Dec. 15. 2374. An assize held at Grenestede on Monday next after the feast of St Lucia Virgin, in the K.'s 49th year, by letters of the Bishop of Chichester, before Nicholas de Turri justice appointed, and Goceline, parson of Grenstede. Sussex:—The assize inquires whether Hugh Lovel [and others, among them Gilbert le Escot, William de Hamelesdon] unjustly disseized Alicia Lovel of her freehold in Storketon, and of the manor, except the advowson of the church, and the service of Ernald Mochi. Hugh and the others are absent. But Henry de Hoxsshete his bailiff comes, and says nothing contra. The jury say that the land was once Henry Lovel's, the father of Alicia, who enfeoffed her and her sister Cristiana therein, viz., each of them a moiety; to be held of him and his heirs by them, so that if either sister died without heirs of her body, the other and her heirs took the whole. And they remained in seizin all their father's life, sometimes leasing the land at pleasure. After Henry's death, Alicia did homage to his son and heir Richard Lovel, for

- HENRY III. herself and her sister, being the elder, and Cristiana being due her ——— the 'esnescia,' and the sisters then divided the holding, each knowing 1264. her purparty. Then they leased the whole to one master Richard de Pageham, after which Cristiana died without heir of her body.
 Whereon Alicia took her sister's part under her father's donation, and for long time held it, selling wood and giving at pleasure, leasing it with her own share to said Richard de Pageham. And in process of time the said Richard her brother died, on whose death the aforesaid Hugh Lovel the defendant obtained his brother's heritage, and purposing to defraud Alicia, made with the said farmer an agreement to have his term of the said land. Which, however, was never completed, for the farmer, understanding that Hugh only wished to have entry so as to disinherit Alicia, declined the transaction, and instantly delivered the land to her. Whereon she sent her men, who remained in seizin in her name for long time, until Hugh and all the defendants but one, came and broke three boards of the wall of the house, and entered and ejected Alicia's men. And Richard who was the farmer, is present, and clearly attests the foregoing facts.
 Wherefore the jury find that Alicia was disseized as she says.
 Judgment:—That she recover her seizin. And Hugh and his followers are in amercement. [Coram Rege, 44-49 Hen. III. No.

- HENRY III. Somerset:—An assize inquires whether Robert de Briwes, Robert de Dunmewere, and Roger le Waleys, disseized Henry Gonyz of three messuages, and 3 virgates of land in the vills of Burnes, Burham, and Brenn'. Defendants absent. But Andrew Wake as their bailiff says that they entered under the K.'s writ, and the Sheriff gave Robert seizin under same. Henry says that the K. gave said Robert, Bryan de Goniz his father's land, and not his. Both place themselves on the assize. The jury say that the said Bryan gave to Henry the said freeholds half a year and more before the battle of Lewes, enfeofed him therein, and Henry was in peaceable possession for a year and more. That after the battle of Evesham, the K. by writ commanded the Sheriff of Somerset to give Robert all Brian's land, on account of the war. And he gave Robert seizin; but not of Henry's land. Judgment; that Henry recover seizin, and Robert and the others are amerced. Damages 100s. and 20s. [Coram Rege, 51 & 52 Hen. III. No. 132, m. 8.]

- [Circa 2452. Pleas coram Rege in the 51st year, the 52d year beginning; Oct. 13.] [quinzaine of St Michael.] Northumberland:—William de Duglas appeals Gilbert de Umframville, lord of Redesdale, and John de Hirlawe, that they falsely gave the Lord Edward the K.'s son to understand at the siege of the castle of Alnwyk, that he was an enemy of the K., and asked a gift from lord Edward of the plaintiff's manor of Faudon, which he held from Gilbert by the service of half a knight's fee. Lord Edward granted Gilbert's request, provided his accusation was true. Afterwards by the K.'s precept, and that of the lord Edward, an inquisition was made at Boulton, before William de Huntercumbe keeper of the peace in Northumberland, and John de Hawelton justice assigned ad hoc; and the jury on oath found William was never against the K. or his son, and had done nothing for which he should lose his land. The inquisition having

HENRY III. been returned to the K.'s court, the K. and his son, after the K.'s 1267. — peace had been proclaimed in every county in England, commanded the Sheriff by their letters to re-seize William in his said manor, and in the goods carried off by the said Gilbert and John, and to maintain him therein. After William had been seized for eight days and more, Gilbert, by assent and counsel of John, on the vigil of St Margaret [July 19] sent about 100 of the K.'s enemies, some of them outlaws from the valley of Redesdale, to Faudon, where with premeditated insult, they on said day assaulted William, his wife, and their family then in his house; and in three places thereof they applied fire upon William himself, his wife, William his son, Henry de Mulefen, William de Wardrobe, Patric de Douglas, and Gille-rothe de Douglas; and vi et armis, feloniously, and against the K.'s peace, ejected William from his said manor, and led him prisoner to Gilbert's castle of Hirbotle, and detained him in prison for eleven days; and broke the doors and windows of his house, entered his chamber, and carried off therefrom in robbery 31½ marks, silver spoons, cups, mazers, clothes, arms, and jewels, such as gold rings and gold fermails, to the value of 100*l*. And wounded William's son William in a deadly manner in the neck with a sword, so that they all but cut off his head; and wounded and bound the foresaid Henry and others, his four servants, and led them away bound; robbing them of a sword, price 2*s*., a supertunic, a belt, a purse with three silver shillings, and other small things to the value of a mark. And all this in felony and against the K.'s peace. He offers to deraign against Gilbert, as being a man who has passed age,<sup>1</sup> by the body of his freeman [ ] by name, as the court shall decide. Gilbert and John come and deny all the charges. And Gilbert asks judgment in the case; as William has appealed elsewhere in the county certain men of Redesdale, of whom he makes no mention in the present case, and thus varies his charge. Likewise he makes no mention of any day on which all these things were done 'and there are many days in a week'; nor specifies the hour of the day; nor any certain place.

As it appears by the coroner's roll of appeal made in the county and the return here, that he now varies his appeal in the aforesaid claims, the court finds that there is no appeal whereby they can be placed at law, and Gilbert and John may go quit thereof; and let William be kept in custody for a false appeal. But for keeping the K.'s peace, Gilbert and John being asked how they wish to defend themselves from the said felony, ask a decision on this,—as the said William has appealed others of the fact, and Gilbert of giving orders and sending them, and John of counsel; whether they ought to answer for the giving orders and sending, or also for

- HENRY III. tenements in Stokeworsy Radweye, in the county of Somerset, and — Harham in the county of Wilts, (whereof he had seizin and occupa-1268. tion in the beginning of the late war), to his damage of 50*l*. Robert Waleraund says he and Robert were of the K.'s party, and adhered to him and Edward his eldest son, throughout the war; and admits that Robert was seized of the lands. But after peace was proclaimed at Winchester, it was publicly declared that Robert should deliver the lands in the K.'s hand; and accordingly at Canterbury, he of his free will did so, and places himself on the record of the K. and Council. And Robert de Briwes says, that Robert Waleraund may say what he pleases about the delivery of the lands, but that he deforced him in his occupation thereof, as his writ alleges; and asks an inquiry by the country. Afterwards Robert Waleraund comes and says that the said plea is ineptly enrolled, because when he pleaded with Robert de Briwes, he stated against him, that he was not bound to answer to the writ regarding occupation, for after Robert delivered the lands in the K.'s hand as aforesaid, the K. enfeofed the said Robert Waleraund therein by his charter, put him in seizin, and he did homage to the K. therefor. And says, as he then said, that without the K. he cannot answer Robert de Briwes therein. He says also that said enrolment should not hurt him nor benefit Robert de Briwes, for at the time they pleaded, the latter was Chief Justice de banco without a 'socius' and without control, and asks judgment accordingly. Robert de Briwes puts himself on the record and asks judgment.

HENRY III. acres of land. Gilbert merely says that at one time he took the ——— tenement, by the precept of the Lord Edward, as William was accused 1269. of having been against the K. and said lord Edward in the late dis-June 25. turbance in the kingdom. That afterwards he restored seizin to William by the lord Edward's precept, viz., about the feast of St Michael in the K.'s 51st year, and has never since interfered with said tenement, and claims nothing but the service due him from said manor. William and Custancia say that after Gilbert had seizin of the tenement by the lord Edward's precept, he [William] went to the K.'s court, and showed both to the K. and lord Edward that he never joined the disturbance against them; and placed himself on a jury of the county, by whom the matter was tried. So that the K. himself by his writ enjoined the Sheriff of the county to give seizin to William; which the Sheriff did accordingly as they say, about the 'Gule of autumn' in the aforesaid year. And they were in peaceful seizin for eight days until Gilbert unjustly disseized them and burned the houses on the tenement.
 And place themselves on the assize. The jurors say on oath, that at one time William was charged with having been against the K. and lord Edward in the late troubles. And was afterwards cleared thereof by an inquisition held by the K.'s precept. And the Sheriff of the county was directed by the K.'s writ to give William and Custancia seizin, which he did accordingly. And after they were seized, Gilbert sent his men and ejected them from their holding, and while it was in his possession their houses were burned. And the jury find that he disseized them unjustly as the writ says. The judgment of the court is that William and Custancia shall recover seizin by view of the jurors; and Gilbert is in amercement.
 Damages, besides the above combustion, 90 marks; whereof 20 marks.
 Damages of the above combustion, 20*l.*; to the judgment for damages of combustion. (Some explanatory words seem wanting.) [m. 3.] William Douglas was summoned to answer to Gylemin of Wollouere in a plea to show cause why he deforced him of 30*s.* of rent in Faundon which William Batayle demised to him for a term not yet expired. During which term the said William Batayl sold the rent to William de Douglas, by reason whereof the latter ejected Gylemin therefrom. And further that whereas the said William Batayle had demised the said rent to the plaintiff at the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Mary in the K.'s 48th year, for the term of six years, the said William Batayle, at the feast of the Invention of the Holy Rood next thereafter, sold the same to the said William de Douglas, whereon the latter ejected the plaintiff within the aforesaid term, from said rent, to his damage, as he says, to the extent of 20*l.*

 William comes and defends. Afterwards he gives a mark for leave [m. 9.] Richard de Gosebec and Margery his wife appear versus Simon Baard and Isabella his wife, in a plea that they should hold the agreement made between them regarding the manor of Eydene.

 They (ipsi) come not, and otherwise have made default. The Sheriff is ordered to distrain them by their lands. He has not done so.
 Therefore is again enjoined, &c., and to have their bodies at Leicester at the said term [three weeks from Michaelmas].

[m. 10.] Nicholas de Graham and Maria his wife were summoned to answer to David le Mareschal in a plea that they should permit him to have common pasture in Belleford pertaining to his freehold in Middeltone, of which Malise earl of Stratherne (Stravernie) unjustly disseized Richard le Mareschal his father, whose heir David is. Richard was in seizin of common in 300 acres of pasture in Beleford, with all his work cattle, for a year, as pertinent of his said freehold in this K.'s time, taking therefrom profits to the value, &c. And the right descended from him to the plaintiff David. Nicholas and Maria deny the seizin, and place themselves on the country. And David likewise. A jury, elected by consent of parties, say on oath that Richard was in seizin of common in 200 acres of pasture. The judgment of the court is that David recover seizin of common of 200 acres. And Nicholas and Maria in amerce-ment. And David also for a false claim of 100 acres.

HENRY III. [m. 10, d.] Twelve jurors ultra Coket, and twelve jurors citra Coket, have presented that there is a great destruction in the county waters of salmon at the time when these come up to spawn (ad friandum), and also when the young salmon (salmunculi) go down to the sea, to the great detriment of this and all the neighbouring counties; and they sought on behalf of the county that a statute should be made to prevent the same in future. Therefore by consent of the county, both knights and other freemen, it was ordained and provided, that as heretofore, from the feast of St Michael until the feast of St Andrew, no net should be dragged or placed at weirs or pools (stagna), or at mills or mill pools (exclusas), and that no one fish in the Tyne, Walspyk (Wansbeck), or Coket, or other waters in the county with nets, 'stirkeldis,' or other engine during the said term, or without engine. It is also enacted and provided that from the feast of the Apostles Philip and James [1st May], till the Nativity of St John Baptist [24th June], no net or 'wyle' shall be placed at pools or mills or mill pools in the said waters, nor shall any net be placed at weirs, unless previously [it is seen] by the keepers appointed or to be appointed thereto, that the meshes (?) (caliga) are wide enough to permit the young fish to have safe transit through the middle. It is also enacted and provided that if any fisher, or miller, or other 'man' of any one, be convicted, his lord shall give the K. a mark for each offence, unless he can show it was done ignorantly. Such fisher or miller, or other delinquent however, so often as convicted, shall be sent to the K.'s prison, and not repledged save by consent of the 'custodes' provided or to be provided 'ad hoc.' And in the water of Tyne the Constable of Newcastle shall be 'viewer' that this provision is kept from Tynemouth ascending as far as Edwynestrem, as it was wont to be in past times. And from Edwynestrem ascending as far as Lambeley, on the south side, and as far as Botylaund on the north side, these shall be conservators (custodes et visores), viz., Robert de Throkkelawe, Thomas de Dyveleston, Thomas de Blencheshope, and Robert de Bottelaund. In the course of the Wanspyk, these shall be conservators, viz., William de Cambhou, Gilbert de Oggel, Roger de Woderyngtone, and Ralf de Esyndene. In the course of the Coket, viz., from Coke-muthe as far as Cahou these shall be conservators, viz., William de Toggesdene, Adam de Plessetis, Adam Galun, and John de Kerstyne. In the course of the Blyth, these shall be conservators, viz., Hugh le Vigurus, and Roger Skaufyn. In the course of the Alne, viz., from Alnemuthe as far as Alnewyk, these shall be conservators, viz., Nicholas de Hauekyle and John de Alnemuthe. In the course of the Tylle these shall be conservators, viz., John de Benlegh and Robert de Forde. In the course of the Glene as far as Glenemuthe, and thence to the Liberty of Norham, these shall be conservators, viz.,

HENRY III. Michael de Kyllum and Alan de Holthale. And all these shall take ——— oath before the Sheriff for faithful and diligent observance of their 1269. office; and if any one die, become incapable, or fail in his duties, and be convicted thereof, another shall be elected in his place by his companions, who shall make oath as above. The nets and other engines found in said waters, contrary to the said enactment, shall be burned by the conservators. The county consents to this provision enduring till the next advent of the justices. So if the county then consents, it may be affirmed or amended by the justices, as seems fitting.
