with us as we deserve, how should we appear ? How should we stand before God ? The name of God shall be honoured, exalted, and praised in all lands. In ancient Chaldea the idolatry of the country could not prevent the exaltation of Jehovah's name. And all the combined attempts of idolaters, infidels, and atheists shall not succeed in preventing the exaltation of Christ's name, or the establishment of his government over all the kingdoms of the world. "Hallelujah !"

PRAYER.

LORD, we approach thy throne of grace in Jesus' name. We adore thee, O Lord, as a God of infinite holiness. Thy name is holy, and thou art jealous of the honour of thy holy name. Thou wilt not allow the glory of thy name to be given to graven images. Thou art justly and highly displeased when thy name is profaned. Thou wilt not hold them guiltless who take thy name in vain ; and on those who profane thy name thou wilt inflict the heaviest judgments.

Lord, enable us to sanctify and to honour thy holy name. Teach us to think and speak reverently of everything by which thou makest thyself known in the holy records. We praise thee that thy merciful name, as the God of salvation, is made known in our land, and among other nations. We earnestly pray that thy name may be known and sanctified among all nations. Banish from the face of the earth all idols, with their name and their worship. Soon may the hearts of the inhabitants of all kingdoms be comforted and blessed with the knowledge of thy name, as the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth ! May this thy name be precious in our estimation. O let it be to us as ointment poured forth.

If there be any of our dear relatives who are chargeable with profaning thy holy name, by an unnecessary and sinful use of it in their ordinary conversation, or under the influence of excited passions, O deliver them from this great transgression, and teach them to sanctify thy great name, and to discover in their whole lives a holy, filial fear of God.

Preserve our children and domestics from profaning thy blessed name. God forbid that those lips which were formed to praise thee, should ever be employed in blaspheming thy glorious name.

We thank thee, Lord, for the precious promises we have now read : and we humbly pray, that they may be fulfilled in our experience. Thou hast promised to sprinkle clean water upon us, that we may be clean ; yea, to cleanse us from all our filthiness, and from all our idols. O Lord God, do as thou hast said. Thou hast promised, A new heart will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you ; and I will take away the stony heart of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. Heavenly Father, do as thou hast said. Thou hast promised, I will put my spirit within you, and I will cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them. God of salvation, do as thou hast said. Thou hast most graciously said, Ye shall be my people, and I will be your God ; and I also will save you from all your uncleannesses.

We present the tribute of our praise for the mercies of the past night. Give us, we pray, all that is needful for our bodies, but more especially that which is needful for our souls, this day, and all our days. Hear the prayers and forgive the sins of thy humble supplicants, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE FALL OF BABYLON.

Warrington. Samaria. Rochford.

L. M.

- 1 PROUD Babylon yet waits her doom;
Nor can her tottering palace fall,
Till some blessed messenger arise
The spacious heathen world to call.
- 2 And see the glorious time approach!
Behold the mighty angel fly,
The Gospel tidings to convey
To every land beneath the sky!
- 3 O see, on both the Indias' coast,
And Africa's unhappy shore,
The unlearned savage press to hear,—
And, hearing, wonder and adore.

ANON.

REVELATION XIV.

Gospel preached to all Nations.

AND I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps:

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth.

4 These are they which were not defiled; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb.

5 And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God.

6 And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.

8 And there followed another angel, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.

9 And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb:

11 And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.

12 Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yes, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. XIV.—How infinitely glorious Christ appears as the Head of the innumerable company of his saints in heaven! while all of them reflect the bright resemblance of his lovely image. It is delightful to hear the melody of praise in the sanctuary on earth; but what will be our joy when we listen to the songs of the general assembly and Church of the first-born in heaven!

We are soon satiated with the sweetest music on earth; but, in heaven, the matter and the music of the celestial anthems will for ever furnish fresh and undiminished delight. May it be our happiness to learn the lessons of Divine love and saving faith on earth, otherwise we shall never be admitted into the heavenly temple, to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb. On earth the holiness of the saints is mingled with much impurity, the gold of grace is mingled with much dross of corruption; in heaven how blessed the state of the saints! all is holiness and no impurity, all gold and no dross, all grace and no corruptions.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY glorious Lord God, we who are a company of unworthy, guilty, and helpless sinners, assemble before thy throne of grace, in Jesus' name, to seek the blessings of the covenant of thy faithfulness and mercy. Look down upon us from thy lofty habitation, and say to us, I will be merciful to your unrighteousness; your sins and your iniquities I will remember no more. Behold, O God, our shield, and look upon us in the face of thine Anointed.

We present the tribute of our praise for the health and comfort we have enjoyed this day, but more especially for the exercise of our reason, and the hopes of immortality through a Saviour's death. We seek the protection of thy gracious providence this night. Whether we sleep or wake, die or live, may we be for ever thine.

Holy Spirit, mercifully accompany the reading of the Scriptures with thy blessing. Give us that wisdom, by which we shall take thy testimonies as an heritage for ever, and prefer them unspeakably before the richest treasures of gold and silver. Let thy word ever be the rejoicing of our heart.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as the Lamb of God, standing on mount Sion, and as mediator, exercising kingly authority for the defence of thy people, and for the confusion and destruction of thy foes. O may we be among the number of those who have thy Father's name written in their foreheads. Let our hearts be filled with thy spirit, and let our lives be adorned by thy grace.

We thank our God for the animating accounts we have now read of the joys of heaven. Give us a well-grounded hope of these joys. Suffer not the sorrows or afflictions of the present life to overwhelm us, but may we then think of the songs of the redeemed above, in which we shall be permitted to unite, if we live by the faith of the Son of God on earth. Give us that holiness of heart and life, which will be the satisfying evidence that we are interested in the righteousness of Christ, and therefore the heirs of that felicity which is beyond the skies.

O preserve our dear children from all the pollutions of the flesh, which assuredly shut the gates of heaven, and exclude from the celestial mansions. O may they and our servants perfect holiness in the fear of the Lord.

We pray, Lord, that we may be sanctified wholly, in soul, body, and spirit. Teach us to follow the Lamb wherever he leads; then we shall have the evidence that we are the redeemed from among men, and that we are the first fruits unto God and the Lamb.

We praise God for the blessed promise, that the everlasting Gospel shall be preached unto all them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred and tongue and people. O thou who madest heaven and earth, the sea and the fountains of waters, take to thyself thy great power, and level with the ground every proud Babylon that raises itself up in opposition to Christ and his kingdom. Hasten the day when it shall be said of all systems of heresy and spiritual domination, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, and shall no more arise.

Graciously forgive our sins, and accept our evening sacrifices for Jesus' sake. Amen.

MESSIAH'S REIGN.

- Alfred. Country. Antigua. New-Hebath. L. H.*
- 1 THY foes succeeding times shall own,
Long as the sun and waxing moon,
With varied light, in swift career,
Alternate guide the droling year.
  - 2 The Son from heaven his grace shall pour,
Delightful as the copious shower,
Whose drops refresh the new-shorn plain.
And swell with life the foodful grain.
  - 3 His care the just aloft shall raise,
Nor fair prosperity his days
Desist to crown, till round the pole
The measured months shall cease to roll. MERRICK.

DANIEL II.

Nebuchadnezzar's Vision and Christ's Kingdom.

THOU, O king, sawest, and behold a great image. This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the form thereof was terrible.

82 This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, 83 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay.

84 Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet, that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces.

85 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

86 This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king.

87 Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory.

88 And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold.

89 And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth.

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise.

41 And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay.

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken.

43 And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.

44 And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.

45 Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure.

46 Thou the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer an oblation and sweet odours unto him.

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. II.—The hearts of kings, and even of tyrants, are in the hand of the Lord, and he can turn them like the rivers of water: and how easily can he strike them with terror, and overwhelm them with anguish, in the midst of their luxury, pomp, and splendour! The unreasonable caprice of human, self-willed despots, has proved in all ages the calamity of their subjects, and has exposed the best of men to the most alarming dangers. What inestimable blessings are the gift and spirit of believing prayer! and what blessings to thrones, nations, and empires are praying saints, who have access to the presence and fellowship of HIM who holds in his hands the destinies of the universe! O how privileged are they who fear the Lord, for his secret is with those who fear him; and how insignificant and contemptible pagan priests and heathen sorcerers appear, when compared with those holy men who were filled with the spirit of the living God. How delightful to think, that great manifestations of Divine favour are always accompanied with great degrees of humility and self-abasement! Feeble are the mightiest of empires, when contrasted with the kingdom of Jesus. "King Jesus, suffer me to kiss thy sceptre, and live for ever."

PRAYER.

WE fall down before thee this morning as the great eternal ruler of the vast universe, before whom all the nations of the earth are but as the small dust of the balance—before whom its kings are less than nothing, and vanity. We desire to present our morning sacrifice, depending on Jesus for acceptance, under a deep impression of the solemn, yet animating truths we have now read. O Lord, we acknowledge that we are thine, and that thou hast a right and property in us, to do what thou pleasest, and to require of us what seemest good in thy sight. Thou hast given us reason and understanding, that we might know thee; thou hast given us hearts, that we might love thee; and thou hast given us all that we have, that we might serve thee. Alas, that we have come so short of thy glory! So much has sin corrupted our nature, our principles, our desires, and our affections, that, instead of doing thy will, we have opposed it; instead of seeking thy glory, we have attempted to dishonour thy name, and to trample thine authority under our feet. O Lord, we submit to thee all the power of our souls and our bodies, that we may ever be thy holy temple, consecrated to thee and thy glory. Let HOLINESS TO THE LORD be written on all our faculties, our powers, and affections. Let our reason, our love, our life, our substance, our all, be devoted to thee and employed for thee, that we may be thine only, thine wholly, and thine for ever.

We present our thanks for the continued instances of thy providential care afforded us during the past night, and that we are allowed to draw near the mercy-seat, the throne of grace, to seek, through Jesus, the testimonies of thy love. Mercifully bestow upon us grace to serve thee diligently, cheerfully, and faithfully this day. Like the Psalmist, may we make haste to keep thy commandments.

We thank thee, most mighty God, for the sublime and animating predictions we have now read, respecting the gradual rise, the blessed increase, the extensive power, and the perpetual duration of the kingdom of Christ.

Make our children diligent students of the Holy Scriptures, and may they see with joy that the fulfilment of the predictions of Scripture is a blessed bulwark of the truth of thy word, which the power of infidels shall never be able to shake.

O Jesus, we acknowledge ourselves as thy subjects, and we rejoice that thy kingdom, the Church, shall never be destroyed: that all other kingdoms shall be included in this kingdom, and that it shall stand for ever.

We supplicate an answer to our prayers, and the forgiveness of our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

BOOKS OPENED.

Old England. Dulwich. Luther's.

L. H.

- 1 METHINKS the last great day is come!
Methinks I hear the trumpet sound,
That shakes the earth, rends every tomb,
And wakes the prisoners under ground.
- 2 The mighty deep gives up her trust,
Awed by the Judge's high command;
Both small and great now quit their dust,
And round the dread tribunal stand.
- 3 Behold, the awful books displayed,
Big with the important fates of men:
Each deed and word now public made,
As wrote by Heaven's unerring pen.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 189.

REVELATION XX.

Last Day.

AND I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years,

3 And cast him into the bottomless pit, and sbut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season.

4 And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands: and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

5 But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.

7 And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

8 And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.

9 And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

11 And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

12 And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.

13 And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

14 And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. XX.—Jesus, our mighty Lord, is the messenger of the covenant, and the Lord of angels. O how astonishing his authority and power! The keys of life and death, of hall and the grave, are suspended to his girdle. Holy angels are his willing servants. Fallen angels are compelled to submit to his almighty and irresistible control. All of them involuntarily feel the influence of these powerful words, "Hitherto shalt thou come, and no farther." The people of God may occupy the lowest situations on earth; like their Lord, in the days of his humiliation, they may be despised and rejected of men. But O what glory awaits them in heaven!—they shall sit beside Jesus on his throne; they shall be crowned with glory, honour, and immortality. We should often meditate on the solemn realities of the judgment-day. Are we arrayed in the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness? Then we have reason joyfully to anticipate that day, when we shall occupy a place of honourable distinction on the right hand of the exalted Judge.

PRAYER.

WHAT are we, O Lord, that we are commanded to address thee as our Father! We are, by nature, rebels, and wanderers, and apostates, who are worthy of the greatest severity of thy displeasure; and still, in the infinite abundance of thy mercy and condescension, thou art saying to us in accents of love, Wilt thou not from this time say unto me, thou art my Father, the guide of my youth? Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the children of God!

We present our united thanksgivings for the continued mercies of another day. Our daily wants, O Lord, have been ever supplied by thy daily mercies. Let the merit of a Saviour's righteousness cover the guilt we have contracted by the offences of the past day, and of our past lives. Glory to God, that there is an infinite sufficiency of merit in the righteousness of Christ, to cover the guilt of all our sins; and an infinite sufficiency of influence in the spirit of Christ, to wash away the stains of our innumerable transgressions.

We supplicate from our merciful Father the continuance of thy protection and care this night. May we enjoy sleep and repose, under the shadow of thy providential wings.

Deeply solemnize our minds by the awfully impressive truths we have now read. May they place before our minds, in its true light, the great criminality of our carelessness, thoughtlessness, and unbelief; and may they be instrumental in stirring us up to seek after the things which belong to our everlasting peace, before they be for ever hid from our eyes.

Lord, lay restraints on Satan, on our lusts, and on all our spiritual enemies.

Preserve our dear children from the wiles of the devil: give them a spirit of prayer: then they shall be able to withstand Satan, even when he falls upon them with his most furious temptations.

Hasten the day when Satan, the God of this world, shall be bound fast a thousand years, and when he shall be permitted to deceive the nations no more. We adore thy sovereignty in all the persecutions thy saints have endured in past days. We bless thee for the immense good which has come out of this evil; and we rejoice in the glory and felicity to which martyrs are exalted in the celestial world.

Hasten the destruction of the Mahometan delusion, spoken of under the designation of the false prophet. We praise thee, that the light of the Gospel is destined to dispel that, and every other description of delusion.

Lord, affect our minds with the certainty and the solemnity of the judgment-day, when the books shall be opened, when the grave and the sea shall give up their dead, and when the Saviour of men shall appear on his great white throne, in the capacity of Judge of the whole earth. Then may we find our names written in the Lamb's book of life; then we shall appear acquitted on that great and solemn day.

Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

ENEMIES DEFEATED AND GOD TRUSTED.

Cyprus. Mystery. Amsterdam.

P. M.

1 THOU God of glorious majesty,
To thee, against myself, to thee,
A worm of earth, I cry;
A half-awakened child of man;
An heir of endless bliss or pain;
A sinner born to die!

2 Lo! on a narrow neck of land,
"Twixt two unbounded seas I stand,
Yet how insensible!
A point of time, a moment's space,
Removes me to that heavenly place,
Or shuts me up in hell.

WESLEY, 59.

DANIEL III.

The Three Children in the Furnace.

THEN Nebuchadnezzar in his rage and fury commanded to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Then they brought these men before the king.

14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up?

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter.

17 If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king.

18 But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

19 Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnace one seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20 And he commanded the most mighty men that were in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace.

21 Then these men were bound in their coats, their hosen, and their hats, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

22 Therefore because the king's commandment was urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the flame of the fire slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

24 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O king.

25 He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God.

26 Then Nebuchadnezzar came near to the mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spake, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth, and come hither. Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, came forth of the midst of the fire.

27 And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was an hair of their head singed, neither were their coats changed, nor the smell of fire had passed on them.

28 Then Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that trusted in him, and have changed the king's word, and yielded their bodies, that they might not serve nor worship any god, except their own God.

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. III.—It is truly a humiliating spectacle, and a sad evidence of the ruinous effects of sin, to see a man having millions of people under his control, unable either to command his temper or restrain his passion. Let it be our earnest prayer that we may be enabled to rule over our own spirit, and that, when we have just reason for anger, we may be "angry and sin not." Let us rejoice with thankfulness that we know there is a God; and that we know from the blessed revelation which God has given us, that he is the ONLY, the living, and the true God; and especially, that we are taught to worship him as God, and as our God in Christ. The three young men nobly resisted the temptation of the Chaldean king to abandon the worship of Israel's God: may no temptation from Satan, the world, or the flesh, ever draw us aside from the worship of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God!

PRAYER.

INFINITELY glorious and merciful Lord God, teach us, by thy Spirit, to bow before thy throne with humility and thankfulness, and in Jesus' name. We praise thy never-failing goodness, which has preserved us during the past night, and brought us in safety to behold the light of another day. Defend us, by thy gracious power, from all the evils of this day, whether they respect the soul or the body, or our temporal or our spiritual concerns. Give us Divine help in religious observances, and also that health of body and vigour of mind which are necessary for the ordinary business of life. O that, in all our engagements, the glory of God may be constantly in view; and that every day our minds may be duly and deeply impressed with it as the great, the only end of our existence. Deliver us, O Lord, from the natural bent of our own minds, and may we not be left to be carried away by the imaginations of our own hearts. Let each one of us be convinced, that however much we ought to dread the influence of Satan and the world, we have reason to view the corruptions of our own hearts as our greatest and our most dangerous enemies. We seek the communications of Divine grace, without which the corruptions of our nature shall never be removed from the government of the heart. Too long sin has reigned within; heaven grant, that where sin has so long prevailed, grace may now reign through righteousness, unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ, our Lord.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the only deserved object of religious worship and adoration; and we bless thee for the remarkable communications of thy grace given to thy three servants, by which they were strengthened nobly and successfully to withstand the cruel and profane edict of the king to yield religious homage to false gods. We thank thee for that faith and purity and zeal which they were enabled to exemplify, and which thou hast graciously held up to excite the admiration of every succeeding generation.

O Lord, give our dear children grace and boldness to resist temptation. In early days, may they be strong in the Lord, and do exploits; then they shall be able to say, with thy servant, at the close of life, We have fought the good fight, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith.

We bless thee, O Lord, for preserving thy three children in the fiery furnace, and for honouring them with thy presence and fellowship. May affliction prove to us, and all our relatives, a purifying furnace; and may we come forth like the gold that has been tried seven times.

Make aged travellers thankful, when they remember past deliverances. Truly, thou hast been with them in six troubles; and in seven no evil has befallen them.

Hear our imperfect petitions, and forgive all our sins, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

THE HEAVENLY CITY.

Gibeah. Mount Pleasant. Hephzibah.

c. n.

- 1 LO, what a glorious sight appears
To our believing eyes!
The earth and sea are passed away,
And the old rolling skies.
- 2 From the third heaven where God resides,
That holy, happy place,
The new Jerusalem comes down,
Adorned with shining grace.
- 3 Attending angels shout for joy,
And the bright armies sing,
Mortals, behold the sacred seat
Of your descending King

Watts, 21, B. I.

REVELATION XXI.

The New Jerusalem.

AND I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

2 And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

4 And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

5 And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful.

6 And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

8 But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.

9 And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife.

10 And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal;

12 And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass.

13 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every several gate was of one pearl: and the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

14 And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it.

15 And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

16 And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.

17 And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for there shall be no night there.

18 And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. XXI.—What a wonderful difference betwixt the Church militant on earth, and the Church triumphant in heaven! Here, the Church resembles a ship at sea, exposed to many furious storms and tempests; in heaven, the Church triumphant enjoys undisturbed and eternal tranquillity and peace: there enmity, discord, anarchy, confusion, and war, are for ever unknown. In God's presence is the perfection of the very fulness of joy, and rivers of pleasure for evermore. What infinite reason has the Church to rejoice in Christ as her Husband! As his Bride he comforts her, arrays her in spiritual garments of unspeakable beauty, defends her, admits her to the constant enjoyment of his fellowship, enriches her and makes her a sharer of his honour and glory for ever and ever in the heavenly mansions.

PRAYER.

O THOU Creator of the ends of the earth, we praise thee as the God of providence, and we acknowledge and adore thee as the God of grace. Thou art infinitely holy, and thou wilt in no wise allow anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie, to enter into thy holy heaven. Lord, justify us by the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son; thou shalt we obtain a title to heaven. Lord, sanctify us by the purifying influences of thy Holy Spirit; then shall we obtain a meetness and preparation for that holy city. Give us grace constantly to remember, that heaven is a prepared place, for a prepared people.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the glory of thy uncreated majesty and grace, which fills heaven with light, blessedness, and joy. Truly, there is no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in those heavenly regions: for thy glory, O Lord, doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

We present the tribute of our thanksgiving for the mercies of the day. We bless thee for every description of thy kindness experienced, both as to the perishing concerns of time, and the infinitely important concerns of an eternal world. Enable us, under the influence of holy and filial repentance, to seek the pardon of our daily sins, and the full and eternal forgiveness of all our transgressions. God, be merciful to us sinners. If thou shouldst mark iniquity, O Lord, who shall stand? But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared. It is thy prerogative alone to punish sin; it is thy prerogative alone to forgive sin. Infinite is our guilt, and innumerable our sins; but we rejoice, that in the gracious arrangements of thy wisdom, and in the manifold provision of thy love, if any man sin, there is an advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our sins. O let the blood of Jesus Christ cleanse us from all sin, and purge our consciences from dead works, to serve thee, the living God. We pray that we may dwell in safety this night, and that we may be quiet from the fear of evil; and when our days and nights have come to a close, that we may be admitted to that heaven, where there is no night of affliction, and where there is no sea of trouble and temptation to try the faith or disturb the peace of the blessed inhabitants.

Bless to our dear children the descriptions we have now read of the heavenly state. May they love heaven as a holy place; and may we see early evidences that they are travelling to that glorious city.

Fulfil in our experience as a family that promise, He will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. Lord, comfort all thy afflicted people with the hopes of that period when thou wilt wipe away all tears from their eyes. Grant, O Lord, that all of us at death may exchange the wilderness for the holy paradise above, where we shall ever be with the Lord. Hear us, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

MAN'S WICKEDNESS.

Egypt, Orange, Broderick's.

- 1 WHEN man grows bold in sin,
My heart within me cries,
"He hath no faith of God within,
Nor fear before his eyes."
2 He walks a while concealed
In a self-flattering dream,
Till his dark crimes at once revealed
Expose his hateful name.
3 But there's a dreadful God,
Though men renounce his fear;
His justice hid behind the cloud
Shall one great day appear.

G. M.

Watts, Ps. 80.

DANIEL IV.

Nebuchadnezzar's Loss and Recovery of Reason.

THEN Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonished for one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation thereof, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies.

20 The tree that thou sawest, which grew, and was strong, whose height reached unto the heaven, and the sight thereof to all the earth;

21 Whose leaves were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all; under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and upon whose branches the fowls of the heaven had their habitation:

22 It is thou, O king, that art grown and become strong; for thy greatness is grown, and reacheth unto heaven, and thy dominion to the end of the earth.

24 This is the interpretation, O king, and this is the decree of the most High, which is come upon my lord the king:

25 That they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field, and they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and they shall wet thee with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over thee, till thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

27 Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by showing mercy to the poor, if it may be a lengthening of thy tranquillity.

28 All this came upon the king Nebuchadnezzar.

29 At the end of twelve months he walked in the palace of the kingdom of Babylon.

30 The king spake, and said, Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?

31 While the word was in the king's mouth, there fell a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee.

32 And they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field: they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

33 The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws.

34 And at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the most High, and I praised and honoured him that liveth for ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation:

35 And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. IV.—Daniel was greatly astonished and overwhelmed when, by Divine inspiration, God revealed to him the prophetic dream of the Chaldean king, and the remarkable events to which the mysterious dream referred. On account of the frailty of feeble humanity, prophets were often overcome, and even ready to expire, under the influence of supernatural revelations, when the curtain was drawn aside, and they beheld the events of distant ages. O how unspeakably vigorous must be the souls of the redeemed in heaven, which are not only enabled to bear, but delightfully to enjoy, the unveiled splendours of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost! Pride is an abomination to the Lord. Pride was the harbinger of the fall of Nebuchadnezzar, who was then the most powerful prince on the face of the earth. May God clothe us with humility, which is the soul's glory and defence.

PRAYER.

WE appear, O Lord, as a worshipping family, before thy gracious throne, in the name of our exalted Intercessor, to bless and praise thee for the mercies of the past night. As thou hast brought us in safety to another day, it is our privilege and duty to begin the day in ascribing to thee, glory, honour, and praise: to bless the most High, and to praise and honour him that liveth for ever and ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and whose kingdom is from generation to generation.

We lift up our eyes to thy gracious throne for the continuance of thy fatherly guidance, mercy, provision, and care, this day. Suffer not our sinful passions or tempers to rise when we mingle with those around us, and when we engage in the ordinary business of life. Preserve us from the love of the world and from the snares of the world. Give us that wisdom by which we shall mingle with our temporal diligence holy fervour of spirit in seeking after the infinitely more important affairs which regard the soul and an eternal world.

Holy Spirit, teach us, in the language and fervour of true devotion and sacred reverence, to acknowledge and adore the Lord our God, in all the glory and greatness of his uncreated majesty and unchangeable blessedness.

How insignificant are earthly kingdoms, when compared with thy vast empire, which includes unnumbered worlds! How short the duration of earthly kingdoms, compared with thine! for thy kingdom shall remain in all its glory, when the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll, and when the earth and all its glory shall be burnt up. How easily the will of earthly kings may be opposed, and how soon their purposes may be thwarted! but before thee the opposition of myriads can avail nothing;—yea, all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and thou doest according to thy will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth; and none can stay thy hand, or say unto thee, What doest thou?

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as our King; and we pray that thy laws may be written on our hearts, and our souls filled with thy love.

O subdue the hearts of our children by thy grace; and may they testify, in their early days, that they are not ashamed of Jesus, who was not ashamed to die on a cross for our ruined world.

We long, O Jesus, for the universal extension of thy kingdom of grace; and we pray thou wouldst hasten thy kingdom of glory, when all the kingdoms of the earth shall rejoice under thy mediatorial dominion.

Mercifully forgive our sins, and answer our prayers, for Jesus the Mediator's sake. Amen.

HEAVEN.

Mottram. Blenheim (1st 26 bars.) Cherriton. C. N.

- 1 TOO long, alas! I vainly sought
For happiness below;
But earthly joys, though dearly bought,
No solid good bestow.
- 2 At length, through sovereign grace, I found
The good and promised land,
Where milk and honey flow around,
And grapes in clusters stand.
- 3 As I have tasted of the grapes,
I sometimes long to go
Where my dear Lord his vineyard keeps,
And all the clusters grow.

ANON.

REVELATION XXII.

The Heavenly Paradise.

AND he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

3 And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him:

4 And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads.

5 And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever.

6 And he said unto me, These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be done.

7 Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things.

9 Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God.

10 And he saith unto me, Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

12 And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be.

13 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

14 Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

15 For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie.

16 I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star.

17 And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

18 For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

19 And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

20 He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly; Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

21 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON REV. XXII.—How pure, how copious, how uninterrupted, how constant the felicity and blessedness of heaven! constituting a magnificent river of life, flowing from the living fountain of the boundless goodness of the living God. Is Jesus the Tree of Life? The influences of his Spirit are those leaves by which diseased souls are healed; and the blessings of his salvation are those delicious clusters of Divine fruit, which constitute the food and nourishment of saints on earth and saints in heaven. Wherever we cast our eyes over the face of the earth, we see those curses which are the fruits of sin's corrupted tree. But when we look to heaven with the eye of faith, we see a paradise where there are no thorns or briars, and no venomous serpents lurking among the fragrant bowers. Truly there is nothing to hurt in God's holy, heavenly mountain, where the glory of God and the Lamb shines for ever and ever.

PRAYER.

FATHER of mercies, and source of all blessedness, we approach thee through our great High Priest, whose name is dear to thyself; and we humbly pray that thou wouldst graciously accept our thanksgivings for the blessings of the past day. We thank thee for that light of grace which cannot even be obscured by the darkness of night; and we praise thee for that glorious and uncreated Sun which shall never go down, and which shines in all the majesty of its splendour in the heavenly world. Mercifully watch over us this night, and may we lie down to rest in the indulgence of the blessed hope of a glorious immortality, and looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto eternal glory.

We present before our God the tribute of our praise, for the consoling view which the Word we have now read has presented before us, of the glory, majesty, loveliness, and blessedness of the heavenly world. Teach us, Holy Spirit, to compare earth with heaven, and then may we say with an apostle, Having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. We thank thee, O Lord, for the river of consolation and grace we are permitted to taste and enjoy on earth. O may we be admitted at death to the heavenly world, that we may for ever drink of the pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and the Lamb. May we and all our beloved relatives, our minister, and the people with whom we are associated in holy fellowship, meet together on the banks of the river of life beyond the skies. May the disappointments and trials, the losses, sufferings, and bereavements of the present life, raise our thoughts and hopes to that heavenly land, where Jesus as the tree of life appears, furnishing fruits of everlasting blessedness and joys to all the inhabitants. In this world, O Jesus, may we sit down under thy shadow with great delight, and may thy fruit be sweet to our taste. And in heaven may we sit down under thy shadow with unspeakable joy: and through endless day may thy banner over us be love.

Divine Saviour, we earnestly pray that our dear children and servants may be found, in time, in a state of grace, and, in eternity, in a state of glory.

Have mercy on our graceless relatives and friends. We bear them upon our prayers. O convince them that without a change they never can be admitted into a holy heaven. Give them faith to accept of the invitations of mercy, to receive grace, and a title to the joys of heaven.

O Lord, answer our supplications, and forgive our sins, for a dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

PRAYER TO GOD IN GREAT DIFFICULTIES.

Bankfield. Thorn. Synod.

A. M.

- 1 I LIFT my soul to God,
My trust is in his name;
Let not my foes, that seek my blood,
Still triumph in my shame.
- 2 Sin, and the powers of hell,
Persuade me to despair;
Lord, make me know thy covenant well,
That I may 'scape the snare.
- 3 From the first dawning light,
Till the dark evening rise,
For thy salvation, Lord, I wait,
With ever-longing eyes.

Watts, Ps. 26, p. 1.

DANIEL VI.

Daniel in the Lions' Den.

NOW when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

12 Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, according to the law of the Medes and Persians which altereth not.

13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

14 Then the king, when he heard these words, was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him; and he laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.

15 Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree or statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

17 And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his lords; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

18 Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting: neither were instruments of musick brought before him: and his sleep went from him.

19 Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions.

20 And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?

21 Then said Daniel unto the king, O king, live for ever.

22 My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no hurt.

23 Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God.

24 And the king commanded, and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, them; their children, and their wives; and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den.

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. VI.—Daniel's habitation was infinitely more honoured than the gorgeous palace of king Darius: it was a house of prayer, and therefore "the house of God, and the gate of heaven." May our dwellings resemble the dwelling of the holy Daniel. Like him may we possess the spirit of grace and supplication. Like him may no threatenings or dangers prevent us from publicly and openly acknowledging, adoring, and worshipping the Lord our God. The death of Daniel was determined on because of his piety; and the death of Jesus was determined upon because of his immaculate purity. Daniel, because of his innocency, was safely delivered from the lions' den; Jesus, because of his perfect and atoning righteousness, came triumphantly from the grave, the den of death, the devouring lion of our fallen race. Daniel's enemies perished; and Christ's penitent enemies must meet a dreadful doom.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the living God. Thy perfections, prerogatives, and government, are steadfast for ever. Thy kingdom shall never be destroyed, and thy dominion shall continue unchanged unto the end of ages. Thou who deliverest thy servant Daniel from the den of devouring lions, art he who deliverest and rescuest thy people; and thou workest signs in the heavens and the earth.

We offer up our thanks before thy gracious throne, that thou hast preserved our lives, our reason, and our health during another night, and that another opportunity is given us of calling on thy name, and of tasting the sweets of religion in fellowship with thyself. Mercifully vouchsafe to us thy blessing and help in all the lawful engagements and religious observances of the day. We humbly supplicate the supply of all our wants from the inexhaustible stores of thy providential bounty. While we are earnest to have the supply of our daily wants, make us equally earnest to be delivered from daily sins, and preserved from daily temptations.

Lord, bestow upon us that love for prayer which Daniel felt so powerful in his bosom, that he was resolved to continue his supplications to his God, even at the hazard of his life. Holy Spirit, teach us the sacred lesson of prayer, and fill our hearts with such love to the exercise of prayer, that, instead of being constrained to pray, we shall not be able to live without prayer.

We would mourn over the aversion which earthly kings have shown to thy people, thine ordinances, and thy name. Speedily, O Lord, let all their laws which are in force against thy Son and thy Gospel be repealed. We praise thee, that laws which anciently existed against thy Gospel and thy people are now destroyed, and that just laws have risen up in their place, which are a barrier of defence around thy Church.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy miraculous interposition in behalf of Daniel thy servant, in so wonderfully preserving him in the den of lions.

O preserve our beloved children from temptations, more dangerous than devouring lions. Like Daniel, may they possess the spirit of prayer—then wilt thou deliver them.

We thank thee, O most gracious God, for all the deliverances thou hast wrought out for us, and for all our relatives and friends. O accomplish for us deliverance from all our spiritual enemies, and deliverance from all our lusts and corrupted passions. Deliver us, O Lord, from the curse of a violated law, from the sting of death, and from the miseries of hell. Preserve us for thy heavenly kingdom, and may we all assemble on the blessed plains of the celestial paradise, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SAINTS' TRIAL AND SAFETY.

Bradley Church. Westminster. Falcon Street.

A. M.

- 1 FIRM and unmoved are they
That rest their souls on God;
Firm as the mount where David dwelt,
Or where the ark abode.
- 2 As mountains stood to guard
The city's sacred ground,
So God and his almighty love,
Embrace his saints around.
- 3 What though the Father's rod
Drop a chastening stroke,
Yet, lest it wound their souls too deep,
Its fury shall be broke.

Watts, Ps. 125.

PSALM CXXV.

God the God and Deliverer of his People.

- THEY that trust in the LORD shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever.
- 2 As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the LORD is round about his people from henceforth even for ever.
  - 3 For the rod of the wicked shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous: lest the righteous put forth their hands unto iniquity.
  - 4 Do good, O LORD, unto those that be good, and to them that are upright in their hearts.
  - 5 As for such as turn aside unto their crooked ways, the LORD shall lead them forth with the workers of iniquity: but peace shall be upon Israel.

PSALM CXXVI.

Israel's Return from Babylon.

- WHEN the LORD turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream.
- 2 Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the heathen, The LORD hath done great things for them.
  - 3 The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.
  - 4 Turn again our captivity, O LORD, as the streams in the south.
  - 5 They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.
  - 6 He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

PSALM CXXVII.

God's Care.

- EXCEPT the LORD build the house, they labour in vain that build it: except the LORD keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.
- 2 It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of sorrows: for so he giveth his beloved sleep.
  - 3 Lo, children are an heritage of the LORD: and the fruit of the womb is his reward.
  - 4 As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man; so are children of the youth.
  - 5 Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them: they shall not be ashamed, but they shall speak with the enemies in the gate.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXV., CXXVI., CXXVII.—The life of faith in God's Son is a life of safety, blessedness, and peace. Is Jesus mine? Then I am surrounded by the Divine perfections, which are mountains of immutable strength, and of eternal duration. They who are the enemies of the saints are the enemies of God; and they who afflict God's saints shall bring upon themselves God's vengeance. Deliverance from the captivity of Egypt and Babylon was great, but insignificant when compared with the deliverance from the captivity of sin, Satan, the world, and the law as a broken covenant of works. On account of this deliverance, "the ransomed of the Lord return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads." If we are taught of God, we see and acknowledge that all our comforts flow from God, and that, temporally and spiritually, we can do nothing without his aid, and can succeed in no undertaking without his blessing. What an inheritance to pious parents are children adorned by grace! Let parents therefore earnestly pray that their children may receive grace, as an "ornament to their head, and chains around their neck."

PRAYER.

OLORD our God, thou art the almighty God, the Creator of the heavens and the earth. Thou art the Lord of glory, infinitely worthy of the love of all thine intelligent subjects, and infinitely worthy to be praised in the assembly of thy saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are round about thee. Though thou art everywhere present, yet heaven is the place of thy more peculiar abode, where thou art attended by angels and archangels, who veil their faces with their wings, while they proclaim the honours of thy praise.

We humbly supplicate the forgiveness of the sins of the concluding week. Give us faith to look to Christ's atoning sacrifice as the only foundation of our hope of pardon and acceptance. When we are afflicted with the number and aggravation of our sins, may we look to the meritorious righteousness of our Redeemer, which alone can pacify the troubled conscience, as that righteousness alone has satisfied the demands of thine offended justice. O sprinkle us with the peace-speaking blood of Jesus. We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the week. May our trials be sanctified, and may our comforts be blessed. We commit ourselves to thy care and protection this night. Refresh and invigorate us with sleep, and mercifully spare and prepare us for the solemn and sacred services of thy blessed and hallowed day. Prepare us, and the congregation of which we form a part, and our minister, and all thy people, for the interesting and animating services of thy house. And may the Holy Spirit, whose influences on past Sabbaths have rendered the Word effectual in the salvation of myriads, render thy Word on the approaching Sabbath effectual in the salvation of many who are now the slaves of Satan and the captives of sin.

Mercifully apply to our hearts what we have now read. Give us faith to trust in God at all times; then we shall be like mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. May we never be left to trust in our own righteousness, as a ground of hope, which is only a foundation of sand, and cannot endure the storms of Divine wrath. Lord, enable us to exercise faith in all thy perfections, as glorified in Christ; and may we look upon them as our blessed and almighty defence. As the mountains surrounded and defended Jerusalem, may we confidently believe that all the perfections of our God are round about us as a wall of fire, to defend us from all our enemies.

If, in thy providence, our dear children shall survive us, their parents and guardians, may they find Jesus their everlasting Father, and the Divine attributes their almighty defence.

Have mercy on all thy faithful people. Do good unto them, O Lord, that be good, and to them that are upright in their hearts: and, O convince the workers of iniquity that, unless they turn aside from their crooked ways, they must for ever endure thy wrath.

Mercifully hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

PARDONING GRACE.

Mercy Seat. Shelden. Angel's Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 FROM deep distress and troubled thoughts
To thee, my God, I raise my cries:
If thou severely mark our faults,
No flesh can stand before thine eyes.
- 2 But thou hast built thy throne of grace,
Free to dispense thy pardons there,
That sinners may approach thy face,
And hope and love as well as fear.
- 3 As the benighted pilgrims wait,
And long and wish for breaking day,
So waits my soul before thy gate,
When will my God his face display?

Watts, Ps. 130, p. II.

PSALM CXXVIII.

God's Goodness.

- BLESSED is every one that feareth the LORD; that walketh in his ways.
- 2 For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: happy shall thou be, and it shall be well with thee.
  - 3 Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house: thy children like olive plants round about thy table.
  - 4 Behold, that thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the LORD.
  - 5 The LORD shall bless thee out of Zion: and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life.
  - 6 Yea, thou shalt see thy children's children, and peace upon Israel.

PSALM CXXIX.

Christ's Sufferings.

- MANY a time have they afflicted me from my youth, may Israel now say:
- 2 Many a time have they afflicted me from my youth: yet they have not prevailed against me.
  - 3 The plowers plowed upon my back: they made long their furrows.
  - 4 The LORD is righteous: he hath cut asunder the cords of the wicked.
  - 5 Let them all be confounded and turned back that hate Zion.
  - 6 Let them be as the grass upon the house-tops, which withereth afore it groweth up.
  - 7 Wherewith the mower filleth not his hand; nor he that bindeth sheaves his bosom.
  - 8 Neither do they which go by say, The blessing of the LORD be upon you: we bless you in the name of the LORD.

PSALM CXXX.

Waiting on God.

- OUT of the depths have I cried unto thee, O LORD.
- 2 LORD, hear my voice: let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.
  - 3 If thou, LORD, shouldest mark iniquities, O LORD, who shall stand?
  - 4 But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared.
  - 5 I wait for the LORD, my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope.
  - 6 My soul waiteth for the LORD more than they that watch for the morning: I say, more than they that watch for the morning.
  - 7 Let Israel hope in the LORD: for with the LORD there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption.
  - 8 And he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXVIII., CXXIX., CXXX.—Nothing can prevent the blessedness of those who live in God's fear, and who walk in God's ways. Even if their share of temporal things be moderate, it is accompanied with God's blessing; and thus, the little, that a righteous man hath, is better than the riches of many wicked. True piety makes a family a little church, and even an epitome of heaven, where all is harmony, love, and peace. If this world is the scene of the sufferings and sorrows of the saints, heaven will be the scene of their perfection, purity, and bliss. Affecting truth—our Saviour was scourged, condemned, and crucified! But how were his enemies confounded when he rose triumphant from the grave! And how confounded shall they be at the judgment-day, when they appear condemned before his righteous tribunal! Believers know experimentally the depths of temptation, poverty, sickness, persecution, and desertion. But, in the lowest depths, they have enjoyed the most delightful fellowship with God; and from those depths have ascended prayers, which have instantly met with their heavenly Father's acceptance, and which have been the harbingers of the most glorious deliverances and the most distinguished triumphs.

PRAYER.

O LORD God of hosts, thou art Israel's God, and there is none like thee, who keepest covenant and shonest mercy unto thy servants, who walk before thee with all their hearts. Holy Spirit, enable us on the morning of this joyful day to present ourselves and our sacrifices before God acceptably, in the name of Christ. Lord, hear our voice, and be attentive to our cry. Great is our sinfulness and guilt. If thou, Lord, whose holiness is spotless, and whose justice cannot relax in its righteous demands, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand? But what reason have we to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory, that there is mercy with thee, that thou mayest be feared! Let all of us look to the righteousness of Jesus as our only, and as our infinitely sufficient bulwark of defence, and then may we wait on the Lord, who will most readily extend his mercy, and deliver us from guilt and woe. What time we may be overwhelmed, when we think of our sins which appear before us like the great mountains, may we hope in the Lord: for with thee there is mercy, and with our God there is plenteous redemption. O teach us to hope in thee the Lord, and thou wilt redeem us from all our iniquities.

We thank that kind and gracious Providence which has spared us through another night, and which has permitted us, on the morning of another Sabbath-day, to encompass our domestic altar. Ever may we remember, that our God can accept no sacrifices except the services of the heart. O enable us, in all the solemnities of this holy Sabbath, to worship thee in spirit and in truth. May many, under the preaching of the Word, be instructed to fear the Lord and walk in his ways; then they shall be blessed.

May we perceive an evident improvement in our beloved children by the Divine ordinances of thy Sabbath. O let the efficacy of thy Word appear in their obedience, their gentleness, their purity, and their love.

We pray for the prosperity of Zion. In our day may we see a blessed extension of the kingdom of Christ, and multitudes of Jews and Gentiles flocking to the standard of Immanuel. O may we as a family be blessed out of Zion; and may we see the good of Jerusalem all the days of our life.

Give thy ministers grace to place before the minds of the people, with solemnity and effect, the sufferings of Christ; that the hearts of the people may mourn over those sins which brought the Saviour to the dust of death; and that their hearts may be filled with love to that Saviour whose love to men led him to Gethsemane's garden, and conducted him to Calvary's cross. O Jesus, the plowers plowed upon thy back; they made long their furrows: let the remembrance of thy sufferings teach us to forsake sin, which brought thee into floods of tribulation; and teach us to rely upon thee, as our sure, our only hope.

Hear us, O Lord, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SUBMISSION AND HUMILITY.
Westerham. Marylebone. Burford.

C. H.

- 1 IS there ambition in my heart?
Search, gracious God, and see;
Or do I act a haughty part?
Lord, I appeal to thee.
- 2 I charge my thoughts, be humble still,
And all my carriage mild,
Content, my Father, with thy will,
And quiet as a child.
- 3 The patient soul, the lowly mind,
Shall have a large reward;
Let saints in sorrow lie resigned,
And trust a faithful Lord.

Watts, Ps. 131.

PSALM CXXXI.

Humility.

LORD, my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty: neither do I exercise myself in great matters, or in things too high for me.

2 Surely I have behaved and quieted myself, as a child that is weaned of his mother: my soul is even as a weaned child.

3 Let Israel hope in the LORD from henceforth and for ever.

PSALM CXXXII.

The Ark of the Covenant.

LORD, remember David, and all his afflictions:

2 How he swore unto the LORD, and vowed unto the mighty God of Jacob;

3 Surely I will not come into the tabernacle of my house,
nor go up into my bed;

4 I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine
eyelids,

5 Until I find out a place for the LORD, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

6 Lo, we heard of it in Ephratah: we found it in the fields of the wood.

7 We will go into his tabernacles: we will worship at his footstool.

8 Arise, O LORD, into thy rest; thou, and the ark of thy strength.

9 Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy saints shout for joy.

10 For thy servant David's sake turn not away the face of thine anointed.

11 The LORD hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne.

12 If thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore.

13 For the LORD hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation.

14 This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell; for I have desired it.

15 I will abundantly bless her provision: I will satisfy her poor with bread.

16 I will also clothe her priests with salvation: and her saints shall shout aloud for joy.

17 There will I make the horn of David to bud: I have ordained a lamp for mine anointed.

18 His enemies will I clothe with shame: but upon himself shall his crown flourish.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXXI., CXXXII.—Peaceful is that mind which is free from earthly, carnal, unhallowed ambition; and which is under the delightful, holy influence of gentleness, meekness, mercy, and humility. May we resemble little children, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. May our hearts be weaned from earthly things, and may our conversation be in heaven, whence we look for the Saviour. God cannot forget his people in their afflictions; he cannot forget to strengthen them to bear their afflictions; he cannot forget to sanctify their afflictions; and he will not forget, finally, to deliver them from all their afflictions. In the estimation of the saints, how amiable are the tabernacles, the earthly courts, the public ordinances of the Lord of hosts! God's sanctuary is especially his residence on earth, where he admits his people to his fellowship, where he displays his smiles, where he hears and answers the prayers of his people, and where he confers upon them the choicest favours of his love.

PRAYER.

O THOU King and Head of Zion, we come before thee, agreeably to thy gracious will, at the close of another Sabbath, to implore thy blessing on the sacred duties in which we and tens of thousands have been engaged throughout the Christian world. We rejoice in thy willingness to hear the prayers of all thy people, in the name of Christ; and we adore thee in thine ability to answer the prayers of all thy humble and devout worshippers. Thine ear is not heavy that thou canst not hear, nor thine hand weary that thou canst not deliver. Let great prosperity attend the preaching of thy Word, in all the churches. May an abundant and lasting harvest of blessings follow the incorruptible seed which has been sown by thy faithful servants. Bless what we have heard from the lips of thy messenger. Prevent the cares of the world, or the corruptions of our own heart, from rising up to choke the Word. Great are our privileges, but we have reason to mourn that our improvement bears no proportion to the number or worth of those Gospel privileges with which we are so eminently enriched. O Lord God, preserve us from spiritual barrenness under the means of grace. May our congregation, and our families, and our souls, be gardens of spiritual beauty and fruitfulness. Let thy promise be fulfilled in us—I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive-tree, and his smell as Lebanon.

Forgive, O Lord, the sins of our holy things, and the numerous imperfections which cleave to our most solemn engagements.

May the efficacy of the means of grace be exemplified by our gentleness, humility, and repentance. Preserve us from the pride of our own heart. Suffer not our hearts to be haughty, nor our eyes to be lofty. In the discharge of religious duties, in the business of life, and amid all the afflictions and trials of the present state, may our soul resemble the weaned child. O wean our hearts from the riches, the honours, the pleasures, the power, and the pursuits of the present life. May our hearts be filled with the love of Christ, and may our conversation be in heaven, whence we look for the Saviour.

May our dear children now be made the scholars of a gracious Saviour, and may their hearts be preserved from the captivating and destructive charms of a present world.
Let their youthful bosoms glow with a powerful affection to the Saviour of souls. Grant, O Lord, that our servants may ever love thy house, and delight in thine ordinances.

Have mercy on thine aged servants. As their days increase, may their grace increase. As their natural power decays, may they renew their spiritual strength, and hope in the Lord from henceforth and for ever.

We bless thee, O Lord, for thine unchanging love to thy Church. Never let thy people despond, when thou hast promised, This is my rest for ever; here will I dwell, for I have desired it. O let all thy priests be clothed with righteousness, and let thy saints shout for joy.

May the Watchman of Israel watch over us this night, and may our prayers be answered, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE PENITENT.

Walter's. Highbury College. Ann's.

c. n.

- 1 PROSTRATE, dear Jesus! at thy feet
A guilty rebel lies;
And upwards to thy mercy-seat
Presumes to lift his eyes.
- 2 If tears of sorrow would suffice
To pay the debt I owe,
Tears should from both my weeping eyes
In ceaseless torrents flow.
- 3 But no such sacrifice I plead
To expiate my guilt;
No tears, but those which thou hast shed!—
No blood, but thou hast spilt!

Dr. S. STEWART

DANIEL IX.

Daniel's Confession of Sin.

AND I set my face unto the LORD God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes:

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;

5 We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments:

6 Neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

7 O Lord, righteousness belongeth unto thee, but unto us confusion of faces, as at this day; to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, that are near, and that are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass that they have trespassed against thee.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth confusion of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.

9 To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against him.

10 Neither have we obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

11 Yea, all Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him.

12 And he hath confirmed his words, which he spake against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil; for under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem.

13 As it is written in the law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us: yet made we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and understand thy truth

14 Therefore hath the LORD watched upon the evil, and brought it upon us: for the LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth, for we obeyed not his voice.

15 And now, O Lord our God, that hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and hast gotten thee renown, as at this day; we have sinned, we have done wickedly.

16 O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain: because for our sins, and for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach to all that are about us.

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. IX.—Daniel, as a saint of great piety and experience, has left us a blessed example; and happy are they who walk in his footsteps. May we, by Divine influence, imitate him in the possession and exercise of a spirit of grace and supplication; and like him may we present our prayers with faith, humility, penitence, and earnestness. It is essentially necessary in prayer to make full and unreserved confession of sin, to keep nothing back, remembering that though God is a God of infinite mercy, he is still the omniscient Jehovah, a God of spotless purity and of glorious majesty. If our minds are properly affected with a sense of sin, we cannot look upon God's holy and perfect law without seeing, as in a mirror, our spiritual deformity, and also the multitude and aggravation of our sins. What an invaluable privilege is the preaching of the over-lasting Gospel! and yet this privilege is not only undervalued by myriads, but actually despised, and its invitations and offers of mercy treated as an idle tale. If we are genuine saints, we shall mourn over our own sins, and over national sins, and supplicate God for reformation and pardon.

PRAYER.

MOST gracious Lord God, this morning we desire to draw near unto thee, our Father and Saviour, with the voice of thankfulness and praise. We express our obligations for the mercies of the past night, and for the mercies of the past Sabbath. We long for the arrival of that period when thy Sabbath shall be enjoyed and sanctified by all the nations of the earth. As we are entering on another day and another week, O enable us to put on the whole armour of God, that we may be prepared to encounter with success our spiritual enemies, and triumphantly resist all the temptations, and surmount all the obstacles which may be presented before us, and which may oppose us in the course of this week. Let not the business of the day render us forgetful of God; and may diligence in our temporal duties be mingled with holy fervour, that earthly pursuits may not prove as a thick cloud, to conceal from our view the sublime objects of the heavenly state. May thoughts of Christ and his salvation often rise in our remembrance, and comfort our hearts. Holy Spirit, may a day never pass over our heads without numerous instances of ejaculatory petitions rising from our hearts before the throne of heaven. With thy Church of old, may we have reason to exclaim, Or ever we were aware, our souls made us like the chariots of Amminadib,—animated with the ardour of sacred devotion.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the great and dreadful God, who keepeth covenant and mercy with those that love him and keep his commandments. We confess, O Lord, that as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, we have sinned and committed iniquity. We have not read thy Word with care, and we have not hearkened with solemnity and faith to thy servants, whom thou hast appointed as heralds of eternal truth. While righteousness belongeth unto thee, alas! to us belongeth confusion of face, and to our rulers and our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.

In all the afflictions which have been brought upon ourselves, and in all the judgments and calamities which have befallen our nation, we acknowledge and adore thy holiness and justice. O Lord our God, may the afflictions we endure be instrumental in producing that holy repentance which is the inseparable attendant of unfeigned piety.

Preserve our dear children and domestics from the corrupt example of others, and from the corruptions of their own hearts. Adorn them, O Lord, with early piety, and with early repentance.

Let a blessed reformation speedily take place among us as a family professing to worship thee; and let the moral and sanctifying influence of the Gospel be soon and universally seen and experienced by all the inhabitants of the land. Hear, O Lord, and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRaising GOD.

Our's Lane. Kennell. George's.

C. M.

- 1 YE that obey the immortal King,
Attend his holy place,
Bow to the glories of his power,
And bless his wondrous grace.
- 2 Lift up your hands by morning light,
And send your souls on high;
Raise your admiring thoughts by night
Above the starry sky.
- 3 The God of Zion cheers our hearts
With rays of quickening grace;
The God that spreads the heavens abroad,
And rules the swelling seas.

WATT, Ps. 134.

PSALM CXXXIII.

Unity.

BEHOLD, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!

2 It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the skirts of his garments;

3 As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

PSALM CXXXIV.

Praising God.

BEHOLD, bless ye the LORD, all ye servants of the LORD, which by night stand in the house of the LORD.

2 Lift up your hands in the sanctuary, and bless the LORD.

3 The LORD that made heaven and earth bless thee out of Zion.

PSALM CXXXV.

Praising God.

PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise ye the name of the LORD; praise him, O ye servants of the LORD.

2 Ye that stand in the house of the LORD, in the courts of the house of our God,

3 Praise the LORD; for the LORD is good: sing praises unto his name; for it is pleasant.

4 For the LORD hath chosen Jacob unto himself, and Israel for his peculiar treasure.

5 For I know that the LORD is great, and that our LORD is above all gods.

6 Whatsoever the LORD pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, in the seas, and all deep places.

13 Thy name, O LORD, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O LORD, throughout all generations.

14 For the LORD will judge his people, and he will repent himself concerning his servants.

15 The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, the work of men's hands.

16 They have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not;

17 They have ears, but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouths.

18 They that make them are like unto them: so is every one that trusteth in them.

19 Bless the LORD, O house of Israel: bless the LORD, O house of Aaron:

20 Bless the LORD, O house of Levi: ye that fear the LORD, bless the LORD.

21 Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, which dwelleth at Jerusalem. Praise ye the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXXIII., CXXXIV., CXXXV.—Unity in faith, in sentiment, in love, in co-operation, and in fellowship, is the glory, the strength, and the prosperity of the Church of Christ.

And when this unity shall be universal, and reach its meridian splendour, it will then be a period of millennial blessedness. If we are the regenerated followers of Christ, it will be our delight and practice, and we shall consider it our honour and privilege, to proclaim the glory of the Divine perfections, and to spread abroad the fame of Jesus' name—that name which is above every name. We cannot calculate the blessedness of our state as a land of Bibles, of sanctuaries, of ordinances, and of Sabbaths. The Gospel has delivered us from gross idolatry. While pagans worship those gods which their own hands have made, we worship the only, the living, and the true God—the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, whose power made us, and whose mighty hand formed the universe. Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, relying on the atonement of Jesus, and in the exercise of Christian unity and love, to draw near the throne of grace, to present our evening sacrifice. Thou art a God of boundless love; O may we possess and cherish that love to thee and one another, which will be the satisfying evidence that we are the children of our heavenly Father. Preserve our family from the thorns of animosity and hatred. May Divine love prevail among us to such a degree, that we may bear some resemblance to the great family above, where love reigns in all its uninterrupted influence and glory. Convince us that God is not to be found with his blessing, where enmity and discord prevail. We praise thee, O Lord, that where Christian unity reigns, there thou commandest the blessing, even life for evermore.

While we would bless thee for the private ordinances of religion, more especially we praise thee for the public ordinances of thy courts. Lord, increase our love to thy sanctuary, and increase our delight in the public services of thy house.

Form in the minds of our children an early and a powerful attachment to thy courts. Even in their youthful days, may they say with thine inspired servant, A day in thy courts is better than a thousand.

O thou who madest the heavens and the earth, give us grace to bless thee out of Zion, and may we devotedly and faithfully present those adorations and praises in thine earthly sanctuary, which will be followed by a life of endless adoration, praise, and joy in the heaven of heavens. Lord, teach us to praise thee with the heart. May our songs of praise not inerefly flow from the lips, but may we make melody with our hearts unto the Lord.

We rejoice, O Lord, that thou hast chosen thy Church to thyself as thy peculiar treasure. How wonderful thy love, O Jesus, how inexpressible thy condescension, that thou shouldst make those thy treasure who deserved to be for ever banished from thy presence, and confined in the abode of endless despair! Mercifully give us the pleasing evidence that we are part of thy treasure, and that we are the objects of thine unmerited love and distinguished grace.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy greatness and in thy majesty. Thou art great, and thou art above all gods. Whatsoever thou pleasest, that thou doest in heaven and in earth, in the seas and in all dry places. O Lord, we bow before thee in thy greatness and glory. Thy name, O Jesus, endureth for ever: and the memorials of thy grace will continue throughout all generations. We bow before thee as the God of salvation. Glory to thy name, that the worship of idols is banished from our land. O may the worship of idols be banished from the earth, and be banished from our hearts.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the day, and we commit ourselves and our relatives to thy care this night. Forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE RESURRECTION.

Parish. Allen. Tucker.

C. H.

- 1 HOW long shall death the tyrant reign,
And triumph o'er the just;
While the rich blood of martyrs slain
Lies mingled with the dust?
- 2 Lo, I behold the scattered shades,
The dawn of heaven appears;
The sweet immortal morning spreads
Its blushes round the spheres.
- 3 I see the Lord of glory come,
And flaming guards around;
The skies divide to make him room,
The trumpet shakes the ground.
- 4 I hear the voice, Ye dead, arise!
And lo! the graves obey:
And waking saints with joyful eyes
Salute the expected day.

WATTS.

DANIEL XII.

Resurrection.

AND at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.

2 And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

3 And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.

4 But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

5 Then I Daniel looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river.

6 And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?

7 And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and an half; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished.

8 And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?

9 And he said, Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.

10 Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand.

11 And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

12 Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

13 But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.

REFLECTIONS UPON DAN. XII.—Michael signifies, "like God." How strictly applicable is this name to Jesus! He is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person. They who saw Christ, saw the Father who dwelleth in him. He thought it no robbery to be equal with God. And the Father requireth that we should honour the Son, even as we honour the Father, who hath sent him. The troubles and persecutions with which the Church of Christ has been visited and tried, have often been so severe as to resemble the raging waves of the tempestuous ocean; but Jesus has been always present with his Church as "a wall of fire around her, and as the glory in the midst of her." Unspeakably glorious and animating are the prospects of the redeemed. They can look forward to the morning of the resurrection, when their bodies shall come forth from the ruins of the grave, arrayed in all the glory of immortal life, to enter the heaven of heavens, and to be ever with the Lord.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, great and glorious Jehovah, as the universal Sovereign, whom none can resist, and whose authority and government none can with impunity oppose. When mighty angels resisted thy will, and erected the standard of rebellion near thy throne, thou didst cast them into the lowest hell, where they are reserved in chains of everlasting darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

What reason have we to bless and praise thee, that thou art revealed as a redeeming God, and reconciled in Christ! Though we have nothing, and can do nothing, to qualify ourselves for appearing with acceptance before thy throne of judgment, we bless thy great name that thou art the God of salvation, and that thou art willing even now, while we are kneeling before thy tribunal, to give us the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness, by which we shall be accepted in thy sight now, and acquitted before thy throne hereafter, when all nations are summoned before thy great tribunal.

We thank the living God, that the bodies of men shall not remain for ever in the grave. We bless God that we have in our hands that glorious Gospel by which life and immortality are brought to light. We pray that our minds may be deeply affected and solemnized with the truth, that all who sleep in the dust shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. Give us thy grace; then our graves will prove beds of rest, from which our bodies shall awake on the morning of the resurrection, arrayed in robes of immortality. Strike terror, O Lord, into the hearts of such now before thee who are living without Christ, and who are unconcerned about the infinitely important realities of a future and an eternal world; and convince them how inconceivably miserable shall be their state at the judgment-day. Now may the declaration of thy Word most deeply affect their hearts, that the bodies of the wicked shall awake out of their graves to shame and everlasting contempt.

Lord, have mercy on our dear children, and suffer not the thoughtlessness of their minds to prevent their meditations on the solemnities of a judgment-day. O may they and we awake, at the sound of the last trump, to everlasting life.

Comfort the minds of faithful ministers and faithful teachers of Divine truth, however humble the sphere they are required to fill, with the blessed promise, They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever.

We bless thee for the predicted day, when many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased. We earnestly pray that the day may not be far distant, when the knowledge of Jesus and his salvation shall pervade the earth.

We thank our God for his preserving goodness during the past night, and we seek the presence and blessing of God this day. Give us grace to glorify thy name, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRAISE TO GOD.

Susfolk New. Baines. Southampton.

L. M.

- 1 GIVE to our God immortal praise;
Mercy and truth are all his ways:
Wonders of grace to God belong,
Repeat his mercies in your song.
- 2 Give to the Lord of lords renown,
The King of kings with glory crown:
His mercies over shall endure,
When lords and kings are known no more.
- 3 He sent his Son with power to save
From guilt and darkness, and the grave:
Wonders of grace to God belong,
Repeat his mercies in your song.

WATTS, Ps. 136, p. 111.

PSALM CXXXVI.

Praising God for his Mercies.

- 1 O GIVE thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 2 O give thanks unto the God of gods: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 3 O give thanks to the Lord of lords: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 4 To him who alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 5 To him that by wisdom made the heavens: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 6 To him that stretched out the earth above the waters: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 7 To him that made great lights: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 8 The sun to rule by day: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 9 The moon and stars to rule by night: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 10 To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 11 And brought out Israel from among them: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 12 With a strong hand, and with a stretched-out arm: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 13 To him which divided the Red Sea into parts: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 14 And made Israel to pass through the midst of it: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 15 But overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 16 To him which led his people through the wilderness: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 17 To him which smote great kings: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 18 And slew famous kings: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 19 Sihon king of the Amorites: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 20 And Og the king of Bashan: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 21 And gave their land for an heritage: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 22 Even an heritage unto Israel his servant: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 23 Who remembered us in our low estate: for his mercy endureth for ever:
- 24 And hath redeemed us from our enemies: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 25 Who giveth food to all flesh: for his mercy endureth for ever.
- 26 O give thanks unto the God of heaven: for his mercy endureth for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXXXVI.—God's goodness shines in creation, providence, and redemption. Looking on each of these, but more especially on redemption, we have reason to exclaim, in the language of devout wonder and praise, "How great is thy goodness which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men!" May it be our privilege to be savingly impressed with a sense of God's goodness; may we really taste and see that God is pre-eminently good, as the God of redemption; then will our hearts be tuned to sing his praise. Did David sing so sweetly of creation and its great lights? O how sweetly should we sing of the new creation, and the glorious light of the Sun of righteousness, who has risen on our world with healing in his wings! O how sweetly should we sing of the great deliverance from sin, Satan, death, and hell, accomplished by Jesus, the King of kings and Lord of lords!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, we humbly pray that our souls may be refreshed with the dew of thine influences, while we venture, in the midst of all our imperfections and corruptions, to approach thy throne of grace. We acknowledge, O Hearer of prayer, our total unworthiness of the great honour and the unspeakable privilege of holding intercourse with thee our God, the Former of our bodies and the Father of our spirits.

We supplicate, through the atoning blood of Jesus, the pardon of all the sins we have committed this day. May our prayer for pardon be accompanied with holy penitence, and earnest longings that all our sinfulness may be washed away, and that our nature may be made holy as God is holy. We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies which have this day filled the cup of our lot. May spiritual mercies rank highest in our estimation, and excite in our heart peculiar sensations of gratitude and praise. Cover us, O Lord, with thy protecting wings this night, and prepare us for that eternal day, when we hope to enjoy, with all the blessed above, the ceaseless bliss of immortality. May we and all our relatives meet on that peaceful day, to celebrate, for ever and ever, the triumphs of redeeming grace. When thine aged servants, who are tried and borne down with the infirmities of their dying flesh, think of that heavenly day, may they sing in the animating strains of an inspired writer, O that we had the wings of a dove, then would we flee far away, and be at rest!

Sanctify to our minds, O Lord, the encouraging account we have now read of the great deliverances thou didst accomplish for thy Church and people in ancient days. Thou hast given in these deliverances most blessed displays of thy goodness and of thy power. Thou art the God of gods; for the gods of the heathen are dumb idols compared with thee. Thou art the Lord of lords; for all the rulers of the earth are at thy disposal, and cannot retain or exercise their authority one moment without thy permission.

Great, O Jesus, are the wonders of power thou hast wrought, in creating the world; but far greater are the wonders thou hast achieved, in working out the salvation of thy Church. We adore thee in all the judgments inflicted on Egypt and other enemies of thy people in distant ages: for thy mercy endureth for ever. We praise thee for the remarkable instances of the interposition of thy gracious providence connected with the history of thy Church in various lands: for thy mercy endureth for ever.

O make our children trophies of a Saviour's victory. Extend thy saving mercy to their souls, and through eternity may they sing, His mercy endureth for ever.

We praise thee, O Lord, for all thy mercies; but we would raise our loudest song of praise for Jesus, thy chief, thy greatest mercy. Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift.

Hear these our prayers, and forgive all our sins, for Jesus the Mediator's sake. Amen.

PROMISE OF THE SPIRIT.

Kennedy. Warrington. Uveretina.

L. M.

- 1 ASK what ye will, 'tis Jesus' word
To all the followers of the Lord;
He speaks with confidence divino,
To give the Holy Ghost is mine!
- 2 And thou who didst to glory go,
Wilt on thy church that gift bestow,
To bless, and sanctify, and seal,
And all our souls for ever fill.
- 3 Hard is the grant, but not for thee,
Vested with full authority;
Needful for sinners to receive,
'Tis easy for my Lord to give:
- 4 Sent down in answer to thy prayer,
O may the promised Comforter
Teach me, my Saviour, who thou art,
And show thy glory to my heart.

C. WHELEY.

HOSEA XIII.

Victory or Death.

I WILL ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction: repentance shall be hid from mine eyes.

15 Though he be fruitful among his brethren, an east wind shall come, the wind of the Lord shall come up from the wilderness, and his spring shall become dry, and his fountain shall be dried up: he shall spoil the treasure of all pleasant vessels.

16 Samaria shall become desolate; for she hath rebelled against her God: they shall fall by the sword: their infants shall be dashed in pieces, and their women with child shall be cruelly put to death.

HOSEA XIV.

Spiritual Revival.

O ISRAEL, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity.

2 Take with you words, and turn to the Lord: say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously: so will we render the sacrifices of our lips.

3 Asshur shall not save us; we will not ride upon horses: neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods: for in thee the fatherless findeth mercy.

4 I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him.

5 I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon.

6 His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive-tree, and his smell as Lebanon.

7 They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

8 Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard him, and observed him: I am like a green fir-tree. From me is thy fruit found.

9 Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know them? for the ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein.

REFLECTIONS UPON HOSEA XIII., XIV.—Infinitely dear to Christ are his saints. Because he loved them with an everlasting love, he has regenerated their nature, and has given them a part in the first resurrection. And because he loves them with an everlasting love, he will give them a part in the second resurrection, and they shall come forth from their graves and shine brighter than the glory of the firmament, in the kingdom of their Father, for ever and ever.

What a mighty conqueror is Jesus! He is the conqueror of death, who is the conqueror, and the terror, and the destroyer of kings. Jesus, our victorious Saviour, "has destroyed death, and him who hath the power of death, that is the Devil." How wonderful the condescension and grace of God, that he should address offending backsliders under the name of their God! May the Divine Spirit mercifully preserve us from backsliding and apostasy, and make us "trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord's right hand, that he may be glorified."

PRAYER.

WE draw near unto thee, O Lord, this morning, in the name of thy well-beloved Son. We cannot be accepted in our own name, and no archangel could introduce us into the Divine presence, to obtain an answer to our prayers. We praise thee, O Jesus, as the Mediator betwixt God and man, the merit of whose righteousness can introduce the very chief of sinners to the throne of grace.

We thank the God of providence for the renewed instances of kindness we experienced during the past night, and that we are enabled, in the enjoyment of so many comforts, to assemble around the domestic altar to present our morning sacrifice. Let thy goodness kindle in our bosom emotions of gratitude and love; and may we serve and honour thee this day, and every day, from a principle of filial and unfeigned affection. Suffer us not to be drawn aside this day by our own corruptions; and particularly may we be preserved from our besetting sin. Bless us in our worldly calling. Preserve us from a covetous and unhallowed love of earthly things. Make us satisfied with a competency; and having food and raiment, may we be therewith content.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the conqueror of death; and we rejoice that by thy death thou didst deprive death of its sting, and that thou didst deprive the grave of its victory by thy resurrection from the tomb. Lord Jesus, ransom us from the power of the grave, and redeem us from death, by clothing us with thy righteousness. O clothe us with that righteousness which is the price of our ransom, and without which our redemption could never have been obtained.

As the time must arrive, and may soon take place, when we and our beloved children shall be separated by death, on the morning of the resurrection may we rise from the grave in glory and triumph, to live together through all eternity, in the immediate presence of God and the Lamb.

O Lord, we have reason to acknowledge, to our shame, that, like Israel of old, we have fallen by our iniquities. Blessed be thy name, that we have not fallen into hell. We implore thy grace, that we may be enabled to return unto the Lord our God, against whom we have so grievously revolted. Lord, take away all iniquity, receive us graciously, so will we render thee the praises of our lips and the homage of our hearts. O teach us to leave all false foundations of confidence and hope, and let our trust be implicitly placed on thee, our Saviour and Deliverer, in whom the fatherless find mercy. Have mercy on all our friends and relatives who may now be in a state of backsliding from God. Heal their backsliding, love them freely, and let thine anger be turned away from them.

Lord, make our family a spiritual garden, where the plants of grace may grow in luxuriance and beauty. Holy Spirit, let thy blessed influence descend upon us like the refreshing dew, that we may grow as the lily, and cast forth our roots as Lebanon. May we revive as the corn and grow as the vine, and the scent of our graces be as the wine of Lebanon.

Lord, hear and forgive, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, be ascribed the kingdom, the power and the glory, world without end. Amen.

RESTORING AND PRESERVING GRACE.

Alfred Bradley, Attwater's.

L. M.

- 1 WITH all my powers of heart and tongue
I'll praise my maker in my song:
Angels shall hear the notes I raise,
Approve the song, and join the praise.
- 2 Angels that make thy church their care
Shall witness my devotions there,
While holy zeal directs my eyes
To thy fair temple in the skies.
- 3 I'll sing thy truth and mercy, Lord,
I'll sing the wonders of thy word;
Not all thy works and names below
So much thy power and glory show.
- 4 To God I cried when troubles rose;
He heard me, and subdued my foes;
He did my rising fears control,
And strength diffused through all my soul.

Watts, Ps. 136.

PSALM CXXXVII.

The Jews in Babylon.

BY the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.
2 We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof.

3 For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying,
Sing us one of the songs of Zion.

4 How shall we sing the LORD's song in a strange land?

5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning.

6 If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.

7 Remember, O LORD, the children of Edom in the day of Jerusalem; who said, Rase it, rase it, even to the foundation thereof.

8 O daughter of Babylon, who art to be destroyed; happy shall he be, that rewardeth thee as thou hast served us.

9 Happy shall he be, that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones.

PSALM CXXXVIII.

Praising God's Truth.

I WILL praise thee with my whole heart: before the gods will I sing praise unto thee.

2 I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy name for thy loving-kindness and for thy truth: for thou hast magnified thy word above all thy name.

3 In the day when I cried thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul.

4 All the kings of the earth shall praise thee, O LORD, when they hear the words of thy mouth.

5 Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the LORD: for great is the glory of the LORD.

6 Though the LORD be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly: but the proud he knoweth afar off.

7 Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me: thou shalt stretch forth thine hand against the wrath of mine enemies, and thy right hand shall save me.

8 The LORD will perfect that which concerneth me: thy mercy, O LORD, endureth for ever: forsake not the works of thine own hands.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXXXVII., CXXXVIII.—The calamities which befall the Church are more distressing to the saints than their own personal afflictions. On earth the hearts of believers are often out of tune to celebrate their Saviour's praise, and their songs are often suspended and interrupted; in heaven they shall have everlasting joy upon their heads, and their golden harps shall be for ever tuned for praising God and the Lamb in loudest, noblest strains. For a season the enemies of Zion may seem to triumph; but if they die impenitent, a dreadful perdition awaits them in that world from which hope is for ever excluded, and where despair for ever reigns. Great is the joy of believers in worshipping the God of salvation in the sanctuary below, and it is a prelude of that joy which they shall experience in the heavenly temple above, where they shall sing in holy ecstasy, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, honour, and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, to approach thy throne of grace reverently, when we think of thy dazzling majesty and irresistible sovereignty. And we would draw near with believing confidence and joy, when we think of thy condescension, mercy, and love, flowing as a stream of salvation through Jesus thine only-begotten and well-beloved Son. In his name, O Lord, we prostrate ourselves before thee.

Accept of our praises for the mercies of the day, whether of a temporal nature and respecting the body, or of a spiritual nature and respecting the soul. May our daily guilt be washed away by the merit of our Saviour's blood. Encompass us this night with thy favour as with a shield, and give thine angels charge over us. Give us grace to believe that thou compassest our path and our lying down, and that thou art acquainted with all our ways. Enable us to believe that the eye of a special providence is constantly watching over us, and that the arms of a special providence are constantly around us. By faith may we ever look upon thee, not only as our God, but as our Father; and may all our supplications be the loving and earnest prayers of children who are instructed by the Spirit to cry, Abba, Father.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the heart-searching God. Impress us solemnly with the thought, that thou hast searched us and known us. Humble us in the dust, when we think of all that depravity of our heart which is constantly exposed before the eye of an omniscient God.

Bless to us what we have now read. We adore thy sovereignty, wisdom, and justice, in the removal of thy people to Babylon, where for ages they endured the sufferings of a severe captivity. As thy people remembered Jerusalem, may we in our present state of trial and suffering, in this vale of tears, remember the New Jerusalem above. As an evidence that we are in reality the heirs of an inheritance beyond the skies, may we have a fervent and steadfast love to thy Church on earth; and may the interest of thy kingdom below be dearer to our heart than our own personal prosperity. May the language of our souls be, If we forget thee, O Jerusalem, let our right hand forget her cunning; if we do not remember thee, let our tongue cleave to the roof of our mouth; if we prefer not Jerusalem above our chief joy.

Make our dear children and servants members of thy Church; and may they discover that zeal for the prosperity of Christ's kingdom, which will attend them to the evening of their days.

We praise thee, O Lord, that thou art a prayer-hearing God. May each of us know this by experience, and have abundant reason to say, In the day when I cried thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with thy strength in my soul. Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me.

Graciously pardon our sins, sanctify our affections, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

LATTER DAY GLORY.

New Church, Leeds, Oxford.

C. M.

- 1 BEHOLD! the mountain of the Lord
In latter days shall rise
On mountain-tops above the hills,
And draw the wondering eyes.
- 2 To this the joyful nations round,
All tribes and tongues shall flow;
Up to the hill of God, they'll say,
And to his house we'll go.
- 3 The beam that shines from Zion hill
Shall lighten every land;
The King who reigns in Salem's towers
Shall all the world command.
- 4 Come then, O house of Jacob! come
To worship at his shrine;
And, walking in the light of God,
With holy beauties shine.

LOGAN.

MICAH IV.

Millennium.

BUT in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it.

2 And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

4 But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the LORD of hosts hath spoken it.

5 For all people will walk every one in the name of his god, and we will walk in the name of the LORD our God for ever and ever.

6 In that day, saith the LORD, will I assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted;

7 And I will make her that halted a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the LORD shall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever.

8 And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry out aloud? is there no king in thee? is thy counsellor perished? for pangs have taken thee as a woman in travail.

10 He in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail: for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even to Babylon; there shalt thou be delivered; there the LORD shall redeem thee from the band of thine enemies.

11 Now also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye look upon Zion.

12 But they know not the thoughts of the LORD, neither understand they his counsel: for he shall gather them as the sheaves into the floor.

13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion: for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass: and thou shalt beat in pieces many people: and I will consecrate their gain unto the LORD, and their substance unto the LORD of the whole earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON MICAH IV.—The last days predicted by the ancient prophets commenced at the beginning of the Christian era, and shall terminate at the close of ages. It is our privilege to live during these last days, which unspeakably surpass the days of the Old Testament economy in the degree of Divine light, and in the extent of spiritual privileges. Then, the people of God saw through a glass darkly; but now we see face to face. Then, the light of Divine revelation was like the light of the moon; but now it is like the light of the meridian sun. We hail the arrival of millennial days, of which Micah and other prophets have spoken with such clearness and certainty. Then shall be the universal gathering of all nations to Jesus, the blessed Shiloh, in whom all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, for ever blessed.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire, at the commencement of another day, to lift up the eyes of our soul to thee in humble and earnest supplications. We adore thee, O Jesus, in thine essential government, as sitting upon the throne of the vast universe. We adore thee, O Jesus, in thy mediatorial dominion, as seated upon the throne of Zion, and exercising the prerogatives of thy royalty over thy Church. While we have reason to mourn over the sad change produced by the reign of sin, and while we have reason to weep over the miserable and degraded situation of our world, under the government of Satan, we rejoice there is a period coming, when the pacific reign of our exalted Mediator shall overspread all the kingdoms of the world, and when the nations shall be happy, and holy, and blessed, under his wise and merciful dominion.

We thank thee that thou hast promised, in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and the people shall flow unto it. O Lord, mercifully and speedily accomplish what thou hast so graciously promised. We long for the arrival of that day, and we rejoice it shall come, when many nations shall say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. Praise to thy name, that this promise is in part accomplished. Adored be thy name, that since the law went forth out of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem, at the ascension of our Lord and the day of Pentecost, so many nations of the earth have embraced the religion of Jesus, and have acknowledged him as the Saviour of men.

We thank thee, O Immanuel, for the promise, that thou wilt judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and that they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: that nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. Teach us to believe, O God of truth, that these blessed promises shall be accomplished; and we pray that thou wouldst hasten the fulfilment in thy due time. Let peace prevail over the whole earth, and let the influence of the Gospel subdue the pride and destroy the cruelty of the rulers of the world.

Give thy people peace, and all the churches peace. Let all opposition to thy kingdom come to an end; and may the followers of Jesus everywhere sit down under their vine and under their fig-tree, and may none make them afraid.

Make our children and servants the loving and peaceful subjects of Jesus the Prince of peace. May they live to be active agents in advancing the prosperity of Christ's kingdom.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the night, and bless God that it has not proved to us the night of death. This day may we exemplify the Christian graces; and all that we ask is for the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

GOD EVERYWHERE.

Zabulon. Oranum Chapel. David's.

C. M.

- 1 IN all my vast concerns with thee,
In vain my soul would try
To shun thy presence, Lord, or flee
The notice of thine eye.
- 2 Thy all-surrounding sight surveys
My rising and my rest,
My public walks, my private ways,
And secrets of my breast.
- 3 My thoughts lie open to the Lord
Before they're formed within;
And ere my lips pronounce the word,
He knows the sense I mean.

Watts, Ps. 138, p. 1.

PSALM CXXXIX.

God Omnipresent and Omniscient.

- O LORD, thou hast searched me, and known me.
- 2 Thou knowest my down-sitting and mine up-rising,
thou understandest my thought afar off.
  - 3 Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways.
  - 4 For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether.
  - 5 Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me.
  - 6 Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it.
  - 7 Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?
  - 8 If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.
  - 9 If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the utmost parts of the sea;
  - 10 Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.
  - 11 If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me.
  - 12 Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee.
  - 13 For thou hast possessed my reins: thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.
  - 14 I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well.
  - 15 My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.
  - 16 Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being unperfect;
and in thy book all my members were written, which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them.
  - 17 How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God!
how great is the sum of them!
  - 18 If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee.
  - 19 Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God: depart from rae therefore, ye bloody men.
  - 20 For they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain.
  - 21 Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee?
  - 22 I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies.
  - 23 Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts:
  - 24 And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXXXIX.—How solemn the fact that there is no thought, or purpose, or imagination, or affection of our hearts, that can possibly be concealed from the eye of an omniscient Jehovah. May this great and influential truth be ever present before our remembrance! What multitudes of sins would be prevented, and what diligence in duties would be observed, if these words were habitually in our thoughts, "Thou God seeest me! Thou, O Lord, dost search the hearts, and try the reins of the children of men!" How glorious is God in his omnipresence. This perfection of Jehovah is to the wicked a source of terror; but to the righteous a source of delight, and a ground of confidence. Affecting truth! God is judicially present in Tophet! Delightful, animating truth, God is graciously present on earth with the Church militant, and gloriously present in heaven with the Church triumphant. May we, by faith in Christ, anticipate that glorious presence, and sing in the delightful prospect, "Thou wilt show me the path of life. In thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand are pleasures for evermore."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord God, as the infinite source of all wisdom and knowledge. Thou hast a perfect acquaintance with all thy creatures. Every portion of thine immeasurable empire is equally plain and open before thee; and the fluttering insect is as really under thy notice as the glowing archangel who worships before thy throne. Lord, affect us with the thought, that there is not a word in our tongue, nor an imagination in our heart, nor an action in our life, but lo, O Lord, thou knowest. We desire to feel overawed and deeply solemnized with the conviction of this truth; and would exclaim with the Psalmist, Such knowledge is too wonderful for us; it is high, we cannot attain unto it. May a conviction of thine omniscience comfort us in all our afflictions. Assured that thou knowest our afflictions, may we believe that thou dost graciously sympathize with us in all our sufferings—and that, as thou knowest our weakness, thou wilt most readily extend thy powerful and merciful hand for our relief.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine omnipresence. Thy being and thine influence pervade the universe. Impress transgressors with the solemn truth, that they cannot escape to that place to commit their wickedness, where God is not present as the witness of their actions.

May our dear children ever remember that thou art an omnipresent God: and may this remembrance lay restraint on their corruptions, and prevent them from falling before the temptations of the enemy of souls.

Comfort all thine afflicted people with the consolatory truth, that their God and Saviour is ever near; and that even if they should take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, there shall thy hand lead them, and thy right hand shall hold them. O Jesus, comfort thine aged disciples with the animating conviction, that though their earthly friends are dying around them, and leaving them one by one, thou, their best friend, art ever near them, and wilt continue to afford them counsel, consolation, and help, to the close of life; when their disembodied spirits will be removed to another and more exalted state of existence, to enjoy the glories of immortality.

O Lord, we adore thee as our Creator. We will praise thee, for we are fearfully and wonderfully made. Our substance was not hid from thee, when we were curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. O thou mighty and merciful God, make us the subjects of a new creation.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the past day, and for all the mercies of our past lives. When we awake we are still with thee. We humbly seek thy protecting care this night. May we be surrounded with thy perfections, as the mountains are round about Jerusalem.

Hear these, our feeble prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

CONFIDENCE IN GOD.

Arundel. New Windsor. Buddersfold. c. n.

- 1 WHAT though no flowers the fig-tree clothe,
 Though vines their fruit deny,
 The labour of the olive fail,
 And fields no meat supply?
- 2 Though from the fold, in sad surprise,
 My flock cut off I see;
 Though famine pine in empty stalls,
 Where herds were wont to be?
- 3 Yet in the Lord will I be glad,
 And glory in his love;
 In him I'll joy, who will the God
 Of my salvation prove.

SCOTCH PARAPHRASE, 32.

HABAKKUK II.

Waiting for God's Answer.

I WILL stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved.

2 And the LORD answered me, and said, Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

3 For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it;
 because it will surely come, it will not tarry.

5 Behold, his soul which is lifted up is not upright in him:
 but the just shall live by his faith.

6 Yea also, because he transgresseth by wine, he is a proud man, neither keepeth at home, who enlargeth his desire as hell, and is as death, and cannot be satisfied, but gathereth unto him all nations, and heapeth unto him all people:

6 Shall not all these take up a parable against him, and a taunting proverb against him, and say, Woe to him that increaseth that which is not his! how long? and to him that ladeth himself with thick clay!

7 Shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee, and awake that shall vex thee, and thou shalt be for booties unto them?

8 Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all the remnant of the people shall spoil thee; because of men's blood, and for the violence of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

9 Woe to him that coveteth an evil covetousness to his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the power of evil!

10 Thou hast consulted shame to thy house by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul.

11 For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it.

12 Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and stablisheth a city by iniquity!

13 Behold, is it not of the LORD of hosts that the people shall labour in the very fire, and the people shall weary themselves for very vanity?

14 For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.

HABAKKUK III.

Faith in God.

ALTHOUGH the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labour of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls:

18 Yet I will rejoice in the LORD, I will joy in the God of my salvation.

19 The LORD God is my strength, and he will make my feet like hinds' feet, and he will make me to walk upon mine high places. To the chief singer on my stringed instruments.

REFLECTIONS UPON HABAKKUK II., III.—Believers possess the spirit of prayer and the grace of watchfulness, and therefore they patiently hope and wait for the answer of their supplications. Blessings are pronounced on those who wait upon the Lord:—"They shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint." God may delay the answer of prayer, and may seem to defer the fulfilment of his promise. But, at a suitable time, and at the last time, he never fails to answer the one, and to fulfil the other. The heavens and earth may pass away—it is within the range of possibilities; but God's word can never fall to the ground—it is impossible, and infinitely inconsistent with the immutable faithfulness of his nature.

PRAYER.

WE acknowledge and adore thee, O Lord, in all thy great and glorious prerogatives: as the God of creation, having an undisputed right to the possession of all the creatures thou hast made; as the God of providence, and therefore exercising sovereign and irresistible control over thy vast dominions; and as the God of redemption, dispensing the blessings of thy salvation among the unmerited objects of thy love.

As the God of providence, thou hast often spoken to us in the events which have passed over our heads. We have reason to confess that we have not been sufficiently impressed, when we have heard the voice of thy providence. Would to God we could have said with thy servant, O Lord, we have heard thy speech, and were afraid. May all of us be so impressed with the voice of thy providence, and the voice of thy Gospel, as to feel the most unfeigned and earnest desires for the advancement and growth of religion among the children of men. We would now pray, O Lord, revive thy works in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; in wrath which we deserve, O remember us in thy tender mercy and compassion, of which we are infinitely unworthy. Let the glad tidings of salvation overspread the earth, and cause the inhabitants thereof to drink of the waters of salvation.

Thine essential glory, O Jesus, covers the heavens, and the earth is full of thy praise. Make thy mediatorial glory shine with great splendour among the kingdoms of the world, and may the whole earth resound with songs of praise, to the honour of thy great name.

We adore thy justice, O Lord, in all the judgments with which the nations of the earth have been visited, as a wholesome and necessary chastisement for their sins. Before thee, at various times, went the pestilence, and burning coals went forth at thy feet. On various occasions, thou hast visited our land with pestilence and desolating judgments. May the remembrance of these calamities teach the inhabitants of our nation to stand in awe and sin not.

O enable our dear children and servants to receive thee as their Saviour. Convince them, that if they die rejecting thee as a Saviour, thou wilt appear against them as a destroyer.

Great Immanuel, thou art the defender of thy Church, and thou hast punished those nations who have persecuted and afflicted thy people. In many instances thou didst march through these lands in indignation, thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.

Lord, teach us all to prefer thy love before earthly possessions, and even if we should be deprived of all our earthly possessions, and if all our earthly hopes should be blasted, may the language of our hearts be, We will rejoice in the Lord, we will joy in the God of our salvation.

We thank our God and Father in Christ for the mercies of another night, and that no plague has come near our dwelling.
 May we be enabled to testify this day that we are the followers of Christ. Preserve us from every sin, and assist us in every duty. Hear our imperfect supplications, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WATCHFULNESS AND BROTHERLY REPROOF.

Pharisees. Kirby. Magdalen.

L. M.

- 1 MY God, accept my early vows,
Like morning incense in thine house;
And let my nightly worship rise
Sweet as the evening sacrifice.
- 2 Watch o'er my lips, and guard them, Lord,
From every rash and heedless word;
Nor let my feet incline to tread
The guilty path where sinners lead.
- 3 O may the righteous, when I stray,
Smite, and reprove my wandering way:
Their gentle words, like ointment spread,
Shall never bruise, but cheer my head.

WATTS, Ps. 141.

PSALM CXLII.

Praying to be heard.

LORD, I cry unto thee: make haste unto me: give ear unto my voice, when I cry unto thee.

2 Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense; and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice.

3 Set a watch, O LORD, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips.

4 Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practise wicked works with men that work iniquity: and let me not eat of their dainties.

5 Let the righteous smite me; it shall be a kindness: and let him reprove me; it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break my head: for yet my prayer also shall be in their calamities.

6 When their judges are overthrown in stony places, they shall hear my words; for they are sweet.

7 Our bones are scattered at the grave's mouth, as when one outteth and cleaveth wood upon the carth.

8 But mine eyes are unto thee, O God: the Lord: in thee is my trust; leave not my soul destitute.

9 Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity.

10 Let the wicked fall into their own nets, whilst that I rithal escape.

PSALM CXLIII.

Comfort in Affliction.

I CRIED unto the LORD with my voice; with my voice unto the LORD did I make my supplication.

2 I poured out my complaint before him; I showed before him my trouble.

3 When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou newest my path. In the way whereiu I walked have they rively laid a snare for me.

4 I looked on my right hand, and beheld, but there was no man that would know me: refuge failed me; no man cared for my soul.

5 I cried unto thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living.

6 Attend unto my cry; for I am brought very low: deliver me from my persecutors; for they are stronger than I.

7 Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy name: the righteous shall compass me about; for thou shalt deal mercifully with me.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXLII., CXLIII.—Sanctified affliction is a most valuable instructor. It teaches the soul to flee to the bosom of mercy, and offer up those earnest supplications which the Hearer of prayer most graciously accepts, and most readily answers. No prayers, however suitable, or humble, or earnest, can be accepted on their own account. They must be accompanied with the merit of Christ's atonement, and with the incense of his intercession; then the Father of mercies will, in answer to the supplications of his praying saints, send down the richest blessings from above. Sweet, even to the ear of God, is the music of prayer, when the words of the mouth are the genuine expressions of the heart. Strong faith in God's compassion, flowing like a stream through the channel of our Saviour's righteousness, never fails to draw out the soul in fervent prayers to the God of salvation, who sits upon his throne of grace, ever ready to receive his praying children and to answer their requests.

PRAYER.

O THOU, who art the confidence and the hope of thy people, we come unto thy gracious throne, in the name of our adorable High Priest, whose name is above every name.

We bless thee for thine unmerited goodness in watching over us and preserving us through another day. May our assembling as a family around the domestic altar this evening be the joyful and blessed prelude of our meeting before thy throne above, with the general assembly and Church of the first-born, to praise, adore, and enjoy thee through endless day. We have received this day, from the hand of thy providence, daily bread. O give us daily grace! O give us the bread of life! As we are every day partaking of the bread of thy providence, every day may we partake of the bread of salvation, the true bread which cometh down from heaven—of which, if a man eat, he shall live through all eternity, beyond the skies.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the numerous opportunities we enjoy of approaching the throne of grace. O let the prayers we present be suitable, believing, and fervent. O let the prayers we present be graciously answered. Give ear unto our voice when we cry unto thee. Through the merits of our Saviour's righteousness let our prayer be set forth before thee as incense, and the lifting up of our hands as the evening sacrifice.

Preserve us, O Lord, from offending thee with our words. As we are so liable to offend in word, we pray for thy Spirit, that we may ever set a watch before our mouth, that we may keep the door of our lips.

Preserve our dear children from the sins of the tongue. O suffer no corrupt communication to proceed out of their mouth. May their speech be employed through life in the service of Christ. May their tongue, which is the glory of their frame, be constantly employed in sounding his praise.

Lord, we would surrender our hearts to thy management and care. Let not our heart be inclined to any evil thing, or to practise wicked works with them that work iniquity. O make our hearts the temple of the Holy Ghost, and may they no longer remain the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. Expel, O Jesus, from our hearts, every vile and loathsome lust, and adorn and enrich them with every heavenly grace.

Make us deeply sensible of our numerous blemishes and infirmities. When thy ministers deliver to us faithful warnings, faithful reproofs, and affectionate counsels, O suffer us not to reject them in the pride of our heart, but with the Psalmist may we say, Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break my head.

O sanctify all our affliction; and the more the storms of affliction rage against us, the more vigorously may we exercise confidence in God, saying in the language of inspiration, Thou art our portion and our refuge in the land of the living. O have mercy on all thine aged and afflicted followers. When their spirit is overwhelmed within them, may they look to the Rock that is higher than man.

Graciously hear our cry and forgive our sin, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST A SUN.

Adoration. Rejoicing. New Sabbath.
1 GREAT God! amid the darkness night,
 Thy glories dart upon my sight,
 While, wrapt in wonder, I behold
 The silver moon and stars of gold.
2 But, when I see the sun arise,
 And pour his glories o'er the skies,
 In more stupendous forms I view
 Thy greatness and thy goodness too.
3 Thou Sun of suns, whose dazzling light
 Tries and confounds an angel's sight!
 How shall I glance mine eye at thee
 In all thy vast immensity?

S. STENNETT.

MALACHI III.

John the Baptist, Christ's Messenger.

BEHOLD, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the LORD, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.

2 But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' sope:

3 And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.

4 Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

5 And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the LORD of hosts.

6 For I am the LORD, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

16 Then they that feared the LORD spake often one to another: and the LORD hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the LORD, and that thought upon his name.

17 And they shall be mine, saith the LORD of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him.

18 Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not.

MALACHI IV.

Christ the Sun of Righteousness.

FOR, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall he stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the LORD of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch.

2 But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall.

3 And ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments.

5 Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the LORD:

6 And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse.

REFLECTIONS UPON MAL. III., IV.—What a glorious prediction, and so calculated to strengthen the faith and animate the hopes of the Old Testament Church—namely, the prophetic announcement of John the Baptist as God's messenger, and the announcement of Jesus, first as the great Jehovah, and secondly as the great Mediator and as the Messenger of that covenant into which he entered with the Father from eternal ages, and the conditions which he came in the flesh in the fulness of time to fulfil! Glory to God in the highest! He has come and has honoured the second temple with his personal presence, thus rendering it more glorious than the first. How striking and how pleasing, that, in the concluding lines of Old Testament Scriptures, the great Messiah should appear before us as the Sun of righteousness! Let us seriously inquire, Has Jesus the Sun of righteousness risen on our souls? Have the beams of his light entered into our understandings, and dispelled the dark clouds of spiritual night? If he has thus risen upon us on earth, we shall behold him in all the glory of his unclouded brightness, for ever and ever, in heaven. Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in the language of the blessed above, we desire, in humble dependence upon the Spirit's gracious aid, to address thy throne: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, the whole earth is full of thy glory. O what reason have we to bless thee for the riches of thy grace, displayed in Jesus Christ. Glory to the God of all grace, that thou didst not spare thine only begotten Son, but gave him up to the death for us all. Glory to God the Son that he spared not himself, but cheerfully became a sin-offering for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. For all thy gifts we praise thee, Father of mercies; but above all we would thank thee for thine UNSPEAKABLE GIFT.

Praise to our God, that, in the fulness of time, John the Baptist, the messenger and forerunner of the Saviour, appeared, to prepare the way before the great Immanuel; and that Jesus, agreeably to Old Testament prophecies, suddenly appeared in his temple. O deliver the Jewish nation from the veil of prejudice and unbelief with which their minds are overspread, and convince them, by thy Spirit, that the Messiah whom they seek, and for whom they wait, has actually come to his temple, has actually suffered on Calvary, and has actually ascended to heaven, where he now fills his mediatorial throne. O convince them of this glorious truth; then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

O Lord, have mercy on all thy professed ministers, who labour in thy sanctuary. Fulfil in their experience the following promise: And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.

O Lord, increase the number of those who fear thee, and who call on thy name. May a spirit of prayer, and a delight in the fellowship of the saints, be more extensively diffused. We bless thee for the encouraging things thou hast said of those who fear the LORD, and who speak often one to another on the great realities of God, of salvation, and of immortality.

Lord, make our children thine; give them the spirit of believing, earnest prayer; and on the great day of judgment may they be found among thy jewels, and shine in the diadem of Jesus as stars for ever and ever.

We thank our God for the renewed tokens of thy kindness during the past night; and graciously guide, protect, and bless us this day. Hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GRACE ABOVE RICHES.

Duke Street. Melancton. China.

L. W.

- 1 HAPPY the city, where their sons
Like pillars round a palace set,
And daughters bright as polished stones,
Give strength and beauty to the state.
- 2 Happy the country, where the sheep,
Cattle and corn have large increase;
Where men securely work or sleep,
Nor sons of plunder break the peace.
- 3 Happy the nation thus endowed,
But more divinely blest are those
On whom the all-sufficient God
Himself with all his grace bestows.

WATTS, Ps. 144, p. 111.

PSALM CXLIII.

Earnest Prayers.

CAUSE me to hear thy loving-kindness in the morning;
for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein
I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee.

9 Deliver me, O LORD, from mine enemies: I flee unto thee to hide me.

10 Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.

11 Quicken me, O LORD, for thy name's sake: for thy righteousness' sake bring my soul out of trouble.

12 And of thy mercy cut off mine enemies, and destroy all them that afflict my soul: for I am thy servant.

PSALM CXLIV.

Praising God for Mercy.

BLESSED be the LORD my strength, which teacheth my hands to war, and my fingers to fight:

2 My goodness, and my fortress; my high tower, and my deliverer; my shield, and he in whom I trust; who subdueth my people under me.

3 LORD, what is man, that thou takest knowledge of him!
or the son of man, that thou makest account of him!

4 Man is like to vanity: his days are as a shadow that passeth away.

5 Bow thy heavens, O LORD, and come down: touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

6 Cast forth lightning, and scatter them: shoot out thine arrows, and destroy them.

7 Send thine hand from above; rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of strange children;

8 Whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

9 I will sing a new song unto thee, O God: upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing praises unto thee.

10 It is he that giveth salvation unto kings: who delivereth
David his servant from the hurtful sword.

11 Bid me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood:

12 That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that our daughters may be as corner-stones, polished after the similitude of a palace:

13 That our garners may be full, affording all manner of store: that our sheep may bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets:

14 That our oxen may be strong to labour; that there be no breaking in, nor going out; that there be no complaining in our streets.

15 Happy is that people that is in such a case: yea, happy is that people, whose God is the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXLIII., CXLIV.—Those days are blessed days which are begun with prayer and ended with prayer. Such days are irradiated by the smiles of our God and Father in Christ. By a life of believing prayer, the meditations and hopes are elevated to heaven as a pleasing evidence that the soul at last shall reach the celestial abodes of perfection, purity, and bliss. Numerous, powerful, and malicious, are the enemies of the children of God. But no enemies can really injure them, for they are hid in the bosom of Jehovah's love, and encoiled by the arms of his gracious omnipotence. Great are the privileges of the sons of God. As children in the time of danger flee to their parents for protection, believers flee to Jesus during the storms of temptation, persecution, and affliction, and they find him to be "an hiding place from the wind, and the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." In what animating, glowing strains the Psalmist speaks and sings of God as his God and his All! May we be filled with his spirit and exclaim, "Jesus is my All and in All!" Amen.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the uncreated. Jehovah, we thank thee that thou hast graciously preserved us during another day, and that we are permitted, at the close of another week and another year, to prostrate ourselves before thee.

LORD, we present, at the feet of thy mercy, the tribute of our thanks; and though infinitely unworthy, we plead for the renewal of thy kindness during the night, and for the continuance of thy care during the remainder of our lives. On the morning of the approaching Sabbath, may we awake in safety and in peace, feeling our minds elevated with holy thankfulness and joy, with the near prospect of entering into thy sanctuary, to hear the words of eternal life, and to proclaim with our lips and our hearts the praises of God and the Lamb.

O Jesus, we acknowledge thee as the captain of our salvation. Teach us valiantly to fight thy battles. Teach our hands to war and our fingers to fight. May we be strong, and do exploits in the service of our God.

O make our dear children the soldiers of Jesus; and by his spirit may they begin now to encounter the enemies of their souls, and obtain over them the most encouraging victories. At last, may they receive in heaven the conqueror's palm, and sing the conqueror's song.

Enable each of us, in the language of the Psalmist, thus to acknowledge our God and our Saviour: Thou art our goodness and our fortress; our high tower, and our deliverer; our shield, and he in whom we trust. Be the shield and the comforter of aged saints. O graciously protect them with the wings of thy gracious providence, till the storms of life are past; and when their present life of weakness and suffering comes to a close, may they be safely and triumphantly admitted into the haven of celestial and eternal rest. When taking an endless farewell of all terrestrial things, may they sing, in the language of believing confidence and joy, We have fought the good fight, we have finished our course, we have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for us a crown of righteousness, which God the righteous Judge will give unto us at that day; and not unto us only, but unto all them who love his appearing.

We would look with interest on our nation, and thus pray for the rising race, the hopes of our land and of our Church: May our sons be as plants grown up in their youth, and our daughters as corner-stones, polished after the similitude of a palace. May our fields not only bring forth abundantly, and our garners be filled with plenty; but may the Gospel have free course and be glorified. May Jesus reign in every family—in every heart; and may our rulers, our ministers, and all the people, be HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

O hear us, for our Saviour's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE GOODNESS OF GOD.

Arundel, Arabia, Zion.

C. M.

- 1 SWEET is the memory of thy grace,
My God, my heavenly King;
Let age to age thy righteousness
In sounds of glory sing.
- 2 God reigns on high, but not confines
His goodness to the skies;
Through the whole earth his bounty shines,
And every want supplies.
- 3 How kind are thy compassions, Lord!
How slow thine anger moves!
But soon he sends his pardoning word
To cheer the souls he loves.
- 4 Creatures, with all their endless race,
Thy power and praise proclaim;
But saints that taste thy richer grace
Delight to bless thy name.

Watts, Ps. 145, p. 11.

PSALM CXLV.

God's Greatness and Goodness.

- I WILL extol thee, my God, O King; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever.
- 2 Every day will I bless thee; and I will praise thy name for ever and ever.
  - 3 Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised; and his greatness is unsearchable.
  - 4 One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.
  - 5 I will speak of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works.
  - 6 And men shall speak of the might of thy terrible acts: and I will declare thy greatness.
  - 7 They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness.
  - 8 The LORD is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy.
  - 9 The LORD is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works.
  - 10 All thy works shall praise thee, O LORD; and thy saints shall bless thee.
  - 11 They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power;
  - 12 To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom.
  - 13 Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations.
  - 14 The LORD upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down.
  - 15 The eyes of all wait upon thee; and thou givest them their meat in due season.
  - 16 Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing.
  - 17 The LORD is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works.
  - 18 The LORD is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth.
  - 19 He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will save them.
  - 20 The LORD preserveth all them that love him: but all the wicked will he destroy.
  - 21 My mouth shall speak the praise of the LORD: and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever and ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXLV.—In saving faith there is something delightfully appropriating. In the exercise of this grace the believer says, "Christ is mine, he is my King, he is my Saviour, he is my God." Thus Thomas exclaimed when he was delivered from the paralysis of his unbelief, and beheld his risen Lord before his eyes, "My Lord, and my God." True religion is regular and constant as the return of day. And as no day passes without the continued displays of God's mercies, the true believer is resolved that no day shall pass without his expressions of thanksgiving and praise. God's benevolence shines in the provision made for our temporal necessities, but more especially in the most munificent provision for our spiritual wants in the Gospel of his Son.

PRAYER.

A DORABLE and blessed Jehovah, thou art infinitely glorious in thy majesty and power, but thy glory shines with peculiar splendour and loveliness in thy mercy and in thy grace. We come before thee in the name of him whose name is as ointment poured forth—even Jesus, whose name fills the heavens with blessedness, joy, and praise.

We thank thee for the enjoyment of thy providential and paternal care during the past night, and we thank thee that we are permitted to open our eyes on the light of another Sabbath, that blessed day which is the harbinger of a glorious day, which will last through the countless ages of eternity, illuminated by the unveiled glory of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. This day may thy Spirit be eminently poured out on all the ministers of Christ, on all the instructors of the rising race, and on all the congregations of thy people. In thy sanctuary, may thy ministers speak, with holy earnestness and effect, of the glorious honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works. O may they abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, in making from all eternity a provision for our ruined race. May the righteousness of Christ, in all its parts and in all its properties, be held up before the minds of men; and may multitudes be persuaded by thy Holy Spirit to receive Jesus as the Lord their righteousness. May the mercy, compassion, and grace of God, as they are manifested in Christ, be faithfully unfolded before the minds of men, that multitudes may feel themselves sweetly constrained to flee for salvation to the arms of a redeeming God.

Have mercy on the hardened and unconvinced, who are, alas! slumbering unconcerned upon the brink of eternal woe! Impress these words upon their consciences: The Lord preserveth all those who love him; but all the wicked will he destroy.

Show compassion to those whose eyes are opened to see their sinfulness, guilt, and danger, and who, in the midst of their alarm, are ready to fear that they shall be excluded from mercy and salvation. O apply to their heart these consoling expressions, and may they prove as heavenly balm to their wounded spirits: The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy. The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works. May these encouraging declarations inspire them with holy confidence to fall down at the feet of Jesus, who will never cast out the humble penitent who seeks salvation through his blood.

O Lord, we pray that our dear children may be made monuments of thy mercy. In them may that promise be illustrated, One generation shall praise thy works unto another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

We thank our God for all the goodness which has passed before us during the past year. O may all of us, and all our friends, meet in the heavenly world, to sing the praises of God and the Lamb, for ever and ever.

Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PRAISE TO GOD FOR HIS GOODNESS.

Battersea. Jackson's Anniversary. Martin's Lane. 113th.

- 1 I'll praise my Maker with my breath;
And when my voice is lost in death,
Praise shall employ my nobler powers:
My days of praise shall ne'er be past,
While life, and thought, and being last,
Or immortality endures.
- 2 Why should I make a man my trust?
Princes must die and turn to dust;
Vain is the help of flesh and blood:
Their breath departs, their pomp and power
And thoughts, all vanish in an hour,
Nor can they make their promise good.
- 3 Happy the man whose hopes rely
On Israel's God; he made the sky,
And earth and seas, with all their train:
His truth for ever stands secure;
He saves the oppressed, he feeds the poor,
And none shall find his promise vain.

Watts, Ps. 146.

PSALM CXLVI.

Resolving to praise God.

- PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise ye the LORD, O my soul.
- 2 While I live will I praise the LORD: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being.
  - 3 Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help.
  - 4 His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.
  - 5 Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the LORD his God:
  - 6 Which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever:
  - 7 Which executeth judgment for the oppressed: which giveth food to the hungry. The LORD looseth the prisoners:
  - 8 The LORD openeth the eyes of the blind: the LORD raiseth them that are bowed down: the LORD loveth the righteous:
  - 9 The LORD preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow: but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down.
  - 10 The LORD shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXLVII.

God worthy to be praised.

- PRAISE ye the LORD: for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant; and praise is comely.
- 2 The LORD doth build up Jerusalem: he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel.
  - 3 He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds.
  - 4 He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names.
  - 5 Great is our LORD, and of great power: his understanding is infinite.
  - 6 The LORD lifteth up the meek: he casteth the wicked down to the ground.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALMS CXLVI., CXLVII.—There is no music in praise acceptable and pleasing to God unless the heart is tuned by the influences of the Holy Spirit. Melody of voice ought to be studied and cultivated; but above all, melody of soul. It is only the believer who truly lives. They who are in nature's darkness, are dead while they live. The believer has grace in his soul; a vital, a Divine principle, which is constantly springing up into life eternal, and which renders all his religious exercises living sacrifices and living services, holy and acceptable unto God. Thousands have trusted in earthly princes, and have been deceived; but none were ever disappointed who trusted in Jesus. Let each one of us say, "O Jesus, by the grace of thy Spirit, I will trust in thee alone, the Prince of peace, the Prince of the kings of the earth." We cannot conceive the transcendent greatness of the privileges of the redeemed of God; they can call God their's, the strength of their heart and their portion for ever; they are interested in all the Divine perfections; God's wisdom is their guide, his power is their defense, and his love the boundless storehouse which supplies them with every blessing.

PRAYER.

OTHOU who art the infinitely glorious and blessed Jehovah, thou art great and of great power: thine understanding is infinite. Thou art as gracious and merciful as thou art great; for thou healest the broken in heart, and bindest up their wounds. While thou tellest the number of the stars, and callest them all by name, thou liftest up the meek, and castest the wicked, who seek their injury, down to the ground. We adore thee as the mighty Creator, who made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that therein is. O hasten that day when the millennial glory shall arrive, when there will, spiritually considered, be new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. Thou art a true God, true to thy purposes, to thy promises, and to thy threatenings. O encourage us to rely upon thy promises, which are unchanging like thyself; for thou keepest truth for ever.

We thank thee for all the mercies we have received, and for all the comforts we have this day enjoyed. We praise thee that thou hast fed the hungry soul with the bread of life, and that thou hast comforted thy people in the sanctuary with the exquisite delights arising from the smiles of thy countenance and the communications of thy grace. We thank thee, O God of salvation, for all the prisoners whom thou hast loosed from Satan's galling chains. If any now before thee have been liberated from the thralldom of that powerful foe this day, or in some former period, to thee we present the joyful tribute of our thanksgiving; for thy mercy endureth for ever. Blessed Jesus, we praise thee for opening the eyes of the spiritually blind, and for enabling them to see their own wants and thy fulness, their own diseases and thy skill, their own guilt and thy righteousness, their own pollution and thy purifying spirit, and their own helplessness and thy strength.

We thank thee for raising those that were bowed down under a sense of guilt or a fear of wrath, and for enabling them to obtain such a sight of thy compassion and love, as to cast themselves with holy confidence into the arms of redeeming mercy.

Lord, impress the minds of our dear children with the truths of the Gospel which they may have either read in private or heard in public this day. O make them bright ornaments of the Christian character, and distinguished servants of Jesus Christ.

We thank thee, O God of ordinances, for all the mercies, temporal and spiritual, we have enjoyed during the past year, and for the numerous occasions we have enjoyed of hearing the voice and invitations of mercy in thy public courts. We praise thee for the assistance thou hast given to our minister in his public labours, and for the success which has attended his efforts. O have mercy on those to whom thy word has been preached in vain. Lord, pluck them as brands out of the burning.

May our servants be enlightened in the knowledge of Christ: and when they may be bowed down with affliction, may God mercifully raise them up.

Into thy hands we commend ourselves this night; and we implore an answer to our prayers, and the pardon of our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

UNIVERSAL PRAISE.

Singal. Repose. Mansbury. Falcon Street.

P. M.

- 1 YE tribes of Adam, join
With heaven, and earth, and seas,
And offer notes divine
To your Creator's praise:
Ye holy throng
Of angels bright,
In worlds of light,
Begin the song.
- 2 Thou sun with dazzling rays,
And moon that rules the night,
Shine to your Maker's praise,
With stars of twinkling light;
His power declare,
Ye floods on high,
And clouds that fly
In empty air.

Watts, Ps. 148.

PSALM CXLVII.

Unspeakable Blessings.

SING unto the Lord with thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God:

8 Who covereth the heaven with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains.

9 He giveth to the beast his food, and to the young ravens which cry.

10 He delighteth not in the strength of the horse: he taketh not pleasure in the legs of a man.

11 The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear him, in those that hope in his mercy.

12 Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem; praise thy God, O Zion.

13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; he hath blessed thy children within thee.

14 He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat.

15 He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth: his word runneth very swiftly.

16 He giveth snow like wool: he scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes.

17 He casteth forth his ice like morsels: who can stand before his cold?

18 He sendeth out his word, and melteth them: he causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow.

19 He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel.

20 He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Praise ye the Lord.

PSALM CXLVIII.

Praise.

PRAISE ye the Lord. Praise ye the Lord from the heavens: praise him in the heights.

2 Praise ye him, all his angels: praise ye him, all his hosts.

3 Praise ye him, sun and moon: praise him, all ye stars of light.

4 Praise him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens.

5 Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created.

6 He hath also established them for ever and ever: he hath made a decree which shall not pass.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXLVII, CXLVIII.—Blessed are they who are taught by the Spirit to make the God of salvation the object of their love and the subject of their praise. All God's works proclaim his glory, even the clouds, the rain, the flowing streams, the grass upon the mountains, the beasts of the field, and the winged tribes of the air, whose voice he hears, and whose wants he never fails to supply. Unspeakably great are the privileges of the children of God. They are loved with an everlasting love. They are the objects of the delight of Jesus, who condescends to take delight in their persons, their graces, their services, their attainments, and their fellowship. Wonderful is the manifestation of God's agency in the elements, in the warmth of summer, in the vivifying influence of spring, in the fertility of autumn, and in the cold of winter. Far more wonderful the display of his gracious power in connection with his Gospel. This he makes the wisdom of God, and the power of God to them who believe. Great are the privileges which God has conferred upon our land. But the Gospel which he has given us exceeds them all, more than the light of the sun exceeds the feeble light of the twinkling stars. Do we feel the claims of the God of grace for our love, obedience, homage, adoration, and praise? Invaluable a praising frame, a soul in tune to celebrate the wonderful greatness, the boundless attributes of the Triune Jehovah. Such a frame assimilates to angels and prepares for the joys of heaven, where the Sun of glory ever shines and never sets. Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

O LORD, we rejoice that it is no vain thing to draw near unto thee in prayer. No humble, believing, penitent suppliant ever sought thy face in vain. On many occasions, thou hast prevented thy petitioners with blessings, and hast answered their prayers while their petitions were in their mouths.

We rejoice that thou art merciful and gracious, and that thou hast invited the weary and heavy laden to come unto thee, to be refreshed with the blessings of thy goodness. This morning may we experience the refreshing influence of thy grace descending on our souls, like the reviving showers which fall upon the mown grass. We thank our heavenly Father for thy mercy during the last night, and the past year, which has nearly revolved over our heads, and which will in a few hours be swallowed up in the ocean of a vast eternity. While thousands who began the year with us are now the inhabitants of an eternal world, we, in the abundance of thy grace, are spared in the land of hope, and where the gospel-trumpet still pours forth the joyful accents of redeeming love. O what reason have we to exclaim, Give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever!

If any of our relatives have been removed from us by death during the past revolving year, O sanctify to us the bereaving event: and may these solemn dispensations arouse us to flee to Jesus, our only refuge, that when the time of our departure comes, we may be found prepared for the coming of our Lord, and having our lamps burning.

Spare the lives of our dear children to a good old age. But if any of them should die in early life, or even before the approaching year comes to a close, may early death be early glory; and may they fall asleep in the arms of Jesus, with the assured hopes of a glorious immortality.

Bless the word we have now been privileged to read. Great were the advantages conferred on ancient Israel, but far greater the privileges conferred on our land, on our nation, and our church.

As a nation, thou hast strengthened the bars of our gates, and blessed our children within us. Thou hast surrounded us by the waters of the great deep, and hast long preserved us from the invasion of hostile bands, and art still continuing to render us powerful among the kingdoms of the world. Above all, thou hast given us thy Gospel, the ordinances of thy grace, thy ministers, thy day, thy word, thy statutes, thy judgments. O when we consider how richly we enjoy these privileges, which are not so extensively enjoyed by other lands where even thy Gospel is preached, what reason have we to exclaim in accents of joyful praise, Thou hast not dealt so with any nation; and as for thy calamitous judgments we have not known them; praise ye the Lord.

Graciously assist us in all the duties of this day, hear the voice of our supplications, and forgive our sins, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

PRAISE.

Cyprus. Pell Street. Sydney.

C. M.

- 1 IN God's own house pronounce his praise,
His grace he there reveals;
To heaven your joy and wonder raise,
For there his glory dwells.
- 2 Let all your sacred passions move,
While you rehearse his deeds;
But the great work of saving love
Your highest praise exceeds.
- 3 All that have motion, life, and breath,
Proclaim your Maker blest;
Yet when my voice expires in death,
My soul shall praise him best.

Watts, Ps. 150.

PSALM CXLVIII.

Universal Praise.

PRAISE the LORD from the earth, ye dragons and all deeps:

8 Fire, and hail; snow, and vapours; stormy wind fulfilling his word:

9 Mountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars:

10 Beasts, and all cattle; creeping things, and flying fowl:

11 Kings of the earth, and all people; princes, and all judges of the earth:

12 Both young men, and maidens; old men, and children:

13 Let them praise the name of the LORD: for his name alone is excellent; his glory is above the earth and heaven.

14 He also exalteth the horn of his people, the praise of all his saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto him. Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM CXLIX.

God's Love.

PRAISE ye the LORD. Sing unto the LORD a new song, and his praise in the congregation of saints.

2 Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: Let the children of Zion be joyful in their King.

3 Let them praise his name in the dance: let them sing praises unto him with the timbrel and harp.

4 For the LORD taketh pleasure in his people: he will beautify the meek with salvation.

5 Let the saints be joyful in glory; let them sing aloud upon their beds.

6 Let the high praises of God be in their mouth, and a twoedged sword in their hand;

7 To execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishments upon the people;

8 To bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron;

9 To execute upon them the judgment written: this honour have all his saints. Praise ye the LORD

PSALM CL.

Praise.

PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in the firmament of his power.

2 Praise him for his mighty acts: praise him according to his excellent greatness.

3 Praise him with the sound of the trumpet: praise him with the psaltery and harp.

4 Praise him with the timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and organs.

5 Praise him upon the loud cymbals: praise him upon the high sounding cymbals.

6 Let every thing that hath breath praise the LORD. Praise ye the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.—God's works reflect his glory, and passively proclaim his praise. Even irrational tribes, the various elements, and the innumerable products of the vegetable creation, from the lowly violet to the lofty cedar, serve the end of their existence. But, alas! unregenerate man is worse than a blind in the universe of God. He is the enemy of his Creator, and employs his faculties and powers in dishonouring the name of Him in whom he lives, moves, and has his being! O may a regenerating change be effected in our hearts by the irresistible power of the Divine Spirit! Then the name of God will appear before us in all its captivating excellence. Then we will rejoice in the person, the righteousness, the intercession, and the offices of Christ. Then we will rejoice in his government, in his sceptre, and in his laws. Do we take pleasure in Jesus? Then he takes pleasure in us. Do we take pleasure in the voice of his Gospel? Then he takes pleasure in the voice of our prayers, our thanksgiving, and our praise. Ungodly princes who die impenitent shall perish in eternal ignominy; but imperishable, unfading honours await the followers of Christ, however mean their circumstances here below, and however much they may be trodden under foot, and despised by the great and mighty of this world. How animating, how glorious the prospects of the redeemed beyond the grave! In a very little while they shall unite with angels in the sweet, melodious songs of heaven, where their sun shall no more go down, and the days of their mourning shall be ended.

PRAYER.

IN approaching thy throne, O God of salvation, we would supplicate from thee a spirit of grace and supplication. In presenting our petitions we would remember that thou art enthroned in heaven, amid all the glories of thine uncreated majesty, and constantly receiving the refined and melodious praises of angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect.
We bless thee that thou condescendest to hear the adoration, prayers, and praises, of thy humble and feeble worshippers here below. We confess our infinite unworthiness, but rejoice that, through the righteousness of our divine Immanuel, we can obtain the acceptance of our persons, and the answer of our prayers.

Lord, we are sinners; we have incurred thy displeasure; we have exposed ourselves to thy wrath; we have often sinned deliberately and presumptuously; and we have sinned against light, against love, and against the most distinguished privileges. We desire to lie down low and humble, and penitent, at the foot of mercy, and at the foot of the cross of Christ. O give us faith to look upon his atoning sacrifice for deliverance from the guilt of all our sins; O give us faith to wash in the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness.

We humbly supplicate the blessings of the Divine Spirit on the solemn ordinance in which we are engaged, and on the animating words we have now read.

We rejoice that thou art glorified, O Lord, by all thy works. Even dragons and all deeps, fire and hail, snow and vapour, mountains and all hills, fruitful trees and all cedars, beasts and all cattle, and creeping things and flying fowl, bring to thy perfections a revenue of glory. Holy Spirit, teach us to glorify and praise the name of the LORD.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that thy name is excellent, and that thy glory is far above the earth and the heavens. Excellent is thy name as the Creator of all things, and as the moral and the mighty Governor of the universe; but thy name, O Jesus, is peculiarly excellent as the God of salvation, and as the deliverer of thy church and people.

Lord, give our dear children thy grace. Now they are in the most joyful period of their lives, O teach them to rejoice in him that made them; and may they join the children of Zion, and be joyful in their Saviour and King.

Lord, we are pilgrims and strangers on earth, surrounded by numerous enemies: O defend us from our enemies. We are exposed to many dangers; graciously preserve us: and in thine arms may we constantly repose. And when this life comes to an end, may we rest in heaven with thee at last.

Accept of us in Christ. Amen. And may the grace of the LORD Jesus Christ be with us, and all the people of God, for ever and ever. Amen.

APPENDIX.

Last Day of the Year.

SHORTNESS OF TIME.

Kennington. Penrith. Bath Chapel. Follett.

c. n.

- 1 TIME! what an empty vapour 'tis!
And days how swift they are!
Swift as an Indian arrow flies,
Or like a shooting star.
- 2 The present moments just appear,
Then slide away in haste,
That we can never say, They're here,
But only say, They're past.
- 3 Our life is ever on the wing,
And death is ever nigh;
The moment when our lives begin
We all begin to die.
- 4 Yet, mighty God, our fleeting days
Thy lasting favours share,
Yet with the bounties of thy grace
Thou loadest the rolling year.
- 5 'Tis sovereign mercy finds us food,
And we are clothed with love;
While grace stands pointing out the road
That leads our souls above.
- 6 His goodness runs an endless round;
All glory to the Lord:
His mercy never knows a bound,
And be his name adored!
- 7 Thus we begin the lasting song,
And when we close our eyes,
Let the next age thy praise prolong
Till time and nature dies.

WATTS, 58, B. II.

READ PSALM XC.

PRAYER.

O THOU blessed Object of prayer, adoration, and praise, we draw near to thy sacred and gracious throne, at the close of another year, and we prostrate ourselves at thy footstool in the name of Jesus, our Advocate and Redeemer. With thee there is no revolution of time, for one day is with thee as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. O how inexpressibly wonderful and glorious art thou in thy being! From everlasting to everlasting thou art God. And we have reason to lift up our hallelujahs of praise, that from everlasting to everlasting thou art the God of salvation. May all of us in reference to thine everlasting arrangements in the covenant of grace, which was entered into before all worlds, be enabled to sing, in the exercise of lively gratitude and faith, According as he hath chosen us in him from the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love.

With humble penitence, O thou God of spotless holiness, we would bow down before thee. We confess the sins of the past year. The sins of our thoughts, our purposes, our desires, our imaginations, our wills, our affections, we lay them down at mercy's feet. The sins of enmity, carnality, covetousness, envy, vanity, and pride, with which we have been chargeable in thy sight, during the year which has come to a close, we lay them down at mercy's feet, and we supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood.

We confess the unhallowed expressions which have fallen from our lips. Whatever profane, or angry, or irreverent, or unkind, or unseasonable words have been uttered by us, to the dishonour of thy name, to the offence of others, or the injury of our own souls; we lay these sins of our expressions at mercy's feet, and we supplicate pardon through the all-prevailing righteousness of Jesus Christ.

All our sinful actions we confess; whatever we have done in opposition to what thy law forbids, and what we have not done in opposition to what thy law requires; these our sins of omission, and our sins of commission, we lay down at mercy's feet, and we supplicate pardon through the atoning sacrifice of our great Redeemer.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the year. For preserving our lives, our health, our reason, our usefulness, our temporal business, but, above all, our spiritual privileges, we desire to praise thee with thankful and joyful hearts. What shall we render to the Lord for all his benefits towards us? We will take the cup of salvation, and call on the name of the Lord.

We earnestly pray that our God and Father in Christ would sanctify all the events of the year, including the continuance or bereavement of friends; the enjoyment or loss of property; the possession or loss of health: O may all things work together for our present and eternal welfare.

Lord, affect us with the fleeting nature of time, and teach us to aspire after a life of immortality in the skies. When our time on earth shall cease, may we enter into the house not made with hands, to be for ever with the Lord.

O hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

First Day of the Year.

NEW YEAR.
Epping Forest.

- 1 ANOTHER year
Has told its fourfold tale,
And still I'm here,
A traveller in the vale.
- 2 Ah! not a few
Who seemed life's toils to brave,
Are hid from view
Within the silent grave.
- 3 Why am I spared
To see another year?
Why have I shared
So many mercies here?
- 4 'Tis not my birth,
For I was born in sin;
'Tis not my worth,
For I've a heart unclean.

APPENDIX.

- 5 From God alone
My mercies I receive,
I would make known
His goodness while I live.
- 6 Then aid my tongue,
Companions on the road,
To raise a song
Of gratitude to God.
- 7 Hallelujah!
Let all their voices raise:
Hallelujah!
To God be all the praise.

W. WALKER.

READ ROMANS XII.

PRAYER.

GOD of all grace, and Father of mercies, we come before thee on the first day of another year, in the name of our great Intercessor, who appears within the veil as the surety, the forerunner, and the advocate of his people. God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we adore thee in the boundless antiquity, and in the endless and unchanging duration of thine uncreated being. Of old hast thou laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture thou shalt change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.

While thousands who entered upon the last year in the enjoyment of health are now lying in the cold grave, we praise thy sovereign and unmerited goodness that we are mercifully preserved to enter upon another year, in the possession of many personal and relative blessings, and surrounded by Gospel privileges of inestimable worth.

Great God, we adore thy mighty hand, by which we are still the preserved monuments of thy mercy. O Lord, the opening year proclaims thy goodness; and may thy mercy crown it till the close.

We own past mercies; Lord, make us grateful to thee, the Divine Benefactor, who hast continually poured into our cup the unmerited blessings of thy goodness. Thou hast in thy wisdom concealed from us the future; but we praise thee thou hast not concealed from us thy wisdom, to which we are permitted to apply for direction in hours of darkness, perplexity, and doubt. We bless thee, that thou hast not concealed from us the sources of thy goodness and love, to which we may apply for every mercy, and for every grace.

Suffer us not, O Lord, to bring a reproach this year on our Christian name. Enable us to keep the garments of our profession clean. Every day, may it be the constant study and delight of our hearts, to live soberly, righteously, and godly; making our light so to shine before men, that others, beholding our good works, may glorify our Father who is in heaven.

As a family, may we make great advances in Divine knowledge, in conformity to the image of our God and Saviour, and great progress in every grace. Such among us as are partakers of thy grace, may we revive as the corn, and grow as the vine, and may we cast forth our roots as the cedars of Lebanon. Such among us who are not the sharers of thy grace, O let the year not come to a close till we are introduced into the family of Christ, and have all our hopes of salvation placed on Jesus, the chief and the sure corner-stone.

Bless our beloved children. O may they be rooted and grounded in Christ. To thee, O Jesus, may they be united, and begin this year as the living branches of thee, the true Vine.

Blessed God, we now dedicate ourselves to thee. Into thy hands we surrender our souls, with all their faculties, capacities, and powers. We surrender to thee our bodies, which must soon be the inhabitants of the grave. Lord, we are thine;—make us thy holy temples, and may Jesus for ever reign on the throne of our hearts. In life, in death, in judgment, and in eternity, may we be thine. Lord, hear our prayer, and forgive our sin, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Birth of Christ,

OR CHRISTMAS-DAY MORNING.

CHRIST'S BIRTH.

Auburn. Zion Church. Missionary.

- 1 SHEPHERDS! rejoice, lift up your eyes,
And send your fears away,
News from the regions of the skies,
Salvation's born to-day.
- 2 Jesus, the God whom angels fear,
Comes down to dwell with you;
To-day he makes his entrance here,
But not as menarchs do.
- 3 No gold nor purple swaddling bands,
Nor royal shining things;
A manger for his cradle stands,
And holds the King of kings.
- 4 Go, shepherds, where the infant lies,
And see his humble throne;
With tears of joy in all your eyes,
Go, shepherds, kiss the Son.
- 5 Thus Gabriel sang, and straight around
The heavenly armies throng,
They tune their harps to lofty sound,
And thus conclude the song:
- 6 Glory to God that reigns above,
Let peace surround the earth;
Mortals shall know their Maker's love,
At their Redeemer's birth.
- 7 Lord, and shall angels have their songs,
And men no tunes to raise?
O may we lose our useless tongues,
When they forget to praise.
- 8 Glory to God that reigns above,
That pitied us forlorn;
We join to sing our Maker's love,
For there's a Saviour born.

WATTS.

READ LUKE II.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Jehovah, we adore thee in all the mysteries of thine uncreated essence, and threefold personality. We adore the grace of the Father, in sending forth his Son made of a woman, and made under the law, to redeem them that are under the law. We adore the grace of the Son, in becoming the infant of days, and in taking on him the nature of man, and appearing in the likeness of sinful flesh, to save a ruined world. We adore the grace of the Spirit, in presiding over the formation of the infant-humanity of Jesus, and in enabling her who is the most blessed among women to present a Saviour, for the deliverance of fallen men.

Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst willingly become the child born, and the son given. Remembering the wonders of thy nativity—remembering the never-to-be-forgotten day, when thou wast born of a woman, we would join with angels in their song of praise, Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, and goodwill towards men! Holy Spirit, enable us to sing in the joyful strains of an Old Testament church, Unto us a child is born; unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, the Everlasting Father, and the Prince of Peace! O may the remembrance of the birth of Jesus fill our hearts with joy unspeakable, and full of glory!

Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Birth of Christ,

OR CHRISTMAS-DAY EVENING.

BIRTH OF JESUS.

Denmark.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN Adam took forbidden fruit,
And sin had tainted all his blood;
His conscience dreaded quick pursuit,
Sinning against so just a God.
- 2 Nor wore his fears of vengeance vain,
Forced to resign the blissful place,
By toil condemned life to sustain,
With loss of happiness and peace.
- 3 But hark, the Saviour: Lo, I come,
Obedient to my Father's will,
To save the sinner from his doom,
And all the holy law fulfil.
- 4 Well might the hosts of angels fly,
To sound abroad the wondrous plan:
Hark, how their heavenly voices cry
Glory to God, goodwill to man!
- 5 Hail, great Immanuel, Son of God!
This day we celebrate thy birth;
May thy great name be known abroad,
Thy praise be sung through all the earth!

W. WALKER.

READ MATTHEW II.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the eternal Father, whose power is almighty, whose reign is boundless, and whose love is everlasting. Glory to thy name, for the most wonderful display of thy love, in the gift of thy well-beloved Son, to be the Saviour of a lost and ruined world. What are we, O Lord God, that thou hast so loved the world, as to give thine only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life! Thou mightest, by an act of strict justice, have sent thy Son into our world to condemn the world: but, eternal praises to thy name, thou hast sent him, that the world through him might be saved.

As many have observed this day to the Lord, to call to their remembrance the birth of Jesus, bless the religious exercises which have engaged their attention, for increasing their gratitude, love, and praise. May the birth of Jesus be to us, and all our relatives, tidings of great joy. May these tidings be speedily conveyed to all people, and may the day soon arrive when all the inhabitants of the earth shall raise their grateful hallelujahs, that there was born in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. What shall we render to the Lord, for this most distinguished of mercies? Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David!

Graciously hear our prayers, and accept our thanksgivings, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Crucifixion,

OR GOOD FRIDAY MORNING

CRUCIFIXION.

New Sermon. Morchington. Warsaw.

P. M.

- 1 HARK! the loud cry! O sun! thy golden looks Why dipt in blood? Tell me, ye rending rocks!
Thou labouring earth! why from your centre quake?
Ye yawning graves! why thus with horror shake?
- 2 Behold that cross! affrighted nature cries;
In anguish there the God of nature dies!
Then ask no more why the sun hides his head,
Earth quakes, rocks rend, the grave gives up her dead.
- 3 I look'd—O sight of woe! the wounds still bled,
As on his bosom fall his sacred head!
Upon his brow the crown of thorns he bore,
And down his body flowed the crimson gore!
- 4 His lifeless corpse, now bending forward, swung,
As on his dislocated arms it hung;
The livid stripes his furrowed shoulders show,
Wide gapes the side, the blood and water flow!
- 5 Say, heart of stone! canst thou behold unmoved
This scene of sorrow? 'T was because he loved
Wretches like thee! to save them from the grave,
Sin, death, and hell—himself he cannot save!
- 6 Look to him, sinners! till the sight imparts
True godly sorrow to your pierced hearts!
Then, body, spirit, yield to his control—
And let him see the travail of his soul!

HAWKES.

READ JOHN XIX.

PRAYER.

GOD of all grace, and God of salvation, we adore thee in all the mysteries of thy being and of thy love. What is man, that thou art mindful of him; or the son of man, that thou visitest him? Adored be thy name, that as there was no other method by which a ruined world might be saved, but by the sufferings and death of thine eternal and well-beloved Son, thou didst most willingly surrender him up to ignominy, suffering, and death for us. With an apostle may we sing in holy astonishment, He that spared not his own Son, but gave him up to death for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

Adored be thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst suffer reproach, that we might be crowned with glory; and that thou didst endure the greatest ignominy, that the ignominy of our degradation and guilt might be for ever removed. Adored be thy name, that thou didst bear the wrath of offended justice, that we might for ever enjoy the smiles of Jehovah's love. What is man, O Jesus, that thou art mindful of him! Adored be thy name, that thou didst wear the thorny crown, that we might wear a crown of righteousness and immortality. Glory to thy name, that thou didst submit to the agonizing and accursed death of the cross, that we might obtain forgiveness, life, and heaven. It became thy divine character, O God, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the Captain of our salvation perfect through sufferings. Bless the Lord, O our souls, and forget not all his benefits!

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Crucifixion, OR GOOD FRIDAY EVENING.

CROSS OF CHRIST.

Crucifixion. Campbell. Manning.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN I survey the wondrous cross
On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.
- 2 Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast,
Save in the death of Christ my God;
All the vain things that charm me most
I sacrifice them to his blood.
- 3 See from his head, his hands, his feet,
Sorrow and love flow mingled down;
Did e'er such love and sorrow meet,
Or thorns compose so rich a crown?
- 4 His dying crimson, like a robe,
Spreads o'er his body on the tree;
Then am I dead to all the globe,
And all the globe is dead to me.
- 5 Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

WATTS.

READ ISAIAH LIII.

PRAYER.

FILL our hearts with believing wonder, O Lord, when we remember that the Lord of glory was once a feeble babe—that once he was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief—that once he suffered and died on Calvary's cross! Holy Spirit, enable us, in holy astonishment, to unite with an apostle in his expressions of wonder, Great is the mystery of godliness: God, manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory.

We thank thee, O Lord our God, for the richest display of thy divine and unmerited love which could possibly be given to men, in willingly delivering up thine only begotten Son to become the victim of divine justice and the victim of death. May all our hearts most sensibly feel the words of an inspired apostle, who said, When we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet, peradventure, for a good man some would even dare to die; but God commended his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Give us faith, O Lord, to believe our interest in the death of Christ. From thy death, O Jesus, may we derive life. And may the remembrance of thy death fill our minds with wonder, gratitude, and love. O Saviour, we surrender ourselves, soul and body, to thee, who surrendered thyself to death for us.

Graciously hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen

Resurrection of Christ, OR EASTER SABBATH MORNING.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST.

Suffolk New. Amara. Islington.

L. M.

- 1 UPRISING from the darksome tomb,
See the victorious Jesus come;
The Almighty Prisoner quits the prison
And angels tell, The Lord is risen.

- 2 Ye guilty souls, that mourn and grieve,
Hear the glad tidings; hear and live.
God's righteous law is satisfied;
And justice now is on your side.
- 3 Your surety, thus released by God,
Pleads the rich ransom of his blood;
No new demand, no bar remains;
But mercy now triumphant reigns.
- 4 Believers, hail your rising head,
The first begotten from the dead;
Your resurrection's sure through his,
To endless life and boundless bliss.

HARR.

READ MATTHEW XXVIII.

PRAYER.

GOD, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we adore thee in all the unfathomable mysteries of thy nature, and in all the boundless glory of thy perfections. We would rejoice in the blessed manifestation of thy power, in the resurrection of Christ from the dead. O Immanuel, we praise thee that thou didst most willingly submit to death and the grave, to accomplish the deliverance of thy church from the bondage of eternal death; and we would rejoice in the victory gained over those powerful enemies, by bursting asunder the bonds of mortality, and rising triumphant from the tomb. God the Father, we praise thee, that the soul of our divine Surety was not left in the grave, and that his spotless humanity saw no corruption in the tomb. Thou hadst power, O Jesus, to lay down thy life, and thou hadst power to take it up again. Glory to thy great name, that thou didst most fully accomplish that promise, O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction; repentance shall be hid from mine eyes. We rejoice and praise thee, that, on the morning of the third day, an angel descended from heaven, and as the commissioner of justice, which was satisfied, did roll away the stone from the door of the sepulchre, and that thou didst come forth as an exalted and conquering Redeemer.

Lord Jesus, give each of us a spiritual resurrection from hell, sin, and guilt; and O give us the hopes of a glorious resurrection from the grave. Then may we awake, having our bodies likened unto Christ's glorious body.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Resurrection of Christ,

OR EASTER SABBATH EVENING.

THE GRAVE OF JESUS.

Surrey Chapel. Collyer's. Deptford. Firth

M. M.

- 1 MET around the sacred tomb,
Friends of Jesus, why those tears?
Midst the sad, sepulchral gloom,
Shall your faith give way to fears?
He will soon, even as he said,
Rise triumphant from the dead.
- 2 Hidden from all ages past
Was the cross's mystery;
Doubts awhile a veil had cast
O'er that first dear family,
Till they saw him and believed,
And as Lord and God received.
- 3 Now with tears of love and joy
We remember all his pain,
Sighs and groans, and dying cry,
For the Lamb for us was slain;
And from death our souls to save,
Once for us lay in the grave.

4 Hither, sinners, all repair,
And with Jesus Christ be dead;
None have 'scaped the tempter's snare
But who to his tomb have fled:
Here the weary and oppressed
Find a never-ending rest.

C. LATROBE.

READ JOHN XX.

PRAYER.

O JESUS, we desire to rejoice in thy glorious resurrection from the grave, and in thine ascension to the celestial mansions, there to take full possession of all the honours of thy mediatorial purchase. We praise thee, O Lord, for the great and splendid manifestations of thy power, which were wrought in Christ, when thou didst raise him from the dead, and set him at thine own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, in thy resurrection, as the faithful witness, and the first-begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. As our surety, who rose triumphantly from the grave, thou art the first-fruits of them that sleep. O may we rejoice, that thy resurrection is the commencement of the resurrection of the saints. May the conviction of the truth of thy resurrection dispel from our minds all doubts respecting the blessed certainty of the glorious resurrection of the bodies of thy saints, on the morning of that day when thou shalt come in the clouds of heaven to sit down on thy throne of judgment. Give us, Holy Spirit, a lively faith in the final triumph over death and the grave; and may we sing, O death! where is thy sting? O grave! where is thy victory? Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Hear our feeble prayer, for Jesus' sake.

The Day of Pentecost,

OR WHIT-SUNDAY MORNING.

PRAYER TO THE SPIRIT.

Coleham. Langbourne. Carey's. Hoxton.

P. M.

- 1 CREATOR Spirit, by whose aid
The world's foundations first were laid,
Come visit every waiting mind;
Come pour thy joys on human kind:
From sin and sorrow set us free,
And make thy temples worthy thee.
- 2 O source of uncreated light,
The Father's promised Paraclete!*
Thrice holy fount, thrice holy fire,
Our hearts with heavenly love inspire;
Come, and thy sacred unction bring,
To sanctify us while we sing.
- 3 Refine and purge our earthly parts;
But, oh, inflame and fire our hearts!
Our frailties help, our vice control,
Submit the senses to the soul;
And when rebellious they are grown,
Then lay thy hand and hold them down.
- 4 Chase from our minds the infernal foe,
And peace, the fruit of love, bestow;
And, lest our feet should step astray,
Protect and guide us in the way;
Make us eternal truths receive,
And practise all that we believe.

DITDEN.

READ ACTS II.

* Paraclete, or Comforter.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, mercifully cause thine influences to descend upon us in refreshing showers, while we call to our remembrance the abundant and miraculous communication of thy grace on the day of Pentecost. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that so soon after thy blessed ascension thou didst testify effectually the value of thy death, and the merit of thy righteousness. Eternal praises to thy name, O Immanuel, that when thou didst ascend on high, thou didst lead captivity captive, and didst receive gifts for men, even for the rebellious, that God the Lord might dwell among them. O bestow on us the gifts of thy grace, and the blessings of thy salvation; then we shall have the testimony within us that the residue of the Spirit is with thee, and that thou art actually engaged in dispensing the blessings of thy purchase among the children of men.

Eternal thanks to God, for the down-pouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost. We thank the Most High for those miraculous gifts by which the apostles were qualified to preach the Gospel in every language, and in every land which they were enabled to visit on the great errand of mercy. Praise to God, for the great multitude who were converted on that memorable day, when cloven tongues, like as of fire, sat on each of the apostles. Adored be the grace of God, that on that hallowed day some were converted who had actually taken a part in the crucifixion of Jesus.

Holy Spirit, descend on us as a family, and may all of us be the subjects of thy regenerating grace. Hear, O Lord, our humble prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

The Day of Pentecost,

OR WHIT-SUNDAY EVENING.

PRAYER TO THE SPIRIT.

Haddon. Ingatestone.

P. M.

- 1 HOLY Ghost, dispel our sadness,
Pierce the clouds of sinful night:
Come, thou source of sweetest gladness,
Breathe thy life, and spread thy light.
Loving Spirit, God of peace,
Great distributor of grace,
Rest upon this congregation,
Hear, O hear our supplication!
- 2 From that height which knows no measure,
As a gracious shower descend,
Bringing down the richest treasure
Man can wish, or God can send.
O thou glory, shining down
From the Father and the Son,
Grant us thy illumination,
Rest upon this congregation.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 524.

READ HOSBA XIV.

PRAYER.

O LORD, with what reverence and thankfulness should we approach thy throne, to supplicate the gift of the Holy Spirit! We present the expressions of our gratitude for the accomplishment, on the day of Pentecost, of that Old Testament prediction, And I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; and upon my servants and upon mine handmaidens, I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy.

Adorable Redeemer, we praise thee, that before thy death thou didst promise to thy disciples the gift of the Holy Ghost, whose influences should descend upon them, after thine ascension to heaven. Glory to thy name, the Comforter has come, even the Spirit of truth, who is willing to guide us into all truth, and show us things to come.

O Lord, we would now pray for the descent of the Holy Spirit on us, as individuals, as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation. O let his influence come down upon us like the rain upon the mown grass, and as the showers that water the earth. Fulfil in us that most blessed promise, I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine. May all of us feel the convincing and the converting influence of the Holy Ghost. Suffer us not to oppose the Spirit, or to quench the Spirit, or to grieve the Spirit. Holy Spirit, breathe upon us, and we shall live for ever.

Hear our feeble prayers, for Jesus' sake.

Fast-Day Morning.

HUMILIATION.

Penitents. Contrition. Green's 100th.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, when thine Israel we survey,
We in their crimes discern our own;
And if thou turn our prayer away,
Our misery must, like theirs, be known.
- 2 To us thy prophets have been sent,
With words of terror and of love;
But not the vengeance nor the grace,
Ten thousand stubborn hearts will move.
- 3 Our eyes are blind, and deaf our ears;
Our hearts are hardened into stone;
As we would bar thy mercy out,
And leave a way for wrath alone.
- 4 Justly our God might give us up
To plague and famine, and the sword;
Till towns and cities, rich and fair,
Lay desolate, without a lord.
- 5 O'er bleeding wounds of slaughtered friends,
Rivers of helpless grief might flow,
Till the fierce conqueror's haughty race
Dragged us to chains and slaughter too.
- 6 But spare a nation long thine own,
And show new miracles of grace:
'Tis thine to heal the deaf and blind,
And wake the dead to life and praise.

DODDRIDGE.

READ PSALM LI.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art a God of spotless holiness, and thou canst not look upon iniquity but with the utmost detestation and abhorrence. It is infinitely opposed to all thine attributes, and therefore impenitent sinners must be exposed to the wrath and indignation of thine offended justice.

Holy Spirit, enable us at this time to make humble and penitential confession of our transgressions. May we really experience the emotions of that repentance which is unto life, and which shall be followed by the joys of heaven. As a family, as a church, as a congregation, may we look on him whom we have pierced; and when we think of our sins, which nailed the Saviour to the accursed tree, may we mourn and be in bitterness, as one mourns over the death of an only child, or over the interment of a first-born.

As individuals, and as a nation, in all the departments of the community, from the king (or queen) upon the throne, to the meanest of the subjects, we are altogether an unclean thing; from the sole of the foot to the crown of our head, there is no soundness in us, but moral and spiritual wounds, which have not been washed, nor closed, nor mollified with ointment. O Lord, we deserve the heavy judgment with which we are now threatened; and if thou deal with us as we deserve, thou wilt utterly destroy us. O forgive the sins of our princes, our nobles, our legislators, our rulers, our judges, our magistrates, our ministers, our merchants, the teachers of our youth, our churches, and our families. Lord, avert thine anger, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Fast-Day Evening.

HUMILIATION.

Christchurch. Penrit. Tucker's.

C. M.

- 1 HARK! the loud trumpet of our God
Sounds an alarm of war:
Attend, O earth; ye nations, hear,
And tremble from afar!
- 2 With humble reverence and with awe,
We hear the sacred word;
And, trembling, own the sentence just
Which dooms us to the sword.
- 3 Not o'on in war should we repine
The murdering sword to view,
Might the same stroke that wastes the land
Destroy its vices too.
- 4 But we shall hail the happy day
Which ends the painful doom;
When earth shall, like the world above
In peace and virtue bloom.
- 5 Still let our songs declare his name
Who guards the British race;
The God of justice we adore,
And bless the God of grace.

READ PSALM LX.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we come unto thee, in the name of Jesus, our Advocate and Saviour. We approach thee on a day set apart for humiliation, fasting, mourning, and supplication. Graciously enable us, in the exercise of true repentance, holy contrition, and sincere devotion, to pour out our hearts, and make supplication before thee.

We are a sinful nation, we are a people laden with iniquity. We confess the pride, the covetousness, the carnality and luxury, the spiritual indolence and unconcern, the profanity and neglect of ordinances, and, above all, the rejection of Jesus, thy gift unspeakable, with which we are chargeable. Thou art afflicting us as a nation:—O that our hearts may be afflicted, and mourn and weep for our multiplied offences. In thy righteousness thou art suspending over us a heavy calamity; and if thou shouldst deal with us as we deserve, thou wouldst visit us with destruction, and blot out our name from the catalogue of nations. O Lord, in the midst of deserved wrath, remember us with undeserved mercy. O may the cloud we so much and so justly dread, in thy great kindness burst with blessings on our head.

Lord, give us as a nation repentance and reformation, and may all the people return to thee, as one man, and supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood. O make us a nation of righteousness: and all we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving-Day Morning.

THANKSGIVING.

- Cyprian. Zadok. George's. America.* G. M.
- 1 ZION rejoice, and Judah sing;
The Lord assumes his throne;
Let Britain own the heavenly King,
And make his glories known.
  - 2 The great, the wicked, and the proud,
From their high seats are hurled:
Jehovah rides upon a cloud,
And thunders through the world.
  - 3 He reigns upon the eternal hills,
Distributes mortal crowns,
Empires are fixed beneath his smiles,
And totter at his frowns.
  - 4 Navies that rule the ocean wide
Are vanquished by his breath;
And legions armed with power and pride
Descend to watery death.
  - 5 Let tyrants make no more pretence
To vex our happy land;
Jehovah's name is our defence,
Our buckler is his hand.
  - 6 Long may the king [or queen] our sovereign live,
To rule us by his [or her] word;
And all the honours he [or she] can give
Be offered to the Lord.

Watts, 111, B. II.

READ PSALM XLVI.

PRAYER.

GOD of salvation, we adore thee as Britain's God, and as the Lord our God. We fall down before thee, to present our thanksgivings for national blessings. We lift up our eyes to thee, Holy Spirit, that thou wouldst mercifully assist us in presenting suitable, sincere, and acceptable expressions of our gratitude and praise.

We thank our God for our national blessings, and for our national security, as surrounded and defended by the waters of the great deep. We thank thee for our civil and political privileges, and for the distinguished advantages we enjoy, under a mild and liberal government. We praise thee that our throne has been filled by a long succession of mild and just and merciful kings. We present our thanksgiving for the wholesome laws by which our nation is governed. For the blessings of commerce, and for our most remarkable intercourse with other nations of the earth, we present before thee the humble tribute of our praise.

Above all, we thank thee for Jesus Christ, and his glorious Gospel, which is the wisdom of God, and the power of God to them that believe. We thank thee for the Bible, for ordinances, and for ministers. We praise thee for the blessed efficacy with which a preached Gospel is accompanied, in the heart and lives of multitudes in our land. Praise to thy name, that for a long series of ages thy church has been preserved among us. Lord, graciously accept our humble thanksgivings for these mercies, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving-Day Evening.

PRAYER FOR NATIONAL BLESSINGS.

- Charity. Lutton (Canada). Job. Old 100th.* L. A.
- 1 GREAT Ruler of the earth and skies,
A word of thine almighty breath
Can sink the world, or bid it rise;
Thy smile is life, thy frown is death.

- 2 When angry nations rush to arms,
And rage, and noise, and tumult reign,
And war resounds its dire alarms,
And slaughter dyes the hostile plain;
- 3 Thy sovereign eye looks calmly down,
And marks their course, and bounds their power;
Thy law the angry nations own,
And noise and war are heard no more.
- 4 Then peace returns with balmy wing,
Sweet peace! (with her what blessings fled!)
Glad plenty laughs, the valleys sing,
Reviving commerce lifts her head.
- 5 Thou good, and wise, and righteous Lord,
All more subservient to thy will;
Both peace and war await thy word,
And thy sublime decrees fulfil.
- 6 To thee we pay our grateful songs,
Thy kind protection still implore:
O may our hearts, and lives, and tongues,
Confess thy goodness and adore!

MRS. STEELE.

READ PSALM CXLVII.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the Father of mercies, and we would humbly approach thy gracious throne, to express our thanksgivings for those natural mercies thou hast so bountifully conferred on our land. Thy mercy, O Lord, is above the heavens, and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds. Thy goodness abideth continually.

We praise thee that thou hast so long preserved our privileges in the midst of us. For centuries thou hast preserved our laws, our liberties, and our religion. We thank thee, O King of Zion, for all that our beloved ancestors were enabled to accomplish; and that they have not only handed down to us the most valuable civil liberties and privileges, but that they have also handed down to us the Bible, a preached Gospel, with all the ordinances of religion, pure and unimpaired. We thank God that our land is delivered from pagan idolatry, and in a great measure from priestly superstition and domination, which reigned for many generations. We praise God that we can worship the God of our fathers with such security and peace; and that we can sit down under our vine and our fig-tree, none daring to make us afraid. We bless God for the efficacy of the Gospel; O may that efficacy increase! May it soon be universal!

We thank thee, O Lord, for our universities, our colleges, and our schools; and for the prospect of a day when all shall be able to read the word of life.

We thank thee for preserving us from our national enemies. O make us a holy nation. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Spring.

SPRING.

Falloworth. Melody. Evans'. Staughton. G. M.

- 1 THE icy chains that bound the earth
Are now dissolved and gone:
Waked by the sun, the blooming spring
Puts his new livery on.
- 2 Where awful desolation reigned
Blessed plenty rears her head:
Exulting with a smile to see
Her late destroyer fled.

G B 2

739

APPENDIX.

- 3 Teeming with life, the advancing sun
Protracts the falling day;
Grand light of heaven! he seems to wish
To make a longer stay.
- 4 In clouds of gold behold him sit,
Beyond the west he flies:
Short is his nightly course, and soon
He gilds the eastern skies.
- 5 My soul, in every scene admire
The wisdom and the power:
Behold the God in every plant,
In every opening flower.
- 6 Yet in his word the God of grace
Has wrote his fairer name:
The wonders of redeeming love
My noblest songs shall claim.
- 7 With warmest beams, thou God of grace,
Shine on this heart of mine;
Turn thou my winter into SPRING,
And be the glory thine.

NEBUZAN.

READ SOLOMON'S SONG II.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee as exercising thy sovereign and unlimited control over all times and seasons. During the winter months, thou didst cast forth thine ice like morsels; none were able to stand before thy cold. Now, thou hast sent forth thy word and melted them; thou causeth the wind to blow, and the waters flow.

What reason have we to acknowledge with shame and contrition of heart, that the state of religion in our own souls, in our family, and in our neighbourhood, too much resembles the cold and death of winter. Let not our cold and languid and inactive state continue. Holy Spirit, grant that by thy sacred influence a spiritual revival may take place. As in spring the face of nature is refreshed and beautified and enlivened by genial showers, may thine influences descend on us as a family and as a congregation, like rain upon the mown grass, and like showers that water the earth. May the Word read in private and heard in public resemble the good seed cast into good ground. O cause it to vegetate, and take root; and may our souls resemble a field adorned with animating verdure, and display those marks of spiritual growth which will be the promising symptoms of a future and abundant harvest. O let a preached Gospel drop as the rain, and distil as the dew. In its spiritual effects may it resemble the small rain upon the tender herb, and the showers upon the grass.

We thank thee, O Lord, for delivering us from the cold and the sterility of winter. O deliver the souls of all our relatives and friends from the cold and barrenness of a state of nature, which is the dreary winter of the soul of man. Heaven grant that they may soon enter on the spiritual spring of a new and regenerated life. We thank thee that the time of singing of birds is come, and that our ears are delighted with their songs of praise. O Lord, may all of us be introduced into a state of grace; then shall we feel thy saving goodness, and then shall we proclaim thy praise. Enable us to hear a call, as it were, from every bird that pours forth its warbling, joyful notes, to praise the name of the Lord. Never may we forget to make melody with our lips and with our hearts to the Lord. As songs of rejoicing are heard in the tabernacles of the righteous, may our abode have this blessed token of being a Bethel, the residence of Jacob's God.

O Jesus, have mercy on the rising race, and give them grace to consider and improve their early youthful days as the spring-season of their existence. Convince them, that as they sow now, so shall they reap hereafter. O suffer them not to sow to the flesh, to their own vanity, passions, and lusts. Holy Spirit, let the incorruptible Gospel-seed be sown in their hearts, and may the spring-time of their life issue in an harvest of glory.

Mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Summer.

JESUS SEEN IN THE SEASONS.

Bethel. Chester New. Elim Chapel. Cookham. 1a.

- 1 WINTER has a joy for me,
While the Saviour's charms I read
Lowly, meek, from blomish free
In the snow-drop's pensive head.
- 2 Spring returns, and brings along
Life-invigorating suns:
Hark! the turtle's plaintive song
Seems to speak his dying groans
- 3 Summer has a thousand charms,
All expressive of his worth;
'Tis his sun that lights and warms,
His the air that cools the earth.
- 4 What, has autumn left to say
Nothing of a Saviour's grace?
Yes, the beams of milder day
Tell me of his smiling face.
- 5 Light appears with early dawn;
While the sun makes haste to rise,
See his bleeding beauties drawn
On the blushes of the skies.
- 6 Evening, with a silent pace,
Slowly moving in the west,
Shows an emblem of his grace,
Points to an eternal rest.

COWPER.

READ PSALM LXX.

PRAYER.

WE praise thee, O Lord, for the display of thy perfections which is furnished by the beauty, glory, and luxuriance which now cover the face of the earth. We thank thee that the winter is past, that the rain is over and gone, that the flowers appear on the earth, that the time of the singing of birds is come, that the voice of the turtle is heard in our land, that the fig-tree putteth forth her green figs, and that the vines with the tender grapes give a good smell.

At thy command, O Lord, the spring perfumes the air, and adorns the land: the summer-rays shine with vigour, that an abundance may be produced for man and beast.

As the season of summer is remarkable for the rich display of fragrant flowers of astonishing variety and unspeakable beauty, we pray, O Jesus, that our souls may exhibit the animating state of spiritual summer. Give to us the graces of the Spirit; and may all these graces be vigorous and lively, spreading abroad the sacred influence of a Divine perfume. We bless thee for the summer-sun of Gospel-ordinances and privileges. While that sun continues to shine upon us so gloriously, Heaven forbid that we should resemble those desert and dreary wastes on which the sun of spring and of summer shines in vain. As a family and as a congregation may we resemble a garden in summer, filled with rich and hopeful plants, and beautified with comely and fragrant flowers; then shall we be able to sing and pray with thy church of old, in seeking after the reviving influences of the Holy Spirit, Awake, O north wind, and come, thou south; blow upon our garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Let our beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant fruit.

O Jesus, we earnestly pray that the power and warmth and influence of a summer's sun may remind us of thee the Sun of righteousness. Divine Redeemer, rise upon us with healing in thy wings. Rise upon us, O Jesus, in thine influence; then our darkened understandings shall discover far more glory than the brightness of a summer's sky. O shine upon us, Sun of righteousness; then shall the plants of humility, faith, love, and every grace, come forth in all the beauty, variety, and vigour of spiritual summer.

We pray that the glory and luxuriance of summer may bring to our minds the remembrance of heaven. May we long to reach that blessed paradise, where we shall see the glorious plants which grow in the celestial Eden; where we shall see the tree of life, which grows in all its magnificence, bearing twelve manner of fruits; and where we shall walk on the banks of the river of life, which flows from the throne of God and of the Lamb.

May all of us enjoy a summer of grace below; then shall we enter upon a summer of glory in heaven, which shall never be followed by winter's dreary shades. Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Harvest.

SEED-TIME AND HARVEST.

Alfred. New Creation. China.

L. M.

- 1 THE rising morn, the closing day,
Repeat thy praise with grateful voice;
Both in their turns thy power display,
And, laden with thy gifts, rejoice.
- 2 Earth's wide extended, varying scones,
All smiling round, thy bounty show;
From seas or clouds, full magazines,
Thy rich diffusive blessings flow.
- 3 Now earth receives the precious seed,
Which thy indulgent hand prepares:
And nourishes the future bread,
And answers all the sower's cares.
- 4 Thy sweet refreshing showers attend,
And through the ridges gently flow,
Soft on the springing corn descend;
And thy kind blessing makes it grow.
- 5 Thy goodness crowns the circling year;
Thy paths drop fatness all around;
E'en barren wilds thy praise declare,
And echoing hills return the sound.
- 6 Here spreading flocks adorn the plain;
There plenty every charm displays;
Thy bounty clothes each lovely scene,
And joyful nature shouts thy praise.

Mrs. STEELE.

READ PSALM CXLIV.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious Lord God, we desire to lift up our longing eyes to the Holy Spirit for that grace without which we cannot address thy throne with reverence and godly fear. Agreeably to thy promise, pour out thy Spirit upon us, and make known thy words unto us. Enable us with an apostle to say, in humble dependence upon Divine grace, We will pray with the spirit; we will sing with the spirit.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the opportunity we enjoy of presenting our thankgivings and praises, for the abundance with which thou hast covered the face of the earth. Thou hast heard the prayer of the poor, and thou hast accomplished the hopes and wishes of the husbandman. Thou hast provided grass for cattle, and herbs for the use of man. Thou hast crowned the season of the year, as with a diadem of plenty. Though we deserve the misery of famine and want, thou hast brought the fruits of the year to maturity, and with the unlimited munificence of thy gracious providence, thou art richly supplying all our wants. When we think of the bounty of our God, in making the fields rich unto the harvest, may we devoutly remember, with joyfulness of heart, the covenant our God made with Noah—While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease.

We seek thy grace, O Lord, to enable us to make spiritual improvement of this season of the year. While we look on the abundance around us, we have reason to mourn over the spiritual barrenness that prevails within us. We have been culpably negligent in the spring-season of our life, and therefore we have cause to lament that our lives discover so much sterility in producing the fruits of righteousness. Suffer not our spiritual indolence and inactivity to remain, lest the day should come when in mournful accents we shall be compelled to exclaim, The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved!

Have mercy on all thine aged and afflicted people. Comfort them with the consolatory thought, that though they have sown in tears, they shall reap in joy. Cheer their hearts with this promise, and may all our hearts derive comfort from it in the day of affliction—He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

We pray for all the labourers in Christ's vineyard, and in particular for our beloved pastor. Give to them and to him an abundant harvest of souls, the blessed fruits of a Saviour's death.

May all our aged friends, when they die, be so rich in grace, that they shall resemble a shock of corn fully ripe.

O prepare us all for the general judgment, the great harvest of the world; then may the angels who are the reapers convey us into the heavenly garner above.

Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for a Divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Winter.

WINTER.

Kerwell. University. Providence College.

C. M.

- 1 STERN winter throws his icy chains
Encircling nature round;
How bleak, how comfortless the plains,
Late with gay verdure crowned!
- 2 The sun withdraws his vital beams,
And light and warmth depart;
And drooping, lifeless nature seems
An emblem of my heart.
- 3 Return, O blissful sun, and bring
The soul-reviving ray:
This mental winter shall be spring,
This darkness, cheerful day.

4 O happy state, divine abode,
Where spring eternal reigns;
And perfect day, the smile of God,
Fills all the heavenly plains.

5 Great Source of light, thy beams display,
My drooping joys restore,
And guide me to the seats of day,
Where winter frowns no more.

Mrs. Scoble.

READ JOB XXXVII.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the mighty governor of the universe, and as maintaining a constant control over all the elements of nature. Such is thy power, that they are as completely under thy management, and as ready to execute thy will, as the animated tribes of thy creation. Thou givest snow like wool; thou scatterest the hoar frost like ashes; thou castest forth thine ice like morsels; who can stand before thy cold? Open our eyes, that we may see the display of thy perfections in all the revolving seasons of the year. Amid thy manifold works, may we see the beamings of thy glorious attributes, and may we say, in the exercise of devout admiration, In wisdom hast thou made them all; and the earth is full of thy goodness.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the advantages of winter; for the salutary effect which its frost and cold and snow produce upon the soil, the great source of the supply of all that is necessary for the support and comfort of our lives. We thank God, that the cold of winter prepares the ground for receiving the seed in spring. O may the winter-storms of affliction produce on our minds the most blessed effects, and prepare us for receiving the incorruptible truths of the Gospel of Christ.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the social advantages and privileges which are enjoyed in winter; and that the cold of winter tends to enhance the comfort and blessedness of social and domestic life. O that those seasons of fellowship may be seasons of moral and spiritual improvement. On these occasions may we contrive plans of usefulness, and provoke each other to love and good works.

We thank God for the blessed protection thou hast given us from the severity of the elements of winter. We praise thee for the raiment which thou hast afforded to cover and comfort us. We bless thee for our abodes, where we remain in such security and peace, while the winter's blast is howling around us.

During the trying season of winter, fill the hearts of the rich with compassion for the poor. Enable them and dispose them to use their wealth, as an instrument of communicating great comfort to the needy and the indigent, that they may cause their hearts to sing for joy.

As the severity of winter's storms stirs us up to seek the shelter of our home, may this remind us of the necessity of fleeing now to Jesus, the only refuge from the storms of Divine wrath.

We have reason, O Lord, to acknowledge the winter state of our souls. Sun of righteousness, Divine Redeemer, mercifully rise upon us, with all the genial influence of thy Divine light and grace. Jesus, thou Sun of righteousness, arise and melt our frozen hearts. O hush the storms of sin, O clear our skies, and may we feel thy vital love.

Preserve all who are exposed to danger from the cold or the storms of winter. When they cry to thee in the anguish of their spirit, Lord, save them, and send them deliverance.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Before the Lord's Supper.

COMMUNION WITH CHRIST AND WITH SAINTS.

Bethel. Leominster. Harbro'. Shirland. S. M.

1 JESUS invites his saints
To meet around his board;
Here pardoned rebels sit and hold
Communion with their Lord.

2 For food he gave his flesh,
He bids us drink his blood;
Amazing favour! matchless grace
Of our descending God!

3 This holy bread and wine
Maintains our fainting breath,
By union with our living Lord,
And interest in his death.

4 Our heavenly Father calls
Christ and his members one:
We the young children of his love,
And he the first-born Son.

5 We are but several parts
Of the same broken bread;
One body hath its several limbs,
But Jesus is the head.

6 Let all our powers be joined
His glorious name to raise;
Pleasure and love fill every mind,
And every voice be praise. Watts, 2, B. III.

READ JOHN XIX.

PRAYER.

OUR LORD, thou art the God of ordinances, and we praise thee for their merciful institution. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that on the night in which thou wast most cruelly and treacherously betrayed, thou didst institute the holy ordinance of the supper, to commemorate thy sufferings and death. We thank thee for appointing this feast to be observed in the place of the Old Testament passover, and to remain till the end of the world as a blessed legacy to thy Church. We thank thee, Holy Spirit, that thou hast disposed the hearts of some of us now in thy presence, to avail ourselves of our New Testament privilege, and to obey Christ's dying command, Do this in remembrance of me. We acknowledge the obligation of the command, and earnestly pray that we may be enabled with love and solemnity to obey it.

Holy Spirit, enable us impartially to examine ourselves, whether we are in reality believers in Christ, before partaking of that sacred sacramental feast. O may our hearts burn with love to Jesus, while seated at his table. By faith, may we see in the bread and wine the emblems of his crucified humanity, and also the emblems of his righteousness, his atonement, and all the blessings of his purchase. At thy table, O Jesus, may we obtain a foretaste of heaven. When receiving the bread and wine into our hands, may we receive Jesus into the arms of our faith.

Mercifully inspire us with an appropriating faith in Christ as our Surety and as our great High-Priest, who gave himself for us an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet-smelling savour unto God. O may the remembrance of what he became for us, and of what he suffered for us, fill our hearts with love, thankfulness, and joy. Enable us to renew our vows and obligations to be his wholly, only, and for ever. O Jesus, reign supreme upon the throne of our hearts! Powerfully assist thy servant, our minister, in dispensing the ordinance, and let thy house be filled with thy glory, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Lord's Supper.

CHRIST'S GLORY THE REWARD OF HIS SUFFERINGS.

Admiration. Monmouth. Angel's Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 NOW far above the starry skies,
Our Jesus fills his brighter throne,
Invisible to mortal eyes,
But not to humble faith unknown.
- 2 The countless hosts that round him stand,
The subjects of his sovereign power,
Fly through the world at his command,
Or prostrate at his feet adore.
- 3 Satan and all his rebel crew
That raged to pull his kingdom down,
Crushed by his hand, in ruin now
Lie trembling at his awful frown.
- 4 His name above all creatures great,
He all sustains and all controls!
Yet from his high exalted state
Looks kindly down on humble souls.
- 5 Though in the glories he possessed,
Long ere this world or time began,
He shines the SON of GOD confessed.
Yet owns himself the SON of MAN.
- 6 Here once in agonies he died,
Now in the heavens he ever lives;
Of joy there pours the eternal tide,
Here saves the sinner who believes.
- 7 All hail! thou great Immanuel, hail!
Ten thousand blessings on thy name!
While thus thy wondrous love we tell,
Our bosoms feel the sacred flame.
- 8 Come, quickly come, immortal King!
On earth thy regal honours raise,
The full salvation, promised, bring;
Then every tongue shall sing thy praise!

D. TORRENT.

READ PSALM CXVI.

PRAYER.

WE thank thee, O God of salvation, for the opportunity we enjoyed this day, of sitting down at the sacramental table, and commemorating the death of Christ. Glory to thy name, O Lord, for the manifestations of thy love and grace we were permitted to witness, in the events of Calvary, in the sufferings and death of Immanuel, God with us, so clearly exhibited in the sacramental elements of the bread and wine.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that thy love is boundless, immutable, and eternal. What are we, that thou shouldst have sent thy Son into our world, that thou shouldst have laid our sins upon Jesus our Surety, and that thou shouldst have delivered him up to the death for us all? Behold what manner of love is this!

We thank our God for any spiritual enjoyment we experienced at the sacramental table, and for any communications of thy grace and love. We sat down under thy shadow, O Jesus, and thy fruit was sweet to our taste. Glory to thy name, thou broughtest us into thy banqueting house, and thy banner over us was love. We have vowed to thee, O Lord, and may we never go back. Mercifully enable us to fulfil our vows.

We lament over the imperfect and languid manner in which we observed the holy communion. O forgive the sins of our holy things.

We supplicate grace to be enabled faithfully to fulfil our vows. Teach us to pay our vows in the presence of all the people; and to the close of life may we take the cup of salvation, and call on the name of the Lord. Lord, hear our prayers, and receive our thanksgiving, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For the King or Queen, etc.

THE KING, THE CARE OF HEAVEN.

Zadok. Sandgate. Millbourn Port.

G. M.

- 1 THE king [or queen], O Lord, with songs of praise,
Shall in thy strength rejoice;
And, blest with thy salvation, raise
To heaven his cheerful voice.
- 2 Thy sure defence, through nations round,
Has spread his glorious name;
And his successful actions crowned
With majesty and fame.
- 3 Then let the king on God alone
For timely aid rely;
His mercy shall support the throne,
And all our wants supply.
- 4 But, righteous Lord, his stubborn foes
Shall feel thy dreadful hand;
Thy vengeful arm shall find out those
That hate his mild command.
- 5 Whon thou against them dost engage,
Thy just but dreadful doom
Shall, like a fiery oven's rage,
Their hopes and them consume.
- 6 Thus, Lord, thy wondrous power declare,
And thus exalt thy fame;
Whilst we glad songs of praise prepare
For thine almighty name.

Watts, Ps. 21

READ PSALM XXI.

PRAYER FOR THE KING, QUEEN, AND ROYAL FAMILY.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the King of kings, and as the Lord of lords. It is by thee, O Jesus, that kings reign, and princes decree justice. It is by thee alone that princes rule, and judges, even all the nobles of the earth. We fall down before thee to offer up our supplications in behalf of thy servant our king. O may he be adorned with all those heavenly graces and amiable virtues which will render him the father of his people, and by which he shall live in the affections of his subjects. May his throne be ever surrounded by the love and loyalty of his people, as a barrier of defence more powerful than the most numerous and most valiant armies. As thy Holy Spirit rested on Moses, Joshua, and Samuel, so may his influence rest on the head of our beloved king. Make him as David, the man according to God's own heart. Abundantly bless his royal consort, the QUEEN. Thou hast placed upon their heads diadems of gold—O give them a diadem of grace. Crown them with loving-kindness and tender mercies; and when they terminate their life on earth, may they be admitted into the heaven of heavens, to receive a crown of righteousness which fadeth not away. May all the members of the royal family belong to the family of heaven, and be made kings and priests unto the God and Father of Christ. May their exalted station be adorned by the beauties of holiness.

Hear our humble supplications, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRAYER FOR THE KING [or QUEEN] REGNANT, AND ROYAL FAMILY.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the King of kings, and as the Lord of lords. It is by thee, O Jesus, that kings reign, and princes decree justice. By thee alone princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth. We fall down before thee to offer up our supplications in behalf of our sovereign and lawful ruler. Let his [or her] mind be adorned by all those heavenly graces and amiable virtues which will render him [or her] the blessing of his [or her] people, and by which he [or she] shall live in the heart and affections of his [or her] subjects. O may the throne ever be surrounded by the love, the loyalty, the patriotism, and the prayers of the people. And let these, O Lord, be a barrier of defence more powerful than the most numerous or valiant armies. May the Holy Spirit, who rested on the head of Moses, Joshua, and Samuel, rest on our beloved sovereign. Make him [or her] as David, the man according to God's own heart. Thou hast given him [or her] an earthly crown: O give him [or her] a crown of loving-kindness and tender mercy. Thou hast placed upon his [or her] head a diadem of gold; O make him [or her] an heir of a crown of righteousness, of glory, and of life, which shall never fade away. May all the members of the royal family belong to the family of heaven, and be made kings and priests unto the God and Father of Christ. May their exalted station be adorned by the beauties of holiness.

Hear our humble supplications for the great Redeemer's sake.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

For the British Churches.

PRAYER FOR BRITAIN'S SPIRITUAL PROSPERITY.

Church Street. Conquest. Missionary. C. X.

- 1 SHINE, mighty God, on Britain shine
With beams of heavenly grace;
Reveal thy power through all our coasts,
And show thy smiling face.
- 2 Amidst our isle, exalted high,
Do thou our glory stand,
And like a wall of guardian fire
Surround the favourite land.
- 3 When shall thy name, from shore to shore,
Sound all the earth abroad,
And distant nations know and love
Their Saviour and their God?
- 4 Sing to the Lord, ye distant lands,
Sing loud with solemn voice;
While British tongues exalt his praise,
And British hearts rejoice.
- 5 He the great Lord, the sovereign Judge,
That sits enthroned above,
Wisely commands the worlds he made
In justice and in love.
- 6 Earth shall obey her Maker's will,
And yield a full increase;
Our God will crown his chosen isle
With fruitfulness and peace.
- 7 God, the Redeemer, scatters round
His choicest favours here,
While the creation's utmost bound
Shall see, adore, and fear.

Watts, Ps. 67.

READ PSALM LXXVII.

PRAYER.

THOU God of Zion, we praise thee that for many ages thy Church has been planted and preserved in our land. Glory to thy name, that instead of temples erected for the worship of pagan deities, everywhere sacred sanctuaries are to be seen, which have been reared for the worship of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Praise to our God, that for many centuries thou hast never left thyself without many witnesses in these lands of our nativity. We thank thee for enabling many of thy saints and ministers to seal their testimony with their blood. And we praise thee for the immense and lasting benefits which flowed from the noble testimony which they sealed by their death.

Lord, bless all the churches, not only those which are called national, but all the various denominations of thy people. We earnestly pray that the influences of the Spirit may descend on all the churches. We pray for their increasing purity. May the Gospel be preached more purely, more fully, more faithfully; and may the members of the respective churches be the living and consistent ornaments of the glorious Gospel. O Lord, grant that the love and harmony of the churches may be more and more advanced. Let a spirit of bigotry, haughtiness, selfishness, and distance, be speedily destroyed. Walk in the midst of all the churches, O Jesus, as thou didst walk in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks. May thy churches be fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.

Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FOR Bible, Missionary, and other Sacred Institutions.

SUCCESS OF THE GOSPEL.

Suffolk New. Zion Temple. Chard. L. W.

- 1 BEHOLD the expected time draw near,
The shades disperse, the dawn appear!
Behold the wilderness assume
The beauteous tints of Eden's bloom!
- 2 Events, with prophecies, conspire
To raise our faith, our zeal to fire;
The ripening fields already white,
Present an harvest to our sight.
- 3 The untaught heathen waits to know
The joy the gospel will bestow,
The exiled slave waits to receive
The freedom Jesus has to give.
- 4 Come, let us, with a grateful heart,
In the blest labour share a part,
Our prayers and offerings gladly bring
To aid the triumphs of our King.
- 5 Let us improve the heavenly gale,
Spread to each breeze our hoisted sail,
Till north, and south, and east, and west,
Shall be as favoured Britain bless'd.
- 6 Invite the globe to come and prove
A Saviour's condescending love,
And humbly fall before his feet,
Assured they shall acceptance meet.
- 7 Our hearts exult in songs of praise,
That we have soon these latter days,
When our Redeemer shall be known,
Where Satan long has held his throne.
- 8 Where'er his hand hath spread the skies,
Sweet incense to his name shall rise;
And Tyre and Egypt, Greek and Jew,
By sovereign grace be formed anew.

Yours.

READ ISAIAH XI.

PRAYER.

WE thank thee, O King of Zion, for those Bible and missionary societies which exist in our land, and for all other kindred institutions which are formed for the increase of Gospel knowledge, for the enlargement of the kingdom of Christ, and for the prosperity of thy Church.

We thank God that these invaluable societies have been so long preserved, and that their labours have been blessed with so much success. Glory to God, that by means of their efforts, crowned with the smiles of heaven, so many portions of the earth, which were once in the very midnight of pagan ignorance and idolatry, now enjoy the animating and sanctifying light of the blessed Gospel. Adored be thy name, that multitudes already have cast their idols to the moles and the bats, and now acknowledge Jehovah as the only object of their religious adoration, and now look to Jesus as their only Saviour.

We earnestly pray that all these societies may be preserved till the world is filled with the glory of the Lord—till not one vestige of idolatry is found on the face of the whole earth.

O Lord, have mercy on all nations, and soon may the heathen be given to Jesus for his inheritance, and the uttermost ends of the earth for his possession. O Jesus, take to thyself thy great power and reign. O say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back; bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth. Soon may it be said in every land, The Lord God omnipotent reigneth.

Hear our earnest, humble prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For the Jews.

GENTILES PRAYING FOR JEWS.

Colaham. Berwick. Langbourne. Carey's.

P. M.

- 1 FATHER of faithful Abra'm, hear
Our earnest suit for Abra'm's seed;
Justly they claim the softest prayer
From us adopted in their stead,
Who mercy through their fall obtain,
And Christ by their rejection gain.
- 2 Outcast from thee, and scattered wide
Through every nation under heaven,
Blaspheming whom they crucified,
Unsaved, unpitied, unforgiven;
Branded like Cain, they bear their load,
Abhorred of men, and cursed of God.
- 3 But hast thou finally forsook,
For ever cast thy own away?
Wilt thou not bid the murderers look
On him they pierced, and weep, and pray?
Yes, gracious Lord, thy word is past,
All Israel shall be saved at last.
- 4 Come, then, thou great Deliverer, come,
The veil from Jacob's heart remove;
Receive thy ancient people home,
That, quickened by thy dying love,
The world may their reception view,
And shout to God the glory due.

ANON.

ROMANS XI.

[ SAY then, Hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying,

3 Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life.

4 But what saith the answer of God unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal.

5 Even so then at this present time also there is a remnant according to the election of grace.

6 And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work.

7 What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded

8 (According as it is written, God hath given them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear;) unto this day.

9 And David saith, Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumbling block, and a recompense unto them:

10 Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not see, and bow down their back alway.

11 I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy.

12 Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulness?

13 For I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office:

14 If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them.

15 For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?

16 For if the firstfruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches.

17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree;

18 Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in.

20 Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear:

21 For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee.

22 Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.

23 And they also, if they abide not in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft them in again.

24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree?

REFLECTIONS UPON ROMANS XI.—A more stiffnecked nation than the Jews never existed upon the face of the earth; and yet God chose them for his peculiar people—incomprehensible mystery!—he did for them what he did for no other nation—he gave them his oracles, his ordinances, his prophets. He made his temple his royal residence in the midst of them on earth. He dwelt amid the glories of the Shechinah as their guide, their protector, their king. For their sakes he performed the most stupendous miracles, he overthrew mighty kings, and made their armies, numerous as grasshoppers, to disappear like clouds before the furious tempests, and like the chaff before the wind. Wonderful to tell! their instances of rebellion were, in magnitude and number, in proportion to the abundant instances of God's astonishing acts of miraculous interposition and mercy. At last the threatened period of their rejection and punishment arrived. They rejected God as a people, nation, and church, and he rejected them. They cast themselves out of the fold of his Church. Then the long abandoned Gentile nations entered in. Since the commencement of the Christian era, the despised Gentiles have constituted the New Testament Church. The true Messiah whom the Jews rejected, the Gentiles have embraced. The Messiah whom the Jews murdered by nailing him to a cross, the Gentiles have received as their King. They have crowned him Lord of all. And the day shall arrive when the long-preserved Jewish nation shall return, pay their homage at Immanuel's feet, and crown him Lord of all. Hallelujah!

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thy sovereignty and justice in the present circumstances of the Jewish nation. They rejected thy Son, in opposition to the evidence of the most splendid miracles; they cruelly murdered him by nailing him to the cross; they imprecated his blood to fall on their heads, and on the heads of their descendants, who, alas! walk in the footsteps of their fathers;—and thou art just in all that has befallen them.

In thy righteousness, thou hast scattered them among the nations of the earth, and thou hast brought upon them heavy calamities, and made them a hissing and a reproach among all people. Open the eyes of their priests, and their chief men, and the whole body of the people, to see that they are now most assuredly visited with thy displeasure, because they continue to reject Jesus of Nazareth as the Son of God, and as the promised Messiah. Open their eyes to see that the time is long since past when the Redeemer of men should appear as the Saviour of the world. Remove the veil of enmity, of prejudice, and unbelief, with which their minds have been so long blinded. O restore them to thy church, and hasten the fulfilment of that promise, All Israel shall be saved, and there shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob; afterward the children of Israel shall return, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall fear the Lord and his goodness in the latter days.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For a Friend in Affliction,
OR AN AFFLICTED MEMBER OF THE FAMILY.

SICKNESS OF A BELIEVER.
Westerham. Serenity. Chautwell. C. B.
"HE WHOM THOU LOVEST IS SICK."

- 1 AND must the objects of thy love
Feel sickness, pain and death?
Must those who hope to dwell above,
Resign their fleeting breath?
- 2 Yes; every one of Adam's race
Effects of sin do mourn;
And thou hast righteously decreed,
To dust we must return.
- 3 But thou, O Lord, canst raise the dead,
And bid the sleeper rise;
Arouse him from his earthly bed,
To dwell above the skies.
- 4 Well, if I must resign my breath,
Unworthy though I am,
Like Lazarus, O may my death
Bring glory to thy name.

W. WALKER.

READ PSALM CXLIII.

PRAYER.*

O LORD our God, thou art sovereign and wise in all the events of thy providence. We would now bow before thee in humble adoration, and acknowledge thy just right and sovereignty in all the afflictions which are sent to the children of men. Agreeably to thy merciful will and gracious command, we present our earnest and affectionate prayers before thy throne of grace, in behalf of our dear friend whom thou hast laid upon the bed of affliction.

* The offering up of this prayer was followed by the remarkable conversion of a dying physician in Cornwall, attested to me by his surviving sister.—T. J. ARTHUR.

O enable him [or her] to see thy hand in the affliction. Suffer him not to imagine that the event has occurred by chance. O may he see that it is sent under the wise and merciful direction of the God of grace. May he see that it is the hand of a loving Father, and not of an angry judge. O may he see that the affliction is sent by love and not by wrath.

Lord, support him under his affliction. Thou knowest that human strength is weakness, and how soon the mind is overwhelmed by suffering, unless thy powerful and gracious arm is extended for help and deliverance. O place under our dear friend the everlasting and almighty arms of thy grace. May he feel a present Deity. Give him grace to sing and declare, in the presence of all around, for his own consolation, and for their comfort: The eternal God is my refuge. Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

May our dear afflicted friend be comforted with suitable meditations on the bed of languishing. Convince him deeply that for his transgressions he deserves these sufferings; yea, that these afflictions bear no proportion to the demerit of his sins. In sincere humility and repentance may he acknowledge, It is of the Lord's mercy I am not consumed! May he also see the wisdom of God in his affliction, and that it is the most suitable as to kind, and most seasonable as to time. Bring the sufferings of Christ to his remembrance. Even if agonized with pain, may he reflect that his agonies are nothing compared with the agonies of the Son of God, in Gethsemane's garden, and on Calvary's cross. Enable him to believe that the merit of Christ's sufferings has taken out the sting of the Divine curse from all the sufferings which he is called to endure.

Give him thy presence in his affliction. Fulfil graciously that promise, Fear not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee by the right hand of my righteousness.

Sanctify the affliction, and let it prove a blessing in disguise. O that his present sufferings may be instrumental in preparing him for a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. May his thoughts and hopes rise from the bed of languishing to the throne of glory.

If it be thy will, remove the affliction, and say to it, Go no farther. Spare the life of our dear friend, we earnestly pray. O Lord, prolong his days; but if death be in the cup, let the sufferings of time be followed by the triumphs of immortality.

May this affliction be sanctified to us all; and teach us the infinite importance of an interest in Christ.

Lord, hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Recovery of a Friend,
OR ONE OF THE FAMILY.

SICKNESS SWEETENED.

Warwick. University. Bath Chapel. C. B.

- 1 WHEN languor and disease invade
This trembling house of clay,
'Tis sweet to look beyond our cage,
And long to fly away.

APPENDIX

- 3 Sweet to look inward, and attend
The whispers of his love;
Sweet to look upward to the place
Where Jesus pleads above.
- 8 Sweet to look back, and see my name
In life's fair book set down;
Sweet to look forward, and behold
Eternal joys my own.
- 4 Sweet to reflect, how grace divine
My sins on Jesus laid;
Sweet to remember that his blood
My debt of suffering paid.
- 5 Sweet in his righteousness to stand,
Which saves from second death;
Sweet to experience, day by day,
His Spirit's quickening breath.
- 6 Sweet on his faithfulness to rest,
Whose love can never end;
Sweet on his covenant of grace,
For all things to depend.
- 7 Sweet, in the confidence of faith,
To trust his firm decrees;
Sweet to lie passive in his hands,
And know no will but his.
- 8 If such the sweetness of the streams,
What must the fountain be,
Where saints and angels draw their bliss
Immediately from thee!

TOPLADY.

READ PSALM CXVI.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, with grateful hearts, to approach thy throne, and bless and adore thy great and gracious name. Thou hast heard the voice of our supplications, and in answer to our prayers thou hast raised our beloved friend from the bed of suffering, and restored him [or her] to wonted health. What shall we render to the Lord for all his benefits! O enable us to give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. As a father pitieth his children, so thou our Saviour and our God pitiest them that fear thee; for thou knowest our frame, thou rememberest that we are dust.

We thank thee that thou hast accomplished in our friend that animating promise, When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee; for I am the Lord thy God. If our dear friend was enabled, in the hour of affliction, to exercise faith in Jesus as the only foundation, and to lift up his hopes to heaven as his home, we praise thee for this exercise of grace. If our friend has enjoyed the consolations of the Gospel, and unspeakable benefit of thy comforting presence, we praise thee for these instances of thy special goodness.

Enable our friend in health to fulfil those vows which he made in sickness. O let them not be like the morning-cloud, or the early dew, which soon passeth away. Let not his vows resemble the gourd of Jonah, which speedily grew up, and which as speedily withered away. May his life testify that all his resolutions have been formed in the strength of Divine grace. As the gold is purified by the furnace, may he furnish satisfying evidence that the Holy Spirit, the Divine refiner, has sanctified him in the furnace of affliction. With the Psalmist, may he have just reason to exclaim, in the exercise of holy thankfulness and praise, Before I was afflicted I went astray; but now have I kept thy word. It is good for me that I have been afflicted: that I might learn thy statutes.

Now that our beloved friend has been raised from the bed of affliction, may his life be more devoted to thy glory, may he be more active in thy service, and in seeking and promoting the prosperity of thy kingdom; may he testify less love to this world and its objects, and more love to heaven and its realities—less love to the creature, and more love to Jesus his Creator and Saviour.

Though thou hast mercifully preserved him from death at this time, O may he seriously remember that the time will come when the messenger of death will perform his work, and the body which has been restored to health shall be deprived of life, and laid in the silent grave. May he and all of us, in the prospect of our death, receive Jesus the only Saviour; then for us to live will be Christ, and to die gain.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Death of a Parent.

PROSPECT OF HEAVEN MAKES DEATH EASY.

Gibeah. Jordan's Banks. Miles's Lane. Prospect. G. N.

- 1 THERE is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign,
Infinite day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain.
- 2 There everlasting spring abides,
And never-withering flowers:
Death like a narrow sea divides
This heavenly land from ours.
- 3 Sweet fields beyond the swelling flood
Stand dressed in living green:
So to the Jews old Canaan stood,
While Jordan rolled between.
- 4 But timorous mortals start and shrink
To cross this narrow sea,
And linger shivering on the brink,
And fear to launch away.
- 5 O! could we make our doubts remove,
Those gloomy doubts that rise,
And see the Canaan that we love,
With unbedclouded eyes!
- 6 Could we but climb where Moses stood,
And view the landscape o'er,
Not Jordan's stream, nor death's cold flood,
Should fright us from the shore.

WATTS, 66, B. 11

READ PSALM XXII. AND XXIV.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, bereaved of a beloved earthly parent, we bow before thee in the name of Jesus, and we would acknowledge and adore thee as our God and our Father. O thou who dost all things well, we acknowledge thy justice, thy wisdom, and thy sovereignty in this bereaving and afflicting event of thy providence. We were unworthy of the great blessing of the enjoyment of the dearly beloved parent thou hast taken from us by the hand of death. We thank thee that our deceased parent was preserved over us so long, and that we have so long enjoyed the benefit of his [or her] guardianship, counsel, example, and prayers. We implore thy grace to preserve in our minds the lively remembrance of his graces, his virtues, and his activity in thy service.

Preserve us from sinking under thine afflicting hand. May the language of our soul be, It is the Lord, let him do what seemeth meet in his sight! Blessed Jesus, enable us to cleave to thee as our everlasting Father, from whom we can never be separated by the hand of death or the ravages of the tomb. O say to us, and may the saying comfort our bleeding hearts, I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters. May the death of our earthly parent enable us to cleave more closely to thee, our heavenly Father. May we long and pray and prepare to meet our departed parent beyond the starry skies, where we shall be separated no more, and where we shall be ever with the Lord.

O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For an Afflicted Infant.

PRAYER FOR A SICK CHILD.

Webster's. St. Mary's. Bangor.

C. M.

- 1 JESUS, great healer of mankind,
Who dost our sorrows bear,
Let an afflicted parent find
An answer to his prayer.
- 2 I look for help in thee alone,
To thee for succour fly;
My child is sick, my darling child,
And at the point to die.
- 3 By deep distress a suppliant made,
By agony of grief,
Most justly might thy love upbraid
My lingering unbelief.
- 4 Surely if thou pronounce the word,
If thou the answer give,
My dying child shall be restored,
And to thy glory live.
- 5 O save the father, in the child,
Restore him, Lord, to me;
My heart shall thankful be and mild,
And give him back to thee.

C. WINSLEY.

READ 2 SAMUEL XII. 15—23.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thou art a Sovereign, and therefore canst do what seemeth good in thy sight. We approach thy throne, in behalf of our beloved and afflicted child. Though our child has not reached the years of discretion, and cannot be chargeable with actual transgression, yet thou art righteous in the afflictions thou hast laid on our infant. As inheriting from Adam original sin, his [or her] fallen covenant head, we acknowledge thy justice in all the pains the child is now called to endure. We desire to feel humble and submissive under thy holy and sovereign will.

We lay our dear child at thy feet. Thou merciful Jesus, who in the days of thy flesh saidst, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven; we bring our afflicted child to thee. We commit him into thine arms; and we earnestly pray that thou wouldst bless him, and preserve his life. Our child cannot pray, but may his cries enter into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, and may his health be restored, and his days be lengthened.

Graciously mitigate his sufferings, and alleviate his pain. Raise him to serve thee and honour thee. May this child live to be an eminent ornament of the Gospel of Christ. But if it is thy wise and sovereign will that he should die of this affliction, may early death be early glory; and may he shine through all eternity as a jewel in the Saviour's crown.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Recovery of an Afflicted Infant.

CHILDREN DEDICATED TO GOD.

Faileworth. Israel. Gainsboro'.

C. M.

- 1 GENTILES by nature, we belong
To the wild olive wood:
Grace took us from the barren tree,
And grafts us in the good.
- 2 With the same blessings grace endows
The Gentile and the Jew;
If pure and holy be the root,
Such are the branches too.
- 3 Then let the children of the saints
Be dedicate to God;
Pour out thy Spirit on them, Lord,
And wash them in thy blood.
- 4 Thus to the parents and their seed
Shall thy salvation come,
And numerous households meet at last
In one eternal home.

WATTS, 114, B. 1.

READ PSALM XVI.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we bow down before thy throne in the exercise of humility and thankfulness. We presented our prayers in behalf of our beloved infant, who was brought low by thine afflicting hand, and threatened with early and premature death: we praise thee that our unworthy prayers reached thy gracious ear, and that our supplications have been mercifully answered; if thou hadst dealt with us as we deserved, thou wouldst have deprived us of our dear infant, yea, thou wouldst have written our name childless. But thou hast been merciful to our unrighteousness. Truly, O Lord, we are less than the least of all thy mercies. May our preserved child live to maturity of years, and prove a distinguished ornament of the Christian profession. May we live to see the graces of the Spirit shine in the life and example of our child with great brightness and loveliness. May our beloved infant be spared by thy gracious providence to be an humble, active, useful member of thy Church on earth; and at the close of life be translated to the joyful regions above, to be a pillar in thy heavenly temple, to go no more out.

We would now, in the exercise of parental affection, and in humble dependence on the aid of the Divine Spirit, dedicate this our infant to thee, O Saviour. We present him [or her] before thee, soul and body, for life and death, for time and eternity.

O Lord, may our thanksgivings and petitions come up before thee with acceptance, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Death of an Infant.

INFANTS DYING IN THE ARMS OF JESUS.

Arabia. Hanover Chapel. Stillman.

C. M.

- 1 THY life I read, my dearest Lord,
With transport all divine;
Thine image trace in every word,
Thy love in every line.
- 2 Methinks I see a thousand charms
Spread o'er thy lovely face,
While infants in thy tender arms
Receive the smiling grace.

APPENDIX.

- 3 I take these little lambs, said he,
And lay them in my breast:
Protection they shall find in me—
In me be ever blest.
- 4 Death may the bands of life unloose,
But can't dissolve my love;
Millions of infant souls compose
The family above.
- 5 Their feeble frames my power shall raise
And mould with heavenly skill:
I'll give them tongues to sing my praise,
And hands to do my will.
- 6 His words the happy parents hear,
And shout with joys divine,
Dear Saviour! all we have and are
Shall be for ever thine.

Dr. S. STENNET.

READ MATTHEW II.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the living God and the sovereign disposer of the life of all thy creatures. For a short time thou didst preserve our dear infant in the land of the living—for a short time we looked upon our infant with fond hope, humbly praying that he [or she] might have lived to be the prop of our declining years, and to have been a useful member and a shining ornament of thy church; but in thy wisdom thou hast taken from us the delight of our eyes. We desire to bow with humble submission to thy sacred will. Holy Spirit, enable us to say with Job, thy servant, who was bereaved of all his children, The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away, and blessed be the name of the Lord! If we have cleaved too closely in our fond affections to our departed child—if we have in any degree cherished an idolatrous regard—if we have placed our babe in the place of God—if we have sinfully mourned over the death of our child—we earnestly pray for the pardon of these our sins.

Lord Jesus, comfort us under this our affliction, and enable us to believe that our dear babe is with thee in heaven. O teach us to rejoice in the maturity of mind and of grace, and in the glorious heights of blessedness, to which our dear infant is exalted in the heavenly world. Enable us to live in the believing hope of meeting our babe beyond the skies, where our tears of grief shall be for ever exchanged for songs of praise.

Blessed Jesus, we would now cleave to thee, the Child born and the Son given.

O hear our prayers, and comfort our hearts, for a Saviour's sake. Amen.

Before the Interment of a Friend.

BEFORE A FUNERAL.

Munich. Lawrence Jewry. Paul's.

L. M.

- 1 THROUGH every age, eternal God,
Thou art our rest, our safe abode;
High was thy throne ere heaven was made,
Or earth, thy humble footstool, laid.
- 2 Long hadst thou reigned ere time began,
Or dust was fashioned to a man;
And long thy kingdom shall endure
When earth and time shall be no more.
- 3 But man, weak man, is born to die,
Made up of guilt and vanity;
Thy dreadful sentence, Lord, was just,
Return, ye sinners, to the dust.

- 4 A thousand of our years amount
Scarce to a day in thine account;
Like yesterday's departed light,
Or the last watch of ending night.
- 5 Death like an overflowing stream
Sweeps us away; our life's a dream;
An empty tale; a morning flower,
Cut down and withered in an hour.
- 6 Our age to seventy years is set:
How short the term! how frail the state!
And if to eighty we arrive,
We rather sigh and groan than live.
- 7 But O how oft thy wrath appears!
And cuts off our expected years;
Thy wrath awakes our humble dread;
We fear the power that strikes us dead.
- 8 Touch us, O Lord, how frail is man;
And kindly lengthen out our span,
Till a wise care of piety
Fits us to die, and dwell with thee,

WATTS, P. 50.

READ PSALM XXXIX.

PRAYER.

WE acknowledge, O Lord our God, thy justice in the sentence, It is appointed unto man once to die, and after death the judgment. May the death of our beloved friend, whose lifeless body is now stretched upon the bed of death, be instrumental, by thy Holy Spirit, in impressing our minds with the thought of our own mortality. Preserve us from the delusion of deliberately attempting to banish from our thoughts the unavoidable event of our own dissolution.

We praise thee that thou hast revealed unto us JESUS, as the great conqueror of death. O Immanuel, by thy death thou hast taken away the sting of death, even the guilt of sin, which alone can render death formidable to the soul. Give us faith in thee as our Saviour; then we shall be able to look on death, not as a foe, but as a friend, to conduct us to the gates of heaven.

We bless thee, O Lord, that we have reason to believe the soul of our dear departed friend is now occupying a place in heaven, through the merit of our Saviour's death. Let us not, then, mourn as those who have no hope. By faith may we now flee to Jesus:—may we bear, as it were, a voice from his [or her] lifeless ashes, calling upon us to hearken to the calls of mercy, and no longer to refuse an offered Saviour. While we are solemnly affected by the circumstance of the lifeless body of our friend remaining under our roof till the period of interment, may we be led to inquire whether our souls are delivered from the bonds of spiritual death. O Lord, give us spiritual life, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

After the Interment of a Friend.

BLESSED ARE THEY WHO DIE IN THE LORD.

Funeral Thought. Marylebone. Carolina.

G. M.

- 1 HEAR what the voice from heaven proclaims,
For all the pious dead;
Sweet is the savour of their names,
And soft their sleeping bed.
- 2 They die in Jesus, and are blessed,
How kind their slumbers are!
From sufferings and from sins released,
And freed from every snare.

8 Far from this world of toil and strife,
They're present with the Lord;
The labours of their mortal life
End in a large reward.

Watts, 18, B. 1.

READ ACTS VIII., 1—17.

PRAYER.

ON this solemn day, O Lord, where can we flee for consolation and help but to thyself alone? By the removal from us of our dear relative, whose body has this day been committed to the grave, thou hast smitten us; but we desire to trust that with everlasting loving-kindness thou wilt have mercy upon us. In this bereaving event thou hast caused us grief; but we pray that thou wouldst have compassion upon us according to the multitude of thy mercies. Have mercy upon us, O Lord, according to thy loving-kindness; according to the multitude of thy tender mercies, blot out our transgressions.

The body of our friend is now shut up in the grave; may this sensibly remind us that the crucified humanity of Jesus was shut up in the tomb. Adored be thy name, O Saviour, that thou hast thus honoured the grave, and made it a bed of rest for all thy people.

We bless thee, O Lord, for the glorious discovery of the resurrection. While our hearts are sad that we shall no more see our departed friend in the land of the living, O may we sing with the believing transport of an apostle, That which is sown in corruption shall be raised in incorruption; that which is sown in dishonour shall be raised in glory; that which is sown in weakness shall be raised in power; and that which is sown a natural body shall be raised a spiritual body.

Enable us now, O Jesus, to rejoice in thee as a living Saviour. In the prospect of our own death and interment, and in the hopes of a blessed resurrection, we now surrender ourselves to thee.

O Lord, hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For an Afflicted Minister.

DANGEROUS ILLNESS OF A MINISTER.

Elmdon. St. Lawrence. Babylon Streams. Gould's. L. M.

- 1 O THOU, before whose gracious throne
We bow our suppliant spirits down,
View the sad breast, the streaming eye,
And let our sorrows pierce the sky.
- 2 Thou know'st the anxious cares we feel,
And all our trembling lips would tell;
Thou only canst assuage our grief,
And yield our woe-fraught hearts relief.
- 3 Though we have sinned, and justly dread
The vengeance hovering o'er our head,
Yet, Power benign, thy servant spare,
Nor turn aside thy people's prayer.
- 4 Avert thy swift descending stroke,
Nor smite the shepherd of the flock,
Lest o'er the barren waste we stray,
To prowling wolves an easy prey.
- 5 Restore him, sinking to the grave;
Stretch out thine arm, make haste to save!
Back to our hope and wishes give,
And bid our friend and father live.
- 6 Bound to each soul by tenderest ties,
In every breast his image lies;
Thy pitying aid, O God, impart,
Nor rend him from each bleeding heart.

7 Yet if our supplications fail,
And prayers and tears can nought prevail,
Condemned on this dark desert coast
To mourn our much-loved leader lost:

8 Be thou his strength, be thou his stay,
Support him through the gloomy way;
Comfort his soul, surround his bed,
And guide him through the dreary shade

9 Around him may the angels wait,
Decked with their robes of heavenly state,
To teach his happy soul to rise,
And waft him to his native skies.

READ PHILIPPIANS II.

PRAYER.

EXALTED Jehovah, we adore thee as the Father of mercies, and as the sovereign disposer of all events. We fall down before thee, to present our humble and earnest prayers in behalf of thy servant our beloved minister, whom thou hast laid upon the bed of affliction. If consistent with thy holy will, and thy wise and inscrutable purposes, do thou raise him up from his bed of suffering and pain. May the means which are employed for this purpose be attended by thy blessing; and may the prayers which are presented for his restoration to former health, activity, and usefulness, come up before thy throne with gracious acceptance.

We bless thee, O Lord, that in our pleading with thee, we are permitted, in thy great condescension, to use arguments. For the honour of thy name, and for the furtherance of thy Gospel, mercifully restore our minister to health. For the extension of a Saviour's fame, and for the publishing of a Saviour's love, mercifully restore our minister to health. For the conversion of sinners, for the edification and comfort of saints, mercifully restore our beloved minister to health. O add many more years to his life, that many more souls may be added to his ministry. O spare his life, that he may be instrumental in yet turning many sinners from the evil of their ways. Prepare him and prepare us for thy holy will. If he lives, may it be Christ; if he dies, may it be gain. In the heavenly world may he shine as the brightness of the firmament, for ever and ever.

Lord, hear our earnest prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Recovery of a Minister.

MINISTERS ABOUNDING IN THE WORK OF THE LORD.

Kemsey. Warrington. Bramcoote. Lykiff Street. L. M.

- 1 BEFORE thy throne, eternal King,
Thy ministers their tribute bring—
Their tribute of united praise,
For heavenly news and peaceful days.
- 2 We sing the conquests of thy sword,
And publish loud thy healing word:
While angels sound thy glorious name,
Thy saving grace our lips proclaim.
- 3 Thy various service we esteem
Our sweet employ, our bliss supreme:
And, while we feel thy heavenly love,
We burn like seraphim above.
- 4 Nor seraphs there can ever raise
With us an equal song of praise;
They are the noblest work of God,
But we, the purchase of his blood.

6 Still in thy work would we abound ;
Still prune the vine, or plough the ground ;
Thy sheep with wholesome pasture feed,
And watch them with unwearied heed.

O Thou art our Lord, our life, our love,
Our care below, our crown above ;
Thy praise shall be our best employ,
Thy presence our eternal joy.

B. FRANCIS.

READ PHILIPPIANS II.

PRAYER.

WE desire, most gracious and merciful God and Father in Christ, to approach thy throne with grateful, humble hearts. Who is like unto thee, O Lord, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders? Holy Spirit, enable us to present acceptable thanksgivings and praises to our God, for his great mercy in hearing our earnest prayers, and in raising our beloved minister from the bed of suffering and affliction. Thou, O Lord, hast heard our prayer and our supplication. We cried unto thee from the depths, and thou hast heard our voice. What shall we render unto thee, the Lord, for all thy benefits? We thank thee for permitting and enabling our beloved pastor to appear in thy courts, and to sound the sweet accents of the Gospel trumpet. We thank and praise thee, that we have been allowed to see him in his pulpit, and that we have not been called upon to lay him in his grave.

Affectionately we pray, that his affliction may be crowned with the greatest benefit to himself, and with the greatest benefit to us. May we all find that the dispensation is crowned with blessings. We pray that our beloved minister may appear like the gold which has come purified from the furnace, and that all his graces may shine with renewed and increasing brightness. O enable him to preach Christ more faithfully, and may great success attend his labours. May his last days be his best,—most honourable to God, and most useful to men.

Lord, hear our prayers, and accept our thanksgivings, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After the Death of a useful Minister.

COMFORT UNDER THE LOSS OF MINISTERS.

Warwick. Doxton. Ann's. Stephen's.

C. M.

- 1 NOW let our drooping hearts revive,
And all our tears be dry ;
Why should those eyes be drowned in grief,
Which view a Saviour nigh ?
- 2 What though the arm of conquering death
Does God's own house invade ?
What though the prophet and the priest
Be numbered with the dead ?
- 3 Though earthly shepherds dwell in dust,
The aged and the young ;
The watchful eye in darkness closed,
And mute the instructive tongue ;
- 4 The eternal Shepherd still survives,
New comfort to impart ;
His eye still guides us, and his voice
Still animates our heart.
- 5 Lo, I am with you, saith the Lord,
My church shall safe abide ;
For I will ne'er forsake my own,
Whose souls in me confide

6 Through every scene of life and death,
This promise is our trust ;
And this shall be our children's song,
When we are cold in dust.

DOUGLASS.

READ NUMBERS XX.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire, in the name of Jesus, to bow down before thee in humble submission to thy holy and sovereign will. Thou hast taken from us our beloved pastor. Thy will be done. It is the Lord, let him do what seemeth good in his sight. In thy great mercy thou didst give us thy servant to labour amongst us for a season ; and in thy sovereignty thou hast taken him from us, to dwell in loftier regions, and to worship before thy heavenly throne. Help, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth ; for the faithful fail from among the children of men.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy kindness to our beloved minister on the bed of suffering, and in the valley and shadow of death. Adored be thy name, that he felt the power and tasted the sweetness of those blessed and consolatory truths which he so successfully and faithfully testified to others. We praise thee, that he was enabled in the trying hour to lean on Jesus, the Divine and almighty prop, and implicitly to commit his soul into the arms of that Saviour who has now exalted him to the joys of heaven.

Lord, bless to us the remembrance of his discourses, his example, his graces, and his prayers. May the seed he has sown be followed by a rich and an eternal harvest. May we at last join his fellowship in the skies, and unite in casting our crowns at our Saviour's feet. O let not our departed pastor appear as a witness against us at the last day. Blessed Jesus, send us another minister to fill his place, filled with the Holy Spirit.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

The Orphan's Prayer.

TRUST IN GOD.

Lutton. Mercy Seat. Lebanon. Manning.

L. M.

- 1 PRAISE ye the Lord, my heart shall join
In work so pleasant, so divine ;
Now, while the flesh is mine abode,
And when my soul ascends to God.
- 2 Praise shall employ my noblest powers,
While immortality endures ;
My days of praise shall ne'er be past,
While life, and thought, and being last.
- 3 Happy the man whose hopes rely
On Israel's God ; he made the sky,
And earth and seas, with all their train,
And none shall find his promise vain.
- 4 His truth for ever stands secure ;
He saves the opprest, he feeds the poor :
He sends the labouring conscience peace,
And grants the prisoner sweet release.
- 5 The Lord bath eyes to give the blind ;
The Lord supports the sinking mind ;
He helps the stranger in distress,
The widow and the fatherless.
- 6 He loves his saints, he knows them well,
But turns the wicked down to hell ;
Thy God, O Zion, ever reigns ;
Praise him in everlasting strains.

WATTS, Ps. 146.

READ PSALM CXLVI.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we desire humbly to adore thee in thy sovereignty, thy justice, and thy wisdom. Thou hast taken from us our beloved parents by the hand of death. Thou hast deprived us of those who were our kind guardians and our affectionate counsellors. Thou hast deprived us of the nearest and most valuable of our earthly friends, and we are now left orphans upon the face of the earth.

Glory and praise to our God, that though we are deprived of valuable earthly parents, we are not deprived of thee, O God of salvation, our heavenly and eternal Father. Though we are deprived of their watchful care, we are not deprived of thine; and though we have no longer the benefit of their counsel, we rejoice that we have constant access to that wisdom which is laid up in Christ.

We desire, O Lord, to submit to thy will. Thy will be done! The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away, and blessed be the name of the Lord!

We rejoice, O God, that thou art the orphans' God. O fulfil in us the animating promises thou hast given to comfort the heart of the fatherless and the orphan. Thou hast said to dying fathers, Leave thy fatherless children, and I will preserve them alive. Lord, do as thou hast said. Thou hast promised, I will be the father of the fatherless, and the orphan's stay. Lord, do as thou hast said. O Jesus, into thy hands we commend our spirit. All our concerns, temporal and spiritual, we commit into thy hand. Holy Spirit, enable us now to say, Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord, we have waited for him, we will be glad, and rejoice in his salvation. Now, O Lord, we would cleave to thee as our Father and God.

Lord, hear our prayers, heal our wounds, forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

The Prayer of a Widow.

COMFORT IN GOD UNDER THE DEATH OF FRIENDS.

Sherbourn. Nailsworth. Utverston. Fawcett. 1. 11.

- 1 THE God of love will sure indulge
The flowing tear, the heaving sigh,
When righteous persons fall around,—
When tender friends and kindred die.
- 2 Yet not one anxious murmuring thought
Should with our mourning passions blend;
Nor would our bleeding hearts forget
The almighty, ever-living Friend.
- 3 Beneath a numerous train of ills,
Our feeble flesh and heart may fail;
Yet shall our hope in thee, O God!
O'er every gloomy fear prevail.
- 4 Parent and husband, guard and guide!
Thou art each tender name in one:
On thee we cast our every care,
And comfort seek from thee alone.
- 5 Our Father God! to thee we look,
Our rock, our portion, and our friend—
And on thy covenant love and truth
Our sinking souls shall still depend.

Amen.

READ PSALM CXXI.

PRAYER.

I BOW before thy sovereign arrangements, O Lord God. Thou hast taken from me the associate of my days, my nearest and dearest earthly relative, with whom I held sweet counsel in the exercises of our holy faith. Thou hast hurst asunder those sacred bonds by which we were united together; and by the hand of death thou hast dissolved that hallowed relation which formed the basis of our social usefulness, happiness, and fellowship. Holy Spirit, give me grace to bow in humble submission before the inscrutable decrees and the righteous will of the Lord my God. Truly, O Lord God, clouds and darkness are round about thee, righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne.

I confess, O my God, that my sins deserve this heavy calamity! Great is my affliction, but far greater my sins. Jesus, my Saviour, O let the guilt of all my sins be removed by the merit of thy righteousness. Lord, enable thy servant and her fatherless children to place all their confidence in thee. Encourage us by thy promise, and teach us to cleave to it in faith: I will be the husband of the widow, the father of the fatherless, and the orphan's stay. O Jesus, be to me an husband, from whom I shall never be separated by the hand of death. Say unto my afflicted soul, I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in loving-kindness, and in mercies. Lord Jesus, I surrender myself to thee, I place my children at thy feet. Guide us safely through the vale of life, and at last conduct us to the heavenly mansions, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

For a Mother and New-born Babe.

CHRIST'S LOVE TO CHILDREN.

Arabia. Swanwick. Condescension. C. H.

- 1 SEE Israel's gentle Shepherd stand
With all engaging charms;
Hark! how he calls the tender lambs,
And folds them in his arms!
- 2 Permit them to approach, he cries,
Nor scorn their humble name;
For 'twas to bless such souls as these
The Lord of angels came.
- 3 We bring them, Lord, by fervent prayer,
And yield them up to thee;
Joyful that we ourselves are thine,
Thine let our offspring be.
- 4 Ye little flock, with pleasure hear;
Ye children, seek his face;
And fly with transport to receive
The blessings of his grace.
- 5 If orphans they are left behind,
Thy guardian care we trust;
That care shall heal our bleeding hearts,
If weeping o'er their dust.

Doddridge

READ 1 TIMOTHY II.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our lives are in thy hand. It is in thee we live, move, and have our being. We appear before thy throne in behalf of our dear friend, one of the heads of our beloved family. We thank thee that thou hast given her thy presence, thy help, and thy blessing, in the hour of danger, fear, and suffering. We present our grateful praises, that she is the living mother of a living babe. May her heart be filled with thankfulness and joy for what her God and Father has done for her, and may she exclaim, in the language of holy devotion, My soul doth magnify the Lord. Enable her to make a full and believing dedication of herself and babe to Jesus. As Hannah dedicated little Samuel to Israel's God, may she dedicate herself and child to her God and Father in Christ.

Let both the mother and the child live before thee. O preserve the babe from early death. May he [or she] reach maturity of years. May he live to receive the instructions of his parents, and by them, as humble instruments, be trained up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. O make this child a jewel in the Saviour's crown; O make him a star in the Saviour's right hand.

If, in the mysteries of thy providence, he should be removed by death in his infant days, O may his soul be conveyed to glory on the wings of eternal love, to the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. And may all the members of our family at last assemble before the throne of God and the Lamb.

Hear our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

*For a Son leaving Home,
WITH A VIEW OF GOING INTO BUSINESS.*

YOUTH SUPPORTED.
Spillbrook. Jordan's Banks.

G. N.

- 1 PLACED on the verge of youth, my mind
Life's opening scene surveys;
O'er all its ills of various kind
With awful fear I gaze.
- 2 O how shall I, with heart prepared,
Its terrors learn to meet?
How from its thousand snares to guard
My unexperienced feet?
- 3 Let faith suppress each rising fear,
Each anxious doubt exclude;
My Maker's will has placed me here,
A Maker wise and good.
- 4 He to my every trial knows
Its just restraint to give:
Attentive to behold my woes,
And faithful to relieve.
- 5 Then why thus heavy, O my soul?
Say, why distrustful still?
Thy thoughts with vain impatience roll,
O'er scenes of future ill.
- 6 Though griefs unnumbered throng thee round,
Still in thy God confide,
Whose finger marks the seas their bound,
And curbs the headlong tide.

MERRICK.

READ PSALM XXXIV.

PRAYER.

IT is by thy good providence, O God, that we exist as a family. What shall we render to the Lord for the abundant mercies we have received, since we were formed as a family, and which have been most graciously continued with us up to the present day!

Lord, bless our dear son, who is about to be separated from us for the purpose of entering on a useful and honourable vocation. We thank God that he is not separated from us by death. O preserve him long to adorn the Gospel of the great

God our Saviour. And we thank thee that he is not separated from us by the hand of penal justice, and removed to distant lands.—Merciful God, as thou hast preserved him from temptation in the past, O preserve him from temptation in the future. May he be in reality convinced of sin, regenerated by the Holy Ghost, adorned with grace, and arrayed in the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness.

Give him grace readily and meekly to submit to the restraints connected with the acquirement of that knowledge in business which is necessary for his future support, usefulness, and happiness. Make him dutiful, obedient, and kind to his employers. Give him grace to manage his temper, and most wisely to govern and regulate his speech. O Lord, while leaving his father's house, may he not forsake his father's God. Make him a praying youth. May he ever begin and end his day with intercourse with God. May he be a blessing to his employer, and may his employer be a blessing to him. Lord, preserve him from temptation. Affectionately we commend him to thy care, O Lord. Hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

On the Marriage of one of the Family.

WEDDING HYMN.

Denmark.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN Adam from the dust was made,
And stood complete before his God;
His happiness still felt a shade,
Though placed on Eden's genial sod.
- 2 Thus said the high and lofty One,
Thou art for social life inclined;
It is not good to be alone,
Nor good for body or for mind.
- 3 Forth came a partner kind and fair,
Whose love 'twas thought would never oloy;
Behold the happy, happy pair,
Sharing each other's earthly joy.
- 4 Hail, wedded love! by heaven ordain'd,
May we its purest blessings know;
Be its best rites by us maintained,
To cheer our hearts while here below.
- 6 Hail, wedded pair! be yours the bliss,
To live in harmony and love;
And when this world with you shall cease,
May purer joys be yours above.

W. WALKER.

READ JOHN II.

PRAYER.

WE praise thee, O Lord, that we have constant access to the throne of grace, and that we are permitted to acknowledge thee in all our ways.

We implore thy blessing on the important transaction of this day. One of our family has entered into a relation the most important, sacred, and solemn. Ratify and confirm in heaven what has been done by thy gracious sanction on earth. May the life of our friends thus united be long, prosperous, and happy. May their love and harmony and comfort render their relation and their life a true emblem of the union subsisting betwixt Christ and the Church. May their mutual love never expire; and may it be sweetened and dignified by Christian confidence and esteem. Make them in an especial manner to each other, counsellors, helpers, and comforters. Lord, enable them to begin their career with the observance of domestic worship, and may the fire of evangelical devotion burn on the domestic altar to the close of life. Like Zacharias and Elizabeth, may they walk in all the statutes and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

If in thy sovereign arrangements they should be blessed with offspring, may they train them up for Jesus and immortality. —Prepare them for all the difficulties and trials of the journey. In all things, may they submit with faith and resignation to the will of God. When separated by death, may they exercise the well-grounded hope of meeting beyond the skies, to live together amid the joys of heaven.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

~~~~~

For a Rebellious Son, WHO HAS LEFT HIS FATHER'S HOUSE.

A YOUTH FALLING SHORT OF HEAVEN.

Geneva. Campbell. Lewton. Stirling.

L. M.

- 1 MUST all the charms of nature then
So hopeless to salvation prove?
Can hell demand, can heaven condemn,
The man whom Jesus deigns to love?
- 2 The man who sought the ways of truth,
Paid friends and neighbours all their due,
A modest, sober, lovely youth,
And thought he wanted nothing new.
- 3 But mark the change! thus spake the Lord
Come, part with earth for heaven to-day;
The youth, astonished at the word,
In silent sadness went his way.
- 4 Poor virtues that he boasted so,
This test unable to endure;
Let Christ, and grace, and glory go,
To make his land and money sure.
- 5 Ah foolish choice of treasures here!
Ah fatal love of tempting gold!
Must this base world be bought so dear?
Are life and heaven so cheaply sold?
- 6 In vain the charms of nature shine,
If this vile passion govern me:
Transform my soul, O love divine,
And make me part with all for thee!   WATTS, 23, B. I.

READ LUKE XV.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we come before thee as afflicted parents, earnestly to supplicate thy throne in behalf of our son, who has cast off the salutary restraints of parental authority, and who is now following the counsel of his own will. We adore thy sovereignty, gracious God, in this most distressing family calamity. We acknowledge that it is a just punishment for any carelessness or neglect we, as parents, are chargeable with in the tuition of our son. Thou art righteous in all thy ways, and holy in all thy works. Just and true are thy ways, O thou King of saints.

Lord, visit not our sin with the perdition of our son. In the midst of deserved wrath, O remember us with undeserved mercy. Earnestly we pray for the salvation of our son. Lord, make him a monument of mercy. Let his conscience be awakened within him. Open his eyes to see the enormity, the aggravation, and the danger of his offences. O let filial affection be again enkindled in his bosom, and, like the penitent prodigal, may he return again to his father's house, and say, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. Stop him, O Lord, in his career of sin, and let him not plunge headlong into the lake of woe! Mercifully pluck him as a brand out of the burning! O bring forth the best robe of a Redeemer's righteousness, and put it on him; then shall we sing, This our son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found!

O Lord, hear the prayer of thine afflicted servants, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

~~~~~

Before the Entering of Friends on a Journey.

PILGRIM'S SONG.

Tamworth. Rousseau's Dream. Mariner's.      P. M.

- 1 GUIDE me, O thou great Jehovah!
Pilgrim through this barren land;
I am weak, but thou art mighty,
Hold me with thy powerful hand:
Broad of heaven!
Feed me till I want no more.
- 2 Open now the crystal fountain,
Whence the healing streams do flow;
Let the fiery cloudy pillar
Lead me all my journey through;
Strong deliverer!
Be thou still my strength and shield.
- 3 When I tread the verge of Jordan,
Bid my anxious fears subside;
Death of deaths, and hell's destruction,
Land me safe on Canaan's side:
Songs of praises
I will ever give to thee.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 277.

READ EXODUS XIV.

PRAYER.

WE supplicate, O Lord, thy gracious care and protection during the journey on which some now before thee are about to enter. May the knowledge of thine omnipresence comfort their hearts; and may they rejoice that, though at a distance from home, they are never at a distance from thee. Though their friends, from whom they are about to separate, shall not be able to hear their voice, may they rejoice that wherever they are, they are near a prayer-hearing God, whose ear is ever open to their cry.

Give to our dear friends journeying mercies. Give thine angels charge over them, to hold them up in all their ways. As Jacob and his family were divinely defended during their interesting and dangerous journey, so may they enjoy Divine protection and care. Fulfil in their experience these promises, The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil, he shall preserve thy soul. Mercifully, O Lord, preserve their going out and their coming in, from this time forth, and even for evermore. May our dear friends be restored to us in peace, and may the object of their journey be fully obtained.

As we are all journeying to eternity, Lord, grant that we may be all journeying to heaven. When our wanderings on earth shall cease, may we be triumphantly admitted into the joy of our Lord.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

After the Return of Friends from a Journey.

PROVIDENCE OUR GUARD.

Passion. Sutton Colquhoun. Vermont. Winkworth. S. 21.

1 WHERE is the Hebrews' God,
Who kept them night and day?
Where is the heavenly fire and cloud,
Which showed the church their way?
No symbol visible
We of thy presence find,
Yet all who would obey thy will Shall know the Father's mind.

2 Father, thou still dost lead
The children of thy grace,—
The spiritual, believing seed,
Throughout this wilderness;
Our chart thy written word,
Thy Spirit is our guide,
And Christ, the glory of the Lord,
Doth in our hearts reside.

3 Thy providential care,
Lord, we with joy confess,
Assured thou wilt our paths prepare,
And order all our ways;
Thy presence shall direct
Our journeys here beneath,
And convoy home thine own elect
Through a triumphant death.

C. WALKER.

READ PSALM CXXI.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, with thankfulness to fall down before thy gracious throne. We praise thee that our dear friends have been brought back to us in safety and comfort. Their lifeless bodies only might have been restored to us, and our hearts filled with the agonies of despondency and anguish. But we thank thee that they are now in the midst of us, in the enjoyment of their usual health and strength. We praise thee, that while exposed to the dangers of journeying, no accident has befallen them. Thou hast held them up by thy powerful hand; thou hast watched over them by thy kind and providential care; thou hast kept their bones, so that not one of them is broken.

We thank thee, O Lord, if the object of their journey has been in any degree realised, whether it may respect the restoration of health, or commercial concerns, or the enjoyment of an affectionate interview with beloved and distant friends. The success of every good plan depends immediately upon thee, O Lord; and we bless thee for the accomplishment of our lawful wishes and expectations.

May the safe return of our friends to an earthly home remind us of another and a better home, even a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Give us faith to receive Jesus as our prophet, priest, and king; then, at the termination of the journey of life, we shall join the ransomed myriads before the throne of God and the Lamb. Lord, hear the prayer of thy servants, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

For Rain.

YEAR OF SEVERE DROUGHT.

Colchester. Craven Chapel. Abridge. C. M.

1 THE spring, great God, at thy command,
Leads forth the smiling year;
Gay verdure, foliage, blooms, and flowers,
To adorn her reign appear.

- 2 But soon canst thou in righteous wrath
Blast all the promised joy,
And elements await thy nod,
To bless or to destroy.
- 3 The sun, thy minister of love,
That from the naked ground
Calls forth the hidden scenes to birth
And spreads their beauties round,
- 4 At the dread order of his God
Now darts destructive fires;—
Hills, plains, and vales are parched with drought,
And blooming life expires.
- 5 Like burnished brass, the heaven around
In angry terror burns,
While the earth lies a joyless waste,
And into iron turns.
- 6 Pity us, Lord, in our distress,
Nor with our land contend;
Bid the avenging skies relent,
And showers of mercies send.

GRASSON.

READ GENESIS VIII.

PRAYER.

THOU, O Lord, hast graciously said, They shall call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will answer them. O Lord our God, we come unto thee in the day of trouble, when the fruits of the earth are in danger of being seriously injured or destroyed by the severe drought. The heavens over us have become as brass, and the earth as iron.

Holy Lord God, we deserve this calamity! We have refused to hearken to thy voice in the Gospel of thy Son, when the accents of thy mercy dropped as the rain, and distilled as the dew. With justice, therefore, thou hast withdrawn from us the refreshing rain of the clouds of heaven. We have not listened as we should to thy calls of mercy from heaven—therefore the sky above us is become as brass; and we have been obdurate under the blessed means of grace—our hearts have been as adamant, and therefore thou hast justly made the earth beneath us as iron. Merciful Father, deal not with us, as a nation, as we deserve. Let the judgment which is now impending over our heads excite a spirit of penitence and prayer, and then in thine abundant goodness send us a plentiful rain to refresh the parched earth, that the heart of the pious husbandman may rejoice, and the poor and needy may lift up their voice and praise the name of the Lord. We also pray that showers of blessings may descend upon our families and churches, that they may revive as the corn and grow as the vine.

Lord, hear the prayers of thy servants, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving for Rain.

THE BLESSING OF RAIN.

Arundel. Carr's Lane. Smithfield. Miles's Lane. C. M.

- 1 THIS by thy strength the mountains stand,
God of eternal power;
The sea grows calm at thy command,
And tempests cease to roar.
- 2 Thy morning light and evening shade Successive comforts bring;
Thy plenteous fruits make harvest glad,
Thy flowers adorn the spring.

3 Seasons and times, and moons and hours,
Heaven, earth, and air are thine;
When clouds distil in fruitful showers,
The author is divine.

4 Those wandering cisterns in the sky,
Borne by the winds around,
With watery treasures well supply
The furrows of the ground.

5 The thirsty ridges drink their fill,
And ranks of corn appear;
Thy ways abound with blessings still,
Thy goodness crowns the year.

Watts, P. 65, p. II.

READ PSALM LXV.

PRAYER.

WE approach thee, merciful Father, with the voice of praise and thanksgiving. During the long absence of refreshing rain we cried unto thee, and in our calamity and danger thou didst hear our supplication: for thy mercy endureth for ever. Though we are unthankful and unworthy, thou hast not left thyself without a witness: thou art continually doing good; thou hast, in answer to our prayers, given us rain from heaven; and we now, under thy gracious smiles, enjoy the encouraging prospect of a fruitful season. Thou art filling our hearts with joy and gladness. While we deserved famine with all its horrors, thou art presenting before our eyes the encouraging prospect of a sufficient supply of grass for cattle, and of herbs for the use of men. What shall we render to the Lord for his goodness! Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it; thy mercy endureth for ever! Thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly; thou settlest the furrows thereof; thou makest it soft with showers; thou bleasest the springing thereof: thy mercy endureth for ever!

We earnestly pray that thy reasonable interposition in our behalf may prove beneficial to the souls of multitudes. May it lead many to present their thanksgivings before heaven's throne, who never thanked or praised their God before. O let the revival on the face of the earth be accompanied with a revival over the face of the Church! O make the wilderness and the solitary place to rejoice, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

For Fair Weather,

IN A TIME OF THREATENING RAIN.

YEAR OF THREATENING RAIN.

Webster's. Highbury College. Ann's. C. M.

- 1 HOW hast thou, Lord, from year to year,
Our land with plenty crowned!
And generous fruit and golden grain
Have spread their riches round.
- 2 But we thy mercies have abused,
To more abounding crimes;
What heights, what daring heights in sin,
Mark and disgrace our times!
- 3 Equal, though awful is the doom,
That fierce descending rain
Should into inundations swell,
And crush the rising grain!
- 4 How just that, in the autumn's rain,
When we had hoped to reap,
Our fields of sorrow and despair
Should lie a hideous heap!

5 But, Lord, have mercy on our land,
Those floods of vengeance stay;
Dispel these glooms, and let the sun
Shine in unclouded day!

6 To thee alone we look for help;
None else of dew or rain
Can give the world the smallest drop,
Or smallest drop restrain.

RIFTON, 502.

READ PSALM XLIII.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we desire to bow down before thee, as the almighty, absolute, and irresistible sovereign, who doest what seemeth thee meet in the armies of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth. Thou art a God of judgment as well as of mercy; a God of justice as well as of grace. We bow ourselves prostrate before thee as a holy and a righteous God.

We confess that, as a nation, we have greatly and grievously offended thee. The present calamity suspended over our land, the torrents of descending and destroying rain incessantly falling down on our fields of corn, and threatening the destruction of our hopes, remind us of our sins,—that we are a corrupted, degenerate, unthankful, and unworthy nation. We have not been thankful for thy great mercies, and particularly thy Gospel, the bread of life; and therefore thou art justly frowning upon us, and threatening us with the calamity of scarcity or famine. As a nation, we have neglected to send up our prayers to thy heavens; and now thou art justly punishing us by sending down destructive showers from the skies. Lord, give us the clear shining after the rain. Graciously bind up the bottles of heaven, and restrain thy watery treasures. Let not the fruits of the earth be found in rotten heaps in the furrows of the field. Lord, smile upon our land spiritually, and may the Sun of righteousness rise upon us with healing in his wings. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving for Fair Weather.

SEASONS CROWNED WITH GOODNESS.

Newport. Suffolk New. Coombs. Denmark. L. M.

- 1 ETERNAL Source of every joy!
Well may thy praise our lips employ,
While in thy temple we appear
To hail thee sovereign 'of the year.
- 2 Wide as the wheels of nature roll,
Thy hand supports and guides the whole!
The sun is taught by thee to rise,
And darkness when to veil the skies.
- 3 The flowery spring, at thy command,
Perfumes the air and paints the land;
The summer rays with vigour shine
To raise the corn and cheer the vine.
- 4 Thy hand in autumn richly pours
Through all our coast redundant stores;
And winters, softened by thy care,
No more the face of horror wear.
- 5 Seasons and months, and weeks and days,
Demand successive songs of praise;
And be the grateful homage paid
With morning light and evening shade.
- 6 Here in thy house let incense rise,
And circling Sabbaths bless our eyes,
Till to those lofty heights we soar,
Where days and years revolve no more.

DODDINGTON

READ HOMER. XIV.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, the Divine source of all grace, mercifully assist us in presenting the thanksgivings of our heart for the gracious interposition of Providence in behalf of our land. O Lord, we thank thee for shutting the windows of heaven, and for seasonably restraining the overflowing showers which threatened to destroy the fruits of the earth. We praise thee, O God of providence and of grace, for the salutary and comfortable change, and that thou art giving thine unworthy servants such abundant reason to rejoice in thine unmerited goodness.

O Lord, thou art good, and doest good. Our fears were great, hut thou hast been better to us than our fears. We deserved thy vengeance, but thou didst mercifully restrain thy hand, and say, It is enough. Thou hast given us to see and enjoy the clear shining after the rain. In the rays of the natural sun we see thy smiles. O give to our souls, to our families, and to our churches, the clear shining of gospel light, and of gospel grace. May Jesus be to us our everlasting light, and our God our glory.

Grant, O Lord, that all the inhabitants of the land may present a sacrifice of thanksgiving for the seasonable change in the weather, and for the prospect of an abundant harvest. Let the people praise thee, O Lord, let all the people praise thee, then shall the earth yield her increase, and God, even our God, shall bless us.

Heavenly Father, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

In a Thunder-storm.

GOD THE THUNDERER.

Worship. Alton. Tucker's.

C. M.

- 1 SING to the Lord, ye heavenly hosts,
And thou, O earth, adore;
Let death and hell through all their coasts
Stand trembling at his power.
- 2 His sounding chariot shakes the sky,
He makes the clouds his throne;
There all his stores of lightning lie,
Till vengeance dart them down.
- 3 His nostrils breathe out fiery streams
And from his awful tongue
A sovereign voice divides the flames,
And thunder roars along.
- 4 Think, O my soul, the dreadful day,
When this incensed God
Shall rend the sky, and burn the sea,
And fling his wrath abroad.
- 5 What shall the wretch the sinner do?
He once defied the Lord;
But he shall dread the thunderer now,
And sink beneath his word.
- 6 Tempests of angry fire shall roll
To blast the rebel-worm,
And beat upon his naked soul
In one eternal storm.

WATER, 62, B. II.

READ HABAKKUK III.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art most high and most mighty. We now hear the thunder which is thy voice. Who can thunder with a voice like thine? The lightnings, which are weapons of a thine hand, by which in a moment thou canst level with the ground the proudest and the strongest enemies, flash with vivid brightness before our eyes, declaring thy power and our weakness.

We desire, O Lord, to stand in awe of thee! Thy brightness is as the light. The pestilence goeth before thee, and burning coals at thy feet. When thou utterest thine awful voice the earth doth shake and tremble. At the brightness which is before thee thick clouds passed; hail-stones and coals of fire.

O Lord, we earnestly supplicate thy gracious protection. The help of men is vain: even the rocks of the mountains could afford us no defence. While we stand in awe of thee, and tremble under thine overwhelming voice, where can we—where should we—apply for help, but unto thee? We lay ourselves at thy feet, and cry, Lord, save us, else we perish! Thou, O Lord, who art thundering in the heavens, art Jesus, who took up little children in thine arms and blessed them—thou art he who died incarnate to save rebellious man, and therefore we come unto thee; we lay ourselves down at the feet of thy mercy, and plead for salvation through thy righteousness and death. When that day arrives when the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, may we find that He who now thunders in the heavens is our Father and friend. Lord, hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

After a Thunder-storm.

GOD'S MAJESTY.

Zadok. Poland. Miles's Lane.

C. M.

- 1 THE Lord descended from above,
And bowed the heavens most high;
And underneath his feet he cast
The darkness of the sky.
- 2 On cherub and on seraphim
Full royally he rode;
And on the wings of mighty winds,
Came flying all abroad.
- 3 He sat serene upon the floods,
Their fury to restrain;
And he, as sovereign Lord and King,
For evermore shall reign.

STERNHOLD.

READ PSALM XVIII.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely great and glorious. In all thy judgments thou art just and terrible, and thou art unsearchable in all thy ways. At thy rebuke the earth trembles, and the very foundations of the hills shake. Who can conceive thy power? for with as great ease thou canst shake the earth as thou canst shake the leaves of the forest—with as great ease thou art able to remove the earth out of its place as thou art able to remove the chaff which is driven before the wind.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the suffering or injury sustained by the late tempest of lightning and thunder; and we praise thee that we are not numbered with the dead. Though trees have been torn up by the roots, here we are, the preserved monuments of thy mercy. We now present before thee the sacrifice of our thanksgiving and our praise. Accept of this our sacrifice! May this instance of thy preserving kindness in a time of great danger and fear deeply affect our hearts, and stir us up to inquire whether our hopes of pardon, heaven, and immortality are placed on Jesus, the tried corner-stone, where alone there is perfect security against the thunders of a broken covenant of works. May thy preserving kindness animate us to serve thee with affectionate diligence and godly fear; and whatever storm shall arise, may we sing, in holy confidence, Jesus is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble.

Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanks for an Abundant Harvest.

GOOD HARVEST.

Ebenezer New Hampshire. Eythorn.

C. M.

- 1 TO praise the ever-bounteous Lord,
My soul, wake all thy powers:
He calls, and at his voice come forth
The smiling harvest hours.
- 2 Well pleased, the toiling swains behold
The waving yellow crop;
With joy they bear the sheaves away,
And sow again in hope.
- 3 Thus teach me, gracious God, to sow
The seeds of righteousness:
Smile on my soul, and with thy beams
The ripening harvest bless.
- 4 Then, in the last great harvest, I Shall reap a glorious crop;
The harvest shall by far exceed
What I have sown in hope.

NEEDHAM.

READ PSALM LXVII.

PRAYER.

O THOU God of providence and of grace, we praise thee that, in the abundant harvest with which thou hast mercifully crowned the season of the year, we now witness renewed evidences of the truth of thy covenant with Noah: While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease. Give us grace to rely on all the promises of thy truth, and to rejoice that the heavens and the earth shall sooner pass away than the very least of thy promises fall to the ground.

We bless thee, O Lord, that thou hast opened to us the treasures of thy goodness, that thou hast given us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness. We thank God for the alternate rain and sunshine by which the fruits of the earth are brought to maturity. And we bless God for that fair weather by which they have been safely collected, and gathered into our barns. May this general and national blessing produce expressions of universal praise!

O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

God of salvation, mercifully deliver thy Church throughout the world from spiritual sterility, and make her distinguished for spiritual fruitfulness. May she flourish like the palm-tree, and grow like the cedar of Lebanon. O have mercy on pagan and Mahomedan nations, now exhibiting the sad spectacle of extensive moral and spiritual deserts. May they soon be visited with the Gospel of salvation, and become a rich portion of the garden of the Church of Christ.

O Lord, may each of us exhibit a rich harvest of the graces of the Spirit, and at the close of our present life may we enjoy an harvest of glory.

O prepare us for the last great harvest—the judgment day! Clothe us in the robe of righteousness; then shall we meet our Judge with confidence and joy.

Graciously hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

In the Time of Pestilence, OR OF AN INFECTIOUS DISEASE.

DARKNESS OF PROVIDENCE.

Fordingbridge. Doverdale. Winchester.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, we adore thy vast designs,
The obscure abyss of providence,
Too deep to sound with mortal lines,
Too dark to view with feeble sense.
- 2 Now thou array'st thine awful face
In angry frown, without a smile;
We through the cloud believe thy grace,
Secure of thy compassion still.
- 3 Through seas and storms of deep distress,
We sail by faith, and not by sight:
Faith guides us in the wilderness,
Through all the briers and the night.
- 4 Dear Father, if thy lifted rod
Resolve to scourge us here below,
Still we must lean upon our God,
Thine arm shall bear us safely through.

WATTS, 109, B. II.

READ PSALM XCI.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee in all the judgments which have befallen the children of men, and in the great calamity with which we are now visited. Thou hast in thy justice sent among us an invisible and destroying messenger, by which many are speedily removed from time to eternity! Lord, we deserve this great calamity, and even a calamity far greater, for our long-continued and highly aggravated transgressions. In former days thou didst justly punish the sins of Israel, and slew threescore and ten thousand by pestilence. If thou shouldst visit our land as our iniquities deserve, thou wouldst cut down the guilty inhabitants in far greater multitudes. Israel's sin was great, but ours is greater; for we have sinned against clearer light, and against more distinguished privileges. O Lord, remove our sins, which deserve such judgments; and remove the judgments which our sins deserve.

Lord, pity us in our sufferings; take away from us this awful plague, and let us not perish in our iniquities. God of mercy, stop the destroying angel, and say to him, by the voice of thy gracious omnipotence, It is enough.

Lord, deliver us, as a family, from the pestilence of sin; deliver our land from this pestilence, and make us a holy nation, a royal priesthood, a peculiar people. May this calamity lead multitudes to Jesus' feet, to supplicate salvation through his blood.

Lord, hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanks for the Removal of Pestilence, OR OF AN INFECTIOUS DISEASE.

SICKNESS HEALED.

Follistone. Berwick. Breidby.

L. M.

- 1 I WILL extol thee, Lord, on high;
At thy command diseases fly:
Who but a God can speak and save
From the dark borders of the grave?

APPENDIX.

- 2 Sing to the Lord, ye saints of his,
And tell how large his goodness is:
Let all your powers rejoice and bless
While you record his holiness.
- 3 His anger but a moment stays
His love is life and length of days;
Though grief and tears the night employ,
The morning-star restores the joy.

WATTS, Ps. 33, p. 1.

READ PSALM XXX.

PRAYER.

O THOU who art the preserver of men, we would fall down before thee with grateful hearts, and praise thy name for hearing our prayers and sending deliverance. Thou hast delivered our souls from the hand of the grave; and when our lives were in the most imminent danger, thou hast kept us alive, that we should not go down to the pit. The arrows of death were flying thick around us, multitudes on the right hand and on the left were made the fatal victims of a destroying and infectious disease; we went about with our lives in our hands, and yet we are now the preserved monuments of thy mercy. What shall we render to the Lord for all his benefits! Glory to our God, that the disease which has been to many the messenger of death, has not come nigh us. We have dwelt in the secret place of the Most High, and we have been preserved in safety under the shadow of the Almighty.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy kindness to our neighbourhood and nation, not only for removing the disease, but for all the benefit which has been derived from this gloomy visitation. If any have been brought to see their sin and misery, if they have been led to mercy's feet to implore salvation through a Saviour's blood, we magnify thy great name for blessings so great. O let not our nation return to their former thoughtlessness and profanity, but may all the inhabitants solemnly dedicate themselves to the service and honour of our redeeming God!

Lord, hear our humble prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

In the Time of War, and for its Destruction.

PEACE PRAYED FOR.

Luton (Canada). Job. Peace. Alic Street. L. M.

- 1 ON Britain, long a favoured isle,
Now overwhelmed with grief and shame,
Deign, mighty God! once more to smile;
The same thy power, thy grace the same.
- 2 Let peace descend with balmy wing,
And all its blessings round her shed;
Her liberties be well secured,
And commerce lift its fainting head.
- 3 Let the loud cannon cease to roar,
The warlike trump no longer sound;
The din of arms be heard no more,
Nor human blood pollute the ground:
- 4 Let hostile troops drop from their hands
The useless sword, the glittering spear,
And join in friendship's sacred bands,
Nor one dissident voice be there.
- 5 Thus save, O Lord! a sinking land;
Millions of tongues shall then adore,
Resound the honours of thy name,
And spread thy praise from shore to shore. BEDDOME.

READ ISAIAH XL.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the Lord of hosts. Great and mighty are thine armies, by which thou canst easily lay waste the guilty nations of the earth. We come unto thee, O merciful God, in a time of great public calamity, while our own and other nations are visited with the dreadful scourge of war. We would mourn, O Lord, over the pride and haughtiness and envy and revenge which agitate the bosoms of earthly rulers, and make them rush into unnecessary wars, and thus sport with the property, the comfort, the blood, and the lives of the children of men. In thy righteousness, O Lord, remove from the thrones of kingdoms such scourges of mankind. O scatter those who delight in war, and who will adopt no method for adjusting their differences, but that of leading thousands into the field of battle, and thus ushering multitudes, unprepared, into the presence of a holy and a righteous God.

O Lord, give us peace. Jesus, thou prince of peace, mercifully cause the tumult of war to cease, and teach the rulers and the nations to cultivate mutual harmony and love. Let all false ideas of dignity and glory be buried in the dust, and may all in authority see that it is their greatest glory to rule in the fear of the Lord.

O pity those who are in the very seat of war. Lord, preserve them from death, but above all, save their souls from hell!

Prepare us all for the peaceful blessedness of heaven. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving for Peace.

PEACE.

Old 100th. Portugal. L. M.

- 1 LET Sion in her King rejoice,
Though tyrants rage and kingdoms rise!
He utters his almighty voice,
The nations melt, the tumult dies.
- 2 The Lord of old for Jacob fought,
And Jacob's God is still our aid;
Behold the works his hand has wrought,
What desolations he has made!
- 3 From sea to sea, through all the shores,
He makes the noise of battle cease;
When from on high his thunder roars,
He awes the trembling world to peace.
- 4 He breaks the bow, he cuts the spear,
Chariots he burns with heavenly flame:
Keep silence all the earth, and hear
The sound and glory of his name.
- 5 Be still, and learn that I am God,
I'll be exalted o'er the lands;
I will be known and feared abroad,
But still my throne in Sion stands.
- 6 O Lord of hosts, almighty King,
While we so near thy presence dwell,
Our faith shall sit secure, and sing
Defiance to the gates of hell.

WATTS, Ps. 46, p. 11.

READ PSALM XLVI.

PRAYER.

GOD of salvation, we come before thee with grateful hearts, to present the sacrifice of thanksgiving and praise for the blessings of peace. Glory to God, that thou hast caused the storm of war to cease, and that thou hast put an end to the effusion of human blood. Thou art he who makest war to cease unto the end of the earth; thou breakest the bow, and outtest the spear asunder, and burnest the chariot judges.

APPENDIX.

We would earnestly pray that the late war may be followed by thy blessing; for thou art able to bring great good out of the greatest evil. May the eyes of rulers be opened to see their dreadful guilt, and the vanity and cruelty of settling their disputes by the wanton destruction of the lives of men.

We pray for the universal extension of the holy, wise, and merciful principles of the religion of Christ. May these holy, peaceful principles enter into the cabinets and palaces of princes;—then shall wars cease unto the very ends of the earth, and then shall righteousness, as well as peace, flourish among all nations. Blessed Saviour, we long, we pray for thy universal reign among the kingdoms of the world. O hasten that day, when thou shalt be universally known and loved and adored.

Teach all of us to cultivate peace in our family, and in our own bosoms. O make us heirs of the peaceful joys of heaven and immortality.

Mercifully accept our thanksgivings, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Sitting out on a

OR OUTWARD BOUND.

SETTING SAIL.

Gibeon. Jordan's Banks. Prospect.

- 1 O HOLY Spirit, heavenly wind,
Blow and expand our sails,
That we may leave the shore behind,
Where pestilence prevails.
- 2 A barren soil, and sickly clime,
And waters naught are here;
O waft us to the heavenly port,
For none are sickly there.
- 3 Perpetual breezes on us blow,
Nor suffer us to strand;
It is to Canaan we would go,
That holy, promised land.
- 4 No weeds of vice, no stagnant pools,
Are found upon that shore;
Grace having purified men's souls,
They live for evermore.

Jorck, 84.

ISAIAH XXXV.

The Coming of the Messiah.

THE wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.

2 It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the LORD, and the excellency of our God.

3 Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.

4 Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you.

5 Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

6 Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.

7 And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water: in the habitation of dragons, shall be grass with reeds and rushes.

8 And an highway shall be there, and a way, and be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.

9 No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there:

10 And the ransomed of the LORD shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

PRAYER.

ALMIGHTY God, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we draw near thy throne to present our supplications in the name of Jesus, as we are about to leave our native shores, and proceed toward the distant regions of the earth.

We adore thee in thy almighty power, thy universal government, and thy boundless grace. Thou art he who spreadest out the heavens, and rulest the raging of the sea. Thou hast compassed the waters with bounds, until day and night come to an end.

We now commend our bodies, our souls, our lives, our property, and our ship, to thy Divine and gracious care. Convey us in safety to the place of our destination. May we reach the desired haven. O preserve us from the dangers of the great deep. Preserve us from furious winds and tempestuous billows. Suffer us not to fall on dangerous sands or destructive rocks. Let not our vessel spring a leak, that we may not be consigned to a watery grave. Enable us, O Jesus, to flee to thee as our Saviour. Let every individual and mariner on board be clothed with thy righteousness and redeemed by thy blood. Bless our commander, and all subordinate officers. May we ever render prompt and loving obedience to those under whom we are placed. During the whole of our voyage may the greatest harmony and peace prevail. Let the fear and love of God inflame all our hearts, and regulate all our actions. In thy due time, restore us in safety to our native land, our families, and friends.

Lord, forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Service at Sea.

SABBATH MORNING.

GOD THE ONLY REFUGE.

Truro. Tranquillity.

L. M.

- 1 GOD is the refuge of his saints,
When storms of sharp distress invade;
Ere we can offer our complaints,
Behold him present with his aid.
- 2 Let mountains from their seats be hurled
Down to the deep, and buried there;
Convulsions shake the solid world,
Our faith shall never yield to fear.
- 3 Loud may the troubled ocean roar,
In sacred peace our souls abide,
While every nation, every shore,
Trembles, and dreads the swelling tide.

4 *There is a stream, whose gentle flow
Nourishes the city of our God;
Life, love, and joy still gliding through,
And watering our divine abode.*

5 *That sacred stream, thine holy word,
That all our raging fear controls;
Sweet peace thy promises afford,
And give new strength to fainting souls.*

6 *Sion enjoys her Monarch's love,
Secure against a threatening hour;
Nor can her firm foundations move,
Built on his truth, and armed with power.*

Watts, Ps. 48, p. 1.

ISAIAH XL.

Consolations of the Gospel.

COMFORT ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.

2 Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

3 The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

4 Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain:

5 And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

6 The voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field:

7 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass.

8 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of our God shall stand for ever.

9 O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!

10 Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.

11 He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young.

12 Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance?

13 Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him?

14 With whom took he counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him in the path of judgment, and taught him knowledge, and shewed to him the way of understanding?

15 Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing.

16 And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn, nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offering.

17 All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity.

18 To whom then will ye liken God? or what likeness will ye compare unto him?

19 The workman melteth a graven image, and the goldsmith spreadeth it over with gold, and casteth silver chains.

20 He that is so impoverished that he hath no oblation chooseth a tree that will not rot; he seeketh unto him a cunning workman to prepare a graven image, that shall not be moved.

21 Have ye not known? have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the beginning? have ye not understood from the foundations of the earth?

22 It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers; that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in:

23 That bringeth the princes to nothing; he maketh the judges of the earth as vanity.

24 Yea, they shall not be planted; yea, they shall not be sown: yea, their stock shall not take root in the earth: and he shall also blow upon them, and they shall wither, and the whirlwind shall take them away as stubble.

25 To whom then will ye liken me, or shall I be equal? saith the Holy One.

26 Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth.

27 Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, My way is hid from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over from my God?

28 Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding.

29 He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

30 Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall:

31 But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

PRAYER.

GRREAT and glorious Jehovah, the Creator of the heavens and the earth, we desire with the humility of unfeigned devotion, to approach thy throne of grace in the name of Jesus, our Surety, our Advocate, and Saviour. We are now upon the bosom of the great deep, where we see thy wonders in forming, in managing, and in controlling the mighty and the formidable waves of the sea. We adore thy sovereignty in permitting the waves to rage during the dangers of the storm. And we adore thy goodness and thy power in saying to the waves, "Peace, be still!"

We thank thee for thy kind protecting care over us during the past night. Encircled by the arms of thy gracious power, we are as safe upon the waters of the sea as we should be on the dry land. We thank thee, that by thy kind providence we laid ourselves down in peace, and have slept. Thou, O Lord, alone makest us to dwell in safety; therefore it becometh us to resolve in the words of the Psalmist, and in the strength of Divine grace: "Our voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will we direct our prayer unto thee, and look up."

Mercifully bless us during the whole of this day; let our thoughts, words, and actions be under thy guidance, and agreeable to thy holy will. As loving children delight to please their earthly parents, may it ever be our delight to do what is well-pleasing to thee our heavenly Father, our God and Father in Christ.

Mercifully assist us in all the duties of this Sabbath.

APPENDIX.

Suffer us not to forget that it is thy day—that it is by way of eminence “the Lord’s day.” May it ever be our delight to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. Ever may we value and love the ordinances of religion required to be observed on that sacred day. Holy Spirit, assist us in our meditations. O enable us to think of Jesus—to think of his great salvation, and to think of that glorious heaven he has prepared for those who love him. Mercifully give us the satisfying evidence that Christ is ours, that his salvation is our portion, and that his heaven is our home.

We acknowledge our sinfulness. Our sins of omission are innumerable. We have in countless instances neglected to do what thy holy law requires. For Jesus’ sake, mercifully forgive these our sins of omission. Without number are our sins of commission, in having done what thy righteous law forbids. For Jesus’ sake, mercifully pardon these our sins. In thy great compassion, place us among the number of those of whom it is said, “Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.” Mercifully give us an interest in the righteousness of Christ, then the guilt of our sins shall be for ever removed. Give us an interest in the influences of the Spirit of Christ, then the pollution of our sins shall be washed away.

O Lord our God, most graciously hear these our supplications, and answer our requests, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Saviour.

And now to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, be ascribed the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God the Father, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all, for ever and ever. Amen.

Service at Sea.

SABBATH EVENING.

A FREE SALVATION.

Irish. Bedford.

C. M.

- 1 LET every mortal ear attend,
And every heart rejoice,
The trumpet of the gospel sounds
With an inviting voice.
- 2 Ho! all ye hungry starving souls
That feed upon the wind,
And vainly strive with earthly toys
To fill an empty mind.
- 3 Eternal Wisdom has prepared
A soul-reviving feast,
And bids your longing appetites
The rich provision taste.
- 4 Ho! ye that pant for living streams,
And pine away and die,
Here you may quench your raging thirst
With springs that never dry.
- 5 Rivers of love and mercy here
In a rich ocean join;
Salvation in abundance flows,
Like floods of milk and wine.
- 6 Ye perishing and naked poor,
Who work with mighty pain
To weave a garment of your own,
That will not hide your sin,

7 Come naked, and adorn your souls
In robes prepared by God,
Wrought by the labours of his Son,
And dyed in his own blood.]

8 Dear God, the treasures of thy love
Are everlasting mines,
Deep as our helpless miseries are,
And boundless as our sins.

9 The happy gates of gospel grace
Stand open night and day,
Lord, we are come to seek supplics,
And drive our wants away.

Watts, 7, B. I.

ISAIAH LV.

Invitations and Promises.

HO, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.

2 Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

3 Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David.

4 Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.

5 Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

6 Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near:

7 Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.

8 For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.

9 For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts.

10 For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

11 So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.

12 For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

13 Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.

PRAYER.

GOD of creation, of providence, and redemption, we desire humbly to approach thy throne of grace, in the name of Jesus, our Saviour and Intercessor. We cannot draw near to thy mercy-seat as we ought; but we praise thy glorious name for the promise of the Holy Spirit, who is willing to help our infirmities, to enlighten our understandings, to sanctify our hearts, and to enable us to present those supplications which are suitable to our case, and which our God and Father, for Jesus' sake, will mercifully hear, accept, and answer.

We acknowledge and adore thee as the only, the living, and the true God. Lord, inspire us with grace, that we may acknowledge and adore thee as the Lord our God, and as our God and Father in Christ.

Most merciful Father, we confess before thee our sinfulness. In ourselves we are altogether an unclean thing. We were born in sin, and conceived in iniquity: we are the degenerate plants of a strange vine. We confess our transgressions; they are great in number, and we confess they are great in aggravation; they are a heavy burden, too heavy for us. O enable us with thankfulness and joy to remember that the second person of the Trinity, the Son of God, the beloved of the Father, became our Surety, took upon him our nature, and in that nature obeyed, suffered, and died to atone for our guilt. Glory to God in the highest that the atonement is made. Glory to God in the highest that the chief of sinners, if convinced of sin, and penitent under a sense of sin, are welcome to a throne of grace, to seek and obtain salvation through the atonement of Jesus. Father of mercies, we now seek forgiveness for Jesus' sake.

At the close of thy sacred, hallowed day, we present our thanksgiving for all the mercies, temporal and spiritual, we have this day received. Gracious God! the cup of our lot is not only filled with thy goodness, but overflowing with thy kindness. O may the goodness of our God lead us to repentance, thankfulness, and holy obedience.

May all of us enjoy thy guardianship and protection during the night. May we enjoy the blessing of sleep and repose. Give thine angels charge over us. May we be held up in their hands, that no evil may befall us. Above all, teach us to say in the comforting language of the Psalmist, "God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble. The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah!"

Greatly bless the captain and officers of this ship. Enrich their souls with every grace, that they may be fitted for every duty, and prepared for every emergency. Ever may they look up to thee for guidance, and ever depend upon thee for protection. While the property and lives of others are committed to their care, may their own souls be safe in the arms of mercy, and may a rich inheritance await them beyond the skies, where the vicissitudes and dangers peculiar to the sea and ocean, are for ever unknown.

We supplicate from thee, the Lord our God, the continuance of every temporal mercy. May we receive thy mercies with thankful hearts, and enjoy and improve all the blessings of thy goodness, for our own spiritual benefit, and for the glory of thy great name.

In prosecuting our voyage through the sea of time, teach us to make thy word our compass, that we may safely reach the haven of celestial rest, peace, and joy. Ever may our hopes of heaven be fixed on Jesus, and on his righteousness and intercession; then shall we say with the Apostle, "Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, whither the forerunner hath for us entered;" then we shall rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

Most merciful Father, hear these our prayers, forgive our sins, and accept our persons, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all. Amen.

Second Service at Sea.

SABBATH MORNING.

DESTRUCTION OF PHARAOH AND HIS HOST IN THE RED SEA.

Gathemane Chorus.

C. M.

- 1 SOUND the loud timbrel o'er Egypt's dark sea;
Jehovah has triumph'd, his people are free!
Sing, for the pride of the tyrant is broken,
His chariot, his horsemen, all splendid and brave;
How vain was their boasting! the Lord has but spoken,
And chariots and horsemen are sunk in the wave!
Cho. Sound the loud timbrel, &c.
- 2 Praise to the Conqueror; O praise to the Lord;
His word was our arrow, his breath was our sword!
Who shall return to tell Egypt the story
Of those she sent forth in the hour of her pride?
For the Lord hath looked out from his pillar of glory,
And all her brave thousands are dashed in the tide!
Cho. Sound the loud timbrel, &c.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 348, pt. 2.

EXODUS XIV.

Overthrow of the Egyptians.

- AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
- 2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they turn and encamp before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.
  - 3 For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.
  - 4 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.
  - 5 And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?
  - 6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:
  - 7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.
  - 8 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel: and the children of Israel went out with an high hand.
  - 9 But the Egyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army, and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.
  - 10 And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the LORD.
  - 11 And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?
  - 12 Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.
  - 13 And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will shew to you to day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.
  - 14 The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.
  - 15 And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou

APPENDIX.

unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward:

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them:

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided.

22 And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning watch the Lord looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians,

25 And took off their chariot wheels, that they drave them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the Lord fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; and the Lord overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea.

28 And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them.

29 But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the Lord saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians; and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea shore.

31 And Israel saw that great work which the Lord did upon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lord, and believed the Lord, and his servant Moses.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, the God of our salvation, we praise thy name that we are permitted to approach thy throne of grace. We thank thee that we are encouraged to look up to thee for acceptance, and for the answer of our prayers, through the merits of the righteousness, and the efficacy of the intercession of Christ. Lord, inspire us with holy reverence, holy devotion, and holy confidence.

Thou hast mercifully preserved us through another night; thou hast refreshed us with sleep, rest, and repose. We present before thee the sacrifice of our thanksgiving and praise. We thank thee that we were not found dead upon our beds. We thank our God and Father in Christ that we were not found the subjects of disease, suffering, and pain. Bless the Lord, O our soul, and forget not all his benefits!

Give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may be enabled to sanctify thy sacred day. May we never forget that great and blessed event which this day was appointed to commemorate, namely, the resurrection of Jesus. Glory to God in the highest that, on the morning of this day, the humanity of the Son of God was raised from the dead. Lord, teach us to rejoice that on the morning of this day he was declared to be the Son of God, with power, by his resurrection from the dead. We praise thee that, on the morning of this day, Jesus rose as the first fruits of them who sleep. Give us faith in Jesus as the Resurrection and the Life, then we shall rejoice in the assured hopes that we shall have a blessed resurrection, and that we shall rise to the enjoyment of a glorious immortality.

Divine Spirit, give us grace to mourn over our sinfulness with holy penitence, and teach us to confess our sins with unfeigned sincerity. Teach us to say with the holy Psalmist, "We acknowledge our transgression, and our sin is ever before us. We were born in sin, and in sin did our mothers conceive us. Our sins are more in number than the hairs of our head, which cannot be numbered. They are gone over our head; as an heavy burden, they are too heavy for us." We thank thee that thou hast borne with us so long in the midst of our provocations, and that thou hast not deprived us of life while in the very act of sinning against thee. Truly, when we deserved to have been cut down, thou hast preserved us. In the midst of deserved wrath thou hast remembered us with undeserved mercy.

Father of mercies, we implore forgiveness through the merit of the atonement of Jesus. Have mercy upon us, O God, according to thy loving-kindness; according to the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out our iniquities. As an evidence that our sins are forgiven, inspire our souls with holy, evangelical, unfeigned repentance. O teach us to abhor sin, to mourn over sin, and to forsake sin.

We pray that we may rejoice and trust in Christ as a sanctifying Saviour. May Jesus be made of God unto us sanctification. By the influences of his good Spirit, may the vile impurities of our nature be washed away. Wash us thoroughly from our iniquity, and cleanse us from our sin. Purge us with hyssop, and we shall be clean; wash us and we shall be whiter than snow. Create in us a clean heart, and renew in us a right spirit.

Bless all who are on board this vessel. Give and continue with them that wisdom, and health, and vigour, and fortitude, which are necessary for the management of the ship, and for safely directing its course through the waters of the great deep. May the captain be guided, preserved, and strengthened in the discharge of all his arduous and responsible duties; and may those who are engaged in his service be distinguished for fidelity, and for rendering ready and willing obedience in singleness of heart as unto Christ; not with eye-service as men-pleasers, but as the servants of Christ doing the will of God from the heart, with goodwill doing service as to the Lord, and not to men.

We present our prayers in behalf of all our beloved relatives and friends, from whom we are separated by the briny waters of the great sea. Let salvation be their portion, and let the graces of the Holy Spirit be the ornament of their souls. Again may we see them in peace. And when we shall have finished the voyage of this mortal state, may we meet in the heavenly mansions to be for ever with the Lord. Merciful Father, hear and answer our supplications, for Jesus' sake; to whom, with the Father and the Holy Spirit, we ascribe equal and undivided praises. Amen.

APPENDIX.

May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God the Father, be with us all for ever and ever. Amen.

Second Service at Sea.
SABBATH EVENING.

GOD'S MAJESTY AND CONDESCENSION.

Evening Hymn. Alfred.

L. M.

- 1 UP to the Lord that reigns on high,
And views the nations from afar,
Let everlasting praises fly,
And tell how large his bounties are.
- 2 [He that can shake the worlds he made,
Or with his word or with his rod,
His goodness how amazing great!
And what a condescending God!]
- 3 [God, that must stoop to view the skies,
And bow to see what angels do,
Down to our earth he casts his eyes,
And bends his footsteps downward too.]
- 4 He overrules all mortal things,
And manages our mean affairs;
On humble souls the King of kings,
Bestows his councils and his cares.
- 5 Our sorrows and our tears we pour
Into the bosom of our God;
He hears us in the mournful hour,
And helps us bear the heavy load.
- 6 In vain might lofty princes try
Such condescension to perform;
For worms were never raised so high
Above their meanest fellow-worm.
- 7 O could our thankful hearts devise
A tribute equal to thy grace,
To the third heaven our songs should rise,
And teach the golden harps thy praise.

Watts, 46, B. II.

EXODUS XV.

Song of Moses.

THEN sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the LORD, and spake, saying, I will sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

2 The LORD is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt him.

3 The LORD is a man of war: the LORD is his name.

4 Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea; his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red sea.

5 The depths have covered them: they sank into the bottom as a stone.

6 Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O LORD, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

7 And in the greatness of thine excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee: thou sentest forth thy wrath, which consumed them as stubble.

8 And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

9 The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them.

10 Thou didst blow with thy wind, the sea covered them: they sank as lead in the mighty waters.

11 Who is like unto thee, O LORD, among the gods? who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?

12 Thou stretchedst out thy right hand, the earth swallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy hast led forth the people which thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation.

14 The people shall hear, and be afraid: sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina.

15 Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

16 Fear and dread shall fall upon them; by the greatness of thine arm they shall be as still as a stone; till thy people pass over, O LORD, till the people pass over, which thou hast purchased.

17 Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O LORD, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the Sanctuary, O LORD, which thy hands have established.

18 The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

19 For the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them; but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances.

21 And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

22 So Moses brought Israel from the Red sea, and they went out into the wilderness of Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

23 And when they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called Marah.

24 And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them,

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

27 And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Lord God Almighty, we desire to draw near to thy throne of grace in the name of Jesus, our Advocate and Saviour, with holy reverence, believing confidence, and filial fear. We acknowledge our unfitness for approaching thy presence as we ought. We are laden with infirmities: but we praise thee that the Holy Spirit is willing to help our infirmities; and we bless thee that our Divine Advocate and Intercessor is willing to present our services before the heavenly throne with acceptance. Holy Spirit, we lift up to thee the eyes of our soul, earnestly to supplicate thy gracious aid. Blessed Jesus, we commit to thee our imperfect services and unworthy sacrifices, that in thy love and mercy thou wouldst graciously secure their acceptance before the throne above.

On the bosom of the great deep, and surrounded by many perils, we desire in the language of humble, yet believing confidence, to acknowledge and adore thee as our strength and our song. Thou art the God of salvation. Blessed Lord, give us grace to adore thee, and love thee, and trust in thee as the God of our salvation. From many dangers by sea and by land thou hast defended us, and from many perils thou hast delivered us. O deliver us from the perils of sin, from the snares of the world, and from the insinuating and alluring temptations of Satan. Often thou hast saved our bodies from temporal destruction. When death, as it were, appeared full in view, when only an hair's breadth seemed to be between us and the grave, thou didst come to our help, thou didst preserve our life, and restore our souls for thy name's sake. Now, Father of mercies, we earnestly pray for the salvation of our souls, our never-dying souls. Thou didst deliver Israel, thy chosen people, from Pharaoh and his hosts: mercifully deliver us from Satan—the prince of the power of the air, the spirit who now worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience. Suffer not that destroyer of souls to accomplish our destruction. Mighty Saviour, come to our deliverance. Great God of salvation, thou didst stretch out thine hand, and didst lead forth thy people in safety through the waters of the Red Sea. O mercifully preserve us from the destroying waves of the Red Sea of Divine wrath. Save us from the guilt, and power, and love of sin. Save us from the world and its ten thousand snares. Save us from the corruptions of our own heart. Save us from the sting of death. And mercifully save us from the miseries of hell!

The salvation we seek for ourselves we would supplicate for all who are near and dear to us on earth. Far removed from them, we often think of them with ardent affection; and now we pray in their behalf. Lord, comfort them with all the blessings of thy providence; above all, enrich them with all the rich blessings of thy great salvation. May they and we be thy regenerated children. May we be horn again by renewing grace. May we be the subjects of that new birth, which cometh not of blood nor of flesh, which is not of the will of man, but of God. O grant that we may be the subjects of that new birth, without which we never can belong to thy kingdom of grace on earth, and without which we never can belong to thy kingdom of glory in heaven. We pray not for alliances with the great, the wealthy, and the mighty of this world, the fashion of which so speedily changeth, and the glory of which so soon passeth away. Our petition and our request is that we, and all in whom we are interested, may be exalted to the distinguished honour of being made the sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty. O put us among thy children, and give us the goodly heritage of the host of nations. Make us heirs of that heavenly inheritance which is incorruptible and undefiled, and which fadeth not away—that precious inheritance “which is reserved in heaven for them who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time.”

Most merciful Father, accept our united thanksgiving for the mercies of the past day. Wherein we have offended thee in thought, expression, or action, graciously forgive. This night give us the blessing of sleep, protection, and repose. Hear, forgive, and answer, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the communion of the Holy Ghost be with us all. Amen.

During a Storm at Sea.

THE STORM.

Onwestry. Warrington. Wareham.

L. B.

- 1 WE ask the Lord to know his way,
But hardly know for what we pray,
When we expect it in a calm,
When nothing can our peace alarm
- 2 To sail along with wind and tide,
And smoothly into harbour glide;
While very few the voyage perform,
But in the whirlwind and the storm.
- 3 In this way Jesus reached the shore,
As all the prophets did before;
By this rough course the apostles went,
And learnt therein to be content.
- 4 So that we are but landed where
The Saviour and the saints appear,
Our songs of praise will louder sound,
As tribulations here abound.
- 5 Then shall we sing with them at last,
The bitterness of death is past!
And then the whirlwind and the storm
No longer will our souls alarm.

Jovca, 44.

PSALM XXIX.

God's Voice.

- GIVE unto the LORD, O ye mighty, give unto the LORD glory and strength.
- 2 Give unto the LORD the glory due unto his name; worship the LORD in the beauty of holiness.
  - 3 The voice of the LORD is upon the waters: the God of glory thundereth: the LORD is upon many waters.
  - 4 The voice of the LORD is powerful; the voice of the LORD is full of majesty.
  - 5 The voice of the LORD breaketh the cedars; yea, the LORD breaketh the cedars of Lebanon.
  - 6 He maketh them also to skip like a calf; Lebanon and Sirion like a young unicorn.
  - 7 The voice of the LORD divideth the flames of fire.
  - 8 The voice of the LORD shaketh the wilderness; the LORD shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh.
  - 9 The voice of the LORD maketh the hinds to calve, and discovereth the forests: and in his temple doth every one speak of his glory.
  - 10 The LORD sitteth upon the flood; yea, the LORD sitteth King for ever.
  - 11 The LORD will give strength unto his people; the LORD will bless his people with peace.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the almighty God. Thou art the God of the ocean as well as of the dry land. The winds and the waves are under thy control. The winds cannot blow, nor the waves of the sea lift up themselves on high, but by thy permission, and at thy command. When thou wilt, the winds blow, and the waves rage; and when thou wilt, there is a calm. When thou sayest to the infuriated elements, Hither shalt thou come and no farther, instantly thy voice is obeyed.

In thy sovereign providence, we are brought into great peril. The infuriated winds are howling around us, and the proud, swelling billows are threatening our destruction. We mount up to the heavens, and go down again to the depths; our soul is melted because of trouble. We reel to and fro like a drunken man, and we are at our wits' end.

O Lord, we cry unto thee in our day of trouble! O bring us out of our distresses! The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves! O Lord, thou art mightier than the voice of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea! Lord, we cry unto thee for help. Save, Lord, or else we perish. Command the winds and the waves to be still, and they will instantly obey thee. But if any of us should perish in this storm, O let not our souls perish; but through the death of Jesus, who endured the storms of Divine wrath, may they be preserved from hell, and may they enter heaven. Thy will be done!

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thanksgiving after a Storm at Sea.

ALL'S WELL.

Alfred. Berwick. Addison's.

L. M.

- 1 ALL'S well with those that fear the Lord,
In every calling, time, and place;
He does, according to his word,
Supply them from his stores of grace.
- 2 Supported by his mighty hand,
No room is left for them to fear
Dangers or want, by sea or land,
For he their guardian's always near.
- 3 The fleeting, stormy winds he grasps;
No single breeze eludes his hold:
The waters in his hand he clasps;
And every sand they wash is told.
- 4 His portion he will ever keep
From Satan's power and raging hell;
On shore, and on the boundless deep,
With righteous souls it shall be well.

Joyce, 46.

PSALM XLII.

Trusting in God.

AS the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.

2 My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?

3 My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?

4 When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me: for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept holiday.

5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him for the help of his countenance.

6 O my God, my soul is cast down within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from the hill of Misar.

7 Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts; all thy waves and thy billows are gone over me.

8 Yet the Lord will command his lovingkindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life.

9 I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

10 As with a sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me; while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God?

11 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art most mighty and merciful, and thy mercy is over all thy works. We appear before thee to present our thanksgivings for the great deliverance thou hast wrought for us. If thou hadst dealt with us according to our deserts, thou wouldst have made the sea our grave, and have sent our souls to the lowest hell. Glory to thy gracious name, that thou hast extended toward us the arm of thy mercy, and not the hand of thy vengeance.

O Lord, we have seen thy wonders in the deep; and thou hast manifested the greatness of thy power in raising the storm, and then in commanding the raging tempest to be still. We thank our God and Father for preserving our lives, our ship, and our property. Thou hast not dealt with us according to our sins: neither hast thou rewarded us according to our iniquities. From the awful deeps, O Lord, we cried unto thee, and thou didst deliver us out of our distress. Thou didst send forth thy commandment, and the stormy wind was turned into a calm. Holy Spirit, enable us to praise our protecting and delivering God for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to us, the children of men. Let our preserved lives be ever devoted to thee, O Jesus, who hast saved us from impending danger, and who laidest down thy life to save us from the miseries of hell. May the holiness of our future lives testify the unfeigned gratitude of our souls. O Lord, be to us the God of our salvation.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

On Reaching a Foreign Port.

SAFE MOORED.

Picty. Worcester. Oxford.

- 1 NO more the sea of life, no more
In angry waves can rise,
To dash against the peaceful shore,
Where now the vessel lies.
- 2 No more opposing winds can blow
On weary scamen there;
No swelling billows overflow
Which overwhelmed them here.
- 3 No more temptation, fear, and guilt,
Disease and pain no more;
Which, during all the voyage they felt,
Are known upon that shore.
- 4 No more an anchor now they need,
For hope to realize;
A helm to steer, or sails to speed,
Now they have gained the prize.
- 5 No more can rocks, or shoals, or foes,
Their perfect peace annoy;
For there is nothing to oppose,
Where all is perfect joy.

Joyce, 92.

1 PETER I.

Strangers on Earth.

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,

2 Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you,

5 Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations:

7 That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:

8 Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

10 Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into.

13 Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ;

14 As obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation;

16 Because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy.

17 And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear:

18 Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers;

19 But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot:

20 Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you,

21 Who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

22 Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently:

23 Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

24 For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away:

25 But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.

PRAYER.

O THOU God of creation, of providence, and of redemption, we would now lift up our eyes unto thee, from whence our help has come. On leaving our native shores, we cried unto thee; we committed ourselves, our property, and our ship to the care of thy special providence; we supplicated thy protection from the dangers of the deep. Thou hast heard our prayer, and, through Jesus Christ thou hast mercifully answered our supplications. Thou hast brought us in safety to this distant portion of the globe. Thou hast covered us with the canopy of thy power, thou hast hid us in the hollow of thine hand; for thy mercy endureth for ever.

While we remain in this foreign port, suffer us not to be corrupted by the sinful manners of those around us. May we mourn over prevailing depravity, and long for the day when the inhabitants of all nations shall be sprinkled with the blood of Jesus, and sanctified by his spirit. Preserve us from every sin, and from every excess, which may bring a reproach on our country, or the religion of Christ, whose name we bear.

While lading our vessels with the commodities of this distant land, O make us concerned to have our souls enriched with the treasures of grace. May our conversation, our thoughts, and our affections, be in heaven. By prayer may we trade with that blessed land, and thus receive celestial blessings as our imperishable inheritance.

We humbly seek the answer of our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Homeward bound.

THE DESIRED HAVEN.

Cartide New. Annandale. Haarlem. Germany. P. M.

1 WHEN shall I be called to glory,
To behold my Saviour's face;
To declare the blissful story,
Of the freeness of his grace;
And with holy exultation
(Novor more to feel dismay)
To begin the long relation
Of his mercies by the way?

2 Mercies now forgot, recounting,
Miseries past, to come no more,
Streams exchanged for the fountain,
Toils at sea for joys on shore;
Scenes of wondrous love unfolding
To my unmolested soul;
Ever praising, while beholding
The contrivance of the whole?

Jocm, 87.

NUMBERS XX.

Journeys of Israel.

THEN came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh; and Miriam died there, and was buried there.

2 And there was no water for the congregation: and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died when our brethren died before the LORD!

4 And why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.

APPENDIX.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they fell upon their faces: and the glory of the Lord appeared unto them.

7 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

8 Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou, and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

9 And Moses took the rod from before the Lord, as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ye believed me not, to sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.

13 This is the water of Meribah: because the children of Israel strove with the Lord, and he was sanctified in them.

14 And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, Thus saith thy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travel that hath befallen us:

15 How our fathers went down into Egypt, and we have dwelt in Egypt a long time; and the Egyptians vexed us, and our fathers:

16 And when we cried unto the Lord, he heard our voice, and sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and, behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border:

17 Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells: we will go by the king's high way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

19 And the children of Israel said unto him, We will go by the highway: and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, then I will pay for it: I will only, without doing anything else, go through on my feet.

20 And he said, Thou shalt not go through. And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.

21 Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel turned away from him.

22 And the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from Kadesh, and came unto mount Hor.

23 And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying, 24 Aaron shall be gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ye rebelled against my word at the water of Meribah.

25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor:

26 And strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the Lord commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the omnipresent Jehovah. Thou who art the God of our native land, art God of the whole earth, and thou art equally present in all places of thy vast dominions. The sea is thine, for thou hast made it, and thy hands have formed the dry land. Thy glory shines in the sparkling stars; thy glory is manifested by lofty mountains and extended plains; and thy glory is displayed by the vast ocean, by powerful winds, and by raging waves. During our voyage homeward, may our eyes be opened to see thy wonders in the deep: yea, to see thy wisdom, thy goodness, and thy power.

Bless the country we are now leaving. May its inhabitants soon enjoy the same privileges, both of a civil and religious nature, by which our native land is so remarkably distinguished.

Doubtless many have suffered the calamity of shipwreck since we left our native shores. But thou, in thy great mercy, hast spread over us the shield of thy gracious protection, and hast suffered no real evil to befall us. For this great blessing we present the unfeigned thanksgiving of our hearts. Many have lost their lives, and met with a watery grave, since we left the land of our fathers. In thy gracious sovereignty we are the living monuments of thy mercy. O may we be the living to praise thee! Suffer us not to be unthankful, or to be forgetful of thy benefits,—the undeserved instances of thy goodness. Holy Spirit, mercifully teach us by thy grace, "To praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to us the children of men." We have been frequently in danger, in great danger. Lord, we praise thee and bless thee, that thou hast been to us a very present help in time of trouble. In all the perils with which we have been surrounded, we have had abundant reason to lift up the voice of thanksgiving and praise, and to exclaim in the language of inspiration, "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge! Selah."

We have reason to be humbled in thy presence, and with feelings of unfeigned penitence to acknowledge our sinfulness and unworthiness. While enjoying fair weather and the propitious breezes of the sky, we were exceedingly deficient in our feelings of thankfulness and in our expressions of praise. In a great measure we were unmindful of thee our heavenly Father, who didst watch over us with such tenderness and care. After working out for us great deliverances, when the deep threatened to swallow us up alive, our hearts have not been sufficiently impressed with the loving-kindness of our God. Lord, forgive us for Jesus' sake, and lay not this sin to our charge! We look to thee for pardon through our dear Redeemer's blood.

While we are proceeding homeward in our course, O may we be advancing heavenward in our affections, our wishes, and our prayers. Grant, O Lord, that we may be restored in safety to the land of our fathers. O let not our pleasing hopes be frustrated! Suffer no storm or shipwreck to blast our expectations. Animate us, O Lord, with the hopes of heaven, and may all our hopes be placed on Jesus the sure foundation; then no storm, no calamity, no enemy, shall ever be able to destroy our confidence.

Preserve the health of our commander and our crew; and mercifully keep far from us the breath of pestilence.

Let our feeble prayers be answered, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

On Reaching Home.

SAILING INTO PORT.

Carri's Lane. Kerroell. George's. Michael's. c. n.

- 1 THE chosen vessels of the King
Will reach the heavenly shore ;
To him a freight of glory bring,
In his appointed hour.
- 2 But as the sea of life they cross,
By falling in the hand
Of enemies, some suffer loss,
Though after 'scapo to land.
- 3 The Spirit's graces fill their sails,
While sovereign wisdom steers ;
So, wafted by auspicious gales,
Each in the port appears

Joyce, 90.

JOSHUA III.

Israel at Jordan.

AND Joshua rose early in the morning ; and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.

2 And it came to pass after three days, that the officers went through the host ;

3 And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.

4 Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure : come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go : for ye have not passed this way heretofore.

5 And Joshua said unto the people, Sanctify yourselves : for to morrow the Lord will do wonders among you.

6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

7 And the Lord said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.

8 And thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ye shall stand still in Jordan.

9 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God.

10 And Joshua said, Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12 Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above : and they shall stand upon an heap.

14 And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people ;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,)

16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city of Adam, that is beside Zaretan : and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off : and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

PRAYER.

WE appear before thee, most merciful and gracious Lord God, to present the tribute of our thankfulness and praise, for restoring us once more to our native, our beloved land. O come, let us give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good ; for his mercy endureth for ever. Thou art great, and greatly to be feared ; and may we, whom thou hast delivered from the merciless rage of the sea, be enabled to glorify thy great name. If thou hadst dealt with us as we deserved, thou wouldst have left us to perish in the great deep ! Thou hast preserved us from the dangers of one sea, O preserve us from the awful and overwhelming dangers of the sea of Divine wrath ! O enable us without delay to flee to Jesus as the only refuge ; then shall we indeed find him an effectual refuge from the winds, and a covert from the tempest of Divine wrath.

Lord, we thank thee that thou hast been more gracious to us than our fears. On leaving the land of our birth, painful apprehensions rose in our bosoms that we might no more see our dear and beloved relatives and friends ; that we should no more see the land of our nativity ; and that we should no more hear the voice of our dear minister, who prayed for us with such fervour and affection when we last listened to his voice. Most merciful God and Father in Christ, we praise thy great and gracious name that all our fears have been disappointed, and that our prayers to be again permitted to see our country and friends thou hast most graciously answered. Lord, what shall we, what can we render unto thee for all thy mercies ! O teach us to say in the language of the Psalmist, in the exercise of faith, and under the influence of holy devotion, " O Lord, truly we are thy servants. We will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord. We will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. We will pay our vows unto the Lord now, in the presence of all his people." In a remarkable degree, and in numerous instances, we have enjoyed distinguished marks of thy providential interposition, protection, and care. God of salvation, in addition to the blessings of thy providence, bestow upon us the blessings of thy grace. Give us a title to the mansions of the blessed. When the earthly house of this tabernacle is dissolved, may we enter and inhabit the building of God, eternal in the heavens !

We thank God that our lives have not been taken away by the diseases peculiar to foreign lands. We praise thee, not only for the preservation of life, but also for the preservation of property. At the close of the voyage of life, may our souls be safe. Now we have reached our home, may we hear the voice of our earthly employers saying to us, " Well done, good and faithful servants." But at the close of the voyage of life, may we hear our blessed Saviour saying to us, " Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord." Graciously hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

For Rulers.

MAGISTRATES AND RULERS.

Bedford. Irish.

c. x.

- 1 ETERNAL Sovereign of the sky,
And Lord of all below,
We mortals to thy majesty
Our first obedience owe.
- 2 Our souls adore thy throne supreme,
And bless thy providence,
For magistrates of meaner name,
Our glory and defence.
- 3 Kingdoms on firm foundations stand,
Whilo virtue finds reward;
And sinners perish from the land,
By justico and the sword.

WATTS, 149, D. 11.

PROVERBS VIII.

Wisdom.

DOTh not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice?

2 She standeth in the top of high places, by the way in the places of the paths.

3 She crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the coming in at the doors.

4 Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man.

5 O ye simple, understand wisdom: and, ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart.

6 Hear; for I will speak of excellent things; and the opening of my lips shall be right things.

7 For my mouth shall speak truth; and wickedness is an abomination to my lips.

8 All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing froward or perverse in them.

9 They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.

10 Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold.

11 For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.

12 I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions.

13 The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way, and the froward mouth, do I hate.

14 Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom: I am understanding; I have strength.

15 By me kings reign, and princes decree justice.

16 By me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth.

17 I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me.

18 Riches and honour are with me; yea, durable riches and righteousness.

19 My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver.

20 I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment:

21 That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Lord God, we are unworthy and unfit to approach thy throne of grace. We praise thy great and glorious name that we are welcome to draw near to thy mercy-sent, through the merits of our Divine Intercessor, Jesus Christ, thy Son and our Saviour. Holy Spirit, inspire us with godly repentance and lively faith, then, relying on the atonement of Jesus, we shall present our supplications with sincerity and with acceptance.

Lord, we acknowledge and adore thee as the universal Potentate. O enable us to rejoice in thee as the author of all things, and as the end of all things! Great Redeemer, teach us by thy Spirit to rejoice in thee as the King of kings, as the Ruler of the universe, and as the King of Zion, thy Church; for the salvation of which thou didst shed thy blood, thou didst lay down thy life.

Exalted Saviour, we adore thee, and would rejoice in thee as having all kings and rulers under thine immediate control. None can rule without thy permission. And all are accountable to thee for the manner in which they fulfil the functions, and discharge the responsible duties of their important offices. All those virtues and graces which qualify rulers and magistrates for adorning their high and influential calling, and for making them blessings to men, come from thee. "It is by thee kings reign, and princes decree justice. By thee princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth."

We would confess before thee our sinfulness and the apostasy of our race, which have introduced into our world anarchy, confusion, rebellion, and misery. When we came from the pure hand of thine omnipotence, we were holy and loving as thyself. Had our innocence remained, we should never have known those vile, and restless, and dangerous passions which are the disgrace and the curse of our world, and which render indispensable, for our security and peace, the existence of rulers commissioned by thyself to act as in thy place. We thank our God and Saviour for this Divine institution, and for all the benefits, social, civil, political, and religious, we enjoy under its salutary influence.

We would now offer up our earnest and humble supplications for all our rulers, whether the sovereign as supreme, or judges, legislators, and magistrates as subordinate. Blessed Jesus, the King and Head of the Church, thou who didst inspire prophets and apostles with every needful grace, mercifully bestow on all our rulers those graces of wisdom, and righteousness, and forbearance, and patience, and mercy, without which they cannot rule for thy glory, for the welfare of society, and for the interests of thy Church. May it be their glory and delight to deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and them who have no helper. Mercifully confer on them the spirit of wisdom and understanding. Give them the spirit of counsel and might. O make them of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord. Let them not be deceived by false appearances or by hypocritical pretensions; and thus may they be prevented from judging after the sight of their eyes, or from judging after the hearing of their ears: but with righteousness may they judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth.

Make our rulers a terror to evil-doers, and a praise to them who do well. May our rulers not only be eminent for human virtues and attainments, but may they be distinguished for heavenly grace. May the prosperity of Zion be ever near and ever dear to the hearts of all our rulers.

Lord, enable us who are under authority to submit ourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake; whether to the king as supreme, or unto governors as unto them that are sent by him.

God of salvation, mercifully hear and answer these our supplications, for the sake of Jesus, our Saviour and King. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we would now ascribe the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

Death of a Sovereign

DEATH AND THE GRAVE.

Old Hundredth. Lutheran.

- 1 SOVEREIGN of life, before thine eye,
Lo, mortal men by thousands die!
One glance from thee at once brings down
The proudest brow that wears a crown.
- 2 The friendly hand, no more shall greet
Accents familiar once, and sweet:
No more the well-known features trace,
No more renew the fond embrace.
- 3 Yet if my Father's faithful hand
Conduct me thro' this gloomy land,
My soul with pleasure shall obey,
And follow where he leads the way.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 186, pt. 1.

I KINGS II.

David's last Charge to Solomon.

NOW the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying,

2 I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man;

8 And keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself:

4 That the Lord may continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that eat at thy table: for so they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

10 So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David.

11 And the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

PRAYER.

IN the name of our great High Priest, who was dead, but is alive again, we approach thy throne, O Lord our God. The breath of earthly kings is in their nostrils, and wherein are they to be accounted of? Thou art the living God, and from everlasting to everlasting thou art God. Thou art the God of our salvation, in whom we are commanded to place all our trust and confidence, and not to trust even in the best of earthly princes, nor in the most distinguished of the sons of men, in whom there is no help. O how feeble and insignificant are earthly princes, of the greatest excellence and of the greatest power, when compared with thee, the Almighty Redeemer, who hast on thy vesture and on thy thigh the name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords! Thou art the Almighty Ruler, infinitely independent of all beings, in thy life, blessedness, and glory. As for earthly princes and kings, they are as grass, and the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth and the flower fadeth, but thy word, O King of kings, shall stand for ever.

We adore thee in thy Divine, wise, absolute, and irresistible sovereignty. The life of all living creatures, from the insect to the proud monarch, depends equally on thee. The mightiest of kings is as unable as the worm to resist thy power, or to evade the stroke of death when thou dost send forth thy command. Inhabiting his fortified palace, surrounded by soldiers, loyal, powerful, and brave, he is as weak and defenceless as the humble peasant inhabiting his lowly, secluded dwelling. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." May it be our happiness, privilege, and glory, to have the God of Jacob for our help, and to have our hope in the Lord our God.

In thy sovereignty, O Lord, thou hast sent the messenger of death into the palace of our king. Thou didst put the summons of death into his bosom. Thou hast taken from him his mortal life. Thou hast taken the sceptre from his hand. Thou hast removed the crown from his head. Thou hast laid his glory in the dust. Thou hast exchanged his throne for a coffin, his imperial robes for grave-clothes, and his royal residence for a grave! The splendour of royalty which surrounded him is extinguished for ever, and he is now enveloped with the darkness of the tomb. Thou didst invest him with sovereignty and power. By thy providence he was placed in circumstances of the most solemn responsibility. He has now appeared before thee, the universal, the wise, and the righteous Judge, to answer for his kingly acts, for the deeds he has done, whether they have been good or bad. He has appeared before thy tribunal, from which there is no appeal!

Lord, impress most deeply and seriously the minds of his surviving subjects, his surviving royal relatives, his surviving ministers and counsellors, but especially his successor, who now fills the throne he has left, with the importance of those solemn realities. O enable them by thy Spirit daily to remember the certainty of their own departure from time to eternity! Teach them, O teach them, the infinite importance of seeking while the day of mercy lasts an interest in Christ and a title to heaven! Let the graces of the Spirit be more precious in their estimation than the most splendid titles or costly jewels. Incline their hearts to seek an alliance with Christ and his redeemed family, which is infinitely more honourable and blessed than to claim kindred with the most distinguished and powerful of earthly monarchs. Teach them, O teach them the vanity, the utter vanity of all earthly grandeur, and greatness, and power, when compared with Divine grace, and an interest in the atonement of Jesus, which alone can secure a title to the heavenly mansions!

Graciously sanctify to the surviving members of the royal family and household the bodily sufferings of our late sovereign, which preceded and effected his dissolution. May they see and feel the importance of seeking and obtaining, in the period of health, that grace which alone prepares for the afflictions of the body in the dying hour; and which alone fits the soul, at the death of the body, for appearing before the presence of the eternal Majesty of the heavens, and for becoming a resident of the heavenly city.

Mercifully sanctify all the national mercies and national judgments of which our nation has been the subject during the reign of our late sovereign. May our national sins be forgiven, and remembered no more.

Teach us to rejoice that, though our late sovereign is numbered with the dead, Jesus the King of Zion lives, and reigns for ever blest. Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, be ascribed glory, honour, dominion, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the communion of the Holy Spirit, be with us all. Amen.

Accession of a Sovereign to the Throne.

THE SPIRITUAL CORONATION.

Mica's Lament. Coronation. Gabriel New.

1 ALL hail the pow'r of Jesu's name!

Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown him Lord of all.

2 [Crown him, ye martyrs of our God,
Who from his altar call:
Extol the stem of Jesse's rod,
And crown him Lord of all.]

3 Ye Gentile sinners, ne'er forget
The wormwood and the gall;
Go—spread your trophies at his feet,
And crown him Lord of all.

c. n.

ANONYMOUS.

I KINGS I.

The Coronation of Solomon.

AND king David said, Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride upon mine own mule, and bring him down to Gihon:

34 And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel: and blow ye with the trumpet, and say, God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and sit upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead: and I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, Amen: the Lord God of my lord the king say so too.

37 As the Lord hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.

38 So Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took an horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; and all the people said, God save king Solomon.

PRAYER.

SOVEREIGN of the universe, and God of salvation, we thy creatures, dependents, subjects, and children, draw near to thy throne of grace, in the name of thy well-beloved Son, our Surety and Saviour. We adore thee in all the attributes of thy nature, which we are permitted to see through the blessed medium of the righteousness of Christ. O teach us to rejoice that all thine attributes are glorified in Christ! Give us thy holy Spirit, that we may look with faith on the righteousness, atonement, and intercession of Jesus, and see the blessed harmony of thy Divine perfections: "Mercy and truth meeting together, and righteousness and peace embracing each other."

We adore thee in thy sovereignty as displayed in removing by death our late king, and in raising up a successor to fill his throne. All thrones, sceptres, and kingdoms, are at thy disposal, and at thy disposal alone. Death is thy messenger. Thou sendest him to the palaces of princes to summon their appearance before thy tribunal. We praise thee that we are not visited with the great national calamity of a disputed succession. In past generations our country was visited with this judgment. Accept mercifully our individual and our national thanksgivings, that our sovereign has been led peacefully to the throne of his ancestors, without the revolting calamity of the shedding of human blood. As a nation, thou hast not dealt with us as our iniquities deserved. In the midst of deserved wrath thou hast remembered us with undeserved mercy. Teach us to praise thee for thy goodness, and for thy wonderful works to us the children of men. Incline our hearts to exalt thee in the congregation of the people, and to praise thee in the assembly of the elders.

It is our duty and our privilege to present our supplications before thy mercy-seat in behalf of him whom thou hast elevated to an earthly throne. Thou hast placed him in a sphere the most important, and in a station the most sacred, difficult, influential, and responsible. To a pinnacle of regal eminence thou hast exalted him,—surrounded by difficulties, temptations, and snares. When our sovereign thinks on the duties which he is required to discharge, the laws he is required to administer, and of the interests of the numerous subjects committed to his care, he has reason to exclaim in the language of the inspired Apostle of the Gentiles, "Who is sufficient for these things?" O lead him by thy good Spirit to say and to believe and feel what he utters, "My sufficiency is of God." May he hear the voice of Jesus, his King and Saviour, thus addressing him in language of encouragement, "My grace is sufficient for thee, and my strength shall be made perfect in weakness."

Most mercifully endue our king with every grace. It is by thy Spirit alone kings can be qualified to reign, and thus become blessings to their subjects, and nursing-fathers to thy Church. We earnestly pray for the honour of thy name, for the prosperity of Zion, and for the welfare of this kingdom, that our beloved king may be made in deed and in truth, the subject of Divine grace. May the graces which enriched David, the man according to God's own heart, and which adorned Solomon, the wisest of kings, be the rich treasure of his soul, and the bright ornament of his reign. Give unto our king thy judgments, and let them be the guiding maxims of his government. Give unto the king thy righteousness, then his reign will resemble the genial beams of the sun, and the influence of the dew on the tender herb. Give him thy Spirit, that he may be enabled to judge the poor of thy people, and to save the children of the needy. Make him the father of his people. May not only their temporal interests, but more especially their spiritual welfare be near his heart. Then his benign influence shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, and like showers that water the earth. Let the righteous increase in his days, and his people be blessed with abundance of peace. Let the crown flourish upon his head, associated with those graces of the Spirit which are more precious than the costliest jewels.

Ever may he be surrounded by counsellors wise, patriotic, and pious; men loving righteousness and hating covetousness. May he always live in the loyal affections of his people. May his throne be held up and continue secure by means of the earnest and continued prayers of his believing subjects. Like the throne of Jesus, may justice and judgment be the habitation of his throne. May mercy and truth go before his face. May his reign be long, prosperous, and blessed. In his day may Zion prosper more than it has prospered under any preceding reign. Make him a blessed example, to all surrounding kings, of every grace, and of wise and merciful government. And make his kingdom the most prosperous, and holy, and united, upon the face of the earth. May our king ever love, adore, and serve Jesus, the King of kings, pay his homage at Immanuel's feet, and crown him Lord of all!

Mercifully hear our prayers, for our Redeemer's sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all. Amen.

Birth of a Firstborn Prince.

COVENANT OF GRACE UNCHANGEABLE.

Devises. Miles's Lane.

C. M.

- 1 YET (saith the Lord) if David's race,
The children of my Son,
Should break my laws, abuse my grace,
And tempt mine anger down;
2 Their sins I'll visit with the rod,
And make their folly smart;
But I'll not cease to be their God,
Nor from my truth depart.
3 My covenant I will not revoke,
But keep my grace in mind;
And what eternal love hath spoke
Eternal truth shall bind.

WATTS, Ps. 89, p. 7.

2 KINGS XXII.

Josiah.

JOSIAH was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of Boscath.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the way of David his father, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left.

3 And it came to pass in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, that the king sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, the son of Meshullam, the scribe, to the house of the Lord, saying,

4 Go up to Hilkiah the high priest, that he may sum the silver which is brought into the house of the Lord, which the keepers of the door have gathered of the people:

5 And let them deliver it into the hand of the doers of the work, that have the oversight of the house of the Lord: and let them give it to the doers of the work which is in the house of the Lord, to repair the breaches of the house.

6 Unto carpenters, and builders, and masons, and to buy timber and hewn stone to repair the house.

7 Howbeit there was no reckoning made with them of the money that was delivered into their hand, because they dealt faithfully.

8 And Hilkiah the high priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord. And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it.

10 And Shaphan the scribe shewed the king, saying, Hilkiah the priest hath delivered me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king.

11 And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the book of the law, that he rent his clothes.

PRAYER.

O THOU King eternal, immortal, and invisible, we bow before thy throne of grace, and would approach thy presence through that new and living way which thou in thy mercy hast opened up, namely, the atonement of thy beloved Son, our Surety and Saviour. When we remember what thou art, the self-existent Jehovah, arrayed in glorious and uncreated majesty, with what reverence we should draw near thy mercy-seat! But when we think of thee as our God and Father in Christ, we are encouraged to draw near with filial confidence and hope, believing that we shall be received with gracious and paternal acceptance.

Blessed Lord God, we desire and pray that we may be clothed with unfeigned humility and evangelical repentance. As individuals teach us to mourn over our personal sins; and as a nation, teach us to mourn over our national sins. "We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts, and from thy judgments." While we thus confess our sins, graciously enable us to mourn over our national transgressions. Give us grace as a nation to give evidence that our repentance is genuine by obeying thy precepts, observing thine ordinances, sanctifying thy Sabbath, and frequenting thy courts.

We come unto thee, our God, to present before thee our sacrifice of thanksgiving. We praise thee that thou, in thy gracious providence, hast given us a firstborn Prince, an heir-apparent to the throne of these realms. We thank thee that thou hast preserved the life of our beloved queen in the hour of fear, of danger, and of suffering. Thou hast accomplished the wishes of our king and his royal consort; thou hast realized a nation's hopes; and thou hast answered a nation's prayers. For those smiles of providence we present the sacrifices of thanksgiving and of praise.

May the recovery of our beloved queen be soon completed. And may her life and health be preserved, that she may be fitted to watch over the interests of the royal child, to teach him lessons of wisdom, to enrich his mind with useful knowledge, to direct his youthful mind to Jesus, and to assist him in seeking and cultivating those virtues and graces which shall qualify him, by thy Spirit, for reigning in righteousness over a loyal and devoted people, and for becoming a blessing to his future subjects, and especially to the Church of Christ.

May the royal parents of the prince be instructed by the Divine Spirit to commit their child to the love, and care, and guidance of Jesus, the Prince of life, and the Prince of the kings of the earth. By faith and earnest prayer, may they surrender the child to the keeping of Christ's everlasting arms, and lay him in Christ's loving bosom.

King of kings, most mercifully preserve the life of the prince. Defend him graciously from the fatal influence of those maladies from which no children are exempted, and by which myriads are removed to an untimely grave.

At an early period of his life may he furnish, like Josiah of old, symptoms of genuine wisdom, and of unfeigned piety. Soon may the Spirit of grace persuade and enable him to dedicate himself to Jesus, and to receive Jesus as his Surety, his Saviour, and his King. Like Josiah, may he live to show unfeigned love to thy Word, and a most earnest desire to walk in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

Numerous are the wiles, snares, and temptations which have endangered the souls of princes in all ages. May this firstborn prince be peculiarly preserved from every temptation; and in due time, may he be arrayed in the whole armour of God, and thus be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. May he resemble David in devotion, Solomon in wisdom, and Jehoshaphat in concern for the intellectual, moral, and spiritual improvement of those over whom he may be called by thy providence to reign.

Let the event of the birth of our prince and heir-apparent to the throne of his ancestors, remind us of the birth of Jesus, the Son of God, and the Saviour of men. O enable us with joy and thankfulness to remember our Saviour's birth, on which depended a world's salvation. Teach us with holy thankfulness to sing, "Unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given. The government is upon his shoulders, and his name is Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, and the Prince of Peace."

Most mercifully hear our supplications, and accept our thanksgivings, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, be ascribed the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen

Colleges of the Prophets, and Sabbath-schools.

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Arabia. Warwick.

c. x.

- 1 ARISE, O King of grace, arise,
And enter to thy rest;
Lo! thy church waits with longing eyes,
Thus to be owned and blest.
- 2 Enter with all thy glorious train,
Thy Spirit and thy word;
All that the ark did once contain
Could no such grace afford.
- 3 Here, mighty God, accept our vows,
Here let thy praise be spread;
Bless the provisions of thy house,
And fill thy poor with bread.

WARR, Ps. 132.

PSALM CXXXII.

Ark and Priests of God.

LORD, remember David, and all his afflictions:

2 How he swore unto the Lord, and vowed unto the mighty God of Jacob;

3 Surely I will not come into the tabernacle of my house, nor go up into my bed;

4 I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids,

5 Until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

6 Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah: we found it in the fields of the wood.

7 We will go into his tabernacles: we will worship at his footstool.

8 Arise, O Lord, into thy rest; thou, and the ark of thy strength.

9 Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy saints shout for joy.

10 For thy servant David's sake turn not away the face of thine anointed.

11 The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne.

12 If thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore.

13 For the Lord hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation.

14 This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell; for I have desired it.

15 I will abundantly bless her provision: I will satisfy her poor with bread.

PRAYER.

IN the name of Jesus, O God of salvation, we approach thy presence and adore thy name. Thou sittest in sovereign majesty between the cherubim in the heaven of heavens. Thou art infinitely worthy to receive glory, and honour, and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

Under a deep and penitential sense of our sinfulness, we desire to approach the mercy-seat of our God. Desiring to loath our sins, and to mourn over our sinfulness, we would pray in the words of inspiration: "Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts; in the hidden part make us to know wisdom. Purge us with hyssop, and we shall be clean; wash us, and we shall be whiter than snow." May Christ be made of God unto us sanctification. May we be forever delivered from sin's guilt by the righteousness of the Lamb of God imputed to us. And may we be delivered from the pollution and the power of sin, by the influences of Christ's Spirit applied to us; then we shall be comely, O Jesus, by thy comeliness put upon us.

Lord Jesus, we adore thee as the King, the Head, and the Saviour of the Church of God. Glory to thy name, that as early as the days of Adam, thou didst plant and establish thy Church on earth. Glory to God in the highest, that throughout all ages from that period to the present thy Church has been preserved, and that no weapon formed against Zion has been permitted to prosper.

We thank our God for all the ordinances which have been wisely and mercifully instituted for Divine worship, and for the edification and consolation of the Church. Praise to God for the appointment of the Gospel-ministry. And we thank thee for those colleges of the prophets, Sabbath-schools, and pious Christian families, which are appointed and honoured by thyself, for the purpose of furnishing thy Church with heralds of salvation, who are to proclaim and make known the unsearchable riches of Christ. We rejoice, O Jesus, in the connection betwixt thy glorious ascension and thy providing the Church with ministers and office-bearers, to watch over her eternal interests, and by thy Spirit to prepare her members for entering into the heavenly mansions, and for becoming possessors of the inheritance of the saints in light. We praise thee, O God of our salvation, that when thou didst ascend on high and lead captivity captive, thou didst receive gifts for men, even for the rebellious, that the Lord our God might dwell among them. We thank thee that thou didst give "some apostles; and some prophets; and some evangelists; and some pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

Most merciful Spirit, graciously descend in thy blessed influences upon our universities, our theological institutions, and on our Sabbath-schools, from which thousands have already been introduced into the holy ministry, and who are now the living ornaments of the Gospel of Christ. May all the teachers be most eminently taught of the Holy Ghost. May the Divine Spirit, who descended and so wonderfully rested upon the Apostles, on the day of Pentecost, descend upon the tutors of our colleges, and on the teachers of our Sabbath-schools. May the love of Christ and the love of souls reign superlatively within them. And may those young men, who are destined to become the ministers of the cross, be animated with love to Christ the most ardent, and with the most fervent compassion for immortal souls. Never may they forget that the great object of a Gospel-ministry is the glory of God in calling sinners to repentance, and in bringing them from a state of spiritual death, captivity, and misery, into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

Before entering upon the glorious work of the ministry, may they be filled with the Spirit, and may their souls be richly furnished with every grace. And when they receive the sacred commission, may they be more successful than all that ever went before them in winning souls to Jesus. May they be among the number of those of whom it is said, "They that be teachers shall shine as the firmament, and they who turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

Lord, hear and answer these our supplications, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, be ascribed the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

Millennium.

CHRIST'S UNIVERSAL REIGN OF PEACE.

Arundel. Carr's Lane. Oulands.

c. n.

- 1 BEHOOLD! the mountain of the Lord
In latter days shall rise
On mountain-tops above the hills,
And draw the wond'ring eyes.
- 2 To this the joyful nations round,
All tribes and tongues shall flow;
Up to the hill of God, they 'll say,
And to his house we 'll go.
- 3 The beam that shines from Sion hill
Shall lighten ev'ry land;
The King who reigns in Salem's towers,
Shall all the world command.

FLETCHER'S COLLECTION, 100, pt. 11.

ISAIAH XI.

Millennial Blessedness.

AND there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse,
and a Branch shall grow out of his roots:

2 And the spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and
might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD;

3 And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the LORD: and he shall not judge after the sight, of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears:

4 But with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked.

5 And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.

6 The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.

7 And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

8 And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice'
den.

9 They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain:
for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.

10 And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious.

11 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the LORD shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left; from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Patros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea.

12 And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four-corners of the earth.

13 The envy also of Ephraim shall depart, and the adversaries of Judah shall be cut off: Ephraim shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
ONE GOD, graciously look down upon us with acceptance while we approach the throne of grace in the name of our Divine Mediator, the Lord Jesus Christ. May we be filled with the Holy Spirit, as we now draw near to present the supplications of our heart before the Father of mercies in behalf of Zion, and its sacred, sublime, and eternal interests.

Lord, we pray agreeably to thy command, and in accordance with the promises of thy truth, that "the kingdoms of this world may soon become the kingdom of our God; and of his Christ." Lord, we believe that this shall be the case. O hasten it in thy due time, that the nations of the earth may be filled with joy; and unite with the angels of heaven, and the spirits of just men made perfect, in loud hallelujahs of praise to the honour of the God of salvation.

We thank thee for the promise that, in Abraham's seed, the promised Messiah, "all the nations of the earth shall be blessed." O Lord, we thank thee that many nations have already been blessed in Jesus and his Gospel, and that for many ages and generations: but numerous nations have not yet been blessed in him, nor have yet called him blessed. O Hearer of prayer, to whom all flesh should come, and to whom all flesh shall come, we lay this promise before thee.
We thank thee for the degree in which it has been accomplished; and we lift up our earnest and believing prayers that the period of its universal fulfilment may not be far distant.
Hasten, O hasten the day, the blessed, longed-for day, when all Pagan and Mahomedan nations shall be blessed in Jesus.

We rejoice in the glorious grant made from eternity by the Father in the covenant of grace to his beloved Son, that "he should give to him the heathen for his inheritance, and the utmost ends of the earth for his possession." Exalted Saviour, we pray, we plead that in thy great mercy thou mayest carry thy mediatorial conquests to every part of the earth, and assert and exercise thy mediatorial authority over all the inhabitants of the globe. We thank the Father of mercies that we present this prayer under the high sanction of thine own promise. Hast thou not said, "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth?" Lord, mercifully do as thou hast said.
Hast thou not promised, "The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents; the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts?" Lord, mercifully do as thou hast promised.

We pray for the conversion of the Jews, and for their speedy restoration to thy Church. Thou hast said, "All Israel shall be saved; and there shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant unto them when I take away their sins." We earnestly supplicate our God that the day may be near at hand when the Spirit shall descend upon the Jewish nation, when thy great and precious promises shall be fulfilled, and "then the receiving of them shall be life from the dead."

Great God of salvation, we pray that "the knowledge of the Lord may soon cover the earth, as the waters cover the sea. Then there will be nothing to hurt or to destroy in all thy holy mountain."

Most merciful God, with humility and confidence we place these our prayers before thy mercy-seat. For Jesus' sake, answer the requests of thy servants. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all. Amen.

THE END.

