THE SUCCESSION OF MINISTERS IN THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND FROM THE REFORMATION

BY HEW SCOTT, D.D.

NEW EDITION

Revised and continued to the Present Time under the Superintendence of a Committee appointed by the General Assembly

VOLUME I

SYNOD OF LOTHIAN AND TWEEDDALE

OLIVER AND BOYD
EDINBURGH: TWEEDDALE COURT

1915

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

THE design of the present work is to present a comprehensive account of the SUCCESSION OF MINISTERS of the Church of Scotland since the period of the Reformation. An attempt is made to give some additional interest by furnishing incidental notices of their lives, writings, and families, which may prove useful to the Biographer, the Genealogist, and the Historian.

The sources from which the work has been compiled are the various records of Kirk Sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and General Assemblies; together with the Books of Assignations, Presentations to Benefices, and the Commissariat Registers of Confirmed Testaments. From these authentic sources the information here collected will, it is believed, be found as accurate as the utmost care can render it. Having been commenced at an early period of life, this work has been prosecuted during all the time that could be spared from professional engagements for a period of nearly fifty years.

Some idea of the labour and continuous research involved in preparing the work may be formed when the Author states that he has visited all the Presbyteries in the Church, and about seven hundred and sixty different Parishes, for the purpose of examining the existing records. In this way he has had an opportunity of searching eight hundred and sixty volumes of Presbytery, and one hundred volumes of Synod Records, besides those of the General Assembly, along with the early Registers of Assignations and Presentations to Benefices, and about four hundred and thirty volumes of the Testament Registers in the different Commissariats.

The Author has to express his grateful acknowledgments to the Synod and Presbytery Clerks, and, indeed, to almost all the Ministers of the Church to whom he applied. While carrying on his early researches in Edinburgh, he cannot forget his obligations to the late Thomas Thomson, Esq., Deputy Clerk Register, to the late Alexander Macdonald, Esq., and other gentlemen connected with the Record Department in the General Register House. He is indebted to the Rev. Thomas Gordon of Newbattle, and the Rev. John Struthers of Prestonpans, for revising the divisions which contain the Presbyteries of Dalkeith and Haddington; also, for other services, to the Very Rev. Principal Campbell, Aberdeen; the Rev. Walter Wood, Elie; Major A. Stewart Allan, of the Bengal Staff, India; Mr William Troup, University, St Andrews; John Barron, Esq., C.A., Teind Office, and Adam C. Longmore, Esq., of the Exchequer. He likewise has, in particular, to acknowledge how much he owes to David Laing, Esq., LL.D., for the interest which he has uniformly taken in the progress of the work, and for suggestions while the sheets were at press.

The plan adopted by the Author was to follow the usual division into Synods and Presbyteries, and to embrace the Ministers of the several Churches from the Reformation in 1560 to June 1839. At the request, however, of some of his friends, in order to make the work more complete, by bringing it down to the present time, the names of Ministers are added who have since been appointed.

The Part now issued comprises the important Synod of Lothian and Tweeddale. The next Part, which is already in the Printer's hands, will include the three Southern Synods of Merse and Teviotdale, of Dumfries, and of Galloway. It will be followed by the Synod of Glasgow and Ayr. It only remains to add, that so far as the Author is able to calculate from what has already been completed, the work will be comprised in three volumes, forming a companion to the Origines Parochiales Scotiæ, of which it may, in some measure, be regarded as a continuation. Being undertaken altogether as a labour of love, the Author begs to add, that any profits will be devoted to the Societies for the Sons, and the Institution for the Daughters of the Clergy.

NOTE TO THE PRESENT EDITION

FOLLOWING an Overture to the General Assembly, a Committee was appointed to deal with the Continuation of the Fasti Ecclesie Scoticane. A Revision of the whole work was afterwards agreed upon. The present edition, therefore, is the result. Synods and Presbyteries are arranged in the order of the Roll of the General Assembly, and Parishes alphabetically under Presbyteries. A condensed notice of each minister's career is now given under his last incumbency, except in the case of professors and bishops, who are placed under a separate heading. The genealogical and bibliographical details have been much extended, proper names modernised, and some irrelevant matter omitted. A selection of the authorities quoted by Dr Hew Scott has been retained, and some newer ones added. For the Continuation, authorities are only occasionally mentioned, the information having been derived from the ecclesiastical records and the ministers themselves, or their descendants and acquaintances. Session and Presbytery Records have been again consulted, and considerable additions made from the Separate Register. Parish and family histories, biographies, and books of reminiscence have yielded an abundant crop of fresh information. To each volume a Bibliography of local literature is appended, also an Index of Parishes and Ministers mentioned therein, and in the last volume a cumulative Index of the whole work will appear.

So many persons have kindly given assistance in the preparation of this work it is impossible to thank them in detail, but mention must be made of the Clerks of Presbyteries, whose help has proved invaluable, and of John Maitland Thomson, LL.D., to whose learned researches the Committee is much indebted.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF HEW SCOTT, D.D.

I.

THE making of the Fasti Ecclesie Scoticanæ is a curious and stimulating example of literary industry. Mainly the work of one man, it was the undertaking of a lifetime. Those who have tested the value of the work will best appreciate its magnitude, as well as the manifold difficulties which must have faced its projector. It was a toiler's task, possible only through much patient perseverance, and its completion after forty or fifty years' arduous labour was an achievement of infinite merit. As Dr Hew Scott's letters show, the strain was enormous, the sympathy depressingly sparse. At times there was disappointment enough almost to crush the eager spirit of the worker, and to put an untimely finis on his enterprise. Still he stooped to his self-imposed burden in the temper of which heroes are made. Year after year Scott pursued his remarkable perambulations, in the course of which he visited, he computed, about seven hundred and sixty parishes. He must have ransacked many hundreds of musty old registers belonging to every kirk-session and presbytery within his purview. As a probationer he began the Fasti, and as a veteran of eighty he gave the last touches to his opus magnum. Coadjutors were few and were mostly concerned with the first volume—enthusiasts like Dr Gordon of Newbattle, Dr Struthers of Prestonpans, and David Laing, LL.D., prince of bibliophiles. Laing may be described as prompter-in-chief. Indeed, but for him there would have been no Fasti at all. Soured at the lack of preferment, Scott volunteered for service in Canada, and was actually on his way to the boat when Laing met him and persuaded him to remain at home. Until he became the minister of a parish, the accumulation of material for the Fasti engrossed most of Scott's attention. He carried on researches in all the likely sources, copied extracts with minute, painstaking care, and left no stone unturned to ensure the thoroughness and completeness of his task. The first portion of the work (it was in three volumes of two parts each) appeared in 1866, the last in 1871. The price was twenty-five shillings a part, and the impression was limited to 250 copies.

The Fasti was pre-eminently a labour of love. Whatever profits might accrue from it were to be devoted to the Societies for the Sons of the Clergy and the Ministers' Daughters' College. At least £200 are known to have reached those institutions out of the Scott exchequer. That amount may or may not have been a contribution from Fasti profits. From Scott's letters to Laing we learn that the prospects were anything but rosy: "I thought, at least was always told, that the sales were greater, and as I expected something would be gained, perhaps not much, I find myself disheartened, and tremble at proceeding further. No gin-horse has worked harder than I have done for years, and here is the result—only making business for printers and booksellers." And again: "I am puzzled about going on with such a loss. The sales show that few of the great or literary folks care for it." A third letter informs Dr Laing that of 250 copies of one part, 96 were sold, 12 were in the author's hands, while 142 remained on the booksellers' shelves. Hew Scott's last letter to David Laing is full of pathos: "I received yours when in bed yesterday (4th Dec. 1871), where I have been for eight or ten days. I am very thankful my humble, or what you call great work, is so near a close. Dr Gordon wrote me lately something similar when I told him I intended doing no more, but he persuaded me it would be necessary to give the Moderators. The work at the very outset brought me into trouble, even with the purest intentions, and has been carried on under sometimes great privations, at times under great depression of spirit, exertions few constitutions could have undergone, and an expense which to many might have been a little fortune. For the last twelve months it has been carried on in a sick-room and nursing an affectionate partner, and last of all, threatened with blindness. So you may judge if I would not gladly be done with it. Whoever is dissatisfied with my past labour is very welcome to try his hand and make it better. I know of none such except two individuals."

But if the author of the Fasti toiled and sowed in tears, the herculean labour of his life has not been lost. The Fasti has filled a noble niche in Scottish ecclesiastical history. As a work of reference it has long taken a high place, and its pages have been a mine for the digging of every local annalist. By the triumphant realisation of his early dream, Hew Scott made not merely the Church but the whole of Scotland his debtor.

II.

The story of his career can be told in few words. Hew Scott was an admirable illustration of the pursuit of knowledge under difficulties. Born at Haddington, 5th February 1791, he was the son of Robert Scott, an Excise officer (Scotticè, gauger), who counted kin with Sir Walter's own sept of the romantic Border clan. His mother (her husband's second wife) was Catherine Dunbar, a native of Coldingham. Hew took to learning early, "could conjugate amo in his tenth year," and was altogether a promising "lad o' pairts." Dr Lorimer of the First Charge of Haddington encountered him deciphering Latin lines on an old tombstone there. "You'll be a minister yet," said the clergyman, and the words so rang in the boy's ears that he could not sleep. His father died about this time, leaving wife and family practically penniless. The opening of a little shop helped to keep the wolf from the door, and Hew was apprenticed to an ironmonger of the burgh. There is a tradition that he added stationery to his mother's slender stock, hawking that commodity from house to house in the evenings. At twenty we find him blossoming into a bookseller.¹ But the minister's prophecy was coming true. Ambition may have been fostered by the example of George Dunbar, who, from a disabled gardener's boy, found his way to the University, and was rising into fame as a Greek scholar. It is more than likely that Dunbar himself paved the way for his kinsman's entrance on a scholastic career. Hew Scott's name appears in the Edinburgh matriculation album for the first time in Session 1813-14, and for the last time in Session 1819-20. He followed a somewhat unsystematic but comprehensive course—giving attendance on the classes of Humanity, Logic, Greek, Natural Philosophy, Moral Philosophy, Scots Law, Anatomy, Surgery, Chemistry, Practice of Medicine, Agriculture, Hebrew, and Divinity. "Had the war continued," he said, "I would have been a doctor in the army instead of a minister of the Kirk." During two sessions he acted as assistant-librarian of the University, and for this service he was rewarded by a remission of the matriculation fee of half a sovereign. It is singular to find him graduating at Aberdeen in preference to Edinburgh. Aberdeen, it seems, was "a more frugal Senatus," and having applied to King's College, the degree of M.A. was conferred, 2nd December 1816, "in consideration of his attainments as a student, and on the recommendation of James Ferguson of Pitfour and John Buchan, W.S.”

III.

Sometime in his Arts curriculum, Hew Scott became known to Thomas Thomson, Deputy Clerk-Register of Scotland, most erudite of legal antiquaries. Thomson had set out to reform the whole system of public registries and the method of the custody of records in rendering these records accessible to research, in rescuing and repairing old records, in editing the Acts of the Scottish Parliament and other governmental registers, under authority of a Record Commission. Scott became one of Thomson's best helpers. The work was congenial, and it may have inspired the idea of the Fasti, although the zealous researcher was acquainted with Le Neve's Fasti Ecclesie Anglicanæ—a monumental work like his own that was to be.

His divinity course completed, Scott was licensed by the Presbytery of Haddington 24th October 1820. In 1829 he received ordination in order to proceed to Canada—a step frustrated by the appeal of David Laing, as has been already stated. Assistantships followed at Garvald, Ladykirk, Cockpen, and Temple. The minister of Cockpen was his college friend, James Grierson. “I was not a little encouraged by his story,” Scott used to say; “like many of us, he had two strings to his bow, and kept a drug shop for years in the North Bridge till he was presented to a parish, Lord Dalhousie writing the preferment on the field of Echlar.”

Promotion came at long last to the indefatigable investigator. On the death of Dr Carstairs, Sir Windham Carmichael Anstruther offered Scott the parish of Anstruther Wester, and he was admitted 12th June 1839. The Rev. Jardine Wallace, of Traquair, used to relate how Hew Scott arrived one evening at his father's manse of St Michael, Dumfries. In the course of conversation he spoke somewhat sadly of the changes which had taken place from the Secession of 1843. Mrs Wallace said: “Mr Scott, were you not tempted to go out?” “No! no!” he naively replied, “I had too much difficulty to get in.” Scott's curious story about the actual genesis of the Secession may be recalled: “In the arrangement of viands for a party at dinner, one of the guests, wife of the schoolmaster, who was also assistant minister in the parish [Marnoch], happened to make some observations about its impropriety, which gave offence to her hostess. This caused considerable ill-feeling, and laid the foundation for disputes of various kinds in the Presbytery, which at length terminated in the Secession of 1843, inflicting a severe wound on the Church of Scotland." The author of the Fasti had no leaning towards the popular party. He stoutly opposed the measures of the non-Intrusionists, and supported Charles Rogers (afterwards his assistant) in the attempt to depose Sir David Brewster from the Principalship of St Andrews for his adherence to the Free Church.

Hew Scott received the honorary degree of D.D. from St Andrews in 1867. He was an exemplary minister of the old school—"his preaching much, but more his practice wrought, a living sermon of the truths he taught." Into all his work—both in the pulpit and out of it—he put his best. Parochial movements were assured successes under his sagacious pilotage. He had his peculiarities and foibles. From the established mode of worship he would brook no variation. A "repeating" tune was anathema—and he declined to preach in a church where the Doxology was sung. He was the strictest of disciplinarians, but behind all his outward severity beat a heart that was warm, and true, and kind. He was penurious to a proverb—his besetting fault—a relic, doubtless, of less fortunate days. "No nail, or potato, or turnip, or piece of coal was ever left on the road by Hew Scott." Dr Rogers declared that he never bought writing paper, but wrote all the Fasti on letter-backs—a precursor of the modern card index method, quaint, but in his hands thoroughly effective, the result showing a marvellous mastery of the multifarious materials collected at divers times and places. He used turned envelopes for his correspondence, a fact which was demonstrated after his death, when his desk was opened and disclosed "nearly 2000 envelopes all reversed, the stamps and addresses being in the inside, according to which the old economist had been in the habit, almost from the day of Sir Rowland Hill's penny postage, of refolding the covers of his correspondence for future use." It has been hinted that he was the hero of the story told by Dr William Chambers, about a minister who married the schoolmaster's widow for the sake of the dead dominie's new coat. That, however, is baseless. He married the lady (one who knew him well, told Dr Hay Fleming) "because she had shown so much kindness to her husband [Alexander M'Dougall] in his illness, and because if he married her she would receive a substantial allowance from the Ministers' Widows' Fund, and thus be rewarded for her untiring devotion to the schoolmaster." Dr Scott died at Anstruther, 12th July 1872; his widow, Sarah (daughter of James Kennedy, a Colmonell farmer), surviving him till 1st May 1874. He left £9000 mostly to the Kennedy family, and a parcel of land at Pittenweem—"two crofts and a toft"—to endow the "Scott and Dunbar Bursary" in his alma mater. His large and interesting library was disposed of by auction. Parsimonious he never was where any rare volume was at stake. The Laing letters are full of references to book sales and the picking up of rarities. Scott's passion was books, and his book-plate (displaying an array of books surmounted by a John Knox bust, a scroll with the "Amo" of the Buccleuch Scotts, and the "buck that in the cleuch was ta'en") is a sure indication of where his heart lay. Hot and choleric on occasion, he was as a little child when surrounded by tomes that were his dearest treasures.

Such, then, was the compiler of the Fasti. Seldom has a finer piece of work been carried out with almost the minimum of encouragement. Yet one of the author's sunniest moments was Dr Chalmers's benediction on the superlative undertaking: "Go on, Mr Scott, go on; the unborn will bless you, sir. It is the work I would so like to do." Courtly compensation for much that might have been! To have earned the approval of Thomas Chalmers was not only recognition worth while: it was stimulus sufficient for the perfecting of what was truly a patriot's legacy to posterity.

[THE RECORDS, contained in nineteen volumes, date from 1st April 1589 to 27th April 1596 (volume recovered from University of Edinburgh—vide Presbytery); from 14th April 1640 to May 1661; and from July 1687 to the present day.]

PRESBYTERY OF EDINBURGH

[Excepting blanks from 1st November 1750 to 3rd June 1753, the Registers are complete from 14th May 1701 to the present day. One volume previous to 1638, and all after till 14th May 1701, were destroyed by a fire at the Presbytery Clerk's house in the Lawnmarket, 28th October 1701. Three volumes of Records, from 19th April 1586 to 24th August 1603 (with blanks from 24th March 1589-90 to 13th April 1591)—and the Synod volume mentioned above—were restored by the University of Edinburgh, in whose possession they had been for over two hundred years. The Presbytery raised an action in the Court of Session, which was defended. On 16th July 1890, Lord Wellwood gave judgment in favour of the pursuers, finding the Presbytery entitled to the books and documents claimed, and ordaining the defenders to deliver them up. The grounds of decision were: (1) that the Presbytery were the successors of the Presbytery to whom they belonged; (2) that the Records, being those of the established courts of the country, were extra commercium, and the pursuers were not barred by prescription or the presumption arising from long possession or acquiescence. The decision was appealed to the Inner House, but was abandoned by the University when the case was about to be heard in the Second Division of the Court, 28th November 1890. For a complete statement of the case see Appendix to Report to Assembly, 1891, and Scottish Law Reporter, xxviii., 567.]

ADDIEWELL (Q.S.).

[A Mission in connection with West Calder was started in 1871, the services being held in a hall. Amongst those who served as missionaries were William Fotheringham Cameron (afterwards of Tweedmouth); John Kerr (Dirleton); John Gunson (Kingston, Glasgow); and, in 1879, William Peter McLaren. The Mission became a separate charge in 1882. A church, costing £1550, was opened 3rd

April 1885, and on 23rd Jan. 1893 Addiewell was erected into a parish quoad sacra.]

WILLIAM PETER M'LAREN, born 1893 Edinburgh, 12th July 1843; educated at Edinburgh Univ.; student missionary at Addiewell from 1879; licen. by Presb. of Edinburgh 6th May 1882; ord. 12th July 1882; died 2nd May 1894. He marr. 1871, Jean Robertson, and had issue—William David, professor in Thomason College, Roorkee, India; David John,

[St Cuthbert's Church and parish of Halis or Hailes, now Colinton, was founded about 1095 A.D. by Ethelred, Earl of Fife, son of Malcolm III. and Queen Margaret. A church dedicated by David de Bernham, 27th Nov. 1248, was probably destroyed during the English invasion, 1544-5. A church built on the present site in 1636 was rebuilt in 1771, and again in 1907. Drummond, Edinburgh, a chief promoter of the improvements in the city, to Catherine, daugh. of Sir James Campbell of Aberuchill, Bart.; dep. 24th March 1742, for deserting his charge two years without leave. He demitted 27th April 1743, the sentence of deposition being recalled. He claimed to be entitled to the benefit of the Ministers' Widows' Fund. This the Trustees refused, and brought an action of declarator, which he defended, when it was found by the Lord Ordinary, 21st Nov. 1747, "that having demitted his charge as min. of D. in April 1743, he was not in the sense of the Act of Parl. a min. of the Church of Scotland on the 25th March 1744, and that he, his wife and children, are entitled to none of the benefits arising from the Act." The decision was confirmed by the whole Lords. He died 7th Feb. 1748. He was a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London, and was "eminent for learning, honesty, moderation, good-nature, and a benevolent disposition." His leisure hours were employed in the study of philology. Publications—Essay on the Antiquities of Great Britain and Ireland (Edinburgh, 1738); Tracts illustrating the Celtic Antiquities of Great Britain and Ireland (Edinburgh, 1738); Collection of Letters, in which the Imperfection of Learning, even among Christians, and a Remedy for it is Hinted (Edinburgh, 1739)—all these, with slight modifications, being the same book, although under different titles; Letters, Essays, and other Tracts relating to the Antiquities of Great Britain and Ireland (London, 1744). He proposed publishing a Celtic Dictionary, but it went no farther than a prospectus and specimen page, though receiving every encouragement from a committee of the General Assembly in 1737. — [Trustees' Reports; *Sinclair's Stat. OLD GREYFRIARS.

[In 1598 Edinburgh was divided into four parishes, and on 18th May of that year the High or Upper Tolbooth, then situated in the west part of St Giles, was allocated as a church for the South-West Quarter of the city. In the following year the "bigging of ane new kirk in the Kirk-of-Feyld yaird" was proposed, being either to the south or east of the present University buildings. That proposal was given up, and another made, 6th Nov. 1601, of "bigging a kirk in the Greyfriars burying-ground" (formerly the garden of the Grey Friars convent), "ye maist meitt and convenient plaice." Nothing, however, was done until 1612. The church was built very slowly, and was not opened till Christmas 1620, when Patrick Galloway preached. In Nov. 1650 much of the inside work was destroyed by the English soldiery. Following a reparation about 1653, the church was soon after (1656) divided into two by a partition wall, which, however, was removed in 1663. Unfortunately the steeple was used as a magazine for holding gunpowder. On 7th May 1718 it was blown up, and part of the church carried away. Another catastrophe followed more than a hundred years later. Through the overheating of one of the flues the building took fire on the morning of Sunday, 19th Jan. 1845, and in a few hours nothing was left but the strong old rubble walls. After considerable delay it was again restored, and reopened 13th June 1857.]

ROBERT ROLLOCK, born 1555, son 1598 of David R., of Kinledie and Powis, and Mariota Livingston, connected with the noble family of that name; educated at Stirling Grammar School and St Andrews Univ.; M.A. (1573); regent and sole teacher at Edinburgh College, 1585-6; Principal 1587-9; preached every Sunday at seven A.M., in the East Kirk; took full charge of the East Kirk 1596; Moderator of General Assembly 1597; adm. 18th April 1598; died 8th Jan. 1599; a man of singular piety and integrity of life, unceasing in his labours, and vigilant in his superintendence. He marr. in 1587, Helen, daugh. of James Baron of Kinnaird, who survived him, and had a posthumous daugh., Jean, bapt. 22nd April 1599 (marr. Robt. Balcanquhal, min. of Tranent). ROBERT TRAIL, born 1603, son of 1649 Colonel James T., of Killeleary, Ireland, Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to Henry, Prince of Wales, and grandson of the Laird of Blebo, and Matilda Melvill of Carnbee; M.A. (St Andrews, 21st July 1621); studied at the Protestant College of Saumur; English tutor in France to the sister of the Duc de Rohan 1628; chaplain to Archibald, Marquess of Argyll (beheaded 1661); ord. to Elie 17th July 1639; chaplain to the Scots army at Marston Moor 1644; elected by the Town Council 7th Nov. 1648; trans. and adm. 23rd March 1649. In 1650 he attended the Marquess of Montrose on the scaffold. He preached before Charles II. at his coronation at Scone in 1651. In 1654 he was appointed by Cromwell one of those for certifying the ability and piety of such as were fit to be admitted to the ministry in the Lothian and Border provinces. With several others he was committed to Edinburgh Castle, 23rd Aug.

1660, for engaging in a new Remonstrance, where he lay for ten months, when, having fallen sick, he was temporarily permitted to return home. He was next charged with high treason before the Privy Council, when he obliged himself, 11th Dec. 1662, to remove from the kingdom within a month, under pain of death. Owing to tempestuous weather he experienced difficulty in finding a ship in which to sail to Holland, and the Privy Council granted him a month's further grace in which to take his departure. In a petition he states that he "is towards the age of sixty years, if not more, and so cannot weill take such a journey in such a season without evident hazard of his life" (*Reg.

P. C.*). For some years he carried on a weekly correspondence with his friend Guthrie of Fenwick. Returning to Edinburgh, he died 12th July 1678, and was buried in Greyfriars. A portrait of him is preserved in Smith's Iconographia Scot and Pinkerton's Scottish Gallery. He marr.
23rd Dec. 1639, Jean (died Dec. 1680), daugh. of Alexander Annand of Auchterallan, Aberdeenshire, and Margaret Cheyne (who suffered imprisonment, June 1665, for corresponding with her husband in his exile), and had issue—William, min. of Borthwick; Robert, min. in London, and Bass Rock prisoner, born 1642, died 16th May 1716; James, Lieut. of Stirling Castle, bapt. 10th March 1650, died 1721; Helen (marr. Thomas Paterson, min.

JOHN ROBERTSON, a West countryman; M.A. (Glasgow 1654); chaplain to Alexander, Earl of Leven; min. of the Second Charge, Kirkcaldy, 1658; trans. to Dysart 1661; pres. by the Town Council 6th Oct., trans. and adm. (in the High Church) 6th Nov. 1662. Having countenanced a movement in favour of a National Synod, he incurred the king's displeasure, who, 16th July 1674, directed his removal to the manse of Auchterless. In 1675 he submitted, petitioning to be restored to his charge, and was released by the Privy Council 27th April of that year; was Almoner to His Majesty 24th March 1681; D.D. (St Andrews, 6th Nov. 1686); died 11th Jan. 1691. He marr. Jan. 1659, Elizabeth Scott, a gentlewoman in the Leven family, who was buried in Greyfriars, 26th Jan. 1692.—[*Edin. GILBERT RULE, born about 1629, probably in Edinburgh, where his brother, Archibald, was one of the bailies (there is some likelihood, however, that he was born at Elgin in Oct. 1628, see Tate's Alnwick); after a distinguished career at the Univ. of Glasgow, where he was regent, he became (at an unusually early age), Sub-Principal of King's College, Aberdeen. Thence he went to Alnwick to be minister of a Dissenting congregation. After the Restoration he was much molested by local authorities, who tried to force upon him the use of the English Prayer Book. In 1662 he was ejected under the "Bartholomew Act." He returned to Scotland, preached for a time in Fife, but incurring the displeasure of the Privy Council, fled to France and Holland. He took the degree of M.D. at Leyden, and practised medicine. In 1679 he was in Berwick-on-Tweed, where he was engaged both as a minister and a doctor. He was indulged at Linton Bridge, East Lothian, in the same year, but on going to Edinburgh and officiating at the baptism of a niece's child in St Giles (though with the full consent of Turner, the Episcopal minister), he was apprehended and sent to the Bass. The sea air made him seriously ill, and after three months he was discharged under bond to quit the kingdom. He returned to Berwick, where he evaded arrest by keeping on the English side of the Tweed. For a time he was minister of a congregation in Dublin, and on 7th Dec. 1688 he received a call to this charge, which was confirmed by the Town Council, 24th July 1689. He was Principal of the Univ. in the following year, and retained both situations till his death, 7th June 1701. Engaging usually in study till a late hour, he was termed "the Evening Star" (in contrast to the Professor of Divinity, who was called "the Morning Star"), and was distinguished for great learning, piety, candour, and moderation. He marr. 4th Feb. 1655, Janet Turnbull (who was buried 7th March 1699), and had issue—Gilbert, M.D.; Andrew, advocate, died Dec. 1708; Alexander, Professor of Hebrew in Edinburgh Univ. 1694; Rachel; Janet. JAMES HART, born 1663, son of James H., Provost of Jedburgh; M.A. 1702 (Edinburgh, 11th July 1687); ord. to Ratho 4th July 1692; called 29th July, app. by the Presb. 9th, and adm. 20th Sept. 1702. In autumn 1714 he was appointed by the Commission of Assembly one of those to congratulate George I. on his accession to the throne of Great Britain, and in Aug. 1726 Almoner to His Majesty; died 10th June 1729. He was greatly opposed to the Union, and denounced from the pulpit as a traitor to the Church, his colleague Carstares, who was a chief promoter of the measure. He marr. (1) 4th Aug. 1692, Margaret Livingston; (2) Mary Campbell, and had issue—John, born 1703; Alexander, born 1705; Mary, born 1707; William, born 1708; James, born 1709; David, born 1711; Charles, born 1712; Archibald, wine merchant, Edinburgh, born 1713; Margaret, born 1715; Katherine, born 1716 (marr. 22nd Feb. 1741, James Thomson, merchant, Edinburgh); George and Wilhelmina, born 1717; Frances, born 1718 (marr. 30th Aug. 1741, Andrew Stevenson, writer, Edinburgh). WILLIAM ROBERTSON, born Borthwick, 8th Sept. 1721, son of William 1761 R., min. of Greyfriars; educated at the Grammar School of Dalkeith, and Univ. of Edinburgh; licen. by Presb. of Dalkeith 28th June 1743; ord. to Glads-muir 17th April 1744; enlisted as a volunteer 1745; trans. to Lady Yester's 15th June 1758; D.D. (Edinburgh 1758); chaplain of Stirling Castle 1759; one of His Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary 1761; trans. and adm. 26th Nov. 1761; Principal of the Univ. of Edinburgh 1762; Moderator of the General Assembly 26th May 1763; Historiographer-Royal for Scotland 6th Aug. following; died 11th June 1793. Unrivalled in persuasive eloquence, he acquired great influence in the General Assembly and guided its business for twenty-eight years. He insisted on the independence of the Church in opposition to dependence on the policy of political parties; on obedience being shown to the General Assembly by the inferior judicatories; and on the enforcement of the law of patronage, unless on cause shown, of erroneous doctrine, or immoral conduct. His industry, accuracy, and profound views, joined to the elegance and beauty of his style, entitle him to a high rank among historians. He marr. 22nd Aug. 1751, Mary (born 10th Jan. 1723, died 11th March 1802), daugh. of James Nisbet, one of the min. of the Old Kirk

JOHN INGLIS, born 1762, youngest son of Harry I., min. of Forteviot; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; licen. by Presb. of Perth 28th Sept. 1785; ord. to Tibbermore 20th July 1786; pres. by the Town Council 3rd July, trans. and adm. 17th Oct. 1799; D.D. (Edinburgh, March 1804); Moderator of the General Assembly 17th May following; one of the Deans of the Chapel Royal 23rd Feb. 1810; died 2nd Jan. 1834. He had great weight in the councils of the Church, and was sometime leader of the Moderate party. In personal appearance he was stately and commanding. Through his influence the General Assembly, on 27th May 1824, agreed to appoint a committee for Foreign Missions. He was the first convener, and did much to forward its interests. He marr. 16th Oct. 1798, Maria Moxham Passmore, who died 12th Jan. 1864, aged 87, and had issue—Harry, of Loganbank, W.S., born 25th May 1800, died 7th May 1883; Abraham Passmore, an officer in the army, born 14th Jan. 1803; William Bryce, born 30th Aug. 1806, died 1808; The Right Hon. ROBERT LEE,* born Tweedmouth, 11th Nov. 1804, son of George L., boatbuilder, and Jane, daugh. of Robert Lambert; educated at the Gram-

* Almost all the notices of Robert Lee's life contain erroneous statements as to his earlier years, his poverty, etc. The following is derived from first-hand information. His grandfather, Robert Lee, was a shipbuilder, and marr. Lily, daugh. of Isaac Davidson, a clever woman, a sweet singer, and a good violinist. Their son, mar School of Berwick-on-Tweed, and in 1824 entered the Univ. of St Andrews. When he finished his studies in 1832, Principal Haldane said: "This University has not for many years sent forth a more distinguished student. He has gained during a succession of years the highest honours which the University can award"; licen. by Presb. of St Andrews 10th May 1832; ord. to Inverbrothock Chapel-of-Ease 10th April 1833; pres. to Campsie, and adm. 5th May 1836; trans. and adm. 9th Nov. 1843; D.D. (St Andrews 1844); Dean of the Chapel Royal, and one of H.M. Chaplains-in-Ordinary 1846; Professor of Biblical Criticism in Edinburgh Univ. 20th Jan. 1847. In 1857, he began his reform of the Presbyterian Church service. He restored the reading of prayers, and introduced the custom of kneeling at prayer and standing during praise. In 1863 a harmonium was placed in his church, and in 1865 an organ. These innovations provoked keen opposition in the Church Courts, and the Greyfriars' case was still pending before the General Assembly when on 22nd May 1867 he fell from his horse in Princes Street, struck with paralysis. He died at Torquay, 14th March 1868. He marr. 21st June 1836, Isabella Carrick Buchanan, who was granted a Civil List pension of £100 a year on 17th Nov. 1868; she died 4th Sept. 1889, and had issue—Margaret, born 29th July 1837 (marr. Lockhart Thomson, S.S.C.), died 26th March 1862; George, born 17th March 1839, died 13th Sept. 1862; Bella, born 7th Dec. 1840, died 11th Nov. 1863; Jane Anne, born 5th April 1843, died 19th Aug. 1858; Catherine Napier, born 13th July 1845. ROBERT WALLACE, born 24th June 1869 1831, son of Jasper W., gardener, Kincauld, Fife, and Elizabeth Archibald; educated at the parish school of Culross, and Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1853); Classical Master of Cupar Academy 1854; licen. by Presb. of Edinburgh July 1857; ord. to Newton-on-Ayr 23rd Dec. 1857; trans. to Trinity Parish, Edinburgh, 21st Dec. 1860; trans. and adm. 26th Dec. 1868; D.D. (Glasgow 1869); app. to the Chair of Church History in Edinburgh Univ. 1872; res. his professorship as well

George Lee, was precentor in the Scots Church, Tweedmouth, and later treasurer, elder, and session clerk. George early entered on business as a boatbuilder on his own account, and became a fairly prosperous man, employing from eight to ten men in addition to apprentices. Robert, his son, was educated under a good classical teacher, Guy Gardiner, and served an apprenticeship of six years with his father as a boatbuilder. When he was nine years old the father was able to buy a substantial house, still occupied by a relative. The story of his having to sell a boat for his college fees is unlikely, as his father was a prosperous man. In his vacations Robert Lee used to bring fellow-students down with him and take them out in a boat, probably built by himself. He was the eldest son. Anthony Pye, his brother, entered the Church of England, but died at the early age of twenty-five, in 1542. Another, William, who was an engineer, entered the Mint at St Petersburg, but fell under suspicion during the Crimean War, was banished to Siberia, and never more heard of.

trans. to New Greyfriars 15th June 1758;
D.D. (Glasgow 1766); trans. and adm. 9th July 1767; died 19th Jan. 1803. He was a classical scholar of distinction; for many years leader of the evangelical party in the General Assembly and a master of the preacher's art. He warmly supported a proposal in favour of foreign missions, which was opposed by Hamilton of Gladsmuir and the moderate party generally. His opening words, when replying to Hamilton, became famous in the history of the mission cause. Pointing to a Bible which lay on the table, and of which he intended to make use, and employing an expressive Scottish idiom, he said, "Moderator, rax me that Bible." The best pen-portrait of him is contained in Guy Mannering (chap.

37). He marr. 15th June 1746, the Hon.
Christian Mackay (died 20th May 1810),

ST GILES, OR THE HIGH KIRK.

[There is record evidence of a church here, very likely on the present site, in the year 854. In 1120 King Alexander I. rebuilt the church in the Norman style. Of this building characteristic features survived until 1798. During the fourteenth century, Edinburgh was captured and plundered by the English under Edward II. and Edward III., and twice St Giles was laid waste. After restoration, the church was more thoroughly ruined at the Burnt Candlemas in 1387, when Richard II. sacked the city. The western part of the fabric was soon in use again; but the restoration of the choir and transepts, which were much enlarged, lasted on into the sixteenth century. In 1467 the city endowed St Giles as a collegiate church.

It now became usual to speak of the nave, where the stonework was ancient, as the Old Kirk, while the eastern part of the building was called the New Kirk. When the movement for reform drew large crowds to St Giles, separate services began to be regularly held in the Old and New Kirks. Soon this was not enough, and the great church was partitioned off into smaller sections. In 1571 St Giles was seized by Kirkecaldie of Grange, and held by him as a stronghold for Queen Mary. This resulted in serious damage to the structure.

At the Reformation the parish of St Giles was coextensive with the city of Edinburgh. Our Lady's Kirk of Field and the other College Kirk of the Holy Trinity were not parochial charges. To meet the spiritual needs of the growing population, the first plan of the Reformers was to add to the staff of the parochial clergy. Thus St Giles was given four, and even five ministers. The better to carry out this method, the parish was divided into four districts, called the Quarters of the city. These were distinguished as the North-East Quarter, the South-West Quarter, etc. Each Quarter was placed under the special care of one of the ministers.

The choir of St Giles was known as the New Kirk, the East Kirk, or the Little Kirk, while the Old Kirk to the west was also called the Great Kirk. At length, in 1598, Edinburgh was broken up into four parishes. The North-West Quarter, as the remanent part of the ancient parish, continued to occupy the choir of St Giles, which alone became the High Kirk of the city. In it the Magistrates, the Court of Session, and other dignitaries officially worshipped. In it also was the royal pew. From its place of worship this district became known as the High Kirk Parish. The South-East Quarter became the Old Kirk Parish, and its congregation still met in the Old Kirk. For the other two Quarters separate churches were provided. To the North-East Quarter was given the fine old church of the Holy Trinity, and for the South-West Quarter a new place of worship was built at the top of the Greyfriars burial-ground.

In 1633, when a bishopric of Edinburgh was set up, the choir of St Giles was made to serve as its cathedral. But all that was annulled in 1637. Again in 1661 the choir was fitted up anew for cathedral functions. This lasted till 1689, when once more it was made a parish church. It had been intended to make the whole church a cathedral, but that was not carried out.

In 1641 the parochial areas of Edinburgh were recast, and two new city parishes were founded. Each of these got its name from an outstanding public building in it. One was called the Tolbooth Parish, and the other the Tron Parish, from the city Tron, or Weighhouse, which stood very near the east end of St Giles, close to the Cross.

From 1829 till 1833 a restoration of St Giles was carried out by the city, at a cost of nearly £21,600. Toward this Government gave a grant of £12,000. That renovation is remembered rather for what the restorers destroyed than for what they achieved. In 1870 Dr William Chambers, who had been Lord Provost of the city, began a far more real restoration. With aid from various sources, and very largely at his own expense, this was finished in 1883. But just as his great undertaking saw its end, the generous worker died. Two days after the reopening of the restored church (23rd May 1883), the funeral service of Dr Chambers was held in it. The renewed church can seat a congregation of 3000.]

JOHN KNOX was born in or near Haddington. There are grounds for accepting Morham as his birthplace. He was the son of William Knox, a peasant cultivator of the soil. All that is known of his mother is that her name was Sinclair. It seems likely that 1513-15, and not the commonly accepted date

a place of worship. Next year he revisited Scotland, returning to Geneva by the end of July. On the 2nd of May 1559, Knox was again in Scotland, and on 29th June he preached in St Giles for the first time. At a meeting held on 7th July he was elected minister, and commenced his labours immediately, preaching twice on Sundays and thrice during the week. He bore an active share in drawing up the Confession of Faith, approved of by Parliament in 1560, and the Book of Discipline. A member of the First General Assembly, 20th Dec. 1560, he was Moderator 25th Dec. 1562, and again in 1568. In 1564 he was appointed to superintend the northern churches, and in the next year those of Fife and Perthshire. He preached at the coronation of James VI., 29th July 1567. In the autumn of 1570 he was struck by apoplexy, and preached for the last time, 9th Nov. 1572, at the induction of James Lawson. He died 24th Nov. 1572. At his burial in St Giles' graveyard, the Regent Morton pronounced his éloge: "There lies one who neither feared nor flattered any flesh." He marr. (1) 1553, Marjorie (died Dec. 1560), fifth daugh. of Richard Bowes, governor of Norham Castle, and Elizabeth Aske of Aske, in the County of Durham, and had issue—Nathaniel, M.A., born May 1557; Eleazer, B.D., bapt. 29th Nov. 1558; both took orders in the Church of England, became Fellows of St John's College, Cambridge, and died without issue—Nathaniel in 1580, and Eleazer 23rd May 1591. At the time of his death, Eleazer was vicar of Clacton Magna, in the archdeaconry of Colchester: (2) on Palm Sunday, 1564, Margaret Stewart, daugh. of Andrew, Lord Ochiltree, and had issue—Martha, born 1565 (?) (marr. 1584, Alexander, eldest son of Robert Fairlie, laird of Braid, Edinburgh), died 1st Dec. 1592; Margaret, born 1567 (?) (marr. Zachary Pont, min. of Bower); Elizabeth, born 1570 (?) (marr. John Welch, min. of Ayr). Within two years of his death, Knox's widow married Andrew Ker of Faldonside (one of those who attacked Rizzio). She died 1612, leaving a son, John Ker, min. of Prestonpans.

JOHN WILLOCK. At first he appears 1560 as a friar of the Franciscan House at Ayr. Having joined the party of reform before 1541, he fled for his life to England. There he became noted as a zealous and taking preacher. This led to his arrest for heresy under an Act of Henry VIII., "for abolishing diversity of opinion" in matters of religion. Found guilty of preaching against purgatory, holy water, priestly confession, and prayer to the saints, and of holding that priests might lawfully be married, he was for some time confined in the Fleet prison. After the accession of Edward VI. he was chaplain to Henry, Duke of Suffolk, who had married King Henry's niece, and is best known as the father of Lady Jane Grey. He preached for a time in London, in St Katherine's Church, when both he and John Knox, his fast friend, were granted general license to preach anywhere in England. Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, presented him to the rectory of Loughborough in Leicestershire, a living which he continued to hold during King Edward's reign, and again during that of Queen Elizabeth for the rest of his life. Thus in his later years he was in the unique position of being at the same time a parish minister in both England and Scotland. When Mary Tudor came to the English throne in 1553, Willock fled to Embden, in the Protestant Duchy of Friesland. There he practised as a physician with much success, and rose to some eminence. In 1555, and again in 1556, the Duchess Anne of Friesland sent him to Scotland as her Commissioner on matters of trade. In 1558 he returned home, and preached for some time in Dundee, with much acceptance among the friends of reform. In 1559, when John Knox had to leave Edinburgh in peril of his life, Willock took his place as the evangelist of the Reformation. It was then that he conducted in St Giles what is believed to have been the earliest public celebration of the Holy Communion in Scotland after the reformed ritual. In 1560, when Queen Mary of Guise lay dying, the Earls of Argyll and Moray, and other Lords of the Congregation advised her to "send for a godly, learned man of whom she might receive instruction"; and Willock was chosen to minister to her, which he faithfully did. That same year he was made Superintendent of Glasgow and the West. He was also one of the six Johns entrusted with the drawing up of the First Book of Discipline, the others being John Knox, John Winram, John Spottiswood, John Douglas, and John Row. Sometime in that year he went to England, and brought home his wife, Katherine Picknavell, an English lady. He was chosen Moderator of the General Assembly in 1563, 1564, 1565, and 1568. In 1565 Queen Mary endeavoured to put a stop to his activity by having him imprisoned in Dumbarton Castle; but the Reformers were now too strong for her, and she had to depart from her purpose.

After that, Willock went back to his English rectory at Loughborough. In 1567 the General Assembly sent him a strong letter of appeal, begging him to come again to aid the good cause. This led to his return, and he was Moderator of Assembly in 1568. He went again to Loughborough, and was there in 1570 when the Regent Moray was assassinated. Knox then wished much to have the aid of his old friend in the perplexities of the time, but Willock could not come. His letter to Knox tells of his sorrow at the loss of the good regent, and of his great admiration for that departed statesman.

Willock died at the rectory of Loughborough, 4th Dec. 1585. His wife survived until 1599. His last will makes provision for his son Edmund, and Edmund's wife Grizel, also for their children John, Katherine, Mary, Bridget, Dorothy, and George.

JAMES LAWSON, born 1538, at Perth, 1572 of humble parentage; received his early education at the Grammar School of his native city under the celebrated Andrew Simson. In 1559 he became the fellow-student and friend of Andrew Melville at St Andrews; and afterwards travelled on the Continent as tutor to the young Earl of Crawford. In 1568 he was appointed to teach Hebrew in the New College, St Andrews; in 1569, after the "purging" of the University of Aberdeen, he was promoted to be Sub-Principal of King's College, and the same year he became min. of Old Machar. In 1572, "after long reasoning," he was called to be successor to Knox. Following a "trial" sermon preached on 19th Sept., he was admitted to the charge by Knox himself on 9th Nov. He assisted in the drawing up of the First Book of Discipline, and was an examiner of all books proposed to be printed. He was Moderator of the Dundee Assembly, 1st July 1580; attended the Regent Morton on the scaffold in 1581; and was zealous in defending the authority of the Church in the affair of Archbishop Montgomery, 1582. In 1584 he declaimed so vehemently against the Parliament, that the Earl of Arran said: "If Lawson's head were as great as an haystack, I shall cause it to leap from his hawse [throat]." For this he was compelled to fly, and accompanied by Balcanquhal, sought refuge at Berwick, 27th May 1584. Always a man of melancholic mood, he was so affected by the troubles of the times and the unworthy conduct of some of his flock that he resolved to leave the country altogether, and make his home in England. He had barely reached London when he was seized with illness, and died 12th Oct. 1584. James Melville spoke of him as "a man of singular learning, zeal, and eloquence, whom I never heard preach but he melted my heart with tears" (Diary, p. 146). Lawson's great educational achievement was the founding of the University of Edinburgh. He may be said to have been its principal promoter, and its best and wisest friend during the first year of its history, 1583. He marr. Janet (died 1592), daugh. of Alexander Guthrie, common clerk of Edinburgh, and had issue—James; Elizabeth; Katharine (marr. (1) Gilbert Dick; (2) Patrick Galloway, min. of St Giles, 1607). JOHN DURIE, trans. from Leith; adm. before 6th Aug. 1573. In 1580 he was Visitor or Superintendent of Teviotdale. With his colleagues, Lawson and Balcanquhal, he attended the Earl of Morton at his execution, 1581. He became conspicuous in the conflicts between the King and the Church, and for inveighing against the Court on a Fast Day, 23rd May 1582, he was called before the Privy Council and ordered to quit Edinburgh and desist from preaching. By and by he was permitted to return, when he was met and welcomed by a great concourse of people, 4th Sept. 1582. "At the Nether Bow they took up the 124th Psalm, 'Now Israel may say, and that truly,' and sang it in such a pleasant tune, in all the four parts, these being well known to the people, who came up the street bareheaded and singing, till they entered the kirk. This had such a sound and majesty as affected themselves and the huge multitude of beholders who looked over the shots and forestairs with admiration and amazement. The Duke [Lennox] himself was a witness, and tare his beard for anger, being more affrayed at this sight than anything he had ever seen since he came to Scotland. When they entered the kirk Mr Lawson made a short exhortation in the reader's place to thankfulness, and after the singing of a psalm the people departed with great joy" (Calderwood's History, iii.). In Nov. 1583 he was again charged to leave the city, and was confined to Montrose, of which parish he became minister the year following.—[*Reg. JOHN CAIRNS, probably son of Henry C., skipper in Leith (who was forced to leave the country, being denounced as a fugitive and condemned for heresy in 1538), was one of those who privily held meetings in maintenance of the Protestant faith in the city in 1555, and was "lectour of the morning prayers," or reader, in 1561.

Application was made to the Assembly, 26th June 1566, for his admission to the ministry in the city, and the matter was remitted for consideration as to his fitness and sufficiency. He is mentioned as fourth minister, 23rd Jan. 1578, though in the Book of Assiguation he appears as reader only, ten years afterwards, 1588. in the end of that year, for comparing James
VI. to Jeroboam. After the tumult, 17th Dec. 1596, for which he and his brethren were blamed, he withdrew to Fife, made an apology, and was restored to civil liberty, 22nd April 1597. He returned and re-entered on duty 24th July following. On the division of the city, he was admitted to the South or Old Kirk Quarter.

JOHN COWPER supplied the vacancy 1586 for a time, and was elected by the Town Council 23rd Nov. 1586.
Refusing to pray for Queen Mary, then under sentence of death, he was ordered by the King to leave the pulpit, that his place might be supplied by Patrick, Archbishop of St Andrews, and was imprisoned in the

PATRICK GALLOWAY, born about 1607 1551, son of Thomas G., baxter, burgess of Dundee, and Christian Nicoll; was min. of Fowlis Easter in 1576; trans. to Perth 25th April 1581; suspected of attachment to Gowrie interest, he had to take refuge in England, and failing to appear before the Council, was outlawed 6th June 1584. He became min. of the King's House 11th Feb. 1589-90, and was Moderator of Assembly 4th Aug. 1590 and 10th Nov. 1602; chaplain to James VI., and attended His Majesty at the Hampton Court Conference, 1604, acting as intermediary between the Presb. of Edinburgh and the King; adm. end of June 1607; member of the Courts of High Commission, 15th Feb. 1610, 21st Dec. 1615, and 15th June 1619. He signed the Protestation for the Liberties of the Kirk 27th June 1617, but withdrew his protest, the most obnoxious of the measures by which James sought to override the Assembly having been withdrawn. On the division of the city in 1625, he was nominated to St Giles, and his admission appointed for

ROBERT ROLLOCK, M.A., Principal
 1587 of the Univ., was appointed to teach in the East Kirk in the morning, 5th Sept. 1587, but, 13th Dec. 1589, another was appointed for that duty; in 1596 he took full charge, was Moderator of Assembly 10th May 1597, and removed to the South-West Quarter, or the Upper Tolbooth, probably the west portion of St Giles, in 1598.—[*Presb. and Edin. ROBERT BRUCE, born 1554, second 1598 son of Sir Alexander B. of Airth and Janet, daugh. of Lord Livingston and great-granddaughter of James I.); educated at St Leonard's College, St Andrews; M.A. (1572); studied law in Paris and practised his profession in Edinburgh. He was on his way to becoming a judge, but a remarkable spiritual experience "on the last night of Aug. 1581" sent him to study for the Church. He was licensed by the Presb. of St Andrews in 1587, and almost immediately called to this charge. He was Moderator of the Assembly summoned to meet on 6th Feb. 1588 to consider means of defence against the threatened invasion of the Spanish Armada. In Oct. 1589, when James VI. (who both respected and feared him) sailed to Norway to fetch his bride, and parties in Edinburgh were somewhat excited, the King appointed Bruce an extraordinary Privy Councillor, and such was his influence that he kept all quiet, and on His Majesty's return received a cordial letter of thanks, 19th Feb. 1589-90. He crowned the Queen 17th March 1590, and was again Moderator May 1592. His power and success as a preacher were very remarkable, and he continued to enjoy the King's favour till 1596, when, giving offence by his opposition to James's prelatie tendencies, he, with others, was banished from Edinburgh. He was allowed to return after a time, and in May 1598 was admitted to the Little Kirk. At first he refused the imposition of hands, not judging it an essential part of the ordination ceremony, but ultimately he consented to accept it "as a ceremony of entry only." In August 1600 the Gowrie Conspiracy took place, and Bruce being one of those who entertained doubts as to the treason of the Ruthvens, refused to offer up thanks in the manner prescribed for the King's deliverance. As a result (and spite of the efforts of his friends to get the matter settled), Bruce was ordered to quit Edinburgh, and prohibited from preaching anywhere in the kingdom upon pain of death. The last thirty years of his life were spent in various places. From 1605 to 1609 he was confined to Inverness, where he met with much hard treatment from Lord Enzie and others, but where his preaching was much appreciated by his friends. On a vacancy he supplied the charge of Forres for a time, after which, on the solicitation of his son, he received permission to return to his patrimonial estate of Kinnaird, near Stirling, where he repaired at his own expense the church of Larbert, and discharged all the duties of the ministry, officiating sometimes also at Stirling. Occasionally he resided on his other property at Monkland. "Wherever he had an opportunity of preaching, great crowds attended; he preached with remarkable power, and his own life being in full accord with his preaching, the influence he attained was almost without parallel in the history of the Scottish Church." In 1620 he was again banished to Inverness, where, broken in health and in increasing weakness, he remained till 1624. On King James's death in 1625 the severity against him was much mitigated, and by King Charles's order he was allowed to return to Kinnaird, where he died 27th July 1631. In person he was tall and dignified, with a majestic countenance and venerable appearance in the pulpit. He had a knowledge of the Scriptures beyond most of his time. Andrew Melville described him as a "hero adorned with every virtue, a constant confessor and almost martyr to the Lord Jesus," whilst Livingstone of Ancrum said: "Mr Robert Bruce I several times heard, and in my opinion never man spoke with greater power since the Apostles' days." He marr. 22nd Aug. 1590, Martha (died Nov. 1620), second daugh. of Sir George Douglas of Pittendreich, and had issue—Robert, ancestor of James Bruce, African explorer; Anna, bapt. 10th March 1595; Rebecca (marr. Andrew Young, minister: Stirling Sas., iv., 89); Margaret, bapt. 9th July 1598; Maria, bapt. 1st Sept. 1599; James; Jean, bapt. 21st Jan. 1601; Mary (marr. 15th Feb. 1618, Michael Elphinstone of Quarrel: Reg. of Deeds, cclxxviii., 295); John, a clergyman of the Church of England; Elizabeth (marr. 26th April 1624, James Campbell, younger, of Moy); Martha (marr. in 1648, James Ramsay, son to Barnbougle). JOHN HALL, son of Andrew H., 1610 burgess of Kirkeudbright; mentioned as min. of Hailes or Colinton in 1579; one of the commissioners for trial of the brethren in Lothian in 1586; trans. to Leith 24th Oct. 1596; adm. min. of the Second Charge, St Giles, 7th Dec. 1598; along with others of the city ministers he declined to believe in the genuineness of the Gowrie Conspiracy, or to offer thanks-giving for the King's escape; on 6th Aug. 1600 he was inhibited from preaching, and on 10th Sept. was called before the Privy Council, when he declared himself satisfied as to the truth of the plot against the King. He was reponed; was Moderator of Assembly in 1601; would join in no steps for the relief of the brethren who held an assembly at Aberdeen in 1605; nominated constant Moderator of Presb. in 1606; was a member of the Court of High Commission 15th Feb. 1610; trans. in terms of His Majesty's request, and adm. after 21st Feb. 1610. He was a member of General Assembly same year, and again of the Court of High Commission 21st Dec. 1615. In 1616 he drew up (with John Adamson, min. of Liberton), a Confession of Faith and Catechism. In 1617 he signed the Protestation for the Liberties of the Kirk, but withdrew his protest, and demitted March 1619, being then old and infirm. In the latter years of his life, suspected of having encouraged resistance to the Articles of Perth, he was ordered by the Privy Council to remove to Montrose. He died Aug. 1627. He marr. Margaret Arnot, niece of John Johnston, writer, Edinburgh, and of John Arnot, burghess of Edinburgh (Sas., 6th June 1592; Prot. Bk. of Henry Elder, p. 895), and had issue—John; William; Andrew, bapt. 19th July 1601; Robert, bapt. 19th Oct. 1604. Publication—Catechism (Edinburgh, 1619).—[*Edin. WILLIAM STRUTHER [STRUTHERS], born at Glasgow about 1578; probably son of the reader there; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1599); an "expectant" in the Merse in 1602; on the exercise at Glasgow 21st March 1604; adm. min. of Kirkintilloch 8th March 1607; trans. to High Church, Glasgow, 3rd May 1612; trans. to St Giles, Edinburgh, after 15th June 1614; one of four app. by the Assembly of 1616 to answer the books and pamphlets written by the Papists, and to revise the Confession of Faith previous to publication. He signed the Protestation for the Liberties of the Kirk 27th June 1617, but withdrew his protest; was a member of the Court of High Commission 15th June 1619; trans. and adm. 25th Jan. 1626. On the erection of the diocese of Edinburgh, he became Dean, and died 9th Nov. 1633. To the Universities of Edinburgh and Glasgow he left 6000 merks for theological bursaries. He marr. Elizabeth (died Feb. 1641), daugh. of Andrew Robertson of Stonehall, and had issue—Andrew, whose son John was served heir to his grandfather (G. R. Inhib., 9th May 1645); Margaret; William, bapt. 29th June 1617; James and Elizabeth (twins); Samuel. THOMAS SYDSERFF, M.A.; trans. 1634 from Trinity Parish; pres. to the Deanery of Edinburgh by Charles I. 18th Jan. 1634; elected by the Council, adm. 19th Feb., and dem. 30th July 1634, having been consecrated Bishop of Brechin (q.v.).—[Edin. Counc. Reg.; Wodrow's MS. Biog., ii.]

JAMES HANNAY, son of John H., 1635 baillie and burghess in the Canongate (of the family of Hannay of Sorbie, Wigtownshire); M.A. (Edinburgh, 22nd July 1615); min. of Kilmaurs in 1620; trans. to Canongate in 1624; pres. to the Deanery by Charles I. 13th May and 20th Oct. 1634; pres. by the Council 30th March 1635, and adm. soon after. On 23rd July 1637 he proceeded to read "Laud's Liturgy" in St Giles. The result was a brawl, when the famous Jenny Geddes flung her stool at the Dean's head. The service was interrupted; Bishop and Dean were pelted by the mob, and protests against the English Prayer Book were bitter and universal. Seldom has there been a popular tumult leading to greater results. "It not only suppressed the English Liturgy almost until the nineteenth century, but it gave an impulse to the Civil War of England, which ended in the overthrow of church and monarchy" (Dean Stanley's Lectures on the Church of Scotland). H. was dep. 1st Jan. 1639, for declining the General Assembly, and reading and defending the Service Book. He died before 21st June 1661, when his children had £100 allowed by Parliament, out of vacant stipends, on account of their father's sufferings. He marr. Isobel Brown, who was buried in the Kirk of Holyrood House, July 1674 (Canon-gate Reg.), and had issue—Magdalen; John; Martha; William; James; George; Marion (marr. ALEXANDER HENDERSON was born 1639 at Luthrie, in the Fife parish of Creich, in 1583. Of his parentage and family history hardly anything is known. Tradition says he was the son of a feuair, and a cadet of the Hendersons of Fordel. In support of the latter statement, his remains lie in the burying-ground of that family in Greyfriars Churchyard, and a contemporary portrait of him is still in possession of a representative of that house. At the age of sixteen he matriculated at St Salvator's College, St Andrews, and took his degree of M.A. in 1603. From 1603 to 1611 he was a Regent of Philosophy, and during that period he completed his course in divinity. He adopted strong prelatie principles, and was a staunch upholder of Archbishop Gledstanes, who afterwards became his patron, and presented him to the parish of Leuchars. His settlement was so unpopular that on the day of his ordination, probably in Jan. 1614, the church doors were found securely nailed up, and he and his friends were obliged to enter by the window. A Communion sermon preached in a neighbouring parish by Robert Bruce of Kinnaird, was the means of changing Henderson's spiritual outlook. Attracted by the fame of the preacher, he slipped (so goes the story) into the darkest corner of the church, hoping to steal out again unrecognised. Bruce chose for his text the words: "He that entereth not by the door," etc. The effect of his earnest appeal won Henderson to the side of Presbyterianism. His first appearance in that connection was at the Perth Assembly of 1618, when he strenuously opposed the Five Articles, notwithstanding the threats of the Government. In Aug. 1619 he appeared before the Court of High Commission charged with the publication of a pamphlet denouncing the Perth Assembly. But nothing came of the matter, and Henderson returned to his parish. Of the next eighteen years we know little or nothing. With the memorable year 1637 he reappears on the scene, a keen opponent of "Laud's Liturgy," which King Charles was determined to foist on the Church. Mainly through Henderson's influence the National League and Covenant was signed, 21st Feb. 1638, and he was Moderator of the Assembly which met at Glasgow, 21st Nov. of the same year. He received calls to St Andrews, and Greyfriars, Edinburgh, and was translated to this charge, 10th Jan. 1639. He was appointed a Commissioner for framing a treaty of peace with England, and was again Moderator in 1639. In Jan. 1640 he was Rector of the University of Edinburgh, and held office for the rest of his life. In 1641 he preached before King Charles at Holyrood, and was made Dean of the Chapel Royal. A third time he was Moderator, 2nd Aug. 1643, and was elected a member of the Westminster Assembly of Divines. He declined the principalship of St Mary's College, St

Andrews, and died unmarried 19th Aug. 1646. Next to the Church, Henderson's greatest service was devoted to the University of Edinburgh. "He was the ablest educationist and the man of clearest insight of all who had to do with the college since its foundation. He saw what was wanted, and had the energy and the tact necessary for securing it. It would have been an inestimable advantage for the universities of Scotland if his life could have been prolonged for twenty years" (Grant's Univ. of Edinburgh, i., 209). GEORGE GILLESPIE, born 21st Jan.

1647 1613, son of John G., min. of Kirkcaldy; studied at St Andrews, and is said to have graduated M.A. 1629, though the date is probably that on which he entered the University; bursar of the Presb. of Kirkcaldy. He became chaplain to John, Viscount Kenmure; to John, Earl of Cassilis, and tutor to his son,

James, Lord Kennedy; ord. to Wemyss 26th April 1638; had calls to Aberdeen and St Andrews; trans. to Greyfriars, Edinburgh, 23rd Sept. 1642. He was a member of the Westminster Assembly of Divines, 1643, and though the youngest member, by his learning, zeal, and sound judgment, gave essential assistance in the preparation of the Directory and Confession of Faith. He took final leave of Westminster 10th July 1647, and presented the Confession of Faith to the General Assembly on 4th Aug., obtaining its ratification. This disposes of the legend which connects him with the Shorter Catechism, which was not begun till 5th Aug. Dr Hew Scott mentions the fable that Gillespie drew it up "in the course of a single night." He was elected to this charge by the Town Council 22nd Sept. 1647, and adm. shortly after; Moderator of Assembly 12th July 1648; died at Kirkcaldy 16th Dec. 1648. He marr. Margaret Murray, who had £1000 sterling voted by Parliament immediately after his death, for the support of herself and family, but, owing to the distractions of the time, it was never paid. His children were—Robert, bapt. 15th May 1643 (received ordination from the "outed" ministers; was imprisoned in the Bass for preaching at conventicles (1673); subsequently went to England, and died, his widow and children being recommended by Parliament to the royal bounty, 17th July 1695); George, bapt. 20th May 1644; Archibald, died in 1659; Elizabeth (marr. James Oswald, merchant in Edinburgh, afterwards of Fingleton). Publications—A Dispute against the English Popish Ceremonies obtruded upon the Church of Scotland (1637; another edition, 1844); An Assertion of the Church Covenant of Scotland (1641); Dialogue between a Civilian and a Divine, concerning the Present Condition of the Church of England (London, 1644); A Recrimination in Defence of Presbyterianism (London, 1644); Nihil Respondes (London, 1645); The True Resolution of a Present Controversy concerning Liberty of Conscience (London, 1645); Wholesome Severity reconciled with Christian Liberty (London, 1645); Aaron's Rod Blossoming

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, son of 1689 John H. of Bangour; M.A. (Glasgow 1649); studied both medicine and divinity; ord. to Dalmeny 2nd July 1656; dep. 1662; removed to Dalsersf by order of the Privy Council 1677; called (after the Toleration) 6th Sept. 1687; appointment confirmed by the Town Council 24th July 1689; he removed to his former parish (Dalmeny) in terms of the Act of Parliament 25th April 1690, but returned same year, and died Dec. 1696, aged about 70. He bequeathed £100 to the poor of Dalmeny. He was the means of preventing the Duke of Hamilton, during a sitting of the Convention of Estates, from bringing in a measure which would have included many of the Episcopalian clergy under the benefit of the Act for restoring the Presbyterian ministers. He marr. (1) Anna Scott, who died 1st Oct. 1692: (2) (pro. 24th June 1692) Helen, daugh. of Robert Elliot, min. of West Linton. She afterwards marr. 14th April 1698, John Duncan, merchant, Edinburgh. He is said to have suggested (in 1741) the establishment of a fund for supporting the widows and children of ministers of the Church. That may be true so far as the fund established in 1744 was concerned, but a similar proposal had been made as early as 1716, by Patrick Couper, min. of Pittenweem. He marr. (1) 11th Feb. 1708, Margaret, daugh. of Robert Douglas, merchant, Edinburgh: (2) 28th April 1715, Isobel, daugh. of Matthew Hairstones of Craigs, who survived him, and had issue—Gilbert; Jean; Margaret (marr. 10th Oct. 1736, George

SECOND CHARGE.

PETER HEWAT, M.A. (Edinburgh 1588); mentioned as min. in 1594; trans. to Hailes (Colinton) 1596.—[Counc. Reg.]

[CHARLES FERME [FAIRHOLM], M.A.,

JAMES MUIRHEAD, M.A., and GEORGE GRIER, M.A., were severally authorised by the Presb. to preach in the North-West Quarter 13th Dec. 1589 to 18th Dec. 1599, "at sic tymes as were necessary."

JAMES BALFOUR, son of David B. of Powis, grandson of Alexander B. of Inchrye, Fife, and brother of Captain John B. of Pitcorthy (Reg. of Deeds, xl., 272); adm. 19th May 1598. Hesitating to offer public thanksgiving for His Majesty's deliverance from the Gowrie Conspiracy, he was inhibited from preaching under pain of death, and two days after he left the city. Called before the Privy Council, he declared himself satisfied of the truth of the story. By the continuance of the Royal displeasure, he was ordered to be transported, 16th May 1601, yet he continued in his charge. He was summoned to London (with seven others) 21st May 1606. After various ineffectual conferences they were handed over to the charge of different bishops of England, Balfour being consigned to the care of John, Bishop of Norwich. On 8th March 1607 he petitioned the Privy Council to be sent home, when he was ordered to be confined to Cockburnspath and Alford. He returned and was preaching in the city, when he was again removed by a royal warrant, 20th Jan. 1610, but the city continued payment of his stipend until 1st May 1613, when he died. He marr. (1) in 1575, his cousin once removed, Barbara, youngest daugh. of Richard Melvill of Baldow, min. of Maryton, who survived him, and had issue—James (G. R. Sas., liii., 385), servant to Lord Haddington; Andrew, min. of Kirknewton; Nicolas (marr. George Gordon of Lawtoun: G. R. Inhib., First Series, vi., 98), who was threatened to be banished from the city in 1620 for entertaining conventicles in her house; (2) 5th July 1595, Isobel or Elizabeth King (buried 4th Dec. 1643), widow of Robert Danielston, tailor, burgess of Edinburgh (Edin. Inhib., viii., 206; G. R. Inhib., Second Series, iii., 295). Publication—The Great Work of Mercy.—[Edin. Counc. Reg., Booke of the Kirk,

PETER HEWAT, M.A., above mentioned; trans. from Colinton to Old Greyfriars 1597; trans. in terms of King James's request, and adm. after 21st Feb. 1610; was a member of Assembly same year, and of the Court of High Commission, 21st Dec. 1615. He had a gift from the King of the Abbey of Crossraguel, 29th Dec. 1612, which entitled him to a seat in Parliament (ratified to him and his children for nineteen years after his death, on payment of 5 merks yearly, by Charles II., 27th Oct., and by Parliament, 17th Nov. 1641); one of those appointed by the Assembly, 17th Aug. 1616, for revising the Liturgy. He consulted with the ministers regarding a Protest for the Liberties of the Kirk in 1617, drew out one of his own, and still adhering to it was deprived by the High Commission, 12th July of that year, and confined to Dundee. He was still recognised, however, as minister, and had his stipend paid by the city to Candlemas 1619, but he was charged to remove, and be confined at Crossraguel by royal warrant, 12th, and by that of the Privy Council, 17th June following. He died in the parish of Maybole, Aug. 1645, aged about 78. He marr. Isobel (died Aug. 1644), daugh. of William Smail, merchant in the city, and had issue—Margaret, bapt. 23rd Nov. 1600; John, bapt. 30th May 1602; Lilius, bapt. 26th June 1603; Margaret, bapt. 5th Sept. 1605; Jean, bapt. 18th April 1611; William (Reg. of Deeds, cclxxx., 24th Jan. 1619); Elspeth; Janet; Elizabeth, or Elspeth (marr. Bryce Blair of Goldring). Publication—Three Excellent Points of the Christian Doctrine (Edinburgh, 1621).—[Edin. Counc., Guild, Bapt., and Test. Reg. (Glasg.); Acts Parl., v.; Row's, Spottiswood's, and Calderwood's Hists.; Melvill's Autob.; Morrison's Dec., x.]

JOHN MAXWELL, M.A.; trans. from Mortlach; elected by the Town Council 18th July 1622, and adm. soon after. On the division of the city in

1625, he was removed to the North-East Quarter, or Trinity Parish.—[Row's, Spottiswood's, and Calderwood's Hists.; Edin. Counc. Reg.]

ALEXANDER THOMSON, son of Alexander T., min. of Stonehouse 1628 (Acts and Decreeets, cccclxxiv., 13); M.A. (Glasgow 1613); min. of Cambuslang 1623; elected by the Town Council 3rd July 1628, and adm. soon after. Deposed 1st Jan. 1639 for declining the General Assembly 1638, and reading and defending the Service Book; died in 1646, aged about 53. He marr. Margaret Moorehead, and had issue—James, apprenticed to James Stewart, merchant, Edinburgh, 6th Nov. 1639; John, who had £100 sterl. granted him by Parliament, 5th July 1661, in respect of his father's sufferings; William; Margaret (marr. James Hamilton, Bishop of Galloway).—[Edin. Counc., Test., and Reg. (Bapt.)]; Row's and Stevenson's Hists., Peterkin's Rec.; Wodrow's MSS., lxii.; Acts Parl., vii.]

ROBERT DOUGLAS, M.A.; trans. from Second Charge, Kirkcaldy; elected 1639 14th Jan. 1639, and adm. after 22nd Aug. same year; removed to North-West Quarter, or Tolbooth Parish, 24th Dec. 1641.—[Edin. Counc. Reg.]

HENRY ROLLOCK, M.A., son of John R. of Woodside (G. R. Sas., lviii., 202); adm. 24th Dec. 1641; died 2nd June 1649, aged about 47. He marr. Helen, youngest daugh. of Alex., Lord Elphinston, and widow of Sir William Cockburn of Langton, and had issue—John of Woodside.—[Edin. Counc. Reg.; Baillie's Lett., ii.; Douglas's Peer., i.]

DAVID DICKSON of Busby, born Glasgow 1583, son of John D., a wealthy merchant of the Trongate, was at first intended for the mercantile profession, but afterwards studied for the Church. After becoming M.A. of Glasgow, he was appointed Regent of Philosophy in the University, and on 31st March 1618 was ordained minister of Irvine. He declared against the Perth Articles, and was summoned before the Court of High Commission. Declining its authority, he was deprived. In 1622 he was allowed to return to his parish, but in 1637, having given shelter to Robert Blair and John Livingston, driven from their charges in Ireland by the interference of the bishops there, he was again cited before the High Commission Court. He took an active part in the Glasgow Assembly of 1638, and in 1639 acted as chaplain to an Ayrshire regiment commanded by the Earl of Loudoun. He was Moderator of Assembly in 1640, and appointed to the Professorship of Divinity in Glasgow University. In 1650 he was transferred to the Chair of Divinity at Edinburgh. He was appointed to this charge by the Town Council 12th April 1650, and adm. shortly after; a second time Moderator of Assembly 21st July 1652. In Oct. 1662 he was deprived, and by the end of the year he was dead (buried 31st Dec.). He was a popular preacher, and highly instrumental in promoting the notable revival at Stewarton about 1625. Nor was he less zealous and useful in the overthrow of Episcopacy, having taken a prominent part in the business of the Assembly at Glasgow. When the Church unhappily divided into Resolutioners and Protesters, he became a leader in the party of the former. He marr. 23rd Sept. 1617, Margaret, daugh. of Archibald Robertson of Stonehall, and had issue—John, clerk to the Exchequer (who predeceased him); James (G. R. Sas., xxxviii., 241); David (who also predeceased him); Alexander, min. of Newbattle, Professor of Hebrew in the Univ. of Edinburgh. Publications—A Treatise on the Promises (Dublin, 1630); Explanation of the Epistle to the Hebrews (Aberdeen, 1635); Expositio Analytica Omnium Apostolicarum Epistolarum (Glasgow, 1645); True Christian Love, in verse (1649); Exposition of the Gospel of Matthew (London, 1651); Explanation of the Psalms, 3 vols.  was nominated to the Bishopric of Argyll, 24th Oct. 1688, but was never consecrated.

 Expelled from office at the Revolution Settlement, 29th April 1689; died in London 1698. He was a staunch Episcopalian, and was suspected of a leaning towards Romanism. In 1687 he altered the sponsio which was administered to graduates, making them promise perseverance "in the Christian religion," the word
 "Reformed" being omitted. He marr. (1) 6th May 1673, Anna Logan, Aberdour, who died 16th May 1674, and had issue—Anna,

WILLIAM CARSTARES, born 11th 1707 Feb. 1649, eldest son of John C., min. of Cathcart; studied first at Edinburgh, and afterwards in consequence of the troubled state of the times in Scotland, at Utrecht, where he formed the friendship of William, Prince of Orange, and became his confidential adviser on all matters relating to Britain. In 1682 he was at home bent on entering the Church, but discouraged by the spirit of persecution which was so manifest, he returned to Holland after receiving license to preach.
 Passing through London he became involved in what was afterwards known as the Rye-house Plot, which had for its object the exclusion of the Duke of York from the succession to the throne. He was arrested at Tenterden, in Kent, and conveyed to Edinburgh to be tortured by the boot and thumbscrew. He was offered a full pardon, and the promise was made that no statement from him would be used against any person. But the information extracted on such terms was freely used against his friend Baillie of Jarviswood. After lying in prison for a year and a half at London, Edinburgh, and Stirling, he returned to Holland in the winter of 1684-5, when he was made chaplain to the Prince of Orange, and appointed minister of the English Church at Leyden. He accompanied William to England in 1688, and when matters quieted after the Revolution, and William and Mary sat upon the throne, he was probably the most influential personage in the land. The King required his constant presence, assigned him apartments at Whitehall, and paid him liberally when abroad with the army. From 1693 to William's death in 1702 he was virtually prime minister of the country, and his authority in Church affairs was such that he was popularly called "Cardinal Carstares" by the Jacobites and those who were opposed to his policy. He became Principal of the Univ. of Edinburgh in 1703, and in 1704 min. of Greyfriars; was Moderator of Assembly 1705 (an office to which he was re-elected 1708, 1711, 1715), and was trans. to this charge 28th Dec. 1706. The Treaty of Union had his enthusiastic support, and he warmly promoted the succession of the House of Hanover to the British crown. He was chaplain to Queen Anne, and to King George I., and died 28th Dec. 1715. He marr. 6th June 1682, Elizabeth (died 1724, without issue), daugh. of Peter Kekewich of "Trehawk, Cornwall. Publications—The Scottish Toleration Argued (London, 1712); the State Papers and Letters addressed to William Carstares were published by Principal M'Cormick (Edinburgh, 1774). — [Wodrow's Hist., Corresp., MSS. lxxxii., and Anal.; Ferrie's *Life of J. WILLIAM MITCHELL, born 1670, son 1721 of William M., min. of Footdee, Aberdeen, and Margaret Cant; licen. by Presb. of Aberdeen; ord. to Second Charge, Canongate, 1695; trans. to Old Kirk Parish 27th June 1708; Moderator of Assembly 1710; a second time 1714; a third time 1717; called 10th Jan. 1718; trans. and adm. 5th Feb. 1721; a fourth time Moderator of Assembly 1722, and a fifth time 1726, though the last was carried by a single vote; Chaplain in Ordinary to George I. While on his way to London as one of the deputation sent to congratulate George II. on his accession, he died at York, 8th Sept. 1727. He had great influence at Court, and was the chief figure in the Church after the death of Carstares. He marr. (1) 29th Oct. 1705, Margaret, daugh. of Hugh Cunningham of Edinburgh, and widow of James Stewart, advocate, and had issue—a daugh., who died May 1726; Hugh, died young; Sir Andrew, born 1708, K.C.B., M.P. for Aberdeenshire 1747-54, and for Elgin burghs 1755-71, envoy to Berlin 1756, and ambassador to Frederick the Great 1765, died 28th Jan. 1771: (2) 7th July 1723, Barbara, daugh. of John Forbes, and widow of Thomas Mitchell of Thainston, baillie of Aberdeen. Publications—He left behind him a Diary ready for the press, in which he had noted incidents connected with himself and the affairs of the Church. ROBERT KINLOCH, M.A. (St 1728 Andrews, 7th May 1706); studied at St Leonard's College; licen. by Presb. of Dundee and Forfar 3rd Oct.

1711; called to Third Charge, Dundee, 22nd June, and ord. 26th Aug. 1713; trans.
and adm. 8th Oct. 1728; Moderator of Assembly 7th May 1747; dem. 24th Feb., and died 3rd April 1756. He marr. Liliast (died 12th July 1769), third daugh. of Colin Campbell of Monzie, and had issue—John (second son), W.S. apprentice 1738. Publication—The Truth and Excellency of the Gospel Revelation, a sermon (Edinburgh, 1731).—[Reg. (Bur.), Morren's Ann., Wod-

HUGH BLAIR, born 7th April 1718, 1758 son of John B., merchant, Edinburgh, and grandson of Robert B., min. of St Andrews; educated at Edinburgh Univ.; M.A. (1739); licen. by Presb. of Edinburgh 21st Oct. 1741; ord. to Collessie 23rd Sept. 1742; trans. to Second Charge, Canongate, 14th July 1743; trans. to Lady Yester's 11th Oct. 1754; D.D. (St Andrews, 13th June 1757); trans. and adm. 15th June 1758; Lecturer in Rhetoric and Belles-lettres, Univ. of Edinburgh, 1759; Regius Professor of the same 1762; chaplain to the 1st Batt. 71st Foot 1776; retired from the duties of his chair 1783; died 27th Dec. 1800. He marr. 19th April 1748, his cousin, Katherine (died 9th Feb. 1795), daugh. of James Bannatine, min. of Trinity College Church, and had issue—a son, who died in infancy; Katherine, born 24th Jan. 1749, died 23rd Aug. 1769. Blair's Sermons are the chief source of his celebrity. They were part of the literary revival in Edinburgh, and, like Robertson's History, they took people in London by surprise. His discoverer may be said to be Dr Johnson, for, when Strahan the publisher failed to appreciate the merit of the MS. which had been handed to him, Johnson got a sight of it and said: "I have read over Dr Blair's first sermon with more than approbation: to say it is good is to say too little." The volume was then published, and had at once a great sale, no devotional work produced in Scotland having attracted so much attention. Both from diffidence and from a singular deficiency as an extempore speaker, he refrained from prominent public appearances, and declined the Moderatorship of Assembly. Publications—De Fundamentis et Obligatione Legis Naturæ (1728); The Wrath of Man praising God, a sermon (Edinburgh, 1746); The Importance of Religious Knowledge to the Happiness of Mankind, a sermon (Edinburgh, 1750); Observations upon the Analysis of the Moral and Religious Sentiments contained in the Writings of Sopho and David Hume, Esq. (Edinburgh, 1755);

He was founder and first convener of the General Assembly's Highlands and Islands Committee 1824. Though advanced in years, he travelled no fewer than seven thousand miles in the interests of this work, affirming that "he had found nearly one hundred thousand human beings unable either to read or write, and innumerable districts where the people could not hear sermon above once a year, and had seen thousands of habitations where a Sabbath bell was never heard, where he had now witnessed schools and libraries established, knowledge increased, and greedily received." He marr. 8th Aug. 1792, Isabella (died 18th Aug. 1826), eldest daugh. of Thomas Elder of Forneth, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, and had issue—Emelia Husband, born 1st Dec. 1793, died 5th June 1794; Thomas Elder of Forneth, advocate, born 30th Sept. 1795, died 1876; Marion Spottiswood, born 13th July 1797 (marr. 8th Aug. 1823, Isaac Bayley of Manuel, S.S.C.); James, born 27th Dec. 1799, died 21st May 1823; Emelia Husband, born 22nd Oct. 1801, died 23rd Aug. 1824. (Glasgow, 29th April 1857); died unmarr. 18th Sept. 1866. He was a capable classical student, and had few rivals as a linguist. Publication—Sermon preached on a Special Fast (Edinburgh, 1849); Sermons, with memoir, by John Macrae, D.D. (Edinburgh, 1871).

OLD KIRK, or SOUTH-EAST PARISH.

WILLIAM WATSON, min. of St Giles; 1598 adm. 18th April 1598. Doubting the genuineness of the Gowrie Conspiracy, he refused to return thanks for the King's deliverance in the terms which had been prescribed; he was summoned to appear before the Privy Council 9th Sept. 1600, and ordered to be imprisoned, but recanted on the following day, a step he ever afterwards regretted. The King was resolved, however, that he should no longer retain his ministry in the city, and he was removed by the Assembly 16th May 1601, and admitted to Burntisland.—[*Presb. and Edin. Counc. ANDREW RAMSAY, born 1574, son of 1641 Sir David R. of Balmain, Fettercairn, and Catherine, daugh. of Sir Robert Carnegie of Kinnaird; M.A. (Marischal College and Univ. of Aberdeen); prosecuted his theological studies in France, and occupied a professorial chair in the Univ. of Saumur. In 1606 he became min. of Arbutnott. In 1613 the Town Council obtained authority from the Archbishop of St Andrews, directing him to proceed to Edinburgh to stand "trials" as one of the city ministers; and he was appointed on the 28th April of the following year to the pulpit of the South-West congregation. He continued his ministrations there until Dec. 1620, when the new church at the Greyfriars was taken over by the South-West congregation. He was a member of the Court of High Commission 21st Oct. 1615 and 15th June 1619; signed the Protestation for the Liberties of the Kirk 27th June 1617, but withdrew his protest; was proposed for the Principalship of Marischal College, Aberdeen, 1620, but trans. was refused. From 1620 to 1625 he was Professor of Divinity at Edinburgh. At a division of the city into four parishes, 25th Nov. 1625, the South-West Quarter was once more relegated to the Greyfriars, with R. as minister. He seems to have been readm. there on 31st Jan. 1626; trans. and adm. to this charge 24th Dec. 1641; had a protection from the Marquess of Montrose, after the battle of Kilsyth in 1645; was Rector of the Univ. 1646 and 1647; dep. 27th July 1648, for favouring the Duke of Hamilton's Engagement with Charles I., a sentence which was recalled 8th Nov. 1655. He retired to Abbotshall, where he died, 30th Dec. 1659. Bishop Guthrie describes him as "a guid, modest, learned, godlie man, full of pietie and learning; an ornament to the Church of Scotland." He marr. (cont. 18th Dec. 1605) Marie, daugh. of Sir Alexander Fraser of Durris (G. R. Sas., xviii., 337), and had issue—Robert of Woodston, min. of Ecclesgreig (G. R. Sas., li., 65); Sir Andrew of Abbotshall, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, 1654, and Senator of the College of Justice, 1671, died 27th Jan. 1688; Eleazer, bapt. 4th Dec. 1614; David, bapt. 20th July 1625, died July 1660; William, a preacher, who was presented to Pencaitland 16th Aug. 1641, but gave way to Calderwood, the ecclesiastical historian, and subsequently was proprietor of Woodston. [Uncollegiated by the Presbytery, 27th April 1836, with a view to the erection of Greenside.]

JOHN HALL, trans. from Leith, and 1598 adm. 7th Dec. 1598. Hesitating to believe in the Gowrie Conspiracy, or to offer thanksgiving for the royal deliverance on 5th Aug. 1600, he was discharged from preaching in any part of His Majesty's dominions, under pain of death, but afterwards declaring himself satisfied as to the truth of the affair, he was re-poned ; trans. to the East, or Little Kirk, at the King's request, after 21st Feb. 1610.

DAVID FLETCHER, M.A. (St Andrews 1635 1625) ; elected by the Town Council 29th April, and adm. 22nd May 1635.
 Deposed 1st Jan. 1639 for declining the preceding Glasgow Assembly, and reading and defending the Service Book ; reponed 27th Aug. 1639. He became min. of Melrose, and held the Bishopric of Argyll in conjunction (q.v.).—[*Edin. Counc. Reg.,

JAMES HAMILTON, born 1600, son 1647 of Gawen, third son of Hans H., vicar of Dunlop, and nephew of Viscount Claneboye ; studied at Glasgow Univ. ; acted for a time as his uncle's land agent in Ireland ; ord. by Bishop Echlin min. at Ballywalter, Co. Down, 1626 ; dep. for refusing to use the Service Book 1636 ; was adm. a min. of the Church of Scotland in 1638, and settled at Dumfries. He was commissioned by the Assembly of 1642, 1643, to visit the Presbyterians in the north of Ireland, and when returning was captured by Sir Alexander Macdonald (Montrose's lieutenant), and imprisoned for ten months with great hardship in Mingary Castle ; pres. by the Town Council 13th July, and adm. 26th
 Nov. 1647. He was a member of Assembly 1648, and along with James Guthrie was appointed to draw up an account of the duties of elders, and a form for visitation of families. He was nominated by the Estates, May 1650, for examining Montrose after his capture. In Jan. 1651 he was one of those who met with the Protesters at St Andrews to adjust their differences, but without effect. While sitting with a committee of the Estates at Alyth, 28th Aug.
 1651, he was seized, with others, by the English army, carried into England, and detained in the Tower of London for nineteen months. Released by Cromwell's order, 20th Nov. 1652, he returned to Edinburgh, where he preached till the restoration of Episcopacy drove him from his pulpit and compelled him to retire to Inver-esk, 7th Aug. 1662. He died at Edinburgh, 10th March 1666. He marr. (1) Elizabeth, daugh. of David Watson, min. of Killeavy, Ireland, by whom he had fifteen children ;
 of whom Archibald, min. of Killinchy, Jane, Mary, Margaret, and Elizabeth, only arrived at maturity : (2) Anna, daugh. of Sir James Pringle of Galashiels, and widow of William Inglis, W.S., who in her old age (being 80 years) and poverty on 10th Feb. 1687 presented a petition to the Exchequer; she was buried 5th Sept. 1691 (Charity Papers).—[*Edin. ANDREW KINNEAR, M.A. (Edinburgh, 19th July 1660); ord. to East Calder 24th April 1663; elected by the Town Council 28th Oct., trans. and adm. soon after; died before 24th March 1682, aged about 42. He marr. 10th Sept. 1668, Marion Mason, and had issue—Alexander, bapt. 5th July 1670; Jean, bapt. 7th Sept. 1671; Andrew, bapt. 19th Oct. 1672; Barbara, bapt. 20th March 1674; James, bapt. 11th July 1675; William, bapt. 13th May 1678; Andrew, bapt. 26th Sept. 1679; Margaret, bapt. 18th Feb. 1681 (marr. 15th Dec. 1705, John Carmichael, writer, Edinburgh); Elizabeth, buried in Greyfriars, 4th July 1694; Andrew (posthumous), 8th Aug. 1682.—[Edin. Counc., Guild, and Reg. (Marr. and Bapt.).]

JOHN FARQUHAR, regent in Marischal College, Aberdeen, 1674; min. of the Tron Parish, Edinburgh, 1677; elected by the Town Council 24th March 1683, and adm. soon after; dep. by the Commissioners of Assembly Jan. 1691, for declining the authority of the Church. What became of him is unknown.—[Edin. Counc. Reg.; MS. Acc. of Min., 1689.]

GEORGE CAMPBELL, son of George C., writer, Inveraray; educated at Glasgow and Edinburgh Univs.; M.A. (Edinburgh 1656); licen. by Presb. of Dumfries 20th July 1658; called same day by the Town Council and Kirk-session, and adm. 11th Oct. 1658. He was imprisoned at Edinburgh with his colleague in 1661, for refusing to keep the anniversary of the Restoration, and deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662. The Privy Council indulged him at Loudoun 3rd Sept. 1672, but like many others he declined, and was again imprisoned 17th Sept. 1684. On being liberated he fled to Holland; returned in 1687; became min. of a meeting-house in Dumfries 1688; was restored to the First Charge there 25th April 1690; and shortly afterwards adm. min. of this parish, holding in conjunction the Professorship of Divinity in the Univ. He was on the commission for visiting schools and colleges the same year; died 3rd July 1701. From his habit of early rising, in opposition to that of his friend, Principal Rule, who was accustomed to sit late into the night, he was styled "the Morning Star," and on hearing of Rule's death (only twenty-six days before his own), he quaintly observed, "the Evening Star has now gone down, and the Morning Star will soon disappear." He marr. (1) Rose (buried 4th June 1676), daugh. of Hew Henderson, his colleague at Dumfries, and had issue—Janet, bapt. 5th March 1665; Margaret, bapt. 30th Dec. 1666; (2) Marion Fyfe (buried 22nd March 1696), and had issue—James, bapt. 18th July 1685; Marion; Christian (marr., procl. 27th Sept. 1696, George Chalmers, min. of Kilwinning); (3) 4th Feb. 1697, Catherine, daugh. of Robert Blair, min. of St Andrews.—[*Edin.  March 1746, died 2nd Oct. 1804; Thomas, surgeon, born 20th Nov. 1749, died in India

1776; Jean, born 3rd March 1753, died 1775. He was much consulted in regard to Patronage by Archibald, Duke of Argyll. For some years before Principal Robertson rose to eminence in the General Assembly he was leader of the Moderate party. Publications—Three single Ser-and adm. 19th Dec. 1776. He had a pension of £100 yearly, 28th May 1781, "in consideration of his distinguished talents and great literary merit"; died 24th Nov.

 1790, and was buried in Polmont Churchyard. The great achievement of his life was the History of Great Britain, a work now forgotten, but of which David Hume remarked that there "could hardly be found in our language any performance that unites together so perfectly the two great points of entertainment and instruction." He devised and carried into effect in 1762 a scheme for the widows and orphans of Nonconformist ministers in the North of England. A few days before his death he bequeathed his library to the Town Council and Presbytery of Linlithgow, as a foundation for one which might be used by the public. He marr. 26th June 1763, Ann Balderston, who died 15th
 Feb. 1800, without issue. Publications—

OLD KIRK PARISH (Q.S.).

[By the passing of the Annuity Tax Abolition Act (23rd July 1860), the Old Kirk Parish was deprived of its ecclesiastical endowment and of all the benefits of a parochial ministry, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners not making an appointment, either permanent or ad interim, as had been left to their discretion, but steps were at once taken to continue the charge by voluntary endowment. For some years the congregation met in the south transept of St Giles, and the session held regular meetings, presided over by Dr David Arnot, of the High Kirk, appointed Moderator during the vacancy. The Presbytery elder was elected, and all ecclesiastical rights and privileges continued as before. In 1869 the congregation ceased to worship in St Giles, and services were held in a hall in Blackfriars Street. On 19th June 1872, a petition was presented to the Court of Teinds for the erection and constitution of a church and parish quoad sacra, but was opposed by the Magistrates of Edinburgh, the Court, 9th Feb. 1874, refusing the petition. A site at the south-west corner of St John Street being secured for a church, and approved by the Presbytery, the present church was built thereon, and decree of disjunction and erection granted, 13th March 1882. The new parish quoad sacra includes all the old parish, plus the piece of ground on which church and halls now stand disjoined from Canongate Parish immediately adjoining. The church was opened 11th June 1882.]

LADY GLENORCHY'S (Q.S.).

[Founded by Willielma, Viscountess Glenorchy, Oct. 1772; opened 8th May 1774; and conveyed to five Trustees, 26th Jan. 1786. The constitution was revised 20th May 1837, when the Trustees obtained an Act of Parliament (1 & 2 Vict. cap. 22), which extended and explained their powers. It was then constituted a parish quoad sacra. In 1845 the chapel was acquired from the Trustees on erection of the North British Railway Station. After a protracted litigation Roxburgh Place Chapel was purchased in 1856, and a parish quoad sacra was created by the Court of Teinds on 2nd July 1862. New church and halls were built 1909-12, and opened 10th Dec. 1913.]

FRANCIS SHERRIFF, born 1750, son of Francis S., Dremhills, East Lothian; educated at Musselburgh School and Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (1770); through the influence of John Home, author of Douglas, he was for a time tutor in a nobleman's family, and afterwards a clerk in the War Office. In 1771 he visited Jamaica, and on his return was licen. by the Presb. of Haddington, 30th March 1773; ord. 6th July 1775, chaplain (assistant) to General Houston's Regt. of the Scots Brigade in Holland; app. by Lady Glenorchy, and adm. 12th Nov. 1777; died unmarr. 12th June 1778.—[Lady Glenorchy's Account, Wood's Hist. of Cramond, Jones's Life of Lady Glenorchy.]

THOMAS SNELL JONES, born 1754, a native of Gloucester; educated at the Nonconformist Academy of Trevecca, in Wales; assisted for two years an aged clergyman at Plymouth, when he became known to Lady Glenorchy, and was invited to be min. of her chapel. With this view he was ord. by the Scots Presbytery in London, 9th June 1779, and adm. 25th July following. D.D. (Aberdeen 1810); died 3rd March 1837. He marr. (1) Elizabeth Payton, who died 10th Sept. 1780, aged 26, and had issue—Elizabeth Payton, died Dec. 1848, aged 68; (2) Mary Belshes, who died 27th May 1786, aged 35; (3) Anne Gardner, who died 6th May 1822, aged 70, and had issue—Thomas, banker, Leith, died 3rd May 1868, aged 75; Anne, born 18th July 1790, died 4th Jan. 1885; John, died 19th Nov. 1861, aged 69. GREVILLE EWING, born Edinburgh, 1767, son of Alexander E., teacher of mathematics, and Isobel Gray; educated at the High School, Edinburgh; apprenticed to an engraver, but afterwards studied for the ministry at the univ. of his native city. He became tutor in the family of Lockhart of Castlehill, and was licen. by Presb. of Hamilton 25th Sept. 1792. His gifts and popularity as a preacher pointed him out to the Trustees, by whom he was nominated 22nd June, and he was ord. (colleague) 17th Oct. 1793. Devotedly attached to the cause of missions, he established the Missionary Magazine, the first religious periodical north of the Tweed. Having adopted sentiments inimical to a National Establishment of Religion, he demitted his charge and was declared no longer a min. of the church, 26th Dec. 1798. From 1799 to 1836 he ministered to a large congregation at the Glasgow Tabernacle, under the auspices of the Haldanes of Airthrey, and was for the same period tutor of the Glasgow Theological Academy—a Congregationalist foundation. The introduction of Congregationalism into Scotland owed much to his efforts. He had D.D. conferred by an American college in 1821, but did not adopt it, and died 1st Aug. 1841. He marr. (1) 13th Nov. 1794, Anne (died 23rd Aug. 1795, aged 20), daugh. of James Innes, min. of Yester; (2) Janet Jamieson, died 18th Jan. 1801, aged 23, and had issue—Janet (marr. James Matheson, D.D., Durham); (3) 15th Nov. 1802, Barbara, daugh. of Sir James Maxwell of Pollock, Bart., killed by the overturning of a carriage near the Falls of Clyde, 14th Sept. 1828, aged 55. LADY YESTER'S.

[Founded by Margaret, third daugh. of Mark, first Earl of Lothian, and wife of James, seventh Lord Hay of Yester. She died 15th March 1647. The church was badly damaged by Cromwell's soldiers in Nov. 1650, but being restored, was erected into a parish church, 24th Aug. 1655, for the south-east portion of the city. During the Episcopacy it was shut up and the parish annexed to the Tron.]

From 1687 to 1691 the parishioners of the Canongate used it while their own church was in process of building, and it was afterwards reconstituted as a parish. The present edifice dates from 8th Dec. 1805.]

JOHN STIRLING, M.A.; trans. from 1655 Tron Parish on the appointment of the Town Council 3rd Sept. 1655. In the same month he employed Patrick Gillespie, who had been deposed, to preach for him on a week day, which gave umbrage to his brethren and many others. While engaged with other Protesters in drawing up a new Remonstrance, he was apprehended and committed prisoner to the Castle, 23rd Aug. 1660, where he continued till the following year, when he was brought before the Lords of the Articles, 25th Sept. For subscribing the Remonstrance, his stipend was sequestrated by the Committee of Estates, but it was allowed to be paid by Act of Parliament, 13th March 1661. He was deprived by the Privy Council, 1st Oct. 1662, for not conforming to Episcopacy, and ordered to leave the city with his family. Similar authority, however, gave him leave to return for twenty days, 22nd June 1665, and on 20th July he was allowed till 1st Sept. After being "indulged" at Hounam, he became min. at Irvine.—[Edin. Counc. Reg., Lamont's and Nicoll's Diaries, Kirkton's and Wodrow's Hists.; Acts Parl., vii.; Baillie's Lett.]

THOMAS WILKIE, born 1638, a native

JOHN DRYSDALE, trans. from Kirk-1764 liston; pres. by the Town Council 1st Dec. 1762, by a majority of 23 to 5, the first instance of an appointment by presentation since the Revolution. A protracted litigation ensued before the civil and ecclesiastical courts. It was maintained that the Town Council had only a joint right with the ministers and elders, or general session, to call and settle ministers in the city, but the Court of Session found, 18th Feb. 1763, "that the Magistrates and Town Council have the sole privilege, exclusive of, and without consulting the ministers and kirk sessions, of presenting ministers to all the vacant churches within the city," which decision the House of Lords affirmed 13th March 1764. The General Assembly, 17th May following, sustained the call, and he was adm. 14th Aug. thereafter; trans. to the Tron Parish 29th April 1767.—[Scots Mag.,

ST BERNARD'S (Q.S.).

[Formerly Stockbridge Chapel-of-Ease. A committee of Kirk-session of St Cuthbert's Parish, of which Stockbridge formed a part, reported in 1822 that the population in the northern districts amounted to 5120, that there were 4070 of these above six years of age, that the total number provided with seats in any place of worship connected with the Church of Scotland, or with other congregations, was only 1954; the Session of St Cuthbert's thereupon resolved to build a chapel at Stockbridge, to be their property and to be under their superintendence. This resolution was duly sanctioned by the Presbytery and by the General Assembly.

The erection of the church was at once proceeded with, and completed at a cost of about £4000. The building was opened on 16th Nov. 1823; declared a parish quoad sacra by Act of Assembly, 31st May 1834, named St Bernard's, and erected by the Court of Teinds, 19th Nov. 1851.]

ST CUTHBERT'S, OR WEST KIRK.

[According to Dr Skene, Historiographer-Royal, the first church erected on the site occupied by the present fabric, if it did not owe its existence to the personal efforts of St Cuthbert himself, was at least erected shortly after his decease in the latter part of the seventh century. In the early ages this was one of the wealthiest parishes in Scotland, but in 1128 it was, with all its endowments, transferred to the Abbey of Holyroodhouse, then founded by David I.]

WILLIAM HARLAW, born at Edinburgh after 1500, and originally bred a tailor in the Canongate. Imbibing the doctrines of the Reformation, he took refuge in England, where he was ordained a deacon, became one of the King's chaplains, and remained some years. On the death of Edward VI. he returned to Edinburgh in 1553, and engaged in preaching in private houses in 1555; afterwards he did so publicly. He was reprimanded for preaching at Dumfries in 1558, summoned to appear before the Lord Justice at Stirling 10th May 1559, and denounced a rebel for usurping the authority of the Church, "in taking into his own hand the ministry thereof," within the burgh of Perth and places adjoining. Appointed to St Cuthbert's in 1560, he was a member of the first General Assembly, 20th Dec. An attempt to have him removed and another presented was made 25th June 1566, by the patron (Robert, Commendator of Holyroodhouse), but being opposed by the parishioners, was ineffectual. Pres. to the vicarage by James VI. 6th Feb. 1572; died 1578. Though "not verie learnit, yitt his doctrine was plaine, sound, and worthie of commendatioun." His son, Nathaniel, was min. of Ormiston.—[Knox's Works, i., ii.; Scott's Reformers, Booke of the Kirk, Reg. Min.

ROBERT PONT [KYL PONT, KYN-1578 PONT], born at or near Culross 1524 (Buchanan, De Scriptoribus Scotis Illustribus), son of John P. of Shyresmill, and Catherine Murray, said to be a daughter of Murray of Tullibardine (Blackadder MS. Memoirs). [The statement of Dr Andrew Crichton that the father was a Venetian, who, having been banished for his adherence to the Protestant faith, arrived in Scotland in the train of Mary of Guise, is essentially improbable as well as inconsistent with well-known facts]; educated at Culross, and St Leonard's College, St Andrews; on completing his course there, is supposed to have studied law at a foreign university. Nothing is definitely known of his career until 1559, when he settled at St Andrews, where he acted as a member of the kirk-session. He was present at the first General Assembly, 20th Dec. 1560, and was one of twenty within the bounds of St Andrews declared to be qualified for ministering and teaching. He was one of the Committee who revised the Second Book of Discipline, 1561. In 1562 he was appointed preacher at Dunblane, and in Dec. of the same year he was removed to Dunkeld. The following year he was Commissioner of Moray, and minister at Elgin. He was Moderator of Assembly in 1570, an office to which he was five times afterwards elected. In Jan. 1571 he was Provost of Trinity College, Edinburgh, and accepted a senatorship in the College of Justice, at the express wish of the General Assembly, on 12th Jan. 1572. Following that, he was charged with dereliction of duty in failing to visit the churches in Moray, but pled lack of leisure in consequence of his judicial work. In Nov. 1573 he received a pension of 300 merks, on account of having no ecclesiastical stipend "quhairon he may commodiously leif." In Feb. 1574 he resigned the Commissionership of Moray, and was admitted collegiate (junior) min.

of St Cuthbert's. In 1575 he was a second time Moderator of Assembly, and on 29th Dec. 1578 he was presented by James VI. to this charge. On 24th April 1581 he was elected a third time Moderator of Assembly, and the year following appointed to St Andrew's, but failing to obtain any stipend there, returned to St Cuthbert's April 1583. He was a fourth time Moderator of Assembly, 10th Oct. of same year. By Act of Parliament of 22nd May 1584, ministers were declared incapable of being employed as judges or in any office other than their own vocation. Three days after, he and another protested against this and other Acts then passed affecting the constitution and power of the Church. Deprived accordingly of his seat on the bench on the 27th, he took flight to England. On his return he was put in ward, but soon restored to his charge. In 1587, when appointed Bishop of Caithness by James VI., he referred the matter to the Assembly, who found "that corrupt estate or office of them who hes been termit bishops heretofore, we find not agreeable to the Word of God"; he was, however, Commissioner of Orkney from 1590 to 1601 inclusive, and was placed a fifth time in the Chair of the Assembly, 24th March 1595, and a sixth time, 27th April 1597. When a new translation of the Scriptures was proposed in 1601 he was invited by the Assembly to revise the metrical translation of the Psalms. "In respect of his great age, long travels in the kirk, and continuall sickness, the General Assembly, 15th Nov. 1602, allowed him to be releivit from the ordinarie burden of teaching, vpon condition, he substitute ane in his place quhen through infirmitie he sall not be able himselfe." He was the first to salute King James on his elevation to the throne of England, 24th March 1603; died 8th May 1606. He marr. (1) Catherine, daugh. of Adam Masterton of Grange, and had issue—Timothy, min. of Dunnet, celebrated as the first projector of a Survey of Scotland; Zachary, min. of Bower (marr. Margaret, daugh. of John Knox); Catherine; Helen (marr. Adam Blackadder of Blairhall): (2) in 1587, Sarah Denholm, and had a daugh. Beatrix (marr. Charles Lumsden, min. of Duddingston): (3) Margaret Smyth (who still survived 29th Nov. 1627), and had issue—James; Robert; Jonathan. "Considering Mr Robert's great charges, labours, and travels in the affairs of the Kirk, and in visiting and planting the kirks of Orkney and Zetland," the King, 17th Dec. 1602, "bestowed a gift for lyff, and efter his deceis to his three (last-mentioned) sons, and failing, one to the langest liver for seven years, for halding them at the Scholis to mak them abill for the ministerie, an yearly pension of four last coist (chalders) of victual from thirds of the Bishopric of Orkney, beginning crop 1602." His tombstone became a subject of dispute, as appears by the following minute of Privy Council, 4th June 1607:—P. "having before his death causit dresse ane stone for his buriall quhairon twa or three epitaphis written be himself were drawn," his widow, Margaret Smyth, disliking the stone, had contrary to the wish of the session, set up another intended to stand upright, and not lying on the grave as at first arranged. The Privy Council having heard both parties, instructed the session that the widow was to be allowed to take her own way in regard to the matter. RICHARD DICKSON, M.A.; licen. to 1603 preach in the West Kirk (probably assistant to preceding) 27th March 1599; but only adm. helper, with imposition of hands, 2nd June 1603 (Pont protesting that it be not prejudicial to him); pres. to the vicarage by James VI. 16th April 1607. Having administered the Communion 7th March 1619, in the Presbyterian form, when many citizens of Edinburgh, leaving their own churches, were partakers, he was summoned at the instigation of the ministers of Edinburgh before the Court of High Commission on the 12th March following, was deprived of his charge, and imprisoned in Dumbarton Castle. The session agreed, 15th April following, to present a petition to the Synod, or to the Bishop of St Andrews, requesting that he might "be permitted to continue the discharge of his ministry among them as he had done before," but he was ordered, 30th July 1624, to be sent to Ireland; and 22nd Sept. thereafter, when again called before the Privy Council, a letter having been received from the minister and magistrates of Dumbarton, "Testifeing that Mr R.'s wyffe and nine young bairnes ar all lying deadlie seake of the fever; and his awne letter vpoun his oathe, that he had not expense to bring him to this toun," his case was delayed, and in 1625 he was appointed to Kinneil. — [*Reg. Assig. et storphine 8th June 1599; trans. to Collegiate Charge 8th Oct. 1607; was Visitor of Clydesdale (along with John Spottiswood); signed the appeal on behalf of the liberties of the Kirk 27th June 1617;

 was tried before the Court of High Commission 12th May 1619 for only partially recognising the Five Articles of Perth, but acquitted; in 1621 he was on a leet of four

DAVID WILLIAMSON, M.A., formerly 1689 in Collegiate Charge; was denounced as a rebel 6th July 1674, for holding conventicles, and intercommuned 6th Aug. 1675. After the final Indulgence granted to the Church in 1687, he returned to Edinburgh, when a meeting-house was erected for him in the village known as Water of Leith. On 3rd Feb. 1688 he was arrested, his name having been discovered in a memorandum belonging to Renwick, who had been captured two days previously, but as the entries referred to a period covered by his indemnity, he was liberated after a fortnight's imprisonment. Not long afterwards he was arrested on the charge of not praying for the recently born Prince of Wales, but nothing followed thereon. At the General Assembly summoned after the Revolution, which met on 16th Oct. 1690, he was restored to his former parish, where he continued to officiate until the day of his death. He was one of the Commissioners sent by the Church to congratulate King William on his accession to the throne. He was a member of Assembly 1692; elected Moderator to that of 6th March 1702, and died "without painful sickness, generally esteemed," 6th Aug. 1706, aged about 72. He presented a dwelling-house, 18th Jan. 1700, to his colleague and his successors in office, discharging the feu-duty, £3, regularly during his lifetime. He marr. (1)

Isobel Lindsay, who died March 1665, and had issue—William, who died young: (2) Margaret Scott, and had issue—Margaret (marr. James Haswell, merchant, Jedburgh): (3) about 1676, Jean, daugh. of William Kerr of Cherrytrees (the romantic episode which probably led to this marriage, gave rise to the song formerly well known, of "Dainty Davy"), and had issue—Elizabeth (marr. 1704, John Brown, min. of Abercorn, brother of George Brown of Finmount): (4) Margaret Melville, servetrix of the Countess of Wemyss, who died Oct. 1692, probably mother of John, min. of Inveresk, Wodrow's correspondent; Agnes (marr. April 1708, Henry Robin, min. of Burntisland): (5) Margaret, second daugh. of William Dougall, merchant, Dysart, and had issue—David, apprenticed 1713 to a surgeon in Edinburgh; Mary (marr. 1st Feb. 1716, George Andrews, merchant, Edinburgh); William: (6) name unknown: (7) 10th May 1700, Jean, daugh. of Arthur Straiton of Kirkside, Forfarshire, and had issue—Arthur; Joseph, advocate, one of the principal city clerks, and clerk to the Commission of Teinds, died 29th July 1795, in his 95th year; Jean (marr. 5th April 1730, James Steele, saddler, Edinburgh). Mrs Williamson marr. secondly, in 1717, John Martine, of Little Aries, Wigtownshire. Publications—Two single Sermons (Edinburgh, 1696-1703). PATRICK WEDDERSPOON [sometimes called WOTHERSPOON]; 1782 educated at the Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (18th May 1725); ord. missionary to the miners (principally from Leadhills and Wanlockhead, with a few from England and Wales), at Sunart, now Strontian, by Presb. of Lorn, 22nd May 1729, from which he removed the following year. A meeting for a call was held 24th Nov. 1730, and he was pres. by George II. 1st Jan. 1731. After much dispute and appeals to the Synod and Assembly, his settlement was appointed by the Commission 8th March 1732. At serving the edict on the 12th, by James Dawson (afterwards his successor), such a tumult arose that the City Guard was called out, commanded by Captain John Porteous, who afterwards met with such a tragic fate. Some of his men were so severely handled by the crowd that in self-defence they fired upon them, when several were severely wounded. When tried for his life after the riot of April 1736, Porteous, who maintained that he had then given no orders to fire, referred to what had happened at the West Kirk, when counsel for the Crown did not dispute his assertion that on that occasion the shots had been fired without his orders. On 30th March Wedderspoon's admission was completed (under protection of the civil law), to the grief of the other mins., by the Presb. and a committee of correspondents, James Burnett, min. of Lasswade, presiding. It was believed the injurious treatment Wedderspoon received hastened his death, which took place on the 12th May succeeding, in his 26th year. He had an unblemished character, and with the fortitude and resolution which belong to genuine principle, adhered to what he considered right, in defiance of popular clamour. JAMES DAWSON, son of John D., 1784 min. of Langton; M.A. (Edinburgh, 9th Nov. 1722); licen. by Presb. of Duns 25th Feb. 1725; ord. to Langton 18th Aug. 1727; called 28th Dec. 1732; trans. and adm. 15th Feb. 1734; died 22nd Jan. 1735, aged about 33. Marr. (pro. 21st May 1732) Jean, daugh. of John Keir, baker, convener of the Trades, Edinburgh. She marr. secondly, 14th March 1742, John Nisbet, writer.

THOMAS PITCAIRN, son of David P. 1735 of Dreghorn and Mary Anderson; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; licen. by Presb. of Biggar 10th Sept. 1719; ord. to Lauder 29th March 1720; pres. by George II. 31st May, trans. and adm. 16th Oct. 1735. Like his colleague, he had the fortitude to pray for His Majesty on the Sunday immediately after the battle of Prestonpans, when the city was practically in the hands of the rebel party. During his incumbency a great revival of religion took place in the parish. He was a friend of George Whitefield, the West Kirk being one of the first places he preached in on the occasion of his visit to Scotland in Aug. 1741. He died 13th June 1751, having marr. Mary (died 8th Feb. 1780), daugh. of Patrick Redpath, younger, of Byreclough, and had issue—James, succeeded his uncle Patrick Redpath in Gladswood, Berwickshire; Jean, died 9th Oct. 1807; William, physician, London; a third son, a major in the army, was killed early in the American Rebellion; and a daughter, Elizabeth, died unmarr. 28th June 1809.—[Sime's West Kirk, Carlyle's Autob., Hist. of the Rebell.]

COLLEGIATE CHARGE.

[At the outset there was a considerable difference between the emoluments of the two ministers, in 1574 that of the one amounting to £100, together with the "kirk land" of the church, while that of the other was only £67, 18s. 8d.; but in 1706, on the occasion of the promotion of Thomas Paterson to the First Charge, consequent on the death of David Williamson, the opportunity was taken of making an arrangement whereby the stipends of the two ministers were equalised. This change, which was ratified by the Presbytery 12th November 1706, was no doubt suggested by the deceased minister, who in order to equalise matters had purchased a house recently erected, adjacent to the existing manse, and presented it to the kirk-session for behoof of his colleague and his successors in office. The upkeep of this second manse was declined by the heritors, and eventually the house was sold. The absence of a manse or manse fund for the minister occupying the Second Charge was long the only difference existing between the respective charges.]

[Dr Hew Scott incorrectly enters James Daes (minister of Earlston in 1586) as successor to Nicol Dagleish. Dagleish made his last appearance at a meeting of kirk-session in the middle of Oct. 1586, but that he was expected to leave at an earlier date appears from the fact, that on the 2nd July preceding, the kirk-session agreed to grant him a testimonial; while Aird, his successor, is found presiding at a meeting of kirk-session on the 3rd Sept. The two incumbencies therefore overlapped, while the name of Daes is not even mentioned.]

1586 WILLIAM AIRD. He was a mason till his twentieth year; was taught to read English by his wife, and afterwards acquired a knowledge of Latin, Greek, and Hebrew. After having attended the divinity classes for several years, he was called to the ministry (1584), but shortly thereafter fled with others of his brethren to England. He was adm. to this charge 13th Sept. 1586. He pronounced the sentence of excommunication passed by certain ministers who met at Edinburgh, against Francis, Earl of Bothwell, 18th Feb. 1585; was on the leet for the ministry of Edinburgh with fourteen others, 2nd June 1596, out of whom four were to be chosen; and in 1598 was proposed by Robert Bruce along with others as suitable to be his colleague. At the Assembly of same year he was one of those who maintained that ministers should have no vote in Parliament; he was also a member of the Assembly of 1602. His last appearance in the kirk-session was on 19th July 1606. According to report, being at one time straitened in circumstances, James VI., previous to a meeting of the Assembly at which he intended to prepare the way for Episcopacy, forwarded to him a purse of gold, which he refused to accept, though then in the utmost privation, considering it as designed for a bribe. Next morning his fidelity was rewarded by the generosity of a person unknown, who left several bags of meal for the support of his family. His son John was his assistant for a time, and subsequently settled at Newton.—[Edin. Counc., x.; *Test. Deprived by the Act of Parliament 11th June, and that of the Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662, for not conforming to Episcopacy, but continued to 13th April 1665, having refused a call to Glasgow in June preceding. NEIL M'VICAR, chaplain at Fort 1707 William; called 13th Dec. 1706; adm. 1st May 1707. He refused to take the Oath of Abjuration in 1712; was Almoner to His Majesty in 1729; pres. by Sir James Campbell of Auchinbreck to N. Knapdale in 1746, but declined; died 29th Jan. 1747, in his 75th year. Being the only minister in Edinburgh who understood Gaelic, he was recommended by the Assembly "to take particular charge of the Highlanders in and about the city who do not understand English," and in this way did a great deal for their improvement and welfare. Opposing the law of Patronage in sympathy with the popular feeling of the time, the settlement of his several colleagues was rendered no easy task; and to one of them indeed he never gave the smallest countenance or encouragement. During the Jacobite risings of 1715 and 1745 he strenuously supported the constituted authority. After Prince Charles Edward had obtained a victory at Prestonpans and entered Edinburgh triumphantly, M'Vicar preached to a promiscuous and hostile audience, praying earnestly for the reigning monarch as usual, and then referring to the intruding Prince, petitioned the Almighty thus—"In regard to the young man who has recently come among us in search of an earthly crown, may he soon obtain what is far better, a heavenly one." He marr. (1) July 1705, Lillias, daugh. of Alex. Dunbar, W.S., who died 12th Dec. 1732, in 47th year, and had issue—Hugh, min. of Dalziel; Alexander, merchant, Edinburgh; Jean (marr. ANDREW MITCHELL THOMSON, 1814 born 11th July 1778, son of John T., min. of Sanquhar, afterwards of Edinburgh; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; schoolmaster of Markinch; licen. by Presb. of Kelso 7th Oct. 1800; ord. to Sprouston 11th March 1802; trans. to East Parish, Perth, 31st March 1808; trans. to New Greyfriars 16th May 1810; M.A. (Edinburgh 1811); pres. by the Town Council 9th Feb., trans. and adm. 16th June 1814; D.D. (Columbia College, New York, 4th Aug. 1818, which he did not accept, and by the Univ. and Marischal College of Aberdeen, Nov. 1823). Returning from a meeting of Presb., in whose business he had taken an active part, he died instantaneously within a few steps of his own door (29 Melville Street), from an affection of the heart, 9th Feb. 1831. He was an enthusiastic musical amateur, and the composer of many psalm tunes. In 1820 he published Sacred Harmony, for the Use of St George's Church, Edinburgh, in which will be found "Redemption" and "St George's, Edinburgh," and eleven other original tunes by Dr T. In the "Apocrypha Controversy" he very strongly opposed the policy of circulating copies of the Bible in which the books of the Apocrypha were inserted, and he pleaded with great eloquence for the immediate termination of slavery in the British colonies. Able character sketches have been drawn by Dr M'Crie, Dr Chalmers, and Dr Burns of Toronto. He marr. 26th April 1802, Jane Carmichael, who died 8th June 1840, and had issue—Jean and Helen, born 30th March 1803; Agnes, born 24th Aug. 1804, died 27th Sept. 1816; John, Professor of Music in the Univ. of Edinburgh, born 28th Oct. 1805, died 1st May 1841; Janet, born 2nd Oct. 1809; Isabella, born 17th Nov. 1811; James, born 8th Oct. 1813, died 23rd June 1815; Andrew, min. of Maybole, born 10th May 1815; Christian Bonar, born 8th Dec. 1819. ST LUKE'S (Q.S.).

[A church in Young Street, originally a Unitarian chapel, was purchased by the Kirk-session of St George's in 1834, and rebuilt. It was opened for public worship 28th May 1837. In 1843 the minister, the twelve elders, and the trustees joined the Free Church, retaining possession of the building. They were, however, ejected on 4th March 1849, and services in connection with the Church of Scotland were resumed. The church and district were constituted a chapel-of-ease by the General Assembly in 1841, and erected into a parish by decree of the Court of Teinds, 11th Feb. 1863. The district having become depopulated, an Act of Parliament (3 Edward VII., cap. 66) was obtained to transfer the endowments, minister, etc., to a new church and parish to be erected within the city of Edinburgh. A new church was accordingly built at Comely Bank, and opened for worship 10th Oct. 1908. The old parish was reannexed to St George's, and the new parish (taken chiefly from the Dean and partly from St Bernard's) was erected by decree of the Court of Teinds on 6th Feb. 1909.]

ALEXANDER MOODY-STUART, born
1835 Paisley, 15th June 1809, sixth son of Andrew Moody of Muirshiel, banker, Paisley, and Margaret Fulton McBrair; M.A. (Glasgow 1830); licen. by Presb. of Glasgow 5th Oct. 1831; missionary in Holy Island, Northumberland, 1831-5; under the Kirk-session of St George's, Edinburgh, began in 1835 the work of gathering a congregation in Young Street; ord. first min. 27th July 1837. Joined Free Church and became min. of St Luke's Free Church 1843; convener of Jewish Mission of Free Church from 1847 to 1889 (with a brief interval); Moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Church, 1875; D.D. (Edinburgh 1875); died at Crieff, 31st July 1898. All his life he was a strong supporter of the principle of Church Establishment, and an opponent of ecclesiastical and political agitation for disestablishment of the Church of Scotland; dissented strongly from the positions of the adherents of the "Higher Criticism" of the Old Testament; took a prominent part in opposition to the movement for union between the Free and United Presbyterian Churches between 1863 and 1873; interested himself in promoting friendly relations between Scottish Presbyterians and the Reformed Churches of Hungary and Bohemia. THE TOLBOOTH PARISH.

[Erected by the Town Council 24th Dec. 1641, the west portion of St Giles adjoining the Tolbooth being appropriated for its use. The present building was erected 1840-3, in terms of the arrangement between the Commissioners of H.M. Treasury and the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of Edinburgh. The latter body, by Act 7 & 8 George IV., cap. 76, entitled "An Act for carrying into effect certain improvements within the city of Edinburgh and adjacent to the same," were authorised to discontinue two of the places of worship under the roof of St Giles, and were at the same time required to erect two additional churches in place thereof, including a church then in course of erection in St Vincent Street (now known as St Stephen's), the second church to be erected within the bounds of the ancient royalty. The Tolbooth was erected as the second of these churches. The arrangement under which it was erected is narrated in the disposition by the Commissioners of Improvements of the City of Edinburgh, with consent of the Lord Provost and Council, in favour of the Commissioners of Woods, Forests, etc., dated 12th May 1846. That disposition proceeds on the narrative that it having been found necessary to provide a suitable hall for the meetings of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, an arrangement was entered into between the Lords Commissioners of H.M. Treasury and the Lord Provost and Council, whereby the latter body agreed to pay the sum of £6000 towards the erection of an edifice on a certain site near the Castlehill, which should serve both for an assembly hall and a church, provided the Treasury would agree to defray the remainder of the expenditure, including the price of the ground (which was fixed at £3600), and make over to the Lord Provost and Council the aisle of St Giles, in which the General Assembly was wont to meet, to be used as a city church in all time coming. The disposition contains the terms and conditions on which it was granted, which include, inter alia, that the whole building is to be appropriated to the uses of the General Assembly during its sittings, that on all other occasions the whole of the building, except the church and such accommodation as may be required for it as a place of public worship, shall be appropriated to ecclesiastical purposes connected with the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland and of the Commission of that Church, and of the Synod of Lothian and Tweeddale, and of the Presbytery of Edinburgh, and that on all other occasions (except during the sittings of the General Assembly) the church, with such accommodation as may be necessary for its use as a place of public worship, shall be used as one of the city churches in connection with the Church of Scotland.

The foundation stone was laid on the occasion of Queen Victoria's first visit to Scotland. The following is the inscription on the stone: "To the Glory of God, in honour of the Queen, on the 3rd day of September in the year of our Lord 1842, the day of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria visiting the City of Edinburgh, the Right Honourable Sir James Forrest, Bart., of Comiston, Lord Provost; the Reverend David Welsh, D.D., Moderator of Assembly; the foundation stone of this superstructure, to be called Victoria Hall, for the use of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, was laid by the Right Honourable Lord Frederick Fitzclarence, G.C.B., etc., Grand Master Mason of Scotland, in presence of the Grand Lodge and other masonic lodges; James Gillespie-Graham of Orchill, architect (of the hall); John Lind, master builder of the hall. Length from east to west, 141 feet; height of spire over the entrance, 241 feet." (For further information regarding the ceremony, see Sir Thomas Dick Lauder's Memorials of the Royal Progress in Scotland in 1842.)

ALEXANDER WEBSTER, born 1707, 1737 son of James W., min. of the Second Charge; educated at High School and Univ. of Edinburgh; licen. by Presb. of Haddington 13th March 1733; ord. to Culross 6th Sept. 1733; called 6th Jan., trans. and adm. 2nd June 1737. To him the Church is indebted for the promotion and prosperity of its fund for ministers' widows and children. He received the thanks of the General Assembly, 15th May 1744, "for the extraordinary pains and trouble taken by him in the rise and progress of the scheme," the first institution of its kind in Scotland. He was appointed chaplain to Frederick, Prince of Wales, 1748, and was Moderator of Assembly, 24th May 1753. In 1755 he drew up an account of the people, and made what was practically the first census of the population of Scotland for the information of Government; D.D. (Edinburgh, 24th Nov. 1760); one of an Assembly deputation who presented an address to George III. on his accession, 20th Dec. 1760; general collector of the Ministers' Widows' Fund, 26th June 1771. He was one of His Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary, and a Dean of the Chapel Royal. He died 25th Jan. 1784. Though strictly evangelical in doctrine, he was of convivial and social habits, and withal so popular and beloved that sittings in the Tolbooth Church were not easily obtained, which led one of the city functionaries to observe, "it was easier to get a seat in the kingdom o' heivin than i' the Tolbuith kirk." Webster is said to have suggested the erection of the New Town, Edinburgh. He was enthusiastic in furthering the civilisation of the Highlands by the promulgation of the gospel and the spread of industry. He marr. 13th June 1737, Mary (died 28th Nov. 1766), eldest daugh. of Colonel John Erskine, brother of Sir Charles E. of Alva, Bart., and had issue—John, born 31st May 1738; James, born 9th Jan. 1740; George, civil paymaster, H.E.I.C.S., born 15th Oct. 1744, died in Bengal, July 1794; William, born 21st Dec. 1750, died 9th Jan. 1767; Ann, born 22nd Sept. 1752 (marr. Captain Eyre Robert Mingay, of the 66th Foot), died 16th May 1786; Alexander, mate of the Dutton East Indiaman, born 29th Sept. 1754, died on his passage to India in 1782; Basil, born 8th Aug. 1757, died 2nd Dec. 1759. THE TOLBOOTH CHURCH (Q.S.).

[By the Annuity Tax Abolition Act, 23 & 24 Vict., cap. 50 (1860), the whole rights of administration and custody of fifteen churches in Edinburgh, of which the Tolbooth was one, were transferred from the Magistrates and Town Council to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. It was also enacted that the Annuity Tax which had been levied for the maintenance of the ministers of these churches should cease to be imposed, and that the Commissioners should, out of the moneys to be received by them in terms of the Act, make payment of stipend to one minister of each of thirteen of the churches above referred to. The Tolbooth was not one of those so provided for. The right of patronage or presentation of ministers to five of these churches (of which the Tolbooth was one) was also transferred from the Magistrates and Council to the Commissioners, it being left to their discretion, on a vacancy occurring, to make a presentation or appointment either ad interim or permanent, or to make no presentation or appointment and to allow any charge becoming vacant to lapse and become extinct, as to them should seem most beneficial and expedient. On the death of Dr Smith in 1866, the Commissioners made no presentation or appointment of a minister to the Tolbooth either ad interim or permanent. The parish, however, remained intact, and the Commissioners sanctioned a temporary arrangement whereby two licentiates, in succession, undertook the duties of the charge. These were—Alexander Webster, afterwards min. of St David's, Edinburgh; and Joseph Hunter, afterwards min. of Cockburnspath.

By the Annuity Tax Abolition Amendment Act, 33 & 34 Vict., cap. 87 (9th Aug. 1870), it was provided that it should not be competent to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to nominate or present a minister to any of the five churches referred to above, and that these churches or charges should not be provided with ministers or "otherwise maintained as churches or charges endowed by law." A proviso was, however, inserted in the Act, that nothing contained in it should prevent the Tolbooth from being provided with a minister of the Church of Scotland, who should be paid or endowed from voluntary sources, and in the case of a permanent endowment from voluntary sources being obtained and provision made for maintaining the church, all in such manner as to warrant the erection and constitution of a church and parish quoad sacra, the Commissioners were authorised and required to concur so far as might be necessary on their part, in the proper proceedings before the Court of Teinds to attain that object.

In this state of matters the Edinburgh University Missionary Association volunteered, under the energetic leadership of Professor Charteris, to carry on the parochial work and to furnish a considerable part of the salary if the Presbytery would agree to the appointment of a licentiate to act as missionary. The Presbytery agreed, and appointed Professor Charteris to administer the sacraments. Peter Thomson (afterwards min. of Dunning) was chosen as parish missionary, and was succeeded by George Wilson (afterwards min. of St Michael's, Edinburgh). In 1873 the Tolbooth was erected a parish quoad sacra, and as now constituted contains the greater part of the old parish.]

THOMAS WILKIE, M.A.; trans. from 1687 North Leith; elected by the Town Council 11th Aug. 1687. He was the only min. of the city not superseded at the Revolution and was appointed to Greyfriars

23rd Jan. 1691. Being requested to waive his appointment, he replied, "he would very readily obey the good town, provided his legal right as one of the min. of Edinburgh was not prejudged." The Council then offered him the meeting-house in the Castle-hill, which he declined, as it was not one of the legal churches of the city, to which he considered himself to have an undoubted claim. He was trans. to Lady Yester's 30th Oct. 1691.—[Edin. Counc.

JAMES WEBSTER, of Fife origin; 1693 educated at Univ. of St Andrews; suffered during earlier life for his religious opinions, being imprisoned no fewer than three times; ord. to Liberton 1688; trans. to Whitekirk 1691; called 23rd Nov. 1692; trans. and adm. 1693. He scrupled to take the Oath of Abjuration in 1712; had a process instituted against him before the Lord Ordinary (Grange), same year, by the celebrated Dr Archibald Pitcairne, for calling him an atheist, which was amicably settled. He opposed giving toleration to Episcopalians. Died 18th May 1720, aged 61, and buried in Greyfriars.
 He took an active part in favour of the prosecution of Professor Simson of Glasgow in 1717, and in connection with the case worked himself into such an extremity of passion, that there was a probability of his being deposed by the Assembly at their next sitting, had he not tendered an apology.
 He marr. (1) Margaret Keir, who was buried

TRINITY CHURCH.

[Originally founded in 1462 as a collegiate church by Queen Mary of Gueldres, widow of James II., though only choir and transepts were erected. In 1584 it became the church for the North-East Quarter of the city. The Town Council, 14th Jan. 1595, "caused make ane loft in the east end fit for the students and regents of the Town's College in the Kirk-of-Field." The interior was greatly damaged by Cromwell's troops in Nov. 1650, but was restored in 1653. Of decorated Gothic, displaying exceeding grace of execution, it was almost the only large illustration of the Scottish Gothic which gave promise of being developed with distinctive features of peculiar excellence. In 1848 this venerable edifice was sold to the North British Railway Co. for about £18,000. The stones were carefully numbered and laid aside with a view to the church being rebuilt on a new site. Unfortunately the Town Council did not carry that out, but placed many obstacles in the way, with the hope apparently that the congregation would disappear and the church should not be needed. Despite many difficulties the members held loyally together and steadily increased, till in 1873, when the new church was opened, there were over 800 on the roll. All that remained of the stones were built into the apse. Long litigation before the Court ended in a judgment of the House of Lords, who reversed a decision of the Court of Session that all the money must be spent on the new church, and allowed only £7000. For a time the congregation met in the Calton Convening Rooms, a place too small to hold all the communicants. Afterwards the kirk-session hired the Waterloo Rooms, at a rent of £70, which the Town Council refused to pay, but soon after sent them to worship in John Knox's Free Church, at a rent of £400 a year. After three years there, in 1861 the congregation removed to a part of St Giles, where they remained until the new church was opened.]

WALTER BALCANQUHAL [BAL-1598 CANQUHALL], is almost certain to have been born at Balcanquhal, Strathmiglo, probably in 1548 (cf. Sibbald's List of Heritors). After studying at St Andrews, he was exhorter at Aberdour in 1571, and entered St Giles on Whit Sunday 1574. At that time he is described in James Melvill's Diary (Wodrow Society, p. 41) as "ane honest, upright-hearted young man, latlie enteret to the ministerie of Edinburgh." He was elected to the chaplaincy of the Altar called Jesus, 20th Nov. 1579. Having preached against the influence of the French at Court, 7th Dec. 1580, he was called before the Privy Council, 9th Jan. 1581, and admonished. He attended the Earl of Morton on the eve of his execution, 1581. He opposed the Acts of Parliament of 1584, and was obliged to flee for safety to Berwick-on-Tweed [while here, his wife along with Mrs Lawson addressed to the Archbishop a long and most extraordinary letter of rebuke and vituperation (Calderwood, iv., 126; P. C. Reg., iii., 691)], but on returning after the storm had passed, came once more into royal favour. On 2nd Jan. 1586 he preached before the King (though James "rebuked him from his seat in the loft" for some of his opinions); he attended the coronation of Queen Anne, 17th May 1590. In 1596 his bold utterances again brought him into conflict with the sovereign, and a warrant having been issued, again he escaped to Yorkshire. He demitted in May 1597, in order to admit of new parochial divisions of the city, and on 18th April 1598 he was admitted to this charge. On 10th Sept. 1600 he was called before the Privy Council for questioning the genuineness of the Gowrie Conspiracy, but, professing to be satisfied with its reality, he was dismissed. He was a member of the Assembly of 1602. Along with Robert Pont he took protestation at the cross of Edinburgh, in name of the whole Kirk, against the verdict of the Assize finding the brethren who met in Gen. Assembly at Aberdeen guilty of treason. For condemning the proceedings of the Gen. Assembly, 1610, he was again called before the Privy Council, and admonished. Falling into bad health, he ceased preaching, 16th July 1616, and died 4th Aug. 1617. He bequeathed 1000 merks towards the stipend of a Professor of Divinity in the Univ. of Edinburgh. He marr. Margaret, daugh. of James Marjoribanks, merchant, in right of whom he entered burgess and guild-brother of the city, 15th Feb. 1591, and had issue—Robert, min. of Tranent; Walter, D.D., Fellow of Pembroke College, Oxford, 1611, chaplain to James VI., Dean of Rochester 1624, Dean of Durham 1639, one of the executors of George Heriot, and author of the Statutes for the regulation of Heriot's Hospital, born 1586, died 25th Dec. 1645; John; Samuel, bapt. 11th Jan. 1595-6; Katherine (marr., pro. 30th Sept. 1601, Nicol Udward, Dean of Guild, Edinburgh); Rachel (marr., pro. 31st Oct. 1605, John Makcubine, merchant, Edinburgh); Sara; Margaret; Libra. COLLEGIATE, OR SECOND CHARGE.

[The Town Council having resolved (31st Jan. 1781) to erect St Andrew's Church in the New Town, this charge was discontinued at the vacancy of 24th Aug. 1782.]

GEORGE ROBERTSON, son of Patrick R., burghess of Edinburgh (G. R. 1597 Inhib., 28th March 1622); regent in the Univ.; was on the Exercise 20th June 1592; elected by the Commissioners of the General Assembly at Falkland, and adm. 6th June 1597. This having been considered informal, he was readm. 18th April 1598. He died before 20th July 1604. He marr. (cont. 24th Aug. 1598) Margaret, eldest daugh. of William Pringle, tailor, burghess of Edinburgh (Reg. of Deeds, lxix.), and had issue—Bessie, bapt. 9th May 1599 (marr. David French); Katherine, bapt. 13th July 1600, died before 1612. Publication—Vitæ et Mortis D. Roberti Rollocki Scoti Narratio (Edinburgh, 1599).—[Edin. Counc. and St Cuthbert's Sess. Regs. (Bapt.); Rollock's Sel. Works, Bruce's Sermons (Life), Craufurd's Hist. Univ. Edin., Reg. Assig., Spottiswood's and Calderwood's Hists., Murray's Life of Rutherford.]

JOHN MAXWELL, M.A.; trans. from 1625 New Church; app. by the Town Council 25th Nov. 1625; trans. to Old Kirk Parish 1626.—[Edin. Counc. Reg., Murray's Life of Rutherford.]

HENRY ROLLOCK, M.A.; trans. from 1623 Kilconquhar; elected 2nd, and pres. by the Town Council 16th Jan. 1628; pres. to Greyfriars 1629, but continued.—[Edin. Counc. Reg., Row's and Stevenson's Hists.]

JAMES ELLIOT, M.A. (St Andrews 1620; adm. colleague min. of College 1635 Church, Glasgow, 1633; D.D. (Glasgow); a member of the Court of High Commission 21st Oct. 1634; elected by the Town Council 18th, and trans. and adm. 30th Dec. 1635. He was prepared to intimate a solemn fast to pray for a blessing on the Covenant, 3rd June 1638, but was inhibited from doing so by the Bishop. His ministry in consequence became unpopular, and one day going to the pulpit in room of another [Rollock], the women "after sermon fell upon him with many sad strokes." He did not decline the Assembly that year, but as he had used the Liturgy complaints were lodged against him 7th Jan. 1639, and a committee appointed to deal with the case reported that "having considered the said Mr E.'s preaching cannot for the present serve to the edification of the people of Edinburgh, ordains and appoints him to cease from preaching till the provincial Synod, and in case he before then acknowledges the Acts of the Assembly at Glasgow, recommends to the Synod to transport him from the Church of Edinburgh, except the people desire him to stay; and if he does not then acknowledge the Acts of the Assembly at Glasgow, refers to the Synod to depose him of his ministerial function." A report was made to the General Assembly, 26th Aug. 1639, by two of its members appointed to take notice of his case, "that they thought him to be a humble and modest man, penitent for anything he has done, and submissive to the constitutions of the kirk." On which the Assembly declared him capable of the ministry, and to be provided at the first occasion. On 2nd April 1640 he granted a disposition to his wife on the narrative that he intended to leave Scotland and was uncertain of his return (Reg. Deeds, dxli., 383). He appears to have gone to England and obtained a living. He died probably about 1652. He marr. 20th July 1634 (cont. 27th June 1634, ibid., dxli., 383), Helen, eldest daugh. of John Strang, Principal of Glasgow Univ. (who survived her husband, and marr. Robert Baillie, Principal of Glasgow Univ.: Glasgow Com. Deeds, 19th Oct. 1709), and had issue—John; James; Janet (marr. Hugh Blair, min. of Muiravonside); Christian (marr. Robert Watson, min. of Cardross).—[Edin. Counc., Bapt., Test. (Glasg.), and *Glasg. Reg. WILLIAM BENNET, probably son 1641 of Andrew B., min. of Monimail; M.A. (St Andrews 1619); min. of Monimail 1626; pres. by the Town Council 14th Jan. 1639; confirmed by the Assembly at Aberdeen 1640; trans. and adm. 28th Oct. 1641; was a member of the Commission of Assembly 1642-6, and died March 1647. He marr. Jean Bonar, and had issue—James; Elizabeth (Reg. Horn., xxvi., 235; Fife Reg. Sas., v., 276, xviii., 354); George, in the service of the King of Poland, created a baronet, 28th July 1671; William and Helen (twins); Catherine; David; Robert, in 1666 lieutenant in the Polish army (Reg. of Deeds, Mack., 18th Nov. 1672).—[Edin. Counc., Bapt., and Gen. Sess. Reg.; Baillie's Lett., i.; Acts of Ass.]

JOHN SMITH, probably son of John S., 1648 min. of Maxton; M.A. (Edinburgh, 14th July 1621); licen. by Presb. of Kirkcaldy 14th Aug. 1634; ord. to Burntisland 1634; pres. by the Town Council and Kirk-session 16th March 1647; trans. and adm. 17th March 1648; a member of the Commissions of Assembly 1648-9; app. by Parliament one of the Visitors of the Univ. of St Andrews 16th Jan. 1649, and of Edinburgh 31st July 1649; taken prisoner at Alyth 28th Aug. 1651, by the English army, carried to Tynemouth Castle and afterwards to London, where he was liberated, and returned to Edinburgh 29th March 1653. Refusing to conform to Episcopacy the parish was declared vacant, 7th Aug. 1662; he died in the neighbourhood of Prestonpans, 9th Dec. 1667. He drew up some of the public papers on the part of the Resolutioners against the Protesters. He marr. Eupham Monipennie (buried 22nd Dec. 1672), and had issue—Eupham, bapt. 29th July 1649; James, bapt. 20th Oct. 1661; John, M.A. (G. R. Sas., xxviii., 88).—[*Edin. Counc., Gen. Sess., and Reg. ALEXANDER CAIRNCROSS, born 1663 about 1637, son of George C. (a dyer in the Canongate for many years, in which occupation he was so successful that he was enabled to regain part of the estate of Colmslie, Lauderdale, which belonged to his progenitors), and Christian Ogilvie; studied at the Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (26th July 1657); licen. by George, Bishop of the diocese, 31st Oct. 1662; elected by the Town Council 29th April 1663; pres. to Ayton by Charles II. 13th Oct. 1664, but did not remove; trans. to Dumfries in 1668; became Bishop of Brechin (1684), Archbishop of Glasgow (1684), and finally (1693) Bishop of Raphoe in Ireland; died unmarr. 14th May 1701.—[Keith's Catal., Edin. Counc. Reg., Dict. Nat. Biog.]

JOHN MACQUEEN, M.A. (Edinburgh 1669 27th July 1663); ord. to Carmichael 1666; pres. by the Town Council 16th Dec. 1668; trans. and coll. 29th Jan. after. He was suspended "for a foolish frolic," Dec. 1683, but reponed Feb. 1684; Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal 28th Jan. 1688; deprived by the Convention of Estates, 26th April 1689, for not reading the Proclamation against owning James VII., and not praying for William and Mary. He became min. of Welton, near Daventry, in Northamptonshire; and was app. in 1698 to St Mary's, Dover, where he died 10th Jan. 1733, aged about 90. He marr. 21st Dec. 1668, Helen Meldrum, and had issue—Margaret, bapt. 18th Jan. 1670; Mary, bapt. 22nd Dec. 1671; Helen, bapt. 10th Dec. 1673; Isabel, bapt. 9th Sept. 1675; John, bapt. 5th Nov. 1678. ARCHIBALD RIDDELL, born 1635, 1701 third son of Sir Walter R., Baronet of that ilk, and Janet, daugh.
 of William Rigg of Athernie, Fife. Educated at Edinburgh Univ., he took the degree of M.A. 9th July 1656, and was min. of Kippen about the year 1670. He became famous as a field preacher and suffered frequent imprisonments from 1680-4. In the latter year he was released from the Bass on condition of removing to America. During the voyage fever broke out on the vessel and raged with fearful mortality, Riddell's wife being among the victims. On reaching New Jersey, he had calls from Newbridge, Long Island, and Woodbridge, the latter of which he accepted. After the Revolution he assayed to return to Scotland, but was captured with one of his sons by a French man-of-war, carried prisoner to Nantz and various ports, and cruelly treated for fully two and a half years.
 Released at the request of King William's government, he was adm. min. of Wemyss 28th Sept. 1691, of Kirkcaldy 20th May 1697, of this charge 8th Dec. 1701; died 17th Feb. 1708, "a singularly pious and laborious servant of Jesus Christ." He marr. (1) Helen, daugh. of Henry Aitkenhead, min. of North Berwick, and had issue —Capt. Walter of Granton, died 1738; Dr John, physician, Edinburgh, died 1740; Sarah, who marr., 26th Nov. 1703, John Currie, min. of Oldhamstocks: (2) (pro.
 8th May 1694) Jean Ker (Canongate Reg.), who survived him.—[*Edin. Reg. (Marr. and

GEORGE LOGAN, born 1678, son of 1732 George L., descended from Logan of that ilk. His mother was the only daughter of John Cunningham, min. of Old Cumnock. M.A. (Glasgow 1696); licen.
 by Presb. of Glasgow 4th March 1703; chaplain to John, Earl of Lauderdale;
 ord. to Lauder 7th April 1707; trans. to Sprouston 22nd Jan. 1719; trans. to Dunbar 24th Jan. 1722; called 31st Aug., trans. and adm. 14th Dec. 1732; Moderator of Assembly 1740, which dep. Erskine and the Seceders. He strenuously supported the Hanoverian succession; and on the approach of Prince Charles's army toward Edinburgh, was a warm but unsuccessful advocate for placing the city in a state of defence; died 13th Oct. 1755. He marr.
 (1) 5th April 1711, Anne, daugh. of James Home of Eccles, and had issue—George, min. of Ormiston, and a daugh.: (2) (pro. 1st Jan. 1744) Lilius (died before 17th Dec. 1770), daugh. of Thomas Weir, surgeon, Edinburgh. Publications—

THE TRON KIRK.

[Christ's Kirk at the Tron, so called from the great beam, the public weighing-place of the city. The foundation stone was laid 4th March 1637, and the church dedicated 1641. The present building is but a fragment of the original structure, whose stately proportions were mercilessly despoiled on the formation of Hunter Square and the South Bridge. A notable feature of the interior is the oak roof, not unlike that of the Parliament House. The steeple dates from 1826, its predecessor being destroyed by fire 15th Nov. 1824. The General Assembly met in the Tron Kirk from 1830 to 1840.]

WILLIAM COLVILL [COLVILLE], 1641 M.A. (St Andrews 1631); min. of Cramond in 1635; trans. to Trinity College, Edinburgh, in 1639; trans. and adm. about 24th Dec. 1641. Five days after the battle of Kilsyth (15th Aug. 1645), he obtained a protection from the Marquess of Montrose, and was accordingly regarded with grave suspicion. He was suspended by the General Assembly in July 1648, and dep. 26th July 1649, for maintaining the lawfulness of the Duke of Hamilton's Expedition into England. For a time he ministered in the English Church at Utrecht. In April 1652 he was elected Principal of Edinburgh University, but having been carried prisoner to the Castle for praying for Charles II., he was not permitted by Cromwell's Government to take possession of the office, which was declared vacant, 17th Jan. 1653. He received, however, a year's stipend (2000 merks) in consideration of having dem. his charge in Holland. On 8th Nov. 1654 he was reponed by the Synod of Lothian (there being no General Assembly during the Protectorate), and became min. of Perth. On Leighton's resignation in 1662, he was again app. Principal of the University, and died (buried 3rd June) 1675. He marr. (1) Marion Brisbane, and had issue—John, M.A., advocate, died 1679; Alexander, bapt. 12th May 1643; Janet, bapt. 24th Sept. 1646; Matthew, bapt. 8th Oct. 1647; Thomas, bapt. 27th May 1649, died before 16th Nov. 1678: (2) Marion Fyfe, and had issue—James, bapt. 18th July 1655. Publications—Ethica Christiana—Sermons on the Righteous Branch. See a rare pamphlet, Submission to the Censures of Suspension and Deposition exemplified in the case of the Very Rev. Mr William Colvill, sometime one of the ministers of Edinburgh, and afterwards Principal of the College there. From authentic and unquestionable vouchers (Edinburgh, 1734).

WILLIAM WISHART [WISHEART], 1707 born 1660, son of William W., min. of Kinneil; educated privately and at the Univs. of Edinburgh and Utrecht; M.A. (Edinburgh 1680). Returning from Holland, he was charged with denying the King's authority, and put into prison, 1684. Released the following year, he was called to be min. of the Meeting-house, near the Sheriff Brae of Leith (in which his father had ministered), and was ord. 12th Jan. 1688. In 1692 he removed to the Parish Church of South Leith, a step which met with much opposition from the Episcopal section of the community, who tried by force to prevent him and his friends from gaining possession of the church (vide South Leith). He was Moderator of Assembly 4th April 1706, and on 12th Oct. 1707 was adm. to this charge. He was a second time Moderator of Assembly 30th April 1713, a third, 14th May 1718, a fourth, 14th May 1724, and a fifth, 2nd May 1728; Principal of the Univ. of Edinburgh (which he held in conjunction) 6th June 1716; D.D. (Edinburgh, 31st Dec. 1728); died 11th June 1729. Bell of Gladsmuir described him as "a godly, grave person, a sweet and excellent preacher, whose life being of a piece with his preaching, he made almost as many friends as there were persons known to him." He marr. 15th March 1691, Janet (died 30th June 1744), daugh. of Major William Murray, of Touchadam family, and had issue—William and George, both his successors. JOHN JARDINE, born 1715, son of 1754 Robert J., Lochmaben; licen. by Presb. of Lochmaben 7th Sept. 1736; ord. to Liberton 30th July 1741; trans. to Lady Yester's 6th Dec. 1750; trans. and adm. 11th Oct. 1754; D.D. (St Andrews, 20th Nov. 1758); one of His Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary 1759; Dean of the Chapel Royal 1761; Dean of the Order of the Thistle 1763. He died suddenly in the General Assembly, 30th May 1766. He was an intimate of John Home, author of Douglas, and a man of infinite pleasantry as well as great talents, whose conversation possessed the charm of easy, natural, attractive humour. His playful vivacity often amused itself in a sort of mock contest with the somewhat infantile simplicity of David Hume the philosopher, who enjoyed the discovery of the joke which had excited the laugh of his companions around him: On one occasion Hume, going down the stair after visiting Jardine, refused a light, saying "he was well acquainted with the stair." He stuck, however, when his friend exclaimed, "Ah! David, I knew you wanted supernatural light." He marr. 7th Feb. 1744, Jean (died 27th Sept. 1766), eldest daugh. of George Drummond, commissioner of Excise, and Lord Provost of Edinburgh, and had issue—Robert, died at Liberton, 8th Feb. 1747 (see tombstone there); George, born 10th Aug. 1753, W.S. apprentice 1770; John, born 24th Dec. 1759, died 17th March 1763; Janet, born 15th May 1762 (marr. 11th Oct. 1782, George Drummond Home of Blair-Drummond), died 30th Jan. 1840; Sir Henry, W.S., King's Remembrancer, born 30th May 1766, died 11th Aug. 1851. Publication—In the theological department of the old Edinburgh Review (Edinburgh, 1755-6) he handled some Secession publications severely. Great indignation was aroused, and the Review was withdrawn after only two numbers had been issued.—[Scots Mag., xxviii.; Mackenzie's Life of Home, Malcolm's House of Drummond, Carlyle's Autob., Kay's Portr., Lawson's Case; Morren's Ann., ii.]

WEST ST GILES, OR NEW NORTH CHURCH.

[There was a meeting-house in the Lawnmarket in 1692, to which a parish was allocated 25th March 1698, termed the New North, for whose accommodation the north-west portion of St Giles was fitted up 20th Dec. 1699. Having been the place where Sir John Gordon of Haddo was imprisoned previous to his decapitation in 1644, it was generally called Haddo's-hold, and from its size, the Little Kirk. During alterations in St Giles, the congregation was accommodated in the Methodist Chapel, Nicolson Square, from 1829-35, and in Brighton Street Chapel from 1835 to 1843, when they returned to the nave of St Giles. At the restoration of the Cathedral by Dr William Chambers, a sum of £10,000, raised chiefly by voluntary contributions, was vested in the Edinburgh Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and a new building erected near the Meadows, to which the congregation removed in 1880.]

ROBERT WALLACE, born 7th Jan. 1696, only son of Matthew W. 1738 min. of Kincardine-in-Menteith; educated at the Grammar School of Stirling and Univ. of Edinburgh, where he acted as assistant to James Gregory, Professor of Mathematics. He was one of the founders of the Rankenian Club in 1717; licen. by Presb. of Dunblane 31st July 1722; became min. of Moffat 29th Aug. 1723, and on 22nd Nov. 1733 was trans. to New Greyfriars, and to this charge 24th Sept. 1738. The Town Council obtained an interdict from the Lord Ordinary against the settlement, but as the city was considered only one parish, and the appointment to the different churches was fixed by the Presb., and the "matter was purely spiritual," he had no hesitation in accepting, and the opposition proceeded no farther. Wallace was Moderator of the General Assembly 12th May 1743; he was app. by the Commission 9th Nov. 1743 along with George Wishart to approach Parliament in connection with the Act providing for the widows and children of ministers and professors. They were successful, and received the thanks of the succeeding Assembly. He was a Dean of the Chapel Royal and Chaplain in Ordinary to George II. June 1744; D.D. (Edinburgh, 13th March 1759); died 29th July 1771. On the overthrow of the Walpole administration in 1742, he was entrusted for four years with the management of Church business, and consulted in the distribution of Crown Patronage, and so well did he discharge this duty that no instance occurred in which there was not a harmonious settlement. To his knowledge as a man of the world, were joined an acquaintance and zeal in mathematics which rendered him of essential service in assisting to make the calculations on which were founded the annuities and provisions to the widows and children under the Act above noticed. He marr. 14th Oct. 1726, Helen (died 9th Feb. 1776), daugh. of George Turnbull, min. of Tynninghame, and had issue—Matthew, D.D., vicar of Tenterden, Kent; George, advocate, author of various legal and other works, born 1727, died 13th March 1805; Elizabeth—all of whom died unmarr. Publications—The Regard due to Divine Revelation, and its Pretences to it Considered, a sermon (London, 1731); Reply to a Letter Directed to the Minister of Moffat [by William Dudgeon] Concerning the Positive Institutions of Christianity (London, 1732); The Letter to the Learned Author of the Queries Unmasked (Edinburgh, 1737, anon.); Ignorance and Superstition, a Source of Violence and Cruelty, and in Particular the Cause of the Present Rebellion, a sermon (Edinburgh, 1746); A Sermon on James iii., 18 (Edinburgh, 1746); A Dissertation on the Numbers of Mankind in Ancient and Modern Times (Edinburgh, 1753, anon.; new ed., Edinburgh, 1809), with Life of the Author (the book was translated into French under the supervision of Montesquieu); The Doctrine of Passive Obedience and Non-resistance Considered (Edinburgh, 1754); Characteristics of the Present Political State of Great Britain (Edinburgh, 1758); Various Prospects of Mankind, Nature, and Providence (London, 1761). He left in MS. an Essay on Taste, which was prepared for the press by his son, but never published; and many other unpublished MSS. now in the library of Edinburgh University.—[Wodrow's Anal., iii., iv., and Corresp., iii.; Scots Mag., xxxiii., lxxi.; Carlyle's Autob., Mackenzie's Life of Home; Morren's Ann., i.; *Dict. NORTH LEITH.

[Formerly the Chapel of St Ninian, built by Robert Bellenden, Abbot of the Monastery of Holyrood, July 1493; proposed by the Presb. 4th Sept. 1599, ratified by General Assembly 10th Dec. 1602, and erected by Parliament 9th July 1606. The patronage vested at the same time by Parliament in "the hail of the inhabitants," was exercised by male heads of families until the passing of the Patronage Bill, 1874. Lands of Newhaven with corn tithes and money stipend were annexed from St Cuthbert's, 1630. The corn tithes of Hillhousefield purchased from William Chalmer and his spouse, and fish tithes of Leith and Newhaven purchased from John, Lord Holyroodhouse, both by subscription, were confirmed by Royal Charter, 11th June 1631. New church erected 1815-16, after sale of old church, which had become too small; opened 1st Sept. 1816. Halls erected in 1866. The fish tithe was commuted on payment of £2500 by Leith Dock Commission, 1892.]

SOUTH LEITH, FORMERLY RESTALRIG.

[By the first General Assembly of the Reformed Kirk of Scotland "it was found reasonable and expedient that the parochiners of Restalrig sould repaire to the Kirk of Leith, and that the Kirk of Restalrig sould be razed and utterlie destroyed as a monument of idolatrie." In Nov. 1595 the Presb. gave commission to David Lindsay and John Brand "to converse with the neighbours for planting a kirk on the north side of the brig of Leith." As a result of this, overtures were presented that a parish might be made "of the north side of the brig of Leith, and some towns next adjacent, as Pilrig, Bonnington, Waraston, and Newhaven." In an Act of Parliament, 24th

June 1609, it was ordained that all the inhabitants of Restalrig should resort thereto "as into ane paroch kirk, as they have done in times past," and that the kirk of Restalrig should be superseded and extinct "from henceforth and for ever." After Toleration was granted, 28th June 1687, a meeting-house was taken in Sheriffbrae, 7th July following, and William Wishart, formerly min. of Kinneil, indweller in Leith, began to preach the following Sunday, and continued until a minister was settled.]

DAVID LINDSAY (primus) of Pittormie 1560 (Test. of Alexander Guthrie of Halkerton: Edin. Tests.), son of Alexander L. of Haltoun and Rachael Barclay of Mathers. Having travelled in France and Switzerland, he imbibed Reformation principles, and was one of twelve original ministers nominated in July 1560 to the "chief places in Scotland," the town assigned him being Leith. He was present at the first General Assembly, 20th Dec. 1560. Out of seventy-three succeeding Assemblies, his name occurs in fifty; while in those of Feb. 1569, Oct. 1577, Oct. 1582, 1586, 1593, and 1597 he was Moderator. He visited Knox on his deathbed in 1572, and at Knox's request, though "he thought the message hard," went to the castle of Edinburgh to warn Kirkcaldy of Grange that unless he gave it up he "should be brought down over the walls of it with shame, and hung against the sun" (Calderwood, iii., 234; Knox's Works, vi., 657). He visited Kirkcaldy after his condemnation, and was sent by him to Morton to intercede for his life, Kirkcaldy's whole estate being offered as a ransom. The intercession failed, and at Kirkcaldy's special request, Lindsay attended him on the scaffold, and thus was witness of the literal fulfilment of the doom pronounced by Knox. He filled a conspicuous place in affairs both of Church and State; was "the minister whom the court liked best," and almost the only one of the clergy of that time who complied with the King's request to pray for Queen Mary before her execution. He accompanied James to

Norway as chaplain, in Oct. 1589, when he went for his bride, Anne of Denmark, and on 23rd Nov. he married them at Upsala (Calderwood, v., 69). He and Robert Bruce crowned them at Holyrood on 12th May 1590. At the baptism of Prince Henry at Stirling, 23rd Aug. 1594, he preached to the ambassadors in French. He baptized the Princess Margaret on 16th April 1599, and Prince Charles, afterwards king, 19th Nov. 1600. He came to Edinburgh in 1600 to assure the ministers of the truth of the official version of the Gowrie Conspiracy, and when they declined to order a general service of thanksgiving for the King's safety, he conducted a service at the market cross, and preached a sermon in his own church in presence of His Majesty. By the end of that year he became Bishop of Ross, and a member of the Privy Council (Reg. P. C. Scot., vi., 187), still retaining his parochial charge. He accompanied James to England at the Union, and died, Father of the Church, 14th Aug. 1613. He marr. (1) Joneta, daugh. of George Ramsay of Clattie (Test. of George Ramsay, Edin. Tests.): (2) Helen Harresoun, who survived him (G. R. Inhib., 3rd Oct. 1615). He left issue—Sir Jerome of Annatland, advocate, Lord Lyon King-of-Arms, died 4th Dec. 1642 (who is now represented by a family in Virginia); David, his successor; Rachel (marr. 12th Oct. 1589, John Spottiswood, min. of Mid-Calder, afterwards Archbishop); and perhaps others. WILLIAM WISHART, called 24th Nov. 1687; ord. (in the meeting-house) 1688 12th Jan. 1688. His call was approved by the parish 1st July 1688, and confirmed by the Presb. 6th Jan. 1692, having before this been only min. of a "gathered congregation." "The Presbytery, with the magistrates of Edinburgh and Leith, came 10th Aug. 1692 and required the keys of the church doors from the min. [Charles Kay] and neighbours, to which it was answered, that if they had any warrant from the Privy Council for that effect, or any remit from them to the Presb. authorising them to proceed, they were ready to give obedience; but none being produced, they thought themselves not obliged, the matter being still depending before the Council, and protested against any violent intrusion to be made by them, and for cost, skaith, and damage, and for remeid of law. Notwithstanding whereof the magistrates and ministers of the Presb. with a confused company of people entered the church, by breaking open the windows, breaking the locks off the doors, and putting on new ones, and so caused guard the church doors with halberts, rang the bell, and possess Mr W. of the church, against all which irregular procedure public protests were taken." Having been adm. to the charge in this manner, he "came to the church next day with a guard of halberts, and preached, and after sermon took possession of the session-house, Kay [Second Charge] and his Session being refused entry, the bailies declaring W.'s the only legal Session, on which K. took instruments. W. preached every Sunday forenoon, and his colleague in the afternoon, in the church. On the afternoon of Sunday W. preached in the meeting-house, and on Thursdays they preached in the church and meeting-house alternately. The Presbyterian Session, however, got a decret from the Privy Council, 28th Feb. 1693, "declaring them the only legal Session, and ordaining K.'s [the Episcopal] Sess. to deliver up the poor's-box, all rights of mortification, utencils of the church, etc." Trans. to Tron, Edinburgh, 3rd Sept. 1707.—[Wodrow's Hist., iv.]

JOHN MORAY, M.A.; trans. from 1603 Borthwick; adm. 1603. He unsuccessfully opposed the reception of the constant Moderator, nominated by the General Assembly 17th Dec. 1606, maintaining that by such a proposal the liberty of the Kirk was overthrown. Heartily sympathising with the six banished brethren, he received them into his house, and hospitably treated them previous to their departure. Opposing the entry of Episcopal authority in the Church, and preaching against it in a sermon at the opening of Synod, he was summoned before the Privy Council, 25th Feb. 1608, and dismissed. He incurred the royal displeasure, however, and a warrant was issued for his committal to the Castle. The General Assembly, July following, requested that he might be released, which was done in the succeeding year, on condition "That he sould within twentice dayes goe to Newabbey, and there keepe within the compasse of four myles; preache not, and goe not to Leith before his departure." The Chancellor (Alexander, Earl of Dunfermline) accused the bishops of "barbarous and unbrotherlie dealing," in depriving him of his situation and living, when his office and quality, as well as the state of his wife's health, called for different treatment. He retired to Dumfries for eighteen months, assisting his brethren in preaching.

 For other six months he resided in Dysart, then left for Prestonpans, where he took every opportunity of exercising his ministry.
 He became min. of Dunfermline.—[*Reg.

 of Glasgow and St Andrews; M.A. (1627); tutor to John, Lord Borthwick, and on the exercise at Dalkeith. After leets had proved twice unsuccessful, he was elected "by the Session, Sailors, Maltmen, Traffickers, Crafts, and Mealmakers, all in one voice,"

30th Jan.; pres. and adm. 1st March 1631. He disappeared after 24th Jan. 1639. The congregation, 28th April thereafter, protested against him, in respect "he did desert his ministry without licence of the Presb. or congregation." Thrust from his church and plundered of his goods and gear by the violence of the Covenanters, he was compelled to fly to England, where he was incarcerated in the prison at York, and continued there to the utter ruin of himself, his family, fortune, and estate. In 1642 he was min. at Anderbiestipill, in Yorkshire (Reg. of Deeds, dxli., 155). He marr. (cont. 16th July 1631: Reg. of Deeds, dxxix., 298) Elizabeth, eldest daugh. of Ninian M^cMoran of Newhall, and had issue—Elizabeth, died before 1688; Agnes or Anna (marr., pro. 18th Nov. 1669, John Fermour, writer, Edinburgh, afterwards baron-clerk of Anstruther), as a widow with children, she petitioned the Privy Council, 29th July 1685, who ordered her 2000 merks from vacant stipends in the Diocese of Argyll; Eupham (marr. David Anderson); Margaret (marr. Alexander Home, M.A.); Thomas, died before his father (G. R. Inhib., 5th Oct., 1671; G. R. Hornings, 17th Aug. 1688).—[Mun. Univ. Glasg., iii.; *Act Rect. Univ. ALEXANDER GIBSON, M.A.; adm. 1640 1640; app. by the Presb. to attend the army in England 5th May 1644. The Session, 6th Jan. 1646, petitioned the Presb. to use their influence with the patron for his appointment to the First Charge, from the "solid experience" they had "of his fidelitie and diligence in feeding the flock of God, not by constraint but willinglie, in our greatest straits, and dangers," and in a letter to the patron himself five days after, they declare their unanimous affection towards him, "from his unblameable conversatione, his integritie in the publick cause of religion, his fidelitie and diligence in dispensing holie things, his prudent resolution in vindicating the liberties of our Kirk and Sessione, and his willingness to bestow gladlie, and to be bestowed for our soules when the hand of the Lord was hevelie smyting us." On a question "being put, whether to supplicate again or not?" they answered in ane voice (being posed man by man) that they would do so againe and againe if there were ane hope that he wold grant their request, but they could see no hope to insist therein for him." Having supplied the vacant First Charge almost two years in addition to his own, and because of his extraordinary "pains" during the time of the pestilence, the Session, 9th May 1647, presented him with 800 merks, in addition to his ordinary stipend of 1200 merks. When the English took possession of Leith he removed, and was appointed by Presb. of Dunblane, 30th Oct. 1650, to supply Dunblane "until it sal pleas God he get back." In 1652 he was min. of Ayton.—[Dunblane Presb. Reg.]

JOHN LOGAN, born in 1748, at Soutra, Midlothian, was son of George L., farmer, and Janet, daugh. of John Waterston or Weatherston, Stow. He was removed soon after his birth to Gosford Mains, East Lothian, and received his early education at the Grammar School of Musselburgh. In 1762 he entered the Univ. of Edinburgh, where he excelled in classics and English literature. He was for a time tutor at Ulbster to John, afterwards the celebrated Sir John Sinclair, Bart.; licen. by Presb. of Haddington 27th Sept. 1770; he received, in the year following, a presentation to this parish, but a competing presentation delayed his settlement until the matter came before the Court of Session, which gave judgment in his favour. He was accordingly ordained 2nd April 1773. In 1775 he became a member of the Assembly's Committee on the Paraphrases, and was the largest contributor to the collection. During the college sessions, 1779-80 and 1780-81, he delivered a series of Lectures on History, which the Edinburgh literati regarded with much favour. The presentation of his tragedy of Runnameda at an Edinburgh theatre, in 1783, gave offence to his parishioners and to many of the public—so pronounced, indeed, was the feeling against him that for this, and other reasons, he found it expedient to demit his charge, 27th Dec. 1786. He had an annuity of £40 from the stipend. The remainder of his life was spent in London, where he occupied himself with literary pursuits. He died unmarr., on Christmas Day 1788. As a preacher he was considered one of the most eloquent of his time. It is around his reputation as a poet that the main interest centres. In 1770 he published the Poems of his friend and fellow-student, Michael Bruce, adding "some poems written by different authors." The "Ode to the Cuckoo" was the second last piece of the collection. Eleven years later he issued a volume of Poems under his own name, in which the "Cuckoo" ode had first place. Then began the long Logan-Bruce controversy, which is not likely to be ever satisfactorily settled. The charge against Logan of appropriating both Bruce's "Hymns" and "Ode to the Cuckoo" has been renewed from time to time, and the assertion is made that all the Paraphrases which he furnished to the Church were also the work of his friend. Logan, however, was a genuine poet, and in spite of circumstances which militate against his claims, a good case can be made out in his behalf. He was probably the sole author of Pars. viii., ix., x., xi., xviii., xxxi., xxxviii., liii., lvii., and of Hymn v.; and he may have revised (or assisted to revise) Pars. i., ii., xxiii., xxv., xxviii., xlvi., and lxiii. (London, 1788-93); Sermons, 2 vols., with a Memoir (London, 1790-1) (which have gone through many editions).—[Anderson's Brit. Poets, xi.; Chambers's *Biog. JOHN SPOTTISWOOD (primus), born 1560 1510, second son of William S. of Spottiswood, Berwickshire (killed at Flodden), and Elizabeth Pringle of Torsonce; entered Univ. of Glasgow 27th June 1534, and took his degree of M.A. in 1536;

went to London soon after, where he imbibed the principles of the Reformation from Archbishop Cranmer. He returned to Scotland in 1543, and was pres. by Sir James Sandilands of Calder in 1548. He joined the Reformers in 1560, and was one of six elected for drawing up the First Book of Discipline, and Confession of Faith; became Superintendent of Lothian 9th March 1561. In 1562 the parishioners complained to the General Assembly that S.'s duties as Superintendent prevented him discharging all his duties of min. of the parish. The reply was that owing to the rarity of ministers it could not be otherwise, and that "the profit of many churches was to be preferred to the profit of one." He died 5th Dec. 1585. His son relates that he was "a man well esteemed for his piety and wisdom; loving and beloved of all persons, charitable to the poor, and careful above all things to give no man offence." He marr. WILLIAM STEWART, M.A. (Glasgow, 1683 12th July 1667). The collections, 25th Sept. 1687, "were so inconsiderable that the box was not able to maintain the poor"; an assessment was proposed according to Act of Parliament, which is said to be the earliest instance of a compulsory rate for this purpose. Rabbled at the Revolution. After S.'s rabbling it was found that the communion and baptismal plate was missing; on enquiry, the kirk-session found that it had been conveyed to Lord Lauderdale's house at Thirlstane, whence it was recovered by S.'s successor. He went to Fife, where he lived on the charity of friends. Died about 20th Nov. 1690, having marr. Grizel, daugh. of James Durie of Craigluscar, who survived him (P. C. Acta, 23rd Dec. 1690), and had an only son, Charles.—[Mun. Univ. Glasg., iii.; Sess. Reg.; MS. Acc. of Min., 1689.]

JAMES HART, M.A.; ord. 4th July 1692 1692. In Aug. 1702 he was called to Greyfriars, but "declared his sense of emptiness for so eminent a part, and his unwillingness to undertake it." The Presbytery ordered the call to be transmitted to Ratho and the parishioners to be summoned to answer thereto. At the next meeting the officer reported that on 9th Aug., as he was on his way to cite the heritors, elders, etc., a multitude of women came to him and so threatened him, that he was obliged to leave the place. Strong remonstrances were offered against the translation, but the Presbytery overruled the objections and appointed his admission for 19th Aug. 1702.—[Edin. Reg. (Marr.), Murray's Biog. Annals.]

JOHN GUTHRIE, son and heir of 1703 James G., brother of John G., younger of Mongerswood (Ayr Sas., vii., 239); called 30th May, and ord. 16th Aug. 1703. He refused to take the Oath of Abjuration in 1712; died 28th Feb. 1756, in his 83rd year, being a widower, with a daugh. Margaret, and others.

WILLIAM WILKIE, born 5th Oct. 1753 1721, son of James W., Echline; educated at Dalmeny School and Univ. of Edinburgh; licen. by the Presb. of Linlithgow 29th May 1745; called 15th Feb., and ord. (assistant and successor) 17th May 1753. He demitted, 15th Nov. 1759, on appointment as Professor of Natural Philosophy in the Univ. of St Andrews; died 10th Oct. 1772. When at Ratho his success as a farmer earned him the name of "Potato Wilkie." His scientific attainments were great, and among his pupils were Playfair and Leslie. Publication—The Epigoniad, an Epic Poem in Nine Books (Edinburgh, 1757; 2nd ed., 1759); Moral Fables in Verse (1769). ROXBURGH PLACE CHAPEL.

[Formerly a chapel belonging to the Relief Church. The introduction of an organ in 1829, while agreeable to the minister and practically all his congregation, was vigorously opposed by the neighbouring congregations, who petitioned the Synod to suppress the innovation. On the Synod's deciding against the use of instrumental music in public worship, the congregation ceased connection with the Relief body, 17th May 1829. On 26th June 1833, minister and people were admitted into the Church of Scotland, and a parish quoad sacra was declared by Act of Assembly, 31st May 1834. A debt of £4000 having accumulated, the church passed by sale into the hands of private parties. In 1856 the building was purchased by the trustees of Lady Glenorchy's Church, and it was occupied by that congregation till 1913, when a new church was erected on its site. Roxburgh Place Chapel was the meeting-place of the Convocation, 17th Nov. 1842, when of 465 present, 333 pledged themselves to secede if no other means could be taken.]

 shire, born Dec. 1621; M.A. (Edinburgh, 15th April 1645); adm. 22nd Aug.
 1649. He joined the Protesters, and formed one of the Dissenting Presb. from 6th Aug.
 1651 to 11th Feb. 1659; he was confined to his chamber at Edinburgh by the Committee of Estates, 15th Sept. 1660, and five days afterwards was imprisoned in the Tolbooth, where he remained for thirteen months, until released on the petition of the Presb. His stipend was sequestrated for his refusal to disown the Remonstrance or sign the bond for keeping the peace. On his wife petitioning Parliament, showing his sad condition, "as now prisoner in the Castle of Stirling, throw want of meanes, while ane numerous familie were dependant," an Act was passed, 29th Jan.
 1661, whereby "all arrears of stipend were ordered to be payed to her be the persones lyable in payment thereof." Another half-year's stipend was paid to himself. He was intercommuned by the Council, 6th Aug. 1675, for keeping conventicles; ordered 5th Feb. 1685 to be sent to His Majesty's plantations for declining the Test, but liberated from prison 24th Aug. 1685, "upon giving bond with caution under 5000 merks to compear when called." At the Toleration he began to preach, and took charge of the congregation in Leith where he had his residence, 10th July 1687, promising to continue until a min. was settled, though he stands enrolled as a min. in Presb. of Linlithgow at 25th July 1688, and was appointed one of the Pres. Committee to General Meeting in Edinburgh, 1st May 1689; he died Feb.

1692. He marr. Christian, daugh. of Richard Burne, a magistrate of Linlithgow, and had issue—Sir George, entered the army, and acquired the estate of Cliftonhall, Ratho; Sir James of Little Chelsea, admiral, commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean, M.P. for Portsmouth, etc., died 31st May 1723; William, Principal of the Univ. of Edinburgh (q.v.).—[*S. JOHN BOOK, M.A. (Glasgow 1606). He had a recommendation to George, 1611 Archbishop of St Andrews, from the Presb. 13th Feb. 1611, testifying to him as a "very worthy young man, who had given good trial of his gifts and was well lyked by the parish," and was adm. 10th March 1611; recommended as colleague to Adam Bellenden at Falkirk 1614; craved transportation there by reason of his mean and unsettled condition; resolved to abide same year; George Thomson, "his guide," was reader 1644; a brother, James Book, is mentioned in 1644; dep. 6th May

1646, but had £100 promised him yearly, £80 being paid from the stipend, the Presb. making up the balance. Recommendations were granted in his favour by the Synod 6th Nov. 1651, and by Parliament 13th March and 30th May 1661; died June 1663. He marr. Marion Inglis, and had issue—John, apprenticed to George Ker, tailor, 22nd Nov. 1626; Robert, to Alexander Muir, skinner, 30th March 1631; Walter, to Robert Tait, merchant, 20th Jan. 1643; Alexander, to William Hamilton, tailor, 23rd Dec. 1646, all in Edinburgh.—[*Mun. GILBERT HALL, brother of Thomas H., min. at Larne; M.A. (Glasgow 1646 1642); ord. 9th Dec. 1646, when he promised to give £80 yearly of the stipend to his predecessor. He withdrew from the Presb., and assisted in forming the Protestant Presb. 1651. He had a call to Linlithgow 1655, which was annulled. He was one of the Commissioners for visiting the Universities, and authorising good and able men to fill the livings appointed for the ministry in the south of Scotland. Subscribing to the Remonstrance, he was imprisoned in Edinburgh Castle 23rd Aug. 1660, and his stipend was sequestrated by the Committee of Estates. He was suspended by the Synod May 1661, and deprived by Act of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662. He was accused of attending conventicles in 1672, and died 15th March 1673, aged about 51. Principal Baillie said of him that he was "one of the greatest preachers in his time; he had heard most of the celebrated preachers in England, the most noted in Holland, and the most considerable in Scotland, but, in his opinion, H. surpassed them all in a preaching gift." "He was of small stature, with a pleasing countenance, and an extraordinary voice." He marr. Cecil Inglis (alive in 1690), and had issue—George and Marion, twins, bapt. 8th Feb. 1670; Alexander, entered apprentice to James Braid, merchant, Edinburgh, born

14th Feb. 1677; Janet (marr. Archibald Hamilton, min. of Cambuslang).—[Mun. Univ. Glasg., ii., iii.; *Edin. Guild. and Reg. LINLITHGOW AND BINNY.

[The church, previous to the Reformation, belonged to the Priory of St Andrews, and was dedicated to St Michael. Binny or Binning was united about 1564. Vide Ferguson's Ecclesia Antiqua for a complete account of the ecclesiastical annals of the parish.]

PATRICK FRENCH, had been vicar 1559 previous to the Reformation and continued in the charge.

PATRICK KINLOQUHY, or KIN-1561 LOCH, an Augustinian canon at St Andrews previous to the Reformation; app. 1563, chaplain of the Trinity Altar in St Michael's Church, for the purpose of handing over its endowments to the town. Pres. to the vicarage by James VI., 3rd and 11th June 1574, having charge in that year, with the help of readers, of "Kynneill, Carriddin, and Bynnie." He was a member of Assembly when the Second Book of Discipline was confirmed. He was requested by the citizens of Edinburgh, 16th Oct. 1584, "to teache ane certane space," and "besought to remane" as one of their ministers, a committee being appointed by the Council "to agrie with him to be a minister in the burgh." The matter went no further. He was one of the nine "best learnit and maist qualified ministers within the diocese of St Andrews besouth the Forth" charged to compear before the Privy Council, 7th Dec. 1584, for not subscribing obedience to the Archbishop. He read answers for himself and his brethren, but submitted before the month closed. He was engaged by His Majesty, 2nd Jan. 1586, with two of the Court ministers, to address his brethren for their submission. He was nominated by the Secret Council, 6th March 1589, one of the commissioners for the maintenance of true religion in the Sheriffdom of Linlithgow. At a visitation of the parish, 3rd July 1611, it is recorded, "Patrick Kinloquhy, auld minister, teaches none for his age and infirmities"; but the efficiency of his ministry is evidenced by the further entry: "Na excommunicates, na non-communicants, na papists except my Lady Linlithgow, na disobedients, na witches, na consultants." He died before 10th Dec. 1612. He marr. Helen Bell, and had issue—Patrick, who was on the exercise 12th March 1617; Andrew; Agnes (marr. Robert Hally, min. of Airth); Elspeth; Marian; David.—[Winzet's Tractatis (Maitland Club, 1835); Reg. Min.; Zurich Lett., ii.; Wodrow's Biog. and Miscell., Burgh Rec., *Edin. ROBERT CORNWALL, son of Nicol 1597 C. of Bonhard, provost of Linlithgow; educated at the Grammar School, Linlithgow, and Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1583); min. of Ecclesmachan in 1588; trans. and adm. (colleague and successor) 1597; pres. by James VI. 16th April 1599; member of the Assembly of 1602; took an active part, in 1604, in the prosecution of Patrick Abercromby of Bonnytoun, who, with his wife and mother, was accused of harbouring a Jesuit and of hearing Mass. He was nominated Constant Moderator of Presb. by the Assembly 1606; preached before the Linlithgow Assembly 1608; pres. to the vicarage by James VI. 20th April 1610, and the same year was one of a committee appointed by the Assembly to examine George, Marquess of Huntly, with full power, if they found him willing constantly to confess the true religion, to absolve him from sentence of excommunication. In 1611 the vicarage tithes were still held, and the pre-Reformation manse occupied by the minister, but there was no glebe. A noteworthy feature of his ministry was the long but ineffectual prosecution, begun in 1612, of Helenor Hay, Countess of Linlithgow, for papistry. He died 5th June 1626, aged about 63. He marr. Jean, sister of Alexander Mowbray, and had issue—Janet; Alexander, min. of Muiravonside; John (his successor); Robert; Rachel (marr. cont. 23rd Oct. and 3rd Nov. 1617, Ludovic Stewart, min. of Denny), who died before 1621 (G. R. Inhib.).—[Booke of the Kirk, Calderwood's Hist., Melvill's Autobiog., Reg. Assig., Privy Council, Minutes of Synod of Fife, Burgh Rec., Ferguson's Eccl. Ant.]

JOHN CORNWALL, son of preceding; pres. by Charles I. 16th June 1626. In 1635 Cornwall was made a burgess of Linlithgow. At an influentially attended visitation of the parish by the Presb., 24th April 1641, it was considered that he "was not able sufficiently to bear the whole charge of the congregation, and therefore must have a helper." Commissioners were appointed, 1st April 1642, to attend the Synod of Perth and Stirling, to procure the translation of David Drummond from Muckhart to Linlithgow. Cornwall died April 1646. He marr. (perhaps as a second wife) Jean, daugh. of Duncan Balfour, St Andrews (G. R. Sas., xxxvii., 130), and had issue—Robert; John, bapt. 7th March 1627, died in infancy; Christian; Jean; Andrew, bapt. 30th April 1640.—[Old Dec., iv.; Privy Council, Burgh, Presb., Sess., and *Test. DAVID DRUMMOND, M.A.; trans. from Second Charge; pres. by 1646 Charles I. 6th May, and adm. 2nd Sept. 1646; dep. 4th Oct. 1648, for his silence in not preaching against the unlawful Engagement. A tumult broke out at the intimation of this sentence. He was reponed 14th Feb. 1655, and became min. of Moneydie. In 1665 the parishioners of Linlithgow petitioned him to return to them, but he declined on the ground of ill-health.—[Privy Council, Presb., Syn., and Burgh Rec.; Guthrie's Mem., Peterkin's Rec., Ferguson's *Eccl. EPHRAIM MELVILL, son of Ephraim M., min. of Pittenweem, and grandson of James Melvill, the autobiographer; M.A. (St Andrews 1629); chaplain to Christian, Lady Boyd; ord. to Queensferry 30th Sept. 1641; declined a call to Livingstone 1646; nom. by the Kirk-session 16th Aug. 1649; trans. and adm. 31st Jan. 1650. An unhappy difference divided the church in the following year into Resolutioners and Protesters. Adhering to the latter, he, with five others—Keith of Ecclesmachan, Kennedy of Calder, Row of Abercorn, Kinnear of Midcalder, and Wishart of Kinneil, being the minority—formed themselves into a presb. 6th Aug. 1651. Attempts were made to heal the breach, but the remanent members (22nd June 1652) find "that they cannot unite, because of the reasons contained in their protestation." They continued separate till 12th Feb. 1659, when they united. Melvill died April 1653, aged about 44, when he is styled "their late and worthie pastor." He marr. Bessie Yoole, who survived him; she was buried in Greyfriars, Edinburgh, 8th Oct. 1688, and had issue—Bessie; Eupham; Katherine, bapt. 26th July 1652—who were served heirs-portioners, 28th Oct. 1656, and to whom Andrew M., merchant, Edinburgh, was served tutor, 4th June 1653.—[*Test. ALEXANDER GUTHRIE, son of Alex. G., tailor, Edinburgh; M.A. (Edinburgh, 28th July 1648). "After seeking of God the most part of the day for direction," he was unanimously elected by the Session 26th April 1653, "having great abilities and a godlie conversation"; adm. (by the Protesting or Remonstrant Presb., at Langlands, near Pardovan) 1st June 1653; died unmarr. March 1655, aged about 27.—[Test. Reg.; Baillie's Lett., iii.; Rep. on Ch. Patronage.]

WILLIAM WEIR, born probably in the county of Linlithgow; M.A. (Edinburgh, 28th July 1648); licen. by the Protesting Presb. 18th May 1653; ord. to the Second Charge of this parish 6th Oct. same year; trans. and adm. 29th May 1655; removed by the Synod 1660. Refusing to deliver to the magistrates the parish registers, etc., he was imprisoned by James Glen, provost, in the "Thieves Hole," and subsequently in the Palace for six weeks, till he complied with the orders. He went to Ireland and was min. again in 1691.—[Wodrow's Hist., i., ii.; Reid's Ireland, ii.]

JAMES RAMSAY, M.A.; of the Resolutionist or Moderate Presb.; trans. 1655 from Kirkintilloch; adm. (on a call by the Presb. with a Committee of Synod) 14th Sept. 1655. On a petition of the parishioners to the Synod, 8th Nov. 1656, bearing that he is "ane able, pious, and peaceable man and doth meet with many obstructions in the exercise of his ministry, to the prejudice of the Lord's work and his discouragement, and desiring he may be encouraged in his calling," the Moderator, in their name, found and declared him to be lawfully called and admitted, "being farther confirmed in their judgment of his abilities, by his sermon preached this day before them." Coll. 1662; trans. to Hamilton 1664; Bishop of Dunblane 1673; Bishop of Ross 23rd May 1684 (q.v.).—[*Reg. ALEXANDER SETON, son of Alexander S. of Graden, and Margaret (or Janet?) Cornwall of Bonhard. In early life he qualified as a physician, but having studied divinity, was settled as a clergyman in England. He was pres. by the Archbishop, and inst. Oct. 1665. Frequently at war with the Town Council, and violently opposing their wish for the appointment of a second min., he was finally libelled on various scandalous counts, and dep. 29th Aug. 1690; died Nov. 1690. He marr. Anna Channell, an Englishwoman, who died May 1709, and had issue—Alexander, collector of Excise for East Lothian; Ann (marr. Andrew Crawford of Lochcote).—[Test. Reg., Reg. Collat; MS. Acc. of Min., 1689; Fountainhall's Dec., i.; Reg. Gen. Ass., 1692.]

WILLIAM WEIR, M.A., who had gone to Coleraine, Ireland, returned on a 1691 call given to him 21st June 1691; was a member of the Assemblies 1691-2; died 1st July 1695, aged about 67. He marr. (1) Helen Hill, widow of John Maxwell, merchant, Burgess of Glasgow, who died before 10th Dec. 1669 (G. R. Inhib., 5th March 1670); (2) Katherine Lund, and had issue—James; Jean (marr. 7th April 1695, Bailie John Waugh, Edin. Sas., lxxiii., 204). He bequeathed £100 to the poor of Linlithgow.—[Burgh Reg., Wodrow's Hist.; Reid's Ireland, ii., iii.; Ferguson's Ecl. Ant.]

ALEXANDER DALGLEISH, son of William D., min. of Cramond; licen. 1699 by Presb. of Linlithgow 18th July 1688; ord. to Abercorn 1st Jan. 1690; called 14th March, trans. and adm. 31st May 1699; died 30th May 1726. He marr. (1) (name unknown); (2) Joan (died May 1701), daugh. of Robert Marshall, ship captain, South Queensferry; (3) 29th Oct. 1702, Susanna, daugh. of Duncan Campbell of Auchlyne, and had issue—William, died Dec. 1716; Robert (his successor); Christian (marr. her cousin, William Dalgleish of Scotsraig); Susanna; Marion; Elizabeth; Jane (marr. Robert Spears, min. of Second Charge).—[Edin. Reg. (Marr.).]

ROBERT DALGLEISH, M.A., born 1693, son of preceding; licen. by 1727 Presb. of Linlithgow 16th Sept. 1719; ord. to Second Charge 4th Aug. 1720; called 22nd Dec. 1726; pres. by the Presb. jure devoluto, trans. and adm. 25th Jan. 1727; died 9th Aug. 1758. He marr. Aug. 1723, Susanna (died 24th Jan. 1764), daugh. of John Symmers, accountant in the Equivalent office, and had issue—William, min. of Livingston; Robert.—[Carlyle's Autob.]

JAMES HOGG, licen. by Presb. of 1759 Linlithgow 5th March 1735; tutor to the family of Sir Charles Douglas of Kellhead; ord. to Kirkbean 3rd Sept. 1745; pres. by George II. 27th Jan. 1759; trans. and adm. 8th Aug. 1759; officiated as principal clerk of Assembly in 1762; killed by a fall from his horse, 6th May 1778. He is described as "a man of good heart, and uncommon generosity."—[Morrep's Ann., Carlyle's Autob.]

SECOND CHARGE.

[From 1630 until 1751 there was a Second Charge in Linlithgow. In 1630 the Magistrates and Town Council appointed a committee "to confer with the heritors, to seek their advice for placing of ane second minister, and their help whereby he shall be entertained." While the matter was under consideration, John Cornwall engaged Andrew Stewart, M.A., to act as colleague. Stewart failed to satisfy the community, and in Oct. 1638, and finally in Dec. 1639, the Town Council repudiated all liability to contribute anything towards his support. In 1641, steps were taken, resulting in the erection of a Second Charge, which continued till it was declared by the Lords of Session, 15th Feb. 1751, to be no benefice, and was suppressed.]

 1693 son of John B., fifth Laird of Kil-graston; studied at St Leonard's College; M.A. (St Andrews, 25th June 1689); licen. by Presb. of Linlithgow 15th June 1692; called 7th Aug. 1692; ord.
 2nd March 1693. He refused to take the Oath of Abjuration in 1712, and was one of the twelve brethren who presented a petition to the General Assembly against an Act of the preceding year relating to the Marrow of Modern Divinity. He maintained similar views on patronage with those who seceded, while he greatly disapproved of their separating themselves from the Church. After being enfeebled by age from active duty he had himself regularly carried to the church that he might join in the services there; died 7th Aug. 1747. He marr. (1) 26th Dec. 1693, Grizell, daugh. of Gilbert Bennet, of Bath, near Culross, and had issue—Margaret, born 20th Nov. 1694, died 4th Jan. 1698;

JAMES WATSON, pres. by James, Lord 1751 Torphichen, 2nd Feb. 1748. His settlement being opposed, the Presb.
 referred the case to the Synod; in the meantime a committee of their number conferred with the parishioners, "but all they could say was to no purpose"; the Synod sustained the call, which was affirmed by the Assembly 20th May 1749. When the Presb. met for ordination on 18th Oct., the parishioners "acknowledged they had nothing to object against the life, conversation, or doctrine of W., but that he had not a voice equal to their congregation"; and farther, "that the whole parish (a very few excepted) were utterly averse to submit to his ministry." After hearing parties the Presb. "seriously exhorted the people to fall in with W., who in his trials and by his recommendations had given great satisfaction to the Presb." Those in opposition still declared "they could not submit to his ministry, in regard he had accepted of a presentation without the consent and concurrence of almost the whole parish." Proceedings were delayed and another committee appointed to commune with the people, which they did, 24th Jan.
 1750, without effect. The case was again carried to the Synod, and referred to the Assembly, who appointed the settlement for the second Thursday of Sept. At a meeting on the 22nd Aug. so little chance appeared of their being able to proceed to settlement, that a third appeal was made to the Synod, who referred as before to the Supreme Court, who, 15th May 1751, censured the Presb. for disobeying their authority, and enjoined the Presb.
 to proceed with the induction, associating with them a strong committee for that purpose. W. was accordingly ord. on 30th May 1751, and from the evidence of Dr Pat MacFarlan, this appears to have been done, under the protection of a military force—the last instance where a settlement was made in the Church by what was termed a "riding committee." W. was trans. to Mid-Calder 18th Oct. 1759.

DAVID URE, son of Patrick U., a 1796 weaver in Glasgow, at which trade he himself wrought in earlier life; educated at the Grammar School and Univ. of his native city; M.A. (1776). During his divinity curriculum he assisted the schoolmaster of Stewarton, and subsequently taught a subscription school near Dumbarton; licen. by Presb. of Glasgow 11th June 1783, he became assistant at East Kilbride, with only ten pounds a year and his maintenance. On the death of the min. he had some expectation of being appointed his successor, but finding the parish not unanimous, he accepted the post of assistant in a Presbyterian church at Newcastle 1798. He was employed by Sir John Sinclair to draw up agricultural surveys of the counties of Dumbarton, Kinross, and Roxburgh. He superintended the publication of the concluding volumes of the first issue of the Statistical Account of Scotland, and prepared the general indices of the work. Appreciating his meritorious services, David Stuart, Earl of Buchan, pres. him to this charge; he was ord. 14th July 1796, and died unmarr. 28th March 1798. Blessed with a strong and vigorous mind, which adversity could neither subdue, nor prosperity elate, he persevered in the objects on which he had set his heart, whether of classical or scientific research, with unconquerable ardour. His usual method of travel was on foot, a supply of bread and cheese in his pocket, and quenching his thirst at the limpid spring. In the pocket of his greatcoat he secured such minerals or other curiosities as attracted his notice, had a tin box for preserving curious plants, a stout stick, armed with steel, which occasionally served as a spade or pick-axe; a few small chisels, and other tools; a blow-pipe; a small liquid chemical apparatus; optical instruments, etc., so that others sometimes referred to him as a walking shop or laboratory. Seemingly indifferent to all weathers, heat or cold, wet or dry, he was a patient observer, and an accurate describer of Nature; while his kindness to an aged and widowed mother, from very slender means, bespoke the warmth of his affection and the goodness of his heart. CHARLES LINDSAY, son of Thomas 1662 L., min. of Walston; min. in 1662. During his incumbency a curious circumstance occurred. Sir William Lindsay of Covington had been seized with illness, and was thought dead. When he was stretched on the bier, his long beard was seen wagging, and restoratives being applied, he recovered, was able to talk with his family, and told by them the arrangements which had been made for his funeral. "Keep it secret," said he, "and let the company come." When all were assembled, after a little detention the door opened, and to their astonishment and terror, in stepped the knight himself, deadly pale, dressed in a sable suit, and supported by his kinsman, the minister. An explanation was given, and the latter called on to offer prayer and thanksgiving for the laird's escape from being buried alive. Sir William himself presided over the carousal which followed. L. was outed by the rabble, and demitted previous to 4th May 1689, when he delivered up the kirk-box and mortcloth. He was received into communion by the General Assembly 17th April 1694. He marr. Elizabeth, daugh. of John Livingstone, M.D. (*G. R.  adm. between 4th May and 2nd Nov. 1658;

 deprived by the Act of Parliament 11th June, and of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662.
 He became one of the most zealous of the Covenanting preachers; and for eight years peregrinated the country, conducting public worship on the hillsides and in private houses. In 1670 he was committed to the Canongate Tolbooth. Thence he was taken to Stirling Castle, and afterwards to that of Dumbarton. Liberated in 1672 under the "Indulgence Act," he was permitted to discharge all his ministerial duties provided he would limit his sphere of effort to the Cumbraes. This he refused to do, and along with John Welsh and others, went about from place to place "holding conventicles, marrying, baptizing, and dispensing the Lord's Supper." For nine years he assiduously carried on these earnest labours.

 In 1681 he was captured and sent to the Edinburgh Tolbooth, and three years later to the Bass, where he died, and was buried at North Berwick.—[Inq. Ret. Gen., 4962; or Hartside; dep. 1607.

[On the death of James Baillie, the Marquess of Douglas presented 1644 ANDREW M'GHIE, Sir William Baillie of Lamington claiming also the right of nomination. The General Assembly ordered the Presb. to proceed to the induction. On the Sunday previous, the new min. was required to preach, and making his way into church "was barred by the Lady of Lamington and some other women, who possessed themselves of the pulpit in a tumultuous and disorderly way, her lady-ship declaring that 'no dog of the house of Douglas should ever bark there.'" Lady Baillie and her accomplices were seized and taken to the Edinburgh Tolbooth, where they remained for several months. A fine of 1000 merks was imposed. While acknowledging her offence her ladyship protested "that she had no ill intention, neither any thought, either to profane God's

Sabbath, or house, or to hinder preaching, but only sat and stayed Mr Andro to enter the pulpit for fear of losing her husband's right, he being absent."—Vide Vere Irving's

GEORGE HAY, son of William H., 1560 fifth of Talla and Linplum, and Janet Spottiswood, and brother of Andrew H., rector of Glasgow Univ.; was parson of this parish and of Rathven, which he held by a dispensation from the Pope, but conformed at the Reformation.

In 1562 he was a member of Assembly, and appointed (as superintendent of Glasgow) to preach alternately with another in the unplanted kirks of Carrick till the ensuing Assembly. So great was his influence that he was called "the minister of the Court"; when appointed to argue against Knox on the obedience due to magistrates, he declined, being of a similar opinion with him. In 1568, on a complaint to the General Assembly by Andrew Murray of Blackbarony, in name of the parishioners, of his neither preaching the Word nor ministering the Sacrament, he was sharply rebuked. He appears to have gone to his other benefice, where he died in 1588. He marr. Marion Henryson, who died in Oct. 1577, and had issue—James, founder of the Rannes family. He marr. (name unknown), and had issue—George, min. of Quothquan; John (Reg. of Deeds, dxxxix., 7); James, apprenticed 10th April 1644 to Harry Hope, merchant, Edinburgh.—[Edin. Counc. Reg.; Inq. Ret. de Tut., 262; Stevenson's Hist., Peterkin's Records; Mun. Univ. Glasg., iii.; New Stat. Acc., iii.]

1639 THOMAS LAMB, M.A. (St Andrews 1619); min. of Glenluce 1622; dep. 1629; reopened and recommended by the General Assembly 1638; pres. by the Magistrates and Town Council of Edinburgh, and adm. 25th April 1639. Accused of having caused a man's death by a violent blow, he was suspended by the Presb., but appealed to the Assembly, who remitted the matter back to the Presb. Next day (Sunday, 1st Aug. 1641) he in a passion drew his whinger and slew John Tutop, farmer of Restalrig, on whose land he had been trespassing. He was tried for murder, found guilty, and dep. 2nd Sept. 1641; and shortly afterwards publicly executed. His age was 42. He left a widow, Helen Bisset, who had issue—Elizabeth (marr. John Murray, yr., of Romanno: Reg. Mag. Sig., ix., 1795).—[Edin. Counc. and Prestonpans Sess. Regs.; Baillie's Let., i.; Stevenson's Hist., ii., iii.; Spalding's Miscell., ii.; Acts Parl., v.; Peterkin's Records.]

ALEXANDER DICKSON, M.A.; pres. 1642 by the Magistrates and Town Council of Edinburgh 10th Nov. 1641, and ord. 7th Feb. 1642; was a member of the Commissions of Assembly 1645-8; a call to Eddleston was affirmed by the Synod 2nd May 1660; called 1663, to Eccles, but disallowed.—[Edin. Counc. Reg., Acts of Ass.]

JOHN PHILP of Ormiston, M.A.; pres. 1661 by the Magistrates and Council of Edinburgh 2nd Aug., and admn. 30th Oct. 1661; inst. between 2nd April and 14th May 1663; trans. to Queensferry in 1677, an exchange of benefices having been effected.

GEORGE ROBERTSON, M.A.; trans. 1678 from Queensferry; pres. by the Town Council of Edinburgh 25th July 1677; inst. 16th Jan. 1678; dep. 3rd Nov. 1680, for fornication. In 1681 the Presb. petitioned the Bishop in favour of reponement. He became min. of West Calder 1675.—[Edin. Counc. Reg.]

LAURENCE MERCER, bapt. 15th Nov. 1681 1640, son of Thomas M., advocate, Aberdeen; M.A. (Glasgow, 20th July 1675); min. of Craigie 1681; pres. by the Town Council of Edinburgh 1st Dec. 1680; trans. and inst. 11th May 1681; probably deprived on account of the Test. He appears for the last time in the Presbytery Record on 7th Aug. 1682. He died 1692, leaving issue—Thomas of Binhall, died 14th June 1745; Sarah (marr. Patrick Campbell of Boath); Elizabeth (marr. Alexander Fairlie, tailor, Canon-gate, Edinburgh).—[Edin. Counc.]

DAVID SPENCE, M.A. (Edinburgh 1683 1671); app. by the Town Council of Edinburgh 29th Dec. 1682, and inst. 25th July 1683. He represented to the Committee of Estates that he had been disturbed in the performance of his pastoral duties, notwithstanding the recent Act discharging all persons from annoying mins. who were then in actual possession of their charges. Parishioners carried off the poors' box, mortcloth, etc., ordered him to stop preaching, and to quit his house within eight days, otherwise they should cast his furniture to the door. Though promising obedience to the Privy Council, he failed to read the Proclamation or to pray for their Majesties William and Mary, declaring it was as lawful to attend mass as to hear a sermon in the meeting-house. He was deprived 17th Sept. 1689. He marr. Janet Mitchelson, and had issue—George, alive in 1728; Elizabeth (marr. 16th Jan. 1719, John Scott, wigmaker, Edinburgh).—[Edin. Counc. Reg.; *MS. LYNE AND MEGGET.

[Previous to the Reformation, Lyne was a chapel of Stobo. The parish of Megget was annexed in 1621. A Roman camp close to the church of Lyne may have been the cradle of Christianity both in the parish and in the county—vide Dr Gunn's The Book of Lyne and Megget.]

PATRICK GRINTON, "ane reidare in 1571 Lyne"; may be the Patrick Grinton who was vicar in 1553.

GILBERT HAY of Bridgelands; adm.
1575 1575; died Feb. 1592. He marr. Janet Waugh, who survived him, and had issue—John, executor (Edin. Com. Deeds, 5th March 1607). — [Reg. Assig., Test. Reg., Excheq. Buik.]

JOHN KER, pres. by James VI. before 1593 1st May, and adm. 25th Oct. 1593; was a member of the Assembly 1602, and continued 6th Dec. 1627, when he was "agit, weak, and seiklie." He cared nothing for the world, lived most soberly, and was powerful in the ministry, giving almost all he had to the poor; mendicants were regularly catechised when they visited his dwelling, while he gave liberally to their wants. He was apparently still alive in 1630 (Reg. of Deeds, ccccxxxi., 205). His son Hew succeeded to the benefice. [Among his direct descendants were John Ker, D.D., Professor in the United Presb. College, born at Tweedsmuir 1819; and William and Robert Chambers, publishers, born at Peebles 1800 and 1802.]— [Reg. Assig. and Sec. Sig., Edin. Presb. Reg., Booke of the Kirk, Livingston's Charac.; Calderwood's Hist., v.; Select Biog., i.]

HEW KER, son of preceding; M.A.
1627 (Edinburgh, 14th July 1621); pres. (in conjunction with his father) by James VI. 3rd March 1627; was a member of the Assembly in 1638; died between 24th June and 29th July 1658, aged about 57. He marr. 12th April 1637, Janet (buried 10th July 1666: Greyfriars Reg.), eldest daugh. of John Dickson, merchant, burghess of Edinburgh, and had issue—Hugh (or Hew), who was served heir to his father, and was apprenticed to George Hutcheson, merchant, Edinburgh, 25th March 1663; Janet, bapt. 21st July 1639 (marr. James Nasmyth: Privy Seal Eng. Reg., ii., 439.)— [*Test. and Edin. Reg. (Marr. and Bapt.); Stevenson's Hist., ii.; Peterkin's Records; Mun. Univ. Glasg., iii.; Inq. Ret. ROBERT BROWN, min. of Broughton 1660 1644; called April 1659; trans. and adm. 1st Feb. 1660; one of those who assisted in the admission of the minister of Manor, under pain of rebellion, 1661. Deprived in 1682; returned in 1687. — [Wodrow's Hist.]

JOHN HORSBURGH, M.A. (Edin-1683 burgh 1669); inst. and adm. June 1683; died before 14th March 1705, aged about 56.— [MS. Acc. of Min., 1689; Reg. Old Dec., ii.]

ROBERT BROWN, above noticed, is 1687 mentioned at the first meeting of mins. in the Province, 6th July 1687. He probably ministered in Lyne to the Presbyterians in the interval; he was still min. in Aug. 1688, and there is no mention of his death. He had a son, Richard, and a daugh., Marion, alive in Peebles in 1704.

SAMUEL MITCHELSON, son of John 1708 M. of Middleton; M.A. (Edinburgh, 28th June 1697); licen. by Presb. of Peebles 2nd Oct. 1706; called 19th Aug. 1707; ord. 12th May 1708; died at Edinburgh, 9th Nov. 1735, aged about 59. He bequeathed 900 merks for the maintenance of a schoolmaster in Lyne. He was afflicted with blindness for some years.—[Test. and Edin. Reg. (Bur.), Pennecuik's Works; New Stat. Acc., iii.]

GILBERT HUTCHESON, called at 1723 Lyne 28th, and at Megget 29th
March 1723; pres. by William, Earl of March, and ord. (assistant and successor) 10th May 1723; trans. to Innerleithen 24th May 1727.

Falkirk; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (23rd June 1713); licen. by Presb. of Stirling 4th May 1720; pres. by William, Earl of March; called at Lyne 22nd, and at Megget 24th Nov. 1727; ord. 20th March 1728. He experienced considerable difficulty in serving the edict at West Linton for the ordination of Thomas Findlater, being waylaid by a number of women, who seized his papers and prevented him from preaching. He officiated in public on the Sunday previous to his death. He was the Father of the Church; died suddenly, whilst getting out of bed, 8th March 1788, in his 102nd year, and unmarried. In dress and diet he was homely and simple. He enjoyed an almost uninterrupted state of health, had a strong antipathy to every kind of medicine, and is said to have used it on only one occasion.—[Mun. Univ. Glasg., iii.; Falkirk Sess. Reg., Tombst.; Sinclair's Stat. Acc., xii.]

ANDREW HANDYSIDE, licen. by 1789 Presb. of Peebles 6th Dec. 1786;

DAVID NAIRNE, app. to be adm. after 1589 4th Nov. 1589; pres. to the vicarage by James VI. 10th Nov. 1597. A glebe of small extent having been designed to him, a second and larger designation was made. This was challenged by a heritor, and brought before the Supreme Court.
The Lords, 25th May 1605, "ordained the parties to agree upon a common metster to measure the glebe rightly, that the min.
may possess conform thereto." N. further charged the said heritor for feal, fuel, and divot, conform to the quantity and proportion of his glebe, to the hail kirk-land.
The Lords of same date "found that the min. may get pasturage and fuel in any commonty where the feuar has pasturage, but not within the feuar's pasturage."

1576 ANDREW ROBESON, reader.

ANDREW SIMSON, the first of a line 1582 of famous mins. of that name, appears as a student of St Salvator's College, St Andrews, in 1554, and of St Leonard's in 1559. He was master of the Grammar School of Perth (probably his native place) between 1550 and 1560. He embraced the doctrines of the Reformation through reading Sir David Lindsay's Book of the Monarchie, descriptive of the rise and progress of popery. In 1562 he was min. at Dunning and Cargill; was trans. to Dunbar 28th June 1564 (where he also acted as schoolmaster); and adm. to this charge about October 1582. He declined the terms of the Act of Uniformity passed in 1584, by which all who signed bound themselves to acknowledge the spiritual jurisdiction of the crown, but afterwards he was allowed to comply in a milder formula of his own (Priv. Coun. Reg., 1578-85, 703) On 15th Dec. 1585 he was (being a distinguished Latinist and grammarian) appointed one of a committee to consider the best method of teaching Latin in the Scottish schools. Some years later the Privy Council directed that his Rudimenta (along with James Carmichael's Liber Secundus) should take the place of all other books on the subject. He died "in a good old age," probably in 1590. He marr. Violet Adamson, daugh. of a Perth baker, and sister of Patrick Adamson (or Constant), Archbishop of St Andrews, and had seven sons, six of whom became mins.—Patrick (of Spott and Stirling); Archibald, his successor; Alexander (of Mertoun); Richard (of Sprouston); William (of Burntisland and Dumbarton); Abraham (of Norham); Matthew, Professor of Humanity, Glasgow; and three daughs. (of whom Katherine marr. Alexander Home, min. of Dunbar; Violet marr. James Carmichael, min. of Haddington). Publications—Rudimenta Grammatices in gratiam juventutis Scotice conscripta (Edinburgh, 1587), better known as the Dunbar Rudiments; Ad Comitum Fermolodunensem Carmen (1610), though probably by Archibald, his son.—[*Reg. ARCHIBALD SIMSON, born 1564, son 1586 of preceding; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1585); assistant to his father 1586; clerk to the Presb. 10th

Oct. 1588; ord. 3rd June 1591. In 1605 he reached Aberdeen too late to take part in the Assembly, which met in defiance of the royal prohibition, but affirmed his adhesion to all its Acts. He was summoned before the Privy Council, and dismissed on promising more moderate behaviour in future. On 27th June 1617 he signed, in name of fifty-four others, a protest against a proposed Act of Parliament which sought to make the King supreme ruler of the Church. The bill was withdrawn, but Simson was summoned before the Court of High Commission, deprived of his charge, and confined to the town of Aberdeen. On acknowledging his offence he was allowed to return home. He was ordered to "re-appear" before the same Court, 7th June 1620, but escaped this through the intercession of William, Earl of Morton. He died in Dec. 1628. He marr. (1) Katherine Crichton (Edin. Reg., 1st Feb. 1604), who died before 10th Feb. 1607, and had issue—Christian; Elizabeth; Jean: (2) before 26th Sept. 1607, Elizabeth Stewart, who survived him. Publications—Christ's Seven Words upon the Cross (1620); Heptameron, the Seven Days (St Andrews, 1621); Samson's Seaven Lockes of Haire (St Andrews, 1621); Hieroglyphica Animalium Terrestrium, etc. (Edinburgh, 1622-4); A Sacred Septenarie (1623); Induas Epistolas Petri (1632); Philomela Dalkeithiensis, a congratulatory poem in praise, of His Majesty [James VI.] (in The Muses' Welcome, Edinburgh, 1618); Letter to the High Commission, and an Apologetik (*Orig. GLENCROSS, OR GLENCORSE.

[Was a parish before the Reformation, but was held with Dalkeith and Lasswade 1574-80, and with Lasswade 1585, 1586. In 1588 it was held with Penicuik, and from 1589 downwards with Lasswade, to which it was united by Act of Parliament before Jan. 1611. It was proposed to unite the parish to Penicuik, 10th June 1612. In 1615 the Presbytery was approached with the view to a separate minister being appointed. This seems to have led to the appointment of a colleague in Lasswade in 1616, who probably had a special charge of Glencorse. Hence the statement that the erection of the parish took place in 1616, though it is certain no minister was appointed till 1636.]

S. Elliot, London.

INVERESK, OR MUSSELBURGH.

[The church was dedicated to St Michael, and previous to the Reformation belonged to the Abbey of Dunfermline. Disjoined from the Presb. of Edinburgh by the General Assembly in July 1591, and annexed to that of Dalkeith, 28th Oct. same year.]

JOHN BURNE, min. in 1567. In 1569 a 1567 glebe of four acres was designed for him by John Spottiswood, Superintendent of Lothian.—[Booke of the Kirk, Calderwood's MS. Hist., Reg. Min., Excheq. Buik; Zurich Lett., ii.]

1570 EDWARD LAYIS [LEES], reader.

ANDREW BLACKHALL, at one time a 1574 canon of the Abbey of Holyrood; became min. of Liberton 1567, of Ormiston 1568, of Cranstoun 1570; adm. in 1574, having also charge of Newton and Cranstoun. As Commissioner of a Province he was accused at the Assembly, 1580, of admitting an unqualified person to be exhorter, "an office which the Assembly acknowledgeth not." By the Assembly 1586 he was named one of the commissioners for trying the offences of the ministry in Lothian. He died 31st Jan. 1609, in his 73rd year. He marr. Janet Wright, and had issue—Andrew (only child), min. of Aberlady.—[*Reg. Assig. et Min., Haddington Presb. and Test. Reg., Excheq. ADAM COLT, born Perth 1562, youngest 1597 son of Blaise C. of Leonardly, Provost of Perth, and Egidia Fleming; educated at Perth and St Salvator's College, St Andrews; M.A. (1583); regent in the Univ. of Edinburgh 1586; min. of Borthwick in 1595. He was one of a committee appointed by the Assembly to consider the Articles submitted by the King, 1596; trans. and adm. to this charge 1597, and one of the ministers proposed for Edinburgh 1598. He was opposed to the transportation in 1601 of the three city ministers who had offended the King, and His Majesty being present in the Assembly, called him "a seditious knave." With James Gibson he was a Commissioner to Merse and Teviotdale. In 1606 he was a member of the conference held at London, previous to the establishment of Episcopacy. After a detention at Court of ten months, more fortunate than some of his brethren, he was allowed to return on condition of keeping within the bounds of his parish. He dem. 3rd June 1641, and died, according to his wish (it being not unusual for him in prayer to ask of God that he might die at his work of preaching), very soon after his last sermon, Friday, 24th March 1643, in his 82nd year. (The date on his tombstone—1651—is incorrect.) He marr. Elizabeth, daugh. of Sir James Johnston of Elphinston, and Janet, daugh. of Sir John Melville of Raith (ancestor of the Earls of Melville), and had issue—Oliver, his successor; John, min. of Robertson; James; William; Robert; George, born 1614; Elizabeth (marr. the Laird of Falsyde); Isobel (marr. David Merchiston, min. of Ormiston); Sybil (marr. Robert Douglas); Margaret, born 25th July 1611;

Geills (marr. James Robertson of Brunstane), died 7th Feb. 1645. Publication—Report of the Parishes of Inveresk and Musselburgh, 1627 (Maitland Club). FREDERICK CARMICHAEL, M.A.; trans. from Monimail; pres. by Francis, Duke of Buccleuch, in July 1740; adm. 15th April 1741; trans. to New Greyfriars, Edinburgh, 24th Dec. 1747.—[Carlyle's Autob.]

ALEXANDER CARLYLE, born 26th Jan. 1722, son of William C., min. of Prestonpans; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Leyden; M.A. (Edinburgh, 14th April 1743); licen. by Presb. of Haddington 8th July 1746; pres. to Cockburnspath, but withdrew; pres. by Francis, Duke of Buccleuch, 24th Feb., and ord. 2nd Aug. 1748. He revised the tragedy of Douglas, and was present when it was first acted, 14th Dec. 1756. The Presb. of Edinburgh considering this an offence against clerical decorum, complained to the Presb. of Dalkeith, who served him with a libel. He appealed to the Synod, who (11th May 1757) "declared their high displeasure with his going to the theatre," and found "it had been better, and more expedient to have endeavoured to bring the same to an issue, either in the way of privy censure, or brotherly conference, with proper admonition following." This was affirmed by the General Assembly 24th of same month. In 1760 it was proposed that he should preach before the Lord High Commissioner and the General Assembly. This was opposed, but agreed to without a vote, and is the only instance in which objection has been tendered to such a recommendation. D.D. (King's College, Aberdeen, 1760); Almoner to His Majesty Aug. 1762; Moderator of the General Assembly 24th May 1770; Dean of the Chapel Royal 2nd July 1785. In 1789 he was nominated principal clerk to the Assembly by 145 to 142, being the largest number who had voted on any previous occasion, but a scrutiny showed that the majority of votes had fallen to Dalzel, Professor of Greek, who was found duly elected. He died 25th Aug. 1805. Chiefly by his exertions the Government were induced to relieve the clergy from the house and window tax. He was instrumental in preserving Collins's Ode on the Superstitions of the Highlands, after it was believed to have been lost. He joined the troop of Volunteers raised to defend Edinburgh in 1745. His distinguished appearance and power as a leader of the Church earned him the soubriquet of "Jupiter Carlyle." He marr. 14th Oct. 1760, Mary (died 31st Jan. 1804, in her 61st year), daugh. of Robert Roddam, of Heathpool, Northumberland, and had issue—Sarah, born 1st July 1761, died 16th July 1771; Janet, born 12th Dec. 1763, died 9th June 1777; Mary Roddam, born 25th Sept. 1769, died 23rd June 1773; William, born 11th Nov. 1773, died 3rd May 1777. LASSWADE.

[The church was dedicated to St Edwin. Previous to the Reformation the minister was Dean of the collegiate church of Restalrig, which was dissolved by Parliament 5th June 1592.]

WILLIAM BARBOUR, exhorter; pres. 1565 to the vicarage pensionary by James VI. 18th May 1569; trans. to Pentland about 1573. He possessed the manse of Lasswade for 17 years before his death, and was still min. in 1574 (Reg. of Deeds, xiv., 15).—[Reg. Min.]

GEORGE RAMSAY, son of Alexander R., parson of Foulden; ord. min. of Carrington 1570; trans. to Foulden 1574; trans. to Dalkeith 1575; trans. and adm. 1581; Dean of Restalrig (1583-93); Glencorse was also in his charge 1585-94. Having charged the Lords of Session with the selling of justice, by saying "they sold it in the tolbuthe, and took payment in their chambers at home, and that the place of their judgment was justly called 'tolbuthe,' because there they took toll of the subjects," he was summoned before their Lordships, 22nd Dec. 1593, but dismissed; pres. to the vicarage of Lasswade and Glencorse, in terms of the Act of Dissolution, by James VI. 23rd Nov. 1601; was a member of Assembly 1602; constant

Moderator of Presb. 1606; died 8th Dec. 1629. He marr. (1) Margaret Preston (died before 10th Feb. 1607), widow of Alexander Robertson, younger of Dalcapen (Reg. of Deeds, xxiv., 33), and had issue—Nicol; John; Margaret (marr., cont. 14th Jan. 1609, Duncan Forrester, brother of Sir James F. of Garden): (2) Margaret Murray, who survived him, and had issue—William; Helen (marr. William Rodger, younger, of Heringdean).—[Priv. Counc. and Test. Reg., Reg. Assig.; Acts Parl., iii.; Booke of the Kirk, Calderwood's Hist., Colleg. Ch. of Mid-Lothian; Pitcairn's *Cr. ROBERT LEIGHTON, born (place un- 1641 known) in 1611, son of Dr Alexander L., of the Usan family, parish of Craig; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (23rd July 1631); resided for some years at Douay, in France; produced a testimonial from Presb. of Edinburgh 22nd July 1641; pres. by William, Earl of Lothian, in Sept., ord. 16th, and coll. 30th Dec. 1641; a member of the Commissions of Assembly 1642, 1646, and present at least thirty times throughout the latter year. On 24th Jan. 1647 he was appointed to preach before the Scottish Parliament. From that date he was frequently absent from his parish, visiting his father in London, etc. In the troubles which arose over what was known as the "unlawful Engagement," he sympathised with the cause of Charles, and did not himself at first read the Declaration of the Commission against the "Engagement," but relegated the duty to the precentor. Leighton was, on several occasions, remonstrated with by the Presb. for an apparent supineness in matters of Church policy, nevertheless he was chosen unanimously by the Synod "to repaire to London for negotiating the freedom and enlargement" of the brethren who were confined in the Tower and other places, after the battle of Worcester. He was in England from May till about the end of Nov. 1652, and on 16th Dec. the Presb. had a letter presented from him wherein he "demits his charge of his ministry at N." His request, twice made, was refused; but on 27th Jan. 1653 Leighton again appeared and "desired to be lowsed," the Town Council of Edinburgh having offered him the Principalship of the College. A Commission to that effect was produced on 3rd Feb., and Leighton was freed from his parish on account of the "greatness of the congregation far exceeding his strength," and the "extreme weakness of his voice," not being able to reach the half of his congregation when convened—reasons which he had "often expressed to us." He became Bishop of Dunblane and Archbishop of Glasgow (q.v.).— [Acts of Ass., Irving's Scott. Writ., Wodrow's Anal., *Chambers's Biog. NORTHESK (Q.S.).

[It is stated, 10th July 1623, that "the Kirk of Musselburgh had been wont to have twa ministers; the parochie being so great and spacious." Upon a decret by the Commissioners for Plantation of Kirks, 28th March 1650, for a new kirk, the parish was divided 10th June following. It was again recommended by the Assembly, 9th Feb. 1700, that a stipend be allowed for another minister, but on 3rd June 1718 this was found impracticable; the minister, however, continued a member of Presb. till the establishment of the Widows' Fund (1744), when the charge was considered to be outwith the scope of that enactment. In 1838 a church was opened at Northesk, and a parish quoad sacra erected by the Court of Teinds, 6th July 1859.] and presented by the Superintendent of Lothian to the Assembly, March 1572, and in 1574 had also in charge Saltoun, Pencaitland, Keith-Marischal, and Keith-Humbie.

He was pres. to the prebend of Trinity College, "founded upon the fourth part of the kirk of Ormiston, by James VI. 7th April 1574, and 25th Jan. following to the two prebends of the Trinity College, founded upon two-fourths or four parts of the fruits of the kirk of Ormiston"; trans. to Saltoun before 1576.—[*Reg.

JOHN SINCLAIR, born probably in East Lothian, brother of George S., author of Satan's Invisible World Discovered; regent in St Leonard's College, St Andrews; M.A.; pres. by Patrick

Cockburn of Ormiston, and adm. 14th Jan. 1647; a member of the Commission of Assembly 1648; one of the visitors of the Univ. of Edinburgh 31st July 1649; one of those who adhered to the Protesters in 1651; named by the Protector for the visitation of the Universities, 8th Aug. 1654. Refusing the Test, 1662, he removed to Holland, where he prepared many of his countrymen sojourning there, for the ministry. He was elected to the church at Delft 2nd June 1663, the foundation of which had been laid by the exiled Forbes of Alford, but was not adm. till 30th July 1684, the call having been interrupted by his offending the Government in Scotland, who had raised a process against him for treasonable practices, which ended in his forfeiture 9th Sept. 1684. He died 24th March 1687, aged about 69. He marr. Christina, daugh. of James Fleming, min. of Yester, and had issue—John, min. of Kirkpatrick-Irongray; Patrick (Laing Charters); Rachel (marr. JOHN COCKBURN, born 20th April 1652, son of John C., tailor in the Canongate and Sara Inglis [not as stated in Dict. Nat. Biog.]; educated at Edinburgh Univ. and King's College, Aberdeen, where he graduated M.A. (20th June 1671). In 1673 he became tutor to Lord Keith, son of George, Earl Marischal. Presented by his uncle to Udney, he was inst. there 21st May 1676, but not without "great tumult," the Laird of Udney claiming the right to present. In 1677 he declined a presentation to Langton, Berwickshire, and was trans. to Old Deer between 10th Aug. and 7th Sept. 1681. At first he refused the Test, but afterwards complied. On a presentation by Sir Adam Cockburn, Lord Justice Clerk, he was trans. to this charge 13th June 1683. Deprived by the Privy Council 29th Aug. 1689, for not reading the Proclamation of the Estates, and not praying for King William and Queen Mary, while he was accused of praying for King James, and for confusion to his enemies, he was confined to the Edinburgh Tolbooth for "upwards of half a year." On being released, he left Scotland and went to London, which he was also obliged to quit "for his writing of pamphlets." He crossed to France and attended the court of James at St Germain, but being entreated to change his religion, and refusing, was sent off as a suspicious person. He proceeded to Rotterdam, where he perhaps initiated the movement which resulted in the erection of St Mary's English Church there. He was made D.D. about 1696. In 1698 Henry Compton, Bishop of London, appointed him min. of the Episcopal Church at Amsterdam, which he served till 1709. Returning to England, he became rector of Northolt, Middlesex (then called Northam or Northall) 1714; and was designated (by Queen Anne) one of the bishops for the American colonies, had the scheme been carried out. He died 20th Nov. 1729, and was buried in the chancel of St Mary's, Northolt. He marr. (1) 15th Nov. 1677, a daugh. of Alexander Garden, min. of Forge, by whom he had—Patrick, M.A., vicar of Long Horsley, Northumberland, born 1678, died 4th Jan. 1748-9; Magdalen; James, paymaster R.A.; Mary, born 3rd Dec. 1681; and five others: (2) Elizabeth, daugh. of Sir J.  licen. by Presb. of Haddington 5th Aug.

 1729; pres. by Francis Kinloch, advocate, 11th Aug. 1730; ord. 5th Jan. 1731; died 4th Feb. 1746. He enjoyed the friendship of Isaac Watts and Philip Doddridge, and it was to some extent through the influence of the latter that the poem of The Grave, which brought the writer so much celebrity, was published. "His tastes were elegant and domestic. Books and flowers seem to have been the only rivals in his thoughts.
 His rambles were from his fireside to his garden; and though the only record of his genius is of a gloomy character, it is evident that his habits and life contributed to render him cheerful and happy." He marr.
 11th April 1738, Isabella (died 1st Aug.
 1774), eldest daugh. of William Law of Elvingston, Professor of Moral Philosophy, Univ. of Edinburgh, and had issue—

JOHN HOME, born 21st Sept. 1722, 1746 son of Alexander H., town-clerk of Leith, a connection of the Earl of Home, and Christian Hay; educated at the Grammar School, Leith, and at Edinburgh Univ.; M.A. (18th March 1742); licen. by Presb. of Edinburgh 4th April 1745. Was an ardent volunteer in support of the Government in 1745, and when acting as lieutenant in a regiment raised in Glasgow, he was taken prisoner after the battle of Falkirk, and imprisoned in Doune Castle, but along with others effected his escape from this place of confinement; ord. min. of Athelstaneford 17th July 1746. His play of Douglas was produced in the theatre, Edinburgh, on 14th Dec. 1756, and then and afterwards evoked much enthusiasm. Many of his brethren in the ministry strongly disapproved of his having this connection with the stage, and a libel was about to be served upon him in 1757 when he resigned his charge. He became private secretary to John, Earl of Bute, and at his house he often met the Prince of Wales, afterwards George III. In 1760 he was given from the King's privy purse a pension of £300, and in 1764 he was appointed Conservator of Scots Privileges at Campvere. He frequently sat in the General Assembly as the representative of the Scots Church at Campvere. In 1770 he built a house on the farm at Kilduff, Athelstaneford, and it is related that his former parishioners insisted on carting the materials free of charge. Subsequently he lived in Edinburgh, where he died at Merchiston, 5th Sept. 1808. He was an intimate friend of Principal Robertson, David Hume, Dr Carlyle, and other literati of the time. He marr. 15th July 1770, Mary (died at Moffat, 31st March 1816), daugh. of William Home, min. of Fogo.

JOHN TROTTER, educated at Univ. of St Andrews, had been ord. a deacon by the bishop (the first mention of this office in the Reformed Church of Scotland), and immediately afterwards a Presbyter; coll. and inst. 16th July 1637. He was accused by the parishioners, and by John M., son of preceding min., 18th April 1638, of intruding himself into the ministry "by receiving orders as a preaching deacon, of not regularly administrating the word and ordinances, giving occasion to prophane the Lord's day, venting opinions smelling of Poperie," etc. After hearing his answers, the Presb. "did all in one voyce conclude that they were no wayes to be censured with deprivation nor suspension." At the instance of the parishioners the case came before the Commission 3rd Jan. 1639, who "finding no evidence produced for verifying of Mr John's admission to the congregation of D., ordains that except he produce abundant evidences of his lawful admission to the ministry of the congregation of D. to the next Provincial Assembly he be discharged of all function of the ministry, and the kirk of D. be declared void, and refers and recommends the said Provincial to censure the said Mr John condignlie for receiving the order of a preaching deacon. Especiallie to try the said Mr John's qualification, and albeit he prove qualified, to transport him from the parish, quhilk he apparently will never be able to edifie, and in the meantime discharges him of anie function of the ministry, until he clear his admission before the said Provincial Assembly." When intimation was desired to be made at Dirleton the kirk doors were found shut. The Synod, accordingly, found him not lawfully admitted, and on 12th June 1639 the Presb. declared the parish to have been vacant since the death of Andrew Makghie. He died before 8th Dec. 1664. He marr. 4th Aug. 1636, Helen Maxwell, and had issue—John, who was served heir; Alex., apprenticed to Thomas Miller, tailor, Edinburgh, 20th Feb. 1656; James, apprenticed to Thomas Trotter, cordiner, Edinburgh, 13th Feb. 1656.—[*Dunbar Sess. LAURENCE CHARTERIS, born 1625, 1688 son of Henry C., Principal and Professor of Divinity, Edinburgh University, and sometime min. of North Leith; educated at the Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (20th July 1646); ord. and inst. min. of St Bathans 9th Feb. 1654; conforming to Episcopacy, he was coll. 17th Oct. 1662. He disapproved of the methods used to enforce Episcopacy, and refused a bishopric. He was a friend of Archbishop Leighton, and in 1670 was one of the six preachers sent by him to advocate the "accommodation." Professor of Divinity, University of Edinburgh, 1675. Resigned on account of the Test Act 1681; inst. to this charge 27th Sept. 1688. In 1690 he read, as ordered by the Privy Council, the proclamation enjoining a fast for national sins, but he dissociated himself from the General Assembly's mention of the introduction of Prelacy as the great national defection. "The defection has not been from the truth or from the fundamental doctrine of the Christian faith, but from the life of God and the power of religion, and from the temper and correction which the Gospel requires in us." He retired to Edinburgh in 1697, and died in Dec. 1700. He was unmarr. Burnet describes him as one who "had great tenderness in his temper, and was a very perfect friend and a most sublime Christian." GULLANE (Q.S.).

[Erected into a parish quoad sacra 30th Oct. 1903. Gullane or Golyu gave the name to the parish of Dirleton long ago, and in the centre of the old churchyard may still be seen, ivy-grown and neglected, the ruins of the Parish Church, in its day one of the most interesting in Scotland. By Act of Parliament, 23rd Oct. 1612, Viscount Fenton, Lord Dirleton, with consent of the Presbytery and "parochiners," was authorised to demolish and cast down the kirk of Gullane, and transport all the material of said kirk to Dirleton, which was "ane flourishing townne" and more convenient for the parochiners, whereas Gullane Kirk was at the "outsyde of the hail parochin," and both kirk and manse were "continewallie overblawn with sea sand." In 1633 the manse also was placed at Dirleton. The old Gullane manse or vicarage is still visible in its original form. The kirk at Gullane was dedicated to St Andrew as far back as the ninth century.]

HADDINGTON.

[The church was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and previous to the Reformation belonged to the Priory of St Andrews.]

PATRICK COCKBURN, youngest son 1562 of Christopher C. of Choicelea in the Merse. He was educated at St Andrews, afterwards going to Paris, where he distinguished himself highly, ultimately becoming Professor of Oriental languages. He returned to Scotland, and in 1548 had license to go to France with James Stewart, Commendator of St Andrews (afterwards Earl of Moray). In 1552 the Commendator granted him a pension of £50 a year from the rents of the Kirk of Leuchars (Reg. Sec. Sig., xxxii., 34). He was Prebendary of Pitcocks (Stenton) in the College Kirk of Dunbar in 1566, but had probably held that appointment for some time before. Having joined the Protestant party he became the first min. of this parish about 1562. With Thomas Hepburn, David Lindsay, and John Craig he was appointed to supply the unplanted kirks of the Merse, and his name was mentioned for the superintendency of Jedburgh, 29th Dec. 1562. The chaplaincy of the Trinity Aisle was granted to him, 29th Sept. 1563. He died in 1568. DAVID CALDERWOOD, born probably 1641 at Dalkeith in 1575; studied at the Univ. of Edinburgh, and took his degree of M.A. 12th Aug. 1593. In 1605 he became min. of Crailing. A vigorous opponent of Prelacy, he stepped into the controversial arena for the first time publicly when James Law, Bishop of Orkney, attempted to set aside an election of members to the General Assembly by the Presb. of Jedburgh. Calderwood protested, and was deprived of his right to sit in Church Courts, being precluded also from going outside the bounds of his parish. In 1617 he resisted the royal intentions still further, and was summoned to Holyrood to give an account of his "mutinous and seditious" deed. He was deprived of his charge, confined first at St Andrews and afterwards at Edinburgh, and finally ordered to quit the country. He went to Holland, and did not return till the death of James in 1625. He had no charge, however, until 1641, when he was pres. to this parish by Charles I. 4th Nov., and adm. 15th Dec. 1641. He assisted in drawing up the Directory for Public Worship, but concentrated most of his time on his great work, the History of the Kirk of Scotland. In his 73rd year the General Assembly, to enable him to perfect the work, voted an annual subsidy of £800 Scots. The History which he compiled was thrown into three different forms.

The first and largest extended to 3136 pages; less than half of this work is now among the manuscripts of the British Museum, presented by the historian's nephew, Sir William Calderwood of Polton (Lord Polton). The second, a digest of the first, was published by the Wodrow Society (this MS. is in the Advocates' Library).
The third, an abbreviation, was first published in 1678. Though little attractive in a literary sense, the History is the main quarry for information on the ecclesiastical annals of Scotland from 1527 to 1625.
Calderwood died unmarried, at Jedburgh, 29th Oct. 1650. Publications—Protestation and Treatise from Scotland (1608); De Regimine Ecclesie Scoticanæ brevis Relatio

ROBERT DOUGLAS, son of Robert, an illegitimate son of Sir George 1669 D. of Lochleven, brother of William, fifth Earl of Morton. Educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1614); licen. about 1617. Almost immediately afterwards he was engaged as chaplain to one of the brigades of Scottish auxiliaries co-operating with Gustavus Adolphus in the Thirty Years' War. During that period he is said to have had no other book to read but the Bible, and committed nearly the whole of it to memory. Returning to Scotland he became min. of Second Charge, Kirkcaldy, in 1628. He was a member of Assembly in 1638, and was trans. in 1639 to the Second Charge of St Giles, Edinburgh. In 1641 he was removed to the Tolbooth Parish. He was Moderator of Assembly 1642—as also in 1645, 1647, 1649, and 1651. In 1643 he was elected a commissioner to the Assembly of Divines at Westminster. In 1644 he was chaplain to one of the Scots Regiments in England. In 1649 he was again min. of St Giles, and assisted in the presentation of the Solemn League and Covenant to Parliament. In 1650 he was one of the mins. who waited on Charles II. at Dunfermline, to obtain his signature to a declaration of religion, when Charles refused to sign, and a serious division of the Church ensued. Douglas became a leader of the Resolutions, the moderate party. On 1st Jan. 1651 he preached at the coronation of Charles II. at Scone. Sent prisoner to London by Cromwell in 1653, he was soon released. In 1654 he was summoned to London (with others) to consult with the Protector upon the affairs of the Church of Scotland. In 1659 he preached the sermon at the opening of Heriot's Hospital. In 1661 he preached before Parliament. After the Restoration he was offered the Bishopric of Edinburgh, but indignantly declined, and remonstrated with Sharp for accepting the Archbishopric of St Andrews. On 27th June 1662 he was translated to Greyfriars, Edinburgh, but refusing to conform to Episcopacy, he was deprived

1st Oct. of the same year. He was admitted as an "indulged minister" to this parish 2nd Sept. 1669, and died (buried 6th) Feb. 1674. "No man," it was said, "contributed more to the Restoration, and received less benefit from it." He marr. (1) Margaret Kirkaldy, and had issue—James, of Earnslaw (Fife Sas., xii., 289); Thomas, who died before 1667, when Alexander is called second son (*G. R. Erected again into a parish by Parliament, 11th July 1606.]

JOHN DAVIDSON was born about the 1595 year 1549, at Dunfermline, where his parents owned property in houses and lands. He entered St Leonard's College, St Andrews, in 1567, and after graduating, became a regent of the College, pursuing the study of theology. Being introduced to John Knox, he set himself to advance the cause of the Reformation, and one of his earliest services was the production of a play intended to expose the errors of Romanism, which was acted in Knox's presence. In 1573 there appeared from his pen Ane Breif Commendation of Uprightness, a poem in praise of Knox, with accompanying verses on the Reformer's death. Soon after, another poetical tract was issued anonymously, under the title of Ane Dialog, or Mutuale Talking betwixt a Clerk and a Courteour, concerning foure Parische Kirks till ane Minister. This was a reflection on the Regent Morton, who had been uniting parishes under one minister to secure part of the benefices for himself. The Regent was deeply offended. Printer and poet were put in prison. On his liberation, he lay hid for a time at Kinzeanleugh, Ayrshire, the residence of his friend Robert Campbell. He then retired to the Continent, where he remained for about three years. In 1577, at the urgent solicitation of the General Assembly, Morton permitted his return, and in 1579 he became min. of Liberton. In June 1581, Morton being under sentence of death was visited by Davidson. Going for a time to London, he became known at the English Court, and from the earnest style of his preaching was called "the thunderer." Returning, he did not resume his charge at Liberton, but officiated in various places, and acted as min. of the Second Charge of Holyrood. In 1595 he became min. of this charge, and built a church and manse at his own expense. He vigorously resented the proposal that certain of the clergy should sit and vote in Parliament, and words that he then uttered were often repeated: "Busk him, busk him as bonnily as ye can, and bring him in as fairly as ye will, we see him well eneuch, we see the horns of his mitre." He was summoned before the King at Holyrood, and committed to Edinburgh Castle, but released, and allowed to return home, though interdicted from going beyond the bounds of his parish. He died in Sept. 1604. He left a widow (name unknown). His effects were devoted to the support of the school which he founded. JOHN KER, born 1576, son of Andrew 1605 K. of Faldonside, a cadet of the house of Roxburghe, and Margaret Stewart, widow of John Knox. Had been a gay youth returned from France when he was accosted by the preceding incumbent, who solemnly charged him to cast off his scarlet cloak, lay aside his gilded rapier, and take to his book, for "you are the man who will be minister of this place after me." He graduated M.A. at the Univ. of Edinburgh, 28th July 1596, and was adm. 11th April 1605. He sympathised with the brethren imprisoned at Linlithgow in 1606, previous to their trial and banishment; signed the Protestation for the Liberties of the Kirk 27th June 1617; was confined within the bounds of his own parish by the Privy Council, 24th June 1624, for disobedience to the Articles of Perth. He was requested by the parishioners, 13th Oct. 1637, to petition against The Book of Common Prayer for the Kirk of Scotland; dem. 7th June 1642, in favour of his son as assistant, with reservation in case of himself surviving, of "right of regress," and died 16th Feb. 1644. TRANENT AND SETON.

[Previous to the Reformation the church of Tranent belonged to the Abbey of Holyroodhouse. Seton Church, dedicated to the Holy Rood, and erected in the thirteenth century, was made collegiate by George, Lord Seton, 20th June 1493. At later dates members of the family made additions to the edifice, multiplied its ornaments, increased its wealth, and raised within it some sumptuous monuments. In 1544 the English invaders desecrated the church, and after removing the bells, organ, and other portable objects to their ships, burnt the beautiful timber wall within. The church was soon restored, and during the commotions of the Reformation had the good fortune to escape almost uninjured. It remained perfect till the troubles of 1715, when the Hanoverian troops defaced the interior of the building, broke the tombs, and tore up the pavement in search of hidden treasures, and for the lead that encased the bodies. While undamaged, it was a handsome cruciform structure with a central tower. The chapel is now used as a mausoleum for the Wemyss family. Seton was united to Tranent after 1580.]

YESTER, ANCIENTLY ST BATHAN'S.

[The church, dedicated in 1241 to St Bathan, was made collegiate by Sir William de Haya of Locherworth and Yester, in 1420. It retained the name of St Bathan's till about 1675. A church was built at Gifford in 1708.]

WILLIAM MAKCAUWELL, adm. 1st 1572 May, having also charge of Bara.—[Reg. Min.]

JOHN MORISON, adm. 1st May, 1575 having also charge of Garvald, Bara, and Morham; removed to Garvald 1576.—[Reg. Assig., Wodrow Miscell.]

WALTER HAY, according to his own 1576 statement, a younger son of William, fifth Lord Hay of Yester; mentioned as min. in 1576. Judged by the Presb., 18th Aug. 1587, "unfit to be a min.;" he was deprived by the Commission of Assembly after 18th Oct. same year. To James Carmichael, min. of Haddington, he said that he was "myndit anis to haue past to France, and lykwayis schowis he mycht haue had ane presentation to ane great benefyce in Orkney. Yit becaus he had appearence to succeed to his brother, and nane betuix him bot ane infirme and impotent barne be natour, thairfoir he thocht bettir with advyss of freindis to byd at hame in Bathens to await that occasioun." [This cannot have been the case. William, sixth Lord Hay died between 27th Feb. and 29th May 1591, and was succeeded by his brother James, seventh Lord Hay, in terms of a charter of entail in which Walter Hay is not mentioned (Reg. Mag. Sig.), and James had two sons: John, eighth Lord Hay, first Earl of Tweeddale, and Sir William Hay of Linplum.] He was reponed by the Presb. of Edinburgh, with certification that "gif afterward he sal be slanderous, or offend in any of the particular heids of accusation that wer given in against him, or any heinous offence, he sal be depyvit from all function in the kirk thairafter in perpetuum," to which he agreed, and was readm. 23rd March 1589. Thereafter various accusations were brought against him, and old charges renewed—that he had "three aikers of land in farm"; that he "pretended to have a knowledge of medicine, and took several sheep from a man for curing him; that he was "a maker of acquavitæ"; that "he rode on a Lord's day afternoon to Edinburgh to visit patients," etc., etc. The Presb. "inhibit him the use of medicines, that he may the better wait on his buik, and under the pain of deposition, bid him buy acquavitæ, and mak nane." On 27th Aug. 1606, accusations of a more serious nature were preferred, and on 3rd Sept. it was found "by uniforme consent that his appearance was not only offensive and uncomlie, but also unreverent, disdainful, proud, boisterous, and sic as appeirit to bewray his guiltiness." He was dep. 31st Dec. 1606; left the country, and died before Aug. 1609. [Formerly a collegiate church dedicated to St Bey, a female saint of little fame, who is said to have led an anchoretical life on the Great Cumbrae, in the Firth of Clyde. Founded by Patrick, ninth Earl of Dunbar, in 1342, it was the first College Kirk in Scotland. Its prebends were Pinkerton, Heatherwick, or Belton, Whittingehame, Pensheil, Duns, Stenton, and Spott.]

JOHN MANDERSTON, perhaps more properly John Home, of the family of Manderston; was canon of the collegiate church at the Reformation. He was one of those appointed by the Archbishop of St Andrews to attend the court on the divorce sued for by Lady Jean Gordon against James, Earl of Bothwell, when Queen Mary was detained at Dunbar.

GEORGE HOME, son of George Home of Broxmouth, "parson of Pincarton," became "rector of Dunbar."

JASPER HOME of Lawfield, "rector of Dunbar."—[Miller's History.]

ANDREW SIMSON, trans. from Dunbar; adm. in 1564; pres. to the parsonage by James VI. 31st Aug. 1568. He dem. before 11th Sept. 1580, and was trans. to Dalkeith before 1582. The catastrophe known as the Lost Drave of Dunbar occurred during his ministry here: "A fearful judgment of God fell forth at Dunbar about the year 1577, whereof I was an eyewitness. My father, [A. S.] of good memory, being minister thereof, when going to the church, saw a thousand boats setting their nets on the Sabbath. He weeped, and feared that God would not suffer such contempt. It being a most calm day as ever was seen at that season—at midnight, when they went forth to draw their nets, the wind arose so fearfully that it drowned eight score and ten boats, so that there was reckoned in the coast side fourteen score of widows" (Session Minutes).—[*Reg. OLDHAMSTOCKS, OR

[The church was consecrated by Bishop David de Bernham, 19th Oct. 1242. Its chancel is a fine example of late Gothic—probably fifteenth-century work.]

THOMAS HEPBURN, "parson of

THOMAS HEPBURN, probably the 1562 above, natural son of Sir Alexander H. of Whitsome, and brother of Robert H., min. of Prestonkirk, was one of those "thought apt and able to minister" by the General Assembly 20th Dec. 1560. He was app. by the Assembly, 4th July 1562, to preach in the unplanted kirks of the Merse month about with Patrick Cockburn and David Lindsay. In 1567 he requested the services of John Craig (formerly of Holyrood House) in proclaiming Queen Mary's marriage with his relative the Earl of Bothwell; adm. Master of Requests 17th May. Two days after the marriage, in 1567, he received the famous Casket Letters on behalf of Bothwell, but was seized, and the casket and its contents taken from him. On the escape of Queen Mary from Lochleven, with twenty men he attempted to take Dunbar Castle, but was repulsed by the Earl of Home's men. In Aug. 1568 he was forfeited and inhibited from pursuing his ministry at Oldhamstocks, and on 24th Oct. 1576 the Assembly dep. him for heresy, he having taught that "no soul entereth heaven until the last judgment." He was min. again in 1578.—[Booke of the Kirk; Keith's, Row's, Calderwood's, and Laing's Hists.; Wodrow's MS. Biog., ii.; Acts Parl., iii.]

JOHN HEPBURN is mentioned as

[Previous to the Reformation the church was a prebend of the collegiate church of Dunbar.]

JOHN HAMILTON, natural son of James, first Earl of Arran; Abbot 1559 of Paisley 1525; Bishop of Dunkeld 1546; Archbishop of St Andrews 1549. He was taken prisoner at the capture of Dumbarton Castle in 1571, and hanged at Stirling for complicity in the assassination of the Regent Moray.

JOHN KELLO, probably son of Bartholomew K., M.A., clerk of St Andrews diocese, "by apostolical authority notary public," Linlithgow; was one of those "thought apt and able to minister," by the General Assembly, 20th Dec. 1560. On the morning of Sunday, 24th Sept. 1570, he strangled his wife (Margaret, daugh. of Henry Thomson, a Linlithgow tanner), going into the church immediately after and conducting service as usual. No suspicion attached to him till Simson of Dunbar reminded him of a dream which Kello had narrated to the latter some weeks before: "Ye are, I fear, the author yourself of this cruel murder," said he. After a time Kello made confession, "persuaidit that God spak" through Simson. No account of the trial has been preserved, but the following is the official record of the sentence, under date 4th Oct. 1570: "For the quhilk he was adjugeit and dome pronuncit, to be hanged to the deid, and thaireftir his body to be cassin in ane fyre, and brint in assis; and his gudis and gear to be confiscat, etc.," which was carried into effect the same day. WHITEKIRK, FORMERLY HAMER.

[Comprises the three ancient parishes of Hamer; Aldhame, dedicated to St Baldred, and united after the Reformation; and Tynninghame, united in 1760. Whitekirk, dedicated to Our Lady of Fairknowe with its Holy Well, belonged to the Abbey of Holyrood. The traditions of the church and the reputation of the Well (for which search has often been made in vain) drew many pilgrims to the spot, the most notable being Æneas Sylvius Piccolomini, afterwards Pope Pius II., who, in 1435, walked barefoot from Dunbar. The monks' Tithing-barn still remains in a field close by. Whitekirk Church was destroyed by fire (the work of suffragettes), 26th Feb. 1914.]
