Electric Scotland News

Well it seems that the new Brexit deal the PM has come up with is worse than Theresa May's deal. I can't see how this will pass in Parliament. He's obviously an idiot. Looks like the Brexit party is now set fair to do very well in the next election whenever that will be.

The British Library would like to archive the following website: Electric Scotland

Dear Sir/Madam,

The British Library would like to archive your website in the UK Web Archive and to make it publicly available. The UK Web Archive was established in 2004 to capture and archive websites from the UK domain and across the web, responding to the challenge of a digital black hole in the nations memory. It contains specially selected websites that represent different aspects of UK heritage on the web, as well as important global events. We work closely with leading international institutions to collect and permanently preserve the web and the open UK Web Archive can be seen at <http://www.webarchive.org.uk/>

We look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards

Nicola Bingham
Lead Curator, Web Archives

And so I have given them permission to archive the site.

Scottish News from this weeks newspapers

Note that this is a selection and more can be read in our ScotNews feed on our index page where we list news from the past 1-2 weeks. I am partly doing this to build an archive of modern news from and about Scotland as all the newsletters are archived and also indexed on Google and other search engines. I might also add that in newspapers such as the Daily Record, Courier, BBC, Capx, ThinkScotland, etc. you will find many comments which can be just as interesting as the news story itself and of course you can also add your own comments if you wish

I might add that as the Scotsman is now behind a pay wall I have spent some more time on the Daily Record site and am finding some interesting articles about food in Scotland. They do a very poor job of covering business and political news which is perhaps why it's one of the most popular newspapers in Scotland.

Police Scotland unveil new drug-driving detection kits

Police Scotland has unveiled its new drug-detection kit ahead of updated drug-driving laws coming into force.

I have a feeling that Canada might want to check this out as I hear they are having issues getting together a drug testing kit.

Independence and sovereignty

As Brexit looms, fuelled by a demand for the return of British sovereignty and, in turn, the drive for Scottish Independence gains momentum, the question arises: just what powers are available or are required to be a nation state?

Beth's Newfangled Family Tree

Hi. Here's BNFT Section B for November. Hope you enjoy. You'll find a most interesting four or five pages at the end from Dr. Pete Hylton in Scotland. Fascinating as always!

We leave next Thursday afternoon for Stone Mountain, GA and the Stone Mountain Games. I'll be doing my speeches at the host hotel on Friday...usually at 11 AM and also usually 1 PM. There will be signs in the lobby giving specifics. The speeches are all free. No registration necessary, just show up.

The speeches are "Learn about the Scottish Community and how to find your ancestors there." The other speech is "How to get back to searching in Scotland." Both will be more fun than you think they will be.

My "extra" speech this year (short) will be "Scots have the best ideas! Innovative 'lightbulb's above our heads we can use today!" If your clan has come up with something wonderful...please come and share it.

I'll come "armed" with a couple of extra short bits. Plus, I know not the details, but know we will have a surprise somewhere during the talks.

Hope to see you next week in Atlanta/Stone Mountain!

Aye,
beth

The Story

The Sun Says

A HEARTY Sun welcome to Angela Merkel as she joins those of us certain that Britain WILL thrive outside the EU.

“A potential competitor will emerge for us,” says the German leader. “In addition to China and the United States of America, there will be Great Britain.”

For three years Remain diehards have insisted we are a puny backwater doomed without the might of Brussels to cling to. But even the EU doesn't believe it . . . quite the reverse.

Merkel has exposed their greatest fear: that Brexit will work, in spades.

That lower taxes and new trade deals, impossible to negotiate as a 28-member bloc, could rapidly make us richer and more attractive to investors than they are.

That lies behind the EU's relentless campaign, via its Westminster proxies, to thwart Brexit. They can't afford for it to succeed.

Nor, if they're honest, can those Remain saboteurs in Parliament. Not only would they have lost the referendum, they would have been proved wrong.

And their egos would never recover.

And that's it for this week and hope you all have a great weekend.

Alastair
