FROM THE PRESIDENT
Bruce Wilson

Another year has come and gone. Seems like they come and go quicker every year. For those wanting to know, my pacemaker has been installed and doing nicely. Thanks to all who sent me prayers and good wishes.

We have had a busy year, with 2019's Burns' Night, the Highland Games in Glasgow, KY, Columbus, IN, and Eminence, KY; some Kirking ceremonies thanks to Jim Hughes' efforts; several interesting FUNdraisers and public programs, such as Worldfest and the program at the Frazier Museum, thanks to Robbin Goodin. Of course, our dinner and auction in November was a lot of fun; we made money for our upcoming activities and enjoyed the evening at the Celtic Pig Restaurant. Our members have put on some excellent programs for us at our member meetings, which I have enjoyed a great deal. I even learned a few things!

We have the Burns' Night festivities upcoming in January. If you haven't gotten your tickets yet, time is getting short. We hope to see a nice turnout again this year for this splendid party! Robbin has set up a list of programs for 2020 that ensure interesting and educational meetings, so we have a lot to look forward to in the new year.

We have several new members, and I encourage the more established members to get to know them and help them find out what the Scottish Society does. Participation in our activities is what creates camaraderie in the group, and helps us establish new friendships.

I hope that all will turn out well for us in 2020; if not, I know we will face any troubles with grace, and support each other as best we can. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all!

Sincerely, Bruce Wilson

Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays to all!

Be sure to check next year's calendar of events. So much fun to be had in 2020!

See you at the Burns Night Gala on the 25th at Woodhaven Country Club.

Happy New Year!

Peace,
Robbin Gooding

To the Membership:

RE: SSL 2019 Annual Dinner Auction

YAY! You did it again! This year's Annual Dinner/Auction was more remarkable than last year! Our Heritage Fund is greatly benefitting from your generosity. I'm very grateful!

Thank you for your generous donations and purchases for both the Live and Silent Auctions held in November. This year we held the event at The Celtic Pig Restaurant and we're grateful to both Melissa Ingram and Sam Bracken for the invitation. Thanks to President Bruce Wilson for leading the event!

The Live Auction was a success and many thanks go to our Auctioneer, Jack Bowling, and all the others who helped him. We had an increase in baskets for the Silent Auction, items for the Jewelry table, and the huge increase in the number of Benefactors who donated gift cards, gift certificates, vouchers and tickets which totaled 92 bid sheets! Much gratitude goes to my assistant, Wendy Mains, and the three high school volunteers who Robbin Goodin recruited! We are, also, very appreciative of our Cashier's time: Sandy Berenberg, John Scott, and Cheri Eskridge.

Thanks to all of you, we had an increase in membership turnout and participation to make this a very successful Live and Silent Auction. I'm truly appreciative of what everyone did to make this event over the top! Proceeds from the event will help the Heritage Fund to continue its financial support of student, performers, athletes and scholars in their pursuit of greater skill and understanding of Scottish culture, heritage and arts.

Thank you again for your generosity.

Warmly and In Gratitude,

Judy Stubbs-2019 Auction Chair

BEGINNER LEVEL

Using Facebook for Genealogy Research

By Bryan L. Mulcahy

Facebook has increasingly become one of the most effective tools for research. This track record for proven success has resulted in the consistent growth of Facebook groups dedicated to genealogy. These groups cover a wide spectrum of purposes. There are Facebook groups for genealogy-related technology, genealogy software, genealogy scrapbooking, geographical areas, and groups for genealogy resource and information sharing. The most beneficial benefit is the large community of genealogists willing to share their knowledge, experience, tips, and encouragement. More potentially important than the information, however, are the very real relationships that can be cultivated with the people you meet there.

Here are some examples of situations where Facebook can directly impact research. Using a Facebook group to help solve your most frustrating brick wall question is like posting the problem on a platform that potentially thousands of people searching the same issue could respond and offer assistance. Maybe you found or inherited some old family letters in a different language or photographs or pictures without any identification. There are groups devoted to translations and photograph identification where it's possible someone will be able to help.

Additional examples of benefits include the following:

1. Communities are categorized by geographical area and reach all over the world.
2. Communities focused on technology are essential for keeping up with the latest tech gadgets, apps, software, scanners for digitizing family photos, etc.
3. Blogs cover a wide variety of research topics and opportunities for sharing ideas and resources. Many are hosted by professionals in the field of genealogical research.
4. State and County community groups may offer information on local or regional repositories, memory project sites that focus on history, oral histories including video and audio clips, old photographs, and pioneers for specific areas of interest or research.
5. Groups for DNA analysis can assist you with your DNA test results and how to proceed.
6. Specialized groups exist for all ethnic groups. Examples include Jewish, African-American, Native American, etc.
7. Specialized groups also exist for specialized situations. A prime example would be for adoption and adoptees. This is where people would go to access help in seeking information on their biological family and parents.
8. Many Facebook users have discovered or reconnected with lost family members, unknown cousins, and developed many new friends.

As with all internet interactions, you're most likely to have success when a code of conduct is followed. Since Facebook genealogy groups are usually made up of hundreds or thousands of different people, it just makes sense that order and appropriateness are kept by the administrators and are expected of users. It is important to read and abide by the rules and regulations of each site. This is especially true with regards to posing queries.

INTERMEDIATE/ADVANCED LEVELBenefits of Having a Genealogy Research PlanBy Bryan L. Mulcahy*

Having a research plan is critical for any long-term success in genealogy. The research process helps people understand and appreciate their ancestors' achievements despite many challenges. Developing a research plan involves setting goals and objectives.

Creating an effective research plan increases the likelihood you will be able to solve that long-standing brick wall in your family tree. A genealogy research plan is much more than a to-do list. The major objective in developing a genealogy research plan is to identify what you want to know and formulate questions that will address your research goals. Many professional genealogists create a genealogy research plan for each research question. The plan can be as simple as a few steps or multiple pages.

The elements of an effective genealogy research plan usually include the following points:

1. SETTING OBJECTIVES: WHAT DO YOU WANT TO KNOW?

What specific details do you want to learn about your ancestors? A marriage date? Spouse's name? Where they lived at a particular time? When they died? Determining a research objective helps keep your research focused and your plan on track.

2. LISTING ALL KNOWN FACTS: WHAT DO I ALREADY KNOW?

What have you already learned about your ancestors? This should include names, relationships, dates, and places that are supported by original records. The best techniques to obtain this documentation include:

a. Search home sources for documents, photos, diaries, and family tree charts.

b. Interview family members and relatives. It is best, to begin with the oldest members first. If they pass away beforehand, the stories pass with them. While someone else in the family may know this information, it will seldom be as accurate and detailed.

c. Search repositories in the area where the ancestors lived.

3. DEVELOP A WORKING HYPOTHESIS: WHAT DO I THINK THE ANSWER IS?

What are the possible or probable conclusions that you hope to prove or possibly disprove through your genealogy research? Let's say you want to know when your ancestor died. You might start, for example, with the hypothesis that they died in the town or county where they owned land. County histories can be a very useful resource, enabling you to learn about the history of an area and your ancestor's role in it. County histories often are available on Interlibrary Loan, and sometimes online.

4. IDENTIFY RECORD SOURCES: WHICH RECORDS MIGHT HOLD THE ANSWER AND WHERE ARE THEY LOCATED?

Some prime examples include:

- a. Census records*
- b. Marriage records and certificates*
- c. Wills and probate records*
- d. Land records such as deeds, mortgages, etc.*
- e. Tax records*

Create a list of possible sources, and identify the repositories, including libraries, archives, societies or published Internet collections where these records can be researched.

5. RESEARCH STRATEGY

The final step of your genealogy research plan is to determine the best means of accomplishing your research goals, considering the available records and your research needs. Decide which record type is most likely to contain the answer you need. Then determine the best strategy for obtaining that record; does the best technique include, for example, a visit to the area where the ancestors lived, or can you obtain the record by searching microfilm online? Do you need to hire a professional researcher or will a phone call to the courthouse where your ancestor lived, help you determine the location of the record you need? The local library, as well as genealogical societies and historical societies, can be very useful resources in helping you move forward with your research plan.

Information For Our New Members

Welcome to our new members. Coming into a new group can be a little scary, but know that if you have any questions, just ask. The people in the SSL are some of the friendliest you would ever want to meet. Here is a little bit of information to get you started:

- ♦ Read the newsletter and the website. All upcoming events will be listed both places. If you want more information, you can contact any of the board members. Their information is found on page 2 of this newsletter.
- ♦ All meetings will have a business meeting, some time to socialize, and a program.
- ♦ January/February brings our Burns Night Dinner. You won't want to miss that. There will be food, drink, raffles, entertainment, and an all-around good time.
- ♦ May starts our "Event" season. The Society sets up a booth at many local and state Scottish and Celtic events, and even a couple of out-of-state events. Don't be afraid. Jump on in and help us in our booth. It's not hard, and everyone will help. It is a great way to get to know some of the members and recruit new members.
- ♦ November is a really fun meeting. We have a dinner and an auctions. Members will be informed of what type of dish to bring according to last name. The auction is so much fun. Everyone is asked to bring at least one item, if they wish, to donate. Now, you will find that a lot of the items are things you would love to have, but some of them ... well, you just have to be there to appreciate it. Proceeds benefit the Heritage Fund, which helps promote the Celtic-related "studies" by individuals.
- ♦ In December, we do not have a meeting.

We hope that you will attend as many meetings as possible (hopefully all of them). We are so happy to have you as a part of the group.
