

A. GUIDE
FAMILY DEVOTION;

CONTAINING

; a Portion of Scripture with Reflections, and a Prayer,

FOR

THE MORNING AND EVENING OF EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

WITH AN APPENDIX OF PRAYERS AND HYMNS
ON VARIOUS SUBJECTS.

THE LATE REV. ALEXANDER FLETCHER, D.D., OF FINSBURY CHAPEL, LONDON.

NEW EDITION,
WITH AN ORIGINAL MEMOIR OF THE AUTHOR,
BY THE REV. JOHN EADIE, D.D.

* As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—JOSHUA xxiv. 15.

* The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tabernacles of the righteous."—PSALM cxviii. 15.

* Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy name!"—JEREMIAH x. 25.

* Family Worship is so necessary to keep alive a sense of God and religion in the minds of men, that where it is neglected I do not see how any family can in reason be esteemed a family of Christians, or indeed have any religion at all."—ARCHBISHOP TILLOTSON.

LONDON:
VIRTUE & CO., CITY ROAD AND IVY LANE

•

TO THE READER.

∇ the year 1836, this Work, entitled a "GUIDE TO FAMILY DEVOTION," was first presented to the British Public. Since that period Fifty Editions, of a Thousand Copies each, have been published and purchased, besides several Editions in the United States of America. In both countries the demand and sale continue unabated. We now enter on the publication of another Edition, under the peculiar smiles of a gracious Providence.

Suffer me to refer for a little to the nature of this undertaking, which, as far as my knowledge extends, was never attempted before in any previous period of the history of the Christian Church. The appearance and success of this Work have stimulated others to make a similar effort; and may the Holy Spirit most abundantly crown all their labours with his richest blessing.

All must acknowledge that an undertaking of this description was peculiarly difficult, solemn, and important; requiring no ordinary effort, and calling for the exercise of constant dependence on the Holy Spirit, as the Spirit of grace and supplication. Divine aid was earnestly supplicated, and was most mercifully granted; and certainly the preparation of this Work, chiefly composed during the tranquillity of the morning hour, and before the usual avocations of the day, has proved to me the most agreeable exercise that has ever employed my time and thoughts during the past period of my life. Though the undertaking was formidable, yet by humble dependence on Divine Grace I was encouraged to advance, and under the smiles of Heaven to bring the Work to its completion. "What shall I render to the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord." What reason had I to say, when looking on the great object of preparing materials of devotion for the morning and evening of three hundred and sixty-five days, "Who is sufficient for these things?" I wish to be thankful; my sufficiency has been of God.

The imperfections of the Work are numerous. May God forgive them! And may the devout and pious reader treat them with gentleness and candour! Amid all the marks of human weakness, I believe there is nothing introduced at variance with sound doctrine—the pure Gospel of Jesus Christ.

This Work is not sectarian. It acknowledges no party except one; namely, the universal Church of the living God—that church which is one body, of which Christ is the Divine and exalted Head.

I am earnestly concerned that a proper use may be made of this "Guide to Family Devotion." I think that those who have not yet acquired the attainment of extemporaneous prayer in their family, are fully warranted to read the Prayers this Work contains till they acquire that gift. O let them be read deliberately, distinctly, and reverently! If I may so speak, "Reverence is the holy music of prayer." The Prayers may be useful to those who pray extempore. If they read the written prayer previous to Family Worship, it may be a mean of furnishing a variety of petitions, which they can clothe in their own language. Above all, may the use of these devotional services be accompanied with the unction from the HOLY ONE!

In the Selections of Scripture I have carefully studied to preserve the sense and scope of the inspired writers.

In former editions, the Reflections were generally those of the late Rev. John Brown, of Haddington. In this edition the whole of the Reflections are the production of my own pen, after earnest supplication to the Divine Spirit for his gracious aid.

The unexpected and extensive circulation of this Work, in Great Britain and Ireland, in our Colonies, and in the United States of America, and also the numerous instances in which God has graciously condescended to render this Work savingly useful, call forth the most unfeigned and the warmest expressions of the thankfulness of my heart.

Under God, I feel much indebted to the public generally, but more particularly to the friends in my own congregation, who have come forward so numerously and so promptly as Subscribers to this Work. On this occasion it would be an act of unkindness not to acknowledge the encouragement afforded by my respected Publisher, Mr. George Virtue, who very readily fell in with my views, and who, at great expense and some hazard, enabled me to present this legacy to my country and the Church of Christ.

I am your affectionate well-wisher in the bonds of Christian love,

ALEXANDER FLETCHER.

MEMOIR OF THE REV. ALEXANDER FLETCHER, D.D.

WITHOUT holding the theory of Mr. Buckle, that events are so concatenated that the last one of them is not only moulded but necessitated by all those which have preceded it, we feel it to be matter of daily experience that the career of a son is often dictated or coloured by the vocation and character of his father. The mind of a child is moulded by an immense variety of influences, singly, perhaps of little power, but united and in daily operation, of prodigious and incalculable force. Slowly, softly, silently, does this work go on, like the life of a plant in early spring. No eye is keen enough to detect it in actual growth, but it is not difficult to mark its progress. The elements of assimilation are ever quietly and unconsciously putting forth their strength. The daily converse suggested or shaped by the daily occupation—the allusions to it, or images so naturally taken from it—its visible aspects and impressions on parental habit and life, with the domestic atmosphere in which a boy thus moves and has his being—these all for years, and as far back as memory reaches, have been busy in giving bias to his mind and form to his prospects. Such familiar associations felt in childhood and youth often determine the young man to walk in his father's steps, to assume his business or follow his profession. There are many exceptions and not a few contrasts, originating in varieties of mental or moral temperament; but the process we have so briefly described is a familiar one in the families of merchants, physicians, and lawyers. And it often shows itself in clerical households in which, for many reasons, the fatherly precedent has special sway, and the excellent education, illustrated by a pure and benign example, fosters an early liking for the sacred office. While there are scores of instances unknown to fame, we might refer to the Sherlocks, the Stillingfleets, the Lowths, the Conybeares, and Scotts, of the English Church; and the Owens, Henrys, Halls, Claytons, Bulls, Vaughans, and Spurgeons in the ranks of Nonconformity. In Dr. Fletcher's native country there are the Forbeses, prolates, both father and son, the Cooks, Hills, Lawsons, Heughs, Browns, Gilfillans, and M'Cries, names that have passed through more than one generation. May we not add, that in the families of Christ's servants the succession of the son to the father in graces, gifts, and office, may be often taken as a proof of the Divine entail which the prophet thus describes:—"As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord; My Spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever." (Isa. lix. 21.)

The subject of the present memoir may be added to these lists. William Fletcher, his father, was born in 1727, and was baptised by the famous Boston of Ettrick. His ancestry had been shepherds for generations, either in Liddesdale, or among the vales and hills of that beautiful country—"Yarrow braes and Ettrick shaws," immortalised by Scott and Wordsworth. The parish of Ettrick had then for its minister the author of the "Fourfold State," a volume dear to so many old Scottish hearts, for its solid theology and quaint illustrations, its homely and pointed appeals, its holy unction, and the occasional grandeur of its thoughts and descriptions. The mother of William Fletcher was a Laidlaw, and a kinswoman of the mother of Hogg, "the Ettrick Shepherd." We do not know very much about the earlier years of William Fletcher, save that he was, to a great extent, self-taught; that the earnings of his youthful industry were devoted to his college education; that he was nigh the ripe age of forty when he began to study theology, and that at the time of his license to preach, he was residing in Dalkeith as a schoolmaster, with a wife and a family of five sons and a daughter. This domestic condition gives us a little glimpse into those privations which must have been borne bravely during his struggles for self-advancement. He must have been often brought face to face with wants which nothing but his own ceaseless toil could relieve, and have been drilled into the best of lessons, self-reliance under the Divine blessing. On being licensed at the termination of his theological studies, which had begun under Professor Swanston of Kinross, and been finished under Mr. Brown of Haddington, it became his duty to preach in the vacant churches of the religious body to which he belonged. And in those days of narrow, wretched roads, untraversed by stage-coaches or similar means of public conveyance, a horse was a necessary part of a young licentiate's equipage. The people of Dalkeith, in gratitude for his services as a teacher among them, made him the present of a pony to carry him through his probationary career. During a lengthened evangelistic circuit in the North his wife died, and he returned to find his house shut up, and his children dispersed among relatives and friends. In 1772, he was ordained minister of the Secession Church at Bridge of Teith, in succession to the Rev. David Telfer, who had been sent out to America as the first missionary from the Associate Synod. Bridge of Teith is a rural spot in the vale of Menteith, of great quietness and beauty, having for its western boundary these lofty mountains that guard the Trossachs and ombosom Loch Katrine. His ministry was long, unchequered, and useful. His life and doctrine were of apostolic purity and simplicity; conscientious and unbending in all his opinions, he had the spirit and nerve of a martyr. He was blessed with such an unprecedented amount of health and vigour, that his pastorate lasted forty-three years, and his life was prolonged to nearly ninety. Nay, he was never absent from his pulpit a single Sabbath on the plea of ill health, and he preached to his people on the Sabbath before his death. Amidst the excitement produced by the first American and French revolutions, he was a firm and ardent supporter of the throne and government, and published a Tractate, named "The Scripture Loyalist, containing a Vindication of Obedience to the Present British Government in Things Lawful." The title is somewhat ambiguous, and the limitation "in things lawful" is provocative of question and discussion; but like so many at the trying time, he was so terrified at French anarchy, that he recoiled into conservatism, argued that a good subject of King Jesus must be a good subject of King George; condemned all change as tending to revolution and infidelity, and held that the British constitution ought to command support from its being the palladium of liberty and Protestantism. The patriarch had a cordial dread and detestation of Popery. In 1814, on the entrance of the allied armies into Paris, he was "sore distressed" at the probable increase of the papal power which the Bourbon restoration would bring along with it. He spared not his words on this subject when occasion served, and barbed his denunciations with scripture epithets. An officer from the garrison at Stirling had happened to call at the manse, and the conversation naturally turned on the leading news and events of the day. Mr. Fletcher freely expressed his doubts and fears connected with the great European crisis, and uttered some dark suspicions about the Pope. "The Pope," said the polite military visitor, in his blandest tones, "is a fine old gentleman, and, after all, is a good sort of a man." "A good sort of man!" answered the aged pastor—"a good sort of man!" exclaimed he, in a yet higher key of amazement, "why, sir, he is the 'son of perdition!'—the 'son of perdition!' sir; first negatively, because he leads others to ruin, and—and, secondly, because he is going to ruin himself," &c. &c.

MEMOIR.

The circumstances of old Mr. Fletcher's death were peculiar. A Bible Society had been formed in Stirling, and the first committee meeting was appointed for the first Tuesday of April, 1815. The good man was anxious to be present, and had been carried in a cart to Stirling on the previous day. But fatigue and cold brought on fever, and he died on the Thursday of the same week. He was simple as a child, and very benevolent and unworldly. He used, on going out, to ask his wife the precise value of any piece of silver money above a shilling, for he would give it away to a beggar as readily as a penny. Sometimes he did not know his own children in the street—"What's your name, my pretty child?" "I'm your Euphie," was the quick and amazed reply. With great sternness of principle he had great tenderness of heart. He was made up of integrity and kindness. While, according to his views, he would have doomed heresy to death, yet he would have wept and prayed to save the heretic from his fate. Everywhere was he respected and loved; denominational jealousy was disarmed by his apostolic character. His soul was in that work which had been so greatly prolonged from year to year. The world was under his feet, and it gave him no anxieties. "Children," would he say, "all that I can leave you is a wee bit o' ground, in the new kirkyard of Doune." In short, Goldsmith's sketch in the "Deserted Village" would, with the exception of some features of locality, apply to him:—

"Near yonder copse, where once the garden spiled,
And still where many a garden flower grows wild,
Here, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose.
A man he was to all the country dear,
And passing rich, with forty pounds a year."

In the second year of his ministry, or in 1774, Mr. Fletcher married Jean Gilfillan, who was born at Stirling in 1752, and baptised by Ebenezer Erskine, one of the founders of the Secession. She had been residing for a few years in Dunblane with her brother Michael, who had been ordained over the Secession congregation there. He was a man of great singleness of heart, a divine of no common attainments especially in systematic theology, and an earnest and acceptable preacher. Mrs. Fletcher was a woman "one among a thousand." She was the mother of fourteen children, six sons and eight daughters, one of whom still remains, the last of the family. The children by both marriages were no less than twenty: and she brought up and educated such as were spared her on a very scanty income, considerably under £100 a year. So frugal had been her ways, and so motherly had she been in her forethought, that, by the time her boys were ready for college, she had saved up £200 to defray the expenses of their residence and education in a university town. Like her great prototype in the Book of Proverbs, "She sought wool and flax, and worked willingly with her hands. She laid her hands to the spindle, and her hands held the distaff." At that period, when cotton had not come into so general use, she manufactured linen thread, and "delivered it unto the merchant." Her needle, too, was not idle, for she made dresses for families in the neighbourhood, and old women were in the habit of coming down all the way from Rob Roy's country to get their red cloaks stitched by her nimble hands. "She looked well to the ways of her household, and did not eat the bread of idleness. Her children rose up and called her blessed, and the heart of her husband did safely trust in her." Among the "many daughters" who have done "virtuously" she holds a high place. The activity of Martha was united in her to the devoutness of Mary, and her death-bed was a scene of holy triumph and rapture. Mrs. Fletcher predeceased her husband by a few months; having died 12th August, 1814. Her eldest daughter was married to the Rev. John Brown of Whitburn (son of the first John Brown of Haddington), father of the greater Dr. John Brown of Edinburgh and grandfather of the author of "Horæ Subsecivæ," and of the humorous and touching popular paper, "Rab and his Friends." The fifteenth child of his father and ninth of his mother was Alexander, whose life we are about to sketch, and who, like so many good men, owed much to the tenderness, wisdom, economy; and prayers of a Christian mother.

MEMOIR.

Alexander Fletcher was born in the manse or parsonage of Bridge of Teith, on the 8th of April, 1787. He received the rudiments of his education at home and at the village school of Doune. The genial influence of his mother nursed him in early piety; and, indeed, the training of the family seems to have devolved to a great extent on her. She taught him the fear of the Lord, and gave his mind a strong bias against juvenile profanity and deceit. On a fine summer's day, as he was playing with a few fellows, one of them, on being irritated, began to swear. Alexander was shocked to tears, but he had no authority to exert against the offender. Still he tried what he could, and that sincerely. "Oh!" said he, "dinna swear! I'll gie ye a bawbee if ye dinna swear ony mair. It's a' I hae, but I'll gie it to you if ye'll no' swear." This early maternal training moulded him through life, and was, in truth, a deeper learning by far than that of the schools. When little more than a child, he was sent to Stirling to study classics, under Dr. Doig, the most learned of schoolmasters, one of the first scholars of his day, and author of the article "Philology," in the third edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." Alexander does not seem to have been precocious in any sense, but he made very gratifying progress in all his studies. The circumstances of his father's house, with so many children and provisions at a famine price, must have been very straitened; for, to adopt the standard of value and comparison so current in Scotland, and so characteristic of the principal food of children, oatmeal was selling at 3s. a peck. "The wholesome parritch, chief of Scotia's food," was the common diet in such a dwelling; but the price was about three times the average amount. It was necessary, therefore, to equip the young Fletchers for work at an unnaturally early age. Alexander, like Samiel, had been dedicated to the ministry by his pious mother; she had "lent him to the Lord," and in the strength of her vow, had so wondrously economised to secure his education. His uncle, Mr. Gilfillan, of Dunblane, no sooner heard of the intention to educate Alexander for the Church, than he took staff in hand and hastened to Bridge of Teith to remonstrate on the folly of the step. "Jean," said he, warmly, to his sister, as he sagely shook his head, "Jean, it will never do to put that boy to college, he wants parts for a minister; send him to be a manufacturer." But Mrs. Fletcher's long-cherished purpose was not to be balked by the abrupt discouragement and severe judgment of her brother, who, probably, in her opinion, was not able, as a bachelor, to judge kindly of the talents and promise of one so young as his nephew. The result was, that in 1798, Alexander was sent to Glasgow College at the unripe age of eleven years, with his brother Robert and an elder sister to take charge of them. The journey was on foot, and, according to tradition, the kind and considerate mother filled both pockets of each of the boys with a bursting load of provisions, and gave them charge that when they came to a certain well they were to fall on one of the stores, and when they arrived at a certain stream they were to rest and devour the other. Dr. Fletcher was wont to tell that the impatience of youthful voracity anticipated the stages so marked out to them, and left them hungry indeed during the last hours of their travel. How he prospered in his curriculum we do not precisely know, but he passed through it at least with credit.

The University session lasts only about six months; and, as is common in Scotland, the young student severed himself from his family and mother with bitter tears, and employed the first recess in teaching at the village of Lathones, in Fife. In this humble sphere his love to instruct the young in Sabbath classes began, as if by instinct, to display itself. Sabbath schools were but recently instituted, and not without some opposition. The student-teacher was in the habit of addressing his pupils at length, unconsciously laying the foundation of his future fame as the prince of preachers to the young. But his uncle Michael had heard of his daring innovation. A boy-preacher was, as he thought, out of all rule and precedent; and he solemnly remonstrated with his parents on the intolerable scandal and danger of their son's proceedings. After the completion of his college studies, Alexander Fletcher entered the Divinity-hall, which, under the care of Dr. Lawson, met at Selkirk. Professor Lawson was a man of primitive manners and extraordinary erudition. Gifted with a most wonderful memory, he possessed at the same time uncommon shrewdness and penetration. His profound wisdom often clothed itself in utterances so quaint and pithy as to obtain the currency of proverbs. His expositions of Scripture are characterised by their sage and suggestive lessons; and his style is remarkable for its simplicity and purity. He endeared himself to his students by his homely dignity and cordial familiarity with them. Dr. Fletcher often referred to the sessions or terms spent at Selkirk, and to the memories of a spot so rich in beautiful scenery, and so hallowed by the early associations and friendships of fellow-students whose paths lay so far apart in after-life. Money and public conveyances being scarce in those days, many of the students footed it from various parts to Selkirk; and the pedestrian pilgrimage abounded, as it was sure to do, in youthful hilarity and incident,—the topics of many a pleasant converse after their locks were silvered, and the quiet evening of life was settling down around them.

MEMOIR.

Alexander Fletcher's brother Robert was his fellow-student, and the recesses during their theological course were usually spent at Dunblane with their uncle. The young nephews were subjected to the strictest surveillance in their daily studies. Little indulgence was granted them. Every day had its task to be conscientiously done, a doctrine to be studied, or a book to be mastered, or a discourse to be sketched out. No day-dreaming was tolerated; no wandering was permitted by the green banks of the Allan, no lounging under the shadows of the Cathedral, or amidst the ruins of the grand old baronial castle of Doune. The rigid rule was further fortified from violation by the old man clothing his nephews during their working hours with huge cast-off garments of his own, the size and singularity of which would have made the students objects of universal merriment had they chosen at any time to escape from their monkish book-closets to the streets or fields. But this enforced seclusion and labour, often unwillingly submitted to at the time, was of great advantage. It gave Alexander leisure for orderly thought and mental discipline. Archbishop Leighton, "the good," had bequeathed a theological library to his episcopal city of Dunblane, and when episcopacy fell, the collection passed from dean and chapter to synodical superintendence. Its great dusty tomes afforded an inexhaustible supply for reading and examination. Dr. Fletcher often referred to this régime, and used to describe some of the amusing features of its self-defeating sternness; but always ended by extolling his venerable uncle's austere tutorship, and the lasting good which he had derived from it, especially in the sphere of systematic theology, the favourite study of the age. He learned to look at doctrine in its connection and bearings, for every truth like each star in a constellation shines and is shone upon; so that in his preaching he was enabled "rightly to divide the word of truth;" not urging—as is too often done—one truth to such an undue extreme that it bordered on error, or so isolating it as to ignore others of equal value. It must not, however, be supposed that Mr. Gilfillan was a man of a hard or saturnine nature. On the contrary, he was genial and good-hearted, ready to do any good work, and he was adored by the people of the place. During the years of dearth at the end of the last century, he generously advanced what little money he had or inherited for supplies of Indian corn, and to a great extent saved the parish from starvation. At a later period he originated a savings-bank, and so supported and encouraged the enrolment of volunteers, that very much by his exertions and addresses no less than two companies were raised and disciplined in Dunblane and neighbourhood. But he thought that firm and systematic work was the best way of curbing exuberance of spirits and checking any disposition to spend precious time in desultory reading or fruitless mental reveries. Mr. Gilfillan was himself a divine of good standing. He might have been chosen Professor of Theology; but to defeat his own election he ingenuously secured certain votes for Dr. Lawson. By request of the Synod, in 1788, he drew up a "Warning against Socinianism," in reply to Dr. McGill, of Ayr, who, in his "Practical Essay on the Death of Christ," had advanced opinions on the Redeemer's person and work wholly at variance with the doctrines of the Church of which he was a minister.

Before his theological studies were completed, there being a scanty supply of preachers, the Presbytery invited Mr. Fletcher to come forward and deliver the usual trial sermons preparatory to license. But he declined, stating, in a letter to the Court, of date 21st December, 1805, that his "reasons for declining were his extreme youth (being only about eighteen), and the little facilities he had for study, and his desire to devote some attention to the study of composition." Next year, however, his course of study having expired, he was licensed in due form, 23rd December, 1806. His first public appearance was in his uncle's pulpit; his text being Heb. ii. 3—"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" While resident with his uncle he had not been idle: his heart was already in the instruction of the young on Sabbath evenings; and twice a week he had taught a Psalmody class. The people were deeply attached to him; and on his leaving to begin his career as a preacher, they presented him with a handsome suit of clothes—an opportune and acceptable gift. As soon as he began to preach he rose into immediate popularity. His juvenile appearance (for he was only about nineteen),—his open and pleasing countenance,—his ready utterance, and manly and natural elocution,—the freshness of his thoughts, and the fervour of his appeals,—made everywhere a profound sensation. His manner, so animated and hearty, was in contrast with the more staid and sober style of the day. He was reckoned a prodigy, and ran no small danger of being caressed and spoiled. That popularity never waned in Scotland; and, at the end of half a century, crowds still flocked to hear him whom their fathers were wont to eulogise. The congregation in Dunblune, who had so long known him and known of his careful training, at once set their hearts upon him, and attempted, in January, 1807, to get him as a junior pastor and colleague to his uncle; but the old man so decidedly repulsed the movement that it fell to the ground. Three congregations in the meantime had elected him as their minister—those of Leslie, Stow, and Bridge of Teith. His father was in his 80th year, and the congregation unanimously called the son to the collegiate ministry. The competing calls, according to the custom then followed, were presented for adjudication to the Synod, and the call from Bridge of Teith was preferred. In consequence of this judgment he was ordained colleague, and successor in case of survivancy to his venerable father, on Wednesday, 16th September, 1807. The settlement was a very happy one. Father and son were united in office as well as in blood; people spoke of them as “auld Mr. Fletcher and Mr. Saunders.” The younger pastor was an exception to the proverb that “a prophet has no honour in his own country.” Free of speech, familiar, hearty, and in earnest, he was “greatly beloved.” The father would sometimes add a weighty word to the son’s sermon, if he thought that any point had been omitted or any motive not sufficiently pressed. Occasionally he would intimate a pastoral visitation by his son, and phrase it in such homely form as to announce “our Sandie will visit” the families in such a place on such a day. He is said to have shown a little jealousy on some occasions of his son’s overwhelming popularity, who, however, contrived an ingenious method of lulling it. Borrowing one of his father’s discourses, as if for the purpose of consulting it, he committed it to memory, and delivered it in such a style that the people pronounced it his best. His venerable parent was soothed and satisfied by the verdict. We have heard him tell with great glee that another worthy senior in a different part of the country, in whose congregation he had created quite a furor, thus accosted him on coming into the manse after sermon—“Eh, Mr. Saunders, ye were very sound this afternoon; but, O, man, ye were nae very deep.” Mr. Fletcher followed the bent of his nature in at once setting himself to interest and instruct the young. This love of the lambs, which had displayed itself as soon as he had got the first opportunity in the village in which he taught for a short season in Fife, and had found limited expression among the children of his uncle’s congregation in Dunblune, now revelled in its legitimate opportunities. But a stripling himself, he had still the spirit of childhood, and was not averse to mingle in its pastimes. His whole soul threw itself into efforts to benefit the young; and occasionally he offended decorous people in enacting with his scholars some historical scenes of the Old Testament. These dramas made a deep if not always a solemn impression; and tradition says that one of them—in connection with Balaam and his ass—brought upon him the threat of ecclesiastical thunder. With bands of his Sabbath scholars he often went on holidays to visit and enjoy some of the famed scenes of the country; and their eagerness and enthusiasm were only surpassed by his own. The sanctuary in which he officiated was plain to an extreme,—four bare walls, with a roof which had been originally thatched with heather, and still had a chimney in one end of it. But the landscape around has striking beauty and grandeur. The clear stream of the Teith murmurs through the green pastures and rich corn-fields; there are magnificent woods in the valley, as it stretches towards the east with the rock and fortress of Stirling in the distance: while sunset lights up the grand and rugged outlines of the Southern Grampians.

MEMOIR.

Sacramental occasions brought together, in those days, great gatherings of people to a succession of public services. In Scotland, for two centuries, week-day services had accompanied the celebration of the holy communion. The post-communion or Monday service, began at the Kirk of Shotts, and had its origin in the protracted meetings which the revival under Livingstone occasioned. The Thursday or fast-day service and the Saturday service, originated in the controversy which divided the General Assembly in 1651 on the constitution of the Scottish army; the question being whether soldiers who had not taken the covenant should be admitted into it. The protesters against the resolution to allow non-covenanted men to carry arms agitated the country; and, as they were very popular, great masses crowded around them, to whom they preached on all days. The liking had been great for such services,—especially in former days of persecution, when so many parishes were under episcopal control, and down to Mr. Fletcher’s time they were very highly appreciated. Crowds upon crowds assembled on the Sabbath; and as the places of worship could not hold a tithe of the assembly, the custom was, there and elsewhere, to have a peculiar structure, an enclosed and canopied platform, called a “tent,” erected in some adjacent field, from which a series of five or six sermons was preached in the open air, while the sacrament was being dis-in the church. Mr. Fletcher’s appearances at such times at home and in other congregations were very popular. His person and action were suited to the scene; and his musical voice easily reached a far-spread assembly. To the last he liked open-air preaching on his visits to Scotland; and, indeed, no church could contain the congregations that collected to listen to him. He often looked back with rapture to the gatherings in the field by the Teith, and close to that old double-arched bridge erected in 1535 by an official in the household of James IV. As his popularity was so rapidly extending, other churches began to covet him, and he was called by the congregation of Kincardine-on-Forth, in March, 1810. The invitation, however, was declined. Some time afterwards, in the same year, he was sent up to supply in Miles's Lane, London. His very youthful appearance is said to have at first disappointed the people, and some of them wondered at his presumption in venturing to minister to them. His first text was Rom. xvi. 24—"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all." The sermon was on his favourite theme, and his heart was in it. He took the congregation by storm as they listened, and wondered, and were impressed. The following account of Mr. Fletcher's first appearance in London is from one who gives his own impressions as a witness, and whose sound judgment is universally trusted. We refer to the Rev. Dr. Smith, of Biggar:—

MEMOIR.

"This place of worship, when I entered for the first time, was not nearly filled,—it might be a third filled. After waiting a very short time, the young minister from Scotland, of whom I had heard, ascended the pulpit. His appearance was interesting and even striking. He was in the bloom of youth, tall, and of comely proportion. After the manner of the time, he wore powder; though after his return to London he laid it aside. His manner of address struck me as much as his appearance. His voice was one of large compass, and most musical and distinct. In his discourses he was very animated, and his action now and then a little rhetorical. He had, in short, in appearance and voice and manner, all the qualities of a first-rate orator. He might have been sometimes betrayed into extravagance, but ordinarily he was simply earnest. I have a very distinct recollection of the first sermon I heard him preach, and the impression it made will never be effaced. It was from the text, 'Bring forth the best robe and put it on him.' The earnestness, the animation, the power, the eloquence, with which he expatiated upon the different topics—arrested and riveted my youthful attention as it evidently did that of the other hearers. It was every way a very striking discourse. The effect of it was that I was determined to go back again. On returning the next Sabbath to Miles's Lane, I noticed a very visible increase of the congregation, and my impressions in favour of the young minister were confirmed and deepened. Every succeeding Sabbath witnessed an increasing accession to the congregation till the chapel was completely filled, and even the passages partially occupied. This effect, however, was not produced entirely by Mr. Fletcher's preaching in Miles's Lane. There were some auxiliary influences at work.

"He had preached on several week-day evenings in Hoxton Academy Chapel, with such acceptance as attracted numbers to hear him in his own place of worship on the Sabbath day. But that which had the greatest influence in spreading his fame and swelling his congregation was his preaching on a Sabbath evening in the Tabernacle. I did not hear him myself on that occasion, but I was told that he preached to the large audience which usually assembled there a most powerful discourse from the words, "All things are yours." Such an effect, indeed, was produced, that some of the old Tabernacle people declared that they had never heard such a sermon since the days of George Whitfield. His preaching during the whole term of his appointment at Miles's Lane was fully kept up, and the attendance to the very end was limited only by the capacity of the house. I remember very distinctly the last Sabbath he preached during his probationary services. It being known that he was to return immediately to Scotland, the chapel in the afternoon was crowded to overflowing by a deeply-interested and visibly-affected audience; on the conclusion of the services, there was a rush made to the pulpit stairs of persons anxious to bid him good-bye—and press him to return—for our English friends are more demonstrative than we in Scotland are. But he, desirous of avoiding what threatened to be a scene, with remarkable agility, stepped over the pulpit side, and escaped by the back door which was under the pulpit. The thing was done so quickly that when I looked up the pulpit was empty, and he was gone."

The impression so made by Mr. Fletcher during these Sabbaths in a vacant church could only lead to one result. Soon after his return to Scotland the congregation in Miles's Lane, who had been so charmed by his preaching, invited him to be their pastor, the call being subscribed by 128 members and 297 adherents. It was laid on the table of the presbytery on the 27th of May, and in November of that year (1811) he was translated to London, being then in his twenty-fifth year. The parting with his parents and his congregation was solemn and touching: the people so clung to him that they could hardly be severed from him. To the rustic imagination in those days London was a place far away and foreign. His mother charged him never to look her in the face if he did not surmount all difficulties, and be courageous and faithful in doing the Master's work. When the Spartan matron gave her soldier-son his shield to go forth to the wars, she said to him, "Either this or upon this"—victory or death. The good old lady of Bridge of Teith unconsciously uttered a Christian translation of the heroic farewell. The people in Miles's Lane, with their pastor's sanction, sent a yearly gift of a hundred pounds as a token of respect to old Mr. Fletcher as long as he lived. The young minister made the journey to London on horseback, stopping one night at Penrith, another at Liverpool, and so onwards, occupying some four or five days on the road, often reverting in soul to the fair spots he had left behind him round the old manse of Menteith, and forecasting the difficulties and trials which should await him in the metropolis. The ordination was conducted by the nearest Scottish presbytery—that of Coldstream just over the Border; the sermon being delivered by Dr. Jack, of Manchester, and the charge given by Dr. Wagh; Messrs. Robert Fletcher of Hamilton, Belfrage of Slateford, and Lee of Horndean, also taking part in the service. The congregation at Miles's Lane at once became a scene of life and activity. It was crowded to overflowing from Sabbath to Sabbath. The young Scottish preacher was in everybody's mouth, and the sensation which he created was not inferior, for its time, to that made in our day by Mr. Spurgeon. He was much sought after to preach public sermons, and plead for charities and missions. Mrs. Winslow, who heard him in Whitefields Chapel, Lincoln's Inn, says—"Though only twenty-three, he possesses such uncommon power in directing and fixing the attention of both old and young, that I do not believe the eyes of either were off him during the whole service." He was often engaged to preach nearly every day in the week, so loath was he to say nay to the numerous applications for his assistance. His discourses were not elaborated efforts, and he rarely repeated them. He did not get up a sermon of thorough power and high finish, and carry it about with him to the various pulpits till his own interest in it was exhausted, and he had improved his leisure so as to compose another like unto it. His sermons were without great effort—all of them in intellectual character much alike—clear, vigorous, touching, and evangelical—pronounced with an undisguised Scottish accent, but delivered naturally, fervently, and with a voice of great musical sweetness and cadence. The central truths of the Gospel were his favourite themes; and a course of lectures on the Epistle to the Galatians brought throngs of eager listeners, and gave him ample and recurring opportunity of unfolding the fulness and unconditioned freeness of the Gospel of Christ. This early overwork of Mr. Fletcher in London had two results: it led some little minds to attack him, and it injured his health. Thus Mr. Jones, the editor of the New Evangelical Magazine (a man who was said not "to spare his Sandemanian bill when a young Scotchman was in the case"), taunted him with the possession of zeal without knowledge, and bade him return to Jericho, and tarry there till his beard was grown. The caustic editor, however, forgot to invite his return when his facial ornament should have attained such a length as to make it the symbol of experience and wisdom. Such a "thorn in the flesh," with other similar "pricks," kept him from being "exalted above measure" in the midst of great and growing fame. His health began to droop, and he cast a wistful eye to the quiet rural retreat which he had left at the call of duty for the fever and bustle of a London life. In a letter to his uncle (15th January, 1812) he says, "People find me out even at Homerton; and when I am most in trim for study, I am most often interrupted. It frets my spirit that I cannot get that time for study which is so absolutely necessary for my calling and comfort." The note ends with a request for a letter "in this strange land." He had not yet got to feel at home in London; and we find him writing to his father, 14th February, 1812, a letter, the postage of which is marked one shilling:—

MEMOIR.

"MY DEAR FATHER,—

"It is with greater pleasure than I can express, that from various sources I learn that you are, upon the whole, well. We are both called to endure separation from each other during our lives, which none of us ever dreamed should happen till the king of terrors should separate us by his cold arm. I assure you that nothing reconciles me to London but the will of God, and a sense of duty. I am not sure whether it is a sin or not, but I often feel warmly inclined that God would so order things in His adorable providence as to take me back with clean garments to my country friends, people, and children. I sometimes ask myself, how is it possible I should ever have come to this place? I think it is as if I had been brought by some kind of supernatural agency and influence. I am so shocked at London that I am sometimes made to say with David, 'Oh that I had the wings of a dove! then should I flee away and be at rest.' I have difficulties to encounter which would not have occurred to the most prolific imagination; yea, my very character is not out of reach of danger from the breath of calumny. My golden days are over upon earth, and I wish to look to 'a city that hath foundations.' In the meantime I find my mind much supported. I feel my courage increasing. I experience great assistance both in composing and delivering my sermons. My taste for reading is growing, and I am resolved to surmount every difficulty and attend to study. My aversion to company is great, and I hope for good. The place continues as full as ever. New difficulties and now trials suppress the natural risings of vanity. . . .

"I am, your loving son,

"A. FLETCHER."

Some impression must have gone abroad—created or deepened by those communications—that Mr. Fletcher was far from being happy in London. Such a "longing, lingering look" to the hills and vales streams and hamlets, of the far north, was, to a young man, natural; and, presuming apparently on such indications of it as these letters afford, his father's congregation, still without a second pastor, invited him back to his old position as colleague. The call, however, was not pursued. The nature and amount of Mr. Fletcher's labours will be seen in the subjoined letters of Dr. Waugh to his father and uncle, and in those days of dear postage, the young minister carried them down to Scotland himself:—

MEMOIR.

Dr. Waugh's letter to his father was as follows:—

“REV. AND DEAR SIR,—

“I feel much satisfaction in informing you that the Lord hath hitherto graciously preserved your dear son, amid his abundant and exhausting labours, and hath not merely collected around him crowded congregations, but hath, I hope in many instances, made the blessed Gospel to become the power of God unto salvation. His whole soul is in his work. Pity it is that it should be otherwise with any of us, ‘We shall have time enough,’ as good old Richard Baxter says, ‘to rest in heaven!’

“I trust you are experiencing the truth and fulfilment of the promise, Isaiah xli. 4—‘And even to your old age I am He,’ &c.; and that in the evening of your days, you find Him to be the same faithful and gracious God that ever He was. May you be enabled still more abundantly to bring forth fruit in old age—the fruit of glowing gratitude for past mercies, and of lively anticipation of the ‘exceeding weight of glory’ that awaits you in the heavenly world.

“I beg my kind regards to Mrs. Fletcher, and to all who are dear to you, and remain, with affectionate veneration of your piety and unbending rectitude, Rev. and dear Sir,

“Your faithful servant,

“Salisbury Place, Marylebone, London, July 7, 1813.

“ALEXANDER WAUGH.”

From Dr. Waugh to the Rev. Michael Gilfillan, of Dunblane, of same date—

“MY DEAR FRIEND AND BROTHER,—

“I avail myself of the opportunity of my young friend's departure, to convey to you the esteem and best wishes of my heart. During his retirement (if the restlessness of his kind and generous disposition will allow him to enjoy retirement anywhere) I hope you will take care that he ride every day, and preach only one day in seven. I have cautioned, and exhorted, and beseeched—but ‘naturam si furca expellas, tamen usque recurret.’ What a happiness to the Churches that the rapid stream like those from your Alpine Mountains runs in a channel hallowed and useful!

“Everything in the congregation is prosperous and peaceful, and the utmost harmony subsists between them and our people.

“The God of Providence has done wonders this year in awakening a spirit of liberality amongst the people of God beyond all former example. The income of the British and Foreign Bible Society has exceeded £70,000. Even the Missionary Society, the aged mother of them all, who it was feared would be reduced to the workhouse, has received double of any former years. What a responsibility attaches to those who administer such ample funds! May we have grace to be wise and faithful, and ever remember that we are accountable to a higher tribunal than public opinion. It will much gratify me to have a few lines from you when Mr. Fletcher returns. Meantime, I am, my dear Sir, very affectionately yours,

“ALEXANDER WAUGH.”

On his return to London Mr. Fletcher became as assiduous as ever, and was diligent “in season and out of season.” His love for children, which had so early shown itself as an irrepressible instinct, soon found scope for itself in his increasing congregation. His decided and continuous attention to the young was no bid for popularity in his new sphere; it was no novelty struck out on purpose to excite attention and wonder. It had been his favourite work from his twelfth year, and he had resolutely continued it in the midst of not a few challenges, and not a little hostility. Whatever ecclesiastical care had been bestowed upon youth before his time Mr. Fletcher did not disparage, but he gave such efforts a more direct aim and distinctive character. His sermons were to children; not before them, but addressed to them alone, brought face to face with the preacher, and the matter and manner were alike calculated to interest and instruct them. The Rev. Rowland Hill—no common judge of character, and a lover of all good men—got him to preach a sermon to the young in Surrey Chapel. The concourse was very large, and the preacher's powers were tested. But he triumphed, and produced an effect which at once amazed and delighted Mr. Hill. The young people listened with rapt attention, and were profoundly impressed as well as instructed. His fame spread at once as a preacher to children, and he was often asked, as a matter of course, to deliver such addresses. About this time, in the beginning of September, 1814, his mother died, and the following letter, on his hearing of the sad event, was addressed by him to one of his sisters:—

MEMOIR.

to his Sister Euphemia.

"Yesterday, being Friday, the 3rd, I received the solemn announcement, in the kind epistle you sent me, of my mother's departure to the world of spirits. Though there are many painful and affecting circumstances connected with her removal, there are also circumstances the most consolatory and cheering. Her death has been of no common kind; her life and death have accorded; her career has been virtuous, active, generous, and blessed. Such a wife has been a smile upon our worthy father, such a mother has been a smile upon us! In the noble and dignified part she has acted in her past journey, there is scarcely anything on which the mind does not rest with wonder and delight. Her memory is blessed. The recollection of her worth is like opening a box of precious ointment collected from the stores of heaven. I am overawed when I think that as to time she is no more, and that as to eternity she has reached the consummation of bliss, the perfection of being, the throne of God! She has obtained her wish, the stream is passed over, the clouds and storms of dissolving nature are infinitely distant from her celestial spirit; she is a fit companion for cherubim and seraphim, and flies through the boundless regions of the holy land with inconceivable celerity, exploring its grandeur and glory. Now the triumphal bands who meet her at heaven's gate have conducted her to the throne of the Great Eternal, where a crown is put upon her head, irradiated with the transcendent beauties of Jehovah's glory. . . . I cannot now * . . . . my sisters the loss of the best of * . . . . but God shall make me your loving guardian. I am united to you by ties closer than ever; they are sacred. Before God's throne I renew them! Remember me to my father: to him I would say, 'Does God's promise fail for ever?' No, no, it is immutable—like its immutable Author!

"I am, your loving brother,

"ALEX. FLETCHER."

He wrote also to his aged father, now toward fourscore years and ten:—

"MY DEAR FATHER,—

"September 24, 1814.

"By this time it is likely my two sisters have left their paternal roof, with the design of fulfilling a wish my mother revealed before her departure, 'that they should remain with me in the difficult and important situation in which Providence has placed me.' I wish it had been possible for you to have accompanied them, that by change of scene your mind might have in part been relieved from that gloom which now hangs around it. At first sight it seems presumption in me to suggest considerations to you, calculated to communicate consolation, and spread over your sky the cheering beams of celestial joy. You know what I am—I know what you are: your heart is enriched by that religious experience which is collected by the revolving years of a useful, pious, and long life, but seldom equalled. You have been accustomed for more than eighty years to the delightful exercise of making application to a throne of grace, where believing petitions are always welcomed—where nothing is obtained but blessings of matchless excellence. You have been honoured for forty years by the company, counsel, and affections of one of God's favourites, whose life was overspread with the fragrance of her graces, and whose memory shall be embalmed in the affectionate remembrance of her surviving and admiring relatives. The glory to which she is now elevated, the bliss she now enjoys, the exalted purposes she now serves, the intercourse with Deity to which she is now admitted, and your hopes of being a co-partner in such felicity, should certainly dispel the clouds of sorrow, and fill you with unspeakable joy. That text in the close of the prophecy of Habakkuk gave Mr. Newton much comfort: 'Although the fig-tree should not blossom,' &c. He determined never to preach on it till his wife should depart by death, if God should take her before him. She died before him; and he preached the funeral sermon on the above text. There was something peculiarly striking in the texts you preached from before and after my mother's death. I trust you will preach every Sabbath as long as strength permits. Could you write me a letter, though you should take eight days to write it, I would esteem it a personal favour.

"I am, your loving son,

"ALEX. FLETCHER."

The good old man did write the desired letter, as the following answer shows:—

Another to his Father.

"MY DEAR FATHER,—

"October 17, 1814.

"I received your kind letter with much affection, and will preserve it as a memorial of your parental esteem. The advice it contains are what I needed, and the encouragements it held forth exactly suited to my mind, in the very important and difficult circumstances in which I am placed. I do not say 'uncomfortable circumstances'—they are difficult, requiring far more wisdom, caution, and discernment than I possess, but they are connected with many comforts and soothing reflections. If we are God's faithful servants we shall never be without comfort. God is the God of all comfort, and He will take care of His own. In your mourning state you doubtless apply to those celestial sources, to those refreshing fountains, where you can drink joys near akin to the bliss of heaven. In the privations to which God has called you to submit, you have reason to sing of mercy as well as of judgment. When you reach the many mansions, heaven will not be the less delightful that you have remained some years in the wilderness behind your much-loved companion, who has got her crown before you. Remember the text she often pronounced on her dying bed: 'One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years are as one day.' I have a strong desire, if I should live behind you, and God continue his kindness, to continue to such of my sisters as choose to live together in Bridge of Teith, after you have obtained your kingdom, an annual income of £60, which, added to their own property, will render them comfortable and independent. This has been upon my mind for some time, and I could not be at rest till I should make to you the communication I have now made. My uncle has no doubt informed you about the chapel we expect to obtain: it will not be decided till Tuesday next week. Your prayers on that point are earnestly requested.

"I remain, your loving son,

"ALEX. FLETCHER."

The chapel in Miles's Lane was a structure quite as plain as that of Bridge of Teith, or Menteith as it was called. It was an old Nonconformist place of worship, built out of view for concealment in the days of persecution, and stood between two lanes with an opening into both. It had been occupied for some time by an English Presbyterian, or rather an Arian congregation. Prior to Mr. Fletcher's time two Secession ministers had preached in it. The first was Mr. Easton (afterwards of Hamilton), who was ordained in Red Cross Street, Cripplegate, where the congregation then assembled; and the second was Mr. Raë, who had been translated from St. Andrew's, and who died after a brief ministry. The congregation was all but annihilated. But in a few years, under Dr. Fletcher, it had so grown that the place was "too strait" for them, and a new and larger place of worship was erected. The foundation stone of the new erection, Albion Chapel, Moorgate Street, was laid by Dr. Waugh in November, 1815, and the church was opened in the same month of the following year, Dr. Waugh preaching in the morning, and Mr. Jay, of Bath, in the evening. It may be added that a few of the older people still clung to Miles's Lane, the very bricks of which were dear to them. The nucleus of a congregation was still preserved, and they obtained for minister the Rev. Alexander Waugh, son of Dr. Waugh, a young man of great gifts and high culture, but whose brief and promising pastorate was soon closed by death. In the new structure Dr. Fletcher's usefulness and popularity went on without abatement. He was fertile in expedients for doing good, especially among the juvenile members of his flock. He began in Albion Chapel his famous Christmas sermons to the young, and he continued them in the larger structure in Finsbury to the end of his days.

At an early period of his ministry Dr. Fletcher commenced a Sabbath school which met on the evening of the Lord's day. There had been Sunday-schools in which the young were taught to read, and religious instruction was also imparted; but Dr. Fletcher's school was formed upon the Scotch model. Dr. Smith says:—

"In London at this period children were too much overlooked by ministers in the services of the sanctuary. So much was this the case, that when Mr. Fletcher commenced preaching 'Children's Sermons,' as they were called, it was like striking a new vein in a field of minerals. He inaugurated a new branch of ministerial work. Though there were ministers who all along preached to the young, Mr. Fletcher was the head and leader of what may be called the school of children's preachers. In commencing this style of preaching he stood nearly alone. As Dr. Macfarlane in his funeral sermon truly remarked—'There had been before him no such distinct selection of pastoral labour. He had few to cheer him by example or support him by co-operation,' and I think I am entitled to say that among the numbers who followed him in the same track—and I have heard some of the best—he still, as long as he lived, continued to be what he was called by many and great authorities, the very 'Prince of Preachers to children.' He was unrivalled in this department of ministerial work. The simple fact that he fixed the attention and retained it during a whole discourse, not only of some hundreds, but, as was the case occasionally, of some thousands of children, is sufficient evidence of his great power. He exercised a kind of fascination over his youthful hearers. The secret of his power lay not only in his style of oratory—although both his voice and manner were eminently fitted to attract the young—but in the style of thought, simple yet striking, which pervaded his discourse, and especially in the heart which he threw into it. Any who will take the trouble to read his addresses to the young may judge for themselves, whether the charm all lay in the delivery or not. I can say—hearing him, as I did, when all the freshness and ardour of youth were upon him, and hearing him frequently preach to children, that I was as much arrested by the matter as by the manner. And there is one remark here which I think it is important to make, namely, that he illustrated the possibility of preaching to children without being childish. While he showed that he could sympathise with children, he never in addressing them became a mere child; never had recourse to mere infantile prattle or babyish illustrations. He was in great request accordingly on the Sabbath evenings for sermons to children, and the good which he did in this way was incalculable."

In after times, and when he had regular service in the evening instead of afternoon, he presided every Lord's Day over what he called his "Catechetical Seminary." It was a Bible class, in which he took a very special interest, and it was carried on, as the name implies, by question and answer, so as to arrest attention, and by its very form to direct as well as impart information. Young men were the objects of his ardent regard. Many had come from the country and found themselves strangers in London, away from the influences of home and parents, and exposed to many snares and temptations. It was of vast advantage to them to find in Dr. Fletcher a father, or rather an elder brother, so loving and wise, so fitted to guide them—to win their confidence and keep them in the way of purity and peace. The blessing of such a charm as that which Dr. Fletcher cast upon young lads cannot be estimated, for it has told on so many for so many years, and through them on successive generations. In his interesting communication to us Dr. Smith adds:—

"It was not, however, by mere preaching that he ministered to the young in his own congregation. This, indeed, was the least of the means he employed for that purpose. Immediately after he was settled he commenced a Sabbath school, which met on the evenings of the Sabbath. This was the first Sabbath school of the kind that I was acquainted with or heard of in London. Sunday-schools were very common, that is, schools for the purpose of teaching children to read, and in which a portion of religious instruction was given; but their character was more secular than sacred. Mr. Fletcher's school was formed after the Scotch model. The catechism taught was Brown's, and the other exercises were just like those of other Scotch schools in Scotland. I can testify to the excellence and usefulness of this institution, having been first a scholar for a short time in it, and afterwards, up to the period of my leaving for college, being a teacher. What gave to this Sabbath school its principal charm and usefulness was that Mr. Fletcher always attended himself, except when engaged in preaching, and he as seldom as possible allowed other engagements to interfere with this. He did not teach a class, but he occupied, as far as I remember, nearly half the time in examining upon some portion of the catechism, and I have yet a very distinct impression of the interest which he threw into that exercise. It was not a mere dry asking of questions and getting of answers. The kind of by-play, if I may be allowed such an expression, in the way of remark and illustration, and address and appeal, was so impressive and striking, and went so directly to the understanding and the heart of his youthful auditors, that they were at once instructed and made happy. I have often envied this gift that Mr. Fletcher enjoyed in such an eminent degree, and wished if by any means I could have acquired but a scantling of it. Besides the more ordinary and regular occasion of the Sabbath school, he was always devising—and his mind was fertile in expedients—some scheme or other for engaging the attention, and drawing forth the resources of the young people. Many of these, however, were of that character that they could only have been carried out by himself. But he was at the head of them all,—the shepherd leading the flock—the general commanding his juvenile army.

"It was not, however, the children merely that Mr. Fletcher attended to. He took a particular interest in all the young; especially in the young men belonging to his congregation. I never knew a person who had so completely the art of ingratiating himself with the young. He seemed to hold in his hand a key which at once unlocked the youthful heart to him. There was that openness, kindness, heartiness, that taking those in whom he was interested into his very bosom, that at once softened the hardest and melted the firmest. It was almost impossible, though a person had been so minded, to resist the influence which he exercised; while he was young among the young, sympathising more entirely with them, he never descended so as to allow any to take liberties with him. I remember yet the rich enjoyment we had on the Sabbath afternoon after the service, and before the Sabbath school met, in the vestry at tea with him, all the teachers who found it convenient being invited to attend. On those occasions he was the principal speaker, we were chiefly listeners, and his speaking, while cheerful, was always becoming. He told us on those occasions about his Sabbath school at Doune, about the good people there, and about his father and mother, and other worthies of the day. These were hallowed occasions. Besides he was accustomed on Saturday to have a number of the young men to tea at his house in Homerton. This intercourse with him seemed a kind of relaxation to himself, while it was a feast of instruction and enjoyment to them. The result was that he gathered around him a band of young men, many of whom became ministers and missionaries. But it was not all instruction and enjoyment with his young people. He trained them to work. While in Miles's Lane we had a juvenile missionary society, which raised at the time I left about £100 a year, a sum considered respectable, at least, considering that missions at the time had not that hold on the churches which they afterwards possessed."

celebrity that a cloud suddenly darkened his path. It would be wrong to pass over this painful circumstance, but we can only allude to it. Various opinions were and will be formed about it, and, perhaps, no one outside the two family circles is properly qualified to judge. The straws show the current, but the source and depth of the current are not so easily reached or measured. In all such cases there are a thousand modifying elements which the public eye is unable to detect, and without the knowledge of which judgment must fail in breadth while it errs in excess. Beyond and beneath all which is or can be made known, there are forces at work which cannot be analysed in written documents, or appreciated by those who are without the pale of their influence. So that praise or blame is often bestowed without sufficient warrant. Weakness is confounded with wickedness, and accidental or momentary aberration is identified with perverse and continuous transgression. The matter then was this—an early attachment to a young lady had been broken off, renewed, and broken off again. Mutual regrets deepened into accusations, misunderstandings thickened, and all hope of reconciliation came to an end. Friends and relations were ready with strong counsel on either side. The breach widened, and a civil process against Mr. Fletcher in the London law courts was the result. The case came on in the Court of King's Bench—Brougham and Wilde for the lady plaintiff, and Scarlett and Gurney for defendant. Mr. Scarlett made a statement for his client which confessed breach of promise and described it as a domestic calamity, and at the same time paid a compliment to the young lady in declaring that a matrimonial connection with her was wholly of the defendant's seeking, and in no sense of hers. Mr. Brougham accepted the statement as full satisfaction. A juror was withdrawn and the case ended, defendant paying the costs. But the matter as affecting Mr. Fletcher's character and integrity came also before his ministerial brethren. The presbytery of London, whose duty it was to examine into the allegations, referred the case to the synod. The synod met in September, 1824, but Mr. Fletcher did not attend to state his case or defend himself—an error on his part, for his presence and explanations would have been of great benefit and might have materially modified the result. The synod regarding his absence as contumacious, and supposing that he had, in various ways, contradicted the statement made for him by his counsel before the Court of King's Bench, suspended him till the next meeting, when he was specially summoned to be in attendance. The synod met next in April, 1825, but he was designedly absent, and the summary sentence was confirmed; Dr. Hall justly protesting against it as "irregular and precipitate." On both sides there was very keen feeling. Had Mr. Fletcher attended, and suffered a word of admonition based on his own acknowledgment, the matter might have ended in peace. But he took high ground and absented himself; the court regarding such absence as defiance, took as high ground, and cut him off from their fellowship. A committee had, between the first and second synods, been sent to London, to see him and talk over matters with him, but he refused to meet with them, and formally disowned synodical jurisdiction. There followed also some Chancery lawsuits about the church property. In course of years, however, feeling subsided, nearly all the parties originally concerned in the conflict had been removed by death, and in May, 1849, on the recommendation of a committee which had "full, free, and pleasant intercourse with him," Dr. Fletcher was unanimously reposed as a minister of the church from which he had been for twenty-five years excluded. Prior to this restoration he had been elected a director of the London Missionary Society, and the title of D.D. had been conferred upon him from an American college.

The crisis through which Mr. Fletcher had passed created sympathy in the breasts of many onlookers—some of whom regarded him as a martyr. The larger portion of his people clung to him and would not be parted from him. Many took his part and would vindicate him; some thought the sentence disproportioned to the offence, and others could not see the equity of subjecting a man to a double trial and a double penalty, to both a civil action and an ecclesiastical process, and specially, and with good constitutional ground, complained that the lengthy and elaborate law papers made use of in the Court of King's Bench should have, instead of a regular libel, been employed in the prosecution before the synod. At all events, the notoriety into which he had been brought did not diminish the audiences which crowded to hear him. Unable or forbidden to meet any longer in Albion Chapel, the congregation met first in a chapel in Grub Street, built for Mr. Buck (of the "Anecdotes"), a structure which has long since disappeared. The first stone of Finsbury Chapel was laid by Dr. Fletcher himself, and he was countenanced on the occasion by the Rev. Joseph Irons, Mr. Williams, of Gate Street Chapel, and Mr. Smith, of Penzance, universally known as "Boatswain Smith." The cost was over £10,000, and the large edifice, said to be able to contain 3,500 persons, was opened for public worship on December 6, 1826; Dr. Collyer preaching in the morning from Genesis xxviii. 17, and Mr. Drake, of Cambridge, in the evening from Job iii. 8. The new chapel was probably the largest at the time in London, and is still next in size to Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle. It was a bold undertaking for the minister and his congregation, and it was greatly larger than their necessities required. But Exeter Hall had not then been built, and Finsbury Chapel supplied its place. The spacious house was gladly taken advantage of by many religious and philanthropic societies for their annual meetings and their great gatherings, and many similar meetings are still held in it. The small rent which they paid for handsome accommodation helped the building fund, and the chapel became known as a catholic place of convocation through the length and breadth of the land. The minister was usually present at the more important meetings, and was thus kept in sympathetic contact with the patrons and advocates of these societies organised for the extension of the Gospel, the suppression of evil and suffering, or the furtherance of liberty and social progress.

And now, the old work which had been carried on for fifteen years in Miles's Lane and Albion Chapel was taken up with all the former vigour and pursued on much the same plan. The pastor was in his prime—fortified by experience, and equal to the isolated position and momentous responsibilities which he had assumed. The congregation was large, the finances were flourishing, and the debt on the building was gradually reduced. His preaching was what it had always been, plain and telling—rich in evangelical doctrine—and spoken in unaffected fervour. His ecclesiastical position was changed, but he preached the same Jesus—his ministry underwent neither revolution nor eclipse. Though from his position he became “independent” as severed from the ecclesiastical body to which he had belonged, he was never a “congregationalist.” His church was governed by representatives or elders—in Scottish phrase, by a “Session” chosen by and from the people. He had congregational but not classical presbytery, and was thus shut up to the kind of administration which was advocated by Owen and is found in many New England churches. For four and thirty years longer did he continue his earnest labours—among all classes, and still as aforesaid, especially among the young. The catechetical seminary was largely attended and signally blessed. Many young men from Scotland found their way to him and received precious words of encouragement or warning from his lips. His heart and hand were open to tales of distress. Viewed from the north of the Solway, he was an institution in London, a friend to the friendless, and a refuge to the outcast and solitary. No doubt he was often imposed on by many fictitious tales of distress told in Scottish phrase and accent—his heart always “warmed to the tartan.” Many a time did he make his holiday a visit to Scotland, but he always preached somewhere, and often in the open air, and in the neighbourhood of his native parish. On one of those occasions we heard him many years ago. The place was locally called “the Valley,” an amphitheatre on the castle rock of Stirling. It was a fine summer day, and the crowd was great. The subject was taken from 1 Cor. xv. 53, and referred to death and immortality. There was, so far as we remember, little that in itself was striking or touching beyond several local allusions, but the whole was very telling and impressive; as the robe of the preacher fluttered in the breeze, his countenance was visibly shaded and as visibly lighted up, in unison with the varying emotions which passed through his soul. His soft and pleasing words easily reached the large concourse, which was as sedate and decorous in worship, and as quiet and orderly in parting as if it had met in a church. If you ask what produced the charm, it would be difficult to give any analysis. Nothing stood out singly, but there was a combination of many elements—voice, manner, appearance, reputation, the fervent and simple exhibition of the Gospel—and sympathy on the part of many for one who had passed through such an ordeal, and now stood alone and severed from the previous ties and supports of official brotherhood.

Besides his occupation of the pulpit, Dr. Fletcher for very many years carried on ministerial visitation in London. Great stress is laid on this portion of pastoral work in Scotland, and no small time is consumed in it. He strove to visit in this formal and pastoral way the families of his congregation; giving utterance to a few words of exhortation, a few spiritual maxims, a few wise directions on the soul's health, and a few questions to the children. He excelled in this duty, his loving heart gave itself free and fresh outlet in such quiet domestic circles. His vivacious conversation flowed on in easy strain, and a hallowed tone was given to it. He was always drawn out toward the children, his face ever beamed as he turned to them, and they had a special place in his prayers and benedictions. He made it felt that the visit was an official one, a work of spiritual service. While he was friendly and cheerful, he was also grave and faithful, not in any way obtruding dictatorial or inquisitive remarks, but conveying the impression that he was in the family to do it good, and to say in the fullest sense, “Peace be to this house.” His people were widely scattered, up by Islington, away to the east, and also across the river; but he did what he could to overtake them, and his activity and perseverance conquered many difficulties.

Dr. Fletcher made it a prominent part of his ministry to expound the Scriptures. This lecturing, as it is called in Scotland, is there highly prized. It is an analysis of a passage of Scripture—popular and practical exegesis. One may make a text a mere motto, having small connection with the sermon, or may sever it from the context, and give it a meaning which does not really and originally belong to it. But a lecture properly done develops the actual truths found in the paragraph, shows the order and sequence of thought, and brings out the mind of the sacred writer. It is interpretation connoted so as to be intelligible to an ordinary audience, and is best done without any pedantic array of authorities, when the results only are given, without any detailed exhibition of the grammatical or lexical parts of the process. In this way a gospel or an epistle is gone over, Sabbath after Sabbath, and the result is that a better understanding of the Scripture is imparted. True, indeed, in a lecture it may not be permitted to soar away into high latitudes, and present an eloquent but discursive harangue, for one is kept to the work before him—to trace out the sense, and give it in an interesting and impressive form, developing argument step by step, discussing a narrative in its leading outlines and minuter touches, or illustrating the imagery and educing the lessons of a parable. This didactic preaching is usually given in Scotland on one part of the Lord's Day, and is intensely relished by pious and thoughtful people. Dr. Fletcher carried the plan with him to London and persevered in it, to the great delight of his people. This method of pulpit instruction is not much followed, nor does it seem in many cases to be well executed in England; at least, several of the volumes published with the title of lectures seem to be little else than sermons with long texts. This portion of Dr. Fletcher's pulpit work was always popular. It was in no sense profound, ingenious, or learned, but a plain, clear, earnest, and pointed exposition and application of Divine truth.

Dr. Fletcher was often engaged in works of beneficence beyond the limits of his more immediate sphere. One scheme which occupied his time and advocacy toward the end of his days was the relief and encouragement of fishermen and their families in the Isle of Skye. In 1851 he was visiting that island, and admiring its grand and rugged scenery. Walking along the shore one day with the Rev. Alexander Adam, the earnest and able United Presbyterian minister of Portree, the principal town, he saw some fishermen mending their nets, a common occupation during the busy season. The island had suffered from famine and sickness, and the sight of the fishermen mending their nets recalled the familiar scenes of the Gospel by the Sea of Galilee. In his sympathy he asked Mr. Adam, "What can I do for these poor people?" The reply was a wise and generous one: "If a boat," said Mr. Adam, "could be purchased for the benefit of these fishermen, and themselves obliged to repay it by small instalments, it would be infinitely better for them than mere pecuniary relief." The suggestion was at once acted on, and a boat was procured. Other boats were added, and the enterprise prospered. To work it effectively and on system a society was organised, having committees in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Portree, and London. Its object, as the report for 1857 says, was "to supply poor fishermen of good character and industrious habits with substantial boats, the original cost of which, with interest on the money, to be repaid by themselves in certain fixed instalments and at certain fixed periods; and in order to render the operation of the scheme sure, a bond is subscribed by the contracting parties and securitics binding themselves to keep the boat in good working order and seaworthy condition, and to be responsible for all manner of damage which the boat may receive in any manner of way, and also for payment of the money advanced, with the fixed rate of interest at the periods mentioned in the bond. It is stipulated, too, that the boat shall be considered as belonging to the society until the whole amount of the instalment is fully paid up, when the boat becomes the property of the party or crew. The bond is then fully discharged, and this constitutes their title-deed to the property." The boats increased from one to fifty-seven, costing £324, and the accounts were kept with remarkable clearness and accuracy by Mr. Adam. Dr. Fletcher laboured and preached for several summers on behalf of the society, and as he had originated, so he identified himself with, the enterprise. How enthusiastically he threw himself into it may be seen in the following letter addressed to the Edinburgh Board of Directors:—

AND RESPECTED

"I congratulate you on the continuance and progressive improvement of our excellent patriotic Institution, and on the immense benefits which hundreds are deriving at this moment from our Society, who otherwise must have been sunk into the lowest depths of destitution and suffering. Let us lift our hearts up to 'Britain's God,' in whose goodness this scheme originated, and to whom alone we would trace all its numerous blessings.

"Allow me to express my joy and thankfulness that you are continuing so steadfast in supporting the interests and in promoting the prosperity of our noble enterprise. Your hearts cannot fail to be elated with emotions of delight when you think of the domestic bliss you are instrumental, under Providence, of diffusing among so many families in our far-distant Western Isles.

"I must also congratulate you and myself on the preservation of the life and activity of our indefatigable and zealous Secretary, who works our Society so admirably, and to whose experienced skill the present prosperity of our Institution may be so justly attributed.

"By Divine permission, I intend visiting Scotland in next July, to remain six weeks, to preach every Sabbath, and hold public meetings during the week, for promoting our important cause. Very strongly I would recommend applications to Ministers of all denominations, and continued applications to Noblemen and Landed Proprietors, to become Subscribers to the Institution.

"We can now place before them solid, substantial facts, most abundant and encouraging. We present before them no theory: we present demonstrative reality! We come before them with the 'laurels' of a successful, triumphant experiment!

"That an increasing blessing may accompany your praiseworthy efforts, is the earnest prayer of yours most faithfully,
"Enfield, London, N., Feb. 1, 1858."

"ALEX. FLETCHER.

The enterprise, which was to extend beyond Skye, prospered for a time, but was gradually brought to an end. It was simple and hopeful. Instalments to the amount of £212 were paid by the boatmen, and the last boat was given in 1858. But the fishermen's interest began to flag—some paid up in full—others only partially, and some not at all. Perhaps they could not pay; for there had been a series of bad seasons; and the herring fishery for some years had been an entire failure. The scheme thus came to an unexpected termination; and the few pounds yet lying in the bank, are the memorial of Dr. Fletcher's overflowing kindness and zeal.*

And thus for nigh fifty years did Dr. Fletcher labour in London—preaching, visiting, catechising, addressing Sabbath schools, travelling to many places in order to preach to the young, engaging in all kinds of philanthropic labours, ever ready to assist in any good work—the friend of the friendless especially from the North, and of criminals in Newgate condemned to die, and now and then sending from the press books meant for juvenile instruction, and to help individual and family devotion. Fifty years of such industry! what moulding of soul—what spiritual strength imparted—what revival of God's work in many a spirit—what comfort imparted to many a death-bed—what seeds sown in so many youthful hearts to bear fruit in after-life. Fifty years of this assiduous and unwearied labour! the dew of early youth, manhood, and age devoted to it. All honour to the labourer, and to the grace which kept him up and brought him through. His motto—the utterance of a grateful heart—was, “Having obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, testifying both to small and to great,” “yet not I, but the grace of God which was in me.” A life of uncommon physical health, spent in such work, claimed, towards its close, some memorial of its activity. Those who knew him in earlier years had many of them passed away, but there were many surviving who had known him in the meridian of his splendour, and enjoyed the calm lustre of his setting. As the jubilee of his pastorate drew near, various plans were proposed by his friends for its celebration. As a fitting memorial, it was proposed to raise funds to build schools to be called the “Fletcher Schools.” Some hundreds of pounds were subscribed, but the object has not as yet been carried out; the “Fletcher Jubilee Memorial” fund still lies unemployed. A public meeting also was held after his death, under the presidency of Samuel Morley, Esq., and was addressed by Mr. Binney, Prof. Lorimer, and Dr. Edmond, but the project then so warmly advocated of building Day, Infant, and Sunday schools, to be named after the prince of preachers to the young, has not been as yet completed.

Dr. Fletcher had been through life a robust man. His strength, indeed, had not been often tasked with that intellectual toil which wears out the nervous system, and brings down the strongest to premature exhaustion. He had not been a deep plodder in the night-watches, nor was his countenance “sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought.” But his work had been continuous, and the strain upon him, if not tense, was enduring. Age, too, was coming to tell upon him at length, and the strong man began to bow. But still he held up and did his work. His discourses growing more solemn and subdued, failed somewhat in their fire, though it now and then flashed up as of yore. Still it was hoped that he might enjoy his approaching jubilee. But an attack of bronchitis in spring weakened him, and never wholly left him, and in his weakness dropsy supervened. In February, 1860, he preached his farewell sermon. Not that he intended it to be a farewell sermon, but it proved to be his last great public discourse; nay, as Providence graciously willed it, it was addressed to three thousand children in Surrey Chapel, where nigh half a century before Rowland Hill had brought him to the same work, and he had learned from the experiment where his “great strength lay.” Preaching to a juvenile audience had been his chosen and favourite work through life, and his chief instrument of doing good. His heart and tongue had been always in it, and he ended where he began, with the same service and in the same place. Ere he laid him down to die, he had thus completed his cycle, “fulfilled his course.” The Sabbath had ever been the day of his power and enjoyment. Its early hours had been seasons of devout and hopeful preparation; and just as the bells of Clapton parish church ceased ringing for morning service, 30th September, his spirit winged its mysterious way to the choirs and melodies of the upper sanctuary and the unending Sabbath, there to see the face and hear the approving welcome of the Master, whose commission, “Feed my lambs,” it had always been his delight, through grace, to obey. On the evening of the previous Saturday he had

* It may amuse our readers to read the list of boats provided in 1858—many of the boats being named after contributors, or after great and good men—

BOATS BUILT BY THE SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF AND ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE FISHERMEN IN THE HIGHLANDS AND ISLANDS OF SCOTLAND.—1. The Flying Fish. 2. The Lydia. 3. The Jessie. 4. The Three Sisters. 5. The Dora. 6. The Good Luck. 7. The Two Sisters. 8. The Juvenile. 9. The Friends. 10. The Two Sons. 11. The Anne. 12. The Janet. 13. The Eliza. 14. The Janet (No. 2). 15. The M'Douall. 16. The Friends (No. 2). 17. The Swan. 18. The Lady Olivia. 19. The Sir John Fakington. 20. The Lady Hill. 21. The Edward Bird. 22. The Isabella Bird. 23. The Star. 24. The Scourer Ferry Boat. 25. The Henrietta Bird. 26. The Kate. 27. The Good Luck (No. 2). 28. The Alexander Fletcher. 29. The Swift. 30. The Mary Stewart. 31. The Kate (No. 2). 32. The Mary Anne. 33. The Three Sisters (No. 2). 34. The Flora. 35. The Friends (No. 3). 36. The Brothers. 37. The Flora (No. 2). 38. The Christs. 39. The Christie (No. 2). 40. The Lord of the Isles. 41. The Padlock. 42. The Macleod. 43. The Ohisholm. 44. The Charles Mackie. 45. The City of Edinburgh. 46. The Legh Richmond. 47. The City of Glasgow. 48. The Peggy. 49. The Juvenile (No. 2). 50. The Margaret. 51. The Annabella. 52. The Florence Nightingale. 53. The Thomas Cook. 54. The Bonnie Dundee.

BOATS TO BE BUILT.—The Duke of Buccleuch. The Duke of Argyll. Sir Henry Havelock. Sir Colin Campbell. The John Brown. The Ralph Bingle. The Ann Elm. The Edinburgh Brothers. The Anne Middleton. The M'Gavin. The Gillilan. The Duncan Mackinlay. The Robert Hepburn. The George Johnson.

or illustrating the imagery and educing the lessons of a parable. This didactic preaching is usually given in Scotland on one part of the Lord's Day, and is intensely relished by pious and thoughtful people. Dr. Fletcher carried the plan with him to London and persevered in it, to the great delight of his people. This method of pulpit instruction is not much followed, nor does it seem in many cases to be well executed in England; at least, several of the volumes published with the title of lectures seem to be little else than sermons with long texts. This portion of Dr. Fletcher's pulpit work was always popular. It was in no sense profound, ingenious, or learned, but a plain, clear, earnest, and pointed exposition and application of Divine truth.

Dr. Fletcher was often engaged in works of beneficence beyond the limits of his more immediate sphere. One scheme which occupied his time and advocacy toward the end of his days was the relief and encouragement of fishermen and their families in the Isle of Skye. In 1851 he was visiting that island, and admiring its grand and rugged scenery. Walking along the shore one day with the Rev. Alexander Adam, the earnest and able United Presbyterian minister of Portree, the principal town, he saw some fishermen mending their nets, a common occupation during the busy season. The island had suffered from famine and sickness, and the sight of the fishermen mending their nets recalled the familiar scenes of the Gospel by the Sea of Galilee. In his sympathy he asked Mr. Adam, "What can I do for these poor people?" The reply was a wise and generous one: "If a boat," said Mr. Adam, "could be purchased for the benefit of those fishermen, and themselves obliged to repay it by small instalments, it would be infinitely better for them than mere pecuniary relief." The suggestion was at once acted on, and a boat was procured. Other boats were added, and the enterprise prospered. To work it effectively and on system a society was organised, having committees in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Portree, and London. Its object, as the report for 1857 says, was "to supply poor fishermen of good character and industrious habits with substantial boats, the original cost of which, with interest on the money, to be repaid by themselves in certain fixed instalments and at certain fixed periods; and in order to render the operation of the scheme sure, a bond is subscribed by the contracting parties and securities binding themselves to keep the boat in good working order and seaworthy condition, and to be responsible for all manner of damage which the boat may receive in any manner of way, and also for payment of the money advanced, with the fixed rate of interest at the periods mentioned in the bond. It is stipulated, too, that the boat shall be considered as belonging to the society until the whole amount of the instalment is fully paid up, when the boat becomes the property of the party or crew. The bond is then fully discharged, and this constitutes their title-deed to the property." The boats increased from one to fifty-seven, costing £324, and the accounts were kept with remarkable clearness and accuracy by Mr. Adam. Dr. Fletcher laboured and preached for several summers on behalf of the society, and as he had originated, so he identified himself with, the enterprise. How enthusiastically he threw himself into it may be seen in the following letter addressed to the Edinburgh Board of Directors:—

AND RESPECTED FRIENDS,—

"I congratulate you on the continuance and progressive improvement of our excellent patriotic Institution, and on the immense benefits which hundreds are deriving at this moment from our Society, who otherwise must have been sunk into the lowest depths of destitution and suffering. Let us lift our hearts up to 'Britain's God,' in whose goodness this scheme originated, and to whom alone we would trace all its numerous blessings.

"Allow me to express my joy and thankfulness that you are continuing so steadfast in supporting the interests and in promoting the prosperity of our noble enterprise. Your hearts cannot fail to be elated with emotions of delight when you think of the domestic bliss you are instrumental, under Providence, of diffusing among so many families in our far-distant Western Isles.

"I must also congratulate you and myself on the preservation of the life and activity of our indefatigable and zealous Secretary, who works our Society so admirably, and to whose experienced skill the present prosperity of our Institution may be so justly attributed.

"By Divine permission, I intend visiting Scotland in next July, to remain six weeks, to preach every Sabbath, and hold public meetings during the week, for promoting our important cause. Very strongly I would recommend applications to Ministers of all denominations, and continued applications to Noblemen and Landed Proprietors, to become Subscribers to the Institution.

"We can now place before them solid, substantial facts, most abundant and encouraging. We present before them no theory: we present demonstrative reality! We come before them with the 'laurels' of a successful, triumphant experiment!

"That an increasing blessing may accompany your praiseworthy efforts, is the earnest prayer of yours most faithfully,
"Enfield, London, N., Feb. 1, 1858."

"ALEX. FLETCHER.

The enterprise, which was to extend beyond Skye, prospered for a time, but was gradually brought to an end. It simple and hopeful. Instalments to the amount of £212 were paid by the boatmen, and the last boat was given in 1858. But the fishermen's interest began to flag—some paid up in full—others only partially, and some not at all. Perhaps they could not pay; for there had been a series of bad seasons; and the herring fishery for some years had been an entire failure. The scheme thus came to an unexpected termination; and the few pounds yet lying in the bank, are the memorial of Dr. Fletcher's overflowing kindness and zeal.*

And thus for nigh fifty years did Dr. Fletcher labour in London—proaching, visiting, catechising, addressing Sabbath schools, travelling to many places in order to preach to the young, engaging in all kinds of philanthropic labours, ever ready to assist in any good work—the friend of the friendless especially from the North, and of criminals in Newgate condemned to die, and now and then sending from the press books meant for juvenile instruction, and to help individual and family devotion. Fifty years of such industry! what moulding of soul—what spiritual strength imparted—what revival of God's work in many a spirit—what comfort imparted to many a death-bed—what seeds sown in so many youthful hearts to bear fruit in after-life. Fifty years of this assiduous and unwearied labour! the dew of early youth, manhood, and age devoted to it. All honour to the labourer, and to the grace which kept him up and brought him through. His motto—the utterance of a grateful heart—was, “Having obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, testifying both to small and to great,” “yet not I, but the grace of God which was in me.” A life of uncommon physical health, spent in such work, claimed, towards its close, some memorial of its activity. Those who know him in earlier years had many of them passed away, but there were many surviving who had known him in the meridian of his splendour, and enjoyed the calm lustre of his setting. As the jubilee of his pastorate drew near, various plans were proposed by his friends for its celebration. As a fitting memorial, it was proposed to raise funds to build schools to be called the “Fletcher Schools.” Some hundreds of pounds were subscribed, but the object has not as yet been carried out; the “Fletcher Jubilee Memorial” fund still lies unemployed. A public meeting also was held after his death, under the presidency of Samuel Morley, Esq., and was addressed by Mr. Binney, Prof. Lorimer, and Dr. Edmond, but the project then so warmly advocated of building Day, Infant, and Sunday schools, to be named after the prince of preachers to the young, has not been as yet completed.

Dr. Fletcher had been through life a robust man. His strength, indeed, had not been often tasked with that intellectual toil which wears out the nervous system, and brings down the strongest to premature exhaustion. He had not been a deep plodder in the night-watches, nor was his countenance “sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought.” But his work had been continuous, and the strain upon him, if not tense, was enduring. Age, too, was coming to tell upon him at length, and the strong man began to bow. But still he held up and did his work. His discourses growing more solemn and subdued, failed somewhat in their fire, though it now and then flashed up as of yore. Still it was hoped that he might enjoy his approaching jubilee. But an attack of bronchitis in spring weakened him, and never wholly left him, and in his weakness dropsy supervened. In February, 1860, he preached his farewell sermon. Not that he intended it to be a farewell sermon, but it proved to be his last great public discourse; nay, as Providence graciously willed it, it was addressed to three thousand children in Surrey Chapel, where nigh half a century before Rowland Hill had brought him to the same work, and he had learned from the experiment where his “great strength lay.” Preaching to a juvenile audience had been his chosen and favourite work through life, and his chief instrument of doing good. His heart and tongue had been always in it, and he ended where he began, with the same service and in the same place. Ere he laid him down to die, he had thus completed his cycle, “fulfilled his course.” The Sabbath had ever been the day of his power and enjoyment. Its early hours had been seasons of devout and hopeful preparation; and just as the bells of Clapton parish church ceased ringing for morning service, 30th September, his spirit winged its mysterious way to the choirs and melodies of the upper sanctuary and the unending Sabbath, there to see the face and hear the approving welcome of the Master, whose commission, “Feed my lambs,” it had always been his delight, through grace, to obey. On the evening of the previous Saturday he had

* It may amuse our readers to read the list of boats provided in 1858—many of the boats being named after contributors, or after great and good men:—

BOATS BUILT BY THE SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF AND ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE FISHERMEN IN THE HIGHLANDS AND ISLANDS OF SCOTLAND.—1. The Flying Fish. 2. The Lydia. 3. The Jessie. 4. The Three Sisters. 5. The Dora. 6. The Good Luck. 7. The Two Sisters. 8. The Juvenile. 9. The Friends. 10. The Two Sons. 11. The Anne. 12. The Janet. 13. The Eliza. 14. The Janet (No. 2). 15. The M'Douall. 16. The Friends (No. 2). 17. The Swan. 18. The Lady Olivia. 19. The Sir John Pakington. 20. The Lady Hill. 21. The Edward Bird. 22. The Isabella Bird. 23. The Star. 24. The Scurer Ferry Boat. 25. The Henrietta Bird. 26. The Kate. 27. The Good Luck (No. 2). 28. The Alexander Fletcher. 29. The Swift. 30. The Mary Stewart. 31. The Kate (No. 2). 32. The Mary Anne. 33. The Three Sisters (No. 2). 34. The Flora. 35. The Friends (No. 3). 36. The Brothers. 37. The Flora (No. 2). 38. The Christie. 39. The Christie (No. 2). 40. The Lord of the Isles. 41. The Padlock. 42. The Macleod. 43. The Chisholm. 44. The Charles Mackie. 45. The City of Edinburgh. 46. The Legh Richmond. 47. The City of Glasgow. 48. The Peggy. 49. The Juvenile (No. 2). 50. The Margaret. 51. The Annabella. 52. The Florence Nightingale. 53. The Thomas Cook. 54. The Bonnie Dundee.

BOATS TO BE BUILT.—The Duke of Buccleuch. The Duke of Argyll. Sir Henry Havelock. Sir Colin Campbell. The John Brown. The Ralph Engine. The Ann Ker. The Edinburgh Brothers. The Anne Middleton. The M'Gavin. The Gillilan. The Duncan Mackinlay. The Robert Hepburn. The George Johnson.

offered up a remarkable prayer for the church, and for several individuals dear to him. He had not spoken much or often about death, but all his utterances showed his perfect preparation for it. What he uttered was mostly in the language of devotion; and even when under the influence of opiates, his wandering words were about Divine truths and hopes. During the week before his decease, he talked freely and calmly of his convictions, revealing fully the firm foundation of his hopes. "I have been brought to the verge of death, but I have derived unspeakable enjoyment from those beautiful words, 'There is a river the streams whereof make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacle of the Most High.'" Afterwards he said, "We should all offer up most earnest prayer that those who are concerned about their souls should become truly reconciled to God, and especially that those who are more concerned about the world should be convinced of their folly; and oh! what folly it is to be so concerned about this world in which they are to be for so short a time!" Again, "Let there be no gloomy Christianity. We should not be always thinking of the infinite justice of God without remembering His equally infinite mercy. God is already reconciled, and waits desiring that we should be reconciled to Him." Under the impression that the next day was the Sabbath, he presented an earnest prayer that many souls might be converted, and that the service of the day might be crowned with signal blessing; and then with touching solemnity and faltering tones he pronounced the benediction which had been so often uttered by him in rich and solemn cadence:—"The grace of the Lord Jesus, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen." May it prove a prophetic blessing to all who heard it! Thus he passed away.

"Sure the last end
Of the good man is peace; how calm his exit:
Night dews fall not more softly to the ground,
Nor weary worn-out winds expire more soft.
Behold him in the evening tide of life—
A life well spent, whose early care it was
His riper years should not upbraid his green.
By unperceived degrees he wears away,
Yet, like the sun, seems larger at his setting."

The funeral took place on Monday, October 8. The service was conducted in a chapel near to Abney Park Cemetery, the place of interment. Mr. Binney, of the Weigh House Chapel, conducted the devotions. Hundreds of children were present in the meeting, and the service began with the following hymn:—

"Hear what the voice from heaven proclaims," &c.

Mr. Binney then read selected portions of the Divine Word bearing on mortality, and setting out the hopes beyond the grave. He then delivered a striking address, in the course of which he said:—

"Yet, dear brethren, we cannot proceed to fulfil the last duties that we owe to the consecrated dust of a laborious and eminent man of God without referring a little to him—not to glorify him, but to magnify that grace which made him what he was.

"You all know, probably, that he had the great blessedness of being born of pious parentage. And it is a great thing to be the children of the good—a great thing to be the offspring of God-fearing parents—to be trained up 'in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.' We have reason to believe that Divine principles were early implanted, and Divine life early manifested in him. He was called of God early, as we believe, by His grace; and then he was further called to the ministry of the Word. You know his history—as a very young man coming to this great metropolis, and almost instantly occupying a large space in the public eye, preaching at a place of worship which some of us can remember, and respecting the history of which I know an incident which nobody else knows. I had two respectable, worthy women, members of my congregation, both of whom are now dead. They were at one time living next to this old place of worship in Milcs's Lane. They were not religious, they were respectable, but worldly, and would not have gone into a Presbyterian or Nonconformist place of worship for the world. But they wished to hear the singing in the chapel, and by opening the windows they could hear it, and also something that was said. And listening to what they heard, the utterances came upon them, accompanied by the power of God, and impressed their minds, leading them to feel and to inquire, and they ultimately became devoted servants of God, spiritual, converted women, and united themselves with the church, but subsequently came under my care. This interesting fact occurred to my mind when I thought of the place which our friend first occupied when he came to London, though that happened previous to his coming.

"Every one of you knows how for so many years our friend held on his course; how he went on from strength to strength, and in maturity of character and virtue, and amidst surrounding and general respect, finished his course, having kept the faith, and, by God's grace, felt that he was ready to be offered. And we are here to-day, all of us, to testify to the respect we entertain for his character, and the feeling with which we cherish his memory.

"He was called of God to do a great work, especially in relation to the young. Marvellous power, wonderful aptitude, a talent rising into genius, he had for addressing himself to the young mind, and multitudes—numbers, I suppose, that we can hardly venture to mention—of young souls have received impressions of the truth from his lips, and have had the seed sown by his hand in their hearts; and, by God's blessing, the seed has taken root and sprung up, and is now developing itself in many a Christian character. A genial, loving, amiable man, our brother was—catholic-spirited, ready for service at any time, and always manifesting his brotherly feelings, and his readiness to engage in any good work. As a neighbour in the city, I can speak of him so. We almost always reckoned upon him at the Annual Meeting of our Juvenile Missionary Society. He was an institution with us for that occasion. We should have hardly felt the meeting to be complete without the venerable form and the loving voice of our friend, Dr. Fletcher. The young people, especially, were always glad and happy to see him, and to hear his racy remarks. A loving, brotherly, neighbourly Christian man was the friend whom we inter this day.

"It will be for my friend, Dr. Macfarlane, on Sunday morning, to appeal to you—most of whom, I suppose, are of our deceased brother's church and congregation—in relation to the use you have made of the instructions which you have heard from his lips; whether you have deeply pondered the fact of the many prayers and supplications which he offered for your souls; for he was a devout man. I believe that he poured out his soul in prayer for his people much, and that the service which he rendered in the Christian community, by his books of devotion, is but the representation of a devout spirit which was often before the throne of God, making intercessions and supplications for you. And as he lived he died. Almost his last words were prayer; and prayer, not so much for himself, as intercession for you, the members of his flock and charge. There is a solemn thought in this. Those lips can pray no more. We do not pray to the dead; we do not pray for the dead; we do not believe that the dead can pray for us. The prayers of the servant of God are ended, and the last petition from his lips that could go to the throne for you has ascended. Let these things come upon your hearts. I believe there are some of his church and charge that will feel thoughts like these: and the little ones, the children and young persons, I doubt not will remember and lay to heart many of those beautiful instructions and vivid illustrations of divine truth which have been addressed to them.

"Now, dear brethren, let us prepare to go to the last duty that we owe to the dead. But who are the dead? Not here [pointing to the coffin], as we think. Our brother is more alive now than ever he was; more full of life, understands better what it is to live than we think, having entered into the world of life, and blessedness, and joy.

"The dead is not before you. The dead may be round about. The dead may be here, there, yonder! Dear brethren, there is a more fearful thing than lying in the coffin, for the sacred dust will be taken into the keeping of the Master, while it is true—'Absent from the body, present with the Lord.' There is nothing fearful in this; but there is something fearful in being dead to God, dead in sin, without spiritual life, without God, without Christ!

"Our dear brother was so intimately associated with children, that it seems appropriate that in this service the voices of the children should be heard, as associated with his memory. The children will now sing one or two verses of the hymn, 'Around the throne of God in heaven,' &c."

Prayer having been offered, the procession was again formed, and the body was deposited in the tomb. Another brief prayer followed; and, as the large assembly was dispersing, the children sang several other hymns, and as they crowded to look into the grave, it was remarked that the tears of not a few fell upon the coffin which contained all that was left on earth of "the Children's Friend."

His tombstone bears the following just and simple inscription:—

"SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF
THE
REV. ALEXANDER FLETCHER, D.D., OF FINSBURY CHAPEL,
LONDON.
BORN APRIL 11, 1787.
DIED SEPTEMBER 30, 1860.

ERECTED BY HIS CHURCH AND CONGREGATION IN GRATEFUL REMEMBRANCE OF FIFTY-FOUR YEARS' FAITHFUL MINISTRY.

'THE CHILDREN'S'

The funeral sermon was preached on the following Sabbath by the Rev. John Macfarlane, LL.D.; then of Glasgow, but now of the Presbyterian Church, Clapham. The large building was crowded in every part. The pulpit and front of the galleries were draped in black cloth and crape, and a large proportion of the congregation wore mourning. The text was John v. 35—"He was a burning and a shining light." The immense audience hung on the preacher's lips to the close of a discourse which occupied nearly one hour and a half in delivery. It was afterwards published, and contains—besides an able and striking exposition of the text—a masterly analysis, and a beautiful and discriminative appreciation of Dr. Fletcher's public and private character, work, and life.

In appearance, Dr. Fletcher was tall, stately, and well-proportioned—"beautiful to look on." He never laid aside the Scottish accent, though its Doric tones were greatly softened in his gentle and mellifluous utterances. He was twice married; first, in 1830, to Martha, widow of H. W. Lambirth, Esq., and daughter of T. F. English, of Bocking, Essex—the representative of an old Nonconformist family. Mrs. Fletcher died in 1843; and her only daughter by her first husband, the wife of J. A. Hardcastle, M.P. for Bury St. Edmund's, died as these sheets were passing through the press. Dr. Fletcher married, in 1845, Lydia, daughter of Richard Baynes, Esq., of Rayne Lodge, near Braintree, Essex. The one surviving child of the marriage is Alexandrina, born in 1852. While her widowed mother and herself fondly cherish the memory of the best of husbands and fathers, may they enjoy the heritage which, on his dying bed, he so often and so earnestly implored for them.

Dr. Fletcher, as this brief record of his life proves, was no ordinary man. His characteristic talent was neither intellect, imagination, metaphysical power, nor theological erudition, in predominance; but his mind was clear and vigorous, without being subtle or profound, and his fancy supplied him easily with striking, but not gorgeous, illustration. His mental energy showed itself in sound and excellent thought, which was lucidly and warmly expressed. He shunned the transcendental, or rather, it had no attractions for him, and through his long career he was engrossed with the useful. His mind concerned itself with every-day life. The only aspects of truth which he loved were those which bore directly on men's best interests. He had no sympathy with mere speculation of any kind. He loved the "old paths," and would not leave them even for a survey of surrounding scenery. He had enjoyed excellent culture, especially in theology, and he profited by it. With classic English literature he was quite familiar, and had great relish for it. His own style was easy and telling, but he followed no model; "out of the abundance of his heart" his mouth spake and his pen wrote. He uttered what he had to say in distinct, lucid diction, with nothing spasmodic or redundant about it. He was not dryly didactic on the one hand, nor did he lose himself in turgid verbosity on the other. His habits of study were systematic and orderly; so that, amidst numerous distractions, he made the most of his time. With many interruptions, he persevered in his quiet ways of reading and meditation, and strove against those desultory habits of thought and composition to which his fame in the metropolis necessarily exposed him. In a word, his power lay in projecting, advocating, and carrying out practical schemes. His whole soul went out into his pleading for such efforts. His nature was stirred by the view of ignorance and degradation; and, as he mused, "the fire burned," missionary and philanthropic enterprises filled his spirit with zeal and prayer, and gave ardour and eloquence to his pleading for the advancement of religion at home and abroad—the emancipation of the slave—the enlightenment of Popish districts—the Christian instruction of prisoners,—and especially, as first and last and paramount in claim and value, the godly upbringing of the young; for truly he felt that—

"A flower when offered in the bud
Is no vain sacrifice."

Dr. Fletcher was gentle and lovely in character—at once courteous and conscientious. There was a winning blandness in his very tones; there was no element of hauteur in his nature—no bitterness in his heart or words. His open face beamed with universal love. Accessible to all, and glowing "with social tenderness for all mankind," he rejoiced in his own inner circle of friends. He could not say stinging words; his humour had no gall in it. He was always loath to accuse and unwilling to condemn. For some one censured he would ingeniously invent an apology, if it could not be readily found. In his own home, he was an affectionate husband and parent—the model of a true Christian gentleman. He was "given to hospitality," and his genial nature shed delight and cheerfulness over his board.

In his preaching he was evangelical in the best sense: he preached the Gospel in the spirit of the Gospel. Oh, how he longed for the salvation of souls! This longing was no superficial or evanescent sentiment, which he might utter with folded arms, as he reclined in an easy chair; it was an early passion with him, and its impulse never subsided. What earnestness of spirit as he besought men in Christ's stead—what solemn warnings that made them tremble, and tender appeals that moved them to tears—what mighty wrestling with souls and for souls! His voice was specially fitted to gentle but intense expostulation—not like the father, menacing and thundering; but like the mother, weeping as she is imploring, a perverse child. God's love to sinners filled his bosom with a similar emotion, as he saw the value of souls in the light of the cross and eternity. Often had he the honour of speaking "a word"—felt and remembered as a word—"in season;" and the word spoken in his tones came with resistless charm. Dr. Fletcher put in no claim to be what is called distinctively an intellectual preacher, nor are his sermons specimens of polished oratory. They have not the depth of Foster, the brilliancy of Hall, or the glowing power of Chalmers. Nor could it be said of him that his discourses were so exhaustive that "he stripped the feather from the quill, and even the fibre from the feather." Comparing him with his own denomination in London, we may say that there was not so much matter in his sermons as in those of Archibald Hall, nor so much spontaneous eloquence as in those of Hall's successor, and his own venerable compeer, Dr. Waugh. Dr. Waugh was a true orator, whose discourses were often as devotional as other men's prayers, and who was so ready, too, that what next to say never troubled him, while how to say it was born with him: thought and word leaping into the right place, clause linking itself to clause, and image rising after image, without effort or confusion. But Dr. Fletcher could present the characteristic truth of the Gospel to an ordinary audience in a style the spiritual results of which were as speedy and sure as with any of those preachers. He was a second edition of Ebenezer Erskine, in simple dignity and evangelical point and fervour; looking more to the message than to the mode of phrasing it; anxious, as every one felt, that the truth in its living fulness should be presented to conscience and heart. In his own sphere, at the same time, he stood high and apart; no one came near him as a preacher to the young; his throne had no rival. He has had many followers in the good work; for, as Tennyson says—

"Most can raise the flowers now,
For all have got the seed."

His fame filled the empire, and went abroad to many lands. His success was attained by no art. He commanded at once an entire assembly of children,—sometimes, at his Christmas sermons, of five thousand of them,—and he kept their attention and their eye to the close. There were no tricks of gesture, no elocutionary artifices, no grimacing, no childish prattling, appalling anecdotes, or puerile merry-making; he was too simple-minded and single-hearted for these follies. The scene was as decorous as if no children had been present at all. When the service was over, men often wondered what had produced the fascination. There was nothing startling; yet, when he expounded the parable of the Prodigal Son, or described some scenes in the life of Jesus, the youngest children in the audience were often moved to tears. The secret lay in his affectionate earnestness, which, as it glistened in his eye and quivered in the tones of his voice, caught and retained the quick and eager sympathies of children. He relied on the truth itself to produce the result, and was singularly manly and unaffected, both in his presentation of it and in his affectionate and patient reiteration of it, that it might be lodged in the memory. The spirit of his addresses was—"My little children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you." He won his way at once to the children's hearts, as the dew that is so noiselessly shed over garden and field, and, without effort, fills and refreshes every bud and fibre. He loved children, was always thinking of them, and always praying for them. It was not a fondness which he put on for the occasion, when he rose to address them; it was the great, the absorbing love of his soul; an abiding enthusiasm, "a fire in his bones" from his boyish years; his first passion and his last, from his twelfth year to his threescore and tenth; from the village school of Lathones to the last great gathering of three thousand little ones in Surrey Chapel, where he placed the "head-stone" on his life's work, "with shoutings—crying, Grace, Grace unto it!" As Dr. Macfarlane in his funeral sermon justly and beautifully said—

"To see hundreds of happy and intelligent young faces looking up to him as their teacher in the truths of God, to kindle in their little hearts warm love for Jesus, and deep interest in their own salvation, and to be the means of bringing one such suckling into the bosom of our Father God, was more than enough to set on fire the fuel that lay upon the altar of his compassionate heart. No doubt he had his eye upon the sublime dénouement of the whole, upon the rescue of their souls from the fangs and dens of vice here, and their reception at length into heaven; but what of this? Is not this the very object for which Jesus Himself died, and for which He causes them to die, that they may be for ever with Him? In one word, His interest in little children was often triumphant—it was blessed for their conversion. It was sometimes a great success. Hundreds still live who praise him for his efforts to induce them to fear God. His spiritual children appear every now and then from all quarters of the globe, to pronounce blessings upon his head. And this was his grand consolation, that though he might have to wait long here in order to see the fruit of his labours, he was certain to see it in abundance in the vineyard of heaven. I cannot conceive of anything grander, even in heaven, than the 'All hail!' that bursts from the lips of the ransomed, as they welcome the approach of one who turned them from the error of their ways. I only think that a deeper intonation may be given, and higher and more rapturous notes may rise, from the children's choir, as they escort to the King the priest that led them to God. If this be not a triumph, where shall we seek for one? If this be not a reward, where and how has true merit ever met one?"

Yes, All hail!—the work is over—he has gone to his rest and reward, welcomed by the Master amidst the acclamations of myriads of children!

“On yonder shore, to greet him, I saw a shining throng;
Some just begun their praising, some had been praising long;
With joy they bade him welcome, and struck their harps again,
While through the heavenly arches peal'd the triumphal strain.”

“Now in a robe of glory, and with a starry crown,
I saw the weary pilgrim with kings and priests sit down;
With prophets, patriarchs, martyrs, and saints a countless throng,
He chants his great deliverance in never-ceasing song.”

In conclusion, Dr. Fletcher was not only a busy and continuous preacher, but he was a prolific writer. The following is a list of his chief works:—

- LECTURES FOR THE YOUNG; 3 vols., demy 18mo. A series of upwards of 100 short discourses intended for children, and originally issued in monthly parts.
- TRUMPETS OF FAITH; a smaller volume, descriptive of early deaths of two members of his seminary, to whom his ministrations had been signally blessed.
- THE CHRISTIAN CONQUEROR; or, the Sinfulness of Scandal; a work especially devoted to the reprobation of this sin.
- THE COTTAGER'S FRIEND; 2 vols., 12mo.; a monthly periodical, comprising brief discourses; also hymns and selected matter of a devotional and instructive tendency.
- THE DEVOTIONAL FAMILY BIBLE; a strictly devotional commentary on the Holy Scriptures, in which an endeavour was made to include remarks upon every verse in the sacred books. It extended to two large quarto volumes, and has been long out of print.
- THE SABBATH SCHOOL PREACHER; a monthly publication, which was intended specially for use in Sunday-schools; it was illustrated with wood engravings, and attained a considerable popularity with the class for which it was prepared.
- ANNUAL SERMONS TO CHILDREN ON CHRISTMAS DAY.—These were usually published in a cheap form, shortly after their delivery, and met with a large sale.
- SCRIPTURE HISTORY; an illustrated work, in two small volumes, in which the principal events of the sacred narrative are simplified for the use of the young.
- SCRIPTURE NATURAL HISTORY; 2 vols.; profusely illustrated with wood engravings of a superior description, to which the author furnished original descriptions, embracing almost every object in natural history named in the Bible.
- THE BIBLE—A GREAT EXHIBITION; a pamphlet brought out at the time of the Exhibition of 1851.
- CLOSET DEVOTIONAL EXERCISES FOR THE YOUNG, 1859.

But his chief work—that by which he is best known—known, indeed, wherever the English language is spoken—known in palace, and hall, and cottage—is the “GUIDE TO FAMILY DEVOTION, containing a Hymn, a portion of Scripture with reflections, and a Prayer, for the Morning and Evening of every day in the year, with an appendix of Prayers and Hymns on various subjects.” This quarto of 800 pages has verified its title, for upwards of fifty thousand copies of it have been sold, and as many families have made it their GUIDE. The hymns are quite in harmony with the selections from Scripture, while the prayers are solemn and earnest, devout and lowly, rich in unction, and diversified in theme. So simple in style are they, that in their naturalness they feel to one who reads them as the spontaneous effusions of his own soul. The children are never forgotten; there is uniformly a special and emphatic petition for them. It would not have been a book of Dr. Fletcher's authorship without the constant outcropping of this life-long love for the young. Dr. Fletcher succeeded so well in this work because he was eminently a devout man himself, who “walked with God.” As an intimate friend of his has said, “His personal piety, I always considered, was the crown of all his excellencies.” His was humble, cheerful, beneficent, and active Christianity. Often was he like the Master “apart” in communion and prayer, and often like Him, going about “doing good.” This brief survey of his long life shows him to have been a man specially qualified for his work, and very greatly blessed in it. His genius—the gift of Him who “took children in His arms and blessed them”—originated and carried out that style of preaching to the young which brought him so much fame, and crowned him with so much usefulness. His work, through pulpit and press, never diverged from the one end—the conversion of sinners and the glory of God. His whole life was a scene which had the cross in its centre and heaven in the distance. In a word, is he not one of those of whom the “voice from heaven” records, “They rest from their labours, and their works do follow them?”

JOHN EADIE.

13, LANSDOWNE CRESCENT, GLASGOW.

June, 1865.

P.S.—I beg to return thanks to the Rev. Dr. Smith for the communications found in the previous pages; to the Rev. Mr. Redpath, for some interesting contributions; and to the Rev. Mr. Blair of Dunblane, from whose researches the life of the elder Fletcher has been to a great extent gleaned.—J.E.

FAMILY DEVOTIONS.

FIRST WEEK.—FIRST SABBATH MORNING OF THE YEAR.

THE RIGHTEOUS AND THE WICKED.

Pou's. Warham.

C. X.

- 1 BLEST is the man who shuns the place
Where sinners love to meet;
Who fears to tread their wicked ways,
And hates the scoffer's seat:
- 2 But in the statutes of the Lord
Has placed his chief delight;
By day he reads or hears the Word,
And meditates by night.
- 3 Green as the leaf, and over fair,
Shall his profession shine,
While fruits of holiness appear
Like clusters on the vine.

WATTS, Ps. 1.

PSALM I.

Happiness of the Godly and Misery of the Wicked.

BLESSED is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful:

2 But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night.

3 And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

4 The ungodly are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

5 Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

6 For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish.

PSALM II.

Prosperity of Christ's Kingdom.

WHY do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing?

2 The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the Lord, and against his Anointed, saying,

3 Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us.

4 He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision.

5 Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath: and vex them in his sore displeasure.

6 Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion.

7 I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee.

8 Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

9 Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

10 Be wise now, therefore, O ye kings; be instructed, ye judges of the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM I.—Let sinners tremble, for there is a melancholy progress in sin! Happy are they who are delivered from its dominion. Sweeter than honey are the enjoyments of unfeigned piety. Lively is the verdure, and abundant the fruitfulness of grace. O, how frightful the situation of graceless souls at the day of death! by the storms of wrath they are driven into the furnace of endless woe! Child of God, rejoice in thy lofty privileges, and bright hopes of eternal glory!

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM II.—Who can conceive the infatuation of sin! Though its servants are only worms of the dust, it leads them forth to fight with Omnipotence. Impenitent sinners, lay down the weapons of your rebellion against God! O, how can you bear the withering derision of an offended Jehovah! Blessed Jesus, thy mediatorial throne is loftier than the thrones of archangels, and thy mediatorial reign shall overspread the earth, and last for ever. Miserable are they who resist thine authority, while a diadem of blessings shall for ever encircle the brow of those who bow before thy sceptre.

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, thou alone art the hearer of prayer, and the object of religious homage. We draw near to thy mercy-seat, as a worshipping family, in the name of Jesus, on the morning of the first Sabbath of a new year. Holy spirit, inspire us with solemnity, humility, and confidence, in our approach to the gracious throne of our God, and our Father in Christ. O Lord, thy name is holy and reverend, and thou art infinitely worthy to receive glory, and honour, and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. Lord, we adore thee as the God of salvation, and as the God of our salvation.

We confess that we are sinners. O humble us in the dust because of our sinfulness. Our souls and our bodies are polluted by the leprosy of sin. Holy Spirit, mercifully wash away the vile polluting stain. O do thou wash us, and then we shall be clean. Deeply impress on our hearts the word of life we have now read. Make us righteous. Preserve us from the counsel, the maxims, the ways, and the example of the ungodly.

O Jesus, thou art the King of Zion; mercifully reign in our hearts; reign in the midst of us as a family; reign in these lands of our nativity, and reign gloriously over all the nations of the earth. Take to thyself thy great power, and reign.

We thank our God for the mercies of the night, and for preserving us during the past year: truly, goodness and mercy have followed us from its commencement to its close. O let the sins of the year be pardoned, and the events of the year be sanctified. Let the mercies of the year excite our love, our gratitude, and praise. Graciously prepare our minds for the solemnities and engagements of this day. As it is the first Sabbath of a new year, may it be the blessed harbinger of all those Sabbaths that are to follow. May the ministers of truth be filled with the Holy Ghost this day. May they be enabled to deliver the messages of peace, with simplicity, boldness, fidelity, and love. Teach them to deliver the threatenings of thy law, that slumbering consciences may be aroused; and to deliver the invitations of thy gospel, that rebel hearts may be captivated and allured.

Bless all in authority over us. Teach them to bow in humble submission at Jesus' feet.

Comfort those who are prevented by affliction from entering thy courts. Let the chamber of suffering prove a sanctuary of mercy.

O let the children and domestics of the family be the loving subjects of a compassionate Saviour.

Most merciful God, hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed the kingdom, power, and glory, for ever. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

REMEMBERING THE WAY GOD HAS LED.

Magdalena. Lewton.

L. M.

- 1 THUS far the Lord hath led me on,
Thus far his pow'r prolongs my days;
And ev'ry ev'ning shall make known
Some fresh memorial of his grace.
- 2 I lay my body down to sleep,
Peace is the pillow for my head;
While well-appointed angels keep Their watchful stations round my bed.
- 3 In vain the sons of earth or hell
Tell me a thousand frightful things;
My God in safety makes me dwell
Beneath the shadow of his wings.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 162.

PSALM III.

The Security of God's Protection.

LORD, how are they increased that trouble me? many are they that rise up against me.

2 Many there be which say of my soul, There is no help for him in God. Selah.

3 But thou, O LORD, art a shield for me; my glory, and the lifter-up of mine head.

4 I cried unto the LORD with my voice, and he heard me out of his holy hill. Selah.

5 I laid me down and slept; I awaked; for the LORD sustained me.

6 I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people that have set themselves against me round about.

7 Arise, O LORD; save me, O my God: for thou hast smitten all mine enemies upon the check-bone; thou hast broken the teeth of the ungodly.

8 Salvation belongeth unto the LORD: thy blessing is upon thy people. Selah.

PSALM IV.

God's Favours.

HEAR me when I call, O God of my righteousness: thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress; have mercy upon me and hear my prayer.

2 O ye sons of men, how long will ye turn my glory into shame? how long will ye love vanity and seek after leasing? Selah.

3 But know that the LORD hath set apart him that is godly for himself: the LORD will hear when I call unto him.

4 Stand in awe, and sin not: commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still. Selah.

5 Offer the sacrifices of righteousness; and put your trust in the LORD.

6 There be many that say, Who will show us any good? LORD, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us.

7 Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased.

8 I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep: for thou, LORD, only makest me dwell in safety.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM III.—King David was an illustrious type of King Jesus. Numerous were the enemies of David when he fled from Jerusalem, before his son Absalom; and numerous were the enemies of Jesus, when he was led from Jerusalem to Calvary. What was said of David, was said of Jesus, in derision, when suspended to the cross: "He trusted in God, let him deliver him now if he will have him." As David was lifted up from the depth of sorrows to his throne, Jesus was lifted from the grave to the highest heavens. Like David, when Jesus was a stranger on earth, he made supplication to God with strong crying. As David slept secure on the bosom of mercy, in the time of great suffering, Jesus fell sweetly asleep on the cross, in full confidence of a glorious resurrection, which could not be prevented by the united efforts of earth and hell.

When God arises in his justice, in answer to the prayer of faith, what an awful destruction awaits the enemies of the Church! There is no saviour like God! for when he saves, none can destroy; and when he destroys, none can save.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM IV.—Gracious deliverances in past time encourage the saints to continued earnestness in prayer. Great is the enmity of the wicked against the righteous, but their interest in God's favour and protection is infinitely more than a recompense for all that man may do unto them. A profound reverence of God, holy meditations, spiritual sacrifices, and confidence in the Most High, are a blessed preventive of sin. They who forsake God in seeking happiness, prefer the salt desert to the living fountain. Unsanctified wealth is a gilded curse—it is a sweet and an inebriating deadly poison; while true religion gives joy, safety, and peace. It presents the foretastes of heaven, and prepares for the full enjoyment of celestial bliss.

PRAYER.

HEAVENLY Father, we would now, with humility and confidence, approach thy throne of grace, in the name of Christ. Thou art the God of our salvation; we desire, therefore, to trust, and not to be afraid. O look down upon us with smiles of forgiving love, and show compassion to a family bowing prostrate before thy mercy-seat.

Fill us with holy penitence when we remember that thou art our omniscient God. Our hearts, our conversation, and lives are naked and open before thee. O Lord, thou hast searched and known us. Thou compassed our path and lying down, and art acquainted with all our ways; for there is not a word in our tongue, but lo! O Lord, thou knowest it altogether. Lord, we confess our sinfulness and guilt: in thy great mercy, blot out all our transgressions, through the boundless merit of our Saviour's blood.

Blessed God, we thank thee for the Sabbath-day, the best of all the week; for the Bible, the treasure of eternal truth; for the sanctuary, where the King is seen in his beauty; and for the ministers of the gospel, who are the heralds of eternal truth. O suffer us not to die in the contempt and abuse of privileges so great.

We praise thee that the gospel of our Saviour has been proclaimed by thousands, and heard by tens of thousands, this day. Holy Spirit, breathe upon the incorruptible seed which has been sown on many hearts: O cause thine influences copiously to descend, and let an abundant harvest of spiritual fruit follow. Lord, we plead for an increasing descent of the Spirit upon the hearers of the gospel, and for an extensive revival of unfeigned piety in our withered churches. Those who have been convinced of sin this day, may their convictions be soon followed by conversion. Those who have been converted this day, O bless them with rapid improvement in every grace, and make them distinguished blessings of the Christian Church. Show pity to such as remain hardened and insensible under a preached gospel. Suffer them not to die till they have fled for refuge to Jesus, the sinner's friend.

We supplicate the Divine blessing on the word now read. Suffer us not to be afraid of the number or strength of our enemies. O Jesus, be thou our shield, and then of whom can we be afraid? We rejoice that salvation belongs to our God; and as a family may thy richest blessings ever rest upon us. Suffer us not to be ensnared by the example of those who love and follow after vanity. Instruct us in the profitable lessons of meditation and self-examination. Teach us to prefer piety to wealth, and the prospects of heaven to all the perishing luxuries and pleasures of time.

Bless us as a family, and may the children be the followers of the lowly Jesus.

Now, Lord, may we lie down in peace, and sleep. Hear this our evening prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S GREATNESS.

Watts. Metre.

L. M.

- 1 UP to the Lord that reigns on high,
And views the nations from afar,
Let everlasting praises fly,
And tell how large his bounties are.
- 2 He that can shake the worlds he made,
Or with his word, or with his rod,
His goodness how amazing great!
And what a condescending God!

WATTS, 46; B. II.

GENESIS I.

Creation.

IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep: and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.

5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

16 And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth,

18 And to rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

19 And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

21 And God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And God blessed them, saying, Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

26 And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

27 So God created man in his own image: in the image of God created he him: male and female created he them.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. I.—My soul, think and wonder! The wisdom of Jehovah contrived the plan of the universe, and the plan included every particle of matter of which the universe consists. O, the depth of the riches of the wisdom of God! His power is equal to his wisdom. What his wisdom contrives, his power accomplishes. At his command light shines, and the firmament covers the globe as a canopy of glory. "The voice of the Lord is powerful!" At his command the waters and the dry land separate, and soon the loveliest verdure and luxuriant cover the face of the earth. At his command innumerable orbs of light are kindled in the heavens, and living creatures suited to the elements of water, earth, and air, teem forth in countless myriads. The voice of the Lord is powerful. Last of all, when the earth is furnished as a noble palace, at his command does man come forth, glorious in excellency, and the very image of his God. The world is given to him as a kingdom, and he is invested with sovereign dominion over every living thing. My soul, see in this creation the emblem of a second, when by the power of the Holy Spirit, a new heaven and a new earth shall arise, wherein dwelleth righteousness. Blessed are they whose souls are the subjects of a second creation. They shall reflect the glory of the divine perfections with greater splendour than countless stars will sparkle in the sky.

PRAYER.

O THOU who art the Creator of the universe and the God of salvation, we appear before thy throne of grace to present our morning sacrifice in the name of Jesus. God the Father, we adore thee in thy creating power. Thou hast founded the earth upon the seas, and the heavens are the work of thy fingers. God the Son, we adore thee in thy creating power. All things were made by thee, and without thee was not any thing made that was made. Holy Spirit, we adore thee in thy creating power. Thou didst move upon the face of the waters; thou hast garnished the heavens, and hast given them their sparkling glory.

Triune Jehovah, we praise thee for creating us at first intelligent, holy, and blessed. Glory to thy name that thou hast given us a place among thy rational creatures, and that our souls are impressed with immortality.

Lord, open our eyes to admire thy glorious creation. When we look upon thy works, may this be the language of our wondering souls: "O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!" And when we lift up our eyes to the heavens, may we acknowledge with deep humility, What is man that thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest him?

Praise to our God that there is a second creation, more glorious than the first. O, we adore that wisdom which contrived a plan of salvation, by which our fallen race might be created anew in Christ Jesus. We would rejoice that thy glory is displayed in the first creation; but we would greatly rejoice that all thine attributes are far more wondrously displayed in redemption, the second creation. We thank thee that the tidings of redemption have reached our ears, and that from our earliest days we have listened to the joyful sound. In thy sovereignty this privilege has been withheld from others, but in thy mercy it has been granted to us. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

We thank thee for thy providential care during the past night, and that we are now surrounding the domestic altar in comfort and in peace. We thank thee for continuing with us the invaluable blessings of life, health, and reason. O teach us to pity those from whom the blessings of health and of reason are withdrawn. Merciful Saviour, pity them! We thank our God for the Bible, the means of grace, the mercy-seat, the hopes of heaven; but above all the rest, we thank our God for Jesus, thine unspeakable gift. O, what can we render to the Lord, for such undeserved mercies as these!

O Lord, we supplicate thy salvation. While we pray for temporal mercies, we would most earnestly plead for spiritual blessings. Make every member of this family the subject of a new creation. O give us the imperishable honour, of being the spiritual workmanship of our God.

Make the children new creatures. O, bestow upon them and all our household, the loveliness of grace!

We are entering on another week; prepare us for its duties, its comforts, and its crosses. This day may we walk with thee. Mercifully answer our prayers for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

ANGELS PUNISHED AND MAN SAVED.

Charmouth. Ann's.

C. M.

- 1 DOWN headlong from their native skies
The rebel angels fell,
And thunderbolts of flaming wrath
Pursued them down to hell.
- 2 Down from the top of earthly bliss
Rebellious man was hurled;
And Jesus stooped beneath the grave,
To reach a sinking world.
- 3 O love of infinite degree!
Unmeasurable grace!
Must heaven's eternal darling die
To save a traitorous race?

WATTS, 96, B. II.

MATTHEW I.

Birth of Christ.

THE book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

18 Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost.

19 Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost.

21 And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins.

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

23 Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel; which being interpreted is, God with us.

24 Then Joseph, being raised from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And she brought forth her first-born son: and he called his name JESUS.

MATTHEW II.

NOW when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,

2 Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

3 When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it written by the prophet,

6 And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. I.—Christ's natural descent can be traced, but who can declare his divine generation? O the depth of the mystery! My soul, rejoice in the incarnation and birth of Jesus. Amazing love: he became man, to save man. Christ's humanity, though spotless, passed through a sinful ancestry, to show he came to take the sins of man away. Great doubts are sometimes connected with great mercies, but fellowship with God dispels the darkest clouds of the greatest perplexity. Blessed art thou, O my soul, if the names Jesus and Immanuel are to thee as ointment poured forth.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. II.—Greatly honoured was the town of Bethlehem; it was the birth-place of David—it was the birth-place of Jesus, David's root, and David's offspring. O Jesus, thou bright and morning star, the stars obey and honour thee, for one of them led wise men to the spot of thy humble nativity. They are truly wise who seek Christ; and they who seek him, shall find and enjoy the costliest jewel in the universe of God.

PRAYER.

EVERLASTING God, and Father in Christ, we desire to approach thy blessed throne, with solemnity, gratitude, and praise. In the name of Jesus, we draw near to present our evening sacrifice. Holy Spirit, teach us to bless our God at all times, and let his praise be continually in our mouth. In thee, O Lord, our soul would make our boast: we will magnify thee, O Lord, and we will exalt thy name together.

Holy and Divine Spirit, enable us to confess our sins with unfeigned sincerity of heart. We would say in the language of Ezra, O our God, we are ashamed and blush to lift up our face to thee, our God, for our iniquities have gone over our heads, and our trespass is gone up to the heavens. With penitence we would pray—Lord, sanctify us; merciful Father, pardon us. We would lay the hand of faith on the head of Christ our paschal Lamb: on that head we confess our iniquity, and through his blood we seek forgiveness. O melt our hearts with contrition, and comfort our souls with pardon.

O bless to our minds the sacred history of the birth of Jesus. Glory to God in the highest, for the Child born, and for the Son given. Teach us to rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory, that Jesus, the promised Saviour and thine eternal Son, has actually visited our world. Merciful Redeemer, we adore and praise thee that thou didst take upon thee our nature, and appear on earth as the humble, the feeble, infant of days. O let our hearts be filled with amazement and love, that thou, the mighty Lord of the universe, didst submit to be born in a stable, and to be laid in a manger. O suffer us never, never to doubt of thy willingness to save, seeing thou didst most readily submit to such humiliation and degradation for us.

Immanuel, God with us, thy name is Jesus, the Saviour. May every member of our family savingly know this name—this blessed name. May it be dearer to us than the names of the dearest of our earthly friends. May it be like ointment poured forth. O may this name refresh and comfort our souls, travelling along the vale of tears, to our heavenly home beyond the skies.

O Lord, we mourn over the horrid depravity of man, who sought the life of the infant Jesus; but at the same time we praise thee that thou didst bring men from distant lands to pay their homage at his feet. O Jesus, we bow before thee, and would acknowledge thee as our Lord, our Saviour, our King.

God of our salvation, we thank thee for the mercies of another day; for providing mercy, preserving mercy, and sparing mercy.

O Jesus, open the eyes of our children and domestics to see thy loveliness, and their absolute need of thy salvation.

Father of mercies, may the name of Jesus soon be proclaimed in every land, and gladden all the nations of the earth. O let thy name refresh the souls of the sick, the afflicted, and the dying. We commend ourselves to thy care, this night. O hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE CHURCH A GARDEN.

Kimbolton. Martin's.

L. M.

- 1 WE are a garden walled around,
Chosen, and made peculiar ground;
A little spot enclosed by grace
Out of the world's wide wilderness.
- 2 Like trees of myrrh and spice we stand,
Planted by God the Father's hand,
And all his springs in Zion flow,
To make the young plantation grow.
- 3 Awake, O heavenly wind, and come,
Blow on this garden of perfume;
Spirit divine, descend and breathe
A gracious gale on plants beneath.

Watts, 74, B. I.

GENESIS II.

Garden of Eden.

THUS the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them.

2 And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made: and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

3 And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it; because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made.

4 These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth, when they were created; in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens.

5 And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the Lord God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

6 But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

7 And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

8 And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden: and there he put the man whom he had formed.

10 And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat:

17 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.

18 And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him.

21 And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.

22 And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.

23 And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man.

24 Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. II.—How soon the Sabbath was announced, that day which is the blessed emblem of the rest of heaven! Great was the beneficence of Jehovah; for when he had prepared and furnished the earth as a magnificent palace, he introduced man as the inhabitant, shining in all the loveliness of the Divine image. Let me see in the earthly paradise a figure of the heavenly. But, O, how infinitely the latter exceeds the former! In the one were trees which cease to grow, but in the other stands the tree of life, in all the grandeur of eternal beauty. In the one were rivers which cease to flow, but in the other is the river of life, clear as crystal, which proceeds for ever from the throne of God and the Lamb. The first Adam was raised to sovereignty, and all the inferior tribes acknowledged his authority. They came to him and received suitable names, as a token of their obedient submission. Jesus, thy dominion has no limits, and thy people, called by thy name, shall for ever rejoice under the sway of thy merciful sceptre. One thing remained to complete Adam's earthly bliss. He was alone: That he might enjoy social delight, and be assisted in the worshipping of God, his Creator formed out of his own body a woman of unspeakable loveliness, and immaculate holiness, and united them together by ties of the most endearing affection.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we rejoice that while thou sittest upon the throne of universal empire, thou dost also fill the throne of grace. Praise to thy glorious name, that thou art ever ready to hear the prayers of individuals and families, who appear before thee under the blessed covert of the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son. Holy Spirit, enable us at this time to prostrate ourselves before the throne of grace, with humility, reverence, joy, and praise. Mercifully, O Lord, rejoice the souls of thy servants, for unto thee do we lift up our souls. O, how we are encouraged to lift up our eyes unto thee, for thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy to all them who call upon thee in truth. Among the gods there is none like unto thee, neither are there any works like unto thy works.

In some degree sensible of our unworthiness, we present our thanks for thy renewed mercies during another night. While many have tossed upon their beds with pain, we thank thee that we have been refreshed with sleep. Great is thy mercy, that we are now surrounding the domestic altar. Let the dew of Divine influence descend upon that portion of the Word of life we have now read. We thank thee for the pleasing history which it contains of the institution of the holy Sabbath. O, Jesus, thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day. Glory to thy name, for this most blessed day, and for the encouraging example thou hast placed before us in resting on that day. Ever may thy Sabbath prove to us a day of rest. O Lord, we desire to pity those numerous nations of the earth which have never heard of a Christian Sabbath, nor enjoyed its benefits. Lord of the Sabbath-day, show compassion towards them, and soon cause the heavenly light of this blessed day to shine upon them with all its influence, and all its glory. O let thy Sabbath be more valued and sanctified by Christian nations. Remove from our land, and all lands, the highly aggravated sin of Sabbath profanation. As a family, may we present to other families the example of remembering the Sabbath-day to keep it holy.

Holy Spirit, impress on our minds the account we have now read of an earthly Eden,—a terrestrial paradise. We adore thee in the displays of thy goodness, which were given by that paradise for the accommodation and happiness of man. We thank thee, more especially, for a celestial Eden, a land of pure delight and immaculate holiness, where the tree of life grows in all its glorious magnificence, and where King Jesus is seen in all his beauty. O may all of us be the inhabitants of that heavenly Eden; may we drink of the river of life, which flows through the midst of it from thine eternal throne.

Divine Redeemer, incline the hearts of the children to desire and seek that heavenly habitation.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the creation of Adam and Eve, our original parents. Teach us to see in their endearing relation in innocence, a figure of the infinitely more endearing relation of Christ and his Church.

Graciously assist us in the various duties of this day. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake Amen.

BIRTH OF JESUS.

Coombs. Derby. Bromley.

L. M.

- 1 THE lands that long in darkness lay,
Now have beheld a heavenly light:
Nations that sat in death's cold shade
Are blest with beams divinely bright.
- 2 The virgin's promis'd Son is born,
Behold the expected Child appear;
What shall his names or titles be?
'The Wonderful, the Counsellor.'
- 3 This infant is the mighty God,
Come to be suckled and adored;
The eternal Father, Prince of Peace,
The Son of David, and his Lord.

WATTS, 13, D. I.

MATTHEW II.

Herod's Cruelty.

THEN Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 When they had heard the king, they departed; and lo! the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

12 And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

13 And when they were departed, behold! the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

15 And was there until the death of Herod, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.

16 Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently enquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, 18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

19 But when Herod was dead, behold! an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Arise and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.

22 But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judea in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. II.—My soul, beware of hypocrisy, or of concealing wicked purposes under holy professions. Unspeakable the joy of those who find Christ after they have long and earnestly sought him. O Jesus, be thou the beloved of my soul. If Jesus is mine and I am his, my person, substance, and all will be laid at his feet. God is the defender of his people, and gives gracious warnings, which issue in their safety and deliverance. O, how easily he can overturn the plans of enemies the most crafty and malignant! What a monster is man, when under the dominion of impetuous lusts and disappointed ambition! His tender mercies are cruel. "Tall it not in Gath!" God is a just judge, and with the besom of death sweeps persecuting murderers from the face of the earth into the depths of hell. But their destruction issues in the triumph of the redeemed. Alas! how often the vices of the parent are imitated by their children! Strange to tell, God overrules the crimes of men to bring about the accomplishment of his decrees, predictions, and promises.

PRAYER.

O GRACIOUS and heavenly Father, thou art infinitely exalted above the conception of men and angels. Nevertheless, in the all-prevailing name of Jesus, our Divine intercessor, we draw near to thee as a family to present our evening sacrifice. How worth, art thou to be feared, and to be held in reverence, for thou art the everlasting God, the Lord, and the Creator of the ends of the earth. Thou upholdest the universe, and yet thou faintest not, neither art weary; there is no searching of thine understanding. O, with what justice thou mightest have revealed thyself to us as an avenging God! but eternal praises to thy name, thou hast made thyself known as a God ready to forgive, as gracious, merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness.

We desire, with grateful hearts, to thank thee for the mercies of another day. While with justice it might have been a day of judgments, in thy great kindness it has been a day of mercies. What shall we render unto thee for all thy benefits!

Holy Spirit, enable us highly to value the privilege of reading the Word of life. Greatly bless, and deeply impress on our hearts, what we have now read in the oracles of eternal truth. We thank thee, O Jesus, O Lamb of God, that in the fulness of time, thou didst visit our fallen, wretched world. We praise thee that thou wast born in Bethlehem, agreeably to the prophecies which cheered the hearts and animated the hopes of an Old Testament church. We would bless thee for ever and ever, that thou hast remembered us in our low estate, for thy mercy endureth for ever.

Spirit of the living God, inspire our hearts with love to Jesus. When we remember his love, in becoming the Babe of Bethlehem for us, we would cry, O inspire us with love to Jesus! When we remember the love of the wise men, who came from distant eastern lands to see Jesus, to worship him, and to pay their homage at his feet, we would cry, O inspire us with increasing love to Jesus! Let the language of our hearts be, We would see Jesus. Lead us, O lead us, to see Jesus in his Word, in his ordinances, and in his sanctuary. And in due time may we see him in his heaven, in all the splendours of his divinity, and in all the majesty of his mediatorial glory. O Jesus, the wise men laid their willing offerings at thy feet; teach us to follow their example, and present our souls and bodies as living sacrifices at thy feet. Divine Redeemer, as the mysterious star led the wise men to see thee in Bethlehem, do thou thyself, the bright and morning STAR, lead us to heaven. Mercifully grant that we may now say, with all the affection of our inmost soul, Having a desire to depart, and be with Christ, which is far better.

Blessed Saviour, let the remembrance of thy exile in Egypt fill us with wonder, love, and praise. Make us willing, for thy sake, to suffer exile and death.

Compassionate Jesus, who thyself wast once a little child, have mercy on our children.

Father of mercies, let the wings of thy gracious power be spread over us this night. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GOD UNSEARCHABLE.

Paul's. Dresden.

L. M.

- 1 CAN creatures to perfection find
The eternal uncreated Mind?
Or can the largest stretch of thought
Measure and search his nature out?
- 2 'Tis high as heaven, 'tis deep as hell,
And what can mortals know or tell?
His glory spreads beyond the sky,
And all the shining worlds on high.
- 3 But man, vain man, would fain be wise;
Born like a wild young colt he flies
Through all the follies of his mind,
And swells, and snuffs the empty wind.

Watts, 170, B. I

GENESIS III.

The Fall of Man.

NOW the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

2 And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

3 But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

4 And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die.

5 For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

6 And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her: and he did eat.

7 And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig-leaves together, and made themselves aprons.

8 And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden.

9 And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?

12 And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

13 And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

14 And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life.

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. III.—What a change! We have lately beheld and admired the beneficence of God shining in the spotless glory of Eden, but now we see that paradise defiled by the crooked serpent of hell, and the mother of all living entangled in the coils of his temptations! She is not alone. Her husband, the lord of the lower world, the covenant head of millions, is caught in the snare, and his glory buried in the dust. Ashamed at the nakedness of their bodies, and agonized with the moral nakedness of their souls, they attempt to hide themselves from their own eyes, they vainly attempt to hide themselves from the omniscient eye of God. God finds them out. Their iniquity finds them out. See, they stand as confounded, convicted criminals, before the presence of their offended Creator. Three curses are pronounced by the divine and insulted Judge on the serpent, the woman, and the man. But lo! two of these curses are mingled with the music of mercy, and the dark gloom is broken by the bright beams of the promise of a Saviour and salvation, to appear in distant ages. Rejoice, my soul, though Eve is the mother of a world of fallen millions, yet through the atonement made by her seed, the promised Messiah, countless myriads of her descendants shall be arrayed in a robe of righteousness, which will hide and remove the deformity of sin, and introduce them into a heavenly paradise, from which they shall never be expelled.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, we desire as a family to fall prostrate at thy feet in Jesus' name. At the beginning of another day, may we enjoy delightful fellowship with thyself in the exercise of prayer. O send us thy Spirit! O Lord, thou art a God of purer eyes than to behold iniquity: thou art unchangeable in thy justice, and boundless in thy grace. We adore thee in the displays of the justice thou didst give, in expelling our first parents from the paradise of Eden. Glory to thy grace, thou didst not plunge them into the depths of hell.

Glorious Lord God, we acknowledge with humility our fall in Adam. We were born with his image; alas! we have followed his example, and we have wandered from our God. O teach us to mourn over the spectacle of sin and rebellion and misery which our world presents. Thou art just in all the calamities which have befallen our apostate race. It is of thy mercy we are not consumed.

Glory to thy sovereign grace, O Lord, that thou didst proclaim mercy and forgiveness to our first parents in their affliction and despair, when they expected every moment the sentence of eternal death to be inflicted upon them with all its horrors. Eternal praise to thy name, that thou didst make the day-star of hope and of joy to rise on their souls. We thank thee for giving them the first promise, I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed: it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel. O, we rejoice, that then thou didst reveal to our first parents the Messiah, by whose atoning sacrifice the guilt of sin was destined to be taken away, Satan's kingdom overturned, and an infinitely better paradise obtained than that which their apostacy had lost. O fill our hearts with superlative love to that Jesus, who at the distance of thousands of years has actually appeared, and suffered, and died, and triumphed, according to the divine prediction.

O Jesus, may every member of our family enjoy a saving interest in that ancient, that blessed promise. May we be delivered from Satan's power, and by faith trample upon his neck.

O teach the children of the family to resist the temptations of the wicked one: then he will flee from them. Suffer them not to listen to his alluring voice, or to be carried away by his captivating wiles. Clothe them, O Jesus, with the whole armour of God.

God of salvation, we earnestly pray that all the nations of the earth, both Jews and Gentiles, may soon be delivered from the consequences of the fall, and become the ransomed subjects of King Jesus.

We thank a gracious Providence for the rest and protection of the past night. Holy Spirit, assist us in the duties, and preserve us from the temptations of the day. May our path be that of the just. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, be endless praises. Amen.

TITLES OF CHRIST.

Alle Street. Redemption.

L. II

- 1 TIS from the treasures of his word
I borrow titles for my Lord ;
Nor art nor nature can supply
Sufficient forms of majesty.
- 2 Bright image of the Father's face,
Shining with undiminished rays ;
The eternal God's eternal Son,
The heir and partner of his throne.
- 3 The King of kings, the Lord most high,
Writes his own name upon his thigh ;
He wears a garment dipp'd in blood,
And breaks the nations with his rod.

Watts, 147, B. I.

MATTHEW III.

John the Baptist.

IN those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea,

2 And saying, Repent ye : for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

4 And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins ; and his meat was locusts and wild honey.

5 Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan,

6 And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come ?

8 Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance :

9 And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father : for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

10 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees : therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

11 I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance : but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear : he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire :

12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner ; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.

13 Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.

14 But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me ?

15 And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now : for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

16 And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water : and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him :

17 And lo a voice from heaven, saying This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. III.—How simple the institution of preaching, and how transcendent its effects ! But we never can reach the heights of spiritual enjoyment, if we have not passed through the valley of repentance. May we be earnest to resemble the forerunner of Christ in zeal, humility, and contempt of earthly pleasures. How blessed it is when the hearing of the Word is accompanied with conversion, which is the baptism of the Spirit. If ministers wish their labours to be successful, they must proclaim the miseries of hell as faithfully as the joys of heaven ; they must expose the refuges of lies ; they must proclaim the glory of Christ, and hold him up to view, not only as a present Saviour, but as a future Judge. As Jesus, in submitting to be baptized of John, fulfilled all righteousness, let me faithfully walk in all the ordinances and commandments of the Lord blameless ; and thus I may expect the gracious descent of the Holy Spirit, and enjoy the countenance and approbation of heaven.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, enable us by thy gracious power to approach the throne of our God, in the name of the Son of his love. Exalted Jehovah, we acknowledge thy glorious majesty. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty ; for all that is in the heaven and the earth is thine. Thine is the kingdom, and thou art exalted as head above all. Thy majesty is a terror to thine impenitent enemies ; but thy majesty, manifested in Jesus, fills the minds of thy people with joy and peace.

Holy Spirit, we humbly implore thy rich and effectual blessing on the portion of Scripture we have now read. Graciously teach us to rejoice in the clear fulfilment of thy promise to the Old Testament church, by sending John the Baptist as the herald of the Saviour, to prepare the way of the Lord. We praise thee, that the voice of one crying in the wilderness was heard by thousands ; and that the proclamation, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God, fell with awful solemnity upon the ears of listening multitudes. May our hearts be most deeply affected, O Lord, by the history of the baptism of thy well-beloved Son. O enable us to admire the manifestation then given of a glorious and mysterious Trinity. God the Son, we adore thee, who, in thy humanity, submitted to be baptized of John. God the Father, we adore thee who proclaimed from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. God the Holy Ghost, we adore thee, that thou didst descend in the form of a dove, and didst rest upon our Saviour's head.

Lord, we confess that we are polluted and vile, and that we daily need to be baptized by the Holy Spirit. O make us a baptized family, purified, sanctified, adorned by divine grace. Let our pride, our enmity, our unbelief, our carnality, our earthly-mindedness, our selfishness be washed away. O let the Spirit that rested on Jesus rest on us. Heavenly Dove, most mercifully descend upon us, and spread over us the wings of thy fostering influence and thy comforting grace.

Merciful Father, be the Father of our offspring ; teach them at Jesus' feet the blessed lesson of early repentance ; baptize them with the Holy Ghost, and adorn them with the beauties of holiness.

O let all of us be instructed in that repentance which John the Baptist taught. O teach us to mourn over our sins, and at the same time to loathe and forsake them. May it be our great privilege, to bring forth fruits meet for repentance. And may we resemble John in humility, zeal, self-denial, and holiness. Alas ! that we have so long produced in our life "grapes that are gall, and clusters that are bitter." Holy Spirit, let it be so no more, for ever.

Father of our spirits, we commend ourselves and our relatives to thy care this night ; and may we lie down upon our beds, thankful for the mercies of the past day. O let these our prayers come up before thee with acceptance, for Jesus' sake, our Redeemer and Advocate. Amen.

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

SINCERITY.

Kingbridge. Pauls.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, thou hast seen my soul sincere,
Hast made thy truth and love appear:
Before mine eyes I set thy laws,
And thou hast owned my righteous cause.
- 2 Since I have learnt thy holy ways,
I've walked upright before thy face;
Or if my feet did e'er depart,
'Twas never with a wicked heart.
- 3 What sore temptations broke my rest!
What wars and strugglings in my breast!
But through thy grace that reigns within,
I guard against my darling sin.

Watts, Ps. 18, p. 11.

GENESIS IV.

Death of Abel.

AND Eve conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord.

2 And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

3 And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord.

4 And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel, and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.

6 And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

8 And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.

9 And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand;

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the Lord, My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass, that every one that findeth me shall slay me.

15 And the Lord said unto him, Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him seven-fold. And the Lord set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

16 And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice; ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man to my hurt.

24 If Cain shall be avenged seven-fold, truly Lamech seventy and seven fold.

25 And Eve bare a son, and called his name Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

26 And to Seth, to him also there was born a son; and he called his name Enos: then began men to call upon the name of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. IV.—Often, alas! the fond hopes of parents are most painfully disappointed. Some families furnish striking displays of Divine sovereignty: one member is iniquity personified, another is an ornament of grace; one is a proud formalist, and another presents before God the worship of the heart. O what a difference betwixt those who are born after the flesh, and those who are born after the spirit! See the ferocious malevolence of the former, and the love and meekness of the latter. How soon the effects of sin's gloomy reign appeared on earth! We see them in the jealousy of Cain, leading him to hate his brother, and imbrue his hands in his innocent blood; we see them in the death of Abel, and in the agonies of an accusing conscience, which followed the inhuman murderer to the grave. It is very surprising that Lamech, who furnished the first example of polygamy, was a murderer. What a sad picture is presented by the early history of man! it exhibits a rapid growth of those arts which promote vanity and luxury, and a proportionate decay of the fear of God. But, in the midst of this gloom, we see in Seth a witness raised up to proclaim the praises of the Eternal.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, whom angels love, adore, and praise, mercifully accept of our acknowledgments of thankfulness, for refreshing us during the past night, with sleep upon our beds, and that we are privileged to see the light of another day.

Lord God, we desire to stand in awe of thy glorious majesty. Who is like unto thee, O Lord, glorious in holiness, and fearful in praises? Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; truly, thou art to be feared above all gods.

Holy Spirit, may the dew of thy divine influence accompany the Word of life we have now read. May it be our blessing to have thy Word hid in our heart; then shall we not sin against thee. Let the interesting history of holy Abel prove very profitable to our souls. Like him, may we be filled with the spirit of ardent devotion. Like him, may we serve the Lord sincerely, and present sacrifices of righteousness. Like him, may we look for acceptance only through Jesus, the promised seed. Like him, may we continue in the service and worship of our God till we die; and, when we have finished our mortal course, ascend to heavenly mansions, to be ever with the Lord. Suffer not our services to be hypocritical, cold, and formal, like those of Cain; but may the fire of true religion burn in our bosom, that our souls may be temples of the Holy Ghost, and illuminated with the light of heaven. Hear, searching God, we confess that we were born in sin in the likeness of the first Adam. O may we be born again in holiness and love, in the likeness of Jesus, the second Adam. We acknowledge that the seeds of every vile and hateful passion exist in our bosom. If thy mercy had not prevented, we might, like Cain, have committed deeds of cruelty and blood. We thank thee for restraining grace. May we be blest, in addition, with renewing grace. Evermore give us, and all our relations and friends, this grace. O give us this, else we die.

Have mercy on our dear children. Give them a tender conscience, and merciful, affectionate hearts. O may they avoid the vices of Cain, and resemble the graces of Abel.

Lord, sanctify to our minds the remembrance of the crimes of Cain and of Lamech. May this remembrance teach us to mourn over the sad and fatal consequences of the fall. Give us the pleasing evidence that our minds are renewed. Let our corruptions be destroyed, and our sins forgiven. O preserve us from horror of conscience, that we may be prevented from falling into despair; and deliver us from seariness of conscience, that we may not be destroyed upon the rock of presumption. May we have faith in Christ, and that peace with God which passeth all understanding. Lord, guide and assist us in all the engagements of the day. Mercifully hear our prayer and forgive our sins, for the dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

SATAN THE TEMPTER.

Workshop.

C. M.

- 1 I HATE the tempter and his charms,
I hate his flattering breath;
The serpent takes a thousand forms
To cheat our souls to death.
- 2 He feeds our hopes with airy dreams,
Or kills with slavish fear;
And holds us still in wide extremes,
Presumption or despair.
- 3 Almighty God, cut short his power,
Let him in darkness dwell;
And, that he vex the earth no more,
Confine him down to hell.

Watts, 156, B. II.

MATTHEW IV.

Jesus tempted of the Devil.

THEN was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

2 And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred.

3 And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread.

4 But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

5 Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple.

6 And saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee: and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

7 Jesus said unto him, it is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

8 Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them.

9 And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.

10 Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

11 Then the devil leaveth him, and, behold, angels came and ministered unto him.

17 From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

18 And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

19 And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.

20 And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

21 And going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee, their father, mending their nets: and he called them.

22 And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.

23 And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. IV.—Our Saviour sympathizes with his people in their temptations, for he has felt the same. More dreadful temptations were never presented before the mind of any saint, than those which were presented before the spotless mind of Jesus. Doubting of his filial relation to the Father, presumption, self-murder, inordinate worldly ambition, and the worshipping of the devil, are a specimen of the temptations with which the arch-enemy assailed our immaculate Redeemer. But the billows of temptation dashed in vain against the Rock of ages. Like our Saviour, let us employ the sword of the Spirit in resisting the tempter, and like him we shall compel the devil to depart, and obtain the assistance and consolation of angels. When the sun of John the Baptist sets, the Sun of righteousness speedily arises, and spreads over numerous regions the beams of eternal truth. Irresistible is the power of Jesus, in calling and preparing men the most unlikely, to become the heralds of his salvation. Blessed Saviour, draw us, and we will run after thee. What an illustration of mercy is the life of Christ! In his journeys of mercy, disease, torments, and devils fled from his presence; and at his command health, happiness, and joy came forth, and gladdened the hearts of thousands. Holy Spirit, let this Saviour be mine!

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS and heavenly Father, we unite in thanking thee for bringing us in safety to the close of another day; and we rejoice that we are now permitted to appear before thee, in the name of Jesus, to present our evening prayer.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that we are weak, and beset by numerous and powerful temptations. But we rejoice thou art a God of gracious and almighty power. Thou art ever willing to extend the arm of thy grace, for the deliverance of thy tempted and afflicted people. Thine eyes, O Lord, run to and fro through all the earth, to show thyself strong in behalf of those whose heart is upright before thee. Thy hand is on all them for good that seek thee; but thy power and wrath is against all them that forsake thee.

O Jesus, we thank thee, that, for accomplishing thy gracious purposes, and the ends of thy mission, thou didst submit to endure the sufferings of an awful conflict with the powers of darkness. O sanctify to us thy blessed example in nobly resisting and in triumphantly subduing the foe. O thou who knowest what sore temptations are, give us thy gracious pity in our temptations. Teach us to believe that we have thy sympathy in all our sufferings, and that in all our afflictions thou art afflicted. Thou hast placed before us a blessed example, may it be our honour and delight ever to follow thee, as the Captain of our salvation.

We desire, O Lord, to feel humbled in the dust, that we have so often fallen into temptation. Alas! in many instances we have not resisted the tempter, but have willingly submitted to his wiles. Like Peter, we have sometimes trusted in our own strength, instead of relying on the arm of almighty and promised grace. Eternal praises to sovereign mercy, that we were not cut down in the midst of temptation, and cast into the lowest hell.

O merciful God, through the merit of our Saviour's blood, forgive our sins, the sins of our relatives, the sins of our neighbourhood, the sins of the congregation, and the sins of our nation. O forgive our secret sins, our open sins, our presumptuous sins. Mercifully say to each one of us, I have forgiven thee.

Divine Saviour, extend thy pity to the children of our family. As they are not aware of the temptations which are before them, nor of their own weakness, by which they are unable of themselves to resist them, O give them early grace, that they may be able to stand in the trying hour.

Most merciful God, when we are assailed by temptation, graciously fulfil in our experience thy promise, that thou wilt not suffer thy people to be tempted above that they are able to bear; but with the temptation, thou wilt also make a way of escape. O Lord, fulfil this promise. Show compassion to all afflicted and tempted souls, who are now struggling with Satan in the wilderness, and tormented with his fiery darts. And soon may the day arrive, when Jews and Gentiles—when the whole earth shall be delivered from the despotism and temptations of the wicked one.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the mercies of the day, spiritual and temporal, and now commit ourselves to thy paternal care this night. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GOD INVISIBLE.

Rippon's. Hotham. Lebanon.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, we are blind, we mortals blind,
We can't behold thy bright abode;
O 'tis beyond a creature mind
To glance a thought half way to God.
- 2 Infinite leagues beyond the sky
The great Eternal reigns alone,
Where neither wings nor soul can fly,
Nor angels climb the topless throne.
- 3 The Lord of Glory builds his seat
Of gems insufferably bright,
And lays beneath his sacred feet
Substantial beams of gloomy night.

WATTS, 26, B. 11.

GENESIS V.

Genealogy of the Patriarchs before the Flood.

THIS is the book of the generations of Adam. In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made he him; 2 Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.

3 And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son, in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth:

4 And the days of Adam after he had begotten Seth, were eight hundred years: and he begat sons and daughters:

5 And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died.

6 And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and begat Enos:

7 And Seth lived after he begat Enos eight hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters:

8 And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years: and he died.

9 And Enos lived ninety years, and begat Cainan:

10 And Enos lived after he begat Cainan eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat sons and daughters:

11 And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years: and he died.

12 And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begat Methuselah:

13 And Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters:

14 And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years:

15 And Enoch walked with God: and he was not, for God took him.

16 And Methuselah lived an hundred eighty and seven years, and begat Lamech.

17 And Methuselah lived after he begat Lamech seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters:

18 And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years: and he died.

19 And Lamech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son:

20 And he called his name Noah, saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which the Lord hath cursed.

21 And Lamech lived after he begat Noah five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters:

22 And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years: and he died.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. V.—Great was the spiritual loveliness of man, when his nature shone forth in the glories of the Divine likeness. Affecting truth! the founder of our race lived nearly a thousand years to witness and lament the consequences of his fall. Still he was succeeded by a line of holy descendants, who shone as spiritual lights in the midst of a world enveloped with the deepest shades of sin. Satan employed all his power to destroy piety from the face of the earth, but grace nobly maintained its ground, from the days of Adam to those of Noah, like the oak of the forest, which has triumphed over ten thousand storms. How wonderful, and delightful, that even in this time of unparalleled profanity, a saint pre-eminent above all the rest was conveyed to heaven without tasting of death! Holy Spirit, teach us, like him, to walk with God! My soul! mark with solemnity the words, "And he died," so often repeated. As it is appointed for man once to die, let us flee to Jesus; then our temporal death will be the harbinger of immortal life. We see in Noah a type of Jesus, who came to remove the curse from our world, and to become the everlasting Father of a redeemed offspring, countless as the stars for multitude.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we desire, with unfeigned humility and warm devotion, to fall down before thy mercy-seat. Bless to us the affecting history we have now read of the generations which passed away, from the creation of man to the days of Noah. O teach us to feel our transitory nature. May we constantly remember that our days are as the grass, and as the flower of the field, which flourisheth for a short season, and then withers and dies. O Lord, thou art the eternal and the immutable Jehovah. Of old thou hast laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the works of thine hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed; but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

We praise thee, O Lord, that in the days of antediluvian rebellion, profanity, luxury, and pride, thou didst preserve a number of faithful witnesses, the descendants of godly Seth, who, in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, observed thine ordinances and glorified thy name. We praise thee, that thy Church has been preserved from that day to this. O increase the number of thy faithful servants throughout the earth. May all the professed members of thy Church resemble Enoch more than ever, in walking with God. As a family may we walk with God this day. Ever may we and the families with which we are connected, walk with God in our heart, by loving thee, and in our life, by doing what is well-pleasing in thy sight.

O let the children of our family begin now to walk with God. O fulfil in them that encouraging promise—I will pour out my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring.

Holy Spirit, we earnestly pray that all our hearts may be made the subjects of a saving change; then shall we walk with God in the exercise of faith, love, hope, and zeal. O teach us as a family to walk with God in the exercise of every grace, and in the practice of every duty. Enable us constantly and diligently to walk with God in the ordinances of prayer, of praise, of meditation, and of reading and hearing of the Gospel of Christ. We seek thy grace, that we may walk with thee in all the commandments of thy holy law. May we have the blessedness of the undefiled, who walk in the law of the Lord; and may we be among the number of those who keep thy testimonies. O teach us to seek thee with our whole heart. Enable us to keep thy commandments diligently, and may our hearts be directed to keep thy statutes.

O Lord, prepare us for entering into the valley of the shadow of death. There may we enjoy thy fellowship, and be comforted with thy rod and thy staff. O Jesus, thou hast tasted of death; mercifully stand by us in the article of death. O deliver us from the sting of death. We praise thee, that if we are thine, the pains of death shall be followed by the enjoyments of heaven. Mercifully grant that all of us at death may be conveyed in the chariot of the covenant of grace to that world where we shall see the King in his beauty. We thank thee, O Lord, for the mercies of another night. Give us grace to serve thee this day with fidelity and love. Hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE TRULY BLESSED.

Libanon. Manning. Portugal.

L. M.

BLESS'D are the humble souls that see Their emptiness and poverty:
Treasures of grace to them are given,
And crowns of joy laid up in heaven.

Bless'd are the men of broken heart,
Who mourn for sin with inward smart;
The blood of Christ divinely flows,
A healing balm for all their woes.

Bless'd are the meek, who stand afar
From rage and passion, noise and war;
God will secure their happy state,
And plead their cause against the great.

Watts, 102, B. J.

MATTHEW V.

The Beatitudes.

AND seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain:
and when he was set, his disciples came unto him;
2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,
3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

4 Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

5 Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

6 Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

7 Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

8 Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peace-makers: for they shall be called the children of God.

10 Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

11 Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

12 Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.

13 Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.

14 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.

15 Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.

16 Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven.

17 Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.

18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

20 For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.

UPON MATT. V.—Jesus is the Prince of preachers.—
Blessings flow from his lips in copious streams. Humility, godly sorrow, gentleness, an ardent delight in spiritual objects, compassion, and peacefulness, form a bright diadem which Jesus places on the head of all his people. Such honour from Christ is often accompanied by suffering from men; but, if we suffer with Christ, we shall reign with him in glory. Saints have great need to remember their high profession, and to make consistency and usefulness the object of their sacred ambition. What light Jesus throws on Old Testament Scripture! while his sermons searched the hearts, not only forbidding outward acts of cruelty, but inward principles of enmity, which, when cherished, render external acts of worship offensive to God, and bring down the vengeance of heaven. Let us carefully study to subdue the first risings of carnal desires. O what folly, to expose the soul to hell, by gratifying sinful lusts! When our Saviour appeared, what perverted views prevailed in the Jewish church respecting the sacred obligations of the marriage covenant, the nature of oaths, avenging injuries, acts of mercy, treatment of enemies, and mutual hospitality! but his gospel is calculated to rectify all these errors, and to furnish motives of action worthy of God, and the eternal destinies of man. O may the prize of perfection animate us in our Christian course!

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Jehovah, we desire, with solemnity, thankfulness, and faith, to approach thy gracious presence, to offer up our evening prayer, and to present ourselves before thee a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable, which is our reasonable service. Thou hearer of prayer, we pray that as a family we may look upon thee as our salvation. O Lord, we would trust and not be afraid, for thou alone art our strength and our song; thou also art become our salvation.

Divine Spirit, graciously apply to our hearts what we have now read of our Saviour's Sermon on the Mount. May the heavenly graces which it makes known be our ornament; may the counsels which it enforces be our guide; and may the blessings which it reveals be our inheritance. O Jesus, thou speakest as never man spoke; thou teachest as never man taught. We thank thee, that, with simplicity, wisdom, and mercy, thou didst condescend to become the instructor of man.
We thank thee, that, though our ears have not listened to thy living voice, our eyes are privileged to read the gracious truths which fell from thy lips. O may thy word be engraven on our hearts as with the point of a diamond.

Holy Spirit, deliver us from pride, and make us poor in spirit.
When we meet with the afflictions of life, may we be among the spiritual mourners in Zion, who shall be comforted. O deliver us from our corrupted passions, and, like Jesus, may we be meek and lowly in heart. May our hearts hunger after the bread of life, and may our souls thirst after the waters of salvation; then shall we be satisfied as with marrow and fatness, and our mouths shall praise thee with joyful lips. O destroy in our bosom every cruel disposition, and may we breathe the mercy of heaven. Give us unfeigned sincerity and uprightness in thy service; may our hearts be pure and our lives holy. By faith may we see God on earth, as the God of our salvation; and at last may we see God in heaven, in all the glories of his unveiled majesty. Lord, make us the friends and the followers of peace.
O give us the salt of grace, which can never lose its savour, and by which we shall be blessings to each other, to society, to thy Church, and to the congregation of which we form a part.
O irradiate our minds with divine light. Jesus, thou Sun of Righteousness, shine upon us. Suffer none of us to live to ourselves; but may our light of grace so shine before men, that others, beholding it, may glorify our Father who is in heaven.
Give this light to our rulers and our ministers, that our land and people may be distinguished by the light of salvation.

Let thy graces, O Jesus, be as an ornament to our children's heads, and as chains around their necks.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy goodness and mercy which have attended us during the past day. We praise thee for mercies conferred on our bodies, and for blessings bestowed on our souls. We seek thy providential care this night. May we lie down in peace and sleep. O hear our prayers for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, we ascribe glory and honour and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYERS TO GOD IN TIMES OF DECLENSION.

Worksp. James.

c. m.

- 1 HELP, Lord, for men of virtue fail,
Religion loses ground;
The sons of violence prevail,
And treacheries abound.
- 2 Their oaths and promises they break,
Yet act the flatterer's part;
With fair deceitful lips they speak,
And with a double heart.

Watts, Ps. 12.

GENESIS VI.

The Flood threatened.

AND God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.

6 And it repented the LORD that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart.

7 And the LORD said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth; both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air; for it repenteth me that I have made them.

8 But Noah found grace in the eyes of the LORD.

9 These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generation, and Noah walked with God.

10 And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11 The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence.

12 And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth.

14 Make thee an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shall pitch it within and without with pitch.

15 And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

16 A window shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof; with lower, second, and third stories shalt thou make it.

17 And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shall die.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant; and thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee; they shall be male and female.

20 Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind, two of every sort shall come unto thee, to keep them alive.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 Thus did Noah; according to all that God commanded him, so did he.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. VI.—How lamentable, that the increase of mankind should be accompanied with the increase of sin! The reign of sin appears in alienation from God; and a matrimonial alliance with the profane is always a proof of the absence or decline of unfeigned piety. Gigantic bodily power and great mental energy are sometimes found in those who, spiritually considered, have not even the strength of spiritual babes in Christ. The reign of sin in our world presents before the eye of a holy God, a moral desert, filled with corruptions more injurious than poisonous weeds and venomous reptiles. Still, in the midst of this degeneracy, we see in Noah an eminent type of Jesus, the Saviour of the world. May it be our blessedness to resemble him in holiness, zeal, and fellowship with God. What a contrast is presented by the piety of Noah, and the universal degeneracy of the world in which he lived! Though the race of man deserves to be for ever annihilated, yet God, by an act of gracious sovereignty, preserves a portion, who, to the remotest ages, shall proclaim his praise. In the ark of Noah we see a figure of the salvation of Christ. Happy they who flee to this refuge! They have no need to be afraid, though the earth be removed, or the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour, we would now approach thy gracious throne with humility, confidence, and thankfulness, in our dear Redeemer's name. Holy Spirit, mercifully breathe upon us the spirit of earnest and believing prayer! O Lord, we adore thee in thy holiness, justice, and mercy; and pray that thou wouldst graciously sanctify to our hearts those displays of thy character, as a just and merciful God, of which we have now read, in thy sacred Word. When we meditate on the vile pollution of the ancient world, and on thy holiness—when we think on their iniquity, and thy justice, what reason have we to exclaim, What is man! The crown has fallen from our heads! Woe unto us, for we have sinned! O teach us to stand in awe of thy holiness, and to think with delight on thy purity. Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity.

O bless us the remembrance of the sins, the guilt, and the punishment of an ancient guilty world. Teach us as a family to remember our faults this day. If thou hadst entered into judgment with us for our family sins, thou wouldst have said respecting us, I will destroy them. Glory to thy great mercy that thou hast borne with us, with our land, and our rulers. In the midst of deserved wrath thou hast remembered us with undeserved mercy.

Praise to Zion's King, that thy beloved Church is preserved to the present day, through a long succession of many generations. We glorify thy great name that when, in thy justice, thou didst prepare a flood to destroy thine enemies, in thy sovereign grace thou didst prepare an ark to preserve thy Church. We thank thee, O Lord, that, amidst the revolutions of empires and the overturning of thrones, thy spiritual family has been preserved secure, in the ark of thy gracious Providence. We praise thee that, in this place of defence, thy Church has triumphantly defied the floods and waves of persecution, when they lifted up their voice with most infuriated violence. Thy voice, O King of Zion, has ever been upon the waters; thou sittest upon the floods; thou sittest King for ever.

Most merciful Father, teach our children and household to hate sin with a perfect hatred. O make them afraid of thy judgments. Preserve them from sin, that they may be preserved from the floods of divine wrath.

Blessed God, we present the humble tribute of our thanksgiving for covering us, during the past night, with the shadow of thy wings. We lift up our eyes unto thee, O Lord, and pray that thou wouldst this day surround us with thy favour, as with a shield. Give us the unmerited continuance of thy temporal mercies. Agreeably to thy gracious promise, do thou supply all our need, according to thy riches in glory by Jesus Christ. Holy Spirit, persuade each member of our family, and all our relatives and friends, to flee to the bosom of Jesus, the only place of defence from floods of avenging wrath.

O thou hearer of prayer, accept of this our morning sacrifice, for Jesus' sake. And we ascribe to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost equal and undivided praises. Amen.

FIRST WEEK.—SATURDAY EVENING.

LORD'S PRAYER.

Mount Pleasant.

c. n.

- _____ of all! we bow to thee,
Who dwell'st in heaven adored;
But present still through all thy works,
The universal Lord.
- 2 For ever hallowed be thy name
By all beneath the skies;
And may thy kingdom still advance
Till grace to glory rise.
- 3 A grateful homage may we yield,
With hearts resigned to thee;
And as in heaven thy will is done,
On earth so let it be.
- 4 From day to day we humbly own
The hand that feeds us still:
Give us our bread, and teach to rest Contented in thy will.
- 5 Our sins before thee we confess;
O may they be forgiven!
As we to others mercy show,
We mercy beg from heaven.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT., 106.

MATTHEW VI.

Almsgiving and Prayer.

TAKE heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven.

2 Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues, and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward.

3 But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth:

4 That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret himself shall reward thee openly.

5 And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

6 But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

7 But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

8 Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

9 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in Heaven, Hallowed be thy name.

10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.

11 Give us this day our daily bread.

12 And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

13 And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

14 For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you:

15 But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. VI.—To relieve the poor, from a desire of earthly fame, betrays black hypocrisy, and is greatly displeasing to God. Those men must be tenfold the children of Satan, who, in their outward acts of devotion, pass by the glory of God, and only seek the breath of human applause. Blessed are they who, in their religious services, seek the approbation of an omniscient God, who will reject no prayers which are presented by sincere and humble suppliants. May Jesus, who has given us a pattern of prayer, impart to us the spirit of prayer! How comforting!—he who teaches to pray, is most willing to answer prayer. What folly to expect forgiveness from God, if we never forgive; or to think that outward marks of repentance can please God, while the heart remains obstinate and insensible. May the Spirit teach me repentance unto life! A child of God shows the reality of his divine relationship, by the following marks: He has laid up treasures beyond the skies; he has a single eye to God's glory; he owns no authority over his heart, but that of God; he reposes with confidence upon the bosom of a special Providence; he casts his cares on Christ; and he looks with confidence and tranquillity through the dark veil of futurity, to that kingdom above, which is the object of his fondest hopes.

PRAYER.

LORD, we adore thee as a prayer-hearing God. We thank thee for that invaluable portion of the oracles of truth we have now been privileged to consult, and where thou art so clearly revealed as the Hearer of prayer. When we meditate on thy glorious majesty, on thine infinite and immutable perfections, and on thy lofty throne and immense dominions, we desire to feel devoutly amazed at thy condescension, in opening thy gracious ear, to hear and accept the prayers of such polluted worms of the dust. O teach us to rejoice with joy unspeakable, that we can approach thy presence with acceptance in the name of Christ. Unto thee, who hearest prayer, all flesh shall come.—O Lord, we come. We praise thee, that thou givest us the most blessed encouragement to come; for thou art good, and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy to all that call upon thee in truth.

Most gracious God, we pray to be preserved from hypocrisy in our religious observances. O suffer us not to bestow alms, or to engage in any part of divine worship, to be seen of men. God forbid we should ever prefer the approbation of men before the favour of God! O let our worship be the worship of the Spirit, and our devotion the devotion of the heart. Thou promised Spirit of the living God, most mercifully teach us to pray. We would now place ourselves under thy gracious tuition, that our prayers may flow from an understanding illuminated with divine light, and from a heart warmed with divine love.

Blessed Jesus, we thank thee as a family for that form of prayer which thou didst teach thy disciples. O enable us to admire the simplicity, the richness, the comprehensiveness and the sublimity of that blessed form of supplication.

O Lord, we acknowledge and adore thee as our Father in heaven. Teach our children to embrace thee as their Father, and say, Thou art our Father, and the guide of our youth. Of whatever they may be destitute, let them not be destitute of a spirit of prayer.

We pray, O Jesus, that thy name may be known and glorified throughout the world, and to the remotest ages. Let it be our delight to submit, at all times, to thy preceptive and providential will. O we pray that the whole earth may soon become the mediatorial kingdom of Jesus, and enjoy the boundless blessings of his reign. We desire to look up to thy special providence for the gracious and constant supply of our daily returning wants. O preserve us from the inward corruptious of our own heart, and from the outward temptations of a polluted and ensnaring world. Deliver us from the evil of sinning, and the evil of suffering. Let thy hand be our guide, and thine arm our guard.

We now thank thee for the blessings of the day, and for the mercies of the week. O forgive our accumulated transgressions. Our sins and iniquities, remember them no more. Sprinkle us with Jesus' blood. Kindly watch over us this night, and prepare us for the sacred services of the approaching Sabbath. O hear us, for Jesus' sake. Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

DISEASES HEALED.

Banger. Ludlow. Wales.

C. M.

1 IN anger, Lord, rebuke me not;
Withdraw the dreadful storm;
Nor let thy fury grow so hot
Against a feeble worm.

2 He hears when dust and ashes speak,
He pities all our groans;
He saves us for his mercy's sake,
And heals our broken bones.

Watts, Ps. 6.

PSALM V.

God the Hearer of Prayer.

GIVE ear to my words, O LORD, consider my meditation.

2 Harken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray.

3 My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O LORD; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.

4 For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness: neither shall evil dwell with thee.

5 The foolish shall not stand in thy sight: thou hatest all workers of iniquity.

6 Thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing: the LORD will abhor the bloody and deceitful man.

7 But as for me, I will come into thy house in the multitude of thy mercy; and in thy fear will I worship toward thy holy temple.

8 Lead me, O LORD, in thy righteousness because of mine enemies; make thy way straight before my face.

9 For there is no faithfulness in their mouth; their inward part is very wickedness; their throat is an open sepulchre; they flatter with their tongue.

10 Destroy thou them, O God; let them fall by their own counsels; cast them out in the multitude of their transgressions; for they have rebelled against thee.

11 But let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice; let them ever shout for joy, because thou defendest them: let them also that love thy name be joyful in thee.

12 For thou, LORD, wilt bless the righteous; with favour wilt thou compass him as with a shield.

PSALM. VI.

Prayer in Affliction.

OLORD, rebuke me not in thine anger, neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.

2 Have mercy upon me, O LORD; for I am weak: O LORD, heal me; for my bones are vexed.

3 My soul is also sore vexed: but thou, O LORD, how long?

4 Return, O LORD, deliver my soul: oh save me for thy mercies' sake.

5 For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks?

6 I am weary with my groaning; all the night make I my bed to swim; I water my couch with my tears.

7 Mine eye is consumed because of grief; it waxeth old because of all mine enemies.

8 Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity; for the LORD hath heard the voice of my weeping.

9 The LORD hath heard my supplication; the LORD will receive my prayer.

10 Let all mine enemies be ashamed and sore vexed: let them return and be ashamed suddenly.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM V.—Blessed truth! God is the hearer of prayer, and he delights in the supplications, praises, and meditations of his people. Holy and hallowed are those days which begin and end with prayer and fellowship with God! How heart-rending the state of the wicked!—they are the objects of the divine abhorrence! O the delight which the saints enjoy in the sanctuary and its services! While the hearts and lives of the wicked are most depraved, believers wish to present before them examples of holiness and grace. A dreadful doom awaits the impenitent, but a joyful and glorious immortality awaits the redeemed.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM VI.—Unfeigned penitence is the proof of true piety. Great is the anxiety of a child of God to know that his afflictions flow from a loving Father, and not from an angry Judge. In pleading for the display of divine compassion, he employs bodily suffering, inward sorrow, and the forgetfulness of the grave, as powerful arguments with the Hearer of prayer. Blessed is the state of the righteous, for their groans, tears, and griefs only belong to the present life, and in another world the annoyances of their adversities shall be for ever unknown. Their believing prayers are accompanied by the sweetest enjoyment, and are followed by the confusion of all their enemies.

PRAYER.

OLORD, we now surround the family altar in our great Redeemer's name, on the first day of the week, that holy, that hallowed day, on which our Saviour rose triumphant from the grave. Most glorious Lord God, we adore thee in thy holiness. Thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness; neither shall evil dwell with thee. We adore thee as the only wise God; the foolish shall not stand in thy sight. We adore thee as a God of truth and of justice; for thou shalt destroy them that speak falsehood. O teach us at this time, by thy Spirit, to worship thee in spirit and in truth.

Merciful Father, accept of our tribute of thanksgiving for thy preserving care of us during the last night; for giving thine angels charge over us, and for graciously permitting us to approach thy mercy-seat. O let the spirit of supplication which rested upon the Psalmist, rest on us, our King and our God. Let each one of us, in the strength of promised grace, form and fulfil his resolution when he said, My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and look up. O teach us to continue instant in prayer till our dying day; then our life of prayer shall be followed by an immortality of praise.

We bless thee for thine earthly courts, and for the animating prospect of entering into thy sacred sanctuary, to hear the voice of love, of mercy, and of salvation. O we desire to come into thy house, in the multitude of thy mercy; and in thy fear we would worship in thy holy temple.

Holy and righteous God, we confess our sinfulness, unworthiness, and guilt. O rebuke us not in thine anger; neither chasten us in thy hot displeasure. Truly we deserve thine anger, but we pray that, in the midst of deserved wrath, thou wouldst remember us with undeserved mercy. Behold, O Lord, our shield, and look upon us in the face of thine Anointed. When we are weak, do thou strengthen us; when our bones are vexed with pain, do thou heal us; when our soul is sore vexed, do thou comfort us; when we are exposed to wicked men, O deliver us from their craft, their malevolence, and their power.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the prospect we have of hearing the word of life this day. We implore from thee the preparation of the heart. Under the ministry of the word may our corruptions be mortified, our lusts subdued, our hearts adorned with grace, and our souls elevated to heaven. Let the ambassadors of salvation be eminently blessed, and multitudes added to Immanuel's kingdom. May our congregation and our Sabbath-schools be watered with the dew of heavenly influence.

Blessed Jesus, we pray that our children and domestics may be captivated with thy loveliness. O make them thy willing subjects.

Grant, O Lord, that our rulers may be savingly impressed by divine truth. O hear us, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we ascribe eternal glory. Amen.
Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S SOVEREIGNTY AND GOODNESS.

Hepley. Mansfield. Finsbury.

S. M.

- 1 O LORD, our heavenly King,
Thy name is all divine;
Thy glories round the earth are spread,
And o'er the heavens they shine.
- 2 When to thy works on high
I raise my wondering eyes,
And see the moon, complete in light,
Adorn the darksome skies;
- 3 When I survey the stars,
And all their shining forms;
Lord, what is man, that worthless thing,
Akin to dust and worms?
- 4 Lord, what is worthless man,
That thou shouldst love him so?
Next to thine angels is he placed,
And lord of all below.

Watts, Ps. 8.

PSALM VII.

The righteous Judgments of God.

GOD judgeth the righteous, and God is angry with the wicked every day.

12 If he turn not, he will whet his sword; he hath bent his bow, and made it ready.

13 He hath also prepared for him the instruments of death; he ordaineth his arrows against the persecutors.

14 Behold, he travaileth with iniquity, and hath conceived mischief, and brought forth falsehood.

15 He made a pit, and digged it, and is fallen into the ditch which he made.

16 His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate.

17 I will praise the Lord according to his righteousness: and will sing praise to the name of the Lord most high.

PSALM VIII.

God's Kindness to Man.

O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hast set thy glory above the heavens.

2 Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength because of thine enemies, that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.

3 When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;

4 What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?

5 For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour.

6 Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands: thou hast put all things under his feet:

7 All sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field;

8 The fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas.

9 O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM VII.—God looks upon his people with smiles of love; but upon his impenitent enemies with blackest frowns of wrath. Unless they return to him in humble penitence, they must be inevitably destroyed by the arrows of his vengeance. The history of Pharaoh, Saul, Haman, and the crucifiers of the Lord of Glory, furnishes an awful illustration of the truth, that the wages of sin is death. Now the believer may be afflicted by the mysteries of divine Providence; but in heaven the wisdom and benevolence of the plans of Jehovah will be the subject of his ceaseless admiration and eternal praise.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM VIII.—O Jesus, thy glory is boundless and inconceivable; by thy power thou canst teach children to proclaim thy praise, and by the melody of their youthful songs thou art able to put to silence the voice of blaspheming infidels. Amazing the condescension of God to fallen man! Though the Creator of countless orbs of light, he stoops down to lift him up from the depths of his miseries. While Christ in his humanity had a nature inferior to angels, yet he is infinitely superior to them in his government, which extends to the whole of animated existence. O let it be my chief delight to proclaim his excellence, in songs of loftiest praise, to the latest hour of my mortal existence; and, when time shall be no more, to join the happy myriads in the heavenly state in singing eternal hallelujahs to the Lamb that was slain.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS and incomprehensible Jehovah, we desire as a family, at the close of thy holy Sabbath, to adore thee in thine essential glory. Thy name is, I am that I am. O thou omniscient God, thou dwellest in the midst of unclouded light. Thou art light, and in thee there is no darkness at all. We approach thy throne, in the name of our divine advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous.

O Lord, thy name is excellent in all the earth. Wherever we turn our eyes, we see displays of thy glory. We adore thee in the displays of thy wisdom, power, and goodness, furnished by the heavens above us, and by the earth beneath us and around us. More especially we adore thee in the displays of thy holiness, mercy, and grace, which we behold in the great work of redemption, accomplished by thy well beloved Son. O teach us, by the contemplation of thy majesty shining in the sun, moon, and stars, to see our meanness and insignificance. When we look up to the heavens, teach us to say in devout humility, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? We would mourn over the millions of the children of men who are ignorant of thy name; and we would pray and plead with earnestness, Let the excellence of the name of Jesus, as a redeeming God, and a merciful Redeemer, soon be known in all the earth. O dispel the dark clouds of pagan ignorance; let the names of false gods be forgotten, and let thy name, O Jehovah, be adored among the nations.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the honour and privilege we have enjoyed this day, in being permitted to assemble in thine earthly courts. Teach us to say with unfeigned sincerity and devotion, How amiable are thy tabernacles, Lord God of Hosts! What are we, that we have heard the voice of salvation, and the sweet sounds of mercy! Teach us to mourn over our imperfections. If our minds have wandered upon the mountains of vanity, while the solemn realities of eternity demanded the most serious attention of our thoughts, we would supplicate, for Jesus' sake, the forgiveness of our God.

If we ourselves have derived any benefit from thine ordinances, we now praise thee with thankful hearts. For the assistance given to thy ministers, and for the benefit conferred upon thy people through all the churches, we present the tribute of our gratitude. If poor sinners have been saved, if spiritual captives have been set at liberty, we would rejoice with angels in heaven, and sing, Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, and good will towards men!

Thou, O Lord, hast ordained strength out of the mouths of babes and sucklings. Mercifully touch the hearts of our children, and out of their mouth do thou ordain strength. O teach them, with melody of heart and rapture of soul, to proclaim thy praise.

We pray, that the incorruptible seed which has been sown this day on many hearts, may be followed by a rich and glorious harvest. O Lord, cover us this night with the wings of thy providential care; and hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we ascribe glory and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, &c.

THE FLOOD.

Huddington. Stirling.

L. M.

- 1 THE deluge at the Almighty's call
In what impetuous streams it fell!
Swallowed the mountains in its rage,
And swept a guilty world to hell.
- 2 In vain the tallest sons of pride
Fled from the close pursuing wave;
Nor could their mightiest towers defend,
Nor swiftness 'scape, nor courage save.
- 3 How dire the wreck! how loud the roar!
How shrill the universal cry
Of millions in the last despair,
Re-echoed from the lowering sky!
- 4 Yet Noah, humble, happy saint!
Surrounded with a chosen few,
Sat in his ark, secure from fear,
And sang the grace that steered him through.

DODDRIDGE.

GENESIS VII.

Entering into the Ark.

AND the LORD said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation.

2 Of every clean beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens, the male and his female; and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

3 Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

4 For yet seven days, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 And Noah did according unto all that the Lord commanded him.

6 And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

7 And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of everything that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto Noah, into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

10 And it came to pass after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

11 In the sixth hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened.

12 And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

13 In the selfsame day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark:

14 They, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every sort.

15 And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. VII.—A life of purity is the blessed evidence of a life of safety. Great is the difference betwixt clean and unclean beasts; far greater the difference betwixt clean and unclean souls. Our God is just, to whom vengeance belongs, and they are truly blessed who fear and obey God. The graces of an aged saint are stars which shine for ever. Have we fled to Jesus, the only refuge from the storm? The spontaneous entrance of diverse animals into the ark was a wonderful display of God's sovereignty and power. We see in the commencement and increase of the waters of the flood, that God is as true to his threatenings as to his promises. How dreadful is sin, which even changed rain into a curse! That is an auspicious day on which we enter the Ark of Salvation, to which sinners, viler than reptiles, are encouraged to flee. Are we spiritually alive? then we have the breath of prayer; we are shut safely in the covenant of grace, and shall be shut in safely in heaven. "Lord Jesus, we flee to thee, the Ark of our salvation."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, grace as well as majesty belongeth unto thee. We are therefore encouraged to draw near to thy throne with humble confidence, in the name of Jesus, thy Son and our advocate. Teach us to present our morning prayer under a deep and lively impression of those displays of thy holiness and mercy, of which we have now read in the pages of thy holy Word.

O Lord, may the remembrance of the sins of the old world greatly affect us with a sense of our own. We and our fathers have sinned. As individuals, as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, we have sinned: yea, we have dealt very corruptly against thee. Alas, we have often hardened our necks, and have not hearkened to thy holy commandments. We are no more worthy to be called thy children.

Glory to God, there is mercy with thee, that thou mayest be feared. O extend to us thy pardoning mercy, through the righteousness of Jesus. Our guilt is great—it is like the great mountains; but we rejoice that the merit of a Saviour's blood is greater than our guilt. O may that most animating promise be fulfilled in our experience: Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. O do as thou hast said. Thou hast promised, I, even I am he that blotteth out all thy transgressions for my name's sake. O mercifully do as thou hast said.

We now desire, with humility and joy, to present our sacrifice of thanksgiving. We praise thee that we have been sustained by thy providential care during the past night. By thy goodness we have lain down, and not been afraid; yea, we have lain down, and our sleep has been sweet.

We thank our God for the blessings thou hast conferred upon our nation and government, upon our neighbourhood, our church and congregation, on our relatives, and on ourselves as a family and as individuals.

We supplicate grace, that we may pass through this day under a deep impression of thy holiness and our sinfulness, of thy righteousness and our unworthiness. Enable us to be diligent and conscientious in all our duties and lawful engagements. Teach us watchfulness, humility, and circumspection, and thus show to all around us that the fear of God is before our eyes.

Holy Spirit, teach us to see in the ark provided for Noah and his family a blessed figure of that salvation provided for millions of our race. O we bless thee that thou art most mercifully inviting us to enter the Ark of Salvation, saying to us as thou didst say unto Noah, Come thou, and all thy house, into the ark. As thou didst incline all descriptions of creatures to enter the ark of Noah, O incline our hearts, and the hearts of our beloved relatives and friends, to enter into the ark of mercy.

Captivate the souls of our children and servants, and may they flee speedily to the ark of thy salvation.

O draw us with the cords of love, and we will run after thee, O our God. Hear these our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And we would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost dominion and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

GOLDEN RULE.

Warminster. Marks.

L. M.

- 1 BLESSED Redeemer, how divine,
How righteous is this rule of thine,
"To do to all men just the same
As we expect or wish from them!"
- 2 This golden lesson, short and plain,
Gives not the mind nor memory pain;
And every conscience must approve
This universal law of love.
- 3 How blest would every nation be,
Thus ruled by love and equity!
All would be friends, without a foe,
And form a paradise below.

WATTS, 38, B. 7.

MATTHEW VII.

Divine Counsels.

JUDGE not, that ye be not judged.

2 For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

3 And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

4 Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye: and, behold! a beam is in thine own eye?

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

6 Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

7 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:

8 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

9 Or what man is there of you, whom, if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?

10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?

11 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?

12 Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.

13 Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat:

14 Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

24 Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock:

25 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.

26 And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand:

27 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine:

29 For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. VII.—We should ever be more concerned to judge ourselves than to judge others, remembering we are under God's eye, who judgeth the heart. How important!—reformation should begin at home. Lord deliver us from sin, which has rendered the wicked more degraded than dogs and swine! Let us rejoice that prayer and promise are inseparably connected. The prayer of faith is a tree of life, which bears the most precious and abundant fruit. The love even of the best of earthly parents can bear no proportion to the compassion of God, our Father in heaven. If we are born again, we will show that kindness to others which we wish them to show unto us. We should often seriously ask, whether we have passed through the gate of conversion, which leads to the joys of heaven, and by which alone we can escape from the miseries of hell. Arose building our hopes upon the Rock Christ?—then we are truly wise; but infinitely foolish are they who prefer their own works before the righteousness of Christ, for at death their hopes perish.

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Lord God, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we desire to present our evening sacrifice, in the name of Jesus, the Lamb who taketh away the sin of the world. O Lord, thou reignest upon the throne of universal dominion. We confess with shame that we have often opposed thy divine authority. Thou art clothed with power; thou hast girded thyself with strength. Though we are insignificant worms of the dust, we would lament that we have often presumptuously opposed thy justice, which is armed with thy power. O teach us to stand in awe of thy majesty, and to confide in thy mercy.

Father of mercies, we thank thee for the renewed and increasing instances of thine undeserved goodness we have experienced during the past day. We praise thee that thou hast preserved our lives, while others this day have drawn their last breath. May thy providential care be extended to us during another night. O thou who never slumberest nor sleepest, be our gracious guardian while we are asleep on our beds. We commit ourselves, O Jesus, to thy gracious bosom.

Holy Spirit, thou who art promised as an instructor and comforter to the saints, we humbly supplicate thy blessing on the divine ordinance of the reading of the Scriptures, in which we have now been permitted to engage. May we find Jesus in thy Word, since it testifies of him. O may we find life, life eternal, when we read the sacred pages, seeing they contain the words of eternal life.

Sanctify the wise and gracious precepts we have now read. In obedience to our Lord, suffer us not to sit in judgment on others, but may we sit in judgment upon ourselves, and impartially examine ourselves whether we be in the faith. O deliver us from a censorious spirit, and inspire us with a spirit of love and forgiveness toward our offending brethren. O make us more concerned to find out and avoid our own faults, than to seek out and expose the blemishes of others. We bless thee our God for the unspeakable encouragement thou hast given to approach thy throne of grace in prayer, to seek thy mercy. O Lord, we ask salvation; for thou hast said, Ask: and thou hast promised we shall receive. We now seek the rich blessings of a Saviour's purchase; for thou hast said, Seek: and thou hast promised we shall find. We now, most gracious Father, knock at mercy's door; for thou hast said, Knock: and thou hast promised the door shall be opened. Glory, glory to our God, for those kind commands, and for these gracious promises. O what shall we render to thee for such encouraging words, which are sweeter than the honey which droppeth from the comb!

O teach our children to pray; and till the close of life, may they continue humble and earnest supplicants at mercy's door.

Heaven grant that all our hopes may be firmly built on Jesus, the only Rock of Ages. O hear us, for Jesus' sake; while we ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, everlasting praises. Amen.

JESUS THE TRUE ARK.

Doverdale. Nalleworth.

L. M.

- 1 SO may I sing, in Jesus safe,
While storms of vengeance round me fall;
Conscious how high my hopes are fix'd,
Beyond what shakes this earthly ball.
- 2 Enter thine ark, while patience waits,
Nor ever quit that sure retreat;
Then the wide flood which buries earth
Shall waft thee to a fairer seat.
- 3 Nor wreck, nor ruin there is seen;
There not a wave of trouble rolls;
But the bright rainbow round the throne
Seals endless life to all their souls.

DODDRIDGE.

GENESIS VIII.

Going out of the Ark.

AND God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged.

2 The fountains also of the deep and the windows of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained;

4 And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

6 And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made:

7 And he sent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground.

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark;

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening; and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf pluckt off: so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days; and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 And God spake unto Noah, saying,

16 Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him:

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth, after their kinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 And Noah builded an altar unto the LORD; and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. VIII.—Saints ever live in the remembrance of God, whose over-ruling and restraining power none can resist. At his command, the floods of tribulation are dried up. What is our rest? Is it Jesus, the Rock of Ages? Then, at death, we shall joyfully behold the celestial hills; and we shall see through the window of divine promises the glories of heaven. The raven is a figure of sensual minds, while the dove is an emblem of the renewed heart. True saints seek and find rest in Jesus, and faithful ministers wait his will, and go at his command. Lord hasten the day when the floods of impurity and sin shall be dried up from the face of the earth! Blessed day! when God calls his people from their earthly tabernacle to their heavenly home. God cares for all his creatures, more especially for his saints. A family, one in Christ, is a sight which angels admire. Irrational creatures are passive agents, but believers are active servants. Angels guard those habitations where altars are reared to the honour of God.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee in the name of Jesus, as very great, as clothed with honour and majesty. Thou alone art the great and mighty God; the Lord of Hosts is thy name. O how infinitely glorious is thy name, for it is exalted above all blessing and praise! Mercifully teach us to rejoice that thy grace is equal to thy greatness, and thy mercy to thy majesty. Thou art ready to pardon, slow to anger, and of great kindness. Holy Spirit, inspire us with faith; then shall we claim an interest in God as the Lord our God. Hast thou not said, O God of our salvation, I am the Lord your God? We now take encouragement and say, Thou art the Lord our God; whom have we in the heavens but thee?

Thou holy, thou heart-searching God, we confess that we are sinners, and are no more worthy to be called thy children. O forgive us through our Saviour's blood. Let our personal sins, our family sins, our congregational sins, our national sins be blotted out, and remembered no more. Behold our atoning sacrifice, and remember them no more.

We thank our Father and God for the sleep and protection afforded us during another night; and we would rejoice that in the beginning of another day we enjoy an opportunity of encompassing the domestic altar. O may we enter upon a new day, under the encouraging smiles of thy gracious providence. We implore the direction of thy wisdom, and the assistance of thy grace, both in our religious duties, and in our lawful secular engagements. O let all our actions show that our affections are warmed with thy love, and that thy law is written upon our hearts.

May the dew of divine influence descend upon the portion of the sacred history we have now read. As thou didst mercifully remove the flood of waters from the face of the earth, do thou graciously take away our sins, which, alas, have overspread our nature like a mighty flood, and removed from our souls the lovely traces of thy moral image. As thou didst restore the earth to beauty and fruitfulness, adorn our souls with the verdure of holiness, and enrich them with the fruitfulness of grace. We mourn, O Lord, over the flood of sin, of paganism, and idolatry, with which so great a proportion of our world is overspread. Holy Spirit, breathe upon our world, and cause these desolating floods to disappear for ever. O teach us to resemble the piety and thankfulness of Noah, who built an altar, and sacrificed to his God. O may we ever have in the midst of us a domestic altar; and throughout our whole lives may we never cease to present our morning and our evening sacrifice. Blessed Lord God, as thou didst mercifully accept the sacrifice of Noah, let this our family ever enjoy thy smiles, and may our persons and sacrifices be accepted in the Beloved.

O remove from our children and domestics the flood of sin with which their nature is covered, and adorn them with the verdure of grace.

Lord, hear our prayers, for the sake of our divine Intercessor. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit we ascribe unceasing honour and praises. Amen.

THE LEPER HEALED.

Egypt. Orange. Simon's.

S. M.

- 1 BEHOOLD the leprous Jew,
Oppressed with pain and grief,
Pouring his tears at Jesus' feet
For pity and relief.
- 2 O speak the word, he cries,
And heal me of my pain:
Lord, thou art able, if thou wilt,
To make a leper clean.
- 3 Compassion moves his heart;
He speaks the gracious word;
The leper feels his strength return,
And all his sickness cured.

RIPON, 102.

MATTHEW VIII.

Miracles of Mercy.

WHEN he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

2 And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

3 And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

5 And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him.

6 And saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented.

7 And Jesus saith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8 The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

11 And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven.

12 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour.

14 And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever.

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose and ministered unto them.

18 Now when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side.

19 And a certain scribe came and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

20 And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. VIII.—We are followers of Christ in name, are we in heart? God speedily and effectually answers the prayer of earnestness and of faith. Our sacrifice of praise can never bear any proportion to the abundance of God's mercies. Blessed are those men of power, and of wealth, who are men of prayer, and who make their servants the subject of their earnest intercessions. Jesus kindly teaches, and Jesus mercifully answers the prayer of faith. Strong faith and great humility are always united. Afflictions are God's servants, who come and go when he pleases. Jesus is the Author of faith, and the Donor of faith, and he admires and honours the faith he gives. Are we the children of the kingdom by faith in Christ? then heaven will be our blessed and eternal home. Lord Jesus, heal the maladies of our souls. Disease is the fruit which sin produces, but Christ's touch can heal the one, and remove the other. Blessed Jesus, have mercy on the multitude of nations, which never knew, nor ever heard thy gracious name. They who trust in their own strength can never faithfully follow Christ. Lord give us thy Spirit; then we will be faithful unto death.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, thou alone art worthy of the adorations of men and angels. O teach us as a family to adore thee in the name of our blessed Jesus. Holy Spirit, inspire us with a portion of that adoring reverence and that exalted love which angels feel. O Lord, who can by searching find thee out? None can find out thee, the Almighty, unto perfection. In thy works of creation and providence, but more especially in thy redeeming works, thou art past finding out. In thyself thou art infinitely higher than the heavens; what can we do? The mysteries of thy providence are deeper than hell; what can we know? Thy matchless perfection is longer than the earth and broader than the sea. Thou art the unsearchable, the incomprehensible Lord God.

We present before our God and Father in Christ the sacrifice of our thankfulness for the mercies of the past day. We thank thee that thou hast continued to crown us with thy goodness, and to fill our cup with the blessings of thine abundance. Lord, we praise thee that, while we deserve to drink wrath, thou art causing us to drink mercy.

We seek thy gracious protection this night. Give us the soothing refreshment of sleep; and on the morning of another day may we awake invigorated for thy service. O comfort those who are laid upon the bed of languishing. Give them thy prospect of the sweet rest of heaven.

Holy Spirit, bless what we have now read of the mercy, the skill, and the power of Jesus, the divine physician. Blessed Jesus, we adore thee as the physician of the souls of men. Thou art as able and as willing to heal the diseases of the soul, as those of the body. When in our world, in thy humbled humanity, thou didst never refuse to heal the bodily diseases of those who came unto thee; and we rejoice that thou wilt by no means cast out those who come unto thee groaning under the diseases of their souls, and crying to be healed. There is balm in Gilead. O Jesus, thy blood, thy righteousness, and thy spirit, are the precious, the healing balm. There is a physician there, O Jesus; thou art the physician, the only physician.

We place ourselves before thee, polluted with the leprosy of sin. We acknowledge there is no disease like this, there is no pollution like this. If thou wilt, thou canst make us clean. O make us clean. Say to us as a family, I will, be thou clean.

Merciful Jesus, deliver our dear children from the disease of sin. Open their eyes, that they may see the diseases of their souls, and that they may see thyself as the only physician. O take from them the disease of thoughtlessness, enmity, and pride.

Blessed Saviour, as thou didst restore the servant of the centurion to natural life, O show thy gracious power in delivering each one of us from spiritual death, and most mercifully breathe upon us that life which is heavenly and divine. As an evidence of this life, give us large measures of the spirit of prayer. O hear our supplications, for Immanuel's sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed majesty and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

PRAISE TO GOD FOR REDEMPTION.

Lydia. Doxology.

c. w.

- 1 LET them neglect thy glory, Lord,
Who never knew thy grace,
But our loud songs shall still record
The wonders of thy praise.
- 2 We raise our shouts, O God, to thee,
And send them to thy throne,
All glory to the united Three,
The undivided One.
- 3 'Twas he (and we'll adore his name,)
That formed us by a word,
'Tis he restores our ruined frame;
Salvation to the Lord!

WATTS, 35, B. 11.

GENESIS IX.

The Rainbow and Covenant.

AND God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them,
Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth.

2 And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.

3 Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the green herb have I given you all things.

4 But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat.

5 And surely your blood of your lives will I require; at the hand of every beast will I require it, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man.

6 Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you; from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

11 And I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

13 I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

14 And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud:

15 And I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

18 And the sons of Noah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: and Ham is the father of Canaan.

19 These are the three sons of Noah: and of them was the whole earth overspread.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. IX.—Jesus! thou art the divine fountain from whence all blessings flow. All creatures are rendered subservient to man's happiness; may he exercise his authority with wisdom, thankfulness, and mercy. If the blood of beasts is precious, how infinitely more precious is the blood of Christ! Affecting truth! the blood of Christ was shed, and his incarnation murdered! In the millennium great will be the increase of our species, and great the increase of piety. Holy families are within God's covenant, and enjoy his fellowship. Living creatures are preserved by God to serve the purposes of his wisdom, sovereignty, and goodness. Have we entered into covenant with Christ? then we are safe from the flood of divine wrath; we have the earnest of the Spirit, the token of divine love that God is ours, that we are his. Does God look upon the cloud, and remember his covenant with Noah? let us look upon the rainbow, and remember Christ's covenant with us. Let us earnestly pray that our hearts may be inclined to enter into covenant with Christ, and may we be made the heirs of that heaven, from which we shall go no more out. Amen.

PRAYER.

OTHOU omnipresent Jehovah, we desire in the name of Christ, and in dependence upon thy promised Spirit, to approach thy throne, and to present our morning sacrifice. Blessed Jesus, clothe us with thy righteousness; Holy Spirit, enrich us with thine influences. O thou Hearer of prayer, fill our souls with joy, that thou art everywhere present to hear prayer. While thine omnipresence is a cause of alarm to thine enemies, make this glorious perfection of thy nature a source of consolation to our souls. Glory to thy name, that thou art a very present help to us in time of trouble. Alas! O Father of mercies, that we have so often been insensible to the truth of thine omnipresence, and that we have deprived ourselves of the animating consolation flowing from a lively faith in thy gracious presence. O Lord, lay not this sin to our charge! We confess that, in the hour of affliction, we have not drawn from the doctrine of thy gracious omnipresence that help and comfort which it is always calculated to afford to thy believing people. O Lord, lay not this sin to our charge! We acknowledge with shame that in our affliction we have mourned as if there were no Saviour near to soothe our sorrow, and as if there were no comforting Spirit near to sanctify our affliction. O Lord, for the sake of a Saviour's righteousness, lay not this sin to our charge!

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy watchful and gracious care over us during the past night. O preserve us from the snares and temptations of this day. Assist us in the faithful discharge of duty, and in the diligent observance of ordinances.

We thank thee, O God of salvation, for those manifestations of thy faithfulness and mercy to Noah of which we have now read. Thy mercy is higher than the heavens, and thy truth reacheth to the clouds. We praise thee for the fulfilment of thy covenant with Noah, in removing the flood of waters from the face of the earth. We thank thee that, as individuals, and as a family, thou hast in thy great mercy delivered us from many floods of affliction. O may all of us, by the righteousness of Jesus, be preserved in time and eternity from the floods of divine wrath. Glory to God in the highest, if any of us are the subjects of thy saving and redeeming mercy! When we were ready to perish, thine eye looked upon us with pity, thy mercy came to our relief; we cried unto thee, thou didst hear our prayer, and deliver us.

Glory to our God, for the covenant of grace! We thank thee that, in the covenant with Noah, thou didst secure the earth from being ever visited again with a flood of waters. More especially we thank thee that, in the covenant of grace, thou hast eternally secured thy Church from being visited with a flood of divine vengeance.

O clothe our children with the robe of righteousness, that they may be defended from thy wrath; and give them thy grace, to defend them from ten thousand snares.

Hear our feeble prayer, for Jesus' sake, to whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be endless praises. Amen.

SECOND WEEK.—WEDNESDAY EVENING.

PARDON SPOKEN BY CHRIST.

Our's Lane. Leodanis.

C. M.

- 1 MY Saviour, let me hear thy voice
Pronounce the words of peace;
And all my warmest powers shall join
To celebrate thy grace.
- 2 With gentle smiles call me thy child,
And speak my sins forgiven:
The accents mild shall charm mine ear
All like the harps of heaven.
- 3 Cheerful, where'er thy hand shall lead,
The darkest path I'll tread;
Cheerful I'll quit these mortal shores,
And mingle with the dead.

DONDRIDGE. FLETCHER'S COLL., 68.

MATTHEW IX.

The Diseased healed.

AND he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city.

2 And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith saith unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee.

3 And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

4 And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?

5 For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee: or to say, Arise and walk?

6 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

7 And he arose, and departed to his house.

8 But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men.

9 And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him.

18 While he spake these things unto them, Behold, there came a certain ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is even now dead: but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live.

19 And Jesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 And, behold, a woman, which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment:

21 For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole.

22 But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.

27 And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us.

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

30 And their eyes were opened; and Jesus straightly charged them, saying, See that no man know it.

31 But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. IX.—A palsied body is grievous, but infinitely more calamitous is a palsied soul. How often Jesus, the perfection of mercy, met the perfection of enmity! Blessed Saviour, take from us the deformity of sin, and give us the beauty of holiness. Lord, give the word, and instantly the spiritual diseases our soul shall depart, and instantly spiritual health will be restored. If we are the subjects of grace, God's acts of grace will excite wonder, love, and praise. Lord, draw us, and we will run after thee. Is the health of the body so precious? then how precious the health of the soul! and with what earnestness we should pray for this blessing. Sin is an old, deep-rooted, wasting disease, but we look to Jesus, we shall be healed. Faith is the grace which Jesus freely gives, and greatly honours. He is the light of the world. "Sun of Righteousness, shine upon us in all the brightness of thy grace! say unto our souls, let there be light, and may it be a privilege to know and to say, once we were blind, now we see!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou dost mercifully hear the prayers of thy people, and we therefore desire in the name of Jesus, as worshipping family, to encompass thine altar, and, before we retire to rest, to glorify and magnify thy gracious name. O Saviour, we would rejoice because of those animating displays of thy power, compassion, and mercy, of which we have no need. Thou art good and upright, thou wilt teach sinners in the way. Thy goodness endureth continually. Teach us to rejoice that thy goodness is as abundant now, as in the days of thy humbled flesh, when thou didst heal the sick, and weep over the miseries of men. Enable us to rejoice exceedingly that thou art good, and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy to all who call upon thee.

We desire, with unfeigned hearts, to confess our transgressions, and to implore pardon through a Saviour's blood. We confess our spiritual lethargy and cold indifference. Alas, we often show symptoms of spiritual palsy, by our inactivity as to the things of God, the soul, and eternity. Mighty Saviour, as thou didst heal and comfort the man sick of the palsy, touch us by thy divine power, and then our spiritual palsy and cold indifference will be exchanged for loveliness and activity in thy service, thy cause, and thy kingdom. Suffer none of us to resist the invitations of thy Gospel. As Matthew rose and followed Jesus, when he called, may we rise up, and leave all, and promptly hear and obey the kind and gracious invitations of our redeeming God.

We thank a gracious God for preserving, during another day, our unworthy and our forfeited lives. Thou hast swelled the amount of thy mercies, and increased the amount of our obligations. O Lord, cover us this night with the shadow of thy wings. Pity, O pity those for whom sorrowful days and nights are appointed, and in thy great mercy show them the joys of thy salvation.

We affectionately commend the children of our family to thy care. Are they spiritually diseased? O heal them. Are they spiritually dead? O raise them to newness of life.

O Lord, show us thy salvation, and teach us with the Church to sing, He hath clothed us with the garments of salvation, and covered us with the robe of righteousness. Our sins are innumerable: O say to us, Be of good cheer, your sins are forgiven you. Say with divine and irresistible efficacy to us, our relatives, and to those who regularly worship with us in thy house of prayer, Follow me. Lord, give us faith. As the diseased woman was enabled by faith to touch the hem of our Saviour's garment and be healed, enable us by faith to touch the righteousness of our Lord, that all our spiritual diseases may be healed, and the guilt of all our sins forgiven. If any of us are spiritually blind, open the eyes of our understanding, that we may behold the glory of thy perfections shining in the person and righteousness of Christ.

O lend an ear to the voice of our supplications, through the merit of our exalted Saviour, for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

THE GOD OF ABRAM.

Wroteam. Lond.

P. M.

1 THE God of Abram praise,
Who reigns enthroned above,
Ancient of everlasting days,
And God of love!
Jehovah, Great I AM!
By earth and heaven confessed,
I bow and bless the sacred name,
For ever blessed.

2 The God of Abram praise,
At whose supreme command,
From earth I rise, and seek the joys
At his right hand:
I'd all on earth forsake,
Its wisdom, fame, and power;
And him my only portion make,
My shield and tower.

OLIVER. FLETCHER'S COLL., 282.

GENESIS XII.

Abram leaving his Country.

NOW the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee:

2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing:

3 And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

4 So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

6 And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Sichem, unto the plain of Morch. And the Canaanite was then in the land.

7 And the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the Lord, who appeared unto him.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and called upon the name of the Lord.

9 And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south.

10 And there was a famine in the land: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon:

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife; and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

14 And it came to pass, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman that she was very fair.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XII.—They who prefer Jesus to kindred and country show they are heirs of heaven. None are truly great but those who are truly gracious. The righteous are surrounded by a divine impregnable wall, and no enemy can touch them with impunity. They are only blessed, who, under divine direction, pursue their course to heaven. If we are bound for Canaan, we will wish to be accompanied by our relatives and friends. Believers, during all their pilgrimage, find spiritual enemies to try their faith, and oppose their progress, but their hearts are comforted by God's gracious omnipresence. Unspeakable consolation! whosoever the believer is, there is the throne of grace. Happy are we, if we are daily drawing nearer and nearer the heavenly Zion. A famine of the bread which perisheth is a great calamity, but nothing compared with a famine of the bread of life. God gives beauty to the countenance, but sin makes it a snare to the soul. How affecting to see an experienced saint staggering through sinful fear; and how grievous when he listens to the dictates of unbelief! May the eyes of our understanding be opened to see the levelness of Christ, the perfection of beauty.

PRAYER.

O GOD of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, thou art our God, and early will we seek thee. Encouraged by the intercession of Jesus, we would draw near to thy throne of grace with humility and boldness. Hearken unto us, our God and our King, for unto thee alone would we direct our prayer and look up. Give us grace to admire and follow the example of Abraham, in rearing an altar and calling on the name of the Lord. O may the altar of family worship be constantly maintained in our abode; and, to the close of our mortal career, may we call on the name of our God with constancy and joy.

We thank thee, O Lord, that for the advancement of thy glory, and for the purity of thy worship, thou didst call thy servant from the land of graven images. Praise to thy name, that thou didst inspire him with lively faith, and didst enable him at thy command cheerfully and readily to turn his back on the place of his nativity, which was polluted and degraded by the worship of false gods. O we thank thee that our land, which was once pagan, is now no more the land of graven images, and that as a family we are honoured and blest by prostrating ourselves in divine worship before the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, as the only, the living, and the true God. For ever blessed be thy name, that thou hast given us the knowledge of thyself, thine attributes, and thy prerogatives, as the God of creation, of providence, and of grace. May that glorious, that joyful day soon arrive, when gods of gold and silver, of brass and iron, of wood and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor know, shall be completely and for ever banished from the face of the earth. We rejoice that the day will come, when all the nations of the earth shall know that this is life eternal, to know thee the Lord, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

O Lord, we confess the idolatry of our hearts. Though we have not fallen down to worship idols, we acknowledge with shame that we have loved and followed many idols, and have given rivals that place in our affections which is due to Jesus alone. We confess that we have been guilty of making idols of relatives, of friends, of worldly objects, and of carnal pleasures: O forgive this our sin. As we have done this iniquity, may we do so no more, for ever. O preserve us from idols! Come, O Jesus, and reign supreme on the throne of our love.

We thank our God for that promise given unto Abraham: In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. We rejoice that millions of families have already been blessed in Jesus, who descended from thy faithful servant after the flesh.

O may our children be blessed in Jesus, the child of promise, and may they call him blessed.

We present our thanksgivings for preserving us through the night season, and restoring to us the cheering light of a returning day. May we this day be accompanied by thy guidance, thy favour, and thy smiles. Like Abraham, may we enjoy thy presence while journeying to the promised land. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. And to the triune Jehovah be ascribed eternal praises. Amen.

CHRIST AND MOSES.

Bathol. Sutton Colefield.

C. M.

- 1 THE law by Moses came,
But peace and truth, and love,
Were brought by Christ, a nobler name,
Descending from above.
- 2 Amidst the house of God
Their different works were done;
Moses a faithful servant stood
But Christ a faithful Son.
- 3 Then to his new commands
Be strict obedience paid;
O'er all his Father's house he stands
The Sovereign and the Head.

Watts, 118, B. I.

MATTHEW X.

The Twelve Disciples called.

AND when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;

3 Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbaeus, whose surname was Thaddeus;

4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:

6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 And, as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.

15 Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

28 And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

32 Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

33 But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.

40 He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

41 He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward: and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

42 And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. X.—The Gospel is the rod of Christ's strength, by which he subdues the hearts of sinners, and restrains Satan's power. To be a disciple of Christ is a greater honour than to rank among earthly princes. May our names be written among the living in Jerusalem! Holy Spirit, prevent that we should ever deny or betray our Lord! The faithful ministers of the Lamb will go when and where their Saviour sends. Their language is, "Here am I, send me!" Great was Christ's mercy to lost Israel; great is his compassion to a lost world. Now we have the kingdom of grace, and hereafter may we be admitted into the kingdom of glory. May the Gospel prove spiritual balm to heal our wounded souls. While the Gospel is the greatest blessing, to reject it is the greatest curse. Serious thought! the aggravation of this sin far surpasses the sins of the ancient cities of the plain. Do we prefer the life of the soul before that of the body?—then we have committed it to the care of Jesus. May personal disgrace and danger never tempt us to deny Christ! To confess Christ is the greatest gain, but to deny him is the greatest loss. Do we love Christ?—we will then love his messengers, his Gospel, and his ordinances. We will love his faithful ministers for their Master's sake; and we will consider his saints clothed with his righteousness, as the excellent of the earth, in whom is all our delight.

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, thou alone art the most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth. Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head over all. Riches and honour, wisdom and holiness, come from thee, thou fountain of excellence and source of perfection.

What shall we render unto thee for the renewed, the continued, and the increased mercies of another day! We thank thee that thou hast not withdrawn from us either our temporal or our spiritual blessings. Holy Spirit, teach us to praise the Lord for his goodness.

O make us sensible of the sins we have committed this day, and graciously remove our guilt. Lord, we acknowledge that we require every day to be washed in the fountain of a Saviour's blood. O wash us in that fountain!

Make the sacred Word we have now been privileged to read profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness. Let not thy Word be to us a dead letter or a sealed book. Holy Spirit, send thy power; then it will be spirit and life.

Holy Lord God, we confess the diseases of our soul. We acknowledge our pride, carnality, and unbelief. May the blessed Gospel be applied with power to our heart; then, and not till then, shall our maladies be healed, and our souls be animated with all the loveliness of spiritual life. We confess with shame that we have often lent a deaf ear to thy ministering servants. When thou hast counselled us by their voice, we have rejected thy counsel. O Lord, this sin is great; mercifully forgive this our sin. While with justice thou mightest have rejected us for rejecting thee, we bless thy name that thou art continuing to be gracious. Enable us highly to value our privileges as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation. Lord, we have sinned greatly in our deficiency of thankfulness. Alas, that we have so much neglected, and that we have so little improved, this great talent—the gospel—with which we have been mercifully and undeservedly entrusted! Suffer none of us to die despisers of Christ or of his salvation. Convince us the doom of Sodom and Gomorrha will be much less severe than ours, if we perish under the awful guilt of refusing redemption through Jesus' blood. O Lord, preserve us and our relatives from this most aggravated of sins, and from the dreadful doom which such a sin deserves.

Open the eyes of our children and domestics to see the excellence of the Gospel and the loveliness of Christ. O suffer none of them to die despisers of him who died to save.

May the everlasting Gospel ever be proclaimed to all the inhabitants of the world. Wherever it is preached, may its blessed influence be universally experienced. Holy Spirit, descend upon the churches, like the rain upon the mown grass; and then great will be the company of them who believe. O increase our love to the saints, to Christ's little ones, knowing that in receiving them we receive Christ.

O give us the protection and the sleep of thy beloved this night. Graciously hear and answer us, for Jesus' sake. Amen, and amen.

PRAYER TO THE SPIRIT.

Bradley. Eaton.

L. M.

- 1 GREAT Spirit of immortal love!
Vouchsafe our frozen hearts to move;
With ardour strong these breasts inflame
To all that own a Saviour's name.
- 2 Still let the heavenly fire endure,
Fervent and vigorous, true and pure;
Let every heart and every hand
Join in the dear fraternal band.
- 3 Celestial Dove! descend and bring
The smiling blessings on thy wing:
And make us taste those sweets below
Which in the blissful mansions grow.

DODDRIIDGE.

GENESIS XIII.

Lot's Choice.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south.

2 And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journeys from the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai;

4 Unto the place of the altar, which he had made there at the first: and there Abram called on the name of the Lord.

5 And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle: and the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be brethren.

9 Is not the whole land before thee? separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere, before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the Lord, like the land of Egypt, as thou comest unto Zoar.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east: and they separated themselves the one from the other.

12 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But the men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly.

14 And the Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward:

15 For all the land which thou seest to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

16 And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

17 Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and dwelt in the plain of Mamre, which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XIII.—Let it be our constant, earnest prayer to be removed from temptations to sin, and to be made rich in grace. If our abode be a Beth-el, it will contain an altar for the worship and praise of God. While many boast that they are rich in gold, may it be our joy to be rich in faith. Great wealth is often accompanied with much inconvenience, and often gives occasion to the indulgence of the most discordant passions. Unity and love are the distinguishing ornaments of the sons of God, who rejoice to sacrifice temporal profit for spiritual peace. We cannot too carefully guard against the sinful love of earthly things. "Lord, teach us, like Mary, to choose that good part which shall never be taken from us; Lord, hear our prayer!" Let us constantly cherish and feel a sense of the divine omniscience. Fellowship with God is the choicest blessing, and infinitely makes up for the loss of the fellowship of earthly friends. Blessed day! when the children of God on earth shall resemble the dewdrops of the morning. "Lord hasten that day—that glorious day! Let all the people praise thee. Hallelujah!"

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, in the name of Jesus we approach thy throne, and we praise thee for thy goodness, which endureth continually. We thank thee that, as a family, we have found this morning the undeserved renewal of thy mercies; and that, during the darkness and silence of another night, thou hast covered us with the protecting shield of thy providence, and encompassed us with the arms of thy mercy. May we enter upon another day under thy smiles. Holy Spirit, preside over our thoughts, our words, and our actions. While diligent in business, may we be fervent in spirit, and keep God, salvation, immortality, and heaven, constantly in view.

We would earnestly supplicate thy blessing on what we have now read. We thank thee for the Bible, and that we have eyes to look upon its sacred, its blessed pages. O Lord, may we ever rejoice in thy testimonies, more than in all riches. Thou didst give to Abraham thy servant wealth and piety; O may we never possess wealth without piety! We pray that our portion may not consist of the things of time; but, above everything else, give us the treasures of godliness, the riches of faith, that heavenly inheritance which endureth for ever. O deliver us from the sin of loving earthly treasures, which so often prove an overwhelming load to the soul, and sow the seeds of family discord and tumultuous strife. Sanctify to us the remembrance of the contention which was between the herdsmen of Lot and Abraham; and may we be enabled ever to exemplify before a carnal world the heavenly-mindedness and the lovely peacefulness of our holy religion. May we imitate the example of Abraham, and rather prefer being losers of temporal advantages than engage in sinful strife for their enjoyment. As Abraham considered himself a possessor of immense wealth, in having received from his God the promises, may we look on thy promises as infinitely more precious than thousands of gold and silver. O Lord, remember thy promise to thy servant respecting the immense multitudes of his spiritual seed. We thank thee that thou hast said, If a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered. Glory to thy name, thou everlasting Father of thy Church, that this promise shall be accomplished. Hasten, O hasten its fulfilment!

Make our dear children the spiritual offspring of Abraham thy servant. As thou didst guide thy servant in all his journeyings, O do thou lead them safely through the wilderness of this world, and at last conduct them in triumph to heaven.

We pray for aged, afflicted travellers. O Jesus, be thou their strength, their consolation, and their joy. May Abraham's God be their God, and Abraham's heaven their home. May we and all our relatives sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of our God. We present this our morning prayer, in Jesus' name. And now to the adorable, triune Jehovah, we ascribe glory, honour, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

INVITATIONS OF MERCY.

Kemsey. Campbell.

- 1 COME nigher, all ye weary souls,
Ye heavy laden sinners, come;
I'll give you rest from all your toils,
And raise you to my heavenly home.
- 2 They shall find rest that loarn of me;
I'm of a meek and lowly mind;
But passion rages like the sea,
And pride is restless as the wind.
- 3 Blest is the man whose shoulders take
My yoke, and bear it with delight;
My yoke is easy to his neck,
My grace shall make the burden light.

127.

MATTHEW XI.

Jesus the true Messiah.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities.

2 Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples,

3 And said unto him, Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?

4 Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see:

5 The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them.

6 And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.

20 Then began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not:

21 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

22 But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon, at the day of judgment, than for you.

23 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.

24 But I say unto you, That it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee.

25 At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.

26 Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.

27 All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.

28 Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

30 For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XI.—Our Lord has left us an example of holy activity, that we should follow his steps. On earth, faithful saints have inhabited dungeons, but thrones await them in heaven. If we know Christ, we will encourage others to know and love Christ. Jesus most readily accepts, and answers those who come to him for salvation, counsel, and comfort. Great is his power to save; let us therefore earnestly pray, that his Gospel may be effectual in the cure and salvation of diseased and perishing myriads. Blessed are they who are confirmed in divine truth; what guilt they escape here, and joys they shall inherit hereafter! Affecting truth! impenitence leads to hell, but evangelical repentance leads to heaven. Are we arrayed in the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness?—then we shall stand acquitted at the solemn judgment-day. We should often ask, Have saving effects been produced in our hearts by the great and glorious truths of the Gospel of Christ? Great will be the condemnation of those who die despising gospel light. Are we babes in Christ? Do we desire the sincere milk of the Word? Let us adore that gracious sovereignty which has made us the children of God. "O Jesus, thou art Lord of all, we would bow before the sceptre of thy grace. Lord Jesus, deliver us from the burden of guilt!" Blessed are they who flee to Jesus, for they find rest in his covenant, his bosom, and his love. Satan's service is the greatest oppression and bondage, but the service of Christ the greatest liberty and peace.

PRAYER.

OD of our salvation, we adore thee in the glorious and incomprehensible mysteries of thy threefold personality, as the Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah. Thou art the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending: which is, which was, and which is to come, the Almighty. We adore thee in thy providential care of all thy creatures. Thou art as really engaged in maintaining the life of an insect as thou art in supporting the existence of an archangel.

We thank thee for thy paternal protection during the past day. We acknowledge that day unto day uttereth speech, and proclaims the riches of thy goodness. Bless the various duties in which we have engaged, and forgive the blemishes and imperfections which cleave to all we do. We thank thee that our eyes are not closed in death, and that we have enjoyed another opportunity of reading the pages of eternal truth. May we ever look on that sacred volume as the food of our souls. O affect us more and more with the value of the ordinance of reading the Word of life. O that by its observance we may be made wise unto salvation. As a family may we meditate on thy precepts, and have respect to thy ways. Ever may we delight in thy statutes, and not forget thy Word. May the conclusion of another day teach us the measure of our days, and to remember how frail we are. We seek thy guardian care this night, and may we receive that rest, sleep, and repose, by which our mortal bodies shall be invigorated and refreshed.

Blessed Jesus, thou art the divine, the only Redeemer, and to whom can sinners go, but to thyself? O thou who openedst the eyes of the blind deliver us from spiritual blindness. Open our eyes to see our guilt and thy righteousness, our helplessness and thy sufficiency, our maladies and thy skill, our misery and thy mercy. O Jesus, we adore thee as the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. Mercifully take ours away. Remove our spiritual lameness, and teach us the walk of faith and obedience. Wash away the leprosy of sin, and adorn us with the beauties of holiness.

We thank our God for the sublime doctrines and glorious discoveries of thy Gospel. Eternal praises to thy name, that to the poor the Gospel is preached. O, we adore thy sovereignty, that while the glorious realities of salvation are hid from the eyes of multitudes who pride themselves in the learning of men, thou hast revealed them to the obscure, the poor, and the illiterate, who are comparative babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight. O extend this blessed gospel to all the poor, and wretched inhabitants of the world.

Have mercy on our children, compassionate Jesus, and open their eyes to see thy loveliness, and may their hearts be captivated with Divine Jesus, we thank thee for thy tenderness and compassion to those who labour with affliction, and are heavy laden with a sense of guilt. Comfort them and comfort us with the promises of thy truth. When we are afflicted, may we ever apply to thee, the consolation of Israel. O Lord, accept our evening sacrifice, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SECOND WEEK.—SATURDAY MORNING.

JESUS OUR MELCHIZEDEK.

KING of Salem, bless my soul!
 Make a wounded sinner whole!
 King of righteousness and peace,
 ... not thy sweet visits cease!
 2 Come, refresh this soul of mine
 With thy sacred bread and wine!
 All thy love to me unfold,
 Half of which cannot be told.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 197.

GENESIS XIV.

Abram and Melchizedek.

AND it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of nations;

2 That these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, which is Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, which is the salt sea.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote the Rephaims in Ashteroth Karnaim, and the Zuzims in Ham, and the Emims in Shaveh Kiriathaim,

6 And the Horites in their mount Seir, unto El-parau, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned, and came to En-mishpat, which is Kadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazezon-tamar.

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar;) and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of slimepits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there; and they that remained fled to the mountain.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son (who dwelt in Sodom), and his goods, and departed.

13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram.

14 And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan.

15 And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

16 And he brought back all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

17 And the king of Sodom went out to meet him after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him, at the valley of Shaveh, which is the king's dale.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XIV.—Short and uncertain is the reign of earthly kings, and their furious battles are soon followed by the silence of the tomb. How insecure are the despotic governments of man! but the loving, paternal government of Jesus continues like the sun, and lasts for ever. Are the wicked closely confederated in covenants of blood? Oh, how closely should saints be confederated in schemes of piety and love! What a corrupted fountain is carnal ambition! Its streams are carnage, desolation, and death. May we unite in the honourable warfare of fighting with the corruptions of our nature, and may we never desist until all our spiritual enemies are laid prostrate at our feet. May our love be placed on heavenly treasures, which can never take to themselves wings and flee away, like the golden treasures of this changing world. Evil tidings may reach the believer's ear, but still his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord. If we fight our spiritual battles under Christ's direction, and in dependence on his grace, our victory is sure, and angels will join in our triumphant song.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art God, the only Jehovah in heaven above and upon the earth beneath; there is none else. Thou art one Lord, thou art the Father of all. O God of grace, before thee there was no God, neither shall there be after thee, for thou art eternal.

O thou who art the Holy One of Israel, whose name is holy, we confess our sinfulness and unworthiness before thee. To us and to our fathers belongeth confusion of face, for we have sinned against thee. Thou didst make man in his original innocence upright, but he hath sought out many sinful inventions. Our race is fallen, apostate, and depraved. Woe unto us, for we have sinned! Heavenly Father, we pray that, by the righteousness of Jesus our surety, the guilt of all our transgressions may be taken away; and, by the powerful influences of thy Spirit, may our souls be regenerated, our hearts purified, and thus the ruins of our fallen nature repaired, and in thy due time raised to the glories of immortality.

We present before thee, O Lord, as the God of providence and of grace, the sacrifice of our thanksgiving, for the mercies of another night. We thank thee that we did not open our eyes in the abodes and amid the miseries of the lost. As we are in the land of the living, O make us by thy grace the living to praise thee. Deeply affect us with this truth: The dead cannot praise thee, and there is no remembrance of thee in the grave.

Since thou hast graciously permitted us to enter upon another day, enable us with cheerfulness and activity to go forward in thy strength, in the performance of duties, in the resistance of temptation, and in the observance of ordinances. Every day may we live as if it were our last, may we live with the solemnities of eternity before our eyes. O may we live as those who wish and hope to live in heaven eternally with thee.

We implore the blessing of the Spirit on what we have now read. May thy word impress our heart, and prove as a nail fastened in a sure place. O Lord, thou art righteous and sovereign in all the calamities which have befallen guilty nations and cities. Affect us with a sense of thy holiness and justice, in allowing armies to come from distant lands to punish the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah for their abominable and long-continued iniquities. O deliver us as a nation from national sins, and preserve us from national judgments. As a family, as a church, and as a nation, enable us to bow down before Jesus, our divine Melchizedek, and acknowledge him as our Lord, as the true King of Salem, and the true Prince of peace. Jesus, thou art the only priest of the most high God. By faith, may we look to thy sacrifice alone as the sure foundation of our hope and our acceptance with God. Blessed Jesus, thou art a priest for ever. O teach all of us to say, Thou art our priest for ever. Give us a token for good, that we are clothed with thy righteousness, and interested in thine intercession.

Teach our children to fight the good fight of faith, and make them conquerors over all their spiritual enemies.

May this our morning prayer ascend with acceptance before the throne of our God, through the merits of our Saviour. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit be glory and dominion, for ever. Amen.

JESUS OUR HIGH PRIEST.

Arabia. New Oxendon.

C. M.

- 1 WITH joy we meditate the grace
Of our High Priest above;
His heart is made of tenderness,
His bowels melt with love.
- 2 Touched with a sympathy within,
He knows our feeble frame;
He knows what sore temptations mean,
For he has felt the same.
- 3 But spotless, innocent, and pure,
The great Redeemer stood,
While Satan's fiery darts he bore,
And did resist to blood.

WATTS, 125, B. I.

MATTHEW XII.

Christ's Mercy and Wisdom.

AND when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue:

10 And, behold, there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

12 How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days.

13 Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 Then the Pharisees went out, and held a council against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all;

16 And charged them that they should not make him known:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying,

18 Behold my servant, whom I have chosen: my beloved, in whom my soul is well-pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He shall not strive, nor cry; neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory.

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

31 Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit.

34 O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

35 A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.

36 But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.

37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XII.—Christ's presence makes his sanctuary glorious, and diseased souls who frequent his courts find that he is ready, with his gracious balm, to heal all the maladies of their heart. Alas! many are more merciful to their sheep than to their souls. "Jesus, at thy command we come to thee to save us!" They are wise who prefer their immortal souls before their dying bodies. May our spiritual diseases be exchanged for spiritual health! May love to Jesus abide where enmity against him reigned. The mercy of Christ is boundless; he can cure all who come; he does heal all who apply. Serious question!—have we applied? Old Testament prophets have delighted to foretell Christ's mercy and proclaim his glory: may we delight to think on his excellence and proclaim his praise. They are greatly blessed and honoured who breathe Christ's spirit, who walk in his footsteps, who resemble him in meekness, gentleness, compassion, and grace. His name is above every name; may it be our joy, our confidence, our trust. A heart blaspheming the Spirit of God is an epitome of hell; a heart loving and adoring the Spirit is an emblem of heaven. What a change, when a heart is changed from a fountain of enmity and pollution into a fountain of holiness and love! It is wise and profitable to keep the judgment-day constantly in view, as a salutary check upon the words of our mouth and the actions of our life.

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Father, we bow before thy throne in Jesus' name. Glory to God in the highest, that we are not prostrating ourselves in false worship, before false gods. We would mourn, O Lord, over the millions of our race who worship gods which can neither see nor hear, nor help their ignorant, deluded, miserable votaries. Truly, they who make them are like unto them; so is every one who trusteth in them. O Lord, have mercy upon them; and soon reveal thy being, attributes, and grace to blinded, idolatrous nations.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the mercies of another day, and of another week. We thank thee for continuing with us a rich supply of thine unmerited mercies, and for causing our cup to overflow with thy temporal and spiritual blessings. O preserve us from a spirit of ingratitude. Bless the Lord, O our soul, and forget not all his benefits. Affect us deeply with a sense of thy sovereignty, in preserving our lives during another week, while many who were alive at its commencement are now numbered with the dead, and, it is to be feared, not a few of them numbered among the lost. O teach us with our whole heart to bless thee, that we are in the land of the living, and in the place where the joyful accents of redeeming love salute our ears.

O Lord, we are unworthy petitioners, and in ourselves polluted and guilty. During the past week, we have added to the number of our iniquities. Thou who delightest to forgive, we lay down at thy feet the sins of the past week, the sins of our past lives; yea, we lay down before thee all our sins, and pray, Lord, be merciful to us sinners; hide thy face from our sins, and blot out all our iniquities.

Mercifully watch over us this night. May our sleep be sweet; and suffer none to make us afraid. Lord of the Sabbath-day, we would rejoice in our near prospect of that holy, hallowed day. Holy Spirit, graciously prepare us, and our relatives, and the congregation to which we belong, and thy beloved ministers, and the whole household of faith, for the solemnities of thy Sabbath, and for the services of thy sanctuary.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, the sacred truths we have now read. We bring to thee, our Saviour and physician, our diseased souls. Alas, the faculties, gifts, and talents thou hast given us, in consequence of our sinful carelessness and indifference, too much resemble the withered hand of which we have now read. We seek from our God holy zeal and lively activity in thy service. O may we resemble the meekness and the gentleness, the tenderness and the mercy of Jesus, who never broke the bruised reed, nor quenched the smoking flax. Suffer us not to resist the Holy Ghost. O when the divine Spirit strives with us, may we lovingly and obediently submit to his influence. Make us fruit-bearing trees in the garden of thy Church.

And may our beloved children and servants be trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord's right-hand.

Jesus, our kind Intercessor, give efficacy to this our prayer. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost we ascribe infinite glory and praise. Amen.

THIRD WEEK.—SABBATH MORNING.

Waltham Abbey. Irish.

c. m.

1 WITH my whole heart I'll raise my song,
Thy wonders I'll proclaim;
Thou, sovereign Judge of right and wrong,
Wilt put my foes to shame.

2 I'll sing thy majesty and grace;

To judge the world in righteousness,
And make his vengeance known.

3 Then shall the Lord a refuge prove
For all the poor oppress;
To save the people of his love,
And give the weary rest.

WATTS, Ps 9, p. 1.

PSALM IX.

God's Judgments.

I WILL praise thee, O LORD, with my whole heart; I will shew forth all thy marvellous works.

2 I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, O thou most High.

3 When mine enemies are turned back, they shall fall and perish at thy presence.

4 For thou hast maintained my right and my cause; thou satest in the throne judging right.

5 Thou hast rebuked the heathen, thou hast destroyed the wicked, thou hast put out their name for ever and ever.

6 O thou enemy, destructions are come to a perpetual end: and thou hast destroyed cities; their memorial is perished with them.

7 But the LORD shall endure for ever: he hath prepared his throne for judgment.

8 And he shall judge the world in righteousness, he shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness.

9 The LORD also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble.

10 And they that know thy name will put their trust in thee: for thou, LORD, hast not forsaken them that seek thee.

11 Sing praises to the LORD, which dwelleth in Zion: declare among the people his doings.

12 When he maketh inquisition for blood, he remembereth them: he forgetteth not the cry of the humble.

13 Have mercy upon me, O LORD; consider my trouble which I suffer of them that hate me, thou that liftest me up from the gates of death:

14 That I may show forth all thy praise in the gates of the daughter of Zion: I will rejoice in thy salvation.

15 The heathen are sunk down in the pit that they made: in the net which they hid is their own foot taken.

16 The LORD is known by the judgment which he executeth: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands. Higgaion.* Selah.

17 The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.

18 For the needy shall not alway be forgotten: the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever.

19 Arise, O LORD; let not man prevail: let the heathen be judged in thy sight.

20 Put them in fear, O LORD: that the nations may know themselves to be but men. Selah.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM IX.—As sacred fire continually burnt upon the altar, may joyful praises continually ascend from our hearts to our compassionate Saviour, for his distinguished mercies! Blessed Friend! for at once he destroys the enemies of his people, and vindicates their cause against every accuser. Where are the heathen persecutors of ancient days? They have perished before the breath of Zion's King. Let the Church rejoice, for Jesus her Saviour for ever dwells in the midst of her. Saints proclaim his praise! for he will silence and confound your foes—for your names are engraven on his heart, and he will mercifully answer your prayers. O how superior the reign of Christ to that of the rulers of the earth! It is imperishable, adorned by righteousness and mercy, and the defence of afflicted saints, who shall never be forgotten or deliverances encourage believers to flee to the bosom of mercy, and also animate them in proclaiming their Redeemer's praise. The impenitent prepare for themselves the miseries of hell, and their punishments declare the righteous judgments of heaven. God affectionately remembers his people, though covered with the darkest clouds; he will cause his Gospel to triumph over every obstacle, and by his judgments will make his enemies sensible of their weakness and insignificance.

* Meditation.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day.

As a family, we would now humbly, reverently, and joyfully prostrate ourselves before the throne of thy grace, on the morning of this thy sacred, hallowed, blessed day. Holy Spirit, breathe upon us thy gracious influences. We rejoice, O Lord, that in the inspired song we have now read we are instructed to adore thee. Thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; thou hast prepared thy throne for judgment. O prepare us for judgment, by clothing us with the righteousness of Christ; then shall we appear with acceptance before thee on that day, when thou wilt judge the world in righteousness. Teach us to praise thee with our whole heart, and to the close of our mortal lives to show forth thy marvellous works. O cause us to be glad and rejoice in thee; then will we sing praise to thy name, O most High.

We present before thee, O Lord, the tribute of our gratitude, for preserving us during the past night, for refreshing us with sleep and repose, and for permitting us, under thy fatherly smiles, to see the cheering light of another Christian Sabbath, another hallowed day of the Son of man. Mercifully prepare us for the religious and important services of this day. Holy Spirit, the preparation of the heart is alone with thee. O give us the preparation of the heart. May the prospect of entering thy courts fill our hearts with gladness, thankfulness, and joy. Go forth with thy beloved ministering servants, the heralds of the cross and the ambassadors of salvation. May they be delivered from the fear of man, and proclaim the gospel message with affection, boldness, and fidelity. May they ever feel the awful responsibility of their commission, and the peculiarly solemn importance of the work in which they are engaged. Impress them with the conviction that they are standing between the living and the dead. May they dispense the oracles of truth in such a way, that the blood of their people shall not be required at their hands. Glorious King of Zion, let multitudes flock to Jesus this day, as doves flee to their windows. O that many hearts now cold and hard as ice, may be warmed and softened this day by the superlative love of Christ being shed abroad in the midst of them. Blessed Jesus, cause them to see the loveliness of thy grace, and captivate them with the comeliness of thy mediatorial beauty.

O have mercy on our children and domestics, and may they never be among the number of the wicked, who shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that forget God.

Merciful God, bless thine universal Church. Enlarge the boundaries of the Mediator's kingdom, and soon may all the rulers, princes, and monarchs of the earth fall down before him and worship him.

Graciously hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. We ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost the power and the glory, for ever and ever.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THIRD WEEK.—SABBATH EVENING.

PRAYER HEARD.

Highbury College. Walsal.

1 WHY doth the Lord stand off so far?
And why conceal his face,
Whon great calamities appear,
And times of deep distress?

3 They put thy judgments from their sight,
And then insult the poor;
They boast in their exalted height,
That they should fall no more.

WATTS, Ps. 10.

PSALM X.

The Wicked Man.

WHY standest thou afar off, O LORD? why hidest thou thyself in times of trouble?

2 The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor: let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined.

3 For the wicked boasteth of his heart's desire, and blesseth the covetous, whom the Lord abhorreth.

4 The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts.

5 His ways are always grievous; thy judgments are far above out of his sight: as for all his enemies, he puffeth at them.

6 He hath said in his heart, I shall not be moved: for I shall never be in adversity.

7 His mouth is full of cursing and deceit and fraud: under his tongue is mischief and vanity.

8 He sitteth in the lurking places of the villages: in the secret places doth he murder the innocent: his eyes are privily set against the poor.

9 He lieth in wait secretly as a lion in his den: he lieth in wait to catch the poor: he doth catch the poor, when he draweth him into his net.

10 He croucheth, and humbleth himself, that the poor may fall by his strong ones.

11 He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten: he hideth his face; he will never see it.

12 Arise, O LORD; O God, lift up thine hand: forget not the humble.

13 Wherefore doth the wicked contemn God? he hath said in his heart, Thou wilt not require it.

14 Thou hast seen it; for thou beholdest mischief and spite to requite it with thy hand: the poor committeth himself unto thee; thou art the helper of the fatherless.

15 Break thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man: seek out his wickedness till thou find none.

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out of his land.

17 LORD, thou hast heard the desire of the humble: thou wilt prepare their heart, thou wilt cause thine ear to hear:

18 To judge the fatherless and the oppressed, that the man of the earth may no more oppress.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM X.—When God hides his face from his people, they ardently long for the smiles of his countenance. The malignity of the wicked against the saints will bring upon their own heads everlasting destruction. Appalling depravity! the wicked man glories in his own corruption, delights in those who are the objects of divine abhorrence, refuses to become acquainted with Jehovah, and disdainfully expels him from his thoughts! While his actions are most depraved, he is ignorant of his danger, he boasts of his false security, and shuts his eyes from impending calamities. His words are a stream of blasphemous pollution, flowing from the depraved heart. At one time he lies in the ambush of concealment, and at another he assumes the garb of humility, that he may more effectually destroy the unsuspecting victims of his rage. For this end he plunges into the depths of atheism, and forgets the all-seeing eye of God.—In answer to the prayers of his people, God kindly remembers them in their affliction, while he beholds and punishes the blasphemous wickedness of their enemies, and spreads his shield over the believing and the faithful.

venge of the humble, for they know their interest in the love of a prayer-hearing God, who will avenge his oppressed children, and destroy their oppressors.

PRAYER.

Our Father who art in heaven, we are encouraged to draw near thy throne of grace, because thou dost constantly fill thy mercy-seat, waiting with tenderness and compassion to hear and answer the supplications of thy people. O Lord, thou art King for ever and ever. There is none in the heavens to be compared with thee, and none among the sons of the mighty can ever be likened unto thee. O how great is thy majesty! for all nations before thee are as nothing—they are less than nothing, and vanity. O how great is thy glory! for they are as a drop of a bucket, and as the small dust of the balance. May we as a family be ever impressed with a sense of thy majesty, glory, and grace. We desire, O Lord, most sensibly to feel thy great kindness, during the sacred day which has come to a close. Accept of our unfeigned thanks for those temporal and spiritual mercies thou hast so graciously bestowed. We thank thee that our bodies have been fed, in common with millions, at the table of thy providence; and that our souls have been refreshed, in common with thousands, at the gospel table of thy grace. By the rich provision of thy house, may we be nourished, invigorated, and refreshed. As the honey from the rock revived the fainting heart of Jonathan, may our hearts be greatly animated and revived with the delicious honey of the word of thy grace which has dropped this day from the rock of Christ. O let multitudes be blessed who have heard the joyful sound, and may it be made to thousands a saving sound. May joy be excited in the hearts of many which will last for ever; and may the precious seed which has been sown on our hearts, and on the hearts of the congregation with which we are connected, spring up into everlasting life. May an abundant harvest be reaped on earth, and a plentiful harvest be gathered in heaven. Show thy most gracious pity, O Lord, to Abraham's race. Are they not, O Jesus, thy kindred after the flesh? O may they soon be delivered from their unbelief, and be engrafted into thee, the true vine.

Bless, O Lord, a preached gospel, to the conversion of our children, and may our hearts soon be filled with spiritual joy, by seeing in them the satisfying evidences of a saving change.

O Lord, enter not into judgment with us for the great and numerous imperfections which cleave to all our religious services, and which deface our most sacred engagements. For Jesus' sake blot out all our iniquities. O we rejoice that thou wilt never refuse that mercy which is sought through the merit of our Saviour's blood.

Fill us with abhorrence of sin in every shape, and with a holy disgust at those passions, vices, and crimes delineated in the character presented before us in the sacred song we have now read. O let us turn with delight and admiration from the vileanness of depraved man, to the matchless loveliness of Jesus, the brightness of the Father's glory!

O Lord, we supplicate thy gracious care this night. May we lie down upon our beds in peace, under the impression of what we have heard this day in thy public courts. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THIRD WEEK.—MONDAY MORNING

PROMISE TO ABRAHAM.

Worcester. New York.

C. K.

HOW large the promise, how divine,
To Abra'm and his seed!
I'll be a God to thee and thine,
Supplying all their need.
The words of his extensive love
From age to age endure;
The angel of the covenant proves,
And seals the blessing sure.
3 Jesus the ancient faith confirms,
To our great father given;
He takes young children to his arms,
And calls them heirs of heaven.

WATTS, 113, R. I.

GENESIS XV.

Abram encouraged.

AFTER these things the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.

2 And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus?

3 And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed: and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir.

4 And, behold, the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto him, So shall thy seed be.

6 And he believed in the Lord; and he counted it to him for righteousness.

7 And he said unto him, I am the Lord that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he said, Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?

9 And he said unto him, Take me an heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtledove, and a young pigeon.

10 And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another: but the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcasses, <sup>beams</sup>drove them away.

12 And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not their's, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years;

14 And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

16 But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full.

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and a burning lamp that passed between those pieces.

18 In the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XV.—The believer is strongly defended and greatly enriched, and he has a name better than that of sons and of daughters. Important question! Are we heirs of God? If we trust God he will overrule all events for our good and his glory. Faith sees a glorious future day, when believers on earth shall be countless as the stars. Are we the subjects of grace? We are then brought from a kingdom of darkness and death, and have obtained a title to a rich inheritance beyond the skies. The clean animals which were offered in sacrifice should remind us of Jesus, the spotless Lamb, sacrificed for us. Let us cultivate watchfulness against all which may interrupt our fellowship with God. The sorrows of saints on earth enhance their joys in heaven. They who injure the people of God heap up for themselves accumulated wrath. May our death be peaceful, may we fall asleep in Jesus! While the wicked are presumptuously filling up their cup of sin, God is justly filling up his cup of vengeance. Let us therefore stand in awe and sin not.

PRAYER.

LORD our God, we desire, as a portion of thy rational and accountable subjects, to bow the knee before thee, and in the name of Christ to adore thy sovereign majesty, and praise thee for thy providential and redeeming goodness, which endureth continually. We would rejoice in the fountain of thy kindness and mercy, which, like thyself, is infinite and inexhaustible. O what streams of blessings thou hast sent forth from this fountain, which have gladdened from age to age the hearts of thy people!

We thank thee that thou hast answered our prayers, and continued with us thy mercy during the past night. We committed ourselves to thy preserving care, and we bless thy name that thou hast cared for us. Thy mercies are new unto us every morning: how great is thy faithfulness!

Let thy precious word we have now read be light to our benighted minds, and balm to heal the maladies of our diseased souls.

We are permitted in thy mercy to enter upon another day; give us grace to discharge its duties with diligence, to receive its blessings with thankfulness, to meet its obstacles with fortitude, and to resist its temptations with triumphant success. May our conduct in every part of this portion of time plainly testify that we have been with Jesus; that we have seen his bounty in the closet of secret prayer, and enjoyed his fellowship while surrounding the domestic altar.

Preserve our children from the snares and temptations to which they may be exposed this day, and may they be more than conquerors through Christ that loved them.

May Abraham's God be our God. When we look upon the multitude of our sins, which are like the stars, and upon their magnitude, which resembles the great mountains, comfort us with thy pardoning mercy, and say, Fear not, your sins are all forgiven you. When we think of the number and strength of our spiritual enemies, say unto us in thy great mercy, I am your shield. Blessed Jesus, be unto us our shield; then who can make us afraid? who can endanger our safety? Divine Saviour, if we may be called upon in this vale of tears to sustain the loss of health, or substance, or friends, O say unto us, I am your exceeding great reward. Holy Spirit, we long, we pray for that faith which will teach us to say with humility, confidence, and joy, O Jesus, thou, and thou alone, art the strength of our heart, and our portion for ever.

We praise thee for the blessings of thy providence and thy grace, which are more than can be numbered. As thy servant the father of the faithful was made the heir of a great inheritance, give us the pleasing evidence that, through Christ, we are heirs of God, and of an eternal inheritance beyond the grave. O teach us to say with an apostle, He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? May we never forget that we are pilgrims on earth, and ever may we look for the rest which remains above. And when the time of our departure arrives, may we be gathered to our fathers in peace, and our souls meet in heaven with the myriads of the redeemed. O Hearer of prayer, mercifully accept our morning sacrifice, for our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE GOSPEL PROCLAIMED.

Oranbrook. Margate.

S. U.

- 1 HOW beauteous are their feet
Who stand on Zion's hill!
Who bring salvation on their tongues,
And words of peace reveal!
- 2 How charming is their voice,
How sweet the tidings are!
Zion, behold thy Saviour King,
Ho roigns and triumphs here.
- 3 How happy are our ears,
That hear this joyful sound,
Which kings and prophets waited for,
And sought, but never found!

Watts, 10, B. I.

MATTHEW XIII.

Parable of the Sower.

THE same day went Jesus out of the house, and sat by the sea side.

2 And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

3 And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, Behold, a sower went forth to sow;

4 And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the fowls came and devoured them up:

5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:

6 And when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up, and choked them:

8 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.

9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?

11 He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

12 For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.

14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceive:

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.

17 For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIII.—Most diversified were the scenes of the usefulness of Christ. Hallowed spectacle! when multitudes are gathering to Jesus. How precious is the incorruptible seed of the word of life! Satan is ever on the watch to prevent the fruitfulness of the seed of divine truth. What an unfruitful, barren soil is the heart of man! alas! how many hopeful blossoms, have withered and died! It should be our constant prayer that God would destroy in our hearts the thorns of sinful cares. May we ever devoutly listen to God's voice in providence and grace, and often ask counsel of Jesus, the Wonderful, the Counsellor. Most earnestly we should seek faith to believe, and grace to enjoy the mysteries of revelation; then our gospel privileges will never rise up against us to condemn us. Oh! what a calamity is a blinded understanding, and a hardened heart! Blessed are they whose hearts are melted by conviction, and quickened by conversion; for they see Jesus as their divine Saviour, and hear and know his voice as their loving Shepherd. What reason have we to rejoice, that we live amid the splendours of New Testament days!

PRAYER.

O THOU, whom angels and archangels adore, we approach thee in the name of our exalted Immanuel. Look not on us as we have sinned, a company of unworthy petitioners; but graciously behold us in the face of thine Anointed, in whose righteousness we desire to be clothed.

We thank thee that thou hast brought us in safety to the conclusion of another day, that thou hast continued our lives, preserved our health, supplied our wants, and defended us from those dangers and temptations to which we have been exposed. What shall we render unto thee, for all the mercy and the goodness which thou art constantly making to pass before us! For all thy mercies, merciful God, we present the sacrifice of thanksgiving and of praise.

O Lord, deeply impress our minds with the solemn thought, that since the beginning of this day not a few are silent in death! O affect us with the conviction, that many are dying every day who are destitute of the means of grace, and are not comforted with the hopes of heaven. We thank thee that we are on this side eternity, and that another opportunity has been afforded us of looking upon the pages of that sacred book which points to Jesus, to heaven, and to immortality.

May our minds be impressed by the lamentable description we have now read of professors in the days of Isaiah, and in the time of our Saviour's humbled humanity. O suffer not our ears, like theirs, to be dull of hearing, but may we listen with faith and joy to the proclamations of divine love. By faith may we see Christ's glory, that every one of us may be converted and healed. Merciful God, are there any among us spiritually deaf and blind? Open their eyes to see Christ's loveliness, and their ears to hear the sweet accents of his mercy.

Convince our beloved children that by nature their hearts are hard as adamant; by grace do thou make them soft as flesh. O touch them savingly by thy gracious power.

Holy Spirit, teach us to take heed how we hear. When we hear thy word, suffer not the wicked one to catch that which is sown, and take it away. Let not thy precious word resemble the seed sown on stony places, but may it sink deep into our hearts. O prevent the cares and anxieties of the world from choking the precious seed; but, under the quickening light of the Sun of Righteousness, may it spring up, and bring forth an abundant harvest of the fruits of grace, in time and in eternity. Holy Spirit, grant this, the desire of our souls.

May the liveliest gratitude inspire our minds for what our eyes have seen and for what our ears have heard of Jesus and his salvation, of the glorious perfections of the divine nature, and of the blessedness of that state which is heavenly and immortal. What are we, that our eyes have seen what the eyes of prophets and righteous men did not see, and that our ears have heard what their ears were not permitted to hear? O how great is thy goodness! Suffer us not to abuse thy kindness.

In thy mercy, give us sleep, repose, and protection this night. We ask every blessing, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost be ascribed honour, glory, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

REFUGE OF GOD.

Sticks. St. Mary's. Bangor.

C. N.

- 1 TO God I made my sorrows known,
From God I sought relief;
In long complaints before his throne
I poured out all my grief.
- 2 My soul was overwhelmed with woes,
My heart began to break;
My God, who all my burthens knows,
He knows the way I take.
- 3 On every side I cast mine eye,
And found my helpers gone,
While friends and strangers passed me by Neglected or unknown.
- 4 Then did I raise a louder cry,
And called thy mercy near;
Thou art my portion when I die,
Be thou my refuge here.

Watts, Ps. 142.

GENESIS XVI.

Hagar cast out.

BUT Abram said unto Sarai, Behold, thy maid is in thy hand; do to her as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai dealt hardly with her, she fled from her face.

7 And the angel of the Lord found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness, by the fountain in the way to Shur.

8 And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence comest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai.

9 And the angel of the Lord said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and submit thyself under her hands.

10 And the angel of the Lord said unto her, I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude.

11 And the angel of the Lord said unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and shalt bear a son, and shalt call his name Ishmael; because the Lord hath heard thy affliction.

12 And he will be a wild man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him; and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.

13 And she called the name of the Lord that spake unto her, Thou God seest me: for she said, Have I also here looked after him that seeth me?

14 Wherefore the well was called Beer-lahai-roi; * behold, it is between Kadesh and Bered.

15 And Hagar bare Abram a son: and Abram called his son's name, which Hagar bare, Ishmael.

16 And Abram was fourscore and six years old, when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XVI.—How unseemly are severity, harshness, and cruelty in the conduct of the followers of the lowly Jesus. Do we need the visits and the help of angels?—then we must be found near the walls of salvation. Are we persecuted by men?—it is our privilege to flee to Jesus, who is ready to hide us in the bosom of his love. If some duties are mortifying to our corruptions, they will prove profitable to our souls. In the dark night of affliction, God's promises shine like sparkling stars. God knows the sorrows of his people; he counts their tears, and hears their prayers. How miserable is a life of constant enmity and strife, and how blessed shall our race be when the reign of Christian love shall universally prevail! If we are Christ's we will look to him with the eye of faith, believing that he is ever looking on us with the eye of love; and we shall draw water with joy from Jesus, the fountain of mercy. Are we the regenerated sons of God?—we are then heirs of God, adorned with the divine likeness, and fellow-heirs with Christ. How interesting the history of those nations which are descended from Ishmael! consisting of myriads of Arabs of various tribes, scattered over Asia and extensive portions of northern Africa.

* The well of him that liveth and seeth me.

Alas! the greater numbers are under the power of Mahometan delusions,—the blinded votaries of a false faith. Let us pity their degradation, and earnestly pray that they may soon be added to the Christian Church, and become the ornaments of the Gospel of Jesus. We hail the day, predicted by the oracles of eternal truth, when the following promise, which respects the Arab tribes, shall have received a full and blessed accomplishment: "All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory."

PRAYER.

O LORD, we desire, with humble, filial confidence, to approach thy presence in the name of Christ, and to adore thee as the God of our salvation. What are we, and what is our Father's house, that thou shouldst look upon us in mercy and grace? How incomprehensible thy majesty! how inconceivable thy condescension! Who is like unto the Lord our God? who is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens; who humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven, and upon the earth!

Blessed God and Father in Christ, may we now feel deeply humbled and penitent, under a sense of our manifold and aggravated sins. We confess that we have sinned against the light of reason and of conscience, and against the kind and earnest strivings of the Holy Spirit in a preached gospel. We have been long surrounded by the light of the kingdom, and yet, alas! how great is the darkness of our ignorance and folly. If we are still in the region and shadow of death, let us remain no longer in the midst of such dreary darkness, but may all of us be introduced into thy blessed kingdom of life, of light, of liberty, and peace. O may the following threatening never fall upon our head as a thunderbolt of divine vengeance: That servant which knew his Lord's will and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall he be beaten with many stripes. May thy blessed will be our delight; and at the last and great day may we be enabled to give in our account with joy and not with grief. O Jesus, we desire to appear accepted in thy righteousness.

Blessed Jesus, mercifully reign in the hearts of our children and domestics. Say unto them with power, Give me thine heart. May they answer, Blessed Saviour, take our heart.

Holy Spirit, impress on our minds the portion of sacred history we have now read. O let no root of bitterness ever spring up in our family to disturb our domestic peace. Preserve us from a sinful love of any earthly objects; and in times of temptation let us never be blinded by circumstances and carnal expediency, but enable us implicitly, only, and constantly, to follow thy law, as our unerring counsellor and guide. God forbid that we should ever use the frailties of thy people as an encouragement to sin: but may we employ them as a solemn warning, and an affecting, humbling beacon to avoid temptation. Merciful God, as thou didst meet with Hagar in the wilderness, O give us thy presence in the desert of this world. As thou didst hear her affliction, O comfort us in all our affliction, by thy gracious promises, and thy fatherly smiles.

O prosper thy Church, extend thy mediatorial kingdom, and let all the islands wait for thy law. O when shall thy glory be revealed to all lands, and all flesh see it together!

Make us thankful, O Lord, for the continued kindness of another night; and be our guide, our defender, and our comforter this day. May we live this day, and every day, by the faith of the Son of God.

Greatly bless our relations and friends, and let all of them be the sons and daughters of the living God.

O hear this our morning's prayer, through the merit of our dear Redeemer; while we ascribe to the three-one God, glory and honour, and power and majesty, for ever and ever. Amen.

SUMMER AND HARVEST.

Israel. Lydia. Epkorn.

C. M.

- 1 TO praise the ever-bounteous Lord,
My soul, wake all thy powers :
He calls, and at his voice come forth
The smiling harvest hours.
- 2 His covenant with the earth he keeps ;
My tongue his goodness sing ;
Summer and winter know their time,
His harvest crowns the spring.
- 3 Thus teach me, gracious God, to sow
The seeds of righteousness :
Smile on my soul, and with thy beams
The ripening harvest bless.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 95.

MATTHEW XIII.

Wheat and Tares.

ANOTHER parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field :

25 But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

31 Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field :

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.

33 Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

34 All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake he not unto them:

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

36 Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house, and his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 He answered and said unto them, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man;

38 The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one;

39 The enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels.

40 As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity;

42 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

43 Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIII.—Naturally the mind of man is a barren, uncultivated field, which Satan strives to retain in his own possession, and which eminently requires the culture and care of the Divine Spirit. Parents, teachers, and ministers should never forget that while they are diligent in sowing the good seed upon the heart Satan is active in sowing tares. But God will mercifully preserve his saints, and receive them to his heaven at last. Have we only a little grace?—though small, it shall last, and shine for ever. Our souls are by nature leavened by sin; may God mercifully leaven them by grace. May we receive the adoption of sons; then God will show us the secrets of his grace. To be the children of the kingdom is a greater honour than to possess the diadems of kings. We should daily strive to live under the impression of the prospect of the judgment-day. If Christ is ours we can anticipate, with joy, that day when assembled worlds shall appear before their Maker and their Judge.

PRAYER.

O MERCIFUL and everlasting God, we desire to rejoice with thankfulness that we are forbidden at no time to approach the throne of grace. What are we that thou art more ready to hear our prayers than we are to present them? We thank thee that, in the overflowings of thy goodness, thou art willing to grant us even more than we can ask or think.

Holy Spirit, we implore thy help in presenting our evening prayer, and that thou wouldst inspire us with reverence, earnestness, and faith.

We acknowledge our unworthiness of the blessings of thy providence and grace enjoyed during the past day. O receive our united thanksgiving and praise. Let the guilt of our daily sins be washed away, in the laver of our Redeemer's righteousness. May thy blessing rest upon us this night, and may we sleep secure in the arms of our merciful Saviour.

Bless to us, O Lord, the instructive parables we have now read: and may we rejoice that Jesus, who spake as never man spake, uttered things, and brought glorious truths to light, which were kept secret from the foundation of the world. Teach us spiritual watchfulness; and may we not by indolence and unconcern allow our spiritual enemies to gain over us even a temporary advantage. May we ever watch and pray, that we enter not into temptation. Lord, preserve and deliver the garden of our mind from the tares of corruption, and pride, and unbelief. As the wheat is collected into the barn may we at death be gathered and carried to the heaven of heavens. Lord, give us grace, even if it should resemble a grain of mustard-seed. Give us the pleasing evidence that we are indeed the possessors of grace, which resembles the extending and universal influence of leaven, which leavens the whole lump. Evermore give us that grace which beautifies every faculty and affection of the heart, and which adorns the life with the lustre of true holiness. Deliver us from Satan, who is the wicked one, who waits to blast the good seed, and who is constantly going about seeking whom he may devour. Enable us daily to anticipate the solemnities of the judgment-day, when the Son of man shall send his angels, to gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them that do iniquity.

On that day, that awful day, may our beloved children appear on the right-hand of the Judge.

On that day, that solemn day, may we and our household be found among thy righteous, justified ones, and may we, though the least of all thy mercies, shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of our Father. O may the blessings which we supplicate for ourselves be also conferred on our relatives and friends, on all in whom we are interested, and on those who regularly worship with us in thy house of prayer. May all of us be clothed in the comely robe of our Redeemer's righteousness; then shall we shine brighter than the firmament, for ever and ever.

We present this our prayer in Jesus' name. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed deserved homage and praise, now and for ever. Amen.

COVENANT WITH CHRIST.

Brook Street, James's.

C. K.

- 1 THE promise was divinely free,
Extensive was the grace;
I will the God of Abra'm be,
And of his numerous race.
- 2 He said; and with a bloody seal
Confirmed the words he spake:
Long did the sons of Abra'm feel
The sharp and painful yoke.
- 3 Till God's own Son, descending low,
Gave his own flesh to bleed;
And Gentiles taste the blessing now,
From the hard bondage freed.

WATTS, 134, B. 11.

GENESIS XVII.

Circumcision.

AND when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect.

2 And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly.

3 And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying,

4 As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations.

5 Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee.

6 And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee.

7 And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and thy seed after thee.

8 And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God.

9 And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations.

10 This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; Every man child among you shall be circumcised.

11 And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a token of the covenant betwixt me and you.

12 And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed.

13 He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant.

14 And the uncircumcised man child whose flesh of his foreskin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant.

23 And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house; and circumcised the flesh of their foreskin in the selfsame day, as God had said unto him.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

26 In the selfsame day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son.

27 And all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XVII.—Old age, accompanied with unfeigned piety and fellowship with God, is the delightful prelude of heaven. When we worship God with holy reverence, we are prepared to hear the voice of his mercy, and to embrace the promises of his truth. Jesus is the everlasting Father of his saints, and his spiritual seed shall be countless as the stars. The true believer can say with holy triumph, "Jesus has made with me an everlasting covenant, and shall take me at last to his heavenly home." If we are Christ's seed we are circumcised by his Spirit to love him with all our hearts. If our parents have dedicated us to God in our infancy, have we consecrated ourselves to God in our maturity? How important is holiness: "for without holiness no man can see the Lord." May God give us the circumcision of the heart. Oh, how lovely is sanctified age! Oh, how lovely is sanctified youth! Children of pious parents should often remember that they have been dedicated to Jesus; and may they show by youthful piety that the dedication is accepted of God.

PRAYER.

OR LORD, thou art a God of unchanging love; therefore we take encouragement, as a worshipping family, to present before thee our morning sacrifice. We adore thee as the Father of lights, with whom there is no variableness, nor shadow of turning. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever the world was formed, thou didst exist in thyself, in the enjoyment of the same attributes which are now the unfading ornament of thy being. From everlasting to everlasting thou art God.—O fill our hearts with joy unspeakable, that thou art as unchanging in thy love as in thy nature.

We thank thee that we have enjoyed thy paternal and providential care, during the silence, the darkness, and the dangers of another night. What shall we render unto thee for all thy mercies? We would take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. O teach us this day to manifest the gratitude of our hearts by the holiness of our lives. We implore thy grace, that, by the diligent discharge of our spiritual duties, we may show ourselves to be living epistles, seen and read of all men. O help us to lean upon the arm of our merciful Redeemer, that we may discharge duties, observe ordinances, surmount obstacles, endure afflictions, resist temptations, and subdue corruptions, as it becometh the followers of Christ.

As Abraham devoted his sons to thee, so we would affectionately dedicate our children. O Jesus, circumcise their hearts to love thee, and graciously admit them and our household into the covenant of peace.

Most merciful Father, as thou didst comfort thy servant, O do thou comfort us. O say to us, to all our friends, and more especially to those who are bowing down under the infirmities of advanced years, I will be a God unto thee, walk before me, and be thou perfect, I am the Almighty God. Blessed Jesus, thy name is mighty to save. We acknowledge that none can save us but an almighty Saviour. Thou alone art this Saviour; thou art the mighty God; thou art willing to save; as willing as thou art able, as able as thou art willing; yea, thou art able to save to the very uttermost. Where can we go, where should we go but unto thee? Now, we would come unto thee; O suffer us not to delay another day, another hour. Now, while we address thy throne, we would commit our souls, our bodies, our all, into the arms of thy grace. O we thank thee for the encouraging accents of thy mercy: Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation. Compassionate Jesus, we commend our souls into thy hand, for time and eternity; and may we never, never forget the dedication of ourselves to thee, as individuals, and as a family. Henceforth, to the close of life, may we have the most encouraging evidence that we are thine, for ever thine. And when our mortal career comes to a close, may we arrive at the heavenly Canaan, where we shall for ever behold the King in his beauty. O hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

DOOM OF THE WICKED.

Webster's. David's.

c. n.

- 1 WHEN Christ to judgment shall descend,
And saints surround their Lord,
He calls the nations to attend,
And hear his awful word.
- 2 Not for the want of bullocks slain
Will I the world reprove;
Altars, and rites, and forms are vain,
Without the fire of love.
- 3 And what have hypocrites to do
To bring their sacrifice?
They call my statutes just and true,
But deal in theft and lies.
- 4 Consider, ye that slight the Lord,
Before his wrath appear;
If once you fall beneath his sword,
There's no deliverer there.

Watts, Ps. 50, p. III.

MATTHEW XIII.

Kingdom of Heaven.

A GAIN, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls:

46 Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

47 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind:

48 Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away.

49 So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth and sever the wicked from among the just,

50 And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

51 Jesus saith unto them, Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then said he unto them, Therefore every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

53 And it came to pass, that when Jesus had finished these parables, he departed thence.

54 And when he was come into his own country, he taught them in their synagogues, insomuch that they were astonished, and said, Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works?

55 Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas?

56 And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence then hath this man all these things?

57 And they were offended in him. But Jesus said unto them, A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.

58 And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIII.—Are we possessed of the treasure of grace, of Jesus, the pearl of great price? we shall at last receive the inheritance of glory. May we consider all but loss compared with Christ, and may we prefer Christ to all. Let it be our earnest prayer, that increasing multitudes of precious souls may be gathered into the gospel-net. How pitiful the situation of those who live under the gospel sound, without feeling its saving power! Temporary is the presence of the wicked with the righteous now, but hereafter their separation is for ever. God has given us the oracles of mercy; but they are only a dead letter without divine grace to see their beauty, and divine faith to believe their truth. May it be our privilege never to depart from Christ, and Jesus never to depart from us. It is lamentable to think that many who were astonished at Christ never loved his person, nor received his grace. They looked upon him as a root sprung out of a dry ground, without form or comeliness. Infinitely vile is the human heart, which hated him for his holiness, and despised him for his wisdom. Whatever others think of Christ, may he fill the throne of our hearts; and in our estimation, may he be the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious Lord, our God and Father in Christ, we would rejoice with thankfulness that we are allowed to approach thy throne at the conclusion of another day. Thou art omniscient and omnipresent, and therefore able to listen to our petitions, and near to answer our requests. O may our minds be solemnized, animated, and comforted with the believing conviction, that thine eye, thy presence, thine influence, and thy government, pervade the universe. Most glorious Jehovah, thine attention is as really directed to the meanest insect, as to the wisest, the mightiest, and most exalted of intelligent beings. Truly, O Lord, thine eyes are in every place. Thou beholdest the evil and the good, and at one moment thou seest with abhorrence the wickedness of the one, and lookest with approbation and delight upon the obedience of the other. O teach us to remember that thou art now the constant witness of the purposes and actions of men, and that a day will most assuredly arrive, when thou wilt decide upon the conduct and lives of men as an impartial and righteous Judge. Mercifully prepare us for that day, that solemn day! O sprinkle us with the blood of Jesus! O clothe us with his righteousness! O make us the subjects of his great salvation, which he purchased by the sacrifice of his humanity!—then shall we stand acquitted on that great, that awful day!

Teach our children daily to remember that there will be a judgment-day, and that they shall appear before the judgment-seat of Christ. O give them the ornaments of early piety, and then they will look forward with triumph to that great, that solemn day.

Let the blessing of the Comforter accompany the divine sayings of Jesus we have now read. O may our souls long at all times for the words of him who spake as never man spake; and with the Psalmist may we acknowledge, under the influence of adoring admiration, Thou art fairer than the children of men; grace is poured into thy lips.

Holy Spirit, teach us at this time to lift up the voice of thanksgiving and praise, for the invaluable treasure of the Gospel of Christ. Let each one of us look upon it as a treasure of infinitely greater value than the gold, the silver, and the jewels of the rulers of the earth. O teach us to admire the costly pearls which this divine treasure contains. Give us grace greatly to value and admire the pearl of thy law, the pearl of gospel-doctrine, the pearl of the promises; but, above all, to admire with superlative delight our exalted, our adorable, our most merciful Redeemer, Jesus Christ, the PEARL OF GREAT PRICE. O Jesus, thy worth is incalculable. Convince us, that if we have thee in possession, even though poor in this world, we have ALL.—Convince us that to possess the treasures of time without thee, is abject poverty and want.

We present our thanksgivings for the mercies of the past day, and implore thy watchful care this night. O accept our evening sacrifice, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GOD'S JUSTICE AND MERCY.

Oldford. Charnock.

c. n.

- 1 ADORE and tremble, for our God
Is a consuming fire;
His jealous eyes his wrath inflame,
And raise his vengeance higher.
- 2 Almighty vengeance, how it burns!
How bright his fury glows!
Vast magazines of plagues and storms
Lie treasured for his foes.
- 3 Those heaps of wrath, by slow degrees,
Are forced into a flame,
But kindled, O how fierce they blaze!
And rend all nature's frame.
- 4 Yet, mighty God, thy sovereign grace
Sits regent on the throne,
The refuge of thy chosen race
When wrath comes rushing down.

Watts, 42, B. I.

GENESIS XVIII.

Destruction of Sodom foretold.

AND the LORD appeared unto him in the plains of Mamre : and he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day ;

2 And he lift up his eyes and looked, and, lo, three men stood by him : and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground,

3 And said, My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant :

4 Let a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree :

5 And I will fetch a morsel of bread, and comfort ye your hearts ; after that ye shall pass on : for therefore are ye come to your servant. And they said, So do, as thou hast said.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, Make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.

7 And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetched a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man ; and he hastened to dress it.

8 And he took butter, and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them ; and he stood by them under the tree, and they did eat.

16 And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom : and Abraham went with them to bring them on the way.

17 And the LORD said, Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do ;

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him ?

19 For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the LORD, to do justice and judgment ; that the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the LORD said, Because the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous ;

21 I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me ; and if not, I will know.

22 And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom : but Abraham stood yet before the LORD.

23 And Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked ?

24 Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city : wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein ?

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XVIII.—God graciously appears to his people in the chambers of his ordinances, and comforts them by the visits of his mercy. Grace shows itself in Christian hospitality, and in manifesting a lively sense of the wants of others. It is only the bread of life which can strengthen us in our journey to heaven. With great mercy Christ has prepared for us a gospel-feast of spiritual dainties. Do we hunger after the bread of his mercy, and thirst after the wine of his love? Happy are Christ's people; he guides them in the way, and reveals to them his will. His grace teaches them every duty, and enables them to honour every relation. Loud is the cry of sin; but loud, awful, and overwhelming is the cry of justice. Is God's eye constantly upon us? How presumptuous, then, to dare omniscience to the face! How awful, when the messengers of God's justice receive their commission to destroy! Not even the prayers of saints can prevent the execution of his vengeance.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we adore thee as the boundless fountain of all wisdom and knowledge. In the name of Jesus, we draw near thy throne on the morning of another day. O let the renewed mercies with which we find ourselves surrounded, awaken in our minds emotions of thankfulness, love, and praise.

O Lord, thine understanding is infinite. Known unto thee are all thy works, from the foundation of the world. Thou knowest every particle of matter composing the earth; every particle of vapour wafted through the skies. Thou numberest the stars, and thou callest them all by name. Oh, we rejoice that thou knowest every member of thy Church, and that thy love is equal to thy knowledge. Thou art light, and in thee there is no darkness at all.

When we think of our feeble faculties, our sinfulness, our ignorance, our folly, we desire to be humbled before thee, the Father of lights; and before thee, O Jesus, the brightness of the Father's glory, in whom are laid up all the treasures of knowledge and of wisdom.

May the words of divine truth we have now read be deeply and permanently impressed on all our hearts. Ever may thy testimonies, God of mercy, be our counsellors and delight.

We pray, most merciful Father, that as thou didst honour Abraham with miraculous visits of kindness, do thou honour us, thine unworthy servants, with visits of mercy and salvation. As thou didst enrich thy servant with faith, O inspire us with saving faith. As thou didst often strengthen and confirm his faith, may we be strong in the faith, giving glory to God. With the disciples we would pray, Lord, increase our faith. As thou didst communicate to Abraham the secret of thy purpose in reference to those judgments about to descend in awful vengeance upon the heads of thine impenitent enemies, O communicate to us the secret of thy covenant, and of thine unchanging love; and give us the pleasing tokens that we are thine, and shall enjoy the smiles of thy countenance, for ever and ever. As a family may we resemble the household of thy servant. May we keep the way of the Lord, and do mercy and judgment. Lord, we seek not for ourselves family wealth, but we seek family piety.

Show pity to our children and household, and give them an interest in the intercessory prayers of Jesus. Lord, save them; O save them from the lowest hell.

Gracious God, we acknowledge that we are deeply indebted to thee for thy providential care over us during the past night. Let our preserved life, and health, and reason, be devoted to thy glory. May we show ourselves this day, by thy grace, lively and faithful in thy service. O preserve us from the infection of sin and the influence of temptation, to which we are constantly exposed. May we enjoy this day, and every day, the unspeakable benefit of the intercessory prayers of our merciful advocates. And may our persons and sacrifices be accepted in our beloved Saviour. Amen.

THE GOSPEL-TABLE.

Jerusalem. Broomsgrove.

C. M.

- 1 THE King of Heaven his table spreads,
And dainties crown the board:
Not Paradise, with all its joys,
Could such delight afford.
- 2 Pardon and peace to dying men,
And endless life are given:
Through the rich blood that Jesus shed
To raise the soul to heaven.
- 3 Ye hungry poor, that long have strayed
In sin's dark mazes, come!
Come from your most obscure retreats,
And grace shall find you room.

DR. DODDRIDGE.

MATTHEW XIV.

Death of John the Baptist.

AT that time Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus, 2 And said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist;
he is risen from the dead; and therefore mighty works do shew forth themselves in him.

3 For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.

4 For John said unto him, It is not lawful for thee to have her.

5 And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they counted him as a prophet.

6 But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.

7 Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask.

8 And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

9 And the king was sorry: nevertheless for the oath's sake, and them which sat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.

10 And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison.

11 And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel: and she brought it to her mother.

12 And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

13 When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.

14 And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.

15 And when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals.

16 But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.

18 He said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

20 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

21 And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, beside women and children.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIV.—Many have heard of Christ's fame, who were never captivated with his glory, nor beautified by his grace. If faithful saints are called to wear chains on earth, they shall for ever wear robes in heaven. They are sunk in depravity who are restrained from outward crimes, not by the fear of God, but by the fear of man. In wicked kings are often seen the union of licentiousness, cruelty, and murder. The rash purposes of princes have caused frequently to flow streams of innocent blood! A woman abandoned to uncleanness and cruelty is the perfection of wickedness. They are truly blessed who follow Jesus, and who apply to him in all their bereavements; for his love is boundless, and, though in heaven, his compassion is as tender as ever. In providence and in grace Christ is the provider of his saints, and abundantly supplies all their wants. Unbelief fills the heart with fear, but Christ's fulness and promise animate the heart with confidence and peace. As the God of providence, Christ delights to feed his creatures with the bread that perisheth; but, as the God of grace, he delights to feed his people with the bread of life.

PRAYER.

O LORD, enable us to approach thy mercy-seat this evening, under a deep and solemn impression that thou art an heart-searching God, and that no prayers can be acceptable to thee which are not presented in spirit and in truth. From eternity, O Lord, thou didst possess a perfect knowledge of all the purposes which in time are formed in the hearts of the children of men. Thou didst foresee the murderous design of Herodias to take away the life of John, the forerunner of Christ. But we rejoice that though in many instances the plans of the wicked are accomplished, thou dost control all events, and overrule even the vilest actions of thine enemies, for advancing thy glory, and furnishing displays of thy perfections.

Lord, we confess the depravity of our hearts, and the transgressions of our lives. O grant that our confessions may be the expressions of genuine evangelical repentance! If thou shouldst enter into judgment with us for one of the ten thousand of our sins, we could not stand in thy presence. Gracious and forgiving God, look not on us as we have sinned, but look upon us in the face of Jesus thine anointed Son; then the clouds of our guilt shall disappear, and the firmament of our soul shall shine gloriously with the beams of thy pardoning mercy.

We supplicate the blessing of the Spirit upon the affecting narrative we have now read of the sensuality and cruelty of Herod. We would mourn over the selfishness, carnality, and vileness of our fallen nature, and must acknowledge that, if we had been left without the restraints of thy preserving mercy, we would have imitated the cruelty and the crimes of the worst of men. Not unto us, not unto us, but unto thy name, unto grace alone, be all the praise.

O preserve our beloved children from the malignant passions of the mind, and from the polluted lusts of the flesh. While many children are filled with cruelty, may ours be adorned with mercy.

We praise thee that we have heard the fame of Jesus. While his fame excites the hostility of his enemies, O may it ever excite in our minds admiration, love, and joy. Let thy fame, O Immanuel, overspread the world; and may the nations of the earth soon enjoy the unspeakable benefits of thy mediatorial dominion. We adore thy sovereignty, O Lord, in the sufferings, pains, and martyrdom which thy beloved servants have for many ages endured at the hands of their enemies. Teach us to rejoice that the blood of the saints has always proved the seed of the Church.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for thy compassion to the myriads of our race, in providing for them the bread of life, the feast of salvation. Teach us by faith to eat, and then we shall be filled with thy goodness.

We thank thee for the hand of thy providence, which has guided and defended us this day. Give us the sleep, the repose, and the protection of thy beloved, this night. Mercifully hear our petitions, and forgive our sins for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

SINNERS WARNED AND INVITED.

St. Mary's, Marblebone.

c. w.

- 1 SINNERS, the voice of God regard;
'Tis mercy speaks to-day;
He calls you by his sovereign word,
From sin's destructive way.
- 2 Like the rough sea that cannot rest,
You live devoid of peace;
A thousand stings within your breast
Deprive your souls of ease.
- 3 Your way is dark and leads to hell;
Why will you persevere?
Can you in endless torments dwell,
Shut up in black despair?

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 48.

GENESIS XIX.

Lot's Departure from Sodom.

AND there came two angels to Sodom at even; and Lot sat in the gate of Sodom: and Lot seeing them rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground;

2 And he said, Behold now, my lords, turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways. And they said, Nay; but we will abide in the street all night.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house; and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.

4 But before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter:

5 And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to thee this night?

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

12 And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son in law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of this place:

13 For we will destroy this place, because the cry of them is waxen great before the face of the Lord; and the Lord hath sent us to destroy it.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons in law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place; for the Lord will destroy this city. But he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons in law.

15 And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which are here; lest thou be consumed in the iniquity of the city.

16 And while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the Lord being merciful unto him: and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XIX.—The righteous men of a city God prefers before the rich, the great, and the mighty. God honours them with his presence, his fellowship, and his blessing. Oh, with what earnestness we should supplicate the Holy Spirit to take up his residence in our heart! Blessed prospect! in heaven the redeemed shall be for ever beyond the annoyances of the wicked. Let us pray with David, "Oh! when shall the wickedness of the wicked come to an end!" Strong are the bonds of sin, which no power but that of Omnipotence can break. Here the eyes of the ungodly are blinded by sin, but at death they shall open amid the agonies of endless despair! It is of infinite importance to remove the young from the corrupting atmosphere of the example of ungodly men, which is filled with deadly pestilence. How distressing, when the young show that they are deaf to warning and counsel; but how encouraging and delightful, when they hearken to the invitations of mercy. The salvation of the soul is a case of urgency, let us therefore attend to it with all our might. "Lord we come, we come at thy command!"

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire, with solemnity and confidence, to approach thy sacred throne in the name of Jesus, our exalted Mediator. We adore thee as a God of holiness and of justice. Thou art the Holy One, whose name is holy, and thou dwellest in the high and holy place. Righteous art thou, O God, and upright are thy judgments. Thou hast said, and may we rejoice that what thou hast said thou wilt do: I will make my name holy in the midst of my people, and I will not let them pollute my name; and the heathen shall know that I am the Lord, the Holy One of Israel. Holy Spirit of the living God, bless to our souls what we have now read of the displays of divine justice and wrath, in the destruction of the abandoned and impenitent cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. O let this memorial of thy righteous vengeance never be forgotten by us, and never cease to impress the minds of future generations.

Lord, we would confess with grief that many of the towns and cities of our land, and of surrounding nations, greatly resemble the iniquities and abominations of those ancient cities which were consumed by brimstone and fire. O reform and sanctify our cities; let their crimes be exchanged for virtues, and their vices for the comely graces of the Holy Spirit. We thank thee, O Lord, for the manifestations of thy mercy in the preservation of Abraham and Lot. Truly thou art merciful as well as righteous. We thank thee that such is thy delight in mercy, that thou hast said and promised, I am merciful, and I will not keep anger for ever. Fill our hearts, and the hearts of all our beloved friends and relatives, with joy that thy name and memorial is this to all generations: The Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands: for thou delightest in mercy.

We thank thee, as a family, that we have been mercifully preserved during the past night; that we are not, as we deserve, the monuments of thy vengeance; that our abode has not been destroyed by fire; and that we have not opened our eyes amid the devouring flames of Tophet. Merciful Father, what shall we render to thee for thy goodness!

O teach our children to be afraid of thy judgments. May they be unwilling to sin against thee, because thou art a merciful God; and afraid to sin against thee, because thou art a just God.

O Lord, we bless and adore thee, that thou hast provided a place of refuge from the miseries of hell. We thank thee that, as thou didst provide a cave in the rock for the protection of Lot, thou hast most mercifully provided a glorious place of safety for us in Jesus, the Rock of Ages. Convince us that there is safety there, and nowhere else. May we, our friends, and those who are associated with us in church fellowship, flee, and flee now, to that refuge, that only refuge. "Hide us, O our Saviour hide us! hangs our helpless soul on thee."

Suffer us not to offend thee this day. In thoughts, words, or actions, enable us to please our Father and our God. We ask these blessings, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FAITH FAINTING, YET PLEADING.

Burns and Uzbridge.

P. M.

- 1 ENCOMPASSED with clouds of distress,
Just ready all hope to resign,
I pant for the light of thy face,
And fear it will never be mine:
Disheartened with waiting so long,
I sink at thy foot with my load;
All plaintive I pour out my song,
And stretch forth my hands unto God.
- 2 Shine, Lord, and my terror shall cease;
The blood of atonement apply;
And lead me to Jesus for peace,—
The rock that is higher than I:
Speak, Saviour! for sweet is thy voice;
Thy presence is fair to behold:
Attend to my sorrows and cries—
My groanings that cannot be told.
- 3 If sometimes I strive as I mourn,
My hold of thy promise to keep,
The billows more fiercely return,
And plunge me again in the deep:
While harassed and cast from thy sight,
The tempter suggests with a roar,—
The Lord has forsaken thee quite;
Thy God will be gracious no more.

RIPPON, 220.

MATTHEW XIV.

Jesus walking on the Waves of the Sea.

AND straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.

23 And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone.

24 But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit; and they cried out for fear.

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.

28 And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

30 But when he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me.

31 And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

32 And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased.

33 Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.

34 And when they were gone over, they came into the land of Gennesaret.

35 And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;

36 And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIV.—Fellowship with Christ on earth is often interrupted, but never in heaven. Let us rejoice that Jesus, who prayed in his humiliation, continues to intercede in his exaltation. Animating truth! the believer can be in no storm when Christ is not near, and in no danger when he is not ready to deliver. Is Jesus ours? he is then our Counsellor in the hour of perplexity, and our Comforter in the dark night of sorrow. When faith is strong, we can defy the raging waves, but when faith is weak, we begin to sink in the waters. However weak the grace of faith in the hour of danger the Almighty Jesus is near, who does not despise weak faith, while he readily answers earnest supplication. Jesus is present with his people in all their afflictions, and therefore, they can sing, "With Christ in the vessel we smile at the storm." Happy are they who touch Christ's righteousness with the hand of faith, for he will heal all their diseases.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord and our God, we praise thee that thou hast graciously taught us to address thee as our Father who art in heaven. Through Christ, the new and living way, we present ourselves before thy throne, to supplicate thy love and mercy. O Jesus, we acknowledge thee in thy divine nature, majesty, and power. Heaven and earth, the dry land and the watery element of the great seas, are all equally under thy control. The clouds are thy chariot, thou holdest the winds in thy fist, and thou walkest upon the waves of the sea. Blessed Jesus, thou art almighty, thy dominion is absolute and universal, none can stay thine hand, or say unto thee, What doest thou?

May the mercies of the past day, and of our past lives, inspire our souls with thankfulness and praise. Lord, enrich us with thankful hearts; convince us that no blessing rests upon temporal objects, when the possession of them is not accompanied with feelings of thankfulness. O give us hearts to praise thee, then will we praise thee all our days; and when our earthly career is finished, we will join the innumerable company of angels, and the general assembly and church of the first-born in heaven, and proclaim thy glory in accents of sweetest melody for ever and ever.

O prepare our children for the storms and tempests of human life which are before them. Give them faith in Christ; then they will cry to him in the day of trouble, and find deliverance.

Graciously accompany with the influences of thy Holy Spirit what we have now read in the volume of eternal truth. We thank thee for the consolatory truth there taught, that thou art ever present with thy people in all their afflictions. We praise thee that when the tempest of sorrow rages around them, and when they are tossed on the billows of temptation and distress, thou art near to encourage them, to hearken to their prayers, to strengthen their weak faith, to animate their fainting hopes, and to hold them up when they are ready to sink in the waves. When we may be brought to scenes of affliction, when the waves of tribulation may lift up their voice, O may our sinking spirits be revived, and may we hear the voice of our Saviour thus addressing us, Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid. Then do thou mercifully afford us such evidences of thy presence, compassion, and help, that we shall give utterance to the joyful language of the astonished disciples, and say, Of a truth thou art the Son of God. O allow no affliction to cast us into the depths of doubt, despondency, or despair. Even in our darkest moments may we always pray with Peter, when he was ready to sink in the waves, Lord, save us!

We commit ourselves and our friends, this night, to the divine guardianship of our God. May he who preserved Peter, for ever preserve us; and may he who keepeth Israel, for ever keep us. May it be our blessedness, and the blessedness of all in whom we are interested, to lift up our eyes, in confidence and hope, to thee, O Lord, who made heaven and earth.

Mercifully condescend to accept of our persons and services, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, be ascribed the glory and the power, for ever and ever. Amen.

BAPTISM.

Swanwick. George's.

C. M.

- 1 THUS saith the mercy of the Lord,
I'll be a God to thee;
I'll bless thy numerous race, and they Shall be a seed for me.
- 2 Abra'm believed the promised grace,
And gave his sons to God;
But water seals the blessing now,
That once was sealed with blood.

WATTS, 121, B. I.

GENESIS XXI.

Birth of Isaac.

AND the LORD visited Sarah as he had said, and the LORD did unto Sarah as he had spoken.

2 For Sarah conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

3 And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, Isaac.*

4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac being eight days old, as God had commanded him.

5 And Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 And Sarah said, God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me.

7 And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have born him a son in his old age.

8 And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had born unto Abraham, mocking.

10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, Cast out this bondwoman and her son: for the son of this bondwoman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight because of his son.

12 And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of thy bondwoman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice; for in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

13 And also of the son of the bondwoman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and sent her away: and she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bowshot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice, and wept.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad; and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for I will make him a great nation.

19 And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

20 And God was with the lad; and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.

* Laughter

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXI.—It is our privilege to trust in a faithful God, and to rejoice that his faithfulness can never fail. Did the birth of Isaac give joy? Oh what blessedness flows from the birth of the spotless Jesus! They who wait on God renew their strength, and rejoice in Christ with joy unspeakable. His mercies excite their wonder and call forth their praise. While the young grow in stature let them pray to grow in grace. Very soon is original corruption manifested, and contentions in families show the strength of that corruption. Here, believers mourn over the consequences of sin; in heaven, they mourn no more. When God commands painful duties let us never hesitate implicitly to obey. The stream of earthly comforts may evaporate, but Jesus the Fountain opened can never dry up. He sympathizes with his people in all their sorrows, hears their prayers, and dries up their tears. Promotion cometh neither from the east nor west, but from God alone. Do we know and love the walls of salvation, and draw water out of them with joy? Let it be our daily, earnest prayer that we may set God always before us, and that he may be always with us.

PRAYER.

GOD of our salvation, we praise thee that thou hast said unto us in thy Word, Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, Thou art my Father? Lord, we desire to obey thy call. Our Father who art in heaven, we draw near to thee as thy children, though in ourselves we are infinitely unworthy of the honourable name and the sacred relation. O teach us to admire thine incomprehensible condescension and grace, in calling those the sons of God who are by nature the children of the wicked one. May we say with an apostle, in his expression of wonder and of joy, Behold, what manner of love is this, that we should be called the sons of God!

We pray that we may be made deeply sensible of thy paternal care during the darkness, helplessness, and danger of the night watches. O let thy spirit be our guide, our defence, and consolation this day; and may our thoughts, words, and actions, be constantly under its divine influence.

O thou Holy Spirit, whose work and prerogative it is to guide into all truth, we pray that thy light and blessing may accompany that portion of the Word of life to which our attention has now been directed. We commit ourselves to thy tuition, and plead that the eyes of our understanding may be opened to see wonderful things in thy law. O dispel the clouds of ignorance, error, doubt, and unbelief which darken our minds!

We acknowledge thee, O Lord, as a promising and as a promise-fulfilling God. We thank thee for the illustration we have now read of this glorious and encouraging truth. May we rejoice, in holy confidence, that though thy promises may be delayed in wisdom, they shall never be forgotten; and that though obstacles lofty as the skies may stand in the way of their fulfilment, at thy command these mountains shall disappear, like chaff before the wind. O we bless thee that as Isaac, who was long promised, was at last given, so a Saviour, who was promised for many ages to thy Church, was at last born. O what shall we render unto thee for this greatest of all mercies! that in the fulness of time thou didst send forth thy Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that are under the law, that they might receive the adoption of sons. As Abraham and Sarah rejoiced over the birth of Isaac, the child of promise, may we rejoice with great joy over the birth of Jesus, and sing, Unto us a Child is born, and unto us a Son is given! Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, and good will towards men.

May conviction enter the hearts of our dear children, and may their eyes be opened to see that they are by nature the children of spiritual bondage and captivity. O give them the liberty of thy sons.

O Jesus, the promised Saviour, may all the nations of the earth be soon blessed in thee; and may we be blessed with thy salvation. And let the words of our mouth and the meditations of our heart be acceptable, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

AN EVIL HEART.

Bankfield. Isaiah. Zara.

A. M.

- 1 ASTONISHED and distressed,
I turn mine eyes within:
My heart with loads of guilt oppress'd,
The seat of every sin.
- 2 What crowds of evil thoughts,
What vile affections there!
Distrust, presumption, artful guile,
Pride, envy, slavish fear.
- 3 Almighty King of saints,
These tyrant lusts subdue:
Expel the darkness of my mind,
And all my powers renew.

BEDDOME.

MATTHEW XV.

Hypocrisy.

THEN came to Jesus scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying,

2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.

3 But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?

4 For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: and, He that curseth father and mother, let him die the death.

5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me;

6 And honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition.

7 Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophecy of you, saying,

8 This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me.

9 But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

10 And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear, and understand:

11 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.

12 Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, after they heard this saying?

13 But he answered and said, Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.

14 Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

15 Then answered Peter and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable.

16 And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding?

17 Do not ye yet understand, that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?

18 But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man.

19 For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies:

20 These are the things which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XV.—May we be preserved from imitating the hypocritical scribes and Pharisees, who attended merely to the externals of religion, while they disregarded the religion of the heart. It is an invariable mark of a fallen church when she exalts the opinion of men above the will and authority of God. Great is the guilt of the filial neglect of parental claims when religion is employed as the sanction of such iniquity. The most gorgeous and expensive rites connected with divine worship can never be accepted in the place of the worship of the heart. May we be the true circumcision, who worship God in spirit and in truth, for God only seeketh such to worship him. Oh! may our hearts be purified from sin, and then our lives will be adorned with holiness. How very different the effects of the Gospel of Christ!—to some it is the savour of life; to many the savour of death. Divine light is the glory of the Bible, of the saints, and of the faithful ministers of Christ. Lord preserve us from spiritual blindness, and give us the light of spiritual day. Oh! cause thy light to shine. Suffer not our bodies to be made the instruments of unrighteousness, or the servants of corrupted passions. The heart is by nature desperately wicked: let us present the prayer, "Create a clean heart within us;" and let us plead the promise, "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you." Amen.

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Jehovah, before thy throne spotless cherubims veil their faces with their wings, in humble adoration. We desire with reverence to approach thy sacred presence. Blessed art thou, Lord God of Israel, for ever and ever. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and the earth is thine. Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand is to make great, and to give strength unto all.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past day, and of the past week. For temporal mercies we bless thee, and for spiritual mercies we praise thee. May the sins of the past week and of our past lives be forgiven. Give us a holy sense of pardoning love. We supplicate thy gracious protection this night. We thank thee for the near prospect of another Sabbath. O may thy Gospel be preached with purity, and be accompanied with the power and unction of the HOLY ONE! May it be to us, and to thousands, the rod of the Redeemer's strength.

May the Word we have now read be sanctified. O may thy Word, read or preached, never prove to us a dead letter, or a fountain sealed. Make it, in the hand of the Spirit, the hallowed mean of communicating spiritual life to our dead souls. May we know it to be a fountain of living waters, and may we draw water with great joy out of this well of salvation.

We seek an holy respect for thy divine laws; and may none in thy Church be suffered to prefer the traditions even of the best of men before thine ordinances and laws.

Very deeply impress upon our children and domestics the importance of relative duties, and of yielding to their parents and superiors, obedience, veneration, and love.

Lord, preserve us as a family from every description of hypocrisy. O inspire us with the sincerity of unfeigned godliness. When we draw near unto thee with the mouth, and honour thee with our lips, may the fire of devotion burn with ardour in our hearts. Lord, affect us more and more with the deepest sense of the depravity of the human heart. We confess that the heart is the overflowing fountain, whence flow the polluting streams of innumerable abominations, vices, and crimes, which provoke the indignation of heaven, and entail the greatest miseries upon the fallen family of man. O Lord, we bring our hearts to thee, that thou mayst create clean hearts within us. O Jesus, we bring our hearts to thee, that thou alone may come and reign supreme, and reign for ever upon the throne of our superlative regard.

We pray for all, of every name, who sustain the office of ministers of Christ. Suffer none of them to be mere ministers in name. Alas! that so many of them are only blind leaders of the blind. May a copious effusion of the Spirit descend on those who are called the priests of God; then shall thy saints shout aloud for joy. O may we, and all our relatives and friends, be spiritual plants of our heavenly Father's planting, never to be rooted up, through Jesus our Redeemer. To the Father, Son, and Spirit, we ascribe glory and praise, for ever. Amen.

DEATH OF GODLY MEN.

Conversion. Munich. Gould's.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, if thou dost not soon appear,
Virtue and truth will fly away;
A faithful man, amongst us here,
Will scarce be found, if thou delay.
- 2 But lips that with deceit abound,
Shall not maintain their triumph long;
The God of vengeance will confound
The flattering and blaspheming tongue.
- 3 Thy word, O Lord, though often tried,
Void of deceit shall still appear;
Not silver, seven times purified
From dross and mixture, shines so clear.

Watts, Ps. 12.

PSALM. XI.

Trusting in God.

IN the LORD put I my trust: how say ye to my soul, Flee as a bird to your mountain?

2 For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string, that they may privily shoot at the upright in heart.

3 If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?

4 The LORD is in his holy temple, the LORD's throne is in heaven; his eyes behold, his eyelids try, the children of men.

5 The LORD trieth the righteous: but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth.

6 Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, and an horrible tempest: this shall be the portion of their cup.

7 For the righteous LORD loveth righteousness; his countenance doth behold the upright.

PSALM XII.

Seeking Help of God.

HELP, LORD; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men.

2 They speak vanity every one with his neighbour: with flattering lips and with a double heart do they speak.

3 The LORD shall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh proud things:

4 Who have said, With our tongue will we prevail; our lips are our own: who is lord over us?

5 For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the LORD; I will set him in safety from him that puffeth at him.

6 The words of the LORD are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times.

7 Thou shalt keep them, O LORD, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever.

8 The wicked walk on every side, when the vilest men are exalted.

PSALM XIII.

Prayer to God.

HOW long wilt thou forget me, O LORD? for ever? how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?

2 How long shall I take counsel in my soul, having sorrow in my heart daily? how long shall mine enemy be exalted over me?

3 Consider and hear me, O LORD my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death;

4 Lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him; and those that trouble me rejoice when I am moved.

5 But I have trusted in thy mercy; my heart shall rejoice in thy salvation.

6 I will sing unto the LORD because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XI.—In times of persecution believers have no reason to be afraid, for they have a divine refuge infinitely more secure than lofty mountains. Standing upon the Rock of Ages, they can neither be driven from their confidence by the open efforts or secret plots of their enemies. Of what can they be afraid? for their defence is the holy, the almighty, the omniscient God. What a contrast! the righteous and the wicked—the former, beloved and sanctified by God, is an heir of the glories of heaven; the latter, the object of divine abhorrence, is doomed by his impenitence to endure the endless miseries of hell! Sinner—sinner, think and tremble!

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XII.—The life of the saints is a public blessing, and their death a public calamity. What a moral pestilence is the example of the wicked, which is composed of vanity, flattery, and deceit and pride—those passions and corruptions which render them the victims of divine vengeance. God looks with a Father's eye upon the sorrows of his people, and hides them from the insolence of their enemies. His promises shine with the glories of infallible truth, and they form around his Church a lofty wall of defence, which never can be weakened by the temporary triumph of her enemies.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XIII.—It is only for a small moment God hides himself from his people. This temporary desertion is followed by permanent benefit, for it stimulates the believer to earnest and effectual prayer for help and deliverance. Then the dark night is followed by a bright day of joy, of thankfulness, and of praise.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we thank thee that, on the morning of this sacred, hallowed day, we are permitted to approach thy throne of grace. Teach us to rejoice in this day, as appointed to keep up the remembrance of our Saviour's triumphant resurrection from the tomb. Most graciously cause the influences of thy spirit to descend upon us; then shall we approach thy presence with a true heart, in the full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

God of our salvation, thou art the living God, without beginning of days or end of life, and all creatures, from the insect to the angel, derive their life from thee. Thou art the unchangeable Jehovah—unchangeable in thy nature, thy purposes, and thy goodness. We would rejoice that every good and perfect gift cometh down from thee, the Father of lights, with whom there is no variableness nor shadow of turning.

Holy Lord God, humble us under a deep sense of our fall in Adam, our covenant head. O teach us to lament that, as soon as reason dawned in our bosom, we furnished melancholy evidence of our degenerate descent. Forgive the lengthened catalogue of our actual transgressions. Do thou remove our transgressions from us, as far as the east is distant from the west. O forgive us, through the merit of our Saviour's blood.

May our beloved children be made the children of the living God. O may the marks of their original depravity soon give place to the ornaments of unfeigned piety.

May the anointing and unction of the Holy Spirit accompany that portion of the word of life we have now read. Suffer not our souls to cleave to the dust, but may we be quickened according to thy Word. Increase our love to thy people. May we consider the death of thy ministers and saints as a great public loss, and may their place soon be filled up by others who shall breathe their spirit, exemplify their graces, and shine as lights in the world.

May many be added to thy Church this day, by means of the faithful preaching of thy Word. Before the natural sun sets in the western sky, may the Sun of Righteousness rise on us, on our relatives, on multitudes, with healing in his wings.
Clothe thy priests with salvation, and smile graciously on those institutions which are formed for extending the fame of Jesus, and the blessings of his great salvation, throughout a benighted and a degraded world.

We thank thee for the repose and protection of the last night, and we supplicate thy presence and blessing this day.
O hear us, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GLORIOUS HOPES.

Junius. Chadwell. Oxford.

C. M.

- 1 I SET the Lord before my face,
He bears my courage up :
My heart and tongue their joys express,
My flesh shall rest in hope.
- 2 Thou wilt reveal the path of life,
And raise me to thy throne ;
Thy courts immortal pleasure give,
Thy presence joys unknown.
- 3 When shall my feet arise and stand
On heaven's eternal hills ?
There sits the Son at God's right-hand,
And there the Father smiles. WATTS, Ps. 16, p. 11.

PSALM XIV.

Atheism.

THE fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good.

2 The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God.

3 They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy : there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

7 Oh that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion ! when the LORD bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice. and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM XV.

The Righteous Man.

LORD, who shall abide in thy tabernacle ? who shall dwell in thy holy hill ?

2 He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart.

3 He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doeth evil to his neighbour, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbour.

4 In whose eyes a vile person is contemned ; but he honoureth them that fear the LORD. He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not.

5 He that putteth not out his money to usury, nor taketh reward against the innocent. He that doeth these things shall never be moved.

PSALM XVI.

God the Believer's Portion.

PRESERVE me, O God : for in thee do I put my trust.

5 The LORD is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup : thou maintainest my lot.

6 The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places ; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

7 I will bless the LORD, who hath given me counsel : my reins also instruct me in the night seasons.

8 I have set the LORD always before me : because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved.

9 Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth : my flesh also shall rest in hope.

10 For thou wilt not leave my body in the grave ; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

11 Thou wilt shew me the path of life : in thy presence is fulness of joy ; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XIV.—How is the gold become dim ! Men originally formed after God's image, are found calling in question God's being ! So deep and universal is their depravity, that even the eye of omniscience can detect in them no moral excellence. How is the most fine gold changed ! The whole family of man is rendered loathsome by the leprosy of sin. The conduct of persecutors is marked both by ignorance and folly. Trembling saints, rejoice, for the day of your death is the day of your complete redemption, when, amidst hallelujahs of praise, ye shall enter into the joy of your Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XV.—Let us behold and admire the character of the heaven-bound traveller. He has the ornaments of sincerity, holiness, and truth. The law of kindness is in his lips ; he shields the good name of others from reproach ; he shuns the society of the wicked, and courts the fellowship of the just. His fidelity remains firm, though accompanied by loss and inconvenience ; his heart soars above perishing riches, and he stands secure upon the Rock of Ages, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against him.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XVI.—The believer is a blessed man. Jesus, the fountain of blessedness, is his portion. Jesus, the Wonderful, the Counsellor, is his guide, leading him to the heavenly mansions. He has the assured hopes of a glorious resurrection from the tomb, and of an eternal residence in the palace beyond the stars, where he shall for ever behold the glories of the Divinity unveiled. Oh ! may such blessedness be ours !

PRAYER.

MOST merciful God, who humblest thyself to hear the supplications of men through the merits of thy son, look down upon us as a family with compassion, while we fall prostrate before thy throne of grace.

We praise thee for what our eyes have seen, and for what our ears have heard, of the things of God and of salvation in thy sanctuary this day. O enable us to praise thee for the proclamations of thy Gospel, where thy name shines with greater splendour than in the glowing firmament of the sky. Hasten, O hasten that blessed day, when thy name, as the God of salvation, shall be as extensively known as the sun of heaven, and when the shout of praise shall be heard in every nation, How excellent is thy name in all the earth !

O Lord, forgive the imperfect manner in which we have waited upon thee in thy courts. When Jesus in his loveliness and mercy was held up to our view, if our thoughts wandered upon the mountains of vanity, O Lord, forgive us this sin.

We acknowledge the depravity of the race of man, that they are universally corrupt ; that there is none that doeth good, no, not one. May the gospel soon be published, believed, and felt in all nations, that the nature, character, and practice of men may be sanctified and changed. Hasten the promised day, when the descendants of Abraham shall be introduced into thy Gospel-church—when the captivity of thine ancient people shall be brought back—when Jacob shall rejoice and Israel shall sing. Soon may Mahomedan nations acknowledge Jesus as the Divine Prophet, and pagan myriads be the worshippers of the true God !

God of ordinances, we thank thee for the gracious opportunity afforded us this day of mingling with thy people, and listening to the joyful sound of salvation through the Saviour's blood. O give the blessing. May the sowing of the incorruptible seed be followed by an abundant and glorious harvest, the fruits of which shall be enjoyed for ever and ever.

We affectionately pray that thou wouldst look down in mercy upon all the members of our family, on our friends and relatives, on the aged and the young, on our congregation and our country. Be thou the portion of our inheritance. May Jesus and salvation be ours ; then shall we sing, The lines have fallen unto us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage.

O be the God, the guide, and the portion of our children and domestics ; and teach them to say of Jesus, " He is my Lord and my God."

Watch over us this night ; and when our days and nights on earth shall cease, may we be introduced into thy presence, where there is fulness of joy, and may we appear at thy right-hand, where there are pleasures for evermore, for Jesus' sake. Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SUBMISSION TO GOD'S WILL.

Mulberry Gardens. Nailscorth. Stirling.

L. M.

- 1 SAINTS, at your heavenly Father's word,
Give up your comforts to the Lord;
He shall restore what you resign,
Or grant you blessings more divine.
- 2 So Abra'm, with obedient hand,
Led forth his son at God's command;
The wood, the fire, the knife he took,
His arm prepared the dreadful stroke.
- 3 Abra'm forbear, the angel cried,
Thy faith is known, thy love is tried;
'Thy son shall live, and in thy seed
Shall the whole earth be blessed indeed.

WATTS, 129, B. I.

GENESIS XXII.

Abraham offering up Isaac.

AND it came to pass after these things that God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, Behold, here I am.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

4 Then on the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?

8 And Abraham said, My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10 And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen.

15 And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

16 And said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son:

17 That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies;

18 And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up and went together to Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXII.—Children are God's loans; he has a right to call them back how and when he pleases. Strong faith always produces prompt obedience. Are interruptions to be found in the way of duty?—Let us strive carefully to remove them. Did Isaac bear the wood for the sacrifice? Jesus bore the cross for our salvation. Affecting sight, Isaac on the altar! Infinitely more affecting, Christ upon the cross! How great God's mercy!—in one moment he removes the greatest perplexity, dispels the darkest clouds, and graciously rewards triumphant faith. Those places are made interesting and precious where God shows especial instances of his love. "King of Zion, hasten the day when all the inhabitants of the world shall become the regenerated subjects of Immanuel's reign. Hasten, O hasten the glorious, the auspicious day!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art a mighty, an absolute, and a gracious King. In the name of our divine Intercessor, we desire as a family now to prostrate ourselves before thee. Enable us to behold thy sovereignty in the pleasing light of the atonement of Jesus: then will our slavish terror be exchanged for filial fear and holy confidence. O Lord, thy gracious sovereignty is the blessedness of thy people! Thou art of one mind; who can turn thee?—What thy soul desireth, even that thou dost. Thou art the sovereign proprietor of all beings and things. The righteous, and the wise, and their works, are all in thy hand. As clay in the hands of the potter, so are we in thy hands, O Lord. Thou art the great author of life, and thou hast a right to demand the life thou givest. We adore thy sovereignty in giving Isaac to Abraham as the son of promise; and we adore thy sovereign right in requiring Abraham to sacrifice his son.

Gracious Lord God, we acknowledge thy wisdom, justice, and sovereignty in all our afflictions, and in all the bereaving events of thy providence which have befallen us in this vale of tears. O may they be sanctified and blessed. Teach us to say with Job, The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away: blessed be the name of the Lord! Holy Spirit, open our eyes to see that we not only deserve afflictions, but that we actually need them for our spiritual culture and improvement. Make us to rejoice that thou, our heavenly Father, sendest afflictions more because we need them than because we deserve them. We praise thee that, after all the storms which have threatened our destruction, we are still the living monuments of thy preserving goodness. O grant that all our afflictions may bring us to the feet of Jesus, to learn lessons of wisdom and humility of him, who is meek and lowly in heart. If we are without grace, may our afflictions be the hallowed means of arousing us to seek with earnestness the pearl of great price, even Jesus and his great salvation. If we have grace, may afflictions prove as the threshing-floor, to separate the chaff from the wheat; O let them prove as the furnace to separate the dross from the gold.

What shall we render to thee, O God, for thy love in cheerfully giving up thy Son to the death for us all! What shall we render to thee, O Jesus, thou child of promise, that thou didst most readily consent, without a murmur, to be laid upon the altar and sacrificed for us!

O may the children and domestics of our family, like Isaac, be distinguished by grace.

We thank thee for the mercies of the night. Assist us in all the duties of the day. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen, and amen.

I CANNOT LET THEE GO.

Humility. Steel.

P. W.

- 1 LORD, I cannot let thee go,
Till a blessing thou bestow;
Do not turn away thy face,
Mine's an urgent, pressing case.
- 2 Dost thou ask me who I am?
Ah! my Lord, thou know'st my name;
Yet the question gives a plea
To support my suit with thee.
- 3 Thou didst once a wretch behold,
In rebellion blindly bold,
Scorn thy grace, thy power defy;—
That poor rebel, Lord, was I.
- 4 Once a sinner near despair
Sought thy mercy-sent by prayer;
Mercy heard, and set him free;
Lord, that mercy came to me.

MATTHEW XV.

Woman of Canaan.

THEN Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.

22 And, behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coasts, and cried unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil.

23 But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came and besought him, saying, Send her away; for she crieth after us.

24 But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

25 Then came she and worshipped him, saying, Lord, help me.

26 But he answered and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread, and cast it to dogs.

27 And she said, Truth, Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.

28 Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very hour.

29 And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee: and went up into a mountain, and sat down there.

30 And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them:

31 Inasmuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

32 Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way.

33 And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

34 And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes.

35 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36 And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

37 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full.

38 And they that did eat were four thousand men, beside women and children.

39 And he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XV.—The tender compassion of the woman of Canaan for her daughter should teach parents to feel the most tender concern for the salvation of their offspring. And what a blessed example her reverence and earnestness in prayer! Such is the nature and fortitude of faith that it can turn discouragements into arguments in prayer. Christ's journeys were like the sun, diffusing blessings whosoever he went. Let the spiritually diseased flee to Jesus, and he will heal them; let the spiritually hungry apply to him, and he will feed them. His skill is unlimited, and his mercy is unbounded. Jesus has most liberally furnished his gospel-table, and he delights to see multitudes partake of his bounty. Fellowship with Christ here is temporary, but in heaven for ever.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire with humility, gratitude, and praise, to thank thee for the protection of thy gracious providence during the past day, and for another opportunity of enjoying fellowship with thyself, in the pleasing and animating exercises of domestic worship. O may this fellowship on earth be followed by eternal and uninterrupted intercourse in heaven, with the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. As we are permitted to approach the throne of grace on earth, may we appear at last before the throne of glory in the New Jerusalem, to proclaim the triumphs and sing the praises of Immanuel, for ever and ever.

O Jesus, we bless thee for the displays of thy grace, mercy, and power, we have now been privileged to read. Thy mercy is from everlasting to everlasting. In a little wrath thou mayest hide thyself from thy people for a moment, but with great loving-kindness thou wilt have mercy upon them. Thy fatherly displeasure is little, but thy fatherly compassion has no limits. Thou art slow to anger, but in thy mercy thou art swifter than the eagle's flight, than the winds of the sky. Thy wrath is but for a moment, but thy love endures to all generations, and thou wilt send forth streams of blessings for ever and ever.

We confess that as a family we are sinful, ill-deserving, and hell-deserving. Though we are unworthy of one smile of thy compassion, yet we lift up our longing eye to thy throne of grace, to implore thy mercy through the Saviour's blood. Inspire us with that earnestness which warmed the bosom of the woman of Canaan, when she prayed for her afflicted child. Like her we would say, Have mercy upon us, O Lord, thou Son of David. Have mercy on our aged, our afflicted, our dying, our graceless friends, O Lord, thou Son of David.

Have mercy upon our beloved children, and deliver them from Satan's power, O Lord, thou Son of David. O disappoint the purposes of the enemy, and save their souls.

Holy and divine Spirit, teach us to feel as the woman of Canaan felt, to pray as she prayed, and to believe as she believed. Teach us by thy wisdom to present petitions agreeable to our heavenly Father's will, and give us grace to present them with believing confidence; then, like her, we shall take no denial. O instruct us in the holy wrestling of believing, earnest prayer: then we shall come off triumphant, and obtain the blessing.

Merciful Redeemer, thou who didst miraculously feed thousands with seven loaves and a few fishes, feed us graciously with the bread of heaven. May the doctrines, precepts, promises, and histories of thy Word be to us precious and delicious food. Above all, may we feed by faith on thee, O Jesus, as the bread of life. We commend ourselves, our relatives, and friends, to thy gracious care this night. Cover us with thy wings, O Lord. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, to receive all our praises. Amen.

SABBATH IN HEAVEN.

Roxton. Hanover Chapel. Michael's.

C. M.

- 1 FREQUENT the day of God returns
To shed its quickening beams;
And yet how slow devotion burns;
How languid are its flames!
- 2 Increase, O Lord, our faith and hope,
And fit us to ascend,
Where the assembly ne'er breaks up,
The Sabbath ne'er shall end.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 85.

GENESIS XXIII.

Sarah's Death.

AND Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old: these were the years of the life of Sarah.

2 And Sarah died in Kirjath-arba; the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of Heth, saying,

4 I am a stranger and a sojourner with you: give me a possession of a buryingplace with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him,

6 Hear us, my lord: thou art a mighty prince among us: in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead: none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight; hear me, and intreat for me to Ephron the son of Zohar,

9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; for as much money as it is worth he shall give it me for a possession of a burying-place amongst you.

10 And Ephron dwelt among the children of Heth: and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, even of all that went in at the gate of his city, saying, 11 Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: I will give thee money for the field: take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 And the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field, and the cave that is therein, were made sure unto Abraham for a possession of a buryingplace by the sons of Heth.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXIII.—When a believer dies he only dies to live, and his grave is a bed of rest, from which he shall awake to immortality. Very lowly is the habitation of the lifeless ashes of the saints; but in the resurrection they shall be admitted into the palace of the great King, more glorious than the brightness of ten thousand suns. Abraham purchased with gold a burying-place for Sarah; but Jesus purchased with blood a heaven for his people. Gold can purchase a grave for the lifeless body, but countless millions of worlds could never purchase the redemption of the soul. The interment of believers is accompanied with tears, but their resurrection with songs of praise!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the living and the life-giving Jehovah! Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. Though Abraham, Sarah, and the patriarchs are no more on earth; though our fathers and our ancestors are gone; though the place which once knew them knows them no more; yet from everlasting to everlasting thou art God. Though we are like the grass which groweth up; though man flourishes and grows up in the morning, and in the evening is withered and cut down; yet from generation to generation thou art God. When we think of our frailty, our mortality, and our approaching dissolution, O teach us to number our days, so as to apply our hearts to wisdom. O fill us with joy, that notwithstanding the ravages of death and the desolations of the grave, the Church has been enabled at all times to sing with triumph, Lord, thou hast been our dwelling-place in all generations!

Merciful God, sanctify to us the death of dear departed friends, and may we ever cleave more closely to Jesus, our best friend, who sticketh closer than any brother. O teach us to see in death the evil and the power of sin; and may we be persuaded and enabled to escape from an enemy which in all ages has spread abroad the ravages of destruction. Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst submit to die, to deprive death of its sting, sin of its dominion, and the grave of its victory. Glory to thy name, that for the sake of thy Church thou hast finished transgression, and made an end of sin, and brought in an everlasting righteousness, by which thy people are now justified, and by which they shall be for ever glorified. O give us that grace of faith by which we shall lay hold on Jesus as the Lord our righteousness, and rejoice in the prospects of immortal blessedness.

We thank thee, Father of our spirits, for the continued mercies of another night, and that we have not been called unprepared to sleep the sleep of death. Give us thy blessing this day; and may we experience, in our thoughts, words, and actions, the salutary and sanctifying influence and impression of what we have now read.

May the death of Sarah remind our children that they will die; and may the grave of Machpelah remind them of that tomb where their bodies will sleep till the loud sound of the archangel's trumpet shall awake and call them to the judgment-seat of Christ.

Teach us, O Lord, to meditate daily on death, and on the infinite importance of an interest in Christ; without which we never, never can be prepared to die. Mercifully grant that our death, and that of our beloved friends and our aged relatives, may be a passage from a sinful, miserable world, to a heaven of purity, love, and joy. In the morning of the resurrection, may we awake, amid the songs of angels, to meet the Saviour in the air, and to be ever with the Lord. Mercifully hear and accept, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

JESUS THE FOUNDATION STONE.

Carr's Lane. Wiltshire New. Greville. c. m.

- 1 BEHOOLD the sure foundation stone,
Which God in Zion lays,
To build our heavenly hopes upon,
And his eternal praise.
- 2 Chosen of God, to sinners dear,
And saints adore the name;
They trust their whole salvation here,
Nor shall they suffer shame.
- 3 The foolish builders, scribe and priest,
Reject it with disdain;
Yet on this rock the Church shall rest,
And envy rage in vain.

WATTS, Ps. 118.

MATTHEW XVI.

Christ the Son of God.

THE Pharisees also with the Sadducees came, and tempting desired him that he would shew them a sign from heaven.

2 He answered and said unto them, When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red.

3 And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day: for the sky is red and lowering. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?

4 A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas. And he left them, and departed.

13 When Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?

14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

18 And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

19 And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

20 Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.

21 From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

22 Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee.

23 But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

24 Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

25 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.

26 For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.

28 Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XVI.—Many observe and admire the phenomena of nature who never study and admire the wonders of grace, or adore the God of salvation. How glorious is Christ! all the excellences of prophets and apostles are found in him, and he is the boundless Fountain whence all their graces flow. The knowledge of Christ, love to Christ, and faith in Christ, are essential to true blessedness. Activity, fidelity, humility, and mercy are the greatest ornaments of the Gospel ministry. Our divine Surety covenanted to die in our stead; and how steadfastly he looked forward to the fulfilment of his engagements! Have we the tokens of discipleship? Are we denied to our pride and self-righteousness? Are we willing to follow whosoever our Saviour leads? Do we believe that worlds are lighter than vanity, compared with the worth and salvation of the soul?

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Father, we desire to rejoice that thou art seated on a throne of grace, waiting to be gracious, ready to hear and answer the prayers of humble and penitent supplicants, and willing to dispense the richest blessings of our Saviour's purchase. We thank thee that we are permitted, before we retire to rest, to approach this thy gracious throne.

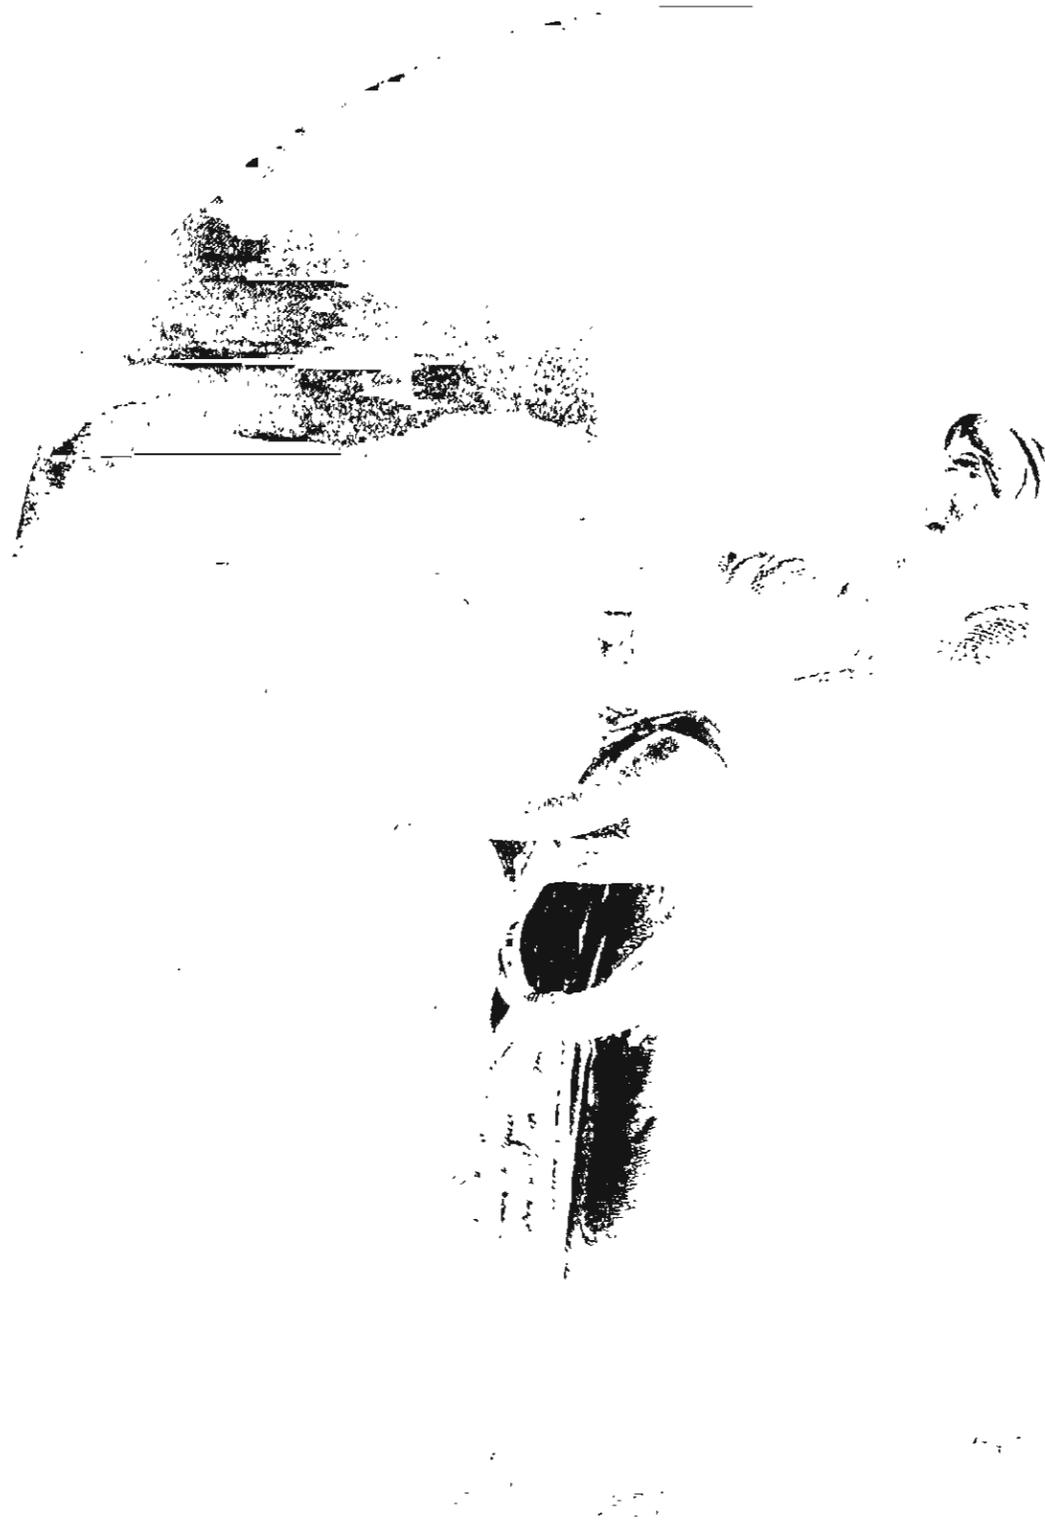

O Lord, thou art invisible to mortal eye, and still thou art omniscient, and all things are naked and open before thee. We adore thee as a God at hand, and as a Saviour at hand, and not afar off. None can hide themselves from thee, for thou fillest all and art in all. Thou art not unconcerned about the persons or the actions of men. Thine eyes behold and thine eyelids try the children of men. There is no creature that is not manifest in thy sight; all things are naked and open unto thine eyes, O God, with whom we have to do.

As individuals, and as a family, we have sinned greatly, in giving sinful liberty to our thoughts, words, and actions, as if we were not under the observation of thine omniscient eye. O forgive this our sin, and may we ever live under the impression that we are living under the eye of a holy and a righteous God. We would also confess and lament the hypocrisy which so often cleaves to our religious professions and observances. Lord, preserve us from hypocrisy, and let truth be written in our inward parts. If there are any hypocrites among us, in this our family-circle, we earnestly pray that thou wouldst give them unfeigned piety, that they may resemble thy servant Caleb of old, in following the Lord fully. Holy and blessed Saviour, give to all in thy presence thy good spirit; then shall we confess thee as Peter did: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. O fill our minds with just and exalted views of thy person, offices, relations, character, and work. Would to God that each one of us could address thee in devout and loving accents: Whom have we in the heavens but thee? and there is none in all the earth whom we desire besides thee! O teach us with thy servant to count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, that we may win Christ, and be found in him, not having our own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, even the righteousness which is of God by faith. Teach us to rejoice in the security and duration of the kingdom of Jesus, and may all nations soon enjoy the unspeakable advantages of his reign.

Make each child and domestic in this family a subject of the spiritual kingdom of Christ, and an heir of the heavenly inheritance.

O Jesus, animate us with the prospect of that period, when thou shalt come in the clouds of heaven, to be glorified in all thy saints. We thank thee for all the mercies of the past day. May we be encompassed this evening with thy special care. Hear our imperfect prayers, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

1
2
3

LIVING ABOVE THE WORLD.

Arundel, Brook Street, Serenity.

C. M.

1 MY soul forsakes her vain delight,
And bids the world farewell,
Base as the dirt beneath my feet,
And mischievous as hell.

2 There's nothing round the spacious earth
That suits my large desire;
To boundless joy and solid mirth
My nobler thoughts aspire. WATTS, 10, B. II.

GENESIS XXIV.

The Choice of Rebekah.

AND I [Abraham's servant] asked her [Rebekah], and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I put the earring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take my master's brother's daughter unto his son.

49 And now if ye will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the LORD: we cannot speak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that when Abraham's servant heard their words, he worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night; and they rose up in the morning, and he said, Send me away unto my master.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and enquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 ¶ And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the well Lahai-roi; for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide: and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a veil, and covered herself.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was comforted after his mother's death.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXIV.—Pious old age resembles a sky serene, peaceful, and glorious. Holy masters consider holy servants a richer treasure than abundance of silver and gold. Godly parents are more concerned that their children, in future life, should be allied to the good and gracious, than to the great and mighty. To have pious kindred is more honourable than to belong to a line of nobles or princes. We should never enter into important engagements, without earnest prayer to our God in Christ, that we may be prepared to meet and surmount every obstacle in our way, rejoicing that there is no difficulty he cannot remove, and that no obstacle can prevent the accomplishment of his purpose. Let us rejoice, that God has the human will under his control, and will guide it for the fulfilment of his own designs. Blessed are they who vow to the Lord and who never go back! When we enter into sacred engagements, we should look up to God, who alone is able to crown our efforts with success. How gracious the condescension of God, in allowing his people holy familiarity in prayer, and in asking tokens of his favour and acceptance!

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee in thy condescending willingness to hear our prayers; and we would unite in praising thee for thy faithfulness in the fulfilment of thy precious promises, in which thou hast caused us to hope. In all ages thy people have rejoiced in thee as a faithful God. Graciously convince our souls, that we implicitly confide in thee, we shall ever find what Abraham felt throughout his chequered life—that thou art true and faithful and gracious for ever; O Lord; that thy word is settled in heaven, and thy faithfulness from generation to generation.

We confess, O Lord, that we have great reason to mourn over our unbelief by refusing in many cases to confide in thy Word, and in rejecting the consolation thy Word is calculated to impart. Mercifully forgive our unbelief—mercifully destroy our unbelief. Teach us to pray with the disciples: Lord, we believe, help our unbelief.

Holy Spirit, bless to us the example of Abraham's faithful servant. Like him may we possess the gift of prayer, the spirit of grace, and the spirit of supplication. Like him, may we commit our cause into the hand of God, as our covenant God; like him, may we rejoice in God, as a prayer-hearing, and a prayer-answering God. O may we never engage in any undertaking, in which we cannot seek the countenance of our God, or look up to him for help.

Lord, while we praise thee for earthly relations, for beloved valuable connections, we earnestly pray we may never prefer any earthly connection before Jesus, the friend who sticketh closer than a brother.

O raise the affections of our dear children and servants above this world; and now may they begin their journey to the heavenly kingdom—a land of purity, glory, and rest.

We pray that all our friends and relations, and particularly such of them as are aged or afflicted or dying, may be comforted with the animating hopes of heaven. Evermore give to us lively faith in those promises which respect the blessedness of heaven. We rejoice that thou dost peculiarly bless those who by vigorous faith give glory to the Word of thy truth. May we live by the faith of the Son of God all our days, and ever experience the consolatory truth of that saying, We walk by faith and not by sight.

Accept of our praises for the mercies of the past night—for our sleep, our repose, and our protection. O give us thy blessing and thy countenance this day in all our duties, whether spiritual or secular. Mercifully forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

LIVING NEAR GOD.

Kennedy. Admirations. China.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN at a distance, Lord, we trace
The various glories of thy face,
What transport pours o'er all our breast,
And charms our cares and woes to rest!
- 2 With thee in the obscurest cell
On some bleak mountain would I dwell,
Rather than pompous courts behold,
And share their grandeur and their gold.

DR. DODDRIDGE.

MATTHEW XVII.

Transfiguration.

AND after six days Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart,

2 And was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light.

3 And, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him.

4 Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

5 While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him.

6 And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid.

7 And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.

8 And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.

10 And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come?

11 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things.

12 But I say unto you, That Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them.

13 Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.

14 And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,

15 Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for oft-times he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

16 And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him.

17 Then Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

19 Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out?

20 And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XVII.—Meditating on the transfiguration of Jesus we would say with Moses, Lord, show us thy glory! Eternally blessed they who shall see his glory unveiled upon the everlasting hills of the celestial Canaan! Jesus admits his people to the most endearing fellowship with himself, and gives them his secret. Christ's presence and smiles make the closet and the sanctuary a little heaven of joy, of triumph, and of praise. How inconceivable the love of the Father to the Son, who lay in his bosom before the morning-stars sang together! Here we are not fitted for beholding the bright displays of Christ's glory, but in heaven we shall be able to behold God face to face. Jesus is the true comforter, who can dispel every cloud, and banish every fear. Ministers should select suitable seasons for dispensing divine truths; then they will be words fitly spoken. How delightful that we find in the histories in the New Testament a literal fulfilment of the predictions of the Old! Virulent, deep, and durable is the enmity of sinners against Christ, his ministers, and his Gospel. O when will the wickedness of the wicked come to an end! What ravages sin has spread among the children of men! and with what alarming power it has invested the prince of the power of the air! Blessed are they who take themselves and their graceless relations to Christ; he can and he will destroy the despotism of Satan, and give them a glorious liberty, of which they shall never be deprived. What a kind reprover, wise counsellor, and endearing comforter is Jesus!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we bow before thy sacred presence, in the name of our exalted Redeemer. We acknowledge that thou art infinitely worthy to be loved, praised, and adored. Who can conceive the splendour of that light with which thou art surrounded? for thou dwellest in light which no mortal eye hath approached or can approach! O Jesus, may we dwell for ever with thyself, to behold thy glorious light, and to enjoy thy glorious love.

In thine infinite goodness, O Lord, thou didst at our creation illuminate our minds with the brightest rays of wisdom and knowledge. Thou Sun of uncreated light, in thy great goodness thou didst cause the firmament of our soul to shine with glorious rays of unclouded intelligence. But we would confess with grief and shame, that by the fall of Adam, our covenant head, the darkest clouds of ignorance and folly have overspread the firmament of our soul. Teach us to lament that the clear sunshine of a spiritual and intellectual day, which once shone within us, is now exchanged for the gloomy darkness of spiritual night.

O enable us to rejoice with joy unspeakable, that in thy mercy and wisdom thou hast contrived a plan by which the dark night of spiritual ignorance and death may be changed into a day of spiritual glory, purity, and joy. Give us thy grace, that we may admire and adore for ever and ever the tender mercy of our God, whereby the day-spring from on high hath visited us; to give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the region and shadow of death; and to guide our feet in the way of peace; to give us the knowledge of salvation by the remission of sins.

Holy and gracious Spirit, mercifully impress on our weak and darkened minds what we have now read of the glory of Christ. O Jesus, thou art the brightness of the Father's glory; mercifully show us thy glory! Thou art the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely: graciously come and reign upon the throne of our heart.

O Jesus, let the hearts of our children be captivated with thy glory in the days of their youth, and while the evil days come not, and the years draw nigh in which they can have no pleasure.

We thank thee, O God, for the renewed mercies of the day, for preserving us from evil, and for continuing with us the necessaries and the comforts of life.

Fulfil in our experience that promise this night. The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade on thy right-hand. He shall preserve thee from all evil; he will preserve thy soul. Teach us to consider sleep as an emblem of death; and in the prospect of our change may we flee to Jesus, the conqueror of death. For his sake, accept our evening sacrifice. Amen, and amen.

GOD'S GRACE.

New Version. Liverpool. Methodists.

G. S.

- 1 GREAT God, 't is from thy sovereign grace
That all my blessings flow;
Whate'er I am, or do possess,
I to thy mercy owe.
- 2 'T is this my powerful lusts controls,
And pardons all my sin;
Spreads life and comfort through my soul,
And makes my nature clean.
- 3 'T is this upholds me whilst I live,
Supports me when I die;
And hence, ten thousand saints receive
Their all, as well as I.

BRODOME.

GENESIS XXVI.

Isaac and Abimelech.

AND there was a famine in the land, beside the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto Abimelech king of the Philistines unto Gerar.

2 And the LORD appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; dwell in the land which I shall tell thee of:

3 Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee; for unto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I swore unto Abraham thy father;

4 And I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed;

5 Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.

6 And Isaac dwelt in Gerar:

7 And the men of the place asked him of his wife; and he said, She is my sister: for he feared to say, She is my wife; lest, said he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah; because she was fair to look upon.

8 And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at a window, and saw, and, behold, Isaac was sporting with Rebekah his wife.

9 And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, Lest I die for her.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that toucheth this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.

12 Then Isaac sowed in that land, and received in the same year an hundredfold: and the LORD blessed him:

13 And the man waxed great, and went forward, and grew until he became very great:

14 For he had possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of servants: and the Philistines envied him.

15 For all the wells which his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

16 And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us; for thou art much mightier than we.

17 And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

23 And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba.

24 And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply the seed for my servant Abraham's sake.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXVI.—Famine of bread is a great calamity, but in no respect so dreadful as a famine of the Word of God. There can be no safety except in following Christ's counsels. In every circumstance in life, may we never fail to seek and to follow the direction of his wisdom and mercy. Animating prospect! when the saints shall be countless as the stars, and when spiritual Israel shall overspread the earth,—when it shall not be one of a city, but when one shall become a thousand! O how profitable is God's service, and how spiritually rich are God's servants!—Look to Abraham and to Isaac. In how many instances has beauty of countenance proved a snare, disturbed the peace of families, and even placed life itself in the greatest jeopardy! Let our beauty be that of imperishable grace! Let us beware of unhallowed, unbelieving fears, and in all cases confidently and implicitly commit ourselves and our cause to the keeping and the management of Christ. How safe the state of the saints! Jesus keeps them as the apple of his eye. Temporal prosperity is from God, and though enjoyed with God's blessing, it exposes the gracious possessor to the envy of the wicked, who seek their portion in this life. It is dangerous to live in the vicinity of worldly, ambitious men; and, when we possibly can, we should withdraw from the presence of their carnal example, and from the reach of their malevolent envy. If I have God's fellowship and promise, I have all: what can I want beside?

PRAYER.

HOLY and divine Spirit, breathe upon us thine influences, that we may now approach the mercy-seat in the all-prevailing name of Jesus, and adore our God and Father in Christ in all the goodness of his character and perfections. O Lord, thou art good to all: for thou makest thy sun to rise upon the evil and the good, and sendest the refreshing rain of thy clouds on the just and on the unjust. Thou givest to all life and breath and all things.

O may a view of thy goodness humble us under a deep sense of our sinfulness. By thy holiness may we see the hatefulness of our own corruption: and in thy goodness may we see the loathsomeness of our own enmity. O thou pardoning God, to whom can we look for pardon but to thee? O pardon us through the merit of our Saviour's blood, and sanctify us by the influences of Jesus' Spirit.

We now present the tribute of our praise, that thou hast fulfilled in our experience thy gracious promise, during the past night: thou hast been our keeper, thou hast been our shade upon our right-hand. We still depend upon thee, and supplicate thy direction, presence, and blessing, this day. Let no snare entangle us, let no enemy conquer us, let no temptation befall us.

Mercifully impress upon our memory, our judgment, and our heart, what we have now read from the oracles of eternal truth.

We thank thee, that while thou didst deliver promises to Isaac, thou hast also given to us promises exceeding great and precious. Since thy beloved servant of old was tried by perplexities which disturbed his peace, suffer us not to be surprised or cast down that we are not exempted. Give us faith in thy promise, and implicit confidence in thy Son; then we shall be prepared for every vicissitude, and for every approaching storm. O make thy covenant with us, as thou didst with Isaac; and incline our heart to make a covenant with thee, even an everlasting covenant, which is well ordered in all things and sure. May we say of thy covenant what David said: It is all our salvation and all our desire.

O take the children of ur family, and make thy covenant with them. We now earnestly commend them to thy care, and plead that thou wouldst bestow upon them the richest blessings of the covenant of grace.

Blessed Jesus, mercifully grant that the wells which Isaac digged may remind us of thee, the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness. Lead us to thee, our divine fountain, that the stain and guilt of all our multiplied transgressions may be washed away. We praise thee that the tidings have reached our ears of the fountain filled with blood drawn from Immanuel's veins. May the tidings reach our hearts. O forgive our sins and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake; who is worthy, with the Father and Holy Spirit, to receive glory and praise, for ever. Amen.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

Marygate. Matthias. Shirland.

s. n.

- 1 LET party names no more
The Christian world o'orspread;
Gentile and Jew, and bond and free,
Are one in Christ their head.
- 2 Among the saints on earth
Let mutual love be found;
Heirs of the same inheritance,
With mutual blessings crowned.
- 3 Let envy, child of hell!
Be banished far away;
Those should in strictest friendship dwell
Who the same Lord obey.

FLITCHER'S COLLECT. 23.

MATTHEW XVIII.

Humility.

AT the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying,
Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them.

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.

6 But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

7 Woe unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh!

8 Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire.

9 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven.

11 For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.

12 How think ye? if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

15 Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.

16 But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.

17 And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican.

18 Verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

19 Again I say unto you, That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XVIII.—To have a place in Christ's Church and kingdom is the highest honour and the greatest blessedness. The peculiarities of little children furnish a most profitable lesson, even to the most aged and experienced saints. May we resemble them in their humility, their submission, obedience, gentleness, affection, confidence in their parents, docility, and contempt of the world. Jesus sensibly feels the injuries done to the least of his children, and considers acts of kindness shown to them as shown to himself. Alas! what firebrands of discord, strife, and offence, sin has scattered among the family of man! Prince of peace, sway thy sceptre over the nations of the earth. How degraded, and worse than brutal, is the slave of bodily appetites and sensual lusts! Sad spectacle!—human reason and intellect degraded and subdued by fleshly passions. May none of us be carried away by the delusion of drinking the cup of carnal pleasure, to expose ourselves to the miseries of hell. What an errand of mercy!—Christ came from heaven to save lost souls. O his assiduity in seeking them, and his joy in finding them! May it be our honour to resemble Jesus in pitying souls, and may we be wise in winning them! We require much grace to guide us in our conduct with offending brethren, in bearing with them, forgiving them, but more especially in diligently attempting to reclaim them. Jesus has given great power to believing prayer; and is never absent when Christians meet in holy fellowship.

PRAYER.

OTHOU Hearer of Prayer, who sittest between the cherubim, who listenest to the songs of angels and to the prayers of saints, most deeply impress our hearts with a sense of the glory of thy wisdom, majesty, and grace, when we approach thy throne. When we think of thy plans of creation, providence, and redemption, we would say, in the words of a holy and inspired apostle, O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!

We unite as a family in thanking thee our God for the continued instances of thy paternal goodness during the past day, for the food which has nourished us, the water which has refreshed us, and for the kind providential hand which has led us, and comforted and defended us. Graciously bless us with sleep and rest this night; and O grant spiritual strength and consolation to those who may be visited on their beds with strong pain. Lord Jesus, have mercy upon them.

We thank our God for the gracious words of our blessed Saviour we have now been privileged to read. Ever may we be enabled to believe and enjoy thy words, most merciful Jesus, as silver tried in a furnace seven times, as more valuable than the treasures of princes, as more precious than the finest gold, as sweeter than honey, yea, even than the honeycomb.

Holy Spirit, deliver us from carnal ambition, and from the sinful love of worldly honour, power, or wealth. O let our ambition rise to heavenly treasures and spiritual blessings. Teach us the divine and blessed lesson of seeking now, and before everything else, the kingdom of Christ and his righteousness. O enable us to humble ourselves as little children. As thou hast graciously held them up, O Jesus, for our imitation, may we resemble them in contempt of the world, in tender affection, and in a forgiving spirit. As they uniformly place implicit confidence in their earthly parents, may we habitually place implicit confidence in our God and Saviour. Are there any among us in an unconverted state, or indifferent and unconcerned about the redemption of their soul? Most mercifully arouse them out of their slumbers, destroy their spiritual apathy, open their blinded eyes, and say to them with the energy of almighty and irresistible grace, Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead!

Mercifully enrol the children and domestics of our family among the number of them who love thee.

May our prayers be answered, and our multiplied transgressions forgiven, for the sake of Jesus; to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, be ascribed the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

BLESSING HUMBLY SOUGHT.

Humility. Cookham.

P. M.

- 1 LORD, we come before thee now,
At thy feet we humbly bow;
O! do not our suit disdain;
Shall we seek thee, Lord, in vain?
- 2 In thy own appointed way,
Now we seek thee, here we stay;
Lord, from hence we would not go,
Till a blessing thou bestow.
- 3 Send some message from thy word,
That may joy and peace afford;
Let thy spirit now impart
Full salvation to each heart.

HAMMOND.

GENESIS XXVII.

Jacob obtaining the Blessing.

AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son: and he said unto him, Behold, here am I.

2 And he said, Behold now, I am old, I know not the day of my death:

3 Now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and take me some venison;

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my soul may bless thee before I die.

5 And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the Lord before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth:

10 And thou shalt bring it thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

18 And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the Lord hath blessed:

28 Therefore God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine:

29 Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: be lord over thy brethren, and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee: cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXVII.—What a contrast! the infirmities of aged saints on earth, and their unfading beauty and perfection in heaven. When we must die is wisely concealed; how we may die is mercifully revealed. Children should embrace every opportunity of showing kindness to their parents, more especially when they are labouring under the infirmities of years, and drawing near to the tomb. Great is the sovereignty, power, and wisdom of God displayed in over-ruling circumstances trifling, or even sinful, for the accomplishment of his own purposes. Good ends can never sanction sinful means, we should therefore pray for and exercise that wisdom which invariably employs good means for obtaining good and lawful ends. There is no object more dear to the heart of a pious parent than the salvation of his children, and more especially when he is drawing near his heavenly home. Peculiarly blessed are those parents who can say, before they depart, "Our sons and daughters are born again." How distressing to see the young and hopeful Jacob, falling into temptation, deceiving an aged father, and taking advantage of his infirmities! May God preserve us from the snares of falsehood, and from lying lips! How lovely is the tender affection which warms a parent's heart; and what a blessing, when parents employ it as a stimulus to pray for the salvation of their offspring. How precious is the dew of heaven descending upon the tender herb; but infinitely more precious the dew of the Spirit's influences descending upon the heart, and changing it into a garden of gracious fruitfulness and beauty.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely worthy to be feared and to be held in reverence in all the assemblies of thy people. Holy Spirit, we would now lift up to thee the eyes of our souls, and pray that thou wouldst breathe upon us thine animating and reviving influences, that we may draw near the throne of grace in Jesus' name, with humility, reverence, and faith. O Lord, thou art a God of truth; true to thyself, to thy purposes of mercy and grace, to thy promises, and to thy people. Thou art not a man that thou shouldst lie, nor the son of man that thou shouldst repent. Thou hast said, and shalt thou not do it? Thou hast said, and shalt thou not make it good?

Lord, accept of our thanksgivings for the mercies of the past night. We thank thee that our lives are preserved, while others have slept the sleep of death. We thank thee for refreshing rest upon our beds, while others have been tried and afflicted with agonizing pain. Give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may be diligent, conscientious, and cheerful, in all the duties of this day. Ever may it be our meat and our drink to do the will of our Father who is in heaven.

We supplicate thy blessing on what we have now read. Make us to understand the way of thy precepts; then shall we talk of thy wonderful works. Bless to us the affecting account of the infirmities of the old age of thy servant Isaac. Enable such of ourselves, or of our relatives, who feel similar infirmities, to look upon them as the harbingers of death, and as sent to warn us that the earthly house of this tabernacle shall soon fall down, and our disembodied souls appear before the tribunal of the Judge of all. Blessed Jesus, clothe us with thy righteousness, and adorn us with the renovating graces of thy spirit; then shall we hail the arrival of that joyful day, and exclaim, Even so, come, Lord Jesus!

We desire to mourn over the spiritual dimness of the eyes of our understanding. Mercifully remove from us the mists of ignorance, error, and unbelief. As thy commandment is pure, enlightening the eyes, may thy Holy Spirit apply to our minds the Word of life; then the eyes of our understanding shall be opened to see, and our hearts be led to admire, thy glory shining in the person and righteousness of thy well-beloved Son.

O sanctify to us the affecting history of the temptation of deceit and falsehood, into which Rebekah and Jacob fell. Suffer us not, we beseech thee, to dishonour our profession and grieve the Spirit by falling into temptation. Hold up our goings, for we cannot stand one moment in our own strength.

Preserve our dear children from lying lips. O impress this truth upon their hearts: All liars shall have their portion in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone.

Blessed God, may all of us possess the adoption of sons, living to thy glory, honouring thy name, obeying thy laws, and believing thy promises. May the blessing of Jacob rest upon us all, and may God give us of the dew of heaven, and satisfy our souls as with marrow and fatness. Hear our supplications, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

PARDONING LOVE.

Onslow. Highbury College. Carolina.

C. M.

- 1 HOW oft, alas! this wretched heart
Has wandered from the Lord;
How oft my roving thoughts depart,
Forgetful of his word!
- 2 Yet sovereign mercy calls, Return:
Dear Lord, and may I come?
My vile ingratitude I mourn,
O take the wanderer home.
- 3 And canst thou, wilt thou yet forgive,
And bid my crimes remove?
And shall a pardoned rebel live
To speak thy wondrous love?
- 4 Almighty grace, thy healing power
How glorious, how divine!
That can to life and bliss restore
So vile a heart as mine.

STEELE.

MATTHEW XVIII.

Forgiveness.

THEN came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?

22 Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but, Until seventy times seven.

23 Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants.

24 And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand talents.

25 But forasmuch as he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.

26 The servant therefore fell down, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

27 Then the Lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt.

28 But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellowservants, which owed him an hundred pence: and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest.

29 And his fellowservant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellowservants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done.

32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me:

33 Shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellowservant, even as I had pity on thee?

34 And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him.

35 So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XVIII.—JESUS is the Wonderful, the Counsellor, whom we may consult in all circumstances, and to whose wisdom we may have access at all times. If man's counsels are often characterized by severity, Christ's are always by mercy. A forgiving spirit is a rich inheritance, and rejoices in the ready pardon even of the repeated offences of offenders, when they discover marks of humble penitence. God as a generous Creator has invested us with many talents, and as a gracious God with spiritual privileges of the most exalted order. It is wise to be impressed with the conviction that we are constantly under the eye of his observation, and that there is a day approaching when we must account for the employment of the rich talents of God's bounty. Under convictions, sinners sometimes cry for mercy, who soon show by their selfishness, injustice, and cruelty, that their alarming fears are like the morning-dew and early dew, that passeth away. Let us war constantly against a spirit of selfishness, which hardens the heart and extinguishes all feelings of generosity, tenderness, and compassion. What a contrast!—God's mercy and man's cruelty! God's conduct to men, and men's conduct to each other! the love of the Creator, and the virulent, relentless enmity of man the creature! Let the proud, the cruel, and the unjust remember, that the day will arrive when their haughtiness shall be brought low, and when, if mercy prevent not, they must stand as terrified criminals before the judgment-seat of Christ. Holy Spirit, prepare us for that solemn day!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we acknowledge thy mercy and grace in preserving us through another day, and in permitting us to draw near to thee as thy children, to supplicate the undeserved blessings of thy goodness. When we think of our long-continued and highly aggravated transgressions, and that we are still on praying ground, and listening to the sweet accents of the trumpet of salvation, we have abundant reason to acknowledge that thou art slow to anger and plenteous in mercy. We acknowledge that in all our afflictions thy chastisements are mild and thy rod light, compared with our aggravated offences. Thou wilt not always chide, neither wilt thou keep thine anger for ever. O fulfil in our experience that promise, As the heaven is high above the earth, so great is thy mercy to them that fear thee. And as far as the east is from the west, so do thou remove our transgressions from us.

Holy and gracious Spirit, bless the divine lessons we have now read, that we may not only approve of them with our judgments, but feel them with our hearts. Bestow upon us a forgiving spirit, and teach us readily to forgive those who have offended us. We have offended thee infinitely more than fellow-creatures have ever offended us; and convince us, therefore, that it is vain to expect that thou wilt forgive us the greater offences we have committed against thee, if we refuse to forgive men the lesser offences which they have committed against us. O Lord, we would now mourn with shame and humility over those unhallowed and revengeful passions which have actually led us to wish the judgments of heaven to fall upon the heads of our enemies. Let such passions be expelled from our bosoms; and where revenge prevailed, let mercy and meekness reign. Bless to us the parable we have now read of the cruel servant who was sent to the tormentors as a just punishment of his malicious and implacable spirit: and may our eyes be open to see the dreadful doom which awaits those who die impenitent, in the indulgence of the proud, malignant passions of the soul. May all of us ever breathe the divine spirit of our holy Gospel, in not only loving our friends, but loving our enemies; in not only showing grateful affection to those who pour upon our heads the oil of kindness, but also in blessing those who despitefully use us and persecute us.

Mercifully instruct our children in lessons of repentance, mercy, and love. Convince them that, though they are young, they have offended thee, and deserve to be shut out from heaven.

We thank thee for the mercies we have received this day, as a family and as individuals. We praise thee for temporal mercies, but more especially for spiritual blessings. Give us, in thy kindness, the sleep of thy beloved this night, and in the morning may we awake to praise thee. O hear us and forgive us, for Jesus' sake. We would ascribe to the Father, Son, and Spirit, dominion and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

THE FAREWELL.

Haldenorth. Joh. Luther's.

L. M.

1 DEAD be my heart to all below,
To mortal joys and mortal cares;
To sensual bliss that charms us so,
Be dark mine eyes and deaf mine ears.

2 Lord, I renounce my carnal taste
Of the fair fruit that sinners prize:
Their paradise shall never waste
One thought of mine, but to despise.

DR. WATTS.

GENESIS XXVII.

Grief of Esau.

AND it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy firstborn Esau.

33 And Isaac trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who? where is he that hath taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, and he shall be blessed.

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father.

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, Is not he rightly named Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times: he took away my birthright; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered, and said unto Esau, Behold I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I sustained him: and what shall I do now unto thee, my son?

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father? bless me, even me also, O my father. And Esau lifted up his voice, and wept.

39 And Isaac his father answered and said unto him, Behold, thy dwelling shall be the fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live, and shalt serve thy brother; and it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

41 And Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, The days of mourning for my father are at hand; then will I slay my brother Jacob.

42 And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she went and called Jacob her youngest son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth comfort himself, purposing to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother to Haran;

44 And tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou hast done to him: then I will send, and fetch thee from thence: why should I be deprived also of you both in one day?

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth: if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these which are of the daughters of the land, what good shall my life do me?

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXVII.—It is surprising and affecting, the deep and overwhelming hold which the love of earthly objects, and particularly of wealth and power, takes of the carnal and covetous heart of man. Often the liveliest hopes are indulged and cherished, their accomplishment has the most encouraging appearance of certainty, the mind is elevated with the near prospect of entering upon the immediate enjoyment of the much wished-for inheritance, when, lo! the gilded expectations disappear in one moment, and pass away for ever, like a dream of night. Let it be the object of my fondest ambition to seek an interest in that inheritance which is durable as the throne of God, and to obtain that more which maketh not ashamed, and which entereth into that which is within the veil. How odious is sinful craft, and particularly when it stains the profession of a saint! May we ever keep our garments clean and unspotted from the world! Let us rejoice in the wealth, the honour, the stability, the future extension, and universal ascendancy of the Church of Christ. She is blessed, and shall be blessed. Let us beware of covetousness and revenge, lusts and passions, which will even tempt brothers to imbrue their hands in each other's blood.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father, to whom can we go but unto thee? We desire at this time, in the name of our dear Redeemer, and in humble dependence on the grace of his Spirit, to enter into fellowship with thee our God, in presenting our morning sacrifice. We thank thee for the sleep, repose, refreshment, and protection of another night. Thy mercies are new unto us every morning, and thy faithfulness every night. This day may we walk in the light of thy countenance, and exemplify in our actions the influence of Christian principle.

Let it be our delight and employment, all our days, to utter abundantly the memory of thy great goodness, and to sing of thy righteousness. When we who are advanced in years shall be removed to the eternal world, may the dearly-beloved children, till their dying day, abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and sing sweetly of thy righteousness.

Mercifully grant that the Word we have now read may prove profitable for warning and instruction. May we feel the arguments which it furnishes for encouraging and promoting the love of truth in our hearts, and the practice of it in our lives. Ever remove from us the way of lying, and grant us thy law graciously. O affect us deeply with the remembrance of that innocence which our first parents lost, and that paradise of which they were deprived, by the deception and falsehoods of the father of lies. O teach us truth in the hidden parts.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the sovereign disposer of all events. In thy sovereignty thou sometimes dost surround one member of a family with honour, wealth, and power, while another member of the same family is left to suffer the heavy pressure of want and ignominy. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight! We acknowledge thy justice and wisdom in withholding from Esau what thou hadst destined for Jacob. Never, never suffer us to murmur at thy wise and sovereign arrangements, even when we may be called to suffer poverty, or to meet with the most painful bereavements. May the language of our hearts ever be, though filled with the bitterest anguish: Thy will be done; even so, father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight! May we never, like Esau, give way to the excesses of unhallowed grief, when our earthly hopes are blasted. Deliver us from the love of the world. May we receive the good things of the world as thy gifts, but may we never fall into the aggravated sin of loving the world as our god. O Jesus, reign upon the throne of our heart; and if the idol of the world occupy a place in our soul, expel it now from our bosoms, and may all our affections meet in thee alone; then we shall be heirs of an inheritance that never fadeth away.

Mercifully hear our prayer, for our dear Redeemer's sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be endless praises. Amen.

CHRIST THE ADVOCATE.

Penitents. Mark's. Ulverston.

L. VI.

1 WHERE is my God? does he retire
Beyond the reach of humble sighs?
Are these weak breathings of desire
Too languid to ascend the skies?

2 No, Lord! the breathings of desire,
The weak petition, if sincere,
Is not forbidden to aspire,
But reaches thy all-gracious ear.

STANZA.

MATTHEW XIX.

Blessing little Children.

AND it came to pass, that when Jesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coasts of Judea beyond Jordan;

2 And great multitudes followed him; and he healed them there.

13 Then were there brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them.

14 But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

15 And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

16 And, behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?

17 And he said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.

18 He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, 19 Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

20 The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?

21 Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me.

22 But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions.

23 Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

25 When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26 But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.

27 Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?

28 And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

29 And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

30 But many that are first shall be last: and the last shall be first.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XIX.—The multitudes who followed Jesus in the days of his humbled humanity, form the fulfilment of that blessed promise: To him shall the gathering of the people be. While love is the source of social happiness, and the security of the permanence of social relations, the want of love embitters every relation, and leads to those crimes which often issue in the dissolution of the most sacred ties. Happy is that man who devotes himself wholly to Christ's service, and who prefers union to him before the most endearing of earthly connections. Christ's love to children should encourage parents to dedicate their offspring to his glory. If we are the genuine saints of God, we shall not look for salvation by the works of the law; we shall believe ourselves to be unprofitable servants, and we shall give up all for Jesus, if our Saviour require. Sad the state of that mind which cleaves to earthly things, and immense the danger of the soul, when the world reigns upon the throne of the heart. Serving Christ, even when connected with the loss of property and relatives and life, is the greatest gain, and is followed by the enjoyment of a place beside Jesus on his throne, yea, by fulness of joy and rivers of pleasure for evermore.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, glorious Jehovah, as the ever-living and ever-blessed Lord God. Our lives are in thy hand, and their continuance is every moment dependent upon thy will. Encourage and dispose our minds, by thy good Spirit, to prostrate ourselves at this time before thy throne with loving and unfeigned hearts, to supplicate thy mercy. O thou blessed Hearer of prayer, let thine ear be graciously open to hear our prayers, and let our hearts be opened wide to receive the testimonies of thy saving goodness. Make us to rejoice exceedingly, that, while we approach thy throne of grace to supplicate blessings, thou art seated upon that throne to dispense them.

Graciously accept of our thanksgivings for the mercies of the past day and of the past week and of our past lives. Now we would desire, with humility and joy, to present before thee ourselves, our bodies, our souls, our persons, our all, a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable, which is our reasonable service. Justly thou mightest reject such a sacrifice, but we praise thee thou art willing to accept the surrender, notwithstanding all our imperfections and all our unworthiness. May the sins of the past week be forgiven through the merit of the righteousness of our Saviour; and by thy Spirit may all the events of the past week, whether prosperous or adverse, produce in our minds blessed and sanctifying effects.

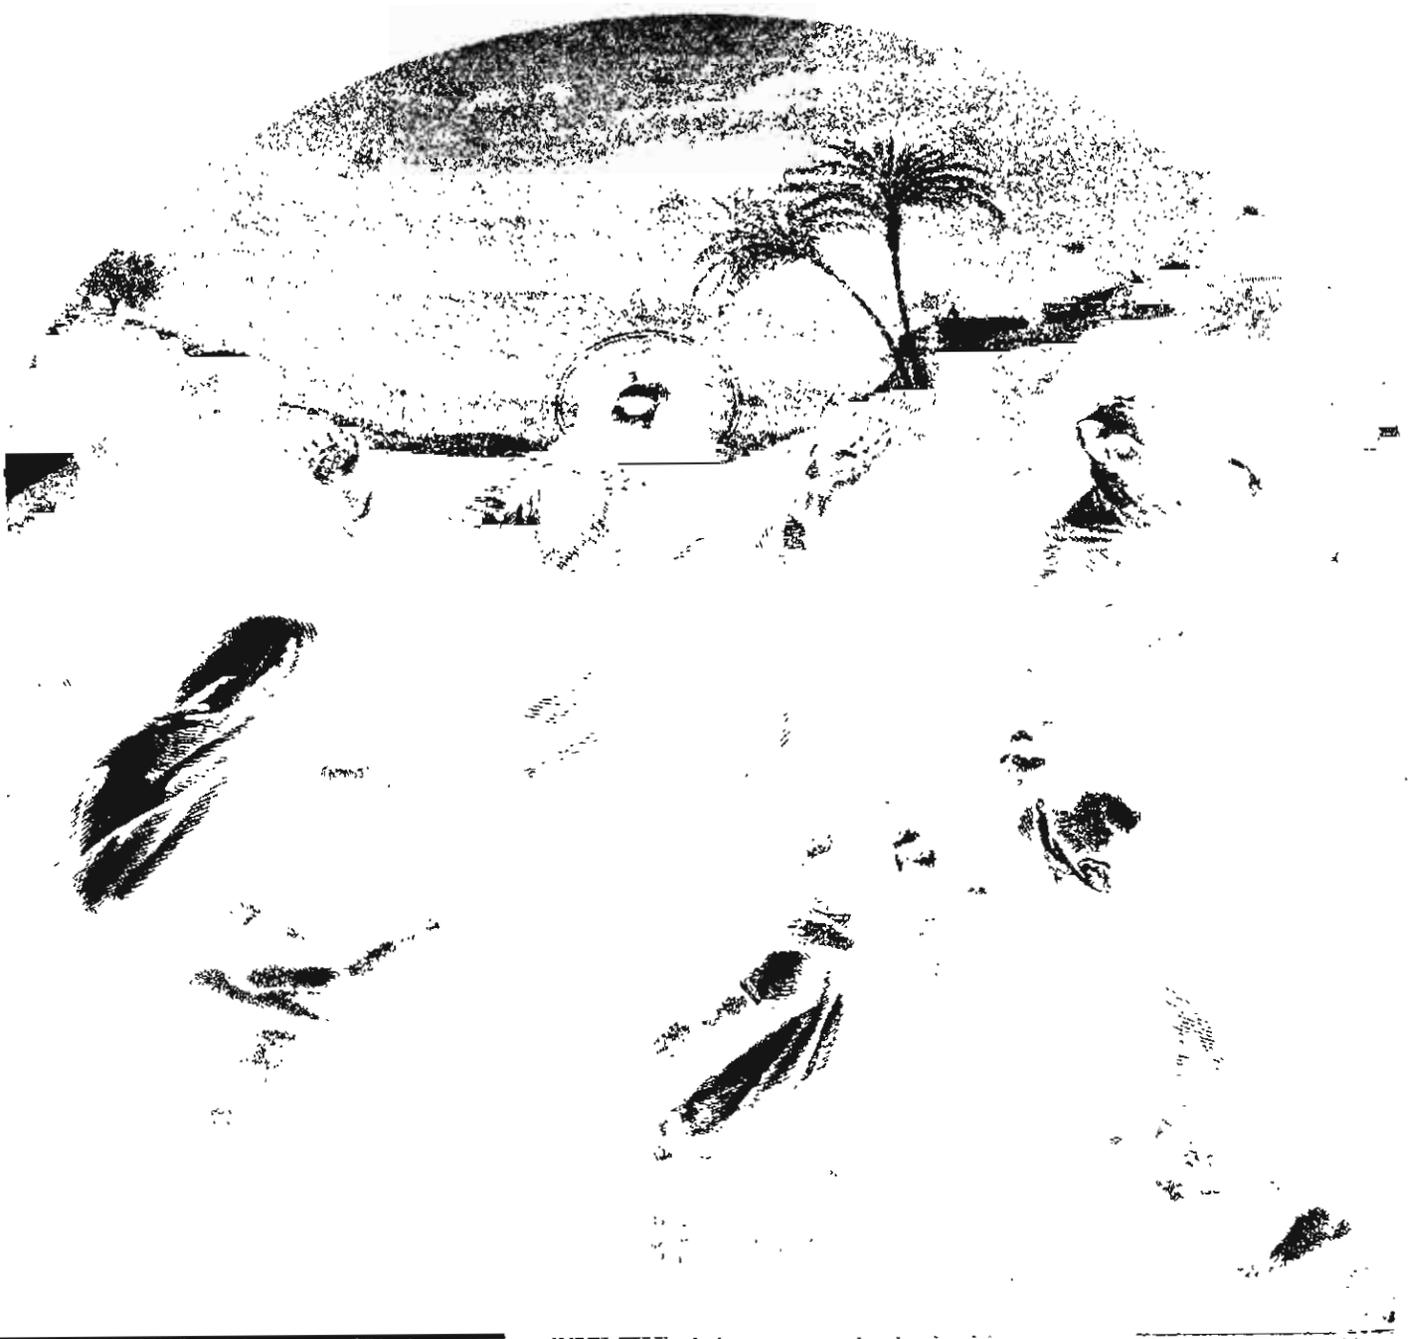

We commend ourselves to thy paternal care this night. Suffer us not unprepared to sleep the sleep of death: When the solemn period of our departure arrives, may our souls awake to witness the glories of immortality in heaven. May the near prospect of the Sabbath fill our hearts with gratitude and gladness. May it prove to us, and thousands, a blessed day—may it be a prelude of that Sabbath of eternal rest, which we hope to enjoy for ever, in fellowship with God and the Lamb.

We thank thee, O Lord, for that animating and encouraging portion of thy Word we have now been permitted to read. Let it prove nourishment and comfort to our souls. May thy Word enter into our minds, and may we find that the entrance of thy Word giveth light.

Blessed Jesus, we praise thee that, in the days of thy humbled flesh, thou didst help the miserable who sought thy help, and that thou didst most readily heal the diseases of those who cried to thee for deliverance. On the approaching sacred day may great multitudes flee to thee in their miseries, and may their spiritual diseases be healed, and may their souls be adorned with the graces of the Spirit, even the ornaments of unfading beauty.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou hast said, Suffer little children to come unto me. We present our children to thee, and the children of our relatives and friends. Condescend to lay thine hands upon them and bless them.

Forgive our sin, and hear our prayers, for our dear Redeemer's sake. And may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CONFIDENCE IN GOD.

Rowles. Forest Hill. Addison's.

L. M.

- 1 AWAY, my unbelieving fear!
 Let fear in me no more take place.
 My Saviour doth not yet appear!
 He hides the brightness of his face:
- 2 But shall I therefore let him go,
 And basely to the tempter yield?
 No, in the strength of Jesus, no!
 I never will give up my shield.

C. WESLEY.

HABAKKUK III.

The Majesty and Power of God.

- A PRAYER of Habakkuk the prophet upon Shigionoth.
- 2 O LORD, I have heard thy speech, and was afraid: O LORD, revive thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; in wrath remember mercy.
- 3 God came from Teman, and the Holy One from mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of his praise.
- 4 And his brightness was as the light; he had horns coming out of his hand: and there was the hiding of his power.
- 5 Before him went the pestilence, and burning coals went forth at his feet.
- 6 He stood, and measured the earth: he beheld, and drove asunder the nations; and the everlasting mountains were scattered, the perpetual hills did bow: his ways are everlasting.
- 7 I saw the tents of Cushan in affliction: and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble.
- 8 Was the LORD displeased against the rivers? was thine anger against the rivers? was thy wrath against the sea, that thou didst ride upon thine horses and thy chariots of salvation?
- 9 Thy bow was made quite naked, according to the oaths of the tribes, even thy word. Selah. Thou didst cleave the earth with rivers.
- 10 The mountains saw thee, and they trembled: the overflowing of the water passed by: the deep uttered his voice, and lifted up his hands on high.
- 11 The sun and moon stood still in their habitation: at the light of thine arrows they went, and at the shining of thy glittering spear.
- 12 Thou didst march through the land in indignation, thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.
- 13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people, even for salvation with thine anointed; thou woundedst the head out of the house of the wicked, by discovering the foundation unto the neck. Selah.
- 14 Thou didst strike through with his staves the head of his villages: they came out as a whirlwind to scatter me: their rejoicing was as to devour the poor secretly.
- 15 Thou didst walk through the sea with thine horses, through the heap of great waters.
- 16 When I heard, my belly trembled; my lips quivered at the voice: rottenness entered into my bones, and I trembled in myself, that I might rest in the day of trouble: when he cometh up unto the people, he will invade them with his troops.
- 17 Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labour of the olives shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls:
- 18 Yet I will rejoice in the LORD, I will joy in the God of my salvation.
- 19 The LORD God is my strength, and he will make my feet like hinds' feet, and he will make me to walk upon mine high places. To the chief singer on my stringed instruments.

REFLECTIONS UPON HABAKKUK III.—My soul, highly estimate and earnestly seek the spirit of prayer, as the most invaluable attainment. God's voice in creation, providence, and grace is powerful. The voice of the Lord is full of majesty. Impressed with the voice of his mercy, may the interests of religion be near my heart, and may I pray with fervour and for the prosperity of Zion. How tremendous were the manifestations of God's glory, when the laws were delivered from Mount Sinai! Were not the thunderings, the lightnings, and the earthquakes, figurative of the wrath of God, and the curses of the covenant of works? May I be hid in the righteousness of Jesus; then shall I sing triumphantly, "There is no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus." With what solemnity and awe we should think on the glory of God, on the inaccessible light with which he is surrounded, on his sovereignty and power, the manifestations of his dreadful wrath against his enemies, on his infinitude, and on the insignificance of mountains and nations, when compared with his majesty and might! What great and glorious things God has done for his Church! He has arrested the course of nature, made the sun and moon to stand still, and commanded seas and rivers to open a passage for their safety, deliverance, and triumph!

PRAYER.

GLORY to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, that our lives have been graciously preserved through another night, and that we are permitted, in sovereign and undeserved mercy, to enter upon another day of the Son of man. On this sacred, hallowed day, we would make a joyful noise unto the Lord. O may we serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with singing. May we enter thy gates with thanksgiving, and thy courts with praise. Thou, O Lord, art good, thy mercy is everlasting, and thy truth endureth to all generations.

When we reflect upon the sinful manner in which we have spent thy Sabbaths, and the careless manner in which we have observed its Divine ordinances, we have indeed reason to wonder that our God, whom we have so much offended, should have spared our lives to witness another day of holy rest, to hear of Christ and the joys of heaven. We have just reason to mourn, that we have not kept the Sabbath from polluting it; neither have we been truly joyful in the house of prayer. How often has thy blessed day been a weariness to us! and, like thy backsliding people of old, have not our deceitful hearts said within us, When will the Sabbath be over, that we may buy and sell, and mind our worldly business and pleasures? When we think of this, we would humble ourselves in the dust, we would wonder at thy long-suffering kindness, O God, in bearing with us and our offences, and would implore thy heavenly grace, that we may ever be prevented from thus abusing the day and the ordinances of Christ. Give us understanding, and we shall keep thy law; yea, we will observe it with our whole hearts.

Pour out thy Spirit on the ambassadors of truth. Sanctify those who bear the vessels of the sanctuary. May a preached Gospel be made mighty this day, that the corruptions of the heart and the strongholds of Satan may fall down before it, as the idol of the Philistines fell before the ark of the Lord.

May our rulers feel the power of the Word of life. O Jesus, make them bow the knee before thee, and with penitential accents supplicate thy salvation.

As a family, may we improve by the public ordinances of religion in which we are soon to engage. May our minister prove to us and to many a messenger of Christ. Enable us to hear the voice of God through the voice of man. May we hear and believe, hear and love, hear and adore. Show to us and the congregation the path of life; for in thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right-hand are pleasures for evermore.

When our children and domestics hear thy Gospel, may Divine truth enter their hearts.

Forgive our personal and family sins, accept of our persons, and hear our prayers, for the sake of Christ, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, one God, we ascribe equal and undivided glory. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PORTION OF SAINTS AND SINNERS.

Newcastle. Repose. Orickwood.

a. n.

- 1 ARISE, my gracious God,
And make the wicked flee;
They are but thy chastising rod,
To drive thy saints to thee.
- 2 Behold, the sinner dies,
His haughty words are vain;
Here in this life his pleasure lies,
And all beyond is pain.
- 3 Then let his pride advance,
And boast of all his store:
The Lord is my inheritance;
My soul can wish no more.

Watts, Ps. 17.

PSALM XVII.

David's Prayer against his Enemies.

HEAR the right, O LORD, attend unto my cry, give ear unto my prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips.

2 Let my sentence come forth from thy presence; let thine eyes behold the things that are equal.

3 Thou hast proved mine heart; thou hast visited me in the night; thou hast tried me, and shalt find nothing; I am purposed that my mouth shall not transgress.

4 Concerning the works of men, by the word of thy lips I have kept me from the paths of the destroyer.

5 Hold up my goings in thy paths, that my footsteps slip not.

6 I have called upon thee, for thou wilt hear me, O God: incline thine ear unto me, and hear my speech.

7 Shew thy marvellous loving-kindness, O thou that savest by thy right hand them which put their trust in thee from those that rise up against them.

8 Keep me as the apple of the eye, hide me under the shadow of thy wings, 9 From the wicked that oppress me, from my deadly enemies, who compass me about.

10 They are enclosed in their own fat: with their mouth they speak proudly.

11 They have now compassed us in our steps: they have set their eyes bowing down to the earth;

12 Like as a lion that is greedy of his prey, and as it were a young lion lurking in secret places.

13 Arise, O LORD, disappoint him; cast him down: deliver my soul from the wicked, which is thy sword:

14 From men which are thy hand, O LORD, from men of the world, which have their portion in this life, and whose belly thou fillest with thy hid treasure: they are full of children, and leave the rest of their substance to their babes.

15 As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XVII.—The prayer of faith confidently rises from a sincere heart, and enters the ear of God. While the believer is refused justice from man, he rejoices there is a court of equity and mercy in heaven. God knows the inward piety which adorns his soul, and by his words of mercy and wisdom preserves him in safety and peace. A life of faith is a life of dependence and defence, and the experience of past mercies is an encouragement to hope for future blessings. The saint, though weak in himself, is powerful by the arm of Christ's grace; and though in himself susceptible of the slightest injury, under the fostering wings of almighty care he is perfectly safe from the malevolence of the most powerful enemies. How revolting the character of cruel persecutors! They are proud and sensual; and, like wild beasts, they watch and long for the blood of the favourites of heaven. The prayers of the saints are the precursors of the ruin of the wicked. Though God makes their wrath to praise him, though they may be surrounded by every temporal luxury, and leave behind them splendid possessions and numerous descendants, this sun of earthly prosperity shall set in the eternal darkness of hell! How different the destinies of the just!—their night of sorrow shall be followed by the glories of an unclouded and eternal day, when, beautified with the divine image, they shall for ever gaze upon the smiles of Jehovah.

PRAYER.

O MERCIFUL Father, when we think of thy glorious Gospel, thy messages of love, thine invitations of compassion, which have been proclaimed this day in the ears of thousands and tens of thousands, what reason have we as a family, in words of transport and adoration, to address thee in the language of the Church triumphant in heaven: Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be to him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever.

Crown with thy blessing, Holy Spirit, the services of this holy day, through all the churches. As a family and as a congregation we have, this Sabbath, in the sanctuary and in thy presence, listened to the Word of truth, for which we praise thee. O sanctify us all by thy truth; thy Word is truth.

We present our thanksgivings for the assistance afforded to thy ministers and people throughout the whole Christian world. Thy loving-kindness has been enjoyed by thy people: many of them have not only been on the mount of God, but they have been on the mount with God. Because thy loving-kindness is better than life, our lips shall praise thee. If sinners have been rescued from the power of the wicked one, if they have been born again, if the chains of their guilt have been burst asunder, and if thou hast brought forth the best robe and put it on them, we will join the angels of heaven in their songs of joyful triumph on account of the salvation of repenting sinners brought to Christ; we will praise thee with our whole heart; we will worship toward thy holy temple; we will praise thy name for thy loving-kindness and thy truth; for thou hast magnified thy Word and thy truth above all thy name.

Holy and divine Spirit, give us thy gracious help, that we may present with believing hearts the petitions contained in the portion of Scripture we have now read.

Hold up our goings in thy paths, that our footsteps slip not. We have called upon thee in the days that are past, and we now call upon thee, for thou wilt hear us. O thou that savest from sin, from Satan, and from hell, by thy right-hand, them who put their trust in thee, show unto us thy marvellous loving-kindness. Show us thy regenerating, justifying, adopting, and sanctifying mercy: then shall we ever rejoice in thine unmerited compassion.

O keep us, keep our friends and relatives, keep all of us, this night when we retire to rest, as the apple of thine eye, and hide us under the shadow of thy wings.

Lord, mercifully keep our children. Encircle them with the arms of thy power, and lay them in the bosom of thy love.

Preserve us from the temptations and from the fiery darts of the adversary of souls. Though he is like a lion that is greedy of his prey, and as a young lion lurking in secret places, yet arise, O Jesus, disappoint him, cast him down, and deliver our souls.

O blessed God, give us not our portion in this life, but mercifully make us heirs of an invaluable and an incorruptible inheritance laid up secure in heaven. While multitudes reject thy Son, and heap up for themselves wrath against the day of wrath, may we now embrace thy Son: then we shall behold thy face in righteousness; and in the morning of the resurrection, when we awake, we shall be satisfied with thy likeness. Hear, forgive, and answer our supplications, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD OF BETHEL.

Usden's Scotch Church. Harrington. Braintree. C. M.

- 1 O GOD of Bethel! by whose hand
Thy people still are fed;
Who through this weary pilgrimage
Hast all our fathers led:
- 2 Our vows, our prayers, we now present
Before thy throne of grace:
God of our fathers! be the God
Of their succeeding race.
- 3 Through each perplexing path of life
Our wandering footsteps guide;
Give us each day our daily bread,
And raiment fit provide.

SCOTCH PARAPHRASE, 2.

GENESIS XXVIII.

Jacob's Vision and Ladder.

AND Isaac called Jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, and said unto him, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

2 Arise, go to Padan-aram, to the house of Bethuel thy mother's father; and take thee a wife from thence of the daughters of Laban thy mother's brother.

3 And God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be a multitude of people;

4 And give thee the blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land wherewith thou art a stranger, which God gave unto Abraham.

5 And Isaac sent away Jacob: and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Esau's mother.

10 And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba, and went toward Haran.

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

13 And, behold, the LORD stood above it, and said, I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed;

14 And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad to the west and to the east, and to the north and to the south: and in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

15 And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

16 And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the LORD is in this place; and I knew it not.

17 And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stones that he had put for his pillows, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

19 And he called the name of that place Beth-el:* but the name of that city was called Luz† at the first.

20 And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on,

21 So that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the LORD be my God.

* House of God.

† Separation.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXVIII.—Let children who have pious parents never cease to be thankful for so invaluable a blessing, and in all their future and intended connections seek their prayers and follow their counsels. Kind earthly friends are God's gift, and he can incline their hearts to afford us effectual relief in times of perplexity and danger. Carnal and selfish men, when disappointed in their wicked purposes, to satisfy their own revenge, will inflict wounds upon their nearest relatives, even though at the expense of their own honour, and the hazard of their own salvation. Believers, when surrounded with the darkest gloom of sorrow, are often nearest the brightest manifestations of divine smiles, and the sensible enjoyment of divine fellowship. May I see in Jacob's ladder the emblem of a special providence, the proof of continued gracious communications from heaven to earth, the intimation of the guardian care of angels over the saints, but, above all, the figure of the mediation of my blessed Jesus, through whom God comes down to man on earth, and at last saints ascend from earth to heaven. Happy are they who enjoy God's gracious presence, which can change deserts, caves, dens, and dungeons into the house of God and the gate of heaven.

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS and divine Father, thou art the fountain of all being and the source of all wisdom. Thou hast measured the waters of the sea in the hollow of thine hand, and meted out the heavens with a span: thou comprehendest the dust of the earth in a measure, and thou hast weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance.

We adore thee as the God of providence, and as watching over thy people with special and paternal care. Sanctify to us the interesting accounts we have now read of the special protection thou didst graciously extend to Jacob, when he was alone, a solitary wanderer, and far distant from his father's house. Thou hast never forsaken them that seek thee. O that each one now before thee may in reality belong to the number of those who seek thee through Christ, and in the way thou hast appointed. Thy people may in thy providence be brought into great darkness and suffering, but still the truth of thy promises shall remain unchanged: He forsaketh not his saints, they are preserved for ever. The Lord will not cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

We thank our God for pious parents and ancestors. May the prayers which they presented for us their offspring and descendants be preserved as a memorial before thee; and may we inherit the benefit of those prayers to the close of life, and through the ages of eternity.

As Isaac and Rebekah prayed for Jacob, when entering on a lengthened and dangerous journey, so we would pray for our beloved children now before thee. God Almighty, bless them, and give them the blessing of Abraham, and cause them to inherit the heavenly land for ever.

Glory to thy name, O Lord, that in Old Testament days thou didst speak and appear to thy people in dreams and visions of the night, graciously revealing to them thy will, and pouring into their wounded spirits the consolations of thy grace. May the ordinances of religion ever be to us and our beloved relatives, our minister, and the people with whom we are associated in the sacred bonds of Christian fellowship, a ladder of communication betwixt heaven and earth. May we often ascend that ladder, and survey the glory of the celestial world. Give thine angels charge over us; but above all, O Jesus, thou Lord of angels, encompass us with the arms of thy special providence and thy saving grace. Be to us and ours the God of Bethel. May our habitation be a Bethel; may the sanctuary where we publicly praise thee be a Bethel: may we find it to be nothing else than the house of God and the gate of heaven.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past night, and implore the blessing and guidance of our God through the approaching day. Hear our prayer, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

ZEAL AND DILIGENCE.

Stratford. Chadwell. Providence College. c. n.

- 1 WHILE carnal men, with all their might,
Earth's vanities pursue,
How slow th' advances which I make,
With heaven itself in view!
- 2 Inspire my soul with holy zeal;
Great God! my love inflame;
Religion, without zeal and love,
Is but an empty name.
- 3 To gain the top of Zion's hill,
May I with fervour strive;
And all those powers employ for thee
Which I from thee derive!

REDDOME.

MATTHEW XX.

Figures of the Kingdom of God.

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

2 And when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace,

4 And said unto them; Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

8 So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

9 And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.

10 But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny.

11 And when they had received it, they murmured against the goodman of the house, 12 Saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

13 But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny?

14 Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last, even as unto thee.

15 Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? is thine eye evil, because I am good?

16 So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XX.—To belong to the kingdom of God is infinitely more honourable than to occupy the first place in the mightiest empires of the earth. Do I belong to God's kingdom of grace? If so, I am actively engaged in his service; I have taken upon me his yoke, which is easy, and his burden, which is light. Jesus is condescending in his inviting idle sinners into his service, and he is liberal in bestowing on all who are faithful in his employment rich rewards of grace. It is melancholy that the great matter of salvation should be delayed till the eleventh hour of the day of human life! Though there is hope even then, yet how few who have reached that period in cold indifference and sinful indolence, ever turn to the faith of Jesus, and flee from the wrath to come! What a blessing, that divine grace can persuade the most obstinate and enable the most indolent to become the willing and the active servants of the Lamb of God! Let the careless remember that the day of death will prove a day of solemn settlement, when we must give an account of the deeds done in the body, whether they be good, or whether they be evil. Holy Spirit, prepare me for that important day! It is daring presumption in man to be dissatisfied with the arrangements of providence, for God is sovereign and will do his pleasure; and he is unerring in his wisdom, and can do nothing wrong. Ever may I stand in awe of God, as holy and just; and ever may I rejoice in him as condescending, gracious, and merciful. While few embrace the Gospel offer, O may Jesus be dear to my heart, and may I believe to the salvation of my soul!

PRAYER.

OUR God and our Father in Christ, we draw near to thy throne of grace at the close of another day, devoutly to express our thanks for the continuance of thy mercies, temporal and spiritual, personal and domestic. We are less than the least of all thy mercies which thou hast made to pass before us.

We adore thee in thy sovereign dominion, and in the absolute yet wise and gracious exercise of thine authority. Art thou not God in heaven, and rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee? All the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing, and thou dost according to thy will in the army of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth, and none can stay thine hand, or say unto thee, What dost thou? We rejoice for ever that the sceptre of absolute dominion is in the hand of unerring wisdom and unlimited goodness.

Thou art sovereign in the disposal of gifts and graces. On one thou bestowest eminent mental powers, on another the most humble talents; to one thou givest wealth, and another thou triest with penury and want. One thou adornest with grace, while another is left in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight. Glory to our God, that, amid all the displays of thy sovereignty, none are excluded from thy mercy who come as humble, penitent petitioners, seeking salvation through our Saviour's blood. O Lord, we come, we lay ourselves down at thy feet, and to thee we would lift our longing eyes for eternal salvation, through the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son.

We confess that too long we have been labourers in Satan's employment. We have served him as slaves, yet willingly and without hire. We have been carried captive by him at his pleasure. Now, O Lord, may we be separated from his service for ever, and no longer be under the dominion of our corruptions and lusts. Persuade and enable us to become thy servants, for thou alone art entitled to our obedience and love. By thy grace we would say, We will have thee to rule over us. Suffer none of us to refuse Jesus as our Saviour and Lord, and may we not wait till the eleventh hour.

Persuade our dear children and domestics, even now, to flee to Jesus, and embrace him as their Saviour and King. Let these words be engraven on their hearts: They that seek me early shall find me.

We have reason to lament that we have been so indolent in the service of our God, that we have allowed so much time and so many opportunities for glorifying God to pass away unimproved. Teach us, Holy Spirit, to redeem the time, seeing the days are evil: and to be diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. As it respects the honouring of thy name, the advancement of thy kingdom, and the salvation of our own souls, whatsoever our hand findeth to do, teach us to do it with all our might, seeing there is no wisdom, nor knowledge, nor device in the grave, whither we are going. Be our shield of defence this night, and on the morning of the approaching day may we surround the domestic altar in peace. Forgive, hear, and answer thine unworthy supplicants, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

---

Painted by G. P. P.

Eng. by Edward

---

DELIGHT IN GOD.

Swanwick. Sylvanus. Abingdon.

C. M.

- 1 O LORD! I would delight in thee,
And on thy care depend;
To thee in every trouble flee,
My best, my only friend.
- 2 When all created streams are dried,
Thy fulness is the same;
May I with this be satisfied,
And glory in thy name!
- 3 Why should the soul a drop bemoan,
Who has a fountain near;
A fountain which will ever run
With waters sweet and clear?

DR. RYLAND.

GENESIS XXIX.

Jacob's Arrival at the House of Laban.

THEN Jacob went on his journey, and came into the land of the people of the east.

2 And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My brethren, whence be ye? And they said, Of Haran are we.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? and they said, We know him.

6 And he said unto them, Is he well? And they said, He is well: and, behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep.

7 And he said, Lo, it is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

8 And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

9 And while he yet spake with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep: for she kept them.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, and rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

11 And Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, and wept.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother, and that he was Rebekah's son: and she ran and told her father.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

14 And Laban said to him, Surely thou art my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him the space of a month.

15 And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? Tell me, what shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender eyed; but Rachel was beautiful and well favoured.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXIX.—Jacob's wanderings should remind us that human life is a journey, and that they are happy who, like Jacob, take God for their guide, for they shall ever enjoy the protection of his providence, and be conducted at last to the regions of the blessed. Flocks of sheep should call to our remembrance Christ's Church, his constant and loving guardianship and care over all his spiritual sheep, and the rich provision which he as the divine Shepherd has made of green pastures, of gospel-ordinances, and wells of gospel-grace, for their nourishment, consolation, and peace. Believers in Jesus, of every name, should look on each other as brethren, and ever manifest that spirit of unity and love which is the brightest ornament of the Christian name. We should take a deep interest in the temporal, but much more in the spiritual, prosperity of our relatives and friends. Ministers should feed Christ's flock with affectionate care, remembering that blessings can never flow from the well of ordinances, unless Jesus rolls away the stone of unbelief and guilt. In us may honourable industry be ever connected with fervent piety, and the culture of kind and accommodating dispositions. How endearing the tenderness of natural affection! but how noble when grafted on love to Jesus! If the meeting of pious friends on earth be an enjoyment so sweet, how ineffable the blessedness of meeting in heaven, to part no more!

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we thank thee that, in answer to our prayer when we last met around the domestic altar, we are most graciously permitted this morning to approach thy sacred presence and supplicate thy mercy. When surrounded with the dark shades of night, thou didst preserve us within the arms of thy protection; and when fast asleep and unconscious of our existence, thine eye, which watched over us, neither slumbered nor slept.

We acknowledge thee as the Lord our God. Thou didst show thyself to be the God of Jacob; and thou didst make the children of Israel know that thou wast indeed the Lord their God. Make us to know, as a family, by the manifestations of thy saving grace in each of our souls, that thou art the Lord our God.

As thou didst conduct Jacob in safety from the house of his father to the house of Laban, O conduct us in safety through the desert of life unto our heavenly home. Though the journey be circuitous, dangerous, and rugged—though enemies, powerful and violent as raging lions, attempt to impede our way—if thou, O Saviour, be with us, we shall surmount every obstacle, trample on the neck of every foe, and at last enjoy a triumphant entrance into our heavenly home. We commend ourselves, the dear children now before thee, and all with whom we are connected by the ties of nature or of friendship, to thy gracious care, that we and they may be mercifully conducted by thy wisdom and protected by thy power all the journey through.

We thank God for relations and friends, and that we are not left solitary upon the face of the earth. Pious, wise, and generous friends are thy gifts. Thou settest the solitary in families. For these blessings we praise thee. May we and our relatives meet in heaven. May we all be united by the ties, the endearing, the imperishable ties of grace; then shall our intercourse be revived in more auspicious circumstances, in another and better state beyond the stars.

O Jesus, what are all our friends compared with thee; Thou art the friend who stickest closer than a brother. How blessed thy favour! It is life; and thy loving-kindness is better than life. Suffer us not, dear Redeemer, ever to love our earthly friends more than thee, or to prefer the love of earthly friends to thine. Compared with the enjoyment of thy love in heaven, may all the hardships and difficulties of the present life appear as less than nothing, and vanity.

Assist us in all the duties of the day, preserve us from offending thee, forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

THE CONDESCENDING GRACE OF CHRIST.

Waldingfield. University. Broomsgrove. c. w.

- 1 SAVIOUR of men, and Lord of love,
How sweet thy gracious name!
With joy that errand we review
On which thy mercy came.
- 2 While all thine own angelic bands
Stood waiting on the wing,
Charmed with the honour to obey
Their great eternal King;
- 3 For us, mean, wretched, sinful men,
Thou laidst that glory by;—
First, in our mortal flesh, to serve;
Then, in that flesh, to die.

DR. DODDRIDGE.

MATTHEW XX.

Jesus going up to Jerusalem.

AND Jesus going up to Jerusalem took the twelve disciples apart in the way, and said unto them,

18 Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death,

19 And shall deliver him to the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify him: and the third day he shall rise again.

20 Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children with her sons, worshipping him, and desiring a certain thing of him.

21 And he said unto her, What wilt thou? She saith unto him, Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom.

22 But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? They say unto him, We are able.

23 And he saith unto them, Ye shall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

24 And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation against the two brethren.

25 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them.

26 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister;

27 And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant:

28 Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

29 And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him.

30 And, behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou Son of David.

31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou Son of David.

32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I should do unto you?

33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34 So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XX.—They who now cultivate and enjoy Christ's fellowship shall arrive at last at the Jerusalem above. Great was the malignity of Christ's enemies against his doctrine, his person, and his life; yet though they succeeded in shedding his blood unto the death, they could not prevent his triumphant resurrection from the tomb. It is a grievous stain upon the name of the professed followers, and more especially the ministers of Jesus, when they discover an unhallowed love to earthly greatness, wealth, and power. May we ever see that true honour is humility, and may our pride be subdued and extinguished by the remembrance of that cup of sorrow which our great Immanuel drank, and that baptism of suffering and wrath with which he was baptized. O with what brightness the humility and mercy of Jesus shine, in placing himself in the capacity of a servant, and even giving his life to accomplish the spiritual emancipation of his people, and to raise them to the glories of immortality! How delightful the recollection of the multitudes who flocked around Jesus in his humiliation! and how animating the prospect of the myriads who shall flock around his standard in millennial days, when the eyes of a blinded world shall be open, and when nations shall unite in singing the sweetest hallelujahs to our Redeemer's praise!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, graciously breathe upon us thine influences, that we may be enabled, as a family, to pour out the desires of our heart before a prayer-hearing God. Thou knowest the deadness, the carnality, and the unbelief of our hearts, and therefore our complete unfitness without thy grace to approach the throne of God.

We adore thee, O Lord, for the displays of thy perfection in creation and providence; but, above all, for the manifestation of thy mercy and grace in the death and sufferings of thy well-beloved, thine eternal Son. In thy wisdom thou couldst find out no other plan by which our fallen race could obtain salvation, except through the sacrifice of Immanuel. In thy compassion and pity, thou didst make this unparalleled sacrifice—thou didst give up thy Son to the death for us all. Truly thou art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth. Thou art good, thy mercy is everlasting, and thy truth endureth to all generations. Thou art merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy.

Eternal praises to thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst willingly consent to all the conditions in the covenant of grace which were necessary for the salvation of sinful men. Let the remembrance of the treachery of Judas in betraying thee affect our minds with godly jealousy and fear, lest, after all our professions of piety and love, we should act a treacherous, a traitorous part. Make us amazed at the cruelty and impiety of men. Thou didst come to save men, and men became thy murderers; thou didst come to show men pity, but they rewarded thy pity with cruelty and scorn; thou didst come to give them life, but they rewarded thee with crucifixion and death. O suffer us not to betray thee!

Impress the minds of our dear children with love and wonder, when they think of thy death. Convince them, O Jesus, that thou didst die for them. O take possession of the youthful affections of their bosom, and give them grace to devote their early days and life to thee.

We rejoice, O Lord, that the death of Christ was followed by his resurrection. O teach us to believe that the resurrection of Christ was the first-fruits of them that sleep, and that his resurrection is the pledge and security of ours.

Merciful God, preserve us, and all thy ministering servants, from carnal and unhallowed ambition. Instead of wishing earthly greatness and superiority, may we rather wish to be the servants of all.

Forgive the guilt we have contracted this day, and accept of the tribute of our gratitude for the mercies enjoyed. Hide us this evening under the covert of thy wings. May natural sleep remind us of the sleep of death. Those who shall sleep the sleep of death this night, have mercy upon them. O may they awake in heaven. Mercifully hear us, for our Saviour's sake. We ascribe to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost unceasing praises. Amen.

THE WORLD NO COMPENSATION FOR THE LOSS OF THE SOUL.

Westerham. Highbury College. Ellenborough. c. n.

- 1 LORD! ahall we part with gold for dross,
With solid good for show?
Outlive our bliss, and mourn our loss
In everlasting woe!
- 2 Let us not lose the living God
For one short dream of joy;
With fond embrace cling to a clod,
And fling all heaven away.
- 3 Vain world, thy weak attempts forbear,
We all thy charms defy;
And rate our precious souls too dear
For all thy wealth to buy.

RIPON, 401.

GENESIS XXXI.

Jacob leaving the House of Laban.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's: and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this glory.

2 And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not toward him, as before.

3 And the LORD said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field, unto his flock,

5 And said unto them, I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before; but the God of my father hath been with me.

6 And ye know that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and changed my wages ten times; but God suffered him not to hurt me.

11 And the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: and I said, Here am I.

12 I am the God of Bethel; where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are we not counted of him strangers? for he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.

16 For all the riches that God hath taken from our father, that is ours, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17 Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels;

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram, for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan.

21 So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river, and set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days' journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXI.—The inordinate love of the world, and grieving at the temporal prosperity of others, are among the worst passions which can pollute and degrade the nature of man. God never withdraws his presence from his people, and he will say to them at death, Return, my ransomed children, home. O how pleasing, when heads of families live in Christian fellowship, looking together to a new-covenant God! If pious and faithful servants are at any time rewarded by the moroseness and cruelty of graceless masters, let them rejoice that they are interested in a special providence, who watches over their souls, and who often, in a most remarkable manner, will preserve their temporal rights secure from the grasp of avaricious employers. What a privilege to be a saint!—angels are their guards, the Lord of angels is their God, mindful of their believing vows, and faithful to his own gracious promises. When fathers and mothers claim a mutual interest in the God of salvation, when they mutually rejoice in the possession of the same rich, spiritual, and imperishable inheritance, and when they proceed in the journey of life according to the counsel of a merciful God, their life on earth is the harbinger of the joys of heaven. May God the Spirit ever keep us from idols, and may Jesus reign triumphant in our heart! If we take God for our God, and set our face steadfastly in our journey to heaven, all the schemes of our crafty enemies will be defeated, and in defiance of their threats we shall safely reach our heavenly home.

PRAYER.

GOD of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we draw near unto thee in the exercise of prayer. O give us the boldness and the humility of faith, that we may come boldly unto the throne of grace, because our great High Priest has gone into the heavens to intercede and to prepare mansions of glory and rest for all who love him and believe in his name.

We adore thee as the heart-searching God. Thou seest not as man seeth; man looketh on the outward appearance, but thou lookest on the heart. Thou art the Lord who searchest all hearts, and understandest all the imaginations of the thoughts. With what fervour then ought we to pray, Let the meditations of our heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, our strength and our Redeemer. O that our heart were right in the sight of God. Divine Spirit, where can we look but to thee for this blessing? Graciously accomplish the promise, I will put my Spirit within you.

May practical and useful effects be produced on our mind by the Word of God we have now read. Preserve us from a worldly, sordid spirit, which was so much exemplified by Laban. May we be enabled to avoid in ourselves what appears so odious in others. May we see the emptiness and vanity of earthly treasures, when compared with treasures of grace. O give us the treasures of faith, humility, love, and zeal. Mercifully look down upon us, as a family, while we pray, The Lord bless us, and keep us; the Lord make his face to shine upon us, and be gracious unto us; the Lord lift up his countenance upon us, and give us peace. As thou didst to Israel, put thy name upon us and bless us.

Preserve us from the sin of envy, and teach us to rejoice in the wealth, prosperity, and happiness of those around us. Give us thy Spirit, that we may suppress and subdue all tempers and dispositions which are opposed to thy will and at variance with the peace and comfort of our fellow-men. Let all of us study family peace, and avoid every feeling and expression and action which has a tendency to disturb domestic tranquillity and happiness. Let Christian love reign in all our bosoms. Let our love to each other be more than natural, let it be spiritual—that divine affection which is enkindled in the heart by the Holy Spirit, which many waters cannot quench, nor floods drown.

May our children be filled with love to Christ: then they will love each other with pure hearts fervently. Teach them to walk in love, as Christ also hath loved them.

We thank thee, O God, that there is no crisis of difficulty in which thou dost not appear for thy people. Glorious promise: I will never leave thee! Thou hast fulfilled this promise in our experience last night, in watching over and preserving us. May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God the Father, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us this day and for ever. Extend to all of us thy pardoning mercy. Hear our prayer, for the sake of Jesus our Advocate and Redeemer. Amen.

HOSANNAS OF CHILDREN.

Ringswood. Tinsbury. Old Hundred.

L. M.

- 1 ALmighty Ruler of the skies,
Through the wide earth thy name is spread,
And thine eternal glories rise
O'er all the heavens thy hands have made.
- 2 To thee the voices of the young
A monument of honour raise;
And babes, with uninstructed tongue,
Declare the wonders of thy praise.
- 3 Thy power assists their tender age
To bring proud rebels to the ground,
To still the bold blasphemer's rage,
And all their policies confound.
- 4 Children amidst thy temple throng
To see their great Redeemer's face;
The Son of David is their song,
And young hosannas fill the place.

Watts, Ps. 8, p. 1.

MATTHEW XXI.

Christ's triumphant entrance into Jerusalem.

AND when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples,

2 Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them and bring them unto me.

3 And if any man sayought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them.

4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying,

5 Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, and a colt, the foal of an ass.

6 And the disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them,

7 And brought the ass, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon.

8 And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees, and strowed them in the way.

9 And the multitudes that went before and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest:

10 And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?

11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

12 And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves.

13 And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David; they were sore displeased, 16 And said unto him, Hearest thou what these say? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea; have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXI.—The mount of Olives should remind us of the numerous nights our Saviour spent in prayer. The instructions given to his disciples respecting the colt strikingly proclaim his divine omniscience. In him we see the most minute prophecies fulfilled. Christ appeared most lovely in his condescension and meekness;—like him, may we be meek and lowly in heart! His laws are wise, merciful, and just; and his loving and loyal people yield implicit and ready obedience to all his commands. If Jesus reigns on the throne of our affections, we will consider no sacrifices too great to make for his sake, or too precious to promote the interests of his kingdom. Jesus our Immanuel is Wonderful, and all nations shall hear the fame of his wonderful name, and princes pay their homage at his feet. Degraded is the heart of those whose covetousness fills the throne. May our hearts be temples of the Holy Ghost, filled with divine light, and warmed with divine love. Oh! may the wonders of Christ's person fill our hearts with delight, and our mouths with praise. "Blessed Jesus! let all the people praise thee. Amen."

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the object, the only object of religious homage and adoration, we prostrate ourselves before thee at the close of another day, in the name of Jesus, to supplicate thy salvation; we rejoice that we cannot weary thee by our continued applications. While earthly kings are approached with difficulty, and seldom, and only in one place, the way to thy mercy-seat is ever open, all impediments are removed, the gates of gospel-grace stand open night and day, and the eye of thy pity never slumbers or sleeps.

Holy and divine Spirit, bless the Word of unerring truth and wisdom we have now read. May we exercise a lively faith in thy Word; may it prove to us a quickening word, constantly working in our hearts and consciences, exciting within us unfeigned love, lively zeal, the deepest humility, persevering diligence, and patient continuance in well-doing. By this blessed guide may we be taught fidelity in our duty to God and all around us; and thus go onward in our Christian course, encouraged by the hope of being finally translated to the heavenly world, to be ever with the Lord.

Holy Saviour, we adore thee as God equal with the Father, and would ascribe to thee that divine honour and praise which the inhabitants of heaven ascribe to the Father and thyself. Blessing and honour and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever. We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou art the King of Zion. In thy divine nature, and in thy mediatorial glory, thou art infinitely exalted above all earthly princes, yea, above all the principalities and powers in the heavenly places. Thou hast a name above every name; for at thy name every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess that thou art Lord. We adore thee and acknowledge thee as the Lord our Saviour. Come, thou Prince of Peace, and reign over us.

Teach, by thy Spirit, our dear children before thee to imitate the little children in Jerusalem, who proclaimed and sung before the Saviour in the streets and in the temple, Hosanna to the Son of David; Hosanna in the highest.

Teach our rulers, and the great and mighty of our land and of the earth, to bow before thy sceptre, O Immanuel. Soon may thy mediatorial dominion extend over the whole earth. O hasten that blessed day.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the renewed and continued mercies of the past day, not only in things which concern the body and time, but also in those which concern the soul and eternity. Whatever thy pure eyes have seen amiss in our thoughts, words, or deeds, graciously forgive.

We commend ourselves, and all in whom we are interested, to thy providential care this night. Defend our souls and bodies from all those dangers to which we are constantly exposed; and may we be so invigorated and refreshed with sleep and rest, as to enter upon the duties of another day with alacrity, vigour, and joy. All we ask is in Jesus' name, to whom, with thyself and the Holy Spirit, be ascribed unceasing praises. Amen.

MAKING GOD A REFUGE.

Honour Chapel. Quebec Chapel. Brighton.

C. M.

- 1 DEAR refuge of my weary soul,
On thee, when sorrows rise,
On thee, when waves of trouble roll,
My fainting hope relies.
- 2 To thee I tell each rising grief,
For thou alone canst heal;
Thy word can bring a sweet relief
For every pain I feel.
- 3 But, O! when gloomy doubts prevail,
I fear to call thee mine;
The springs of comfort seem to fail,
And all my hopes decline.

STRELL

GENESIS XXXI.

Covenant of Jacob and Laban.

THEN Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captive taken with the sword?

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and steal away from me; and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters? thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

30 And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house, yet wherefore hast thou stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid; for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

42 Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. God hath seen my affliction and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

43 And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have born?

44 Now therefore come thou, let us make a covenant, I and thou; and let it be for a witness between me and thee.

45 And Jacob took a stone, and set it up for a pillar.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

54 Then Jacob offered sacrifice upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread: and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

55 And early in the morning Laban rose up, and kissed his sons and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departed, and returned unto his place.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXI.—Close relationship is no security against the most malevolent corruptions. Unprincipled, covetous men, while themselves loaded with guilt, unscrupulously heap false accusations upon the innocent, and daringly attempt to conceal their enmity and jealousy under false professions of friendship and affection. God is the guardian of his saints, and in times of the greatest danger, lays effectual restraints upon their furious enemies. What force the history of depraved man gives to the wise counsel of God!—"Trust not in man, trust not in princes, whose breath is in their nostrils; in that very day, their thoughts perish." Attempted apologies for sinful courses only make guilt more aggravated, and the offender more odious. Differences among friends cannot be too soon healed, nor covenants of peace too soon settled. It is lovely to see the injured and the aggrieved most readily burying differences in oblivion. May it be our happiness, as it is our privilege, to enter into covenant with Christ, then we shall receive "the sure mercies of David."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the God of salvation and grace, encouraged to draw near unto thee in the name of the chief Shepherd and Bishop of souls, we adore thee as the Creator, the Owner, and the Disposer of all things. Thou didst make the world, and all things that are therein: thou art the Lord of heaven and earth. The sea is thine, for thou madest it, and thy hands formed the dry land. Every beast of the forest is thine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. The earth is thine, O Lord, and the fulness thereof; the world, and all the inhabitants who dwell upon its surface. Yea, the heavens are thine, even the heaven of heavens, with all their host.

Thou hast continued thine undeserved kindness with us during another night. While the eyes of some have been closed in death during the past night, our eyes are opened to see the light of another day. Open the eyes of our soul to see wonderful things in thy laws; open our eyes to see the glorious beams of the Sun of Righteousness. We thank thee, heavenly Father, for thy mercies, temporal and spiritual, which now fill the cup of our lot. It is a good thing to give thanks unto thee, O Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High.

What are we, that we should be allowed to approach a throne of mercy, who deserve to have been placed before a throne of judgment? Wonderful grace! that we should be permitted to touch the golden sceptre of thy grace and live, who deserve to be destroyed with the iron rod of thy vengeance. We come to thy throne, not because we are worthy, but because thou art merciful. We come because thou hast found out a ransom, even thy well-beloved Son, who died to remove our guilt, and who rose again to show that his sacrifice was accepted for this great end. We come to thy throne, for thou hast said, Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world!

Take our children now before thee, and make them thine. Let them be among the number of thy jewels, and preserved safe in the cabinet of thy love from the cruel purposes of Satan the destroyer.

Merciful God, thou who didst preserve Jacob from ruin when he was exposed to the wrath of Laban, O preserve us from the wicked designs of all our enemies. Eradicate from our minds every envious and malignant passion, and preserve us from the envious and malignant passions of others. When we are exposed to the rage of men, may we be preserved as under thy gracious pavilion. Give us grace to study and seek family peace, and carefully to cultivate the affection of our relatives. May we learn from thee, O Jesus, the Christian and Divine lesson of forgiving and forgetting injuries; then shall we be able conscientiously to offer up that prayer, Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them who trespass against us. In all the duties and engagements of the day, may we be enabled to exemplify the Christian graces. We commend ourselves to thy guidance and care. O hear and answer our supplication, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

SAINTS VICTORIOUS.
Conquest. Raston. Suffolk.

C. M.

- 1 GREAT Leader of thine Israel's host,
We shout thy conquering name
Legions of foes beset thee round,
And legions fled with shame.
- 2 A victory glorious and complete,
Thou by thy death didst gain;
So in thy cause may we contend,
And death itself sustain!
- 3 By our illustrious General fired,
We no extremes would fear;
Prepared to struggle and to bleed,
If thou, O Lord! be near.

DODDRIDGE.

MATTHEW XXI.

The barren Fig-tree and wicked Husbandmen.

AND he left them, and went out of the city, into Bethany; and he lodged there.

18 Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungered.

19 And when he saw a fig tree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.

20 And when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away!

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also, if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done.

22 And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive.

23 Hear another parable: There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country:

24 And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

25 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.

26 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise.

27 But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son.

28 But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.

29 And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

30 When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

31 They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons.

32 Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?

33 Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

34 And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

35 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

36 But when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXI.—Exceedingly diversified were the sufferings of Christ. How mysterious, he who giveth the lions their food, and who hears the cry of the ravens, suffered the pains of hunger for us! They who present the prayer of faith, possess the richest treasure, and have power with God. May we possess this treasure, and exercise this power. The persecution of God's saints is a crime of the greatest magnitude, which God will visit with the heaviest vengeance. Though the death of Christ has proved the salvation of myriads, this in no degree diminished the guilt of his murderers. May it be our blessedness to receive Jesus as our Saviour; then we shall escape the dreadful doom of those, who impenitently reject the invitations of mercy, and despise the offers of grace.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful God, let the Holy Spirit descend upon us in his gracious influence, while we engage in the exercise of prayer. We thank thee for the promise of the Spirit given us by thy servant Isaiah: I will pour out my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring;—and for the renewal of this most merciful and reasonable promise by thy servant Joel: I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh. In the name of Christ, we would reverently yet confidently pray that thou wouldst fulfil this promise in our experience; then shall our prayers rise from our inmost souls; then shall we wrestle like Jacob, and obtain the blessing.

We have now been permitted to read the sacred volume: O mercifully impress on our treacherous hearts what we have now read. May the searching truths which have engaged our attention assist us in examining ourselves with impartial scrutiny and care, that we may know whether we are in reality in the faith, and have passed from death to life. We are naturally averse to this exercise; give us grace to conquer the aversion, that we may look faithfully into our hearts, and know how matters stand between God and our souls.

We have reason to lament that, notwithstanding the rich enjoyment of the means of grace, we too much resemble the barren fig-tree. Justly mightst thou have said, Cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground? Yet thou hast not cut us down; for, amid the greatest unworthiness and the most aggravated provocations, we are still preserved. We will give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for His mercy endureth for ever.

Make the children of our family trees of righteousness, the planting of the right-hand of thy grace, that thou mayest be glorified. Let them be olive plants in thy house, and fragrant flowers of holiness in the garden of thy Church.

Lord, teach us to value and faithfully to improve the means of grace. Thou art gracious in giving us those means, but thou wilt be just in requiring an account of the manner in which we have used them. Convince the careless among us, that to despise the means of salvation is to despise salvation itself, and to pour the greatest contempt upon the boundless mercy of God. O teach us to honour Christ. Blessed Jesus, thou art the chief corner-stone, yea, the foundation and glory of thy Church. Jewish priests rejected thee, and set thee at nought. After passing through the dreary shades of death, thou art now raised to the loftiest throne in heaven. This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the day, and let the sins we have committed be graciously forgiven. We would lie down on our beds trusting in thy promise, and wondering at thy kindness, in giving us beds on which to rest, when Jesus had not where to lay his head. We implore an answer to our prayer, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

VENTURING ON GOD'S MERCY.

Leonard's. Cookham. Book.

P. M.

- 1 GRACIOUS Lord! incline thine ear!
My requests vouchsafe to hear;
Hear my never-ceasing cry;—
Give me Christ, or else I die.
- 2 Wealth and honour I disdain,
Earthly comforts, Lord! are vain:
These can never satisfy:
Give me Christ, or else I die.
- 3 Lord! deny me what thou wilt,
Only ease me of my guilt;
Suppliant at thy feet I lie,
Give me Christ, or else I die.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 196.

GENESIS XXXII.

Jacob wrestling with the Angel.

AND Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him.
2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is God's host: and he called the name of that place Mahanaim.*

3 And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother, unto the land of Seir, the country of Edom.

6 And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau, and also he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him.

9 And Jacob said, O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the LORD which saidst unto me, Return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

10 I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast showed unto thy servant; for with my staff I passed over this Jordan, and now I am become two bands.

11 Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and the mother with the children.

12 And thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

13 And he lodged there that same night; and took of that which came to his hand a present for Esau his brother.

24 And Jacob was left alone: and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day.

25 And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him.

26 And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

28 And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name; and he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

30 And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel; † for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.

31 And as he passed over Penuel the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day: because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh in the sinew that shrank.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXII.—The path of duty may be often the path of suffering; but it is always the path of safety. Unspeakingly great are the privileges of God's saints: they have the protection of angels; they have the fellowship and defence of the Lord of angels. When faith is in exercise the greatest obstacles appear insignificant, and the greatest enemies seem as grasshoppers. When afflictions are sanctified they become blessings; they arouse the energy of the graces, and stimulate the believer to present before the throne those earnest supplications which secure the protection of Omnipotence, and the confusion and overthrow of all his enemies. God's promises furnish the most suitable matter for prayer, and afford the greatest encouragement to trust in God for the answer of prayer. The fulfilment of his promises depends on no peradventure; it is secured by immutable love and inviolable truth. Let us seriously inquire, Have we the spirit of grace and supplication? Do we know what it is to wrestle with God in our intercessions before the mercy-seat? In the midst of the greatest darkness and discouragements, have we poured out our supplications into our heavenly Father's ear? Have we knocked and it was opened? Have we asked and received? Have we sought and found? Then, a prayer-hearing God is our God, and he will be our guide even unto death. Those places are indeed Bethels where such prayers are offered; and they are the delightful prelude that we shall at last appear in heaven, and see our Saviour face to face.

* Two hosts.

† Face of God.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the God of all grace and of all comfort. We would earnestly supplicate thy Spirit as a Spirit of prayer at this time, that our hearts, as well as our lips, may be engaged in acts of holy devotion.

Thou art the almighty Jehovah, and thou dost mercifully exercise thy power in preserving thy people amid the dangers which assail them in their journey to their Father's house, while passing through the vale of tears. Great was the danger to which Jacob, his family, and his property were exposed, when his brother, burning with rage and revenge, came with four hundred men to destroy him. O Lord, thou didst avert the brother's rage, thou didst change the storm into a calm. At thy command fraternal affection was enkindled in the bosom, where malignant and resentful passion long reigned. O Lord, thou savest by thy right-hand them who put their trust in thee. Thou gavest to thy servant the shield of thy salvation, thy right-hand did hold him up, and thy gentleness did make him great.

Thou delightest in mercy; and may we delight to seek mercy from him who delights to bestow it. Sanctify to us the afflictions and trials of the past. May we see not only thy justice, but thy wisdom and goodness, in all that has befallen us. Jacob saw thy goodness in all he suffered—O give us Jacob's faith! then shall we glorify thee in the furnace, and acknowledge that in mercy thou hast afflicted us. Prepare us for the afflictions which are to come. Suffer us not to imagine that we are to escape from them in the path of duty. Let the words of our Saviour ever be preserved alive in our remembrance: Through much tribulation ye must enter the kingdom. Blessed Jesus, give us thy presence, counsel, and protection on our way to the heavenly Canaan. As an host of angels met and defended Jacob, O give thine angels charge over us, to hold us up in their hands.

Holy Spirit, impart thy grace in the hour of temptation. When temptations are strong, let faith be strong. The more the tempter strives the more may we wrestle in prayer.

O teach our dear children and domestics to wrestle with God in prayer betimes; then they will be preserved from ten thousand snares. All their days may they resemble wrestling Jacob.

We thank our God for the providential care of the last night, and that we are now prostrate before the throne of God, to supplicate the salvation which is in Christ. Lord, save us; save us, else we perish. Let thy grace appear this day in our lives and conversation. Teach us to watch over ourselves, to watch as under thine eye, and to watch as those who must give an account.

Forgive our sins, and hear our imperfect prayers, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

WHAT WE DESERVE.

Shields. Zebulun. Bangor.

C. M.

- 1 LORD! when I read the traitor's doom,
To his own place consigned,
What holy fear and humble hope
Alternate fill my mind!
- 2 Traitor to thee I too have been,
But saved by matchless grace;
Or else the lowest, hottest hell
Had surely been my place.
- 3 But, lo! (what wondrous, matchless love!)
I call a place my own,
On earth, within the Gospel sound,
And at thy gracious throne.

RYLAND.

MATTHEW XXII.

The Marriage of the King's Son.

- AND Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,
- 2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son,
  - 3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.
  - 4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.
  - 5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:
  - 6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.
  - 7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.
  - 8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.
  - 9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.
  - 10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.
  - 11 And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment:
  - 12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.
  - 13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
  - 14 For many are called, but few are chosen.
  - 15 Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk.
  - 16 And they sent out unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man: for thou regardest not the person of men.
  - 17 Tell us therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?
  - 18 But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?
  - 19 Shew me the tribute money. And they brought unto him a penny.
  - 20 And he saith unto them, Whose is this image and superscription?
  - 21 They say unto him, Cæsar's. Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXII.—Sin has exposed our race to spiritual starvation and misery; but God, in the overflowings of his mercy, has provided a rich feast of the choicest spiritual dainties, that perishing, starving, miserable souls may freely partake of what is freely presented, that they may eat and be satisfied, and remember their sorrows no more. Though we are by nature outcasts, aliens, and rebels, he invites us to partake of his bountiful and gracious provision, in language the most condescending, persuasive, and loving. He says, "Eat, O friends! yea, drink abundantly, O beloved!" Let us greatly admire the wisdom of Christ, blended with the greatest mildness, humility, and meekness, which shone so bright in the presence of enemies, whose malicious craft was mingled with the greatest enmity and envy.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, though we are less than the least of all thy mercies, yet we would come boldly to thy throne in the name of Christ. Thou art the God of our salvation. O say to us as a family and as individuals, O say to all our beloved relatives, I am the Lord thy God, the Holy one of Israel, thy Saviour. O for that lively, appropriating faith, which will enable us to address thee in the believing language of David! Thou art the God of our rock; in thee will we trust: thou art our shield, and the horn of our salvation; our high tower, our refuge, and our Saviour. Blessed shall we be, if we are enabled each one with Mary to exclaim, My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.

We acknowledge with gratitude the goodness which has passed before us this day, and at the same time our absolute unworthiness of the smallest token of thy kindness. Holy Spirit, enable us with humility to see the aggravation of our sins in the multitude and in the greatness of thy mercies. While we thank thee for daily blessings, we would confess daily sins, and implore forgiveness through our Saviour's blood. May each one of us be clad in the armour of grace; then shall we successfully contend with sin, and obtain distinguished victories over all our powerful corruptions.

Let the Word we have now read be a light unto our feet and a lamp unto our paths, and may it be profitable for correction, and for instruction in righteousness.

Enable our dear children to take thy Word for their counsellor. May they use it as a lamp to guide them safely through the dark night of human life, and by its blessed beams may they be conducted at last to the pearly gates of heaven.

Gracious Saviour, we rejoice thou hast formed and established a kingdom on earth, even thy Church, which thou hast enriched with privileges and ordinances. May we not merely be the children of the kingdom by profession, may we be its subjects in reality. Divine Redeemer, we would swear allegiance unto thee as our only Lord. We praise thee that as the King of Zion thou hast prepared a gospel-feast, to which all are invited whose privilege it is to hear the joyful sound. We would rejoice that Wisdom hath builded her house, that she hath killed her beasts, and furnished her tables, and that her ministers are charged to deliver the following gracious invitation: Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither; come eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled. Preserve us from the sin of despising the invitations of thy mercy to partake of the provision of the gospel-feast, even the blessings of salvation. O Lord, thy wrath will burn with awful fury against those who die rejecting the offers of thy mercy. Give us, O Jesus, the wedding-garment of thy righteousness. May we live no longer without this glorious robe.

We commend ourselves, and all our friends, to thy care and mercy this night. O spread over us the blessed wings of thy gracious power. Accept our persons, and hear our prayers, through the mediation of our Lord and Saviour, who is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. Amen.

RESIGNATION.

Servant. Baxter. Stamford.

C. M.

- 1 MY times of sorrow and of joy,
Great God! are in thy hand;
My choicest comforts come from thee,
And go at thy command.
- 2 If thou shouldst take them all away,
Yet would I not repine;
Before they were possessed by me,
They were entirely thine.
- 3 Nor would I drop a murmuring word,
Though the whole world were gone,
But seek enduring happiness
In thee, and thee alone.

BRODOME.

GENESIS XXXIII.

The meeting of Jacob and Esau.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

2 And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joseph hindermost.

3 And he passed over before them, and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw the women and the children; and said, Who are those with thee? And he said, The children which God hath graciously given thy servant.

6 Then the handmaidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves.

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves: and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

8 And he said, What meanest thou by all this drove which I met? And he said, These are to find grace in the sight of my lord.

9 And Esau said, I have enough my brother; keep that thou hast unto thyself.

10 And Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, if now I have found grace in thy sight, then receive my present at my hand: for therefore I have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.

11 Take, I pray thee, my blessing that is brought to thee; because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough. And he urged him, and he took it.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he said unto him, My Lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me: and if men should overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his servant: and I will lead on softly, according as the cattle that goeth before me and the children be able to endure, until I come unto my lord unto Seir.

15 And Esau said, Let me now leave with thee some of the folk that are with me. And he said, What needeth it? let me find grace in the sight of my lord.

16 So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called Succoth.*

18 And Jacob came to Shalem a city of Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram; and pitched his tent before the city.

* Booths.

19 And he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children of Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred pieces of money.

20 And he erected there an altar, and called it El-elohe-Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXIII.—Though God promises his people protection from their enemies, the proper use of means of defence are not rendered less necessary, and it is much better to disarm an adversary by kindness, than to resist him by might. Let us implicitly rely on God in times of danger and fear, as the God of our salvation; seeing that by his great power and mercy he can level mountains of difficulties, dispel clouds the most ominous, and convert enemies the most formidable, into friends the most active, generous, and useful. Esau wished to be the breaker up of the way to Jacob; but Jesus is willing to be the breaker up of our way; let us therefore most readily embrace his guidance, and let us most confidently follow his footsteps. Then we shall go on our way rejoicing, singing as we go, "The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we would approach thee in the name of Christ, and draw near with confidence and love, as children draw near to their earthly parents. What are earthly parents—what are the nearest and dearest of earthly friends—compared with thee? Thy love is the most tender and compassionate, and thy mercy vast as thine infinitude and eternal as thy throne.

When we meditate on thy government over the universe, but in particular over the Church, we would take up the language of the Psalmist, and sing, Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice, and let them say among the heathen, the Lord reigneth. As a family we would rejoice because of the unspeakable benefits we have enjoyed under the reign of thy providence; but more particularly for the advantages and privileges we are enjoying under thy reign of thy grace.

We have been rebellious subjects, and have made ourselves infinitely unworthy of the blessings and privileges of thy gracious reign. As Manasseh humbled himself and prayed, and God was entreated, so may we humble ourselves and pray; then we shall find through Christ that thou our God shalt be entreated, and wilt graciously pronounce upon us a sentence of pardon and acceptance. Glory to thy blessed name, that thou art able to be just, and at the same time the justifier of those who believe in Jesus. Fulfil in us that delightful and encouraging promise. Surely shall one say, In the Lord have I righteousness and strength. It is in thee alone that all the seed of Israel shall be justified, and shall glory. In thee may we be justified, and then shall we for ever glorify thy name.

Bless to us the reading of the Scriptures. May we search them with care, that we may find the pearl of great price. By thy glorious beams may we be ever guided in the way of peace. O that we could pray with the Psalmist, Make us to go in the way of thy commandments, for therein do we delight.

Sanctify to us all the afflictions of life. When providences are dark, may we rejoice that thy promises are bright; and when all is gloomy to the eye of sense, may our eye of faith be vigorous and lively, and behold with joy the exceeding and eternal weight of glory which follows the trials of the desert.

Have mercy on our children and servants before thee; give them the shield of thy grace; then will they be prepared for the ills of human life, which none can escape.

We thank thee for all our mercies, personal, family, relative, and national. When we think on what thou hast done for us all our journey through, we have reason with thy servant to acknowledge, in accents of gratitude and praise, God hath dealt graciously with us.

We bless thee for the mercies of another night, and implore the guidance of our God in discharging the duties of another day. Hear us, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

FIFTH WEEK.—SATURDAY EVENING.

LOVING GOD.

Campbell. Daventry. Rippon. Ulverston.

- 1 YES, I would love thee, blessed God!
Paternal goodness marks thy name!
Thy praises, through thy high abode,
The heavenly hosts with joy proclaim.
- 2 Freely thou gav'st thy dearest Son
For man to suffer, bleed, and die;
And bidd'st me, as a wretch undone,
For all I want on him rely.
- 3 In him thy reconciled face
With joy unspeakable I see;
And feel thy powerful, wondrous grace
Draw, and unite my soul to thee.
- 4 Whom'er my foolish, wandering heart,
Attracted by a creature's power,
Would from this blissful centre start,
Lord, fix it there to stray no more!

D. TURNER.

MATTHEW XXII.

The Resurrection.

in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.

31 But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, 32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at his doctrine.

34 But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together.

35 Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, 36 Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

38 This is the first and great commandment.

39 And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

41 While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them,

42 Saying, What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? They say unto him, The son of David.

43 He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call him Lord, saying, 44 The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

45 If David then call him Lord, how is he his son?

46 And no man was able to answer him a word; neither durst any man from that day forth ask him any more questions.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXII.—Every day of our lives we should seriously remember the resurrection day, that solemn day, when the eternal destinies of men shall be proclaimed before an assembled universe. Though human and earthly relationships shall then have no existence, yet if we are now savingly related to Jesus, as our Saviour and Husband, we shall find on that day our union to him unchanging and eternal, and also our relation to all saints as brethren endless as God's throne. Is the essence of the Gospel of Christ love? Under its divine influence may our hearts be filled with love to its author, its doctrines, and ordinances. Is the essence of Christ's law love? May the Holy Spirit enable us to receive his law with love, and from a principle of love to yield a ready evangelical obedience to all his precepts. O! may our hearts breathe love, may our lips utter the expressions of holy love, and may our lives furnish the displays and illustrate the influence of divine love! Often we have read, often we have heard of Christ's excellence, Christ's suitableness, of the graces of his humanity and of the glorious perfections of his Divinity, of the merit of his righteousness and of the efficacy of his intercession. Let us ask, Are we drawn to Jesus? Has his excellence attracted us? Has his love allured us? Have we fled to his bosom for mercy? Have we surrendered to him the throne of our hearts? Lord, enable us to say, "Jesus is MY ALL AND MY IN ALL."

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, as a family we prostrate ourselves before thy throne, at the close of another week. Thy goodness and mercy have followed and surrounded us from the moment of our birth to the present time. What reason have we to praise thy name in a song, and to magnify thee with thanksgiving!

May divine light and power accompany what we have now read. While thousands and millions of our race are left in midnight darkness, without one ray of revelation to guide their steps, we bless thee for the sacred volume of inspired wisdom, which shineth as a glorious light in a dark place. Father of mercies! in thy Word of truth and love what endless glory shines! for ever be thy name adored and praised for these celestial lines of truth, mercy, and love!

We bless God for the glorious discovery of the resurrection at the last day. May our hopes of the resurrection of our bodies be placed on the righteousness of Christ alone; and may the prospect of that blessed event deliver us from the fear of death. As an evidence that we are delivered from the sting of death, may our hearts be filled with the love of God. O divine Spirit, enkindle in our souls the sacred flame; then shall we love the Lord our God with all our heart, with all our soul, and with all our mind. Convince us that, if we are without the love of our neighbour, we are without the love of God. Impress our minds more than they have ever been, that love is the essence of the Gospel, and the fulfilling of the law. May we therefore walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us.

Thou art saying to us in thy Word, What think ye of Christ? Alas, O Jesus, we have too often thought of thee with indifference! we have looked upon thee as a root sprung out of a dry ground, that had no form or comeliness. O that each one of us could reply to this most interesting and personal question, Thou art white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand and altogether lovely.

Divine Saviour, appear in thy loveliness and grace to our dear children now before thee. Let thy love arise within them. Soon may thy love possess their souls; then will they enjoy the distinguished honour of having devoted to thy glory the golden period of their days.

May we remember with joy that to-morrow is the Sabbath of the Lord. To us, and to thousands, may it prove a day of rest. If we enter thy courts, may our minds receive from thee those feelings, views, graces, and affections—that hungering and thirsting after righteousness, without which we cannot properly wait upon thee in thine earthly sanctuary. On thy day may we be prepared to answer the kind and merciful question of our Lord: What is thy petition, and what is thy request? May our petition be, To receive thee into our hearts by faith, and to be filled with the Holy Ghost.

We commit our bodies and our souls this night to thy care, O Lord. Hear our prayers, and forgive our innumerable transgressions, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

CALLING ON GOD.

Fordingbridge. Beddington. Winchester.

L. M.

- 1 THREE will I love, O Lord, my strength,
My rock, my tower, my high defence;
Thy mighty arm shall be my trust,
For I have found salvation thence.
- 2 Death, and the terrors of the grave,
Stood round me with their dismal shade;
While floods of high temptations rose,
And made my sinking soul afraid.
- 4 In my distress I called, My God!
When I could scarce believe him mine;
He bowed his ear to my complaint,
Then did his grace appear divine.
- 5 Great were my fears, my foes were great,
Much was their strength, and more their rage;
But Christ, my Lord, is conqueror still,
In all the wars that devils wage.

WATTS, Ps. 18, p. 1.

PSALM XVIII.

*The Majesty of God.I WILL love thee, O LORD, my strength.

2 The LORD is my rock and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower.

3 I will call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies.

4 The sorrows of death compassed me, and the floods of ungodly men made me afraid.

5 The sorrows of hell compassed me about: the snares of death prevented me.

6 In my distress I called upon the LORD, and cried unto my God: he heard my voice out of his temple, and my cry came before him, even into his ears.

7 Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations also of the hills moved and were shaken, because he was wroth.

8 There went up a smoke out of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured: coals were kindled by it.

9 He bowed the heavens also, and came down: and darkness was under his feet.

10 And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind.

11 He made darkness his secret place; his pavilion round about him were dark waters and thick clouds of the skies.

12 At the brightness that was before him his thick clouds passed, hail stones and coals of fire.

13 The LORD also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave his voice; hail stones and coals of fire.

14 Yea, he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; and he shot out lightnings, and discomfited them.

15 Then the channels of waters were seen, and the foundations of the world were discovered at thy rebuke, O LORD, at the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.

16 He sent from above, he took me, he drew me out of many waters.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XVIII.—By faith the believer can look upon the divine perfections, and see his personal interest in them all. Feeling his own ignorance, he sees his interest in the divine omniscience; feeling his own folly, he sees his interest in the divine wisdom; feeling his own weakness, he sees his interest in divine power; and feeling his own helplessness, he rejoices to see his interest in God's guardianship and defence. The elements of heaven—fire, lightning, rain, snow, hail; the waves of the sea, the raging of the winds, the tempest, the whirlwind, and the earthquake, furnish awful displays of God's power, and dreadful manifestations of his justice! How delightful!—the believer can say, in the midst of the storm, and during its desolations, I am safe; my God and Saviour controls all, and directs all, for the interests of his Church, and for the glory of his majesty. He can say, when ungodly nations quake for fear, "This God is my God, and he will be my guide, even unto death." He is my refuge and my strength, who can make me afraid? As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, I am safe in an impregnable fortress, surrounded by the perfections of Jehovah.

PRAYER.

BLESSED God, what gratitude and joy should inspire our hearts, that, in thy kind providence, we have been preserved during the past night, and that our eyes have been opened to see the light of another Sabbath-day! What reason have we to love thee, O Lord, our strength! During all the days that are past, thou hast been our rock, our fortress, and our deliverer. We adore and magnify thee as our buckler, as the horn of our salvation, and our high tower. We desire as a family to call upon thee, in the name of Christ. In our past distresses we called upon thee, and thou didst hear our voice, even in thy temple. Behold, we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God.

Glorious art thou in the loud voice of thy thunder: none can thunder with a voice like thine. Who can stand before thee when thou art angry? The earth shook and trembled; the foundations of the hills were moved, they were shaken because thou wast wroth. O enable us to stand in awe of thy majesty, and sin not. Preserve us from the devouring fire of thy law as a covenant of works. O Jesus, hide us in thy righteousness; then shall we be safe. When thy thunders, O Lord, shall shake the heavens and the earth at the last day, that great and dreadful day, may we be found among the number of thy people; then shall we not fear, though the earth should be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea. O suffer us not to delay the great matter of our salvation till the shades of death surround us! As we wish to be preserved from the thunderbolts of thine anger, may we now seek, with earnestness and faith, the things which belong to our peace, before they be for ever hid from our eyes.

Give us grace, O Lord, to sanctify thy Sabbath, and ever remember thy day to keep it holy.

Preserve our dear children from Sabbath profanation, and may they not speak their own words, or seek their own sinful pleasure, on thy holy, hallowed day.

Thou hast promised, Blessed is the man that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it. May this blessing be ours. Preserve our neighbourhood and our land from the crying sin of profaning thy day. Make our rulers, our magistrates, and our merchants, examples of Sabbath sanctification to all the inferior ranks of men.

Holy Spirit, prepare us, and our relatives, and the congregation to which we belong, for the public services of thy house. Let the unction of the Holy Ghost rest on our beloved minister, and on all thy ministers, this day. May they preach from the heart to the heart. We pray for them, that utterance may be given them, that they may open their mouth boldly to make known the mystery of the Gospel. O that all nations may soon be blessed with mercy's joyful sound!

Pity the afflicted and the aged who love thy Gospel, but are unable to be present in thy house. Make the remembrance of thy Gospel and its promises refreshing to their souls.

Hasten the day when the Sabbath shall be established among all the nations of the earth. Now unto him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy; to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and for ever. Hear us, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. To Father, Son, and Spirit be endless glory. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SINCERITY.

Lutton. Athlone. Kingsbridge.

L. 2.

- 1 LORD, thou hast seen my soul sincere,
Hast made thy truth and love appear:
Before mine eyes I set thy laws,
And thou hast owned my righteous cause.
- 2 What sore temptations broke my rest!
What wars and strugglings in my breast!
But, through thy grace that reigns within,
I guard against my darling sin:
- 3 That sin which close besets me still,
That works and strives against my will;
When shall thy Spirit's sovereign power
Destroy it that it rise no more?
- 4 With an impartial hand the Lord
Deals out to mortals their reward;
The kind and faithful souls shall find
A God as faithful and as kind.

Watts, Ps. 18, p. 11.

PSALM XVIII.

God the gracious Deliverer of his People.

HE delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them which hated me: for they were too strong for me.

18 They prevented me in the day of my calamity: but the LORD was my stay.

19 He brought me forth also into a large place: he delivered me, because he delighted in me.

20 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.

21 For I have kept the ways of the LORD, and have not wickedly departed from my God.

22 For all his judgments were before me, and I did not put away his statutes from me.

23 I was also upright before him, and I kept myself from mine iniquity.

24 Therefore hath the LORD recompensed me according to my righteousness, according to the cleanness of my hands in his eyesight.

25 With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful: with an upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright;

26 With the pure thou wilt shew thyself pure; and with the froward thou wilt shew thyself froward.

27 For thou wilt save the afflicted people; but wilt bring down high looks.

28 For thou wilt light my candle: the LORD my God will enlighten my darkness.

29 For by thee I have run through a troop; and by my God have I leaped over a wall.

30 As for God, his way is perfect: the word of the LORD is tried: he is a buckler to all those that trust in him.

31 For who is God save the LORD? or who is a rock save our God?

32 It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XVIII.—Our spiritual enemies are strong; in ourselves we are weak; but clothed with the whole armour of God, fighting under the direction of our wise Captain, and leaning on the power of omnipotence, though an host encamp against us we shall put our adversaries to flight, and be more than conquerors, through HIM who loveth us. Let us pray with holy fervour, "Lord Jesus, teach our hands to war, and our fingers to fight. O teach us the good fight of faith, that we may at last lay hold on eternal life!" May we be firm in our faith and constant in our obedience; may we never depart from God and he will never depart from us! May the graces of the spirit be our treasure, the wisdom of God our light, and the power of God our shield!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thy name is great and glorious. Thou hast encouraged thy Church by taking to thyself this glorious and joyful name, THE LORD THY GOD. With the Levites in the days of Nehemiah, we would bless the Lord our God for ever and ever. Blessed be thy glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise.

We thank our God that thy gracious and merciful name has been proclaimed in our hearing this Sabbath, and in the hearing of thousands throughout the Christian world. Let the manifestations of thy mercy and love this day be followed by the salvation of multitudes. May a preached gospel be to us the savour of life unto life, and not the savour of death unto death.

O give faith to our children now in thy presence, that they may believe the Gospel report. In their early days may they, by thy gracious power, furnish pleasing evidence that they are enriched with faith in Christ.

Holy Spirit, give us earnestness and solemnity in now pleading with God. O preserve us from a spirit of hypocritical formality!

We thank thee, O Jesus, for all the deliverances thou hast wrought for us. Thou hast delivered us from strong enemies; yea, from them that hated us, and were too strong for us. Sin, Satan, and the world are powerful enemies. May each one now before thee be enabled to look on these enemies and sing, My Jesus hath redeemed me from all my enemies; for his mercy endureth for ever. O suffer not our spiritual enemies to triumph over us. Make us conquerors over them, and more than conquerors, through Christ that loved us. Amid all the calamities of life, may God be our stay; then we shall not only bear them with patience, but look upon them as preparatives for our heavenly home. Give us the pleasing token that we are the objects of thy saving love. Bring us into a large place, where we shall not be under the enslaving power of our enemies; mercifully deliver us from all their snares; then shall we conclude that thou delightest in us. O enable us, in the church and in the world, to keep clean hands, to honour our Christian profession, and never to bring a blot on the Christian name. May we not defile our garments. With David, may we keep the ways of God, and not wickedly depart from our God. O preserve us from backsliding. If any of us in thy presence are in that state, say to us, Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backsliding. Give us grace to keep thy Word constantly before us, and at no time to put thy statutes away from us; then, by thy Spirit, we shall be upright before thee, and we shall be preserved from our iniquity.

We thank the God of ordinances for thy kindness to thy ministers and people this day. Greatly comfort the afflicted and aged who are deprived of our privilege of waiting on thee in thy public courts. Make their afflictions a furnace to purify them from the dross of sin, and prepare them for their Master's use in heaven.

Mercifully watch over us, and all our friends, this night. May we lie down on our beds in the exercise of a lively faith in Christ. O teach us to repose confidence in thee as the God of salvation. May our hearts be filled with all joy and peace in believing. May all of us be begotten again to a lively hope by the resurrection of Christ from the dead. Ever may our hearts be filled with love to Jesus as the great and good Shepherd of the sheep, who laid down his life for their redemption. Hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

BLESSED DEATH OF THE RIGHTEOUS.

Funeral Thought. St. Mary's. Honour Chapel. C. M.

- 1 HEAR what the voice from heaven proclaims,
For all the pious dead;
Sweet is the savour of their names,
And soft their sleeping bed.
- 2 They die in Jesus, and are blessed;
How kind their slumbers are!
From sufferings and from sins released,
And freed from every snare.
- 3 Far from this world of toil and strife,
They're present with the Lord;
The labours of their mortal life
End in a large reward.

WATTS, 18, B. I.

GENESIS XXXV.

Death of Rachel.

AND God said unto Jacob, Arise, go up to Beth-el, and dwell there: and make there an altar unto God, that appeared unto thee when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother.

2 Then Jacob said unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments:

3 And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the oak which was by Shechem.

5 And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram, and blessed him.

6 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel.

7 And God said unto him, I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins;

8 And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

9 And God went up from him in the place where he talked with him.

10 And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

11 And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, Beth-el.

12 And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour.

13 And it came to pass, that when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not; thou shalt have this son also.

14 And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing, (for she died,) that she called his name Ben-oni:* but his father called him Benjamin.†

15 And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

16 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day.

17 And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar.

18 And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXV.—God shows the tenderness of his mercy in kindly giving his people the most satisfying tokens of his love, after they have been plunged into the lowest depths of suffering and woe. God is infinitely holy, let us therefore seek grace, that we may present our persons and our services, as sacrifices, holy and acceptable. God smiles on those families which unite in promoting family reformation, and in observing family worship. Have we received the Spirit, as a Spirit of supplication? Then our name is Israel; and our prayers shall prevail. While God in the greatness of his love makes great promises to his people, he secures them by his great faithfulness, and accomplishes them by his great power. That place is a Bethel, wherever the believer enjoys fellowship with God, even if it is a desert, a cave, or a dungeon. God has often addressed us in his providence, he has often spoken to us by his Word; but has he spoken to us savingly by his powerful Spirit? Sin has entailed great suffering on our race; and when we have been indulging the fondest expectations, how often has death come and buried in the dust our dearest hopes! May that spiritual hope be ours, which maketh not ashamed, and which is an anchor sure and steadfast, entering within the veil! Epitaphs are perishing memorials; but the righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance.

* The son of my sorrow.

† The son of my right-hand.

PRAYER.

AS Jacob delighted, O Lord, to raise altars for thy glory and thy service, while he travelled in a land of strangers, may we delight to surround the domestic altar, and worship thy great and merciful name. Thou art the Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come. Thy name alone is Jehovah, and thou art the Most High over all the earth. O Jesus, though thou art man, thou art also God, the King of kings and Lord of lords. Thou art the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort. We would now embrace thee as the Lord our God.

We thank our gracious Father that, during the last night and this morning, we have found the truth of that promise, There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come near thy dwelling.

We supplicate thy blessing on the sacred history we have now read. As Jacob continued steadfast in thy statutes, and was not put to shame, so may we adhere firmly to thy statutes and ordinances; then shalt thou not put us to shame in the presence of our enemies. O may we ever see that it is true honour to serve thee, to remain firm to our Christian profession, and fearlessly, yet wisely, to declare thy name to all around. While we are preserved as a family, let a family altar be preserved among us to the close of our days; then shall our habitation be a Bethel, the blessed residence of our Saviour and our God. O increase our love to domestic worship, and may we never be left to abandon it, or be negligent in its observance. May that apostolical advice sink deep in our hearts, and may its influence appear in our lives: Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplications for all saints.

As Jacob called upon his family to put away their strange gods, O enable us to keep ourselves from idols. Blessed Saviour, let no object take that place in our heart which is due to thee. Thou Lamb of God, may thy Spirit sanctify us as individuals and as a family. We praise thee that there is a fountain filled with blood, drawn from Immanuel's veins, to wash away the stain of sin.

When Rachel was expiring, she named her child the son of her sorrow. O let not our dear children now before thee be to us their parents the children of our sorrow! May they not bring our grey hairs with sorrow to the grave, but live the ornaments of thy Gospel, and the children of our joy.

Sanctify to us the death of relatives near and dear. Though their bodies are removed to the land of forgetfulness, may they ever live in our remembrance. May we not mourn over those who have fallen asleep in Christ, and may we comfort ourselves with the prospect of meeting them in our Father's house; but, above all, with these words, We shall be ever with the Lord. May we be under thy direction and care this day; and may we be mercifully preserved from offending thee, or dishonouring thy name. Hear our prayer, for Immanuel's sake, our glorious Surety and Saviour. Amen.

GOD OMNISCIENT.

Orson Chapel. London. Canterbury.

C. M.

- 1 GOD is a Spirit just and wise,
Ho sees our inmost mind;
In vain to heaven we raise our orisons,
And leave our souls behind.
- 2 Nothing but truth before his throne
With honour can appear;
The painted hypocrites are known
Through the disguise they wear.
- 3 Their lifted eyes salute the skies,
Their bending knees the ground;
But God abhors the sacrifice
Where not the heart is found.

Watts, 186, B. 1.

MATTHEW XXIII.

The wicked Pharisees.

- THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,
2 Saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat:
3 All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say and do not.
- 4 For they bind heavy burdens, and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.
- 5 But all their works they do for to be seen of men; they make broad their phylacterics, and enlarge the borders of their garments,
- 6 And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues,
- 7 And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.
- 8 But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.
- 9 And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven.
- 10 Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master,
even Christ.
- 11 But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.
- 12 And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted.
- 13 But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites!
for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in.
- 14 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayer: therefore ye shall receive the greater condemnation.
- 15 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of hell than yourselves.
- 16 Woe unto you, ye blind guides, which say, Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is a debtor!
- 17 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold?
- 18 And, Whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is guilty.
- 19 Ye fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift?
- 20 Whoso therefore shall swear by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon.
- 23 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint, and anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

- 24 Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXIII.—Though the humanity of Christ is in heaven, he is present on earth in his Divinity, and still speaks to the understanding, the heart, and the consciences of men; instrumentally by his Word, and effectually by his Spirit. How affecting it is to see ungodly men, animated by pride and ambition, usurping sacred offices in the Church, and pretending to show others the way to heaven, while they, alas! are rushing headlong to perdition! "Lord, remove such men from their office, or regenerate their hearts and make them the faithful heralds of the cross!" Habitual sinning, under the cloak of religion, is connected with the greatest aggravation, proves the heart to be in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity, and is the frightful harbinger of everlasting woe! God seeks the worship of the heart, and he rejects with abhorrence the most expensive services unaccompanied with inward sincerity.

PRAYER.

O LORD, with humility, thankfulness, and praise, we would acknowledge and adore thee. Thou art the everlasting God, the Creator of the ends of the earth; thou art the God of the spirits of all flesh, and our Father who art in heaven. Thou art the hearer of prayer, who lookest down from heaven, and beholdest all the children of men, while thine eye is more especially directed toward them that fear thee, and who hope in thy mercy.

We present our thanks for the mercies and comforts of another day. Thou openest thine hand liberally, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. Soften our hearts, and may they be deeply and savingly impressed with a sense of thine abundant and unmerited kindness.

We implore thy gracious protection this night. We are encouraged by thy promise to lift up our eyes to thee for the blessing of rest and refreshing sleep: for thou hast said, The Lord is nigh unto all that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth.

We desire, O Lord our God, whose holiness is unspotted, even in whose sight the heavens are not clean, to be humbled in the dust because of our sinfulness and rebellion. The portion of Scripture we have now read presents before us, as in a glass, the heinous offences with which we are chargeable. We have sinned by our example; sometimes we have exhibited an actual example of sin, and have neglected to show an example of godliness, to those around us. We have manifested great indolence in thy service, blessed Saviour, and have considered thine easy yoke grievous, and thy light burden heavy. We plead forgiveness, through our Saviour's blood. We need great mercy to pardon our great and aggravated sins. We rejoice that in Christ there is great merit, and in thee great mercy. We are encouraged to seek forgiveness, for God is in Christ reconciling a guilty world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them.

Holy Spirit, may we know experimental religion in our heart, and display it in our lives. O that we were enabled to show in our example the graces of the spirit!

May our dear children have constantly before their eyes that example of Christian morality which will sweetly lead them into the practice of godliness.

Preserve us from indolence in the service of our God, and may we ever look upon Christ's yoke as easy, and his burden as light. Lord, deliver us from the sin of pride, remembering that a high look is an abomination to the Lord. O for the humility of the Gospel, rejoicing in this, that God delights to dwell with those who are of an humble and contrite heart, and who tremble at thy word! To our dying day may we practice judgment, mercy, and faith. Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Divine Mediator. Amen.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

Asburn. Lydia. Broomgrove.

C. H.

- 1 LO! what an entertaining sight
Are brethren that agree,
Brethren, whose cheerful hearts unite
In bands of piety.
- 2 When streams of love from Christ the spring
Descend to every soul,
And heavenly peace, with balmy wing,
Shades and bedews the whole.
- 3 'T is like the oil, divinely sweet,
On Aaron's reverend head;
Tho' trickling drops perfumed his feet,
And o'er his garments spread.

Watts, Ps. 133.

GENESIS XXXVII.

Joseph's Dream.

AND Jacob dwelt in the land whereto his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

2 These are the generations of Jacob: Joseph being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives: and Joseph brought unto his father their evil report.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age: and he made him a coat of many colours.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

5 And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 For, behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it to his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more; and, behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?

11 And his brethren envied him; but his father observed the saying.

12 And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him, Here am I.

14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 And a certain man found him, and, behold, he was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence; for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXVII.—Do we look on this life as a pilgrimage, and do we consider ourselves as pilgrims, hoping for a city which hath foundations, and longing for that rest which remains for the people of God? In all ages, the ungodly have viewed the righteous with malicious envy; and the seed of the serpent have shown the greatest enmity against the seed of the woman. If we are the beloved of God we can defy our spiritual enemies, and rest secure upon the bosom of our Saviour's love. The youthful, pious, and prophetic Joseph was faithful in proclaiming divine and inspired communications, though it exposed him to hatred, reproach, and suffering; and our Saviour, whom Joseph typified, faithfully proclaimed his Father's will to a faithless and wicked generation, though it exposed him to suffering, and brought upon him the agonies of crucifixion. Joseph faithfully obeyed his father's laws, and thus prefigured Jesus, who said, "To do thy will I take delight; yea, thy law is within my heart." May we breathe our Saviour's spirit, who showed love for hatred, who came to seek and to save those who, like Joseph's brethren, sought his life. May we be faithful in the face of every danger; may we be faithful, even unto death. Then we shall receive at last, from our Father's hand, a crown of life, the glory of which shall never fade! Amen, and amen.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our Father and our God, thou art the fountain of all being, from whom angels and men have derived their existence. As thou art the fountain of being, thou art the source of happiness. With thee is the fountain of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right-hand are pleasures for evermore.

Alas, how much we have degenerated from our original existence! We have lost our beauty, our glory, and our perfection. The stately palace which was built for the residence of God has become a mass of frightful ruins, where the loathsome reptiles of corruption are found to prevail. This deplorable situation had for ever remained, hadst thou not most graciously interposed. In thy boundless mercy thou didst contrive a plan by which Satan's purposes might be overturned, and wretched, sinful, fallen man be again restored to the favour and image of his God. O Lord, thou didst remember us in our low estate; for thy mercy endureth for ever.

Holy Spirit, let the ordinance of reading thy Word be accompanied and followed by thy gracious and divine light.

Never let us forget that we are pilgrims and sojourners on earth, as all our fathers were. Suffer us not to make this world our home. While we praise thee for domestic and relative comfort, and while we would feel thankful for all the peace we enjoy in this our earthly home, may our hearts be with Christ above, in the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Let harmony and peace always reign in the midst of us as a family. We have now read of the envy and jealousy which prevailed even in the family of Jacob thy servant: O suffer not these vile and hateful passions to rise up to our injury or thy dishonour.

As Joseph went to seek his brethren in a distant wilderness, we praise thee, O Jesus, that thou didst come to our distant world, to seek and save that which was lost.

Bless the children and domestics of our family with kind and affectionate dispositions, that they may love one another with pure hearts fervently.

Refreshed and invigorated by the rest and sleep of another night, we present before thee the sacrifice of thanksgivings. May we enter upon the duties of the day under the influence of a loving and thankful heart; then shall we glorify thy name, and live as thy followers and children. We would dedicate ourselves, soul and body, to thee, our God and Saviour. Preserve us from the snares and temptations which may present themselves before us this day. Holy Spirit, we would commit ourselves to thy guidance; then our goings shall be held up, and sin will not be allowed to prevail. Mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Christ's sake. Amen.

SAINTS JOYFUL IN GOD.

Brook Street. Cambridge New. Evans'.

C. M.

- 1 SAINTS should be joyful in their King,
Even on a dying bed;
And like the souls in glory sing,
For God shall raise the dead.
- 2 Then his high praise shall fill their tongues,
Their hands shall wield the sword;
And vengeance shall attend their songs,
The vengeance of the Lord.
- 3 When Christ his judgment-seat ascends,
And bids the world appear,
Thrones are prepared for all his friends,
Who humbly loved him here.
- 4 Then shall they rule with iron rod
Nations that dared rebel;
And join the sentence of their God
On tyrants doomed to hell.

WATTS, Ps. 149.

MATTHEW XXIII.

Destruction of Jerusalem foretold.

WOE unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess.

26 Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also.

27 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness.

28 Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous.

30 And say, If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.

31 Wherefore ye be witnesses unto yourselves, that ye are the children of them which killed the prophets.

32 Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers.

33 Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?

34 Wherefore, behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify: and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city:

35 That upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.

36 Verily I say unto you, All these things shall come upon this generation.

37 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!

38 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate.

39 For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXIII.—Miserable and perilous is the state of those who indulge the vilest passions, while they outwardly and loudly profess submission to the divine will, and obedience to the divine law. May it be our most earnest desire that we may be delivered from spiritual blindness, that we may be preserved from the infatuating and fatal delusions of sin, that our souls be beautified with inward grace, and our lives with outward holiness. The ocean's bed filled with water is a correct emblem of the unrenewed heart, filled with every hateful abomination. "Lord, renew our hearts!" How grievous it is to see the wicked, the hypocritical, and profane, filling up their cup of iniquity, and provoking God to fill up the cup of his merited indignation and wrath! The desperate wickedness of the human heart has never been so fully and maliciously displayed as by the crucifixion of Christ, and the murder of his loving and faithful ambassadors. Who can conceive the misery of those persecuting murderers in the world of spirits, who died impenitent, under such a load of unpardoned guilt! May the miserable end of those who nailed Jesus to the cross teach us, without delay, to flee from the wrath to come!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, thou art a God of love, whose goodness and mercy flow to sinful, wretched man through the channel of our dear Redeemer's blood. He that dwelleth in love dwelleth in thee. O that we may know and believe the love thou hast to us! Blessed shall we be if we are enabled on good grounds to say, We love him, because he first loved us, and sent his only-begotten Son to be a propitiation for our sins, that we might live through him.

Holy Spirit, teach us now to present our evening prayer with humility, earnestness, and faith. O Lord, we come to thy throne of grace in the way thou hast graciously appointed, through the mediation of thy well-beloved Son. O that our prayer may come up before thee as incense, and the lifting up of our hands as the evening sacrifice.

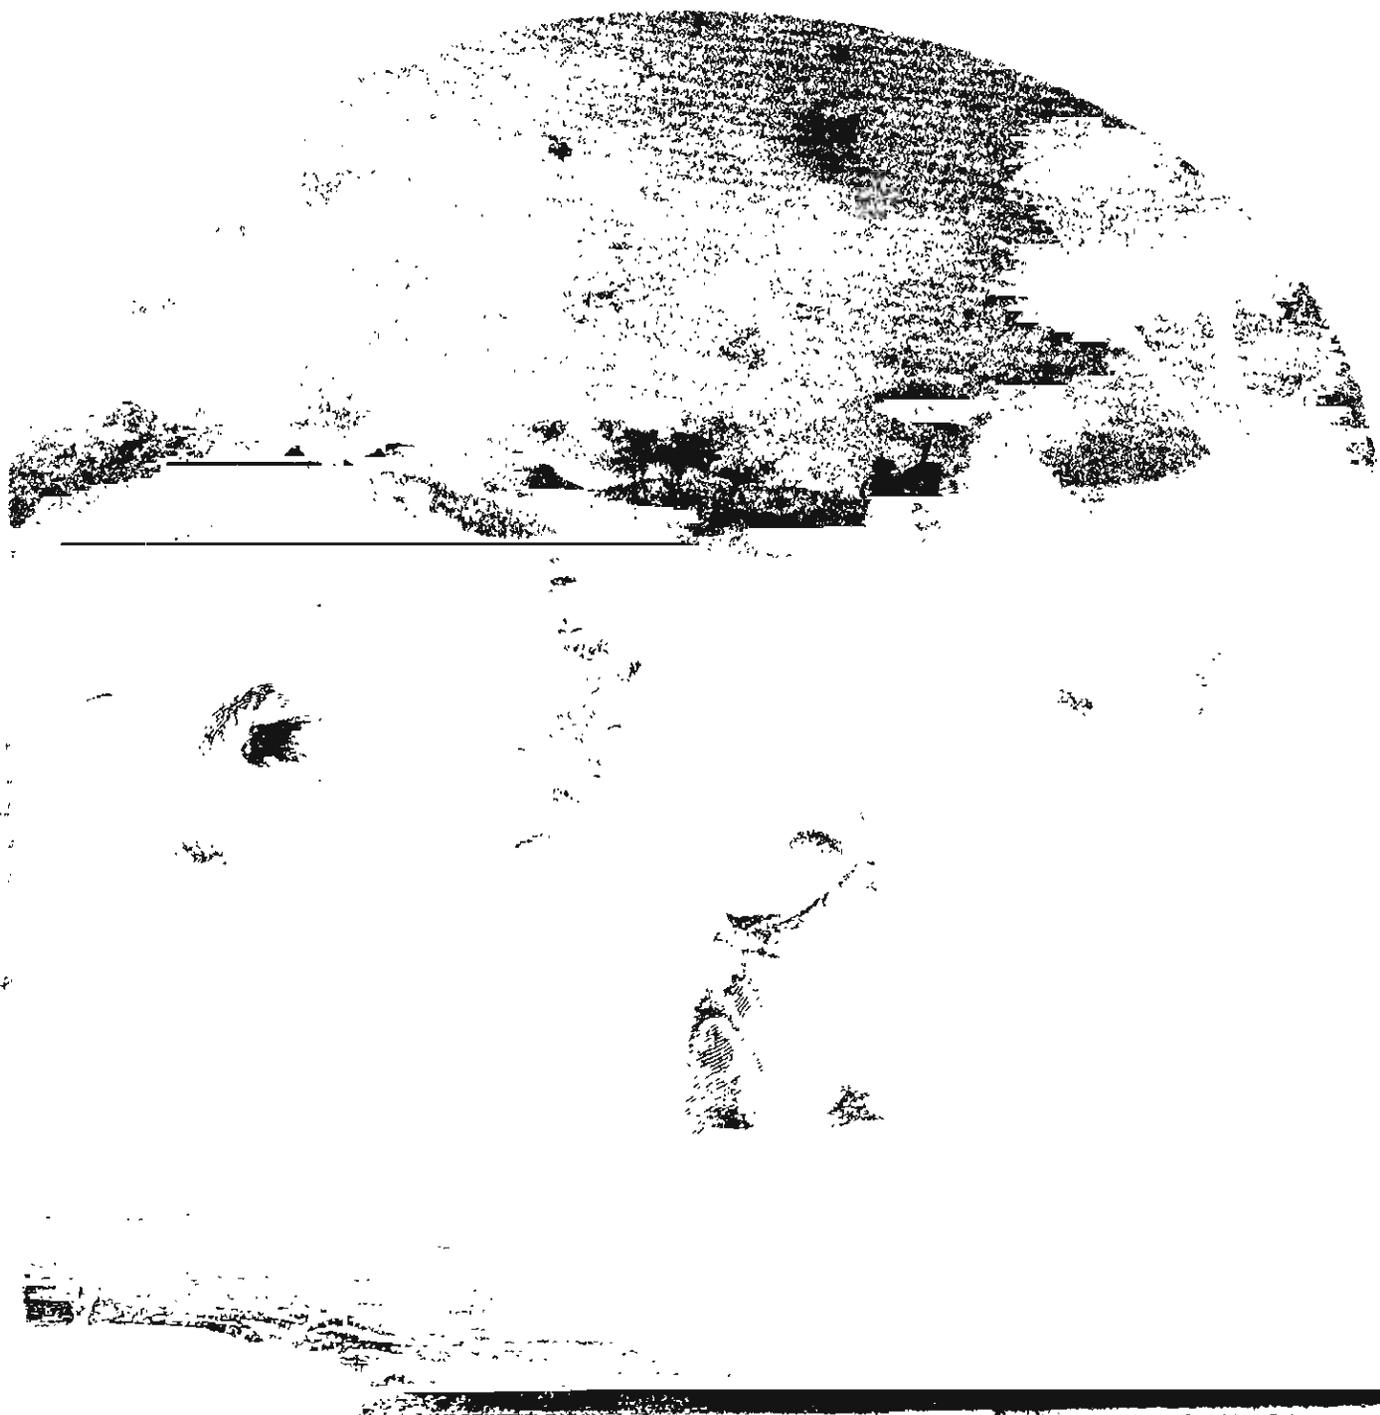

Holy and heart-searching God, the Word we have now read presents our sins before us; teach us with humility and genuine sincerity to confess our sins. How often have we looked more to external appearances in religion than to that inward piety which God alone can accept! O Lord, forgive this our sin, and remember it not against us. What excesses have often marked our conduct—excessive anger, excessive pride, excessive carnality, excessive love of the world, and all this, while we professed to love thee! Mercifully forgive and wash away these foul and humbling sins. We have reason to confess our spiritual blindness and ignorance and folly. Alas, how little do we know of God and Christ, and the Divine Spirit, and our own souls, and the way of salvation through a Saviour's merit! O remove our ignorance by the power of the Holy Ghost. And with what hypocrisy and formality we have been chargeable! We have exhibited the outward sanctity of religion, while our hearts and affections have been on the mountains of vanity. We have been like painted sepulchres, fair without, but within full of everything offensive to thy pure, omniscient eye. O lay not this sin to our charge, and teach us to fear and serve the Lord in sincerity, that we may be sincere and without offence until the day of Christ.

Look down graciously upon the children of our family. As new-born babes, may they desire the sincere-milk of the Word, that they may live thereby.

We thank our God for the preservation afforded us during another day, and that the hand of affliction or of death has not prevented us from assembling in comfort and peace around the domestic altar.

The shadows of another evening are now beginning to stretch themselves over us. Blessed Saviour, we commend ourselves to thy care. As a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, so do thou gather us, and cover us with the wings of thy watchful care. Let all our petitions, confessions, and thanksgivings be accepted, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Now to him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of his glory, with exceeding joy; to the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

Printed by Overbeck.

Eng.<sup>d</sup> by C. Armstrong.

SANCTIFIED AFFLICTION.

Claremont, Shortwood, Compassion.

S. M.

- 1 HOW gracious and how wise
Is our chastising God!
And O how rich the blessings are
Which blossom from his rod!
- 2 He lifts it up on high,
With pity in his heart,
That every stroke his children feel
May grace and peace impart.
- 3 Instructed thus they bow,
And own his sovereign sway:
They turn their erring footsteps back
To his forsaken way.

DODDRIDGE.

GENESIS XXXVII.

Joseph sold into Egypt.

AND when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, this dreamer cometh.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

21 And Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood; but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they ~~cast~~ Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many colours that was on him.

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 And they sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes, and looked, and behold, a company of Ishmaelites came from Gilead, with their camels bearing spicery and balm and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood?

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him; for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren were content.

28 Then there passed by Midianites, merchant men: and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for twenty pieces of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

29 And Reuben returned unto the pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit: and he rent his clothes.

30 And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child is not; and I, whither shall I go?

31 And they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood.

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; and an evil beast hath devoured him: Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

34 And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XXXVII.—Scarcely had our Saviour appeared on earth, when cruel plots were laid to take away his precious life. Falsehoods may conceal from man the authors of bloody deeds, which the thickest veils cannot conceal from the eye of God. Mercy, when contrasted with cruelty, shines forth in all the lustre of celestial beauty. Blessed are they who are clothed with the costly robe of a Redeemer's righteousness, for they possess a garment the beauty of which can never be defaced, and of which they can never be deprived. While it is humiliating to think of malignant and insatiable passions of men, it is delightful to know that they are under the control of God, who can instantly lay upon them the restraints of his irresistible omnipotence. Let children ardently cultivate fraternal love, when they think of the cruelty of Jacob's sons to their brother Joseph; and let them earnestly cultivate filial affection, when they reflect on the cruelty of Joseph's brethren to their aged father. Children of pious parents should never forget their loving parents' tears, and their loving parents' prayers.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, breathe upon us thine influences, that we may present our morning prayer in faith, and under a deep impression of the majesty of God, and our own insignificance, unworthiness, and sinfulness.

O Lord our God, what a contrast is presented by the cruelty of man and thy mercy! Thou delightest in mercy, but depraved man takes pleasure in cruelty and works of darkness. We meditate with joy on thy mercy, flowing to man through the blessed channel of our Saviour's righteousness. When thou hidest thy face from thy people, thy mercy never ceases, thy love is strong as ever. Thy displeasure with thy people is short-lived, but thy mercy shall be built up for ever. O suffer us not to imagine that, when thy face is concealed by the clouds of our suffering, we are abandoned or cast off. We praise thee that thou hast said, For a small moment have I forsaken thee, but with great mercies will I gather thee. In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment, but with everlasting loving-kindness will I have mercy upon thee.

Lord, animate our hearts with merciful dispositions. O that we were merciful as our Father in heaven is merciful. May the cruelty of Joseph's brethren fill us with an abhorrence of cruelty and a love of mercy. Let that divine promise be applicable to us in all its force, and in all its richness, Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

We would mourn over sin, which has corrupted and changed the nature of men, and which in some cases has filled the bosoms of brothers with dispositions more ferocious than the viper, and more cruel than the ostrich.

Blessed Jesus, what were the cruelties shown to Joseph by his brethren, compared to the cruelties shown to thee by the Jews, thy brethren after the flesh! When thou camest unto thine own, thine own would not receive thee. Thou didst appear among the children of men as their friend, their benefactor, and their Saviour, and they rewarded thee by forming a conspiracy to take away thy life! Thou wast despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. Men hid their faces from thee, and those who should have esteemed thee despised thee.

Let the pit into which Joseph was cast remind our dear children of the pit of a natural state. O divine Spirit, take them out of that pit of sin, guilt, and misery, and give them the spiritual, joyful, and exalted liberty of the sons of God.

What are we, O Jesus, that for us thou didst willingly lie down in the pit of the grave? Praise to thy name, that thou hast made the grave of the people a bed of rest, from which they shall arise on the morning of the resurrection to enjoy the blessedness of a heavenly and eternal day.

We thank our God for the mercies of the past night. Every day we would bless thee, and praise thy name for ever and ever. Give us grace to live to thy glory this day; then shall our lives be a foretaste of heavenly joys.

We lift up our eyes to thee for pardon through our Saviour's blood, and in his name implore the answer of our prayers. Glory to the Father, Son, and Spirit, for ever and ever. Amen.

SINNERS ENTREATED.

Malanchton. Monmouth. Tooley Street.

L. M.

- 1 HASTEN, O sinner, to be wise,
And stay not for the morrow's sun;
The longer wisdom you despise,
The harder is she to be won.
- 2 O hasten, mercy to implore,
And stay not for the morrow's sun,
For fear thy season should be o'er
Before this evening's stage be run.
- 3 O hasten, sinner, to return,
And stay not for the morrow's sun,
For fear thy lamp should fail to burn
Before the needful work is done.

F. W. COTT.

MATTHEW XXIV.

Destruction of the Temple.

AND Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple.

2 And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?

4 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you.

5 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

6 And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places.

8 All these are the beginning of sorrows.

9 Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake.

10 And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another.

11 And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many.

12 And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold.

13 But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

14 And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.

15 When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand:)

16 Then let them which be in Judæa flee into the mountains:

17 Let him which is on the housetop not come down to take any thing out of his house:

18 Neither let him which is in the field return back to take his clothes.

19 And woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days!

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXIV.—The splendid and gorgeous Levitical temples are no more. Let us rejoice that there is a "house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." The light and glory of the ancient holy temples are extinguished; but in the celestial temple the Sun of glory shall no more go down, for God and the Lamb are its everlasting light. Satan is the father of liars; his children resemble him in their falsehood; he is the crooked serpent, and his children resemble him in their enmity against the saints, and in their cruelty and persecutions. The flood of waters continued for nearly one year:—alas, the flood of sin has overspread the earth for many thousands of years! May Divine love reign in our bosoms; then we shall have the delightful evidence that we are delivered from sin's power, and that we shall at last reach the heavenly kingdom. Sin has exposed us to much danger, but Jesus is our glorious refuge; he is "a hiding-place from the winds, and a covert from the tempest."

PRAYER.

WE bless and praise our God, whose kind providence has watched over us during the past day, and has now assembled us in one of the most sacred and hallowed spots on earth, even around the domestic altar. O that we may always consider it as a little heaven here below, and esteem a day spent in thy courts better than a thousand anywhere else!

Triune Jehovah, in the name of our dear Redeemer and Divine Mediator we would adore thee. Thou art the Lord our God, the Holy One, into whose presence no unclean thing should enter. We are unclean, and yet we venture into thy presence, through the peace-speaking blood of Christ. Thou wilt not contend for ever, neither wilt thou be always wroth; thou hast no pleasure in the death of him that dieth; thou keepest mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity, transgressions, and sin.

We are sinners by nature and practice; we have offended much, and have offended long; we have sinned against great privileges, great light, and great love. O Lord, have mercy upon us, and forgive us, through the boundless merit of the blood of Christ, which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. O Jesus, Abel's blood cried to heaven for vengeance, but thy blood cries to heaven for pardon.

Holy Spirit, open the eyes of our dear children to see that they are sinners, and therefore that they need a Saviour to take their sins away. Soon may they be instructed to shed the penitential tear, and raise the penitential prayer.

O Lord, we have abundant reason to bless thee for innumerable mercies. We thank thee that we were created rational beings, and not formed among the brutal tribes. We thank thee for kind, valuable, and pious friends. We praise thee for the Bible and the ordinances of religion. We bless thee for the Gospel and the proclamations of mercy; but, above all, for Christ, the best friend of fallen man, the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person.

Holy and blessed Spirit, bless to us the affecting truths we have now read. Render them the powerful means of begetting in our souls an unconquerable love of holiness and hatred of sin. We would admire, O Jesus, the displays we have now read of thine omniscience and of thy divinity, in so clearly depicting the calamities which should befall the Jewish church and nation for their long-continued iniquities. We thank thee for thy kindness to us as a nation, in not bringing upon us national judgments for our aggravated national sins.

We bless thee for the promise, that the Gospel shall be preached in all nations. O hasten that blessed, that glorious day. Prepare us for that solemn day when the end of the world shall come, when all its kingdoms and thrones shall be destroyed, when earthly glory shall be put out in eternal darkness, and when the riches and pleasures of time shall for ever perish. O Jesus, hide us in the shadow of thy wings, and let thy favour surround us as a shield.

We would lie down on our beds this night, relying on the care of a special Providence. Hear our prayer and forgive our sins for Immanuel's sake, our only Saviour. Amen.

WELCOMING THE CROSS.

Lenten. Bowles. Duke Street. Newport.

7b.

- 1 THIS my happiness below
Not to live without the cross;
But the Saviour's power to know,
Sanctifying every loss:
- 2 Trials must and will befall;
But—with humble faith to see
Love inscribed upon them all—
This is happiness to me.
- 3 Trials make the promise sweet,
Trials give new life to prayer;
Trials bring me to his feet,—
Lay me low, and keep me there.

COWPER.

GENESIS XXXIX.

Joseph resisting Temptation.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt; and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmeelites, which had brought him down thither.

2 And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

3 And his master saw that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the Lord was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand; and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat. And Joseph was a goodly person, and well favoured.

In the sequel of this chapter we have an account of Joseph's triumphant deliverance from a powerful temptation.

Promises to those who are tempted; and blessed are they who pray for their fulfilment.

For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone. Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet. Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will set him on high, because he hath known my name. He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him. With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.—PSALM XCI. 11—16.

For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.—ROM. VI. 14.

And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.—ROM. XVI. 20.

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.—1 COR. X. 13.

And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.—2 COR. XII. 9.

REMEDIATIONS UPON GEN. XXXIX.—It is the fixed privilege of believers that in all their wanderings they are never without God's presence, fellowship, guidance, protection, and smiles. In their journeyings to their heavenly home, they have sometimes received comforts where they least expected; and even in the night of adversity, have been surprised with glimpses of the sun of prosperity. Temptations accompany prosperity, which never can be resisted without divine grace; and great dangers are generally near, from which the greatest and most experienced saint can only be protected by divine power. Grace shines with peculiar loveliness and lustre in the young, who withstand temptation the moment it is presented, who refuse to listen to the ensnaring allurements of the tempter's voice, and who flee youthful lusts, from a hatred of sin, and from a fear of the offence which it gives to God, and the injury it gives to man. Unhallowed, unlawful affection, is not far removed from passions of malignity, which breathe cruelty and death. "Lord help us with thy powerful hand!"

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, thou art the Holy One of Israel; thou art of purer eyes than to look upon iniquity. Before thy glory the moon refuseth to shine; yea, compared with thine holiness the very stars are not clean in thy sight: how much less man, that is a worm; and the son of man, who is but a worm!

We have just reason to mourn in dust and in ashes, on account of the moral impurity and deformity of our nature. When we look to our understanding, our will, our affections, our desires, our conversation, and our lives, we have reason to acknowledge that we are altogether an unclean thing. Grant that the vile depravity of Joseph's tempter may remind us of our native corruption, which might have broken out into excesses far more dreadful, if thy restraining grace had not prevented. We would earnestly supplicate thy renewing as well as thy restraining grace. Let the love of holiness and the love of Christ reign supreme in our hearts. May Christ dwell in our hearts by faith, that we, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that we might be filled with all the fulness of God.

Mercifully prepare us for all the events of providence which are before us in the journey of life. If we should be brought, like Joseph, to endure humiliating and unexpected sufferings, like him may we have the presence of God, which will lighten the heaviest burden, sweeten the bitterest cup, and brighten the darkest sky. Blessed Jesus, when we are passing through the floods of tribulation, and when the billows of affliction are threatening to overwhelm us, O whisper consolation, and graciously support our fainting soul.

Take the dear children of our family, and give them the armour of grace; then will they resemble the noble piety of Joseph, and say to every tempter, How can I do this great wickedness, and sin against my God? Holy Spirit, instruct each one of them to offer up this prayer with earnestness and faith.

As a family we would fervently pray for holiness. Sanctify us through thy truth; thy word is truth. Take our vile, polluted hearts, and adorn them with the beauties of holiness. Convince us that, if we are not in some measure sanctified, we are not justified. Alas, we have long lain among the pots of sin! make us by thy grace like the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold.

Lord, have mercy on our aged friends, and be thou the staff of their old age. Have mercy on our poor friends, and make them rich in grace. Have mercy on our graceless friends, and pluck them as brands out of the burning.

We acknowledge thine undeserved kindness during the last night, and humbly implore thy blessing to attend us this day. Preserve us from the snares of the world and the corruptions of our heart, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

LAST DAY.

Timbury. Meroy Seat. Dulwich. Sholden.

L. M.

- 1 THE day of wrath, that dreadful day,
When heaven and earth shall pass away;
What power shall be the sinner's stay?
How shall he meet that dreadful day?
- 2 When, shrivelling like a parched scroll,
The flaming heavens together roll;
When louder yet, and yet more dread,
Swells the high trump that wakes the dead!
- 3 O! on that day, that wrathful day,
When man to judgment wakes from clay,
Be thou the trembling sinner's stay,
Though heaven and earth shall pass away!

SIR W. SCOTT.

MATTHEW XXIV.

The last Day.

AND then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.

31 And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

36 But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only.

37 But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

38 For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, 39 And knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

40 Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

41 Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

42 Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

43 But know this, that if the goodman of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up.

44 Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh.

45 Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?

46 Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

47 Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods.

48 But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming;

49 And shall begin to smite his fellowservants, and to eat and drink with the drunken;

50 The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,

51 And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXIV.—That will be a day of unspeakable joy and triumph to the righteous, when the universal church shall be elevated to the right-hand of Jesus the Judge of all. If we are impressed with the certainty of the judgment-day, preparation for the coming of Christ will be to us of the greatest urgency and importance. Great will be the surprise, and overwhelming the confusion of those, who shall be found unprepared when the Judge of all appears. May we be clothed in the robe of a Redeemer's righteousness, and may we have the graces of the Spirit in lively exercise, then we shall hail the approach of the Judge, and exclaim with longing, joyful hearts, "Even so, come Lord Jesus!" If we are Christ's loving children, we are his faithful servants, yielding obedience from a principle of love, impressed with the sensible conviction of being constantly under the eye of his omniscience, desirous of doing what is well-pleasing in his sight, and thus waiting for his appearance. Unspeakable is the danger of those who, in defiance of the awful realities of a judgment-day, lead lives of licentiousness and impiety!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, breathe upon us the Holy Ghost. We cannot order our thoughts, our petitions, our feelings, or expressions aright, without the gracious influence and direction of thy Holy Spirit. Thou gavest thy Spirit to thy people in the wilderness to instruct them, and thou didst not withhold manna from their mouth. O give thy spirit to us, that we may be instructed; and feed our souls with Christ and his blessings, the true bread, the divine manna, which came down from heaven, of which if a man eat he shall live for ever. As a family may we be a spiritual garden of grace; then shall we pray, Blow upon thy garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Holy Spirit, breathe upon us thy divine and sacred influences; then shall our souls resemble a garden enriched with flowers of greatest loveliness, exhaling perfume of greatest sweetness. O inspire us with thy grace. Lord, we would seek grace in preference to all earthly treasures.

O Lord, how infinitely worthy art thou to be praised and adored! Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, honour, and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. We praise thee for all the comforts of life—for reason, health, domestic enjoyment, tranquillity, and peace, which thou hast continued with us during another day. Thou hast fulfilled in our experience that promise, Thy bread shall be given thee, and thy water shall be sure. Above all, we bless thee for continuing with us every day Jesus, thine unspeakable gift, and the glorious lamp of Gospel truth. Let the light of this blessed lamp shine around us, and shine within us, till we arrive at that glorious heaven where the sun of thy people shall no more go down.

Let each one of us be possessed of thy salvation. May the certainty of death, and the solemnities of the judgment-day, arouse our minds to seek instantly, and without delay, the things which belong to our eternal peace.

Deliver our dear children from the thoughtlessness and folly incident to youthful days, and teach them seriously to reflect on death, judgment, and eternity. O let a work of grace be begun within them, if it is not yet commenced; then they will be prepared to meet their God, whether they die in early life, or be removed when the shades of old age surround them.

Impress our minds with the prospects of the last day. Though tribes of ungodly men shall mourn, when they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory, may that event fill our mind with ecstasies of triumphant joy. When thine angels shall be sent to the four winds of heaven, with a great sound of a trumpet, may we be among the elect who shall be gathered from one end of the earth unto the other: may we be watching and ready for that solemn event. Suffer none of us to resemble the careless servant, who prepared not for the coming of his lord; who was cut asunder, and had his portion appointed him with hypocrites, where there is weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth.

May thy kind providence watch over us this night. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayer, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

VANITY OF EARTHLY THINGS.

Green's Hundred. Portugal. Meditation.

L. M.

- 1 WHAT are possessions, fame, and power,
The boasted splendour of the great?
What gold, which dazzled eyes adore,
And seek with endless toils and sweat?
- 2 Express their charms, declare their use,
That we their merit may desery:
Tell us what good they can produce,
Or what important wants supply.
- 3 If, wounded with a sense of sin,
To them for pardon should we pray?
Will they restore our peace within,
And wash our guilty stains away?

BLACKMORE.

GENESIS XL.

Pharaoh's Butler and Baker.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them: and they continued a season in ward.

5 And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream, the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and, behold, they were sad.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore look ye so sadly to day?

8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, behold a vine was before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes:

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days:

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh lift up thine head, and restore thee unto thy place: and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

14 But think on me when it shall be well with thee, and show kindness I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house:

15 For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews: and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

20 And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants: and he lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XL.—If it is so dangerous to offend an earthly sovereign, how awfully perilous must be the state of those who daringly live in a course of determined and constant rebellion against the King of kings! Earthly princes can cast their offenders into prisons and dungeons, from which deliverance is possible; but God can cast impenitent offenders into the unfathomable dungeons of Tophet, from which escape is impossible. How sad and gloomy is the situation of many who are now confined within the walls of gloomy earthly prisons; but how inconceivable the woe, how overwhelming the gloom of those who have impenitently resisted the invitations of mercy and the offers of grace, and who have plunged themselves, by their own act and deed, into those caverns of perdition where the darkness of despair eternally reigns! Our blessed Surety was cast into the prison of death and the grave. For sins not his own he was shut up within the prison of the tomb. But the great Surety having paid our debt, came from prison and from judgment the almighty Conqueror of death and the grave, and who shall declare his generation?

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS and merciful Father, we have enjoyed thy providential care during another night, for which we praise thee. We desire to address thee in the language of the Psalmist—O that we could address thee with the humility, faith, and fervour which inspired the Psalmist's heart!—O Lord, thou hast searched us, and known us. Thou knowest our down-sitting and our uprising; thou understandest our thoughts afar off. Thou compassest our path, and our lying down, and art acquainted with all our ways. For there is not a word on our tongue, but lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether. Thou hast beset us behind and before, and laid thine hand upon us. Such knowledge is too wonderful for us, it is high—we cannot attain it.

Holy Spirit, by thy teaching may we learn lessons of wisdom, humility, and piety, from the portion of the sacred volume we have now been permitted to consult. May the historical details which it furnishes of the vanity and uncertainty of earthly rank and greatness and power, lead us to look above this changing world, and fix our hearts on better and nobler objects, and thus pray with thine inspired servants: Incline our heart unto thy testimonies, and not unto covetousness. Turn our eyes away from beholding vanity, and quicken thou us in thy way.

What reason have we to acknowledge with shame and grief our worldly-mindedness and carnal affections! We have, times without number, loved the creature in the place of Christ; we have loved the creature more than Christ. Holy Spirit, enable us by thy gracious and promised power to set our affections on things above, where Christ sitteth at God's right-hand. Above all, let our hearts be placed on Christ. In thy person as God-man, in thine offices of prophet, priest, and king, in all thine endearing relations of father, physician, and friend, may we love thee with a superlative affection. May we testify that our affection is genuine and fervent, by a life of uniform and consistent piety.

Holy Spirit, give us the unspeakable joy of witnessing in our children the sacred flame of love to Christ. Let their affection be taken from vanity and lies, and let them be placed on him who has said, I love them that love me, and they who seek me early shall find me.

Preserve us, O Lord, from trusting in man. Teach us how uncertain and changeable is the affection of the great. Their favour, like themselves, is a fading flower. Thy favour is life, and it is life that never dies; it is like thyself, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. Teach us therefore by thy grace to place all our confidence in thee. May we derive unspeakable encouragement from thy Word: They that trust in the Lord are like Mount Zion, that cannot be removed, but abideth for ever.

We supplicate the guidance and blessing of our God in all the engagements of this day. Forgive our numerous and aggravated sins, and hear our feeble prayers, for the sake of our blessed Surety and Saviour. Amen.

THE MIDNIGHT CRY.

Bridge Street. Resurrection. Grove.

P. M.

- 1 YE virgin souls, arise!
With all the dead awake,
Unto salvation wise,
Oil in your vessels take
Upstarting at the midnight cry,
Behold your heavenly Bridegroom nigh
- 2 Ho comes, he comes to call
The nations to his bar,
And take to glory all
Who meet for glory are:
Make ready for your free reward;
Go forth with joy to meet your Lord.
- 3 Go, meet him in the sky,
Your overlasting friend!
Your head to glorify,
With all his saints ascend:
Ye pure in heart, obtain the grace
To see, without a veil, his face.

ANON.

MATTHEW XXV.

The Parable of the Virgins.

THEN shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

- 2 And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.
- 3 They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them.
- 4 But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.
- 5 While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.
- 6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.
- 7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.
- 8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out.
- 9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.
- 10 And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.
- 11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.
- 12 But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.
- 13 Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.
- 14 For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods.
- 15 And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey.
- 16 Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.
- 17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.
- 18 But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.
- 19 After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXV.—Striking is the outward resemblance betwixt true and nominal believers; but inwardly the difference is as great as betwixt day and night, summer and winter, health and disease, life and death. Spiritual slothfulness and indifference are the characteristic tokens of spiritual death; yet even the graces of the believer may for a season fall asleep; and when true believers are in this state of slumbering apathy, we can, at the time, observe no difference betwixt the saint and the hypocrite. We should conscientiously inquire, What are the talents given to us by our bountiful Creator?—for what purpose has he bestowed them?—are we employing them for his glory, and in promoting the great end of our existence?

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, thou art the infinite and everlasting Jehovah. Thou fillest boundless immensity with thy presence, and art from everlasting to everlasting God. By the word of thy power thou didst call the heavens and the earth into existence, and didst create all things, visible and invisible. O with what solemnity and reverence we should bow ourselves before thee—we who are but of yesterday, who are worms of the dust, and who are unable to place our words in order before thee by reason of darkness!

We rejoice that through Christ the Mediator a way is opened up, by which such vile, polluted worms may approach the throne of the divine Majesty, and present their prayers before thee with the most encouraging hopes of acceptance. We draw near through Christ, and praise our God that, by the influence of his name we shall be received, as children are received by the parents they love.

O Lord, we are sinners: would to God we were humble, believing penitents! We lay our sins and guilt and unworthiness at thy feet, and implore pardon through our Saviour's blood. Blessed Jesus, smite our hardened hearts with the rod of thy strength; then shall the streams of repentance flow. We confess that we have too much resembled the foolish virgins: we have had the lamp of a profession, and have great reason to fear that we have been without the oil of grace. If it is the case now with any in thy presence, let it be so no longer. Evermore give us this precious treasure. Holy Spirit, under thy gracious tuition we would desire this treasure of grace before earthly wealth, honours, or pleasures. Preserve us from the extreme folly of being satisfied with the mere appearance of piety. May we never prefer the shadow of religion to the substance, nor the casket to the jewel. We have also reason to acknowledge with shame our spiritual slothfulness. With liveliness and zeal we have engaged in our temporal business, but, alas, with what backwardness we have engaged in the concerns of the soul! To obtain temporal objects we have risen up early and sat up late, while we have slumbered and slept as to the all-important matters of the soul and an eternal world.

Suffer not our dear children or domestics to follow the example of the foolish virgins. May they not delay seeking the precious oil of grace. O that they were enabled to seek it now! Blessed Jesus, who ascended up on high, and who received gifts for men, even for the rebellious, give to them the precious oil of grace.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the talents thou hast given us. Thou hast given us reason, and immortal natures; thou hast given us the Word of life, a preached Gospel, and the ordinances of religion. Holy Spirit, may we so occupy and employ and improve these talents, that, when our Lord shall come to us at death, we shall hear his welcome voice thus encouraging our hearts: Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the past day, and we commit ourselves, soul and body, into the arms of our God this night. Mercifully hear our prayer, and blot out our transgressions, for Jesus' sake, who loved us and died for us. Amen, and amen.

HAPPY POVERTY.

Para. Triumphant. Marks.

L. M.

- 1 YE humble souls, complain no more;
Let faith survey your future store:
How happy, how divinely blest,
The sacred words of truth attest.
- 2 When conscious grief laments sincere,
And pours the penitential tear,
Hope points, to your dejected eyes,
The bright reversion in the skies.
- 3 In vain the sons of wealth and pride
Despise your lot, your hopes deride:
In vain they boast their little stores:
Trifles are theirs, a kingdom yours.

STEELE.

GENESIS XLI.

Pharaoh's Dreams.

AND it came to pass, at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed: and, behold, he stood by the river.

2 And, behold, there came out of the river seven well favoured kine, and fattished; and they fed in a meadow.

3 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill favoured and leanfleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river.

4 And the ill favoured and leanfleshed kine did eat up the seven well favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept, and dreamed the second time: and, behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, rank and good.

6 And, behold, seven thin ears, and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning that his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt, and all the wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream: but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults this day:

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker:

11 And we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he; we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his dream he did interpret.

13 And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.

14 Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon: and he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it.

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLI.—Lengthened and unjust was the imprisonment of Joseph; but it was the harbinger of days of great prosperity and glory. Christ's humiliation was trying, dreary, and severe; but it was the prelude of his most glorious exaltation, and of his receiving a name above every name, and of being raised as Mediator to the loftiest throne in heaven, far above all principalities and powers. God's purposes are often accomplished by means the most unlikely. At first we can see no connection betwixt the dreams of a luxurious king, and the liberation of an innocent, injured prisoner. Fruitfulness and sterility, abundance and famine, are God's servants, and at his command; how much, then, should kings and subjects honour, and stand in awe of that God, who can bless with the greatest prosperity, or visit with the greatest adversity! who can save and destroy!

PRAYER.

WE address and approach thee, O Lord, as our covenant God in Christ. From the foundation of the world thou didst enter into covenant with the Son of thy love, for accomplishing the redemption of ruined men. We rejoice that in the day of conversion thou dost mercifully condescend to enter into covenant with thy children. Thou art a faithful God, true to thy purposes, thy promises, and thy covenant. Thou keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants. What reason have we to rejoice that, though thou dwellest between the cherubim in glorious majesty, wielding the sceptre of universal dominion, thou condescendest to hear the prayers of weeping penitents, and to pardon all their sins!

In thee, O Jesus, are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, and thou hast been a mouth and wisdom to thy people in Old Testament times, as well as in New Testament days. From thee alone is the preparation of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue. Thou didst inspire Joseph with wisdom, and gavest him that knowledge of future events which raised him to such honour and usefulness in the land of Egypt. We adore thee as the only wise God our Saviour.

We thank our God that we have been encompassed with thy gracious arms last night, and that another opportunity is given us to draw near to thy mercy-seat, to be encouraged with thy blessings, and comforted by thy smiles. We thank God that we have been again permitted to read the oracles of eternal truth. Holy Spirit, bless to us the Word of life, and may it prove the light and joy of our hearts. Enlarge our hearts; then shall we run in the way of thy commandments.

Like the servant of Pharaoh, we would remember our faults this day. Great and numerous and highly aggravated are our transgressions, O Lord. We have sinned against light, and against love. Secretly and publicly we have sinned, and, we have reason to lament, we have often sinned presumptuously. We seek forgiveness through our blessed Saviour's blood. Merciful father, we fall down before thy face; thy grace is our only refuge; the leprosy of sin lies so deep within us, that all the outward forms of religion are insufficient to wash out the vile, polluting stain. Such is our guilt, O Jesus, that thou alone hast power to make atonement for our sins. Glory to thy name, thy blood can make us white as snow, which never could be done by Jewish types, washings, or ceremonies.

Convince our dear children that they were born in sin, and need to be washed from their original pollution. Convince them that they have offended thee by many sinful actions, and therefore need forgiveness. O Jesus, we bring them to thee, the divine fountain. Mercifully wash all their sins away.

Lord, impart to each one of us the grace which was communicated to Joseph. Give us the patience he exemplified in affliction, and adorn us with that humility which shone with such brightness in his character. Clothe us with humility. Above all, O Jesus, may we learn of thee, who art meek and lowly in heart. Enable us this day to exercise the Christian graces. Hear, forgive, and accept, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Spirit, one Jehovah, we would ascribe the kingdom, power, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

JUDGMENT.

Parting. Judgment. Holmesley.

R. 7. 4.

- 1 LO! he comes with clouds descending,
Once for favoured sinners slain;
Thousand, thousand saints attending,
Swell the triumph of his train:
Hallelujah!
Jesus now shall ever reign.
- 2 Every eye shall now behold him
Robed in dreadful majesty:
Those who set at nought and sold him,
Pierced and nailed him to the tree,
Deeply wailing,
Shall the great Messiah see!
- 3 Every island, sea, and mountain,
Heaven and earth shall flee away;
All who hate him must, confounded,
Hear the trump proclaim the day:
Come to judgment!
Come to judgment, come away.

OLIVERS.

MATTHEW XXV.

The Day of Judgment.

WHEN the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats:

33 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:

35 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:

36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?

38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40 And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

41 Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels:

42 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink:

43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?

45 Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

46 And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXV.—What a contrast! our blessed Lord, in his humiliation, surrounded with the darkness of the grave, and now filling heaven with the splendour of his glory! attended on earth by a few humble and impoverished fishermen, and attended in the sky, and at the judgment-day, with an innumerable company of angels! Sovereign grace makes a marked difference betwixt the righteous and the wicked on earth, which in many instances is but imperfectly discerned; but how great shall the distinction appear when Jesus fills his judgment-seat! Now, the wicked may occupy the loftiest places on earth, but then, the righteous shall be exalted to a place beside Jesus on his throne. O how the following fact should impress our hearts, and produce in our minds the most solemnizing effects!—namely, the righteous laying up for themselves a treasure of blessedness in heaven, and the wicked heaping up for themselves wrath against the day of wrath; the righteous clothed with Christ's merit, and the wicked bound for ever with the chains of their own guilt!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art a God of glorious majesty. Thou art the omniscient witness of the purposes and actions and sins of all who are upon the face of the earth, and thou hast appointed a day in which thou shalt judge the world in righteousness by Jesus Christ. Thou art the mighty God, even the Lord, who shall call the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about. He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, Gather my saints together unto me. The heavens shall declare his righteousness, for God himself is judge.

Blessed Jesus, we acknowledge thy divine nature and thy divine prerogatives. As God thou shalt fill the throne of judgment, and as mediator all judgment is committed into thy hand. O prepare us for that solemn day when thou shalt appear upon the throne of judgment, when thou shalt come in thy glory, and all the holy angels with thee; yea, when thou shalt come with ten thousand of thy saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which they have spoken against thee. Divine Saviour, prepare us for that solemn day! Then all nations shall be gathered before thee, and as a shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats, so shalt thou separate the righteous from the wicked. May we on that day not be found among the wicked, who shall be placed in ignominy on thy left-hand; but may we be found among the righteous, arrayed in the robe of righteousness, and placed in honourable distinction on thy right-hand. Holy Spirit, prepare us for that solemn day when the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, shall hide themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains; and when they shall say to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb.

Deeply affect the minds of our dear children with the prospect of the judgment-day, and give them grace now to embrace Jesus as their beloved Saviour.

On the morning of the resurrection may all of us awake amid the songs of angels, and hear our Lord and Saviour's loving voice: Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

We thank our God for the mercies of the day and of the week; and this night would repose with confidence on the paternal and providential care of our God and Father in Christ.

Let the words of our mouth and the supplications of our heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, through Jesus Christ, our strength and Redeemer. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with us all. Amen.

SEVENTH WEEK.—SABBATH MORNING.

THE CONQUEROR'S SONG.

Eccl. Rev. British. Gibeah. Cambridge Nov. c. m.

- 1 TO thine almighty arm we owe
The triumphs of the day;
Thy terrors, Lord, confound the foe,
And melt their strength away.
- 2 'Tis by thine aid our troops prevail,
And break united powers,
Or burn their boasted fleets, or scale
The proudest of their towers.
- 3 How have we chased them through the field,
And trod them to the ground,
While thy salvation was our shield,
But they no shelter found!

Watts, Ps. 18, p. 11.

PSALM XVIII.

The Triumphs of the Saint.

HE maketh my feet like hinds' feet, and setteth me upon my high places.

34 He teacheth my hands to war, so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms.

35 Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation: and thy right hand hath holden me up, and thy gentleness hath made me great.

36 Thou hast enlarged my steps under me, that my feet did not slip.

37 I have pursued mine enemies, and overtaken them: neither did I turn again till they were consumed.

38 I have wounded them that they were not able to rise: they are fallen under my feet.

39 For thou hast girded me with strength unto the battle: thou hast subdued under me those that rose up against me.

40 Thou hast also given me the necks of mine enemies; that I might destroy them that hate me.

41 They cried, but there was none to save them: even unto the Lord, but he answered them not.

42 Then did I heat them small as the dust before the wind: I did cast them out as the dirt in the streets.

43 Thou hast delivered me from the strivings of the people; and thou hast made me the head of the heathen: a people whom I have not known shall serve me.

44 As soon as they hear of me, they shall obey me: the strangers shall submit themselves unto me.

45 The strangers shall fade away, and be afraid out of their close places.

46 The Lord liveth; and blessed be my rock; and let the God of my salvation be exalted.

47 It is God that avengeth me, and subdueth the people under me.

48 He delivereth me from mine enemies: yea, thou liftest me up above those that rise up against me: thou hast delivered me from the violent man.

49 Therefore will I give thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the heathen, and sing praises unto thy name.

50 Great deliverance giveth he to his king; and sheweth mercy to his anointed; to David, and to his seed for evermore.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XVIII.—Happy are those whose feet are swift to run in the way of God's commandments. Their delight in his service on earth is an evidence that they shall live eternally in his presence in heaven. Glorious prospect! they shall be set upon the high places in the celestial Zion. Believers are warriors in Christ's spiritual army; and he gives them such instructions for the spiritual combat, that the plans of their enemies are all defeated, and their proud boasting followed by disgrace. God is the defence of his people, and in the day of danger spreads over them the powerful shield of his gracious protection. They are arrayed in the whole armour of God, and therefore able to stand in the evil day. May my soul be clad in that armour, and may a noble ambition inspire my bosom, that all my lusts and passions, and spiritual enemies, may be trampled under my feet! They who distrust themselves, and place their confidence in Christ, shall be preserved from falling into temptation. On thee, O Jesus, may my feet be placed, the only Rock of Ages! May those desired days soon arrive, when all the nations of the earth shall submit to the mediatorial sway of Christ. By the downpouring of the Spirit; when they hear of his glory, they shall bow before his sceptre.

"Fly abroad, thou mighty Gospel!
Win and conquer, never cease."

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Redeemer, thou art the Conqueror of death, and on the morning of the first day thou didst burst asunder the hands of mortality, and thus declare to the intelligent universe that the sting of death was taken away. We bless our beneficent and gracious Father, that as a family we have enjoyed the blessed guardianship of our God during the last night, and that we are allowed so peacefully to surround the family altar on the morning of a day which commemorates the glorious victories of our exalted Lord.

Holy Spirit, may we enter on this day suitably impressed with its sacred sanctity. May these words seriously affect our minds: Verily, my Sabbaths shall ye keep, for it is a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord which doth sanctify you. Preserve us from the profanation of thy blessed day, lest the doom which befell Israel should befall us. Thou didst say by thy servant Ezekiel, But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the wilderness: they walked not in my statutes, and they despised my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live in them; and my Sabbaths they greatly polluted: then I said, I will pour out my fury upon them in the wilderness, to consume them. What reason have we to lament that, as families, and as a nation at large, we so much resemble Israel of old! Preserve our princes and our rulers, rich and poor, from despising and profaning thy holy day. Let the great and the mighty of our land show an example to all around them, that they fear God and respect his Sabbath.

We would now earnestly supplicate the Holy Spirit to prepare us for the important duties of this sacred day. Let the prospect of entering thy courts give us greater joy than if we were invited to the palaces of earthly princes. Let the prospect of sitting around the gospel-table afford us greater delight than if we were called to partake of the most delicious and costly feast. May each one of us say with the Psalmist, I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.

Bless the congregation to which we belong with a copious effusion of the Holy Spirit. Sun of Righteousness, shine upon it: divine Spirit, breathe upon it; then it shall prove a garden of beauty, and exhale the fragrance of heaven. May thy servant who shall proclaim to us the peaceful message of salvation be this day a successful herald of the truth. May thy Word come from his lips with power, and may not a few be made subject to the gracious reign of Christ, and fall prostrate at his feet.

Make the children of our family to touch the golden sceptre of his love, and live for ever.

Have mercy on all the churches, and may an eminent revival of religion, of faith, humility, and love, take place among them. Remove from the descendants of Abraham their veil of unbelief and prejudice, and soon may they acknowledge Jesus to be the promised Messiah. Hasten the day when all nations shall see the glory of Immanuel.

Graciously hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

TRUE WISDOM.

New Sabbath. Langdon.

L. M.

- 1 HAPPY the man who finds the grace—
The blessing of God's chosen race;
The wisdom coming from above,
And faith that sweetly works by love.
- 2 Happy, beyond description, he Who knows, The Saviour died for me—
The gift unspeakable obtains,
And heavenly understanding gains.
- 3 Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
And all her flowery paths are peace:
Wisdom to silver we prefer,
And gold is dross compared with her.

ANON.

JOB XXVIII.

Wisdom.

SURELY there is a vein for the silver, and a place for gold where they find it.

7 There is a path which no fowl knoweth, and which the vulture's eye hath not seen:

8 The lion's whelps have not trodden it, nor the fierce lion passed by it.

12 But where shall wisdom be found? and where is the place of understanding?

13 Man knoweth not the price thereof; neither is it found in the land of the living.

14 The depth saith, It is not in me: and the sea saith, It is not with me.

15 It cannot be gotten for gold, neither shall silver be weighed for the price thereof.

16 It cannot be valued with the gold of Ophir; with the precious onyx, or the sapphire.

17 The gold and the crystal cannot equal it: and the exchange of it shall not be for jewels of fine gold.

18 No mention shall be made of coral, or of pearls: for the price of wisdom is above rubies.

19 The topaz of Ethiopia shall not equal it, neither shall it be valued with pure gold.

20 Whence then cometh wisdom? and where is the place of understanding?

21 Seeing it is hid from the eyes of all living, and kept close from the fowls of the air.

22 Destruction and death say, We have heard the fame thereof with our ears.

23 God understandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof:

24 For he looketh to the ends of the earth, and seeth under the whole heaven;

25 To make the weight for the winds; and he weigheth the waters by measure.

26 When he made a decree for the rain, and a way for the lightning of the thunder:

27 Then did he see it, and declare it; he prepared it, yea, and searched it out.

28 And unto man he said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOB XXVIII.—Gold and silver form an earthly inheritance, but grace and salvation a heavenly inheritance. The former has never satisfied the desires of men; the latter confers blessedness and joy unspeakable. The former brings many troubles, anxieties, and cares; the latter soothes the mind under every suffering, and gives the oil of joy for mourning. The former has a tendency to debase and corrupt; the latter purifies the heart, and dignifies and exalts the faculties of the soul. The former is uncertain, and proverbial for taking to itself wings and fleeing away, never to return; while the latter is an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and can never fade away. How infinitely privileged are we beyond the sages and pagan philosophers of ancient days! They were ignorant of true wisdom, and were without the means of becoming acquainted with its nature: we have the warning word of truth, which teaches what wisdom is. Do we savingly know that the knowledge, love, and fear of God is wisdom? "Blessed Jesus, give us this lovely jewel, this pearl of great price!"

PRAYER.

AT the close of another sacred Sabbath of rest, we would exclaim in the language of the Psalmist, The Lord liveth: and blessed be my rock: and let the God of my salvation be exalted.

We desire to be deeply sensible of the distinguished kindness, and of the great privileges we have enjoyed this day. Bless the Lord, O our soul, and forget not all his benefits. We were permitted to enter thy sanctuary and worship thee, the only, the living, and the true God, through Christ, the Mediator between God and man. What shall we render unto the Lord for all his benefits!

We acknowledge and confess with shame the careless and lukewarm manner in which we have heard the Gospel; and in which we have engaged in the other services of thy house this day. We have too much resembled ancient Israel, of whom it was said, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; see ye indeed, but perceive not. Suffer our hearts to be no more fat, nor our ears heavy. May we see with our eyes, and hear with our ears, and understand with our hearts; and may we be converted and healed.

We thank thee for thy kindness to thy ministers and people throughout the whole Christian world. The bread has been cast upon the waters; may it be found many days hence. The seed has been sown; may a rich harvest arise, and many have reason through all eternity to sing the song of Moses and of the Lamb for the blessed conquests which have been accomplished this day.

Have mercy on thine afflicted children, who were necessarily absent from thy house of prayer. May they rejoice more and more in the prospect of entering those heavenly realms where the blessed inhabitants are never interrupted in their fellowship, or disturbed in their enjoyments, by bodily pain or mortal anguish. May these words be the consolation of their hearts: And God himself shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. May the preaching of the Gospel to which we have listened be instrumental in preparing us to encounter, resist, and subdue our spiritual enemies. May we be preserved this night; and, if we enter on another day, may we show that we have the whole armour of God. Lord, give us the shield of thy salvation; help us by thy right-hand, and by the gentleness of thy grace may we be rendered formidable to our spiritual foes. May we pursue our lusts and corruptions; may we overtake them, and not return again till they are consumed. O give us that wisdom which is the fear of the Lord. Teach us to esteem it more than Ophir's gold, and to seek it as for hidden treasures.

Preserve our dear children from the enemies of their soul. At an early period may they become the soldiers of Jesus, the captain of salvation. Prepare them for the Christian warfare, make them faithful unto death; then will they receive the crown of life.

Let our persons, our services, and prayers be accepted in the Beloved. And now blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever; and let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen, and amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SEVENTH WEEK.—MONDAY MORNING.

THE GOSPEL FEAST.

Jordan's Banks: Oxford, Wiltshire.

c. n.

1 ON Sion, his most holy mount,
God will a feast prepare,
And Israel's sons, and Gentile lands,
Shall in the banquet share.

2 Marrow and fatness are the food
His bounteous hand bestows;
Wine on the lees, and well-refined,
In rich abundance flows.

3 See to the vilest of the vile
A free acceptance given!
See rebels, by adopting grace,
Sit with the heirs of heaven!

4 The pained, the sick, the dying, now
To ease and health restored,
With eager appetites partake
The plenties of the board.

GIBBONS.

GENESIS XLI.

Interpretations of Pharaoh's Dream.

AND Pharaoh said unto Joseph, In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river:

18 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fat-fleshed and well favoured; and they fed in a meadow:

19 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor and very ill favoured and lean-fleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt for badness:

20 And the lean and the ill favoured kine did eat up the first seven fat kine.

21 And when they had eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them: but they were still ill favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke.

22 And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good:

23 And, behold, seven ears, withered, thin, and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them:

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears: and I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are seven years; the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill favoured kine, that came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty years, blasted with the east wind, shall be seven years of famine.

28 This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: What God is about to do he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt:

30 And there shall arise after them seven years of famine; and all the plenty shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine shall consume the land;

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land, by reason of that famine following; for it shall be very grievous.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice; it is because the thing is established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plentiful years.

35 And let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land perish not through the famine.

37 And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLI.—The river Nile is remarkable among the most wonderful rivers on the face of the earth; but there is no earthly river worthy to be compared with the river of salvation,—“the streams whereof make glad the city of our God.” Pharaoh dreamed he stood on the famous banks of the river of Egypt: may we enjoy the satisfying evidence that we shall walk upon the flowery banks of the river of life, which flows from the throne of God and the Lamb!

PRAYER.

GLORY to God in the highest, that, in approaching thy blessed throne, we are permitted to address thee as our God and Father in Christ. With humility and reverence we would adore thee in thy being and attributes. Thou didst derive thy being from none, while all derive their existence from thee. It is in thee we live, move, and have our being. While thou art infinitely blessed in thyself, thou art the inexhaustible source of all the blessedness with which thy loving and obedient subjects are enriched. Thou delightest in the felicity of thy creatures. The humming of insects, the singing of birds, the praises of men, and the songs of angels—all is delightful and acceptable to thee. Lord, evermore give us thy grace; then shall we celebrate thy praise with intelligent, sanctified, and happy minds, for ever and ever.

Holy Spirit, let gratitude inspire all our hearts, for the countless blessings poured into the cup of our lot. We thank our God for the providential care we have experienced during the past night, and that it has not proved to us the night of death. May all of us be impressed with the conviction of the truth, that our last day and our last night are fast drawing nigh.

Impress our dear children with this thought. May they feel convinced that every day, that every night, is bringing them nearer and nearer that solemn period, when they must exchange time for eternity. Whether they die in childhood or in advanced years, may they fall asleep in the arms of Christ.

O Lord our God, as thou didst declare thyself the God of all the families of Israel, be thou the God of our family, and of all the families with which we are connected. May all of us be endowed with the noble spirit which animated the mind of Joshua, and with him may we say, Whatever others do, we will serve the Lord. Let our dwelling-place be blessed. Here may we ever seek a gracious and new-covenant God, and here may God dwell. Let it be said of our abode, Jehovah shammah—the Lord is there.

Give us day by day our daily bread, and bestow upon us all those temporal blessings thou seest meet for us in thy goodness. May we show this day, and all the days of the week, that we were impressed with thy Word to which we listened on the past Sabbath, and that the dew of the Spirit descended and still remains on our souls.

We have now read of the famine which long since visited ancient Egypt. O Lord, have mercy on those lands where a dreadful famine of the Gospel prevails. We would mourn over the doleful circumstances of millions of our race, who never heard of Jesus, the true bread, who came down from heaven. Hasten the day, O Saviour, when the heavenly manna shall descend on those regions of idolatry, misery, and death. We have long enjoyed in these lands the feast of fat things. Be not provoked to remove from us this greatest of blessings, but may it continue with us till the close of ages; yea, till time shall be no more. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for the sake of him who died for us and rose again. Amen, and amen.

SEVENTH WEEK.—MONDAY EVENING.

CHRIST OUR PASSOVER.

Kennell. Cambridge. James'.

c. n.

- 1 LO, the destroying angel flies
To Pharaoh's stubborn land;
The pride and flower of Egypt dies
By his vindictive hand.
- 2 He passed the tents of Jacob o'er,
Nor poured the wrath divine;
He saw the blood on every door,
And blessed the peaceful sign.
- 3 Thus the appointed Lamb must bleed,
To break the Egyptian yoke;
Thus Israel is from bondage freed,
And 'scapes the angel's stroke.
- 4 Lord, if my heart were sprinkled too
With blood so rich as thine,
Justice no longer would pursue
This guilty soul of mine.

Watts, 155, B. II.

MATTHEW XXVI.

The Rulers conspire against Christ.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,

2 Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.

3 Then assembled together the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,

4 And consulted that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an uproar among the people.

6 Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,

7 There came unto him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.

8 But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?

9 For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.

10 When Jesus understood it, he said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.

11 For ye have the poor always with you: but me ye have not always.

12 For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial.

13 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.

14 Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, 15 And said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver.

16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.

17 Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

18 And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVI.—Can we say of Christ's words, They are sweeter than honey, they are more precious than gold? Happy and blessed are they who know them, value them, believe them, and obey them. God incarnate appeared on earth, and meriting the loftiest office in the Jewish church contrived to shed his blood, and to take his life. And while the inferior priests were preparing to sacrifice the typical lamb, the chief priests were preparing to shed the blood of Jesus, the Lamb of God,—our true Passover, sacrificed for us. Mary anointed Christ with perishing ointment; and may Jesus, by his Spirit, anoint us with the oil of grace, the fragrance and the influence of which shall last for ever. Let the covetous fear and tremble: they who love gold and silver more than Christ resemble Judas, who has gone to his place.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we would come as a family, and sing unto thee the Lord; we would make a joyful noise unto thee, the Rock of our salvation. In thine undeserved kindness to us, thy rebellious children, thou hast preserved us during the past day from the jaws of death, the king of terrors, and the terror of kings; we will therefore come before thy presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto thee with psalms. What reason have we to adore thee, O Lord, when we think of the vast universe which thy hand hath made, and the kingdoms of providence and grace over which thou dost reign! Thou the Lord art a great God, and a great King above all gods. In thine hand are the deep places of the earth, the strength of the hills is thine also. The sea is thine, for thou hast made it, and thy hands have formed the dry land. We will therefore come, we will worship and bow down; we will kneel before the Lord our Maker. Thou art our God; make us, O Jesus, the people of thy pasture, and the sheep of thy hand.

Thou heart-searching God, when we think of our pride, our enmity, our carnality, our hypocrisy, and the length and catalogue of our sins, as a family and as individuals we have just cause to wonder that we are now prostrate before the throne of grace, where none are rejected who look to thee through Jesus Christ. Truly we are sinners; we have rendered ourselves obnoxious to thy justice, and deserve to feel the stroke of thine iron rod. But we rejoice, divine Saviour, that thou art the paschal lamb who was sacrificed for us, to take the guilt of sin away. O for a lively, vigorous faith, to believe that thou the Lamb of God hast indeed been sacrificed for us! Let each one of us have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, for thy blood speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. While his blood cried for vengeance, we rejoice that thy blood proclaims mercy for a sinful, ruined world.

We would mourn, O Jesus, over that murderous enmity which the cruel Jews manifested against thee in plotting thy death. We confess the cruelty of our hearts against thee. By nature the same enmity dwells in us which dwelt in them. Mighty and gracious Spirit, destroy the enmity of our souls, and let love to Christ, sincere, fervent, and superlative, reign within us.

Teach our dear children in thy presence to love their Saviour. May they admire the conduct of the humble penitent who took the box of precious ointment and poured it on his head. May they resemble her in the fervour of her love.

Gracious Father, bless our relatives and friends, the congregation to which we belong, and thy servant who dispenses among us the oracles of truth. Suffer none of us, like Judas, to betray our Lord. Make us faithful unto death; then shall we all at last receive a crown of life, which fadeth not away.

Give us thy paternal protecting care this night; forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus, our exalted Mediator's sake. Amen.

LINES OF ALL NATIONS.

Carr's Lane, Abbott's, Brainerd.

C. M.

- 1 INFINITE excellence is thine,
Thou lovely Prince of Grace!
Thy uncreated beauties shine
With never-fading rays.
- 2 Sinners, from earth's remotest end,
Come bending at thy feet;
To thee their prayers and vows ascend,
In thee their wishes meet.
- 3 Thy name, as precious ointment shed,
Delights the church around;
Sweetly the sacred odours spread
Through all Immanuel's ground.

FAWCETT.

GENESIS XII.

Joseph raised to great Honour.

AND Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man in whom the Spirit of God is?

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

40 Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck;

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, Bow the knee: and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphnath-paaneah;* and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah priest of On. And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

46 And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plentiful years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

48 And Joseph gathered corn as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number.

50 And unto Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah priest of On bare unto him.

51 And Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh:† For God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

52 And the name of the second called he Ephraim:‡ For God hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.

53 And the seven years of plentifulness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

54 And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: And Joseph opened all the storehouses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

* Revealer of secrets.

† Forgetting.

‡ Fruitful.

57 And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph, for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XII.—The Spirit was poured out on Christ without measure, as a Spirit of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and might, of knowledge and the fear of the Lord, to make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord. In the fulfilment of the functions of his mediatorial work he managed his matters with such wisdom, skill, mercy, and power, that he has made an ample provision of the bread of life for countless starving myriads of the human race. Now he has received his glorious reward; he is crowned with many crowns, he fills the throne of universal empire, he blesses the church militant on earth with his grace, and the church triumphant with his glory. All countries applied to Joseph in their necessities; let us rejoice, that all nations shall flee to Jesus for mercy.

PRAYER.

OTHOU Hearer of prayer, thou art our gracious God and our merciful Father. The outgoings of the morning and evening are under thy command. Again thou hast made them to rejoice over us, who deserved, on account of our transgressions and guilt, to be the objects of thy judicial wrath. We bless thee for the return of the morning, and that we have been preserved to the close of another night, and now enjoy the unspeakable privilege and the distinguished honour of encompassing the domestic altar, and drawing near to the throne of grace.

It is good, O Lord, to draw near to thee, for in thy presence and smiles even in this life there is fulness of joys, and even here the blessed foretaste is enjoyed of that heavenly world where rivers of endless pleasures flow.

Sanctifying and enlightening Spirit, apply to all our hearts the portion of sacred history we have now read. Teach us the way of thy statutes; then, like Joseph, we will keep it unto the end of our days, and by the aid of thy grace we will resist and conquer all our spiritual enemies, and preserve the garments of our profession clean, till we fall asleep in the arms of Jesus.

What reason have we, O Lord, to be humbled in the dust, when we think upon our corruption, our ignorance, our folly, our carnality, our backsliding, and our guilt! Alas, that the leprosy of sin has rendered us so abominable, and the disease of sin has taken such deep and firm hold of our hearts! Blessed Jesus, as Joseph was raised up to be the deliverer of Egypt, thou hast been sent to be the Saviour of men. Where alone can we go for regeneration, pardon, and acceptance, but to thyself? Thou didst die to take the guilt of sin away, and thou dost live to give repentance unto Israel, and remission of sins unto many.

We would rejoice, exalted Jesus, in thine infinite fitness to manage the affairs of thy Church, and to sit upon the throne of Zion. In thee are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

Gracious Saviour, reign over the hearts of our beloved children, the youthful members of this family. May they and our servants resemble Joseph in piety and prudence.

We thank thee, gracious God, for Jesus, thine unspeakable gift. In sending Joseph to Egypt thou didst send a deliverer to nations to preserve them from famine, but in sending Jesus thou hast sent a Saviour to the world. Eternal praises for thine unspeakable gift!

May thy blessing and smiles rest upon us this day, that we may serve and please thee.

In the name of the divine Mediator we present our morning prayer.

Now may the God of hope fill us with joy and peace in believing, through Christ Jesus, our blessed Saviour and Redeemer; to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit be ascribed glory, honour, and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

THE LORD'S SUPPER INSTITUTED.

Old England. Alpha. Babylon Streams.

L. M.

- 1 'T WAS on that dark, that doleful night,
When powers of earth and hell arose
Against the Son of God's delight,
And friends betrayed him to his foes :
- 2 Before the mournful scene began,
He took the bread, and blessed and brake :
What love through all his actions ran !
What wondrous words of grace he spake !
- 3 'This is my body broke for sin,
Receive and eat the living food :
Then took the cup, and blessed the wine ;
'Tis the new covenant in my blood.
- 4 For us his flesh with nails was torn,
He bore the scourge, he felt the thorn ;
And justice poured upon his head
Its heavy vengeance in our stead.
- 5 For us his vital blood was spilt,
To buy the pardon of our guilt,
When, for black crimes of biggest size,
He gave his soul a sacrifice.
- 6 Do this (he cried) till time shall end,
In memory of your dying Friend ;
Meet at my table, and record
The love of your departed Lord.

WARREN, 1, B. III.

MATTHEW XXVI.

The Passover and the Lord's Supper.

NOW, when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.
21 And as they did eat, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I ?

23 And he answered and said, He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish the same shall betray me.

24 The Son of man goeth as it is written of him : but woe unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed ! it had been good for that man if he had not been born.

25 Then Judas, which betrayed him, answered and said,
Master, is it I ? He said unto him, Thou hast said.

26 And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat ; this is my body.

27 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it ;

28 For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

29 But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom.

30 And when they had sung an hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives.

31 Then saith Jesus unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night : for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad.

32 But after I am risen again, I will go before you into Galilee.

33 Peter answered and said unto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.

34 Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, that this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

35 Peter said unto him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

REFLECTIONS UPON MAT. XXVI.—We are ignorant of our own hearts, if we do not believe that they contain such depravity and corruption as would lead us to deny and betray Christ and his cause, if we were not prevented by restraining or renewing grace.

To confess Christ, to follow Christ, and faithfully to serve Christ, even unto the death, will be followed by the joys of heaven ; while impenitently to deny and forsake Christ will be inevitably succeeded by the worm that never dies, and by the fire that shall never be quenched ! Lord Jesus, make us faithful unto death ; and may we be ever animated by thy promise, that we shall receive a crown of life. If we love Christ, we will manifest our love by keeping his commandments ; and his dying command, his last command, we will hold in peculiar estimation : " Do this in remembrance of me," in remembrance of my death.

PRAYER.

DIVINE Spirit, mercifully breathe upon us thy sacred influences, while we enter upon the sacred duty and embrace the unspeakable privilege of drawing near the throne of grace. O Lord, thou hast promised that, if we draw near to thee, thou wilt draw near to us. Now we would draw near to thee in humble, earnest prayer ; graciously fulfil thy promise, and draw near to us : heavenly Father, do as thou hast said.

We desire, O Lord, to adore and praise thee. Thou sittest in the highest heavens, on the throne of essential and universal dominion. Thou seest the actions and purposes of men. Thou art the witness of all the plans which thine enemies form against the interests of thy Church. They cannot conceal their machinations from thee. At the very moment when they expect their designs to be accomplished, thou dost confound their proud and ambitious hopes. Thou dost break them with a rod of iron, and dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

May the solemn and important things we have now read make the deepest impression on our hearts. May they call to our thankful remembrance what Christ the passover has done for us. We were exposed to the flaming sword of the destroying angel of divine justice. If thou, O Jesus, hadst not interposed with thy blood, we must have perished for ever. In thine abundant mercy, thou didst submit to be sacrificed as the paschal lamb ; thou didst appease the Father's wrath, and thus preserve us from the awful ire of heaven.

May we be deeply affected with the depravity of the human heart, exemplified in the conduct of Judas. O Jesus, suffer us not to betray thee. Let us not betray thee with hypocritical professions, and suffer us not to betray thee by open backslidings. We would not, we dare not trust in our strength.
O arm of Omnipotence, hold us up ; then shall we be preserved, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against us.

We thank thee, blessed Jesus, for the sacrament of the supper. May we see in that sacred institution the representation of thyself. Give us saving knowledge therein to discern the Lord's body. Let each one of us be desirous to commemorate the death of Christ by sitting down at his table.
Exalted Redeemer, may our minds be suitably impressed with thy dying command, Do this in remembrance of me.

Impart thy saving grace to our dear children. Now we present them to thee, O Jesus. May they live to present themselves to thee at thy table, and publicly to declare that they are on the Lord's side.

Give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may remember every day Christ the Shepherd was smitten by the rod of divine wrath for our offences. Since Jesus was wounded for our sins and bruised for our iniquities, we would devote ourselves to him as our Saviour and God. Give thine angels charge over us this night, and may our souls ever be bound up in the bundle of life.

Mercifully hear this our evening prayer, through the all-prevailing name of Jesus.

Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God and our Saviour, be honour and glory and majesty, dominion and power, for ever and ever. Amen.

GOSPEL INVITATION.

Zion Chapel. Romford. Millborn Port.

G. M.

- 1 LET every mortal ear attend,
And every heart rejoice;
The trumpet of the gospel sounds
With an inviting voice.
- 2 Ho! all ye hungry starving souls,
That feed upon the wind,
And vainly strive with earthly toys
To fill an empty mind;
- 3 Eternal Wisdom has prepared
A soul-reviving feast,
And bids your longing appetites
The rich provision taste.

WATTS, 7, B. I.

GENESIS XLII.

Jacob's Ten Sons sent to buy Corn in Egypt.

NOW when Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another?

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may live and not die.

3 And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the governor over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him.

9 And Joseph remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons: we are true men, thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies:

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies.

17 And he put them all together into ward three days.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; for I fear God:

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison: go ye, carry corn for the famins of your houses:

20 But bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. And they did so.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLII.—The constant supply of the bread which perisheth should call forth our daily expressions of thankfulness to God, as the God of Providence: but the rich supply of the bread of life, for our never-dying souls, should especially call forth our expressions of thankfulness and of praise to God, as our God, and as the God of grace and salvation. What a blessing! we may buy this heavenly bread without money and without price. We have only to ask and receive. May it be our blessedness to hunger and thirst after righteousness, rejoicing that they who feed on the spiritual manna on earth shall partake of the delicious fruit of the tree of life in heaven. God may try his people severely, but he never tries them unjustly: he never tries them unmercifully; his love is as tender, as ardent, as immutable as ever. Behind the darkest frowns he hides the loveliest smiles. God sends afflictions to try the graces of his children. He prepares the furnace, to separate the dross of corruption from the gold of grace. When we are cast into the furnace, may the Divine Refiner so purify us, by the fire of affliction, that we shall come forth like the shining gold, seven times purified!

PRAYER.

O THOU Hearer of prayer, we, the living monuments of thy mercy, would approach thy mercy-seat through Jesus Christ. Give ear to our words, O Lord; consider our meditation. Harken unto the voice of our cry, our King and our God; for unto thee will we pray. Our voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will we direct our prayer unto thee, and look up. For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness, neither shall evil dwell with thee.

We present the tribute of thankfulness before thee, that, while enveloped in the shades of night, we have enjoyed the care of the watchman of Israel, who neither slumbered nor slept. We thank thee that our eyes are not shut in death; and that we are not only permitted to behold the light of the natural sun, but, above all, to behold the light of the Sun of Righteousness shining with such alluring brightness upon the pages of inspiration.

Thy Word, O Lord, is calculated to produce the most blessed effects; may thy Word be instrumental by the Spirit in producing effects on us for which we shall have reason to praise thee for ever and ever.

We thank thee, gracious Father, that as there was abundance of corn in Egypt for supplying the wants of famished nations, there is abundance of spiritual blessings to be found in Christ to supply the wants, the pressing wants of a ruined and famished world. May the tidings of this abundance soon be communicated by a preached Gospel to all the inhabitants of the earth. Teach us, O Saviour, to know the incalculable value of the blessings of thy purchase. May we see their worth, their necessity—their indispensable necessity.

Convince our dear children before thee that salvation is the one thing needful, that should be sought before everything else, that should be sought in preference to everything else.

O teach us, and our relatives and friends, and those who are connected with us by the ties of church-fellowship, to seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness. Blessed Saviour, we would hunger and thirst after righteousness; we would buy of thee wine and milk without money and without price. We have nothing to bring as a recompense; we come empty-handed, in ourselves wretched and poor and guilty. Glory to thy name, that we are welcome, and that we hear thy voice, He that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea, come buy wine and milk without money and without price.

Lord, have mercy on the aged, and on such as are in the furnace of affliction; may they come forth like burnished gold. Prepare us for the day of suffering, sickness, and pain, by imparting to us a rich store of thy grace.

Enable us to live in thy fear this day, and every day. We are under thine eyes; may we be led by thy spirit. We earnestly supplicate the forgiveness of our sins, and the answer of our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Prophet, Priest, and King. Amen.

WATCHFULNESS AND PRAYER.
Oxford. Shields. Bath Chapel.

C. M.

- 1 ALAS! what hourly dangers rise!
What snares beset my way!
To heaven O let me lift my eyes,
And hourly watch and pray.
- 2 How oft my mournful thoughts complain,
And melt in flowing tears.
My weak resistance, ah! how vain!
How strong my foes and fears!
- 3 O gracious God! in whom I live,
My feeble efforts aid;
Help me to watch, and pray, and strive,
Though trembling and afraid.

STEELE.

MATTHEW XXVI.

Christ's Agony in the Garden.

THEN cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder.

37 And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.

38 Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

39 And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.

40 And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

42 He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.

44 And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest? behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

46 Rise, let us be going: behold, he is at hand that doth betray me.

47 And while he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords, and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people.

48 Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he: hold him fast.

49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, Master; and kissed him.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.

51 And, behold, one of them which were with Jesus, stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

53 Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?

54 But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?

55 In that same hour said Jesus to the multitudes, Are ye come out as against a thief, with swords and staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me.

56 But all this was done that the scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVI.—Earnest prayer, and intimate fellowship with God, are the best preparation for severe afflictions, and the best defence in the dark night of sorrow, and in the midst of the tempest of suffering. We should often compare our cup of sorrow with that cup of divine wrath which our loving Surety drank to the very dregs, and then exclaim with holy wonder, there was no cup like that cup, no sorrow like his sorrow, no love like his love! When we think of the treachery of Judas, may we feel the most earnest desires that we may be faithful unto death.

PRAYER.

AT the termination of another portion of our time, we desire, O Lord, reverently and joyfully to encompass thine holy altar. Behold, we come unto thee through Christ, and under the covert of his all-prevailing name, because thou art our God in whom we trust, and in whom we claim an interest, through the meritorious righteousness of the Lamb that was slain. O Lord, thou art our defence, thou savest the upright in heart; thou dost judge the righteous and vindicate their cause, while thou art angry with the wicked every day.

Blessed Jesus, we desire to be humbled by the remembrance of thy sufferings, of which we have now read. Because of the transgressions and guilt of our apostate world, thou didst appear a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. O Immanuel, there was no sorrow like unto thy sorrow, in the day when divine justice afflicted thee, in the day of the Lord's fierce anger.

May we consider the counsel thou didst administer to the three disciples in the midst of thy humiliating anguish as delivered to us, now thou art seated on thy mediatorial throne, amid the glories of heaven: may we watch and pray, that we enter not into temptation. Our flesh is weak: enable us to watch and pray, that we may not be betrayed by the weakness and infirmities of our flesh. Our spiritual enemies are numerous, malignant, crafty, and powerful; give us grace to watch and pray, that we may resist them with steadfastness, encounter them with success, and finally be conquerors, and more than conquerors, through Christ that loved us.

O teach our children the important lesson of believing prayer and constant watchfulness. Convince them that, though young, they have enemies waiting for their destruction. All their days may they watch and pray, that they enter not into temptation.

Let the conduct of Judas prove to us a salutary warning. Suffer us not, like him, to love the mammon of unrighteousness. Never let us be bound with the fetters of avarice or covetousness. May we ever remember that, on the part of Judas, the love of money led to the betraying of the Son of God into the hands of men, who afterwards nailed him to the accursed tree. Deliver us, divine Spirit, from the love and dominion of sin. We have seen in the treacherous disciple the frightful progress of unsubdued sin. Thy power alone, almighty Saviour, can restrain, subdue, and destroy an enemy whose reign is attended by consequences so alarming and fatal. Deliver us and our relatives, and all in whom we are interested, from the dominion and guilt of this formidable foe. Surely thou art willing to give us this deliverance, for thou didst most readily deliver up thyself to death, to destroy the reign of sin. We thank thee for the mercies of the day, and we look to thee our God for thy gracious care this night. Hear and answer us, for the sake of Jesus, whom thou lovest always. Amen.

AFFLICTIONS AND DEATH UNDER PROVIDENCE.

Mahabul. Moidy. Ludlow. Burford.

c. n.

- 1 NOT from the dust affliction grows,
Nor troubles rise by chance;
Yet we are born to care and woes,
A sad inheritance.
- 2 As sparks break out from burning coals,
And still are upwards borne;
So grief is rooted in our souls,
And man grows up to mourn.
- 3 Yet with my God I leave my cause,
And trust his promised grace;
He rules me by his well-known laws
Of love and righteousness.

Watts, 83, B. I.

GENESIS XLII.

Joseph trying his Brethren.

AND they said one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is this distress come upon us.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, Spake I not unto you saying, Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear? therefore, behold, also his blood is required.

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for he spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept; and returned to them again and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as one of them opened his sack, to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money; for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and, lo, it is even in my sack: and their heart failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

29 And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befell unto them; saying,

30 The man, who is the lord of the land, spake roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies:

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father: one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and be gone:

34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall traffick in the land.

35 And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that, behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

36 And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me.

37 And Reuben spake unto his father, saying, Slay my two sons, if I bring him not to thee: deliver him into my hand, and I will bring him to thee again.

38 And he said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone: if mischief befall him by the way in the which ye go, then shall ye bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLII.—Afflictions are never sanctified unless they bring past sins, impressively and penitentially, to our remembrance. God might enter into judgment with us for our sins, and require punishment at our hands; but in his mercy he has laid the weight of our guilt upon the head of our Surety, and has received his blood as a sufficient atonement for our transgressions. The love and compassion of Joseph remind us of the tenderness and compassion of Jesus. Glory to God! "we have not a High Priest who cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities." Great was the generosity of Joseph to his brethren; but the generosity of Jesus, our older Brother, is boundless. What a brother!—he became poor, that we, through his poverty, might become rich. Do we value the unsearchable riches of Christ? Can we say, "Out of his fulness we have received, and grace for grace?" Diversified and severe were the trials of Jacob, while they were mingled with remarkable manifestations of Divine love, and prepared him for that heavenly kingdom, where all the days of his mourning are ended for ever.

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Spirit, three Persons in one Divine essence, we adore thee as the self-existent Jehovah. Thou art infinitely blessed in thyself, and no calamitous event in thine empire can either thwart thy plans or disturb thy happiness. Thou art the inexhaustible fountain of that blessedness which is enjoyed by saints on earth, and by angels and the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven. It is our unspeakable honour that as a family we are permitted to approach thee, our unspeakable privilege that we are allowed to seek thy favour, and our bounden duty to give unto thee the glory due unto thy name. We are unworthy in ourselves of this privilege, but we come in the name of Jesus, through whose merit our acceptance is sure. We are unable of ourselves to engage in the exercise of communion with thee, but we depend upon the assistance of the promised Spirit.

What reason have we to thank God that, in the enjoyment of health and in the exercise of reason, we are permitted to encompass the family altar, while many have been tossed upon their beds with agonizing pain till the dawning of the morning's light, and while not a few have closed their eyes in death!

We thank thee for the opportunity now enjoyed of reading the inspired Word. May thy Word be increasingly precious to us. May we say of it with thy servant, This is our comfort in our affliction; for thy Word hath quickened us.

Give us grace to learn useful and experimental lessons from what we have now read. As the sons of Jacob saw their sin inscribed in legible characters on the afflictive events of providence which tried them, may all our afflictions bring our sins to our remembrance, and deeply humble us on account of our aggravated and multiplied offences. Lord, bless us with a tender conscience. As Joseph's brethren sensibly felt, at the distance of many years, the cruel crime they committed against him, so may we preserve a lively sense of the transgressions of former days. Give us peace with God and peace of conscience, through the peace-speaking righteousness of Jesus Christ. With the apostle of the Gentiles may we say, in the exercise of a lively faith, Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

O Lord, abundantly bless this portion of Scripture to our dear children. Never let them wound their parents' hearts, like Jacob's sons, by bringing down their gray hairs with sorrow to the grave. O Lord, adorn them with thy grace!

This day may we live in communion with God, and may our lives be devoted to thee the God of our life. Teach us the important and the practical lesson of setting thee, the Lord, always before us, and of making the affairs of the soul and of eternity our chief business and our greatest delight.

Merciful Father, hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, thy well-beloved Son, and our Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST'S PASSION.

Westerham. Webster's. Wantage. Hagner. c. n.

- 1 NOW let our lips with holy fear
And mournful pleasure sing,
The sufferings of our great High Priest,
The sorrows of our King.
- 2 He sinks in floods of deep distress:
How high the waters rise!
While to his heavenly Father's ear
He sends perpetual cries.
- 3 Hear me, O Lord, and save thy Son,
Nor hide thy shining face:
Why should thy favourite look like one
Forsaken of thy grace?

Watts, Ps. 69, p. 11.

MATTHEW XXVI.

Jesus before the High Priest.

AND they that had laid hold on Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled.

58 But Peter followed him afar off unto the high priest's palace, and went in, and sat with the servants, to see the end.

59 Now the chief priests, and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus, to put him to death;

60 But found none: yea, though many false witnesses came, yet found they none. At the last came two false witnesses, 61 And said, This fellow said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days.

62 And the high priest arose, and said unto him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

63 But Jesus held his peace. And the high priest answered and said unto him, I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God.

64 Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

65 Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy.

66 What think ye? They answered and said, He is guilty of death.

67 Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him; and others smote him with the palms of their hands, 68 Saying, Prophecy unto us, thou Christ, Who is he that smote thee?

69 Now Peter sat without in the palace: and a damsel came unto him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee.

70 But he denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest.

71 And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid saw him, and said unto them that were there, This fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth.

72 And again he denied with an oath, I do not know the man.

73 And after a while came unto him they that stood by, and said to Peter, Surely, thou also art one of them; for thy speech bewrayeth thee.

74 Then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.

75 And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, which said unto him, Before the cock crew, thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVI.—If I possess saving and appropriating faith, I can say, with wonder, thankfulness, and love, "Jesus, my Saviour, was led as a lamb to the slaughter, bearing upon his head the weight of my guilt, and to make atonement for my transgressions. He has paid the last farthing of my debt, and the awful frowns of Justice offended are now changed into the loving smiles of Justice satisfied and appeased." From eternity our Surety covenanted to die; nothing, therefore, could prevent his death. It could not be prevented by his spotless innocence. In proportion to his immaculate excellence was the vehemence of the malice of his enemies. Because he was the spotless Lamb of God his adversaries were determined to imbrue their hands in his blood, and never to rest until they saw his lifeless body suspended to the tree.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, whose throne we approach, thou art holy, blessed, and glorious. We are thine, as we are thy creatures: we are thine, as we are constantly maintained by thy providential bounty: O make us thine by thy saving grace. While we are thy creatures, may we be thy children. Blessed shall we be, if, as a family, we can say in the language of thy servant, We are not our own, we are bought with a price; we would therefore glorify thee with our bodies and our spirits, which are thine.

What reason have we to proclaim thy praise, that we have been preserved during the past day, and that we are allowed, after its engagements and temptations and cares, as a worshipping family to surround the domestic altar, and proclaim the loving-kindness of the Lord, whose mercy endureth for ever!

O that we were humbled before God on account of our sinfulness and guilt. We confess our ignorance, folly, unbelief, and carnality. By the righteousness of Jesus may our guilt be removed, and by the Spirit of Christ may our vile and hateful pollution be washed away.

Blessed Saviour, may the remembrance of thy sufferings fill our minds with wonder and our hearts with love. Unspeakable thy mercy—thou didst visit our world to save thine enemies! The very objects of thy mercy are by nature alienated from thee; and such is the enmity of their hearts, that, even now, were it in their power, they would crucify thee afresh, they would repeat the dreadful scene of Calvary, and put thee to an open shame. Deliver us from the enmity of our hearts, and may we be filled with the love of God. On good and satisfying ground may we be able with thy servant Peter to acknowledge, Thou knowest all things, thou knowest that we love thee. May we possess such degrees of love to Christ, that it shall no longer be a matter of doubt whether we love him or not.

Glory to thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst willingly submit to the greatest indignities for us. Meekly and patiently thou didst allow witnesses to appear against thee; thou gavest thy back to the smiters, and didst not even conceal thy face from shame and spitting. All this thou didst bear, when in a moment thou mightest have called for legions of angels to bind these thy cruel foes, and cast them into the lowest hell. The period of thy humiliation is now past, and there is a day very fast approaching, when thou shalt appear upon a throne of judgment, and all thine enemies shall stand before thy tribunal to receive the punishment of their cruelty and crimes. Prepare us for that solemn day. Sanctify to us the fall of Peter, and preserve us from confidence in our own strength.

Lord, affect the minds of our children and domestics with the sufferings of Christ, and may impressions be produced now which will remain for ever.

Let thy power be a hedge of protection around us this night: let no evil befall us, nor any plague come nigh our dwelling. May our putting off our raiment, and lying down to sleep remind us of putting off the body of dust and lying down in the bed of the grave. And by faith may we look onward to the resurrection of the just. Graciously do for us above all that we can ask or think, through Jesus Christ, our only Mediator. Amen.

MYSTERIES TO BE EXPLAINED HEREAFTER.

Eden. Sand Down. Bamford. Salford. c. s.

- 1 GREAT God of providence! thy ways
Are hid from mortal sight;
Wropt in impenetrable shades,
Or clothed with dazzling light.
- 2 The wondrous methods of thy grace
Evince the human eye;
The nearer we attempt to approach,
The farther off they fly.
- 3 But in the world of bliss above,
Where thou dost ever reign,
These mysteries shall be all unveiled,
And not a doubt remain.

BDDOME.

GENESIS XLIII.

Benjamin sent into Egypt.

AND the famine was sore in the land.

2 And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, Go again, buy us a little food.

3 And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man did solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food:

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down: for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they said, The man asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the tenor of these words: could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

9 I will be surety for him; of my hand shalt thou require him: if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever:

10 For except we had lingered, surely now we had returned this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds:

12 And take double money in your hand; and the money that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand; peradventure it was an oversight:

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man:

14 And God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved.

15 And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and alay, and make ready; for these men shall dine with me at noon.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade; and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time are we brought in; that he may seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bondmen, and our asses.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLIII.—If we compare sin to a fountain, all the calamities which affect our world are the streams which flow from this fountain. Amazing contrast, the fountain of sin, and the fountain of salvation! What an incalculable blessing!—there is an abundance of the bread of life, and it is our privilege to buy without money, and without price! Judah, as an elder brother, interceded with his father: Jesus, our elder Brother, intercedes with his Father for us. Judah interceded powerfully, and Jesus intercedes with great power on the plea of his righteousness; Judah interceded tenderly, and the heart of Jesus our Advocate overflows with tenderness and love. And let us rejoice that he pleads successfully before his Father's throne.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Saviour, thou hast said, I am the way, the truth, and the life; and no man can come unto the Father but by me. Through thee as the way we now approach the divine Majesty. Exalted and gracious Jehovah, we would now praise thee with our whole heart, and show forth thy marvellous works. We will be glad and rejoice in thee: we will sing praise to thy name, O thou Most High.

We thank thee, God of providence and grace, for the mercies of the past night. We have laid us down and slept, and awoke again, because thou hast sustained us. No evil has befallen us, and no plague has come near our dwelling.

Holy Spirit, who didst inspire the penmen of the sacred volume, when we read thy Word may the eyes of our understanding be opened to see wonderful things in thy law. May the reading of the Word prove efficacious in the conversion of those now before thee who may not yet be the subjects of grace; and may it promote the edification of such as may have tasted that God is gracious. May we learn from what we have read of the history of the church in the family of Jacob, lessons of wisdom and experience. Even the family of thy servant suffered by scarcity of bread, and were exposed to the fear of the calamities of famine. We thank thee that, to the present day, our bread has been given us, and our water has been sure. We have unceasingly drunk of the stream of thy providential goodness from our birth to the present time. As the stream followed the children of Israel through the ancient desert, the stream of thy kindness has constantly followed us, and we have lacked nothing to the present day. What reason have we to sing, O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. Who giveth food unto all flesh; for his mercy endureth for ever. We praise thee for our spiritual food, our heavenly manna. We adore thee for that sovereignty which has cast our lot in a portion of the earth where there is no famine of the Word, but where the Word of God is distilled as the dew, and where there is a rich gospel-feast, enriched with the delicacies of heaven, a feast prepared for all people.

Give to our dear children and domestics a relish for the blessings of salvation. May we evidently see that they are hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and let not the corrupted allurements of an ensnaring world withdraw their heart from thee.

O Lord, we commit our souls, our bodies, our temporal affairs, our friends, and our relatives, to the care and conduct of thy good providence this day. Compass us as with a shield, and may we be preserved in our going out and coming in.

We seek the forgiveness of all our sins, through the peace-speaking blood of Christ. We plead the pardon of those sins and infirmities which cleave closely to our most solemn services. May our persons be accepted, and our prayers answered for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS AND ZEAL.

Athlons Rippon's Virginia.

L. M.

- 1 T WAS for my sake, eternal God,
Thy Son sustained that heavy load
Of base reproach and sore disgrace;
And shame defiled his sacred face.
- 2 The Jews, his brethren and his kin,
Abused the man that checked their sin;
While he fulfilled thy holy laws,
They hate him, but without a cause.
- 3 My Father's house, said he, was made
A place for worship, not for trade;
Then scattering all their gold and brass,
He scourged the merchants from the place.
- 4 Zeal for the temple of his God
Consumed his life, exposed his blood;
Reproaches at thy glory thrown
He felt, and mourned them as his own.

WATTS, Pa. 69, p. 11.

MATTHEW XXVII.

Jesus before Pilate.

WHEN the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death:

2 And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor.

3 Then Judas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,

4 Saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that.

5 And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself.

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, The field of blood, unto this day.

9 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Israel did value;

10 And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.

11 And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest.

12 And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.

13 Then said Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?

14 And he answered him to never a word; insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 Now at that feast the governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would.

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore, when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVII.—Jesus was scarcely born, when princes took counsel to shed his blood; and at last, priests took counsel to take his life. More bitter than wormwood and gall is that repentance which is too late. We should earnestly pray that our penitence may be repentance unto life. The despair and suicide of Judas proclaim, in accents louder, and more awful than the thunders of the heavens, "The wages of sin is death!" Christ's blood was sold for thirty pieces of silver, and the blood of Christ is the purchase of the salvation and life of a multitude which no man can number, out of all nations, and tongues, and people, and languages. Have we received Christ by faith?—Then we are among the number of his purchased and redeemed ones. As a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so Jesus opened not his mouth in the day of his great sorrow. If his silence excited Pilate's wonder, may it excite our love, and call forth the praises of our lips.

PRAYER.

WITH solemnity and faith, O Lord, we would address thee as our God and Father in Christ. The enemies of thy Son, of thy kingdom, and of thy people, may seem for a season to triumph, as they did when our Lord appeared before the unjust tribunal of wicked men; but the triumphing of the wicked is short. Thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thou hast prepared thy throne for judgment, where thy cruel and impenitent foes shalt meet their awful doom. Thou wilt judge the world in righteousness, and minister judgment to the people in uprightness. Thou art now, and wilt continue to the close of time, a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble. Put us among the number of them who know thy name, and who place their trust in thee; for thou hast not forsaken them that seek thee.

We desire to be humbled in the dust on account of the dreadful change sin has produced in the nature of man. O sanctify the melancholy description we have now read of the envy, malignity, and cruelty of the human heart, which were all manifested against Christ. Blessed Saviour, we would look back with joyful and grateful interest to the council of peace from all eternity, where purposes were entered into, that salvation should be provided for fallen man. This was thy love to man, O Jesus! But when thou didst appear on this errand of mercy, men took counsel to reward thy love with enmity, thy mercy with cruelty, and thy loving-kindness with death. Let the conviction of these truths sink deep into our hearts, and produce effects never to be erased. We thank thee, O Jesus, that thou didst submit to be bound for those who deserved for ever to be enslaved in the prison of hell. Amazing love! thou who bindest the furious winds, thou didst submit to be bound; yea, thou didst submit to be bound, that we might obtain eternal liberty from sin and wrath. O thou great Deliverer, set us free! We have been long bound fast by vile lusts, hateful passions, blinded prejudices, and oppressive guilt: O set us free!

Give spiritual freedom to our dear children. Deliver them from ignorance and folly. Convince them that liberty in sinning is true bondage, and that a life of sin leads to an eternity of misery. Merciful Jesus, give them the liberty of grace, and make them thy free-born children.

Holy Spirit, give us repentance unto life, and let not our repentance resemble the repentance of Judas, which was the repentance of despair and death. May we not be suffered to delay the great subject of repentance. Impress our heart with this truth, Now is the accepted time, and now is the day of salvation.

Lord, have mercy on the afflicted, whether in body or in mind. Pour the consolations of thy grace into the cup of their lot, and may they draw water with joy out of the wells of salvation.

We bless the Lord for the mercies of the day. We praise thee for daily loading us with thy benefits. This night we commit ourselves, and all who are dear to us, to the merciful and paternal care of our new-covenant God. Hear, and answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake, who triumphed over death and the grave. Amen, and amen.

LOVE TO THE BRETHREN.

Leicester. Mapletad. Vermont. Harborough. A. B.

- 1 BLEST be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love!
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.
- 2 Before our Father's throne
We pour our ardent prayers:
Our fears, our hopes, our aims, are one,—
Our comforts and our cares.
- 3 We share our mutual woes;
Our mutual burdens bear;
And often for each other flows
The sympathizing tear.

F. W. C. G. T.

GENESIS XLIII.

Joseph entertaineth his Brethren.

AND they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house.

20 And said, O sir, we came indeed down at the first time to buy food:

21 And it came to pass, when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and, behold, every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight: and we have brought it again in our hand.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, Peace be to you, fear not: your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks: I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.

24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and gave them water, and they washed their feet; and he gave their asses provender.

25 And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should eat bread there:

26 And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and bowed themselves to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of their welfare, and said, Is your father well, the old man of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive. And they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

29 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, my son.

30 And Joseph made haste; for his bowels did yearn upon his brother: and he sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

32 And they set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews; for that is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

33 And they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

34 And he took and sent messes unto them from before him: but Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of their's. And they drank, and were merry with him.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLIII.—Joseph's steward was the comforter of Jacob's sons in their perplexity and affliction; and it is the commission and delight of Christ's faithful ministers to be the guides and comforters of his afflicted saints. It is an honour to have pious parents and ancestors; but it is an infinitely greater honour to be enriched with those graces which they possessed, and to enjoy that peace with which they were blessed. Jacob's sons offered presents to Joseph: have we presented ourselves to Christ living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God, which is our reasonable service? Jacob's sons greatly honoured their brother Joseph: and let us delight to pay our homage at the feet of Jesus, our elder Brother, who has preserved us from destruction, and has provided for us the richest supplies of living, heavenly bread. May we therefore eat, and live for ever.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, in all our approaches to thy throne of grace, may we be under the guidance of thy Holy Spirit. We thank God for the promise of the Spirit, and would now humbly pray for the fulfilment of that gracious promise. Blessed Saviour, we lay the promise at thy feet. Thou hast said, The Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you. We thank thee for this exceedingly great and precious promise. Mercifully fulfil it in our experience as a family, and in the experience of the church and congregation with which we are connected.

Holy Spirit, we invite thy presence. Come, gracious Spirit, come, heavenly Dove, with all thy light and comfort. Guard us with thy power, guide us by thy wisdom, and mercifully preside over all our thoughts and all our actions.

We thank God for another opportunity of consulting the inspired oracles of eternal truth—for another opportunity of digging in the mines where the treasures of wisdom and immortality are to be found. Suffer not the Word to prove a dead letter, but may it be a hammer in the hand of the Spirit to break in pieces our adamant hearts, and a fire to melt them down into humility, repentance, faith, and love.

We thank our God for all the temporal blessings in our lot, for all the success with which thou hast crowned our efforts in our worldly calling. As Joseph's steward said, The God of your father hath given you treasure in your sack, so, most gracious God, whatever degree of prosperity we have enjoyed or may now enjoy in our temporal circumstances, thou the God of our fathers hast put the treasure into our cup.

As Joseph prayed for his brethren, may all the members of this family affectionately pray for each other. When we are in the retirements of the closet, may we remember each other at thy throne of grace. Let that sacred love prevail among us, which will make us truly concerned for each other's salvation, and which will animate us affectionately and powerfully to plead that all of us composing this family, and that all connected with us by the ties of nature and friendship, may be redeemed by the blood of Jesus, and at last assemble before the throne of glory in heaven.

Give a spirit of prayer to our children and our household. At an early age, when our children are not assailed by the anxious cares of life, may they know what it is to pour out their hearts before the Lord in ardent supplications.

We present the sacrifice of thanksgiving for the mercies of the past night, for the sleep, rest, refreshment, and protection thou hast graciously afforded. Thou hast not suffered the fire to destroy, nor thieves to break through and steal.

Give us grace to be diligent and faithful in the various duties and engagements of this day, whether sacred or secular, temporal or spiritual. May we be diligent in business, and fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Preserve us from offending thee. Enable us to say, in the words of Christ, To do thy will we take delight. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake.

And we would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost equal and undivided praises. Amen.

ATTRACTION OF THE CROSS.

Spillbrook. Cambridge. Oxford.

C. H.

- 1 YONDER—amazing sight!—I see
The incarnate son of God,
Expiring on the accursed tree,
And weltering in his blood.
- 2 Behold a purple torrent run
Down from his hands and head:
The crimson tide puts out the sun;
His groans awake the dead.
- 3 The trembling earth, the darkened sky,
Proclaim the truth aloud;
And, with the amazed centurion, cry,
This is the Son of God.

S. STANNETT.

MATTHEW XXVII.

Jesus crucified.

WHEN he was set down on the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him.

20 But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.

21 The governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified.

23 And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.

26 Then released he Barabbas unto them: and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers.

28 And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe.

29 And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, king of the Jews!

30 And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.

31 And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.

32 And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear his cross.

33 And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, A place of a skull, 34 They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with gall: and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

35 And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.

36 And sitting down they watched him there;

37 And set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then were there two thieves crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVII.—Pilate sinned against the loud voice of his conscience, and he infinitely aggravated his guilt by resisting the warnings of heaven. In the council of peace it was arranged from eternity that Jesus should lay down his life for the redemption of sinners, and in a council of enmity held by the rulers of the Jewish church in the fulness of time it was agreed and determined that by cruel hands Jesus should be taken and slain. Thus the murderous purposes and actions of men were overruled for accomplishing the sovereign and merciful decrees of God. The compunctions and misgivings of a pagan judge exhibit in the darkest form the enormous guilt of the Jewish priests, who thirsted more intensely for the innocent blood of Jesus, the spotless Lamb of God, than ever did the cruel tiger for its victim's blood. None can conceive the hardened depravity of Jewish ecclesiastics, in preferring a blood-stained murderer before Jesus, the perfection of holiness and love. What love should fill our hearts, when we remember that Christ was degraded that we might be honoured!—that he was stripped of his raiment that we might be clothed with the garments of salvation!—that he died that we might live!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord our God, as the God of love. How inconceivable are the manifestations of thy love in the gift of thy Son, and in delivering him to suffering, ignominy, and death; that wretched, guilty, ruined man might obtain salvation, happiness, and heaven! Such is thy love to man that thou didst give thine only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

Holy Spirit, mercifully open the eyes of all in thy presence kneeling around this domestic altar, that they may see their absolute need of Christ, thine unspeakable gift. May we see our need of Jesus as a prophet to remove our ignorance: Lord Jesus, remove our ignorance. May we see our need of Jesus as a priest to remove our guilt: Lord Jesus, remove our guilt. May we see our need of Jesus as our King to deliver us from bondage: Lord Jesus, give us the liberty of thy sons.

In the reading of thy holy Word, we have now obtained a near and affecting view of the sufferings of Christ, and we would earnestly pray that we may see, in the sufferings of our Lord, the greatness of our sins, which brought such calamities on his sacred head, and the greatness of his love, which stirred him up to endure such sufferings to take the burden of our guilt away. O Jesus, as there were no sufferings like thy sufferings, and no sorrow like thy sorrow, there was no love like thy love.

O enkindle in the bosoms of our children a flame of love to Christ, which will warm their hearts all their days, preserving them from the contagion of sin, from the allurements of temptation, the snares of the world, and, at the same time, giving them a foretaste of the felicity of heaven.

Holy Saviour, bless what we have now read of the malignity of the Jewish priests in stirring up the people to seek thy death, of the cruel indignities which were shown thee when thine enemies stripped thee of thy garments, mocked thee, spit on thee, and nailed thee on the accursed tree. We pray that we may never forget these thy sufferings, but that we may daily remember them as the manifestations of thy matchless love, and as the purchase of our salvation.

We have come to the close of another week. Thou hast richly added to thy mercies: for these we thank thee. But, alas! we have added to our sins; O extend to us thy fatherly pardon; O pardon us, for Jesus' sake!

May our lives be preserved this night; and, if we are spared in thy goodness to see another day of the Son of man, may we be enabled with sincerity of heart to present our soul and body a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable, which is our reasonable service.

Lord, hear and answer and forgive, for the sake of Jesus thy Son and our Saviour. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us and all our relatives, and with all the Israel of God, now and for ever. Amen.

BOOKS OF NATURE AND SCRIPTURE.

Alfred. Cottage. Lebanon. New Sabbath.

L. H.

- 1 THE heavens declare thy glory, Lord,
In every star thy wisdom shines;
But when our eyes behold thy word,
We read thy name in fairer lines.
- 2 The rolling sun, the changing light,
And nights and days thy power confess;
But the blest volume thou hast writ
Reveals thy justice and thy grace.
- 3 Sun, moon, and stars, convey thy praise
Round the whole earth, and never stand:
So when thy truth began its race,
It touched and glanced on every land.
- 4 Nor shall thy spreading gospel rest,
Till through the world thy truth has run;
Till Christ has all the nations blest,
That see the light or feel the sun.

WARR, Ps. 19.

PSALM XIX.

God in his Works and in his Word.

THE heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork.

2 Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

3 There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard.

4 Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,

5 Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.

6 His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

7 The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple.

8 The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes.

9 The fear of the LORD is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the LORD are true and righteous altogether.

10 More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb.

11 Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward.

12 Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults.

13 Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression.

14 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, my strength, and my redeemer.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XIX.—No mortal eye can see God, while the eye of faith sees God in all his works, and the wonderful displays of his attributes in creation, providence, and redemption. It is humiliating to think of philosophers, of attainments the most splendid, who are acute in observing God's wonderful works, but who never see, or admire, or adore God in the works of his hands! This is the enjoyment of the humblest saint,—while he looks upon the earth, the sun, the moon, the stars, he can exclaim, in holy and delighted devotion, "My Jesus made them all!" What a glorious firmament of Divine light is the Word of God, the testimony of eternal truth! There we see Christ, the Sun of Righteousness, shining in all his majesty, grace, and influence. Important question!—Has he risen on us with healing on his wings? By his holy and Divine beams has the darkness of our natural state been dispelled, and do we enjoy the animating brightness of a spiritual day? Under his influence, is Divine grace growing within us, increasing in verdure, and bringing forth the fruits of righteousness? What a blessed day awaits the world, when the gloomy night of heathen ignorance and idolatry shall be followed by the universal shining of Christ, the Sun of Righteousness; when the Church shall arise and sing for joy, because her light shall then have come, and the glory of the Lord shall have risen upon her!

PRAYER.

PRAISE to thee, O Lord our God, that we are assembled around the domestic altar to worship thee as the only living and true God, and that we are not prostrating ourselves before dumb idols, the workmanship of the hands of men. Holy Spirit, enable us at this time to adore the divine Majesty with reverence and godly fear. O Lord, thou art the true God, thou art the living God, and an everlasting King; the earth shall tremble at thy wrath, and those nations which rebel against thee shall not be able to abide thine indignation. The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, they shall perish from the earth, and from under these heavens. Thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever, for the earth is made by thy power, it is established by the word of thy wisdom, and thou hast stretched out the heavens by thy discretion. While the heavens declare thy glory, and the firmament showeth thy handy works, we bless and praise thee that the glory of thy perfections shines with far greater glory in the Person, the righteousness, and the salvation of thy well-beloved Son.

We thank thee for the Sabbath-day, and that we have been preserved during another night, and are now permitted to enter on the sacred engagements of this day, which is the harbinger of the holy rest and the sublime employments of the heavenly state. Let the glory of Christ shine in all the churches. May he be held up faithfully to the view of men, may multitudes behold him, may their faces be lightened, and may their souls be saved. Thy glory, God of grace, shines in the natural sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoicing as a strong man to run a race; but thy glory shines with most pre-eminent glory in Jesus Christ, the Sun of Righteousness, whose blessed beams enlighten the benighted hearts of the children of men. Thou Sun of Righteousness, shine gloriously this day in the midst of the congregation with which we are connected, and throughout the whole Christian world, and arise with healing in thy wings on multitudes who are at this moment in the dark and dreary region of the shadow of death. May thy ministering servant who is to break among us the bread of life be endued with a double portion of thy Spirit, and rendered successful in bursting asunder the fetters of poor, wretched, captive souls, that they may for ever be set free.

Look with pity on our dear children in the midst of us, and make them the subjects of grace. O Sun of Righteousness, shine upon them.

Have mercy upon the afflicted this day. Thou omnipresent God, visit them with thy salvation in their habitations of suffering.

Thou King of kings, have mercy upon our rulers. Give them grace to venerate thine ordinances and sanctify thy Sabbath. Thou hast made them great; O make them gracious.

Let Bible and missionary institutions soon be successful in evangelizing the world. O restore the Jews to thy Church. Blessed Saviour, go forward, on this thy Sabbath, in the chariot of thy Gospel, conquering and to conquer. Give us grace to sanctify thy day, and let no sin have the dominion over us. May the words of our mouth, and the meditation of our heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, our strength and Redeemer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PRAYER AND HOPE OF VICTORY.

Folkstone. New Bethelton. Angel's Hymn.

L. M.

- 1 NOW may the God of power and grace
Attend his people's humble cry!
Jehovah hears when Israel prays,
And brings deliverance from on high.
- 2 The name of Jacob's God defends
Better than shields or brazen walls;
Ho from his sanctuary sends Succour and strength when Zion calls.
- 3 Well he remembers all our sighs,
His love exceeds our best deserts;
His love accepts the sacrifice
Of humble groans and broken hearts.

Watts, Ps. 20.

PSALM XX.

The Church rejoicing in the King.

THE LORD hear thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob defend thee.

2 Send thee help from the sanctuary, and strengthen thee out of Zion.

3 Remember all thy offerings, and accept thy burnt sacrifice. Selah.

4 Grant thee according to thine own heart, and fulfil all thy counsel.

5 We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners: the LORD fulfil all thy petitions.

6 Now know I that the LORD saveth his anointed; he will hear him from his holy heaven with the saving strength of his right hand.

7 Some trust in chariots, and some in horses: but we will remember the name of the LORD our God.

8 They are brought down and fallen: but we are risen, and stand upright.

9 Save, LORD: let the king hear us when we call.

PSALM XXI.

Thanksgiving for Victory.

THE king shall joy in thy strength, O LORD; and in thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice!

2 Thou hast given him his heart's desire, and hast not withholden the request of his lips. Selah.

3 For thou preventest him with the blessings of goodness: thou settest a crown of pure gold on his head.

4 He asked life of thee, and thou gavest it him, even length of days for ever and ever.

5 His glory is great in thy salvation: honour and majesty hast thou laid upon him.

6 For thou hast made him most blessed for ever: thou hast made him exceeding glad with thy countenance.

7 For the king trusteth in the LORD, and through the mercy of the most High he shall not be moved.

8 Thine hand shall find out all thine enemies: thy right hand shall find out those that hate thee.

9 Thou shalt make them as a fiery oven in the time of thine anger: the LORD shall swallow them up in his wrath, and the fire shall devour them.

10 Their fruit shalt thou destroy from the earth, and their seed from among the children of men.

11 For they intended evil against thee: they imagined a mischievous device, which they are not able to perform.

12 Therefore shalt thou make them turn their back, when thou shalt make ready thine arrows upon thy strings against the face of them.

13 Be thou exalted, LORD, in thine own strength: so will we sing and praise thy power.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XX., XXI.—It is vain in the day of trouble to flee to man for help; while they who trust in God shall be like mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. Believers know and are confident that God will be their help, their defence, and their deliverance; for he has given them the promises of his truth, which are more durable than the hills, and more secure than the mountains. God the Father has given his Son and Anointed his heart's desire. He has given him the heathen for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession. He has crowned him with glory and honour. They who submit to his authority he will save, but his impenitent enemies shall perish,—like the fat of lambs they shall consume away.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, great and omnipotent is thy strength. How powerful is the arm of thy grace to save thy people, and how powerful is the arm of thy justice to punish and destroy thine enemies! As a family we desire to joy in thy strength, and to rejoice greatly in thy salvation. Let the fame of thy gracious strength soon be proclaimed throughout the earth. Be thou exalted in thy strength; so will we sing and praise thy power.

We would rejoice with all our hearts that the trumpet of the Gospel has been sounded in the ears of millions this day, and in particular that in our land Jesus has been lifted up to the view of men. Lord, bless our country. Thou hast given us a powerful defence, our valleys and mountains are wonderfully enriched with natural productions from the fountain of thy providential bounty, thou hast given us commerce and wealth, thou hast blest us with universities and seminaries of learning, thou hast given us strength and glory among the empires of the earth. O that we were a nation of saints! O that all the inhabitants, from our chief rulers to the meanest of the people clothed in rags, were the loyal and the faithful subjects of Immanuel, God with us! May we as a church and nation rejoice in thy salvation; in the name of our God we would set up our banners. O Lord, fulfil all our petitions. While some trust in chariots, and some in horses, we will remember the name of the Lord our God.

Merciful Father, show compassion to bereaved widows, and betroth them unto thyself in righteousness. O have pity upon weeping orphans, and say unto them, I will be your everlasting Father. Comfort the sorrowful, supply the wants of the needy, and relieve the tempted.

Bless the Word which has been this day proclaimed. O fulfil that animating promise, which we now plead, and which we now lay down before thee: For as the rain cometh down and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall my word be that goeth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void; but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. May this promise be extensively fulfilled.

Lord, have mercy on our children. Prevent them with thy goodness. May thy goodness be ever before them and behind them, on the right-hand and the left. Give them a crown of holiness, which will be better than a crown of gold; and the garments of salvation, which will be better than robes of royalty.

We thank God that we have been permitted to surround the gospel-table this day. May the food we received in thy sanctuary be effectual in promoting our salvation. Our God, who reigns above, watch over us this night, let no calamity befall our dwelling. O hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

EIGHTH WEEK.—MONDAY

MYSTERIES OF PROVIDENCE.

Church Street. Bys. Charlestown. Anniversary.      C. M.

- 1 GOD moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm.
- 2 Deep in unfathomable mines
Of never-failing skill,
He treasures up his bright designs,
And works his sovereign will.
- 3 Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take,
The clouds ye so much dread
Are big with mercy, and shall break
In blessings on your head.

COWPER.

GENESIS XLIV.

Joseph's Policy to detain Benjamin.

AND he commanded the steward of his house, saying, Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

2 And put my cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn money. And he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses.

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he divineth? Ye have done evil in so doing.

6 And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing:

8 Behold, the money, which we found in our sacks' mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

9 With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, both let him die, and we also will be my lord's bondmen.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; for he was yet there: and they fell before him on the ground.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine?

16 And Judah said, What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

17 And he said, God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

UPON GEN. XLIV.—Jesus, our Divine Joseph and Surety, most bountifully supplies his people with every needful grace. His bounty is worthy of his boundless fulness. When he the cup of their temporal prosperity, it is often the harbinger of severe afflictions and perplexity, which will severely test their faith and try their patience. Great are the uncertainties and numerous the changes which the heaven-bound traveller meets with journeying to his celestial home. At one time his sky is bright, at another it is overcast with gloomy and foreboding clouds. At one time he says, "My mountain stands strong, I shall not be moved;" at another, "All these things are against me!" At one time he sings the song of triumph, at another he pours forth the bitter wallings of unbelief. And why all this trial and woe? It is to prepare for that heaven above, where all is tranquillity, peace, and joy.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, on the return of the morning light, we would humbly and thankfully approach thy throne in the name of Christ. Blessed Saviour, we meditate with joy on the merit of thy righteousness, the prevalence of thine intercession, and the glory of thy name. Thou hast opened up to the throne of God a new and living way, and through thee we would approach the throne of mercy, and prostrate ourselves before the Lord our God. Having a high-priest over the house of God, let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

Graciously accept, O Lord, the expressions of our thankfulness for the mercies of the past night. Thou hast kept us in perfect peace, and we trust our minds have been stayed on thee. As a family, we have abundant reason to employ the language of the Psalmist: The Lord is our strength and our shield, our heart trusted in him and we are helped: therefore our heart greatly rejoiceth, and with our song we will praise thee.

We would remember with thankfulness the mercies of the past Sabbath. We praise thee that thousands sat under the shadow of the tree of life with great delight, and that multitudes drew water with joy out of the wells of salvation. Are there any now kneeling before thee strangers to the saving power of the Gospel of Christ? may the messages yesterday delivered issue in their conversion. O preserve them from spiritual hardness under the means of grace. God forbid that thy Word, which has proved to myriads the savour of life unto life, should prove to any of us the savour of death unto death. Holy Spirit, avert a calamity so great, and make all of us the subjects of thy salvation.

Have mercy on the afflicted and the aged who yesterday longed to be in thy courts, but were prevented by the hand of thy chastisement. If it is thy will, loose them from the chains of affliction, and bring them out of the furnace like the silver which has been seven times tried.

We have now read of the afflictions of Joseph's brethren. Thou didst afflict them, and try them in wisdom, justice, and mercy. In all our afflictions may we see thy justice, and not complain; may we see thy wisdom, and rejoice; may we see thy mercy, and sing, It is good for us that we have been afflicted.

Lord, prepare our dear children for the day of affliction. If they have early afflictions, may they find it good to bear the yoke in their youth. If any of them die without reaching maturity of years, may early death be early glory.

Suffer us not to stumble at the events of thy providence, however dark, however mysterious. As the sons of Jacob at last found a smiling providence behind a frowning face, may we believe that if we sow in tears we shall reap in joy.

Give us grace to live this day under the impression of the Word we have now read, and the Gospel to which we listened on the past Sabbath. May all around have reason to say, respecting us, That family has been with Jesus.

Lord, forgive our sins, and hear us in thy great mercy, for his sake who loved us, and gave himself for us. Amen and amen.

CHRIST'S DEATH AND VICTORY.

Montgomery. New Conquest. Arlington. Boston. c. n.

- 1 I sing my Saviour's wondrous death;
He conquered when he fell;
'Tis finished, said his dying breath,
And shook the gates of hell.
- 2 'Tis finished, our Immanuel cries,
The dreadful work is done:
Hence shall his sovereign throne arise
His kingdom is begun.
- 3 His cross a sure foundation laid
For glory and renown,
When through the regions of the dead
He passed to reach the crown. WATTS, 114, D. 11.

MATTHEW XXVII.

Christ's Death.

AND they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads, 40 And saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.

41 Likewise also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said,

42 He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

43 He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the son of God.

44 The thieves also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

47 Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

49 The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

50 Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.

51 And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent;

52 And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose,

53 And came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 Now when the centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.

55 And many women were there beholding afar off, which followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him:

56 Among which was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedee's children.

57 When the even was come, there came a rich man of Ari-mathæa, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple:

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth,

60 And laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVII.—Sympathy and compassion brought Christ from heaven to earth, that he might deliver man from the misery of eternal death; but, alas! when he was dying on the cross for the salvation of man he received no pity from man. He who merited the loudest hallelujahs of praise was assailed by execrations, mocking, and scorn! He was reproached for remaining on the cross, which if he had not done the salvation of a lost world had never been accomplished. For the greatest act of mercy and love he was reproached and execrated, without which the human race must have been for ever alienated from God, and excluded from the glories of immortality. In what an awfully affecting and degrading light does the heart of man appear in the chief priests of the Jews! They were the chief tormentors, mockers, and murderers of Jesus: now they are the chief of sufferers. They showed Christ no pity in his sufferings, and now they are suffering where there is no pitying eye, and where there is no helping, comforting hand! What a spectacle! the incarnation of the Divinity stretched in the narrow grave and gloomy sepulchre a lifeless corpse! O how this event has consecrated the tomb, and thus made it an honourable resting-place for the ashes of the redeemed!

PRAYER.

O LORD, our heavenly Father, mercifully send us thy Holy Spirit, the promised Comforter, that we may be enabled, with sincerity, solemnity, and acceptance, to approach thy throne in fervent and believing supplication. Thou hast graciously watched over us during another day; thou hast given us our daily bread, our daily defence, our daily protection, and art now conferring upon us the distinguished honour of enjoying as a family converse with thyself, at the termination of this day.

Heavenly Father, we are deeply affected when we witness or remember the death of dear, departed relatives; O may we be more deeply affected with the account we have now read of the death of Christ, our nearest friend, our best friend, the friend that sticketh closer than a brother. We would mourn over our cold, selfish, and adamantine hearts.

Deeply impress our dear children and domestics with the death of Christ. Open their eyes to see the wonders which are to be witnessed in the death of Christ.

Adored be thy name, O Jesus, that thou didst cheerfully lay down thy life. Though wicked men laid hold upon thee, and nailed thee to the accursed tree, thou didst not suffer by constraint, but of thine own accord thou didst meet the pains of death and the shame of crucifixion. Amazing love! thou didst say from eternity to thy divine Father, Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened: burnt-offering and sin-offering thou didst not require. Then said I, Lo I come: and in the volume of the Book it is written of me. Thou didst firmly and steadfastly set thy face to go up to Jerusalem, to be mocked, and scourged, and spit upon, and put to death. Thou didst willingly endure the cross; thou didst despise the shame.

Blessed Spirit, give us a lively faith in Jesus as having suffered and died for us. May we take up the appropriating language of the evangelical prophet; and may each one of us be instructed by thine influences thus to say for ourselves, Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and the Lord hath laid upon him the iniquity of us all.

Enable us and our beloved friends to cast all our hopes of pardon, acceptance, salvation, and heaven on the death and righteousness of Christ alone. This night may we lie down to rest reposing all our confidence on this only, this sure foundation, on which our faith can be safely placed. Hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, who is the faithful and true witness. Amen.

CHRIST'S INTERCESSION.

Sabbath. Staines. Islington. Fawcett.

L. M.

- 1 HE lives! the great Redeemer lives!
(What joy the blest assurance gives!)
And now, before his Father God,
Pleads the full merit of his blood.
- 2 Repeated crimes awake our fears,
And justice armed with frowns appears!
But in the Saviour's lovely face
Sweet mercy smiles, and all is peace.
- 3 Hence, then, ye black, despairing thoughts!
Above our fears, above our faults,
His powerful intercessions rise;
And guilt recedes, and terror dies.
- 4 In every dark, distrustful hour,
When sin and Satan join their power,
Let this dear hope repel the dart,
That Jesus bears us on his heart.

STEELE.

GENESIS XLIV.

Judah's Supplication.

THEN Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one; and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for if he should leave his father, his father would die.

23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, Except your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more.

24 And it came to pass when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord.

25 And our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

26 And we said, We cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down: for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that my wife bare me two sons:

28 And the one went out from me, and I said, Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since:

29 And if ye take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30 Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life;

31 It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall come on my father.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLIV.—Let believers rejoice that God the Father is their Father, and that God the Son is their elder Brother, interceding most skilfully, eloquently, affectionately, and successfully in their behalf before their heavenly Father's throne. How tender is the love of a parent's bosom, and how closely are children entwined around a parent's heart! Infinitely more tender is God's love to his children, and infinitely more closely are they entwined around his heart. Jacob could not endure the thought of being separated from his beloved Benjamin. How wonderful! God's ways are not as man's ways: "He spared not his own Son, his beloved Son, his only Son; but gave him up for us all, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." While it is our duty warmly to love our earthly relatives, we should learn from the history of Jacob that we hold them by a slight tenure, as uncertain as it is slight; and, also, we should cleave closely to Jesus, who can infinitely make up the loss of every earthly relation, however valuable and dear.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our God and Father in Christ, may we be instructed by thy Spirit to draw near unto thee at this time, and at all times, as children draw near to the parents they love, believing that we are welcome, and that thou wilt listen to our prayers, for the sake of thy well-beloved Son. We thank thee for encouragement to pray. Joseph allowed Judah to plead for his brother Benjamin, and we praise thee that we are allowed to pray and plead for each other, in the assured hopes of a gracious acceptance. Thou hast said, Ask, and it shall be given thee. Lord, teach us to ask, what to ask, and how to ask, believing we shall receive. Thou hast said, Seek, and ye shall find; O teach us to seek at thy throne the jewel of grace, and the crown of life, believing that we shall find the sacred treasure and the heavenly inheritance. Teach us to knock at mercy's door, with the hand of faith, believing that thou wilt open the door, and readily admit us to receive the portion of thy children.

We thank thee, O God of providence and grace, that our lives have been preserved during another night, and that we have not been cut down unprepared by the angel of death. What reason have we to praise thee, that we are now assembled in the most honourable and blessed spot on this side of heaven, namely, before thy throne of grace, pleading salvation through our Saviour's death! O may we find it good to be here; and may our delight in encompassing thine altar be so great, that we shall never forsake it all the days of our earthly pilgrimage. May we pray without ceasing, till we arrive at that world where praises and hallelujahs shall occupy in heaven the place of prayers for ever and ever.

O Lord, we acknowledge our sinfulness, unworthiness, and guilt. Without a Saviour we must perish. But we rejoice that thou hast found out a ransom, and that thou hast laid our help on one that is mighty, even David, thy well-beloved, thine eternal and only-begotten Son. Praise to our God, that we have heard the proclamations of thy mercy announcing, in accents sweeter than the music of seraphim, that thou hast found a Saviour infinitely qualified to manage our desperate case. Thou hast said, Behold my Servant whom I uphold, mine elect in whom my soul delighteth.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that thou art a skilful and successful Intercessor before thy Father's throne. We now put our cause into thy hand; we can entrust it with no other than thyself. Plead for us in mercy, and may all our beloved relatives and friends be interested in thy gracious intercession above.

We commit our dear children into thy hand; and may thy righteousness cover them now they are on earth; and through thy powerful pleading before the Father's throne may they at last become the inhabitants of heaven.

O Lord, let our prayers be accepted in the Beloved. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

RESURRECTION AND ASCENSION.

Anticipation. Bingsfeld. Hart's.

r. n.

- 1 ANGELS! roll the rock away!
 Death! yield up thy mighty prey!
 See! he rises from the tomb,
 Glowing with immortal bloom.      Hallelujah.
- 2 'Tis the Saviour! Angels, raise
 Fame's eternal trump of praise!
 Let the earth's remotest bound
 Hear the joy-inspiring sound.      Hallelujah.
- 3 Now, ye saints, lift up your eyes!
 Now to glory see him rise,
 In long triumph up the sky—
 Up to waiting worlds on high.      Hallelujah.

SCOTT.

MATTHEW XXVIII.

The Resurrection of Christ.

IN the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

2 And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

3 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

4 And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

5 And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

6 He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

8 And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

9 And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

10 Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11 Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and showed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

12 And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, 13 Saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept.

14 And if this come to the governor's ears, we will persuade him, and secure you.

15 So they took the money, and did as they were taught: and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

16 Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON MATT. XXVIII.—In Mary Magdalene we have a most remarkable display of Divine and gracious sovereignty: a woman raised from the lowest depths of immorality, depravity, and licentiousness, to the loftiest heights of holy attainments and spiritual enjoyments. Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, came with sorrowful hearts to see Jesus in his grave: now they behold him on his throne with ecstasies of delighted and affectionate adoration. They came to the grave to see him in his winding-sheet, and with a napkin around his head: now they behold him in his robes of mediatorial brightness, filling heaven with the matchless splendour of his glory. Let us rejoice that Christ is risen from the dead, as the first fruits of that marvellous harvest, which shall be reaped when the Son of man shall appear in the clouds of heaven to fill the judgment throne, and summon an assembled universe before his bar. What was the surprise of the holy women when they beheld the risen Saviour, whom they saw a few days before a mutilated, lifeless corpse upon the accursed tree! And what will be our surprise when we shall pass through the pearly gates of heaven, and see our exalted Redeemer receiving the homage and admiration of countless saints and angels!

PRAYER.

MOST merciful God, most gracious Father, we bow on thy footstool, and before thy throne of grace, in our great Redeemer's name. O Jesus, thy name is as ointment poured forth; therefore do the virgins love thee. Once thou didst bleed and groan and die on Calvary's accursed tree; once thou didst take upon thee the form of a servant, and didst appear in the likeness of sinful flesh. Being found in fashion as a man, thou didst humble thyself, and become obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. We would lift up our voices, and our voices with our heart, and sing, Hallelujah, hallelujah, these days of humiliation, shame, and suffering have fled away for ever! Now in thy mediatorial capacity thou art highly exalted; a name is given thee as the rich and well-merited reward of thine ignominy and death, even a name above the name of the loftiest of the angelic intelligences; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth: and that every tongue should confess that thou, the once crucified Jesus, art Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

Holy and divine Spirit, give us grace to rejoice in the resurrection of Christ, as a glorious manifestation of the truth of his mission, and of the efficacy of his death. May we see in the resurrection of our Lord that all the demands of justice were answered; may we see that the law was magnified and made honourable; may we see that an everlasting righteousness is completed and brought in; may we see that all the perfections of God are glorified, that the foundations of the Church are rendered for ever secure, that the plans and empire of Satan are overturned, and that the glorious resurrection of all the saints will most assuredly take place.

We adore thee, O Jesus, in the honour conferred on those pious women to whom thou didst first appear after bursting the bands of death. While thy disciples forsook thee and fled, when expiring on the cross, these holy women stood near the awful spot of ignominy and woe, and in thy kindness thou didst peculiarly honour them, by first appearing before them, when thou didst come forth from the tomb the conqueror of death.

If there are any now in thy presence still in the grave of a natural and unregenerate state, O mercifully bring them out of that gloomy sepulchre of spiritual death, and say unto them, LIVE.

Have pity upon our dear children, and give to us the sweet, the unspeakable joy of seeing them brought from the grave of spiritual death.

Comfort the afflicted and dying with the believing prospect of a blessed resurrection. And may we and our relatives be among the honoured number who shall rise first to meet the Lord in the air.

Receive our thanks for the mercies of the past day, watch over us this night, hear and answer and forgive, for the sake of thy well-beloved Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

GOD'S PRESENCE LIGHT IN DARKNESS.

Providence. Raphael. Hammond.

S. X.

- 1 MY God, the spring of all my joys,
The life of my delights,
The glory of my brightest days,
And comfort of my nights:
- 2 In darkest shades, if he appear,
My dawning is begun;
He is my soul's sweet morning-star,
And he my rising sun.
- 3 Tho' opening heavens around me shine
With beams of sacred bliss,
While Jesus shows his heart is mine,
And whispers, I am his.

WATTS, 54, B. II.

GENESIS XLV.

Joseph maketh himself known to his Brethren.

THEN Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried, Cause every man to go out from me. And there stood no man with him, while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

2 And he wept aloud: and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard.

3 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I am Joseph; doth my father yet live? And his brethren could not answer him; for they were troubled at his presence.

4 And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you. And they came near. And he said, I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt.

5 Now therefore be not grieved, nor angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither: for God did send me before you to preserve life.

6 For these two years hath the famine been in the land: and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be caring nor harvest.

7 And God sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.

8 So now, it was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

9 Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me, tarry not:

10 And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast:

11 And there will I nourish thee; for yet there are five years of famine; lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

12 And, behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you.

13 And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come: and it pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLV.—When we think of Jesus and his love what reason have we to say, "Blessed Saviour, thou dost manifest thyself to thy people in a way thou dost not unto the world. Great was the love of Joseph to his brethren; but how infinitely tender and fervent is thy love to returning penitents, and how unpeakable thy joy in receiving them to thine embrace!" Jesus, by his Spirit, places before the minds of his people their sins in their multitude and aggravation; but while he wounds them by calling their sins to their remembrance, he comforts them by pouring into their wounded hearts the fragrant, mollifying balm of consolation and peace, accompanied with the assured conviction of their interest in Divine love, and that their sins are forgiven and blotted out, and shall be remembered no more.

PRAYER.

OLORD our God, thou art a Spirit, and they who worship thee should worship thee in spirit and in truth. Thou seekest such to worship thee; mercifully teach us so to worship thee. Great is thy wisdom by which thou didst contrive the scheme of the universe, and by which thou didst contrive the plan of salvation. O that our eyes may be opened to see in some measure the wonders of this plan. Like the angels of heaven, may we desire to look into its profound and matchless mysteries, which display the manifold wisdom of God.

We desire with humility and contrition of heart to confess our transgressions before thee, and would lift up our eyes to the Holy Spirit, without whose aid we can never experience the slightest emotions of godly repentance. O Lord, we acknowledge that thou art infinitely worthy of our love, for thou art infinitely glorious, good, and gracious. We desire to be humbled in the dust, that our hearts have been and are still so estranged from thee, and that our affections have delighted in other objects in preference to thee. Mercifully forgive this sin, and wash away its stain. How often, O Jesus, have we preferred human friendship to thy love, and human intercourse to thy fellowship! Mercifully forgive this sin, and wash away its stain. How often have we preferred earthly riches before the treasures of grace—the sure mercies of David! Graciously forgive this sin, and wash away its stain. Much concern we have shown for the health of the body, and its preservation from the ravages of death; but O how little concern for the health and salvation of the soul, and its preservation from the ravages of eternal death! We would mourn over this sin, and earnestly plead that thou wouldst remove its guilt, and take away its stain. Where can we go, O Jesus, but to thee, for deliverance from our numerous sins, and the pardon of transgressions like the crimson and the scarlet! Let each one in this family now pray with penitential fervour, Shelter me, O Jesus, thou Rock of Ages, and enable me by faith to hide myself in thee. O may the water and blood which flowed from thy pierced heart cure the dreadful disease of sin in my soul, and cleanse me for ever from its guilt and power.

Teach us to see in the love of Joseph to his brethren an emblem of Christ's love to his people; and may we see in the provision which Joseph made for his father's family an animating type of the wonderful provision which Christ has made for the Church. Truly, O Immanuel, thy bowels of mercy did yearn over thy people: thou didst hasten to come from heaven to earth to reveal thyself as their Friend and Deliverer; thou didst say in the face of angels and men, I am Jesus, your elder Brother, come near and receive the testimonies of mine eternal love.

Take our dear children into covenant with thyself; let thy love melt their hearts, and may they be inclined to come unto thee to receive better treasures than Egypt could ever afford.

May the renewed instances of thy goodness during the past night lead us to thankfulness, love, and praise. May thy holy law be our guide this day, and our minds be constantly influenced by godly fear. We present our prayer in Jesus' name. May goodness and mercy follow us all the days of our life, and may we dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. Amen, and amen.

PHYSICIAN OF SOULS.

Penitents. St. Lawrence. Uberton. Gould's. I. N.

- 1 DEEP are the wounds which sin has made,
Where shall the sinner find a cure?
In vain, alas! is Nature's aid;
The work exceeds all Nature's power.
- 2 And can no sovereign balm be found?
And is no kind physician nigh,
To ease the pain and heal the wound,
Ere life and hope for ever fly?
- 3 There is a great Physician near;
Look up, O fainting soul, and live:
See, in his heavenly smiles appear
Such ease as Nature cannot give!

STENZL.

MARK I.

Christ performing Miracles.

AND there was in the synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, 24 Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 And when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, inasmuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

28 And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

29 And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

30 But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.

32 And at even, when the sun did set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils.

33 And all the city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils; and suffered not the devils to speak, because they knew him.

40 And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

41 And Jesus, moved with compassion, put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean.

42 And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed.

43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away;

44 And saith unto him, See thou say nothing to any man: out go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

45 But he went out, and began to publish it much, and to blaze abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK I.—Sin is the deformity and pollution of the soul; its government is the reign of uncleanness in all its forms. Let each of us pray with persevering earnestness, in the language of the penitent Psalmist, "Create in us a clean heart, and renew a right spirit within us. Purge us with hyssop, and we shall be clean: wash us, and we shall be whiter than the snow!" What reason have we to admire and adore the omnipotence of Christ, by which he created all worlds, by which he restrains the malicious violence of evil spirits, and delivers man from their Satanic influence and dominion! What a pestilence is sin!—it has infected the bodies of men with every description of physical malady, and the souls of men with every description of moral disease. Glory to Divine grace! we have heard of the fame of Jesus, the Divine, the skilful physician. He has power to heal and sanctify all the diseases of the body, and mercy to remove all the maladies of the soul.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Jesus, our exalted Saviour, we adore thee in thy Divine nature, perfections, prerogatives, and glory. Thou art the eternal Son of God, possessed of the same essence, and entitled to the same adoration, obedience, and praise with the Father and the Spirit. We would take up the language of the spirits of just men made perfect in heaven, and sing, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

May our minds be deeply affected, O Lord, with the homage which even unclean spirits were compelled to give to Jesus in the days of his humbled humanity, when they said, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God. Thy name, O Jesus, is above the names of all the principalities and powers on earth or in heaven. As to earthly princes, thou art able in one moment to cast them from their thrones, and lay their honour in the dust. As to the principalities and powers in the heavenly places, thou art the Lord of angels, who cheerfully obey the heavenly mandate, Let all the angels of God worship him. Gracious God, may we as a family, and all in whom we are interested, join the heavenly hosts above in shouting the praises of Immanuel, God with us. Like them, may we stand before the throne, and thus adore God and the Lamb: Holy, holy, holy Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

Great and merciful Redeemer, we come to thee as the Physician of the soul. Wonderful cures thou didst effect upon the diseased bodies of men; but thou art performing to the present moment far more wonderful cures upon the souls of men. We confess that our souls are unclean, and by nature altogether unclean. Thou knowest the numerous and powerful lusts by which our hearts are rendered loathsome in the sight of a holy God. We lay before thee our carnality, our pride, our earthly-mindedness, our enmity, and unbelief. Like the leper, we would come to thee kneeling, and beseech thee, saying, If thou wilt, thou canst make us clean. Lord Jesus, make us clean; sprinkle us with hyssop, and we shall be clean; wash thou us, and we shall be whiter than the snow.

Make our dear children now before thee acquainted with the diseases of their soul. Convince them and our domestics that they were born with the mortal disease of sin affecting their heart; and lead them now, before their corruptions acquire greater strength, to flee to Jesus, the physician of souls.

We acknowledge, O Jesus, that sin like a venomous disease has affected all our nature. But what reason have we to rejoice that the only balm is sovereign grace, and the physician, God!

May all of us have reason to sing for ever and ever, Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits, who healeth all thy diseases.

We give thanks for our life, our health, our reason, our domestic comfort, and the continuance of thy goodness during the past day. May refreshing sleep and Divine protection be afforded us this night. Hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for the sake of the Lord Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

SUBMISSION.

Duke Street. Kirby. Poet's.

L. H.

- 1 SAINTS, at your heavenly Father's word,
Give up your comforts to the Lord
He shall restore what you resign,
Or grant you blessings more divine.
- 2 So Abra'm with obedient hand
Led forth his son at God's command;
The wood, the fire, the knife he took,
His arm prepared the dreadful stroke.
- 3 Abra'm, forbear, the angel cried,
Thy faith is known, thy love is tried;
Thy son shall live, and in thy seed
Shall the whole earth be blessed indeed.

WATTS, 129, B. I.

GENESIS XLV.

Jacob heareth that Joseph is alive.

AND Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

18 And take your father and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land.

19 Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

20 Also regard not your stuff; for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

21 And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out by the way.

25 And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father, 26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. And Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not.

27 And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived:

28 And Israel said, It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

GENESIS XLVI.

Jacob goeth into Egypt.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices unto the God of his father Isaac.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob, Jacob. And he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there make of thee a great nation:

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely bring thee up again: and Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

5 And Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods, which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, Jacob, and all his seed with him

7 His sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and his sons' daughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLV., XLVI.—The kindness which Pharaoh manifested to Jacob and his household was excited in his royal bosom by Jacob's God, who has the hearts of all kings in his hands, and who turns them like the rivers of waters. Pharaoh prepared a goodly residence for the aged patriarch and his family in Egypt, the most fruitful country on the face of the earth. Infinitely more fruitful and glorious is that residence which Jesus has prepared for his people in heaven, and respecting which he said and promised for their encouragement, "I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go away, I will come again unto you, to receive you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also." May we be inspired with the lively hope that we shall be ever with the Lord!

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the holy Lord God, and as the Lord our God. Though we are vile and unworthy, and unfit to hold converse with thee, a righteous and holy God, we rejoice that we are welcome, through Jesus, our divine Mediator, to approach the mercy-seat. We thank thee for our preserved lives, our preserved faculties, our preserved health, and our preserved privileges, and that we are assembled this morning around the domestic altar possessed of all these invaluable talents. May the dew of the influences of the Spirit accompany what we have now read of the Word of life, and may the precious and incorruptible seed spring up, and bring forth an abundant harvest of good fruit, to the praise and glory of God. May we be living branches in Christ, the true vine. Let the words of Jesus sink deep into our hearts: "Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing."

Teach our dear children now in thy presence to love their parents, and to love one another. May they not only have a natural regard, but a spiritual affection for each other, which will last for ever.

We thank thee, O Saviour, that as Joseph enriched his father's family with silver and gold, thou hast provided unsearchable riches for thy Church; yea, thou didst actually become poor, that they might become rich. We praise thee that, as Joseph furnished them with change of raiment, thou in thy great mercy hast provided thy people with the robe of righteousness and the garments of salvation. We bless thee that, as Joseph gave his father and his brethren all that was necessary for their comfort and defence in their journey to Egypt, thou hast furnished thy followers with all that is necessary in their journey through the desert of this world to the heavenly land.

May we, O Lord, belong to the number of those who are travelling through the wilderness of this world to the heavenly rest. If there are any of this family who have not begun the journey, persuade them by thy grace now to commence. Convince them of the danger of delay. May they return, and come to Zion with songs. O may they hasten to return, and not delay. Let them not delay till to-morrow's sun. Suffer not their lamp of life to be extinguished, before their needful work is done.

Most merciful God, give us the pleasing evidence that thou art our God. Aged Jacob was encouraged all his days with the conviction of his interest in thee as his God. By faith in Christ, may we have the same conviction and the same comfort this day, and all our days, for our dear and exalted Saviour's sake. Amen.

PROFESSION OF LOVE TO CHRIST.

Salisbury Plains. Sprague. Huddersfield.

C. M.

- 1 AND have I, Christ, no love for thee,
No passion for thy charms?
No wish my Saviour's face to see,
And dwell within his arms?
- 2 Can I pronounce his charming name,
His acts of kindness tell;
And while I dwell upon the theme,
No sweet emotion feel?
- 3 A very wretch, Lord! I should prove,
Had I no love for Thee;
Rather than not my Saviour love,
O may I cease to be!

S. SIENNETT.

MARK II.

Christ healeth the Palsy.

AND again he entered into Capernaum after some days; and it was noised that he was in the house.

2 And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no room to receive them, no, not so much as about the door: and he preached the word unto them.

3 And they come unto him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four.

4 And when they could not come nigh unto him for the press, they uncovered the roof where he was: and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay.

5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.

6 But there were certain of the scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts,

7 Why doth this man thus speak blasphemics? who can forgive sins but God only?

8 And immediately when Jesus perceived in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, he said unto them, Why reason ye these things in your hearts?

9 Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk?

10 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy,)

11 I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house.

12 And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went forth before them all; insomuch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw it on this fashion.

MARK III.

Christ healeth the withered Hand.

AND he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there which had a withered hand.

2 And they watched him, whether he would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse him.

3 And he said unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth.

4 And he saith unto them, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

5 And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK II., III.—Have we felt the attractions of Jesus? Are we allured by his excellencies to enter his sanctuary, and listen to the accents of his love? That will be a glorious epoch in the history of the Church, when the people of all nations shall be gathered to Jesus, the Divine Shiloh, to have their understandings illuminated by his light, their hearts warmed with his love, and their souls enriched and beautified by his grace. Great is the power of Christ, and his mercy is equal to his power. Let us therefore take encouragement instantly to lay our diseased souls at his feet, that he may say to us in the abundance of his compassion, "I will, be ye whole." Then we shall be able to lift up our song of thankful melody and praise, "Bless the Lord, O our soul, and all that is within us be stirred up to bless his holy name, who forgiveth all our iniquities, and who healeth all our diseases." We should place the life and example of Christ before our eyes. O what a pattern he furnishes of zeal, unwearied and constant activity, benevolence, and mercy! They are honoured, happy, and blessed, who build on Christ's atonement for pardon and acceptance, and who take up his example to follow his steps, thus walking in love, as he also hath loved us. May we ever breathe his Spirit, and be filled with his fulness.

PRAYER.

OUR Lord our God, we adore thee as the God of providence and of grace. With gratitude and humility we would thank thee for thy fatherly and providential care of us during the past day. From thy storehouse we have received the food that nourished us, and from thy wardrobe we have received the raiment that covered and defended us. We thank thee that, before lying down upon our beds, we are allowed and disposed to draw near unto thee, and seek the blessings of thy salvation. O enable us more and more to value such privileges, and to improve them by thy spirit, as the harbingers of the employments and enjoyments of heaven. Blessed, infinitely blessed as a family shall we be, if, after our intercourse on earth, after we are separated by the hand of death, we shall meet in heavenly climes, to enjoy the glory of the beatific vision for ever and ever.

We praise thee for thy readiness to hear our prayers and answer our requests. Thou art now saying to us as individuals and as a family, What is thy petition, and thy request? and it shall be given thee. Holy Spirit, enable us to present suitable petitions in a suitable manner, and with a believing, humble heart. Our Father who art in heaven, we seek salvation. Are any of our family still in nature's darkness, still strangers to themselves as sinners, and to Christ as a Saviour? O have mercy upon them, pluck them as brands out of the burning, bring them into thy family and kingdom, and enrich them with the treasures of thy saving grace. God forbid that any member of this family should live and die despising their own mercy. God forbid that any of us should be found at the left-hand of the Judge on the great and solemn day when he shall appear on the white throne.

Make our dear children deeply concerned about their salvation. May our eyes be blest, by seeing in them the early dawning of Divine grace. As the diseased of whom we have now read pressed forward to experience the healing power of Christ, may they press forward in earnest prayer to seek his saving grace.

If there are any of us possessed of grace, what reason have we to mourn that our faith is so weak, our zeal so languid, and our love so cold. Mercifully revive these graces. May our faith be vigorous and active like the faith of Abraham, may our zeal be lively and constant like that of Paul, and our love be ardent and animating like that of John. Let not our graces be like plants in winter; suffer not the frosts of sin to deprive them of their verdure, beauty, or fruitfulness. Fulfil in our experience that promise, "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass, as showers that water the earth. I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from them. I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon." O Lord, we thank thee for these great and precious promises. Blessed God, fulfil them in our experience.

Hear these the imperfect supplications of our heart, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

Colophon. Tavistock. Carey's.

F. M.

- 1 THE Lord my pasture shall prepare,
And feed me with a shepherd's care;
His presence shall my wants supply,
And guard me with a watchful eye;
My noonday walks he shall attend,
And all my midnight hours defend.
- 2 When in the sultry glebe I faint,
Or on the thirsty mountain pant,
To fertile vales and dewy meads,
My weary, wandering steps he leads;
Where peaceful rivers, soft and slow,
Admit the verdant landscape flow.
- 3 Though in the paths of death I tread,
With gloomy horrors overspread,
My steadfast heart shall fear no ill,
For thou, O Lord, art with me still;
Thy friendly crook shall give me aid,
And guide me through the dreadful shade.

ADDISON.

GENESIS XLVI.

Joseph meeting his Father.

ALL the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were threescore and six;

27 And the sons of Joseph, which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.

28 And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph to direct his face unto Goshen; and they came into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen, and presented himself unto him; and he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me;

32 And the men are shepherds, for their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, What is your occupation?

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants' trade hath been about cattle from our youth even until now, both we, and also our fathers: that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

GENESIS XLVII.

Joseph's Brethren introduced to the King.

WHEN Joseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My Father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds; and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are in the land of Goshen.

2 And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharaoh, Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, For to sojourn in the land are we come; for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks; for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

6 The land of Egypt is before thee; in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell; in the land of Goshen let them dwell: and if thou knowest any men of activity among them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLVI., XLVII.—Rapid was the increase of the descendants of Jacob, and they were greatly blessed with the peculiar care and protection of the special providence of heaven. Let it be our earnest, constant prayer, that the spiritual Israel of God may rapidly increase; that the little one may soon become a thousand; and that the small one, though hitherto contemptible in the eyes of the world, may become a strong nation, exercising its salutary power, and spreading its salutary influence over all the kingdoms of the world. Most interesting was the meeting of Joseph with his father and brethren in Egypt; but none can conceive the felicity of the souls of the redeemed on their admission into heaven, when they meet with Jesus their everlasting Father and Saviour, and receive the affectionate welcome of angels, and the general assembly and church of the first-born.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the everlasting God. From all eternity thou didst exist alone, in thine own essence, and infinitely blessed.

May the influences of thy Spirit accompany what we have now read from thy holy Word. Like the Psalmist, may all of us say respecting thy Word, and believe with our hearts what we express with our lips, It is more to be desired than gold, yea, than much fine gold; it is sweeter than honey, than the honeycomb: and it is our song in the house of our pilgrimage.

Teach our dear children to follow the example of Joseph. May they remember how he loved his father, and may they admire his filial love. May they remember how he loved his brethren, and may they admire his fraternal love. O may they love Christ, then will every other holy affection glow in their bosom.

Lord, sanctify to us all the events of thine adorable providence. Sanctify all our bodily afflictions, all our disappointments, all our losses, and all our bereavements. Where we cannot trace thee in thy providence, O teach us to trust thee. As Jacob saw the wise and merciful and glorious issue of his severe and long-continued afflictions, may we rely with implicit confidence on the mercy and faithfulness of our God, who doth all things well.

When all the temptations and sufferings of the present life are brought to a close, may Jesus, our divine Joseph, present us before the throne of our Father in the heaven of heavens, where we shall be spotless and pure as the crystal stream which flows from the throne of God and the Lamb.

Mercifully affect us with the transitory nature of this present life. As Jacob suitably viewed the chequered events of his life, and considered his days but few and evil, may the shortness of our life, and the various afflictions we are called to endure by the way, remind us that this is not our resting-place, that it is not our home. By faith in Christ may we believe that our home is beyond the skies, and that we shall for ever inhabit the house not made with hands eternal in the heavens.

Lord, show thy saving compassion to all our aged friends who are bending down under the infirmities of advanced years. While their outward man is decaying day by day, may their inward man, even the graces of the Spirit, be renewed day by day. As their natural faculties become weak, may their graces become lively and strong.

We thank thee for the mercies of the past night. May we live under the light of thy countenance this day. Lord, forgive all our sins, and graciously answer our prayers, for the sake of Jesus, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

FORGIVENESS.

Lesson (Omnade). Suffolk New. Milbani.

L. M.

- 1 FORGIVENESS! 'tis a joyful sound
To malefactors doomed to die:
Publish the bliss the world around;
Yo seraphs, shout it from the sky.
- 2 'Tis the rich gift of love Divine;
'Tis full, out-measuring every crime:
Unclouded shall its glory shine,
And feel no change by changing time.
- 3 O'er sins, unnumbered as the sand,
And like the mountains for their size,
The seas of sovereign grace expand,
The seas of sovereign grace arise.

GIBBONS.

MARK III.

Jesus followed by Multitudes.

AND the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him.

7 But Jesus withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea: and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judea,

8 And from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan; and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him.

9 And he spake to his disciples, that a small ship should wait on him because of the multitude, lest they should throng him.

10 For he had healed many; insomuch that they pressed upon him for to touch him, as many as had plagues.

11 And unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

12 And he straitly charged them that they should not make him known.

13 And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him whom he would: and they came unto him.

14 And he ordained twelve that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach,

15 And to have power to heal sickness, and to cast out devils:

16 And Simon he surnamed Peter;

17 And James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James; and he surnamed them Boanerges, which is, The sons of thunder:

18 And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite, 19 And Judas Iscariot, which also betrayed him: and they went into an house.

20 And the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread.

21 And when his friends heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said, He is beside himself.

22 And the scribes which came down from Jerusalem said, He hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils.

23 And he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan?

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK III.—What a mystery! Jesus came to a condemned world to obtain life for condemned man, and he no sooner entered upon his ministry of love than cruel conspiracies were formed to deprive him of life. We have heard of the great things which Jesus has done, in renovating the heart, in healing the maladies of the soul, and in raising the spiritually dead to newness of life. Has the intelligence encouraged us to cast ourselves and our relatives at his feet, to implore his mercy and supplicate his grace? Many opinions were formed of Christ, even when he lived on earth, and performed matchless miracles of mercy and of power. After the lapse of many hundreds of years opinions of him the most unworthy still exist, and prejudices the most unjust are still entertained. What think we of Christ?—that is the question! Can we say, "O Jesus, thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God; thou art my Lord, my God, my Saviour, my ALL?"

PRAYER.

O LORD, we desire, in the name of Jesus, our divine Mediator, to approach thy gracious presence, under a lively and grateful sense of the mercies of the past day. Thou art a Spirit infinite, holy, and merciful. Our mortal eyes cannot see thine essence, and no created understanding can comprehend thy glory. Who can by searching find thee out? But we are constantly under thine eye, and well known to thee are all the secrets of our hearts.

Thou knowest all our wants, as well as all our sins. What reason have we to praise thee, that we are encouraged to seek the supply of the one and the forgiveness of the other! O that we were enabled with evangelical repentance to confess our sins! Holy Spirit, teach us to look on Christ whom we have pierced; then, and not till then, shall we mourn and be in bitterness for our multiplied and aggravated sins. We are altogether unfit to enjoy converse with thee in the ordinance of prayer, and we are as unworthy as unfit. What reason have we to rejoice that thy mercy invites us, with all our infirmities, to come to thee by a new and living way, of which it is said, A wayfaring man, though a fool, shall not err therein. Behold, we now come to thee in that way where sinners, even the chief, may find mercy and forgiveness. Glory to thy name, that proclamations of pardon have reached our ears! When we meditate, O Lord, on that lake of misery into which we deserve to be cast, to receive the demerit of our sins, we would exclaim, Forgiveness, 'tis a joyful sound to malefactors doomed to die! Let the heralds of salvation proclaim this mercy over the whole earth, that angels may rejoice over the salvation of returning penitents.

May our dear children and servants be humble petitioners at thy throne, pleading with all the tenderness of youthful piety for pardon through our Saviour's blood.

Heaven grant that we and all our relatives may have reason through eternal ages to sing the song of pardoning mercy before the celestial throne: Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

Give efficacy to the Word of thy grace we have now read, that it may prove a blessed light to guide our feet in the way of heaven. Preserve us and our country from imitating the Pharisees and the Herodians in their enmity against Christ. Holy Spirit, turn the hearts of blaspheming infidels unto the Son of God, and suffer them no more to attempt the overthrow of that Gospel which is as secure as the throne of heaven. If there are any in this family circle, or among our beloved relatives, destitute of grace, give them, we earnestly pray, that concern to be saved by Christ, which the diseased discovered in the days of his humbled humanity to be healed of their bodily maladies. Almighty Saviour, touch our graceless relatives by thy gracious influence; then they shall be instantly saved, and the power of sin for ever cease. Blessed Jesus, have mercy upon them.

Continue with us thy providential care during the watches of the night, that our mind and body may be prepared for the duties of an approaching day. For the sake of our divine Mediator, most mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our sins. Amen, and amen.

THE FREEDOM OF THE GOSPEL.

Bath Chapel. Michael's.

C. M.

- 1 HOW free and boundless is the grace
Of our redeeming God,
Extending to the Greek and Jew,
And men of every blood!
- 2 The mightiest king, and meanest slave,
May his rich mercy taste;
He bids the beggar and the prince
Unto the gospel feast.
- 3 None are excluded thence, but those Who do themselves exclude;
Welcome the learned and polite,
The ignorant and rude.

HYMNS.

GENESIS XLVII.

Jacob's Instructions to Joseph respecting his Burial.

AND Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and grew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me; bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt:

30 But I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their buryingplace. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

31 And he said, Swear unto me. And he swore unto him. And Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

GENESIS XLVIII.

Jacob blessing Joseph's Sons.

AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

2 And one told Jacob, and said, Behold thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

3 And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession.

5 And now thy two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

6 And thy issue, which thou begettest after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

7 And as for me, when I came from Padan, Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan in the way, when yet there was but a little way to come to Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath; the same is Beth-lehem.

8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will bless them.

10 Now the eyes of Israel were dim for age, so that he could not see. And he brought them near unto him; and he kissed them, and embraced them.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, I had not thought to see thy face: and, lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLVII., XLVIII.—Jacob was a distinguished illustration of the truth of that promise, "Trust in the Lord and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land, and thou shalt verily be fed." With what delightful tranquillity a saint can look upon the finishing of his earthly course, on the laying down of his earthly tabernacle, and on the grave where his ashes shall repose, when his faith is strong, and when he rejoices in hope of the glory of God. Like Jacob, may we be invigorated with this faith, and animated with this hope! What an interesting spectacle is the dying bed of an aged saint, when his graces are in lively exercise, filled with the heavenly breezes of the influences of the Holy Spirit! The departing believer is encouraged and comforted by the remembrance of the past; by the marked and peculiar interpositions of a gracious Providence, with which he has been favoured and blessed; and by the goodness and mercy which have followed him every step of his journey, and every day of his life. And O how he is comforted and encouraged by the prospect of dwelling in the house of the Lord for ever!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, and as the Lord our God. Thou art not the God of the dead, but of the living; for these thy venerable servants are now with thyself in heaven, arrayed in the spotless garments of immortality and light. Merciful be the Lord our God, through Jesus, the Son of thy love, who is the brightness of thy glory, and the express image of thy person.

Thou God of providence and grace, we thank thee for the mercies of the night, and of the week nearly come to a close. We bless thee for supplying our wants and preserving our lives. While others have become the victims of death, we are preserved from the fatal arrow which flieth in darkness, and the destruction which wasteth at noon-day. We praise thee for the continuance of health and the exercise of reason. O that the light of reason in our understanding may be accompanied with the fire of grace in our heart! Seated on thy throne of mercy, thou art kindly and condescendingly addressing us: What is thy petition, and thy request? and it shall be granted thee. Our petition is, Lord, give us thy grace, thy saving grace. If we have grace, give us more grace; and if we have no grace, from this moment make us its possessors, and may our hearts be thy temples, filled with the glory of thy presence.

Teach our children early to seek thy grace. May they seek it as silver, and search for it as for hidden treasures; and may they remember that they who find grace find life and obtain favour of the Lord.

May each one of us have reason to acknowledge, travelling along the wilderness of human life, Grace found us when wandering far from thee our God, and brought us into the path which leads to heaven, and bountifully supplies us with all we need, while pressing on to the rest which remains for the people of God.

We praise thy name, O King of saints, that our land is a spiritual Goshen. Here we have in rich abundance the bread of life and the waters of salvation. Here we have the ordinances of thy house, which are a garden filled with the choicest fruit; here we have the Sun of Righteousness rising with healing in his wings, and we have the refreshing showers of the influences of the Spirit. For these great and invaluable blessings we present the grateful homage of our hearts. Let not our privileges rise up against us in judgment to condemn us. As a family we have been exalted to heaven in point of privileges. O suffer us not to be cast into hell for abusing them!

As Jacob thought of his decease, may we often meditate on our departure from time to eternity. May we be ready to die, and may we be willing to die. Lord, deliver us from the fear of death; and may we desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. May we live this day as the expectants of heaven. O Lord, hear and forgive, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

DIFFERENT SUCCESS OF THE GOSPEL.

Mount Pleasant. Warwick.

C. M.

- 1 CHRIST and his cross is all our theme;
The mysteries that we speak
Are scandal in the Jew's esteem
And folly to the Greek.
- 2 But souls enlightened from above
With joy receive the word;
They see what wisdom, power, and love
Shines in their dying Lord.
- 3 The vital savour of his name
Restores their fainting breath.
But unbelief perverts the same
To guilt, despair, and death.

WATTS, 119, B. I.

MARK IV.

The Parable of the Sower.

AND he began again to teach by the sea side: and there was gathered unto him a great multitude, so that he entered into a ship, and sat in the sea; and the whole multitude was by the sea on the land.

2 And he taught them many things by parables, and said unto them in his doctrine,

3 Harken; Behold, there went out a sower to sow:

4 And it came to pass, as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it up.

5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth:

6 But when the sun was up, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.

8 And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.

9 And he said unto them, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parable.

11 And he said unto them, Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables:

12 That seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven them.

13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables?

14 The sower soweth the word.

15 And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; but when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;

17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.

18 And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word, 19 And the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful.

20 And these are they which are sown on good ground; such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK IV.—Never man or angel spake as Christ speaks, or taught as he teacheth. Are we scholars, sitting at his feet, listening to his words, and drinking in wisdom under his tuition? How suitable; how sublime, how simple, how rich, how diversified are the doctrines he teaches, and which, like the dew, are distilled from his lips! How affectionate and condescending, how striking and forcible his manner of communicating information and wisdom to those who sit as humble, loving disciples at his feet! May it be our privilege to know, believe, and love the mysteries of the kingdom, the doctrines of grace; and may our lives exemplify their purifying, practical, and saving power. How pernicious are excessive worldly cares!—they unfit for hearing the Word, for receiving it, for enjoying it.

PRAYER.

O LORD, our covenant God in Christ, thou art the everlasting God, before whom the past and the future are an ETERNAL NOW. A thousand years are in thy sight but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night. A thousand years in thy sight are as one day, and one day as a thousand years. We are worms of the dust, we are but of yesterday. When we compare our insignificance with thy majesty, and the short span of our mortal existence with thine eternity, we desire to be humbled before thee.

Thou hast graciously brought us in safety to the close of another week, and the cup of our lot has been filled with the unmerited blessings of thy goodness. May each of us now with grateful hearts be enabled to say, We will take the cup of salvation, and call on the name of the Lord. We thank thee for preserving us from the ravages of disease, and from the hand of death. May the events of the week be sanctified by thy Spirit. If we have enjoyed prosperity, may our hearts be grateful to the Most High; if we have tasted the bitter waters of affliction, may we adore thee in submissive humility, saying, Good is the will of the Lord. May all our afflictions prove the most useful and effectual instructors. May they be instrumental in bringing down the pride of our heart, and extinguishing the vanity of our spirit. As the child flees to the bosom of the mother in the hour of danger, may we in the day of affliction flee to the gracious arms of our God and Saviour. May we sing, God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the incorruptible seed of the Word of life; and we bless thee for ministers of the Gospel, who are commissioned to sow the precious seed. We would mourn that, while the seed has been so long sown on our heart, so little fruit has been produced. How unprofitably have we hearkened to the everlasting Gospel! Lord, forgive this our sin, and may we ever be impressed with the solemn, yet consolatory truth, that in the preaching of the Word God is speaking by the mouth of man. Have any among us, to the present time, been no more than stony ground hearers? Has the seed only sprung up a little way, and been afterwards speedily withered by a scorching sun? O heaven forbid that we should any longer remain unfruitful hearers of the Word!

Give to our dear children love to a preached Gospel, and soon may their young hearts be brought under the illuminating and saving power of the Word of life.

May all of us, on the approaching Sabbath, and to the close of life, hear and love and believe and embrace the Gospel of thy Son. May we resemble the field which brought forth plentifully, some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundredfold.

May we be so refreshed with sleep this night, as to be prepared, both in body and mind, for the sacred and animating services of thy holy day.

Hear our feeble prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus sake. And may the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, for ever rest upon us. Amen, and amen.

CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS.

Onslow. Westerham. St. Mary's. Cronle.

C. M.

- 1 WHY has my God my soul forsook,
Nor will a smile afford?
(Thus David once in anguish spoke,
And thus our dying Lord.)
- 2 Though 't is thy chief delight to dwell
Among thy praising saints,
Yet thou canst hear a groan as well,
And pity our complaints.
- 3 Our fathers trusted in thy name,
And great deliverance found;
But I'm a worm, despised of men,
And trodden to the ground.
- 4 Shaking the head they pass me by,
And laugh my soul to scorn;
In vain he trusts in God, they cry,
Neglected and forlorn.
- 5 But thou art he, who formed my flesh
By thine almighty word;
And since I hung upon the breast,
My hope is in the Lord.

WATTS, Ps 22, p. 1.

PSALM XXII.

Christ's great Sufferings.

MY God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?

2 O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou hearest not; and in the night season, and am not silent.

3 But thou art holy, O thou that inhabitest the praises of Israel.

4 Our fathers trusted in thee: they trusted, and thou didst deliver them.

5 They cried unto thee, and were delivered: they trusted in thee, and were not confounded.

6 But I am a worm, and no man; a reproach of men, and despised of the people.

7 All they that see me laugh me to scorn: they shoot out the lip, they shake the head, saying,

8 He trusted on the Lord that he would deliver him: let him deliver him, seeing he delighted in him.

11 Be not far from me; for trouble is near; for there is none to help.

12 Many bulls have compassed me: strong bulls of Bashan have beset me round.

13 They have gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and a roaring lion.

14 I am poured out like water, and all my bowels are out of joint: my heart is like wax; it is melted in the midst of my bowels.

15 My strength is dried up like a potsherd; and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws; and thou hast brought me into the dust of death.

16 For dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me: they pierced my hands and my feet.

17 I may tell all my bones: they look and stare upon me.

18 They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXII.—The value of the soul and the value of its salvation are infinite, and nothing but an infinite price could purchase that salvation. Jesus, as God and man in one person, alone was adequate to pay that price, and that price he paid. See the infinitely perfect and meritorious obedience which he rendered to the Divine Law which we so grievously violated! See the tremendous sufferings which he endured at the hand of men, at the hand of infuriated demons, and at the hand of offended justice! And then see the greatness of the price he paid as our surety; the value of immortal souls for which he paid the price; the value of that great salvation which he purchased; and the boundless extent of that love which moved him to give himself and his life a ransom for many. Amazing mercy! he submitted to the dark frowns of justice that we might enjoy Divine smiles, and to the hiding of his Father's countenance that we might enjoy for ever his Father's love.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Jehovah, as Jesus thine only-begotten Son addressed thee on the cross, My God, my God, we would in obedience to thy gracious command cry unto thee, Our Father who art in heaven, thou art our Father and our God. Thou art holy, O thou that inhabitest the praises of Israel. Thou art the confidence of all thy saints. Our fathers trusted in thee: they trusted, and thou didst deliver them. Teach us as a family to imitate our pious progenitors: like them, may we cry unto thee through Christ, and we shall be delivered; may we trust in thee, and we shall not be confounded.

O Lord, we would remember thy loving-kindness with thankfulness. We were cast upon thee from the womb, and with more than a parent's care thou hast led us and protected us to the present day. When the day of trouble is near, and when there is no help from man, when all earthly resources are of no avail, O be not thou far from us.

Holy Spirit, we would earnestly pray that thou wouldst bless to us the affecting account we have now read of the sufferings of our dear Redeemer. May we see in these sufferings the love of the Father, in giving up his Son to the death for us all. May we see the love of the Son, in cheerfully surrendering himself to the agonies of the cross for the deliverance of a rebel world. May we see in these sufferings the evil of sin, which could not otherwise be expiated and forgiven. May we see in these sufferings the value of the soul, which could not otherwise be saved from the miseries of hell.

May Christ in his person and sufferings and death be faithfully preached on this thy Sabbath, by all who profess to be the heralds of salvation. O Jesus, may thou be lifted up in the ordinance of a preached Gospel, and then many will be drawn unto thee.

Have mercy upon the Jews, the people of thine ancient love. O reconcile them to a crucified Saviour, and no more let thy cross be a stumbling-block to the few or foolishness to the Greek.

Let the light of the holy Ghost descend upon our universities, our colleges, and all our schools. Let vast multitudes come from these institutions, to join the Church of the living God, and prove the ornaments of the Gospel.

Lord, impress our children's hearts with this solemn truth, that Jesus suffered and died for them!

Triumphant Saviour, enter into the chariot of thy love, and visit every part of a benighted world. O speedily wrest from the hand of Satan that sceptre of dominion to which he has no right.

Have mercy on the aged, and the sons and daughters of affliction. Say to them, I will love you freely, for mine anger is turned away from you.

King of kings, crown the head of our rulers with thy salvation, and let righteousness prove the ornament and the security of their government. Make all our rulers exemplars of piety. While they dispense human laws, O teach them to obey the laws of heaven.

We thank thee for thy gracious protection last night, and earnestly supplicate thy blessing to rest upon us this day, to assist us in our sacred solemnities, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST OUR SHEPHERD.
Tigra. Burton. Wigra.

1. 2.

- 1 THE Lord my shepherd is,
I shall be well supplied;
Since he is mine and I am his,
What can I want beside?
- 2 He leads me to the place
Where heavenly pasture grows,
Where living waters gently pass,
And full salvation flows.
- 3 If e'er I go astray,
He doth my soul reclaim,
And guides me in his own right way,
For his most holy name.

WATTS, Ps. 23.

PSALM XXII.
Christ's Triumph.

BUT be not thou far from me, O Lord: O my strength, haste thee to help me.

20 Deliver my soul from the sword; my darling from the power of the dog.

21 Save me from the lion's mouth: for thou hast heard me from the horns of the unicorns.

22 I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee.

23 Ye that fear the Lord, praise him; all ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him; and fear him, all ye the seed of Israel.

24 For he hath not despised nor abhorred the affliction of the afflicted; neither hath he hid his face from him; but when he cried unto him he heard.

25 My praise shall be of thee in the great congregation: I will pay my vows before them that fear him.

26 The meek shall eat and be satisfied: they shall praise the Lord that seek him: your heart shall live for ever.

27 All the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the Lord: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee.

28 For the kingdom is the Lord's: and he is the governor among the nations.

29 All they that be fat upon earth shall eat and worship: all they that go down to the dust shall bow before him: and none can keep alive his own soul.

30 A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the Lord for a generation.

31 They shall come, and shall declare his righteousness unto a people that shall be born, that he hath done this.

PSALM XXIII.

Confidence in Christ the Shepherd.

THE Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

2 He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters.

3 He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

5 Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXII., XXIII.—O with what fervency the humanity of Christ prayed during the dark night of his inconceivable suffering, anguish, and woe! He has left us an example that we should follow his steps. There never were sufferings like his, there never were sorrows like his, and therefore there never were prayers like his! The earnestness and efficacy of his supplications were in proportion to the intensity of his sorrow and the weight of his suffering. How wonderful the consequences of his sufferings and his prayers, as shall be witnessed in the blessedness of millennial days, and in the glories of immortality!—What kindness, watchfulness, and condescension, shine in Jesus as the Shepherd of his people.

Happy are we if we can say in faith and love, "Jesus is our Shepherd, we know his voice, he has gathered us with his arms, he is carrying us in the bosom of his love." Blessed and abundant is that supply of Gospel truth, of precious promises, and of spiritual blessings which he has made for his people. His fulness is the boundless source of all they need. If we are clothed with the righteousness of the great Shepherd, we can smile at death's terrors.
We shall enjoy his fellowship and help in death's dark vale; and as we pass along anticipate the near enjoyments of heaven's blessedness, and sing the song of triumph to the honour of the Conqueror of death.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee as the universal Ruler.
The kingdom is thine, and thou art the Governor among the nations. Divine Saviour, we express our homage before thee. Though in thy humanity thou wast brought low, to the very depths of ignominy, suffering, and death, we rejoice that thou art now infinitely exalted as the Mediator of the Church, and dost sit upon the throne of Zion, to bless and defend thy people, and to restrain and confound thy foes. We acknowledge and adore thee as our Shepherd. Thou art the good Shepherd, for thou hast laid down thy life for the sheep.
Thou art a most watchful Shepherd, for thou dost lead thy sheep in the green pastures of gospel ordinances, beside the still waters of gospel consolation. Thou art a tender-hearted and affectionate Shepherd, for thou gatherest the lambs with thine arms, thou carriest them in thy bosom, and dost gently lead those that are with young.

We thank thee for our privileges as a family, as a congregation, and as a nation. We praise thee for the Gospel, and for the preaching of the Gospel this day throughout all the churches. We bless thee for any saving benefit that has been accomplished this day by the ministry of the Word, attended by the power of the Spirit. We trust that not a few have been lifted up from the depths of sin and guilt and misery this day; that not a few have been enabled to flee to Jesus for mercy; that not a few have been brought from the dark and miserable prison of a natural state; and that not a few of thine own children have been comforted with manna from above, and enriched with the joys of heaven. O may thy merciful name be declared among all our brethren, and may we praise thee in the midst of the congregation. By means of a preached gospel, may all the ends of the world remember and turn unto the Lord; O hasten the day when all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee. We praise thee for these animating promises, which shall be assuredly fulfilled: A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the Lord for a generation. They shall come, and shall declare his righteousness unto a people that shall be born, that he hath done this.

Have mercy on our dear children before thee, and make them lambs in thy flock. Thou Shepherd of Israel, be their Shepherd, and suffer not Satan and their own lusts to destroy them. Give them a love to the green pastures of Divine ordinances; and there may they feed till they are conveyed to the Canaan above.

Jesus, thou Conqueror of death, prepare us for that great and solemn event. By faith in thy righteousness may we sing, Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death,
I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

May we all enjoy this night thy Divine and gracious care, and may our sleep be sweet. Hear our imperfect supplications, and forgive all our sins, for Christ our Saviour's sake. Amen.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD WITH HIS PEOPLE.

Wiltshire New University. Heber. Maidstone. C. N.

- 1 AND art thou with us, gracious Lord,
To dissipate our fear?
Dost thou proclaim thyself our God,
Our God for ever near?
- 2 Dost thou a father's bowels feel
For all thy humble saints?
And in such friendly accents speak
To sooth their sad complaints?
- 3 To all thine other favours, add
A heart to trust thy word;
And death itself shall hear us sing,
While resting on the Lord.

DODDRIDGE.

GENESIS XLVIII.

Jacob blessing Ephraim and Manasseh.

AND he blessed Joseph, and said, God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day, 16 The Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him, and he held up his father's hand to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, Not so, my father: for this is the firstborn: put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations.

20 And he blessed them that day, saying, In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

GENESIS XLIX.

Jacob blessing his Sons before his Death.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you that which shall befall you in the last days.

2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and hearken unto Israel your father.

3 Reuben, thou art my firstborn, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:

4 Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel; because thou wentest up to thy father's bed; then defiledst thou it: he went up to my couch.

5 Simeon and Levi are brethren; instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

6 O my soul, come not thou into their secret; unto their assembly, mine honour, be not thou united: for in their anger they slew a man, and in their selfwill they digged down a wall.

7 Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

8 Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise: thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee.

9 Judah is a lion's whelp; from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: he stooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion; who shall rouse him up?

10 The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be.

11 Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choise vine; he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes.

12 His eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLVIII., XLIX.—The recollections of pious ancestors are peculiarly endearing, and the assurance that they are in the heavenly mansions fills the heart with emotions of unfeigned thankfulness and joy. They have left behind them the legacy of a holy example; may it live in our affectionate remembrance, and may it be the object of our warmest ambition to walk in their footsteps, as far as they were the followers of Christ. The prayers of pious parents are a rich inheritance; and may we who are the offspring of the saints of God enjoy in life, in death, and for ever, the answers and the fruits of those paternal supplications which are preserved as a memorial before the heavenly and eternal throne. It is astonishing to witness the diversified lot of members of the same family, who enjoyed under the paternal roof the same advantages of example, instruction, and watchfulness. But what an alleviation of suffering is unfeigned piety, accompanied with the animating prospect of a happy death and a blessed immortality!

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art good and gracious, and our appearance before thy throne is a blessed illustration of thy goodness and mercy. Thy goodness endureth continually. O that it may be our happiness to utter the memory of thy great goodness on earth to the close of life; and when time with us shall be no more, may we sing of thy righteousness for ever in heaven. We adore thee for the matchless displays of thy grace in Jesus Christ. While life remains, may we sing of the wonders of thy grace: and when this lisping, stammering tongue lies silent in the grave, may we, in nobler, sweeter songs, proclaim in heaven the wonders of thy grace.

We thank thee, O Lord, for sparing and preserving mercy. On the one hand, thou hast preserved us from the dangers of the night; and, on the other, thou hast spared us to see the light of another day. Thou hast not suffered us to be alarmed by devouring flames, nor to be injured by thieves who break through and steal.

Vouchsafe to us thy presence and guidance this day, that we may walk with God, that we may walk in love, that we may walk by faith; that our light may so shine before men, that they, beholding our good works and holy example, may glorify our Father in heaven.

Mercifully cause the saving light of thy grace to shine into the hearts of our children.

O thou Saviour of men, as thou didst wonderfully increase the descendants of Joseph, mightily increase the members of thy New Testament Church. May all the members of this family be the living members of thy Church.

Sanctify to us the death of godly relatives. May we remember how they lived, and how they died. In as far as they resembled Christ, may we resemble them. While in thy providence our godly relatives are gone, may the God of our departed relatives abide and remain with us, and graciously fulfil in our experience that promise, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.

In thy humanity thou hast ascended to heaven. We praise thee that as Jacob told his children, God should be with them after his death, thou hast told thy disciples that, after thine ascension to heaven, the Spirit should remain with the Church. May thy promise of the Spirit be eminently fulfilled in our experience as a family. Divine Dove, descend upon us!

In the prospect of death and the solemnities of eternity, we would earnestly pray for salvation. May we see how Jacob died possessing this blessing, and therefore allow ourselves no rest till we obtain it. We now seek salvation, O Lord, before wealth, or pleasures, or honours. Save us from sin, from Satan, and from hell. All we ask is for Jesus the great Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CHRIST THE PHYSICIAN.

Israel. Eye. Ludlow.

- 1 JESUS, since thou art still to-day
As yesterday the same;
Present to heal—in me display
The virtue of thy name.
- 2 If thou, my God, art passing by,
O let me find thee near!
Jesus, in mercy, hear my cry,
Thou Son of David, hear!
- 3 From sin, the guilt, the power, the pain,
Thou canst relieve my soul;
Lord, I believe, and not in vain,
For thou wilt make me whole.

C. H.

A. P. O. R.

MARK V.

Raising of Jairus's Daughter.

AND he departed, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him: and all men did marvel.

21 And when Jesus was passed over again by ship unto the other side, much people gathered unto him: and he was nigh unto the sea.

22 And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and when he saw him, he fell at his feet, 23 And besought him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray thee, come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live.

24 And Jesus went with him; and much people followed him, and thronged him.

35 While he yet spake, there came from the ruler of the synagogue's house certain which said, Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?

36 As soon as Jesus heard the word that was spoken, he saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid, only believe.

37 And he suffered no man to follow him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of James.

38 And he cometh to the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and seeth the tumult, and them that wept and wailed greatly.

39 And when he was come in, he saith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth.

40 And they laughed him to scorn. But when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the damsel, and them that were with him, and entereth in where the damsel was lying.

41 And he took the damsel by the hand, and said unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise.

42 And straightway the damsel arose, and walked; for she was of the age of twelve years. And they were astonished with a great astonishment.

43 And he charged them straitly that no man should know it; and commanded that something should be given her to eat.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK V.—In the portion of Scripture which we have now read, we find the Prince of Life in the house of Death: face to face with his enemy and ours. "He suffered no man to follow him, save Peter, James, and John," those three apostles who were "chosen from among the chosen" to be witnesses of his first conquest over death,—of his transfiguration,—of his agony in Gethsemane. For God is ever sovereign in his favours, giving and withholding as it pleaseth him best, Christ doing what he wills with his own. "He saith, Why make ye this ado, and weep?" Not that Jesus himself restrained his tears over the grave of his friend, or would have us refuse to weep with those who weep; but "the turbulent grief of some, the hired lamentation, it may be, of others, gave no promise of the true tone and temper which became the witnesses of so holy and awful a mystery, from which even apostles themselves were excluded; not to speak of the profane and scornful spirit with which they had received the Lord's assurance that the child should presently awake." "The damsel is not dead but sleepeth." That he speaks here in the same figurative language which he used when he said, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth," is evident; for that the spirit of the damsel had really left its tabernacle is certain, from St. Luke's narrative, who says, that after his word and touch of power, her spirit came again.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the God of Providence. All the arrangements of thy providence are made by wisdom unerring, and are admirably fitted to advance thy glory; though in many instances they infinitely exceed the comprehension of our feeble minds. Darkness is thy pavilion, dark waters, and clouds of the sky. Thy way is in the sea, and thy footsteps are not known.

We draw near unto thee in the name of Christ, and we consider it our privilege and duty to adore thy sovereign authority, and to praise thee for thy continued and unmerited goodness. Thy mercies are new unto us every moment; how great is thy faithfulness!

We thank thee for the paternal care we have experienced during the past day, and that we are allowed, in the possession of health and in the exercise of reason, to enjoy fellowship with thyself. Thy hand alone hath sustained us, and thou, our gracious Father, hast made us to dwell in safety. All our temporal blessings proceed from thee. They are streams which are constantly supplied by the overflowing fountain of thy goodness.

Every day may we walk with God, may we walk by faith, may we walk in love. In our conversation and conduct may we be watchful and circumspect. Give us the light of grace, and may it so shine before men, that others beholding our good works may glorify our Father who is in heaven. May we be preserved every day from the temptations of the wicked one. Great is his power, but thine, O Jesus, is infinitely greater. Lay restraints upon our powerful adversary, and suffer him not to prevail. May we not be deceived by his wiles, nor discouraged by his fiery darts. May that promise be fulfilled in our experience, Thou shalt tread upon the lion and the adder, the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under foot.

Teach us to mourn, Holy Spirit, over the carnality of our hearts. We have reason to lament that fleshly lusts, which war against the soul, have too much prevailed against us. May we remember that sins of the flesh are peculiarly sins of uncleanness.

Preserve our dear children from every carnal snare; may no unclean spirit ever obtain the dominion. Teach them to flee youthful lusts, as they would flee from the presence of the devouring lion.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thine almighty grace. The fetters of sin are stronger than iron and brass, and no power can burst them asunder but thine own. We commit ourselves and our relatives, and those who assemble with us in the house of prayer, to thy gracious power, that we may, in thy great goodness, be delivered from the chains of corruption and the fetters of guilt. We pray for converting grace, which alone can subdue our powerful corruptions, and teach us to sit as humble and penitent disciples at thy feet. Like him who had the legion, may we be seen sitting at Jesus' feet, clothed with the garments of salvation, and in our right mind.

Mercifully take us under thy protection this night, and suffer no calamity to come near our dwelling. These blessings we supplicate, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

---

THE RAISING OF JAIRUS' DAUGHTER

PAINTED BY THEODORE VON HOLST · ENGRAVED BY G PERIAM

THE WELCOME MESSENGER.

Warwick. Waldingfield. Mewah.

c. x.

- 1 LORD! when we see a saint of thine
Lie gasping out his breath,
With longing eyes, and looks divine,
Smiling and pleased in death;
2 Jesus! then purge my crimes away,
'Tis guilt creates my fears;
'Tis guilt gives death his fierce array,
And all the arms he bears.
3 Joyful I'd lay this body down,
And leave this lifeless clay,
Without a sigh, without a groan,
And stretch and soar away.

WATTS.

GENESIS XLIX.

Jacob blessing his Sons before his Death.

ZEBULUN shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for an haven of ships; and his border shall be unto Zidon.

14 Issachar is a strong ass couching down between two burdens:

15 And he saw that rest was good, and the land that it was pleasant; and he bowed his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute.

16 Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel.

17 Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.

18 I have waited for thy salvation, O LORD.

19 Gad, a troop shall overcome him; but he shall overcome at the last.

20 Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.

21 Naphtali is a hind let loose: he giveth goodly words.

22 Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well; whose branches run over the wall:

23 The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him:

24 But his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob; (from thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel:)

25 Even by the God of thy father, who shall help thee; and by the Almighty, who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts, and of the womb:

26 The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of thy progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren.

27 Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf: in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil.

28 All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I am to be gathered unto my people: bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite.

30 In the cave that is in the field of Machpelah, which is before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite for a possession of a buryingplace.

31 There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.

32 The purchase of the field and of the cave that is therein was from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. XLIX.—The havens on the sea-shore, which constituted Zebulun's wealth, should remind us of that haven of rest on Canaan's happy, happy shores, which every believer shall reach in safety after the storms of life are past. That haven the redeemed shall enter, enriched with grace; and there they shall receive the glorious treasures of immortal blessedness, even "an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and which fadeth not away." In Joseph we see a most striking type of Jesus, who is a fruitful bough, the branch of righteousness, the plant of renown. O what fruit he bears! sufficient for all the inhabitants of the earth, and for all the redeemed in heaven! Our Jesus, when he came from heaven to earth, wicked men and envious evil spirits—the cruel archers—sorely grieved him; they hated him with a mortal hatred; they shot at him; they slew him. Even then they were utterly and eternally defeated; he could not be held by the cords of death. He rose from the dead, the Almighty Conqueror of death and the grave! He has completely prevailed over all his enemies, and the crown of mediatorial glory shall for ever flourish on his head.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, we adore thee as the everlasting God, and our God. Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, where are they? Our fathers, where are they? But thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever, and thy memorial throughout all generations! We thank thee, O God, for the return of another day, and that thy providence has preserved and continued our lives to the present hour. Once more, O Lord, the rising day salutes our eyes; once more enable us to pay the tribute of gratitude and praise to thee who made the heavens.

We would enter upon the duties of the day in humble dependence on thy grace. O that our thoughts, words, and actions, may be regulated by thy holy law! Let a superlative love to Jesus dwell within us, which will prove an unceasing source of sincere and evangelical obedience. May we know not only what it is to serve thee as a King, but also what it is to obey thee as a Father.

Graciously sanctify to our souls the interesting account we have now read of the blessings of Jacob, pronounced on his sons and descendants immediately before he died. We adore thee, Holy Spirit, for that prophetic gift which thou didst so copiously communicate to thy servant, when placed on the very brink of the eternal world, and about to take his flight to glory. O that each one of us could say, like dying Jacob, I have waited for thy salvation, O God! Now we wait for thy salvation; we wait at thy footstool, we wait at thy throne of grace, where thousands have waited, and never waited in vain.

As Jacob blessed his sons, we would earnestly supplicate thy blessing to rest on our children now before thee, and on all the children with whom we are connected. May they wait for thy salvation.

Blessed Jesus, enable us to see in the sufferings of Joseph a type of thine. The archers sorely grieved thee; they shot at thee, they hated thee. Glory to thy name, that thou didst endure all these sufferings for us. Never can we love and praise thee as we ought for such manifestations of mercy, till we are the inhabitants of the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Suffer not our corruptions to prevail against us. If we are the possessors of thy grace, may our bow abide in strength, and may the arms of our hands be made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob. O strengthen the hands of all the ministers of Christ at home and abroad, of every name and every denomination. Let their bow abide in strength; hold up their hands, and encourage their hearts, and bless their labours.

As a family may we live as Jacob lived, and may we die as he died. Hear our prayer, for the sake of Christ, and forgive our sins, through the merit of his atoning blood. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

SALVATION.

Brook Street. Poland. Ashley.

C. H.

- 1 SALVATION! O, the joyful sound,
'Tis pleasure to our ears!
A sovereign balm for every wound,
A cordial for our fears.
- 2 Buried in sorrow and in sin,
At hell's dark door we lay;
But we arise by grace divine,
To see a heavenly day.
- 3 Salvation! let the echo fly
The spacious earth around,
While all the armies of the sky
Conspire to raise the sound.
Glory, honour, &c.

WATTS, 88, B. 11.

MARK VIII.

Jesus foretells his Death.

AND he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him.

23 And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw ought.

24 And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees, walking.

25 After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly.

26 And he sent him away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town.

27 And Jesus went out, and his disciples, into the towns of Cæsarea Philippi: and by the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Whom do men say that I am?

28 And they answered, John the Baptist: but some say, Elias; and others, One of the prophets.

29 And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answered and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ.

30 And he charged them that they should tell no man of him.

31 And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again.

32 And he spake that saying openly. And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him.

33 But when he had turned about and looked on his disciples, he rebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.

34 And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.

35 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.

36 For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?

37 Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

38 Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK VIII.—It was a great miracle for our Saviour to open the blind eyes of the bodies of men, but it is an infinitely greater mercy in Christ to open the eyes of blind souls, and enable them to see and enjoy the bright beams of spiritual day. Have we applied to Jesus, that by his Spirit he may open the eyes of our understanding, "that we may know the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints?" Have we done so for ourselves? And as men in the days of Christ's humiliation brought their blind relatives to Jesus, that he might remove their natural blindness, have we in earnest prayer brought our spiritually blind relatives to Jesus now that he is exalted to heaven, that he may mercifully open the eyes of their minds to see the loveliness of his person, and the boundless worth of his great salvation? Once Christ's death was matter of prophesy: it is now matter of history. We know the fact of his death; have we felt the power of his death? Can we say, Because Jesus died, I live? Blessed are they who in the language of faith, lively and appropriating, can devoutly and thankfully use the language of the Apostle, "He loved me, and gave himself for me."

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, there is none like unto thee; among the gods there is none like unto thee; among the principalities and powers in the heavenly places there is none like unto thee. While thou art unequalled in thy dominion, thou art unequalled in thine excellence. Thou art glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, and doing wonders; the God of creation, of providence, and grace: there is none like unto thee.

Through the merit of our Saviour's blood, we plead the pardon of the sins of the past day. Glory to our God, that the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin. Let the mercies of the day excite the gratitude of our heart; and may the duties and ordinances which have engaged our attention lift our hearts from earth to heaven. May the watchful care of a gracious God be our protection this night. O what reason have we as a family to rejoice that we have the bosom of a heavenly Father on which we can repose with confidence and love! This night, O Lord, we praise thee for all the blessings of the day. Mercifully keep us, thou King of kings, beneath the shadow of thy wings.

With what humility, O Lord, ought we to approach thy throne, when we think on our impurity, guilt, and folly! Blessed Saviour, we come to thee with all our diseases and corruptions, believing thou hast an ear of pity to hearken to our prayers, and a hand of power to relieve our necessities.

Our dear children now in thy presence, who are by nature spiritually blind, we bring them, Lord, to thee. Have mercy upon them, open the eyes of their minds, and give them the light of thy salvation.

Thy power, O Immanuel, is almighty; thy power nothing can resist. May it be graciously exercised in the salvation of all our souls, in the salvation of our relatives, and in the efficacy of thy preached Gospel on the hearts of men, throughout the world.

Divine and promised Spirit, give us correct views of Christ, and may we be ever preserved from erroneous conceptions of his person, character, and work. O impart unto us those sublime views which St. Peter was instructed to maintain. Like him, may we say, and feel what we say, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Teach us often most carefully and impartially to examine ourselves respecting our love to Christ: and may we frequently ask the question, What think we of Christ? O that we could reply, He is the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely! Give us grace to see the necessity of the sufferings of Christ to atone for human guilt. May we ever rejoice that Jesus, who was laid in the grave, rose triumphant from the tomb, and is now receiving the adoration of angels in heaven. Most deeply impress us with the value of the soul. God forbid that we should prefer worldly profits, pleasures, or honours, to the salvation of the soul. May the words of the Saviour sink deeply into all our hearts: What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his soul?"

Hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

DEPARTED SAINTS ASLEEP.

Brevity. Oxendon Scotch Church. Worcester.

C. M.

- 1 WHY flow these torrents of distress?
The gentle Saviour cries;
Why are my sleeping saints surveyed
With unbelieving eyes?
- 2 Death's feeble arm shall never boast
A friend of Christ is slain,
Nor, o'er their meaner part in dust,
A lasting power retain.
- 3 I come, on wings of love,—I come,
The slumberers to awake;
My voice shall reach the deepest tomb,
And all its bonds shall break.

DODDRIDGE.

GENESIS L.

Jacob's Funeral and Joseph's Death.

AND Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians mourned for him threescore and ten days.

7 And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt.

8 And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen.

12 And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them:

13 For his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham bought with the field for a possession of a burying-place, of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

15 And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying,

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin; for they did unto thee evil: and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spake unto him.

18 And his brethren also went and fell down before his face: and they said, Behold, we be thy servants.

19 And Joseph said unto them, Fear not: for am I in the place of God?

20 But as for you, ye thought evil against me; but God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not: I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and spake kindly unto them.

22 And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's house: and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.

23 And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation: the children also of Machir the son of Manassah were brought up upon Joseph's knees.

24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die, and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land unto the land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

25 And Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence.

26 So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

REFLECTIONS UPON GEN. L.—We should earnestly pray that God would mercifully raise up other eminent saints to be the successors of those distinguished men of God who are removed by death to their heavenly home. So David prayed: "Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail among the children of men." The ashes of Jacob were precious to Joseph and his brethren; unspeakably more precious are the ashes of departed saints to Jesus. He has secured their resurrection by his atonement; he will watch over them as his precious jewels, until the day arrives when by the voice of his omnipotence he will awake them into immortality. The grave is the sacred, consecrated bed, where the bodies of the redeemed shall sweetly and securely sleep, until that morning arrives when they shall be called by their loving Saviour to meet him in the air. Have we entered into a covenant of peace with Christ? Then we can joyfully anticipate the coming of Jesus in the clouds of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we praise thee for the endearing names thou hast taken to thyself, and by which we are encouraged to draw near to thy mercy-seat, notwithstanding our unworthiness and guilt. Thou art the Saviour of Israel in the day of trouble; be thou our Saviour; and in all our troubles may we find thee a very present help. Thou art the God of all grace; and may we be the subjects of thy saving grace; may we receive out of Christ's fulness, and grace for grace. Thou art the Father of mercies: O crown us with loving-kindness and tender mercy. Since thou art revealed in characters so lovely, and in relations so endearing, it is good for us to draw near unto thee. Behold, we come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God! To thee alone we lift our waiting eyes; on thee alone all our hopes are laid.

We thank thee that we are assembled, in the enjoyment of health of body and tranquillity of mind, on the morning of this day to present the sacrifices of our prayers and adoration. The Lord has preserved us from all evil; the Lord has preserved our soul.

Blessed shall we be, if we live this day in thy fear, and with a view to thy glory. May we take the example of Christ as a pattern for our imitation, and his Bible as a light to our steps. Leave us not to the pride of our own hearts, and suffer us not to lean to our own understanding.

Bless what we have now read of the honourable interment of thy servant Jacob. Like him may we die in peace, and like him may our grave be a bed of rest. By the merit of Christ's death may we be delivered from the sting of death; and by the efficacy of his intercession may we arise from the grave in the morning of the resurrection, arrayed in the garments of immortal purity and glory.

May we and the children of the family awake on that great and solemn day, amid the songs of angels, to meet the Lord in the air.

In the prospect of the important decisions of the universal judgment may we comfort one another with these words: We shall be ever with the Lord.

Are there any struggling with death who wish an interest in our prayers? Merciful Father, comfort them in the last struggle by the consolatory conviction that Christ is theirs; and may they look on death as a valley through which they must pass in the way to their Father's house.

If there are any in thy presence unprepared to die, clothe them with the righteousness of thy dear Son, animate them with thy spirit, enrich them with thy grace; then shall they be able in the language of David triumphantly to sing, Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, yet will I fear no evil: for thou art with me; and thy rod and staff, they comfort me.

May our sins be forgiven, and our prayers be answered, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

STRUGGLE BETWEEN FAITH AND UNBELIEF.

Lullon or Canada. Amana. Pasceit.

L. 4.

- 1 JESUS, our soul's delightful choice,
In thee, believing, we rejoice;
Yet still our joy is mixed with grief,
While faith contends with unbelief.
- 2 Thy promises our hearts revive,
And keep our fainting hopes alive;
But guilt, and fears, and sorrows rise,
And hide the promise from our eyes.
- 3 O let not sin and Satan boast,
While saints lie mourning in the dust;
Nor see that faith to ruin brought
Which thy own gracious hand hath wrought.

DOUBRIDGE.

MARK IX.

Jesus casteth out a Devil.

AND when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning with them.

15 And straightway all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and, running to him, saluted him.

16 And he asked the scribes, What question ye with them?

17 And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit;

18 And wheresoever he taketh him, he tearth him: and he foameth, and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away: and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast him out; and they could not.

19 He answereth him, and saith, O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? Bring him unto me.

20 And they brought him unto him: and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tare him; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed, foaming.

21 And he asked his father, How long is it ago since this came unto him? and he said, Of a child.

22 And oftentimes it hath cast him into the fire, and into the water, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.

23 Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.

24 And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

25 When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him.

26 And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead.

27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose.

28 And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?

29 And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing but by prayer and fasting.

30 And they departed thence, and passed through Galilee; and he would not that any man should know it.

31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day.

32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK IX.—Are the disciples of Jesus in perplexity?—he is near to counsel them. Are they in difficulty?—he is near to help them. Are they in danger?—he is near to deliver them. To whom can we apply for our own salvation, or the salvation of our beloved relatives, but to Jesus? O what compassion he has to pity! may we be allured by his pity to apply. He has omnipotence to save:

may we be encouraged by his omnipotence, the handmaid of his mercy, to fall at his feet, and cry with earnestness, humility, and confidence, "Lord Jesus save us, deliver us from Satan's power, and make us and ours the monuments of thy saving grace!" Satan's dominion is a grievous yoke, a heavy burden, and all his subjects are wretched slaves. O what a change, what a blessed change, when the mighty Saviour gives the word, and sets the captive free! Jesus has left us a blessed example, by following which Divine grace will grow vigorously, and bring forth fruit abundantly. Like him we must be temperate in all things, be instant in prayer, separate ourselves from the world, and seek fellowship with God in holy retirement.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thine is the greatness and the power and the glory. Infinitely glorious are all thy perfections. Holy Spirit, open our eyes to see the glory of God in all his works, but particularly in the plan of salvation by the obedience, sufferings, and death of our incarnate Redeemer. In the language of Moses we would pray, Lord, show us thy glory. Inspire us with those devotional desires which warmed the heart of David when he said and when he sung, O God, thou art my God: early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land where no water is; to see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary.

Make us more and more acquainted with the excellence and influence of thy Word. As it is possible for thy Word to be a dead letter to those who read it, to us may it be quick and powerful, and a successful instrument in the hand of the Spirit in casting down all the vile and lofty imaginations of our heart. O forgive the careless, listless, unbelieving manner in which we have so long read the Word of life! We want more love to thy Word, more delight in its precepts, more admiration of its doctrines, more reverential veneration for its mysteries, and more reliance on its promises. Mercifully answer this our prayer.

As multitudes of whom we have been now reading were amazed at Christ, and astonished at his stupendous and gracious miracles, may we be filled with amazement at his person, his righteousness, and salvation. May such wonder be excited in our mind as shall remain with us in time, and continue with us in eternity. As the diseased and the dying welcomed Christ in the days of his flesh as their deliverer, may we now welcome Jesus as our skilful physician and as our almighty Saviour. Let none of this family any longer refuse the offers of his mercy, or reject the blessings of his salvation. Lord, have mercy on our aged and afflicted relatives. Purify them in the furnace of affliction. Have mercy on our graceless relatives, and teach them to flee from the wrath to come.

As the father of whom we have now read brought his son to Jesus, that he might deliver him from Satan's power, so we bring the dear children of our family to thee, O Jesus, that thou mayst deliver them from the dominion of that enemy who longs and waits for their destruction.

Graciously deliver us from unbelief, that singularly God-dishonouring sin. Take from us our evil hearts of unbelief, and give us a lively, vigorous faith in the love of the Father, the graces of the Son, and the influences of the Spirit. We have now read, O Jesus, of thy testimony to the power and efficacy of believing prayer. As a family, and as individuals, may we enjoy in an eminent degree the grace and spirit of supplication.

We present our grateful acknowledgments for the mercies of the past day, and supplicate the pardon of the sins committed and the guilt contracted. May we lie down and enjoy refreshing sleep under thy guardian care this night. Into thy hands we commend our spirits; and all we ask is for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

PRaise TO GOD.

Doerwaldale. Kirby. Addison's.

L. M.

- 1 TO God, the great, the ever-bless'd,
Let songs of honour be address'd:
His mercy firm for ever stands;
Give him the thanks his love demands.
- 2 Who knows the wonders of thy ways?
Who shall fulfil thy boundless praise?
Bless'd are the souls that fear thee still,
And pay their duty to thy will.
- 3 Remember what thy mercy did
For Jacob's race, thy chosen seed;
And with the same salvation bless
The meanest suppliant of thy grace.
- 4 O may I see thy tribes rejoice,
And aid their triumphs with my voice!
This is my glory, Lord, to be Joined to thy saints, and near to thee.

WATTS, Ps. 106, p. 1.

EXODUS I.

Increase of Israel in Egypt.

AND all the souls that came out of the loins of Jacob were seventy souls: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

6 And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

7 And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

8 Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we:

10 Come on, let us deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

11 Therefore they did set over them taskmasters, to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure-cities, Pithom and Raamses.

12 But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour.

14 And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour.

15 And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives,

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, if it be a son, then ye shall kill him: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

17 But the midwives feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the men children alive.

20 Therefore God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty.

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive.

REFLECTIONS, UPON EXODUS I.—Very precious are believers in the estimation of Christ, and he will hold them in affectionate and everlasting remembrance. May it be our privilege to possess and exercise that saving faith by which we shall see our names written in the Lamb's book of life, from which they shall never be erased. Are we hastening onward to the grave? Solemn thought! Are we hastening onward to a heavenly home? O delightful hope! What a mystery the existence, the increase, and the prosperity of the Church in the midst of enemies numerous, crafty, cruel, and powerful! The plots for his ruin have been deeply laid, but Divine wisdom renders them all abortive. Vigorous and persevering have been their efforts to accomplish her destruction, but Divine omnipotence has rendered them harmless, like the wave of the sea which spends its violence on the stupendous rock. God made Egyptian women the saviours of the lives of Hebrew babes. He kindled in their bosoms that mercy which saved the lives of the helpless innocents. He taught them to obey God rather than man, and dealt well with them, and rewarded them for deeds of mercy which shall be remembered for ever.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we are but of yesterday, thou art from everlasting to everlasting God. How soon the generations of men pass away! Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation; but thou dwellest for ever in immortal and glorious light. Eternity is thy residence; thou art the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity.

We confess before thee, O Lord, that though our days have been few, our sins have been numerous; though our life is only a hand-breadth and a span, yet we have reason to mourn that the guilt of our iniquity is infinite. We ascribe praise to thy name, that thou art willing to look down upon us in mercy, notwithstanding the number and the guilt of our sins. When we look upon the vile corruptions of our heart we would say with thy servant, Who shall deliver us from the body of this death? Adored be our God that we are taught to add, Thanks be to God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Thou Divine Deliverer, who died to finish transgression and make an end of sin, O finish our transgression, by destroying the dominion of sin within us; and make an end of the guilt of our iniquities, by clothing us with the comely robe of thy righteousness; then shall we be able to sing, Thou hast adorned our souls with thy grace, and made salvation ours; and though polluted worms, thou hast put thy comeliness upon us.

We adore thee in the manifestation of thy special care of Israel thy people in the land of Egypt, and in the display of thy promise to Abraham in their remarkable increase. May we see in their increase an emblem of the increase of the spiritual Israel of God in future days. May our hearts be filled with joy, that there is a period fast approaching, when the members of the Church of Christ shall be like stars of the heavens for multitude.

Take the children of our family and our domestics, and put them among the number of thy children. Give them thy grace, which is infinitely more valuable than the goodly heritage of the host of nations conferred on ancient Israel.

We rejoice that thy Church has prospered in the midst of severe affliction, and that the cruelty of Pharaoh in Egypt and of Nebuchadnezzar in Babylon did not prevent the spiritual prosperity of the true Israel of God.

Sanctify to us, and to our beloved relatives, all our afflictions. May we find them a purifying furnace. In that furnace may we find the dross of our pride, carnality, and unbelief destroyed. Fulfil in our experience that promise: Behold, I have refined thee, but not with silver; I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction. Like Israel in Egypt, the more we are afflicted, the more may our graces prosper, and our usefulness increase.

O Lord, we thank thee for the return of the morning's light, which our eyes are permitted to behold. Sun of Righteousness, rise on our souls, and fill our hearts with the light of spiritual day. Prepare us for the duties, conflicts, and temptations which are before us. In our duties may we be diligent, our spiritual enemies may we conquer, and all our temptations may we resist. Mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for the sake of Jesus, our Advocate and Lord. Amen.

LONG-SUFFERING OF GOD.

Collyer's. St. Bartholomew's. Fifth's.

P. M.

- 1 LORD, and am I yet alive,
Not in torments, not in hell?
Still doth thy good Spirit strive—
With the chief of sinners dwell?
Tell it, unto sinners, tell,
I am, I am out of hell!
- 2 Yes, I still lift up mine eyes,
Will not of thy love despair;
Still in spite of sin I rise,
Still I bow to thee in prayer. Tell it, &c.
- 3 See a stone that hangs in air!
See a spark in ocean live!
Kept alive with death so near!
I to God the glory give.
Ever tell—to sinners tell,
I am, I am out of hell.

ANON.

MARK IX.

Christ teacheth Humility.

AND he came to Capernaum: and being in the house he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?

34 But they held their peace: for by the way they had disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them, 37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us: and we forbid him, because he followeth not us.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.

41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

43 And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out; it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire:

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK IX.—The love of the world, pride, selfishness, and carnal ambition have often greatly injured the saints of God, and are dangerous rocks on which thousands of immortal souls have suffered shipwreck. May God most graciously preserve us from falling on those dangerous rocks! Let us admire Christ's love to little children, and may the Holy Spirit enable us to follow his blessed example. Is it the case that the hearts of parents glow with delight when others show tenderness and kindness to their offspring? Jesus is infinitely more pleased and delighted when acts of benevolence are shown to the objects of his love. He observes and marks and remembers the injuries which are done to his people. If these injuries are not repented of, he will bring down the heaviest judgments upon the heads of his enemies. Sin has taken firm hold of the carnal affections of the human heart. Let it be our earnest prayer to be delivered from the love of sin, and that we may never purchase its pleasures by the loss of heaven's joys!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, what reason have we to rejoice that the boundless extent of thy glory does not render thee indifferent to thy creatures! Though thou art the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is holy, we praise thee thou hast said, I dwell in the high and holy place; with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the hearts of the contrite ones.

Lord, deliver us from the pride of our carnal hearts; and may what we have now read of the pride and unhallowed ambition of the disciples of Christ teach us to offer up this petition with fervour of spirit: Lord, clothe us with humility. Deliver us from earthly ambition, and fill us with ambition to resemble the image of Christ, to be clothed with the righteousness of Christ, and to be warmed with the love of Christ. Let this ambition be ours, and while we live let it not forsake our bosom.

Thou hast held up little children, O Saviour, for our imitation. May we resemble them in their unsuspecting confidence, and be taught to exercise implicit confidence in Jesus. Like children may we be free from the love of the world; and like them may we look with contempt on worldly greatness, wealth, and honour. May we see their utter insignificance compared with the kingdom of God and his righteousness.

As an evidence that we love Christ, may we love his people, and delight in them as the objects of the Saviour's regard and as resembling his image. Impress deeply on our minds, that Jesus considers favours shown to his people as shown to himself, and injuries inflicted upon his people as indignities done to himself. May all of us have this mark of conversion, love to the brethren. With an apostle may we say on good ground, We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren. Convince us of the greatness of the danger, and the aggravation of the guilt, of offending Christ's little ones, seeing he hath said, Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

May our children be among Christ's little ones: may they be lambs in his flock. Suffer them not to belong to Satan's goats. When the day of judgment arrives, may they appear on the right-hand of the Judge, and be acquitted in the presence of an assembled world.

Holy Spirit, deliver us from the love of sin; and if we have a lust dear to us as a right-hand or a right eye, may we rather part with it than expose ourselves to the miseries of hell. Give us grace to lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset us. May we follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.

We thank our God for the health, strength, and comfort of the past day; and we look up to thee for rest and protection through this night. Let our sins be pardoned, our persons accepted, and our prayers answered, for Jesus the Mediator's sake. Amen.

PROVIDENCE.

Admiration. Rothwell. Virginia.

L. M.

- 1 THY ways, O Lord, with wise design,
Are framed upon thy throne above,
And every dark and bending line
Meets in the centre of thy love.
- 2 With feeble light and half obscure,
Poor mortals thy arrangements view;
Not knowing that the least are sure,
And the mysterious just and true.
- 3 Thy flock, thy own peculiar care,
Though now they seem to roam uncared,
Are led or driven only where
Thy best and safest may abide.

SMILE.

EXODUS II.

Birth and Preservation of Moses.

AND there went a man of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi.

2 And the woman conceived, and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months.

3 And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink.

4 And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother.

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water.

11 And it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he espied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand.

13 And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

14 And he said, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he sat down by a well.

16 Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters: and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS II.—The mother of Moses experienced the most pungent grief in connexion with the birth and early infancy of her child Moses, but she received afterwards a rich recompense in the eminent piety of her son, and in the unspeakable benefits he was instrumental in conferring on God's chosen people. God's ways are not as our ways. What a mystery! Pharaoh sought the death, and his royal daughter preserved the life, of that very child whom God destined and employed to deliver his Church and people from Pharaoh's cruel oppression and bondage! Very remarkably the infancy of Jesus was typified by that of Moses: a king sought to murder the one, and a king sought to destroy the other. Pharaoh sought to put to death Moses, the future deliverer of Israel from temporal bondage: Herod sought the death of Jesus, the Deliverer of a lost world from spiritual bondage, and from the miseries of endless despair.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we desire, on the return of another day, and in the name of Christ, to bow down before thee. We adore thee as the God of that providence which extends from heaven to earth, and which includes the government of all creatures, animate and inanimate, angelic and human. Thou hast prepared thy throne in the heavens, and thy kingdom ruleth over all. We praise thee that, though clouds and darkness are round about thee, righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne.

Bless to us the remarkable display of thy providential arrangements and government of which we have now read. Affect us with the greatness of the privilege of having the Scriptures to read, and of being able to read them. We thank thee for the natural light of the sun which shines in the heavens; but above all we thank thee for the beams of the Sun of Righteousness shining so gloriously in the pages of the inspired volume.

Truly, O God, thy love to thy Church and people is an everlasting, an unchanging love. We thank thee that, when the sufferings of thy Church are great, thy care for thy people is as great as ever; and when dark clouds of sorrow surround thy people, thy love is as strong as ever. Thou didst remember Israel, and raise up Moses thy servant to be their deliverer, when their hearts were oppressed by bitter bondage. Glory to thy name that, when the life of the infant Moses was in the greatest danger, thou didst most mercifully and wonderfully preserve him. Thy life, O Jesus, in the days of thy tender infancy, was in the greatest peril. Herod sought thy life to destroy it. We rejoice that the life of Moses was preserved, that he might be the future deliverer of Israel from Egyptian bondage, and that thy blessed life was preserved, that thou mightst rise up to be the Saviour of thy people from the miseries of hell.

We thank thee, O Lord, for preserving the lives of our dear children now before thee, in the period of their tender infancy. Though sometimes brought low by affliction, and their death looked for, thou didst most mercifully disappoint our fears, and they are now the monuments of thy kindness. O make them the monuments of thy grace.

We thank thee that, in all ages thou hast raised up instruments for the deliverance and prosperity of thy Zion. Raise up ministers of greater eminence for piety and usefulness than have ever appeared. Let all who are engaged in those studies which are preparatory to the sacred office, be filled with the Holy Ghost, and prove the most distinguished blessings to thy Church. Particularly bless missionaries, who have readily submitted to the greatest privations, that they might carry the fame of Jesus to the distant and benighted nations of the earth.

We thank thee for the refreshing rest and protection of the last night. Give us grace this day to keep our hearts with all diligence, and in all our engagements to seek thy glory. We ask the answer of our prayers, and the pardon of our sins, for Jesus the divine Redeemer's sake. Amen.

SUPPLICATING JESUS.

Richborough. Blwall. Trowbridge. Welsh. F. M.

- 1 JESUS, full of all compassion,
Hear thy humble suppliant's cry;
Let me know thy great salvation:
See! I languish, faint, and die.
- 2 Guilty, but with heart relenting,
Overwhelmed with helpless grief,
Prostrate at thy feet repenting,
Send, O send me quick relief!
- 3 Near, then, blessed Saviour! hear me!
My soul cleaveth to the dust;
Send the Comforter to cheer me;
Lo! in thee I put my trust.

D. TURNER

MARK X.

Blind Bartimeus restored to Sight.

AND they came to Jericho: and as he went out of Jericho with his disciples, and a great number of people, blind Bartimeus, the son of Timeus, sat by the highway side begging.

47 And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me.

48 And many charged him that he should hold his peace: but he cried the more a great deal, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

49 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they call the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good comfort, rise; he calleth thee.

50 And he, casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus.

51 And Jesus answered and said unto him, What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? The blind man said unto him, Lord, that I might receive my sight.

52 And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way.

MARK XII.

The common People hearing Christ gladly.

AND Jesus answered and said, while he taught in the temple, How say the scribes that Christ is the Son of David?

36 For David himself said by the Holy Ghost, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

37 David therefore himself calleth him Lord; and whence is he then his son? And the common people heard him gladly.

38 And he said unto them in his doctrine, Beware of the scribes, which love to go in long clothing, and love salutations in the market places,

39 And the chief seats in the synagogues, and the uppermost rooms at feasts:

40 Which devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: these shall receive greater condemnation.

41 And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much.

42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites, which make a farthing.

43 And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That this poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury:

44 For all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living.

spiritually blind, and surround them and fill them with the bright splendours of a spiritual and heavenly day. Bartimeus felt and mourned over the grievous infirmity of his bodily blindness, and therefore he called the more vehemently on Jesus to give him the blessing of sight. If we have felt and mourned over our spiritual blindness, if we have prayed with unfeigned earnestness to Jesus, who gives sight to the blind, that he would mercifully remove our blindness, and introduce us into the kingdom of light,—if so, he has heard our prayer, and made us the children of light. Hallelujah! O what wonders meet in Christ! In his divinity he is David's Lord, and in his humanity he is David's son. In his divinity he is David's root, and in his humanity he is David's offspring. "Jesus, we give ourselves to thee, to be for ever consecrated to thy glory!"

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, what reason have we to bless and glorify thy name that we are permitted to approach thee as a gracious God. If we had only known of thee as a God of justice, we could not have drawn near to thy presence. We adore thee that thy love allures and persuades the very chief of sinners to prostrate themselves as humble penitents at thy feet, to seek salvation through the blood of Christ. We thank thee that thou hast said, When the poor crieth, I will hear; for I am gracious. Nothing can prevent the exercise of thy grace. Thou hast declared, I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy. O with what pleasing splendour thy mercy shines amid all thy other perfections! Amid the splendours of thy state and majesty, thy love appears with the soft radiance of the morn, surrounded by a thousand stars.

Merciful God, we have sinned greatly against thy grace. How often have we done despite unto the spirit of thy grace? Wonderful patience, that long ere now thou hast not delivered us over to the strong and terrible arm of thy justice, for treating with such culpable indifference the offers of thy grace! Alas, that we have so often shut our ears to the sweet music of thy merciful voice! Still we plead thy mercy, and rejoice that we shall not plead in vain.

We desire, O Lord, to take great encouragement from what we have now read. We take encouragement to pray from the earnestness of blind Bartimeus, and from the willingness of Jesus to answer his supplication. Lord, give us earnestness in prayer. May our prayers be in reality the desires of our heart. May it never be said of us, That family draweth near to me with their lips, while their hearts are far from me. Great reason have we to mourn over the lifelessness and formality of our devotions. We justly deserve to hear our God say respecting us, what was said respecting ancient Israel: When ye spread forth your hands I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers I will not hear; your hands are full of blood.

Graciously teach our dear children to pray. As young Samuel was taught to pray, may they be taught to pray. Like blind Bartimeus may they pray, each one of them: Jesus, thou Son of David, have mercy on me.

We come to thee this evening in our own behalf, and in behalf of all who are near and dear to us; and we pray, Lord Jesus, that we may receive our spiritual sight. Open our eyes; then shall we see wonderful things in thy Word, in thy perfections, in thy Son, and in thy salvation.

We thank thee, O God, that thou hast not left us this day, and that thy gracious hand has held us up. May we retire to rest under thy smiles. This night we lean our weary heads on thy paternal bosom, and, safely folded in thine arms, resign ourselves to rest.

We supplicate the answer of our prayers, and the pardon of our sins, through our Lord and Mediator, Jesus Christ; to whom be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK X., XII.—Glorious truth!—Jesus came from heaven to earth to heal diseased souls, and to open the eyes of the

•

1997

MARTYRS GLORIFIED.

Auburn. Raphael. Grove House. C. M.

1 THESE glorious minds, how bright they shine!
Whence all their white array?
How came they to the happy seats
Of everlasting day?

2 From torturing pains to endless joys
On fiery wheels they rode,
And strangely washed their raiment white
In Jesus' dying blood.

3 Now they approach a spotless God,
And bow before his throne;
Their warbling harps and sacred songs Adore the Holy One.

WARRS, 41, 271.

EXODUS III.

God appearing to Moses.

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the other side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

2 And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

6 Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

10 Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

11 And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12 And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: when thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you.

15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

16 Go, and gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt.

18 And they shall hearken to thy voice: and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, The Lord God of the Hebrews hath met with us: and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God.

19 And I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, unless, not by a mighty hand.

20 And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and after that he will let you go.

21 And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty.

Reflections upon Exodus iii.—We may look on the burning bush, yet not consumed, as a great figurative illustration of the mystery of the incarnation of God,—namely, the Divinity dwelling in the humanity of the person of the Son, and not consumed. And though the fire of Divine justice sifted the humanity, it still lives in all the lovely verdure of an imperishable immortality. Do we not also see in this most mysterious bush a lively emblem of the Church of the living God? The fires of persecution have raged upon her times innumerable, and yet she remains unhurt, secure, and glorious! Is Christ in us the hope of glory?—then we are for ever safe, for ever blest.

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, thou art the self-existent and the infinitely independent Jehovah. Thy name is, I AM THAT I AM. This is thy name for ever, and it is thy memorial to all generations. We adore and acknowledge thee as the God of our fathers, and the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and we adore thee as the Lord our God, our new covenant God in Christ.

Give us grace to draw near to thy throne at this time, and at all times, with reverence and godly fear. O that we could always approach thy presence with strong faith, holy awe, clean hands, and a pure heart! We would mourn and lament over the unconcerned and irreverent manner in which we have often entered upon the exercise of prayer. When we draw near to God in this and in every other ordinance, may we remember the language addressed to Moses from the burning bush: Put off thy shoes from off thy feet; for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

May God's presence in the bush remind us that God dwelt in the humanity of Jesus when enveloped in the flames of Divine wrath. May we wonder to see the humanity preserved in the midst of the wrath of Divine justice, one spark of which was sufficient to have destroyed the universe.

We rejoice, O God of Zion, that thy presence was never withdrawn from thy Church. Glory to thy name, that, though surrounded on all hands with the devouring fire of persecution, she has ever enjoyed thy presence, which has always proved her security, strength, and glory. Thanks to the God of heaven for the wisdom, magnanimity, fortitude, mildness, joy, and triumph with which the blessed martyrs were inspired, and for the noble example which they have left as a legacy to succeeding generations. O that the mind which dwelt in them may dwell in us!

Be present with us as a family, in all our afflictions. Suffer not the flames of affliction to destroy us; but grant that they may be rendered effectual in making us heavenly and holy. O Lord, be graciously present with all our afflicted relatives: may they walk with God in the furnace of affliction, relying on the righteousness of Christ that they shall appear before the throne above in robes of glorious purity.

Mercifully teach the dear children to seek God to be their God. O Lord, be their God and Father; and when father or mother forsake them, graciously take them up.

Accept of our thanksgivings for the mercies of the past night, and may we be under the direction of thine unerring wisdom this day. May our sins be forgiven, and our prayers answered, for Jesus' sake. And we would ascribe to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

JESUS CRUCIFIED.

Hatfield Chapel. Green Walk. Westbury Leigh. P. M.

- 1 WHEN with a melting heart I stood Near to the fountain filled with blood,
It flowed a crimson tide;
That sight what stranger's heart can guess,
Or mind conceive, or tongue express?
'T was Jesus crucified.
- 2 But, plunged beneath the cleansing flood,
My heart exclaimed, Behold how good
The God who loved and died!
None saves from sin, its guilt, its stains,
From death and everlasting pains,
But Jesus crucified.
- 3 O let me still this wonder see,
And cry, He loved and died for me,
And near the cross abide;
Take off my load, and from my heart
Bid sin, and guilt, and fear depart,
My Jesus crucified.

ANON.

MARK XIV.

Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane.

AND they came to a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I shall pray.

33 And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be sore amazed, and to be very heavy;

34 And saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and watch.

35 And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed, that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him.

36 And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless, not what I will, but what thou wilt.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? couldest not thou watch one hour?

38 Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.

39 And again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.

40 And when he returned he found them asleep again, (for their eyes were heavy,) neither wist they what to answer him.

41 And he cometh a third time, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come; behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

42 Rise up, let us go; lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.

43 And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.

44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.

45 And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, master; and kissed him.

46 And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

48 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and with staves to take me?

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but the scriptures must be fulfilled.

50 And they all forsook him, and fled.

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him.

52 And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK XIV.—We should call Gethsemane to our remembrance every day. There the great Surety passed through the Red Sea of the Divine wrath; there the overwhelming billows passed over him; there he endured the most dreadful storm of judicial vengeance; there the arrows of the Almighty, whetted by human guilt, entered his soul, and inflicted the most agonizing wounds of suffering and of woe; there the sword of justice was drawn from its scabbard—there it awoke from the slumbers of ages against him who was God's fellow; there the great Shepherd of the flock was smitten, and soon after the sheep were scattered; and there he drank a bitter cup of wrath, which the sins of men had filled up. What a cup! One drop lighting upon our world was sufficient to have annihilated it; one drop was sufficient to have accomplished the perdition of the whole race of man. When we remember that he drunk—willingly drunk—this cup of woe, this cup of wrath for us, what love should glow in our bosom toward Jesus, who drank the bitter cup of wrath that we might drink the cup of salvation!

PRAYER.

WE would rejoice, O Lord, that an opportunity is now graciously afforded us, after the business, temptations, and events of the day, to draw near to the throne of grace. Holy Spirit, teach us, in the exercise of a holy, lively faith, to come boldly to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in every time of need.

We present before thee the tribute of our thanks, for thy continued and undeserved kindness through another day. Our life, our health, our reason, our food and raiment, our mental peace, our domestic and relative comfort, our civil and social privileges, are streams which proceed from thee, the overflowing Fountain of all blessedness. For all these we magnify thy holy name. Mercifully take us under thy care this night. O spread over us the wings of thy watchful power; then no evil shall befall us. May we live to another Sabbath-day, and may we rise from our beds refreshed and strengthened, to enter into thy courts, and actively engage in the solemnities of thy sanctuary. In the prospect of appearing in thy house, we would say with David, How amiable are thy tabernacles, Lord God of hosts! A day in thy courts is better than a thousand anywhere else.

May the blessing of the Spirit rest on what we have now read of the malignity and treachery of man, and of the sufferings and patience of Christ. O what hateful villainy and depravity we see in man, but what love and meekness and loveliness in Christ! When we think of men plotting thy death, while on thy life hang the life and salvation of unnumbered millions, may we mourn over the frightful change which sin has produced upon the nature of man! When we read of thy sufferings, O Jesus, may our hearts be filled with a deep-rooted abhorrence of sin, and may all the affections of our heart be directed to thee as the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person. While we abhor the sin of Judas in so treacherously betraying his Master, may we be prevented from imitating Judas' sin. Suffer us not to betray our Lord, by forsaking his ordinances, profaning his Sabbath, or abusing his people. Preserve us from the sin of backsliding. Give us grace to be constant and earnest in prayer; then shall we be preserved from falling into temptation.

O Lord, our hearts feel for our dear children before thee, when we think of the numerous and powerful temptations which may endanger their salvation. We pray not that thou wouldst take them out of the world, but we pray that they may be preserved from the evil that is in the world.

Bless what we have now read of the sin of apostasy. Preserve us from this most daring and destroying sin. With the Psalmist we would say, If we forget thee let our right-hand forget her cunning, and let our tongue cleave to the roof of our mouth. We ask the pardon of all our sins, and the answer of our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

DWELLING WITH GOD.

Worcester. Oxford. Beaus.

C. X.

- 1 THE earth for ever is the Lord's,
With Adam's numerous race;
He raised its arches o'er the floods,
And built it on the seas.
- 2 But who, among the sons of men,
May visit thine abode?
He that has hands from mischief clean,
Whose heart is right with God.
- 3 This is the man may rise and take
The blessings of his grace;
This is the lot of those that seek
The God of Jacob's face.

Watts, Ps. 21.

PSALM XXIV.

God's Dominion and Christ's Glory.

- THE earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.
- 2 For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods.
  - 3 Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?
  - 4 He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully.
  - 5 He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation.
  - 6 This is the generation of them that seek him, that seek thy face, O God of Jacob. Selah.
  - 7 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.
  - 8 Who is this King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle.
  - 9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.
  - 10 Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory. Selah.

PSALM XXV.

David's Prayer.

- UNTO thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.
- 2 O my God, I trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me.
  - 3 Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.
  - 4 Shew me thy ways, O Lord; and teach me thy paths.
  - 5 Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.
  - 6 Remember, O Lord, thy tender mercies and thy loving-kindnesses; for they have been ever of old.
  - 7 Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O Lord.
  - 8 Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way.
  - 9 The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.
  - 10 All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies.
  - 11 For thy name's sake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXIV., XXV.—What is creation? It is an immense mirror, reflecting the glorious attributes of the Almighty Creator. It is our privilege and duty, and may it be the delight of our hearts, to see God in his works, and to admire and adore those Divine attributes which shine forth in all the brightness of their glory. Such contemplations are unspeakably profitable and endearing when we can say, "My Jesus, my Saviour made them all." Our devotional and affectionate meditations should often follow our exalted Lord to that glorious throne above, which he now fills as the reward of his atonement. Are we his?—we shall sit beside him on his throne. How blessed are the saints of God! They have fellowship with God. Their confidence is placed on God, as the God of their salvation. They shall be delivered from all their enemies. Their sins are blotted out, and God is their loving, constant guide, who will at last lead them to the paradise of the blest.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY exalted Lord God of hosts, we bow the knee before thee, on the morning of thy sacred, hallowed day, and venture to draw near in the name of Jesus, our Mediator and Redeemer. Good and upright art thou, O Lord; therefore thou wilt teach sinners in the way. By the preaching of the Word may hardened sinners see the danger of the ways of sin, and forsake them; may they see the blessedness and the safety of the ways of holiness, and walk in them. What reason have we to sing and rejoice, O Lord, that all thy paths are mercy and truth unto such as keep thy covenant and thy testimonies. Make thy covenant with multitudes who shall be assembled in thy house of prayer, and turn their hearts from lying vanities to thee, the living God.

We adore thee as the Creator of all things. The earth is thine and the fulness thereof; the world and all the descriptions of beings, rational and irrational, that dwell upon its surface; For thou hast founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods. Blessed Jesus, we adore thee as the Creator of all things. All things were made by thee. Open the eyes of the Jews to see that thou art the divine Messiah; and open the eyes of all men to acknowledge thy Divine power. May thy Divine and uncreated glories be held up to the view of men in all the churches; then, agreeably to thy promise, thou wilt draw multitudes to thyself. O that each member of this family were savingly united to thy person. We have heard of thee as a Saviour gracious and mighty; O may we know thee experimentally as our Prophet, Priest, and King. Once, O Jesus, thou didst appear on earth as an humbled Saviour, but now thou art exalted in thy mediatorial offices above all the principalities and powers which are on earth and in heaven. The gates have lifted up their heads, the everlasting doors have been lifted up, and as the King of glory thou didst pass through the portals of the heavenly Jerusalem, didst therefore receive at the hands of the Father the crown of glory purchased by thy blood.

Thou gracious King, look mercifully on the children of our family, and make them thy subjects. Incline their hearts to love, honour, and obey thee. Make them and our domestics willing in the day of thy power.

Have mercy on our relatives and friends. Suffer none of them to live without thee, or opposed to thee. Such among them as are strangers to thy grace, subdue them to thyself.

Show pity to a rebellious world, and deliver all its inhabitants from the dominion of false gods. For this important purpose prosper exceedingly all those great institutions which are formed for evangelising benighted nations.

Comfort the afflicted and the aged in the abodes of suffering. Cheer their hearts with faith in Christ, and animate them with hopes of heaven.

We thank God for that mercy which has preserved us during the past night, and for the pleasing prospect of appearing in his house to listen to the joyful sound. May this be a day never to be forgotten, may it prove the foretaste of heaven.

We humbly seek the pardon of our sins and the answer of our prayers, for Jesus our Surety's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SELF-EXAMINATION.

Warrington. Rochford. Kingsbridge.

L. K.

- 1 JUDGE me, O Lord, and prove my ways,
And try my reins, and try my heart;
My faith upon thy promise stays,
Nor from thy law my feet depart.
- 2 I hate to walk, I hate to sit,
With men of vanity and lies;
The scoffer and the hypocrite
Are the abhorrence of my eyes.
- 3 Amongst thy saints will I appear,
With hands well washed in innocence;
But when I stand before thy bar,
The blood of Christ is my defence.

WATTS, Ps. 26.

PSALM XXVI.

David's Integrity, and Love to God's House.

JUDGE me, O LORD; for I have walked in mine integrity:
I have trusted also in the LORD; therefore I shall not slide.

2 Examine me, O LORD, and prove me; try my reins and my heart.

3 For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes: and I have walked in thy truth.

4 I have not sat with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers.

5 I have hated the congregation of evil doers; and will not sit with the wicked.

6 I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O LORD:

7 That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works.

8 LORD, I have loved the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth.

9 Gather not my soul with sinners, nor my life with bloody men:

10 In whose hands is mischief, and their right hand is full of bribes.

11 But as for me, I will walk in mine integrity: redeem me, and be merciful unto me.

12 My foot standeth in an even place: in the congregations will I bless the LORD.

PSALM XXVII.

David's Faith in God.

THE LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?

2 When the wicked, even mine enemies and my foes, came upon me to eat up my flesh, they stumbled and fell.

3 Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear: though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident.

4 One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to inquire in his temple.

5 For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me upon a rock.

6 And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me: therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXVI., XXVII.—Self-examination is an ordinance most experimental, practical, and useful. If we wish to awake from the slumbers of spiritual death we should examine ourselves: or if we are the partakers of grace, and are desirous to grow in grace, and bring forth luxuriantly the fruits of righteousness, we should impartially observe the trying ordinance of self-examination. We may now look at some of the most prominent marks and evidences of unfeigned piety of a regenerating change. Is it our desire to walk in the straight path of holy sincerity and truth? Is our faith built on Jesus, and our hopes placed on no other foundation? Have we a deep-rooted aversion to the society of ungodly men, and is the fellowship of the righteous our delight? Has the light of Divine knowledge entered into our understanding, and enabled us to see a glory, loveliness, and excellence in Christ we have seen in no other object? Is this the case? Then we have passed from death unto life.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father, we adore thee as the Father of lights. Thou art the light of the universe, the light of angels, and the light of men. Thou dwellest in light which is inaccessible, too dazzling and glorious to be seen by mortal eyes. Holy Spirit, teach us in the language of the Psalmist thus to acknowledge and address our God: The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?

What reason have we to praise thee for the light of reason, for the light of conscience, and for the light of revelation. In addition to these, bless us with the light of salvation. Give us the light of grace, which will be followed by the light of glory.

Take the youthful members of our family, and bring them out of the kingdom of nature's darkness, and introduce them into the kingdom of thy dear Son, where the light of salvation shines in all its influence.

We affectionately pray for the rising race throughout our land, and may their minds be attracted by the blessed light of Jesus the Star of Bethlehem. May multitudes be enabled to sing respecting this heavenly and divine Star: It is my guide, my light, my all; it destroyed my dark forebodings; and it led me through the storm, and through numerous frightful dangers, to the port of peace.

Gracious God, forgive the languid, careless, and imperfect manner in which we have observed the ordinances of religion this day. Thou hast said, Keep thy foot when thou goest to the house of God, and be more ready to hear than to give the sacrifice of fools. How seldom, alas, have we followed thy salutary counsel! how much have our thoughts wandered, and how often have we given the sacrifice of fools! O remember not against us the sins of our holy services; the sins of the closet, the sins of the domestic altar, and the sins of the sanctuary.

We thank thee for the Gospel which has been preached, for the assistance thy ministers have enjoyed, for the saving benefit which has been imparted, for the edification and comfort thy children have experienced, and for the additions which have been made to Immanuel's kingdom this day.

We bless thee for thy kindness to us as a family and a congregation, and for the spiritual strength thou didst impart to thy servant who broke among us the bread of life. Ever may we love the habitation of thy house, and the place where thine honour dwelleth. May we ever walk in the integrity of the Gospel; redeem us and be merciful unto us. With David may we say, One thing have we desired of the Lord, that will we seek after: that we may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of our life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in his temple.

May we enjoy thy watchful care this night, and be safely hid in the pavilion of thy gracious power. May we lie down on our beds, gratefully impressed with a sense of the privileges we have this day received from the God of ordinances.

Hear these the desires of our heart, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

CHRIST EXALTED.

Bradley. Zion Temple. Antigua.

I. N.

- 1 THUS the eternal Father spake
To Christ the Son, Ascend and sit
At my right-hand, till I shall make Thy foes submissive at thy feet.
- 2 From Zion shall thy word proceed,
Thy word, the sceptre in thy hand,
Shall make the heart of rebels bleed,
And bow their wills to thy command.
- 3 That day shall show thy power is great,
When saints shall flock with willing minds,
And sinners crowd thy temple gate,
Where holiness in beauty shines.

WATTS, Ps. 110, p. 1.

EXODUS IV.

God's Commission to Moses.

AND Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The LORD hath not appeared unto thee.

2 And the LORD said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:

5 That they may believe that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

6 And the LORD said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous as snow.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again; and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

8 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land: and the water which thou takest out of the river shall become blood upon the dry land.

10 And Moses said unto the LORD, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant; but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11 And the LORD said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the LORD?

12 Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

13 And he said, O my Lord, send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou wilt send.

14 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what ye shall do.

16 And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God.

17 And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

18 And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father-in-law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS IV.—Astonishing! that unbelief should have cleaved so closely to Moses even in God's immediate, gracious presence, and also when listening to God's gracious promises! In God's tenderness to the weakness, doubts, and fears of his servant, we have a most wonderful display of Divine patience, condescension, and love. Let each one of us mourn over our unbelief, and pray to our compassionate Saviour, "We believe, Lord, help our unbelief." While it is the desire of multitudes that they may grow in wealth, that they may lay up gold and heap up silver as the clay, that their corn, wine, and oil may abound, let it be the ambition of our heart and the desire of our souls that we may possess the imperishable treasures of grace, and that we may be strong in the faith, giving glory to God. God's marvellous love to his Church shines in the numerous and mighty miracles he has wrought in her behalf, to the confusion of demons and the delight of angels.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, how infinitely wonderful art thou in thy nature, thine attributes, and thy works! May the Word we have now read, which contains the record of thy power, thy patience, and thy condescending kindness, fill our minds with reverential awe and adoring love. Thy gracious appearance to Moses in the land of Midian was the dawning of the glorious day of the deliverance of thy Church from the miseries of Egyptian bondage. Teach us as a family to look back to that day with holy interest and joy.

We are thy professed servants; but have reason to confess with shame our great unfitness for thy service, and with grief our great backwardness in thy service. Thou hast given to us the noble faculty of speech, but with what reluctance we have employed it for thy glory! In the service of sin our tongue has been as the pen of a ready writer; while in thy cause, and for thy kingdom, and the honour of thy Son, we have been slow of speech, and of a slow tongue. Give us grace to remedy these evils, and never to make our unfitness, or the obstinacy and opposition of men, as an apology for neglect of duty. Thy grace is not only infinitely sufficient, but thou hast kindly promised a rich supply for duty, for difficulty, and danger. Deliver us from the fear of man in thy service, and may we firmly resolve with the Psalmist to go forward in thy strength, making mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only.

We fervently pray that our children may be made the servants of Christ. Suffer them not to employ the golden period of their lives, and the youthful ardour of their hearts in the service of their worst enemies, the devil, the world, and the flesh. Let not a calamity so affecting befall them.

Accept of our expressions of thankfulness for the mercies of the night, and for the opportunity now enjoyed of fellowship with thee in the reading of the Word of life, in singing thy praise, and in calling upon thee by prayer. Give us thy heavenly grace this day, to keep our hearts with diligence, to resist temptations, to discharge our duties, both temporal and spiritual, with liveliness and diligence, and to meet every event of providence with humble and filial dependence upon the grace and promise of a merciful God.

Bless what we have now read of the rod of Moses, by which our God so wonderfully displayed his power. We praise thee that we have heard of the rod of Gospel grace, by which unparalleled manifestations of converting power have been given in the salvation of millions. O send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion, and let its effects be seen in our family, in our congregation, in our neighbourhood, and in our land. May our prayers and services come up before thee, O Lord, with acceptance, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST'S DEATH.

Contribution. Geneva. Dresden. Gould's. L. M.

- 1 STRETCHED on the cross, the Saviour dies;
Hark! his expiring groans arise;
See, from his hands, his feet, his side,
Runs down the sacred, crimson tide!
- 2 But life attends the deathful sound,
And flows from every bleeding wound;
The vital stream, how free it flows
To save and cleanse his rebel foes!
- 3 To suffer in the traitor's place,
To die for man, surprising grace!
Yet pass rebellious angels by—
O why for man, dear Saviour, why?

STEELE.

MARK XV.

The Death of Christ.

AND so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified.

22 And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of a skull.

23 And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh: but he received it not.

24 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots upon them, what every man should take.

25 And it was the third hour, and they crucified him.

26 And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

33 And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

38 And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

39 And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

40 There were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less and of Joseph, and Salome;

41 (Who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.

42 And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the Sabbath, 43 Joseph of Arimathea, an honourable counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

46 And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.

47 And Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joseph, beheld where he was laid.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK XV.—And was our Saviour scourged? Yes! That prophecy was fulfilled, "The plowmen plowed upon my back: they made long their furrows." If our faith in Christ is saving and appropriating we can say, with wonder and with love,

"He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his stripes we are healed." "There ne'er was love like his!" He submitted to be stripped of his raiment that our naked souls might be clothed and adorned with the garments of salvation. He submitted to ignominy, shame, and scorn that we might receive unfading honours, and enjoy the glories of heaven. "There ne'er was love like this!" He was nailed to a cross that we might receive a throne. He bore the curse that we might inherit the blessing. He died encompassed with the frowns of justice that we might live for ever, encompassed with his Father's smiles. Surely, "there ne'er was love like this: it passeth knowledge!"

PRAYER.

DIVINE and gracious Lord God, thou hast most mercifully revealed thyself as a God of love. Such manifestations hast thou given of thy love, as to remove the overwhelming terrors of thy justice, and thus to encourage the guilty sinner to approach thy throne, and look for mercy through the merit of thy well-beloved Son. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet peradventure for a good man would some even dare to die. But God commended his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us. Amazing goodness!—incomprehensible love! O may our hearts with gratitude adore thy matchless grace! And may we never more yield ourselves to sin, or wear its cruel and degrading fetters.

O thou Lamb of God, thou second Person of the adorable Trinity, we praise thee for the rich displays of thy love given during all the days of thy humble life, but more especially at thy death, and when suspended to the accursed tree. There was no eye to pity, but thine eye pitied; and there was no hand to help, but thy hand did work out our deliverance. Thousands of gold and silver, the cattle upon a thousand hills, even a sacrifice of angels themselves could not have made atonement for our guilt or have purchased our redemption. Gems and costly jewels were insufficient to purchase peace for our souls; yea, a thousand worlds were too poor to purchase our redemption. But thou, Immanuel, God with us, didst pay a ransom infinitely sufficient. Thy blood, of inconceivable value, thou didst shed for traitors rebellious and vile.

Holy Spirit, may the remembrance of the love of Christ enkindle a flame of sacred love in our hearts that shall never be extinguished; and may the remembrance of the sufferings he endured for sin, fill our souls with that penitential grief for sin which will never subside. Seeing that Jesus was crucified for sin, may our sins be crucified; seeing that Jesus died for sin, may we die unto sin and live unto righteousness.

Open the eyes of the young members of our family to see that sin is the greatest evil, and the evil from which all other evils flow. Suffer them not to imagine that it is a light matter to sin against a holy and just God, seeing that the wrath of God fell on his only Son, on account of the sins of men.

May the fame of Christ's death soon overspread the earth. Raise up multitudes of faithful ministers in every land, who shall proclaim the wonders of the cross of Christ. Ever may the person, the offices, the work, the righteousness, and the death of Jesus, occupy a pre-eminent place in the sermons of those who profess to be the priests of Zion's King. May the preaching of Christ and his cross be to us the wisdom of God and the power of God. May we look upon the cross as the tree of life, bearing the rich and refreshing fruits of salvation.

We thank a gracious Providence for the continuance of our temporal and spiritual blessings during the past day, and we commit ourselves with filial confidence to his care this night. May he accept of us mercifully in Christ, our Mediator and Lord. Amen.

VALUE AND COMFORT OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Calverton. Fourth. Stillman. Sprague.

c. n.

1 I ADEN with guilt, and full of fears
I fly to thee, my Lord,
And not a glimpse of hope appears,
But in thy written word.

2 The volume of my Father's grace
Does all my griefs assuage;
Here I behold my Saviour's face
Almost in every page.

3 This is the judge that ends the strife,
Where wit and reason fail;
My guide to everlasting life,
Through all this gloomy vale. WATTS, 119, B. 11.

EXODUS V.

The Oppression of the Israelites.

AND afterwards Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness.

2 And Pharaoh said, Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go.

3 And they said, The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the Lord our God; lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get you unto your burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold the people of the land now are many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the taskmasters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

9 Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard vain words.

10 And the taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

13 And the taskmasters hasted them, saying, Fulfil your works, your daily tasks, as when there was straw.

14 And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and to day, as heretofore?

15 Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

17 But he said, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye say, Let us go and do sacrifice to the Lord.

18 Go therefore now, and work; for there shall no straw be given you, yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not diminish ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh:

21 And they said unto them, The Lord look upon you, and judge; because ye have made our savour to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

22 And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS V.—It is God who places kings upon their thrones, and invests them with greatness, majesty, and power. Yet how affecting the truth, that so few kings know and love and adore that Jehovah, who is the source of all their authority, and before whom they must at last appear, as Judge of all! The greatest ornament, and the most distinguishing honour of kings and rulers, is mercy. But what monsters they appear, and what desolating curses they prove, when their government is stained by cruelty and blood. O what a contrast the throne and government of Jesus, when compared with the throne and rule of tyrannical princes, who have rendered themselves the heartless scourges of the race of man! Thus the sweet singer of Israel proclaims the unequalled excellence of that government Christ exercises, and that throne he fills: "Justice and judgment are the habitation of his throne, mercy and truth go before his face."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we draw near to thee as a family, this morning, with the voice of thanksgiving and praise. We offer up the tribute of gratitude to thy throne, for the protection thy kind providence has afforded during the night; and we are encouraged to pray that thy special grace may guide us in the various duties of the day. May thy merciful hand be near us this day, thy kind hand, by which we have so often been comforted in times that are past. And may this hand continue to lead, supply, and protect us, all our journey through.

We adore thee, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as the ruler of the universe, and we repose with confidence in the wisdom, justice, and mercy of thy government. The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles thereof be glad. What reason have we to sing for joy, that though clouds and darkness are round about thee, righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne!

We mourn, blessed Jesus, over the ignorance of thy name, thy Person, and thy salvation, which prevails upon the face of the earth. Deliver us as a family from that ignorance.

Make our children savingly acquainted with thee, as their mighty deliverer from the power of sin, Satan, the world, and death. God forbid that they should fall into the sin of despising Christ and neglecting his salvation.

Deliver the inhabitants of our nation from a spirit of infidelity and profanation. Suffer them not to do despite unto the Spirit of grace. Many follow the example of Pharaoh, and say, Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice? Preserve us from a sin so daring, presumptuous, and destructive.

Teach us to look on sin, Satan, and particularly our own lusts and corruptions, as cruel taskmasters, more tyrannical and severe than the taskmasters of Egypt. We have served our sins too long; we have offended thee, we have injured others by our sinful example, and we have exposed our souls to the most imminent danger. We, therefore, earnestly pray for deliverance from our spiritual taskmasters. Teach all of us to see that the wages of sin is death. We are convinced that we have plucked no satisfying fruit from the trees of sin; we would, therefore, long for sanctified and renewed hearts. Blessed Jesus, may we as a family, and all the families with which we are connected, become thy servants. May we be delivered from the bondage of the law, as a broken covenant of works, and may we take upon us thy yoke, which is easy, and thy burden, which is light. Rule over us, O Jesus. Rule over our understandings, by filling them with heavenly wisdom; rule over our wills, by making them obedient to thy laws; and rule over our affections, by filling them with thy love. Make our souls thy sacred temples, and the members of our bodies ready instruments of righteousness. May our offences be forgiven and our prayers accepted, through Jesus, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

Chorist New. Feversham. Easter Hymn.

P. M.

- 1 CHRIST, the Lord, is risen to day!
Sons of men, and angels, say!
Raise your joys and triumphs high!
Sing, ye heavens,—and, earth, reply.
- 2 Love's redeeming work is done,—
Fought the fight, the battle won:
Lo! the sun's eclipse is o'er:
Lo! he sets in blood no more.
- 3 Vain the stone, the watch, the seal,
Christ has burst the gates of hell!
Death in vain forbids his rise,
Christ hath opened paradise.

ANON.

MARK XVI.

Christ's Resurrection and Ascension.

AND when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

2 And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

3 And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4 And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

5 And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

6 And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

7 But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

9 Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

11 And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

12 After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

13 And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

14 Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

15 And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

16 He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned.

17 And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues;

18 They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

19 So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

20 And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON MARK XVI.—The Jewish Sabbath is gone, and all earthly Sabbaths shall pass away for ever. But there is a Sabbath of rest, peace, love, holiness, adoration, and praise beyond the grave, which shall never cease. Let us hail and anticipate that joyful, glorious day! Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, came to the grave of Jesus on a Sabbath morning to see a dead Saviour; we come to the holy sanctuary on the Sabbath-day to seek a living Saviour, and pay our homage at his feet. Jesus was death's prisoner, but when he completed the payment of our debt he became death's conqueror. Then that illustrious prophecy received a glorious accomplishment: "O death! I will be thy plagues; O grave! I will be thy destruction: repentance shall be hid from mine eyes." He has now come from prison and from judgment, and the blessed resurrection of the myriads of redeemed saints at the last day shall furnish a glorious demonstration of the greatness of his victory over the last enemy, and of the boundless merit and efficacy of his atonement.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, praise waiteth for thee in Zion; and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come. Unto thee, O Lord, as a family we come; and though thou art arrayed in terrible majesty, we rejoice we can come with safety and acceptance, through Christ.

O Lord, iniquities prevail against us; as for our transgressions, purge them away. Iniquities of the heart, of the conversation, and of the conduct, prevail against us; iniquities of omission and sins of commission prevail against us. Through the peace-speaking blood of Jesus, purge them all away. Wash us in the laver of a Redeemer's righteousness; then we shall be justified from all things, from which we can never be justified by the law of Moses. Praise to our God, that though our sins are as scarlet, thou art willing to make them as white as snow; and that, though they are red like crimson, thou art willing to make them as wool.

Teach the younger members of our family to become humble supplicants at the throne of grace, and seek forgiveness through our Saviour's blood. In their early days, may they become the disciples of Jesus, and be humble penitents at his feet.

We thank our heavenly Father that we have been preserved during the duties, temptations, and difficulties of the day, and that we are now permitted to bow before the throne of grace. Let the guilt of the day be washed away by the merit of our Saviour's righteousness. In the exercise of faith and confidence in God, we would commit ourselves to thy protecting care and kindness. As the child reposes on the parent's bosom, so we would cast ourselves for time and eternity into the everlasting arms of a gracious God.

Savily impress on our minds what we have now read from the volume of eternal truth. May thy Word prove to our souls a nail fastened in a sure place by the Master of assemblies. May we not only admire, but imitate the love of the pious women, who attended early at the Saviour's tomb, and earnestly sought their Lord. Early in the morning they commenced their search, and early in the morning may we approach the throne of grace. How few of us can say with David, My crying prevented the dawning of the day! Like him, may we say, and resolve in the exercise of a lively faith, O Lord our God, early will we seek thee.

As angels take so deep an interest in that salvation of which they never stood in need, may Christ, his cross, and his triumph, be all our salvation, and all our desire. We rejoice that Jesus rose triumphant from the grave, as the first-fruits of those who sleep. May our graves prove a bed of rest, and on the morning of the resurrection may we rise to meet the Lord in the air, and then be with him for ever. Hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE GREATNESS OF GOD.

American. Bathed New. British.

c. n.

- 1 LONG as I live I'll bless thy name,
My King, my God of love;
My work and joy shall be the same
In the bright world above.
- 2 Great is the Lord, his power unknown,
And let his praise be great;
I'll sing the honours of thy throne,
Thy works of grace repeat.
- 3 Thy grace shall dwell upon my tongue;
And while my lips rejoice,
The men that hear my sacred song
Shall join their cheerful voice.

WATTS, Ps. 145, p. 1.

EXODUS VI.

The Commission to Moses enforced by the name Jehovah.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand shall he drive them out of his land.

2 And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the LORD:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

4 And I have also established my covenant with them, to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

5 And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage; and I have remembered my covenant.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched-out arm, and with great judgments:

7 And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did swear to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage: I am the LORD.

9 And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: but they hearkened not unto Moses for anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Go in, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

12 And Moses spake before the LORD, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have not hearkened unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, who am of uncircumcised lips?

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto the children of Israel, and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

14 These are that Aaron and Moses, to whom the LORD said, Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt according to their armies.

15 These are they which spake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt; these are that Moses and Aaron.

16 And it came to pass, on the day when the LORD spake unto Moses in the land of Egypt, 17 That the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, I am the LORD: speak thou unto Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say unto thee.

18 And Moses said before the LORD, Behold, I am of uncircumcised lips, and how shall Pharaoh hearken unto me?

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS VI.—Great is our King Jesus, who can instantly annihilate the power and the glory of earthly kings, and lay their honour in the dust, or compel them, notwithstanding the hostile enmity of their hearts, to become his involuntary agents in accomplishing his sovereign purposes, for the honour of his name, and for the help and deliverance of his Church! Very dear to Christ are his saints. He has made with them an everlasting covenant, well-ordered in all things and sure; he hears their groanings and their prayers; he comes to their relief; he pities them as a father pities his children; he knoweth their feeble frame, that they are but dust, therefore he takes them up in his arms, and lays them in the bosom of his love. He sees all their tribulations, he knows all their afflictions, and he will deliver them out of them all. He will lead them safely through all the dangers of the wilderness of this world, and bring them at last to their happy, heavenly home!

PRAYER.

OLORD, thou art Israel's God, terrible to thine enemies, and to the enemies of thy Church. Thy hand is strong, thy hand is almighty. With thy strong hand thou didst punish the proud king of Egypt, and compel him to set thy people free. Mercifully employ the strong arm of thy grace, and accomplish our spiritual freedom. Deliver us from our lusts, our passions, our prejudices, our guilt, the allurements of the world, and the snares of Satan.

Blessed Jesus, with a strong hand thou didst work out the salvation of thy people on Calvary's cross. May we believe that there was a more wonderful act of power performed when thou didst expire on the accursed tree, than when thou didst call into existence the universe. By thy Spirit may we be taught the true import of these blessed words of an expiring Saviour: It is finished! Teach us to glory in the cross of Christ. O that we could exclaim with believing and admiring hearts, when we survey the wondrous cross on which our Saviour died, we count all things as loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ!

Exert thy great and strong hand in the salvation of our children. May thy powerful hand preserve them from temptation, may thy wise hand lead them all their journey through, and may thy merciful hand at last convey them to heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, in thy name JEHOVAH, which thou didst first make known to thy servant Moses. May we rejoice in all the essential excellences of thy nature included in that name, and that all these excellences are glorified in Christ. Lord, teach us to meditate with delight on thy being, personality, perfection, and covenant.

God of all grace, mercifully make thy covenant with each member of this family. If any of us have been taken into covenant with thee, we would say as David did: It is all our salvation, and all our desire. If there are any among us not yet brought into covenant with thee, may they now approve of the plan of salvation through our Saviour's blood, and receive the blessings of his purchase on the free and liberal terms of gospel-grace. As thou didst graciously take off the burdens of the Israelites, remove from us the burden of sin, of guilt, and of bondage, and may we all receive the liberty of the sons of God.

Thou didst hear and pity the groanings of the children of Israel; mercifully hear the groanings and pity the sufferings of all the sons and daughters of affliction. Pour out upon them a spirit of prayer, and fulfil in their experience and in ours, when the night of affliction overtakes us, that promise, He will regard the prayers of the destitute, and not despise their prayer.

We thank thee for thy guardian care and protection through the last night, and for the inestimable privilege of being permitted to approach the throne of grace. Enable us to live in thy fear all the day long. Mercifully forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

WAY OF HOLINESS DESIRED.

Mount Calvary. Quebec. Ann's.

c. n.

- 1 LORD God, omnipotent to bless,
My supplication hear;
Guardian of Jacob, hear my voice,
Incline thy gracious ear.
- 2 If I have never yet begun
To tread the sacred road,
O teach my wandering feet the way
To Zion's blest abode!
- 3 Or, if I'm travelling in the path,
Assist me with thy strength,
And let no swift advances make,
And reach thine heaven at length!

GIBBONS.

LUKE I.

The Birth of John announced to Zacharias.

THERE was in the days of Herod, the king of Judaea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abia: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

7 And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.

8 And it came to pass, that while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course, 9 According to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying without at the time of incense.

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing on the right side of the altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

17 And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

18 And Zacharias said unto the angel, Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.

19 And the angel answering, said unto him, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And, behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE I.—Zacharias is a name which signifies the "Remembrance of God," and this is justly applicable to all saints:

they live in God's loving remembrance. Is Jesus in our daily, believing remembrance?—this is a satisfying evidence that we are living in his remembrance, and that we have a place in his heart, from which we shall never be removed—no, never! When husbands and wives are beautified with holiness, and when Divine love reigns in their heart, their relationship is an emblem of the blessed union of Christ and his Church, and their lives form an epitome of heavenly joys. In far distant ages, the Church received the prophecy of the appearance of John, the forerunner of Jesus: at last, the time arrived when the fulfilment took place. Let us then rejoice in the love and faithfulness of a promising God. Unbelief grieves the Spirit; let us then lay hold of the promises, implicitly believe them, and rely with confidence on the immutable faithfulness of God for their accomplishment.

PRAYER.

O MERCIFUL God, breathe upon us the Holy Ghost, while we approach thy throne, and endeavour to offer up as a family our evening prayer. By thy Spirit may we pray with heartfelt sincerity, with lively faith, and devotional reverence.

Adorable Jehovah, triune Divinity, we would ascribe to thee, through Jesus, our Mediator and Saviour, the glory due to thy name. We give unto thee glory and strength. May we worship thee in the beauty of holiness.

May the mercies which have attended us this day excite our gratitude and praise. Thou hast continued with us temporal blessings, which in their nature are perishing; O enrich us with spiritual blessings, which shall endure for ever.

While we are surrounded on our beds with the dark shades of night, may we be encompassed with the arms of thy special providence and grace. If agreeable to thy will, may we awake in safety and peace on the morning of the approaching day; and after the long night of death may we awake, on the morning of the resurrection, amid the rapturous songs of angels, who shall fill the train of the descending Judge.

Bless to us what we have now read from thy holy Word; and may we derive instruction from the history of what immediately preceded the birth of John, the forerunner of our Lord. Like Zacharias and Elisabeth, may all the members and the connexions of our family be righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. We pray not for earthly riches and honours, but we pray for the treasures of grace, conformity to the image of Christ, usefulness in thy Church, and the well-grounded hopes of a glorious immortality beyond the grave.

Give to our dear children love to thy law. Convince them by thy Spirit how much they need thy precepts to guide their steps. May they show an early attachment to thine ordinances, and begin that regular and devout observance of them which shall continue to the close of life.

Blessed Jesus, we have now read of incense which was burnt in the ancient temple, and we would look upon it as typical of the incense of thy merit, by which the services of thy people are accepted and their prayers answered. We would now receive thee as our Intercessor: we would commit our souls into thy hand, relying on the efficacy of thine atonement and intercession alone for our acceptance with God.

We thank God that angels have been comforters to thy Church. Give thine angels charge over us to keep us in all thy ways. May we bear some resemblance to the holiness of John, may we be washed and sanctified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God. Like him may we be filled with the Holy Ghost. Let all thy ministers, the heralds of salvation, be filled with thy Spirit, and may great energy, power, and efficacy attend the proclamations of eternal truth.

May we take warning from the conduct of Zacharias, thy servant, and beware of a doubting and unbelieving spirit.

Lord, hear the breathings of our souls, and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

MELTING THE HEART.

Spillbrook. Orasen Chapel. Wales.

1 LORD! shed a beam of heavenly day
To melt this stubborn stone away;
Now thaw, with rays of love divine,
This heart—this frozen heart of mine.

2 O breath of life, breathe on my soul,
On me let streams of mercy roll:
Now thaw, with rays of love divine,
This heart—this frozen heart of mine.

L. M.

ANON.

EXODUS VII.

Moses encouraged to go in to Pharaoh.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,
9 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

10 And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent.

11 Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments.

12 For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

13 And he hardened Pharaoh's heart, that he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

14 And the LORD said unto Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come; and the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou shalt say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness: and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this thou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians shall loathe to drink of the water of the river.

19 And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD commanded; and he lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood.

21 And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river; and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

22 And the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; as the LORD had said.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS VII.—If Jesus calls his servants to fill the most important offices, and to perform the most difficult duties, he qualifies them by his Spirit for the performance of every duty, and for the surmounting of every difficulty. He strengthens the weak hands, and says to them who are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not. Craft and cunning and delusions are Satan's great agency for opposing truth, and injuring the Church of Christ. The wisdom of the great Head of the Church renders abortive all Satan's crafty schemes, and the almighty power of Zion's King defeats all his efforts. Miracles may convince and astonish, but can never convert, change, and melt the hardened heart of man. This only can be effected by the Divine power of the Holy Spirit. Let the hardness of Pharaoh's heart remind us of our own, and may our applications to the throne of grace be constant and fervent, that the hardness of our hearts may be removed, and that they may be made susceptible of every Divine emotion, affection, and desire. We should ever stand in awe of God, as a God of justice and of power, who can instantly change earthly comforts into the greatest earthly calamities. To oppose God is the greatest folly, as well as the greatest wickedness; but to do his will the greatest wisdom, and the accompaniment of the richest blessings.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and most mighty Jehovah, thou art a spirit, and they who worship thee should worship thee in spirit and in truth. Thou art the fountain of all perfection; the wisdom, righteousness, and holiness which adorn angels or men, are streams of blessedness which flow from thee, the inexhaustible source of goodness. Lord, mercifully enlighten our understanding with Divine wisdom, array us in the robe of righteousness, and clothe us with the garments of salvation.

We desire at this time to present our morning prayer with reverence and godly fear, and in exercise of lively faith to approach the mercy-seat. Ever may we draw near to a holy and a heart-searching God, under a deep sense of the glorious majesty of the Most High, and a humbling view of our own sinfulness, insignificance, and guilt. What reason have we as a family, a congregation, a neighbourhood, and a nation, to acknowledge and confess that we are a sinful people, laden with iniquity, a seed of evil doers, children that are corrupters; we have forsaken the Lord, we have provoked the Holy One of Israel to anger, we have gone away backward. When we think what we are, what we have done, and what we deserve, we have reason to be astonished at thy boundless mercy and patience.

We thank God for the rest of the last night. May all of us enjoy for ever the rest of heaven. We rejoice that a rest remaineth for the people of God. May we, and all our relatives and friends, be admitted, through the all-prevailing righteousness of Christ, into the heavenly world, where the blessed rest from sin, temptation, and sorrow, and where the fellowship of God and the Lamb shall be for ever enjoyed.

Bless to us the affecting account we have now read of the obstinacy, rebellion, and impenitence of Pharaoh. Lord, deliver us from hardness of heart. Suffer not our hearts to be hardened by unbelief, hypocrisy, carnality, or pride. O fulfil in our experience that promise. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. Lord, mercifully do as thou hast promised.

Convince the children of our family of the natural depravity of their hearts. Merciful Saviour, teach them to desire and to seek new hearts. Warm their minds with love to thyself, who art the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely.

Holy Spirit, we lay our souls and all our corruptions at thy feet, and we would earnestly implore the renovating and purifying influences of thy grace. No judgments, however severe, no calamities, however alarming, can melt the hardened heart. We therefore earnestly supplicate thy grace, to melt our hardened hearts, to enlighten our benighted understandings, and to purify our corrupted affections.

We lift up our eyes to God for the answer of our prayers and the forgiveness of our sins, only through the merit of our Lord and Saviour-Jesus Christ. Amen.

MINISTRY OF ANGELS.

Duke Street. Newport. Chard.

L. X.

- 1 HIGH on a hill of dazzling light
The King of glory spreads his seat,
And troops of angels stretched for flight,
Stand waiting round his awful feet.
- 2 Go, saith the Lord, my Gabriel, go,
Salute the Virgin's fruitful womb,
Make haste, ye cherubs, down below,
Sing and proclaim the Saviour come.
- 3 Here a bright squadron leaves the skies,
And thick around Elisha stands:
Anon a heavenly soldier flies,
And breaks the chains from Peter's hands.

Watts, 18, B. II.

LUKE I.

Gabriel sent to Mary.

AND in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth.

27 To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David:

33 And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

35 And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

36 And, behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing shall be impossible.

38 And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Juda;

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost:

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And blessed is she that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE I.—Angels are God's willing, active, and faithful servants; like them, may it be our delight to do the will of our Father in heaven. Even Gabriel felt himself infinitely honoured in being sent to Mary, the most blessed of women, and destined to be the mother of the humanity of God's eternal Son. How amazing the difference betwixt Mary, living in seclusion and poverty in wicked Nazareth, and Mary in heaven! where she cannot fail to be an object of the most honourable and exalted interest to angels, throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. Who can conceive the thankfulness and felicity of the mind of the glorified Mary, when she looks upon the myriads of glorified saints in heaven, redeemed and saved by her own Son after the flesh,—Jesus, the Child born, and the Son given! Have we embraced Jesus as our Saviour? Then the Holy Ghost who descended on Mary has descended on us, and by his almighty power we have obtained the washing of regeneration, and are in some measure conformed to the Divine likeness.

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Redeemer, we acknowledge and praise thee as Immanuel, God with us. In thy personality thou art the Son of the Highest, and in thy nature and perfections God over all, blessed for ever. As Mediator thou dost reign upon the throne of David; thy government shall continue over the house of Jacob for ever, and of thy kingdom there shall be no end.

We thank our God for the blessings of providence we have enjoyed this day. We thank thee that we have not suffered hunger, or thirst, or nakedness, calamities we richly deserve. As the stream followed the Israelites in the desert, the stream of thy kind and gracious providence has followed us this day, and all our days. May the sins of the day be forgiven, through the peace-speaking blood of Christ. Keep us this night as the apple of thine eye. Give us the sleep of thy beloved.

We earnestly pray that the dew of thy Spirit's influence may accompany the sacred Word we have now read. Truly our eyes are blessed in being permitted to read the pages of eternal truth, where glories far more wonderful shine than those which sparkle in the starry sky. O may these heavenly pages be the delight of our soul; still may we see new beauties, and still increasing light from heaven.

Teach our children to admire thy holy Word, and to take it for their counsellor in the dangerous path of youth. Like Timothy, may they love the Scriptures in their early days, and by their unerring light, as by a Divine star, may they be conducted to the heavenly world.

Mercifully bestow upon us the comforts of religion. When we are visited with bodily affliction, when we are alarmed by a sense of guilt, when we are laid upon the bed of approaching dissolution, when we are passing through death's dark vale and contending with the last enemy, say unto us what the angel said to Mary: Fear not, for thou hast found favour with God. May every member of our family, and all the families with which we are connected, value thy favour above the favour of men, and earnestly pray that they may be admitted to its enjoyment. Thy favour is life; O extend to us this favour. Thy loving-kindness is better than life; enrich us with this loving-kindness.

We adore thee, Holy Spirit, in that miraculous display of thy power given in the conception of the humanity of Christ. We implore an interest in thy regenerating power. Are there any members of our family whose minds have never experienced thy renovating grace? O take them immediately under thy Divine management and care. May they be born of the Spirit. Convince them of the absolute necessity of this change. Bring home this declaration of our Saviour to their hearts with power: Except a man be born again, he cannot enter the kingdom of God. God forbid that any of us should be excluded! The time is fast approaching, when as a family we shall be dissolved by the ravages of death. O make us the subjects of thy regenerating grace; and then shall we be united together in heaven by ties of celestial relationship, that shall never be dissolved.

Graciously accept of our persons and prayers, for the sake of Jesus, thy Son and our Saviour. Amen.

JUSTICE AND GOODNESS OF GOD.

Job. Old England. Green's (100). Finbury.

L. H.

- 1 GREAT God, my maker and my king,
Of thee I'll speak, of thee I'll sing;
All thou hast done, and all thou dost,
Declare thee good, proclaim thee just.
- 2 Thy ancient thoughts and firm decrees,
Thy threatenings and thy promises,
The joys of heaven, the pains of hell,
What angels taste, what devils feel:
- 3 While these excite my fear and joy,
While these my tuneful lips employ;
Accept, O Lord! the humble song,
The tribute of a trembling tongue.

BEDDOKE.

EXODUS VIII.

Plagues brought on Egypt.

THEN Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, Entreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses cried unto the LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps: and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

16 And the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

17 And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and it became lice in man, and in beast; all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is the finger of God: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

20 And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh; lo, he cometh forth to the water; and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go that they may serve me.

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send swarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

24 And the LORD did so; and there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: entreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will entreat the LORD that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, to-morrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and entreated the LORD.

31 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one.

32 And Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS VIII.—Pharaoh saw the necessity of prayer, but was an utter stranger to the grace and spirit of prayer. It is well to have an interest in the prayers of righteous men; but even this will be of little avail if we are not taught by the Spirit to pray for ourselves. In Egypt's king we see the total insignificance of the greatest power of the most mighty of earthly princes, compared with the amazing influence of the believing prayers of a righteous man. Did Moses pray for his greatest enemy? Did Jesus offer up supplications for those who nailed him to the accursed tree? May we imitate the example of Moses, and walk in the footsteps of Jesus, in praying for our most malignant adversaries, that God may extend to them mercy, forgiveness, and grace. Great were the outward calamities with which Pharaoh was visited; but they were nothing compared with his inward spiritual calamity—his judicial hardness of heart. May our hearts be mollified by grace!

PRAYER.

GREAT and merciful God, thou art infinitely glorious in thy judgments as well as in thy mercies: we adore thee in thy righteous judgments inflicted upon ancient Egypt. Cruelly did the inhabitants of that land treat thy chosen Israel, and justly didst thou visit the enemies of thine afflicted Church with the thunder of thy vengeance. Thou didst triumph gloriously over them, and thy right-hand became glorious in power. Truly thou art the most blessed of friends, but thou art the most formidable of enemies. O Lord, teach us to stand in awe of thy justice and thy power. Amazing mercy! though we have often rushed like Pharaoh against the thick bosses of thy buckler—though we have hardened ourselves in many instances against thee—though we have provoked thine ire, we are still preserved, and the kind hand of thy grace is welcoming us to become partakers of the joy of thy salvation.

May the beloved children of our family stand in awe of thee, O Lord, and sin not. Suffer them not to follow the example of Pharaoh, by hardening their hearts against God. Apply to their minds this serious declaration: He that hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.

We would gratefully acknowledge thy kindness to us during the last night in preserving our lives, and restoring us to the light of another day, while, like others, we might have been numbered with the dead. Give us the blessing of thy guidance this day, that we may walk in thy fear, and the blessing of thy protection, that we may be preserved from temptation.

Mercifully lay restraints upon our spiritual enemies. As thou didst restrain Pharaoh, restrain the power and the malice of our spiritual foes, and suffer them not to have the dominion over us. We thank thee for restraining the enemies of thy church in these lands of our nativity. In past days the flames of persecution raged with alarming violence, but now in thy gracious providence we are permitted in great peace to enjoy our gospel privileges under our own vine and under our own fig-tree, and none even attempting to make us afraid: for this we bless thee.

We praise thee for preserving thy people from the calamities which befel Egypt. In many instances thousands have fallen down on the right-hand and on the left of thy children, while thou hast preserved them safe under the shadow of thy wings. May we as a family be for ever preserved by thy gracious power, and, when the journey of life is brought to a close, may we become the inhabitants of thy peaceful heaven, where no lion is ever seen, and where no ravenous beast ever appears.

Give us grace, like Moses and Aaron, to be bold in the service of our God. Openly, yet wisely, may we ever acknowledge and confess our Saviour before men, rejoicing that he will confess us before angels and our Father in heaven. Hear, answer, and forgive, for our dear Redeemer's sake. AMEN.

THE VIRGIN MARY'S SONG.

Triumphant. Ringwood. Addison's. Rothwell. L. M.

- 1 OUR souls shall magnify the Lord,
In God the Saviour we rejoice;
While we repeat the Virgin's song,
May the same spirit tune our voice.
- 2 The Highest saw her low estate,
And mighty things his hand hath done:
His overshadowing power and grace
Makes her the Mother of his Son.
- 3 Let every nation call her blessed,
And endless years prolong her fame;
But God alone must be adored;
Holy and reverend is his name.
- 4 To those that fear and trust the Lord
His mercy stands for ever sure;
From age to age his promise lives,
And the performance is secure.
- 5 He spake to Abraham and his seed,
In thee shall all the earth be blessed;
The memory of that ancient word
Lay long in his eternal breast.

WATTS, 60, B. 1.

LUKE I.

Mary's Song.

- AND Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord,
47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.
48 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden:
for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.
49 For he that is mighty hath done to me great things;
and holy is his name.
50 And his mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation.
51 He hath showed strength with his arm; he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.
52 He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.
53 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.
54 He hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy;
55 As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.
56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.
57 Now Elisabeth's full time came that she should be delivered; and she brought forth a son.
58 And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had showed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her.
59 And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.
60 And his mother answered and said, Not so; but he shall be called John.
61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.
62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.
63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.
64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed, and he spake, and praised God.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE I.—Our mercies are sanctified when they call forth the thanksgivings of the heart and the praises of the lips.
May the spirit which animated Mary animate us; like her may we be clothed with humility. May the God of salvation fill the thrones of our affections; and may we possess that joy which passeth all understanding, and which flows from Jesus, the overflowing Fountain of purity, blessedness, and peace. Like her may we adore the power and sovereignty of God, who inflicts the greatest judgments on impenitent kings, while he exalts his saints from the depths of earthly poverty, seclusion, and suffering, to the lofty heights of celestial honour and glory. What an instructive contrast!—rich Dives in Tophet, without one drop of water to cool his tongue, and poor Lazarus in heaven, leaning on Abraham's bosom, amid the splendours of the New Jerusalem! May grace be our portion here, and glory our inheritance hereafter. Amen.

PRAYER.

GOD of grace and Father of mercies, thy mercy is not temporary and changing, like the compassion of men; it is on them that fear thee from generation to generation. Thine arm is not only strong to defend thy humble children, but it is powerful to scatter the proud in the imagination of their heart. With what ease and with what justice thou hast put down the mighty from their seats of eminence! and with what sovereignty thou hast exalted them of low degree! In thy compassion thou hast filled the hungry with good things, while the rich, for the pride of their hearts, thou hast sent empty away.

We have great reason to humble ourselves in the dust, that we have been so little affected with the glory of thy majesty, thy sovereignty, thy justice, and thy grace. Such is the hardness of our hearts, that we have been too little deterred from sin by thy justice, and too little allured to holiness by thy grace. We lay our depraved hearts at thy feet, and supplicate a renovating change; we lay our grievous and aggravated offences at thy feet, and supplicate pardon.

Graciously bestow on us, as a family, the joys of religion.
With Mary may we be taught thus to acknowledge and praise thee: Our soul doth magnify the Lord, and our spirit hath rejoiced in God our Saviour. While the men of the world rejoice in their treasures, may we rejoice in the treasures of salvation; while they rejoice in the abundance of their corn, wine, and oil, may we rejoice in thy perfections, and in redemption through our Saviour's blood. May we rejoice in thine illuminating grace, and may our understandings be light in the Lord. May we rejoice in thy renovating grace, and may our minds be under the constant government of principles heavenly and Divine. May we rejoice in thy sanctifying grace, and may our souls be adorned with the beauties of holiness. May we rejoice in thy pardoning grace, and may the guilt, the aggravated guilt of all our transgressions be mercifully forgiven. May we finally rejoice in thy glorifying grace, and may we dwell for ever with the Lord in the palace of the King.

We affectionately pray for the salvation of the rising race, and in particular for the children of our family.
Suffer them not to seek after the destructive pleasures of sin, but may they seek after the pure and the permanent pleasures of salvation and grace. Like Zacharias, may they employ their tongue in honouring and praising God.

We desire, at the close of this day, to thank our God for the blessings we have received, and we would implore pardon for the sins we have committed. May the duties we have performed, and the ordinances we have observed, be crowned with thy blessing. We seek thy continued care and protection this night. When surrounded by its darkness, may we be surrounded with thy favour. At the same time, we would commend to thy care all our relatives and friends. May we meet in that world of which it is said, There shall be no night there. These mercies we ask, for Jesus our Mediator's sake.
Amen.

MOURNING OVER THE CORRUPTED HEART.

*Webster's Crown Chapel. David's Wantage. C. W.*1 MY heart, how dreadful hard it is!How heavy here it lies,
Heavy and cold within my breast,
Just like a rock of ice!2 Sin like a raging tyrant sits
Upon this flinty throne,
And every grace lies buried deep
Beneath this heart of stone.3 Dear Saviour, steep this rock of mine
In thine own crimson sea;
None but a bath of blood divine,
Can melt the flint away.

Watts, 98, B. 11.

EXODUS IX.

*Egypt visited with more Plagues.THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,

3 Behold, the hand of the LORD is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: *there shall be a very grievous murrain.*4 And the LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel.

5 And the LORD appointed a set time, saying, To morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

8 And the LORD said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast.

12 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had spoken unto Moses.

22 And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and the LORD sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.

25 And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt, all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field.

26 Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the LORD: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

34 And when Pharaoh saw that the rain, and the hail, and the thunders, were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his servants.

35 And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; as the LORD had spoken by Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS IX.—Amazing is God's patience in bearing so much with the rebellion and obstinacy of wicked men; and especially in his long-continued and earnest calls of mercy, that they should turn from their sins and live. However, multitudes of impenitent sinners have found it when too late, that though God's patience is great and lasting it is not overlasting, and that the heaviest vengeance awaits those daring offenders who die abusing God's patience, and treating with scorn the invitations of his grace, and the warnings of his mercy. God is the Author of all our earthly possessions and temporal comforts, and if we live without his fear we can have no blessing in what we possess, and our comforts may soon take to themselves wings, never more to return. It must of necessity be the greatest folly, as well as the greatest impiety, to live in contempt of God, on whom we depend for all we enjoy, and who can in one moment deprive us of all we possess. May it be ours to be taught God's fear, and to stand in awe and sin not!

PRAYER.

OLORD, our God and Father in Christ, thy name is great in all the earth. The princes and kings of the earth before thee are as grasshoppers. O may we know and feel that there is none like thee in all the earth! We rejoice that thy name, as the God of salvation, shall be declared throughout the world. Hasten the arrival of that blessed day, when the fame of thy name as the God of salvation shall overspread the globe, and gladden the hearts of all its inhabitants.

Give us grace as a family to fear thee, and to be impressed with awe when we think of thine infinite hatred of sin, and of thy justice in punishing the sins of the finally impenitent. May we remember the awful judgments which lighted upon the heads of impious kings and guilty nations; the war, famine, and pestilence, those messengers of thy wrath, sent as the punishment of their sins. May our hearts be filled with gratitude, wonder, and praise, that a God of holiness and justice has not visited us with the punishment which our sins so greatly deserved.

We thank our God for that portion of the good things of this life which we so richly enjoy. Suffer us not to love created objects, however valuable, with undue, with excessive affection. We have seen, from what we have now read, with what ease, and with what justice thou canst send the messengers of thy wrath to destroy the beasts of the field, and the herbs and trees which adorn its surface: may we therefore be prevented from placing our regard on temporal objects, which may so easily be destroyed; and may our superlative affections be placed on Jesus the unspeakable gift, who is the all-satisfying and eternal portion of the renewed mind. Holy Spirit, suffer not the possession of temporal comforts to harden our hearts, or to make our minds insensible to the wants of the soul. God forbid that the objects of the present life should make us insensible to the realities of the life to come. And when we are tried by the afflictions of life, let not our hearts be hardened like the heart of Pharaoh. When the cup of affliction is put into our hand, may we be taught by the Spirit to imitate the example of Jesus, who said in an hour of unparalleled sorrow, The cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

Prepare our dear children for the various afflictions which are before them in the vale of life. Now may they receive that sacred stock of grace which will fit their minds for the sufferings which a wise Providence shall think proper to inflict in future days.

We thank our God that we have awoken in the enjoyment of reason and health. Enable us this day to tread in the footsteps of thy flock. Through life, and every day of our life, may we be animated by that promise, Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. Graciously hear our prayer, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

THANKSGIVING FOR NATIONAL DELIVERANCE.

Canada (Lutton.) Peru. Bramcoate.

L. K.

- 1 PRAISE to the Lord, who bows his ear
Propitious to his people's prayer,
And though deliverance long delay,
Answers in his well-chosen day.
- 2 Salvation doth to God belong;
His power and grace shall be our song
The tribute of our love we bring
To thee, our Saviour and our King.
- 3 Our temples, guarded from the flame,
Shall echo thy triumphant name,
And every peaceful private home
To thee a temple shall become.

DODDRIDGE.

LUKE I.

Song of Zacharias.

AND fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all these sayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judæa.

66 And all they that heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying,

68 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people,

69 And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David;

70 As he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began:

71 That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us;

72 To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant;

73 The oath which he sware to our father Abraham,

74 That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear,

75 In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life.

76 And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways;

77 To give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins,

78 Through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us, 79 To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.

80 And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE I.—Great impressions were produced in Judea when John, the forerunner of Christ, was born; but a seraphic excitement must have been produced in heaven when the announcement of the birth of God's Son was made to the countless myriads of angels, and the spirits of just men made perfect. The anticipations of John as a wonderful child were realized. He came with the power and in the spirit of Elijah. But how unspeakably more wonderful was the child Jesus, who demonstrated by all his acts that he was by way of eminence the "Wonderful, the Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, and the Prince of Peace!" Like Zacharias may we be filled with the Holy Ghost! Then the great blessing of redemption will excite the astonishment of our hearts, and be the subject of our songs of praise. Jesus has been the horn of salvation to millions, and shall be the horn of salvation to myriads yet unborn. Has he been to us the horn of our salvation? O that man is blessed, who can say in the joyful language of appropriating faith, "Jesus is the horn of my salvation, he hath saved me from the hand of my spiritual enemies, he hath placed my feet upon a rock, and established my goings: he hath given me a title to heaven, into which I shall be admitted at last, and be forever removed beyond the reach of my spiritual foes, and live in the fellowship of my God and Saviour, 'in whose presence is fulness of joy, and at whose right-hand are pleasures for evermore.'"

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, the Creator of angels and men, the Ruler of the universe, and the God of salvation, at the conclusion of another week, crowned with many mercies, we approach thy throne through Christ, the Son of thy love. We praise and adore thee for the contrivance and discovery and accomplishment of the plan of salvation. In the fulness of time, and agreeably to thy sacred predictions, thou didst send the Son of thy love to work out the deliverance of a lost world; and in conformity with the word of prophecy, thou didst send the forerunner, even John the Baptist, to prepare the way of the Lord. With Zacharias may we sing, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up for us a horn of salvation, in the house of his servant David.

We desire earnestly to pray for the Holy Ghost, that we may be filled with his grace, and purified by his influences. Graciously send to us as a family the promised Comforter, that we may be guided into all truth, and become savingly acquainted with the oracles of Gospel wisdom.

May our dear children show early symptoms of the Spirit's working upon their hearts. From their childhood, and to their death, may they be clothed with the Spirit; then they shall be preserved from the evil of a corrupt world, and be prepared for thy heavenly kingdom.

Mercifully save us, O Lord, from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us. Give us grace to serve thee without slavish fear, not as slaves, but as sons. May we be taught to serve thee with holiness and righteousness all the days of our life. We praise thee that, through the tender mercy of our God, the day-spring of Gospel light hath visited our world, and visited our land. O may the day-spring of salvation visit our family, and may every one of us be enlightened by the saving beams of the day of grace; and at the close of life may we behold the brightness of a day of glory, which shall shine forever, never, never to be obscured by any cloud of ignorance or sorrow.

O animate our aged friends with the blessed prospects of the glory of heaven. May they mount up with wings as eagles; may they run and not be weary, may they walk and not faint.

We present the tribute of thanksgiving for the mercies of the day, and for the blessings of the week. From thee we have obtained help, and continue to this day.

May we live to see that sacred Sabbath which is drawing near at hand. May it be a day of blessings to thousands, and may it be a day of blessings to us. May thy servant who is to break among us the bread of life have the presence of his Master, and the Divine unction of the Spirit. May he be richly laden with Gospel truth, and bring out of his treasures things new and old. On the approaching Sabbath, may the weapons of the Gospel warfare be mighty in pulling down the strongholds of ignorance, prejudice, carnality, unbelief, and guilt. May thine ordinances throughout the churches be faithfully administered, and may great effects be produced in the subduing of rebellious and obdurate hearts.

Through the merits of our divine Redeemer, may our prayers be answered, and the guilt of all our sins removed. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE CHURCH OUR DELIGHT AND SAFETY

Gabriel New. Roxton. Deviss. Michael.

c. n.

- 1 THE Lord of glory is my light,
And my salvation, too;
God is my strength; nor will I fear
What all my foes can do.
- 2 One privilege my heart desires;
O grant me an abode
Among the churches of thy saints,
The temples of my God.
- 3 There shall I offer my requests,
And see thy beauty still,
Shall hear thy messages of love,
And there inquire thy will.
- 4 When troubles rise and storms appear
There may his children hide:
God has a strong pavilion where
He makes my soul abide.

Watts, Ps. 27, p. 1.

PSALM XXVII.

Strong Confidence in God.

HEAR, O LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy also upon me, and answer me.

8 When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek.

9 Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger: thou hast been my help: leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation.

10 When my father and my mother forsake me, then the LORD will take me up.

11 Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies.

12 Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies: for false witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty.

13 I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living.

14 Wait on the LORD: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the LORD.

PSALM XXVIII.

Misery of the Wicked and Blessedness of the Righteous.

UNTO thee will I cry, O LORD my rock; be not silent to me: lest, if thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands toward thy holy oracle.

3 Draw me not away with the wicked, and with the workers of iniquity, which speak peace to their neighbours, but mischief is in their hearts.

4 Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedness of their endeavours: give them after the work of their hands; render to them their desert.

5 Because they regard not the works of the LORD, nor the operation of his hands, he shall destroy them, and not build them up.

6 Blessed be the LORD, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications.

7 The LORD is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him.

8 The LORD is their strength, and he is the saving strength of his anointed.

9 Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: feed them also, and lift them up for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXVII., XXVIII.—If we have the spirit of prayer we will wait anxiously, patiently, and hopefully for the answer of prayer. Our earthly relations, however dear, however valuable, and however loving may forsake us; but Jesus is the friend who sticketh closer than father or mother, husband or wife, son or daughter; and he says in the sweetest accents of most tender love to the objects of his regard, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." What a Rock is Christ! On that Rock the weakest saint doth stand secure. There he defies all his enemies, and laughs to scorn their threatenings and accusations. Because of his confidence in this Rock, he offers up his earnest supplications, believing that his prayers shall be answered, that the purposes of his enemies shall be confounded, and that his sorrows shall be exchanged for songs of joyful praise. Thus, believing prayers are ever followed by a train of the richest blessings.

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we would draw near to thee with thankful hearts on the morning of another day of the Son of man. Thou art the God of our salvation; therefore we are encouraged to pray, Leave us not, neither forsake us. Thou art our rock, on whom we would place all our confidence. We will therefore cry, Be not silent to us: lest, if thou be silent, we become like them that go down to the pit. Mercifully inspire us with a lively faith in Jesus; then shall we exclaim, The Lord is our strength and our shield: therefore our heart greatly rejoiceth; and with our song will we praise thee. The Lord is our strength, even the saving strength of his anointed.

We rejoice in thee, O Lord, as the hearer of prayer. Graciously hear our prayer when we cry unto thee; have mercy upon us and answer us. Great is the encouragement thou hast given us to seek thy face. May our heart reply, Thy face, Lord, will we seek. Shine upon us with the light of thy countenance, leave us not in the pit of darkness, place our feet on the mountain of spiritual enjoyment, and may the Sun of righteousness rise upon us with healing in his wings.

Sanctify to us the death of earthly friends. May their departure teach us to cleave closely to Jesus, the friend who sticketh closer than any brother.

Prepare our dear children for the removal of beloved connections. Teach them with the Psalmist to say, in holy, humble faith, when my mother and my father forsake me, then the Lord will take me up.

This day, by means of a preached Gospel, may our faith be strengthened. Lord, increase our faith. We have seen thy goodness in the land of the living; may multitudes see thy saving goodness in the sanctuary, and let this day be eminent for the abundant descent of the converting and sanctifying influences of the Spirit throughout all the churches. We would wait upon thee in thy courts, we would wait for the communications of thy grace, we would wait for thy salvation. We thank thee for thine encouraging promise, Wait on the LORD, be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the LORD.

We praise thy sovereign kindness for preserving us through the past week, and through the past night, while the eyes of many who beheld the natural light of the last Sabbath are now closed in the darkness of death.

Mercifully give thy Spirit to all the churches, and particularly to all thy ministers. Make them successful in edifying the flock which Jesus purchased by his blood; and make them successful in winning souls to Christ.

Pour out thy Spirit on our rulers; teach them to bow before Immanuel, to sanctify his Sabbath, and to observe his ordinances.

Have mercy upon the afflicted, and encourage them to look beyond the cloud of sorrow to the joys of heaven.

We humbly present our prayers, and implore forgiveness, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S MAJESTY IN THE THUNDER.

New Creation. Beddington. Wells. Kimbolton. L. 2.

- 1 GIVE to the Lord, ye sons of fame,
Give to the Lord renown and power;
Ascribe due honours to his name,
And his eternal might adore.
- 2 The Lord proclaims his power aloud,
Over the ocean and the land;
His voice divides the watery cloud,
And lightnings blazo at his command.
- 3 The Lord sits sovereign on the flood;
The Thunderer reigns for ever king;
But makos his church his blest abode;
Where we his awful glorios sing. WATTS, Ps. 29.

PSALM XXIX.

The Voice of the Lord.

GIVE unto the LORD, O ye mighty, give unto the LORD glory and strength.

2 Give unto the LORD the glory due unto his name; worship the LORD in the beauty of holiness.

3 The voice of the LORD is upon the waters: the God of glory thundereth: the LORD is upon many waters.

4 The voice of the LORD is powerful; the voice of the LORD is full of majesty.

5 The voice of the LORD breaketh the cedars; yea, the LORD breaketh the cedars of Lebanon.

6 He maketh them also to skip like a calf; Lebanon and Sirion like a young unicorn.

7 The voice of the LORD divideth the flames of fire.

8 The voice of the LORD shaketh the wilderness; the LORD shaketh the wilderness of Kadesh.

9 The voice of the LORD maketh the hinds to calve, and discovereth the forests: and in his temple doth every one speak of his glory.

10 The LORD sitteth upon the flood; yea, the LORD sitteth King for ever.

11 The LORD will give strength unto his people; the LORD will bless his people with peace.

PSALM XXX.

David praiseth God for his Deliverance.

I WILL extol thee, O LORD; for thou hast lifted me up, and hast not made my foes to rejoice over me.

2 O LORD my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast healed me.

3 O LORD, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit.

4 Sing unto the LORD, O ye saints of his, and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness.

5 For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favour is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

6 And in my prosperity I said, I shall never be moved.

7 LORD, by thy favour thou hast made my mountain to stand strong: thou didst hide thy face, and I was troubled.

8 I cried to thee, O LORD; and unto the LORD I made supplication.

9 What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the pit? shall the dust praise thee? shall it declare thy truth?

10 Hear, O LORD, and have mercy upon me: LORD, be thou my helper.

11 Thou hast turned for me my mourning into dancing: thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness;

12 To the end that my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. O LORD my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXIX., XXX.—What a blessing to the world and the Church are men of might, when they are men of grace and men of prayer! How important to feel our obligations to give God the glory due to his name! He who lives without living up to the great end of his existence, without living to the glory of God as the God of his salvation, his life is worse than a blank in the intelligent universe of God. Blessed are they who know savingly the powerful voice of God's Spirit, by whom dead souls are made to live. We should often call to our lively and thankful remembrance what God has done for us as our God and Father in Christ. Has he lifted us up from the depths of a state of nature and placed us on the lovely, shining heights of a state of grace? Has he disappointed our spiritual enemies, and enabled us to sing the song of triumph? Has he often dried up the tears of our grief, and filled us with spiritual joy? What reason then have we to present the sacrifices of our love and praise!

PRAYER.

WE approach and adore thee, O Lord, as the Almighty God. The voice of thy providence pervades the universe. Thy voice is upon the waters; the God of glory thundereth: the Lord is upon many waters. Thy voice is most powerful; thy voice is full of majesty. We adore thee in thy providential government. Thou the Lord sittest upon the floods; thou the Lord sittest King for ever. Thou reignest in the exercise of irresistible power; thy voice shaketh the wilderness; thou the Lord shakest the wilderness of Kadesh.

We supplicate the Holy Spirit to bless that portion of the unerring volume we have now read. May the solemn and repeated calls given us to glorify the name of God, be effectual in stirring us up to remember the great end of our existence. Teach us to glorify God with our hearts, by loving, thinking on, and trusting in him. Teach us to glorify God with our speech, by praying to and praising him. Teach us to glorify God in our lives, by cheerfully doing whatever he commands. May we glorify God with our time, our influence, our talents, our substance, and our lives. May all be laid prostrate at our Saviour's feet, and may it be our greatest joy to live wholly and only to our God and Father in Christ.

We thank thee that we have been permitted this day to hear thy merciful voice in the preaching of the Gospel of Christ. O may the voice of thy Word be instrumental in producing powerful effects upon the minds of men. By thy convincing Word may many be awakened to a sense of their sin and danger. By thy Word may many sinners experience a saving, a regenerating, change. By thy Word may the proud be humbled, may the obstinate be subdued, and may these be drawn and separated from their lusts who are as fast rooted in their corrupted passions as the trees are in the forests. May thy Word dart light and truth into the heart, and be instrumental by thy Spirit, in bringing many sons unto glory, for the advancement of thine own honour.

We earnestly pray that the children of our family and our domestics, may soon be brought under the saving efficacy of the word of life. May they delight to dig in the mines of inspiration, and may they find Jesus, the pearl of great price.

Forgive our imperfections, O Lord, in waiting on thee this day, in thy public courts. Sprinkle our souls, O Jesus, with the merit of thy blood.

We express our thankfulness for being allowed to enter thy sanctuary, and for the opportunity afforded us of attending to the things which belong to our peace. We thank thee for the joyful sound, and may it prove to us and to our relatives the joyful sound of salvation.

O have mercy on those on whom the Gospel has produced no saving effect, who are still in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity.

We commit ourselves, this night, to the care of our Father and God. Hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S SOVEREIGNTY.

Isabua. Marylebone. Canterbury. Abridge.

c. n.

- 1 KEEP silence, all created things;
And wait your Maker's nod:
My soul stands trembling, while she sings
The honours of her God.
- 2 Chained to his throne, a volume lies
With all the fates of men,
With every angel's form and size,
Drawn by the eternal pen.
- 3 In thy fair book of life and grace
O may I find my name,
Recorded in some humble place,
Beneath my Lord the Lamb!

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 41.

EXODUS X.

Locusts and thick Darkness.

AND Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? Let my people go, that they may serve me.

4 Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow will I bring the locusts into thy coast:

5 And they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field:

6 And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.

12 And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.

13 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

14 And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.

15 For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

21 And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt.

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days:

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

27 But the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more; for in that day thou shalt see my face thou shalt die.

29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well, I will see thy face again no more.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS X.—Judgments are the servants of God's justice. When he calls, they come instantly at his command. What he requires them to do they immediately perform. As long as he requires their services they continue to execute his will. When he intimates his pleasure they should cease, then their work of punishment and destruction comes to a close. God is a jealous God. He is jealous of his prerogatives, and of his worship, and of his glory. He is greatly and peculiarly offended when men refuse to give that homage and worship he deserves and claims; and when kings and rulers interfere with his worship, in preventing his people from presenting the sacrifices of their thanksgiving and praise. Let us rejoice that we are free from these perplexing interruptions in our worship of God, and from these vexatious oppressions with which the Church was visited in Egypt, and with which our holy ancestors were tried.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as unerring in thy wisdom, and inscrutable in thy purposes. Thy counsel standeth for ever, and the thoughts of thy heart to all generations. All thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. O Lord of hosts, thou art wonderful in counsel, and excellent in working. May we see in the judgments which befell the guilty inhabitants of Egypt, the accomplishment of thy wise purposes which respected the deliverance of thy chosen people. Powerful were the fetters of slavery and bondage with which thy people were afflicted and held fast, but infinitely more powerful thy hand by which their persecuting enemies were punished and afterwards destroyed.

Lord, deliver us from every rising of pride. May the affecting display which Pharaoh gave of his haughtiness and pride fill our hearts with a deep-rooted aversion to that destructive passion. Blessed Jesus, may we be disciples at thy feet, and learn lessons of humility of thee, who art meek and lowly in heart. Lord, if thou thy grace impart unto us, if we are instructed by thy Spirit to be poor in spirit, and to be meek in heart; then, like our Saviour, we shall be rooted in humility.

Preserve our children from the snares of pride, and give them the garments of humility. Captivate their young minds with the meekness and gentleness of Christ, that all around them may have reason to say, They have been with Jesus.

Sanctify to us what we have now read of the hardness, depravity, and obstinacy of the heart of Pharaoh. Open our eyes to see, that there is naturally a strong resemblance in our heart to his; and that, as in water, face answereth to face, so does the heart of man to man. Great reason have we to acknowledge and confess concerning our hearts, What crowds of evil thoughts, and what vile affections are there! alas, what distrust, presumption, and guile—what pride, envy, and slavish fears are there, in this polluted heart of our's!

Lord, deliver us from the corruption of our hearts. Almighty King of saints, subdue those tyrant lusts. Expel the darkness of our minds, and renew all their powers by thy resistless grace.

We supplicate our God for a spirit of prayer. We have seen in Moses remarkable evidences of the powerful efficacy of prayer, in removing the most alarming calamities. May the number of praying persons greatly increase in the congregation with which we are connected, the families to which we are related, the neighbourhood in which we dwell, and the nation to which we belong. May we consider men of prayer the greatest blessings of a church, and the greatest ornaments of a land.

We thank our God for watching over us when we were stretched upon our beds, and that we are preserved to meet around the domestic altar, to present our morning prayer.

Teach us to live this day under the practical and sanctifying influence of the solemn ordinances which were yesterday dispensed. Preserve us from the snares of the world, the wiles of Satan, but, above all, from the folly and imaginations of our own hearts.

Vouchsafe to us pardon and acceptance, for the sake of our divine and adorable Redeemer. Amen.

DIVINITY OF CHRIST.

Highbury College. Hanover Chapel. Bedford. Burford. C. M.

- 1 THREE we adore, Eternal Word,
The Father's equal Son;
By heaven's obedient hosts adored
Ere time its course begun.
- 2 The first creation has displayed
Thine energy divine;
For not a single thing was made
By other hands than thine.
- 3 But, ransomed sinners, with delight
Sublimèr facts survey,—
The all-creating Word unites
Himself to dust and clay.

ANON.

LUKE II.

The Birth of Christ.

AND it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judæa, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)

5 To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

11 For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 14 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE II.—Nothing can prevent the fulfilment of God's purposes; and God, with the utmost ease, overrules the most untoward and unlikely events for accomplishing his decrees. Of this we have a most remarkable illustration, in the decree of a Roman prince being the means in Providence of bringing Mary, the holy Virgin, from Nazareth to distant Bethlehem, the city of David, where it was promised and prophesied most distinctly that the son of David, the Great Messiah, should be born. There never was such a prince as Jesus,—after the flesh, descended from a long race of distinguished kings, and as the second person of the Trinity, the eternal Son of the eternal Father; and yet his momentous, wondrous birth, was attended by marks of the greatest poverty! Angels were astonished at the sight,—the Lord of Angels born of a woman in the humblest circumstances, in a stable, and laid in a manger! No cradle was provided for the infant Jesus!

PRAYER.

ALmighty and ever-blessed Jehovah, thou art the only wise God. With great glory thy wisdom shines in creation and providence, but with infinitely greater glory it is manifested in redemption, by the person and righteousness of thy well-beloved Son. We praise thee for the revelation of the mystery of the Gospel to us, that mystery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God. We rejoice that now, unto the principalities and powers in the heavenly places, is made known by the Church the manifold wisdom of God.

May our minds be deeply and joyfully affected with the tidings of the birth of Christ. Great is the mystery of godliness, God made manifest in the flesh. Eternal glory be ascribed to thy name, that thou didst willingly partake of our nature, that we might partake of thine; that thou didst willingly submit to be born of a woman, that we might be born of God. Divine Spirit, teach us to look upon the birth of Jesus as the most delightful tidings that ever reached the ears of men. To us as a family and as individuals may it prove tidings of great joy, that in the city of David was born a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. May the spiritual glory of God shine around us. May our habitation be a Bethel, the residence of our God; then shall our abode, then shall our hearts be filled with his glory. May the fame of the birth, the life, and the death of Christ, soon reach the ears of all the inhabitants of the world. Hasten the day when the song which the angels sung at the birth of Jesus shall have received its blessed and extensive accomplishment: Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. Mercifully confer on us a portion of that spirit the angels felt when they sung this heavenly song. As they rejoiced with such ecstasy over the birth of a Saviour, whose salvation they never required, may we, for whom he was born, and for whom he died, rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. O for a glimpse of heavenly love, to raise our hearts and songs to mingle with the praises of angels in heaven, and shout for joy, Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, and good will toward men; for Jesus was born to die!

We present before our God our humble tribute of thanksgiving for the mercies of the past day. Thou openest thine hand liberally, and satisfiest the wants of every living thing.

Let no evil befall us during this night. May we be among the number of those that love thee, and may thy promise be fulfilled in our experience: The Lord preserveth them that love him. May the threatening which follows never be inflicted on us: All the wicked will he destroy.

Fill the minds of our dear children with love to Jesus, who for their sakes became an infant of days. May they never see a little babe, without remembering that Jesus was once a little babe, and carried in the arms of his virgin mother.

May all the blessings we have supplicated for ourselves be conferred on our relatives and friends, and may all of us rejoice in the common salvation, for Jesus our Surety's sake. Amen.

Sasso Ferrato, Pinx't

Bernardi, Sculp't

The Virgin Mary & Infant Jesus.

Table II, 7.

THE ATONEMENT OF CHRIST.

Webster. Chadwell. Great Milton. Windsor. c. n.

- 1 HOW is our nature spoiled by sin!
Yet nature ne'er hath found
The way to make the conscience clean,
Or heal the painful wound.
- 2 In vain we seek for peace with God
By methods of our own;
Jesus, there's nothing but thy blood
Can bring us near the throne.
- 3 The threatenings of thy broken law
Impress our souls with dread;
If God his sword of vengeance draw,
It strikes our spirits dead.

WATTS.

EXODUS XII.

The Passover.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take to them every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house:

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it, according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats:

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side-posts and on the upper door-post of the houses wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is the LORD's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

14 And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the LORD throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance for ever.

15 Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall be cut off from Israel.

16 And in the first day there shall be a holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every man must eat, that only may be done of you.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XII.—That was indeed a wonderful year, a wonderful month, a wonderful hour, when Jesus our Passover was sacrificed for us! What love, admiration, joy, and thankfulness should fill and animate our hearts when we think of the boundless compassion and generosity of the heart of Jesus, in willingly consenting to become our Passover, to bleed and suffer and die for us! He is the Lamb of God—the Father's choice, in whom his soul delighted. He is the spotless Lamb, holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners. How minutely was figurative prophecy fulfilled when the lovely Lamb was sacrificed, and when his hands and feet were torn by cruel nails, "not a bone of him was broken." Important question!—Have we received him as our Passover? Do we believe our sins were laid upon him, and therefore that we are for ever secure from the wrath of an offended God?

LORD our God, we would approach thy presence with humility, when we think of our sinfulness, guilt, and unworthiness. We would approach thee with thankfulness and joy, when we remember thy condescension, compassion, and grace.

We adore thee as Zion's God, and we praise thee for the great things thou hast done for thy Church, and the miracles thou didst work for its deliverance.

Be unto us, as a family, the Lord our God. We are by nature thine enemies, and are of our father the Devil. We have exposed ourselves to the greatest danger by our transgressions. As the Egyptians exposed themselves to the sword of the destroying angel, we have exposed ourselves to the sword of Divine justice. We seek from God the Spirit the grace of repentance. We come to thy throne to seek repentance as thy gift, and we lay before thee our hardened hearts, that thou wouldst graciously mollify them by thy spirit, and adorn them with the beauties of holiness. Blessed Jesus, we rejoice that thou hast been exalted to the Father's right-hand, to give repentance unto Israel and remission of sins unto many. Bestow on us, as a family, the blessings of salvation, which are the gracious consequences of thy death, thy resurrection, and thy glory.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that we, and the whole human race, were exposed by sin to the destroying sword of thy justice. We were unable to provide any defence; we could flee to no distant spot of thy dominions, where we could conceal ourselves from thine eye; we could present no sacrifice sufficient to atone for our guilt. This, O Lord, was our helpless case. We were lost, irrecoverably lost, unless thou thyself, the very God we offended, had found out for us a passover Lamb. Adoring grace, thou didst find out thy Son, thy well-beloved Son, thine only begotten Son, and thou didst most willingly and readily present him as the great paschal Lamb, through whose sufferings and death thy justice has received ample satisfaction, and by whose merit countless millions shall become sharers of the glory and blessedness of heaven, for ever and ever. We bless our God and Father that Jesus our Passover was slain, and that he has obtained for us, by his death, freedom from Satan's heavy chain, and deliverance from the stroke of God's avenging sword.

O convince the beloved children of the necessity of being sprinkled with the blood of Christ. May they now see that nothing but an interest in Christ can preserve them from the wrath of God and the miseries of hell.

We thank a gracious and merciful God that we are preserved to another day, and enabled, in the enjoyment of health, reason, and mental tranquillity, to present before thee the sacrifice of praise and prayer. In all the duties and engagements of the day, whether religious or secular, afford thy direction, help, and blessing. Above all, preserve us from grieving the Holy Spirit by falling into sin. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, the true paschal Lamb, Amen.

CHRIST THE LIGHT.

Carlisle News. Northburn. Carlisle. Welsh. P. M.

- 1 LIGHT of those, whose dreary dwelling
 Borders on the shades of death,
 Come! and thy dear self revealing,
 Dissipate the clouds beneath:
 The new heaven's and earth's Creator
 In our deepest darkness rise!
 Scattering all the night of nature,
 Pouring day upon our eyes.
- 2 Still we wait for thine appearing,
 Life and joy thy beams impart,
 Chasing all our fears, and cheering
 Every poor benighted heart;
 Come, and manifest the favour
 Thou hast for the ransomed race;
 Come, thou dear exalted Saviour!
 Come, and bring thy gospel grace

TOPLADY.

LUKE II.

The venerable Simeon and the aged Anna.

AND when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called JESUS, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord;

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord;)

24 And to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons.

25 And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him.

26 And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

27 And he came by the spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law,

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said,

29 Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;

32 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against;

35 (Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also,) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

36 And there was one Anna, a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: she was of a great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity;

37 And she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day.

38 And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

39 And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth.

40 And the child grew, and waxed strong, in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE II.—How soon the blood of Jesus began to be shed!—when he was only eight days: then that precious blood began to be shed, by which the sin of the world is taken away. When he entered into our world he soon entered into suffering, that he might open a way by which we should enter into a paradise, where suffering is for ever unknown, and where the Sun of glorious felicity never ceases to shed abroad, unclouded, his bright rays of blessedness, peace, and joy. Can I say in faith, "This Jesus is mine?"

PRAYER.

OUR Father, who art in heaven, after the duties and temptations of the day, we are encouraged, both by thy providence and grace, to approach thy throne under the covert of the righteousness of Christ. Thy providence has preserved our lives, our health, and reason. And in thy grace thou hast said, by the mouth of thine inspired servant, for the comfort of those who desire to draw near to thy mercy-seat, Blessed is the man whom thou chooseth, and causest to approach unto thee; he shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple. We humbly trust that we have found it good, to draw near unto thee, and that a day spent in thy courts and in the ordinances of religion is better than a thousand anywhere else. O may we ever prefer occupying the most humble and menial place in thy house and in thy service, before holding the most elevated and influential station in the palaces of the greatest of earthly kings where impiety reigns.

Bless to us, divine Spirit, the animating things we have now read respecting the important events connected with the infant days of our exalted Messiah. O may the name Jesus be increasingly delightful to our ears, and comforting to our hearts. Give us those exalted sentiments and views, that lively and appropriating faith, which will enable us with devotional sincerity to exclaim, Jesus, thy name is above every name—it is as ointment poured forth—it is more delightful to our ear than the most melodious music; may it be our happiness to praise it on earth and to extol it for ever in heaven!

Teach us to admire and to follow the example of aged Simeon. Like him, may we be filled with the Holy Ghost, and may all thy ministering servants throughout the Christian world be clothed with the Spirit. Like Simeon, may we be just and devout, enjoying the divine comforts which flow from Jesus the consolation of Israel. Gracious Saviour, be our consolation, and the consolation of all our afflicted friends, and of all the sons and daughters of affliction throughout the world.

O that the children of our family may be taught now to take Jesus in the arms of their faith, and bless God for redemption through his blood. May Jesus take them in the arms of his love, and give them eternal life.

Like aged Simeon, may the eyes of our soul see the salvation of our God. O we praise our redeeming God for this salvation, which has been prepared before the face of all people, and which is prepared for people of all nations and languages. May the light of salvation soon lighten the benighted Gentiles, and be the glory of thy people Israel, who are now enveloped in the thickest clouds of ignorance and unbelief. When we come to die, may each one of us resemble Simeon in his triumphant faith, his sweet enjoyment, and his sensible assurance, and be able thus to sing, Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation.

We implore the protection and care of our God this night. Asleep or awake, may we be still with thee, reposing on the bosom of thy redeeming love. Spare us to another day. On the morning of the resurrection may we awake amid angelic songs. Forgive and answer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FAITH IN CHRIST OUR SACRIFICE.

Joury. Upton. Wilmworth. Lovell.

h. m.

- 1 NOT all the blood of beasts
On Jewish altars slain,
Could give the guilty conscience peace,
Or wash away the stain.
- 2 But Christ the heavenly Lamb
Takes all our sins away,
A sacrifice of nobler name
And richer blood than they.
- 3 My faith would fly her hand
On that dear head of thine,
While like a penitent I stand,
And there confess my sin.

Watts, 147, B. II.

EXODUS XII.

The Departure of Israel from Egypt.

THEN Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families, and kill the paschal lamb.

22 And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the bason, and strike the lintel and the two side posts with the blood that is in the bason; and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee, and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye be come to the land which the LORD will give you, according to he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service?

27 That ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the LORD's paschal lamb, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people bowed the head, and worshipped.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 And it came to pass, that at midnight the LORD smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sat on his throne unto the firstborn of the captive that was in the dungeon; and all the firstborn of cattle.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

31 And he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said; Rise up, and get you forth from among my people, both ye and the children of Israel; and go, serve the LORD, as ye have said.

32 Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone; and bless me also.

33 And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, We be all dead men.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; and they borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment:

36 And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required. And they spoiled the Egyptians.

37 And the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand on foot that were men, beside children.

38 And a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XII.—Cold water is not more refreshing to a thirsty soul than the tidings are to a sinner convinced of sin, and under alarming fears of Divine wrath, that Jesus the great paschal Lamb has been sacrificed upon the altar of the Divinity, and that they who look to his atoning righteousness for pardon and acceptance shall never come into condemnation. No blood of the paschal lamb was sprinkled upon the lintels and door-posts of the Egyptians, and therefore the destroying angel entered into every dwelling, when the firstborn instantly became the victim of death. We cannot perish, we must live, and live for ever, if we are sprinkled with the blood of Christ, and if, by faith, we lay hold of him as God's precious Lamb to take our guilt away. Let none despise the atoning blood of Jesus, through which alone the guilty sinner can be justified, his sins be blotted out to be remembered no more, and a "title clear obtained to mansions in the sky."

PRAYER.

OLORD, we adore thee as a God of mercy and of justice.

Awfully thou didst display thy justice in the punishment of guilty Egypt, and particularly in the death of their firstborn, by the sword of the destroying angel. Thou art excellent in power and in judgment and in plenty of justice. What reason have we to acknowledge in humble adoration, Thy justice upon a dreadful throne maintains thy glorious prerogatives; but we rejoice that thy mercy sends down to penitent supplicants pardons bought with a Saviour's blood.

We pray for the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit, to bless to each of our souls the peculiarly interesting portion of the sacred Word we have now read. Fulfil in our experience this promise, I will pour out my Spirit upon you, I will make known my words unto you.

May we see in the situation of the Egyptians on that dreadful night when the destroying angel appeared among them, an emblem of the affecting state of those who are in the gall of bitterness and bond of iniquity, and who are living without God and without hope in the world. If there are any in this family still remaining in their sins, the subjects of corruption, and the slaves of guilt, having God angry with them every day, and exposed to the destroying sword of God's justice, O have mercy upon them. With all the ardour of our souls we would plead, Deliver them from going down to the pit; for thou hast found a ransom. May all of us be sprinkled by the merit of a Saviour's blood and righteousness; then shall we be for ever safe, and the destroying angel of justice shall not come near our dwelling. Holy Spirit, open the eyes of our understanding, that we may see our sinfulness by nature, and our guilt by practice; open our eyes, that we may see the infinite evil of sin, and the infinite merit of our Saviour's blood.

Give our dear children grace betimes to seek the Lord, and in the beginning of their days to flee for refuge to the hope set before them. O convince them of the dangerous and alarming state of those who live without Christ.

As the children of Israel left Egypt at the command of God, that they might journey to an earthly Canaan, may we and our relatives and friends, and those who are associated with us in the public privileges of the sanctuary, be induced by the spirit of God to leave the Egypt of a natural state, and with true devotedness of heart begin our journey to heaven.

We thank God that the hand of disease or death has not laid hold of us during the last night, but that we are allowed, surrounded by many comforts, to assemble around the domestic altar, to call upon the name of the Lord.

Give us grace this day to perform duties, to resist temptations, to surmount difficulties, and to trample our lusts and corruptions under our feet. We ask these mercies for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST ALL IN ALL.

Melody. Salisbury Plain. Weston Faval. Brightelmston. C. M.

- 1 COMPARED with Christ, in all beside
No comeliness I see:
The one thing needful, dearest Lord,
Is to be one with thee.
- 2 The sense of thy expiring love
Into my soul convey:
Thyself bestow! for thee alone,
MY ALL IN ALL, I pray.
- 3 Less than thyself will not suffice
My comfort to restore:
More than thyself I cannot crave;
And thou canst give no more.

TO PLADY.

LUKE II.

Christ disputing with the Doctors.

NOW his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover.

42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem after the custom of the feast.

43 And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.

44 But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

45 And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions.

47 And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers.

48 And when they saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing.

49 And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?

50 And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them.

51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them: but his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man.

LUKE III.

The Preaching of John.

ANNAS and Caiaphas being the high priests, the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

3 And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins;

4 As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth;

6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE II., III.—Love to the ordinances of God's appointment is a necessary and indispensable mark of genuine piety. Let parents admire and follow the example of Mary, in embracing opportunities at an early, tender age, of conducting their little ones to God's house, where impressions of the most sacred and important description may be produced, by the Holy Spirit, upon their youthful and susceptible hearts, never to be erased. Great was Mary's grief when her child Jesus was not to be found! Great is the sorrow of the believer's heart when he is mourning over an absent Lord, and when he is ready to cry with Job, in the bitterness of his soul, "O that I knew where I might find him! then would I go, even to his seat, and fill my mouth with arguments." Great was the joy of Mary's heart when she found her child Jesus: great is the joy of the believer when he finds his absent Lord, when he sees by faith the shining of his countenance, and when he is restored to the delightful enjoyment of his Saviour's fellowship. Blessed, joyful prospect, when all flesh shall see the salvation of our God!

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we as a family, O Lord, to rejoice that we are now prostrate before thee as the God of our salvation. We confess that we deserve on account of our sins to have been dragged before thee as prisoners of thy justice; but in the abundance of thy grace we are prisoners of hope and monuments of mercy. We adore thee as the hope of Israel, and the Saviour thereof in the time of trouble. Truly thou art God our Saviour, who will have all men to be saved, and come to the knowledge of the truth.

In thy mercy thou hast brought us in safety to the close of another day. Into the cup of our lot thou hast poured the blessings of food and raiment and health and reason. For these we praise thee. Lift our minds above temporal comforts, and may we earnestly long for spiritual blessings. By faith may we feed on Christ, the bread of life; may the raiment of our souls be the robe of righteousness and the garments of salvation; may our minds be invigorated with spiritual health, and our understandings irradiated by the light of heavenly wisdom.

We desire with the confidence of children to cast ourselves upon the care and compassion of our God and Father this night. Give us the pleasing evidence that our sins are forgiven, and that our pardon is sealed in the blood of Jesus.

May the Holy Spirit, by his gracious influences, sanctify to our minds the Word of truth to which we have listened. Blessed are our eyes, which have seen the sacred pages, and blessed are our ears, which have heard the glorious tidings which they proclaim to men.

Fill the minds of our children and domestics with a superlative admiration of the example of Christ. Like him, may they wax strong in the Spirit, may they be filled with wisdom, and may the grace of God be upon them.

May all of us rejoice in those remarkable manifestations of mediatorial wisdom which Christ displayed when he was only twelve years of age. Even then, O Jesus, thy name was as ointment poured forth—even then thy garments did smell of myrrh and aloes and cassia—even then thou didst display that thou wast indeed the promised Messiah. Fill us with astonishment when we think of thy wisdom, power, and grace. For ever and ever may our hearts wonder, adore, and praise, before thy celestial throne. Bless to us, O Lord, the humble and condescending submission Jesus manifested, in his obedience to his parents. May the children of all the families with which we are connected particularly admire and imitate this part of the example of Christ.

We seek, O Lord, more humility, more repentance, more self-abasement. May we be baptised of the Spirit; then shall we have that repentance which is accompanied with the remission of sins. We praise thee that we have heard of the salvation of God. With the eye of faith may we see the salvation of our God. Through the instrumentality of a preached Gospel, and by means of Bible and missionary institutions, may that blessed promise be soon accomplished in the fullest extent, All flesh shall see the salvation of God.

Mercifully hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GRATITUDE FOR REDEMPTION.

Albion Hall. New Coshen. Tinsfield. Lambeth. P. M.

- 1 SHALL Jesus descend from the skies
To atone for our sins by his blood,
And shall we such goodness despise,
And rebels still be to our God?
- 2 Through him we forgiveness shall find,
And taste the sweet blessings of peace:
If, contrite and humbly resigned,
We trust in his promised grace.
- 3 While here through the desert we stray,
Our God shall be all our delight;
Our pillar of cloud in the day,
And also of fire in the night.

DR. TURNER.

EXODUS XIII.

God leading the Israelites.

AND it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, Lest peradventure the people repent when they see war, and they return to Egypt:

18 But God led the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Red Sea: and the children of Israel went up harnessed out of the land of Egypt.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you: and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

20 And they took their journey from Succoth,* and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.

21 And the LORD went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night:

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

EXODUS XIV.

Pharaoh pursuing Israel.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they turn and encamp before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.

3 For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.

4 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.

5 And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel: and the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the Egyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army, and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.

10 And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will show to you to day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

* Succoth signifies tents, and was the first place where they pitched their tents.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XIII., XIV.—Happy are they who believe that they are interested in a special Providence, and that God is leading them through this wilderness in a right way, and that he will conduct them in safety and triumph at last to the celestial Canaan! We should never forget that we have spiritual Philistines, who are ever ready to oppose our progress, and therefore must put on the whole armour of God, not only that we may firmly withstand them, but completely conquer them. If we are Christ's followers, we will take the greatest encouragement in our journey to heaven from his precious promises, and from his gracious guidance. There are none so infatuated as the enemies of Christ and his Church. Their plans are as foolish as they are malignant. Their craft can never succeed against Christ's wisdom, nor their power against his omnipotence.

PRAYER.

THOU God of creation, of providence, and of grace, we desire, under the influence of feelings of thankfulness, humility, reverence, and joy, with the returning light of another day, to prostrate ourselves before thy throne of grace. Teach us, in the language of thine inspired servant, thus to address thee:—O God, thou art our God; early will we seek thee; our flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is.

Thou hast preserved us during another night, O preserve us from the snares and temptation of the day on which we are now entering; and in whatever form we may be assailed by Satan, the enemy of souls, may we put on the whole armour of God. Relying on the arm of omnipotent grace, may we resist the crafty foe, and he will flee far from us.

May the rain of the Spirit's influences accompany our reading the volume of Divine and eternal truth. May we consult it with increasing reverence, increasing earnestness, increasing delight, and increasing advantage. Heavenly Father, teach us to rejoice in thy Word, as a broad land containing spiritual and imperishable wealth; as a fountain from which living streams arise; as a garden where seeds of heavenly bliss are sown; and as a region where hidden glory is to be found by those who love thee.

Allure and persuade our dear children to begin their journey to heaven. May they and we accompany each other through the vale of life, and in thy due time may we, by the aids of thy promised grace, safely reach the goodly heritage of the celestial kingdom.

Our heavenly Father, as thou didst go before and accompany thine ancient Israel, when they travelled from the land of bondage to the promised Canaan, O mercifully be the breaker up of the way before us, and accompany us through the wilderness of this world, while we endeavour to travel onward to our heavenly home. Make thy Word as a pillar of cloud to guide us by day, and as a pillar of fire to defend and comfort us by night. Convince us by thy Spirit, that if we take thy blessed Word for our guide and comforter, obeying its dictates, and believing its promises, but, above all, relying on the Saviour it reveals—no obstacle, no danger, no enemy, shall ever be able to prevent our triumphant entrance into the celestial Canaan.

O Lord, thou didst glorify thyself before the Egyptians, in saving thy people; O glorify thyself before our spiritual enemies, in saving us. May we be delivered from all our slavish fears; may we stand still; may we see the salvation of our God. Lord, preserve us from all our spiritual enemies. At death may they and we be separated, that we may see them no more for ever.

Extend to us thy pardoning mercy, and hear the supplications of our souls, for Jesus' sake; to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be ascribed unfeigned and endless praise. Amen.

THE REDEEMER'S MESSAGE.

Carre Lane. Leipzig. Twerton. Wilkins. C. K.

- 1 HARK, the glad sound, the Saviour comes,
The Saviour promised long!
Let every heart prepare a throne,
And every voice a song.
- 2 He comes, the prisoners to release,
In Satan's bondage hold;
The gates of brass before him burst,
The iron fetters yield.
- 3 He comes, from thickest films of vice
To clear the mental ray;
And, on the eyes oppressed with night,
To pour celestial day.

DODDRIIDGE.

LUKE IV.

The Preaching of Christ.

AND Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about.

15 And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

16 And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

18 The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, 19 To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, Is not this Joseph's son?

23 And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself: whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country.

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country.

25 But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land, 26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian.

28 And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath, 29 And rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong.

30 But he passing through the midst of them went his way, 31 And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the sabbath days.

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine: for his word was with power.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE IV.—Our blessed Saviour, having successfully resisted the prince of the air during a conflict of forty days and forty nights, has shown us a noble example that we should follow his steps. He immediately enters upon his glorious work of benevolence and usefulness, scattering the seeds of wisdom in all directions, proclaiming the Gospel of salvation in all its fulness, healing the diseased, and giving spiritual liberty to captive souls. The Gospel is of inestimable value, and when accompanied by the Spirit, exercises irresistible power. Has its blessed light enlightened our understandings, and changed the dark night of spiritual ignorance and folly into the bright and blessed day of spiritual wisdom and saving knowledge? In the hour of perplexity have we been guided by Gospel light? In the hour of weakness has the Gospel been our strength? In the hour of sorrow has the Gospel filled our souls with joy and peace? Heavy judgments are preparing for those who, like the people of Nazareth, reject Christ, and despise his mercy. "Jesus, reign upon the throne of our hearts!"

PRAYER.

O LORD, we desire, after the duties, trials, and events of the past day, to draw near to thy presence in the name of Christ, and to present the adoration and the homage of our hearts. Thou art a God of infinite holiness; the stars are not clean in thy sight; how much less man that is a worm, and the son of man who is a worm! God, our eternal King, holy and reverend is thy name: and in imitation of the angelic hosts we would say, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was, and is, and is to come.

Deeply humble us in thy sight, on account of the number and aggravation of our sins. May we see that there is in sin an infinite evil, and to us may sin appear infinitely loathsome and vile. We acknowledge we are spiritual lepers, and would exclaim, as is most just, Unclean, unclean! O may Jesus be made unto us wisdom; and may we be delivered from the folly which is naturally bound up in us. May Jesus be made unto us righteousness; and may the guilt of all our sins be removed from us, as far as the east is distant from the west. May Jesus be made unto us sanctification; and may we be arrayed in the beauties of holiness, and made comely by his comeliness put upon us.

Exalted Saviour, we acknowledge thee as the anointed Mediator. On thy humanity the oil of the Spirit's influences was poured out without measure. We come to thee as the anointed Redeemer, to supplicate thy mercy. We are poor and helpless; apply thy Gospel with power to our heart, then shall we be enriched with treasures of imperishable grace. What reason have we to rejoice in the great objects for which thou wast anointed! Have mercy, therefore, on the broken-hearted, and heal their wounded spirits. Have mercy on those who are spiritual captives, and set them at liberty. Have mercy on those who are spiritually blind, and open the eyes of their understanding, to behold the light of thy salvation.

Are any of our dear children the captives of sin and the slaves of Satan? O mercifully burst the fetters of their captivity asunder, and bring them under the blessed dominion of thy grace!

Jesus, thou King of Zion, have mercy on the nations of the earth, over which Satan reigns with despotic and uninterrupted sway. Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, take to thyself thy great power, and reign, and set the slaves of Satan free.

We thank thee, O Jesus, for thy gracious words. Thou art fairer than the children of men: grace is poured into thy lips; therefore thou art blessed for ever and ever. May the Gospel be gracious words to our soul, and to the souls of our relatives and friends.

May the blessings of the past day excite in our minds an affectionate admiration of God. We commit ourselves to thy providential care this night, and we implore the pardon of our sins, and the answer of our prayers, for Jesus' sake. And to Father, Son, and Spirit, be ascribed unceasing praise. Amen.

TRIUMPH IN GOD.

Mildred's New Windsor. St. Mary's.

C. K.

- 1 IF, Lord! in thy fair book of life
My worthless name doth stand;
And in my heart the law is writ
By thine unerring hand;
- 2 I am secure, by grace divine,
Of crowns above the skies:
And on the road, from thy rich stores
Shall meet with fresh supplies.
- 3 To thee in sweet melodious strains
My grateful voice I'll raise;
But life's too short, my powers too weak,
To show forth half thy praise.

A. N. O. N.

EXODUS XIV.

The Egyptians destroyed in the Red Sea.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward:

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them:

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided.

22 And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea, upon the dry ground; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning watch the LORD looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians,

25 And took off their chariot wheels, that they drave them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the LORD fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; and the LORD overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea.

28 And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them.

29 But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians; and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea shore.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XIV.—Difficulties, perplexities, and other calamities are to the saints powerful incentives to prayer, and to the placing of implicit confidence in God as the God of their salvation and the Father of all mercies. In the day of affliction, prayer is not only the most comforting exercise, but the most effectual means of sanctifying affliction, and of obtaining deliverance from all our afflictions. How comfortable, confident, and secure the believer feels, when his graces are in lively exercise! he knows that angels are his ministering spirits—that they encamp round about them that fear God. Above all, he knows that his God and Saviour is near, and that his deliverance is sure. What a glorious spectacle awaits the redeemed Israel of God at the last day, on the shores of the heavenly Canaan! for the last time they shall see their enemies, to be annoyed by them no more for ever!

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious God, we adore thee as the Defender and the Deliverer of thy people. Wonderfully thou didst appear for ancient Israel, according to thy promise; thou didst come down, to deliver thy people out of the hands of the Egyptians. O Lord, we would desire to fear thee alone, relying on the word of thy truth, that we shall be delivered from the hand of all our enemies. Often thou hast delivered us. In six troubles we have been preserved, and in seven no evil has touched us. What shall we render unto the Lord for all his undeserved benefits to us, the children of men! Teach us to take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord.

We confess, O Lord, our infinite unworthiness of thy mercies. We are all as an unclean thing, worthy to be cast out of thy sight, and our righteousness is as filthy rags: we all do fade as a leaf; and our iniquity, like the wind, has carried us away. We have not called as we ought on thy name, neither have we stirred ourselves up to lay hold upon thee. It is of thy mercy we are not consumed because of our iniquity. Though our offences are numerous and great, yet thou art our Father; we are the clay, and thou our potter: and we all are the work of thy hand. O visit us not with the desert of our sins. Be not wroth very sore, O Lord, neither remember iniquity for ever. With thy Church of old we would say, Behold, see, we beseech thee, we are all thy people. Sprinkle upon us the merit of our Saviour's righteousness, then shall the guilt of our sins be seen no more. Sprinkle upon us the influences of a Saviour's Spirit, then shall we be adorned with the beauties of holiness.

May the Word we have now read be effectually applied to our heart. May it ever prove to us a light shining in a dark place, to dispel from our understandings the thick clouds of ignorance and folly.

Bestow graciously upon us all those heavenly dispositions, and give us all that Divine aid, which is necessary for the journey of life. Give us strong faith to believe thy promise, assured hope that we shall safely land in heaven at last, and holy boldness that we may not be discouraged either by the dangers or difficulties of the way.

May our dear children be regenerated by thy grace, and prepared by thy Spirit for the journey on which they have entered. O introduce them into the narrow path, in which they shall be guided by the light of the Sun of Righteousness, and by which they shall be conducted in safety and triumph to the heavenly world.

We present our thanks for the patient and providential care we have enjoyed during the past night. Give us, this day, daily grace, for daily duty and daily difficulty. Blessed shall we be, if we set thee our God always before us. Thus may we be blessed, and may our prayers be answered, for Jesus' sake. Thine, O Lord, is the kingdom and the power and the glory for ever. Amen.

CHRIST GLORIOUS.

Smithfield. Stratford. Liverpool. Oxford. C. M.

- 1 O LORD, our Lord, how wondrous great
Is thine exalted name!
The glories of thy heavenly state
Let men and babes proclaim.
- 2 The waves lay spread beneath his feet;
And fish, at his command,
Bring their large shoals to Peter's net,
And tribute to his hand.
- 3 These lesser glories of the Son Shone through the fleshly cloud;
Now we behold him on his throne,
And men confess him God.

WATTS, Ps. 8.

LUKE VII.

The Centurion's Faith.

NOW when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum.

2 And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagoguc.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

9 When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.

11 And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

14 And he came and touched the bier: and they that bear it stood still. And he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother.

16 And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying, That a great prophet is risen up among us; and, That God hath visited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judaea, and throughout all the region round about.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE VII.—The time will soon arrive when, with the close of our mortal lives, all our spiritual privileges on earth shall be ended. When our privileges on earth come to a close, may we enter on the enjoyments of those glorious and exalted privileges in the heaven of heavens which shall continue for ever, where our sun shall no more go down, nor our moon withdraw her shining. When a family consists of pious parents and children, pious master and servants, such a family is the epitome of the Church of God. The abode of such a family is a Bethel—a house of God, respecting which he says, "This is my rest, here will I stay, for I have desired it." Jesus is the divine Physician, who is equally able to heal the diseases of the body, and the maladies of the soul. May it be our privilege to say and sing, "He health all our diseases."

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, we adore thee in the goodness of thy nature, and in the boundless benevolence of thy character. The heaven is full of thy glory, and the earth is full of thy goodness. Thou hast preserved us and surrounded us and followed us with thy goodness. Thy goodness has been a light to guide our steps, and a shield to guard our way. Surely we had fainted, unless we had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living. As a family, we now seek thee because thou art good: and we rejoice that they who truly seek the Lord shall want no good thing.

We have tasted thy continued goodness this day, for which we praise thee. Our food, raiment, residence, health, reason, domestic comfort, and success in worldly and lawful pursuits, are all the streams of thy providential goodness, for which we present the sacrifice of our thanksgiving. When we remember the past, how thou hast led us and watched over us; and when we look onward to the future, may each one of us be filled with thankfulness and love. We praise thee, O Lord, that thus far thou hast led us on; that thus far thou hast prolonged our days; and that every day we are furnished with some fresh memorial of thy grace.

This evening we desire to feel that confidence in thee our God which children place in their earthly parents, believing that we are the objects of thy paternal care, and that when our mortal bodies shall sleep the sleep of death, we shall awake amid the songs of angels and the joys of heaven. Mercifully grant that this may be the case with each member of our family now kneeling in thy presence.

We thank our God for relatives and friends; but more especially we thank thee for pious friends, who enjoy intercourse with thyself, and plead with heaven for our salvation. Lord, teach us to value the prayers of the righteous, and to look upon them as an inheritance more to be desired than treasures of fine gold. We rejoice that it is thy gracious ordination and will, that the prayers of a righteous man shall avail much.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the diseases and afflictions which in thy sovereignty thou dost permit to visit the bodies and try the minds of men. Thou art a wise, a righteous, and a gracious Sovereign. Sanctify to us every afflictive event of thy providence, and extend thy compassion and sympathy to all our friends who may at this time be tossed on the stormy sea of human suffering.

Have mercy on the widow, weeping over the ashes of her departed husband. Compassionate Saviour, be to her a husband, and betroth her unto thyself for ever. Hast thou deprived her not only of her husband, but also of her son, her only son?—be to her infinitely better than every earthly, than every departed relation—be to her the strength of her heart and her portion for ever.

Sanctify to us the death of departed relatives. May we remember the holy example of pious friends, and gladly follow their footsteps in as far as they followed Christ.

Teach our dear children to follow their pious progenitors and friends to the celestial mansions. God forbid that they should turn their back on heaven, and pursue those courses which lead to the mansions of woe!

O Lord, may this our evening sacrifice be accepted, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

ELEVENTH WEEK.—SATURDAY MORNING

MIRIAM'S SONG.

Gethsemane Chorus.

P. M.

1 SOUND the loud timbrel o'er Egypt's dark sea;
 Jehovah has triumphed, his people are free!
 Sing, for the pride of the tyrant is broken,
 His chariot, his horsemen, all splendid and brave;
 How vain was their boasting! the Lord has but spoken,
 And chariots and horsemen are sunk in the wave!

Chorus.—Sound the loud timbrel, &c.

2 Praise to the Conqueror; O praise to the Lord;
 His word was our arrow, his breath was our sword!
 Who shall return to tell Egypt the story
 Of those she sent forth in the hour of her pride?
 For the Lord hath looked out from his pillar of glory,
 And all her brave thousands are dashed in the tide!

Chorus.—Sound the loud timbrel, &c.

FLETCHER'S COLLECT. 348, p. 11.

EXODUS XV.

The Song of Moses.

THEN sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord, and spake, saying, I will sing unto the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

2 The Lord is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt him.

3 The Lord is a man of war: the Lord is his name.

4 Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea: his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red Sea.

5 The depths have covered them: they sank into the bottom as a stone.

6 Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

7 And in the greatness of thine excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee: thou sendest forth thy wrath, which consumed them as stubble.

8 And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

9 The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, my hand shall destroy them.

10 Thou didst blow with thy wind, the sea covered them: they sank as lead in the mighty waters.

11 Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the gods? who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?

Thou stretchedst out thy right hand, the earth swallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy hast led forth the people which thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation.

14 The people shall hear, and be afraid: sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina.

15 Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

18 The Lord shall reign for ever and ever.

19 For the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and the Lord brought again the waters of the sea upon them: but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances.

21 And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XV.—The interpositions of Providence, in behalf of the Church of God, are the most interesting and glorious events recorded on the pages of revelation, and they call forth the loudest praises of the redeemed in all ages. Let each one of us ask, with holy and impartial concern, "Is Israel's God, who delivered his people from their Egyptian persecutors, and who preserved them from the waters of the Red Sea, my God? Is he the God of my salvation? Has he delivered me out of the hands of my spiritual enemies, and has he preserved me from the raging waves of the Red Sea of the law as a broken covenant of works?" If so, my delivering Saviour is the object of my love, my adoration, and my praise. If so, my soul is the habitation of God, the temple of the Holy Ghost.

PRAYER.

THOU Hearer and Answerer of prayer, breathe upon us the Holy Ghost, while we meet as a family, to present our persons and our supplications before thy throne. O that we were enabled with Moses and Israel to sing, The Lord is our strength and song, he is become our salvation; he is our God, we will prepare him an habitation: he is our fathers' God, and we will exalt him. We bless thee for the displays of thy majesty and power in the destruction of Pharaoh and his hosts in the Red Sea. Then did thy right hand become glorious in power; thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy. When we think of all thine attributes, and of the display of thy perfections in the punishment of the enemies of thy church in various ages of its history, what reason have we, in language of exaltation and praise, thus to adore thee: Who is like unto thee, O Lord, among the gods? who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders? We would also adore thee in the manifestations of thy mercy in the deliverances accomplished for thy church and people. From the beginning of time to the present period, thou hast never left them, thou hast preserved them as the apple of thine eye. Thou in thy mercy hast led forth thy people whom thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto thy holy habitation. Give us grace often to remember, with sensations of grateful joy, what thou hast done for thy church in the generations which have passed away. What reason have we to extol thy holy name for what thou hast done for thy church in these lands of our nativity! We thank thee that we are delivered from pagan idolatry, and that the frightful horrors of idolatrous worship have for ever fled away. What shall we render unto the Lord for all his benefits? We thank thee that thou hast scattered the clouds of superstition which so long filled and overspread our sky with impenetrable darkness and gloom, and that the light of gospel-truth now shines upon us with brightness and glory. What shall we render unto the Lord for all his benefits?

If there are any of us now in thy presence the subjects of salvation, we present our thanksgivings and our praises for so great a blessing. We thank thee that thou hast brought us out of the fearful pit of a natural state, where millions have been consumed, and that thou hast taken us out of the miry clay, where myriads have perished. Let there be a new song in our mouth; even praises to our God.

Are there any among us far from God, within the sea-mark of the divine displeasure, and yet unconcerned about the eternal interest of the soul? Is this the miserable state of our dear children, who are the objects of our tender love and anxious care? O let the power which delivered Israel from Egyptian bondage deliver them from the bondage of sin!

May the mercies of the past night excite our gratitude and love, and may the law of God be the rule of our actions, and the Gospel of Christ be the comfort of our hearts, throughout the whole of this day. O hear and answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake. To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, we would ascribe glory and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

CONFESSION AND PARDON.

Egypt. Loughton Hall. Orange. Broderip's. v. n.

- 1 MY sorrows, like a flood,
Impatient of restraint,
Into thy bosom, O my God!
Pour out a long complaint.
- 2 This impious heart of mine
Could once defy the Lord,
Could rush with violence on to sin
In presence of thy sword.
- 3 How often have I stood
A rebel to the skies;
And yet, and yet, O matchless grace!
Thy thunder silent lies.

DR. WATTS' LINES.

LUKE VII.

Christ's Feet bathed with Ointment.

AND the Lord said, Whereunto then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32 They are like unto children sitting in the marketplace, and calling one to another, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a devil.

34 The Son of man is come eating and drinking; and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man, and a wine bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners!

35 But wisdom is justified of all her children.

36 And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat.

37 And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment, 38 And stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

39 Now, when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

40 And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on.

41 There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty.

42 And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most?

43 Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

44 And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.

45 Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet.

46 My head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

47 Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

48 And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven.

49 And they that sat at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this that forgiveth sins also?

50 And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE VII.—The Gospel is God's message from heaven to the guilty and wretched inhabitants of our fallen apostate world. It is addressed to us under the highest sanction, and it comes to us with expressions of boundless mercy and grace. And how has a message of compassion been received by man? We have reason to say, "Be astonished, O ye heavens!" The messages of kindness have been treated with neglect and contempt by the great majority of our race. Where the light of salvation shines with greatest splendour, thousands refuse to look upon its brightness. Where the trumpet of salvation sounds with the greatest sweetness, thousands refuse to hear its alluring accents. Have we heard—have we believed the Gospel's joyful sound? Have we received the matchless blessings which the Gospel brings within our reach? Has our Saviour melted our hearts with penitence—has he forgiven us much? Has he warmed our hearts with love? Can we say, "If I had ten thousand hearts, Jesus deserves them all?" Then, we are blessed indeed!

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as a pardoning God. Infinite is thy hatred of sin, and infinite is thy mercy in forgiving sin. Thy justice is infinite to punish the guilt of impenitent sinners; but we praise thee, thy grace is infinite to pardon the guilt of the humble penitent falling prostrate at thy feet. We come and lay the guilt of our multiplied offences before thee. Holy Spirit, enable us to come with humble, longing, and repenting hearts. Thou knowest the sins of the past week, and of our past lives: O pardon them through our Saviour's blood. We are encouraged to look for pardon, for there is forgiveness with thee that thou mayst be feared; with thee there is plenteous redemption. O redeem us from all our iniquities.

We present our thanksgivings for the mercies of the week: for the blessings conferred on the body, that shall die; but, above all, for the blessings conferred on the soul, which shall live for ever. May the events of the week be sanctified. May prosperous events make us thankful, and may adverse events make us humble. Thou hast graciously preserved us to the close of the week, while we deserved to have been suddenly cut out of the land of the living, and stricken by the rod of thy vengeance, for our multiplied offences. Prepare us, merciful God, for our last week on earth, when we shall part with all below, and take an eternal farewell of the perishing enjoyments and the insignificant pursuits of time.

May our lives be preserved during the night, and may we be permitted to open our eyes upon the light of another Sabbath. In the prospect of thy Sabbath, and in the hopes of its sacred and profitable engagements, may each member of our beloved family thus pray:—O may our thoughts and thanks ascend before thy throne as grateful incense; and may we draw from heaven that sacred peace which the men of the world know nothing of.

May thy ministering servants be eminently assisted, and be wise in winning souls to Christ. May the approaching Sabbath be a day long to be remembered by the conversion of multitudes to Christ. May this family, and all the families of the congregation with which we are associated, experience, under a preached Gospel, the quickening and sanctifying influences of the Holy Ghost. Lord, save the souls of our children and domestics.

O Lord, we would aspire after that love which the penitent woman felt, who anointed the Saviour's feet with ointment. We mourn over our cold and lifeless hearts. Like this woman may we be forgiven much, and may we love much. By our sins we are thy debtors. We owe thee a debt of obedience we have long withheld; and we owe a debt of punishment which we shall never be able to endure. Forgive these our debts, and kindle within us a fire of love which never shall be quenched. Lord, hear us, for the sake of Jesus, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

DELIVERANCE FROM SLANDER.

Spillcock. Mrs Owsden. Condescension. Portico. c. n.

- 1 MY heart rejoices in thy name,
My God, my help, my trust;
Thou hast preserved my face from shame,
Mine honour from the dust.
- 2 My life is spent with grief, I cried;
My years consumed in groans;
My strength decays, mine eyes are dried,
And sorrow wastes my bones.
- 3 Slander and fear on every side
Seized and beset me round;
I to the throne of grace applied,
And speedy rescue found.

WARREN, P. 11.

PSALM XXXI.

David seeketh God's Help.

IN thee, O LORD, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in thy righteousness.

2 Bow down thine ear to me; deliver me speedily: be thou my strong rock, for an house of defence to save me.

3 For thou art my rock and my fortress; therefore for thy name's sake lead me, and guide me.

5 Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O LORD God of truth.

6 I have hated them that regard lying vanities: but I trust in the LORD.

7 I will be glad and rejoice in thy mercy: for thou hast considered my trouble; thou hast known my soul in adversities;

8 And hast not shut me up into the hand of the enemy: thou hast set my foot in a large room.

9 Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am in trouble: mine eye is consumed with grief, yea, my soul and my belly.

11 I was a reproach among all mine enemies, but especially among my neighbours, and a fear to mine acquaintance: they that did see me without fled from me.

12 I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind: I am like a broken vessel.

14 But I trusted in thee, O LORD: I said, Thou art my God.

15 My times are in thy hand: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that persecute me.

16 Make thy face to shine upon thy servant: save me for thy mercies' sake.

17 Let me not be ashamed, O LORD; for I have called upon thee: let the wicked be ashamed, and let them be silent in the grave.

18 Let the lying lips be put to silence; which speak grievous things proudly and contemptuously against the righteous.

19 O how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men!

20 Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy presence from the pride of man: thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues.

21 Blessed be the LORD: for he hath showed me his marvellous kindness in a strong city.

22 For I said in my haste, I am cut off from before thine eyes: nevertheless thou heardest the voice of my supplications when I cried unto thee.

23 O love the LORD, all ye his saints: for the LORD preserveth the faithful, and plentifully rewardeth the proud doer.

24 Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXI.—Great are the privileges of those whose confidence is placed in God. Their prayers are answered, Jesus is their deliverer, his righteousness and perfections are the impregnable fortress of their defence, unerring wisdom is their guide, and they are redeemed from the lowest hell. The heart of the believer is raised above the vanities of time, and no adversity can deprive him of his sacred joy, and no enemy can shake the security of his hope. Prayer is one of the fruits of sanctified affliction. The saint often feels the reproach of the wicked, but he never loses the favour of his God. The joy of ungodly and impenitent men is but of short duration, and is followed by a dark and endless night of misery and despair. But heart cannot conceive what Christ has prepared for those who love him. Here they have the protecting presence of their Saviour, and hereafter the delights of immortality. The fears of believers may prevail for a season; but when the light of God's countenance begins to shine, believing prayer ascends, like fragrant incense, and the graces of love, faith, and hope appear in the garden of the soul, flourishing like the palm-tree, and growing like the cedar of Lebanon.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we would reverently and joyfully prostrate ourselves before thy throne, and adore thee in thy goodness and grace. O how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee, which thou hast laid up for them that trust in thee before the sons of men! We adore thy goodness as it shines in the contrivance of salvation, as it appears in the accomplishment of salvation, and as it is displayed in the application of salvation by the Holy Ghost. We adore thee as our rock, on whom we are encouraged to place all our hopes; and as our fortress, where we are permitted to flee for refuge, when assailed by the calamities of life. Teach us to exercise a lively faith in thee as our covenant God, as our God and Father in Christ, and with a believing heart to exclaim, Into thine hand we commend our spirit: for thou hast redeemed us, O Lord God of truth.

We thank God, whose special providence has preserved us from the dangers of the last night, and brought us in safety to the morning of another Sabbath. Thou art giving us new opportunities to repent, and turn unto thee, from whom we have departed. Lord, turn to us, and we shall be turned. In thy mercy, thou hast awoken our bodies from the slumbers of natural sleep:—O awake our souls from the slumbers of spiritual death; and with liveliness, activity, and joy, may we enter on the sacred and animating engagements of the day. Thou hast cheered our natural eye with the light of the created sun: O illuminate our minds with the light of thy Word, and with the glorious rays of the Sun of righteousness.

Prepare us, and the people with whom we are connected, for the sacred services of thy house. May we see thy power and thy glory, as we have seen thee in the sanctuary.

May the hearts of our beloved children be impressed under a preached Gospel. Soon may they know and believe and love and feel the joyful sound.

May thy Spirit rest upon our legislators and rulers, and may Divine wisdom be their guide in exercising the power with which they are invested, for being a terror to evil doers, and a praise unto them that do well.

Let all the universities, colleges, and seminaries of learning in our land, be moral gardens of spiritual beauty and fruitfulness.

In a particular manner bless thy ministering servant to whose voice we are to listen this day. Touch his heart and his tongue, as with a live coal from thy heavenly altar.

O have mercy upon graceless sinners. We would mourn over their ignorance, hardness, impenitence, and guilt. Holy Spirit, convince them by thine almighty power of their sinfulness and danger. May they know this day, that if they die without Christ, they must sink into the lowest hell, without the possibility of escape.

Comfort the afflicted in their retirement with thy presence. O hear our imperfect prayer, for Jesus' sake.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PARDON.

Kerueell. Willshire New. Exeter.

c. x.

- 1 HAPPY the man to whom his God
No more imputes his sin,
But, washed in the Redeemer's blood,
Hath made his garments clean!
- 2 Happy beyond expression he,
Whose debts are thus discharged;
And from the guilty bondage free,
He feels his soul enlarged.
- 3 His spirit hates deceit and lies,
His words are all sincere;
He guards his heart, he guards his eyes,
To keep his conscience clear.
- 4 While I my inward guilt suppress,
No quiet could I find:
Thy wrath lay burning in my breast,
And racked my tortured mind.

Watts, Ps. 52.

PSALM XXXII.

Blessedness of Pardon.

BLESSED is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.

2 Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.

8 When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long.

4 For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: my moisture is turned into the drought of summer. Selah.

5 I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah.

6 For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him.

7 Thou art my hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance. Selah.

8 I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye.

9 Be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding: whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee.

10 Many sorrows shall be to the wicked: but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about.

11 Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXII.—No earthly blessing is worthy to be compared with pardon of sin, and acceptance with God. These rich privileges are ours, when our hearts are warmed with divine love, and adorned with unfeigned faith. Sin is the fruitful source of every sorrow. A sense of sin, without a believing view of God's mercy, plunges the soul into the lowest depths of despairing anguish, and even sometimes preys upon the body like a wasting pestilence. Until the convinced soul pours out its penitential confessions into the bosom of the God of grace it can find no peace, the alarming inward tempest will continue to rage, and the firmament of the conscience continue to be overspread by clouds of impenetrable gloom. But when acknowledgments and confessions are made, when the atonement of Jesus is looked upon as the only procuring cause of forgiveness, then the soul is filled with the animating light of spiritual day, and the Father of mercy proclaims, Be of good cheer, thy sins are all forgiven thee. My soul, let it be thy daily and earnest prayer to obtain evidences of pardoning mercy, and then thou shalt remain secure and peaceful, though assailed by furious enemies and strong temptations. I can defy every enemy, while I believe that my defender is the almighty Saviour; and I can shout the song of triumph, even when my adversaries pour out their threatenings, dreadful as the thunderings of the sky. Happy are they who have unerring wisdom for their guide; and miserable are they who are led by the obstinate folly of their own hearts. The life of the wicked is only fruitful in sorrows, but the life of the righteous fruitful in unspeakable joys. How true!—the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs.

PRAYER.

HEAVENLY Father, enable us now to present our evening prayer under the guiding and solemnizing influence of the Holy Spirit. In the language of inspiration, we would acknowledge and adore thee as our hiding-place; thou shalt preserve us in trouble; and thou wilt compass us about with songs of deliverance. Thou art a God of truth; and what encouragement we have to depend upon the promises of thy grace! Thy Word is right, and all thy works are done in truth. Thou lovest righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord.

O that each one of us could say and resolve in the words of the humble and penitent Psalmist, We acknowledge our sin unto thee, and our iniquity we would not hide. We will confess our iniquities unto the Lord, and thou wilt forgive the iniquity of our sin. Suffer none of us to be as the horse or as the mule, which have no understanding; but may the obstinacy of our hearts be subdued; and our obedience of thy blessed laws, may it not be the obedience of constraint, but the obedience of love. If there are any in this family impenitent and far from Christ, may the convincing power of the Spirit come home to their conscience, and may they see that many sorrows come to the wicked, even sorrows of endless punishment and despair, in the habitations of the lost. O convince them, and that effectually, of the immense loss they sustain by living without God, seeing that they are compassed about with mercy who trust in the Lord. Look down with great mercy on this family, and may all of us be among the blessed ones, whose transgression is forgiven, and whose sin is covered. May we be among the blessed ones, to whom the Lord will not impute iniquity. As an evidence that we are so blessed, may our professions of religion be sincere, and may we be without guile. Mercifully fulfil in our experience that promise, I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye.

Be the instructor of our dear children. Make us faithful in placing before them an example of Christian graces and of Christian practice. We acknowledge that our instruction will avail nothing without thine. Guide them with thine unerring eye, and at last conduct them to thy heavenly home.

Sanctify to us the solemnities of thy day. If convictions have been produced on our minds by thy Word, O may they be cherished, preserved, and strengthened. May we not resemble the natural man beholding his face in a glass, and like him go away forgetting what manner of men we were; may the sight we saw of our sinfulness never be forgotten, and may we daily apply to the fountain of our Saviour's merit for holiness and pardon.

Have mercy on the afflicted, who have not been able to attend thy public courts. Give them the well-grounded hope that they shall for ever dwell in thy heavenly courts, and enjoy the fellowship of Christ.

Graciously smile on all the churches, and may the divisions which now prevail among thy flock soon be destroyed by the irresistible power of the Gospel of Jesus. Have mercy upon the Jews, and may they believe that the divine Shiloh is come, to whom shall the gathering of the nations be.

Be our gracious Protector this night, and hear our for Jesus our Redeemer's sake.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SUBMISSION.

Woolminster. Tooting. Harboro'. Stoke.

S. M.

- 1 DOST thou my profit seek,
And chasten as a friend?
O God! I'll kiss the smarting rod,
There's honey at the end.
- 2 Dost thou, through death's dark vale,
Conduct to heaven at last?
The future good will make amends
For all the evil past.
- 3 Lord! I would not repine
At strokes in mercy sent;
If the chastisement comes in love,
My soul shall be content.

BEDDOKE.

EXODUS XV.

The Bitter Waters of Marah.

SO Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea, and they went out into the wilderness of Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

23 And when they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called Marah.

24 And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them,

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

27 And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm-trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

EXODUS XVI.

The Murmurings of Israel.

AND they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness.

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the flesh-pots, and when we did eat bread to the full; for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.

4 Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather a certain rate every day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, At even, then ye shall know that the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt:

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the LORD; for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and what are we, that ye murmur against us?

8 And Moses said, This shall be, when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that the LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but against the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XV., XVI.—The world is, spiritually considered, a wilderness, which contains in itself no springs of living, spiritual water to animate and refresh the soul. They who look to the world for consolation and peace shall soon find, to their disappointment, that all its waters are bitter; but blessed and satisfied are they who can exclaim with holy confidence, "O Lord, our wellsprings are in thee." Truly, Divine grace in the soul is a well of water, springing up unto eternal life. Are afflictions bitter waters? They are; but the blessing of God mingled with these waters renders them wholesome, medicinal, and useful. The Israelites were notorious for their murmurings against God, even after he had performed the most remarkable miracles to deliver them from the greatest calamities. May we, therefore, learn most earnestly to pray, that we may admire and adore God in all his providences, however dark or mysterious.

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL and heavenly Father, before entering on the duties and secular engagements of another week, we would present ourselves as a family before thy mercy-seat, and in the name of Jesus express the homage and adoration of our hearts. We adore thee as the helper of thy people. From what we have now read in thy sacred Word, we see that thou art a very present help, and that the time of thy people's great extremity is the blessed time of thy gracious opportunity. We rejoice that thou ridest on the heavens in thy help. May we therefore be encouraged to come boldly to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in every time of need.

We thank our God for surrounding us with the arms of his protecting goodness during the last night. Every morning when we awake, may we feel a disposition to praise the Lord for his goodness. When we lie down on our beds, may our thoughts be with God; and when we awake, may our hearts be sensibly mindful of his kindness. Prepare us for all the duties and difficulties, temptations, comforts, and crosses of the week on which we have entered. May we feel and show that we were suitably impressed on thy day, and in thy courts, by the gracious words to which we listened.

Give us grace to enter upon the duties and engagements of the day, under a deep impression of the invaluable privileges we enjoy. O let our faith in the Gospel not be a dead faith, but a living faith, producing the living fruits of righteousness. May we be under the Divine influence of this faith, in all our secular employments, and in all our religious engagements. In our temporal pursuits may we ever maintain a religious feeling, and long for the glory of that celestial world, where the most exalted and refined employments shall fill up the ceaseless ages of eternity.

Sanctify to us the Marah waters of affliction; by faith may we pluck a branch from Christ, the tree of life; then shall the most bitter waters of affliction be in some measure acceptable, and always profitable. Give us the true disposition of heaven-bound travellers, who look upon themselves as pilgrims and strangers on earth. Teach us, and the dear children of our affectionate care, and all our domestics and friends, to look on this world as a wilderness, and not our home.

We thank God that we have wells of living water, even the Word and ordinances of our God, from which we may draw the waters of spiritual and divine consolation. Let none among us despise these sacred wells: and may we be prevented from applying to the world's broken cisterns for comfort.

Above all, we thank thee for Jesus Christ, the bread of life, the true manna, which came down from heaven. May we by faith eat of this Divine manna, and live for ever.

Preserve us from a murmuring spirit, and may the disappointments of time lead our thoughts to the enjoyments of eternity. All we ask is for Jesus, our Mediator's sake. Amen.

WATCHING FOR SOULS.

Bovey Tracy. Webster's. Ludlow. Sprague.

C. M.

- 1 LET Zion's watchmen all awake,
And take the alarm they give!
Now let them, from the mouth of God,
Their awful charge receive.
- 2 'Tis not a cause of small import
The pastor's care demands;
But what might fill an angel's heart,
And filled a Saviour's hands.
- 3 All to the great tribunal haste,
The account to render there;
And shouldst thou strictly mark our faults,
Lord, where should we appear? DODDARD.

LUKE X.

Christ sends out Seventy Disciples.

AFTER these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.

2 Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.

3 Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.

4 Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.

5 And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house.

6 And if the son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again.

7 And in the same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house.

8 And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you:

9 And heal the sick that are therein, and say unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

10 But into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the streets of the same, and say,

11 Even the very dust of your city, which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

12 But I say unto you, That it shall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city.

13 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.

14 But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you.

15 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to hell.

16 He that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me.

17 And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.

18 And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.

19 Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you.

20 Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE X.—Jesus is the great king and head of his Church, and he alone can qualify, prepare, and appoint suitable servants to be the pastors of his flock, and to proclaim his unsearchable riches in his name. Such as Jesus calls into his service are made willing to endure hardness for his sake; they who prefer worldly ease and mere personal comfort to his cause, plainly show that they have entered the ministry without his call. The heralds of the cross are not invested with the power of working miracles upon the diseased bodies of men, but they are the honoured means, by the power of the Spirit, in conferring the most invaluable blessings on the souls of men. When the Gospel which they proclaim is the power of God unto salvation, they are instrumental in opening the eyes of them who are spiritually blind, in unstopping the ears of those who are spiritually deaf, in making the spiritually lame to leap as a hart, and the spiritually dumb to sing.

PRAYER.

O THOU Divine and exalted Saviour, we acknowledge and adore thee in all thy glory, majesty, and grace. Though formerly humbled in thy humanity, thou thoughtest it no robbery to be equal with God. In thy mediatorial capacity thou art exalted and extolled very high, and a name is given thee above every name, that every knee should bow before thee, and all created intelligences confess that thou art Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

We desire, O Lord, with grateful hearts to draw near to thy throne of grace, through the merit of our Saviour's death. Let the temporal and spiritual blessings of the day raise our admiration of God, who daily loadeth us with benefits. May our numerous shortcomings during the past day be forgiven, and may the guilt we have contracted be washed away by the blood of Jesus, the sacrifice for the sins of men. May our daily sins be followed by daily repentance; and may the evil and danger of sin be more and more evident to our minds. If there are any among us unconvinced, may we be convinced now, that without faith in Christ, the only propitiation, we must live and die under the wrath of an offended God. O preserve us from such a doom, for who can stand before thee when once thou art angry!

May we lie down upon our beds at peace with God, looking to the righteousness of Christ alone as the only foundation of our hopes of pardon and acceptance. Looking to Jesus as our only Saviour, we commend ourselves and our beloved friends to thy Divine and fatherly protection. May each of us, in the exercise of a lively faith, lie down to rest as in the arms of our God, reposing on the bosom of Jesus: and may we see that our souls are sprinkled with his precious blood.

Deeply impress upon the minds of the dear children of our family that they must die. Inspire their youthful minds with faith in Christ: in him may they trust for pardon: to him may they look as the only friend who can lead them to the heavenly Jerusalem above.

We have now read that the harvest is great, but that the labourers are few. Teach us to look upon the world as a vast harvest-field, from which there are millions of souls requiring to be gathered to Christ. Holy Spirit, multiply the faithful ministers of the cross; send forth multitudes of labourers into the vineyard, and let blessed and large accessions be speedily made to the Church and kingdom of Immanuel. Have mercy on all who are labouring, more publicly or privately, in thy vineyard. Above all things, give them increasing degrees of thy Spirit, increasing zeal for the glory of God, increasing compassion for poor, wretched souls ready to perish, increasing concern to be the honoured instruments of rescuing captives from the tyranny of Satan, and increasing joy when the poor sinner is reclaimed from the error of his ways.

May the afflicted live in the enjoyment of all those comforts which the Gospel affords. May our prayers be heard, for Jesus' sake; to whom, with the Father and eternal Spirit, be glory and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

CHRIST THE TRUE BREAD.

Jordan's Banks. Fourth. Greville. Boston. c. n.

- 1 LET us adore the eternal Word,
'Tis he our souls hath fed;
Thou art our living stream, O Lord,
And thou the immortal bread.
- 2 The manna came from lower skies,
But Jesus from above,
Where the fresh springs of pleasure rise,
And rivers flow with love.
- 3 Bless'd be the Lord that gives his flesh
To nourish dying men!
And often spreads his table fresh
Lest we should faint again.

WATTS, 5, B. III.

EXODUS XVI.

Manna given.

AND it came to pass, that at even the quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay round about the host.

14 And when the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground.

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, It is manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

16 This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, an omer for every man, according to the number of your persons; take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack; they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moses said, Let no man leave of it till the morning.

20 Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms, and stank: and Moses was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted.

22 And it came to pass, that on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

23 And Moses said, Eat that to day; for to day is a sabbath unto the LORD: to day ye shall not find it in the field.

26 Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses, How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws?

32 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the Testimony, to be kept.

35 And the children of Israel did eat manna forty years, until they came to a land inhabited; they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XVI.—Boundless and inexhaustible are God's providential and gracious resources. From the former, he supplies the wants of every living thing; and from the latter, he enriches the church militant on earth with grace, and the church triumphant with glory. "How great is his goodness?" None can tell! "O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!" The Israelites were filled with wonder when they saw the manna. What wonder and thankfulness should fill our hearts when we think of Christ the Divine Manna, who is the true bread of life, who came down from heaven, that they who receive him, and feed upon him, may live for ever. Do we highly estimate Jesus, his salvation, the doctrines of his grace, and the promises of his truth, as manna from heaven, sweeter than honey; and do we daily hunger after this manna, and feed upon it as the food of our souls, and the joy of our hearts?

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as our everlasting Father, and would say with thy Church in former days, Doubtless thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not; thou, O Lord, art our Father, and our Redeemer. O fulfil in our experience that promise, I will be a father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters. I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, and they shall not depart from me. Graciously fulfil in our experience these great and precious promises.

We bless our covenant God and Father in Christ for the mercies of another night. Thou hast given us rest and sleep and refreshment and protection. Bless us in all the engagements of this day. Let not our affections be placed on the objects of time; and even when our time is occupied with our temporal pursuits, may our minds often rise to heavenly objects. May we not be ensnared by the temptations of the day; and may we know what it is to have daily fellowship with the Father, and his Son, Jesus Christ: and thus have, every day, a foretaste of the joys of heaven.

O Lord, we would now dedicate our souls anew to thee; and may it be our happiness to serve thee on earth, and eternally to enjoy thee in heaven.

May the Holy Spirit bless what we have now read of the manna, and of the Divine sanction given to the Sabbath-day. We bless thee, O Lord, for miraculously preserving thy Church from perishing with hunger in the desert. And we thank thee, that thou hast constantly and abundantly supplied all our wants, from our birth to the present day. Our bread has been given us, and our water has been sure. More especially we thank thee for Jesus, and the blessings of salvation, the true manna, which came down from heaven. By faith may we relish and desire this manna; by faith may we feed daily on this manna. In the strength of this manna may we journey onward to our heavenly home.

O give our dear children grace to love this manna, to seek this manna, and daily to feed upon it, as the vital nourishment of their soul.

We thank God for the abundance of the blessings of salvation, that there is enough and to spare. What reason have we to bless thee for the freedom of these inestimable blessings! May we unceasingly rejoice, that pardon, acceptance, regeneration, holiness, and even heaven itself, are blessings offered to the chief of sinners, who are welcomed by the God of grace to receive them all, without money and without price. May none of us despise these blessings. Convince us that no punishment will be so grievous as the punishment of those who die despising mercy. O preserve us from such a sin, and hear our humble prayer, for Jesus our Immanuel's sake. Amen.

CHOOSING THE BETTER PART.

Alfred Kenney. Peru. Marks.

L M

- 1 BESSET with snares on every hand,
In life's uncertain path I stand:
Saviour divine! diffuse thy light
To guide my doubtful footsteps right.
- 2 Engage this roving, treacherous heart
To fix on Mary's better part,
To scorn the trifles of a day
For joys that none can take away.
- 3 Then let the wildest storms arise;
Let tempests mingle earth and skies;
No fatal shipwreck shall I fear,
But all my treasures with me bear.

DODDRIDGE.

LUKE X.

The Good Samaritan.

AND, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, What shall I do to inherit eternal life?
26 He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou?

27 And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.

29 But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?

30 And Jesus answering said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 And by chance there came down a certain priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

32 And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, 34 And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow when he departed, he took out twopence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again I will repay thee.

36 Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among thieves?

37 And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.

38 Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE X.—It is a humiliating sight to witness men of rank, influence, and learning, without grace, and as ignorant of the great scheme of salvation as wandering Indians. The treasures of human knowledge can avail me nothing in the day when the earthly house of this tabernacle is laid down—in the day on which I shall appear before the judgment-seat of Christ—if I am destitute of that spiritual knowledge which is indispensably necessary for the salvation of the soul. They who are taught of God, know and are convinced they can do nothing to obtain eternal life. They know, and believe, that if they were able to rear numerous and magnificent edifices, either for the purposes of piety or of mercy, yea, that if they laid down their lives to feed the poor, or gave the fruit of their body for the sin of the soul, they should infinitely come short of purchasing for themselves salvation—of obtaining acceptance with God, the pardon of sin, or a title to heaven. They look to Jesus alone as "The Lord their righteousness," and to his atonement as the only foundation of their hope. How compassionate is Jesus! He saw us in our sins, in our blood, and in our wretchedness, and came on wings of love for our relief!

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Spirit, one God, we adore thee as the living God. Thou hast in thyself a life uncreated and immutable. Thou art the fountain of all life that exists, from the life of the minutest insect to that of the loftiest archangel.

In thy being thou dost stand alone and independent, possessed of all within thyself which is essential for thy blessedness, while thy purposes are infinitely beyond the control of all creatures.

While we draw near to present our evening prayer, may the garden of our souls be refreshed by the sacred breezes of the Spirit's influences. Awake, O north wind, and come, thou south; blow upon our garden, that the spices thereof may flow out.

We would acknowledge and feel our nothingness, sinfulness, and guilt, in thy presence. We are less than nothing and vanity, and have reason to be unceasingly amazed at thy gracious condescension, in looking on such polluted worms, and permitting them to enjoy intercourse with thyself.

We confess that in Adam our covenant-head we lost a rich inheritance of life and blessedness; but we rejoice that Jesus the second Adam has regained the inheritance. While we have reason to mourn that the wages of sin is death, we have reason to sing for joy, that the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Graciously preserve us from a self-righteous spirit; from imagining that we are ever able by our own works to obtain from God a blessing of such inestimable worth. May we not therefore go about to establish our own righteousness, which is no righteousness, but may we submit with joy to the righteousness of Christ. By faith, O Jesus, may we receive and trust in thee as the Lord our righteousness. Give us the pleasing evidence that we are possessed of that spiritual life on earth, which will be followed by eternal life in heaven. O teach us to love the Lord our God with all our heart, with all our soul, with all our strength, and with all our mind; and our neighbour as ourself. Let love reign in our hearts. O Lord, teach us to long and pray for each other's salvation.

Save the dear children. Make them the early trophies of our Saviour's conquest. Give them now that life of grace which will be followed by a life of glory.

Extend thy mercy to all our relatives and friends. Preserve them and us from the sinful and excessive cares of this life. Like Mary, may we choose the good part, the one thing needful, which is never refused to those who seek it, and which is never lost by those who obtain it. Like Mary, may we sit at Jesus' feet, and learn lessons of humility, of love, of holiness, and faith. We acknowledge thy fatherly and providential goodness manifested to us during this day. May the guilt we have contracted be washed away by the all-prevailing merit of our Saviour's righteousness. Continue thy kindness through the night on which we are entering, and may we be prepared and fitted for the duties of another day. We ask these blessings in the name of Christ, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

_____

-----

ISRAEL'S GOD.

Essex New. Auburn. Cambridge New

C. N.

- 1 THE Lord himself chose Israel's way,
And marked their journeys right;
Gave them a leading cloud by day,
A fiery guide by night.
- 2 They thirst; and waters from the rock
In rich abundance flow,
And, following still the course they took,
Ran all the desert through.
- 3 O wondrous stream! O blessed type
Of ever-flowing grace.
So Christ, our rock, maintains our life
Through all this wilderness. WATTS, Ps. 105.

EXODUS XVII.

The Amalekites overcome, and the Power of Prayer.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

2 Wherefore the people did chide with Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide ye with me? wherefore do ye tempt the LORD?

3 And the people thirsted there for water; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?

4 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river, take in thine hand and go.

6 Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

7 And he called the name of the place Massah, and Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORD, saying, Is the LORD among us, or not?

8 Then came Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

9 And Moses said unto Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

15 And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it JEHOVAH-nissi:

16 For he said, Because the LORD hath sworn that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XVII.—God brought his people Israel into great straits and difficulties that they might feel their dependence upon him and place their confidence in him. In no case, if they had called on God, would help have been refused, or even delayed; but given up to the perverseness of their nature, the hardness of their hearts, and the obstinacy of their wills, they preferred distrust to holy confidence, and unreasonable murmurings to earnest prayer and humble supplications. When saints are called to suffer for the sake of Christ, their Divine Lord considers the injuries done to them as done to himself, and the indignity shown to them as shown to himself. He said in the days of his humbled humanity, "Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these my children, ye have done it unto me." What a striking figure of Christ is the rock Horeb, which was smitten and rent in the wilderness, and which supplied the Israel of God with refreshing water in the desert!

PRAYER.

FATHER of mercies, we desire with holy reverence to assemble around the domestic altar to present our morning sacrifice, and to offer up our adorations and supplications in the name of Christ. Thou art the fountain of life, and the overflowing, the inexhaustible fountain of all those comforts which render life blessed. We thank thee, O God, for those instances of thy providential goodness to Israel of old which thou didst manifest when they were reduced to the greatest straits: In thy mercy thou didst send them water from the rock when they were ready to perish by thirst; and thou didst deliver them from powerful enemies when they were in danger of being destroyed by the ravages of war. We will give thanks to thee for the deliverances accomplished for thy Church in ancient days, for it is good; for thy mercy endureth for ever.

Give us grace, O Lord, to look upon this world as a desert which can yield no supplies for our immortal souls. While multitudes look upon it as their home; may we look upon it as a dry and thirsty land where no water is. We thank God for the waters of salvation. May each member of this family thirst after the waters of the river of life, and may we rejoice with joy unspeakable that there is a river, the streams whereof supply thy people with Divine consolation and grace.

Lord, lead us in the green pastures of Gospel ordinances, and beside the still waters of Gospel grace. We thank thee that thou hast not dealt with us as our iniquities deserved, by sending us to the wilderness of despair, where no waters of salvation flow, where no beam of hope shines, where no sound of mercy is heard, and where no pardons are proclaimed.

Sanctify to us the afflictions of life. Like Moses, may we cry earnestly to God in prayer when the storms of affliction assail us. O may our hopes be firmly placed on Jesus the Divine foundation; then we shall have a resting-place of Divine security, from which no calamities shall ever be able to remove us.

May the Holy Spirit teach us to see in the rock Horeb a type of Jesus, who was smitten by the curse of a fiery law, that streams of mercy might flow forth, to run through the wilderness of this world, for purifying, refreshing, and saving our ruined race. By faith may we believe, O our redeeming Saviour, that thou didst bear our griefs and carry our sorrows; that thou wast stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted; that thou wast wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities.

Convince our dear children that by nature their hearts are hard as adamant, and that thy grace is necessary to soften and change them. O give them new hearts, and put thy Spirit within them.

During another night thou hast preserved us, and to another day thou hast spared our forfeited lives. Accept the thankfulness of our hearts. As an evidence that our expressions of gratitude are sincere, may we serve thee with affectionate fidelity this day. Whatsoever we do, may we do all to the glory of God. Hear us, for Jesus' sake, who is worthy, with the Father and Holy Ghost, to receive glory, honour, and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

THE MISERABLE WORLDLING.

Arundel. Oldham. Tunbridge. Wantage.

C. M.

- 1 DECEIVED souls! who think to find
A solid bliss below:
Bliss! the fair flower of Paradise,
On earth can never grow.
- 2 See how the foolish wretch is pleas'd
To increase his worldly store;
Too scanty now he finds his barns,
And covets room for more.
- 3 What shall I do? distressed he cries:
This scheme will I pursue:
My scanty barns shall now come down,
I'll build them large and new.
- 4 Scarce had he spoke, when, lo! from heaven
The Almighty made reply;
For whom dost thou provide? thou fool!
This night thyself shalt die.

NEEDHAM.

LUKE XI.

Christ's Counsel.

AND he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6 For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him?

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee.

8 I say unto you, though he will not rise and give him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

10 For every one that asketh receiveth: and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

11 If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?

12 Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

LUKE XII.

The Miseries of the Graceless Rich Man.

AND one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.

14 And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?

15 And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

17 And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?

18 And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods.

19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.

20 But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?

21 So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XI., XII.—Earthly friends and human friendship are, in their place, valuable blessings, which call forth our thankfulness to God, from whom all blessings flow. Have we earthly friends? The flame of friendship can only be preserved alive by reciprocal acts of kindness and friendship. There is no friend like Christ: the more we depend upon him the more is he delighted. We may soon exhaust the patience of earthly friends by our importunities; but our numerous, earnest, and long-continued supplications can never displease Jesus. Great is the willingness of earthly parents to listen to the requests of their offspring—the dear objects of their paternal regard; but infinitely more willing is Jesus to lend a loving ear to the cry of his people. May we be preserved from coveting earthly riches, which perish; and may we be taught to covet earnestly the best gifts, namely, a heavenly inheritance, which endures for ever.

PRAYER.

O THOU merciful and prayer-hearing God, we esteem ourselves infinitely honoured in being permitted, at the close of the day, after its duties and engagements, to encompass thine holy altar, and, in the name of Jesus, to present our evening prayer. Great, O Lord, are the works of thy mercy and power, and sought out of all them that take pleasure therein. Teach us graciously to take pleasure in the works of thy mercy; and, like the angels, may we earnestly, yet humbly, look into the mysteries of redeeming grace. Thy work is honourable and glorious; and thy righteousness endureth for ever. The wonderful works of thy mercy shall be remembered to all generations; for thou art gracious and full of compassion.

May the Word we have now read come home to our understanding and heart with irresistible efficacy and power. Thy Word has been the mean of the salvation of myriads; O make it the mean of our salvation. As thy Word and Gospel are the power of God to salvation to those who believe, Lord, give us faith, that it may be the power of God to the salvation of our souls.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the friend of man—as the friend who sticketh closer than any brother. We thank thee for acting the part of a kind friend, in laying down thy life to save us, and in opening up a way by which we may have constant access to a prayer-hearing God. May thy Spirit teach us to pray—to pray with fervency, humility, and persevering importunity. Let us not pray as if we imagined our God was unwilling to hear our supplications; but may we pray under the believing conviction that all our prayers which are agreeable to thy will, and presented with faith in the name of Christ, shall assuredly be answered. When we prostrate ourselves before the throne of grace, in the closet, in the family, or in the sanctuary, may thy promise be ever alive in our believing remembrance: Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

Lord, have mercy on our children. The love of our heart, our concern for their eternal interests, prompt us to pray fervently for their salvation. Give them praying hearts. May they love thy Word, may they hear it, and may they keep it as a sacred treasure.

Lord, deliver us from a covetous, worldly spirit. May we take warning from the rich man in the parable, who amassed an earthly inheritance and lost his soul. Holy Spirit, enable us to lay up a treasure in heaven, where we shall be ever with the Lord.

We express our unworthiness of the mercies of the past day. Lord, accept the tribute of our thanksgiving. May our daily sins be washed away by Jesus' blood. May we lie down upon our beds this night with growing confidence in thy providential goodness, exercising a lively hope in Jesus, our only Saviour, in whose name we present our prayers, and to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, we ascribe the kingdom, power, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

MOUNT SION.

Hollersorth. Worship. Gainsford. Great Milton. c. n.

1 NOT to the terrors of the Lord,
The tempest, fire, and smoke;
Not to the thunder of that word
Which God on Sinai spoke.

2 But we are come to Sion's hill,
The city of our God,
Where mildor words declare his will,
And spread his love abroad.

3 Behold the innumerable host
Of angels clothed in light!
Behold the spirits of the just,
Whose faith is turned to sight!

Watts, 152, B. II.

EXODUS XIX.

God's Message to the People at Sinai.

IN the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

3 And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

4 Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself.

5 Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine:

6 And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him.

8 And all the people answered together, and said, All that the Lord hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord.

9 And the Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the Lord.

10 And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled.

17 And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire: and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly.

19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice.

20 And the Lord came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the Lord called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.

21 And the Lord said unto Moses, Go down, charge the people, lest they break through unto the Lord to gaze, and many of them perish.

22 And let the priests also, which come near to the Lord, sanctify themselves, lest the Lord break forth upon them.

24 And the Lord said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through to come up unto the Lord, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XIX.—Great was the deliverance of Israel from Egyptian bondage; far greater the deliverance of the saints of God from sin's dominion, and from the tyranny of Satan,—the prince of the power of the air. Have we obtained this glorious deliverance?—are the chains of our spiritual slavery burst asunder?—and do we enjoy the holy and blessed liberty of the sons of God? Great is the affection of the eagle, the king of birds, to its offspring. See how it flutters over them with its powerful, outstretched wings; see how it bears up its young upon its wings; and see with what energy it defends them from danger. Here we have an emblem of God's affectionate care of his people. He never withdraws from them his loving, watchful eye: he defends and comforts them with the wings of his almighty power; and on these wings he bears them up and carries them, until, at last, he conveys them to their heavenly home. At Sinai God came to Israel with his law accompanied by thunders and lightnings; now he comes to us in his Gospel accompanied by smiles of love, complacency, and peace.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art to be feared above all gods. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy. May the solemn truths we have now read be instrumental in filling our minds with a filial fear and a holy reverence of thee, O Lord our God.

We acknowledge thine unmerited goodness in protecting and sparing us during the last night. May our bodily rest and refreshment invigorate our minds, and animate us to serve thee, this day, with readiness and joy. Thy hands have made us and fashioned us and preserved us; give us understanding, that we may learn thy commandments. We pray thee, let thy merciful kindness be for our comfort this day, according to the Word thou hast given unto thy servants. Continue with us our temporal blessings. Give us day by day our daily bread. To thee we would present our first offerings—to thee, who sendest thy sun every day to cheer us with his rays, and gladden us with his influence.

We desire with the deepest humility to acknowledge our unworthiness of all the goodness thou hast made to pass before us. From our birth to the present moment thou hast done to us what thou didst to ancient Israel—thou hast borne us up as on eagles' wings. May we be savingly brought to thyself. We have been brought to thy Word, and we have been brought to thy sanctuary: may we in reality be brought to the bosom of thy grace, and may we be encompassed by the everlasting arms of thy mercy. O make thy covenant with us as a family; and may we keep thy covenant: then shall we be a peculiar treasure unto thee. Have mercy upon the inhabitants of our land; turn the hearts of all ranks of men to thyself; teach them to obey thy laws, observe thine ordinances, sanctify thy Sabbath, receive thy Son, and keep thy covenant: then shall our nation be a peculiar treasure unto thee above all people.

May we know savingly what it is to enjoy communion with thee the Father in thy love, with thee the Son in thy grace, and with thee the Spirit in thine influences. Convince us of the necessity of holy and solemn preparation for approaching the Divine presence in the holy ordinances of the Gospel.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the Gospel dispensation, with all its mildness, and all its light. We rejoice that the tremendous terrors of the old dispensation are past, and that our ears are now saluted with the soft, sweet music of the still, small voice of the Gospel.

We pray for the rising race in general, and for the dear children of our family in particular. Great God, now condescend to bless them; and soon may they be made the willing subjects of thy victorious grace.

We ask the pardon of sin, the answer of our humble prayers, and the acceptance of our persons, in the name of Jesus, our only Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

PRINCE JESUS.

Charity. Radiance. Portugal. Rothwell.

L. M.

- 1 EXALTED Prince of life, we own
The royal honours of thy throne;
'Tis fixed by God's almighty hand,
And seraphs bow at thy command.
- 2 Exalted Saviour! we confess
The sovereign triumphs of thy grace;
Where beams of gentle radiance shine,
And temper majesty divine.
- 3 Wide thy resistless sceptre sway,
Till all thine enemies obey;
Wide may thy cross its virtues prove,
And conquer millions by its love.

DODDRIDGE.

LUKE XIII.

Christ preaches Repentance, and mourns over Jerusalem.

THERE were present at that season some that told him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And Jesus answering said unto them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things?

3 I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

4 Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?

5 I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

10 And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath.

11 And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself.

12 And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity.

13 And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

15 The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

17 And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

31 The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence: for Herod will kill thee.

32 And he said unto them, Go ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

33 Nevertheless I must walk to day, and to morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem.

34 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!

35 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XIII.—What an account tyrants have to render at the last day for those wanton deeds of injustice, cruelty, and blood, which rendered them the scourges, torments, and curse of the race of man! We are not to judge of the state of man by the circumstances of their outward lot: God sometimes permits the sun of prosperity to shine with great brightness on the worst of men; and he not unfrequently allows the dearest objects of his love to be enveloped with the darkest clouds of adversity and suffering. Numerous and great are those spiritual and moral infirmities which cleave to us. What reason we have to rejoice that we have a skilful, powerful, and merciful physician, Jesus Christ, who is willing and able to heal all our infirmities, and give us disposition and strength for his service and worship! O may Jesus be the physician of our souls!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art a God of spotless majesty and excellence, and we are vile, polluted worms, infinitely unworthy of being admitted into thy gracious presence.

As a family, we confess our sinfulness. We acknowledge our unbelief, our enmity, our pride, our ignorance, our folly, our carnality, our earthly-mindedness, and our cold and most culpable indifference as to things Divine. Behold, we are vile: what shall we answer thee? With the Psalmist we would confess, We will declare our iniquity, we will be sorry for our sins; we acknowledge our transgressions, and may our sin be ever before our eyes, that we may be humbled in the dust because of our iniquity.

We supplicate repentance. O give us by thy Spirit a knowledge of sin, a loathing of sin, a turning from sin, and sorrow for sin. Teach us the lesson of true repentance—not the repentance of the terrified, despairing slave, but the repentance of the believing soul, which is unto life. Let not our repentance be like the repentance of Judas, but like that of Peter, who went out and wept bitterly. Are there any among us hardened and impenitent? Bring home to their hearts with irresistible power these solemn words: Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. Let their impenitence and hardness remain no longer. Fulfil in their experience that precious promise, They shall return unto me with their whole heart.

We come to thee, O Jesus, with all the infirmities of our souls. Thou art as able to cure the infirmities of the soul as those of the body. We are encouraged to commit our diseased souls into thy hand, and we earnestly pray that thou wouldst deliver us from all the diseases of our corrupted and depraved hearts. Have not some of us been long bound with the chains of guilt and the infirmity of sin? May we be loosed this day from our infirmity, and may we obtain now that liberty of grace which will be followed by enjoyment of glory above.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the glorious things thou hast done for our world in providing a Saviour for our ruined race. We thank thee for the glorious things thou hast done for our land and nation in giving us the ordinances of salvation. We praise thee that in a peculiar respect our land is blessed of heaven, that Abraham's God is known in the midst of us, and that not a few of our rulers and legislators have acknowledged the mediatorial sovereignty of Jesus.

Make our dear children humble penitents at Jesus' feet. Convince them how dreadful it is to live in sin, and how awful and affecting to perish at last in the prison of hell. Teach them by thy Spirit to flee to Jesus, and to escape for their life.

Bless to us the events, the duties, the comforts, and the trials of the past day. We thank thee, O gracious Father, for thy continued goodness. Let no evil befall us this night. When awake, may our thoughts and desires ascend to thyself and thy heaven; and when asleep, may we enjoy the care of thy watchful eye; for the sake of Jesus, who was once dead, but is now alive again, and will live for ever and ever, Amen.

OUR DUTY TO GOD.

Henry Tracy. Colchester. Salem. Wilkins.

C. M.

- 1 THAT God who made the world on high,
And air, and earth, and sea,
Own as thy God; and to his name
In homage bow the knee.
- 2 Lot not a shape, which hands have wrought
Of wood, or clay, or stone,
Be deemed thy God; nor think him like Aught thou hast seen or known.
- 3 Take not in vain the name of God;
Nor must thou ever dare
To make thy falsehoods pass for truth,
By his dread name to swear.

GIBBONS.

EXODUS XX.

The Moral Law.

AND God spake all these words, saying,
2 I am the LORD thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

4 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth:

5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them:
for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;

6 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me,
and keep my commandments.

7 Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain; for the Lord thy God will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

8 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy.

9 Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work:

10 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the LORD thy God:
in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates:

11 For in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore
the LORD blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

12 Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

13 Thou shalt not kill.

14 Thou shalt not commit adultery.

15 Thou shalt not steal.

16 Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.

17 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

18 And all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking:
and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

19 And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XX.—Unless we look on God as our God and Father in Christ, we can never yield a loving and faithful obedience to his laws. He accepts of no obedience, unless it is the obedience of love—the obedience of sons, and not the obedience of slaves. May we be preserved from every description of idolatry, and may Jesus reign superlatively and for ever on the throne of our affection. If we are Christ's, God's name will be dear to our hearts, and we will ever think of it with reverence and delight. What a blessing is the Sabbath—a manifestation of God's benevolence as much as of his wisdom! May the Sabbath be ever our delight, the holy of the Lord, and honourable. Does the law proclaim relative duties?

May we be faithful in their performance. According to God's kind, wise, and merciful law, may we be merciful, chaste, encroach on no man's temporal interests or claims, protect our neighbour's good name, and rejoice in all he possesses, as the rich gifts of Providence.
Have we felt the convincing power of the Holy Spirit in bringing the law home with efficacy to our conscience? Have we felt the thundering terrors of the Lord, and the indispensable necessity of being introduced into the covenant of grace, that we may be delivered from the anathemas of the covenant of works? Then what reason have we to sing hallelujahs of praise!

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and most mighty Jehovah, thou art the legislator of the universe, and thou art the God of all the kingdoms of the earth. Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, and thou art exalted as head above all. Thy throne is in heaven: thine eyes behold, and thine cyclids try, the children of men. Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever, and the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre. How different is thy throne from the thrones of earthly kings; while injustice, cruelty, and blood are often the foundation of the thrones of earthly rulers, justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne, and mercy and truth go before thy face.

We rejoice that thou art not only seated upon the throne of essential and universal empire, but that, in the Person of the Son, thou art seated upon the throne of grace. As a family, we draw near unto this throne, at the commencement of another day, to present our morning prayer. We thank our God that, in the enjoyment of life, health, and reason, we have been spared through another night, and that, with the return of the morning sun, we are enabled, in the enjoyment of all these mercies, to surround the family altar. May the return of the morning's light remind us of thee, O Jesus, as the bright and morning star. We seek thy gracious light, while passing over the sea of life. Be thou our light, our guide, our all.
Cause every dark foreboding to disappear, and through the storms and dangers which are before us may we be led in triumph to the port of peace at last!

We thank thee, O Lord, that in delivering thy laws to man, thou didst most graciously declare thyself to be the Lord their God. Be to us as a family through Jesus Christ, the Lord our God. Graciously enable us to renounce every idol that would usurp in our souls that place which is due to Christ alone.

We thank thee for appointing the manner of thy worship, and that it is not left to the opinion, contrivance, or authority of man. Give us grace to walk in all thine ordinances, as thou hast appointed them in thy sacred Word. Preserve us from the neglect or irregular observance of thine ordinances. Let thy Sabbath be increasingly sanctified in our land and throughout the earth. Make us faithful in performing relative duties.

Teach our beloved children to honour and obey their father and mother, that their days may be long on the land which the Lord their God giveth them.

Give us grace to cultivate kind and merciful dispositions.
Preserve us from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul. In all things may we be willing to live honestly. Defend us from the falsehood of others, and prevent us from falling into falsehood ourselves. Suffer not the love of the world to take possession of our hearts, but may we covet earnestly the best gift.
Teach our servants to honour all thy laws.

May thy law be our guide this day, and every day. Give us thy pardoning mercy, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST.

Power's Melody. Warwick. Sand Down. c. m.

- 1 HOW sweet and awful is the place
With Christ within the doors,
While everlasting love displays
The choicest of her stores!
- 2 Here every bowel of our God
With soft compassion rolls,
Here peace and pardon bought with blood
Is food for dying souls.
- 3 While all our hearts and all our songs
Join to admire the feast,
Each of us cry with thankful tongues,
Lord, why was I a guest? Watts, 13, B. III.

LUKE XIV.

Humility. Parable of the Supper.

AND he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms; saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

10 But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room; that when he that bade thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.

11 For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

12 Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:

14 And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

15 And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

16 Then said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and bade many:

17 And sent his servant at supper time to say to them that were bidden, Come; for all things are now ready.

18 And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XIV.—True humility is the true loveliness of the renewed soul, and a grace which will shine with peculiar and unfading lustre “when suns shall rise and set no more.” Great honour awaits the humble followers of the Lamb of God. In this world they are looked upon by the unrighteous and profane as “men of low degree;” but in heaven they shall sit beside Jesus on his throne, and shine like the brightness of the firmament for ever and ever. If we breathe the Spirit of Christ, we will follow his example in considering the case of poor saints, and make them the objects of our special care. Acts of mercy to them Jesus considers as done to himself. Let us praise God for the Gospel feast, and let us constantly partake of its dainties with thankfulness and joy!

PRAYER.

FATHER of all mercies, we bow ourselves before thee at the close of another day, in the name of Jesus, our Surety and Saviour. Unto thee, O Lord, we would lift up our souls; thou art our God, early will we seek thee; our father's God, and we will exalt thee. We adore thee in thy benevolence manifested in thy providence, in supplying the wants of all thy creatures, in causing thy sun to shine upon the evil and the good, and in making thy rain to descend upon the just and the unjust. But more especially we adore the sovereign and gracious displays of thy goodness in the plan of salvation by the righteousness of thy well-beloved Son. In thy boundless love thou didst pity wretched, dying men; and we praise thee that thou didst send the son of thy love to give them life, salvation, and immortality.

In thy kind providence we are brought in safety to the close of another day. This day we have drank of thy providential streams, and we have received our food from thy providential storehouse. We place at thy feet the short-comings and offences of the day, and we supplicate pardon through the merit of our Saviour's blood. We rejoice that this sacred fountain is ever open to the guilty and polluted. Black and polluted with sin, we would now fly to this purifying fountain. Wash us, O Jesus—wash us, or we die.

Take us under thy protection this night. We are safe in the arms of thy mercy, to which we now commit our bodies and our souls. May we be graciously spared to another day, and do thou cause us to hear the voice of joy and gladness.

We would earnestly ask thy blessing on the reading of the Scriptures. Thy Word is incorruptible seed; O may it take deep root in our hearts, and bring forth fruit in our lives.

Deliver us from the sin of pride, and may we be humble disciples, instructed at the feet of Christ. Give us grace to obey that wise and gracious command, Be ye clothed with humility. May we show that we are adorned with humility in our intercourse with the world, and in particular in our intercourse with thy people. Throughout the whole of life may we follow the apostolic advice, Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another. Lord, enrich our hearts with merciful dispositions, and may we ever feel for the sufferings of the poor, and particularly for the poor of thy flock. May we know the refined delight of distributing to the necessities of the saints.

We thank thee, most merciful God, for the invitations of the Gospel. May all of us accept of its invitations, and no longer resist the kind and persuasive calls of mercy.

Have mercy on perishing sinners. Make thy ministers successful in persuading thousands by a holy compulsion to flee to Jesus, and enter into the building of mercy, that thy house may be filled.

May our children hear the voice, the calls, and the invitations of mercy. May they and we sit down and partake of thy Gospel feast on earth, and at last sit down in heaven at the feast of the great King.

We ask every blessing for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

PRAYER TO THE GOD OF PEACE.

Salisbury Place. Serenity. Bath Chapel. James'. C. M.

- 1 NOW may the God of peace and love,
Who from the imprisoning grave
Restored the Shepherd of the sheep,
Omnipotent to save;
- 2 Through the rich merits of that blood
Which he on Calvary spilt,
To make the eternal covenant sure
On which our hopes are built;
- 3 Perfect our souls in every grace
To accomplish all his will,
And all that's pleasing in his sight
Inspire us to fulfil!

BIRFON, 390.

EXODUS XXIII.

Precepts and Promises.

THOU shalt not raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

2 Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment:

3 Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man in his cause.

9 Also thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20 Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries.

23 For mine Angel shall go before thee, and bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do after their works: but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

25 And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren, in thy land: the number of thy days I will fulfil.

27 I will send my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their backs unto thee.

28 And I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite, from before thee.

29 I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And I will set thy bounds from the Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand; and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

32 Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, it will surely be a snare unto thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXIII.—Satan is a liar, and the father of liars; and it is humiliating in the extreme to consider how lying, falsehood, and deceit are incorporated with our whole nature, and how soon we went astray, speaking lies and doing wickedly!—thus showing that we lost in Adam the lovely image of the God of truth, and that our moral and intellectual nature has received in its place the image of that foul spirit, who is the fountain of sin and the source of misery. Unspeakingly varied were the sufferings of Christ; and the wounds inflicted by the lying tongue, and by the reproaches of wicked men, were peculiarly severe and overwhelming. "Reproach broke his heart." Before the tribunal of Pilate false witnesses rose up against Christ, cast on him the vilest aspersions, and furnished an affecting illustration of the descriptive prophecy of our Saviour's sufferings: "They gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and roaring lion. For dogs have compassed me; the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me." The saints of God know that they are pilgrims and strangers on earth, and they also know and rejoice that they are under the guidance and protection of Jesus, the angel of the covenant, whom the Father has given as their "witness, leader, and commander."

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious God, we desire in our family capacity to call upon thee in the all-prevailing name of Jesus, and to adore thee as infinitely worthy to be praised. Because thou hast promised to be the hope of thy people and the strength of Israel, we are encouraged to prostrate ourselves before thy throne, and to lift up our eyes to thee for mercy and forgiveness. In the multitude of thy mercy we assemble in this our domestic sanctuary; and in thy fear we desire to worship toward thy heavenly temple.

We adore thee as a God of truth. Great is thy faithfulness, and lying lips are an abomination to the Lord. We would mourn over our hypocrisy, falsehood, and deceit. At a very early period of our lives we went astray, speaking lies and doing wickedly. And, alas! in the more advanced period of our lives we have by our unbelief called God a liar. Amazing grace, that thou shouldst have borne with our provocations, and that deserved punishment was not inflicted on our guilty heads!

Preserve our dear children from lying lips. May they love the truth, and at no time may they be tempted to depart from it. Affect them deeply with a sense of the eternal misery of liars, who shall be cast into the lake that burns with fire and brimstone.

Lord, preserve us from the corrupted maxims and from the ensnaring example of wicked men. May we never follow the multitude to do evil. Give us grace to avoid the broad way, in which so many are to be found travelling to perdition. May we love and frequent the narrow way, in which thy chosen ones are found travelling, under the direction of Jesus, to their heavenly home.

Holy and gracious Spirit, write the laws of the Lord our God upon the table of our heart. Teach us to love them because they are wise, merciful, and just. Influenced by filial love, may we ever yield obedience to the commandments of our Father in heaven, not as a covenant of works, but as a rule of life in the hands of a Mediator. We praise thee for all the benefit we have derived as individuals, as a family, as a church, and as a nation, from thy blessed and Divine precepts. And we present our thanksgivings for the salutary influence of thy Gospel and its ordinances in these lands. O let this influence be extended over the whole earth, that the race of men may become one spiritual family of love under Jesus, our common Saviour and Lord. Give to us and our relatives, and the congregation of which we form a part, a lively faith in the Gospel of Christ, exemplified by a ready and constant obedience to his laws. Though our service cannot purchase thy favour, we praise thee that thou hast delivered precious promises to those who serve thee. May our obedience be filial and evangelical.

This day may our lives show that we believe thy Gospel and that we love thy laws. Let thy care, which we have experienced during the last night, animate us in thy service. Graciously answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Redeemer. Amen.

GOD'S DELIGHT IN THE RETURNING PRODIGAL.
Both Ariocula. Foundry. Melancton. Ulverson. L. M.

- 1 WHO can describe the joys that rise
 Through all the courts of Paradise,
 To see a prodigal return,
 To see an hoir of glory born?
- 2 With joy the Father doth approve
 The fruit of his eternal love;
 The Son with joy looks down, and sees
 The purchase of his agonies.
- 3 The Spirit takes delight to view
 The holy soul he formed anew;
 And saints and angels join to sing
 The growing empire of their King. WATTS, 101, B. I.

LUKE XIV.

Loving and serving Christ.

AND there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them, 26 If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.

28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?

29 Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him, 30 Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish.

31 Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?

32 Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace.

33 So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

34 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned?

35 It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

LUKE XV.

Parables of the Lost Sheep and the Lost Piece of Silver.

THEN drew near unto him all the publicans and sinners for to hear him.

2 And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.

3 And he spake this parable unto them, saying,

4 What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.

7 I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.

8 Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?

9 And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost.

10 Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XIV., XV.—Earthly parents and friends have claims upon our affection, but the claims of Jesus for our heart are infinite, and with which no others must be brought into competition. What reason have we to mourn over the coldness and the weakness of our love to him, whose love to us was stronger than death, and which the cold waters of death could not quench! We should give ourselves no rest till we can say, with the unfeigned sincerity of the holy Apostle, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that we love thee." What a blessing!—Jesus is the friend of publicans and sinners. The very worst of characters should excite our pity, and we should employ means, merciful and mild, to persuade them to enter God's sanctuary, and listen to the alluring accents of the Gospel of peace. This is following the example of Christ, who came from the lofty heavens—yea, from his Father's bosom—to seek and to save that which is lost. To be instrumental in saving a soul is a greater honour than conquering a kingdom, while it heightens the melody of the songs of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire to draw near to thy throne of grace, under the deep impression of thine omniscience as a heart-searching God. May we feel this in all our religious observances. Hell and destruction are before thine eyes: how much more the hearts of the children of men!

We rejoice that thou art a God of the greatest compassion, and of the most unbounded mercy. We will sing of thy mercy, as well as of judgment; for thy mercy shall be built up for ever.

Lord, fill our hearts with love to Christ. O give us this rich inheritance, which we would value more than all the mental accomplishments which human reason can impart. Teach us to forsake all things for Christ, should Providence require us to make such a sacrifice. And if Providence require no such sacrifice, may everything on earth, even the most valuable, compared with Christ appear less than nothing and vanity.

Holy Saviour, captivate the affections of our dear children. O may the sacred fire of Divine love be kindled in their bosoms, never to be extinguished.

Holy Spirit, may we belong to those who are the salt of the earth. O let not our profession be like the salt which has lost its savour. May the salt of our profession be accompanied with the salt of grace. Suffer us not to be satisfied with the mere casket of outward piety, but may we earnestly covet the jewel of inward grace. Give us that imperishable seed in our heart which will spring up into life eternal.

We adore thee, blessed Jesus, as our compassionate Saviour. Infinite is thy love, and inconceivable thy pity, in seeking out the lost sinner, wandering far from God, and travelling the downward road to endless woe. We praise thee that thou didst come to the wilderness of this world, to seek the lost sheep of our fallen race. If there are any among us whom thou hast graciously sought in thy tender mercy, and whom thou hast graciously found, we would magnify and praise thy name. What are we that thou shouldst have arrested us in our mad career, and prevented us from sinking in the lowest hell, under the weight of our accumulated guilt? Lord, we desire to pray, with all the earnestness of our soul, that each one now prostrate before thee may have reason thus to utter the voice of thanksgiving: Jesus, when I was a wanderer and a stranger far from God, thou didst seek me, and find me; thou didst interpose with thy blood, and save my soul from danger and perdition.

Father of mercies, accept the tribute of our gratitude for the tokens of thy kindness during the past day and the past week. Thy blessings have continually descended upon us like refreshing showers. May we be refreshed this night by natural repose, that our minds may be prepared in some measure to enter upon the spiritual services of the approaching hallowed day. All that we ask is for Jesus' sake, the resurrection and the life. Amen.

THIRTEENTH WEEK.—SABBATH MORNING.

PSALM XXXIII.

Devices. Irish.

c. x.

- 1 REJOICE, ye righteous, in the Lord,
This work belongs to you :
Sing of his name, his ways, his word,
How holy, just, and true!
- 2 His mercy and his righteousness
Let heaven and earth proclaim ;
His works of nature and of grace
Reveal his wondrous name.
- 3 His wisdom and almighty word
The heavenly arches spread ;
And by the Spirit of the Lord
Their shining hosts were made.

Watts, Ps. 33, p. 1.

PSALM XXXIII.

Reasons for praising God.

REJOICE in the LORD, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright.

2 Praise the LORD with harp: sing unto him with the psaltery and an instrument of ten strings.

3 Sing unto him a new song; play skilfully with a loud noise.

4 For the word of the LORD is right; and all his works are done in truth.

5 He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the LORD.

6 By the word of the LORD were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth.

7 He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap: he layeth up the depth in storehouses.

8 Let all the earth fear the LORD: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him.

9 For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast.

10 The LORD bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect.

11 The counsel of the LORD standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations.

12 Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD; and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance.

13 The LORD looketh from heaven; he beholdeth all the sons of men.

14 From the place of his habitation he looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

15 He fashioneth their hearts alike; he considereth all their works.

16 There is no king saved by the multitude of an host: a mighty man is not delivered by much strength.

17 An horse is a vain thing for safety: neither shall he deliver any by his great strength.

18 Behold, the eye of the LORD is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy;

19 To deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine.

20 Our soul waiteth for the LORD: he is our help and our shield.

21 For our heart shall rejoice in him, because we have trusted in his holy name.

22 Let thy mercy, O LORD, be upon us, according as we hope in thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXIII.—True religion is the fountain of true joy; and true believers never act more in character than when they are employed in sweetly proclaiming Jehovah's praise. The word and works of God, the loveliness of his moral excellence, the unlimited abundance of his goodness, and the stupendous acts of his power in creation and providence, furnish the richest materials for the melodious songs of the redeemed. My soul, cultivate a holy reverence of God, by thinking of his almighty power, his unerring and influential wisdom, and his immutable purposes. The gracious smiles of God alone can render a nation truly great. Though God is infinitely exalted, he most minutely observes and weighs the designs and actions of men. If God is not on our side, mighty armies can afford us no defence. If God is on our side, we can defy earth and hell. O how unspeakably God honours the faith, the hope, the confidence, and the prayers of his people! He watches over them with parental care; when brought to the verge of the grave he restores them; in the day of great extremity he supplies their wants, he spreads over them the shield of his love, he fills their hearts with joy, and crowns them with the diadem of his mercy.

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and gracious God, we desire with reverence and joyfulness to approach thy throne on the morning of thy sacred, hallowed day. Though unworthy ourselves, we draw near with confidence, relying on the worthiness of Christ, through whom alone we look for pardon and acceptance.

We acknowledge, O Jesus, thy mediatorial dominion. As a family, we desire to touch thy sceptre. Speedily extend thy gracious authority over the globe; then shall the earth be full of thy saving goodness. By means of a preached Gospel, may Jews and Gentiles, may the whole earth, fear the Lord, and all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of thee.

We rejoice that nothing can prevent the accomplishment of thy gracious purposes, concerning the imperishable fame of thy Son, and the lasting prosperity of thy Church. Thy counsel standeth for ever, and the thoughts of thy heart to all generations.

Teach us to feel the constant impression, that we are under the observation of thine omniscient eye. Though thou art surrounded with all the inconceivable glory of heaven, thou dost look down from the lofty eminence of thy majesty, beholding all the children of men.

In particular, enable our beloved children never to forget that thou, God, seest them. May they remember it when they are in danger of being led away by the corruptions of their own hearts.

We thank our God for the rest and preservation afforded during the past night, and for the animating prospect of engaging in the solemnities of thy house. Prepare us, O Lord, for entering thy sacred courts. May we go to thy house from proper motives, to hear what God the Lord will say to us. O speak to us a word of power; speak to us that peace which passeth all understanding. Have mercy on thy ministers; give them compassion for the perishing souls of men, and with holy earnestness may they travail as in birth for their salvation. May our beloved minister come to us this day in the fulness of the Gospel of peace; and may the earthen vessel be filled with the heavenly treasure. May our congregation be refreshed with the dew of heavenly grace.

Have mercy on our rulers, and give them the robe of righteousness, a robe infinitely more glorious than the robes of kings.

Make all our universities and schools sacred means in the hand of God for the diffusion of Gospel knowledge, and, at the same time, nurseries for thy Church.

Revive the hearts of the afflicted who cannot assemble in thy house of prayer. In private may their soul wait for the Lord: then thou wilt be their help and shield.

O bless the churches with the descent of the Holy Ghost; then there will be a shaking among the dry bones in our valley of vision. Bend the heavens, and come down. Let thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, according as we hope in thee. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayer, for the sake of Jesus, who hast taught us thus to pray:

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE YOUNG INVITED TO PRAISE.

Kerruell. Piety. Newbury. London.

c. x.

- 1 COME, children, learn to fear the Lord,
And that your days be long,
Let not a false or spiteful word
Be found upon your tongue.
- 2 Depart from mischief, practise love,
Pursue the works of peace;
So shall the Lord your ways approve,
And set your souls at ease.
- 3 What though the sorrows here they taste
Are sharp and tedious too,
The Lord, who saves them all at last,
Is their supporter now.

Watts, Ps. 34, p. 11.

PSALM XXXIV.

God's Care of his People.

I WILL bless the LORD at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth.

2 My soul shall make her boast in the LORD: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad.

3 O magnify the LORD with me, and let us exalt his name together.

4 I sought the LORD, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears.

5 They looked unto him, and were lightened: and their faces were not ashamed.

6 This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles.

7 The angel of the LORD encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.

8 O taste and see that the LORD is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him.

9 O fear the LORD, ye his saints: for there is no want to them that fear him.

10 The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger: but they that seek the LORD shall not want any good thing.

11 Come, ye children, hearken unto me: I will teach you the fear of the LORD.

12 What man is he that desireth life, and loveth many days, that he may see good?

13 Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile.

14 Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.

15 The eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry.

16 The face of the LORD is against them that do evil, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.

17 The righteous cry, and the LORD heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles.

18 The LORD is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit.

19 Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the LORD delivereth him out of them all.

20 He keepeth all his bones: not one of them is broken.

21 Evil shall slay the wicked: and they that hate the righteous shall be desolate.

22 The LORD redeemeth the soul of his servants: and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXIV.—A believer is never without abundant reason for praising God! and when his graces are in exercise, he not only engages himself, but affectionately invites others to unite with him in this heavenly employment. How delightfully secure and blessed is the state, and how delicious the enjoyment and happiness, of those who wrestle with God by believing prayer, and who have tasted that God is gracious! Angels are their guards, and they are admitted at last into that heavenly world, where the sorrows of earth are for ever unknown. How unspeakably valuable is the fear of God! it is associated with an interest in the stores of providence, and in the treasures of grace. O may this fear be mine. When possessed by the young, it is followed by a rich retinue of the greatest blessings: a sanctified tongue, a holy life, the smiles of Jesus, and the answer of prayers. O what inestimable blessings are these! Ungodly man, none of these blessings are thine, while your continued impenitence exposes you to irremediable perdition. Does the godly man enjoy God's cares? Shall he triumphantly survive every affliction? Has he the fellowship and protection of God? In times of danger is he specially preserved? Does God put the mark of his displeasure on all his enemies? And will he translate his soul at last to the abodes of celestial peace? O, then, let all of us taste and see that God is good!

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, thou art the only object of religious worship, and thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day. When we take a review of the blessings and privileges of this thy day, which we have enjoyed in common with thousands of our race, we desire to take up the animating language of the Psalmist into our lips: We will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall be continually in our mouth. O magnify the Lord with us, and let us exalt his name together. We sought the Lord in his sanctuary; he heard us, and delivered us from all our fears.

We adore and praise thee for the special and paternal care thou dost exercise over thy children. Thine eyes are upon the righteous, and thine ears are open to their cry. When they cry unto thee, thou dost hear their voice, and they are delivered out of all their troubles. Thou dost redeem the soul of thy servants; and none of them that trust in thee shall ever be desolate.

Holy Spirit, enable us, with emotions of unfeigned gratitude, to acknowledge our thankfulness for the mercies of this thy Sabbath. For the blessings of the closet, for the blessings of the domestic altar, and for the blessings of the public and sacred sanctuary, we praise thee. We thank God for enjoying another opportunity of mingling with his people, and uniting with them in the sublime and refreshing ordinances of our holy faith. How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts! Truly a day in thy courts is better than a thousand.

We acknowledge, O Lord, the numerous imperfections, blemishes, and sins which cleave to our holy services. We have reason to blush and tremble, when we think of the irreverence, carelessness, and indifference which we exemplified in thy sanctuary. We implore forgiveness, through the merit of our Saviour's blood.

Bless a preached Gospel in all the churches. May the seed which has been sown be accompanied by the power of the Holy Spirit: then shall many be added to the family of Christ. We thank God for any good which has been effected this day. If any captive has been set free, if any dead Lazarus has been raised to life, we ascribe glory and praise to the Divine Spirit, whose power alone can produce such transcendent effects.

We thank our God for the assistance which has been afforded to the ministers of salvation, and in particular to thy servant who has dispensed among us the oracles of Divine truth.

Sanctify to us as a family the preaching of the everlasting Gospel, and make our family a little church.

May our dear children love the joyful sound, may they believe it, and through its instrumentality may they be brought into a state of grace, and afterwards into a state of glory.

Lord, make our family, and all the families with which we are connected, holy families, and at last may we form a part of the family in the New Jerusalem above.

Watch over us this night, hear our supplications, and remove our guilt, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD'S GRACIOUS PRESENCE.

Danfield. Middleton. Ryland. Vermont.

S. M.

- 1 MY God, my life, my love,
To thee, to thee I call;
I cannot live if thou remove,
For thou art all in all.
- 2 Thy shining grace can cheer
This dungeon where I dwell;
'Tis paradise when thou art here,
If thou depart 't is hell.
- 3 The smilings of thy face,
How amiable they are!
'T is heaven to rest in thine embrace,
And no where else but there. WATTS, 93, B. 11.

EXODUS XXIV.

Moses called to God on the Mount.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the Lord, thou, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off.

2 And Moses alone shall come near the Lord: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him.

3 And Moses came and told the people all the words of the Lord, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, All the words which the Lord hath said will we do.

4 And Moses wrote all the words of the Lord, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

5 And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt offerings, and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the Lord.

6 And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basins; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

7 And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient.

8 And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the Lord hath made with you concerning all these words.

9 Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel:

10 And they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness.

11 And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also they saw God, and did eat and drink.

12 And the Lord said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

13 And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

14 And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

15 And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered the mount.

16 And the glory of the Lord abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

17 And the sight of the glory of the Lord was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel.

18 And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount; and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXIV.—How infinitely kind and condescending is God; he invites us to come and enjoy fellowship with himself! When believers ascend the mount of ordinances, and find Christ, whom their souls love, their enjoyment is the foretaste of heavenly bliss. Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, saw Israel's God, and were miraculously strengthened to behold the uncreated light which emanated from the Most High! Are we redeemed by the atonement of Christ? Are we sprinkled with the blood of his boundless merit? Are we born again? Are we washed with the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost? Are we united to Christ, as the branches are united to the vine? And are we honoured with the adoption of sons? Then we too shall see God, and we shall be ever with the Lord.

PRAYER.

ETERNAL and divine Jehovah, before entering upon the business of another day, and the secular engagements of another week, we would humbly ask intercourse with thee our God, in the holy services of the domestic altar. Gracious Spirit, vouchsafe thy blessed aid, without which the desires of our heart can never ascend before the throne of God.

How infinitely glorious art thou, Lord God of Israel! Great is the glory of the Lord. We adore thee in thy condescension and grace, for manifesting thy glory to Moses on the mount, when under thy feet appeared, as it were, the paved work of shining sapphire-stone, the clearness of which surpassed the splendour of the heavens. O may we see thy glory as a God of grace; and, when we die, may we be admitted into the celestial mansions, to behold thy unveiled glory for ever.

If there are any now before thee without thy saving grace, may they remember that to those who die impenitent thy glory shall be as devouring fire. O Lord our God, who can stand before the glory of thine incensed justice? Who can abide the fierceness of thine anger? Hide us, O Jesus, in the robe of thy righteousness; then the dazzling brightness of Divine justice shall prove to us through all eternity a source of never-ceasing joy.

May our beloved children be taught by thy grace to employ their youthful tongues in speaking of the glory of thy kingdom. When we are numbered with the dead, may they make known to the succeeding generation the Saviour's mighty acts and the majesty of his kingdom.

Lord, we praise thee that, as Moses was invited to come up to the mount of God, we also are invited to draw near to thy gracious presence, to hear thy voice, and to receive the blessings of our Saviour's purchase.

Lord, give us faith to believe the invitation—give us faith to obey it. O that each one of us may be enabled now to respond to thy merciful call; O Jesus, we would come at thy gracious command, with faith, humility, zeal, and hope. We would commit our souls to thy hand, that thou mayst, in thy great mercy, mould them and guide them according to thy gracious will.

Assist us, O Lord, in all the duties of the day and engagements of the week. May we be resolved, in the strength of thy promised grace, to do justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with our God. May we say with ancient Israel, All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient. Holy Spirit, impress this resolution with sacred solemnity upon our hearts; and all our days may we walk in the ordinances and commandments of the Lord blameless.

May our family, our persons, our services, our relatives, our servants, and our congregation, be all sprinkled with the blood of Christ. Through his most blessed intercession may our prayers be accepted by our God. We present our thanks for the repose and protection of the past night, and for the continuance of reason and of health. Hear us, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

THE RETURNING PRODIGAL.

Colchester. Kennington. Michael's. Hammond's. C. M.

- 1 BEHOLD the wretch whose lust and wine
Had wasted his estate,
He begs a share among the swine,
To taste the husks they eat!
- 2 'I die with hunger here, (he cries,)
I starve in foreign lands,
My father's house has large supplies,
And bounteous are his hands.
- 3 'I'll go, and with a mournful tongue
Fall down before his face,
Father, I've done thy justice wrong,
Nor can deserve thy grace.'

WATTS, 123, B. J.

LUKE XV.

Parable of the Prodigal Son.

AND he said, A certain man had two sons:
12 And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

13 And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

17 And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!

18 I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him,
Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee,

19 And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22 But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet:

23 And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry:

24 For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard musick and dancing.

26 And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.

28 And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and intreated him.

29 And he answering said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment: and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends:

30 But as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

32 It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad:
for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XV.—What a valuable portion has God given us as our God and our Father! He has given us reason, and raised us to an height infinitely superior to the beasts which perish.
He has given us a nature that is spiritual. This nature he has impressed with immortality. What a rich inheritance is this! He has given us more still. He has given us a nature moral and intellectual, which, in our primitive innocence and perfection, was capable of knowing, loving, glorifying, and enjoying himself. O what a valuable portion! Alas, we became spiritual prodigals, and we lost our all.
But the tender mercy of our God is infinite. Through Christ, he is willing to restore us to his favour and give us an inheritance which shall endure for ever!

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Jehovah, we desire, at the close of another day, to prostrate ourselves as a worshipping family before thy throne, to acknowledge thy greatness and goodness, to confess our unworthiness, and to implore thy mercy. We would extol thee our God, O King, O King, and bless thy name for ever and ever. Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised, and his greatness is unsearchable. We rejoice that one generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

Every day, every moment, there is an increase of thy mercies. We thank God for the blessings of the past day, for our bodily health, our mental tranquillity, our domestic and relative comfort. We praise thee that hitherto our bread has been given us, and our water has been sure. Above all, we thank thee that the stream of thy saving mercy, proceeding from the rock Christ, still continues to follow us in the wilderness of this world. All the way may we drink of its refreshing waters, till at last we reach the paradise of bliss.

As thou didst place a hedge of protection around thy servant Job, may a hedge of thy special care be placed around us as a family this night, and around all the families with which we are connected.

Gracious and Divine Spirit, sanctify to us the Word now read. Make it instrumental in bringing our ways to our remembrance, humbling us under a sense of our sinfulness, and in turning our feet unto thy testimonies. Like the penitent prodigal when he came to himself, may we make haste, and delay not to keep thy commandments.

We confess that by nature and practice we have been prodigals: we left thee our Father and our God; we turned our back on thy counsels and reproofs; we preferred the service of Satan to the honour, the comfort, and the privileges of our Father's house; we involved ourselves in all the misery and disgrace of sin; and unless thy grace had touched our hearts, none of us had ever returned to thee our God.

*Have mercy on our beloved offspring. O convince them that they are by nature prodigals and wanderers from God.
Open their eyes to see their sin and danger. Thou merciful Saviour, follow them with thy compassion, touch their hearts, and save their souls.*

Have mercy on such of our acquaintances, relatives, and friends, as are still resembling the poor prodigal, wandering far from thee. Alas, that they should any longer continue to prefer the vile husks of sin to the pure delights of holiness.
O enable them by the Spirit to resolve to return to their God and Saviour. May they say, We will arise, and return to our Father, and say unto him, We have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight. O bring forth the best robe and put it on them, and may they no longer remain in the rags and wretchedness of sin.

Hear the voice of our supplication, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

JESUS THE FOUNTAIN.

Founding. Refuge. Amara. Rocks.

L. H.

- 1 BLEST Jesus, source of grace divine,
What soul-refreshing streams are thine
O bring these healing waters nigh,
Or we must droop, and fall, and die.
- 2 No traveller through desert lands,
Midst scorching suns, and burning sands,
More needs the current to obtain,
Or so enjoy refreshing rain.
- 3 Our longing souls aloud would sing,
Spring up, celestial Fountain, spring!
To a redundant river flow,
And cheer this thirsty land below.

DODDRIDGE.

EXODUS XXXI.

Bezaleel and Aholiab qualified for the Work of the Tabernacle.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 See, I have called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri,
the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah:

3 And I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship,

4 To devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,

5 And in cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship.

6 And I, behold, I have given with him Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan: and in the hearts of all that are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee;

7 The tabernacle of the congregation, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy seat that is thereupon, and all the furniture of the tabernacle,

8 And the table and his furniture, and the pure candlestick with all his furniture, and the altar of incense,

9 And the altar of burnt offering with all his furniture, and the laver and his foot,

10 And the cloths of service, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office,

11 And the anointing oil, and sweet incense for the holy place:
according to all that I have commanded thee shall they do.

12 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the LORD that doth sanctify you.

14 Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death:
for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

15 Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, holy to the LORD: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

18 And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communicating with him upon mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXI.—Bezaleel signifies "under God's shadow:" may it be our privilege ever to enjoy the gracious shadow of the Divine protection and regard. Jesus is the shadow of his people: O what a shadow! He is "a hiding-place from the wind and a covert from the tempest, and the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Varied and great were the gifts and attainments of Bezaleel, in preparing and fashioning all that was necessary for completing the ancient tabernacle where God was worshipped, and where his glory shone between the cherubim. May we not look upon him as typical of Jesus, who, in his humanity, was filled with the Holy Ghost, and enriched with every grace, by which he was qualified for building up his Church as a spiritual temple for God, where praise waiteth for him, and where he shines forth in all the splendour of his mercy and grace? The tabernacle raised by Bezaleel—the type—is no more; but the blessed spiritual temple which is roaring by Jesus, the great Antitype, shall endure for ever.

PRAYER.

GLORY to thy name, O Lord, that, with the returning of the morning light, we are permitted to return unto thee our God, and that we are encouraged to come boldly unto thy throne of grace to supplicate the smiles of thy mercy. Truly our souls would wait upon God, for it is from God alone cometh salvation. Thou art our rock and our salvation; thou art our glory, defence, and refuge; therefore will we trust in thee at all times, and pour out our hearts before thee.

May the undeserved mercies we have received during the past night animate us with earnest desires to honour the Lord our God this day in all the duties and engagements we have before us. May we experience the truth of thy promise in being preserved from temptation, and in feeling our minds devoted to thy fear. Never allow the fear of reproach to prevent us from openly acknowledging our attachment to Jesus and his cause. In our religious profession may we never be afraid of the reproach of men; for thy judgments are good.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all those gifts and graces conferred on thy people and ministers, to fit them for the ordinary duties of their Christian profession. We rejoice that, when extraordinary duties were required, as in the case of Bezaleel, who presided over the work of the tabernacle, thou art ever ready to confer upon thy ministers and people extraordinary graces and gifts for the accomplishment of thy wise and gracious purposes.

We desire earnestly to pray for all thy ministering servants.
O Lord, thou knowest the responsibility, importance, and difficulty of their office. Thou knowest how much instrumentally the prosperity of thy cause and kingdom depends upon the graces with which they are enriched, and the zealous, active efforts which they are enabled to employ. We therefore would affectionately pray that all thy ministers, of every name, throughout the whole earth, may receive a double portion of thy Spirit. O may they be filled with the Spirit of God in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge.
May all who are preparing for the holy office receive the preparation which human learning and tuition can never bestow, and which is wholly the gift of the Holy Ghost.
Father of mercies, mercifully bow thine ear to our earnest supplication. We plead for those who plead for thee. O make them successful pleaders! Teach them to sow the precious seed; teach them to feed thy chosen flock; teach them to gain immortal souls—souls that will well reward their pain—blessed trophies of the Saviour's power.

May our beloved children be taught highly to venerate the office of the ministry; and when they hear the Gospel from the lips of thy servants, may they know and feel that the message comes with the sanction and authority of God.

We rejoice that, as the tabernacle of old was formed under the direction of God, the New Testament Church is formed by the unerring wisdom of Christ. Deliver thy Church, O Lord, from the contrivances and encroachments of men, and may it soon appear in all its lovely simplicity and glory. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our King and Mediator. Amen.

END OF THE SAINT AND THE RICH SINNER.

London. Dulwich. Kingsbridge. Lincoln. L. M.

1 IN what confusion earth appears—

God's dearest children bathed in tears!
While they, who heaven itself deride,
Riot in luxury and pride.

2 See the red flames around him twine

Who did in gold and purple shine:
Nor can his tongue one drop obtain
To allay the scorching of his pain:

3 While round the saint, so poor below,

Full rivers of salvation flow;
On Abraham's breast he leans his head,
And banquet on celestial bread.

Donnardez.

LUKE XVI.

The Rich Man in Hell.

AND he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward.

3 Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?

6 And he said, An hundred measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

7 Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred measures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore.

8 And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

19 There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day:

20 And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores, 21 And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.

22 And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried;

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house:

28 For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XVI.—If we are the genuine disciples of Jesus, the sincerity of our profession will appear in fidelity to man in things which are temporal, and in faithfulness to God in things spiritual and divine. God has conferred upon us numerous gifts—life, reason, temporal comforts, the bible, the throne of grace, and the ordinances of religion. We are stewards of these gifts. May we never forget, on the one hand, that God is willing to confer grace that we may be faithful stewards; and, on the other, that we shall be called to give an account of our stewardship. "Lord, make us faithful." God, in his mysterious sovereignty, often gives wealth to the worst of men, who employ their riches as weapons of rebellion against the Most High, and thus prepare themselves for the miseries of everlasting woe!

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord our God, this evening, with humility, devotion, and thankfulness, to lift up our hearts and our hands to thee, O God, who dwellest in the heavens. Evening and morning we would pray unto thee, for thou wilt hear our voice. In all ages thy people have had reason with the Psalmist to acknowledge, I cried unto the Lord with my voice, and he heard me from his holy hill; I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears.

May a sense of our sinfulness and guilt humble us in thy presence. We confess that we have in countless instances resembled the unjust steward. Thou hast bestowed upon us many mercies, many privileges, and many talents. Alas! we have, in a great measure, wasted these invaluable treasures. How much of our time has been occupied with sin, which should have been employed in thy service! how many precious opportunities of improvement have been neglected and despised—opportunities which shall never return! O Lord, we confess this our sin, and supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood. We have allowed our affections to cleave to worldly objects in preference to Christ—we have said to them, Ye are our gods; we have deliberately allowed ourselves to be carried away by the delusion of the things of time, and have shut our eyes against the sublime and desirable blessings of heaven and eternity. O Lord, we confess this our sin, and supplicate pardon through our Saviour's blood.

Mercifully instruct our beloved offspring to begin betimes to devote themselves and their all to Christ. May they, in obedience to the command of Jesus, surrender their heart to him.

Bless to us, holy Saviour, what we have now read. Make thy Word instrumental in breaking our obdurate hearts, and in forming a new creation within us of holiness and love. May we ever be impressed with the truth that we are stewards, and that thou, the omniscient and Almighty Jehovah, art our Lord, to whom we shall render an account at last. May we be prepared to give in our account with joy. May we be the rich possessors of thy grace, animated with thy Spirit, and clothed in the comely garment of a Saviour's righteousness; then shall we be prepared to stand before thy great tribunal with acceptance and with triumph. Deliver us and all our relatives from the love of the world. May we neither be captivated with its riches, its pursuits, its pleasures, or its honours. Convince us more and more of the folly and the impiety of making the objects of time our portion, and rejecting the fair and imperishable inheritance beyond the skies. May we rather prefer to be poor like Lazarus, than rich like Dives; and may we rather travel to heaven through the vale of poverty, than travel to hell with all the luxuries and pomp and splendour of wealth. We earnestly pray that all of us may be made wise unto salvation.

Entering on another night, we would lay our heads on the bosom of thy mercy. Asleep or awake, may our minds be preserved from the contaminating influence of sin. Graciously hear and answer and forgive, for Jesus' sake, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

LOOKING TO AND PLEADING WITH GOD.

Egypt. Orange. St. Bride's. Shortwood.

G. N.

- 1 MINE eyes and my desire
Are ever to the Lord;
I love to plead his promises,
And rest upon his word.
- 2 Turn, turn thee to my soul,
Bring thy salvation near;
When will thy hand release my feet
Out of the deadly snare?
- 3 When shall the sovereign grace
Of my forgiving God
Restore me from those dangerous ways
My wandering feet have trod?

Watts, Ps. 25, p. 111

EXODUS XXXII.

The Israelites worship a Golden Calf.

AND when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden earrings, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, To morrow is a feast to the LORD.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

7 And the LORD said unto Moses, I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

8 Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and I will make of thee a great nation.

9 And Moses besought the LORD his God, and said, LORD, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt with great power, and with a mighty hand?

10 Wherefore should the Egyptians speak, and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people.

11 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, to whom thou swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

12 And the LORD repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

13 And Moses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXII.—How faithfully the falls and the failings of the most eminent saints are recorded in Scripture, not only as a proof that the Bible is of Divine inspiration, but also to operate beneficially as lessons and warnings to believers in every succeeding age. How grievous to think of the fear, pusillanimity, and delinquency of Aaron, the priest of the Most High God, in co-operating with idolatrous Israel, in pouring the greatest contempt on the pure and spiritual worship of Israel's God. What a contrast, Moses on the mount with God, and Aaron his elder brother standing before an idol and presenting idolatrous sacrifices! "Lord, what is man?" May the exhibition of Israel's sin, in trampling upon the pure worship of God, animate us to seek grace to worship God in spirit and in truth; and to beware of that alienation from God, which exposes men to his merited indignation.

PRAYER.

WE praise thee, O Lord, that thou hast said, I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour. O Lord, encouraged by this merciful and condescending declaration, we again encompass the domestic altar, and prostrate ourselves before thy throne, only looking for acceptance and pardon through the merit of our Saviour's blood. What are we that thou shouldst have encouraged us with promises so precious when we obey thy will and assemble in thy name? Thou hast said, and we pray to be enabled to believe what thou hast said, Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them; and, All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

May we be suitably impressed with the kindness of our God experienced during the past night. When asleep and awake thou didst mercifully defend and sustain us. What reason have we thus to sing of the goodness of our God, in the language of the Psalmist: We laid ourselves down and slept; we awoke, for the Lord sustained us.

Fit us for the events and duties of the day. If we are called to suffer the afflictions of life, prepare us for thy holy will. In all the trials and vicissitudes of the wilderness, may we utter the language of holy submission: The will of the Lord be done. Preserve us this day from the snares of the world and from the wiles of the devil; but above all preserve us from our own hearts. May we run in the way of duty, and all the day long may we be preserved in thy fear.

Bless to us the affecting history we have now read of the corruption and depravity of man. Alas, that the imagination of his heart in all ages is only evil, and that continually! We acknowledge with shame that we are more naturally inclined to obey Satan and our own hateful lusts than the commandments of our God, which are holy, just, and good.

O preserve our dear children from the love and the service of their own corruptions. Blessed Saviour, give them grace to obtain an ascendancy over their corruptions, which, if not subdued in early life, generally prove awfully ungovernable in mature years.

We thank our God and Saviour that our beloved country is delivered from Pagan idolatry. O that every description of superstition and will-worship may be banished from all our churches. May the Sun of Righteousness shine brighter and brighter, and may our land soon be overspread with the fructifying and benign influence of unfeigned piety.

We would mourn, O Lord, over our own sins, and over the backslidings of others. May the conduct of Aaron and the Israelites, in doing homage to the golden idol in the wilderness, powerfully show us the absolute necessity of an humble and constant dependence on the arm of omnipotent grace, to resist the allurements of sin and the temptations of Satan. May we keep thy law continually, for ever and ever. Let our heart be sound in thy statutes, that we may not be ashamed.

Forgive our sins, most gracious God, and hear our prayers, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

THE BELIEVER'S EXTREMITY GOD'S OPPORTUNITY.

Bankfield. Crickwood. Aynhoe. Broderip's. & M.

- 1 LIKE Israel, Lord! am I,
My soul is at a stand!
A sea before, an host behind,
And rocks on either hand.
- 2 O Lord! I cry to thee,
And would thy word obey;
Bid me advance, and, through the sea,
Create a new-made way.
- 3 Without thee, I must sink
Beneath the swelling flood;
Or fall a prey to those, who think
To glut them with my blood
- 4 The time of greatest straits
Thy chosen time has been,
To manifest thy power is great,
And make thy glory seen.

RIPPON, 1798.

LUKE XVII.

Ten Lepers healed.

AND it came to pass, as he went to Jerusalem, that he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.

12 And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off:

13 And they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14 And when he saw them, he said unto them, Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that, as they went, they were cleansed.

15 And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God, 16 And fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks: and he was a Samaritan.

17 And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?

18 There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger.

19 And he said unto him, Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made thee whole.

LUKE XVIII.

Encouragement to pray.

AND he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint;

2 Saying, There was in a city a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man:

3 And there was a widow in that city; and she came unto him, saying, Avenge me of mine adversary.

4 And he would not for a while: but afterward he said within himself, Though I fear not God, nor regard man;

5 Yet because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.

6 And the Lord said, Hear what the unjust judge saith.

7 And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him, though he bear long with them?

8 I tell you that he will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XVII., XVIII.—The daily journeys of the sun are strikingly figurative of the daily journeys of Jesus, the Sun of Righteousness. What blessings flow every day from the animating light and fertilizing warmth of the natural sun. And what astonishing blessings, both for excellence and multitude, accompanied and followed the daily journeys of our Saviour and Lord! Is the sun the great agent of health and of natural happiness and joy? Our Jesus, wherever he went, gave health to the diseased, and filled the hearts of multitudes with joy and peace. O let us commit our souls, which are by nature covered with the foul leprosy of sin, into his skilful, merciful hands, then we shall rejoice in the glorious consequences of his healing power. A spirit of believing, earnest, persevering prayer is of incalculable worth. Compared with this, earthly wealth, and power, and honour, yea, even the greatest and most splendid of human attainments, sink into complete insignificance. This gift is accompanied with the smiles and fellowship of God on earth, and is the assured harbinger of all the blessings and glories of immortality.

PRAYER.

ETERNAL and ever blessed Jehovah, praise waiteth for thee in Sion, and thou art infinitely worthy to be adored in all the assemblies of thy saints. Unto thee the vow shall be performed. Infinitely blessed is the man whom thou chooscest, and causcest to approach unto thee, for he shall dwell in thy courts, beholding thy glory, tasting thy grace, and enjoying thy fellowship. May we as a family, and all in whom we are interested, be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple.

In the name of our Divine Advocate, we would present our evening sacrifice. O Jesus, through the merit of thy righteousness, and the all-prevailing efficacy of thine intercession, may our supplications ascend to the gracious presence of our God, like fragrant incense. Thou Hearer of prayer, mercifully hear our prayer. Give ear to our words, O Lord, consider our meditation. Harken unto the voice of our cry, our King and our God; for unto thee will we pray.

May we be deeply and gratefully impressed with a sense of the mercies we have this day enjoyed. We thank our God for those blessings which respect the body and time; but, above all, for those blessings which respect the soul and eternity. What reason have we, therefore, to come before thy presence with thanksgiving, and to utter abundantly the memory of thy great goodness! O teach our tongues to speak of thy righteousness and of thy praise all the day long!

In thy kind providence we are brought to another night, and therefore we commit ourselves to thy providence, that these dying bodies of ours may not only be preserved, but also may enjoy the refreshment of sleep and repose.

We desire, O thou God of spotless purity, to be humbled under a sense of the polluting influence of sin. Remove graciously from our minds that veil by which we are prevented from seeing the vileness and loathsomeness of sin. Convince us by thy spirit that there is no bodily disease so abominable or so dangerous as the disease of sin. Spiritually and morally considered, we are overspread with the leprosy of sin, and have reason to exclaim, Unclean, unclean!

Give to our beloved children the grace of holy repentance. May we witness in them, and that soon, a holy concern to have the corruptions of their nature washed away, and that the guilt of their sins may be forgiven.

As a family, we would lift up our voices, like the ten lepers, and we would earnestly pray, Jesus, Master, have mercy upon us. Lord, heal us; then shall we return, and with a loud voice we will glorify God.

Lord, deliver us from formality in our prayers. May our prayers be the supplications of faith. Deliver us from coldness in our prayers, and may they be the supplications of holy earnestness. Let not our prayers be occasional offerings, but may we daily and constantly approach the throne of grace, and with the hand of earnest importunity knock at mercy's door. Glory to our God for the encouraging counsel, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint.

Lord, accept, hear, and answer, for Jesus' sake, our great High Priest. Thine, O Lord, is the kingdom and the power and the glory, for ever. Amen.

GOD THE SUPREME AND ETERNAL RULER.

Shorthorn. Job. Angels' Hymn. Old Hundred. L. K.

- 1 ETHERNAL God! almighty cause
Of earth, and seas, and worlds unknown;
All things are subject to thy laws,
All things depend on thee alone.
- 2 Thy glorious being singly stands,
Of all within itself possest,
Controlled by none are thy commands,
Thou from thyself alone art blest.
- 3 To thee alone ourselves we owe;
Let heaven and earth duo homage pay;
All other gods we disavow,
Deny their claims, renounce their sway.

WILLIAMS.

EXODUS XXXII.

The Golden Calf destroyed, and the Idolaters slain.

AND it came to pass, as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.

20 And he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot: thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods, which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.

25 And when Moses saw that the people were naked; (for Aaron had made them naked unto their shame among their enemies:)

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the Lord's side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 For Moses had said, Consecrate yourselves to day to the Lord, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

30 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the Lord; peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 And the Lord said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: behold, mine Angel shall go before thee: nevertheless in the day when I visit I will visit their sin upon them.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXII.—If we are the possessors of grace, we shall be grieved and afflicted when we see the prevalence of sin, the disregard of God's worship shown by multitudes altogether, and also the corrupt mode of worship exhibited by others: we shall be grieved by the injury men do to themselves, and by the dishonour done to God. Oh! how we should pity the myriads on the face of the earth who are wholly given to idolatry, and the masses of our race who are most rigidly devoted to superstition and will-worship, and who place the rites and ceremonies of human invention in the room of the pure, simple, and spiritual worship of the God of salvation. Let us ask, what portion of the visible Church is most especially on the Lord's side? as Moses asked, when he came down from the immediate presence of Jehovah, and saw the abomination of Israel's idolatry. It cannot be those who are professing to worship God with the inventions of man. It must be those who are adhering most closely to the pure simplicity of Divine worship, as it is laid down in the word of truth. Alas! that the solemn declaration of our Lord is so much forgotten: "God is a spirit, and they who worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

PRAYER.

O LORD, though we are worms of the dust, unworthy and impure, we come before thee as a prayer-hearing God, to adore thee in thy glorious majesty, and to supplicate, through our Saviour's righteousness, the smiles of thy forgiveness and the blessings of thy salvation. Lord, quicken us, and we will call on thy name. May the following promise be fulfilled in us, in all the families with which we are connected, and in the congregation with which we are associated: I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplication. Mercifully bestow upon us this spirit.

May lively and lasting impressions be produced on our minds by what we have now read of thy hatred of sin and of thy righteous indignation in punishing the idolatry and rebellion of offending Israel. Truly, O Lord, thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity. For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness; neither shall evil dwell with thee.

May the sins of ancient Israel bring our own to our remembrance. Like them, we have borne thy name, but we have wandered from thy ways. How often have we indulged in vain and unhallowed mirth, while our hearts should have been melted down with penitence and grief! Lord, forgive this our sin. Like them, we have loved idols: we have said, After them we will go. Lord, forgive this our sin. Like them, we have been guilty of formality and hypocrisy in our worship. We have forgotten that thou art a Spirit, and that they who worship thee must worship in spirit and in truth. Lord, mercifully forgive this our sin.

Inspire our dear children with true devotion. At a very early period of their days may they be delivered from their natural aversion to religious duties, and be animated with a holy delight in spiritual exercises.

Lord have mercy on the aged. Preserve aged sinners from finishing their days in impenitence. O comfort aged saints with the near prospect of heaven.

Enable us, O Lord, to mourn over the sins of professors, and to weep with our souls over the vast prevalence of sin in our land. With justice mightst thou say respecting us as a nation, because of our contempt of thine ordinances, I will blot them out of my book. Thou hast remembered us in thy mercy, while we might have been visited in thy wrath. O let thy grace overspread our country, and make it a garden of spiritual beauty in the midst of the nations of the earth. Give us thy Holy Spirit, that we may resemble Moses in our hatred of sin, and in expressing our holy indignation at our own sins and the sins of others. Lord, sanctify us through thy truth.

We thank our God for the mercies of another night, and seek the light of his countenance this day, for our Saviour's sake. Amen.

THE PHARISEE AND THE PUBLICAN.

Penitents. Sabbath. Winchester. Paul's.

L. M.

- 1 BEHOOLD how sinners disagree,
The publican and Pharisee!
One doth his righteousness proclaim,
The other owns his guilt and shame.
- 2 This man at humble distance stands,
And cries for grace with lifted hands;
That boldly rises near the throne,
And talks of duties he has done.
- 3 The Lord their different language knows,
And different answers he bestows;
The humble soul with grace he crowns,
Whilst on the proud his anger frowns.

WATTS, 131, B. J.

LUKE XVIII.

The Pharisee and the Publican.

AND he spake this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:
10 Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican.

11 The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican.

12 I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.

13 And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, This man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased: and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

15 And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

16 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

17 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein.

LUKE XIX.

Conversion of Zacchæus.

AND Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.

2 And, behold, there was a man named Zacchæus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the press, because he was of little stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him: for he was to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house.

6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

7 And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.

8 And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord; Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold.

9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham.

10 For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XVIII., XIX.—How hateful is pride even in the eyes of man, but how peculiarly odious in the eyes of God! What is the foundation of a legal spirit? Pride! What is the source of self-admiration, confidence, and complacency? Pride! What is it which makes a man blind to his own faults, and blind to the excellencies of others? Pride! What teaches a man audaciously to take his own supposed merit and good works, and actually present them before God as a price to purchase pardon, heaven, and immortality? Pride! Let us take warning from the proud Pharisee who was condemned. Let us seek grace to imitate the penitent, humble publican, who was accepted and saved! How admirable, how lovely Christ's affection to children, and how willingly he accepts their persons from the hands of parents, and how readily he blesses them in answer to parents' prayers. Zacchæus, probably from notions of curiosity, wished to see Jesus. May we be earnestly desirous to see Jesus in his word, in his ordinances, and in his sanctuary. At last, when time with us shall cease for ever, may we see Christ for ever in heaven. When Jesus saves, what wealth he bestows, what happiness he communicates, and with what honour he crowns. O that, like Zacchæus, we could all say, "Salvation is come to our house! Amen!"

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, there is none like unto thee, for thou art high above all nations, and thy glory is above the heavens. Notwithstanding the splendour of thy glory and the height of thy majesty, thou humblest thyself to behold the things that are in heaven and upon the earth. While thou admittest the loftiest of angels to hold converse with thyself, the smallest insect is not below thy notice or without thy care.

At the close of another day we encompass thine altar to present our evening sacrifice. We desire to call upon thee, for thou art worthy to be praised. We rejoice that we present our prayers, however feeble and imperfect, with the blessed encouragement that thou wilt accept and answer. Fulfil thy gracious promise, and send out thy light and thy truth, that we may be allured and led unto thy holy hill. Then will we go unto the altar of God, unto God our exceeding joy.

May a solemn and salutary impression be produced on all our minds by what we have now read of the Pharisee and the publican. May the affecting history teach us to examine our own hearts, whether our profession is sincere, and what are the motives by which our minds are influenced, when we engage in the various ordinances of our holy faith. O deliver us in our approaches to thy presence from pride, formality, and hypocrisy. May we not resemble the Pharisee, who gloried in his supposed excellence, who brought himself under the curse of a heart-searching God; but may we resemble the publican, who mourned over his corruptions, who earnestly sought salvation, who found mercy, and was justified of God. Lord, we acknowledge that we are sinners, even the chief. We have not rendered unto the Lord according to his benefits done unto us. Amid the smiles of thy goodness, when the cup of prosperity has been put into our unworthy hands—even then, when our hearts should have been warmed with gratitude and love, we have not been mindful of the rock of our strength, and we have forgotten the God of our salvation.

We present our children before thee, O merciful Saviour, and we beseech thee to touch them by thy grace; then shall their nature be changed, and the heart of stone be changed into the heart of flesh.

Glory to God in the highest, that the Son of man came from heaven to earth, to seek and to save that which is lost. We are by nature lost. May we be sought by thee, O Jesus, and carried by thee to the fold of thy church on earth, and at last to the fold of heaven above, there to remain for ever.

May thine eye, which never slumbers, watch over us this night. May the mercies of the past day affect our minds with thankfulness and repentance, and may the sins of the past day be forgiven. We present our prayer through Jesus Christ, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

GOD REIGNETH IN THE HEART.

Warrington. Staines. Forest Hill. Denbigh.

L. M.

- 1 AND will the offended God again
Return, and dwell with sinful men?
Will he within this bosom raise
A living temple to his praise?
- 2 The joyful news transports my breast;
All hail! I cry, thou heavenly guest Lift up your heads, ye powers within,
And let the King of Glory in.
- 3 Enter, with all thy heavenly train!
Here live, and here for ever reign!
Thy sceptre o'er my passions sway;
Let love command, and I'll obey.

S. STANNETT.

EXODUS XXXIII.

An Angel promised as a Leader to the People.

AND the Lord said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I swore unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, Unto thy seed will I give it:

2 And I will send an Angel before thee; and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perrizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

3 Unto a land flowing with milk and honey; for I will not go up in the midst of thee; for thou art a stiffnecked people: lest I consume thee in the way.

4 And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned: and no man did put on him his ornaments.

5 For the Lord had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiffnecked people: I will come up into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may know what to do unto thee.

6 And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

7 And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which sought the Lord went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp.

8 And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

9 And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door: and all the people rose up and worshipped, every man in his tent door.

11 And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp: but his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

12 And Moses said unto the Lord, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

13 Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider that this nation is thy people.

14 And he said, My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest.

15 And he said unto him, If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXIII.—What a striking contrast!—Israel's sin, and God's forbearance; Israel's rebellion, and God's forgiveness! Though his people had cast him off, distrusted his truth, and rejected his promise, he holds out before them the prospects of Canaan, and provides for them a mighty angel to be the breaker up of the way before them, and to lead them gently, safely, and triumphantly to the promised land, "the goodly heritage of the host of nations." Let us praise God that, notwithstanding our numerous and aggravated provocations, Jesus is holding up to our view the heavenly Canaan, the paradise of the blessed; that he is willing to give us a title to heaven, meetness for heaven, and to undertake himself, most mercifully and safely, to lead us to heaven, and put us in possession of all he has purchased by his righteousness, namely, "an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away;" yea, "a crown of righteousness, and a crown of life." May it be our privilege to read our title clear to these heavenly abodes!

PRAYER.

BLESSED Jehovah, it is good to draw near unto thee, the Lord our God. As a family we would draw near unto thee; for thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive, and plenteous in mercy to all them that call upon thee.

We desire, with feelings of humility, thankfulness, and love, to pray that thou wouldst accept our acknowledgments for the mercies of the past night. Thou art lengthening out our days: O increase our usefulness. Teach us to connect time with eternity, by employing our time to be prepared for the eternal state. Affect our minds most deeply with the truth, that lost time may ensure for us an eternity of woe, while time spent in thy love and fear will be followed by the interminable joys of heaven.

May we enjoy thy care this day, and may we be fitted to perform its duties, resist its temptations, endure its trials, and enjoy its comforts. Give us grace to value time, to improve time, and to devote time to the honour of our God and Saviour, who is the same immutable Jehovah in all generations. This day, and every day, may we put on the whole armour of God, that we may ever successfully stand against the wiles of the devil, and withstand in the evil day. O preserve us from the evil of the world, to which we are constantly exposed, and give us that faith by which we shall overcome the world. May we know the blessedness of walking in all the statutes and ordinances of the Lord blameless. Make us proficient scholars in all our duties; then shall we be complete in all the will of God. For all these important ends, grant us the abundant and the continued supplies of the Holy Spirit, without whose grace we are nothing, and without whose grace we can do nothing.

We thank thee for another opportunity of reading the oracles of truth. May what we have read of the sad apostacy of Israel prove a warning to us to avoid this presumptuous sin. Forgive past apostacies, and prevent our falling into them in future. Give us persevering grace; may we not turn to the right-hand or to the left, but may we hold on, and hold out, till at last we reach our heavenly home.

Introduce our dear children into a state of grace. Pour thy Spirit, O Lord, upon them, and may that happy hour soon arrive which will make them thine indeed.

Lead the inhabitants of our beloved land to a knowledge of their aggravated guilt, and may they return to thee in genuine repentance. Suffer us not to make idols of our national wealth, or of our power; but let us rejoice in God, as the God of our salvation.

Fulfil in our experience, and in the experience of all thy people and ministers, that promise: My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest. Give us thy gracious presence, O Lord, while we journey along the vale of tears, and at last bring us to thy heavenly kingdom, through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST'S LOVE, CONDESCENSION, AND PITY.

Sherbourn. Peace. Treble. Redemption.

L. M.

- 1 SEE, Lord, thy willing subjects bow,
Adoring low before thy throne :
Accept our humble, cheerful vow ;
Thou art our sovereign, thou alone.
- 2 Beneath thy soul-reviving ray,
E'en cold affliction's wintry gloom
Shall brighten into vernal day,
And hopes and joys immortal bloom.
- 3 Smile on our souls, and bid us sing
In concert with the choir above,
The glories of our Saviour king,
The condescensions of his love.

STELLA.

LUKE XIX.

Destruction of Jerusalem.

AND when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it, 42 Saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace ! but now they are hid from thine eyes.

43 For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, 44 And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee ; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another ; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation.

LUKE XXIII.

Crucifixion of Jesus.

AND the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilæan.

7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

8 And when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad : for he was desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him ; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

9 Then he questioned with him in many words ; but he answered him nothing.

10 And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused him.

11 And Herod with his men of war set him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate.

12 And the same day Pilate and Herod were made friends together : for before they were at enmity between themselves.

26 And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

27 And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him.

28 But Jesus turning unto them, said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

29 For, behold, the days are coming, in the which they shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the breasts which never gave suck.

30 Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, Fall on us ; and to the hills, Cover us.

31 For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry ?

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XIX., XXIII.—In the days of our Saviour's flesh, he showed that his compassion was tender and boundless. What compassion, to weep over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, that city devoted to destruction, which in a few days nailed him to the cross ! They made light of the God of their salvation ; they sinned above all other cities on the face of the earth ; and, therefore, they brought upon themselves judgments more awful than any that ever fell upon the inhabitants of a guilty world. May we learn from their punishment never to despise God's mercy, as nothing can so effectually secure the pouring down the vials of Divine indignation. There are few names so associated with deeds of cruelty and blood as the name HEROD. This is demonstrated by the Herod who lived at Jesus' birth, and the Herod who reigned at his death. When kings are merciful, they are blessings to the world ; when they are cruel and unjust, they are sin and Satan personified. Who can conceive the humiliation of the King of kings, when set at nought by Herod and his men of war ! Let us rejoice that Jesus now fills his mediatorial throne, though his way to it was by degradation, suffering, and death !

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, thou sittest upon the throne of universal dominion, and thou dost reign Lord God omnipotent. All the kingdoms of the earth are thine, and thou shalt reign for ever and ever. O Lord God of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee, who hast all power in heaven and in earth !

We would esteem it, O Lord, our unspeakable privilege, that we are permitted, not only as individuals separately, but as a family collectively, to hold intercourse with thee in prayer. We rejoice that we are now before thy throne of grace ; thou who art the true God, the living God, and an everlasting King ; for unto thee shall all flesh come. Though thou art far from the wicked, yet thou hearest the prayer of the righteous, and thine ear is constantly open to their cry. Clothe us with the righteousness of thy Son, and animate us with the graces of his spirit : then shall we draw near unto thee with a true heart, and in the full assurance of our faith.

We present our united thanksgivings for the mercies of the day. Convince us of the solemn yet delightful truth, that every mercy increases our obligation to love and serve thee. O affect us with the alarming truth, that if we continue rebels against thine authority, every mercy we receive heightens the aggravation of our sins. May we seriously remember, that if we die impenitent, every drop of thy mercy in this world will add a drop to thy wrath in the world to come. Take us under thy gracious protection this night. Suffer us not to sleep the sleep of death ; but if we should awake in eternity before the light of another day, may our souls awake in heaven, amid the songs of angels and perfect saints.

We adore thee, O Lord, as a holy and righteous God. With Divine displeasure thou didst look upon the sins of highly-favoured Jerusalem ; and with just indignation thou didst bring upon them alarming and deserved punishment. May we stand in awe and sin not. Convince us that the greatest of all Jerusalem's sins was rejecting Jesus, and putting the blessed Saviour to death. O Saviour, thou didst come to thine own, and, instead of receiving thee, they destroyed thee. Justly didst thou make them the monuments of thy vengeance, and suffer thy judgments to lay that city desolate where the awful deed of putting thee to death was perpetrated.

Preserve us as a family, preserve our relatives and friends, preserve our nation, from the sin of rejecting Christ. Give us faith that we may see Christ's indispensable suitableness and necessity ; give us faith that we may receive him and rely upon him in all his loveliness, all his fulness, and all his glory.

Teach our dear children thy saving knowledge, and O give them thy saving grace. While thou art saying unto them, Come, may they reply, We come, we come, at thy command. While thou art saying unto us, Come, may we reply, O Lord, we come, we come, at thy command. Mercifully hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE MERCY OF GOD.

Hamlet. Holborn. Gerard. Broughton. P. M.

- 1 THEY mercy, my God, is the theme of my song,
The joy of my heart and the boast of my tongue;
Thy free grace alone, from the first to the last,
Hath won my affections, and bound my soul fast.
- 2 Without thy sweet mercy I could not live here,
Sin soon would reduce me to utter despair;
But through thy free goodness my spirits revive,
And he that first made me still keeps me alive.
- 3 Thy mercy is more than a match for my heart,
Which wonders to feel its own hardness depart;
Dissolved by thy goodness I fall to the ground,
And weep to the praise of the mercy I found.

EXODUS XXXIII.

God proclaims his Name to Moses.

- AND he said, I beseech thee, shew me thy glory.
- 19 And he said, I will make all my goodness pass before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the Lord before thee; and will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.
- 20 And he said, Thou canst not see my face: for there shall no man see me, and live.
- 21 And the Lord said, Behold, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon a rock:
- 22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand while I pass by:
- 23 And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts: but my face shall not be seen.

EXODUS XXXIV.

- AND the Lord said unto Moses, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first: and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables, which thou brakest.
- 2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me in the top of the mount.
- 3 And no man shall come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount; neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.
- 4 And he hewed two tables of stone like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the Lord had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.
- 5 And the Lord descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the Lord.
- 6 And the Lord passed by before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth.
- 7 Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.
- 8 And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.
- 9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, let my Lord, I pray thee, go among us; for it is a stiffnecked people; and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXIII., XXXIV.—In all his perfections, God is infinitely glorious; but he is especially glorious in his mercy, compassion, and grace. So feeble is frail humanity here below, that, speaking after the manner of man, a very small degree of the rays of Divine glory falling upon us is quite sufficient to extinguish the lamp of our mortal existence. But if we are the redeemed of God, what a mighty change shall be effected in our corporeal nature; for then we shall be able to see and enjoy the full, the unveiled splendour of the being and attributes of the Triune Jehovah. Let us by faith anticipate the day, the glorious, matchless day! And may we unite with the Apostle in the language of animating hope, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is!" As an evidence that our hope is genuine and sure, may the Divine law be engraven on our heart by the Divine Spirit!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, heavenly Dove, graciously condescend to breathe upon us thy blessed influence, that we may be enabled to adore our glorious Lord God. O fill each dead, benighted soul with light and life and joy; for who can resist thy mighty powers, or destroy thy glorious work!

Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, we adore thee in all the immeasurable splendours of thine infinite and uncreated glory. No mortal eye can possibly endure the overwhelming radiance of thine unveiled majesty. No man can see thee and live. With the eye of faith may we see, with astonishment and joy, the glory of all thy perfections shining in the person and righteousness of Christ; and when our mortal eyes are shut in death, may our faith be turned into vision, and may we see our God as he is, seated upon the celestial throne.

We praise thee for the displays of thy mercy which thou hast given to our guilty, ruined world. Thus thou hast in a great measure dispelled the gloomy darkness from our sky which, if not removed, would have rendered our globe an affecting emblem of the land of perdition. Glory to thy name, that the day-spring from on high has visited us. Glory, eternal glory to thee our God, that thou didst actually descend in a cloud, and in the presence of Moses didst thus proclaim thy name: The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin. Preserve us, O Lord, from incorrect and unscriptural views of thy mercy; from ever imagining that thou art merciful to the exclusion of thy justice. May we see that a God all mercy is a God unjust, and that the honour of thy Divine perfection requires an exercise of justice as well as of mercy. Thou art a God of immutable righteousness, and will by no means clear the finally impenitent.

Blessed Spirit, suffer not our dear children to be injured by our imperfections. May we who are their parents and guardians be successful in sowing in their hearts that incorruptible seed of grace which will spring up into everlasting life.

Give us faith to believe thy Gospel, and in thee, as the God of salvation; and give us grace to obey thy laws as our Father and our King. Write thy laws on our hearts with impressions more lasting than the engraving of thy ten commandments on the two tables which were in the hand of Moses.

May we and all our relatives long to see the glory of the Father, Son, and Spirit, in heaven. O for a lively faith in Jesus, the conqueror of death! then we shall be able to sing at the close of life: Henceforth there is laid up for us a crown of righteousness, which God the righteous Judge will give unto us at that day; and not unto us only, but unto all them also who love his appearing.

We present our thanks for the mercies of the night, we seek our Father's pardon for all our sins, and we implore grace for the day on which we have entered, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb who was slain. Amen.

PRAYER TO THE SPIRIT.

Coleham. Langbourne. Hazton.

1 ETHERNAL Spirit! source of light!

Enlivening, consecrating fire!

Descend, and with celestial heat

Our dull, our frozen hearts inspire:

Our souls refine, our dross consume!

Come, condescending Spirit! come.

2 In our cold breasts, O strike a spark

Of the pure flame which seraphs feel;

Nor let us wander in the dark,

Or lie benumbed and stupid still;

Come, vivifying Spirit! come,

And make our hearts thy constant home.

PRESIDENT DAVIES.

LUKE XXIV.

Jesus accompanying the Disciples to Emmaus.

AND, behold, two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs.

14 And they talked together of all these things which had happened.

15 And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them.

16 But their eyes were holden that they should not know him.

17 And he said unto them, What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are sad?

18 And the one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answering said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?

19 And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:

20 And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.

21 But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: and beside all this, to day is the third day since these things were done.

22 Yea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre;

23 And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said that he was alive.

24 And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said: but him they saw not.

25 Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken:

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went: and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them.

30 And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XXIV.—The striking narrative of the two disciples going to Emmaus furnish an instructive picture of the experience of believers. At one time they are enveloped in darkness, at another walking in the brightness of noonday. At one time filled with sorrow, at another animated with joy. At one time mourning over an absent Saviour, at another enjoying the fellowship of a present Lord. Great was the change in the external appearance of the humanity of Christ after he rose from the dead. But there was no change in his love. It is the same now he fills his throne, as when he hung suspended to the cross. It is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. For a season, even the disciples of Christ had carnal views of the great object of his mission. Let us rejoice that we are admitted to the enjoyment of far greater light than they enjoyed before the day of Pentecost. We know and believe that the object of Christ's mission was to accomplish a spiritual redemption of countless myriads from sin, Satan, the world, death, and hell!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the infinitely wise and gracious and Holy One who dwellest amid the praises of Israel. When we approach thy throne, and enter into converse with thyself, may we be ever impressed with a sense of thy spotless purity and boundless grace. There is none holy as thou, O Lord. Every word of thy mouth is pure; thy law is holy, just, and good; and thou art holy in all thy works.

When we behold thy holiness, and see our own impurity, depravity, and corruption, may we be humbled in the dust. O give us the humility and the self-abasement of filial and evangelical repentance. Teach us, Holy Spirit, to make confession with the heart unto God. Behold we are vile, and what shall we answer thee? We would lay our hand upon our mouth; and put our mouth in the dust. We acknowledge that, soon as we draw our infant breath, the seeds of death grow up within us. And, alas! O Lord, while thy law demands perfect holiness, we are defiled in every part.

To the blood of Christ alone we look for pardon, even that blood which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. O Jesus, the blood of Abel cried for vengeance to descend on Cain's head; but we rejoice that thy blood sends a supplicating voice to the throne of heaven, and calls for the blessings of pardon and salvation to descend on fallen, ruined man.

At the close of another week we present our tribute of gratitude and praise for the continuance of the blessings of thy providence and grace. Holy Saviour, wash away the guilt we have contracted, by the merit of thine all-atoning blood. Continue thy goodness with us this night, and may we be permitted on the approaching day to enter thy sacred sanctuary, and profitably to engage in the sublime and animating ordinances of our holy faith.

Bless the portion of the history of Christ to which we have now listened. May we be thereby instructed to love the fellowship of the saints, and to delight to converse with them concerning Christ in his person, sufferings, and triumph. The eyes of our understanding have been long holden by the darkness of spiritual ignorance: O may they be holden no more! May we see Christ as the chief subject and as the chief glory of the Holy Scriptures; and may we rejoice that all which Moses and the prophets have said concerning him has been fulfilled, and that to the very letter. May we see the necessity of the sufferings of Christ, as a fulfilment of his suretyship-engagements to satisfy offended justice, and to accomplish the deliverance of lost men. Divine Saviour, inspire us with an ardent desire for thy fellowship. While we engage in thy holy ordinances, may our hearts burn with love to thyself. We pray that we, and our children, and all our relatives, may be filled with thy love. If we love thee, O may we love thee more and more. If we have no love to thee our God, may thy Holy Spirit teach us to love thee now.

All we ask is for Jesus our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

A HOLY, FORGIVING SPIRIT.

Walterham. Highbury College. Orono. Ellenborough. c. n.

- 1 BEHOOLD the love, the generous love
That holy David shows;
Hark, how his sounding bowels move
To his afflicted foes!
- 2 When they are sick his soul complains,
And seems to feel the smart;
The spirit of the gospel reigns,
And melts his pious heart.
- 3 How did his flowing tears condole,
As for a brother dead!
And fasting mortified his soul,
While for their life he prayed.

WATTS, Ps. 35, p. 11.

PSALM XXXV.

David prays for Deliverance from his Enemies.

PLEAD my cause, O LORD, with them that strive with me:
fight against them that fight against me.

2 Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

3 Draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me: say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

4 Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after my soul: let them be turned back and brought to confusion that devise my hurt.

5 Let them be as chaff before the wind: and let the angel of the LORD chase them.

6 Let their way be dark and slippery: and let the angel of the LORD persecute them.

7 For without cause have they hid for me their net in a pit, which without cause they have digged for my soul.

8 Let destruction come upon him at unawares; and let his net that he hath hid catch himself: into that very destruction let him fall.

9 And my soul shall be joyful in the LORD: it shall rejoice in his salvation.

10 All my bones shall say, LORD, who is like unto thee, which deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that spoileth him?

11 False witnesses did rise up; they laid to my charge things that I knew not.

12 They rewarded me evil for good to the spoiling of my soul.

13 But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth: I humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom.

14 I believed myself as though he had been my friend or brother: I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother.

15 But in mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together: yea, the abjects gathered themselves together against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not:

16 With hypocritical mockers in feasts, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

17 LORD, how long wilt thou look on? rescue my soul from their destructions, my darling from the lions.

18 I will give thee thanks in the great congregation: I will praise thee among much people.

19 Let not them that are mine enemies wrongfully rejoice over me: neither let them wink with the eye that hate me without a cause.

20 For they speak not peace: but they devise deceitful matters against them that are quiet in the land.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXV.—O how delightful the confidence which the believer is enabled to place in his God and Saviour! Great is his privilege, for Jesus is his advocate, his captain, his defence, his all. O what confusion, sorrow, despair, fall down upon their enemies like an overwhelming flood, when Jesus rises up to vindicate his people's cause! God is the overflowing fountain of believers' joy, while the deliverances he accomplishes in their behalf fill their souls with admiration and love, and their mouths with songs of triumphant praise. How dreadfully severe were the sufferings of Christ! My soul, for thee he endured the envenomed arrows of the reproaches of men. What a contrast!—Christ's mercy and their cruelty! Christ's pity and their enmity! his benevolence and their unthankfulness! Was there ever sorrow like his sorrow? Was there ever enmity like their enmity? Was there ever kindness like his kindness? Was there ever ingratitude like their ingratitude? How his murderers were astonished, confounded, disappointed, tormented, when the body they nailed to a cross rose triumphantly from the tomb! It is vain for the wicked to imagine that their purposes shall succeed: they may rejoice, but it will be only for a short season; and while their temporary triumph shall be followed by the miseries of hell, the sorrows of the redeemed shall be followed by the joys of immortality.

PRAYER.

WITH thankfulness and joy, O Lord our God, we come before thy throne, on the morning of thy sacred day. We adore thee as the everlasting Jehovah. Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial throughout all generations. The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, even they shall perish from the earth, and from under the heavens; but thou, the true and living God, shalt endure for ever.

We thank thee for thy preserving care during the past week and the past night: and that thou hast lengthened out our time, and art lengthening out our privileges. O let not the continued opportunities of repentance and salvation be lost on any of the members of this family. God forbid that our privileges should appear against us to our condemnation on that solemn day, when assembled worlds shall appear before thy great tribunal. We thank thee that thou hast awakened our bodies from sleep. O awaken our souls from that sleep which is spiritual, even from the sleep of sin, indolence, and spiritual death. As thou hast caused the light of this day to shine upon our natural eye, mercifully cause the light of thy Word and Spirit to shine upon the eye of our understanding. As thou art adding new Sabbaths to our lives, add new graces to our souls, that we may be wholly devoted to thy service and glory.

Preserve us, O Lord, from the craft and malice and power of all our spiritual enemies. Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after our soul. May we ever remember, that if we are the genuine followers of Christ, we are his soldiers. O give us skill and fortitude and strength to encounter and conquer all our spiritual antagonists. Let them be as chaff before the wind; and let the angel of the Lord chase them away.

We adore thee, O Jesus, for all the sufferings thou didst endure for our salvation. For us thou didst endure the reproaches of false witnesses; make us willing to endure suffering and reproach for thee.

Fill the hearts of our children and domestics with love to thy day, thy Bible, and thine ordinances.

Prepare us, and our friends, and the congregation to which we belong, for the services of this day. When we go into thy courts, may the Prince go with us; and when we come out, may Jesus, the Prince of life, accompany us.

Give to all thy ministers, and, in particular, to thy servant who shall break among us the bread of life, the tongue of the learned, that they may rightly divine the Word of truth, and speak a word in season to the weary soul. When the Word falls upon the external ear, may the dew of the Spirit's influences descend upon the hearts of multitudes.

We pray for a benighted world. Lord, have mercy upon it; and soon may all the nations of the earth be visited by the heralds of salvation. O forget not Abraham's race, and may they be brought into the fold of Christ. May the Spirit be the gracious comforter of afflicted souls. Hear us, for our Saviour's sake. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD THE GRACIOUS FOUNTAIN OF EVERY BLESSING.
Carr's Lane. Graves Chapel. New York. Staughton. C. M.

- 1 THEY justice shall maintain its throne,
Though mountains melt away;
Thy judgments are a world unknown,
A deep unfathomed sea.
- 2 Above the heavens' created rounds,
Thy mercies, Lord, extend;
Thy truth outlives the narrow bounds
Where time and nature end.
- 3 Safety to man thy goodness brings,
Nor overlooks the beast;
Beneath the shadow of thy wings
Thy children choose to rest.

WATTS, Ps. 36.

PSALM XXXV.

David prays for the Confusion of his Enemies.

YEA, they opened their mouth wide against me, and said,
Aha, aha, our eye hath seen it.

22 This thou hast seen, O LORD; keep not silence: O LORD, be not far from me.

23 Stir up thyself, and awake to my judgment, even unto my cause, my God and my Lord.

24 Judge me, O LORD my God, according to thy righteousness; and let them not rejoice over me.

25 Let them not say in their hearts, Ah, so would we have it: let them not say, We have swallowed him up.

26 Let them be ashamed and brought to confusion together that rejoice at mine hurt: let them be clothed with shame and dishonour that magnify themselves against me.

27 Let them shout for joy, and be glad, that favour my righteous cause: yea, let them say continually, Let the LORD be magnified, which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant.

28 And my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness, and of thy praise all the day long.

PSALM XXXVI.

The Iniquity of the Wicked, and the Excellency of God.

THE transgression of the wicked saith within my heart, that there is no fear of God before his eyes.

2 For he flattereth himself in his own eyes, until his iniquity be found to be hateful.

3 The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit: he hath left off to be wise, and to do good.

4 He deviseth mischief upon his bed; he setteth himself in a way that is not good; he abhorreth not evil.

5 Thy mercy, O LORD, is in the heavens; and thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds.

6 Thy righteousness is like the great mountains; thy judgments are a great deep: O LORD, thou preservest man and beast.

7 How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings.

8 They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

9 For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light.

10 O continue thy lovingkindness unto them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart.

11 Let not the foot of pride come against me, and let not the hand of the wicked remove me.

12 There are the workers of iniquity fallen: they are cast down, and shall not be able to rise.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXV.—In all ages ungodly men have blasphemed Christ and reproached his people; but there is an awful day approaching, when they shall appear as condemned criminals before the judgment-seat of an offended God. O what a day! when the righteous shall be placed on the right-hand, and their malicious, persecuting enemies on the left, of the eternal Judge! The former shall shout the sweetest hallelujahs of joy, but the latter shall weep and lament in bitter accents of anguish and despair. How blessed even the present state of the saints! they mutually rejoice in each other's prosperity; God looks upon them with Divine delight, while they lift up their hearts in songs of praise to their Saviour and Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXVI.—Sin stupifies, benumbs, and hardens the heart. Lamentable and sad the state of that mind from which the impressions of the being and attributes of God are effaced.
The saints experience unspeakable delight in meditating on the per-fections of God manifested in Jesus. In every affliction may I flee under the wings of the paternal watchfulness of my Saviour! What a boundless fountain of holiness, peace, and joy, is Jesus, the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness! And what a glorious Sun is Christ!
Soon may he enlighten the nations of the earth. The knowledge of God and unfeigned piety are associated with the choicest blessings.
Humility is the presage of eternal glory, but pride the forerunner of everlasting woe.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire, with humility, gratitude, and joy to approach thy mercy-seat, in the name of our Divine Intercessor. Thou hast allowed us to enjoy fellowship with thyself in the public ordinances of thine appointment, and now we are permitted to enjoy this sacred and Divine communion in the more private ordinances of thine appointment. O teach us more highly to appreciate and more diligently to improve these invaluable privileges and unmerited honours.

Thy Sabbath, O Lord, most peculiarly proclaims thy mercy.
Thy mercy is in the heavens, from whence showers of mercy are unceasingly descending upon the children of men. As a family, we are constantly refreshed with the showers of thy providential mercy: O may we be refreshed with the showers of thy saving grace! We acknowledge and adore thy faithfulness, which reacheth unto the clouds. May our hearts be comforted by the displays of thy faithfulness in the fulfilment of the conditions of the covenant of grace, in the fulfilment of the prophecies of thy Word, and in the fulfilment of the promises of thy truth. Thy righteousness is like the great mountains: thy judgments are a great deep: O Lord, thou preservest man and beast. How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O God, which shines in the Person and righteousness of thy dear Son. May our minds, and the minds of multitudes, be so impressed with thy loving-kindness under a preached Gospel this day, that we shall be induced for ever to put our trust under the shadow of thy wings. May the thousands who have attended the dispensation of the Gospel be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house: and soon may the blinded inhabitants of distant regions drink of the river of thy pleasures. If there are any in this our family-circle, or any among our beloved relatives and friends, who have not yet tasted and seen that God is good, and who are foolishly applying to broken cisterns for comfort, mercifully bring them to thyself, thou God of salvation, the true fountain of life.

Persuade and enable all our dear children to taste and see that thou art good. May they ever love to frequent thy courts, where the river of saving pleasure flows.

May we ever love thy house, and delight to frequent thy sanctuary, where the gospel-table is covered with the bread of life, and where mercy flows like a refreshing stream.

We would earnestly supplicate thee our God, that the services of this Sabbath may be followed by abundant fruit. May thy promise, My word shall not return unto me void, encourage us and all thy believing people and faithful ministers.

We thank thee for all the goodness thou hast made to pass before thy ministers and people, and that thou hast opened thine hand, and we have been filled with good. Into thy merciful arms we commend ourselves this night; and all we ask is for Jesus our great Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PRAISING JESUS.

Consolation. Germany. Northampton Chapel. Jewin Street. P. M.

1 PRAISE the Saviour, all ye nations,
Praise him, all ye hosts above;
Shout, with joyful acclamations,
His divine, victorious love:
Be his kingdom now promoted,
Let the earth her monarch know:
Be my all to him devoted,
To my Lord my all I owe.

2 See, how beautiful on the mountains
Are their feet, whose grand design
Is to guide us to the fountains
That o'erflow with bliss divine—
Who proclaim the joyful tidings
Of salvation all around—
Disregard the world's doridings,
And in works of love abound.

B. FRANCIS.

EXODUS XXXIV.

The Shining of the Face of Moses.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.

28 And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

29 And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put a veil on his face.

34 But when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the veil off, until he came out. And he came out, and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

EXODUS XXXV.

The Voluntary Contributions to the Tabernacle.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.

21 And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORD's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.

22 And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing hearted, and brought bracelets, and earrings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered offered an offering of gold unto the LORD.

23 And every man, with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass, brought the LORD's offering: and every man, with whom was found shittim wood, for any work of the service, brought it.

25 And all the women that were wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

29 The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXIV., XXXV.—Who can describe the blessedness of those who are in covenant with God! They are secure in the enjoyment of God's favour on earth, and shall for ever enjoy his fellowship in heaven. May my soul ever aspire after intercourse with God. As the face of Moses shone when he came from the presence of the Lord, may our life and conversation shine with the beauties of holiness, and show that we have been with Jesus. They who ardently love Jesus, freely consecrate their substance to promote the interests of his kingdom. Christian liberality is the offspring of grace. It is an emanation from the Deity, who giveth to all liberally, and who looks upon the liberal giver with complacency and smiles. It is a blessed mark of a prosperous church, when its members freely dedicate their substance to advance the prosperity of Zion. May this holy liberality inspire our hearts, and may we consider that all we are and have are the property of Jesus.

PRAYER.

HOLY and divine Spirit, may we not only be enabled by thy grace to approach the throne of mercy with confidence, as children approaching a father, but with reverence, as creatures drawing near to the great Creator.

We adore thee, O Lord, in the eternity of thy being. Thy years are throughout all generations. Of old hast thou laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thine hand; they shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old as doth a garment; as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.

We present our thanks for the mercies, comforts, and privileges enjoyed on the past Sabbath; and for what our eyes have seen and our hands have handled of the Word of life. By thy Word preached, and the ordinances of religion dispensed, may we be prepared for the duties and the difficulties of the week.

Gracious Father, we pray that, as thou didst make a covenant with ancient Israel, thou wouldst take us as a family into covenant with thyself. As thou hast, by an act of infinite condescension, declared thyself willing to be the Lord our God, may we, by an act of affectionate and believing devotedness, surrender ourselves, soul and body, to be thine, wholly and for ever.

O make thy covenant with our beloved offspring and servants. We desire, in the exercise of faith, to commit them to the merciful arms of our God.

We praise thee, O Lord, for thy condescending goodness, in admitting Moses to such endearing and familiar intercourse with thyself. As his face shone when he came down from the mount, where he beheld thy glory, may we enjoy thy fellowship, and derive such benefit from intercourse with thee our Saviour, that our lives may shine with the lustre of humility, holiness, and heavenly grace.

May the example of the ancient Israelites, in giving so liberally of their substance for erecting the Tabernacle, put us to shame when we think of our backwardness to promote the interests of thy kingdom on earth. The gold and the silver are thine; and a liberal heart to bestow is also thy gift. When thou in thy great mercy givest us the power to bestow, O do thou also confer upon us the desire to communicate. In the circle in which we move, and in the congregation to which we belong, may we be alive to every call of benevolence, but, above all, be ever ready with our substance, our time, and our influence, to advance the interests of the kingdom of Christ. Forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for our Redeemer's sake, to whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be ascribed glory and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS.

Charity. Nailsworth. Alice Street.

L. M.

- 1 WHEN I the holy grave survey,
Where once my Saviour deigned to lie;
I see fulfilled what prophets say,
And all the power of death defy.
- 2 This empty tomb shall now proclaim
How weak the bands of conquered death:
Sweet pledge, that all who trust his name
Shall rise, and draw immortal breath!
- 3 Our Surety, freed, declares us free,
For whose offences he was seized:
In his release our own we see,
And shout to view Jehovah pleased.

WALLIN.

LUKE XXIV.

Christ's Ascension.

AND they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

35 And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

36 And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37 But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.

38 And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

40 And when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his hands and his feet.

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, Have ye here any meat?

42 And they gave him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb.

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.

44 And he said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me.

45 Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures,

46 And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

47 And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

48 And ye are witnesses of these things.

49 And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high.

50 And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them.

51 And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them; and carried up into heaven.

52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy:

53 And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON LUKE XXIV.—The eleven disciples illustrated the truth of that inspired saying, "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard." Intensely interesting were their mutual reflections, while they conversed together after the resurrection of Christ, and heard the tidings that he was raised from the dead. So acceptable was the information to their wondering hearts, that they could scarcely believe in the reality of the event. They longed, they prayed to see the living Saviour, if he had actually burst the bands of death. What they asked they received, what they sought they found, what they wished they realized and enjoyed. They found him whom their souls loved; they heard the flowing, gentle accents of his loving voice; they saw his hands and feet, still retaining the marks of the cruel nails which fixed him to the accursed tree; they saw his bosom, and the traces of that wound inflicted by the cruel spear; they saw, they believed, they loved, and adored.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, we desire, after the secular duties and engagements of the day, to retire from the world and its pursuits, its allurements and temptations, its smiles and its frowns, that we may hold converse with thyself.

Divine Redeemer, we acknowledge thee in all thy glorious and uncreated excellences. It is the will of God that all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. Holy Spirit, enable us to act in conformity to the will of God. O Jesus, thou art the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of the Father's Person. We would join the angels round about the throne, and the holy elders, saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

We supplicate the blessing of our God on what we have now read respecting the resurrection of our Lord, his interview with his disciples, the commission which he delivered to them, the promise with which he encouraged them, and his ascension to heaven while in the act of pouring blessings on their head. What are we, that we should be permitted to read truths and facts so animating and sacred! May they be instrumental in weaning our hearts from the world, in raising our minds to heaven, and in placing our affections with increasing and with superlative admiration on our ascended and triumphant Redeemer.

Teach us ever to meditate with holy satisfaction and joy on the resurrection of Christ. Give us that lively faith by which we shall clearly see that the resurrection of Christ is the blessed proof of the divinity of his mission, and of the satisfaction which was given to offended justice by his sufferings and death. O give us that lively faith by which we shall view the resurrection of Jesus as the first-fruits of them who sleep, and as the joyful proof that all his people shall awake from the tomb amid the songs of angels, on the morning of the last day. As a family, may all of us, old and young, receive Christ as our Saviour and Lord; then, in the prospect of death, the grave, and the exalted glories of the resurrection, we shall sing triumphantly, O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? When the resurrection-day arrives, O may our dear children appear at the right-hand of God amid assembled saints! O teach us, by faith, to sing in holy triumph: Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through Jesus Christ our Lord. O Jesus, as thou didst bless the disciples immediately before thine ascension to heaven, bless us now thou art in heaven. Thou hast ascended up on high, and hast received gifts for ever. Give us of the gifts of thy salvation; then we shall have a treasure eternal as thy throne.

With filial confidence we commend ourselves and our friends to thy care this night, and all the time of our earthly pilgrimage. Hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost be ascribed unceasing praises. Amen.

GOD RECONCILED.

Worship. Gravelle. Matthew. Elia.

G. M.

- 1 COME, let us lift our joyful eyes
Up to the courts above,
And smile to see our Father there
Upon a throne of love.
- 2 Once 't was a seat of dreadful wrath,
And shot devouring flame;
Our God appeared consuming fire,
And Vengeance was his name.
- 3 Rich were the drops of Jesus' blood,
That calmed his frowning face,
That sprinkled o'er the burning throne,
And turned the wrath to grace.

WATER, 108, B. 11.

EXODUS XXXVII.

The Ark, Table of Shew-bread, and Golden Candlestick.

AND Bezaleel made the ark of shittim wood: two cubits and a half was the length of it, and a cubit and a half the breadth of it, and a cubit and a half the height of it:

2 And he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a crown of gold to it round about.

3 And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it; even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it.

4 And he made staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold.

5 And he put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

6 And he made the mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half was the length thereof, and one cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

7 And he made two cherubims of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the mercy seat;

8 One cherub on the end on this side, and another cherub on the other end on that side: out of the mercy seat made he the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

9 And the cherubims spread out their wings on high, and covered with their wings over the mercy seat, with their faces one to another; even to the mercy seatward were the faces of the cherubims.

10 And he made the table of shittim wood: two cubits was the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof:

11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.

12 Also he made thereunto a border of an hand breadth round about; and made a crown of gold for the border thereof round about.

17 And he made the candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work made he the candlestick; his shaft, and his branch, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers, were of the same:

25 And he made the incense altar of shittim wood: the length of it was a cubit, and the breadth of it a cubit; it was four-square; and two cubits was the height of it; the horns thereof were of the same.

26 And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it: also he made unto it a crown of gold round about.

27 And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, to be places for the staves to bear it withal.

28 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold.

29 And he made the holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXVII.—May we not look upon the ark of the covenant as a most interesting and instructive type of Christ, the incarnate God, our Saviour? The wood of which the ark consisted may represent his humanity; and the gold with which it was overspread within and without as figurative of the glories of his Divinity. The ark was formed to accompany Israel wherever they went, and was an emblem of the real presence of their God. Jesus, as the God of salvation, is ever present with them in all their wanderings in the wilderness of this world, and in all their journeyings to the heavenly Canaan. He is their guide, their light, their glory, and defence.

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Spirit, we adore thee in thy might and in thy mercy. We know, O Lord, thou canst do everything, and with thee all things are possible. Thou hast a mighty arm; strong is thine arm, and high is thy right hand; and there is nothing too hard for thee.

We thank our God and Father that we have been mercifully preserved during the last night, and that we have awoken this morning in the enjoyment of bodily health and mental tranquillity; and that we are now admitted to one of the greatest spiritual privileges on earth, namely, that of approaching the throne of grace. What are we, O Lord, that thine eye should have watched over us, and thine hand should have defended us?

May we enter on this day under the sacred influence and wise counsel of thy Holy Spirit. Make us thine obedient children. May we never obey thee as slaves; may we always obey thee as sons. We bless thee that thou hast said respecting obedience—O may our hearts feel it!—Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken to the voice of God than the fat of rams. This one thing didst thou command ancient Israel above all others: Obey my voice, and walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you. Give us grace to do as thou hast commanded.

Bless to us what we have now read of the ark of the covenant, of the golden candlestick, and of the golden altar of incense. In them, O Lord, may we see the figurative and lively emblems of the spiritual blessings enjoyed by thy Church in New Testament days. Blessed Immanuel, we acknowledge thee as the true ark of the covenant. In thy spotless humanity dwells thy glorious Divinity. May it be our blessedness to admire thee in all the mysteries of thy person as God and man. By faith may we see the glory and the necessity of the union of thy two natures. May we see the necessity of thy humanity, that thou mightst obey, suffer, and die.

We come to thee as the light of the church, represented by the golden candlestick in the ancient Tabernacle and Temple. Illuminate the churches more and more. Dispel the clouds of ignorance, error, bigotry, and superstition which prevail so extensively throughout the Christian world.

Eternal praises to our God, that we have heard of a more glorious mercy-seat than the mercy-seat of gold which covered the ark of the covenant. We thank our God for the throne of grace, the true mercy-seat. We rejoice there is no angel with his flaming sword to prevent even the most unworthy and vile from drawing near to this true mercy-seat.

Lord, teach our dear children to approach the throne of grace with humility, confidence, and love. Never while they live may they forsake the throne of grace on earth; then will thou at last take them to the throne of glory in heaven.

We would rejoice, O Jesus, in the incense of thine atonement. As our Intercessor, graciously present our persons and services before thy Father's throne with the incense of thy righteousness: then shall our prayers be answered and our sins forgiven. All we ask is for our Saviour's sake. And to the Triune Jehovah be ascribed glory and honour, for ever and ever. Amen.

JESUS ADORED.

Melody. Marylebone. Charnock. Irish. c. m.

- 1 THREE we adore, Eternal Word,
The Father's equal Son;
By heaven's obedient hosts adored,
Ere time its course begun.
- 2 The first creation has displayed
Thine energy divino;
For not a single thing was made
By other hands than thine.
- 3 But, ransomed sinners, with delight
Sublimor facts survey,—
The all-creating Word unites
Himself to dust and clay.
- 4 See the Redeemer clothed in flesh,
And ask the reason, Why?
The answer fills my soul afresh,
To suffer, bleed, and die!
- 5 Creation's Author now assumes
A creature's humble form!
A man of grief and woe becomes,
And trod on like a worm.

ANON.

JOHN I.

Christ's Divinity.

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

- 2 The same was in the beginning with God.
- 3 All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.
- 4 In him was life; and the life was the light of men.
- 5 And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.
- 6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.
- 7 The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe.
- 8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.
- 9 That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.
- 10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.
- 11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.
- 12 But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name:
- 13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.
- 14 And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.
- 15 John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me.
- 16 And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.
- 17 For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.
- 18 No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN I.—JOHN, the penman of this Gospel, and of the three epistles which bear his name, was originally a fisherman. From this humble profession he was called to be one of Christ's disciples, and he became his peculiar favourite, who leaned upon his bosom. Long after the death of the other apostles, when the church was first plagued with the denial of our Saviour's divinity, John particularly aims to demonstrate that fundamental doctrine of the Christian faith, and to manifest the inexcusable guilt of the Jews in rejecting him. How wonderful is Jesus! He is the Divine Word, in whom are laid up all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. He is the incarnate Jehovah, possessing all the uncreated attributes of the Godhead. "How great his power is! None can tell!" For by his power he called into being the fair, the boundless universe. By his power he formed men to glorify his name on earth; and he formed angels to sing his praises in heaven. Have we received him as the great God, our Saviour? Are we daily drawing supplies from his fulness? And do we unite with angels in our expressions of adoration and praise?

PRAYER.

WE acknowledge and adore thee, O Lord, in all the mysteries and incomprehensible glories of thy being and perfections. Exalted Saviour, thou art Immanuel, God with us, possessing the same Divine essence with the Father and the ever-blessed Spirit. Thou art from everlasting, existing before all worlds, and in thy Divine personality didst lie in the bosom of the Father before the morning-stars sung together—before the angelic sons of God shouted for joy. We acknowledge, O Jesus, that thou art the Creator of all things. Thou didst create the ocean and the dry land; thou didst replenish the earth with inhabitants, and adorn its surface with grass for cattle, and herbs for the use of man. The heavens also are the work of thine hands, and thou didst fix in the firmament of the sky those innumerable orbs of light—the sun that rules the day, and the moon and stars which rule the night. We rejoice that thou dost still exercise thy creating power, in forming a new nature in the souls of the children of men. O make each of us new creatures. As we are the creatures of thy hand, make us the objects of thy grace. Blessed Saviour, we surrender ourselves to thy power, and commit ourselves to thy mercy. May we know experimentally that thou art a Saviour whose power is almighty and whose grace is boundless. Thou art the Lord of life, and thou art the source of life. It is from thee, as our Creator, we have derived natural and rational life; O may we receive from thee, as a Saviour, life spiritual and eternal. Thou art the light of the world—the author of that natural light which shines in the visible heavens, and the fountain of that intellectual light which shines in the mind of man. Mercifully cause the light of thy grace to shine in our hearts. May the eyes of our understanding be enlightened, and may our night of ignorance be changed into a day of saving knowledge, love, and joy.

O have mercy on a benighted world. Sun of righteousness, Sun of uncreated glory, graciously shine with the rays of Gospel-light, with the bright beams of thy saving mercy, on those enslaved and miserable nations which still remain in the dreary region and shadow of death.

Have mercy on our dear children, the objects of our anxious care. Give them grace to receive thee, O Jesus; then shall they become the children of God. May we soon see some token that they are born again.

We rejoice, O Divine Saviour, in thy fulness. It hath pleased the Father, that in thee, as Mediator, should all fulness dwell. May we, and our beloved connections, and the congregation with which we are associated in church-fellowship, the aged, and, in particular, the sons and daughters of affliction, know savingly thy mediatorial fulness of grace; and out of this thy fulness may we all receive, and grace for grace. We thank God for the continued mercies of another day; we supplicate our Father's care this night, and implore the pardon of all our sins, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit be ascribed deserved praise. Amen.

JESUS THE ANTI-TYPE HAS COME.

Sabbary Plain. Chadwell. Anna. Messiah. c. 2.

- 1 THE true Messiah now appears,
The types are all withdrawn;
So fly the shadows and the stars
Before the rising dawn.
- 2 No smoking sweets, nor bleeding lambs,
Nor kid nor bullock slain,
Incense and spice of costly names
Would all be burnt in vain.
- 3 Aaron must lay his robes away,
His mitre and his vest,
When God himself comes down to be
The offering and the priest.      WATTS, 12, B. 11.

EXODUS XXXIX.

The Ephod and Breastplate.

AND of the blue, and purple, and scarlet, they made cloths of service, to do service in the holy place, and made the holy garments for Aaron; as the Lord commanded Moses.

2 And he made the ephod of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet and fine twined linen.

3 And they did beat the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wires, to work it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the scarlet, and in the fine linen, with cunning work.

4 They made shoulder pieces for it, to couple it together: by the two edges was it coupled together.

5 And the curious girdle of his ephod, that was upon it, was of the same, according to the work thereof; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen; as the Lord commanded Moses.

6 And they wrought onyx stones inclosed in ouches of gold, graven, as signets are graven, with the names of the children of Israel.

7 And he put them on the shoulders of the ephod, that they should be stones for a memorial to the children of Israel; as the Lord commanded Moses.

8 And he made the breastplate of cunning work, like the work of the ephod; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 It was foursquare; they made the breastplate double: a span was the length thereof, and a span the breadth thereof, being doubled.

10 And they set in it four rows of stones; the first row was a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this was the first row.

11 And the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

12 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

13 And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings.

14 And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, every one with his name according to the twelve tribes.

15 And they made upon the breastplate chains at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings; and put the two rings in the two ends of the breastplate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breastplate.

18 And the two ends of the two wreathen chains they fastened in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod, before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, upon the border of it, which was on the side of the ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

21 And they did bind the breastplate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the Lord commanded Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXIX.—Blessed are they who are the servants of the living God. Their employment is the most honourable. They are engaged in the service of HIM who sways the sceptre of universal dominion, and who shall raise his servants to immortal blessedness in heaven. Let believers ever remember that they are the priests of Zion's King, and appointed to present spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God. How beautiful are the garments in which they are arrayed!—the garments of grace, more beautiful than the finest purple, and more costly than the jewels which sparkle in the diadems of kings. Blessed Saviour, may we ever enjoy the benefit of thy intercession, and by faith see that our humble names are engraven on thy glorious breastplate.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the Lord of hosts, who created the heavens and formed the earth; thou art the Lord Jehovah, in whom is everlasting strength; and thou art not only able but willing to do exceeding abundantly above all that we can ask or think.

O Lord, thy loving-kindness is endless. During another night we have experienced thy care, and to another day thou hast spared our lives. We have found thy gifts are new every morning, and, like the early dew, thy mercies have continually descended upon us.

Give us a rich supply of grace for the duties, temptations, difficulties, and trials of the day. Like the sun, which regularly visits the earth with the influence of his genial warmth and animating light, may we regularly fulfil the appointed duties of every day. May we not languish in thy service, but, with our minds ready and our wills active, may we march on our heavenly way. Accomplish in our experience that promise, They shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint.

Gracious and Divine Spirit, in all our approaches to the throne of grace, may we be increasingly impressed with the necessity of thine influence from above. As a family, do thou visit us, and never depart. May we be prevented from grieving thee, and from resisting thy gracious power.

O Lord, we confess our sinfulness, unworthiness, and guilt. Though thou hast loved us freely with an everlasting love, and though thou hast allured us to thyself by innumerable mercies, yet, alas, we have rewarded thee evil for good, and hatred for kindness.

Where can we look for deliverance from the power of sin but to thyself, whom we have offended? And where can we look for the pardon of sin but to thyself, who alone hast power to forgive sin? May we be arrayed in garments of grace and holiness, more lovely and glorious than the ephod and the breastplate which Aaron wore. May our souls be purified through the Spirit in obeying the truth. Mercifully grant, that by the merit of thy righteousness the pollution and the guilt of our sins may be for ever removed.

Give to our beloved children, and to all the rising race, a breastplate of righteousness, with which the breastplate of the ancient high-priest could never be compared. O give them the righteousness of Christ imputed, and the righteousness of grace implanted.

May our prayers be answered, for the sake of our advocate, Jesus Christ, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be ascribed eternal praises. Amen.

THE PROCLAMATION OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

Bethel New. Israel. Irish. London.

c. n.

- 1 JOHN was the prophet of the Lord
To go before his face,
The herald which our Saviour God
Sent to prepare his ways.
- 2 'Behold the Lamb of God,' he cries,
'That takes our guilt away:
I saw the Spirit o'er his head,
On his baptizing day.
- 3 'Be every vale exalted high,
Sink every mountain low;
The proud must stoop, and humble souls
Shall his salvation know.'

Watts, 50, B. I.

JOHN I.

John the Baptist's Testimony respecting Christ.

AND this is the record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?
20 And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ.

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered, No.

22 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself?

23 He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias.

24 And they which were sent were of the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

26 John answered them, saying, I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not;

27 He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

28 These things were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me: for he was before me.

31 And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water.

32 And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not; but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God.

ANNOTATIONS UPON JOHN I.—John the Baptist occupies a most important place in the history of the Church of God. His single life forms a distinct dispensation. He filled an office never filled by any of the servants of the living God. Neither before his day, nor after it, has any risen in the Church of Christ to discharge similar duties. He was the FORERUNNER of the Messiah, occupying a place more honourable than that of Moses or any of the worthies of the Old Testament days. He was foretold by Isaias: and thus the prophet Malachi wrote of him, at the distance of four hundred years: "Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple: even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts." This great man was born a few months before our Lord, was nearly related to him after the flesh, and was beheaded in prison by the command of cruel Herod.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN I.—The greatness of John the Baptist's grace appeared in the greatness of his humility, and in his grief that others considered him to be what he was not, and that they thought of him more highly than they should have thought. True grace teaches its possessor to wish to occupy the shade, that Christ's glory might shine forth; to have his name buried in oblivion, that Christ's fame might be spread abroad; and to be even nothing, that Christ might be ALL IN ALL. Have we beheld Jesus with the enlightened eye of faith and love? Do we believe in him as the Lamb of his Father's choice, the Lamb of his Father's superlative love, and the Lamb of his Father's acceptance? And do we believe that he is the Lamb who has made atonement for us?

PRAYER.

O LORD, the essential Jehovah, the Father of our spirits, and the inexhaustible fountain of all goodness, we approach thy gracious and blessed throne in the name of Christ. We praise thee for the displays of thy goodness and truth which thou hast given in the advent, the life, the sufferings, and the death of thine only, thy well-beloved Son. Thy truth, O Lord, endureth for ever. Thou art faithful who hast promised. All thy promises are yea and amen in Christ; and not one word has failed of all thy good promises which thou hast promised by the hands of thy servants the prophets.

During another day thou hast continued with us our temporal comforts and our spiritual privileges. Deliver us from the sin of being unmindful of thy blessings or ungrateful for thy mercies. May thy temporal mercies produce spiritual benefits, and be instrumental in binding us more closely to our God and Saviour, in holy affection and believing confidence.

Now we are about to lie down on our beds, may thy peace be our pillow, and, whether we awake in time or eternity, we shall be ever with thee, and awake amid thy gracious smiles. May we never lie down to sleep without remembering the sleep of death and the bed of the grave. May such serious reflections be mingled with holy joy; and with the apostle may we sing, For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.

Holy Spirit, bless to us the ordinance and privilege of reading the Scriptures. May it be our greatest delight to dig in the mines of eternal truth, there to find the shining and imperishable jewels of wisdom and grace.

May all of us be baptized with the baptism of the Spirit. Convince us that to be baptized with water will avail us nothing, unless we are baptized of the Holy Ghost. May we be baptized by the Holy Spirit as with fire.

Take our dear children and domestics, and bless them with the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost shed on them abundantly.

As a family, may the Holy Spirit, who descended on Jesus at his baptism, descend on us. We invite thee, heavenly Dove; O come with all thy quickening powers and rest upon us. Shed abroad in our hearts a pleasing sense of a Saviour's love to us; then a flame of love to our Lord will be enkindled in our bosoms, which shall burn and shine for ever and ever.

Merciful Saviour, thou art the Lamb of God. For us thou didst shed thy precious blood; for us thou didst lay down thy precious life. O teach us to behold thee with the eye of faith and with the eye of love. May all our relatives behold and know thee; may they behold and love thee. Teach the sons and daughters of affliction to behold thee in their sufferings, as a compassionate Saviour. O that all the inhabitants of the earth may soon behold thee as the Lamb that was slain that the sins of the world might be taken away. Grant this our earnest prayer. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Saviour. Amen.

THE BELIEVER'S WANTS AND WISHES.

Harmony. New Zion. Bowton. Houghton.

- 1 YET one thing we want:
More holiness grant!
For more of thy mind and thy image we pant
Thine image impress
On thy favourite race;
O fashion and polish thy vessels of grace!
- 2 Thy workmanship we
More fully would be;
Lord, stretch out thine hand, and conform us to thee:
While onward we move
To Canaan above,
Come fill us with holiness, fill us with love.      TO PLADY

EXODUS XXXIX.

The Tabernacle finished.

AND he made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was an hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rend.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

25 And they made bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates;

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the Lord commanded Moses.

27. And they made coats of fine linen of woven work for Aaron and for his sons,

28 And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and linen breeches of fine twined linen,

29 And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needle-work; as the Lord commanded Moses.

30 And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the Lord commanded Moses.

32 Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so did they.

33 And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his tables, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets,

34 And the covering of rams' skins dyed red, and the covering of badgers' skins, and the vail of the covering,

35 The ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy seat,

36 The table, and all the vessels thereof, and the shewbread,

37 The pure candlestick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels thereof, and the oil for light,

38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle door,

39 The brazen altar, and his grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot,

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars and his sockets, and the hanging for the court gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation,

41 The cloths of service to do service in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons' garments, to minister in the priest's office.

42 According to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so the children of Israel made all the work.

43 And Moses did look upon all the work, and, behold, they had done it as the Lord had commanded, even so had they done it: and Moses blessed them.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XXXIX.—Lovely and attractive were the garments of the high priest of the Jewish church, and they may be considered as a figurative emblem of the mediatorial qualifications and excellences of Jesus, the great High Priest of our profession. Very comely to the eyes of devout worshippers appeared the rich and suitable robes of the priests; infinitely more lovely, in the estimation of Christ, are the graces with which he has enriched and adorned his people. Looking upon his people arrayed in the robe of his righteousness, and in the graces of his Spirit, he says, respecting each one of them, "Thou art all fair."

PRAYER.

ETERNAL Jehovah, whom we approach in the name of Christ, thy throne is in the heavens. We rejoice that, though thou dwellest in the high and holy place, infinitely exalted above the loftiest of archangels, still thou condescendest to look down with compassion on the children of men. Notwithstanding the insignificance of man, thine eyes do see and thine eyelids try the children of men. Nothing in the vast universe can escape the scrutinizing glance of thine omniscience; neither is there any creature that is not manifest in thy sight: but all things are naked and open unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.

Desiring to be suitably and gratefully affected with a sense of thy preserving and comforting goodness during the past night, we would enter upon the duties and engagements of this day, impressed with a sense of our sinfulness, unworthiness, and guilt. May the inscription, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD, which was engraven upon the mitre of Aaron, remind us of what we are and of what we ought to be. By nature and by practice we have been unholy to the present day. We are unclean; we are altogether an unclean thing. O what shame should fill our hearts, when we compare our sinfulness with thy holiness, our iniquity with thy righteousness, and our rebellion and obstinacy with thy mercy and long-continued forbearance! May thy love to us call to our minds the remembrance of our unthankfulness and unworthiness. We confess that original corruption, which has proved the fruitful source of the manifold iniquities of our lives. We would mourn over the folly, the indolence, the thoughtlessness, and carnality of our youthful days. Alas, much of our time has been spent in the most culpable forgetfulness of our God, our Saviour, our souls, and the solemn realities of an eternal world. Long we have lived in ignorance and unbelief; we followed divers lusts and pleasures, and we resisted the Holy Spirit when he called upon us to forsake our sins, to repent, and turn to the Lord.

Most gracious God, enter not into judgment with us. For the sake of Jesus, who is the propitiation for the sins of men, may we obtain the forgiveness of all our sins. Deliver us from the guilt of childhood and youth; and O suffer not the more aggravated guilt of mature years to press us down into the lowest hell.

We again dedicate our beloved children to thee, our Saviour and God. We see in them the workings of corruption. We see that they have received from us a legacy of folly, obstinacy, and sin. Where can we bring them but unto thee, O gracious Redeemer? Our heart's desire and prayer is, that they may be holiness unto the Lord.

As Aaron and his sons were clothed with garments suited to their sacred office, may our minister, and all thy ministering servants, be clothed with those graces necessary to render them useful in thy vineyard and ornaments of thy Gospel. As a family, as a congregation, and as a nation, may we be HOLINESS TO THE LORD, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE BLESSEDNESS OF THE RIGHTEOUS.

Oletoks. Cottage. Bramcoate. Rockford.

L. M.

- 1 BLESS'D is the man, for ever bless'd,
Whose guilt is pardoned by his God,
Whose sins with sorrow are confess'd,
And covered with the Saviour's blood.
- 2 Bless'd is the man to whom the Lord
Imputes not his iniquities,
Ho pleads no merit of reward,
And not on works but grace relies.
- 3 From guile his heart and lips are free,
His humble joy, his holy fear,
With deep repentance well agree,
And join to prove his faith sincere.

Watts, Ps. 32, p. 1.

JOHN I.

Jesus calling Disciples.

A GAIN the next day after John stood, and two of his disciples;

36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God!

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master,) where dwellest thou?

39 He saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour.

40 One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.

41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messiah, which is, being interpreted, the Christ.

42 And he brought him to Jesus. And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone.

43 The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.

46 And Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and see.

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!

48 Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.

49 Nathanael answered and saith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel.

50 Jesus answered and said unto him, Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these.

51 And he saith unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man.

ANNOTATIONS UPON JOHN I.—We cannot conceive the amazement and delight which John felt when he saw the Incarnate Divinity before him, and when he said to his disciples, "Behold the Lamb of God." We are called in a preached Gospel to behold the Lamb of God. Now may we seek that faith by which we shall behold him and love him, behold him and trust him, behold him and serve him. Like the disciples of John may we follow Jesus. Happy, eternally happy are they who follow Jesus. He will lead them in the green pastures beside the still waters; and at death he will take them home to himself, that where he is there they may be also.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN I.—If we are followers of Christ, we shall feel an earnest concern that all our relatives be persuaded to be his followers. We will not only make it a matter of earnest prayer, but we will use loving and active efforts to bring them to Jesus, to be united to him as their shepherd, their Saviour, their captain, and their king. We should endeavour, affectionately and wisely, to tell them what we have found in Jesus, what Jesus has been to us, and what we have received from him, and what we yet hope to receive from his hand. Thus they may be persuaded by the Spirit to cast in their lot with us, to taste and see that God is good, to look to Jesus with believing and humble confidence, that he will spread over them the comely robe of his righteousness, and confer upon them the riches of his salvation.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, mercifully teach us the blessedness of drawing near the throne of God, in all our approaches, as children to a father. O Lord, thou art a Father never unmindful of thy children; never for one instant of time is thy paternal care withdrawn from the interests of thine offspring. As a father pities his children, so dost thou, the Lord, the great eternal Father, pity them that fear thee. Seeing we have such a Father as thee, the Lord, a Father so wise, so watchful, and so affectionate, may we in no instance be sinfully careless; but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, make our requests known unto God. Great is our encouragement thus to present our prayers with filial confidence and assurance, for thou hast promised thy Spirit to help our infirmities; and as we know not what we should pray for as we ought, thy Spirit is ever ready to make intercession for us, by pouring out upon us the spirit of grace and supplication. O give us this grace; O fulfil in our experience the precious promises of thy truth.

Enable us gratefully to acknowledge the mercies of the past day. We thank our God for all the blessings we have received which respect our bodies, our souls, our relations, and our circumstances. Amid all the dangers of the day thy hand has been our guard, and thy mercy has stood prepared with the rich blessings of thy goodness to drive all our wants away.

Now may we retire to rest, in the conviction that thou art the Lord our God. May we give our eyes to sleep in the enjoyment of that sweet peace which flows from a conviction that thou art our God and Father, reconciled in Christ.

Make us not only deeply concerned about our own salvation, but also about the salvation of all our relatives and friends. May they and we behold the Lamb of God. Blessed Jesus, may we behold thee as our Surety, who hast undertaken our cause. May we behold thee as our Prophet, who shalt enlighten our understandings in things Divine, and instruct us in the sublime mysteries of salvation.

Give us the unspeakable satisfaction and delight of seeing our children beholding the Lamb of God. O let the ardour of their youthful bosoms be rendered spiritual and sacred by a superlative admiration of Christ.

Suffer none of us to die till we are able to say, We have found the Messiah, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write. Inspire us with the genuine sincerity and unaffected humility of unfeigned piety. May we resemble Nathanael, whose character is held up for the admiration of thy people in all generations. O that we may be Israelites indeed, having the reality as well as the appearance, and the substance as well as the form, of saving grace. With Nathanael may we say, with believing and loving hearts, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art the King of Israel. May our evening sacrifice be accepted in Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRAYER FOR MINISTERS.

Warrminster. Babylon Streams. Goulds.

L. M.

- 1 FATHER of mercies, bow thine ear,
Attentive to our earnest prayer;
We plead for those who plead for thee;
Successful pleaders may they be.
- 2 How great their work! how vast their charge
Do thou their anxious souls enlarge;
Their best acquirements are our gain,
We share the blessings they obtain.
- 3 Clothe, then, with energy divine
Their words, and let those words be thine;
To them thy sacred truth reveal,
Suppress their fear, inflame their zeal.

BEDDOME.

EXODUS XL.

The Tabernacle reared.

AND thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water.

13 And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

14 And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them with coats:

15 And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office: for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood throughout their generations.

16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the Lord commanded him, so did he.

17 And it came to pass in the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up.

28 And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle.

29 And he put the altar of burnt offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and offered upon it the burnt offering and the meat offering; as the Lord commanded Moses.

30 And he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and put water there, to wash withal.

31 And Moses and Aaron and his sons washed their hands and their feet thereat:

32 When they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; as the Lord commanded Moses.

33 And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court gate. So Moses finished the work.

34 Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle.

35 And Moses was not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle.

36 And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel went onward in all their journeys:

37 But if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not till the day that it was taken up.

38 For the cloud of the Lord was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

REFLECTIONS UPON EXODUS XL.—The tabernacle may be considered as figurative of Christ. The materials of which the tabernacle was formed prefigured the humble humanity of Christ. All the materials were earthly. The body of Jesus sprung from the dust. The tabernacle was reared immediately for God's service; and humanity was provided for the great Surety, that he might yield obedience to the Divine law, and that he might present himself a sacrifice to satisfy the demands of offended justice. Was the tabernacle consecrated with oil? The Mediator was pre-eminently anointed with the Holy Ghost, said to be poured out upon him "without measure." In the tabernacle we see the altar of ceremonial atonement; in Jesus we see the real atonement, by which the guilt of myriads is effectually removed. In the tabernacle we see the laver for washing and purifying; but in looking to Jesus we find he is made to pollute sinners sanctification by the influences of his Spirit. In the tabernacle we see the golden candlesticks sending forth their light all around; in looking to Jesus we see the Light of the world, the Light of the Inspired Volume, the Light of the Church Militant below, and the Light of the Church Triumphant above. In the Holiest of all we behold the Shechinah, the evidence of God's presence; in looking on Jesus we behold God manifest in the flesh, the incarnate Jehovah, the great mystery of godliness! Let us believe, love, and adore!

PRAYER.

MOST glorious and most merciful God, three Persons in one undivided Divinity, we thy creatures and children, at the commencement of another day, would affectionately embrace this opportunity of approaching thy mercy-seat. When we think of thy perfections manifested by the great plan of salvation through our Saviour's righteousness, we would take up the adoring language of an apostle, O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! When we think of the boundless fountain of thy love, from whence streams of blessings flow to thy people, what reason have we to take up the language of the Psalmist, How great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee, which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee, before the sons of men! O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness! We would give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever.

During the last night thou hast added to the multitude of thy mercies, thou hast lengthened out the long catalogue of thy blessings. Accept of our thanks for these continued mercies, and in thy kindness give us this day the benefit of thy wisdom, thy protection, and thy watchfulness. Prepare us for the duties and trials of every day, and may we be fitted for the last day of our present transient and mortal life, when we shall bid an eternal adieu to all that is earthly, and enter upon the solemn realities of the eternal state.

Bless, O Lord, what we have read of the Word of life. May we ever take thy Word to be the rule of our obedience and the foundation of our faith.

We praise thee that thou hast formed a church, and that thou hast planted it on earth. We thank thee for the institution of ministers and of the holy ministry as the hallowed means of converting sinners, and of edifying and comforting saints. Blessed Jesus, thou art the Author of all those gifts and graces which thy ministers require for the solemn and responsible duties of their holy calling. For the honour of thy name, for the glory of Christ, for the extension of thy spiritual kingdom, for the deliverance of miserable captive souls, and for the edification and improvement of thy people, O fill the earthen vessels of thy ministers with the heavenly treasure of Divine grace. As thy visible glory filled the ancient tabernacle, may thy spiritual glory fill all our sanctuaries and all our churches. We would earnestly pray for the peace, the extension, and the prosperity of Zion.

O make our dear children members of thy Church invisible, separate them from a world lying in wickedness, and may they belong to the mystical body of Christ.

We supplicate the answer of our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our only Saviour. Amen.

THE EXAMPLE OF CHRIST.

Kennedy. New Bethlehem. Portugal. Uverston. L. M.

- 1 MY dear Redeemer and my Lord,
I read my duty in thy word;
But in thy life the law appears
Drawn out in living characters.
- 2 Such was thy truth, and such thy zeal,
Such deference to thy Father's will,
Such love, and meekness so divine,
I would transcribe, and make them mine.
- 3 Cold mountains and the midnight air
Witnessed the fervour of thy prayer:
The desert thy temptations knew,
Thy conflict and thy victory too.

Watts, 139, B. II.

JOHN II.

Christ attending a Marriage in Cana of Galilee.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there:

2 And both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.

3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.

4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.

5 His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

6 And there were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.

7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

8 And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.

9 When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,

10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.

11 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him.

12 After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and they continued there not many days.

13 And the Jews' passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

14 And found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting:

15 And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables;

16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.

17 And his disciples remembered that it was written, The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN II.—Of all earthly human covenants, that of marriage is the most interesting and sacred. Its appointment is Divine, and ancient as the creation of man. It is the origin of numerous and endearing relations, which call forth the most refined and tender emotions, and gives origin to affections by which families and societies, communities, and the Church of Christ are bound together by ties most remarkable for their value, usefulness, power, and duration. Christ's presence and blessing enhance the value of all earthly relations. We should be concerned to seek his gracious presence in all our social, and even convivial, meetings, for it is this which will surround them with a heavenly atmosphere; it is this which will make them preparatory to heaven; it is this which will make them an epitome of heaven. There was a deficiency at the marriage feast of Cana of Galilee. In the rich Gospel feast which Christ has provided for all people there is no deficiency; there is enough and to spare; a sufficiency to supply all generations of men to the close of ages. Have we accepted the invitation of wisdom to partake of the feast of mercy? What condescension in Jesus that he should make the church his bride! Let it be my earnest desire to be betrothed to him by an everlasting covenant. And let the disconsolate widow be comforted by these words: Thy Maker is thy husband.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY glorious Jehovah, and infinitely gracious and compassionate Lord God, it is good to draw near unto thee our God. We desire to feel solemnly impressed with a sense of thy majesty, power, and grace. Thou compassest the waters with bounds, until the day and night come to an end; thou shuttest up the sea as with doors and bars; saying, Hitherto shalt thou come, but no farther; and here shall thy proud waves be stayed. In thy hand are the deep places of the earth, and the strength of hills is thine also.

May the power of the Holy Spirit enkindle in our minds at this time the fire of sacred devotion; and, if we possess any portion of this holy fire, may the Spirit blow upon it, that it may increase into a lively flame. Preserve us, we beseech thee, from a lifeless frame, and from cold formality in our religious services. According to thy promise, pour out in these last days of thy Holy Spirit upon all thy servants, and upon every member of this family, as a spirit of wisdom and truth. May he be our unerring teacher, and may he bring to our remembrance whatsoever we should say unto thee.

We offer up to our God the humble tribute of thanksgiving for the blessings and enjoyments of the day. We praise God that it has not proved our last day, and that we have not been sent as guilty prisoners to that world of despair where no ray of hope ever cheers the minds of the miserable inhabitants. While the shades of another night are surrounding us, we desire to avail ourselves of the encouraging command of our God, to trust in the Lord for ever. When we lay down our weary head to rest from worldly cares, may we enjoy the rest of salvation; and if we are awake, may we commune with our own hearts, but above all hold fellowship with thee.

May pleasing impressions be produced on our minds by what we have now read. We adore thee, O Jesus, in the condescension and kindness thou didst manifest in honouring and sanctioning with thy presence the humble company which assembled at Cana of Galilee. Ever honour with thy presence our family, and all the families with which we stand connected. We thank thee for the blessings of friends and the blessings of friendship. May all our friends be the friends of Jesus, and may all our friendship be sweetened with piety. Give us grace to imitate the example of Christ. We are ashamed when we think of the ardour of his zeal and the coldness of ours. Like Jesus, may we have zeal for the glory of God; may we have zeal for the prosperity of the kingdom of Christ; may we have zeal for the spiritual improvement of the Church in its ministers and members.

May the same mind be in our children which was also in Christ; and may they be adorned with resemblance to his image.

Give ear, O God, to this our evening prayer, and hide not thyself from our supplications: but hearken thou, and hear, in heaven thy dwelling-place; and when thou hearest, forgive, and accept of our persons and services, as an offering of our hand, for Jesus' sake, our exalted Mediator. Amen.

THE OPERATIONS OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Desecrated. Adoration. Leads. Estor.

L. M.

- 1 ETHERNAL Spirit! we confess
And sing the wonders of thy grace;
Thy power conveys our blessings down
From God the Father and the Son.
- 2 Enlightened by thine heavenly ray,
Our shades and darkness turn to day;
Thine inward teachings make us know
Our danger and our refuge too.
- 3 Thy power and glory work within,
And break the chains of reigning sin,
Do our imperious lusts subdue,
And form our wretched hearts anew.

Watts, 133, B. 11.

LEVITICUS VIII.

Aaron and his Sons consecrated.

- AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the garments, and the anointing oil, and a bullock for the sin offering, and two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread;
3 And gather thou all the congregation together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.
4 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him; and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.
5 And Moses said unto the congregation, This is the thing which the LORD commanded to be done.
6 And Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water.
7 And he put upon him the coat, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and he girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.
8 And he put the breastplate upon him: also he put in the breastplate the Urim and the Thummim.
9 And he put the mitre upon his head; also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront, did he put the golden plate, the holy crown; as the LORD commanded Moses.
10 And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified them.
11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all his vessels, both the laver and his foot, to sanctify them.
12 And he poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head, and anointed him, to sanctify him.
13 And Moses took of the anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments, with him; and sanctified Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.
14 And Moses said unto Aaron and to his sons, Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and there eat it with the bread that is in the basket of consecra-tions, as I commanded, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it.
15 Therefore shall ye abide at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the LORD, that ye die not: for so I am commanded.
16 So Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS VIII.—Holy families are consecrated to God, and the honour by which Christ distinguishes them unspeakably surpasses all that ephemeral honour—of which noble earthly families boast—which are distinguished by glittering titles and marks of royal favour, which the princes of this world bestow. Most important are those offices which Jesus appoints in his Church. The proper discharge of the duties of these offices as much concern the best interest and prosperity of the Church itself, as they concern the glory of Christ, the great Head of the Church. How indispensable for the right discharge of these duties is the anointing grace of the Holy Ghost! What washing and anointing were necessary for Aaron and his sons, before they could enter upon the functions of their sacred calling! What washing and anointing of the Holy Ghost do we require to prepare us to enter upon the lofty employments service, and worship of the heavenly world! Let it be our earnest desire to obtain a title to heaven, and preparation for heaven; and for this purpose we should be urgent, frequent, and persevering in our applications to the throne of grace to receive the unction from the Holy One. How very generally and frequently, under the law, all things were sprinkled with blood and anointed with oil! And what does this intimate and teach? Assuredly, that we should be daily sprinkled with the blood, and anointed with the influences of the spirit of Christ.

PRAYER.

HOLY and divine Spirit, we adore thee as possessed of the same uncreated nature, perfections, and glory with the Father and the Son. We adore thee in the displays of thine almighty power given in the original creation of the universe, when thou didst move upon the face of the waters. We adore thee in the displays of thine almighty grace given in the conversion of the souls of men, and in the qualifications given to thy ministering servants, by which they are prepared to be the successful heralds of the cross of Christ. In all ages thou hast conferred on the messengers of salvation a mouth and wisdom, which all their adversaries have not been able to gainsay or resist.

On the morning of the concluding day of another week we bow before the throne of grace, and with grateful feelings we would acknowledge the preserving kindness of our God during the past night. We would glorify thy grace, that our lives are not yet brought to a close. As that solemn day is fast approaching, that day when our mortal lives shall terminate, may it be the most important day in our existence, a day when our sins shall cease for ever, and a day which will introduce us to the pure and exalted blessings of eternal glory. We seek the guidance, the encouragement, and the protection of Divine grace this day.

We thank God that, in what we have now read, we can see the existence of the order of the holy ministry in the remotest periods of antiquity. We praise thee that, from the days of Adam to the present time, during the lapse of nearly six thousand years, thy ministering servants have been preserved to thy Church, and their regular and continued succession never disturbed. Blessed Jesus, thou art the Divine source of all those gifts and graces which thy servants need, and which thou hast most mercifully imparted to them in all ages. Thou hast never ceased to send thy good Spirit, who has given grace to all thy ministering servants and believing people, according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Thou, O Jesus, hast at thy disposal those comely garments of heavenly grace, which are suitable for thy servants to wear: O clothe thy priests with salvation. Thou alone hast the oil of heavenly attainments to bestow; mercifully pour that Divine and fragrant oil most plentifully on all thy faithful ambassadors.

In an especial manner give thy Spirit in large measure to thy ministering servant who presides over us in holy things. May we find in truth that he is the messenger of God to our souls. Under his labours may our understandings be enlightened, our affections purified, and our consciences be made tender, active, and faithful.

O may his faithful labours be effectual in the salvation of our beloved offspring, for whose deliverance from Satan's power we would travail as in birth.

This our morning sacrifice we present before the throne of God, in Jesus' name. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, we would ascribe the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

GIFT OF GOD.

Kensay. Amana. Bredby. China.

L. M.

- 1 JESUS, my love, my chief delight,
For thee I long, for thee I pray,
Amid the shadows of the night,
Amid the business of the day!
- 2 When shall I see thy smiling face,
That face which I have often seen?
Arise, thou Sun of righteousness!
Scatter the clouds that intervene.
- 3 Thou art the glorious gift of God
To sinners weary and distressed;
The first of all his gifts bestowed,
And certain pledge of all the rest.
- 4 Could I but say this gift is mine,
I'd tread the world beneath my feet;
No more at poverty repine,
Nor envy the rich sinner's state.

BEDDOCK.

JOHN III.

Regeneration.

THERE was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.

3 Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again.

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

13 And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven.

14 And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up:

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN III.—The name of the inquiring, and afterwards regenerated Nicodemus, signifies "a conqueror of the people." Jesus is the true Conqueror of human hearts; he conquered the heart of Nicodemus by his grace: O may he persuade and subdue our hearts by his gracious Spirit. Are we his willing subjects? Have we been made willing in the day of his power? What think we of Christ? Nicodemus thought highly of Jesus; but, for a time, his notions of him were incorrect and obscure. Do we look on Jesus as more than a teacher come from God? Do we know, and believe, that he is God and man in one person? Have we submitted to his tuition? And do we consider it our greatest honour, our greatest joy, to be humble disciples at his feet? What a change, what a universal, what a lasting change does regeneration effect upon the soul! It is a change too great, and too wonderful, for any power less than omnipotent to accomplish. Divine Spirit, it is thy power—thy power alone!

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, we adore thee as a God of loving-kindness and tender mercy. Thou art LOVE. Thou delightest unspeakably in acts of mercy and grace. The earth is full of the goodness of thy providence; but we rejoice that the Church is full of the goodness of thy grace. Glory to God in the highest, for the rich manifestation of thy love in the gift of thy well-beloved Son to a fallen, guilty, miserable world. What are we that our eyes should have ever read, that our ears should have ever heard, these blessed words: For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life? Justly thou mightst have sent thy Son on an embassy of wrath, to punish the rebellious race of men with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. But, glory to thy matchless grace, Thou didst not send thy Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved.

We thank our God that, in the midst of much mercy, thou hast brought us in safety to the close of another day and another week. We praise thee that no evil has befallen us. Graciously encompass us this night with the gracious arms of thy protecting grace. May we repose with confidence on thy care, and may our lives be spared to behold the light of another Sabbath-day, that we may unite with thy people in praising thy name.

Lord, deeply impress our minds with the absolute necessity of the new birth. As we have borne the image of the first Adam, from whom we are descended after the flesh, may we resemble the holy image of the second Adam, by being born after the Spirit. Holy Spirit, we would invite and earnestly implore thy regenerating grace. O give us new natures! If there are any among us altogether insensible to the necessity of a converting change, we beseech thee with all our heart that their insensibility may continue no longer. O awake them out of their dangerous slumbers! Heaven forbid that they should sleep the sleep of eternal death! By thine almighty power impress on their hearts that solemn truth, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. May they give themselves no rest, till they have supplicated thy grace with the earnestness of repentance, to accomplish within them this desirable, this necessary, this blessed change.

May our children be born again. May they be introduced into the kingdom of grace on earth; and when their bodily eyes are shut in death, may the eyes of their souls behold the glories of the kingdom of heaven above.

On the approaching Sabbath may Jesus be lifted up in the preaching of the Gospel, and may multitudes of diseased sinners look upon the divine Saviour, and be healed of all their diseases. O Jesus, may all of us believe on thee, and live for ever. Hearer of prayer, may our prayers be answered, for our Saviour's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all, for ever and ever. Amen.

CRIME OF ENVY, PRETFULNESS, AND UNBELIEF.

Kendal. Smyrna. Groves House. Follet.

G. M.

- 1 WHY should I vex my soul, and fret
To see the wicked rise?
Or envy sinners waxing great
By violence and lies?
- 2 As flowery grass cut down at noon,
Before the evening fades,
So shall their glories vanish soon
In everlasting shades.
- 3 Then let me make the Lord my trust,
And practise all that's good;
So shall I dwell among the just,
And he'll provide me food.
- 4 I to my God my ways commit,
And cheerful wait his will;
Thy hand, which guides my doubtful feet,
Shall my desires fulfil.

Watts, Ps. 37, p. 1.

PSALM XXXVII.

Patience and Confidence in God.

FRET not thyself because of evil doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.

2 For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb.

3 Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed.

4 Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart.

5 Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass.

6 And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noonday.

7 Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.

8 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself in any wise to do evil.

9 For evildoers shall be cut off: but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth.

10 For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be.

11 But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.

12 The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth.

13 The Lord shall laugh at him: for he seeth that his day is coming.

14 The wicked have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow, to cast down the poor and needy, and to slay such as be of upright conversation.

15 Their sword shall enter into their own heart, and their bows shall be broken.

16 A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked.

17 For the arms of the wicked shall be broken: but the Lord upholdeth the righteous.

18 The Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever.

19 They shall not be ashamed in the evil time: and in the days of famine they shall be satisfied.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXVII.—Even when wicked men are called to great power, and invested with the possession of great wealth, there is nothing in their circumstances which should call forth our envy, or even cause us in the slightest degree to stumble at the sovereign arrangements of a wise Providence who cannot possibly err, but who does every thing in the best manner, and to the best end. When we think of the awful doom of graceless men who are great and mighty in this world, but who shall be eternally miserable in the next, instead of exciting our envy, they call forth our compassion and our pity. Blessed are the prospects of the righteous. When their sorrows on earth cease, they enter upon the joys of heaven.

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, mercifully breathe upon us thy sacred influence, while we draw near to the throne of grace on the morning of the first day of the week. To thee we look for the spirit of grace and supplication.

O Lord, thou art a God of justice, and thou dost laugh at the enemies of thy people, while thou seest that day fast approaching when, if they die impenitent, their miserable doom shall be for ever fixed. We adore thee in the mercy thou dost manifest to thy people. Thou dost uphold the righteous; thou dost smile upon the days of the upright, and thou hast enriched them with an inheritance that shall endure for ever.

We confess our sinfulness and unworthiness, O Lord. In many instances we have fretted because of evildoers; their external prosperity has excited the corruptions of our heart; we have not rested on thee as we ought: neither have we in the day of affliction waited with sufficient patience for the fulfilment of the promises of thy truth. On many occasions we have indulged in sinful anger, and have laid aside the lovely meekness of the Gospel of Christ. Humble us, O Lord, under a sense of these our sins, and wash away their guilt, through the merit of our Saviour's righteousness.

Teach us, heavenly Father, to trust implicitly in thee, and to do good. May we ever delight in thee, O Jesus—in thy Person and thine offices; then wilt thou hear our prayers, and satisfy the desires of our heart with the blessings of thy salvation. May each one of us be justified through the merit of our Saviour's blood; then, before an assembled world, thou wilt bring forth our righteousness as the light, and our judgment as the noon-day.

O bless our dear children with the light of grace. Heaven grant that they may be among the wise who shall shine as the firmament, and as the stars for ever and ever.

We desire with joyful hearts to bless our God that our eyes have opened upon another Sabbath-day. May it be to us and thousands a day of holy rest and sacred joy. O that we could now exclaim with the holy and joyful fervour of the Psalmist, A day in thy courts is better than a thousand; we would rather be door-keepers in the house of our God than dwell in tents of wickedness!

O Lord, have mercy on all the churches. May they become gardens of spiritual beauty and fruitfulness. May barren churches revive as the corn; may erroneous churches be delivered from the mists of error; may proud Laodicean churches be humbled; and may superstitious churches return to the simplicity of the Gospel.

Have mercy on our rulers, and may they rule in the fear of the Lord. Have mercy on our merchants. Thou hast made them as princes; O make them saints!

Lead the afflicted to the fountain of mercy; and may the gloom of the apartment of suffering be dispelled by the light of thy countenance. Assist our beloved minister, and may we find him in reality a messenger of God.

Let many spiritual captives be set at liberty this day. Hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c

THE WAY AND END OF THE RIGHTEOUS AND WICKED.

Arundel. Smithfield. Abingdon. Foster. G. M.

- 1 MY God, the steps of pious men
Aro ordered by thy will;
Though they should fall, they rise again,
Thy hand supports them still.
- 2 The Lord delights to see their ways,
Their virtue he approves;
He'll ne'er deprive them of his grace,
Nor leave the men he loves.
- 3 The heavenly heritage is theirs,
Their portion and their home;
He feeds them now, and makes them heirs
Of blessings long to come.
- 4 Wait on the Lord, ye sons of men,
Nor fear when tyrants frown;
Yo shall confess their pride was vain,
When justice casts them down.

WATTS, Ps. 37, p. 111.

PSALM XXXVII.

The Righteous and the Wicked.

THE wicked borroweth, and payeth not again: but the righteous showeth mercy, and giveth.

22 For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off.

23 The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delighteth in his way.

24 Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand.

25 I have been young, and now am old: yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.

26 He is ever merciful, and lendeth; and his seed is blessed.

27 Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell for evermore.

28 For the Lord loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints; they are preserved for ever: but the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.

29 The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever.

30 The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom, and his tongue talketh of judgment.

31 The law of his God is in his heart; none of his steps shall slide.

32 The wicked watcheth the righteous, and seeketh to slay him.

33 The Lord will not leave him in his hand, nor condemn him when he is judged.

34 Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it.

35 I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree.

36 Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not: yea, I sought him, but he could not be found.

37 Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace.

38 But the transgressors shall be destroyed together: the end of the wicked shall be cut off.

39 But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in the time of trouble.

40 And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them: he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXVII.—Falsehood, dishonesty, unthankfulness, and unkindness, are affecting proofs of the reign of sin and the absence of grace. Where grace reigns, compassion, disinterestedness, liberality, and mercy, dwell in the heart and adorn the life. He who is an example of the former, his soul is a moral desert. He who is an example of the latter, is a garden of spiritual verdure and fruitfulness. The former resembles a tree whose fruit is poisonous, and whose leaves exhale the pestilence of death. The latter is like a tree of life "planted by the rivers of water; he bringeth forth his fruit in his season, his leaf doth not wither, and all that he doeth prospers." However much a wicked man may possess, he never enjoys the blessing. However little a righteous man may possess, it is accompanied with a Father's blessing and a Father's smiles. The loss which ungodly men sustain cannot be calculated. The advantages, privileges, and blessings which righteous men enjoy, and which they shall eternally inherit, exceed the conception of the heart. "Godliness is profitable for the life that now is, and for that which is to come."

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as the merciful and unerring Guide of thy people. While the wicked lean to their own understanding, we rejoice that the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord, and he delighteth in his way. Lord, make us good; then shall we enjoy thy fellowship—then shall we be guided by thy counsel. We rejoice that, though thy people may fall from outward prosperity into the depths of adversity, they shall not be utterly cast down; and we praise thee that, though they may be grievously oppressed by storms of temptation, thou wilt uphold them by the hand of thine almighty grace. Fill the hearts of thy people with joy, when they remember that thou wilt never forsake thy saints, and that God will preserve them for ever. O Lord, make us thy saints; then thou wilt never forsake us—then thou wilt preserve us for ever. We earnestly pray that the same mind may be in us that was also in Christ. Like him, may we be merciful. Like him, may the law of God be in our heart, and may our tongue talk of judgment, and our mouths speak wisdom.

Have mercy on our dear children. Teach them to depart from evil and do good. May they depart from evil counsel, from evil company, and from evil courses. Evermore may they dwell in thy heaven.

Give us grace to take warning from the sins and from the punishment of the wicked. May we be suitably affected with the thought that, though for a season they may spread themselves like a green bay-tree, yet they shall pass away, and shall not be found. Affect us with a sense of the folly, impiety, and danger of a life of rebellion against God, seeing impenitent transgressors shall be destroyed together, and their end shall be cut off. O that each one now before thee, and each one of our beloved relatives, may belong to the family of the upright; may our lives be holy, and our end peace.

May the preaching of the Gospel this day be remarkably blessed. May it be blessed to mournful saints, and may they rejoice with joy unspeakable; may it be blessed to hardened sinners, and may their adamant hearts be softened by holy penitence. This day, O Jesus, thou hast been exalted in a preached Gospel; O be exalted in our hearts, and in the hearts of myriads. Send the messengers of thy mercy over the whole earth, and may the blessings of thy salvation soon be as universal as the light of the natural sun. Wherever the sun shines on the abodes of men, there may Christ the Sun of righteousness shine upon the souls of men. Hasten that glorious day when all the families of the earth shall be blessed in Christ, and when all the families of the earth shall call him blessed.

We thank God for the blessings and comforts of this Sabbath day, for the assistance given to our minister, and for the good which has been accomplished through his instrumentality. As a family we would resolve in thy strength to lift up our hands in thy name, to raise up our voices in thy sanctuary, while we have breath to pray and to proclaim thy praise.

Hear us, for Jesus' sake, Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

REVERENTIAL WORSHIP.

Dove's Worship. Eye. Froom.

c. 2.

1 WITH reverence let the saints appear
And bow before the Lord,
His high commands with reverence hear,
And tremble at his word.

2 How terrible thy glories be!
How bright thine armies shine!
Where is the power that vies with thee,
Or truth compared to thine? WORTH, Ps. 89, p. 11.

LEVITICUS IX.

God's Glory.

AND Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and blessed the people: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the people.

24 And there came a fire out from before the LORD, and consumed upon the altar the burnt offering and the fat: which when all the people saw, they shouted, and fell on their faces.

LEVITICUS X.

Death of Nadab and Abihu.

AND Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censer, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire before the LORD, which he commanded them not.

2 And there went out fire from the LORD, and devoured them, and they died before the LORD.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron held his peace.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, carry your brethren from before the sanctuary out of the camp.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moses had said.

6 And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons, Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes; lest ye die, and lest wrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled.

7 And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation lest ye die: for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.

LEVITICUS XI.

Beasts clean and unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, These are the beasts which ye shall eat among all the beasts that are on the earth.

3 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is clovenfooted, and cheweth the cud, among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless these shall ye not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

5 And the coney, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

6 And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

7 And the swine, though he divide the hoof, and be clovenfooted, yet he cheweth not the cud; he is unclean to you.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcase shall ye not touch; they are unclean to you.

REMARKS UPON LEVITICUS IX., X., XI.—How amiable—how valuable are Gospel ordinances! They are galleries where King Jesus is seen; they are chambers where believers enjoy the delights of Divine fellowship. When we seek Christ in his Gospel courts may Divine influence from above descend like sacred fire, that our hearts may be purified, that holy devotion may glow in our bosom, and that, relying on the blessed atonement, we may present spiritual services, holy and acceptable to God, which is our reasonable service. Aaron's sons were distinguished by great privileges, and elevated to a pinnacle of honour in the Church of God. Our God is a jealous, as well as a gracious God, and cannot compromise his glory. Before God's altar Aaron's sons daringly insulted God in the sacred sanctity of his worship. When we think of their awful doom, and the instant bursting of the Divine thunderbolt upon their heads, let us stand in awe and sin not. And may it be our constant and earnest desire to worship God as he has commanded, and to present our adoring worship in spirit and in truth. God's benevolence, mercy, and wisdom are even peculiarly manifested in the material and natural food which he prescribed for his people, and in what he has forbidden. What he has appointed is wholesome, nutritious, and strengthening; what he has forbidden is deleterious in its nature, and injurious in its effects. Let us rejoice in the bread of life, which he has provided for our souls. May we therefore eat, and live for ever.

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, with what profound reverence we ought to approach thy throne! Thou art the universal Ruler—thou art clothed with majesty and strength. Thou hast established the world that it cannot be moved; yet by thy voice thou dost shake the earth, and not the earth only, but also the heavens. Thou art awful in thy judgments, and thou wilt be held in reverence by those who assemble to worship thy great and glorious name. Who hath resisted thy will? If God cut off, and shut up, or gather together, who then can hinder him, who worketh all things according to the counsel of his own will?

We thank our God that we are permitted, in the enjoyment of bodily health, and in the exercise of our mental faculties, but, above all, in the name of Christ, to present ourselves this morning in a family capacity before the throne of grace. Praise to the God of providence and grace, that during the last night we were not numbered with the dead—we were not numbered with the lost. Give us that grace by which we shall so number our days as to apply our hearts to wisdom.

Give thy ministers and people more grace to worship thee with reverence and fear. Alas, we have too often presented before thy throne the strange fire of hypocrisy, formality, irreverence, and mistaken devotion. May the alarming punishment which befell Nadab and Abihu, for offering strange fire, affect us deeply with the propriety and necessity of drawing near to God in all his ordinances with holy reverence and fear. Justly we might have been punished for our irreverent approaches; and we adore and praise thy compassion, that our blood has not been mingled with our sacrifices.

Lord, instruct our dear children in the holy work of reverential worship. Teach them to pray with the heart, and ever to believe that thou art the searcher of hearts.

May thy rich blessing follow the solemn and sacred services of the past Sabbath. Through the instrumentality of a preached Gospel may multitudes be persuaded to leave the kingdom of Satan, and to give up their allegiance to the god of this world. May they be persuaded to join the kingdom of Immanuel, to obey his laws, believe his Gospel, and observe his ordinances. May they say to his Church and people, We will go with you, for God is with you.

As thy glory, O Lord, appeared in the ancient tabernacle, and shone before all the people, may thy glory fill all our churches, and appear before all the people in the blessed efficacy of a preached Gospel. As a fire came from the Lord and consumed the sacrifice upon the altar, may the fire of Divine grace come from heaven and consume all our corruption.

We implore thy presence and grace this day. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST'S GLORIOUS CHARACTERS.

Melancthon. Peru. Coombs. Devotion.

L. M.

- 1 GO, worship at Immanuel's feet,
See in his face what wonders meet;
Earth is too narrow to express
His worth, his glory, or his grace.
- 2 The whole creation can afford
But some faint shadows of my Lord:
Nature, to make his beauties known,
Must mingle colours not her own.
- 3 Is he a sun? His beams are grace,
His course is joy and righteousness;
Nations rejoice when he appears
To chase their clouds, and dry their tears.

WATTS, 146, B. I.

JOHN III.

John's Testimony of Christ.

HE that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved.

21 But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

22 After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judæa; and there he tarried with them, and baptized.

23 And John also was baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.

24 For John was not yet cast into prison.

25 Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.

27 John answered and said, A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.

32 And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth; and no man receiveth his testimony.

33 He that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true.

34 For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.

35 The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.

36 He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN III.—Does our eternal salvation depend on receiving Christ, and is eternal perdition the consequence of impatiently rejecting him? Then let us seek faith as the greatest blessing, and avoid unbelief as the greatest calamity. Precious is the light of the sun, but infinitely more precious the light of the Gospel. They who refuse the guidance of this light are on the way to Tophet, they who love and follow it are on the way to Heaven. Do we love this Gospel light? Then we have the encouraging evidence that we are baptized by Christ's Spirit. If the baptism of John was sought with such eagerness by many, with what holy earnestness should we pray for the daily baptism of Jesus, whose Spirit alone can wash away the vile pollution of our heart? Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the dark clouds of affliction on earth are followed by the cloudless glory of heaven. Let us rejoice in the absolute certainty of the universality of Christ's mediatorial reign on earth. Men have opposed, and will oppose, his reign; they have attempted, and they will attempt, to overturn his kingdom. But what is the power of man, when compared with the omnipotence of Christ? Earthly kingdoms may, and must, perish, but Christ's dominion shall overspread the world, and endure for ever. The great Immanuel has appeared on earth; clothed with human flesh, he has made known and accomplished the great salvation. O may it be our privilege to believe his testimony, and receive his grace!

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, and the Lord our God, we would now address thy Divine Majesty through Jesus Christ, the way, the truth, and the life.

Exalted Saviour, we adore thee as the light of the world. Thou art the bright and morning Star. Thy light hath broken the night of pagan ignorance and Jewish prejudice. If there are any of us in thy presence enveloped with the dark shades of spiritual night, may thy blessed beams pierce these dark shades, and may our souls be surrounded by the glorious light of the day of salvation. O that each one of us, and that all our beloved relatives scattered upon the face of the earth, could say in the exercise of animating love and lively faith, We know thy glories from afar, thou bright and morning Star!

Adorable Saviour, thou art the Sun of righteousness shining in the midst of the Church militant and triumphant with mediatorial and uncreated light. Give us as a family the blessedness of thy gracious beams, that we may grow up in righteousness and joy. Hasten the arrival of that glorious day, when the dark clouds of pagan idolatry shall no more overspread the moral firmament of nations, when thy appearance shall fill the kingdoms of the earth with joy, and when thy light shall chase their clouds and dry their tears.

We acknowledge, O Lord, the gross depravity of the world, and our own corruption, in the determined opposition and deep-rooted aversion manifested against Christ as the true light. We have loved darkness more than the light, because our deeds are evil. Thus we have exposed ourselves to thy condemnation, and it is of the great abundance of thy mercy that we are not enduring the dreadful sentence of thy condemnation in the abodes of woe. Fill our hearts with love to the light. May we come to the light of thy law, that we may see the depravity of our hearts and the diseases of our souls; and may we come to the light of thy Gospel, that we may be filled with the joys of thy salvation.

Condescend, merciful Redeemer, to be the Saviour of our dear children. Bring them from the dark and gloomy night of a natural state, and introduce them into the pleasing and peaceful light of spiritual day. O enlighten their minds in the knowledge of Christ.

Suffer none of us to die amid the gloomy shades of unconverted night. Lord, preserve us from such a doom; and may all our relatives be delivered from a calamity so inconceivably great.

Adored be thy name, O Lord, that, notwithstanding thy love to thine only begotten Son, thou didst most willingly surrender thy Son to the death for us all. Give us faith in thy Son; then we shall have everlasting life.

We thank thee for the displays of thy providential goodness this day, and we pray for the continuance of thy providential kindness this night. Hear our imperfect prayers, and forgive our multiplied sins, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE LOVE OF THE SPIRIT.

A. Jackson Hall. Golden News. Look. Timesford

L. M.

- 1 THE love of the Spirit I sing,
By whom is redemption applied;
Who sinners to Jesus can bring,
And make them his mystical bride.
- 2 'Tis he circumcises their hearts,
Their callousness kindly removes;
Life, light, and affection imparts
To them that so freely he loves.
- 3 He opens the eyes of the blind,
The beauty of Jesus to view:
He changes the bent of the mind,
The glory of God to pursue.
- 4 The stubbornest will he can bow,
The foes that dwell in us restrain;
And none can be trodden so low,
But he can revive them again.
- 5 His blest renovation begun,
He dwells in the hearts of his saints;
Abandons his temple to none,
Nor e'er of his calling repents.

ANON.

LEVITICUS XI.

Clean and unclean Creatures.

THESE shall ye eat of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins and scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, they shall be an abomination unto you:

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you; ye shall not eat of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcases in abomination.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the osprey,

14 And the vulture, and the kite after his kind;

15 Every raven after his kind;

16 And the owl, and the night hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

17 And the little owl, and the cormorant, and the great owl,

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier eagle,

19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

20 All fowls that creep, going upon all four, shall be an abomination unto you.

21 Yet these may ye eat of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap withal upon the earth;

22 Even these of them ye may eat; the locust after his kind, and the bald locust after his kind, and the beetle after his kind, and the grasshopper after his kind.

23 But all other flying creeping things, which have four feet, shall be an abomination unto you.

24 These also shall be unclean unto you among the creeping things that creep upon the earth; the weasel, and the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind,

25 And the ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XI.—The abundance of God's providential munificence should fill our minds with wonder, and inspire our hearts with thankfulness. He even makes brooks, rivers, lakes, and seas, storehouses to supply our wants and to furnish food for our nourishment. Wherever we look, we see the humiliating effects of man's fall and man's transgression. We see it in the wild beasts of the field, and in the fishes of the sea. While of the latter some are good for man, others are dangerous to his life, and their flesh injurious to his health. While man's innocence remained, all irrational tribes of creation were subservient to his will, and contributed to his happiness. In countless instances they are now rebels against his authority, and contribute to his misery. In the midst of deserved wrath God has remembered our race with undeserved mercy. If tribes of beasts, and birds, and fishes are unclean and inimical to man, God in the greatness of his goodness has provided among them a rich reserve for our nourishment, health, and comfort. Do we not see in unclean animals, and the injury which they inflict, an emblem of sin in its nature, its influence, and its consequences? Let us pray to be delivered from the power of sin, from the love of sin, and, in due time, from the very being of sin. If we carefully avoid what is injurious to the body, how much more concerned we should be to avoid sin in all its forms, which destroys the health of the immortal soul!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we adore thee in the matchless and infinite holiness of thy nature and character. Thy name is holy; holy and reverend is thy name. Thy throne is holy; thou sittest on the throne of thy holiness. Thy heaven is holy; and thou wilt hear the prayers of thy people from thy holy heaven, and thou wilt save them by the strength of thy right hand.

Holy Spirit, teach us graciously to know our sinfulness, to mourn over our corruptions, to loathe our depravity, to confess our unworthiness, and earnestly to long after the beauties of holiness. O Lord, thou hast looked down from heaven, and thou knowest that we have all gone aside; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. We have gone far astray like lost sheep, and we have become altogether filthy in thy sight. We acknowledge, O Lord, the existence and the strength of our lusts. We have sinfully and readily surrendered our souls to the dominion of our bodily desires. We find a law in our members warring against the law of our minds, and attempting to bring us into captivity to the law of sin which is in our members. Alas, how often have we preferred the bread that perisheth before the bread of life! and the enjoyments and comforts of the body before the pure and exalted pleasures which flow from an interest in Christ!

Divine Spirit, deliver and purify us from all our corruptions and lusts. May our bodies be made the sanctified temples of the Holy Ghost. Now may we present them living sacrifices, holy and acceptable. This is a reasonable service, and may we esteem it our privilege and delight.

We present the tribute of our thanksgiving for the rich provision thou hast made for the supply of our bodily wants. We thank thee for bread to eat and raiment to wear. We praise thee for wholesome food, for bread convenient for us. Prevent us, O Lord, from passing over the line of duty, from greedily seeking after what is injurious to our bodily health, or pernicious to the best interests of our soul. May we never be left to commit those excesses in eating or drinking which may sap the foundations of our health, and afflict us with those diseases which may bring us to an untimely grave.

In a particular manner preserve our dear children from the snares of company. May they ever manifest an aversion to the society of the foolish and the profane. God forbid that ever the allurements of the society of the wicked should beguile them into those excesses of the flesh which so often accomplish the ruin of the soul.

We thank our heavenly Father that we have been preserved through the dangers of another night, and that we are now prostrate before the throne of God. We begin, Lord, our day with THEE. Give us thy blessed aid in the duties which are before us, and an earnest desire to glorify thy name. Lord, hear thy unworthy petitioners, for Jesus' sake, our most blessed Saviour. Amen.

THE FULNESS OF CHRIST.

Ignatius. Triumph. Honour. Old 104th.

P. M.

- 1 A FULNESS resides in Jesus our head,
And ever abides to answer our need:
The Father's good pleasure has laid up in store
A plentiful treasure to give to the poor.
- 2 What'er be our wants, we need not to fear;
Our numerous complaints his mercy will hear;
His fulness shall yield us abundant supplies;
His power shall shield us when dangers arise.
- 3 The fountain o'erflows our woes to redress;
Still more he bestows, and grace upon grace;
His gifts in abundance we daily receive;
He has a redundancy for all that believe.

FAWCETT.

JOHN IV.

Jesus and the Woman of Samaria.

WHEN therefore the Lord knew how the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John,

2 (Though Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples,)

3 He left Judæa, and departed again into Galilee.

4 And he must needs go through Samaria.

5 Then cometh he to a city of Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour.

7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink.

8 (For his disciples were gone away unto the city to buy meat.)

9 Then saith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.

11 The woman saith unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that living water?

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle?

13 Jesus answered and said unto her, Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again:

14 But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

15 The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither.

17 The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband:

18 For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IV.—The jealousy and envy of the Pharisees tended to their own spiritual death; but our Saviour employs them as an occasion for his paying a visit of mercy to a distant province, and for plucking a brand out of the burning; yea, for lifting up one from the lowest depths of degradation and infamy to the shining heights of holiness and grace. What a mystery! the Incarnation of the mighty God hungry, even he who gives grass for cattle, and herbs for the use of man; the Incarnation of the mighty God thirsty, who formed all fountains, lakes, rivers, and streams; and the Incarnation of the mighty God weary, and resting upon the side of Jacob's well, who holds up the pillars of the universe! Well we may exclaim, "What wonders in our Saviour meet!" What reason have we to admire the condescension of Jesus! It is condescension in the Lord of angels even to converse with archangels; but who can conceive his matchless condescension in taking pity on a degraded woman, the captive of Satan and of her own corrupted passions, and in bringing within the reach of her diseased and thirsty soul the living, refreshing waters of grace Divine!

PRAYER.

EXALTED and ever-blessed Jehovah, our God and our Father in Christ, it is good to draw near unto thee. We have found it good to draw near unto thee, and we are encouraged by the invitations of thy mercy again to prostrate ourselves before thy throne.

O Lord, the earth is full of thy goodness. Thou causest grass to grow for cattle, and herbs for the use of man; thou bringest forth food out of the earth. Thou sendest the springs unto the valleys which run among the hills, to give drink unto every beast of the field. While thou fillest the vast mind of an archangel with the exalted blessedness and enjoyment of heaven, thou suppliest the wants of the humble insect, nay, the meanest reptile that is found on the surface of the earth. The winged insect and the winged angel are both equally known to thee.

We humbly and joyfully adore thee as the fountain of mercy—as the God of salvation. We praise thee for the rich display of regenerating grace and pardoning mercy we have now been permitted to read in the oracles of unerring truth. May our fearful hearts be encouraged by the conversion of the woman of Samaria to hope in God's mercy; and, even though our guilt has reached the heavens, may we flee from our enormous guilt to that Saviour whose mercy is far above the highest heavens.

Teach us, Holy Spirit, to admire the example of Jesus, and to imitate his blessed example, as far as it is within our reach. May we admire and imitate our Saviour's zeal, whose meat and whose drink was to do the will of his heavenly Father, and to seek and save that which was lost. Blessed Jesus, we rejoice that neither hunger nor thirst impeded thee in thy merciful search. Thou art the overflowing fountain of mercy and grace. All the blessings of salvation are streams of goodness which flow from thy Divine and mediatorial fulness, to animate and cheer the hearts of those who are ready to perish. Give us, O Jesus, to drink of those waters. We take encouragement to ask, from thine own invitation, and from thine own promise to bestow. O give us that grace which shall be in us a well of water springing up into everlasting life. May we see the complete emptiness of all earthly things and earthly comforts compared with thee. Let no want alarm us when we think that in thee resides an infinite fulness. Let no danger distress us when we think of the shield of thine omnipotent power, that shall defend when dangers arise.

O lead the dear children to thyself as the Divine fountain. May they hunger and thirst after righteousness; and may they pant after thy salvation.

May we retire to rest, gratefully impressed with the mercies of the day; may we retire to rest, exercising implicit dependence on our God during the darkness and silence of night.

Hear our prayer and forgive our sin, for thy loving-kindness is great: turn unto us, according to the multitude of thy tender mercies; then will we extol, and honour and thank and praise thee, our fathers' God. All we ask is for the sake of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

SIN CONFESSED.

Question. Hindon. Withaster. Rappert's.

L. M.

- 1 LORD, I am vile, conceived in sin,
And born unholy and unclean;
Sprang from the man whose guilty fall
Corrupts the race, and taints us all.
- 2 Soon as we draw our infant breath,
The seeds of sin grow up for death:
Thy law demands a perfect heart,
But we're defiled in every part.
- 3 Behold, I fall before thy face;
My only refuge is thy grace:
No outward forms can make me clean;
The leprosy lies deep within.

Watts, Ps. 51, p. 11.

LEVITICUS XIV.

The Cleansing of the Leper.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,
2 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought unto the priest:

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp; and the priest shall look, and, behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper;

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed two birds alive and clean, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop:

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water:

6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water:

7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose into the open field.

8 And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean; and after that he shall come into the camp, and shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head, and his beard, and his eyebrows, even all his hair he shall shave off: and he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two he lambs without blemish, and one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish, and three tenth deals of fine flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil.

11 And the priest that maketh him clean shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things, before the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

12 And the priest shall offer the sin offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness;
and afterwards he shall kill the burnt offering:

13 And the priest shall offer the burnt offering and the meat offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

14 And if he be poor, and cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass offering to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth deal of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering, and a log of oil;

15 And two turtle doves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin offering, and the other a burnt offering.

16 And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord.

Reflections from Leviticus XIV.—The leprosy of the body is a striking emblem of sin, the spiritual leprosy of the soul. How vile

--how loathsome the leprosy of the body; infinitely more vile and loathsome is sin, the leprosy of the soul, in the eye of saints, of angels, and of God! Body leprosy is infectious. How infectious is sin, and how extensively and rapidly has the infection spread! In ancient days no natural antidote was found to remove the leprosy;
it could only be removed by the intervention of the merciful power of God. A cure is found for healing, for removing, yea, effectually removing, the leprosy of sin. The righteousness of Christ is the antidote by which the guilt of sin is removed. The influences of his Spirit form the antidote by which the pollution of sin is completely taken away. Lepers were separated from the rest of the community.
Sin separates the soul from God, from his church; and, unless a cure is effected, will for ever exclude the lopsrous soul from the heavenly Canaan, the fair paradise above. Important means were appointed for removing the leprosy of the body; to many they might appear strange and inefficient; but, unless the appointed means were employed, the disease must remain and continue its ravages until the patient expires. God has appointed means for healing the leprosy of sin: death eternal depends upon their neglect; but life eternal upon their use. May the Holy Spirit give us grace daily to employ those divinely-appointed means! Amen.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, in drawing near thy sacred throne may we be deeply impressed with thy spotless holiness.
In ourselves we are infinitely unfit and infinitely unworthy to hold fellowship with thee, seeing that the very heavens are not clean in thy sight.

May the affecting account we have now read of the leprosy of the body lead our thoughts to the contemplation of sin, the far more dreadful leprosy of the soul; and may the animating description we have read of the miraculous cure of that loath-some bodily disease, remind us of the supernatural cure of the leprosy of sin by the blood and spirit of Christ.

We desire to be humbled in the dust before thee, on account of our degenerate and polluted origin. We were conceived in sin, and when we were born our natures were unholy and unclean. We would mourn over the alarming change which has been accomplished by the apostacy of Adam, our covenant head. Alas, by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death has passed on all men, for that all have sinned! What reason have we to be grieved that, in our hearts and lives, the seeds of sin with which we were born have grown up to such maturity and strength! We acknowledge the power and influence of our bodily desires, which have beguiled our souls, and led us into the perplexing labyrinths of sin.
And we confess the still more dreadful passions of our minds, which have long discovered the most hostile opposition to thee our God. We would confess, with humility, contrition, and shame, that by the lusts of our flesh and the corruptions of our mind we are infinitely loathsome before the eyes of thy spotless holiness; and we acknowledge that, by the guilt of actual transgressions countless as the hairs of our head, we have exposed ourselves to thy justice, and have made ourselves liable to thy wrath and curse.

Open the eyes of our dear children to see their sinfulness by nature and practice. Teach them most earnestly to cry to thee for holiness and pardon. May we see them arrayed in the beauties of holiness.

Lord, make us a holy family. We pray not that we may be elevated to earthly wealth or worldly honours, but we pray for the ornaments of grace, deliverance from the leprosy of sin, and emancipation from the fetters of its guilt. O give us these blessings, through the righteousness and the spirit of Christ.

We would render thanks for the repose and protection of the last night, and this day would lean upon the arm of our God for guidance and defence. O hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Intercessor. Amen.

THE SPIRITUALITY OF GOD.

Admiration. Bradley. Fawcett. Paul's.

L. M.

- 1 THOU art, O God! a Spirit pure,
Invisible to mortal eyes;
The immortal, and the eternal King,
The great, the good, the only wise.
- 2 Whilst nature changes, and her works
Corrupt, decay, dissolve, and die,
Thy essence pure no change shall see,
Secure of immortality.
- 3 Thou great Invisible, what hand
Can draw thy image spotless fair?
To what in heaven, to what on earth,
Can men the immortal King compare?
- 4 Let stupid heathens frame their gods
Of gold and silver, wood and stone;
Ours is the God that made the heavens;
Jehovah he, and God alone.

NEEDHAM.

JOHN IV.

Conversion of the Woman of Samaria.

THE woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.

20 Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

21 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father.

22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.

24 God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

25 The woman saith unto him, I know that Messiah cometh, which is called Christ: when he is come, he will tell us all things.

26 Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he.

27 And upon this came his disciples, and marvelled that he talked with the woman: yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?

28 The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, 29 Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?

30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 In the meanwhile his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.

32 But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34 Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work.

35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.

37 And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IV.—How kindly, and gently, and wisely, Jesus led the woman of Samaria step by step, until he conducted her into the sheepfold of salvation! Astonished at the wisdom, penetration, and discernment of Christ, she found Jesus was a prophet. Have we found he is our Prophet? Have we rejoiced in the boundless treasures of wisdom and knowledge laid up in him for enlightening his Church in all ages? Blessed are they who know, love, and adore God, as the only object of religious worship. May we never forget how God ought to be worshipped, and how he requires to be worshipped. The worship which God deserves is the worship of the heart, and he is graciously willing to send his Spirit to teach us to present this worship. In the woman of Samaria we see what conversion is, and what an astonishing change conversion produces on the heart and life. True converts are truly useful: if we are converted ourselves, we shall desire and seek the conversion of others.

PRAYER.

GREAT and glorious Jehovah, thou art a Spirit, and they who worship thee should worship thee in spirit and in truth. O that we were among the true worshippers, who worship the Father in spirit and in truth! Thou, O Father, seekest such to worship thee, and none else can approach thee with acceptance.

We confess that we have often drawn near to thee with the month; we have presented our bodies before thee, while our hearts have been far from thee. Alas, our services have been often carnal and lifeless, and we have been ready to exclaim with Israel of old, respecting our most valuable privileges and thy most sacred ordinances, What a weariness! Such has been the manner in which we have engaged in thy worship, that thou mightst justly have addressed us as thou didst the formalists of an Old Testament church: To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hand to tread my courts?

Deliver us, O Lord, from hypocrisy, in all our religious observances. Teach us to love thee, the object of religious worship, and teach us to love all the ordinances which respect thy worship, and to love thy sanctuary, where thou art more especially worshipped. Give us thy holy Spirit; then shall we draw near the mercy-seat in the full assurance of faith, and in the enjoyment of godly sincerity.

Exalted Saviour, we desire to adore thee in the condescension and mercy thou didst exercise toward the woman of Samaria. We adore thee in that power and energy which reached her heart, which awakened her conscience, which subdued her corruptions, which changed her habits, and which adorned her soul with the rich and imperishable ornaments of salvation. As thou didst manifest thyself to her as the true, the promised Messiah, graciously manifest thyself to us as our Divine Redeemer. We adore thee as the searcher of hearts. Search us and try us, and see if there be any wicked way in us, and lead us in the way everlasting.

Take our beloved children, and open up to their view their own hearts. O let the quickening influence of thy spirit reach their soul, that they may so be convinced of sin as to exclaim, What must we do to be saved?

Fill our hearts with compassion towards our graceless and Christless relations. May we resemble the woman of Samaria, in an earnest desire for the salvation of all in whom we are interested. May we call upon them, and invite them, and allure them to the courts of thy house, that they may see the Redeemer of men, and hear the voice of him who awakes dead souls into life, and, when this mortal career comes to a close, raises them to the joys of heaven.

Lord, forgive our daily sins, bless our daily duties, and make us truly thankful for our daily mercies. Preserve us through the night, and restore us in safety to another day. Asleep or awake, may we still be with thee. Savingly impress thy Word on all our hearts, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST AND AARON.

Osmond Scotch Church. Harrington. Braintree. Maidstone. C. M.

- 1 JESUS, in thee our eyes behold
A thousand glories more
Than the rich gems and polished gold
The sons of Aaron wore.
- 2 They first their own burnt offerings brought,
To purge themselves from sin:
Thy life was pure, without a spot,
And all thy nature clean.
- 3 Jesus, the King of Glory, reigns
On Zion's heavenly hill,
Looks like a Lamb that has been slain,
And wears his priesthood still.      Watts, 146, B. I.

LEVITICUS XVI.

The Priest entering into the holy Place.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron, when they offered before the LORD, and died;
2 And the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all times into the holy place within the vail before the mercy seat, which is upon the ark; that he die not: for I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat.

3 Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a young bullock for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering.

4 He shall put on the holy linen coat, and he shall have the linen breeches upon his flesh, and shall be girded with a linen girdle, and with the linen mitre shall he be attired: these are holy garments; therefore shall he wash his flesh in water, and so put them on.

5 And he shall take of the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin offering, and one ram for a burnt offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and make an atonement for himself, and for his house.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats; one lot for the LORD, and the other lot for the scape-goat.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the LORD's lot fell, and offer him for a sin offering.

10 But the goat, on which the lot fell to be the scape-goat, shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scape-goat into the wilderness.

11 And Aaron shall bring the bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin offering which is for himself:

12 And he shall take a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before the LORD, and his hands full of sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the vail:

13 And he shall put the incense upon the fire before the LORD, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not:

14 And he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy seat eastward; and before the mercy seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 Then shall he kill the goat of the sin offering, that is for the people, and bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy seat, and before the mercy seat:

16 And he shall make an atonement for the holy place because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation, that remaineth among them in the midst of their uncleanness.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XVI.—What a remarkable difference betwixt worshipping God in Old Testament days and in New Testament times! In the former, it was accompanied with great fear and trembling; in the latter, it is accompanied with great liberty, confidence, and peace. Much preparation was required on the part of Aaron before he entered upon the services of the Sanctuary; and this should remind us of the preparation of heart we need for approaching God on earth, and that meetness which we require for worshipping God in heaven. We need to be sprinkled with the blood of Christ; that is, to have an interest in the atonement and righteousness which Jesus completed by the shedding of his blood, and by the laying down of his life. And we need to be sprinkled by the influences of the Spirit of Christ, and to be graciously assimilated to the Divine likeness. It is thus, and thus alone, we can be fitted for an acceptable appearance before the throne of grace here, and the throne of glory hereafter.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, whose gracious presence we approach in the name of Christ, thou art a God of holiness and justice, and the Lord our God. Thou seest sin to be an infinite evil with the eye of thy purity, and thy justice necessarily requires satisfaction for sins committed against thy Divine majesty. To those who impenitently obey unrighteousness, thou, O Lord, wilt render indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil. Though thou art merciful, thou art also just, and wilt by no means clear the guilty who resist thine authority and despise thy grace. O Lord, how incomprehensibly dreadful is thy wrath! Who can stand before thee when once thou art angry? Who can abide the fierceness of thine indignation? When thy wrath is kindled but a little, blessed are they who put their trust in thee. At thy wrath the earth shall tremble, and the nations shall not be able to abide thine indignation.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that we are the guilty and degenerate descendants of Adam, our covenant-head. Justly mightst thou say of us what thou didst say respecting ancient Israel: Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth: for the Lord hath spoken: I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but my people do not know, my people do not consider: they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto anger, and are gone away backward.

Our first father has left us in a state of condemnation; and we have most grievously added to our condemnation by our multiplied and aggravated sins. O Lord, we acknowledge that, unless thy justice is satisfied for our guilt, we can never taste the sweets of thy mercy, nor see the smiles of thy compassion. We are unable to make atonement for our sins. Thou canst not be pleased with a first-born for a transgression, nor with the fruit of the body for the sin of the soul. Thy Son alone could make atonement; thy Son alone has made atonement. In the goat which Aaron slew on the day of atonement may we see the type of Christ, who made atonement for the sins of men; and in the scape-goat may we see a figure of Jesus, who carried the guilt of an elect world away, as to a distant wilderness, where it could never be found.

May our dear children obtain a sight of their sinfulness and guilt. May they see their sin and their Saviour, before they reach maturity of years, and before they are entangled by the snares and perplexities of life.

Soon may the doctrine of atonement by the righteousness of Christ overspread the earth, and idolatrous nations forsake their false sacrifices for sin.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the blessings of the night, and implore thy grace for the duties and engagements of the day. Hear thine unworthy petitioners, for Jesus' sake, our most merciful Saviour. Amen.

PRECIOUS FAITH.

Cambridge. Sutton Colfield. Enfield. Hemley. S. M.

- 1 FAITH!—'tis a precious grace,
Where'er it is bestowed;
It boasts of a celestial birth,
And is the gift of God!
- 2 It hears the prophet's voice,
The teacher sent from heaven;
And says, No lesson's half so sweet
As those which he has given.
- 3 Jesus it owns a king,—
An all-atoning priest;
It claims no merit of its own,
But looks for all in Christ.
- 4 To him it lends the soul,
When filled with deep distress;
Flies to the fountain of his blood,
And trusts his righteousness.

BEYDOME.

JOHN IV.

Conversion of the Samaritans.

AND many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did.

40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own word;

42 And said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.

43 Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee.

44 For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.

45 Then, when he was come into Galilee, the Galilæans received him, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast.

46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judæa into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.

49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50 Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.

51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52 Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house.

54 This is again the second miracle that Jesus did when he was come out of Judæa into Galilee.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IV.—In a state of nature the woman of Samaria spread abroad the contagion of sin: in a state of grace she zealously and extensively spread abroad the fame of Christ as the great Messiah, and as the Divine and merciful Physician, by whom alone the malady of sin could be healed, eternal death prevented, and eternal life enjoyed. The evil she formerly diffused, no doubt filled her mind with painful regret; the good she was afterwards instrumental in accomplishing, must have filled her heart with un-speakable joy. Have we found Christ precious? Let us affectionately recommend him to others, as willing and able to save to the very uttermost. May the faith of the nobleman affect our minds with the value and the usefulness of that grace. If we seek it as silver, we shall find what is more valuable than silver; and search for it as for hidden treasures, we shall obtain a key which will unlock the boundless treasury of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we adore thee as infinitely exalted in thy nature, attributes, dominion, glory, and blessedness, beyond the very uttermost conception of men or angels. Thy glorious name is exalted above all blessing and praise. Thou shalt be exalted among the heathen, and thou shalt be exalted in the earth. Soon may the millennial day dawn on our fallen and benighted world, when thou shalt be exalted as a redeeming God, in the believing and adoring admiration of the inhabitants of heathen lands. Thou art exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory shine above all the earth. Teach us as a family to praise the Lord, to call upon his name, to declare his doings among the people, and to make known that his name is exalted.

We bless thee that we have tasted this day of thy providential goodness, and that we have reason now to sing, as we have had reason in all the past periods of our life, How great is thy goodness! Lord, forgive our deficiency in duty this day, and wherein we have been guilty in feeling more anxious care about the perishing concerns of time than the important realities of eternity. We need, most gracious God, to be daily washed in the laver of a Redeemer's righteousness. May goodness and mercy follow us all our days. We commend ourselves afresh to thy paternal care this night. May our persons and our dwellings be preserved. Be a wall of fire around us as a family, and be the glory in the midst of us. When our days and nights cease, may we enter upon a day in heaven, which shall endure for ever, and which shall be rendered infinitely blessed by the unveiled glories of God and the Lamb.

May the Word of life we have now read be profitable to our souls, by the gracious influences of the Divine Spirit. May the conduct of the woman of Samaria fill us with shame, that we have shown so little concern for the salvation of our beloved connections who are far from God. Lord, make us instruments in prevailing on them to frequent thy sacred sanctuary, where the voice of mercy is to be heard, and where the blessings of salvation are to be found.

As the Samaritans and Galilæans believed and received Christ, may we believe in him as the promised Messiah, and receive him in all his offices and relations. Holy Spirit, inspire us with faith. May our faith be strong, like that of the nobleman who commended his dying son to a merciful Redeemer.

Lord Jesus, have mercy on our dear children. By nature they are dead in trespasses and sins; we pray that they may be spiritually alive. Say to us, O Saviour, Thy son liveth; thy daughter liveth.

Lord, make us a believing family. As the nobleman believed, and all his house, may we who are heads of this family believe, and all our house. May we believe in Christ's divinity and humanity, and in his ability and willingness to save. May we ever believe in the personality and work of the Holy Spirit, and all he made the subjects of his saving grace. We beseech thee, O Lord, to hear these our prayers, through the merits and intercession of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

CHRIST'S ATONEMENT.

Hymn. Halifax Chapel. Chatham. Hinton.

P. M.

- 1 O THOU who didst thy glory leave,
 Apostate sinners to retrieve
 From nature's deadly fall,—
 If thou hast bought me with a price,
 My sins against me ne'er shall rise,
 For thou hast borne them all.
- 2 And wast thou punished in my stead?
 Didst thou without the city bleed
 To expiate my stain?
 On earth my God vouchsafed to dwell,
 And made of infinite avail
 The sufferings of the man.

TOGLADY.

LEVITICUS XVI.

Scape-goat.

AND when he hath made an end of reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a fit man into the wilderness:

22 And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall put off the linen garments, which he put on when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there:

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt offering, and the burnt offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

25 And the fat of the sin offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scape-goat shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

27 And the bullock for the sin offering, and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp; and they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 And this shall be a statute for ever unto you: that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you:

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the Lord.

31 It shall be a sabbath of rest unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, by a statute for ever.

32 And the priest, whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall consecrate to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement, and shall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments:

33 And he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar, and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel for all their sins once a year. And he did as the Lord commanded Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XVI.—It is our privilege to lay our hands on Jesus, who willingly undertook to bear the load of our guilt, and, laying our hands on Jesus, minutely and penitently to confess our sins in their multitude, enormity, and long continuance, and with believing confidence to implore a full, free, and eternal pardon, through the merit of the atonement made by our merciful and Divine Surety. Did the scape-goat ceremonially take away the sins of Israel to a land unknown, that they should be remembered no more? If we believe in Jesus as our Surety, we shall find that he has for ever removed our guilt, and that our sins shall never be brought up in remembrance against us; we shall find that a gracious and forgiving God has cast our sins into the lowest depths of the sea of his forgetfulness, never to appear against us for our condemnation. How infinitely important it is to lay our souls and our sins on Jesus, in the exercise of appropriating faith. On such an act depends an eternity of blessedness and joy.

PRAYER.

EVER blessed and eternally glorious Lord God, our God and Father in Christ, we feel our unworthiness and our unfitness to approach thy sacred presence. When we enter on services so sacred and solemn, graciously fulfil in our experience thy faithful promise, I will instruct thee, and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go; I will guide thee with mine eye. Lord, instruct us and teach us; and ever may we enjoy the guidance of thine unerring wisdom, in our approaches to thy throne, and in all the other duties of our holy faith. What reason have we at all times to pray in the language of Elihu: 'Teach us what we shall say unto thee; for we cannot order our speech by reason of darkness!'

Receive, O Lord, the tribute of our praise for all the mercies poured into our cup. In many instances our cup has run over. In particular we thank thee for the safety, sleep, and refreshment of the last night. May the good hand of thy providence defend us this day from the snares of the world, the temptations of Satan, and the corruptions of our own heart. Enable us earnestly to pray, that this and every future day may be still wiser than the past; and that when we all our life survey, grace may sustain at last through death's dark vale.

May the very interesting things we have now read respecting the ceremonial atonement observed by the Jewish church, produce in our minds a lively sense of the unpeepable necessity and the incalculable worth of that blessed atonement which Jesus made by the sacrifice of himself. As Aaron laid his hands, and confessed his sins and those of the people, on the head of the scape-goat, which carried ceremonially the guilt away to a land unknown, so may we by faith lay our hands on the head of Jesus, our Divine sacrifice; on him may we confess our sins, and may we believe with a lively faith that his atoning righteousness has taken all our guilt away. Blessed Saviour, may we be filled with adoring wonder, gratitude, and joy, that for a season thou didst leave the glory of thy celestial mansions, and visit our world of sin and misery, that fallen men might be recovered, and blessed with pardon, happiness, and immortality. Eternal praises to thy name, that thou didst not only bear the guilt of thy Church on thine own body upon the tree, but that thou didst bear it all away.

Thou holy, just, and gracious Jehovah, whom we have offended by our sins, look not on us as we have sinned, but look to thine anointed one: O look to thy beloved Son! See the righteousness he wrought out; O see the atonement he made—see the blood he shed! then shall we behold thy smiles, and then our guilt shall be buried in the sea of thy forgetfulness.

O Jesus, we bring our children to thee, the atoning Lamb of God. Take from them the deformity of their sins, and put upon them the best robe of thy righteousness.

We offer up our prayer in Jesus' name, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, we ascribe the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

POOL OF BETHESDA.

Musich. St. Lawrence Jewry. Dresden. Horsley. L. 2.

- 1 HOW long, thou faithful God, shall I
Here in thy ways forgotten lie?
When shall the means of healing be
The channels of thy grace to me?
- 2 Sinners on every side step in,
And wash away their stain and sin
But I, a helpless, sin-sick soul,
Still lie expiring at the pool.
- 3 Thou seest me lying at the pool,
I would, thou know'st I would be whole;
O let the troubled waters move,
And minister thy healing love.

ANON.

JOHN V.

Jesus cureth a Man on the Sabbath-day.

AFTER this there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath.

10 The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day: it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away, a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterwards Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN V.—What a blessing was the pool of Bethesda to thousands! The name signifies a house of mercy. Appropriate name! for many who bathed in the waters of the sacred pool experienced the miraculous mercy of God when their loathsome, painful, long-continued diseases were healed, and when they were restored to the enjoyment of health and all its accompanying blessings. Are not the ordinances of the Gospel spiritual pools of Bethesda?

What multitudes in all ages have stepped down into these pools, have bathed in their waters, and have obtained a blessed deliverance from all the loathsome maladies of their souls? There was only one pool of Bethesda. Let us rejoice in the number of our spiritual pools of Bethesda, found wherever the glorious Gospel is proclaimed. But it is only when the Divine Spirit moves the waters that the healing change is experienced. Let us never cease to admire the mercy of Christ, which he manifested in the days of his humanity, and which he still displays to the children of men, in extending to them the blessings of his salvation. He has greater pleasure now in healing diseased souls than he had then in removing bodily disease. May we daily commend to his compassion our beloved relatives who are dead in trespasses and sins.

PRAYER.

THOU great and uncreated Jehovah, thou art the God of salvation, and the Lord our God. Incomprehensibly glorious art thou in the vast universe thou hast made, and in the vast empire which thou dost maintain and govern. But the glory of thy character and perfections shines with peculiar splendour in the scheme of mercy, and in the salvation of ruined man.

We adore, O Lord, thy grace, which was given in Christ before the world began, but is now manifested by the appearing of Christ Jesus, who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light by the Gospel.

Holy Spirit, enable us with contrition of heart to acknowledge the frightful and extensive ravages of sin. When we look to our own hearts, we see that they are deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. What reason then have we to exclaim, Woe unto us, for we have sinned! When we cast our eyes abroad upon the face of the earth, and observe the state of men under the influence and reign of sin, we see that there is none righteous, no, not one. Alas, O Lord, there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. What reason then have we, as the fallen descendants of Adam, to exclaim, Woe unto us, for we have sinned!

We would fervently pray, O Lord, that all of us may be convinced of sin, and obtain an affecting sight of the diseases of our own hearts. O preserve us from that most dangerous disease, ignorance of our true state, and unconcern about our eternal interests. Preserve us, Divine Spirit, from blindness of mind, hardness of heart, scaredness of conscience, and vile affections.

May the pool of Bethesda remind us of the pool of Gospel ordinances; and may the miraculous moving of the waters remind us of the supernatural power of the Spirit, giving saving efficacy to the means of grace. Lord, we thank thee for the pool of Gospel ordinances. There may we wait for the healing influence of the Holy Ghost. Make us sensible of our spiritual distempers: then shall we earnestly long for the healing power of Jesus, our Divine Physician. May thy sacred sanctuary, where we regularly attend the ministry of the Word, be highly honoured as the hallowed spot where multitudes shall meet with Jesus, the Divine and skilful Physician of souls.

There, may our beloved offspring feel the benign virtue of the healing balm of his grace. May they and we have reason to sing, Bless the Lord, who healeth all our diseases!

We thank God for the unmerited and continued mercies of the past day, and that we have been carried safely through its dangers, temptations, and difficulties. We implore the pardon of all the sins we have committed since we last assembled around thy sacred throne. Take us under thy protection this night, and, when we reach the night of death, may we enter upon the blessedness of immortality. Hear us, O Lord, for Jesus' sake, the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world. Amen.

MERCY.

Holborn, Guard. Broughton.

P. X.

- 1 THEY mercy, my God, is the theme of my song,
The joy of my heart and the boast of my tongue;
Thy free grace alone, from the first to the last,
Hath won my affections, and bound my soul fast.
- 2 Without thy sweet mercy I could not live here,
Sin soon would reduce me to utter despair;
But through thy free goodness my spirits revive,
And he that first made me still keeps me alive.
- 3 Thy mercy is more than a match for my heart,
Which wonders to feel its own hardness depart;
Dissolved by thy goodness I fall to the ground,
And weep to the praise of the mercy I found.

S —

LEVITICUS XXIV.

The Blasphemer put to Death.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

- 2 Command the children of Israel, that they bring unto thee pure oil olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamps to burn continually.
- 3 Without the veil of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning before the LORD continually: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations.
- 4 He shall order the lamps upon the pure candlestick before the LORD continually.
- 5 And thou shalt take fine flour, and bake twelve cakes thereof: two tenth deals shall be in one cake.
- 6 And thou shalt set them in two rows, six on a row, upon the pure table before the LORD.
- 7 And thou shalt put pure frankincense upon each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.
- 8 Every sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.
- 9 And it shall be Aaron's and his sons'; and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is most holy unto him of the offerings of the LORD made by fire by a perpetual statute.
- 10 And the son of an Israelitish woman, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel; and this son of the Israelitish woman and a man of Israel strove together in the camp;
- 11 And the Israelitish woman's son blasphemed the name of the LORD, and cursed. And they brought him unto Moses: (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan:)
- 12 And they put him in ward, that the mind of the LORD might be shewed them.
- 13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
- 14 Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp; and let all that heard him lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation stone him.
- 15 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Whosoever curseth his God shall bear his sin.
- 16 And he that blasphemeth the name of the LORD, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death.
- 18 And Moses spake to the children of Israel, that they should bring forth him that had cursed out of the camp, and stone him with stones. And the children of Israel did as the LORD commanded Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XXIV.—It is infinitely important to have in the lamp of our profession the oil of grace. Have we the oil of grace in the lamp of our profession? Serious—useful question!

Is our lamp trimmed? Let us beware of all which may have a tendency to disorder our lamp, and to interrupt it in the ardour of its burning, or in the brightness of its shining. It is the Holy Spirit who gives the oil of grace, and by whose influences the lamp burns and shines. Let us daily look to him for constant supplies of the sacred oil for maintaining the holy fire, and for making our light so shine before men as to glorify our Father in heaven. In the affecting history of the aggravated sin and dreadful doom of the blaspheming youth, we have a melancholy illustration of the Divine saying of the inspired Apostle: "The wages of sin is death." Hardened in his sin, we have no evidence that he showed the slightest penitence or compunction. Awful thought, To die under the load of unrepented—of unpardoned, guilt! In this life, men may escape the punishment they deserve for profaning the NAME OF GOD: without repentance, a day of punishment awaits them, from which escape is impossible.

PRAYER.

EXALTED Lord God, our merciful Father, thou art the blessed and only potentate, the Lord of angels, and the ruler of men. What reason have we to adore and praise thy holy name, that thou art the God of salvation, and that thou hast revealed thyself to us in the Word of life under that most blessed character. None but an Almighty Surety could bear the weight of our salvation, and thou didst find out an Almighty Surety. None but a Divine Surety could make atonement for our infinite guilt, and such a Surety thou hast found. Then thou spakest in vision to thy Holy One: I have laid help upon one that is mighty; with whom my hand shall be established, and my covenant shall stand fast: even the Son of man, whom thou madest strong for thyself. What is man, that thou shouldst have thus addressed him in his misery: O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself, but in me is thine help!

May the portion of the sacred volume we have now read be graciously applied to our hearts. By thy Word may we be enlightened and comforted. With thy servant of old may all of us be enabled to sing, Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage.

Blessed Saviour, may the golden lamps which burnt continually in the tabernacle bring thee to our remembrance as the light of the Church—as the true light, which enlighteneth every man who cometh into the world. Give us as a family, as individuals, and as a congregation, the light of thy salvation. May we no longer sit in the dark regions of the shadow of death. Give us, we humbly pray, the light of grace; and, when the shades of death surround our bodies of dust, O may our souls awake amid the bright glories of immortality.

May our minds be most solemnly impressed with the just punishment which was inflicted upon Shelomith's son, for blaspheming the name of the Lord. We adore and fear thy justice, O Lord, in commanding the elders of the people to take him out of the camp of Israel, and stone him to death! Thou art a jealous God, watching over the honour of thy perfections and prerogatives. We would mourn, O Lord, over the blasphemy of our own hearts, and over the alarming extent of the sin of blasphemy in these lands of our nativity. We mourn that multitudes of the rising race, almost as soon as they are able to speak, are taught with their youthful lips to hiss out blasphemies against God. Mercifully wash out this national stain; mercifully remove this immense load of national guilt.

Preserve our beloved children from this God provoking iniquity. May they ever feel how offensive this sin is to thee, and how dreadful will be the doom of those who enter eternity under the load of its guilt.

We thank our God that we have been kindly preserved during the night that is passed. This day may we feel and speak and act under a sense of thy glorious majesty. May this affect us in all our secular and religious duties. Hear us, for our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE POWER OF THE GOSPEL.

Alfred. Bath Aurloula. Gloucester. Derby.

L. M.

- 1 THIS is the word of truth and love,
Sent to the nations from above;
Jehovah here resolves to show
What his almighty grace can do.
- 2 This remedy did wisdom find
To heal diseases of the mind;
This sovereign balm, whose virtues can Restore the ruined creature, man.
- 3 The gospel bids the dead revive,
Sinners obey the voice and live;
Dry bones are raised and clothed afresh,
And hearts of stone are turned to flesh.

Watts, 138, B. 11.

JOHN V.

Christ justifies himself.

THEN answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raised up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

23 That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live.

26 For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself;

27 And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man.

28 Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice,

29 And shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of condemnation.

30 I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me.

31 If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.

32 There is another that beareth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true.

33 Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth, 34 But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, that ye might be saved.

35 He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

36 But I have greater witness than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.

37 And the Father himself, which hath sent me, hath borne witness of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape.

38 And ye have not his word abiding in you: for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN V.—In the clearest language Jesus declared his Divinity and his equality with the Father, in his attributes and works. The declaration of his Divinity by his words he demonstrated by his stupendous miracles of power and of mercy. Let us greatly rejoice in Christ's power to quicken dead souls and raise them up to newness of life. Have we received the blessing of a spiritual resurrection? Have we heard the voice of the Son of God, and do we live? Then we shall rejoice in the prospect of a second resurrection, when our bodies shall awake to life and immortality.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, glorious Jehovah, as our new covenant God. From all eternity thou didst enter into a covenant of grace with thy well-beloved Son, that all the attributes of thy nature might be glorified by the accomplishment of the salvation of thy people. We praise thee that, for the encouragement of thy Church in all ages, thou hast said respecting thy covenant, My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that, in the days of thy humbled humanity, thou gavest this testimony to thine immutable covenant: The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for whatsoever things he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

We would with reverence adore thee, O Lord, in that inconceivable and infinite love thou didst cherish to thy Son from eternal ages. He was daily thy delight, rejoicing always before thee. We adore thy grace, that, notwithstanding thine infinite and transcendent love to thine eternal and only-begotten Son, thou didst most readily send him to our world of rebellion and sin, to work out the salvation of enemies, who were worthy of eternal banishment from thy presence. When we think of this most unmerited and matchless display of mercy and compassion, what reason have we to exclaim, Praise God in his sanctuary! praise him in the firmament of his power! Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord! Praise ye the Lord!

May our minds be deeply impressed with the necessity of faith in Christ. Holy Spirit, give us that faith which is inseparably connected with eternal life. Blessed Saviour, may we be among the number of those who hear thy Word with the understanding, and who believe on the Father who hath sent thee upon the great errand of our salvation; then shall we have everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but shall pass from death to life. If there are any among us, or among our dear relatives, fast asleep in nature's unregenerate state, may we continue no longer far from God; may we hear the voice of the Son of God, and live.

May the voice of thy mercy, O Saviour, reach the ear and change the heart of our beloved children. Lord Jesus, awake them from the slumbers of a natural state.

Now may all of us enjoy the blessedness of a spiritual resurrection; and may none of us remain in the gloomy grave of spiritual death, which is the harbinger of eternal woe. O prepare us for the solemnities of the last day. When the hour arrives that all who are in their graves shall hear the powerful voice of Christ, and shall come forth, may each one of us be among the number who shall come forth to the resurrection of life.

We thank God for the mercies of the past week, and implore the pardon of all the sins we have committed from its commencement to its close. This night may we be refreshed with sleep, and prepared for the sacred solemnities of an approaching Sabbath.

These blessings we ask, for our dear Redeemer's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

PRAYER AND REPENTANCE.

Oldford. Shields. Carolina. Workop.

C. M.

1. A MIDST thy wrath remember love;
Restore thy servant, Lord;
Nor let a Father's chastening prove
Like an avenger's sword.
- 2 My sins a heavy load appear,
And o'er my head are gone;
Too heavy they for me to bear,
Too hard for me to atone.
- 3 All my desire to thee is known,
Thine eye counts every tear,
And every sigh, and every groan,
Is noticed by thine ear.

WATTS, Ps. 38.

PSALM XXXVIII.

Prayer for Mercy.

O LORD, rebuke me not in thy wrath: neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.

2 For thine arrows stick fast in me, and thy hand presseth me sore.

3 There is no soundness in my flesh because of thine anger; neither is there any rest in my bones because of my sin.

4 For mine iniquities are gone over mine head: as an heavy burden they are too heavy for me.

9 LORD, all my desire is before thee; and my groaning is not hid from thee.

10 My heart panteth, my strength faileth me: as for the light of mine eyes, it also is gone from me.

11 My lovers and my friends stand aloof from my sore; and my kinsmen stand afar off.

12 They also that seek after my life lay snares for me: and they that seek my hurt speak mischievous things, and imagine deceits all the day long.

13 But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and I was as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth.

14 Thus I was as a man that heareth not, and in whose mouth are no reproofs.

15 For in thee, O LORD, do I hope: thou wilt hear, O LORD my God.

16 For I said, Hear me, lest otherwise they should rejoice over me: when my foot slippeth, they magnify themselves against me.

17 For I am ready to halt, and my sorrow is continually before me.

18 For I will declare mine iniquity; I will be sorry for my sin.

19 But mine enemies are lively, and they are strong; and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied.

20 They also that render evil for good are mine adversaries; because I follow the thing that good is.

21 Forsake me not, O LORD: O my God, be not far from me.

22 Make haste to help me, O LORD my salvation.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXVIII.—Great were the sufferings of David, but they were only typical of the infinitely more intense sufferings of Jesus, David's root, and David's offspring. David's sufferings were the fruit of his own sins; Christ's sufferings were the bitter fruits of our imputed guilt. Our sins were laid upon the Surety. "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquity." The believer can say, in the exercise of faith, "When Jesus was agonised upon the accursed tree, my guilt was there, my sin was there. O how he loved me!" Was David forsaken in his afflictions? See how Jesus was forsaken as his afflictions increased in their number and grew in their intensity. When the Great Shepherd was smitten by the sword of justice the sheep were scattered: all forsook him, and all fled with dismay. Was David silent under his heavy afflictions? Our Jesus was silent under his heaviest afflictions: no murmurings against Divine justice, no complaints even against unjust men, though persecutors and murderers, fell from his lips. "He did not lift up nor cause his voice to be heard in the streets." Inimitable, matchless patience, submission, meekness, and gentleness! "He was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth." David's afflictions led him to his God, his Comforter, and his Refuge. Blessed are they who can say, in their afflictions, "My Jesus, I flee unto thee to hide me!"

PRAYER.

GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, thou art the hope of thy people, and, when they cry unto thee, thou wilt hear their prayer. Give us grace to say, in the language of the Psalmist, and with the grace which animated his heart, In thee, O Lord, do we hope: thou wilt hear, O Lord our God.

Bless to us, gracious Spirit, the affecting account we have now read of the sufferings of David thy servant. Like him may we, in language of genuine repentance, confess our sins. Surely our iniquities have gone over our head; as an heavy burden they are too heavy for us. May the existence of indwelling sin be indeed the burden of the soul. May our pride, our ignorance, our folly, our carnality, our enmity, our unbelief, be indeed the burden of our souls. O Lord, let Christ be made of God unto us sanctification. May we feel within the blessed influences of his sanctifying spirit. We cannot bear, O Lord, the heavy burden of our guilt; and therefore we would earnestly implore an interest in our Saviour's righteousness. May each member of this our family be in Christ Jesus; then shall we take the encouraging language of the apostle into our lips: There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

May we never forget that the iniquities of an elect world went over the head of our blessed Saviour like the billows of a tempestuous ocean; and that the guilt of his people's transgressions was to him a burden of overwhelming weight, when he groaned amid the agonies of Gethsemane, and expired upon the cross of Calvary. May our hearts be filled with superlative love to a Saviour so merciful and kind, who considered no sufferings too great to rescue an elect world from the lowest hell.

We desire, O Lord, with joyful hearts, to thank thee that we are preserved to enter upon another Sabbath-day. May it prove to us, to the congregation, and to all the churches, a day of spiritual rest. May a Divine solemnity pervade all the assemblies of thy people, and may there be a rich descent of the influences of the Holy Spirit. Come, sacred Spirit, from above, and fill these cold hearts of ours with love Divine. O soften our hardened hearts, make them soft and tender; and let thy gracious power be known.

Have mercy on all our rulers. May they believe the Gospel, and ever exercise their authority under its influence. For ever may the seats of authority in these lands be established in righteousness, and prove the defence of our privileges, civil and religious.

O may the rod of thy Divine strength touch the hearts of our beloved children. Make them this day willing subjects of Jesus.

May the sons and daughters of affliction be comforted under their absence from thy courts, by the gracious presence of Christ.

O fill our dear pastor with the Holy Ghost; and may his tongue be like the pen of a ready writer. Hear, answer, and forgive, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

MAN'S VANITY AS MORTAL.

Christ Church. Webster's. Burford. Windsor. c. n.

- 1 TEACH me the measure of my days,
Thou Maker of my frame!
I would survey life's narrow space,
And learn how frail I am.
- 2 A span is all that we can boast.
An inch or two of time;
Man is but vanity and dust,
In all his flower and prime.
- 3 See the vain race of mortals move
Like shadows o'er the plain;
They rage and strive, desire and love,
But all the noise is vain.

Watts, Ps. 89, p. 11.

PSALM XXXIX.

Brevity of Life.

I SAID, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I will keep my mouth with a bridle, while the wicked is before me.

2 I was dumb with silence, I held my peace, even from good; and my sorrow was stirred.

3 My heart was hot within me, while I was musing the fire burned: then spake I with my tongue,

4 LORD, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am.

5 Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee: verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity. Selah.

6 Surely every man walketh in a vain show: surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them.

7 And now, LORD, what wait I for? my hope is in thee.

8 Deliver me from all my transgressions: make me not the reproach of the foolish.

9 I was dumb, I opened not my mouth; because thou didst it.

10 Remove thy stroke away from me: I am consumed by the blow of thine hand.

11 When thou with rebukes dost correct man for iniquity, thou makest his beauty to consume away like a moth: surely every man is vanity. Selah.

12 Hear my prayer, O LORD, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears: for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were.

13 O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and be no more.

PSALM XL.

I WAITED patiently for the LORD; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry.

2 He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings.

3 And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the LORD.

4 Blessed is that man that maketh the LORD his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XXXIX., XL.—If we are called upon to avoid sin because we are under the eye and observation of wicked men, filled with hatred, malevolence, and envy, how much more are we called upon to avoid sin because we are under the eye of God, a God of spotless purity, and who is our God and Father in Christ, full of love, compassion, and grace! Meditation is an ordinance of great value, and, by the observance of this ordinance, the Holy Spirit has conferred upon the soul the richest benefits. While meditating on the sovereignty, wisdom, and goodness of God—while thinking of Christ and his great salvation—while considering that unerring wisdom by which all the movements of Providence are managed—the soul has been suddenly warmed with an adoring admiration of Jehovah, and anticipations of the glories of immortality. In conversion the believer is raised from the deep pit of spiritual death, and is taught to sing in joyful hope of the blessedness of heaven.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, with solemnity and reverence we would approach thy gracious throne. As we are overspread with sin and overwhelmed with guilt, and therefore cannot be accepted in our own name and on our own account, we rejoice that through the merit of our dear Redeemer our persons may be accepted, our prayers answered, and our sins forgiven.

We have now enjoyed the inestimable privilege of reading the Scriptures. May the Holy Spirit give efficacy to the observance of the sacred ordinance. May we ever view the reading as well as the preaching of the Word a Divine and appointed ordinance by which God is to be glorified, Jesus exalted, and the interests of the soul advanced. O that each one of us may be enabled to exclaim respecting the holy Word, How precious is thy book Divine, given by inspiration, shining with rays of Divine wisdom, and bright with beams of Divine love! O may we be guided by its blessed doctrines to the heaven of heavens!

We adore thee, O Lord, in the eternity of thy being. From everlasting thou art God; we are but of yesterday. To everlasting thou art God; but our days are as a handbreadth, our age is nothing before thee; in our best estate we are altogether vanity. O how soon does thy stroke destroy the haughtiness of kings, and extinguish the glory of regal power! How soon does thy stroke level the strong and mighty with the dust!

Give us grace to see the insufficiency of earthly grandeur or wealth as a portion for the soul, and the indispensable necessity of an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away.

Bless to us the dispensation of the Gospel this day in thy sanctuary. By the efficacy of the Spirit attending thine ordinances, may multitudes be brought out of the horrible pit and the miry clay of a natural and unregenerate state. Grant this our petition, most merciful Father.

Take our dear children, and the rising race, the future hopes of thy Church; set their feet on Christ, the rock of ages; and let their goings be established in thy ways. Grant this our petition, most merciful Father.

Have mercy upon us as a family, and suffer us not to be hardened under the means of grace. Have mercy on the congregation with which we are associated, and may they not be hardened under the means of grace. Let the labours of our minister be crowned with the most encouraging success. Put a new song in our mouth; even praise unto our God. May many see it, and fear and trust in the Lord. Mercifully grant this our petition, O Lord God!

We earnestly pray that a preached Gospel may be eminently blessed to all our rulers, and also to those who are entrusted with the tuition of the rising race, whether in our universities or other seminaries of learning. May the teachers of the children of the rich, and the teachers of the children of the poor, be all taught of God.

May we lie down this evening upon our beds, placing all our trust in God, and deeply impressed with the solemnities of this sacred day.

Lord, hear thy humble petitioners, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

EXCELLENCY OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Auburn. Gabriel New. Evans. Suffolk.

C. M.

- 1 FATHER of mercies! in thy word
What endless glory shines!
For ever be thy name adored
For these celestial lines.
- 2 Here may the wretched sons of want Exhaustless riches find;
Riches above what earth can grant,
And lasting as the mind.
- 3 Here the fair tree of knowledge grows,
And yields a free repast;
Sublimar sweets than nature knows
Invite the longing taste.

STEELE.

JOHN V.

Unbelief.

SEARCH the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me.

40 And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.

41 I receive not honour from men.

42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not:
if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive.

44 How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?

45 Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust.

46 For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me:
for he wrote of me.

47 But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

JOHN VI.

Miracle of Loaves and Fishes.

WHEN Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?

6 And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.

7 Philip answered him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him,

9 There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?

10 And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

11 And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would.

12 When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

14 Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN V., VI.—What a mine is the Bible, containing Jesus the Pearl of great price! What a noble firmament is the Bible, where Jesus the Sun of righteousness shines in all his brightness, and from which he sheds down his rays of light, life, and joy on many nations of the earth! May that Book, that blessed Book, be more and more precious in our estimation! What a barren desert is that heart where the Divine plant of love to God does not grow!

What a dreary night of darkness and of gloom is that soul where the Sun of Divine love does not shine! Without faith we can never relish the Divine records. Without faith the Divine food which it presents can afford us neither nourishment nor enjoyment. Let it be our earnest prayer to be delivered from unbelief, and to be made rich in faith. What a display the miraculous feeding of the multitude furnishes of Christ's Divinity, omnipotence, and mercy! And we should look upon that miraculous feast as a blessed figure of the Gospel feast of the blessings of salvation, which Christ has prepared for all nations.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art infinitely holy and blessed and glorious. We are thy property, and it is not only our privilege, but our bounden duty, to serve and honour thee.
We are the creatures of thy power, and we are the objects of thine unceasing providential care. Thou hast, therefore, the greatest claims for our obedience and our love. Thou art our gracious benefactor, constantly loading us with benefits. Thou hast fed and clothed and kept and comforted us to the present moment. Having obtained help of thee our God, we continue the preserved and distinguished monuments of thy mercy.

We desire to look to thy blood, O Jesus, to wash out the guilt we have contracted this day; and to thy Spirit, to sanctify the duties in which we have been engaged. May the mercies we have received awaken within us sentiments of gratitude and praise.

This night may we as a family, and all the families with which we are connected, repose with confidence in the bosom of thy love. May we lie down on our beds comforted by that encouraging promise: He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps.

Give us grace, most blessed Saviour, to love and obey thy wise and salutary counsel. Teach us to search the Scriptures.
In these mines of eternal truth, wisdom, and love, may we search for the inestimable jewel of eternal life. When we read thy Word, may we find it accompanied by the Divine energy of its author; then it will prove quick and powerful. May it be quick, the mean of imparting spiritual life; and may it be powerful, the mean of subduing and destroying the strong and numerosous corruptions of our nature. May we see the glory of the Divine perfections shining upon the pages of the sacred volume; there may we find true riches boundless as the wishes of the soul, and lasting as the throne of God. Here in the luxuriant field of truth and grace may we see that the tree of knowledge grows, yielding fruit which will refresh, satisfy, and invigorate the soul.

Remove, we earnestly pray, the natural aversion which man feels toward the Word of God. We would mourn over the determined opposition which profane infidels manifest against the inspired records, and over the baneful and destroying influence of their pernicious views. Holy Spirit, may the light of Divine truth shine among the nations with increasing splendour, and may the dark clouds of infidelity and atheism disappear before its glorious brightness.

May the beloved children of our family discover an early attachment to the Holy Scriptures. May this attachment continue with them all their days.

Thou almighty Saviour, who didst miraculously feed thousands with the bread that perished, during the days of thy humbled humanity, O do thou graciously feed the millions of the human race with the bread of eternal life, now thou art exalted to thy heavenly throne. May the Gospel feast soon be spread before all nations.

Graciously hear these our humble prayers, and forgive all our sins, for our blessed Saviour's sake. Amen.

SIXTEENTH WEEK.—TUESDAY MORNING.

FEAR NOT, LITTLE FLOCK.

Mount Pleasant. Arabia. Arlington. Furman. C. M.

1 YE little flock, whom Jesus feeds,
Dismiss your anxious cares,
Look to the Shepherd of your souls,
And smile away your fears.
Though wolves and lions prow around,
His staff is your defence:
'Midst sand and rocks your Shepherd's voice
Calls streams and pastures thence.
Your Father will a kingdom give,
And give it with delight;
His feeblest child his love shall call
To triumph in his sight.

DODDRIIDGE.

LEVITICUS XXVI.

Promises and Threatenings.

YE shall make you no idols nor graven images, neither rear you up a standing image, neither shall ye set up any image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: for I am the LORD your God.

2 Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

3 If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them;

4 Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.

5 And your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and ye shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land safely.

6 And I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will rid evil beasts out of the land, neither shall the sword go through your land.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword.

9 For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you.

10 And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth the old because of the new.

11 And I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not abhor you.

12 And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people.

13 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, that ye should not be their bondmen; and I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright.

14 But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments;

15 And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:

16 I also will do this unto you; I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.

17 And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XXVI.—It is one of Satan's proudest triumphs, when he beholds ignorant, infatuated nations bowing down before stocks and stones, and in giving to dumb, dead, contemptible idols, that worship and adoration which are due to God alone. The day shall and must arrive, when Jehovah shall assert his great and glorious prerogatives, when idolatry shall become extinct, and when the Triune God shall be known and loved by all the inhabitants of the earth, and worshipped and adored from the rising to the setting of the sun. Let Sabbath-breakers think and tremble: the sin of Sabbath profanation is placed as next in enormity to the sin of idolatry. Let them fear and tremble; God is determined to inflict his punishment on those who desecrate his Sabbath. They who deliberately shut out the Sabbath, deliberately shut themselves out from God's mercy, and exclude themselves from that heaven of which the earthly Sabbath is a most important type. That soul is far gone in judicial blindness who is neither allured by God's promises to sanctify the Sabbath, nor deterred from its desecration by his awful threatenings.

PRAYER.

OUR Father and our God, whom we desire to adore, thou art the eternal Jehovah, the unchangeably blessed and the infinitely glorious Lord God. All worlds and beings are under thy government, and subject to thy control. In wisdom, strength, holiness, mercy, and truth, there is none like unto thee. Thou art essentially happy in thyself; thy felicity is independent of all thy creatures: thou standest in no need of our services, though thou dost require them; and if we had the excellence of angels, our goodness could not extend unto thee. All our dependence is on thee, O Lord; and if thou shouldst withdraw thyself from us, we must instantly sink into the very depths of misery.

We would with humility supplicate the Lord, that our souls may be filled with the love of God. As an evidence of this love, may we sanctify thy Sabbath, and ever look upon it as an emblem of an eternal Sabbath of undisturbed enjoyment in heaven. Teach us to love thy sanctuary. May we love the house of God before the abode of the dearest and most valuable of our earthly friends. With the Psalmist may we sing, A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. Divine Saviour, thou hast said, If ye love me, keep my commandments. Teach us to yield a filial and evangelical obedience to thy laws, and conscientiously and constantly to observe thine ordinances. Open our eyes to see that thy laws and ordinances are a rich inheritance, and that to obey them and observe them is the greatest privilege.

We thank thee that this thy promise has long been fulfilled in our experience: Ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid. During the last night we have had a renewed testimony of this thy gracious promise, for which we bless and praise thy name.

Mercifully preserve us, O Lord, from our enemies. In the exercise of grace may we successfully contend with our spiritual enemies, and may we put them to flight. Convince us that no enemies are so dangerous as the corruptions of our own heart. May we carefully watch these dangerous foes, and may we earnestly long for their complete destruction.

Affect our dear children with a lively sense of the depravity of their nature and the hardness of their heart. May they surrender their soul to Jesus, that he may impart a new nature, and adorn them with the beauties of holiness.

O fulfil these promises in our experience as a family: I will have respect unto you, and I will set my tabernacle among you, and my soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people. Mercifully fulfil these great and precious promises in our experience. May our abode be thy residence; may thy favour be our portion; may thy perfections be a glorious wall of defence around us; and may we enjoy for ever and ever the fellowship of the Father, Son, and Spirit.

Give us an eye to thy glory this day; and, in seeking after the things of time, may we not forget the things of eternity. Lord, answer our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake, whom thou hearest always. Amen.

FEARS REMOVED.

Hayes. Green Walk. Hinton. Westbury Leigh.

P. M.

- 1 UNCLEAN! Unclean! and full of sin,
From first to last, O Lord, I've been!
Deceitful is my heart:
Guilt presses down my burdened soul;
But Jesus can the waves control,
And bid my fears depart.
- 2 When first I heard his word of grace,
Ungratefully I hid my face,—
Ungratefully delayed:
At length his voice more powerful came
'Tis I, he cried, I, still the same;
Thou need'st not be afraid.
- 3 My heart was changed; in that same hour
My soul confessed his mighty power;
Out flowed the briny tear:
I listened still to hear his voice;
Again he said, In me rejoice;
'Tis I—thou need'st not fear.

J. B. S. F.

JOHN VI.

Jesus walking on the Waves of the Sea.

WHEN Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone.

16 And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea, 17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them.

18 And the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew.

19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.

20 But he saith unto them, It is I; be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went.

22 The day following, when the people which stood on the other side of the sea saw that there was none other boat there save that one whereinto his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone;

23 (Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:)

24 When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum seeking for Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.

30 They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou work?

31 Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, Verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VI.—Though Christ's kingdom as Mediator is not of this world, his kingdom, as God, is an universal kingdom, including all worlds. When believers are surrounded by the darkness of adversity, great is their perplexity, when they are without the presence and fellowship of Christ. His fellowship and presence can lighten the heaviest burden, mitigate the severest affliction, sweeten the bitterest cup of sorrow, impart joy in the darkest night of earthly adversity, and give confidence and hope in the midst of the most furious tempest of human calamity. The disciples, tossed upon the lake of Tiberias, amid the darkness of night, and in danger of being every moment engulfed in the deep, longed for Christ's presence. What they wished they obtained, and found him a very present help in time of need. May all our troubles teach us to look to Jesus, and say, and sing in faith: "We will lift up our eyes to the hills, the divine perfections, whence cometh our help."

PRAYER.

OUR God and Father in Christ, we desire, with sentiments of reverence and humility, at the close of this day, to separate ourselves from worldly business and cares, and to adore thee as infinitely and incomprehensibly glorious, having all perfection in thyself, and who art the inexhaustible fountain of all that blessedness which is enjoyed by angels and men. Thou art the blessed and only potentate, wielding a sceptre of wisdom and righteousness over thy vast dominions. Notwithstanding our insignificance and sinfulness, we come to thee our God, in the name of Jesus, thy well-beloved Son, whom thou hearest always, and who is the way, the truth, and life.

May the reading of the Scriptures be accompanied by thy blessing. What we see with the eye of the body, may we see with the eye of the understanding and the eye of faith.

Raise our hearts above the world, above its wealth, its pleasures, its honours, its power. Herein may we imitate the example of our Lord, who treated earthly grandeur and wealth with such merited contempt, that, when the people desired to make him a king, he departed himself unto a mountain alone to pray. Ever may Christ reign in our heart, and may the moon of this world be under our feet.

Sanctify to us, Holy Saviour, all the storms of life through which we have passed. We praise thee that past afflictions have not destroyed us; O that they had improved us! If we have enjoyed thy blessed presence in the storms that are past, we bless thee for so distinguished an instance of thy goodness. In all our afflictions may we believe that thou art present with thy wisdom to guide, thy power to defend, and thy goodness to comfort. May our minds be encouraged by the blessed effects which sanctified afflictions produce. Truly, O Lord, thy purposes, however mysterious and forbidding to our view, will ripen into delicious fruit; and we praise thee that, though the bud may be bitter, the flower will be sweet.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that all the waves of affliction are under thy control, and that they can roll no higher and rage no longer than thy wisdom will permit. We praise thee that thou art as willing to change the threatening storm of affliction into a calm, as thou wast to subdue the raging of the waves which threatened the lives of thy disciples. Say to us in all our afflictions, It is I: be not afraid. When overwhelmed with a sense of guilt and fear of punishment, say to us, It is I; I am near thee as the Lord thy righteousness; be not afraid. When surrounded by the enemies of our soul, and afflicted by severe temptation, say to us, It is I; I am near thee as thy mighty deliverer and shield; be not afraid.

When we are laid in the grave, may our children enjoy thy presence in all the dangers of the way, and ever hear thine encouraging voice: It is I; be not afraid.

Accept of our thanks for thy providential presence with us this day, give us thy fatherly care this night, forgive our sins, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, who is the resurrection and the life. Amen.

GOD'S JUSTICE AND MAJESTY.

Webster's. Alton. Bedford. Canterbury.

c. n.

- 1 THE Lord, the Judge, before his throne,
Bids the whole earth draw nigh,
The nations near the rising sun,
And near the western sky.
- 2 No more shall bold blasphemers say,
'Judgments will ne'er begin:'
No more abuse his long delay
To impudence and sin.
- 3 Throned on a cloud our God shall come,
Bright flames prepare his way,
Thunder and darkness, fire and storm,
Lead on the dreadful day.

Watts, Pa. 30, p. 1.

LEVITICUS XXVI.

Threatenings against Sin.

AND if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins.

19 And I will break the pride of your power; and I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:

20 And your strength shall be spent in vain: for your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

21 And if ye walk contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me; I will bring seven times more plagues upon you according to your sins.

22 I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number; and your high ways shall be desolate.

23 And if ye will not be reformed by me by these things, but will walk contrary unto me;

24 Then will I also walk contrary unto you, and will punish you yet seven times for your sins.

25 And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant: and when ye are gathered together within your cities I will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.

26 And when I have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight: and ye shall eat and not be satisfied.

27 And if ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me;

28 Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury; and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins.

29 And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.

30 And I will destroy your high places, and cut down your images, and cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you.

31 And I will make your cities waste, and bring your sanctuaries unto desolation, and I will not smell the savour of your sweet odours.

40 If they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me;

42 Then will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land.

REFLECTIONS UPON LEVITICUS XXVI.—Enduring judgments for sin, and becoming even more hardened in sin by these merited judgments, show a soul in the greatest moral degradation on the one hand, and on the other exposed to the greatest dangers. Wicked men may glory in their pride as a sun which shall continually shine. How soon God humbles the pride of man, and clothes them with confusion, ignominy, and shame. Wicked men may boast of their power, as a fortress impregnable and sure. How soon God causes the winds of his righteous indignation to blow, when their high towers are levelled with the dust, and their presumptuous confidence changed into the miseries of despair! What a hopeless contest is a life of sin, rebellion, and impenitence! Blind beyond conception must the eyes of the understandings of those be who deliberately enter the field of hostility against God—a Being of unchanging justice, and whose arm is omnipotent! God has a boundless treasury of mercy filled, yea, overflowing with blessings. He has also an armoury of justice, where are laid up the vials of his wrath, and where are collected judgments the most overwhelming and destructive. Blessed only are they who enter into a covenant of peace with God, who has mercy to save and justice to destroy.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah, infinite is thy holiness, compared with which the purity of the heavens is pollution; and unsearchable thy wisdom, compared with which the wisdom of angels is folly. We are thine, for thy hand called us into existence. We are thine, for the bounty of thy providence has preserved us all our days. We are thine, for thou didst send the Son of thy love to redeem us by the shedding of his precious blood, and the laying down of his precious life.

We adore thee, O Lord, as the great benefactor of the world in which we dwell. Thou givest to all life and breath and all things. We have especially tasted thy providential goodness; for thou hast fed us, and clothed us, and preserved us, and comforted us, all our life long to the present day. We are the preserved and the distinguished monuments of unmerited and forfeited goodness.

May we see in thy goodness the greatness of sin, which stands opposed to such goodness. May thy goodness to man show the aggravation of the sins of men, in rebelling against a God of such benevolence and kindness. Convince each one of us of the absolute necessity of the knowledge and conviction of the evil of sin. May we see by thy law, by thy threatenings, by the judgments which have befallen guilty nations, by the miseries of those who are shut up in the mansions of the lost, but, above all, by the sufferings of thy well-beloved Son, that sin is an infinite evil, committed against a God of infinite justice, holiness, and goodness. May what we have now read of the judgments which were threatened against ancient Israel if they forsook thy ways, prove a salutary warning to us, carefully to avoid whatever is offensive to thy holiness and obnoxious to thy justice.

O Lord, deliver us from hardened and impenitent hearts. God forbid that we should remain unmoved when we hear thy prohibitions against sin; God forbid that we should remain hardened and unmoved when we hear thy tremendous threatenings denounced against transgressions.

O preserve the dear children of the family from hearts obdurate and insensible. May they be alarmed at sin, and be affected with the thought of the eternal punishment of sin. Take the hard and stony heart out of their flesh.

If there be any now before thee around our domestic altar, if there are any of our beloved connections, acquaintances, or friends, whose hearts are unmoved by a sense of sin or a fear of punishment, who have neither been allured by thy goodness nor alarmed by thy justice, who are neither affected by promises nor by threatenings, O Lord, have mercy upon them. Open their eyes to see that, after their hardness, and impenitent heart, they are treasuring up unto themselves wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who will render to every man according to his works. Lord, convince them! Lord, save them!

We thank God that we are spared to see the light and taste the comforts of another day. Give us day by day our daily bread and our daily grace. Every day may we learn lessons of wisdom, humility, and experience. Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake, our Redeemer and Comforter. Amen.

CHRIST THE BREAD OF LIFE.

Kemeey. Amana. Leeda. Madana.

L. M.

- 1 DEPRAVED minds on ashes feed;
Nor love nor seek for heavenly bread;
They choose the husks which swine do eat,
Or meanly crave the serpent's meat.
- 2 Jesus! thou art the living bread
By which our needy souls are fed;
In thee alone thy children find
Enough to fill the empty mind.
- 3 Without this bread, I starve and die;
No other ean my need supply;
But this will suit my wretched case,
Abroad, at home, in every place.

FAWCETT.

JOHN VI.

Christ's blessed Sayings.

FOR the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.

36 But I said unto you, That ye also have seen me, and believe not.

37 All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

42 And they said, Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven?

43 Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves.

44 No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

45 It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

46 Not that any man hath seen the Father, save he which is of God, he hath seen the Father.

47 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.

48 I am that bread of life.

49 Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead.

50 This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

51 I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

52 The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VI.—As the partaking of food is necessary for maintaining the life of the body, so receiving Christ and believing in him are essentially necessary for the existence and the continuance of spiritual life in the soul. What think we of Christ? Have we received enjoyment from him, which the most delicious feasts provided by princes could never confer? Do we rejoice in him as the promised Messiah, and in those miraculous proofs he furnished that he, and he alone, was the Child born, and the Son given? Incalculable are the benefits which accompany and flow from the knowledge of Christ's excellence, and faith in his righteousness. They are included in that great, comprehensive blessing—"Everlasting life!" Great is the goodness of God in his providence, in providing us daily with the bread which perisheth; but infinitely greater the goodness of God in his grace, in providing for our souls the bread of life, which secures, for those who partake of it, the blessings of immortality.

PRAYER.

OUR father's God and our own God, thou art the glorious Jehovah, the object of the admiration, love, and worship of men, of angels, and of glorified saints. Thou art self-existent; thy being is in and of thyself, and thy boundless blessedness flows from thine own uncreated attributes, and is altogether independent of all the created universe beside. We adore thee as the author of our being, and as the source of all our happiness and hope. We desire therefore to seek thee in preference to all objects beside, to implore thy favour, which is more valuable than life itself; and we desire by the promised help of the Holy Spirit to give thee in life, and through the endless ages of eternity, the glory due unto thy name.

We desire, O Jesus, to rejoice in the blessed manifestations of thy Divine glory given in the portion of the holy Word we have now read. Thou art the resurrection and the life. Thou dost raise the soul to life in the day of conversion, and thou wilt raise the bodies of the redeemed to a glorious life on the morning of the resurrection-day. We earnestly pray that we may be now raised to a life that is spiritual, and that our souls may no longer remain in the state of spiritual death. At the last day may we be partakers of the first resurrection; then the second death, that death which consists in the miseries of hell, shall have over us no more power. We place at thy feet, O Jesus, all our beloved relatives who are graceless, who are spiritually dead; and we would pray that they may hear the voice of the Son of God, and live. O, may they live for ever!

We thank thee, O Saviour, for the encouragement thou hast given us to come unto thee. Thou hast promised that they who come thou wilt in no wise cast out. Lord, we come, weak and sinful, helpless and guilty. May thy good spirit teach us to come with humility, love, and confidence. We come to thee for pardon; Lord Jesus, pardon our sins. We come to thee for regeneration; Lord, wash us by the washing of regeneration. We come to thee for grace; Lord, give us of thy fulness, that we may receive, and grace for grace.

Take our beloved children under thy care, and teach them to hunger and thirst after righteousness. May they receive thee as the bread of life.

We desire to look on thee, O Saviour, as the Divine manna, which came down from heaven. O suffer us not to feed on the ashes of worldly objects, but may we feed by faith on the person and righteousness of Christ. May we no longer eat serpents' meat, but may we feed on the doctrines of thy Gospel, the commandments of thy Word, and the promises of thy truth. May we seek from thee and in thee, O Jesus, the nourishment and the comfort of our souls. Thou alone canst fill, thou alone canst satisfy the boundless wishes of our heart.

May our daily sins be pardoned, and our daily guilt washed away. May the shield of thy mercy be spread over us this night. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, who is worthy, with the Father and the Spirit, of all glory and praise, now and ever. Amen.

BLESSINGS OF GODLINESS.

Oldham. Worcester. Providence College. Hammond. C. K.

- 1 HOW vast the blessings, how divine,
From godliness which flow!
Nor men, nor angels, should they join,
Can half its value show.
- 2 Ten thousand comforts it procures
To Christians while on earth;
It endless happiness secures,
And frees from endless death.
- 3 God for himself hath set apart
The godly whom he loves:
They have a place within his heart;
Their conduct he approves.

AMON.

NUMBERS VI.

The Nazarite.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them,
When either man or woman shall separate themselves to vow a vow of a Nazarite, to separate themselves unto the LORD:

3 He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried.

4 All the days of his separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the vine tree, from the kernels even to the husk.

5 All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no razor come upon his head: until the days be fulfilled, in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

6 All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD he shall come at no dead body.

7 He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die:
because the consecration of his God is upon his head.

8 All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD.

9 And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall shave his head in the day of his cleansing, on the seventh day shall he shave it.

10 And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

11 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation, and shall bring a lamb of the first year for a trespass offering: but the days that were before shall be lost, because his separation was defiled.

22 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto Aaron and unto his sons, saying, On this wise ye shall bless the children of Israel, saying unto them,

24 The LORD bless thee, and keep thee:

25 The LORD make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee:

26 The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

27 And they shall put my name upon the children of Israel;
and I will bless them.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS VI.—Our Saviour is remarkably prefigured in the ancient Nazarite. In the most glorious and exalted sense, as Mediator, he was separated unto the Lord. From all sternity he was separated in the Divine decree; and he willingly came under obligations in the covenant of grace to separate and consecrate himself for the great work of redemption—a work far more stupendous than calling the universe into existence. The Nazarite, according to his vow, abstained from luxurious pleasures and delights; see how self-denied was Jesus! see the hunger, and thirst, and numerous privations to which he submitted to accomplish the great work, for which he so nobly and mercifully set himself apart! The Nazarite was a living specimen of self-denial; of self-denial, Jesus was a perfect example. The Nazarite was an exhibition of personal purity, and the rejection of carnal pleasures; Jesus, in his matchless life, gave an example of spotless purity. He was holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners. The consecration of the Nazarite was confirmed by the sacrifice of a lamb; the consecration of Christ to the great work of the atonement was most wonderfully confirmed by the sacrifice of himself, the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. May we be spiritual Nazarites, washed and saved in Jesus' blood!

PRAYER.

O GOD, to whom all majesty belongs, and to whom all praise and adoration are due, thou art an infinite and unchangeable Spirit. In thy power thou art almighty, in thy wisdom thou art unerring, and in thy goodness thou art infinite. No mortal eye can ever behold thee, and the capacity of men or of angels shall never be able to comprehend thee; thou art present in every part of thy dominions, and yet all thy dominions cannot contain thee. Thou art the omniscient God, before whose eyes all creatures, all events, and even the most secret thoughts of the hearts of men, are naked and open. Holy Spirit, we long for thine influence, for thy gracious power, that we may be suitably affected with a believing and devotional sense of the glorious attributes of Jehovah!

We now prostrate ourselves before thy throne. We are unworthy, but there is worthiness in Jesus, our Surety, through whom alone we draw near to thy throne. In dependence upon the assistance of the Holy Spirit, and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, we would call upon the Lord our God.

We have experienced during the last night, and in the returning of the morning's light, that thou art continually doing us good, though we are evil and unthankful. We thank thee for our rest, our refreshment, and defence. We bless thee that we have not been tossed upon our beds with pain, and that wearisome days and nights have not been appointed to us. While many are wandering exiles, having no habitation, we have a safe and quiet abode. For this we praise thee.

Lord, assist us in the duties of this day. May we know the duties of our stations and our different relations. May we not only know them, but faithfully and cheerfully discharge them. Preserve us this day from every danger, defend and strengthen us against every temptation, and assist us in every duty.

Gracious God, may the account we have now read of the Nazarite convince us of the value and of the necessity of holiness. Like the Nazarite, may we be separated to the Lord, and may our souls and bodies and lives be all engaged in the service of our God. Like him, may we be crucified to the world, and live above its riches, its pleasures, and its honours. Give us, O Lord, a delight in things Divine. May we hunger and thirst after righteousness, and may we have meat to eat which the world knows nothing of.

May our dear children be holiness to the Lord. O make them spiritual Nazarites. We pray not that thou wouldst take them out of the world, but that thou wouldst preserve them from the evil of the world.

Make our family a holy family, our congregation a holy people, our relatives a holy kindred, and our country a holy nation. May we be more convinced than we have ever been of the necessity of holiness. Thou hast said, Without holiness no man shall see the Lord. Most mercifully give us that righteousness of Christ by which we shall be accepted of God, and that holiness of heart by which we shall be prepared to see and enjoy God in heaven. We implore an answer to this our morning prayer, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SAFETY IN CHRIST ALONE.

Sharon's Vale. Campbell. Lewton. Wareham. L. K.

- 1 THOU, only sovereign of my heart,
My refuge, my almighty friend;
And can my soul from thee depart,
On whom alone my hopes depend?
- 2 Whither, ah! whither shall I go,
A wretched wanderer from my Lord?
Can this dark world of sin and woe
One glimpse of happiness afford?
- 3 Eternal life thy words impart,
On these my fainting spirit lives;
Here sweeter comforts cheer my heart
Than all the round of nature gives.
- 4 Let earth's alluring joys combine,
While thou art near, in vain they call!
One smile, one blissful smile of thine,
My dearest Lord, outweighs them all.

STEELE

JOHN VI.

Christ's divine Sayings.

THEN Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.

54 Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.

57 As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me.

58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead: he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.

59 These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60 Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying; who can hear it?

61 When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you?

62 What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?

63 It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life.

64 But there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him.

65 And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father.

66 From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.

67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?

68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life.

69 And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?

71 He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VI.—The reception, or rejection of Christ, are acts infinitely distant from indifferent. Upon them depend eternal realities. At death, the believer will find that the reception of Jesus is followed by the endless felicity of heaven: and at death, the ungodly man will find that the impenitent rejection of Christ is followed by the ceaseless miseries of Tophet. May the Holy Spirit teach, and enable us to receive Christ by a living, appropriating faith: thus we shall eat his flesh, and drink his blood; thus we shall inherit and enjoy all those invaluable blessings which were purchased and secured by the humanity of Christ, by the dying of his body, and the shedding of his blood. May our hearts be completely delivered from all prejudices against the Gospel plan of salvation. While many have murmured against it to their perdition, may we believingly approve of it to our salvation. Great is the consolation of those who have clear views of the Divinity and the atonement of Jesus.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY blessed and glorious Lord God, thou art our merciful Father, whom we approach at the close of the day, in the all-prevailing name of Jesus, the name which is as ointment poured forth. Thou dwellest in the highest heavens. The heaven is thy lofty throne, while the earth is thy footstool. We rejoice that though the splendour of thine attributes more peculiarly shines in the celestial world, thou hast also manifested thy glory through all the earth. With filial confidence we would approach thee, and with filial reverence we would acknowledge and adore the perfections of thy being, which are partially manifested in creation and providence, but which are marvellously and infinitely manifested and glorified in the person and righteousness of Jesus, thy well-beloved and only begotten Son.

We desire to present our evening prayer under a deep impression of our unworthiness of the blessings we have this day received, and under a lively and humbling sense of the sins we have committed since we last appeared before thy gracious throne. We acknowledge, O Lord, thy fatherly goodness manifested to us this day, and thy patience in bearing with our numerous short-comings and provocations. Let thine undeserved kindness continue with us this night. May our bodies be refreshed with the sleep of thy beloved, and may we awake on the approaching morning in the enjoyment of health and in the exercise of reason, that we may be fitted for the duties of another day.

Holy Spirit, bless to us the sacred sayings of our Lord which we have now read. Truly, O Jesus, never man spake like thee. Grace is poured into thy lips. Thou art fairer than the children of men: grace is poured into thy lips. Thy words are more precious than gold; they are sweeter than honey.

We acknowledge thee, O Immanuel, as the author and finisher of faith. We would earnestly supplicate from thee, our Saviour and our God, that faith by which we shall eat thy flesh and drink thy blood. By faith may we feed on thy person, thine offices, thy righteousness, thy relations, and thy promises.

May our dearly beloved children, in the beginning of their days, receive a living and a lively faith in thee as their Redeemer and their God. Give them that faith by which they shall surrender their hearts to thee, and embrace thee as the only refuge of their souls.

O Jesus, thou art the Son of the living God. Suffer us not to apostatize from thee. Preserve us from the alarming sin and state of backsliding. May we never, never go back, To whom can we go, O Jesus, but unto thee! Thou art our only Redeemer, our only refuge, our only counsellor, our only physician, our only comforter; where can we go but unto thee? Behold, we come unto thee, O Jesus. To thee we come for life, for pardon, for holiness, and for heaven. Thou hast alone the words of eternal life. Lord, mercifully, hear our prayer, for Jesus' sake, our only Mediator. Amen.

GOD GRACIOUS.

Cottage. Ramsgate. Marks. Wells.

L. M.

- 1 UP to the Lord that reigns on high,
And views the nations from afar,
Let everlasting praises fly,
And tell how large his bounties are.
- 2 He overrules all mortal things,
And manages our mean affairs;
On humble souls the King of kings
Bestows his counsels and his cares.
- 3 Our sorrows and our tears we pour
Into the bosom of our God;
He hears us in the mournful hour,
And helps us bear the heavy load.

Watts, 46, B. II.

NUMBERS IX.

Acting under God's Direction.

AND on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

16 So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

18 At the commandment of the Lord the children of Israel journeyed, and at the commandment of the Lord they pitched: as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents.

19 And when the cloud tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel kept the charge of the Lord, and journeyed not.

20 And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the Lord they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the Lord they journeyed.

21 And so it was, when the cloud abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the Lord they rested in the tents, and at the commandment of the Lord they journeyed: they kept the charge of the Lord, at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

NUMBERS X.

The Blowing of silver Trumpets.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Make thee two trumpets of silver; of a whole piece shalt thou make them: that thou mayest use them for the calling of the assembly, and for the journeying of the camps.

8 And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations.

9 And if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be remembered before the Lord your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies.

10 Also in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings; that they may be to you for a memorial before your God: I am the Lord your God.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS IX., 1.—Let us praise God for the sanctuary—for the ordinances observed in the sanctuary; but more especially for God's gracious presence in the sanctuary. When Christ is absent, it is the darkness of midnight; when he is present, it is the brightness of day. A sanctuary without Christ deserves to be called "Jehabad," the glory is departed! A sanctuary, and Christ within, deserves to be named "Bethel," the house of God, the gate of heaven. Infinitely well protected is the Church of Christ. The ancient tabernacle was defended from the sultry heat of the sun by a dense miraculous cloud; the Church of Christ is under the pavilion of Divine love and almighty power. "On all the glory there is a defence!" The Levitical trumpets should remind us of the Gospel trumpet. Do we love, and believe, and feel, and enjoy its accents? "Blessed are they who thus know the joyful sound!"

PRAYER.

UNCREATED Jehovah, who dwellest in uncreated light and who art arrayed in uncreated glory, we come before thee as a family, on the morning of another day, and through the merits of him who is the brightness of thy glory and the express image of thy person. Though angels of the loftiest order, and the spirits of just men made perfect, are now praising thee in loudest and sweetest strains of celestial devotion, in thine infinite condescension and goodness we are permitted, notwithstanding all our imperfections, to draw near thy throne of grace, to present the supplications of our hearts and the worship of our spirits. Though we cannot see thee with our mortal eye, though we cannot behold the splendour of thine uncreated essence, we bless thee that we can read thy being in thy works, and that by the eye of faith we can discern thy perfections shining in thy Word. And what reason have we to bless thee that, though the very best of our services are polluted and unworthy, yet the merit of our great High-priest can and will secure their acceptance before thy throne of grace!

We bless thee that we are again permitted to assemble in thy presence to offer up our morning prayer. During another night thou hast manifested thyself our paternal guardian and our protecting God; and when with welcome slumbers pressed, thy power unseen watched over us, and made us rise in comfort and in peace.

May we enter on this day in the enjoyment of thy smiles, and engage in all its duties under the direction of thy wisdom. Grant us that health of body and soundness of mind, that protection from the temptations of the world and those supplies of thy grace, which are necessary to fit us for thy service.

We supplicate the influence of the Holy Spirit to bless the ordinance of reading the sacred records. May the journeys of the Israelites remind us we are journeying also through time, and hastening onward to eternity. As Israel journeyed under the Divine direction, may we as a family never proceed one step in the journey of life without the wise counsels of Christ our Lord. Be to us, O Jesus, our pillar of cloud by day, and our pillar of fire by night.

May the dear children of our family take thee for the guide of their youth. Under thy blessed direction may they take fast hold of instruction, and not let her go; may they keep her, for she is their life. May our servants be taught of God.

We thank thee, O Lord, for the trumpet of the law, which proclaims thine authority; and for the trumpet of the Gospel, which proclaims thy mercy. As loving and obedient sons, may we bow before thine authority; and as genuine saints, may we believe and accept the invitations of thy mercy, and the promises of thy truth. Have mercy upon a benighted world, and may the day soon arrive when all its inhabitants shall hear the joyful proclamations of salvation through our Saviour's blood.

May our sins be forgiven, and our prayers answered, for Jesus' sake, our Mediator and Redeemer. And to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one Jehovah, be ascribed unceasing glory and praise.

CHRIST'S LOVE TO HIS FATHER'S WILL.

Colchester. Melchetel. Abridge Huddersfield. C. M.

- 1 THEN spake the Saviour, 'Lo, I'm here,
My God, to do thy will;
Whate'er thy sacred books declare,
Thy servant shall fulfil.
- 2 'Thy law is ever in my sight,
I keep it near my heart;
Mine ears are opened with delight
To what thy lips impart.'
- 3 And see, the blessed Redeemer comes!
The eternal Son appears!
And at the appointed time assumes
The body God prepares!

WATTS, Ps. 40, p. 11

JOHN VII.

Christ's wise Sayings.

AFTER these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.

2 Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand.

3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest.

4 For there is no man that doeth anything in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.

5 For neither did his brethren believe in him.

6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is always ready.

7 The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8 Go ye up unto this feast: I go not up yet unto this feast; for my time is not yet full come.

9 When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

10 But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth the people.

13 Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews.

14 Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple, and taught.

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?

16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

18 He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.

19 Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? Why go ye about to kill me?

20 The people answered and said, Thou hast a devil: who goeth about to kill thee?

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VII.—Jesus carefully avoided exposing his life to his intended murderers until his work was finished—until the time fixed by the Divine purpose arrived that he should shed his blood and lay down his life. When that time arrived, with what dignified submission and serenity he said to those men who were sent forth to arrest him and hasten his murder, "Whom seek ye?"

They answered, Jesus of Nazareth. He answered and said, I am he!" The near relatives of Jesus after the flesh were like other men; they were filled with carnal ambition, and not with zeal for the glory of God, though they saw the miracles of Jesus, the proofs of his Messiahship. As it was in the days of our Saviour's humbled humanity, most diversified and opposite were the opinions entertained of Christ, so it is now. May we have correct views of Christ in his person as God and man: may we admire him in the communicated graces of his humanity; and may we adore him in the uncreated perfections of his Divinity, exclaiming, "Great is the mystery of godliness, God manifest in the flesh."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the almighty God, and as the Lord our God. Thou art the all-seeing and the infinitely gracious Jehovah. Thou hast called the universe into existence for the display of thy perfections and for the honour of thy name. We acknowledge that we were created for thy glory. In conformity to the great end of our existence, we desire as a family to humble ourselves at thy feet, to express the homage and admiration of our souls, to acknowledge thy boundless and immutable majesty, to confess our vileness, unworthiness, and guilt, and, through the merits and mediation of thy well-beloved Son, to supplicate salvation, forgiveness, and heaven. We are thy creatures and thy servants; and may our bodies and souls be engaged in thy service to the close of life, and in eternity may thy praises be continually in our mouth.

May what we have now read of our Saviour's humiliation on earth, of the malevolence which the Jews manifested against him, of their attempt to take away his life, and of the reproach they cast upon the divinity of his mission, heighten our amazement at the wickedness of man, and our astonishment at the love of Christ.

O that the love of Jesus were every day the subject of our thoughts, the object of our astonishment, and the source of our joy! May we sensibly feel in our mind an ardent and superlative love to Jesus. With thy servant of old, teach us with the humble assurance of a lively faith to acknowledge, Lord Jesus, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that we love thee!

We would mourn, O Lord, over the universal depravity of the family of man. We would lament that the determined enemies of Christ are still numerous and active and violent. We lament over the existence of infidelity in Christian lands, and that multitudes will not come to the light, lest their deeds should be reprov'd. Thy Word, O Jesus, is a living testimony of the depravity of man. Thy Word presents a true and affecting picture of his depravity and guilt. We praise thee that this true and blessed testimony is preserved, and that all the black and violent attempts employed to destroy the Scriptures from off the face of the earth have proved of no avail. Teach us to love the Bible because it is thy testimony, and because it gives the blessed testimony of thy love.

Give our dear children, and the children of all the families with which we are connected, a saving love of Jesus, and a saving faith in his righteousness and death. O may they never join the bands of those who are the determined enemies of the truth, and may our servants be his faithful followers!

Wherein we have offended thee this day, in thought, word, or deed, graciously forgive. May the duties in which we have engaged lead us nearer and nearer to thyself. As every day is bringing us nearer to eternity as to time, may every day bring us nearer heaven as to preparation. As thy children, we commend ourselves to thy paternal protection this night. All we ask is through Jesus Christ our glorified Mediator, to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be ascribed everlasting glory. Amen.

THE CHURCH'S EXPECTATION.

Arundel, Bovey Tracey, Ann's, Salem.

C. M.

- 1 ARISE, O King of Grace, arise,
And enter to thy rest;
Lo! thy Church waits with longing eyes,
Thus to be owned and blest.
- 2 Enter with all thy glorious train,
Thy spirit and thy word;
All that the ark did once contain
Could no such grace afford.
- 3 Here, mighty God! accept our vows,
Here let thy praise be spread;
Bless the provisions of thy house,
And fill thy poor with bread.

Watts, Ps. 132.

NUMBERS X.

God present with his Church.

AND Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father in law, We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel.

30 And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31 And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us instead of eyes.

32 And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what goodness the Lord shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33 And they departed from the mount of the Lord three days' journey: and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them in the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them.

34 And the cloud of the Lord was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35 And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36 And when it rested, he said, Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel.

NUMBERS XI.

The Murmuring of the Israelites.

AND when the people complained, it displeased the Lord: and the Lord heard it, and his anger was kindled; and the fire of the Lord burnt among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.

2 And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses prayed unto the Lord, the fire was quenched.

3 And he called the name of the place Taberah: because the fire of the Lord burnt among them.

4 And the mixt multitude that was among them fell a lusting: and the children of Israel also wept again, and said, Who shall give us flesh to eat?

5 We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick:

6 But now our soul is dried away: there is nothing at all, beside this manna, before our eyes.

7 And the manna was as coriander seed, and the colour thereof as the colour of bdellium.

8 And the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS X., XI.—How honourable—how delightful, to be journeying to heaven in the fellowship of heaven-bound pilgrims, and under the guidance and protection of Jesus, who is given for a Witness, a Leader, and a Commander to the people! Travellers to the heavenly Jerusalem act in character, and worthy of the religion of love which they profess, when they use affectionate, prudent, and persevering means to persuade their children, relatives, and friends, to accompany them in their sacred pilgrimage to the heavenly Canaan. Do we love and relish the spiritual manna, without which we can make no progress in our journey to the promised rest? Let us praise God for Christ, for the Gospel, for the blessings of salvation, and for the promises. They are the true manna, the bread of life!

PRAYER.

ADORABLE Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, thou art the King eternal, the Ancient of days, invisible to mortal eye, the only wise God, and the source of that wisdom which distinguishes all intelligent beings, and which shines with such glory upon the pages of the blessed volume of eternal truth. Thou art our God, of whom and to whom are all things; the Father of mercies, and the God of all grace. Though we are unworthy of the slightest instance of thy kindness, thou hast filled our cup with blessings, and thou hast made it to overflow in the presence of our enemies, who longed for our destruction. We desire, therefore, by the assistance of thy Spirit, and in the name of thy dear Son, on the morning of the last day of the week, to open our lips and proclaim thy praise.

We desire, with gratitude, solemnity, and joy, to begin this day by presenting ourselves before thy throne of grace, to present our morning sacrifice. While others during the last night have met their long eternal doom, we thank a gracious and a sovereign Providence that we are in the land of the living, surrounded by unmerited mercies. Lord, give us grace to be faithful this day in the discharge of all personal and relative duties. In our temporal pursuits may we not be so absorbed with earthly things, as to forget the concerns of the soul, and the important realities of another world. Teach us to honour thee and adorn the Gospel, in our different stations as superiors, inferiors, or equals. May all our bodily wants be supplied, and our domestic and relative comforts continued; but, above all, may we live this day, and every day, by faith upon the Son of God.

What reason have we to bless and praise thee, O Lord, that thou hast provided a glorious and happy heaven beyond the grave! May all of us be journeying to that land respecting which thou hast said and promised to thy people, I will give it you. O put us among thy children, and give to us, though infinitely unworthy, the goodly heritage of the host of nations.

Bless all thy spiritual Israel scattered over the face of the earth. May we in reality belong to the spiritual Israel; and may we be instrumental in persuading others to join thy spiritual family in their journey to the heavenly world. May we say, in the language of Moses, Come with us, and we will do thee good; for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel.

Persuade our dear children to join our company. Deeply impress their youthful minds with the unspeakable blessedness of meeting their parents and relatives in the heaven of heavens, for ever to live in the presence of God and the Lamb.

May we and all our relatives assemble at last before that glorious throne where the Lamb of God sits dispensing the blessings of his purchase. Jesus, thou ark of the covenant, in whom the divinity dwells, mercifully go before us and all our kindred, in our journey to the promised land, and let all our spiritual enemies be scattered, and may we with the thousands of Israel at last triumphantly enter the celestial dominions. Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake, our Divine Mediator and Lord. Amen.

THE SAVIOUR'S CALL.

Edes. Leipzig. Darkhouse. Stevens.

C. H.

- 1 THE Saviour calls—let every ear
Attend the heavenly sound;
Ye doubting souls, dismiss your fear,
Hope smiles reviving round.
- 2 For every thirsty, longing heart,
Here streams of bounty flow;
And life, and health, and bliss impart,
To banish mortal woe.
- 3 Here springs of sacred pleasure rise,
To ease your every pain;
(Immortal fountain! full supplies!)
Nor shall you thirst in vain.

STEELE.

JOHN VII.

Christ's Answers to the Jews.

JESUS answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.

22 Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision; (not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers;) and ye on the sabbath day circumsise a man.

23 If a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath day?

24 Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.

25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he, whom they seek to kill?

26 But, lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him. Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?

27 Howbeit we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye ooth know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him: for I am from him, and he hath sent me.

30 Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.

31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?

32 The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.

34 Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? Will he go unto the dispersed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

37 In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.

38 He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.

39 (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VII.—Multitudes of the Jews saw Christ's miracles, they believed they were realities, and no deception; they knew they were miracles of mercy as well as of power, and yet he was the object of their most malignant hatred, envy, and scorn. We cannot find a more affecting proof and illustration of what is said of the corruption of the human heart by the Divine Spirit, in the Word of life, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?" We should greatly admire Christ as a Teacher. The matter of his instruction was the most sublime, appropriate, and useful; the manner of his teaching was dignified, solemn, simple, affectionate, and impressive. Blessed pattern for parents, teachers, and ministers! What an incalculable injury those inflict upon themselves who refuse to believe in Christ! Their inability to believe is no excuse, since Jesus is willing to bestow faith on those who ask it. "He is the author and finisher of our faith."

PRAYER.

GRACIOUS God and Father, though we are worms of the dust, we venture in the name of our Divine Mediator, who is the way, the truth, and the life, to acknowledge and adore thee as the eternal and incomprehensible God. How wonderful is that light in which thou dwellest, which no mortal being has ever seen, and compared with which the brightness of all the shining orbs of heaven is only the darkness of death! Thou dwellest in heaven, where thousands of thousands minister unto thee. We rejoice that thou also dwellest on earth in the midst of thy Church, displaying thy grace. Adored be thy name, that while thou passest over the palaces of impious princes, thou takest up thine abode with those who are of an humble and contrite heart, making their cottages BETHELS. Eternal praises to thy name, that, even for us, thou hast consecrated a new and living way, that with boldness we may draw near thy throne of mercy on earth, and at last be admitted within the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem, to stand before thy throne of glory in heaven.

After the mercies of another day, we come as a family to worship at thy footstool. Look upon us in thy tender mercy, and let the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in thy sight, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

We present the thanksgivings of our heart for the goodness which has protected us and provided for us during the past day. Ever may thy manifold mercies excite lively emotions of gratitude, humility, and love. May we be stirred up by thine unmerited goodness, constrained irresistibly to run in the way of thy commandments. Again we commit ourselves to thee, and pray that we may enjoy thy care through the watches of the night, trusting in God that no evil may be permitted to come near our persons or our dwelling.

Holy Spirit, may the hypocritical veneration which the Jews manifested towards Divine institutions, and the presumptuous fault they found with Christ, teach us earnestly to seek after genuine, unfeigned godliness. Blessed Jesus, thou art the very Christ. Thou art the Child born, and the Son given. By faith may each one of us receive thee as the Christ of our souls. Thou art in the midst of us in a preached Gospel, and in the ordinances of thine appointment. May we seek thee; then, agreeably to thy promise, we shall find thee.

Teach our dear children to seek thee in the golden period of their days, before their minds are assailed by the storms of worldly cares. O draw them by the cords of love, and convince them that they who early seek thy grace shall never seek in vain. May our servants give their hearts to Jesus.

Exalted Immanuel, thou art the fountain of salvation. From thee flow streams of living water—streams of pardon, streams of holiness, and streams of comfort. Glory to thy name, that we are invited to come unto thee and drink. Blessed Saviour, we come, we fall prostrate at thy feet; give to us and our friends of the waters of salvation; then shall we live for ever. On the approaching Sabbath may multitudes of thirsty souls come to thee and drink. O may they take the blessings thy love imparts; may they drink, and never die. Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST THE ONLY SURETY.

Quincy. Triumphant. Magdalen. Alie Street. L. M.

- 1 NO blood of beasts on altars spilt
Can cleanse the souls of men from guilt:
But thou hast set before our eyes
An all-sufficient sacrifice.
- 2 Lo! thine eternal Son appears,
To thy designs he hews his ears;
Assumes a body well prepared,
And well performs a work so hard.
- 3 'Behold, I come,' (the Saviour cries,
With love and duty in his eyes.)
'I come to bear the heavy load
Of sins, and do thy will, my God.'

WATTS, Ps. 40.

PSALM XL.

Christ the Surety.

MANY, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered.

6 Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire: mine ears hast thou opened: burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.

7 Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me,

8 I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart.

9 I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O LORD, thou knowest.

10 I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation.

11 Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O LORD: let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me.

12 For innumerable evils have compassed me about: mine iniquities have taken hold upon me, so that I am not able to look up; they are more than the hairs of mine head: therefore my heart faileth me.

13 Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me: O LORD, make haste to help me.

14 Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul to destroy it; let them be driven backward and put to shame that wish me evil.

15 Let them be desolate for a reward of their shame that say unto me, Aha, aha.

16 Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The LORD be magnified.

17 But I am poor and needy; yet the LORD thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God.

PSALM XLI.

The Blessing of the Charitable Man.

BLESSED is he that considereth the poor: the LORD will deliver him in time of trouble.

2 The LORD will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth: and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies.

3 The LORD will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness.

4 I said, LORD, be merciful unto me; heal my soul; for I have sinned against thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XL., XLI.—The volumes of creation and providence furnish, but especially the volume of redemption presents, the most diversified and magnificent displays of the attributes of Jehovah. Ever may we be inclined to read these stupendous books, and our hearts enabled to admire the rich illustrations they give of God in his power, wisdom, and goodness! Most striking, clear, and ample are the predictions of the Old Testament respecting Jesus, his mission, his work, his sufferings, and triumphs. Let us rejoice in the engagements which Christ made in the covenant of grace from all eternity as our Surety. O with what readiness he entered upon his work, that he might fulfil the conditions to which he agreed. As no sacrifices under the law could make a real atonement, he presented himself as the great sacrifice, which alone could satisfy Divine justice, and remove human guilt. May the fulfilment of these conditions call forth the liveliest gratitude and the warmest affections of our heart. May the mercy which Jesus has shown to us teach us to show mercy to others.

PRAYER.

OUR God and our Father, thou art the Lord of the Sabbath-day, by whose authority it was appointed, and for whose glory it was set apart. As the object of religious worship and adoration, thou art infinitely gracious, and therefore we are welcome to approach thee; thou art infinitely merciful, and therefore it is good to draw near unto thee. Be mercifully pleased to draw nigh unto us. Praise to thy name for the return of another day, but especially for the return of another Sabbath-day, another day of the Son of man, a day commemorative of his glorious victory over death and the grave. Hallelujah to our God, that on the morning of this hallowed Sabbath we can take into our lips the triumphant accents, and sing, Thou hast ascended up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men, even for the rebellious.

This, O Lord, is the day thou hast made, we will be glad and rejoice in it. O may the day-spring from on high visit our souls, and may the Sun of righteousness rise upon us with healing in his wings.

Jesus, thou Son of the eternal Father, we praise thee that in the council of peace from all eternity thou didst consent to become our Surety. We would admire for ever and ever thy benevolence and grace, in thus proclaiming thy willingness to save our ruined world, agreeably to the Father's purpose: Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened: burnt-offering and sin-offering hast thou not required. Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart. Blessing and honour be for ever ascribed to thy name, O Jesus, that while no other sacrifice could satisfy offended justice, thou didst present thyself an offering and a sacrifice for a sweet smelling savour unto God. And we rejoice that what no other sacrifice could accomplish, has been most fully accomplished by thy sufferings and death.

Make thy ministering servants faithful in holding thee up before the assembled congregations, as the once crucified but now glorified Redeemer. Teach them to follow thy Divine example as a preacher of righteousness. May they preach righteousness to the great congregation, and not refrain their lips. May they deliver openly, and boldly, yet affectionately and reverently, the whole truth. O that each minister of the cross of Christ may have reason to say at the close of this day, and at the close of life, I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation.

Bless the Word which may be delivered to our rulers, our senators, and our judges.

Let thy loving-kindness and thy truth constantly preserve our children.

Have mercy on the poor, the needy, and the afflicted, and be their help and their deliverer. May there be great joy this day over repenting sinners. O bow down the hearts of multitudes before the sceptre of Immanuel. Hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

HOPE IN GOD.

Class. St. Mary's. Sand Down. Ellenborough. C. M.

- 1 WITH earnest longings of the mind,
My God, to thee I look;
So pants the hunted hart to find
And taste the cooling brook.
- 2 When shall I see thy courts of grace,
And meet my God again?
So long an absence from thy face
My heart endures with pain.
- 3 'Tis with a mournful pleasure now
I think on ancient days!
Then to thy house did numbers go,
And all our work was praise.

Watts, Ps. 42, p. 1.

PSALM XLI.

David's Complaint.

MINE enemies speak evil of me, When shall he die, and his name perish?

6 And if he come to see me, he speaketh vanity: his heart gathereth iniquity to itself; when he goeth abroad he telleth it.

7 All that hate me whisper together against me: against me do they devise my hurt.

8 An evil disease, say they, cleaveth fast unto him: and now that he lieth, he shall rise up no more.

9 Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me.

10 But thou, O Lord, be merciful unto me, and raise me up, that I may requite them.

11 By this I know that thou favourest me, because mine enemy doth not triumph over me.

12 And as for me, thou upholdest me in mine integrity, and settest me before thy face for ever.

13 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting, and to everlasting. Amen, and Amen.

PSALM XLII.

David's Love to the Public Ordinances.

AS the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.

2 My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?

3 My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?

4 When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me: for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept holyday.

5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him for the help of his countenance.

6 O my God, my soul is cast down within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from the hill Mizar.

7 Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts: all thy waves and thy billows are gone over me.

8 Yet the Lord will command his lovingkindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life.

9 I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

10 As with a sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me; while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God?

11 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLI., XLII.—In many portions of the Old Testament we see, as in a glass, a most minute representation of the sufferings of Christ. Though the greatest and best friend the human race ever beheld, his enemies were numerous like bees, and in violence they resembled infuriated dogs and roaring lions. Though he appeared in the spotless garments of perfect innocence, he was loaded with reproach. Though he healed the diseases and saved the lives of multitudes, he was considered unworthy to live, and fixed like a criminal to the accursed tree! Even one of his own disciples joined the conspirators, and hastened his death. What he suffered in his soul was the most pungent and overwhelming. Hallelujah! all these sufferings and sorrows have accomplished their end, and have passed away for ever. The mediatorial crown shall flourish for ever on his head!

PRAYER.

FATHER, Son, and Spirit, one undivided Jehovah, thou art the eternal, the ever-blessed, and glorious Lord God. Glorious art thou in thy purposes, thy Word, and thy works, but thou art most transcendently glorious in thyself. In thy dominion thou art over all, God blessed for ever; immutably wise, powerful, holy, just, and good. The felicity and blessedness of thy nature are infinitely independent of all beings. Thou art the inexhaustible fountain of that blessedness which is enjoyed by saints on earth, by the spirits of just men made perfect, and by holy angels who surround thy celestial throne. Thy loving-kindness is better than life, and therefore we desire, in the name of Jesus, to entreat thy favour with our whole heart.

In consequence of our innumerable and infinitely aggravated sins, we are unworthy of the very smallest instance of thy goodness; nevertheless, we are encouraged to lift up our eyes for mercy in the name of Jesus, who loved us, and gave himself for us; yea, who laid down his life that we might be preserved from the merited ire of heaven.

We thank God for his public ordinances, and for an opportunity of uniting with thy people in the observance of them. O that each of us had that love to thy sanctuary and institutions which the Psalmist had when he said, As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. Like him, may our soul thirst for God, for the living God; may it be our greatest joy to appear before God in his earthly courts; and when we die, may we appear among the general assembly and church of the first-born, before God in heaven. As a family, may we ever esteem it our honour and our joy to go with the multitude to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise.

Convince our beloved children and servants that they can never be, admitted to thy heavenly sanctuary above, if they live and die without a love to thy house and the sacred ordinances which are observed within its walls.

O give them and all our relatives and friends this love; then shall we hail the day when we shall enter upon the employments and enjoyments of heaven.

May the Word preached afford the sweetest consolation to desponding, afflicted souls. May the discoveries which have been made to them of thy love, thy grace, and thy truth, lift them up from the depths of affliction. May these discoveries convince them that, though the waves and raging billows may have gone over them, or are still rolling over them, thou wilt not, thou canst not forsake them.

May the effects of a preached Gospel be very visible on us, as a family. Holy Spirit, may it come to us not in Word only, but also in power, and by the Holy Ghost, and with much assurance.

Give thine angels charge over us this night, and on the morning of another day may we surround this domestic altar. Hear us, for Jesus our Mediator and Redeemer's sake. Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

PROVIDENCE EQUITABLE AND KIND.

Old English. Mercy-seat. Kingsbridge. Green's 100th. L. M.

- 1 THY powerful consolations cheer,
Thy smiles suppress the deep-fetched sigh,
Thy hand can dry the trickling tear
That secret wet the widow's eye.
- 2 All things on earth, and all in heaven
On thy eternal will depend;
And all for greater good were given,
And all shall in thy glory end.
- 3 This be my care! to all beside Indifferent let my wishes be;
Passion be calm, and dumb be pride,
And fixed, O God, my soul on thee.

ANON.

NUMBERS XI.

Shower of Quails.

THEN Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and the anger of the Lord was kindled greatly; Moses also was displeased.

11 And Moses said unto the Lord, Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldst say unto me, Carry them in thy bosom, as a nursing father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which thou swearst unto their fathers?

13 Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

16 And the Lord said unto Moses, Gather unto me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

17 And I will come down and talk with thee there: and I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone.

18 And say thou unto the people, Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow, and ye shall eat flesh; for ye have wept in the ears of the Lord, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? for it was well with us in Egypt: therefore the Lord will give you flesh, and ye shall eat.

19 Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days;

20 But even a whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you: because that ye have despised the Lord, which is among you; and have wept before him, saying, Why came we forth out of Egypt?

21 And there went forth a wind from the Lord, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.

22 And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten homers: and they spread them all abroad for themselves round about the camp.

23 And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of the Lord was kindled against the people, and the Lord smote the people with a very great plague.

24 And he called the name of that place Kibroth-hattaavah; because there they buried the people that lusted.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XI.—Many murmur on account of the afflictions brought upon them by their sins, who never show the slightest symptoms of repentance for the sins they have committed, and which were the procuring cause of their sufferings. They who arraign the providential management of God; who call in question his sovereignty and justice; who murmur against God for bringing upon them that punishment their sins merited, place themselves upon a most dangerous precipice, and expose themselves to God's wrath for ever. They who give way to unhallowed wishes may obtain their desire in a way of judgment, and frightfully accelerate their own ruin. Discontented, obstinate, murmuring Israel, furnished some melancholy illustrations of this truth, which is verified every day by the history of our fallen race. May our will be lovingly subject to the will of God!

PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven, thou art the blessed and the glorious Lord God, infinitely entitled to the homage and praises of angels and men. We adore thee as the King eternal, immortal, and invisible, the only wise God, the author and the end of all things.

O Lord, thou art our Creator; our bodies were made and fashioned by thy hands; and thou art the Father of our spirits, who didst breathe into our nostrils the breath of life, so that we became living souls. Thine eye didst see our substance, being yet imperfect, and in thy book all our members were written, which in continuance were fashioned when as yet there was none of them.

We thank thee for another opportunity of engaging in the exercises of domestic worship. Give us grace ever to esteem our daily worship of thee as the most necessary and the most delightful part of our daily employment.

We thank that gracious Providence which has given us beds on which to lie down, and which has given us rest upon our beds. Praise to God that we have again awoken by thy sustaining kindness. Notwithstanding our guilt and multiplied provocations, thy mercies are new unto us every morning, and thy faithfulness is continued every night.

This day may thy Spirit be our counsellor, thy Word our rule, and thy promises our strength. Preserve our going out and coming in, and compass us about with thy favour as with a shield.

We have now read of the murmuring of the Israelites, and the frightful punishment which followed this presumptuous sin; O preserve us from a murmuring spirit. Teach us contentment with our lot, and give us grace to pursue the path marked out for us by a wise and sovereign Providence. Suffer us not to fall into an excessive love of any earthly enjoyment.

May the dear children of the family receive a relish for the pleasures of godliness. Early may they know what it is to mortify the desires of the flesh, and breathe after the pure enjoyments of religion. Sanctify our servants by thy Spirit.

Have mercy on aged pilgrims. As they have come to that period of life when earthly desires fail, may they feel an increasing desire for those celestial enjoyments which shall form the felicity of the souls of the redeemed for ever and ever.

Strengthen all thy ministering servants in the arduous and important duties of their sacred office. When with Moses they are ready to exclaim, We are not able to bear all this people alone; graciously say unto them, My grace is sufficient for thee. Give, we pray, to all thy servants, a double portion of thy Spirit.

May our feeble supplications be answered, and our sins pardoned, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

O LORD, SAY UNTO MY SOUL, I AM THY SALVATION.

British. Mount Tabor. Stillman. Weybridge. C. H.

- 1 SALVATION!—O melodious sound
To wretched dying men!
Salvation that from God proceeds,
And leads to God again.
- 2 Rescued from hell's eternal gloom,
From fiends, and fires, and chains!
Raised to a paradise of bliss,
Where love triumphant reigns!
- 3 But may a poor bewildered soul
Sinful and weak as mine,
Presume to raise a trembling eye
To blessings so divine? DODDING.

JOHN VII.

The Pharisees confounded.

THEN came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?
46 The officers answered, Never man spake like this man.
47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?
48 Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him?
49 But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed.
50 Nicodemus saith unto them, (he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,)
51 Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth?
52 They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.
53 And every man went unto his own house.

JOHN VIII.

Woman taken in Adultery.

AND early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and taught them.
3 And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst,
4 They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.
5 Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou?
6 This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.
7 So, when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.
8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.
9 And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.
10 When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?
11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VII., VIII.—The enemies of Christ and the truth may imagine that their hostile and malevolent intentions shall be successful; while, if they impenitently persevere, they shall only and inevitably be followed by the agonies of disappointment and the horrors of despair. In the officers sent by the corrupted Sanhedrim of the Jewish church, we have a remarkable display of the power of conscience, and how easily God can cast into confusion and shame the enemies of his Church. Has Christ by his Spirit spoken effectually and savingly to our souls? Then we can say, "Never man spake like this man!" Never man spake so effectually as Christ, for then he makes a people willing in the day of his power. Never man speaks so comforting as Christ, for the entrance of his Word gives life, and light, and joy, and peace. May Jesus by his Spirit speak powerfully and sweetly to our souls. Let us mourn over the ravaging effects of sin. When the flesh obtains dominion over the spirit, our nature is sunk into the lowest depths of degradation and infamy; but, when Divine grace takes possession of the soul, the vile serpent is changed into the lovely dove.

PRAYER.

WITH humility and reverence we would acknowledge and adore thee as the Lord God, merciful and gracious, and abundant in goodness and in truth. Thy name alone is Jehovah, and thou art the most high God over all the earth. Thou art seated on a throne of essential glory, the lofty height of which exceeds the conception of angels and men. Thy greatness is unsearchable, thine understanding is infinite, and thy tender mercies are over all thy works. From everlasting to everlasting thou art God, with whom there is no variable-ness nor shadow of turning. How glorious art thou! thou fillest heaven and earth with thy presence. How penetrating is thine eye! thou searchest the deepest recesses of the heart of men, and thou triest the reins of the children of men. Thou knowest our down-sitting and our up-rising, and art acquainted with all our ways. Affect us with the thought, that all things are naked and open to the eyes of God, with whom we have to do.

Preserve us as a family from the destroying sin of rejecting Christ. May Christ's person be infinitely precious to our souls, and may Christ's Word ever be the joy of our hearts. With the officers who were sent to apprehend Jesus, may we say, may we believe, Never man spake like this man. Almighty Saviour, bring home thy Word with saving power to our souls; then shall we say, Never man spake like this man!

O Lord, create in our minds a deep-rooted aversion to the sins of the flesh. May we mourn over those who are under the dominion of the flesh, and may we take warning from their disgraceful bondage. Have pity on such of our own relatives as love the very chains of their fleshly slavery, and who in the delusions of sin consider the liberty of the Gospel as a dreary captivity. Lead their thoughts to heaven, and convince them how deplorable it is that they should prefer the gratification of fleshly lusts before the pure, the infinite, and the eternal blessedness of the heavenly state. O lead their minds to think of hell, and convince them how affecting it is that they should live in the indulgence of those propensities which, if not subdued, must inevitably plunge them in the lake which burns with fire and brimstone. By the terrors of the Lord, may they be persuaded to escape from their lusts, as they would flee from devouring flames.

May our beloved children discover an early attachment to holiness, and an early aversion to sin. Teach them to flee from youthful lusts; and when they feel their powerful control, may they betake themselves to prayer, and seek the aid of Christ. Sanctify our domestics by thy grace.

Give to us and all our relatives, O Jesus, an interest in that great and free salvation purchased by thy death. Clothe us with thy righteousness, and say to us, in the language addressed to the woman of whom we have now read, Neither do I condemn thee.

We thank a gracious Providence for the mercies of the day, both temporal and spiritual; and we cast ourselves on our heavenly Father's care this night. O hear our evening prayer, for the sake of Jesus, our Surety and Mediator. Amen.

SEVENTEENTH WEEK.—TUESDAY MORNING.

GOD'S KINGDOM SUPREME.

Faileworth. Liverpool. Tiverton.

- 1 HIGH as the heavens above the ground
Reigns the Creator, God;
Wide as the whole creation's bound
Extends his awful rod.
- 2 Let princes of exalted state
To Him ascribe their crown,
Render their homage at his feet,
And cast their glories down.
- 3 Know that his kingdom is supreme,
Your lofty thoughts are vain;
He calls you gods, that awful name,
But ye must die like men.

WATTS, 115, B. II.

NUMBERS XII.

God offended with Aaron and Miriam.

AND Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for he had married an Ethiopian woman.

2 And they said, Hath the Lord indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? And the Lord heard it.

8 (Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.)

4 And the Lord spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And they three came out.

5 And the Lord came down in the pillar of the cloud, and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam: and they both came forth.

6 And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the Lord will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream.

7 My servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all mine house.

8 With him will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches, and the similitude of the Lord shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?

9 And the anger of the Lord was kindled against them; and he departed.

10 And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprous, white as snow: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and, behold, she was leprous.

11 And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned.

12 Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half-consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb.

13 And Moses cried unto the Lord, saying, Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee.

14 And the Lord said unto Moses, if her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days? Let her be shut out from the camp seven days, and after that let her be received in again.

15 And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again.

16 And afterwards the people removed from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XII.—How very soon the brightest graces are obscured by the dark clouds of jealousy and envy. In the murmurs of Aaron and Miriam against Moses, we see what eminent saints are when left to themselves and overcome by their corruptions. We see the necessity of constant dependence on the arm of Divine sufficiency, and of the daily offering up that prayer, "Lord, hold up our goings, that our footsteps slip not!" Great must have been the fear of Aaron and Miriam when they were suddenly called before God, and when the greatness of their sin was disclosed to their view. What reason have we to say, "Lord, enter not into judgment with us, for we cannot answer for one of the ten thousands of our iniquities." Though God has forgiven all his people's sins, and removed their guilt, yet, when they offend him, he cannot withhold his fatherly discipline. He will visit their transgressions with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes. Miriam was severely, but justly, punished; but God remembered her in mercy. "His loving-kindness he did not take from her, nor suffer his faithfulness to fail."

PRAYER.

IN the name of our great High-priest, we would lift up the eyes of our souls to thee, O Lord our God. In our approaches to thy throne, may we be illuminated and quickened by thy Holy Spirit. Teach us to approach thee as it becometh creatures to address their Creator; and to approach thee as it becometh children to address their Father.

Thou art God, the first and the last, and besides thee there is none else. The nations of the earth before thee are as nothing, with all their imaginary greatness and glory; yea, they are less than nothing and vanity. Thou art the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords. All creatures and all events, present, past, and future—even the hearts of men, with all their thoughts, purposes, and plans, are naked and open before thee; how unsearchable is thine understanding! The knowledge of the greatest created intelligence is ignorance compared with thine: yea, thine angels thou chargest with folly. With what reverence and fear, with what solemnity and humility, should such worms of the dust as we are, draw near the throne of the Divine Majesty!

O Lord, thou hast exercised towards us, during another night, thy providential care. While many have been tossed to and fro with pain till the dawning of the day, we have rested and been refreshed upon our beds.

Prepare us for the events of this day. May we be ever on our watch, for we know not what a day may bring forth. We commit our bodies and all our temporal concerns to thy providential management, and we would desire cheerfully to submit to thy wise and sovereign disposal. Continue with us our health and reason, that we may be diligent in business; and adorn us with thy grace, that we may fill the stations in which thou hast placed us with honour and usefulness.

Heavenly Father, we would mourn over the corruption of our fallen nature, and over the remains of sin, which are even found in the subjects of thy grace. We have now read of the contentions of Aaron and Miriam against Moses thy servant: may this teach us to lament because of the numerous disputes which have arisen among thy saints, and which have tended so much to retard the growth and the prosperity of the kingdom of Christ. Let a spirit of love and harmony pervade thy church. May the men of the world, looking upon thy people, and beholding their Christian affection, have reason to say respecting them, See, how they love one another!

May brotherly and Christian love ever prevail among our dear children. As a family may we walk together in the unity of the Spirit and in the bond of peace.

We adore thee, O Lord, in that protection which thou hast afforded to thy ministers and saints in circumstances of difficulty. We adore thee in those punishments inflicted on such as have risen up to the injury of thy faithful servants. May the leprosy which fell even on Miriam for promoting jealousy against Moses, teach us to respect thine ambassadors as thy servants, and most cautiously to avoid injuring their sacred name.

We implore the pardon of all our sins, and the answer of our prayers, for the sake of HIM thou hearest always, even Jesus our Mediator and Saviour.

FAITH THE WAY TO SALVATION.

Penitent's. Shelden. Uverston. Bampton.

L. M.

- 1 NOT by the laws of innocence
Can Adam's sons arrive at heaven :
New works can give us no pretence
To have our ancient sins forgiven :
- 2 Not the best deeds that we have done
Can make a wounded conscience whole ;
Faith is the grace,—and faith alone,
That flies to Christ and saves the soul.
- 3 Lord, I believe thy heavenly word !
Fain would I have my soul renewed :
I mourn for sin, and trust the Lord
To have it pardoned and subdued.

WARR.

JOHN VIII.

Jesus the True Messiah.

THEN spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true.

14 Jesus answered and said unto them, Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.

15 Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man.

16 And yet, if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.

17 It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true.

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins: whither I go, ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath; I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 I have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

28 Then said Jesus unto them, When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself; but, as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things.

29 And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake these words, many believed on him.

31 Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;

32 And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VIII.—Of natural, rational, moral, and spiritual light Jesus is the Divine source. In the firmament of his Church he is the Sun of righteousness. May he rise upon our country, our churches, our families, and on our individual souls with healing in his wings! Most presumptuous and confirmed was the unbelief of the Pharisees, and most deep-rooted their hatred of Divine truth. May the love of the truth reign in our hearts, and may the truth make us free; then we shall be free indeed. How deplorable the consequences of enmity against Christ, of an unbelieving rejection of the truth, and of dying impenitent! It is entering eternity with a load of guilt which can never be removed, and becoming the subject of miseries which shall never cease. Alas! how slow are men to believe that "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Happy are they who receive Christ; he is their life, their light, and their salvation.

PRAYER.

BLESSED God, thou art the only object of religious homage. Thou art merciful and condescending to hear the prayers, and thou art powerful to answer the supplications, of thy people. How spotless is thy purity! Thou art of purer eyes than to behold iniquity. Though thou art just to punish the sins of the finally impenitent, we rejoice that thou art merciful to forgive the transgressions of the humble penitent who looks for pardon through the merit of a Saviour's blood. Thou art slow to anger, abundant in goodness: thy mercy is everlasting, it shall be built up for ever; through all generations it will gladden the hearts of thy people on earth, and during the endless ages of eternity they shall proclaim the triumphs of thy mercy, in songs of sweetest praise, in heaven. Thou art a God of truth, faithful to thyself, to thy purposes, and to thy promises; and sooner shall the heavens and the earth pass away, than one word thou hast spoken fall to the ground.

We thank God that, after the employments and duties of the day, we are permitted to assemble together this evening to make mention of the loving-kindness of the Lord, to sing his praise, and implore his grace. Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with his benefits, even the God of our salvation.

While on our beds we shall be surrounded by the dark shades of night, may we be surrounded by the kind arms of Providence. O let our souls constantly repose on thee; may we be refreshed with peaceful sleep—that sleep which will make us vigorous to serve God when we awake.

O that each of us had the spiritual frame and heavenly dispositions of the Psalmist; then shall we remember thee upon our beds, and meditate upon thee in the night-watches. Even when slumber is banished from our eyelids, may these wakeful hours prove infinitely profitable to our souls: may we enjoy those sublime meditations of things Divine, which will give us a foretaste of celestial blessedness.

Jesus, thou Sun of righteousness, thou Light of the world, illuminate us as a family with thy welcome beams of wisdom, holiness, and joy. Thou knowest whether any of us in thy presence are in the dark night of spiritual ignorance and death. If it is the case, make them now followers of thee; then they shall not walk in darkness, but have the light of life. Give to our children and domestics, and to all our relatives and friends, the light of life—that blessed life of spiritual union with Christ which shall be a life immortal in the skies.

We would earnestly seek faith in Christ. May we believe that he is the true, the promised Messiah, and that he is the very Saviour of our souls. Affect us with this truth, that if we die without this faith, we shall die in our sins, and under a dreadful weight of unpardoned guilt. Holy Spirit, solemnize our minds with this affecting truth. Make us a believing family, and enrich us with faith, that faith alone that flies to Christ and saves the soul. Make our aged friends strong in faith; then cheerfully they will tread the desert through, while faith inspires a heavenly ray. Harken, O Lord, to the voice of our supplication, for Jesus' sake; and may the blessing of the Holy Trinity rest upon us all. Amen.

FAITH.

New Victory. Paradise. Fountain. Broomsgrove. c. n.

- 1 FAITH is the brightest evidence
Of things beyond our sight,
Breaks through the clouds of flesh and sense,
And dwells in heavenly light.
- 2 It sets times past in present view,
Brings distant prospects home,
Of things a thousand years ago,
Or thousand years to come.
- 3 By faith we know the worlds were made
By God's almighty word;
Abraham, to unknown countries led,
By faith obeyed the Lord.

Watts, 130. ll. l.

NUMBERS XIII.

Spying the Land.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel: of every tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them.

3 And Moses, by the commandment of the Lord, sent them from the wilderness of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Israel.

17 And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way southward, and go up into the mountain:

18 And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many;

21 So they went up, and searched the land from the wilderness of Zin unto Rehob, as men come to Hamath.

22 And they ascended by the south, and came unto Hebron; where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmi, the children of Anak, were. (Now Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

23 And they came unto the brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

24 The place was called the brook Eshcol, because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days.

26 And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the wilderness of Paran, to Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the land.

27 And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it.

28 Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and, moreover, we saw the children of Anak there.

30 And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31 But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we.

32 And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature.

33 And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which some of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XIII.—Let us lift up our eyes to the heavenly Canaan as our future, blessed, and eternal home. What reason have we to rejoice with holy thankfulness, that we know there is a heaven of joy and peace, that our God and Father has given us in the Word of life such animating descriptions of its blessedness, perfection, loveliness, and glory! May we rejoice that we know how we may attain to that heavenly land, and obtain a title to that heavenly inheritance. Wonderful was the vale of Eshcol, and the luxuriant grapes, which rendered that vale illustrious! This natural fact should elevate our thoughts far above all earthly things—to that celestial Canaan above, where grows the tree of life, in the midst of the paradise of God, which beareth twelve manner of fruits, the leaves of which are for the healing of the nations. And may no difficulties in the way ever discourage us from pressing onward to our heavenly home!

PRAYER.

OUR Father and our God, we draw near thy gracious throne, in the new and living way opened up by the obedience, sufferings, and death of thy well-beloved Son. Thou art infinitely glorious in thyself, in thine uncreated essence, and in all thine infinite and uncreated excellences. Thy glory shines in all thy works: in every blade of grass, in every lofty tree, in every particle of sand, and in every mountain; in every drop of water, and in the vast ocean; in every insect, and in the archangels of majesty and power. The whole earth is filled with thy glory; and in the heaven of heavens thy glory shines in all the splendour of its unveiled brightness. Thou great Eternal, thou Almighty God, we bow before thy glorious name! Angels and archangels adore thee, and all thy creatures praise thee.

We thank our God and Father, that we are enabled and disposed at the commencement of the day, in a social and domestic capacity, to examine the holy records, and to unite in our supplications before the throne of grace. O may it be our blessedness and honour to unite at last with the whole family of God, in presenting our pure and rapturous praises before the throne of glory in heaven. May what we have now read of the earthly Canaan, elevate our thoughts above terrestrial things, and convey them to the boundless delights of the celestial Canaan, where we pray and hope to be ever with the Lord. Captivate our hearts, O Lord, with heavenly objects. May we love the holy employments of heaven. Convince us, that if we hate and neglect thy holy service on earth, we have no evidence whatever that we shall become the inhabitants of heaven. Teach us to love the society of heaven—the spirits of just men made perfect—holy angels; but, above all, the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne.

Suffer us not to be discouraged because of the difficulties and sorrows which lie in the path which leads to heaven. Preserve us from unbelief, which is spiritual cowardice. Preserve us from that unbelief which makes dangers appear far more formidable than they are, mountains of difficulty appear insurmountable, and enemies invincible. O deliver us from the fatal delusion of remaining the slaves of devouring lusts, the victims of vicious habits, rather than encountering the difficulties which lie in the way to the heavenly Canaan. Give us grace to believe all our God has said of that heavenly land; and may we live by that faith which will finally conduct us to the promised rest.

May our children and domestics reach, at last, the Canaan of the blest.

We thank God that the hand of death was not permitted to seize us during the past night, nor the hand of disease to afflict us. Thou, O Lord, hast been a wall of fire around us. Be the glory in the midst of us this day.

Accept us, O Lord, in the name of thy dear Son, to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, be ascribed glory and praise, for ever and ever. Amen.

TRUE LIBERTY GIVEN BY CHRIST.

Brook Street. Piety. Streatham. Halifax. C. H.

- 1 HARK! for 'tis God's own Son that calls
To life and liberty;
Transported fall before his feet
Who makes the prisoners free.
- 2 The cruel bonds of sin he breaks,
And breaks old Satan's chain;
Smiling he deals those pardons round
Which free from endless pain.
- 3 Into the captive heart he pours
His Spirit from on high;
We lose the terrors of the slave,
And Abba, Father! cry.

DODDRIIDGE.

JOHN VIII.

Jesus proceeding from the Father.

THEY answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.

35 And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth ever.

36 If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

38 I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.

39 They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication: we have one Father, even God.

42 Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.

44 Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar, and the father of it.

45 And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.

48 Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?

49 Jesus answered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.

50 And I seek not mine own glory: there is one that seeketh and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VIII.—Most dreadful is the delusion of sin! They who are under its power, and bound by its spell, they imagine they are free, while they are in a state of the most degrading and hopeless bondage! They suppose that they are the inheritors of peace. They say, "Peace, peace," where there is no peace. They think they are on the way to heaven, while, alas! they are on the way to perdition. How desirable it is, that such bond-slaves should see and feel their bondage, and that they should be induced to look to Jesus, the great Deliverer, who has come out of Zion, and who is both able and willing to make them free. It is an inestimable blessing to have pious parents, when we are enabled by Divine grace to imitate their example, and to walk in their footsteps; when we take their Saviour to be our Saviour, and their God to be our God. But if we reject their counsel, and refuse to accept the Saviour in whom they trusted, having such parents will add to the enormity of our guilt, and in a future world, if mercy prevent not, will add to the overwhelming weight of our misery.

PRAYER.

MOST blessed and glorious Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, with reverence and love, with solemnity and confidence, we would prostrate ourselves before thee, to supplicate thy mercy, and present our evening prayer. Thou, Lord, hast made the heavens and the earth; yea, the whole universe in its vast extent is the work of thine hands. Thou rulest among the armies of heaven and the inhabitants of the earth; none can stay thine hand, none dare say unto thee, What doest thou? Thy glory shines in all thy works of creation and providence: but thy glory shines with pre-eminence, with transcendent lustre, in the works of grace and salvation by Jesus Christ. Like Moses, we would pray, Lord, show us thy glory; and may we see that thy glory shines with pre-eminence splendour in thy works of grace, and on the pages of the volume of eternal truth.

When we think of thy glory, we would humble ourselves in the dust before thee, and acknowledge thy boundless benevolence and condescension, in permitting creatures so unworthy and vile to supplicate thy mercy.

We would present our evening prayer with thankful hearts. Thou hast preserved not only our lives this day, but thou hast continued our health and our reason, for which we praise thee. We thank thee for our domestic and relative comfort. O let this be sweetened by Christian love, that sacred affection which shall endure for ever, and even enhance the enjoyments of heaven. While we thank thee for temporal blessings, we desire with the Apostle to value Jesus above all other blessings beside. Lord, help us as a family thus to express the gratitude of our souls: Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift.

Thou hast brought us to the end of this day, and may the close of the day remind us of the close of life, and teach us the profitable lesson, of so numbering our days as to apply our hearts to wisdom.

This night may we and all our relatives enjoy the care of a special Providence; may we be restored in safety to another day, and when we awake may we be still with thee.

May we retire to rest under the impression of the gracious words of Jesus which we have now read. Humble us by the remembrance of the fact, that we are by nature of our father the devil, and his works we have done. By grace may we, and our beloved children, and all in whom we are interested, be made the freeborn sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty. Too long we have been the bond-slaves of sin and Satan; if that is the melancholy situation of any of us now before thee, O make us free. Thou Son of God, make us free; then shall we be free indeed. Break the bonds of Satan by thy gracious power; then shall we be free indeed. Pour thy Spirit into our captive hearts, that we may cry, Abba, Father, then shall we be free indeed. O deliver us from our fleshly lusts—may we trample them under our feet; deliver us from all our mental passions, from our envy, enmity, and pride: then, O Saviour, we shall be free indeed.

Hear our feeble prayers, and do for us abundantly above all we can ask or think, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

REPENTANCE.

Polktona. St. Lawrence Jewry. Lincoln. Manning. 1. 2.

- 1 THOUGH I have grieved thy Spirit, Lord,
His help and comfort still afford;
And let a wretch come near thy throne,
To plead the merits of thy Son.
- 2 A broken heart, my God, my King,
Is all the sacrifice I bring;
The God of grace will ne'er despise
A broken heart for sacrifice.
- 3 My soul lies humbled in the dust,
And owns thy dreadful sentence just:
Look down, O Lord, with pitying eye,
And save the soul condemned to die.

WATTS, Ps. 51, p. 111.

NUMBERS XIV.

Intercession of Moses.

AND all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried: and the people wept that night.

2 And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron: and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt: or would God we had died in this wilderness!

5 Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

6 And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes:

7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the Lord delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey.

11 And the Lord said unto Moses, How long will this people provoke me? and how long will it be ere they believe me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?

12 I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

13 And Moses said unto the Lord, Then the Egyptians shall hear it; (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them:)

17 And now, I beseech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as thou hast spoken, saying,

18 The Lord is longsuffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.

19 Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.

20 And the Lord said, I have pardoned according to thy word:

21 But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord.

22 Because all those men, which have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I did in Egypt, and in the wilderness, have tempted me now these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice;

23 Surely they shall not see the land which I sware unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked me see it:

24 But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land wherinto he went; and his seed shall possess it.

25 (Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites dwelt in the valley.) To morrow turn you, and get you into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XIV.—Great was the attachment of murmuring Israel to the flesh-pots of Egypt, and sad their obstinacy and delusion in preferring the tyranny of a Pharaoh to the government of the God of Abraham! What multitudes prefer a state of nature to a state of grace; and the pleasures of sin, which are only for a season, before the exalted and refined delights of heaven, which shall endure for ever. How grievous, to see immortal beings having their whole conversation on earth; but how animating, to think of those whose "conversation is in heaven, whence they look for the Saviour," who shall at last come to them on the verge of Jordan, to conduct them safe through the river of death, and then receive them to himself in the heaven of heavens, that they may for ever behold his face, enjoy his fellowship, and sing his praise. They who reject Christ, and the offers of his mercy, deliberately exclude themselves from heaven. "Lord preserve us from such a sin—from such a doom!"

PRAYER.

MOST high and infinitely holy Lord God, though we are but dust and ashes, we take upon us to speak to thy Divine and sacred majesty. Thou knowest our unworthiness; O pardon it! thou knowest our infirmities; O help them! To thee we lift up our voice, O hear our cry; for thou art our King and our God, unto whom we will pray.

Thou art the first and the last, the greatest and the best of beings. The excellences of all creatures collected together in one focus, can bear no proportion to thine infinite perfection, glory, and blessedness. Thou art exalted above all blessing and praise. We adore thee as the Creator of all worlds, and as the bountiful Benefactor of all thy creatures.

We would meditate with feelings of gratitude and joy on the honourable relation in which we stand to thee as the God who made us, as the Father who provides for us, as our Redeemer who saves us, as our King who rules over us, as our Almighty friend who comforts us, and as our reconciled God and Father in Christ who presents before us the choicest blessings of the covenant of grace.

We acknowledge, O Lord, our sinfulness. Our iniquity, and the iniquity of our kindred and of our nation, are very great. But we rejoice that the Lord is long-suffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression. Lord, pardon our sins, according to the greatness of thy mercy flowing in the channel of a Saviour's righteousness.

We acknowledge, O heavenly Father, thy justice, sovereignty, and wisdom, in all our afflictions. When our plans are overturned, and our temporal hopes blighted, may we never be left to fall into Israel's sin, murmuring against God. Such of us as have a profession of true godliness, may we never disgrace our profession, or dishonour our Saviour, by returning to the corruptions of the flesh. Preserve us from backsliding. May we remember that backsliding leads to apostacy, and that apostacy leads with rapid steps to the abodes of perdition. Convince us that as God was greatly offended with Israel, when they desired to return to Egypt, thou wilt be equally offended with us if we wish to return to the bondage of sin. May all our hearts be most deeply impressed with thy solemn declaration: If any man draw back, my soul will have no pleasure in him.

Lead our dear children and domestics into the paths of wisdom and holiness, conduct them by the hand through the wilderness of this world, and may they at last reach the heavenly state.

We thank thee, gracious Father, that during the past night we have felt the truth of these words: The Lord is good to all, and his tender mercies are over all his works.

In the temporal pursuits of the day, may we be prevented from placing our hearts on temporal objects. May we live every day as those who are keeping the solemnities of eternity and the glory of heaven constantly in view. Mercifully hear us, for Jesus our exalted Redeemer's sake. Amen.

FREE GRACE IN CHRIST.

Mount Calvary. Spillbrook. Weston Favel. Great Milton c. 12.

- 1 JESUS, the man of constant grief,
A mourner all his days;
His spirit once rejoiced aloud,
And tuned his joy to praise.
- 2 'Father, I thank thy wondrous love,
That hath revealed thy Son
To men unlearned, and to babes
Has made thy Gospel known
- 3 'The mysteries of redeeming grace
Are hidden from the wise,
While pride and carnal reasonings join
To swell and blind their eyes.'

WATTS, 12, H. J.

JOHN VIII.

Abraham saw Christ's Day.

THEN said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death.

54 Jesus answered, If I honour myself, my honour is nothing: it is my Father that honoureth me; of whom ye say, that he is your God:

55 Yet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his saying.

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad.

57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?

58 Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

59 Then took they up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.

JOHN IX.

Blind Man cured.

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

6 When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay,

7 And said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation, Sent.) He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

8 The neighbours therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him; but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, A man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN VIII., IX.—When the Jews poured on Jesus the most blasphemous abuse, he answered them with dignified meekness: "When he was reviled, he reviled not again." But what a contrast is presented by the blaspheming Jews, and the meek and lowly Jesus! In the former we see the perfection of evil; in the latter, the perfection of goodness. If we know God as our Father in Christ, it will be the great desire of our hearts to act in conformity to his will. Filial affection is always manifested by filial obedience. Filial love is a sacred fountain which cannot be shut up; it is a sun which must shine. Truly desolate is our state by nature! We are spiritually lame, spiritually dumb, spiritually deaf, and spiritually blind. Are we affected with a sense of our spiritual blindness? Let us apply to Jesus; let us say, "If thou wilt, thou canst make us see!" Then he will say, "I will!" and your eyes shall be opened, and see the wonders of a glorious day!

PRAYER.

HOLY Spirit, breathe upon us thy Divine influences, while we as a family surround the domestic altar, to present our evening sacrifice before the throne of God.

What reason have we, O Lord, to adore thee for thine original designs of mercy to fallen man. Inconceivable thy sovereignty, that thou shouldst pass by the angels that sinned, and find no Saviour for them, and that thou shouldst take pity on fallen, wretched man. Amazing sovereignty! while thou didst leave apostate angels to remain for ever in the state of awful despair into which they had been cast, thou didst say respecting our ruined world, Deliver from going down to the pit, for I have found a ransom. We adore thee that before all worlds thou didst enter into a covenant of grace with thy Son Jesus Christ: thou didst put into his hand in thine eternal counsels an exceeding great multitude which no man can number, whose salvation is for ever secured. We bless thee that the glorious plan of salvation was preached to the Old Testament church by types and ceremonies, and that in the fulness of time thou didst send the Son of thy love in the likeness of sinful flesh, to accomplish our salvation by his death. Glory to thy great name, O God, that by this method of Divine contrivance and mercy sinners are reconciled to thee, and admitted to the enjoyment of thy friendship and love.

We rejoice, O Jesus, that we have heard thy sayings in a preached Gospel, and that we have now read thy sayings in the Word of life. Give us grace to understand thy sayings, faith to believe them, and love to admire and enjoy them.

Teach our dear children to lay up thy sayings in their hearts, and to practise them in their lives. May they be an ornament of grace unto their heads, and chains about their necks.

We rejoice, O Lord, that the news of salvation was communicated at the fall of man, and that Abraham at the distance of many hundreds of years saw the day of Christ in the flesh, and was glad. As Abraham by faith clearly saw a Saviour to come, may we by faith see a Saviour who has already come, and may each of us believe that on Calvary he died in our room and place, and took all our sins away.

We acknowledge, O Lord, that by nature we are spiritually blind. Without thy grace we are so blind as to be ignorant of our own sinfulness, wretchedness, and danger. Without thy grace we are so blind as to remain ignorant of our need of Christ and of the blessings of his purchase. If the eyes of our minds are opened, we adore thee, O Jesus, as having enlightened our minds to see the glorious mysteries of redeeming grace. If there are any of us still spiritually blind, as thou didst open the eyes of the blind man by sending him to the pool of Siloam to wash, may we and all our blinded relatives wash in the pool of Gospel-ordinances, and by thy holy Spirit may the eyes of our minds be opened to see the light of spiritual day.

Thankful for the undeserved mercies of the day, we implore the fatherly care of our God this night. Hear our prayers, and pardon all our sins, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen.

UNTHANKFULNESS.

St. Bride's. Shortwood. Ustick. Stoke.

s. n.

- 1 IS this the kind return,
And these the thanks we owe?
Thus to abuse eternal love,
Whence all our blessings flow?
- 2 To what a stubborn frame
Has sin reduced our mind!
What strange rebellious wretches we,
And God as strangely kind!
- 3 On us he bids the sun
Shed his reviving rays,
For us the skies their circles run,
To lengthen out our days.

WATTS, 74, B. 11.

NUMBERS XIV.

Israel threatened.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, 27 How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel, which they murmur against me.

28 Say unto them, As truly as I live, saith the LORD, as ye have spoken in mine ears, so will I do to you:

29 Your carcases shall fall in this wilderness; and all that were numbered of you, according to your whole number, from twenty years old and upward, which have murmured against me,

30 Doubtless ye shall not come into the land, concerning which I swear to make you dwell therein, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

31 But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall know the land which ye have despised.

32 But as for you, your carcases, they shall fall in this wilderness.

33 And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and bear your rebellions, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness.

34 After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years; and ye shall know my breach of promise.

36 And the men, which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land,

37 Even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, died by the plague before the LORD.

38 But Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.

39 And Moses told these sayings unto all the children of Israel: and the people mourned greatly.

40 And they rose up early in the morning, and gat them up into the top of the mountaiu, saying, Lo, we be here, and will go up unto the place which the LORD hath promised: for we have sinned.

41 And Moses said, Wherefore now do ye transgress the commandment of the LORD? but it shall not prosper.

42 Go not up, for the LORD is not among you; that ye be not smitten before your enemies.

43 For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword; because ye are turned away from the LORD, therefore the LORD will not be with you.

44 But they presumed to go up unto the hill top: nevertheless the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and Moses, departed not out of the camp.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XIV.—God's promises are gentle, like the soft breezes of a summer's sky; but his threatenings are more awful than the loudest thunders of the heavens. We see in God's threatenings against ancient Israel, the greatness and enormity of their guilt in murmuring against God, who had performed such splendid miracles for their preservation and deliverance. They brought upon themselves the calamity of living under the Divine displeasure, and exposed themselves to the calamity of dying under the Divine wrath. They shut themselves out of an earthly Canaan, and many of them furnished but little hope that they should ever reach a heavenly Canaan. Calob and Joshua are held up as noble examples of fidelity in the service of their God, and a rich and gracious reward was given them. They were permitted to enter the earthly, and, at last, to enter the heavenly Canaan. Faithful unto death, they received the crown of life.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY great and glorious Lord God, notwithstanding our meanness, insignificance, aiffulness, and guilt, we are encouraged by thy condescending goodness, by the gracious promises of thy truth, and by the mediation of thy Son, to cast ourselves prostrate at thy feet, and implore thy mercy.
How unfit are we, how unworthy are we to speak unto thee, the Lord! We are never sufficiently prepared to come into thy presence, but we rejoice that thy good Spirit is ever ready to help our infirmities, and make intercession for us with desires, the earnestness of which cannot be expressed. This morning we acknowledge thee as the God who made us, as our constant Benefactor, in whom we live, move, and have our being. On thee we depend for all the good we now enjoy, and in thee we trust for all the good we hope for in the days to come. But above all we adore thee as the God of salvation, from the fountain of whose mercy a stream flows that shall rejoice the hearts of the redeemed in all generations.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the manifestations of thy forbearance and long-suffering which we have experienced all our days. Great have been our provocations, and great has been thy patience. Great have been and still great are the sins of our land. And we have reason to stand and wonder when we think how thou hast borne with our profanity and impiety.
Preserve us from the alarming sin of abusing thy patience.
May the punishment inflicted on murmuring Israel be instrumental in opening our eyes to see the great enormity of the sin of murmuring against thy will and abusing thy patience.
May we tremble while we think, that when thy despised patience is withdrawn, it is followed by awful manifestations of wrath. Suffer us not to live in a state of rebellion against thy will, as this is invariably accompanied with thy frowns.
May the disgraceful death of the rebellious Israelites convince us how heart-rending it is to die under the displeasure of Jehovah.

May our beloved children, and the children of all our relatives and friends, and our domestics, take warning from the punishment inflicted on rebellious Israel. May they discover an early attachment to thy Gospel and believe it, and an early love to thy law and obey it.

Bless to us the example of Caleb and Joshua. As they had another spirit in them, far different from the spirit of murmuring Israel, may we have another spirit in us, differing from the spirit of the men of the world. May the same mind be in us that was also in Christ.

May the spirit of the Gospel pervade our minds in all the duties and engagements of the day. May our lives be a satisfying evidence that the Gospel is the wisdom of God and the power of God—that it teaches to live as well as to die. We thank thee that thou hast been mindful of us during the past night, and that not one word has failed of all that thou hast promised.

Blessed Saviour, may our morning-prayer obtain acceptance, through the merit of thine atonement and the efficacy of thine intercession. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

ONE THING I KNOW.

Charity. Blindon. Kingsbridge. Virginia.

L. M.

- 1 DEAR Saviour! make me wise to see My sin, and guilt, and remedy;
'Tis said, of all thy blood has bought,
They shall of Israel's God be taught.
- 2 Their plague of heart thy people know;
They know thy name, and trust thee too;
They know the Gospel's blissful sound,
The path where endless joys abound.
- 3 They know the Father and the Son;
Theirs is eternal life begun;
Unto salvation they are wise,—
Their grace shall into glory rise.
- 4 But ignorance itself am I;
Born blind—estranged from thee I lie;
O Lord! to thee I humbly own,
I nothing know as should be known.

ANON.

JOHN IX.

Disputings with the Blind Man.

THEY brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the sabbath day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

20 His parents answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself.

22 These words spake his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue.

23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age; ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner.

25 He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

26 Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are Moses' disciples.

29 We know that God spake unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.

30 The man answered and said unto them, Why, herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IX.—Jesus opened the bodily eyes of the blind man on the Sabbath-day; and it is animating to think of the vast multitudes of instances in which Christ, by his Spirit, has opened the eyes of the understandings of men on that blessed day.

Certainly, that is the day the King delighteth to honour. May that day be dear to us, as the day when we shall enjoy special tokens of Divine love, and when we shall be enriched by the special blessings of Divine goodness. How odious the hypocritical Pharisees appeared in their voluntary, unreasonable, and obstinate unbelief! while the man who was miraculously restored to sight, in the midst of the vilest abuse, is honoured of God, by his candid and noble testimony to the power and mercy of Christ, who had opened his eyes to see the brightness of day, and the varied wonders of God's fair creation. May we have an experimental and saving knowledge of what Christ is, by the indwelling influences of his Holy Spirit in our heart.

PRAYER.

INFINITELY blessed and gracious Lord God, thou art the high and lofty One who inhabitest eternity, and whose name is holy. When we contemplate the awful majesty of thy being compared with the meanness, insignificance, and sinfulness of our nature, we have indeed cause to fear and tremble at appearing before thy presence. But if we only contemplated thy majesty, justice, and power, we should never dare to present ourselves before thee. We praise thee that thou hast given such a display of mercy, and hast delivered promises so great and precious that our drooping spirits are revived, and our souls sweetly persuaded and encouraged to offer up the supplications of our heart. Hast thou not said, O Hearer of prayer, that though thou dwellest in the high and holy place, thou wilt also dwell with him who is of an humble and contrite spirit? Thou hast said that the needy shall not be forgotten, and the expectation of the poor shall not perish. Mercifully do as thou hast said; remember thy word unto thy servants, upon which thou hast caused us to hope.

Give us faith to believe that our habitation is the residence of our God; then shall we lie down upon our beds in peace. May each one of us exercise a lively trust in thee; then we shall be preserved in perfect and secure peace, not only during the business of the day, but amid the darkness of the night.

We thank God that no evil has befallen us since we appeared before thy throne to present our morning sacrifice.

As a family, may we be blessed in HIM in whom all the families of the earth who believe in his name shall be blessed. Let none of us remain in a state of spiritual blindness; but may all of us, from the eldest even unto the youngest, know the almighty power and grace of Christ, by having the eyes of our understanding opened. Heaven grant that, with the blind man of whom we have read, we may be enabled, with believing astonishment, gratitude, and praise, to exclaim, One thing we know, once we were blind, now we see. May we see a God in Christ as our God; may we see Christ in all his offices and relations as ours; may we see the Holy Spirit as our instructor, our guide, our comforter, and our sanctifier. May we see that salvation is our portion, and all the blessings of the covenant of grace our rich and imperishable inheritance. May we see that the saints are our brethren, angels our kindred, and heaven our home. And may we be able triumphantly to exclaim, Then, with our immortal eyes, shall we see thy lovely face, and with endless pleasure and astonishment feast upon thine unknown, boundless grace.

Convince our beloved children and domestics that they are by nature spiritually blind, and therefore that they need the power and spirit of Jesus to remove this blindness, to enable them to see on the one hand their sin and danger, and on the other their God and Saviour.

Show kindness to our aged friends; and, as they draw nearer the heavenly world, may their spiritual eye-sight become stronger and stronger, till at last their faith is changed into the bright vision of heaven's glory.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

GOD'S HOLINESS, VENGEANCE, AND GRACE.

Orpheus. Kismet Moor. New Eagle St. Boston. 2. M.

- 1 EXALT the Lord our God,
And worship at his feet;
His nature is all holiness,
And mercy is his seat.
- 2 When Israel was his church,
When Aaron was his priest,
When Moses cried, when Samuel prayed,
He gave his people rest.
- 3 Oft he forgave their sins,
Nor would destroy their race;
And oft he made his vengeance known,
When they abused his grace.

Watts, Ps. 99, p. II.

NUMBERS XV.

Sabbath Profanation.

AND while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath day.

83 And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation.

84 And they put him in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him.

85 And the Lord said unto Moses, The man shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones without the camp.

86 And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the Lord commanded Moses.

NUMBERS XVI.

Rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

NOW Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi; and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men:

2 And they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown:

3 And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord?

4 And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face:

5 And he spake unto Korah, and unto all his company, saying, Even to morrow the Lord will shew who are his, and who is holy; and will cause him to come near unto him: even him whom he hath chosen will he cause to come near unto him.

6 This do; Take you censers, Korah, and all his company;

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the Lord to morrow: and it shall be, that the man whom the Lord doth choose, he shall be holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi:

9 Seemeth it but a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the Lord, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them?

10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee: and seek ye the priesthood also?

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XV., XVI.—Profanation of the Sabbath is attended with peculiar aggravations. God appointed the Sabbath as a day of bodily rest and spiritual enjoyment. This appointment is invaluable. It is as much a display of mercy as of wisdom and sovereignty. Man's interest, improvement, and happiness are promoted by the sanctification of this day; while, at the same time, God is glorified, and his perfections made known and adored. To those who sanctify this day, God has given the most encouraging promises, against those who profane this day, he has denounced the threatenings of his wrath. May it be the delight of our heart to keep this day holy to our God! When we think of the pride of Korah and his associates, when we remember their sacrilegious ambition, and its fatal consequences, let it be our earnest prayer to be clothed with humility.

PRAYER.

MOST glorious Jehovah, whose we are, and whom we ought to serve and adore, we acknowledge our dependence upon thy providence for every blessing necessary for our preservation and comfort. We desire to give thee the glory due to thy name for thy constant care during the past week and the past day, and for thy continued and uninterrupted kindness during our past lives. Our voice therefore shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will we direct our praises and our prayers unto thee: and we desire to look up in humble expectation of the continuance of those mercies we need, while travelling along the wilderness of this life.

We thank thee that thou hast given us, during the night, refreshing sleep, and caused our bed to comfort us. Thou hast not yet appointed for us wearisome nights; and we have not yet been surprised with the sleep of death. We thank thee that our abode has not proved our sepulchre, and that no plague has been allowed to come nigh our dwelling. We are the living, the living to praise thee, as we do this day.

We place ourselves under thy care. Give us direction and success in all our lawful undertakings. May we even derive spiritual improvement from our temporal business. Give us day by day daily bread, and daily grace, and daily hope, that, when the journey of time is over, we may enter upon a glorious career above, that shall remain for ever. May we see the Lord always before us, and while we live upon thy bounty may we live to thy praise.

We have now been permitted to read a solemn and alarming portion of thy Word. May thy Spirit employ it to produce an effect on our minds which will appear in our conscientious respect for thy Sabbath, and our unfeigned veneration for the institutions of thy Word.

We acknowledge, O Lord, with shame, the numerous instances of Sabbath-profanation with which we are chargeable, both as a family and individuals. How often have we indulged our own thoughts, spoken our own words, performed our own actions, and sought our own carnal pleasure, on thy sacred day! May this our sin be forgiven, and may we offend thee in this manner no more for ever.

We confess the sin of our nation, in the very general neglect and abuse of thy day, accompanied by a neglect and contempt of thine ordinances. Justly thou mightst have forsaken our nation, and have made us a hissing and a reproach among all the kingdoms of the earth, for this our national sin.

May our dear children and domestics never associate with Sabbath-breakers, but, from a love to thy day and a love to thy Son, remember thy Sabbath to keep it holy.

Give us, blessed Saviour, a love to thy ministers. May we not despise them, as Korah and his company despised Moses, and were destroyed. May we love their message, because it is the manifestation of thy love; when we hear their voice, may we hear the voice of Jesus through the voice of man; and may their labours be the instrument, in the hand of the Holy Spirit, of imparting to us the blessing of eternal life. Hear us graciously, and forgive us freely, for Jesus our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

JESUS SUFFERING FOR THE SHEEP.

Isaiah. Claremont. Whitefield. Simons'.

2. H.

- 1 LIKE sheep we went astray,
And broke the fold of God,
Each wandering in a different way,
But all the downward road.
- 2 How dreadful was the hour
When God our wanderings laid,
And did at once his vengeance pour
Upon the Shepherd's head!
- 3 How glorious was the grace
When Christ sustained the stroke!
His life and blood the Shepherd pays
A ransom for the flock.

WATTS, 142, B. 1.

JOHN IX.

The Man who was Blind believing in Christ.

JESUS heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

39 And Jesus said, for judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

JOHN X.

Christ the Good Shepherd.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IX., X.—The man who was restored to sight could afford to be cast off by man, seeing he was accepted of Jesus. Man's contempt was infinitely counterbalanced by his interest in Christ's love. If our love to Christ leads us readily and willingly to suffer shame for his sake, he will enrich us with his grace, cheer us with his smiles, comfort us with his fellowship, sustain us by his power, and at last receive us to his heaven. Ministers of Christ are compared to shepherds. Faithfully to act a shepherd's part, it is necessary for them to study, imitate, and admire the example of Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep. It should ever be their duty and delight to lead their flock in the green pastures of Gospel ordinances, and beside the peaceful waters of Gospel consolation. O how Jesus, the Divine Shepherd, loved his flock—he laid down his life for the sheep!

PRAYER.

INFINITELY great and ever-blessed God, we the most unworthy of thy creatures desire at this time with humility and reverence to prostrate ourselves in thine awful yet gracious presence, and acknowledge thine infinite perfection and glorious excellence. We adore thee as having existed before all beings, even from all eternity enjoying in thyself, in the fellowship of thine own mind and of thy threefold personality, unbounded blessedness. Thou art the greatest and the best of beings, compared with whom the loftiest of archangels are less than nothing and vanity. Who can conceive, who can by searching find out thy knowledge and wisdom, thy power and righteousness, thy holiness and goodness, thy truth and mercy? Even through the ceaseless ages of eternity the most exalted of the heavenly hosts shall have reason to exclaim, None can find out the Almighty unto perfection! As a family, we bow before thee at the close of another day, and at the close of another week; and we would pay thee our homage as the great Creator and as the universal Governor, but, above all, as the merciful Redeemer of thy people.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the Son of God. Thou art saying to us, each one, as thou saidst to the man who was miraculously restored to sight, Dost thou believe on the Son of God? O that we were enabled by thy Holy Spirit, like him, to believe and worship. Would to God we could thus address thee from the heart: We believe; Lord, help our unbelief. Mercifully take from us our evil heart of unbelief. May we not only be delivered from unbelief, but from voluntary ignorance. Thou hast liberally enriched us with the means of grace; may we not be left to live in the abuse of those means. Preserve us also from presumptuous sins. We are chargeable with many presumptuous sins. We have sinned against the light of reason, the dictates of conscience, the loud warnings of thy law, and the sweet, alluring voice of thy Gospel.

O Lord, strengthen the conscience in the bosom of our dear offspring. Give them a tender conscience, and may they be sensibly alive to the evil of every sin and to the importance of every duty. God forbid that they should ever be visited with a seared conscience. Enable them to hear the voice of conscience as the voice of God.

Great Saviour, thou art the good Shepherd, and we adore thee as the Shepherd of our souls. Deliver thy Church from false and from faithless shepherds. Suffer none to enter into the shepherd's place who has not the call of thee, the chief Shepherd. May faithless shepherds be converted by thy Spirit, or expelled by thy providence.

We adore thee, Divine Redeemer, as the good Shepherd, whom we desire to love superlatively and believe implicitly. Eternal praises to thy name, that in eternity thou didst love the sheep, and in time didst lay down thy life for the sheep. Behold, what manner of love is this! On the approaching Sabbath may the heralds of salvation be powerfully assisted in proclaiming thy grace, and persuading sinners to come into thy fold. O that each one in this family may be a sheep in Jesus' flock.

We thank God for the mercies we have this day enjoyed, and we supplicate our Father's care this night. O hear us for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

HOPE IN GOD.

Mercy-seat. Athlone. St. Lawrence Jewry. Islington. L. M.

- 1 MY spirit sinks within me, Lord,
But I will call thy name to mind,
And times of past distress record,
When I have found my God was kind.
- 2 Huge troubles, with tumultuous noise,
Swell like a sea and round me spread;
Thy waterspouts drown all my joys,
And rising waves roll o'er my head.
- 3 Yet will the Lord command his love,
When I address his throne by day;
Nor in the night his grace remove:
The night shall hear me sing and pray.
- 4 I'll cast myself before his feet,
And say, My God, my heavenly rock!
Why doth thy love so long forget
The soul that groans beneath thy stroke?
- 5 Thy light and truth shall guide me still,
Thy word shall my best thoughts employ,
And lead me to thine heavenly hill
My God, my most exceeding joy.

Watts, Ps. 42, p. 11.

PSALM XLIII.

Hope in God.

JUDGE me, O God, and plead my cause against an ungodly nation: O deliver me from the deceitful and unjust man.

2 For thou art the God of my strength: why dost thou cast me off? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

3 O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.

4 Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God, my God.

5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM XLIV.

Confidence in God.

WE have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the times of old.

2 How thou didst drive out the heathen with thy hand, and plantdest them: how thou didst afflict the people, and cast them out.

3 For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own arm save them: but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favour unto them.

4 Thou art my King, O God: command deliverances for Jacob.

5 Through thee will we push down our enemies: through thy name will we tread them under that rise up against us.

6 For I will not trust in my bow, neither shall my sword save me.

7 But thou hast saved us from our enemies, and hast put them to shame that hated us.

8 In God we boast all the day long, and praise thy name for ever: Selah.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLIII., XLIV.—What an unspeakable comfort it is to those who are savingly united to Jesus as the Lord their righteousness, that however much they are accused and condemned by men they are justified by God! He has pronounced upon them a sentence of pardon and acceptance which can never be reversed. Are the saints oppressed by man? they are held up by the almighty arm of the God of their salvation. Are they passing through a dreary wilderness in their journey to the heavenly Canaan? they have Divine light to guide them, Divine love to comfort them, and a Divine shield to defend them: they should therefore be careful never to give way to despondency and unbelieving fears. What a blessing and honour to have pious and loving parents, who have made us acquainted with the great things God has done for his Church, and with the marvellous interpositions of his Providence in preserving her amidst the greatest dangers, relieving her from the greatest perplexities, and delivering her from the greatest enemies! What a history!—the record of the wonderful things God has done for Zion, the city of the great King!

PRAYER.

GLORY to God in the highest, that on the morning of another Sabbath-day we have an opportunity of surrounding the domestic altar, to adore and supplicate the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. O thou most blessed God, who art our merciful Father in Christ, we beseech thee to look down with pity on us thine unworthy creatures, who are this morning as a family drawing near thy throne of grace.

We praise thee that, during the past week and the past night, thou hast defended us by the shield of thy watchful care from all the dangers, known and unknown, to which we have been exposed. What are we that thou hast conferred on us the invaluable privilege of another Sabbath! While multitudes who despised thy grace are for ever deprived of this holy, sacred day, in thy sovereignty thou hast given to us another day of the Son of man. We thank thee for this best of days. To us may it prove a day of sacred rest. May we be delivered from mortal, earthly cares. And may our heart, like the harp of Israel's king, be in tune to celebrate thy praise.

We lament that so small a portion of the earth enjoys the blessedness of a Christian Sabbath. Give the nations, O Lord, thy Gospel, thine ordinances, thy ministers, and thy Sabbath. We hail, O Lord, the arrival of that time when the Sabbath and its blessings shall be enjoyed by people of every nation and every clime. Through the instrumentality of Bible and missionary institutions, may the proud balwarks of pagan idolatry and superstition be soon levelled with the ground, and everything that is opposed to Christ and his Gospel disappear before the breath of thy mouth and the brightness of thy coming.

Give to thy dear servants this day the tongue of the learned, that they may rightly divine the word of truth, and that they may speak a word in season to those who are weary. Send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead us, and the Israel of God. Bring us and multitudes to thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles. May we draw near to thee in thy sanctuary with exceeding joy.

Have mercy on all the rulers of the land; and in particular have mercy on thy servant whom thou hast invested with the loftiest place of authority. Adorn them with crowns of grace, and make them heirs of a kingdom that cannot be moved.

May all our universities and seminaries of learning be honoured and blessed by the superintending care of the Holy Spirit. And may our children and servants be the heirs of heaven.

May the Gospel prove consolatory to aged travellers this day, and amid the infirmities of declining years may their bosoms glow with animating hopes of eternal glory.

Pity the afflicted, whether in body or in mind. Comfort them with the prospect of a glorious resurrection and a blessed eternity. Thus may they mount up in their expectations, as on eagles' wings.

May our beloved minister be filled with the Holy Ghost, and may a Divine unction accompany the word that may flow from his lips. May those who are cast down be comforted under his ministry, and before the day terminate sing aloud for joy.

Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SEVENTEENTH WEEK.—SATURDAY EVENING.

JESUS SUFFERING FOR THE SHEEP.

Isaiah. Claremont. Whitefield. Simons.

LIKE sheep we went astray,
And broke the fold of God,
Each wandering in a different way,
But all the downward road.

How dreadful was the hour
When God our wanderings laid,
And did at once his vengeance pour
Upon the Shepherd's head!

How glorious was the grace
When Christ sustained the stroke!
His life and blood the Shepherd pays
A ransom for the flock.

WATTS, 142, B. I.

JOHN IX.

The Man who was Blind believing in Christ.

JESUS heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

39 And Jesus said, for judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

JOHN X.

Christ the Good Shepherd.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN IX., x.—The man who was restored to sight could afford to be cast off by man, seeing he was accepted of Jesus. Man's contempt was infinitely counterbalanced by his interest in Christ's love. If our love to Christ leads us readily and willingly to suffer shame for his sake, he will enrich us with his grace, cheer us with his smiles, comfort us with his fellowship, sustain us by his power, and at last receive us to his heaven. Ministers of Christ are compared to shepherds. Faithfully to act a shepherd's part, it is necessary for them to study, imitate, and admire the example of Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep. It should ever be their duty and delight to lead their flock in the green pastures of Gospel ordinances, and beside the peaceful waters of Gospel consolation. O how Jesus, the Divine Shepherd, loved his flock—he laid down his life for the sheep!

PRAYER.

INFINITELY great and ever-blessed God, we the most unworthy of thy creatures desire at this time with humility and reverence to prostrate ourselves in thine awful yet gracious presence, and acknowledge thine infinite perfection and glorious excellence. We adore thee as having existed before all beings, even from all eternity enjoying in thyself, in the fellowship of thine own mind and of thy threefold personality, unbounded blessedness. Thou art the greatest and the best of beings, compared with whom the loftiest of archangels are less than nothing and vanity. Who can conceive, who can by searching find out thy knowledge and wisdom, thy power and righteousness, thy holiness and goodness, thy truth and mercy? Even through the ceaseless ages of eternity the most exalted of the heavenly hosts shall have reason to exclaim, None can find out the Almighty unto perfection! As a family, we bow before thee at the close of another day, and at the close of another week; and we would pay thee our homage as the great Creator and as the universal Governor, but, above all, as the merciful Redeemer of thy people.

We adore thee, O Jesus, as the Son of God. Thou art saying to us, each one, as thou saidst to the man who was miraculously restored to sight, Dost thou believe on the Son of God? O that we were enabled by thy Holy Spirit, like him, to believe and worship. Would to God we could thus address thee from the heart: We believe; Lord, help our unbelief. Mercifully take from us our evil heart of unbelief. May we not only be delivered from unbelief, but from voluntary ignorance. Thou hast liberally enriched us with the means of grace; may we not be left to live in the abuse of those means. Preserve us also from presumptuous sins. We are chargeable with many presumptuous sins. We have sinned against the light of reason, the dictates of conscience, the loud warnings of thy law, and the sweet, alluring voice of thy Gospel.

O Lord, strengthen the conscience in the bosom of our dear offspring. Give them a tender conscience, and may they be sensibly alive to the evil of every sin and to the importance of every duty. God forbid that they should ever be visited with a seared conscience. Enable them to hear the voice of conscience as the voice of God.

Great Saviour, thou art the good Shepherd, and we adore thee as the Shepherd of our souls. Deliver thy Church from false and from faithless shepherds. Suffer none to enter into the shepherd's place who has not the call of thee, the chief Shepherd. May faithless shepherds be converted by thy Spirit, or expelled by thy providence.

We adore thee, Divine Redeemer, as the good Shepherd, whom we desire to love superlatively and believe implicitly. Eternal praises to thy name, that in eternity thou didst love the sheep, and in time didst lay down thy life for the sheep. Behold, what manner of love is this! On the approaching Sabbath may the heralds of salvation be powerfully assisted in proclaiming thy grace, and persuading sinners to come into thy fold. O that each one in this family may be a sheep in Jesus' flock.

We thank God for the mercies we have this day enjoyed, and we supplicate our Father's care this night. O hear us for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus be with us all. Amen.

HOPE IN GOD.

Mercy-seat. Athlone. St. Lawrence Jewry. Islington. l. n.

- 1 MY spirit sinks within me, Lord,
But I will call thy name to mind,
And times of past distress record,
When I have found my God was kind.
- 2 Huge troubles, with tumultuous noise,
Swell like a sea and round me spread;
Thy waterspouts drown all my joys,
And rising waves roll o'er my head.
- 3 Yet will the Lord command his love,
When I address his throne by day;
Nor in the night his grace remove:
The night shall hear me sing and pray.
- 4 I'll cast myself before his feet,
And say, My God, my heavenly rock!
Why doth thy love so long forget
The soul that groans beneath thy stroke?
- 5 Thy light and truth shall guide me still,
Thy word shall my best thoughts employ,
And lead me to thine heavenly hill
My God, my most exceeding joy.

WATTS, Ps. 42, p. 11.

PSALM XLIII.

Hope in God.

JUDGE me, O God, and plead my cause against an ungodly nation: O deliver me from the deceitful and unjust man.

2 For thou art the God of my strength: why dost thou cast me off? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

3 O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.

4 Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God, my God.

5 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM XLIV.

Confidence in God.

WE have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the times of old.

2 How thou didst drive out the heathen with thy hand, and plantedst them: how thou didst afflict the people, and cast them out.

3 For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own arm save them: but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favour unto them.

4 Thou art my King, O God: command deliverances for Jacob.

5 Through thee will we push down our enemies: through thy name will we tread them under that rise up against us.

6 For I will not trust in my bow, neither shall my sword save me.

7 But thou hast saved us from our enemies, and hast put them to shame that hated us.

8 In God we boast all the day long, and praise thy name for ever. Selah.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLIII., XLIV.—What an unspeakable comfort it is to those who are savingly united to Jesus as the Lord their righteousness, that however much they are accused and condemned by men they are justified by God! He has pronounced upon them a sentence of pardon and acceptance which can never be reversed. Are the saints oppressed by man? they are held up by the almighty arm of the God of their salvation. Are they passing through a dreary wilderness in their journey to the heavenly Canaan? they have Divine light to guide them, Divine love to comfort them, and a Divine shield to defend them: they should therefore be careful never to give way to despondency and unbelieving fears. What a blessing and honour to have pious and loving parents, who have made us acquainted with the great things God has done for his Church, and with the marvellous interpositions of his Providence in preserving her amidst the greatest dangers, relieving her from the greatest perplexities, and delivering her from the greatest enemies! What a history!—the record of the wonderful things God has done for Zion, the city of the great King!

PRAYER.

GLORY to God in the highest, that on the morning of another Sabbath-day we have an opportunity of surrounding the domestic altar, to adore and supplicate the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. O thou most blessed God, who art our merciful Father in Christ, we beseech thee to look down with pity on us thine unworthy creatures, who are this morning as a family drawing near thy throne of grace.

We praise thee that, during the past week and the past night, thou hast defended us by the shield of thy watchful care from all the dangers, known and unknown, to which we have been exposed. What are we that thou hast conferred on us the invaluable privilege of another Sabbath! While multitudes who despised thy grace are for ever deprived of this holy, sacred day, in thy sovereignty thou hast given to us another day of the Son of man. We thank thee for this best of days. To us may it prove a day of sacred rest. May we be delivered from mortal, earthly cares. And may our heart, like the harp of Israel's king, be in tune to celebrate thy praise.

We lament that so small a portion of the earth enjoys the blessedness of a Christian Sabbath. Give the nations, O Lord, thy Gospel, thine ordinances, thy ministers, and thy Sabbath. We hail, O Lord, the arrival of that time when the Sabbath and its blessings shall be enjoyed by people of every nation and every clime. Through the instrumentality of Bible and missionary institutions, may the proud bulwarks of pagan idolatry and superstition be soon levelled with the ground, and everything that is opposed to Christ and his Gospel disappear before the breath of thy mouth and the brightness of thy coming.

Give to thy dear servants this day the tongue of the learned, that they may rightly divine the word of truth, and that they may speak a word in season to those who are weary. O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead us, and all the Israel of God. Bring us and multitudes to thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles. May we draw near to thee in thy sanctuary with exceeding joy.

Have mercy on all the rulers of the land; and in particular have mercy on thy servant whom thou hast invested with the loftiest place of authority. Adorn them with crowns of grace, and make them heirs of a kingdom that cannot be moved.

May all our universities and seminaries of learning be honoured and blessed by the superintending care of the Holy Spirit. And may our children and servants be the heirs of heaven.

May the Gospel prove consolatory to aged travellers this day, and amid the infirmities of declining years may their bosoms glow with animating hopes of eternal glory.

Pity the afflicted, whether in body or in mind. Comfort them with the prospect of a glorious resurrection and a blessed eternity. Thus may they mount up in their expectations, as on eagles' wings.

May our beloved minister be filled with the Holy Ghost, and may a Divine unction accompany the word that may flow from his lips. May those who are cast down be comforted under his ministry, and before the day terminate sing aloud for joy.

Lord, hear us, for Jesus' sake, our Lord and Saviour.
Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

THE CHURCH'S COMPLAINT IN PERSECUTION.

Kerwell. Westerham. James'. Bangor. C. M.

- 1 LORD, we have heard thy works of old,
Thy works of power and grace,
When to our ears our fathers told
The wonders of their days.
- 2 How thou didst build thy churches here,
And make thy Gospel known;
Amongst them did thine arm appear,
Thy light and glory shone.
- 3 In God they boasted all the day,
And in a cheerful throng
Did thousands meet to praise and pray,
And grace was all their song.
- 4 But now our souls are seized with shame,
Confusion fills our face,
To hear the enemy blaspheme,
And fools reproach thy grace.

WATTS, Ps. 44.

PSALM XLIV.

The Church's Complaint in Persecution.

BUT thou hast cast off, and put us to shame; and goest not forth with our armies.

10 Thou makest us to turn back from the enemy: and they which hate us spoil for themselves.

11 Thou hast given us like sheep appointed for meat; and hast scattered us among the heathen.

12 Thou sellest thy people for nought, and dost not increase thy wealth by their price.

13 Thou makest us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and a derision to them that are round about us.

14 Thou makest us a byword among the heathen, a shaking of the head among the people.

15 My confusion is continually before me, and the shame of my faith hath covered me, 16 For the voice of him that reproacheth and blasphemeth; by reason of the enemy and avenger.

17 All this is come upon us; yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falsely in thy covenant.

18 Our heart is not turned back, neither have our steps declined from thy way;

19 Though thou hast sore broken us in the place of dragons, and covered us with the shadow of death.

20 If we have forgotten the name of our God, or stretched out our hands to a strange God;

21 Shall not God search this out? for he knoweth the secrets of the heart.

22 Yea, for thy sake are we killed all the day long; we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.

23 Awake, why sleepest thou, O LORD? arise, cast us not off for ever.

24 Wherefore hidest thou thy face, and forgettest our affliction and our oppression?

25 For our soul is bowed down to the dust: our belly cleaveth unto the earth.

26 Arise for our help, and redeem us for thy mercies' sake.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLIV.—God may hide his face from his people, but he never forsakes them; he will never withdraw his love. As wholesome discipline, God may allow their enemies to obtain some temporary advantage: this is only for a short season, for they shall at last be conquerors, and even more than conquerors, through Christ, who loveth them. This world is the place of their probation and conflict. They are told by their Divine Lord what they may expect as they journey along. They know that it is often through much tribulation they make progress to the heavenly kingdom. When they minutely enumerate their afflictions, as the Psalmist enumerates them in his historical, plaintive song, they should also minutely enumerate God's dealings of mercy, and carefully mark down and observe the encouraging instances of Divine blessings so mercifully and bountifully bestowed. Especially they should rejoice in the connection betwixt present affliction and future glory, present sorrows and future joys, present sighs and future songs, present conflicts and future triumphs.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art our God and our King; through thee will we push down our enemies; through thy name will we tread on those spiritual foes who rise up against us. We will not trust in ourselves, or in an arm of flesh; but in thee alone will we boast all the day long, and we will praise thy name for ever and ever.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the sufferings thy Church and people have endured in the ages that are past. They have been given like sheep appointed for meat. They have been a reproach to their neighbours, a scorn and a reproach to those that were round about them. They have been sore broken in the place of dragons, and they have been killed all the day long. We rejoice that, notwithstanding all this, thy people have sustained no loss, but have received unspeakable gain. We praise thee that, when the fires of persecution have burnt with the greatest vehemence, thy beloved people have been enabled triumphantly to sing, For we are persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. May we, as a family, be instructed to sing this triumphant song of the apostle.

May our dear children belong to the spiritual army of Jesus, and may they be taught, in an early period of their days, to endure hardness, as the good soldiers of Jesus Christ.

May they and we, and all our relatives and friends, and those who worship with us in the same sanctuary, be the humble and faithful followers of Christ our head, and, under the direction of the Captain of our salvation, may we be led to victory and immortal glory.

We acknowledge, at the close of thy Sabbath, the sins and imperfections of which we are guilty, in the manner in which we have served thee this day. We have reason to charge ourselves with great backwardness in the ordinances of thy house, and also with great formality in the solemn engagements of thy day. Lord, forgive us, through the merits of our Saviour's blood. When we look to our innumerable and highly aggravated offences, we would flee for refuge to Jesus and his cross.

We earnestly pray that Divine efficacy may attend a preached Gospel this day. May multitudes be convinced, and may their consciences be awakened in their bosoms, that they may see their sin, their danger, and their helplessness. May they cry out with holy earnestness, What must we do to be saved? Where an awakening has commenced, may it be carried on till it issue in conversion. May it be our blessedness to see all we love, and all in whom we are interested, the loving and willing subjects of a Saviour's dominion.

What gratitude should inspire our hearts, when we think of thy kindness to thine ambassadors this day! We thank thee for bringing Divine truth to their remembrance, and making them the honoured instruments of adding subjects to thy kingdom.

We commit ourselves and our beloved friends to thy gracious care this night. May our imperfect prayer be answered, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

ETERNITY.

Fordingbridge. Hutton. Angel's Hymn. Sterling. I. M.

- 1 ETERNITY is just at hand!
 And shall I waste my ebbing sand,
 And careless view departing day,
 And throw my inch of time away?
- 2 Eternity! tremendous sound!
 To guilty souls a dreadful wound!
 But oh! if Christ and heaven be mine,
 How sweet the accents! how Divine!
- 3 Be this my chief, my only care,
 My high pursuit, my ardent prayer;
 An interest in the Saviour's blood—
 My pardon sealed, and peace with God.

ANON.

NUMBERS XVI.

Korah, Dathan, and Abiram destroyed.

AND Moses said unto Korah, Be thou and all thy company before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to-morrow:

17 And take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers; thou also, and Aaron, each of you his censer.

18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron.

19 And Korah gathered all the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

21 Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment.

22 And they fell upon their faces, and said, O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation?

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

25 And Moses rose up, and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel followed him.

26 And he spake unto the congregation, saying, Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed in all their sins.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram on every side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.

28 And Moses said, Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all these works; for I have not done them of mine own mind.

29 If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men; then the LORD hath not sent me.

30 But if the LORD make a new thing, and the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the LORD.

31 And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them;

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods.

33 They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them; and they perished from among the congregation.

34 And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XVI.—Solemn sight—a human being summoned to appear before a human—an earthly tribunal! O how infinitely more solemn and affecting to be summoned before the tribunal of the great Jehovah! How distressing to be called before an earthly judge to be condemned! but how awfully overwhelming to be placed before the Judge of the whole earth to hear a judgment pronounced that shall never be reversed! It is formidable to encounter the wrath of earthly kings; but how infinitely hopeless it is to encounter the wrath of God, which is able in one moment to consume hosts of enemies, the most numerous and powerful! Moses interposed in behalf of guilty Israel: without his prompt, reasonable, and effectual mediation, that guilty, murmuring nation would have been instantly consumed, and their name and memorial for ever blotted out from the face of the earth. He interposed, and they were saved. If Jesus had not interposed for us, if he had not entered into our room, and placed himself in our stead, our race had now been living under the dark cloud of the Divine displeasure, and doomed, like fallen angels, to chains of everlasting darkness.

PRAYER.

OLORD our God, thou art our sovereign Proprietor. As the potter has power over the clay, so thou hast power over us. Thou hast an inalienable and undisputed right to do with us and all thy creatures what seemeth good in thy sight: none can stay thy hand, or say unto thee, What doest thou? If all the angels in heaven, and all the generations of men, were to rise up in rebellion against thee at one time, thou art able with as great ease to destroy them all, and eternally crush their power, as thou art to destroy a moth. We acknowledge thy property in us as our Creator. Thou madest us, and not we ourselves. We acknowledge thy property in us as our providential Father. Thou givest to us, and to all thy creatures, life and breath and all things. Holy and Divine Spirit, may we claim in God a still more endearing relation, as our Father in Christ, as our redeeming God.

We rejoice to think, O Lord, that, by the unmerited continuance of thy providential kindness, we have been preserved and comforted during the past night, and that we are now engaged as a family in presenting our morning-sacrifice before the presence of thy Divine majesty, which thou wilt graciously accept, through the merits of a Saviour's death.

We commit ourselves, our persons, our temporal pursuits, and our all, this day, to thy care. May we be diligent in business, at the same time remembering that the kingdom of God and its righteousness are incomparably more desirable and important than all the objects and comforts of the present life.

O Lord, we adore thee in thy holiness, justice, and truth, so awfully displayed in the account we have now read of the destruction of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. May we see in their sin, and in their punishment, that it is no slight thing to interfere with thy sacred institutions, and to oppose thy commissioned servants, whether civil or religious, in the discharge of their important duties.

Merciful Father, we earnestly pray for the sanctity of the sacred priesthood. Send forth faithful labourers into thy vineyard. Let all who bear the name of ministers breathe the spirit of Jesus.

May our minds as a family be duly impressed with the sudden and awful destruction of those who rose up rebelliously to arraign the servants of the Lord.

May our dear children and domestics be afraid to offend God. May the miseries of hell deter them from a life of impenitence and rebellion. O may they consider how awful it is to fall unprepared into the hands of the living God.

We entreat the grace and guidance of God this week. In all our actions may we show the influence of the Gospel to which we listened on the past Sabbath. We have been hearers, O make us doers of the Word. All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SAINTS IN THE HAND OF CHRIST.

Buckingham. Sandgate. Gainsboro'. Charlestown. C. N.

- 1 FIRM as the earth thy Gospel stands,
My Lord, my hope, my trust;
If I am found in Jesus' hands,
My soul can ne'er be lost.
- 2 His honour is engaged to save
The meanest of his sheep,
All that his heavenly Father gave His hands securely keep.
- 3 Nor death nor hell shall e'er remove
His favourites from his breast;
In the dear bosom of his love
They must for ever rest.

Watts, 186; B. J.

JOHN X.

Christ the Shepherd.

I AM the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.

15 As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself; I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.

19 There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him?

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

22 And it was at Jerusalem the feast of the dedication, and it was winter.

23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.

24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.

26 But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:

28 And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.

29 My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

30 I and my Father are one.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN X.—Christ's knowledge of his people is most minute, perfect, loving, and appropriate. He knows his people as his; they know him as theirs. His love is of the most extraordinary description. It is unmerited, without limits, intense, immutable, and eternal. It is, besides, manifested by the most marvellous and peculiar acts. It shines in his incarnation, in his nativity, in his obedience, in his sufferings, in every drop of blood he shed, and in his death. He laid down his life for his sheep. Here, then, is love which has no parallel in the universe of God, and shall continue unparalleled for ever and ever. Enmity against Christ is the greatest sin, sinks the soul into the lowest depths of infamy, exposes to the vials of Divine wrath, and is the harbinger of perdition. They who are in a state of nature are in a state of spiritual insanity. One of the greatest displays of their insanity is this—they consider true religion, which is the greatest wisdom, to be the greatest folly. Under this delusion they live, and if mercy do not graciously prevent under this delusion they die. Let me carefully examine myself whether I am one of the sheep of Christ's flock. Do I know Christ the Shepherd? Do I love him? Do I follow him? Do I recognize his voice in the Gospel preached? If so, I am an heir of eternal life, none shall ever pluck me out of my Saviour's hand, and I shall be conducted at last to the celestial folds above.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Jesus, we adore thee as the Father's equal. Thou art equal in nature, in excellence, in prerogatives, in glory, and in blessedness. Thou hast said, I and my Father are one. We adore thee as the omniscient God. Thou knowest all the sheep of thy flock scattered over the face of the earth. Thou knowest all their names, all their circumstances, all their infirmities, and all their enemies. We rejoice in that Divine and infinite love thou hast manifested to thy flock. For them thou didst take upon thee their nature. Behold how thou hast loved them! For them thou didst willingly lay down thy precious life—a life more valuable than the lives of all the angels who worship before the heavenly throne. Behold how thou hast loved them! Behold, what manner of love is this!

Lord Jesus, take our dear children, and make them lambs of thy flock, and let them no longer be under the dominion of the god of this world, who is like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

Make all the members of our family members of the flock of Christ. May we know what it is to be led in the green pastures of gospel-ordinances, beside the quiet and peaceful waters of gospel-comfort. Convince us that, if we have a delight in frequenting the green pastures of thine ordinances, it is a pleasing evidence that we belong to thy flock. Let none of us conclude that we are savingly connected with Jesus the Divine Shepherd, unless we know and love and believe and obey the voice of Christ in his Word. If there are any of us who do not belong to thy flock, may we be introduced now, and live no longer without the loving care and the almighty protection of Jesus the Divine Shepherd.

We praise thee, O gracious Redeemer, that thou hast given the most marvellous display of thy love to thy flock. Thou hast said, and done what thou hast said: I lay down my life for the sheep. Truly, thou wast cut off out of the land of the living, and wast stricken for the transgression of thy people. Every day may we remember thy death, as the only foundation of our eternal hopes. May all of us, in thy due time, be enabled to remember the death of Jesus at the sacramental table. May we be taught to render a loving and believing obedience to our Saviour's last and dying command: Do this in remembrance of me.

Have mercy, gracious Shepherd, on the fearful and the feeble members of thy flock. Gather the lambs with thine arms, carry them in thy bosom, and gently lead those which are with young. Convince thy doubting people, that they are surrounded by the everlasting arms of redeeming love, and therefore that their unbelieving fears are without foundation. May these words afford them the most animating encouragement: I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

Have mercy on aged travellers, and enable them to sing with vigorous faith, Thy rod and staff, they comfort me; and we shall dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Forgive the sins and bless the engagements of the day. And may we lie down to rest, believing that we are under the care of the good Shepherd. All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our Surety, Saviour, and Lord. Amen.

The Good Shepherd.

John. X. 14.

LONDON, VIRTUE & CO

DEATH.

- Fourth, Chadwell, Grove House, London. C. M.*
- 1 DEATH, with his dread commission sealed,
Now hastens to his arms;
In awful state he takes the field,
And sounds his dire alarms.
  - 2 Attendant plagues around him stand,
And wait his dread command;
And pains and dying groans obey
The signal of his hand.
  - 3 Look up, ye heirs of endless joy,
Nor let your fears prevail;
Eternal life is your reward,
When life on earth shall fail.

LESCU.

NUMBERS XVI.

Atonement.

AND Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censur, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun.

47 And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense, and made an atonement for the people.

48 And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed.

49 Now they that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, besides them that died about the matter of Korah.

50 And Aaron returned unto Moses unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation; and the plague was stayed.

NUMBERS XVII.

Aaron's Rod budding.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers; of all their princes according to the house of their fathers, twelve rods: write thou every man's name upon his rod.

3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers.

4 And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testimony, where I will meet with you.

5 And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, whom I shall choose, shall blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby they murmur against you.

6 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel; and every one of their princes gave him a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their fathers' houses, even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods.

7 And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in the tabernacle of witness.

8 And it came to pass that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and, behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.

9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 And the LORD said unto Moses, Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token against the rebels; and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not.

11 And Moses did so: as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

12 And the children of Israel spake unto Moses, saying, Behold we die, we perish, we all perish.

13 Whosoever cometh any thing near unto the tabernacle of the LORD shall die: shall we be consumed with dying?

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XVI., XVII.—Nothing can preserve us from the merited wrath of an offended God but the atonement of Christ. Our Mediator saw our dreadful case, that we were exposed by sin to the burning fire of Divine wrath, and that we were absolutely helpless, and could do nothing for our deliverance. He came from heaven to earth for our relief: he came readily: he came on the wings of love: he came leaping upon the mountains and skipping over all the hills of the most formidable difficulty: he stood in the breach: he made atonement by his death, and thus preserved the objects of his love from the wrath of an offended God. In a special manner God showed that Aaron was his chosen servant, and at the last day God will wonderfully acknowledge his people before an assembled universe.

PRAYER.

BLESSED Lord God, we desire in the language of inspiration to supplicate the assistance of the Holy Spirit, while we approach the throne of grace: Awake, O north wind, and come, thou south; blow upon our garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. We adore thee, O Lord, as the fountain of all being, and as the source of all happiness. All earthly sources of enjoyment compared with thee, thou redeeming God, are cisterns, broken cisterns, which can hold no water. May we ever by faith draw nearer and nearer to thee through Christ; then shall we find the stream of enjoyment more delicious and pure. With thee alone is the fountain of life: in thy light may we see light. May the object of our hope be to dwell with thee for ever. O give us some foretaste of that unspeakable delight. As a family may we have good grounds to comfort ourselves with these words: We shall be for ever with the Lord.

We praise thee, O God of providence and grace, for continuing our lives during the past night, and that we are permitted to enjoy the comforts of domestic worship this morning, under our own vine and our own fig-tree, and none to make us afraid. May the reason thou art continuing with us, and the health thou art preserving, be devoted wholly and constantly to thy service and glory.

May the displays of thy vengeance, of which we have read in thy holy Word, make us afraid to sin against the righteous Jehovah. Suffer us not to live in a state of enmity against thee. May we be reconciled to God by the death of his son. We would look upon deliverance from the enmity of our hearts as the chief of all blessings. We look to the Holy Spirit for this heavenly and Divine grace. O shed abroad the Father's love, apply to our souls the efficacy of Christ's redeeming blood; may our guilt be for ever removed, and may we at last be brought home to the abodes of purity and bliss.

May we consider Aaron standing between the living and the dead as a lively type of Jesus our great high-priest, who stood between offended God and offending man; who made atonement by his suffering; and who thus stayed the plague of Jehovah's wrath, which otherwise would have swept the whole of Adam's race into the lowest hell. We rejoice, O Jesus, that the continued efficacy of thy atonement is like a budding rod, that its verdure shall never be destroyed, and that the glorious and delicious fruits of spiritual enjoyment shall be produced through an endless eternity.

May our aged friends resemble the budding rod of Aaron; may they bring forth fruit in old age; and when they die, may they be fully ripe, and thus prepared for the garner above.

And may our dear children and domestics bring forth, not the corrupted fruits of sin, but the precious fruits of righteousness.

Through Jesus, our Divine high-priest, we humbly ask the answer of our prayers. And unto the Father, Son, and Spirit be all the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

DESIRING TO LOVE CHRIST.

Samaritan. Stanley. Lebanon. Manning.

L. H.

- 1 COME, let me love! or is my mind
Hardened to stone, or froze to ice?
I see the blessed fair one bend,
And stoop to embrace me from the skies.
- 2 O! 'tis a thought would melt a rock,
And make a heart of iron move,
That those sweet lips, that heavenly look,
Should seek and wish a mortal love!
- 3 I was a traitor doomed to fire,
Bound to sustain eternal pains;
He flew on wings of strong desire,
Assumed my guilt, and took my chains!

WARTH.

JOHN X.

Opposition to Christ.

WHEN the Jews took up stones again to stone him.
32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?

33 The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.

34 Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods?

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken;

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.

38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him.

39 Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their hand,

40 And went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode.

41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracles: but all things that John spake of this man were true.

42 And many believed on him there.

JOHN XI.

Lazarus, Mary, and Martha.

NOW a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha.

2 (It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.)

3 Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.

4 When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was sick, he abode two days still in the same place where he was.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN X., XI.—How amazing the depravity, malevolence, and prejudice of the Jews, in showing such determined opposition to Jesus, the Son of God and the Saviour of men! They were unable to refute his reasoning, and could only reply to his arguments by casting stones at him. They rewarded his sayings of inimitable wisdom by blasphemy, and his works of benevolence and mercy by attempts to destroy his life. And is there no enmity in my heart against God's anointed Son? Let the dark deeds of the unbelieving Jews lead me to review my own heart, and see the corruptions which require to be destroyed, the vile passions which need to be subdued, and the vile pollutions which ought to be washed away.

Happy shall I be if I resort to Jesus in his courts, and believe on him there! Though Divine grace does not exempt the objects of Christ's love from afflictions here below, it secures and sanctifies all affliction. It is in the time of affliction Christ's sympathy, help, and fellowship are peculiarly enjoyed. He is the true friend and comforter of the sorrowful.

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, with gratitude and love, at the close of another day, to adore thee as the Father of lights.
Compared with the splendour of thine uncreated light, all the glory of the universe is darkness. Thy benevolence and mercy are as wonderful as thy majesty. Thou art the giver of every good and perfect gift; and, in thy gracious sovereignty, thou dost bestow thy gifts upon the most unworthy and guilty. To thee we look for all the blessings we need for our bodies, which shall soon return to the dust from whence they came:
but more especially we lift up our eyes to thee for those blessings which respect our souls, on which thou hast fixed the impress of immortality.

We wish with grateful hearts to magnify thy name, that we have been comforted this day with streams of mercy flowing from the fountain of thy goodness. May the sins of our thoughts, our words, and our actions be forgiven. By faith may we daily look to the righteousness of Christ alone as the foundation of our acceptance and pardon; and by faith may we daily look to the Holy Spirit, to wash away the filth which daily contaminates our minds and defiles our actions.

This night may we lie down upon our beds enriched with the enjoyment of God's smiles. May we retire to rest believing that God is ours and that we are his.

We thank thee, O God, for the everlasting Gospel. Prevent us from resembling the Jews, in being hardened under a preached Gospel. Under the droppings of the Word of life publicly dispensed, may our understandings be enlightened, our judgments convinced, our wills subdued, our hearts softened, and our affections purified. We would mourn over the opposition which now exists against the Gospel of Christ.
Convince those who are the professed enemies of Jesus, that their opposition is most unreasonable and most impious. Take away our enmity, almighty Saviour, and may we believe that thou art indeed the Son of God, that thou art in the Father, and that the Father is in thee.

We rejoice, dear Saviour, that though many in the days of thy humbled humanity would not believe thy report, yet at the same time many believed on thee, to the salvation of their souls. May all the members of our family, and all with whom we are united in the ties of church-fellowship, believe in thee.

Bless to us what we have now read of Mary's love. We cannot, like her, anoint thy head, O Jesus, with ointment; but, like her, may we love thee with an ardent and superlative affection. O give us that love to thee which will reconcile our minds to all the afflictive events of providence, and which will assuage our sufferings on the bed of sickness. Give us the pleasing evidence that we are beloved of thee; then on the bed of languishing we shall look on all our afflictions as blessings in disguise.

Teach our dear children to resemble Mary. May the fire of Divine love burn in their bosom; and may their youthful ardour be dignified by an exalted admiration of Christ.

Mercifully sanctify all our afflictions; and may we be enabled to lay up treasures of patience, experience, and hope, for the sake of Jesus, our Advocate and Saviour. Amen.

A SIGHT OF GOD.

Nauport. Admiration. Chard. Eaton.

L. P.

- 1 UP to the fields where angels lie,
And living waters gently roll,
Fain would my thoughts leap out and fly,
But sin hangs heavy on my soul.
- 2 Thy wondrous blood, dear dying Christ,
Can make this load of guilt remove;
And thou canst bear me where thou fliest,
On thy kind wings, celestial Dove!
- 3 O might I once mount up and see
The glories of the eternal skies,
What little things these worlds would be!
How despicable to my eyes!

Watts, 41, B. II.

NUMBERS XX.

Murmurings of Israel.

THEN came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh: and Miriam died there, and was buried there.

2 And there was no water for the congregation: and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died when our brethren died before the LORD!

4 And why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us unto this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of wines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they fell upon their faces: and the glory of the LORD appeared unto them.

7 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

8 Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

9 And Moses took the rod from before the LORD, as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

14 And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, Thus saith thy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travail that hath befallen us:

17 Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells: we will go by the king's high way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

21 Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel turned away from him.

22 And the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from Kadesh, and came unto Mount Hor.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XX.—What a blessed change is death to the believer! It is a removal from the wilderness to the paradise—from a scene of toil, temptation, and conflict, to a world of rest, purity, and peace! What a prominent place Miriam occupied in the history of the Old Testament church. A comparative child, we see her with her mother Jochebed, watching her infant brother Moses floating in his little ark upon the waters of the Nile; after the lapse of forty years, we behold her on the shores of the Red Sea, leading in loud and rapturous chorus the triumphant song, composed under the direction of the Holy Spirit, to commemorate the destruction of Pharaoh and his host; now, in the midst of the Arabian desert, we witness her removal from the vicissitudes of earth to the perfect and undisturbed blessedness of heaven. Are we drinking of the Rock Christ? Then we also shall obtain an entrance into the heavenly mansions.

PRAYER.

O LORD, thou art the hearer of prayer, and the only object of religious devotion. Thou art the almighty and most glorious Jehovah, whom we adore as the God of nature who created the vast universe, the God of providence presiding over all creatures and events, and the God of redemption who has provided salvation for our ruined race. As all creatures have received from thee their being, so on thee they constantly depend. With the deepest humility we would lay ourselves at thy feet, confessing our sinfulness, and therefore unworthiness of being admitted into thy presence. At the same time we acknowledge our constant dependence upon thee for all the temporal blessings necessary for the body, but above all for the continuance of all those spiritual blessings which concern the soul.

May the sins of Israel, their murmuring and rebellion, remind us of our transgressions. In our afflictions we have been very deficient in those graces of submission, patience, and dependence, so necessary in the day of suffering. We have not sufficiently seen the justice, the wisdom, and the goodness of God in the afflictions which have been dealt out to us by the hand of Providence. It is, therefore, our duty, with great humility, to confess that we are guilty creatures, and accordingly need thy pardoning mercy, which we earnestly implore; and that we are depraved and polluted sinners, and therefore need thy renewing and sanctifying grace, which we would humbly supplicate.

O Lord, give us correct views of this world, and of the present life. Suffer us not to seek from the world what it cannot afford, or to expect from it what it cannot bestow. May we ever look upon the wilderness through which the Israelites passed, as a true emblem of the present world and the present life. Truly, O Jesus, from thee alone flow those streams of blessings and of comfort which satisfy the soul and cheer the heart in the wilderness of human life. Ever may we remember and believe that thou art the great Rock of our salvation, which was smitten by the rod of Jehovah's wrath. As the Israelites must have perished in the desert, unless water had been brought from the smitten rock, may we see that, unless Jesus had been smitten by the rod of Divine justice, the whole human race must have come short of heaven. Jesus, thou strong deliverer, be our constant shield, to defend us from all our foes.

May we, and all our friends, and aged pilgrims bending down under the infirmities of years, drink abundantly of the waters of salvation which flow from the Rock Christ, and at last reach the heavenly Canaan, where there are rivers of pleasures for evermore.

As Moses was kept out of the earthly Canaan for sinful anger at Meribah, may our dear children be preserved from those sinful passions which shut the door of heaven.

We thank our God for the preserving and comforting mercy of the past night. Assist and bless us in all the business and duties of the day. Daily may we drink the waters which flow from Christ, the Divine fountain.

Mercifully accept our morning sacrifice, for Jesus our Redeemer's sake. Amen

DESIRING TO DEPART, AND TO BE WITH CHRIST.

New England. Deliverance. Bramoonta. Portugal. L. M.

- 1 WHILE on the verge of life I stand,
And view the scene on either hand
My spirit struggles with my clay,
And longs to wing its flight away.
- 2 Where Jesus dwells my soul would be,
And fain'ts my much-loved Lord to see;
Earth, twine no more about my heart!
For 'tis far better to depart.
- 3 Come, ye angelic envoys! come,
And lead the willing pilgrim home!
Ye know the way to Jesus' throne,
Source of my joys and of your own.
- 4 That blissful interview, how sweet!
To fall transported at his feet!
Raised in his arms, to view his face,
Through the full beamings of his grace.
- 5 As with a seraph's voice to sing!
To fly as on a cherub's wing!
Performing with unwearied hands
The present Saviour's high commands.

DODDRIAGE.

JOHN XI.

Death of Lazarus.

THEN after that saith he to his disciples, Let us go into Judæa again.

8 His disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late sought to stone thee; and goest thou thither again?

9 Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.

11 These things said he: and after that he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep.

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep he shall do well.

13 Howbeit Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe: nevertheless let us go unto him.

16 Then said Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellow-disciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.

17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off:

19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him; but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

24 Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

25 Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XI.—The journeys of our Lord were numerous, accompanied with much labour, toil, and danger; and benevolence and mercy were the irresistible motives by which he was constantly influenced. His life was a life of privation and suffering, and it was pre-eminently a life of compassion and love. How delightfully the death of believers is represented as a sleep, as falling asleep in Jesus! From this sleep they shall certainly awake in the morning of the resurrection: inconceivably great will be their joy, when they shall awake in the Divine likeness amidst the melodious songs of angels. Daily we should contemplate the event of death. The time is fast approaching when it will be said of each one of us, what was said of Lazarus, "He is dead!" or, "She is dead!" Then may our survivors have reason to say respecting us, "Their bodies have fallen asleep in Jesus, and their souls have awoken amid the glories of immortality." Now may we see by faith that death hath lost its sting.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art a great God and a great King, above all gods. The earth is thine and the fulness thereof: the world, and all that dwell therein. We are thine, for thou madest us, and it is to thee we constantly look for the continuance of life and all those enjoyments which sweeten our existence here below. At the close of another day we assemble in thy presence before we retire to rest, and we would humbly and gratefully acknowledge our dependence upon thee, and the deep and sacred obligations under which we are placed to surrender to thee our adoration, love, and praise.

We present to thee, our God, the tribute of our thanksgiving, for the safety and comforts of this day. Every blessing proclaims thy goodness. Thy former kindness encourages us to rely on thee for future mercies, and to commit ourselves, and all in whom we are interested, to thy future care.

We desire to rest secure this night under the shadow of thy wings. Suffer us not to be afraid for the terror by night, nor the arrow that flieth by day.

Let all the members of this family be members of the family of Christ, whose names are written in heaven. May the heads of the family derive every necessary grace from Christ the head of the Church; and may they exhibit that holy example which will be an illustration of the truth and power of thy holy Gospel.

We earnestly pray for the salvation of our dear children. O make them lambs in thy flock, and at death may they be conveyed to the green pastures of heaven.

We adore thee, O Lord, in all the afflictions which befall thy saints. We rejoice that though they are not exempted from affliction, yet their afflictions are no evidence of thy hatred, but rather of thy love. May thy suffering children derive unspeakable consolation from the words of eternal truth: Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. Give them and give us grace to look beyond the present vale of tears, to look beyond the present clouds of sorrow which darken our sky, and in the exercise of a lively faith to behold the transcendent glories of the celestial land.

Sanctify to us, O Lord, the death of pious friends. May we think of the spotless purity with which they are adorned, and be comforted. May we think that all their sorrows are for ever terminated, and that they are now inheriting the sweet delights of a paradise from which sin is for ever excluded, and may we be comforted.

When we think of the grave in which the ashes of our departed relatives are fast asleep, may we remember that Jesus is the resurrection and the life. When we think of the grave in which our own bodies shall be shut up in darkness, may we remember that Jesus is the resurrection and the life. O may we believe in thee, immortal and Divine Saviour: then shall we live for ever in the heavenly regions, and never die.

Hear our prayers, and save our souls, for the sake of Jesus: to whom, with the Father and Holy Spirit, we ascribe the kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever. Amen.

JESUS ALL-SUFFICIENT.

Waltham Abbey. Swanwick. Sprague. Wontags. C. N.

- 1 HIS master taken from his head,
Elisha saw him go;
And in desponding accents said,
Ah, what must Israel do!
- 2 But he forgot the Lord who lifts
The beggar to a throne;
Nor knew, that all Elijah's gifts
Were soon to be his own.
- 3 What! when a Paul has run his course,
Or when Apollos dies,
Is Israel left without resource,
And have we no supplies?
- 4 Yes, while the dear Redeemer lives,
We have a boundless store,
And shall be fed with what he gives,
Who lives for evermore.

COLLYER, 288.

NUMBERS XX.

Death of Aaron.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying, 24 Aaron shall be gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ye rebelled against my word at the water of Meribah.

25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor:

26 And strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the Lord commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

NUMBERS XXI.

Brass Serpent.

AND when king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south, heard tell that Israel came by the way of the spies; then he fought against Israel, and took some of them prisoners.

2 And Israel vowed a vow unto the Lord, and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then I will utterly destroy their cities.

3 And the Lord hearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities; and he called the name of the place Hormah.

4 And they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red Sea, to compass the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much discouraged because of the way.

5 And the people spake against God, and against Moses, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and our soul loatheth this light bread.

6 And the Lord sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.

7 Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the Lord, and against thee; pray unto the Lord, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.

8 And the Lord said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole; and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XX., XXI.—Like Moses may we enjoy close and intimate fellowship with God. This fellowship brings down to earth the joys of heaven; this fellowship mitigates every suffering and animates every grace; it reconciles us to the death of pious relatives, and fills us with earnest desires to follow them to their heavenly home. Aaron's death was accompanied with expressions of the Divine displeasure; but this displeasure did not prevent his abundant entrance into the celestial city. Jesus our Surety died under a dark cloud of Divine ire, that all his followers might die in the enjoyment of the Divine favour and smiles. Aaron, immediately before his death, laid down his priestly robes; Jesus, at his death, was stripped of his raiment, that his people might be for ever arrayed in the costly robe of his righteousness. What a venomous serpent is sin! it has stung every individual of Adam's race. Glory to God, Jesus is held up to heal the deadly wound!

PRAYER.

BLESSED Saviour, we adore thee in common with the Father and the Holy Ghost, as the Creator and Lord of all. Glorious Jehovah, existing in all the sublime and incomprehensible mysteries of the sacred Trinity, we adore thee as the wise and holy and gracious Governor of the universe. All thy rational creatures are bound both by duty and interest to give to thee worship, love, and obedience. We acknowledge that, as we were made by thee, we were made for thee. Teach us to employ our eyes in glorifying thee, by beholding the display of thy power in thy works, and the manifestation of thy grace in thy word. May our hands perform works of piety and benevolence; may our ears hear the voice of mercy and salvation; may our mouths proclaim thy praise; and thus may we glorify thee with our bodies, which are thine. May our understandings be enlightened with heavenly light, our wills be submissive and obedient to the commandments of God, and our affections warmed with Divine love; then shall our souls be the temples of the Holy Ghost. May it be said to us, what was said to the converted Corinthians: Ye are washed, ye are sanctified, ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of your God.

We thank thee, heavenly Father, that as a kind parent thou hast watched over us during the past night; when we were fast asleep and unconscious of our existence, the eye of thy guarding providence neither slumbered nor slept.

May thy gracious providence defend us and provide for us, this day, every blessing necessary for the body that shall die, and for the soul that shall live for ever. Thou hast said that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Lord, give us this fear; then we shall be in the fear of the Lord all the day long.

May the history of Aaron's life, and the particulars of his death, produce on our minds solemnizing effects. Thou, O King of Zion, didst remarkably raise up and prepare thy servant to fill and exercise the loftiest and the most sacred office in the Jewish church. We praise thee that in him thy saints in ancient times saw a type of our Divine Jesus in his priestly office, who presented a sacrifice of himself, to make atonement for a ruined world; and who is now within the veil, in the holy of holies, making intercession for all his people.

Sanctify the death of pious, useful ministers. May their removal be blessed to the people over whom they laboured in the Lord.

Long spare the life of thy servant, placed over us as the ambassador of Jesus Christ. May we and our dear children receive by faith the message he proclaims and at the last day may he have reason to say respecting us and a great multitude, Behold, I and the children whom God has given me!

Hear these our feeble prayers, and graciously forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. And to the Father, Son, and Spirit be ascribed glory, honour, and praise, world without end. Amen.

CHRIST'S COMPASSION.

Mrs. M. Campbell. Babylon's Streams. Utica, N. Y.

- 1 SO fair a face bedewed with tears!
What beauty e'en in grief appears!
He wept, he bled, he died for you;
What more, ye saints, could Jesus do?
- 2 Enthroned above, with equal glow,
His warm affections downward flow;
In our distress he bears a part,
And feels a sympathetic smart.
- 3 Still his compassions are the same,
He knows the frailty of our frame;
Our heaviest burden he sustains,
Shares in our sorrows and our pains.

DEUXIEME.

JOHN XI.

Resurrection of Lazarus.

AND whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?

27 She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.

28 And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there.

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled, 34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 Jesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him!

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, by this time he changeth: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

42 And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.

46 But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XI.—None can calculate the present advantages and the future consequences of faith. Have we by faith believed in Jesus as our Surety? If so, we have obtained security against the miseries of hell; we have obtained a title to the blessedness of heaven. Has the Master called us by his grace? Have we heard the loving and effectual voice of our beloved? Then, at the close of this mortal life, we shall hear the sweet inviting voice of Jesus saying to us, "Come up hither, and I will show you things to come!" How solemn and affecting the humanity of Christ weeping at the grave of Lazarus, even though he knew that in a few moments he would restore his putrefying corpse to life! Yet when he looked upon the lifeless body of his friend in the grave, his humanity was overwhelmed when he beheld the frightful ravages of death which it had brought upon our fallen race. May it be our privilege to believe in Jesus as the resurrection and the life!

PRAYER.

OUR Father and our God, who dwellest between the cherubim, and art ever receiving the homage and adorations of holy angels, we acknowledge thee as the inexhaustible and eternal fountain of all life, both natural and spiritual. O the evening of another day, we assemble before thee as a family, in the name of Jesus, to acknowledge thee in all thy glory and uncreated excellence. We would approach thee in the language of thankfulness. We thank thee for giving us being, for giving us the life of rational beings, and for placing within our reach the most varied sources of personal, social and spiritual enjoyment. Glory to thy name, that in the holy Scriptures are opened up to our view sources of enjoyment and blessedness pure as thy nature, and lasting as the throne of God.

We thank thee, most blessed Saviour, for the animation we have now read of thy grace, thy pity, and thy power. With Mary, may each one of us be enabled to say, in the language of adoring mercy, We believe thou art the Christ the Son of God, which should come into the world. As Martha and her sister mourned over the natural death of their brother Lazarus, we would mourn over the spiritual death of our brethren and sisters after the flesh who may now be laid in the dark grave of spiritual corruption and death. Visit them, O Jesus; then shall they rise from the death of sin, and then shall they be alive unto God by thee, the resurrection and the life.

We adore and praise thee, O Jesus, for the pity and compassion thou didst so abundantly and frequently display in the days of thy humbled humanity. Truly thou wast afflicted in all our afflictions. May we ever remember, with emotions of wonder, love, and praise, the tenderness of thy compassion at the grave of Lazarus. We would now call to our believing remembrance the day when, standing beside the tomb of thy follower and friend, it was said of thee, JESUS WEPT! In imitation of thy blessed example, may we be suitably impressed by the death of our friends. On the one hand may we be preserved from sinful indifference, and on the other from sinful and excessive grief. Lord Jesus, may we admire thy love as well as thy pity. When we think of thy suretyship engagements from eternal ages, of the visit thou didst pay to our world clothed with human flesh, and of thy sufferings and death, O what reason have we to take these words into our lips, Behold how he loved us!

If our beloved children or domestics are in a state of spiritual death, O say to them, in words of thine almighty grace, what thou didst say at the grave of Lazarus: Come forth.

Have mercy on such of our relatives and friends as are bound with the grave-clothes of sin and guilt, and say to them by the power of thy Divine spirit, Loose them, and let them go.

We call upon our souls to bless thee for the mercies of the day; and we humbly implore thy presence and care this night. Pardon all our sins, and hear our humble prayers, for Jesus sake, our Surety and Lord. Amen.

JESUS LIFTED UP.

Bible Rev. Carr's Lane. Oxford. Michael's. c. x.

- 1 SO did the Hebrew prophet raise
The brazen serpent high,
The wounded felt immediate ease,
The camp forbore to die.
- 2 'Look upward in the dying hour,
And live,' the prophet cries;
But Christ performs a nobler cure,
When Faith lifts up her eyes.
- 3 High on the cross the Saviour hung,
High in the heavens he reigns:
Here sinners by the old serpent stung
Look, and forget their pains.

WATTS, 112, B. I.

NUMBERS XXI.

Israel's Victories.

AND Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.

10 And the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in Oboth.

11 And they journeyed from Oboth, and pitched at Ijeabarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sunrising.

12 From thence they removed, and pitched in the valley of Zared:

13 From thence they removed, and pitched on the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

14 Wherefore it is said in the book of the wars of the Lord, What he did in the Red Sea, and in the brooks of Arnon, 15 And at the stream of the brooks that goeth down to the dwelling of Ar, and lieth upon the border of Moab.

16 And from thence they went to Beer: that is the well whereof the Lord spake unto Moses, Gather the people together, and I will give them water.

21 And Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying,

22 Let me pass through thy land: we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards; we will not drink of the waters of the well: but we will go along by the king's high way, until we be past thy borders.

23 And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border; but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness: and he came to Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

24 And Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon: for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.

25 And Israel took all these cities: and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all the villages thereof.

26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS, XXI.—What a miracle of mercy, the healing of the wounded Israelites by looking on the brazen serpent! Thus God, in his wisdom and sovereignty, took occasion from Israel's sin to furnish the most marvellous and abundant manifestation of his compassion and power. Let us rejoice, that as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so Jesus the Son of man has been lifted up on the cross, and is now lifted up in the preaching of the Gospel, that whosoever looketh upon him, and believeth in him, shall most assuredly be healed of all their spiritual maladies, and have everlasting life. May we look and live! The journeyings of Israel in the wilderness may justly be considered figurative of the pilgrimage of believers through the wilderness of this world, in their progress to the heavenly Canaan. Here they have no continuing city nor place of abode; but they are encouraged with the animating and assured hopes of a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God. Here they are exposed to enemies numerous, fierce, and malicious; but in heaven they shall be infinitely beyond the reach of every foe, and enjoy the delights of undisturbed felicity for ever and ever. May we have the blessed prospect of being the inhabitants of that heaven where there is fulness of joy, and where there are rivers of pleasure for evermore.

PRAYER.

MERCIFUL Father, whom we approach in the name of Christ, thou art the eternal and unchangeable Jehovah. The heavens with all their shining hosts, and the earth with all its varied inhabitants, are the workmanship of thine hands. Angels and men are thy subjects, and are accountable to thee, the great Lawgiver of the universe.

We desire this morning, with the deepest humility of heart, to fall down by thy throne of grace; and as the chief of sinners to implore redemption and forgiveness through our Saviour's blood. O that our hearts were sufficiently impressed with a believing and adoring sense of thine unutterable glory and thy condescending goodness.

What are we, O Lord, and what is our father's house, that we are allowed to open our mouth in thy presence, and to enter into converse with God?

We adore thy sovereign kindness in preserving us through the past night, while others, no more guilty than we, are numbered with the dead, and ushered unprepared into the world of spirits.

As in thy mercy alone we are permitted to enter on another day, may we have thy blessed guidance and help in all its duties. Never allow us to permit our temporal calling to lay aside spiritual duties. God forbid that we should seek the interest of the dying body, at the expense of the salvation of the never-dying soul. Every day may we make some progress in rising above the objects of time; every day may we make some progress in our journey to the celestial world.

We confess, O Lord, that our own lusts and corruptions, more dreadful than the fiery serpents of which we have now been reading, have inflicted wounds upon our souls the most grievous and dangerous. We acknowledge that we, and the whole human race, have been stung by the devil, the world, and the flesh. So dreadful are the wounds inflicted, that we are all by nature dead in trespasses and sins. We rejoice, O Jesus, that there is a method found out by which the wound of sin may be cured. We praise thee that we see in the brazen serpent raised up by Moses an emblem of thee, O Saviour, first raised up on the cross, and now lifted up in the preaching of the everlasting Gospel. Glory to God in the highest, that as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so the Son of man has been lifted up. Give us grace, Holy Spirit, by faith to look to Jesus; then shall we be saved from all our sins.

Convince our dear children and servants that, by nature and practice, they are spiritually diseased: yea, that sin has thrust into their souls its envenomed sting. May they feel the wound of sin; may they look to Christ with longing eyes, and live for ever.

Have mercy on all our graceless relatives who are now perishing under the disease of sin, and know it not. O arouse and awake them to a sense of their danger, and may they look to Jesus, and have eternal life.

Hear us, O Lord, for the sake of Jesus, the Lamb that was slain. Amen, and Amen.

JESUS' LOVE.

Judgment. New Calvary. Helmsley. Mariner's. L. N.

- 1 HARK, my soul! it is the Lord;
'Tis thy Saviour, hear his word;
Jesus speaks, and speaks to thee;
Say, poor sinner, lov'st thou me?
- 2 I delivered thee when bound,
And, when bleeding, healed thy wound;
Sought thee wandering, set thee right,
Turned thy darkness into light.
- 3 Can a woman's tender care
Cease towards the child she bare?
Yes, she may forgetful be,
Yet will I remember thee.

COLLYER, 273.

JOHN XI.

Pharisees consulting to slay Jesus.

THEN gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

50 Nor consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.

51 And this spake he not of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation;

52 And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

55 And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

JOHN XII.

Mary anointing Jesus' Feet.

THEN Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.

7 Then said Jesus, let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN, XI., XII.—How dreadful was the guilt of the Pharisees; though they believed in the miracles of Christ, and never even pretended to deny them, every miracle rendered their hearts more hardened and their enmity more malignant! Their hearts were as deluded as they were hardened. How could they ever imagine they were sufficient to suppress and annihilate a religion which had omnipotence as its safeguard, and the most stupendous miracles as the proof of its divinity? Truly, he that sitteth in the heavens laughed at them, and held them in derision! Little was the envious Caiaphas aware, that while he was making a statement under the influence of the foulest malignity that ever actuated the heart of man, he was proclaiming a glorious truth—That Jesus must die to make atonement for the sins of man. Greatly honoured were Lazarus and his sisters, in the opportunities they enjoyed and embraced in showing kindness to Jesus. Like them may we love Jesus above all in earth and all in heaven!

PRAYER.

MOST merciful and glorious Jehovah, the Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, when we think of our original impurity, and our actual depravity, when we think of our ignorance and folly, what reason have we to blush and tremble in thy majestic presence! But what reason have we to sing for joy, that thy mercy is as infinite as thy majesty. Glory to thy great name, that thou, who art the high and lofty One who inhabiteth eternity, hast said, I dwell in the high and holy place: with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to raise the hearts of the contrite ones. May each one of us now in thy presence bear the character of those whom God loves, and with whom God dwells. May our abode, and the abodes of all our relatives and friends, be honoured with the presence and the residence of Jesus.

Blessed be thy name, O Lord, that through Jesus the Son of thy love thou condescendest to visit sinful men; and that through the same name sinful mortals are permitted to approach thy throne and enjoy fellowship with thyself. To thee, O Lord, we come; invited by thy mercy we come; relying on the righteousness and intercession of thy dear, thine only Son, we come; and with the humble publican would say, Lord, be merciful to us sinners.

What reason have we to thank thee, the bountiful giver of all good, that we are mercifully spared to another day, and allowed to enjoy another invaluable opportunity of approaching the throne of grace, to supplicate family mercies, and to pray for the pardon of family sins. At the close of another day, and entering on another night, we acknowledge that we are vile, unworthy, helpless, and guilty. We humbly thank thee for thy continued and unmerited kindness. O may the goodness of thee, our God, lead us to repentance. May we be encompassed this night by the shield of thy favour.

We pray that the Spirit may apply to our hearts the portion of thy Word now read. There we see, O Jesus, thou didst perform many miracles on the bodies of men. We earnestly pray that thou wouldst perform many miracles upon the souls of men.

We lay our children at thy feet, most merciful Saviour. O perform miracles of grace on their youthful minds, and may they blossom and bud in all the beauties of holiness and love.

What the chief priests feared in the days of our Saviour's suffering, we would supplicate: Let all men believe on Christ. May all our relatives believe on Christ. May it be said of us, of all the families with which we are connected, and the congregation of which we form a part: Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should show forth the praises of him that called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. Have mercy on our aged friends. Like aged Abraham, may they be strong in the faith; and when their eyes become dim with years, may their graces shine like the sun in his strength.

O Lord, hear our prayers and forgive our sins, for Jesus our Mediator's sake. Amen.

WHAT GOD HATH SPOKEN.

Hampton Street. Parting. Wenlock. Leves. P. M.

- 1 HEAR what God the Lord hath spoken :
O my people, faint and few ;
Comfortless, afflicted, broken,
Fair abodes I build for you ;
- 2 Thorns of heart-felt tribulation
Shall no more perplex your ways ;
You shall name your walls Salvation,
And your gates shall all be Praise.
- 3 There, like streams that feed the garden,
Pleasures without end shall flow ;
For the Lord, your faith rewarding,
All his bounty shall bestow.

COLLIER, 270.

NUMBERS XXII.

Balak and Balaam.

AND the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab on this side Jordan by Jericho.

2 And Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

3 And Moab was sore afraid of the people, because they were many : and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

4 And Moab said unto the elders of Midian, Now shall this company lick up all that are round about us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. And Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

5 He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor to Pethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt : behold, they cover the face of the earth, and they abide over against me :

6 Come now therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people ; for they are too mighty for me : peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land : for I wot that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed.

9 And God came unto Balaam, and said, What men are these with thee ?

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying,

11 Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth : come now, curse me them ; peradventure I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

12 And God said unto Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them ; thou shalt not curse the people : for they are blessed.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the princes of Balak, Get you into your land : for the Lord refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 And Balak sent yet again princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me :

17 For I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me : come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

18 And Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the Lord my God, to do less or more.

REMARKS UPON NUMBERS XXII.—Israel were the objects of the mortal hatred and jealousy of the Moabites ; and in all ages this hatred and jealousy have been manifested by the wicked against the righteous. "They who were born after the flesh have persecuted those who are born after the Spirit." Balaam was alarmed when he considered the great numbers of the people of God. With what dismay shall Satan be filled when he shall cast his eyes over the face of the whole earth, and see all the kingdoms of this world wrested from his tyrannical dominion and "become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, and that he shall reign for ever and ever!" What delusion and infatuation held the mind of Moab's king, when he imagined, and even believed, that a sorcerer and impostor had power to bless or to curse! Blessings and curses are the servants of the King of kings. It is he alone who can save and destroy. Are we interested in his mercy? Have we fled to the bosom of his love? Then we are safe. We need not be afraid of the purposes or efforts of wicked men. "The God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah."

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the universal King. There is no spot to which thy dominion does not extend, and there is no creature amid the vast range of being which is not subject to thy control. Thou art worthy of the homage and praises of all thy creatures.

While we were formed to praise thee, while we received understanding that we might know thee, and affections that we might love thee, what reason have we to mourn and weep that we have done so little to honour thy name and glorify thy Son! Invaluable opportunities we have neglected, abused, and lost. We cannot in language express our sinfulness, and we cannot conceive our guilt. We are a wonder to ourselves, we are a wonder to angels, that long ere now we have not been made the monuments of thy righteous indignation. If there are any among us hardened in their sins, and far from God, O convince them that though they have not been visited with the destroying manifestations of thy justice, still thy justice is not asleep. Convince them, that if they die as they now live, thy justice will appear before their eyes like flames of devouring fire, and they shall be plunged into the deeps of misery, from which there shall be no escape! May each one of us be introduced into thy Church invisible, may we become members of the family of Christ, may we be taught by the Spirit to receive Jesus in all his loveliness and in all his grace; then shall we escape the awful doom which is prepared for the finally impenitent.

At the close of another night, and at the commencement of another day, we desire, in the name of Christ, to acknowledge and pray: Lord, we are vile, we are altogether an unclean thing. What are we, that we should live to see another day? O may we live to thee! And may we find it unutterable bliss to live in the hopes of living for ever with thyself.

O may our beloved children be most deeply impressed with the necessity of conversion, and also of the unspeakable advantages of early religion. Suffer them not to delay till a distant period that which is so desirable, so necessary now.

May we and all our relatives and domestics belong to the true Israel of God, the spiritual children of Abraham. We bless thee that, in the days of Balaam, thy promise to thy faithful servant was so extensively fulfilled, that his descendants seemed to cover the earth, to the astonishment and dismay of all the enemies of the Church. May those days of millennial glory soon arrive, when thy children shall literally cover the face of the whole earth, and when the nations of the world shall be righteous nations who keep the truth.

What reason have we to rejoice, O Lord, that no plan to shake the security of thy Church has ever succeeded; and that all attempts to curse thy people have failed. O may we, and all our relatives, and the congregation of which we form a part, be among the number of thy blessed people. As an evidence of our interest in thy favour, may we love thy Word, and may we never be left to go beyond it. May thy Gospel ever be the rule of our faith, and thy law the rule of our practice.

Graciously hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

EIGHTEENTH WEEK.—SATURDAY EVENING.

CONVERSION.

- Alpha. Staines. Bredby. Portugal New. L. E.*
- 1 LORD, 'twas a time of wondrous love,
When thou didst first draw near my soul,
And by the Spirit from above,
My raging passions didst control.
- 2 Guilty and self-condemned I stood,
Nor dreamt of life and bliss so near;
But he my evil heart renewed,
And all his graces planted there.
- 3 Ho will complete the work begun,
By leading me in all his ways;
To God the Father, God the Son,
And God the Spirit, equal praise. A. S. G. N.

JOHN XII.

Jesus in Jerusalem.

MUCH people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

17 The people therefore that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.

20 And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast.

21 The same came therefore to Philip, which was of Bethsaida, of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

23 And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

25 He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

26 If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.

27 Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

29 The people therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered: others said, An angel spake to him.

30 Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.

31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.

32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.

33 This he said, signifying what death he should die.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XII.—Under the impulse of natural curiosity the Jews wished to see the wonder-working Jesus, and Lazarus, whom he miraculously raised from the dead. May our hearts be animated with genuine love to Jesus in his person and office, then shall we earnestly desire his fellowship on earth, and long to behold his face in righteousness in heaven. The chief priests, in consulting together to put Lazarus to death, gave an affecting illustration of the truth of our Saviour's words, and our Saviour's warning, as to the world's hatred of his people and himself: "They hated me without a cause, and they hated you because they hated me." We are blessed indeed, if we can say with the heart, and with unfeigned affection, "We would see Jesus." When we read the Word of God, and open the sacred treasury—when we enter into the sanctuary to listen to the Word of life—when we sit down at the sacramental table, may the language of our hearts be, "We would see Jesus."

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, the hearer of the praises of angels, and the answerer of the prayers of thy saints, we approach thy throne of grace through the merit of Jesus, our Advocate and Saviour. We adore thee, O Lord, in the inconceivable greatness of thy nature, character, perfections, and government. Who can speak thy wondrous deeds? Thy greatness infinitely exceeds all our thoughts! thy ways are vast and unsearchable!

We desire, O Lord, to be astonished at thy condescension, in permitting beings so sinful and insignificant as we are to enjoy fellowship with thyself, and supplicate the blessings of thy grace.

As a family, we present the humble tribute of our thankfulness for the mercies of the past day and the past week. Thy goodness and thy mercy have attended us, and filled the cup of our lot with blessings. We thank our God and Father for that degree of bodily health and mental vigour we have enjoyed in attending to the temporal business and the spiritual engagements of the week. We thank thee for the success which may have attended our secular pursuits, and the blessings which may have rested on our religious duties.

We implore the gracious protection of a special providence this night, for ourselves, and for all our relatives and friends. May we never lie down to sleep without performing an immediate act of dependence on Jesus, as the only foundation of our hopes of pardon, salvation, and heaven.

Lord, have mercy on the afflicted, whose bed this night shall prove a bed of languishing. May their bed of suffering lead their thoughts to the glorious rest and blessedness of heaven, and to that Divine Redeemer who is the only way to those joyful mansions.

We desire to rejoice in the prospect of the sacred Sabbath, and its Divine and exalted exercises. May many be delivered from their natural enmity against Christ and his Gospel and his kingdom. While the enmities of Jesus in the days of his flesh feared the world were gone after him, we would earnestly pray that the world may soon go after Christ, and forsake all their idols and lusts, and follow him alone as their Saviour and their God.

May our beloved children and servants be among the followers of the meek and lowly Jesus. May each one of them say with the heart, We will follow Jesus the Lamb of God, wherever he goes, and wherever he leads.

Holy Spirit, on the approaching day may many be impressed with an earnest desire to see Jesus. O may multitudes breathe the spirit of the devout Greeks who came up to Jerusalem. Like them, may they, and may we, say with holy earnestness, We would see Jesus!

On thy day may Christ be faithfully and clearly lifted up in a preached Gospel. Many hast thou drawn to thyself, and on thy day may many more be drawn by thy resistless grace, and the prince of this world be cast out. Mercifully hear our prayers, and forgive our sins, for our Redeemer's sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us and all the people of God, for ever and ever. Amen.

CHRIST'S GLORY.

Stoneman New. Brook Street. Jersey. Hephzibah. c. m.

- 1 I'LL speak the honours of my King,
His form divinely fair;
None of the sons of mortal race
May with the Lord compare.
- 2 Sweet is thy speech, and heavenly grace
Upon thy lips is shed;
Thy God, with blessings infinite,
Hath crowned thy sacred head.
- 3 Gird on thy sword, victorious Prince,
Ride with majestic sway;
Thy terror shall strike through thy foes,
And make the world obey. Watts, P's. 45.

PSALM XLV.

The Majesty and Grace of Christ.

MY heart is inditing a good matter: I speak of the things which I have made touching the king: my tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

2 Thou art fairer than the children of men: grace is poured into thy lips: therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

3 Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with thy glory and thy majesty.

4 And in thy majesty ride prosperously because of truth and meekness and righteousness; and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things.

5 Thine arrows are sharp in the heart of the king's enemies; whereby the people fall under thee.

6 Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre.

7 Thou lovest righteousness, and hastest wickedness: therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

8 All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad.

9 Kings' daughters were among thy honourable women: upon thy right hand did stand the queen in gold of Ophir.

10 Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear; forget also thine own people, and thy father's house;

11 So shall the king greatly desire thy beauty: for he is thy Lord; and worship thou him.

12 And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift; even the rich among the people shall entreat thy favour.

13 The king's daughter is all glorious within; her clothing is of wrought gold.

14 She shall be brought unto the king in raiment of needlework: the virgins her companions that follow her shall be brought unto thee.

15 With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought: they shall enter into the king's palace.

16 Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth.

17 I will make thy name to be remembered in all generations: therefore shall the people praise thee for ever and ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLV.—This Psalm furnishes an animating display of Christ's love to the Church, and of the love of the Church to Christ. Let it be the earnest desire of our hearts that we may be the objects of Jesus' love; and we have reason to believe that this inestimable privilege is ours, if Jesus is the object of our superlative affection. Boundless are Christ's excellences. So transcendent are the graces of Christ's humanity that, compared with their beauty, all created loveliness is only deformity and obscurity. The robe of righteousness and the graces of the Spirit constitute the royal raiment, and the nuptial garments of the Church, which is by way of eminence the bride, the Lamb's wife. She is wealthy by his riches, she is comely with his comeliness, she is glorious with his glory, she is happy with his blessedness. Let it be our ambition to form a part of Christ's body mystical, to proclaim while we live Christ's fame, which shall endure for ever, and to enjoy his fellowship through endless day.

PRAYER.

ALMIGHTY and eternal Lord God, we appear before thy gracious throne, on the morning of thy blessed and hal- lowed day, and in the name of Jesus would present our united and fervent supplications. Immanuel, God with us, we adore thee. Thou art fairer than the children of men, and grace is poured into thy lips. O captivate many souls this day by the manifestation of thy loveliness and glory and grace, in the preaching of the Word of life. Let great accessions be made to thy Church and kingdom. O appear as a gracious and a mighty conqueror, and let many who are now living in enmity and rebellion, before this Sabbath comes to a close, bow before thy sceptre, and acknowledge thee Lord of all. Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with all thy glory and thy majesty. And in the majesty of thy gracious power, ride prosperously, because of truth and meekness and righteousness. Let the prince of this world be cast out of the hearts of men; and before the services of the day shall come to a close, may there be joy in heaven over the repentance and conversion of many sinners. May we as a family be among the number of thy loving subjects, and not one of us live and die fighting under the banner of the enemy of souls.

We rejoice, O Jesus, in the throne thou dost fill. Thy throne is not like the thrones of dying monarchs. Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever. The sceptres of earthly kings are often sceptres of injustice, cruelty, and blood; but the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre. O blessed and exalted Saviour, sway the gospel-sceptre of thy grace and love over the whole earth. Wherever the sun shines, there may thy sceptre be acknowledged, and wherever the habitations of men are found, there may the blessings of thy mediatorial government be abundantly enjoyed.

Lord, have mercy on our rulers; may they ever appear the loyal subjects of the King of kings, and ever be adorned by truth, meekness, and righteousness. Have mercy on all thy ministering servants, of every name and of every denomina- tion, and may they esteem it their unspeakable honour and their greatest delight to extol the excellence of Jesus, and proclaim the riches of his grace. Fill the minds of all thy servants with the Holy Ghost; then shall they be successful instruments in thy hand, in rescuing many captives from Satan's slavery, and in bringing many sons into glory.

Smile on all our universities and schools. May the in- structors and the instructed be taught of God. There may the philosophy of men never be preferred before the Gospel of Christ. May the youth of our land greatly desire the beauty of Christ, and may their minds be captivated with his Divine and mediatorial excellence.

Have mercy on our dear children, and fulfil in them that promise, Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth.

Show compassion to aged pilgrims, and comfort them with the delightful prospect of entering into the celestial palace above, into which they shall be brought with gladness and rejoicing.

Extend to the afflicted the joys of religion, and in their retirement may they drink of the river of salvation, which makes glad the city of God.

Eminently assist our beloved minister this day. Hear our prayer, and forgive our sins, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

GOD A REFUGE.

Duke Street, Warrington. Antigua. Redemption. L. M.

- 1 GOD is the refuge of his saints,
When storms of shroud distress invade
Ere we can offer our complaints;
Behold him present with his aid.
- 2 Let mountains from their seats be hurled
Down to the deep; and buried there;
Convulsions shake the solid world,
Our faith shall never yield to fear.
- 3 Loud may the troubled ocean roar,
In sacred peace our souls abide,
While every nation, every shore,
Trembles, and greets the swelling tide.

WARRE, Ps. 45, p. 1.

PSALM XLVI.

The Confidence of the Saints.

- GOD is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.
- 2 Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;
  - 3 Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.
  - 4 There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most high.
  - 5 God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early.
  - 6 The heathen raged; the kingdoms were moved: he uttered his voice, the earth melted.
  - 7 The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.
  - 8 Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the earth.
  - 9 He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.
  - 10 Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth.
  - 11 The Lord of hosts is with us: the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

PSALM XLVII.

God's Sovereignty.

- O CLAP your hands, all ye people; shout unto God with the voice of triumph.
- 2 For the Lord most high is terrible; he is a great King over all the earth.
  - 3 He shall subdue the people under us, and the nations under our feet.
  - 4 He shall choose our inheritance for us, the excellency of Jacob whom he loved. Selah.
  - 5 God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a trumpet.
  - 6 Sing praises to God, sing praises: sing praises unto our King, sing praises.
  - 7 For God is the King of all the earth: sing ye praises with understanding.
  - 8 God reigneth over the heathen: God sitteth upon the throne of his holiness.
  - 9 The princes of the people are gathered together, even the people of the God of Abraham: for the shields of the earth belong unto God: he is greatly exalted.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLVI., XLVII.—Christ is ALL to his people: in weakness he is their strength, in disease their health, in perplexity their guide, in affliction their stay, in sorrow their consolation, and in danger their refuge. With what confidence faith in Christ inspires the soul, giving the assurance that no enemies, however powerful, and no storms of tribulation, however tempestuous, shall be able to remove them from Christ, their Divine refuge and impregnable fortress. There is no refuge but in Christ. None but he can defend from the wrath of God. None but he can defend from the fiery darts of the wicked one. None but he can convey the soul in safety across the Jordan of death, and introduce it in triumph into the joys of heaven. "Jesus, be thou our refuge; other refuge we would have none." A believing view of an interest in the Divine perfections, glorified in the person and atonement of Christ, never fails to animate the soul with joy, Divine in its origin and heavenly in its effects. Let us rejoice Jesus reigns: he reigns in heaven and on earth, and he shall reign for ever. Are we his loving subjects, and are we enjoying the blessings of his government?

PRAYER.

MOST merciful Father, after the observance of the public ordinances of thy Sabbath and of thy sanctuary, we desire with reverence and joy to engage in the more retired exercise of domestic worship. After approaching thy presence as a congregation, we now draw near as a family, in the name of him in whom all the families of the earth shall be blessed.

O thou God of salvation, we adore thee as the Lord of hosts. Thou art the refuge and the strength of thy people: O be our refuge and our strength; and when we are surrounded by the dark shades of the night of affliction be unto us, and all the families with which we are connected, a very present help in the day of trouble. Thou art God, and beside thee there is none else. As a family may we be still, and experimentally and believingly know that thou art God. Thou art infinitely exalted in thyself; thou art exalted in the estimation of angels and saints. O let the day soon dawn when thou shalt be exalted among the heathen, when thou shalt be exalted among the Jews thine ancient people; yea, when thou shalt be exalted in all the earth; when the knowledge of thy name shall be as extensive as the shining of the sun.

O Lord, we rejoice that thou art and hast ever been in the midst of thy people. Truly thou art in the midst of thy Church; she shall not be moved: thou the Lord wilt help her, and that right early. Graciously be in the midst of us as a family, and as a congregation; may we never be moved from our Christian profession; may we never be moved from our believing confidence in Christ.

Exalted Redeemer, we adore thee as the Prince of peace. We earnestly pray that thy peaceful government may soon extend over the whole earth. Thy pacific Gospel alone, attended by the power of the Holy Spirit, can subdue the ferocious and cruel passions of men. Thy grace alone can change the lion into the lamb, and make him the friend of man. O take to thee thy great power, and reign; make wars to cease to the end of the earth; break the bow, let the spear be cut in sunder, and do thou burn the chariot in the fire. May swords be soon changed into ploughshares, and spears be converted into pruning-hooks, and the art of war be remembered no more.

We thank the God of ordinances for the opportunity we have this day enjoyed, of worshipping the Most High in his public, earthly courts. We thank God for the merciful assistance afforded to the ministers of Christ, and particularly for the kindness shown to our beloved pastor and minister, who dispensed to us this day the oracles of Divine truth.

May our dear children be savingly impressed with the Gospel to which they listened, and may we witness in them the early symptoms of saving grace.

May the instructions given this day to the ten thousands of little children who have assembled in Sabbath schools, be followed by a rich harvest of saving blessings to themselves, and of unspeakable advantages to the community and nation at large.

Comfort us this night with rest, repose, and sleep. Forgive the sins of our holy things. Hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen. Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

© Adoration?

POWER OF SIN.

Psalm. New Testament. Trolle's Psalms. L. 2.

- 1 LET the wild leopards of the wood Put off the spots that nature gives,
Then may the wicked turn to God,
And change their tempers and their lives.
- 2 As well might Ethiopian slaves
Wash out the darkness of their skin,
The dead as well may leave their graves,
As old transgressors cease to sin.
- 3 Where vice has held its empire long
'Twill not endure the least control;
None but a power divinely strong
Can turn the current of the soul.

Watts, 100, B. 11.

NUMBERS XXII.

Balaam and the Angel.

AND Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab.

22 And God's anger was kindled because he went: and the angel of the LORD stood in the way for an adversary against him. Now he was riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him.

23 And the ass saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote the ass to turn her into the way.

24 But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of the vineyards, a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side.

25 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust herself unto the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place, where was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff.

28 And the LORD opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee that thou hast smitten me these three times?

29 And Balaam said unto the ass, Because thou hast mocked me: I would there were a sword in mine hand, for now would I kill thee.

30 And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, upon which thou hast ridden ever since I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, Nay.

31 Then the LORD opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he bowed down his head, and fell flat on his face.

32 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold I went out to withstand thee, because thy way is perverse before me:

33 And the ass saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive.

34 And Balaam said unto the angel of the LORD, I have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me: now therefore, if it displease thee, I will get me back again.

35 And the angel of the LORD said unto Balaam, Go with the men: but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak. So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXII.—It is a sight truly humiliating and affecting to see Balaam and the princes of Moab associated together against the great Jehovah and the interests of his Church! It is to the eternal disgrace of our nature that every age of the history of our race furnishes numerous examples of the same humiliating and repulsive spectacle. What was Balaam, the proud and cunning sorcerer? what were Balak and his princes, but the insignificant and impious and contemptible potaherds of the earth? And of them it may be justly said, "Let the potaherds strive with the potaherds of the earth; but woe be unto him who striveth with his Maker!" Peculiarly hardened must have been the heart of Balaam, when miracles and repeated Divine and supernatural communications produced no mollifying penitential effect, or even altered his purpose of declaring his willingness to curse Israel. "Jesus, soften our hearts by thy grace!"

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we to bless and adore thee, O Lord, as infinitely holy and just! Thou art of purer eyes than to behold iniquity. How bright thy holiness appears in all thy works, and in all thy words! O our eternal King, thy name is holy and reverend. The heavenly angels proclaim thy holiness in sweetest songs of celestial adoration. We would follow their example, though in weak and humble strains, and sing, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts. We confess that objects of the greatest purity are pollution, compared with thine immaculate holiness. O Lord, how dim and mean are the brightest lamps of heaven, when compared with thy glory! while the wisdom of angels compared with thine is ignorance and folly.

As a family, and as individuals, may we be humbled in the dust, on account of our iniquity and guilt. May we feel genuine sorrow that we have offended God. May we lament that we have grieved the Spirit of truth, and resisted his gracious influences. May we mourn that our sins brought the Saviour to the dust of death. Holy Spirit, give us repentance. It is thy gift. Where can we look for it, but to thee? and where can we apply, but to thyself alone? O suffer us not, like Balaam, to continue in sin. Suffer us not, like him, to follow the devices of our own heart. Most merciful Father, we supplicate pardon. Because thou art merciful, because thou delightest in mercy, we are encouraged to seek forgiveness. Because thou hast exalted Jesus to be a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance unto Israel and remission of our sins, we are strongly encouraged to supplicate pardon. O remember not the sins of our youth, nor our transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou us for thy goodness' sake, O Lord. For thy name's sake, O Lord, pardon our iniquity; for it is great.

Deeply affect us with what we have now read. May the enormity of Balaam's sin, in wishing the injury of thy Church, teach us that opposition to the prosperity of thy kingdom is a transgression of the greatest magnitude, which, if not repented of and forsaken, must bring upon those who are guilty the heavy anger of an offended God.

At an early period may we have the unspeakable pleasure of seeing our beloved children warmly attached to Christ and his cause. God forbid that they should ever remain indifferent to the prosperity of Christ's Church, or join the ranks of its enemies. Make our domestics thy faithful servants.

We now invoke the Divine Spirit, that we may know and love and do the will of God. In our various stations and relations in life, may we act for God, and speak for God. Never let us be backward to confess Christ. Even in the most difficult and trying circumstances, may we be neither unwilling nor afraid to confess him before men. May we be enabled to say and resolve with a better spirit than that which actuated the mind of Balaam, The word that God putteth in our mouth, that will we speak.

We express our obligations for the mercies of the past night, and commit ourselves and our friends this day to the care and guidance of the Father of our spirits. Graciously hearken to the voice of our supplication, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PEARL OF PRICE.

Israel. Melody. George's. Stillman.

C. V.

- 1 YE glittering toys of earth, adieu!
A nobler choice be mine;
A real prize attracts my view,
A treasure all Divine.
- 2 Begone, unworthy of my cares,
Ye specious baits of sense;
Inestimable worth appears,
The Pearl of price immense!
- 3 Jesus, to multitudes unknown—
O name Divinely sweet!
Jesus, in thee, in thee alone,
Wealth, honour, pleasure meet.

STANLEY.

JOHN XII.

Unbelief of the Jews.

THE people answered him, We have heard out of the law, that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, the Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son of man?

35 Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth.

36 While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide himself from them.

37 But though he had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him:

38 That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?

39 Therefore they could not believe, because that Esaias said again, 40 He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.

41 These things said Esaias, when he saw his glory, and spake of him.

42 Nevertheless, among the chief rulers also many believed on him: but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:

43 For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

44 Jesus cried, and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me.

45 And he that seeth me, seeth him that sent me.

46 I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness.

47 And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.

49 For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, He gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XII.—What mysteries meet in Christ! In his Divinity he lived from all eternity; in his humanity he died; and in his Divinity and humanity he lives for ever. "He has the keys of hell and of death!" Jesus is the Light; the Gospel is an emanation from his brightness. What a privilege—we have the light of the Gospel and of salvation shining in the midst of us! May we value the light—be guided by the light; may it be admitted into our hearts, and change the night of spiritual ignorance into the bright shining day of Divine wisdom and saving knowledge. Does eternal blessedness depend upon the reception of Christ's word, and endless misery depend upon its impenitent rejection? O let us receive his word and live for ever!

PRAYER.

GOD and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we would draw near to thy throne, and as a family we desire to present our evening sacrifice. Holy Spirit, may flames of love now rise from the altar of our hearts; and may Divine and promised grace assist us in presenting an acceptable sacrifice to the Lord our God.

We thank the Father of mercies for the streams of mercy which have followed us this day. Teach us the blessed lesson of tracing up every mercy and every comfort to thee, the Divine and overflowing fountain of goodness, from whom all mercies flow. As we are about to retire to rest, we surrender our immortal souls, as well as our dying bodies, to the care of God. Whether our days on earth are to be numerous or few, we would pray with earnestness: Teach us so to live, that we may have as little fear to lie down in our graves, as on our beds; and teach us to die in the faith of Jesus; then we shall rise in glory at the judgment-day.

We bless the Holy Spirit of inspiration, that we have been again permitted to read the volume of inspired truth. May the Word of God enter into our understandings, and enlighten us with Divine light; may it enter into our heart, and warm us with Divine love. We rejoice, O Jesus, that as thou saidst before thy death, the Son of man must be lifted up, thou the Son of man hast been lifted up. Eternal glory to thy name, that thy boundless love to ruined man did prevail upon thee cheerfully to submit to be lifted up on Calvary's cross. Glory to thy name, that there thou didst finish the work the Father gave thee to do. May thy ministering servants lift thee up in the preaching of the everlasting Gospel, and may increasing multitudes see thy glory, taste thy grace, and submit to thy power.

We adore thee, O Jesus, that, more than eighteen hundred years ago, thou didst come as a light into the world. Teach us as a family to believe in thee; then we shall no more abide in darkness. Give, we pray, the light of thy glorious Gospel to all the nations of the earth, that they may be delivered from the darkness of pagan ignorance, and behold the glory of thy person, and the preciousness of thy salvation. Alas, O Lord, darkness covers the earth, and gross darkness the people! Alas, O Lord, the prince of darkness maintains his sway over the great proportion of the inhabitants of the world! O say to the nations, Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. Jesus, thou Sun of righteousness, may thy ministering servants, the heralds of light, flee to and fro, from north to south, from east to west, to proclaim thy grace; then shall the Gentiles come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

Blessed Saviour, in the words we have now read we have seen the consequences of the sin of rejecting thee. Give us faith to receive thee.

Let not our children or servants reject Christ. O convince them that their present and eternal happiness depends on receiving Christ.

Have mercy on our friends, and particularly our aged friends. May they ever lean upon the arm of Jesus in the journey of life; and guided by his light, and strengthened by his power, may all of us at last meet in the celestial mansion.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake, our Redeemer and Intercessor. Amen.

DELIVERANCES.

Radiance. Refuge. Coombs'. Truro.

L. M.

- 1 WHAT hath God wrought! might Israel say,
When Jordan rolled its tide away,
And gave a passage to their bands
Safely to march across its sands.
- 2 What hath God wrought! O blissful theme,
Are we redeemed and called by him?
Shall we be led the desert through—
And safe arrive at glory too?
- 3 The news shall every harp employ,
Fill every tongue with rapturous joy;
When shall we join the heavenly throng
To swell the triumph and the song!

GIBBONS.

NUMBERS XXIII.

Balaam blessing Israel.

AND the LORD put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said,
Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak.

6 And he returned unto him, and, lo, he stood by his burnt sacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 And he took up his parable, and said, Balak the King of Moab hath brought me from Aram, out of the mountains of the east, saying, Come, curse me Jacob, and come, defy Israel.

8 How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed? or how shall I defy, whom the LORD hath not defied?

9 For from the top of the rocks I see him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? I took thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

12 And he answered and said, Must I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth?

13 And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not see them all: and curse me them from thence.

16 And the LORD met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, Go again unto Balak, and say thus.

19 God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and he hath blessed; and I cannot reverse it.

21 He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel: the LORD his God is with him, and the shout of a king is among them.

22 God brought them out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.

23 Surely there is no enchantment against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel: according to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, What hath God wrought!

24 Behold, the people shall rise up as a great lion, and lift up himself as a young lion: he shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink the blood of the slain.

25 And Balak said unto Balaam, Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all.

26 But Balaam answered and said unto Balak, Told not I thee, saying, All that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXIII.—Though wicked men may obstinately rebel against God, yet he will employ them as means for accomplishing his purpose. How remarkably this truth is confirmed and illustrated by the history of Balaam, an enemy of God, and who longed for the destruction of the Church of God! As God holds the winds in his fist, and restrains the tempest, he restrained the blaspheming lips of the sorcerer, and compelled his reluctant tongue, in strains of glowing poetry, to proclaim Israel's greatness, security, and glory. Let us rejoice in the blessedness of the people of God, and may we be sharers with them in their blessedness; they are for ever free from the curse of a broken law, having the righteousness of Christ imputed to them, by which the curse is for ever removed, and their pardon of sin and acceptance with God for ever secured. O may that blessedness be ours, and may we be among the number of those who are in Christ Jesus and who cannot be condemned, and who have therefore peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRAYER.

WE thank and praise thee, gracious and bountiful Jehovah, that after the testimonies of thy providential kindness experienced during the past night, we are favoured with another opportunity of uniting as a family, in expressing before thy throne our homage, our adorations, and our thanksgivings. We adore thee, O Lord, in thy faithfulness and truth. Thou art not a man, that thou shouldst lie, nor the son of man, that thou shouldst repent. Thou hast said, and thou wilt do it; thou hast spoken, and thou wilt make it good. Heaven and earth shall sooner pass away, than the word of thy promise fail. Lord, teach us to rejoice in the stability of thy promises, which are engraved as in eternal brass.

We confess before thee, thou holy and heart-searching God, that by our sins we have exposed ourselves to thy wrath and curse. We rejoice that, in thy gracious wisdom, thou hast found a blessed method by which this curse may be removed. Divine Redeemer, thou didst endure the cross for us; and for us thou didst bear the awful curse away. Give us the blessing of thy salvation: then we need not fear the enmity of men or devils; for who can curse, whom God hath not cursed? or who can defy, whom God hath not defied?

We rejoice in the blessed security of thy Church and people. Thou hast clothed them with the righteousness of thy Son. Clothe us, we earnestly pray, with the righteousness of thy Son: then the guilt of all our sins shall be for ever washed away; then shall we be sharers of the privileges of thy saved and justified people, in whom thou dost not behold iniquity, nor see perverseness. O Lord, be in the midst of us as a family and as a congregation. May the Lord our God be with us, and may the shout of a king, even of King Jesus, be heard among us. May our minds be deeply and delightfully impressed with the privileges of thy Church. After all the attempts of thine enemies to destroy the sacred vine thou hast planted, we praise thee that the lapse of more than five thousand years confirms the truth, that there is no enchantment against Jacob, neither is there divination against Israel.

May the blessedness and safety of thy Church allure our dear children to seek a saving connection with Christ and his Church. O teach them and our domestics to say, We will go with you, for God is with you.

We adore thy name, O Jesus, for what thou hast done for our fallen race. When we think of the satisfaction thou hast given to offended justice, we have reason to sing, What hath God wrought! When we think of the great salvation thou hast accomplished, and the victory thou hast gained over death and sin, we have reason to sing, What hath God wrought! When we think on what thou hast done for thy Church and people in these lands of our nativity, we have reason to sing, What hath God wrought!

Almighty Saviour, make us, and all our relatives and friends, the trophies of thy grace; and may we at last meet on the verdant plains of the heavenly Canaan: then shall we have reason through eternity to sing, What hath God wrought!

Preserve us, O Lord, from the temptations and assist us in the duties of this day, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

CHRIST'S EXAMPLE.

Both Articles. Warminster. New Sabbath. Langdon. L. M.

- 1 AND is the gospel peace and love?
Such let our conversation be;
The serpent blended with the dove,
Wisdom and meek simplicity.
- 2 Whene'er the angry passions rise,
And tempt our thoughts or tongues to strife,
To Jesus let us lift our eyes,
Bright pattern of the Christian life!
- 3 O, how benevolent and kind!
How mild! how ready to forgive!
Be this the temper of our mind,
And these the rules by which we live! SCHEER.

JOHN XIII.

Jesus washing the Disciples' Feet.

NOW before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;

3 Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;

4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash his disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter said unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So, after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

18 I speak not of you all; I know whom I have chosen: but, that the scripture may be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.

19 Now I tell you before it come, that when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XIII.—Our Saviour's prospect of his sufferings was awfully solemn, clear, and distinct. He knew all he should suffer from demons, from men, and from offended justice; yet this knowledge did not in the slightest degree lessen the ardour of his love to his people, which was the moving cause of all he became, did, and suffered. What a spectacle of moral degradation—Julias having the name and office of a disciple, and standing in the midst of the disciples of Jesus, yet possessed of a devil, and prepared to deliver up his Master into the hands of his murderers! Did Jesus wash the feet of the disciples? Let us admire his kindness and condescension; and let us seek grace to imitate his lovely example, in humility, self-denial, gentleness, and love. Did he wash his disciples' feet? Let it be our earnest prayer that we by the merit of his atonement may be washed from sin's guilt, and by the influences of his Spirit may be washed from sin's pollution.

PRAYER.

WE praise thee, O Father of our spirits, that we are permitted, after the temporal engagements of the day, to abstract our thoughts from worldly objects, and enjoy converse with thee, in whose presence is fulness of joy, and at whose right-hand are pleasures for evermore. Blessed shall we be, if we are enabled at this time to present our family-prayer, by the gracious aid of the Holy Ghost, in a spirit of grace and supplication; and if we offer up our supplications in the exercise of a lively dependence upon the merits of Jesus, our prayers shall be accepted.

Infinitely exalted Jehovah, we adore thee in all thy mighty acts, and we desire to praise thee according to thine excellent greatness. O that we could sing unto the Lord a new song, and praise thee in the congregation of saints! As a family may we rejoice in thee who madest us, and as thy children may we be joyful in thee our King.

Accept of our thanks, gracious God, for the mercies of the day. We thank thee that the stream of thy providential goodness has never failed, and that we are allowed, day after day, to drink and be refreshed with its consoling waters. May our daily guilt be washed away by the continued merit of our Saviour's blood. Take us under thy care this night. In the prospect of the long night of death, we would commit ourselves to thy care, O Jesus; then we shall be delivered from the sting of death, and smile at the ravages of the tomb.

Teach our beloved children and domestics to think with solemnity on the event of their own death. Convince them that, without an interest in Christ, death will prove a passage to the abodes of perdition. May they, therefore, flee to Jesus now.

May our aged friends, who have the near prospect of exchanging time for eternity, exercise a firm faith in Christ: then death will be stripped of all its terrors, and they shall long with lively hope to enter the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

We invoke thy blessing, O Lord, to attend the reading of the Word of life. We have now heard of Satan entering into the heart of Judas; Lord, preserve us from the influence and suggestions of that adversary of souls.

We bless thee, O Jesus, that thou hast left us an example that we should follow thy steps. Thou hast said, I have given you an example, and ye should do as I have done to you. As a family, may it be our constant study to follow the example of Christ. May we follow the example of our Saviour's mercy. May we feel for the bodily sufferings of our friends, but, above all, for the souls of such among them as are living without God and without hope in the world. May we follow the example of our Saviour's activity and zeal. Make us truly zealous for the Lord of hosts, and for the growing prosperity of Immanuel's kingdom. May we follow the example of our Saviour's humility and condescension. May we know that the greatest of all is the servant of all. O Jesus, as thou didst wash the feet of thy disciples, wash our hearts. Sprinkle clean water upon us, and we shall be clean: wash us, and we shall be whiter than the snow. Hear us graciously, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

INVITATION TO PROPAGATE THE GOSPEL THROUGHOUT THE EARTH.

After Comm. Founding. Wells. Devotion. L. M.

- 1 GO, favoured Britons, and proclaim
The kind Redeemer you have found;
Publish his ever-precious name
To all the wondering nations round.
- 2 Go, tell the unlettered, wretched slave,
Who groans beneath a tyrant's rod,
You bring a freedom bought with blood,
The blood of an incarnate God.
- 3 And tell the panting sable chief,
On Ethiopia's scorching sand,
You come with a refreshing stream
To cheer and bless his thirsty land.

Voice.

NUMBERS XXIV.

Israel's Happiness and the Star of Jacob.

AND he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign aloes which the Lord hath planted, and as cedar trees beside the waters.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets, and his seed shall be in many waters, and his king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdom shall be exalted.

8 God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall break their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows.

9 He couched, he lay down as a lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up? Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee.

15 And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

17 I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth.

18 And Edom shall be a possession, Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies; and Israel shall do valiantly.

19 Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.

20 And when he looked on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was the first of the nations; but his latter end shall be that he perish for ever.

21 And he looked on the Kenites, and took up his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwelling-place, and thou puttest thy nest in a rock.

22 Nevertheless the Kenite shall be wasted, until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.

23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas, who shall live when God doeth this!

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXIV.—Many, like Balaam, have the eyes of a convinced conscience opened, while, alas! the eyes of their understanding are not savingly enlightened. Balaam saw a vision of God: may we by faith see Jesus as the Lord our God, and say in accents of thankfulness and joy, "Whom having not seen with the bodily eyes we love." How comely is the Church of God! Is it a building? It is a magnificent temple, of which Christ is the chief corner-stone. Is it a city? It hath salvation for walls and bulwarks. Is it a garden? It is full of the plants of grace, watered by the influences of the Spirit, and illuminated by the vivifying, enlivening, and fructifying beams of the Sun of righteousness. By the prophetic glance Balaam saw David in the distance as a bright star, who should arise for the punishment of Israel's enemies. Let us rejoice in Jesus as the bright and morning star who has risen for the deliverance of his Church, and for the destruction of all her enemies.

PRAYER.

O LORD, we acknowledge thee in thine almighty power, and in thy universal dominion. How insignificant are the greatest of created beings compared with thee! and with what ease art thou able in one moment to crush the power of thine enemies, even when they rise up against thy Church in the most formidable legions! Were they countless as the stars, they would in thy presence be only as chaff before the wind, and as a rolling thing before the whirlwind. O how glorious thou didst appear when thou broughtest forth thy people out of Egypt! Thou hast as it were the strength of an unicorn. As to those who rebel against thee, thou shalt eat up the nations thine enemies; thou wilt break their bones, and pierce them through with thine arrows. Who can stand before thee, when once thy wrath is kindled only for a little? Who can abide the fierceness of thine indignation? The very rocks melt in thy presence, and the lofty mountains are removed out of their place. Blessed are all they whom thou dost bless; all the maledictions of devils cannot affect them. Infinitely miserable is the doom of those on whom thy curse descends, for the blessings of all the angels of heaven can avail them nothing. Through Jesus may we obtain thy blessings: then we shall not fear the wrath of our most furious enemies. Through Jesus may we obtain deliverance from thy curse: then shall we sing, Neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

We praise thee, O Lord, for the love thou bearest to the Church, and for the comely ornaments with which thou hast adorned her. If we look to the person of thy bride, she is all glorious within, her raiment is of wrought gold. If we look to thy Church as resembling a vast encampment of travellers to a distant land, what reason have we to exclaim, How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob! and thy tabernacles, O Israel! As the valleys, O Lord, thy people are spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as trees which the Lord hath planted, and as cedar-trees beside the waters. Lord, increase the number of thy people, and let the various tribes of men soon become the devout worshippers of Jehovah. Speedily, O Lord, banish from the face of the earth all the hateful abominations of superstition and idolatry. Jesus, thou glorious STAR who hast come out of Jacob, come and enlighten our hearts, and shine brightly in the midst of us as a family, and shed thy blessed beams abundantly in the midst of our congregation, and banish from our land all that darkness which still envelops the minds of thousands. We rejoice, O Jesus, that thy mediatorial sceptre has risen out of Israel. We desire to bow before thy sceptre.

O teach our dear children to bow before thy gracious authority. As Esther touched the golden sceptre of the king and lived, may they and our domestics by faith touch the sceptre of a Saviour's mercy and live for ever.

Look with gracious pity on all our graceless relatives and friends, and subdue them by thy grace. Make them willing subjects in the day of thy power. Let that day now dawn upon their soul, and may the shades of their night of spiritual death flee away for ever.

May the strength we have derived from the rest and sleep of the last night be devoted to thy service this day. We thank God for all his mercies. May our feeble prayers be answered, for the sake of Jesus our Intercessor and Saviour. Amen.

JESUS AT HIS TABLE.

Warwick. Grenville. Abingdon. Irish.

C. H.

- 1 THE memory of our dying Lord
Awakes a thankful tongue:
How rich he spread his royal board,
And blessed the food, and sung!
- 2 Happy the man that eat this bread
But doubly blessed was he
That gently bowed his loving head,
And leaned it, Lord, on thee.
- 3 By faith the same delights we taste
As that great favourite did,
And sit and lean on Jesus' breast,
And take the heavenly bread.

WATTS, 15, B. III.

JOHN XIII.

Satan entering into Judas.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

21 When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, That one of you shall betray me.

22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.

24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then lying on Jesus' breast saith unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.

30 He then, having received the sop, went immediately out: and it was night.

31 Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him:

33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.

34 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XIII.—The holy ministry deserves our highest respect, for it is of Divine institution; and Jesus considers himself despised when his ministers are rejected, and honoured when they are accepted and esteemed. The treachery of Judas added greatly to our Saviour's sorrow; and he was more grieved for the sinfulness of the man's act, than for the suffering which it inflicted upon himself. We should carefully and impartially examine our hearts, that we may become acquainted with our corruptions, and be stimulated earnestly to pray that we may be preserved from all the tendencies of our natural depravity. They who are in a state of nature, are under Satan's despotism. Their faculties, powers, and affections, are under his dominion. But when grace enters the soul the tyrant is hurled from his throne, and the soul is brought under the mild government of Jesus.

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, thou art the mighty sovereign of the universe. We adore thee in thy majesty and in thy condescension. In thy majesty thou art infinitely superior to the loftiest of archangels; and in thy condescension thou dost stoop down to hear the prayers of the meanest of thy people. While thou acceptest the praises of glowing seraphim, thou dost not despise the adorations of babes and sucklings. Though in thine unveiled glory heaven is thy peculiar abode, still thou delightest to dwell with those who are of a humble and contrite heart, to give them the honour of being thy children, and at last to exalt them to thy heaven.

At the close of another day, while we thank thee for continued mercies, we would humbly pray for the pardon of continued sins. Our daily sins call for daily penitence. Lord, give us repentance unto life; and may we daily look to the blood of Jesus, which speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. May all of us know what it is to derive comfort and peace from the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness. This evening may our souls and lives be graciously preserved. May the sun not smite us by day, nor the moon by night. May our sleep be sweetened by the conviction that God is our God, and that our souls are bound up in the bundle of life.

Holy Lord God, we acknowledge the treachery and depravity of our sinful hearts. We have now read of the sin of Judas, and we confess that, if we were left to follow the dictates of our own minds, like him we should deny and betray our Lord. What are we more than others? We are fallen, and guilty, and vile! Thy restraining mercy alone hath preserved us from ten thousand sins and snares, into which we should have been precipitated by our own lusts. We take no glory to ourselves, but would ascribe to thee all the glory and all the praise. Lord, preserve us from the sin of backsliding, and from the still more awful sin of apostacy.

Give our dear children grace to take up a Christian profession; and when it is taken up, constantly to maintain it, till the close of life. May they and our domestics begin the journey to heaven, and may they hold on their way rejoicing.

We thank thee, O Saviour, for all the ordinances of thine appointment. May we know what it is conscientiously to observe them all; and may we know what it is to enjoy fellowship with God in all his ordinances. O Jesus, may we seek thee in thine ordinances, and may we find thee. We thank thee especially for the ordinance of the Supper. Such of us as observe it, may we, like John, lean by faith on Jesus' bosom, and learn to see the infinite superiority of the love of Jesus above the regard of the fondest and the dearest of earthly relations.

O teach our aged relatives to lean more and more on Jesus' breast. May they find their spiritual strength increasing every day, and their hopes of heaven shining more and more unto the perfect day.

May the rashness of Peter teach us never to trust in grace received, but to employ grace in trusting and depending on Christ alone, to stand fast and persevere, surmounting every obstacle and conquering every foe.

All we ask is for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SAFE AND HAPPY DEATH.

Salisbury Plain. Serenity. Braintree. Portsea c. x.

- 1 LORD! must I die? O let me die
Trusting in thee alone!
My living testimony given,
Then leave my dying one!
- 2 If I must die—O let me die
In faith and free from doubt,
Clothed in my Saviour's righteousness,
And sanctified throughout.
- 3 If I must die—as die I must—
Let some kind soraph come
And bear me on his friendly wing
To my celestial home.

Amen.

NUMBERS XXVII.

Choice of Joshua.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren.

10 And if he have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren.

11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel a statute of judgment, as the Lord commanded Moses.

12 And the Lord said unto Moses, Get thee up into this mount Abarim, and see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel.

13 And when thou hast seen it, thou also shalt be gathered unto thy people, as Aaron thy brother was gathered.

14 For ye rebelled against my commandment in the desert of Zin, in the strife of the congregation, to sanctify me at the water before their eyes: that is the water of Meribah, in Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.

15 And Moses spake unto the Lord, saying,

16 Let the Lord, the God of the spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation.

17 Which may go out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the Lord be not as sheep which have no shepherd.

18 And the Lord said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him;

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight.

20 And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.

21 And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of Urim before the Lord; at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

22 And Moses did as the Lord commanded him; and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation:

23 And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXVII.—The daughters of Zelophehad obtained a valuable earthly inheritance, of which they have long since been deprived by death. May we possess a title to a heavenly inheritance beyond the skies, more valuable than all the kingdoms of the world, and which shall endure for ever. It is of little importance to live and die without an earthly inheritance; but it is of infinite importance to be able to say in the sublime and animating strains of an apostle, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away." O may that inheritance be ours!

PRAYER.

O LORD our God, we desire thy grace, that, with the return of another day, we may rejoice in thee with joy unspeakable and full of glory. We adore thee as a God of sovereignty and boundless mercy. Though thou receivest constantly the enraptured praises of spotless angels, whose nature was never affected by sin, yet thou takest pleasure in thy people, and thou wilt beautify the meek with salvation. O take us as a family, and put us among the number of thy people, and give us the pleasing evidence that we are the objects of thy gracious and unmerited delight. Holy Spirit, make us meek and lowly in heart, and may we indeed be found among those whom thou dost beautify with the lovely and imperishable ornaments of salvation.

We have now read of those who were anxious for an earthly name among thy people: O make us anxious for a spiritual name in thy Church, even a name better than that of sons and of daughters, an everlasting name, that shall never be cut off. We have now read of those who were concerned for an earthly inheritance: O Lord, make us truly concerned for a heavenly inheritance—an inheritance of grace and of glory—an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that never fades away.

O take our children and domestics, and give them the blessing of adoption. Put them, we pray, among thy children, and give them the goodly heritage of the host of nations.

Prepare us, O Lord, for our latter end, and sanctify to us every warning of our approaching dissolution. May we look upon the death of relatives as solemn warnings, and may we hear the voice of Providence saying to us, Prepare to meet thy God. When the hand of disease is upon us, and when we are stretched upon the bed of affliction, may we hear the voice of Providence saying to us, Prepare to meet thy God. As Moses obtained a sight of the earthly Canaan before his death, may we obtain, by faith, a sight of the celestial Canaan before we die. While thy venerable servant saw the earthly Canaan he never possessed, may we obtain a blessed view of heaven as our home. May the thought of mingling with angels and saints, may the hope of beholding the glorious Jehovah, may the expectation of seeing the King in his beauty, make us long to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. Deliver us, heavenly Father, from the fear of death. May we look upon it as a conquered enemy, may we see the sting is gone, may we believe it is changed into a friend; and may we rejoice that Jesus can make the bed of death feel soft as downy pillows are. O may we lean our head, when we are called to die, on the bosom of our Saviour, and there sweetly breathe out our life.

Holy Spirit, sanctify the death of ministers to their surviving families and congregations. May the Spirit which rested on thy departed servants rest on their successors.

Give us diligence to serve thee this day, and to take heed that we offend not our God. We thank thee for the mercies of the night, and that we have been permitted to begin the day in fellowship with thee. Hear us, for Jesus' sake. Amen

JESUS COMFORTING HIS PEOPLE.

Mehalah. Providence. Weston Farel. Follett. c. n.

- 1 LET not your hearts with anxious thoughts
Be troubled or dismayed;
But trust in providence Divine,
And trust my gracious aid.
- 2 I to my Father's house return;
There numerous mansions stand,
And glory manifold abounds
Through all the happy land.
- 3 I go your entrance to secure,
And your abode prepare;
Regions unknown are safe to you
When I, your friend, am there.

ROBERTSON.

JOHN XIV.

Consolation to the Afflicted.

- LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.
- 2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.
  - 3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.
  - 4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.
  - 5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest: and how can we know the way?
  - 6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.
  - 7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.
  - 8 Philip said unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.
  - 9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father: and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?
  - 10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father, that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.
  - 11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.
  - 12 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.
  - 13 And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.
  - 14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.
  - 15 If ye love me, keep my commandments.
  - 16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;
  - 17 Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot conceive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.
  - 18 I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XIV.—Jesus is the only fountain of consolation; and it is only by faith we can draw water from that fountain. Heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people; and it is remarkable for its magnificence, accommodation, blessedness, and glory. Though Jesus in his humanity is exalted to a throne far above the thrones of principalities and powers, of angels and arch-angels, in the heavenly places, he retains a lively and loving remembrance of all his people on earth; and in his divinity he will come most graciously and tenderly to visit them on their dying beds, and convey their ransomed souls to heaven's glory, for ever to enjoy his followership. If we have received Jesus as our Surety, and have committed our souls implicitly to his care, then we shall be admitted to heaven by him as the only way, by his truth we shall be irradiated and enlightened, and from him we shall receive the glories of immortality.

PRAYER.

GLORIOUS Jehovah and Hearer of prayer, we bow before thee and adore thee in all the mysteries of thy nature and perfections. God the Father, thou art in the Son, and the Son is in thee. God the Son, thou art in the Father, and he who hath seen thee hath seen the Father. God the Spirit, thou art the Comforter whom the Father most graciously sends to alleviate the sufferings and soothe the sorrows of the saints. Father, Son, and Spirit, one God, we adore thee. O God, we raise our shouts of praise to thee, and send them to thy throne above. To the united Three, the undivided One, we would ascribe all glory and grace, all power and majesty.

We bless thee, most merciful Saviour, for the consolations held out for our acceptance in the very interesting portion of thy Word now read. With humility we confess that we are infinitely unworthy of the slightest instance of thy goodness. We are unworthy of one ray of comfort, and yet thou hast made the Sun of righteousness to shine upon us with healing in his wings. We are unworthy of one drop of comfort, and yet thou hast opened to our view and brought within our reach fountains of Divine consolation, whence flow rivers of eternal pleasure. What mercy is this! We are unworthy of one moment's duration of comfort, and yet thou hast prepared for our enjoyment a heaven of eternal blessedness. What mercy is this!

Teach us, Holy Spirit, to take and enjoy the sweet consolation offered us by the Word of Christ. Let no earthly affliction overwhelm us. Let not our minds be sinfully troubled by the death of friends. May we believe in Jesus as our unchanging and eternal friend.

If our beloved children should be left orphans, O may they not be left comfortless. May they believe in thee, O Jesus; then thou wilt take them up, and be better to them, infinitely better, than any earthly parent.

When we are deprived of earthly property in this changing world, let us not be sinfully troubled; may we believe in Jesus, that we have in Christ now, and shall afterwards enjoy in heaven, a better and more lasting inheritance, where the changes of time are for ever unknown. When we are deprived of bodily health, and laid upon the bed of languishing, let not our minds be sinfully troubled; may we believe in Christ, that we shall be conveyed at death to the heavenly world, where there is no more sickness, nor pain, nor death, and where all the former things shall have passed away. Let not the minds of our aged friends be sinfully troubled, when they feel the infirmities and weakness and languor of advanced years. May they believe in Christ, that they shall obtain through his righteousness a place in those mansions of celestial glory where they shall for ever flourish in all the loveliness of eternal youth.

We thank thee, gracious Saviour, that we have heard of the glories of heaven, and that thou hast gone to prepare a place for thy people. We bless thee that the Spirit is left on earth to make a prepared people for a prepared place. If there are any among us who have not yet experienced a saving change, and who have not yet obtained a title to a heavenly home, we earnestly plead with thee in their behalf. May they and we at last meet before thy throne above. And may our servants join the ransomed myriads before the throne above.

Pardon the sins and bless the duties of the day; and may we be preserved and blessed this night, for a dear and exalted Saviour's sake. Amen.

SAFETY OF BELIEVERS.

Paradis. Smyrna. Cambridge New. Furman. C. M.

- 1 ARISE, my soul, my joyful powers,
And triumph in my God;
Awake, my voice, and loud proclaim
His glorious grace abroad.
- 2 He raised me from the deeps of sin,
The gates of gaping hell,
And fixed my standing more secure
Than 'twas before I fell.
- 3 The arms of everlasting love
Beneath my soul he placed,
And on the rock of ages set
My slippery footsteps fast.

Watts, 62, B. 11.

NUMBERS XXXI.

Midianites destroyed.

- AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites: afterward shalt thou be gathered unto thy people.
- 3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the Lord of Midian.
- 4 Of every tribe a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war.
- 5 So there were delivered out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.
- 6 And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe, them and Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with the holy instruments, and the trumpets to blow, in his hand.
- 7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the Lord commanded Moses; and they slew all the males.
- 8 And they slew the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain; namely, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: Balaam also the son of Beor they slew with the sword.
- 9 And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.
- 10 And they burnt all their cities wherein they dwelt, and all their goodly castles, with fire.
- 11 And they took all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts.
- 12 And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at the plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.
- 13 And the officers, which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses:
- 14 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our charge, and there lacketh not one man of us.
- 15 We have therefore brought an oblation for the Lord, what every man hath gotten, of jewels of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, earrings, and tablets, to make an atonement for our souls before the Lord.
- 16 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all wrought jewels.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXXI.—God sees all the injuries which are inflicted upon his people; he considers them as done to himself; and he has heavy judgments in reserve for the enemies of his Church. How awful, when God rises up in his wrath to execute his vengeance upon the enemies of his people! How awful, when he arose to punish cruel Egypt! How awful, when he arose to punish envious and malignant Midian! Now the time of Balaam's awful retribution arrives. He wished to die the death of the righteous: how dreadful his doom! By his own impious and obstinate will he was determined during his life to be gathered with sinners; and now, as the just reward of his unrighteous deed by ensnaring Israel, and drawing them into the sin of uncleanness and idolatry, he died the death of the wicked, he fell before the edge of the sword, and went to his place.

PRAYER.

WE adore thee, O Lord, as the Lord of hosts; and we adore thee, O Jesus, as the Captain of our salvation. Thou art infinitely able to destroy all our enemies, and thou art infinitely willing to give us that Divine grace by which we, thy professed followers, shall obtain distinguished victories over all our spiritual foes.

We desire to enter upon the duties and engagements of another day, under a due impression of thy kindness experienced during the past night. Thou hast preserved us from disease and death, and thou hast spread over our dwelling-place the shield of thy protection. This day may we walk with God: and even when engaged in our usual daily employments, may we not be so occupied with the things of time as to prevent our thoughts and wishes and hopes and petitions from occasionally ascending to thy heavenly throne. Alas, that it should ever be said of us, day after day, God is not in all their thoughts.

Bless our offspring, and give them a saving knowledge of things Divine. Give them and our domestics a thirst for that learning which is necessary to prepare them for useful stations on earth; but, above all, give them that thirst for Divine learning which is necessary to prepare them for heaven.

Sanctify to our minds the history we have now read of the battles and sins of the Israelites. While they sinned in showing mercy to a portion of the Midianites whom God commanded them to destroy, may we show no mercy to the lusts of the flesh or to the hateful passions of our corrupted minds. O give us that grace by which we shall earnestly desire and pray that they may be all destroyed. Teach us to say respecting each and all of them, Away with them, away with them; crucify them, crucify them.

We are by profession soldiers in Christ's army; may we be so in reality. Give us grace to know our enemies. Let us not look upon spiritual enemies in the light of friends. Let us not look on our sinful desires, on our sinful habits, on our sinful prejudices, on our besetting sins, in the light of friends. May we not behold them with a favourable eye, may we not wish to spare them, but, though dear to us as a right hand or a right eye, may we pray and plead for their destruction. We acknowledge, O Lord, that in ourselves we are weak, and unable to contend successfully with our corruptions and our lusts. O make us strong in the grace that is in Christ. By his wisdom may we be wise and skilful to defeat the plans of our spiritual enemies, and by his strength may we be strong to overcome and destroy them. May we not be intimidated by difficulties in our Christian warfare. May we endure hardness, as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. We seek from our Divine Captain the whole armour of God, even the graces of the Spirit, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Though we wrestle not merely against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual wickedness in high places, may we neither be discouraged nor afraid. May we pray always, with all prayer and supplication in the spirit, and may we watch thereunto with all perseverance and supplication.

If there are any among us who have not yet begun to fight the Christian battles, may they delay no longer. This day may we be enlisted to fight under Christ's banner; then we shall be more than conquerors through him that loved us.

Hear and forgive, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus, our blessed Surety, be with us all. Amen.

CHRIST THE VINE.

Sylvanus. Stratford. New York. Condescension. C. H.

- 1 JESUS, immutably the same!
Thou true and living Vine!
Around thy all-supporting stem
My feeble arms I twine.
- 2 Quickened by thee, and kept alive,
I flourish and bear fruit:
My life I from thy sap derive,
My vigour from thy root,
- 3 I can do nothing without thee;
My strength is wholly thine;
Withered and barren should I be
If severed from the Vine.

TOPICADY.

JOHN XIV.

The Comforter.

YET a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

20 At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

22 Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.

25 These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

26 But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.

27 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I.

29 And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.

31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

JOHN XV.

Christ the True Vine.

I AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

2 Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XIV., XV.—How soon the bodily presence of Jesus was withdrawn from the eye and observation of a malicious world! but his Divine and gracious presence has never been removed from his people on earth; and they shall for ever enjoy his fellowship in heaven, where their sun shall no more go down, and their moon no more withdraw her shining. What a wonderful union of grace blessings, and privileges, we see in the believer! In him we see holy delight in Christ's commandments, love to Christ's personal conformity to his image, an imperishable interest in the love of the Father and the Son, and the enjoyment of the comforting influence of the Holy Ghost. What a marvellous Vine is Jesus! In his incarnation he was planted by his Father; he was cut down at death, but in his resurrection he appeared as the glorious living Vine, bearing the rich clusters of the blessings of Salvation for all his people.

PRAYER.

MOST gracious and merciful Father, we bow before thee in the name of Christ, and would draw near to the Lord our God through him who is the way, the truth, and the life. God the Father, we acknowledge thee as the Divine Husbandman. God the Son, we adore thee as the true Vine; O my Father, each one of us composing this family be branches in thee, the true Vine. God the Holy Ghost, we adore thee as the Divine Comforter. Mercifully be to us as a Comforter—teach us all things; and particularly, when we engage in prayer, bring our remembrance those petitions which are necessary and suitable to be presented before the throne of grace.

Remember not against us, merciful Father, the offences of the past day. May the thoughts, words, and actions which have been at variance with thy holy will be forgiven, and the polluting influence and effects be washed away. We thank thee for the meat which perisheth, but above all for Jesus Christ and the blessings of salvation, the bread which endureth to eternal life.

Give us the sleep of thy beloved this night; but more especially prepare us for that heavenly land, our Father's house above, of which it is said, there shall be no night there. Prepare us for that world, where the body is never borne down with pain, nor exhausted with fatigue; where the soul is never perplexed with doubt, nor oppressed with grief, but where there is light, joy, and love.

We acknowledge thee, O Jesus, as our life. Apply these words with saving efficacy to our souls: Because I live, ye shall live also. O give us that spiritual life which flows from union to thyself. As the branches derive sap and nourishment from the vine, may we derive spiritual nourishment, life, and strength from thee as the life of thy Church.

Separate our dear children from the wild olive of corrupted nature, and may they be engrafted into Christ, the true Vine. O give us early evidences of a saving union being formed between them and Jesus; then we shall lie down in the dust in peace, and look upon our separation as only for a few short days, when we shall meet in heaven to part no more for ever.

Jesus, thou Prince of peace, bestow on us, we humbly pray on all our relatives and friends, and on our domestics, that peace which passeth all understanding. O give us peace with God whom we have offended; and may we see that he is reconciled in Jesus. Give us peace with the law as a covenant; and may we see that Jesus has magnified it and made it honourable, and therefore that we are for ever delivered from its curse. Give us peace with conscience; and may we see that our sins are pardoned, and that our guilt is for ever removed. Give us peace with one another; and may we live in that holy harmony and love which will prepare us for the fellowship of the saints in heaven. Say unto us, and to all our relatives, and to the congregation to which we belong, Peace I leave with you my peace I give unto you: let not your heart be troubled neither let it be afraid.

Graciously hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

INSPIRED BY THE SPIRIT

SHOOTED BY GARY SHERIDAN

SANCTIFICATION AND PARDON.

Crown Chapel. Highbury. Ludlow. Ellenborough. c. 1.

- 1 WHERE shall we sinners hide our heads?
Can rocks or mountains save?
Or shall we wrap us in the shades
Of midnight and the grave?
- 2 Is there no shelter from the eye
Of a revenging God?
Jesus, to thy dear wounds we fly,
Bedew us with thy blood.
- 3 Those guardian drops our souls secure,
And wash away our sin:
Eternal justice frowns no more,
And conscience smiles within.

Watts.

NUMBERS XXXV.

Cities of Refuge.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, that they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession cities to dwell in; and ye shall give also unto the Levites suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in; and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattle, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites there shall be six cities for refuge, which ye shall appoint for the manslayer, that he may flee thither: and to them ye shall add forty and two cities.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give shall be of the possession of the children of Israel: from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which he inheriteth.

9 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

11 Then ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of refuge for you: that the slayer may flee thither, which killeth any person at unawares.

12 And they shall be unto you cities for refuge from the avenger; that the manslayer die not, until he stand before the congregation in judgment.

18 And of these cities which ye shall give, six cities shall ye have for refuge.

14 Ye shall give three cities on this side Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, both for the children of Israel, and for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

16 And if he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

22 But if he thrust him suddenly without enmity, or have cast upon him any thing without laying of wait,

23 Or with any stone, wherewith a man may die, seeing him not, and cast it upon him, that he die, and was not his enemy, neither sought his harm:

24 Then the congregation shall judge between the slayer and the revenger of blood according to these judgments:

25 And the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and he shall abide in it unto the death of the high priest, which was anointed with the holy oil.

REFLECTIONS UPON NUMBERS XXXV.—A Gospel ministry is the great privilege of the Christian Church, and it is the duty and honour of the people of God to make a suitable provision for those who labour among them, in word and doctrine. Sinners, by their sinfulness and guilt, are exposed to great danger: they are obnoxious to Divine wrath and to offended justice; they are the objects of Satan's malice, and within the reach of his furious temptations and fiery darts. But the Gospel makes known what poor sinners need who are placed in circumstances so perilous: a city of refuge is provided—that refuge is Jesus, his righteousness, his mercy, and his covenant.

PRAYER.

FATHER of our spirits, mercifully breathe upon us the Holy Ghost, while we fall prostrate before thy throne, to present our morning-sacrifice. Thy name alone is excellent, O Lord; thy glory is above the earth and the heavens. Thou art infinitely glorious in thyself, and in all thy works. All thy works praise thee. Thou art glorified in the sun and moon, and in all the stars of light. Thou gavest thy command, and they were all created. Thou didst form the heaven of heavens, and the waters that are above the heavens. By thee they are established for ever; and thou hast made a decree which they shall not pass.

We thank thee, O Lord, that as a family we are preserved to see the light of the natural sun; by faith may we behold the light of thy reconciled countenance, and by faith may we see Jesus, who is the light of the world.

Mercifully give us strength of body and vigour of mind to engage in the various duties of the day. In the regularity of our duties in thy service, may we resemble the regularity of the sun. May daily mercies be followed by daily thanksgivings, and attended by the discharge of daily duties.

We are entering on the last day of the week: Lord, enable us to live as if it were the last day of our lives. We are drawing near the Christian Sabbath: may we conduct ourselves this day as if we were the expectants of a glorious Sabbath beyond the grave.

May the reading of the Scriptures at this time be rendered by thy Spirit profitable for our instruction in righteousness. We thank thee for the care manifested to thy ministers in all ages. Thou hast established a close connection between thy ministers and people. May thy ministers feel more and more this sacred connection, and most earnestly seek the eternal interests of the people. May the people feel this sacred connection more and more, and contribute by every appointed mean to comfort their ministers by their prayers and by their substance.

Convince us more and more of the evil of sin, and of the awful danger of living under a load of unpardoned guilt. If there are any among us not yet impressed with the evil of sin, and not yet alarmed by its consequences, O suffer us no longer to remain in this state of hardness and unconcern. Lord, convince us of sin. We thank and praise thee, most merciful God, that there is a city of refuge provided for perishing souls. O Jesus, thou art that blessed refuge. We thank our God that we have not been made the victims of Divine wrath—that wrath which is represented by the avenger of blood.

Persuade our beloved children and domestics to flee now to thine arms, O Jesus, where they can alone be safe. O suffer them not to run the hazard of waiting till to-morrow's sun.

May our aged, pious friends rejoice, that in the evening of their days they have found Christ the refuge of their souls. O enable all of us to sing, Other refuge have we none.

Graciously hear our imperfect prayers, for Jesus our dear Redeemer's sake. Amen.

THE COMFORTER.

Colerham. Uffculm. Hoxton. Claybury.

112a.

- 1 JESUS, we hang upon the word
Our longing souls have heard from thee;
Be mindful of thy promise, Lord,—
Thy promise made to such as me;
To such as Zion's paths pursue,
And would believe that God is true.
- 2 Thou say'st, I will the Father pray,
And he the Comforter shall give,
Shall give him in your hearts to stay,
And never more his temples leave;
Myself will to my orphans come,
And make you mine eternal home.
- 3 Come then, dear Lord! thyself reveal,
And let the promise now take place;
Be it according to thy will,
According to the word of grace!
Thy sorrowful disciples cheer,
And send us down the Comforter.

RIFTON, 206.

JOHN XV.

Christ's Sayings.

HEREIN is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep your's also.

21 But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.

22 If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloke for their sin.

23 He that hateth me hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated me without a cause.

26 But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me:

27 And ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

REFLECTIONS UPON JOHN XV.—Have we by appropriating faith received God the Father as our Father? we are then branches in Christ, the true Vine, deriving from him spiritual sap, life, and nourishment, glorifying the Father, and rejoicing the heart of the Son, by bringing forth the fruits of righteousness. What unspeakable joy should fill the believer's heart when, in the exercise of a living, active faith, he sees his interest in the love of Christ, and that Jesus loves him as really, and unchangeably, and constantly, as Jesus is beloved of his Father! What demonstrations Christ has given of his love! he died for foes and not for friends, and by his wondrous love his foes are changed into friends. Can I say, "He loved me, and gave himself for me?" Then we shall have reason to sing, Bless the Lord, O our souls! and all that is within us bless his holy name.

PRAYER.

WHAT reason have we, O Lord, as thy creatures, thy subjects, and particularly as thy children, to bless and praise thy name. We will praise thee, for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant, and praise is comely. Thou art Zion's King, and infinitely worthy of the songs of Zion. Thou dost build up Jerusalem; and thou dost gather together the outcasts of Israel. O Lord, thou art infinitely merciful, and therefore worthy of the praise of all thy saints; for thou healest the broken in heart, and bindest up their wounds.

O thou holy God, we confess our sinfulness, and that our minds are overspread by the foul disease of sin. We acknowledge that all our lusts and corruptions and sinful passions are grievous wounds. Jesus, thou art the Divine, the skilful, and the merciful Physician. We put our souls into thy hand, that all our diseases may be graciously removed, and our souls adorned with the beauties of holiness.

We confess, O searcher of hearts, that we have long brought forth, and that abundantly, the fruits of corruption and sin. We have brought forth the fruits of pride, of enmity, of unbelief, of carnality, of slothfulness, and of worldly mindedness. Truly our grapes have been grapes of gall, and our clusters have been bitter. May a blessed change be accomplished in us and all our relatives. Though we may be scattered over the face of the earth, may all of us be branches in Jesus, the true Vine; then shall we bring forth much fruit. O that the blessed words of our Saviour may be accomplished in our experience: Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples. As a family, and as individuals, we would earnestly pray: May we bring forth the fruits of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance; then indeed shall our heavenly Father be glorified.

Have mercy on our dear children. We have had early proofs that they are the degenerate plants of a strange vine. We pray that they may not be left to bring forth the fruits of rebellion, disobedience, and impiety. Make them and our domestics verdant plants in the garden of thy Church.

We thank our God for all the temporal and spiritual comforts we have enjoyed during the past week. May the sins of omission and commission of which we have been guilty be pardoned, through the merit of our Saviour's blood. May we be preserved this night, and raised from our beds in health of body and soundness of mind, to wait upon thee in thine earthly courts. And there may we find that there is a Holy Ghost. May we have fellowship with the promised Comforter, whom the Father will send, even the Spirit of truth, who proceedeth from the Father, and will testify of Christ.

Lord, hear our prayers, forgive our sins, and save our souls, for Jesus' sake. And may the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE CHURCH THE HONOUR OF A NATION.

Liban. Petition. Salem Nov. Priests.

s. x.

- 1 GREAT is the Lord our God,
And let his praise be great;
He makes his churches his abode;
His most delightful seat.
- 2 These temples of his grace,
How beautiful they stand!
The honours of our native place,
And bulwarks of our land.
- 3 In Sion God is known,
A refuge in distress;
How bright has his salvation shone
Through all her palaces!
- 4 When kings against her joined,
And saw the Lord was there,
In wild confusion of the mind
They fled with hasty fear.

WATTS, Ps. III.

PSALM XLVIII.

Church's Defence.

GREAT is the LORD, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in the mountain of his holiness.

2 Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King.

3 God is known in her palaces for a refuge.

4 For, lo, the kings were assembled, they passed by together.

5 They saw it, and so they marvelled; they were troubled, and hasted away.

6 Fear took hold upon them there, and pain, as of a woman in travail.

7 Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish with an east wind.

8 As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God: God will establish it for ever. Selah.

9 We have thought of thy loving kindness, O God, in the midst of thy temple.

10 According to thy name, O God, so is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of righteousness.

11 Let mount Zion rejoice, let the daughters of Judah be glad, because of thy judgments.

12 Walk about Zion, and go round about her: tell the towers thereof.

13 Mark ye well her bulwarks, consider her palaces; that ye may tell it to the generation following.

14 For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLVIII.—What must have been the alarm of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, their king, princes and rulers, when an immense army, consisting of warriors collected from many kingdoms on the shores of the Mediterranean, the Great Sea, actually advanced to the very walls of their ancient city. They prepared their battering-rams, and all their military engines, and were about to commence their work of destruction and of death. There was every appearance of success on the part of the besieging and ambitious enemy. The soldiers were panting for the spoil, and anticipating the enjoyment of their unhallowed, impure, and deadly revolting revels. But Israel's God said, "No; hitherto shalt thou come and no farther!" In a moment terror from the Lord fell upon the immense confederated army. They fled from the city in dismay. They hastened to their ships. Even there the vengeance of heaven followed them. God blew upon them with his furious winds. They sank as lead in the mighty waters. Who can conceive the joy and thankfulness which filled the minds of the devout inhabitants, when, looking from the lofty battlements of their city, they saw their enemies fleeing with dismay, whom they behold no more for ever? The believer can say, "The God who delivered Zion is my God, and will be my God, even unto death."

PRAYER.

WE desire, O Lord, as a family, to begin this sacred day with expressions of adoration and praise. Holy Spirit, to thee we lift up our eyes, that we may be assisted in this divine and honourable employment. Great art thou, O Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in the mountain of thy holiness. Who can conceive the greatness of thy nature, of thy perfections, of thy purposes, of thy deeds, and of thy government! The whole earth is full of thy glory. Day unto day uttereth speech, night unto night declareth knowledge of thee. Saints on earth proclaim thy praise, and saints in heaven sing their songs of sweetest melody.

May the greatness of thy grace and of thy salvation be proclaimed, this day, in all the Churches. May many who begin this Sabbath without any disposition to acknowledge the greatness and glory of God, before the day comes to a close find themselves sweetly persuaded to sing songs of admiration to the God of salvation.

Thy name, O Lord, is wonderful, infinitely exceeding the names and titles of all earthly princes and of all angelic powers. Thy name is glorious as the God of creation, but peculiarly and pre-eminently glorious as the God of salvation. O let thy name be soon known in all the earth as the God of salvation; then according to thy name, O God, shall be thy praise unto the ends of the earth. May thy gracious name be published with great zeal throughout the whole Christian world, by thy ministering servants, in all the Churches. To thousands and tens of thousands may the name of Jesus be as ointment poured forth. May the convinced sinner remember the name Jesus, that his fear of divine wrath may be removed, and his mind be filled with the joyful persuasion that his sins are forgiven. May the despairing sinner remember the name Jesus, and see that there is mercy for the chief of sinners; that the saying is faithful and worthy of all acceptance, that Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners, even the chief. May all thy people remember the name of Jesus this day, and be comforted in all their tribulations, encouraged in all their duties, and strengthened in all their graces.

We desire, O Lord, to rejoice that thou hast planted a Church on earth, and that thou hast most wonderfully preserved it in every period of its history. Thy Church, O God, is like a beautiful mountain of great strength, and thine enemies shall sooner pluck up the lofty hills by the roots, than disturb the security of mount Zion. Let mount Zion rejoice, and let the daughters of Zion be glad, because of the judgments thou hast inflicted on the enemies of thy Church. Fear took hold on them, and pain, as of a woman in travail. Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish with an east wind.

Meet with us as a family and as a congregation in thy courts. May thy servant our pastor be peculiarly assisted by the Holy Ghost. Enable him to speak to the case, the circumstances, and the conscience of all present. Let all thy saints enjoy thy loving-kindness in the midst of thy temple.

Give our children grace to hear what Christ shall say unto them this day, and to them may it be the day of God's power. Lord, bless our servants, and graciously make them citizens of Zion.

May the aged receive renewed strength for their journey. May our rulers bow before Immanuel's sceptre. Let all our institutions formed for the prosperity of thy Church flourish like the palm-tree; and may the tidings soon reach our ears, that the descendants of Abraham are acknowledging Jesus as the true Messiah.

Accept of our thanks for the mercies of the night, and hear our prayers, for Jesus' sake, our Surety and Saviour.

Our Father which art in heaven, &c.

SAINT AND SINNER.

Clonbury. Athlone. Leiston. Rathwell.

L. M.

- 1 WHY do the proud insult the poor,
And boast the large estates they have?
How vain are riches to secure
Their haughty owners from the grave!
- 2 They can't redeem one hour from death,
With all the wealth in which they trust;
Nor give a dying brother breath,
When God commands him down to dust.
- 3 My Saviour shall my life restore,
And raise me from my dark abode;
My flesh and soul shall part no more,
But dwell for ever near my God.

WATTS, Ps. 49

PSALM XLIX.

Emptiness of Worldly Enjoyments.

HEAR this, all ye people; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world:

- 2 Both low and high, rich and poor together.
- 3 My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.
- 4 I will incline mine ear to a parable: I will open my dark saying upon the harp.
- 5 Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil, when the iniquity of my heels shall compass me about?
- 6 They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches;
- 7 None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him:
- 8 (For the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth for ever:)
- 9 That he should still live for ever, and not see corruption.
- 10 For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others.
- 11 Their inward thought is that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwelling places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names.
- 12 Nevertheless man being in honour abideth not: he is like the beasts that perish.
- 13 This their way is their folly: yet their posterity approve their sayings. Selah.
- 14 Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling.
- 15 But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me. Selah.
- 16 Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased;
- 17 For when he dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him.
- 18 Though while he lived he blessed his soul: and men will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself.
- 19 He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light.
- 20 Man that is in honour, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

REFLECTIONS UPON PSALM XLIX.—God speaks to us in his providence, and in his word. Let us attentively hear, and believe his voice, not merely as addressed generally to mankind, but to each one of us individually, as really as if our separate name were distinctly sounded from the heavens. Faith cometh by hearing; and may our hearing issue in saving faith! Wealth is God's gift. But how impious and how perilous to put the gift in the place of God, and to place confidence in the gift, instead of God, the Divine Giver. Look to the rich man in the article of death, who made wealth, and who would not make God his confidence. He is like the beasts, which perish! Let us put our souls in Jesus' hand, and make him our confidence, and we shall stand secure for ever.

PRAYER.

IN falling down before thy throne, O Lord, we desire to feel most gratefully impressed with a sense of thy goodness experienced this day, not only in the secret and domestic, but also in the public ordinances of thy gracious appointment. Praise to thy holy name, that we were not prevented by bodily affliction or other necessary causes from entering into thy sanctuary. How amiable are thy tabernacles, Lord God of hosts! O may we know by experience, that to sit one day beneath thine eye, and to hear thy voice of mercy, love, and grace, is better than a whole eternity of carnal joys.

Before we retire to rest this night, we would commit ourselves, both soul and body—and we would commit all our beloved relatives and friends, whether connected with us by the ties of nature or of grace—to thy gracious and paternal care. O that we could perform an act of personal and family dedication to thee our God, in the prospect of the solemnities of death, and the important realities of an invisible and an eternal world! Let each one of us take God in Christ as our God; and may the language of the inspired Psalmist be the language of our souls: For this God is our God for ever and ever: and he will be our guide even unto death.

Holy Spirit, crown with thy gracious power the word of grace which has been proclaimed this day in all the Churches. We rejoice that the seed which has been sown is incorruptible seed: O that it may be followed by an abundant and incorruptible harvest! May the proud who have heard the Gospel be humbled under a sense of their unworthiness and guilt, and may all the lofty towers of their haughtiness and pride be levelled with the dust.

May a preached Gospel be effectual in convincing us and convincing thousands of the vanity of earthly riches as a portion. As gold and silver accumulated for ages cannot by any means redeem the soul, teach us to seek an interest in the righteousness of Christ; then shall we be delivered from the curse of a violated law, and obtain for our inheritance all the blessings of the covenant of grace. Affect our minds deeply O Lord, with the awful state of the death of such as trust in their wealth, and boast themselves of the multitude of their riches. If we have wealthy relatives, O Lord, deliver them from the snares of earthly wealth, and may they most earnestly seek an inheritance which will comfort them in the hour of sorrow, cheer them on the bed of death, and render them blessed and happy for ever and ever.

Suffer us not to be afraid of the rich, notwithstanding their impiety and pride. May we not be afraid when the glory of their house is increased; seeing that when the rich man dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him.

O Lord, preserve thy people from the proud and haughty persecutors who are disposed grievously to afflict them, notwithstanding the restraint of human laws. May the prospects of a blessed death and a glorious resurrection rejoice the hearts of all thy people, in the midst of the sufferings of the present life.

Lord, give to us as a family good hope through grace. Teach us and our children and all our relatives and friends, and especially our aged friends, who are bowing down to meet the grave, to say in the exercise of a lively faith, God will redeem our soul from the power of the grave; for he shall receive us.

Grant that our servants may be enriched with the treasures of grace.

Hear us mercifully, for Jesus' sake. Amen.
Our father which art in heaven, &c.

LOVE CONSTRAINING TO OBEDIENCE.

Parish. Providence College. Worcester.

C. M.

- 1 NO strength of nature can suffice
To serve the Lord aright:
And what she has, she misapplies,
For want of clearer light.
- 2 How long beneath the law I lay
In bondage and distress!
I toiled, the precept to obey;
But toiled without success.
- 3 Then, to abstain from outward sin
Was more than I could do;
Now, if I feel its power within,
I feel I hate it too.

COWPER.

DEUTERONOMY XXX.

Solemn Charge.

AND it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations whither the Lord thy God hath driven thee.

2 And shalt return unto the Lord thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul:

3 That then the Lord thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the nations, whither the Lord thy God hath scattered thee.

