IN presenting the “BEAUTIES OF GAELIC POETRY” to the public, I find myself in a position which demands some explanation of the motives that induced me to undertake this arduous task, and the principles that guided me throughout its execution. I would premise, however, that although they are called, and, I trust not inappropriately, BEAUTIES, it is not to be expected that every line, or stanza, or even poem, of the Collection, could be of itself beautiful. The name under which the work is ushered into the world does not warrant so high an anticipation. It is merely intended to signify, that the richest and most valuable gems of the Keltic Muse combine to form this constellation of our country’s minstrelsy ; and, in instances where poems may not be so brilliant in poetical genius or grandeur, they will be found to throw a stream of light on many of the manners and customs of our ancestors.

In the compilation of such a work as this, however, it is impossible to meet the wishes of every reader ; and, indeed, until the public agree among themselves on points of literary taste, it will be impossible for the most skilful and sagacious compiler to gratify every palate. Enough, however, it is hoped, has been collated to make the work as generally acceptable as possible.

Regarding the cause which induced me to undertake a task so arduous, no one, who knows me, will question my veracity when I say, that, veneration for the productions of my country’s talented sons and daughters, and an honest desire to preserve them in the most imperishable form, were the impelling motives. In the morning of my days, it was my happy lot to inhale the mountain air of a sequestered spot, whose inhabitants may well be designated the children of Song ; and, in a state of society, whose manners were but little removed from that of primitive simplicity, I had frequent opportunities of witnessing the influence of poetry over the mind, and uniformly found, that cheerfulness and song, music and morality, walked almost always, hand in hand. Thus nurtured, and thus tutored, the intrinsic excellence of the poetry which I was accustomed to hear in my younger days, made such an impression on my mind, that neither time, distance, nor circumstances, have been able to obliterate. I was therefore bred with an enthusiasm which impelled me, as I advanced in life, to dig deeper and deeper into the invaluable mine, until, having obtained a view of the whole available materials, my admiration became fixed, and my resolution to rear the present monument was immovably formed.

The compilers who have preceded me, either from the irresistible pressure of circumstances, or, from prejudices resulting from geographical considerations, have interspersed their collections with a preponderating amount of doggerel and inferior rhymes ; nay, many of their best pieces are given in an imperfect, or garbled form ; while not a single attempt has been made to explain obscure phrases, or to develop the real and legitimate meaning of doubtful idioms and passages. The task thus left for the future gleaner, although no doubt considerably facilitated, was still great ; and it was not until I had completely traversed the Highlands, and secured a variety of old manuscripts, that I ascertained the nature of the labour I had imposed upon myself, in appreciating the character and quality of the materials.

It is not for me to say with what success I have brought my labours to a close. Without, however, arrogating to myself any exclusive means of information, or any thing beyond ordinary abilities, I should hope, at least, that credit for indefatigable perseverance, and diligent untiring research will be awarded to me ; and that, while the transcribed part of the work will be found superior to productions of the same nature, the amount of original and curious matter which it contains will bear ample testimony to the extensiveness of the inquiries I have instituted.

Some small items of self-interest are ever apt to be interwoven, even with our most patriotic actions ; and, therefore, to steer wholly clear of all personal considerations, in whatever we undertake, requires more virtue than is possessed by the generality of men. Yet I sincerely trust that purity of motives will be a sufficient shield from the aspersions and insinuations which have been levelled at me, by individuals who measure their neighbours' actions by their own. These, however, I shall contentedly bear, provided I can only be the means of wreathing one laurel more for the brow of departed genius. I would gladly be spared the pain of animadverting upon a class of men, whose assistance I had a right to expect in so national an undertaking,—I mean our clergymen and schoolmasters. Those gentlemen who hurl their invectives against the high-minded, patriotic, and talented Dr M^cLeod, for his unwearied efforts to enlighten his countrymen, and to exalt them to a higher status of moral and intellectual excellence, will very naturally be as forward in discouraging my endeavours to preserve from oblivion the songs of our native country. An indiscriminate charge, however, would be as ungenerous, as it would be unjust ; and, therefore, with great pleasure I record, among both classes, many honourable exceptions ; and, to them I take this opportunity of conveying my heartfelt thanks.

I may here notice a few deviations from what is generally recognised as the standard of Gaëlic orthography, that have been made in the following pages. Had I been writing prose, where no inflections could offend the ear, or destroy the smoothness or harmony of a sentence, these emendations, however justifiable in themselves, would not have been introduced. But in poetry it is far otherwise. Indeed, to do justice to the harmony of the versification, no acknowledged rules will apply. A north-country poet uniformly writes ian, where one belonging to Argyle sings eun ; both taking care that the accordant word chimes with their peculiar orthoepy. How murderous, then, would it have been to the cadence and clink of the bard, were either of these words made to conform to the stiffness of established rules ! This is but a solitary instance where thousands might be produced, of anomalies and provincial phraseologies which render a sameness of orthography impossible in poetical composition.

The difference of termination in the nominative plural of nouns ending in a, and the dative in aibh, has been done away with here; and both cases, which, correctly speaking, are the same, have been made to terminate in an or eau as the case may be—except where, for the sake of harmony, their retention, in the vulgar terminations, has been indispensable. This, however, has seldom been the case; for, such terminations do not belong to Scottish Gaëlic. No Highlander would say Fo na h-eachairbh (eich). Bho na marbhaibh (mairbh), Air do chasaibh (chasan). With the learned translator of Ossian's poems, I am anxious to yield the credit of such discoveries to the monks of Ireland, who, regardless of the only legitimate source of correctness, the language as spoken by the Aborigines, have tortured their vernacular tongue into a similarity with the Latin! And strangely enough, our grammarians are endeavouring to perpetuate the error, notwithstanding that any old woman in the Highlands could put them right on the subject; for “These RULES of old discover'd, not devised,

Are Nature still, but Nature methodiz'd.”

I have also thrown out the Irish words fuidh, luidhe, tigh, and dhoibh, and supplied their place by their correct Gaëlic synonymies fo, laidhe, taigh, and dhaibh—which are consonant with the orthoepy in every part of the Highlands; nor am I aware of any reason why these words should be spoken in one way and written in another. The letter t, which should always be used for the possessive pronoun, has been restored in the following pages, in contradistinction to the “Revisers” of the Gaëlic Bible, who have excluded it, as in d'athair, instead of t-athair, which is evidently the most eligible, the word being a contraction of tu athair (thy father). With these slight innovations, if such they can be called, the orthography throughout will be found to accord with the recognised standards.

Before leaving this point, I may quote the words of Owen Connellan, Esq., Irish Historiographer to her Majesty. “I regret,” says he, “to be compelled to observe, that it has been but too common among Irish scholars, to display extreme jealousy of each other; each appearing to wish that he should be looked up to as the sole expositor and oracle of this neglected dialect; and, prompted by a desire of exhibiting his own superior knowledge, he is ever ready to find fault with every other Irish production whatever.” Now, had Mr Connellan been a Scottish Gaëlic writer, he would have had to complain, not of the “exhibition of superior knowledge,” but of the dogged tenacity of many of our pretending Gaëlic scholars, and, that too, on a matter subject to so many anomalies and inflections which often derive their caste from provincialism, where it is perhaps impossible that harmony of opinion should exist, even among competent scholars. But the evil is, that, instead of co-operating to establish a grammatical system of uniformity, our literati have thought fit to render no higher services to their country, than to play a game of cross-purposes on the subject.

In a land of song, like the Highlands of Scotland, where every strath, glen, and hamlet, had its bard, and, possibly, every bard his host of admirers, some obscure votary of the Muses may have escaped our notice ; and, a few day-dreamers have been designedly passed over in silence. In the first case, the charge of intentional neglect does not apply to me ; and, with regard to the second class, I could mention the names of many poetasters, who have not been admitted into our galaxy of Keltic minstrels ; and, for this obvious reason that they were not worthy of the enviable position. Their friends, therefore, will pardon in me the oversight of not mentioning names that could not otherwise be noticed.

The lives of the Bards form, perhaps, the most interesting part of the work. Biography has always been found a useful study ; and, although these sketches are necessarily condensed, they will be found to extend in length, and in minuteness of circumstantial detail, in proportion to the claims of the subject of the memoir. The Highland bards filled a most important station in society ; and I know no better mirror than their works, to shadow forth the moral and intellectual picture of the community among whom they lived. In collecting materials for lives of which no written records, not even, perhaps, the date of their natal day was kept, I experienced considerable difficulty. Frequently have I blushed to find among my countrymen, individuals who could learnedly tell me of Virgil's bashfulness, and the length of Ovid's nose, with as much precision as if they had measured it by rule and compass, and put me right as to the cut and colour of Homer's coat when he was a ballad-singer ; but who knew nothing of our own poets—simply because they were their own countrymen, and sang in their vernacular language !

These memoirs are generally commingled or followed by short critiques on the productions of the bard under notice. My opinions, in this respect, are freely given, and if they should run counter to the prepossessed notions of any one, it is submitted whether, perhaps, we shall not agree on a reconsideration of the subject. I am aware how firmly early prepossessions and local partialities lay hold of our esteem, and how difficult it is for us, in after years, to exercise our judgment unfettered by first impressions ; but I can say with perfect truth, that I have divested myself of every vestige of partiality when adjudging laurels to the Highland bards. If, therefore, I have bestowed more florid encomiums on any one than he merited—if I have anywhere taken a lower estimate than the reader would be disposed to do—if I have been unjust in the distribution of praises or animadversions, I hope it will be attributed, as it ought to be, to an error in judgment, and not to prejudice, partiality, or evil intention. In writing them, much more attention has been paid to simple and authentic detail, than to illustrative or excursive comments.

In the arrangement of the poets, due regard was had, as far as practicable, to seniority, that being the most unobjectionable mode that could be adopted ; and the same rule was observed in the classification of the poems.

It may be deemed out of place, in a prefatory notice, to allude to my list of subscribers ; but I feel so grateful on this subject, and so proud of their number, respectability and intelligence, that I cannot help adverting to it. Their literary taste and discrimination afford me the best assurance that the nature of my labours will be fully appreciated. From the plan I have adopted, those who were accustomed to see the poems occupy so much space in other works, may be apt to think that they have undergone curtailment—a perusal of them, however, will not only obviate this misconception, but convince the reader that they are given at greater length and in a more improved form than they ever appeared before. Where spurious verses and monastic interpolations had intruded themselves, they have, of course, been thrown out. The same system of ejectment has been carried to indecent phrases and objectionable passages ; and, while nothing of the fire, or grandeur, or general beauty has been lost, the utmost vigilance has been exercised that nothing should be allowed to creep in, which could offend the most delicate, or afford ground of complaint to the most fastidious.

The idea of this undertaking was first suggested to me by a worthy friend, who is now no more, James Robertson, Esq., Collector of Customs, Stornoway. Mr Robertson, himself a gentleman of high poetic talent, possessed a fund of curious information about the bards, and several written documents, to which he obligingly gave me free access, and from which, some of the anecdotes with which this work is interspersed, have been extracted.

After having collected all the materials which I deemed necessary for the completion of the work, I met with so little encouragement, that I was on the eve of abandoning my design, when Mr Donald M'Pherson, Bookseller, London, with an enthusiasm and high patriotic feeling that do honour to his heart, entered into my projects, and, by his warmly exercised influence, put me into a position in which I soon enjoyed the pleasing assurance of being able to carry my intentions into execution.

With equal gratitude I have to record the disinterested kindness of Archibald M'Neil, Esq., W.S., Edinburgh—a gentleman whose name carries along with it associations of all that is noble-minded and generous. To this gentleman I owe much. His exertions to further my views were characterized by a warmth of zeal, and promptitude of action, in the way of urging others to give the work their support, for which no words of mine can sufficiently thank him.

I feel myself also deeply indebted to another gentleman, the mention of whose name is sufficient to convince the reader of the sincerity of my feelings—I allude to Mr Lachlan M'Lean, Merchant, Glasgow, author of the "History of the Gaëlic Language," &c., who, in the most handsome manner, gave me the use of his library, and exerted himself with his wonted enthusiasm to enlist public sympathy and support in favour of the undertaking.

There are other favourable circumstances and kind friends that might well elicit from me the tribute of grateful acknowledgment but as I am more inclined to be concise than ceremonious, my devoirs must be expressed in general terms ; and I therefore assure all such, that I shall fondly cherish the recollection of their kindness until the latest hour of my existence.

It is customary in a notice of this kind to take the precaution of disarming the critics,—a custom I would gladly honour in my own case. That errors have crept in, and that imperfections may appear to the eye of critical acumen, is readily conceded ; but these will form no greater defalcation than candour will allow it was impossible to eschew. If I am afterwards convinced of any unintentional errors—convinced, as I have a right to demand, by the force of argument and the power of philological reasoning, I will be as ready to acknowledge my mistakes, as I shall be imperturbable at the innocuous shafts of ill-natured pedantic invective and declamation.

And now, Reader, having conducted you to the threshold of the palladium of the Highland Minstrels, let me crave your leisure hours to the study and contemplation of their works. We speak of by-gone ages in terms which seem to imply that we are morally, intellectually, and religiously superior to our ancestors. Would that it were so! We exult in the progress of civilization, improvement and scientific knowledge; but we are retrograding in another point of view. Time was, when the hours which are now so assiduously devoted to the propagation of gossip, to circumvention, scandal and chicanery, were spent in singing songs, and reciting legends in the innocent comfort and simplicity of unsophisticated manners. But the Bards have ceased to lash the backbiter, the drunkard, and the moral delinquent; and as snails shoot out their horns in a calm, so the human owlets of our country have multiplied in a fearful degree!

Reader, farewell!—but ere I pronounce that doleful word, allow me, in the sincerity of a warm Highland heart, to wish you the innocence, beauty, and simplicity of the mountain maid—the prowess and patriotism of the plaided warrior—the lofty talent of the Keltic bard—the age of our Apollo, silvery-locked Ossian—and the death-bed of one who is conscious of nothing worse than having read and studied and sung the “BEAUTIES OF GAELIC POETRY.”

JOHN MACKENZIE.

GLASGOW, April 1, 1841.

INTRODUCTION.

THOSE who compose the poems and melodies which stimulate or mollify the passions of mankind, possess a much greater influence in society than can be readily conceived.

If national airs, in ages of refinement and artificial feeling, are found to have so strong a power over the mind, as in the “Ranz des vaches,” or “Erin gu brath,” how much more forcibly must the bold chanting of heroic verse—the plaintive tones of injured innocence—the impressive notes of impassioned exhortation, or the keen touch of satiric spirit, have affected a people like the Gaël, imbued with all the fervour of unaffected nature, and who paid ardent devotion at the shrine of freedom? How highly must an order have been venerated, which possessed an influence, the effects of which were so deeply and so universally felt, and how greatly must the general applause have fanned the flame which burned so ardently in the poet’s heart? The deference paid to the professors of poetry and music, was prompted by a sense of the utility of their labours, and by enthusiastic approbation.

The retention of the Celtic Language and Manners by the unmixed descendants of the most ancient people of Europe, is a singular phenomenon in the history of mankind; and not the least remarkable trait in the character of the race, is their genius for the sister arts of poetry and music. The patriarchal system, as incompatible with an altered state of society, has been broken up, and much indeed of national characteristic has been lost since its abolition. The different condition of the Highland population has lowered the Bardic profession from its former high standing. The powerful stimulus of “the man of song,” is no longer required to animate the clansmen for the battle field, or to preserve by his captivating recitations, the memory of the days of old. His useful services as the Laureat, moral preceptor, and historical instructor, are not now rewarded by the free possession of a good farm, and other rights, but the innate love of poetry has still preserved the unbroken generation of Bards. The people yet highly appreciate the poet’s lays, and the feelings of unabated delight with which the Highlander continues to cherish the Song, show that the ancient spirit has not decayed.

The numerous collections of Gaëlic pieces which have from time to time appeared, evince the national taste, and display the poetical acquirements of the writers, but how small a proportion these bear to the stores yet floating in oral record, selections from which are now submitted to the public! The following pieces will give natives a more extended idea of the value of poetic treasure in their rugged and romantic country, while to the reader who is a stranger to the language in which the immortal Bard of Selma formed his imperishable compositions, the varied lives of so many remarkable and talented individuals, must prove an interesting novelty.

An appropriate introduction to the Beauties of the Gaëlic Poets, appears to be a brief account of that long descended race, which so justly demands regard, and of which they ever formed so important a class. Connected with this is a demonstration that the language in which the following poems appear, is that handed down to their authors from ancestors the most remote.

The Celtic race were the first known inhabitants of Europe, which was occupied throughout by various tribes or clans. The appropriate name which this remarkable people gave themselves was Celtæ, but the terms Calatae, Galatae, or Gallatians, and Galli, or Gauls, were adopted by the Greeks and Romans, and were the appellations by which in later ages they were usually distinguished.*

Various etymological conjectures are advanced as explanatory of these designations. A name descriptive of locality does not appear reasonably applicable to nations spread over an extensive continent and its numerous islands; they could neither be described as living in woods, nor on the hills, nor beside the waters, with any propriety, either by themselves or by others.† A more probable derivation is from the fair complexion by which the ancients characterized the race. This is the etymon given by Greek scholars, as if the body was “Galactoi,” milky coloured; and as G and C are commutable letters, it must be confessed that the Gaëlic Gealta or Cealta, has the closest possible resemblance to Celta.

The original seat of the human race was undoubtedly the fertile plains of Asia, but when the Celtic stream first rolled from that productive storehouse of nations, is never likely to become known.‡ Successive waves of migratory hordes must have flowed from the east, impelled by a want of food or a thirst for conquest, long before the Trojan war, when the Keltoi were first known to the Greeks, or when Herodotus, the father of history, informs us they inhabited to the farthest west.§ Their daring enterprise and mighty conquests had shaken the well-settled empires of Greece and Rome, when these nations were yet unacquainted with the regions whence issued the overwhelming hosts, and scarcely knew their terrific foes, save through the disturbed vision of a frightened imagination.||

Various sections of the dense population of western Europe came alternately under historical notice, as their power and influence brought them more prominently into view. The Cimmerii, or Cimbri, the Getæ or Goths, the Scythæ or Celto-Scyths, the Germanni, the Teutoni, and the three divisions of Gallia proper ; the Celts, Belgs, and Aquitains, successively occupy a predominant share in the eventful page of history. From the testimony of numerous ancient authorities, these appear rather subdivisions of an identic race, than different nations. If Celtæ gave place to Galli, Scythæ became Germanni, &c. The name Lochlin and Lychlin was applied by the British tribes to Germany, and they considered it the same country as Gaul.*

There can be no doubt, that local position, commerce, and other circumstances, will, in process of time, occasion so much difference between branches of an original race, that they will appear, and may be justly considered different nations. Thus, the Greeks and Barbarians so closely resembled each other, previous to the time of Homer, that no distinction in manners or language appears to have then existed.†

When continental Europe had become fully peopled, emigration to the British isles must have speedily taken place, and the obvious route was from the opposite coast of Gaul, to South Britain, but at what period the first adventurers arrived, can only be matter of conjecture. Some part of the maritime population were known to the Romans as mercantile settlers from the continent, but those who inhabited the interior, had lost all tradition of their origin, and, like their Gaulish ancestors, believed themselves the indigenous possessors of the island.‡ To the early Greeks and Romans it was unknown, but the assertion has been reiterated that the Phœnicians had established a commercial relation with the natives upwards of 2,800 years ago, and carried on a lucrative trade with them in lead and tin.§

The author of the Argonautica, writing nearly 600 years before our era, speaks of Iernis, which, signifying the western island, [Iar-innis,] would apply to either Britain or Ireland, and Aristotle, who flourished two centuries and a half later, calls the former both Albium and Brettania. These and other scanty notices of a certain island opposite Gaul, are more curious than satisfactory or important ; the fact of an early colonization is proved by the numerous population at the period of the Roman advent, 55, A. C.,|| and the whole was composed of various tribes represented as arriving at different times from the continent, forcing back the previous settlers and presenting those great divisions, in the illustration of whose descent, historians have so laboriously employed themselves.

The Welsh or Cumri, from their general appellation of Ancient Britons, are considered as the original inhabitants, but it is admitted by their own antiquaries, and shown by others, that the Gaël, or in their own lingual form, the Gwyddel must have preceded them.†† The Welsh authorities preserve the names of other colonies which arrived at uncertain periods. The Lloegrws came from Gwasgwn or Gascony, and were the progenitors of those who possessed England, and the Brython, from Lhydaw or Bretagne, who it is said gave name to the island, both being of Cumraeg descent.‡‡

The Romans found the southern coasts occupied by tribes of Belgic origin, who are supposed to have arrived three or four centuries before the birth of Christ. Successive emigrations forced the inhabitants westward, and to the north, but certainly nothing is recorded to warrant the belief, that the whole were not of Gaulic origin.* Scotland was possessed by a Celtic people, divided into twenty-one tribes, some of whom became at times conspicuous from more daringly contending with their ambitious foes, or being chosen to direct the national confederations, but the collective inhabitants were, as they have ever been, denominated by themselves and their brethren in Ireland, Albanich, Albanians; natives of Alban or Albion, a name of which they still are justly proud, thus vindicating their claim to be considered the primordial race.

Several of the great divisions lost their names in the fluctuations of a predatory and unsettled state of society and were ultimately incorporated with more powerful neighbours. The Maeatae, (Magh-aitich,) dwellers on the plain, whose situation between the praetentures, a sort of debateable land, exposed them more particularly to the devastations of war, but gave ample scope for the acquisition of military renown, lost their prominence when the Romans succeeded in forming their territories into the province of Valentia, and when the legions were finally compelled to leave the island, the Meats, losing their consequence, were quickly amalgamated with the general body. The CALEDONII who were the ruling tribe in the great confederation which Galba led to battle at the Gramplains, ceded their warlike pre-eminence to other branches who came into power. The term by which they were distinguished, whatever may be its precise meaning, displays in its composition Caël or Gaël, the appropriate name of the most ancient inhabitants of both Albion and Erin, and it still subsists, if not the native, yet the classical appellation.† The redoubted Picts themselves were at last embodied with their more successful countrymen the Scots, but long retained the evidence of their descent in the designation of Gaélwadians, and Galloway is still applied to a greatly reduced portion of their ancient kingdom.

No more prolific subject of literary contention has offered itself to the national controversialists, than the lineage of the Pictish nation, that powerful division which so long shared the sovereignty of the kingdom. A prevailing tradition from most early ages, held them as the original inhabitants ;‡ the Roman writers identified them with the Caledonians,§ and in later ages they were recognised as Scots.|| One opinion has many able advocates : it is that they were a Cumraeg nation, using that branch of the Celtic language, but were expelled by the Gaél. Certainly we look in vain for a proof of this in the names which remain, even in the territories of the Strathclyde Welsh, which are believed to have extended to Cumberland—all are Gaëlic.¶ But reverting to another opinion not less keenly supported : were the Picts of Gothic extract ? It is not probable, that at so early an epoch, the Scandinavian wastes could furnish such a force as would be sufficient to expel the Celts and supplant their language, for except there was a very considerable number of colonists, the strangers would inevitably lose their own tongue in mixture with the natives. Language, like manners, is liable to change from many operating causes, and differences in one which is widely spread, especially when unwritten, will greatly increase by the long estrangement of the branches, who own a common descent. Grammarians raise the polished structures, but the simple vocables attest the kindred alliance. The affinity of languages most certainly evinces the ancient connexion of nations, that in course of time become very widely separated. The Greek and Gothic have satisfactorily displayed to the learned their common parentage, and we know that Gallic words predominated in the Latin, derived through that most ancient Celtic race, the Umbri, who were the aborigines of Italy, and this classic tongue in grammatical construction, bore close resemblance to the Gaëlic.*

The assertion has been confidently repeated, that the Belgic portion of the British tribes, Gothic as the Picts, like them, obtruded a different language, which in the form of Saxon and English has superseded in the greater portion of Britain, the primeval tongue. How far this argument can be supported, it will be satisfactory to inquire. Do the names applied to natural objects on record, and as yet preserved in those parts which the two nations inhabited, favour the assumption, or do the Roman historians, our only guides, afford their evidence in its favour? Cæsar describes the South Britons as being in all respects like the people of Gaul, from which country he says they were.† Tacitus informs us, the Gothinian was the Gaëlic, and he particularizes two distinguished Belgic tribes, the Cimbri and Æstii, as using the proper British language.‡

The Gothic tribes came to the west of Europe, long after the Celtic migrations had spread population over the land, but the Getæ were Scyths, and these retained the name of Celto-Scyths,§ when their ancient brethren and precursors, the Keltæ, had fixed themselves far distant in the west. The Gothic first prevailed in England, and a striking evidence of the progressive change of language among nations of dissimilar pursuits, is the fact related in the Sagas, that widely different as the present English is from the northern tongues, a Saxon could converse so easily with a Scandinavian, in the 10th century, that he could not discover him to be a foreigner.|| The Gothic did not become the language of the low country of Scotland, until comparatively recent times. The whole inhabitants were originally of one race, whatever shades of difference may have been observable in separate districts, of which a clear demonstration is afforded by the entire coincidence of local names, personal appellations, similar modes of interment, and relics of superstition throughout the whole extent of the country; that this race was Celtic, is satisfactorily proved by the terms being significant in the Gaëlic language, and in no other. In the years 547 and 650, the kings of Northumberland ravaged the southern districts, and seizing the country between the Forth and Tweed, filled the province with their Anglo-Saxon vassals, thus first inducing the adoption of the Anglo-Saxon language; and the events of the Norman conquest, 1066, when the royal family, the nobility and their followers were compelled to seek the protection of Malcolm III., mightily assisted in the introduction; for the kingdom became so filled with them, that there was not a farm-house or cottage in the south, which did not contain English men and women servants!¶ The refugees were located on the borders and east coast by the policy of our kings, as a good means of defence against the English and Danes, and it may not have been so practicable to plant them in the inland, the Highlanders bearing such intruders no good will. Moreover, the enterprise of the Saxons led them to prefer the east coast, where the powerful stimulus of commercial advantage, hastened the adoption of their speech; finally, the Scottish kings, from Malcolm Cean-mor to Alexander II., spent part of their lives in England, where they acquired the language, and married princesses of that country, and when the seat of government was removed from the Highlands, theirs became the court language, which gradually extended in the maritime parts. In the heights and distant isles, the pastoral and agricultural population clung with increased tenacity to their original tongue, the patriarchal institutions of Clanship being peculiarly calculated to prevent any disturbance of their social state.

Another portion of the inhabitants remains to be noticed, which had the fortune to preserve its appropriate name, and impart it to the whole. The appellation Scoti or rather Scuite, is apparently a modification of Scyth, the name by which the great unsettled branch of the continental Celts were distinguished, and is descriptive of the wandering life which a large portion of the inhabitants led through their predatory habits, and for the easy pasturage of their numerous flocks.* Those who had store of herds, possessed the only riches of the pastoral state. In Ireland, which was inhabited by the Britons,† who were forced over, as we are told, on the arrival of the Belgs in England,‡ the Scots were the dominant and noble class, the natives or aborigines being considered an inferior order.§ The epithet was adopted by the monkish writers, but does not appear to have been acknowledged by the Gaël, at least in Scotland, where they have stedfastly adhered to their national distinction.

In Erin as in Albion, the Scotic people were named the Pictish, and were known also as Cruthenich, a name indicative of peculiar habits.|| The close connexion between the Scots of both countries, was such as became nations owning a common origin, in which they had an equal pride. The Dalriadic Kinglet, which the county of Antrim nearly represents, was long subject to the Scottish line, but at last the regal seat was removed to Argyle, and from this little sovereignty came the race of princes who crushed the vigorous independence of the Pictish throne, and so long ruled over the united Gaël. This transfer of the dynasty, whatever may have been the motives which swayed the minds of those who favoured it, was not accomplished without a display of "the high hand."¶

Did the Dalriadic colony, as a different people, bring to Scotland their own language, and become the first disseminators of the Gaëlic, vulgarly called Erse? This has been rashly asserted, but after what has been said on the subject of language, it seems unnecessary to devote more time in disproving an evident absurdity. The Gaëlic, the primordial tongue used by the whole inhabitants of both countries, has gradually given way on the south and east sides of Scotland. In Carrick it was only lately extinguished : in Galloway it was spoken in the reign of Queen Mary 1542—1566,* and during the same reign we find it the common language in the Gariach district of Aberdeenshire, from the upper parts of which it has receded in our own memory.† This much is to be observed, that within the Garbh-Criochan, or boundaries of the Highlands, where the recession of the Gaëlic has not been in consequence of Saxon settlements, the manners of the people are essentially Gaëlic, and they retain at home and abroad the predilections of their birth, particularly cherishing a just admiration of the bardic art, and possessing the characteristic taste for national melody.

The foregoing opinions are not newly formed : the writer of these pages having in another publication, some years ago, gone at greater length into the subject, is happy to find that his views are now generally adopted.

The Celts, from whom it was reluctantly acknowledged by both Greeks and Romans, that they had derived many of the useful arts and sciences, nay, even their philosophy,‡ were distinguished by very remarkable habits and customs, many of which still characterize their descendants ; and their personal appearance offered a striking contrast to that of the inhabitants of Italy and Greece. To whatever cause is to be attributed the general mixture of dark-complexioned individuals among the Gaël, inducing the assertion, so often repeated, that they display the genuine Celtic hue, nothing is more particularly noticed than the fairness of skin, the blue eyes and the yellow hair of all branches of the race. So anxious were the Gauls to improve the glowing brightness of their flowing locks, that in the desire to heighten, by frequent washing and other artificial means, its natural colour, they hit on the manufacture of soap.§ The general appearance of the Celts must have been very peculiar to excite the notice of so many writers,|| and their aspect must have been a matter of ostentation, when its preservation was an object of national care.¶ The bardic effusions have always extolled the golden ringlets as imparting beauty to both sexes, comparing them to the gracefulness of flowing gold—to the loveliness of the golden-haired sun ; while one of an opposite colour is alluded to as an exception. The Welsh are perhaps the darkest of the race, for they called the others Gwyddil coch, the red-haired Gaël. The careful arrangement of the hair, was one of the most particular duties of a Celtic toilet, and the practice of trimming or “glibbing” it, was put down in Ireland as an anti-English practice, by act of Parliament.

The comeliness and great stature of the Celts were acknowledged ; the Britons and Caledonians, particularly exhibiting that stately appearance which in early society would be an object of pride, and a favourite theme for bardic compliment. The commanding figures of the Fingalian heroes, and those of later date, are always kept in view.

The dispositions of a people are however more worthy of consideration, personal appearance being dependent on physical causes, while the mental affections and moral feelings are influenced by other circumstances.

On the ministers of religion devolve the care of forming the morals, and on legislators the regulation of society by the enactment of laws, the coercion of the wicked, and encouragement of the virtuous. These two important functions, so naturally allied, were combined in one individual among the early Celts. That highly interesting and venerable order the Druids, who presided over a religion the most ancient, included the singularly important class, the Bards, the disseminators of knowledge, or rather as some maintain, they were in truth the body, of which the Druids formed a part, if more exalted in rank, certainly not a more numerous nor popular division.

Britain seems to have been the hyperborean island alluded to by Hecatæus, a very ancient writer, who describes it as lying opposite to Gaul, and being as large as Sicily. The inhabitants led the most happy lives, spending great part of their time in playing on the harp, and worshipping the gods in groves and circular temples.* It is certain that in Britain was the grand seminary for Druidic learning, to which the youth from Gaul resorted to complete their course of education, and to which reference was made in all cases of controversy or doubt. In the southern province, therefore, we find the wondrous remains of the stupendous works of Avebury and Stonehenge, with many other circular erections of the Clachan mor of less note throughout England and Wales. In Anglesea was the sacred fane and last retreat of the British druids, while seeking to escape the Roman sword. In Ireland the great Feis, or bardic convention, was held on the hill of Tara, (Teamhair) in Meath, and the science studied in different seminaries. In Scotland, besides other consecrated precincts, was Ellan Druinich, now Iona, the isle wherein the chief establishment of bards was placed, which the celebrated Colum or Columba supplanted by a college of the scarcely less famous Christian order of Culdees, as he did with that sacred grove where now stands the town of Derry in Ireland.† To this latter country the bards are supposed to have been first introduced by the colony of Danas, and the name, believed to have come from Dan a song, is noticed as a corroborative proof. They would no doubt accompany the first Celtic settlers, and in all probability held their appropriate place among the Milesian adventurers.

Legislation—the services of religion, and the poetic art, were blended in primitive society, and the united duties performed by one person; the priests, the historians, and the lawgivers, were consequently of the bardic order. Although it cannot be admitted as true that “poetry preceded prose,” yet it is not paradoxical to assert that verse was anterior to prose as the medium of record. It was used in intercession with the Deity, and was the vehicle of all praise. The ethics of antiquity were delivered and orally preserved in pithy rhymes; in this way, the earlier decrees of Greece were promulgated, and remained for ages ere they were engraven on tablets in the public ways, and even then the metrical form was not abandoned, nor did the people find another word for law than verse.‡ Strong indeed was the attachment to oral record, but still stronger was the predilection for rhyme; even after writing had come into use, the form of versification was fondly retained. The Brehons or Gaëlic judges delivered their decrees in sententious poetry, and

Columba, who is himself believed to have been of the bardic order, and other early ecclesiastics delivered their moral precepts, as no doubt was the common practice, in impressive verse.* It was in this style of composition, that the Gaëlic genealogies of the Scottish kings, repeated by the seanachies at coronations were formed.† In Wales, numerous moral triplets are confidently ascribed to the Druids: in the Highlands, many such apothegms, handed down from the Sean'ir, or men of antiquity, are of similar origin.

The Druids, like the Pythagoreans, a similar sect, were most careful to exercise the memory, and it was a positive law that there should be no written record; the first deviation from which appears to have been, as far as respected religion, but the poems were too mystical to be understood, save by the initiated, and it was not permitted to speak openly of the ceremonials or secrets of their profession; to sing in heroic verse the praises of illustrious men, was the unrestricted and most congenial duty of the bard. How admirably fitted for the assistance of recollection was the use of poetry—how well adapted for diffusing throughout the community, a knowledge of the laws by which foreign and internal relations were directed; of the misfortunes which depressed, or the successes which brightened the national prospects;—the song kept alive the memory of transactions which gained the friendship of neighbours, or exalted military renown—it transmitted to succeeding generations the history of illustrious individuals—the woes and calamities of the unfortunate! How little even now, are the people in general indebted for their acquaintance with events, to the pages of the historian? It is the record of vocal song which so long preserves among the illiterate the remembrance of bygone transactions.

There is much truth in what has been observed on this sort of vehicle for the conveyance of opinion; “songs are more operative than statutes, and it matters little who are the legislators of a country, compared with the writers of its popular ballads.” With the Celts the statutes were really poems, and the observation of Macpherson is just: “The moral character of our ancestors owed more to the compositions of the bard, than to the precepts of the Druids.”‡ The druidic injunction for cultivating the power of recollection, long affected the national character, and in the Highland districts, it cannot be said to have altogether ceased as a popular object. The Gaël frequently met for the purpose of friendly contest in the repetition and singing of their ancient poems, and poetic talent was one of the most respected accomplishments. In Wales, its possession elevated one to rank. A Highland amusement which Johnson describes, is illustrative of the poetic spirit. A person enveloped in a skin enters the house, when the company affecting to be frightened, rush forth; the door is then closed, and before they are admitted, for the honour of poetry, says the doctor, each must repeat, at least a verse. The young men who celebrate the festival of Colain, or bringing in of the new year, are obliged to recite an extempore rhyme before they are admitted to any house. The Dronn, or rump, was called the bard's portion; whoever received it, was obliged to compose a verse; and many a humorous couplet has the present elicited. This is called Beanneachadh Bhaird, or the Bard's Blessing, and it was customary to give a metrical salutation as a mark of respect; a composition in praise of one whose kindness or hospitality had been experienced, was an equally common effort of the muses. Dr Donald Smith, speaking of MS. poems of Ossian, and those collected by Duncan Kennedy, which scarcely differed, observes, "The test which such an agreement affords at a distance of almost three hundred years, of the fidelity of tradition, cannot but seem curious to such as have not had an opportunity of observing the strength which memory can attain, when unassisted by writing, and prompted to exertion by the love of poetry and song."^{*}

The Fear Sgeulachd or reciter of tales in Ireland, although now perhaps reduced to an itinerant mendicant, was formerly a personage whose entertaining and instructive rehearsals always procured becoming respect. These men were walking chronicles, the depositaries of what was old, and the disseminators of passing novelties. A favourite pastime among the Gaël was recitations of the old poems in manner of dramas, for which they were excellently adapted, if not originally so intended.

The chief object of the Celts in the nurture and education of their children, being to promote hardiness of constitution and corporeal strength, and to instil into the mind a sense of justice, and the highest notions of freedom and of warlike renown, their institutions were of a serious and martial cast.[†] The population were stimulated by the bardic exhortations from early childhood, to contemn inglorious ease and death itself, and to emulate the heroic virtues for which their ancestors were so highly extolled, as the only means by which they could attain distinction here and happiness hereafter. The labours of those national preceptors were eminently successful, and the bloody and protracted wars which they so intrepidly sustained in Gaul, against the conquerors of the world, tarnishing their arms, before unsullied,[‡] bear ample testimony to the love of freedom. In our own country, was the influence of those patriots less strong? "Neither by Romans, Saxons, Danes nor Normans, could they ever be conquered, either in Britain or Ireland; but as they could not successfully resist the overwhelming numbers, and superior discipline of their enemies in the plain country, they retreated with the highest spirited and most intractable of their countrymen, into the mountains, where they successfully defied the legions of the Roman and Saxon barbarians. For more than a thousand years they maintained their country's independence in the mountains of Wales and Scotland, whence they constantly made incursions upon their enemies. Here it was, where, with their native wild and beautiful music, and in poetry which would not disgrace a Homer, being the production of passion not of art, their venerable Druids deplored their country's misfortunes, or excited their heroes to the fight." These are the words of a Saxon writer, who made the history of the Druids, and their mysterious religion, subjects of the most profound research.[§]

An order which possessed the power of inflaming their countrymen to the fiercest resistance of invasion, and unextinguishable passion for liberty, was subjected to the direst persecution of their implacable enemies. The cruelty with which the Romans accomplished the slaughter of the British Druids, even in the sacred isle of Mona, had only a parallel in the massacre of the Welsh bards, by Edward the first of England. The indomitable spirit of resistance to aggression, which these illustrious patriots so effectually cherished in their countrymen, aroused the sanguinary vengeance of their ambitious foes, and the same policy, with a subdued severity, animated Queen Elizabeth, and Henry the Eighth, in their proscriptive legislation for the natives of Ireland.

Many instances are on record of the extraordinary power of music, which was always in ancient times an accompaniment to the song. Tyrtæus, by the chanting of his heroic verses, so inspired the sinking Lacedemonians, that, rallying, they gained a triumphant victory, and saved the state. Terpander succeeded in appeasing a seditious outbreak, by singing an appropriate composition to the sound of his lyre, and Alcæus rescued his country by the same means. The bards not only inflamed the martial zeal of the people, rousing them to arms in defence of all they held dear, but they accompanied the armies to the field, and their persons being held inviolable by friend and foe, they employed themselves in moving about, sustaining the courage of the troops in the heat of battle; charging them to acquit themselves like men, and thereby obtain the approbation of their country, assuring them of ample fame on earth, and a joyful existence hereafter, should they bravely fall. “Ye bards, raise high the praise of heroes, that my soul may settle on their fame!” was an appropriate Celtic ejaculation. To die without this fame was a misfortune felt beyond the grave; the spirit rested not, when nothing had been done on earth to ensure its posthumous meed of praise.

The bards were also the heralds who summoned the clans to the strife of arms, a duty which was afterwards effected by the fleet bearers of the Crann taradh, and that important official in the establishment of a chief, the Piobair-mor. An instance occurs in the poem of Temora where a bard performs the ceremony; he proceeds to the hall of Shells, where the chiefs were assembled, and raising aloud the song of war, he calls on the spirits to come on their clouds, and be witness to the heroism of their descendants. The bards were in fact called upon by the leaders, as those on whose well-directed exertions rested the fate of battle, to rehearse the glorious exploits of former heroes, and by urging every motive to exertion, endeavour to carry the day by esprit du corps, not unlike the way in modern times of calling on the pipers—seid suas, play up? But they stood in no need of command; they acted in their vocation con amore, and they could excite or appease the warlike passions at their will; nay, with such awe were these men of song regarded, that they would step between armies which had drawn swords and levelled spears for immediate action; and the iresful combatants, as if their fury had been tamed by a charm, instantly dropt their arms.* The shaking of the “Chain of silence” by the Irish bards, produced the same effect.†

Their prophetic character added greatly to their influence; for they professed to foretell the fate of wars, and the destiny of individuals. So nearly allied are the gifts of poetry, and prophecy, that the same individuals were professors of both, and hence it is that we find the Romans using the terms indiscriminately, especially with reference to those in their Gaulish provinces. Of the prophecies of the Gauls, many instances are related; they were held in much estimation for their auguries and predictions, and were consulted by even the emperors of Rome. Those soldiers who were in their armies, perhaps from their national gravity, and dark and figurative manner of expression,* compared with their Italian comrades, were looked on as seeing more clearly into futurity than others. The spirit descended on their successors in the British isles. In the Principality, the faculty in the bardic order was tacitly acknowledged, and Irish history affords many proofs of the conjunction, whilst among the Scottish Gaél, the ability to prognosticate unerringly, was repeatedly claimed, and respectfully conceded. Fingal himself, by concurrent tradition, is allowed, with other attributes of one so illustrious, to have possessed in an eminent degree, the ability to predict coming events. The court poets, about 1323, delivered a prophecy respecting King David, which was fully credited.†

* Diodorus.

Numerous proofs of the unabated influence of bardic exhortations on individuals, clans, and confederated armies, could be adduced. When the orator, standing on a cairn or other eminence, harangued the assembled host, in energetic verse, descanting in glowing terms on the well earned glories of the race—their heroism and other virtues, reminding them that on present exertions depended their country's fate—their own, their wives and children's safety; that the freedom which their sires bequeathed, it was for them to maintain and faithfully transmit to following generations; and when he warned them that the shades of their noble ancestors hovered near to witness their prowess, and bear them to the realms of bliss, if they bravely fell, the climax was attained, and in the paroxysm of generous resolution, with a simultaneous shout, the whole rushed forward to the mêlée.

Those who survived, were welcomed by the fair with the songs of praise; the bards extolling their exploits in the most laudatory strains.

The War Song of Gaul in the fourth book of Fingal, shows the usual style of the Prosnachadh cath, which is the name applied to it, corresponding to the Irish Rosga cath, and the Welsh Arymes prydain.‡ The address of that intrepid chief of the Caledonian confederation, Galgacus, delivered to his troops previous to the great battle of the Grampians, is highly interesting for its antiquity, the eloquence it displays, and the light it throws on the sentiments of that unconquerable race, to whom the Britons of the south alleged the gods themselves were scarcely equal. The famed Caractacus would animate his forces in a similar manner; and it is probable both delivered their harangues in verse, and may indeed have been of the bardic order. The strife was truly “kindled by the songs of the bards.” “Go Ullin—go my aged bard! remind the mighty Gaul of battle—remind him of his fathers—support the yielding fight; for the song enlivens war,” says the king of Morven.

It is unnecessary to multiply examples: the practice was retained as long as clanship was entire. The Brosnachadh cath Gariach, composed by Lachlan Mac Mhuireach, the bard of Donald of the isles, at the bloody field of Harlaw in 1411, is a specimen, curious for the subject and the strict alliteration in its composition. It has been observed as scarcely credible, that a bard could compose and deliver such lengthened exhortations in the battle field, and impossible to preserve such effusions afterwards, except he was “attended by a secretary!” These, and many similar objections to the authenticity of the ancient remains of Gaëlic bards, have been offered by the late Rev. Edward Davies, author of “Celtic researches,” in a very rare work, entitled, “The claims of Ossian considered.” This writer, whose remarks we shall have occasion again to allude to, is the most severe assailant of the venerable bard who has yet appeared, and it is to be regretted, that the asperity, promoted by ignorance of the subject, which is evinced throughout his inquiry, tarnishes much the fame he acquired by his other learned productions. The bards doubtless studied the subject of their compositions, previous to rehearsal, and polished or perfected them afterwards. Ossian was as capable of composing Fingal and Temora, as Homer was to form the Iliad, and the deep misfortune, of being “blind, palsied, destitute, broken-hearted and illiterate,” p. 53. and the last of his race, was rather favourable to his poetic genius, while it imparted a melancholy spirit. He might not be provided with an “amanuensis,” but he had zealous admirers, and attentive auditors to his frequent repetitions; and although Malvina might be 80 years of age, by Mr Davies’ chronology, she could well store her memory, less disturbed by the passions of youth, with those affecting songs, which it delighted the hoary bard to repeat.

A striking instance of the irresistible impression of these vigilant monitors occurs in Irish history. The primate of Ireland, in a conference with Fitzgerald, succeeded in convincing him of the folly and the guilt of a contemplated rebellion, when Nelan, the bard, lifting up his voice with his harp, poured forth a touching effusion, commemorative of the heroism of that noble’s ancestors—of their wrongs and the inestimable value of freedom, and evoking quick revenge; the gallant Thomas rushed forth and flew to arms.

When aid was sought from neighbouring clans, the bard was the fitting messenger to arouse the sympathy of friends. In late and altered times, the poets exercised, by means of their compositions, a power scarcely inferior to that of their predecessors, in the days of Druidism. If they could not command the favour of a chief, they could neutralize his efforts by their songs, which took the desired effect on the less politic clansmen. Iain Lom and others performed wonders by the power of verse, and respect for their profession. Rob Donn was more useful by the effect of his cutting poems, in favour of Prince Charles, than his chief was prejudicial in his operations with an unwilling clan.

It is necessary here to notice, with attention, the religious tenets maintained by the Druids, that celebrated priesthood, which held unlimited power over a mighty race—which instilled for many centuries of uninterrupted sway, those generous precepts, that not only operated on the mental faculties of the bard, himself so important a member of the community, but formed a national character, which is not even yet effaced. The progress and fall of a system are to be traced, which became like other institutions, corrupt and injurious, through the venality of the professors of poetry, who had survived the religion whence they emanated, which had long been abandoned by the human race, but which left much, long entwined with the holy faith we now maintain, strongly imbuing the poetic genius of the Gaëlic bards. The wild imaginations of the enthusiastic Celts, led them to indulge in many superstitious ideas, but if, like other Pagans, they openly and emblematically admitted a plurality of Gods; the belief in one supreme disposer of human events was the fundamental creed of the bardic hierarchy; and if the people were persuaded of the truth of metempsychosis, or transmigration of spirits into other bodies, the more enlightened portion believed the immortality of the soul, in a state of happiness or misery. In the work of that intelligent Roman soldier and historian, Marcellinus, who was well acquainted with the Gauls, he thus speaks: "the Druidæ of a higher polish and imagination, as the authority of Pythagoras decreed, being formed into societies or fellowships, were addicted wholly to the consideration of matters of divine and hidden import, and despising all human things, they confidently affirmed that the souls of men were immortal."* The simple and sublime doctrines, if it is permitted so to designate them, which the Druids taught, were to reverence the Deity—to abstain from evil, and to behave with bravery; and they enforced their observance with unremitting energy. To the Almighty being, they paid adoration under the open canopy of heaven, esteeming it unbecoming to confine within a covered edifice, the worship of Him who created all things. At His mysterious shrine—circular, as the type of eternal duration,—they invoked divine favour, under the striking symbol of the resplendent sun, the apparent source of universal life. The appellations, Be 'il and Grian, or Granais were applied to the glorious luminary, and they are still used by the Gaël, although they do not attach to them those unchristian ideas, which darkened the mind of his ancestors, or perhaps being at all aware of the origin of terms formerly repeated with feelings of gratitude and veneration.† Many superstitions which yet maintain a hold on his imagination, are traceable to the mysterious dogmas of Druidism. Feelings carried along from ages the most remote, imbued the minds of the Gaëlic poets who indulged the fond persuasion, that the aerial spirits of departed friends hovered near their earthly relatives, rejoicing in their success and happiness, warning them of impending misfortunes, and ready when meeting death, to bear their spirits on clouds to a happier region. This cannot be called a debasing belief.

The only names which the Gaël yet apply to Heaven and Hell, proclaim their origin in days of Paganism. The ideas concerning Flath-innis, the island of the brave or noble, which was supposed to lie far distant in the Western Ocean, and Ifrinn, the cold and dismal isle in which the wicked were doomed to wander, in chilling solitude, so inconsistent with, and diametrically opposed to the Christian faith, could never have been imbibed from the sacred records of divine will. The numerous imaginary beings, with which the Celts filled earth, air, and water, were admirable accessories to the poetic machinery; they were perhaps originally deified, and although not yet discarded from popular belief, they are reduced to the less awful forms of phocas, fairies, beansiths, Glasligs, &c.

By all people, heaven has been pictured as an indescribable refinement, of all that imparts pleasure to the inhabitants of earth; and it is otherwise impossible to form any idea of the joys awaiting the righteous, the reality of which “it hath not entered the heart of man to conceive.” With the Gaël, all the amusements in which they took delight, whilst dweilers in the lower world, were pursued without alloy in their aerial abode. All descriptions of the Celtic paradise, must fall short of their own conception of its glories, but the following effort of an ancient bard to impart some notion of its imaginary excellence, is highly interesting, abounding as it does in that hyperbolic style, which is impressed on all similar compositions. It gives also a curious picture of one of the Celtic sages. “In former days, there lived in Skerr, a Druid of high renown. The blast of wind waited for his commands at the gate ; he rode the tempest, and the troubled wave offered itself as a pillow for his repose. His eye followed the sun by day ; his thoughts travelled from star to star in the season of night. He thirsted after things unseen—he sighed over the narrow circle which surrounded his days. He often sat in silence beneath the sound of his groves ; and he blamed the careless billows that rolled between him and the green Isle of the west.” One day as he sat thoughtful upon a rock, a storm arose on the sea: a cloud, under whose squally skirts the foaming waters complained, rushed suddenly into the bay ; and from its dark womb at once issued forth a boat, with its white sails bent to the wind, and around were a hundred moving oars: but it was void of mariners ; itself seeming to live and move. An unusual terror seized the aged Druid : he heard a voice, though he saw no human form. “Arise ! behold the boat of the heroes—arise, and see the green Isle of those who have passed away !” He felt a strange force on his limbs ; he saw no person ; but he moved to the boat. The wind immediately changed—in the bosom of the cloud he sailed away. Seven days gleamed faintly round him; seven nights added their gloom to his darkness. His ears were stunned with shrill voices. The dull murmur of winds passed him on either side. He slept not, but his eyes were not heavy : he ate not, but he was not hungry. On the eighth day, the waves swelled into mountains ; the boat rolled violently from side to side—the darkness thickened around him, when a thousand voices at once cried aloud,—“The Isle, the Isle!” “The billows opened wide before him ; the calm land of the departed rushed in light on his eyes. It was not a light that dazzled, but a pure, distinguishing, and placid light, which called forth every object to view in its most perfect form. The Isle spread large before him, like a pleasing dream of the soul ; where distance fades not on the sight—where nearness fatigues not the eye. It had its gently sloping hills of green ; nor did they wholly want their clouds : but the clouds were bright and transparent, and each involved in its bosom, the source of a stream ; a beauteous stream, which wandering down the steep, was like the faint notes of the half-touched harp to the distant ear. The valleys were open and free to the ocean ; trees loaded with leaves, which scarcely waved to the light breeze, were scattered on the green declivities and rising grounds. The rude winds walked not on the mountain ; no storm took its course through the sky. All was calm and bright ; the pure sun of autumn shone from his blue sky on the fields. He hastened not to the west for repose ; nor was he seen to rise from the east. He sits in his mid-day height, and looks obliquely on the Noble Isle. In each valley is its slow-moving stream. The pure waters swell over its banks, yet abstain from the fields. The showers disturb them not ; nor are they lessened by the heat of the sun. On the rising hill, are the halls of the departed—the high-roofed dwellings of the heroes of old.”*

There is here none of the barbarous ideas which distinguished the Scandinavians. The Celts never dreamt of such joys as were found in Odin’s Hall, or of carrying vindictive feelings beyond the grave—no quaffing beverage from the skulls of enemies, and other marks of ferocious minds. There is here no purgatorial state—no such horrid passage, as led to the Elysium of the Greeks—the transit of the spirit from earth, is on clouds accompanied by those of relatives long before removed. There was indeed an intermediate position, occupied by the shades of those who had escaped the more awful penalty, but had no position in the abode of the virtuous. So difficult is it to control the vicious propensities of mankind, that the Druids not only were empowered to pass a sentence, of the most strict excommunication, rendering it highly criminal in any to show the smallest favour to the proscribed, but they carried their pretensions farther, and debarred them from entering Flath-innis. For those who were guilty of venial crimes, or had shown “the little soul,” by coming short of the standard of goodness, through cowardice, injustice, &c., which did not incur the severer ban, it was impossible ever to reach the island of the brave. Their sluggish spirits heard no song of praise; they were doomed to hover in miserable solitude, beside fens and marshes, tormented by unavailing regrets.

To a northern people, as warmth is of all sensations the most desirable, so cold is the most to be avoided. Exposure to chilling winds, and a state of intense and continued frigidity, is a calamity, which those who were ill clad, must have dreaded even more than the want of food. It was therefore with them a natural imagination, that the place of final punishment should be wrapt in an atmosphere of everlasting frosts. Ifrinn† was therefore contemplated with feelings of horror, and the dread of being consigned for evermore to its indescribable rigour, operated as a powerful check on the unworthy passions.

Besides piety to the objects of their worship, and unflinching bravery in the battle field, Druidic morality required the exercise of other duties, to merit the beatitude of the Isle of the exalted. The profession of bardism ensured a becoming degree of respect and awe, towards itself; while the patriarchal feelings of clanship bound closely the followers to their natural chiefs and protectors.

Hospitality is a virtue of primitive society—its exercise was a positive law among the Gauls and Germans of old:‡ It continued unrestricted among the Gaél, while their ancient system remained entire, and it is now only cooled, where modern civilization and refinement have intruded on the unsophisticated manners of an open-hearted race. “The red oak is in a blaze; the spire of its flame is high. The traveller sees its light on the dusky heath, as night spreads around him her raven wings. He sees it, and is glad; for he knows the hall of the king. There,” he says to his companion, “we pass the night; the door of Fion is always open. The name of his hall is the stranger’s home.” The feast is spread—the king wonders that no stranger from the darkly heath is come.

"I will listen," says he, "if I may hear their wandering steps. He goes. An aged bard meets him at the door."* This paragraph is from the fall of Tura, and on it Dr Smith remarks, that "hospitality is one of those virtues which lose ground, in proportion as civilization advances. It still subsists to a high degree in the highlands; though vanishing so fast, that in some years hence, its existence in some parts may be as much doubted, as that of some other virtues ascribed by Ossian to his heroes. It is not many years, since it was the general practice to look out every evening, whether any stranger appeared, before the doors were shut. When any had cast up, the host had manifestly more pleasure in giving, than the guest in receiving the entertainment."* The Gauls never closed the doors of their houses, lest they should miss the opportunity of entertaining strangers.+ Cean uai na dai, the point to which the way of the stranger leads, was the poetical appellation of the house of a chief. In the praise of this virtue the bards ever indulged, and these portions may well be ranked among the beauties of their compositions. "Hospitality stood at the outer gate, and with the finger of invitation, waved to the traveller as he passed on his way."‡ "Turlach lived at Lubar of the streams. Strangers knew the way to his hall; in the broad path there grew no mountain-grass—no door had he to his gate. 'Why,' he said, 'should the wanderer see it shut?'"§ So a Cumraeg bard exclaims, "Cup-bearer! fill the horn with joy; bear it to Rhys in the court of the hero of treasure—the court of Owain, that is ever supported by spoils taken from the foe. It supports a thousand—its gates are ever open."|| But the entertainment of strangers and travellers was not left to individual feeling. In the Highlands, were numerous spidals (Hospitia) which like the Irish Fonnteach, were provided for at the public expense by Brehon appointment, and directed by the Bruighe or farmer of the open house.

Lest the Gaël might have an enemy under the roof, to whom they were equally bound by the honour and the rules of hospitality, the name and business of a stranger were not required, until after a considerable sojourn; a year and day was often suffered to elapse, ere a question on the subject was put—an extraordinary effort with a people so naturally inquisitive.

The Druids would doubtless show an example of benevolence and condescension, which the extreme deference they received, could enable them to do without lowering their dignity. Had their rule been otherwise than benign, it would have been impossible for them to have maintained their undiminished influence so very long, among a people proverbially impatient of severity and coercion, yet more power was vested in them, than even in their princes; it was to them as to magistrates that the settlement of all disputes was referred, whence they obtained the name of Co' retich, peace-makers, the Curetes of the Romans. Being physicians also, their aid would be frequently required; and their kind offices were cheerfully afforded. The promptitude with which they threw their protection over the distressed, is commemorated in a saying yet current in the Highlands :

"Ge fagus clach do lär,

"The stone lies not closer to the earth, than the help of Coivi is to those in distress." This personage was no other than the Ard Druid, or chief Druid. Coivi is supposed to have been the title of the primate; it is that given to the one who attended a council called by Edwin of Northumberland, when about to renounce paganism. Of their prescriptions, one is preserved in tradition, the observance of which would much conduce to health. "Bi gu sugradh, geanmnaidh mocheir 'each." Be cheerful, temperate, and rise early, or take exercise.

As those who entered the order were obliged to bear an unblemished character,* they were eminent in the practice of the virtues they sedulously inculcated. "Within this bosom there is a voice—it comes not to other ears—it bids Ossian help the helpless, in their hour of need." In the same poem, the bard shows the impropriety of sons reviving the quarrels of their fathers; had his excellent advice been attended to, in later times, it would have prevented many unfortunate feuds which were unhappily fomented, often for sinister purposes: "your fathers have been foes—forget their rage ye warriors, it was the cloud of other years!"† It was a high compliment to say that, "none ever went sad from Fingal," and proudly might a Celtic hero declare:—"my hand never injured the weak, nor did my steel touch the feeble in arms. O Oscar! bend the strong in arms, but spare the feeble hand. Be thou a storm of many tides against the foes of thy people; but like the gale that moves the grass, to those who ask thine aid. So Trenmor lived—so Trathal was—such has Fingal been. My arm was the support of the injured; the weak rested behind the lightning of my steel."‡ More examples could be given of these just and generous sentiments of the bards, who, while they could determine war, had also authority to command peace, and denounce its disturbers. Deeds of cruelty, or the indulgence in a spirit of revenge was abhorrent to bardic principle, at least before the profession became mercenary, and parasitical.

"If we allow a Celt to have been formed of the same materials with a Greek and Roman, his religion ought certainly to have made him a better man, and a greater hero."

Some have maintained, that there were no Druidesses. Among the Gaël, celibacy was certainly not a rule; for we hear of the bards having wives,—Ossian among others. The Isle of Sena, now Isle de Sain[ts], off the coast of France, contained a college of Druidesses, who, like him of Skerr, had power over the winds, which they were in the practice of selling to credulous mariners. These unfortunate damsels fell at last victims to the sanguinary system of persecution, to which the votaries of bardism were every where subjected. Conan, Duke of Bretagne, in the fervour of his zeal, committed them to the flames.§ Those who acted so conspicuous a part, when in desperation they defended themselves against Suetonius and his legions in Anglesea, were most probably the wives of the British Druids. Arrayed in black garments, they ran wildly to and fro, with dishevelled hair and drawn swords, forcing back, like the Cimbric females of old, those who were retreating. "They are for this looked upon with detestation by those who at Eton, or Westminster, imbibe the notion that every thing is good which a Greek or Roman could do; who triumph with Æneas over the unfortunate Turnus, or glory with the Romans over the fall of Carthage. But if those women had been Roman matrons defending the capitol, we should never have heard the last of their gallantry and patriotism."*

Old poems show that the bard had no partiality for a single life; and the Irish, by the ilbreacht laws, regulated the price of his wife's, as well as his own dress. in fact the succession was hereditary.

Before dismissing the subject of religious belief, which gave so peculiar a character of wild sublimity to their poetical compositions, the settled conviction that the spirits of their ancestors "came to the ear of rest," and frequently appeared to men, acting as guardian angels, must be noticed as having had a strong effect on the sensitive mind, and furnishing to the bards a subject of the grandest description. It was a topic not to be overlooked by bard nor druid, in addressing themselves to their countrymen. The system of morality was adapted for this world, and, to please the great, and secure the approbation of their immortal countrymen, was all else they expected. The appearance of Crugal, with his melancholy presages, is an extraordinary effort of the poet. "Dim and in tears he stood, and stretched his pale hand over the hero. Faintly he raised his feeble voice, like the gale of the reedy Lego. My ghost, O Connal! is on my native hills, but my corse is on the sands of Ullin. Thou shalt never talk with Crugal, or find his lone steps in the heath. I am light as the blast of Cromla, and I move like the shadow of mist. Connal, son of Colgar, I see the dark cloud of death. It hovers over the plain of Lena. The sons of green Erin shall fall,—remove from the field of ghosts?" This was not a dream, but the supposed actual appearance of the fallen warrior. At times their appearance was wishfully invoked; for the Celts seemed to have had no feelings of dislike to such meetings. How sturdily Cuchullin steeled himself against the argument of Calmar, who had appeared to give him a friendly warning, against the perils of the approaching war! He would not be persuaded by him; but, in rejecting the admonition, he gave him the ever grateful meed of praise, which sent him off in his blast with joy. Departed bards were pleased with earthly music, and would come to listen, while the harpers were performing. Agandecca, before the engagement with Swaran, mourns the approaching death of the people, a circumstance which coincides with the wailing of the Bean-sith, so well known to give presage of family bereavements, in Ireland, where its existence is not doubted.

The entertaining Mrs. Grant of Laggan gives in her Superstitions of the Highlanders, many interesting and affecting anecdotes of their belief in supernatural appearances.

So highly esteemed was the profession of a bard, that those most distinguished for rank were proud to be enrolled in the fraternity; sometimes, even those of royal lineage were found in it. The possession of poetical genius entitled one to claim the daughter of nobility as his consort, and the alliance was deemed honourable among Celts and Scandinavians.† Some of the continental Celtic kings are mentioned as poets. In Wales, we find Aneurin, a prince of the Ottadini, Llywarch hen, and many others, who gloried perhaps more in their bardic qualifications, than in their nobility of birth. Among the Gaël, Ossian stands conspicuous ; Fingal is celebrated for his poetical talent, and more of the chiefs might be enumerated, as exercising the bardic spirit : indeed, the national taste led the Celts to deliver themselves, especially on matters of serious import, in a magniloquent and poetic strain.* The bards were, it is true, like other professions, hereditary ; but this rule must have been modified by circumstances. One with no ear for music, or soul for poetry, could not take the place of his father ; and we know besides, that aspirants were admitted. We are assured, that an irreproachable character was indispensable, and a personal defect would incapacitate one from entering the fraternity ; hence they were a class of superior appearance, while their consciousness of importance gave them a commanding air.

Extraordinary honours were paid to the bards, and they enjoyed many important privileges. They were exempted from all tax and tribute, and were not compelled to serve in the army, although not prevented if they chose to do so ; their persons were inviolable, their houses were sanctuaries, and their lands and flocks were carefully protected, even amid the ravages of war. In the latter ages of their prosperity, ample farms were given to many in perfect freehold, and they were entitled to live, almost solely at the public expense. The Welsh laws of Hwyl Dda gave the bards and their disciples, liberty and free maintenance. The various privileges and immunities, enjoyed by the different classes, were strictly regulated by the Irish, who divided the order into seven gradations. The first was entitled when travelling, to a horse and a greyhound, and two men as attendants for five days ; he was then entitled to be kept for one day, where he might stop, be supplied with all necessaries, and rewarded by a gift of two heifers or a large cow, for his recitations or other duties. The second was entertained in like manner, for three days, and was furnished with three attendants when travelling. As a gratuity, he received three cows. The third had four attendants provided for him on a journey, and his reward was from one to five cows, according to the character of his recitations or compositions. The fourth was allowed six attendants to accompany him, for eight days. The fifth, accompanied by eight students in poetry, was entertained for ten days, and was rewarded by five cows, and ten heifers. The sixth was entertained for fifteen days, having a retinue of twelve students ; and twenty cows were his reward. The seventh, or Ollamh, was entitled to be freely and amply entertained for a month, and had on all occasions twenty-four attendants—his reward for the services he might render, was twenty cows. The last four, we are told, were specially protected. Considering their number, and the erratic lives they led, the contributions they levied were by no means light. Keating says, that by law they were empowered to live six months at the public expense, and it was therefore the custom to quarter themselves throughout the country, from All hallow tide until May, from which they were designated as Cleir na shean chain, the songsters of the ancient tax. A wandering life seems to have been congenial to their feelings, from a desire to disseminate their works, as well as provide for themselves, and they believed that their public utility fully justified this practice of ‘sorning’ which was afterwards so grave a charge against them. “The world,” says an ancient bard, “is the country, and mankind the relations of every genuine poet.” The northern Scalds were held in equal esteem, and enjoyed extraordinary privileges. Among the Welsh, the institutions of bardism became ultimately much refined and complicated, although there were originally only the three primitive classes as in Gaul; and they regulated the duties and immunities of the different individuals with great precision, by express laws which existed from an unknown age, but were first imbodyed in a written code, by the famous Hwyl Dda in the 10th century. Besides enjoying the same privileges, as those among the Gaël, respecting their persons, property, and domiciles, and being permitted to solicit a largess or gift, by an appropriate poem, tendered without troublesome importunity, which no doubt was often successful, the following perquisites were allowed them.—The Court bard who was the eighth officer in the Royal household, and sat at festivals next to the comptroller, received on his appointment, a harp and other presents from their majesties; the King provided him with a horse, and all his apparel which was formed of wool; the Queen supplying him with that which was of linen. In war, he received the most valuable animal of the spoil, after the leader had got his share, and this was for singing the accustomed war-song to rouse the courage of the troops when in battle. At the Christmas, Easter, and Whitsunday banquets, he received from the Queen the harp on which he performed, and had the comptroller’s garment as his fee. On making his Clera or professional tour, he was entitled to double fees. Whoever did him an injury was mulcted in six cows and 120 pence; and for his slaughter, 126 cows were exacted. He paid as Gabr merch, the fine on the marriage of his daughter, 120 pence; for her Cowyll or nuptial gift, one pound and 120 pence; and for her eywedi or dowry, three pounds. His mortuary or heriot was three pounds.

The chief bard of the district was the tenth officer in the household, and sat next the judge of the palace. An insult offered to him, subjected the offender to a fine of six cows and 120 pence, and 126 cows were the expiation of his death. When a musician had advanced so far in his art, as to drop his Telyn rawn, or hair-strung harp, he paid this chief bard twenty-four pence; and every woman on her first marriage, gave a like sum. His daughter’s marriage fine was 120 pence, and his heriot was as much. These were the only two bards who performed before the sovereign; when desired, the latter was to give two songs,—one in praise of the Almighty, the other extolling the king’s virtues and exploits, recounting all the famous deeds of his ancestors; the former then sang a third.

In 1100, Gruffudd ap Cynan, or Gryffyth ap Conan, finding the establishment rather disorganized, called a congress of bards to which those of Ireland were invited; and with their assistance, he not only improved the music of the principality, but reformed the order, and introduced many judicious alterations in the rules of government. By these “statute privileges for the profession of vocal song, and for instrumental music of the harp and of the crwth,” the bard was to enjoy five free acres; and the chief district bard was to receive at each of the three great festivals, and on occasion of royal nuptials, forty pence and a suitable gift; at weddings the fee was settled at twenty-four pence. The bard next in gradation had also forty pence for the festivals and royal marriage, but only twelve pence for attendance at weddings of others. The next in degree was allowed twenty-four pence on the first two occasions, and eightpence for the latter; while the two lower had twelve pence, and sixpence on the first occasion; and the lowest in the profession did not officiate at weddings, but his immediate superior did so, and received sixpence. The genealogist got but twopence for a pedigree, except he accompanied the bardic cavalcade on the triennial circuit, when the fee was doubled. The Clerwr, or itinerant bards were allowed a penny from every plough-land in the district, and this humble income was secured to them, by a power to distrain for payment. There was a peculiar amusement afforded by the bards of Wales to the company assembled at their great meetings, which was a source of some honourable emolument to an individual. The most witty and satiric of the first order was appointed to an office called Cyff-cler, in which he was to be the butt of all the jests and sarcasms of the others, which he was patiently to hear, and afterwards reply to in extemporaneous verses, without betraying any heat or loss of temper. For supporting this rather unpleasant character, he was rewarded by a gratuity of eighty pence, and the doublet next to the best which a bridegroom possessed.

The heavy eric or compensation exacted for the manslaughter of a bard, and for insulting or wronging him, is an indication of the regard in which he was held.* It would indeed have been reckoned a grievous crime, to put one of these public monitors to death whatever his offence might have been, and some individuals have had their names carried down with the stigma of having avenged themselves on members of this privileged class. In the "Fall of Tura," is an affecting tale, which shows, that the most savage disposition would relax its fury, in the case of a bard. It is thus given in translation by the talented compiler. "The bard with his harp goes trembling to the door. His steps are like the warrior of many years, when he bears, mournful to the tomb, the son of his son. The threshold is slippery with Crigal's wandering blood—across it the aged falls. The spear of Duarma over him is raised, but the dying Crigal tells,—it is the bard." So infuriated was the chief, that on a passing dog he wreaked the vengeance he intended for a human being, had he not been the "voice of song."†

The English settlers sometimes massacred the Irish clergy; but it does not appear that they committed the same atrocities on the bards. One of the Triads commemorates the three heinous strokes of the battle-axe; they fell on the heads of Aneurin and Colydan, who were bards, and on Avaon, who was the son of the famed Taliesen.

The estimation in which the bards were held, was equally the cause and effect of their extraordinary influence. They were the indispensable followers of a Celtic army, and members of the establishment of Celtic nobility at home and abroad. Struck with this fact, they were viewed by many as insatiable parasites, rather than necessary attendants.

Their utility was extensive, and as in the pastoral and predatory state of society, there were alternate seasons for active exertion and inactivity, the bard was not less useful in solacing his master in the hours of retirement, and entertaining his company at their assemblies, than in aiding the military efforts of the clan in war. He conveyed information of warlike movements over the land, and laboured as hard with his poetic weapons to vanquish an enemy, as others with their sword ; and his was the grateful task to extol the heroes of victory, singing loudly to his harp at the head of the returning host.

Their eager spirits often urged them to mix in the battle ; but they were usually stationed where their war songs could be most advantageously poured out, and where they could best observe the gallant bearing of their friends. Care was always taken so to place the Sealds; and should the fight have been one at sea, which was of frequent occurrence with these "sons of the waves," they looked attentively from the land, protected by a guard, and qualifying themselves to perpetuate in song, the prowess of the warriors. It was no slight stimulus for such men to know, that their deeds were marked by the bard who was to chronicle their valour in lasting verse, and thus convey their names with fame to late posterity.

When Iain Lom stood on the battlements of Inverlochy castle, marking the circumstances of the battle raging below, he was taunted by Montrose for having avoided participation in the conflict. "Had I," says he, with somewhat of the pride of profession, "mixed in the engagement, how could I have marked the many deeds of valour so nobly achieved, and had I fallen, who would have sung your praise?" The heroic Bruce carried with him his bard to celebrate the heroism of the Scots at Bannockburn ; and Edward of England likewise took with him a rhyming monk of Scarborough, in the same capacity, that he might delight the nation with the glorious account of the annihilation of the rebel Scots. The issue of that dire collision would probably have left us no specimen of his talents, had he not fallen into the victor's hands, who made the poet sing the praise of those whose fall he never dreamt of mourning for. Poor Richard Bastwick did his best in the doggerel Latin of the times, which has been rendered into English of a similar cast. Dolefully did the bard invoke the nine.

"With barren verse, this rhyme I make, .
Bewailing, whilst this theme I take," &c.

He nevertheless describes in graphic, though uncouth language, the deeds of strength and valour, which he had witnessed.

Another bard with more congenial feeling, celebrated the whole acts and deeds of his sovereign the Bruce, in verse elegant for the age. Archdeacon Barbour of Aberdeen, no doubt, had the feeling of a Celtic bard, and had in his eye the Gaëlic duans ; for he was well acquainted with the exploits of "Fin Mac Cowl" and his compatriots.

The above mishap at Bannockburn, is similar to what befell the Earl of Argyle at Aultacholahan, when he took the field in 1597, against the Catholic lords. In confidence of success, and greatly pleased with his bard's prophecy, that he should play his harp in the castle of Slains ere the victorious army returned, he was proudly taken along when

" Mac Callain-mor went fra' the west
Wi' mony a bow and bran';
An' vow'd to waste as he thought best,
The Earl o' Huntly's lan.'"

On his defeat, however, the bard was made prisoner, and verified his claim to the faculty of fore-knowledge, much to the delight of the confederates and Lord Errol, who gladly afforded him the opportunity.

Before the chiefs in the Highlands began to think it unnecessary to number a bard among their personal retainers, either from a consideration that their actions no longer required the tribute of so antiquated a recorder, or by an unavoidable departure from the former simplicity of living, finding it expedient to add the bard's farm, like that of the piper and other hereditary officers in their establishment, to the rent roll, he was one of the most respected in the number. The chiefs of Clan-Ranald retained a bard until about a hundred years ago, when Lachlan Mac Nial Mhuireach, the 17th in regular descent, lost his farm, and naturally dropt, as useless, the profession by which he and his ancestors had so long held it. Iain Breac MacLeod of Dunvegan, who died in 1693, was perhaps the last chief who upheld the ancient state by numbering in his retinue, bard, harper, piper, jester, and the full number of what has been with an attempt at wit, designated the tail. Dr Mac Pherson mentions one who kept two bards, and they held a seminary for the instruction of students. About 1690, John Glass and John Macdonald, the bards of two lairds in different parts of the country, met by appointment in Lochaber, to vindicate in a poetical contest their own excellence and their chief's honour; but the result of this duel is not related. Such challenges were not unfrequent, and it was a well-known practice for the Highlanders to make small bets as to who could repeat the most of the Sean dana, or old poems.

The bards who exercised so beneficial an influence on their countrymen while alive, rendered the necessary and becoming services to the dead. The mode of sepulture is well known; "the grey stones of the dead," half hid in the moss of ages, and the funeral hillocks and cairns appear on all sides, where the industry of man has not laid the heath under the operation of the plough—the striking monuments of ages far distant, but now the useless record of those who were honoured in their day and generation. The stones of memorial were raised amid the united voices of all around, and the plaintive music of the harpers who gave out the funeral chant.

" Bend forward from your clouds, ghosts of my fathers, bend! lay by the red terror of your course and receive the falling chief; let his robe of mist be near, his spear that is formed of a cloud. Place a half-extinguished meteor by his side, in the form of the hero's sword. And O! let his countenance be lovely, that his friends may delight in his presence. Bend from your clouds, ghosts of my fathers, bend!" In the same poem is the affecting lament for the beauteous Darthula. " Daughter of Colla, thou art low!" said Cairbar's hundred bards; "silence is at the blue streams of Selma, for Trathul's race have failed. When wilt thou rise in thy beauty, first of Erin's maids? Thy sleep is long in the tomb, and the morning distant far. The sun shall not come to thy bed, and say, awake Darthula ! awake thou first of women ! the wind of spring is abroad. The flowers shake their heads on the green hills, the woods wave their opening leaves. Retire, O sun, the daughter of Colla is asleep, she will not come forth in her beauty, she will not move in the steps of her loveliness."

The duty of performing the obsequies of a hero seems to have been imperative, although his life might not have offered those traits of character which so well suited the bard's eulogium. They however did justice to his memory, neither suppressing any allusion to his vices, nor refusing the praise he might deserve. A chief had broken his oath. " His tomb was raised, but what could the bards say ? Manos remembered not his words. When asked what he had done with his oaths ? ' Alas ! he said, where I found, I left them.' Manos, thou wert generous, but wrathful and bloody was thy darkened soul."

It has already been noticed, that without the funeral dirge, the spirit would be subjected to wander in forlorn suffering about the place where the body had been laid : it was therefore a matter of the utmost solicitude, that this should be performed, and the ceremonial was observed in the Highlands to the days of our fathers. It is now discontinued as a vocal tribute, but the 'Lament' of the piper played in front of the funeral procession, is a most characteristic substitute. Many remains of the Coronach music are believed to be still preserved, and it is reasonably supposed, that the species of piobaireachd appropriate to the melancholy event, has in many cases retained in the urlar or groundwork, the spirit of the original dirge.*

The following detail of the ceremonial at the interment of an old Celtic hero, as given by the Irish authorities, is conformable to what is otherwise related. The Druid first performed those rites which may be called religious ; the Senachie then repeated the eulogium of the hero departed, detailing the illustrious descent and personal titles of the deceased. He was followed by the Filea, who recited the Caoine or funeral song, which having been adapted to music by the Oirfidighe or musician, was sung by the Racaraide or rhapsodist, who was joined by the wailing notes of all present.†

The practice of Caoining at funerals is still practised by the native Irish, but since the suppression and neglect of the order of bards, the mourners in Ireland have been mercenary females, generally of advanced years, and their hackneyed or extemporaneous lamentations are not particularly creditable to the art. They, however, tenaciously hold to this rite, whether in Ireland, or elsewhere, and it is evident that there is no Christianity in it. Take a specimen. " O son of Connal, why didst thou die ? royal, noble, learned youth ; valiant, active, warlike, eloquent ! why didst thou die ? Oigh ! oin-oigh !" Here follows the Uilaluia or chorus, first gone half through, poured forth in the wildest notes of extreme grief, being indeed the chief part of the performance, and as may be supposed not the most regular nor musical. " Alas ! alas ! he who sprung from nobles of the race of Heber, warlike chief ! O men of Connal. O noble youth, why didst thou die ? Alas !

* Pat. Macdonald on the influence of poetry and music on the Highlanders, prefixed to his admirable collection of their vocal music.

alas!" The semi-chorus again is given, and then the full orgoll. "Alas! alas! he who was in possession of flowery meads, verdant hills, lowing herds, fruitful fields, flowing rivers and grazing flocks—rich—gallant. Lord of the golden vale, why did he die? Alas! alas!" Uilalua, &c. "Alas! alas! why didst thou die, O son of Connal, before the spoils of victory by thy warlike arm were brought into the hall of the nobles, and thy shield with the ancients? Alas! alas! Uila—luia, luia, luia, lu, lu, ucht o ong," &c., all which had the most thrilling effect. After the interment, the bard was formerly accustomed to perform the Elegy or Connthal sitting on the grave, which mark of affectionate respect like the Christian services for the dead in the Romish Church, was repeated at the new and full moon, for several months.* The Scriptural lamentations, as that over Saul and Jonathan, are of no whit more religious character.

Adverting to the classification of the members of the bardic brotherhood, it will be seen at first, simple and vigorous; subsequently undergoing alterations and subdivisions. The Druidical order was originally divided into three classes, which are distinguished as the Druids proper, who were the priests and legislators; the Vates, Ovates, Euvates or Eubages and the Bards. The duties of the first have been briefly referred to, and a general view of the bardic office has been presented, but scanty as our knowledge respecting it is, a few more particulars may be given to improve a picture, unfortunately but meagre.

The Vates have been considered by some writers, an order inferior to the bards, and by others to have held an intermediate place in the triad, but many regard the term as simply denoting a more advanced novitiate. "The Euvates," says Marcellinus, "more deeply considering nature, made attempts to discover the highest arcana, and lay open its most secret workings, and amongst these the Druids," from which it would seem that they were bardic aspirants for druidic preferment. Lucan classes them with the bards, but allows them superiority to a simple poet. It is very probable that a claim to a prophetic spirit was the cause of distinction. All three were accustomed to compose and to sing, but all did not claim the faculty of foreknowledge. Vates, which in Latin is a prophet or interpreter, is a word no doubt borrowed from the 'barbarians,' and the Gaëlic Faid signifying the same, appears to be the original word. Dr Smith however thinks Euvates may be Eu-phaisde, promising youths.

To ascertain the etymology of names, often clears up the obscurity which envelopes a subject: on this occasion, the attempt is more curious than useful. The general opinion is, that the appellation Druid is derived from the name of the oak tree, which in Greek is Drus, Derw in Welsh, Duir in Irish, Dair in Gaëlic, Druith in the Cornish. Considering the similarity of these words, the estimation which the Druids, like others, had for the oak, and the veneration they paid to the Mistletoe, the All-heal which grew thereon, it has appeared a satisfactory origin for their name, and the Welsh bards of later days have on the tree-system, raised a very ingenious allegory. The letters dd, having the sound of th, form a common termination, so Derwydd, is the trunk of an oak; bardd, from bar, the top, is significant of the full grown branches, and Ovydd, from ov, raw, pure, indicates the saplings. Sir Samuel Meyrick gives less fanciful derivations—Der, superior; wydd, instructor; and o-wydd, subordinate instructor. In Whiter's method of determining the affinity of words, by the consonants as radices, we see the same consonants running through these words; the tr, pervading a series of terms, indicates activity, industry, improvement; and dr or tr were connected with the mystical T, a Druidical and Pythagorean symbol. The above laborious and profound etymologist, alluding to the Gaëlie “draonaich” so well illustrated by Coiremonadh,* as intimating a diligent cultivator, pronounces Druid to signify a teacher.† The appellation is undoubtedly Celtic, originating with that people, and not imposed by Greeks or others. The sense in which it is still used is that of an artist, a learned person, or vulgarly a magician, and it is the word in the Scripture translation for the wise men or priests. It is equally applied in Teutonic languages to denote a dexterous individual or enchanter.

The word Bard has been pronounced insoluble. It is uncertain whether the peculiar chant, called barditus, is the origin of the term, or its derivative. Bardachd in Gaëlic is poetry and history, literally the bard's work; bardae-th in Welsh is also bardism.

The profession has given names to many localities, as Monadh-bhaird, ach na' m bard, Tulloch-bardin, &c., and respectable families may trace their origin to those distinguished poets. There are many ancient charters in which different individuals are designated, le bard and le harper; the Bards, Bairds, MacBairds, and Wards are their descendants; in Ireland and Argyle are the Mae Faids, and Mac Faidzeans. Throughout the principality are numerous names indicating the residences and haunts of the different branches, as Tre'r Beirdd, the bard's villages. Croes y Beirdd, the bard's cross. Tre'r and Bod Drûdan, the villages, and the houses of the Druids. Bod-Ovyr, the Ovyd's dwelling, &c. &c. The Baile-bhairds in the Highlands and Harper's lands in the low-country, are memorials of the golden age of Celtic minstrelsy.

A sketch of the personal appearance of the different characters, seems an appropriate accessory to a detail of their duties. Bodily imperfection being sufficient for exclusion from the order, it gave an imposing specimen of the Gaulish race, and their dignities were marked by suitable distinctions in dress. Their garments differed from others in amplitude: they were “the wearers of long robes.” The costume, as may be supposed, was of a peculiar form, calculated for the attraction of notice, as well as the becoming denotation of rank. The beard which the Celtic nations always shaved, the Druidic officials wore long, and the hair of the head they cut close. The robes flowing to the heel; whilst those of the commonalty, and even of the nobles, fell only to the knee, as sufficiently distinguished the superiority of the order, as the episcopal costume marks the sacerdotal degree. White, denoting purity and truth, was the appropriate colour of the druid's robes.

In Cathlava one of the poems translated by Dr Smith, is a picture of Sean'ear, a druid, then a subject of persecution, but believed to possess supernatural acquirements, and consulted as an oracle by those, who, like the Roman general, might be disposed to say, "I scorn them, yet they awe me." Under the awful shade of his oak he finds him, leaning on his own trembling staff. His head of age stoops to the ground, his grey beard hangs down on his breast, and his dim eyes are fixed on the earth. But his soul is mixed with the spirits of air, and his converse is with ghosts. 'What seest thou of my love,' said Ronan, 'what seest thou of Sulmina ?'" The figure was that of a solitary and prescribed anchorite, who submitted to his evil destiny, doubtless for his conscience' sake, like many fellow devotees. In the original, the description is singularly striking.

"An crith-thaice ri luirg fein,
Fui' gheug dhoilleir dharaich,
Lan ogluidheachd :—a chrom aomadh,
'S fheasag aosda sios mu bhrollach.
-air lar tha shuil a dearcadh
Ach anam ann co'radh thaibhse."

The figurative and laconic reply is very characteristic.

" Macan an fas cruaidh,
Barca, thar cuan, na dean;
Shuilmhine !'s cruaidh leam do glaodh,
A 'taomadh air tiunn gun fhurtachd !?"*

In happier ages, the raiment was an object of careful attention among the Celtic people, with whom every thing was precisely regulated; even the colours of the robes were apportioned by invariable law. In Wales, the bards wore a dress of sky-blue, the emblem of peace and fidelity, and that of the Ovydd was a vivid green, the prevailing colour of verdant nature. The Awenydd, or disciple, showed in his vestment, as an escutcheon of pretence, the three colours, white, blue, and green. When officiating at religious ceremonies, the bard had a cowl attached to the cloak, like that worn by the Capuchin friars; it was called Barddgwecwll, and is the bardo-cucullus of the Romans. The Druidesses are described by Strabo, as arrayed in white garments, fastened with girdles and brazen clasps. Among the Gaël, a very remarkable difference prevailed with respect to the vesture. A variety of colours was introduced, and the number which the gradations in society were permitted to display, was regulated by a prevailing rule. It was a striking mark of the estimation in which the bards were held, that they were allowed six colours, being two more than the nobility, and only one less than royalty itself. This was the well known law in Ireland, and there can be no doubt it was equally observed by the Gaël of Albion. In Meyrick's splendid work on British Costume, coloured prints of the various classes are given, among which we remark the two figures found near Autun, one of which carries the "slat an drui' achd," or ensign of authority, and the other bears the "cornan," or crescent, emblematic of the "cead rai re ;" the first quarter of the moon.† The robe is fastened by a brooch on the left shoulder.

Sumptuary laws were not forgotten in the Brehon code. In A. D. 192, as Irish Annals inform us, such enactments settled among other matters, the value of a bodkin of refined silver for the king or a bard at thirty heifers. The clothes of a poet and his wife cost three milch cows, and the raiment of an Ollamh, and of an Anshruith, the next in rank, five cows.

Some proof is found that the Cochal or upper garment which was evidently, from the name, of coarse texture, was fringed and ornamented with needle-work.* The full dress is described as consisting of the Cathanas, cota or body covering, and the Triuse, the gathered or girded up portion.

The shoes were wooden, and of a pentagonal form,† and an Ollamh was entitled to wear the barred or cap of honour. Thus in all respects did the bardic order appear strikingly different from others. On the extinction of druidism, it is probable that the peculiarity of costume was abandoned, the Christian missionaries naturally discouraging a distinction, which was calculated to prolong a reverence for the professors of a pagan creed.

The course of bardie study was long and arduous. So rigid was the term of probation, that the education of a student in the science of druidism, was not completed in a shorter period than perhaps twenty years, during which time he was obliged to commit to memory, a prodigious number of verses; twenty thousand by the lowest computation, but Chambray the Celtic professor at Paris, says the number for those of the highest class was not less than sixty thousand.

In later ages, as we learn from Irish authorities, the time occupied in acquiring the necessary bardic instruction was twelve years, three of which were devoted to each of the four principal branches of poetry. Another writer gives them sixteen or twenty years to complete their education, and he tells us he has "seen them where they kept schools, ten in some one chamber, grovelling upon straw, their books at their noses;" and although their seminary was thus rude, those men were well grounded in the classics, and invoked the muses with great success. The accommodation, it is presumed, was not in all cases so homely. We can scarcely suppose that the practice described by Martin, adopted by some in the Highlands to produce inspiration, was very usual. They would shut both doors and windows, wrap their plaids about their heads, and lie with their eyes closed, and a large stone on their bellies, for a whole day!‡ Poets are sometimes sufficiently eccentric.

If a vassal obtained permission from his lord to exercise a poetical or musical talent, he would, according to his genius, obtain rank by the courtesy of Cambria, but no one, whatever his merit might be, was classed among the bards, except he went through the regular curriculum. There were three individuals of no little celebrity otherwise, who were in this way unqualified;—the great kings Arthur and Cadwalon, and Rhyhawd ap Morgant.

It is much to be regretted, that the Scottish Gaél adhered so faithfully to the druidic injunction, not to commit their knowledge to writing. Those of the sister island were haply less obstinate, and have preserved many of the Breith-neimhe or laws of their native judges. Those which relate to the bards have been collected with praiseworthy care, and given to the world; and although they are likely to show considerable innovation on the primitive institutions, upon the whole, we may believe the regulations in both countries were not materially different.

The order presented three principal classes, in which were several gradations, viz.:—The Ollamh re dan, graduate of song, or bard properly so called; the Seanachadh, or historian and genealogist; and the Brehon, Breith, or judge, which last, in the eleventh century, was separated from the bardic establishment.

The following were the gradations in the order of Fileas or bards, and the qualifications required in each.

The Fochlucan, the youngest student, was required to be able to repeat twenty poems, or historical tales.

The Mac Fuirme was required to have forty tales, any of which he should be able to repeat when desired.

The Dos was qualified by being perfect in fifty poems or stories.

The Canaith, although a degree higher, was not obliged to learn more than the Dos.

The Cli, whose duties are not given in the authority we have consulted.

The Anra, or Anshruith, had to commit to memory one hundred and seventy-five compositions on different subjects.

Lastly, the Ollamh or Doctor, who was the bard, the others being novices. He was required to possess a perfect knowledge of the four principal branches of poetry, and be able to repeat three hundred and fifty pieces.*

The Aois dana preceded even the Ollamh, and sat with the chiefs in the circle. This class, however, does not appear earlier than the seventeenth century.

The Welsh had a division of bards no less complicated; the department of each class being pointed out with tedious minuteness, a comparatively modern alteration.† With them there were six classes of bards, three being poets, and three musicians.

The poetical bards were first, historical or antiquarian, who sometimes mixed prophecy with their effusions. Their duty was to sing in praise of virtue—to censure vice and immorality, and it was specially permitted them to address the clergy and married ladies, upon fitting subjects and in becoming language.

The second class, who were domestic bards, exhorted the people to a strict practice of the social virtues, and celebrated those who were patterns to others for their upright conduct and patriotism.

The third order, who were denominated the Cleirwr Arwyddveirdd, or heraldic bards, with their other duties, were assigned the composition of poems on amusing and jocular subjects.

After passing through the gradations of the Awen, or muse, the title of bard was conferred, and, retaining the ancient claim of superiority, the addition of 'Ynny's Prydain was always given.

The activity of Welsh genius led them to remodel and refine the bardic institutions, with the same care as they have cultivated their language, so that in modern times it must exhibit a very different aspect from what it originally displayed. There were eight orders of musicians; four of which only were admitted to be bards; the Harper, Crwther, and Singer, were regularly invested poets, the Pencerdd being their chief. The four inferior orders were, the Piper, the Taborer, the Juggler, and the performers on the humble Crwth with three strings; the fee of these minstrels was a penny each, and they were to stand during their performance.

The Irish Oirnidigh, or musical order, was in like manner classified, taking their appellations from the instruments on which they performed, of which there were a considerable variety. The following enumeration is given.

The Ollamh re ceol, or Doctor of music, presided over the band consisting of the Crutairagh who played on the cruit or fiddle. The Ciotaigh. The Tiomponaich, who played on the horn; and the Cuilleanach.

These musicians were of much consequence as a constituent portion of the Fileacht, and being good vocalists, after the introduction of Christianity, they added much to the effect of the band of choristers for which many abbeys were famed in both islands. It may be observed, that as the Welsh held the harp to be the indispensable instrument of a gentleman, so we find many instances of bishops and abbots excelling in their skilful playing. We have a curious intimation in the venerable Bede anent the harp; he describes an individual, who at an entertainment being unable to perform on the instrument which was always handed round, slunk away ashamed of his deficiency. Want of a musical taste was accounted an indication of a bad disposition.

The decline and fall of an institution which existed so long, was so widely diffused, and, after the cessation of its direct influence, left so deep an impression on the national character, is a subject of much interest, and affords ample matter for reflection. Like all human establishments, it is seen to advance from simplicity and usefulness, to refinement, corruption and decay. The epoch of Christianity was the commencement of druidic decadence; but with the pertinacity which animates the professors of proscribed opinions, the ancient system was clung to for several subsequent centuries, and indeed where full conversion was found impossible, the apostles and missionaries accepted the profession of the Christian faith, with the retention of many of the established superstitions, wisely considering it better to accomplish the great end by judicious conciliation of long-riveted prejudices. When the Pagan priesthood was annihilated, the bardic branch, as an order of acknowledged utility, retained its place in Celtic society. Many who were touched with zealous fervour in the true religion, became clergymen, and were not the less pious, in that they continued to exercise their poetic talents, and solace themselves with the melody of the harp.* So long were the Welsh in abandoning the institutes of druidism, that Prince Hwell, who died in 1171, invokes the Deity to protect his worship in the groves and circles. This is sufficiently curious; but it is still more so to find that a small society still existing, allege that they are the descendants, and possess a knowledge of the ancient mysteries of the druids, which has been transmitted purely, by a succession of the initiated, who could explain many of the mysterious triads, &c., were they at liberty to divulge their knowledge.*

The Highland traditions are copious on the subject of the fall of the druids, which, from the particulars related, was not a sacrifice to the cause of Christianity.. The frequent wars in which the Scottish tribes were engaged, increased the power of the Feargubreith, while it lessened that of the druid, who had long been the arbiter of all transactions. Treunmor, grandfather of Fin Mac Cumhal, was appointed commander of the Caledonian forces by general election, on which the druids sent Garmal Mac Tarno requiring the chief to lay down his office, with which order he had the fortitude to refuse compliance. On this a civil war immediately ensued, which after much bloodshed, ended in the discomfiture of the druids, whose resistance was so obstinate, that few survived the desperate contest. The bards, who it may be readily believed were prone to flatter the powerful, and avenge real or imaginary wrongs by the sharpness of invective, being no longer under the salutary control of their superiors, the druids, became exceedingly presumptuous, abusing their ample privileges, and drawing on themselves severe chastisement. The Irish legends detail the circumstances of their expulsion twice before the celebrated council of Drumceat, held in 580, where the whole order was doomed to proscription for their oppressive exactions, having gone so far as to demand the golden brooch which fastened the plaid or cloak of Aodh, the king of Ulster! The good Columba, the apostle of the Highlands, left his charge in the college of Ii, for the purpose of interposing his influence to avert the destruction of an order, which, under proper regulations, was so well suited to the genius of his countrymen, and he was successful in softening very materially the severity of their sentence. The bards were on this occasion reduced to the number of 200, one only being allowed to each of the provincial kings, and lord of a cantred, and he was enjoined for no cause to prostitute his talents in flattering the vanity of the great, or covering vice by adulatory strains. He was to compose and sing to the glory of God, honour of the country, praise of heroes and females, and exaltation of his patron and followers. There was evident necessity for restriction ; the numbers having so greatly increased, that they were estimated at no less than one third of the population ! The propensity which those who were so highly favoured, and possessed such influence, had, like most others, to exceed moderation, required a check. Cupidity, it has been observed, is an inherent passion ; and the possession of much, begets a desire for more. The bards subjected themselves to much obloquy and dislike by their arrogance and neglect of their proper duties, which eventually led to sundry curtailments of their personal immunities.

In Wales, they were not less inclined to abuse their privileges. Several regulations had been passed previous to the time of Gruffudd ab Cynan, who, much concerned to find the bardic profession in disorder, held a congress of all who had any knowledge of the science throughout Wales and Ireland, when a great reformation was accomplished ; the three classes of poets, heralds and musicians, being then instituted, whereas the offices were formerly held by one individual, and they were forbidden to demand the prince's horse, hawk, or greyhound, or any property from others above a reasonable value.

There is a curious account of this notable convention given in an ancient MS. preserved in the library of the Welsh school, London, from which it appears there were four chief judges who decided, with the approbation of the audience, as to forming the song, preserving it in memory, and performing it correctly. The names of the four were Alban ab Cynan, Rhydderch the bald, Matholwch the Gwythelian (Gaél) and Alav the songster. Mwrchan, Lord of Ireland, was umpire, and by his power confirmed the proceedings at Glen Achlach.* The judicious improvements introduced at this time, were the means of restoring bardism to a sound and flourishing state, which continued until the death of Llewelyn the last prince in 1282. From the strictness of these coercive laws, it is evident the bards were a little unruly at times. If any one left a party for which he had been engaged, offered an insult to a female, &c., he was fined, imprisoned, and his circuit fees for a proportionate time, were forfeited to the church. In fine, although Edward the First actually carried a harper with him to the Holy Land, he subsequently considered the bards a dangerous body ; and although they were retained at the courts of his successors, along with minstrels, whose proper occupation was originally that of historians, yet they certainly gave at times great offence by their freedom and assumption : hence such enactments were passed as one in 1315, to restrain them from resorting in unreasonable numbers to the houses of the great ; and another by Edward III., which provided that bards who perverted the imagination by romantic tales, and those who were tale-tellers, and seduced the lieges by false reports, should not be entertained in the mansions of the great, or harboured by the people. This is like the decree passed to repress the insatiable curiosity of the ancient Gauls, who were the greatest known encouragers of those who could amuse them with stories—compelling strangers to stop even on the highways, and entertain them with some recital, in consequence of which they were misled by the mendacious tales to which their importunity gave so much encouragement.

Long after the maintenance of a bard as a retainer in a Celtie establishment was confined to these portions of the kingdom, their services continued in partial requisition elsewhere ; but from the advancing change in society, this neglected class, with difficulty maintained a degree of respectability, but were obliged to itinerate in considerable numbers, and trust for their support to casual employment, by those who made their efforts to please a subject of rude jest. The following no doubt excited a laugh at the expense of the Gaél : it is a curious allusion to their manners by a lowland poet—

“Then cried Mahoun for a hieland padzean,
Syn ran a feynd to fetch Makfadzean,
Far northwart in a nuke ;
Be he the coronach had shout,
Earse men so gatherit him about,
In hell grit rowm they tuke :

An' rowp like ravin rowk;

That in the deepest pot of hell
He smorit them wi' smouk."*

In Saxonized England and Scotland, the bards and minstrels were denounced as idlers who lived on the useful and industrious, levying their contributions on an unwilling people. In the reign of James II., 1449, an act was passed, which declared that " gif there be onie that makis them fiules, and are bairdes, thay be put in the kingis waird, or in his irons for thair trespasses, as lang as thay have onie gudes of thair awin to live upon, that thair ears be nailed to the trone, or till ane uther tree, and thair eare cutted off, and banished the cuntrie." By a statute of Jas. VI., in 1579, those who were sangsters, tale-tellers, &c., and not in the special service of Lords of Parliament or boroughs as their common minstrels, were to be scourged and burnt through the ear with a hot iron.

When the court of the Scottish kingdom was Gaëlic, the ancient usages were closely observed, and the class whose history is now under investigation, continued, at least occasional services, for ages afterwards. At coronations, a Highland bard attended in his heraldic capacity, to repeat a poem on the royal genealogy. His attendance at the enthronement of Malcolm II., 1056, and the oration then delivered, are recorded, and the same duty was performed to Alexander III., in 1249, when the poet, we are informed, was clad in a scarlet dress. Various notices are found in the Lord Treasurer's accounts, of the services of seanachies and minstrels at royal entertainments, an extract from which will not be thought uninteresting. Blind Harry, the author of the metrical life of Sir William Wallace, sang his compositions to the king and nobility,† and received frequent gratuities. In 1490, and 1491, he was paid eighteen shillings. In the former year, " Martin Clareschaw and ye toder Ersche Clareschaw, at ye kingis command," were paid eighteen shillings, and shortly afterwards the same payment was made " till ane ersche harper." In 1496 are these entries:—

The kings of England, with few exceptions, continued to employ one or more Welsh harpers in the royal establishment. The marriage of Catherine, widow of Henry V., with Sir Owen Tudor, a nobleman of Mona or Anglesea, from whom Henry VII. was descended, brought the bards into more notice, and the title of the eldest son of the reigning monarch, offered a sufficient reason for compliment to so worthy a portion of the British subjects. When James VI. succeeded to the English throne, Henry, Prince of Wales, appointed one Jones as his bard. The author of the work, whence so many curious particulars of this class have been transcribed, Edward Jones of Henblas, was the talented bard to the last of our princes who bore the title.

That the bardic institutions have been so entirely neglected in the Highlands, is only to be accounted for by the very different position of the two countries. Wales has been for many centuries a province of England ; their wars of independence have long ceased, and even internal dissensions have for a great length of time been unknown. In peace and tranquillity, the natives could therefore cultivate their poetry and music as an agreeable source of rational amusement, and if they continued to chant forth their ancient martial lays, it was a pleasing solace to have reflection drawn to departed renown. An indulgence in reminiscences of a state which no more can be reverted to, is some slight alleviation of regret.

The Gaël, on the contrary, who had ever to struggle for national independence, were between energetic resistance of the common enemy ; the civil wars in which they were involved, and the clannish feuds which were fomented by designing foes, at last plunged into a state of sanguinary turmoil, which was but ill calculated for the fosterage of such a system as their happier brethren were permitted to cherish in peace. In these inauspicious circumstances, the soft and melting strains of the clarsach might be well suited for the enlivenment of their entertainments, and as an accompaniment for the grateful themes of love, and pastoral pursuits ; but the utmost fervour of the harper's efforts, would fail to rouse the vengeful ardour of the Gaëlic heroes. It was the piobaireachd's shrill summons, thrilling in their ears the sad tale of their devastated glens, and their houseless friends, which gathered them for the war, by notes which had often sounded to hard-earned victory ; speaking in strains which made their blood boil with glowing emulation, as they marched to the foe, and which pealing to survivors of the battle-field in notes re-echoed by the frowning crags, drowning by its piercing tones, the loud wailings of the bereaved, and the woful shrieks of the despairing women, called in a maddening voice for speedy and unsparing retribution.

The pipes supplanted the harp as the instrument for war among the Gaëlic tribes. The potency of bagpipe-music as a stimulus to heroism was acknowledged by the Irish, who always used pipes in their warlike operations. "As others with the sound of trumpets, so those with the sound of the pipes, are inspired with ardour for the fight." Derrick likewise alludes to its martial use, and in the representations of battles, we observe the pipers in a prominent position, but do not perceive a harper. The great pipe has survived, an equally national instrument, which is much better adapted for an accompaniment at the festive board. The exhilarating but loud-toned Piob is less suited to appear in place of the bard at the feast of Shells, who by his sweet-sounding harp and vocal melody, afforded a double gratification.

These remarks are by no means to be taken as in disparagement of the professors of this admirable instrument, the sound of which strikes so surely a responding chord in a Scotsman's heart. It is matter of delight to perceive its use so nobly upheld, and its music preserved with so much patriotic zeal. The frequent "competitions" of performers in different parts of Scotland, present a becoming counterpart to the means so successfully pursued in Wales and Ireland, for the preservation of their poetry and music; and this ancient regulation, especially in the former country, is so peculiar, bearing as it does on the subject, that it cannot with any propriety be omitted.

It appears that king Cadwaladdr, about 670, presided in a meeting assembled for the purpose of hearing the bards recite old compositions and their own productions. Those meetings were called Eisteddvodau, and were like the Clera or circuits, held triennially. Prince Gruffudd, who, with the approbation of his Gaëlic friends, did so much for the repression of abuse and introduction of improvement in poetry and music, laid down express rules for the guidance of these meetings, regulating the mode of competition, qualification of candidates, &c., the chief object being "to extinguish falsehood, and establish certainty in the relation of events," the proper observance of which excellent practice served so well to perpetuate the true history of transactions. Invention, or propagation of falsehood was declared punishable by imprisonment and fine, and the like penalty was exacted for mockery, derision, or undeserved censure. Rhys ap Gruffudd, Prince of South Wales, gave a magnificent entertainment in the manner of the country, to King Henry II., when a large assemblage of bards attended, and received a confirmation of all their franchises. Similar meetings have been held at various times and places, sometimes by royal summons; at others, under the auspices of the nobility. Henry VIII. issued a commission for one to be held at Caerwys in Flintshire, 1523, "for the purpose of instituting order and government among the professors of poetry and music, and regulating their art and profession, according to the old statute of Gruffudd ap Cynan, Prince of Aberfraw." Queen Elizabeth appointed another to assemble at the same place in 1568, and those who were not found worthy to hold so honourable a calling, were charged to betake themselves to honest labour, on pain of punishment as vagabonds. On the 22d September, 1792, "a congress of the bards of the Isle of Britain," was held on Primrose hill in a suburb of London, with the view of "recovering druidical mythology and bardic learning."* Since then, the Cymrodorion society has given frequent Eisteddvods in the metropolis, and they are held periodically throughout Wales. The kindred people of Bas Bretagne have been desirous of a similar convention being held there, and we have heard some literati of the Principality observe, that a gathering of bards on the same principle in Iona, where, in the days of persecution, the Cumraeg druids found refuge with their Gaëlic brethren of the same order, would be a highly interesting and appropriate commemoration, and productive of much advantage to the bardic cause. Some degree of literary character was at first given to the competitions in pipe-music, when prizes were awarded for poetic compositions, and when the admirable Donchadh-Ban nan orain was accustomed to present the Comunn Gaëlach na h-Alba, with a complimentary effusion in his happiest style. If the idea of the liberal-minded archdeacon Williams, rector of the Edinburgh Academy, and several other gentlemen of literary character and respectability, is ever matured, we shall have a grand union of the three divisions still remaining unmixed in these realms—the Gaël of both islands and the Cumri, “jointly and severally,” engaged in the prosecution of Celtic literature, of which the bards were from unsearchable antiquity the only conservators.

The Irish, less affected by those unpropitious circumstances which operated on the Highlanders, have retained the use of the harp and its appropriate melodies.

They however had their golden age of bardism, to which the iron naturally succeeded. They escaped the visitation of Roman persecution; but from the time of Henry II., it was an object of solicitude with the invaders, to repress the order as seriously inimical to English designs. Taking advantage of their privileges, they mixed with the enemy and acted as spies, while they excited their countrymen to unceasing opposition. In the statutes of Kilkenny, 1309, it was attempted to abolish the influence they possessed by Celtic usage, but with little effect. In the 13th of Henry VI., 1434, it being found that Clarsaghours, Tympanours, Crowthores, Kerraghers,* Rymours, Skellaghes,† Bardes, and others, contrary to that statute, were constantly passing between the armics, exercising their ‘minstrelsies’ and other arts, and carrying all information to the Irish camp, means were taken in order to repress so dangerous a practice. The mercenary spirit was but in few cases sufficiently strong to extinguish the patriotic; yet if any of these bards would officiate in the same vocation on the English side, he was taken under protection, and amply provided for. A precept occurs in the 49th, Edward III., 1375, for the remuneration of Dowenald O Moghane, a bard, who did great service to the English in this way.‡ Henry VIII. received with much satisfaction, ‘a Breviate’ of certain regulations for the good of the country, by Lord Finglass, in which it is recommended, that no Irish minstrels, Rymers, Shannaghes,§ nor Bards be “messengers to desire any goods of any man dwelling within the English pale, upon pain of forfeiture of all their goods, and their bodies to be imprisoned at the king’s will.”|| Their habits were no wise changed in the succeeding reign. An act was passed in 1563, for reformation of the enormities which arose in Limerick, Kerry and Cork, by certain idle men of lewd demeanour, called Rymers, Bards and Carraghs, who, under pretence of their travail, carried intelligence between the malefactors inhabiting these countries, to the great destruction of true subjects ; it was therefore ordered that none of these sects be suffered to travail within these territories, against the statutes. " And for that these Rymers do by their ditties and rhymes to lords and gentlemen, in commemoration and praise of extorsion, rebellion, &c. &c., encourage those lords and gentlemen rather to follow those vices than to leave them, and that for making of such rhymes rewards are given, &c., for abolishing so heinous an abuse, orders be taken, that none of them, from henceforth, do give any manner of reward for any such lewd rhymes, and he that shall offend to pay to the Queen's majesty, double the value of that he shall so pay, and the Rymer that shall make any such rhymes or ditties, shall make fine according to the discretion of commissioners, and that proclamation be made accordingly." That a bard should vent his indignation on occasion of such a stigma, is not to be wondered at. The Hibernian warmth is natural :

" When England would a land enthrall,
She doomed the muses' sons to fall,
Lest Virtue's hand should string the lyre,
And feed with song the patriot's fire.
Lo ! Cambria's bards her fury feel ;
And Erin mourns the bloody steel."

The 'factions' which have continued to agitate the Irish peasantry so unhappily to the present day, had an injurious effect on the poetical character, the bards becoming mercenary and sycophantic followers of the great. The poet Spenser, who otherwise had a proper respect for the profession, gives a quaint and curious, but on the whole we may believe, a just picture of the bards.

" They were brought up idly," he says, " without awe of parents, without precepts of masters, and without fear of offence . . . for little reward or the share of a stolen cow, they wax most insolent, and half-mad with love of themselves. As of a most notorious thief and wicked outlaw, which had lived all his lifetime by spoils and robberies, one of their bards will say that he was none of the idle milk-sops brought up by the fireside, but that most of his days he spent in arms and valiant enterprises ; that he did never eat his meat, before he had won it with his sword : that he lay not all night slugging in a cabin under his mantle ; but used commonly to keep others waking to defend their lives, and did light his candle at the flame of their houses to lead him in the darkness ; that the day was his night, and the night his day ; that his music was not the harp, nor lays of love, but the cries of people, the clashing of arms, and ' finally,' that he died, not bewailed of many, but making many wail when he died, that dearly bought his death." Such a song, he adds, might be purchased for 40 crowns.*

Many who could not themselves compose, acted the rhapsodist, which Buchanan notices as a practice in the Highlands also, and sang the poems of others as a profession. In fact, the bards in Ireland became a public annoyance, and frequent petitions were made for their suppression.

Most part were extremely profligate, and consequently poor, but some became affluent, and renounced a profession become disreputable.* A genuine bardic feeling animated Richard Roberts, a poor harper, who performed at a late Eisteddvod at Caernarvon, who, on receiving his fee, observed, "this money has been of service for my wants, but it has spoiled my music, for I never play so well for hire, as from my love of the art, and desire to please."

Oral poetry, the only medium through which the Celtæ preserved the memory of all transactions, was in no wise so feeble an instrument as a late Essayist considered it.† A poem of the bard Taliesen, who lived, anno 540, described the death of King Arthur, and the place of his interment, which being repeated before Henry II., about the year 1187, the king ordered search to be made for his tomb in the churchyard of Glastonbury, and there it was found. A similar discovery was made by the recitation of the duan of Cath-Gabhra by an old harper, in which an account is given of the burial of King Conan. The Irish academy, to verify the correctness of the bardic record, had the spot excavated, when the grave was found as described in the song!

It is unfortunate that the Greeks and Romans did not consider the compositions of the Celts worthy of preservation. They may not indeed have been very important, except as relics of extreme antiquity; but the glimpses of ancient manners which they would have afforded, and their curiosity as productions of ages so remote, render their loss matter of much regret. It is certain from the few intimations which are given on the subject, that there were many in existence of very distant origin. Some of the Celtiberians asserted that they had poems, containing their laws and history, six thousand years old. So long a duration may well be doubted, but if it was only a moderate fraction of such a number, it would be confessedly great, and there is no question, but that other tribes made equal claims. The German poems, which formed their national annals, were ancient in the days of Tacitus, who flourished in the first century, and he mentions some composed in his own time;‡ their remains were extant seven hundred years afterwards. One of the pursuits in which Charlemagne took great delight, was, searching for those decaying relics of poetic antiquity and committing them to memory. It was a similar practice with the great Alfred. There is one fragment which may be given as the oldest specimen of the bardic genius of an ancient Celt. Luernius, king of the Arverni, was wont to court popularity by extraordinary munificence. A poet once arriving long after the others, saluted the prince with a poem extolling his virtues and his benevolence, but lamented his misfortune in being too late to receive his bounty. The song procured the gift of a purse of gold, to the happy bard, who then chanted loudly, saying that Luernius' chariot-wheels as they rolled along, scattered wealth and blessings among the children of men.§

Although not disposed to go beyond an era of probability in the belief of the alleged antiquity of many British remains, yet as the inhabitants were found by the Romans, in most parts which they explored, as far advanced in civilization as the Gauls, and were much their superiors in bardic knowledge ; not to advert to the general supposition that the famed chief-druid Abaris, who visited Greece clad in a tartan robe, must have been a Caledonian, and other points which would serve to show considerable civilization in early times ; there seems good reason to admit that the Britons had also preserved historical poems which may have reached a high antiquity. From certain dark and figurative verses, the early chroniclers probably drew their materials, which, incorporated in their works without sufficiently comprehending the meaning, led to erroneous constructions, and the fabulous narrations which mark the productions of the early writers. Gildas and Nennius or Neniaw, 550 and 608, who were bards, compiled their histories from such authorities ; and the former deplores the destruction of many old records by the enemy, and loss of others carried away by those who were driven from the country by the inroads of the northern tribes. Many Cumraëg MSS., were at one time in the Tower of London, either the spoils of war, or carried there by Welsh captives, taken in the Saxon and Norman invasions. They are supposed to have been poetical ; but whatever they were, with a policy which subsequently actuated English monarchs with respect to the national songs and records of the sister kingdoms, they were committed to the flames. Owain Glendwr's rebellion, 1400, led to the destruction of most of the remaining bardic compositions which had been committed to writing ; William of Salisbury says on his defeat, not one that could be found was saved ! The Llyvr du o Caerfyrrdyn, Blackbook of Caermarthen, is supposed to be the most ancient British manuscript in existence ; it contains the works of bards of the 6th century.*

Among the more ancient remains of bardic science are those of Merddin, or Merlin the Caledonian, who flourished in 470. He was born at Caerwerthevin, near the forest of Celyddon, supposed to be Dunkeld, where he was protected by Gwenddolau ap Ceidio, with whom his mother, a nun, had sought refuge : having through accident killed his nephew in battle, he became subject to insanity, whence he was called the Wild, and his effusions were accounted prophetic. He received a tract of fertile land from this prince, which he lost in the wars with Rhedderch, King of Strathclyde. A poem which he composed on this gift, praising it under the name of an orchard, is a fair specimen of this bard's abilities. The verses have an unequal number of lines, but in each the final syllables rhyme. A verse or two are thus translated :—

AFALLENAU MYRDDIN.

“ Sweet apple tree, growing in the lonely glade ! fervent valour shall keep thee secure from the stern lords of Rhydderch. Bare is the ground about thee, trodden by mighty warriors ; their heroic forms strike their foes with terror. * * * * Death relieves all, why does he not visit me ? for after Gwenddolau no prince honours me ; I am not soothed with diversion, I am no longer visited by the fair : yet in the battle of Arderydd, I wore the golden torques, though I am now despised by her who is fair as the snowy swan.

woods of Celyddon! all seek thee for the sake of thy produce, but in vain ; until Cadwaladr comes to the conference of the ford of Rheon, and Conan advances to oppose the Saxons in their career, &c."*

There are some pretty similes here, and the Celtic character is impressed on the composition, but how far short it comes of the Gaëlic poems of antiquity !

The Welsh having so sedulously maintained the science in all its peculiarities, a reference to their history could not with propriety be avoided. From the kingdom of the Strathclyde Britons, through that of Cumbria, which extended to the marches of North Wales, the tribes appear to have for some time formed the link between the Cumri and the Gaël ; the intercourse therefore which appears to have subsisted between the two people in early ages, will justify a frequent allusion to those who at first thought might appear quite disconnected with the Gaëlic bards.

From the beginning of the 5th century there were numerous bards, the remains of whose works are still extant. The antiquaries of Wales enrol in their list the names of several who are assigned an antiquity so remote, that a degree of scepticism is excited as to their existence, but the Irish writers quite surpass them ; for they lay claim to national poetry three thousand years old !† It is impossible, without a great stretch of credulity, to believe that any relic anterior to the Christian era has reached our times. Fingin and Fergus of the 2d century, and others, may be real personages, and the authors of poems ascribed to them ; without questioning the truth of the legends concerning the more ancient personages, it may be sufficient to say, that from the advent of our Saviour, downwards, the numerous individuals distinguished in the science are recorded by the bardo-monkish chronicles in precise detail. We find among those most noted in the 5th century, Torna and Dubthach who is said to have written a poem in which the rights of the bards are enumerated. He subsequently became a convert to Christianity, and in this class are to be ranked Feich, Cronan, Columcille, Adamnan, Dallan, Seanchan, Angus, Amergin, &c. These primitive Christians, being of the privileged class, by the old institutions, did not fail to set forth in a favourable light, the glorious state of ancient poetry, thinking it an enhancement of the national honour, to show that Ireland was the celebrated land of bards before it acquired the more exalted title of that of saints. The powerful exhortations of St Patrick and his successors, induced numerous bards to betake themselves to the services of religion, many acquiring dignities in the church, and considerable celebrity. In 884, died Maolmhuradh—his contemporary Flann was accounted the Virgil of Ireland ; Donagh O Daly, Abbat of Boyle, who died in 1244, was called the Ovid.

We find, from what is recorded of the bardic system in Ireland, that like the Welsh, they had triennial conventions, and the Iomarba, or contests, were professional competitions. The practice in Ireland must be held to be the same as was observed by the Gaël of Scotland. The Munster bardic Sessions which were held so late as the beginning of last century, were suppressed by penal statute.* Attempts have been made to restore in some measure the ancient practice of the harp and vocal melody, as a means of preserving the poetry and music so rapidly on the decline. A Mr Dungan offered four prizes of seven, five, three, and two guineas to the best performers on the harp, in a meeting held at Granard, in 1781, at which eight or ten performers attended. In 1792, a meeting of the harpers, as the descendants and representatives of the ancient bards, was called at Belfast, by a number of gentlemen who raised funds for the purpose of reviving and perpetuating the old “music, poetry, and oral traditions,” at which ten harpers attended. The Belfast Harp Society, for supporting a professor and students, was established in 1807. An institution worthy of the descendants of the ancient Dalriadic Scots deserved a more extended existence: it only survived until 1813.†

Returning to the bards of Caledonia, to whose history this essay is more particularly devoted, it must be confessed that they have not met with the ready chroniclers who have celebrated the others; but they have left a more splendid monument, in their own imitable works.

Who were the “bards of old,” whose poems were alluded to by the renowned Ossian, or in what age did they exist? The expression carries the mind back to a distant and indeterminate era, and it proves that there were poems well known in his day, which were then reckoned ancient. “Thou shalt endure, said the bard of ancient days, after the moss of time shall grow in Temora; after the blast of years shall roar in Selma.” Fergus, Ullin, Orain, Daol, were his contemporaries, but we know not who was the author of the “Tain bo, Cualgne,” a poem co-eval with the epoch of redemption. The Duan Albanach, repeated at the coronation 1056, was formed from some similar record, of much higher antiquity.

The era of Ossian is fixed by concurring opinion, formed from the evidence contained in the poems, in the third century. The compositions of several who lived in his own time, as well as the immediately succeeding ages, have come down to our own times; owing their preservation to that peculiar beauty which characterizes the works which preceded the full establishment of Christianity. Collections of the Sean-dana have been published under the general affiliation to those ancient bards; but as it cannot in the case of several pieces be with certainty shown whether it was the ‘voice of Cona,’ which gave them being, or the others, the descriptive appellation of Ossianic poetry seems an appropriate designation. At the same time it must be observed, that the judgment of the Highlanders may in general be relied on; some of the anonymous poems given in the following collection, although evidently formed by those who had not embraced Christianity, and compositions of acknowledged merit, are nevertheless so far from the ne plus ultra of the acknowledged standard of excellence, that they are never ascribed to Ossian.

* Walker, who quotes memoirs of Clan Ricard, 1727. See Hardiman’s Irish minstrels for a copious list of Bards and Seanachies and poetical ecclesiastics. Mac Phinn.* The authors of some of those ancient compositions are known, as of Mordubh and Collath, but many others are anonymous, or of uncertain authorship.

It will scarcely be expected that the question of the authenticity of the poems of Ossian which so long agitated the literary world, shall be resumed in the pages of this short essay. The ample proofs of the existence of those poems in the oral record of the unlettered Highlanders, as well as in several MSS., long before MacPherson undertook the labour of collecting and translating them, obtained by the searching investigation of the Highland Society, and of individuals, have, we should think, settled the controversy to the satisfaction of the unprejudiced. The evidences which the poems were supposed to exhibit of their recent composition, as urged by Laing and others ignorant of the language, have been happily overthrown by natives of the country who well understood the originals, while the correspondence of the chronology of those compositions with the events in Scottish history, is an extraordinary proof of their being the genuine production of antiquity.

"The history of the bards, is perhaps of all others the most extraordinary," is the expression of an eminent writer on poetry and music;† and another has said, that "on the construction of the old Celtic poetry we want much information."‡ Since this wish was expressed, the subject has been treated by writers qualified by a competent knowledge of the language. The Triads, which form so curious a record, commemorate Tydain, who first made an order and regulation for the record of vocal song; and it is laid down that there are three requisites for a poetical genius—an eye that can see nature, a heart that can feel it, and boldness that dares to follow it. In Ireland, Ceanfaela (who flourished about 500,) we are told, wrote or revised what is called the "uraiceph na neagir," or rules for poets, a very useful work, since we find there were upwards of 100 kinds of poetical construction. In 'Anglia Sacra,' mention is made of a Scot who was acquainted with 100 different sorts of verse, with the modulation of words and syllables to music, to which letters, figures, poetic feet, tone, and time, were necessary.§

The Triads are a sort of oracular stanzas, composed with much art in three lines. This triplet form was not unknown to the Highlanders, but it was more peculiarly Welsh, and appears to be, as is uniformly asserted, the favourite druidic style. It is generally termed Englyn Milwr, the warrior's song, which points to its use as the "cerdd volant prosnachadh," or stimulating address which animated the troops in war. It was in this measure, doubtless, that the famed Unbeniaeth Prydain, or heroic poem called the Monarchy of Britain, was composed. This is now lost; but it had a wonderful effect on the hearers, referring to the pristine glories of the Britons when they held the sovereignty of the island. It was Eydeyrn, the golden-tongued, in the reign of Gruffudd, Prince of Aberfraw 1258-82 who made an analysis of the metres of vocal song, "to be as a record and a code."|| Those who wish farther information respecting the Welsh bards will be amply gratified by consulting the elaborate works of Jones and Evans; it may be sufficient to say, that the three divisions of Englyn, Cywydd, Awdl, close, parallel and lyric metre, were divided into twenty-four, the last of which was "the masterpiece."

The poetical genius of the Highlanders has been often subject of remark. Pastoral occupations and an Alpine situation are congenial to it. The mountains of Bœotia were the favourite abode of the Muses, and the Arcadians, who were the Highlanders of Peloponnesus, became famous in the most early ages for their poetry and music. The modes of Gaëlic versification are various, but on a close examination are not so numerous as at first would appear; it is evident, however, that the ancient poets did not cramp their genius by adherence to any rule, although there was an attention to rhyme and cadence. In later times, the system was rendered intricate and complicated by a curious classification of the letters, in which the Irish particularly distinguished themselves. The Gaëlic language is well adapted for poetry, but it cannot we think, except in a few cases, be successfully scanned according to the rules of latinists, although this has been attempted.*

In the scarce work of Mr Davies before referred to, this learned Cambrian—endeavouring to prove that the poems of Ossian, if allowed to be older than the days of our fathers, are the productions of an age long posterior to their believed era—enters very particularly into the systems of versification, which his elaborate 'Celtic Researches' and intimate acquaintance with such matters, enabled him to do with great critical acumen; nevertheless most of his dicta may be very confidently repelled. 'Rhime,' he admits, 'was peculiarly known to the Celtæ,' and with alliteration it formed the true mark of antique composition; with which observations we readily agree. He subsequently says that alliteration was a more recent invention than rhyme, and that rhyming verses are the nearest resemblance to the style of versification used by the druids. The Welsh were ignorant of alternate rhymes or quatrains, their poetry being usually of such a form as the following:

Mor yw gwael gweled,
Cymwro cynnired,
Brathau a brithred,
Brithwyr ar gerdded.

It is rather surprising that this people should not have this style of versification in their heroic pieces, for which Dryden recommends it as most suited, and in which style the Ossianic poems are generally composed. Mr Davies' object is to test the antiquity of this poetry, but he does so by a comparison with the Irish system which he allows to be so full of art, and so fanciful, that it could not be of ancient origin, nor the manner "of any Celtic tribe whatever!"

The system, as Gaëlic scholars know, is by a complex and arbitrary classification of the letters, and the strict application of the rule of "caol ri caol, agus leathan ri leathan," short to short, and broad to broad. Mr Davies acknowledges that their table must have been the work of time, and says, the oldest specimen in which he found it in full force, was of the time of Queen Elizabeth: certainly the oldest Gaëlic poetry does not exhibit this feature. If 'both nations versified on the same principle,' is there not some inconsistency in saying that the Highlanders were bungling copyists of the Irish? The roughness of this charge is indeed a little smoothed down by the subsequent admission, that whatever they copied they much improved, having, he confesses with unexpected candour, a genius for poetry!

* Dr Armstrong in his excellent Dictionary, and Mr Munro in his Grammar, have reduced the bardic works to this classical mode of testing their merit.

The war-song of Goll he accounts a fair specimen of the poetry of the age of Ossian. He takes it from an Irish version, and a short specimen will be quite sufficient for a Gaëlic scholar to determine whether the Hibernian or Caledonian displays the finest genius, or bears the strongest marks of antiquity.

"Goll mear mileata	Laoch gu lan ndealbhnaig
Ceap na crodhachta	Reim an richuraibh
Laimh fhial arachta	Leomhan luatharmach
Mian na mordhasa	A leonadh biodhbhaidh
Mur leim lanteinne	Ton ag tream tuarguin
Fraoch nach bhfuarthear	Goll nan gnath iorguil." &c.

It is within the range of our observations to consider our author's opinions a little farther. He brings forward many instances of what he terms defective rhyme, but it is evident, he was not sufficiently master of his subject, for he errs in supposing that the final syllables ought to rhyme—it is the penult syllables which do so. He gives four lines which are certainly as perfect rhymes as could be produced.

"Triath na trom channa.
Briathra bin mhala
Mile mear dhanna
Sligheach diongmhala."

Mr Davies dwells at considerable length on the sounds of the consonants and their combinations, according to the Irish table; but although he notices Shaw's observation "that the Highland poets, following their example, had also a classification," he does not let his readers know that the two differed. The sound of ch, by the Irish is accounted rough; by the Gaël of Alban, it is deemed soft, sprightly, forcible, &c. His objections therefore to laoich, which he maintains should be laoigh to agree in character with faoin; fithich, which ought to be the Irish faigh; oigh, and seod, and other words which he asserts do not rhyme, are therefore groundless. He may have satisfied himself and been able to persuade others, that the genuine Ossianic poetry is not a production of the Highlanders, because until late years, they had neither grammars nor dictionaries; but surely it will not be gravely maintained, that the grammarian preceded the poet! Ingenious persons would endeavour to reduce to rule, and innovate upon, or improve the acknowledged, although sometimes rather obscure laws of verse, but they no more formed those original laws than Shaw formed the language of which he first gave the 'Analysis.' The Irish poetical letter-table was not thought perfect until little more than 260 years ago. Mr Davies allows the very ancient rann on the Lia-fail, or palladium of Scotland, to rhyme very well, although he suspects it to be Irish; but in truth so much time should not have been given to the consideration of his objections to the authenticity of these poems, did not his defiance call for some reply, and the weight of so great an authority require it; the subject at the same time being so appropriate to that in hand. Both nations versified on the same principle, and as few countries produce a Homer or an Ossian, it is not surprising that there should be contending claims for the honour of their birthplace. It no doubt astonished the antiquaries of other countries, to find that such extraordinary compositions should be the production of "a people who had never boasted of their literary treasures," but our learned objector could not find many, except among the hopelessly prejudiced, to believe that "the Scotch poems are the trivial songs of the illiterate peasant in the reign of George III."! To close these remarks, we are happy to insert Mr Davies' own opinion of the same poems, which doubtless was not hastily formed, being expressed in more elegant language than we could readily command, or becomingly use for ourselves.

"The Fingal and Temora, upon subjects so interwoven with the feelings of the people, set this corner of the island far above poetic competition, not only with any Celtic tribe, but we may almost say with any nation in Europe. What people now existing can boast of epic poems, so interesting, so original, so replete with generous sentiment, and at the same time so nationally appropriate? The man who believes himself descended from Fingal, from either of his heroes, or even from the nation which produced such characters, must be a degenerate wretch indeed, if he can do otherwise than think nobly and act honourably."*

Previous to displaying more particularly the beauties of the Gaëlic bards, their system of versification requires to be more fully developed; but it is a difficult task to convey a clear idea of that which is so much "sui generis," and constructed on principles in many cases at entire variance with the laws which govern in other languages. The variety of measure in Gaëlic poetry, is not more remarkable than its complication of rhythm and cadence, often presenting a wild excellence, which to those unacquainted with the language, appears to be a perfectly lawless arrangement of lines. Some of the early productions of untutored bards, and even portions of the Ossianic poetry, are in verse so irregular, as to present the aspect of disjointed prose. The natural flow of the passions is not restrained by attention to measure or adherence to rule, and events which produce strong mental agitation, are not likely to be commemorated, in soft, flowing and well adjusted lines. The ancient bards do not appear to have composed under any fixed laws of versification, yet the wildest effusions were not without a certain rule; their poems, although in blank verse, had a peculiar adjustment of cadence and feet, easily discoverable to a practical ear.

Polymetra, or verses of different measures, employed according to the poet's taste or feeling,—a style, capable of being rendered extremely effective, is held to be the first form of composition, and has been frequently used by both the ancient and modern Gaël. It was adopted by other nations, and successfully practised by the French and Spaniards—in England, it is first seen in the works of Ben Johnson.†

* Besides several literal and versified translations in English, the Poems of Ossian have appeared in Latin, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, French, German, Russian, Danish, Swedish, &c.

† See Transactions of Irish Academy.

Much of the Gaëlic poetry might be scanned; but a great deal of it cannot be properly subjected to this classical test by the most ingenious; and yet a Celtic ear will tell that it is good. We are of opinion that the rules for scanning, by which Latin verses are governed, are alien to the Gaëlic, which certainly does not owe the art of poetry to the Romans. The concord does not always depend on the coincidence of final words; but rests on some radical vowel in corresponding words, and these not terminal alone, but recurring in several places throughout the verse, which will be best understood from examples.

Muir, cuir; each, creach; gleann, beann, &c., are quite perfect, but in fios, gion; làmh, bàs; feidh, sleibh; beul, speur, &c., the rhyme is in the corresponding vowels. In the same poem, especially if ancient, we frequently meet with good regular versification, and portions in which there is no rhyme at all: indeed in one piece, there are often various sorts of verse.

Rhyming lines, which are thought to be the nearest resemblance to the style of versification used by the Druids, are common.

“ Bha geal-làmh air clàrsach thall;
Chunnaic mi a gorm-shuil mall
Mar ghlan thaibhs an iomairt a' triall
Le cheilte an cearb nan dubh niall.”

Tighmora, Duan IV. Vol. III. p. 52.

Here is a specimen of alternate rhymes, which exemplifies their independence of the final consonants. The cadence in the middle of the line is also observable.

“ O ! m' anam faic an ribhinn òg,
Fo sgeith an daraich, righ nam flath,
'S na lamh shneachd meisg a ciabhan òir,
'S a meall-shuil chiuin air òg a gràidh.

“ Esan a' seinn ri taobh 's i balbh,

An gaol bho shuil gu suil a falbh,
Cuir stad air feidh nan sleibhteán mòr.”

Miann a Bhaird aosda, p. 16.

Heroic verse is usually of seven, eight, nine, or more syllables.

Some modes of versification are very singular, having a curious concord of vowels, without alliteration, running through the whole, and occurring in different parts of the lines, forming compound rhymes: for example :

"Sin fhuil bhan cūisil' ar SINNSEAR,
San INNSGINN a bha nan aigne

Morduth.

Besides the regular rhymes, there is a sort of melodious cadence pervading the verse, which of course is more or less beautiful according to the genius of the poet. The following anonymous composition shows the harmonious adaptation of the language for versification ; it seems to flow with the greatest facility in the happiest agreement of rhythm and measure. It is usually sung to the fine old air of ' Johnny's grey breeks.'

" A nighean donn na buaille
Gam bheil an gluaasad farusda,
Gun tug mi gaol co buan duit,
'Snach gluais e air an EARACH so ;
Mheall thu mi le d' shùgradh
Le d' bhriodal a' le d' chùine,
Lùb thu mi mar fhiúran,
'S cha dùchas domh bhi FALLAIN uaith."

Here is another specimen of a similar style :—

Fhuair mi sgēula moch dicēdin

'S leor a gheirad anns An leūmsa
Anal on trēud bha buaghar.
O Dhun Gāranach m̄ allail

Na'n gleus glāna s' ceutach seālladh,

Mary MacLeod, better known as Nighean Alastair ruadh, the daughter of red Alexander, had so fine a genius, that she appears to have struck out some new measures. Here are two specimens of a very plaintive cast.

The following variety is by the celebrated John MacDonald, not Iain Lom, but Iain dubh Mac Iain 'ic Ailein; the Eigg bard.

Donchadh Bân, or Duncan MacIntyre, the boldness and originality of whose conceptions, clothed in poetry of the most genuine excellence, unassisted by the slightest education, have obtained for him a comparison with Ossian himself, offers many a beauty scattered profusely throughout his numerous works. In that admirable poem called Beinn Dourain, he has adapted the verses to the piobaireachd notes, commencing with the ùrlar, the groundwork or air: the second part is the suibhal, or quickening, arranged in a different measure, to which succeeds the erun-luath, swifter running music, to which a suitable measure is likewise adapted. It is a curious effort, and his model seems to have been an older piece which accompanied Moladh Mairi, the praise of Mary, otherwise the MacLachlan's salute.

His lines are extremely mellifluous, and his compositions show a great poetical versatility. Let us present a verse of his Coirre-Cheathaich, scanned according to Dr Armstrong.

'S à' mhâdáinn | chiüin gheäl, | ánn ám dhömh | dûsgädh,
 'Aig bün nă | stüicë | b' én súgrädh | leam,
 A chearc lë | sgüecán | a gâbhäil | tuchäin,
 'Sän cöileäch | cüirtëil | äg dûrdiil | trom.
 Án dréathän | súrdail, | 's à ríbhid | chizl äige,
 Ác cur nän | smuïd dhëth | gú lüthär | binn;
 Án truid sám | brü dheärg | lë mörän ünaich,
 Rë cœilçir | sünntäch | bü shiübläch | rann.

The measure is repeated at every second line. It will be observed, that there is an agreement in sound between the first syllable of the second and third foot; in the second and third lines, between the first syllable of the second, and the middle of the third foot.

His beautiful song to Mairi bhàn òg, fair young Mary "so often imitated, but never equalled," is another captivating beauty in the composition of 'Fair Duncan of the songs.'

In the fourth book of Fingal is the war song, prosnachadh, or exhortation, which the bard chanted to inspirit the renowned Gaul, when engaged in the heat of a desperate battle. So expressive is the language, and with such skill did the bard compose his address, that the very sound echoes the sense; it could never, we apprehend, be mistaken, even by one totally unacquainted with Gaëlic, for a gentle pastoral. An English translation is given, which is not so elegant as that by MacPherson, but it is more literal, and will, therefore, be considered more fair, i. e. if it were from this version he translated.

In the poem entitled Conn,† is preserved an incantation or invocation to Loda the Scandinavian deity, which seems to partake of the stern character of northern poetry, and has but a very slight approximation to rhyme in the final syllables.

The Duan Albanach is on a subject which did not admit of any copious introduction of the graces of poetry; a portion of it will nevertheless be thought curious, as exhibiting a production of the middle age, presuming, that the bard who repeated it in 1056 was the author, in Gaëlic of an orthography now rather obsolete. There are 27 verses, of which the following are the first and last.

A eolcha Alban uile,
A shluagh feta folt bhuidhe,
Cia ceud ghabhail an eol duibh,
Ro ghabhustar Alban bhrúigh.

One of the most curious alliterative poems is that composed by Lachlan mòr Mac Mhuireach, bard to MacDonald of the Isles, to animate his troops at the battle of Harlaw, fought 1411. The bard gives a part for every letter of the alphabet, and each contains the most felicitous collection of epithets under the respective letter. Towards the end, the strict alliteration is abandoned, and the piece concludes as usual in heroic poems, with the opening lines, which call on the children of Conn, “of the hundred battles,” to behave with becoming hardihood in the day of strife.† A portion will be found, p. 62.

Another selection from “the voice of Cona,” will exemplify the freedom with which the ancient bards versified, presenting events in the most impressive language, without restraining the flow of the muse for the mere sake of making the lines ‘clink,’ as Burns would say.

Mar cheud gaoth an daraig Mhoirbhéinn,
Mar cheud sruth o thorr nan aonach,

Mar chuan mor air traigh a' taomiadh,

† The farm, heretofore Muir of Harlaw, is on the north side of the river Urie, about 17 English miles from Aberdeen. It is in the Gariach or rough district, whence the battle is called by the Highlanders, cath gariach. On the field of conflict were to be seen the sepulchral cairns of the slain—MacLean, M'Intosh, &c., but the industrious utilitarian now raises his crops on the soil which enwraps the undistinguished remains of the gallant warriors, who fell in that well-contested field.

Here in some parts the final syllables rhyme extremely well ; in others, there appears no such agreement. The 5th and 11th lines prove how truly Mr MacLean speaks in his "History of the Celtic Language," when he says it is the voice of nature,—an echo, reflection, or vocal painting, so to speak, of passion and action. Celtic versification is indeed one of the most venerable remains of European literature, and its correspondence with the Hebrew style indicates the most remote antiquity.

This extract is truly one of the bardic beauties, but no translation can do it justice. MacPherson was certainly deeply imbued with the spirit which animated those who composed the poems he rendered into English, and although not always strictly literal, they are undoubtedly the most happy attempts to convey in one language the feelings displayed in another. He thus translates the passage.

"As a hundred winds on Morven ; as the streams of a hundred hills ; as clouds fly successive over heaven ; as the dark ocean assails the shore of the desert : so roaring, so vast, so terrible, the armies mixed on Lena's echoing heath. The groan of the people spread over the hills : it was like the thunder of night, when the clouds burst on Cona, and a thousand ghosts shriek at once on the hollow wind. Fingal rushed on in his strength, terrible as the spirit of Treunmor, when in a whirlwind he comes to Morven, to see the children of his pride."*

How much has the Celtic poet here made of a simple battle—what striking accessories he has introduced, and what grandeur of simile he has employed, to impart a conception of the fiercest of fights in which his hero appears so conspicuously ! In "revolving a slender stock of ideas," how admirably he has here availed himself of his scanty imagery !

It would certainly be impossible to preserve in any translation, the native simplicity, force and beauty of Gaëlic poetry. To those acquainted with the language, the representations are highly graphic and often sublime ; but the feeling and felicity of description could not be clothed in an English dress without lamentable deterioration. Could MacDonald's Iorram for instance be translated so as to carry all its force of expression with it ? Language is used to convey ideas and express action and feeling. In a primitive tongue it does so emphatically to a natural mind : when society becomes artificial, language undergoes a similar change. It is to be regretted, that to the English reader, the beauties in this work will be almost unknown, except from the instances submitted in this introduction, and they are merely sufficient to convey a general idea of the peculiar merit of Celtic poetry. The language is no doubt happily adapted for metrical composition, but the people possess a poetical genius, in no inconsiderable degree diffused throughout the community ; for it is a fact that numerous bards were perfectly illiterate ; some of the sweetest being ignorant of the A B C. Duncan MacIntyre is a celebrated instance, and a long list of others who lived in comparative obscurity could be given, many of them in the humblest walks of life. The feeling which animated these plebeian composers was reciprocated by the taste of their countrymen, and many a popular song is the work of obscure or unknown peasants and seafaring men. Such are Fhir a bhata, Air mo run geal òg, and numerous others. The Rebellions, particularly that conducted by Tearlach òg Stiuart, 1745, inspired many an individual of both sexes with poetic fervour, who never, before or after, felt the same irresistible impulse to invoke the muse.

* A translator may lose the spirit and sense of an author if too metaphrastic : we shall however be forgiven for making a few remarks on the above, presuming it was the original from which the translation was made. The oaks of Morven are forgotten in the first line ; Borb is more correctly fierce—dorcha, darkening is omitted. The gairm was not a groan or cry of affright, but the battle-shout of defiance. For the 'hollow wind,' the 11th line would be more literally 'on the idle, eddying wind of the cairn.' It is curious to find siuns're, ancestors, instead of progeny ! These unimportant criticisms can never deteriorate from the just fame of MacPherson, and are by no means penned in a spirit of detraction.

The Gaëlic poetry and music are usually of a melancholy cast, and this has been attributed to the atrabilious temperament of a depressed people. Such a character is surely unsuitable to a people who have been characterized as high-spirited, proud and pugnacious. Yet the tender and affecting poems of the ancient bards, and the titles of popular airs, have been considered as satisfactory proofs of the justice of the assertion.* The unhappy situation of Ossian will fully account for the plaintive character of most of his pieces, but, admitting that the muses are most frequently invoked in seasons of trouble and adversity, and that in general the poems are of that gloomy and sorrowful cast, it will show undoubtedly a keenness of sensibility towards affliction, yet it will not follow that the Highlanders are naturally a querulous, dejected people. Poems, commemorative of calamity and distress, took stronger hold on the memory, and more powerfully excited the feelings than those of an opposite character, according well with a grave and reflective race. Dr Beattie speaks thus on the subject : “The Highlands are a picturesque, but in general a melancholy country. Long tracts of mountain desert, covered with dark heath, and often obscured by misty weather; narrow valleys thinly inhabited and bounded by precipices, resounding with the fall of torrents; a soil so rugged, and climate so dreary, as in many parts to admit neither the amusements of pasturage, nor the labours of agriculture; the mournful dashing of waves along the friths and lakes that intersect the country; the portentous noises which every change of the wind, and every increase or diminution of the waters, is apt to raise in a lonely region, full of echoes and rocks and caverns; the grotesque and ghastly appearance of such a landscape by the light of the moon; objects like these diffuse a gloom over the fancy, which may be compatible enough with occasional and social merriment, but cannot fail to tincture the thoughts of a native in the hour of silence and solitude. What then would it be reasonable to expect from the fanciful tribe, from the musicians and poets of such a region? strains expressive of joy, tranquillity, or the softer passions? No: their style must have been better suited to their circumstances; and so we find in fact, that their music is. The wildest irregularity appears in its composition; the expression is warlike and melancholy, and approaches even to the terrible.”

No doubt there is much truth in this, but it will not account for a similar character in the compositions of the Irish, whose country is comparatively champaign, and who are blessed with a genial climate and fruitful soil. Whence also the plaintive and tender melodies of the low country and southern counties of Scotland? Both people were imbued with the same feelings—they used the same musical scale to poetry constructed on the same principle.

The prevalence of poems which detail the calamities of war, deaths of heroes, disappointments of lovers, ravages of storms, disasters at sea, &c., with melodies suitable to such lamentable subjects, shows, that tragic events leave a deep and enduring impression; while convivial, humorous and satiric effusions, are usually forgotten with the persons or incidents from which they arose.* The bards sought not to avoid the melancholy vein—they rather gave way to the feeling, and in this mood, many of their best productions were executed. “Pleasant is the joy of grief! it is like the shower of spring when it softens the branch of the oak, and the young leaf lifts its green head.” That mind must be little susceptible of the softer feelings of human nature, which does not sympathize with the poet in the recital of a moving tale of wo. The sensitive bards are represented as at times bedewing the harp-strings with their tears, while repeating the sad story which the sterner chiefs could not listen to unmoved. A bard of Wales, about 1450, describes a similar effect.

His harp in briny flood imbrues.”

“Cease the lightly trembling sound. The joy of grief belongs to Ossian, amid his dark-brown years. Green thorn of the hill of ghosts that shakest thy head to nightly winds; I hear no sound in thee; Is there no spirit’s windy skirt now rustling in thy leaves? Often are the steps of the dead in the dark-eddying blasts; when the moon, a dun shield from the east is rolled along the sky.”† Beautifully does the bard again express himself. “I am alone at Lutha. My voice is like the last sound of the wind, when it forsakes the woods. But Ossian shall not be long alone. He sees the mist that shall receive his ghost—he beholds the cloud that shall form his robe, when he appears on his hills. The sons of feeble men shall behold me, and admire the stature of the chiefs of old; they shall creep to their caves.”‡ The closing portion of the aged bard’s wish is of a similar cast. See page 15.

The generous sentiments which animated the Caledonian heroes, are worthy of the brightest age of chivalry.

“Fuil mo namh cha d’ iaras riamh
Nam bu mhiann leis triall an sith.”

“The blood of my foe I never sought if he chose to depart in peace.”

Female beauty was a very congenial subject for bardic eulogium. The berries of the mountain-ash afforded a simile for the complexion of health, and snow, or the Canach, the white, flossy down of a plant which grows in moors and marshy ground, with the plumeage of the Swan, for the fairness of the skin.

* It must strike a student in the poetry of the Highlanders, as remarkable, that it exhibits much more to indicate the state of hunters, than of shepherds or agriculturists.

‡ Berrathon.

"Bu ghile bian na canach sleibhte,
No ur-sneachd air bharra gheuga."*

"The star of Gormluba was fair. White were the rows within her lips, and like the down of the mountain under her new robe was her skin. Circle on circle formed her fairest neck. Like hills beneath their soft snowy fleeces, rose her two breasts of love. The melody of music was in her voice. The rose beside her lip was not red; nor white beside her hand, the foam of streams. Maid of Gormluba, who can describe thy beauty! Thy eyebrows, mild and narrow, were of a darkish hue; thy cheeks were like the red berry of the mountain-ash. Around them were scattered the blossoming flowers on the bough of the spring. The yellow hair of Civadona was like the gilded top of a mountain, when golden clouds look down upon its green head after the sun has retired. Her eyes were bright as sunbeams; and altogether perfect was the form of the fair. Heroes beheld and blessed her."

What a poetical picture of a vessel in a gale does Alexander MacDonald, in his Prosnachadh Fairge or stimulus to a Biorlin's crew, give us: the imagined bellowing and roaring of the monsters of the deep, whose brains were scattered on every wave by the prow, the boat being damaged in the furious collision! &c., evince a truly imaginative genius.

The old bards called Echo, "the son of the rock"—MacIntyre's "ghost of sound," is much more poetical.

There is fortunately less necessity for extending the number of examples, inasmuch as the bardic "beauties" are so liberally spread before the reader in the succeeding pages; yet before closing our extracts, it will not be accounted a digression, to give a short specimen from the compositions of the Sister-kingdom. 'The Songs of Deardra,' are held by the Irish to be of equal, if not greater antiquity than those of Selma. As the poetry of a kindred people, it is similar in character; but those who are conversant with the subject of ancient Gaëlic versification and its peculiar idioms, will be able to say whether it carries the mark of so remote an era as is claimed for it.

heard the news. I took my boat and rushed upon the sea, regardless whether I should live or die," &c.* This is the 'Clan Uisneachan' of the Highlanders.

A few passages, too, from Cumraeg poets, will serve for comparison with their brother-bards among the Gaël. David ap Guilym, who is called the 'Welsh Ovid, flourished about 1370. His Ode to the Sun is a feeble effort compared with that of Ossian, and is less striking than those by Milton or Thomson. The allusions are commonplace, as 'ruler of the sky,' 'ornament of summer,' 'looking on the manly race of Cambrians,' &c., David ap Edmwnt, about 1450, composed a Monody on Sion Eos, a bard who was executed for manslaughter. The poet makes good use of the epithet Eos, nightingale, which was given for his mellifluous strains, and he sorely laments that the unfortunate man was not tried by the impartial laws of Howel the Good, which would have found the act justifiable. "A man," says David, "punished for an act in his own defence! Let misfortune fall on such as fail therein—of evils the lesser the better. Is the soul of the slain made happier, or his ghost appeased by life for life as an atonement? * * * Neither the passions of man, nor the virtue of angels was unmoved by the melody of his harp, which whirled the soul upon wings of ecstasy. * * * What have I said? they deprived him of life: he has life—their verdict only changed the scene of mortality for that of immortality. Their wilful judgment will have no effect in that court of equity, which is held at the gates of heaven. He now sings before the throne of mercy with an incorruptible harp." &c. It seems the weight of John the Nightingale in gold was offered for his ransom, but the days were long gone, when the law would be satisfied with an eric of any amount for such a crime.

Sion Tudor, who lived about 1580, is the author of an elegy on the death of twenty poets and musicians who departed this life in his own time. He names each individual with varied terms of praise and regret. The expressions are peculiarly bardic, and approximate to those of a much older generation. "It was God's pleasure," he observes, "to send for these men to hold a feast with him in heaven; may their souls enjoy the celestial mansion! Peace to their shades; their like will never more be seen. They are gone to their heavenly abode; let us hasten to follow."†

There is a decidedly Celtic and pleasing vein in these compositions, but there is not wild grandeur and elevated sentiment, that originality of conception and nervous expression, which characterize the works of the Gaëlic bards.

The Celtic poems were framed by the bard to suit the melody of the harp, the instrument sacred to the order; and to its music they were sung,—a music simple and natural, which long preceded the artificial and complicated. The peculiarity of the Scottish scale is well known as the enharmonic, consisting of six notes in the key of C, with C D E G A C, corresponding to the black keys in a piano. Defective as this scale may appear to be, it is admirably suited to express the passions in the effective tones of nature, the harmony of which is felt long previous to the adoption of scientific rules, and it strengthens our arguments for the unity of the ancient inhabitants of Scotland, that the melodies of the high and low country are invariably formed on the same scale, and possess the same character. The larger harp was strung with wire, and was the clarsach of the Gaël, the lesser being the cruit.

Cambreensis describes the Irish performances on this Celtic instrument in terms of great praise; and, had he visited North Britain, he would have had no reason to speak otherwise of the Scottish harping.

"The attention of this people to musical instruments, I find worthy of commendation ; (he was a bard himself,) in which their skill is beyond all comparison superior to any nation I have ever seen," &c. And he then describes the music as being quick, not slow and solemn as that of Britain, yet at the same time sweet and pleasing. Girald entertained a strong dislike to the Irish, which adds to the value of his favourable testimony. Major, the Scottish historian, who was rather willing to underrate his "upthrough" countrymen, in speaking of the musical acquirements of James I., says, in performing on the harp, he excelled the Hibernians or Highlanders, who were the best of all players on it.* Roderick Morrison, better known as Rorie dàll, being blind, was the last professional harper in the Highlands. He lived about 140 years ago, was of a respectable family, and well educated, three brothers being clergymen.†

The Ossianic class of poetry is usually sung or chanted in a kind of recitative, executed with the gravity due to such revered compositions. An old Highlander considered it becoming to take off his bonnet when reciting them, and the term laoidh, hymn, by which many are distinguished, indicates the veneration with which they were regarded. The Highlanders were accustomed to sing at all their employments, and it was an excellent stimulus, serving also to relieve the irksomeness of labour. Those Highlanders of Greece, the Arcadians, were remarkable for a similar practice, and it is thus very rationally accounted for by an ancient historian, whose observations are strikingly applicable to the Gaël. "Singing is useful to all men, but truly necessary to the Arcadii, who undergo great hardships ; for as the country is rugged, their seasons inclement, and their pastoral life hard, they have only this way of rendering nature mild and bearable ; therefore they train up their children from their very infancy, until they are at least thirty years of age, to sing hymns in honour of gods and heroes. It is no disgrace to them to be unacquainted with other sciences, but to be ignorant of music is a great reproach, &c."‡ We have a very curious account of the vocal attainments of the people by Giraldus, from which it appears they understood counterpoint ! "In the northern parts of Britain, the inhabitants

* Book VI. Hibernienses aut sylvestres Scotos. The sylvanian Scots were the Cearnaech a choile, the Highlanders of the woods, a term formerly applied to these active warriors. Hardiman, a compiler of Irish poetry who delivers himself with sufficient confidence on matters extremely doubtful, says, "Ireland gave its music to Scotland !" with equal justice the assertion may be made in the exact reverse, but would it prove the fact ? Speaking of the harp mentioned in the ancient poem which had passed through so many hands ; "this," says Mr H., like every other research connected with the natives of the Highlands, leads to their Irish origin." If any discovery were made to prove this notion, it would save authors from filling their pages with much unmeaning observation, and groundless and illiberal conceit. If we thought the acerbity of feeling in Mr Davies unbecoming, how could we have grappled with O'Reilly, whose work on the same sore subject, displays so transcendent a share of national prejudice !

use, in singing, less variety than the Welsh. They sing in two parts, one murmuring in the bass, the other warbling in the treble. Neither of the two nations acquired this by art, but by long habit which has made it familiar and national, and it is now unusual to hear a simple and single melody well sung, and what is more wonderful, their children from infancy sing in the same manner!"

There is nothing more remarkable in the Gaëlic mode of singing, than the repetitions of a verse, one or two lines, or sometimes a part of one in chorus, which adds much to the effect, and is a great means of diffusing a knowledge of songs, since by repeatedly joining in them, the whole must soon be impressed on the memory. These tunes or Luinigs are simple and touching, and the effect in a harvest-field is particularly pleasing. The person who sings leaves the chorus to the others, who all join, the leader taking up each succeeding verse.

The Iorrams or boat-songs are those by which seafaring men likewise alleviated the labour of rowing and managing the vessel, keeping time by the motion of the oars, and relieving the singer by carrying out the chorus. When at home, and at social entertainments, the whole company join hands or modulate time by plaids and handkerchiefs passed from one to another. All these songs were formed for the harp or the voice alone—there could be no vocal accompaniment to the bagpipe.

There is a very curious method of singing peculiar to the Welsh. It is called Penillion, and consists in adapting verses to the harper's tunes while performing, without any previous knowledge of the order in which they will follow, and it is thus performed, as we have observed at a bardic Eisteddwyd. A harper is brought forward, and around him are seated several persons who are the Penill singers. He commences playing, when one of the party joins him by a song—the harper presently changes the tune; the other as promptly alters his verse, and when he chooses to stop, another takes up the air, and so it goes round. But the true penillion is the extemporary production of a verse or verses to the tune, and it is remarkable that this improvisitorial feat is frequently accomplished with astonishing success, by persons quite illiterate. Many of those 'poetical blossoms' display great command of language and considerable genius.*

After the period when Ossian, Orain, Ullin, Fergus, Fonar, Douthal, and other unknown bards flourished, which reaches to the union of the Pictish and Scottish kingdoms, there seems to have been for a long time few poets of any note. About the end of the 13th

* Walter in Dissert. de Bardis, gives a couplet which he pronounces grand.

'Tan a dwr yn ymwiaw,
Yw'r taranau dreigiau draw.'

Is water warring with aerial fire.

Many of these epigrammatic stanzas are preserved. The following on a silkworm is curious as being formed without a consonant.

O'i wiw wy i weu e â, aia weuan
O'i wyau y weua;
E weua ei wê aia,
A'i, weua yw ieuau iâ !

I perish by my art; dig my own grave; I spin my thread of life; my death I weave!

century, a revival took place; and, since then, numerous bards of acknowledged excellence have from time to time appeared, besides those of lesser note whose songs were of too local and circumscribed a range for general popularity. Had any compositions of sufficient worth been produced in this dark interval in the history of Highland bardism, they would no doubt have been handed down, like those of older date.

In this essay, to illustrate that distinguished order in Celtic society, the bards—the system under which they so long flourished, beneficially exerting their accorded power, a picture has been given, rather of that which formerly existed, than what could have been witnessed in many by-gone generations. It was among the Gaël, that the primitive manners and usages were preserved, when elsewhere they were suppressed or amalgamated with those of the conquerors. Under pretence of abolishing a mischievous superstition, the Emperors prohibited the practice of druidism; but although the ‘Romans carried their gods as far as they did their eagle, they were not able to extend the one or the other over the mountains of Caledonia.’ Little, however, it has been seen, is to be found here or elsewhere concerning this religious belief. Most of the historians, who allude to druidism, flourished when the phenomenon had nearly disappeared, and ‘all that they have done, serves only to excite our curiosity without satisfying it, and to make us regret the want of a history, which seems to have been replete with instruction and entertainment.’

If the age of bardism, in its primary sense, is gone, it is satisfactory to preserve a memorial of what it was, and evidence of its present state. In the following pages are the flowers and blossoms of Gaëlic poetry, culled with careful discrimination, and without the encumbrance of redundant stems and foliage.

The piper is now held in the same esteem as the harper of old, and his performance is a noble substitute for the softer strains of the clarsach; but would not a bard in his multifarious office, combining poet, historian, genealogist, &c., be a useful and becoming personage in the train of a chief? At a Highland banquet about fifty years ago, a call was made for the bards to be brought to the upper end of the room. “The bards are extinct,” observed Mac Nicail of Scoirebreac. “No,” quickly rejoined Alastair buidh Mac Ivor, “but those who patronised them are gone!”

A' CHEUD EARRAN*

Am beil thus' air sgiathan do luathais,
A ghaoth, gu triall le t-uile neart?
Thig le cairdeas dh'ionnsuidh m' aois—
Thoir sgrìob aotrom thar mo chraig.
Co-aos m' oige ghlaic an t-aog,
'S uaingeach m' aigne 'n uamh mo bhròin;
'S mòr'mo leon fo lamh na h-aos.
Osag tha 'g astar o thuath,
Na dean tuasad rium, 's mi lag.
Bha mi uair gu'n robb mo cheum
Cho aotrom riut fein, a ghaoth;
Mo neart mar chraig a Chruaidh-mhill,
'S ionadh cath 's na bhual mi beum;
'S tric taibhse mo naimhdean ag astar,
Le ceum lag, o bheinn gu beinn.
Ach thig àm do bhoirn-sa, ghaoth,
'N uair dhireas tu 'n t-aonach gu mall.
Cha'n imrich thu neoil thar coill,
'S cha lùb a choille fo d' laimb,
'S cha gheill am fraoch anfhan fein.—
Ach togaidh gach geug an ceann.
Bi-sa baigheil riom-s', a ghaoth,
Oir tha 'n aois ort fein ro theann.

Cuir lasair ri geug do'n ghalla,
A shealgair coire 's aille snuadh.
Tha 'n oidhche siubhal o'n ear,

* The Author of this Poem, whose name is Douthal, was both a Chief and a Bard of great repute. The accounts which tradition gives of him are various; but the most probable makes him the Poet of Mordubh, King of the Caledonians. A fragment of this Poem has been published in Gillies' Collection, in two Parts, consisting of the First, and nearly half the Second Part. It is now given in three Parts entire; and differs not materially from the Translation given in "Clark's Caledonian Bards"—a small Volume published in the last century.

Tha ghrian a' critheadh 's an iar,
D'fhosgail eilean Fhlaitheis sa' chuan,
Tri uairean dorsan nan nial,
A glaochaich, " Dean cabhag thar a chuan
Le d' chuach-fhalt àluinn, a ghrian."
Tha neoil dubh siubhalach na h-oidhche,
Gun aoibhneas alr chùl nan tonn;
'S tric iad ag amhare do thriall,
A ghnuis àluinn tha 'g astar o'n ear.
Ach eiribh le 'r sgiathan o'n chuan,
A neoil dhorch nan ionadh gruaim.
Tha sgàilean nan sonn o shean,
Tabhairt cuireadh do'n ghrein gu flath-innis.*

Beannachd le ribhinn chiùin do ruin,
Buaidh le d' shaighed air gach beinn,
A shealgair, tha tabhairt dhomh treòir,
'S mi leointe fo laimh na h-aos'!
Ach suidh thusa ann am uaimh,
A's eisd ri tuasad ghaoth a's chrag;
Innsidh mi dhut sgeul is mor brìgh,
Air suinn tha sìnte fo'n lic:
'S taitneach na smaointean a thriall;
'S miannach dreach nam bliadhna dh-fhalbh!
Pill thusa, m' oige, le t-uile ghniomh,
A's fench do m' anam bliadhnu' mo neirt;
Feuch gach cath 's na bhual mi beum,
A's airm nan laoch bha treubhach borb,
Thugaidh suill o neoil 'ur suain.
'Fheara bha cruidh anns gach cath,
Cloinnidh 'ur clann fuaim 'ur cliù,

* The Sun was supposed to sleep in Flath-innis, the Isle of Heroes, in the western ocean. The human mind has been in every age ambitious of obtaining a happy hereafter. The Kelts, indulging in this pleasant presentiment, sent the ghosts of their departed friends to this imaginary paradise.

'S thig sileadh an sùl gu lär.
Tha m' anam a soillseachadh le gniomh,
Nam bliadhna dh-fhalbh, a's nach pill.

Dh-fhalach a ghealach a ceann,
Bha cadal reultan air chul neoil;
Cabhadh ghaoth a's chuan o chian,
Bu gharbh an cath 'bhu edar stuaidh,
A's sileadh ghailbheach nan speur,
N uair dh' eirich co-shamhlà Shailmhoir,*
O leabaidh fhuar sa' gharbh chuan;
A siubhal air bharraibh nan stuagh,
S a ghaoth' cur meanbh chath mu'n cuairt,
Dh' eirich mac an aoig air sgiath
Na h-osaig, gu gruaidh Chraigmoir;
'S bha anail fhiadhaich nan nial,
Ag eiridh ma shleagh gun ghuin.
Ag amharc anuas o leabaidh fhuaire,
Bu mhòr a bridh a bha 'na ghuth:
"Duisgibh! chlann Alba nam buadh,
'S garbh colg "ur naimhdean o thuath;
A' gluasad air bharraibh nan toun,
Tha clanna Lochluinn† nan lom long.
Eiribh! chlann Alba nam buadh,
'S mor neart ur naimhdean o thuath."
Air sgiath na h-osaige fuair'
Dh-fhalbh mac na h-oidhche gu luath.
Lüb an darach garbh fo chasan,
'S chrith gach gallan roi' fheirg.
"Tionailibh mo shuinn o'n t-seilg,"
Thubhairt Ceann-feadhna na h-Alba,
"Soillsichibh srad air Druim-Finne,
A's thig mo laoch o ghruaidh gach beinne."
Labhair Mordubh, Righ nan srath,
'S lionar crag tha 'g innseadh sgéil.
Chuala clann a chath am fonn,
A's leum iomadh lanu għlas amach.
Dh' eirich a mhadainn san ear,
A's dh' iarr i air sian gaibhleach gluasad.
B' aluinn, maiseach, fiamm na greine
Tigh'nn amach gu ciùin o'n chuan;
'Boilsgéadh a gathan air arm
Nan laoch mèr-bhuadhach anns gach cath.

Air adhart dh' eirich Ciabh-ghlas treun,
A's iomadh sleagh air chul Cheann-aird.
Tha Treunmor a tional a shluaign;
'S cuim' am bi Mordal air dheireadh.
Labhair Ciabh-ghlas, bu mhor aois,
"Co chunnaiac Sunar o thuath?
Am beil e togail iomadh sleagh?

* Tradition says that Salmor was drowned in passing from the mainland to his own house in one of the Hebrides, on hearing that his wife was taken prisoner, and his lands laid waste by Tuthmar, a Chief of Norway, whose father Salmor is said to have killed in battle.

Ge fann mi'n diugh auns a chath,

"Ni m' beil a d' neart, no d' chrnadal feum."
Thuirt Mac-Corbhui bu bheag cliù,
"S treun meamnach, Sunar o thuath.
Tha gathan na greine a leum
Mu'n cuairt a dh' eideadh an t-scoid.
Tha suinn gharbh neartar ri thaobh,
Is ard a choille tha lùbadh fo chasan.
Tha creagan Thir-mhoir beag fo cheum,
'S trom colgar, gaibhleach righ Lochluinn,
'S cha toir Siol Alb' air buaidh."

CIABH-GLAS.

"Imich thus' a ghealtaire chlaoi
Gu aiseiridh shàmhach nam ban,
Tha t' anam air chrith mar dhuille naine,
A għluiseas roimh anail nan speur,
Mar thuiteas i roi' fluachd a għeamhraidi,
Teich thusa o na naimhdean borb:
Ach is ioma' craobh għarbh sa bheinn so
A sheasas 'n uair is gaibhleach sian.
Is tric thainig naimhdean o thuath,
Ach buuannachd cha tug iad riām.
Imich thusse mhieġ gun chliù,
Gu aiseiridh chuil nan daioen crion'.
Mur biodeh aige-san tha gun chliù,
Naimhdean nach bu mhò na thu,
B' aobhar eagail nach b' fliu dha
Airm a rusgadh sa chath.
A feith air Clainn Lochluinn o thuath,
Bi 'n cruaidh lannan fuitteach o'n taobb.
Chualas t' fhacail hu bheag stà,
A mhieġ an ardain tog do ghāth."

Dh' eirich dà shleagh gu h-àrd—
Bha rusgadh lann air gach taobb.
Dhuisg anis neart na h-Alba,
Chum garbh chath thabhairt dh'i fein:
Ach, thainig sgiath laidir an t-sluaigh,
Righ aluinn Albainn a nuas,
Le corruiħ mhor, 's le trom għruaim,
Dh' amhira e air na suinn län fuath.
Bha shuul gu fiadhaq ag siubhal,
Gu dubħach o fhear gu fear;
Air eagħ gu tuiteadħ an sluagh,
Borb luath ag imēachd bha ghuth:
"Na ruiseadħ lann a chloinn na fairge,
Na canaibh gu leaq sibh sinn.
Is tric dh' eirich sleagh ur 'n athraiche;
Is lionar an cill air ar tràigh;
Ach 's auibhim duibhs', a chlann Lochluinn,
Leagar Alba le h-afraim fein!"

Làn maslaidh bho fheirg an righ,
Shiubħail na laoħi a dħuisg an stri;

Mar dhà neul tha siubhal air càrn,
 'Nuir shiubblas a ghrian air mìn dhriuchd :
 Dubhach bha na glinn roi ' ceum,
 Ag amharc an tighinn an deoir nan speur.
 Cha 'n fhìù leo an cnocan crion,
 Tha triall chum gruaidh Ard-chraig.
 Mar sin a shiubblas na suinn,
 An coinneamh a naimhdean borb.
 Air adhart tha ceum righ Alba,
 Mar gharbh chraig an aghaidh tuinn mhoir,
 'N uair chruinnicheas na stuaidh,
 A tabhairt garbh chath do thulte.

Mar ghaoth oïdhche shiubblas air speur,
 Thainig clapa Lochluinn nan sleagh ;
 Cha siubhall osag na h-aonar,
 'S ann comhla tha dubh ghruaim nan sian.
 Dh' eirich airm Albainn gu h-hard,
 Mar thairneanach tha gairm nan cnoc ;
 Mar thuiteas dà chlach o bheinn aird,
 'S iad tachairt air ùrlar a glinn',
 Mar sin bha toiseach garbh a chath,
 Is iomadh nàmh a thuit leinn.
 Bha uamhann a bhlaire air an fhraoch—
 Bha tuilte fala mu shleagh Cheann-ard ;
 B' iomadh creubhag a lot Mordal—
 Bu chruidh, borb, flathail, gach fear.
 Ach co b' urrainn seasadh roi' cheud ?
 Chunnaic an Righ ar ceum air ais ;
 Las anam a ghaisgich le feirg,
 'S àllt dearg a leanaitt a shleagha ;
 Bha taibhsean a naimhdean mu'n cuairt,
 Ach fad' uaith fein bha na laoch.
 Thainig e mu dheireadh nan deigh,
 Mar thonn a tuitean o'n chreig ;
 'S tric a dh' iarr an fhairg air direadh—
 S tric a thilg an stiadh e bho bhonn ;
 Tha gàraich a chomh-strì garg,
 'S am barr glas briseadh 's a ghaioth,

C' uime tha thu gruamach 's an iar,
 A ghrian àluinn ag astar nan nial ?
 Cha b' anfhannd pa suinn—
 Cha do theich sinn roi' n mheata.
 'S tric chuir neoil dhorch smal ort fein,
 An aimsir ghaibheach nan sian.
 Ach 'n uair théid fògradh air a ghaioth,
 'S théid caonnag nan speur gu taobh ;
 'N uair bheir thu smachd air na neoil,
 'S a ghlacas a ghaoth air do laimh ;
 'N uair sheallas tu airne nuas,
 'S do chuach fhalt àluinn a sniomh ;
 'N uair bhios fiambh ghàir air do ghnuis,
 'S mòr aoibhneas 'g éideadh gach cnuic—
 'S aighearach leinn do bhuaidh 's na speuran,
 A's beannaichidh sinn do ghathan, a ghrian.
 Imich gu d' leabaidh le ceòl,
 Thusa tha measg nan reultan mòr ;

Bheir sinne buaidh fathasd,
 Ged' tha sinn a nochd fo leòn.

AN DARA H-EARRANN.

Tri uairean chrath an oïdhche
 A sgìath dubh, cheòthach, 's an ear ;
 Tri uairean sheall na reultan,
 Mar neoil ghruamach nan speur.
 Bha osnadh thamailte nan laoch,
 'S a ghaioth ag astar nan càrn ;
 Bha co-shambla nan sonn o shean,
 Le corruiach ag siubhal nam beann.
 Chualas trom osnaidh nam marbh,
 'S b' anfhannd an guth 's na neoil ;
 Chuimhinch sinne gaisg' an lamh,
 A's ghabh sinn tamaile mhìdr.

Air ard-chraig dh' amhaire an righ,
 'S liònar gaisgeach bha fo ghruaim ;
 Bha 'n smaointeán soillear dha fein,
 A's labhair e le briathraibh cruaidh.
 Air cuius 'n uair laidheas gruaim,
 Théid fuadach an cridhe crion,
 'S théid fir fhann gu luath fo dhionu ;
 Togaidh an calma cheann roi 'ghailleanu ;
 'S cha bhi fiambh taise na ghnuis.
 Tha ceuman nan sian 's an doire,
 'S cha lùb an darach a ghlùn.
 Abraibh sibhse Chinn-fheadhna,
 An tainig sinn o dhaoinne crion !
 Au ann do gheuga fann ar sleagh ?
 O dharach Alba nam mor ghniomh,
 'S tric thainig naimhdean o thuath,
 'S cuin a theich ar sinnisir gun bhuaidh ?
 An geill sibhse do chloinn na fairge,
 Far am b' àbhaist taibhse nan naimhdean
 Leum bho osaig gu h-osaig,
 Le trom osnadh bhròin nam marbh ?
 Tha chlach ud le mòintich liath
 A cumail cuimhne air treun laoich,
 Ag radh, " Cha do theich ar n' athraiche riamh,
 Fhearanh leanaibh dian an lorg ! "

Ag eisdeachd ri briathran an righ,
 Bu dubhach bha na suinn mu'n cuairt.
 Ag amharc claidheamh, sgiath, a's sleagh,
 'S le facail gun bhrigh ann a chluais.

Sheas Morcheann, Triath Allt-duibh,
 Tri uairean chrath e sgiath,
 Tri uairean bhuail e an darach ;
 " Ainmic bha mo bhuillean fann.
 Ainmic fhuair mo naimhdean buaidh ;
 Ge d' thug bladh' air falbh mo neart,
 Ni 'm beil gealtachd am ghruaidh.
 Shaoil leam gu'n togadh mo mhac
 Mo leac, 's gu cùireadh e mo cheann.

Chaoiadh ni 'n togar sgiath, no leac
Le oigeair flathail nan deas lann,
Bha cheum air adhart sa chath' ;
Ach d' fhaillig gach caraid mu 'n cuairt.
Bha iomadh namhaid na strì ;
'S thuit an laoch roi' mhile sluaigh."
" Beannachd" ars 'an righ, " do'n laoch,
Ach na aonar ni 'm faod e falbh ;
Theid Ceann-feedhna nochd na lorg ;
S dorch do choigrich tanh nam marbh."

Ghlac Ogan Mac-Chorbuiddh a sgiath,
An diomhainn duinn gu eiridh grein'
Nan' dean sibh feathamh da'r luchd mì-rùin ?
An sin do labhair Ceannard treun,
'S tric thug siol Albainn an t-slige chiuin ;
Ach c' uin a thainig bàs air coigrich,
'N uair a thachair iad le inùirn ?
Is trubhach, maiseach, linn Lochluinn,
A's buinig sinn fòs ar cliù.
Ciod uime thuiteamaid mar neul,
Thig le sgleo bho linn bhuirn,
A suamhl as air bharraibh nam beann,
'N uair chaidhleas a ghealach fo shuain,
'S a chrathas gaillion clachan trom',
'S fiamb eagail air rionnag nan sian ?
Crathaidh mhadainn a ceann 's an ear,
'S eiridh a ghrian le cuach-fholt ciuin ;
Biodh solus a gath' air gach sgiath,
'S bàs a gearradh aimh gach suinn.

A cur air sgiath Dhunairm,
Deir Morfhalt,* fauaibh gach laoch,
Air an tog lamh mhìn-gheal leac,
Ach laidhidh mise nochd air fraoch.
Cha bhi deoir air gruaidh am dheigh—
Cha 'n eirich clach le mo chliù—
Cha 'n abain athair—" mo mhac,"
No gruagach—" mo chreach, mo rùin !"
Lot mo shaighead uchd na ribhinn,
Bha tlachdar thar mhile mnà.
Bha fuil mo chairdean ag cur smùid,
Dheth na h-airm dhu'-ghorm 'n am laimh ;
Bu naimhdean a dh'-Alba, m'athraiche,
Aig Righ Lochluinn, b' ainmeil iad.
B'aite leam siubhal na fairge,
Thog sìa gaisgich bhorb mo bhreid.
Thainig gaoth le cabhaig o thuath,
'S thog na stuaidh le feirg an druin ;
Bha meanbh chathadlu g-eiridh mu'n cuairt,
S neoil ghuamach ag astar os-cinn.
Dh' eirich Albainn air bharr tuinn,

* Morfhalt was a Scandinavian. His history, as given by himself, is full of the most affecting incidents. His character is distinguished by valour in the highest degree, and unshaken fidelity, to the Chief of Dunarm, who so hospitably received him on landing in Scotland, and to whom he occasioned the greatest misfortune—the loss of his family!

'S chrath gach doir' an ciabh le failte.
Bha sibhleann görm gu ceolmhòr, binn,
Le cathadh mìn bho cheann ar bàrc.
Be Dunairm ceann-uighe nan coigreach,
A's shìn an Ceannard gasd' a lamb.
'S e beatha clann Lochluinn an Albainn,
'N uair bhios meirg flochaidh air an lamb,
'S liomar ar feidh, a's làn ar sligean ;
'S tha clù a's misneach 'n ar sgeul ;
'S cuime chítéar gruaim air coigreach ?
Chaidh sùrd le sòlas air cuirm ;
B' aoibhinn leinn còmhchrudh ar sìth ;
'S bheannaich sinn naimhdean ar tir !

Mar ghath greine air madainn chiuin,
'N uair chromar le drìuchd gach geug,
Bha Min-bhàs an talla na mìurin,
A's iomadh laoch toirt suil na deigh ;
Ach, thug i a rùn do Mhorfhalt.
Agam cha robh sliabh no suinn ;
Bha mi am aonar sa chath,
Thuit naimhdean Lochluinn le m' laimh—
Thuit, 's cha d' eirich mo chliù.
Imich thusa, ars' an oigh,
Gu cathaibh righean céin ;
Eireadh do chliù-sa fad as,
A's cluinnidh Min-bhàs an sgeul.
Raineas righ Eirinn nan sleagh,
A's thuit a naimhdean le m' lainn ;
Sheinn am bard, as fad' thar chuan
Chualas m' iomradh gu fial.
B' fhaoilidh oighen Innse-fail,
Le 'n lamhan mìn-gheala caoin,
Romham gu furanach fial,
Ach ni 'n d' fhuair a h-aon mo ghradh.
'N tra thraoigh fearg, 's a phill sith,
Phill mi gu òigh nam bàs mìn.
'N uair dh' eirich Dunairm gu h-ard,
Bha ghrian na tamh an cluan seamh,
'S a ghealach a siubhal gu luath
O nial gu nial le baoisge geal—
Thainig guth air osaig na h-oidhiche,
O chirb an doire ud thall,
Mar ghuth na maidne cubhraidh,
Air aiseag gu m' ebluais gu mìn mall :
" Imich, 's ma thuiteas tu ghuaidh,
Mo shuilean bi'dh silteach gach trà."
Chrith m'anam le eagal am eliabh,
Mar nach robh e roimhe riamh.
Chunnacas Min-bhàs nan gaol
Le àrmunn gasda ri taobh.
Lùb mi 'n tiubbar, ag radh—
" A shaighead ruig cridhe na ceilg"
Nior rachadh an laoch an cein,
A bhuidhean clù do chridhe 'n ardain.
Raining an guin nimhe a taobh,
A's chlaon an oigh-mhìn air tom.
Bha cuach-fholt dearg le fuil,

A's dh'imir a h-osnadh air osaig na h oidhche.
 Cion a thainig guin an aoig?"
 Thuirt an laoch, le guth ard,
 "O laimh an fir nach bu tais,"
 A's thog mi an t-sleagh am laimh.
 A mhacain na h-oidhche uaignidh,
 Thuirt an t-dg le mor iognadh,
 "Tha neart a d' laimh, a ghaisgich
 'N uair is faoin do nàmh.
 Nior thog an gaisgeach a shleagh,
 Le cridhe gun ădhadh, gun ghean.
 Falbhaidh do thaibhse duaichnidh,
 Le macaibh na gaoithe duibh';
 Far nach tog do lámhan lann,
 'S nach guin do shaighead cridhe gaoil."

B' fhad a ghreis thug sinn,
 Cha chualas Min-bhás le gáin airm;
 Thuit a shleagh o laimh mo nàmh;
 A's chlaon e fadheoigh air an fhraoch.
 Thainig ghealach o neoil;
 A's chunnacas mo charaidh na fhuil.
 "An do thuit thu, bhrathair ghaoil?"
 Thuirt an òigh, 's an t-aog na beul
 "'S nach faic t-athair thu pilleadh o n t-seilg?"

O ! Mhorfhuilt an tìr chein,
 Caite an eirich do shleagh?
 Cha chluinn thu guth mo bhrathar fein,
 Cur failt ort till le d' chliù.
 Ach uair eigin thig an laoch,
 A's togaidh e 'n uaign da rùin,
 Tharuinn mi 'n t-saighead o'n chreuchd—
 S a h-uichd mìn-gheal air a lot!
 A's shil mo dheoir le braonaibh fala
 Na h-ighinn, 's a suilean a plogadh
 N uair chun' i lànn Mhorfhuilt na fuil,
 'S gread i mar thannasg, a's theich
 A taibhse air neulaibh na gealaich.
 Ceithir chlachan le 'n còinnteich llath
 Thogadh sud mu uaigh an laoch :
 Ga chòir sin an suain na tâmh,
 Tha 'n ribhinn bu ghile taobh.

Sileadh oighean deoir a bhròn;
 A's seinnidh na h-eoin gu tiambahaidh
 Mu dhoire nan neultan dorcha.
 Rè na h-oidhche ag eisdeachd na gaoitn',
 Bha neoil dhubb dol tharum luath ;
 A's clann an adhair, gu d' thicich
 Le mòr gheilt, toirt dhomh-sa fuath !
 Tha Ceannard Dhunairm na ouar,
 Ili bròn, 's a sileadh dheur ;
 Air uairbh thig e gan còir ;
 A's cluinnear a leon air a ghaoith.
 Cha tog es-an a shleagh ni 's mò,
 Ach coinnichidh a namh ma shleagh.
 Thuit Mac Dhunairm le m' laimh—

Thuit Mìn-bhás fo dhaillre na gealaich.
 An ré na gealaiche nuaidh,
 Théid mi an caramh an t-sluaigh,
 Cha 'n eil mùirn an talla Dhunairm,
 Theid mi, a righ ; ach ni' m pill ;
 Siubhlaidh mi mar ghruaim nan speur,
 A sheideas gu cruidh air an raon,
 'N tra sheargas na luibhean maoth,
 Le anail fhuar na h-eigh-reotha.
 Laidh an damh aig steigh na carraig ;
 'S tha ennlaidh luath gun cheòl.
 Tha' n darach gun duilleach uaine.
 Tha círb an doire ri crathadh ;
 A's sian an adhair ga ghuasad.
 Théid an duine ga theach,
 O fhearg na doinione fuair' ;
 Ach sealhaidh athair na soillse
 Air na raoin, 's iad brònach.
 Dearsaigh a chiabhan le maise ;
 A's fògraids se namhaid nan luibh ;
 Crathaidh na enuic an gruaim air falbh,
 'S ni fàilte ris a dol seach.

Suidhbh sibhse so gu là,
 A Cheann-feadha nan slogh,
 A's tutidh mise am aonar,
 A measg ur naimhdean is geur colg ;
 Nach abrar, "Nach toir sibh buaidh,
 Chionn gu'm beil mi fhein na'r measg."

'S muladach do sgeul r'a luadh,
 A Mhorfhuilt," se thuirt an Righ,
 "Ach ni 'n tuit thu ad' aonar sa chath,
 'S clann Alba an so na'n suain.
 Mar dhealu thu an am na stri,
 Ach coigil do chairdean a Mhorfhuilt,
 Tuitidh fadheireadh an treum,
 Treigidh samhradh an àidh,
 'S thig geamradh le ghruaim gun bhàidh.
 Bha Min-bhás am madainn a h-òige,
 Mar dheò greine am barraibh ògain ;
 'S co dheanadh còmhrag na fheirg,
 Ri mac Dhunairm a bha targ ?
 Cha do laidh e gun a chliù,
 Auns a chrià'-thaigh chumhann chaol.
 Gu b' iomräiteach a ghaisge, 's an dàn,
 Sheinn na baird gu blasda binn.
 Ach tha sleagh t-athar, a Mhorfhuilt,
 Fo smal an ad' lamh sa 'n uairs' ;
 Cha tog thu i 'n agaidh ar nàmh—
 Cha bhi fuli t-athar air do chruaidh."

'S i sleagh Cheannaird Dhuinairm,
 A tha dearg le fuli a nàmh.
 Cha togar ma lann sa chath,
 Tha i *sìnte làimh' ri m' ghradh.

* The ancient custom of laying the implements of war, and of the chase, in the grave with the fallen hero, has

Bu ladair an lamh a liobl
 An t-sleagh so a th' agam fhein ;
 Ach tha e coimhead an taibhse,
 A threig uaith air raon na nial.
 S an toir a naimhde buaidh,
 Air athair an lài a shean aois ?
 Cha toir—'s e na chiaobhan liath,
 O righ, 'n tra thogam-sa sleagh.

A's tog e a laoich le buaidh,
 Arsa Ceannard bu mhòr clìù,
 Ach, eisd ri truaighéan is mó.
 Bha mo thuireadh sì faraoan,
 Airson Ainnir a chaidh aog ;
 Ach n'i'n toir acain, no bròu,
 Air ais dhuinn air dreami tha fo'n fhòd.
 Bu mhaiseach air sliabh Culàluinn,
 Ainnir nan lamh geala, caoin ;
 Dubh mar fhitheach bha a falt,
 'S bha broalach mar eal' air caol.
 Thigeadh smal air dearsadh, gach òigh',
 An lathaир nigh'n Shonmhoir nan Rath
 Gu'm b' àluinn mathair mo chloinne !
 A bha fonnar an talla a chiùl.
 Thainig nighean Aonair nan Sleagh,
 Da'n robh mo rùn an tùs m' oige ;
 'S ghabh a suil bu mhòr goin,
 Culàluinn, am maise mnà.
 Na h-aonar fhuar i mo rùn,
 A's labhair i rithe am foil ;
 Nach ionmuinn siubhal' an lo,
 'S cubhraidi' Chnlàluinn am beith.
 Tha fir na seilg air beanntaibh cian ;
 Thràigh a mhùir fada null,
 Fagail a carraig sa ghaoth bhlàth.
 A nighean Shailmhoir nam bäs mìn
 Rachamaid siar gun dàil.
 Chaidh iad tro choille nan crann,
 'S fo charraig àird mu'n iadh an cuan,
 Chaidil Culàluinn bu gheal snudh.
 Cheangail a ghuineid mhna
 A falt amlagach grinn,
 Na dhuail ri feamainn nan tonn ;
 A's thill i uaipe, cridhe bà !
 Le h-aighear mu gniomh nach àdh.
 Thain an fhairge tonn air thonn,
 A's dhuisg Culàluinn á suain,
 A's b' ioghna' lea ceangal a gruaige.
 O fhasgail mo leadan, a ghraidih ?
 Nach truagh leat fhein mi, òigh !
 C' uime bhuiu thu rium cho bà,
 'S mo mhacain aillidi am dheigh !
 Fhreagair mac talla nan creug, been observed here by Moralt. Abandoned to despair, he probably regarded his spear as of no further use to him ; and, as the only proof he could give of his affection for the deceased, who so unfortunately fell by his hand, he laid it in her grave. Dunarm, being weak through age, gave him his own spear, and made him his adopted son.

Ach bha nighean Aonair uaithe cian.
 Thainig tonn bâiteach thar sgeir,
 'S na dheigh cha chualas a h-eigh.
 D'fhagadh i na còdaibh-eun,
 'N tra threig a bhuinn' an sgeir ;
 Tri trathan dh'i bhi mar neul,
 Air aigéal na mara ud shios.

Ach ni'n tearmunn dhut gu bràth,
 A Ghuineid, do bhrathair baoth.
 Thuit an laoch le 'm gheur lann,
 Ged' dhion e mi aon uair sa chath.
 Laimh ris ann an suram suain,
 Laidh thusa a b' uabhracha gniomh ;
 Is minig an aisling na h-oidhche,
 Thig do thaibhse le droch fhiamh.
 Ach a Chuil-àill an fhuilt duibh,
 Is ionmuinn leam thus' am shuain !
 Thig thu gun chith, gun cholc,
 'S cha sheun fear cuairt do chòmhnaidh,
 'N tra dh' eireas gealach gun smal.
 Is minig a chluinnear do ghuth,
 Roi' thighinn mò doimionna ghairbh'.
 Chuinnidh am maraich' an eigh,
 A's gabhaidh tamh fo sgeith na creige ;
 A coimhead nan tonn gun bheud,
 Is caomh leis eigh nam boghannan,
 Ged' eireadh iad ard san duibhre !
 Amhui a thuit mo chaomh, a Mhorfhuilt,
 A's dh' eirich mo shleagh le buaidh ;
 Cha mhaireann aon ghràdh air thalamh,
 A's leagar mor ghaisgeach san uaign.

Dh' aithris Ceannard sgeula bhròin,
 'S am feachd bha todach trom !
 Bhrùchadh osnaidh a' chleibh,
 'N tra dh' aithris e sgeula na truaighe.
 'S an doire dhailreach bha thaofn,
 Cha d' ghluais an osag am fraoch mìn ;
 Cha do shiubhail na neoil thar bheinn,
 'S ni'n robh sian an ciabh nan crag ;
 Bha gach crann a's lus an sìth,
 A's laidh a ghaoth a sios gu grad.
 Ciod tha dearsadh san ear,
 Faoin chruth le fàite gaire ?
 Tha ghealach na cadal gu seamh,
 'S ni'm beil a ghrian a tighin air faire.
 'S i oige an uchd creuchdaich a th' ann,
 Le mile solas tighin' na deann.
 Min-bhas gu Mhorfhalt an tìr chein,
 A tha giulan sgeith a h-athar.
 Ni'm beil a h-imeachd am feirg,
 Is caomh i air an leirg gu h-ard.
 Cuir fuadach fo smalan na h-oidhche,
 Tha *reull na maidne na dearna ;
 A tighin' mar dhearsadh am moch thrà,
 Toirt fios duinn mu eiridh na greine.

* Moidearg-mhadne.

C' uime tha t-imeachd cho luath,
Ainnir shuairee's gile gnùis ?
Ach dh-fhag thu mbadainn òg 'na t-àite,
Is caomh leth-dheàlrach do chruth ;
Thar bhadan ceathaich na leirge,
A dh-fhalbas ro' eiridh na greine.

AN TREAS EARRAN.

Bha briseadh na faire 's an ear,
'S theich duibhre air sgiathan luathais :
Dh' imich na reultan fad as ;
'S bha ghrian a togail a cinn àidh,
'N tra thog am bàrd a ghuth.

Chuir Sunar, Ceann-feadhna nan laoch,
Tha treun mar charraig nan 'tonn,
Mar chnoc air thir-mor nach gluaisear,
Mise thugaibh, shiol nam beann.
Tha fhirenn air sgiathan ro threun ;
'S tha sheobhaig ma cheum gu luath ;
Bha fhithich ma loma long !
Air imeachd nan cuaintean mòr.
An tabhair eanann na tìr'
A shuinn dhaibh mar chlosaich ?
Na 'n tuit e sios do'n ghaisgeach,
Ag tabhairt feidh a shleibhteard ?
Uaibhse, theich o'n chath,
Tha Siol Lochluinn nan sleagh geur,
Ag iarraidh freagairt gu grad.

'S ard guth Shunar gun ag,
Phildh dhàn nan ciabhan liathai :
Tha briathran labhar neo-mheat',
A chionn nach eil a naimhdean lionmhor.

Ach, suidh thes' air an fhraoch,
A mhacain nam fonn is binn' ;
A's theid an t-slige làn mu'n cuairt ;
Cha 'n eil ar fuath air clann nam fonn ;
A's pill a rithisid, gu foil,
Gu Righ Lochluinn, a ghlòir nach àdh ;
Innis dha gu'm beil eunlaidh nan sliabh,
Air sgiath an dèis an creich fein.
Thigeadh e le mhiltean sloigh ;
Tha neart n'ar eridhe-ne 'ta mòr

Chual am bard briathran an Righ,
A's dh-fhalbh e 'n ardan a chri :
Bha aithris nan taibhse na chuairt,
O'n chunnaike e 'n sluagh a thuit.*
Mar thig an doireann bho thuath,

* The bard, leaving the adverse host, reflected on the high spirit of either army, and inferred the effects that would naturally ensue. Being inspired with such thoughts, he looked forward with a prophetic eye, and pronounced the fall of the people. Hence often the ground of belief in the second sight.

Le gaoth luath a's nialta flieuch,
A tuirlinn o ghruidhean nam beann,
Nuas air aonach, ghlinn, a's shlochd—
Mar sin thainig Sunar le shuinn.
Bha 'n sgiathan mar nialaibh na h-oidhche—
Bha 'n aghaidh mar reultan a' lasadh,
'S na plathanaibh duibhreach, nialach.

Chaidh neart na h-Alba air adhart,
Mar ghailbheann thoum le gair,
Tha g' imeachd an neart nan sian,
Tha glusad o chian gu h-àrd.
Cluinnidh an maraiche an toirm,
'S le fiamh theid e na dhàil,
O nach urr' e nis a sheachnad,
Tha g' iomairt air aghaidh na bhàrc.

Cia mar dh'aithriseam fein
Gniomhan euchdach 'ur n-arm ?
A shealgair Choirre-nan-stùc,
Chunna' do shuil Mor-chreag—
A tha togail a chinn gu h-àrd,
'S a gabhail nan nial na chiaibh,
O mhulach tha tòirleum a nuas,
Le taimrich o ghruidh na craig,
Sruth laidir, tha siubhal gu lnath,
Gu cuan, o aonach a's ghleann,
'S a tuasaid ri buinne na fairge ;
Ach bu ghaire, a shealgair, an tod.

Mar lùbas a chuisseag fhann,
Fo dhoinionn na h-àibheis fuair',
'N uair bhios buaireas thaibhse dian,
'S na siantan uile fo ghruaim.
Lùb Sicl Lochluinn gu lùath
Roimh Righ Alba nan sluagh àir.
Chunnaic Sunar e tighin—
A's chrath e tri nairean a sleagh.
Ach crathaidh tu i gu facin,
A mhic Lochluinn a ghuth aird.
Mar charraig roi' dhoineann garbh,
Tha ceann-feadhna na h-Alba an tràs.
Am buinne tha neartar, mear,
Teichidh roimh aghaidh gun chail.

" Ach an do theich mise riamh,"
'S e labhair Righ Lochluinn nan clar.
" Mar dhoinionn an adhair mo laimh,
Cha seas na beanntan fein le'n coill,
'S le'n stacaibh cragach, am lathair.
Air an fhairge thug mi buaidh,
'N uair le feirge do sgooil an cuan,
Mu fhearrann a's fhonn, ag eigeach,
Is bheum gach rutha, a's sgeir bheucach.
Ach 's faoin a labhair thu, chuain,
Bhuirb nan stadh-ghlasa baoth ?
Nach tug mi féin ort roimh buaidh ?
'S an seas Ceannard an t-sluagh so rim' thaobh ?"

Sin samhul do bhriathraibh an laoich.
 Ach, chrithnich an talamh mu'n cuairt,
 'N tra thog iad an sleaghan ard;
 Thuit craobhan le m' freumhach buaint',
 'S chrith creagan fo chasan nan treun?
 A's leum iad o'n leabaidh thaimh.
 'S ionadh cruaidh a bha á truail,
 A's saighead a siubhal a h-iubhar.
 Bha seoid ag amhare an strí,
 'S dà righ a gleac' gu borb.
 Thuit sgiath Shunair gu lar,
 'S thar a shloigh thuige le fiamm;
 Thog Mordubh a shleagh gu h-ard,
 Ach chun' e uchd a nàimh gun sgiath.
 Bha smaointeán air gniomhan éuchd,
 A's ghleidh e laimb air ais.

Bha Morfholt air aghaidh 's a chath—
 Leis thuit laoch air gach buille
 Sheas Ceann-feadhna bho thuath an cein;
 Bha airde mar chraibh fo blà.
 Dh'aom clann Alba air an ais,
 O sgéith laidir mar stuadh o charraig,
 Amhail dirag aosda man ard,
 'S na siantan ri combstrì dhian.
 Ach togaidh tu do cheann le buaidh
 Tha maiseach, gun bheud o'n stóirm :
 Mu d' thimcheall tha dion gach uair;
 'S thig an sealgair o'n fhuachd a d' dhlùthas,
 A's gheibh e dion o'n iunnrais fhuair :
 Mar sin the sgiath an laoich da shluagh.
 Thog Morfholt a shleagh gu éuchd,
 A's ghabh e'n còdhail a ghaisgich,
 'S bu ghàbhaidh còmhrag nam fear borb ;
 Fhreagair mac-talla nan creag
 Do dh' fhuaim an lannan glas' géura—
 Chuir iad coill a's fraoch á bun,
 Le 'n casan air uillinn an t-sleibhe—
 A's chrithnich clanna nan erion,
 Ag coimhead ri gniomh nan tréun-fhear

Is mor a ghreis a thug na seoid,
 'S na sloigh a coimhead an éuchdan ;
 Ach chlaou iad araoen air an fhraoch,
 'S fuil chraobhach a ruith o'n creuchdaibh.

Sin labhair Morfholt na mor ghniomh,
 Cha'n eirich mo shleagh ni 's mó ;
 'S cha ruisgear mo chruaidh 's a chath.
 Tha aon bhrathair agam fòs,
 Mas' a beò e, Solbha treun,
 Sealgair an fheidh air Bunar :
 Ma thuiteas tu leis gheibh thu cliù—
 Oir cha tnù an t-òg gun mheang.

An do thog mi mo lamh, 's mo lann,
 A Mhorfhuilt, a t-aghaidh, mo bhrathair?
 A sheol an tìs dhomh cleasan lùgh ;
 Ach, ni 'n t-sleagh ni 's mó.
 Fàram lamh mo bhrathair chaoimh,
 'S gu 'n càram an so e ri m' thaobh.
 Theid sinn le cheile air chuairet,
 Gu teach ar n' athraichean thug buaidh ;
 Biodh ar leabaidh 's an nial,
 Au ionadan sian nan taibhse.

Chual an sluagh balbh a ghloir,
 'S bu mhor am bròn air son an laoich.
 Theich Siol Lochluinn g' an cabhlach,
 A's shil déoir Mhordhuibh mar bhraon ;
 Phill e air ais a shuin—
 Thog iad leac-lighe gu h-ard,
 A's sheinn an bàrd cliù an t-seiod.
 Tha darag aosda na chòir,
 'S na mhenereibh mòr tha sranna ghaoth—
 Tha dealan an adhair mu'n cuair,
 'S cha tig fear turais na dhàil—
 Seachnaidh e 'n t inil nach àdh,
 An aimsir nan reultan cian—
 Tha dà thaibhse mu'n cuairt an còmhnaidh,
 Le acain bñron tha sunthal air siantaibh.

COLLATH.

THA acain am aisling neo-chaoi !*
 An cadal do laogh, athair ?
 Is eagal leamsa doinionn chraidh ;
 Tha toirm gun àdh air na flathaibh.

Ciod e, Chollaith, fà t-acain ?
 Arsa Aosar a ghuth bhinn.

Chunnacas, deir e-san, slige gu h-òl,
 Do fhuil nàmh o dhortadh lanu.
 B' namhaun do m' anam an gniomh !
 Ciod e bhrìgh, a shiol nan raun ?

Ach 's faoin so aisling na snuin ?
 Is faoin neo-bhruan gach uile nì.
 Tuitidh an gaisgeach treun na threis,
 A's àillteachd gach cruth gu crion.
 Mar shruthas blà na coill—
 Mar thig neul daillreach air a ghrein--
 Is amhuil sin beatha nam beo !
 Cha choigil 's cha chaomhain sinn seud.
 Ach, an comhnuidh dhomhs' am thamh ?
 A mhic Chollaith, mo ghraidh, ca' beil thu ?
 Aona mhic mo cheile chaoimh !
 A taonar am beil thu air lear ?
 Fair an lann ud air an eallachainn,
 Mac-samhailt do dhealan nan cath.
 Thog Oglaoch an lann so g'a liobh—
 Lann m' athraichean an gniomh nau rath.
 Is iomadh cath a's còmhrag cruaidh
 Is cuimhne leam a bhi le buaidh.

Fhreagair an sin Aosar nan dàn,
 A churaidh, a Chollaith nam buadh,
 Cuime—ma bitheadh t-inntinn fo phràmh—
 Bha Oglaoch mar athraichean treun,
 Curaidh treubhach e's a chath,
 A' mosgladh air fàiche nan cruaidh.
 'S e bheireadh buaidh thar mhile flath.

A's aosda lag mi nis fo bhròn,
 Thuirt Collath, 's a dheoir a ruith !

* Fonar, the Author of this Poem, belonged to the illustrious and once powerful family of Collath. He accompanied his young friend, in his last expedition, to rescue Annir, the betrothed bride of Oglach, and only child of Rutha, whom Ardan, a chief of a distant Isle, carried off in the absence of her friends. Her exquisite beauty gained her many admirers. She preferred the Son of Collath. By their marriage the two most powerful families of Caledonia would have been united. But these hopes were never to be realised. The Poem opens with a vision of Collath, and concludes with a lament of the fall of the race of Collath, chief of Carrig. It is partly dramatic.

Tha tuilte dol tharuin gu dlù,
 A c' ait' am beil m' annsachd fein an diugh.
 Gu b' ionmuinn thu Oglaoich trein,
 Mo leanabh fein a b' aille cruth !
 Bha thu fann roimhimeachd do nàmh,
 'S an triall mar thorau thar Mealldubh;
 A's thig an là gun teach, gun ùigh,
 Gun talla, gun fhlaithibh, gun cheòl,
 'S am bi Siol Armuinn fo sprochd,
 Màr fhaileas ruiteach tro' neoil.
 Ach 's diomhain mo thuireadh gu leir !
 Ciod so 'm fà mu'm beil mo chrì
 Fo bhruaillean le aisling chruaidh ?
 A bualladh gu critheach, gun fhois,
 Mar dhuiileach roi dhoinnionn 's na cluanaiibh.

Fhreagair mi fhein gu seamh,
 A's tioma bhròin ga 'm chlaoi !

" Am fanam-sa so am thamh," Thuirt Oglac'h; " 's mo ghradh am dhi ?
 Cha chaill mi, ars' e-san, mo chluin,
 Ann am madainn chaomh na h-oige.
 B' eug-samhul ua h-armuinn threuna,
 M' athraiche feile, gun ghiomh :
 'S ni 'm fanamsa so gun àdh,
 Mar gheng gun duille gun bhlà ;
 Bheir mi buaidh air ardan fein,
 Neo théid mi eug, 's e chual
 Mi, as tartar a cheum
 A ruighinn gu h-eutrom mo chluas.
 Tha ' cruth caoin mar dheo greine,
 'S deirge beul no bilibh ròis ;
 Tha h-anail ni's cubhraidh na'n sùth,
 'S a guth binn mar inneal ceoil
 'S i's aille dealbh de'n t-sluagh,
 Bheireansa buaidh da trid !
 Aiteal sùl is glaíne snuadh,
 Ainnir shnaivece's igheann rìgh.
 Mar torcheair mi 'n oigh le m' lainn,
 Ni mi còdhail rithe thall.
 Mo chridhe tha 'g eiridh neo-throm,
 A leumnaich le aiteas am chom !
 O thaibhse nan treun fear, a threig,
 C' ait an comhnuidh dhuibh o'n eug ?
 An comhnuidh d' ur n' anma au àdh,
 Gun cheò na Lanna, no blàr ?
 Gach fiùran le òigh gun smal,
 Neo-ionan a's sine ri gal."
 Thog e ri crannaibh na seoil,
 A's dhomhlaich nime a shluaign ;
 Ri comh-stri ghaibhreach nan tonn,

Bha fonn a ghaoil ann a bheul.
 Cha mheata, am feasd, a chri,
 A's Ainnir da dhì 's an iuil ;
 'S an oidhche flearthunnineach gu lò,
 Ag udal cuain an aghaidh shian,
 " Fagamaid acain a's bròn," Thuirt Oglaoch, " gu clanna nan erion,
 Taosgar gach boinne de m' fhuil.
 Mu'n leigear leo an òigh."
 Dh' eirich leinne cairdean treun,
 Thar lear a thorchar cliu—
 Dh' eirich leinne Eilean nan laoch—
 Dh' eirich leinn Fraoch a's a shluagh.
 A chaitheadh ar slighe 's a chuan,
 Ghabh sinn an sin duan mu seach ;
 Sin sheinn duinn filidh nam fonn,
 'S a ghuth bha ard thar tuinn a's lear.

Biodh anam àidh ag taomadh,
 Mar chaochan ann an nualan ciuil,
 Is eibhiun le m' chluas an torraghan trom !
 Mar chabhlach nan caomh fo shiuil.
 Is ion' le m' chri an t-aiteas ard.
 Tha 'g eiridh àdhmhòr a steach !
 Mar chlaraibh an talla nam fonn,
 Mar chuireann an sonn nach meat,
 Mar fhéilteinnis mhile bàrd,
 Biodh smaointe graidh a chri !
 Ionnuinn gach sile, gach braon,
 Ionnuin maraon a's Beul-bì,
 Caoin chruth geal nan ioma dual,
 O shiol na cathraiche nuaidh,
 Càir gheal a chamhair a cneas,
 'S a leaca mìn mar na ròis ;
 Amhuil i 's an t-sobhrach bhàn,
 Reull nan ioma b' àille snuadh ;
 Bha i mar aiteal na greine,
 'S a mhàdainn ag eiridh gun ghrúaim.
 Ach tuitidh fathasd luibh an raoin ;
 Seargaidh a caoin chruth 's a dreach ;
 " Sruthaidh a blàth gun bhuan,"
 'S e deir Mac Nuaithe is geire beachd.

Thug i ceisd, a's a gaol trom
 Do Shonn òg a chaidh thar lear ;
 A's dh'eirich doinionn nan lann
 Mu oigh chaoin gheal nan cleachd,
 Tha aigne 'n laoich mar aiteal speur,
 No lasair dhein air aonach ard ;
 Co thraighas a bhuirb ghàir ?

A chlanna fial nan armunn fiuidhidh,
 Eiribh gu duthaich fad as,
 Gu taomadh oirn mar dhoinionn ghaibh,
 Ni h-aoibhinn an fheirg a tha las'.
 Ach mairidh cliu nan saoidh gach ial,
 A ghealachdas ri truaighean gun mheath.
 A laochraidh nan sleagh liobhaidh geur,

Togadh oirbh, mear, leumnach, garg,
 Mor—uaibhreach—borb,
 Le uamhann cith agus colg !
 Theid gathaibh leoin tre 'n cridhe ;
 (Is aoibhinn fulang nan treun !)
 Buirbe nan gáisgeach 's an strì,
 Coigil a d' chleibh a's a d' shuain.
 Lamh nan treun gu cath biodh leat,
 'S an àrach fo lamh gu sguab.
 'N tra thraighas gaibhleinn na h-àibheis,
 Mar an t-àrrach claoite sgìth ;
 Seallaidh gnuis an iunrais caoin,
 Amhuil laoich n' tra philleas sìth.
 Ach e-san a thuiteas le buaidh,
 Tha e faighinn caochadh nuadh ;
 A mhealtuinn ionmhas nan saoidh,
 Nach ionnuinn a chaoi, a chomhnuidh !

Thainig tioma air mo chri,
 Ri cuimhne na chunna' mi fhein !
 Gualann-chatha nach bu tìm,
 Flathaibh fuileach bha ri m' linn.
 Nach eil a h-aon diu am shean aois ?
 Nach b' eibhinn a bhi leo seach leinn ?
 Chunnacas sonn mor nam buadh,
 Curaidh uaibhreach nan gniomh garg :
 Lubadh nan cathair fo láinn,
 'N uair a mhosgladh e am feirg.
 'S e aigne an laoich a bha ard—
 Bha bhóile mar chaoiribh chruach.
 Cha robb e riambh ann an sìth,
 'N uair ruisgeadh na lannan' san strì ;
 Bhaimeachd mar thoran tro ghleann,
 Mar dhealan an adhair bha dheann.
 Ach threig an gaisgeach o chian,
 Carraig-chatha a chridhe fhial ;
 'S chaidh mar aon ris ionmadh còmhlan,
 Cha n-è mo shòlas nach eil e buan.
 Ach teirigidh sinn uile fa-dheoidh,
 A's chi an lò sinn smal' san uaigh.*

Ach mairidh gu suthain 's an dàn,
 Gniomhian alloil aidli nan saoidh :
 'N uair chrionas a cholluinn gu smùr,
 Mar an uir an còmhach criadh ;
 Mar cheathach tra nòin air an t-sliabh,
 Triallaidh an deò ag imeachd uainn,
 Far nach teirig grian, no gradh—
 Far a maireann àdh nan sonn.

Ach, Oglaich, is deacair trom,
 Sean aois a chromas an t-àrd,
 A chaohaileas cruth nam flath,

* Fonar, who was a warrior as well as a bard, recites past events, in which he, together with the aged chief, whose mind is soothed with a recital of the deeds of former days, acted a part: and his own state frequently and naturally occurs to him.

'S a dhallas fradharc chail nam bàrd,
Cia mar sheinneas mi dhut ceòl,
A laoich oig, am chiaibhan liath ?
'S e labhair mi fein ris an t-saoiðh,
Ceannard òg nam mile cliar.

Chunnacas reull bu dealrach dreach,
A soillse tro' dhuibhre na h-oidhche ;
A's shioillsich a ghealach a rìs,
'S na neoil ag imeachd gu luath.
" Mar aiteal nan reull ud gu h-hard,
Tha maise Ainnir," ars' an laoch,
" A lionadh m' anam do ghradh,
Ged' tha thusa balbh ad' dheoir !
Cùin is meuchaire, mhìne, ghile,
Taomadh gaoil mar dhearsa na h-òidhche !
A lionadh anam de shòlais,
Is binne guth no fuaim nan clàr,
Is àille dreach no cruth cubhraiddh,
An noinein bhàin fo deheatl nan speur.
Is anmhor an t-aiteas so am chliabh !
Ciòd so an sòlas diamhair,
A tha ga'm lionadh gun fhoghnadh ?
Tha m' aigneadh a' leumnaich a ghna,
Le buaidh a's mor ghradh na h-oighe.
Air an t-sleagh-so ann am laimh,
Pillidh sinn o'n àr le buaidh !
Pillidh, no tuitidh le cliù,
Air son an rùin a tha bhuainn.
Pillidh mar aon a gaol
Ro chaoin, mar ri caochladh cath.
Tha m' aigneadh a' leumnaich gu còmhrag.
Is ionmuinn le oighean mac rath.

Aithris dhuinn fhilidh nan dàn,
Thuirt mi fhein am briathraibh ciùin,
Mar bha oigh na h-iomair bhaigh,
Rè a latha an reull iùil.
Beul-bì * sòlus mhìle crì,
Maise mnà a bhil bhì ;
Ighean ghaoil bu bhlasda ceol,
A falt mar fhitheach, dubh mar smeoir.
Bha maise a's gràdh le cheil' na sealladh,
A mala crom mar ite 'n lòin ;
A còm seamh, finealta, fuasgait,
Cha lubadh a ceum am feoirnean.
Bu chruth ionmholt an ribhinn ;
Ach ciòd am fà mu'n robh sa 'g radh ?
Gach aona bhuaidh do bhi air finne,
Bha sud air dunach nan laoch,
A thuit mar ghallan nan gleann,
Mar sgathar fìuran nan crann.

* The history of Belvi is introduced here with great propriety. The injured are apt to think their own case without a parallel, and the burden of the afflicted becomes lighter, when they are assured that others suffer the like, or greater hardships.

Ach dh-fhailig mor mhais' a ghaoil,
Chaochail ' cruth àillidh gu h-aog !
'N uair bhuail lann Chonnlaoich uchd Dhonnaghaill,
'S a ruith fhuil na thonnan blà !
Chlaon e air uilinn an t-armunn,
An gath nimhe chaidh tro' airnean ;
Gath geur guineach nan trì cholg,
Os ceann imleig shàth na bholg.
Bha tosga tiugha nam beum luatha,
A reubadh feoil, a's cnai' ga'm bruasgadh.
Gach lann, mar dhealan an adhair,
Mar fhalaig air slabh na lasair,
Dh'aom na flathaibh fo mhaoin :
Bu dearg gach sruthan san raon.
Thuit e mu throma ghràdh na h-oighe !
Mar chobhar sruth bha fhuil a dortadh,
'S a ruith—'s e fuil a chridhe bh' ann,
A brùcadh tro' chreuchdan nan lann.
Uaith sin, chluinte caoiran na h-oigh' :—
" Och, mo dhorainn, agus m' acain !
Nach deachaidh mi eug o chian,
Mu'n d'fhuaire aon fileasgach mo ghaol !
Thuit mo roghainn, thuit mo rùn,
Ach ma thuit e, fhuaire e chliù.
Och ! nach robh sùn, ruin ghil còmhla,
Fò'n fhòd ghròm a gabhal comhaidh !
Theireadh iad, an sin n'an tàmh,
Tha òg-fhlath nam buadh, 's a ghràdh,
An ceangal buan, an glais a bhàis.
Thuit iad mar luibhean an raoin,
Le'n uile bhlà, 's a mhadainn chubhraidh,
'S an dealt a boillsgeadh le gath greine."

Mar sin, thàr sinn chuige gu sèamh ;
Bha ar caoimh a tighin' san duibhre ;
Thamh sinn car ghreis air an leirg,
Gu briseadh faire na maidne.
Bha'n cuan siar mar lainnir,
Le soillse àdmhor o'n ear ;
A's dealt nan speur air gach blà,
Gu foineil tià mar anlear.
Chaidh sinn far n'armaibh gn leir ;
'S chaidh mosgladh fa eilean nan stuadh.
" Rachadh, thuirt Oglaoch, ard, mear, Romhainn a nis' teachdair luath."
Chuir sinn romhainn Lughmhor òg,
Le fios gu Ardan, gun àdh !
" E chur chugainn Ainnir na mais',
'S gu'm pilleadh ar feachd ga'n cabhlach."
'S e thuirt Ardan a chridhe bhuirb,
" Sinn fein a philleadh gu grad,
Air neo gu sguabadh e gach saoïdh
Gu leat, mar fhaileas roi'n ghaooth
Gu lubadh e Oglaoch fo lann,
Mar mheangan an doire nan crann."
Dhomhlaich an sin na sloigh
Air an fhaiche gu h-ard,

A's thàr sinn a suas nan codhail
Gun fhiamh, ge b' ionadh na laoich.

Bhuail na saoidh air a chéile,
A's crith an learg fo'n casan,
Thainig Ardan, mar bhuinne borb ;
Ag iarraidh Oglaoich gu còmhrag,
E-san sheas roimhe gu treun,
Mar charraig roimh eiridi nan tonn :
Bu chruidh am buillean 's bu gharg,
'S an chridhe leumnaich nau com.
Mar thuiteas taosgadh a chuaín,
'S a dh'islicheas buirbe nan tonn,
Roimh Oglaoch nam beuma nach eil,
Bha Ardan a fannach' 's an strì.
" Am meanglan mi nis a lùbas
Fo d' laimhse, churaidh gun àdh ?
C'uime uach leigealadh tu leam
An òigh a thug thu tha tuinn ?
Ainnír nam meall-shuilean mìne,
'S an domh fhùn a thug i gradh i"
" Cha leiginn leat an oigh chaoin,
No le aon laoch ann ad t-fheachd.
Is cian a shinbhail mi 'n cuan,
Is eileanan stuadh-ghlasa sàil',
'S cha 'n fhacas a samhlù fo 'n gheirein,
'S cha sgar o cheile sinn ach bas."
Sin mar labhair na suinn,
An cruaí-ghleachd 's am buinn ga 'n staille ;
Bha aigneadh an armuinn nach bu chì
Ag eiridh air bhoile 's an strì.
Thug e iarraidh dheacair threun,
A's shàch e chruidh an cridhe Ardain.
Thuirlinn na cathaibh gu domhail,
'S bha Oglaoch am meadhon a nàmh.
Thainig Fraoch nan sonn ga chomhna,
'S bha abhainn fala dòl seach.
Mar dhealan an adhair bha 'n lannaibh—
An tartar mar thòran adhair,—
Shìn a's thàr iad gu chéile,
A's thuit na trenn-fhir sa' bhùlair.
Cha robb Ceanna-bheirt na dhùinn—
Cha robb roinn gun reuba fuileach !
Mar sin bha ionairst nan laoch,
Gus an do theich na h-ionadh.
Thug sinn ar n'aghaidh gu lear ;
A's thog sinn leunn Oglaoch creuchdach,
A's Fraoch, a's ionadh fear trenn,
A chàradh fo lic an cois na tràghad :
A's Ainnir a tharluinn nan dàil,
Fhuaradh ise urad siar,
A cruth a caochladh mar neul !
A's sleagh sàithaithe na cliabh—
A com caoin bu ghile snuadh,
Air caochladh le dile fala !—
A falt am-lubach cleachdach
Na dhualaibh a falach a taobh—
Bha h-acain leoin fatheoidh,

Mu Oglaoch caomh a graidh !
Thog sinn dà lic le 'n còinnich,
A's sheinn an filidh an cliu ;
'S am fuigheal brònach a mhàir,
Thog sinn thar lear ar siuil !*

Bha sinn làtha sgith air chuan,
Air udal seach stadhann ard,
A seoladh gu muladach trom,
As eagais an t-suinn 's a ghràidh.

" A's dh-fhag sibh mo laogh an cén,"
Arsa Collath, 's a dheur a ruith ;
" Bu gheal an cridhe bha na chom,
'S bu chaoineo no deo grein a chruith.
Shaoileam, Oglaoch threin,
Gu biodh tu leam fhein an diugh,
Mar neart dhomb am shean aois,
A's feasgar mo là dhomh dù,
Is gearr an rè a fhuaire
Thu, Ogain a b'uaisle gniomh !
Bu mhor treoir do lamh 's do lainn :
A's thuit thu, Oglaoch nach bu chì !
Ach mairidh do chì 'san dàn,
A's triallaidh misse gun dàil a d' dheigh,
Gu cilean nan flath san iar,
'S mo ghrian a laidhe airlear.
'S neo-aobhinn a sealla an tràs—
Fhiliadh dhàin nach eil i 'm briòn ?"
" Tha," thuit Binn-ghuth gu caòin ;
" Ach duisgidh i thall ud a ceòl."†
'N uair threigeas i sinne car seal,
Cha bhi gal air saoidh tha thall,
" Ach Phonnair, aithris do sgeul,"
Arsa Collath fein, an sin.
" Eilean mo ghaoil, 's e a t' ann,"
Arsa 'm Filidh, ar fear iuill.
" An t-eillean mu'n iadh an cuan ard,
A togail a chinn gu cùr' !
Togail a chinn tro cheo-allaidh,
A's neul a folach gach stadh.

Mo chean ort fein, ge d' is cian,
Caraid fhial bu mhor gràdh !
De shiol fhathaibh nad ceud chath,
Thainig oirn' an là nach àdh !
Thuit na gaigich, thuit na saoidh,
'S truagh an laoidh a tha na'r beul !
A caoidh sliochd Chollaith nan gràdh ;
A's tòlà an Rutha a thuit naith cian.
O fhinne gooil a tha gun mhairg,
'S e mo chreach ! an fhairg tha steach.

* This description of the heroine is beautiful and affecting. On the fall of Ardan she was set at large, and sought her friends in the midst of danger; a spear pierced her side—they found her like a pale cloud, inquiring for the youth of her love with her latest breath !

* Perhaps it is impossible, at this day, to decide with any certainty to what part of the Highlands the AGED BARD belonged, or at what time he flourished. Mrs Grant of Laggan, who has given a metrical version of the above poem, says, "It was composed in Sky," though upon what authority she has not said. The poem itself seems to furnish some evidence that at least the scene of it is laid in Lochaber. *Treig is mentioned as having afforded drink to the hunters. Now Loch Treig is in the braes of Lochaber. We know of no mountain which is now called Benard or Scur-eilt. Perhaps Ben-ard is another name for Ben-nevis. The great waterfall, mentioned near the end of the poem, may have been Eas-bhàr, near Kinloch-leven in Lochaber. The following is almost a literal translation of the above poem:—

THE AGED BARD'S WISH.

O place me near the brooks, which slowly move with gentle steps; under the shade of the shooting branches lay my head, and be thou, O sun, in kindness with me.

At ease lay my side on the grass, upon the bank of flowers and soft zephyrs—my feet bathed in the wandering stream that slowly winds along the plain.

Let the primrose pale, of grateful hue, and the little daisy surround my hillock, greenest when bedewed; my hand gently inclined, and the calvi† at my ear in its freshness.

Around the lofty brow of my glen let there be bending boughs in full bloom, and the children of the bushes making the aged rock re-echo their songs of love.

Let the new-born gurgling fountain gush from the ivy-covered rock; and let all-melodious echo respond to the sound of the stream of ever-successive waves.

Let the voice of every hill and mountain re-echo the sweet sound of the joyous herd; then shall a thousand lowings be heard all around.

Let the frisking calves be in my view, by the side of a stream, or on the activity of a hill; and let the wanton kid, tired of its gambols, rest with its innocence on my bosom.

Poured on the wing of the gentle breeze, let the pleasant voice of lambs come to my ear; then shall the ewes answer when they hear their young running towards them.

* We likewise find Treig spoken of in "Oran na comhaeag," where the author of that piece says, "Olaids mi a Treig mo theam-thath."

† An herb called St. John's wort.

Mu'n cuairt do bhruachaibh àrd mo ghlinn',
Biodh lùbadh ghéug a's orra blà;
'S clann bheag nam preas a' tabhairt seinn,
Do chreagaibh aosd' le òran gráidh.

Briseadh tro chreag nan eidheann dlù,
Am fuaran ùr le torramam trom,
'S freagraidh mac-talla gach ciùil,
Do dh' fhuaim srutha dlù nan tonn.

Freagraidh gach cnoc, agus gach sliabh,
Le binn-fhuaim geur nan aighean mear;
'N sin cluinnidh mise mìle geum,
A' riuth m'an cuairt domh 'n iar san ear.

O let me hear the hunter's step, with the sound of his darts and the noise of his dogs upon the wide-extended heath; then youth shall beam on my cheek, when the voice of hunting the deer shall arise.

The marrow of my bones shall awake when I hear the noise of horns, of dogs, and of bow-strings; and when the cry is heard, "The stag is fallen," my heels shall leap in joy along the heights of the mountains.

Then methinks I see the hound that attended me early and late, the hills which I was fond of haunting, and the rocks which were wont to re-echo the lofty horn.

I see the cave that often hospitably received our steps from night; cheerfulness awaked at the warmth of her trees; and in the joys of her cup there was much mirth.

Then the smoke of the feast of deer arose; our drink from Treig, and the wave our music; though ghosts should shriek, and mountains roar, reclined in the cave, undisturbed was our rest.

I see Ben-ard of beautiful curve, chief of a thousand hills; the dreams of stags are in his locks, his head is the bed of clouds.

I see Scur-eilt on the brow of the glen, where the cuckoo first raises her tuneful voice; and the beautiful green hill of the thousand firs, of herbs, of roes, and of elks.

Let joyous ducklings swim swiftly on the pool of tall pines. A strath of green firs is at its head, bending the red rowans over its banks.

Let the beauteous swan of the snowy bosom glide on the tops of the waves. When she soars on high among the clouds she will be unencumbered.

She travels oft over the sea to the cold region of foaming billows, where a sail shall never be spread out to a mast, nor an oaken prow divide a wave.

Be thou by the summits of the mountains, the mournful tale of thy love in thy mouth, O swan, who hast travelled from the land of waves; and may I listen to thy music in the heights of heaven.

Up with thy gentle song; pour out the doleful tidings of thy sorrow; and let all-melodious echo take up the strain from thy mouth.

Spread out thy wing over the main. Add to thy swiftness from the strength of the wind. Pleasant to my ear are the echoing of thy wounded heart—the song of love.

* Allusion is here made to a fire of wood.

From what land blows the wind that bears the voice of thy sorrow from the rock, O youth, who wentest on thy journey from us, who hast left my hoary locks forlorn.

Are the tears in thine eyes, "O thou virgin most modest and beauteous, and of the whitest hand, Joy without end to the smooth cheek that shall never move from the narrow bed.

Say, since mine eye has failed, O wind, where grows the reed with its mournful sound? by its side the little fishes whose wings never felt the winds' soft breath, maintain their sportive conflict.

Raise me with a strong hand, and place my head under the fresh birch; when the sun is at high noon let its green shield be above mine eyes.

Then shalt thou come, O gentle dream, who swiftly walkst among the stars; let my night-work be in thy music, bringing back the days of my joy to my recollection.

See, O my soul, the young virgin under the shade of the oak, king of the forest! her hand of snow is among her locks of gold, and her mildly rolling eye on the youth of her love.

He sings by her side—She is silent. Her heart pants, and swims in his music; love flies from eye to eye; deers stop their course on the extended heath.

Now the sound has ceased; her smooth white breast heaves to the breast of her love; and her lips, fresh as the unstained rose, are pressed close to the lips of her love.

Chi mi Beinn-àrd is àillidh fiamb,

Happiness without end to the lovely pair, who have awaked in my soul a gleam of that happy joy that shall not return! Happiness to thy soul, lovely virgin of the curling locks.

Hasst thou forsaken me, O pleasant dream? Return yet—one little glimpse return; thou will not hear me, alas! I am sad. O beloved mountains, farewell.

Farewell, lovely company of youths! and you, O beautiful virgin, farewell. I cannot see you. Yours is the joy of summer; my winter is everlasting.

O place me within hearing of the great waterfall, with its murmuring sound, descending from the rock; let a harp and a shell be by my side, and the shield that defended my forefathers in battle.

Come with friendship over the sea, O soft blast that slowly movest; bear my shade on the wind of thy swiftness, and travel quickly to the Isle of Heroes,

Where those who went of old are in deep slumber, deaf to the sound of music. Open the hall where dwell Ossian and Daoil. The night shall come, and the bard shall not be found.

But ah! before it come, a little while ere my shade retire to the dwelling of bards upon Ardven, from whence there is no return, give me the harp and my shell for the road, and then, my beloved harp and shell, farewell.

Tog do sgiath gu h-àrd thar chuan,

Note.—This is a curious and valuable relic of antiquity. It affords internal evidence that the doctrines of Christianity were either wholly unknown to the poet, or had no place in his creed. The Elysium of bards upon Arden, the departure of the poet's shade to the hall of Ossian and Daol, his last wish of laying by his side a harp, a shell full of liquor, and his ancestors' shield, are incompatible with the Christian doctrine of a future state.

That it is a composition, however, long subsequent to the times of Ossian, is evident from the change which the manners of the Caledonians had in the interim undergone; for in the poems of that bard there is scarcely an allusion to the pastoral state. At any rate, the art of taming and breeding cattle was certainly not practised by the Fingalians. Hunting and war seem to have been their sole occupations. Our aged bard, however, lived in the pastoral state of society; a state which many poets have made the subject of that species of poetry denominated pastoral.

Our bard exhibits tender senses, and describes happy situations. He paints the beauties of nature with the hand of a master, and expresses the warmth of his feelings in glowing numbers. His style is nervous, his manner chaste. His fancy wears the native garb of purity and simplicity: and true taste will recognise his composition as the genuine offspring of nature—as real poetry.

The poet has enumerated those rural occupations which afforded him delight in the vigour of life. He has arranged and drawn forth to view rural objects, attended by such circumstances as had made the most pleasurable and lasting impression upon his own mind; and he seems, at the same time, to have been highly sensible of the beauties of nature, and capable of producing those strokes of fancy which evince poetic merit.

This poem shows that men leading a pastoral life are capable of refined feelings and delicate sentiments, and may be actuated by the best affections of the heart; that long posterior to the days of Ossian, the Christian religion had not perhaps been heard of by the Caledonians; and that they were of opinion that the soul was an airy substance capable of existing in a state of separation from the body, and of enjoying, in the region of the clouds, those agreeable occupations which had given it pleasure upon earth.

* This poem is attributed to Donald Macdonald better known by the cognomen of Dòmhnull mac Fiùllaidh nan Dàn—a celebrated hunter and poet. He was a native of Lochaber and flourished before the invention of fire-arms. According to tradition, he was the most expert archer of his day. At the time in which he lived, wolves were very troublesome, especially in Lochaber, but Donald is said to have killed so many of them, that previous to his death, there was only one left alive in Scotland, which was shortly after killed in Strathglass by a woman. He composed these verses when old, and unable to follow the chase; and it is the only one of his compositions which has been handed down to us.

The occasion of the poem was this: He had married a young woman in his old age, who as might have been expected, proved a very unmeet helpmate. When he and his dog were both worn down with the toils of the chase,

Bu lìonmhòr cogadh a's creachadh,

Eadar an Innse a's an Fhearsaid,
Bha cuid eile dhiu' ma'n Dèaghthaigh;
Bhiodh iad ag éigeach 'sa'n fheasgar.

'S bhithinn grathunn sa' Chreig-ghuanaich."

and decrepit with age, his "crooked rib" seems to take a pleasure in tormenting them. Fear, rather than respect might possibly protect Donald himself, but she neither feared nor respected the poor dog. On the contrary, she took every opportunity of beating and maltreating him. In fact, "like the goodman's mother," he "was aye in the way." Their ingenious tormentor one day found an old and feeble owl, which she seems to have thought would make a fit companion for the old man and his dog; and accordingly brought it home. The poem is in the form of a dialogue between Donald and the owl. It is very unlikely that he had ever heard of Æsop, yet he contrives to make an owl speak, and that to good purpose. On the whole it is an ingenious performance and perhaps has no rival of its kind in the language. Allusion is made to his "half marrow," in the 57th stanza.

'S siàbhach a dh'-fhalbas e raon,
Cadal cha dean e sa'n smùir,
B' fearr leis na plaid e fo' thaobh,

'Thearnas o shireadh nam bean,
Mac na h-eilde ris an t-shonn,
Nach do chrom le spìd a cheann.

Eilidh blinneach, mheargant, bhallaich,
Odhar, eangach, uchd réidh àrd,
Damh togalach, croic-cheannach, sgiamhach,
Crònach, ceann-riabhach, dearg.

Gur gasd' a ruitheadh tu suas,
Ri leachduinn chruaidh a's i cas,
Moladh gach aon neach an cù,
Ach molams' 'n trùp tha dol as.

Creag mo chridhe-sa chreag mhor,
'S ionmhuinn an lòn tha fo ceann,
'S aums' an lag a th' air a cùl,
Na machair a's mùr nan gall.

M' annsachd beinn sheasgaich nam fuaran,
An riasgach o'n dean an damh rànan,
Chuireadh gadhar is glan nuallan,
Féidh na'n ruraig gu Inbhir-Mheorain.

B' annsa' leam na ðùrdan bodaich,
Os ceann leic ri eararadh sil,
Bùirean an daimh 'm bi ghnè dhuinnead,
Air leacanu beinne 's e ri sin.

'N uair bhùras damh Beinne-bige,
'S a bhéneas damh Beinn-na-craige,
Freagraidh m' daimh ud da chéile;
'S thig féidh a' Coirre-na-snaige.

Bha mi o'n rugadh mi riabh,
Ann an caidridh fhiadh a's earb',
Ch'an fhaca mi dath air bian,
Ach buidhe, riabhach, a's dearg.

Cha mhi-fhìn a sgoil an comunn,
A bha eadar mi 'sa Chreag-ghuanach,
Ach an aois ga'r toirt o chéile,
Gur grathannu an fhéil' a fhuaras.

'S i creag mo chridhe-s' a Chreag-ghuanach,
A chreag dhuilleach, bhloalareach, bhraonach,
Na 'n tulach àrd, àluinn, fiarach,
Gur cian a ghabh i o'n mhaorach.

Cha mhinig a bha mi 'g éisdeachd,
Re séideadh na muice-mara,
Ach 's tric a chuala mi mòran,
De chruònaich an daimh allaidh.

Cha do chuir mi duil san iasgach,
Bhi ga iarraidh leis a mhàdhàr,
'S mor gu'm b' annsa leam am fiadhach,
'S bhi air falbh nan sliabh as-t-fhaghár.

'S eibhinn an obair an t-shealg,
'S àit a cuairt an aird gu beachd,
Gur binne a h-aighear's a fonn
Na long a's i dol fo bheairt.

Fad 'sa bhithinn beò no maireann,
Deò dhe 'n anam an am chorpa,
Dh-shanainn am fochar an fhéidh,
Sin an spreidh an robh mo thoirt.

C'ait' an cuaileas coól bu bhinne,
Na mothar gadhair mhoir a' teachd,
Daimh sheannga na' ruith le gleann,
Miol-choin a dol annt a's ast'.

'S truagh an diugh nach beò an fheoghainn,
Gun ann ach an ceò de'n bhuidheann,
Leis 'm bu mhiannach gloir nan gadbar,
Gun mheoghaill, gun òl, gun bhruidhinn.

Bratach Alasdair nan Gleann,
A sròl fathrumach ri crann,
Suicheantas shoilleir shiol Chuinn,
Nach do chuir suim an clann għall

'S ann an Cinn-Ghiubhsaich na laidhe,
Tha nàmhaid na graidhe deirge,
Lamh dheas a mħarbhadh a bhradain,
Bu mhath e 'n sābaid na feirge.

Dh-fhag mi san Ruaidhe so shios,
Am fear a b' olc dhorma' a bhàs,
'S tric a chuir e' thagrath an cruathas,
Ann cluais an daimh chabrainch an sàs

Raonull Mac-Dhomhnuill ghais,
Fear a fhuair fòglum gu deas,
Deagh Mhac-Dhomhnuill a chuil chais,
Ni'm beò neach a chòmhraighe leis.

Alasdair eridhe nan gleann,
Gun e bhi ann mor a' chreach,
'S tric a leag thu air an tom,
Sliochd nau sonn leis a chù ghlas.

Alasdair mac Ailein mhòir,
'S tric a mħarbh sa' bheinn na féidh,
'S a leanadh fad air an tòir,
Mo dhoigh gur Domhnallach treun.

A's Dòmhnullach thu gun mhearrachd,
Gur tu buinne geal na crugach,
Gur càirdeach thu do Chlann-Chatain,
S gur h-e dalt thu do'n Chreig-ghuanach.

Ma dh-fhàgadh Domhnall a muigh,
Na aonar a' taigh na' fleagh,
S gearr a bhios guag air bhuil,
Luchd a chruidh bi'dh iad a staigh.

Mi'm shuidh air sìth-bhruth nam beann,
A coimhead air ceann Locha-Tréig,
Creag għuanach am biodh an t-shealġ,
Grianan ard am biodh na fèidh.

Chi mi na Dù-lochain bluam,
Chi mi Chruach, a's Beinne-bhreac,
Chi mi Srath-Oisein nam Fiann,
Chi mi ghrian air Meall-nan-leac.

Chi mi Beinn-Neamhais gu h-àrd,
Agus an càrn-dearg ri bun,
A's coire beag eile ri taobh,
Chit' as monadh faoin a's muir.

Gur rimheach an coire dearg,
Far 'm bu mhiannach leinn bhi sealg,
Coirre nan tulainchean fraoich,
Iunis nan laogh's nan damh garbh.

Chi mi braidh Bhídean-nan-dös,
'N taobh so bhos do Sgurra-lidh,
Sgurra-chòinnich nan damh seang—
Ionmuinn leam an diugh na chl.

Chi mi Srath farsuinn a chruidh,
Far an labhar gutħ nan sònñ,
A's Coire creagach a mhaim,
A' minig a thug mo làmh toll.

Chi mi Garbh-bheinn nan damh donn,
Agus Slat-bheinn nan tom sith,
Mar sin agus an Leitir dhubb,
'S an tric a rinn mi fuil na' frith.

Soraidh gu Beinn-allta bhuam,
O'n 's i fhuair urram nam beann,
Gu slios Loch-Earrachd an fhéidh,
Gu'm b'ionmuinn leam fén bhi ann.

Thoir soraidh uam thun an Loch',

Gu uisge Leamhna nan lach,

'S e loch mo chridhse an loch,
An loch, air am biodh an lach,
Agus iomadh eala bhàn,
'S bh'ihd iad a snàmh air ma seach,

Olaidh mi a' Tréig mo theann-shàth,
Na dheidh cha bhi mi fo mhulad,
Uisge glan nam fuaran fallan,
O'n seang am fiadh a nì 'n langan.

'S buan an comum gun bhristeadh,
Bha eadar mise 's an t-uisge;
Súgh nam mor bheann gun mhisiġ,
'S mise ga òl gun trasgadh.

'S ann a bha 'n commun bristeach,
Eadar mise 's a Chreag-sheilich,
Mise gu bràth cha dirich,
Ise gu dilinn cha teirinn.

On labhair mi umaibh gu léir,
Gabhairidh mi fhéin dibh mo chead,
Dearmad cha dean mi s an àm,
Air fiadhach ghleann nam beann beag.

Cead is truaighe ghabhadh riabh,
Do 'n fhiadhaich bu mhór mo thoil,
Cha 'n fhalbh le bogha fo m' sgéith,
'S gu là-bhràth cha leig mi coin.

Tha blaidd mo bhogha 'n am uchd,
Le agh maol, odhar is äit,
Ise ceanalt 's mise gruamach,
'S crnaigh an diugh nach buan an t-shlat.

Mis' a's tua għadhair bhàin,
'S tħursach air turas do 'n eilean,
Chaill sinn an tħabu a's an dàn,
Ge d' bha sinn grathunn ri ceanal.

Thug a choille dhilət-s' an earb',
'S thug an t-àrd dhiom-sa na fèidh,
Cha n eil nàire dhuinn a laoich,
O'n laidh an aois oirnn le chéil'.

'Nuar a bha mi air an da chois,
'S moch a shiubħlain bhos a's thall,
Ach a nis on fhuair mi tri,
Cha għluu ġiach gu mìn, mall.

Aois cha n'eil thu dhunn meachair
Ge nach feudar leinn do sheachnad,
Cromaids tu 'n duine direach,
A dh' flàs gu mlieanta għasda.

Giorraichidh tu air a shaogħal,
Agus caochlaidhidh tu 'chasan,
Fagaidh tu cheann gun deudach,
'S ni tu eudann a chasad.

A Shinead chas-aodannach, pheallach,
A shream-shuileach, odhar, ētidh,
Cia ma 'n leiginn leat a lobhair?
Mo bhogha toirt dhiom air ēgħiġ.

O'n 's mi-fhìn a b' fhearr an airidh,
Air mo bhogha ro-math iubhair,
No thusa aois bħothar, sgallach,
Bhios aig an teallach ad shuidhe.

Labbair an aois a rithist;
 "S mo 's ruighinn tha thu leantainn.
 Ris a bhogha sin a ghiùlan,
 'S gur mòr bu chuibhe dbut bàta."

Gabh thusa bhuamsa 'm bàta,
 Aois gràndu chaitidh na pléide,

Cha leiginn mo bhogha leatsa,
 Do mhathas no d' ar, eigin.

"S iomadh laoch a b' shearr no thusa,
 Dh-fhàg mise gu tuisleach anfhann,
 'N déis fhàobhachadh as a sheasamh,
 Bha riomhe na fhlèasgach meannach."

MAIRI NIGHEAN ALASDAIR RUAIDH.

THE real name of this poetess was Mary M'Leod, though she is more generally known among her countrymen by the above appellation. She was born in Roudal, in Harris, in the year 1569, and was the daughter of Alexander M'Leod, son of Alasdair Ruadh, who was a descendant of the chief of that clan.*

It does not appear that Mary had done any thing in the poetic way till she was somewhat advanced in life, and employed as nurse in the family of her chief; neither is there any evidence that she could write, or even read. Her first production was a song made to please the children under her charge.

"An Talla 'm bu ghà le Mac-Leòid" was composed on the Laird being sick and dying. He playfully asked Mary what kind of a lament she would make for him? Flattered by such a question, she replied that it would certainly be a very mournful one. "Come nearer me," said the aged and infirm chief, "and let me hear part of it." Mary, it is said, readily complied, and sung, ex tempore, that celebrated poem.

"Hithill uthill agus hò" was composed on John, a son of Sir Norman, upon his presenting her with a snuff-mull. She sometime after gave publicity to one of her songs, which so provoked her patron, M'Leod, that he banished her to the Isle of Mull, under the charge of a relative of his own.

It was during her exile there that she composed "'S mi 'm shuidh' air an Tulaich," or "Luinneag Mhic-Leòid." On this song coming to M'Leod's ears, he sent a boat for her, giving orders to the crew not to take her on board except she should promise to make no more songs on her return to Skye. Mary readily agreed to this condition of release, and returned with the boat to Dunvegan Castle.

* There was another, though inferior poetess, of the family of Alasdair Ruadh, who is sometimes confounded with our authoress. Her name was Flora M'Leod. In Gaelic she is called Fionagh Nighean Alasdair Ruaidh. This poetess lived in Trotterness, and was a native of Skye. She was married, and some of her descendants are still in that country. All that we have been able to meet with, of Flora's poetry, is a satire on the clan Mac-Martin, and an elegy on M'Leod of Dunvegan. We have the authority of several persons of high respectability, and on whose testimony we can rely, that Mary M'Leod was the veritable authoress of the poems attributed to her in this work.

Soon after this, a son of the Laird's had been ill, and, on his recovery, Mary composed a song which is rather an extraordinary composition, and which, like its predecessors, drew on her devoted head the displeasure of her chief, who remonstrated with her for again attempting song-making without his permission. Mary's reply was, "It is not a song ; it is only a crònan,"—that is, a hum, or "croon."

She mentions, in a song which we have heard, but which was never printed, that she had nursed five lairds of the M'Leods, and two of the lairds of Applecross. The song ends with an address to Tòrmoid nan tri Tòrmoid.* She died at the advanced age of 105 years, and is buried in Harris. She used to wear a tartan tonnag, fastened in front with a large silver brooch. In her old days she generally carried about with her a silver-headed cane, and was much given to gossip, snuff, and whisky.

Mary M'Leod, the imitable poetess of the Isles, is the most original of all our poets. She borrows nothing. Her thoughts, her verse, her rhymes, are all equally her own. Her language is simple and elegant ; her diction easy, natural, and unaffected. Her thoughts flow freely, and unconstrained. There is no straining to produce effect : no search after unintelligible words to conceal the poverty of ideas. Her versification runs like a mountain stream over a smooth bed of polished granite. Her rhymes are often repeated, yet we do not feel them tiresome nor disagreeable. Her poems are mostly composed in praise of the M'Leods ; yet they are not the effusions of a mean and mercenary spirit, but the spontaneous and heart-felt tribute of a faithful and devoted dependant. When the pride, or arbitrary dictate of the chief, sent her an exile to the Isle of Mull, her thoughts wandered back to "the lofty shading mountains,"—to "the young and splendid Sir Tòrmòd." During her exile she composed one of the finest of her poems : the air is wild and beautiful ; and it is no small praise to say that it is worthy of the verses. On her passage from Mull to Skye she composed a song, of which only a fragment can now be procured : we give a few stanzas of it :—

"Theid mi le'm dheoin do dhùlhaich Mhic-Leòid,
M' iull air a mbòr luachach sin,
Bu chòrt dhomh gum bi m' èola san tir
Leòdach, mar pill cruidal mì,
Siubhlaidh mi 'n iarr, tro dhùlachd nan sian,
Do'n tòr g'am bi triallt thuath-cheatairn :
On chualas an egnèl buadhach gun bheug,
Rinn acain mo chléibh fhuadachadh.

" Chi mi Mac-Leòid 's priseil an t-òg,
Rimheach gu mòr buadhach,
Bho Ollaghair nan lann chuireadh sròlaibh ri crann ;
'S Leòdach an dream uamharra.
Eirigh na suinn gheusd air na suinn,
'S feumail ri am cruidail lad,
'Na firuranaibh ghang an am rusgadh nan àrm,
'S cluitach an t-aum fhuras leibh.

" Siol Tòrmoid nan sgiath fairmealach fial,
Dh' eircadh do shluagh luath-lamhach ;
Dealradh nam pios, tòrmor nam plob,
'S dearbh gu'm bu leibh 'n dualachas ;
Thainig teachdair do'n tir gu macanta mìn,
'S ait leam gach nìl chualas leam,
O Dhun-bheagan nan steud 's am freagair luchd-theud,
Bheir greis air gach egnèl buaidh-ghloireach.

" 'Nuaire chuireadh na laoich loingheas air chaol,
Turas ri gaoith ghuaise leibh,
O bharrainb nan crain gu tarruinn nam ball,
Teannachadh teamh suas rithe,
Iomairt gu leoár mar ri Mac-Leòid,
Charaich fo shòrla nain.dhàit' i,
Bho àrois an fhion gu talla nam pios,
Gu'm beannaich mo Rìgh 'n t-usasal ud."

* We knew an old man, called Alexander M'Raie, a tailor in Mellen of Gairloch, whom we have heard sing many of Mary's songs, not one of which has ever been printed. Some of these were excellent, and we had designed to take them down from his recitation, but were prevented by his sudden death, which happened in the year 1833. Among these was a rather extraordinary piece, resembling M'Donald's "Birlinn," composed upon occasion of John, son of Sir Norman, taking her out to get a sail in a new boat.

'S barr dosrach de sgiathan an eoin.
Glac-thorm, &c.

Bhiodh céir ris na crannaibh,
Bu neo-eisleanach tarruinn,
'Nuir a leumadh an t-saighead o d' inheoir.
Bhiodh céir ris, &c.

'Nuair a leigte bho d' laimh i,
Cha bhiodh oirleach gun bhathadh,
Eadar corran a gáine 's an sméoir.
'Nuair a leigte, &c.

'Nam dhut tighinn gu d' bhaile,
'S tu bu tighearnail gabhall,
Nuair shuidheadh gach caraid mu d' bhòrd.
'Nam dhut tighinn, &c.

Bha thu measail aig uaislean,
'S cha robh beagan mar chruthas ort,
Sud an cleachdad a fhuair thu t-aos òig.
Bha thu mcasail, &c.

Gu 'm biodh farum air thaileasg,
Agus fuaim air a chlàrsaich;
Mar a bhuineadh do shàr mhae Mhic-Leòid.
Gu 'm biodh farum, &c.

Gur h-e b' eachdraidh 'na dheigh sin,
Greis air uirseul na Feinne,
'S air cuideachda cheir-ghil nan cròc.
Gur h-e b' eachdraidh, &c.

CUMHA DO MHAC-LEOID.

Gur e naidheachd so fhuair mi,
A dh-fhuadaich mo chiall uam,
Mar nach bitheadh i agam,
'S nach fhaca mi riamh i;
Gur e Abhall an lis so;
Tha mise ga iargann;
E gun abuchadh meas air,
Ach air briseadh fo chiad bharr.

Gur e sgeula na creiche,
Tha mi nise ga éisdeachd,
Gach aon chneadh mar thig oirn',
Dol an tricead, san deinead,
Na chunnaic, 's na chualas,
'S na fhuaradh o'n cheud là,

Creach nìd an t-seobhaic,
Air a sgatha ri aon uair.

Ach a Chlann an fhir allail,
Bu neo mhalartaich' beusan,
Ann an Lunnuinn, 's am Pàris,
Thug sibh barr air na ceudan,
Chaidh n-ur ciù tharais
Thar talamh na h-Eiphit,
Cheann uidhe luchd-ealaidh,
'S a leannan na féileachd.

Ach a fhriamhaich nan curaidh,
'S a chuillein nan leoghan,
A's ogha an dà sheanar,
Bu chaithréamaich' loistean;
C'ait' an robh e ri fhaotuinn
Air an taobhs' an Rojinn-Eòrpa,
Cha b' fhurrasdì ri faighinn
Anns gach rathad, bu dòigh dhuibh.

Ach a Ruairidh mhic Iain,
'S goirt leam fhaighinn an sgeul-s' ort,
'S e mo chreach-sa mac t-athar,
Bhi na laidhe gun eiridh,
Agus Tòrmod à mhac-sa,
A thasgaidh mo chéille!
Gur e aobhar mo ghearrain,
Gu'n chailleadh le chéil' iad.

Nach mòr an sgeul sgriobhaidh,
S nach iongnadh leibh féin e,
Duilleach na craoibhe,
Nach do sgaoileadh am meanglan,
An robh clù, agus onair,
Agus moladh air deagh-bheairt,
Gu daonachdach, carthaunnach,
Beannachdach, ceutach.

Ge goirt leam an naidheachd,
Tha mi faighinn air Ruairidh,
Gun do chorp a bhi 'san Dùthaich,
Anns an tuama bu dual dut;
Sgeul eile nach fusadh,
Tha mi claisstinn san uair so,
Ged nach toir mi dha creideas,
Gur beag orm ri luaidh e.

Gur ro bheag a shaoil mi,
Ri mo shaoghal gu'n eisdinn,
Gun cluinneamaid Leòdaich,
Bhi ga'm fogradh o'n òighreachd,
'S a'n còraichean glana,
'S a'm fearann gun dèigh air
'S ar ranntanan farsuinn,
Na'n rach-te 'n am feum sud.

Gu'n eireadh na t-aobhar
Clann-Raonuill, 's Clann-Dòmhnuill,
Agus taigh Mhic 'Illeain,
Bha daingheann 'n-ur seòrsa,
Agus fir Ghlinne-Garaidh,
Nall tharais á Cnòideart,
Mar sud, a's Clann Chama-Shroin,
O champ Inbhir-Lòchaidh.

'S beag an t-iongnadh Clann-Choinnich,
Dheanadh eiridh ri d' ghuilean,
'S gu'n robh thu na'm fineachd,
Air t-fhilleadh trì uairean,
'S e mo chreach gu'n do Chinneadh
Bhi ma chruinneachadh t-uaghach,
No glaodh do mhna muinntir
'S nach cluinntear, 's an uairs' i.

Tha mo cheist air an oighre,
Th'a stoidhle 's na h-Earadh,
Ged nach deach' thu san tuam' ud,
Far bo dual dut o d' sheanair.
Gur iomadh fuil uaibhreach,
A dh-fhuairich ad bhallaibh,
De shloinneadh nan rìghrean,
Leis na chioscaideadh Manainn.

'S e mo ghaols' an sliochd foirmeil,
Bh'air sliochd Ollaghair, a's Ochraidh,
O bhaille na Boirbhe,
'S ann a stoidhleadh thu'n tòiseach;
Gur joma fuil mhorgha,
Bha reota sa chorp ud,
De shliochd armunn Chinntire,
Iarl' II', agus Röis thu.

Mhic Iain Stiubhairt* na h-Appunn,
Ged a's gasd' an duin' òg thu,
Ged tha Stiubhartaich beachdail,
Iad tapaidh 'n àm fairneart,
Na ghabhsa meanmadh, no aiteas,
A's an staid ud, nach còir dhut,
Cha toir thu l dhaindeoin,
'S cha'u fhaigh thu le deòin i.

C'uim' an tigeadh fear coigreach
A thagrach ur'n Oighreachd;
Ged nach eil e ro dhearbhta,
Gur searbh e ri eisdeachd,
Ged tha sinn' air ar creachadh
Mu chloinn mhac an fhir fheilidh,
Sliochd Ruairidh mhoir allail,
'S gur airidh iad fein oir.

* Stewart of Appin was married to a daughter of Mac-Leod of Dunvegan, which made the Mac-Leods afraid that he should claim a right to the estate, on account of Mac-Leod having left no male heir.

MARBH-RANN
DO DH-YHEAR NA COMRAICH.

Tha mise air leaghadh le bròn,
O'n là dh-eug thu 's nach beò,
Mu m' fhiuran faighidneach, còir,
Uasal, aighearach, òg,
'S uaisle shuidhe mu bhòrd,
 Mo chreach t-fhaiginn gu'n treòir eiridh.

'S tu'n laoch gun laigse, gun leòn,
Macan mìn-neal gun sgleò,
B' fhearail, finealt an t-òg,
De shliochd nam fear mòr,
D'a bu dual a bhi còir,
 'S gu'm b'fhiù faiteal do bheoil eisdeachd.

'S tu chlann na h-irenn a b'fhearr,
Glan an riamh as an d'fhàs,
Cairdeas righ as gach ball,
Bha sud sgriobt' leat am bainn,
Fo laimh duine gun mheang,
 Ach thu lion-te de dh-ardan euchdach.

A rnairidh aigeantaich aird,
O Chomraich ghreadhnaich an àidh,
Mhic an fhìr bu mhòr gàir,
Nan lann guineach, cruaidh, targ,
Ort cha d'fhuadaradh riamh cearb,
 Jar-ogha Uilleam nan long breid-gheal.

Fhuair mi m' àilleagan ùr,
'S e gun smal air gun smùr,
Bu bhreac mìn dearg do ghnuis,
Bu ghorm laoghach do shuil,
Bu ghlan sliasaid, a's glùn,
 Bu deas, dainghean, a lùb gheust thu.

A lub abhoil nam buadh,
'S maирg a tharladh ort uair,
Mu ghlaic Fhionnlaidh so shuas,
Air each crodhanta luath,
Namhaid romhad na ruraig,
Air dhaibh buille cha b'uair cùs e.

Ach fhìr a's curranta lamb,
Thug gach duine gu cràdh,
'S truagh nach d'fhuirich thu slan,
Ri uair cumaig no blàir,
A thoirt cùs dheth do nàmh,
 Bu leat urram an là cheudaich.

Bu tu'n sgoileir gun diobradh,
Meoir a's grinne ni sgiobhadh,
Uasal faighidneach, cinnteach,
Bu leat lagh an taigh sgiobhaidh,
'S tu nach muchadh an fhirinn,
 Sgeul mo chreiche! so shil do chreuchdan.

Stad air m'aighear an dè
Dh'fhalbh mo mharcanta fèin,

Chuir mi'n eiste nan teud,
Dhiult an gobha dhomh gléus,
Dhiult sud mi's gach leighe
 'S chaidh m'onair, 's mo righ dh'eug thu.

Thuit a chraobh thun a bhlàir,
Rois an graine gu làr,
Lot thu 'n cinneadh a's chràdh,
Air an robh thu mar bharr,
Gà'n dionadh gach là,
 'S mo chreach! bhuinig am bàs treun ort.

'N am suidhe na d'sheomar,
Chaidh do bhuidhean an òrdugh,
Cha b'ann mu aighear do phòsaidh,
Le nighean Iarla Chlann-Dòmhnuill,
As do dheigh mar hu chòir dh'i,
 'S ann chaidh do thasgaidh san t-sròl ghile-gheal.

Ach gur mis' tha bochd truagh,
Fiamh a ghuil air mo ghruaidh,
'S goirt an gradan a fluair,
Marcach deas nan each luath,
Sàr Cheannard air sluagh,
 Mo chreach, t-fhagail ri uair m'fheime.

Ach fhuair mi m'ailleagan òg,
Mar nach b'abhaist gun cheòl,
Saoir ri caradh do bhòrd,
Mnai ri spionadh an fheòir,
Fir gun tâilisg, gun cheòl,
 Gur bochd fulang mo sgeòil eisdeachd.

'Nuair a thionail an sluagh,
'S ann bha'n tioma-sgaradh cruaidh,
Mur ghàir sheillean am bruaich,
An deigh na meala thoirt uath,
'S ann bha'n t-eireadh bochd truagh,
 'S iad ma cheannas an t-sluaign threubhaich.

MARBHRANN DO DH' IAIN GARBH.
MACILLECHALUM RARSAYD.*

Mo bheud, 's mo chràdh,
Mar dh-eirich dha
'N fhear għleusda, ghraidh,
Bha treun san spàirn,
 'S nach faicear gu bràth thu'n Rarsa.

Bu tu'm fear curanta, mor,
Bu mhath cumadh, a's treòir,
O t' uilean gu d' dhòrn,
O d' mhullach gu d' bhròlg,
Mhic Muire mo leor,
Thu bhi'n innis nan ròn,
 'S nach faighear thu.

* This celebrated hero was drowned while on a voyage between Stornoway and Raasa.

'S math lùbadh tu pic
O chùl-thaobh do chinn,
'Nam rusgadh a ghill,
Le ionnsaidh nach pill,
'S air mo laimh gu'm bu ciunteach saighead uat.

Bu tu sealgair a gheoidh,
Lamh gun dearmad, gun leon,
Air 'm bu shuarach an t-òr
Thoirt a bhuanachd a cheòil,
'S gu'n d'fhuair thu na's leoir,
'S na chaitheadh tu.

Bu tu sealgair an fhéidh,
Leis an deargta na bein ;
Bhiodh coin earbsach air eill
Aig an Albanach threun ;
Cait' am faca mi fein
Aon duine fo 'n gheirein,
A dheanadh riut euchd fithasach.

Spealp nach dibreadh,
An cath, nan strì thu,
Casau dìreach, fad' finealt,
Mo chreach dhiobhail
Chaidh thu dhùth oirn, le neart sìne,
Lamh nach dibreadh caitheadh orr'.

'S e dh-fhag silteach mo shuil,
Faicinn t' fhearrainn gun sùrd,
'S do bhaile gun smùid
Fo charraig nan sùgh,
Dheagh mhic Chalum nan tùr a Rarsa.

Och ! m' fheudail bhuam,
Gun sgeul sa' chuan,
Bu ghlè mhath smuadh,
Ri grein, 's ri fuachd,
'S e chlaoidh do shluagh,
Nach d' fheud thu 'n uair a ghabhail orr'.

Mo bhèud, 's mo blàròn,
Mar dh' eirich dñòd
Muir beucach, mor,
Ag leum mu d' bhòrd,
Thu féin, 's do sheòid
'Nuair reub 'ur seòil,
Nach d'fhaod sibh treoir
A chaitheadh orr.

'S e an sgeul' craiteach
Do'n mhnaoi a d'fhag thu,
'S do t-aon bhrathair,
A shuidh na t'aite,
Dualainn Càisge,
Chaidh tonn bàit ort,
Craobh a b' aird' de 'n abhal thu.

CHUMHA MHIC-LEOID.

Cha sùrd cadail,
An runs air m'aigneadh,
Mo shuil frasach,
Gunn sùrd macnais,
'S a' chùirt a chleachd mi :—

'S trom an cùdthrom so dhrùidh,
Dh-fhag mo chùslein gun lùgh,
'S tric snigh' mo shuil,
A tuiteam gu dlù ;
Chail mi iuchair mo chuil :
Ann a cuideachd lùchd-ciuil,
Cha téid mi.

Fo thasgaidh bhòrd,
Sàr mhac 'Ic-Leòid,
Nan bratach sròil,
Bu phailt' ma'n òr,

A ghnuis fhìthasach àilt ;
A dheagh mhic rathail,
An àrmuinn euchdaich.

Mac Ruairidh reachd-mholr,

Bu bhuaidh leatsa,

'Uaill a's aiteis,
'S an bhuaat gu faighe,
Ri nair ceartais,

An robh clù gun bhriseadh ;
Chaidh ùir fò lic air m' eudail.

Air each crùidheach ceann-ard,
'S lànn ùr than ort,
Am beart dhlù dhainghinn :
Air cùll nan clann-shalt teàd-bhuidh.

'S iomadh fear aineoil,
Is aoidh 's lùchd eallaidh,

Air crùin a mhalairt,
Air iùil 's air ainne,
Bu chluith gun aithreis bhreug è.

B tu 'n sìth-thaunh charid,
Ri' am tigh'n gu bail,
Ol dion aig fearabhl,
Gun strì gun charraid,
'S bu mbiam leat mar ruit,

Bu tric aoidh chairdean,
Gu d' dhùn àdhnhor,

Cuilm-mhor stàtoil,
Gun bhuirb gun àrdan :
Gun diultadh air màl dheirceach.

Thù sbliochd Ollaghair
Bha mor morgha,
Nan seòl corra-bheann,
'S nan còrn gorm-ghlas,
Nan ceòl òrghan
'S nan seòd bu bhorb ri eigin.

Thùg i ceud ghradh ga rùn,
Bu mhòr a' h-aobhar ri sunnd,
Nuair a shealladh i'n ghnuis a céile.

Na fhuair mi fein deth.

LUINNEAG MHÍC-LEOID.

'S mi 'm shuidh air an tulaich',
Fo mhulad 's fo ime-cheist ;
'S mi coimhead air Ile,
'S ann de'm iongnadh san am so.
Bha mi uair nach do shaol mi,
Gus 'n do chaochail air m' aimsir ;
Gu'n tiginn au taobh so,

H-i-ri-ri rithibh h-ò-i ag ò.*

Gun tiginn au taobh so,
A dh' amharc Iuraidh, a's Sgarbaidh :
Beir mo shoraidh do'n dùthach,
Tha fo dhubhar nan garbh-bheann,
Gu Sir Tòrmad ùr, allail,
Fhuair ceannas air armait,
'S gun caint' ann 's gach fearann,
Gum b' airidh fear t-ainm air.

Do mhisnich, 's do mheannainn.
Do chruadail, 's do ghaisge,
Do dhreach, 's do dhealbha;
Agus t-òlachd as t-uaisle,
Cha bu shuarach ri leanmuinn.
I h-urabh o, &c.

Agus t-òlachd, as t-uaisle,

Tha do chairdeas so-iarraidh,
Ris gach larla tha 'n Albuiunn;
'S ri uaislean na h-Eireann,

I h-urabh o, &c.

'S ri uaislean na h-Eireann,

IAIN LOM;

or,

JOHN MACDONALD, THE LOCHABER POET.

THIS celebrated individual, a poet of great merit, as well as a famous politician, was commonly called Iain Lom, literally, bare John; but so named from his acuteness, and severity on some occasions.* He was sometimes called Iain Manutach, from an impediment in his speech. He was of the Keppoch family; lived in the reigns of Charles I. and II., and died at a very advanced age about the year 1710.

We know little of the early education of the Lochaber bard. Of him it might be said, "poeta nascitur non fit;" but from his descent from the great family, Clann-Raonaill na Ceapach, a sept of the M'Donalds, he must have seen and known more of the men and manners of those times than ordinary. His powers and talents soon rendered him a distinguished person in his native country; and subsequent events made him of importance, not only there, but likewise in the kingdom.

The first occurrence that made him known beyond the limits of Lochaber, was the active part he took in punishing the murderers of the heir of Keppoch: the massacre was perpetrated by the cousins of the young man, about the year 1663. The poet had the penetration to have foreseen what had really happened, and had done all he could to prevent it. He perceived that the minds of the people were alienated from the lawful heir in his absence: he and his brother being sent abroad to receive their education during their minority, and their affairs being intrusted to their cousins, who made the best use they could of the opportunity in establishing themselves by the power and authority thus acquired in the land. Although he could not have prevented the fatal deed, he was not a silent witness. He stood single handed in defence of the right. As he failed in his attempt to awaken the people to a sense of their duty, he addressed himself to the most potent neighbour and chieftain Glengarry, who declined interfering with the affairs of a celebrated branch of the great Clann-Dughall; and there was no other that could have aided him with any prospect of success. Thus situated, our poet, firm in his resolution, and bold in the midst of danger, was determined to have the murderers punished. In his ire at the reception he met from Glengarry, he invoked his muse, and began to praise Sir Alexander M'Donald.

Nothing can give us a better idea of the power of the Highland clans, and of the state of the nation at this period, than this event, which happened in a family, and among a people, by no means inconsiderable. M'Donald of Keppoch could bring out, on emergency, three hundred fighting men of his own people; as brave and as faithful as ever a chieftain called out or led to battle, that would have shed the last drop of their blood in his cause, and yet he had not an inch of land to bestow upon them. The M'Donald of Keppoch always appeared at the head of his own men, although only a branch of the great clan. He might have got rights, as he had just claims to land for signal services: but “would he care for titles given on sheep skin?* he claimed his rights and titles by the edge of the sword!”

* Some say he was called Iain Lom because he was bare in the face, and never had any beard.

The kingdom of Scotland, as well as other nations, often suffered from the calamities that have been consequent on minorities. The affairs of Keppoch must have been in the most disordered state, when a people, warlike and independent in spirit, were trusted to the care, and left under the control of relations—selfish, and, as they proved, unworthy of their trust. The innocent, unsuspecting young men were sacrificed to the ambitious usurpation of base and cruel relatives. Our poet alone proved faithful; and, after doing what he could, it was not safe for him to rest there. The cause he espoused was honourable; and he was never wanting in zeal. Confiding in the justice of his cause, and his own powers of persuasion, (and no man better knew how to touch the spring that vibrated through the feelings of a high-spirited and disinterested chieftain,) he succeeded. Being favourably received by Sir Alexander M'Donald, he concerted measures for punishing the murderers, which met his lordship's approval, and indicated the judgment and sagacity of the faithful clansman.

A person was sent to North Uist with a message to Archibald M'Donald (An Ciaran Mabach), a poet as well as a soldier, commissioning him to take a company of chosen men to the mainland, where he would meet with the Lochaber bard, who would guide and instruct him in his future proceedings.

The usurpers were seized and beheaded. They met with the punishment they so richly deserved; but the vengeance was taken in the most cruel manner; and the exultation and feelings of the man who acted so boldly, and stood so firmly in the defence of the right, have been too ostentatiously indulged, in verses from which humanity recoils. How different from his melting strains, so full of sympathy and compassion for the innocent young men whose death he avenged!

The atrocious deed has been palpably commemorated, in a manner repugnant to humanity, by “Tobar nan Ceann.”

Sometime thereafter the poet and Glengarry were reconciled. The chief well knew the influence of the “man of song” in the country, and had more policy than to despise one so skilled in the politics of the times—who made himself of more than ordinary consequence by the favour shown him by Sir Alexander M'Donald. No one of his rank could command greater deference. There might have been found votaries of the muses that poured out sweeter strains, but he was second to none in energy and pathos, in adapting his art to the object in view, and in producing the desired effect. He was born for the very age in which he lived. To the side he espoused he faithfully stood, and exerted all the energies of his mighty mind in behalf of the cause which he adopted. We shall not say that he was always in the right: in the one already related, he undoubtedly was; in a subsequent and greater cause he made one of a party. A poet is often led away by feeling, by passion and prejudice, when not left to cool reflection, or to the exercise of a better judgment. But Iain Lom entered on his enterprise with heart and zeal. A wider scene of action opened to his view. Usurpation, family feuds, and intestine troubles, gave way to civil war; and the vigilant seer became an active agent in the wars of Montrose.

One trait in the character of our poet, though not common, yet is not singular, and may be worthy of a remark or two. He was no soldier, and yet would set every two by the ears. Men of influence in the country, as well as chieftains at a distance, knew this, and dreaded him. An instance will put this in clear light. In the active scenes of those intestine troubles, a great politician and a famous bard was a person not to be neglected. He became an useful agent to his friends, and he received a yearly pension from Charles II. as his bard.

The Lochaber poet was the means of bringing the armies of Montrose and the Argyleshire men together, at Inverlochay, where the bloody battle that ensued proved so fatal to so many brave men, the heads of families of the Campbell clan.

It will be unnecessary to follow here a history so well known. The Argyleshire men, on learning the intentions of their enemies to make a second descent on their country, marched north in order to divert their course, and save Argyleshire from another devastation. John McDonald's eyes were open to all that was passing. He hastened to the army of Montrose with the intelligence that the Campbells were in Lochaber. Mr Alexander McDonald, (better known by his patronymic, Alasdair Mac Cholla,) who commanded the Irish auxiliaries, took John as guide, and went in search of the Campbells. He, after search was made, and finding no trace of them, began to suspect the informer of some sinister motive; and declared, "if he deceived him, he would hang him on the first tree he met." "Unless," answered the poet, who was well informed of the fact, "you shall find the Campbells all here, for certainly they are in the country, before this time to-morrow, you may do so." The enemy at length appeared, and they prepared to give them battle. "Make ready, John," says the commander to the poet, "you shall march along with me to the fight." The poet, as has been asserted of the greatest of orators, was a coward; yet he too well knew his man to have altogether declined the honour he offered him; for Mr Alexander was not the man to be refused. The other was at his wits end. A thought arose quicker than speech; and it was fortunate for him. "If I go along with thee to-day," said the bard, "and fall in battle, who will sing thy praises to-morrow? Go thou, Alasdair, and exert thyself as usual, and I shall sing thy feats, and celebrate thy prowess in martial strains." "Thou art in the right, John," replied the other; and left him in a safe place to witness the engagement.

From the castle of Inverlochay, the poet had a full view of the battle, of which he gives a graphic description. The poem is entitled The Battle of Inverlochay. The natives repeat these heroic verses, as most familiar and recent ones. So true, natural, and home-brought is the picture, that all that had happened, seem to be passing before their eyes. The spirit of poetry, the language, and boldness of expression, have seldom been equalled, perhaps never surpassed; yet, at this distance of time, these martial strains are rehearsed with different and opposite feelings.

The changes which afterwards took place produced no change in the politics of our bard. He entered into all the turmoils of the times with his whole heart, and with a boldness which no danger could daunt, nor power swerve from what he considered his duty. He became a violent opposer of the union, and employed his muse against William and Mary. It mattered little to him of what rank or station his opponents were if they incurred his resentment. He treated his enemies with the same freedom and boldness whether on the throne, at the head of an army, or in the midst of a clan on whose fidelity the chief might always depend. But his friends who were of the party which he espoused were spared, while he made the nicest distinction between the shades and traits of character. How ingeniously he revenged himself on Glengarry in the praises bestowed on Sir Alexander M'Donald! Yet, would he suffer a hair of the head of any of his clan to be touched? No truly.

But how severe was he against a neighbouring clan that was always in opposition to his own. The Campbells he always lashed with the sharpest stripes of satire. The marquess of Argyle, who, on the score of heroism might have shaken hands with himself, felt the influence of the satire and ridicule of the popular bard and politician so much, that he offered a considerable reward for his head. The conduct of M'Donald on this occasion, indicates well the manner in which the character of a bard was respected and held sacred.

The poet repaired to Inverary, went to the castle, and delivered himself to the marquess, demanding his reward. We have already given an instance of his cowardly spirit. No one would accuse him of rashness; for he proved his prudence, caution, and foresight, from the long experience and trials he had in troublesome times. It was, therefore, on the safety granted to the office of bardship that he depended. Nor did he trust too much. He was perfectly safe in the midst of his enemies; even in the very castle of their chief who offered a reward for his head. The marquess received him courteously, and brought him through the castle; and on entering a room hung round with the heads of black cocks, his Grace asked John:—"Am fac thu riamh Iain, an uiread sin de choilich dhubha an aon àite?"—"Chunnaic," ars Iain. "C'âite?"—"An Inbher-Lòchaidh."—"A! Iain, Iain, cha sguir thu gu bràch de chagnadh nan caimbeulach?"—"Se 's duilich leam," ars Iain, "nach urradh mi ga slugadh." i. e. "Have you ever seen, John, so many black cocks together?" "Yes," replied the undaunted bard. "Where?" demanded his grace. "At Inverlochay," returned the poet, alluding to the slaughter of the Campbells on that memorable day. "Ah! John," added his grace, "will you never cease gnawing the Campbells?" "I am sorry," says the other, "that I could not swallow them."

He was buried in Dun-aingeal in the braes of Lochaber; and his grave was till of late pointed out to the curious by the natives. Another bard, Alexander M'Donald of Glen-coe, composed an elegy to him when standing on his grave, beginning thus:—

"Na shìneadh an so fo na pluic,
Tha gaol an leoghainn 's fuath an tuire, &c."

Iain Lom composed as many poems as would form a considerable volume, the best of which are given in this work.

AN STOP DHUINN.*

A bhean leasaich an stop dhuinn,
'S lion an cupa le sólas,
Mas a branndai no beoir i, tha mi toileach a h-òl
'N deochs' air Captain Chlann-Domhnuill,

Le slioich uaibhreach an athar,
 A choisín buaigh leis a chlaideimh,
Fior ga ruagadh 's ga 'n caitheamh gu daor.

* This song was composed on account of the laird of Glengarry refusing his aid in apprehending the Keppoch murderers; and in order to provoke the chief, the poet began by singing the praises of Sir Alexander M'Donald of Slate, and Sir James his son.

Slioichd a ghabhail nan steud thu,
 Dh' fhas gu flathasach feile,
Do shiochd gasda Chuinn cheutaich,
 'S a bha taghaich an Eirinn,
Ged a fhuair an claidhe 's an tèug oirbh sgriob.

Bhiodh an t-iubhar ga lubadh,

Leis a bhuidheann ro 'n ruisgte na gill.

'S tha mo dhuil ann 's an Trianaid,
 Ged thainig laigsinn air t-fhion fhuil,

* Women were the judges in this case, and a thief who was brought before them for stealing a horse, was allowed to escape while the horse was condemned to be hanged. The occasion was this:—Some time before the present action was raised, the same culprit had stolen the same horse and was prosecuted; but had the good fortune to get off in consequence of its being his first offence. It seems, however, the horse had found the thief so much the better master that he soon after "stole himself" away and returned, for which, poor fellow he had to suffer the above reward. This story is often referred to among the Highlanders when law and justice are evidently different things, they say—"Cha tugadh an Cille-ma-cheallaig breath bu chlaioise."

* "After the murder of the children of Keppoch Iain Manntach, the poet, had to flee for his life to Ross-shire, where he got a place from Seaforth in Glenhead, where he and his family might reside till such time as the murderers could be apprehended, as Seaforth, at the poet's request, had petitioned government for carrying that point into effect. This happened in the time of Sir James McDonald, sixteenth baron of Slate, anno 1663.

"The government finding it impracticable to bring those robbers to justice in a legal way, sent a most ample commission of fire and sword (as it was then called) to Sir James McDonald, signed by the duke of Hamilton, marquis of Montrose, earl of Eglinton, and other six of the Privy Council, with orders and full powers to pursue, apprehend, and bring in, dead or alive, all those lawless robbers, and their abettors.

"This, in a very short time, he effectually performed: some of them he put to death, and actually dispersed the rest to the satisfaction of the whole court, which contributed greatly to the civility of those parts.

"Immediately thereafter, by order of the ministry, he got a letter of thanks from the earl of Rothes, then Lord High Treasurer and Keeper of the Great Seal of Scotland, full of acknowledgments for the singular service he had done the country, and assuring him that it should not pass unrewarded, with many other clauses much to Sir James' honour.

"This letter is dated the 15th day of December, 1665, and signed Rothes. Sir James died anno 1675."—Extracted from an unpublished Historical MS. of the M'Donalds.

* This battle was fought between the M'Donalds and the Campbells, on Sunday, February 2, 1645.

† When the Campbells were routed, they endeavoured to cross the river at the above-mentioned ford. To their astonishment, however, the task proved more irksome than they had anticipated; for, some of them losing their footing, their bonnets were carried down by the current. This event delighted and amused the poet; and, in order to make it at the same time ludicrous in itself, and galling to the poor Campbells, he began to address them as follows:—"A Dhuimhneacha Dhuimhneacha, cuimhnichibh 'ur boin-eidean."

* See the sixth stanza of the foregoing Song.

'S ceart 's cho cheart mar mo dhurachd,
 Le beachd mo shul gur mi chunnaic ;
 Cha robh againn do sgathan,
 Ach greasad trà do 'n taigh grunnaich ;
 "Aisling caillich mar a dùrachd,"
 Gach mio-rùn bha do 'n duin ud ;
 Ged bu ladurna 'n cùl-chainnt,
 Stad a chuis air an iomall.

Cha b e aingeachd na tuatha,
 Gluais am marcus le dhaoine ;
 Ach togail a bhrataich,

 Agus fosgladh gach caisteil,

Gheill Dun-staf-innis grad dut,

 Ged bu daingheann a chlach i,
 Fhuair thu steach air bheag saothreach :

Na 'm biodh fear a bheoil mhoir ann,
O nach doirteadh gloir bhreamas !
Naile chailleadh sibh geoigh ris,
Nach b' fhiach an ròsthadh ri teallaich :
Fhuair sibh sgapadh nan caorach,
Na 'm biodh a dhaoine air an talamh ;
'S ged a ghlac sibh le foill e,
B' e flein an saighdear bu ghlaine.

Gur maирг a dh' earbadh a cairdeas,
Neach a dh-has dheth an t-sloinmeadh,
Na 'm biodh cuimhn' air an lath' ud,
Phuair iad t-athair fo 'n comas ;
Chuir iad smuid ri tur-arda,
Chaisteil Bhlair gu gle shoilleir ;
'S beag bha dhòchas an là sin,
Gu 'm biodh iad pàighe na 'n comainn.

'S mor tha eadar dha latha,
Ged bha e grathunn gun tighinn ;
Chaidh thu 'n cuirt na bu leatha,
'N deigh t-athar a mhilleadh ;
Gun aon bhuille claidheamh,
Gun sathadh biodaig no sgine ;
Mur gu 'm bathadh tu coinnlean,
Chaill e 'n oighreachd 'sa 'n cùineach.

'S beag a b' fhiach do Mhac Mhoirich,
Dhol n' ur coinneamh ach ainneamh ;
Na ghabhail mar chompach,
Ach fear da 'n geallt' bhi na charaid ;
'N deigh a Chomasdair Stiùbhairt,
Thain' sibh 'n tus air le h-an-iocdh,
Thugadh air ceannan deth gun sgrubadh,
Ann an tìr Lady Murray.

Buail ap teud sin gu sealbhach,
'S na dean searbh i gun bhinneas ;
'S na toir t-aghaidh neo-chearbhaich,
Do 'n fhearr nach earb thu do shlinnein ;
Ma chuir an rìgh an t-slat sgiùrsaidh,
'N glaic do dhuirn gun a sireadh ;
Uair mu seach air an fhurnais,
Mur bhuill' ùird air an innein.

Gleir do 'n Righ th' air a chathair,
'S maирг a ghabhadh mun chluinneadh ;
No ghuidheadh na bhreig e ;
Gach ni dh-eirich sa chunnaic ;
Mu 's ann le droch-bheart Iudais,
Dh-fhuaigne thu chìùd air an Lunnaidh ;
Chaill thu 'n luireach 's na breidean,
'S gach aon eideadh bha umad.

'N cuala' sibhse 'sa 'n duthaich,
'N ranntar-bùth bh' aig na luchan ;
'S iad a trusadh ri chèile,
Na 'n droch reisemeid churta ;
'Nuair bha eagal a chait orr' ;
Chaidh droch sgapadh an cuiid diu ;
'Sa bheisd mhor 'sa 'n robh phlaigh dhiu,
Sgrios gun agb' oirr' mar fhurtachd.

Sin 'nuair labhair Dubh-na-h-àmrai,
A bheisd ghrannd 'sa chrain mhullaich ;
Cha robh an sabhal nau àth dhiu,
Beisd le 'n àl nach do chruitich,
Nuair bha 'mòd ga 'r cruaidh shàrach'
'S na cuird a fasgadh ma 'r muineil ;
'S ann an sud a bha 'n gàtar,
Co a chàradh iad umaibh.

B' ionann sin sa 'm bun ruta,
Cha 'n eil iad buidheach da' r' n-an-iocdh ;
Mar chlach an ionad an uibhe,
Na 'm biodh luitheachd na 'n teangaидh ;
B' ionann sin 's do shliochd Dhiaimaid,
Bhi ga 'r biadhadh an an-iocdh ;
Math an agaidh an uile,
Chuir mi luchd-sa 'n Aird-reanaich.

'Nuair bha 'n ad oirbh n-uiridh,
Bha sibh urranta mòdhàr ;
Am blaidhna chaill sibh an currachd,
'S eiginn fuireach gle shamhach :

Chaill an t-Iarl air 'ur turas,
Mheud 'sa bhuinig e mhàl oirbh ;
Gar am b' fhiach leis an duin' ud,
Bhi ri cruinneachadh cnàmhaig.

B' olc a b' fhiach do dhiuc-Atholl,
Dholl an coinne riut Eardsaidh,
'N deigh latha Roinn-Llothunn ;
Thug sibh loc-shlaint mar earlais,
Mheall sibh null than an abhinn,
Marcus Atholl 'sa bhrathair ;
Chuir sibh 'n laimh an toll-dubh iad,
'S loisg sibh duthaich iarl Earlaidh.*

Tha thu 'd mharcus am bliadhna,
'S ad shàr farl air Tulaich-bheardainn ;
'S ged a dheanadh iad diùc dhiot,
'S ro mhath b' fhiu thu an t-aite ;
Tha do thiothal cho lionor,
Chumail dion air do chairdean ;
Geard an rìgh fo d' smachd orduidh,
'S tha thu d' mhòir-fhear Baile-mhanaidh.

ORAN AIR RIGH UILLEAM
AGUS BAN-RIGH MAIRL.

LUNNEAG.

Hi-rinn h-à rinn, ho ro h-o bha ho,
Hi-rinn h-à rinn, ho ro h-o bha ho,
Biodh gach duine agaibh brònach,
Atr son joirneart mo righ.

'N DUIGH chuala' mi naidheachd,
Air alt nach b'aimhealach leinn,
'N'an cumadh e chasan—
'S gu boidih an t-ath-egeul cho binu—
Righ Seumas le farum,
Cur a dharaich na still ;
O'n 's leat uachdar na mara,
Gluais a's taruinn gu tìr.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Mhic Mhuire na h-òighe,
Coimhead foirneart mo rìgh ;
Co b'urrainn da'r smàladh—
Ach do lambhans' bhi leinn :
Faic a nis prionns Orans',
Cur na còir os a cinn ;
Ach as do chobhair, a Shlan-'ear,
Thig furtachd a's slaint air gach tìnn.
Hi-rinn, &c.

A Righ chumhachdaich, fheartaich,
Ga 'm beil beachd air gach nì,
Cum air aghaidh an ceartas—
An lagh seachranach pill :

* A title formerly in Strathmore, now extinct.

Faic luchd nam breid dàite,
Bhi gun dealt ann ri'n linn ;
'S ma tha 'n eucoir nan aigneadh,
Beum do shlat os an cinn.

Hi-rinn, &c.

'N uair a thainig thu Shasunn,
'S tu rinn aiseag a bhreamais ;
Sheilbh chòir thoirt air eigin,
O athair eeile thug bean dut.
Cha bi reull nan dùilean,
Bha deanaadh iuil dut 'san ain-eol ;
Mar bha roimh na trì rìghrean,
'N uair bha Iosa na leanabh.

Hi-rinn, &c.

Thug thu 'm follais an t-Slàn'ear,
Seuga gràin do luchd teagaisig ;
'S gur mòr am fà näire,
'S an coig àintean a bhriseadh,
A nighean fhéin, 's mac a pheathar,
'N aghaidh labhairt an Sgriobtuir,
Mar bheurn ghearran 'sa chathair,
'S nach b'shear-taighe da 'n sliochd e.

Hi-rinn, &c.

'S fior mhallaichte 'n lànan,
Chum an Spàinn anns an roinn ud ;
Seilbh chòir thoirt a dh-aindeoin,
Le mùtha malairt an t-slaigheir :
Ged' a stadhach an claidheamh,
Gun bhuille chaith' ach na rinn e,
Bi'dh gach fuil 'g eigheach am flaitheas,
A d' dheigh a latha 's a dh' oidhche.

Hi-rinn, &c.

'S mairg a chreideadh droch naidheachd,
Thig tro amhaich a nàmhaid,
Chuireadh fùdar na ghreadan,
An grund' na h-eaglaise gnàthaicht ;
'S lionor lunn tha na teine,
'S a ghrund' n do spealadh an grain-shop
Ach, chi sinn fhathasd sud diolte,
Mas' a fior a ta 'n fhàistinn.

Hi-rinn, &c.

'N uair chaidh Whitehall losgadh,
Bu mhall do choiseachd gun bhrògan ;
'S mi nach rachadh le pairti,
Air mhire, bhàthadh, na töite.
Mas' a daoine rinn suas e,
B'fhoin an cruadal, 's an seoltachd ;
Cha 'n eil mi gearan—mo thruaighe !
Ach a lughadh 's a fhuaire dhiu an ròstadh

Hi-rinn, &c.

Cha tig ach rùcas a's cealgan,
O chruietean cealgach an ràbuill ;
Cuiribh an t-aibhisdear saoil ris—
Biodh Dia a's daoine ga aiceadh.

Cleas eud bean a chruiteir,
 Fhuair a cursadh 'n sgàth gáraidh ;
 Thog iad airsan mar uirsgeul,
 Gu 'n do mhurt e dhearbh-bhrathair.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Gu 'm bu ghrannda na sgeoil sin,
 Thog na deomhain ga dhìbeirt !
 'S nach b' urr' iad ga dhearbhadh,
 Ach mar bhuille searbh da 'n luchd mi-ruin ;
 Gu 'n cuire iseann a chlamhain,
 An nead clannach an fhireoin ;
 Mac muice a bhalaich,
 Shalcha fala nan rìghrean.
Hi-rinn, &c.

'S maing rìgh a rinn cleamhnas,
 Rì Dùitseach shantach gun trocair ;
 Cha b'e 'n onair bu ghnàs da,
 Ged' s tu brathair-mathair an rògair.
 Ged' a thug thu dha Màiri
 Air laimh, chum a pòsaidh,
 Ghabhla e t-oighreachd a t-an-toil
 Thar do cheann, a's thu d' bheo-shlaint.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Bha mac aig rìgh Daibhidh,
 'S bu deas àill air ceann sluaigh e,
 Chaidh e'n aghaidh an athar,
 S am fear nach cár da bhuaireadh ;
 'N uair a sgaoileadh am blàr sin,
 Thug Dia páigheadh na dhuais da ;
 'S o'n do droch dhuine cloinn e,
 Chroch a choill air a ghruaig e.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Ach buaidh an droch sgeoil sin,
 Do phrionns Orains gun diadhachd,
 Ged' a rachadh do bhàthadh,
 Cha b' ionann bàs dut 's dh' iarrainn ;
 Ach mo suilean bhi t-fhaicinn,
 Edar eachabh gá d' stíalladh ;
 Dol a d' smaladh 's an adhar,
 Mar luaithe dhaigte ga criathradh.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Sgrios gun iarmad, gun duilleach,
 Cha 'n iarruinn tuille am dhàn duibh ;
 Gun sliochd a dh-iathadh mu t' uilinn,
 Do ghniomh broinne droch Mhàiri ;
 Ged' a ghìlacadh nu theum e,
 'S farsuinn beul a mhic-lamhaich ;
 A shean staoile bhi 'n cunnart,
 Aig na rinn thu thrusadh a cràineig.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Ach seun gun tuisleadh air Màiri,
 'S ole an làn tha na togsaid ;

'N ar fhaicear laogh càraidh,
 Nuas gu làr as a pocá.
 Cha bhi 'n sean fhacail claoite,
 Air neo 's claoen theid a thogail ;
 Tha 'n dà shant 's an droch mhnaoi ud,
 'S annsadh * * * le no bòban.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Ach na 'n tigeadh an rìgh sin,
 'S a mhae dileas air aidmheil,
 Ged' a theireadh prionns Orains,
 Nach h-i choir a bhi agaínn,
 Cha bu mho orra Uilleam,
 Air sràid Lunnaidh an Sasunn,
 'N ceann fhuadach deth mhuineal,
 Na cluas cuilein an radain.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Prionns Orains a mhì-rath,
 Mas' tol le Rìgh thoirt gu creideamh,
 'S eòir an duilleag so thiondadh,
 Air a bhan-rìgh nach creid e.
 Ma shaoil am bith-shannatach samutach
 Na mhae-samhla ga ghoid sud ;
 Na a ruitheachd le lànnan,
 Air nighean Seanalair Huitsein.
Hi-rinn, &c.

B'fhearr gu 'm bnaileadh e'n staidse,
 Tus a bhàidse bu chòir dha,
 N'am bu tuiteam 'sa phlaigh dhùinn,
 Mar fhuair rìgh Phàro, 's a sheorsa ;
 Mar bhe chomhairle blàrige,
 Chuir rìgh Seumas air fògradh ;
 Aithris cleas nan droch rìghrean,
 Leis 'n do dhiteachd Rìgh-boam.*
Hi-rinn, &c.

Sgeul buan e do'n mhearcайд.
 'S nach tog a mac a cui'd oighreachd ;
 'S ion dith cùram a ghabhail,
 Mu'n dùinear cathair na soills' orr ;
 Thoill i mallachd a h-athar,
 O'n ghabh an t-aibhisteur greim dh'i ;
 'S olc an dùchas a lean rith,
 Chuinn a seanair na throiteir.
Hi-rinn, &c.

'S math an toiseach ar seannsa,
 Ma rinn am Frangach a thapadh—
 Ma ghìlacadh leis Monsai,
 Cha sgeul tum-sgeul ach ceartas,
 Bu mhatheadh gu'm biodh an abhans,
 Air a tionsadh gu Sasunn ;
 Na gu faicte an cunnatar,
 Cho ghrad ri tionsa nan cairtean.
Hi-rinn, &c.

* Rehoboam, poetically.

Ach ma stad air an diùc sin,
 'S nach e a run tigh'n ni's fhaide;
 Leig e cadal do'n chìrein—
 Stad a sgiob mar a chleachd e;
 Ma leig gach saighdear a ghleus deth:
 'N uair tha leigheart mu'n chaisleal,
 B'héarr gu'm faicinn an coileach,
 No, gu'n gaireadh a chaismeachd.
Hi-rinn, &c.

Mu tha e'n dàn dhut teachd dhachaigh,
 'S nàr dhut t-fhaicinn gun speurad;
 Ged' a fhuar thu pait leonaidh,
 Ri àm fògraidd righ Sheumais;
 Ma tha thu cruaidh air an raipeir,
 Seall air slachdan a ghleusaidh,
 Leis an do spionadh mo sgròban,
 Ma's fior Tòmas an Réumair.
Hi-rinn, &c.

* "Crosis-tàra," or "crann-tàra," was a piece of wood, half burnt and dipped in blood, sent by a special messenger as a signal of distress or alarm. The person to whom it was sent, immediately despatched another person with it to some one else; and thus was intelligence passed from one to another over immense distances in an incredibly short time. One of the latest instances of its being used, was in 1715, by lord Breadalbane, when it went round Loch Tay, the distance of thirty-two miles, in three hours. The above method was used only in the day-time; for in the night, recourse was had to the "Sgorr-theine," a large fire kindled on an eminence. See Ossian's "Carrig-thura." The last mentioned signal is spoken of by Jeremiah to denote distress, chap. vi. 1.

* Captain Andrew Munro sent instructions to Neil Macleod, the Laird of Assynt, his brother-in-law, to apprehend every stranger that might enter his bounds, in the hope of catching Montrose, for whose apprehension a splendid reward was offered. In consequence of those instructions, Macleod sent out various parties in quest of Montrose, but they could not fall in with him. "At last the Laird of Assynt being abroad in arms with some of his tenants in search of him, lighted on him in a place where he had continued three or four days without meat or drink, and only one man in his company. Assynt had formerly been one of Montrose's own followers, who immediately knowing him, and believing to find friendship at his hands, willingly discovered himself; but Assynt not daring to conceal him, and being greedy of the reward which was promised to the person who should apprehend him by the council of the estates, immediately seized and disarmed him."* Montrose offered Macleod a large sum of money for his liberty, which he refused to grant. Macleod kept Montrose and his companion prisoners in the castle of Aird-bhreac, his principal residence, for a few days. He was from thence removed to Skibo castle, where he was kept two nights, thereafter to the castle of Braan, and thence again to Edinburgh.

AN CIARAN MABACH.

NO,

GILLEASPUIG RUADH MAC-DHOMHNUILL.

ARCHIBALD M'DONALD, commonly called Ciaran Mabach, was an illegitimate son of Sir Alexander M'Donald, sixteenth baron of Slate. He was contemporary with Iain Lom, the Lochaber bard, and his coadjutor in punishing the murderers of the lawful heirs of Keppoch.

In no one could his father more properly have confided matters of importance, requiring sagacity, zeal, and bravery, than in this son. Accordingly he made use of his services when necessary; and put the greatest dependence in his fidelity, prudence, and activity. Ciaran Mabach was no doubt amply requitted by his father, who allotted him a portion of land in North Uist. Grants of land were in those times commonly given to gentlemen of liberal education, but of slender fortune; where amid their rural occupations they enjoyed pleasures unknown to those who in similar stations of life were less happily located. Of this our bard was very sensible during his stay in Edinburgh, as we learn from his poem on that occasion.

It does not appear that our poet was a voluminous writer; and of his compositions there are very few extant. It is to be regretted that so few of his poems have been preserved, as his taste, education, and natural powers, entitle him to a high place among the bards of his country. Gentlemen of a poetical genius could have resided in no country more favourable to poetry than in the Highlands of Scotland, where they led the easy life of the sportsman, or the grazier, and had leisure to cultivate their taste for poetry or romance.

B' ANNSA CADAL AIR FRAOCH.

G' socrach mo leabaidh,
B' annsa cadal air fraoch,
Ann an lagan beag uaigueach,
A's bad de'n luachair ri 'm thaobb,
'Nuair dh'eirinn sa' mhadainn,
Bhi siubhal ghlacagan caol,
Na bbi triall thun na h-Abaid,
'G eisdeachd glagraich nan sàor.

'S oil leam càradh na frith,
'S mi bhi 'n Lìte nan long,
Eadar ceann Saileas Si-phort,
A's rutba Ghrianaig nan tonn,

Agus Uiginnis riabhach,
An tric an d'iar mi damh-donn,
'S a bbi triall thun nam bodach,
Dha'm bu chosnadhl cas-chrom.

Cha'n eil agam cù gleusda,
A's cha'n eil feum agam dha,
Cha suidh mi air bachdan,
Air sliabh fad o chàch,
Cha leig mi mo ghaothar,
Chaidh faogh'd au tuim bàin,
'S cha sgaoil mi mo luaidhe,
An Gleann-Ruathain gu bràth.

B'iad mo ghradh-sa a ghraidih uallach,
 A thogadh suas ris an áird,
 Dh'itheadh biolair an fhuarain,
 'S air bu shuarach an cal,
 'S mise féin nach tug fuath dhuibh,
 Ged a b'fhuar am mios Máiagh.
 'S tric a dh'fhuilig mi cruidal,
 A's moran fuachd air 'ur sgàth.

Be mo ghradh-sa fear buidhe,
 Nach dean suidhe mu'n bhòrd,
 Nach iarradh ri cheannach,
 Pinnt leanna na beoir;
 Uisge-beatha math dubailt,
 Cha be b'fhiù leat ri òl,
 B'fhearr leat biolair an fhuarain,
 A's úisge luaineach an lòin.

B'i mo ghradh-sa a bhean uasal,
 Dha nach d'fhuaras riamh lochd,
 Nach iarradh mar chluasaig,
 Ach fior ghualainn nan cnoc,
 'S nach fulligeadh an t-sradag,
 À lasadh r'i corp,
 Och! a Mhuire mo chruidh-chas,
 Nach dh'fhuair mi thu nochd.

Bean a b'aigeantaich céile,
 Nam eiridh ri driùchd,
 Cha'n fhaigheadh tu beud da,
 'S cha bu leir leis ach thu
 Sibh an glacaibh a chéile,
 Am fior eudainn nan stùc,
 'S ann am eiridh na gréine,
 Bu għlan leirsinn do sbūl.

'Nuair a thigeadh am foghar,
 Bu bhinn leam gleadhair do chléibh,
 Dol a għabhaill a chrónain,
 Air a mhointieh bħuig réidh,
 Dol an coinneamh do leannain,
 Bu ghile feaman a's céir
 Gur h-i 'n eilid bu bhōiche,
 A's bu bħrisg lōghmhorra ceum.

Note.—This song was composed in Edinburgh while the poet was under the care of a surgeon for a sprain in his foot.

DO SHIR SEUMAS MAC-DHONUILL.*

B' FHEARR am mor ole a chluintinn.
 Bhrigh ionradh na fhaicinn.
 Dhomhsa b' fħurasd' sud innse,
 Rug air 'm inntinn trom shac dheth ;
 O 'n is mi bha 'sa 'n fhulang,
 Bu chruaħħ duilich ri fhaicinn ;
 Rainig croma-sgian o 'n aog mi,

 Rug muir bāitht' air a chul sin,
 Cha d' fhiosraich mi 'm bàs dut,
 Gus an dh fhàg mi thu 'n crùiste.

* The poet's brother.

Gur h-e " Port Raoghuill uidhir,"*
Mur nach bu dligheach is céòl domh.

'S bochd mo naidheachd r'a h-innse ;
Ge b'e sgrìobhadh i 'n tàth-bhuinn ;
O 'n là riinn thu feum duine,

Cha cuibis pharmaid mo lethid ;
'S ann tha mi 'n deigh mo spùllidh ;

Gun dion buill' air mo chùl-thaobh,
Stad mo claidheamh na dhuilie,
'S bâth dhomh fuireach r'a rùsgadh.

* Raoghuill odhar was a piper. There is a story told about this worthy, to the following purpose :—He was a great coward; and being in the exercise of his calling in the battle-field one day along with his clan, he was seized with such fear at the sight of the enemy, whom he thought too many for his party, that he left off playing altogether, and began to sing a most dolorous song to a lachrymose air, some stanzas of which had been picked up and preserved by his fellow soldiers; and which, on their return from the war they did not fail to repeat. When an adult is seen crying for some trifling cause, he is said to be singing "Port Raoghuill uidhir," "Dun Donald's tune;" and when a Highlander is threatening vengeance for some boisterous and uproarious devilment which has been played off upon him, he will say : " Bheir mis ort gu scinn thu ' Port Raoghuill uidhir " i.e. "I will make you sing ' Dun Ronald's tune!'" The following are a few of the stanzas :—

" Be so an talamh mi shealbhach !
Tha gun cladach gun ghabhlach gu'n chòs ;
Ams an rachainn da'm fhalach,
'S sluagh gun athadh a teannadh faisg oirn

Tha mi tinn leis an eagal,
Tha mi cinnteach gur beag a bhios bed
Chi mi lasadh an fhùdar,
Chluinn mi sgàileadh nan dù-chlach ri drd !

Fhuair mi gunna nach diult ml,
Fhuair mi claidheamh nach lùb ann am dhòrn,
Ach ma ni iad mo mharbhadh,
Ciòd a feum a ni 'n àrmach sin dhomh-s?"
Tha mi tinn, &c.

Ged do gheibhinn-sa sealbh,
Air làn a chaisneal de dh' airgead 's de dh-òr,
Oich ! 'ma ni iad mo mharbhadh !
Ciòd a feum a ni 'n t-alrgead sin domh-s?"
Tha mi tinn, &c.

Bhuin an t-eug creach gun toir dhiom
Dh' aindeoin oigridh do dhùthcha ;
Dh' flag e m' aigneadh fo dhòruinn,
'S bhual e bròg air mo chuinneadh ;
'S trom a dh' fhuasgail e deoir dhomh,
Bu mhor mo choir air an dubladh ;
Mu cheann-uighe nan deoiribh,
Bhi fo bhòrd ann an dùndadh.

Bu deas déile mo shior-ruith,
'S gu 'm bu dionach mo chlàraidh ;
Bha mo chala gun diobradh,
Ga mo dhion as gach sàradh' ;
Riamh gus 'n tainig an dil orm,
Dh' flag fo mhighean gu bràth mi ;
'S ard a dh' éirich an staile-s' orm,
Chuir i as domh ma m' àirnean.

Call gun bhuining gun buannachd,
Bha ga m' ruagadh' o 'n tràth sin ;
Cha b' i 'n iomairt gun fhuathas,
Leis 'n do ghluais mi mar chearrach ;
'N cluich a shaoil mi bhi 'm buannachd,
Dh' fhaointe ghlusad air tàileasg ;
Thainig goin a's cur suas orm,
'S tha fear fuar dhomh na t-àite.

O 'n chaidh maill' air mo fhradharc,
'S nach taoghail mi 'n ard-bheann ;
Chuir mi cul ris an fhiadhach,
Pong cha n' iarr mi air clàrsach ;
Mo cheol laidhe a's eiridh,
M' osnadh gheur air bheag tàbhachd ;
Fad mo rè bidh mi 'g acain,
Mheud 'sa chleachd mi dheth t-àilleas.

Ach dleasaidh faighidinn furtachd,
Nach faic thu chuisle ga luaithread ;
Air fear na teasaich 'sa 'n fhiabhras,
'S gearr mu shioladh a bhruaidein ;
Muir a dh' eireas ga bhraisead,
Ni fear math beairte dh' i suaineach ;
Ach e dh' iomairt gu tapaidh,
Ceanu da shlaith thuig a's uaithe.

'Nuair a bha mi am ghille,
'S mi 'n ciad iomairt Shir Seumas,
Mar ri comhlan dheth m' chinneadh,
Seoladh air spinneig do dh' Eirinn ;
'S ann aig I Chalum Chille,
Ghabh mi giorrag mu d' dheighinn ;
Chaill thu lau mèise feedair,
Air do shròin do 'n fhuil ghìe dhearg.

Luchd a chaitheadh nan cuaintean,
'S moch a ghluaiseadh gu surdail,
Le 'n àlach chalpannan cruidhe,
Bu bheag roimh' 'n fhuaradh an curam ;

Bu choma co dheth na h-uaislean,
 Ghlacadh gluasad na stiùrach ;
 'S fear math bearit air a gualainn,
 B' urrainn fuasgladh gach cuise.

'N am gluasad o thir dhuinn,
 Bu neo-mhiodhoir ar lòistean,
 Cornach, cupanach, fionach,
 Glaineach, liontaigh a stòpaibh ;
 Gu cairteach, taileasgach, disneach,
 'S tailc eir uigh na 'n foirnibh ;

Dhomh-sa b' fhurasd' sud innse
 Bu chuid do m' guoimh o m' aois òige.

Bu ro-eibneach mo leabaidh,
 'S bha mo chadal gle chomhnard,
 Fhad 'sa dh' fhuirich thu agam,
 An caoin chadal gun fhòtus ;
 Bu tu mo sgaith laidir dhileas,
 Ga mo dhion o gach dòrann,
 'S e cuid a dh' aobhar mo leith-truim,
 Bhi 'n diugh a seasamh do chòrach.

DIORBHAIL NIC A BHRIUTHAINN;

OR,

DOROTHY BROWN.

THIS poetess belonged to Luing, an island, in Argyleshire. It is uncertain when she was born; but she was cotemporary with Iain Lom; like him was a Jacobite, and also employed her muse in the bitterest satire against the Campbells. Indeed there must have been great pungency in her songs; for, long after her death, one Colin Campbell, a native of Luing, being at a funeral in the same burying-ground where she was laid, trampled on her grave, imprecating curses on her memory. Duncan MacLachlan, of Kilbride, in Lorn, himself a poet, and of whom the translator of Ossian makes honourable mention as a preserver of Gaelic poetry, being present, pulled him off her grave, sent for a gallon of whisky, and had it drunk to her memory on the spot. Her song to Alasdair Mac Cholla, was composed on seeing his birlinn pass through the sound of Luing on an expedition against the Campbells, in revenge for the death of his father, whom they had killed some time before. She is the only poetess who at all approaches Mairi nighean Alasdair Ruaidh as a successful votary of the muse. She composed a great many songs, but, not being much known out of her native island, perhaps, the following piece is the only thing of hers now extant. A tomb-stone, with a suitable Gaelic inscription, is about to be erected to her memory, in Luing, by a countryman of her own, Mr Artt M'Lachlan, of Glasgow, a gentleman well known for his zeal in every thing tending to promote the honour of Highlanders, and the Highlands.

ORAN DO DH' ALASDAIR MAC COLLA.

ALASDAIR a laoligh mo chéille,
 Co chunnaiac no dh' fhag thu 'n Eirinn,
 Dh' fhag thu na miltean 's na ceudan,
 'S cha d' fhag thu t-aon leithid fén ann,

 'S ged nach bi na Duimhnich reidh riut,

Thigeadh steach air mointich Thollaiddh,
'S a thogadh creach o mhuinnitir Thomaidh.
E-ho i u ho, &c.

Note.—As the air to which this piece is sung is rather a kind of irregular chant than a tune, the poetess was not necessitated to make all her stanzas of equal length. We know of other even good songs in similar style; and, perhaps, it is in some measure owing to this circumstance that the fertility of imagination, and raciness of language, so apparent in the compositions of some of our untutored bards is to be attributed. Marbhann Iain ghairbh, at page 26, is an instance of this.

SILIS NIGHEAN MHIC RAONAILL.

CICELY or JULIAN M'DONALD lived from the reign of Charles II. to that of George I. She was daughter to Mac Raoghnail na Ceapach, and of the Roman Catholic persuasion. Consequently she was an enemy to Protestantism, and hence devoted the earliest efforts of her muse against the House of Hanover. It is said that in her young days she was very frolicsome. She then composed epigrams, some of which are very clever, and in our possession. She was married to a gentleman of the family of Lovat, and lived with him in Moraghach Mhic-Shimidh, a place which she describes in a poem, as bare and barren in comparison to her native Loehaber. This celebrated piece begins with, “A theanga sin 'sa theanga shroil,” which was the first piece she composed after her marriage. During her residence in the North she composed “Slan gu bràch le ceòl na clàrsach,” as a lament for Lachlan M'Kinnon the blind harper. This harper was a great favourite of our poetess, and used to spend some of his time in her father's family. He was also in the habit of paying her a yearly visit to the North, and played on his harp while she sung :—

“ Nuair a ghlacadh tu do chlàrsach,
Sa bhiodh tu ga gleusadh lamh riùm,
Cha mhath a thuigte le umaidh,
Do chuir chiul-sa, 's mo ghabbail dhan-sa.”

During her residence in the North she composed several short pieces, among which is an answer to a song by Mr M'Kenzie of Gruineard called “An obair nogha.” Her husband died of a fit of intoxication, while on a visit to Inverness. She composed an elegy on him which is here given. The song “Alasdair a Glinne-Garaidh” is truly beautiful, and has served as a model for many Gaelic songs. After the death of her husband, she was nearly cut off by severe illness ; and upon her recovery, engaged her muse in the composition of hymns, some of which are still in use, as appears from a Hymn-book printed at Inverness in 1821. She lived to a good old age, but the time of her death is uncertain.

MARBH RANN AIR BAS A FIR.

'S i so bliadhna 's faid' a chlaoidh mi,
Gu'n cheol gu'n aighear gun fhaoileas,

O's coma' leam fhin, &c.

Ma's beag leam sud shuair mi bàrr air

 Gur tric an t-eug gu geur g'ur sealg-sa
 Leagail bhur crann-siùl gu fàirge.

 Mar ghullan ùr nach lùb droch aimsir,
 Mar phreas Fiona 's lionmhor leanmhuinn.

 An deigh an latha thig an oidhche
 'S thig an t-aog air chaochladh Staidhle.
O's coma' leam fhin, &c.

NIALL MAC-MHUIRICH.

NEIL MACVURICH, the family bard and historian of Clanronald, Mac-Dhònuill, Mhic-'Ic-Ailein, was born in the beginning of the seventeenth century. He lived in South Uist, where he held a possession of land which is known to this day, as marked out and designated Baile-bhàird, i. e. the bard's farm. He was of a succession of poets that the illustrious family kept to record the history of their ancestors, and to fill the station so indispensably requisite in those days, in the halls of chiefs of renown. There were several poets of the name of Mac-Mhuirich, lineal descendants of the same man, who were distinguished from each other in various ways, as specified in the brief account given of Lachunn mor Mac-Mhuirich Albannaich; Neil was simply, if not emphatically, called Niall Mac-Mhuirich, Clanronald's Seanachaidh, or family historian.

He had written, in the Gaelic language, the history of the great clan whose records he kept, and the strains in which distinguished individuals were commemorated for their talents and prowess. But he satisfied not himself with writing what related to the family that honoured him with the office of bard: he likewise had written ancient poetry, and the history of past times.—See the Highland Society's account of the Red Book.

While this celebrated bard was most careful in recording every thing worthy of preservation, it is to be regretted that so little of his own history and works have been preserved. This has been often the case with men of genius. Very few Gaelic bards were at the trouble of writing their own productions: they trusted too much to memory; seldom reflected on what might happen in the lapse of time; never apprehended that succeeding generations would be indifferent about what seemed to them to be of the greatest moment. Neil M'Vurich, while he adopted the best method of handing down to posterity the invaluable reliques of antiquity, might not think it worth his trouble to write his own poems, or record any anecdotes concerning himself. These, like many others, have been lost, with the exception of the two pieces given in this work. He lived to a great age, and was an old man in 1715.

To throw more light on the history of this tribe of poets, we beg to give the following, which is a copy of the declaration of Lachlan M'Vurich, a son of the bard, written in Gaelic, and addressed to Henry M'Kenzie, Esq., at the time he was writing the Highland Society's report of Ossian:—

BARRA, 9th August, 1800.

ANN an taigh Phadruig Mhic-Neacail an Torluim goirid o Chaisteal Bhuirghe ann an Siòrramachd Inbhernis, a naoidhagh latha de chiad mhios an fhoghair, anns an dà fhichead bliadhna agus naoidh-deug d'a aois, thainig Lachlunn mac Néill, mhic Lachluinn, mhic

Nèill, mhic Dhòmhnuill, mhic Lachuinn, mhic Nèill mhòir, mhic Lachuinn,* mhic Dhòmhnuill, do shloinne chlann Mhuirich, ann an lathair Rnairidh Mhic Nèill tighearna Bhàra, thabhairt a chòdaich, mar is fiosrach e-san, gur e féin an t-ochdamh glùn déug o Mhuireach a bha leanmhuinn teaghlaich Mhic 'Ic-Ailein, ceannard Chlann-Raonuill, mar bhardàibh,

* This is LACHUNN MOR MAC MUIRICH ALBANACH, OR Lachlan mòr MacVuirich of Scotland, the second of this famous tribe of bards.

Where there are several individuals of the same name, it is necessary to have some marks to distinguish them. This has been always attended to by the Gaél though in various ways. It is common to call persons by their patronymics; and among clans, where many have the same name and surname, they could not be distinctly called and recognised otherwise: instead of saying Alexander McDonald, where two, three, or four were found of the same name, in the same place, they called one, Alexander, the son of Allan, the son of John; another, Alexander, the son of Donald, the son of Neil; and another, the son of Rory, the son of Dugald, &c.

The Gaelic language being susceptible of describing beings and objects most minutely; individuals are frequently distinguished and described from their appearance, or qualities external and internal. Thus our author has been called Lachlann Mòr, in contradistinction to another of the same name who was less. Mòr signifies great in respect of one's person or mind. Its literal meaning is magnitude, and this is the sense in which it has been applied here. But there is another mark by which this bard was distinguished, namely, by his country, Albanach, or of Scotland. Irish bards, or minstrels, were once no strangers in Scotland, and especially the Highlands; for Albainn, the Gaelic term for Scotland, had been particularly applied to the Highlands. The cognomen, Albannach, had been given Lachlan mòr MacVuirich emphatically, being the great poet of his day. The language of the two countries being the same, the Scottish Highlanders and Irish understood each other; and there was frequent intercourse between them. They, in fact, were originally the same people; and, instead of disputing about the origin of the one or the other, historians ought to regard them as one and the same, removing from the one kingdom to the other as occasion or necessity required. Of the works of this famous poet, all now extant is an extraordinary one—a war song, composed almost wholly of epithets arranged in alphabetical order, to rouse the Clan Dougal to the highest pitch of enthusiasm before the battle of Harlaw. This poem is entitled in Gaelic:—“BROSNACHA-CATHA LE LACHUNN Mòr MAC MUIRICH ALBANACHU DO DHOMHNULL A ILE RIGH-INNSE-GALL AGUS IARLA ROI LATHA MACHRAICH CHATH-GAIRIACH.”* The piece has a part for every letter in the Gaelic alphabet till near the end consisting altogether of three hundred and thirty-eight lines. It would occupy too much space to print it in this work. Here follow the two first, and also the thirteen last lines of the poem:—

A chlanna Cuinn cuimhnichibh,
Cruas an am na h-iorguill.

* * * * *

Gu ur-labhrach, ùr-lamhach neart-mhor,
Gu coisneadh na cath-làrach,
Ri bruidhne 'nr biubhaidh,
A chlanna Chuinn cheud-chathaich,
'Si nis uair 'ur n'aithnaichidh.

A chuileanan chonfhadach,

A bheirichean bunanta,

A leogainnean lan-ghasta

Aon-chonnaibh iorghiulieach

De laochaibh chroddha, churanta

De chlannaibh Chùinn cheud-chathaich

A chlanna Chuinn, cuimhnichibh

Cruas an am na h-iorguill.

This poem is very valuable in two respects;—First, It is the best proof that could be given of a language, so copious and abounding in epithets, that the number poured out under each letter is almost incomprehensible. What command of language! How well deserved our bard the

* This battle was fought, anno 1411, at a small village called Harlaw, in the district of Garioch, within ten miles of Aberdeen. The cause of it was this:—Walter Lesly, a man nobly born, succeeded to the Earldom of Ross, in right of his lady, who was daughter of that house. He had by her a son, who succeeded him, and a daughter, who was married to the Lord of the Isles. His son married a daughter of the duke of Albany, son of Robert II., at that time governor of Scotland; but dying young, left behind him only one child. It is said that she was somewhat deformed, and rendered herself a Religious. From her the governor easily procured a resignation of the Earldom of Ross in favour of John earl of Buchan, his second son, to the prejudice of Donald lord of the Isles, who was grandson of the said Lesly, and supposed the nearest heir. He claimed his right accordingly, but finding the governor, who probably regarded him already as too powerful a subject, not inclined to do him that justice he expected, he immediately raised an army of no less than 10,000 men within his own isles and putting himself at their head, made a descent on the continent, and, without opposition, seized the lands of Ross, and after increasing his army with the inhabitants, he continued his march from Ross until he came to Garioch, within ten miles of Aberdeen, ravaging the countries through which he passed, and threatening to enrich his men with the wealth of that town. But before he could reach that place, his career was stopped by Alexander Stewart, the grandson of Robert II., and earl of Marr. For this brave youth, by orders from the governor, drew together, with great expedition, almost all the Tha cuimhne aige gu robh leabhar aig athair ris an canadh iad an " Leabhar dearg," de phaipeir, a thainig o shinnisribh, anns a robh mòran do shean eachdraidh nam fineachan Gàélach, agus cuid de " Shaothair Oisein" mar bha athair ag innseadh dha. Chan eil a h-aon de na leabhraichean so r'a fhaotainn an diugh, thaobh is 'nnair a chaill iad am fearann, gu do chaill iad am misneach agus an dùrachd. Cha'n eil e cinnteach ciod e thainig ris na craicnean, ach gu bheil barail aige gun tug Alasdair mac Mhaighstir Alasdair 'Ic-Dhùmlinnill ar falbh cuid diubh, agus Raonull a mhac cuid eile dhiubh ; agus gum fac e dha no trì dhiubhaig tâileirean ga 'n gearradh sios gu criosan tomhais : Agus tha cuimhne mhath aige gu tug Mac-'Ic-Ailein air athair an " Leabhar dearg" a thabhairt seachad do Sheumas Mac Mhuirich a Bàideanach ; gu robh e goird o bhi cho tiugh ri Bioball, ach gu robh e na b' fhaide agus na bu leatha, ach nach robh ūrad thiughaid sa chòmhdaich ; gu robh na craicnean agus an " Leabhar dearg" air an sgrìobhadh anns an làimh anns an robh Gàëlig air a sgrìobhadh o shean an Albainn agus ann an Eirinn, mu'n do ghabh daoine cleachdadhl air sgrìobhadh na Gàëlig anns an làimh Shasunnaich ; gum b'aithne dha athair an t-shean làmh a leughadh gu math ; gu robh cuid de na craicnean aige féin an deigh bàis athar, ach a thaobh is nach d' ionnsaich e iad, agus nach robh aobhar meas aig' orra, gu deach' iad ar chall. Tha e ag ràdh nach robh h-aon de shinnisribh air a robh Pall mar ainm, ach gu robh dithis dhiubh ris an canadh iad Cathal.

Tha e 'g ràdh nach ann le h-aon duine a sgrìobhadh an " Leabhar dearg," ach gu robh adnomen Albanach ! He lived in the fifteenth century. He could not be ignorant of letters. He was well acquainted with all the idioms of his native language, and had the greatest command over its powers and energies. Nor was he ignorant of the genius of the people whom he addressed. Clann-Domhnuill was the most powerful of the clans in his time. They were foremost in battle, and entitled to take the right in the field ; which was never disputed, till the battle of Culloden, which proved so fatal to many. Our poet, therefore, exhausted the almost exhaustless copia verborum of the language, for the purpose of infusing the spirit of the greatest heroism and love of conquest into the breasts of the warriors.

nobility and gentry between the two rivers Tay and Spey, and with them met the invader at the place above mentioned, where a long, uncertain, and bloody battle ensued ; so long, that nothing but the night could put an end to it ; so uncertain, that it was hard to say who had lost or gained the day ; so bloody, that one family is reported to have lost the father and six of his sons. The earl of Marr's party, who survived, lay all night on the field of battle ; while Donald, being rather wearied with action than conquered by force of arms, thought fit to retreat, first to Ross, and then to the Isles.—Abercromby's Hist.

e air a sgrìobhadh o linn gu linn le teaghach Chlann-Mhuirich, a bha cumail suas seana-chas Chlainn-Dòmhnuill, agus ceannardan nam fineachan Gàëlach eile.

An deigh so a sgrìobhadh, chaidh a leughadh dha, agus dh-aidich e gu robh e ceart, ann an làthair Dhòmhnuill Mhic-Dhòmhnuill, fear Bhaile Raghaill; Eoghan Mhic-Dhòmhnuill, fear Gheara-sheilich; Eoghan Mhic-Dhomhnuill Fear Ghriminis; Alasdair Mhic-Ghilleain, fear Hoster, Alasdair Mhic-Neacail, ministear Bheinne-bhaoghla; agus Ailein Mhic-Chuinn, ministear Uist-a-Chinne-tuath, a fear asgrìobh a seanachas so.

TRANSLATION OF THE ABOVE.

In the house of Patrick Nicolson, at Torlum, near Castle-Burgh, in the shire of Inverness, on the ninth day of August, compeared in the fifty-ninth year of his age, Lachlan, son of Neil, son of Lachlan, son of Neil, son of Donald, son of Lachlan, son of Neil Mòr, son of Lachlan, son of Donald, of the surname of Mac Vuirich, before Roderick M'Neil, laird of Barra, and declared, That, according to the best of his knowledge, he is the eighteenth in descent from Muireach, whose posterity had officiated as bards to the family of Clanronald; and that they had from that time, as the salary of their office, the farm of Staoiligary and four pennies of Drimisdale during fifteen generations; that the sixteenth descendant lost the four pennies of Drimisdale, but that the seventeenth descendant retained the farm of Staoiligary for nineteen years of his life. That there was a right given them over these lands as long as there should be any of the posterity of Muireach to preserve and continue the genealogy and history of the Macdonalds, on condition that the bard, failing of male issue, was to educate his brother's son, or representative, in order to preserve their title to the lands; and that it was in pursuance of this custom that his own father, Neil, had been taught to read and write history and poetry by Donald, son of Neil, son of Donald, his father's brother.

He remembers well that works of Ossian, written on parchment, were in the custody of his father, as received from his predecessors; that some of the parchments were made up in the form of books, and that others were loose and separate, which contained the works of other bards besides those of Ossian.

He remembers that his father had a book which was called the Red Book, made of paper, which he had from his predecessors, and which, as his father informed him, contained a good deal of the history of the Highland Clans, together with part of the works of Ossian. That none of these books are to be found at this day, because when they (his family) were deprived of their lands, they lost their alacrity and zeal. That he is not certain what became of the parchments, but thinks that some of them were carried away by Alexander, son of the Rev. Alexander Macdonald, and others by Ronald his son; and he saw two or three of them cut down by tailors for measures. That he remembers well that Clanronald made his father give up the red book to James Macpherson from Badenoch ; that it was near as thick as a Bible, but that it was longer and broader, though not so thick in the cover. That the parchments and the red book were written in the hand in which the Gaelic used to be written of old both in Scotland and Ireland before people began to use the English hand in writing Gaelic ; and that his father knew well how to read the old hand. That he himself had some of the parchments after his father's death, but that because he had not been taught to read them, and had no reason to set any value upon them, they were lost. He says that none of his forefathers had the name of Paul, but that there were two of them who were called Cathal.

He says that the red book was not written by one man, but that it was written from age to age by the family of Clan Mhuirich, who were preserving and continuing the history of the Macdonalds, and of other heads of Highland clans.

After the above declaration was taken down, it was read to him, and he acknowledged it was right, in presence of Donald McDonald of Balronald, James McDonald of Gary-helich, Ewan Mac Donald of Griminish, Alexander Mac Lean of Hoster, Mr Alexander Nicolson, minister of Benbecula, and Mr Allan Mac Queen, minister of North-Uist, who wrote this declaration.

Note.—The Author of this piece is Niall mòr Mac-Mhúrich. We have heard the following anecdote, in illustration of this poem. Neil had lately returned to his father's house from the bards' college, in Ireland, from whence, along with the stores of genealogical and other lore with which he had stored his head, he had in addition, brought over a back-burden of the small-pox, and was lying asleep, on a settle bed, at the back of the house near the fire, when John and Donald McArthur, two pipers, came in, and, sitting down on the bed-stock, began tuning their pipes preparatory to playing. The horrid and discordant sound of the pipes roused the bard, who, bursting with indignation, in the true style of his profession, began to inveigh against the pipers, in the following mock genealogy of the bag-pipe. It would appear from this, as well as from hints in other poems, that the bag-pipe was never a favourite with the bards; but was rather regarded by them as trenching on their province. The poem was evidently intended to resent the intrusion of the pipers on the bard's slumbers. Nor did it fail of the desired effect; for, the pipers it seems, had intended to make good their quarters for the night; but, on hearing the odd and ludicrous invective against their favourite instrument, enunciated from behind them, they started from their seats with astonishment looking round for an explanation. But when the swollen and peoky countenance of Neil met their view, wrought up we may suppose with no ordinary excitement, terror added wings to their feet, and they fled in the utmost consternation. Neil's father on hearing the poem to the end exclaimed " Math thu fein mhic, the misfaicinn nach bu thuras caill' a thug thu dh' Eirinn;" i.e. " Well done my son, I see your errand to Ireland has not been lost."

IAIN DUBH MAC IAIN 'IC-AILEIN.

JOHN McDONALD, commonly Iain Dubh Mac Iain 'Ic-Ailein, i. e. John of black locks, son of John, the son of Allan, was a gentleman of the Clanronald family, and was born about the year 1665. He received all the advantages of education, together with the opportunities that the times in which he lived offered to a man of observation. He was immediately descended from the Maer family—a great branch of the Clanronalds—of whom many individuals were highly distinguished for prowess, wit, and poetical powers. He resided in the island of Eig, on the farm of Grulean.

Mr McDonald was not a poet by profession, although he was considered by good judges not inferior to any bard of his age. He lived in easy circumstances. Amid his rural pursuits, he had ample time to woo the muses, or pass his leisure as inclination or opportunity occurred. He, therefore, put himself under no restraint, but sung when inspired, and made observations on men and manners; and his remarks were generally allowed to be shrewd and just. Few anecdotes can be expected of a man who passed a quiet life in such circumstances. He always held a respectable rank in society. His poems display taste and elegance, and his compositions, occasional and gratuitous as they were, must have been numerous.

 Butu taghadh an t-shealgair,
 As do laimh bu mhòr m'earbsa,
 Air an fhiadh bu tu 'n cealgair,
 'S tu roinn gaoith' agus talmhuinn ma shròn.
 'S tu roinn gaoith, &c.

Oirnne dh' imich am fuathas,
 An sgrìob so thainig o thuath oirnn,
 Tha ar càbaill air fuasgladh,
 Chaidh ar n-eirthire sguabadh,
 A's sinn mar chuirean cuaine gu'n treòir.
 A's sinn mar chuirean, &c.

Chaill sinn reulla nan dualamh,
 Chaidh ar riaghait a ghluaas,
 Ar cairt-iuil air falbh uainne,
 Bhrist ar stiuir ; mo cheud truaighe,
 Sinn mar luing ann a' chuan 's i gu'n seòl.
 Sinn mar luing, &c.

Sinn mar iùinne gun mhàthair,
 Mar threud gun bhunachaille gnàthaicht
 Sinnfobhruid aig ar nàmhaid,
 H-nile fear a' toirt tair dhuinn,
 'S na coin luirge gach là air ar tòir.
 'S no coin luirg, &c.

Dhuinn 's neo-shubhach an geomhradh,
 An ruraig a thng sinn gu Galtachd,
 Cha bu bhunnachd ach call dhuinn,
 Nis mar cholainn gun cheann sinn
 O roinn Raonull a's t-shamhradh uainn fàlbh.
 O roinn Raonull, &c.

A gnnùis a b' àillidh ri sirreadh,
 An t-shùil bu bhlaithe gu'n tioma,
 An leoghann àrd air dheagh-oilean,
 'Nach d' chuir ùigh au gniomh foilleil,
 Ach an rioghalachd shoileir gu'n leòin,
 Ach an rioghalachd, &c.

'S oil leam càradh do chéile,
 'S bean na h-aonar a'd' dhéidh i,
 'N deigh a sgaradh o' ceud-gradh,
 Mhic 'Ic-Ailein o'n dheug thu,
 Fhir a leanadh an fheisd mar bu choir.
 Fhir a leanadh, &c.

Ach fhir thug Maois as an Euphaid,
 'S a sgoilt a mhuiir na clàr réidh dhaibh,
 Thug an triuir as an èigin
 O bhi daghadh an creuchdan ;
 A Righ nan righ na leig eucoir da'r còir.
 A Righ na'n righ, &c.

DO SHIR IAIN MAC-ILLEAIN TRIATH DHUBHAIRT.

IOMRAICH mo bheannachd,
 Gu Bainn-tighearna Thamair,
 Bean 's am beil barrachd,
 De charantachd nàduir ;

Chunaic mise gu dligheil,
 A suilean ri snithe,
 'S i 'g àireamh mar mhi-àdh,
 Sior Iain da fàgail :
 Bha dòrainn a cridhe,
 Cho moire ga ruighinn,
 'S mar gu 'm biodh e air tighinn,
 O dhearrbh nighean a màthar :
 Gu cronachadh sgéula,
 Bhiodh fada 'na dhéigh sin,
 Thug Mairiread na séile,
 Spòr gheur do'n flear-dhàna.

Nach iongnadh ri chlàistin,
 Gu'm beil mise o cheann fada,
 Ann an turcadaich cadail,
 Agus m' acайд ro-chraiteach ;
 Tha cneidh air mo ghiùlan,
 S mi leisg air a dùsgadh,
 Air eagal le ' bhrach,
 Gun ûraich i'm bàs dhomh,
 Gidheadh cha sgeul-rùine,
 Ach sgeula 's mor cùram,
 Sir Iain gu'n dùsgadh,
 An dùl chiste chlaraibh ;
 Be so an fhras chiùraidh,
 A mhìll ar n-abhall's ar n-ubhlan :
 Roinn ar dosgainn a chrùnadh,
 Fhrois am flùr bhàrr a ghàraidh.

B'e féin ar crann dorasach
 A chomhdaich le choltas
 Gur á coilltichin solta
 'N dh-flas toiseach a fhreamha
 Gu'n dreadhunn gu'n chrònach,
 Gun chrithéann gu'n chrìn-fhiodh,
 Ach geugan ro phriseil,
 Do dh-fhion-fhuil na Spàine,
 Bha fios aig luchd leubhaidh,
 'S aig seanachaidhean geura,
 Air ar teachd o Ghathelus,
 As an Euphaid a thàinig,
 Sliochd mhilidhean treuna,
 Fhàir ceannas na h-Eireann,
 Mar bha fir na séile,
 Agus Eirimou dàna.

O'n ghin sibh o Scota,
 Bha bhuaidh air bhur cordai,
 A' dearbhadh 's a còmhdaich,
 Am pòr as an d' fhàs sibh,
 Far an gabhadh sibh còmhnaidh,
 Bu leibh ceannas na fòid sin,
 Le iomadaidh còrach,
 Agus moran a bhàrr air,
 Ciad nighean Mhic-Domhnuill,
 Mar mhairiste pòsda,
 B'e n seanaileir còmhraig,
 'N ciad Thòisich a's àrmainn.

O'n shuidhich sibh lù-chairt,
 Bha dh-àileachd 'nar n-ùrais,
 Gur h-iomarcach dùthaich,
 Bh'aир an cùinneadh le pairt dhibh,
 Bh'aир de dh-àirde 'nar giubhsaich,
 'S nach tugadh cùch pùie dhibh,
 'S nach bu tric le luchd diumba,
 Ar lubadh le taire,
 Ach 's e n rud a thug sgiùrs oirbh,
 Gu'm.bu chinne le crùn sibh,
 'S gu'n b'e dliugh bhur dùthchais,
 Bhidh sau iùil dheth 'm biadh iadsan,
 Ge d' bha sin ann sa tim sin,

 Tha e nis gu truagh lionte,
 Daor trì-filte páighe.

Tha seann-fhalac eil ann,
 Tha cho fiòr 's mar a their iad,
 Ge b'e neach air am beir e,

 Ge d' tha sinne ri achdain,
 Na dh-fhalbb o cheann fad orinn,
 Bhiodh ar dùil ri bhi' beartach,
 Na m biedh agaunn na dh-fhàg sin,
 Ach tha ar nadur che truaighe,
 'S nach faic sinn ar buannachd,
 "Cha léir math an fhuarain,

 Tha e nios na n'i soilleir,
 Da'r nàbuidhean comuinn,
 Gun do bhristeadh mar phronnaig,
 Gara'-droma nan Gàel.

Fear gasca gun chrìne,
 Bha ainmeil sau rioghachd,
 Cha bu tric a luchd mi-ruin,
 Rí i innseadh no 'n àireamh,
 Bu chompanach rìgh thu,
 Am fear meannach mor fir-ghlic,
 Cha 'n fhaicte e fo dhiobradh,
 Ach am prísealachd stàta,
 Ann an cogadh luchd strìthe,
 Cha robh masl' air ri innse,
 Ghleidh e onoir a shinnseadh,
 'S ann a mhiodaich e n-àrdachd,
 Cha robh e, cha b' fhiach leis,
 Bhi falbh fo bhrat filte,
 Eadar e bhiodh na mhìn-fhearr,
 Agus finid a làithean.

Bha e mor ann a miadachd,
 Bha e mor gu bhi rioghaill,

Bha e mor ann an grìde,
 Ann am firinn 's an càirdeas,
 Bu mhor e ri fhainn,
 Bu mhor air gach achd e,
 Bu mhor e na phearsa,
 Na ghastachd 's na àilleachd,
 Bha e mor air son diulaoich,
 Bha e mor gu bhi sùgach,
 Bha e mor an dheagh ghiùlan,
 Ann an cuirteannan àrda,
 Bha e mor ann a misnich,
 Bha e mor ann an glicas,
 Bha e mor gun cheist idir,
 'S sàr ghibhteannan nàduir.

Na m biadh e ri fhuasgladh,
 O n bhàs a thug buaidh air,
 Gur a h-iomadh laoch cruadail,
 A ghluaiseadh 'na fhabhar,
 An t-ainm coithcheanta mor sin,
 Ri'n gairte Clann-Dòmhnuill,
 O thoiseach an còrdais,
 'S iad bu phòr da chìad màthair,
 Agus uislean nan Leòdach,
 Thaobh fala agus feola,
 Mar lanain ùr phòsda,
 Leis 'm bu deonach bli' gràdhach,
 Chuimcas mår phuthar,
 An gruaidean air dubhadh,
 Mar gun deanadh làn phiuthar,
 Geur chumha ma brathair.

Cia mu 'n fàgainn an dìochnuimhn',
 Dream eile da dhìslean?
 Bha na cinn bu mhò pris dhìu,

 Fir ghasda gun chrìne,

 Mar bha'n cinneadh mor príseil,

 Cha robh smal air an cruadal,
 Ach 'm beagan beag suarach,
 So fhuair iad an dràsda,
 'S e n tabhar a lot sinn,
 Nach e gniomh a bha lochdach,
 Ach an dearbha mhi-fhorton,
 Bha'n thoiseach 's an àbhar.

Na m b'aithne dhomh innse,

 Ann am fala gun isle,
 'S ann an lònmoireachd chairdean,
 Le seanachas rì firinn,
 O thoiseach an lìinne,
 'S e fein 's Iarla-Shi-Phort,
 Sliochd direachd da brathar,
 Agus triath Ghlinne-Garaidh,
 Ann an dlù-cheangal fala,

 S nach e sgaradh a b'äill leo,
 'S e leantainn o'n tìm sin,
 Gu'n mhiosguinn gu'u mhl-ruin,
 'S nach glusear le lùnleachd,
 Gu dilinn 's gu bràth e.

 Thaoibh falachd is caidreamh,
 Dhut Caipint Chlann-ra'uill,

 Do chois-nàbhaidh taitneach,
 'S do chompanach leapa,
 N am marcachd a's astair,
 'S 'nuair stadarad am màrsal,
 Bha thu ad t-fhianais air sileadh,
 A chréuchdan, cho-mire,
 Ri bras easraich pinne,
 'S a spiorad 'ga fhágail,
 Agus uaislean a dhùthcha,
 Ri caoidhearan tòrsach,
 'S an eridh air a chiùrradh,

 Thaoibh dlich' agus dualchais,

 'Nuair a dheireadh oirbh trioblaid,

 Le iarrtas cho bige,
 Ri Litir a làimhe,

 De luchd nan gath loma
 Na choinnidh do dh-Aros,
 'N uair a thachradh e riui,
 Mar Thriath 's mar cheann-uidhe,
 Dheanadh fhiontan iad subbach,
 'S bu bhuidheach 'n àm fhágail.

 Mar choir bho na fhlaitheas,
 Bha ranntanan mhathà,
 Mac ionmhuiinn an t-Shratha ;
 'S cha ghabhadh e fàth air :
 Ann an aimsir na ruaise,
 'N uair a ruigeadh luchd fuath e,
 Ba ghasda an ceann sluagh e,
 'N uair a ghluaiste leis àrmuinn :
 Bha e-san 's an tìm sin,

 Ann am fochar a shinsridh,
 Le gniomharadh dàna ;
 Nis o chaochail iad cleachdad,
 As an àite bu cheart daibh,
 Chluinn sibh fein mar a thachair,

 Ach 's e raghainn a nì mi,
 Bheir mi glòir so gu finid,

 Gur h-e Fionnachd san tìm sibh,

 Fo chis duibh a' páigheadh,

FHUR NAN DRUIMNEAN.

THA bith ùr an tìr na Dreollainn,
'S coir dhuinn aithris,
Tha moran deth tigh'n am biochionnt'
Ri gnàs Shasuinn,
Ni 'm beil duin' uasal, no iosal,
No fear fearainn,
Leis nach àill, gu moran buinig,
Ceird a bharrachd.
Tha ceird ùr aig fear nan Druinnean,
Th' air leinn tha cronail;
B'äill leis fein 's dhol an àite
Mhaisteir Sgoile,
An t-òide sin fein a rinn fhoghlum,
Le gloir Laideann,
Ghlacadh leis, gun chead a chairdean,
A cheaird a bh'aige.

Labhairt—'S e an t-aobhar a thug do dhaoine aire thoirt do shannat an sgoileir so, 'nuair a mhí-annaich secheard do bhi aig oide foghluim, nach laimhsicheadh e i, mar laimhsicheadh an t-òide foghluim féin i. Oir 'nuair a ghabhadh an t-òide foghluim air a dhaltachan, 's ann a ghabhadh e air na leanabanan, ach 's ann a ghabhadh an sgoileir sanntach se air na daoine àrsaidd mar au-
cendna. 'Nuair ghabhadh an t-òide foghluim air a dhältachan, 's ann a ghabhadh e air na
ciontaich, ach 's ann a ghabhadh an sgoileir sannt-ach air na neo-chiontaich. 'S ann uaith sin a dubhradh—“ Saoilidh am fear a bhios na thàmh, gur e féin a's fearr lamh air an stiùir,” ach cha mhò gur h-e.

Cha'n ionnsaich e clann, no leanabain,
Mar bu chòir dha,
Gus am bi iad na'n daoin' àrsaidd
Fo 'n làn fheòsaig,

Cha tugadh an Cillmocheallaig
Breath bu chlaoine,*
No ni rinn an ceann a b' aird',
A' màs 'ga dhìoladh.
Gabhail do chrios an aois àrsaidd,
Air màs sean-duin',
'S fada ma'n ionnsaich an gniomh sin
Ciall do theangaidh,
Ge be labhras ris an shear ud,
Còir, no ea-coir,
Gabhar air a ghiort' de stràcaibh,
Le crios fèilidh.

Labhairt—Agus b'fhior do'n duine sin, cha d'fhuair eadh riamh rud a dh'ionnsachadh teanga
droch mhuinte, bu mheasa na gabhail air na
màsan ann an aobhar na teanga, agus an teanga thuigisinn gur h-ann na h-aobhar féin a fhuaire am màs am mor-ghleusadh sin. Mar deanadh sin a ciall ni bu mheasa, cha deanadh e idir ni b'fhearr
i. Uaith sin a dubhradh—“ Am fear nach ionnsaich laimh ri ghlùn, cha'n ionnsaich laimh ri uilean.”

A chnideachd da'm bu chòir bhi diamhair,
'S a ghà 'm falach,
Cha d'fhagadh da'n dion bho chunnart,
Sion de dh' earradh,
Bha iad aon uair an lathair fianais,
An taigh gréusaich.
Dubhairt nighean Shomhairle†
Le rabhart, sa gnàs siomhailt,
'S còir gu'm beannaich sinn gu sailbear,
Cuid gach Crioduidh.
B'fhearr lean ge nach eil mi maoineach,
No luach gearrain,
Gu'm biodh coltas do thriuir
Gu turn aig Calum.‡

Labhairt—'S e aobhar thug do'n mhnao.
Bheusaidh, cheart, chòir, se a radh, a rùn deagh chneasta, chum gu'm biodh aig a fear féin a leithid, sa bhioidh aig a nàbaidhean; 's nach suil ghointe, no lombais, a bh' aic air cui'd a coimh-earnsaich. Mar bh'aig Gillebride Mac-ant-Saoir ann an Ruthaig, an Tirithe, a mhort an ceithir-ticheadh cearc le aon bheum-sula, 's a bhris long mhònan cuig crannag, a dhaindeoin
a cablaichean sa h-acraichean. Uaith a sin a dubhradh—“ Sann de'n cheaird a chungaigh.”

Tha bith ùr an tìr na Dreollainn,
A thog am Baron,
Air gach aon shear a labhras buna-chainnt,
Rusgadh feamain,
Ma sgaoileas air feadh gach tire,
Am bith thog Tearlach,

Ach glag mòr gaire.

Labhairt—Agus bha aobhar na dha aig an t-Siorramh choir air gàir a dheanadh, thaobh gu'n d'rug timchioll-ghearradh airsau, le coimh-earsnachd ban-Spaintich do thachair ris. 'S ann uaith sin a dubhradh, "An duine ni teine math deanadh e-féin a gharadh ris.

Note—The laird of Druimin kept an old schoolmaster in his house, in the double capacity of tutor to his children and goer of errands. The dominie was one day sent to a shoemaker who lived on the laird's grounds, with a message ordering a pair of new shoes for his master. The souter declined the honour intended him, alleging as a reason that it was a standing rule with him, "never to make a pair of shoes for any customer till the last which he had got were paid for." But there was another, if not rather a piece of the same, reason of the shoemaker's unwillingness to make the shoes—the laird was a dreach paver; one, in fact, who would run on an account to any conceivable length without ever thinking it time to settle it. Well, the wielder of the ferula returned, and reported to his master the ipsissima verba of the son of St Crispin. The laird was so exasperated at the insolence of his retainer, that he immediately determined to be revenged on the souter; and, lest he should have the hardihood to deny his own words, he took the schoolmaster along with him. Now, the souter was a regular liekspittle; a mean, cringing, fawning, malicious, yet cowardly wretch; for, when the laird said to him, "Did you say to this gentleman," pointing to the dominie, "that you would make no more shoes for me till I had paid for the last I got?" "Oh no, no, Sir," said the shocmaker, with an air of surprise, "most willingly would I convert all the leather in my possession into shoes for your honour. I have but too much time to work for those who are not so able to pay me, and am therefore always at your service." The poor dominie was thunder-struck at the barefaced impudence of the "fause lorn;" but, ere he had time to utter a word in explanation, the laird had not only laid the flatteringunction to his own soul, but seizing the preceptor by the throat, placed his head between his own knees in a twinkling, and clutching Crispin's foot-strap in the one hand, and lifting the dominie's phalange with the other, he therewithal plied him on the bare buttocks, so hotly and heavily, that he had well nigh expended the "wrath" which he had so carefully been "nursing" for the rascally souter. How many stripes the wight received deponent hath not said, but true it is, the number far exceeded that prescribed by the law of Moses. Indeed it is doubtful whether "the man of letters" might not have lost his "precious spunk," if the shoemaker's better-half had not flown to his rescue. Gentle dame! well have I designated thee thy churlish husband's "better-half!" for though the poor schoolmaster was both disgraced and pained through his default, his eyes were blind and his heart hard as the "nether mill-stone." And though it may be that no grey stone points out the place of thy sepulture, yet has the bard embalmed thy name in his song.

AN T-AOSDANA MAC-MHATHAIN.

THIS poet flourished in the seventeenth century. He lived in Lochalshe, Ross-shire, where he had free lands from the Earl of Seaforth, and was called his bard. He was a poet of great merit, and composed as many poems as would occupy a large volume; but as they were not committed to writing, they suffered the same fate with the productions of Nial Mac-Mhurrich, and were lost by being trusted to memory alone. The two pieces given here is all that can now be found of his works. "Cabar Féigh" was not composed by him, as stated by some collectors of poetry. The first song given here was composed on the Earl of Seaforth, on his embarking at Dorny, of Kintail, for Stornoway. It has been imitated in English by Sir Walter Scott.

ORAN DO'N IARLA THUATHACH

TRIATH CHLANN-CHOINNICH.

Droch slainte'n Iarla thuathaich,
A thríall an de thar chuaintean bhuan,
Le sgioba laidir luasganach,
Nach pilleadh càs na fuathas iad,
Muir gàireach air gach guallainn dh'i;
Air clar do lùinge luaithe,
Gabh mi cead dhiot is fhuair mi 'n t-òr.

Gu'n cumadh Dia bho bhaoghal thu,
Bho charraid cuain 's bho chaolasan,
Bho charraig fhuair gun chaomhalachd,
Seachd beannachd tuath is daonachd dhut,
Buaidh làrach ri do shaoghail ort,
Fhir ghaoil ga t-fhaicinn bed.

Gur gaoth a deas a dh-eighinn dhut,
 Gu'n chruas gu'n tais a sheideadh rith,
 Fear bearta beachduil, geur-chuiseach,
 Gu sunndach, bras, neo-eisleanach,
 Bhi fuasgladh pailteas eudaich dh'i,
 Ga bhereideadh air gach bòrd.

Gu'n innsinn gniomb do stiùireadair,
 Fear cuimhneach, ciallach, curamach,
 'Dh' aithnicheadh fiamh a chùlanaich,
 A chuireadh srian ri càrsaireachd,
 Mu 'm bristeadh trlàan a chuirnean oirr',
 A mhuchadach e fo sròin.

T-fhearr eolais laidir, fradharcach,
 Deas labhrach, gaireach, gleoghairach,
 Min chinnteach, seolta, faighidneach,
 Crann geadha 'na 'd laimh adhairtaich,
 Mac Samhail ràsg mhic-fraoire,
 Sud mar thaghainn dhut na seoid.

Ma chàidh thu null thar chuainteanan,
 Air darach naomh a ghluaiseadh tu,
 Fir bhuiille saoir a 'dhu fhuaigneas i,
 Bidh barrantas dhaoin' uaisle leat,
 Bidh beannach bhochd, a's tuatha dhut,
 Cha 'n eagal baoghla fuadaich dhuibh,
 Bidh Dia ma 'n cuairt da d' sheol.

Mu sheol thu barc air fairge bhuainn,
 Thu fèin 's do choirneal Calamanach,
 Fhuair clìù'n cùirt na 'n Albannach,
 Gur h-iomadh tòrn a dhearradh leat,
 Be sùd an leorghunn ainmeil,
 Bu mhor seanachas air gach bòrd.

Gur tagha calla db-innsinn dhut,
 'N deidh na mara Si-phortaich,
 Thu dhol gu fàllain, firineach,
 Do Steornabhaidh bho linnteantan,
 Bithidh ro-fhial gheala teinteannan,
 Aig fir 's aig mnai's toil-inntinn orra,
 Ri linn thu theachd gu 'n cors.

Gur h-iomadh sruthan firinneach,
 Tha 'n linntichean an t-Sì-phortaich,
 Tha triath na h-Earradh dileas dhut,
 Le 'n connspeann fhearrail innsgrineach,
 A Lochlainn thig na miltean,
 Air chuan-sgìth gu teach Mhic-Leoid.

'Nuair cruinneiceas na Sàileich leat,
 'S do chinneadh neartmhor tàbhachdach,
 Bidh mire, 's clìich, is gairreachdaich,

Sa'n ionnad ann an tàrladh sibh,
 Cha 'n ioghnadh thu bhi ardanach,
 Sa liuthad fion-fhuil àluinn,
 A tha cairdeach ga do phòr.

Bidh Tòrmòd òg na shiubhal leat,
 Siol-Leoid nan rò-seol uidheamach,
 Fhir stòlta, chomhnart, shuidhichte,
 Bidh òl gu leoir nam suidhe dhaibh,
 Bidh fion is beoir le sùbhachas,
 Air piosaibh bùidbe òir.

AN T-AOSDANA MAC-'ILLEAN.

HECTOR MACLEAN, commonly called Eachann Bacach an t-Aosdàna, lived in the seventeenth century, and was poet to Sir Lachlan M'Lean, of Duart, from whom he had a small annuity. After much inquiry, we have not been able to procure any particulars of his life worth publication, or seen any more of his productions than are published in this work. The following elegy attracted the particular attention of the late Sir Walter Scott, and he has published an imitation, or free translation, which is every way worthy of that great bard.

LACHUNN MAC THEARLAICH.

LACHLAN M'KINNON, alias Lachunn Mac Thearlaich Oig, flourished about the middle of the seventeenth century. He was a native of Strath, Isle of Skye, and a lineal descendant of the Ceann-taighe of the M'Kinnons of that place. His parents were in comfortable circumstances, and although we have no data to ascertain the extent of his scholastic acquirements, it is obvious from a cursory glance at his productions that he was not unlettered,—while the purity and critical correctness of his Gaelic, furnishes ample proof that he studied and understood the structure of that language. He was an excellent musician, and was in the habit, when a young man, of carrying his violin about with him from place to place—more for recreation and amusement, than for any sordid considerations of pecuniary remuneration. The habits and predilections of his countrymen, their excessive fondness of poetry, music and dancing, always secured for such gifted individuals as M'Kinnon, the warmest grasp of hospitality's right hand wherever he went. He seems, however, to have discontinued the practice—in consequence of a low, unmanly attack upon his character and motives by a wandering bard of the name of M'Lennan.

Talents and genius are very seldom bestowed upon any individual without a copious mixture of impulses, that too often seek their gratification in improper indulgences. Burns and Byron were constituted after this manner. Lachlan M'Kinnon happened at one time to be perambulating the Main land, in the district of Lochalsh, where he put up for the night in the house of a respectable farmer. After supper, one of the daughters went out to prepare a bed for the cherished stranger in an out-house or barn. She was accompanied by a little favourite pug called Coireal, and the poet soon followed. Fairly ensconced with the fair and artless maid, and privacy favouring his designs, Lachlan yielded to the impulses of his heart, and the result was an illegitimate daughter, who seems to have inherited the broad humour and poetic genius of her father. Many of her repartees and witticisms have descended to us by oral recitation, but space remonstrates against our noticing but one, which may serve as a specimen of the whole. Some time after her father married, her stepmother was going from home, and meeting her about the door accosted her thus:—" You're my first-foot, and pity you if you are not lucky to meet with!" " Ask my father," rejoined the young woman, " and he will tell you that I am the most unpropitious omen that could come in your way." " Dear me! how that?" eagerly inquired the stepmother. " Because," continued the other, " I was the first person he himself met, while on his way to marry you, and God knows it was the most unlucky journey he ever made!" But we are digressing, and had almost forgot to say, that during M'Kinnon's struggle to deflower the farmer's daughter, little Coireal sounded so loud an alarm, that he seized it by the hind legs, and dashed out its brains against the wall! This has been made the subject of a very merry song, in which our author comes in for a pretty round flagellation.

Lachlan M'Kinnon died at a good old age, and was buried in his native parish, where some of his grandchildren are still living and much respected.

* Alluding to an Irish Harper of the name of Cailean Cormac, who, in consequence of a misunderstanding, left his master and fled to Scotland, at that time the saving ark of refugees, whether children of prose or verse. During his peregrinations in the hyperborean regions of Caledonia, he visited, according to the custom of the times, many of the Highland Chieftains and families of distinction, whose ears were not yet sufficiently refined to disrelish music, and who, consequently, appreciated his abilities and performances. Among others in whose families the Hibernian minstrel was well received, was that of the Laird of Applecross. On the day of his departure, Applecross, whose generosity was worthy of his country and high rank, gave Cormac a handful of gold pieces out of his right hand, and a similar quantity or silver ones out of his left. Such a splendid instance of genuine Highland liberality, could not but awake sentiments of the most lively gratitude in the naturally feeling bosom of the minstrel; who, upon his arrival in the Emerald Isle, lost no opportunity of trumpeting forth the praises of his benefactor. The tide of his quondam employer's rage having now subsided, and a reconciliation having been effected between the parties,

“ Thug sinn ruaig gu’n sòradh
 Gu Mac-Choinnich mòr nan cuach,
 Be’n duin’ iochd-mhor, teò-chridheach,
 S bu leaghannt e air sluagh,

 Air fearaibh an taobh-Tuath;
 Cha chuirt’ as geall a chailleadh e
 Ge d’ fhalaich oirn e ‘n naigh !

“ O’n rinn an uaigh ’úr glasadh orm,
 ‘S nach faic mi sibh le’m shùil ;
 ‘S cumhach, cianail, craiteach, mi,
 ‘S neo-ardanach mo shùrd,
 ‘S mi cuimhneachadh nam braithrean sin
 A báillidh dreach a’ gnùis,
 Gur tric a chum sibh coinnidh riùm
 Aig Coinneach anns a’ Chùil.

“ Ailpeanaich mhath chiar-dhuibh,
 ‘Gam bu dùthchas riabh an Srath,
 D’an tigeadh àirm gu sgiamhach
 Ge bu riabhach leinn do dbath,
 Bu lamh a dheanamh fiadhaich thu,
 Gu’n dial bu bhiatich math,
 ‘S a nise bho na thriall thu bh’uainn,
 Cha’n iarrair sinn a staigh.

“ Bu chuimir glan do chalpannan,

 ‘S math thigeadh breaman cuachach ort,
 Mu’n cuairt an fhéile chruinn,
 ‘S ro mhath a thigeadh claidheamh dhut,

 Cha robh crion am fradharc ort,
 ‘Thaoibh t-aghaidh ‘s cùl do chinn.

“ Nam togail màiil do dhùthchannan,
 ‘S ga ’n dlùthachadh riut fén ;
 Bhí’ dhmaid air ‘nar stiubhartan
 ‘S ‘nar triuair gu’m bi’ dhmaid réidh,
 Cha do thog sinn riabh bò Shamhna dhut,
 No Bealltainn cha b’e’r beus,
 Cha mhò thug öich air tuathanach.
 Bu mhò do thruas ri fheum.”

“ Bha’n duin’ ud na charaid dhomh,
 ‘S cha chàr dhomh’ chliù a sheum,
 Mas can càch gur masgall e,
 Leig tharais e na thím ;
 Do bhàs a dh-fhàg mi muladach,
 ‘S ann chluinnear e’s gach tìr,
 Cha b’ioghna’ mi ga t-iondrann,
 Ann am cunntais thoirt ‘s an t-shuim,

his master asked Cormac:—“ Creid i ’n lamh bo fheile do fhuaire tu ’n Albainn ? ” i. e. which was the most liberal hand you found in Scotland? To which he replied:—“ Lamh dheas fir na Comraich ”—The right hand of Applecross.—“ Creid i ’n ath te ? ” which was the next? —“ Lamh chlìth fir na Comraich,” or the left hand of Applecross, was the minstrel’s prompt and quaint reply.

‘S mi smaointeach air na saoibheann sin
 ‘S a bhi ga’ caoidh gu truagh,
 ‘S amhuil gheibh mi bhuinig ann,
 Bhi taghaich air luirg fhuaire,
 An taobh a chaidb iad tharaist,
 ‘S ann tha dachaigh uil’ an t-shluaign,
 Dh’eug Ianuraic priunsa Shasuinn ;
 ‘S cha dùisg e gu là-luain !

Note.—This beautiful and pathetic song was composed by Mackinnon after the death of some of his relations. It would appear that while they lived, and while his own circumstances continued prosperous, he was much respected throughout the country, and was not unfrequently the guest and companion of the best gentry in the Highlands. No sooner, however, had death deprived him of his friends, and misfortune had robbed him of his gear,* than he began to experience, from the world and his former patrons, the bitter indifference and coldness which poverty too often brings in her train. This he experienced in an especial manner, when, on a Christmas evening having gone to the Castle of Dunvegan, where the rest of the country gentry were, as usual on such occasions, enjoying the hospitality of the chief, poor Mackinnon was not only unnoticed and neglected, but repulsed from the hall, where, in wretched days, and under a wretcheder laird, he and his fathers were wont to be welcome guests. In consequence of this unhandsome treatment, the indignant bard returned instantly to Strath. While pursuing his homeward journey through the lonely glen, beneath the towering Culcens, and while the fever of his resentment still burned within his bosom, he met, or imagined he met, Generosity, Love, and Liberty, outcasts, like himself, from the hearts and halls of highland lairds, and bitterly inveighing against the tyranny that thus exiled them, unfed and unclothed, from the abodes where they were accustomed to reign and revel. At length having reached his home, he went to bed, probably supperless, and gentle sleep not deigning to woo him, but in its stead the weeping muse, he composed, and, for the first time, sang this song. It was highly esteemed by the Highland bards and scanaichois, the latter of whom entitled the tune to which it is sung, “ Tri-amh Fonn na h-Alba,” or the third best air in Scotland;—we have not been able to ascertain what airs were considered the first and second. In reference to the time and place where it was first sung, we may mention that it was a custom of the old highlanders, when they could not sleep, to sing on their beds, and that loud enough to waken all the inmates of the house, who, if the song was good, never grudged their slumbers being thus musically broken.

* Lest this statement may be mistaken, it is only to be inferred that his predecessors had been obliged to dispose of their lands, but that he still had some of the proceeds upon which he lived; but funds in cash, even if considerable, were not regarded in those days so honourable as even a very limited competency arising from a paternal estate.

'S ge fad air chuairt, mi 's tamull bh'uam,

Note.—The poet happened to be one of a party at the house of Lachunn Og, a relative of his own, when, upon the company "getting fou an' unco happy," they fell to playing at a sort of game called Iomlaidh bhiodag. The manner in which it is played is this:—The lights are extinguished, and every man casts his dirk under the table. The dirks are then shuffled with a staff, after which a person, having his right hand tied to his side, and a glove on his left, is blindfolded and put under the table to hand out one by one in rotation to every man who had cast a dirk in : and every body had to keep the dirk which fell to him in this way. M'Kinnon's dirk was by far the best in the whole collection, but he lost it in the lottery, and got in its stead an old coarse dagger belonging to a Kintail man who was present. This person was one of those termed "Clann 'Ic Ràih Mholach," i.e. Hairy M'Raes. M'Kinnon was far from pleased with his lot, and he composed this song on the occasion.

Note.—This song was composed on M'Kinnon hearing that a friend of his was about to marry a rich old widow.

AN CLARSAIR DALL.

RODERICK MORISON, the far-famed harper and poet, commonly called An Clàrsair Dall was born in the Island of Lewis*, in the year 1646. His father was an Episcopalian Clergyman in that place, a man of great respectability and goodness of heart, and a descendant of the celebrated Brìtheamh Leòghasach. He had other two sons, Angus and Malcolm. At an early age, the three, who were all designed for the pulpit, were sent to Inverness to their education. They were not long there, when the small-pox made its appearance in the town with great virulence; our three pupils were seized with it, and although the best medical skill was in requisition, so severe was the malady, that Roderick lost his eye-sight, and had his faëe—otherwise a very fine, open and expressive one,—dreadfully disfigured and contracted by it. His brothers were more fortunate,—they followed up their clerical aspirations, and having gone through the curriculum of their order, Angus got a living in the parish of Contin, and Malcolm was appointed to the Chapel of Poolewe, in the parish of Gairloch, Ross-shire. Balked in his juvenile anticipations, and now incapacitated for any active, civil, military, or other profession, Rory directed his attention to the study of music, for which nature had furnished him with a first-rate genius. In this divine science he greatly excelled, and although he was no mean performer on other musical instruments, the silver-toned harp seems to have been his favourite. On this instrument, he left all other Highland amateurs in the rear.

His superiority as a musician, and his respectable connexions soon served him as a passport to the best circles in the North. He was caressed and idolized by all who could appreciate the excellency of his minstrelsy. Induced by the fair fame of his fellow-harpers in Ireland, he visited that country, and probably profited by the excursion. On his return to Scotland, he called at every baronial residence in his way; the Scotch nobility and gentry were at the time at the Court of King James in Holyrood-House—Rory

* The Messrs Chambers of Edinburgh, in their Journal, Number 451, of Saturday, September 19th, 1840, say, on the authority of Mr Bunting, that blind Rory was an Irishman. This is incorrect. We know how much Journalists are at the mercy of others, and how easily they are misled; but without at all expecting any thing like omniscience in the Messrs Chambers, we think, that before lending the weight of their columns to give currency to the mis-statement, they ought to have informed themselves of the facts.

Of Mr Bunting, we know nothing or almost nothing; but we sympathize with him in his literary researches, and attempts to resuscitate the musical spirit and ancient melody of his country. We protest, however, against his robbing us of our sweetest minstrel—not for the world would we accord to Hibernia the honour of having given birth to Rory Dall—and for this one reason, that he was bona fide born and brought up in the Highlands of Scotland; and, if a man must be born a second time, it does not necessarily follow, that that event must take place in Ireland. Mr Bunting's blind Rory, goes by the sonorous name of O'Cahan,—we have no objection to this; neither do we lay claim to any of the estates which descended to the said Rory O'Cahan as his patrimonial inheritance, but we claim for ourselves the honour of consanguinity with Roderick Morison, the blind harper. We have given his birth and parentage;—we have pointed to the manses of his two brothers,—we have given his own history as a poet, harper, and farmer, and until these facts are disproved, the Irish historian must rest satisfied with his own Rory, and the Messrs Chambers must understand that such things as erroneous statements can be imported over the Irish channel, much easier than a Ross-shire Highlander can be made an Irishman.

wended his way to Edinburgh, where he met with that sterling model of a Highland Chieftain, John Breac M'Leod of Harris, who eagerly engaged him as his family harper. During his stay under the hospitable roof of this gentleman, he composed several beautiful tunes and songs, and, among the rest, that fascinating melody—“Feill nan Crann,” which arose out of the following circumstance: Rory, sitting one day by the kitchen fire, had chanced to drop the key of his harp in the ashes which he was raking with his fingers, as M'Leod's lady entered and inquired of one of the maids—“Ciod e tha dhith air Ruairidh?” “Mhuire! tha a chrann—chaill e san luath e,” was the reply—“Ma ta feumair crann eile 'cheannach do Ruairidh;” continued Mrs M'Leod; and the gifted minstrel, availing himself of the forced or extended meaning of the word crann, forthwith composed the tune, clothing it in words of side-splitting humour, and representing the kitchen maids as ransacking every mercantile booth in the land, to procure him his lost implement!

Shortly after this period, we find our author located as a farmer at Totamòr in Glenelg, at that time the property of his liberal patron M'Leod, who gave him the occupancy of it rent-free. Here he remained during his friend's life, and added largely to the stock of his musical and poetical compositions.

An Clàrsair Dall was fondly attached to his patron, whose fame he commemorated in strains of unrivalled beauty and excellence. The chieftains of the clan M'Leod possessed, perhaps, greater nobleness of soul than any other of the Highland gentry; but it must be observed, that they were peculiarly successful in enlisting the immortalizing strains of the first poets in their favour—our author and their own immortal Mary. Rory's elegy on John Breac M'Leod, styled, “Creach nan Ciadan,” is one of the most pathetic, plaintive and heart-touching productions we have read, during a life half spent amid the flowery meadows of our Highland Parnassus. After deplored the transition of M'Leod's virtues, manliness and hospitality from the earth, he breaks forth in sombre forebodings as to the degeneracy of his heir, and again luxuriates in the highest ingredients of a Lament. Oran mor Mhic-Leoid, in which the imaginative powers of the minstrel conjure up scenes of other days, with the vividness of reality, is a master-piece of the kind. It comes before us in the form of a duet, in which Echo (the sound of music), now excluded like himself from the festive hall of M'Leod, indulges in responsive strains of lamentation that finely harmonize with the poignancy of our poet's grief.

This last song was composed after his ejectment from his farm, and while on his way to his native Isle of Lewis. It is not true, as stated by Mr Bunting, that Rory Dall was a wandering minstrel. He indeed occasionally visited gentlemen's houses, but that was always under special invitation—he was born a minister's son, and did not require to earn his bread by wandering from place to place. Rory Dall was much respected in his age and country for those high musical powers which have contributed so much to the pleasure and delight of his countrymen—talents which have obtained for himself the imperishable fame of being one of the sweetest and most talented poets of our country. He died at a good old age, and was interred in the burying ground of I, in the Island of Lewis. Peace be to his manes! never we fear, shall the Highlands of Scotland again produce his like.

* The Highlanders had a practice in the olden times that is still partially observed in certain parts even at the present day, and that tended to keep alive and fan those habits of hospitality and friendly feelings among the inhabitants of particular districts for which they are so justly celebrated. The custom to which we allude, was to meet at an appointed house, on the first Monday of every quarter, to drink a bumper to the beverage of the succeeding, and wish it better or no worse than the present.

 An cairdeas, gu'n bhréug,
 Cha bluin iad ri fàl-bheairt,
 Mo lamhsa nach spéis,
 "Far an is' an gàradh,
 Cha ghnà leo a leum,"
 Na fir ghasda gu'n bhi meata,
 'S iad nach seachainn stréup,
 Le 'n toirear buaidh's gach spàirne,
 Ann's gach àite dha 'n téid.

Clann-a-Phì † ri' n seanachas,

 'S iad nach seachnadh fuathas,
 'N àm bhualadh nan sròn,
 Ge b' e chuireadh fearg Orr'
 Cha b' pharmadach dhò,

 Caisgear carraig leò,
 "Buille 'n corp cha bhuail" iad,
 Tha naisle nam pòr.

 Bha fios aig Mac-an-Tòisich,
 Nach sòradh iad ceum,

 An Ceann-tàile so thall,

 Is tric a fhuaire buaidh lārach,
 Le àbhachd an lann,

Na beathraichean beòdha,
Ga còir a bhi cruaidh,
Dream gu'n laige ri am troide
Ceann a chabhrach suas,
Aig luchd na gorm lann nàimhdeach,
Nach sanntaich mo bhuar.

Note.—When the harper composed this song, he was residing in Tota-Mor, in Glenelg, as a farmer, and the few of the clan's he alludes to were people that he had good reason to fear would rob him, or, in other words, carry away his cattle—a very prevalent practice in those days. As, therefore, he had little or no means of defending himself, he immediately called his harp and his muse to his aid, and composed this song, in which those dreaded enemies are invested with all the attributes of honour, honesty, and good neighbourhood; and, as far as the bard was concerned, they always acted towards him in the characters his muse was willing to believe they actually possessed.

ORAN

DO DH-LAIN BREAC MAC-LEOID.

THA mòran, mòran mulaid
An deigh tuineachadh am chòm,
Gur bliadhna leam gach seachduin,
Bho nach facas Iain donn;
Na 'n cluinninn ged nach faicinn,
Fear do phearsa thigheann dò 'n fhonn,
Gu'n sgaoileadh mo phràmh 's m' airsneul,
Mar shneachd òg ri aiteamh trom.

Their mi hò-rò ghealla beag,
'S na hò-rò challan hì;
Their mi hò-rò ghealla beag,
'S na hò-rò challan hì;
Challan hì ho hù-rà bho,
'S na hò-rò challan hì,
Gur fada bho na tràthan sin,
Nach robh mo ghràdh san tìr.

A luchd comuinn so, na 'n eisdeadh sibh,
Ri cuid de m' sgeul, gu'n mheang,
'S mi caoidh an uasail bheadaraich,
Tha bhuam an fheadhs' air chall;
Cha robh cron ri thaotainn ort,
Ach thu bhi faoilidh ann,
Bho 'u fhuar mi gu h-ùr éibhinn thn,
'N Dun-éideann, a measg Ghall.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Thug mi ionnsaidd fhada,
As do dheigh 's mi 'n cladach cruaidh,
Thug mi ionnsaidd bhearraideach,
'S a chàmhanaich Di-luain;
Cha d'fhuaras an t-òg aigeantach,
Bu mhacanta measg sluaidh,
'S cha 'n fhaodainn a mhisg àicheadh,
'S do dheoch-slainte dol m' an cuairt.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Thug mi ionnsaidd sgairteal,
As do dheigh an cladach doirbh,
Ged nach tug mi capull leam,
Na agair mi na lorg;
Gu 'n robh mo choiseachd adhaiseach,
'S an rathad a bhi dorch,
Le breisleich mhic-nan-cliatthan,*
'S do lamh fhial ga dhioladh orm.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Fhir so tha mi g' iomradh ort,
Ga t-ionndrain tha mi bh' uam,
Sròn ardanach an fhiùgbantais,
Cha b' fhiù leat a bhi erion;
Na 'n cluinninn féin 's gu 'n tigeadh tu,
Fhir chridhe dhios nan crioch,
Gu'n clainn do dheoch-slainte,
Ga do phàighinn i, de dh' fhion.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Beul macanta, ciùin, rabhairtach,
'N uair tharladh tu 's taigh-òsd,
A dh'fhàs gu seirceil, suairce,
Gaoil na'm ban, 's nan gruagach òg;
'S iomadh maighdeann cheutach,
A bha deigheil air do phòig,
Le 'm b' ait bhi cunntadh spreidhe dhut,
'S a deas-lamh séin le deòin.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Cha robh fuath na greathachd ort,
Ri t-amharc bha thu caoin,
Saighdear foinnidh, flathail,
Air an gabhadh gach neach gaol;
Euchdach, treubhach, urramach,
Bha 'n curaidh glan gu'n ghaoid,
Gu fearail, meanmnach, measail,
Air nach faighte an tiotal clau.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Saighdear fearail, fuasgailteach,
Fear crualalach, gu'n mheang,
Ceann-feadhna air thùs na brataich e,
Ga taisbeanadh san Fhraing;
Thig airm air reir a phearsa,
Air an laoch bu sgaireil greann,
'N uair dh' eireadh airde lasrach ort,
'S maing a' chasadach riut san àm.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

* An t-luisge-beatha.

Thig claidheamh socrach, stailinn dhut,
 De'n t-seòrs as fear sa bhùth,
 'S e fulangach bho bharra-dheis,
 Gu'n ruig a cheanna-bheairt duirn;
 Faobhar air a gheur chruaidh sin,
 Nach gabhadh leum na lùb,
 Lann air dhreach na daolaig,
 'S i air taobh deas-laimh mo rùin.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

'S e sud an t-airm a thaghainn dnt,
 'S tu 'n deigh an retreut,
 As paidhir dhag nach diúltadh,
 Agus fùdar gorm da reir;
 Do ghunna 'n deigh a falmachadh,
 'S tu marbh-tach air an treud,
 Ann san laimh nach greagara,
 'S tu leantainn as an deigh,
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

'S fhada leam a chomhnaidh so,
 Th' aig Eoin a measg nan Gall,
 Cha ghiorra leam an oidhche,
 Bhi ga chuijmhneachadh 's gach am:
 Dh' fhaointichinn na 'm faiciun thu,
 Tigh'mn seachad ann sa ghleann,
 Cha ghabhinn fein bonn faiteachais,
 Ge d' ghlacadh tu mo gheall.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Corr agus tri ràidhean,
 Tha thu d' chadal sàmhach bh' uain,
 Gu'n t-fhaicinn bho na dh'fhág thu sinn,
 'S ar eridhe ghnàth fo ghruainn;
 A nis bho 'n chuir thu cùl riunn,
 'Sa laidh smùrnein air do ghruaidd,
 Mar sholas and deigh dorachadais,
 Tha 'Tòrmòd mar bu dual.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

'S e Tòrmòd òg mo shubhachas,
 Air bhuidheachas shiol-Leòid,
 Ma's mac an àit' an athar thu,
 Thig fathast gu bhi mòr;
 Ann san Dùn gu flatail,
 'N robh do chiuineadh roi beò,
 Mac-ratha dhùisgeas eibhneas domh,
 Le aighear thréig mi bròn.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

Ma thuirt iad ogha Thòrmoid riut,
 B'i sud an fhoirm fhuil għlan,
 Ma thuirt iad iar-ogha Ruairidh riut,
 B'i 'n àrd-fhUIL uaibhreach mhearr;
 'S ogha 'n Eoin gun truailleadh,
 Thug suairceas air gach neach,
 Mac an fhír nach b'fhuathach leam,
 An nochd thog' suas mo ghean.
Their mi ho-ro, &c.

CREACH-NA-CIADAIN.*

THA muld, tha mulad,
 Lion mulad ro mhòr mi,
 'S ge d' is eigin domh fhulang,
 Tha tuille 's na's leoir orm;
 Thromaich sac air mo għiulani,
 Le dùmhlaðas dòrainn,
 Dh' amais dosgaich na bliadhñi orm,
 Creach-na-Ciadain so leon mi!

Creach-na-Ciadain so leon mi,
 Dh' fhàg mi breòite gu'n fhiabhrs,
 A dh'fhògair mo shlainte,
 'S teare mo bhrathair 's na criochan;
 Agam glaodh an loin bhrònai,
 'N deigh a h-eoin 's i 'ga iargainn,
 Dh' fhalbh gach sòlas a b' àbhaist,
 'S dh' fhuirich càillein a m' fhiacail.

Dh' fhuirich càillein a m' fhiacail,
 So i bhliadhna' a thug car dhomh,
 Dh' fhas puthar fo m' leine,
 Nach fothaich leigh tha air thalamh,
 Mo leigeas cha'n fheadar,
 Cha ré domh bhi fallain,
 Fhuair mi dìnnear lì Càisge,
 'S cha b' fheairrde mo gohni i.

Cha b' fheairrde mo gohni i,
 Ge do bha mi mu'n chò'roinn,
 'N diugh gur buan domh ri aithris,
 Gu'n bhuail an t-earrach so bròg orm;
 Mi mu'm māighsteir glè mhath,
 'S fad a leus orm nach beò e,
 Ge do racha mi seachad,
 Cha'n fhaigh mi facial dheth chòmhra.

Cha'n fhaigh mi facial dheth chòmhra,
 Chleachd mi mòran deth fhaotainn,
 'N diugh dh' fhaodas mi ráite,
 Gur uan gu'n mhàthair san treud mi,
 'S ann is gna dhomh bhi túrsach,
 Gu'n bhrath furtachd as eugais,
 'S o'n a chaochail e àbhaist,
 'S teare a chaoiðh mo ghàir éibhinn.

'S teare a chaoiðh mo ghàir éibhinn,
 Cha bheus domh bhi subhach,
 Ghabh mi tlachd ann bi túrsach,
 Chuir mi ùigh ann bi dubhach,
 Mu'n ti tha mi 'g iomradh,
 Chuir an cuimhne mo phutar,
 Nis o'n fhuair an uaigh e-san,
 Chaidh an caisead mo bhruthaich.

* This lamentation was composed on the death of John Breac Macleod.

Chaidh an caisead mo bhruthaich,
 'S mi fo chumha da dìreadh,
 Dol an truimead 's an àirdé,
 An diugh a thainig mo dhòlobhail :
 Dh' shalbh mo laitheicean éibhinn,
 O'n a thréig sibh Clár-sgithe,
 Tha mo thaic ann sna h-Earadh
 'N deigh fhalach 'ua aonar.

'N deigh fhalach 'ua aonar,
 Bi'dh e daonnan 'an uaigneas,
 Sgeul mu'n gearanach daoine,
 'S muai chaointeach nan luath-bhos,
 'S iad a' co-stri r'a chéile,
 Ceol gun éibhneas seachd truaighe !
 Leum mo chridhe 'na spealtaibh,
 M' an chaismeachd 'n uair chualas.

Gur h-i chaismeachd so chualas,
 A luathaich orm tioma,
 Dh' fhàg fo m' osnaich fuil bhrùite,
 A' sior-dhùrùthadh air m' innigh,
 'S fhaide seachduin na bliadhna,
 O'n a thriall sibh thair linne,
 Le friamhach na fialachd,
 Bh'ann san lion-bhrat air fhilleadh,

'S ann san lion-bhrat air fhilleadh,
 Dh' fhàg mi spionnadhan anfhanu,
 Ceann-uidhe luchd-ealaidh,
 Mar ri earras luchd-seanachais.
 Agus ulaidh aos-dàna,
 Chuir do bhàs iad gn h-imcheist ;
 'S o'n a chaidh thu sa chiste,
 Cha bu mhis a chùis fhàrmайд.

Cha bu mhis a chùis fhàrmайд,
 Ghabh mi tearbadh o'n treud sin,
 Far an robh mi a'm mheanbh-ghair,
 'An toiseach aimseir mo chéitein,
 'S ann an deireadh a Charbhais,
 A dhearbhadh ar feuchain
 Chaill mi 'n ùr-ghibht, a chreach mi,
 Ann an seachduin na Céusda.

Ann an seachduin na Céusda,
 Diciadain mo bhristidh,
 Chaill mi iuchair na h-éudail,
 Cha mhi aon neach is mist e,
 Gu'n bhrath faighinn gu bràth oirr',
 Sgeul a shàraich mo mhiseach ;
 'S ann fo dhiomhaireachd m' àirnean,
 A tharmaich mo niosgaid.

A tharmaich mo niosgaid,
 Cha'n fhaidh mise bhi slàn deth,
 Se fear tinn a chinn-ghalair,
 A ni'n gearan bochd cràiteach,

'S ann air ata 'n easlaint,
 Nach d' fhiosraich a nàbaidh,
 'S cha mho dh' Thairach e thinneas
 Leis 'n do mbilleadh a shlainte.

Far 'n do mhilleadh mo shlaunt-s',
 'S ann a tharmaich dhòmh m' easlaint,
 Gu'n d' chuir aimsir na Càisge,
 Mi gu bràth fo throm airsneal,
 Gheibh gach neach do na dh' fhàg thu,
 Rud 'an àite na bh' aca,
 Ach mis agus Màiri,
 A chuir a bràthair 'an tasgaidh.

Chaidh do bhràthair 'an tasgaidh,
 'Se mo chreach-sa gur fior sud,
 'S ann an diugh tha mi 'g acain,
 Mar tha mhac na mhaol-ciaraín,
 Agus ise bochd brònach,
 'N deigh a leonadh o'n chiadain,
 Thug mo mhaighstir math uamsa,
 Leis 'n do bhuaineadh mo phian-bhron.

Mo phian-bhron a Mhàiri,
 Mar tha thu fo chumha,
 Nach faic thu do Bhràthair,
 Mar a b' àbhaist gu subhach,
 An sean-fhalac gnàthaichte,
 Au diugh 's fior e mar thubhairt :—
 " Cha robh meoghal ga miad,
 Nach robh na deigh galach, dubhach."

Nach robh na deigh galach, dubhach,
 'Se 'm fear subhach am beairteas,
 Cha'n fhaigh piuthar a bràthair
 Ach gheibh bean àluinn leth-leapach,
 Thainig àr air an dùthaich,
 Dia a dhùbladh an carta,
 'S ga cumail an uachdar,
 Gus am buadhaich do mhac e.

Gus am buadhaich do mhac e,
 'N déigh a ghlasadh le gruagaich,
 Lan saibhlris is sonais,
 Ann san onair bu dual dut,
 Lean cuí's na bi leanbail,
 'S na bidh marbh-ghean air t-uaislean,
 Cum an coimeas ruit féin iad,
 'S na toir beum dha t-ainm Ruairidh.

Ruairidh reachdar, run-meannmach,
 Tartach, toirbeartach, teannta,
 Do shi-seanair o'n tainig,
 Cha b' ion do nàmhaid dol teamh air,
 'S Ruairidh gasda 'na dheigh,
 Cha b'e roghainn bu tâire,
 'S an treas Ruairidh fa dheireadh,
 Cha b'e'n gainneanach fás e.

An treas Ruairidh de'n dream sin,
 A choisinn geall 's cha b' e mi-blui,
 Cha b' e 'n coileananach gann e,
 Ach an ceannsgalach milleant'
 Ma 's tusa roinn suas,
 An ceathramh Rauiridh, na dearmad,
 Lean ri sinnisireachd t-aiteam,
 'S n a toir masladh dha 'n ainm sin.

Na toir masladh dha 'n ainm sin,
 'S cuir leanabas fo d' bhrògan,
 Na biadh daoin' ann am barail,
 Ge d' tha car aig an òig ort,
 Bidh gu fiughantach smachdail,
 Rianail, reachdmhor, 'n triath Leòdach,
 'Na faic frìd an sùil bridean,'
 Cha chùis dòn do Mhac-Leòid e.

Cha chùis dòn do Mhac-Leòid,
 A bhi dòlum 's rud aige,
 Lean an dùthegas bu chòir dhut,
 'S biadh mòr-chuis na t-aigneadh,
 Ach ma leigeas tu dhìlot e,
 Bi'dh na ciadan ga t-agairt,
 'G ràdh gur crann shlatag chròn thu,
 'N àit' a ghniomharach bheachdail.

Maide dh' fhàs na chraoibh thoraidh,
 Fo bhìòna onarach àluinn,
 Ann an lios nan crann éuchdach,
 Bha thachd nan ceud ann 's gach àit' air,
 Lean an dùthchas bu chathair,
 A mhic an athar a chràidh sinn,
 Na bidh ad chrònach gu'n duilleich,
 Ann 'san ionad 'n do thàmh thu.

O R A N M O R M H I C - L E O I D .

[EADAR AN CLARSAIR AGUS MAC-TALLA.]

Miàd a mhulaid tha 'm thaghall,
 Dh' fhadh treoghaid mo chléibh gu goirt
 Aig na rinn mi ad dheighidh,
 Air m' aghairt 's mo thriall gu port.
 'S ann bha mis' air do thoir,
 'S mi meas robb còir agam ort;
 A dheagh mhic athar mo ghràidh,
 B tu m' aighear, 's m' àdh, 's m' ole.

Chaidh a chuibhle mu'n cuairt,
 Gu'n do thiunndaidh gu fuachd am blàthas,
 Naile chuna' mi uair,
 Dùn flathail nan cuach a thràigh.

Far biadh taghaich nan duan,
 Ioma' mathas gu'n chruas, gu'n chàs;
 Dh' fhàlbh an latha sin bhuain,
 'S tha na taighean gu fuaividh fàs.

Dh' fhàlbh, mac-tall' as an Dùn,
 'N am sgàrrachdaimh duinn r' ar triath;
 'S ann a thachair e rium,
 Air seacharan bheann, san t-shliabh.
 Labhair e-san air thus—
 " Math mo bharail gur tu ma's fior,
 Chunna' mise fo' mhùirn,
 Roi 'n uiridh an Dùn nan cliar."

A Mhic-talla, nan tùr,
 ' Se mo bharail gur tusa bhà,
 Ann an teaghlaich an fhion,
 'S tu g-aithris air gniomh mo lambh :
 "S math mo bharail gur mi,
 'S cha b' urasd dhomh bhi mo thàmh ;
 G-eisdeachd brosluim gach ceòil,
 Ann am fochar Mhic-Leòid an àigh."

A Mhic-talla so bha,
 Anns a bhaile 'n do thar mi m' iuil ;
 'S ann a nis dhuinn as lèir,
 Gu'm beil mis' a's tu fèin air chùl.
 A reir do chomais air-sgeul,
 O'n 's fear comuinn mi-fèin a's tu ;
 'M beil do mhuinntearas buan,
 Aig an triath ud, da'n dual an Dùn ?

" Tha Mac-talla fo ghruaime,
 Auns an talla 'm biadh fuaim a cheòil ;
 'S ionad taghaich nan cliar,
 Gu'n aighear, gu'n mbiagh, gu'n phòit.
 Gu'n mhire, gu'n mhùirn,
 Gu'n iomracha dù nan còrn ;
 Gun chùirm, gu'n phailteas ri dàimh,
 Gu'n mbaenas, gu'n mhàran beoil.

"S mi Mac-talla, bha uair
 'G eisdeachd fathrum nan duan gu tiugh ;
 Far bu mhuirneach am béo,
 'N am cromadh do'n ghréin san t-sruth.
 Far am b' foirméal na seòid,
 'S iad gu h-òranach, ceolmor, clàth ;
 Ged nach faicte mo ghnùis,
 Chluinnt' aca sa'n Dùn mo ghuth."

"N am eiridh gu moch,
 Ann san teaghlaich, gu'n spröe, gu'n ghruaime ;
 Chluinte gleadhrach nan dös,
 'S an cèile na' cois on t-suain :
 'Nuair a ghabhadh i làn,
 'S i gu'n cuireadh os u-aird na fhuair,
 Le meoir fhileanta bhinn,
 'S iad gu ruith-leumach, dionach, luath."

" Bhiodh a rianadair fóin,
 Cuir an iòe gur h-e bhiodh ann ;
 'S e g-eiridh na measg,
 'S an Éibhe gu tric na cheann.
 Ge d' a b' ard leinn a fuaim,
 Cha tuairgneadh e sinn gu teann ;
 Chuireadh tagradh am chluais,
 Le h-aidmheil gu luath, 's gu mall.

'Nuaire a chuit' i na tàmh,
 Le furtachd na fàrdach fén ;
 Dhomh-sa b' fhurasda ràdh,
 Gu'm bu churaideach gáir nan téud.
 Le h-iomairt dha làmh,
 A cuir a binnens do chàch an céill ;
 'S gu'm bu shiubhlach am chluais,
 A moghunn lughar le luasgau mheur.

" Ann sa' fheasgar na dheigh,
 N am teasa na gréin tra nòin ;
 Fir chneatain ri clàir,
 'S mnai' freagairt a ghàu cuir led.
 Da chomhairleach ghearr,
 A labhairt 's gu 'm b'àrd an gloir ;
 'S gu'm bu thitheach an guin,
 Air an duine gu'n fhuil, gu'n fheoil."

" Gheibhte fleasgaich gu'n ghrain,
 Na do thalla gu'n sgráig, gu'n fhuath ;
 Mnaí' fhionna 'n fhuile réidh,
 Cuir buineis an céill le fuaim.
 Le ceileireachd beoil,
 Bhiodh gu h-ealanta, h-ordail, suaire ;
 Bhiodh fear-bogha 'nan còir,
 Ri cuir meo-ghair a mheòir nan cluais.

" Thoir teachdaireachd bhuam,
 Le deatam, gu Ruavidh òg ;
 Agus innis dhé fein,
 Cuid de chunnard ged 'se Mac-Leòid.
 E bhi'g amharec na dheigh,
 Air an Iain* a dh-éug, s' nach beò ;
 Ge bu shuibhir a chliù,
 Cha'n fhàgadh e 'n Dùn gu'n cheòl."

*Note.—*This song was a favourite with Sir Alexander M'Kenzie, of Gairloch, who paid a person to sing it to him every Christmas night. One of Sir Alexander's tenants went to him one day to seek a lease of a certain farm. The laird desired him to sit down and sing Oran Mòr Mhic-Leòid till he should write the document. The tenant remarked that he certainly set great value on that song. "Yes," was his reply, "and I am sorry that every Highland laird has not the same regard for it."

* John Breac M'Leod was one of the last chieftains that had in his retinue a bard, a harper, a piper, and a fool,—all of them excellently and liberally provided for. After his death, Dunvegan Castle was neglected by his son Roderick, and the services of these functionaries dispensed

We here beg the reader to note, that we have not said Rory was an English gentleman, but only hinted that he aped the manners of one. Eight stanzas of this song are purposely omitted, as we think their insertion would be an outrage on our readers' sense of propriety.

* Mr John M'Leod, son of Sir Roderick M'Leod.

AM PIOBAIRE DALL.

JOHN M'KAY, the celebrated piper and poet was born in the parish of Gairloch, Ross-shire, in the year 1666. Like his father, who was a native of Lord Reay's Country, he was born blind, but with perhaps the exception of a slight shade on their eyes, it would be difficult to the most acute observer to perceive that they had not their sight. When John had acquired the first principles or elementary parts of music from his father, he was sent to the College of Pipers in Skye, to finish his musical studies under the auspices of the celebrated Mac-Cruimmein. There were at this time no fewer than eleven other apprentices studying with this celebrated master-piper; but in the articles of capacity and genius so superior did Iain Dall prove himself to his fellow-students, that he outstripped them all in a very short time. This superiority, or pre-eminence naturally gained him the envy and low-souled ill-will of the others, and many anecdotes have traditionally come down to us illustrative of their rivalry and wounded pride. On one occasion as John and another apprentice were playing the same tune alternately, in the highest key of rivalry, Mac-Cruimmein reprimandingly asked the other, "why he did not play like Iain Dall?" to which the chagrined aspirant replied, "By Mary, I'd do so if my fingers had not been after the skate!"—alluding to the conglutinous touch of his fingers on the chanter-holes after having forked at some of that fish at dinner. Hence originated the taunt which the north country pipers, conscious of their own superiority, are in the habit of hurling at pipers of the more Southern districts—"Tha mheòirean as dèighe na sgait!" Genius is never at a loss for developing itself, and where there is actually no casus, its fertility of invention finds abundant materials to work upon. Our youthful piper, it appears, was somewhat unfortunate in the appointment of his bed, during the early period of his apprenticeship; in short, he was infested with certain marauders, which detracted from his comfort and sleep. This circumstance he commemorated in the composition of a pìobaireachd appropriately called "Pronnadh nam Mial," which, although his first effort, both as regards its variations and general structure, is equal to any thing of the kind.

One of the Mac-Cruimmeins, a celebrated musician known by the cognomen of Padruig Caogach, owing, we suppose, to his inveterate habit of twinkling or winking with his eyes, was about the time composing a new pipe tune. Two years had already elapsed since the first two measures of it became known and popular; but owing to its unfinished state, it was called "Am port Leathach." Some of the greatest poets have experienced more difficulty in supplying a single line or couplet than in the structure and harmonization of the entire piece—musicians, too, have experienced similar perplexities—and Padruig Caogach had fairly stuck. The embryo tune was every where chanted and every where applauded, and this measure of public approbation tended to double his anxiety to have it finished—but no! the genius of composition seemed to exult at a distance, and to wink at Caogach's perplexity. Tender of his brother's reputation, our blind author set to work, and finished the tune which he called, "Lasan Phàdruiig Chaogaich"—thus nobly renouncing any share of the laudation which must have flowed upon the completion of the admired strain. Patrick, finding his peculiar province usurped by a blind beardless youth, became furiously incensed, and bribed the other apprentices to do away with his rival's life! This they attempted one day while walking together at Dun-Bhorraraig, where they threw their blind friend over a precipice of twenty-four feet in height! John alighted on the soles of his feet, and suffered no material injury: the place over which he was precipitated was shown to us, and is yet recognised as Leum an Doill. The completion of "Lasan Phàdrug Chaogaich" procured great praise for our young musician, and gave rise to the following well-known proverb—"Chaidh an fhòghluim os-ccann Mhic-Cruimein." i. e. "the apprentice outwits the master."

After being seven years under the tuition of Mac-Cruimmein, he returned to his native parish, where he succeeded his father as family-piper to the Laird of Gairloch. He was enthusiastically fond of music, and the florid encomiums which every where flowed in upon him, gave his inventive powers an ever-recurrent stimulus. During his stay in this excellent family, he composed no fewer than twenty-four pìobaireachds, besides numberless strathspeys, reels and jigs—the most celebrated of which, are "Cailleach a Mhuillear," and "Cailleach Liath Rasaidh."

Finding himself ultimately in comfortable circumstances, he married, and had two children, a son and a daughter—the former of whom was a handsome man. His name was Angus, and he was equal to any of his progenitors in the science of music. When our author became advanced in years, he was put on the superannuated list, with a small but competent annuity; and he passed the remaining part of his life in visiting gentlemen's houses, where he was always a welcome guest. His visits or excursions were principally in the country of Reay and the Isle of Skye. It was during one of these peregrinations, that, hearing in the neighbourhood of Tong, of the demise of his patron, Lord Reay, he composed that beautiful pastoral "Coire'an-Easain," which of itself might well immortalize his fame. It is not surpassed by any thing of the kind in the Keltic language—bold, majestic, and intrepid, it commands admiration at first glance, and seems on a nearer survey of the entire magnificent fabric, as the work of some supernatural agent.

After the death of Sir Alexander M'Donald of Slate, John paid a visit to his old rendezvous, now occupied by his friend's son. The aged bardic-piper soon experienced the verification of the adage—new kings, new laws—instead of being honoured with a seat in the dining-room as usual, he was ushered into the servants' hall immediately below—an indignity he was by no means disposed to pass sub silentio. As the young chief was taking dinner, a liveried servant made his appearance in the hall, and addressing John said—"My master wishes you to play one of those tunes he often heard his father praise"—"Go back to your master," replied Iain Dall warmly, "and tell him from me, that when I used to play to his father it was to charm and delight his ears, and not to blow music up in his a—!"

Having returned to Gairloch, he never again went from home. He died in the year 1754, being consequently 98 years of age, and was buried in the same grave with his father, Ruairidh Dall, in the clachan of his native parish, Gairloch.

* As Myro, son of the king of Sora,* was one day sailing in his little barque along the Irish coast, he came to a bay, remarkable for its beautiful seclusion. As his eye wandered here and there over every part of the smooth expanse, it at length rested on a group of nymphs desporting themselves, as they thought unseen, and enjoying the cool of a fine summer's eve among the waters. For a time, he fancied them mermaids, or daughters of the sea, and continued to gaze on them with admiration and awe; but observing, as he drew nearer, that their forms were entirely human, he made all sail to ascertain who they were! On observing his approach, they darted like lightning to conceal themselves in the crevice of an adjoining rock, whither fear and modesty compelled them to seek a hasty retreat. Determined to make captive of the fairest, whosoever she might be, he moored his skiff, and went in pursuit. He soon pounced upon them in their concealment, and carried off the most handsome. Awed by terror, and suffused with tears, she on her knees implored him for liberty,—telling him that her name was "Fâine-Soluis," i. e. beam of light, and that her father was king of that part of Ireland. Unmoved by her entreaties, he conveyed her to his boat, and bore her off to his own country, where she lived with him for some time, as the partner of his bed. To her, however, Sora was a place of torment,—for the thoughts of kindred and of home embittered every hour of her existence. Goaded to despair, she formed the resolution of attempting her escape, and, having sallied forth one day, as had been her custom, to the beach, she observed Myro's curach afloat, and no one within view, which she unmoored, and committing herself to the mercy of the elements, nimbly leaped on board. Spreading all sail, and a favourable breeze having sprung up, she was soon driven upon the coast of Scotland, at a spot where Fingal and his attendants were refreshing themselves after the fatigues of the chase. Her eyes beamed with joy as she recognised the hero. After mutual salutations, she informed the king of Morven of what had happened; and, imploring his protection, as her husband was in pursuit, she assured him of her determination to die rather than return. Fingal promised her his aid; but, hardly had her troubled mind composed itself to rest, when the prince of Sora landed in the bay, and demanded his wife from him. The hero, true to his plighted promise, refused. The prince of Sora drew his sword, and menaced defiance.

* The island of Sorcha is frequently mentioned in the poems of Ossian. It is uncertain where it lay, but it seems to have been noted for the cruelty of its inhabitants.—Dr Smith.

Upon which, Gaul, the son of Morni, stepping forth, encountered the stranger. But, valiant as was the arm of Gaul, he had well nigh been overpowered. Oscar, however, the son of Ossian, taking advantage of an exception to the Fingalian law, "not to aid either party in single combat with the right hand," hurled a dart at the young chief of Sora with his left; but which, missing its aim, unhappily pierced Fàine-Solais to the heart. Confounded at the sight, Myro became unnerved, and was overpowered and bound by Gaul. Fàine-Solais was buried where she fell, and the young chief returned to Sora. The episode concerning the Maid of Craca, in the third book of Fingal, is to be regarded as another version of the same story, though perhaps the following poem, entitled "Cath Mhaighre mhàir mhìc rìgh Sorcha," is the more correct. There are indeed several editions of this piece, all of which are good, but this, in our judgment, is the best. It furnishes internal evidence of its antiquity.

ALASDAIR MAC MHAIGHSTIR ALASDAIR.

ALEXANDER McDONALD, commonly called Alasdair Mac Mhaighstir Alasdair, was born in the beginning of the eighteenth century. His father resided at Dalilea, in Moidart, and was Episcopalian clergyman at Ardnamurchan. He always travelled on foot, there being no roads in that rugged country, in his time, and returned the same day. He was a man of great bodily strength, which his weekly labours and travels required. His strength was, however, sometimes necessarily exerted on other occasions. In his time the people of Moidart and Suainart often met at interments in Eilean-Fionain, then the common burying-ground of both districts; and, as was the custom in former ages, consumed an anchor or two of whisky, and then fought. The presence of the clergyman was often required; and it was not seldom that his strength also was exhibited in parting the combatants. His character and prowess were so well-known that few men dared dispute his right as umpire. All were obliged to succumb to the pacifier; but the Suainart men alleged that he generally laid a heavy hand on them, the Moidart men being his own friends and relatives.

The Rev. gentleman had a large family of sons and daughters. The latter all died of the small-pox, after they had families of their own. An anecdote is still related concerning them. The small-pox raged in Moidart when his children were young, and Mr McDonald removed with them to Eilean-Fionain, (not the burying-place but another island farther up in Loch-Sheil,) that they might escape the contagion that proved fatal to so many. And they did then escape. But nothing can more clearly evince our want of foresight and utter incompetency to judge of what is best than the result of the Rev. gentleman's care—that is, even taking it for granted that it was a consequence; for his daughters all died of the very malady from which he had been so anxious to guard them, and that at a time which to superficial thinkers would seem to have rendered the calamity awfully more distressing—when their death left several families of motherless children. The distress, we are but too apt to think, would have been greatly lessened if they had been taken away when their father consulted their safety by flight. But the ways of Providence are inscrutable to our dim vision!

Four of Mr McDonald's sons lived to a good old age. Angus, the eldest, and his descendants, continued tacksmen of Dalilea for a century. Alexander, the subject of this memoir, was the second. His two younger brothers were settled in Uist as tacksmen.

The CLANRONALD of that day countenanced young men of merit. He wished young Alexander, of whom early hopes were entertained, to be educated for the bar. His father wished him to follow his own profession, and gave him a classical education. But our poet, like many a wayward genius, followed his own inclination—and disappointed both his chief and his father. His abilities and qualifications fitted him for any calling; yet there seems to be a kind of fatuity attending those who woo the Muses, which often prevents them from adopting the most prudent and advantageous pursuits.

When attending college, it is certain, however, that he did not neglect his studies, as he was a good classical scholar. His genius was not of that kind which too easily indulges in the indolence and inactivity of life. His powers were great; and his energy of mind adequate to any task in which his will inclined him to act. But he was inconsiderate, or improvident. He entered into the married state before he had finished his studies, and soon found it necessary to attend to other avocations.* His marriage gave rise to the vulgar error, that he was intended to have been made a priest; but that, disliking the office, he disqualified himself by that rash step; whereas, he was a protestant of the English church.

As teaching is the usual and most proper occupation of students who must do something towards their own support, the poet, whose studies had been interrupted by his marriage, betook himself to that most useful, but arduous labour. It is said that he was at first teacher to the Society for propagating Christian knowledge.

We find him afterwards parochial schoolmaster of Ardnamurchan, and an elder; consequently a presbyterian. He lived on the farm of Cori-Vullin, at the base of Ben-Shiante, the highest mountain in that part of the country, and adjacent to the noble ruins of Castle Mingarry, a romantic situation on the Sound of Mull, directly opposite to Tobermory, whose rural scenery aided the frequent inspirations of the bard; for, while he wielded the ferula, he neglected not the muses. There many a scene witnessed their delightful amours. He might have devoted more of his time to them than could be well spared from the labours of the farmer, and the duties of the instructor; yet the poet would have his own way, as well as please his own mind. As might have been expected, complaints were preferred against him; and the Presbytery appointed a committee to examine the school. His best friends must have allowed that there was just ground of complaint; yet, the examinators were not inclined to be rigorous. To give a specimen of the progress the scholars were making, the schoolmaster called up a little boy† who had entered the school at the preceding term, and then commenced to learn the alphabet. He read now the Scriptures fluently and intelligibly. The Reverend gentlemen were well pleased with the specimen, and gave a favourable report of the school.

* “He was married to Jane McDonald, of the family of Dail-an-eas, in Glenetive. He composed a song on her, which is not remarkable for tenderness or affection, but cold and artificial, when compared with his lofty and impassioned strains in praise of Mòrag.”—Memoir prefixed to the Glasgow edition of 1839.

† Duncan M’Kenzie, Kilchoan, who lived to the great age of ninety-four; and, in 1828, communicated to us this information. He also told us that in the ensuing summer he was taken from school to attend cattle; and that some time thereafter Mr M’Donald left his school and farm and joined the Prince. “Poor man,” added he, “he lost his all.” He also mentioned that the country was in an unsettled state for some time, and that he lost the opportunity of getting any more education.

A bard was, even in our poet's time, a conspicuous character, and that not only as the "man of song :" he was highly esteemed in war and in peace. He was first in council ; consulted in all matters of importance as a man of acknowledged talent ; as being shrewd, cautious, and intelligent. An anecdote will show the opinion entertained of our bard even in the eighteenth century. One day the clergyman and he met. They went to have a drink, and some conversation. "There is little public news, and what is the private?" enquired the clergyman. "Very little," was the answer. "Have you heard of any thing at all in my parish that is worth relating, or any thing the reverse?" "Nothing." "Then," said the minister, "I have a piece of news for you." "We shall hear it." "Yes ; and it is, that one of my elders has got his nurse in the family way." "Is it possible!" "I understand that it is very true." The poet wondered that he had not heard of it. "How can any thing be known in the country, and I ignorant of it?" said he to himself. They parted. The poet felt chagrined : could not get over it. When he went home, he mentioned to Mrs M'Donald the piece of intelligence communicated by the minister, but could not think who the elder was. She smiled, and told him it was himself,—she being in the family way, and nursing.

Of the changes and troubles of the year 1745, our author had his share. He laid down the ferula and took up the sword ; abandoned his farm, and lost his all, in a cause which to cool reflection must have appeared hopeless. Prince Charles must have esteemed him as a highly accomplished scholar and a soldier, enthusiastic in his cause, so much attached to his interest, but, above all, as a bard. He was the Tyrtæus of his army. His spirit-stirring and soul-inspiring strains roused and inflamed the breasts of his men. His warlike songs manifested how heartily he enlisted in, and how sanguine he was in the success of the undertaking. He received a commission.

He not only changed his profession, and put all he had on the chance of the Prince's success, but he also changed his religion : he became a Roman Catholic. We need not wonder at this, as he was now among his friends and countrymen of that persuasion,—especially as he was given to changes. He was brought up a member of the Church of England ; he was a member of the Church of Scotland when parochial schoolmaster and elder ; and he became a member of the Church of Rome among his own clan and relations. The Mull bard, his constant antagonist, hit upon the true cause of his last change when he says :—

" Cha be 'n creideamh ach am brosgul,
Chuir thu ghiulan crois a phàpa."

After the year 1745, the bard and his elder brother, Angus, a man of a diminutive size, but of extraordinary strength,* escaped the pursuit of their enemies, and concealed

* Some good anecdotes are still current in Moidart about this great little man. He is called Aonghas beag Mac Mhaighstir Alasdair. We deem the following worth preserving :—Colla bân M'Donald, of Barasdale, came one day to a ford of the Lochie which he was meaning to cross, and found Angus sitting on a stone taking off his shoes and stockings preparatory to going over also. The river was considerably swollen at the time, and Barasdale, who was a strong and tall man, accosted Angus as follows :—" My little fellow, keep on your shoes and stockings, as they themselves in the wood and caves of Kinloch-na-nua, above Borradale, in the district of Arisaig. Their local knowledge of the country, and the care and attention of friends, enabled them to elude all search, surmount difficulties, and endure privations to which many fell a sacrifice.

A well-authenticated anecdote of the poet and his brother demonstrate the courage of the soldier and the spirit of the times. One day, as they were removing from one place of concealment to another, Angus, observing that his brother's hair was grey, (the side of his head next the ground, cold and frozen, became quite grey the night before,) contemptuously declared him an old man. "I should not wonder," replied Alexander, "were it not a dwarf that called me 'a poor old man.'" Angus, turning instantly round, dared him to repeat his words. They were in imminent danger. The least noise or indication of persons concealing themselves might have betrayed the place of concealment, and it would not have been safe for them to remain any longer in that part of the country. Regardless of the situation and critical circumstances, the poet could not pass over an occasion of cracking a joke, and the spirit of the manikin was too high to suffer any contempt. The fear, however, of provoking the resentment of the redoubtable hero, made the bard observe silence.

After this eventful period, Alexander McDonald lived poor. He was invited to Edinburgh by Jacobitical friends, residing in the metropolis, to take charge of the education of their children, and where he had a better opportunity of finishing the education of his own. From Edinburgh he returned to the Highlands, being disappointed of the expected encouragement, and took up his residence in Moidart. He and Mr Harrison, the priest, lived not on the best terms, and therefore he removed to Knoydart, and resided at Inveraoi.* He latterly returned into Arisaig, and resided at Sandaig till his death.

will make you wade the better, and make haste come over with me and keep in my wake; I will break the force of the stream, which will enable you to get over with the greater ease." Angus knew him, and thanked him for his goodness; he did also as he was bidden. When they were in the most rapid part of the stream, Barasdale was like to be overpowered by the current, and was for returning; which Angus dared him on his peril to do; and, placing himself between Coll and the stream, dragged him by sheer force to the other side. Then said Angus to him, "You called me 'little fellow' on the opposite side of the water; who, think you, might with greater propriety be called 'little fellow' on this side? Take advice: Never call any man little till you have proved him; and always try to form your estimate of a man's character by something more substantial than mere appearance. Remember, also, great as you are, that had it not been for a greater man than yourself you might have been meat for all the eels in the Lochie."

* He composed a number of songs after this: and one of them, entitled "Iomraich Alasdair á Eigneig do dh' Inner-aoidh," displaying curious traits of the irritable and discontented temper that embittered his life when in Eigneig. While there, he represents all things, animate and inanimate, rocks and thorns, thistles and wasps, ghosts and hobgoblins, combining to torment and persecute him. He speaks of Mr Harrison as follows:—

—————“An fear
Dheanadh as-caoin-eaglais chruaidh orm,
Mu'n cluinneadh a chluais trí chasáid.” *

On the other hand, he represents Inveraoi, in Knoydart, a place like paradise,—full of all good things, blooming with roses and lilies, and flowing with milk and honey,—free of ghosts, hobgoblins, and venomous reptiles. How long he remained in this rocky paradise is not known; but he appears to have lived some time in Morror, as he composed a very elegant song in praise of that country.

* For this song see the Glasgow edition of 1839, page 68.

He died at a good old age, and was gathered to his fathers in Eilean-Fionain, in Loch-Sheil.

Like most men of genius, who make some noise in the world, Mac-Mhaighstir Alasdair has been much lauded on the one side by the party whose cause he espoused, and as much vilified, and, in some instances, falsified, by the other party. Mr Reid, in his book, “Bibliotheca Scoto-Celtica,” seems to have had his information from the last mentioned source. We have taken our account of him from undoubted authorities. We have seen individuals who knew and were intimate with him; and have been acquainted with many of his relatives, and some of his descendants. Let us now proceed to his works. The first given to the public was his “Gaelic and English Vocabulary,” published under the patronage of the Society for propagating Christian knowledge in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland,—a work of acknowledged merit and great usefulness in the schools, and which is very creditable to the author. It appeared in 1741, and was the first Vocabulary or Dictionary of the language ever published in a separate form. It is not alphabetically arranged, but divided into subjects. His poems were first published at Edinburgh, in 1751, and but for their being in Gaelic must certainly have brought on their author the vengeance of the law agents of the crown, for it is scarcely possible to conceive of language more violent and rebellious than that of many of his pieces. The longest and most extraordinary of his poetical productions is his “Birlinn Chlainn Raonuill.” “He has in his ‘Birlinn,’” says Mr Reid, “presented us with a specimen of poetry which, for subject matter, language, harmony, and strength, is almost unequalled in any language.” He must have had the greatest command of the Gaelic language to have composed on a subject that would exhaust the vocables of the most copious.

From 1725 to 1745 he composed his descriptive poems, &c. “Alt-an t-Siucair” is an ignoble stream passing between the farm he occupied and the next to it, which he immortalizes in flowing strains. As a descriptive poem, it is perhaps unequalled by any in the language. Every object which the scene affords is brought to bear upon, and harmonize with, and give effect to the picture with a skill and an adaptation which bespeak the master-mind of the artist. Nowhere does poetry seem more nearly allied to painting than in this admirable production of our bard. His “Oran an t-Samhraidh,” or “Ode to Sumner,” in which he is said to be delightfully redundant in epithets, like the season in its productions which he describes, he composed at Glencribisdale, situated on the south side of Loch-Suainart, in the parish of Morven. He came there on a visit the last day of April; and rising early next morning, and viewing the picturesque scenes around, was powerfully impressed with the varied beauties of nature, displayed in such ample profusion. His “Ode to Winter” is longer, and indicative of even greater powers of genius. The reason why this poem is not so popular as the forementioned is probably because it contains so many recondite terms and allusions. If it were as generally understood it would doubtless be as well appreciated. It was composed in Ardnamurchan, as well as many others in which scenes and events have been described which enable us to point out the locality and relate the circumstances that gave occasion to them. But after leaving Ardnamurchan, a subject presented itself that required all his energy, exertion, and enthusiasm,—and he was not wanting in either of them. His powers, both bodily and mental, were roused to action. His soul was fired with the prospect in view. He invoked the Muse, and she was auspicious. The few that remain of his Jacobite poems and songs are known to excel all other productions of this mighty son of song. The “Lion’s Eulogy” breathes Mars throughout: so does the Jacobite song, sung to the tune of “Waulking o’ the Fauld,” beginning “A chomuinn rioghaile rùnaich.” The song entitled “Am Breacan Uallach” is equally spirited and warlike.

We have good authority for saying that a tenth of these poems and songs have not been given to the world. His son Ronald had them all in manuscript; but having published a collection of Gaelic poetry, and not meeting with much encouragement for a second volume, he allowed his MS. to be destroyed. Dr. M’Eachen, a friend and connexion, had the mortification of seeing leaves of them used for various purposes through the house.

Mr M’Donald could bear no rival. He often selected indifferent subjects to try his own powers. For instance, “The Dairy Maid,” and “The Sugar Brook.” But, while as a poet he merits the highest praise, he is not to be excused for his immoral pieces, which of course are excluded from the “BEAUTIES OF GAELIC POETRY.”

 Cruinn-shnait' an dìù òrduigh
 Ri Bhenus cho tlachdmhor,
 An taitneachdann fheol'or ;
 Ri Dido cho maiseach,
 Cho' snasmhor 's cho corr r'i ;
 'S e thionnsgan dhomh caitheamh,
 'S a laodaich mo rathan, swell,
 A bhàllag ghrinn laghach, a real little Anna
 Chuir na gathan-sa m'fheol-sa.

Dh'iobrainn cridhe mo phearsa,
Air an altain so Mòrag,
Gu'n liubhrainn gun airsneul,
Ag stòlaibh a cás e ;
'S mar gabhadh i tlachd dhiom,
Cha b' fhada sin beò mi.
O 'n t-urram ! an t-urram !
An t-urram ! do Mhòraig !
Cha mhòr nach do chuir i ;
M'fhuil uil' as a h-òrdugh ;
Gu'n d'rug orradh ceum-tuislidh,
Fo ionachd mo chuislean,
Le teas agus murtachd,
O mhoch-thra Di-dòmhnaich.

'S tu reulla nan caillin,
Làn lainnir gun cheò ort ;
Fior chonhnart gun charraid,
Gu'n arral, gun bheòlam ;
Cho min ri cloidh-eala,
'S cho geal ris a ghaillion ;
Do sheang shlios sèamh fallain,
Thug barrachd air mòran.
'S tu ban-rìgh nan ainnir,
Cha sgallais an còmhchradh ;
Ard fòinnidh na d' ghallan,
Gun bhaileart, gun mhòr-chuis ;
Tha thu coimhliont' na d' bhallaibh,
Gu h-innsgineach athlamh ;
Caoin, meachair, farasd,
Gun sharum, gun ròpal.

B'fhearr gu bithinn sgaoilt'
As na còrdamhsa,
Thug mi tuille gaoil
A's bu choir dhomb dhut ;
Gu 'n tig fa dhuine taom,
Gu droch ghnionmhbhios claoen,
Cuireadh e cruaidh-shnuim
Air o'n ghòraich sin :
Ach thug i so mo chiall,
Uile bhnam gu trian ;
Cha'n fhaca mi riamh
Siunnait Mòraig-sa,
Ghoid i bhuum mo chrì,
'S shlad i bhuum mo chìl,
'S cuiridh i 'san chìl,
Fo na fòdaibh mi.

Sinbal.

Mo cheist agus m'ullaidh
De'n chunnaic mi d' shéirs thu,
Le d' bbroilleach geal-thuraid,
Nam mullaichean bòidheach ;
Chia'n fhaigh mi de dh'fhuras,
Na ni mlonaid uat fuireach,
Ge d' tha buarach na dunach

D'am chumail o d' phòsadh,
Do bheul mar an t-sirist,
'S e millis ri phògadh,
Cho dearg ri bhermillian,
Mar bhlileagan ròsan :
Gu'n d'riuu thu mo mhilleadh,
Le d' Chupid d'am bhiordadh,
'S le d'shaighdan caol, biorach,
A rinn cioram fa m' chòta.

Tha mi lan mulaid,
O'n chunnaig mi Mòrag,
Cho trom ri clach-mhuilinn,
Air lunnan d'a seòladh :
Mac-samhail na cruinneig,
Cha'n eil auns a chruinne ;
Mo chrì air a ghuin leat,
O'n chunna' mi t-òr-chul
Na shlamagan bachallach,
Casarlach, còrnach ;
Gu faineagach, cleachdagach,
Dreach-lubach, glòrmhor ;
Na reullagan cearclach ;
Mar usgraichean dreachmhor,
Le fudar sau fhasan
Grian-lasda, ciabh òr-bhuidh.

Do shlios mar an canach ;
Mar chaineal do phògan ;
Ri Pheonix cho aineamh ;
'S glan lainnir do chòta :
Gu mùirnинеach banail,-
Gun àrdan gun stannart ;
'S i corr ann an ceanal,
Gun ainnis gun fhòtus.
Na faicte mo leannan
'S a mhath-shluagh di-dònaich,
B'i coltas an aingeal,
Na h-earradh's na comhradh ;
A pearsa gun talach
Air a gibhtean tha barrachd ;
A'n, Tì dh' fhàg thu gun aineamh,
A riun do thalamh rud bòidheach.

Urlar.

Tha 'n saoghal lan de smaointeannan feolar,
Mamon bi'dh 'g ar claoanadh
Le ghoisnichean ;
A choluiinn bheir oir'n gaol
Ghabhail gu ro fhaoin,
Air striopachas, air craos,
Agus stròthalachd :
Ach cha do chreid mi riamh
Gu'n do sheas air slabh,
Aon te bha cho ciatach
Ri Mòraig-sa ;
A subhailean 's a ciall,
Mar gu'm biodh ban-dia.
Leagh an crì am chluinn
Le cuid òrrachan.

Stubhal.

Ar comhairle na ceilibh orm.
 Ciod eile their n̄ ni mi ?
 Ma'n ribhinn bu tearc ceileireadh,
 A sheinneadh air an fhileig :
 Cha's fhaighearr à lethid eile so,
 Air tir-mor no 'n eileanan ;
 Cho iomlan, 's cho eireachdail.
 Cho teiridneach, 's cho biagail,
 'S ni cinnteach gur ui deireasach
 Mar ceileir so air Síne,
 Mi thuiteam an gaol leath-phairteach,
 'S mo cherenion ga'm dhiobhail ;
 Cha'n eil do bhùrn a Seile sid,
 No shneachd an Cruachan eilideach
 Na bheir aon fhionnachd ciridneach
 Do'n teine th'ann am innsgin.

'Nnar chuala mi ceol leadanach
 An fheadain a bh'aig Mòrag,
 Rinn m'aigneadh damhsa' beadarakh,
 'S e freagra dha le sòlus ;
 Séamh ùrlar, sochraich, leadarra
 A puirt, 's a meoir a breamadaich ;
 B'e sid an òr-fhead eagarr,
 Do bheus nan creaga' móra,
 Ochòin ! am feadan baill-eughach,
 Cruaidh sgal-eughach, glan coilmhor,
 Nam binn-phort stuirteil, trileanta,
 Ri min-dhionachd, bog ro-choain ;
 A màrsal comhnard staideil sin,
 'S e lùghmhor grasmhor caiseamachd ;
 Fior chrulnuath, brig, spalpara,
 Fa clia-lù na bras-chaoin sporsail.

Chinn prois, is stuirt, a's spraichealachd,
 Am ghnuis 'n uair bheachdaich gùamag,
 A seinn an fheadain ionaltaich,
 B'ard iolach ann am chluasan ;
 A snain-cheol, sithe mir-anach ;
 Mear stoirmel, pongail, mionaideach ;
 Na b' fhoirmeile nach sireamaid,
 Air mhiriad ri h-uchd tuasaid.
 O'n buille meoir bu lomarra,
 Gu pronnadh a phuirt uaimbrich !
 'S na h-uilt bu lùghmhor cromainean
 Air thollaibh a chroinn bhuadhaich !
 Gun slaoed-mheoirich, gun ronnaireachd,
 Brisg, tioram, sochdair, colaireachd ;
 Geal-lùdag nan gearra-cholluinnean,
 Na craplù, loinneil, guanach !

Uilar.

Chasgamaid ar n-iot
 Le glan fhion an sin,
 'S bhualamaid gu dian
 Air gloir shiomhalta :
 Tuille cha bhiodh ann,
 Gus an tigeadh àm,

A bbi cluich air làm,
 Air na tiodhan sin :
 Dh'òlaimaid ar dràm,
 Dh'fhògradh uainn gun taing,
 Gach ni chuireadh maill
 Air bhi mlog-chuisseach ;
 Maighdean nan ciabhs fann,
 Shniambhanach nan clann ;
 Mala chaol, dhonn, cham,
 Channach, fhinealta.

An crulnuath.

Mo cheann tha lùn de sheilleanaibh
 O dheilich mi ri d'bhriodal ;
 Mo shròn tha stoipt' à dh-elebor
 Na deil, le teine dimbis ;
 Mo shuilean tha cho deireasach,
 Nach faic mi gnè gun telesgop,
 'S ge d'bhiodh meudach beinn' ann,
 'S ann theirinn gur h-e frid i.
 Dh'halbh mo cheudsaidh còrporra
 Gu docharach le bruadar,
 'N uair shaoil mi fortan thor chait domh,
 'S mi'm thorroichim air mo chluasaig :
 Air dùsgadh as a chaithream sin
 Cha d'fhuair mi ach aon fhaileas d'i,
 An ionad na maoin bearraideach
 A mheal mi gu seachd uairean.

Ach, ciod thug mi gu glan fhaireachadh,
 Ach carachadh rinn cluanag :
 'S co so, o thus, bha Mhòrag ann,
 Ach Síne an òr-fhuiti chuachaich ;
 'Nuair thûr i gu'n do lagaich mi,
 'S gu feumainn rag chuir stalcaidh ann,
 Gu'n d'rinn i draoidheachd-chadail domh,
 Rinn cruaidh fior rag de m luaidhe.
 Bha cleasachd-sa cho innealta,
 'S cho innleachdach ma'n cuairt d'i,
 Nach faodainn fhùn thaobh sì-mhàltachd,
 Gun dlighe erion thoirt uam dñ'i ;
 Gu'n thiunndaidh mi gu h-ordail r'i ;
 'S gu'n shaol mi gu'm b'i Mòrag i ;
 Gun d'aisig mi mo phogan dù,
 'S cha robb d'a coir dad uaipe.

*Note.—*This is one of the finest productions of the Celtic muse. The bard appears to have been really enamoured, and he pours forth his elegant, rapid, and impassioned strains in a torrent of poetry which has never been equalled by any of his contemporaries. Mòrag was a common country girl; and it is said that the poet's wife became jealous of her rival. The bard had talked of the marriage ties with the greatest contempt, and regretted that he was fettered with the bonds of wedlock. This raised a storm, and the bard sacrificed the mistress to appease the wife, and composed his "Mi-mholadh." Here is an instance of his disregard to truth and common decency, as well as of moral and poetical justice. As the praise was exaggerated and extravagant, the censure was cruel, unmanly, and undeserved. He first raised the object of his admiration to the skies, with the most hyperbolical praise—and then, without any provocation, he suddenly wheels round and overwhelms his goddess with the most slanderous, foul-mouthed and unfeeling abuse. His "Mi-mholadh Mòraig" is printed in the Glasgow complete edition of his works of 1839.

* We have heard it broadly asserted, that the commencing stanza of this song is a mere translation of the first stanza of a certain song in "Ramsay's Tea Table Miscellany." That there is a general similarity between these two stanzas, is admitted at once; and that M'Donald may have seen the "Miscellany," and also read the stanza in question, is likewise conceded. But that the similarity between the two is such as to warrant the conclusion that he must have seen it, we cannot allow. As to its being a translation, if our opinion were asked, we would say at once "It is not." But we subjoin the lines from the "Miscellany," that the reader may have the better opportunity of judging :—

" As early I wak'd,
 On the first of sweet May,
 Beneath a steep mountain,
 Beside a clear fountain,
 I heard a grave lute
 Soft melody play,
 Whilst the echo resounded
 The dolorous lay."

Note.—The poet here uses a redundancy of adjectives, epithets and alliterations, with more pedantry than becomes pastoral poetry: but, with all its faults, the poem contains many beautiful passages. The address to the primrose is peculiarly elegant and happy—the description of the love of the grouse is also very good—and the address to the black cock is lively and graphic, though it ends with an unlucky and far-fetched conceit.

*Note.—This address to the Highland clans is a stately spirit-stirring martial poem, where the bard describes the various Jacobite clans coming forward in warlike array to place Charles on the throne, and leave the Hanoverians under his feet. The satirist (Aireach Mhuile) represents the poet travelling through the country to excite the Highlanders to arms, and it is probable that this song was composed on that occasion. It was well calculated to rouse the warlike clans to the approaching conflict.*

Cho luath ri each na leum !

'S aol is grunn d'a dhailibh,

'M bi guilbneich 's tràigh-gheoidh òg ;
An Coire coileachach, lan-damhach,
'S moch, 's is an-moch spòrs ;
'S tìm dhomh sgur d' an àireamh,
An Coire 's fàsor pòr
Gu h-innseach, doireach, blàrach,
'S imeacach, càiseach bò !

Note.—This piece is an animated and faithful description of a beautiful scene in the country, on a summer morning. The bard walks abroad and sees the dew glittering on every leaf and flower—the birds warbling their songs—the animals grazing, and the bees collecting their stores—the fishes are leaping out of the water, and all nature rejoicing in the return of spring, or the luxuriance of summer! The very rivulet seems to partake of the common joy, and murmurs a more agreeable sound—the cows low aloud, and the calves answer responsive—while the dairy-maid is busily engaged at her task. The ground is bespangled with flowers of richer hues than the most costly gems. The horses gather together in groups to drink of the streamlet, and the kids are sporting and dancing about its banks. The ships, with all their white sails bent to the gentle breeze, are passing slowly along the Sound of Mull. The poet selects the most natural, lively, and agreeable images in the rural scene. All good judges admit that there is not a descriptive poem, in Gaelic or English, fit to be compared with this exquisite production.

ORAN LUAIGHE NO FUCAIDH.

Agus ho Mhorag, &c.

Greas thairis le d' mhnathan luaigne,
'S theid na gruagaichean-sa mar riu.
Agus ho Mhorag, &c.

Note.—This song has been always highly popular, and is certainly the most spirited and elegant of all our Jacobite songs. Charles is represented under the similitude of Mòrag—a young girl with flowing locks of yellow hair waving on her shoulders. She had gone away over the seas, and the bard invokes her to return with a party of maidens (i.e. soldiers) to dress the red cloth, in other words, to beat the English red coats. The allegory is kept with elegance and spirit, and the poet introduces himself as one who had followed Mòrag in lands known and unknown, and was still ready to follow her over the world if required.

TEARLACH MAC SHEUMAIS.

AIR FONN—“Black Joch.”

O ! Tearlaich mbic Sheumais,
 Mhic Sheumais, mhic Thearlaich,
 Leat shiubhlainn gu h-eutrom,
 N am èubhachd 'bhi mìarsal,
 'S cha b' ann leis a phlàigh ud,
 A tharmaich o 'n mhui.
 Bheireadh creideamh a's reusan
 Oirn éiridh mar b' àbhaist,
 Leis an ailleanan cheutach,
 'Shliochd éifeachdach Bhàincho ;
 Mo ghràdh a ghruaidh àluinn,
 A dhearsadh orm stùirt.
 Thu 'g iomachd gu sùrdail,
 Air tùs a bhataili,
 Cha fhrosainn an driùchda,
 'S mi dlù air do shàilean ;
 Mi eadar an talamh
 'S an t-adhar a seòladh,
 Air iteig le aighean,
 Misg-chath, agus shòlais ;
 'S caismeachd phìob' mòra,
 Bras-shròiceadh am puirt.

O 'n eibhinneachd ghìbrmhòr,
 An t-sòlais a b' airde !
 G' ar lònadh do spionadh,
 Air slinneinibh Thearlaich,
 Gu 'n calcadh tu àrdan
 An càileachd ar cuirp ;
 Do làthaireachd mhòr-chuisseach,
 Dh-fhògradh gach faillinn,
 Gu 'n tiuntadh tu fèadar
 Gach feola gu stàllinn,
 'Nuair sheal'maid gu sunndach,
 Air fabhra do rùisg.
 Gu gnùis torrach de chruadal,
 De dh' uaisle, 's de nàire,
 Nach taisícheadh fuathas,
 Ro' luaidhe do nàmhaid ;
 'S mar deanadh fir Shasquinn
 Do mhealladh, 's do thrèigsinn,
 Bhiodh an crùn air a spaladh,
 Le d' thapadh air Séurlas,
 A dh-aindeoin na béis.
 Leis an d' érich na h-uile.

Gu 'm b' fhoirmeil leam tòman
 Na 'n òrghanan àluinn !
 'S tein'-éibhinn a lasadh
 Gu bras-gheal air sràidibh !
 'S na croisibh ri h àrd-ghaoir,
 Mhòir Thearlaich ar Prions !

Gach uinneag le foineal
 A boisgeadh le dearsadh,
 Le solus nan coillean,
 'S deas mhaighdeann d'an smàladh ;
 'S gach ni mar a b' araidh.
 'G cuir fàilt' air le puimp !
 Na canoin ri bùirich,
 'S iad a' stàradh an fhàilidh,
 A' cuir crith air gach dùthach
 Le muiseag nan Gàel ;
 Agus sinne gu lù'-chleasach,
 Muirneach lan àrdain,
 Am marsail gu miùinte,
 Ard-shundach m' a shailean—
 'S gann bha cudrom 's gach fear dhuinn,
 Trì chairsteil a phuinnt !

MO BHO BUG AND DRAM.

AIR FONN—“The bucket you want.”

LUINNEAG.

Ho rò mo bhobug an dràm,
Hò rì mo bhobug an dràm,
Hò rò mo bhobug an dràm,
*'S e chuireadh an sòdan na m' cheann.**

FHEARABH ta'r suidhe ma 'n bhòrd,
 Le 'r glaineachean cridheil n-'ar dòrn,
 Na leanamaid ruidhinn air òl,
 Ma mill sinn ar bruidhinn le bòl.

Ho ro mo, &c.

Na tostachan sigeanta fial,
 'Ga'n aiseag gu ruige mo bhial ;
 Bu mhireagach stuigeadh, a's triall,
 Am mìarsal le ciogaitl tró' m' chliabh.

Ho ro mo, &c.

* The above chorus is not by Macdonald—it belongs to an old Uist song. Here are two stanzas of the original :—

Cha téid mi'n taigh-dsd' tha sud thall,
 Cha'n fliach an sinéabhar a th' ann,
 Ge d' olainn am buideal le strann,
 Gu'n giulan mo cholainn mo cheann.
Ho rò mo, &c.

Thuir cailleach cho libeasd' sa bh' ann,
 'Nuair fhuar i blas air an dràm :—
 “ O ! tairnnibh 'ur casan a chlann,
 'S bheir mise mo char air an damhs.”
Ho rò mo, &c.

'S tu chuireadh an cuireid' san t-sluagh,
'N am cogaidh ri aodainn nan ruag,
Gun olamaid sgailc dhliot gu luath,
Ma sguidseainaid slacain a truaill'.

Ho ro mo, &c.

'S tu dh' fhagadh sinn tapaithd san tòir,
'N am tarruinn nan glas-lann ri sròin,
'Nuair thilge na breacain de 'n t-slògh,
'S á truaill, bheirt a mach claidhe mòr.

Ho ro mo, &c.

Ge tu mo leamain glan ùr,
Cha phòg mi gu diliùm thu 'n cùil ;
Ach phògáinn, a's dheodhlann thu rùin,
Nuair thig thu 's Jacobus na d' ghnùis :

Ho ro mo, &c.

An t-ainm sin is fearr ata ann,
Ainn Sheumais a chuir air do cheann ;
'S e thogadh an sògan fo m' chainnt,
'S a dh-fhagadh gu blasda mo dhràm.

Ho ro mo, &c.

Fadamaid teine beag shòis,
Na lasraichean ciuin a ni grios,
A gharas ar claegeann 's ar cri',
'Sa dh-fhògras ar n'airteal, 's ar sgòs.

Ho ro mo, &c.

Gur tu mo ghlaimeag ghilan lom,
Mo leannan is cannaiche fonn ;
Ged rinneadh thu dh' fheamain nan tonn,
Gur mòr tha do cheanal na d' chòm.

Ho ro mo, &c.

O fair a ghaoil channaich do phòg,
Leig clannadh d' a t-anail fo' m' shròin,
Gur cubhraidh leam fannal do bheoil,
No tùis agus mire na h-Eòrp.

Ho ro mo, &c.

O aisig a ghlaine do phòg !
Cuir speirid n' ar teangaiddh gu cùl ;
An loc-shlainte bheannachite chòir,
A leasachies cnàmhlan a's feoil !

Ho ro mo, &c.

M A R B H R A N N

DO PHEATA CALUMAN, A MHARBHADH LE ABHAG.

'S túrsach mo sgeul ri luaidh,
'S gun chàch gha d' chaoidh,
Ma bhàis an flir bu leanabail' tuar,
'S dà mheanbh ga chaoidh.

'S oil leam bàs a Cholaim chaoimh,
Nach b' anagrach gnàs,
A thuiteam le madadh d'a 'm bèus,
Dòran nan càrn.
'S tu 's truagh linn de bhàs nan ian ;
Mo chràdh nach bed,
Fhir a b' iteagach, miotagach triall,
Ge bu mheirbh do threòir ;
'B' fheumail' do Noah na cùch,
'N am bhàrcadh nan stuadh,
Ba tu 'n teachdair' gun seacharan d' à,
'Nuair thráigh an cuan ;
A dh' idreachdann do dh-fhalbh an tuil,
Litir gach fear ;
Dùghall is Colum gu'n chuir
Deagh Noah thar lear ;
Ach chaidh Dùghall air seacharan cuain,
'S cha do phill e riàmh ;
Ach phill Colum le iteagaich luath,
'S a fhreagra na bhial.
Air thùs, cha d' fhuair e ionad d' a bhonn
An seasadh e ann,
Gus do thiomairc dile nan tonn,
Thar mullach nam beann ;
'S an sin, a litir-san leugh an duine bha glic,
Gu 'n thiomairc a bhailc,
'S gu'm faigheadh a mhuirichinn, cobhair na'n
Agus fuasgladh na 'n aire, [teire,
Le neart cha spùilte do nead,
Ge do thigte dha d' shlad ;
Bhiodh do chaisteal fo bhearradh nan creag,
Ann an dainghnichibh rag ;
Bha do mhodh siolaich air leath 'bho chàch,
Cha togradh tu suas,
Ach a durraghail an taca ri d' ghràdh,
'S a cuir cagair 'n a cluas,
Cha do chuir thu duil ann airgead no spréidh,
No feàsd am biodh sùgh,
Ach spioladh, a's criomadh an t-sìl le d' bhèul ;
'S ag òl a bhùirn ;
Aodach, no anart, sioda, no sròl,
Cha cheannalcheadh tu 'm bùth ;
Bhiodh t-eideadh de mhìn-iteacha gorm,
Air nach drùidheadh an driùchd ;
Cha do ghabh thu riaghaidh no creud,
A ghuidh nan dùl ;
Giheadh, cha 'n eil t-anam am péin
O chaidh tu 'null,
Cha 'n e gun chiste no anart
Bhi comhdach do chrè,
Fo lic anns an ùir,
Tha mise ge cruaidh e, 'g acain gu léir,
Ach do thuitean le cù.

Note.—This is the best of his smaller pieces, although it contains more of sparkling conceit than tenderness or pathos. It is probable that it was composed before he became a member of the Church of Rome, as he says that the pigeon never repeated paternoster or creed.

M O L A D H

A CHAIM-BEULAICH DHUIBH.

Ge beag orts' an Caim-beulach dubh,
 Gur toigh leams' an Caim-beulach dubh ;
 Biadh e dubh, no geal, no gris-fhionn,
 Gràdh mo chri-s' an Caim-beulach dubh.
 Ge h-ainnisgeach air an t-seòrs' thu ,
 Na 'm b' aithne dhomsa do phòrsa,
 Chuirinn moran fios do 'n dò-bheirt,
 'N an dubh dhùlaintibh fhòtusach, tiugh.

'Suilean cuirpt' bh' ann an droch chrùth,
 A fhuair oilbheim do 'n shear gheal-dhubh,
 Do 'n dream oirdheire 's foirmile fuil ;
 'S duilich tolg a chuir 'n a chruaidh stuth.
 'S tric le madraidi bhi ri dealunn,
 An òidhche reòt' ris a' ghealaich ;
 B' ionann sin, 's eiseachd t-ealaidh,
 Air clù geal a Chaim-beulaich dhuibh.

'S cù mar fhuair thu dh' aodann no ghnuis,
 Cineadh uasail gun mhodh, gun tlus ?
 Fhior dearc-luachrach chinnoch a lus ;
 Ma t-aoir bhaclich tachdam thu bluic.
 Sgiùrsaidh mi gu gu 'm bi thu marbh thu ;
 Cha bhi ach mo theang' de dh'arm riut ;
 A rag-mheirlich, bhradaich, a gharbhlaich,
 'S ioma gharbh-mhart dh'fheann thu le d'chuic.

Do'n t-siol chruithneachd chuireadh gu tiugh ;
 Cha b' e 'n fhìdeag, no 'n coirce dubh,
 Ach por prìseil, 's ro sgoilteach cnr,
 Feadh gach rioghachd air tìr, 's air muir.
 Gur iongantach leam, a dhuine,
 Mar robh mearan ort air tuinneadh,
 Ciod man do bhuin thu do 'n urr' ad,
 Curaidh ullamh, 's cuireideach fuil ?

Dream nan geur-lann gu renbadh cuirp,
 Cruaidh 'g a feachainn air beulamh trùp ;
 S' math 's is gleust' iad gu bualadh phluic,
 'N am retrèatd dh' éibheach le stuit.
 Cha "bhreac breun-loin" idir Cailean,
 Ach do dh' fhion-fhuil ard Mhic-Cailein ;
 Teughlach ùiseil Iarla-Bhealaich ;
 'S buadhach caithream ri uchd an truid !

'S cinnteach thiotadh ghelbh thu do mhurt,
 Ma t-aoir chiotaich, mhiosginnich churt ;
 Ge do dh' eirich gu robh ort stuit,
 Bi'dh a bhiodag rideadh do chuirp.
 Claeann gun eanachainn, gun mheadrach,
 Sa faodadh na h-iolairean neadadh ;
 Cia mar fhuair thu ghnùis do sgiadar,
 Ghluasad idir an ionad puirt ?

Eisg bhochd, chearbàich, seargaidh mi tur,
 Do theanga chealgach a chearbaire dhuibh,
 Rinn an t-searbhadh gun chair' a muigh ;
 Asad dh' earbinn " cealgaireachd cruidh."
 Cha fhior-ragair ge d' bhiodh fearg air
 Do 'n d' rinn thus' a dhuij' an t-searbhadh ;
 Ach òg faighidneach gun carra-ghloir ;
 Lan do dh' fearra-ghniomh, dhearbh e le ghuin.

Bha thu mi-mhoil a toirt dh'a guth ;
 Cràg a chobhair gu màgradh gruth ;
 Leòbas odhar a ghlaimeadh suth,
 Deis dh'a leaghadh, 's e ruidh na shruth.
 Cha bu bheudagan gu sàbaid
 Ach fior leoghan stolda, staideil,
 Do 'n d' rium us' an t-oran pràbach ;
 Ach fior ghaisgeach ; 's am blàr 'ga chur.

Sparram cinnteach ort a għlas-ghuib ;
 Losgadh peircill, corcadh, a's cuip
 Air son ascaoin chealgach do bhuis ;
 B' fhearr gu 'm bithinn-sa fagasg dhut.
 Ge do bhiodh tu caineadh ghàel,
 Annus gach siorramachd a dh' àirinn,
 Seachainn muinntir Earra-ghàel,
 'S gun a Cheblaidh fabharach dhut.

'S maир a dh' èireadh ri siol an tuire,
 Gasraidi ghleànsda nach èaradh cluich ;
 Cha bu bhèus dhaibh bhi ris a mhurt,
 Ach cath tràun, a's cothrom r' an uchd'.
 Ge beag ort-sa mile cuairt e,
 'S ioma sonu aigeannatich ullach,
 Eadar Asainn, 's Cluaigh nan luath-long,
 A 's trom luaigh air Caim-beulach dubh.

Suil na seòca, 's ro bheòchail cnr,
 An ceann rò-bhinn nam bachalag dubh ;
 Cha b' i " fròg-shuil, rògair a chruidh ;"
 Fior fhiamh seoid air còr ann an sult.
 'S geal 's a dearg do leac, a's t-aogas,
 Ge thubhuit iad " peirceall caol riut ;"
 Cha b' ionann as sligeas-gaoisneach,
 'S fiasag-p**-laogh ort nach eil tiugh.

'S ge d'reachadh tu 's na spèuraibh
 Chum a Chaim-beulach dhuibh eisgeadh,
 Tuitidh tusa mar a bhéisteag,
 'N a t-ionad féin am buachar mairt.
 Thusu bhreinen, magaran cac ;
 E-san għlè-ghlan lomlan do thlachd ;
 Thusa d'héistinn 's muig ort air āt,
 Mar bu bhéus do dhòran no chāt.

Aodann craineig, fharr-aodann tuirc ;
 Com a chnaimh-fhi'ch, 's nadur na muic ;
 Beul mhic-lamhaich, 's fàileadh a bhrui ;
 Spàgan clàrach ; sailean nan cùsp'.

De dh' sìrlichean aoiridh bàrdail,
 'Toiseam o d' bhathais, gu d' shàil thu ;
 'S feannam do leathar a thràill dhiot,
 Chioun gu'n chàin'thùn Caim-beulach dubh.

Cha 'n fhear sgipi thus' ach fior ghlug ;
 'S beart gun teagamh bi'dh tu fo bhruid ;
 T-iasag failidh, t-fhalt, a's do ruisg ;
 Tuitidh t-fhaiclan 's falbhaidh do thuigs'.
 'S coltach nach b' aithne dhut mise,
 'Nuair a bhí mi so gun fhios dut ;
 Na 'm b' eol, cha ghlacadh tu mhisneach,
 Ròine riobadh as an fhear dhubb.

Note.—The Black Campbell was a cattle-lifter, and stole some cows from M'Lean of Lochbuy. For this M'Lean's aireach, or herdsman, composed the satire. At the end of the song he calls on all the bards to join him in lashing the thief. When M'Donald heard this he composed his song in praise of Campbell and against the satirist—with-out any cause of love or hatred to either party. It is only an exercise of his wit; but it shows his usual talents and powers of invention, and felicity of language. After that the herdsman composed a very severe satire on M'Donald himself. We give a few verses of the satire on Campbell as a specimen :—

" An Caim-beulach dubh à Cinn-tàile,
 Iar-oghdh mhortair 's ogha 'mheirlich ;
 Am Braid-Alban fhuar e àrach,
 Siol na ceigle 's meirleach a chruidh.

IAIN MAC CODRUM.

JOHN M'CODRUM,* the North Uist bard, commonly called Iain Mac Fhearchuir, was contemporary with the celebrated Alexander M'Donald. He was bard to Sir James Macdonald, who died at Rome. The occasion of his obtaining this situation was as follows :—He made a satirical piece on all the tailors of the Long Island, at which they were so exasperated that they would not work for him on any account. One consequence of this was, that John soon became a literal tatterdemalion. Sir James meeting him one day, inquired the reason of his being thus clad. John explained. Sir James desired him to repeat the verses—which he did ; and the piece was so much to Sir James's liking, that John was forthwith promoted to be his bard, and obtained free lands on his estate in North Uist. In a letter from Sir James Maedonald to Dr Blair of Edinburgh, relating to the poems of Ossian, dated Isle of Skye, 10th October, 1763, we find Sir James speaking as follows of Mac Codrum :—“ The few bards that are left among us, repeat only detached pieces of these poems. I have often heard and understood them, particularly from one man called John Mac Codrum, who lives on my estate, in North Uist. I have heard him repeat, for hours together, poems which seemed to me to be the same with Macpherson's translations.”

The first of M'Codrum's compositions was a severe and scurrilous satire. Being young, and unnoticed, he was neglected to be invited to a wedding to which he considered he had as good a right to be bidden as others. He was very indignant, and gave vent to his feelings in the most severe invectives. He had the prudence to conceal his name. The wedding party being minutely characterized, several of them lampooned, and held up to derision, the poem gave great offence to some of those concerned. Although the author was concealed, the satire could not be suppressed. Several individuals were suspected, while the real author enjoyed the pleasure of knowing himself to be at the same time a person of some consideration, and amply revenged for the neglect of those who should have acknowledged it. His father only knew him to be the author. He was alone about the farm : John was in the barn, whither his parent went, as he could hear no one thrashing; but, on approaching nearer, he heard his son rehearsing his poem. He admonished him to attend more to his work than to idle songs, and left him, without thinking of the verses he had heard till the fame of the satire was spread abroad, and a noise was made about it throughout the country. The verses then recurred to his mind, and he had no doubt of the real author. He spoke to John most seriously in private. He was himself a pious and a respectable man, and was much affected at the thought that any of his family should disgrace his fair reputation. He was sensible of the ill-will and hatred that John would incur were he known to be the author; and he, moreover, disapproved of the license taken with the characters of individuals. The young poet promised him that he would give him no more occasion of regret on that score; and he kept his word. Respect for his parent's authority restrained him; for he composed no more of the kind while his father lived, nor any so severe afterwards. He must have had great command over himself, as well as submission to the will of a parent. It is no easy task for a young author, while hearing his compositions recited and applauded, not to indicate the interest which he feels. Although unnoticed and unknown, while feeling all the flattering suggestions which popularity must have incited within him, yet a revered parent's authority checked the progress of the young aspirant in the career of fame.

After his father's death, M'Codrum concealed no longer the flame which he had been smothering in his breast. His name became known, and he was acknowledged to be the most famous bard in the Long Island since the time of Neil M'Vurich, the family bard of Clanronald. John M'Codrum was, like most of the bards, indolent. The activity of the body, and the exertion of mental qualities, go not always together. An anecdote will better illustrate this part of his character than any description we can give:—A gentleman sent for his neighbours to assist in draining a lake. The country people assembled in numbers; and, exerting themselves, soon finished the work, much sooner than the poet had expected they would have done: he just came in time to see the last of it. The gentleman was determined to punish him for his sluggish and indifferent behaviour. When he ordered some provisions and a cask of whisky for the people, he told them to sit down, and called on the poet to act as chaplain, and ask a blessing. The bard was not regarded as a man of grace. All were attentive, thinking him for once out of place. He, however, spoke in a most reverential manner—his grace was brief and pithy, couched in verse, and was longer remembered than the sumptuous repast.+ While he expressed gratitude to the bestower of all good gifts, he turned the operations of the day into ridicule.

When Mr M'Pherson was collecting "Ossian's Poems," he landed at Lochmady, and proceeded across the moor to Benbecula, the seat of the younger Clanronald. On his way thither he fell in with a man, whom he afterwards ascertained to have been Mac Codrum, the poet: M'Pherson asked him the question, "Am beil dad agad air an Fhéinn?" by which he meant to inquire whether or not he knew any of the poems of Ossian relative to the Fingalians, but that the terms in which the question was asked, strictly import whether or not the Fingalians owed him anything, and Mac Codrum,

"Ma's math fhàladh, 's fein a bhlas;

"Ma bha e mar so will gur leis;

"Bu mhor am bend a leigeadh as." M'Codrum's grace.

being a man of humour, took advantage of the incorrectness or inelegance of the Gaelic in which the question was put, answered as follows:—Cha'n eil, is ged do bhitheadh cha ruiginn a leas iarraidh nis, i.e. No; and should I, it is long since proscribed; which sally of Mac Codrum's wit seemed to have hurt M'Pherson's feelings, for he cut short the conversation and proceeded to Benbecula.

We will not attempt to select any parts of the poems of this author. All indicate the master-hand of the performer. One trait is striking in his character as a poet—his disposition to satire. He is perhaps the first satirist of the modern Gaelic poets. M'Donald and M'Intyre attacked like men determined to take a stronghold by open force, in defiance of all resistance: Mac Codrum held up the object of his animadversion in a light that exposed him to ridicule and contempt, and he made others his judges.

His fame as a poet and wit soon spread, and so delighted Alexander M'Donald that he determined to visit him. On meeting Mac Codrum a few yards from his own door, the visitor, naturally enough, inquired “An aithne dhut Iain Mac Codrum?” “S aithne gu ro mhath,” replied John. “Am beil fhios agad am bheil e'stigh?” was M'Donald's next question, to which the facetious bard answered with an arch smile, “Mu ta bha e'stigh nuair a bha mise 's cha drinn mi ach tighinn amach.” M'Donald, yet ignorant that he was speaking to the individual about whom he was inquiring, proceeded to say, “Caithidh mi' n oidhche nochd mar-ris, ma's abhaist aoidhean a bhi aiga.” “Tha mi creidsin,” replied the witty John, “nach bi e falamh dhù sin cuideachd mu bhios na clearan a breith (uibhean).”*

In purity and elegance of language Mac Codrum comes nearest to Macdonald, who appears to have been his model. Some of his pieces appear to us as servile copies of great originals. When he chooses to think and compose for himself, he appears to more advantage; witty, ingenuous, and original. His satire on “Douglas Bain's Bagpipe” is a masterpiece of its kind; full of wit and humour, without the filth and servility that disgrace the satires of Macdonald and other Keltic poets. His poems on “Old Age” and “Whiskey” are excellent. They first appeared in Macdonald's volume, without the author's name; but Mac Codrum's countrymen have claimed them for him. He never published any thing of his own, and many of his poems are now lost. In his days the only poets who ventured to send their works to the press were Macdonald and Macintyre; and, it is probable, that their great fame prevented our author from entering the lists with such formidable competitors.

* Mac Codrum's skill in the Gaelic was exquisite, and he was in the practice of playing on words of doubtful or double meaning, when used by others. He was once on a voyage, and the boat put into Tobermory, in the island of Mull, when the inhabitants, as usual, gathered on the shore to learn from whence the strangers came. One of them asked the crew, “Cia as a thug sibh an t-icmrudh?” “As na gairdeanan,” answered the bard. Another asked, “An ann bho thuath a hainig' ribh?” to which Mac Codrum again rejoined, “pàirt bho thuath a's pàirt bho thighearnan.”

“Co's airdle air a bhàta?” — “an crann.” “Co toisim ich?” — “an ball toisach.” “Co tha go niagladh?” — “an Sheas.”

D I - M O L A D H

PIOB' DHOMHNUILL BHAIN.

A'chainnt a thuit Iain
 Gu'n labhair e cearr i,
 'S feudar dhuinn àicheadh
 Is páidheadh d'a cinn.
 Dh-fhag e Mac-Cruimein,
 Clann-Duiliidh a's Tearlach ;
 Is Dòmhnullan Bàn
 A tharruinn gu prìs.
 Orm is beag mòran sgeig,
 Agus bleid chòmhraids,
 Thu labhairt na h-urrad
 'S nach b'urrainn thu chòmhdaich,
 Ach pilleadh gu stòlda
 Far 'n do thòisich thu dian.

An eul' thu cia 'n t-urram
 An taobh-sa do Lunnuinn?
 Air na plobairean uile
 B'e Mac-Cruimein an righ :

Le pongannan àluinn
 A b'fonnaire failte,
 Thàirrneadh 'an càileachd
 Gu slàinte fear tinn.
 Caismeachd bhinn, 's i bras dian,
 Ni tais' a's fiamh fhògradh ;
 Gaisg' agus crudaal,
 Tha buaidh air an bònsich,
 Muim usal nan Leòdach,
 Ga spreotadh le spìd.

A' bhàirisgeach spòrsail
 Bh' aig Tearlach 'ga pògadh,
 An t-àilleagan ceòlar,
 Is bòiche guth cinn.
 Tha na Gàëil cho déigheil
 Air a mhàran aic éisdeachd,
 'S na tha'nn 'an Dun-eideann
 A luchd beurl' air an ti.
 Breac nan dual is neartmhor fuaime,
 Bras an ruaig nàmhaid,
 Leis 'm bu cheòl leadurra,
 Feadannan spòineach,
 Luchd dheiseachan màdar
 Bhi cridh' air droch dhiol.

Nan cuinnt' ann am Muile
 Mar dh-fhàg thu Clann-Duili,
 Cha b'fluilear leo t-fhuilt
 Bhi air mulach do chinn.
 'S i bu ghreadanta dealachainn
 Air deas làimh na h-armachd ;
 A' breamadh nan garbh-phort,
 Bu shearbh a dol sìos.

Creach nach gann, sibh gun cheann,
 Fo bhruid theann Sheòrais ;
 Luchd nam beul fiara
 'Gar pianadh 's 'gar flograth ;
 Rinn iad le foirneart
 Bhur còir a bhuin dibh.

Cha tug thu taing idir
 Do bhriogardaich Thearlaich,
 Mach o fhear bhàile
 Bhi ghnà air a thi.
 Mhol thu ' chorr' ghliogach
 Nach dligeadh de bhàidse,
 Ach deannan beag gràin,
 No mèm de dhroch shil.
 Shaoil thu suas maoin gun ghruaim,
 Craobh nam buadh ceòlmhor,
 Chuireadh fonn fo na creagan
 Le breabadaich mheoirean ;
 'S nach fuilgeadh òdrùchain !
 A thogail a cinn.

Cha'n fhaigh a' chùis-bhùirt ud
 Talla 'm bi mùirn,

Ach àth air a mùchadh
Le dùdan 's le sùith.
Cha bbi cathair aig Dòmhnull
'S cha 'n éirich e cònard,
Ach suidh' air an t-sòrn
Agus sòpag ri dhruim.

Céil thà cho sgreataidh
Rì sgreadal nan ròcas,
No iseanañ òga

Nach gasta chùis-bbùrt'
A lhi cneatraighe air ùrlar
Gun phronnadh air lùtha
Gun siubhlachaean grinn,
A' sparradh od-ròch-ain
A'n earball od-ròch-ain
A' sparradh od-ròch-ain
An tòn od-ro-bhì.
Màl' caol càm le thaosg chraann,
Gaoth mar ghreann reòta,
Tro na tuill fhiara
Nach diònaich na meoirean,
Nach tuigear air dòigh
Ach "òth-heòin" 's "òth-hì !"

Diùdhadh nam fiùidhidh
Bha aig Tubal Cain,
'Nuair sheinn e puirt Ghàelic
'S a dh'alaich e phìob.
Bha i tamull fo 'n uisge
'Nuair dhruidheadh an àircé.
Thachair dh'a cnàmhadh
Fo uisge 's fo ghaoith.
Thàinig smug agus dus
Anns na duis bhreòtach,
Iomadach drochaid
G'a stopadh na sgòrnan.
Od-ròch-ain, gun brigh.

Bha i seal uair
Aig Maol Ruainidh O' Dornan,*

Thar ordnugh na fuinn.
Bha i treis aig Mac-Bheatais
A sheinneadh na dàin,
'Nar theirig a' chlàrsach
'S a dh'fhàillig a prìs.
Shéid Balàam 'na màla
Osna chràmh chrònaind.
Shearg i le tabhann
Seachd cathan nam fiantan.

'S i lagaich a' chiad uair
Neart Dhìarmaid a's Ghuill.

Turruraich an dòlais,
Bha greis aig Iain òg dh'i.
Chosg i ribheidean còulach
Na chòmhnhadh le nì.
Bha i corr is seachd bliadhua
'Na h-atharais-bhialain
Aig Mac-Eachuinn 'ga riasladh
Air sliabh Chnoc-an-lìn.

An fhiudhidh shean nach dùisg gean,
Ghnùis nach glan còmhach :
'S maирg dha 'n bu leanan
A' chranndalach dhòinidh.
Chàite gràn eòrna
Leis na dh-fhognadh dh'i ghaoith.

Mu'n cuirear fo h-inneal
Corra-bhineach na glaodhaich,
'S inneach air aodach
Na dh-fheumas i shnàth.
Cha bheag a' chuis dhéistinn
Bhi 'g cùsdeachd a gàoraich ;
Dhianadh i aognaidh
An taobh a bhiodh blàth.
Riasladh phort, sgriachail dhos,
Fhi ri droch shaothair,
Bheir i chiad éubha
'N àm séideadh a gaoithe,
Mar ronncan bà caoile
'S i faotainn a' bhàis.

Tha'n iunsramaid ghlagach
Air a lobhadh na craiceann ;
Cha'n fluirich i 'n altan
Gun chearcall g'a tèadh'.
'S seirbh' iù na'n gabhan
Ri tabhann a crùnluth,
Tròmpaid a dhùisgeadh
Gach Iùdas fhuaire bàs.
Mar chòm geur'ich 'ga chreuchdad
Shéideadh làn gaoithe,
Turraich nach urra' mi
Siunnait da innseadh,
Ach rodain ri sianail
No sgjamail laoigh òig.

Com caithe na curra
Is tachdadh 'na muineal,
Meoir traiste gun fhurus
Cur triullin 'an dàn,
Sheinneadh a brollaich
Ri solus an eòlain,

An còmhnuidl air lär.
'N aognaidh lùm, gaoth tro tholl,

* A wandering Irish piper, whose music the Highlanders could not appreciate.

A thaisicheadh cruadal,

Gu beachdail don-dòchais
Mu 'n t-sòrn am bi ghràisg.

Bi'dh gaoth a' mhàil' ghrodaidh
Cur gair anns na dosaibh,

Ri propadh "ðd-rð."
Bi'dh seannsaor caol, crochtach
Fo chaonnaig aig ochdnar,
Sruth staonaig 'ga stopadh,
Cur droch cheol 'na thàmh.
    Fuaim mar chlag fhuadach each,

    Cha 'n abair mi tuille
    Gu di-moladh pioban,
    Ach leigeidh mi' chluinntinn

Gu seasamh a' chrùin shasunnaich,

Ge morghalach righ Phrulsia
'S na righean mòr tha 'n trioblaid ris,

Nach creidinn bhuaithe facial deth,
Nach bithinn suas 'nuair thachradh e,
A liughad gruag a's bagaide,
Bha fuasgladh auns an t-sabaid ud.

'Nuair dh-inntrigeadh an ascaoineis,
Is àrd a chluinntie 'm Pàhaidh iad ;
Fhreagair coill a's clachan daibh ;
Cha bhiodh bean 'an àite faicinn daibh,

'Nuair bhiodh iad sgì 's na tagraichean,

A'g iarradh iasad bhatachan,
Gach tuairisgeul ri chlaistinn ann,
Nach cuallas riambh o bhaidsdeadh sinu.

Gur mairg a bhiodh 'san ùbaraid

Bhiodh fàsgadh air na sùilean ann ;
Bu liomhhor duirn a's glùinean ann ;
A's breaban cha bhiodh cùmhù orra.

Bhiodh rocladh air na clageannan ;
Bhiodh sgòrnanan 'gan tachdadh ann ;
Bhiodh meoirean air an cagnadh ain ;
Bhiodh cluasan air an sracadh ann ;
Bhiodh spuaicean air an snapadh ann.

'Nuair thuiteadh iad gu mi-cheataidh,
Bhiodh rùsgadh leis na h-ìnean ann ;
Bhiodh piocadh leis na bìdeagan ;
Bhiodh riabadh air na cireanan ;
Bhiodh cus de'n uile mì-loinn ann.

Mu'm biodh a' chomh-strì dealachte,
Bhiodh dòrnagan 'g an sadadì ann ;
Bhiodh sgròbadh air na malaidh ann ;
Bhiodh beoil a's sileadh fal' asda ;
'S nis leòr aig fear dha aithris ann.

'Nuair theirgeadh giubbas Lochlainneach
'S a' choill' an déis a stopadh oirn,
Bu mhath na h-airm na bodhrannan ;
Bu sgiobait iad an àm bogsaigeadh ;
Cha bhriseadh e na cogaisean.

'S ann do 'n tir bu shambach so ;
Bu shòlas iuntiùn bàilli e ;
Bu liomhhor fear gu'n àiteach' ann,
Dol gu fianais 's fiamh a bhàthaidh air,
Caoidh mu mhnai 's mu phàistean ann.

Bha Uidhist air a nàrachadh.
Bha Iutharn air a fàschadh.
Le guidheachan na càraig ud
Bha sòlas air an àbhairsear.
Bu neànamh leis nach tainig iad.

Cluinnidh Mac-Cuinn an toiseach e.
Cluinnidh a rìs an Dotor e,
Mar chriochnaicheadh na portaibh ud.
Cha taing e làn a' chopain domh,
Gu 'm bàraig e dà bhòtul rium.

Iunsidh mi do dh-Uisdean e,
 D'fhear Bhàile pàirt do'n t-sùgradh, ud,
 Do'n Bhàili thair an dùthach e;
 Air chàch cha dean mi cùmhndadh air,
 Bheir iad bàidse a's dùrachd dhomh.

Note.—The poet laments the untimely death of five or six of the M'Donalds of Slatie. Sir Alexander died, a young man, in 1746; and his son, the amiable and accomplished Sir James, died at Rome in 1766, aged 25. This family prudently avoided committing themselves in the rebellion of 1745; but the bard appears to have been a thorough Jacobite.

An gaisge 's an cruadal 'n am togbhail.
B'iad sud na fir a bha fearail
'Philleadh an-seasgair 'an tòireachd,
'S a dh-fhagadh salach an arach
Nam fanadh an nàmhaid ri 'n cùmhrag.

Ach nam faiceadh tu na fir ud
Ri uchd teine 's iad 'an òrdugh,
Coslas fiadhaich a dol sios orr',
Falbh gu dian air bheagan stòldachd ;

Fearg 'nan aodann 's faobhar gleois orr',
Iad cho nimheil ris an iolair.
'S iad cho frioghailean ris na leòghainn.

Cha mhòr a thionnal nan daoin' ud
Bha ri fhuatainn san Roinn Eòrpa.
Bha iad fearrail 'an am caonnaig,
Gu fuiileach, faobharrach, stròiceach.
Nam faigheadh tu iad 'an gliocas
Mar bha 'm misneach a's am mòr-chuis,
C' ait 'am feudadh tu aireamh,

Gu neo-lomara mu 'n stòras.
Bha iad cunbalach 'nan gealladh,
Gun sheall, gun charachd, gun ròidean.
Ge de dh-iarrta nuas air sinnis,
O mhullach an cinn gu'm brògan,
'N donas cron a bha ri inns' orr',
Ach an rìoghachd mar shèorsa.

Ach ma mhol thu ar daoin' uaisle,
C'uim nach de luaidh thu Mac-Dòmhnuill ?
Aon Mbac Dhé bhi air 'na bhuaachaill'
G'a ghleidheadh buan duinn 'na bheò-shlainte !
On 's curaiddh a choisneas buaidd e,

Nach deachaidh neach riamh 'na thusasad
Rinn dad buannachd air an comh-stri.

'Nuair a thionaileadh e mhòr-shluagh,
Na fir chrodhba bu mhòr alla,

'S maирg a dhùisgeadh ruinn bhur n-aisith
No thionndadh taobh ascaoin bhur cleòea,
Ge b'e stùil a bhiodh 'gan amharc

Ach ma chaidh tu 'nan sealbhaidh,

'Nuair a dhlùthraigheadh iad ri chéile,
Co chunnatadh féich air Clann-Dòmhnuill?

Alba, ge bu mhòr ri innse' e,

Cunnaitdh Antrum ge bu mhòr i.
Sgrios iad as an naimhdean uile,
'S thuit Mac Ghuilbinn san tòireachd.

'S e 'n claidheamh a shealbhach coir dhaibh.
Bhuinig iad latha chath Gairbheach,

Air bheagan cùnaidh gu trioblaid
Thug iad am bristeadh a mòran,

Note.—There are several hills in the Highlands which still bear the name Tom-na-h-Iubhair, all haunted by the fairies. One of them is near Strachur, Lochfìne side; another near Inverness. According to popular belief, Thomas the Rhymer was captain of the fairy troops.

EACHUNN MAC-LEOID.

EACHUNN MAC-LEOID, or HECTOR M'LEOD, the South Uist bard, lived after the year 1745, on the main land, chiefly in the districts of Arisaig and Morar. He composed and sung as he was moved by those internal powers of which the generality of men appear but little sensible. There are some individuals that appear heavy and destitute of parts, who are possessed of powers which attract the attention and merit the esteem of those who are more intimately acquainted with them: our poet was one of these. What occasioned his removal from the Long Island we know not. It is not unlikely that he was sent hither to watch and give information of what was going on in those troublesome times. He went often to Fort-William, as if doing something of no consequence, while in reality he was hearing all the news of the day, which he related to friends who durst not appear themselves. Shrewd and intelligent, he concealed those talents from strangers, to whom he seemed fooling, which character he could assume as occasion required. As he was frequently going and returning the same way, he was suspected and brought as a spy before the Governor of the Fort: on being examined and interrogated, he acquitted himself so well, under the assumed character, that he was dismissed as a fool.

Gun nireasbhuidh neart;
Nach traoth, 's nach tràigh, 's nach fas beag,
Nach reòdh 's nach stad.
Is lionmhòr bradan tarra-gheal, druim-bhreac,
A leumas ris;
Cho luath 's a tharas iad as,
A comh-ruith bho'n Eas.

A N T A I S B E A N.

Moch madainn Chéitein ri ceòd,
'N am do'u ghréin togail bho neoil,
Chunna' mi sealladh sa' bheinn,
'S eibhinn ri eisdeachd mo sgeoil'.

Bha dearsa le teas a' cur smùid
A bruachanan molach fraoich,
'S bha dealradh nau gathanan blàth
Cur sgeimh air cuirnean nam braon.

Bha dealt a' drìuchdadh gu grinn,
'N am sgàpadh do dhulachd an cheòd,
Na paidirean air an fhèar,
Mar lenjan fo sgéimh an bir.

Bha màghanan milteach feoir,
Bu mheilbheagach', dhitheanach' blà,
Air gach taobh dhe'n uisge chruaidh,
Bu luath mu thuath a ruith bálbh.

Bha neonain, a's sòbhrach gu dlù,
Creamh, agus biolair a' fàs,
Air àileanaibh aimh-reidl, 's air lòin,
Far 'm bu lionmhoire ròs geal, a's dearg.

Bu cheolmhòr, ceileireach, eoin
Air ghriananan eireachdail ard',
A' freagradh a chéile gu grinn,
Cha'n fhaighte 'n cùirt righ ni b'fhearr.

Chunna' mi 'n uaigneas leis fein,
Ag eisdeachd ri torghan nan eun,
Air leam, de'n chruthachd bheò,
An aon duin' òg a b'áillidh sgeimh.

O nach robh de dh-fhearaibh chaich,
Ach e-san, a's mi-féin sa' ghleann,
Smuaintich mi gu'n gabhairn sgeul,
Co e na'm faighinn deth cainnt.

Thainig e gu tosdach, mall,
Gu foighidneach, foistineach, ciuin;
Labhair e fosgara, reidh,
"A ghabhail sgéil a thainig thu."

Mu 's math leat naigheachd a thoirt uam
Gu maithean Alba gu leir,
Amhairc gu geur fada bhuat,
'S chì thu na sluaigh na'n làn fheirg.

Chunna' mi'n fhairge mar choill'
Le crannaibh loingheis làu ard,
Le brataichean anasach, ùr,
Air leam gu'm b'ann as an Spainn.

Chunna' mi cabhlach ro mhòr,
Gu gàireach gabhail gu tir,
Bu luchdmhor, làu athaiseach iad,
Suaicheantas Frangach na'n croinn.

Thainig na sluaigh sin gu tir,
'S cha b'naigheach an gluasad o thràigh,
Bha lamhach nan canon, 's am fuaim,
A' gluasad air chrith na'm beann àrd'.

Chualadh mi coileach 's e gairm,
'S e bualadh a sgiathan gu cruaidh,
A's thuirt an duine math sin rium:—
"Cluinn coileach na h-Airde-tuath."

Chunna' mi tighinn air thùs
Stiubhartaich, cinneadh an righ,
Na'm bòcanan gioraig san léirg,
'Dhearg an airm le fuil san stri.

Thainig Ciann-Dòmhnuill na'n deigh,
Mar chonaibh confach gun bhiadh,
Na'm beathraichean guineach, geur,
An guailean a chéile gu gniomh.

B'aluinn, dealbhach, am breid sròil
Air a cheangal ri crann caol,
An robb caisteal, bradan, a's long,
Lamh dhearg, iolair a's craobh.

Bha fraoch os ceann sin gu h-ard'
Ceangailt' am barr a chrainn chaoil,
Bha sin ann, a's leoghann dearg,
'S cha b'àite tearmuinn a chraos.

Thàirneadh na sloigh air sliabh Fife,
An coinneamh ri cath a chur,
Fhuair iad brosnachadh fior inhear,
Thug eirigh le buirbe na'm ful :—

" A Chlannaibh milidh mosgailibh,
Is somalta, cian 'ur cadal,
Teannaibh ri dioladh Chuilodair,
Dh-àt na fiachan so fada.
Toisichibh gu h-ardanach,
Gu bras, rioghail, moralach,
Gu mear, leumnach, dearg-chneadhach,
Gu luath-lamhach, treun-bhuilleach.
Gu aigneach, innsgiuineach,
Gu an-athach, nàmhadach,
Gu mion-chuimhneach, dioghaltach,
Gu gruamach, fiata, au-tròcaireach.
Gun tearmunn, gun mhathanas,
Gun ath-thruas, gun bhugeachas,
Gun innidh, gun eagal,
Gun umhail, gun fhacill.
Gun fhiamh, gun an-mhisneich,
Gun chùram, gun ghealtachd,
Gun taise, gun fhaiteachas,
Gun saidealtachd, gun uamhann.
Gun eiseamail, guu ùmhlaichd,
Gun athadh do nàmhaid
Ach a gabbail romhaibh thoirt iubhair
A' cosuadh na cath-laraich."

Chunnaic mi air leath o chéile
Trì leoghainn a b'fhar-suinne craois
Thug iad trì sgaitean cho ard'
'S gu'n sgain creagan aig mead an glaodh.

Bha leoghann diu sin air chreig ghuirm,
Dha'm b'ainm Iain Muideartach òg,
O'n Chaisteal thiream, 's o Bhòrg,
Deshliochd nan Collaidd bu bhorb colg.

Thog sean leoghann luath a cheann,
'S a chas rioghail an Duntuilm,
Dh'a'm bu shean eireachdas riamh,
Buaidh nan sliabh an càs a chrùinn,

Thainig an treas leoghann diù
O'n choill', 's o ghabaidh nam bàrc,
A's dh'ordaidh iad pairt dhe'n cuid sluaigh
Dhol a thiolaceadh nam marbh.

Labhairt.—San an sin a thagh iad oifigich an-diadhaidh; an-trocaireach, an-aobhach, an-athach, an-iocadhdmhor. Agus thagh iad cuid-eachd de bhorb, bhortach, bhodach, dha'm b'airm chosanta spaidean, agus sluaidean, gu tiolacadh nam marbh, agus gu glanadh na h-àraich. Aonghas amharra á Eigneag—Calum croisda á Gruluinn—Leoghann Iargalta á Cràsabhaig—Dughall Ballach á Gallabaidh—Niall Eaugharra á Raimisgearaidh—agus Domhnall Durrrghá á Genras.

Chunna' mì Gleann soleir uam,
An robb eireachdas thar gach glinn,
B'airde cheileirich', cheolmhoir' fuaim,
Glaodhaich nan cuach os a chinn.

Theid fargradh feadh Bhreatuinn gu léir ;
Eirigh gu feachd fir gu leoir,
Chi sibh na Gàéil a' triall
Le rioghalaichd mar bu eòir.

Note.—The poet was a stanch Jacobite. In this Ode he describes what he and many others in his day most earnestly desired, and to which they eagerly looked, notwithstanding what they suffered at, and after the battle of Culloden. The bard gives full scope to his imagination; poetically describing scenes which his active fancy draws before him. It was not safe, in his time, to express the real sentiments entertained on a subject so near and dear to the heart, and so full of danger to all concerned. He therefore makes use of the style and metaphors adopted, that the poem might be intelligible to those alone who contemplated the dark events of futurity.

GILLEASPUIG NA CIOTAIG;

on,

ARCHIBALD M'DONALD, THE UIST COMIC BARD.

We know little more of this distinguished poet than the following songs contain, one of which was composed to the chief of the clan Cameron, who resided on his estate in Lochaber, when the poet visited that country. Having met with great kindness from the chief, the poet made the only return he could have made, and which was considered no small requittance in those days—he sung his praise. It was a tribute of gratitude. Another was composed to ridicule a vain young man; who, it is still believed, had a better right to the property of Lovat than the person who succeeded to it; but being guilty of murder, was obliged to fly the country. He used to appear in a dress which, in his estimation, completed the gentleman; but in the eyes of others made him ridiculous. Happening to be at a wedding in his full dress, with his hanger, or dirk, dangling at his side in the dance, and buckled shoes, the piper imprudently played the tune "Tha biodag air mac Thòmais,"—a satire composed by our bard to the identical man. He, incensed, drew his dirk, which all supposed he would sheathe in the bag of the piper, but, in his fury, mortally wounded him. He escaped to America, and durst not appear to claim the estate. His other poems remind us of similar pieces by Burns. Men of genius have similar ideas, and make use of the same means to expose such as they observe laying themselves open to ridicule.

* * We omit the poem in praise of Lochiel, as inferior to the bard's humorous pieces. It is in "Stewart's Collection," page 108.

MARBHRANN DO DH' IAIN RUADH PIOBAIR.

Fhuair mi sgeula bho'n ghobha,
Cha'n aobhar meogail, ach gruaim,
E-fein fo mbi-ghean, 's fo thrioblaid,
Ri iarum cist' do dh' lain Ruadh.*
Saoir a' locaradh, 'sa' sàbhadh,
'S a chulaidh bhàis 'ga cuir suas,
Samhach eadail na corra,
Cha chluinnear tuilleadh a fuaim.

Chaidh na maidean á òrdugh,
Cha'n aithne dhomh-s an cuir suas,
Tha'n gaothair air stòpadh,
Tha'n dà dhös na'n trom-shuain.

Chaill an seannsair a chlaisteachd,
Tha'n gleus air a ghrad leigeadh suas,
O'n tric a thainig ceòl taitneach,
Ragha caismeachd mo chluais.

Ceol bu bhlasd' a's bu bhinne,
'Dhùsgadh spiorad do'n t-snagh,
Ceol bu tartaraich' siubhal,
Thionndadh tioma gu cruas:
Ceol mar sméabhrach a ghlinne,
Ceol a's binne na cuach;
Meoir gun bhraise, gun ghiorradh,
Dian ruith-leumnach, luath.

Bu sgolta sealleadh do sheanusair,
Air port, 's air crunn-luath, 's air cuairt,
Pronnadh enaparra, lìughmhor,
Caismeachd shunntach 'san ruaig :

* John M'Quithen, a piper in South Uist. He was a great companion and favourite of the bard. This elegy was composed while the piper was living.

Dheanadh gaisgeach de'n sgiùraich,
Chuireadh diùn-laoch na luaths,
Claidhean glasa 'gan rùsgadh,
Claigneann brùit' aig luchd fuath.

'S iomadh aon tha ga' iundrain,
O'n chaidh ùir ort san uaigh ;—
An toiseach labhair an spliúcan,
Bhiodh tu giùlau gach uair.
" Tha mi féin gun tombaca,
Cha b'e cleachdadh a fhuair,
'S tric chuir Iain fo m'aisne,
Greim, a's cairteal, a's cuach."

Thuirt a ghloin' a bha'n Asdain,
" Mo sgéul craiteach, ro chruaidh !
Dh-shaibh mo shùgradh, 's mo mhàran,
Thug am bàs leis Iain Ruadh ;
Fear a chluicheadh a chlàrsach,
Dheanadh dàn, agus duan,
Cha b'e Caluinn a chràmpaidd
Fònn a b'fhearr leis 'g a luaidh."

Thuirt am pigidh bha laimh ris,—
" Faigh an t-àrca gu luath,
Cuir am chlaigeann-sa spàirt e,
Tha tart 's gach àite mu'n cuairt.
Thainig con-tràigh na plàighe,
Tha nithe gnàithaichte bhuainn,
Cha bhi reothart gu bràth ann,
'S ann a thràigheas an cuan."

Thuirt am buideal, 's am botal,
Thuirt an gòc ris an stòp,
Thuirt an copan, 's an t-slige ;
" 'S mor an sgrios th'air tigh'n oirn.
Tha gach sruth air a dhùnadh,
Bha cur a dh-ionnsaideh nan lòn,
Cha'n fhraighear drap air an ùrlar,
A fhliuchas brù Dhòmhnuill big."

O'n dh-fhalbh an còmpanach sàr-mhath,
Dh-fhalbh an ràbhart, 's an spòrs,
Dh-fhalbh beannachd na cloinne,
'S e sheinneadh an ceòl.
Nis o riuneadh do chàradh
'N ciste chlàraich nam bòrd,
'S mor as mist iad am Phàro,
Gun fhearr do ghnàs a bhi beò.

Dh-fhalbh an deagh ghille cuideachd,
Nach robh sgrubail san bòsd' ;
Dh-fhalbh fear tràghadh nan searrag,
Chosgadh barrachd thar stòp.
Dh-fhalbh fear deanadh nan duanag
Leis an luaichte gach clò,
Cha b'e ghnàs a bhi gearan,
Ge h-ioma gain' thug dha pòg.

'S beag mo shunnti ri lath fóille,
'S beag mo speis dheth gach ceòl,
'S beag mo thlachd dhe bhi 'g eisteachd,
Gaoir theud fhìr nan cròc.
Leam a b'annsa do bhruidhean,
'N àm suidhe mu bhòrd,
Na droch dhreòchdan air fidhill,
Mar fhuaim smithe an lòin.

Bha thu d' dhamhsair air ûrlar,
Bha thu siubhlach air snàmh ;
Bha thu d' chairiche lùghmhor,
Cha bhiodh tu d' luireich fo chàch.
Urram leum, agus ruthe,
Glae threun a ruitheadh an ràmh,
'San àm caitheadh na cloiche,
Bu leat au toiseach air càch.

Thoir mo shoraidh-sa tharais,
Dh-ionnsuidh 'u fheareann ud thall ;
O nach faod mi bhi mar ribh,
'S leibh mo bheannachd san àm.
Biodh an uaigh air a treachladh,
Ann am fasan nach gaun ;
Buideal rùm aig a chasan,
'S rol tombac aig a cheann.

Note.—Dr M'Leod, the subject of this song, was a native of St. Kilda. He was some time abroad as surgeon to a Highland regiment, and on his return home he used to go about in his full uniform, in which the poet thought he made rather an odd figure.

'S mis am fear gu'n tig an dìlinn,
Nach toir sgrìobh air ceòl duibh.”

DUGHALL BOCHANNAN.

DUGALD BUCHANAN was born in the parish of Balquidder, Perthshire, in the year 1716. His father was a small farmer, who also rented a mill. His mother was an excellent and pious woman; but, unfortunately for him, she died when he was only six years old. His father gave him such education as he could afford; and that appears to have been more than was commonly taught at country schools at that time. When he was only twelve years of age, he was sent to teach in another family, where he did not improve in his morals, as he learned to curse and swear. When he was farther advanced in life, he became loose and immoral, associating with bad company, and apparently regardless of the pious example that had been set before him by his mother. When he grew up, he was apprenticed to a house-carpenter in Kippen, where he did not continue long, till he removed to Dumbarton. Here he continued the same course of profane and sinful practice that afterwards caused him much trouble and remorse of conscience during many years, until he at last obtained peace with God, and became a sincere and eminent Christian. He does not appear to have settled long in any place, till the "Society for Propagating Christian Knowledge" appointed him schoolmaster and catechist at Kenloch Ranoch, in the year 1755. In this remote place he laboured with great pains and diligence in his calling during the remainder of his days; and here he composed those hymns which will render his name as lasting as the language in which they are written. Besides the hymns, he wrote a diary, which was published in the year 1836, with a memoir of the author prefixed. From this memoir we shall copy a short abstract of his labours and diligence at Kenloch Ranoch. Although he was not a regular lieentiate, he acted as a kind of missionary; and exhorted, preached, catechised, and reproved, till he wrought a great reformation on the people in that district:—"Ranoch is an extensive district, in the parish of Fortingall. It is situated at a great distance from the church, and the clergyman visited it at long intervals. The people, therefore, instead of assembling on Sabbath to worship God, generally met to play at foot-ball. Moved with zeal for the glory of God, and grieved at the sins he witnessed, he zealously set about reforming the people, by convincing them of the sinfulness of their ways. Finding it impossible to bring them together for prayer or exhortation, he would follow them to the scene of their sinful amusements, and there reason with them about death and judgment to come. By the great and disinterested anxiety he manifested for their spiritual welfare, some of them were brought to a better observance of the Sabbath, by uniting with him in the worship of God. The impression made on the minds of those who came to hear him was such, that they persuaded their friends and neighbours to come also, which gradually drew a more numerous attendance. His piety and excellence of character becoming now generally known, the numbers who flocked from all parts to hear him were so great, that the house in which they had hitherto met was insufficient to contain them: he therefore adjourned with the people to a rising ground on the banks of the Ranoch. Nor was he attended by those only among whom he lived, but by many from other remote parts, who were attracted by the fame of his piety. In addressing the people, his meek and gentle spirit led him to dwell most on the loftier motives—the more tender appeals with which the gospel abounds; but, to stubborn and determinate sinners, he was severe in discipline, encountering them with the terrors of the Lord, that he might win them to Christ.”

It is said that Buchanan assisted Mr Stewart of Killin in translating the New Testament into the Scottish Gaelic, and that he corrected the work while passing through the press at Edinburgh, in the year 1766. During his stay there he availed himself of the opportunity of attending the classes for Natural Philosophy, Anatomy, Astronomy, &c., which made a great impression upon his mind, and gave him more extensive views of the omnipotence and wisdom of the Divinity. He was, during either of these years, introduced to the celebrated David Hume the historian, who, having been informed of his excellent character, received him with great affability, and entered very familiarly into conversation with him on various topics.

While discussing the merits of some authors, Mr Hume observed that it was impossible to imagine any thing more sublime than the following lines which he repeated:—

“ The cloud-capt towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherits shall dissolve,
And like the baseless fabric of a vision—
Leave not a wreck behind.”

Buchanan at once admitted the beauty and sublimity of the lines, but said that he had a book at home from which he could produce a passage still more sublime, and repeated the following verses:—“ And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God: and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.”*

He published his “Hymns” about the year 1767. The demand for this little work has continued since, and every year adds to its popularity—a sure proof of its merit. There have been at least fifteen editions of it printed; while of the works of the celebrated bards, Macdonald and Macintyre, there have been only four editions.

Our author continued his useful and pious labours at Ranoch till his death, which happened on the second of June, 1768, when he was seized with fever, which carried him off in the fifty-second year of his age. During his illness he was frequently delirious, and in that state would sing of the "Lamb in the midst of the throne." In his lucid intervals he expressed his full hope in the resurrection of the just, and his desire to depart and be with Christ. The people of Ranoch wished his remains to be buried among them, but his relations carried the body away to their own country, and he was buried in the burying-ground of the Buchanans at Little Lenny, near Callander. In his person he was considerably above the middle size, and rather of a dark complexion, but upon a close inspection his countenance beamed affection and benevolence. Among his intimate acquaintance he was affable, free, jocular and social, and possessed much interesting information and innocent anecdotes, in consequence of which his company was much sought after by all the families in the country. In his dress he was plain and simple, wearing a blue bonnet and a black dress, over which he generally wore a blue great-coat. After his death his widow removed to Ardoch, where she remained till the time of her death. He left two sons and two daughters: one of the latter was alive in 1836.

As a poet, Buchanan ranks in the highest class. Endowed with great power of imagination, and full of moral and religious enthusiasm, his poetry is at once fervid, lofty, and animated; and invariably calculated to promote the cause of religion and virtue. Those distinguishing qualities have rendered him the most popular poet in the language; and we may safely assert, that his popularity will endure as long as the language in which he has written is understood.

"The Day of Judgment" is the most popular poem in the language. It displays great force of imagination, and fixes the mind on the sublime and awful scenes of a world brought to an end, amidst the wreck of elements, and the assemblage of the whole human race to judgment.

"The Scull" is full of good poetry, with appropriate reflections on the vanity of mortal enjoyments. It shows the fierce tyrant and the lowly slave—the haughty chief and the humble tenant—the mighty warrior and the blooming virgin—the mercenary judge and the grasping miser—all reduced to one level, the grave; to feed the lowly worm and the crawling beetle.

"The Dream" contains useful lessons on the vanity of human pursuits, and the unsatisfactory rewards of ambition. The following lines ought to be remembered by every one who envies greatness:—

" Cha 'n 'eil neach o thrioblaid saor,
A' measg a' chinne-daonn' air fad
'S co liomhor osna aig an righ,
Is aig a neach is isle staid."

"The Winter" begins with a vivid description of the effects of that season, and the preparation of men and animals to provide food and shelter. The poet then draws a comparison between the winter and the decline of human life, warning the old man to prepare for his future state, as the husbandman prepares food and fuel for winter—to imitate the prudent foresight of the ant and the bee, and not the idle and improvident fly, dancing joyously in the sunbeams till he perishes by the winter's frost. This excellent poem is deservedly admired as one of the finest specimens of didactic poetry in the Gaelic language.

'S cha choinnich sibh aon ni gu bràth,
Bheir air 'ur n-anam cràdh no leòn.

“ Cha 'n fhaca sùil, 's cha chuala cluas,
Na thaig mi suas de shonas duibh,
Imiħibb, 's biodh 'ur dearbhachd féin,
Sior-innse sgéul duibh air a chaoih.”

Ach ris a mhuintir th'air a chli,
O ! labhraidh e 'na dħiogħ'ltaсs cruaidh,
“ A chuideachd nach d'thug gràdh do Iħia,
A chum an diabhuil siubħlaibh uam.

“ 'S mo mhallachd maille ribh gu bràth,
A chum 'ur cràdh 's 'ur cur gu pian,
Gluaishibhse chum an teine mhòir,
Ga'r røsdadh ann gu cian nan cian.”

Mar sgàin an talamh a's a cheil,
'N uair gabh e teaghħach ħàbrach steach,
Ceart laimh riu fosgħaidh 'n uaigh a beul,
'S i miannanaich air son a creich.

Is mar a shluig 'mhuc-mħara mhòr,
l-ōnas 'n uair chaidh 'thilgead 'mach,
Ni slugan dubh au dara báis,
A charbad iathadh umpa steach.

San uamhaidh taobhaidh iad ri cheil,
A ghluais nam beath' gu h-eucorach ;
Luchd mhionn a's mort a's fianuis-bhreig ;
Luchd misg a's reubainn 's adhaltrais.

Mar chualaig dhris an ceangal teann,
An slabhraidi th a gach dream leo fein ;
'S an comun clicheachd bhi 'n caidreamh dilù,
Mar bhioran rùisgte dol nan crè.

Mar leoghan garg fo' chuibreach craidh,
Le thoscaibh reubadh suas a ghlaib ;
An slabhraidi cagnaidh iad gu dian,
'S gu brath cha ghearr am fiaclan phrais.

Bidh iad gu siorruidh 'n glacaibh 'bhais,
'S an eridh' ga fhàsgadh asd' le bròn,
Ceangailt air cuan de phronnusg laisd'
'S a dheatach uaine tachd an sròn.

Mar bhàirneach fuaigne ris an sgeir,
Tha iad air creagaibh goileach teann ;
Is dibh-fheirg Dhí a' seideadh 'chuain,
Na thonnaibh buaireis thar an ceann.

'N tra dhùineas cadal cruaidh an suil,
Teas feirg 's an-dochas dùisgidh iad ;
A chnuimh nach bàsaich 's eibhlé beò,
A' cur an doruinn shiorruidh 'meud.

Air ifrimm 'n uair a gheibh iad sealbh,
S lean-dearbhabh co gu'n toir iad eis,
Faodaidh sinn pàirt d'an gearan truagh,
Chuir anns na briathraibh cruaidh so sios.

" O staidh na neo-nj 'n robb mi 'm thàmh,
Ciod nime dh-àrdach Dia mo ceann !
Mo mhive mallachd aig an là,
'N do gabh mo mhathair mi' na broinn.

" Ciod nime fhuair mi tuigse riabh ?
No eall a's reusan chum mo stiuir ?
Ciod uim' nach d'rinnu thu cuileag dhiom ?
Na durrag dhìblidh ann san ùir ?

" Am mair mi 'n so gu saogh'l nan saogh'l !
'N tig crioch no caochlach orm gu brath,
Am beil mi nis san t-siorr'achd bhuan,
A' snàmh a' chuain a ta gun tràigh !

" Ged àireamh uile reulta neimh,
Gach séur a's duilleach riabh a dh-flàs,
Mar' ris gach braon a ta sa' chuan,
'S gach gaineacham chuarticheas an tràigh.

" Ged chuiream mìle bliadhna seach,
As leith gach aon diuhb sud gu léir,
Cha d'imich seach de'n t-siorr'achd mhàbir,
Ach mar gu 'n tòisicheadh i'n dé.

" Ach O ! 'n do theirig tròcair Dhia !
'S am pian e mi gu saogh'l nan saogh'l !
Mo shlabhraidi 'n lasach e gu brath !
No glas mo làmb an dean e sgoil !

" M bi 'm beul a dh-ordaich Dia chum seinn,
Air feadh gach linn a chliù gun sgòs,
Mar bhalagan-séididh fadadh suas,
Na lasraich uain 'an ifrimm shiòs !

" Ged chaidh mo thruaighe thar mo neart,
Gu deimhinn fein a's ceart mo bhinn ;
Ach c'fada bhios mi 'n so ga m' chridh,
Mu'm bi do cheartas sàitheach dhiom !

" No 'm bi thu dìo'lte dhiom gu brath,
'N deach lagh an nàduir chuir air cùl ?
Mo thruaighe mi ! 'n e so am bàs
A bhagair thu air Adhamh 'n tùs ?

" Air sgà do dhio'ltas 'm bi thu 'sniomh
Snàthain mo bheath' gu siorruidh caol ?
Nach leoir bhi mile bliadh'n ga m' losg ?
As leith gach lochd a rinne mi 's t-saogh'l ?

" Ged lean de dhio'ltas mi gu m' chùl,
Cha 'n àrdaich e do chliù, a Dhé,
'S cha'n fhiu dò d' Mhorachd t-fhearg a chosg,
Air combaradh cho bochd rinn fein.

" O Dhia ! nach sgrios thu mi gu túr ?
'S le d' chumhachd cuir air 'm anam crioch,
'S gu staid ha neo-ni tilg mi uait,
Far nach 'eil fulang, smuain, no gniomh.

" Ach O ! se so mo thoillt'neas fein
Is ni'm beil éu-coir buntainn rium ;
Oir dhiùlt mi taigse shaor de Chriosd,
'S nior ghabh mi d'a fhuil phriseil suim.

" Mo choguis dìtidh mi gu brath,
An thianuis bha ga 'm chàineadh riabh ;
An-iocdh no éu-coir ann mo bhàs,
Cha leig i chàradh 'm feasd air Dia.

" Aitheanta thilg mi air mo chùl,
A's ruith mi dùrachdach gn'm sgrios,
Is 'fhanuis fein a' m' chridhe mhùch,
A' druid' mo shùile roimh mo leas.

" Cia meud an diogh'ltas tha dhomh' dual
A's leith mo pheacaidh uamhor dàin
Am peac' thug dùlan do dh-fhuil Chriosd,
'S a dh-flàg gun éifeachd brig a bhìis.

" Gidheadh nach 'eil de Bhudhan fein,
Neo-criochanach gu léir o chian ?
'S an toir mo chiont air lochd a's gràdh,
Gu'm fas iad criochnaicht' ann an Dia ?

" An comas dnt mo thilgeadh uat
 Far nach cluinn do chluas mo sgread ?
 'M beil dorchadas nu ifrinn fein
 Far nach bu léir do Dhia mo staid ?

" Ge truagh mo ghuidhe cha'n eisder i,
 A's fois no féidh cha'n fhaidh mi chaoidh'
 Ach beath' neo-bhàismor teachd as ùr,
 Gu'm neartach ghiùlan tuille claoideh."

Ach stad mo ranu a's pill air t-ais
 O shlochd na casgraids dhein a nlos,
 Is fouch cionnas a bheir thu seòl
 Do'n dream tha beò nach teid iad sios.

A leughadair a'm beil e fior,
 Na chuir mi cheana sios am dhàn ?
 Ma se 's gu'm beil thig s' iùb do ghlùn
 Le ùrnuigh 's aithreachas gun dàil :—

" A dh-ionnsuidh losa teich gu luath,
 A' gabhail gràin a's fuath do d' pheac',
 Le creideamh fior thoir ùmhachd dhà,
 An uile àith'nta naomh a reachd.

" Gabh ris na h-oifigibh gu léir,
 'S ri h-aon diubh na cuir fèin do chùl ;
 Mar Fhàidh, mar Shagart, 'us mar Rìgh,
 Chum slàinte, dìdean, agus iuil.

" Biodh eiseimpleir am beach do shùl,
 Chum q' uile ghuasachd 'stiùrda reir,
 'S gach meadhon dh-ordaich e chum slàint'
 Bi fein g'an gnàthachadh gu leir.

" As 'thireantachd dean bun a mhàin,
 'S na taic gu bràth ri d' thoill'tneas fein ;
 'S mas àili leat eifeachd bhi na ghràs,
 Na h-altrum peacadh dàimh a'd' cbré.

" Mar sin ged robh de chionta mòr,
 Chum glòir do Thighearn' saorar thù,
 Is chum de shonais shiorruidh fèin,
 Air fead gach rè a' seinn a chliù."

'N uair dhealraicheas Criosd,
Na thigheachd a rìs,
A chruinneach' na 'm firean suas ;
'N sin bheir thu de leum,
Thoirt coinneamh dha féin,
Mar iolair nan speur aig luaths.

'N uair dh-eireas tu 'n àird,
Grad chuiridh ort fält,
A mhealtainn a chàirdeas féin,
Gun dealach' gu bràth,
R'a chomunn no ghràdh,
A steach ann am Pàrras Dè.

Fhir 'chluinneas mo dhàn,

Mu'n tig ort am bàs,
Nach leig thu gu bràth,
Air geata nan gràs a steach.

Air bhith dhomhsa ann am shuain

“ An neach is fearr tha 'n saogh'l a riad,
Tha fiaradh eigin ann 'na staid,
Nach dean a sheòltachd a's a strì,
Am feast a dhìreachadh air fad.

“ Mar bhata' fiar an aghaidh cheil,
A ta o shuidheach' fein do-chur ;
A reir mar dhùreas tu a bharr,
'S cho chinnteach ni thu cam a bhun.

“ Na h-Iudhaich thionail beag no mòr,
Do'n Mhàna dhòirteadh orra 'nuas ;
'N tra chuir gach neach a chuid's a chlàr,
Cha robh air bàrr no dadum uaith.

“ Mar sin a ta gach sonas saogh'l t,
A ta thu faotainn ann a d' làimh,
Fa chomhair saibhreas, 's inbhe cùirt
Tha caiteamh, cùram agus cràdh.

“ Ged chàrn thu òr a'd' shlige suas,
Fa chomhair fàsaidh 'n luath da reir,
Is ge do chuir thu innte riogh'chd,
A mheidh cha dìrich i na deigh.

“ Tha enibhrionn iomchuidh aig gach neach,
'S ged tha thu meas gur tuille b' fhearr ;
Cha d' thoir an t-anabharr tha'nn an sud,
Am feast an eudrom a's a' chràdh ;

"O iomluas t-intinn tha do phian ;
A' diùltair 'n diug na dh'iarra thu 'n dé ;
Cha choimasach an saoghail do riarr,
Le t-anamianna 'n aghaidh chéil.

"Na 'm faigheadh toil na feol a rùn,
D'a mianna brudeil dh'iarraadh sath ;
Flaitheas a b' aird' cha'n iarrach i,
Na annta sud bhi siorruidh 'snàmh.

"Ach ge do b' ionmuinn leis an fheòil,
Air talamh còmhnaichadhl gach ré ;
Bhiodh dùrachd t-ardain agus t-uaill,
Cho ard a shuas ri Cathair Dhé ;

"Ach nam b' aill leat sonas buan,
Do shlighe tabhair suas do Dhia,
Le dùrachd, creideamh agus gràdh,
Is èsachidh e t-uite mhiann.

"Tha 'n cuideachd sud gach ni san t-saoghail,
Tha 'n comas dhaoine shealbhach' fior ;
Tha bhiadh, a's eudach agus slàint,
Is saorsa, càirdeas, agus sith."

'An sin do mhosgail a's mo shuain,
Is dh-fhag mo bhruardar mi air fad ;
Ghrad leig mi dhiomh bhi ruith gach sgàil,
Is dh-fhás mi toilichte le m' staid.

A N G E A M H R A D H.

Nis theirig an samhradh,
'S tha 'n geomhradh teachd dlù oirn,
Fior nàmhaid na chinneas,
Teachd a mhilleadh ar dùthchea ;
Ga saltairt fo chasaibh,
'S d'a maise ga rùsgadh ;
Gun iochd ann ri dadum,
Ach a' sladadh 's a' plùnnndruinn.

Sgoil oirne a sgiathan,
'S chuir e ghrian alr a chùlthaobh ;
As an nead thug e 'n t-àlach,
Neo-bhàigheil 'gar sgiùrsadh ;
Sneachd iteaghach gle-geal,
O na speuran tigh' dlù oirn,
Clacha meallain 's gaoth thuathach,
Mar luaidhe is mar fhùdar.

'N uair shéideas e anail,
Cha 'n fhag anam am flùran ;
Tha bhilean mar shlosar,
Iomadh lios de gach ùr-ros ;

Cha bhi sgeadach air coille,
No doire nach rùlsg e ;
No sruthan nach tachd e,
Fo leachdannan dù'-ghorm.

Fead reòta a chleibhe,
Tha seideadh na doinioinn,
Chuir beirm ann san fhaire,
'S a dh' àt' garbh i na tonnan ;
'S a bhinnlich an clàmhuiinn,
Air àirde gach monaидh,
'S ghlan sgùr e na reultan,
D' ar péile le'n solus.

Tha gach beathach a's duine,
Nach d' ullaich 'na sheasan,
Ga 'n sgiùrsadh le gaillionn
Gun talla' gun eudach ;
'S an dream a bha gniomhach,
'Fas iargalt mi-dhéirceil ;
Nach toir iasad do leisgean,
Ann san t-sneachda ged éug e.

Tha 'n seillein 's an seangan,
A bha tional an stòrais,
Le gliocas gun mhearrachd,
A' toirt aire do'n dùruinn ;
'G ithe bidh 's ag bl meala,
Gun ghainne air lòn ac,
Fo dhion ann san talamh,
O anail an reòta.

Tha na cuileagan ciatach,
'Bha diamhain san t-samhradh,
'S na gathanan gréine
Gu h-eibhinn a' damhsa ;
Gun deasach 'gun chùram,
Roi' dhùlachd a gheimhraidh ;
A nise a' dol bùs',
Ann 's gach àite le teanntachd.

Ach eisd rium a shean-duin,
'S tuig an samhladh tha 'm stòri',
Tha 'm bùs a tighin teann ort,
Sud an geomhradh tha 'm òran ;
'S ma gheibh e thu a' d' leisgein,
Gun deasach' fa' chòdhail,
Cha dean àithreachas crìche.
Do dhionadh o'n doruinn.

Gur mithich fàs diagbaidh,
'S do chiabhan air glasadh,
'Na 'm beàrnaibh do dheudach,
Is t-eudann air casadh,
Do bhathais air rùsgadh,
'S do shùilean air prabadh,
Agus cròit ort air lùbadh,
Chum na h-uire do leaba'.

Tha na sruthanan craobhach,
 Bha sgaoileadh a' d' bhallaibh,
 Gu mireagach bualteach,
 Clis gluasadach tana ;
 A nise air traoghadh
 O'n t'nomachadh thairis,
 O'n a ragaich 'sa dh-fhuaraich
 Teas nabhar na fala.

Balg-seididh na beatha,
 Tha air caitheamh gun fheum ann,
 'S o chrup ann a' d' chliabh e,
 Gur h-e phian bhi 'ga shéideadh
 Tha 'n corp a chruit chiùil ud,
 Air diúltadh dhut gleusadh ;
 'S comhar cinnt' air a thasgaidh,
 Bhi lasach' a theudan.

Theich madainn na h-òige,
 'S treoir mheadhon latha
 Tha 'm feasgar air ciaradh,
 'S tha ghrian ort a laidhe ;
 'S mu bha thusa diamhain,
 Gun gniomh is gun mhaiteas ;
 Gu h-ealamh bi d' dhùsgadh,
 Mu'n dùinear ort flaitheas.

'Reir caithe na beatha,
 'S tric leatha gun críoich i ;
 Bidh an cleachadh fàs làidir,
 Do-flàssach o'n inntinn ;
 Na labhair an sean-fhalac,
 'S deimhinn leam 's fior e,
 "An car theid san t-seana-mhaid'
 Gur h-ainmic leis dìreadh."

Ach ògnaich threibhich
 Thoir-s' éisdeachd do m' òran,
 'S leig dhiot bhi mi-chéillidh,
 Ann an céitein na h-òige ;
 Tha aois agus ea-slaint,
 Air do dheigh ann an tòir ort ;
 'S mu ni h-aon aca gréim ort,
 Pillidh t-eibhneas gu bròn dut.

An aois a tha 'n tòir ort,
 Bheir i leon ort nach saoil thu ;
 Air do shuilean bheir ceathach,
 Is treabhaidh si t-aodann ;
 Bheir i crith-reodh' mu d' ghruaig',
 Is neul uaine an aoig leis,
 'S cha toig aiteamh na grian ort,
 'Bheir an liath-reodh a chaoidh' dhiot.

Bheir ni's measa na sud ort,
 Failne tuigs' agus reusain ;
 Dìth leirsinn a' t-inntinn ;
 Dìth cuimhn' agus géire ;

Dìth gliocais chum gnothaich ;
 Dìth mothach a'd' cheudfath
 'S gu'm fàs thu mar leanabb,
 Dhì spionnaidh a's céille.

Fàsaidh 'n cridhe neo-aitreach,
 'S neo-calambh chum tionndadh,
 Aon tagra' cha drùigh air,
 'S cha'lùb e d'a ionnsuidh ;
 Ceart mar tha 'n talamh,
 'N am gaillionn a's teanndachd ;
 Ged robh milltean 'dol thairis,
 Cha dean aile sa' chausair.

Faic seasain na bliadhna,
 'S dean ciall uath a tharruinn ;
 'S mas àill leat gu'n buain thu,
 Dean ruadhar 'san earrach ;
 Dean connadh san t-samhradh,
 Ni sa' gheamhradh do gharadh ;
 'S ma dhilereas tu 'n seasan,
 Dhùt 's eigin bhi fàlamh.

'S mar cuir thu siol fallain,
 Ann an earrach na h-òige,
 Cho chinnteach 's am bàs dut,
 Cuiridh Sàtan droch phòr ann ;
 A dh-flàssach 'na dhubhaile,
 'S 'na luidheannan feòlmhor ;
 'S bidh do hhuain mar a chuir thu,
 Ma's subhaile no dò-bheit.

Ma bhios t-bige gun riaghladh,
 'S t-anamiannan gun taod riu,
 Gum fàs iad cho fiadhaich,
 'S nach srian thu ri t-aos iad ;
 Am meangan nach sniomh thu,
 Cha spion thu 'na chraibh e ;
 Mar shineas e ghéogan,
 Bidh fhreumhan a' sgaoileadh.

Tha do bheatha neo-chinnteach
 O'n teinn a bheir bàs ort,
 Uime sin bi ri dìcheall
 Do shìth dheanamh tràthail ;
 'S e milleadh gach cuise
 Bhi gun chùram cur dàil innt' ;
 'S ionann aithreachas criche,
 'S bhi cur sil mu Fheill-màrtuinn.

Tha ghrian ann sna speuraibh
 A' ruith réise gach latha ;
 'S i 'giorrhach' do shaoghail,
 Gach oidhche a laidheas ;
 'S dù ruitheas an spàla,
 Troi' shnathaibh do bheatha ;
 Tha' fighe dhut leine,
 Ni beisdean a chaitheamh.

'S ma ghoideas e dlù ort,
Gun do dhùil bhi r'a thighinn ;
'N sin foglaidh do shùilean,
'S chì thu chùis tar a mithich ;
Bidh do choguis 'ga d' phianadh,
Mar sgian ann a d' chridhe ;
'S co-ionann a giùlan,
'S laidhe ruisgt' ann an sgitheach.

Faic a chuireag 'ga dìteadh
Le sionntaibh an nàdair,
'S o na dhùibhir i 'n seasan,
Gur h-eigin d'i bàsach' ;
Faic gliocas an t-seangain,
Na thional cho tràthail,
'S dean eiseimpleir leanail,
Chum t-anam a shàbhal'.

DAIBHIDH MAC-EALAIR.

DAVID MACKELLAR, commonly called Daibhidh nan Laoïdh, was another religious poet. The time of his birth is not known. He lived in Glendaruel after the beginning of last century. He was blind, and the people in that country still preserve some traditional accounts of him and of the manner in which his hymn was composed, the most striking of which is that after having composed it his sight was restored. In his youth he composed some profane pieces. The time of his death is likewise uncertain, but a grand-daughter of his lived in Glasgow not many years ago. This hymn was first published in Glasgow about the year 1752. It was so very popular in the Highlands that many persons got it by heart that had never seen the printed copy.

MOLADH do'n Ti 's airde glòir,
An Ti 's modha no gach neach ;
Cruithear an t-saoghal gu léir,
Da'n cubhaidh dhuinn géill' air fad.

'S tu rinn an domhan 's na th' ann,
Na caintean domhain, 's am fonn ;
'S chuir thu iasg g'a altrum ann,
'S thug thu eall gu ghlacadh dhuinn.

Rinneadh leat gealach a's grian,
Thogail fianuis air do ghlòir ;
Cha'n aithris mi a mìle trian,
De chruthachadh an Dia is mò.

'S tu rinn na reultan air fad,
A riaghachadh gu ceart nan tràth ;
Gheall thu maraon fuachd a's teas,
Foghar ma seach agus Màirt.

'S tu rinn na h-ainglean air fad,
Tha 'n t-abharsair fo d' smachd gu mòr :
Air slabhruidh laidir aig do Mhae,
Cumail a neart o theachd oirnn'.

Rinneadh leat an duine' ri's,
A réir t-iomhaidh chum do ghlòir ;
Ach chaill e 'n oidhreachd ud gun luach,
'S cha'n fhuasgalar i le òr.

'S tu chuir am fradharc na cheann,
Chuir thu falt tro chlaigeann lom ;
Thug thu cluas gu éisteachd dha,
'S gluasad a chuirp o na bhonn.

Chuir thu Adhamh an cadal trom,
Chaidh léigh nan gràs os a cheann ;
'S de dhaisinn bho thaobh do rinn
A bhean, o'n do ghn gach clann.

Chuir thu e 'n gàradh nan seud,
Far an robh éibhneas a ghràidh ;
Dh-ith a bhean an sin a meas,
'S dh-fhuilic i 's a sliochd am bàs,

Cha robh a teasargain aig neach,
O'n a chumhanta rinn i bhris ;
'N trà ruisgeadh an sgeudachadh ceart,
Bha chuis na h-eagal an sin.

Ach moladh do dh' Ard-Righ nam feart,
O nach b'àill leis teachd d'ar sgrios;
'Nuair chunnaic e Adhamh na airc,
Rinn e cumbhannt' nan gràs ris.

Thainig Iosa 'nuas le thoil,
Thug e suas mar iobhart fhuil;
Mac na firinn, Uan gun chron,
M'ar ciontainn-e fhuair e ghuin.

Crochadh e ri crann an aird,
'S an t-sleagh saíte tro a chorp;
Crùn geur na péine chuir mù cheann,
Fhuair mac Dhé le nàimhde lot.

Crùn sgithich, an aite crùn righ,
Mar thailceas, 's mar dhì-meas mòr;
Domblas agus fion geur,
'N deoch a thug iad dha ri h-bl.

'S a dh' fhuilige air son an t-sluagh;
Sgoilt brat an teampuill sios gu lèr,
'S dhùisg na mairbh an aird o'n uaigh.

Chreathnaich an talamh trom, le crith,
Air a ghrein gu'n tainig smal;
Le feirg Dhé, do chrath e 'n sin;
Dh-fhuilige Criod am bàs rè seal.

Dh-adhlaic iad an t-Uan fo lic,
Thug e buaidh, san uaigh cha d' fhan;
As a bhàs thug e gheur-ghuin,
'S dh-eirich an treas là gun smäi.

Na shuidh' aig deas-laimh athar a ta,
Criod le gràsan os ar ceann;
A' cur oifig sagairt an guiomhl,
A' deasachadh a rioghachd dhuinn.

Thig an t-am san tig mac Dhé,
Creidibh sud gur sgeula fior;
Le mìltibh mìl' de dh' ainglibh treun,
Thoirt oirnne breith a réir ar gniomh.

'N sin seinnear an trompaid gu h-ard,
Leis na h-ainglean 's àille smuagh;
Eiridh na mairbh an aird o'n ùir,
'S bheir e cùnnatas uaithe an cuan.

Liubhraidi gach uaigh na fhuair i-féin,
'S cha bhi neach de'n treud air chall;
Nochdar iad uil' am fiadhuis Dé,
'S e Mhac féin is breitheamh ann.

Bithidh iadsan soilleir an sin,
Mar sholus dealrach an dreach;
Thig Criod nan coinneamh le gean,
'S biadh sith an comunn nam flath.

Ni thu 'n sin tearbadh air gach neach,
'S dionaidh tu o'n fleirg na's leat,
Mhead 's tha air an dearbhadh dhut,
Cuirear iad fo dhion do bhrait.

Cuirear na gobhair air laimh chlì,
Chum triall gu priosan a' bhròin ;
Druidear suas, 's gur cruaidh an sgeul,
Flath-Innis Dhé air an sròn.

Mallaichidh 'n nighean a mathair,
Mallaichidh mhathair a clann;
'S mallaichidh 'n t-athair a mhac,
Nach do ghabh a smachd 'na àm.

'S iomadh sgairteach, a's gul geur,
Ri h-am cluintinn sgeul an cràidh;
Mallachadh a chéile gu léir,

Sin là an dealachaiddh bhochd,
G'an sgarachdainn a dh'aindeon riut;
G'an sgiorsadh gu h-aineal an loisg,

An teach d'a miileadh cuirear iad,
Fo dhioghaltais an Ard-Righ;
Gun duil ri furtachd no ri blàs,
Gu bràth, cha tig iad a nios.

Fasaidh 'n cuirp cho chruaidh ri prais,
Mar iarunn an cas san lamb;
G'an cumail beo ann an sior phian,
Teine dian gun fhurtachd là.

Gach aon là mar bhlianna bhuan,
An lagan loisgneach, cruaidh an sàs;
G'an liodairt le teas a's fuachd,*
Sud an duais ge fad an dàil.

* The ancient Caledonians entertained the idea that hell was a cold and inhospitable place, as the following stanza from an old poem will show :—

" 'S maig a roghnaicheas Ifrinn fhuar,
'S gur h-i uamh nan droigheann geur,
Is beag orn Ifrinn fhuar, fhliuch,
Aite bith-bhuan is searbh deoch."

The following lines from Dàn an Fhir Chlaoine give it this character :—

" I sin allaidh na fredine,
Lèd' thugh-cheò as le t-uamh-hhéisdean
A thir nam pian gun bhiadh gun bhàigh,
Dol ad dhàil be sud mo dhéisdinn."

Latha cha bhi ann na dheigh,
 Falaichear na reultan's a ghrian ;
 Sgriosar an saoghal gu leir,
 'S neach cha téid an toll bho Dhia.

M' achanaich riuts', air sgàth do mhic,
 Meadaich mo ghliocas le gràs ;
 'S thoir dhomh mathànas 's gach cùis,
 Seal m'an druid mo shuil le bàs.

ROB DONN.

ROBERT MACKAY, otherwise called Rob Donn, was born in the winter season of the year 1714, at Allt-na-Caillich, in the parish of Durness, in the county of Sutherland, and in that part of the county, properly enough, till of late, designated by its inhabitants and others, "Lord Reay's country," and in the native tongue "Dùthach Mhic-Aoidh," or, "The country of the Mackay." The bard was not the eldest son of his father; he had three brothers, of whom nothing remarkable is remembered. His father, Donald Mackay, or Donald Donn, is not remembered to have been of any poetic talent; but his mother's talents of that description are known to have been more than ordinarily high. She was remarkable for the recital of Ossian's poems, and the other ancient minstrelsy of the land. She lived to a very advanced age; and we have heard an instance of singular female fortitude evinced by her at the age of eighty-two. Having had the misfortune to break her leg, while tending her sheep at a considerable distance from home, she bound it up, contrived to get home unassisted; and while afterwards enduring the operation of setting the fracture, she soothed the pain by crooning a popular air.

If local scenery could be really imagined conducive in any way to the formation or training of poetic genius, of a truth the nursery of our bard might well lay claim to that merit—"the emblem of deeds that were done in its clime." The surrounding localities of his native spot, we believe, are not surpassed in picturesque grandeur by any other in the Highlands of Scotland.

Rob Donn might say of himself, with Pope, that "he lisped in numbers." Ere he had yet but scarcely obtained even the power of lisping, an anecdote is recorded of his infant age of no ordinary description, though homely enough in its history. At the wonted season of making provision for the winter, according to the country's fashion, by slaughtering of beeves, our bard's father, on one occasion, happened to slaughter two, one of which was found inferior in quality to the other. The small-pox, at the time, was committing mournful devastations among the youth of the neighbourhood. While busied in the necessary avocation of curing their winter's beef, the father says, "Now, the best of this beef is not to be touched till we have seen who survives the small-pox to share it." The infant bard, scarcely yet able to articulate or walk, on hearing this, exclaimed, "'S ole a' chuid sin do'n fhear a dh' fhalbhas !" i. e. "He who departs will have a bad share of it, then!" "True, my boy," said the father, "and yours will never be a bad share, while you remain able to use it."

The first verse he is said to have composed, was when he had attained only his third year. Its occasion indeed testifies that his age could not have been much more at the time. It was the country's fashion for children, when they had little more than left the nurse's lap, to be dressed in a short frock, or cassock, formed close to the body round the waist, and buttoned at the back. A tailor had fitted our youthful author with such an habiliment, and next morning the child was anxious to exhibit it; but his mother, and the domestics, having been summoned early to some out-door pursuits, Robert became anxious to get abroad in his new garb, but found himself quite defeated in every attempt to button it on. He took the alternative of sallying forth in a state of nudity; when, being met by his mother coming towards the house, she chided him for being seen in this state. Robert's defence was made in the following stanza:—

“ ’S math dhomhsa bhi ’n diugh gun aodach,
Le slaoaireachd Mhurchaidh ’Ic Neill,
Mo bhroilleach chur air mo chùlthaobh,
’S gun a dhùnad agam fhéin!”

reproaching the tailor for the trick he had played him, in placing the buttons behind, and lamenting his own inability to accommodate the new dress to his person. His next exhibition of poetic promise was given in the same year, we are told, in the harvest season, when all the inmates of the family were employed in reaping. An old woman, who acted as nurse to the children, was on this occasion called to the sickle. She complained that the more active labourers had jostled her out of her place, and left her only to reap the straggling stinted stalks that grew in the border furrow. While muttering her disappointment, Robert, scarce able but to creep at his nurse's elbow, endeavoured to rally her with a verse:—

“ Bi-sa dol a null ’s a nall,
Gus a ruig thu grunnd na clais’,
Cha ’n ’eil air, ma tha e gann,
Ach na tha ann a thoirt as.”

At the age of six or seven years, he attracted the particular attention of Mr John Mackay, the celebrated Iain Mac-Eachuinn, a gentleman of the family of Sherray, then living on the neighbouring farm of Musal. This gentleman, of poetic talents himself, prevailed with our author's parents to allow their child to come into his service, or rather into his family, at the early age we have mentioned. In this family our author remained as a servant from this age till the period of his marriage. Here he experienced liberal treatment, and sincere, unvaried kindness, of which he ever retained a lively and grateful recollection, especially towards his master; and it is no trifling praise to both, that though they once or twice latterly had a difference, the bard's esteem and affection returned when the casual excitement had passed; and when it lay upon his mind, he was never once known to have given it the least utterance in any shape bordering upon disrespect, and after his death the bard composed an admirable elegy to his memory, which combines as forcible, energetic description of character and conduct, with as pure poetic power as can be found in any poetry of its kind. The bard most feelingly and pathetically concludes it with a solemn appeal of his having mentioned no virtue or trait of which he was not himself a witness.

A youth of our author's poetic mind could not be expected to remain long a stranger to the more tender susceptibilities of his nature. Nor has he left us in ignorance of his first love. It is the subject of one of his finest songs:—“S trom leam an àiridh,” &c. Here his passion breathes with an innocent, simple faithfulness, with an ardour and truth of poetic recital, that no lays of the kind can perhaps surpass.

After his marriage, Rob Donn first resided at the place of Bad-na-h-achlais, then probably forming a part of his late employer's tenure. It was, we believe, soon after this period, that Robert was hired by Lord Reay to the office of a cow-keeper, at that time an office, though a humble one, of considerable responsibility and trust. In this station he continued for the greater part of his after life-time. We have not been able to ascertain dates with precision, to say whether it was before or after having accepted this office that our bard enlisted as a private soldier in the first regiment of Sutherland Highlanders, which was raised in 1759. He did not enlist so much as a soldier, as he was urged by the country gentlemen holding commissions in that corps, and as he himself felt inclined to accompany them. The regiment was reduced in 1763, and our bard returned to his home.

Though we have said that he spent mostly the after period of life, since he entered the service of Lord Reay, in that office, it was not without interruption. He left his servitude at one time, and we are inclined to think it was then he went into the military service. While he had charge of Lord Reay's cattle, and his wife of the dairy, during the summer months, it was also his province to look over them during the winter months: and it became a part of his duty, or an employment connected with it, to thresh out corn for supplying the cattle with fodder. To the laborious exercises of the flail, the bard could never submit. He employed servants to perform this part of his duty. That was, however, taken amiss, and he was told that he must himself wield the flail or leave the situation. He chose the latter alternative; and removed, with his family, to the place of Achmore, in that part of the parish of Durness which borders upon Cape Wrath. Indeed, though we have no decided authority for the supposition, we are inclined to believe that the difference between him and his noble employer originated in another cause than that ostensibly alleged. The bard had been dealing his reproofs rather freely. No feeling of dependance; no awe of superior rank or station, ever restrained him from giving utterance to his sentiments, or from enjoying his satire, whenever what he conceived to be moral error, or evil example, called for reproof. And this was dealt with the dignity that belongs to virtue, refusing, as he always did on such occasions, to compromise that dignity by indulging in personal invective. But whatever was the cause of the difference that occasioned his removal, he was soon recalled, and left not the service again during the life of the chief.

Robert continued to attend his usual avocations till within a fortnight of his death, which took place on the 5th August, 1778, being then aged 64 years. The death of the bard caused a universal feeling of sadness, not only in his own native corner, but over the whole county. It might be said that there was no individual but mourned for him as a friend: those only excepted whose continued immoralities and errors had rendered them objects on which fell with severity the powerful lash of his satire.

His stories of wit and humour were inexhaustible; and, next to superior intelligence and acuteness of mind, formed perhaps in his every-day character the most distinguishing feature. He had ever a correct and delicate feeling of his own place; but if any one, high or low, superior or equal, drew forth the force of his sarcasm upon themselves, by assuming any undue liberty on their part, it was an experiment they seldom desired to repeat. His readiness and quickness of repartee often discovered him where he had been personally unknown before. At one time, when travelling northward through a part of Argyllshire, he met by chance with Mr M'Donald of Achatriochadan, well known in his own country as a man of notable humour and distinguished talents. Robert addressed to this gentleman some question relative to his way; and giving a civil answer, Mr M'Donald added, "I perceive, my man, by your dialect, you belong to the north—what part there?" "To Lord Reay's country." "O! then, you must know Rob Donn!" "Yes I do, as well as I know myself. I could point him out to you in a crowd." "Pray do inform me, then, what sort of person he is, of whom I have heard so much." "A person, I fear, of whom more has been spoken than he well deserves." "You think so, do you?" The last answer did not please the inquirer, who was poetic himself, thinking he had met with too rigid a censurer of the northern bard, and the conversation ceased, while they both proceeded together on their way. After a pause, Mr M'Donald, pointing to Ben-Nevis, which now rose in the distance before them, says, "Were you ever, my man, at the summit of yonder mountain?" "I never was." "Then you never have been so near to heaven." "And have you yourself been there?" "Indeed I have." "And what a fool you have been to descend!" retorted the bard, "are you sure of being ever again so nigh?" M'Donald had caught a tartar. "I am far deceived," said he, "if thou be not thyself Rob Donn!" The bard did not deny it, and a cordial friendship was formed between them.

To Rob Donn's moral character testimony has already been borne. It was uniformly respectable. To those acquainted with what may well be denominated the moral and religious statistics of the bard's native country at that time, and happily still, it will furnish no inconsiderable test not only of his moral but of his strictly religious demeanour, that he was chosen a ruling elder, or member of the Kirk Session of the parish of Durness. In that country such an election was never made where the finger of scorn could be pointed at a blemish of character. It scarcely requires to be told, that his society was courted not alone by his equals, but still more by his superiors in rank. No social party almost was esteemed a party without him. No public meeting of the better and the best of the land was felt to be a full one, without Rob Donn being there.

In the bosom of his own humble but respectable family, we have good authority for saying that he was a pattern in happiness and in temper. A family of thirteen were mostly all spared to rise around him, trained to habits of industry and of virtue. None of them became celebrated as inheriting their father's genius; but some of his daughters possessed more or less of the "airy gift;" and from their attempts at repartee and impromptu, the father used frequently to draw much mutual and harmless enjoyment. His wife had a musical ear and voice unrivalled in the country; and any ordinary pastime of their winter evenings was for the family and parents to join their voices in song; while we believe, that when the father's absence did not prevent, they never ceased to exemplify the most sacred lineaments of the immortal picture in "The Cottar's Saturday Night."

Rob Donn's compositions may be classed into four kinds—Humorous, Satirical, Solemn, and Descriptive; all these severally, with few exceptions, belonging to the species of poetry commonly called Lyrical. He was illiterate; he knew not his alphabet. The artificial part of poetry, if poets will grant that expression legitimate, was to him utterly unknown. Perhaps he never took more than an hour or two to compose either his best or his longest songs. Even the most of the airs to which he composed are original, which presents as a single circumstance the resources of his mind to have been of no ordinary extent. His works were published in Inverness, with a memoir prefixed, in 1830.

In forming an estimate of the moral and poetical merits of Rob Donn, his biographer has been more guided by the opinions and prejudices of his countrymen, than by a just and impartial examination of the poet's works. In poetry, as in religion, we may be allowed to judge men by their fruits. Rob has been held up as a man of high moral and religious worth; but the editor himself admits, that many of his pieces are too indelicate for publication.

Many of his published pieces are such as no good man ought to have produced against his fellow creatures. His love of satire was so indiscriminate, that he often attacks persons who are not legitimate objects of ridicule. Little men and women are the unceasing objects of his satire; and he does not spare the members of his own family.

He was proud of his own powers of satire, and seemed to enjoy the dread of those who feared the exercise of his wit. His satire is not rancorous and vindictive, but playful and sportive; more calculated to annoy than to wound. If he was not invited to a feast or wedding, next day he composed a satire, full of mirth and humour, but too indelicate to be admitted into his book. He has not the wit and poignancy of Macintyre, who composed his satires while in a state of irritation to punish his enemies.

As a writer of elegies, he is more distinguished for sober truth, than poetical embellishment. He hated flattery; and, in closing an elegy on the death of a benefactor, he declares that he had recorded no virtue that he had not himself observed.

As a poet he cannot be placed in the highest rank. He is deficient in pathos and invention. There is little depth of feeling, and very slender powers of description to be found in his works; and, when the temporary and local interest wears away, he can never be a popular poet.

Yet, Rob Donn has been honoured more than any of his brother poets in the Highlands. A subscription having been raised among his countrymen for a monument to his memory, it is now erected in the parish burying-ground of Durness, over his grave. Its foundation stone was laid on 12th January, 1829, with masonic honours, and a procession to the burying-ground, not only of the whole parish, but joined by numbers from the other parishes of "Lord Reay's country," headed by Captain Donald Mackay, of the 21st regiment of foot, who has done himself honour worthy of record by his activity and zeal in raising the subscription, and bringing, with his other coadjutors, this intention to its completion. The monument now stands a record of the bard's fame, and an honourable testimony of his countrymen's feelings. It is of polished granite, on a quadrangular pedestal of the same enduring material, and bears the following inscriptions:—

ORAN DO PHRIONNSA TEARLACH.

An diugh, an dingh, gur reusontach
Dhuinn éiridh ann an sauntachas,
An tri-amh lath' air criochnachadh,
De dhara mios a' gheamhraidh dhuinn ;
Dean'maid comunità fáilteach riut,
Gu bruidhneach, gáreach, òranach,
Gu botalach, copach, stópanach,
Le cruit, le céol, 's le damhsaireachd.

Dean'maid comunità fáilteach
Ris an là thug thu an t-saoighail thu ;
Olamaid deoch-sláinte nis
An t-Seumas big o'n d' inntrig thu ;
Le taing a thoirt do 'n Ard Rígh shuas,
Gu 'n d' fhuaire do mháthair liobhraigeadh,
Dheth h-aon bha do na Gàéil,
Mar bha Dàibhidh do chlainn Israel.

Tha cupall bhliadhna' a's ràidhe,
O 'n là thàinig thu do dh' Alba so ;
'S bu shoilleir dhuinn o'n tràth bha sin,
An fhàilte chuir an aimsir oirnn.
Bha daoine measail, miadail bairn,
'S bha àrach nì a' sealbhach' oirnn,
Bha barran trona tir' againn,
Bha toradh frith' a's fairg' againn.

An diugh, an diugh, gur cuimhne leam,
Air puing nach eòir a dhearmad ort,
Mu bhreith a' phrionnsa riòghail so,
Dhe 'n teaghlach dhùrich Albannaich ;
Togamaid suas ar sùilean ris,
Le ùrnuigh dhlù gun chealgaireachd,
Ar làmhan na 'm biodh feum orra,
Le toil 's le eud 's le earbalachd.

Togamaid fñirm a's meanmnadh ris,
Is aithnichear air ar dùrachd sinn,
Le latha chumail sunndach leinn,
As leth a' phrionnsa Stiùbhartaich ;
Gur cal' an àm na h-éigin e,
Ar carraig threun gu stiùireadh air ;

Gun bhonn do dh' eis 'n a nàdur dheth,
Mar Sholamh, 'n cleachdadh reusanta,
Mar Shamson, treun an làmhan e,
Mar Absalom, gur sgiamhach e,
Gur sgiath 's gur dion d' a chàirdean e.

Nach fhaic sibh féin an spéis
A ghabh na speuran gu bhí 'g ùmhlaadh dha ;
'N uair sheas an reannag shoilseach,
Anns an line an robhse stiùireadh leis ;
An comhar' bh' aig ar Slànuighear,
Ro Theàrlach thigh'n do 'n dùthaich so,
'N uair chaidh na daoine ciallach ud
G' a iarraidh gu Ierusalem.

A nis, a Theàrlaich Stiùbhairt,
Na 'm biodh an crùn a th' air Seòras ort,
Bu lionmhor agaunn cùirtearan,
A' caitheamh ghùn is chleòcaichean ;
Tha m' athchuing ris an Tì sin,
Aig am beil gach ni ri òrduchadh,

ORAN NAN CASAGAN DUBHA.

[A rinn am bàrd 'n uair chual' e gu 'u do bhacadh an t-eideadh Gàilach le lagh na rioghachd ; agus muinnir a dhùthcha fein bhi uile air taobh righ Deòrsa 's a' bhliadhna 1745.]

LAMH' Dhé leinn, a dhaoine,

 A' mheud 's a fhuair sibh an uiridh,
 Ged bu diombuan r'a òl e,
 Bheir sibh 'm bliadhn' air ath-philleadh,
 Air son uinneagan led'sain.

Cha robh bhliadhna na taic so,

Ach ma dh-aontaich sibh rìreadh,
 Ri bhur sior dhol am mugha,
 Ged a bha sibh cho rioghaill,
 Chaithd bhur cisean am modhad ;
 'S math an airidh gu 'n faicté
 Dream cho tais ribh a' cumha,

Och ! mo thruaighe sin Albainn !
 'S tòr a dhearbh sibh bhur reuson,
 Gur i 'n roinn bh' ann bhur n-inntinn,

 Ann's gach neach a thionndaidh ris fèin dhibh,
 'S thug iad baoight do bhur gionaich,
 Gu 'r cuir fo mhionach a chéile.

Ghlac na Sasunnaich fàth oirbh,
 Gus bhur fagail ni 's laige,
 Chum 's nach bitheadh 'g ur cunnatadh,

 Ach 'n uair a bhios sibh a dh-easbhuidh
 Bhur n-airm, 's bhur n-acuinnean sraide,
 Gheibh sibh sèarsaigeadh mionaitch,
 Is bidh bhur peanas ni 's graide.

Tha mi faicinn bhur truaighe,
 Mar ni nach cualas a shamhuil,

 Mu 'n téid bhur busan a cheangal.

'N uair thig bagradh an nàmhaid,
 Gus an lit anns do phill e,
 'S ann vu minath leam a chàrldean,
 Sibh bhi 'n aireamh na luidhne,

D' am biodh spioraid cho Gàelach,

 Tha mar nathraighean folait,
 A chail an earradh an uraidh,
 Ach tha 'g ath-ghleusadh an gathan,
 Gu éirdih latha do thiginn.

'S iomadh neach a tha guidhe,

 Gus an éireadh na cuingean,
 Dheth na bhuidheann tha 'n éigin ;
 A tha cantainn 'n an cridhe,
 Ged robh an teanga 'g a bhreugadh,
 "Lànn do bheatha gu t-fhaicinn,
 A dh' ionnsuidh Bhreatainn a's Eirinn."

'S iomadh òganach aimsichte,
 Tha 's an àm so 'n a chadal,
 Eadar bràighe Srath-Chluanaidh,
 Agus bruachan Loch-abair ;

 'S a dh' ath-philleadh na Ceathairn,
 A dhìoladh latha Chulodair.

Ach a chàirdean na cùirte,
 Nach 'eil a' chùis a' eur feirg oirbh,
 Na 'do dh' thosgail bhur sùilean,
 Gus a' chùis a bhi searbh dhuibh ;
 Bidh bhur duais mar a' ghobhar
 A théid a bhileodhan gu tarbhach,
 'S a bhith'r a' fuadach 's an fhoghar
 Is ruag nan gaothar r'a h-earball.

Ma 's e 'm peacach a 's modha
 'S còir a chumhachd a chlaoidheadh ;
 Nach e Seumas an Seachdamh
 Dhearrbh bhi seamhach 'n a inntinn ?
 "C' uim' an dìteadh sibh 'n onair,
 Na bhiodh sibh moladh na daoidheachd ?"
 'S gur h-e dhìlùitheachd d' a chreideamh
 A thug do choigrich an rioghachd.

Fhuair sinn rìgh á Hanobhar,
 Sparradh oirnne le achd e,
 Tha againn prionna 'n a agaidh,
 Is neart an lagha 'g a bhacadh ;
 O Bhith, tha shuas 'na do bheitheamh,
 Gun chron 's an dithis nach fac thu,—

Note.—This song was composed in praise of a young lady, the daughter of Iain mac Eachuinn, the bard's early friend, to the well known air of the pipe tune, "Fàilte Phraunn's." To those who have attended to the variations of that air, as played properly upon the great Highland bag-pipe, it cannot but appear as a very respectable effort, that the bard has met all its variations, quick and slow, with words and with sentiments admirably suited both to the air and to his subject.—Vide Memoir of Edit. 1820.

RANN AIR LONG RUSPUINN.

[Sean long bheag, a bha air a càradh le ceannaire, bha 'n a shean duine, agus a bhrist roimhe sin; chàraich e an long so, le spruileach luinge chaidh a bhriseadh rì stoirm gcamhraidh air tràigh fagus do Ruspuinn; bha 'n ceannaire pòsd' ri seana nighin-tacan ro'n àm sin, 's iad gun clanna. 'N uair rinn e suas an long, 's ann le luath ranaich mar luchd a chaidh e leatha air a' cheud siubhal.]

SEANA mharaich, seana cheannaich,
Le seana chaileig, 's iad gun sliochd ;
Gunn tuar conaich air a' chual chrannaich,
Is luath rainich air cheud luchd.
Bha sean acair, gun aon taic inntu,
Air sean bhacan, rì sean taigh ;
Leig an sean tobhá gun aon chobhair,
An sean eithear air seana chloich.
Bha triùir ghaisgeach gun neach caisrigt',
Air dhroch eistreadh 'n an caol ruith.
Gu long Ruspuinn nach páigh cuspunn,
An t-seana chupuill nam plàigh rith'.
'S mòr an éis e do fhear pension,

Gun dùil sìneadh ri deagh chluich.

ORAN NAN SUIRIDHEACH.*

FHEARAMH òg' leis am miannach pòsad,
Nach 'eil na sgebil so 'g 'ur fágail trom ?
Tha chuid a' dìomhain' tha cur an lin dibh,
Cha 'n 'eil an trian diubh a' ruigheachd fuinn.
Tha chuid a' s faighreachail' air an oighreachd s',
O 'm beil am prise a' dol air chall,
Mar choirean làidir, cur maill' air páirtidh,
Tha harail chàirdean, a's gràdh gun bhonn.

Tha fear a' suiridh an diugh air inighean,
Gun bharail iomraill nach dean e tèrn ;
Bha i uair, 's bu chumha buairidh,
A ghuth d' a cluas, a's a dhreach d' a sùil.
An sean ghaol cinnteach bla aig ar sinnsir',
Nach d'fhuair ceadimeachdair feadh na dùthch',
Nach glan a dhearrbh i, gu 'n deach' a mharbhadh,
'N uair ni i bàrgan, 'nuair thig fear ùr.

'S ionadh caochladh thig air an t-saoghal,
'S che chan an fhìrin nach 'eil e crois',
Na h-uile maighdean a ni mar rinn i,
Tha fois a h-inntinn an cunnart feasd.
An duine treubhach, mur 'eil e spréidheach,
A dh' aindeoin eud, tha e fèin 'g a chosg,
'S le comhairl' ghòraich a h-athair dhòlum,
'G a deanamh deònach le toic, 's le trosg.

O 'n tha 'n gaol ac' air fàs mar Fhaoilleach,
Na bitheadh strí agaibh ri bhi pòsd',
'A seasmachd intinn cha 'n 'eil thu cinnteach,
Rè fad na h-aon oidhech' gu teacnd an lò ;
An tè a phàirticheas riut a cairdeas,
Ged tha i gràdh sud le caint a beòil,
Fo cheann seachduin, thig caochladh fleasgaich,
'S cha 'n fhaigh thu facal dh'i rè do bheò.

Ach 's mòr an näire bhi 'g an sàrachadh,
Oir tha páirt dhiubh de 'n inntinn stòlt',
Mach o phàrantan agus chàirdean,
Bhi milleadh ghràidh sin tha fas gu h-òg ;
Mur toir i aicheadh do 'n fhearr a's fearr leath',
Ged robh sud craiteach dh'i fad a beò,
Ni h-athair feargach, a beatha searbh dh'i,
'S gur fearr leis marbh i, na 'faicinn pòsd'.

Faodaidh reason a bhi, gu tréigeadh
An fir a' beusach' a théid 'n a triall ;
Ged tha e cairdeach, mur 'eil e pagach,
Ud ! millidh pràcas na th' air a mhiann ;
Tha 'n duine suairee, le barrachd stuamachd,
A' call a bhuannachd ri tè gun chiall ;
'S fear eile 'g éiridh, gun stic ach léine,
'S e cosnadh géill dh'i mu 'n stad e srian.

Mur 'eil stuamachd a' cosnadh gruagaich,
Och ! ciod a' bhuaidh air am beil a geall ?
Nach mor an neònachas fear an dùchais so,
Gun bhi cnòdach ni 's modha bonn ;
Fear eile sìneadh le mire 's taosnad,
Le comunn faoilteach, no argneadh trom,
'S ge math na trì sin gu cosnadh aontachd,
Cha 'n 'eil a h-aon diubh nach 'eil a' call.

Ma tha e pagach, ma tha e sgathach,
Ma tha e näach, ma tha e mear ;
Ma tha e sanntach, ma tha e greannar,
Ma tha e cainnteach, a's e gun chron ;
Ma tha e bòidheach, ma tha e seolta,
Ma tha e còmhnaid, ma tha e glan ;
Ma tha e dìomhain, ma tha e gnòmhach,
Ud, ud ! cha 'n fhiach le a h-aon diubh sin !

Ma tha e pagach, tha e gun näire,
'S ma tha e sgathach, cha bheag a' chrois ;
Ma tha e gaolach, tha e 'n a chaora ;
'S ma tha e faoilteach, tha e 'n a throsig ;
Ma tha e gnòmhach, their cuiid, " Cha'n fhiach e,
Tha 'm fear ud miòdhair, 's e sud a chron ;"
'S ma tha e failligeach ann ait aiteachadh,
" Cha bhi barr aig", is bi'dh e bochd."

Cò an t-aon fhearr air feadh an t-saoghal,
A tha nis cinnteach gu 'n dean e turn ;
'S nach 'eil a h-aon de na tha mi 'g innseadh,
Nach 'eil 'n a dhíeadh dha air a chìl.

An duine meanmnach, 's e toimhseil, ainmeil,
Cha chluinn thu 'ainm ach mar fhear gun diù ;
'S nach fhaic thu féin, air son iomadh reusoin,
Gu 'n deach' an spréidh os ceann céille, 's cliù.

Tha fear fós ann, a dh-aindeoin dòchais,
A dh' fhaodas pòsdh gun mhòran char ;
Na'm biodh de chiall aig' na dh' aithnich riamh,
Gu 'n do dh-éirich grian anns au àirdé 'n ear ;
Dean 'n a dhuaire e, a rugadh 'n cuaran,
Thoir baile 's buar dha, a's treabhair gheal ;
Leig labhairt uair dha, ri athair gruagaich,
'S bheir mi mo chluas dhut mar faigh e bean.

A M B R U A D A R.

AIR FONN—"Latha siubhal sléibhe dhomh."

CHUNNA' mise bruadar,
Fhir nach cuala, thig a's cluinn ;
Ma 's breisleach e, cur casg air ;
'S ma tha neart ann, bi 'g a sheinn ;
Na m' b' fhior dhomh féin gu 'm faca mi,
Am Freasdal, 's e air beinn ;
Gach nì a's neach 'n a amhare,
Is e coimhead os an cinn.

Chunna' mi gach seòrsa 'n sin,
A' tigh'nn 'n an cròthaibh, cruinn ;
'S na 'm b' fhior dhomh, gu'n robh mòran diubh,
A b' eòl domh ri mo linn ;
Ach cò a bha air thòs dhiubh,
Ach na daoine pòsdi air sreing,—
'S a' cheud fhear a thuirt facal diubh,
Cruaidh chasaid air a mhnaoi.

Labhair glagair àraidh ris,—
"S tu leig mo naimhdeas leam,
N uair phòs mi ghobach, àrdanach,
Nach obadh cnàmhian rium ;
'S e 's cainnt an taobh mo leapa dh'i,
An uair is pailte rùm,
Gu cealgach, feargach, droch-mheinneach,
'S an droch-nair, teann a null.'

"Their i rìs, gu h-ain-meinneach,
'N uair dh' éireas fearg 'n a sròin,
Gu 'm b' olc mi ann an argumaid,
'S nach b' fheàrr mi thogail sgeòil,—
Cha b' ionann duit 's do e' ainm e sud,
'S deagh sheanachaiddh e 's taigh-òsd',
O ! 's buidhe dhi-s' thug dhachaigh e,
B' e féin am fleasgach còir.

"Nuair chlosas mis' ri smuaineachadh,
Gach trualghe thug mo shùr ;
Their i, sgeigil, beumach, rium,
Gur ro mhath dh-éisdinn sgeul ;
Is their i ris na labhras mi,
Gu 'n canadh clann ni b' fhearr ;
Aon ghniomh, no caiunt, cha chinnich leam,
Nach di-mol i le 'beul."

Thuirt ise :—"Gu 'm b' eudach sud,
'S gu 'n robh e breugach, meall' ;
Is thug i air mar b' àbhaist d'i,
Nach abradh 'bheul-sa drann ;
"Tha 'n adharc sgorrach, éitidh ;
Ach o 'n 's éigin d'i bhi ann,
O ! ciod e 'n t-àite 'n càra dh'i
Bhi fàs, na air a' cheann."

Thubhairt fear de 'n àireamh ud,
Bu tàbhachdaiche bh' ann,
"A Fhreasdail, rinn thu fàbhor rium,
Am páirt 'nuair thug thu clann ;
Ged thug thu bean mar mhàthair dhaibh,
Nach dean gach dàrna h-àm,
Ach h-uile gnòlmh a 's tarzuinne,
Mar 'thachras thigh'n 'n a ceann."

Fhreagair Freasdal reusonta,—
"S e 's feumail dhut bhi stuaim',
'S a liuthad là a dh' éisid mi riut,
Is tu 'na t-éigin chruaidh,
Mu 'n do chumadh léine dhut,
Bha 'n céile sin riut fuaight',
Is ciod iad nis na fàthan,
Air am b' àill leat a cur bhuat?"

"Nach bochd dhomh, 'nuair thig strainsearan,
Bhios ceòlmhor, cainnteach, binn,
'Nuair 's math leam a bhi fialaidh riuth',
'S ann bhios i fiata ruinn ?
'N uair dh' òlas mi gu cùirteil leath',
'S e gheibh mi eùl a cinn,
'S bidh mise 'n sin 'n am bhreugadair,
Ag rádh gu 'm beil i tinn.

"Cha tàmh i 'm baile dithribh leam,
Cha toigh leath' gaoth nam beann,
An t-àite mosach, fasachail,
Am beil an cràbhadh gann ;
'S ged chuir mi làmh ri eaglais i,
Cha 'n fhada dh' fhanas ann,—
'An t-àite dona, tàbhurnach,
Bidh sluagh cur neul 'n a ceann.'"

Sin 'n uair thubhairt Freasdal ris,—
"S e thig do 'n neach ni chòir ;
A bhi ni 's dhùith' r' a dhlèasannas,
Mar 's truime crois 'g a leòn ;

Ged shaoileadh tu gu 'm maitheadh dhut,
Na pheacach thu gu h-bg;
Cha 'n fhear gunn chamadh crannchair thu,
Fhad 's bhios a' cham-chomhdh'l s' beò.

" Cha 'n fhac thu féin o rugadh tu,
Aon cheum de m' obair-s' fiar,
Ged chunnaic mi mar chleachdadh tu,
Do dhreachdan's do chiall:
Cia h-iomadh tric gu beartas,
Bh' air an ditheadh steach 'n ad chliabh,
Nach fhaic thu gur h-aon aisinn dhiot,
A chum air ais sud riámh.

" Aidich féin an fhìrión,
Agus chi thu 'n sin mar bha,
A' mheud 's a ghabh mi shaothair rith',
Gus an caoch'leadhl i ni b' fhearr;
Dh-fheuch bochdainagus beartas dh'i,
Is eulsaint agus sléint',
Is thainig mi cho fagus d'i,
'S a bagairt leis a' bhas.

" Nuair a dh' fheuch mi bochdain dh'i,
'S ann ortsa chuir i 'm fùit;
'S cha mhò a riun an t-socair i
Ni b' fhosgarraich' ri cùch;
Le h-eulsaint' nuair a bhun mi rith',
S ann frionasach a dh-fhas;
An t-slainte bhuam cha 'n aidich i,
'S cha chreid i bhuam am bàs."

Cò sin a chite tighinn,
Dol a bhroidhean ris gu tezun,
Ach duine bha cruaidh chasad
Air a' mhaoi bu ghasd' a bh' ann;
'S e 'g radh :— " Nuair théid mi 'n taice rith',
'S ann bhios oirr' gart a's greann,
'S nuair their mi chainnt a's dealaidh rith',
Gu 'n cuir i căr 'n a ceann.

" Gur h-e trian mo dhìtidh oirr',
Nach bi i faoilidh rium;
Ni i seig a's enaid orm,
Gun ghair' a' tigh'nn á còm;
Nuair bhithreas sinn 'n ar n-aonaran,
Bidh 'caint 's a h-aogas trom,
Ach 'n uain thig na fir gu fuirmeil,
Gheibh sinn òl, a's cuirm, a's fonn.

" A Fhreasdale, rinn thu seirbhe dhomh,
'S ann orm a chuir thu chuings,
'S gu 'm b' eòl dut gu 'n robh m' aimsir,
Is mo mheanmnadh air an cloaidh;
B' fhurasd' dhut 's na bliadhnaibh ud,
Mo riarachadh le mnaoi
Bhiodh ùmhail, cairdeil, rianail dhomh,
'S nach iarradh fear a chaoiadh."

" Dh' fhaodainn-sa do phòsadh
Ris an t-seòrsa tha thu 'g rádh,
Ach 's aonan as a' chìad dhiubh,
Bheireadh riarachadh dhut ráidh;
An tè de 'n nadur neònach ud,
'S nach toireadh pòg gu bràth,
Aon dràm no deoch cha 'n òlar leath',
'S cha dheònaich i do chàch."

Air an dara dùsal dhomh,
'N dèigh dùsgadh as mo shuain,
Chunnaic mi nu daoine sin,
Ag sgoileadh mach mu 'n cuairt;
S na h-uile bean bha pùsda sin,
A' dol 'n an dùnaibh suas,
Ach 's aon tè as an fhichead dhiubh,
Bha buidheach leis na fhuair.

Labhair aon bean iunnsuicht' dhiubh,
Bu mbodha rùm na cùch:—
" Am biadh, an deoch, 's an aodaichean,
Cha 'n fhaodainn bhi ni 's sathaicht';
Ach gu m' fhagail trom, neo-shunndach,
Cha 'n eòl domh pung a's dàch',
Na gealltanais mo thòileachadh,
Gun choimhlionadh gu bràth.

" An duine sin tha mar rium,
Tha sìor ghearan air mo shunnd,
Dhearbhainn féin air 'fhiacail,
Ged nach d' iarr mi, nach do dhiùlt;
Bidh mèran diubh mi-reusonta,
'N uair gheibh thu 'n sgeul gu grunnd,
Tha dùil ac' gu 'n ghluais mireag riuth',
An spiorad nach 'eil ann'.

" S neònach leam an dràsda 'n so,
Sior àbhaist nam fear pòsd',
Their gu ladarn' dàna,
Nach do thoirmisg aithne pòg;
Cia mòr an diùbhcas beusan
Th' eadar eucoir agus còir,
Cha 'n eòl domh aite-seasaimh,
Gun a chos air aon diubh dhò."

Chunnaic mi 's an àite sin,
Ni àbhachadh gu leòir,
Is shaoil mi gu 'n bu reuson e,
O 'n tigeadh eudach mòr;
Ciod bh' ann ach fear gun chomas,
'G iarraidh comunn té gun chòir,
'S bha fior dhroch bheachd aig ceud deth,
'S a bhean féin 'g a chur an spòrs.

Chuireadh e neul 'n am eanchainn-s',
A bhì 'g ainmeachadh le cainnt,
A' mheud 's a bh' ann de dh-argumaid,
'S do chomunn gearrta greann' ;

Bha na cedan pears' an sud,
 'N an seasainh ann an rànc,
 'S bha casaidean aig mòran diubh,
 Ma 'n aon neach bha toirt taing.

Ach na'm biodh brìgh na mo chomhairl',
So an t-àm am beil Somhairl' n a feum.

Ian Mhic-Uilleim 's an t-Srathan,
Faodaidh deireadh do lathach-s' bhi searbh,
Ged tha'n aimsir-s' cho sìtheil,
'S nach 'eil guth riut mu phris air an tárbbh ;
Chaidh luchd-fàbhoin a bhriseadh,
Na bha'n dreuchd eadar Ruspunn's am Pàrbh ;
Am fear a thig le mòr urram,
Gheibh e ceud mile mallachd 's an fhalbh.*

Note.—Dr Morrison, the hero of this song, was for a long time in high esteem and favour in the family of Lord Reay; but at length a misunderstanding arising between them, he found cause to leave the family, reflecting, at the same time, on the fluctuating temper and unsteady favour of the great, and repeating the old Gaelic adage, “Is sleamhunn an leac a th'aig dorus an taigh' mhòdir.”

M A R B H R A N N.

[Do dhithis mhinistear ro ainmeil 'nan dùthaich, Mr Iain Munro, Ministeir Sgìre Eadarachaoais, agus Mr Dòmhnull Mac-Aoidh, Maighstir-sgoile, sgìre Fair.]

AIR FONN—“Oran na h-aoise.”

'S e mo bheachd ort, a bhàis,
Gur bras thu ri pàirt,
Gur teachdair' tha laidir, treum, thu ;
An cogadh no'm blàr,
Cha toirear do shàr,
Aon duine cha tàr do thréigsinn ;
Thug thu an dràs
Dhuinn buille no dhà,
Chuir eaglaisean bànn, a's foghlum ;
Is 's fhurasd dhomh ràdh,
Gur goirid do dhàil,
'S gur tric a' toirt beàrn 'n ar Cléir thu.

Bhuin thu ruinn garbh,
Mu'n dithis so dh-fhalbh,
'Nuar ruithi thu air lòrg a chéil' iad ;
C' uime nach d' fhág thu

* “ Hate dogs their flight, and insult mocks their end ”
Johns. Pan. Hum. Wishes.

Bhudhean a b' àirde,
A bhiodh do chàch ro rheumail ;
A bhruidhean a b' fheàrr
A' tighinn o'm beul,
'S an cridheachan làn de reuson ;
Chaidh gibh-teachan gràis
A mheasgadh 'n an gnàths,
'S bha'n cneasdachd a' fàs d' a réir sin.

Dithis bha'n geall
Air gearradh á bonn,
Gach ain-iocdh, gach feall, 's gach eucoir ;
Dà sholus a dh-fhalbh
A earrannan garbh',
Dh-fhig an talamh-sa dorch d' a réir sin ;
Ge d' tha e ro chrnaidh,
Gu'n deach' iad 's an uaigh,
Tha cuid a gheibh buaidh a's feum dheth ;
Mar ris gach aon ni,
Dh-aithris iad dhuinn,
Chaidh 'n gearradh á tim an leughaidh.

Dithis a bh' ann,
Bu chomhairl' 's bu cheann,
Do phobull fhuair àm g' an éisdeachd ;
Dithis, bha'm bàs
'N a bhriseadh do chàch,
Gidheadh gu'm b'e'm fàbhor fèin e ;
Cha ladurn gu dearbh,
Dhuinn chreidsinn 'nuair dh-fhalbh,
Gu'n d' fhreagair an earbs' gu lèir iad ;
A dh' ainecoin an aoig,
B'e'n cairde gaoil,
'Nuair sgair e o thìr nam breug iad.

Tha sgeulan r' a inns'
Mu dhéigbhinn na dith's,
A's feumail a bhi sna ceudan ;
Feudaidh mi ràdh,
Cia teunach am bàs,
Nach tug e ach pairt d' a bheum uainn,
Ged thug e le tinn,
An corpa do'n chill,
Bidh ionradh ro bhinn 'n an dèigh orr' ;
Is ionadh beul cinn,
Ag aithris 's gach liun,
Na labhair, na sheinn, 's na leugh iad.

Sinne tha làthair,
Tuig'maid an t-stràchd-s',
Is cleachdamaid trà air reuson ;
Nach faic sibh o'n bha,
An lathachan s' geàrr,
Gu'n rnith iad ui b' fheàrr an réis ud ;
'S mac-sambuil dhuinn iad,
Ged nach 'eil sinn cho àrd,

Anns na nitheanaibh cràbhaidh, leughant' ;
 Na earb'maid gu bràth,
 Gu 'n ruig sin an t-àit's
 Mur lean sinn ri páirt d' an ceuman.

Tha 'n teachdair s' air tòir
 Gach neach a tha beò,
 'G an glacadh an cùir no 'n eucoir ;
 Na gheibh e 'n a dhùrn,
 Cha reic e air òir,
 Ri gul, no ri deoir cha 'n èisd e.
 Chi mi gur fiù
 Leis tighinn do 'n chùil,
 Gu fear th' ann an clùd mar éideadh ;
 'S ged dheanamaid dùn,
 Cha cheannaich e dhuinn,
 Aon mhionaid de dh-ùin o 'n eug sin.

An dithis so chuaidh,
 Cha rachadh cho luath,
 Na 'n gabhadh tu uainn an éirig ;
 Cha leig'maid 'n an dith's
 Iad as aon aon mhios,
 Na 'm b' urradh sinn diol le seudan :
 Ach 's teachdair ro dhàin'
 Thu, tighinn o 's àird,
 Buailidh tu stàtaibh 's déircean ;
 Cha bhacar le 'pris,
 Air t' ais thu a rìs,
 'S tu dh' easbhuidh an aoin mu 'n téid thu.

Glacaidh tu chloinn
 A mach bho m' bheroinn,
 Mu 's faic iad ach soills' air éigin ;
 Glacaidh tu 'n òigh,
 Dol an coinneamh an òig,
 Mu 'm feadar am pòsadh éigheachd.
 Ma 's beag, no ma 's mòr,
 Ma 's sean, no ma 's òg,
 Ma 's cleachdamh dhuinn cùir no eucoir ;
 Ma tha sinn 'n ar beò,
 Is anail 'n ar sròn,
 Cuirear uile sinn fo na féich ud.

Tha 'm bàs os ar cinn,
 'G ar glacadh le tinn,
 S le fradhrac ar cinn cha lèir e ;
 Ach tha glaoch aig' cho cruaidh,
 S gu 'm faodadh an sluagh,
 A chluinntinn le cluasan reusoin.
 Nach dearc sibh a chùl,
 Is fear aig' fo iùil,
 S e sealtuinn le 'shùil gu geur air ;
 An diugh ciod am fàth,
 Nach bidh'maid air gheàrd,
 'S gu 'n bhuin e ar nàbuidh 'n dé bhuainn.

A chumhachd a tha
 Cur chugainn a bhàis,
 Gun teagamh nach pioghear 'fhéich dha ;
 Tha misneachd a's bonn
 Aig neach a tha 'n geall,
 Air tagradh na gheall do bheul dha,
 Oir 's athair do chlann
 A dh' fheitheas a th' ann,
 'S fear-taighe do 'n bhantraich fèin e ;
 'S e'n Cruithear a th' ann,
 A bheir gu neo-ghann,
 Na thoilleas sinn anns a' chreutair.

M A R B H R A N N,

DO MHAIGHSTIR, MURCHADH MAC-DHOMHNUILL,
 MINISTEAR SGIRE DHIURINNIS
 AN DUTHAICH MHIC-AOIDH.

'S e do bhàs, 'Mhaighstir Murchadh,
 Rinn na h-àitean so dhoreadh,
 'S ged chaidh dàil ann do mhabhrann,
 Labhraidh balbhachd ri cùil.
 Na 'm biodh a' Chriosdaidheachd ionlan,
 Cha rachadh dì-chuimhn' air t-iomradh,
 No do ghnìomharan ionlaid,
 Ach leantadh t-iomchan-s' gu léir ;
 Gur h-e chràdh mi 'n am mheanmnadh,
 'S do luchd-gràidh agus leanmhunn,
 Meud do shaothrach mu 's d' fhàllh thu,
 'S lugh'd a luig as do dhéigh ;—
 Bheir cuij leasanan buadhach,
 O bhruaich fasanan t-uaghach,
 Nach tug daiseachan suarach,
 As na chual iad bhuat fèin.

Fior mbasgull chionn pàidhidh,
 No stad gealtach le gàbhadh,
 Blàrrigh mo bheachd-s' ann an dànaibh,
 'S mi nach deanadh, 's nach d' rinn :
 Ach na 'm biodh comain no stà dhut,
 Ann a t-ailladh chur os àird dut,
 Co ach mis' do 'm bu chàra,
 'S co a b' fheàrr na thu thoill ?
 Bhuidhean mholtach-s' a dh-fhàg sinn,
 Ged nach urr' iad a chlàistinn,
 'S còir bhi 'g aithris am páirtean,
 Gun fhàbhor, 's gun fhoil,
 Oir 's buain' a' chuimhne bheir bàrd,
 Air deagh bhuadhannaibh nàduir,
 Na 'n stoc cruinn sin a dh-fhàg iad,
 Is comh-stri chàirdean 'g a roinn.

Bha do ghibhteans-a làdir,
 Air am measgadh le gràsan,
 Anns a' phearsa bha àluinn,
 Lom-làn de na chéill ;

An tuigs' bu luchdmhoir' gu gleidheadh,
 An toil a b' èasgaidh gu matheadh,
 'S na h-uile h-aigeadh cho flathail,
 Fad do bheatha gu léir.
 Bhiodh do chomhairl' an còmhnuidh,
 Le do chobhair 's do chòmhnuadh,
 Do luchd-gabhlai na cùrach,
 Réir 's mar sheòladh tu féin ;
 Dheanadh tu 'n t-aindeonach deònach,
 Is an t-aineolach eòlach—
 'S b' e fior shonas do bheòslaint,
 Bhi tabhairt còrr dhaibh dé leáirs'.

Bha thu caomh ri fear feumach,
 Bha thu saor ri fear reusont',
 Bha thu aodanach, geurach,
 Mar chloich, ri eucoireach, cruaidh ;
 Bu tu 'n tabhairteach maoineach,
 Bu tu 'n labhairteach saothreach,
 Bu tu 'n comhairleach timeil,
 'S crìoch a' ghaoil ann ad fhuath ;
 Tha e 'n a ladarnas gàbhaidh,
 Bhi le h-eagal ag àicheadh,
 Nach 'eil stoc aig an Ard-Rìgh,
 Ni an àird na chaidh uainn ;
 Ach 's fàbhor Freasdail, 's a' ioghnadh,
 No 'n ni a' faisge do mhìorbhùil,
 Am bearn so th' againn a lionadh,
 Gu blas miannach an t-sluagh.

Leam is beag na tha dh' fhoighneachd,
 Mu na thubhairt, 's na rinn thu,
 'S mu na chliù sin a thoill thu,
 O 'n là chaill sinn thu féin ;
 Ach mòran tartar is stroighlich,
 Air son féich, agus oighreachd,
 Fàgaidh beartaich mur f'hine e,
 Air an cloinn as an déigh ;
 'S e ni a' s minig a chi mi,
 Dh' aindeooin diombunachd time,
 Gu'm beil gionaich nan daoine,
 Tarruinn claoindh 'n an cùill ;
 Ach cha 'e 'eil ionairst no mòtion,
 Annas na freasdail so dhomhsa,
 Nach toir leasan 'n am chòdhail,
 Le seann nòt bho do bheul.

Toigheach, faicilleach, fiamhach,
 Smuainteach, facalach, gnìomhach,
 Ann do ghnothachaibh diomhair,
 Gun bhi diomhain aon uair ;
 Chaith thu t-aimsir gu saothreach,
 Air son sonas nan daoine ;
 'S cha b' e truailidheachd shaoghalt
 Nu aon ni chur suas.
 'Nuair tha nitheana taitneach,
 Dol a mugh' a chion cleachdaidh,
 B' e chùis pharmaid fear t-fhasain,
 'S cha b' e beartas a's uaills',

A' dol o 'n bheatha bu sheirbhe,
 Tre na cathan bu ghàirbhe,
 Dh-ionnsuidh Flaitheas na tairbhe,
 Gu buan shealbhachadh duais.

Gu'm beil cealgaireachd chràbaidh,
 Air a dearbhadh gu gàbhaidh,
 Tha 'n a gairisinn r' a clàistinn,
 Is ro chràiteach r' a luaidh ;
 Nuair a thuit thu le bàs bhuaninn,
 Mar gu 'm briseadh iad bràighdean,
 Dhùisg na h-uile sin a b' àbhaist,
 A bhi an nàdur an t-sluagh ;
 Gu'm beil cath aig an Ard-Rìgh,
 Gu bhi gabhlai nam pàirtean,
 Anns na chruthaich e grìsan,
 Thug air aghairt gach buaidh ;
 Rinn sud sinne 'n ar fàsach,
 Anns au talamh-s' an trà so,
 So a' Bharail th' aig páirt diubh,
 Tric 'g a ràtann air t-uaigh.

An duine thigeadh a suas riut,
 Ann an guth 's ann an cluasan,
 Cha 'n fhacas riabh a' cha chualas,
 Is e mo smuaintean nach cluinn ;
 Ged bu bheartach do chràbhadh,
 Bha do mheas air gach tálann,
 'S tu a thuigeadh na dàna,
 'S am fear e dheanadh na rainn ;
 Chuid a b' àirde 's a' bhuaidh sin,
 Tha 'd air stad dheth o 'n uair sin,
 Ach na daiseachan suarach,
 Tha mu 'n cuairt duinn a' seinn ;
 'Nuair a cheilear a' ghrian orr'.
 Sin 'n uair ghoireas na biastan,—
 Cailleach-oidhch' agus strianach,
 An coiltean fiadhaich, 's an glinn.

'S eòl domh daoine 's an aimsir-s',
 Dh-fhàs 'n an cuideachd glé ainmeil,
 Tigh'nn air nitheanan talmhaidh,
 Ann an gearrabhaireachd gheur ;
 Ach 'n uair thogar o 'n làr iad,
 Gus na nithibh a' àirde,
 S ann a chluinneas tu páirt diubh,
 Mar na páisdean gun chéill ;
 Fhuair mi ear ann do rianaibh-s',
 Le do ghibhteann bha fialaidh,
 Nach do dhearc mi, ma 's fior dhomh.
 An aon neach riabh ach thu féin,—
 Càil gach cuideachd a lionadh,
 Leis na theireadh tu diomhain,
 'S crìoch do sheanchais gun fhiaradh,
 Tighinn gu diadhaidhachd threun.
 Bha do chuid air a sgaoileadh
 Gu bhi cuideachadh dhaoine,

'S fhad 's a bha thu 's an t-saoghal,
 'S tu nach faodadh bhi páidh' ;
 Chuid bu taitneich' 'n an iomchainn,
 Cha 'n 'eil falal mu 'n timcheall,
 Cha bhi ceartas mu 'n ionradh,
 Ach le 'n imrich, 'n am bàs.
 'S truagh am peanas a thoill sinn,
 Thaobh nan ciontan a rinn siunn,
 Bhi sior ghearradh ar goibhleann,
 'S ar euid theaghlaichean fàs ;
 Gun cheann laidir gu fhoighneachd,
 Co ni 'n hìrde na chaill sinn,
 Cuid, d' an cràdh, là is oidhche,
 Nach tig t-oighre 'na t-àit.

Chaochail iad rianan,
 O chòslaich am bàs thu,
 Cha 'n 'eil meas am bliadhna,
 Air ciall, no air cràbhadh ;
 Thionndaidh na biastan
 Gu riastadh gràineil,
 Leo-san leig Dia,
 Srian o 'n là sin.
 'S cianail, &c.

Rinn euid bròn
 Fa choir do bhàis-sa.
 Ach ghabh iad sgios,
 Ann am mìos no dhà dheth ;
 Cha 'n 'eil mis' mar iadsan,
 Riaraicht' cho trà dheth,—
 An ceann na bliadhna,
 'S cianail a tha mi.
 'S cianail, &c.

CUMHA DO MHR. MURCHADH.

[A rinn am bard an ceann bliadhna an déigh bàis an duin' usáil sin, air iarrtas a mhic am flor Gàéil suairc ionnsaichte, Mr Padruig Mac-Dhòmhnuill, ministear Sgùire Chille-moire an Barragħaél, air dha thigheam do 'n dùthach, agus a bhi aig àm áraich an cuideachd a' bhàird.]

CO-SHEIRM.

'S cianail, a's cianail,
 O! 's cianail a tha mi,
 'N ceann na bliadhna,
 O! 's cianail a tha mi,
 A Mhaighstir Murchadh,
 'S tu air m' fhàgail,
 'S maing nach d' fhuair sinn,
 Linn no dhà dhioit.

'S caomh leam an teaghlaich,
 'S a' chlann sin a dh-fhàg thu,
 'S caomh leam na fuinn,
 Bhidhte seinn ann ad fhàrdach ;
 'S caomh leam bhi 'g ùrachadh
 Chiliù uach tug bàs dhioit ;
 'S caomh leam an ùir th' air do thaobh,
 Dheth na Bhàghan !
 'S cianail, &c.

CHRIDHE NA FÉILE,
 A bhéil na tàbhachd,
 Cheann na céille,
 'S an fhoghluim chràbhaidh,
 Làimh gun ghamntair
 An am dhut paigheadh,
 An nachdar a' bhùird,
 A ghnùis na failte.
 'S cianail, &c.

ORAN A' GHEAMHRAIDH.

AIR FONN—"Through the wood, laddie."

Moch 's mi 'g éiridh 's a mhadainn,
 'S an sneachd air a' bheinn,
 Ann an lagan beag monaiddh,
 Ri madainn ro dhoindidh,
 'S ann a chuala mi 'n lonan,
 Chuair an loinid o sheinn,
 Is am pigidh ag éigheach
 Ris na speuraibh, 's cha bhinn.

Tha mise 'n am aonar,
 Mar aon ann am fàsach,
 'S ni gun fheum dhomh,
 Aobhar ghàire,
 Cuims' ann an cainnt,
 Ann an rann no dàmachd,
 Chionn 's nach 'eil thu ann
 G' an clàistinn.
 'S cianail, &c.

Bithidh am beithe cròn, crotach,
 Sior stopadh o 'fhàs ;
 Mar ri gaoth gharbh shéididh,
 Agus ioma-chathadh 'g éiridh,
 Cròcan barraich a' géilleadh,
 Mìos Éigheach an àil ;
 A' mhìos chneatanach, fhuachdaidh,
 Choimheach, ghruamach, gun tlàths'.

Bi'dh gach doire dubh uaigneach,
 'N dùil fuasgladh o bhlàth ;
 Bithidh an snodhachd a' traoghadh,
 Gus an fhereunn as na shìn e,
 Crupaideh chaitir ris gu dionach,
 Gus an erion i gu lär ;
 'N lon-dubh anns a' mhadainn,
 Siòr sgreadail chion blàiths.

Mhìos dheiitheasach, chaoile,
 Choinheach, ghaotbach, gun bhlàths',
 Chuireadh feedail na fuarachd,
 Annas gach badan bu dualach',
 Dhòirteadh sneachda 'n a ruathar,
 Air chruch nam beanan àrd',
 'S an àm teichidh na gréine,
 Caillidh Phæbus a bhlàths'.

Mhìos chaiseaneach, ghreannach,
 Chianail, chainneanach, gheárt',
 'S i gu clachanach, currach,
 Chruaidhbeach, sgealpanach, phuinneach,
 Shneachdach, chaochlaideach, fhrasach,
 Reòtach, reasgach, gu sàr ;
 'S e na chàcirneinan craidhneach,
 Fad na h-oidhch' air an lär.

'S ann bhios Phæbus 'n a reòtachd,
 An ceap nam mòr chruach 's nam beann ;
 Bidh 's an uair sin 's cha neònach,
 Gach eun gearra-ghobach góineach,
 Spioladh ionall an otrach,
 Cur a shròin anns an ðàm ;
 Còmhradh ciùrrta gun bheadradh,
 Le bròn a's sgreadal 'n an ceann.

'S an àm tighinn an fheasgair,
 Cha bhi an acaras gann ;
 Ni iad còmhnuidh 's gach callaidh,
 Buileach animhunn a's callaidh,
 Sgrìobadh ùir as na ballaibh,
 Mios chùg doininn nan gleann,
 'S iad a' beucail gu toirmeach,
 'S cha bhi 'n eirbheit ach mall.

Ach nach daoichail 's a' gheamhradh,
 Fann ghéim gamluna chion feibir,
 Gnùgach, caol-dromach, fearsnach,
 Tioram, tarra-ghreannach, àrsaiddh,
 Biorach, sgreamanach, fuachdaidh,
 Siltean fuaraidh r' a shròin,
 'S e gu sgrog-laghrach gàgach,
 Fulang sàrach' an reòt.

Bidh gach creutair d' a threisead,
 'G iarraidh fasgaidh 's a' choill,
 Bidh na h-ùrlaichean cabrach,
 Gnùsdach, airtnealach, laga,

Gabhair geilt dheth na mhadainn,
 Le guth a' chneatain 'n an ceann,
 Is na h-aighean fo euslaimh,
 Air son gun thréig iad a' bheinn.

Sud na puit bu ghoirt gearradh,
 Is bu shalaiche seinn,
 Ghabhadh m' iuntinn riamh eagal,
 Roimh bhur sgreadail 's a' mhadainn,
 'N àm a' chruidh bhi air ghadaibh,
 'S an cui'd fodair 'g a roinn,
 'S iad 'n am baideinibh binniceach,
 Gu h-àsruidh, tioma-chasach, tinn.

Am bradan caol bharr an fhìor uisg',
 Fliuch, slaod-earballach, fuar,
 'S e gu tàrr-ghlogach, ronnach,
 Chlamhach, ghear-bhallach, lannach,
 Soills na meirg' air 'n a earradh,
 Fiamh na gainn' air 's gach tuar,
 'S e gu crom-cheannach, burrach,
 Dol le buinne 'na chuach.

An t-samhainn bhagarach, fhiadhaich,
 Dhubhrach, chiar-dhubh, gun bhlàths',
 Ghuiñeach, ana-bhliochdach, fhuachdaidh,
 Shruthach, steallanach, fhuaimneach,
 Thuileach, an-shocrach, uisgeach,
 Gun dad measaich ach càl,
 Bithidh gach deat, a's gach mìseach,
 Glacadh aogais a' bhàis.

Note.—This song appears to be a parody on twelve of the stanzas of M'Donald's "Ode to Summer."—"We are inclined to think that on a journey the poet made to the Isle of Skye, he might have heard M'Donald's 'Summer Song' and composed this in imitation of it."—Memoir to Edit. 1829.

'S TROM LEAM AN AIRIDH.

[Rinn am bàrd an t-ðran so d'a leannan, Anna Moir-iston, nighean òg ro chliùiteach, d'an tug e cheud ghaol ; bha e fada 'g a h-iarraidh, agus isce car leam-leat, gun bhi 'g a diùltadh no 'g a gabhair ; ach turas a thug e chun na h-àiridh far an robh i aig an am, 's ann a dhearc e oirean cuideachd an t-saoir bhàin, d' am b' ainn Iain Moraidh, ghabh e gu ro-throm i a chur chì ris fèin. Phòs i an saor bân an déagh so, agus 'se aithris an t-sluagh-nach robh i riambh toilichte gu 'n chuir i cul ri Rob Donn ; agus cha mho a dhearrbhan saor bân e fèin 'n a chéile ro thaitneach.]

'S TROM leam an airidh,
 'S a ghàir so a th'innt',
 Gu'n a phairt sin a b' àbhaist,

*Note.—*Sally Grant, the subject of the foregoing two songs, was a girl of easy virtue, who followed the Sutherland fencibles. She was at first mistress to the Earl who commanded; she then served the officers, and finally the privates and drummers. Rob composed another song, called "Mòr nigh'n a Ghioarlain," on the same girl, but the Editor has left it, and a number of others of the same description, out of the book on account of their indecency.

ORAN NA CARAIDE BIGE.

THA dithis anns an dùthraig-s',
Tha triall gu dhol a phùsadh ;
'S gur beag an t-aodach ùr,
Ni gùn dhoibh a's léine.

*Hei tha mo rùn dut,
Hò, tha mo rùn dut,
Hèi tha mo rùn dut,
A rùn ghil' na treig mi.*

Dithis a tha bg iad,
Dithis à-tha bòidheach,
Dithis tha gun òirleach
A chòrr air a chéile.

Hei, tha mo run duit, &c.

Ma bhios macan buan ac',
'S gu 'n téid e ris an dual-chas,
Cuiridh e gu luath
An cù-ruadh as an t-saoibhaidh.

Hei, tha mo run duit, &c.

Ach ma théid a chrùsach,
Sgaoilt' air feadh na dùthcha,
Théid prospig ris na sùilean,
Tha dùil a'm, mus léir iad.

Hei, tha mo run duit, &c.

O R A N.

[Do dh' shear chàidh a chòrdadh ri nighin dig, ach cha bhiodh e toilichte mu 'n tochràdù, mur tugadh iad dhà gamhuinn eile bharrachd air na bha iad toileach thoirt seachad ; agus air so a dhiùltadh dha, thrésg e a leannan.]

'S ANN a bhual an iorghuill,
Air an t-suirdheach tha 'n so shòs,
Chuir e 'ùig' air céile,
'S gu 'n do réitich iad 'n an dìos ;
Shaol mi féin 'n uair thòisich iad,
Gu 'n còrdadh iad gun sgòs ;
Ach chum àsraidh beag do ghamhuinn iad,
Gun cheangal corr is mòs.

Sin, 'n uair thuirt a' mhaighdean,
Nach foighnich sibh riùm fior,
Is iansidh mi a rìreadh,
Gu 'm bu chaochlaideach a rian ;
Gu robh e cheart cho deònach,
Ri duin' òg a chualas riamh ;
'S a nis gu 'n ghabh e bhuar dhiom,
O nach d' fhuair e 'n gamhuinn ciar.

Cha e sin air aghairt,
'S ann do Shaghair chàidh e 'n tùs,
Chuir iad fios 'n a dhéighidh,
. Thigh 'nn air aghaidh ann a chùis ;
'S e roghnaich es' an tāillearrachd—
'S i b' fheàrr leis na bhi pùs'd ;
O nach d' fhuair e 'n gamhuinn israidh,
Ged fhaigheadh e 'm bàs de 'n spùt.

Dh-aithnidh mi 's an amharc ort,
Gu robh do thomhas gann,
Chunnaidh mi air t-iomchuinn,
Gu robh 'n iom-chomhairl' 'n ad cheann ;
'S nach robh do spiorad diòmhair,
'G a do ghr̄losadh 's a' cheart àrn ;
'Nuair b' fheàrr leat gamhuinn caoile,
Na do bhean, 's do ghaol, 's do chlann.

H-uile fear a chì thu,
'G a do dhíeadh air do chùl,
Ged leasaich sinn an t-airgead dhut,
Mu cheithir mhàrg 's ni 's mò,
'S e their gach filidh facail riut,
Gu spot chur air do chilù,
Gu 'n d' rinn an gamhuinn bacainn,
Do chontract' chuir air cùl.

'S mis a shuair mo chàradh,
Leis na fearaibh as gach taobh,
A' mheud 's a bha 'g am iarraidh dhiubh,
'S nach b' fhiach leam duin' ach thu ;

Shaoil mi fén 's an fhoghar,
 'Nuaир a thagh mi thu á triùir,
 Nach fanadh tu cho fada bhuam,
 Ged b' fhiach an gamhuinn crùn.

A M B O C G L A S.

ON tha mi na m' aonar,
 Gu'n teann mi ri spòrs ;
 Gu'n cuin mi mar dh-fhaodas mi,
 'M boc air sheol.
 'S gu'n leig mi fios dhachaigh
 A dh-iunnsaidh nan Catach,
 Gur h-e 'm boc glas,
 A bhios ac air an tòs.
Poé hé fanndarai feininn öth-orò,
Hithili fanndarai jeinin öth-orò,
Fa-thel-oth fanndarai feininn öth-orò,
Hithili shiubhal e,
Hannadarai hith-horò,
Fa-thel-öth, fa-thel öth.
 'S iomadh òganach smearail,
 Bha fearail gu leòr ;
 A chunna' mis
 Ann an cogadh rìgh Deòrs'.
 'S cha'n fhaca mi boc,
 Ga thogail air feachd,
 Ach aona bhoc glas
 A Bh' aig mac an Iarl' òig.
Pe he fanndarai, &c.
 'Nuaир thigeadh am Foghar,
 Co dhianadh a bhuain ?
 Co dhianadh an ceanghal,
 No sgrùdhadh an sguab ?
 Co chuireadh na siamanan,
 Ceart air na tudanan ?
 Ach am boc luideach,
 Na'm faigheadh e duais.
Pe he fanndarai, &c.
 Gu'n tug iad a' chobhair ud,
 Bhuaine gun fhios ;
 A's dh' fhadh na gobhair
 Gun bhaine gun bhliochd ;
 Tha sìne nigh'n Uilleim,
 A caoine 'sa tuireadh,
 'Sa suilean a' sileadh
 Air son a bhuid ghlais.
Pe he fanndarai, &c.

Note.—This song was composed on a rake in Sutherlandshire, who, having got a number of young women in the family way, was obliged to take refuge in the Sutherland fences, where the poet gave him the name of Boc Glas—a name that he retained during life. The tune is excellent, and may justly be entitled the first of the Sutherlandshire pipe jigs. It was the poet's own composition. He also composed several other popular airs of great merit.

O R A N.

* The bard and Faolan being one day planting potatoes in a field near a public-house, some acquaintances of the former came that way, who went in to have some refreshment, and took him along with them. Faolan also followed, and got his "shell," but instead of returning again to his work, he went home and told the bard's wife that his master had abandoned the potato planting and went on the spree, and that he could not work by himself. On Rob returning home at night, Faolan's story was related to him, and before supper was ready this song was composed on him.

ORAN AN AINM DITHIS NIGHEAN

IAIN MHIC EACHAINN.

[Tè dhiubh air tighinn dachaigh bho sgoil, agus gun spéis aice nis, na 'm b' fhior, do 'n dùthach ; agus an tè eile, nach robh riamlach o 'n bbaile, a' moladh na dùthcha.]

Cia b' e dheanamh mar rinnu mis',
Bu mhisd se e gu bràth,
Dhol do 'n bheinn, an aghaidh m' inntinn,
Mhill e mi mo shlainnt' ;
Pairt de m' acain, braigheach Mheirceann,
'S àit gun mharcайд e.
Ach spain a's copraich, 's bà-theach fogailt',
'S graine shop ri làr.

Cha 'n 'eil seòmar aig Rìgh Breatainn,
'S taitneich' leam na 'n Càrn,
Oir tha e uaignidheach do ghrugaich,
'S ni e fuaim 'nuair 's àill ;

Feur a's coille, blà a's duille,
 'S iad fo iomadh neul,
 Is ise le echo, mar na teudan,
 Seirm gach séis a 's fearr.

Cha b' àite còmhnuidh leam air Dhòmhnuach,
 A bhi 'n ròig no 'n càrn,
 Oir, mur robh strianach ann air bhliadhna,
 Cha robh riamh ni b' fhearr ;
 Fuaim na beinne, 's gruaim a' ghlinne,
 'S fuathach leam a' ghàir ;
 O! cràdh mo chridhe, reubadh lighé,
 An t-àit an tighe 'm feur.

Ciod am fath mu 'n tug thu fuath sin,
 Do na bruachaibh ard ?
 Nach fhac thu fein, 'nuair thig an spreidh,
 Gur feumail iad le 'n àl ?
 Cha chradh crìdhe, air làrach shuidhe,
 Fuaim na lighe lain,
 Do 'n gnàth bhi claghach roimh a h-aghaidh,
 Is feur na deighidh a' fàs.

Na bha firinneach dheth t-amhran,
 'N fhad 's bha 'n samhradh blàth.
 Rinn e tionndadh oïdhche-Shamhna,
 'S bheir an greamhradh 'shàr ;
 Duille shuidhich' barr an fhiodha,
 Dh-fas i buidhe-bhàn,
 'S tha mais' 'n t-Srath' air call a dhath,
 Le steall de chathadh-làir.

Gleidhich 'n talamh thun an t-samhraidh,
 Sin a chraunn e 'n dràsd,
 Beath a's calltunn latha-bealltuinn,
 Gealltanach air fàs ;
 Bidh gruth a's crathadh air na srathan,
 'S téirgadh 'n caitheadb-làir,
 Nach grinn an sealladh, glinn a' stealladh,
 Laoigh, a's bainne, 's bàrr !

'S barail leam-sa gu 'n do chaill sibh,
 Air na riñn sibh chàis ;
 Dhol do shliabh, gun chur, gun chliathadh,
 'S nach robh biadh a' fàs ;
 B' fhear bhi folluiseach an Goll-thaobh,
 Na bhi 'n comunn ghràisg,
 Air mo dholladh leis an chonnamh,
 Laimh ri bolla fail.

Note.—This is a contrast between the pleasures of a town and a pastoral life, as if by two young ladies, (daughters of the celebrated "Iain Mac-Eachuinn,") one of them returned from the town of Thurso, where she had been sent to school, and the other, yet ignorant of town, upholding the pleasures of rural retirement. The beauties of the bard's own native strath are delineated in strains so sweet that we have only to regret that he did not more frequently indulge his muse in descriptive poetry.

MARBHRANN IAIN GHRE,

ROGHAIKD.

[Agus e air caochladh ann an Siòramachd Pheairt, air a shlighe dol dachaigh do Chat-taobh.]

Tha règairean airtnealach, trom,
 'N taobh bhos agus thall do na Chrasg,
 O 'n chual iad mu 'n cuairt an Ceann-cinnidh,
 Gu 'n do dh-eug e an Siòramachd Pheairt;
 Dh-aindeoin a dhreachdan 's a chiail :
 Cha do chreid duine riamh a bha ceart,
 Aon smid thainig mach air a bheul
 'S cha mhò chreid e fèin Rìgh nam feart.

Cha 'n aithne dhomh aon ni cho laidir,
 'S an t-saoghal-s', ri bàs, gu toirt teum ;
 'N t-stràc thug e an dràsd' oirnn air aghairt,
 Gun do marbh e fear Roghaid do leum.
 Tha Sàtan ro bhrònach, 's cha 'n ioghnadh,
 Ged fhaigheadh e 'n t-aon-sa dha fèin,
 Air son nach 'eil fathast air sgeul aig'
 Fear a sheasas dha 'aite 'na dhéigh.

'S fad a bho chunnacas, 's a chualas,
 Gur teachdaire gruamach am bàs ;
 Gidheadh gum beil euid bh' ann an daoch ris,
 Toirt rud-eigin gaoil da an dràsd' :
 Tha dùil ac' an Cat-thaobh 's an Gall-thaobh,
 Nach urr' iad a mholadh gu bràth,
 Air son gur h-e fèin thug a' cheud char
 A fear thug cùig ceud car á càch.

Sibhse tha mòr agus mion,
 Sibhse tha sean 's a tha òg,
 Thugaibh cheart air' air a' bhàs,
 'Nuair is beartaich' 's is làine bhur cròg ;
 Oir thig e mar mhèirleach 's an oidhch',
 Ged robh sibh uile cruinn mu na bhòrd ;
 'S cha 'n fheudar a mhealladh le foill,
 'S gu 'n do mheall e Ceann-feadhna nan ròg.

Rinn deamhnan is triùcairean talmhaidh,
Election mu chealgair bhiodh treun,
 Co bu stàraich', bu chàraich', 's bu cheilgeich',
 'S a b' fheàrr chuireadh líth air a' bhréig ;
 B' e Sàtan am breitheamh bu shine,
 Da 'm b' aithne gach fine fo 'n ghréin ;
 'S b' i 'bharail nach fhaigheadh e leithid,
 Mur robh e 's na Grèadhaich iad fèin.

Bu mhath leam an ciontach a bhualadh,
 'S cha b' àill leam duin' usal a shealg ;
 'S ged chuireas mi gruaim air a' choireach,
 Cha gabh an duin' onarach fearg :

Tha Caiptein Rob Grè air a dhiùltadh,
Le breitheanas Prionnsa nan cealg ;
Riunn coimeasgadh Reothach a chumadh,
Gu uails' agus duinealas gharg.

Tha breugan a's cuir air am fìagail,
Do 'n shear a 's feàrr tälann g' an inns' ;
Cha cheadaich a' chùis e do Bhàtar,
Tha onoir a's ardhan 'n a ghrìd ;
Ge comasach lain a bhràthair,
Cha 'n fhaigh e an dràsd' i chion aois ;
Ach an sin gheibh e obair an t-Sàtain,
Ceart comh-luath 's is bàs do fhear Chraoich.

M A R B H R A N N,

Tha subhach 's an fhoghar-s' 'n a dhéigh ;
Air son gu 'm buin ionall na cloinne,
Gach ubh a's gach eireag dhaibh féin.

'S glan a tha 'n talamhs-s' u a fhàsach,
O 'nuair chaidh thu bàs o cheann mìos ;
Ge maiseach na macain so dh-fhàg thu,
Cha seas iad dhuinn t-àitse 'n an dios ;
'S ann a tha acuinn do cheàrde,
Mar rud chaidh 'n an clàraibh 's an diosg ,
An t-brd a's am balg ris an teine,
An rusp, a's an t-innein, 's an t-iosp.

'S giorra mo sgil, na mo dhùrachd,
Gu innseadh do chliù mar is còir ;
'S minig a dhearc mi do chruinn-leum
Do 'n àite 'm bu chintich' do lòn ;
Sgiathan do chòta fo t-achlais,
Is neul an tombac' air do shroìn ;
Bhiodh gaor aig na coin 'g a do ruith,
Agus mir air dhroch bhrúich ann do dhòrn.

Air fhad 's a théid cliù ort a leantuinn,
Cha 'n urrainn mi chantainn gu leòir ;
'S tu dh-fhuineadh, a ghuineadh, 's a chriathradh,
'S tu dh-itheadh, 's a dh-iarradh an còrr ;
'S tu rachadh do 'n t-sruthan a chlisgeadh,
'Nuair ghabhadh na h-uisgean gu lòn :
Bu choltach ri rapas na seilcheig,
An easgann mu thimcheall do bhèòil.

Cha'n aithne dhomh neach feadh na talmhainn-s
A' choiteir, a' shearbhant, no 'thuath,
Nach ionndraineadh Uillean, as aodann
Oir shiùbhladh e 'n sgìre ri uair ;
Nis o 'n a chual iad gu 'n deach' e,
Tha rud-eigin smal air daoin' uails',
Air son nach 'eil neach ac 's a' mhachair,
A ghlanas taigh-cac no poit fhuaill.

M A R B H R A N N,

DO THRIUIR SHEANN FHLEASGACH.

[CLANN FIR TAIGH RUSPUINN.]

AIR FONN—“Latha ' siubhal sleibhe dhomh.”

'N AN laidhe so gu h-losal,
Far na thiodhlaic sinn an triùir,
Bha fallain, làidir, inntinneach,
'Nuair d' inntrig a' bhliadhnu' ùr ;
Cha deach' seachad fathast,
Ach deich latha dh'i o thùs ;—
Ciod fhios nach tig an teachdair-s' oirnn,
Ni 's braise na ar dùil ?

Am bliadhna thim' bha dithis diubh,
Air tighinn o 'n aon bhoirinn,
Bha iad 'n an dà chomrad,
O choinnich iad 'n an cloinn ;
Cha d' bhris an t-aog an comunn ud,
Ged bu chomasach dha 'n roinn,
Ach ghearr e snàith'n na beathe-s' ac',
Gun dàil ach latha 's oidhch.

Aon duine 's bean o 'n tainig iad,
Na bràithrean ud a chuaidh,
Bha an aon bheatha thòimeil ac',
'S bha 'n aodach 'e 'n aon chlòimh ;
Mu 'n aon uair a bhàsaich iad,
'S bha 'n nàdur d' an aon bhuaidh ,
Chaidh 'n aon siubhal dhaoine leo,
'S chaidh 'n sineadh 's an aon uaigh.

Bu daoine nach d' rinn briseadh iad,
Le fiosrachadh do chàch ;
'S cha mhò a rinn iad aon dad,
Ris an can an saoghal gràs ;
Ach gheineadh iad, a's rugadh iad,
Is thogadh iad, a's dh-fhùs—
Chaidh stràc de 'n t-saoghal tharais orr',
'S mu dheireadh fhuaill iad bàs.

Nach 'eil an guth so labhrach,
Ris gach aon neach againn beò ?
Gu h-àraighean ris na seann daoine,
Nach d' ionnsuich an staid phòs;

Nach gabh na tha 'nan dleasanas,
A dheasachadh no lòn,
Ach caomhnadh ni gu falair dhaibh,
S a' falach an cui'd bìr.

Cha chaithe iad fèin na rinn iad,
Agus oighreagan cha déan,
Ach ulaidhnean air shliabh ac';
Bhios a' biadhadh chon a's éun;
Tha iad fo 'n aon diteadh,
Fo nach robh, 'n nach bi mi fhéin,
Gur duirche, taisgte 'n t-br ac',
Na' nuair bha e 'n tòs 's a mhèinn.

Barail ghlic an Ard-Righ—
Dh-fhàg e páirt de bhuidhean gann,
Gu feuchainn iochd a's oileanachd,
D' an dream d'an tug e meall;
C' arson nach tugta pòrsan,
Dhe 'n cui'd stòras aig gach àm,
Do bhoichdan an Tì dheònaicheadh,
An còrr a chur 'na cheann?

An déigh na rinn mi rùsgadh dhuibh.
Tha dùil agam gun lochd,
'S a liuthad facal firinneach
A dhùrich mi 'n ur n-uchd,
Tha eagal orm nach éisd sibh,
Gu bhi feumail do na bhoichd;*
Ni's mò na rinn na fleasgaich ud,
A sheachduin gus a nochd.

Note.—Two of these bachelors were somewhat remarkable, having been born together, brought up together, and died within a night of each other. They were buried in the same hour, in the same grave, and by the same company of men. Their whole study, from their youth, was to hoard up money, and had much of it hid under ground, which they neither had the heart to use themselves, nor to bestow upon their friends, none of which has yet been found.

* It is said that a wandering beggar called upon them for alms seven days previous to their death, whom they refused to relieve, a circumstance at which the bard hints above.

Note.—Among Rob Donn's elegies, it would be difficult to distinguish the best. But as a test of his own abilities as a poet we would at once fix upon Màrbhrann Eoghainn, where he makes his subject a general one—the uncertainty of time, and the calls to preparation for death sounded to mankind in the simultaneous fall of the high and the low, the rich and the poor. The use made of the circumstances that led to it exhibits a poet's mind. Rob Donn had heard accounts of the death of Mr Pelham, the first minister of state. The same day when this intelligence reached him, he took a stroll to the neighbouring mountains of Durness, in search of deer. He was for that day unsuccessful; but judging, as a sportsman can on such occasions, that better fortune might attend him the following morning, instead of returning home he determined to spend the night, and await the dawn, at a solitary house situated at the head of Loch Errabol, that he might be the more nigh to surprise his game when morning arrived. The bleak dreariness of this spot of itself might present almost to any mind a striking contrast to all that we deem comfortable, social, or desirable in life. Here was a solitary hut (still standing), where the bard was to pass the night. And here was a solitary man, decrepid in old age, stretched on his wretched bed of straw, or heath, and so exhausted by a violent attack of asthma, that the bard pronounced him, in his own mind, surely in the very grasp of the King of Terrors. The idea of Mr Pelham's death, called away from the summit of ambition and worldly greatness, contrasted with this individual's state, set our author to the invoking of his muse. Ewen was unable from weakness to converse, or even to speak with the bard, who, kindling a fire for himself, sat down, and the elegy being composed, he was humming it over. He soon found, however, that Ewen had still his bodily sense of hearing, and his mental sense of pride. When the bard came to the recital of the last verse, the concluding lines of which may be thus metrically rendered, though we acknowledge not poetically,—

" Among men's sons where could be found
 One lowly, poor, like thee ?
 And where in all this earth's wide round,
 But kings, more high than He ?"

Ewen, summoning the remains of his strength to one effort of revenge for the insult in the former two lines, seizing a club, crept out of bed, and was at the full stretch of his withered arm wielding a blow at the bard's

head, who only observed it just in time to avoid it. He used, we may believe, the mildest measures to pacify Ewen's choler. He related the circumstance afterwards to some of his friends; and, though others frequently spoke of it as a good joke, the bard could never indulge, we are told, even in a smile, upon the subject. He spoke of it with solemnity; and did not desire to hear the circumstance repeated. Ewen's elegy has been frequently compared to the well known Ode of Horace, " Solvitur acris hiems," &c.; and had Rob Donn studied Horace, we would doubtless say that he had at least in view the lines, " Pallida mors æquo pulsat pede," &c.*—Memoir. 1829.

* Regarding this elegy, an anecdote is recorded, which exhibits the estimation in which it was held by the author's countrymen best able to judge of poetic merit. Mr Mackay (Iain Mac Eachuin) happened to be on a visit to Mr Murdoch Macdonald, minister of Durness, when on a Sabbath morning the weather became so very boisterous that Mr Macdonald expressed doubts whether it were proper to go to church, or to detain the people by the usual length of service—expressing a fear, at the same time, that if once begun, he might forget himself, and detain them long. His guest urged the propriety of not detaining the people—" But I will tell you," said he, " what you had better do; just go to church, and sing to them 'Màrbhrann Eoghainn';—it will be greatly more instructive than any sermon you can give." Mr Macdonald's esteem for Ewen's elegy did not go quite so far, as to cause him to adopt the advice.

DONNACHADH BAN.

DUNCAN MACINTYRE, commonly called Donnacha Bàn nan òran was born at Druimliaghart, in Glenorchay, on the 20th March, 1724. He spent the early part of his life in fishing and fowling, in which he always took the greatest pleasure. Although he discovered an early inclination to poetry, he produced nothing worthy of being preserved till after the memorable battle of Falkirk, in which he fought, under the command of Colonel Campbell, of Carwhin, on the 17th of January, 1746. He engaged as the substitute of a Mr Fletcher, of Glenorchay, for the sum of 300 marks, Scots, to be paid on his return. Mr Fletcher gave him his sword, which he unfortunately lost, or rather threw away, in the retreat; and as he returned without it, he was refused the stipulated pay. It was then, and for that reason, that he composed his poem, entitled "The Battle of Falkirk," in which he has given a minute and admirable description of what passed under his eye; and especially of the sword (Claidheamh ceannard Chloinn-an-Leisdeir.) He endeavours to excuse himself for his retreat, and more especially for parting with such a useless weapon; and he could have entered the army of the prince with much more zeal, had he been among the Jacobites. He, therefore, indulges his inclination in the descriptions he gave. The resentment of a bard, was not, in former days, incurred with impunity. The poem was known every where, recited in all parts. The famous battle of Falkirk was enough to give it publicity; and the ridicule so ingeniously, though indirectly, aimed at the gentleman who refused so paltry a sum of money to one who risked his life on his account, was well understood in the whole country. But Macintyre was not satisfied with all he said of the useless sword. He complained of the injustice done him, to the Earl of Breadalbane, who obliged Mr Fletcher to pay him his wages.

The first time he saw Macintyre after paying him, was at a market; being incensed at him for daring to complain of him, and more so because of his audacity in lampooning him, he stepped up, and taking his staff, struck him, exclaiming, "Go, fellow, and compose a song to that." The humble poet of nature was obliged to submit in silence, to the unworthy treatment, and, shrugging his shoulders, walked away. But the pain he felt was momentary; not so the wound of the passionate man, inflicted by the sharp edge of genius. It was prodded by the disapprobation of all who witnessed his conduct, which recoiled on himself as a more severe punishment than he had given to the young poet of rising fame.

Duncan Macintyre, being a good marksman, was appointed forester to the Earl of Braidalbane, in Coire-Cheathaich, and Beinn-drain; and afterwards to the Duke of Argyle, in Buachaill Eite. In these situations he invoked the rural muse, on the scenes of his delightful sports, when he described them in the celebrated poems, entitled "Beinn- ddain," and "Coire-Cheathaich," in strains that are inimitable, and have rendered his name immortal. Good judges of Gaelic poetry seem to be at a loss to which of these productions to give the preference. The first required powers, and knowledge of the noble amusement of the chase, and of the music of the bagpipes, to which few can aspire. And while we affirm that he was never equalled in this species except by the celebrated M'Donald, in his praise of Mòrag, we must conclude it to be his master-piece. And where is any to be compared to the last? which is indeed unrivalled.

Public schools were but thinly established in the Highlands of Scotland in his early days; and his place of residence was distant from the parochial school, so that our author derived no benefit from education. He possessed no advantage in reading the works of others, nor had he an opportunity of getting his own productions written. One advantage he had that was common to all lovers of song—he heard the poetry of his country recited; and, so tenacious was his memory, that not a line, or a word, of his own composition escaped it, which had only been written when sent to the press. A clergyman transcribed them from oral recitation. The first edition of his poems and songs was published in 1768. He went through the Highlands for subscribers, to defray the expense. During his life his work came to three editions, and since then, one edition was printed in Glasgow, in 1833.

He afterwards served in the Earl of Breadalbane's Fencible regiment, during the period of six years, (1793—1799) until it was discharged; he was a considerable time in the city guard of Edinburgh; and after that lived a retired life, subsisting on what he could have saved of the subscriptions of the third edition, which he published in 1804. The collection contains lyric, comic, epic, and religious compositions, all of merit, and composed solely by himself, unassisted in any way but by the direction and power of his own genius. His poetical talents, therefore, justly entitle him to rank among the first of the modern bards. He died at Edinburgh, in October, 1812. In his younger days he was remarkably handsome, and throughout his whole life possessed an agreeable and easy disposition. He was a pleasant and convivial companion; inoffensive, and never wantonly attacked any person; but, when provoked, he made his enemy feel the power of his resentment. See his verses to Uisdean and others. Neither he nor M'Donald knew when to set bounds to their descriptions, and in their satires went on beyond measure.

Duncan Macintyre lived to see the last edition of his poems delivered to his subscribers. The Rev. Mr M'Callum, of Arisaig, "saw him travelling slowly with his wife. He was dressed in the Highland garb, with a checked bonnet, over which a large bushy tail of a wild animal hung; a badger's skin fastened by a belt in front, a hanger by his side, and a soldier's wallet was strapped to his shoulders. He was not seen by any present before then, but was immediately recognised. A forward young man asked him 'if it was he that made Ben-dourain?' 'No,' replied the venerable old man, 'Ben-dourain was made before you or I was born, but I made a poem in praise of Ben-dourain.' He then enquired if any would buy a copy of his book. I told him to call upon me, paid him three shillings, and had some conversation with him. He spoke slowly; he seemed to have no high opinion of his own works; and said little of Gaelic poetry; but said, that officers in the army used to tell him about the Greek poets; and Pindar was chiefly admired by him."

Of his works, the poems and songs composed when following the pursuits of his youthful pleasures, are incomparably the best. It would be endless to attempt to mark the particular beauties in them. The reader must peruse them all in their native garb, the natural scenes of his darling pursuits are well known, but in his description every thing assumes a novel appearance, and in the enchanted scenes that rapidly pass, we wonder that we never observed such beauties before in so bewitching colours. His soul was poured out in the animating and interesting strains. His language is simple and appropriate; chaste and copious. He is most felicitous in the choice of words, idioms, and expressions. He was a man of observation and thought, and revolved the subject of his study often in his mind. M'Donald is learned, and indicates the scholar on all occasions; he was the pupil of nature. M'Donald could not compose on the spur of the moment, a reply impromptu. There is, however, an instance in which Macintyre proved that he was not deficient in that manner. When he composed the imitable panegyric of John Campbell of the bank, he waited on that gentleman, repeated the poem, and demanded a bard's gift. "No;" replied Mr Campbell, "what reward do you deserve for telling the truth? You must confess that you could say no less of me; and, moreover, I doubt that you are the author; of that you are to convince me; let us hear how you can dispraise me, and then, I shall know, if you have been able to compose what you have repeated." Well, Macintyre commenced in the same measure, and continued in flowing and ready numbers till the gentleman was glad to stop him by giving him his reward.

Of his love songs the best is that composed to his wife "Màiri Bhàn òg." It seems an inexhaustible subject, in which he pours out the happy thoughts and elevated sentiments of the lover, in similes and comparisons taken from the most delightful scenes of nature, and the field of mental enjoyments. The 6th and 7th stanzas are truly beautiful.

The Lament of Colin Campbell, Esq. of Glenure, would alone immortalize his name. The subject was well adapted to awaken melancholy feelings of the most poignant nature. Mr Campbell fell the victim of envy and ill-will, arising from ill-founded suspicion. What pathos and tenderness! The mournful strains that so eloquently describe the fatal events were not those of a mercenary bard; they were the painful feelings of a foster-brother, poured out in the most earnest and pathetic effusions of a mind alive to the sentiments of an unfeigned sympathy.

His final leave of the mountains, dated 19th September, 1802, is full of tenderness, and sentiment, appropriate to his age and reminiscences.

ORAN DO BHLAR NA H-EAGLAISE BRICE.*

AIR FONN—"Alasdair à Gleanna-Garadh."

LATHA dhuinn air machair Alba,
 Na bha dh-armailt aig a chuirgse,
 Thachair iad oirnne na reubail,
 'S bu neo-eibhinn leinn a chuid eachd ;
 Nuair a chuir iad an ratreut oirnn,
 'S iad 'nar deigh a los ar murtadh,
 'S mur deanamaid feum le'r casan,
 Cha tug sinne srad le'r musgan.

'S a dol an coinneamh a Phrionnsa,
 Gu'm bu shunndach a bha sinne,
 Shaoil sinn gu'm faigheamaid cùis dheth,
 'S nach ro dhuinn, ach dol g'a sireadh ;
 Nuair a bhual iad air a chéile,
 'S ard a leumamaid a pileadh,
 'S ghabh sinn a mach air an abhairn,
 'S dol g'ar n-amhaich ann san linne.

'N am do dhaoinne dol nan éideadh,
 Los na reabalaich a philleadh,
 Cha do shaoil sinn, gus na ghéill sinn,
 Gur sinn féin a bhíte 'g iomain ;
 Mar gu'n rachadh cù ri coirich,
 'S iad 'nau ruith air aodainn glinne,
 'S ann mar sin a ghabh iad sgaoileadh
 Air an taobh air an robh sinne.

Sin 'nuair thàinig càch 'sa dhearbh iad
 Gu'm bu shearbh dhuinn dol nan cuideachd ;
 Se'n trùp Ghállda g'an robh chàll sin,
 Bha Coluinn gun cheann air euid diubh :
 'Nuair a thachair ribh Clann-Dòmhnuill,
 Chum iad còmhail air an uchdan,
 Dh-fhàg iad creuchdan air an rèubadh,
 'S cha leighiseadh léigh an cuilean.

Bha nu h-eich gu crùitheadh, srianach,
 Girteach, iallach, fiamhach, trùpac'h ;
 'S bha na fir gu h-armach, fòghluimt',
 Air an sonnraochadh gu murta.
 'Nuair a dh-aom simm bharr an t-sléibh',
 Is mòran feum againn air furtach,
 Na bha beo bha cui'd dhiubh leoint',
 'S bha sinn brònach mu 'na thuit ann.

Dh-eirich fuathas ann san ruaig dhuinn,
 'Nuair a ghluais an sluagh le leathad ;
 Bha Prionns' Tearlach le chuid Frangach,
 'S iad an geall air teachd 'nar rathad :

Cha d' fhuair sinn facal comand'
 A dh-iarraidh ar nàimhdean a sgathadh ;
 Ach comas sgaoileadh feadh an t-saoghal,
 'S cuid againn gu'n fhaoitain fhathasd.

Sin 'nuair thàinig mise dhachaigh
 Dh-ionnsuidh Ghilleaspug o'n Chrannaich,
 'S ann a bha e 'n sin cho fhiata,
 Ri broc liath a bhiodh an garraidh ;
 Bha e dulich ann san àm sin,
 Nach robh ball aige r'a tharruinn,
 'S mòr an diùbhail na bha dhì air,
 Claidheamh sinnsireachd a sheanar.

Mòran iarruinn air bheag faobhair,
 Gu'm be sud aogas a chlaideimh ;
 'S gu lùbach, leumnach, bearnach,
 'S bha car càm ann, ann san amhaich ;
 Dh-fhàg e mo chruachainse brùite
 Bhi 'g ghiùlan feadh an rathaid,
 'S e cho tròm ri cabar fearna,
 'S maig a dh-fhairdeadh an robh rath air.

'Nuair a chruinnich iad nan ceudan
 'N là sin air sliabh na h-eaglais,
 Bha ratreud air luchd na Beurla,
 'S ann daibh féin a b' éigin teicheadh ;
 Ged' a chaill mi ann san am sin
 Claidheamh ceannairt Chloinn-an-Leasdair ;
 Claidheamh bearnach a mhi-flhortain,
 'S ann bu choltach e ri greidlein.

Am ball-teirmeisg a bha meirgeach,
 Nach d'rinn seirbheis a bha dileasach ;
 'S beag an diùbhail leam r'a chunnadh,
 Ged' a dh-ionndrain mi mu fheasgar,
 An claidheamh dubh nach d'fhuair a sgùradh,
 'S neul an t-suthaidh air a leath-taobh ;
 'S beag a b'fhiù e 's e air lùbadh,
 'S gu'm b'e diuthadh a bhuiill-deis e.

An claidheamh braoisgeach, bh'aig na daoine,
 Nach d'rinn caonnag 's nach tug builean,
 Cha robh eugas air an t-saoghal,
 'S maig a shaoraidh leis an cuimeasg ;
 An claidheamh dubh air 'n robh an t-aímheas,
 Gu'n chrios, gun chrambait, gun duille,
 Gu'n roinn, gun shaobhar, gun cheana-bheart,
 'S maig a thàrladh leis an cunnart.

* This is the author's first song.

Thug mi leam an claidheamh bearnach,
 'S b'olc an asuinn e sa' chabhaig,
 Bhi gu ghiùlan ar mo shliasaid,
 'S maирg mí riamh a thug o'n bhail' e ;
 Cha toir e stobadh no sàthadh,
 'S cha robh e làdir gu gearradh ;
 Gu'm b'e diuthadh a bhuill airm e,
 'S e air meirgeadh air an fharadh.

Chruinnich naislean Earraghàil,
 Armailt làdir de Mhalisi,
 'S chaidh iad mu choinneamh phrionns' Tearlach,
 'S duil aca r'a chàmp a bhríeadh ;
 'S ioma fear a bh' ann san àit ud
 Nach robh sàbhailt mar bha mise,
 A'mheud sa dh-fhàg sinn ann san àraich,
 Latha blàr na h-Eaglais'-brice.

ORAN DO'N MHUSSG.

AIR FONN—"Mo dhuth an Tomaidh."

'S IOMADH car a dh-fheudas,
 Thigh'n air na fearaibh,
 Is theag' gu'n gabh iad gaol
 Air an tè nach faigh iad ;
 Thug mi fishead bliadhna
 Do'n chiad tè ghabh mi,
 Is chuir i rithisid cùl rium,
 Is bha mi falamh.

Is thàinig mi Dhun-éideann
 A dh-iarraidh leanainn,
 Is thuirt an Caiptein Caimbeul,
 'S e 'n geard a bhaile,
 Gu'm b'aithne dha bantrach
 Ann àite falaich,
 'S gu'n deanadh e àird
 Air a cur a'm' charabh.

Rinn e mar a b'abbhaist
 Cho mhath 's a ghealladh,
 Thug e dhomh air làimh i,
 'S am paigheadh mar ri ;
 Is ge b'e bhi 's a fèdraich
 A h-ainm loinneadh,
 Their iad rithe Seònaid,
 'S b'e Deòrsa seannair.

Tha i soitheamh, suairce,
 Gun gbruaim, gun smalan,
 Is i cho àrd an uaisle
 Ri mnaoi san fhearrann ;

Is culaidh a m' chumail suas i,
 O'n tha mar rium,
 Is mòr an t-aobhar smuairein
 Do'n fhear nach faigh i.

Leig mi dlàom Nic-còiseam
 Ged' tha i maireann,
 Is leig mi na daimh chròeach
 An taobh bha 'n aire,
 Is thaobh mi ris an òg mhnaoi,
 'S ann leam nach aithreach
 Cha n'eil mi gu'n stòras
 O'n phòs mi 'n ainnir.

Bheir mi fhein mo bhriathar
 Gum beil i ro mhath,
 Is nach d'aithnich mi riamh oirro
 Cron am falach,
 Ach gu foineamh, finealta,
 Dìreach, fallain,
 Is i gu'n ghabd gu'n, ghiomh,
 Gu'n char fiar, gu'n chamadh.

Bithidh i air mo ghiùlan,
 'S gur math an airidh,
 Ni mi fhéin a sgùradh
 Gu math 's a glanadh ;
 Chuirinn ri an t-ùilleadh
 Ga cumail ceanalt,
 Is curidh mi ri m' shùil i , -
 'S cha diùlt i aingeal.

'Nuair bhios cion an stòrais
 Air daoine gauna,
 Cha leigeadh nigh'n Dheòrsa
 Mo phòca falamh ;
 Cumaidh i rium òl
 Ann 's na taighean leanna,
 'S páidhidh i gach stòpan
 A ni mi cheannach.

Ni mar bu mhiann leam
 A h-uile car dhomh,
 Cha 'n innis i bréug dhomh,
 No sgeula mearachd ;
 Cumaidh i mo theaghlach
 Cho math 's bu mhath leam,
 Ge nach dean mi soathair
 No obair shalach.

Sgìthich mi ri gniomh,
 Ged' nach d'riùm mi earras,
 Thug mi bòid nach b' fhiach leam,
 Bhi ann a'm sgalaig ;
 Sguiridh mi g'am phianadh,
 O'n thug mi 'n aire,
 Gur h-e'n duine diomhain
 Is faide mhaireas.

'S i mo bheanag ghaolach
Nach dean mo mhealladh,
Fòghnaidh i dhomh daonnan
A dheanamh arain ;
Cha bhi fàillinn aodaich
Orm no anart,
'S chaidh cùram an t-saoghal
A nis as m'aire !

Le chuid seòlaidhian ;
Gheibhte sud ri àm
Piàdruiig anns a' ghleann,
Gillean a's coin sheang,
'S e toirt orduidh dhaibh ;
Peileirean nan deann,
Teine g'an cuir ann,
Eilid nam beann àrd,
Théid a leònadh leo.

MOLADH BEINN-DORAIN.

AIR FONN—"Piobaireachd."

Urlar.

An t-urram thar gach beiun
Aig Beinn-dòrain !
Na chunnai mi fo 'n ghréin,
Si bu bhòiche leam ;
Monadh fada, réidh,
Cuile 'm faighte séidh,
Soilleireachd an t-sléibhe
Bha mi sònrrachadh ;
Doireachan nan geug,
Coill' anns am bi feur,
'S foineasach an spréidh,
Bhios a chòmhnaidh ann ;
Greadhainn bu gheal céir,
Faoghaidh air an déigh,
'S laghach leam an seud
A bha srbineiseach.
'S aigeannach fear eutrom,
Gun mhòrchuis,
Théid fasanda na éideadh,
Neo-spòrsail ;
Tha mhàntal uime fén,
Caidhliche nach tréig,
Bratach dhearg mar chéir
Bhios mar chòmhach air ;
'S culuidh g'a chuir éug,
Duin' a dheanadh téuchd,
Gunna bu mhath gléus,
An glae òganaich :
Spòr anns am biodh bearn,
Tarran air a ceann,
Snap a bhuaileadh teann
Ris na h-ordaibh i ;
Ochd-shlisneach gun fheall,
Stoc de'n fhiodh gun mheang,
Lotadh an damb seang,
A's a leònadh e.
'S fear a bhiodh mar cheaird,
Riu' sònrrachte,
Dh-fhòdhnhadhi dhaibh gun taing,

Siubhal.

Cha teirinn i 'n t-aonach ;
G d' théid i na cabhaig,

Bha siunsreachd fallain,
'Nuair a shineadh i h-anail,
'S toil-inntinn leam tanasg,
Ga' lanngan a chluinntinn,

Ri fraoidh Choire-chruiteir,
A chuideachda phìceach ;
'Nuair a shìneas i h-iongan
'S a théid i na' deannaibh,
Cha saltradh air thalamh,
Ach barran nau ìnean,
Cò b'urrain g'a leantuinn,
A dh-fhearaibh na rioghachd ?
'S arraideach, farumach,
Carach air grine,
A chòisridh nach fhanadh
Gnè smal air an inntin,
Ach caochlaideach, curaideach,
Caol-chasach, ullamb,
An aois cha chuir truim' orra,

Mulad no mì-ghean ;
 'Se shlànaich an culaidh,
 Feoil mhais, agus mhuineil,
 Bhi tòmhachd am bunait,
 An cuile na frithe ;
 Le àilleas a fuireach,
 Air fìsach 'nan grunna,
 'Si 'n àsainn a mhùime,
 Tha cumail na eiche,
 Ris na laoigh bhreaca, bhallach,
 Nach meathlaich na sianntan,

 Cha 'n iarradh iad aitreach,
 'S e lag a Choir'-altrum
 Bhios aca g'an didean :

Thar mullach nam bean arda,
Chuidich e gu fäs ml;

'Se rinn domh sl̄imint a's fallaineachd.

Fhuair mi greis am' ārach
Air ariðhean a b' aithne dhoimh,
Ri cluiche, 's mire 's māran,
An caoimhneas blàth nan caileagan;
Bu chūis an aghaidh nàduir
Gu'm maireadh sin an dràst ann,
'Se b' éigin bhi da'm fàgħil
'Nuair thàinig tráth dhuinn dealachadħ.

'Nis o'n bhual an aois mi,
Fhuair mi gaoid a mhaireas domh,
Rinn milleadh air mo dheudach,
'S mo léirsinn air a dalladh orm;
Cha'n urrainn mi bhi treubħach,
Ged' a chuirinn feum air,
'S ged' bhiodh an rnaig am' dhéigh-sa,
Cha dean mi ceum ro chabħagħ.

Ged' tha mo cheann air liathadħi,
'S mo chiabħġan air tanachadħ,
'S tric a leag mi mjal-chu
Ri fear fiadhaich ceannartaich;
Ged' bu toigħ leam riamh iad,
'S ged' fhaicinn air an t-slàbb iad,
Cha téid mi 'nis ga'n iarraidh
O'n chaill mi triau na h-analach.

Ri àm dol anns a bhùireadħ,
Bu dùrachdach a leanainn iad,
'S bhiodh uair aig sluagh na dùtħċha,
'Toirt b'rān ûra 's rannachd dhaibh :
Greis eile mar ri cǎirdean,
'Nuair bha sinn anns na Cimpan,
Bu chridheil anns an àm sinn;
'S cha bhiodh an dràm oirnn annasach.

'Nuair bha mi 'n tolseach m' dige,
'S i ghōraich a chum falamh mi;

'S e fortan tha cuir oirne
 Gach aon ni còir a' ghealladh dhuinn ;
 Ged' tha mi gann a stòras,
 Tha m' intinn làn de shòlas,
 O'n tha mi ann an dùchas
 Gu'n d'rinn nigh'n Dheòrs' an t-aran domh.

Bha mi 'n dé 'sau aonach,
 'S bha smaoinean mòr air m' aire-sa,
 Nach robh luchd-gnoil a b'abhaist
 Bhi siubhal fàsaich mar rium ann,
 'Sa bheinn is beag a shaol mi,
 Gu'n deanadh ise caochladh ;
 O'n tha i 'nis fo chaoirich,
 'S ann thug an saoghal căr asam.

'Nuair sheall mi air gach taobh dhiom,
 Cha'n fhaodainn gun bhi smalanach,
 O'n theirig coil' a's fraoch ann,
 Sna daoine bh'ann, cha mhaireann iad ;
 Cha'n eil fiadh r'a shealg ann,
 Cha'n eil eun no earb ann,
 'M beagan nach 'eil marbh dhiubh,
 'Se rinn iad falbh gu baileach as.

Mo shoraidh leis na frìthean,
 O's miobhailteach, na beannaibh iad,
 Le biolair uainne a's flor-uisc,
 Deoch nasal rìmheach, cheanalta,
 Na bhàrran a tha priseil,
 'S na fàsaichean tha liomhor,
 O's àit a leag mi dhiom iad,
 Gu bràth mo mhìle beannachd leo !

CUMHA CHOIRE-CHEATHAICH.

S DUILLICH leam an càradh
 Th' air coire gorm an fhàsaich,
 An robh mi greis da'm' àrach
 'S a bhràidhe so thail';
 Siomadh fear a bharr orm,
 A thatineadh e'r ànàd,
 Na 'm biodh e mar a bha e,
 'Nuair dh' fhàg mi e nall;
 Gunnaireachd a's làmhach
 Spuit a s aobhar ghaire,
 Chleachd bhi aig na h-àrmuinn
 A b'abhaist bhi ss' gleann ;
 Rinn na fir ud fhàgail—
 'S Mac-Eoghainn t'ann a 'dràsta,
 Mar choilich an ionnad càbaig
 An àite na bh' ann.

Tha 'n Coir' air dol am fiàllin,
 Ged' ithean thun a bhlàir e,
 Gun duin' aig am beil càs deth
 Mun àit ann san àm ;
 Na féidh a bh' ann air fhàgail,
 Cha d' fhuirich gin air àruinn,
 'S cha 'neil an àite-tàmha
 Mar bha e sa' ghleann.
 Tha 'm Baran air a shàrach'
 Is dh'artlaich air an tàladh,
 Gun sgil aig air an nàdur
 Ged' thàinig e ann :
 B' fhearr dha bhi mar b' abhaist,
 Os ceann an t-soithich chàtha,
 'Sa làmhan a bhi làn d'i,
 Ga fàsgadh gu teann.

Se mùghadh air an t-saoghal
 An coire laghach gaolach,
 A dhol anis air faoin-tragh,
 'S am maor a theachd ann :
 'S gur h-e bu chleachdadh riamh dhut,
 Bhi trusa nan cearc biata,
 Gur tric a rinn iad siathnail,
 Le piannadh do làmh,
 Is iad na 'm bainibh riabhach,
 Mu-amhaich 's ann ad' sgìathan,
 Bhiodh itealaich a's sgìabail
 Mu-thiaclan san àm :
 Bu ghiobach thu ri riaghait,
 Mu chidsin taighe 'n iarla,
 Gar nach b'e do mhiam
 Bhi cuir bhian air an stàing.

Ged' tha thu 'nis sa' bbràighe,
 Cha chòmpanach le càch thu,
 'S tha h-uile duine tair ort
 O'n thàinig thu ann ;
 'S éigin dut am fàgail
 Ni 's measa na mar thàinig
 Cha taintinn thu ri 'n nàdur
 Le cnùimhan, 's le cainnt :
 Ged' fhaiseadh tu ghreibh uallach,
 'Nuair racha tu mun-cuairt daibh,
 Cha dean thu ach am fuadachadh
 Suas feadh nam beann ;
 Leis a għunna nach robh buadhar,
 'S a mheirg air a toll cluaise,
 Cha 'n eirmis i na cruachan,
 An cuaille dubh cam.

Se 'n Coire chaidh an déis-laimh,
 O'n tha e nis gu'n fhéidh ann,
 Gun duin' aig am beil spéis diubh,
 Ni feum air an eil ;
 O'n tha iad gu'n fhear-gléidhete,
 Cha'n fhuirich iad r'a chéile,

'S ann a ghabh iad an ratreuta
Seach réidhlean nan lùb.
Cha 'n 'eil pris an ruadh-bhuic,
An coille na air fuaran,
Nach 'U éigin da bhi gluasad
Le ruraig feadh na dùthch' ;
'S cha' n' eil a nis' mun cuairt da,
Aon spuirt a dheanadh suaireas,
No thaitreadh ri duin-usasal
Ged' fhuasgladh e chù.

Tha choille bh' ann san fhrith ud,
Na cuislean fada, dìreach
Air tuiteam a's air crionadh
Sios as an rùsg ;
Na preasan a bha brìoghar
Na dosaibh tiugha lònigh,or,
Air seachda' mar gu'n spiont' iad
A nìos as an ùir ;
Na failleanan bu bhòiche,
Na slatan a's na h-ögain,
'S an t-àit am biodh an smèòrach,
Gu mòdhar a séinn ciùl ;
Tha iad uil' air caochladh,
Cha d' fhuirich fiadh no fraoch ann ;
Tha mullach bharr gach craobhie,
'S am maor 'ga thoirt diù.

Tha uisge srath na dìge,
Na shruthladh dubh gun sìoladh
Le barraig uaine liogh-ghlais
Gu mi-bhlasda grannidh ;
Feur-lochain is tâchair
An cinn an duileag-bhàite
Cha 'n 'eil guè tuille fas
An san hit' ud san àm ;
Glumagan a chàthair,
Na ghluagaibh domhain, sàmhach,
Cho tiugh ri sùghan citha,
Na làthairch 's na phlàm ;
Sean bhùrn salach ruadhain
Cha ghloinne ghrunnd na uachdar,
Gur coslach ri muir ruaidh e,
Na ruaimle feadh stanng.

Tha 'n t-àit an robh na fuarain
Air fás na chroitean cruidhe,
Gun sòbhrach gu'n sail-chuaich,
Gun lus usasal air càrn
An sliabh an robh na h-éildean,
An àite laidhe 's éridh
Cho lòm ri cabhsair féille,
'S am feur chinn e gann :
Chuir Alasdair le ghéisgeil
A ghráidh ud as a chéile,
'S air leam gur mòr an eucoir
An fheudail a chall ;

Cha lugha 'n t-aobhar mò-thlachd,
Am fear a chleachd bhi tiorail,
A' tearnadh a's a dìreach
Ri frith nan damh seang.

Ach ma's duine de shliochd Phàdruij
A théid a nis do'n àite,
'S gu 'n cuir e as a làraich
An tèch'ran a th' ann ;
Bi'dh 'n coire mar a bha e,
Bi'dh laoigh is aighein dàr ann,
Bi'dh daimh a dol san dàmhair,
Air fasach nam beann ;
Bi' buic s'na badain blatha,
Na bric san abhainn làimh riu,
'S na féidh an srath na làirge
Ag' arach na mang ;
Thig gach uile ni g'a àbhaist,
Le aighean a's le àbhachd,
'Nuair gheibh am Baran bairinn,
Sud fhagail gun taing.

'Bha dà-rud-dheug a' tarruinn uam
Na thionail mi de phòrsan ;

ORAN D'A CHEILE

NUADH-POSDA.

A MHAIRI bhàn òg,
'S tu 'n bìgh th'air m'aire,
Ri'm bheò bhi far am bithinn fhéin ;
O'n fhuair mi ort còir
Cho mòr 's bu mhath leam,
Le pòsadh ceangailt' o'n chléir,
Le cùmhanta teann
'S le banntaibh daingean,
'S le snaim a dh'fhanas, nach tréig ;
'S e t' fhaotain air làimh
Le gràdh gach caraid
Rinn slàinte mhaireann a'm' chrè.

'Nuair bha mi gu tinn
'S mi 'n cinnseal leannain,
Gun chinnt cò theannadh rium féin,
'S ann a chunna' mi 'n òigh
Air bòrd taigh-leanna,

Ge buan an t-slige,
'Nuair għluais mi, ruithinn mar ghaoth,
A dh-fhaicinn mo luaidh
'S rud bhuainn n-ar dithis
Nach dual da rithist gu'n sgoilo ;
Thug ml i 'n uaigneas
Uair a bhrnidhinn,
'S ann fhuair an nighean mo ghaoil,
A's chluinneadh mo chlnas
Am fuaim a bhitheadh
Aig luathas mo chridhe ri 'm thaobh.

Sin 'nuair chuir Cupid
 An t-uladh a'm' bhroillean,
 G'a shaighdean corranach caol,
 A dhrùidh air mo chuislean,
 Chuir luchd air mo cholluinn,
 Leis thuit mi ge b'oileam a's dh'aom
 Dh'innis mi sgeul
 Do'n tè rinn m' acain,
 Nach léigheach a chaisgeadh mo ghaoid ;
 'Se leighis gach creuched
 I fhéin le feartan
 Theachd réidh a'm' ghlaicibh mar shaoil.

 Bheirinn mo phòg
 Do'n òg-mhnaoi shomult'
 A dh-fhàs gu boinneanta, caoin,
 Gu mìleant, còmhnràid,

 Do chòmhchràd hgeibh mi gu saor.
 Tha mi air shebl
 Gu leibh a'd' chomain,
 A mhòid 'sa chuir thu gu faoin
 De m' smaointean gòrach,
 Pròis nam boireannach,
 'S còir dhomh fuireach le h-aon.

 Chaidh mi do'n choill
 An robh croinn a's gallain,
 Bu bhoisgeil sealladh mu'n cuairt,
 'S bha miann mo shùl
 Do dh'fhiùran barruicht'
 An dilùs nam meanganan shuas ;
 Geug fo bhliath
 O bàrr gu talamh,
 A lùb mi farrasda nuas :
 Bu duilich do chàch
 Gu bràth a gearradh,
 'S e 'n dàn domh 'm faillean a bhuan.

 Shuidhich mi liòn
 Air fior-uisg tana,
 'S mi stri 'ga thartruinn air bruaich,
 'S thug mi le sgrìob
 Air tìr a ghealag,
 S a líth mar eal' air a' chuan ;
 'S tollicht' a dh'fhàg
 E 'n là sin m' aigneadh,
 An roinn a bh'agam san uair ;
 B'i coimeas mo cheud mhna'

 Mo chéile cadail 's mi 'm shuain.

 'S e b'hasan leat riamh
 Bhi ciallach banail,
 Ri gnòmh, 's ri ceanál mnà-uails' ;
 Gu pàirteach, bàigheal,

Gun ghòmh, gun ghoinne, gun chruas,
 Gu déirceach, daonntach,
 Faoilidh, farrasd',
 Ri daoine fanna, bochd, truagh ;
 Is tha mi le'd' shebl,
 An dòchas ro-mhath,
 Gur lòn do t-anam do dhuaic.

 Chuir mi air thùs ort
 Iùil a's aithne,
 Le sùigradh ceanalta, suaire,
 'Nuair theannain riut dhù,
 Bu chùraidh t' anail
 No àbhlan meala 'gam buain :
 Cha bhiodh sgeul rùin,
 A b'iùil domh aithris,
 A b' fhiù, nach mealladh i bhuaum ;
 Nan cuireadh i cùl rium
 'S diùltas' baileach,
 Bu chùis domh anart a's uaigh.

 Do bhriodal blàth
 'S do mhàran milis,
 Do nàdur grìnneas gach uair,
 Gu beulchair, gáireach,
 Aluinn, coineil,
 Gun chàs a thoille' dhut fuath ;
 Chuir i guin bhàis
 Fad ràith' am muhineal
 Dh'fhàg làn mi mhulad 'sa ghrúaim,
 'Nuair thug i mar bha,
 'Sa thàr mi 'n ulaidh,
 Ghread spàr i 'n cunnart ud bhuaum

 'S ann thog e mi 'm prìs
 O'n tìm so 'n uiridh,
 An nì 'san urrainn a fhuaire,
 'Sguab do'n ire
 Fhlor-ghloin chruineachd,
 An siol is urramaich buaidh ;
 Sin na chuir mi
 Co-rìmheich umad,
 Bha t' inntinn bunailteach, buan :
 Lònadh do sgiamhachd
 Miann gach duine,
 An dreach, fiamb, an cumachd, 's an snuagh.

ORAN GHLINN-URCHAIDH.

Mu'n tig ceann bliadhna tuille,
 Cha bhi sinn uile 'n Tora-mhult:
 Théid sinn thar nam bealaichean,
 Do'n fhearann an robh 'n tlùs:
 Far am beil ar dilsean,
 Ann san tìr am beil ar cuid;
 'S an t-àit an còr dhuinn crìochnachadh
 'S an tiodhlaicear ar cuirp.

'S an Clachan-an-Diseirt,
 Bu ghrinn bhi ann an diugh,
 Suidhe 'n eaglais mhiorbhualeach,
 An dasg bu rìmheach cur;
 Ag' eisdeachd ris na dh'inpseadh dhuinn,
 Am fear bu shiobhailt guth;
 Is e toirt sgeul a Bhòbaill duinn,
 'S a bhrigh a'tig'n gu buil.

Gleanman blàth na tioralachd,
 An ro-innath 'n cinn an stuth
 Far am beil na h-inseagan,
 Am beil an siol an cur:
 Cinnidh arbhar craobhach ann
 Cho caoin gheal ris a ghruth,
 Gu reachdmhar, biadhchar, bròghar,
 Tròm, torach, lontach, tiuth.

Bu chridheil bhi sa' gheamhradh ann,
 Air bainnean gheibhte spuirt;
 Fonn cheol réidh na piobaireachd,
 'S cha bhiodh sgòs mu sgor:
 Fuaim nan tend aig fidheilrean,
 A sheinneadh sìos na cuir;
 'S an luinneag fèin aig nìonagan,
 Bu bhinne mhillse guth.

Gheibhte bradan fior-uisg ann,
 A diréadh ris gach sruth;
 Eoin an t-sléibh gu liomhòr,
 'S na milltean coileach dubh;
 Earba bheag an sgròbain,
 Na minnein chriòn's na buic,
 'S a ghleann am beil na frìtheachan,
 'S na glòmamaich 'n am bun.

O'n a thàinig mi do'n fhearann so,
 Cha 'n fhàigh mi prìs an eòin,
 'S cha 'n eil fàth bhi bruidhinn
 Mu'n fhear-bhuidh air 'm bi 'n cròc:

 Aig bràigh doire-chrò,
 Far am bi' na làn-daimh,
 Ni 'n dàmhair ann sa cheò.

Mo shoraidh do Ghleann-urchaidh
 Nan tulchan glasa feòir,
 Far am beil na sealgairean,
 'S a shuair iad aium bhi corr;
 A dhireadh ris na garbhlàichean,
 Am biodh greidh dhearg na's leòir
 'S bhiodh gillean tròm le eallachan
 A dh'fhàgadh tarbhach bord.

'S an uair a thigte dhachaigh leo,
 Gu'm b'phasanta bhur seòl,
 A suidhe 'san taigh-thàirne,
 'S bhi damhsa mar ri céil;

 'S cha 'n fhaicte cùis 'na h-éigin
 An àm éigeach air an stòp.

 Ga'n teannachadh gu h-àrd.

 Ga'n còmhdaichadh gu lár ;
 Bròg bhiorach, dhionuach, chothromach,
 'S bu chorras leam a sàil.

'Nuair chaidh mi staigh do'n Abailte,
 Gu'm b'ait an sealladh sùl
 Bhi 'g amharc air na dealbhanan,

 A nis o'n rinn iad falbh uainn,
 Tha Alba gun an Crùin :
 'Se sin a dh'fhág na garbh-chriochan
 'S an aimsir so á cuirt.

Bi lòchrainn ann de ghloineachan,
 A's coinneal anns gach lit,
 A meudachadh an soillearachd,
 Gu sealladh a thoirt daibh :
 Cha lagha 'n t-aobhar éibhneis,
 Cluig-chiuil ga'n eisdeachd ann,
 S gur binne na chuach chéitein iad,
 Le'n toragan éibhinn ard.

 Eich nan eruaidh cheum socrach,
 Cha bhiodh an coiseachd mall ;
 Cùrsain mheamnach, mhireanach,
 A b'airde binneach ceann ;
 Cha'n e am fraoch a b'innis daibh,
 Na frichean nam beann.

Is ann an clous na Pàrlamaid
 A chi mi thall an t-each,
 Na sheasanh mar a b'abbhaist da,
 Air lòn a chabhsair chlach ;
 Chuir iad srjan a's diallaid air,
 'Se'n Righ a tha n'a glaic,
 Ga'n robh còir na rioghachd so,
 Ge d' dhìobair iad a mhac* :

Tha taigh mòr na Pàrlamaid
 Air ardachadh le tlachd,
 Aig daoin-uailse ciallach,
 Nach tug riamh ach a bhreith cheart ;
 Tha breitheanas air thalamh ann,
 A mhaireas 's nach téid as,
 Chum na thoill a chrochadh,
 'S thig na neo-chiontaich a mach.

A's chunna mi taigh-leigheas ann
 Alg leighlcean rí feum,

* King James VII. was the brother of Charles II. whose statue is here described.

A dheanadh slàn gach dochartas
 A bhiodh 'an corp no'n crè ;
 Aon duine bhiodh an eu-slainnte,
 No'n freasdal ris an léigh,
 Be sin an t-àite dleasannach,
 Gu theasaирginn o'n éug.

Tha Dun-Éidean bòidheach
 Air ionadh seòl na dha,
 Gu'u bhaile anns an rioghachd so
 Nach deanadh strìochda dha ;
 A liuthad fear a dh'innseinn ann
 A bheireadh cis de chàch,
 Daoin' uaisle casg an iota,
 A g' òl air fion na Spàinn.

Ge mòr a tha de dh' astar
 Eadar Glascho agus Peairt,
 Is cinnteach mi ged' haicinn
 Na tha dh'aitreabh ann air fad,
 Nach 'eil ann is taitniche
 Na'n Abait a's am Banc,

Chite fhathasd a chaochladi,
N'am faighe tu saoghal,
Gur e bhi tarruinnn luchd gaoil ort,
As gach taobh, a bha d' rùn.

'S tric a reitich thu cuis ;
'S oil leam càradh do cheud-mhna,
'S òg a bhantrach a'd' dhéigh i,
Lion càmpar gu léir i,
O'n dh'èug a cèillidh deas, ùr ;
Fhuair mi 'n sealladh nach b'eibhinn,

 'S truagh gach commun thug spéis dhut,
 O'n chaidh tu féin anns an ùir,
 'S gun dùil a nis ri thu dh-éiridh,

 Do'n righ bha toirt cuireadh dhuinn,
 Cha'n fhaicte sinn gu dilinn,
 A stricheada do'n chulaidh so.

S olc an seòl duinn, am Prionns òg
 A bhi fo mhòran duilichinn,
 A's Righ Deòrsa a bhi chòmhnaidh,
 Far'm bu chòir dha tuineachas ;
 Tha luchd-eòlais a toirt sgeòil duinn
 Nach robh cuir air Lunnaidh aige,
 'S e Handbhar an robh sheòrsá,
 S coigreach oirnn an duine sin—

 Ach 's gann daibh gu'n cluinnear iad
 A chàmpacha tuille leis ;
 O'n thug e dhinn an t-eudach,
 'S a dh' fhág e sinn cho-shaontra'ch,

'S ann rinn e oirn na dh' fheudadh e,
Shaoileadh e chuir mulaid oirnn.
So tha na briogais, &c.

Cha'n fhàigh sinn prìs nan dagachan ;
Tha comannad aig Sasunn oirnn,
O smachdaich iad gu buileach sinn—
Tha angar a's duilichinn
'S an àm so air iomadh fear,
Bha'n Càmpa Dhliuc Uilleam,
A's nach fheaird iad gu'n bhuitiinn e ;
Na'n tigeadh oirnne TEALLACH,
'S gu'n éireamaid 'na chàmpa,

ORAN A BHOTAIL.

'NUAIR a shuidheas sinn socrach
'S a dh-òlas sinn botal,
Cha'n aithnich ar stoc bhuainn
Na chuireas sinn ann ;
Thig onoir a's fortan
Le sonas a chopain,
Ga'r son nach bi deoch oirnn
Mu'n tog sinn ar ceann ?
Bheir an stuth grinn oirnn
Seinn gu fileanta,
Chuir a thoil-inntinn
Binneas n'ar cainnt,
Chaisg i ar 'n iota
'N fhior dheoch mhillis,
Bu mhubladach sinne,
Na 'm biodh i air chall.

Deoch slàinnt nan gaisgeach
Nan Gàëlibh gasda,
Ga'm b' àbhaist mar phasan,
Bhi pòit air an dràm,
Luchd gaòil an stuth bhlasda,
'S air dhaoiridh an lacha,
Nach caomhnadh am beartas
A sgapadh 'san àm.
Fear g'am beil nì
Gheibh e na shireas e,
Fear a tha crionda
Fanadh e thàll ;
Fear a tha mi'or
Cha'n fhuilig sinn' idir e,
S am fear a bheil grinneas
Théid iomain a nàll.

'S ro rioghail an obair
Sruth brìogar na togalach,
Loc-slainnt a bhogaicheas
Cridhe tha gann ;

'S e chuireadh an sòdan
Air fear a bhiòdh togarrach,
'S chuireadh e 'm bodach
A' fearr á bhiòdh teann,
Cha'n 'eil e 'san tir,
Uasal no cumanta,
Nach 'eil air thl
Gach urram a th' ann,
Ge do bhiòdh strì
Mu thogail na muirichinn,
Cia mar is urrainn sinn
Fuireach bho'n dràm ?

Tha e fionnar do'n chreabhaig
A h-uile la gréine
Thig teas o na speuraibh
Thar sléibhteau nam beann,
'S e math ri la reòta
Chuir blàth's ann am pòraibh
An firh theid g'a dheòin
An taigh-òsda na dheann.
Cuiridh e sunnd
Air muinntir eireachdail,
Timcheall a bhùird
S cuid eile dhiubh damhs' ;
Thogamaid fonn neo-throm
A's ceileirin,
'S freagarrach shinneas sinn
Deireadh gach rann.

O'n shuidh sinn cho fada,
'S gu'n dh-bl sinn na bh'-againn,
'S i choir dol a chadal
O'n thàinig an t-àm,
Cha'n fhòghnadh ach pailteas
Thoirt sòlas ga' n' aigneadh,
Deoch mhòr anns a mhadaidh
Gu leigheas ar ceann.
Am fear tha gun chll,
Cuiridh e spiorad ann.
Togaidh e crì
Gach fir a tha fann,
Théid am fear tinn
Gu grinn air mhìrreadh ;
'S e leigheas gach tinnis,
Deoch mhillis an dràm.

Tha ceann binneach 'na stàic ort,
Geocach, leith-cheannaich, giùgach,
Eudann brucannaich, grùgach,
Sròn phlueach na mìùre,
Tha croit air do chùl-thaobh,

Ma tha thu de shliochd Adhamh,
Cha chosħlach ri cħekk thu,
Aig olcas a dh' fħàs thu,
O thoisearch do lāithean ;
Cha tig cobhair gu bràth ort,
Gus am fogħainn am bàs dut,
    'S do chorp odhar a chàradh fo 'n fhòd,

A O I R A N N A.

ANNA nigh'n Uillem a'n Cròmpa,
Bean gun chonn 's i fhéin air àimhreith,
Nuair chaidh mi 'n toiseach g'a sealtainn,
Cha'n e 'm fortan a chuir ann mi ;
Bhruidhha misse siobhailt, suairee,
Mar dħuin-usas anns an àm sin ;
Thòisich isie mar chūi crosda,
Bhiodh anns na dorsan a drannadil.

'S ann aice tha beul an sgallais,
Gu fanaid a dheanamh air seann-duin',
Nach urrainn a dheanadh feum dh'i
Mar a bha i fén an geall air ;
Chunna' mise latha għluaisinn
Leis na gruagaichean mar chāirdeas,
Dh'aithnich i gun dh'halbh an uair sin,
'S chuir i uaithé mi le angar.

Innsidh mi dhuibh teisteas Anna,
O'n is aithne dhomh 'san am i,
Bean a dh'ol a peighinn phisich,
Cha bheo idir gun an dràm i ;
Cha neònach leam i bhi misgeach,
'S i 'n còmhnuidh a measg a Bhrannndai,
'S tric a bha 'na broinn gu leòir dheth,
'S bha tuille 'sa chòir 'na ceann deth.

Cha 'n'eil a leannan r'a fhaotainn,
Cia mar dh'faodar e bhi ann d'i ?
Breunag ris ann can' iad gaorsach,
A bha daonann anna na càmpan ;
'S bha rithist feadh 'n t-saoghal
A giùlan adhaircean aig ceardan ;
Cha d'fhuair i 'n onoir a shaoil i,
'N t-urram fhaotainn air na bårdan.

'S mòr an treuntas le Anna,
Bhi cho gheur le sgainneil chainnt,
'S maирg air 'na thachair bean bheumach,
Aig am beil am, beul gun fhaiteam ;
'M fear a bheir ise dhachaigh,
'S ann air thig a chreach 'san calldach,
'Nuair shaoil e gum bu bhcan cheart i,
'S ann thachair e ri bhana-mhaigheistir.

A bhana-chleasaiche gun għrinneas,
'S maирg fleasgħ a théid na caramh,
'S tric i tuitem leis na gillean,
Ceap tuisliidh i do na fearaibh ;
A bhean bhruidhneach, mħisgeach, ghionach,
Għlearach, lonach, shanntach, shallach,
Roinn gu reubadh air a teangaidh,
Coltach ri għath geur na nathrach.

Còmhdaħch nach falaich a craiceann,
Leomach gun seòl air cuir leis ann,
Cha'n eil brògan slán mu' casan,
Cha'n eil còta 'n-aird mu leasaibh ;
Oirre tha aogas na glaistig,
Neul an aog 'na h-aoddainn preasach,
Closach i air searga' lachdunn,
'S coltach i ri dealbh na Leisg !

Taigh tha làn de mhnathan misgeach,
'S ole an t-ät̄ an d'rinn mi tachairt,

Ged' thàine' mi ann gun fħios domh,
'S fhearr falbh tràth na fuireach aca :
Bana-mhaighsdir a chomuinn bbristich,
ANNA tha aimmeil 'san eachdraidh ;
Mu għiebha cach i mar fhuair mis i,
Cha tig iad gu bràth g'a faċċin.

AOIR UISDEAN PHIOPAIR.

TURAS a chaideh ml̄ air astar
A Chinn-tàile,
Chunna mi daoin-uailse tlachdmhor,
Caoimhneil, pàirteach ;
Bha aon bhallach ann air banais,
A thug dhomh tàmailt,
O 'n a bha e-san mär sin dōmlī-sa,
'S ann mar so bhios mise dhà-san.

'S ann an sin a thbissich Uisdean,
Mar a ni eù an droch nàduir,
Tabħunaich ri sluadh na dùthcha,
'S be runn gu'n gearradh e 'n sàltein
'S math an còmpanach do'n chū e,
'S dona 'n còmpanach le cach e,
Cha chuideachd e bhàrd no phìobair,
Aig a mhloħħalachd 'sa dh'fhàs e.

Aididh fħiéin nach 'eil thu 'd phìobair,
'S leig dhlot bhi 'm barail gur bård thu ;
Daoine cridheil iad le chéile,
'S bithidh iad gu leòr a tāir ort ;
Fear ciùll gun bhinneas guu għrinneas,
Fuadaichidh sinn as ar pàrt e,
Mar a thilgeas iad craobh chrionach
O 'n fħionan a mach as a ghàradh.

Mu chi thusa bård no filidh
No fear dàna.
Mu bhios aon diuħb 'g iarraħdha gille'
Għiūlan mǎlaid,
Lean an duine sin le dùrachd,
Los gu'n siùbhla' tu h-uil àite ;
'S mòr an glanadh air do dhùthaich,
I chuir cùl riut 's thu g'a fagail.

No ma chl̄i thu fear a sheinneas
Piob no clàrsach,
Faodaidh tusa 'n t-inneal ciùll
A għiūlan dà-san,
Gus am bi craiceann do dhroma'
Fàs na bhallaibh loma, bāna,

Mar a chi thu mille' srathrach
Air gearran a bhios ri àiteach.

Cia mar a dheanadh e òran,
Gun eòlas, gun tuigse nàdair,
O nach deanadh e air dòigh e,
S ann bu chòir dha fuireach sàmhach ;
Bruidhinn ghlugach 's cuid di mabach,
Mòran stadaich ann am pàirt d'i,
Na ni e phlabartaich chòmhraidi,
Cha bheo na thugais a Ghàelic.

'S sgimealair cheanna na'm bòrd thu,
Far am faigh thu'n t-òl gun phàigheadh ;
Cia mar chunntas sinn na geòcaich,
Mar bi Uisdean òg 'san àireamh ?
Cha robh do bhrù riamh aig siochadh,
Gus an lionadh tu bhiadh chàich i :
'S mòr an t-òl na chaisgeadh t'-lotadh,
'Nuair chtè thu 's do ghloc pàiteach.

'S tric do leab' an lag an òtraich,
No'n cùl gáraidh,
Bi do cheann air con-tom còmhnard,
'S ro mhath 'n t-àite ;
Bidh na coin ag iomlaich t'fheòsaig,
A toirt diot a bheoil 'sa chàirean,
Do chraos dreammach toirt phòg salach
A'd dhearrbh bhràithrean.

Na'n cluinne' sibh muc a rùcail,
Géidh a's tunnagan a ràcail,
'S ann mar sin a bha pìob Uisdean,
Brònach muladach a rànaich ;
Muineal gun' aolmann air tùcha,
'N ribheid cha'n fheud bhi làidir,
'S e call daonnan air a chìul-thaoibh,
Na gaoith bu chòir dol an 'sa mhàla.

Bha lurga coin air son gaothair'
A'd chraos farsuinn,
'S culaidh sin a thogail plàigh
'S an cnai' air maleadh ;
Riunn e t'anail salach bréun,
Ma théid neach fo'n Ghréin an taic riut,
'S fearr bhi edar thu 'sa ghaoth,
Na seasamh air taobh an fhasga.

Cia mar a ni Uisdean òg dhuibh
Ceòl gu damhsa,
Nuair a chitheadh tu sruth rònn
O'n h-uile toll a bh' air an t-seannsair :
'Sgeul tha fior a dh'innseas mise,
Gur h-e dh'fhág e 'nis cho mauntach
Gu'n tug iad dheth leis an t-siosar
Barr na teanga.

Séididh Uisdean pìob an ronngain,
'S mòr a h-anntlachd,

Bithidh i coltach ri gaoir chonnsbeach
A bhioidh an cnoc fraoch a drannal ;
An Circéapoll laimh ri Tonga,
A' baigearachd air muinntir bainnse,
Fhuair mise pìobaire 'n rùmpuill,
'S dh'fhág mi ann e.

AOIR IAIN FAOCHAIGH.

IAIN FHAOCHAIG* ann an Sasunn,
'S mor a mhasladh 'us à mhì-chliù,
Chaill e na bh' aige de chairdean,
'S tha 'naimhdean air cinntinn lionmhòr.
Ge b' fhad' a theich e air astar,
Chaidh a ghlacadh, 's tha e ciosnaicht ;
Chàraich iad e fo na glasan,
'S tha 'n iuchair taisgt' aig maor a phriosain.

Tha e 'nis' an àite cumhann,
'S e 'n a chrùban, dubhach, deurach,
A chas daingean ann an iarunn,
'G a phianadh, a's e 'n à eigin.
B' phasa dha 'bhi anns an fhiabhrs
Na 'n iarguin a tha 'n à chréubhaig ;
'S e 'n sin o cheann cùrr a's bliadhna,
A h-uile là ag iarraidh réite.

Ach, na'm faigheadh tusa réite
An éirig na rinn thu 'sheannachas,
B'aobhar-misnidh do gach bést e
Gu'm faodadh iad féin do leanmhainn ;
Fear gun seadh, gun lagh, gun réusan,
'S anns an éucoir a ta t-earbsa ;
Theann thu mach o achd na cléire,
'S thug thu bòid nach éisd thu searmoin !

Thug thu di-meas air an Eaglais,
Air a chreideimh, 's air na h-hintean
Chuir thu bréagan air an Trianaid
'S air na h-iarrtasan a dh' fhag iad ;
Tha e 'nis' 'n à ghnothach cosail,
'Réir an t-soisgeil 'tha mi claisiunn,
Gu'n do chuir thu cùl ri sochair
Na saors' a choisinn ar Slàneair.

Chuir thu cùl ri d' bhùidean-baistidh,
'S mòr a mhasladh dhut an aicheadh,
Chaill thu 'chùirt 'am biodh an ceartas,
Roghnaich thu 'm peacadh 'n a h-àite :
Ghleidh thu 'n riaghalt 's an seol-stiùiridh
A bh'aig Iudas, do dhearbh bhrathair ;
'S mòr an sgainneal air do dhùthach
Thusa, bhrùid, gu'n d' rinn thu fàs innt

Ach, ged a sheallte 'h-uile doire,
 Cha robh coille riamb gun chrònach,
 'S tha fics aig an t-saoghal buileach
 Nach bi 'choill uile cho dreach :—
 'S tusa 'chraobh 'tha 'n déigh seacadh,
 Gun chairt, gun mheangain, gun mheuran,
 Gun suomhach, gun sùgh, gun duilieach,
 Gun rùsg, gun urad nam freumhan.

'S tu an t-eun a chaidh 's an deachamh,
 'S e nead creacht' an deachaidh t-fhagail ;
 'S tu 'm fitheach nach d' rinn an ceartas,
 A chaidh air theachdaireachd o 'n àirc ;
 'S tu 'm madadh-allaidh gun fhiacan,
 S' maирg a dh'iarraadh 'bhi mar tha thu,
 'S tu 'n ceann-cinnidh aig na biastan,
 'S tha gach duin' a's fiach a' tairc ort.

Cha-n ioghmadh leam thu 'bhi 'd bhalach,'
 'S 'bhi salach ann ad nàdur,
 O'n a thin thu ris an dùthchas
 A bh' aig na sgiùrsairean o'n tain' thu !
 'S tu 'n t-isean a fhuaire an t-ùmaidh
 Ris an t-siùrsach air na sraidean :
 'S i 'n droch-bheairt a thog 'ad chloinn thu,
 'S ann 'ad shloightire 'chaidh t-àrach !

Thoisich thu 'n toiseach gu h-isel
 Air a' chrìne 's air a' bhochdann ;
 S e'n donas thug dhut a bhi spòrsail
 'S ann bu chòir dhut bhi 'gad chosnadhd.
 'S bochd nach d' fhan thu aig do dhùthchas,
 'Ad bhrùthair, a' bruch nam poitean,
 A' cumail dibhèris gach grùdar'
 'Nuair a dhruigheadh iad na botail.

Bha thu, greis 'ad thàm, 'ad bhaigear,
 'S laidh thu 'n fhad sin air na cairdean,
 A bhi oidhche 's gach taigh a's dùthaich,
 A dhùraigeadh cuid an trath' dhut ;
 A mehud 's a bha de dh' ainfeich ortsa
 Chuir thu cuid nam bochd g' à phàidheadh :
 Ciod e 'nis' a chuir an stoc thu
 Ach an robaireachd 's a mhèirle ?

Shaoil thu gu'm faigheadh tu achain,
 (Bu mhaslach gu'm biodh i 'd thàigse)
 Cead suidhe 'am parlamaid Bhreatuinn,
 Gun chiall, gun cheartas, 'ad eanchainn.
 Duine dall a chaidh air-seachran,
 Nach 'eil beachdail air na 'fhearra dha,
 Le còmhagh tubaisdeach, tuisleach,
 'S le sir droch-thuiteamas cearbach.

Duine gun flearann, gun oighreachd,
 Gun nì' gun staoile, gun airgiod,
 Gun bheus, gun chreidhimh, gun chreideas,
 Gun ghìn a chreideas à sheanachas ;

Duine misgeach, bristeach, breugach,
 Burraidh tha na bheisd 's n'a ainmhidh,
 'S trioblaid-intinn, le itheadh dèisneach,
 Gu tric a' téumadh a chridhe chealgaich.

Tha thu sònraicht' ann ad chonan
 A' togail conais 'am measg dhaoine,
 Cha chualas roimhe do choimeas
 A bhi dhonas air an t-saoghal,
 Ach an nathair an garadh Edein,
 A mheall Eubh aig bun na craoibhe,
 A chomhairlich gu buain a mhios i,
 A dh'fhangris an cinne-daoine.

Thoisich thu 'n toiseach 's an éncoir
 Ag innse bhréagan air rìgh Deòrsa,
 Cha chreid duine bhuat air sgéul ud,
 'S cha toir iad éisdeachd do d' chòimhradh ;
 'S beag a dhùrhigheas do dhroch-dhùrachd,
 Air oighr' a' chrùin a's na còrach
 S a liuthad neach a tha, gu toileach,
 A' toirt onorach d' a mhòrachd.

Ge beag orts a Morair Loudain,
 B' aithne dhòmh's air sonn o'n d' fhàs e,
 Duin-usal foisinneach, fonnar,
 Cridhe connar, aigne àrda ;—
 Seanalair, air thus na h-armait,
 A bha ainmeil anns san blàraibh ;
 Cha mhisd e madadh air bhàoothal
 A bhi tabhannaich an tras' ris.

'S gòrach a labhair thu mòran
 Air cùl larla Bhòid, an t-armunn,
 Cùnnspunn onorach, le firinn
 A' seasamh na riòghachd gu laòdir ;
 S e gu h-àrd-urramach, prisail
 Ann an cuirt an rìgh 's na bànn-rìgh' n
 A dh' aindeoin na Faochaig 's nam biasdau
 Leis am 'fhiach dol ann am páirt ris.

Bhruidhinn thu gu leir mu Albainn,
 'S b' fhearr dhut gu'm fanadh tu samhach,
 Na'n tigeadh tu 'n còir nan Garbh-chrioch,
 Bu mhraig a bhiodh aum ad àite ;
 Bhiodh tu 'm priosan ri do lìthan
 'Dh' aindeoin na ghabhadh do phàirt-sa ;
 'S an eirig na rinn thu 'dhroch-bheairt,
 Bheirteadh chroich mar ghàlar-bais dhut.

Chà'n ioghmadh dhut bhi fo mhulad,
 Fluair thu diùmb gach duin' an àl so ;
 'S e sin fein a bha thu 'cosnadhd,
 'S creutair croisd thu o'n a dh' fhàs thu ;
 'S lionar mi-run ann ad chnuideachd,—
 Mallachd na Cuigse 's a' Phàp ort !
 Mallachd an t-saoghal gu leir ort !
 'S mo mballachd fein mar ri càch ort !

R A N N

A GHABHAS MAIGHDEAN D'A LEANNAN.

CHA 'n eòlas graidh dhut
Uisge shràbh na shop,
Ach gràdh au fhìr thig riut,
Le blaths a tharruinnu ort ;
Eirich moch Di-dòmhnuich
Gu lic chomhnairt phlataich,
'S thoir leat beannachd pobuill,
Agus currachd sagairt ;
Tog sud air a għualainn
Agus sluaṣid mhaide,
Faigh naoi gasan ranaich,
Air an gearradh, le tuaigh,
A's tri chnaimhean seann-duine,
Air an tarruinn á uaigh ;
Loisg air teine crionaich e,
Dean sud gu léiv na luath,
Suath sin ra għeala-bhroileach,
An aghaidh na gaoith tuath ;
'S théid mise 'u ra 's am barrantas,
Nach falbh 'm fear ud bhuat.

MARBH-RANN DO CHU

LATHA do Phàdruiig a sealg,
'Am fireach nan learg air siabha,
Thug e għleann Artanaig sgrìob,
'S ann thachair e 'm frith nam fiadh.
Leig e na shiubbal an cù,
A bha luath, laidir, lúghar, diann,
Cha robb a leithid riām san tìn ;
Ach bran a bh'aig rìgh nam Fian.

'Nis cha'n' eil am Filidh ann."

MARBH-RANN AN UGHDAIR,

Leis an fhàilling a rinn Adh'mh,
Dh'èirich ar misneach as ùr

Caochladh beathu th' ann 's cha bhàs,
Le beannachadh gràsmhor, buan ;
Gach neach a ni a chuid is fearr,
'S math 'n t-àit am faigh e dhuis,
Cha bhi'n t-anam anu an eàs,
Ged' tha'n corp a' tàmh 's an uair,
Gus an latha'n tig am Bràth
'S an éirich sliochd Adhaimh suas.

Seinnear an tròmpaid gu h-àrd,
Cluinnear 's na h-uile àit' a suim ;
Dùisgear na mairbh as a bhìlär
'N do chàràich càch iad 'nan suain ;
'S mheud 'sa chailleadh le an-uair,
No le annradh fuar a chuain ;
Gu sliabh Shioin théid an sluagh,
Dh' fhaotain buaidh le fuil an Uain.

Gheibh iad buaidh, mar thuair an sìc',
A chinn liomhior anns an fhònn ;
Cuid deth dh'fhas gu fallain, dìreach,
'S cuid na charraín iosal cròm :
Gleidhear a chuid a tha liomtach,
'Am heil brigh a's torradh tròm ;
Caillear a chuid a bhios aotrom,
'S leigear leis a ghaoith am moll.

Cha'n'eil bean na duine beò,
Na lànain phòsda nach dealaich ;
Bha iad liomhior sean a's òg
Ar luchd-eòlais nach 'eil maireann ;
Cha b'e sin an t-aobhar bròin
Bhi ga'n euir fo'n fhòd am falach,
Na'm biodh am bàs na bhàs glan,
Cha bu chàs talamh air thalamh.

Ghabh mi 'nis mo chead do'n t-saoghal,
'S do na daoine dh'fhnirich ann ;
Fhuair mi greis gu suindach aotrom,
'S i'n aois a rinn m' fhàgail fann :
Tha mo thàlanta air caochladh,
'S an t-aog air tighinn 's an àm ;
'S e m' achanach air sgàth m' Fhearr-saoraidh,
Bhi gu math 's an t-saoghal thàll.

FEAR SRATH - MHAISIDH.

MR LAUCHLAN MACPHERSON, of Strathmasie, was born about the year 1723, and died in the latter end of the last century. He was a gentleman and a scholar; and gave his able assistance to Mr James M'Pherson in his arduous and successful translations of Ossian's poems. His own works have not been printed in a collected form, and the most of them have, therefore, never been committed to press.* Mr Macpherson was not a poet by profession; he invoked his muse only when an object of approbation or animadversion presented itself, and attracted his notice: his observations and remarks were made on the customs and manners of men; his humour was directed against, and his ridicule exposed, excesses. He had the felicity of expressing himself in terms most appropriate to the posture and light in which men stood, who exposed themselves to censure; and he never failed in placing them in a position in which no one would wish to be found, yet into which many often fall.

CUMHA DO DH' EOBHON MACPHEARSON, TIGHEARNA CHLUAINIDH.

[AIR DHA TEICHEADH DO 'N FHRAING.]

Gur lònñhor trioblaid sìnte,
Ris an linn a chi 'n droch shaoghal so,
Tha plàigh, claidheamh 's mi-run ann,
Tha gaol na firinn aotrom ann,
Tha fear na foille direadh ann,
Tha 'n crì-aon-fhillt' a' tearnadh ann,
S ma lasas eas' a vireamh riu
Gheibh daoine direach aomadh ann.

Ged dh'eirinn le righ Seumas,
Agus dol air ghleus fo m' armachd leis,
Mar saoil mi gur h-e'n eu-còir é,
An ni chòir gu'n eight' am chealgair mi?

Ma ni sinn mar a's léir dhuinn
Cha bhi Righ na Gréin cho feargach ruinn,
Ach 'se clann nan daoin a's géir-breithich,
S gur fad is éis air Alba sin.

O! is iomadh gaisgeach sàr-bhuiileach,
A laodaich blàr an cunnatais oirn,
Thug Tearlach a's na fasaichear,
Chiail fuil an dail nan Stiubhartach,
Nan cadal trom 's na h-àraichean,
'S a'n cùl ri làr 's cha dùisgear iad,
Bha croich a's tuagh toirt bàs orra,
'S bha cuid dhiu dh'fhang an Dùthchannan.

* All the poems that we have ever heard or seen attributed to him are in the collection, with the exception of four: viz., A Hunting Song, in the form of a dialogue between the sportsman and the mountain deer, in which President Forbes's Unclothing Act is loudly declaimed against; The Advice, in which the poet labours to curb ambition, and to modify inordinate worldly desires; An Amorous Piece, and Aoir nan Luch. These last two we have captured in an old Manuscript, together with the song we have classed first in his section of this work. We have had considerable difficulty in deciphering it; but the Love-ditty we found partly erased and partly unintelligible, and Aoir nan Luch, although not destitute of merit, is not much to our liking.

Am fear a dh'fag an dùthach so,
 Bu mhath air chul na Cruadhach e,
 Be'n Gàel sgaiteach, clùteach e,
 'S bu duthasach air Cluainidh e :
 Be'n crann chuir croiseal diùbhlachal
 A dhruid a mull thar chuaintean e ;
 Thug teisteas fir thar cheudan leis,
 "A chaoidh nach meud a bhuidhachearas."

Gu'm b'fhearrail, smiorail, anmant e
 Bu lasair fhearg 'nuair dhùisgeadh e
 Bu lheo na feol's na mhealbhainn e,
 Bu bhealach far am bruchdadh e,
 Mar thuinn ri carraig fhairgeach e,
 Mar fhaileach 's stóirm ga dùibhlachadh,
 Mar thein air fraoch nan garbhlaichean,
 'S mar easraich gharbh an ùr uisce.

Cha chuireadh faileas gruaimean air
 'S cha chuireadh fuathas càmpar air,
 Cha bu raghainn tuasaid leis,
 'S na b'fheudar dha bu luath-lamhach,
 Bha luim, a's greim, a's cruadal ann,
 'S bu treun a' bualadh nàmhaid e,
 Mar ealtainn gheur fo'n fheur uain e
 Gun gearrte sluagh san aimhreit leis.

Cha bu bhras gun reusan e
 'S cha mhò bu leumach, gibrach e,
 Biodh lamh a casg na h-eu-corach
 S lamh eile treun sa' chomraig aig.
 Bha truas a's iochd ri feumaih ann,
 S b'i sith a's reit a b'òrdugh dha,
 S cha'n fhaca mis le'm leirsinne
 No'n neach fo'n ghein ri foirneart e.

Cha bu duine gòrach e,
 A chuireadh bòsd á thruacantas
 Mu nàdur gu dearbh b'colach mi,
 Bha cuid de'm sheorsa dh'eireadh leis :
 Mas buidheann ghasd an cùmhraig sibh,
 Bidh na Naoidh an conaigh beusadh dhuibh,
 'S mas bratach tha is an co-stri sibh,
 Cha chluinnear beoil a' séis umaibh.

'Nuair thrialladh brais na feirge dheth,
 Bu mhàltà tlà mar mhaighdeinn e,
 Bu bhlath mar aiteal gréin mhoich e,
 Bu chiùin mar spéur an anamoich e
 Mar ghlaicair oigh fo cend-bharr,
 'S i tighinn gu réith gu caoimhnealachd,
 Bha sean a's òg cho speiseil dheth,
 'S nach fac iad treun cho toillteannach.

'Nuair bha'n saoghal bruailleanach,
 S gluasad air luchd nàthsaiscean

Nuair bhiodh an cinn gun chluasagan,
 Gun tàmh le buail' a's báthachean,
 Thug Eobhon sgriobh thoirt fuasgladh dhuinn,
 'S ghlas e suas a Ghàeldachd,
 'S cha'n iarradh iad mar bhuauchaillean
 'S an taobh-tuath ach na fasaichean.

Ach dh-fhalbh e nis a's dh'fag e sinn,
 'S co chaisgeas lamh na h-eacorach ?
 Ged fhaitc'e'n chòir ga sàrachadh,
 Gu'n chaill sinn làmh ar treundais,
 Mo bheannachd suas do Phàrrais leis,
 Bho'n dh' fhill am bàs na éideadh e,
 'S a dh'aidean rìgh a's parlamaid,
 Rinn Rìgh nan gràsan réite ris.

COMUNN AN UISGE-BHEATHA.

FEAR mo ghaoil an t-uisge-beatha,
 Air am bi na daoin' a feitheamh !
 'S tric a chuir e saoi 'na laidhe
 Gun aon chlaideamh rùsgadh.
Ciod eile chuireadh sunnt oirn,
Mur cuireadh bean a's liunn e ?

'Nuair chaisgeas gach sluagh am pathadh,
 'S a théid mac nam buadh air ghabhail,
 'S houmhòr uaisle feadh an taighe
 'S biasd nach caitheadh cùinmeadh.
Ciod eile, &c.

Cha b'e sud an comunn suarrach.

 Ge bu dual daibh 'n lùireach.
Ciod eile, &c.

Gheibh't an sin gach làmh bu chruaidhe,
 'S cò b'fhearr na clann na tuatha ?
 'M fèar bhiodh aig an amar-fluail,
 Gu'm buaileadh e aon triùir dhiubh.
Ciod eile, &c.

Bidh iad làn misnich is cruadail,
 Gu h-aigeantach brisg 'san tuasaid.
 Chuireadh aon fhichead san uair sin
 Tearlach Ruadh fo 'n chrùn duinn !
Ciod eile, &c.

Chluinneadh fear a bhiodh gun chluais iad,
 Nan deanadh luinneag a's fuaim e ;

Comunn teangach, cainnteach, cuachach,
Dainhsach, suaire', neo-bhràideil.
Ciod eile, &c.

Comunn aoidheil, òlmhor, pàrteil,
Pògach, doarnach, srònach, gàbhaidh,
Spòrsail, ceòlmhor, còrnach, gàreach,
Nach euir cùs gu smuirein.
Ciod eile, &c.

Gar am páidbear an fheill-màrtuinn
'S ged' rach an rìgh — mhàthair,
Leanaidh iads' an ioc-shlaint àdmhor
Gus am fág an lùghs iad.
Ciod eile, &c.

'M fear a chaidh choimhead na h-oidhche,
Leig a chasan air a dhruim e;
Thug e staigh an rud nach d'rinn e,
'S b'oillteil a bha chùltaobh.
Ciod eile, &c.

Dh'éirich am fear a bha làimh ris
Theicheadh ro bholadh an fhàilidh,
Thuit e anns a' muighe-làgain,
'S mhill a' chàth a shùilean.
Ciod eile, &c.

Dh'éirich an treas fear gu dàicheil
Chum 's gu'n tearnadh e'm fear bàite,
Chuir e ghrioscach as le mhàsan,
'S eòta Spàinneach ùr air.
Ciod eile, &c.

'N sin dar dh'éirich iad uile
Thuirt fear, " Gabhar greim do 'n duine,
Fhuair e masladh, 's cha b'e munar :
Loisgeadh mu 'na ghlùn e."
Ciod eile, &c.

Thuirt caraid an fhir a chaidh losgadh
" Tha thu fior blureugach, a logain.
Bi mach fhad 's tha 'n dorus fogsait,
Oglaich, lobhte dhùisg so "
Ciod eile, &c.

San uair a 's fearr a bhios aca
Bi'dh làmhair gach cuail a's bata,
Bi'dh fear buailte, 's fear ga thachdad,
'S fear fo 'n casan ciùrrte.
Ciod eile, &c.

Fear eile thig aileag 'na bhràgad,
Stiuiridh e'm broilleach a bhràthar
Aran pronn, a's ìm a's càise,
Bruach, blàth, cur smùid dheth,
Ciod eile, &c.

Their bean-an-taighe gu dìblidh—
" Dhuin', is olc an càradh bìdh sin,
'S mòr a b'fhearr dhomh agam fhìn e,
'S mòd a phrìs a's dùthaich."
Ciod eile, &c.

'N sin dar thig na coin sa chom-ith,
Leigidh iad air cimith camith.
Leasaichidh fear eile an nollaig
Le gleus ronnan ùrar.
Ciod eile, &c.

'Nuair dh'fhasas a' bhangaid goirid,
Chuid nach tainig ach mu dheireadh,
O nach faigh iad làn an goile,
Goiridh iad gu diùmach.
Ciod eile, &c.

Théid iadsan a nis anns sa chéile,
'S chì gach mad' e féin 'an déigh laimh,
Bi'dh surd air na h-armaidh gléusta,

Ciod eile, &c.

'S ann an sin a bhios a' chaonnag,
Firum, farum, chon a's dhaoine,
Clann a' rànaich, mnái rì caoine,

* Duncan Forbes, of Culloden, was Lord President of the Court of Session in the eventful period of the Rebellion, 1745.

IAIN RUADH STIUBHART.

JOHN ROY STUART, not less celebrated for his invocations of the muse than for his prowess in the field of battle, was a native of Kincardine, in Badenoch. Being of the middle class, and the son of a respectable tacksman, to whose farm he succeeded, he had the benefit of a good education. His scholastic advantages, combined with his extraordinary genius, soon procured him the reputation of a "knowing one." Like many other votaries of the muse, he manifested a strong and early predilection for hunting and fishing, which in themselves are a species of poetry. At an early period of his existence he copiously imbibed the principles of Jacobinism. These principles grew with his growth, and strengthened with his strength ;—and he was always proud to trace his descent from the royal family of the Stuarts. We do not mean here to enter on the moral or constitutional dissection of a poet ; but history and observation have combined to impress us with the fact, that people of colonel Stuart's mental structure are, some how or other, more liable to fall into companies than men of solid clay. The continual demands upon his presence at the festive board led to some irregularities, upon which censoriousness might animadvert, but over which we are disposed to draw the veil of oblivion. This we are the rather inclined to do, as he himself always stood forth as "king's evidence" against his own eruptions at the shrine of Bacchus. His genuine sallies of wit have established his reputation as an arch wag ; and his more plaintive strains are characterized throughout by originality and great pathos.

Stuart's mind was of that fabric which delights in the jostle of the elements of strife ; and his puissant arm, coolness of courage, and intrepidity of action, trumpeted his fame far and near. It is needless here to recount his adventures and "hair-breadth 'scapes," in the memorable civil war of 1745,—history already records them. On the first out-breaking of that war he was in Flanders, actively engaged in belligerent operations against the British government, when the Duke of Cumberland was called home to lead the Hanoverian forces against the Prince. Roy Stuart also hurried to his native country, now distracted with intestine broils and civil war ; and when at Culloden, he signalized himself in hewing and cutting down the red-coats, and spreading havoc and death on all hands, the Duke, pointing to the subject of our memoir, inquired who he was : " Ah !" replied one of his aides-de-camp, " that is John Roy Stuart." " Good God !" exclaimed the Duke, " the man I left in Flanders doing the butcheries of ten heroes ! Is it possible that he could have dogged me here ?" It is told of Colonel Stuart that he strongly urged for a day's truce before attacking the Government forces at Culloden. This, however, Lord George Murray overruled ; and the prognostications of the Colonel were but too fully verified in the result of a precipitate and unequal combat. The sombre feelings whose dark current chafed his soul in consequence of the extinguishment of the Jacobites' hopes on that day, are beautifully embodied in two fine and pathetic songs. In one of these he directly charges Lord George with treachery, and pours forth torrents of invective and revenge. His martial strains thunder along with the impetuosity of the mountain torrent—racy, sinewy, and full of nerve. He was so firm in his opinion of his Lordship's sinister motives, that he rushed from rank to rank that he might "hew the traitor to pieces." His elegiac muse was also of a very high order; his "Lament for Lady M'Intosh," whose attachment to the Jacobin party is well known, is at once lofty in sentiment, poetical in its language, and pathetic in its conceptions. We do not mean to ascribe to poetic or military genius all the recklessness which a sober-plodding world compliments it with; and we, therefore, suppress a gossiping story in which our warrior-poet figures with the Lady of the Lord Provost of Glasgow. After lurking for some time in the caves, woods, and fastnesses of his native country, he escaped to France with other faithful adherents of Charles, where he paid the debt of Nature, leaving behind him an imperishable fame for the genuine characteristics of a warrior and a poet.

* Allusion is here made to Nairn, where the Duke of Cumberland was celebrating his birth-day on the night preceding the battle. Thither the Highlanders wended their way, expecting to take him by surprise; but it blew in their faces a tremendous storm of rain and wind, and frustrated the attempt. The storm continued next day, and tended materially to discomfit the operations of the mountaineers in the commencement, and ultimately to their total and precipitate rout.

Gun chiste gun leinteann,

JOHN ROY STUART'S PSALM.

The Lord's my targe, I will be stout,
 with dirk and trusty blade,
 Though Campbells come in flocks about,
 I will not be afraid.

The Lord's the same as heretofore,
 he's always good to me,
 Though red-coats come a thousand more,
 afraid I will not be.

Though they the woods do cut and burn,
 and drain the waters dry;
 Nay, though the rocks they overturn,
 and change the course of Spey:

Though they mow down both corn and grass,
 and seek me under ground;
 Though hundreds guard each road and pass,
 John Roy will not be found.

The Lord is just, lo! here's a mark,
 he's gracious and kind,
 While they like fools grop'd in the dark,
 as moles he struck them blind.

Though lately straight before their face,
 they saw not where I stood;
 The Lord's my shade and hiding-place—
 he's to me always good.

Let me proclaim, both far and near,
 o'er all the earth and sea,
 That all with admiration hear,
 how kind the Lord's to me.

Upon the pipe I'll sound his praise,
 and dance upon my stumps,
 A sweet new tune to it I'll raise,
 and play it on my trumps.

the Highlands. The Editor well recollects with what self-complacency and sang froid the female Esculapii of his native glen used to repeat the "Eòlas sgùinachadh feithe," over the hapless hobbler of sprained ankles. With the success or result of the procedure we have nothing to do: its efficacy was variously estimated. The "Cantatum orum" was a short oration of Crambo, in the vernacular language; and if the dislocated joints did not jump into their proper places during the recitation, the practitioner never failed to augur favourably of comfort to the patient. There were similar incantations for all the ills to which human flesh is heir: the toothach, with all its excruciating pain, could not withstand the potency of Highland magic; dysentery, gout, dysury, &c., had all their appropriate remedies in the never-failing species of incantation. Nor were these cures confined to the skilful hand of the female necromancer alone; an order of men, universally known by the cognomen of the "Ciar-sheana-chain," were the legitimate practitioners in the work. Two of these metrical incantations we may briefly quote as specimens of the whole. The first relates to the cure of worms in the human body and runs thus:—

"Mharbhainn dubhag 's mharbhainn doirbhbeag,
 A's naoi naoinear dheth a seòrsa.
 'S fiolar crion nan casan lionnbor,
 Bu mhòr pianadh air feadh fèòla," &c.

Here follows the other, denominated "Eolas a Chronachaidh," or "Casg Beum-Sula." During its repetition, the singular operation of filling a bottle with water, was being carried on; and the incantation was so sung as to chime with the gurgling of the liquid, as it was poured into the vessel; thus forming a sort of uncouth harmony, according well with the wild and superstitious feelings of the necromancers. From the fact that one or two Irish words occur in it, and that the charm was performed in the name of St Patrick, it is probably of Irish origin; but we know that it held equally good in the Highlands of Scotland as it did across the Channel.

*Note.—*This lament was composed on the celebrated Lady M'Intosh of Moyhall, whose firm attachment to the Chevalier's interest is well known. A story is told of this lady which exhibits her character in a very bold and masculine light. Prince Charles had arrived at Moy, on his return from England, two or three days before his followers came through Athol and the wilds of Badenoch. M'Intosh and his clan were from home with the other Jacobites, and the place was altogether unprotected. Some keen-sighted loyalist had seen the Prince, and forthwith communicated the intelligence to Lord Loudon, then stationed at Inverness with 500 soldiers. His Lordship immediately marched towards Moy, taking a circuitous route, however, to avoid detection. Intimation was carried to Lady M'Intosh of his Lordship's approach—it was a moment of awful and anxious incertitude. She immediately sent for an old smith, one of M'Intosh's retainers, and a council of war was held. "There is but one way," said her Ladyship, "of saving Prince Charles—your own Prince; and that is by giving them battle." "Battle!" exclaimed the smith, "where are our heroes? alas! where to-night are the sons of my heart?" It was ultimately arranged that Prince Charles should be placed under hiding, and that the son of Vulcan, with other six old men who were left at home, should give them battle. Armed with claymore, dirk, and guns, together with a bagpipe and old pail (drum), our octogenarian little army lurked in a dense clump of brushwood until the red-coats came up. It was now night, and the sound of Lord Loudon's men was heard—they were within a mile of Moy! The smith and his followers, as instructed by her Ladyship, fired gun after gun, until the six were discharged; he then roared out "Clan M'Donald, rush to the right—Cameron, forward in a double column in the centre—M'Intosh, wheel to the left, and see that none will escape!" This was enough; the red-coats heard—stood, and listened—all the clans were there—so, at least, thought Lord Loudon, and away they fled in the greatest disorder and confusion, knocking one another down in their flight, and not daring to look behind them until they had distanced the smith by miles!

COINNEACH MAC-CHOINNICH.

KENNETH M'KENZIE was born at Caisteal Leaur', near Inverness, in the year 1758. His parents were in comfortable circumstances, and gave him the advantages of a good education. When he was about seventeen years of age, he was bound an apprentice as a sailor, a profession he entered with some degree of enthusiasm. Along with his Bible, the gift of an affectionate mother, he stocked his library with other two volumes, namely ; the poems of Alexander M'Donald and Duncan M'Intyre. These fascinating productions he studied and conned over on "the far blue wave," and they naturally fanned the latent flame of poetry which yet lay dormant in his breast. His memory was thus kept hovering over the scenes and associations of his childhood ; and, represented through the magic vista of poetic genius, every object became possessed of new charms, and so entwined his affections around his native country and vernacular tongue, that distance tended only to heighten their worth and beauties.

He composed the most of his songs at sea. His "Piobairachd na Luinge" is an imitation of M'Intyre's inimitable "Beinn-dòrain," but it possesses no claims to a comparison with that master-piece. We are not prepared to say which is the best school for poetic inspiration, or for refining and maturing poetic genius ; but, we venture to assert, that the habits of a seafaring man have a deteriorating influence over the youthful feelings. This has, perhaps, been amply exemplified in the person of Kenneth M'Kenzie. He was evidently born with talents and genius ; but, notwithstanding the size of his published volume, we find only four or five pieces in it which have stepped beyond the confines of mediocrity : these we give, as in duty bound.

M'Kenzie returned from sea in the year 1789, and commenced going about taking in subscriptions, to enable him to publish his poems. With our own veneration for the character of a poet, we strongly repudiate that timber brutality which luxuriates in insulting a votary of the muses. Men of genius are always, or almost always, men of sensibility, and nice and acute feelings ; and it appears to us inexplicable how one man can take pleasure in showing another indignities, and hurting his feelings. The itinerant subscription-hunting bard, has always been the object of the little ridicule of little men. At him the men of mere clay hurl their battering-ram ; and our author appears to have experienced his own share of the evil. Having called upon Alexander M'Intosh, of Cantray Down, he not only refused him his subscription, but gruffly ordered him to be gone from his door ! Certainly a polite refusal would have cost the high-souled gentleman as little as this rebuff, and apologies of a tolerably feasible nature can now be found for almost every failing. Our bard, thus unworthily insulted, retaliates in a satire of great merit. In this cynic production he pours forth periods of fire; it is an impetuous torrent of bitter irony and withering declamation, rich in the essential ingredients of its kind; and M'Intosh, who does not appear to have been impenetrable to the arrows of remorse, died, three days after the published satire was in his possession.* Distressed at this mournful occurrence, which he well knew the superstition and gossip of his country would father upon him, M'Kenzie went again among his subscribers, recalled the books from such as could be prevailed upon to give them up, and consigned them to the flames: a sufficient indication of his sorrow for his unmerciful, and, as he thought, fatal castigation of M'Intosh. This accounts for the scarcity of his books.

Shortly after this event, his general good character and talents attracted the attention of Lord Seaforth and the Earl of Buchan, whose combined influence procured him the rank of an officer in the 78th Highlanders. Having left the army, he accepted the situation of Postmaster in an Irish provincial town, where he indulged in the genuine hospitality of his heart, always keeping an open door and spread table, and literally caressing such of his countrymen as chance or business led in his way. We have conversed with an old veteran who partook of his liberality so late as the year 1837.

In personal appearance, Kenneth M'Kenzie was tall, handsome, and strong-built; fond of a joke, and always the soul of any circle where he sat. If his poems do not exhibit any great protuberance of genius, they are never flat; his torrent may not always rush with impetuosity; but he never stagnates; and such as relish easy sailing and a smooth-flowing current, may gladly accept an invitation to take a voyage with our sailor-poet.

* A clamorous vain young woman, whose custom was, when she saw any strangers passing by, to get up on some eminence, and call the hens from the corn, or cry to the herd to be careful, for no other reason than that she might be taken notice of. The cognomen is one of general application, but the bard had a particular dame in view ;—and we have been told on undoubted authority, when she heard of her new name, that she gave up all concern about the hens and the herd-boy, to the great comfort and ease of both. Her father, however, suffered by the assumed modesty of his daughter—the herd-boy slept, the cows followed the hens into the corn fields, and destroyed them so much, that the old man was heard to swear if he came in contact with the poet, he would give him a hearty flagellation for making his daughter worse than useless to him at outside work!

WILLIAM ROSS.

WILLIAM Ross, was born in Broadford, parish of Strath, Isle of Skye, in the year 1762. His parents were respectable, though not opulent. His father, John Ross, was a native of Skye, and of an ancient family of that name, whose ancestors had lived in that country throughout a long series of generations. His mother was a native of Gairloch, in Ross-shire, and daughter of the celebrated blind piper and poet, John Mackay, well known by the name of Piobaire Dall.

It appears that when William was a boy, there was no regular school kept in that part of the country: and as his parents were anxious to forward his education, they removed with him and a little sister from Skye to Forres. While attending the Grammar school of the latter place, he discovered a strong propensity to learning, in which he made such rapid advances as to attract the notice and esteem of his master; and the pupil's sense of his obligations was always acknowledged with gratitude and respect. This teacher, we are informed, declared, that on comparing young Ross with the many pupils placed under his care, he did not remember one who excelled him as a general scholar, even at that early period of life.

After remaining for some years at Forres, his parents removed to the parish of Gairloch, where the father of our bard became a pedlar, and travelled through Lewis, and the other western Isles—and, though William was then young and of a delicate constitution, he accompanied his father in his travels through the country, more with the view of discovering and making himself acquainted with the different dialects of the Gaelic language, than from any pecuniary consideration—the desire of becoming perfectly familiar with his native tongue, thus strongly occupying his mind even at this early period of life. And he has often afterwards been heard to say, that he found the most pure and genuine dialect of the language among the inhabitants of the west side of the Island of Lewis.

In this manner he passed some years, and afterwards travelled through several parts of the Highlands of Perthshire, Breadalbane, and Argyleshire, &c., seeing and observing all around him with the eye and discernment of a real poet. At this period, he composed many of his valuable songs; but some of these, we are sorry to say, are not now to be found.

Having returned to Gairloch, he was soon afterwards appointed to the charge of the parish school of that place, which he conducted with no ordinary degree of success. From the time of his entering upon this charge, it was generally remarked, that he proceeded in the discharge of his duties with unremitting firmness and assiduity, and in a short time gained a reputation for skill in the instruction of the young committed to his trust, rarely known in the former experience of that school. 'He had a peculiar method and humour in his intercourse with his pupils, which amused and endeared the children to him: at the same time it proved the most effectual means of impressing the juvenile mind and conveying the instructions of the teacher. Many of those who were under his tuition still speak of him with the greatest enthusiasm and veneration.'

In the course of his travels, and while schoolmaster of Gairloch, he contracted an intimacy with several respectable families, many of whom afforded him testimonies of friendship and esteem. His company was much sought after, not only on account of his excellent songs, but also for his intelligence and happy turn of humour. He was a warm admirer of the songs of other poets, which he often sung with exquisite pleasure and taste. His voice, though not strong, was clear and melodious, and he had a thorough acquaintance with the science of music. He played on the violin, flute, and several other instruments, with considerable skill; and during his incumbency as schoolmaster, he officiated as precentor in the parish church.

In the capacity of schoolmaster he continued till his health began rapidly to decline. Asthma and consumption preyed on his constitution, and terminated his mortal life, in the year 1790, in the twenty-eighth year of his age. This occurred while he was residing at Badachro, Gairloch. His funeral was attended by nearly the whole male population of the surrounding country. He was interred in the burying ground of the Clachan of Gairloch, and a simple upright stone, or Clach-chuimhne, with an English inscription, marks his "narrow house."

In personal appearance, Ross was tall and handsome, being nearly six feet high. His hair was of a dark brown colour, and his face had the peculiarly open and regular features which mark the sons of the mountains; and, unlike the general tribe of poets, he was exceedingly finical and particular in his dress. As a scholar, Ross was highly distinguished. In Latin and Greek he very much excelled; and it was universally allowed that he was the best Gaelic scholar of his day.

It is not to be wondered at, that a being so highly gifted as was Ross, should be extremely susceptible of the influence of the tender passion. Many of his songs bear witness that he was so. During his excursions to Lewis, he formed an acquaintance with Miss Marion Ross of Stornoway (afterwards Mrs Clough of Liverpool,) and paid his homage at the shrine of her beauty. He sung her charms, and was incessant in his addresses,—

"Every night he came
With music of all sorts, and songs composed
To her :"

But still he was rejected by the coy maid; and the disappointment consequent on this unfortunate love affair, was thought to have preyed so much on his mind, as to have impaired his health and constitution, during the subsequent period of his life. To this young lady he composed (before her marriage) that excellent song expressive of his feelings, almost bordering on despair, "Feasgar luain a's mi air chuairt."

In the greater number of his lyrics, the bard leads us along with him, and imparts to us so much of his own tenderness, feeling, and enthusiasm, that our thoughts expand and kindle with his sentiments.

Few of our Highland bards have acquired the celebrity of William Ross—and fewer still possess his true poetic powers. In purity of diction, felicity of conception, and mellowness of expression, he stands unrivalled—especially in his lyrical pieces. M'Donald's fire occasionally overheats, and emits sparks which burn and blister, while Ross's flame, more tempered and regular in its heat, spreads a fascinating glow over the feelings, until we melt before him, and are carried along in a dreamy pleasure through the Arcadian scenes, which his magic pencil conjures up to our astonished gaze. If M'Intyre's torrent fills the brooklet to overflowing, the gentler stream of Ross, without tearing away the embankment, swells into a smooth-flowing, majestic wave—it descends like the summer shower irrigating the meadows, and spreading a balmy sweetness over the entire landscape. If it be true that "Sermo est imago animi;" the same must hold equally true of a song—and judging from such of his songs as have come into our hands, our author's mind must have been a very noble one—a mind, richly adorned with the finest and noblest feelings of humanity—a mind whose structure was too fine for the rude communion of a frozen-hearted world—a mind whose emanations gush forth, pure as the limpid crystalline stream on its bed of pebbles. It is difficult to determine in what species of poetry William Ross most excelled—so much is he at home in every department. His pastoral poem "Oran an t-Samhraidh," abounds in imagery of the most delightful kind. He has eschewed the sin of M'Intyre's verbosity and M'Donald's anglicisms, and luxuriates amid scenes, which, for beauty and enchantment, are never surpassed. His objects are nicely chosen—his descriptions graphic—his transitions, although we never tire of any object he chooses to introduce, pleasing. We sit immovably upon his lips, and are allured at the beck of his finger, to feed our eyes on new and hitherto unobserved beauties. When we have surveyed the whole landscape, its various component parts are so distinct and clear, that we feel indignant at our own dulness for not perceiving them before—but as a finished picture, the whole becomes too magnificent for our comprehension.

Ross possessed a rich vein of humour when he chose to be merry;—few men had a keener relish for the ludicrous. His Anacreontic poem "Moladh an Uisge-Bheatha," is a splendid specimen of this description. How vivid and true his description of the grog-shop worthies—not the base and brutalized debauchees—but that class of rural topers, who get Bacchi plenus once or twice in the year at a wedding, or on Christmas. This was a wise discrimination of the poet; had he introduced the midnight revelry, and baser scenes of the city tavern, his countrymen could neither understand nor relish it. But he depicts the less offensive panorama of his country's bacchanals, and so true to nature—so devoid of every trait of settled libertinism, that, while none is offended, all are electrified—and the poet's own good taste and humour expand over the singer and the entire group of auditors.

Among his amorous pieces, there are two of such prominent merit, that they cannot be passed over.—"Feasgar luain;" so intimately connected with the poet's fate, has been already noticed. Its history like that of its author, is one of love and brevity—it was composed in a few hours to a young lady, whom he accidentally met at a convivial party—and sung, with all its richness of ideality and mellowness of expression, before they broke up. “Moladh na h-òighe Gàëlich,” although not so plaintive or tender, is, perhaps, as a poetical composition, far before the other. Never was maiden immortalized in such well-chosen and appropriate strains—never did bard’s lips pour the incense of adulation on maiden’s head in more captivating and florid language, and never again shall mountain maid sit to have her picture drawn by so faithful and powerful a pencil.

Without going beyond the bounds of verity, it may be affirmed that his poetry, more perhaps than that of most writers, deserves to be styled the poetry of the heart—of a heart full to overflowing with noble sentiments, and sublime and tender passions.

Mo cheist am firean foinnidh, direach,
Maiseach, fior-ghlan, ainmeil,
Mo sheobhag sùl-ghorm, amaisgeil,
Tha comhant, clùiteach, bearraideach,
A b'aird' a leumadhl air each-sreine,
'M barrachd euchd thar chàich;
'S tu bhuinig cuis a bharr gach cùirt,
'S a chuir air chùl ar càs!

Air bhi air farsan dhomh gach là
Gur tus tha ghnà air m' intinn,
Mo rùin do'n tir o'n d'imich mi,
'S mo shuil air fad gu pilleadh ri:
'S ann thogas orm gu grad mo cholg
Le aigne meanmach, trean—
Mo chliabh tha gabhal lasadh aigheir,
'S àit me naigbeachd fèin.

Thainig fasan anns an achd
A dh'òrdach pait am feileadh,
Tha eiridh air na breacanan
Le farum treun neo-lapanach,
Bi'dh oighean thapaidh sniomh 'sa dath
Gu h-eibhinn, àit, le uaill
Gach aon diù 'g eideadh a' gaoil fein
Mar 's réidh leo anns gach uair

Biodh cogadh ann no sio-chainnt,
 Cha chuir sin sior-euchd oirn,
 An arm no feachd ma thogras iad,
 No 'n ár-amach cha 'n obamaid,
 Le'r teanadhl suas ri uchd au fhuath's,
 Le'r n'earadh usal scín ;
 Le lannan cruaghach, neart-mhor, bnan,
 A leantainn rualg gun sgios !

On fhuair sinn fasan le'r sàr chleachdad,
 Dùisgeadh beachd ar sinnisir,
 Le rùn gun cheilg 's na h-uile fear,
 'S gun mheirgh' air leirg nan Luanninneach,
 Le sunnt a's gleus, a's barrachd spéis
 Toirt àite* fein do'n Righ,
 Mo bhàs gun éis mar b'fhearr leam fein sin,
 No ge d' éibh't an t-shith !

Note.—This song, as its title indicates, was composed on the repeal of President Forbes's unclothing act, and an anecdote is related of its first rehearsal, which we deem not unworthy of a place here. Our author, like all other poets of his day and country, was a staunch Jacobite, while his father was equally firm in his adherence to the family of Hanover. William had composed the song during one of his excursions through the country, where he probably heard of the erasure of the obnoxious act from the Statute Book, and sung it for the first time to a happy group of rustics who were in the habit of congregating nightly at his father's ingle to hear his new compositions. When he came to the last stanza, in which he indirectly lampoons his Majesty, "Ah!" said his father, involuntarily laying his hand on a cudgel, "ye clown, you know where and when you sing that?" "Really, father," replied the poet, "I would sing it in the House of Commons if you were not there!"

ORAN AIR GAOL NA H-OIGHE

DO CHAILEAN.

ANN ami madainn chiùin chitean,
'San spreidh air an lòn,
Agus cailin na buaile,
Gabhair 'n-uallain mu'n còir :
Do bhi gathanan Phœbus,
A cuir an ceilidh tro' na neoil,
Latha buadhach, geal, éibhinn,
'S las na speuran le ròs.

Ach cha b'e 'n tùm, bha'd a tional,
Ann an Innis sa' gheann,
So bhuin m'aighe gu luasgan,
'S mi air chuairet annis an am,
Ach an cailin bu dreach-mhoire',
Mine mais', agus loinn,
Bh'air an tulach na'm fochar,
Gn ciùineil, foistineach, grinn.

SHNÀMH mo smaoiuntean an ioghnadh,
'S thuit mi 'n coachladh ro-mhòr,
Sheas mi snasaicht mar iomhaidh,
'G amhare dian air an òigh;
'S ge do bhosnaich mòr dhùrachd mi
Dh'eisdeachd ùr-laoidh a beoil,
Stad mi rithist le mòmadh,
'S dheachd mi rùn gu bhi fòil.

Ach gur deacair dhomh innseadh,
Leis mar dhiobrainn an cainnt,
Dreach na firn' ud, sa h-àllteachd,
A' thug barr air gach geall ;
Tha slios geala-mhin mar eala,
No mar chanach nan gleann,
'S a h-anail chùraidh mar chaineal,
O beul meachair gun mheang.

Bha falt cam-lùbach, bòidheach,
Bachlach, òr-bhuidh', na dhuail,
Càs-bhuidh', sniomhanach, faineach,
An neo-chàradh mu'n cuairt,
Do bhraghad sneachdaidh a b' fhior-ghlain
Fo' lie bu mhìn-dheirge gruaidh,
Gun innleachd bhà, ach buaidh naduir,
A toirt gach barr dhut gun uail !

Aghaidh bhaindidh, għlan, mhòdhar,
Bu bhinne, ròs-dheirge, beul,
Suil mheallach, ghorm, thairis,
Caol-mhala, 's ros għejid,
Uchd sōluis, lan sōnais,
Geala bhroilleach mar għréin
'S troidh mhìn-gheal, chaoxin, shocrach,
Nach doich'neadh am féur

Ach gu dubhar na coille,
Am binne 'n goireadh a chuach,
Bha 'm fochar na h-Innse,
Gus an tionaillt' am buär,
Gun do dh'imich an eailin,
Min, farasda, suairc' ;
Għleus i għuth, 's għabb i bran,
'S bu rő-bhinn chèol bheireadh buaidh.

B ann air gaol bha i tighinn,
S rùn a cridhe, sa buaidh,
Do dh'bġ-laoch nan ciabh òr-bhuidh',
An leitif Laomuinn nan cuach,
Do dhiuchd uiseag, a's smedħar,
Am barraibh rō-chrannaibh suas,
A's sheinn cho binn an co'-għleus d'i,
'S gun do dh'éisd mi car uair.

" O chailean ! O Chailean !"
Do sheinn cailin nan gaol,
" Cia fath nach tigeadt tu tharaïs,
Do ghleannnan falaich nan craobh ?
Is nach iarrain-s' air m'vrdugh,
De stòras, no mħaoxin,
Ach bhi laidhe na t-asgail,
Fo' do bħreacan san fhraoħ,

" Gu'm b'ðg mis' agus Cailean,
Anu an gleannan na cuaič,
A's sinn a tional nan dīthean,
Leinn fhìn feadh nan cluan ;
A s sinn 'gar leagadħ nar sħneadħ,
'Nuair bu sgħi leunn air bruaič
'S bhiodh na cruitearau sgiathach,
Cuir ar cionalais bhuiġġ.

" Gu'm bu neo-chiontach māran
Mo grāidh auna sa' chöill ;
A's sinn a' mireadb n-ar 'n-aonar,
Gun smaoiintinn air foil ;

Sian gun mhulad, gun fhadachd,
O mhadainn gu h-oidhch',
Agus Cupid g'ar talaigh,
Gu toirt gràidh, 's sinn nar cloinn.

"'S ge do thainig an samhradh,
'S mi sa' ghleann so ri spréidh,
Gur e's tric leam am fagail,
'S bitidh cäch an a deigh;
'S ann a dhiucas mi tharais
Do na ghàran leam fein,
Gu bhi taomadh mo dhosgainn
Ann am fochar nan gèug.

" Tha mo chairdean fo ghruaim rium,
O là chual' iad mar tha—
Gur annsa leam Cailean
Na fear-baile le thàin ;
Ach cha treiginn-s' mo cheund-ghradh,
Gus an géillein do'n bhàs;
On a gheall e bhi dileas,
Cia fath mu'n dìbrinn-sa dha ?"

So mar sheinn an caomh chainin,
Tòsan tairis a gràidh,
'S a boid sheasmhach da ceud ghaol,
A's nach dibreadh gu bràth,
Gach òigh' eile da cluinn so,
Gun robh a h-inntinn gu bàs,
Gu bhi leantainn an t-samhl' u'd,
Gu'n a h-an-toil thoirt dha.

Ach air bhi grathuinn na m' thamh dhomh,
'S mi gun abhachd san ròd,
'S mo chliabh air lasadh le h-éibhneas
A' tabhairt éisdeachd da'n òigh—
Chunnaic as òganach gasda
Teachd o' leacain a chrò,
'S e le uile shàrimeachd,
'S b'ann gu Innis nam bò.

Bha dhreach, 's a dhealbh mar bumhiannach,
Le bigh iarraidh dh'i féin,
An tùs briseadh an rùnachd,
'S i fo h-ùn bhlà air fóill ;
Beachd a b'f hearr, bu neo-fhurasd
A thabhairt tuille na dheigh,
Air an òganach mhaiseach,
A teachd o leacain nan gèug.

Ach suil dha'n tug an t-òg gasda
Bu riogħail mais' a' gach taobh,
Dheare air òigh nan ciabhs cas-bhuidh',
Siar fo' asgaill nan craobh ;
Dheachd a chridhe le furtachd
Gu'm b'e sud cuspair a ghaoil,
A's ghuidh e beannachd da 'n chodhail,
A bheag am bròn daibh araoon.

Is ann an glacaibh a chéile,
Le mor spéis mar bu mhiann,
Ghlais an dìth's ud le éibhneas,
'S an rùn réidh ga'n cuir dian ;
'S o'n bha furan cho tairis,
'S nach b'fhusras aithris cho fial,
Ghuidh mi sōnas gun dith dhaibh,
Gu là 'n crich a's mi triall.

Note.—The circumstances that called forth the foregoing beautiful song were these :—Our author in his excursions was perambulating the Highlands of Perthshire, where he happened to alight on a shelting, or mountain dairy, in the occupancy of a respectable farmer's daughter attended by a young man one of her father's servants. The bard was warmly invited to remain with them in this humble but hospitable hut for some days to rest himself and to bear them company. The invitation was accepted. A person of the poet's penetration could not long remain ignorant of the fact that the artless maiden was uneasy in her mind; and, as they had now arrived at that stage of intimate familiarity which justifies the disclosure of secrets; upon being questioned, she told him that her affections were fixed upon a neighbouring swain—a handsome, young fellow, whose advances, however, were disconcerted by her parents in consequence of his poverty. Ross possibly entered with enthusiasm into his friend's romantic love-affair—at all events, he was not the man to do violence to the feelings of the human heart for the sake of pounds, shillings, and pence. Short as his stay was in the shelting, he had frequent opportunities of seeing the young lover and the milk maid meet in the solitude of a contiguous dell. Spurning the threatened wrath of parents, they were speedily married—the poet was invited to the marriage feast, where he sung this song so tenderly expressive of the bliss which had its consummation in the union of his fair friend with the man of her affections.

FEASGAR LUAIN.

FEASGAR Luain, a's mi air chuairt,
Gu'n cualas fuaim nach b' fhuathach leam,
Ceòl nan teud gu h-brdail, réidh,
A's coisir da reir os a chionn;
Thuit mi 'n caochladh leis an ioghnadh,
A dh-aisig mo smaointean a null,
'S chuir mi 'n ceill gu'n imichinn céin,
Le m'aigneadh fein, 's e co'-strèap rium.

Chaidh mi steach an ceann na còisir,
An robh òl a's ceòl as dàmhns',
Ribbinnean, a's fleasgaich òga,
'S iad an ordugh grinn gun mheang;
Dhearcas fa leath air na h-òighean,
Le rösg foil a null 'sa nall,
'S ghlacadh mo chridhe, 's mo shùil cò'ladh,
S rinn an gaol mo leòn air ball!

Dhiuchd mar aingeal, ma mo choinneamh,
'N ainnir òg, bu ghrinne snuadh;
'Seang shlios fallain air bhìà canaich,
No mar an eal' air a chuan;
Suil ghorm, mheallach, fo chaoil mhala
'S caoin' a sheallas 'g amhare uath,
Beul tlù, tairis' gun ghìnè smalain,
Dha'n gnà carthannachd gun uail.

Mar għath gréin' am madainn cheitein,
Gu'n mheath i mo leirsinn shàl,
'S i ceumadh ùrlair gu réidh, iompaidh,
Do reir pugannan a chìùl;
Ribhinn mhòdhail, 's fior-ghlan fòglum,
Dh-fhion-fhuil mhòrghalach mo ràin,
Reull nan òighean, grian gach còisridh,
'S i'n chiall chòmhraids, cheòl-bhinn, chiùin.

'S tearc an sgeula sunnailt t-éugaisg,
Bhi ri fheatáin san Roinn-Eòrp,
Tha mais', a's feile, tlachd, a's ceataidh,
Nach facas lean fein fa m' chòir,
Gach clù a' fis riut mùirn, 's an àillteachd
An sùgradh, 's a màran beoil,
'S gach buaidh a b'aillich, bh' air Diana,
Gu leir mar fhagail, tha aig Mòir,

'S bachlach, dualach, cás-bhuidh', cuachach,
Càradh suineas gruaig do chinn,
Gu h-àluinn, bòidheach, faineach, òr-bhuidh',
An căraibh seòighn' 'san òrdugh grinn,
Guu chron a'fàs riut, a dh' fheut' aireamh,
O do bharr gu sàil do bhuinn;
Dhiuchd na buaidhean, òigh, mu'n cuairt dut,
Gu meudachdain t-uail 's gach puing!

Bu leigheas éugail, slan o'n Eug,
Do dh' fhear a d' fheudadh bhi ma d' chòir
B' fhear na'n eadail bhi na t-fhagaisg,
'G eisdeachd agallaidh do bheoil;
Cha robb Bhenus a mensg leugaibh,
Dh' aindeoio féucantachd cho boidh'ch,
Ri müirninn mhìn, a leon mo chridh',
Le buaidhnean, 's mi 'g a dìth ri m' bheò.

'S glan an fhion-fhuil as ua fhriamhaich
Thu, gun fhiarradh mbíar, no mheang,
Cinneadh mòrghalach, bu chrodhá,
Tional cù'ladh cho'-stri lann,
Bhuin'eadh cùis a bharr nau dù'-Ghall,
Sgiursadh iad gu'n dùthchas thall,
Leanadh ruraig air Càtaich fhuara,
'S a toirt buaidh orr' anns gach ball.

Tha cabar-féidh an dlùth's do reir dhut,
Nach biodh easlaineach san strì,
Fir nach òbadh leis ga'n togail
Dol a chogadh 'n aghaidh righ,
Bu cholgail, faiceant' an stoirm feachdaidh,
Armach, breacanach, air tì
Dol 'san iomairt gun bhonn giorraig,
'S nach pilleadh gu dhol fo chìs.

'S trom leam m' osna', 's cruai' leam m'fhortan
Gun gheus socair, 's mi gun sunnt,
'S mi ri smaointinn air an aon rùn,
A bhuin mo ghaol gun ghaol d'a chionn.
Throm na Dùilean peanans dùbait,
Gu mis' umhlachadh air ball,
Thàladh Cupid mi san dùsal,
As na dhùisg mi bruite, fann!

Beir soraidh buam do'n ribhinn shuaire',
De'n chinneadh mhòr a's uaisle gnàs.,
Thoir mo dhùrachd-sa g'a h-ionnsaidh,
'S mi 'n deagh rùn d'a cùl-bhuidh' bàin.
'S nach bruadar cadail a ghuais m'aigne,
'S truagh nach aidh è dhomh tàmh,
'S ge b'ann air chuairt, no thall an cuan,
Gu'm bi mi smuainteach ort gu bràth.

* The bard here alludes to the celebrated Mary M'Leod the poetess, who is said to have been a little dry in her last years. Tradition has it that, when Mary paid a visit to any of her friends, if the shell was not in immediate requisition, she feigned to be suddenly seized with colicks—raising such lugubrious moans and shrieks as could not but alarm the inmates. "Oh! Mary, dear daughter," they would exclaim in their simplicity, "what ails you—what can do you good?" Mary, who was musical even in her distress, would reply in the words of the chorus—"Hò rò gur toigh leam drama".

Cha' n'eil cleireach, no pears eglais,

'S toigh linn drama, &c.

* When our author's celebrated preceding song in praise of whisky became generally known, Mr John Mac Donald, the author of the excellent love-ditty, the second set of Mairi Laghach, invoked his muse and composed a parody on it systematically overthrowing every thing Ross had said in its praise. Our author having heard of this, again tuned his lyre—sustained the positions he formerly assumed—castigated the vilifier of aqua vitae and at still greater length celebrated the inspiring qualities of it.

Tha luchd cràbhaidh dha do dhiteadh,

Note.—“WILLIAM Ross chiefly delighted in pastoral poetry, of which he seized the true and genuine spirit—‘Moladh na h-dighe Gaeltach’ or his ‘Praise of the Highland Maid’ is a masterpiece in this species of composition. It embraces every thing that is lovely in a rural scene; and the description is couched in the most appropriate language”—BIBLIOTHECA SCOTO-CELTICA.

AN LADIE DUBH.

LUINNEAG.

Hò ro ladie dhui',
 Hò ro eile,
 Hò ro ladie dhui',
 Hò ro eile,
 Hò ro ladie dhui',
 Hò ro eile,
 Gu'm b' eibhinn le m'aigneadh
 An ladie na'm feudadh.

Nach mireagach Cupid,
 'S e sùgadh ri mhathair,
 Dia brionnach gun suilean,
 An duil gur ceòl-gàir'e,
 A' tilgeadh air thuaiream,
 Mu'n cuairt anns gach àite,
 A shaighdean beag, guineach,
 Mar's urrainn e'n sàthadh.
 Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

Bha sagart 's na criochan,
 'S bu diaghaidh 'm fear-leughaidh,
 Air dunadh le creideamh,
 'S le eagachd cho eudhòr;
 'S b'ann à cheann-eagair,
 A theagasc bhi hénsach
 Gun ofrail a nasgadh
 Aig altairean Bhenus.
 Ho ro iadie dhui', &c.

'Nuair a chunnaic a bhan-dia,
 Fear-teampuill cho dùire,
 Gun urram dh'a maildeachd,
 Gun mhiagh air a sìngradhb,
 Chuir i'n dia dalldach,
 Beag, feallsach, gun sùilean,
 'Dh-fheuchain am feudadh e,
 A ghlèusadh gu h-ùrlaim.
Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

'Nuair dhiuchd an dia baothar,
 Beag, faoilteach, mu'n cuairt da,
 Gun thilg e air saighead,
 O chaillinn na bùaile
 Chaidh 'n sagart na lasair,
 S cha chuirt as gu là-luin e,
 Mar bhithedd gun gheill e,
 Do Bhenus san uair sin.
Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

S b'e aidmheil an Lebhit,
 'Nuair a b' éigin da ùmhachd,
 Gu 'm b' fhearrde gach buachaille
 Gruagach a phùsadh,

 Cho buan ann a shuilean,
 'S gun robh i na aigneadh,
 Na chadal 's na dhùsgadh.
Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

'S e fàth ghabh an sagart,
 Air caidridh na h-òighe,
 Air dha bhi air madainn,
 Ga h-aidmheil na sheòmar,
 A glacadh 'sa leagadh,
 Air leabaidd bhig chòmhnaidh,
 'S mu's maitheadh e peacadh,
 Bhi tacan ga pògadh.
Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

Ach tilgidh na Cinnich,
 Mar ilisgean oirnne,
 Mar tha sinn cho déidheil,
 Air éibhneas na h-òige
 Luchd-creideamh a's cràbhaidh,
 Toirt stràcan gu góraich,
 'S a bristeadh nan àintean
 Le barr am buill-dòchais!
Ho ro ladie dhui', &c.

Note.—The foregoing cynical song was composed on a rigidly righteous Highland School-master, who, fancying that his ferula and cassock were sufficient to sustain him in his self-lauded innocence, was notorious in the countryside for his scorching tirades against all delinquents—especially such as had incurred the rebuke of the kirk-session.—Our bard, although free from the grosser immorality, being a little amorous in his disposition, came once or twice under the lash of this censor.—But alas! the instability of human virtues—“holy Willie”, himself got an illegitimate child! The fama of the Saint's sin ran from one corner of the Parish to the other by getting his servant maid in the family way.—The poet readily availed himself of the opportunity to retaliate upon the Dominie, and applied the lash with great skill.—Nothing excels the irony and sarcasm of our bard in this production; if he does not exult a little too loudly over a fallen enemy.

* The poet, crossed in love, suffered such poignancy of grief that it ultimately brought on a consumption and he was for sometime bed-ridden. On a fine evening in May, he rose and walked out through the woods to indulge his melancholy alone.—Arriving at a large tree, he threw himself on the green sward beneath its branches, and was not long in his sequestered sylvan situation ere the cuckoo began to carol above him.—“The son of song and sorrow” immediately tuned his lyre, and sings an address to the feathered vocalist.—He pours out his complaints before the shy bird, and solicits its sympathies.—Had Burns been a Gaelic Scholar, we should have no hesitation in accusing him of plagiarism when he sang:—

“How can ye chaunt, ye little birds
 While I'm so wae an' fu' o' care?”

But Ross embodies finer feelings and sentiments into his fugitive pieces than even the bard of Coila.

Thuit mi le d'ghäth, mhill thu mo räth,
 Striochd mi le neart dòrain
 Saighdean do ghaoil sàit' anns gach taobh,
 'Thug dhiom gach caoimh co'-lath,
 Mhill thu mo mhais, ghoid thu mo dhreach,
 'S mheudaich thu gal bròin domh;
 'S mar fuasgail thu trà, le t-fhuran 's le t-fhàilt'
 'S cuideachd am bàs dhomh-sa!

'S cama-lubach t-fhàlt, fanna-bhui' nan cleachd
 'S fabhrad nan rösg àluinn;
 Gruaidean mar chaor, broilleach mar aol,
 A nail mar ghaotha gàraidh—
 Gus an cuir iad mi steach, an caol-taigh nan leac
 Bidh mi fo neart cràidh dheth,
 Le smaointinn do chleas, 's do shùgradh ma seach,
 Fo dhuileach nam preas blàth'or.

'S milis do bheul, 's comhnuard do dheid,
 Suilean air lìdh àirneig,
 'Ghiùlaineadh bréid, uallach gu feill,
 'S uasal au reull àluinn—
 'Strua' gun an t-éud tha'n uachdar mo chleibh,
 Gad bhualadh-s' an ceud àite—
 Na faighinn thu réidh pùsd' on a chléir
 B'fhasa dhomh-féin tearnadh.

 Dheanainn gach tùrs' fhògar.

 Ma'm leabaiddh-s' a bhrì t-uaisle—
 'S fada mi 'n éis a feitheamh ort séin
 'S nach togair thu ghéug suas leam,
 Na b'thus a bhiodh tinn, dheanainn-sa luim,
 Mas biodh tu fo chuing truaighe,
 Ach 's goirid an dàil gu'm faicear an là,
 'M bi pràsgan a' trà'l m'uaigh-sa !

Mallachd an tùs, aig a mhnaoi-ghlùin',
 Nach d' adhlaic sa chùil beò mi!
 Mu'n d' fhuaire mi ort iùil ainnir dheas ùr,
 'S nach dùiringh thu fiù pòg dhomh,
 Tinn gu'n bhi slàn, dùisg' as mo phràmh,

 Mo bhéannachd ad dheighl, cheannaich thu-fein,
 Le d' leannanachd gle óg mì.

* The woman here introduced as a hypercritic in song was a particular friend of the poet.—Ross began, in her presence, to sing the praises of “the girl of his affections” and his own certainty of a premature grave in consequence of her refusal of him.—The old wife heard the first stanza, and by way of episode or running commentary, endeavours to cure him of his passion.—She thus continues her intervening remarks to the end of his ditty.—The poet was so struck with the shrewdness and point of her episodes that he immediately versified them.—The song, therefore, comes before us in the shape of a duet—the woman, however, singing two stanzas for the poet's one.—Ross does every thing as he should—he well knew the garrulousness of women, and their privilege to have the last word in every controversy!

AIR FONN—"Robai dona gòrach."

Ge fada na mo thamh mi
Tha 'n damhair dhomh dùsgadh,
Cia fàth ma'n thriall mo mhàran,
'S gum b'abbhaist dhomh sùigradh ?
C'arson a bhithinn brònach ?
Ma'n bigh 's gun a diù dhomh,

Le amhailtean Chupid.

Gach fear a bhios a feoraich,

Tha raghainn sud do'n tuathdaidh,
On 's dual da bhi smaointinn :
Cha 'n aidich mi ach fòil e,

Thig m' ùr-sgeul bho Apollo,
Mar sheolas na Naoinear.

Ach sud mar sheinneadh Cormaic,*
'S e dearmad a cheud ghaoil,

* Tradition says that this Cormac, whom the Bard mentions so often in the above song, was an Irish Harper, who came to Scotland and visited several of the Highland Chiefs. He at length went to the family of Macleod of Lewis, and served him for several years as a Harper. Having fallen in love with Macleod's eldest daughter, he

'S e gabhail cruit da iunnsaidh

On chuir finne 'n diù-chall,
Mo shùgradh 's mo bhéusan,
Gu'm bath mi'n guth an òrgain,
Le toraghan mo spéis dh'i.

'Nuair dh'eirich Cailean Cormaic
Air chorra-ghleus gu fàrsan,
Gu'n d'fheòraich am fear òg
An e goraich a dh'fhas ann,
'S a liughad cailin beul-dhearg,
Cho búsach 's cho nàrach,
A's finne a th'air an feill.
A tha feumach air màran.

'Nuair chual' am Macan-baoth sin,
'S a ghaol bhi do-mhùchte.
'S e smaointich e gu thearbadh,
Bhi falbh as a dhùthchaich
Ach nochdadair na h-aobhair,
'S e 'u caoin ruith le túrsa,
Gun ghlaic e cruit a's sheinn e,
Le binn-cheòl as ùr e.

Bha feiteach air an an òrgan,
Aig Cormaic ri ard-cheol,
Mas biadh an fhiinne 'n uachdar,
Air duan nu fuaim clàrsaich,
Ach cha d' fhuair mise sgeul
Ann am Beurla no Gàëlig,
A dh'innseadh dhomh mar d'fhaodainn

O ! teirmeasg air a ghaol sin,
Nach faodainn a threiginn,
A's gur h-é chuir a laoid mi

resolved, on the first opportunity, to fly with her to Ireland. One night, after supper, Cormac tuned his harp, and played a tune of the name of "Deuchair-gheust' Mhic-O'-Chormaic," which had the power to lull all to sleep who were within hearing of it. By this magic music the whole of Macleod's household fell into a deep slumber. Cormac then drew a large dagger, which he used to carry about him, called Madag-achlain, to cut Macleod's throat. As he was drawing near the chief with his knife, Macleod's eldest son came in, after returning from his daily mountain sports, and seeing Cormac approaching his father with such a dreadful weapon, exclaimed—"Cormac! Cormac! what do you intend to do—are you mad?" Cormac replied, "Mad, my young man! think you so? I am not; but I have a regard for your fair sister, whom I am resolved to take with me to Ireland; and as your aged father will not gratify my desire, I must sever his head from his body and clear my way." On hearing this, the youth replied, "You had better not, as you may get your choice of a thousand virgins in Scotland, much fairer than my sister, without committing so cruel a deed." Cormac said, "You speak truly, my young man; hand me my lyre, that I may banish the virgin's love with the sound of my harp." The Bard uses this history as a text to the above song, where he complains that Cormac, with the melody of his harp, had cured his love, while a remedy for his own was never to be found.

'S 'n teire a bha 'n ad ghnùis-ghil,
A lub mi gu eugail,
'S nach deann Lighich' slàn mi,
Och ! b'fhearr gum b'e 'n t-éug e.

Is ciomach ann do ghaol mi
Ri smaointinn bean t-ailteachd,
Cha chadal anns an òidhch' dhomh,
'S cha 'n fhois anns 'an là dhomh,
Cha n' fhasas rì mo ré,
'S cha 'n fhaigh mi sgeul gu bràth air
Ni b'annsa' na bhi réith 's tu,
A gheug nam bäs bàna.

Gur binne leam do chòmhradh
Na smearach nan geugan,
Na cuach sa mhadainn Mhàighe,
'S na clàrsach na'n teudan,
Na'n t-Easpug air la Dòmhnaich
'S a mòr-shluagh 'ga eisdeachd,
Na ge do chunntu stòras
Na h-Eorpa gu léir dhomh.

C'arson nach d' rugadh dall mi,
Gun chainnt no gun leirsinn ?
Mas facas t-aghaidh bhainidh,
Rinn aimhleas nan ceudan,
O'n chunna' mi air thùs thu,
Bu chliúteach do bheusan,
Cha n' fhasa' leam nam bäs
A bhi lathair as t-éugmhaist!

Ach 's truagh ! gu'm beil do rùn-sa,
Cho dùr dha mo leanmhuiinn,
'S mo chridhe steach 'ga ghiul,
A h-uile taobh dha falbh mi,
An cadal domh no dùsgadh
A sùgradh no seanachas,
Tha sud da m' ruagadh daonnan,
'S mi sgaoilte gun tearmunn !

Ach fasgaidh mi mo dhuthaich
Gu 'n diùch'naich mi pait dheth,
Ro-mheud sa thug mi rùn
Dha do chul buidhe, faineach,
Air triall dhomh thar m' éolas
A dh'ain-deoin mo chàirdean
Tha saighead air mo ghiùlan,
A lùbas gu lär mi !

'S a nise bho'n a thríall thu,
'S nach b' fhiach leat mo mhàran,
A chionn 's nach robh mi stòrasach,
Mòr ann an stàta,
Ach sud ge d'robb da 'm dhi'-sa.
Cha 'n islich mi paitean ,
Tha m' aigne torrach, fior-ghlan,
Nach diobair gu bràth mi.

Ach mu's a triall gun dail dnt,
 Gu aite nam mor-sheol,
 Gu'n fhuireach ri do chairdean,
 Do dhàimh, no luchd t-eòlais,
 Biodh soirion air na speuran,
 Gun eirdh air mor-thonn,
 A dh' aiseageas le réidh ghaioith
 Gun bheud thu gu seol-ait.

Mar sud bha ur-sgeul Chormaic
 Cho dearbhta sa' shein e,
 E-fein sa' chomunn òg
 'S iad gle bhrönach ma thimcheall,
 E gabhail ead le pòig dh'i,
 Gu'n chòmhchradh gun impidh
 'S e dioladh guth an còdhail,
 Na h-òighe gu 'm pill e.

ORAN ELLE,

AIR AN AOBHAR CHEUDNA.

Tha mise fo' mhulad sa'n àm
 Cha'n òlar leam dràm le sunnt,
 Tha dùrrag air ghùr ann mo chàil
 A dh-fhiosraich do chàch mo rùin,
 Cha'n faic mi 'dol seachad air sràid
 An cailliu bu tlàithe sùil;
 'S e sin a leag m'aigheadh gu làr
 Mar dhuilleach bho bharr nan craobh.
 A ghruagach is bach'liche cùl
 Tha mise ga t-iundran mòr,
 Ma thagh thu deagh àite dhut fein
 Mo bheannachd gach ré ga 'd' chòir:

Tha mise ri osnaich 'na d' dheigh,
 Mar ghaisgeach an déis a leòn;
 Na laidh san àraich gun fheum
 'S nach teid anns an t-sréup ni's mò!

'S d' ftag mi mar iudmhail air tréud,
 Mar fhear nach toir spéis do mhnàoi,
 Do thuras thar chuan fo' bhreid,
 Thug bràs shileadh dhéur om shùil—
 B'fhearr nach mothachinn sein
 Do mhaise, do cheill, 's do chliù,
 No suairceas milis do bheil
 'S binne no séis gach ciùil.

Gach anduin' a chluinneas mo chàs
 A cuir air mo nadur fiamb;—
 A cantain nach eil mi ach bàrd—
 'S nach cinnich leam dàn is fiach—
 Mo sheanair ri páigheadh a mhàil,
 'S m'athair ri malaid ri amh
 Chuireadh iad gearainn an crann,
 A's ghearrain-sa rann ro' chiad.

'S fad a tha m' aigne fo ghruaime
 Cha' mhosgail mo chluain ri ceòl,
 'M breislich mar ànrach a chuan
 Air bharraibh nan stuadh ri ceòl.
 'S e iunndaran t-àbhachd bhuam
 A chaochail air snùadh mo neòil,
 Gun sùgradh, gun mhire, gun uail,
 Gun chaithream, gun bhuadh, gun treòir!

Cha duisgear leam ealaidh air hill',
 Cha chuirlear leam dàn air dòigh,
 Cha togar leam fonn air clàr
 Cha chluinnear leam gàir nan èg.
 Cha dirich mi bealach nan àrd
 Le suigeart mar bha mi'n tòs,
 Ach triallam a chadal gu bràth
 Do thalla nam bàrd nach beo!

AILEAN DALL.

ALLAN M'DOUGALL, better known by the soubriquet of Ailean Dall, or blind Allan, was a native of Glencoe, in the county of Argyle. He was born about the year 1750, of poor but honest and industrious parents. When a young man, he was bound apprentice to a tailor, who, in conformity with the custom of the time and country, itinerated from farm to farm, "plying his needle" in every house where his services were required. The excursive nature of this occupation, accorded well with Allan's disposition—the house in which they wrought, was literally crammed every night with young and old, who passed the time in reciting old legends—tales of love, of war, of the chase—intermingled occasionally with songs and recitations of ancient poetry. Thus nurtured, Allan soon became famed for his fund of legendary lore. His mind became imbued with the yet lingering spirit of chivalry, which characterized his countrymen in former times. He heard the encomiums bestowed upon the bards, and his youthful breast felt the ardent flame of emulation. From the first stages of puerility, he was remarkable for his sallies of wit, and quickness of repartee—there was an archness about him, which indicated future eminence. It is said that as he was sitting one day cross-legged, sewing away at his seam, he retorted so keenly and waggishly on a fellow-apprentice, that the other, wincing under the lash, thrust his needle into Allan's eye ;—in consequence of this, the assailed organ gradually melted away, and the other, as if by sympathy, wore off in the course of time. Thus, like Moenides and Milton "wisdom at one entrance was clean shut out," from poor Allan. Nature, however, is an excellent compensator—we seldom find a man deprived of one faculty, who does not acquire others, in a pre-eminent degree. Such was the case with Ailean Dall. He possessed a lively imagination, an excursive fancy, and a retentive memory.

Incapacitated from pursuing his trade, he turned his attention to music, and soon acquired a tolerable knowledge of that science as a fiddler. But he never became eminent as a musician, and was chiefly employed at country weddings and raffles, and so earned a miserable pittance. About the year 1790, he removed with his family to Inverlochy, near Fort-William, where he was accommodated with a hovel and a small pendicle of land by Mr Stewart, who then held the salmon-fishing on the river Lochy, and the occupancy of an extensive farm. The change had materially bettered our bard's circumstances—his family did all necessary agricultural operations, and Allan's fiddle and muse were in ceaseless demand, and were occasionally successful in the realization of some little cash, or other remuneration.

We utterly repudiate the doctrine that hardships and indigence are, or can be fertile in the productions of genius ;—difficulties may spur to invention, but it is ease and comfort that can yield time and temper to give a polish to literary or poetic productions. The former may let off the whizzing squib of momentary excitation—it is the latter that can light up the bright-burning and pellucid torch of genius. During his stay at Inverlochy, he composed the most of his songs—his fame spread, and his reputation as a poet became ultimately stamped. His style is fine—his manner taking—his subject popular—and his selection of airs exceedingly happy. But while we are prepared to give our author a respectable position among the minstrels of our country, we are by no means disposed to place him in the first class.

Induced by the popularity his poems had acquired, Allan bethought him of preparing them for publication ;—and with this view, he consulted the late Mr Ewan M'Lachlan, of the Grammar School, Aberdeen, who was then employed as a tutor in the neighbourhood. Mr M'Lachlan, himself an assiduous votary of the muse, entered with his characteristic zeal and enthusiasm into the poet's prospects. He took down our author's compositions in manuscript, and as they would not of themselves swell even into a respectably sized volume, the amanuensis added a few of his own productions, together with several other select pieces. The volume thus "got up" soon became exceedingly popular—especially in that part of the country : to say that it possessed merit, is saying too little—but there were one or two obscene pieces which we would like, for the sake of moral purity, had been omitted.

Shortly after the appearance of his poems in a collected form, the far-famed Colonel Ronaldson M' Donald of Glengary, took Allan under his patronage, and gave him a comfortable cottage and croft near his own residence. And now might the palmy days of our minstrel be said to have commenced—he occupied the proud and enviable position of family-bard to the most famed Ceann-taighe in the Highlands. He laid aside his blue, home-made great-coat, and hat, and was equipped in habiliments suited to his newly acquired rank. Never was there a more marvellous transition outwardly ; and we venture to presume that the buoyancy of his feelings kept pace with his improved exterior. Allan now appeared in Glengary's retinue, clad in tartan trews, plaid, belt and bonnet, on all festival days and occasions of public demonstration. His minstrelsy tended to enliven the scene, and to inspire the party with the almost dormant chivalric spirit of their country. His panegyrics on Glengary were elaborate and incessant ; and, as poets like other mortals, must have some slight ingredient of selfishness about them, if our author stepped beyond the bounds of propriety or truth in this respect, he has his equal in Robert Southey, the poet-laureate—and this we should think sufficient apology ! He annually accompanied his patron to the gymnastic games at Fort-William ; and various anecdotes of his ready wit are related by the people of that place. He previously composed appropriate songs for these exhibitions, and sung them at the games, as if they had been strung together on the spur of the moment—always making sure of having his lyre tuned by two or three copious draughts, not of Helicon, but of Benevis ! On one occasion, after the sports of the day were over, Glengary having seen Allan quaff his third shell, stepped forward and said—"Now, Allan, I will give you the best cow on my estate, if you sing the proceedings of this day, without mentioning my name!" The bard adroitly and at once replied:—

“Dheanann latha gun ghrian,
A's muir blian gun 'bhi sailt,
Mu'n gabhainn do na Gàéil dàn,
Gun flear mo ghràidh'n aird mo rainn !”

i. e. I would sooner create daylight without a sun, and call into being a sea of fresh water, before I would celebrate a gathering of Highlanders, without Glengarry figuring the first in my verse.

But although Allan became Glengarry's family bard, he did not give up composing pieces of general interest—and quite detached from the connexions of his proper calling. Indeed many of his productions while with the "proud chieftain," are, if any thing, better and more popular than his first. In the year 1828, he travelled the counties of Argyle, Ross, and Inverness, taking subscriptions for a new and enlarged edition of his works; and on procuring 1000 names, he went to press in 1829. But alas! the book was only in progress, when the cold finger of death silenced his harp for ever. He died much regretted, and was interred in the burying-ground of Kilfianan.

In personal appearance, Allan M'Dougall was thin and slender, and somewhat diminutive in size. He commonly wore a black fillet over his eyes. He was seldom out of humour, and very rarely nursed his wrath so long as to lead him to indulge in satire. He was amongst the family bards what Ossian was among the Fingalians—"the last of the race."

 Dh-fhogair iad uatha gach neach
 A reachadh ri aghaidh crudail,
 Na 'n tigeadh an ruraig le neart :
 Na 'n eireadh cogadh 'san rioghachd,
 Bhiodh na clobairean na 'n aire ;
 'S e sid an sgeula bu bhinn linn,
 Bhi ga 'n cuir gu dìth air fad !!

Eiridh iad moch la sàbaid,
 'S tachraidh iad ri càch-a-chéil',
 'S nuair a shineas iad air stòri,
 'S ann g' an còmhradh, tigh'n' air feur,
 Gach fear a faoighneachd ri nàbuidh,
 "Cia mar sin a dh' fhag thu 'n treud ?
 Ciod i phris a rinn na muilt ?
 No 'n do chuir thu iad gu féil ?"

"Cha 'n aobhar talaich am bliadh'n' e,
 Rinn iad a sia-diag a's còrr ;
 Ma tha thus' ag iarraidh fios air,
 Cheannaich mi 'mhín leis a chloimh ;
 Dh-fhalbh na crogaichean air dàil ;
 'S ma ghleidheas mi 'n t-àlach òg,
 Ge do gheibh an trian diù 'm bàs,
 Ni mi 'màl air na bhios beo."

'Nuair dhireas fear dhiù ri beinn,
 An àm dha eiridh gu moch,
 Bi'dh sgread Ghallda 'm beul a chleibh,
 'G eigheachd na deigh a chuid con ;
 Ceol nach b' eibhinn lium, a sgaist ;
 Brasci na shac air a chorpa,
 E suinte na bhreacan glas ;
 Ua' -mhílan na fhalt 's na dhos.

'Nuair thig e oirnn sa ghaoth,
 'S maир a bhios air taobh-an-fhasga,
 Cha 'n fhaodh fhaileadh a bhi caoin,
 'S e giulan nam maodal dhachaigh ;
 'S tric e ga fhoileadh 'sa ghaorr,
 Sios bho chaol-druim gu chasan,
 'S ge be reachadh leis a dh' òl,
 'S feadar dhaibh an sròn a chasadadh.

Nuair shuidheas d' this no triùir
 'S an taigh-òsd' an cùis 'bhi réitik,
 Chitear aig toiseach a bhùird,
 Clobair agus cù na dhéidh ;

Bu choir a thilgeadh an cùil,
 'S glèn a chur am beul a chleibh,
 Iomain a mach thun an dùin,
 'S gabhadh e gu smiùradh fein.

S olc a chuídeachd do chàch,
 Neach nach àbhaist a bhi glan ;
 Cha chompanach dhaoinne 'is fiach
 Fear le fhiacan a spòth chlach,
 Ann an garrabhuic air a għluinean,
 Le chraos ga 'n súghadh a mach ;
 'S ma leigeas tu 'n deoch ri bheul,
 Na dheaghaidh na fiach a blas,

Amach luchd chràgairt na h-òluinn,
 Ma 's a h-àill leibh comunn ceart !
 Druidibh orra suas a chòmhla,
 'S na leigibh a sròn a steach :
 Bho nach cluinnear aca 'stòri,
 Ach craicinn agus clòimh ga reic,
 Cunntadh na h-aimsir, 'e gach uair
 'Ceannach uan mu 'n teid am breith.

Suidhidh sinn mu bbòrd gu h-éibhinn,
 Gu ceolach, teudach, gun smalan,
 Caomhneil, currantach, ri chéile,
 'S na biodh aon do 'n treud n' ar carabh ;
 Olaibh deoch-sainte Mhic-Choinnich,
 'S Chòirineil Ghlinne-Garaidh,
 Chionn gur beag orra na caoich,
 'S luchd dhaorachaidd an fhearuinn.

ORAN LEANNANACHD.

NAM faighinn gille r'a cheannach,
 A bheireadh beannachd gu Màiri,
 'S mo shoraidh le caoimhneas
 A dh-fhios na maighdin' a chraidih mi ;
 Ga nach a tug mi dhut faoidhrean,
 Ann am foill dhut cha d' fhàs mi :
 'S mar a math leam thu fallain,
 Nar a mheal mi mo shlainte !

Nar a mheal mi mo chòta,
 Mar b'e mo dheoin a bhi lamh riut,
 'S a bhi briodal ri 'm leannan,
 An seomar daingeann nan clàraidh,
 An iuchair fhaotainn am' phòca,
 S gun aòr a bhi laimh ruinn,
 'S mi gun deanadh do phògadh,
 Gun fheòraich de m' chairdean.

Gun fheòraich do m' chairdean,
 'S fada a dh'fhalbhuinn a d' choinnidh
 Far an deanainn riut còdhail,
 Cha bhidhinn beo gun a cumail :
 Tha mo dhuil ann sa mhàighdein
 Nach treig do chaoimhneas mi uile ;
 'S mar do chaochail thu àbhaist,
 Gheibhinn t-fhàilt' agus t-fhuran.

'S e t-fhuran a leon mi
 A dh'fhas am bron so air m' aigneadh,
 A thromaich m' inntinn fo' éislein,
 Cha dean mi eirdh le graide :
 Tha mo chridhe neo-shunntach,
 Tha mi bruite fo'm aisnean,
 Aig a mheud 's thug mi 'ghaoil dut,
 'S nach fhaod sinn 'bhi tachairt.

Nach faod sinn 'bhi tachairt
 An àite falainch no 'n uaigneas,
 Far an deanainn riut beadradh,
 A 's tacan cleasachd air uairean ;
 Ach se lagaich mo mhìsneach,
 Nach faod mi tric 'bhi mu 'n cuairt dhut :
 B' fhearr a phog na 'bhi falamb,
 Mar a faigh mi do bhuannachd,
 Cha 'n eil m' éibhneas air thalamh,
 Mar a faigh mi thu 'Mhàiri !
 Cha dual domh bhi fallain
 Ma bhios mi fada mar tha mi :
 Cha ghuidhinn mo ghalar
 Do m' charaid no 'm nàmhaid ;
 Chaidh acaid an chridhe,
 'S cha dean lighichean stà dhomh !

Beul milis, dearg, daite,
 Deud snaighe mar dhisnean,
 Suil ghorm is glan sealladh
 Fo' n'chaol mhàl' aig an rìbbinu
 Tha cul buidhe mar òr ort,
 Is bòidhche nan dìthean ;
 Blas na meal' air do phògan,
 'S bé mo dheòin bhi riut sinnte.

Ge d' chum mi falach an sgeula
 Tha mi 'n deigh bho cheann greis ort ;
 Aig a mbiad 's thug mi ghaoil dut
 Tha m' aodunn air preasad :
 Dh-fhas glaise 'nam ghruaidean,
 'S bochd a bhuaidh th' air an t-sheirc sin,
 A chaochail mo shnuagh dhion,
 Mar dhuine truagh 'thig á teasáich.

Mar dhuine truagh thig á teasáich,
 A bhiodh fad ann am fiabhras,
 'S ann a dh-fhas mi mar fhuathaich,
 Cho cruaidh ris an iarunn ;

Ach bho thoisearch ar sinnsridh,
 "S trì ni thig gun iarraidh,
 An gaol agus eagal,
 'S gun leith-sgeul an t-iadach."

Bu mhath thu air banais,
 Ga 'r cumail na 'r caithris,
 Nuair bhitheadh luchd-ealaidh
 Ri caithream na 'r cluas.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

DUANAG DO 'N UISGE-BHEATHA.

FONN.—“Tha'n oidhche tighinn a's mise leam fin.”

THA faileadh gun photas
 Bho 'chneas Mhic-an-Tòisich,
 Chuireadh blàths' aon am pòraibh,
 Là reòt a's gaoth tuath.

O! sid i 'n deoch mhilis
Nach pileamaid uainn,
Chuireadh blàths air gach cridhe,
Ge do bhitheadh iad fuar :
O! sid i 'n deoch mhilis
Nach pileamaid uainn.

Bu taitneach an ceòl
 A bhi g' eisdeachd a chrònain,
 Ga leigeadh a stòp,
 A' cuir croic air a chuaich.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

'S e gogail a choilich,
 Ga ghocadh ri gloine,
 Ceol intinneach, loinneil,
 A thoilleadh an duais ;
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Ma chreidear mo sheanachas,
 Bu mhath leinn 'bhi sealg ort,
 Le h-urchair gun dearmad,
 Fras airgeid mu d' chluais.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

'Nuair chluinnte do ghlugan
 Ga tharruinn á buideal,
 Bu mhath le ar slugain
 Am fluichadh gu luath.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

'S tu culaidh an damhsa
 Nuair thigeadh an geomhradh,
 A bheireadh air seann-duine
 'Cbeann' thogail suas.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Be sid an stuth neartmhòr,
 Dh-fhas misneachail, reachd-mhòr,
 Ni saighdear do 'n ghealltair,
 Gu spealtadh nan cnuac.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Sùgh brìgheil na thirnne,
 bho fheadan na pràise ;
 Tha spioradail, laidir,
 An caileachd 's an snuagh.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Ann an coinnidh, 's an codhail,
 Bheir daoine gu còmhراdh,
 'S binn luinneagan orain
 Mu bhord ga 'n cuir suas.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Tha thu cleachdta 's gach dùthach,
 N àm reiteachadh cùmhant,
 Ma bhiost sinn as t-iunnais,
 Bi'dh sùigradh fad bhuain.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Tha thu d' lighich' neo-thuisleach,
 A dh' fhiachas gach cuisle,
 Gun iarmait no duslach,
 Air nach cuir thu ruraig.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Gun engail na fàilinn
 Tha 'n clannaibh nan Gàël,
 Nach toir thu gu slaint',
 Agus phaighear dhut dhuais.
O! sid i 'n deoch, &c.

Nuir 'shuidheamaid socrach,
 'S e 'ghlaodhete na bodaich,
 Cha b' ionnan 's am brochan,
 Thoir boslach dheth' nuas.

O! sid i 'n deoch, mhilis
Nach pileamaid uainn,
Chuireadh blàths air gach cridhe,
Ge do bhitheadh iad fuar :
O! sid i 'n deoch mhilis
Nach pileamaid uainn.

ORAN DO 'N MHISG.

AIR FONN—"An am dol sios bhi dednach."

An àm dhomh gluasad anns a mhadainn,
 Cha 'n 'eil m' aigneadh sunntach,
 'S e Mac-na-bracha 'rinn mo leagadh
 Ann an leabaidh dhùinte ;
 Mo chliabh na lasair, air a chasadh,
 S airtneulach mo dhùsgadh,
 'S e sud an gleachdair fhuair fo smachd mi,
 'S dh' fhag e m' aisnean bruite.

Nuair a shuidh sinn san taigh-òsda,
 Chaidh na stoip thar chunntas,
 Gu tric a tighinn, cha bu ruighinn,
 Iad na 'n ruith a m' ionnsuidh,
 Gun iarrайдh dàlach a sior phaigheadh
 'G òl deochb-slainte 'Phriounsa ;
 'S cha 'n iarrainn fein a dh' aoibhar ghàir',
 Ach Ràonull a toirt clùi dhomh.

Nuair a ghluais mi gu tigh'nn dachaigh,
 Lagadh a chion lùis mi,
 Gun d' fhàlbh mo neart gun leirsinn cheart,
 Gun chaill mi 'm beachd bha m' shùilean ;
 Feadh na h-oidhche 's mi gun soillseinn
 Air mo shlaovic 'san dùnan ;
 Cha robb air chomas domh ach àrusg,
 'S bha mo chairdean diùmbach.

'S leir dhomh 'n diugh gur mor an tàmaillt
 Càch a bhi ga m' ghiulan,
 'S mi fein an duil gun robb mi laidir
 Gus an d' fhag mo thùr mi ;
 Ge do chuir i 'n eis mo cholunn,
 'S e mo sporan 'dhiubhail
 Air gniomh na misge 'shlaid gun fhiös mi,
 Mar tig gliocas ùr dhomh.

'S ole an ealaidh bhi ga leanait,
 'S aimideach an tìrn 'bhi
 'Suidh' air bhord a glaodhach òil,
 'S mo phòccannan ga 'n tionndadh,
 A' sgapadh stòrais le meud-mhoir,
 Ag iarraidh phòg 's na cùiltean ;
 'S fad ss mhaireadh mo chuid òir,
 Cha chuireadh òsdair cùl riùm ;
 'S coir dhomh nise thoirt fos' near
 An t-aithreachas a dhùbladh,
 Mo bhoid gu gramail thoirt a'n Eala,
 Dh' fheuch an lean mo chliù riùm ;

Cha teid deur a staigh fo m' dhendaich,
 'S feadar tigh'n as iùnais ;
 Cha 'n fhaigh fear falamh seol air aran
 Ach le fallas gnuise.

Labbair Raonull—"Na birodh sprochd ort,
 'S theid mi nocht air t-ionnsuidh,
 Gleidhidi mhì dhut bean a's tochradh,
 Cho coltach 's tha 's dùthaich ;
 Ge do bhiodh tu gann de stoc,
 Na faicear bochd do ghiulan ;
 'S c'arson nach glaodhamaid a'r hotul
 Ann an toiseach cùmhnhant ?"

SMEORACH CHLOINN-DUGHAILL.

LUINNEAG.

Ho-i, rì na, ho-ro, hù-o,
Ho-lib ho-i na, i-ri, ù-o ;
'S smèòrach mise le Cloinn-Dùghaill
A seinn ciùil, an dluths' gach géige.

CHA dean mi bròn an còs falaich,
 Tha seileir mo loin gun ainnis :
 Gheibh gach seòrsa seol air aran,
 'S cha churam dhomhsa 'bhi falamh.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Nuair a dh'eireas grian an earraich,
 Diridh an ianlaith 's na crannaibh ;
 Tha 'm beatha-san diant' air thalamh
 Bho 'n laimh gus am bial, 's i ro mhath.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Gur a mise a smèòrach gheannach,
 Sheinnian ceol air bhàrr gach meangain ;
 Ribheid ùr an siuinsair fallain,
 'S math mo chàil, gun sàs air m' anail.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Madainn chéitein, 'n àm dhomh dùsgadh,
 'Seinn gu h-éibhinn, eutrom, siubhlach ;
 Dealt nan speur air gheugan cùraidh,
 Grian ag eiridh, 's feur a' brùchdadadh.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Ghineadh mi 's an tìr nach coimheach,
 'S chaisginn m' iotadh le brigh Chomhaïnn ;
 Tobar ioc-shlainte nach reodhadh,
 'G éiridh 'nios bho 'n dilinn dhomhain
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Air taobh greine, gleann mo chridhe,
Far an robh eibhneas mo dhibhe;
Ge do bhiodh an t-eug a tighinn,
Bheireadh slainnt' do'm chreubhsa rithist.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S an tìr aIGH do'n gnù 'bbi cridheil,
Chaidh m' àrach gun fhaillinn bidhe,
Air nead sàbhailte gun snithe;
Sgheibhinn blaths' air sgà Chloinn Iain.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Tha mi nise measg Chloinn-Cham'roin,
Cinneadh mòr bha 'n seòrs ud ainmeil;
'N cath 's an còmhail, seòlta, calma;
'Dol gu còmhrag, stroiceach, marbhatach.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S piudhar mi do'n chuthraig shamhraidi,
Le'm dheoin cha teid mi gu Galltachd;
Bho'n is i Ghàelic is cainnt domh,
'Measg mo chairdean talar ann mi,
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Nuair theid fianlach feadh na coille,
Cruinnichidh ianlaith gach doire;
Thig gach ian gu nead le coilleig,
Srabb ga shniomh am bial gach coillich.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S ionnan sid 's mar dh'eireas domhsa;
Ma phiocas cùch mi le dòruinn,
Falbhaidh mis' "an rìochd na smèòraich,"
'S theid mi 'm ghearan far an cùr dhomh.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Gu Dùn nan Ciar thriallainn dàna,
'Dhol fo sgiathaibh nan triath stàtail;
Ged nach eil Eoin Ciar a lathair,
'S maireanu am fear liath a's Pàdrraig.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Dùn-olla nan tùireid arda,
Nam fear fuileach, builleach, stràeach,
'Sheasadh duineadh luchd an cairdeis,
'Choisneadh urram ri uchd namhaid.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S smèòrach mi bho chaisteal uaibhreach,
Nan stend príseil, rioghail, suairee,
Dream gun spid, bha'n sinisur usal,
Bu mhòr pris ri linn Raon-Ruairidh.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Dughallaich nan geur-lann aisneach,
Guineach, beumach, speiceach, sgaiteach,
Dol ri feum le treundas gaisgidh,
Garg 's a streup, 's bha'n leus ri fhaicinn.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Cha robh 'm Brusach na chuis pharmaid,
Ri thuil cha chumadh iad earbsa,
Mu'n do sguir sibh, bha e searbh dha,
'S bu bheag leis a chuid de dh' Alba,
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Chuir sibh, Roibeart an cuil chumhainn,
Ghabh e gu fogradh car siubhail,
Cha robh dhaoine saor bho phuthar,
Fad's a bha bhur taobh-sa 'buidhinn,
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Cha b' iongnadh e 'ghabhail grain diu,
'S tric a chuir iad cunnart bais air;
Thug sibh naithe 'sròl's am braisde,
'S tha sid an Dun-olla 'lathair.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S i'n t-sheunn stòri tha mi gluasad,
'S naidheachd ùr do'n fhear nach eual i,
Sgeula fior, ge fada bhuaithe,
Gun do sheas an linn ud cruadal.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Buidheann gun fhiamh, nach d' iarr socair,
Rinn iad aon blar-diag a chosnadh;
Gus an tainig sgrìob na dòsgainn,
Latha Dail-rìgh a mhi-fhortain,
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

'S e bu mhiannach leis a bhuidheann,
Bhi cur ard-raimh'chean fo'n uidheam,
Seoladh ard air bharr nan sruthean,
Sgoltadh nam bárc le car shiubhal.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Luchd a chaitheamh nan cuan borba,
'S muir a gairich ri h-aird stoirmé;
Bheireadh iad gu aite soirbh i,
Dh' aindeoín barr nan sràc-thonn gorma.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Fir mo ghaoil bho thaobh na tràgbad,
Nach robh claoen ri h-aodann gabhaidh,
Nach meataicheadh gaoir an t-sàile,
'Nuair a sgaoileadh iad a h-àlach.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

Cha d' innis mi trian da'r n' àbhaist,
'S tha mo mhuineal tioram tràisgte;
'S olaidh mi nis' bur deoch-slainte,
A shliochd a Cholla-Chathaich Spaintich.
Ho-i, ri na, &c.

E-SAN A' LABHAIRT

AIR A SHON FEIN

Eisd ! a bhean, do d' ghearan uaibhreach,
'S fairich siobholt ann a d' għluasad,
S na bi maoideadh ormsa t-uaisle,

Le sugradh mar bu choltach dhuinn.

'N cluinn thu mis', a bhean an taighe ?
Eirich, 's theid mi leat a laidhe ;
Smaoinich fein gun geill na mnathan,
'S gabhaidh iad le choiteach rud.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

A bhi trod rium cha 'n 'eil feum ann,
Cha chuis àbhachd dhuinn le cheil e ;—
"Air beul duinnta cha teid séicéan,"
'S e bhi réith is dochá leinn.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

'S ge do dheanainn stòp a thràghadh,
Maille ri cuideachda chairdeil,
'S maирg thu 'mhaoidheadh orm gu bràch e,
Ged do phàidhinn crotag ris.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

Ge do dh' òlainn làn an taomain,
Thiginn dachaigh cridheil, gaolach ;
'S cha bu chùis gu taigh a sgaoileadh,
Ge do ghlaodhainn botul dheth.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

Ge do labhair thu 's gach doigh rium,
Dh' aindeon aon ni riambah a dhòl mi,
'S geal do churraghd, 's dubh do bhrogan,
'S dionach, comhnard, socrach, iad.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

Ge do dh' fhanadh tu air t-eolas,
Gun tigh'nn riambah a nall á Cnòideart,
Gheibhinn te le beagan stòras,
Bhiodh cho boidheach coltas riut.
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

Ach sin 'nuair a labhair ise :—
"Smithich togail dhoit a nis",
Chàin thu thu fein, 's dhìt thu mise ;
'S misd thu nach 'eil fòsadhbh ort."
O tionndaidh rium, &c.

GEARAN NA MNATHA AN

AGHAIDH A' FIR, AGUS IAD A FREAGAIRT A CHEILE.

FONN—"S muladach mi fhìn's mo Dhòmhnull."

A' BHEAN,

'S cia mar dh-fhaodas mi bhi beo,
'S an duine broeite, truagh agam ?
Tha e-san sean, agus mis' òg,
'S ann aig' tha 'n corr mar chuala mi :
Ge do laideas mi 'ga choir
Tha bhial 'sa shroin air fuarachadh,
'S gur mor a chulaidh ghrain a phog,
Le fhiasaig mhoir 'g a suathadh rium.

AM FEAR.

O ! bhean, cha 'n 'eil do labhairt ceart,
Bha neart annam 'n uair fhuair thu mi ;
Dheanainn mire, mùirn, a's macnus,
A's ghealachdaln ris na gruagaichean :

Sean-fhalac a dh-fhaodar innse,
Sgeula fior a chualas e :—
" Cha lean an sionnach air a shior-ruith,
'S bithidh e sgith dheth uair-eigin."

A' BHEAN.

'S dona ghereis a mhair thu dhomhsa,
A's cha b'e 'm pòsadh buadhail e ;
Dh-shalbh do mhiseach, 's do threòir
An uair bu choir dhut cruadhachadh ;
Ged bhiodh tu da-fhichead 's corr,
Cha b' aois ro mhor an tuairmeachd sin ;
'S gur liomhorr fear nach 'eil cho òg riut,
Chuireas pòr mar thuathanach.

AM FEAR.

Dheanainn cliathadh, 's chuirinn crann,
Na' faighinn earlaid luathaireach,
Agus cuideachadh ri bantrach,
'S gheibhinn taing, a's tuarasdal ;
Ge do chaidh mi nis a prìs,
Bho 'n tha mi tinn air uaireanan ;
Gu 'n robh mi roimhe 'm sgalaig ghrinn,
'S bu mhor 'ga d' dhì na fhuair thu dhiom.

A' BHEAN.

'S a h-uilc càs an robh thu riambah,
Bha teang' ad bhial a dh'fhuasgladh ort ;
Na'n creideadh gach neach do sgiala,
Dhianadh tu na cruachan domh :
Ach caite faca sinn do ghniomh,
Nam fiachta ris an rùmhar thu ?
Bha do dhruim 's do lamh cho diomhainn,
Sid an giombh a fhuair mi dhut.

AM FEAR.

O ! bhean, nach labhair thu gu foil,
Cha 'n 'eil do chomhradh buannachdach :
'S ma thionndas tu rium a choir,
Beir mis 'n corr nach fhuair thu dhut ;
Glacaidh mi suiste 'ann am dhòrn,
'S air ùrlar comhnard buailidh mi,
Bho airde na sparra nuas gu làr,
'S cha 'n flag mi grainn air eغاib agad.

BHEAN.

'S na 'n togadh tu ort a chroit sin,
Choisneadh tu do dhuais orm :
Cha chluinnt gu bràch mis' g osnaich,
A's nochdainnse mo shuairceas dhut ;
Chuirinn an t-im ann sa bhròchan,
A's chumainn deoch an uachdar riut ;
'S chaidleamaid gu sàmhach socrach
'S cha bhiodh sprochd no gruaim orm.

AM FEAR.

Shaoil mi bhean gu 'n robh thu bàindì,
A's nach biadh sannt gu tuasaid ort :
Ge do dh-fhásainnse cho fann,
'S nach tionndainn air do chluasaig riut ;
Air leam fein nach eil thu 'n call,
'S do chlann a chuir ri ghuaillich dhut ;
'S ma dh-fhas thu guinideach nad' cheann,
Gur bean tha 'n geall air buaireadh thu.

A' BHEAN.

'S ann agam-sa bba'n ceannfath,
Nuair chithinn cǎch a' cluaineis riut ;
Chaidh a' chuis bho fhaladhà,
A's cha robh stà bhi d' bhuachailleachd ;
Ged a's mis' a ghlac do lamb,
Bha te no dha nach b' fuathach leat :
'S ma chosg thu riutha do liunn-tàth,
Tha nis' am fàilt air fuarachadh.

AM FEAR.

Dh-aithнич thusa sin ort fein,
A bheudag dh-fhas thu suarach orm :
Chaill thu nise dhiom do spéis,
'S cha 'n 'eil do reite buan agam :
Bho 'n a chaidh mise nis' bho fheum,
'S e 'n t-eud a rinn do bhualadh-sa :
'S moch 'sa mhadainn chuir thu 'n ceilidh domh,
Nach robh m' eiridh suas agam.

A' BHEAN.

Is fir gun stà, gun rath, gun direadh,
Na bi 'g iunse tuaileas orm :
Nám bidh tusa dhomhsa dileas,
Cha robh m' inntinn bruaileananach :
Ach 'e bu mhiaun leat a bhi briodal,
Ris gach ribhinn chuaileanaich :
'S iomadh ribein agus cìr,
A's deise chinù a fhuair iad bhuit'.

AM FEAR.

Ach c'aite 'n fhuair thu mi 'sa sgàth,
Na'm faca tu 'g an tuaigneadh mi,
Cha robh mi m' mheirleach cho math,
'S nach glaca' tu mi uair-eigin :
'S ma fhuair thu taisgeuladh no brath,
'S e 's phasa chuir a suas orm,
Na càraich air a mliùin do chas,
Ach leig a mach na chuala tu.

A' BHEAN.

'S ma chuireas tu mi gu m' dhùblan,
Bithidh a chuis na 's cruidhe dhut :
Gheibh a' ministeir an t-umhladh,
A's theid an lùireach shuaicheant ort;

Linnseach, mhaslach air a dùbladh,
Leis gach dunadh tuaisgearra :
'S ge do bhithinns' air do chul-thaobh,
Air son crùn cha 'n fhuasglainn i.

AM FEAR.

Ach gus an càirear mi 's an ñìr,
Cha 'n fhair do shuil mu m' ghuaillean i,
'S ma thig do naidheachd os ceann bùird,
Cha chliù dhut a bhi luaidh sin rium ;
A's ge do lasadh t-fhearg le diumb,
Cho ghrad ri fudar buaireasach,
Cha chomhdaicheadh leat orm-sa chùis,
Nach iuunsach mi le h-uaibhreachas.

A' BHEAN.

'S cha mhor nach coma leam co dhiù,
Cha robh do thùrn ach suarach leam :
'S an a'r a'b' fearr a bha do shùgradh,
Chunntainse na h-uaireannan ;
Chaidleadh tu cho trom gun dùsgadh,
Air mo chul le smuaisirein :
'S ge do bhiodh mo thaigh 'ga rùsgadh,
Cha robh curam gluasaid ort.

AM FEAR.

'S bheirinn comhairle gu h-eolach,
Air gill' og tha fuasgailteach ;
E bhi glic ri àm a phòsaidh,
'S laidhe seolta suas rithe :
'S gun droch cleachdadh thoirt 'g a dheoin,
Do ghòraig nach biadh stuaim innte,
'S gun fhiös nan lagaicheadh a threoir,
Nach ordaicheadh i bhuaite e.

A' BHEAN.

Am fear nach dean a threabhadh tràth,
'S a mhàirt ged bhiodh e fuar aige,
S culaidh mhagaiddh e chion stà,
'S ri latha blàth cha bhuan e dias ;
Bithidh an fearann aige fàs,
Na stíllan bana, 's luachair air,
A's e-san broinein ! a' dol bès,
'S na saibhleán làn aig tuathanach.

AM FEAR.

'S cha 'n fheud mo threabhadhsa bhi mall,
S do chail ri dheanadh suas agam ;
Bheir mi oigeich as a' gheann,
'S theid cuing gu teann mu 'n guailleannsa :
A' Dun-éideann gheibh mi crann,
'S e fasan galla 's usaile leinn ;
Coltar, stailinn, soc, a's bann,
'S gach ball bhos ann theid cruidh orfa.

A' BHEAN.

Bi cho math 's do ghealladh dhomhsa,
 'S còrdaidh sinn guin duathalas :
 Bho 'n tha sinn cho fada comhla,
 'S am pòsadh mar chruaidh shnuim oirnn ;
 'S mor gur fearr leam an t-òileadh,
 Na fogarach luasanach ;
 A's cuiridh sinn ar treis an ordugh,
 A's mar a 's coir dhuinn gluaisidh sinn.

AM FEAR.

Is thuirt an sean-fheare, 's cha b'i bhriag,
 Ge d' eireadh sian nan cuartagan :—
 " Nach robh soirbheas laidir dian,
 Gun fhiath bhi goirid uaithe sin ?"
 'S an cogadh bu chruaidh bh' ann riamh,
 Chaidh crioch le rian air uair-eigin ;
 'S cuir thusa, bhean, ri d' theangaidh srian,
 'S bithidh sith 'ga dianamh suas againn.

ORAN NA CAILLICH.

AIR FONN—" Hò hì ho hà mo luadh mo leanamh."

Ma theid mi gu feill, gu féisd, no banais,
 Bi'dh ise làn eud, 's i fein aig baile
 'S ma bheir mi le súigradh suil air caileig,
 Gur diumb a's fàlachd sid dhomhsa.

*O hi o hà, gur cruaidh a chailleach,
 O hì, o ha, gur fuar a chailleach,
 Ho rè, ho rà, 's i ghrain a chailleach,
 Dh'fhàg mise 'nam amadan gòrach.*

Ma ni mi 'n taigh-òsda stòp a cheannach,
 No suidhe air hòrd 's gun òl mi drama,
 Theid faileadh 'na sròn 's a dòrn an tarruinn,
 'S bi'dh muintir a bhaile ri mòd oirnn,
O hi, o ha, &c.

 Na 'n deanadh an t-eug bho chéil' ar sgaradh,

O hi, o ha, &c.

Cha'n airgead, cha'n òr, cha stòr, cha thrusgan,
 'Chuir mise air a tòir ri moran cùirteis—
 Ach dalladh fo sgled le seòrsa buidseachd—

O hi, o ha, &c.

Nuaир thig mi bho 'n chrann an àm an earraich,
 Le fuachd air mo chall, 's mi 'n geall mo ghabaidh,
 Cha'n fhaod mi na taing dolteann air an teallach
 Mu 'm buail i gu h-ealamh le bròig mi.

O hi, o ha, &c.

Cha dian i dhomh feum, 's cha ghreidh i aran,
 Cha'n àraich i feudail, spreidh, no leanamh,
 A' laidhe 'sa g eiridh 'g eigheach 's a' gearan.
 'S gu 'n reicinn gu deimhinn air ghròt i.

O hi, o ha, &c.

Tha cnaimhean cho chruaidh ri cuaille daraich,
 A craiceann, 's a tuar cho fuar ris a ghàillionn ;
 Cha dean barala guail aon nair a garradh,
 Gun dusan sac gearrainn de mhoine.

O hi, o ha, &c.

Gun fhaicail 'na ceann, 's car cam 'na peirceal,
 Nuair thogadh i greann an àm an fheasgair
 Gu'n teiche' gach clann, gach crann, 's seisreach,
 Aig miad an eagail romh' gròigeis !!

*O hi, o hà, gur cruaidh a chailleach,
 O hi, o ha, gur fuar a chailleach,
 Ho rè, ho rà, 's i ghrain a chailleach,
 Dh'fhàg mise 'nam amadan gòrach.*

BARD LOCH-NAN-EALA.

JAMES SHAW, or Bàrd Loch-nan-Eala, was a native of the island of Mull, where he was born about the year 1758. He latterly resided in the parish of Ardchattan, Argyleshire, where he was commonly called the Lochnell poet. Being partly supported by the late General Campbell and his lady ; she, it is said, encouraged him to publish some of his works, for which purpose he went to Glasgow to get them printed. Whether he got a printer to undertake the work or failed in the attempt is not known ; for, on his return home, he died suddenly on board a Steamboat on his passage to Oban : this happened about the year 1828. He lived in a state of idleness and dissipation ; praising those who paid him well for it, and composing satires on those who refused him money or liquor. A few of his poems were printed in Turner's Collection, and many others are preserved in manuscript, but they are chiefly local satires of little merit. "Bi'dh Fonn oirre Daonnan" is his chef d'œuvre and the only popular piece of all his compositions, except in his own country.

ORAN DO DH' FHIONNLA MARSANTA.

[Air son e chuir as a chéile seanna chuairn agus clachan lobairt, à bh'aig na Draoidhean bho shean.]

AIR FONN.—“Alasdair á Gleanna-Garadh.”

CHUNNA' mi bruadar air Fionnla,
'S chuir e iongladh orm r'a fhaicinn,
'S ghabh mi iongandas ro mhor dheth,
Gu sòraicht o 'n bha mi 'm chadal ;
Thuirt an guth rium dol da ionnsaidh,
Dh' iunse nach e cùis a b' phasa,
Dol a rusgadh càrn nan Druidhneach,
Na 'n ear a thoirt a muinntir Ghlascho.

Ach dh' fharraid mi co as a dh' fhialbh e ?
'S fhreagair e le seanachas grad mi,

Thuirt e gu 'n robh a chairdean dileas,
Eadar a Chill 's Allt-na-dacha ;
Bha cuid air an Dun so shuas diu,
'S bha uair a bha iad na bu phailt' ann ;
'S cha 'n eil mi buidheach a db' Fhionnla,
Dhol ga 'n dùsgadh as an cadal.

'S chi thusa fhathasd le d' sluilean,
Ma bhios tu 's dùthaich ri fhaicinn,
Gu 'n téid an gnothach so dhioladh,
Cho chinnteach 'sa bha 'n crùn an Sasunn.

'S goilt e 'n steigh bh' ann an uachdar
Chladhaich e 'n uaigh fo na leacan ;
E gun fhios co dhiù bha innle,
Mac an righ na sliochd a bhaigeir.

'N saoil thu fhein nach robb e dàna,
Marsanta maileid no pacá,
Dhol a rusgadh an àit-iobair,
'S ioma iùm a chuir e seachad ;
'N t-aite 'n robb enainnean an t-seann-duin,
'N tiolaidheach ann o cheann fada ;
Mu 'n téid an gnothach gu crích,
Gur duilge dhà na fiach a bhlastidh.

Ma dh' eireas mise 's mo luchd leanmluinn,
Gu 'm bi gnothach garbh a's dùthach,
Theid Mac-'Ille-dhuibh a mharbhadh,
'S cha dion a chuid airgeid Fionnlà,
Leagar an taigh air sa 'n sabhal,
Sgrìosar am bathar 'sa bhùth air,
'S theid Gilleaspuit ri posta,
Agus crochar mac a chùbair.

Eiridh an tubaist do 'n chlobair,
'S laidhe binu air Mac-na-Cearde,
'S ma dh' òrdaicheas e gu h-ole e,
'S gnothach neo-chiontach sud dàsan,
E na sheirbheiseach aig Fionnlà,
Tuilleadh a null gu Feill-Màrtuinn,
'S ma chuireas e nall na leacan,
Ma bhios meachainn ann sann dàsan.

Bhi cuir fudair anns na creagan,
Chuireadh e eagal air bòcain,
Bhi ga 'n tolladh leis an tora,
'S bhi ga 'n sparradh leis na h-òrdan,
Daoine marbha bhi ga 'n gluasad,
'S gnothach uamhraidh gu leoir e,
'S na 'n leanainn e gu grunnad an t-seanchais,
B' ainmeil e na arm righ Deòrsa.

'S cha téid a chorp fhein gu dilinn,
Thiolaiceadh an aite gràsmhor,
'S ann théid a losgadh mar iobairt,
Air a dhileadh leis na fàidhean,
Theid a luath a chuir le abhainn,
'N aite nach fhraighear gu bràth i,
'S cha 'n faigh e ach rud a thoill e,
Chionn gu 'n d' rinn e gnothach graineil.

Ach dh' fhalbh an guth 's thug e chul rium,
Agus thionndaidh e gu h-ealamh,
Thuirt e rium gu 'n d' rinn e diochuimhn,
'S e ga innse dhomh mur charaid,
Fios a thoirt dh' ionnsaide Dhùghaill,
Gu 'n robb a ghual a's uird ro ealamh,
Dheanadh torachan do dh-Fionnlà,
Chuir fudair an Dail-a-charra.

Smaointich mi so aum am inntiun,
Nach bithinn a diteadh Dhùghaill,
Thuirt mi ris gur duine grinn e,
Do dh' shuili Righrean nan Stiùbhart,
Tha e fhein na dhuine toileil,
Dheanadh gnothach do dh' shear dùthcha ;
'S on bha Fionnlà na chabhaig,
Cha bu mhath leis bhi ga dhiultadh.

'Nuair a dhùisg mi ghabh mi eagal,
'S e na sheasamh air an ùrlar,
Dh' fheuch am faighinn reidh air falbh e,
Los nach coisninn na lorg diùmba ;
Tha Dùghall trom air an tombaca,
'S tha pailteas deth sin aig Fionnlà ;
'S o 'n a labhair mi cho deas ris,
Ghabh e pairt de leith-sgeul Dhùghaill.

'S ann a tha 'n naidheachd so cinnteach,
Ged shaoileadh sibhse gur b'asd e,
Cha 'n innis mi a neach gu brath e,
Ach do chuideachd araid eolach ;
Cha robh a leithid riambh ri innse,
Eadar an Sithean 's Lag-Chòthain
Co dhiù th' ann breug no firinn,
Sin agaibh mur dh' innseadh dhomhs e.

SEUMAS MAC - G H R I O G A I R.

THE REV. JAMES M'GREGOR, D.D., was born at a small farm-house near Comrie, Perthshire, in the year 1762. His parents were not affluent, but they were in circumstances which enabled them to give the benefits of such education as the country afforded, to their son. Young M'Gregor, nurtured amid the sublime and romantic scenery of Lochearn-side, had his mind early imbued with the feelings of poesy ; but it does not appear that he produced any thing worthy of preservation until an advanced period of his existence. While yet a young man, he studied the Gaelic language with considerable assiduity and success, and could write it—a very rare attainment in his younger days.

Being of a sedate and serious turn of mind, he was early designed for the ministry ; and after going through the various seminaries and halls of learning, he was licensed to preach the gospel when about twenty-one years of age. Mr M'Gregor was conscientiously a dissenter from the Church of Scotland. He belonged to the Anabaptist branch of the Secession-Church, and studied divinity under the tuition of the Rev. W. Moncrieff, of Alloa. Shortly after he was licensed to preach, some colonists in Nova Scotia sent an earnest entreaty to this country, for a person of acknowledged abilities and evangelical piety to preach the gospel to them. After due consideration had been given to this requisition, Mr M'Gregor was fixed upon as an individual well qualified to discharge the arduous duties of such a situation, both from his mental qualifications and robust physical constitution. He readily agreed to this proposal ; and, although he had the prospects of an advantageous settlement in his native country he hesitated not to go to a strange land to proclaim the gospel of peace.

In Nova Scotia he entered on a field boundless in extent as in difficulties. The inhabitants were far apart ; there were no roads in the country ; and when we say that the sphere of his operations included the eastern part of Nova Scotia, and the adjacent islands of Cape Breton and Prince Edward, the reader may form some idea of the Herculean task he had undertaken to discharge. He was, we believe, the first missionary to that country. While traversing from place to place, he encountered difficulties, perils, and hardships, which few men would have undergone, undaunted. The site of Picton contained only one or two houses—it was no easy matter to travel to the next hamlet through the density of woods and unbridged rivulets: marked trees, a pocketcompass, or an unintelligible and unintelligent Indian, were his only guides through the solitary and dreary wilderness—sleep was frequently a stranger to him for several nights,—a plank was his bed,—a potato his fare; yet the expatriated Highlanders around him were in need of the gospel; and that, to Mr M'Gregor, was enough.

Towards the close of this excellent man's life, he conceived the idea of clothing the doctrines of the gospel in versification, that he might unite the best and most wholesome instructions with the sweetest and most fascinating melodies. When entering upon the task, he wrote to a friend of his at Lochearn-side for a copy of Duncan M'Intyre's and M'Donald's Poems. His mind had been so occupied with the various studies necessary to the full and efficient discharge of his ministerial duties, that the airs, to which he wished to sing his contemplated hymns or songs, had escaped his memory. The desiderated volumes were sent; but, through the officiousness of some of his domestics, the fact of their being in the minister's possession became known, and a most unwarrantable, unjust and ungenerous construction was put upon the circumstance. How short-sighted, illiberal, and fanatical it was, to edge out insinuations against the genuineness of Mr M'Gregor's religious principles, simply because the productions of the two most brilliant stars of his native country were on the table of his study in a foreign land! How pitiful, that fanaticism which shrouds itself under the garb of piety—broad, expansive, benevolent piety! We blush for the moral perceptions and enlightenment of our expatriated countrymen, and notice these things simply in justice to departed worth.

Taking advantage of this state of public feeling, almost verging on what is understood in ecclesiastical language, as a schism, a stranger intruded himself about this period on his labours; and to the disgrace of many of M'Gregor's flock, they forsook the ministry of their long-tried friend, and followed the intrusionist. The desertion thus occasioned must no doubt have very much imbibited his cup; but his expansive philosophy—his warm philanthropy—and above all, his genuine religious views, enabled him to bear it without a murmur. He proceeded cheerfully with his metrical effusions, until he composed as many as swelled into a respectable 18mo volume, which has now reached its third edition.

Mr M'Gregor's Poems are smooth in versification—pleasant in their garb and evangelical in their doctrines. They are almost all composed after the model of his countryman, Duncan M'Intyre, from whom he borrowed many of his ideas, using sometimes not only distichs and couplets, but entire stanzas with some slight alterations. We do not mean, however, to insinuate that our author trafficked wholesale in plagiarism, with the intention of “decking himself in another's feathers.” No! his poems are but parodies in many instances, and as such they are respectable and entitled to favourable consideration.

When M'Gregor's character and claims were notified to the Members of the University of Glasgow, the senate unanimously agreed to confer upon him the title of D.D., an honour which he amply merited by his services and attainments, and which, coming unsolicited from his native country, and from so respectable a literary quarter, must have been soothing to his feelings, and have gilded the horizon of the evening shades of his life.

In the spring of 1828, Dr M'Gregor was seized with a fit of apoplexy ; and at Pictou, on the first of March, 1830, at the age of 68, he experienced a return which terminated in his death on the third day of that month. His funeral was attended by an immense assemblage of deplored friends, who showed their estimate of his character, worth and talents, by unfeigned expressions of regret.

AN SOISGEUL.

AIR FONN—"Coire-Cheathaich".

'Se 'n Soisgeul gràdhach thug Dia nan gràs duinn
A chum ar sàbhaldh dàn mo rùin :
Ach 's eblas àrd e, air eùisibh àluinn,
Nach tuig an nàdair a tha gun iùil.
Gur mis' an truaghan 's n'asleòr man cuairt domh
A' tabhairt cluais da, mar fhuaim nach fiach ;
B' e'n gnothach cruaidh e nach tuig an sluagh e,
An sgeul as uaisle a chualas riamh.

Tha clann nan daoine gu tur fo dhaorsa,
Aig dia an t-saoghail-s ag aoradh dhà :
Fo chois am miannan, a tha do-riarach ;
Gun fheart, gun iarraidh air Dia nan gràs :
A' dianamh tàir air gach ni is àill leis,
A' briseadh àinteann gach là gun sgòs ;
E fad o'n smuaintibh, 's iad riuth gu luath uaith ;
Chum na truaighe ta buan gun chrich.

Ge mòr an càram th'aig Dia nan dùl diubh,
Cha tig iad dlù dha le ùrnraigheachaoin ;
Bu mhòr a' ghràin leo bhi uair 'na làthair,
An caidreamh blàth ris 'na àros naomh :
Iad ruith na gaoithe, 's ag earbsa daonnan,
Ri sonas fhaotaun am faoineis bhreug ;
Gun fhios, gun aird ac' air doigh a's fearr dhai
Na greim an dràst air n' a's àill le 'n crè.

Tha 'm barail làidir gur muinntir shlànn iad,
'S nach 'eil ceann-fàth ac' air gràsan Dò :
Tha 'n Soisgeul faoin leo, seach gean an t-saoghail,
Tha 'n cridhe aotrom, gun ghaol do'n Léigh

Ach 's àit an sgeul e, air leigheas ceutach
Do dhuin' euslan, fo chreuchdaibh ciùirt ;
'S naigheachd phriseil, bho Dhia na firinn
Do neach fo dhiteadh, 's e diblidh, brùit.

Do neach fo smuairean, le Dia bhi 'n gruaim ris,
'S a lochdan uamhar 'g a chuartach' dlù ;
Gun fhios nach àite dha ifrinn chràiteach,
M'an tig am màireach, s' am bàs 'na shùil
Do neach a dh'fhoglum o'n Spiorad Naomha,
Gur sonas baoth bheir an saogh'l so uaith ;
Nach eil ann ach sgàil deth 'san àm tha làthair,
'S gu 'm bac am bàs e 's nach fàs e buan.

B'e sgeul an àigh e, air beatha 's slàinte,
O Ios' a bhàsaich 'na ghràdh do dhaoin.
'Si 'Thuil am plàs ann am beil an tàbhachd,
'Nuair théid a chàradh gu bàigheil, caoin,
Ri cridhe leòinte, gun ghean, gun sòlas,
Ach doillich, brònach, gun seòl air sith ;
Le Spiorad usal nam fearta buadhar,
Nuair thig e nuas air le gluasad mìn.

Sud sgeul roaoibhneach, air macoin 'a's oighreachd,
Do dhuine daibh, gun sgòinn do'n t-saogh'l ;
Air crùn, 's rìoghachd a chaoi nach crìochnaich
Gun dragh gun mhìothlachd, ach sith, 's gaol.
Sud sgeul ro àraidih do dhuine tâireil,
Air urram àrd ann am Pàrras shuas ;
Le gràdh gun aimhleas, a measg nan ainghlean :
'S cha teirig cainnt dàibh, toirt taing do'n Uan.

Deagh sgeul air fuasgadh, do pheacach truaillidh
 O chionta duainnidh, nach suail a mheud ;
 Tre 'n chumhachd bhrigheach a ta an iobairt
 An t-Sagairt rioghaile, ta siobhailt, seamb :
 'S air feartaibh gràsmhor, ni cobhair tràth dha,
 'Nuair bhios nàmhaid gu làdir, gleusd,
 A' tarruinn teann air chum 'earbs a thionnda
 Tur bun osceann da, le ionnsuidh thréin.

Air gràs, a's tròcair, bleuir neart, a's treoir dha,
 Re faid an röid dh'iomsuidh glòr an Uain ;
 'Sna neamhan àrd far am paitl an gràdh daibh
 'S cha teirig cail daibh gu bràth g' a luadh.
 'S e clù an sgeoil ud gur firinn mhòr e,
 Gun fhacal mòr-uail, no sgleab gun bhrì ;
 'S e Criosd an éirig as buaine éifeachd,
 An iobairt rèitich, sàr stéigh nu sith.

Thug an t-Ard-righ aon mbac a ghàrradh dhuinn,
 A ghabh ar nàdur, 's e bharr a rian ;
 'S an tug e 'n ùmhachd, ledeoin, 's le dùrachd,
 Thug còir as ùr dhuinn teachd diù do Dhia :
 Sàr umhlachd chiatach do lagh na Trianaid,
 Leis an duin' is Dia ann bha ri am feum ;
 An coslas truaghain de dhniue truaillidh,
 Ach a b'hfearr, 's a b' uaisle na'n sluagh gu léir,

An caraid gaolach a choisinn saorsadh
 Do'n chinneadh dhaonnale caonnaig chruaidh;
 A dh'fhilil tamaitl o rug a mhath'r e
 Gu là a bhàis aum an àit an t-sluaign.
 Nuair bu naoidhean òg e, rinn Herod fhògradh
 'S e dearc' an comhnuい air dòigh an t-sluaign.
 Bha 'bheatha brònach, am fad 's bu bheò e,
 'S e cruaidh an tòir air gu bheò thoirt uain.

Oir b' e bu ghnà dhaibh bhi deanamh tair'
 Air Athair gràdhach, 's air àinean naomh :
 'S bhi deanamh dearmaid air slàint' an anma,
 Le cleachda targ, a's le h-aana-gnath baoth.
 Na sagairt uaibhreach, 's na h-ard dhaoin' uaisle
 'Nan naimhdean buan da, le suath gun chrish :
 A' dianamh dìcheill, le h-ionadh imleachd,
 'Us mòran mi-ruin ga 'shir chur shos.

'Us air a lorg bha na diabhail bhorba,
 Fo phrionns' an dorchedais, colgal, cruaidh :
 Ach 'se bu chvràitich an ceartas àrd bhi
 Cur claidhe 'n sàs aum, gun bhài, gun truas
 Rug mallachd Dhia air air son na fiachan,
 Bhuin 'Athair fial ris gu fiata targ ;
 Oir rinn e thréiginn an àm na li-éigin,
 'Nuair chaidh a cheusadh le eucor gharbh.

Ach 's gearr a' chuairt a bha'm bàs an uachdar,
 Gu h-aighearr fhuair e a' bhuaidh gu slàn ;
 Oir rinn e éiridh 'n treas latha 'n dèigh sud,
 Gu subhach, treubhach, chum feum do chàch :

Do pheacaich dhìblidh, a bha fo dhìteadh,
 Gu'n dianadh 'fhireantachd didean daibh ;
 O chiont an nàduir, 's o'n lochdaibh gràineil.
 'S o chumhachd Shàtain bha ghnà ri foill.

Nis anns na h-àrdaindh, tha neart gu bràth aig
 A chum na's àill leis thoirt sàbhailt suas ;
 'Us chum naimhdean a sgrios gun taing dhaibh
 Droch dhaoin'a'saingle, luchdainneart chruai.
 Ach thar gach seòrsa na peacaich mhòra
 Le 'm fuathach eòlas air déuin an Triath :
 Nach creid an shirinn, ged tha i cinnteach,
 Nach gluais gu dìreach, ach sìr dhol fiarr.

Ged bhiodh an criosduidh 'n a laidh am priosan,
 Gu docrach, iotmhòr, gun bhiadh, gun slaint,
 Ni'n soisgeul siorruidh, tre bheannachd Iosa
 A chridhe torail, le fior ghean gràidh .
 Ged dhùisg a nàmhaid geur leamhmuinn cràiteach
 Gun aon cheann-fàth air ach gràdh, a's sith :
 Tha cridhe aibhneach, tha ghnùis ro aoidheil ;
 Tha dàn 'us laoidh aig' gach oidhch gun dìth.

E cumail gleachdaidh an aghaidh peacaidh,
 'Sastìuireadh chleachdaidh, le beachdair Criosd
 Tha gaol do'n reachd thar gach ni, 'us neach aig ;
 'S cha ghabh e tlachd ann an seachram fiarr.
 'Se Dia na tròcair a neart, 's a chòmhnuadh,
 A bhios an còmhnuidh toirt seòlaidh dhà,
 Cha lag a dhòchas cha bheag a shòlas,
 Tha aiteas mòr aig' nach eòl do chàch.

A Thighearn, Iosa, gabh truas de'n chriosdachd,
 Tha 'n t-eòlas losal, 's gach críoich mun cuairt ;
 Is bras a dh' eireas gach mearchd éitidh
 'S is beag an t-eud th' aig a chléir san uair'.
 Dean creideamh, 's eòlas, dean gaol na còrach,
 A's pailteas sòlais, a dhòrtadu nnas:
 Gu daoin' a philltinn, o'n cleachdaibh millteach,
 'S gu naomhachd inntinn bhi ciuntinn suas.

A Dhè na sì-chaint, craobhsaoil an fhirinn,
 Measg slìgh nan tìrean, 's nan Innsean cian :
 Mar dhaoin' air chall, ann an ceò nam beann iad,
 An oidhche teann orr, 's iad fann gun bhiadh.
 Thoir solus glè ghlan, thoir Rathad réidh dhoibh,
 'Us eridhe gleusd a thoirt géill do 'n uan !
 Thoir sgeul do shláinte, thoir fios doghràidhaibh,
 Cuir feart do ghràsan 'nan dàil le buaidh.

Is duilich leam mar tha mi
 A' siubhal le mo namhaid,
 Eas-umhal do na h-aïntean,
 'S mo ghradh dhaibh cho fann.
 'S iomadh fear a bhàrr orm"
 Tha dol a réir a nàduir;
 'S e 'n lagh tha fulang tâmait,
 'Us tâire nach gann.
 Riamh o thuiteam Adhaimh,
 'Se 'm pecadh 'u ni a's fearr leinn,
 'S mi-chneasd a thug sinn gràdh dha,
 'Ga thàlath gach am.
 Cha d'fhuair mifad mo làithean,
 Dad buannachd, no dad stà dheth,
 Ach daonnaun tarrainn sàis orm,
 'S 'g am chàradh am fang.
 'S e dh'fhìg gach ni a leugh mi,
 Gach searmoin riamh a dh' eisd mi,

 Gun fheum dhomh, gun stà.
 S e mhilleas gealladh Dhé orm,
 Nach earb mi ris ach eutrom,
 S nach càraich mi rium féin e,
 Gu h-eïfeachdach, slàn.
 'S ann chuir e mi an déis-laimh,
 'G am fhàgail ro mhì ghleusda,
 Gu h-obair uasal, euchdach,
 'S gu treubhantach ard:
 Gu gleachdadh ris an eucoir
 A bhios a'm chridhe 'g éiridh,
 No chithearn ann am bheusaibh,
 Gu h-eïtich, 's gu grànn.

Nam bithinn tairis, dileas,
 A leantuinn ris an fhìrinn,
 Bhiodh ise dhomh mar dhìdean
 Nach diobradh gu bràth.
 Ged chuireadh daoine sios mi
 Le casaidean, 's le dìteadh,
 Gu'n togadh ise rìs mi,
 'S dhìrinn an aird.
 Cha toilleadh i gu dilinn
 Dad coire dhomh no mì-thlachd,
 Tha ceangal ris an t-sìth aic',
 'S is direach a gnà:
 Ach 's mòr an call, 's an dith dhomh,
 Gu'm beil i tric air di-chuimhn,
 'S nach' eil an creideamh cinnteach
 A'm intinn a tâmh.

Bha amaideachd a's gòraich
 A leantuinn rium o m' òige,

Gur mòr a' chreach, 's an diùbbail,

EOBHON MAC-LACHUINN.

EWEN MACLACHLAN was born at Torracalltuinn, on the farm of Coiruanan, in Lochaber, in the year 1775. Coiruanan was possessed by a family of the name of MacLachlan for many generations. The forefathers of E. Maclachlan came originally from Morven, first to Ardgour and thence to Lochaber, and appear to have been in general, men possessed of superior natural gifts. His great grandfather was Dòmhnull-Bàn-Bàrd contemporary with Sir Ewen Cameron of Lochiel. That bard's compositions are justly admired, particularly his elegy on occasion of the death of that chief. The mother of E. Maclachlan was a Mackenzie, descended from a branch of that clan, which had settled in Lochaber many generations back. His father, Dòmhnull Mòr, a man of venerable presence and patriarchal bearing, was reckoned one of the most elegant speakers of the Gaëlic language in his day. He was distinguished by the extent and diversity of his traditional and legendary lore, as well as by the appropriate beauty and purity of the language, in which he told his tale, or conveyed his sentiments to the admiring listeners, who delighted to resort to his humble dwelling.

Though the father was himself illiterate, he was keenly alive to the benefits of education. Besides the subject of our memoir, he had several sons and daughters. Two of the former were afterwards respectable planters in the Island of Jamaica. In the village of Fort-William, where his father now resided, the parochial school of Killmalie had been situated since the middle of last century, and taught by superior teachers. At this school the brothers of Ewen Maclachlan, as well as himself, got the rudiments of their education, which, by their natural abilities and laudable ambition, all of them afterwards extended. Ewen was the youngest son of the family, except one. While he excelled his very clever brothers in mental abilities, he was their inferior in bodily strength; the physical weakness of limb which disqualified him, in some measure, for the playful exercises of his fellow-scholars, tended, among other causes, to direct his views to objects and pursuits of a more exalted character.

His first teacher was the Rev. John Gordon, afterwards minister of Alvie; after him, Dr William Singers of Kirkpatrick-Juxta. He did not remain long under the tuition of these gentlemen, and on account of his father's poverty, was but very indifferently supplied with books. His progress, notwithstanding, was great for his years; it indeed excelled that of all others in the school, and in general, his class-fellows were glad to grant him the perusal of their books, in consideration of his very efficient help to them in learning their lessons.

Mr MacLachlan, at an early age, went out as tutor into the family of Mr Cameron of Camisky, in the parish of Killmonivaig; there his desire for classical studies received a considerable impulse from his intercourse with the father of his host, Cameron of Lian-dally, then an old gentleman confined to bed. Liandally, like many of the gentlemen of his day in Lochaber, had been well instructed in the knowledge of the Latin tongue, and much exercised in the colloquial use of that ancient language in the parochial school of Killmalie, taught by a Mr Mac Bean. Mr MacLachlan no doubt derived much benefit from his "colloquies" with the venerable classic, who, from his being bed-rid, also derived much amusement, as well as pleasure, from his communings with his young companion.

Mr MacLachlan's next engagement as tutor was, when about fifteen years of age, in the family of Mr Cameron of Clunes. His pupils were Captain Allan Cameron, now of Clunes, and his brother General P. Cameron, H.E.I.C.S. Here Mr MacLachlan made great progress in the study of the Greek and Latin languages. It is said, that he even travelled on the vacant Saturdays, to Fort-William, (whither his parents had removed,) in order to get from his former teacher, an outline of his prospective studies for the subsequent week. Thus he soon became able to translate, with fluency, the Scriptures of the New Testament from the original Greek into his mother-tongue, Gaélic; and frequently did he astonish, as well as instruct and delight, the unsophisticated rustics of the place, by this singular display of erudition.

After the lapse of two years, he engaged as tutor in the family of Mr Mac Millan of Glenpèan, a very remote and romantic situation at the west end of Loch-aircraig. In this family, he resided for two years, still devoting his spare hours to the prosecution of his classical, and other studies. So great indeed was his ardour in this respect, that his worthy hostess often deemed it necessary, to insist on his relaxing his application to his books, in order to take healthful exercise in the open air. On such occasions, his favourite walk was along the banks of the "slow-rolling Peän," so sweetly celebrated in his own ode to that romantic stream, and on whose green borders were composed many of his finest juvenile strains. At this time also, our young bard began to show a penchant for instrumental music. He constructed a rude violin, on which he took lessons from an individual, by profession a piper, who lived in the neighbouring district or "country" of Mòror, and came occasionally to Glenpèan. This rustic instrument possessed but few, if any, of the qualities of a Cremona. An individual, who lived in the family at this period, describes it as being no bigger than a ladle—"Cha bu mho i dhuibh na 'n liadh," and he himself in the ode to Peän calls it "fidheall na ràcail," or "dissonant lyre." Afterwards, however, our poet became a tolerable performer on the violin, as well as some other musical instruments.

After residing two years in Glenpèan, he returned to Clunes, and resumed his former office there. Here he remained for six years. In 1795, he fondly cherished the hope of being enabled to enter College, could he be so lucky as procure funds for that purpose. With the view of obtaining aid from certain wealthy namesakes of his, he and his father paid a visit to those gentlemen, and to some humbler persons, relations of his mother. The latter, “were willing to contribute something ;” but the former met his suit with a discouraging refusal, telling his father, that “he meant to ruin his son by putting such idle notions into his head, and that he ought rather to go home, and forthwith bind the lad as apprentice to his own trade,—that of a weaver.” With heavy hearts and weary limbs, they returned home. After anxious and earnest deliberation on this important point, by the poet and his parents around their humble ingle, the idea of going to college was, for a time, abandoned ; and the young man resolved to return next day, to the family of Clunes, where he was assured that he should be received with open arms. He accordingly set out for that place ; but as he approached it, his earthly career was very nearly terminated. In those days, there was no bridge over the river Arkaig. He found the stream greatly swolen, and hazardous to ford. Night, however, was approaching, and therefore he ventured out. He had not proceeded far in the rugged channel, when he was carried off his feet, and swept away by the rapid current ; he now thought with himself that his golden dreams of literary and philosophic distinction were at an end : he committed himself, however, to the care of him who hath said, “when thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee ; and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee.” On this he was providentially thrown on a stone, a part of which was still above the waters. After resting here a brief space, he made one desperate effort to reach the wished-for bank, and was successful. He there poured out a prayer of gratitude to the Most High for his signal deliverance from so great a danger. Forthwith Mr Mac-lachlan resumed his labours at Clunes ; at the same time prosecuting his classical studies with unremitting ardour, as his time permitted. Here he composed several pieces of justly admired Gaëlic poetry ; several of these and of his former compositions were published about 1798, in a volume printed in Edinburgh, for Allan M'Dougall, alias “Dall,” musician, then at Inverlochy, afterwards family-bard to the late Glengarry. Among these were “Dàin nan Aimsirean,” a translation of Pope’s Messiah, “Dàn mu Chonaltradh,” &c., and a translation of part of Homer’s Iliad into Gaëlic heroic verse. During the currency of the year 1796, our poet was introduced by Dr Ross of Killmonivaig to the late Glengarry ; and that Chief, ever after, continued his warm friend. He yielded him the pecuniary aid which he had in vain solicited from other sources. This kindly aid, together with our poet’s own little savings out of his salaries, put him in circumstances to proceed to the University, whither he was accompanied by his anxious and affectionate father.* Arrived at Aberdeen, he determined to enter the lists as a competitor for a bursary at King’s College. Here, for the first time, he found himself engaged with entire strangers in the arena of literary strife. The various pieces of trial being duly executed and given in, the hour for announcing the fate of the champions approached ; the anxious expectants were assembled in the lobby of the great College-Hall, where the Professors were still engaged in earnest judicial deliberation. Meantime the rustic dress of the young Highlander, his diffident manner, and rather awkward appearance, drew upon him the ungenerous gibes and unmerited contempt of several young coxcombs, his rivals. It was sneeringly recommended to him to make a speedy retreat to the wilds of Lochaber, while he was comforted with the assurance that he had not the slightest chance of success. Enduring all this banter, with meek, but firm forbearance, he merely advised his assailants not to pre-judge his case. The door of the hall was at length opened, the names of the successful competitors were announced, and the officer first called "EWEN MACLACHLAN," as being the best scholar, and chief bursar.

From that moment, he gained and retained the respect and warm regard of his fellow-students. He entered on his studies in Aberdeen with his wonted earnestness and diligence, and greatly distinguished himself in his classes. At the end of the Session, he resumed the charge of his pupils at Clunes; this he continued to do, during the recess annually, whilst he continued in the gown classes. At the end of that period, having obtained the degree of A.M., he entered the Divinity-Hall. Through the good offices of the Rev. Dr Ross, our student was presented to a Royal bursary in the gift of the Barons of Exchequer; and about the same time (anno 1800), he was appointed assistant to Mr Gray as librarian of King's College, and teacher of the Grammar School of Old Aberdeen. From the date of these appointments, he took up his permanent residence in that town, of which, at a subsequent period, he was made a free burgess. He continued to attend the Divinity-Hall for eight sessions, and in the enjoyment of the Royal bursary above mentioned. He was, during the period last mentioned, custodian of the library attached to the Divinity-Hall of Marischal College. From this date, the life of our theologian was indeed a life of incessant literary toil and scholastic labour. In addition to the duties of the offices to which he had been recently appointed, he devoted several hours every day to private teaching, in order to eke out the limited income derived from these offices. Many gentlemen, especially from the Highlands, sent to him their sons to be under his effective and immediate superintendence. Even in these circumstances, as well as through life, he displayed great liberality and affection towards his aged parents and his other near relations, by often relieving their wants out of his hard earnings.

After completing his attendance at the "Hall," and delivering his trial-pieces with eclat, he found the bent of his mind, as well as his ambition, directed to a "Chair," in one of the Universities, rather than to the Pulpit. He was encouraged in his aspiration after this object, by several friends, but particularly by Professor James Beattie of Marischal College. The Professor's death, however, in 1810, was a heavy blow to Mr MacLachlan's hopes. A strong mutual friendship had existed between them, amounting to affection. On the melancholy occasion of his friend's death, Mr MacLachlan composed an elegy in the Gaelic tongue, which for beauty of language, sincerity of sorrow, and unrivalled elegance of composition, can bear comparison with any thing of the kind ever presented to the world. This was not the only composition in which our poet's grateful remembrance of Professor Beattie's friendship was commemorated. In his "Metrical Effusions," (Aberdeen, 1816,) is printed an elegant Latin ode addressed to that accomplished scholar, during his life, and an English ode, entitled "A dream," being an apotheosis on that patron of neglected merit. Some years after his settlement in Aberdeen, Mr MacLachlan turned his attention to Oriental literature, as well as to that of the languages of modern Europe ; and his acquirements in these he made subservient to the critical culture of his mother-tongue. About the same time he undertook the arduous task of translating the Iliad of Homer into Gaëlic heroic verse. Of this immortal work, he finished nearly seven books, which still remain in MS. Besides this, he began to compile materials for a Dictionary of the Gaëlic language spoken in Scotland, and that, (as he did every thing else) from his mere regard and affection for every thing tending to promote the honour or improvement of his native land. What was then called "the Highland Society of Scotland," (having had reference to the mental culture of their Caledonian countrymen, instead of as now, unfortunately, to the physical development of the points of the inferior animals) had soon after entertained the project of preparing and publishing a Dictionary of that ancient language ; and having ascertained the eminent qualifications of Mr Maclachlan, and his progress in compiling the said work, they conjoined him with the late Dr Macleod of Dundonald, in carrying on the national Dictionary, compiled under their patronage. The department assigned to Mr Maclachlan was the Gaëlic-English, and so important and difficult a task could not have been committed to better hands. In the preface to the Dictionary published by Drs Macleod and Dewar, it is well remarked,—“Mr MacLachlan of Aberdeen especially brought to the undertaking great talents, profound learning, habits of industry which were almost superhuman, an intimate acquaintance with the Gaëlic language, and devoted attachment to the elucidation of its principles.”

The pages of Mr Maclachlan's MS. of this great national work were enriched with innumerable vocables and phrases kindred to Gaëlic, derived not only from the cognate dialects of the Keltic, but also from the Greek and Latin, as well as from the Hebrew, Arabic, Chaldaic, Persic, and other Eastern languages.

In the winter of 1821 and 1822, he was engaged in transcribing this work for the press, and he expected to have it completed by the following July ; but alas ! his valuable life was not prolonged to see his hopes realized.

Let us now briefly revert to events somewhat prior in our poet's life. In the Metrical Effusions formerly mentioned, there is printed an ode in the Greek language, “on the Generation of Light,” which had the honour of gaining the prize given by Dr Buchanan of Bengal to King's College for the best poetical ode upon the above subject. About this period (1816), he, at the request of his friend Lord Bannatyne M'Leod, deciphered several old Gaelic MSS., and transcribed them into the ordinary character. A difficult and laborious task. In 1819, Mr Gray died, and Mr MacLachlan was then appointed Head-Master of the Grammar School of Old Aberdeen, and also principal Session-Clerk and Treasurer of the parish of Old Machar. These promotions increased his income, but greatly added to his labour. He was likewise secretary to the Highland Society of Aberdeen; and in this character, used to wear the full garb of his country when officially attending the meetings of the Society, and on other particular occasions. In 1820, the office of teacher of the classical department of the Inverness Academy became vacant. Many friends and admirers of Mr Maclachlan's great talents made strenuous exertions to procure his appointment to that situation. At the head of these friends was his firm supporter and original patron, Glengarry. Unhappily, the proceedings on that occasion, instead of being conducted with a single regard to public utility, and the rewarding of merit, were mixed up with local politics and causeless prejudices. The result was, that after an unprecedentedly keen canvass, and the exercise of every available influence on both sides, Mr MacLachlan was excluded by the mere numerical force of the opposing party. It is plain from the very handsome document obtained from the Professors of Humanity and Greek at St Andrews, upon the occasion of Mr MacLachlan's being on a remit, examined by them, that want of deep scholarship, or talent as a successful teacher, was not the cause of his exclusion from a situation which he would have adorned.

Gifted with exquisite sensibility, he deeply felt the unworthy treatment thus experienced at the hands of his Norland countrymen; and he frequently expressed himself to the effect, that he was resolved never again to expose his peace of mind to the machinations of "ambidexter politicians."

Some short time after this period, his health became affected. His constitution began to yield under his incessant toils. He proceeded, however, to Ayrshire, to visit his colleague, Dr Macleod. There his health rallied considerably; and he continued in the enjoyment of much of that blessing, till the beginning of 1822; when again his health was most seriously assailed. He lingered till the 29th day of March, when this amiable man, and distinguished scholar, departed this life at the age of 47 years. It might be said that he died of a gradual decay and debility, induced by professional over-exertion and study. His locks had become, years before his death, silver-grey. In him, unquestionably, died the first Celtic scholar of his day. His premature death caused much regret in the public mind, particularly at Aberdeen, and throughout the Highlands; and deep sorrow among his numerous friends.

As a general scholar, possessed of varied learning and fine genius, Mr MacLachlan stood very high. The department of philology, however, was his forte, and favourite pursuit. In that respect, it is believed, he had few superiors. He was "eximus apud Scotos philologus." His Greek and Latin odes have met with the highest approbation from the best critics. The same may be predicated of his Gaëlic poems. His Gaëlic version of the first seven books of the Iliad stands second to the unrivalled original alone. His MS. of the national Gaëlic-English Dictionary (if preserved) affords ample proof of his unwearyed diligence and labour, and of his pre-eminent philological and antiquarian acquirements; notwithstanding it did not receive the final polish from his master-hand. With the true spirit of genius, his mind descended, with grateful elasticity, from those abstruse subjects to the lighter amusements of poetry and music; cheerful, and often playful conversation.

As a classical teacher, Mr MacLachlan's success is sufficiently evinced by the circumstance, that his pupils annually carried off the largest proportion of the bursaries competed for at the University. His excellencies as a scholar were equalled by his virtues as a man and a Christian. His piety was unfeigned, deep, and, in some respects enthusiastic. He was the very soul of honour. None could go before him in moral purity, worth and integrity. His manners, withal, displayed the most engaging simplicity. In life, he secured the love and respect of all who knew him ; and in death, his memory is by them held in tender remembrance.

Eminently calculated to advance the literature and language of his native land, it is deeply to be regretted that he had not been placed through the munificence of individuals, or the public patriotism of his countrymen, in a situation of ease and comfort, such as a Professorship of Keltic in one of our Universities. There he could have effectually promoted the objects he so fondly cherished : the temperament of his modest nature required the supporting arm of a patron, as the limber vine requires the aid of the oak. But his was the too frequent lot of kindred spirits, to experience the heart-sickening of " hope deferred," and to be allowed to droop and die, the victims of ill-requited toil.

Mr Maclachlan possessed the friendship, and was the correspondent of several persons of distinction—among these might be enumerated, besides the late Glengarry, his Grace Alexander Duke of Gordon, Sir John Sinclair, Dr Gregory, and Lord Bannatyne Macleod. Much of their correspondence, (if collated) would be found very interesting.

In conformity with the prevailing feature of his character, this "true Highlander," on his death-bed directed his body to be laid with the ashes of his fathers at the foot of his native mountains; "et dulces moriens reminiscitur Argos." This dying request was religiously complied with. At Aberdeen, every mark of respect was paid to his memory. With all the solemnities usually observed at the obsequies of a Professor of the University, his body was removed from his house to the ancient chapel of King's College, his Alma Mater, and laid in the tomb of Bishop Elfington, the founder of this venerable seminary. Next morning, a great concourse of the most respectable persons in and around Aberdeen, including the Professors of both Universities, the Magistrates of the city and the Highland Society of Aberdeen chapterly, met in the College Hall, to pay their last respects to the remains of departed worth, and thence accompanied the hearse, bearing those remains, some distance out of town, and there bade a long and last adieu. Similar indications of respect and sorrow were evinced in all the towns through which the mournful procession passed. Glengarry, accompanied by a large number of his clansmen dressed in their native garb, paid a tribute of respect to his departed protegè, by meeting and escorting his remains, while passing through that chief's country. His Lochaber countrymen were not behind in exhibiting every proper feeling towards the memory of him whom they universally esteemed an honour to belong to their country. All classes of them came out to meet the hearse ; so that on entering his native village of Fort-William, the crowd was so dense, that the procession advanced with difficulty. Next day, being the 15th of April, the mortal remains of Ewen Maclachlan, preceded by the "wild wail" of the pibroch, and accompanied by a larger assemblage than that of the preceding day, were conducted to their last resting-place, and laid with those of his fathers, at Killevaodain in Ardgour. There, "near the noise of the sounding dirge," sleeps "the waster of the midnight oil," without "one gray stone" to mark his grave !

 Gun dealbh air ach sgleò,
 Gur tìm dhomh bhi críochnachadh

* The chorus and first stanza of this song are not Mac-lachlan's. They were composed by Mrs M'Kenzie of Balone, at a time when, by infirmity, she was unable to attend the administration of the Lord's Supper in Strathmore of Lochbroom,—and ran word for word the same except the last two lines of the verse which are slightly altered. Our talented author got them and the air from some of the north country students in Aberdeen. All the other stanzas, however, are original, and worthy of the poetic mind of MacLachlan. The following translation of it by the celebrated author, we subjoin for the gratification of the English reader :—

Not the swan on the lake, or the foam on the shore,
Can compare with the charms of the maid I adore :
Not so white is the new milk that flows o'er the pail,
Or the snow that is show'd from the boughs of the vale.

As the cloud's yellow wreath on the mountain's high brow,
The locks of my fair one redundantly flow ;
Her cheeks have the tint that the roses display,
When they glitter with dew on the morning of May.

As the planet of Venus that gleams o'er the grove,
Her blue-rolling eyes are the symbols of love :
Her pearl-circled bosom diffuses bright rays,
Like the moon, when the stars are bedimmd with her blaze.

The mavis and lark, when they welcome the dawn,
Make a chorus of joy to resound through the lawn :
But the mavis is tuneless—the lark strives in vain,
When my beautiful charmer renews her sweet strain.

When summer bespangles the landscape with flow'rs,
While the thrush and the cuckoo sing soft from the bow'rs,
Through the wood-shaded windings with Bells I'll rove,
And feast unrestrain'd on the smiles of my love.

Mar Bhénus a boisgeadh
Thar choiltibh nan ard,
Tha a miog-shuil ga m' bhuaireadh
Le suaicheantas graidh :
Tha bràighe nan séud
Ann an eideadh gach àidh,
Mar ghealach nan speur
'S i cur reultan fo phràmh.

ALASDAIR MAC-IOMMHUINN.

ALEXANDER M'KINNON was born in Moror, in the district of Arisaig, Inverness-shire, in the year 1770, in which farm his father was tacksman. At the age of 24, he enlisted in the gallant 92d regiment, in which he served with marked distinction till 1801, when, in the famous battle of Alexandria, he received three several wounds, which were the means of breaking up his connexion with that corps. After the battle, Corporal M'Kinnon was found lying among the wounded and dead, "with his back to the field and his feet to the foe," in frozen gore, and on the apparent verge of dissolution. In disposing of the many brave fellows who fell on that memorable day, it was found necessary to dig ditches or pits in which indiscriminately to inter them ; and such was the seemingly lifeless condition of M'Kinnon, that he was ordered to be buried among the others. This order would have been executed had not Sergeant M'Lean, a bosom-friend and companion of our bard, been prompted by feelings of the purest friendship, to seek him out amid the heaps of carnage in which he was entombed. The Sergeant, applying his ear to the poet's breast, perceived that everlasting silence had not yet been imposed on his lyre ;—his respirations were feeble and slow, but he lived ; and his friend insisted upon having him forthwith conveyed to one of the hospital ships.

Upon experiencing the care and attention his situation required, he gradually recovered from his wounds ; and it was during his convalescence on board the hospital ship that he composed his truly sublime and admirable poem so descriptive of the battle. M'Kinnon, on arriving in England, was discharged with a pension ; but a life of inactivity seemed little to accord with his sanguine temperament,—for he was no sooner able to bear arms than he joined the 6th Royal Veteran Battalion, in which he served all the remainder of his earthly career. He died at Fort-William, Lochaber, in the year 1814, at the age of 44, and was interred with military honours.

Corporal M'Kinnon was prepossessing in appearance ; he stood about 5 feet 10 inches in height ; he was athletic in form and of very fine proportions and symmetry. As a poet he ranks very high : his mind, indeed, was of that gigantic order, which, by its own propelling powers, could rise equal to any subject he chose to sing. Judging from some of his MSS, now before us, he studied the Gaelic language to good purpose ; few have been able so completely to master its idiom and to soar on the syren wings of poesy, sustaining throughout such a sublime and uncontaminated diction. We have not been able to ascertain what his scholastic acquirements were in English, but we feel warranted in supposing these respectable, for he wrote the vernacular tongue with great accuracy, the study of which, it must be recollectcd, formed none of the school-attainments in his juvenile days.

The four pieces here presented to the reader are of prime quality. They speak for themselves, and need no passing encomiums from us. Any poetaster may string stanzas together ad infinitum, and at a hand-gallop ; he may infuse something of the spirit of poetry into them, but to give metrical composition a high finish—to put so much excellence into a poem as to ensure its survival, after the interest of the circumstance that called it forth has passed away—to do this, has fallen only to the lot of a few gifted individuals.

No one could be more happy in his choice of subjects than M'Kinnon ; and, most assuredly, none could handle his materials better. He was an enthusiastic soldier : he saw and admired the prowess of the British arms, and commemorated their feats in strains which cannot die. The poet that chronicled these feats, was worthy of the indomitable army that performed them. Ossian's heroes are often put beyond themselves through the magnifying vista of poetic description ;—and who has not felt how much of the prowess of Ajax and Hector owed its existence to the redundancy of Homer's inventive powers ? M'Kinnon has indulged in no fanciful representations ;—he has honestly and truthfully recorded such achievements as British valour performed within his ocular cognizance ; and one characteristic feature of his muse is, that she was always on duty.

It would be out of place here to attempt a formal criticism upon the works of this excellent poet. His heroics, in which he seems most at home, admit of no comparison. We wonder what stuff the poet was made of : the poet, who could wind himself up—yes, and inoculate us, too, with the high, patriotic, and impassioned feelings of his soul, to the highest pitch of enthusiasm, and depict, with more than the fidelity of the painter's hand, the panorama of the most sanguinary battles that ever drew the belligerent powers of two mighty empires face to face ! His poem on the battle in Alexandria beginning “Am Mios deireannach an Fhoghair,” has all the minuteness of detail of a studied prose narrative, while the vividness of his description, the freshness of his similes, the sublimity of his sentiments, rivet our breathless attention on the various evolutions of the day, from the discharge of the first shot until the whole place is strewed with mangled carcasses, and the dark wing of night overshadows the gory and groaning plain.

His “Dubh-Ghleannach” is a nautical production in which his muse appears to great advantage ; and we are told by a friend, not likely to be misinformed on the subject, that this was his favourite piece. Mr M'Donald, the proprietor of the yacht, which the poet immortalizes, was so well pleased with the poem, that he gave M'Kinnon £5, and this sum appeared so enormous in the estimation of a boor, a neighbour of M'Kinnon's, that he spoke to him on the subject, saying, “ It is a bonny song, to be sure, but faith, neighbour, you have been as well paid for it ! ” “ I tell you, sir,” replied the poet, “ that every stanza of it—every timber in the ‘Dubh-Ghleannach's side—is worth a five-pound note ! ” This retort must be regarded more in the light of a reprimand, than as an empty gasconade. Men of genius, however, cannot be blind to their own merit ; and if they ought not to be the trumpeters of their own fame, they are entitled, by the law of self-defence, to retaliate on the narrow-souled detractors of their well-earned laurels. Mac-Kinnon was neither egotistical nor pedantic: he submitted his pieces to the rigid criticisms of his fellow-soldiers, and never hesitated to throw out an idea, a distich, or even a stanza at their bidding. This has, perhaps, tended to the critical correctness of his Gaelic and the excellence of his productions: we read them and are satisfied : there is nothing wanting, nothing extraneous.

Dh' earbadh dòn an 'n anmanan,
Ri Albannach mo rùin
Fir nach thàrruinn arm gu dùl ;
Rinn iad a chaithris armailteach,
Gu h-ullamh, ealamh, ealachuiueach,
'S na 'n deanadh nàmhaid taigneachadh,
Bha bìs allabharach na 'n gnùis,

Gu dol san tòir gu dion,

Le 'r ceannard mòr gu 'n fhiambh,
An dà réiseamaid a b' òige againn,
Na Gréamaich agus Gòrdainich,
A ruith gu dian an còmhdaich,
Na bha dortadh leis an t-sliabh,

Cho ullamh ris an fhùdar,
 A bha dol na smùid ma 'r ceann,
 Ghluais na gillean lù-chleasach,
 Air mhire null do 'n ghleann ;
 Thug siun le teine dùbailte,
 Bristeadh as na trùpairean,
 Bha Gréumaich nan éuchd fiughantach,
 'S cha d' éisd iad mìuseag lann.

Mar stoirm a b' iargalt connsachadh,
 A spionadh neòil a's chrainn,

 Gu pianadh sheòl 's ga 'n call ;

 A bhuan iad air a chòmhnhard,

 A dh'fhàg an sliabh 's nial fuileach air,
 Bha cuirp na 'n riadhan uireasach,
 Fo 'n ian gun tuille lùis.

 A bheist bu tréine langhanaich,
 Bu reusan sgreamh do dh' fheòil ;
 Bu chailteach dhuinn an dealanach,
 'S a liughad saighdear bearraideach,
 Bha 'n oidhche sin a mearachd oirn,
 Gu 'n anam air an tòir.

Dh' aindeoin a h-ard bhùrainich,
 Bha làidir, mùiseach, garbh,
 Ga b' oil leis an cui'd trùpairean,
 Am bruchadh rinn an arm ;
 Ge d' fhuaire sinn beagan diùbhalach,
 A laoghad cha do lùb sinn daibh,
 Bu lionmhor marcach cùl-donn diù,
 Fo 'r casan brùite, màrbh.

* Vesuvius, poetically rendered Vesavius, a volcanic mountain near the bay of Naples.—The first eruption took place in the year 79, when Herculaneum and Pompeii were destroyed.

 Nach d' bhrùchd amach na still.

'S cás a throm an ruaig orra,
 Cho cruaidh 's a chualas riamlı,

 Le shluadh a dh' fhuasgail fial ;
 Mar bhi'dh am baile bhuanainch iad,
 Le canain air a chuartachadh,
 Bha barachd dhiù 's na h-uaighichean,

 'Dh' arm tabhachdach nach striochd,

 'N uair rainig sinn an làrach sin,
 'S a dhealaich mi ri m' chàirdean ann,

AM BARD - CONANACH.

DONALD M'DONALD, commonly called Am Bàrd-Conanach, or the Strathcannon Bard, was born in Strathcannon, Ross-shire, in the year 1780. Owing probably to the secluded situation of his native glen, and the supineness of his parents, who deemed education of no essential importance to enable a man to get through the world, or, at least, thought one might weather through tolerably well without it, he got no English education, but could read Gaëlic. The wild and romantic scenery of his birth-place, with its characteristic exuberance of rock, wood, and water, was well calculated to inspire his breast at an early age with those poetical leanings, which, at a more advanced period, transpired in glowing verse. Highlanders, especially in his younger days, never dreamed of training their children up to any useful trade; the oldest son was invariably recognised as his father's legitimate successor in his little farm;—and the other, or junior members of the family, generally got possession of similar pendicles. Thus they married and got themselves established in the world—strangers to the promptings of ambition, and free from the cares, turmoils, and solicitudes of their more affluent neighbours, the Lowlanders.

Donald M'Donald earned his livelihood as a sawyer; an employment that probably suggested itself as being more immediately productive of pecuniary aid than any other common in his country.

Having spent a number of years at the saw in his native glen, he removed to the town of Inverness, where he established himself as a regular sawyer. Like many other sons of genius and song, M'Donald was of a convivial disposition and warm temperament. He committed some youthful indiscretions which had drawn down upon him the combined wrath of his friends and the Kirk Session, and he has not left us in the dark as to the measures which were adopted against him. His parents dreading that he would elope with a young girl, who was reported to be in a state of pregnancy by him, had recourse to the severe measure of putting him in "durance vile." But, although they succeeded in frustrating his every attempt to do justice to his paramour, they failed to improve the morals of their aberrant son. He ultimately married a young girl, a countrywoman of his own, of the name of M'Lennan, with whom he enjoyed a great share of connubial happiness.

The first of the two songs we annex to this notice, he composed in Edinburgh, upon witnessing the demonstrations of joy which took place upon hearing the result of the battle of Alexandria. It is a triumphant piece, and a very respectable effort, exhibiting, as it does, no mean poetical talents. The other is equally good in its way. All his poems were arranged and taken down in manuscript preparatory to their being printed, but our author was seized with Cholera in the year 1832, which terminated his mortal career. The intention of publishing was consequently relinquished for the time, nor have we heard of any measures having been adopted to resume it.

M'Donald was of a middle-sized stature—active and cheerful. He was an excellent companion, and much liked by his acquaintances.

ORAN DO BHONIPART.

LATHA soilleir samhraidh dhomh,

Bha ceol 'sna h-uile taigh a bh' ann,
'S tein-aighear air na sléibhteann,
On chualas anns na Gàsaidean
'S gach àite bhi ga leughadh ;
Gun deach' an ruaig air Bonipart
S an onair aig a Ghréumach.

Fir laidir, shunntadh, thogarrach,
Nach òb a dhol an òrdugh
Gu dol an coinneamh Bonipart,

C'èite biodh na h-Albannaich ?
Duin' uaisle calma, treubhach,
Fir shuuntach, shauntach, thogarrach,
Na seòld nach òbadh éiridh,
Ach on nach fiù laimhe leo,
Do bhàs a thoirt le treun-bheirt,

'S an thilig iad air sgéir thrághad thu,
'S gu'm bàsach thu chion béisidh ann,

Ach 's beag leam sud mar phianadh ort—
'S a mhiad sa rinn thu dh' eacòir,
Ach léir-sgrios nan deich plàighean,

Gu'n laidh iad air do chraiceann,
Gu do shracadh as a chéile,
'S gu'n cluinnit' air falbh deich mil' thu,

Ach curidh sinne dhachaigh thu,
S seachdnar air do thòireachd,
S mar toir thu grad do dhaoine leat
Cha ruig a h-aon diù beò thu !

Nach saol thu nach bu ladorn dhut
Bhi bagairt air rìgh Deòrsa,
An cuail thu fear chuir aodainn air
Nach daor a phàigh e ghòraich,
Ge do choisinn ainneart dhut
An Fhràing a chuir fo t-òrdugh,
'S e t-amhaich a bheir dioladh ann
Le tobha sniobhta còrcaich.

'Nuair thig am morair Sléibhteach ort,

Mar sud a's Mac-'Ic-Alasdair,
Ghlinn-garaidh agus Chnòideirt,

'Nuair thogas iad am brataichean,
 'S an gaisgich a chuir còladh
 O ! c'ait' am faod thu t-fhalach orr'
 Mar slug an talamh beò thu !

Ma chì iad aona bhaoisgeadh dhiot
 Bidh greim ac' air do sgòrnach,
 'S chan' eil de dh'eich no dhaoin' agad
 Na shaoras tu bho meòirean,
 Ged dh-eireadh na deich legenan,

ORAN D'A LEANAN.

[Agus sgeul'a bhi air a thogail gun robh i torrach aige, 's e 'g innseadh cho math 'sa bhiodh e dh' i ged a b' fhior mar chaidh aithris.]

PHUAIR mi sgéula moch an dè,
'S cha deach' mi 'n éis ri chluinnintinn,
'S cha tug mi geill nach deanainn feum,
Le gaol do 'n té mu 'n d' innseadh,
'S cha toir mi fuath dh' i, 's beag mo luaidh air
Ged a fhuair mi cinut air,
'Sa dh' aindeoin cruadal ga 'n toir cuairt sinn,
Gheibh sinn bhuainn ri tim e.

A ghruagach dhonn, ma dh' fhas thu trom,
Tha mis, air bhonn nach dòbair,
Gu 'n seas mi thu, air bhialthaobh cùirt,
'S cha 'n ann an duil do dhiteadh,
Tha mi air bheachd gu 'n seas mi ceart,
Ge d' bheir am Parson eis diom,
'S gu 'm páighinn daor air rà do ghaoil,
Na 'n tàrainn saor 'sa 'n tim so.

Gu 'm páighinn daor gu t-fhàgail saor,
Mu 'n leiginn t-aodann nàrách',
Fa chomhair cùirt mar phasann ùr,
'S nach robh e 'n rùn do nàduir,
Cha 'n eil mi 'n dùl thu dhol na 'n luib,
Mur tig a chuibhle cearr oirinn,
'S ma chumas airgead thù o chis,
Gu 'n seas mi fhùn na t-àite.

Gur fad a rachainn ann ad leithsgeul,
Gu do sheasamh cliùiteach,
'S ghabhainn uileadh orm an seisoin,
Gu d' leith-trom a ghiùlan,
'S ged chumadh iad mi ann gun lasadh,
Gus an àt mo shùilean,
Mar diobair ceartas mi, cha 'n fhaisear,
Chaoiadh thu ac' fo mhùiseag.

Ach 's truadh ! nach robh mi agus tu,
Dol fo na siùil do dh-Eirinn,
Na thàr eile 's faide buainn,
Nach d' ruig air suaimhneas fheutainn,
'S truagh nach faicinnse bhi seòladh,
A's sinn air bòrd le chéile,
Gun duil a chaoiadh thig'b'n air ar 'n èlas,
Do'n Roinn-Eòrp na dheigh sin !

Ach cia mar 's urrainn domh bhi beò,
 'S cho mar sa thug mi spéis dut?
 Na cia mar dh' fhaodas mi bhi stòltae
 'S mi gun chòir air t-fheutainn?
 Ged fhaighinn airgead na Roinn-Eòrpa,
 Aguòr na h-Euphaid,
 Cha chumadh e mi suas car uaire,
 Stu bhi bhuam gun sgeul ort.

Ach cuìs mo cliruadail, 's faide bhuam,
 Au diugh dà uair na 'n dé thu!
 S ma leanas tu mar sin air luaths,
 Gu'm bi sinn cuairt bho chéile,
 Ach ma thionndas tu do shlios rium,
 'S fiosrach mi mar dh' eireas,
 Gur gearr an ùin a thàmhlas tu,
 'Nuair thig do chùl na dheigh sin.

Mas e gun chuir thu rium do chùl
 Ann an duil mo threigsinn,
 Gus an cuir iad mi 'sa 'n òir
 Cha dean mi turn ad dheighse;
 Cia mar dh' fhaodas mi bhi saor,
 'S nach dean an saoghal feum dhomh?
 Mo chridh air flalach lo do ghaol,
 Gun duil a chaoiadh ri fheutainn

Tha gaol nam boireannach o 'n òige,
 Mar an ceò 'sa chéitean,
 Laidhidh e ri madainn dhriùchd,
 Ri lèr cho dlù 's nach leir dhuinn,
 Chi mi 'n t-adhar a's an beanntan,
 Dol an ceann a chéile,
 Ach sgooilidh e ri ùin ro ghearr,
 Gun fhios cia 'n t-àit' an téid e.

Gur mor a bh' agam ort do mheas,
 'S cha tug mi fios do chìch air,
 'S o'n is beairt e tha gun fhios,
 Cha 'n innis mis gu bràch e,
 Gu'm beil an sean-fhalac o shinnsuar,
 Tigh'n gu cinnt an drasda—
 "Gur faide bhuam an diugh na 'n dé,
 A bhean nach d' fheud mi thàladh."

Cha 'n eil mo chadal domh ach ciùrt,
 'S cha 'n eil mo dhùisg ach cianail,
 Cha 'n eil an obair dhomh ach cràdh,
 'S cha 'n fheairrde mi bhi diamhain,
 Cha dean laithe dhomh ach creuchdan,
 'S cha toir eiridh dhiom iad,
 Cha toir asdar mi gu slainte,
 'S cha 'n phasa tàmh no gniomh dhomh.

Ged a tha mi 'n so 'sa ghleann,
 Cha b'e bhi ann a b' fhearr leam,
 'S mar b'e cruaidhead mo chomanid,
 Bu luath mo dheann ga fhàgail,
 Gur fada 'n aimsir tha o 'n uair,
 A chualas bhi ga radhainn,
 Gur cruaidh an reachd a bhi fo smachd,
 'S bidh mise nochd mur tha mi!

Cha b'e chùis bhi nochd an glàis,
 Na 'n tiginn aisde a maireach,
 Ach bhi 's na fiabhras fad sheachd bliadhna,
 Gun la riagh dhui tearuinnt;
 Cha robb uair gun chuartach ùr dhomh,
 Gur ciùirte rinn iad m' fhàgail,
 Nis o 'n lagaich iad mo phearsa,
 Tha mo sgairt air failinn!

AM BARD SGIATHANACH.

DONALD M'LEOD, commonly called the "Skye Bard," was born in the parish of Durness, Isle of Skye, about the year, 1785.—His parents were in humble circumstances, and consequently unable to give him an extended education: but, whether by self-application, or otherwise, he acquired a tolerable knowledge of the Gaelic language.

In the year 1811 he published an octavo volume—consisting of all his own compositions and a few poems, the productions of other bards, ancient and modern. We cannot, however, say that, with the exception of a few pieces, either the original or selected poems, which it contains, are of a high order. Our author was little more than twenty years when he "came out;" the manhood of his mind was not fully formed;—neither reading nor society had ripened his judgment, or refined his taste ; and we are convinced, had he profited by the sage admonition of Pope, and left "his piece for seven years", that the character of his book would be far different from what it is.

Donald M'Leod possesses a fine and delicate musical ear, and so fastidious has he proved himself in the nice discrimination of sounds, that, to preserve the smoothness, cadence and harmony of his pieces, original and select, he actually interpolated them with words of no meaning, or, at least, paid no attention to grammatical rules, but took the cases, tenses and numbers, as it suited his convenience.

In the year 1829, he travelled the Highlands, taking in subscriptions for a new work, the prospectus of which is now before us, and promises a "correct history of Calum-Cille, Coinneach Odhar, Am Britheamh Leòghasach agus an Taoitear-Sàileach, from the cradle to the grave." But whether he failed in the attempt of publication, or was otherwise diverted from his object, we cannot say ; but the projected volume never made its appearance. This is much to be regretted, for, from the impression made on our minds by M'Leod's talents and legendary lore when we saw him in 1828, we are perfectly warranted in saying that it would amply recompense a perusal. Few men could speak the Gaelic with greater fluency and correctness than our author, and there was an archness about him which set off his story and witticism in an admirable light.

Shortly after the period of which we write, the Skye Bard emigrated to America, and of his history or adventures in the western hemisphere, we know nothing. He returned to his native country last harvest, and set up as a merchant in Glendale, near Dunvegan.

His two pieces here given are not destitute of poetic merit. Indeed, they possess some genuine strokes of grandeur, which entitle them to a place among the productions of poets of higher pretensions and fame. M'Leod possesses within him the elements of true poetic greatness ; and if these are brought into fair play, under auspicious circumstances, it is within the compass of possibilities that he may yet take his stand amongst the first class of the minstrels of his country.

ORAN DO REISEAMAID MHIC-SHIMIDH,

   A steach air na sràidean.

O ! dhaoin' nach fac iad,
 'S beàg longhna a chleachd sibh,
 Mar saoirich sibh 'm fada,
   Gu 'm faicinn an càradh,
 An' caeohla' gu beachdaidh,
 Bho 'n aodainn gu'n casan,
 Cho aontach dha 'n fhacal,
   Cha 'n fhacas air làraich ;
 'S plob mhòr a chaol-mhuineil,
 A lirigeadh luinneig,
 Tro ibhiri cuimir,
   A's ribheidean spàinteach ;
 Siòd na chuir uimpe,
 'S gaoraiach a h-uinneag,

A'g innseadh dha 'n druma'
   Mar chuireas i fàilte.

Bi'dh slàinnte Mhic-Shimidh,
 Na càirdeas dha' chinneadh,

Buaidh-làrach air urram,
 Do chàradh a chulair,

Ach ge treun thu mar churaidh,

   An gaisgeach is maldsear ;
 Ge leibh e na ghlaine,
 'S bàs millteach e 'n carraig,
 Ni shaighdean geur, tana,
   Cuir fhala thràthadh,
 'N glaic diolt' an eich allail,
 'S ard sraunn ann am falas,

   A gearradh, 's stràcadh.

'S làmh shéunt' thu na t-earradh,
 'S ard iarras do dheannal,
 'Sgriobh dheuchain na gaillin,

 'S dechuineach sealladh
   Air iarbail do ghalair,
 Cuipr lionmhor rì talamh,
   Nan carruinnean geàrrte :
 'S tòir' bhiatach thu 'm fallachd,
 'S corn iatach na falla',
 'S e lion an ni 'n t-annart,
   Is stailceas fo làr iad.
 Bleir ioc-shlainnt' an cannan
 Ceo fiamha ga 'n dalladh,
 A spianas bho 'n talamh,
   Nan deannanan smàil iad.

Ge gruamach a sealladh,
 Fo shuaicheatais ballach,
 Mar bhualadh na mara,
   Na falaise Mairte,
 Tha'n suairceas 's an cenneal,
 'S am boichead mar leannain,
 A buaireadhl nan caileag
   'S am mealladh nam pàistean ;
 Theid Bainn-tighearnan glana,
 Dhe'n cuimhne 's dhe'n aithne'
 Cho cinnteach 's dh' amais mi,
   'N eallaidh-sa ràite,
 'S biodh banmraileachean fhearaibh,
 'S an clann air an dronnaig,
 Le geall an cui'd bán,
   A bhi falach fo' chàrn leibh.

Note.—The above spirited song is now partly freed from the obscurity which characterized it in the author's own collection—it will still, however, task the understanding of many readers, but we could make no further emendations without manifest danger to the structure of the piece.

SMEORACH NAN LEODACH

LUINNEAG.

B A R D   L O C H - F I N E .

EVAN M'COLL, better known to his countrymen as the "Mountain Minstrel," or "Clàrsair nam Beann," was born at Kenmore, Loch-Fyne-side, in the year 1812. His parents, although not affluent, were in the enjoyment of more comfort than generally falls to the lot of Highland peasants; and were no less respected for their undeviating moral rectitude than distinguished for their hospitality, and the practice of all the other domestic virtues that hallow and adorn the Highland hearth. The subject of our memoir was the second youngest of a large family of sons and daughters. At a very early age he displayed an irresistible thirst for legendary lore and Gaelic poetry; but, from the seclusion of his native glen and other disadvantageous circumstances, he had but scanty means for fanning the latent flame that lay dormant in his breast. M'Coll, however, greedily devoured every volume he could procure, and when the labours of the day were over, would often resort to some favourite haunt where, in the enjoyment of that solitude which his father's fire-side denied him, he might be found taking advantage of the very moonlight to pore over the minstrelsy of his native country, until lassitude or the hour of repose compelled him to return home.

His father, Dugald M'Coll, seems to have been alive to the blessings of education ; for as the village school afforded but little or nothing worthy of that name, he, about the time that our bard had reached his teens, hired a tutor for his family at an amount of remuneration which his slender means could scarcely warrant. The tutor's stay was short, yet sufficiently long to accomplish one good purpose—that of not only enabling Evan properly to read and understand English, but also of awakening in him a taste for English literature. A circumstance occurred about this time which tended materially to encourage our author's poetic leanings. His father, while transacting business one day in a distant part of his native parish, fell in with a Paisley weaver, who, in consequence of the depression of trade, had made an excursion to the Highlands with a lot of old books for sale. M'Coll bought the entire lot, and returned home groaning under his literary burden, which Evan received with transports of delight. Among other valuable works, he was thus put in possession of the "Spectator," "Burns' Poems," and the "British Essayists." He read them with avidity, and a new world opened on his view : his thoughts now began to expand, and his natural love of song received an impetus which no external obstacles could resist.

Contemporaneous with this literary impulsion, was the artillery of a neighbouring Chloe, whose eyes had done sad havoc among the mental fortifications of our bard : he composed his first song in her praise, and, although he had yet scarcely passed the term of boyhood, it is a very respectable effort, and was very well received by his co-parishioners. The circumstances in which his father was placed, rendered it necessary for him to engage in the active operations of farming and fishing, and he was thus employed for several years.

In the year 1837, he threw off the mask of anonymity, and appeared as a contributor to the Gaelic Magazine, then published in Glasgow. His contributions excited considerable interest, and a general wish was expressed to have them published in a separate form by all Highlanders, with the exception of his own immediate neighbours, who could not conceive how a young man, with whom they had been acquainted from his birth, should rise superior to themselves in intellectual stature and in public estimation. They of course discovered that our youthful bard was possessed of a fearful amount of temerity, and the public, at the same time, saw that they were miserably blockaded in their own mental timberism. If native talent is not to be encouraged by fostering it under the grateful shade of generous friendship, it ought, at least, to have the common justice of being allowed to work a way for itself, unclogged by a solitary fetter—unchilled by the damping breath of unmerited contempt or discouragement. The high-souled inhabitants of Inverary failed to extinguish the flame of M'Coll's lamp ; and now, as they are not probably much better engaged, we recommend them to "see themselves as others see them," in our author's retaliative poem, "Slochd a Chópair," in which they are strongly mirrored, and the base metal of which they are made powerfully delineated. •

It is well for dependant merit that there are gentlemen who have something ethereal in them: much to their honour, Mr Fletcher of Dunans, and Mr Campbell of Islay, patronized our author, and through the generously exercised influence of either, or both of these gentlemen, M'Coll was appointed to a situation, which he now holds, in the Liverpool Custom-house.

M'Coll ranks very high as a poet. His English pieces, which are out of our way, possess great merit. His Gaelic productions are chiefly amorous, and indicate a mind of the most tender sensibilities and refined taste. The three poems, annexed to this notice, are of a very superior order: one of them comes under that denomination of poetry called pastoral or descriptive, and evinces powers of delineation, a felicity of conception, and a freshness of ideality not equalled in modern times. The second is an elegiac piece, before whose silver, mellifluous tones we melt away, and are glad to enjoy the luxury of tears with the weeping muse. The love ditty is a natural gush of youthful affection, better calculated to show us the aspirations of the heart than the most elaborate production of art. M'Coll imitates no poet; he has found enough in nature to instruct him—he moves majestically in a hitherto untraversed path; and, if we are not continually in raptures with him, we never tire—never think long in his company. But we are reminded that praises bestowed on a living author subject us to the imputation of flattery:—long may it be ere Evan M'Coll is the subject of any posthumous meed of laudation from us!

AIREAMH TAGHTA

SHAR-OBAIL NAM BARD GAELACH;

A CHOICE COLLECTION

THE BEAUTIES OF GAELIC POETRY,

ORIGINAL AND SELECT.

The following songs and poems are the productions of gentlemen, who invoked the muse only on rare occasions, and under the impulse of strong feelings excited by extraordinary events ;—or, of individuals of whose history little is known to the world, and whose works were not sufficiently voluminous to entitle them to a place among the professed or recognised bards. When the tide of chivalry ran high in the Highlands, and ere the Gaelic ceased to be spoken in the chief's hall, it was deemed no disparagement to people of the highest rank to imbody their feelings on any subject in Keltic poetry. Many of these pieces are of commanding merit, and it is hoped that they will form an appropriate and valuable appendage to this work. So far as practicable, the paternity of the poem is given, and such historical and illustrative notes are interspersed as the full elucidation of the subject seemed to require.

LE TORMOD BAN MAC-LEOID.

DEOCH-SLAINTE 'chabair féidh so
Gur h-éibhinn 's gur h-aighearach ;
Ge fada bho thir fein e,
Mhic Dhé greas g'a fhearrann e ;
Mo chrochadh a's mo cheusadh,
A's m' éideadh nar mheala mi,
Mur äit leam thu bhi 'g eiridh
Le treun neart gach caraide !
Gur mise chunna' sibh gu gunnach,
Ealamh, ullamh, acuinneach ;
Ruith nan Rothach 'math 'ur gnothach,
Thug sibh sothadh maidne dhaibh ;
Cha deach' Cataich air an tapadh,
Dh'fhang an neart le eagal iad,
Ri faicinn ceann an fhéidh ort
'Nuair dh'eirich do chabar ort !

Be'n t-amadan fear Fòluis,
'Nuair thòisich e cogadh riut ;
Rothaich agus Ròsaich—
Bu ghòrach na bodaich iad ;
Frisealaich a's Granndaich,
An cämpa cha stadhadh iad ;
'S thug Fairbeisich nan teann-ruith,
Gu seann talgh Chuilodair Orr'.
Theich iad uile 's cha dh-fhuirich
An treas duine 'bh'aca-san ;
An t-Iarla Catach ruith e dhachaigh—
Cha do las a dhagachan ;
Mac-Aoidh nan creach gun thsr e ns.
'S ann dh'Éigh e 'n t-each a b' aigeannair,
Ri gabhal an ra-treuta,

'S ann an sin bha 'm fuathas
 Ga'n ruagadh thar bhealaichean,
 An deas dhuinn a's an tuath dhuinn,
 Gu luath ruith roi' d' cheann-eideadh ;
 Mar sgaoth a dh'eoin nam fuar-bheann,
 A's gruaim air a h-uile fear,
 A tearnadh bho na sléibhteán
 Gu réidhlein's gu cladaichean.
 Dh'eigh iad port's gu'n d'fhuair iad coit,
 'S bu bheag an tóir mar thachair dhaibh ;
 Ciad e'n droch rud rinn am brosnach',
 Le'n cuid mosg nach freagradh srad,
 'S a liuthad toirtear dheth na Rothaich,
 Dol air fiodh thar chlaigeanan ?
 'S ann ghabh iad an ratreata,
 'Nuair dh'eirich do chabar ort !

Gu'm faigh mi fein mi dhùrachd—
 ('Se dhùisg as mo chadal mi)
 An Tì da'n geill na dùilean,
 'S da'n ùmhlaich na h-uile ni,
 Gun greas e thu gu d' dhùthaich,
 Gu h-uiseil's gu h-urramach !
 Gur tu nach leigeadh eùis,
 Leis na dù-Ghaill nach buineadh dhaibh ;
 'S tu bheireadh cloths do' luchd gnothaich,
 Gun fhios co a throdadh riut ;
 Am fine Rothach chuir thu fothadh
 Ge mor leatha 'n ladornas,
 Ga'n cuir romhad le'n ruith-choimhich,
 'S am baile-nodha na shradagan,
 'S na lasair anns na speuran,
 Nuair dh'eirich do chabar ort !

Chunna mi m'a thuath thu,
 'S gu'm b'uachdaran allail thu ;
 Bha Cataich fo do chùram,
 'S dh' ùmhlaich na Gallach dhut ;
 'S gach tì bha riut an diùmba,
 'S nach dùirigeadh sealadh ort,
 A faicinn bhi ga'n sgiùrsadh,
 Gu dùthaich nach buineadh dhaibh.
 Le gasraidh fhinealt dheth do chinneadh
 Nach gabh giorag eagalach ;
 Luchd chlogaid's bhiodag's chorcan bireach,
 Cha philleadh luchd-bagairt iad ;
 Thig feachd Mhic-Shimi gu do mhilleadh,
 'S ruithidh iad gu saidealta ;
 'S gu'n teich iad o chlár t-eudainn,
 'Nuair dh'eireas do chabar ort !

Th'am brochan a' toirt sàr dhuibh,
 'S tha'n càl a' toirt àt airbh ;
 Ach 's beag is misde 'n t-àrmunn,
 'Ur sàth thoirt an nasgaidh dhuibh :
 Ge mòr a thug sibh chàise,
 Thar àridhean Asainne,

Cha'n fhacas cuirm a'm Fòlais,
 Ge mòr bha do chearcan ann ;
 Caisteal biorach, nead na h-iolair',
 Coin a's gillean gortach ann ;
 Cha'n fhaisear bioran ann ri teinne,
 Mur bidh dileag bhrochain ann ;
 Cha'n fhaisear maírt-eoil ann am poit ann,
 Mur bi cearc ga plotaigeadh ;
 'S ga'n tional air an déirce,

Cha'n eil ian 's na speuran,
 Is breine n'an iolaire,
 Cha'n ionan idir beus d'i,

 Bi'dh iadsa moch ag eiridh,
 A feuchainn a bhiolaire ;

 Ri slaodadh a mhionainch as ;
 Chuir i spuir a staigh na churach,

 Bi'dh na coin a' sàbaid ris ;
 'S breun an t-isean e air iteig,
 Gun fhios c'ait' an stadar e,—
 Mas' olc a lean e àbhaist,
 Cha b' fheàrr far na chaidil e.

Cha'n eil ian 'san t-saothal

 Na chumadh riuts an eudann,
 'Nuair dh'eireadh do chabar ort!
 Dh'eireadh leat an còir 'san ceart,
 Le trian do neart gu bagarach,
 Na bléadar Asainn, a's fa dehas,
 Gu ruig Sgalpa chraganach,
 Gach fear a glacadh gunna snàip,
 Claidheamh glas, no dagachan,—
 Bu leat Sir Dòmhnuill Shléibhte,
 'Nuair dh'eireadh do chabar ort!

Dh'eireadh leat fir Mhùideirt,
 'Nuair ruisgte do bhrrataichean,
 Le 'n lannan daite dù-ghorm,
 Gu'n ciuirte na marcaich leo;

 Le 'n cuilbheirean acuinneach;
 'Nuair rachadh iad 'san iorgaunn,
 Gu'm b' iogha mur trodadh iad:—
 Bi'dh tu fhathast ghabhail aighear,
 Ann am Brathuinn bhaidealach,
 Bi'dh cinne t-athair ort a feitheamh,
 Co bhrathadh bagradh ort?
 Bi'dh fion ga chaitheamh feadh do thraighe,
 'S nisge-beatha feadanach;
 'S gur liomhbor piob' ga'n gleusadh,
 'Nuair dh'eirens do chabar ort!

Note.—Norman M'Leod, the author of the foregoing popular clan song was a native of Assynt, Sutherlandshire. Little is known to us of his parentage except that he moved in the higher circles of his country, and upon his marriage, rented an extensive farm in his native parish. He had two sons whose status in society shows that he was in comfortable, if not affluent circumstances—one of them was Professor Hugh M'Leod of the University of Glasgow; and the other, the Rev. Angus M'Leod, Minister of Rogart in the county of Sutherland. Both sons were men of considerable erudition and brilliant parts,—and Angus's name is still mentioned in the North with feelings of kindness and respect.

Norman M'Leod lived long on a footing of intimate familiarity and friendship with Mr M'Kenzie of Ardloch whose farm was contiguous to that of our author; and "Cabar-feidh," which has single-handed stamped the celebrity of M'Leod, arose out of the following circumstance. The earl of Sutherland issued a commission to William Munroe of Achany, who, with a numerous body of retainers and clansmen, by virtue of said commission, made a descent on Assynt and carried off a great many cattle. This predatory excursion was made in the latter end of summer, when, according to the custom of the country, the cattle were grazing on distant pasturages at the sheilings, a circumstance which proved very favourable to the foragers—for they not only took away the cattle, but also plundered the sheilings, and thus possessed themselves of a great quantity of butter and cheese. Indignant at the baseness and injustice of such cowardly conduct, M'Leod invoked the muse and composed "Cabar-feidh," or the clan-song of the M'Kenzies—making it the vehicle of invective and bitter sarcasm against the Sutherlanders and Munroes, who had antecedently made themselves sufficiently obnoxious to him by their adherence to the Hanoverian cause in 1745.

That a production teeming with so much withering declamation and piquancy of wit should have told upon its hapless subjects, may be reasonably supposed. Munroe was particularly sore on the subject, and threatened that the bard should forfeit his life for his temerity, if ever they should meet. They were personally unacquainted with each other; but chance soon brought them face to face. Munroe was commonly known by a grey-coloured bonnet which he wore, and was called "Uïleam a bhonaid uidhir." One day as he entered Ardguy Inn, there sat Norman M'Leod, on his way to Tain, regaling himself with bread and butter, and cheese and ale. Munroe was ignorant of the character of the stranger; not so M'Leod—he immediately knew Achany by the colour of his bonnet—drunk to him with great promptitude, and then offered him the horn with the following extemporary salutation:—

"Aran a's im a's cais,
 Mo'n tig am bas air Tormod;
 A's deoch do fhír an rothaid,
 'S cha ghabh na Rothaich fearg ris."

which may be translated thus—

Bread and butter and cheese to me,
 Ere death my mouth shall close;
 And, trav'ller, there's a drink for thee,
 To please the black Munroes.

Achany was pleased with the address, quaffed the ale, and when he discovered who the courteous stranger was, he cordially forgave him, and cherished a friendship for him ever after. Years after the events recorded above, the poet's son, Angus, then a young licentiate, waited upon Achany, relative to the filling up of the vacancy in the parish of Rogart.—"And do you really think, Sir," said Achany, "that I would use my influence to get a living for your father's son? Cabar-feidh is not forgotten yet." "No! and never will," replied the divine, "but if I get the parish of Rogart, I promise you it shall never be sung or recommended from the pulpit there!" "Thank you! thank you!" said Achany, "that is one important point carried—you are not so bad as your father after all, and we must try to get the kirk for you!" He gave him a letter to Dunrobin and he got the appointment.

"Cabar-feidh" is one of the most popular songs in the Gaelic language, and deservedly so. It has been erroneously ascribed to Matheson, the family-bard of Seaforth; but now for the first time, it is legitimately paternized, and the only correct edition, which has yet appeared, is here given. The song itself bears internal evidence that our history of its paternity is strictly correct; and our proofs in corroboration are numerous and decisive. Nothing can surpass the exultation of the bard while he sings the superiority of the clan M'Kenzie over those, who have drawn upon themselves the lash of his satire. The line 'Nuair dh'eireadh do chabar ort!' falling in at the end of some of the stanzas, has an electrifying effect; and, although figurative in its language, is so applicable as to transport us beyond ourselves to those feudal times when our mountain warriors rushed to the red field of battle to conquer or to die. The music, as well as the poem, is M'Leod's, and forms one of the most spirit-stirring airs that can be played on the bagpipe; so popular, indeed, has this tune been in many parts of the Highlands, that it was not danced as a common reel, but as a sort of country-dance. We have seen "Cabar-feidh" danced in character, and can bear testimony that, for diversified parts, for transitions, mazes and evolutions, it yields not, when well performed, to any "Cotillon brent new from France."

Note.—The above truly admirable song was composed by William M'Kenzie, the Gairloch and Lochbroom catechist, commonly called An Ceistear Cribach, owing to a lament which he had. He was a native of the parish of Gairloch, and was born about the year 1670. In his early years, M'Kenzie had the reputation of being a serious young man: he committed to memory the whole of the questions of the Shorter Catechism in Gaelic, and was subsequently allowed a small stated salary for going about from hamlet to hamlet in the aforementioned parishes, catechising the young, and imparting religious instruction to all who chose to attend his meetings. It was while employed on these missions that he composed the foregoing. It was the dead of winter: the houses were far apart—a tremendous storm came on—and our author, to save his life, was compelled to stand in the shelter of a rock. In this situation he was fortunately discovered, and conveyed on horseback to the house of Mr M'Kenzie of Balone, where he experienced the greatest kindness. He forthwith invoked his muse, and celebrated the praises of his host's sister, then a beautiful young lady, and afterwards Mrs M'Kenzie of Kernsary, in Gairloch. A song of less poetic grandeur and merit might well have immortalized any mountain maid, and established the reputation of the author, and put it beyond the reach of detractors.

M'Kenzie continued to officiate in the capacity of perambulatory catechist for a period of seven years, and was then deposed, under circumstances which we shall briefly recount. He happened to be in Strath Gairloch at a time when the nuptials of one of the native rustics were celebrated; and, contrary to what he might well expect, he was left uncalled to the feast. How he felt in consequence of this indignity, we would probably have been left in the dark, had not two or three others, who had been slighted like himself, congregated where he lived, having with them a bottle of whisky. The glass went round, and various witticisms and epigrams were exploded, manifesting the contempt in which they held the newly-married couple, and the entire round of their relatives and guests. At length it was propounded to the catechist whether he ought not to commemorate the circumstances in a poem or song. Forgetting the sacredness of his office and the tenure by which he held his situation, in the buoyancy of the moment, he sang the following extemporary effusion before they separated:—

‘S a bhi ga sir dheanamh comhnuidh,
Cha bhi fáiteachan treubhach,
‘S bhih don-bidh air fear bronach
    Nach teid na char.

This comic-satirical production was soon made public, and the author was lauded by one party, and denounced by another. The ministers of Gairloch and Loch-broom shook their heads—shuddered at the profanity of the catechist, and gave intimation from their respective pulpits that the catechetical labours of our author had ceased! He was previously dragged before the Presbytery, examined, and cross-examined, as to the extent and number of his bardic delinquencies. One or two of the elders and ministers had the hardihood to espouse his cause while thus arraigned at the Presbytery's bar, and insisted that the reverend judges should hear the song from his own lips. "I can repeat no song," said the bard, "unless I accompany the words with an air; and to sing here would be altogether unbecoming." This obstacle was removed by consent of the Moderator, and he sung the song with great glee, while his judges were more obliged to their handkerchiefs than to their gravity for the suppression of risibility. It does not appear that M'Kenzie was ever afterwards restored to his situation. He died at a good old age, and was buried in Creagan-an-Inbhir of Muckle Greenard, Lochbroom.

* The author of this popular song was Malcolm M'Lean, a native of Kinlochewe, in Ross-shire. M'Lean had enlisted in the army when a young man, and upon obtaining his discharge, was allowed some small pension. Having returned to his native country, he married a woman, who, for patience and resignation, was well worthy of being styled the sister of Job. Malcolm now got the occupancy of a small pencele of land and grazing for two or three cows in Glengaithe, at the foot of Benfhuathais, in the county of Ross. M'Lean during his military career seems to have learned how to drown dull care as well as "fight the French"—he was a bacchanalian of the first magnitude. He does not, however, appear to have carried home any other of the soldier's vices with him. Few men have had the good fortune to buy immortality at so cheap a rate of literary and poetical labour as "Calum a Ghlinne;" on this single ditty his reputation shall stand unimpaired as long as Gaelic poetry has any admirers in the Highlands of Scotland.

The occasion of the song was as follows: M'Lean had an only child, a daughter of uncommon beauty and loveliness; but owing to the father's squandering what ought,

Gur muladach mi,
'S mi 'n deigh nach math leam,
Na dheanadh dhut stà
Aig cùch 'ga mhalairt;
Bi'dh t-athair an comhnuidh
'G ol le caithream,
'S e eolas nan còrn
A dh-fhag mi cho falamh.
Mo Chailin donn og, &c.

Nam bithinn a'g òl

'S gum faicinn mo mhiann
'S mo chiall a' tighinn,
'S e'n copan beag donn

'S cha tugainn mo bhríathar
Nach iarrainn e rithist.
Mo Chailin donn og, &c.

Bi'dh bodaich na dùch'
Ri bùrst 's ri fanaid,
A cantain rium fèin
Nach geill mi dh-ainnis;
Ged tha mi gun spréidh,
Tha teud ri tharruinn,
'S cha sguir mi de 'n òl

Mo Chailin donn og, &c.

'S iad ga threigseann a's t-earrach
Nach cosg anns a bhlàidhna

under any economical system of domestic government, to have formed her dowry, she was unwooed, unsought, and, for a long time, unmarried. The father, in his exordium, portrays the charms and excellent qualities of his daughter, dealing about some excellent side-blows at fortune-hunters, and taking a reasonable share of blame to himself for depriving her of the bait necessary to secure a good attendance of wooers.

The song is altogether an excellent one, possessing many strokes of humour and flights of poetic idealism of no common order; while its terseness and comprehensiveness of expression are such, that one or two standing proverbs or adages have been deduced from it. His "Nighean dubh Thogarach," and her husband were living in the parish of Contin, in the year 1769. Malcolm, so far as we have been able to ascertain, never got free of his tavern propensities, for which he latterly became so notorious, that when he was seen approaching an inn, the local toppers left their work and flocked about him. He was a jolly good fellow in every sense of the word; fond of singing the songs of other poets, for which nature had provided him with an excellent voice. He died about the year 1764.

Nam bithinn air féill,

* The virtue of mildness in his wife was often put to the test, and found to be equal to the glowing representation of the poet. Malcolm had occasion to go to Dingwall on a summer day for a boll of oatmeal ; and having experienced the effects of a burning sun and sultry climate, he very naturally went into a public-house on his way to refresh himself. Here he came in contact with a Badenoch drover, who, like himself, did occasional homage at the shrine of the red-eyed god. Our "worthy brace of topers" entered into familiar confab ; gill was called after gill until they got gloriously happy. Malcolm forgot, or did not choose to remember, his meal ; the drover was equally indifferent about his own proper calling—and thus they sat and drank, and roared and ranted, until our poet told his last sixpence on the table. After a pause, and probably revolving the awkwardness of going home without the meal, " Well," said Malcolm, " if I had more money, I would not go home for some time yet." " That's easily got," replied his crony, " I'll buy the grey horse from you." The animal speedily changed owners, and another and more determined onslaught on "blue ruin" was the consequence. Our poet did nothing by halves,—he quaffed stoup after stoup until his pockets were emptied a second time. " Egad !" exclaimed M'Lean, making an effort to lift his head and open his eyes, " I must go now !" " You must," rejoined his friend, " but I cannot see, for the life of me, how you can face your wife." " My wife !" exclaimed the bard in astonishment, " pshaw ! man, she's the woman that never said or will say worse to me than " Dia leat a Chalum , " that is, God bless you Malcolm. " I'll lay you a bet of the price of the horse and the meal that her temper is not so gond, and that you will get an entirely different salutation," replied the drover, who had no great faith in the taciturnity of the female sex. " Done ! my re-eruit," vociferated the bard, grasping the other eagerly by the hand. Away went Malcolm and with him the landlord and other two men, to witness and report what reception

He entered his dwelling, and, as he approached on the floor, he staggered and would have fallen in the fire, placed grateless in the centre of the room, had not his wife flung her arms affectionately about him, exclaiming, " Dia leat a Chalum ." " Ah ! " replied Malcolm, " why speak thus softly to me,—I have drunk my money and brought home no meal." " A heatherbell for that," said his helpmate, " we will soon get more money and meal too." " But," continued the intoxicated poet, " I have also drunk the grey horse !" " What signifies that, my love," rejoined the excellent woman, " you, yourself are still alive and mine, and never shall we want—never shall I have reason to murmur while my Malcolm is sound and hearty." It was enugh : the drover had to count down the money, and in a few hours Mrs M'Lean had the pleasure of hailing her husband's return with the horse and meal.

Note.—The above popular song has been attributed to so many reputed poets, that we feel great pleasure in putting the reader right on the subject. The Perthshire people claimed it for the late Rev. Dr Irvine of Little Dunkeld; while the others were equally certain that it was the production of Mr Archibald Currie, teacher of the Grammar School, Rothesay. To arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to its paternity, we have instigated the necessary inquiries, and have now the satisfaction to announce that it is the composition of Mr Angus Fletcher, parochial schoolmaster of Dunoon. We subjoin Mr Fletcher's letter in reply to our communication:—

"I was born at Coirin-t-shee (Coirinti), a wild, sequestered, and highly romantic spot on the west bank of Loch Eck, in Cowal, early in June, 1776; and was chiefly educated at the parish school of Kilmordan, Glendaruel. From Glendaruel I went to Bute in 1791, where I was variously employed until May, 1804, when I was elected parochial schoolmaster of Dunoon, and that situation I have continued to fill (however unworthily) hitherto.

"The 'Lassie of the Glen' is my earliest poetical production, and came warm from the heart at the age of 16 years. 'Clachan Ghlinn'-da-ruail, I think, was composed in 1807, in compliment to a very 'bonnie Hie-lan' lassie,' Miss Jean Currie of Coirechnaive, now Mrs B——n. In this song, although I believe the best of the two, the heart was not at all concerned. It appeared first in the 'Edinburgh Weekly Journal,' with my initials, and has been evidently copied from that paper into Turner's Collection of Gaelic Songs. The verse beginning 'Nuair 'shuidheas Cleir na tire leam,' has reference to the situation I then held of deputy-clerk to the Presbytery of Dunoon, and to the office of Session-clerk of the united parish of Dunoon and Kilmun, which I still hold."

Here, then, the authorship of "Clachan Ghlinn'-da-ruail," is settled. It is one of the best and most popular of our amorous pieces, and, although the talented author says that "the heart was not at all concerned" in it, we venture to remind him that Nature, that excellent schoolmistress, had taught him to study her ways. The air to which it is sung is also very popular, and is known in the Lowlands by the name of Neil Gow's Strathspey. But, without wishing to denude that celebrated violinist of any of his laurels, we beg to inform the reader that that air was known in the Highlands centuries before Neil was born. It is called "Ceilireachd na Mnatha Sùth," or the "Fairy's Carol," and has the following tradition annexed to it. A certain farmer had engaged a young beautiful female as herd and dairymaid, for a period of twelve months. During the first days of her servitude, as her character and history were altogether unknown, it was necessary to have a sharp eye after her. On one occasion while her employer went out to see whether she was tending the cattle with due care, he found her dancing lightly on the green, and singing a Gaelic song, one verse of which we subjoin:—

"Am bun a chruidh cha chaithris mi,
 Am bun a chruidh cha bhi mi;
 Am bun a chruidh cha chaithris mi,
 'S mo leabaidh anns an t-shithean."

We beg to translate this for the sake of the English reader,—

"I'll tend not long thy cattle, man,
 I'll tend not long thy bullock;
 I'll tend not long thy cattle, man,
 My bed is in yon hillock."

But to return to Mr Fletcher, we are sorry that want of room prevents us from giving the "Lassie of the Glen" in Gaelic. We annex, however, an English translation of it which has deservedly become very popular. It is from Mr Fletcher's own pen.

Ari— "Cum an Fhiasag ribeach bhuam."
 Beneath a hill 'mang birken bushes,
 By a burrie's dimpilt linn,
 I told my love with artless blushes,
 To the Lassie o' the Glen.

"O' the birken bank sae grassic,
 Hey! the burnie's dimpilt linn :
 Dear to me's the bonnie lassie,
 Living in yon rascie glen.

Lanely Ruail! thy stream sae glassie,
 Shall be aye my fav'rite theme;
 For, on thy banks, my Highland lassie,
 First confessed a mutual flame.
O! the birken, &c.

What bliss to sit and dane to fash us,
 In some sweet wee bowry den!
 Or fondly stray amang the rashes,
 Wi' the Lassie o' the Glen,
O! the birken, &c.

And though I wander now unhappy,
 Far free scenes we haunted then,
 I'll ne'er forget the bank sae grasic,
 Nor the Lassie o' the Glen,
O! the birken, &c.

Note.—The above beautiful song was composed by a young Highland officer, who had served under King William on the continent soon after the Revolution. His history, which elucidates the song, was thus:—He was the son of a respectable tenant in the Highlands of Perthshire, and while a youth, cherished a desperate passion for a beautiful young lady, the daughter of a neighbouring landed proprietor. Their love was reciprocal—but such was the disparity of their circumstances that the obstacles to their union were regarded even by themselves, as insuperable. To mend matters, the gallant young Highlander enlisted, and being a brave soldier and a young man of excellent conduct and character, he was promoted to the rank of an officer. After several years' absence, and when at the end of a campaign, the army had taken up their winter quarters, he came home to see her friends—to try whether his newly acquired status might not remove the objections of her friends to their union. She was still unmarried, and if possible more beautiful than when he left her—every feature had assumed the highly finished character of womanhood—her beauty was the universal theme of admiration. Othello-like, the gallant young officer told her of "hair-breadth" scapes by land and flood" and so enraptured the young lady that she readily agreed to elope with him.

Having matured their arrangements, they fled on a Saturday night—probably under the belief that the non-appearance of the young lady at her father's table on Sabbath morning, would excite no surmises in the hurry of going to church. She, indeed, had complained to her father of some slight headache when she retired to rest, and instructed her maid to say next morning that she was better, but not disposed to appear at the breakfast table. Not satisfied with the servant's prevarication, who was cognizant of the elopement, the father hurried to his daughter's bed-room, and, not finding her there, he forcibly elicited the facts from the girl. He immediately assembled his men, and pursued the fugitive lovers with speed and eagerness. After many miles pursuit, they overtook them in a solitary glen where they had sat down to rest. The lover, though he had nobody to support him, yet was determined not to yield up his mistress; and being well armed, and an excellent gladiator, he resolved to resent any attack made upon him. When the pursuers came up, and while he was defending himself and her with his sword, which was a very heavy one, and loaded with what is called a steel apple, (abħal a' chlaidehim), she ran for protection behind him. In preparing to give a deadly stroke, the point of the weapon accidentally struck his mistress, then behind him, so violent a blow, that she instantly fell and expired at his feet ! Upon seeing this, he immediately surrendered himself, saying, ""That he did not wish to live, his earthly treasure being gone!"" He was instantly carried to jail, where he composed this heart-melting song a few days before his execution.

Our neighbours, the Irish, claim this air as one of their own, but upon what authority we have been left in the dark. Sir John Sinclair establishes its nativity in Scotland, but falls into a mistake in making an inn the scene of the melancholy catastrophe of the lady's death. The song itself substantiates our version of it. The second stanza was never printed till given by us—the whole is now printed correctly for the first time. It is one of the most plaintive and mellow in the Gaelic language—full of pathos and melancholy feeling. The distracted lover addresses his deceased mistress, as if she were still living—a circumstance that puts the pathetic character of the song beyond comparison, and amply illustrates the distraction of his own mind—a state of mental confusion, and wild melancholy, verging on madness.

Note.—The author of the foregoing popular song was Murdoch M'Kenzie, a Loch-broom Drover, known better in his native country, by the cognomen of "Murchadh Ruadh nam Bò," or red-haired Murdoch of the droves. Mr M'Kenzie composed many excellent songs, and had them taken down in manuscript, preparatory to publication; but at the importunity of his brother-in-law, the Rev. Lachlan M'Kenzie, of Lochcarron, he consigned them to the flames. His own daughter, Mairi Laghach, was the subject of the above pastoral. Mr M'Kenzie's maid servant, it appears, had absconded from his service at a time when her labours were most required in the sheiling or mountain milk-house, and the parent naturally appreciates the services of his own daughter, who at a very early age showed great expertise in that department. The air is original, and so truly beautiful that the song has attained a degree of popularity, which its poetry would never have entitled it to, if composed to an old, or inferior air. Mr M'Kenzie died in 1831.

 Beul bho'm banail fàilt :
 Gruaidh air dhreach an t-siris ;
 Min raisg chinnealt, thlà ;
 Mala chaol gu'n ghruaimean,
 Guìis gheal 's cuach-fhalt bàu.
Ho, mo Mhàiri, &c.

Thug an n-uabhar barr
 Air àilleas righrean mor ;
 B' iad ar leabaidh stàta
 Duilleach 's barr an fheoir :
 Flùraichean an fhàsaich
 'Toir dhuiinn eail a's treòir,
 A's sruthain ghlan nan ard
 A chuireadh slaint's gach pòr.
Ho, mo Mhàiri, &c.

Cha robb inneal ciùl,
 A thuradh riach fo 'n ghréin,
 A dh'-aithriseadh air chòir,
 Gach coel bhiodh againn fhein :
 Uiseag air gach lònán,
 Smeòrach air gach géig ;
 Cuthag 's gùg-gùg aic',
 'Madainn churaidh Chéit'.

Note.—The second set of "Mairi Laghach," is the composition of Mr John M'Donald, tacksman, of Scoraig, Loch.

broom, a gentleman of great poetical talents. It is infinitely superior to the original set; and, while Mr M'Kenzie has the merit of having composed the air, Mr M'Donald is entitled to the praise of having sung that most beautiful of airs, in language, which, for purity, mellowness, and poetry, was never surpassed. Mr M'Donald now lives in the island of Lewis, where he is much respected; he is the author of many excellent poems and songs, and in him yet the Highland muse finds a votary of ardent devotedness,—of nerve, tact, talent, intelligence, and wit. We subjoin a beautiful translation of five stanzas of this popular song by another gifted Highlander Mr D. M'Pherson, bookseller, London.

CHORUS.

*Sweet the rising mountains, red with heather bells,
 Sweet the bubbling fountains and the dewy dell's,
 Sweet the snowy blossom of the thorny tree !
 Sweet is young Mary of Glensmole to me.*

Sweet, O sweet ! with Mary o'er the wilds to stray,
 When Glensmole is dress'd in all the pride of May,—
 And, when weary roving through the greenwood glade,
 Softly to recline beneath the birken shade,
Sweet the rising mountains, &c.

There to fix my gaze in raptures of delight,
 On her eyes of truth, of love, of life, of light—
 On her bosom purer than the silver tide,
 Fairer than the cana on the mountain side,
Sweet the rising mountains, &c.

What were all the sounds contriv'd by tuneful men ?
 To the warbling wild notes of the sylvan glen ?
 Here the merry lark ascends on dewy wing,
 There the mellow mavis and the blackbird sing.
Sweet the rising mountains, &c.

What were all the splendour of the proud and great,
 To the simple pleasures of our green retreat ?
 From the crystal spring fresh vigour we inhale ;
 Rosy health does court us on the mountain gale.
Sweet the rising mountains, &c.

Were I offered all the wealth that Albion yields,
 All her lofty mountains and her fruitful fields,
 With the countless riches of her subject seas,
 I would sce'a the change for blisses such as these !
Sweet the rising mountains, &c.

CUIR A CHINN DILEIS.

(ORIGINAL SET.)

LUINNEAG

*Cuir a chinn dileis,
 Dileis, dileis,
 Cuir a chinn dileis,
 Tharum do lámh,
 Do ghorm-shuil thairis,
 A mhealladh na miltean,
 'S divine gun chil,
 Nach tugadh dhut gràdh.*

CHA thinneas na feachda,
 'S a mhadauin so bhual mi :
 Ach acaid ro buan
 Nach leigheis gu bràch.
 Le sealladh air faiche,
 De shlait on taigh uasail,
 Moch-thrà di-luain,
 'S mi 'g amhare an là.

Rinn deiseid a pearsa,

Nach facas a thuarmas;

'G imeachd fo'n chuach-chùl,
Chamagach, thla.

Rinn dealaradh a mais,

Agus lasadh a gruaidean,
Mis' a ghrad bhualadh,

Tharais gu lär.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Ach dh' eirich mi rithist,

Le cridhe làm uabhair;

A's dh' imich mi ruathar,
Ruighinn na dàil.

G'a h-iathadh na m' ghlaibh,

Ach smachdaich i bhuan sin

Ochan! is truagh!

A mheath i mo chàil.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Do dhearc-shuilean glana,

Fo mhalla' gun ghruaimean;

'S daigheann a bhualad iad,
Mise le d' ghràdh.

Do ròs bhilean tana,

Seamh, farasda, suairce,

Cladhaicheadh m' uaigh

Mar glac thu mo làmh.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Tar fuasgail air m' anam

On cheanghal is cruaidhe:

Cnìmhnic air t-uaisle,

'S cobhair mo chàs.

Na biodham-s' am thrallidh dut

Gu bràch, on aon uair-s';

Ach tiomaich o chruas,

Do chridhe gu tlàs.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Cha'n fhaodar leam cadal,

Air leabaidh an uaigneas:

'S m' aigne ga bhuaire,

Dh' òidhche 's a là.

Ach ainnir is binne,

'S a's grime, 's a's suairce;

Gabh-sa dhiom truas,

'S bithidh mi slàn!

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

CUIR A CHINN DILEIS.

(MODERN SET.)

'S mi 'm shuidh' air an uilinn -

A tuireadh sa caoine;

Bhuail saighead a ghaoil mi,

Direach gu'm shàil.

Dh' fhàs mi cho lag,

'S nach b' urra' mi direadh;

Le goirteas mo chinn,

'S cha d' shìn i dhomh lamh.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

'S mi 'm shuidh' air an tulaich,

An iomal na cùirte;

A' g amharc mo rùin,

'S i 'n ionad ro ard.

Thug i le fionnaireachd,

Sealladh de sùil domh,

'S thiunndaidh i cul-thaobh,

Seachad air barr.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Sheall mi am dheighidh,

Gu fradharc dh'i fhaotainn;

'S chuna' mi h-aodann,

Farasda, tlà.

Chuna' mi sealladh,

A mhealladh na miltean,

'S amaideach mi,

'S nach faigh mi na páirt,

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Tha mais' ann ad bhilean,

Cha 'n aithris luchd-ciùil e,

Togaidh tu sunnt,

An tallachan ard.

Leagair leat seachad,

Sàr ghaisgich na dùthch';

Le sealladh do shùl,

'S le giùlan do ghuàis.

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Do bhraghad ni 's gile,

Na canach na dìge;

Chite dol sios,

'M fionn bhainne blàth.

S ioma rud eile —

Cha 'n 'eil i ri faotainn,

Idir san t-saoghal,

Aogais mo ghraideh,

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Do chul mar an canach,

T-fhàlt clannach 's cuirn air,

A chumas an drìùchd,

Gu dlù air a bharr.

Na chuailean air casadh,

Na chleachdan air lùbadh,

'S do-cheannaicht' an crùn,

Tba giulan a bhilath,

Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Do ghruaigh mar an corcur,

Beul socair o'm binn sgeul :

Deud mar na dìlsne,

'S finealt a dh' fhàs.

Do shlios mar an eala,

S do mheall-shuilean miogach,

Thaladh thu m' intinn,
 'S cha pill i gu bràch.
Cuir a chinn dileis, &c.

Note.—The above two beautiful songs are of great antiquity, and their authorship is not known. There is a translation of one of them, by a lady, in Johnson's "Scottish Musical Museum," Vol. II. The English version, however, although very literal and not destitute of merit, conveys no idea of the spirit, felicity, and poetical grandeur of the original.

AN NOCHD GUR FAOIN

MO CHADAL DOMH.

AN nochd gur faoin mo chadal dhomh,
 Sior acainn na'm beil bh'uam,
 Do chomunn le deagh chaoimhnealachd,
 Dh'fhasg mi bho 'n raoir fo ghruaum.
 Gur tric mi ann an aisling leat,
 Gach uair da 'n dean mi suain;
 Trom-osnaich 'nuair a dhùisgeas mi,
 Air bhi dha t-iundrann bh'uam.
 Air bhi dhomh 'g-iundrann suaireas bh'uam,
 'S tu leagh mo shnuadh 's mo bhà;
 O rinn do ghaol-sa' fuarachadh,
 Cha dualach dhomh bhi slànn.
 'S ann riut a leiginn m' uir-easbhuidh,
 Air gheus nach cluinneadh càch,
 Dh-fhasg t-aogasg mi cho muladach,
 'S gur cunnart dhomh am bàs.
 Is mor a ta do ghibtean ort,
 A ta gun fhios do chàch
 Corp seang gun fheall gun fhalachd ann,
 Gur càs thu mhealladh gràidh.
 'S a liughad òigeas furanach,
 A thuilleadh orns' an sàs,
 D'an tugadh t-aodann faothachadh,
 'S an t-aog ga 'n cur gu bàs.
 Cha chuireadh gaol gu geilte mi,
 Na 'm freagradh tu mo ghìòir,
 Gur h-e do chòmadh maighdeannail,
 Mo raghainn dheth gach céil.
 'S gur h- iomadh òidhch' no-aoibhneach,
 Chum do chaoimhneas mi fo leòn;
 Is bi'dh mí nochd a' m' aonaran,
 A smaointeach bean do neòil.
 Tha bean do neòil am braithreachas,
 Ri eala bhàin nan spéur:
 Gur binne lean bhi màran leat,
 Na clàrsachean nan téud.
 Is tha do thlachd a's t-aillidhreachd,
 Ag cur do ghraidh an ceilidh;
 Gur cosmhul thu ri àilleagan,
 Da'n umhlaich cèch gu lèir.

Is beirt a chlaidh mo shochair thu,
 'S a shocraich ort mo ghaol;
 'S gur e mheudaich tòrsa dhomh,
 Gu'n thu bhi dhomh mar shaoil.
 Sgeul fior a dh' fheadar aireamh leam;
 Gur leir a bhì 's a chaoin;
 Gu'n d' fhasg gach speis a th' agam dhut,
 An nochd mo chadal faoin.
 Gu 'n d' rinn mi Alb' a chuartachadh,
 O Chluaidh gu uisge Spé;
 Is bean do neoil cha chualas,
 Bu neo-luainiche na beus.
 Is corrach, gorm, do shuilean;
 Gur geal, s gur dlù, do dheid,
 Falt buidhe 's e na chuachan ort,
 'S a shnuagh air dhreach nan téud.

Thug mise gaol da rìridh dhut,
 'Nuair bha thu d' nionaid òig ;
 Is air mo laimh nach dìbrinn e,
 Air mhìle punnd de 'n ór :
 Ge d' fhaighinn fhìn na chrùinteann e,
 Ga chunntadh dhomh air bòrd ;
 Cha treiginn gaol na ribhinne,
 A tha 'n Ile ghlas an fheòir.

Note.—The real author of this favourite ditty is not known, and though published on the "lips of thousand fair maidens and fond admirers," this is the first time it has been committed to press. Various MS. copies of it are in our possession, the oldest of which is by a Lady and bears the following title. "Miss Flora Macdonald's Lament for Prince Charles."

CUMHA DO DH' UILLEAM SISEAL,

FEAR INNS-NAN-CEANN AN SRATH-GHLAS
A THUIT LATHA CHUILODAIR,
LE MHNAOI FEIN.

Och! a Thearlaich òig Stiuhair,
'S e do chùis rinn mo leireadh,
Thug thu bhuam gach ni bh'agam,
Ann an cogadh na t-aobhar:
Cha chrodh, a's cha chaoirich,
Tha mi caoidh ach mo chéile,
Ge do dh'fhàgte mi m'aonar,
Gun sian 's an t-saoghal ach leine.
Mo rùn geal òg.

Co nis 'thogas an claidheamh,
No ni chathair a lionadh?
'S gann gur h-e tha air m' aire,
O nach maireann mo chiad ghradh;
Ach cia mar gheibhinn o m' nàdур,
A bhi 'g àiceadh na 's miann leam,
A's mo thogradh cho làidir,
Thoirt gu àite mo rìgh math?
Mo rùn geal òg.

Bu tu'm fear mor bu mhath cumadh,
O d' mhullach gu d' bhrògan,
Bha do shlios mar an eala,
'S blas na meal' air do phògan;
T-fhalt dualach, donn, lurach,
Mu do mhuineal an òrdugh,
'S e gu cam-lubach, cuimeir,
'S gach aon toirt urram d'a bhoichead.
Mo rùn geal òg.

Bu tu 'm fear slinneanach leathunn,
Bu chaoile meadhon 's bu dealbhaich;
Cha bu tailear gun edlas,
'Dheanadh còta math gearra dhut;
Na dheanadh dhut triubhais
Gun bhi cumhann, no gann dut;
Mar gheala-bhradan do chìsan,
Le d' ghearr òsan mu d' chalpa.
Mo rùn geal òg.

Bu tu iasgair na h-amhunn—
'S tric a thaghaidh thu fein i;
Agus sealgair a mhùnaidh—
Bhiodh do ghunn' air dheagh gheusadh;
Bu bhinn leam tabhunn do chuirein,
Bheireadh ful air mac eilde;
As do laimh bu mhor m' earbsa—
'S tric a mharbh thu le chéil iad.
Mo rùn geal òg

Bu tu pòitear na dibbe—
 'N àm suidhe 's taigh òsda,
 Ge be dh'oladh 's tu phaidheadh;
 Ged' thuiteadh cách mu na bordaibh,
 Bhi air mhisg cha 'n e b' fhiù leat,
 Cha do dh' ionnsaich thu òg e,
 'S cha d' iarr thu riambh cùis,
 Air te air chul do mhna pòsda.
 Mo rùn geal òg.

Gur mis th'air mo sgàradhb,
 'S ge do chanam, cha bhreug e—
 Chaidh mo shùgradhb gu sileadh,
 O'n nach pillear bho'n eug thu,
 Fear do chéile a's do thuisge,
 Cba robh furast ri fheutainn,
 'S cha do sheas an Cuilodair,
 Fear do choltais bu treine.
 Mo rùn geal òg.

'S ioma baintighearna phriseil,
 Le'n sioda 's le 'n sròlabh,
 Dàn robh mis' am chuis-fhàrmad,
 Chiou gu'n tairgeadh tu pòg dhomh ;
 Gé do bhithinn cho sealbhach,
 'S gu'm bu leam airgead Hanobhar,
 Bheirinn cuàc anns na h-aìntein,
 Na'n cumadh cách sinh bho phòsadh !
 Mo rùn geal òg.

Och ! nan och ! gur mi bochdag,
 'S mi làn osaich an còmhnuidh ;
 Chaill mi dùil rí thu thigheinn—
 Thuit mo chridhe gu doirteadh ;
 Cha tog fiadhall, no clàrsach,
 Piob, no thùileasg, no ceòl e ;
 Nis o chuir iad thu'n tasgaidh,
 Cha dùisg caidridh duin' òig mi.
 Mo rùn geal òg.

Bha mi greis ann am barail,
 Gu'm bu mbaireann mo chéile,
 S gu'n tigeadh tu dhathaigh,
 Le aighear 's le h-éibhneas,
 Ach tha 'n t-àm air dol tharais,
 'S cha 'n fhàic mi fear t-eugais,
 Gus an teid mi fo'n talamh,
 Cha dealaich do spéis rium.
 Mo rùn geal òg.

'S iomadh bean a tha brònach,
 Eadar Tròiteirnis 's Sléibhte,
 Agus té tha na bantraich,
 Nach d'fhuair sàmhla da'm chéile ;
 Bha mise lan sòlais,
 Fhad 's bu bheò sinn le-chéile,
 Ach a nis bho na dh'fhalbh thu,
 Cha chuis fhàrmad mi féin daibh !
 Mo rùn geal òg.

Note.—Christiana Ferguson, the authoress of the above elegiac production was a native of the Parish of Contin, Ross-shire, where her father was a blacksmith—chiefly employed in making dirks and other implements of war. She was married to a brave man of the name of William Chisholm, a native of Strathglass, and a near kinsman of the Chief of that name. On the memorable day of Culloden, William was flag-bearer or banner-man of the clan; and most assuredly the task of preserving the "Bratach Chòimhreach" from the disgrace of being struck down, could not have fallen into better hands. He fought long, and manfully; and even after the retreat became general, he rallied and led his clansmen again and again to the charge, but in vain. A body of the Chisholms ultimately sought shelter in a barn, which was soon surrounded by hundreds of the red-coats who panted for blood. At this awful conjuncture William literally cut his way through the government forces. He then stood in the barn door, and with his trusty blade, high raised, and in proud defiance, guarded the place. In vain did their spars and bayonets aim their thrusts at his fearless breast—he hewed down all who came within reach of his sword, and kept a semicircle of eight feet clear for himself in the teeth of his desperate enemies. At length he was shot by some Englishmen, who climbed up to the top of the barn from behind, where he fell as a hero would wish to fall, with seven bullets lodged in his body.

His wife forthwith composed the foregoing beautiful and heart-touching lament, which is altogether worthy of an affectionate woman. She is so full of the idea of her noble-souled husband, that her own personal hardships and privations find no place in the catalogue of her miseries—they have but one great radical source, the death of her beloved. Neither does she pour invective on the depulators of her country—no ! these were too insignificant to draw her mind for a moment from her peerless William Chisholm. With great good taste too, she devotes to the Prince one solitary expression of sympathetic condolence :—

Who now shall wield the burnish'd steel,
 Or fill the throne he ought to fill ?

and then, with the wings and wail of a mateless dove, flutters over the mangled carcass of her husband, and depicts his matchless person and soul in language that would melt the sternest heart to sympathy. There are several passages of great beauty, pathos and sublimity in this song; and, apart from the interesting circumstance that called it forth, it possesses all the essential properties or attributes of a first rate production. The air is original.

MORT GHLINNE-COMHANN.

LEIS A BHARD MHUCANACH.*

LAMH Dhé leinn a shaoghail !
 Tha thu carach, mar chaochla nan sion,
 An ni nach guidheamaid fhaotainn
 Mar na sruthaibh ag aomadh a nìos ;
 'S i chneidh féin, thar gach aobhar,
 Bhios gach duine ri caoine, 's e tinn,
 Breith Mhic-Samhain air sàoidhean,
 Tigh'nu a ghealchad ruinn a thaobh cùl ar cinn.

A Rìgh ! fheartaich na gréine
 Tha'n cathair na fíle, dean sìth,
 Ri cloinn an fhir a bha ceutach,
 Nach bu choltaich ri fóile fir chrion ;
 'N uair a thogha leat bratach,
 Croinn chaola, fraoch dait', agus pòb,
 Bhiodh mnai ghaoil, le fuaim bhàs
 A' caoi laoich nan arm sgaiteach 's an strì.

Gu'n robh aigne duin' usail
 Aig a bhail' agus uaithe a' d' chòir,
 Cha b' i ghéire gun tuigse
 Bha sa bheul bu neo-thuisliche glòir ;
 Ceann na céille 's na cuideachd
 Rinn na h-eacraich cuspair dheth t'fheoil ;
 Cha b' e 'm breugair' a mhurtadh
 Le luchd shéideadh nam pluicean air stbl.

Ach fear mòr bu mhath cumadh,
 Bu neo-sgàthach an curaидh gun ghiomb,
 Cha robh barr aig mac duine ort
 Ann an àilleachd, 's an uirigleadh cinn :
 Annas a bhliàr bu mhath t-fhuireach
 Chosnadh làrach, a's urram do'n rìgh ;
 Mo sgread chràiteach an fulachd !
 A bha'n taigh chlàraidh 'n robh furan nam pòs.

Cha robh do chridhe mar dhreagan
 Tarruinn slighe na h-eacoir a'd' chùrs,
 'S tu le d' chlaidheimh ag éiridh
 As leth t-athar 's rìgh Seumas a chrùin :
 'Taid an Albuinn 's an Eirinn,
 Luchd a thaghbaich, 'sa réiteach do chùis ;
 Bi'dh là eile ga dheuchainn
 'S tus' ad laidhe gun eisdeachd fo'n ùir.

B'iad mo ghràdh na cuirp gheala
 Bha gu fiughantach, fearail, neo-chròn,
 'S maing a chunnaic 'ur n-uaislean
 Dol fo bhinn 'ur luchd-fuatha gun dion ;

* This bard was one of the Macdonalds of Glencoe, and lived in the island of Muck, for which he was called Am bàrd Mucanach. After much inquiry this is all the information we could obtain concerning him, nor did we see any more of his productions. But from this piece it may be seen that he was one of the first poets of his day. We took down this version of the poem from the recitation of an old man in Glencoe, anno 1833.

Ach nam bitheamaid 'nar n-armaibh
 Mu'n do chruinich an t-sealg air an tìr,
 Bhiodh luchd chòtaichean dearga
 Gun dol tuilleadh do dh' armait an rìgh.

Cha robh gnothach aig léigh
 'Dhol a leigheas nan creuchd nach robh slàn,
 A' call am fala fo'n leinteann
 Bha na fir bu mhor féil' ri luchd-dhàn,
 Nam b'e cothrom na Féinne
 Bhiodh eadar sibh fein 's clanna Ghall,
 Bhiodh eoin mhölich an t-sléibhe
 Gairsinn salach air chréabhagan chàich.

Cha b'e crualad an cridhe
 Thug dhaibh buannachd air buidheann mo rùin,
 Tilgeadh luaidh na cithibh
 'S sibh mo thruaidh ! gun fhiös air a chùis :—
 Eadar uaislean a's mhithibh
 Gun robh bhuaidh ud a' ruith oirn o thùs ;
 O'n 's i'n uaigh ar èannu-uidhe
 Bi'dh na sluaidean a' frithealadh dhuinn !

Cha b'i sud an fhuil shalach
 Bha ga taomadh mu'n talamh sa' gheann,
 'S a liuthad ùmaidh mar ghearann
 A bha cuir fùdaир na dheannabh mu'r ceann ;
 A Rìgh dhùlaich nan aingeal !
 Gabhsa cùram da'r n-anam, 's sibh thall,
 Chaidh 'ur cumntas an tainead
 Le garbh dhùsgadh na malairt a bh' ann.

Thrùs do chinneadh r'a chéile,
 Dheanamh coinneamh an dè anns an Dùn,
 Cha d' aithris thu sgeula
 Fhir a'b' urrainn a réiteach gach cùis ;
 Ité dhaingean na'n sgéith thu,
 'S am baranta treun air an cùl
 Bi'dh là eile ga fheuchainn,
 'S mise druidte fo dhéile 's an ùir.

Cha bu chòcairean giorraig
 Chumail cùmhnaidh an slinnein ro chàch ;
 O'n là thòisich an iomaire
 Chaill Chlann-Dòmhnuill ceann-fine no dhà ;
 'N gleacair ôg 'ur ceann-cinnidh
 Chuir a dhòchas 'an smioraibh a chnàmh ;
 Gheibheadh cùcaire bioradh
 Rogha spòltach o spionnadha a làmh.

Luchd a thràghadh nam buideal
 Bheireadh earrach air rùban de'n fhlon,
 'Nuaire a thàrladh sibh cuideachd
 Bu neo-blàrùideil mu'n chupan ud sibh ;
 Ag iomair thàileasg, a's chluichibh
 Air a chlàr bu neo thrù'ail 'ur gniomh ;
 Cha bu chearr am measg truid sibh
 'N am páidheadh na cuideachd, 's g'an diol,

Gu'm beil mise fo mhulad
 Ag amharc 'ur gunnайд' air stéill,
 Sár ghomanaich ullamh
 Leis an cinnéadh an fhuil auns a bheinn,
 Ann am frith nan damh mullaich
 Far an deante libh munasg air seilg,
 Ga bu tric sibh gan rùsgadh
 Cha d' iarr sibh riamh cunnatas 's na béin.

Cha bu sgíthairean gealtach
 Bhiodh a' maoitheadh an gainge gach là,
 Tha 's an Eilean na'n cadal
 Nach dùisg gus an faicear am bràth,
 Luchd dhireadh nan éit-bheann
 Le'n cuilbheirean gleusta na'n laimh,
 'S lionmhòr fear nach d'rinn éiridh
 Bha na ghomanaich treun air a h-earr..

Rìgh gur mis tha fo airtneul
 Ri am dhomb bhi faicinn 'ur beann,
 'S cha lugha mo chùram
 Ri bhi 'g amharc bhur dùtchannan thall,
 Muir bhithe mar thachair
 'S ann leamsa gum b'ait bhi dol ann,
 Gus an tainig a chreach oirn
 Mar gu'n tuiteadh a chlach leis a ghleann !

'S iomadh fear tha toirt sgainneil
 Do'n tighearn òg air an fhearrann so thall,
 Eadar ceann Locha-Raineach,
 Rugha Shléibhte, 's bun Gharaidh nam beann,
 Bha thu feicheannach daingean
 Far an éiste ri d' theangaich an cainnt,
 Mar urbal peucaig gu tarruinn,
 'S mar ghath reubaidh na nathrach gu call.

Leum an stiùir bharr a claignn
 Le muir sùigh, 's gun sinu ath-chainn teach dho,
 Dh'fhalbh na croinn, 's na buill-bheairte,
 'S leig sinn uallach na slait air an sgòd ;
 'S bochd an dùsgadh sa' mhadainn
 So fhuaire sinn gu grad a theachd oirn,
 S ma gheibh sinn tìne ri fhaicinn
 Bheir sinn fùcadh mu'n seach air a chlò.

Note.—The cruel massacre of the Macdonalds of Glencoe, to which this "Lament" relates, was perpetrated by a party of soldiers under the command of captain Campbell of Glenlyon, in February, 1691. Thirty-eight persons suffered in this massacre; the greater part of whom were surprised in their beds, and hurried into eternity before they had time to implore Divine mercy. The design was to butcher all the males under seventy that lived in the valley, the number of whom amounted to two hundred; but some of the detachments not arriving in time to secure the passes, one hundred and sixty escaped. Campbell having committed this brutal deed, ordered all their houses to be burned, made a prey of all the cattle and effects that were found in the valley, and left the helpless women and children, whose fathers and husbands he had murdered, naked and forlorn, without covering, food, or shelter, in the midst of the snow that covered the face of the whole country, at the distance of six miles from any inhabited place. For a particular account of this most unjust action, see "Smollett's History of England."

BHA CLAIDHEAMH AIR IAIN

'S AN T-SEARMOIN.

LUINNEAG.

Bha claidheamh air Iain,
 Air Iain, air Iain,
 Bha claidheamh air Iain 's an t-searmoin ;
 Bha claidheamh air Iain,
 Fear deas-lainh mo chridhe,
 'S tu 'dheanadh an fhighe neo-clearbach.

THAINIG litrichean bagraidh,
 A nall a Lochabar,
 'Nuir chualas gu'n deachaidh tu t-armachd ;
 Ghabh an ceannard mor chùram,
 'S gach freiceadan dhùibhl e,
 Eagal 's gun dùisgeadh tu Albainn !
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

'Se'n sgathdan beag casraidh
 A thainig mu dheas oirn,
 'Chuir Iain na bhreislich mu 'armachd,
 'S ann a mhosgail mo chridhe,
 Deagh fhortain 'bhi tighinn,
 'Nuir chithinn a chlaidheamh 's an t-searmoin.
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

Air là Sliabh an t-siorra
 Cha ghabhadh tu giorrag,
 'Nuir chaidh na gillean gu stairirich,
 'Nuair ghabaidh iad am bristeadh,
 Cha philleadh tu idir—
 'S aon dh-fhag thu na ficheadan marbh dhiù.
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

Gur mòr a bha d' phòrabh,
 De dh'ardan Chlann-Dòmhnuill
 Na'm bitheadh do phòca lau airgeid,
 Gu'n tugadh tu dhachaigh dhuinn
 Righ shear na h-Apunn,
 A dh'aindeoin fir Shasuin mar mårblt' thu.
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

'S iomadh òganach ullamh,
 Nach éisdeadh an cumasg,
 Bha gun chlaidheamh, gun għunna, gun targaid,
 Gun urad na biodaige,
 'M falach fo chrioslaich ;
 Ged' bha Mac-a-Għiobaich na armachd.
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

'S mòr mo chùram mu d' phearsa
 Mu t-arm a's mu t-acuinn,
 Mu d' shlinnean mu d' chearislean 's mu d'
 'S gu'n 'bhrist thu an t-achda [bħalġan,
 'Rinn Deorsa bha 'n Sasunn,
 'Nuir chaidh thu cho spailpeil na t-armachd.
 Bha claidheamh, &c.

Chaidh 'n claidheamh air astar,
Do bhraighe Lochabar,
Laidh rua-mheirg le dealt air a bharra-dheis ;
Tha'm breabadair againn,
Na chliamhuinn do'n t-Sagart,
'S gu'm faigh e bho'n pharsou sin tearinad.
Bha claidheamh, &c.

Mu dh-fhaireas sibh cunnart,
'S nach fhaod sibh a chumail,
Cuirbh e thuinidh do'n Gharbh-shliabh ;
'S ionadh àite math falair,
Dà thaoblh Locha-Garaidh,
'S tha'n dream ud gle dhealaidh do Bhalgan.
Bha claidheamh, &c.

Note.—The foregoing burlesque is the composition of Angus M'Donald, of Glencoe, commonly called Aonghas Mac Alasdair Ruaidh. The subject of it was Iain Gibeach, a weaver, belonging to the same clan. This John was present at the battle of Sherriffmuir in 1715, but deeming "prudence the best part of valour," he made more use of his heels than of his arms. It is said that, in order the more effectually to shield his person from danger, he laid himself down behind a dyke, pulling a portion of that fabric over him; and that thus covered he was rode over by the combatants. On the first safe opportunity, he entirely abandoned the scene of strife, which but indifferently suited his taste. His flight to Glencoe was a rapid one. There, however, he did not fail to give a magniloquent account of his feats of arms at Sherriffmuir, being, at the same time, the first intelligencer of that doubtful action. He afterwards went to church with his broadsword slung in his belt in order to indicate his valour, by setting the Act of Parliament for disarming the Highlanders at defiance! This last exploit of our hero gave birth to the admirable pasquin, "John wields his sword in the kirk."

FEAR A BHATA.

LUINNEAG.

Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile,
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile;
Fhtr a bhata, na horo-eile,
Gu ma slàn dut, 's gach ait' an téid thu.

'S tric mi sealguinn o'n chnoc a's àirdé,
Dh-fheuch am faic mi fear a bhàta :
An tig thu 'n drugh, na'n tig thu maireach ?
'S mar tig thu idir, gur truagh a tà mi.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Tha mo chridhe-sa briste, brúite ;
'S tric na deoiribh a ruith o'm shuilean ;
An tig thu nochd, na 'm bi mo dhùil riut ?
Na 'n dùin mi 'n dorus, le osna thùrsach ?
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

'S tric mi foildheachd de luchd nam bàta,
Am fac iad thu, na 'm beil thu sàbhailt ;
S ann a tha gach aon aca rium a 'g ràite,
Gur gòrach mise ma thug mi gràdh dhut.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Gheall mo leannan domh gùn dhe 'n t-sòda,
Gheall e sud agus breacan riombach ;
Fain' òir anns am faicinn iomhaigh ;
Ach 's eagal leam gun dean e dlochuimhn'.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Cha 'n eil baile beag 's am bì thu,
Nach tamh thu greis ann, a chur do sgios diot ;
Bheir thu làmh air do leabhar riomhach,
A ghabhail dhuananag 's a bhuaireadh nionag.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Ged a thuirt iad gu'n robh thu aotrom,
Cha do laghadaich sud mo ghaol ort ;
'Bi'dh tu m' aisling anns an òidhche,
A's anns a mhadaidh bi'dh mi 'ga t-fhoineachd.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Thug mi gaoil dut' 's cha'n fhaod mi àicheadh ;
Cha ghaol bliadhna, 's cha ghaol ráidhe ;
Ach gaol a thòisich 'nuair bha mi m' phàisde,
'S nach searg a chaoidh, gus an claoïdh am bàs mi.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Tha mo chàirdean gu tric ag innseadh,
Gu'm feum mi t-aogas a chuir air diochuimhn' ;
Ach tha 'n comhairle dhomh cho diamhain,
'S bhi pilleadh mara 's i tabhairt lionaidh.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Tha mo chriosan air dol an airde,
Cha'n ann bho fhidhleir, na bho chlàrsair ;
Ach bho stiùireadair a bhata—
'S mur tig thu dhachaigh, gur truagh mar tha mi.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

Bi'dh mi tuille gu tìursach, deurach,
Mar eala bhàn 's i an déis' a reubadh ;
Guileag bàis aic' air lochan feurach,
A's cùch uileadh an deighidh tréigsinn.
Fhir a bhata, na horo-eile, &c.

ORAN GAOIL,

DO MHAIGHDIN UASAIL'S AN EILEAN-FHADA.

LUINNEAG.

A Mhairi bhòidheach, 's a Mhairi ghaolach,
A Mhairi bhòidheach, gur mòr mo ghaol ort,
A Mhairi bhòidheach, gur tu a chlaoïdh mi,
'S a dh-fhág mi brònach, gun doigh air t-fhaotainn.

MHAIRI bhòidheach gur mor mo ghaol ort,
Gur tric mi cuimhneachadh ort 's mi m'aonar,
Ge do shiubhlann gach ceum de'n t-saoghal,
Bi'dh t'iomhaigh bhòidheach tigh'n beò gach
A Mhairi bhòidheach, &c. [taobh dhiom.

'S truagh nach robb mi 's mo Mhàiri bhòidheach,
Ann an gleannan faoin a's ceò air—
'S ged bu righ mi 's an Roinn-Eòrpa,
Cha'n iarrainn pòg ach bho Mhari bhòidheich.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Ach chitear féidh air sgéith 's na' speuran,
'S chithear iasg air aird nan sléithean,
Chithear sneachda dubh air gheugan,
Mu'm faicear caochadhig tig'u air mo spéis dhut.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

O Mhari!—lughdaich thu mo chiall domh,
Tha mo chrìdh' le do ghaol air liouadh;
Tha gach là dhomh cho fad ri bliadhna,
Mur faic mi 't aodainn a ta mar ghrian domh.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Do shuilean meallach fo d' mhala bhòidheich,
Do bhilean tana air dhath nan ròsan,
Slios mar chanach an gleannan mòintich,
'S do ghruaidh mar chaoran fo séith nam mòr.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.      [bheann.

Fhir a shiubhas thar thonnan uaibhreach,
A dh'ionnsaidh Innseachan cian nan cuaintean,
Thoir gach siod, agus ni tha luach-mhor,
Dh'ionnsaidh Mairi a rinu mo bhuaireadh.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Eoiu! a's moiche a théid air sgiathan,
'S a dhireas suas ann an aird na h-iàrmait,
Na bitheadh latha thig fad na bhliadhna,
'S nach seinn sibh ceol d'a mo Mhàiri chiataich.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Ach cha dean Eala air slios nam mor-thonn,
Cha dean smèòrach am badan bòidheach,
Cha dean gach inneal ciùil ach crònan,
'Nuair a sheinneas mo Mhàiri bhòidheach.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Ge do bhi mi gu thàrsach cianail,
'S mi le cùram air mo liouadh,
Ni do ghnùis-sa tha mar a ghrian domh,
Mo chridhe sunntach 'nuair thig thu m'fhanais.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Gu mo slàn do mo Mhàiri bhòidheich,
Ge b'e àite 's am bi i còmhnuidh,
'S e mo dhùrachd-sa 'm fad 's a's beò mi,
Gu'm bi gach sòlas aig Mairi bhòidheich.
A Mhari bhòidheach, &c.

Note.—This song was composed by a schoolmaster in North Uist, who fell in love with one of the daughters of a family in which he was tutor; and his attachment to her preyed so heavily on his mind, that he sunk under it, and was consigned to a premature grave.

AN NIGHEAN BHUIDH BIAN.

LE DOMHNULL MAC-AONGHAIS

Triau dheth do tlachd innseadh dhut.
Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

'S mall do rösg, 's gur glan do leirsinn,
Suil ghorm, mar dheareag an t-shléibhe,
Mala chaol a's caoine réidhie,
Cha bu bhreug ach firinn sud.

Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

Calpa bán nach iarr an gartan,
Troigh shocrach nach dochunn faiche,
'S e mheudaich cho mòr mo tlachd dhiot,
Chionns nach faicte mi-ghean ort.
Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

Beul is binne sheinneas òrain,
Millis, blasda, socair, còmhnaidh,
Gu fonnor, farasd, ro dhoigheil,
Cha bhi sgòd ri' inns' oirre.

Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

Anna ged' nach eil mi stocail,
Cha'n i'n t-shnàthad mo cheird chosnайдh,
Dheannain aran eorna 's corea
Mar ris an dhroch shide dhut.

Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

Ma ni thu mar a tha thu labhairt,
'S gu'n cum thu riùm-sa do ghealladh,
So mo làmh gur mi do leannan,
'S nach bi ba-laoch sìute riut.

Mo nighean bhui' bhàn, &c.

ORAN GAOIL

LE NIGHEAN FIR NA REILIG.

THIG trè nith gu'n iarraidh,
An t-eagal, an t-iadach, 's an gaol ;
'S gur beag a chùis mhaslaidh,
Ged' ghlacadadh leo mis air a h-aon,
'S a liughad bean usal
. A fhuaradh sa' chiont an robh mi,
A thug an gaol fuadainn
Air ro bheagan duaise ga chionn.
*Air failirinn, illirin,
Uillirin, othòró laoidh !*
'S cruaidh fortan gun f'hiös,
A chuir mise fo chuing do ghaoil.

Fhir a dhìreas am bealach
Beir soruidh do'n ghleannan fo thuath ;
A's innis do m' leanann,
Gur maireann mo ghaol 's gur buan,
Fear eile cha ghabh mi
'S cha 'n fhuilig mi idir a luaidh
Gus an dean thu ghaoil m' àicheadh,
Cha chreid mi bho chàch gur fuath.
Air failirinn, &c.

Fhir nan gorm shuilean meallach,
O 'n ghleannan dé'm bidheadh an smùid,
Ga 'm beil a chàoin mhala,
Mar chanach an t-sléibh' fo dhriùchd :
'Nuair readh* tu air t-uilinn,
Bhiodh full air fear dhìreadh nan stùc,
'S nam bi'dh tu ghaoil mar rium
Cha b' anайд an céile leam thu.
Air failirinn, &c.

Na faicinn thu tighinn,
'S fios domh gur tusa bhiodh ann ;
Gu'n eireadh mo chridhe
Mar aiteal na gréin' thar nam beann ;
'S gu'n tugainn mo bhriathar,
Gach gaoisdeau tha liath na mo cheann
Gu'm fasadh iad buidhe,
Mar dhìthein am bruthaich nan allt !
Air failirinn, &c.

Cha b' ann air son beartais,
No idir ro phailteas na spréigh ;
Cha b' fhear do shiol bhodach
Bha m' osnaich cho trom á dhéidh.
Ach mhae an duin' usail,
Fhuair buaidh air an dùthaich gu léir ;
Ge do bhithreamaid falamh,
Tha caraid a chitheadh oirn feum.
Air failirinn, &c.

* Reachadh, poetically rendered.

Mur tig thu féin tuilleadh
Gur aithne dhomh mhalaир a th' ann
Nach eil mi cho beartach
Ri cailin an achaidh ud thall.
Cha tugainn mo mbisneachd,
Mo ghliocas, a's grinneas mo làimh,
Air buaile chrodh ballach
A's cailin gun iùil na'n ceann.
Air failirinn, &c.

Mu chaidh thu orm seachad,
Gur taitneach, neo-thuisleach, mo chliù ;
Cha d' rinn mi riut comunn,
'S cha d' laidh mi leat riamb ann an cùil.
Cha 'n arachaин arachd
Do duine chuir ăd air a chrùn ;
On tha mi cho beachdail,
S gu'n smachdaich mi gaol nach fiù.
Air failirinn, &c.

Bu laoghaid mo thàmait,
Na 'm b' airidh ni b' fearearr a bhiodh ann ;
Ach dubh-chail' a bhuacair,
'Nuair għlacas i buarach na làimh.
Nuair thig an droch earrach
'S a chaillear an ni ann sa' ghleann ;
Bitheas is' air an t-shiǔlaid
Gun tuille dheth' bunaltais ann.
Air failirinn, &c.

ES-AN DA FREAGAIRT.

S truadh nach robh mi 's mo leannan,
'S a chrrannaig air stiùireadh le gaoith,
Na 'm bùthaig bhig bharraich,
Aig iméal a ghleannain leinn fhìn,
No'n Lochlann an daraich
R'a taobh na mara fo thuinn,
Gun chuumhn' air a chailin
A dh' fhág mi air airidh chruidh-laoidh.

'N gille dubhl caol,
Na laithe san fhraoch ;
'S a ghuinna ri thaobh,
B'e 'n shaodail fhalaich e.
Thainig an gille, &c.

'S math thig gunna bheoil chaoil,
An deas-lamh mo ghaoil ;
'S cha chilaghaire faoin,
A dh-fhaodadh tarruinn ris.
Thainig an gille, &c.

'S tu marbhàich an fhéidh,
'S a cholich air géig,
'S a bhric air an leum,
'S gu'n réibh 'n eala leat.
Thainig an gille, &c.

'S tu sealgair a gheoigh,
'S an lach air an lòn ;
'S nam biadh i na d' chòir,
Gu'n leoint, a mhaigheach leat.
Thainig an gille, &c.

'Nuair lùbadh tu 'n glùn,
'S a chaogadh tu 'n t-suìl ;
Bhiadh eilid nan stùc,
'S a cùl ri talamh leat.
Thainig an gille, &c.

B'u stiùirich' a chuain,
Air bharraighean staudh,
Ri latha fluech, fuar :—
Mo luaidh do dh' fhearaibh thu.
Thainig an gille, &c.

Ged' bhidheadh a ghaoth,
Ri sgoltadh nan craobh ;
Gu'n cumadh mo ghaol,
A' taobh 's na maranan.
Thainig an gille, &c.

Mo bheannachd ad dhéigh,
Ma dh-fhag thu mi féin ;
Ach guidheamaid céile,
Bensach, banail, dut.
Thainig an gille, &c.

MO NIGHEAN CHRUINN DONN.

LUINNEAG.

*Dh-fhalbh mo nighean chruinn, donn,
Bhuam do' dh-Iuraidh ;
Dh-fhalbh mo nighean chruinn, donn,
Cneas mar eala nan tonn—
Beul o'm binne thig fonn,
Leis an deagh iompaidh.*

'S TRUAIGH nach robh mi 's mo ghaol
Ann an gleann cùbhraidh ;
'S truagh nach robh mi 's mo ghaol
Ri h-uisg' ann 's ri gaoith ;
'S fo shileadh nan craobh
Bhitheamaid sunnatach.
Dh-fhalbh, &c.

Nam biadh agamsa spréidh
Bhitheinn glé chuirteil,
Nam biadh agamsa spréidh
Feadh bheann agus sléibh,
B' ùr a gheibhinn thu féin,
'S cha bu chéil' ùmaidh.
Dh-fhalbh, &c.

Ged tha thus' an tràth-s'
Ann an Gleann-Iùraidh,
Ged tha thus' ann an tàmb,
Tha t-aigne fo phräimh,
Agus mise gun stà,
Le do ghràdh ciùrrte.
Dh-fhalbh, &c.

Beir mo shorruidh gun dàil
Bham do dh Iùraidh ;
Beir mo shorruidh le gràdh
Dh-fhios na h-bigh rinn mo chràdh ;
'S nuair a chluim i mar thà,
Bi'dh sì-féin túrsach.
Dh-fhalbh, &c.

Cha'n eil aice mar chéil'
Ach am fir ùmaidh,
Cha'n eil aice mar chéil',
Ach sean bhodach gun spéis,
'S e mar ghearran bho'n fhéill—
Doirbh, breun, bràdail !
Dh-fhalbh, &c.

AN NIGHEAN DUBH.

A NIGH'N dubh nan gruaidean craobhach,
Bha uair gu'm bu bheag a shaoilinn,
Gu'n caidinn an òidhch' as t-aonais,

Chaidh sid aog a's chaochail e cruth,
Tha thu suarach umam an diugh,
Ge d' bha uair bu toigh leat mo guth;
Tha thu suarach umam an diugh.

'Nuair a bha sinn anns na gleannainn,
'Cuallach a chruidh-laoigh mu'n mhainnir,
Shaoil mi fhìn nach robh air thalamh

Fear a mhealladh bean a chinne duibh,

Tha thu suarach, &c.

A thé sinn a th' aig na gamhnain,
Bha mi nair is bu mhòr mo gheall ort ;
'S gill' thu na sneachd' air na beanntan,

Anu san àm am bìte 'ga chur.

Tha thu suarach, &c.

'Nuair a thogadh tu gùth t-òrain,
Bu bhinn' thu na chuach 's an 'smeòrach,
'Nuair a sheinneadh iad mar chòmhla,

Madainn cheò air bharrach an stuib.

Tha thu suarach, &c.

Tha do chneas cho gheal 's an faolag,
Do dha ghruaidh cho dearg 's na caorans ;
Suilean meallach, gorm, na t-aodann,

Mala chaol, mar ite 'n loin-duibh.

Tha thu suarach, &c.

Tha mi lag, ged' bha mi laidir,
Tha mi sgith gu siubhal fhàsach ;
'S gur e thug mo chridhe mhàn,

Ro mhiad a gràidh a bhàirig mi dhut.

Tha thu suarach, &c.

Tha thu bòidheach, tha thu loinneil,
'S dùilich leam gu'm beil thu foilleil ;
'S binne thu na guth choilich-choille,

Anns an doire 'n goireadh e moch.

Tha thu suarach, &c.

Is tric a bha saill air sean each,
Agus phùisean ann an glainne,
Amhuil sin as gaol mo leannain,

Mar chop geal air bharraibh nan sruth.

Tha mi suarach umad an diugh,
Ged' bha uair bu toigh leam do gùth,
Tha mi suarach umad an diugh.

OCHOIN! MO CHAILIN.

Gu'n dh'eirich mi moch, air madainn an dé,
'S ghearr mi'n ear-thalmhainn, do bhù mo sgéil ;
An duil gu'm faicinn-sa rùin mo chélibh ;
Ochòin! gu'm facas, 's a cùl riùm fèin.

Ochoin! mo chailin, 's mo shùil a d' dhéigh,
Ochòin! mo chailin, 's mo shùil a d' dhéigh ;
Mo Lili, mo Lili, 's mo shuil a d' dhéigh :
Cha leur dhomh am bealach, le sileadh nan deur.

Na'm bidheadh sud agam, mo lùgh 's mo leum,
Mi'm shuidh air a bhealach, 's mo chù air éill ;
Gu'n deanainn-sa cogadh, gu laidir, trenn,
Mu'n leiginn mo leannan le fear tha fo'n gréin.

Ochoin! mo chailin. &c.

'S am orm-sa tha mulad sa'm fiabhras mòr,
On chualas gun deach' thu le Brian a dh-òl :
Mo chomunn cha dean mi ri manaoi san fheoil,
O rinn thu mo thréigsinn, 's mi fein a bhi bed.

Ochoin! mo chailin, &c.

O ! cha'n eil uiseag, no faoilinn bhàn,
Am barr a chaisteil 's an robh mi 's mo gràdh ;
Nach eil ri tuireadh, a dh-òidhche 's do là,
On' chual'iad gu'n ghilacadh mo chailin air làimh.
Ochoin! mo chailin, &c.

Note.—This song is said to have been composed by an Irish student, who had taken a fancy for a Highland girl when attending the classes in the University of Glasgow. "Brian," mentioned in this piece, was another Irish student, and a rival of our Hibernian poet.

THA MO CHADAL LUAIN EACH.

THA mo chadal luaineach,
'S an uair so cha'n fhaigh mi tàmh ;
Cùimheachadh an uasail,
A ghluais air madainn di-màirt.
Oigear a chuil dualaich,
'S nan cuachagan troma, tlà ;
Ged bhiodh agam buaille,
'S tu dh' fhuasglainn 's cha'n fhear de chàch.

M' ullaigh agus m' endail,
Bu réidh leam sealladh do shùl ;
Mar aiteal na gréine,
'S i'g eiridh moch madainn dhriùchd.
Do bheul tana glé dhearg,
Fo'n endann 's guirme suil ;
'S ged bhiodh tu ad leine
B'e m' éibhneas de dh-fhearaibh thu.

M' aighear a 's mo rùin thu,
S e cuirtear na fèile bh' ann ;
Càs dhireadh nan stùc-bheann,
Ceum lùghar air feagh nan gleann.
A mhìad sa thug mi dhìù dhut,
Gu'n dh' fhág e mo shuilean dall ;
'S gu'n deanainn leat lùbadh
Ged dhiúltainn tri mìle Gall.

On thana' mi 'n tir so,
Air m' iuntiun gun laidh trom sproe ;
Cuimhneachadh na dh' fhág mi,
Cha tàmh dhomh 'm baile no port.
Oigear a chul-shniomhain,
Beul siomholt nach labhair lochd ;
Ged bhidhinn fo mhi-ghean
Gu'n innseinn dhut e le 'm thoil.

'S coma leam 'n seann duine,
Laidheas gu teamn ris an stoc ;
Fad na h-òidhche geomraidh,
Cha tuinndaidh 's gu'm bi na thosd.
Laidhidh e gu diblidh,
Na shineadh air bharr nan sop,
Gu'n tarruinn e t-sranntaich,
'S gun tuinndaidh e cul a nõig.

C' arson nach labhrainn caoin riut
A ghaoil, cha cheilinn sid ort ?
Seann-duine cha taobh mi,
Ged dh' fhaodadh cha'n eireadh moch.
Ged' robh aige caorich,
'S an saoghal a bhi gu thoil ;
'Nuaire labhradh e pràmhail
Bu chraiteach mo chridhe 'm chor.

M' ilidh, 's mo ghràdh, thu,
Gur ràidhe gach bòidhch' ad dhéigh ;
Lamh stiùireadh a bhàta,
Ga sàbbhaladh as gach beud.
Poitear san taigh-thùbhairn thu,
A phaidheadh a measg nan ceud,
Giomhanach nan ard-bheann,
'S cha shlàn a biodh mac an fhéidh.

Note.—This song has been sung and admired in Scotland time immemorial, and no tradition now remains of its authorship. The air is of great beauty, and as we have heard a lady, a native of Ireland, sing an Irish song to the same tune, we cannot say whether it belongs to us or to the sister kingdom. Here is the first stanza of the Irish, according to the Scottish orthography :—

"Madainn's mi gu h-uaigneach,
Air brach-loch' an Iunis-fail ;
A fabh air feadh' a chruaileach,
Gu h-ullach's mo ghunn' am lamh.
S ann a dhearc' mi staire,
Na gruaig finne' mi hiuineil bhain,
Agus dorlaich buaint' aic,
Deu luachair bu ghilaise dh-fhas."

NIGHEAN DONN NA BUAILE.

A NIGHEAN donn na buaile,
Gàm beil an gluasad farasda ;
Gu'n tug mi gaol cho buan dut,
'S nach gluais e air an earrach so.
Mheall thu mi le d' shùgradh,
Le d' bhriodal a's le d' chiùine ;
A's lùb thu mi mar fhiùran,
'S cha dùthchas domh bhi fallain bhuat.

Do chùl donn dait' an òrdugh,
Gu bachtach, bòidheach, camagach,
T' agaighidh fhlathail, chòmhnnard,
Mar ite 'n eoin do mhalaichean,
Dà shuil chorragh, mhiogach,
Rosc glan a' cumhail dionn orr' ;
Do ghruaidhean meachair, mìne,
'S do phòg mar fhiogois mheanganan.

Mar reull a measg an t-sluagh thu,
Nam gluasad a chium tionalaidh ;
Cha tugadh Bhénus buaidh ort,
'S ard thug do shnuadh-sa barrachd oirr'
Chit' am fion a' dealaradh,
Ann am dol sios tre d' bhragad ;
Gur math thig sioda 'n càradh,
Ma mhuinneal bàin na h-ainnire.

Do sheang chorpa, fallain, sunntach,
Nach do chiùrr an an-shocair,
'Nuaire reachadh tu air ùrlar,
Bu lùghar anns na caraih thu ;
Le d' calpannan deas, bòidheach,
Cruinn, cumadail, neo-lòdail ;
Troigh chruinn ann am broigh chòmhnnaird,
Nach toir air feòirnean carachadh.

Do bheul o'm binn' thig òrain,
Ceol agus ceilleorean,
Gur binne leam do chòmhhradb,
Na smèòrach air na meanganan.
O 'n chuir mi 'n tòs ort elolas,
Gu'u tug mi gaol cho mòr dhut,
'S mar faigh mi thu ri d' phòsadh,
Gu'n cuir do bhròn fo'n talamh mi.

Na 'm b' e 's gu'm biodh tu deònach,
'S gu'n pòsamaid an ath-ghoirid,
Cha'n iarrainn leat de stòras,
Ach còmhddacha na banaraich.
Ge b' leamsa 'n Roinn Eòropa,
'S America le mòr shluagh,
Na 'm faighinn dhomh fhìn còf ort,
Bu leat gach stòr 's gach fearann diù.

A ghaoil na creid droch sgeul orm,
Ge 'd robh luchd-bhreug a labhairt riut;
Tha m' inntinn-se cho réidh dhut,
'S nach bi aon seud an an-fhius dut.
Ge d' their iad riut le bòilich,
Gur beag leo mo chuid stòrais;
A chaoidh cha churam lòu dut,
'S an rìgh cuir seòl air aran duinn.

Note.—The author of this favourite song was the Rev. Duncan Macfarlane, at one time chaplain to a Highland regiment, and lately minister of the Gaelic chapel, Perth.

AN CAILIN DILEAS DONN.

Gu ma slàn a chì mi,
Mo chailin dileas donn;
Bean a' chualain réidh,
Air an deise dh-eireadh fonn;
'S i cainnt do bheoil bu bhinn leam,
'N uair a bhiodh m' intinn trom,
'S tu thogadh suas mo chrí'
'Nuair a bhi'dh tu bruidhinn rium.

Gur muladach a tà mi,
'S mi nochd air aird a chuaин,
'S neo shuntach mo chadal domh,
'S do chaidridh fada bhuaum;
Gur tric mi ort a smaoineach;
As t-aogais tha mi truagh;
'S mar a dean mi t-fhaotainn
Cha bhi mo shaoghal buan!

Suili corrach mar an dearag
Fo' rosg a dh-iathas dilù;
Gruaidhean mar na caorau,
Fo 'n aodann tha leam ciùin—
Mar d' aithris iad na bhreugan,
Gun tug mi féin dut rùin;
'S gur bliadhna leam gach là'
Bho'n uair a dh-fhàg mi thu.

Theireadh iad mas d' fhàlbh mi bh'uat,
Gu 'm bu shearbh leam dhol ad chòir;
Gu do chuir mi eil riut,
'S gu'n dhìult mi dhut mo phòg.
Na cùireadh sid ort cùram,
A rùin,—na creid an sgleò;—
Tha t-anail leam ni 's cùraidh,
Na'n drùichd air bharr an fheoir.

Tacan mu'n do sheol sinn,
'S ann a thoiseich càch
Ri innseadh do mo chruinneig-sa,
Nach pillinn-sa gu bràth.

Na cuireadh sid ort gruaimean
A luaidh; ma bhos mi slàn;
Cha chum dad idir bhuat mi,
Ach saighead chruaidh a bhàis.

Tha moran de luchd aimlisg,
'S a sheannachais an droch sgeòil,
An chridheacha mar phuisean,
Cha chuimhnich iad air chòir;
Ach na creid an sgeula;

Ma gheibh a' chléir oirn còir,
'S ma dh' fhanas sinn bho chéile,
'S i 'n éigin a bheir oirn'.

Tha 'n snaim a nise ceangailte,
Gu daigheann agus teamn;
'S e their luchd na fanoid riùm
Nach 'eil mo phròthaíd ann :—
M fear aig am beil fortan,
Tha crois aige na cheann,
'S tha mise taingeil, toilichte,
Ge d' tha mo sporan gann.

Note.—This song is the composition of Hector M'Kenzie, a sailor belonging to Ullapool, Lochbroom. M'Kenzie is still alive—verging upon ninety years of age, and resides either in Glasgow or in Liverpool. He composed several Duanags of considerable merit. The air of this song is excellent and original; the composition, though good, is not so happy. A bad version of it appeared in Turner's Collection with a spurious verse beginning :—

"Tha Caimeulach mar chairdeas,
Ga t-ardachadh le strith."

M O R A G.

LUINNEAG.

'S i luaidh mo chagar Mòrag,
Mo ghaol sa mhàdainn Mòrag,
Gu'm b'ait leam agam Mòrag,
Gur taitneach leam a còmhradh.

'S tu Mhòrag rinn mo bhuaireadh,
O chunna' mi di-luan thu,
Tha m'aigne leat a gluasad,
'S cha tèmh e mar bi buaidh leis,
Mur geill thu bi'dh mi truagh dheth.
'S i luaidh mo chagar, &c.

Do shaigidean rinn mo leònadh,
'S iad chuir mi uil' as ordugh,
Cha bhi mi tuille 'n sòlas,
Mur fàiltich thu le pòig mi,
'S do lamh a gealladh còir ort.
'S i luaidh mo chagar, &c.

'S tu 'n reull a' measg nan òg-bhan,
Do mhaise lian le bròu mi,

Do ghruaidh dh-flàg fann na ròsan,
Do dheud dh-flàg glas na neòinein,
Cha leir dhomh sàmh'l do bhòicideid.
'S i luaidh mo chagair, &c.

Ge h-ioma tè a chi mi,
Cha téid iad uile 'm prìs riut,
'S tu Bhenus measg nam miltean,
'S e t-eugas thug mo chlì bhuam,
S a dh-flàg an diugh gun lì mi.
'S i luaidh mo chagair, &c.

'Nuair bhitheas mi ann a m'aonar,
Nam chadal na mo sheòmar,
Thig t-iomhagh làn de bhòicidead,
An sin ùisigidh mi le sòlas,
An duil gu'm beil sinn còmhla.
'S i luaidh mo chagair, &c.

Gur tric mi air mo ghlumasad,
'N àm cuimhneach air na h-uairean,
An robh mi, a's tu cluineas,
'S a ruith le cùeman luatha,
'S nach pill iad tuille nuadh dhomh.
'S i luaidh mo chagair, &c.

Chuala tu mar tha mi,
Gu'm bheil mo chridhe 'n gràdh dhut;
Nis cuimhnich air do nàduri,
A's tionndaidh ann am blàs rium,
'S na fag a chaoidh am thraili mi.
'S i luaidh mo chagair, &c.

Note.—This deservedly popular air became known in the capital of Scotland only fifty or sixty years ago. "The young Highland Rover" and another song, both by Burns, are the only English words hitherto adapted to it.—M'Pherson's Melodies from the Gàelic.

AN GILLE DUBH CIAR-DHUBH.

CHA dirich mi brughach,
'S cha shiubhail mi mòinteach,
Dh-flalbh mo ghuth einn,
'S cha sheinn mi bran.
Cha chaidil mi uair,
O luan gu dòmhnaich,
'S an gille dubh ciar-dhubh ;
Tighinn fo m' uidh.

'S truagh nach robh mise,
'S an gille dubh ciar-dhubh ;
An aodainn na beinne
Fo shileadh nan siantan ;
An lagan beag fàsaich,
Nan àitigin diamhair,
'S cha ghabh mi fear liath
'S e tighinn fo m' uidh.

Dh-òlainn deoch-slaint',
A ghille dhuibh chiar-dhuibh
Do dh-uisge nan lòn,
Cho deònach 's ge b' fhion e,
Ged tha mi gun òr,
Tha ni 's leor tigh'n' d'am iarraidh,
'S cha ghabh mi fear liath
'S e tighinn fo m' uidh.

Mo ghille dubh bòidhead,
Ge gòrach le càch thu ;
Dheanainn do phòsad,
Gun deoin da mo chàirdean ;
Shiubhlann leat fada,
Feadh lagan a's flàsach,
'S cha ghabh mi fear liath
'S tu tighinn fo m' uidh.

Mo ghille dhulb laghach,
'S neo-raghainn leam t-fhàgail,
Na 'm faicinn an cuideachd thu,
Thaghainn re chàch thu ;
Ged' fhacinn cùig mìl',
Air chinnt gur tu b' feareann leam,
Cha ghabhainn fear liath
'S tu tighinn fo m' uidh.

'S luaineach mo chadal,
Bho mhàdairn di-ciadain,
'S bruaileanach m' aigneadh,
Mur furtach thu chiall mi.
'S mi raoir air dhroch leabaidh,
Cha'n fhada gu liath mi,
'S an gille dubh ciar-dhubh,
Tighinn fo m' uidh.

Note.—This fine little song is attributed to a Highland SAPPHO of the thirteenth century. Burns became so enamoured of it on hearing it sung by a lady, during his peregrination to the mountains, that he immediately wrote verses to the air, and it then became known for the first time to the English reader. To the same poet's taste we are indebted for the beauties of simple melody, and to the same lady's singing we owe the "Banks of the Devon," from "Banarach dhonn a chruidh," p. 127.—See Burns's Letters.

CRUINNEAG A CHRUIDH.

THA mulad mòr ga m' shàrach
Nach faigh mi dol do 'n àiridh,
'S cha'n thaod mi bhi ga ràite,
Air eagal càch ga leughadh.
Mo chailin grinn, meal-shuileach, dubh,
'S toigh leam fhn cruinneag a chruidh,
'Chailin glrinn, mheal-shuileich,
Air m' fhalluinn thug mi spéis dhut

Cha'n e nach bu mhiannach leam,
 Gach òidhche laidhe sinntे riut,
 Ach m' intinn a bhi 'g innseadh dhomh,
 Nach striochadh tu 's an éa-còir.
Mo chailin grinn, &c.

Tha nise bliadh'n a's còrr,
 O'n a dhùiriginn do phòsadh,
 'S tha 'n gaol a thug mi òg dhut
 An diugh cho beò 's an ceud là.
Mo chailin grinn, &c.

Na'm biodh mo chruinneag deònach,
 Cha chumadh Cléir no stòl mi,
 Ach dh-fhalbhainn leat thar m' eòlas,
 A phòsadh do Dhun-éideann.
Mo chailin grinn, &c.

Thug mi gaol ro òg dhut,
 Nach tréig mi fhad 's is beò mi,
 An dùil ri t-fhaighinn pòsda,
 Le toil a's deòin na Cléire.
Mo chailin grinn, &c.

Tha gruaimean air mo chàirdean,
 Gu'n tug mi gaol thar chàch dhut,
 Ach cuim' an deanainn t-àicheadh
 'S gu'n tug thu gràdh d'a réir sud ?
Mo chailin grinn, &c.

Dh-innsinn duibh a h-aogas,—
 A gruaidh cho dearg ri coran,
 'S a dà shùl mheallach, chaogach,
 Fo mhala chaol na h-euchdaig.
Mo chailin ghrinn, &c.

A bràighe dealrach rìomhach,
 Mu'n àillte thig an sioda,
 'S a broilleach corrach chìochan—
 A s gile 'fhamh na'n éiteag.
Mo chailin ghrinn, &c.

Do phòg air bhlas na'm figis,
 O'n bheul dh-fhas meachair, slomhalt,
 'S e mheud sa fhuair mi d' bhriodal,
 A ghoid an eridh'a'm' chreubhaig.
Mo chailin ghrinn, &c.

Cha'n e mbid do phòrsain,
 A dh-fhàg mo chion cho mòr ort ;

O R A N

LE IAIN MAC-ILLEAN.

Du' fhàlbh air thuras fir Alb' uile,
 'S na dh-fhàg Lunnainn dùmhail,
 'S e fà ar mulaid ceannard Mhuile,
 Gu'm b'e a chulaidh ionndrain,
 Chunnacas uair thu, linn Raoin-Ruairidh,
 Cha tuga luchd-fuatha pùic dhiot,
 'S bu treun do gheard gu dol do'n bhlàr,
 Ged dh-fhàlbh thu 'n dràsd le aon-fhear !

'S an Dreòllainn tha air iomadh fà,
 Fir a's muài fo chàram,
 Mu'n tì a chaidh do Shasunn bhuaian :
 Ga 'm beil an uaisle ghiùlain,
 Tha sinn na dheigh mar ian air géig,
 Air chridl' am péin ga chiùradh,
 Cha'n nochdar leinn aon gair air beul,
 Mur faigh sinn sgeul ni 's ùire.

'Nuair chaidh thu d' bhàta moch di-màirt,
 Gu fhàlbh bharr clàr do dhùthcha,
 Gur truagh a bha gach tonn air tràigh,
 Le coltas cràidh a's túrsa,
 Chaidh gaoth air gheuleas gu grad gu t-sheum,
 Gu h-ealamh, gleusda, sùrdail,
 Gun feum air neart nan laoch bu leat,
 Ach aon-fhear pròp ga stiùireadh.

Bu truagh' nad dhéigh bha gruaim nan speur,
 Gun an teas 'sa ghréin bu dù dh'i !

Gun Samhradh féin na chùrsa béis,
 Ach mar aimsir gheur na dùlachd !

* This song was composed on Sir Hector M'Lean, fifth baronet, when he went to France in 1721. He died at Rome, July, 1750.

Gun mheas air crann, gun fheur ach gann,
 Gun chuthag ann, no smùðan,
 Gun sealg nam beann ri fhaotainn ann,
 'S gun damh sa' ghleann 'ni bùireadh !

Bha coille 's machair caomh ri Eachunn,
 Thaoibh gu'm bu ghasd am flùr e,
 Mar ùmhlaichd dhò fo bhonn a bhròg,
 Bha feur nam fòd a' lùbadh,
 Na fhianais féin e grad a'g' eíridh,
 Suas gu h-eutrom, drìuchdach,
 'S e barail gheur gach neach da'm leir,
 Gu'r falbh 'n ad dheigh bu rùn dà !

Cha dù do 'n bhanrnairn air aon aobhar,
 'Bhi na nàmhaid dhuiine,
 Gun seanachas dhaoine riachan ri fhaotainn,
 Gur dream a dh-aom o'n' chrunn sinn,
 Guu aon aobhar—dha ri fhaotainn,
 Aig luchd-gaoil no diùmba—
 Air falbh le aighear do'n Fhraing air bhaideal,
 B'e sud an aithis shìl-ghorm.

'S mor an luidheachd thug thu bhuat,
 Air son na fhuair thu chùirt air,
 Cinneadh greadhnach, feachdail, meadhrach,
 Fearann saor, a's dùthach,
 An t-anam féin bha staigh a'd chré,
 Chaidh sin na cheudan cùntart,
 Do shliochd fo fhuath 's am leat bu chruaiddh,
 'S nach robh e'n dual no 'n dù dhut.

An talla chomhnuidh 'n robh a sheòrsa,
 Riamh gu ceòlmhor, mùirneach,
 An earradh broin cha'n aoibhneas dò,
 Fo fhuaim nan stòp aig dù-Ghaill ;
 'Nuair fhuair e steach e leum e'n aiteas ;
 Air leis gu m' chaisteal ùr e,
 Bha clach chinn-snait' air caochladh dreach,
 Cho geal ri sneachd ri aon-uair.'*

Tha 'n tì rinn ceann dibh air an ranus',
 Gu tric fo ainneart spùilidh :—
 'Nuair chi e'n t-am ga'r cuir a nall,
 Gun bheud, gun chall, gun chunnard,
 Bi'dh sibh air sògh, air cuirm, 's air ceòl ;
 Air blaths gu leoir, 's air sùigradh,
 'S gheibh sibh gu ceart bhur còir air ais,
 'S dion a dh' aindeoin cùise.

'Na'n abradh neach nach eil so ceart,
 Cha'n iarrain dad bu mhò dha,
 No teachd fo chall mar tha sinn ann,
 Gun righ, gun cheann, gun dùthach,
 Ach chi mi 'ghnà gur fior an ràit,
 'S gur bristeal dhùthach bho thùs e :—
 " Gu'r beag mar chràdh le fear tha slàn,
 A chnead tha nàbaidh bùirich."

AN LAIR DHONN.

LE MURCHA' MOR MAC MHIC MHURCHALDH

THA mise fo ghruaim,
'S gun mi 'n caidridh a chuain,
Cha chaidil mi uair air chòir.
Tha mise fo ghruaim, &c.

Ge socrach mo ghleus,
Air capull na leum,
Cha chaisgear leam m' fheum le treòir.

Loth philleagach, bhreun,
Fo phillin 's fo shrein,
Aon ghille na deigh bu lòd ;

Cha tugadh i ceum,
Ach duine 's i-féin,
'S gu'n cuireadh i feum air lòn.

Na 'n' gabhaidh i sgòls,
'S e b' fheudar dol sìos,
'S a treigssinn ge b' fhiamh an tòir ;

Cha b' ionnan 's mo làir,
Air linne nam bàrc,
Bi'dh gillean a ghnà cuir bhòd.

Iubhrach shocrach a chuain
Dha 'n cliù toiseach dol suas,

Dha 'm faca mi-féin,

Cha 'n iarradh i moll,
No fodar, no pronn,
Ach sòradh nan tonn fo 'sròin,

Reubadh mara le sùrd
Fo bheul sgair agus sùigh,
Deis a barradh gu dlù le òrd ;

Ruith chìüip air a clàr,
'S i druite fo shàl,
'S bu chruitt leam a gàir fo sheòl.

Be sud m' aighear 's mo mbiann,
Ged għlasach mo chiaibh,
'S cha shlat agus srian a'm' dhòrn ;

Ged thigeadh an ruaig,
Le caitheamh a chuain,
Cha laidheadh oirn fuachd no leòn.

Fhir a dh'ím'cheas an Iar,
Bho nach cinnteach mo thríall,
Bi 'g innse gur bliadh'n' gach lò ;

'S beir an t-soraidh so null,
Air fad oir thàr an fhuinn,
Far am faighe na suinn a 'g òl.

Gu Innis an fhéidh,
Gu eirir an eisg,
Far nach diolar leam féich air lòn ;

Gu eilein nan tonn,
Nam ban àlluinn 's nan sonn
Bu mhileanta fonn mu bhòrd.

Gu comunn mo rùin,
Nach cromadh an t-shuil,
'N àm tromachadh dhuinn air pbit;

'S sinn gun àrdan gun strì,
Gun àireamh air nì
'Cuir sàradh am fion 's ga òl.

Note.—The author of this piece was Mr Murdoch M'Kenzie of Aicheldy, in Ross-shire, a gentleman of high respectability. In the early part of his life he resided in the island of Lewis, occasionally going to sea, in a vessel of his own. Afterwards he became a cattle-dealer on an extensive scale, purchasing among the tenantry of that island, and exposing them for sale in the English market. He happened to be in England with a drove of cattle, and not getting immediate sale, he was compelled to remain a considerable time. Being thus wholly unoccupied, he hired a gig in which he took short excursions through the adjacent country, and it was when thus employed that he composed his "Làir Dhonn." The air is by himself. He composed several other pieces of merit.

* The Beatons were a race of hereditary physicians who lived in Mull from the time of the Druids. Allusion, however, is here made to a time when one of the Scottish monarchs being dangerously ill, and hearing of Beaton's fame, sent for him as the forlorn hope,—the court doctors having pronounced their Royal patient incurable. The physicians in attendance, jealous of our rural Æsculapius, or, at least, anxious to put his skill to the test, brought him, with great pomp and formality, cow-urine instead of that of his Majesty, averring that its colour indicated the desperation of the ailment. Beaton at once detected the fraud, saying, "if it be his Majesty's urine, it smells strongly of the byre; and if you, gentlemen, open him up, you will find he is with calf!" but upon seeing the proper fluid, he undertook the case, and was successful in effecting a speedy restoration of his Majesty's health.

Many anecdotes have orally come down to us as illustrative of the Beatons' skill. One of these we may give in corroboration.—Sailing along the coast of Mull on a calm summer evening, the song of a milk-maid floated softly on the breeze and arrested the attention of the boatmen. "Is not that a charming voice?" remarked one of the party to Dr Beaton.—"S breagh' an guth air uachdar togainne e!" was the mysterious and significant reply.—i.e. A very fine voice for one who has swallowed a frog! It subsequently turned out that the young woman whose melody had charmed our navigators, had actually swallowed the amphibious animal; and, although it did not then annoy her, it soon assumed an alarming aspect, and had almost terminated in her death. We give one other anecdote:—

Beaton was once sent for by a gentleman at Aros, who had been long indisposed, and was attended by two emi-

Ri fear sgith 's e'n deigh astair,
Bhiodh air mhi-gleus gun leabaidh na chòir.

*S ann air cùl choir chreachainn,
So dhiult thu dhomh lasadh,
Air ùldaiche cabrach nan cròc.

Tha corr a's ochd bliadhna deug,
Bho'n chaidh sium 'n carabh a cheile,
'S cha d' rinn thu riamh eacoir bu mhòd.

Bha'n spor bhearnach, gheur, thana,
Am beil-snaip air deagh theannadh,
Ge do dhiùlt thu dhomh aingeal ri òrd.

Na 'n tugadh tu aingeal,
Chuirinn cunnart air anam,
Ge d' chaillinn ris gearran 'sa' mhòd.

nent physicians. The worthy brace of health-restorers retired as Beaton entered the chamber of sickness, and after a few preliminary questions, he examined the patient's body, exudations, &c. He soon ascertained that the chieftain's complaint arose from a boil on the stomach, and forthwith brought him how to effect a cure. His knowledge of the human system, and the laws that regulate it, enabled him to foresee that some violent exertion of the lungs would probably have the desired effect; in short, he put his brains to work to try how he could make the sick man laugh. Beaton, in the presence of his patient, discharged his excrements on a shovel, and then branded it with culinary skill and care until it was sufficiently dry to be reduced to powder. This ludicrous preparation was then made up in a paper parcel, and left half open on a table beside the astonished patient. Without giving any prescription of a dietary or medicinal nature, he took his leave, promising, however, that he would revisit the chieftain on the following day. He was no sooner gone than the other doctors returned to the object of their solicitude, anxious to ascertain the result of his interview with Beaton. The patient told them that he had received no advice from their rustic brother, but that he had left a powder there on the table, not deigning, however, to give any instructions as to how or when it was to be used. The medical gentlemen were roused to the highest pitch of curiosity to analyze the powder. What could it be?—It was brown and quite dry. Yielding to the curiosity of the moment, they smelt the simple—it was perfectly innocuous; each took his forefinger and thumb, and seizing a goodly quantity of it, they tasted and swallowed the pulverized excrements of their friend! The patient knew the history of the preparation—he saw, shook, and burst into an immoderate fit of laughter. It was enough; the boil burst, and the chieftain vomited a quantity of corrupt matter. A few days after, and the gentleman was foremost in the chase; and Beaton universally lauded as a man of shrewdness, skill, and penetration.

Leig mi ruith chrios mo bhreacain,
Gus do ràisg air mo chasan,
Mu'n cluinneadh tu tarraich mo bhròg.

Bha mi 'g ealadh mar dh-fhodainn,
Dol an aghaidh na gaoithe,
Mu'n gabbadh tu sraonadh ad shròin.

'Sàr chuirtear na maise,
(Chuir e lùb air gu m' fhacinn,)
Ga m bu dùthchas bhi 'n creachainn an fheoir.

'Nuair thog thu do cheann rium,
Cha robh ' thrùp aig na Frangaich,
Na chuireadh a deann ud gad chòir.

Gus an cluinn na gu 'm fac mi,
Tuill àr ann do dheacaid,
Bi mi t-iarraidh car seachduin na dhò.

Bi mi gabhail do sgeula,
Ciod e n' t-iùil nan taobh theid thu,
Mhic an fhir ga'm bi 'n fhéile ro mhòr.

Mhic an fhir a ni 'm bùirean,
'S ga'm bi n anail as cùiridh,
'S tric a chuir mi do lùireach 's an stòp.

'S a chuid eile de'n chùineadh,
Dhol a cheannach an fhùdar,
Spàirt dheth ga shùdhadh am shròin.

Bu tu mìslean nan naislean,
'N robh misneach le cruadal,
Air an dh-fhas na h-airm uallach gun spòrs.

Note.—FORSAIR CHOIR'-AN-T-SHÍ, the author of this song, lived near Kilmun, a hundred and fifty years ago. His real name was John White: he composed several songs, some of which are in our possession, but our limits will not permit us to insert them here.

IORMRAM NA TRUAIGHE

DO THIGHEARNA CHILL-DUINN.

LE SACHAIRI MAC ALLAIDH.

Gun i ioram na truaighe,
Tha mise 's an uair so a seinn :
Gur e mheadaich droch shnuagh orm,
'S a laghdaich a ghruaig bharr mo chinn,
A liuthad sgaradh a fhuair mi,
'O 'n là b' aithne dhomh glusasad leam fhìn
Ach so 'n t-aon bheum 's cruaidh,
Chuir an saoghal air uachdar ri m' linn.

Gur bochd m' ur-sgeul ri leughadh,
Ge be dheanadh rium éisteachd an dràsd,
Tha mo chridhe ga reubadh,
O 'n là chuala' mi sgeula do bhàis,

Gu'm beil m' inntinn ro bhruite,
'S tric snithe mo shuilean gu làr,
Bho 'n la dh-fhalaich an ùir thu,
Fhir bu fhlathaile gnùis am measg chàich.

Measg chàich bu tu 'chuideachd,
Air mo laimh cha bu sgrubaire bùird,
Ann an tuigse 's an reusan,
Cha do dh-fhìdrich mi fèin ort ach cliù,
Ann an ath-truas ri d' dhaoine,
'Nuair chidhe' tu baoghal ri 'n cùl,
Gur tu b' urainn da 'n tearnadh,
Fhir bu tairise blà-sealladh sùl.

Suil bu ghuirme na 'n dearcag,
Fo aghaidh ghlan, ghasta, chùil réidh,
Gruaidh dhearg mar na caorann,
Slios bu gile na faoilinn nan speur ;
Meoir bu grinne gu sgrìobhadh,
Litir bhàn bu glan sgrìob 'o d' pheann geur ;
Nochd gur tûrsach tha m' inntinn,
Air thùs domh bhi g' innseadh do bheus.

Beus a b' ainneamh ri fhaotainn,
Measg clanna nan daoin' anns an fhonn,
Le d' chiall chunabhalach, socrach,
Cha bu leir dhomh aon lochd a bha 'd chòm ;
'S e tholl mo chridhe gu beachdaidh,
Gun thu thighinn air t-ais oirn le fonn,
Ceannard m' òil agus m' aigheir,
Fo na bordaibh na laidhe gu trom.

Bhuainn gu 'n tug iad a nis thu,
Gu là-luain mo shuil silteach ga d' chaoihs,
Gur e fuaigneach do chiste,
Càs bu cruaidhe 'n robh mise na 'm bì,
Ge bu chruaiddh b' fheudar fhulang,
Ochoin ! tha mo bhunadh da m' dhìth,
Mo cheol, m' òl, agus m' aighear,
Fo na bordaibh na laidhe 's an I.*

Air an I ann san t-seapall,
Tha 'n tì bu mhòr ceist air an dàimh,
'S tu nach tréigeadh am feasd iad,
Fhad sa dh-fhaodadh tu 'n teasraiginn slàn,
'S bochd leam gaoir do dhaoin' uaisle,
'S iad mur chaorich gun bhucachaill air blàr,
A Righ ghaolaich ! gabh truas diù,
Nois 'o thug an t-Aog 'uath thu gun dàil.

Dàil cha 'n iarainn a nis,
Ach bhi triall chum do lice mo mhiann,
Dol a dh-iunnnsaigh na cathrach,
'Chuir càram an eallaich so dhiom,
'S beag mo spéis dliot a shaoghail,
Na 'n creideadh na daoine gur fior ;—
Tha sior ghiùlain a pheacaidh,
Choisinn sgiùrsadh le masladh do Chriosd'.

* A burial place in the island of Lewis, near Stornoway

Ach a Chriosd tha sa' chathair,
 Air deas lainih an athar gu buan,
 An diugh's leir dhut mo dhòran,
 'S mi'n deigh cloidhean an doruis thort uam,
 Fhir thug maois as an Eipheid,
 'S a sgoilt na clàr réidh dha mhùir ruadh,
 Fhir a chum mi 'sa dhéilbh mi,
 So an Iorram a shéirm mi gu truagh!

Note.—Sachairi, or Zachary Macaulay, the author of this elegy, was born in the island of Lewis, in the beginning of the eighteenth century. He was the son of an Episcopalian clergyman and liberally educated. The subject of this piece was M'Kenzie, the last laird of Kildun, whose widow lady kindly entertained Prince Charles when in Lewis* (not “Tighearn Asaint,” as erroneously stated in the Inverness and other Collections. The last of the lairds of Asaint had been dead some time before our poet was born). This Tighearna Chill-Duinn was a gentleman of literary and poetical taste; he was a relative and great companion of our author. It is said that Macaulay grew melancholy after his death, though in his youth he was somewhat loose, and wrote some wanton pieces, clever enough in their way. The most celebrated of these was the “Gliogram-chas,” the air of which was a favourite with Burns, as appears from one of his letters to Thomson.

When they left the place they took some of the cow with them, two pecks of meal, and plenty of brandy and sugar, and at parting lady Kildun gave Edward Burk a lump of butter.”—Ascanius, p. 134, Stirling, 1802.

Ge b' leam òghdarachd Ailein,*

 Bu ro bheag leam mo chomas,

 'S mor gur fearr a bhi báit air an t-snàmh,
 Bho 'n a's ónair 'n nach mulad,

Dh-fhàs air ragha nan òg-bhan,
 Cùl sgìamhach, falt còrnach nan cuach,
 Ciamhach, cam-lubach, caslach,
 Sgiamhach, amalagach, dreach-bhui', gach dual,
 Barr gasta chùil or-bhui,
 Mar dhreach theudan a's ceol-imhòire fuaim,
 B' éibhinn fhacinn ga réiteach,
 'S fiamh laiste na gréin' mu do chluas.

Fuaim òrgain na fidhle,
 Ceol toraghain nam piob a's nan teud,
 Cha do sheinneadh an si-bhruth,
 Ceol a's binne no piopan do chléibh,
 Gaoth mar lusan na frithie,
 Tigh'nn bho uinneagan mine do bhéil,

 Aig an rìbhinn a's cnaimh-ghile deud.

'S ceart cho geal tha do bhràgad,
 Ri canach no trà-shneach air géig,
 'S corrach mìn na tullichean
 Dh-fhàs na mulain air mullach do chléibh,
 Básan fionalta, bàna,
 Meoir ghrinn-chaol ga'm àbhaist cuir ghréis,
 Air seudan le òr-shnath,
 Dealbh iomhaigh gach éoin a's gach géig.

'Nam biodh na h-urad aig càch ort,
 'S a bh' agamsa ghràdh air do neàil,
 Cha bu ráfart no mearachd,
 Leo mi labhairt mo bhaireil a's mo ghlòir,
 Ach na'n creideadh iad firinn,
 Cha tréiginn air mhiltean thu 'n òr,
 No air aigread nau Innsean,
 Do bheadradh, do dhìsleachd, 's do phòd.

Bi'dh mi nis a' co-dhùnadh,
 Agus cuiream ri túrsa gu bràch,
 Cha 'n eil sì-shàimh nam aigneadh,
 O'n nach meal mi do chaidridh 's do ghràdh :
 Bho'n a thug thu làn fhìnath dhomh,
 Gus an téid mi 'san naigh leis bhàs,
 Bi'dh ma chridhe mar chuaaintean,
 Air bi mulad a's bruaillean a snàmh !

Note.—This song is a lament for the loss of the poet's sweetheart, a coy maiden to whom he was attached, but who preferred and married another. It is questionable, however, whether he was altogether so grieved about the circumstance as he would have us to suppose.

COMHRADH, MAR GU'M B'ANN

EADAR DITHIS NIGHEAN MHIC-DHOMHNILL DUIBH,
LE IAIN MAC-ILLEAN.

AIR FONN—"Tha'n dìdhche nochd ro aonarach."

THUIRT Maireadar nigh'n' Dòmhnuill,
'S i tòiseachadh gu ciùin,
A phiuthar, ciod an t-òrdugh?
A nis m'an deònach thu;
Mas ionnan dhut's dhòmhsa,
Bi' t-bìgh, a's gheibh thu clùi;
'S na iarr dhut féin do shòlas,
Ach pòsadh ris an ùir!

Sin 'nuair labhair Marsaili,
'S bu taitneach leam a glòir;
A phuithar 's beag mo chiataidh,
Do bhriathran sin do bheoil;
Gu'm b' fhearr leam a bhi macnus,
Ri mhac sin Eachuinn big,
Na bhi cràbhadh mar' ri sagart,
Agus paidearan na'm' dhòrn.

Ochan! 's bochd an fhaoisid sin,
A phiuthar, ghaolach, òg,
T'aonta thoirt do'n t-shaoghal,
'S nach bi thu daonnan beò;
Gur h-e gniomh a b' fhoghaintich,
Do leabhar a bhi d' dhòrn,
Na bhi falbh an gleannan fásach,
Gun sàilm, ach bàrich bhò.

Air eagal t-fheirg' na t-ardain,
Bi'dh m' aicheadh dhut gu mall,
Gur truagh na smaointean dh-flàs annad,
'S gun t-àrach a measg Ghall;
Gabh féin sgéoil an easpug,
Fhuair ar creidimhne na cheann,
'Fhiachain nach sean òrdugh,
Am pòsadh a bhi ann

Tha lomadh ni ga chleachdadh,
Le lagh eaglais anns gach àit,
Ach faigh-sa dhomh-sa 'm Bioball:
'S e freamh gach firinn e;
'S fearr pòsadh, ge be thoghradh e,
No losgadh, cùis a chràigh!
Ach ge be nach dean aon chuid diù,
Gur ciunteach gur h-e 's fearr

B' fhearr leam a bhi caiteanach,
Le taitneas, a's le stòr;
'S a bhi gu beartach, mearracasach
Le airgead a's le dr.

Bhi gu rimheach, fasanta,
Le pasmann a's le sròl;
Na bhi seargadh an taigh-cràbhaidh,
Gun fiù a ghàir', ach bròu.

A bharail a th' aig càch ort,
'S e aoibhar nàir as mò,
Gur h-e rud 'chum bho chràbhadh thu,
Ro miad do ghràidh air poig,
Na biodh tu air t-ùrnaigh mosglait,
'S tu trodan ris an fheoil,
Gur deibhinn leam gu'n coisneadh tu,
An rìoghachd 's mugha glòir.

An rud ud their na càirdean,
Ciod e 'm fàth dhuiinn bhi de 'n rùn,
Gu feairrde bean air bheusaichid,
A còile féin ri glùn;
An te nach ith am follais rud,
An connaltradh no'n cùirt,
Cha chreid na daoine glice,
Nach ith i cui'd an cùil.

Gur bochd na smaointean aignidh,
Aig mnaoi agaladh do bhéil;
Ge h-ioma neach tha'n càrdeas,
Cha'n ionnan nàdùr 's heus;
Bi'dh barail aig a phòitear,
Bhios ng bl gach uair ga m' feud,
Gum bl gach neach an gràdh,
Air an dibh laidir mar e-féin.

B' fhearr leam a bhi daonachdach,
Ri feumanaich do ghà;

No bhi gu faoilteach, furanach,
Ro' gach duin ad dhàimh;

Bho'n 's e 'm beus bu tric a bh'aig,
Gach mnaoi bu ghlie do mhà,

Na bhi air mo għluu ag eadargħuidd,
Ri Peadar no ri Pàl.

An t-àite taisge diamhair,
'S am beil t-ulaidh agus t-òr,
Gun ann ach seòrsa phigidhean,
'S bristear iad gu fòil,
Far am beil mo thasgaidh-sa,
Tha glasan air do-leoint';
Gum beil mo Stiùbhart saibhir,
'S bheir a làidheal domh mo lùn

Bha gach bean bho'n tainig mi,
Gle stàthail anns gach euichd,
'S bu luchd a thabhairt dàlach iad,
Do neach air bith am feum,
Bu mhiosail ann an nàisinn iad,
'S näire 'm miadh do għléidh;
'S cha'n iarainn féin do dn-àilleas,
Ach a bhi mar bhà iad féin.

Gur deacair dhomhsa ràttinn,
 'Nach nàdurach do bheus ;
 Mar a bha na càirdean,
 Gur stàthail bhi da'n réir ;
 Glaois thusa mar b'abbhaist,
 Feuch an taitin e riut fèin,
 'S cha toill mise mòran diùmaidh,
 Chionn dol ri àin' ad dheigh.

Note.—John Maclean, the author of this song and another excellent one at page 388, composed on Sir Hector Maclean's leaving his country and going to France in 1721, was a celebrated bard in the island of Mull. He died about the year 1760. When Dr Johnson and Boswell visited that island in 1773, they heard these songs sung by a lady. Boswell observes that "all the company who understood the Gaelic were charmed with the verses."—Boswell's Journal, p. 392.

DO NIGHEAN FIR NA COMRAICH.
 LE UILLEAM MAC-CHOINNICH.

'S CIANAIL m' aigne bho na mhadainn,
 Ghabh mi cead de 'n ribhinn ;
 Tì cho taitneach riut cha'n fhaic mi
 Ann an dreach no fiambachd.
 Bu thrian de m' lòu do bhriathran beoil,
 A teachd mar cheol a sì-bhruth ;
 'S i 'n t-sheirc a ta na d' bhràgad bànn,
 A thaig mo ghradh gu diomhair.
 Ciochan corrach, lionta, soluis,
 Air do bbroilleach réidh-ghlan ;
 Do sheang-shlios fallain mar an eala,
 No mar chanach sléibhe.
 Bas ionmuinn, caoin nan geala, mheur caol,
 A' dealbh nan craobh air pearlann ;
 'S tu fialaidh, glic—'s do chiall gun tig,
 Air diomhaireachd nan reulttan.

Do bhraighe glè-gheal mar ghath gréine,
 Taghaidh réidh ghlan mhdhar ;

 Gur tu reull nan òighean.
 Gur bachlach, dualach, cas-bhui', cuachach,
 T'fhalta ma'n cuairt an ordugh ;
 Ann tha gach ciabh mar fhain air sniamh,
 'S gach aon air fiambh an ìar dhiubh.

 Tha mais' ad gnùis, gun easbhuidh mùirn
 Beul meachair, ciùin, ni màran,
 Do bhriodal caomh, 's do loinn maraon.
 A rinn mo ghaol-sa thàradh.

Corp seimhaidh bànn, cho-lionas gradh
 Gach tì a tharadh iùil ort ;
 'S ann tha do shnuagh, toirt barr air sluagh,
 'S tu 'n ainnir shuaire, chliutach,
 Do dheas chalpannan ro dhealbhach,
 Gu'n bhi meanbh, nu dùmhail ;
 Troigh chruinn, chomhnard, dh-fhalbas modhar,
 Nach dean feoirn' a lùbadh.

Cho glan is tu 's neo shioileir dhuinn,
 'S mar ghealach thu 'n tùs eiridh ;
 Beul tana, maunt' a's anal chubhraidh,
 'S siunnaith thu do Bhenus.
 'S e chruinn do tlachd deud ùr mar chaile,
 Air dlùthadh ceart ri chéile ;
 O'n tig an t-òran eatrom, ceol-mhor,
 Mar an smèòrach chéitean.

Bho Fhlath nan dùl, tùs rath' fhuair thu,
 Bhi modhail, ciain gun ardhan ;
 Tha iochd, a's cliù, a's loin, a's mùirn,
 Air glaoadhach dlù' ri d' nadur.
 'S tu air do bhuan a freamh nam buagh,
 De 'n traen-fhuil uasail, statoil ;
 Thu fialaidh, pait, an guiomh, 's an tlachd
 'S do chiall co-streup ri t-àillteachd.

* * * * *

Mi cian o d' chaidridh, 's buan dhomh fhaidid,
 Dh-fhag sud m' aigne pianail ;
 Osnach do ghìnà, gun fhois, gun támh,
 A fhrois gach blàth dheth m' fhion-fhuil.
 'S e bhosnaich deoir 's a chlaoividh mo threoir
 An ribhinn òg so thriall bh'uainn ;
 'S tu 's trom a dh-fhág mi, òigh mo ghràidh,
 Le d' bhròn ata mi cianail.

Note.—William Mackenzie the author of this beautiful song, was the son of a respectable tacksman at Lochcarron, Ross-shire. He lived about the middle of the last century, and was one of three brothers who were all poets. This song was composed on a beautiful young lady, Miss Mackenzie of Applecross. After she departed from his father's house on her way home, William and his brother Alexander accompanied her part of the way, and the song was made on their return. When he repeated it to his brother, Alexander said he could make a better song himself, and would allow his father to judge which of the two were best. He then composed An t-Ailleagan *. Alexander died soon afterwards, and then William composed that admirable elegy on his death, which is unequalled in tenderness and pathos by most celebrated of the Keltic bards.

* SONAIDH slan dò'n ailleagan,
 Bha 'n so ma'n tra so 'n raoir,
 Gur barrachd' ann an ailleachd thu,
 'S gar lan-mhaiseach do loinn,
 Thug thu barr air mnai na h-Albann,
 Ann an dreach 's an dealbh 's an egoinn,
 Dh-fhag nadur ann an glocas dhut,
 Gach buaidh dhùi sud os-roinn.

Ge dana dhomh ri raite sin,
 Thug nadur dhùi na 's feor,
 Cho mor 's gou d' riinneadh bannrighe dhliot,

 Chaidh mo shlainte gu mearan,
 Cba 'n eil feum bhi' ga ghearan ri léigh.

Cha'n eil cròn ri aireamh ort,
 A dh-fhaoadh fas air feoil,
 Am measg ban og a's maighdeannan,
 Ma dhaimean a measg oir!

A measg nam ban gur sgathan thu,
 Ta'irt barr Orr anns gach geall,
 'S bachlaich, buidhe, suamhanach,
 Gach ciamb tha air do cheann;
 Tha do ghruaidh cho dreachmhòire,
 Ri ubhan duit air crann,
 Suileagornan mar dearcagan,
 Ma'n iath na'n raigis tha mall.

'N taobh staigh do d'bhilean daite,
 Tha deud geal, chaille, grinn,
 O'n ceolmhòire thig orain,
 Na na smeoarachean a seinn,
 Mar eile cronn am falach ort,
 'S e bharail am bell sinn,
 Gun thilg thu-fein a's Bhenus
 Ann an deubh, 's an enguis, croinn.

Trian do mhais c'ha'n innssean leam,
 A dh-ainean ni dat' can—
 Braghad mar chnuas-lionganach,
 Fo'n agaibh minn gun smal;
 Gur corrach geal na clochan,
 Th'air do bhroilteach lionta, glan,
 Glac ghealla-mheur, faineach, finealta,
 Tha teom air gniomh nam ban.

Cho fad sa mhaires Albannaich,
 Bi'dh ionraidh ort air bhul,
 Siors mar eal' air chuanitean,
 Aig an oigh a's uisde full,
 Do phos air hilas nam fogaisean,
 'S do bheul o'm binndh thig guth,
 Nam eindeach, fuam na fùsheileireachd,
 Gur fionnala do chuir.

'S e bhi' stràcadh air tuillinn,
 Chuir mo shlaint' ann an cunnart bochd, fann,
 Am breislich bàis bhi ga t'amharc,
 Ghres tre m'airnean an t-saighead gu cham
 Brist an t-srian bha ri m' aigneadh,
 Dh-fhalbh mo chiall chaidh fà m' eagail air chail,
 Chaidh mo ghearradh gu neo-ni,
 Beairt a réubaidh mo shonais a bh'ann.

Dhia ullaich-sa féin mi,
 'S m'i'n deidhig mo cheill a bhuiin diom,
 O'n là bhuinnig an t-Eug dhiom,
 An tì 's mo robh m'éibhneas fo Chrìosd,
 Tha mo bhun ann san Treu-n-fhear,
 A dh-fhuilic a cheusadh da'r dion,
 Gu'm beil t'anam am Phàrrais,
 'S b' é bhi' mar riut a' maireach mo mhiann.

Tha gach duine dheth d' chàirdean,
 Mar ri' d' mhuime 's ri d' bhrithrean fo bhròn,
 'S an aon a phiuthar a dh-fhag thu,
 Ri sior chumha 's ri fàsgadh nan dùrn,
 Gu'n beil fios aig an àrd-Righ,
 Ged nach fiosraiche chàch mar tha leòn,
 Gach aon neach tha mi' ràitinn,
 Gu'm beil an cridheachan cràiteach ni's leòir.

'S beag a t-ioghnadh mar thà iad,
 Mar mbuir reobhairt air tràghadh le déir,
 Cha b' è garlaoch na feachda,
 Bha sibh 'g aireamh bhi' agaibh mar threòir,
 Ach fòghlum, crualdal, a's cleachdadh,
 An thir-thrèin bu mhor tapadh 's an tòir,
 Da m' bu leannan an uaisle,
 Ann ad leanabh, 's gun d'fhuair thu i ôg.

B' e sud fiùran na glaine,
 Bha gu fiughantach, fearail, a' fàs,
 Muirneach, iùlosal, suairce,
 Sùgach, binn-fhaclach, buaghach, 's gach càs,
 Fear do choimeis cha chualas,
 Thaobh gach subhaile bha fuaite ri d' ghnàs,
 Dh-fhag thu uile fo għruaimean,
 Gach tì chunnaig, no chuala do bhàs.

Bha do threibhantas ullamh,
 Ann 's gach feum ann's an cuireadh tu làmh,
 Chor 's nach cùbaire' b'urrann,
 Cùis a bhuinnig de 'n churaidh gun sgàth,
 Ge do theireadh luchd-mascuill,
 Gur h-i bħreug cwid is ceart tha mi ràdh,
 Dhearrbh thu féin a bhi tapaidh,
 Ge do dh-éireadh dhomh fantaim a'm thàmh.

Fhuair thu tuigse an deagh nàduir,
 Agus gliocas bho àrd-Righ nan dùl,
 Ann an céill bha thu labhar,
 'S ann an ceudfaidhean flathail bha thu,

Ann's gach ceaird bha thu cosant,
Gu neo-ardanach, foistinneach, ciùin,
Ort ri àireamh bu deacair,
Crou an' càileachd, am pearsa, no'n cliù.

Shuidhich t'inntinn air cheartas,
Air chiunte, fir reachdair so dh-eug,
Leis gach neach bha thu taitneach,
Jochdar, caomh-chàirdeach, ceart anns gach
Gu fial, furanach, nàrrach ; [céum
Rianh mar churaidh neo-sgàthach guu bhéud,
Leoghunn fiorachail, tapaidh,
Teò-chridhach, iriseal, macant' am beus.

Thriall gach socair bha agam,
Chaidh mo chòmhnaidh's mo chadal an laoid,
Tha liunn-dubh agus airsneal,
Da'm' tharuin gu leabaidh am shlaod,
Ga m'shior ruagadh am shlan,
Dh-aïndèùin cruadail na tapadh ga m' faod,
Tha ma ghualainn gun tàice
On là bhuailleadh ort slakan an Aoig.

Chaidh mo shùgradh fo lithe,
Gur ciùirt' tha mo chridhe am chòm,
Osnaich thùrsach da m's theirbheit,
Blas mo chùpáin gur seirbh e na'n dòmb,
Fhir a chruthaich mi'n ceud uair,
'S a tha stiùireadh nan réull os ar ceann,
Orm furtach, 's cluinn féin mi,
S tog an luchd so th'air m'inntinn gu trom.

MAIRI DHONN

THORRA-CHAISTEIL.*

LE COINNEACH MAC-CHONNICH.

LUINNEAG.

Mhàiri dhonn, bhòidheach, dhonn,
Mhàiri dhonn's mor mo thlachd dhiot ;
Thoguainn fonn gun bhi trom,
Air nigh'n' duinn Thorra-Chaisteil.

Gum ma slàn do'n mhaighdinn big,
Tha gu stòlda na cleachdad ;
Tha gu fiosrach, tairis, tlà,
Tha gu màranach, macant'
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

'S gile na'n sneachda do bhian,
'S fallain, sgiamhach, do phearsa ;
Gun thu cuidreamach, no caol,
Beathail, aotrom, gun ghaiseadh.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

* There are several places of the above name in the Highlands, the one referred to in this song is near Creag-Ghobhar in Lochbroom.

'S ann ort féin a dh-fhàs a ghruag,
Tha na dualibh gu cleachdach ;
Clannach, dilù gheibh i cliù,
Miann gach sùl bhi 'ga faicinn.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

Aghaidh fhìlathasach gun sgrain,
'S e do shealltuiní tha taitneach ;
Sul chorragh fo mhala chaoi,
Gorm air aogais na dearcaig.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

'S glan an rutha tha na d' ghruidh,
Bòidheach, snuadh-mhòr, gun ghaiceadh ;
Tha thu eireachdail gu leoir ;
Co tha beò nach gabh tlachd dhiot ?
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

'S beinn leam ceilleirean do bheoil,
Gabhair òrain gu taitneach ;
Do ghùth mar smèòraich sa' choill' ;
'S tric thu seinn aig a Chaisteal.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

Bha mi greis an deas 's an tuath,
A' measg ghruagaichean tlachd-mhòr ;
Ach té idir a thug barr,
Ort a Mhàiri cha'n fhacas.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

Gu'm' fhac mis' thu aig fear òg,
Dha'm bi stòras, a's pailteas,
Spréidh a's fearann agus foun,
'S chridhe conn-mhor gu'n airceas.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

Bi'dh do thaigh agad le mùirn
Air mo cheanns' anns an phasan,
Mu thig mi idir na chòir,
Cha'n ann beò théid mi-seachad.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

Tha do chairdean lionmhor, treun,
Dheanadh feum anns na baiteil ;
Frisealaich bho'n airde tuath,
'S math gu bualadh nan glas-lann.
Mhàiri dhonn, &c.

MAIRI GHREANNAR.

LEIS A BHARD CHIANDA.

LUINNEAG.

O shaorainn, shaorainn, shaorainn i,
Air m' fhacal fhein gu'm faodainn sin ;
'S ged bhiodh euid nach saoileadh e,
Gu'n saorainn Mairi Ghreannar.

SHAORAINN fein gun teagamh i,
Ged bha mi tric a' beadradh r'i,
Nach d' iarr mi ni mi-dbleasannach,
'S nach freagradh dhomh bhi caint air.
O shaorainn, &c.

Shaorainn fein gu deonach i,
 'S cha b' eagal leam ged' bhòidichinn,
 Nach d' fhuair mi bheag de dh'-fhotus innit,
 O 'n ghabh mi eòlas cainnt oirr.
O shaorainn, &c.

Ma tha cron ri leughadh ort
 An gniomh, no 'n gnè, cha léir dhomh e,
 'S a dh-aideoin beachd an t-saoghal so,
 Is tusa daonnan m' aumsachd,
O shaorainn, &c.

Tha suaireas, tlachd, a's sìmhaltachd,
 A stri co dhù a's dìlse dhut ;
 Tha maise, cliù, a's finealtachd,
 Ag imeachd air gach laimh dhiot.
O shaorainn, &c.

Gur modhail, socrach, briathrach thu ;
 Gur acidheil, caoimhneil, ciallach thu ;
 S nam biodh gach càis mar dh-iarrainn iad,
 Bu tu mo chiad bhean-bainnse.
O shaorainn, &c.

T'fhalt boidheach, cam-bhuidh, dualagach,
 'S a bharr a' fàs gu d' cruachanan—
 Do phòg mar mhil nan cuachagan,
 'S do shnuadh air dhreach an t-sàmhraidi.
O shaorainn, &c.

Gur soitheamh, banail, beusach thu ;
 Gur geanail, sunntach, eutrom thu ;
 Gur connar, founar, spéiseil thu ;
 Gu h-aidheil, ceillidh, greannar.
O shaorainn, &c.

Cha mhol mi thu, cha'n urra mi,
 Cha'n eil mo bhriathran ullamh dhomh,
 Do bheusan thug mi 'n t-urrum dhaibh,
 'S iad chuir mi uile 'n geall ort.
O shaorainn, &c.

Ach dh-innsiunn fhlu'gn soilleir dhuibh,
 Co i, 's eo bhuaithe a shloinneadh i,
 Mur be gun d' fhuair sibh coire dhomh,
 Air son na ritu mi chainnt oirr.
O shaorainn, shaorainn, shaorainn i,
Air m' fhacal fhéin gu'm faodainn sin ;
'S ged bhiodh cuid nach saoileadh e,
Gu'n saorainn Mairi Ghreannar.

Note.—The author of this and the preceding song is Mr Kenneth M'Kenzie, late tacksman of Monkcastle and Strath-na-Seal, in Lochbroom, Ross-shire. He was a descendant of one of the three brothers already mentioned who were all poets. These two songs were composed on the same girl, who was his own servant. He wrote several other humorous pieces; they are in our possession, but are rather too local for insertion here. Mr M'Kenzie died in 1827.

THA TIGH'N' FODHAM EIRIDH.

LUINNEAG

Tha tigh'n' fodham, fodham, fodham,
Tha tigh'n' fodham, fodham, fodham,
Tha tigh'n' fodham, fodham, fodham
Tha tigh'n' fodham éiridh.

Sid an t-slainte chùramach ;
 Olamaid gu sunntach i ;
 Deoch slaint' an Ailein Mhuideartaich—
 Mo dhùracdh dhut gun éirich.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

Ged a bhiodh tu fada bh'uam,
 Dh-eireadh sunnt a's aigndeah orm ;
 'Nu 'r chluinninn sceul a b' aite leam,
 Air gaisgeach nan gniomh euchdach.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

'S iomadh maighdean bharrasach,
 G'a math d' an tig an earrasaid,
 Eadar Baile-Mhanaich, agus
 Caolas Bharraidh 'n déigh ort.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

Tha pairt an Eilean Bheagram dhiubh,
 'S cuid 's an Fhràing 's 'san Eadailt dhùi,
 'S cha'n eil latha teagaig nach
 Bi 'n Cille-Pheadair treud dhùi.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

'Nuair chruinnicheadh am pannal ad,
 Breid caol an caradh crannaig orra,
 Bidh falus air am malaichean
 A' damhs air urlar déile.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

Nuair chiaradh air an fheasgar,
 Gum bu bheadarach do fhleasgaichean,
 Bhiodh plòban mòr 'gan spreigeadh ann,
 A's feadan 'gan gleusadh.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

Sgiobair ri là gaillinn thu
 A sheoladh cuan nam maranan,
 A bheireadh long gu calachan
 Le spionadh glac do threun-fhear.
Tha tig'n' fodham, &c.

Sgeul beag eile a dhearbhadh leat,
 Gur sealgair sithne 'n garbhlach thu,
 Le d' chuilbheir caol, nach dearmadach,
 Air dearg-ghreigh nan ceann eatrom.
Thug mi 'n fodham, &c.

B' e sid an leoghann aigeannach,—
 'Nuair nochadh tu do bhaidealan
 Lamh dhearg, a's long, a's bradanach,
 'Nuair 'lasadh meannna t'eudaimn.
Thug mi 'n fodham, &c.

Note.—This popular and cheerful song was composed on the rising of Allan, the famous Captain of Clanronald, in 1715. He was slain at Sherrifmuir, and the bards vied with one another in lamenting his death. Boswell, the biographer of Johnson, boasted that he could sing one verse of this dirty. He relates that “when Clanronald's servant was found watching the body of his master the day after the battle, one asked who that was? the servant replied, ‘he was a man yesterday.’”—Boswell's Journal, p. 358.

ORAN ALLABAIN SUIRIDH.

LUINNEAG.

Thug mi 'n didhche raoir sa 'n àiridh,
Thug mi 'n didhche raoir 'sa 'n àiridh,
Chaith mi 'n didhche cridheil, caoinhneil,
Mar ri maighdeannan na h-àiridh.

MILE marbhaisg air an t-sùiridh,
 'S bochd le neach da 'n téid i ionrall,
 Fagaidh si inntinn fo iomaguinn,
 Glusad cho simplidh ri mearlach.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Oidhche dhomh 's mi 'm bun na tire,
 'S mi goirid o bheagan nlonag,
 'Smaointich mi glusad os 'n iosal,
 Nochdadhb mo bhriodail le gràdh dhaibh.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

'Nuair rainig mi taigh-an-Dùnain,
 Bhà chomhl' ac' air a deagh dhùnad,
 'Sa dh-aindeoin m' olais a's mo thùir,
 Gun thòisich na goid chuil ri rànaich.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Labhair mo chompanach runach,
 Dean stad 's feuchaidh sinn cleas ùr dh' i,
 Faigh thusa boiseag dheth 'n bhùrn,
 'S fanaidh na lùdagan sàmhach.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Fhuair sinn staigh gun dad uamhainn,
 'S bha sinn farasda n' ar gluasad,
 Rainig sinn leabaidh nan gruagach,
 'S chuir mi-fhin gu suaire mo làmh orr'.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Thuirt i ri um, na tig' ni 's faide,
 'S leanabh te eile nam achlais,
 Cha 'n eil rùm agad fo 'n phlaide,
 'S bi pileadh dhachaigh mar thainig.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Thnirt mise, na bi cho doichleach,
 Fuirich gu si-mhaita, socrach,
 Dad a mhì-mhodh dhut cha nochd mi,
 Gus 'n eirich thu moch a maireach.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Thuirt i, ma ta cuir dhiot t-aodach,
 Bheir mise nochd mo leath-taobh dhut,
 Air eagal 's gu 'n dean thu m' aoireadh,
 'S cha 'n ann air son gaol do mhàrain.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Mu n' d' fhuair mi mi-fhin gu socrach,
 Ciod a rinn am pàist ach mosgladh,
 'S a nuair a ghrios mi e bhi tosdach,
 Theann e 'san droch-uair air rànaich!
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Thuirt bean-an-taighe le dearras,
 A chlann a chum mi am chaithris,
 Ar leam gn 'm feumadh sibh anail
 Gur siàbhlach ur teanga le Gàelic.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Chuir a briathran mi o thapadh,
 Eadar seorsa nàire 's gealtachd,
 'S cha robb drìuchd a bha tro 'm chraiceann,
 Nach cuireadh cnag air an lär dheth.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Dh-eirich i ionunn 'sa bhi rùisigte,
 'S theann i ri lasadh a chrùisgeen,
 'S mu 'n d' fhosgail i ceart a sùilean,
 Bha mis air taobh cuil na fàrdaich.
Thug mi 'n, &c.

Ach firh tha fuireach 'sa bhaile,
 Giùlain mo shoraidh gu Anna,
 'S innis d' i gu 'n d' d' rinneadh ealaidh,
 Do 'n luchd-faire bh' air an àiridh.
Thug mi 'n didhche raoir sa 'n àiridh,
Thug mi 'n didhche raoir 'sa 'n àiridh,
Chaith mi 'n didhche cridheil, caoinhneil,
Mar ri maighdeannan na h-àiridh.

Note.—This hearty song is the composition of John M'Gilvray, piper to the late Mr Macdonald, of Glen-aladale. M'Gilvray composed several other local pieces of no general interest.

BHA mi-fhéin 's mo mhàthair,
Di-màirt ann sa'n t-seòmar,
'S gu robh i riùm a g' ráittinn—
“ Nach nàr dhut bhi gòrach,
A laidhe leis na caileagan,
Gur amaideach an dòigh e,
'S cha pòs bean gu bràch thu,
'S a ghráisg' ud an tòir ort !”
Hil à hilin, &c.

Thuirt mi fhìn gu diblidb,
Gur ciunteach gu'm b' fhior sid,
'S nach bu duine fir-glic,

Ach sgairidh mi ri'm bheò dheth,

Hil à hilin, &c.

Sin 'nuair a thuirt mo mhàthair—
“ O b'fhearr leam gu'm b'fhior sin,
Gu sguireadh tu gu bràch dheth,

'S their thusa a bhean nach fhiach
Fear a dh-iaras a sia dhiu,
Hil à hilin, &c.

“ Bha'n duinne sin na shearmonaich,

Nach dàna leam do sheanachas,
Cho dearbhata' ga dhìteadh,
Ciod e cho brais sa bhitheadh e,
Mu'n ruitheadh e air mile',
Cha b'fhearde an te ma dheireadh dhiu,
Gu deibhinn os a cinn e,”
Hil à hilin, &c.

A bhean na 'm bithinns' ann,

An àit an robh threud sa,
'Nuair bhitheadh e ga shàrachadh,
Ghnà air gach tè dhiù,
Gu'n rachainn greis na àite,
Na 'm b'fheairde leis fhéin e.
Hil à hilin, &c.

'Nuair bhios ma chlann-sa laidir,
'S a dh-fhàsas iad crianda'
Gu 'n teid mi null air sàl leo,
Gu sràid Charolina,
Sin a 'nuair a dh-eudar
Gach aon chuir ri gniomb dhiu,

*Note.—The real name of the author of this lament was Margaret Maclean, sometimes called Mairearaid Ni Lachuinn, from Lachlan being the christian name of her father. She lived in the island of Mull, of which place she was a native. Like all local poets, Ni Lachuinn has been applauded by her countrymen in general, though we must confess that we are blind to any poetic grandeur in her compositions. We have seen twenty-five pieces of composing, but the above seven stanzas is her chef d'œuvre.*

Note.—The Author of this and the preceding poem was John Munro, Esq., Accountant, Glasgow, who was born at Sordale, parish of Criech, Sutherlandshire, on the 11th Nov. 1791. He was the eldest son of Andrew Munro,

Merchant, Spinningdale, and of Betty, daughter of the late John Ross, Esq. of Inveran. In October, 1794, his father removed to the new Village of Spinningdale in the same parish, where a Cotton Mill and a Weaving Factory had been erected by a Glasgow Company; here he carried on business as a Merchant along with Manufacturing and Bleaching on his own account for a number of years; but various circumstances rendering his efforts unsuccessful, in 1802 he was appointed to manage the Weaving Department of the Company. John, then in his eleventh year, was a good scholar, and able to write his father's books, but on the 19th of April, 1803, he had the misfortune to lose his father by an accidental death in his 38th year. His father was an enterprising man, and highly esteemed, for purity of intention and public spirit. On the death of her husband, Mrs Munro was aided in prosecuting the education of her children by her brothers in Glasgow, who were in flourishing circumstances. John was engaged, during the four winter seasons succeeding the death of his father, teaching in respectable families; and being now 16 years of age, and his uncles having procured a situation for him in Glasgow, he arrived there in March, 1805. He acted as clerk and cash-keeper during the succeeding nineteen years, in Houses of the first eminence, and in 1827, on his employers becoming insolvent, he commenced business as an Accountant.

Previous to this period he visited his native country, and had the melancholy satisfaction of being present at his mother's decease on the 20th Sept., 1825. It was in the prospect of this visit that he composed "O theid sinn," &c. His acknowledged integrity and industry procured him considerable business without solicitation, from which, along with other successful speculations, he had realized a respectable competence by the period of his decease; which took place on the 27th Nov., 1837.

Mr Munro's mind was early imbued with serious impressions, and his piety increased with his years. During the whole of his life, the closest intimacy never detected a fault in his conduct, which leaned not to the side of virtue. He spent about a fifth of his income in aid of benevolent and religious purposes; pious men, teachers and students from the Highlands sought his intimacy; and he failed not to patronize piety and talents, and to aid such as he conceived to be deserving. His unassuming manner was no less conspicuous than his independency of mind; he was a diligent student, and in the hours of relaxation from business, he became author of several religious pamphlets and poems. The deep interest he took in promoting Gaelic literature, and in teaching a Gaelic Sabbath School, and for many years acting as Secretary to the Society for the support of Gaelic Schools, rendered his name familiar to the religious portion of his countrymen throughout the Highlands. His early death was much regretted. He was interred in the Necropolis, and a Monument, with a suitable inscription, is there erected to his memory.
