

MUCRUSS ABBEY.

Route by Steamer
 From London to Stockton.

From Stockton to Edinburgh	160
Glasgow	40
Carlisle	120
York	200
Doncaster
Stamford
& London by Coach

Excursion to Scotland

1832

Tuesday 31 July. Left Town at 7 in the evening by the James Watt Steamer a drunken waterman bringing his fare to the vessel capsized & nearly drowned - & the gentleman much frightened drifting away in the boat by himself on coming on deck on the Wednesday morning. The Kentish Coast presented itself being just off Margate - as we proceeded passed Harwich the Essex Coast & afterwards several pretty towns on the Suffolk Coast as Aldborough - Northwold & Lowestoff which have an exceeding good effect & seem much frequented as bathing places - there being abundance of machines, the day was remarkably fine & much enjoyed the sail

Thursday 2 Aug. Misty & wet morning passed Flamborough Head a bold promontory with a light House Scarborough - & Whitby which with with its fine Bay & the ruins of the Abbey towering above the Cliffs form an interesting object - much amused with observing the immense number of Sea Gulls - flying into the cavities in the rocks - or swimming & fluttering in the waves - there are also innumerable lots of a pretty small Bird they call Divers - & the Captain told us - that these Birds which are in the habit of diving after the fish are watched by the Gulls - & not unfrequently robbed of their prize on bringing it to the surface of the water - Reached the Tees River early in the afternoon but the Tide being low - were obliged to anchor for two hours 'till there was water enough to bring us in arrived at Stockton at 8 in the evening after a pleasant sail agreeable Companions & a very civil Captain - thought the passage very moderate £2.2 - which included a most liberal Table - after a night's rest & looking over Stockton which is a large clean Town with wide market place & a suspension bridge just out of the Town left on Friday 3<sup>d</sup> for Darlington by the Rail way Coach - this a heavy umbering Carriage carrying from 5 to 20 passengers & drawn with ease by one Horse. Not having previously seen the mode of travelling on the rail way was much struck with its singularity. Very many Coal cars are linked together & drawn by one horse; others are propelled by a Steam Engine to which from 20 to 30 are attached & away they go in one long continued line at the rate of 5 or 6 miles an hour I have often heard the expression of putting the Cart before the Horse but little thought I should ever see it realized such however is here literally the case. For towards North the rail way slightly inclines and at the back of some of the Coal Carriage, is a low sort of Cart about a foot from the ground when the man comes to a certain part the Horse is taken from the front and both man & horse jump in behind and away they all go together.

The weight alone propelling them forward, so plentiful is the coal in this neighbourhood that the road is formed with it - the rail way is fitted in strong iron grooves in stone work - & men are continually employed in the line of road in raising it where depressed to preserve the exact level. reached Darlington at 1/2 past 10 - it is rather a neat town with a Market Place & the High Street wide. left at 1 for Durham where arrived at 4 o'clock in time for the afternoon service at the Cathedral.

This is a noble structure in the early Saxon style - Colossal circular pillars support the nave all different carving - fine circular window at each end with stained glass in the centre - at the back of the altar is a large Chapele & Transept in which are deposited many fine ancient Statues of kings - abbots, &c which adorned the riches of the Central Tower - but which some wise acers, removed a few years back. - The South side of the Church is now undergoing repair, covering over the decayed Stone work - The College fine opening where are the Prebendal Houses - & the Castle part of the ancient ruin of which still remaining, and forms the residence of the Bishop.

The situation of the Cathedral is happily chosen, bordering upon a lofty Hill at the foot of which the river winds its way. the banks finely wooded & a water mill immediately beneath it - a walk leads round the Church from which is a delightful prospect. The Country about Durham well wooded - The apices, had just terminated here & folks attention much occupied by the sentence of a Man hung for the murder of a Magistrate, who was, after being cut down. hanged & gibbeted - a considerable Militia free was, in the town, as it was, feared some of his fellow workmen the Pitmen would attempt a rescue - There are some curious carvings outside the Cathedral - a large Cow & a woman with a Milk Pail on her head - It certainly proves, a fine Milch Cow to some of the Clergy, and may therefore be a very apt symbol. - There are 4 singing men salary £60 a year £2<sup>s</sup> each day of attendance Summer Bishop of Chester the Reverend in waiting - The evening dull & cheerless & exceeding glad of the company of a brisk cheerful fire at the City Inn. - Durham has little to attract the notice of the Traveller but its Cathedral the streets being narrow - the Market Place mean & being very destitute of Public Buildings, it appears like ancient Rome to be built upon hills -

Saturday 4 Aug. Started from Durham at 4 in the morning, through Gateshead & Newcastle a large Town with a considerable Coasting Trade it presents a very brilliant appearance & has some very handsome Public Buildings, Town Hall, Market Place &c. passed through part of Northumberland exceedingly mountainous & but little cultivated - so as very monotonous, no villages, gentle seats, & scarcely a Farm House to be seen - on entering Scotland could not but be struck with the difference in farming - the land wherever it would appear to admit of it under cultivation - passed through Jedburgh a County Town of Scotland where the Ayr, are held & crossed several bridges to enter it owing to the winding of the river - Here are the ruins of a fine Abbey part of which is still used as a Parish Church thence to Melrose a neat little town where dined - the ruins of the fine Abbey lay immediately at the back - some short distance hence is Abbotsford the seat of Sir Walter Scott embosomed in trees. The building is in the ancient style - & the situation happily chosen - as you approach Edinburgh the high mountains contiguous have a noble appearance. The Salisbury Craig present a singular effect much resembling a lion couchant the road for a considerable distance before you enter the City is skirted by pretty neat houses, the residence of merchants & respectable tradesmen entered by South Bridge passing the University which is a noble building.

Sunday 5 Aug. Bent my steps to the Calton Hill which stands at one end of Princess Street and from which you obtain a beautiful view of the City - the buildings on the top of the rock which consist of a dark sort of granite are highly ornamental - here is a handsome pillar to the memory of Nelson with the following inscription

To the memory of Vice Admiral Nelson and of the great Victory of Trafalgar too dearly purchased with his blood The grateful Citizens of Edinburgh have erected this monument Not to express their unavailing sorrow for his death Nor yet to celebrate the matchless glory of his life But by his noble example to teach their sons To emulate what they admire & like him when duty requires To die for their Country

A.D. MDCCCV

There is also an Observatory and a beautiful monument resembling Demosthenes' lantern to the memory of Professor Playfair a very fine one is also nearly completed to the memory of Burns - The Portico of a large Building after the model of the Parthenon intended as a National Gallery or Museum but of which the Portico alone is finished for want of funds - is highly ornamental particularly when viewed at a distance a deep ravine separates the old from the new Town which formerly was unhealthy & unwholesome from its containing stagnant water & fresh it is now let by the Corporation to a nursery man who has laid it out in a very tasteful manner with young plantations & walks and it is very ornamental - to the Carlton Hill terminate, Prince, Street at one end so does the Castle at the other & presents a beautiful appearance browsing above the City & places on a bold rock - From it is a most extensive & delightful view -

Hence, Hospital - the Record Office School of Arts - Goal & Bridewell Post office. The High School are particularly fine buildings - parallel to Prince, Street are Queen Street, George Street & some beautiful Squares, a noble Structure in one of them the tomb with a Dome in the style of Pauls, Melville's Pillar, Statue of George the 4th attended the service of the Scottish Church in the morning at St. Giles, - This Church has a singular Spire resembling an imperial crown  St. John's Episcopal Church a splendid specimen of Gothic Architecture with permanent Roof like King's College Cambridge Went to Hollywell saw the interesting ruins of its Chapel - here is the tomb of the Kings of Scotland - the Palace itself in very bad style. - In the evening went to Arthur's Seat from which is a delightful view of an immense tract of Country the City of Edinburgh the Firth of Forth with Leith Harbour New Haven & Port of Bello - the main ocean numerous Islands, & the Country beautifully mapped out for an immense extent no knockers on the doors - all bells few seem to occupy the whole House & several names, & bells are to most of them. - The Shops in the leading Streets make a very handsome display quite in the Regent Street style - and it is very common to have two Shops to a House - one on the level with the Street - and the other in the area. - The old Town forms a sad contrast to the splendour of the new - extremely lofty Houses, 9, 10 & even 12 Storeys high - one common Staircase with no door & approached from the Street - & innumerable narrow dirty lanes, & alleys, leading into the main Streets - which are none of the cleanest & serene with a dense & dirty population -

Monday 6 May - Walked to Leith which is the Port of Edinburgh and distant about 1 mile or half it is a large town & has a busy appearance though but little to recommend it on the score of architecture - It has a fine pier & wooden jetty extending beyond upwards of a quarter of a mile An Island is opposite the Harbour in which is a Light House - walked along the coast to New Haven a little fishing village not a mile distant with a good Stone Pier & Harbour from which Steam vessels are constantly sailing to the other side of the Firth.
Huntingly - there is also a pretty Suspension Bridge in the style of Hammer, with though on a much smaller scale. here are a few good lodging houses, several Bathing machines, in one of which had supper, with returned to the Hotel to breakfast and after another stroll through Edinburgh to take a parting view of its splendor left at 11 o'clock for Glasgow - The Country highly cultivated wherever it will at all admit of it and even on the roofs you will see small patches of land well cropped. As you approach Glasgow it presents all the appearance of a great manufacturing town such innumerable clouds of smoke from the High Chimney shaft, where Steam engines, are at work and the dusty looks of the crowds you meet on entering the City. - It was my ill fortune to visit it at a very melancholy time, the death, from Cholera <sup>being</sup> being about 50 a day, and as if to confirm the gloomy intelligence on passing up the High Street to the Inn we met several funeral Cais, which make a far more melancholy appearance than our Heaves, the top greatly projecting over the body of the Carriage profusely covered with ostrich feathers & the sides with paintings, of the interior of a church much resembling the funeral car employed at Lord Nelson's death the mourners, also instead of following two & two - all march abreast and nearly take up the width of the street. - The old Town seems densely populated & from the extent of the manufactures, carried on here there is a perpetual smoke and the place altogether appears extremely dirty. - In the New Town which runs parallel with Byggle Street & stands on higher ground - the Houses are well & clean wide Streets, with several handsome Churches & Buildings. - The Royal Exchange in particular is a remarkably fine Building with a noble Portico. The interior the ceiling of which is exceedingly beautiful is used as a Reading Room and the general resort of Merchants, and there is an abundant supply of Papers & shipping intelligence it appears to be supported by the Subscription - though they are very courteous to Strangers, who are at liberty to walk in & read the Papers. - Some fine Bridges cross the Clyde on the other side of which are some good Houses, Shoes, and Stockings seem uncommonly dispersed with amongst the ladies Clap and you not unfrequently see neatly dressed young women without these appendages, - or perhaps walking with them in their hands. to put them on when they get into a Town.

Tuesday 7 Aug. Started at 4 in the morning by the Steamer from Glasgow to Dumbarton on the Clyde. 14 miles, to Dumbarton the Castle has a very picturesque appearance. Standing on two Conical Rocks at the entrance of the River Leven. seems a strong military position - breakfasted at the Elephant Inn in the Village and then proceeded by a lumbering heavy & Horse Coach to the entrance of Loch Lomond. The water at the entrance being shallow a Barge conveys you some little distance to the Steamers on the Loch and at the part so we began the Tour of the Lake by the Euphrasyne At the entrance near Dumbarton this noble Loch or Lake is nearly 8 miles wide and has several beautiful islands, it gradually however narrows <sup>all</sup> as you approach its extreme termination which is about 28 miles. - It is wonderfully indented and there are many pretty Cottages, & small villages, on its banks - after proceeding a few miles - the magnificent Highlands open upon you in endless variety mountains of rock in many parts beautifully green with heather & trees to the top & others bare & rugged with huge masses of rock tumbling at their base about half way up the Lake you sail near the foot of Ben Lomond the highest Mountain here 3200 feet above the level of the Sea - Boat, continually put off to the Steamer with parties, who have been to it, summit whilst others, leave for the same purpose - which by the way is no slight labour - the circuitous way in which you are obliged to ascend being about 6 miles, many land at the little Collage, where Ponies, are kept ready saddled for the accommodation of those who like a ramble amongst the Highlanders - I am sure open hearted set I understand cannot be met with. - The Scenery altogether in this romantic & delightful spot can scarcely be appreciated by one unaccustomed to this country Scenery to my mind it has a peculiar feature of grandeur & magnificence. - In some parts, you see deep ravines, in the rocks & falls of water; in one of the small islands a recluse has formed a sort of hermitage. all of them are beautifully covered with trees, and you often see large trees growing between the clefts, in the rock & cannot but wonder how they can find nourishment or support for their roots. - We had a very good dinner on board the Salmon I believe caught in the lake. - The water is fresh very clear & equally good. - The sail round the Loch occupied about 9 hours, which is not surprising as it is about 28 mile, long and we must therefore have sailed nearly 60 mile, on its beautiful waters. - We returned by the Coach to Dumbarton & thence by the Steamer to Glasgow which we reached before 9 in the evening after having spent a delightful day.

Wednesday 8 Aug - Started at 6 in the morning from Glasgow breakfasted at Kilmarnock a large town with two or three handsome Churches the road leads through a fine hilly country - but few villages, in the route the cottages on the whole have a neat appearance almost invariably of stone being the natural product of the Country & slated, many whitewashed & the drapery to the windows coloured.

where there are two stories, the ascent to the upper frequently by stone steps outside. - Whilst on our road to Dunfermline, a ragged fellow without shoes or stockings, hung on behind the Coach who the Equerry assured us conveyed the Mail to that Town, he hardly seemed fit to be trusted with a two penny letter. - Passed through old Cunnock, Langhwa, & the Braes of Brallock celebrated by Burns in his Scottish Song, - Dunfermline is a large Town & being Market day presented a very bustling appearance the high Street lined with Pedlars their Carts, filled with wares, of all sorts collected from the surrounding Country & brought here for sale. - Vast droves of black Cattle from the Highlands, it being a great place of report for Deacons from the South Took a hasty run to the Church yard to see Burns' Monument. - It consists of a well executed figure of the Poet placed in a neat little temple he, hand holding the Plough. - From Dunfrie, to barlisle the ride is particularly beautiful. hanging woods on each side of the road for a considerable distance with the river winding at the bottom The Duke of Buccleugh has a fine Castle on an eminence at Thornhill on our route to barlisle met Lord Mansfield riding over his estate which is very extensive, we here passed a Country Church such as it originally was, before the increase of population the plainest structure Sever saw & would scarcely contain a dozen people, a larger & more appropriate building now stands by the side & forms a singular contrast. - In one of the burying grounds observed an elevated wooden platform covered at top in which are told in Sacrament Sunday when many persons are collected together, the Minister addressed the Congregation in the open air instead of the Kirk. - The Heritors in Scotland support the Minister & keep the Church in repair - It spends from £300 to £400 p Ann<sup>u</sup> - Was somewhat amused in my ride by a rough looking genius - a fellow passenger in a Blue Coat, Birdseye Breeches, & woolsted stockings, who spoke a very broad dialect, and if I occasionally asked him a question or he addressed me, he gave me a deuce of a punch in the side, I took him for some Country Bumpkin who had been to Dumfries, to buy or sell Cattle but the Coachman, unfortunately getting a fly in his eye, was obliged to hear the genius addressed by another passenger who knew him by the title of Doctor & asking his advice - I still imagined he could only be a Country Doctor, but was informed he was the practising Esculapius of the place, he seemed however to have a mighty relish for Whiskey and we dropped him at a Public House with some other Pot Companions. - Turnpikes in Scotland are frightfully expensive - The Glasgow mail pay, I understand upwards of £ 3000 a year or £ 35 a mile - There being no exemption for mails, in Scotland The toll is often 1/6 a horse, and you are not permitted to leave the high road to avoid the toll, instance, I am told occasionally occur of a traveller attempting this, being rode after by the Toll keeper & heavily fined. - The appearance of the heath in Glasgow very pretty, as you approach Carlisle you see the Solway Firth, but the Country seems flat reached Carlisle at 10 at night

Thursday 9 Aug. - The affize, just terminating here - went to the Courts, which are in the Casellated form on each side the Street at the entrance from the London Road - Looked in at the Prisi Prius side - a Case just settled a man for calling another liar damaged 1st & 2<sup>d</sup> Courts. That is about £ 150. for the free use of his tongue -

The Cathedral not particularly striking on the outside, the Stone being of a reddish brown, & but few Methebs or ornaments, - a Central Tower, but somewhat plain. - The Choir having fine Carving to the Stalls, - splendid Eastern Window - Circular Arch, Clustered Pillar, - Gyg Hag mouldings, & foliage to the Capitals, of Columns, no opening at the back of the Organ to the Tower, it being built up to the roof & the, much detract, from its beauty, - The nave being also much injured during the Civil War, is concealed from view - Here is a monument to D. Lard a former Bishop - Heard Choir Service There is a pretty Clore at the back where are the Rebendoul House,

The remains of the old Castle of Carlisle are now used as a Garrison a Canal runs at the back of the City which has a communication with the river to the Sea on which small Steam Boats ply. - Took a walk by the side & fancied I was proceeding by a pleasant foot way to the City when suddenly came upon a Home Merchant, Premises and encountered a fierce dog, glad to retrace my steps - A pleasant walk leads round the Castle from which being at a considerable elevation, you overlook the meadows, the winding of the river & some of the high Hills of Cumberland. - Cholera seems to excite considerable alarm here - Several Boards of Health formed for the different Parishes, - observed a letter placarded on the Walls, - written by a Mr. Hudson an Advocate for Dr. Morrison's, the Hygean System, justifying his practice by the success that has attended it in opposition to that of the Medical Practitioners, & rather pointedly addressed to the Gentlemen (not the Medical Men of Carlisle) -

Left Carlisle at 5 in the evening by the Express to York, delightful ride through the high lands of Cumberland, to Penrith a few miles from which is the celebrated Ullwater Lake, the Mountains surrounding which form fine objects - entered Westmoreland rather a dreary appearance much waste & uncultivated and - passed through an Castle an old Ruin on the Estate of the Lord Chancellor near Appleby; a modern house in which his mother reside, is since removed from the road.

The seat of Lord Lovelace is distinctly seen the judges had proceeded there by invitation previous to opening the bridge at Appleby - road to Greta bridge through a fine avenue of trees - reached York at 9 Friday morning

Friday 10 Aug. Heard Cathedral Service at the Minster. - This is indeed a splendid ornament of the City. the proportions are so very grand - It is by far larger than any Cathedral I have yet seen - The choir is beautifully restored after the ancient style, the screen in which are sculptured the apostles with numerous smaller figures above most delicately & exquisitely carved in stone - all the smaller figures playing on various instruments, - Harp, Clavichord, Hoop, very appropriate being an organ screen - Almost all the windows extremely rich in stained glass, the Eastern window superb. The various compartments, - being filled with the various incidents in Sacred History and 45 feet high - The transept 250 feet across

The altar screen much improved by being now open with plate glass, The Tower very lofty & all the proportions of this noble edifice on a magnificent scale -

The Chapter House is remarkably fine & equally rich in stained glass. no support from the Centre to the roof. as is often the case - though the height is 60 feet -

In the Vestry are shewn many curious relics - an old Bible Silver Crozier - Silver Bowl given by an Archbishop 3 or 4 Centuries ago to a Public Company now dissolved - Spurs, Rings, -

A Curious large Dragons head is suspended from one side of the nave to which the font was attached. Shewn the place where Martin concealed himself behind a to the evening before he set fire to the Minster - & the window he broke to make his escape. - The high altar has a fine effect being approached by a flight of steps & the magnificent Eastern window towers above it at the back of the altar is a large space - where are several fine monuments brandy sadly mutilated as well as the Pavement by the fall of the roof when on fire - under the Pavement at the East end of the Church we were shown some Colossal Norman Pillars, & arches. - There is a remarkably fine window in one of the Transepts, in five compartments, called the 5 Sisters, in stained glass from a design furnished by them. - Took a walk round the City walls, which surround the Town & have lately been put in excellent order by subscription affording a fine walk & view of the surrounding Country - Went to view the beautiful ruins of St. Mary's Abbey near the Cathedral - one side of which is tolerably perfect - a handsome building has been erected very contiguous to a Museum and the ground in front hastily said out - The Museum contains several specimens of fossil mineral & other productions of the County as well as other parts of the Kingdom - I stuffed Animals & Skeletons of Birds &c with a good Theatre or Lecture Room - The fine ruins of St. Mary's Abbey being in the ground, gives much interest to the spot

In the evening took a walk by the banks of the Ouse, through a shady avenue of Trees. - The Race, terminated to day & there appeared to be a considerable attendance but I preferred taking another view of the Cathedral, one Gentleman in looking over his Helling Hook at the Coffee Room found he had lost £100 by his day's sport. -

In the Coffee Room of the Black Swan at York where I stopped is an old Coach advertisement placed over the Fire Place & framed & glazed and 1708 All Persons desirous of travelling to York are to repair to The Black Swan in Holbourne from which Inn a Coach will leave twice a week - and will reach York in four days & for the further accomodation will proceed from York to Stamford <sup>in 2 days</sup> in 2 days. - Travelling has somewhat improved since this date. The journey being now accomplished in exactly 1/4 of the time.

Saturday 11 Aug - Left York at 9 through Tadcaster & Ferrybridge to Doncaster. This is a handsome Town with a fine old & new Gothic Church There is a famous race Course just out of the town - thence to Barnby Inon where dined - through Newark a large Town with noble Market Place where all sorts of wares were displayed - here is a Cross and a handsome Gothic Church - reached Stamford at 1/2 past 10 and stopped at friend Simpson's

Sunday - Left Stamford at 7 - the Marquis of Exeter has a fine seat near the Town. Bulleigh Hall - passed through Skelton a neat Town & Huntingdon where breakfasted Harvesting very general in this neighbourhood - through Buntingford Royston, Puckeridge & Hail a large Town & pleasantly situated. The New River passing through thence to Natham brook - this ancient remain in a very dilapidated state, scarcely held together by the Iron Gramp, & will soon be remembered only by some Antiquarian drawing to Infield Highway to Tottenham reaching Town at 5 o'clock after a very pleasant excursion.

T. Birten N. W. woodcut. Published by...

THE GREAT HALL OF THE PALACE OF THE SULTAN

IRELAND

Irish Sea

Dublin

O. Kildare

O. Wicklow

O. Limerick

O. Kerry

O. Cork

Waterford

London

London

Nottingham

Leicester

Leicester

Leicester

Northampton

Bristol Channel

Excursion to Ireland

1833

Thursday 21 Augth left Carn at 7 in the morning & after a pleasant ride reached Bath before 7 in the evening the day following. Friday paid our respects to King Edward at the Tubber Bath the temperature above 100 and in the centre where the spring rises 110° large square area each person provided with a gown & when you lie on the back with warm wrappings & towels before the fire drank the waters but did not much admire them - Pump Room no<sup>r</sup> building - went over the old Abbey Church very fine Woodard Street but Choir & bell tower in bad state the corporation are much improving appearance of streets by removing old buildings which surrounded it and lowering the ground to the depth of 3 or 4 feet which will admit the air & make the breeze pass much easier. On Sat remained great number of boys, Augth which mixed with much strong cold were throwing into a large hole - after breakfast walked in Victoria Park, near Queen Square which is partially laid out in walks & lawns, with plantations, & commands pleasant views of surrounding country. - In the London Road crossing the Avon is a neat little Suspension Bridge. Below, which is a noble street, is situated the Sydney garden. - From the hills behind you obtain a fine view of the City with its numerous Crescents, rising above each other & the venerable Abbey Church - Two or three remarkable handsome Churches have been built of oak. - The City at this season presents but little bustle nor can boast of much fashion - most of the Families being at the Watering places. There is a fair but little to see or amusement going on - numerous Plays drawn by a man who had of a Horse - left Bath at 4 in the afternoon for Bristol - a delightful drive - Mr heale has a fine seat on the right not far from Bath - the entrance to Bristol from Bath is particularly bad - houses of a very low dignity description - arrived in good time in the evening with a walk along the quay listening to the numerous whistling of bustle of the place -

Saturday 24 Aug. - Went to Green Square - the scene of the riots - one whole side on which was the Custom House Chambers - House entirely destroyed a man dying out of the window only 2 days or two preceding - the jacket quite perfect but not otherwise - but burnt but the picture supposed to have been burnt & suffocated -

They proceed but slowly in the work of restoration though they have begun to dig the foundations to see how the restoration of the wall - Went to the Cathedral which though small is a venerable pile and the groined roof in the Saxon style is singular - great part of the Bishop's Palace which lays at the back was destroyed in the riots and has not yet been reinstated -

College Green in front of the cathedral forms a fine open walk Markets abundantly supplied with fruit, mostly at very moderate prices - Left Bristol at 1 by the History War Office Packet for Cork - a large vessel - -handsomely filled up - Cost 12.5.

Dutch Paper says 10<sup>0</sup> - numerous of Irish returners and as they are very sunning & clever at scheming a boat across for the paper about 5 miles, down the river where the names are collected - those who have not gone are put in stock - the poor Irish object begged hard that the Captain would let him off for 7% but upon his refusal & the other men on the boat offered the other 3% but they would not then take him - they are often very ingenious in their contrivances, it will exceed themselves in an empty box or package to save the fare - scurvy very beautiful sailing down the river - Clifton Rocks - hanging woods the long talk of suspension bridge not yet commenced - the wind being against us kept close in to the Welch coast remained on deck till 10 at night - much amused by hearing the Irish beguile their time by singing - most of them slept on deck there being no accommodation for them below except in the hold where there are eight or nine - about 35 passed by the Parish the rest pig. drivers who had sold their stock of wine returning

Sunday 25th - Beautiful morning on deck early, about 9 caught the first sight of the Irish Coast, the high towers of the Loughs - the tip of Ireland fully filled up - the Loughs high, but under a bright sky. Pillars all the way to Cork, a very comfortable berth - the first appearance to view of Cork particularly fine.
Port on each side protected, the Harbour two or three lines of battle ships lying off - the soil down the river, a beautiful high Hill, on each side thick studded with gentlemen's seats - Black Rock - a sort of Moorish cultivation - little villages, on the water side - & many, pretty little villages, built in the English style. The Captain feared there would be scarcely water enough to carry us up to the City - and numerous jaunting Cars were assembled at a little village called Pappe about 8 miles, from Cork - we however cleared it and arrived at his Majesty's Custom House about 1/2 past 3 after a most delightful soil of about 25 hours, the distance 240 miles, - Took a walk through the principal street, before dinner - St. Patrick's and the Quadrant are very beautiful schools, the houses before, some fronted with slate, others, brick with noble shop fronts - St. George's Place recently built appears the leading street for business - numerous, Spanish street, & a vast number of poor who are very annoying to the travellers and as a gentleman observed - will not take No for an answer - Heard evening service at the Foundling Hospital a large establishment for poor destitute children - there appeared about 300 Boys & Girls The street thronged at night, as most of the Company seem satisfied with passing up & down the principal one, - There is however a fine long jetty or raised Bank for deepening the river on one side which extends a considerable length & forms a very pleasant walk

Monday 25th - took a walk to St.
Salicks, and the back of the City where a sort of Milk Market is held most of the lower class, seem very fond of long black cloaks - almost all without shoe, or stockings - started at 1/2 past 12 by the Trade Mail which runs through Killybegs - the country being and very pleasing - for some miles, before you reach Killybegs very mountainous, with huge blocks of stone peeping from under the heather very similar to Scotch scenery - many ruins of old castles, - but rather ruined in appearance - with nothing of the Romance about them - not many churches on the road - passed one Protestant Church with a handsome Parsonage House - where was, told was, but one resident Protestant family The cottages generally present appearance of great dirt & poverty - new low - built with loose stone, - covered with thatch or turf - and scarcely ever a window as the policy seems to be to keep all the smoke in for the sake of the warmth of the air especially at the inside of what with mud floors - Poulley & Pij which seem to be most friendly being with the inmates, - the interest is any thing but sweet & pleasant - Mounds of turf to most of them tho' being invariably burnt & thrown out a great heat, & by no means an unpleasant smell - You see occasionally a few patches of ground a Potatoe, growing almost out of a Stone Quarry there being such abundance of loose stones though they say

Land without Stone, Is like a man without Bone,

One of our fellow travellers, was an Irishman & pointed out to us, two or three dilapidated Castles, which formerly belonged to his Ancestors - who he said he could very distinctly trace back 3000 years - being a lineal Descendant from the youngest son of Albanac King of Spain who paid Ireland the homage of a vassal at that period - There are two or three miles, of Killarney - you catch the first view of the Lakes, surrounded by lofty mountains and at the foot of - - -

Thos. M. Walsh of the Heron and Arms though he had made arrangements for my excursion in the morning determined to give me an evening view - and about 7 we took Boat with our men - ~~the~~ a Captain who is in expensively necessary to enjoy all the attractions of the Lake - passing Robt. Castle which would be a fine view were it not disfigured by whitewash - we coasted along the rocky shores of the Cross Lake pile of Stone completely undermined
- eaten into by the water - some very singular - called the Honey Comb Rock being so completely worn away as much to resemble it - The towering rocks & mountains, even to the summit covered with the arbutes - which grows in some instances - in England it is merely an ornamental shrub - here you see it in its native state from the low spreading branch, to the lofty towering the mountain rising to the height of 2 or 3 thousand feet covered from top to bottom - the foliage of every tint shade you can imagine according as the rays my wife - my mother-in-law has a name, and a legend connected with it if you may believe the legend. The Bay of Glena is a splendid scenery - At the head of the Bay is a pretty cottage and before leaving it - we had a specimen of the echo, for which the name is so famous. A very notice of the music is distinctly & beautifully re-echoed the sound appearing to die away over the mountains. We went to visit at a cottage at the back of Lady Kinnaird's on some boiled beef & cabbage, washing it down with mountain dew (alias whiskey).

The town of Glena is a small one the town & over the Catholic church.
The interior extremely plain and paved with dirty flag stones - two or three old women in the ground counting their beads - it is convenient at one end of the town & has a small neat chapel which is open to the public - but it is a very small one.

from view by lattice work on side of the altar. - The Market a dirty place where a fair shew of mutton was to be seen - they put it upon me at 4th of the Market - 18th with 1st of fruit - eggs & a penny breads of 1st of bread. - Mr. Wal, h. having furnished my basket with a cold dinner - consisting of the Bread - a Bottle of Whiskey embarked on the lower Lake, & passed the Suspenders, Turk Helena Mountains, with some other hills which after some time a fine effect - The scenery is altogether of an Alpine character and entering through a long circuitous passage, as you pass to the Upper Lake - Here is Hyde, collage, somewhat of a situation with a number of a number of near the stream. - At a height mountain called the Eagle's Nest the Bugleman again essays his powers and the effect here promised is by far the finest. - You leave the boat and take your station on the side of the Lake facing this lofty Mountain & the Bugleman conceals himself behind a Mountain suddenly music comes upon you as the distant sweet sounds of a Band or many instruments.

A Gun fired off is like a clap of Thunder. Climbing up one of the sides of the rock - the upper Lake burst upon you in great beauty. - The Islands thickly covered with the Rubus - the Mountains in the distance in some parts covered with heath or stone thickly occupying it, rugged sides - the more distant ones had their tops obscured by mist or clouds.
Landed on a little Island & made a hearty meal. drinking a cup of the Beater to Old Ireland - returned at 7 o'clock much pleased with my day's excursion. - One of our Boatmen told me he was about to be married to a girl of fortune Sister to Penn, brother's Red & Kiddens - he had it seem, been pursuing his address to another girl of equal property, but who having more or less of objection to the match he had of necessity struck up to another - he told me they would be named at 1 o'clock and found afterwards, have a regular jollification the Pipe & Horn, on a spot - which induced in - Having asked me to the wedding I repaired to the Cottage where the happy couple were assembled with some 20 or 30 of their friends Beer & Whiskey circulated very freely & the Pipe & Horn kept it up singing songs - drinks - till 8 in the morning.

Wednesday 28th - Left this morning but the weather clearing up about 11 - went in a boat on the lake to Brandon's Cottage which is as far as you can proceed by water - and had a boy & ferry to meet me at the Gap - The scenery here of a mountainous nature, up a valley with hills of water & the road almost impassable except for some sloated Pines, accustomed to the place the view of the distant hills seen through the mountains, ~~and~~ was a fine sight - got back at somewhat fatigued with my ride.

Thursday 29th - Left Killarney at 6 in the morning by the mail car.

the country very poor & uncultivated principally, perhaps the fault of the soil but much might be done with a little more spirit or capital.
It cost dear at Belgimine - which is turned to good account in being dig for turf for firing, which seems the universal fuel & you see how many roads the Collage of the same nature as the one before we saw many without windows or chimneys - not having half the comforts an English Labourer would require for his Cow or Donkey.

They seem to have no spirit, as it is completely broken down - their wants & wishes however seem very circumscribed for the Publican where we stopped said, "that if they only had, any Potatoes they would be as happy as as Kings - It was true on the road a large concourse of People were assembled to greet the great Liberator Dan O'Connell who was journeying to his native place Kerry - much Commerce at the part B in the afternoon This is a large city with two or three wide well built streets, & well paved. Many shops, with the appearance of much trade. It is very convenient to visit the River Shannon comes up to the town & is crossed by two or three Bridges a handsome one is now building - Some large Convent houses & a large A new square is forming at the back of the town, in which is a column surmounted by a statue of Queen Elizabeth - the Cathedral is not particularly striking - The streets have a dirty appearance from the presence of the military who are quartered here - Back part of the city especially dirty & filthy, and no cholera seems fatally prevalent here - in some parts, a pest every other day was heard.

Friday 26th started from Limerick at 6 o'clock - a very good road
- rated, & roads good, stopped every about 60 miles with it about 8 o'clock
- Irish being 14 English miles -
- accordingly expeditions in charge

The four Houses being taken off together - the four being put to the wains being all adjusted precisely, I was told that on the road between the in Queens County of Mansborough which is the County Town. - there is a handsome Spain's House - & some very extensive Barracks - there seems plenty of Indians about & the Police have a military appearance, carrying fire arms. passed thro' Kildare & had a where dined - met two Cavaliers on the road - the Coffin supported on poles borne by four men without any pall or covering many persons on their back standing - two women at the back of two Horsemen - comes who occasionally set up a hand or lament - a large concourse of people - a great concourse up the road & some more to do with they were obliged to be led, should have enjoyed the ride much had the day been more propitious but it rained, was raining for 12 hours, accompanied with a cutting North Easter & when the Coach stopped dinner at 5 o'clock was so late in coming, that I was obliged to sit by the kitchen fire in my shirt & hose - my coat & waistcoat were drying & I took some hot punch in the chimney corner. - After spending a long time in drying the coat & having it with some difficulty found on trying it on that it was very short in the wrist, and directed to me in satisfaction that all my pains were bestowed on a fellow Francis's mine being still all the worse for the rain, reached Dublin at 1/4 past 10 at night.

Saturday 27th spent the day in visiting the principal Public Buildings of the City. The Custom House remarkably handsome and far too large for its present trade Went to Ireland formerly the Parliament House is a noble Building far exceeding our own in beauty. The Grand Port Office is very similar to that in London & with Nelson's Pillar forms a splendid ornament to Blackwell Street - the fine Quay on each

... the ... through the town, and not of that very picturesque
...
are very large particularly at St. James Green & Merion Square Went over the Chapel & Hall of Trinity College which is a very
...
God gardens at the back.
The Castle which is the residence of the Lord Lieutenant occupies a large space but is not, really impressive. The Chapel attached to it, is in the Gothic style & much resembles St. George's at Windsor The ...
Park is pleasantly situated, and the Park which lays high above, a fine view of an agreeable ride or drive to the ...
Sunday 1st Sept? - Went to the Metropolitan Catholic Church
...
up at the altar very handsome the interior is however still in an unfinished state. ... mailed. Choir Service at Christ Church Cathedral. This though excellent is very deficient in architectural beauty & appears much neglected in the afternoon took a car with Mr. Hurlston & Melkinson, to Phoenix Park & saw the Botanical Gardens.

The collection of plants is very fine & numerous, it has not been formed more than 2 years - a fine circular road surrounds the city and forms a pleasant drive with good views of the adjacent country. here again we saw the remains of Paris in its boulevards. - The principal streets are wide & beautiful, such as St. James Street as Portland Place but we saw few signs of the residence of the nobility, Bishops, & men of opulence previous to the Union but few of the houses are now so occupied. but their splendid mansions are mostly converted into hotels. The markets are excellent & very plentiful & cheap - was offered fine Ducks at £½ a couple & a poor sized goose for by Beef 5 to 6 lbs.

The jaunting cars are in very general use & run out for private carriages of any other description. The drivers of these public conveyances are a set of fellows - Mr. Houlden having ordered me for the day - the woman said she would send a very sensible young man - and the dashing youth came with his top, suit and his clothes in corresponding style.
They drive at a good pace as do most of the coaches & in an hour being generally accomplished by the latter.

Monday 2 Sept - Took a jaunting Car to Kingstown - which is a good town - & is the place from whence the Mail Packet sails - A small Obelisk on a piece of the natural Rock commemorates the visit of George the 4th to the island and his departure in 1821 place 3<sup>d</sup> Sept. 1821 when he named it the Royal Harbour. - It has now become a large place of business & is a great deal of the affair of the city & Dublin. It is a fine inaccessible holiday drive for the inhabitants of the city & on a fine day the road is covered with vehicles, to this point of Black Rock. Leaving this station, passing to Bray through a very pretty country not far from Newcastle is a place called Brighton, laid out in a Park like form, with a few detached villas commanding fine views of the Harbour & Bay.

Bray at the foot of the Dublin Mountain, is pleasurable situation & there are a number of pretty thatched cottages with gardens, in front of the houses, & many more the entrance & many of our countrymen seem to visit here. The situation being so it is a most agreeable & interesting proceeding further & view the romantic beauties of the Dingle Glacierfall at Sarsfield - on my return to Dublin was truck with the very appearance on the sand. They are about consequently a rock layer of Dulieu to Kingston, and it being too wide the men set it cart, & hundreds of men at work throwing up the sand to form a road.

Saturday 3<sup>d</sup>. Embarked at 11 in the morning by the Messing Steamer for Liverpool - a large keel & carried a considerable quantity of live stock - number of the pigs, 400 5 or 600 Pigs & 120 head of cattle The cargo stowed in the hold about 15 on each side of deck with heads made fast to the side charge 3<sup>d</sup> each for the Pigs - 12<sup>d</sup> for the cattle - many of us dined & about 50 or 60 poor Irish went to Cabin Tapenars - comfortable Cabin & laid down at night in one of the couches, gently aroused by rolling off at being very tender--hearted & the vessel lurching a good deal in consequence - It poor sail, in Dock faced so dry as it poured almost all night. - The heavy weight of Stock though it retarded the sailing of the vessel made the motion not quite so bad.

The Passage is usually made in 13 or 14 hours, but owing to the unfavourable state of the weather we did not arrive off Liverpool till 8 on Wednesday morning, & there not being water enough to go into Dock, came to anchor but the Dock was soon reached & reached Liverpool in half an hour.
The shores are prettily lined with buildings, mostly houses, & streets of some grandeur. There is a street over the Dock, which present a new picture of architecture from the immense quantity of shipping forming a great contrast to Dublin.
Went on board L. & A. American which is built with much convenience & elegance. After up the River was said to hold 40 to 35 minims which includes, in general, the best provision, all the way, & desert wine & spirit, - The Market here is on a very large scale, even though under one Roof - Fish - Meat, Fruit, Vegetables, &c. and is several hundred feet long - After dinner, I proceeded to an omnibus, to the "University & Museum," but it did not my fare inside one of the Coaches, took my hat. - They contained 6 inside places I on each side with ribbons and you sit very easy.

Left at 5 o'clock & reached Manchester in an hour & 25 minutes, the distance 22 miles, the carriage very easy - The motion pleasant, you do not really miss of the rate at which you are proceeding, except by seeing the roadside objects so quickly recede as you pass through two or three tunnels,
- some 2000 - 3000 feet long - one 40 feet under the level of the surrounding country and occasionally almost as much
- some 100 - 200 feet high, a very large town with some fine wide streets - The Infirmary and a museum with a fine collection of Spas. Marble &c. in which the part of Derbyshire is famous. reached Nottingham at 8 in the evening. - This is a large town with an exceedingly wide Market Place. Many of the shops have a walk under the first story which is supported in some places by pillars like the ones at Chester.

Friday 6th Started from Nottingham at 7 through Loughborough to Leicester. Market Har-borough & Northampton. This takes a fine clean town with no a shilling it - helped to give a very pretty town. through Wotton a clean, neat little place with a handsome church about a mile out of which you have a view of Wotton Abbey, the seat of the Duke of Bedford. There is a very handsome entrance to the Park which is of great extent - the wall being of many rivers, making a comfortable H. steam, reaching there a little before 10 in the evening after a very pleasant trip.

Route

	Miles
London to Bristol	120
Bristol to Cork	240
Cork to Killybegs	50
Killybegs to Limnisk	45
Limnisk to Dublin	120
Dublin to Liverpool	120
Liverpool to Manchester	42
Manchester to Rotterdam	60
Rotterdam to London	100 <hr/>
520 by coach	520
240 by steamer	<hr/> 760 of Chapman in Bath 1766, printed at the moment of Dr. Rowen's death

Dr. Rowen lies whose health rest is not Naked inferior to his feelings heart I shall not mention any more of his I could be his, still who breath, day, no more Think on how soon his noble spirit fled Think he who saved the dying now lies dead
I shall not mention any more of his
And with a widow, sorrow, be as your friend
I shall not mention any more of his
His general bounty reached beyond the grave The liberal current of his generous mind Flowed in a bountiful stream to all mankind

Excursion

to Guernsey & Jersey, 1834

Saturday 23 Aug<sup>1834</sup>. - Left Town by the Dover boat Steamer for Deal where arrived at 6 in the evening - my Mother Sophia at Canterbury in visit to Capt. Peley

24th Sunday - Went to Waterloo Church Duke of Wellington there

25th took a walk with the Laird, to Mouseham Spent the evening at the Bathing Room Tuesday 26th Left Deal at 9 in the morning for Dover - number of persons, assembled to witness, the Regatta, day unfavourable, immense works going on at the Harbour - at 12 started for Hastings - through Sandwich a very pretty walking place & the - pleasant ride along the coast - the road being mostly by the seaside - numerous Martello Towers - Folkestone a heavy dull Town through New Romney - Steeple of Church has a most singular appearance not being where you would almost expect to find it - at the top of the tower but all alone in the Church you passed through Romney Marsh where thousands of sheep are grazed the Country as you approach Hastings, very fine being much wooded and the high ground in which you travel affording a most extensive prospect with a fine view of the sea. Heady Head - was much pleased with the appearance of Kyle - which stands very elevated. & <sup>Wynchelsea which</sup> has a very remarkably fine Church. got to Hastings at 7 -

Wednesday 27 Aug - Took a walk before breakfast to St. Leonards which is a splendid town - much in the style of the best part of Brighton.
The Park has been extensively cut into and a fine Terrace formed in front of the Houses which is secured by a strong sea wall - the Houses, all with shades some elevation having Colonnades, there is a pretty Norman Church the Bathing Machine, have a singular heat appearance being all striped

The Ruins of the old Castle highly interesting - upon a high Rock affording a fine view of the Town & from the corresponding height, on the other side is a magnificent sea view - number of Fishing Boats, & a good deal of bustle in this part where Colliers, unload - started at 12 for Brighton - through Eastbourne Southbourne, ~~Waltham~~ Flew, stopped at Star & Garter - Town not very full Town Hall splendid Building tho' not sufficient space about it

Thursday 28th Aug. Left Brighton at 10 through Shoreham over the fine Suspension Bridge built by the Duke of Norfolk - through Waltham & around whose splendid Castle is seen for some time before you approach arrived at Portsmouth at 4 past 4. but weather being unfavourable stopped at the Quebec Tavern & amused myself in the evening by a walk round the Ramparts, which are very extensive

Friday 29th Left Portsmouth at 9 o'clock by the Southampton Steamer affording fine view of the Harbour called off Ryde for Papenburg, and then proceeded to Corves to take in Papenburg & Coals - pleasant sail up Southampton River - with view of Netley Abbey - about 3 miles from Southampton - arrived at 12 - Weather showery which prevented seeing more than the Town - left in the evening by the Lord Berkeford Steam Packet for Quernsey - at 6 - very squally & Captain half inclined to anchor in Sparmouth Roads off the heeble, - we however proceeded got into my berth early in the evening - but could not get a wink of sleep for the terrible crackling of the Timbers of the Cabin as if the Ship was coming to pieces - within about 10 miles of Guernsey, you pass the Casket, an elevated Rock on which are 3 Light Houses, The appearance of Guernsey from the Sea is very fine - The Town rising like Hyde in the Isle of Wight from the shore - & the Church, & College towering conspicuously above the House, - The High Street is something like Lyase, & by the Waterside - narrow & inefficiently paved - but there are excellent shops - and some of the Linen Drapers would vie with those at the West End of London - The Market is remarkably handsome - The Fish Market a distinct Building in which are about 60 Stands, 30 of each side - all of Marble with a Pipe of Water laid on to each - it is paved - kept ~~extremely~~ clean & glazed & covered over like the Burlington Arcade - The Meat Market is equally good & the meat looked very delicate Lamb & Mutton 6<sup>d</sup> to 7<sup>d</sup> / lb. Bought some beautiful Black Hothouse Grapes 1<sup>d</sup> / lb - a number of low wine houses like in France & Ireland. Spirits being remarkably cheap Hollands 3/2 & Brandy 4<sup>d</sup> / 1/2 gallon - the very best Cognac from the London Docks 7/5 1/2 gallon - Tea 3 to 4<sup>d</sup> / lb Muscovado Sugar 3<sup>d</sup> to 4<sup>d</sup> / lb - a Glass of Brandy - Holland, Cordiac or Liqueur - one penny There are ~~very~~ some very noble Houses on the Western Side of the Town - & the College is a handsome Building in the Gothic Style capable of accommodating above 120 young men - it is said to have cost the State, 30 thousand Pounds - The Country at the back of the Town - quite a garden by the Tree, loaded with fruit - There is a considerable trade in liquor in making up Port Wine for the London Market - The Spanish Red Wines are brought here and may be bought from 2<sup>d</sup> - to 3<sup>d</sup> of yellow - they are brandied & prepared & then shipped in Port Wine Pipes - as genuine Opoto to honest John Bull -

Sunday 31 Aug - Took a walk before breakfast to the Fort which protects the Harbour & stands upon a rock from which you have a delightful view of the Town, Harbour & open sea -

The Rifle Brigade is doing duty here - one of the soldiers told me provision here is so cheap - that their rations are more than they can consume - as their pay is the same as in England - and they do not choose to let them have too much money to prevent their getting intoplicated - as it is however they have about fourpence a day to spend - a delightful walk leads down from the Governors House to the Town - but when I had reached the bottom found the door locked - by advice of a soldier to avoid going back again - attempted a path down the Rocks - through the brambles but being too precipitous reached the bottom sooner than I intended.

with luckily no other mischief than spoiling my Sunday Coat & having half an hour's work to brush up again; these short cuts, I have often found, are the longest & worst in the end - attended morning service at St George's, which is a noble new Church near the College - afterwards, went to the Old Church near the Pier, where the Garrison attend - and saw them afterwards muster & march with their Band to Barracks - After dinner had a Poney  $\frac{2}{3}$  and took a delightful ride by the Western side of the Island which is very picturesque & indented with small Bays, in which are many rocks - Rode through two or three pretty Villages, & passed a stone Column which was erected as a tribute of respect to Governor Doyle reposed at a Cabaret with a penny worth of Brandy & water but could not manage it all

Monday 1st Sept. - Squally, took a stroll before breakfast to the western extremity of the Town which extends a considerable length - the Streets are badly paved for Pedestrians - The Town rises to a very considerable height from

The Bay & the House, are seen towering above me and then it is rather fatiguing therefore getting into the Country - as it is a long uphill walk for a considerable way. - Took a walk beyond the Fort, where is a fine Bay - the rocks rising a considerable height well fortified and from which is a beautiful view of the small Islands of Jeddo, Heron & Berk & Jersey in the distance - In the afternoon took a ride to the back of the Island to the village of Sartavale The Islands narrowing to the back you have a distinct view of the sea on both sides - and upon some elevated spots can see nearly all round - It appears extremely well fortified and almost every prominent rock in the Coast mounts a Battery - whilst other parts are defended by a strong sea wall with openings for Cannon at present of course except at

The Fort and a few other parts there are no military - and the Cannon are laid in the ground The Churches are neat, and the Tombstones as in England with most of the Inscriptions in English those in French do not appear to be of Catholics are there as us (rope, Sci repose le corps, de - decide an signeur - the usual commencement - The Country very fertile in the interior - though somewhat barren along the Coast - The Hydrangeas the most beautiful I ever saw - exceedingly large & full of a deep blue or purple Flower - they seem famous gardeners & florists - and it is really curious, to see Wall above Wall rising from the bottom of the valley to the top of the Hill all covered with fruit trees or vines - The Villages of St. Andrew & St. Matthew - appear to attract what we should call our West Ind Folks - the Houses being of the very first rate clap - shivered & painted with fine gardens -

Tuesday 3<sup>d</sup> Sept. Intended to have passed over to Jersey, but was not aware of a vessel leaving till too late - the morning being fine amused myself with a walk to Port Sampson. where is a small Bay serving for Coasters, to take in Stone - which is very plentiful here - all the coal comes from England - but the poor people appear to burn a great deal of Turf & sea weed - & the smell is not unpleasant something like the Irish Turf - Port Sampson is protected by a Castle upon a Rock - Cows are generally tethered here so that the feed is equally grazed observed I saw 4 men upon a rock blowing a sort of shepherds horn - signal to get out of the way as the rock was about to be blasted with gunpowder - There is a very pretty public walk a little out of the Town the sides planted with rows of kees & seats, at intervals, which is much resorted to -

Wednesday 3<sup>d</sup> Sept: Beautiful morning - up early to be ready for the Ariadne Steamer for Southampton to Jersey. which usually arrives off here between 7 & 8 in the morning & sat watching Fort Corbet (which faces the Pier. & always hoists signal on approach of the Steamer) all the morning - She did not however arrive throughout the day and left us all in uncertainty as to what had become of her - Arrived a Depot from Naples, with brandy.

The State, have built a handsome new Street called Fountain Street near the Market & calculated upon letting the Houses, at £90 a year - but they do not seem to take - and they are now offered at £30. - The Market certainly is well arranged. & the appearance in the open area - where all the Women set with fruit & vegetables, before them in abundance has a very pretty appearance. - Saw some fine parsnips, - Smelt 3<sup>d</sup> & 4<sup>d</sup>

Thursday 4th Sept. - Splendid Morning at 9 o'clock the Swanhoe Weymouth Post office Packet made the Harbour & went on board - pleasant sail - passing the Island of Seik. & at 2 o'clock arrived off Jersey - Coast exceedingly rocky - and the tide being out - we had to boat it for nearly a mile - for which were charged 1<sup>o</sup> a head - and on arrival the Boats did not put us on shore ~~but~~ the water being very low and in the sands - but several Carts backed into the sea - and some 6 or 8 of us got into each Cart and were jolted on shore for 6<sup>o</sup> apiece -

The Town lays quite flat - (very different from Guernsey) and has some good Streets - and a large open Square in which is a Statue of the King. - The Harbour is large & can accommodate plenty of Shipping. - Strolling to the outskirts of the Town - observed the following inscription over the Garden Gate - of some grounds with a most delightful prospect - Hic terrarum nostri proceres omnes. angulus, videt

Theatre not open - smoked a pipe with the Free Bay Musical Society which met weekly at the House where I stopped.

Friday 5 Sept. - Six Gentlemen from Plymouth who were stopping at the Pri Hotel with me, having made a Party, to drive through the Island. hired a Poney & accompanied them - went into one or two of the Village Churches which are large ancient Buildings though very plain inside - Upon a Tomb Stone recording the death of a beloved wife - was the following concluding passage -

"The Survivor dies"

under which some one had inscribed in pencil - and for love of another marries in less than a month - about 3 miles out of the Town is a Tower upon a very elevated spot from which you have a fine view of the Island - It appears extremely well wooded and we could see nearly round. - The Country is certainly very fertile, far more so than Guernsey. with Breeds & Apples in abundance - Visited two or three very pretty Bays - one with several Fishermen, Huts & a good Pier -

In one Route made the survey of a very ancient Castle & Fort, which stands proudly towering upon a Rock.
It is now in an extremely dilapidated state not having been occupied since the War. The Room is shewn in which, King Charles resided. & the Stair case from which he is supposed to have made his escape - At Bulls Bay saw the wreck of a large vessel lately foundered - Refreshed at a good Inn kept by a Frenchman & returned by another route by the side of the Sea Coast - to one inn where the Landlord had provided us a good dinner - of Mullet Quarters of Lamb - Saut, - with a Dessert of Melon - Grapes - Figs & Walnuts - with 2 Bottles of Sauterne & Champagne to at 5/9 each There appears far more trade at this Island - than at Guernsey. & the Harbour is on a much larger scale - but I much prefer the Town of St. Peter's Port - at Guernsey to St. Helier's at Jersey -

Saturday 6th Sept: Left Jersey at 6 in the morning by the Swanhoe for Weymouth - exceedingly rough passage - passed the Isle of Portland & arrived at Weymouth a little after 8 the same evening - After getting my Carpet Bag from the Custom House finding there was no coach to London in the morning - hired a Fly with a Gentleman & proceeded to Dorchester where we stopped 'till 3 in the morning and then left by the Exeter Coach through Salisbury - The day was remarkably fine & enjoyed the ride which leads through a fine open country with extensive borders & fine sheep walks - In the early part of the morning before the sun had much power - the Fog had a most singular effect - settling in the valley, & giving them completely the appearance of the Sea, or extensive Lakes, - Passed thro' Northbridge Basingstoke & Basingstoke & reached Town at 6 in the evening after a very pleasant trip. -

The following list of Prices of Wine were extracted from the Guernsey Paper - Sept. 1834 -

	Per Dozen		Per Dozen
Madeira --	18 <sup>0</sup>	Port	22 <sup>0</sup>
Sherry ---	18	Do	20
Malaga Sherry -	9	Do	18
Cape Madeira	8	Do	16
Mountain -	9	Old Spanish	12
Marsalla -	9	Kouillydry	8
Lisbon ---	10	Tarragona	10
Rancio ---	9	Do	5
Oranach	8	Claret	10
Frontignac	11	Sweet Port	6
Saillerne	8	Montagne	8
		Alicant	8

ELIZABETH CASTLE, JERSEY.

Engraved by S. Rowley.

MONT GUET, GUERNSEY.

Published by J. Aspinwall, at the Bible, Crown, & Constitution, Cornhill, October 1, 1867.