

HEBREW, ISRAELITE AND JEW – THE UNHOLY TRUTH REVEALED

An inquiry into why the Jews think they are ‘Chosen’ above others, and entitled to other people’s real estate as their ‘Promised Land’.

This essay will found its basic argument on the contents of the Pentateuch, the first five books of the Old Testament, supposedly written by Moses but also rumoured to have been scripted by the Jewish historian Flavius Josephus in the first century. Short-hand on stone tablets is impossible so how was it recorded? Leaving that aside, let us examine the contents, with the assistance of the First Book of Chronicles.

If we descend the family tree from Noah, our interest must focus on Shem, although a study of the sons of Japhet will also bring rewards. (See especially ‘Antiquities of the Jews’ Book I, Chapter 6, by Josephus.) One of Shem’s 5 sons was named Arphaxad, who in turn fathered Shelah (Sala), who fathered Eber. At that point our interest is raised because Eber is accepted as the patriarch of the Hebrews. Outside of the Old Testament myth-building, ‘habiru’ is simply the word for a wanderer.

Eber the first Hebrew had two sons, Peleg and Joktan. I Chronicles 1, verse 20 seems to contain a misprint at this point, stating Joktan begat Almodad and twelve other sons, while verse 24 goes on to list another ten sons of Joktan without giving any mention to Peleg. It would seem strange that Peleg had no sons and Joktan had twenty three. (Falsus in unum, falsus in omnia?)

The last in the list of Joktan’s sons is “Abram, the same is Abraham” who had two sons Isaac and Ishmael. I Chronicles I, verse 34 tells us “Abraham begat Isaac” and his sons were called Esau and Jacob, later Israel. I Chronicles chapter 2 states “These are the sons of Israel; Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah, Isachar and Zebulun, Dan, Joseph and Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad and Asher.” These names should be noted carefully. These are the twelve tribes of the House of Israel, but also known elsewhere as the Sons of Isaac.

It should also be noted that the children of Israel have a sister Dinah. We can but look forward to the revelation of the Dinahites as a full-blown Israeli tribe in their own right. Perhaps the ‘woman’s touch’ could put the whole House of Israel in order. Nothing says the next Messiah has to be male.

So what do these genealogical links leave us with?

- The term Shemite is derived from Noah's son Shem.
- The term Hebrew is derived from Shem's descendant Eber. Eber was a Shemite, and the first Hebrew. The first Hebrew could not be a Jew or even an Israelite because neither had come into being at that time.
- Abraham in turn was Eber's descendant. Abraham was a Shemite and a Hebrew, but still could not be a Jew or Israelite because neither yet existed.
- Isaac was Abraham's son. Isaac was a Shemite and a Hebrew, but could not be a Jew or an Israelite either because they didn't exist.
- Jacob, who God renamed Israel, was Isaac's son. Israel was a Shemite and a Hebrew, but not a Jew.

- Judah was only one of Israel's twelve sons. Judah was a Shemite, a Hebrew, and an Israelite. The first Jews were the children of Judah. The descendants of the other eleven sons of Israel are not Jews. We will come to significant aspects of that fact later.

Please remember that this lineage traces the descendants of only one out of three of Noah's sons. The sons of Ham went south and east, and more interestingly the sons of Japhet went north into Europe. (See Josephus above.) The 'Holy Bible' is therefore not the history of the world, only a Hebrew folk-myth, useful for selling life insurance for the hereafter. For example at the time of the Great Flood in Mesopotamia, about 3,000.BC, the Magogites (Scythians) were already in Britain, the Javanites in Ionia, the Thobelites in Iberia, the Thrugammata in Phrygia, the Tirasians in Thrace etc. The temple at Callanish in the Scottish Outer Hebrides was built around 2,800 BC.

The Promoted Myth of the Jews being 'the Chosen People'.

The Jewish myth about being the 'Chosen People' is supposedly founded in a reading of Deuteronomy 14.2. It states: "For thou art a holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth." However, a reading of Deuteronomy 17.12, 21.20 and 26.15 makes it clear and confirmed that 'the Lord' is addressing Israel, not just the Tribe of Judah.

The promise is made to greater Israel, not just the Jews. Sorry Zionists, but there are 13 other peoples just as 'Chosen' as you, namely the Reubenites, the Simeonites, the Levites, the Isacharites, the Zebulunites, the Danites, the Josephites, the Benjaminites, the Naphtalites, the Gadites and the Asherites. To that must be added, from the sons of Joseph, the so-called 'half-tribes' or 'step-tribes' of Manassehites and Ephraimites.

However the story now takes a twist. The House of Judah effectively shames itself OUT of the Kingdom of Israel, in reality becoming dis-enfranchised, to the extent that it ignores the commandments of the Lord laid out in Deuteronomy to keep Israel decent and thus one must assume alienates itself from any position of private peculiarity to God. In fact God identifies his displeasure with the House of Judah in advance through the prophet Ahijah. In I Kings 11, verses 31-39, we learn of the prophet approaching Jeroboam, a 'mighty man of valour, in charge of the House of Joseph' and recounting that God is displeased with the Judean worship of Ashtoreth, Chemosh and Milcom and he will take ten tribes of the Kingdom of Israel from Solomon's line at his death and give them to Jeroboam, leaving Solomon's heir with only Judah as token respect for the history of David. So the Jews are being expelled from the Kingdom of Israel for worshipping local gods from greater Palestine!

The historical event which fulfilled Ahijah's prophecy, the departure of the Jews from the bosom of Israel, happened over 2,800 years ago and the rift has never been healed. The circumstances were roughly as follows. When Solomon died in 796 BC his son Rehoboam travelled to Schechem in the centre of the country occupied by the Israelites for the crowning ceremony, as was traditional. Although occupying a smaller territory in the south, along with the Benjaminites, the House of Judah maintained the 'royal' line of David and had provided the Kings of Israel. When he travelled north to Schechem for his coronation in the land of Ephraim, he was met by elders from the House of Israel who complained of increases in taxation and excessive conscription of men as labour, beneficial only to the House of Judah.

Rehoboam had a fit at this disrespectful demonstration of impertinence and immediately doubled the taxation and threatened them with scorpions where Solomon had only used bull-whips. Less than enamoured by the new king's diplomacy, the Israeli elders walked out on his coronation, went back to their tents and elected their own King Jeroboam. The unfortunate gang-master Adiram was sent to the new northern kingdom to whip up some recruits for labouring down south and the response was to stone him to death.

This attempted extortion of excessive taxation from their own brothers caused a terminal fracture in the Israeli family, making it truly a 'house divided'. It has stayed that way ever since. From that day on the Kingdom of Judah was divorced from the Kingdom of Israel. There is therefore an argument, and a very good one in law, that Judah has blotted its copy-book and put itself out the will, so to speak. It has disqualified itself, disgraced itself and thus dis-enfranchised itself from any favour or considerations which may or may not have been promised to the chosen people. They are no longer of that people. They are Judeans, not Israelis.

The Assyrians and Babylonians Emphasize the Split

King Tiglath Pileser III of Assyria was a very able administrator and diplomat, but towards the end of his reign he was given cause to invade Syria and Palestine, capture the Israelites and drive them off into captivity, in Northern Assyria. This was an enormous mass enslavement but Israel knew it might be on the cards. Three generations down the line, they were so alienated from the Jews that they had attacked King Ahaz of Judah. They despised him as a vassal of Tiglath Pileser. It was presumably dishonourable and disgraceful that Ahaz, entrusted with a House of Israel because of the historical role of his predecessors, had accepted servitude and was paying bondage taxes and protection to the Assyrians. The Jews were thus seen as 'rats' and maybe even 'snitches' and thus their property was fair game for those they had deserted. TP III, however, was having none of that and came down hard on the Israelis. (See I Kings 11, verses 31-39.)

King Nebuchadnezzar II of Chaldea (Capital - Babylon)

About 100 years later, around 605 BC, the Chaldeans had over-run the Assyrian Empire and their King Nebuchadnezzar sought to bring the Jewish satrapy in the south-west corner of his kingdom under complete control. A Chaldean host besieged King Zedekiah in Jerusalem and starved the Judeans into surrender. Zedekiah tried to sneak out the back door which the Chaldeans thought was dishonourable so they took him and his sons to Babylon. The Chaldeans then killed Zedekiah's sons in front of him and then put out his eyes. Honourable surrender and seeking terms would have been the way to go Zed. He got a harsh lesson at the expense of his sons. (See II Kings, Chaps. 24 & 25.)

The Chaldeans ransacked Jerusalem, carried away every scrap of metal they could move, even including the huge brass pillars of Solomon's temple. They killed all the priests, burned the houses of the rich and herded away all other able-bodied souls, with the exception of the very poor. They left them to tend to the grapes and the beasts. Nice touch Nebby.

This lesser second captivity, which we hear so much about, lasted but 37 years, about the age of a Grateful Dead T-shirt. Cyrus the Great of Persia (present-day Iran) liberated the Jews and sent them back to their previous allotment near Egypt, the former satrapy of Judah. Who they found there and how they treated them is beyond the scope of this essay but fuelled by the impractical, wishful thinking detailed in Jeremiah and Ezekiel, we arrive at the ludicrous claims of today's Jews. The kosher Israelis now number hundreds of millions spread around the world and that particular plan for re-convening Israel and Judah in the Levant, an idealistic fantasy, is no longer a runner. How about somewhere the size of Ukraine, for example? But would any real Israelis want to go live with Jews?

We can conclude this point with an additional observation in 'God and My Birthright' by Dr, J. Llewellyn Thomas, suggesting that this split had been pending and obvious long before "The distinction between Israel and Judah did not commence at the time of the rending of the kingdom after the death of Solomon. One has only to read the preceding chapters of the books of Samuel to realize that from the days of king (sic) Saul the distinction between Israel and Judah is most marked. The term Israel, except in a very few instances where it very obviously applies to the whole twelve tribes, is used of the tribes to the exclusion of Judah." The same is obvious throughout Jeremiah.

The Promised Land – A small but important observation.

That there would be a divinely-chosen place where Israel would be brought together is plainly stated in the scriptures. God makes a remarkable promise in II Samuel 7.10. He says "Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more: neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime." I Chronicles 17.9 says something similar: "also I will ordain a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, and they shall dwell in their place, and shall be moved no more..."

Note that this promise was made to King David when the Israelites were already established in Palestine – 'the Promised Land' – and at a time when the kingdom did indeed already extend from the Mediterranean to the Euphrates and was at the peak of its power. So when the Lord says "I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them" the appointed place or 'The Promised Land' cannot be Palestine. That's where they are standing when the promise is made. It must be somewhere else, and it is for the whole of Israel, not just the House of Judah.

Dr Thomas's view is that "This promise of God to David was given at a time when these terms 'Israel' and 'Judah' had meanings which were clear and distinctive, and became still more so during the long history of these separated peoples."

A reading of Josephus (see above) is illuminating to reveal how a large number of European nations derive their origins from the ten tribes. The detail readers can discover for themselves using the wonderful internet, but suffice for our purposes to say that it appears that the 'Anglo-Saxon Israel' adherents have been right all along. The Israelites proper are now scattered throughout European Christendom, principally centred in the British archipelago but also in the Scandinavian and Germanic countries. For American readers, you seem to be disguising the Tribe of Manasseh, who along with Ephraim (now the English) comprised the House of Joseph but your large population of European immigrants contains multiple descendants of Israel, even though they may not know it. The sooner these American-Israelis wake up to the fact the better. The USA has already suffered a sneaky coup d'état and lost the human right of self-determination to the Jews.

Be sure that the bad element of the House of Judah will deliver the Gaza treatment to you. They seem to want to be 'Welt Drahtzieher', World Puppet-masters.

The Unholy Truth of history thus reveals the Jews as fraudulent scoundrels, continuing their ages-old tradition of criminal deception and extortion. However one small matter might need clarification. Recent writings have claimed DNA proof that the current occupants of Israel are not genuine Jews, but Ashkenazim from Khazaria, an empire sited roughly north of both the Caspian and Black Seas. It should, though, be noted that in the mid fifth century AD (455AD) so-called 'Jews' immigrated into the North Caucasus region, having been turfed out of both Persia and Armenia for the crime of usury, a practice prohibited by the Muslim religion. These banished crooks presented themselves to the Khazarian king as royalty and inveigled their way onto the throne of this rough nomadic society, by the ruse of marrying into the Khazar 'royal' family. By 602 AD King Hakan Jusuf (cf Joseph) had become their greatest emperor. From this new powerbase east of Crimea they hustled their way into Europe and also back to the Levant through the Dardanelles and Turkey. So there may be a smidgeon of Jew in them after all. 500 years history of Khazaria will reward further study, especially the struggle between Islam and Judaism for 'best religion', but if you wish to focus on that approach the best indicator must be DNA. Identifying the DNA of Rehoboam and his progeny will be a hard task. In the case of Jewry their group mentality, attitude and political deeds are their defining characteristics.

The Holy Bible of the Hebrews is by today's standards a handbook and justification for white-race supremacy. The actions of the celebrated King David are those of a murderous thug. The 'uncircumcised' Philistines/Palestinians are treated abominably. For other Caucasians there is one good reply to Jewish charges of 'anti-Semitism'. The bulk of 'Christendom', spread throughout Europe, North America and the antipodes is likely to be the progeny of the ten tribes. We are not only mainly white but also Sons of Shem or Semites, just as the Jews are. Logic dictates that inter-tribal criticism of indecent behaviour is just that, contemptible conduct which gives us Shemites a bad name. Race is essentially based on skin colour. It is 'white-on-white' to criticise indecent Jewish crimes, an attempt to end practices which risk return fire on all other white tribes. You can't shut that down by calling it hate crimes, racism or terror. You caused it Tel Aviv. You thrive on hate and paranoia instead of trusting love. Bibi et al, you are busted, and about to get some serious payback. I hope you have booked seats on the space-shuttle to Mars.

Note to Americans.

This is a very old Shemite Hebrew family feud. As Christian Israelis, you too are Shemite Hebrews. However you are being manipulated by a sect who broke away from Israel and even in their own tribe of Judah have cause resentment and fracture. Let's call them 'Black Jews' who have the tendency to embarrass the White Jews. These Black Jews are unprincipled, ruthless psychopaths and liars. They will kill not only children but their own young people to manipulate matters in their favour (see the Baghdad 'false flag' bombings in 1950-2). They continue to be paranoid about the Muslims, who point out their usury and any other critic of their foul conduct as humans. They not only deliver death, they trade in it. American Joe looks like a regular guy who has been dragged into a Jewish neighbourhood and persuaded by one shit-stirring, lying punk to fire his gun in all directions, mainly at victims of the punk's crimes and selfishness. Pay attention Joe, you are getting a using, and maybe a very expensive one, in cash and corpses, and even your very constitution. The Black Jew does not care.

On a personal note, as I have stated elsewhere in VT, absolute truth is yet another myth, so I can only point at clues and indications. However if there is a God who chooses one part of his family over another and promises them real estate into the bargain, he's not for me. I'm with Jesus on the 'promised land is within' line, which puts us all on the same life-mains supply. Everyone will be re-united when we remember our common divinity, not just two white tribes called Israel and Judah. We are all but one, so let us not self-harm, or extort, or deceive. Just be, happily.

Robbie the Pict is directly descended from the House of Noah via Shem's son Arphaxad who founded the Chaldeans. The Khaldis travelled from Chaldea to Caledonia via ancient Scythia and the Baltic. He keeps both holy covenants, respecting rainbows and has sacrificed his foreskin. He knows the secret mark of Noah. He is a fully-trained marksman but is no longer allowed a gun. He successfully sued Lizabet von Battenburg for the return of the Stone of Destiny (Jacob's Pillow, Lia Fail), privately prosecuting her 'majesty' for re-setting stolen property belonging to the sovereign people of Scotland, formerly Pictland of Alba. The Stone is now in Edinburgh. He is currently suing the Ukanian government (working in cahoots with BankAmerica) for £125 million in criminally-extorted toll charges on the bridge to Skye. He claims 10%. He lives alone but has booby-trapped his house. Phone before you visit. Bring a decent malt and some Blues music.
